COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

In February 2011, an Order to Show Cause was served upon respondent – a non-tenured language arts teacher at Central Jersey Arts Charter School (CJACS) – requiring him to show cause why his teaching certificate should not be suspended for unprofessional conduct pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:26-10 for resigning his position without notice on September 30, 2010. The respondent contended, inter alia: that he was unsure of the stability of his employment with the CJACS and therefore explored an employment opportunity in East Orange which required him to start on October 1; and that his conduct was warranted by the allegedly abysmal teaching environment at the charter school.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: at the time of his resignation, respondent was working at CJACS pursuant to a fully executed contract in full force and effect; respondent's signature on his employment contract acknowledged his receipt of an employee handbook which clearly stated that resignations must be in writing with a minimum of 60 days' notice; respondent's conduct in leaving without any notice was grossly unprofessional as it allowed no time for the school administration to smoothly transition his students to a new teacher; respondent's contention that his actions were justified by CJACS's alleged non-compliance with special education requirements is without support in the record; respondent failed to put the interests of his students before his own interests when he suddenly resigned; and his abrupt departure could not help but be disruptive to his students' education. Accordingly, the ALJ concluded that respondent is guilty of unprofessional conduct within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 18A:26-10 and that his resignation without notice warrants suspension of his teaching certificate for a period of one year. However, the ALJ concluded that the suspension should commence at the conclusion of the 2011-2012 school year in order to avoid disruption in the education of respondent's current students in East Orange.

Upon independent review of the record and the Initial Decision, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ that respondent's unprofessional behavior warrants the suspension of his teaching certificate for a period of one year, and that this penalty shall commence at the end of the 2011-2012 school year. A copy of the instant decision was forwarded to the State Board of Examiners for the purpose of effectuating the suspension.

The petitioning charter school asks the Commissioner to suspend respondent's teaching certificate for one year in consequence of his precipitous resignation after the beginning of the 2010-2011 school year. Upon review of the record, Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), respondent's exceptions and petitioner's replies thereto, the Commissioner adopts the Initial Decision as the final decision in this controversy.

Respondent's exceptions largely reiterate his arguments before the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) and are rejected for the reasons articulated by the ALJ. First, the Commissioner finds nothing in the record that would render the ALJ's factual findings – including the finding that the African American studies course was literature based and within the scope of respondent's certification/endorsements – unsupportable. Second, regardless of who petitioner was or was not actually able to employ or utilize in respondent's absence, the kind of difficulties that petitioner encountered in the wake of respondent's abrupt departure were reasonably foreseeable.

Third, even if petitioner's failure to provide enough support for the special education students in his class was the motivation for respondent's resignation, his sudden exit was still not justified. Ironically, the disruption that his departure caused could only have aggravated any difficulties that both the special education students and the other students experienced. Finally, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that the fact patterns in In re Suspension of the Teaching Certificate of Burgess, 1983 S.L.D. 195, and In the Matter of the Suspension of the Teaching Certificate of Rogers, 1989 S.L.D. 1962, are not similar enough to those in the instant case, to warrant the imposition of a penalty less than the usual one-year certificate suspension.

Accordingly, the petition is granted and respondent's teaching certificate will be suspended for one year. Further, the Commissioner agrees with the ALJ that there is no reason to allow respondent's penalty to inflict disruption upon respondent's current students. Immediate suspension of respondent's certification would put the East Orange school district in the same predicament that petitioner found itself in when respondent suddenly left his employment. Thus, the suspension of respondent's certificate will commence at the end of the 2011-2012 school year. For that reason, this decision shall be forwarded to the State Board of Examiners for appropriate action.

IT IS SO ORDERED.¹

BEFORE ELLEN S. BASS, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner, Central Jersey Arts Charter School (CJACS), seeks an order suspending respondent's teaching certificate for a period of one year, contending that he resigned from his teaching position with inadequate notice. Respondent, Johnathan Creekmur, replies that he initially explored alternative employment because he was unsure that he would be reemployed for the 2010–2011 school year. Once he knew that he had a contract, Creekmur resigned without notice, but asserts that his conduct was warranted by the allegedly abysmal teaching environment at CJACS.

On February 23, 2011, at the request of CJACS, the Commissioner of Education (the Commissioner) entered an Order directing Creekmur to show cause why his teaching certificate should not be suspended for unprofessional conduct, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:26-10. Creekmur filed an answer on April 1, 2011. On April 4, 2011, the Commissioner transmitted this matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for hearing as a contested case.¹

A hearing was conducted on September 21, 2011. Post-hearing submissions were filed on October 21, 2011, at which time the record closed.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION AND FINDINGS OF FACT

The parties were able to stipulate to many of the pertinent facts, which they then elaborated upon through testimony. I FIND that Creekmur was continuously employed at CJACS as a teacher of language arts from August 25, 2008, through September 30, 2010.

Donna Titus-Johnson was Creekmur's principal. She testified that Creekmur approached her on or about September 15, 2010, to advise that he was considering employment elsewhere. He did not definitively say that he would be leaving CJACS, however. By September 21, 2010, Creekmur had received a written offer of employment from the East Orange public schools, and had accepted the offer in writing. According to Creekmur, only after accepting his new position did he learn he would be required to start there October 1, 2010.

Titus-Johnson first learned of Creekmur's resignation on September 30, 2010, and from students, who advised that he had said goodbye to them. Later that day,

¹ A verified complaint was initially filed on behalf of CJACS on December 23, 2010, but the matter was closed by the Commissioner because it was not accompanied by the requisite order to show cause. Via letter dated March 11, 2011, Creekmur was advised that the petition had been properly refiled, and that the closure of the earlier petition did "not serve to invalidate the Board's original submission date of December 23, 2010 in this matter."

Creekmur confirmed that he would be leaving immediately. Titus-Johnson warned Creekmur that leaving without notice could jeopardize his teaching certificate, but Creekmur simply replied that he hoped Titus-Johnson would choose not to pursue a revocation proceeding. He reminded her of all he had done for CJACS and its students. Shamida Coney, the lead person for CJACS, similarly learned of Creekmur's departure for the first time on September 30, 2010. It is uncontroverted and I FIND that Creekmur did not return to CJACS and, indeed, began working as a teacher in the East Orange schools the very next day, October 1, 2010.

Creekmur's departure left Titus-Johnson with a shallow applicant pool from which to draw, as the academic year had started and most teachers were already employed. After Creekmur abruptly left, CJACS temporarily assigned an instructional aide with a substitute teacher's certificate to teach his language arts classes. A replacement teacher was briefly and unsuccessful retained, and the aide was returned to the classroom. CJACS did not hire a permanent replacement for Creekmur until approximately fifteen weeks after his resignation. Creekmur verbally represented that he would assist during the transitional period, and he did so, via email exchanges and Facebook messages to the instructional aide.² Nonetheless, instruction was disrupted for the students in Creekmur's classes, who for a good part of the year received instruction from a substitute teacher.

Creekmur urged that his hasty departure was not to "feather his own nest," but rather was a reaction to the distressing environment at the school. He pointed out that CJACS had been an appealing job due to its location close to home, and that he now travels some twenty some miles each way to get to work. Creekmur further asserted that he was not lured to East Orange by an attractive salary. While his salary there ultimately was about $24,050 higher than his salary at CJACS would have been during the 2010–2011 school year, he was initially appointed at an annual salary of $50,218, less than the $51,400 salary in his 2010–2011 contract with CJACS. (J-5.) But quickly thereafter, the East Orange Board twice made adjustments to his salary; by November 2010, Creekmur's salary had been adjusted to $85,589 by the East Orange Board. (J-9; J-10.)³

² Titus-Johnson conceded that even if Creekmur had afforded CJACS the requisite 60 days notice, it would have been difficult to find a replacement. Creekmur urged that a qualified applicant was available earlier, but his testimony in this regard was not evidential. The record developed at hearing would not allow me to determine if the candidate alluded to by Creekmur was qualified or not, and a decision whether this individual truly met the school's needs rested in the sole discretion of the CJACS administration. But I did hear testimony that this candidate was herself unavailable for sixty days; this certainly was believable given the time of year, and buttresses CJACS's contention that Creekmur left his position at a most inconvenient time for CJACS and its students.

Creekmur testified that he was unsure that he had a contract for the 2010–2011 school year at CJACS, offering this testimony to justify his exploration of the opportunity presented in East Orange.⁴ He pointed to confusion regarding his reemployment for the 2009–2010 year as evidence that his concerns about job security were well placed. Apparently, the previous year, his contract was late in coming. Creekmur initially had been offered a position as a literacy coach, and he was even asked to assist in the process of hiring a replacement language arts teacher. The literacy coach position never materialized, and during the summer of 2009 Creekmur still had not signed a contract. Although he was ultimately asked to return for the 2009–2010 school year as a language arts teacher, Creekmur was so unsure he still had a job that he applied for unemployment benefits.

But in fact by mid-May 2010, Creekmur was provided with a contract-renewal notice offering him reemployment for the 2010–2011 school year, which he was required to return signed on or before June 1, 2010. Coney testified that Creekmur did not return the form until June 9, 2010, and she advised Creekmur that his lateness could “affect [his] offer of employment.” This quickly proved to be an empty threat because Creekmur received and signed an individual employment contract memorializing the terms and conditions for his employment with CJACS for the 2010–2011 school year sometime in early June.⁵ Creekmur testified that he did not receive a fully executed copy of his contract until August 2010, and for this reason spent the summer again uncertain if he had a job come September. I agree with CJACS that this testimony does not ring true, and, indeed, Coney credibly testified that although Creekmur worked in a CJACS summer program during 2010 she was unaware that he had any concerns about his employment status. Although Creekmur, like most people, needed a job to pay his bills, he never once inquired that summer about his position for September 2010.

Notwithstanding any alleged confusion about his ongoing employment at CJACS during the summer of 2010, it is uncontroverted and I FIND that at the time of his resignation in late September 2010 Creekmur was working at CJACS pursuant to a fully executed contract in full force and effect, and, indeed, was being compensated in accordance with the terms of that contract. It is likewise uncontroverted and I FIND that Creekmur read and reviewed the contract's terms prior to signing it, and did not express any confusion about the obligations created by it. The contract stated that an employee handbook had been provided to Creekmur, and that he understood that he must also abide by the policies, procedures and job responsibilities contained in that handbook. The handbook states at page 21 that "[t]here may come a time when you choose to leave Central Jersey Arts Charter School to take on another challenge or for some other reason [and] [y]ou must notify the principal in writing and with a minimum of 60 calendar days notice." (J-7.) The contract itself similarly confirms that resignations must be with 60 days' notice. (J-5.)

Creekmur justified his sudden departure from CJACS with a variety of complaints about how the school operated. He testified that he was assigned classes he was not qualified to teach; that he was ill-equipped to assist the non-English speakers and special education students in his classes; and that a scheduling snafu at the start of the year resulted in confusion in the halls and interrupted learning. Creekmur holds instructional certification with a K–8 elementary endorsement. He took and passed the Praxis examination for middle school language arts, which is the only area in which Creekmur is "highly qualified" as that term is defined by No Child Left Behind. He contended that the only subject he was truly qualified to teach was language arts.

For the 2010–2011 school year, Creekmur's weekly course schedule included language arts literacy classes, African-American Studies classes, a community service class and six study hall periods. Creekmur's testimony made it clear that he did not like his schedule, and that he felt that his colleagues received better assignments. He specifically challenged the propriety of being asked to teach African-American Studies. Titus-Johnson clarified that the African-American Studies course was literature based, and designed as an examination of the African-American experience through novels and poetry. She felt it was an appropriate assignment for Creekmur. A course description was consistent with Titus-Johnson's explanation of the goals of this middle-school elective, and it provides:

This class will be about the African-American experience and will be constructed around the voices and language used by Black people themselves. The class will be organized chronologically with the use of novels, films, current events and essays. The class will cover the historical aspects of the African American experience from the struggle against slavery to the 21st century. Students will be required to complete a final examination and an end of course project.

Creekmur urged that he was ill-prepared to teach this course, which he contended had no curriculum or syllabus to guide him and was really a social studies class. But he admitted that he team-taught the class the prior year, and Titus-Johnson testified, and I FIND, that Creekmur did not complain about this assignment at any time while he was still teaching at CJACS. He likewise did not complain about the community service assignment, which Titus-Johnson explained guided students through volunteer experiences required for graduation from CJACS.

Creekmur contended that the school was non-compliant with special education requirements, and Titus-Johnson conceded that a monitoring visit by the Department of Education revealed some procedural errors. Indeed, she shared both a letter from the Department of Education that specified areas of non-compliance, as well as an April 5, 2011, letter from the Department that indicated that all areas of concern had been corrected. (P-2.) Creekmur urged that the special education students included in his mainstream classes had received support during the years prior to 2010–2011 from a special education teacher, Rebecca Forste Deepchandani. Deepchandani was reassigned to language arts classes for the 2010–2011 school year, and no one was hired to replace the special education support she had supplied in Creekmur's classroom.

Creekmur maintained that this made for an impossible classroom environment. He stated that his special education students were disruptive and impeded the progress of the remaining students. Deepchandani concurred, urging that special education students at CJACS were not receiving the services promised in their Individualized Education Programs (IEPs). She penned a letter on Creekmur's behalf, in which she wrote that "both Mr. Creekmur and I were witnesses to blatant, intentional and unabashed violations of education law and student rights. After having seen what we saw, no self-respecting educator could in good conscience continue to take part in the operation of this school." (R-6.) Deepchandani also ultimately resigned, but despite her vehement concern about the poor conditions at CJACS, she was able to do so with proper notice.

CJACS urges that Deepchandani was a disgruntled employee, who left the school after receiving a disciplinary warning and whose testimony should be given little weight. (P-5.) In troubling testimony, Deepchandani flatly denied having any employment-related issues while working at CJACS prior to her resignation. But when asked, "[d]id they ever warn you that you had excessive tardiness?" she replied, "[t]hey may have." When asked if she had been warned about not properly submitting lesson plans, she stated, "that occurred after I submitted my resignation." Her resignation was tendered in January 2011, and she somewhat recanted this testimony when presented with a copy of a disciplinary notice dated November 8, 2010. (P-5.) Deepchandani now stated that it was possible that she had seen the disciplinary notice before, but did not remember. A disciplinary notice is not something an employee is likely to forget. There was a lack of straightforwardness and candor to Deepchandani's testimony that diminished her credibility and leads me to agree that her anger with CJACS may have colored her recollections of the events.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

N.J.S.A. 18A:26-10 provides that “[a]ny teaching staff member employed by a board of education . . . who shall, without the consent of the board . . . , cease to perform his duties before the expiration of the term of his employment, shall be deemed guilty of unprofessional conduct, and the commissioner may, upon receiving notice thereof, suspend his certificate for a period not exceeding one year.” See also N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.9. The Commissioner has held that the central purpose of N.J.S.A. 18A:26-10 is “to provide notice to the school so that a suitable replacement can be hired without adversely impacting students.” Penns Grove-Carneys Point Bd. of Educ. v. Leinen, 94 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 405, 407.

The decision to suspend a teaching certificate pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:26-10 is discretionary and the Commissioner has historically evaluated all circumstances specific to an individual case. As a general rule, however, with rare exception, the Commissioner has imposed suspensions for the one-year maximum period. Black Horse Pike Reg'l Sch. Dist. v. Mooney, 1984 S.L.D. 821; In re Suspension of the Teaching Certificate of Capshaw, EDU 12318-06, Initial Decision (April 30, 2007), modified, Comm'r (June 12, 2007) <<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html>>; E. Amwell Twp. Bd. of Educ. v. Acken, 1986 S.L.D. 2803.

Indeed, the Commissioner has declined to order a full-year suspension only when presented with compelling mitigating circumstances. In Black Horse Pike Regional, supra, 1984 S.L.D. 821, for example, the Commissioner did not suspend the certificate of a staff member who, due to her husband's relocation, resigned a week earlier than required by her contract. The board in Black Horse Pike Regional was able to secure a replacement before the resigning teacher's departure and there was no disruption to the continuity of instruction. The teacher there had an understandable reason for her slightly early departure and had met with her successor to discuss the educational program. She had left lesson plans and final grades for her classes.

None of these mitigating factors are present here. Creekmur's conduct was grossly unprofessional. He literally walked out on his students, urging that his actions were justified by the fact that CJACS was operated in violation of law. This record provided me with no evidence to support this contention, nor is this proceeding the context in which a proper and complete analysis of CJACS and its regulatory compliance could be or should be explored.⁶ A school like CJACS is regularly monitored by the Department of Education, and any concerns about how it functions could have been referred by Creekmur to the Department.

He urges that his abrupt departure from CJACS was "attributable to honest and noble motivations," because the school was so poorly run that he could better serve children by moving on to another school district. But Creekmur's arguments, if accepted by me, would give free reign to dissatisfied teachers throughout the state to walk out on schools that they feel are not up to par, in complete contravention of the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:26-10. Employment in a public school is not servitude, and a teacher can resign from a setting that does not feel right, regardless of the reason. But the statute recognizes that a teacher must not depart without notice, even if the teacher dislikes his school; even if the teacher thinks the school is poorly run; and even if the teacher thinks the school is non-compliant with education laws and regulations. Teaching is a unique occupation, where a change in personnel can affect many young lives. N.J.S.A. 18A:26-10 confirms that a dedicated teacher must always put his students first. Creekmur did not do so.

Creekmur cites several cases where the Commissioner declined to enter a one-year suspension, but each is distinguishable on its facts. In In re Suspension of the Teaching Certificate of Burgess, 1983 S.L.D. 195, the Commissioner did not suspend the responding teacher's certificate, but the initial decision noted that the teacher there "did not 'walk off' the job without notice but, in exemplary fashion, left carefully made plans as well as personally owned teaching materials for the benefit of his successor, his pupils, his administrators and his employer." Clinton Twp. Bd. of Educ. v. Burgess, ⁶ I was wholly unconvinced that Creekmur was assigned classes he was unqualified to teach, as he clearly was being asked to teach a literature-based African-American Studies class. Relative to the special education students in his class, any failure by CJACS to comply with the requirements of their IEPs did not justify Creekmur's actions in leaving his entire class of students adrift for months while CJACS struggled to locate a replacement.

1983 S.L.D. 183, 191. Burgess did not leave to take a position at another school, "an act which has in the past been adjudged by the Board of Examiners to be sufficient reason to suspend a teaching certificate." Ibid. Furthermore, Burgess's administrators had offered to help facilitate his early departure, representing that they would attempt to obtain a replacement during the two-week-notice period he did provide.

Here, Creekmur did walk off the job, and did so to take a position at another school. I heard no evidence that comprehensive lesson plans were left for his successor, only that he communicated periodically with the aide assigned to his classes via email and Facebook. Similarly, In the Matter of the Suspension of the Teaching Certificate of Rogers, 1989 S.L.D. 1962, does not support Creekmur's position. There, a certificate was suspended for only three months because, fortuitously, the board located a replacement within a week. Creekmur unsuccessfully urges that he could have been replaced quickly too, if CJACS had hired the applicant he perceived was "qualified," conveniently overlooking that this candidate herself could not come to CJACS without giving her district 60 days' notice. Furthermore, in Rogers the Commissioner was convinced that there was confusion about the requirements of the respondent's contract; no such confusion was evident here.

I must also distinguish Creekmur's conduct from that of the respondent in Rogers, who left a public school position to return to work with profoundly disabled individuals at a State developmental center. Rogers's willingness to do this very important and difficult work colored the Commissioner's perception of his conduct. But here, notwithstanding Creekmur's assertion that his "actions were clearly motivated by the need to serve students effectively in a setting that promoted that goal," I am unconvinced that Creekmur left CJACS to pursue a lofty purpose. He left because he was unhappy at CJACS and East Orange presented a better opportunity.

Creekmur's arguments that his actions did not impair the quality of instruction at CJACS are unavailing. It is incontrovertible that a teacher's abrupt departure is disruptive for students. Likewise, Creekmur's unprofessional conduct negatively impacted his administrators, who had to scramble to secure coverage for his classroom, and his colleagues, who were reassigned to ensure that some modicum of instruction took place in Creekmur's classroom while a replacement teacher was secured. Creekmur acted "with nary a concern about the well-being of the . . . students in need of his assistance, [CJACS's] ability to find a suitable replacement on such short notice, or the increased workload for his co-workers." Capshaw, supra, EDU 12318-06, Comm'r (June 12, 2007) <<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html>>. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that Creekmur is guilty of "unprofessional conduct" within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 18A:26-10 and that his abrupt resignation from his teaching position, without notice, warrants suspension of his teaching certificate for a period of one year.

Creekmur urges that his students in East Orange will be unfairly punished if he is forced to leave his position there mid-year because his certificate is under suspension. This argument is compelling, because I agree that a suspension, if imposed during the 2011–2012 school year, will affect the students of East Orange in precisely the manner N.J.S.A. 18A:26-10 seeks to prevent. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the suspension of Creekmur's certificate should commence at the conclusion of the 2011–2012 school year.

ORDER

Based on the foregoing, it is ORDERED that Creekmur's teaching certificates be suspended for a period of one year, said suspension to commence at the conclusion of the 2011–2012 school year.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

Petitioner was terminated in 2009 when his position as Supervisor for Grant Acquisition and Management was eliminated in a reduction in force (RIF). He subsequently filed the instant appeal claiming that the respondent Board violated his tenure and or seniority rights. Petitioner was employed by the Board in several different positions between 2001 until 2009. The Board contended that the petitioner never earned tenure in the district and therefore lacked tenure rights.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: there are no material facts at issue and the matter is ripe for summary decision; tenure is a statutory right with precise statutory requirements, and the staff member claiming tenure rights has the burden of proving his right to tenure; in order to gain tenure, a teaching staff member must work in a position for which a teaching certificate is required, hold the appropriate certificate, and serve for the requisite period of time; an endorsement as a school administrator is required in order for an individual to be authorized to serve in any position that involves services as a district-level administrative officer; petitioner's endorsement as a principal did not constitute appropriate certification for tenure-acquisition purposes because his service was not as an administrative officer of a school or comparable unit; conversely his principal endorsement did not authorize him to fulfill the district-level responsibilities with which he was charged; and petitioner bore the primary responsibility for ensuring that he possessed the appropriate certification and endorsement for the positions in which he served. The ALJ concluded that: based on the job descriptions under which petitioner served, he should have possessed an administrative certificate with an endorsement as a school administrator in order to be legally authorized to fulfill such functions; inasmuch as petitioner did not hold the appropriate endorsement for such assignments, he did not earn time toward tenure while serving in a director position; and therefore his length of service falls short of the statutory requirements for acquisition of tenure. The ALJ recommended dismissal of the petition.

Upon review and consideration, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ that petitioner did not achieve tenure in respondent's district because he was not properly certificated for the positions in which he served. Accordingly, he adopted the Initial Decision as the final decision in this matter, and dismissed the petition.

RESPONDENT.	:

This controversy arose when petitioner's employment with respondent was terminated in consequence of the elimination of his position. The Commissioner has reviewed the record, the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), petitioner's exceptions to the Initial Decision, and respondent's replies thereto, and is constrained to concur with the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) that petitioner's separation from employment was not a tenure violation.

Based upon the stipulated facts, it appears that before petitioner came to work in respondent's district he had received training and certification as an educator, and accumulated experience working in the New York school system. In 2000, he was engaged by respondent as a consultant.

In 2001, respondent's Superintendent, Edwin Duroy, sought and received permission from Benjamin Rarick, Director of the Office of State Operated School Districts of the State Department of Education (DOE), to hire petitioner as an "Interim Program Director." Joint Exhibit J-1.¹ After petitioner had served for a year – as "Director of the Paterson Educational Partnership for 21st Century Community Learning Centers" – Duroy again contacted Rarick seeking permission for petitioner to be appointed as "Director of Grant Development and Evaluation." By way of an August 9, 2002 memorandum, Rarick approved the appointment "per [Duroy's] memo to [Rarick] dated August 8, 2002." Joint Exhibit J-6.²

Petitioner then served as Director of Grant Development and Evaluation for approximately five years.³ The Job description for the position was memorialized in December 2003, Joint Exhibit J-3, and included the requirement of an administrative certificate with a supervisor endorsement. A March 15, 2005 revision to the job description also called for a supervisor endorsement. Joint Exhibit J-4. In the course of his service as Director of Grant Development and Evaluation, petitioner earned a masters degree in educational leadership, Joint Exhibit J-7, and an administrative certificate with a principal/supervisor endorsement, Joint Exhibit J-12. The provisional certificate with the principal/supervisor endorsement was issued in January 2005, Joint Exhibit J-11.

At the end of the 2006-07 school year, petitioner's position was abolished, and as of July 1, 2007, petitioner was assigned to be Environmental Science, Health and Safety

² Duroy's August 8, 2002 "memo," referenced in Rarick's memorandum of approval – along with any information that might have been annexed thereto -- does not appear to be in the record.

Supervisor.⁴ Petitioner challenged respondent's action of moving him from a director position to a supervisor position and the parties eventually -- in December 2008 -- settled the controversy via petitioner's reassignment to the position of "Acting Supervisor for the Office of Grant Acquisition and Management." Joint Exhibits J-19, J-20 and J-21. However, four months later, petitioner was advised that, in consequence of "an economic crisis," his and other positions would be eliminated as of July 1, 2009. Joint Exhibit J-24. Petitioner was further advised that his employment would not be renewed. Ibid.

In his petition of appeal, petitioner alleged that:

By virtue of his term of service as a director and supervisor in respondent's employ, [he] attained tenure under his Principal/Supervisor Certificate [sic] pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 and 6, with seniority rights pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:32-5.1, et seq. (Petition, Para. 3)

It is petitioner's burden to clearly prove that claim, Canfield v. Pine Hill Bd. of Educ., 97 N.J. Super. 493 (App. Div. 1967), by showing that during the relevant time period he had met the precise statutory requirements for attaining tenure. Picogna v. Cherry Hill Bd. of Educ., 143 N.J. 391, 400 (1996).

Among the requirements for earning tenure is the necessity that the candidate hold the correct certificate and endorsement for his or her position. See, N.J.S.A. 18A:28-4; Nelson v. Old Bridge Bd. of Educ., 148 N.J. 358, 363 (1997); Spiewak v. Rutherford Bd. of Educ., 90 N.J. 63, 74 (1982). The ALJ found, Initial Decision at 16, and the Commissioner concurs, that the job descriptions for each position that petitioner held in respondent's district -- except the Environmental Science, Health and Safety Supervisor position -- revealed that each of the jobs were comprised completely of district-level responsibilities, and that, consequently, the certification required for the positions was an administrative certificate with a school administrator endorsement. N.J.A.C. 6A:9-12.3(a). It is undisputed that petitioner has never held such certification. Thus, the Commissioner agrees with the ALJ that, because petitioner had never held the appropriate certification for his various directorships, he did not earn tenure.

In his exceptions, pages 2-4, petitioner maintains, as a threshold matter, that the ALJ had no authority to determine the correct certification for petitioner's positions, and that the instant controversy should be held in abeyance while the Executive County Superintendent considers the matter. The Commissioner disagrees. As the ALJ explained:

Although N.J.A.C. 6A:9-5.5 envisions that a board of education will submit a request to the county superintendent for permission to use an unrecognized title position prior to appointing a candidate and, if approved, the county superintendent will determine the appropriate certification and title for the position, *Duva*⁵ supports this forum's ability to determine the appropriate endorsement for the "director" position titles held by petitioner in order to decide the transmitted controversy between the parties.

(Initial Decision at 15)

Indeed, in Duva, the New Jersey State Board of Education explained:

We recognize that the county superintendent is charged with the responsibility in the first instance for determining the appropriate certification for service in an unrecognized title based upon the duties required to be performed. N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.3(b) [predecessor of N.J.A.C. 6A:9-5.5]. However, there is no indication in the record that the unrecognized position titles in this case were ever submitted to the county superintendent for determination of the appropriate certification. . . . Moreover, it is well established that the State Board of Education has the ultimate administrative authority to determine certification -- see South River Education Association v. Board of Education of the Borough of South River, decided by the State Board of Education, November 4, 1987, aff'd, Docket #A-1695-87T8 (App. Div. 1990). As the ultimate fact-finder and administrative decision-maker for disputes arising under the school laws, Dore v. Bedminster Tp. Bd. Of Ed., 185 N.J. Super. 447 (App. Div. 1982), we have reviewed the record before us, including the job descriptions for the director's assignments held by the petitioner. Based on that review, we conclude that the duties of those assignments were of such character as to require that the individual serving in them possess an Administrative Certificate with an endorsement as a school administrator in order to be authorized by statute and regulation to fulfill such functions.

Subsequent to Duva, and pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9.1, the Commissioner of Education became the ultimate administrative arbiter of school law disputes. Thus, it is the Commissioner who now has the ultimate administrative authority to determine certification. Since the Commissioner has the discretion to send controversies to the OAL for fact-finding and legal recommendations, it is well within an ALJ's sphere of responsibility to make determinations about certification and present same to the Commissioner for consideration.

Petitioner's reliance on Joseph Pezzullo v. Board of Education of the Township of Willingboro, Burlington County, 1987 S.L.D. 198 (Commissioner Decision) is unhelpful. That controversy came to the Commissioner by way of a motion for a declaratory judgment. As declaratory judgments are issued to provide prospective guidance, and not to correct an already perpetrated adverse action, it was appropriate in Pezzullo for the Commissioner to direct that determinations concerning the proper certification requirements for "unrecognized" titles be made, in the first instance, by the County Superintendent. Moreover, in Pezzullo, the record did not appear to include a board-approved job description for the petitioner's position, making any certification determinations by the Commissioner -- or ALJ recommendations about same -- premature.

In petitioner's second exception to the Initial Decision he asks the Commissioner to muddy the clear definitions in and distinctions between N.J.A.C. 6A:9-12.3(a), (b) and (c).

The offered rationale is that “in a multiplicity of school districts, district-wide positions such as ‘Director of Special Education’ exist which are held by individuals who hold Principal endorsements,” and that by ruling against petitioner in this case the Commissioner would be rendering illegal the employment of those individuals. Petitioner’s Exceptions at 5.

No facts are offered to support the above referenced proposition; likewise, no explanation of how petitioner might have standing to demand action on behalf of such unidentified employees. The Commissioner cannot make determinations based upon speculation. By way of contrast, the facts of the instant case clearly show that during most of petitioner’s years in respondent’s district his job responsibilities were those contemplated by N.J.A.C. 6A:9-12.3(a), and required an administrative certificate with a school administrator endorsement.

Matarazzo v. Board of Education of the Borough of Cliffside Park, Bergen County, Commissioner Decision No. 127-04 (March 18, 2004), cited on page 7 of petitioner’s exceptions, is not apposite to the instant case. In that case, Matarazzo earned tenure as a supervisor of instruction in respondent’s district and was employed in that position until the district abolished it. Three years later, when the district reintroduced three instructional supervisor positions, petitioner unsuccessfully applied for one. After learning that one of the positions had been given to a non-tenured employee, Matarazzo successfully appealed to the Commissioner, claiming entitlement to it. The Commissioner rejected the respondent board of education’s argument that Matarazzo’s tenure in the instructional supervisor position did not attach to the new instructional supervisor position – because the new position included certain district-wide responsibilities.

Petitioner appears to argue that the Commissioner's decision in favor of Matarazzo stands for the proposition that an employee who holds a supervisor endorsement, as opposed to school administrator endorsement, can earn tenure in a district level administrative position whose gravamen is the formulation of comprehensive district wide goal-setting, planning, budgeting and policy implementation. In so doing petitioner fails to appreciate that the Commissioner found in favor of Matarazzo because the new so-called district-wide supervisor position in Matarazzo's district was fundamentally an instructional supervisor position – whose duties could include some district-wide responsibilities but were nonetheless limited to the realm of instruction and/or curriculum. For such a discrete, program specific position with jurisdiction over a defined “unit”⁶ a principal or supervisor endorsement is sufficient. By way of contrast, the wide-ranging, district-wide administrative position held by petitioner in the case at bar did require a school administrator endorsement.

Petitioner also ignores the plain language of N.J.A.C. 6A:9-12.3(c) which expressly states that a supervisor endorsement is the required credential for supervisors of instruction -- whose duties are described as “direction and guidance of the work of instructional personnel.” Thus, the language of N.J.A.C. 6A:9-12.3(c) contemplates that an instructional supervisor's work will include supervision of certain personnel and instructional matters throughout a district. That does not raise the position of instructional supervisors to the level of district administrator. Matarazzo's attainment of the instructional supervisor position did not signify that an employee with a supervisor endorsement and no school administrator endorsement may hold the kind of district level position that petitioner claims.

In petitioner's third exception he urges that because respondent assigned the wrong certification requirement to his director positions and because the DOE did not “object” to the error, he should not be penalized for having held the wrong credentials. Petitioner's Exceptions at 8-9. He also suggests that the Commissioner's approval of a December 2008 settlement between the parties signified that the Commissioner deemed a principal/supervisor endorsement to be the appropriate certification for a district-level position, i.e. "Supervisor of Grant Acquisition Management." Petitioner's Exceptions at 10.

At the outset, the Commissioner notes that it is well established that a teaching staff member is charged with the responsibility to ensure that he or she has earned the appropriate certification for the position which he or she seeks or holds. This is so even where a district has improperly assigned the employee duties for which the employee is not certificated. Stephen Jennings v. Board of Education of the Borough of Highland Park, Middlesex County, 1989 S.L.D. 1097, 1101 (decided February 28, 1989) (petitioner's reliance upon such actions in the face of clear regulations to the contrary cannot be regarded as reasonable). Thus, respondent's mistake concerning the proper certification for petitioner's jobs will not serve as an excuse for petitioner's failure to have acquired the appropriate endorsement.

Nor can petitioner interpret the above-referenced Commissioner approval of the 2008 settlement or the DOE's consent to petitioner's employment as tacit determinations that petitioner was qualified for the assignments that he was given. Careful scrutiny of the exhibits submitted in this case and the decision authorizing the 2008 settlement reveals no evidence that respondent presented the DOE with the job descriptions for the unrecognized title designations that appeared in the correspondence between respondent and the DOE concerning the employment of petitioner (Joint Exhibits J-1, J-5, J-6, J-9, J-10, J-21, J-22, and J-23).

In summary, petitioner did not achieve tenure in respondent's district because he was not properly certificated for the positions in which he served. While it is regretful that respondent erred in its determination about the appropriate certification requirements for petitioner's jobs, petitioner was equally and ultimately responsible for ensuring that he held the correct certification. To rule otherwise would be to allow tenure to be established not by statute but by the intentional or unintentional actions of local school districts. See, e.g., Jennings, supra, 1989 S.L.D. at 1089-1091. Accordingly, the petition is dismissed.

JACK A. PERNA,

Petitioner,

STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL

DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF

PATERSON, PASSAIC COUNTY,

Respondent.

Elizabeth Murphy, Esq., for respondent (Bauch, Zucker, Hatfield, attorneys)

Record Closed: May 11, 2011

Decided: November 10, 2011

BEFORE MARGARET M. MONACO, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner Jack Perna claims that respondent State-Operated School District of the City of Paterson (the District) violated his tenure and/or seniority rights by terminating his employment. The District controverts petitioner's tenure claim.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner filed a Verified Petition with the Commissioner of Education (the Commissioner) contesting the termination of his employment. Petitioner asserts that by virtue of his term of service as a director and supervisor, he attained tenure under his "Principal/Supervisor Certificate" pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 and -6, with seniority rights pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:32-5.1 et seq., and that the District's failure to continue to employ him constitutes a violation of his tenure and/or seniority rights. Petitioner seeks reemployment in a full-time position within the scope of his tenure and/or seniority as a director or supervisor together with salary, benefits and/or seniority credit lost. The District filed an Answer and Affirmative Defenses to the Verified Petition, and the Department of Education transmitted the contested case to the Office of Administrative Law for a hearing. The matter was reassigned to the undersigned in January 2010, and scheduled for hearing on September 27, 2010. Subsequently, the District filed a motion for summary decision, and petitioner filed a motion for partial summary decision. I entertained oral argument on the motions on May 11, 2011, on which date the record closed.

FINDINGS OF FACT

The pertinent facts surrounding the within motions are not in dispute. The parties submitted a Partial Joint Stipulation of Facts (Stip.), accompanied by various documents (J-1 to J-24). In support of their respective motions, petitioner submitted a certification (Perna Cert. and P-1 to P-10), and the District submitted a certification of its Director of Labor Relations, Luis Rojas, Jr. (Rojas Cert. and Exhibits A to C). Based upon a review of the documentary evidence presented, I FIND the following pertinent undisputed FACTS:

From July 2000 to August 2001, petitioner served as a non-employee consultant for the District under the title of "Interim Director, Office of Career Learning Academies and Smaller Schools." (Stip. at ¶1.) Prior to his employment with the District, petitioner had been employed as an educator in New York City for twenty-seven years. He holds

New York State permanent teaching certifications in elementary education (N–6) and biology (7–12), and is certified by the City of New York as an Education Administrator Curriculum & Staff Development Specialist and an Education Administrator Senior Program Management Specialist. (Perna Cert. at ¶2; see P-1 to P-4.) Petitioner received a master's degree in biology from the City College of New York in 1979, and a Ph.D. in curriculum and instruction, science education, from Kansas State University in 1992. (Perna Cert. at ¶2; see P-5; P-6.)

Petitioner became employed in the District on August 23, 2001, and served in the position of Director, Paterson Educational Partnership for Twenty-First Century Community Learning Centers, between August 23, 2001, and August 8, 2002. (See Stip. at ¶2.) Petitioner's duties in this assignment were as follows:

- Maintained strong partnerships between the school district and local non-profit organizations, and various state and city agencies; constantly planning and coordinating all of the various enrichment, recreational and cultural activities offered to over 2000 children and 700 adults annually.
- Fiscal management; preparing required quarterly reports for submission to the USDOE.
- Continuously evaluating all activities and practices to assure continuous quality improvements were being made.

[Stip. at ¶2; see Rojas Cert. at ¶3.]

At the time of his hiring, petitioner held a New Jersey county substitute certificate. (See Stip. at ¶3.) The State-district superintendent for Paterson public schools (the State-district superintendent) sought permission from the New Jersey Department of Education (the Department of Education) to employ petitioner. (Ibid.) By correspondence dated July 24, 2001, the director of State-operated school districts for the Department of Education approved petitioner's appointment. (See Ibid.; J-1.) The District relied upon the director's opinion that a county substitute certificate was acceptable to meet State standards. (See Stip. at ¶3; J-2.)

Between August 9, 2002, and December 3, 2006, petitioner served as "Director of Grant Development and Evaluation." (Stip. at ¶4.) Petitioner's appointment to this title was effectuated, retroactively, by the State-district superintendent in October 2002, after express approval of petitioner's assignment by the director of State-operated school districts. (See Stip. at ¶4; J-5; J-6.) Petitioner's job functions and responsibilities for this position were set forth in a job description dated December 10, 2003, which was revised on March 15, 2005. (Stip. at ¶4; see J-3; J-4.) The original job description provides that "[t]he Director of Grant Development and Evaluation seeks out, obtains, and utilizes Federal, State and other funding to as great an advantage as possible to benefit the educational programs, facilities, and personnel of the district." (J-3.) The director also "coordinates the evaluation of selected programs and then reports to the Superintendent and the Board of Education." The job description as revised in March 2005 summarizes the nature and scope of the job title as follows:

The Director of Grant Development and Evaluation coordinates the planning, development, implementation and evaluation of applications and program proposals. The Director must conduct research, identify funding and program opportunities, establish effective lines of communication with key individuals within corporate, Federal, State and other sources, and prepare applications and program proposals within established timelines. The Director works collaboratively with the administrative and instructional staff and communicates effectively with parents, members of the community and colleagues in other districts and schools.

Pursuant to that job description, the listed job functions and responsibilities included, among others, "[i]dentify and research available funding and program opportunities"; "[e]stablish and maintain effective lines of communication with individuals responsible for funding and grants within the various sectors"; "[o]btain application forms and procedures, analyze program requirements and specifications, and establish an appropriate timeline for grant development"; "develop budgets and accounting procedures for special projects" in collaboration with the school business administrator; "[p]repare and submit applications for review and approval of the Superintendent of Schools and Board of Education within established timelines”; “ensure that project activities are implemented as planned within State and Federal guidelines” in collaboration with the Assistant Superintendent for Accountability and Compliance; “[c]oordinate program activities with district staff and outside partners”; “[r]ecommend assessment procedures and instruments as required”; and “[p]resent proposals, program plans and evaluative reports to district staff, the Board of Education, members of the community and funding sources as required.” (J-4.) Both the December 2003 and March 2005 job descriptions specify that a New Jersey Administrative Certificate with a supervisor endorsement was required. (J-3; J-4.)

On June 4, 2004, petitioner completed his master’s degree in education leadership. (Stip. at ¶5; see J-7.) Petitioner was issued a Certificate of Eligibility as a principal/supervisor in July 2004. (Stip. at ¶5; see J-8.) On November 8, 2004, the District submitted the paperwork needed for issuance of petitioner’s provisional certification as a principal. (Stip. at ¶5; see J-9.) Included in that submission was a “Statement of Assurance of Principal Position” by the State-district superintendent, which states that petitioner “[h]as been assured the following position which requires principal certification: Director of Grant & Development.” (See Stip. at ¶5; J-10.) In January 2005, the State Board of Examiners (the Board of Examiners) issued to petitioner a Provisional Certificate to serve as a principal. (See Stip. at ¶6; J-11.) In April 2005, the Board of Examiners issued to petitioner a permanent standard Administrative Certificate with a principal/supervisor endorsement. (See Stip. at ¶7; J-12.) Petitioner has never held a New Jersey Administrative Certificate with an endorsement as a school administrator. (Stip. at ¶12.)

Effective December 4, 2006, the District reclassified petitioner’s position as “Director of Grant Development and Evaluation” to the title of “Director of Grant Development and Evaluation and Pupil Assignment.” (Stip. at ¶8; see J-13.) Petitioner served in this position through June 30, 2007. (Stip. at ¶8.) A job description for the position was adopted on October 11, 2006, which summarizes the nature and scope of the position as follows:

The Director of Student Placement, Grant Development and Evaluation coordinates the planning, development, implementation and evaluation of applications and program proposals. The Director must conduct research, identify funding and program opportunities, establish effective lines of communication with key individuals within corporate, Federal, State and other sources, and prepare applications and program proposals within established timelines. In addition, the Director will administer the registration of students for specialized academic programs and schools outside established attendance areas. The Director assists in the development, monitoring and evaluation of academy and magnet school programs. The Director works collaboratively with the administrative and instructional staff and communicates effectively with parents, members of the community and colleagues in other districts and schools.

The job description listed job functions and responsibilities similar to the prior job description, and specified that the job title required a New Jersey Administrative Certificate with a supervisor endorsement. (J-14.)

By letter dated May 21, 2007, petitioner was notified that the District had determined to abolish the position of Director of Grant Development, Evaluation and Planning, effective July 1, 2007, and that he would be reassigned to the position title of Environmental Science, Health and Safety Supervisor. (P-7; see Perna Cert. at ¶14.) Between July 1, 2007, and December 3, 2008, petitioner served as Supervisor of Environmental Science, Health and Safety. (Stip. at ¶9.) A job description for the position was adopted on October 29, 2007. (Stip. at ¶9; see J-15). The title was changed to "Environmental Science, Health and Safety Supervisor/Officer" with a job description revision on May 30, 2008. (Stip. at ¶9; see J-16.) Both job descriptions specify that the job title required a New Jersey Administrative Certificate with a supervisor endorsement. (J-15; J-16.)

On August 16, 2007, petitioner filed a Petition of Appeal with the Commissioner claiming that his tenure rights were violated. (See Stip. at ¶10; J-17; J-18.) Specifically, petitioner alleged in the Petition that he had "accrued tenure as a director"; he "has never served in the title of supervisor while employed with the respondent”; and that the District violated his tenure rights “by reassigning petitioner to the title of supervisor while employing non-tenured staff members in director titles in which petitioner is qualified to serve.” (J-18.) A settlement was reached in that litigation under which it was agreed that petitioner would be assigned as “Supervisor for the Office of Grant Acquisition and Management.” (Stip. at ¶10.) The settlement was initially implemented on December 4, 2008, by the appointment of petitioner as “Acting Supervisor for the Office of Grant Acquisition and Management,” and on December 18, 2008, the District’s superintendent appointed petitioner as “Supervisor of Grant Acquisition and Management” pending approval of the settlement by the Commissioner. (See Stip. at ¶10; J-19; J-20; J-21.) The administrative law judge (ALJ) and the Commissioner issued decisions approving the settlement on May 20, 2010, and July 2, 2010, respectively. (See Stip. at ¶10; J-22; J-23.)

By letter dated April 28, 2009, the interim State-district superintendent informed petitioner that the District “is faced with an economic crisis and is forced to reduce administrative and supervisory staff.” The letter further advised that petitioner’s position as “Supervisor for Grant Acquisition and Management” was being abolished as of July 1, 2009, and that petitioner would not be appointed, and his employment would not be renewed, for the 2009–2010 school year. (See Stip. at ¶11; J-24.)

LEGAL DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b), summary decision “may be rendered if the papers and discovery which have been filed, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law.” This rule is substantially similar to the summary-judgment rule embodied in the New Jersey Court Rules. See Judson v. Peoples Bank & Trust Co. of Westfield, 17 N.J. 67, 74 (1954). In Brill v. Guardian Life Insurance Co., 142 N.J. 520, 540 (1995), the New Jersey Supreme Court addressed the appropriate test to be employed in deciding the motion:

[A] determination whether there exists a “genuine issue” of material fact that precludes summary judgment requires the motion judge to consider whether the competent evidential materials presented, when viewed in the light most favorable to the non-moving party, are sufficient to permit a rational factfinder to resolve the alleged disputed issue in favor of the non-moving party. The “judge’s function is not . . . to weigh the evidence and determine the truth of the matter but to determine whether there is a genuine issue for trial.” . . . If there exists a single, unavoidable resolution of the alleged disputed issue of fact, that issue should be considered insufficient to constitute a “genuine” issue of material fact for purposes of Rule 4:46-2.

In evaluating the merits of the motion, all inferences of doubt are drawn against the movant and in favor of the party against whom the motion is directed. Judson, supra, 17 N.J. at 75. However, “[w]hen a motion for summary decision is made and supported, an adverse party in order to prevail must by responding affidavit set forth specific facts showing that there is a genuine issue which can only be determined in an evidentiary proceeding.” N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b).

Turning to the within matter, the parties do not contest petitioner’s length of service with the District, the endorsements that he possessed, and the job duties for the various assignments that petitioner held. Rather, the parties’ paths diverge concerning whether petitioner’s service in the various “director” position titles should be counted as time toward tenure. Inasmuch as the pivotal issue is a legal issue involving whether petitioner acquired tenure, I CONCLUDE that the matter is ripe for summary decision.

The tenure laws, N.J.S.A. 18A:28-1 to -18, define the conditions under which teaching staff members are entitled to the security of tenure. Tenure has been described as a “statutory right” imposed upon a teaching staff member’s contractual employment status. Zimmerman v. Newark Bd. of Educ., 38 N.J. 65, 72 (1962), cert. denied, 371 U.S. 956, 83 S. Ct. 508, 9 L. Ed. 2d. 502 (1963). The statutory provisions supersede contractual terms. Spiewak v. Rutherford Bd. of Educ., 90 N.J. 63, 72 (1982). The objective of the tenure statutes is to protect competent and qualified teaching staff members, after a probationary period, from removal for “unfounded, flimsy, or political reasons.” Zimmerman, supra, 38 N.J. at 71. They are “designed to aid in the establishment of a competent and efficient school system by affording to principals and teachers a measure of security in the ranks they hold after years of service.” Viemeister v. Prospect Park Bd. of Educ., 5 N.J. Super. 215, 218 (App. Div. 1949).

It is well settled that the “right to tenure is created and governed entirely by statute,” Breitwieser v. State-Operated Sch. Dist. of Jersey City, 286 N.J. Super. 633, 637 (App. Div. 1996), and tenure “arises only by passage of the time fixed by the statute,” Canfield v. Pine Hill Bd. of Educ., 51 N.J. 400 (1968), rev’g on dissent, 97 N.J. Super. 483, 490 (App. Div. 1967). In order to acquire the security of tenure, the precise requirements set forth in the statute must be met. Picogna v. Cherry Hill Bd. of Educ., 143 N.J. 391, 400 (1996); Kletzkyn v. Spotswood Bd. of Educ., 136 N.J. 275, 278 (1994); Spiewak, supra, 90 N.J. at 72; Zimmerman, supra, 38 N.J. at 72; Ahrensfield v. State Bd. of Educ., 126 N.J.L. 543, 544 (E. & A. 1941). The employee shoulders the burden of proving an entitlement to tenure protection, which ordinarily must be clearly proven. Canfield, supra, 97 N.J. Super. at 493.

N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 governs the requirements for tenure. The statute directs in pertinent part:

The services of all teaching staff members employed in the positions of teacher, principal, . . . assistant principal, vice-principal, assistant superintendent, and all school nurses . . . , school athletic trainer and such other employees as are in positions which require them to hold appropriate certificates issued by the board of examiners, serving in any school district or under any board of education, excepting those who are not the holders of proper certificates in full force and effect . . . , shall be under tenure during good behavior and efficiency and they shall not be dismissed or reduced in compensation except for inefficiency, incapacity, or conduct unbecoming such a teaching staff member or other just cause . . . after employment in such district or by such board for:

- (a) Three consecutive calendar years . . . ; or
- (b) Three consecutive academic years, together with employment at the beginning of the next succeeding academic year; or
- (c) The equivalent of more than three academic years within a period of any four consecutive academic years.

Accordingly, in order to gain tenure a teaching staff member must: (1) work in a position for which a teaching certificate is required; (2) hold the appropriate certificate; and (3) serve the requisite period of time. Spiewak, supra, 90 N.J. at 74.

All teaching staff members employed in the public schools must be “the holder of a valid certificate to teach, administer, direct or supervise the teaching, instruction, or educational guidance of . . . pupils in such public schools . . .” N.J.S.A. 18A:26-2; see N.J.A.C. 6A:9-5.1(a) (“any person employed as a teaching staff member by a district board of education shall hold a valid and appropriate certificate”). Similarly, a teaching staff member must possess an appropriate certificate in order to achieve tenured status. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 expressly excludes from tenure protection teaching staff members “who are not the holders of proper certificates in full force and effect.” Likewise, N.J.S.A. 18A:28-4 unambiguously directs that “[n]o teaching staff member shall acquire tenure in any position in the public schools . . . who is not the holder of an appropriate certificate for such position, issued by the State Board of Examiners, in full force and effect”

Certificates are issued by the Board of Examiners pursuant to rules and regulations prescribed by the State Board of Education. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-38. The regulations address various certificates that may be issued, describe the requirements for obtaining a particular certificate, and designate which certificates are required for which positions. N.J.A.C. 6A:9-1.1, et seq. The State Board has implemented the certification requirement by authorizing the issuance of three categories of educational certificates: Instructional, Administrative and Educational Services. N.J.A.C. 6A:9-5.2(a). The State Board has further designated endorsements under each type of certificate, which identify the specific area in which a certificate holder is authorized to serve. Employment in a specific assignment requires that the educator hold the appropriate endorsement. Nelson v. Old Bridge Bd. of Educ., 148 N.J. 358, 363 (1997).

The regulations set forth various endorsements that may be issued under an Administrative Certificate. Pertinent to the within matter, an endorsement as a school administrator is required in order for an individual to be authorized to serve in “any position that involves services as a district-level administrative officer.” N.J.A.C. 6A:9-12.3(a) (emphasis added). Such positions include superintendent, assistant superintendent, and director. Ibid. Holders of this endorsement are authorized “to provide educational leadership by directing the formulation of district-wide goals, plans, policies and budgets, by recommending their approval by the district board of education and by directing their district-wide implementation.” Ibid. They are also “authorized to recommend all staff appointments and other personnel actions . . . for approval by the district board of education,” as well as to “direct district operations and programs,” “supervise and evaluate building administrators and central office staff, including school business administrators,” and “oversee the administration and supervision of school-level operations, staff and programs.” Ibid.

A principal endorsement is required “for any position that involves service as an administrative officer of a school or other comparable unit within a school or district.” N.J.A.C. 6A:9-12.3(b) (emphasis added). Such positions include assistant superintendent for curriculum and instruction, principal, assistant principal, vice-principal and director. Ibid. The holder of a standard principal endorsement is also authorized to serve in the position of supervisor. Ibid. Holders of a principal endorsement are “authorized to provide educational leadership by directing the formulation of goals, plans, policies, budgets and personnel actions of the school or other comparable unit, and recommending them to the chief district administrator, and by directing their implementation in the school or other comparable unit.” Ibid. They are also “authorized to direct and supervise all school operations and programs, to evaluate school staff . . . and to direct the activities of school-level supervisors.” Ibid.

A supervisor endorsement is required “for both supervisors of instruction and athletic directors who do not hold a standard principal’s endorsement.” N.J.A.C. 6A:9-12.3(c). The regulation defines a “supervisor” as “any school officer who is charged with authority and responsibility for the continuing direction and guidance of the work of instructional personnel.” Ibid. (emphasis added). A supervisor endorsement “also authorizes appointment as an assistant superintendent in charge of curriculum and/or instruction.” Ibid.

Against this backdrop, petitioner asserts that he acquired tenure predicated on his employment from the issuance of his standard Administrative Certificate in April 2005 until his termination on June 30, 2009. Petitioner argues that his services during those years “were all appropriately performed under the title of Supervisor,” his principal/supervisor endorsement “satisfied the requirements in each of the job descriptions in which he served,” and this endorsement “was appropriate for the performance of all his duties because District-wide services are clearly within the purview of a Supervisor, regardless of any limitations placed on an individual whose certificate is limited to that of Principal alone.” In its answer to the petition and in connection with its motion, the District contests petitioner’s tenure claim as it relates to his service in the District prior to July 1, 2007, when he was reassigned to the job title of Environmental Science, Health and Safety Supervisor. The District contends that based upon petitioner’s high-level district-wide duties during those years, a school administrator endorsement was required in order for his service as a district-wide administrator to count toward tenure. Accordingly, the District maintains that because petitioner did not possess the requisite endorsement while serving as a “director,” this time cannot be credited and, thus, his length of service falls short of the probationary period required by statute to acquire tenure.

The State Board of Education’s decision in Duva v. State-Operated School District of Jersey City, EDU 9801-98, State Bd. of Educ. (March 6, 2002) <<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html>>, is instructive to the issues presented. In Duva, the petitioner (Duva) served as a director for the Jersey City school district from 1980 until 1998, when the school district abolished his position. In October 1980, Duva was appointed to serve in the unrecognized position title of “Director of Research, Planning and Evaluation,” an assignment for which the district board required an Administrative Certificate with an endorsement as either a principal or supervisor. Duva was later appointed as “Director, Research/Planning/Evaluation” in April 1990, which was also an unrecognized position title for which the job description did not include a certification requirement. From 1994 to 1998, Duva served as “Director, Planning/Evaluation/Grants,” which, according to the job description, required an Administrative Certificate with an endorsement as either a principal or supervisor. Duva, who held an Administrative Certificate with endorsements as a school administrator and as a supervisor, alleged that the district “violated his tenure and seniority rights when it abolished his position as Director, Planning/Evaluation/Grants” and “claimed that by virtue of his service in the position title of ‘director,’ he had acquired tenure rights entitling him to employment as a supervisor over any individuals who had not achieved tenure.” In her initial decision, which was adopted by the Commissioner, the ALJ concluded “that [Duva] had achieved tenure as a ‘director,’ finding that a directorship constituted a distinct position for tenure purposes.” However, the ALJ reasoned that, although Duva possessed certification as a supervisor, “the tenure rights he had accrued as a result of his service as a ‘director’ could not be asserted so as to permit him to claim a supervisory assignment” because “director” and “supervisor” were “separately tenurable position[s].” After declining to approve a proposed settlement between the parties, the State Board addressed the merits of Duva’s appeal and held that “the scope of [Duva’s] tenure protection under his Administrative Certificate extended to all assignments for which he was qualified by virtue of possessing a supervisor’s endorsement” and, therefore, “upon abolishment of his director’s assignment, [Duva] was entitled to be employed in assignments requiring a supervisor endorsement in preference to any non-tenured individuals.”

In so ruling, the State Board explained that “definition of the scope of the positions in which tenure may be achieved is initially provided by the express language of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5,” under which “an individual must be a teaching staff member serving either in a capacity specifically designated in the statute or serving in a ‘position’ requiring him to hold an appropriate certificate in order to be eligible to achieve tenure.” The State Board held that because “director” and “supervisor” are not specifically listed in N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 "there is no basis to hold that these assignments constitute 'separately tenurable positions.'" The State Board explained that "the starting point for determining the scope of [Duva's] tenure protection is the certification that was required in order for him to be authorized to serve in the capacity in which he was employed by the school district," and "[b]ecause [Duva's] service as a 'director' was in an unrecognized position title, it is necessary to examine the duties with which he was charged by the job descriptions under which he served so as to ascertain the certification requirements of those assignments." Although the State Board recognized that such a determination usually fell within the responsibility of the county superintendent, it exercised jurisdiction over the issue because Duva's positions were never submitted to the county superintendent, and predicated on its "ultimate administrative authority to determine certification" and its status as the "ultimate fact-finder and administrative decision-maker for disputes arising under the school laws."

Based upon the State Board's review of the records, including the job descriptions for the director assignments held by Duva, it "conclude[d] that the duties of those assignments were of such character as to require that the individual serving in them possess an Administrative Certificate with an endorsement as a school administrator in order to be authorized by statute and regulation to fulfill such functions." In reaching this conclusion, the State Board noted that while under former N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.3 (now N.J.A.C. 6A:9-12.3) the school administrator and principal endorsements authorize service as a "director," the supervisor endorsement does not expressly authorize such service. The State Board further found that "the duties specified in the job descriptions under which [Duva] served are beyond the scope of those authorized by the supervisor endorsement" and that "the director's assignments at issue . . . had 'a qualitatively higher level of administrative responsibility than that entrusted to a supervisor'" (citation omitted). It also concluded that "an Administrative Certificate with an endorsement as a principal would not constitute appropriate certification for the assignments at issue given the responsibilities set forth in the job descriptions under which [Duva] served," and stressed that Duva's "duties as specified in every job description under which he served involved district-level responsibilities." Accordingly, the State Board held that Duva's "service was not as an administrative officer of a school or comparable unit, and the principal endorsement would not have authorized him to fulfill the district-level responsibilities with which he was charged.” Although the district had required an Administrative Certificate with a supervisor or principal endorsement in the job descriptions under which Duva served, inasmuch as Duva held a school administrator endorsement while serving as a director the State Board found that “he fulfilled the statutory requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5” and “he achieved tenure by virtue of his service under that endorsement.” Based on that conclusion, the State Board held that Duva’s “tenure protection extended to all assignments under his Administrative Certificate for which he held the appropriate endorsement, except for those positions specifically enumerated in N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5,” and because Duva possessed both an endorsement as a school administrator and an endorsement as a supervisor, “the scope of [his] tenure protection under his Administrative Certificate extended to all assignments for which he was qualified by virtue of possessing a supervisor's endorsement.” In other words, Duva earned tenure by virtue of his service under his school administrator endorsement, which extended to other assignments, such as a supervisor, for which he held an appropriate endorsement, with the exception of the positions specifically listed in N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5.

Similar to Duva, petitioner’s service as a “director” was in unrecognized position titles. Initially, I do not embrace petitioner’s argument that this matter should be held in abeyance pending submission of the job descriptions to the county superintendent for a decision as to the required endorsement for each position held by him. Although N.J.A.C. 6A:9-5.5 envisions that a board of education will submit a request to the county superintendent for permission to use an unrecognized title position prior to appointing a candidate and, if approved, the county superintendent will determine the appropriate certification and title for the position, Duva supports this forum’s ability to determine the appropriate endorsement for the “director” position titles held by petitioner in order to decide the transmitted controversy between the parties.

The parties agree that the duties performed, and not the title of a position, are controlling for purpose of ascertaining tenure accrual. See Christie v. Bd. of Educ. of E. Orange, 1985 S.L.D. 307. Toward this end, “it is necessary to examine the duties with which [petitioner] was charged by the job descriptions under which he served so as to ascertain the certification requirements of those assignments.” Duva, supra, EDU 9801-

98, State Bd. of Educ. (March 6, 2002) <<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html>>. A review of the various job descriptions reveals that, while serving as a “director,” petitioner was responsible for planning, implementing, and evaluating grants and programs throughout the District. Similar to Duva, petitioner’s duties as specified in each job description under which he served involved district-level responsibilities. However, unlike Duva, petitioner did not possess a school administrator endorsement.

N.J.A.C. 6A:9-12.3(a) unambiguously directs that a school administrator endorsement “is required for any position that involves services as a district-level administrative officer,” and such positions include “director.” Among other functions, the school administrator endorsement authorizes its holder “to provide educational leadership by directing the formulation of district-wide goals, plans, policies and budgets, by recommending their approval by the district board of education and by directing their district-wide implementation.” N.J.A.C. 6A:9-12.3(a). Succinctly stated, I agree with the District’s stance that, based on the job descriptions for the “director” position titles petitioner held, a school administrator endorsement was required for those assignments because petitioner served as a district-wide administrative officer and performed district-wide duties. Similar to Duva, “the duties of those assignments were of such character as to require that the individual serving in them possess an Administrative Certificate with an endorsement as a school administrator in order to be authorized by statute and regulation to fulfill such functions.” Duva, supra, EDU 9801-98, State Bd. of Educ. (March 6, 2002) <<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html>>.

The regulations do not evidence a design to authorize one holding a principal or supervisor endorsement to serve in the assignments in issue given the district-level responsibilities set forth in the job descriptions. Although a principal endorsement lists “director” as a position that could be held by an individual with such an endorsement, N.J.A.C. 6A:9-12.3(b) explicitly states that “[t]he principal endorsement is required for any position that involves service as an administrative officer of a school or other comparable unit within a school or district.” The job descriptions establish that petitioner’s duties extended beyond building-level responsibilities, and involved service as a district-level administrative officer and not as a school-level administrative officer. Simply put, petitioner’s endorsement as a principal did not constitute appropriate certification for tenure-acquisition purposes because his “service was not as an administrative officer of a school or comparable unit, and the principal endorsement would not have authorized him to fulfill the district-level responsibilities with which he was charged.” Duva, supra, EDU 9801-98, State Bd. of Educ. (March 6, 2002) <<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html>>.

The responsibilities specified in the job descriptions are also beyond the scope of those authorized by a supervisor endorsement. Apart from the fact that N.J.A.C. 6A:9-12.3(c) does not expressly list “director” as a position in which someone with a supervisor endorsement may serve, petitioner’s duties as a “director” extended beyond being “charged with authority and responsibility for the continuing direction and guidance of the work of instructional personnel.” Rather, like Duva, “the director’s assignments at issue . . . had ‘a qualitatively higher level of administrative responsibility than that entrusted to a supervisor.’” Duva, supra, EDU 9801-98, State Bd. of Educ. (March 6, 2002) <<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html>> (citation omitted). Indeed, the record is bereft of evidence that petitioner ever performed the duties of a supervisor while serving as a “director.” Petitioner does not claim that his duties while serving as a “director” were in the capacity of a supervisor of instruction, and the earlier petition filed on his behalf stated that he “has never served in the title of supervisor while employed with the respondent.”

Contrary to petitioner’s assertion, Matarazzo v. Board of Education of Cliffside Park, EDU 7230-02, Initial Decision (February 9, 2004), adopted, Comm’r (March 18, 2004), aff’d, State Bd. of Educ. (August 4, 2004) <<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html>>, does not support the conclusion that his supervisor endorsement was appropriate. In that case, the ALJ held that the petitioner, who was previously tenured in the position of supervisor of instruction based upon his service as supervisor of social studies and business, was entitled to the position of district-wide supervisor of instruction over a non-tenured teacher. In this regard, the ALJ concluded that the supervisory positions were not “sufficiently different to give rise to a separately tenable position,” and noted that there had been no “showing that any certification or endorsement is necessary or required for the performance of the district wide supervisor position other than certification as a supervisor in order to be authorized by statute and regulation to perform such functions.” In stark contrast to the present matter, both positions in that case were supervisory in nature and involved the supervision of instruction. The services in issue did not involve the type of district-level responsibilities set forth in petitioner’s job descriptions and in N.J.A.C. 6A:9-12.3(a), which are reserved for holders of a school administrator endorsement. Equally unpersuasive is petitioner’s argument that “to accept the Board’s premise that the certification requirements in its job descriptions . . . were wrong, the court must find that the Commissioner . . . , with full knowledge of the Duva decision, nevertheless allowed Petitioner to be illegally employed from 2005 through June 2007,” and that this forum must also find that the Board of Examiners “wrongfully approved Petitioner for Provisional Certification in a position which was clearly not limited to a single building and was District-wide in scope.” In short, the record does not establish that the Commissioner determined the endorsement required for petitioner’s directorships and the Board of Examiners issued the provisional certification following the District superintendent’s advice, albeit in error, that the position of “Director of Grants & Development” required a principal endorsement. Even if the Commissioner or the Board of Examiners could be said to have made an error with respect to petitioner’s employment, which is not apparent from the record, this does not alter the fact that petitioner did not meet the statutory requirements for tenure as a result of his service as a “director.” And, petitioner benefited from any such mistakes by being employed in assignments for which he failed to possess the appropriate endorsement. I also reject petitioner’s argument that the Commissioner’s approval of the earlier settlement “establishes that a District-wide position dealing with Grants was appropriately performed under the endorsement of Supervisor held by Petitioner.” Simply put, the Commissioner not did address whether petitioner’s assignment as Supervisor of Grant Acquisition and Management pursuant to that settlement would be tenurable and, as previously discussed, an examination of the job duties of the “director” position titles held by petitioner shows that they required an endorsement as a school administrator in order for his service to be credited toward tenure.

Petitioner further asserts in his certification that at all times since his date of hire he was advised by his supervisors that an Administrative Certificate with an endorsement as a principal/supervisor was appropriate for the positions held by him, and in reliance upon that information and the job descriptions for his position he sought that endorsement and completed his master's degree in 2004. (Perna Cert. at ¶8; see also Perna Cert. at ¶ 3.) Accepting for purposes of the motion the facts certified by petitioner, they do not warrant relief in petitioner's favor.

In Jennings v. Board of Education of Highland Park, 1989 S.L.D. 1085, the State Board of Education reviewed a claim by an athletic trainer/health teacher that he had tenure as a teaching staff member. Jennings possessed an endorsement to teach physical education but did not possess an endorsement to teach health. Jennings asserted that as a condition of his employment the board of education required him to possess a valid teaching certificate, and that he had advised his superiors that he did not hold a health endorsement to teach health, but they were unconcerned. Jennings, supra, 1989 S.L.D. at 1097. Jennings maintained that, as a result, he did not apply for such endorsement, although he had completed the necessary coursework. Ibid. The State Board held that Jennings' physical education endorsement did not authorize him to teach health and, thus, Jennings "did not hold the 'appropriate certificate' for such position as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:28-4 for the acquisition of tenure." Id. at 1099. The State Board further concluded that "the fact that the Board required Petitioner to hold a teaching certificate with a physical education endorsement did not elevate the position of athletic trainer to that of teaching staff member within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 18A:1-1 so as to confer tenure on Petitioner pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18:28-5 based on his employment in that position," and "[t]o hold otherwise would allow each local board of education to define what is a teaching staff member simply through its own certification requirements." Id. at 1100 (citation omitted). In this regard, the State Board noted that the record contained no indication that the duties attending the position of athletic trainer were of such a character as to require a teaching certificate with a physical education endorsement, and held that "in the absence of any allegation or evidence in the record that a physical education certification was, in fact, required by law . . . [the petitioner] has not met the statutory requirements for the acquisition of tenure." Id. at 1100 -01. The State Board further concluded that Jennings could not rely upon the doctrine of equitable estoppel, stating:

Under the circumstances, we conclude that the statements of the athletic director and principal and the Board's improper action in assigning him to teach health without the appropriate certification cannot be used to excuse the Petitioner's failure to acquire a health endorsement, and Petitioner's reliance upon such actions in the face of clear regulations to the contrary cannot be regarded as reasonable. Petitioner had primary responsibility to apply for and possess appropriate certification during his employment. We therefore agree with the ALJ that the Petitioner cannot show a reasonable reliance upon the Board's actions so as to warrant the application of equitable estoppel.

[Ibid. (citation omitted); see also McAneny v. Bd. of Educ. of the Sch. Dist. of the Chathams, 92 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 208.]

This rationale applies with equal force to the within matter. That the District's job descriptions required a supervisor endorsement is not controlling for purposes of whether or not petitioner earned tenure. See Duva, supra, EDU 9801-98, State Bd. of Educ. (March 6, 2002) <<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html>>. Rather, tenure is achieved only by satisfying the precise statutory and regulatory requirements, and a board of education does not have the authority to establish its own certification requirements in contravention of the tenure laws. See Jennings, supra, 1989 S.L.D. 1085. Petitioner was primarily responsible for ensuring that he possessed the appropriate certification and endorsement for the positions in which he served. And, petitioner's alleged reliance upon the District's actions cannot be said to be reasonable in view of the regulations to the contrary, and does not excuse his failure to acquire the appropriate endorsement.

In sum, I CONCLUDE that, based upon the job descriptions under which petitioner served, the duties of the "director" assignments were of such character as to require that the individual serving in them possess an Administrative Certificate with an endorsement as a school administrator in order to be authorized by statute and regulation to fulfill such functions. I CONCLUDE that, inasmuch as petitioner did not hold the appropriate endorsement for such assignments, he did not earn time toward tenure while serving as a "director" and his length of service falls short of the statutory requirements for the acquisition of tenure. Tenure protection in a position is limited to teaching staff members who hold an appropriate certificate for that position issued by the Board of Examiners. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-4, -5. This certificate requirement is mandated by the tenure statutes and is a necessary prerequisite to achieve tenure. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the District acted consistent with the tenure/seniority requirements when it terminated petitioner's employment.

ORDER

I ORDER that respondent's motion for summary decision be and hereby is GRANTED and petitioner's cross-motion for partial summary decision be and hereby is DENIED. I further ORDER that petitioner's Petition of Appeal be and hereby is DISMISSED.

Petitioner appealed the determination of the respondent Board that her children, D.K., Y.K. and A.K., are not eligible for a free public education in the West Orange school district. Petitioner was notified by letter from the Board dated June 22, 2011 that her children would be removed from West Orange schools, and that she had 21 days in which to file an appeal of this determination with the Commissioner. The instant appeal was not filed until July 27, 2011. The Board filed a motion for summary decision, contending that petitioner's appeal was untimely filed. Additionally, the Board filed a request for tuition reimbursement for the period of D.K., Y.K. and A.K.'s ineligible attendance in the West Orange school district at the beginning of the current school year.

The ALJ found that, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(2), T.K.'s petition was filed beyond the 21-day window for the filing of appeals to a residency determination by the board and accordingly must be dismissed. The ALJ additionally found that although the petitioner did not abandon or fail to prosecute her appeal, there is nothing to preclude the Board from collecting tuition for the period of her children's ineligible attendance. Accordingly, the ALJ dismissed petitioner's appeal and granted the Board's counterclaim for tuition in the amount of $10,045.36.

Upon a full and independent review, the Commissioner determined that the ALJ's finding that petitioner's appeal was untimely is correct only with respect to entitlement to enrollment while the case is pending, and that the case on the merits is not barred by failure to file within 21 days of the board's adverse notice. Additionally, the Commissioner was unable to find any evidence either proving or disproving T.K.'s residency in West Orange, and determined that without a negative finding of residency, there can be no entitlement to reimbursement of tuition. Accordingly, the case was remanded to the OAL for factual findings and legal conclusions regarding the petitioner's domicile.

RESPONDENT.	:

The Commissioner has reviewed the record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on the Board's motion for summary decision. No exceptions were filed.

The Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) finding that T.K. untimely filed her residency petition is correct only with respect to entitlement to enrollment while the case is pending, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b). Where residency petitions are filed beyond the 21 days specified in the statute, in order to be entitled to enrollment while the case is pending, a petitioner must file a motion for emergent relief and prevail on that motion. The case on the merits is not barred by failure to file within 21 days of the board's adverse notice.

Here, however, the Commissioner was unable to find evidence – by way of certification or recitation of testimony¹ – proving or disproving T.K.'s residency in West Orange. Without a negative finding of actual residency, there can be no entitlement to reimbursement of tuition.

Accordingly, this case is remanded to the OAL for the purpose of factual findings and legal conclusions regarding the petitioner's domicile.

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 09645-11

AGENCY DKT. NO. 205-7/11

T.K., ON BEHALF OF MINOR CHILDREN, D.K., Y.K. AND A.K.,

Petitioner,

v.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF WEST ORANGE, ESSEX COUNTY,

Respondent.

T.K., pro se

Stephen J. Christiano, Esq., for respondent

Decided: November 23, 2011

BEFORE KELLY J. KIRK, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On July 27, 2011, petitioner T.K., on behalf of her minor children D.K., Y.K. and A.K., filed a residency appeal with the Department of Education. On August 12, 2011, respondent West Orange Board of Education (Board) filed an Answer to the appeal, and asserted that the petition was filed out of time and that petitioner is not domiciled in the West Orange school district. On August 12, 2011, the Commissioner transmitted this matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), where it was filed on August 12, 2011, for determination as a contested case.

A pre-hearing telephone conference was held on August 31, 2011, at which time the Board's counsel advised that a motion to dismiss would be filed on behalf of the Board. A schedule was set, whereby the motion was to be filed on or before September 14, 2011, opposition was to be filed on or before September 30, 2011, and the hearing date was scheduled for October 6, 2011. Respondent's motion was filed on September 19, 2011. No opposition was filed by petitioner.

The parties appeared on the hearing date, which was converted to oral argument and testimony on the pending motion. It was revealed that petitioner had mailed opposition to the pending motion to the Board's counsel, but not the OAL. The opposition was accepted at that time. Oral argument and testimony was heard on October 6, 2011. However, petitioner thereafter indicated that she intended to seek legal representation. In light of the petitioner's intention, petitioner was granted two weeks within which petitioner's counsel was to submit a letter of representation, and respondent was to submit a certification and supplemental brief, to which petitioner would be permitted to respond. However, if a letter of representation was not submitted, the motion was to be determined based upon the testimony and record, including the supplemental documents. The supplemental documents were filed with the OAL on October 14, 2011 and October 27, 2011. No letter of representation or response to the supplemental documents was submitted by petitioner to the OAL.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Respondent presented the Certification of Gregory Brennan in support of its Motion for Summary Decision. The contents of the Certification were not disputed. Accordingly, I FIND the following facts:

Gregory Brennan is the school registrar. The registrar's office conducted an investigation on the residency of the petitioner and her children, and determined that petitioner was not domiciled in the West Orange school district. A hearing was held by the Board on June 20, 2011, to decide if petitioner's children remained eligible to attend school in the district. Petitioner did not appear at the hearing. On June 20, 2011, the Board voted to remove petitioner's children from the district schools for failure of the petitioner to demonstrate her children's school eligibility. By letter dated June 22, 2011, sent via regular and certified mail, return receipt requested, the Board sent to the petitioner's school address of record a letter notifying petitioner that the respondent had voted to remove her children from the district schools and that she had twenty-one days from the date of the decision to appeal to the Commissioner of Education. The regular-mail letter was not returned to the Board. On July 27, 2011, T.K., on behalf of D.K., Y.K. and A.K., filed a residency appeal with the Department of Education. The tuition cost for the 2011–2012 school year for D.K. and Y.K. is $25,328 each, and the cost per diem based upon 180 school days is $140.71. The tuition cost for the 2011–2012 school year for A.K. is $18,890, and the cost per diem is $104.94. As of the date of the certification, school had been in session for twenty-six days.

LEGAL ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSION

A contested case before the Office of Administrative Law “can be summarily disposed of before an ALJ without a plenary hearing in instances where the undisputed material facts, as developed on motion or otherwise, indicate that a particular disposition is required as a matter of law.” In re Robros Recycling Corp., 226 N.J. Super. 343, 350 (App. Div.), certif. denied, 113 N.J. 638 (1988). N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b) provides, in pertinent part:

The motion for summary decision shall be served with briefs and with or without supporting affidavits. The decision sought may be rendered if the papers and discovery which have been filed, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law. When a motion for summary decision is made and supported, an adverse party in order to prevail must by responding affidavit set forth specific facts showing that there is a genuine issue which can only be determined in an evidentiary proceeding.

The Board has moved for summary decision and contends that the appeal should be dismissed because it was not timely filed.

The operative statute is N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, which provides that public schools shall be free to the persons over five and under twenty years of age, if such person is domiciled within the school district or is kept in the home of another person domiciled within the school district and is supported by such other person gratis as if he were such other person's own child, upon filing by such other person with the secretary of the board of education of the district required sworn statements and documents. Additionally, N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(2) provides, in pertinent part, as follows:

If the superintendent or administrative principal of a school district finds that the parent or guardian of a child who is attending the schools of the district is not domiciled within the district and the child is not kept in the home of another person domiciled within the school district and supported by him gratis as if the child was the person's own child as provided for in paragraph (1) of this subsection, the superintendent or administrative principal may apply to the board of education for the removal of the child. The parent or guardian shall be entitled to a hearing before the board and if in the judgment of the board the parent or guardian is not domiciled within the district or the child is not kept in the home of another person domiciled within the school district and supported by him gratis as if the child was the person's own child as provided for in paragraph (1) of this subsection, the board may order the transfer or removal of the child from school. The parent or guardian may contest the board's decision before the commissioner within 21 days of the date of the decision and shall be entitled to an expedited hearing before the commissioner and shall have the burden of proof by a preponderance of the evidence that the child is eligible for a free education under the criteria listed in this subsection. The board of education shall, at the time of its decision, notify the parent or guardian in writing of his right to contest the decision within 21 days. No child shall be removed from school during the 21-day period in which the parent may contest the board's decision or during the pendency of the proceedings before the commissioner. If in the judgment of the commissioner the evidence does not support the claim of the parent or guardian, the commissioner shall assess the parent or guardian tuition for the student prorated to the time of the student's ineligible attendance in the schools of the district. Tuition shall be computed on the basis of 1/180 of the total annual per pupil cost to the local district multiplied by the number of days of ineligible attendance and shall be collected in the manner in which orders of the commissioner are enforced. Nothing shall preclude a board from collecting tuition from the parent or guardian for a student's period of ineligible attendance in the schools of the district where the issue is not appealed to the commissioner;

The regulation provides that the parent may contest the board's decision before the Commissioner within twenty-one days of the date of the decision. Accordingly, T.K. had until July 11, 2011, to file her appeal. Petitioner did not appear for the June 20, 2011, hearing, but there can be no dispute that the Board mailed her a letter on June 22, 2011, notifying her of its decision to remove her children and of the filing deadline. Petitioner testified that she was on vacation for more than two weeks and did not receive the letter until she returned at the end of June 2011. Even affording T.K. any reasonable inference, if the twenty-one-day period commenced as of the last day of June 2011, the deadline nevertheless would have been July 21, 2011. Yet, she failed to file a Petition of Appeal until July 27, 2011. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that T.K.'s Petition of Appeal was untimely filed and should be dismissed.

The Board contends that pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:22-6.2(a),¹ in the event the appeal is dismissed, the counterclaim for tuition remains. N.J.A.C. 6A:22-6.2(a) provides that if an appeal to the Commissioner is filed by the parent, where the petitioner does not sustain the burden of demonstrating entitlement to attend the schools of the district, or abandons the appeal through withdrawal, failure to prosecute or any means other than a settlement or agreement to waive or reduce tuition, the Commissioner may order assessment of tuition for any period of a student's ineligible attendance in a school district, including the twenty-one-day period for filing of an appeal and the period during which the hearing and decision on appeal were pending. However, the aforesaid regulation speaks to an appeal where the parent does not sustain the burden of demonstrating entitlement to attend the schools of the district or where the parent abandons the appeal through withdrawal, failure to prosecute or any means other than a settlement or agreement to waive or reduce tuition. In the present matter, the issue is that the petitioner filed the appeal out of time. She did not thereafter abandon or fail to prosecute her appeal.

Nevertheless, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(2), "[n]othing shall preclude a board from collecting tuition from the parent or guardian for a student's period of ineligible attendance in the schools of the district where the issue is not appealed to the commissioner."

Based upon the record, T.K. failed to timely appeal to the commissioner, and as set forth above, the appeal is dismissed for this reason. However, the Board filed a counterclaim for tuition for the period of ineligible attendance, and I CONCLUDE that the Board may collect from T.K. tuition for the children's period of ineligible attendance.

Based upon the Certification submitted, dated October 18, 2011, the tuition per diem for D.K. and Y.K. was $140.71 each and the tuition per diem for A.K. was $104.94, and the total tuition for the period from September 7, 2011, through October 17, 2011, consisting of twenty-six school days, was $3,658.46 each for D.K. and Y.K. and $2,728.44 for A.K. Accordingly, tuition is calculated in the total amount of $10,045.36.

ORDER

It is ORDERED that T.K.'s Petition of Appeal be and hereby is DISMISSED, and that the Board's counterclaim for tuition be and hereby is GRANTED. It is further ORDERED that T.K. pay tuition to the Board in the amount of $10,045.36 for the children's period of ineligible attendance.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE :
 HEARING OF MARY LOU FORSELL, : COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
 WEST WINDSOR-PLAINSBORO : DECISION
 REGIONAL SCHOOL DISTRICT, :
 MERCER COUNTY. :

SYNOPSIS

The petitioning Board certified tenure charges of unbecoming conduct, lack of professionalism, and failure to respect the privacy rights of students, against respondent – a teacher of business education – for, inter alia, behavior that included allowing the display of inappropriate photographs in the classroom, discussing a student's family finances in inappropriate circumstances; and referring to classified students in a derogatory manner. Certain exhibits in this matter, which included images of minor children, were sealed by the Commissioner following a motion from the petitioning Board. The Board sought removal of respondent from her tenured position.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: teachers are role models for students and carry a great responsibility to act correctly; many of the significant facts in this matter are not in dispute; the record shows that respondent failed to properly manage her classroom and in so doing allowed the posting of many inappropriate images depicting matters not properly exhibited in a school classroom – many of which included pictures of students; respondent allowed students to leave class early and did so herself; respondent on more than one occasion failed to exhibit the awareness of or ability to carry out her responsibility to protect the privacy of her students and their families in regard to financial information to which she was privy; and respondent made inappropriate remarks regarding special education, disability issues – including a reference to a classified student as a “sick freak” – and matters relating to personal family decisions. The ALJ concluded that the Board had proven by a preponderance of the credible evidence that respondent is guilty of conduct unbecoming a teacher, and that – with due consideration of her lengthy and previously discipline-free career – the appropriate sanction under the circumstances is removal of respondent's tenure.

Upon independent review of the record, the Commissioner concurred with the findings of the ALJ, and adopted the Initial Decision as the final decision in this matter. Respondent was dismissed from her tenured employment, and a copy of this decision was forwarded to the State Board of Examiners for action against her certificate(s) as that body deems appropriate.

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 2879-11
AGENCY DKT NO. 50-2/11

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE :
HEARING OF MARY LOU FORSELL, : COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
WEST WINDSOR-PLAINSBORO : DECISION
REGIONAL SCHOOL DISTRICT, :
MERCER COUNTY. :

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Respondent's exceptions and the District's reply thereto – submitted in accordance with the provisions of N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 – were fully considered by the Commissioner in reaching his determination herein.

Respondent presents her own factual recitation – based on her testimony at hearing – of the events which transpired resulting in the District's charged Specifications 1, 2, 3 and 6, emphasizing what she avers were mitigating or negating factors which should have been considered by the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) in reaching his determinations with respect to these charges. Although acknowledging that she – like all teachers – made some mistakes, respondent maintains that in order to properly assess these mistakes and the appropriateness of any penalty, they must be viewed as a small part of respondent's entire professional career record, which she charges the ALJ failed to do.

In reply, the District supports the ALJ's well-reasoned decision and his recommended penalty. It charges that respondent's testimony with respect to the photos on her classroom wall was particularly incredible. It maintains that this charge – which involves a five-month pattern of conduct demonstrating a serious lack of judgment by respondent – standing alone is sufficient to warrant her termination. When added to the incidents underlying Specification 2 – occurring in two separate school years – demonstrating a pattern of insensitivity and disregard for the confidentiality rights of a student and her mother, and those incidents in Specification 3 evidencing a pattern of insensitive behavior toward classified students, the District contends that it is obvious that the ALJ correctly considered the totality of the evidence in reaching his conclusion that removal of respondent's tenure is the appropriate penalty in this matter.

Upon a considered review of the entire record in this matter,¹ the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that the District has sustained its burden of establishing Specifications 1, 2, 3 and 6 by a preponderance of the credible evidence, and that respondent's termination from her tenured position is warranted. In so concluding, the Commissioner is in full accord with the ALJ's analysis in this regard:

Based upon the record, I FIND that Ms. Forsell did engage in conduct unbecoming a tenured educator and exhibited a lack of concern for the privacy of students. She failed to properly manage her classroom and in so doing allowed the posting of many entirely inappropriate pictures depicting matters not properly exhibited in a school classroom, pictures which, in many cases, included the images of students. She allowed students to leave class early and did so herself. She on more than one occasion failed to exhibit either the awareness of, or ability to carry out her responsibility to protect the privacy of her students and their families in regard to financial information to which she had become privy. Finally, she made remarks that were simply inappropriate in the context in which they were expressed, regardless of her right to hold such views as she might have in respect to matters regarding special education, disability issues and matters relating to personal family decisions. (Initial Decision at 25)

¹ With respect to respondent's exceptions regarding the facts determined by the ALJ based on the testimony of the witnesses and the credence he ascribed to such testimony, the Commissioner notes that the record before him does not include transcripts of the hearing conducted at the OAL in this matter. Challenges to the factual findings predicated upon credibility determinations made by an ALJ require the party to supply the agency head with the relevant and necessary portion of the transcript. See In re Morrison, 216 N.J. Super. 143, 158 (App. Div. 1987)

Turning to the appropriate penalty to be imposed in this matter, the Commissioner is mindful that the "[f]actors to be taken into account in making a penalty determination include the nature and circumstances of the incidents or charges, the individual's prior record and present attitude, the effect of such conduct on the maintenance of discipline among the students and staff, and the likelihood of such behavior recurring." In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Deborah Suitt-Green, State-operated School District of the City of Newark, Essex County, decided by the Commissioner October 14, 1997, slip. Op. at 32, citing In re Hearing of Ostergren, Franklin School District, 1966 S.L.D. 535, 541; In re Fulcomer, 93 N.J. Super. 404 (App. Div. 1967).

The Commissioner, nonetheless, concludes that the entirety of the record supports the ALJ's cogent evaluation of these requisite factors here:

If this case only involved Ms. Forsell's inappropriate comment to Ms. D. and her discussion with J.C. in the science class, the matter would not warrant more than a reprimand. The addition of her comments about the "sick freak" and the "abortion" are more troubling. They are indefensible in the context in which they were made, whatever her private views might be. When these are joined with the continued failure to manage, monitor or shutdown a site for the posting of what she had been alerted to as offensive and inappropriate materials that violated any common sense of what belonged on display in a classroom and which violated policies to discourage and stamp out discrimination and bullying, the level of Ms. Forsell's misconduct and failure to live up to the professional standards expected of a tenured teacher is substantially increased. The repeated instances of lack of judgment in matters that could have caused serious offense is difficult to mesh with the high responsibility imposed upon teachers as role models and examples for students. Tolerance, even by neglect, of the sort of materials displayed in her room, is intolerable conduct. Under the circumstances, and with due consideration for her lengthy and apparently previously discipline-free career, I am constrained to CONCLUDE that removal of tenure is the appropriate sanction. (Initial Decision at 25-26)

Accordingly, the recommended decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter. Mary Lou Forsell is hereby dismissed from her tenured position with the West Windsor-Plainsboro Regional School District. A copy of this decision will be transmitted to the State Board of Examiners for action against respondent's certificate(s) as that body deems appropriate.

AGENCY DKT. 50-2/11

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF MARY LOU FORSELL, WEST WINDSOR-PLAINSBORO REGIONAL SCHOOL DISTRICT, MERCER COUNTY.

John Collins, Esq., for petitioner West Windsor-Plainsboro Regional School District (Parker McCay, attorneys)

Michael T. Barrett, Esq., for respondent Mary Lou Forsell (Bergman & Barrett, attorneys)

BEFORE JEFF S. MASIN, ALJ:

The Board of Education of the West-Windsor Plainsboro Regional School District (Board) filed tenure charges against Mary Lou Forsell, a certified teacher of business education. The original Statement of Tenure Charges incorporated six separate specifications; at trial the Board abandoned Specifications 4 and 5. Specification 1, based upon an observation of Ms. Forsell's class on June 8, 2010, alleged, as its most important concern, that she had permitted or otherwise allowed inappropriate photographs to be displayed in her classroom. Specification 2 alleged that in connection with her position as junior and then as senior class advisor, she had caused embarrassment and humiliation to a student by violating her privacy and discussing matters concerning the student's family's finances in inappropriate circumstances. Specification 3 alleged that Forsell had referred to classified students in a derogatory manner and had expressed herself in a manner that raised concern as to her ability to properly engage with parents of a classified student. Specification 6 alleged that Forsell had refused to make appropriate accommodations for classified students. The Board's Statement of Charges accused Forsell of unbecoming conduct and a lack of professionalism and a failure to respect the privacy rights of students.

Ms. Forsell filed an answer to the Statement of Charges and the Commissioner of Education transferred the contested case to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on March 16, 2011, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to- 21 and N.J.S.A. 52:14 F-1 to -13. The Acting Commissioner of Education issued an Order, dated March 11, 2011, sealing certain exhibits, identified in the Order as Exhibits 2-28. Hearings were held on August 22, 23 and 31, 2011. Counsel filed briefs and replies and the record closed on October 11, 2011.

Michael Zapicchi is the Principal of West Windsor-Plainsboro High School North, where Ms. Forsell taught in 2010. He conducted a classroom observation on June 8, 2010 during the 3rd instruction block. Forsell was located at the teacher's computer desk and Zapicchi noted that it did not appear to him that she noticed his presence in the classroom as he sat in its last row. During the first twenty minutes of the class period, Forsell did not address the class in any manner whatsoever. He noticed that on the whiteboard in one-foot tall letters was the statement "Sex is the best." He observed that two students were "romantically engaged", kissing during the class. Two other students were talking about a new computer game that incorporated guns. Profanity was being used, and this stopped when he asked the students what they were doing. During these activities, Forsell did not react or address the class at all. At 10:13 a.m., Forsell got up from her seat and went to the classroom door. She erased the words on the whiteboard and left the room. Zapicchi remained in his seat. A student sitting next to him said that he did not understand his assignment. When the principal suggested that he inquire of Ms. Forsell, the student said that he would rather ask other students, he proceeded to do.

At 10:38 a.m., Ms. Forsell got up, cell phone in hand, and left the room. Zapicchi could see her foot holding the door open, but he could not hear her talking. She then returned to the classroom and resumed working at her desk. At 10:45 a.m., students began to leave the classroom even though there were five minutes remaining in the period. Forsell exhibited no reaction to this and other students stood up and went to the door. Forsell then got up, passed through the students and left as did some students, at 10:47 a.m., prior to the actual end of the class period at 10:50.

Mr. Zapicchi explained that in addition to these observations, while in the classroom he also noted that there was a collage for approximately one hundred to one hundred and fifty pictures filling the entire wall on the right side of the room. The collage was three to four pictures in height. He noticed that some of the pictures were of a questionable character. After everyone had left the classroom, he reviewed the entire set of pictures. Some of them had faces of students on them. A large number of the posted items were objectionable, either drug or alcohol-related, homophobic, racially insensitive, or insensitive as to economic status or ethnicity. Many of the pictures had been "Photoshopped," manipulated so that the head or just the face of a student were placed on another person's body. Other than the fact that Photoshop was itself a part of the curriculum for Ms. Forsell's class, there was no connection between the images on many of the pictures and the class curriculum. Thirty or forty were "really offensive." A series of most of the pictures does not allow for the identification of the students depicted and the photographs themselves, while in evidence, are sealed, the recitation of what is depicted will not undermine or violate the Commissioner's Order.

R-5 A photo with a female body and face, the latter apparently inported to the body. The woman holds a sign reading, "OUT OF WORK PROSTITUTE WILL WORK FOR FOOD."

R-6 A photo of three partially clad male bodies with imposed faces. The scene appears to be a street parade and the three figures wear large wings. The caption is "GAY PRIDE."

R-7 A photo of a youthful male, nude above the waist, with the words, "Music First congratulates HANSEL MALE MODEL of the YEAR SO HOT RIGHT NOW."

R-8 A photo of a female, face imposed, holding a tube that is attached to a device, with the caption, "HIT THAT HOOKAH."

R-9 A photo of a female with an imposed face. The woman wears a bikini and fishnet stockings. The caption is partially missing, but reads, "YALL -VE ME." There is an apparently handwritten comment on the photo, but it is hard to read.

R-10 A photo of a female and a male, the female face clearly imposed but the male perhaps in the original. The female is bare breasted, and hands, which appear imposed, cup the breasts.

R-12 A photo of an African-American male, face seemingly original, with a caption, "SMOKE ROCKS."

R-13 A cartoon of a penis and testicles, with ejaculate shown as yellow areas that lead to the mouth of a female cartoon head. The size of the penis vis a vis the head of the woman is clearly intended to suggest an out-sized organ.

R-14 A photograph of a male, face imposed. The caption is "STEVE CARELL THE 40-YEAR OLD VIRGIN." The rest of the wording makes it clear that this was a movie advertisement. However, the face, which may well have been Carrell's, has been replaced with that of a young male, and the "40" is x'd out and replaced with "18" and the word, "virgin" is also lined over and the word "SLUT" placed next to it.

R-15 A photo of a woman, clad in bra and panties and very pregnant, holding an outsized glass of beer. The face of the woman is imposed. Across the top of what appears to have been a beer advertisement are the words, "WHOS THE DADDY." The hand holding the beer may itself have been imposed.

R-16 A photograph of a bearded man wearing a turban with a woman, face imposed, next to him. Something sits on the womans' head, although it is hard to be sure if it is a turban. The caption, not entirely readable, has a handwritten word "CAN'T," followed by a word that is hard to decipher but I believe is "GIRLS," and then, "WEAR TURBANS TOO?"

R-17 A photo of a figure, with short hair and an imposed face, holding what appears to be perhaps drug paraphernalia. The caption is "CRACK IS WACK CRACK IS CHEAP."

R-18 A photo of a football player, lying on the ground with his legs spread, with a face of a male superimposed between the legs at the crotch.

R-19 A photo of a cow with the head of a male wearing a cap, the head imposed in place of the animal's head.

R-21 A photo of a man, apparently of Asian ethnicity, pointing, with a caption reading, "EGGROOL GUD 4 UU!!"

R-22 A photograph that may have been taken from a movie, perhaps Chaplin's "The Great Dictator." The face is superimposed and is that of a young male. The costume of the person is no doubt a parody of a Nazi uniform, but again, if the picture is from the Great Dictator and the original head is that of Chaplin, the symbols on the uniform are not Nazi insignia.

R-23 A photo of a woman, face imposed, standing on a road at the side of a car and bending forward. It is clear enough from the scene and the woman's costume that she is a prostitute and the caption is "HOW MUCH PER HOUR?"

R-24 A photograph of an extremely thin, no doubt anorexic woman, face imposed on the body. The woman is nude, with red stars and leaves covering her breasts and genital area. The caption is, "AM I FAT?"

R-25 A photo of a woman, face imposed, whose dress has seemingly slipped so that her left breast is exposed. A white star obscures the nipple. The caption is "OOPS!"

R-26 A photo of a woman, face imposed, who is lying on her stomach, nude to the waist, her left breast in profile and partially concealed by sheets.

R-27 A photograph of a male, apparently a body builder wearing only a covering over his genital area, with real or perhaps exaggerated musculature, with an imposed face of what appears to be a Black male, mouth open but obviously exaggerated in size. The caption, emanating in bubble fashion from the mouth of the person, reads, 'I WANNA NO WERE DA GOLD AT.'

R-28 An advertisement for a movie, described as "THE MOST OUTRAGEOUS MOVIE EVER." The topless woman pictured jumping in the air, with stars over her nipples, has an imposed face. The movie is entitled, "PERVERT."

R-29 A photo that may have originally been of a female, with a male head imposed that is far too large for the body. The head is of a Black man with gray hair. The caption is "HOT CHICKS!!!"

R-30 A photograph of a woman, face imposed, who is shown with a needle in her arm and a cord around her bicep. The caption is "SOBER SIX HOURS!"

R-31 A photograph of a teenage male. The face and head may well be from the original photo. Imposed over the photo of the fully clothed person are the words "BIG BALLS." In the general vicinity of the genital area of the kneeling figure there are two round forms, not identifiable as to what exactly they may be, but obviously superimposed and explained by the caption.

R-32 A photograph that appears to have been heavily manipulated, showing a figure shot in running shoes, with a face that appears to be added, although not as obviously as in some of the other pictures. The figure wears, thanks to manipulation, a red outfit with stick figure appearing to be a dragon and hand-added goatee and facial hair. A large cone-shaped hat is also added. The word "Rice" is written on the photo with an arrow pointing to some vegetation. The entire presentation is obviously intended to show an Asian, perhaps Chinese, figure.

R-33 A boy, wearing only a loin cloth or underwear, with the words "I'm not even afraid of God" imposed on the picture.

R-34 A picture showing a male, possibly African-American, wearing a long white shirt and pants that seem to be very low to the ground. The caption is "Hat turn sideways pants on the ground Lookin like a fool wit cha pants on the ground! Under the first of two pictures of this male are the letters WTF? Under the second is "EXPLANATION." A figure, possibly an older African-American male with a stocking cap, is also present. Words at the top of the photo read: Made by: J. P. (there is a full name, possibly that of a student).

R-35 A cartoonish picture, of a buck-toothed, triangular-hatted figure with glasses and with a dragon on his clothing, bears a caption reading "Bying88." To the left of the figure is pictured what appears to be a computer game box, "Mioldern War 2." A computer game controller is also pictured.

R-37 A photo of an African-American male with an open book in front of him. The caption is "E.S.L Class." Also, words on the photo read "Mah Name C.B. (the entire name is present, and again, it may be that of a student) I No speak da English so Good."

Mr. Zapicchi advised Ms. Forsell to meet with him at 3:00 p.m. and told her to be accompanied by a teachers' association representative. At the meeting, she appeared to be surprised that he had even been in her classroom and inquired as to which "block" he had been present in the classroom. He noticed that all of the pictures on the wall had been removed and stuffed into the recycling bin. He advised her of the inappropriate pictures that he had observed that had no place in a classroom. She referred to the display as the "Wall of Shame." These photos were apparently done at the end of assignments and just posted on the wall. In a latter discussion with David Miller, another teacher who taught one class a day in the room on three out of every four days, Zapicchi learned that the posting of pictures had begun in January of that year. Miller was reprimanded in a memorandum placed in his file. He said that he had told Forsell that these were inappropriate postings, but she had replied that she did not think it was a big deal.

Mr. Zapicchi reviewed all of the photos and recognized the faces of students in photos numbered 5, 6, 8, 9, 10, 11, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 28, 30, 31, 36, 37, 39, 40 and 41. All but one of these were students in West Windsor-Plainsboro, although none were in that particular class. He also noted that the student depicted in photograph R-37, which was the picture of a male who says that he does not "speak da English so Good", spoke to him along with the boy's father. While the student explained that at first he was not particularly offended by the "can't read" message, he did later find it offensive and took it down, only to have someone subsequently post it again. Additionally, the principal noted that the term "Smoke Rocks" (R-12) has drug connotations and R-7, which does not depict a student, had sexual connotations. In regard to R-16 (turban reference), the school has a high population of students of Indian background. R-19 (human head on a cow) there were perhaps thirty to forty similar "head and body" (my term) pictures. R-20 ("Silly Injuns") was offensive to Native Americans. R-32 (the "Rice" picture) appeared to have been Photoshopped using a picture from the High School's cross-country team. The student depicted in the "menorah" picture, R-39, who is Jewish, was not offended.

Mr. Zapicchi felt that the presence of these pictures in Ms. Forsell's classroom reflected poorly upon her judgment as a teacher of impressionable students. He was also disappointed in the classroom observation, as there was no lesson plan, no direction given to the students, no addressing of the students. Ms. Forsell seemed not to recognize that he was even in her classroom, and of, course, the presence of the photos on the wall was troubling. The photos violated the School Board's policy against the creation of a hostile environment. He recommended that Forsell be suspended until a determination could be made as to what was the appropriate course regarding her. He acknowledged that she did not produce the pictures and did not direct that they be produced. She did not prevent their removal. However, she is the manager of her classroom and she should never have allowed or suffered these type of pictures to be posted. This was a reflection of poor management. As for what he observed in the classroom, it involved multiple aberrations. In past years, Ms. Forsell had been found to have effective lessons and to have generally good relationships within the classroom.

Zapicchi noted that the collage was not set up so that the inappropriate photos were obscured. He did not see all of the offensive photos during the course of the class, but did so after it ended. The "Wall of Shame" was at that time the only display of student work in the classroom. In the past there had been proper displays of student projects. No student complained about the pictures.

J.C., now a nineteen-year-old college student, testified that in June 2010, she was a student at West Windsor-Plainsboro North High School. In her junior year she attended the junior prom. Her mother was divorced and disabled and her father "not involved" and although J.C. wanted to attend the prom, her mother could not afford to pay the ticket cost. Her mother contacted Ms. Forsell, who was the Junior Class advisor, and inquired whether the fee could be waived. J.C. had a date for the prom, a sophomore. As Ms. Forsell told J.C., the boy's mother paid for his ticket.

During her senior year, J.C. found herself in similar straits regarding the senior prom. Because of events to be described shortly, J.C.'s mother, rather than speak about the situation with Ms. Forsell, contacted Principal Zapicchi about her dilemma. Zapicchi advised that he would take care of both her ticket and that of her date if necessary and indeed both were paid for. On May 6, 2010, J.C. was in a genetics class in a lab group with three other students. Ms. Forsell, who was not the teacher in the room, nevertheless entered the classroom and approached J.C. She inquired of J.C. how her date's ticket was going to be paid for. J.C. replied that Zapicchi had said that he would take care of it, but Forsell said that he was not going to do so. The conversation from Forsell, conducted in the classroom, was "not friendly" and J.C. was getting "really embarrassed." Other students were in the vicinity of where the two were talking. The very next day, J.C. was in her English class and Forsell entered and asked her what her date wanted to eat at the prom. She claimed that the meal choice was not on her sheet. J.C. thought that this information has already been supplied, but nevertheless told Forsell. This was a "much more friendly encounter." Forsell was never J.C.'s teacher. When she told her mother about Forsell's actions, her mother was "shocked" and wrote a letter to inform Zapicchi about the events.

J.C. had no recollection that Forsell even mentioned anything about a "refund" in the conversations in either the genetics or the English class.

E.S., J.C.'s mother, confirmed her economic circumstances and her request for assistance regarding the junior prom ticket. Forsell advised that the school could assist. Ms. S. could not afford to pay for her daughter's date's ticket and did not know how that was to be paid for. When J.C. went to pick up the ticket or to hand something in, Forsell told her that the date's ticket was taken care of. Ms. S. was mortified to learn that at a softball game Forsell approached U.D., mother of her daughter's date, and discussed Ms. S.'s financial circumstance with Ms. D and told Ms. D. that she should buy her son's ticket and that the school was buying J.C.'s ticket. When senior year came and the prom ticket issue again arose, she decided to bypass Forsell and contacted Zapicchi directly. She went to see him and explained why she did not want to go through Forsell. He told her that the ticket would be taken care of. He asked if J.C.'s date needed a ticket and Ms. S. said that she did not know. This boy had graduated a year earlier. Zapicchi told Ms. S. that the ticket would be taken care of. J.C. later told Ms. S. about Forsell's visit to the genetics class and the questioning that took place near other students and the classroom teacher, including Forsell's disputing that Zapicchi was taking care of the date's ticket. J.C. told her that she was "embarrassed and mortified." Ms. S. was "furious" and went to see Zapicchi. He told her, "I've been waiting for you, I thought you might come in." Apparently, the genetics teacher had told Zapicchi about Forsell's visit. Ms. S. wrote a letter to Forsell explaining her distress about Forsell's actions. After the junior prom incident involving the conversation with U.D. at the softball game, Ms. S. had thought to let that matter go, but the events regarding the senior prom simply were too much.

Y.D. testified that Ms. F.'s husband had coached her daughter in Little League. Ms. D. did not like his coaching style, but denied that that had anything to do with the current matter, which occurred about nine years after that coaching experience. She was at a high school softball game before the junior prom in the vicinity of other parents in the bleachers. Forsell was there and said that she heard that Ms. D.'s son was attending the prom with J.C. She asked if Y.D. knew that J.C. was "on financial assistance." Ms. D. responded that she did not. Forsell told her that the school was paying for J.C.'s ticket, but not for that of her date. This occurred in the midst of a general discussion among the group of mothers about prom-related matters, such as dresses. As far as Ms. D. recalls, the discussions had not been about tickets and Forsell initiated the comments about the tickets. Other parents were within hearing distance of Forsell's comments. The situation made Ms. D. uncomfortable. She told Forsell that there was no problem, she would pay for her son's ticket. J.C.'s mother called her a couple of days later because her daughter had come home from school upset about the financial matter and she did not want Ms. D. to tell her son about it. Ms. D. told her that she was upset about the public setting of Forsell's comments and more so about Forsell telling J.C. about it.

Mr. Zapicchi testified that a waiver was required if prom tickets were to be paid out of anything other than class funds. For the 2009 junior prom, Zapicchi could not afford to pay for prom date's tickets, as over ten members of the Junior class needed financial assistance. In 2010, Ms. S. contacted him about assistance with her daughter's ticket and asked that he be discreet about it with Ms. Forsell. In 2010, the issue of paying for date's tickets was handled on a case-by-case basis. A few were paid for. Disclosure as to the payment for J.C.'s date was made to the class co-advisor. Money was transferred from the Principal's account to the class account. The co-advisor was told not to tell Forsell what was happening.

Ms. S. came to Zapicchi's office and informed him about what had happened with her daughter and Forsell in the genetics classroom. He had never told Forsell about Ms. S.'s concerns about the junior year experience up to that point. He did when Ms. S. came in to tell him about the senior year episode.

Specification 3 and 6

Specifications 3 and 6 each refer in some fashion to Ms. Forsell's alleged reaction to and treatment of special education students. Douglas A. Eadie, Assistant Principal at High School North for thirteen years, testified that in a meeting with a parent of a classified student and Ms. Forsell in December 2006, Forsell had referred to another student in the presence of this parent, noting that this other student, who was referred to by full name, had been removed from her classroom and mentioning this in regard to a comment as to why this student could not be removed as the other had been. This sort of reference by name is unusual, as names of other students are not usually referred to in such meetings. Eadie contacted the Director of Special Services or the Assistant Director to advise about the discomfort that a member of the child study team also present at this meeting had for Forsell's conduct. When the concern regarding confidentiality was brought to Forsell's attention by a memorandum dated January 22, 2007, from Sue DiDonato, the Director of Special Services, Ms. Forsell apologized for her lack of care. Ms. DiDonato, who retired as of June 30, 2011, confirmed that Eadie had contacted her about the meeting and Forsell's action. When she met with Forsell, she was "cooperative" and assured that there would be no repetition of the breach of confidentiality. DiDonato was convinced that Forsell had not acted out of any bad intentions.

Melissa Levine (formerly Betron), Assistant Principal at High School North for ten years and formerly a special education teacher who served as Ms. Forsell's supervisor for four years as assistant principal, was aware of the incident in which Ms. Forsell had used the full name of a special education student. She was aware of the apology as well. Levine also testified about an observation she conducted of Forsell on March 11, 2005. She had concerns about Forsell's relationship with special education, as it was evident to Levine that Forsell did not feel that special education children belonged in her class, believing that they were inappropriately placed there, as they were a "distraction." Levine recalled that there were perhaps four special education students in the class and they would typically work on different matters than the other students in the class. While Levine's summary of her observation noted that Forsell's lesson was "effective and demonstrated knowledge of the material," and was "well organized," she also included in her recommendation that Forsell work on developing a better relationship with these students. Some of them were in the class in part for the social interaction that was a needed part of their education and this was explained to Forsell. They had some "back and forth" as to how to get these students more involved in the class.

Levine also explained that on December 20, 2005, she had issued a memorandum to Forsell regarding information that Levine had received that on December 15, 2005; Ms. Forsell referred to a special education student as a "sick freak." This comment was purportedly made in the presence of the student. In her memo, Levine, characterizing the teacher's behavior as "unacceptable", referred Forsell to the mission statement and core values of the District, which she attached to the memo. Levine explained that Forsell did not deny making this statement.

On cross-examination it was noted that in her Annual Evaluation for the school year 2004-2005, issued in September 2005, well after the observation of March 11, there was no reference to the alleged problem regarding special education students, and no further reference to this issue appears in any latter evaluation. The evaluation was positive and Mr. Zapicchi signed off on the document. The evaluation did note that it had been observed that "on several occasions . . . students are dismissed from classes prior to the end of the period" and noted the importance "that students remain actively engaged throughout the hour long period and are kept in the classroom until the bell rings, indicating the end of the class." In her Classroom Observation Report of May 30, 2006, Levine noted that Forsell "uses a variety of materials, technology and resources, assigning students based on individual needs." Levine agreed that at the late stages of the school term students tend to be more "rammy" and, as they are finishing up their final projects for the school year, they tend to be "acting much more independently."

Ms. Levine did not recall if other special education students were assigned to Forsell's classes after her March 2005 observation.

Mary Jane Gosselin, a school psychologist and member of the Child Study Team at West Windsor-Plainsboro for twenty-two years, has been assigned to High School North since 1997. She testified that Ms. Forsell had complained about placement of students in her class in 2006-2007. One student, a freshman, was an object of Forsell's concern because she believed that he was not getting all of his work done. The student had Attention Deficit Hyperactivity Disorder (ADHD). When Gosselin discussed this with Forsell, Forsell expressed disbelief that ADHD really existed and suggested that it was instead merely an excuse. Even after Gosselin explained about ADHD, Forsell had a hard time accepting that it was an actual condition and that it warranted any special attention for students.

Forsell also had a problem regarding a student, S.M., a special education student with ADHD who should have been a student at High School South, but was assigned to High School North because the Child Study Team believed that he needed a more structured classroom environment that was provided at High School North. He was a mainstreamed, general education student who signed up for Ms. Forsell's elective Computer Graphics course. He received an "A" for the first marking period, but experienced quite a few absences due to surgery for scoliosis in the second marking period. Forsell did not give him a grade for the second marking period, during which he was absent for about twenty-five days. He returned for the third and fourth marking periods, but there was a discussion about whether he should return for Forsell's class. Forsell had concerns about his continuing, because he had missed much of the Photoshop portion of the class. The student's parents, who were themselves "fairly computer literate", wanted him to continue and were willing to assist him and to help him make up missed work. Gosselin also wanted him to continue, in part because she was aware that he wanted to pursue a career in computers and the course was a foundational course for further work in that area. Forsell gave the student an "F" for the first semester, adding the "A" earned in the first marking period with the "no grade" for the second. To the witness's knowledge, Forsell did not provide him with any opportunity to make up the missed work. As Gosselin recalled, at some time in January or February Ms. Forsell proposed that if the student did not take her Digital Media course in the following school year, she would forgive the Photoshop unit. The student wanted to continue so that this was not a favorable solution for the family. Eventually, it was suggested that he take a summer course in Photoshop in a local community college or elsewhere and then it would not be a problem for him to take Forsell's Digital Media class. Forsell did not believe this to be sufficient. He took a course, possibly at Rutgers, at the parents' expense. He then took the Digital Media class.

Dr. Susan Kemler, a Learning Disabilities Teaching Consultant (LDTTC) for sixteen years and previously a teacher, is a member of the Child Study Team. She is familiar with R.S. a female student for whom she served as case manager in the spring of 2005. R.S. had Down Syndrome. Forsell had this student in her Computer Applications class, where the student was assigned for both socialization and for the learning element. In the spring of 2005, Ms. Forsell was present for an Individualized Education Plan (IEP) meeting, in the presence of Kemler and others, including members of the Child Study Team and parents, Ms. Forsell was present as a general education representative, as such a presence was required for under the Individuals with Disabilities Act (IDEA). Just before the meeting was to begin, Forsell and Kemler were alone and the parents had not yet arrived. They were engaged in small talk. In the course of this, Forsell wondered aloud whether the parents "knew ahead of time" about the condition and they did not abort the pregnancy. Kemler "did not know what to say." She offered that Forsell should go back to her class and the IEP meeting was held without her presence. The parent was a widower who had just lost his wife and was quite vulnerable. Kemler, having heard what Forsell had said, was afraid of what she might say in his presence. This statement, which was "more of an opinion", was never reported to anyone. At the time, Kemler was not Forsell's supervisor.

Mary Lou Forsell testified in her own behalf. She holds a teaching certificate and is highly qualified in Business Education. She taught for seven years at Montgomery High School and seven years in middle school. She was tenured in Montgomery. She lives in West Windsor and has three daughters who attended that school system. She began to teach in the West Windsor-Plainsboro district, teaching computer applications, graphics and digital media. She served as the class advisor for eight years, advising regarding the school play, doing videos for sports teams, sport program books, and arranging chaperones. As a class advisor she would start with the freshmen class, and if her selection as class advisor was continued for the next year, move on and up with the class each year through those freshmen's senior year. She did so in 2005 and again started with the freshmen in 2010. The class advisor is involved with the class trip to Disney World, proms, and fundraising. In May 2009, she was the junior class advisor. She found and booked the venue for the prom, created spread sheets to chart payments and meal selections, collected payments and made deposits with the venue, which was the Adventure Aquarium in Camden. In her capacity as advisor, she received an e-mail from E.S., the mother of J.C., concerning the possibility of financial assistance for her daughter to enable her to attend the prom. She wrote back that she would forward the request to Mr. Eadie. She asked him if the ticket could be paid for and was told that it could, but she asked also if he was paying for the date's ticket and was told that he was not paying for the date. She advised Ms. S. of this information.

Forsell was present at a softball game where she encountered Ms. D. Other parents were close by, some in the bleachers, although "not on top of each other." There was general discussion about the prom, dresses, who was going with whom. It was only in this conversation that Forsell first learned of her own daughter having a prom date. Ms. D. complained that she had to pay for two tickets, as she had a sophomore son who was attending with a junior date. Ms. D. asked if it was customary for a sophomore boy to pay for a ticket if he was going to the prom with a junior. Forsell advised that this was not the custom, that if a junior invited a sophomore the junior paid for the ticket. She asked Ms. D. who the date was and was told that it was J.C. Forsell said "Oh" and related that that was a "special case" and that Ms. D. "might consider buying the ticket." She explained that this discussion was held in a conversational tone and she heard nothing of it for the rest of the school year.

In May 2010, Forsell was the senior class advisor, in charge of the prom, which was to be held at the Westin Hotel. Students would bring her the money for the tickets and she would record the payments on a spread sheet that showed who bought a ticket, how much they paid, whether by check, and what the dinner choice(s) were.

Over 400 persons were to attend and she had to tell the venue about the meal selections, arrange for the place cards and table numbers. She noted on her list that J.C. had paid $80, although the list did not indicate whether the payment was by cash or check. She spoke to her co-advisor and she explained that she had sold the ticket to J.C. The list contained nothing as to the student's date or the meal choice. Lots of students attended the prom without dates. As the date of the event came closer, Forsell had to get place cards done. There were six or eight students without any meal selection indicated. During her prep period, Forsell tracked down these students. When she saw J.C., J.C. asked if it was too late to bring a date. When Forsell responded that it was not too late, J.C. told her that "Mike Z." (Zapicchi) was paying for her date. Forsell told her that he was not, as in respect to another student, Zapicchi had told Forsell that he was not paying for dates' tickets. J.C. disputed this, saying that "he is paying for mine." Forsell explained that she thought that she might owe J.C. a refund if she had paid cash. She told J.C. that she did not know what J.C. was paying for. That concluded the conversation. Forsell was "confused" and she went to see Zapicchi, who said, "I need to talk to you." He then explained that Ms. S. had approached him and wanted a waiver for the cost of the prom ticket but also insisted that she did not want Forsell to know about the request. As a result, he went behind Forsell's back to her co-advisor, who had, it turned out, misplaced the information about the date's meal selection. She then approached J.C. to inquire as to the meal selection and upon obtaining this had no other contact with J.C. When Forsell received a letter from Ms. S., dated May 8, 2010, in which Ms. S. referred to the discussion with Ms. D. that had occurred at the athletic event the previous year, and Ms. S.'s contact with and request to Zapicchi regarding avoiding providing information about the senior prom ticket issue with Forsell, Forsell felt that she had been blindsided, as no one had previously expressed to her any unhappiness. If she had known that Ms. S. was unhappy with her she would have let her co-advisor handle matters involving J.C.

Addressing the June 8, 2010, classroom observation, Forsell explained that this was two days before the start of final examinations. She was collecting past due assignments and students were working on a ten-part final project that constituted their final exam. She was having interaction with students who still owed back assignments.

When the class ended she received an e-mail directing her to meet with Mr. Zapicchi at 3:00 p.m. She spoke to Donald Miller, who was the other teacher assigned to use the classroom. He jokingly said that maybe Zapicchi did not like the wall with the big collage of pictures.

Ms. Forsell explained that Photoshop, which was part of the course curriculum late in the school year, enabled one to switch heads and bodies. While students were not allowed to play games on the computers in class, if they finished their assignments early they were permitted to "play with Photoshop and do creative things." This is how the wall started to grow. Periodically, Forsell would take down pictures and if she knew which student had posted an inappropriate picture she would speak to the student. She had removed pictures four or five times. On June 8, after she had spoken to Mr. Miller, she examined the wall and saw photos that were inappropriate. Her reaction was "Oh, my God, I didn't see this." She took all of the photos down and cleaned the room. There were perhaps one hundred photos on the wall. She does not contest the fact that the photos entered into evidence were among those she removed. Many of them were inappropriate. Some were actually pictures that she had previously taken down that had been posted again. She never directed students to put pictures on the wall and certainly not any inappropriate pictures. In retrospect, allowing any pictures to be posted was "a very bad idea." No students, no teachers or any staff ever complained about any of the pictures. It was "her fault" that the wall of pictures existed. She was very busy and failed to keep an eye on the wall.

Ms. Forsell had no recollection of the alleged "abortion" conversation related by Ms. Kemler. As for the "sick freak" remark, she recalls that there was a student, T.F., who was not in her class. There was a supply closet located next to her classroom. T.F. could not legally be locked in the closet but he had an aide who would lean on the door to keep him in the closet when he had "melt downs." T.F. would scream to be let out of the closet and curse at the aide. This would sometimes occur several times in a week. Sometimes the closet door would open and the aide would sit on top of T.F. to restrain him. When these situations would occur, students in her classroom would pay attention to the events outside the classroom instead of the work in the room. She asked Ms. Levine if there was a classroom available to move T.F. to and Levine told her there was not. When this all happened again, Forsell lost her temper and said to the aide, "Is there anything you can do about this sick freak." The student was in the closet when she made this comment, which she "shouldn't have said." She received a memorandum. She responded with an e-mail and said that the facts were incorrect because the student was in the closet and "at no time did I have any conversation with the student or the student with me."

Ms. Forsell explained that she had not really suggested that ADHD did not exist, but that instead she had told Ms. Gosselin that she did not understand what it was. Gosselin did not say anything to her in response. Over the years Forsell had "lots of classified students in her class," some with ADHD, although she was not sure what the classification was for these students on their IEPs. She never refused to implement an IEP and no one ever told her that she had not implemented an IEP.

As for S.M., the student who had been frequently absent from her class in, as she thought, "the second semester." She never received an e-mail that he was absent and did not know what had happened to him. She gave him "initially an incomplete" and she approached his case manager at the end of the school year, who told her that he had been out of school due to surgery. The case manager said she had forgotten to tell this to Forsell. Forsell noted that he had missed about twenty-five assignments and asked what the case manager would like her to do about his making up the work. The case manager said that she would speak to his parents. The case manager reported that due to the amount of work that he had to make up and the work from other "academic" classes that he had missed, that he would only make up the academic work, which did not include the computer class work. This information led to a change in the student's grade to an "F". Months later, Ms. Gosselin wanted to change the "F" to a "D" because the student had taken a computer course at Rutgers. But no classwork was exhibited to her and she did not see how she could change his grade in the absence of such work. Gosselin also told her that she was placing the student into Forsell's Digital Media course. Forsell was uncomfortable with this decision because he had not taken the Photoshop unit in the earlier course, which was a prerequisite for Digital Media. However, he did take Digital Media and did very well.

Summing up, Ms. Forsell admitted that she had made some errors in judgment, but she claimed to have learned from these.

On cross-examination, Ms. Forsell said that tasteful pictures were permitted to be displayed on the wall, not distasteful or inappropriate ones, but that she had not realized that the inappropriate pictures on the wall on June 8 were there. She had not had a chance at that date, so late in the school year, to purge the wall as she had earlier in the year. In her answers to interrogatories she noted that the pictures were not visible from her desk, obscured as they were by the students' computers. She would purge the wall when the class was empty. She referred to it as the "Wall of Shame" because the students referred to the "cone of shame" a dog wears after a visit to a veterinarian. She originated the name "Wall of Shame" for the wall of photos, but is not aware whether the students used that name for it. Photos originally posted on it were "goofy," "funny." She should have stopped the posting before June 8.

Referencing the prom issues, Forsell stated that Mr. Eadie had told her that he was not paying for prom dates' tickets. At the softball game, Ms. D. was seated in the bleachers, two rows in front of her. Mrs. N. was behind and to her left and Mrs. T. to her right. Ms. D. turned to Forsell and asked if it was customary to pay for a date's ticket. Not knowing who Ms. D.'s child's date was, Forsell advised that it was not customary for the date. She asked who the date was and when Ms. D. told her, she said that "Oh, that's a special circumstance. You might consider paying for your son." That was all that she said. As for the senior prom, when she noted that the meal selection for J.C. was not listed, she went to see her and J.C. said that she was bringing a date. This conversation was in "kind of the front of" J.C.'s science classroom. When Forsell said that J.C. should bring her the payment for the ticket, J.C. responded that "Mr. Z." or "Mike Z." was paying for the date's ticket. Forsell responded that he was not doing so. She acknowledged that she should have removed J.C. from the classroom for this conversation. She did ask many students what they wanted to eat and did not take them out of their classrooms for this inquiry.

Discussion

Teachers are role models for students. In that sense they carry a greater responsibility to act correctly than the typical public employee. State Bd. of Exam'rs v. Charlton, 96 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDE) 18, 21. Teachers who are tenured are protected in their positions from removal without cause, and the burden to establish sufficient cause to discipline a tenured teacher rests upon the school board, which must prove the facts supporting sanctions by a preponderance of the credible evidence.

Ms. Forsell is charged with unbecoming conduct and a lack of professionalism. "Conduct unbecoming a public employee" is an elastic phrase, which encompasses conduct that adversely affects the morale or efficiency of a governmental unit or that has a tendency to destroy public respect in the delivery of governmental services. Karins v. City of Atlantic City, 152 N.J. 532, 554 (1998); see also In re Emmons, 63 N.J. Super. 136, 140 (App. Div. 1960). It is sufficient that the complained-of conduct and its attending circumstances "be such as to offend publicly accepted standards of decency." Karins, supra, 152 N.J. at 555 (quoting In re Zeber, 156 A.2d 821, 825 (1959)). Such misconduct need not necessarily "be predicated upon the violation of any particular rule or regulation, but may be based merely upon the violation of the implicit standard of good behavior which devolves upon one who stands in the public eye as an upholder of that which is morally and legally correct." Hartmann v. Police Dep't of Ridgewood, 258 N.J. Super. 32, 40 (App. Div. 1992) (quoting Asbury Park v. Dep't of Civil Serv., 17 N.J. 419, 429 (1955)).

In this case many of the significant facts are not in dispute. Ms. Forsell acknowledges that the photos entered into evidence were indeed posted on the wall of the classroom as late as June 8, when Mr. Zapicchi observed them. Her explanation that she had previously removed offensive and tasteless photos from the wall may be true, but even if she did that, it is quite evident that she did not follow through with that purging process. But what is more troubling is that, alerted as she claims to have been that students had a penchant for posting what she claims she herself saw as inappropriate postings, she nevertheless allowed the wall to continue to exist and allowed continued postings. If she knew there had been a problem and that she had had to speak to some students about what they posted, it would have been absolutely her responsibility to either stop all postings or to carefully and regularly monitor the items posted. She might, for instance, have distributed guidelines to the students that would have hopefully limited the postings to items that properly reflected both the appropriate use and yet maintained the proper boundaries as to what was posted. Instead, through her neglect or indifference, and without adequate excuse, she permitted to be posted what are undoubtedly a collection of inappropriate materials. These include racially, ethnically, economically insensitive postings, as well as postings that involve drug and alcohol references. Actual students are made part of the pictures through the use of the Photoshop process, thereby associating them, however unknowingly, with the totally inappropriate references and messages contained in the posted materials. Ms. Forsell has not suggested that these items were appropriate displays of the coursework, and they surely were not. Her failure to properly manage a display that she allowed to be existent in her classroom cannot be excused by her claims about how busy she was, especially as she was, by her own testimony, already aware of the misuse to which the wall had been put. And the lack of complaints from students is of no moment, as it is not clear if some of those whose images were included were aware of that fact, and far more importantly, the responsibility rested upon the teacher to control her classroom and assure the propriety of events therein and not on the teenaged students, whose sense of propriety and willingness to complain about such matters cannot be assumed to have reached the level expected of tenured educators.

Ms. Forsell's lack of judgment may also be seen as evident in her conversations with J.C. She should not have allowed a discussion that touched on the issue of who was paying for tickets for the senior prom to have occurred in close proximity to other students, and no doubt could have had that conversation in a hallway or elsewhere, either at the time when he went to the science class or perhaps at another time that would not have required that the student be interrupted in her class work. The conversation at the baseball game about the junior prom also may reflect a lack of judgment. If she thought that J.C.'s situation was one presenting something different from the customary situation that she was discussing regarding who would pay for a date's prom ticket, it might have been appropriate to either contact J.C. or her mother, privately, to note that Ms. D. had inquired, but suggesting that there was some "special circumstance" about J.C. was not her business.

Ms. Forsell's admission of the impropriety of her outburst about the noisy special education student in the hallway, her reference to him as a "sick freak", is hardly excused by her claim that she lost her temper. While she does not recall the "abortion" comment testified to by Ms. Kemler, I have no reason to doubt Kemler's account, and, frankly, such a remark seems in keeping with Forsell's seeming inability to recognize limits and to avoid comments made in inappropriate times and places. I FIND that Kemler was credible and that Forsell did make the comment.

As for the discussion about the student who missed the Photoshop element of Forsell's course and later took her Digital Media course, I fail to see this as a tenure issue. She appears to have been uncomfortable with the idea of his taking a second level course for which Photoshop was a prerequisite when the student had not taken that element of the course and she had not seen the work he supposedly did at Rutgers. He took the Digital Media course and did well. Her expression of concern and her evident feeling that he should not be permitted to take the second course may have been a sign of her rigidity, or of her uncertainty that he was actually prepared for the Digital Media course, but on the whole I see nothing about this incident that warrants any discipline. And to that end, while some of her other comments might be viewed as indicative of her feelings about special education, in this context I do not see her actions as demonstrative of a chargeable offense, but instead of a good faith concern about the appropriateness of this student's participation in a course for which she might have legitimately questioned his preparedness.

Based upon the record, I FIND that Ms. Forsell did engage in conduct unbecoming a tenured educator and exhibited a lack of concern for the privacy of students. She failed to properly manage her classroom and in so doing allowed the posting of many entirely inappropriate pictures depicting matters not properly exhibited in a school classroom, pictures which, in many cases, included the images of students. She allowed students to leave class early and did so herself. She on more than one occasion failed to exhibit either the awareness of, or ability to carry out her responsibility to protect the privacy of her students and their families in regard to financial information to which she had become privy. Finally, she made remarks that were simply inappropriate in the context in which they were expressed, regardless of her right to hold such views as she might have in respect to matters regarding special education, disability issues and matters relating to personal family decisions. I CONCLUDE that the Board has established these matters, as charged in Specifications 1, 2, 3 and 6, by the requisite preponderance of the credible evidence. I CONCLUDE that there is no violation of standards in regards to the issue of student S.M.

Penalty

If this case only involved Ms. Forsell's inappropriate comment to Ms. D. and her discussion with J.C. in the science class, the matter would not warrant more than a reprimand. The addition of her comments about the "sick freak" and the "abortion" are more troubling. They are indefensible in the context in which they were made, whatever her private views might be. When these are joined with the continued failure to manage, monitor or shutdown a site for the posting of what she had been alerted to as offensive and inappropriate materials that violated any common sense of what belonged on display in a classroom and which violated policies to discourage and stamp out discrimination and bullying, the level of Ms. Forsell's misconduct and failure to live up to the professional standards expected of a tenured teacher is substantially increased. The repeated instances of lack of judgment in matters that could have caused serious offense is difficult to mesh with the high responsibility imposed upon teachers as role models and examples for students. Tolerance, even by neglect, of the sort of materials displayed in her room, is intolerable conduct. Under the circumstances, and with due consideration for her lengthy and apparently previously discipline-free career, I am constrained to CONCLUDE that removal of tenure is the appropriate sanction.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." SYNOPSIS

Petitioners sought reimbursement from the respondent Board for costs incurred in defending petitioner Alexander – a security officer employed by the Board – in a Superior Court civil action alleging sexual assault and harassment, which was settled in August 2010. Respondent contended that it has no obligation to indemnify because the issue of indemnification was resolved by the Superior Court settlement agreement.

The ALJ identified the threshold question to be whether the Commissioner has jurisdiction to decide the matter, and whether the civil settlement addressed all of the claims – in which case, there is nothing left for the Commissioner to decide; in seeking to defeat the respondent Board's assertion that all aspects of this matter ended with the Superior Court's August 2010 order approving settlement, petitioners are relying on specialized rules and practices of the Superior Court rather than on the Commissioner's expertise to resolve the claims. The ALJ concluded that in the current instance, the original demand for cross-claim and indemnification was before the Superior Court as part of the civil lawsuit; accordingly, the expertise to determine whether the Superior Court ended that claim with the civil settlement lies with the Superior Court and the question should, therefore, be brought before that court rather than the Commissioner. The ALJ recommended dismissal of the petition without prejudice.

Upon independent review of the record and the Initial Decision of the OAL, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ that this matter is appropriately dismissed for lack of jurisdiction. In so determining, the Commissioner was compelled to agree that the interpretation of the Superior Court settlement forms the base of this controversy. The petition was dismissed without prejudice.

This synopsis is not part of the Commissioner's decision. It has been prepared for the convenience of the reader. It has been neither reviewed nor approved by the Commissioner.

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Petitioners' exceptions – filed in accordance with the provisions of N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 – were duly considered by the Commissioner in making his determination herein. The Board did not submit reply exceptions.

Exceptions of the petitioners essentially recast and reiterate their arguments advanced below. In that it is determined that these – in pertinent part – were fully considered and addressed by the Administrative Law Judge in her decision, further elaboration on them is unnecessary here.

Upon full review and consideration the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that this matter is appropriately dismissed – without prejudice – for lack of Commissioner of Education jurisdiction. In so determining the Commissioner is compelled to agree that “at the base of [this] controversy lies the interpretation of the Superior Court settlement,” (Initial Decision at 4) in the matter entitled Zalactier Cartagena, Individually and as Guardian ad Litem for Chrystal Harper, a minor v. City of Trenton Board of Education,

Elizabeth Ramirez, Howard White and Logan Alexander, Jr., Superior Court of New Jersey Law Division, Mercer County, Docket No. MER-L-2081-08. As such, the Commissioner is in full accord – for the reasons clearly presented on p. 4-7 of her decision – with the ALJ’s conclusion in this matter. Specifically:

I CONCLUDE that in the current instance, the original demand for cross-claim and indemnification was before the Superior Court as part of the civil lawsuit. The expertise to determine whether the Superior Court ended that claim in its “Order Entering Judgment and Directing Deposit of Funds” dated August 17, 2010...lies with the Superior Court, and the question should, therefore, be brought before the Superior Court. Should the Superior Court determine that the settlement did not encompass the indemnification claim, the question of the Board’s responsibility to indemnify is then properly brought before the Commissioner. (Initial Decision at 7)

Accordingly, the recommended decision of the OAL is adopted and the instant petition of appeal is hereby dismissed without prejudice.

IT IS SO ORDERED.*

BEFORE LAURA SANDERS, ACTING DIRECTOR AND CHIEF ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioners Logan Alexander ("Alexander") and The Horace Mann Insurance Company seek reimbursement from the Board of Education of the City of Trenton ("the Board" or "respondent") for costs incurred in defending Alexander in a Superior Court action alleging sexual assault and harassment. Respondent contends that it has no obligation to indemnify because the actions did not arise out of Alexander's position, and he has not demonstrated a favorable outcome.

Petitioners filed with the Commissioner of the Department of Education ("the Department") on November 16, 2010. Following respondent's reply, which was received on December 30, 2010, the Department transmitted the contested case to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), where it was filed on January 19, 2011. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15; N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. As Alexander was involved in more than one legal action, it was agreed in a conference call on February 18, 2011, that the parties would submit briefs on the question of whether the claim for reimbursement was limited to a particular case, or was, of necessity, related to all of the actions, including a criminal proceeding in which he pled guilty. The last of the briefs was received on April 19, 2011; however, in a series of conference calls, the parties represented that they required additional time to pursue settlement discussions. In August they advised that there was no further reason to delay a decision on the cross-motions. In the meantime, however, it had become clear that there is a threshold factual dispute over whether a Superior Court order already settled the claims presented here. Therefore, oral argument was scheduled on the question of proper jurisdiction. That argument having occurred on November 7, 2011, the record closed on that date.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

The parties agree on this much. On March 9, 2007, Logan Alexander, a security officer employed by the Trenton Board of Education, was arrested on charges of aggravated criminal sexual contact and endangering the welfare of a child, in connection with Student One.¹ On March 12, Student Two and her grandmother alleged that Alexander had kissed the child on her neck, given her gifts, and attempted to contact her at home through telephone calls. On the same date, the Trenton Board of Education placed Alexander on administrative leave until further notice "due to the allegations made involving [Alexander] with children." (Respondent's Brief, Exhibit C). On March 22, 2007, Student Three alleged that Alexander had touched her inappropriately and threatened to harm her brothers if she told anyone.

On August 16, 2007, Alexander was indicted on charges of aggravated criminal sexual contact relative to Student One and sexual assault as to Student Three. On August 20, 2008, Student Two filed a civil lawsuit, alleging sexual assault by Alexander. On October 16, 2008, the Board filed an answer, asserting cross-claims for contribution and indemnification against Alexander. (Petitioners' Brief, Exhibit B.) The Board did not file an answer to the civil suit on behalf of Alexander or take any action to defend him. Therefore, pursuant to an insurance agreement, petitioner Horace Mann Insurance Company assigned counsel to Alexander. On December 29, 2008, that counsel filed an answer to the lawsuit on Alexander's behalf, asserting cross-claims for contribution and indemnification from the Board. (Petitioners' Brief, Exhibit C.) That same answer included the following statement by Alexander, "Certification Pursuant to R. 4:5-1 'I hereby certify that this matter is not the subject of any other action now pending in any other court or arbitration proceeding and that no such other action, or arbitration proceeding is contemplated.'" On April 22, 2009, Alexander pled guilty to endangering the welfare of a child, N.J.S.A. 2C:24-4.

During the pendency of the civil lawsuit, Alexander, the grandmother of Student Two, and Student Two all gave deposition testimony. In the deposition, Alexander admitted calling the home of Student Two and purchasing a pair of stuffed dogs for her outside of school. (Respondent's Brief, Exhibit L.) The grandmother of Student Two stated that Alexander contacted her house on Saturday morning, asking to speak to Student Two; however, she refused his request and hung up on him. The student stated that he kissed her neck in the hallway one morning between classes. (Respondent's Brief, Exhibit N.) Alexander denied this in his deposition. (Petitioners' Brief, Exhibit G.)

The civil suit involving Student Two was settled among all parties on August 17, 2010. The settlement begins with the following statement:

. . . the Attorneys for the parties having reported to the Court that a settlement of the infant Plaintiff's claim has been arrived at between the Plaintiffs and the Defendants and the Court having taken proofs on the record and having approved said settlement

[Petitioners' Brief, Exhibit J.]

It then recites that Alexander is to pay $12,500, and the Trenton Board $27,500, and specifies what portion of the $40,000 total is to be paid to the plaintiff's attorney for disbursements and fees. There is no mention of the cross-claims, and no document or any part of the hearing record that specifically addresses preservation of the petitioner's right to seek indemnification. Prior to reaching the settlement, neither Alexander nor his counsel, Arnold M. Mellk, advised the Board that they intended to seek recoupment of Mellk's attorney's fees and the $12,500 from the Board, or that they were agreeing on the settlement on the basis that the asserted cross-claim for indemnification was preserved.

LEGAL ANALYSIS

The threshold question is whether the Commissioner has jurisdiction to decide the matter. At the base of the controversy lies the interpretation of the Superior Court settlement. If the civil settlement addressed all the claims, there is nothing left for the Commissioner to decide.

Petitioners argue that as a matter of Superior Court practice and rule, the settlement could never have included the cross-claim for indemnification. They point to R. 4:44-3, which requires a court, in matters involving minors, to determine whether a settlement is fair and reasonable as to its amount and terms. . . . If the court approves the settlement it shall enter an order reciting the action taken and directing the appropriate judgment in accordance with R. 4:48A, whose provisions shall also apply to deferred payments under structured settlements. The court, on the request of the claimant or the claimant's attorney or on its own motion, may approve the expenses incident to the litigation, including attorney's fees.

Petitioners contend that the so-called "Friendly Hearing" is for the purpose of determining that settlements are fair to and consistent with the minor's best interests, and would not, as a matter of course, include disposition of claims and counter-claims between defendants. Further, they note the fact that the order specifically addresses only "a settlement of the infant Plaintiff's claims" as plain-language support for the lack of a global settlement.

Respondent indicated that during discussions prior to reaching the settlement agreement, Alexander did not advise the Board that, in addition to the $27,500 the Board was agreeing to pay, he would seek to recoup the settlement amount of $12,500 from the Board, plus his attorney's fees. (Respondent's Brief.) "Petitioner did not make these contentions because same would necessarily have altered the scope of negotiations among the parties." (Ibid.) Respondent argues that the settlement was a contract, and that a contracting party is bound by the apparent intention he or she outwardly manifests to the other party. Hagrish v. Olson, 254 N.J. Super. 133 (App. Div. 1992). Further, respondent contends that it is immaterial whether a party has a secret intention that he does not manifest outwardly. Looman Realty Corp. v. Broad St. Nat'l Bank of Trenton, 74 N.J. Super. 71, 82 (App. Div. 1962).

With regard to jurisdiction and indemnification, Bower and Wills O'Neill & Mellk v. Board of Education of East Orange, 149 N.J. 416 (1997), involved a kindergarten teacher charged with abusing students during the school day. After dismissal of a first indictment, and prior to dismissal of a second indictment, Bower filed a petition with the Commissioner of Education seeking indemnification under N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1. While Bower was appealing the Commissioner's dismissal of his appeal, a second indictment was dismissed, and Bower's attorneys filed suit on behalf of Bower and themselves in the Law Division, seeking attorney fees and reimbursement for disbursements in both actions. A judge awarded a portion of the sought fees. Bower, supra, 149 N.J. at 422. In a side comment, the Supreme Court noted, "(Although the question is not raised, the Law Division action should have been dismissed because the Commissioner of Education has primary jurisdiction to hear and determine all controversies arising under the school laws)." Id. at 420.

The policy reason for deferring to the primary jurisdiction of an administrative agency is to enable the decision to be made by "the forum or body which, on a comparative scale, is in the best position by virtue of its statutory status, administrative competence and regulatory expertise to adjudicate the matter." Boss v. Rockland Elec. Co., 95 N.J. 33, 40 (1983) (quoting Hinfey v. Matawan Reg'l Bd. of Educ., 77 N.J. 514, 531-32 (1978)). Thus, the doctrine of primary jurisdiction will apply where "the case is properly before the court, but agency expertise is required to resolve the questions presented." Boldt v. Correspondence Mgmt., Inc., 320 N.J. Super. 74, 83 (App. Div. 1999).

Had the civil suit against Logan Alexander and the Board been resolved by a verdict, there is little question that a subsequent action for indemnification would properly have been brought before the Commissioner, who has expertise in enforcing the extensive statutory scheme governing education in this state, including claims under N.J.S.A. 18A:6 and 6.1.

The problem here is that respondents contend that they believed the silence in the discussions over the settlement meant that Alexander and the Board were discussing an amount of money to dispose of the entire dispute, and that until the petitioner indicated an intent to file with the Commissioner, they believed the affair to be ended. (See Respondent's Brief.) Petitioner essentially argues that under various Superior Court rules and practices, this could not have been a reasonable belief, and, therefore, the settlement never involved the indemnification claim. Further, petitioner contends that the claim for indemnification before the Commissioner did not ripen sufficiently to allow filing until the settlement disposed of criminal and civil liability in the matter.

It is apparent that even the petitioners are relying not on the Commissioner's expertise but on the specialized rules and practices of the Superior Court for resolving claims, in seeking to defeat the respondent's assertion that all aspects of the matter ended with the Superior Court's order approving settlement. The statute granting the Commissioner plenary authority also makes clear that claims against boards that "do not arise under the school laws but rather from statutory or common law" are "typically and appropriately adjudicated in the courts." Archway Programs, Inc. v. Pemberton Twp. Bd. of Educ., 352 N.J. Super. 420, 425 (App. Div. 2002).

A dispute between parties to a contract who simply happen to be a school board and an employee does not present a controversy over which the Commissioner has jurisdiction. Such matters do not require the educational expertise of the Commissioner and are properly brought in a court of competent jurisdiction.

[Smith v. Bd. of Educ. of Willingboro, 97 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 205, 206–07 (citation omitted).]

The Commissioner will not rule on the enforceability of a contract where "the interpretation of the contract is the primary issue at hand and not merely implicated in a question of the school laws." Id. at 207.

I CONCLUDE that in the current instance, the original demand for cross-claim and indemnification was before the Superior Court as part of the civil lawsuit. The expertise to determine whether the Superior Court ended that claim in its "Order Entering Judgment and Directing Deposit of Funds" dated August 17, 2010 (Petitioners' Exhibit J) lies with the Superior Court, and the question should, therefore, be brought before the Superior Court. Should the Superior Court determine that the settlement did not encompass the indemnification claim, the question of the Board's responsibility to indemnify is then properly brought before the Commissioner.

ORDER

The petitioners' claim is DISMISSED WITHOUT PREJUDICE.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." The record of this matter, the proposed Settlement and Release (Agreement) and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1, have been reviewed.

Upon review, the Commissioner approves the settlement terms and adopts the Initial Decision as the final decision in this case, with the following observation. Sections 4 and 5 appear to call for the execution of actions prior to consideration of the settlement by the Commissioner. The parties are reminded that a settlement of litigation before the Commissioner is not binding until the Commissioner approves same, a principle which the parties acknowledge in Section 15 of the Agreement.

Thus, the Commissioner adopts the Initial Decision as the final decision in this case providing that the parties have either successfully implemented the settlement terms, or have agreed upon a mutually satisfactory alternate date for the effectuation of same. Assuming the foregoing, the matter is hereby dismissed subject to compliance with the terms of the settlement.

BEFORE MARGARET M. MONACO, ALJ:

On or about February 11, 2011, petitioners G.S. and L.G. on behalf of K.N. and C.S. filed a Petition with the Commissioner of Education challenging the residency determination by respondent Board of Education of the Borough of South Plainfield (the Board). The Department of Education transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), where it was filed on April 1, 2011, for determination as a contested case. Following the adjournment of the hearing scheduled for August 19, 2011, at petitioners' request, the hearing was rescheduled for October 6, 2011. The parties appeared at the OAL on October 6, 2011, and the hearing was adjourned at the parties' joint request to provide more time toward an amicable resolution between the parties. Subsequently, under letter dated November 17, 2011, counsel for the Board submitted the attached Settlement Agreement and Release, along with the attached Resolution of the Board approving the settlement agreement.

Having reviewed the record and the terms of the settlement I FIND:

Re: G.S. and L.G. o/b/o K.N. and C.S. v. South Plainfield Board of Education
OAL Dkt. No. EDU 3863-11

Dear Judge Monaco:

This firm represents the Respondent, South Plainfield Board of Education, in the above-referenced matter. Previously, the parties indicated to Your Honor that a settlement agreement was reached in this matter, which included a total payment by Petitioners to the Board in the amount of $5,000.00, representing back tuition, as well as the dismissal of the case against the Board and any additional counterclaim by the Board. At its November 9, 2011 meeting, the Board approved the settlement agreement by a vote of 6-0.

Accordingly, please find enclosed an original and one (1) copy of the executed Settlement Agreement, as well as the Board's resolution to accept same.

Thank you for your attention to this matter. Should Your Honor have any questions or require additional documentation, please do not hesitate to contact me.

SETTLEMENT AND RELEASE

This Stipulation of Settlement and Release ("Agreement") is made by and between Petitioners, Gianne Statiroudis and Larry Guarino, and the Respondent, South Plainfield Board of Education ("Board").

RECITALS

WHEREAS, in or about March of 2011, Respondent South Plainfield Board of Education found, based on the results of a residency investigation, that minor students K.N. and C.S. were not domiciled in the South Plainfield School District ("District") and thus not entitled to a free, public education in the District and passed a resolution ordering the removal of the students from the District; and

WHEREAS, Petitioner thereafter commenced an administrative action to challenge the Board's residency determination with regard to K.N. and C.S.; and

WHEREAS, this administrative action is captioned G.S. and L.G. o/b/o K.N. and C.S. v. South Plainfield Board of Education, and is presently pending before the Commissioner of Education in the Office of Administrative Law and docketed as OAL Dkt. No. EDU 3896-11, Agency Dkt. No. 38-2/11 ("the Litigation"), the allegations of which are detailed more fully in the Petition of Appeal served and filed in the Litigation; and

WHEREAS, in order to avoid the expense, inconvenience, distractions and inherent uncertainties associated with continuation of this dispute, and the fees and expenses that inevitably would result therefrom, the Parties, by this Agreement, herein agree to adopt a full and final settlement of any and all claims, lawsuits, complaints, and/or disputes between Petitioners and Respondent in connection with any and all damages and losses arising from the Litigation; and

WHEREAS, by this Agreement, Petitioner will voluntarily dismiss the Litigation with prejudice, without costs to any party as against the other;

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of good and valuable consideration, the sufficiency and adequacy of which is acknowledged, the parties to this Agreement agree as follows:

1. The Parties mutually agree that, since April 26, 2011, K.N. and C.S. are domiciled in South Plainfield and thus have been, and currently remain, entitled to an education in the South Plainfield School District since that date in accordance with the provisions set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, et seq., provided that Petitioners and/or K.N. and C.S. continue to be domiciled in the District.
2. The Parties mutually agree that for a period of time prior to April 26, 2011, Petitioners, along with K.N. and C.S., did not reside in the South Plainfield School District.
3. Petitioners shall pay the Board the sum of Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000.00), representing back tuition due and owing for the period of K.N. and C.S.'s ineligible attendance in the District during the 2010-2011 school year and which shall constitute a full and final settlement of the claim for back tuition asserted against Petitioners by Respondent Board of Education in the Litigation.

4. The amount of $5,000.00 is to be paid as follows: Within fifteen (15) days following the adoption by the Board of Education of a resolution accepting this Agreement, but in no case prior to the receipt of a fully executed copy of this Agreement, Petitioners shall make an initial lump sum payment in the amount of Three Thousand Dollars ($3,000.00), in the form of a check made payable to the "South Plainfield Board of Education," hand-delivered or mailed to the office of Mark Resnick, Interim School Business Administrator/Board Secretary, Roosevelt Administration Building, 125 Jackson Avenue, South Plainfield, New Jersey 07080. The remaining amount of Two Thousand Dollars ($2,000.00) shall be paid in equal monthly installments of Twenty-Five Dollars ($25.00) each, until the full amount of $2,000.00 has been satisfied.
5. Each payment of $25.00 is due on the first (1st) day of each Month at the office of the School Business Administrator at the above address, beginning in the month following that in which the payment of the initial $3,000.00 sum was made. Payments received by the School Business Administrator after the 5th of the month shall incur a late fee of $5.00. Any payment and late fee not received by the 15th of the month shall constitute a default by Petitioners and a breach of this Agreement. Petitioners will receive receipts for each payment from the School Business Administrator.
6. Petitioners, in consideration of this Stipulation of Settlement and Release, and in full, final, and complete settlement of the matter, hereby agree to a withdrawal and/or dismissal, with prejudice, of their Petition of Appeal in this matter.

7. Petitioners further understand and agree that, if they fail to make a payment in accordance with the agreed-upon payment plan, the entire remaining unpaid amount shall immediately become due and owing, payable in a single lump sum.
8. Petitioners further agree to indemnify Respondent for any and all costs, including court costs and attorneys fees, associated with any action instituted by Respondent to enforce the terms of this Agreement should Petitioners breach the Agreement and/or fail to adhere to the agreed-upon payment plan.
9. The terms of this Agreement shall in no way constitute acceptance or assent by the Board that K.N. and C.S. nor any other child of Petitioners are automatically entitled to a free public education in the District at any point in the future, and the Parties understand and agree that Respondent reserves the right to investigate Petitioners' residency status in the District at any time, in order to determine whether or not Petitioners and/or his, her or their children remain domiciled in the District.
10. This Agreement is subject to approval by the South Plainfield Board of Education. If approved, the Board President is fully authorized to execute this Agreement on behalf of the Board.
11. In exchange for the above consideration, Respondent South Plainfield Board of Education agrees to release Petitioners from any and all claims, cross-claims, counterclaims, demands, liabilities, damages, indebtedness, costs, attorneys' fees, actions or obligations of any nature, which solely arise out of or are related in any way to this Litigation, through the date of this Agreement.
12. This Agreement shall not constitute an admission of wrongdoing by any party and no party shall be considered to be a prevailing party for any purpose.

13. This Agreement is to be construed in accordance with the laws of the State of New Jersey.
14. Petitioners hereby represent that he/she/they is/are freely entering into this Agreement, that he/she/they is/are acting with the advice of counsel of his/her/their choosing, and the he/she/they has/have read and fully understand the contents and effects of this Agreement.
15. This Settlement may be subject to the approval of the Office of Administrative Law and the Commissioner of Education. In the event that such approval is necessary, the terms of this Agreement shall not be binding until said approvals are received.
16. This Agreement shall be binding upon all parties hereto, and shall inure to the benefit of each of them, as well as their respective estates, heirs, legal representatives, successors, predecessors, parent companies, subsidiaries, affiliates, owners, directors, officers, shareholders, members, employees, agents and assigns.
17. This Agreement constitutes the entire understanding and agreement by the parties with respect to the subject matter of this Agreement, and there are no agreements, undertakings, restrictions, representations or warranties as between the parties other than those set forth herein. This Agreement supersedes all previous arrangements or understandings, whether written or oral, and contains the entire agreement of the parties with respect to its subject matter. The record of this matter and advisement of petitioner's failure to appear, transmitted to the Commissioner by the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.4 – along with copies of the notification sent to petitioner by the OAL on December 1, 2011, providing petitioner thirteen days to submit an explanation for such nonappearance – have been reviewed. There being no explanation filed by petitioner, the petition of appeal is hereby dismissed with prejudice due to petitioner's failure to appear at hearing or provide an explanation for her nonappearance.

Notwithstanding the dismissal of the petition, the Commissioner notes that the Board's Answer in this residency matter contained a claim for tuition which was left unresolved by the Administrative Law Judge. In that the record before the Commissioner contains no affidavit of a responsible Board official attesting to the amount of tuition claimed by the Board as a consequence of the ineligible attendance of petitioner's child in its schools, this matter must be remanded to the OAL for supplementation of the record in this regard and an appropriate recommended order regarding the payment of tuition.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING :

OF CYNTHIA PERELLA, SCHOOL DISTRICT : COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

OF THE CITY OF BRIDGETON, : DECISION

CUMBERLAND COUNTY. :

The petitioning Board certified charges of conduct unbecoming against respondent – a tenured secretary employed by the district since 2001 – for allegedly stealing cash and checks in the amount of $250 from a classroom in December 2010, and for breaking and entering a secured office for improper purposes in October 2010. Respondent denied the charges. The Board sought respondent's removal from her tenured position.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: witnesses for the petitioning Board presented credible and believable testimony, while respondent's testimony was incredible and unbelievable; based on the security videotape entered into evidence, the missing funds were taken either by the respondent or by the ninth grade special education teacher who had been collecting the money in question for a school fundraising activity, as they were the only two persons in the classroom during the period in which the money went missing; respondent's excuse for entering the locked classroom sounded like an effort to create an alibi; the theory of respondent's counsel that a student had somehow gained access to the money – which was in a locked closet, inside a locked classroom – is unlikely; and without question, theft constitutes unbecoming conduct. The ALJ concluded that, based on the credible evidence and testimony presented at hearing – which included testimony regarding an October 2010 incident, which indicated that respondent had been searching in a file cabinet in a place where she did not belong – respondent is guilty of petty theft. Accordingly, the ALJ ordered that respondent be dismissed from her tenured employment.

Upon independent review and consideration, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ's findings and determination, noting that the overall record supports the Board's charges. Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL was adopted as the final decision in this matter, and the respondent was dismissed from her tenured position.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING :
OF CYNTHIA PERELLA, SCHOOL DISTRICT : COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
OF THE CITY OF BRIDGETON, : DECISION
CUMBERLAND COUNTY. :

In her exceptions, the respondent argues that the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) erroneously sustained the Board's charge of unbecoming conduct and that the evidence is insufficient to warrant termination of respondent's employment and forfeiture of her tenure rights. Respondent maintains her innocence and contends that the Board did not do enough to investigate the theft. She asserts that no effort was made to search her pocketbook, home, or person, nor was any inquiry made to determine if the checks were cashed or if stop payments were effected. Respondent opines that without such an investigation there is inadequate proof that a theft actually took place or that she is responsible.

In support of this, she posits that the Board's main witness, Ms. Vargas, could have made a mistake and taken the envelope with the money in it, placing it in her pocketbook since she was going to the bank to make a deposit. At that point, someone other than the respondent could have taken the money during the 23-minute period the purse was in Ms.

Vargas' possession. Respondent further argues that anyone entrusted with a key can enter any locked room twice and a locked closet at any time since there is no policy or protocol prohibiting such a practice.

Upon full review and consideration, the Commissioner finds and concludes that in the absence of any basis in the record on which to dispute the fact-finding and credibility determinations of the ALJ pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(c), In re Morrison, 216 N.J. Super. 143, 158 (App. Div. 1987), the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that the Board has established that respondent is guilty of unbecoming conduct for the petty theft of $250.00. The Commissioner finds respondent's exceptions unpersuasive, largely reflecting arguments and objections based on conjecture and surmise, and he further concludes that the overall record supports the Board's charges.² The Commissioner also finds no basis in the record to reject either the ALJ's recitations of testimony or his determinations of witness credibility. The ALJ found that the respondent was not credible, and that he did not believe her testimony. In contrast, the ALJ found that Ms. Vargas was credible and "answered all questions without equivocation" and "seemed to take no pleasure in offering her testimony against the respondent." The ALJ had the opportunity to assess the credibility of the witnesses who appeared before him and made findings of fact based upon their testimony. In this regard, the clear and unequivocal standard governing the Commissioner's review is: sufficient, competent, and credible evidence in the record.

The agency head may not reject or modify any findings of fact as to issues of credibility of lay witness testimony unless it is first determined from a review of the record that the findings are arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable or are not supported by

² Another incident occurred on October 13, 2010 in which a set of keys to filing cabinets containing confidential school information went missing under suspicious circumstances. Respondent reported that she had found the keys in an area previously searched by other staff. Testimony revealed that the respondent had been observed looking in the filing cabinets behind the owner's desk. The ALJ could not make a finding that respondent committed another theft, but he did find that "she was in a place where she did not belong."

[N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(c)].

Moreover, the Commissioner fully concurs with the ALJ's assessment of respondent's conduct in light of applicable law and prior decisional precedent, and agrees that the conduct proven in this proceeding amply warrants respondent's dismissal and forfeiture of her tenure rights.

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed therein, the Initial Decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter. Respondent is hereby dismissed from her tenured position with the Bridgeton Board of Education.

IT IS SO ORDERED.³

INITIAL DECISION

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 4694-11

AGENCY DKT. NO. 75-4/11

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE
HEARING OF CYNTHIA PERELLA, BRIDGETON BOARD OF EDUCATION.

A. Paul Kienzle, Jr., Esq., for petitioner

Ned P. Rogovoy, Esq., for respondent

Decided: November 30, 2011

BEFORE BRUCE M. GORMAN, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Respondent appealed the action of the Board of Education terminating her employment for unbecoming conduct.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The petitioner requested a fair hearing and the matter was filed at the OAL on November 23, 2010, to be heard as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to 15 and 14F-1 to 13. The matter was heard on September 29, 2011, October 14, 2011, and October 27, 2011 and the record closed.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

This case concerns a charge of unbecoming conduct. Specifically, respondent is accused of two offenses: 1) theft of approximately $250 in cash and checks from a classroom at Bridgeton High School on December 3, 2010; and 2) breaking and entering a secured office for improper purposes on October 13, 2010.

1. December 3, 2010

The alleged theft occurred in the classroom of Tracy Vargas. Vargas testified for the Board. She is a ninth grade special education teacher at Bridgeton High School. Her assigned classroom is room A-26 located on the second floor. She has been employed as a teacher since 2005.

In December 2010, Vargas was in charge of a fundraising activity for the Bridgeton High School ninth grade. The specific project involved the sale of various clothing items such as sweatshirts and t-shirts bearing the high school logo. The proceeds were to be used for the benefit of the Ninth Grade Success Academy.

On December 3, 2010, Vargas had no assigned teaching duties during period 4A. She determined to use that time period to work on the Success Academy fundraiser. During the prior week, she had received payments totaling $250, consisting of checks in the amount of $120 and cash in the amount of $130. Sitting at her classroom desk, Vargas recorded the funds on a spreadsheet. After recording the payments, she recounted the money and then placed it in an envelope.

When she placed the money in the envelope, Vargas looked up and saw respondent standing in the doorway watching her. Immediately to the left of the doorway was a supply closet. Vargas walked across the room with the envelope in her hand. As she did so, she told respondent she was glad to see her because she wanted to tell her that she could pay for the sweatshirt she had ordered after she was paid on December 15. Respondent had previously told Vargas that she was struggling financially, and Vargas felt sorry for her. Respondent had told her she was attempting to raise her grandchildren and was finding it extremely expensive. It was for that reason that Vargas volunteered respondent could have extra time to pay for her sweatshirt. Vargas told her, "Don't worry about paying me today. Just give me the money when you get it."

With respondent watching her, Vargas then placed the envelope on a shelf inside the closet and locked the closet door. According to Vargas, her classroom door opens outward and to the left. Consequently, respondent had a clear view of her placing the envelope containing the money inside the closet.

Respondent then departed, and Vargas followed her, locking her classroom door behind her. Vargas went to the school accountant's office to obtain a deposit slip so that she could deposit the money in the bank. On her way down to the accountant's office, Vargas again encountered respondent. Respondent asked if she was going to lunch, and Vargas responded that she was going to run some errands.

Vargas obtained the deposit ticket, ran her errands, and returned to her classroom. On her way back to the classroom, she encountered a teacher named Dan Martinez, who provided her with a $40 check for a purchase. Vargas returned to the classroom intending to add the Martinez check to the money already in the envelope and then deposit the money in the bank. She found the classroom door locked

Upon returning to the classroom, she found a note from respondent on her desk. The note stated:

Tracy,

I just wanted to say thank you for being there for me and being a good friend.

Thanks.

Respondent thought finding the note on her desk was odd because respondent had to unlock the door to leave it there. Vargas noted that respondent could have simply taped the note to her door. After reading the note, she went directly to her closet to retrieve the money, intending to record the funds on the deposit ticket and take them to the bank. She found the closet locked; but when she unlocked and opened the closet, the envelope containing the money was gone.

Vargas was positive she had placed the envelope in the closet, but just to be certain, she searched the entire room. When she could not find the money, she went to see Charles Leyman, the head of security for the high school, and advised Leyman that the money was missing. Leyman and Vargas immediately proceeded to Vargas's classroom, where Leyman used his grand master key to unlock the closet. He and Vargas searched the closet but failed to find the money. Vargas then requested that Leyman check the school's video system to see who had entered her classroom. Robert L. Stevens, Director of Safety and Security for the school, testified the surveillance system is comprised of a rapid eye camera system, consisting of four decks with sixteen cameras per deck. The system monitors the interior hallways and common areas, including but not limited to the cafeteria, parking lots and auditorium.

Leyman immediately contacted Principal Williams. Williams in turn contacted the high school technologist, Armando Gomez, and requested that he review the video system to see who had entered Vargas's classroom. Gomez printed pictures from the video system depicting respondent entering Vargas's classroom during the relevant time period.

After learning respondent was the only person who entered her classroom, Vargas started back to Room A-26, only to again encounter respondent in the hallway. At that time, she asked respondent if she had seen an envelope on her desk. By this time, Vargas knew that it was respondent who had entered her classroom. She testified that she asked respondent this question because she was hoping that respondent would turn over the envelope. According to Vargas, she had a pleasant relationship with respondent and did not want to think that she was the one who had taken the money.

Respondent responded by saying, "Don't tell anybody. We'll look for it together."

Vargas then wrote a statement delineating the events of December 3, 2010 (P-4).

Vargas was vigorously cross-examined. She answered all questions without equivocation. If she did not know the answer, she said she did not know the answer. In her written statement, she wrote that she had placed the envelope on the top shelf of the closet. During her testimony, she admitted that statement was in error. She stated she had placed it on the second shelf. Vargas explained that she could not reach the top shelf without standing on a chair. Vargas made no effort to reconcile the two statements, but admitted her mistake. Throughout her testimony, she was specific about what had happened and made no effort to embellish her recollection. At the same time, she evidenced the demeanor of someone who was reluctantly performing a distasteful task. She appeared to take no pleasure in offering her testimony against respondent. To the contrary, she appeared to regret the necessity of her testimony. I found Vargas to be credible and believable.

Stevens reduced the camera images of the time period in question to a DVD (P-10). This tribunal reviewed the contents of the DVD. The video shows two views of the hallway, reflected by two cameras numbered fifteen and sixteen. The view from camera fifteen shows classroom A-26 on the left side; the view from camera sixteen shows classroom A-26 on the right side. The better view is had through camera sixteen.

The video begins at 11:04 a.m. At 11:06, respondent walks down the hallway, opens the classroom door to room A-26 and stands in the doorway. She stands there for approximately one minute and then leaves. At 11:07, Vargas leaves the classroom, locking the door. At 11:08:45, respondent can be seen opening the door with a key and entering the classroom. At 11:09:37, she leaves the classroom. At 11:12:38, respondent re-enters the classroom. At 11:13:21, respondent leaves the classroom again. Respondent's counsel stipulated that no one else entered the classroom. At 11:30:18, Vargas returns to the classroom.

Harry Victor Gilson testified. Gilson was Superintendent of the Bridgeton School District. He retired in August 2010, but returned as Interim Superintendent on December 1, 2010. Gilson was serving as Superintendent at the time the money was stolen from Vargas' classroom.

On the afternoon of December 3, 2010, Gilson received a telephone call from Lynn Williams, the high school principal, advising him of the theft in Vargas' classroom. Gilson proceeded to the high school where he met with respondent and her union representative, David Price. He found respondent in tears.

Gilson's goal was to determine what had happened. To that end, he suggested that if the money was repaid and respondent were to resign, it might be possible to avoid police involvement. Gilson's best recollection was that either Price or respondent asked, "If the money was repaid, could this go away?"

On cross-examination, Gilson agreed that, regardless of what may have been said concerning his proposal, respondent consistently stated that she had not taken the money.

Lynn Williams testified for the Board. Williams is principal at Bridgeton High School and served in that capacity on December 3, 2010.

On that date, Vargas advised her that money was missing from her classroom. Williams and Leyman then reviewed the video of the hallway outside classroom A-26. During the time period Vargas was absent from the room, the video showed respondent entering the classroom twice. No other person entered the classroom. After reviewing the video, Williams contacted Gilson and Gilson instructed her how to proceed.

Williams then met with respondent. Throughout the interview, respondent was upset and crying. She insisted she had not taken the money. She claims she entered A-26 the first time looking for Vargas and came back the second time to leave the note (R-1) for Vargas.

Respondent and her union representative Price then went into another office to confer while Williams waited with Stevens and Leyman. A short time later, Price returned and said that respondent would repay the money if such action would resolve the matter.

On cross-examination, Williams agreed that respondent herself never offered to repay the money. That offer came from Price when respondent was not in the room. Respondent at all times insisted she had not taken the money.

Williams delineated respondent's position in the school hierarchy. Respondent served as the school's business secretary. Her functions including typing requisitions, collecting book fine money, and controlling petty cash. Respondent was also the "keeper of the keys." She dispensed and collected the individual classroom keys to the teachers at the beginning and end of each school year. Respondent herself had a master key that opened every door in the school. Williams admitted that approximately thirty master keys existed.

David L. Price testified for the respondent. Price is a retired language arts teacher who worked twenty-four years in the Bridgeton school district. During most of that time, he was an active member in the Bridgeton Education Association and served as an employee representative.

On December 3, 2010, Price was completing his duties when he was approached by Roseann Amaranto, Association Vice-President. Amaranto asked him to represent respondent. She advised him that she did not feel she had sufficient experience to deal with the situation then confronting respondent.

Price proceeded to the administrative area where he met with Williams and respondent. Price listened to Williams' description of what had transpired, and then asked for time to speak to respondent alone. Price and respondent went to a separate office, where she advised him she had not taken the money and did not know what the matter was all about. Price went back to Williams and reported that respondent asserted she was innocent. He was told to wait.

While Price and respondent were waiting, Gilson appeared. At that time, Gilson spoke directly to respondent. He was extremely kind to her. He stated that people make mistakes. Gilson did not want to hurt anyone, but stated that the matter had to be clarified.

Gilson then advised respondent that she could make restitution and resign. At this juncture, Gilson noted that the amount of missing money made the offense indictable.

Respondent answered the offer by stating that, "I can't say I did something I didn't do."

Price and respondent then met further with Williams. Williams advised that charges would be filed. Leyman told respondent she would be arrested by the Bridgeton Police Department. Ultimately an officer appeared and respondent was taken away in a police car.

Price testified that respondent never stated she would repay the money. Nor did she state, "If I repaid the money would that make it go away," or words to that effect.

On cross-examination, Price admitted that he is a strong advocate for the union and its employees.

Gilson testified in rebuttal. Gilson testified that his recollection differed from that of Price. According to Gilson, either Price, respondent, or both of them, posed the question, if respondent repaid the money, would the case go away?

2. October 13, 2010

Rosemarie Cwik testified. Cwik serves as secretary to high school principal Williams. She has worked for Williams since 1993 and followed her to the principal's office when Williams was promoted in 2005.

Cwik has a private office adjacent to that of the principal. Her office is accessed through a doorway that enters out into an internal hallway running through the administrative portion of the high school (P-13). Inside her office were a series of filing cabinets containing confidential school information, including Williams' personal information and various state and national reports. These file cabinets were accessed by a series of keys which Cwik maintains on one key ring. Each file cabinet key was color coded with a rubber band. During the day, Cwik kept the keys in a coffee cup on her desk covered with a tissue. At night she hid them in a pre-arranged location.

On October 13, 2010, Cwik arrived at work intending to make an appearance at the funeral of a deceased high school student. As she was preparing to leave for the wake, respondent appeared in her office. Cwik advised respondent that she was going to the wake. As she talked with respondent, she locked the file cabinets. Respondent offered to watch her phone while she was out, but Cwik declined. She then placed the file cabinet keys in the coffee cup and respondent left her office. Cwik followed after her, locking the door as she left.

Cwik proceeded to Freitag's Funeral Home, some five minutes from the school, signed the condolence book and immediately returned to the school. She took her pocketbook with her. Upon returning, she found the keys missing from the coffee cup, and the file cabinet drawer where she normally kept her pocketbook was open. Cwik promptly called Leyman. At that moment, Leyman was in the copy room next to the main office. Leyman testified that he could see everything in the copy room, and the keys were not in the copy room.

While she waited for Leyman to arrive, Cwik scoured her office looking for the keys. While she was in the process of searching, the District Performing Arts Supervisor, Timothy Cabbage, passed her office. Cabbage saw her searching frantically and asked if anything was wrong. When she told him that her keys were missing, Cabbage advised that when he had passed her office earlier, he saw her door open. Respondent was inside Cwik's office kneeling down looking in the file cabinet drawer where Cwik normally kept her pocketbook.

Leyman then arrived and the two searched Cwik's entire office but did not find the keys. When they could not find the keys, respondent suddenly appeared in the doorway and advised Cwik that she had found her keys. She led Cwik to the copy room and pointed to the keys, which were lying on the floor.

Leyman testified that when he received the call from Cwik that her keys were missing, he was in the copy room, clearly observed the copy room, and the keys were not on the floor.

Timothy Cabbage testified. He confirmed that on the morning of October 13, 2010, he walked down the internal hallway from the main office. As he passed Cwik's office, he observed the respondent inside Cwik's office, looking inside the file cabinet drawer behind Cwik's desk. When he passed down the same hallway in the opposite direction sometime later, he observed Cwik searching her office. At that time, he advised her what he had seen.

Respondent's Testimony

Respondent testified in her own defense. She has served as a secretary for the Bridgeton Board of Education since April 2001. Her immediate supervisor has always been Assistance Principal Steve Lynch.

Respondent agreed that she is responsible for the keys to the building and that she possesses a master key. She requires the master key because she is the business secretary and receives packages which she then must deliver to the various teachers in their classrooms.

On December 3, 2010, respondent went to Vargas' classroom A-26. Respondent could not remember why she went to the classroom. What she did remember was that she and Vargas discussed the sweatshirts that she had ordered. Vargas advised her that she could pay later.

Respondent stated that in the past, she and Vargas had occasionally discussed their personal lives. Vargas was attempting to become pregnant. Respondent told Vargas that she had custody of her three grandsons and was finding them expensive to raise.

Respondent was grateful that Vargas was not requiring her to pay for the sweatshirts immediately. After leaving the classroom, she immediately returned to thank Vargas. When she arrived she found the door locked and Vargas not there. Respondent then decided to leave a note. She returned to her work area, found a tablet and a pen, and went back to the classroom. She again entered the classroom, wrote the note and left it for Vargas. Respondent identified the note (R-1).

Sometime between 12:30 p.m. and 1:30 p.m., respondent was working at the front desk when she was approached by Amaranto and told to proceed to Williams' office. While at Williams' office, she was interrogated. Respondent insisted she never took the money and never offered to pay back the money.

On cross-examination, respondent insisted that the only reason that she returned to the classroom was to thank Vargas for not requiring her to pay for the sweatshirts. She admitted that Vargas is an honest and kind person. She again reiterated that she never offered to repay the money if the case would go away.

Respondent offered no testimony about the October 13, 2010, incident.

I observed respondent carefully as she testified. Her recollection of the Vargas incident of December 3, 2010, was minimal. She did not know why she went to Vargas' classroom and could offer no explanation as to why she had to return twice to thank Vargas for what appears to have been an innocuous kindness. She failed to address a number of points in the prior testimony, most notably: (1) that she met Vargas in the hallway as Vargas was leaving the classroom; (2) that she met Vargas later in the early afternoon, was advised that the money was missing, and told Vargas, "Don't tell anyone. We'll look for it together"; (3) she offered no explanation for why she was in Cwik's office looking in a file drawer behind the desk on October 13, 2010.

I did not believe respondent's testimony.

LEGAL DISCUSSION

The Board of Education seeks to terminate respondent's employment based upon a charge of unbecoming conduct. The definition of unbecoming conduct was considered in In the Matter of Craig Venson, City of Plainfield, CSV 7545-07, Initial Decision (June 9, 2009), aff'd, Civil Service Commission (August 6, 2009). In that case, the judge wrote:

"Unbecoming conduct" is broadly defined as any conduct that adversely affects the morale or efficiency of the governmental unit or that has a tendency to destroy public respect and confidence in the delivery of governmental services. In re Appeal of Emmons, 63 N.J. Super. 136, 140 (App. Div. 1960). Unbecoming conduct may include behavior that is not in accord with propriety, modesty, good taste or good manners, or behavior that is otherwise unsuitable, indecorous or improper under the circumstances. Conduct unbecoming a public employee may be less serious than a violation of the law, but it is inappropriate on the part of the public employee. Ferrogine v. State Dep't of Human Servs., Trenton Psychiatric Hosp., CSV 2441-98, Initial Decision (April 17, 1998), modified, MSB (July 6, 1998)

<<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html>>. It is a fact-sensitive determination rather than one based on a legal formula.

During the course of the hearing, respondent's counsel attempted to raise the possibility that a student had hidden in the classroom or climbed through the classroom window and gained access to the money in the locked closet. Given Vargas' presence in the classroom prior to 11:07 a.m., I FIND it unlikely that a student could have hidden without her seeing him/her. The possibility that a student came in through the classroom window seems unlikely, given that the classroom was located on the second floor of the high school building.

In the end, the case comes down to two possibilities: either Vargas took the money herself and then attempted to cover her tracks by claiming a robbery had occurred, or respondent took the money. Based upon the contents of the video (P-10), Vargas and respondent were the only two persons in the classroom during the period in question. One or the other of them must have taken the money.

After hearing the testimony, I am satisfied that it was respondent who took the money. Vargas' testimony was credible and believable. She offered a detailed account of what transpired. On the other hand, respondent's story was incredible and unbelievable. Respondent entered classroom A-26 during Vargas' absence. Her explanation for her presence in the classroom was inadequate. Her excuse that she wanted to leave a note to thank Vargas for her kindness smacks of an effort to create an alibi. I am satisfied that respondent took the money.

Taking the money was an act of petty theft. Without question, theft constitutes unbecoming conduct. Accordingly, respondent must be removed from her tenured position with the school district.

I am also satisfied that respondent entered Cwik's office on October 13, 2010, for no proper purpose. She offered no reason for her presence at that location. While I cannot find that her purpose was to steal, given her subsequent conduct on December 3, another act of petty theft may well have been her intent. Although I cannot make that finding, I can FIND that she was in a place where she did not belong.

In summation, respondent committed an act of theft. In so doing, she engaged in unbecoming conduct and must forfeit her right to employment. The charges must be SUSTAINED.

ORDER

I ORDER that the charge of unbecoming conduct be SUSTAINED.

I ORDER that respondent's employment with the Bridgeton Board of Education be terminated and that she forfeit her tenure rights thereto.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

The record of this matter, the proposed Consent Order-Settlement and the Initial Decision issued by the Office of Administrative Law pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1, have been reviewed.

Upon such review, the Commissioner rejects the provisions of the Consent Order, with the following observations. Under Paragraphs 2 through 6 of the parties' Order, reference is made to actions that may have already taken place, thus preceding consideration of the settlement by the Commissioner of Education. The parties are reminded that a settlement of litigation before the Commissioner is not binding until the Commissioner approves same. Additionally, in Paragraph 7 of the Consent Order, the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) seeks to retain jurisdiction of the matter in the event that a dispute arises regarding the district of residence of the minor children. The Commissioner notes that the ALJ has no power to retain jurisdiction once the Initial Decision is rendered; authority is then within the province of the Commissioner to render the Final Decision. Finally, the Consent Order lacks the requisite signatures of the petitioners and is, therefore, rendered inadequate as an agreement between the parties.

Accordingly, the Commissioner rejects the Initial Decision as the final decision in this case and remands the matter for the purpose of curing these defects.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

BEFORE SANDRA ANN ROBINSON, ALJ:

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on August 4, 2011, for resolution as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F1 to -13.

Hearings were scheduled for November 1 and 2, 2011. During the pendency of the case at the OAL, the parties reached a tentative settlement. A CONSENT ORDER was prepared and executed indicating the terms of the agreement, which are incorporated herein by reference.

Having reviewed the contents of the attached CONSENT ORDER and the certified true and exact copy of the Board Resolution, which was approved by a majority vote of the members of the Fort Lee Board of Education on November 7, 2011, I FIND:

7. The Honorable Sandra A. Robinson, shall retain jurisdiction of this matter in the event a dispute arises with respect to Z.C.'s and N.C.'s district of residency.
8. This Consent Order shall be subject to the Fort Lee Board of Education duly ratifying the terms of this Order at the next meeting of the Fort Lee Board of Education.
9. The parties shall be responsible for the payment of their own counsel fees and costs associated with the prosecution and defense of this matter. Neither Petitioners nor Respondent shall seek reimbursement and/or contribution from the other party relative to same.

H.T. on behalf of minor child T.A., :

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

V. :

DECISION

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE :
CITY OF ORANGE, ESSEX COUNTY, :

RESPONDENT. :

The controversy in this case arose after H.T., the mother of T.A., moved out of respondent's district – where she and her children had been living with her mother, C.T. – and left T.A. behind to continue residing with C.T. In April of 2011, after learning of petitioner's move, respondent notified petitioner that T.A. was ineligible to receive a free public education in Orange. On May 11, 2011 petitioner filed an appeal challenging this determination.¹

The Commissioner has reviewed the record and Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL).² Upon consideration of same, the Commissioner adopts the Initial Decision for the reasons articulated therein. Accordingly, T.A. is hereby disenrolled from respondent's school district and no back tuition is awarded – none having been demanded by way of counterclaim.

IT IS SO ORDERED.³

ACTING COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

Date of Decision: 1/17/12
Date of Mailing: 1/18/12

¹ Because it is C.T. who resides in respondent's district, it is C.T. who should have filed the petition. See N.J.A.C. 6A:3-8.1(b). In this case, however, the identity of the petitioner does not affect the outcome recommended by the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ). More specifically, the ALJ recommends that the disenrollment of T.A. from respondent's school district be upheld. Further, since no counterclaim for back tuition was filed, neither H.T. nor C.T. will be liable for same.

² No exceptions were filed.

³ This decision may be appealed to the Appellate Division of the Superior Court pursuant to P.L. 2008, c. 36. (N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9.1)

RESPONDENT.	:

Petitioner appealed the April 2011 determination of the respondent Board that her daughter, T.A., was not eligible for a free public education in the City of Orange school district. Petitioner claimed that when she moved from her mother's apartment in Orange in June 2009, T.A. remained living with her grandmother, C.T., for financial reasons. The respondent Board requested dismissal of the petition, but did not file a counterclaim for tuition.

The ALJ found that: the testimony of H.T. and her mother, C.T., was candid and credible; there is no real dispute as to the underlying facts of the matter; although C.T. is undisputedly domiciled within the Orange school district and intends to support T.A. for a longer time than through the school term, T.A. does not meet all of the requirements for enrollment as an affidavit student pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b) because there is no documented family or economic hardship that makes it necessary for her to attend school in Orange as opposed to East Orange, where petitioner is now domiciled. The ALJ concluded that H.T. and C.T. do not satisfy all of the requirements for T.A. to receive a free public education in respondent's school district, and accordingly dismissed the petition.

Upon a full and independent review, the Commissioner adopted the Initial Decision of the OAL as the final decision in this matter. In so doing, the Commissioner noted that C.T. should have filed the petition as she is the party who is domiciled in the City of Orange. In this case, however, the identity of the petitioner does not change the outcome recommended by the ALJ. Accordingly, the Commissioner ordered that T.A. be disenrolled from the respondent's school district.

This synopsis is not part of the Commissioner's decision. It has been prepared for the convenience of the reader. It has been neither reviewed nor approved by the Commissioner.

H.T. ON BEHALF OF MINOR CHILD, T.A.,

Petitioner,

v.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF ORANGE, ESSEX COUNTY,

Respondent.

H.T., pro se

Melvin C. Randall, Esq., for respondent (Love & Randall, attorneys)

Decided: November 30, 2011

BEFORE RICHARD McGILL, ALJ:

H.T. (hereinafter sometimes "petitioner") filed a petition with the Commissioner of Education challenging a residency determination by the Board of Education of the City of Orange (hereinafter "respondent") in regard to her daughter, T.A. Respondent's Answer requests dismissal of the petitioner but does not include a counterclaim for tuition reimbursement.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner filed her petition on May 11, 2011, invoking the Commissioner's authority to hear and determine controversies arising under the school laws pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9. As a result of the timely filing of the petition, T.A. has continued to attend school in respondent's district. On July 6, 2011, respondent filed its Answer.

The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on July 8, 2011, for determination as a contested case. The hearing was conducted on October 20, 2011, at the Office of Administrative Law in Newark, New Jersey.

ISSUE

The issue in this proceeding is whether T.A. meets the requirements to receive a free education in respondent's public schools pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(1), which relates to situations where the pupil is living in the home of a person who is domiciled within the school district.

FACTS

H.T. testified on her own behalf, and she called her mother, C.T., as a witness. Respondent did not call any witnesses in this proceeding. H.T. and C.T. testified candidly, and their testimony is accepted as true.

There is no real dispute as to the underlying facts in this matter, and I FIND as follows:

1. Prior to June 2009, H.T. and her children lived with her mother, C.T., in Orange, New Jersey.
2. C.T. was the tenant in the apartment with the lease in her name.

3. H.T. and C.T. registered T.A. in respondent's public schools.
4. In or about June 2009, H.T. and her two younger children moved to an apartment in East Orange, New Jersey.
5. H.T. registered her second oldest child, J.A., in the public schools of East Orange.
6. H.T.'s youngest child is pre-school age.
7. T.A., who is H.T.'s oldest child, remained with C.T. in Orange and continued to attend respondent's Heywood Avenue School.
8. T.A. continued to live with her grandmother, C.T., to the present.
9. C.T. has lived at her address for six years.
10. C.T. received extensions on her lease for 2010 and 2011.
11. T.A.'s father is fifty-five years of age and is living in a nursing home in Florida, because he is legally blind from diabetes.
12. In recent years, H.T. has attended Bloomfield College, and in June 2011, she graduated with a bachelor's degree in nursing.
13. H.T. works at Park Manor Nursing Home in Bloomfield, New Jersey.
14. H.T.'s net pay is $3,000 per month.
15. T.A. receives $179 per month in Social Security benefits as the result of her father's condition.

16. The funds go directly into an account in the names of both T.A. and H.T.
17. H.T. uses these funds for clothing for T.A. and other needs such as school supplies.
18. Another child receives the same amount in Social Security benefits.
19. The rent for H.T.'s apartment in East Orange is $1,125 per month. The utilities and cable television service amount to $200 per month.
20. Because of various debts, H.T. went through a bankruptcy proceeding which was discharged in 2010.
21. H.T. owns a home in Georgia. H.T. was allowed to keep the property, but she pays $2,000 per month on the mortgage.
22. H.T. has a tenant who pays $700 per month in rent.
23. H.T. pays $699 per month to creditors.
24. H.T. does not give any money to C.T.
25. H.T. intends to return to her home in Georgia as soon as she takes the examination to be a registered nurse and receives a license. H.T. plans to take T.A. with her.
26. H.T. believes that her income will increase significantly at that point.
27. C.T. is employed by a nursing home and works five days per week.
28. T.A. is residing with C.T. because of H.T.'s financial difficulties.

29. C.T. provides food and shelter for T.A.
30. H.T. purchases clothing and toys for T.A.
31. All three of H.T.'s children including T.A. are covered under H.T.'s health plan.
32. H.T. visits C.T. and T.A. almost every day.
33. On the weekend, T.A. goes to church with H.T.
34. Mail from the school is sent to C.T.'s address.
35. H.T. goes to the school to speak with the teachers or the principal.
36. C.T. picks up T.A. after school.
37. At the hearing, C.T. could not remember the name of T.A.'s school or her teacher.
38. C.T. received a letter from the school district, and she gave it to H.T. C.T. did not read the letter.
39. H.T. read the letter which stated that it was necessary to update T.A.'s registration with the school district.
40. H.T. could not find time to re-register T.A. and the deadline passed.
41. Someone from the school district visited C.T.'s home.

LAW AND ANALYSIS

A person over five and under twenty years of age has a right to a free public education in a school district in which he is domiciled. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a). A person who is not domiciled within a particular school district may be eligible for a free public education therein provided that he satisfies requirements related to both the person with whom he is living and his parents. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b).

With respect to the person with whom the pupil is living, the requirements are as follows: (1) the pupil is kept in the home of another person domiciled within the school district; (2) the pupil is supported by the other person gratis as if he were the other person's own child; (3) the person domiciled within the school district assumes all personal obligations for the child relative to school requirements; (4) the person domiciled within the school district intends to keep and support the child gratuitously for a longer time than merely through the school term; and (5) the person domiciled within the school district provides a copy of his lease or a sworn statement from the landlord acknowledging the tenancy. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(1). In regard to the parent, the requirements are as follows: (1) the parent is not capable of supporting or providing care for the child due to a family or economic hardship; and (2) the child is not residing with the resident of the school district solely for the purpose of receiving a free public education within the district. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(1).

With respect to the requirements that pertain to C.T., it is disputed that she is domiciled within the school district, as she provided a copy of her lease at the hearing. Additionally, it is evident that C.T. intends to support T.A. for a longer time than merely through the school term, as T.A. has lived with C.T. since H.T. moved out in or about June 2009. Likewise, C.T. is supporting T.A. gratis with respect to food and shelter, although H.T. pays for T.A.'s clothing and school supplies and provides health coverage. On the other hand, aside from the fact that C.T. picks up T.A. after school, it is evident that H.T. handles all school requirements related to T.A. It follows that C.T. does not satisfy all of the requirements related to the person who is domiciled within the school district.

With regard to the requirements that pertain to the parent, the circumstances clearly indicate that T.A. is not residing with C.T. solely for the purpose of receiving a free public education within the district. Rather, the arrangement is intended as a means for C.T. to contribute to the support of T.A.

On the other hand, H.T. has not established that she is not capable of supporting or providing care for T.A. due to a family or economic hardship. First, H.T. has net income of $3,000 per month from employment, and she receives Social Security benefits of $179 per month for T.A. and the same amount for another child. These amounts should be sufficient to support H.T.'s family without economic hardship. Second, H.T.'s economic difficulties stem from the fact that she is maintaining two homes. H.T. pays rent in the amount of $1,125 per month for an apartment in East Orange, and she makes a mortgage payment of $2,000 per month for a home in Georgia. H.T. could extricate herself from this position by giving up the apartment in East Orange or the home in Georgia. The fact that H.T. has difficulty maintaining two homes does not mean that she is not capable of supporting T.A. Finally, T.A. could simply attend school in East Orange where H.T. lives, while continuing to live with C.T. in Orange. It follows that there is no family or economic hardship that makes it necessary for T.A. to attend school in Orange as opposed to East Orange.

Based upon the above, I CONCLUDE that C.T. and H.T. do not satisfy all of the requirements for T.A. to receive a free public education in respondent's school district. Accordingly, it is ORDERED that H.T.'s petition in this matter is dismissed.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Petitioners – formerly tenured members of the respondent Board's child study team (CST) – challenged the Board's abolishment of the CST and its decision to enter into an agreement with the Sussex County Educational Services Commission (Commission) to provide CST services. Petitioners alleged that the agreement contains no maximum cost and is in violation of applicable statutes and regulations. The petitioners further alleged that these defects rendered the abolition of their positions invalid. Respondent filed a motion for summary decision, alleging that the petition was time-barred and that petitioners lack standing to bring this action.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: there are no genuine issues of material fact, and the matter is ripe for summary judgment; the facts giving rise to the petitioners' cause of action are the terms of the Board's agreement with the Commission, final notice of which was not received until July 15, 2010; the petition was therefore filed within the 90-day statutory period; however, to establish standing, a litigant must demonstrate a sufficient stake in the outcome of the proceedings; petitioners in this case have not shown that they have a sufficient stake, or would be directly affected by the outcome of this controversy; courts have consistently ruled that a RIF, if done for reasons of economy, is entirely within the authority of the board; petitioners here have not alleged that the RIF was instituted in bad faith, and without such an allegation, a RIF will not be invalidated. Accordingly, the ALJ determined to grant respondent's motion for summary judgment; and denied petitioners' appeal for lack of standing.

Upon a thorough and independent review of the record, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ and adopted the Initial Decision of the OAL as the final decision in this matter. Accordingly, the petition was dismissed.

DECISION

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Petitioners' exceptions and the Board's reply thereto – filed in accordance with the provisions of N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 – were fully considered by the Commissioner in reaching his determination here.

Petitioners' exceptions essentially replicate their arguments advanced before the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) below. In that it is determined that the ALJ fully considered and addressed these arguments in her decision, they merit no further discussion here.

Upon his review, the Commissioner initially agrees with the ALJ that the facts giving rise to petitioners' cause of action in this matter are the terms of the Board's Shared Services Agreement Contract with the Sussex County Educational Services Commission and, as such – for the reasons presented on pages 9-10 of her decision – he concludes that the instant petition of appeal was timely filed. This said, the Commissioner further concurs with the ALJ – for the reasons comprehensively articulated in her Initial Decision – that summary decision is appropriately granted to the Board as the petitioners here lack standing to bring their claims.

Accordingly, the recommended decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter and the instant petition of appeal is hereby dismissed.

Petitioners Sonja McKenna and Margaret MacMurren were tenured members of respondent Andover Regional High School District's child study team (CST). They challenge respondent's abolishment of the team and its decision to enter into an agreement with the Sussex County Educational Services Commission (SCEC or Commission), alleging that the agreement contains no maximum cost and provides for CST services in a manner that violates N.J.S.A. 18A:46-5 et seq. and N.J.A.C. 6A:14-3.1 et seq. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on August 31, 2010, for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

Respondent has moved for summary decision, alleging that the petition is time-barred and that petitioners lack standing to bring the within action.

ANALYSIS AND DISCUSSION

90-Day Rule

The New Jersey Administrative Code establishes procedural ground rules for filing petitions with the Commissioner of Education. Among them, N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(i) provides that "[t]he petitioner shall file a petition no later than the 90th day from the date of receipt of the notice of a final order, ruling or other action by the district board of education, individual party, or agency, which is the subject of the requested contested case hearing."

Although N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3 does not address what constitutes “adequate notice,” the New Jersey Supreme Court has offered guidance, stating that “[a]dequate notice must be sufficient to inform an individual of some fact that he or she has a right to know and that the communicating party has a duty to communicate.” Kaprow v. Berkeley Twp. Bd. of Educ., 131 N.J. 572, 587 (1993).³ Specifically, the 90-day⁴ limitations period for commencing an action begins to run when a petitioner learns of facts that would enable him to file a timely claim. Ibid. (“the notice requirement should effectuate concerns for individual justice by not triggering the limitations period until the tenured teachers have been alerted to the existence of facts that may equate in law with a post-[reduction in force] cause of action”); Eisenberg v. Fort Lee Bd. of Educ., EDU 9451-01, Initial Decision (September 10, 2002), rev’d, Comm’r (October 3, 2002), rev’d, State Bd. (November 5, 2003) <<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html>>; see also Meyer v. Wayne Twp. Bd. of Educ., 1986 S.L.D. 3094, 3098 (“[I]n the absence of actual knowledge, the cause of action accrues only upon notice sufficient to alert the teaching staff member who has been adversely affected”); Beshaw v. Bd. of Educ. of Oakland, 97 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 494 (Although the tenured teacher was subjected to a reduction in force (RIF) in May, the 90-day limitations period was not triggered until the teacher read a copy of the curriculum being taught by a newly employed non-tenured teacher. It was at this point that the petitioner knew or should have known that she had a claim to teach the course in question).

The State Board of Education clarified the importance of receiving notice of the final decision or “knowing of facts that enable[s] [the petitioner] to file a timely claim.” Eisenberg, supra, EDU 9451-01. In Eisenberg, the petitioner received notice on April 3, ³ It must also be sufficient to further the purpose of the 90-day limitations period, which is twofold. The rule is intended “to stimulate litigants to pursue a right of action within a reasonable time so that the opposing party may have a fair opportunity to defend, thus preventing the litigation of stale claims,” and “to penalize dilatoriness and serve as a measure of repose’ by giving security and stability to human affairs.” Kaprow, supra, 131 N.J. at 587 (citations omitted).

⁴ Although the Commissioner has the authority to relax the 90-day rule, such authority is rarely invoked. Relaxation or waiver of the rule is reserved for cases presenting compelling reasons or exceptional circumstances such that strict adherence would be inappropriate or unnecessary or may result in injustice. Specifically, the 90-day rule will be relaxed “only where there is some compelling reason for the same, such as the presence of a substantial constitutional or other issue of fundamental public interest beyond that of concern only to the parties themselves.” Polanco-Gomez v. Englewood Cliffs Bd. of Educ., EDU 2116-11, Initial Decision (May 4, 2011), 2011 N.J. Agen. Lexis 238 (citation omitted), adopted, Comm’r (June 15, 2011) <<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html>>.

2001, that the board of education decided not to renew his employment contract. In response, Eisenberg requested a statement of reasons for his non-renewal, which he received on May 1, 2001. On May 10, 2001, Eisenberg requested a public meeting with the board of education to discuss his non-renewal, and said meeting was held on July 2, 2001. Thereafter, on July 3, 2001, Eisenberg was informed that the board determined to uphold its decision not to renew his contract. Subsequently, on September 29, 2001, Eisenberg filed a petition of appeal. Id. at State Bd. Decision.

At the OAL, the board contended that the “final action” took place on April 3, 2001, and therefore, the 90-day limitations period started to run at that point. The administrative law judge (ALJ) disagreed and held that the 90-day limitations period began on July 3, 2001, when Eisenberg was informed by the board of its “final determination regarding your employment status.” Id. at Initial Decision. On appeal, the Commissioner reversed the ALJ’s determination, agreeing with the board of education that the “Superintendent’s letter of April 3, 2001, had alerted Eisenberg to the existence of facts that might equate in law with a cause of action.” Id. at Comm’r Decision. Thereafter, Eisenberg appealed said decision to the State Board of Education, which reversed the Commissioner’s decision.

In coming to its conclusion, the State Board stressed that although the April 3, 2001, letter provided petitioner with notice of the Board’s action denying him reemployment, the information that alerted the petitioner to the existence of an allegation of wrongdoing was not known to him until early July. Specifically, petitioner complained that “he had learned only days before his July 2, 2001, appearance . . . that the school’s former principal had told another teacher that he had received instructions from the Superintendent to make sure that he ‘papered’ the petitioner’s personnel file to justify the decision not to renew his employment.” Ibid. This new information alerted Eisenberg to the existence of an allegation not known to him until early July and, therefore, “[t]he petitioner could not have made the same allegations prior to his becoming aware of such information.” Ibid. (citing Nissman v. Bd. of Educ. of Long Beach Island, 272 N.J. Super. 373 (App. Div.), certif. denied, 137 N.J. 315 (1994)); see also Charapova v. Edison Twp. Bd. of Educ., EDU 6722-05, Initial Decision (April 3, 2006), rev’d, Comm’r (June 20, 2006), rev’d, State Bd. (August 3, 2007)

<<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html>>, aff'd, No. A-0259-07T2 (App. Div. July 21, 2008), certif. denied, 196 N.J. 598 (2008) (non-tenured teacher was privy to alleged discrimination prior to her notice of non-reemployment). Accordingly, the 90-day period was tolled until the petitioner became privy to facts that made him or should have made him aware that his rights were violated.

In Carteret Education Association v. Carteret Board of Education, EDU 2998-05, Initial Decision (April 19, 2006), rev'd, Comm'r (May 25, 2006) <<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html>>, aff'd, State Bd. (November 1, 2006) <<http://www.nj.gov/education/legal/sboe/2006/nov/sb28-06.pdf>>, petitioner, the Carteret Education Association (CEA), challenged the validity of a contract offered to the school business administrator by the board of education. Specifically, the petitioner contended that the contract was void ab initio because it provided for extra sick days in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:30-3.2.

Procedurally, the board of education approved the contract on November 12, 2003, and it was undisputed that petitioner's president, Robert Cowan, was present at the meeting. Based on these facts, the respondent contended that this date triggered the 90-day limitations period, making the petitioner's March 24, 2005, filing untimely. The ALJ agreed, finding that "the November 12, 2003, public board meeting attended by CEA President Robert Cowan [was] the triggering event for the 90 day period." Carteret, supra, EDU 2998-05, at Initial Decision.

On review, however, the Commissioner of Education agreed with the petitioner and reversed the ALJ's ruling. The Commissioner, citing the petitioner's argument, stressed that although Mr. Cowan attended the board meeting, the resolution only addressed the salary to be paid and the effective date of the contract. Id. at Comm'r Decision. Accordingly, "neither Mr. [Cowan] nor petitioner had any reason to believe—nor did the Board's action provide any reason to suggest—that [the] contract accorded sick leave benefits over and above those granted to all other District employees." Ibid. Rather, "given the absence of any indication to the contrary, petitioner had every reason to rely on the Board's compliance with statutory requirements surrounding all aspects of [the] employment contract." Ibid. Relying on this premise, the Commissioner held that the 90-day limitations period was triggered when the petitioner, on or about February 2005, read the contents of the contract and became privy to the sick-leave benefits accorded to the administrator.⁵ The Commissioner's decision was ultimately affirmed by the State Board of Education.

Most recently, indeed, only a few months ago, counsel for both parties to this dispute were involved in a contested matter with almost identical facts and claims. Although the case ultimately settled, the issue pertaining to the 90-day rule was adjudicated by the ALJ in favor of the petitioners. In Meltz and Liebow v. Bd. of Educ. of the Warren County Tech. Sch., EDU 12487-10, Order (June 22, 2011) <<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html>>, the petitioners, a school psychologist and a social worker, were tenured employees of the respondent, the Warren County Board of Education, as members of its CST. The relevant timeline is as follows:

- 1) On March 17, 2010, the respondent adopted a resolution abolishing the CST;
- 2) On May 12, 2010, the respondent terminated the petitioners from employment;
- 3) On May 13, 2010, the respondent informed the petitioners of the RIF and their subsequent termination;
- 4) On July 8, 2010, the New Jersey Education Association's field representative submitted a Government Records Request Form to the board;
- 5) On July 14, 2010, the board adopted a resolution approving a joint services agreement with the Warren County Special Services District (WCSSD) for CST services. The resolution noted the per diem salaries of the CST team, but left out all other details.

⁵The Commissioner emphasized that his decision only dealt with the procedural issue of timeliness and is not a reflection, either good or bad, on the merits of the case. Ibid.

- 6) On August 24, 2010, the contract between the board and the WCSSD was finalized;
- 7) On August 27, 2010, pursuant to a prior Government Records Request, the representative received a copy of said contract;
- 8) On October 29, 2010, the petitioners filed an appeal, alleging that the board's decision to abolish the CST and enter into a contract with the WCSSD was arbitrary, capricious, unreasonable and in violation of their tenure rights.

Specifically, and identical to the dispute at hand, the petitioners' arguments were premised on the fact that the contract contained no maximum costs, provided services in a manner in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:46-5.1 and N.J.A.C. 6A:14-3.1, and employed independent contractors in violation of the applicable statutes and regulations.

The respondent filed a summary decision motion contending that the petition of appeal was not filed within the 90-day period enumerated in N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(i). In support of its motion, the board argued that the March 17, 2010, resolution abolishing the CST triggered the 90-day period of limitations. In the alternative, the board contended that even if the July 14, 2010, date was used, the petitioners' October 12 filing was still late. In response, the petitioners argued that the proper triggering date was either August 24, 2010, the date the contract was finalized, or August 27, 2010, the date the contract was received by the field representative. In support of their arguments, the petitioners maintained that the facts giving rise to their cause of action were not contained in the resolutions, but rather the contract. On review, the ALJ agreed with the petitioners and denied the respondent's motion for summary decision. In coming to her conclusion, the ALJ emphasized that the petitioners' allegations stemmed from the language of the contract itself, and the petitioners could not have made these allegations until they received notice of same. The ALJ succinctly stated, contrary to the respondent's position, that "the resolution could not have alerted petitioners to the 'existence of facts that may equate in law with a post-RIF cause of action.'" Meltz, supra, EDU 12487-10, Order (June 22, 2011) (citation omitted)

<<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html>>. Accordingly, the trigger date was determined to be either August 24 or August 27, rendering the October 12 filing timely.

In the case at hand, the crux of petitioners' argument is premised on the contention that the abolition of the CST was arbitrary, capricious, and unreasonable. As a caveat best suited for the prologue, it must be emphasized that the issue at hand is procedural and not substantive. Accordingly, this tribunal's sole task is to determine at what point in time petitioners became apprised of facts that form the basis of their cause of action.

Respondent's briefs aver that the Board took action to abolish the CST and terminate Ms. McKenna on May 4, 2010. Notice of same was provided to Ms. McKenna on May 5, 2010. According to respondent, either date may be used to trigger the 90-day rule, making petitioners' August 10, 2010, filing late. Petitioners disagree. Petitioners emphasize that "the facts giving rise to the cause of action are not the initial action to abolish, but the terms of the contract (Shared Services Agreement) establishing how replacement [CST] services would be provided in the Board's school district."⁶ Procedurally, petitioners are contending that they could not have made these allegations prior to becoming aware of the provisions in the Agreement. See Nissman, supra, 272 N.J. Super. 373; Eisenberg, supra, EDU 9451-01 <<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html>>. According to petitioners, this information could not have become available prior to June 1, 2010, the date the Agreement was signed by the Board; June 7, 2010, the date the agreement was finalized; or July 15, 2010, the date petitioners' field representative was notified that third-party consultants would be used. Consequently, this tribunal must pinpoint the precise event that triggered the commencement of the 90-day limitations period.

It is undisputed that the CST was abolished on May 4, 2010, and petitioners were notified of same a day later. At these junctures, however, petitioners could not have made the allegations that form the basis of their petition, namely, the allegations that the provisions of the contract violate N.J.S.A. 18A:46-5.1 and N.J.A.C. 6A:14-3.1, provide for employment of independent contractors, and fail to establish maximum costs. Such is the case because the Agreement did not exist in any capacity until June 1, 2010, when the board adopted a resolution adopting same. Indeed, similar to Eisenberg and Carteret and Meltz, petitioners did not know that a cause of action existed at the time the resolutions were adopted. Similar to Kaprow and Meltz, the resolution could not have alerted petitioners to the "existence of facts that may equate in law with a post-RIF cause of action." Kaprow, supra, 131 N.J. 587; Meltz, supra, EDU 12487-10, Order (June 22, 2011) (citation omitted) <<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html>>. Furthermore, given the absence of any indication of foul play, petitioners had every reason to rely on the Board's compliance with the statutory requirements surrounding all aspects of the Agreement. See Carteret, supra, EDU 2998-05, Comm'r (May 25, 2006) <<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html>>. Accordingly, I FIND that May 4 and May 5 are not the triggering dates.

Notice must be received to be adequate. Further, notice, for purposes of N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3, must relate to a final action. Here, the agreement was not finalized until June 7, 2010. For this reason, June 7, 2010, would represent the earliest triggering date. The use of this date, however, would be purely speculative. For all intents and purposes, notice was received on July 15, 2010, when the Commission notified Ms. Cowing that the Agreement provided for the use of independent contractors. Accordingly, the 90-day limitations period did not commence until July 15, 2010, and as such I CONCLUDE that petitioners' filing fell squarely within the 90-day statutory period.

Standing

The jurisdictional concept of standing requires that "a particular litigant must have sufficient interest in the subject of the litigation so that a genuine clash between opposing viewpoints will be presented." U.K. & G.K. ex rel D.K. v. Clifton Bd. of Educ., 93 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 71 (citing Kenwood v. Montclair Bd. of Educ., EDU 8858-81, Initial Decision (Apr. 23, 1982), adopted, Comm'r (June 14, 1982)). To establish standing, a litigant must show that: 1) he has "a sufficient stake in the outcome of the proceedings"; and 2) his position is "truly adverse to the opposing party." Ibid. (citing Home Builders League of S. Jersey v. Berlin Twp., 81 N.J. 127, 132 (1979)). Restrictions on standing also apply to those who initiate administrative proceedings before the Commissioner. For such proceedings, the Commissioner has clarified through regulation as well as case law that only an "interested person," one who "will be substantially, specifically and directly affected by the outcome of [the] controversy," may initiate such proceedings. N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.2; Bedminster Educ. Ass'n v. Bedminster Twp. Bd. of Educ., EDU 6720-05, Comm'r (June 16, 2006) <<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.shtml>>; U.K., supra, 93 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 71.⁷ Consequently, petitioners must show that they will "be affected by the outcome in a direct and meaningful way" before they may proceed in a contested case. U.K., supra, 93 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 71; Kenwood, supra, EDU 8858-81, Initial Decision (Apr. 23, 1982), adopted, Comm'r (June 14, 1982).

In the case at hand, respondent maintains that petitioners lack standing. Specifically, "[p]etitioners lack a stake in the outcome of the proceedings because even assuming, arguendo, that the Agreement has any deficiencies, the Board will correct those deficiencies in future agreements, rather than reinstating the CST."⁸ Stated differently, respondent maintains that petitioners' allegations, even if substantiated, do not entitle them to the relief of reinstatement. In response, petitioners maintain that respondent's argument fails to state the nature of their claims and must be rejected. Additionally, petitioners cite cases where the Commissioner has ordered remedies, including reinstatement, when CST members were terminated in a manner contrary to law or regulation. See Elson v. Hudson County Area Vocational-Technical Sch. Bd. of Educ., 96 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 229 (holding that a board of education may contract for CST services to supplement existing local district services, not to supplant them); Parise v. Butler Bd. of Educ., EDU 5953-03, Initial Decision (April 28, 2005), aff'd, Comm'r (June 9, 2005) <<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html>> (a district board of education may not eliminate the position of one CST member while maintaining its own CST).

Elson's holding, however, has been superseded by N.J.A.C. 6A:14-5.1(a)(1), which authorizes agreements for the provisions of CST services through an educational services commission. Becton Educ. Ass'n v. Bd. of Educ. of Carlstadt-East Rutherford Reg'l Sch. Dist., EDU 7061-01, Initial Decision (November 3, 2004), aff'd, Comm'r of Educ. (December 20, 2004), aff'd, State Bd. (May 6, 2005) <<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html>>. Furthermore, the factual backgrounds in Elson and Parise involve the replacement of a single CST position rather than an entire team. Indeed, "although a district board of education may not eliminate the position of one CST member while maintaining its own CST, the board may abolish its entire CST and enter into a proper multi-district arrangement for such services." Id. at Initial Decision. In the case at hand, the entire CST team was abolished and respondent contracted out those services to the Commission.

A local board of education has authority to reduce its teaching staff so long as it is genuinely "for reasons of economy." Klinger v. Cranbury Bd. of Educ., 190 N.J. Super. 354, 357 (App. Div. 1982), certif. denied, 93 N.J. 277 (1983). N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9, the controlling statute, provides:

Nothing in this title or any other law relating to tenure of service shall be held to limit the right of any board of education to reduce the number of teaching staff members, employed in the district whenever, in the judgment of the board, it is advisable to abolish any such positions for reasons of economy or because of reduction in the number of pupils or of change in the administrative or supervisory organization of the district or for other good cause upon compliance with the provisions of this article.

Furthermore, "[d]ismissals resulting from any such reduction shall not be made by reason of residence, age, sex, marriage, race, religion or political affiliation but shall be made on the basis of seniority according to standards to be established by the commissioner with the approval of the state board." N.J.S.A. 18A:28-10. Indeed, courts have consistently recognized that a RIF, "whether of tenured or non-tenured teachers, if done for reasons of economy, is entirely within the authority of the board.” Maywood Bd. of Educ. v. Maywood Educ. Ass’n, 168 N.J. Super. 45, 55 (App. Div. 1979). A RIF, however, is subject to review to determine whether any positions have been eliminated in violation of tenure statutes. A petitioner has the burden of proving that the RIF was undertaken in bad faith, or was arbitrary and capricious, or was in any other way contrary to the dictates of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9. Parise, supra, EDU 5953-03, Initial Decision (April 28, 2005), aff’d, Comm’r (June 9, 2005) <<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html>>.

In the within matter, petitioners allege “that the abolition of the [CST] was arbitrary, capricious and/or unreasonable because [the] [A]greement contains provisions in violation of applicable statutes and regulations and contains no total cost information.”⁹ Petitioners further allege that these defects render the abolition of their positions equally invalid. First and foremost, it was the Board’s decision to abolish the CST, and not its decision to contract out said services, which actually affected petitioners’ status as employees with the district. See Angel v. Englewood Bd. of Educ., 94 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 423 (“In essence, it was the Board’s decision to subcontract, not its determination of which bidder would be awarded the contract, that had affected petitioners.”) Notably, however, petitioners do not allege that the RIF was instituted in bad faith or for reasons other than economy. Nor do petitioners allege that their positions were abolished for similar unscrupulous reasons. Compare Parise, supra, EDU 5953-03, Initial Decision (April 28, 2005), aff’d, Comm’r (June 9, 2005) <<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html>> (petitioners contended that the RIF was related to the respondent’s desire to remove a tenured employee, whom it deemed unsatisfactory), with Angel, supra, 94 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 423 (petitioners alleged that the Board’s decision to subcontract custodial services was made in bad faith). As has been discussed above, courts have consistently recognized that a RIF, whether of tenured or non-tenured teachers, if done for reasons of economy, is entirely within the authority of the board. Maywood, supra, 168 N.J. Super. at 55.

Petitioners “allege that the agreement is fundamentally flawed to the point of being arbitrary and should be set aside.” Additionally, petitioners stress that “[t]his invalid replacement of their services renders the elimination of their employment a violation of their tenure status.”¹⁰ Missing, however, are any allegations of bad faith. Most notably, although petitioners point out that the contract has no total costs, they do not allege that this omission is indicative of the Board’s desire to restructure the CST for reasons other than economy. Rather, petitioners contend that contractual flaws, in and of themselves, render the abolition of the CST arbitrary and capricious. A similar argument is made for the use of independent contractors. Petitioners’ argument flies in the face of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9. Respondent is correct in asserting that if errors exist in the language of the Agreement, the appropriate remedy, especially in light of the severability clause, is revision, not reinstatement.

To reiterate, to establish standing, a litigant must show that he has a sufficient stake in the outcome of the proceedings. Further, the Commissioner has indicated that an interested party must be substantially, specifically, and directly affected by the outcome of the controversy. In the case at hand, I FIND that petitioners have not demonstrated that they have a sufficient stake in the outcome of the proceedings or would be directly affected by the outcome of the controversy. Specifically, petitioners are not alleging that the RIF, as evidenced by the language in the Agreement, was instituted in bad faith. Without such allegations, a RIF will not be invalidated and petitioners will not be reinstated. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that any remedy rendered if this matter proceeds to a hearing will not directly or substantially affect petitioners, and, as such, they lack standing.

STANDARD FOR SUMMARY DECISION

Under the New Jersey Uniform Administrative Procedure Rules, N.J.A.C. 1:1-1.1 to -21.6, summary decision may be rendered if the papers and discovery which have been filed, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law. When a motion for summary decision is made and supported, an adverse party in order to prevail must by responding affidavit set forth specific facts showing that there is a genuine issue which can only be determined in an evidentiary proceeding. . . . If the adverse party does not so respond, a summary decision, if appropriate, shall be entered.

[N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b) (emphasis added).]

The summary judgment procedure is designed to provide a prompt, businesslike and inexpensive method of disposing of any cause which a discriminating search of the merits in the pleadings, depositions and admissions on file, together with the affidavits submitted on the motion clearly shows not to present any genuine issue of material fact requiring disposition at a trial.

[Judson v. Peoples Bank & Trust Co., 17 N.J. 67, 74 (1954).]

As explained by the Court in Brill v. Guardian Life Insurance Co., 142 N.J. 520, 540 (1995) (citations omitted):

[A] determination whether there exists a "genuine issue" of material fact that precludes summary judgment requires the motion judge to consider whether the competent evidential materials presented, when viewed in the light most favorable to the non-moving party, are sufficient to permit a rational fact finder to resolve the alleged disputed issue in favor of the non-moving party. The "judge's function is not himself [or herself] to weigh the evidence and determine the truth of the matter but to determine whether there is a genuine issue for trial." Credibility determinations will continue to be made by a jury and not the judge. If there exists a single, unavoidable resolution of the alleged disputed issue of fact, that issue should be considered insufficient to constitute a "genuine" issue of material fact for purposes of Rule 4:46-2. The import of our holding is that when the evidence "is so one-sided that one party must prevail as a matter of law," the trial court should not hesitate to grant summary judgment.

Since the underlying facts are not in dispute, this matter is ripe for summary decision.

CONCLUSION

Based upon all of the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that summary decision should be granted because petitioners lack standing to bring their claims.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

The Commissioner has reviewed the record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on the Board's motion for summary decision. No exceptions were filed by either party as provided by N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Upon his considered review, the Commissioner has determined that this matter is not ripe for for summary decision since there are material facts still in dispute. Further, in the interest of fundamental fairness, he has also decided to relax the 90-day timeframe in which to file the within petition. Consequently, the Commissioner hereby rejects the Initial Decision of the Administrative Law Judge and remands the matter to the OAL for adjudication.

Accordingly, the Commissioner hereby returns the matter to the OAL for a full hearing on the merits or other such proceedings to resolve the issues.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner – now an adult – filed an appeal in June 2011 which sought a determination that he is eligible to graduate from high school. The Board asserted that petitioner failed to attain a 92% attendance rate for the 2009-2010 school year – which was required as part of his individualized program plan – and therefore does not have enough credits to graduate. The Board filed a motion for summary decision, contending that the petition was not timely filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(i).

The ALJ found that: there are no genuine issues of material fact, and the matter is ripe for summary judgment; petitioner was notified in July 2010 that he would not be receiving any credit for the 2009-2010 academic year because he did not meet the attendance goal set forth in his individualized program plan for 2009-2010; petitioner did not file his appeal of this determination until June 2011, eleven months after he received notification that he did not have enough credits to graduate; petitioner has failed to show that the Board's decision was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable; petitioner filed his appeal well beyond the ninety-day time period set forth in N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(i); and, therefore, the petition is time-barred. The ALJ granted the Board's motion for summary decision, and dismissed the petition.

The Commissioner rejected the Initial Decision of the ALJ and remanded the matter to the OAL for a full hearing on the merits or other such proceedings to resolve the issues. In so determining, the Commissioner relaxed the 90-day timeframe in the interest of fundamental fairness, and found that the matter is not ripe for summary decision as there are material facts still in dispute.

Decided: December 2, 2011

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

N.B. (petitioner) seeks a determination that he is eligible to graduate from high school. The Gloucester City Board of Education (Board) asserts that the petitioner failed to attain a 92% attendance rate for the 2009-2010 school year and therefore does not have enough credits to graduate.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On June 11, 2011, petitioner filed an application for a petition and application for emergent relief with the New Jersey Department of Education, Office of Special Education Programs. On June 13, 2011, the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for an oral argument on the requested emergent relief on June 14, 2011, at 9:00 A.M. On that date, the case was heard in the OAL, Trenton (Hamilton Township), and the relief was denied.

On September 9, 2011, the Board filed a motion for summary decision. Petitioner's brief was due two weeks later. Numerous telephone calls were made to petitioner's attorney who indicated he would file the brief by October 19, 2011. It was not received on that date. Numerous follow-up calls were made, and on November 22, petitioner's attorney finally called back and said he had filed the brief a few weeks ago and that he would fax a copy of the brief. No fax was forthcoming, and finally, on November 29, 2011, petitioner's attorney was told that if the brief was not received by 12:00 p.m. on that day, the motion would be decided without his input.

On November 29, 2011 at 11:54 a.m., the brief was received. It was dated November 29, 2011.

STATEMENT OF FACTS

Some of the facts are undisputed. The petitioner is over eighteen years of age and was enrolled in the Gloucester City School District. In 2009, he was placed in an alternative at risk placement at the Highland Park Program for Success located in Highland Park.

The Board maintains an attendance policy pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.8, which requires the District to ensure expectations and consequences regarding attendance at school and classes, N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.8(a)(2), and maintains a policy of requirements for high school graduation, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:8-5.1. Students who attend the Highland Park School, an alternative educational program for at-risk students, are generally exempted from the District's attendance policy. However, each student at the Highland Park School must meet an individual attendance goal agreed upon by the student, the student's parents, and the District.

The petitioner's individualized program plan specifies that the petitioner attend school 92% of the time (R-1). The Highland Park School Handbook states that all students must meet all attendance goals for graduation requirements, and that "any student who does not meet his/her attendance goal will not receive credit for that school year" (R-2, page 8 and 24). The petitioner signed a student contract in which he agreed to attend school "in order to reach my stated goal as noted in my Individualized Program Plan (R-3).

The parties agree that the petitioner had nineteen absences during the 2009-2010 school year, which is an attendance rate of 89.5%. Petitioner argues that eight of the absences were excused and should not count as absences, which would raise his attendance rate above the requirement to 94%.

Petitioner asserts that his family was not aware that he was having significant problems with his grades until the April 2010 progress report, and a meeting was requested. The meeting never took place.

No further communication was received from the school until July 7, 2010, when the petitioner was informed that the petitioner would not be receiving any credit for the academic year. In July 2010, the petitioner was notified of this decision as evidenced by his parents' letter dated July 11, 2010. On July 14, 2010, the parents of the petitioner wrote to the District about this situation and stated they would be open to an administrative meeting (P-1). On August 20, 2010, the attorney for the petitioner wrote to the District's attorney to discuss this situation (P-2). On June 11, 2011, the emergent application and petition were filed. The Board asserts that the petition was not timely filed. I FIND that the petitioner filed his petition eleven months after being notified of the decision.

It is undisputed that the petitioner did not meet the attendance goal set forth in his individualized attendance policy for the 2009-2010 school year. In his initial Certification in support of his Application for Emergent Relief, the petitioner admitted that his attendance goal was 92% and that his final attendance rate was 89.5%. Therefore, I FIND that the petitioner is not qualified to receive credit for that school year, and is therefore ineligible to graduate at this time.

The Board's policy as to high school graduation also requires each pupil to earn 120 credits. As of June 16, 2011, N.B. had ninety-nine credits. He has also not met this requirement.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The essential facts involving this motion are not in dispute. Therefore, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:12.5(b) and Brill v. Guardian Life Insurance Co. of America, 142 N.J. 520, 523 (1995), I FIND that there are no genuine issues of material fact and that this matter is ripe for summary decision.

N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.8 mandates that local school districts establish policies for student attendance, which include the consequences" for failure to comply with attendance requirements. The Board has established a policy, and students at the Highland Park School must meet an individual attendance goal agreed upon by the student, the student's parents, and the District, or not receive credit for the school year. Petitioner failed to meet his attendance goal.

The action of a Board of Education (BOE) which lies within the area of its discretionary powers may not be upset unless patently arbitrary, without rational basis or induced by improper motives. Kopera v. West Orange Bd. of Educ. 60 N.J. Super. 288, 294 (App. Div. 1960). As an administrative agency, BOE's decisions should be treated with deference by the appropriate reviewing judiciary. See Mutschler v. Envir. Protection, 337 N.J. Super. 1 (App. Div. 2001), DiMaria v. Bd. of Trs. Of Pub. Employees' Ret. Sys., 225 N.J. Super. 341, 351 (App. Div. 1988).

Local school boards have been expressly charged with protecting the health, safety and welfare of its students, and ensuring the orderly conduct of the academic process. In creating and enforcing an attendance policy mandated by state regulation, the school district's actions have a presumption of validity.

The applicable administrative code provisions require school districts to develop policies and procedures for student's attendance. In this case, the District established an attendance policy for Highland Park students, which requires them to meet the attendance goals in their individualized plans. The students are given the opportunity to discuss and agree to their required attendance with their parents and the District. The manual states that students must comply with their individualized attendance plans or they will not receive credit for the year. As a condition of attending the Highland Park School, the petitioner agreed to an individualized attendance plan.

Despite agreeing to an attendance rate, the petitioner failed to achieve the rate. He admitted that his attendance goal was 92% and his final attendance rate was 89.5%. Petitioner completed ninety-nine (99) of the required one-hundred-twenty (120) credits.

As stated above, the actions of boards of education have a presumption of validity. Therefore, I FIND that a specific attendance policy and consequence was established by the Board. The petitioner has not shown that the Board's decision was not patently arbitrary, without rational basis or induced by improper motives.

N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(i) requires that a petition shall be filed no later than ninety days from the date of receipt of notice of final order, ruling, or other action by the District Board of Education, individual party, or agency. In July 2010, the petitioner was notified of this decision as evidenced by his parents' letter dated July 11, 2010. On June 11, 2011, the emergent application and petition were filed. The petitioner filed the appeal eleven months later, well over the ninety-day time period.

The ninety-day rule has been strictly followed and applied almost without exception. For example, in Dreher v. Jersey City Bd. of Educ., EDU 2777-87, Initial Decision (December 18, 1987), adopted Comm'r (February 2, 1988), aff'd St. Bd. of Educ. (July 8, 1988) <<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html>>, petitioner filed his petition two days out of time, and the matter was dismissed as untimely. The board complies with statutory or administrative requirements, the petitioner is required to file the petition no later than ninety days after receipt of notice. Portee v. Newark Bd. of Educ., 94 N.J. Admin. 2d 381, 383.

The instant petition was filed well outside the ninety-day limitation period set forth in N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(i), and the record provides no reason whatsoever for relaxation of this rule. Therefore, I FIND that the petition is time barred.

DECISION AND ORDER

Based on the foregoing, the Board's motion for summary decision is GRANTED. Petitioner's appeal is DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. Dear Counsel:

I have reviewed the papers filed in connection with the Petition for Declaratory Ruling in the matter captioned Learning Community Charter School, Soaring Heights Charter School, Ethical Community Charter School and Golden Door Charter School, Hudson County v. Board of Education of Jersey City, Hudson County and New Jersey Department of Education, Agency Dkt. No. 343-11/11. Therein petitioners seek a declaration that they are entitled to receive 90% of the per pupil enrolled Adjustment Aid paid by the State to the Jersey City School District. Please be advised that even assuming, arguendo, that the Petitioners' request satisfied the requirements for a Declaratory Ruling pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-2.1, I have determined not to consider this matter as one for declaratory ruling, pursuant to my discretionary authority under N.J.A.C. 6A:3-2.1(a). I find, instead, that this matter should proceed as a Petition of Appeal.

Accordingly, this matter will be transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for hearing consistent with N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.1 et seq.

Sincerely,

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner – a physical education teacher and head lacrosse coach for respondent, who served as head soccer coach for the 2008-2009 and 2009-2010 school years – asserted that the Board voted to reappoint him to the position of head soccer coach for the 2010-2011 school year because four of the nine Board members voted in his favor and five members abstained from voting. Petitioner contends that to abstain is to not contest the votes in favor of his reappointment, and therefore the final vote with five abstentions must be considered as nine votes in favor of the soccer coach reappointment. The Board argued that the motion to reappoint failed because the appointment required the affirmative vote of five members of the Board of Education, which would be a majority vote of a board of nine members.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: petitioner was employed by respondent as a tenured teaching staff member and head lacrosse coach when he was hired in 2008 as head soccer coach after the previous coach left the district and a replacement could not be found; petitioner had no prior soccer playing or coaching experience; N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1 requires the recommendation of the chief school administrator and a recorded roll call majority vote of the full membership of the board in order to reappoint a certificated or non-certificated employee; and the respondent Board's bylaws also provide that a majority vote of the full board is required for appointment of a staff member. The ALJ concluded that the affirmative vote of only four members of the nine-member board was not sufficient to reappoint petitioner to the position of soccer coach for the 2010-2011 school year, and the actions of the Board were not arbitrary and capricious. Accordingly, the ALJ affirmed the determination of the Board not to reappoint petitioner as soccer coach for the 2010-2011 school year.

Upon full consideration, the Commissioner accepted the findings and conclusions of the ALJ that petitioner is not entitled to reappointment as the head soccer coach based on applicable laws and regulations, and affirmed the Initial Decision. The petition was dismissed.

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Neither party filed exceptions pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Upon a careful and independent review, the Commissioner determines to accept the findings and conclusions of the ALJ that petitioner is not entitled to reappointment to the position of Head Soccer Coach based on the applicable laws and regulations which permit school districts to hire qualified, certified and non-certified applicants for its coaching positions.¹ The Commissioner observes that testimony during the hearing on the merits revealed that the petitioner's failure to take part in the programs and courses necessary to improve his knowledge and instruction in the sport, as directed, left him vulnerable to non-renewal.

Finally, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that the Board's actions were not arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable when it accepted the decision of the full membership and determined that four "yes" votes and five abstentions were insufficient to reappoint the petitioner to his former coaching position, resulting in his non-renewal.

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed therein, the Commissioner affirms the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law and dismisses the within Petition of Appeal.

BEFORE SANDRA ANN ROBINSON, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

James Scott Reid, appellant, argues that he was reappointed to the position of head soccer coach for the 2010/2011 school year because four (4) of the nine (9) members of the Jefferson Township Board of Education, voted in his favor and five (5) members abstained from voting. Appellant contends that to abstain is to not contest the votes in favor; therefore the final vote with five abstentions must be considered as nine votes in favor of the soccer coach reappointment.

Respondent, Jefferson Township Board of Education, contends that the motion to reappoint failed because the appointment required the affirmative vote of five members of the Board of Education, which is the majority of the Board membership for a board of nine members.

ISSUES

Is the June 14, 2010, vote by the Jefferson Township Board of Education, with four members in favor and five members abstaining, an affirmative vote of the majority of the Board to pass the reappointment of appellant as the head soccer coach for the fall of 2010/2011 school year?

Was the decision to not reappoint appellant as head soccer coach arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable?

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The New Jersey Department of Education Bureau of Controversies and Disputes (Department) transmitted this matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on November 17, 2010, as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to B-15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to F-13. The case was scheduled for a July 12-13, 2011, hearing at the OAL. Appellant's attorney requested that July 12 be postponed because appellant would be out-of-state. The parties request to submit post-hearing briefs was granted due to the need to analyze New Jersey Statutes and present case law pertaining to the issues. Unforeseen circumstance, including power outages during the period was taken into consideration and the requests for extending the time for post-hearing submissions granted. The record was closed on October 31, 2011.

CASE BACKGROUND

James Scott Reid, appellant, is a tenured employee and the head lacrosse coach, for respondent, Jefferson Township Board of Education, Morris County New Jersey. During the summer of 2008, appellant was hired as the head soccer coach because Jefferson Township's former head soccer coach left the school and a new coach could not be found. Appellant expressed his interest to serve as the soccer coach even though he had no playing or coaching experience.

During the 2008/2009 school year the soccer season was not good. School personnel and parents questioned how much appellant really knew about soccer and whether he possessed the interpersonal skills to advance the game. In the fall of 2008, Athletic Director John DiColo evaluated appellant and determined that most rankings were "satisfactory" in four substantive areas. DiColo also gave appellant several ratings of "outstanding." Yet in the areas of: (1) stays abreast of current trends and developments, and (2) knowledge of sport, appellant was rated "needs improvement." DiColo also recommended on the evaluation that appellant attend as many coaching clinics as possible to improve his knowledge of soccer.

On April 29, 2009, a meeting was held by respondent Board's Personnel and Policy Committee to discuss the head soccer coach appointment for the 2009/2010 school year. During the meeting it was disclosed that appellant had attended the NJSCA/Rutgers University Women's Soccer Staff Girls Soccer Coaches Clinic on April 24, 2009, and would be attending during the summer a course entitled "Fundamentals of Coaching Soccer." Dr. Kathaleen Fuchs, superintendent of schools Jefferson Township, expressed an interest in having appellant reappointed so he could illustrate his advancement in the field of soccer. The Committee supported the reappointment of appellant for the 2009/2010 school year. The members of the Board of Education voted to reappoint appellant as head soccer coach for the 2009/2010 soccer season.

The 2009/2010 soccer season was not a winning season. Numerous concerns were raised by parents and staff about appellant's knowledge of soccer and interpersonal skills. The main issues brought to the athletic director about appellant focused on appellant's lack of knowledge about soccer and his inability to teach strategy and skills. Head Coach DiColo's evaluation and ratings of appellant for the 2009/2010 soccer season were mostly satisfactory and included several outstanding notations, such as: "He has a good working knowledge of the skills and strategies necessary to bring this program to the next level." The head coach recommended that appellant improve his knowledge base by completing the NFHS National Coach Certification Program for Soccer.

Dr. Fuchs disagreed with some segments of DiColo's 2009/2010 evaluation of appellant. On April 29, 2010, Dr. Fuchs and appellant met. Dr. Fuchs advised appellant that his lack of knowledge of soccer worked against him and many concerns remained about his ability to coach. Dr. Fuchs did not favor appellant's reappointment to the head soccer coach position for the 2010/2011 school year. On May 26, 2010, the Personnel and Policy Committee of the Board discussed the possibility of appellant being reappointed and wanted the members of the Board of Education to review the matter. On June 14, 2010, the Board held a meeting to consider appellant's re-appointment. Dr. Fuchs presented the following resolution to the Board at the meeting,

WHEREAS, the Chief School Administrator has not recommended the renewal/reappointment of the head soccer coach, Scott Reid, for the 2010/2011 school year; and

WHEREAS, notwithstanding the statutory authority of the Chief School Administrator regarding renewal/reappointment recommendations, the Chief School Administrator is willing to bring the issue to the Board of Education for consideration; and

WHEREAS, this decision, in this one instance, is not to be deemed or considered as a waiver or relinquishment of the Chief School Administrator's statutory responsibilities regarding appointment of any staff, nor is it to be deemed to establish a practice or precedent for such action in the future;

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED that James Scott Reid be appointed Head Soccer Coach for fall of 2010-2011.

The minutes of the June 14, 2010, Board meeting indicate that after discussion and consultation with counsel, four board members voted in favor of the motion and five board members abstained. The Board counsel noted that the motion to reappoint had failed. Appellant's counsel advised respondent's counsel that a vote of four was sufficient for a reappointment as set forth in the Board's Bylaw 0164, Conduct of Board Meetings - Parliamentary Authority and Board's Policy 3125 at page 4, Employment of Teaching Staff Members - Athletic Coaches. The contention of respondent's counsel is that the motion failed because reappointment requires the affirmative vote of the majority of the full board, which in this case totals five members of a nine member board as set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1(a).

SUMMARY OF TESTIMONY

(RESPONDENT'S WITNESS)

Dr. Kathaleen Fuchs is the superintendent of schools and chief school administrator for Jefferson Township Board of Education. She has been superintendent for four and one-half years. For thirty-four years previously, she served as assistant superintendent of schools and an English teacher. Dr. Fuchs testified, Appellant is a physical education teacher. However, during 2008/2009 he coached soccer. I recommended that he be hired because there was no other applicant for the position and appellant expressed an interest in helping out. The previous soccer coach left the school system. Appellant's year-end performance was not good and it was recommended that he attend clinics and take course to improve his knowledge of soccer. Appellant had never played or coached soccer. He did attend a girl's soccer clinic and received a certificate of completion dated April 24, 2009. If an employee is directed to take courses there is no limit to the number of courses or the payment for those courses. In May 2009, appellant was considered for reappointment as the soccer coach for the 2009/2010 school year. He was reappointed to the position for a second year with the understanding that the Athletic Director would work with appellant to assist appellant to improve instructional framework and coaching qualities.

During the spring and summer of 2009, an instructional guide was developed on Coaching Framework and Model of Good Coaching.

In December 2009, I was approached by parents of soccer players who wanted to meet with the Athletic Director to discuss their concerns about soccer. I was concerned with appellant's lack of skills and I did not agree with some of the evaluations on appellant, which the Athletic Director prepared in the fall of 2009.

In April 2010, the reappointment process for the 2010/2011 school year commenced. I was concerned that appellant's skill level in soccer had not improved from the past year. Appellant signed up for coaching conference and I told him to withdraw because I was not recommending him for reappointment and I did not want to spend the money on training he would not need. I met with appellant late in April 2010 to express my concerns. Appellant and I also exchanged correspondence related to the soccer coach position. The matter was brought before the Board Personnel and Policy Committee. The members questioned why I was going against the recommendation of the athletic director to reappoint appellant. The principal recommended reappointment for appellant. The Athletic Director has a supervisory certification and does know more about sports and soccer than I do. The Committee wanted a vote from the full Board. My position to not reappoint appellant never changed between the Committee meeting and the June Board meeting. The financial impact on appellant after no reappointment would mean that he no longer received a stipend to coach soccer.

When I did not recommend appellant for reappointment, I opened the position to receive applications from everyone and appellant applied again. The Athletic Director, principal and vice principal recommended to me that appellant be rehired. Three candidates applied. The person who was selected for the position during the 2010/2011 school year worked under appellant.

(APPELLANT'S WITNESS)

Appellant testified as follows,

I was first appointed soccer coach in August 2008. I went to a coaching clinic for three days before I started coaching soccer. I asked Pat Brennon, the Newton High School coach to help me. I trained in drill techniques, strategy and curriculum. I have coached over sports forty matches. I have observed soccer games and participated in sixty to eighty practices and twenty games per year.

On cross-examination, appellant said that the Rutgers Girl's Soccer Clinic was the only NJSIAA training being offered in soccer. Appellant acknowledged that in December 2009 he had been told, via evaluations and discussions, that his knowledge base should be improved by completing the NFHS National Coach Certification Program for soccer.

FINDINGS OF FACTS

Based on the credible testimony and the supporting documentation accepted into evidence, I Find as Fact the following:

1. The testimony of all witnesses is credible;
2. Appellant is a tenured employee and the head Lacrosse coach, for respondent, Jefferson Township Board of Education;
3. Appellant was hired during the summer of 2008 as the head soccer coach for Jefferson Township's because the former head soccer coach left the school and a new soccer coach could not be found. Appellant expressed an interest to help out and the CSA hired him even though he had no playing or coaching experience;
4. The 2008/2009 soccer season was not good. School personnel and parents questioned appellant's ability to coach and his lack of interpersonal skills. Appellant's evaluation rankings prepared by the athletic director for the 2008/2009 year were "satisfactory" in four substantive areas. He received several ratings of "outstanding" in the areas of staying abreast of current trends and developments. In the area of knowledge of sport, he was rated "needs improvement." The athletic director recommended that appellant attend as many coaching clinics as possible to improve his skills and knowledge of soccer;
5. On April 29, 2009, the Board's Personnel and Policy Committee met to discuss the head soccer coach appointment for the 2009/2010 school year. During the meeting it was disclosed that appellant attended one soccer clinic since the commencement of his soccer responsibilities. The CSA recommended appellant's reappointment so he could illustrate his advancement in the field of soccer. The Committee supported the reappointment of appellant for the 2009/2010 school year. The members of the Board of Education voted to reappoint appellant as head soccer coach for the 2009/2010 soccer season;

6. The 2009/2010 soccer season was not a winning season. Parents and staff questioned appellant's knowledge of soccer, interpersonal skills, and his inability to teach strategy and skills. The Athletic Director's evaluation and ratings of appellant for the 2009/2010 soccer season was mostly satisfactory and included several outstanding notations, such as having a good working knowledge of the skills and strategies necessary to bring this program to the next level. The Athletic Director recommended that appellant improve his knowledge base by completing the NFHS National Coach Certification Program for Soccer.
7. The CSA disagreed with some of the Athletic Director's 2009/2010 evaluation of appellant. The CSA and appellant met on April 29, 2010, to review concerns about appellant's lack of knowledge of soccer. The CSA did not favor appellant being reappointment to the head soccer coach position for the 2010/2011 school year;
8. On May 26, 2010, the Personnel and Policy Committee of the Board of Education discussed the possibility of appellant being reappointment and wanted the members of the Board of Education to review the matter;
9. On June 14, 2010, the Board held a meeting to consider appellant's reappointment. The CSA presented a resolution to the Board at the meeting, which set forth that she did not support reappointment and the preparation and presentation of the resolution is based on a request of the Board. Also noted in the resolution that a decision, in this one instance, is not to be deemed or considered as a waiver or relinquishment of the CSA's statutory responsibilities regarding appointment of any staff, nor is it to be deemed to establish a practice or precedent for such action in the future. Finally the resolution read: "NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED that James Scott Reid be appointed head soccer coach for fall of 2010-2011";
10. The Board members discussed the resolution and consulted with counsel before voting. The vote count was four (4) board members in favor of the - motion on the resolution and five (5) board members abstaining;

11. The Jefferson Township Board of Education Bylaws (0165 - Voting) requires a majority vote of the full Board for appointment or transfer of a teaching staff member, N.J.S.A. 18A: 25-1, and N.J.S.A. 18A: 27-1. Abstentions shall not be counted as votes but shall be recorded; a member who abstains from voting is deemed to acquiesce in the outcome of the vote;
 12. The Jefferson Township Board of Education Governance Manual (Policy 3125) establishes that athletic coaches are considered employment of teaching staff members;
 13. The Jefferson Township Board of Education Board Bylaws also read that all motions shall require for adoption the majority vote of Board members present and voting, except as provided by the statutes of the State of New Jersey;
 14. N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1 establishes the Board of Education, procedure for certain personnel actions; recommendation of chief school administrator, as follows, notwithstanding the provisions of any law, rule or regulation to the contrary, a. A board of education shall appoint, transfer or remove a certificated or non-certificated officer or employee only upon the recommendation of the chief school administrator and by a recorded roll call majority vote of the full membership of the board. The board shall not withhold its approval for arbitrary and capricious reasons;
 15. The recorded roll-call majority vote of the full board membership of nine persons on July 14, 2010, totaled four votes for reappointment and five persons abstaining, causing the motion on the resolution to fail because appellant's reappointment required an affirmative vote of the majority of the full board, which in this case totals five members of a nine member board as set described in N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1(a);
 16. There is no evidence that respondent's determination not to reappoint appellant was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable.

LEGAL DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS

(ROBERT'S RULE OF ORDER)

In regard to the Jefferson Board of Education, the parliamentary authority for governance of all board meeting is by Robert's Rule of Order, except for when Robert's Rules of Order shall not be applied, as in accordance with Jefferson Board of Education Board's Bylaw 0164, Parliamentary Authority, Robert's Rule of Order, Newly Revised and these rules shall govern the Board of Education in its deliberations and acts in all cases in which it is not inconsistent with statutes of the State of New Jersey, rules of the State Board of Education, or these bylaws.

The Board Bylaws also read that all motions shall require for adoption the majority vote of Board members present and voting, except as provided by the statutes of the State of New Jersey.

(THE VOTE TO NOT REAPPOINT WAS ARBITRARY, CAPRICIOUS OR UNREASONABLE)

In the instant matter, respondent acknowledges that the July 20, 2009, vote for the annual appointments of certain individuals was improper because the affirmative vote of the full board did not total the majority of those board members present and voting. There were only five board members present for that meeting and one board member had to abstain on one vote for an employee that was a relative. On the votes for other employees, the same board member should have voted, but did not, and continued to cast an abstention vote for everyone in the classification.

In the matter at hand, appellant desires to prove that if a mistake was made with the vote on July 20, 2009, and persons were hired with less than a majority then he should also have been hired. Thus, appellant argues that to act for one group—even though there was an error—and not to act for him is arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable. It is noted that the persons reappointed on July 20, 2009, ended their employment contracts on June 30, 2010. The error in voting at the July 20 meeting was discovered more than one year before the instant matter commenced. An argument suggesting that respondent did not perfect the error is not relevant to the issue in the current case since respondent can correct the error at any time. Of importance is recognizing the intent of the Board to want to reappoint individuals it voted in on July 20, 2009, and that the majority of the board members present and voting, voted for reappointment; four in favor and one abstention.

(WAS THERE A VOTE TO REAPPOINT APPELLANT ON JULY 14, 2010?)

The Jefferson Township Board of Education Bylaws require "A recorded roll-call majority vote of the full membership of the board" is needed to appoint or renew the employment of a certificated or non-certificated staff member. N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1(a) and (b). In the instant case, four members of the nine-member Board voted in favor of appointing appellant and five members abstained from voting. There was no majority of the full membership of the board that voted to reappoint appellant. Appellant argues that the abstentions must be "deemed to acquiesce in the outcome of the vote" since no members of the Board voted against his reappointment; therefore his contract should be deemed renewed.

The Jefferson Township Board of Education, Board Policy 0165 establishes, Abstentions shall not be counted as votes but shall be recorded; a member who abstains from voting is deemed to acquiesce in the outcome of the vote.

Also set forth in Policy 0165 at paragraph (3)(e),

A majority vote of the full Board is required for:
Appointment or transfer of a teaching staff member,
N.J.S.A. 18A:25-1, and N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1.

N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1 specifically requires the inclusion of non-certified staff to also receive the majority vote of the full Board. N.J.S.A. 18A: 27-4.1, when enacted in 1995 effectively repealed or pre-empted N.J.S.A. 34:13A-23 that had been enacted five years earlier. The appointment of coaches takes on the same process as the appointment of certified staff. The newer statute N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1 provides in pertinent part:

Notwithstanding the provisions of any law, rule or regulation to the contrary,

a. A board of education shall appoint, transfer or remove a certificated or non-certificated officer or employee only upon the recommendation of the chief school administrator and by a recorded roll-call majority vote of the full membership of the board. The board shall not withhold its approval for arbitrary and capricious reasons.

b. A board of education shall renew the employment contract of a certificated or non-certificated officer or employee only upon the recommendation of the chief school (CSA) administrator and by a recorded roll-call majority vote of the full membership of the board. The board shall not withhold its approval for arbitrary and capricious reasons. A non-tenured officer or employee who is not recommended for renewal by the CSA shall be deemed non-renewed. Prior to notifying the officer or employee of the nonrenewal, the CSA shall notify the board of the recommendation not to renew the officer's or employee's contract and the reasons for the recommendation. An officer or employee whose employment contract is not renewed shall have the right to a written statement of reasons for nonrenewal . . . and to an informal appearance before the board. The purpose of the appearance shall be to permit the staff member to convince the members of the board to offer reemployment. The CSA shall notify the officer or employee of the nonrenewal

In Rotondo v. Carlstadt-East Rutherford Regional High School District, 276 N.J. Super. 36 (App. Div. 1994), the CSA had recommended to the board of education that a non-tenured music teacher's contract not be renewed. The board renewed the contract despite the recommendation. The Commissioner of Education and the State Board of Education ruled that the local board had no power to employ a teacher who was not recommended by the CSA. The Appellate Division reversed the determination of the Commissioner and the State Board of Education, by relying on N.J.S.A. 18A:27-1: "No teaching staff member shall be appointed, except by a recorded roll-call majority vote of the full membership of the board of education appointing him." There was nothing in the statutes that afforded the CSA a veto or other controlling role in the process of appointing teaching staff members. Rotondo, supra, 276 N.J. Super. at 39. The Appellate court noted that there was nothing in the statutes about the local board's authority to appoint being restricted to persons sponsored by the CSA. Id. at 44-45. The enactment of N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1 was a result of Rotondo.

N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1 provides that a board may renew an employee's contract only if the CSA so recommends, and that it may decline to follow a CSA's recommendation for renewal but may not do so arbitrarily and capriciously. N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1(b). Although the statute speaks in terms of renewal of an employee's employment contract, it is undisputed that it applies not only to teachers' regular duties but also to extracurricular and other assignments.

In Mann v. Housing Authority of the City of Paterson, 20 N.J. Super. 276 (Law Div. 1952), plaintiff's former counsel filed an action for restoration to his three-year appointment as counsel for the housing authority. Defendants, new counsel and housing authority, made reference in their answers to two resolutions passed by the housing authority, one which removed plaintiff and the other which appointed defendant new counsel. Plaintiff moved to strike the answers on the ground that the resolutions were not legally passed. The court granted plaintiff's motion because N.J.S.A. 55:14A-6 required that actions taken by the housing authority be based upon an affirmative vote of the majority, not less than three. When passing the resolutions, only three commissioners voted in the affirmative. The other three abstained. The court concluded that the three abstentions were not affirmative votes necessary for a majority. Therefore, the resolutions were invalid.

(NON-TENURED EVALUATIONS)

N.J.S.A. 18A:27-3.1 describes the evaluation process for non-tenured teachers. The boards of education in New Jersey shall cause each employed non-tenure teaching staff member to be observed and evaluated in the performance of their duties at least three times during each school year but not less than once during each semester. All evaluations must take place before April 30 of each year. The evaluations may cover that period between April 30 of one year and April 30 of the succeeding year excepting in the case of the first year of employment where the three evaluations must have been completed prior to April 30. The number of required observations and evaluations may be reduced proportionately when an individual teaching staff member's term of service is less than one academic year. Each evaluation shall be followed by a conference between that teaching staff member and the teacher's superior or superiors. The purpose of this procedure is to recommend as to re-employment, identify any deficiencies, extend assistance for their correction and improve professional competence. Local boards of education have an almost complete right to terminate the services of a teacher who has no tenure, even if the recommended procedures to be followed for evaluating the teacher are not adhered to. N.J.S.A. 18A: 27-3.1 does not provide a penalty against the school board if it fails to follow the proscribed evaluation procedures.

In accord with N.J.S.A. 18A:27-3.2, a teacher may request the reason for non-renewal after receiving notice that a teaching contract for the succeeding school year will not be offered. The request may be made in writing within fifteen days after receipt of the non-renewal notice. A written response from the board should be issued within thirty days after the receipt of the request. N.J.S.A. 18A:27-3.2 urges local boards of education to give reasons to employees who are being terminated. The current legislation does not provide a penalty against the board should it not disclose reasons for not renewing a non-tenured teachers contract. Nor, is the board compelled to reinstate a non-tenured teacher because of not providing a reason for no contract renewal.

(NON-TENURED TERMINATIONS)

An agency determination should not be vacated in the absence of a showing that the decision is arbitrary or capricious, that it lacks support in the record or that it violates legislative policies expressed or fairly to be implied in the statutory scheme administered by the agency. In re Grossman, 127 N.J. Super. 13, 22-23 (App. Div. 1977); Campbell v. Civil Service Dep't, 39 N.J. 556, 562 (1963).

The decision of Dore v. Board of Education of the Township of Bedminster, 185 N.J. Super. 447 (App. Div. 1982), is similar to the case at hand. It is noted that in the case at hand appellant is already a tenured head Lacrosse coach, but is not a tenured soccer coach. In Dore, appellant, a non-tenured teacher, did not receive a third-year contract renewal. Appellant argued that since he did not have three evaluations during the 1975/1976 school year, it was unlawful and arbitrary and capricious for the board not to re-employ him. Appellant asked for the reasons the board voted not to renew his contract and was told non-renewal was due to insufficient positive evidence of teaching effectiveness; particularly poor teaching methods as evidenced by poor grading procedures, lack of structured classroom and not providing student materials (textbooks, homework assignments); and lack of continued assessment of student progress. These criticisms were not contained in appellant's formal evaluations, but were articulated by board members as the basis for their dissatisfaction with appellant and were based on the personal observations of board members, knowledge acquired through having a child in appellant's class or acquired from members of the public and parents of appellant's pupils. Appellant appeared before the board to argue his case, but the board did not change the decision to not renew. A plenary hearing was conducted and the hearing examiner's report ordered appellant's reinstatement after determining that the reasons for non-renewal were not related to the evaluations of his performance in the classroom, but was due to his perceived abrasiveness to the board at public meetings.

The Commissioner ordered reinstatement because the reasons for non-renewal were not supported by the evaluations and no other reasons were given to him to explain the board's decision. The State Board reversed the Commissioner's decision and dismissed appellant's petition on appeal because the State Board determined that the local board had sufficient information to support both its decision not to re-employ appellant and its statement of reasons for doing so. The State Board emphasized the considerable discretion afforded to local boards in employing teaching staff members. The State Board concluded that the local board's action was not so arbitrary and capricious as to warrant the extraordinary remedy of overriding the managerial prerogative of a local board and requiring it to employ a teacher it does not want on its staff. In conclusion, the court in Dore said,

The State Board's decision properly recognized the board's right to reach its conclusion about a non-tenured teacher on a broad base of input received from a variety of people, including members of the public, parents of students and a board member's own knowledge of a teacher even if that knowledge is acquired through having a child in the teacher's class.

(DONALDSON HEARING)

In Donaldson v. North Wildwood Board of Education, 65 N.J. 236 (1974), Justice Jacobs, said,

It appears evident to us that on balance the arguments supporting the teacher's request for a statement of reasons overwhelm any arguments to the contrary. The teacher is a professional who has spent years in the course of attaining the necessary education and training. When he is engaged as a teacher he is fully aware that he is serving a probationary period and may or may not ultimately attain tenure. If he is not reengaged and tenure is thus precluded he is surely interested in knowing why and every human consideration along with all thoughts of elemental fairness and justice suggest that, when he asks, he be told why. Perhaps the statement of reasons will disclose correctible deficiencies and be of service in guiding his future conduct; perhaps it will disclose that the non-retention was due to factors unrelated to his professional or classroom performance and its availability may aid him in obtaining future teaching employment; perhaps it will serve other purposes fairly helpful to him as suggested in Drown v. Portsmouth School District, 435 F.2d 1182; and perhaps the very requirement that reasons be stated would, as suggested in Monks v. N.J. State Parole Board, 58 N.J. 238 (1971), serve as a significant discipline on the board itself against arbitrary or abusive exercise of its broad discretionary powers.

In the instant case, appellant is already a tenured teaching staff member employed by respondent, Jefferson Township Board of Education. He is the head La crosse coach. There is no evidence that appellant requested a Donaldson Hearing on his non-tenured soccer coach position. Appellant did not dispute respondent's assertions about meeting with him to discuss deficiencies and the need to enroll in as many educational courses as possible to remedy the deficiencies. Appellant did not dispute having discussions with respondent about the lack of inter-personal skills.

(CREDIBILITY)

Credibility is a factor that must be considered in a determination as to which party's version of a situation has the reasonable probability of the truth. The interest, motive, bias or prejudice of a witness may affect credibility and justify the trier whose province it is to pass upon the credibility of an interested witness in disbelieving that testimony. A trier of fact may reject testimony because it is inherently incredible, or because it is inconsistent with other testimony or with common experience, or because it is overborne by other testimony. In this matter, the testimony of all the witnesses was taken into thorough consideration and I found the testimony of all witnesses to be credible.

CONCLUSION

Based on the law, the credible testimonial and documentary evidence, I CONCLUDE that the affirmative vote of only four board members on a nine-member board was insufficient to reappoint appellant to the position of soccer coach for the 2010/2011 school year.

I also CONCLUDE that respondent adhered to the requirements of the New Jersey State Statue in determining that a recorded roll-call majority vote of the full membership of the board was needed to appoint or renew the employment of a certificated or non-certificated staff member, which included appellant as a non-certified soccer coach.

Finally, I CONCLUDE that the totality of facts and circumstances in this case do not substantiate appellant's contention that respondent's vote to not reappoint him was arbitrary and capricious.

ORDER

Based on all of the foregoing, I ORDER that the determination of respondent to not reappoint appellant as soccer coach for the 2010/2011 school year because a majority of the full board did not vote in favor of reappointment, be AFFIRMED.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

 BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY : OF BAYONNE, HUDSON COUNTY :

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner filed a Pro Se residency appeal in March 2011, challenging the respondent Board's determination that her sons, B.J.C. and E.J.C., are not entitled to a free public education in Bayonne schools. Petitioner sought to have her sons finish the school year in Bayonne schools and asserted that she was temporarily residing in Newark for financial reasons, but intended to move back to Bayonne. The respondent Board filed a counterclaim seeking payment of tuition for the period of B.J.C. and E.J.C.'s ineligible attendance in the district's schools, between January 31, 2011 and June 22, 2011.

The ALJ identified the issues in this case to be whether petitioner and her sons were domiciled in Bayonne from January 31, 2011 to the end of the 2010-2011 school year and, if not, what amount of tuition reimbursement would be due from petitioner to respondent for the period of ineligible attendance. The ALJ found that: the weight of the evidence – including petitioner's statements to teachers, to the superintendent of schools, and to the Commissioner in her pro se residency appeal – indicates that petitioner and her two sons were not domiciled in Bayonne during the 2010-2011 school year. Accordingly, the ALJ recommended upholding the determination of the respondent Board to remove the children from the school system and ordering petitioner to reimburse the Board for 94 days each of tuition at the rate of $50 per day per child.

Upon review of the record and the Initial Decision, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ that subsequent to January 31, 2011, petitioner and her children have not been domiciled in Bayonne and are consequently not eligible for a free public education in the district's schools. The Commissioner concluded that the petitioner must reimburse respondent for back tuition as itemized in the un rebutted affidavit of Bayonne's District Superintendent, Patricia L. McGeehan, in the amount of $9400. The Commissioner also clarified that contrary to the account of this case's procedural history set forth in the Initial Decision, he had not upheld the determination of the respondent Board prior to sending the case to the OAL, but had simply sent the case to the OAL for fact-finding and recommendations.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY	:
OF BAYONNE, HUDSON COUNTY	:

This matter came to the Commissioner as an appeal of respondent's determination that petitioner's children were not entitled to receive a free public education in its school district. The Commissioner has reviewed the record and Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL)¹ and, at the outset, wishes to clarify a portion of the procedural history set forth in the Initial Decision.

More specifically, the Initial Decision appears to suggest that upon receipt of the petition challenging respondent's residency determination, the Commissioner found in favor of respondent and – upon petitioner's request – sent the matter to the OAL for further review. (Initial Decision at 2 and 5) The sequence of events, however, was as follows. The Petition was filed with the Commissioner on March 22, 2011. The Commissioner made no determination at that time, but rather sent the case to the OAL for fact-finding and legal recommendations. Having received the OAL's findings and recommendations by way of the December 7, 2011 Initial Decision, the Commissioner now issues his findings, conclusions and order.

Upon consideration of the record, the Commissioner concurs with the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) that subsequent to January 31, 2011, petitioner's minor children have not been domiciled in respondent's district and have consequently not been eligible for a free public education in respondent's schools. Because respondent filed a counterclaim for back tuition, the Commissioner must determine the amount of tuition, if any, that is due.

In the record is an un rebutted affidavit from respondent's District Superintendent, Patricia L. McGeehan, averring that the daily cost for educating petitioner's two children from January 31, 2011 through the end of the 2010-2011 school year was $100.00 (for both). (Respondent's Exhibit R-7, Paragraph 6) McGeehan further alleged in the affidavit that there were 94 school days from January 31, 2011 to the end of the school year, bringing the total cost of the children's education during the period of ineligibility to $9400. (Ibid.)

Accordingly, the petition is dismissed, respondent's disenrollment of petitioner's children is upheld, and petitioner shall reimburse respondent for back tuition in the amount of $9400.

IT IS SO ORDERED.²

Decided: December 7, 2011

BEFORE SANDRA ANN ROBINSON, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

On October 21, 2010, petitioner E.Z. met with two teachers in the Bayonne School System; namely, C. Aceti and S. Chrapkowski. During discussions petitioner stated that she no longer lived in Bayonne, New Jersey and was living in Newark, New Jersey but did not want her children to attend school in Newark. On November 17, 2010, petitioner attended a Bayonne Board of Education (BOE) meeting and when questioned about her residency she reiterated that she lived in Newark but did not want her children to attend the Newark Public Schools. Petitioner also advised Bayonne School System Assistant Superintendent of Schools Robert C. Craig about her residency in Newark.

On February 10, 2011, respondent's counsel wrote petitioner to provide notice that her children would be removed from the Bayonne School System because she was not domiciled in Bayonne. The notice provided information about petitioner's right to contest the removal before the Bayonne BOE; calculation of prorated tuition to the time of ineligibility and how tuition is computed to determine the amount petitioner owes respondent. A hearing before the BOE was scheduled for February 24, 2011.

A BOE hearing was conducted by the BOE Attendance Committee and after determining that petitioner was not properly domiciled in the City of Bayonne, the BOE voted to remove the children from the Bayonne School System. In respondent's letter, dated February 28, 2011, petitioner was advised of her right to appeal the BOE decision to the Commissioner of Education (Commissioner) within twenty-one days of receiving the letter. Petitioner was also advised that her children could not remain in the Bayonne School System beyond twenty-one days if an appeal was not filed. Should she file an appeal the children could remain pending the outcome of the Commissioner's determination.

On March 22, 2011, the Commissioner received petitioner's "Pro Se Residency Appeal." The Commissioner upheld the determination of the Bayonne BOE to remove the children from the School System. Petitioner was advised that she could contest the BOE residency determination by appealing to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL).

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The Department of Education Bureau of Controversies and Disputes transmitted this case to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on March 30, 2011, for a hearing pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14 F-1 et seq. A prehearing conference was scheduled for June 1, 2011, before The Honorable James A. Geraghty, ALJ. The prehearing was postponed due to a need to reassign the case. The undersigned assumed responsibility for the case on June 3, 2011. A prehearing conference was completed on June 30, 2011. A de novo hearing was completed on August 18, 2011. The exhibits appearing in the Appendix were marked into evidence. The record remained open for the parties to discuss the need for additional testimony to resolve the issue of what date petitioner was told to remove her children. The parties also wanted to discuss the possibility of a payment plan if the first issue could be resolved. On August 29, 2011, OAL received a letter from respondent (copied to the petitioner), dated August 25, 2011, that had attached a revised Affidavit from the superintendent of schools. The Affidavit includes the per diem amount owed by petitioner from January 31, 2011, to the end of the 2010/2011 school year (SY). The letter also set forth that respondent would accept a proposed payment plan offered by petitioner and forward the plan to the BOE for review and a vote for approval.

A telephone hearing was scheduled for August 30, 2011, but petitioner was unavailable. Several unsuccessful attempts were made by OAL to set up a telephone conference with petitioner and respondent. A peremptory status conference was scheduled for October 17, 2011, and took place. Petitioner was asked if she would commit to a payment plan with the information appearing on the revised Affidavit or whether she intended to withdraw her case. Petitioner advised that she did not have the money to pay.

The record remained open for thirty days without any further contact or a decision regarding a payment plan from petitioner. The record was closed on November 17, 2011.

ISSUE

Did petitioner and her two sons reside in Bayonne, New Jersey from January 31, 2011, to the end of the 2010/2011 SY? If residency is not established, what is the amount of the tuition reimbursement due from petitioner to respondent?

E.Z., petitioner, testified,

I temporarily reside in Newark because of financial concerns. I am saving money to pay the security and rent to return to Bayonne. I was evicted from my residence, however I recently found a job in Jersey City. When I pay off my old debt I want to move back to Bayonne. I am a single parent of three children and it is hard to make ends meet. I do not want my children to go to school in Newark, it will be best for them if I can find a place in Bayonne and return.

The Assistant Superintendent spoke with me in November 2010, but I was not told to remove my children. I explained my situation to him. I was never questioned about paying tuition. On a separate occasion the Vice Principal, Patricia Dziubek, told me to move back to Bayonne or take my children out of school by January 31, 2011.

Ms. Christina Mercun, principal of Midtown Community School, the school that petitioner's children attended, testified under sworn oath via telephone, "I am not certain of the content of the conversation between the Vice Principal Dziubek and petitioner."

FINDINGS OF FACT

Based on the law, the credible testimonial and documentary evidence, I FIND the following as FACTS in this matter:

1. On October 21, 2010, petitioner informed her son's school teacher that she and her sons were living in Newark, N.J.;

2. On November 17, 2010, petitioner attended a Bayonne Board of Education meeting and informed teachers that she resided in Newark, N.J.;
3. Petitioner also informed the superintendent of schools that she resided in Newark, N.J.;
4. Respondent held a Board Attendance Committee meeting on February 24, 2011, and the Committee determined that petitioner did not reside in Bayonne. The Committee presented the case to the full-board membership of Bayonne BOE and the BOE voted to remove petitioner's children from the Bayonne School System;
5. On February 28, 2011, respondent wrote to petitioner to provide formal notice of the determination of the BOE to remove the children and to advise petitioner of her right to contest the determination by appealing to the Commissioner of Education within twenty-one days;
6. Petitioner's appeal to the Commissioner was unsuccessful. The Commissioner upheld the determination of the Bayonne BOE;
7. Petitioner requested an appeal before the OAL;
8. Petitioner did not provide evidence that her residency was in Bayonne during the 2010/2011 SY;
9. Petitioner did not provide evidence of a temporary residency;
10. Petitioner did not dispute or refute respondent's presentation in regard to the entire matter; except for the date she was told her children had to leave the Bayonne School System.

LEGAL DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS

A student is eligible to attend a school free of charge if the student is domiciled within the school district. A student is domiciled in the school district when he or she is living with a parent or legal guardian whose permanent home is located within the district. A home is permanent when the parent or guardian intends to return to it after being absent from the home and has no present intent of moving from the home, notwithstanding the existence of homes or residences elsewhere. N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a)(1). Domicile may also be defined as a residence. N.J.S.A. 18A:1-1.

In accord with N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a)(1)(i), where a student's parents are domiciled within different school districts, and where there is no court order or written agreement between the parents designating the school district for school attendance, the student's domicile is the school district with whom the student lives for the majority of the school year, regardless of which parent has legal custody.

Consideration in proving residency for purposes of establishing eligibility for school district placement is found at N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.4(a),

(a) A district board of education shall accept a combination of any of the following or similar forms of documentation from persons attempting to demonstrate a student's eligibility for enrollment in the school district:

1. Property tax bills, deeds, contracts of sale, leases, mortgages, signed letters from landlords and other evidence of property ownership, tenancy or residency;

2. Voter registrations, licenses, permits, financial account information, utility bills, delivery receipts, and other evidence of personal attachment to a particular location;

...

4. Receipts, bills, cancelled checks, insurance claims or payments, and other evidence of expenditures demonstrating personal attachment to a particular location, or, where applicable, to support of the student;

...

6. Affidavits, certifications and sworn attestations pertaining to statutory criteria for school attendance, from the parent, guardian, person keeping an "affidavit student," adult student, person(s) with whom a family is living, or others as appropriate;

...

8. Any other business record or document issued by a governmental entity.

(b) A district board of education may accept forms of documentation not listed in (a) above, and shall not exclude from consideration any documentation or information presented by a person seeking to enroll a student.

(c) Information and documentation offered by an applicant, shall not be deny enrollment based on failure to provide a particular form of documentation, or a particular subset of documents, without regard to other evidence presented.

N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a) and N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a) sets forth the right of a student to a free public education, which in pertinent parts states:

Public schools shall be free to the following persons over five and under 20 years of age:

a. Any person who is domiciled within the school district[.]

...

(a) A student over five and under 20 years of age pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, or such younger or older student as is otherwise entitled by law to free public education, is eligible to attend school in a school district if the student is domiciled within the district.

CONCLUSION

Based on all of the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that the weight of the evidence including petitioner's statements to teachers, the superintendent of schools, and the Commissioner of Education, on the application for appeal, indicates that petitioner and her two sons were not domiciled in Bayonne, New Jersey, during the 2010/2011 SY.

ORDER

It is ORDERED that the determination of the Bayonne Board of Education that E.Z. was not domiciled in the Bayonne School District for the 2010/2011 SY, is AFFIRMED.

It is further ORDERED that the Bayonne Board of Education be entitled to tuition reimbursement from petitioner for the 2010/2011 SY in the amounts of:

$4,700 for B.J.C. at 94 days in 2010/2011 SY @ $50 per day

$4,700 for E.J.C. at 94 days in the 2010/2011 SY @ $50 per day.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE : DECISION

BOROUGH OF KINNELON, :

MORRIS COUNTY, :

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, a non-tenured special education teacher formerly employed by respondent's school district, appealed the Board's determination not to offer her a teaching contract for the 2010-2011 school year. Petitioner asserted that the action of the respondent Board were arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable, citing, inter alia, an email inadvertently sent to petitioner by the principal in which a vice principal was directed to revise petitioner's evaluation to make it "more negative". Respondent Board contended that petitioner was not offered a contract for a fourth year of employment because her performance in her first three years did not rise to the level expected for tenure candidates in the Kinnelon school district.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: petitioner was employed by respondent for three consecutive academic years; petitioner received timely notice that she was not being recommended for a fourth consecutive contract; the evidence presented by both parties indicated a factual basis for respondent's determination to non-renew petitioner for a fourth year, which would have allowed her to achieve tenure; changes made in petitioner's evaluations subsequent to the email exchange between the principal and vice principal are consistent with petitioner's earlier evaluations; the decision not to offer petitioner a contract for a fourth year was based on the consensus of eight administrators who met in January 2010 to discuss candidates for tenure in the next school year; petitioner was not tenured pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 at the time of her non-renewal; and local boards of education have an almost complete right to terminate the services of a non-tenured teacher. The ALJ concluded that petitioner failed to meet her burden to prove that respondent's reasons for not offering her a contract for the 2010-2011 school year were arbitrary, capricious or in bad faith. Accordingly, the ALJ denied petitioner's appeal.

Upon a full and independent review, the Commissioner concurred with the Administrative Law Judge that petitioner failed to meet her burden to show that respondent acted in an arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable manner, and dismissed the petition. In so doing, the Commissioner noted that respondent did not assert that petitioner was a substandard employee, but rather that she did not rise to the level it expected for tenure candidates.

BOROUGH OF KINNELON,	:

RESPONDENT.	:

Before the Commissioner is an appeal of respondent's decision not to rehire petitioner for a fourth year of employment as a special education teacher. After review of the record, Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), petitioner's exceptions and respondent's reply thereto, the Commissioner concurs with the Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) conclusion that petitioner failed to meet her burden to show that respondent acted arbitrarily, capriciously, or unreasonably.

At the outset, the Commissioner notes that respondent has not asserted that petitioner was a substandard employee. Rather, respondent explains that petitioner did not rise to the level that it expected for tenure candidates. A review of petitioner's evaluations reveals that throughout her three contract years she consistently received average ratings – by six different evaluators. In regular evaluations that included 16 to 22 performance categories, petitioner only once received more than three ratings of the highest level: "Masters District Standard." Her annual evaluations were also average. The testimony of respondent's high school principal,

Wayne Merckling, indicated that when deciding whether to allow an employee to achieve tenure – a more permanent status in the district – the administration would usually recommend teachers who had achieved more of the higher level ratings. (T1 at 230¹) Also manifest in the record is evidence that petitioner was informed on multiple occasions both verbally and in writing that specific aspects of her performance needed improvement.

Some of respondent's concerns about petitioner were unresolved when it was time to decide whether to recommend her for a fourth year – and tenure. Such concerns have been held to be sufficient grounds for the nonrenewal of non-tenured employees, which nonrenewal is not subject to the same level of scrutiny as is applicable when districts decide to end the employment of tenured individuals:

[A]bsent constitutional constraints or legislation affecting the tenure rights of a teacher, local boards of education have an almost complete right to terminate the services of a teacher who has no tenure and is regarded as undesirable by the local board.

Dore v. Bedminster Town Bd. of Educ., 185 N.J. 447, 456 (1982).

Further, the allowable reasons relied upon by local boards are not limited to those set forth in the evaluations of subject employees. Id. at 454. Local boards have the right to reach conclusions about non-tenured teachers based upon a broad range of input received from a variety of people, including members of the public, parents of students and board members' own knowledge of teachers. Ibid. Ultimately, the standard by which to evaluate a local board's approval of the chief school administrator's recommendation not to renew an employment contract is found in N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1 (b). That statute instructs simply that "[t]he board shall not withhold its approval for arbitrary and capricious reasons." The Commissioner is satisfied that enough evidence exists in the record to support the proposition that 1) respondent had ongoing concerns about petitioner and 2) did not arbitrarily decline to renew her.

Petitioner's exceptions rely heavily on her contention that emails from Principal Merckling to Vice Principal Matthew Scalon concerning the drafting and redrafting of her Spring 2010 tenure recommendation forms – which emails were inadvertently copied to her – revealed “arbitrary and capricious acts such as lying and manufactured reasons by the Board.” (Petitioner's Exceptions at 4) Petitioner urges that the two referenced emails – Petitioner's Exhibits P-G and P-J – in which Merckling asked Scalon to “make [the drafts] more negative,” signified malicious intent which, petitioner maintains, must be regarded as the kind of arbitrariness that necessarily invalidates respondent's action of declining to renew her contract.

One can understand how the unexpected receipt of copies of Merckling's negative and cryptic emails to Scalon could have caused petitioner distress. The emails were erroneously transmitted, and signaled that – contrary to petitioner's expectations – her employment might be at risk. However, the Commissioner finds no basis in the record to accept petitioner's suggestion that the emails and altered drafts denoted bad faith.

Both Merckling and respondent's Superintendent, James Opiekun, testified that the decision not to rehire petitioner had been made months before the April 2010 emails. In January 2010, a meeting of district administrators (“Administrator's Table” as per Merckling on T1 at 171) had been held to discuss the six district teachers who were then up for tenure, at which a consensus had been manifest that petitioner and three other teachers should not be recommended for rehire.² Merckling testified that his April 8, 2010 emails to Scalon – a former

English teacher who was assisting with drafts of petitioner's summary evaluation and tenure recommendation – were not intended to fabricate deficiencies, but rather were ill-worded attempts to better incorporate the concerns that had been expressed at the January "Administrator's Table". (T1 at 205-208)

Further, as the respondent alleges, the changes that were actually made to the drafts of petitioner's summary evaluation/tenure recommendation were not extensive. (T1 at 121) There were few changes to the multiple choice sections of the evaluation (some for the better). Also, the narratives added to the fifth and sixth pages of the revised draft were not inconsistent with notations in previous evaluations and other notices to petitioner addressing issues concerning her performance.

Thus, the Commissioner finds that the emails between Merckling and Scalon resulted in an evaluation which was consistent with previously expressed concerns about petitioner's performance level. Similarly, the reasons for petitioner's non-renewal – provided to her in a letter dated May 20, 2010 from Superintendent Opiekun, see Petitioner's Exhibit B, page 2 – corresponded to issues about which petitioner had been previously advised.

In summary, petitioner has not shown that respondent's action in declining to renew her employment was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. The petition is accordingly dismissed.

Decided: December 6, 2011

BEFORE EVELYN J. MAROSE, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner, Donna Trisuzzi, appeals the decision of the Kinnelon Board of Education (Kinnelon) not to offer her a teaching contract for the 2010-2011, which contract was essential for her to receive tenure in the fall of September 2010. The New Jersey State Department of Education transmitted the the matter to the Office of Administrative Law, where it was filed on September 3, 2010. Hearings were held on February 3, 2011, and February 4, 2011. The record was held open for post-hearing submissions and reply submissions until May 31, 2011, at which time the record closed. Due to a voluminous caseload, the time for the issuance of this Initial Decision was extended to January 12, 2012.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION AND FINDINGS

Petitioner was employed as a special education teacher at Kinnelon High School for three-consecutive academic years. She was not offered an employment contract for the fourth consecutive year. Petitioner challenges the failure of the Kinnelon to renew her contract. Petitioner testified on her own behalf. Wayne Merckling, principal and James Opiekun, district superintendent, testified on behalf of Kinnelon.

PETITIONER'S EVIDENCE

Petitioner became a teacher in 1979, and worked in several school districts before being hired by Kinnelon, where she worked as a special education teacher, from September 2007 to June 2010. The classroom evaluations that petitioner received during her employment included many positive comments, and some suggestions for improvement. One area in which petitioner was told that she had to improve was punctuality. Petitioner was rarely late to sign in the school office, but more frequently late to her first-assigned classroom. At the OAL hearing, petitioner submitted an "Evaluation Commentary of Evaluators."¹ In addition to numerous specific comments, the summary includes the kind of evaluation, the date of the evaluation, the name of the evaluator and rating that was received by petitioner, as follows:

- 1.) Observation Report, January 9, 2008, Dr. Wayne Merckling (principal - evaluator); 16 out of 16 teaching indicators were noted to be met and/or mastered.

¹ This document was also provided to the Board of Education members for her tenure hearing on June 24, 2010.

- 2.) Observation Report, April 10, 2008, Matthew Scanlon (vice principal - evaluator); 16 out of 16 teaching indicators were noted to be met and/or mastered.
- 3.) Annual Evaluation Narrative, June 9, 2008, Dr. Richard Maizell (director of special education - evaluator); 6 out of 6 teaching indicators were noted to be met and/or mastered.
- 4.) Observation Report, November 14, 2008, Dr. Richard Maizell (evaluator); 22 out of 22 teaching indicators were noted to be met and/or mastered.
- 5.) Observation Report, January 13, 2009, Dr. Wayne Merckling (evaluator); 19 out of 21 teaching indicators were noted to be met and/or mastered, 2 indicators approach district standards.
- 6.) Observation Report, March 12, 2009, Dr. Martha Croley (supervisor of mathematics - evaluator); 16 out of 17 teaching indicators were noted to be met and/or mastered.
- 7.) Annual Evaluation Narrative, May 21, 2009, Dr. Richard Maizell (evaluator); 6 out of 6 teaching areas were noted to be met and/or mastered.
- 8.) Observation Report, October 26, 2009, Dr. Richard Maizell (evaluator); 19 out of 22 teaching indicators were noted to be met and/or mastered, 3 indicators were listed as "approaches district standards."
- 9.) Observation Report, February 9, 2010, Scott Rosenberg, (assistant principal for athletics and student activities - evaluator); 16 out of 16 teaching indicators were noted to be met and/or mastered.
- 10.) Observation Report, April 30, 2010, Meredith Charles (evaluator); 14 out of 17 teaching indicators were noted to be met and/or mastered, 3 indicators were labeled as "approaches district standards."
- 11.) Components of Professional Practice, April 8, 2010, Dr. Wayne Merckling, (evaluator); 43 of 61 indicators were noted to be exemplary and consistent levels of instructions, 17 indicators were noted as not consistently evident, and 1 as lacking. (P-F.)

12.) Annual Staff Summary, 2009-10, Dr. Wayne Merckling (evaluator).

In addition to her classroom responsibilities, during her employment, petitioner served as cheerleading advisor. For several contract years, she served as moderator of the Trust Club. Petitioner is particularly proud of her work with the the Trust Club, which provides social opportunities for special needs children at the elementary level to interact with high school students, both with and without special needs. Though the idea for the Trust Club originated with a parent group, petitioner was its first moderator. The Club was one of twelve entries, out of fifty-three programs, that were selected for recognition by the New Jersey School Boards Association in April 2010. (P-I.) During her employment, petitioner also served as the Keys to Literacy Coach, a program designed to help low-achieving students do better on standardized tests. She was also involved in Adventure, a special education department program designed to help control behavior issues of special education children. She served as head appraiser for Challenge D, in the Destination Imagination competition that was held in Robbinsville High School. Petitioner also created her own program to assist special needs students having difficulty eating in the cafeteria. She transitioned the students from a small-group-classroom eating experience to the larger cafeteria environment. For a period of time, petitioner was also appointed by Principal Merckling to function as a lead teacher for several other staff.

Upon cross-examination, petitioner acknowledged that she received some negative feedback on issues relating to her employment. However, she was adamant that substantially all of the feedback that she received was above satisfactory and better; that she used less-than above-satisfactory feedback to perform at even higher levels; and that she received no indication she would not achieve tenure. On April 8, 2010, she was shocked when she received an e-mail that was inadvertently sent to her by Principal Merckling, but was meant for Matthew Scalon, vice principal. She was the subject of the e-mail, which stated:

Matt:

Tomorrow, try to make this more negative, also.

Wayne

Petitioner did not feel safe after reading the e-mail, which directed the vice principal to revise her evaluation to be more negative. (P-G, P-J.) She was stressed and nervous all of the time. She began to "second guess" herself. On April 30, 2011, petitioner received official notice that she would not be offered a contract for the 2010-11 school term. The letter also advised her of her procedural rights, relating to the decision not to offer her a contract. (P-A.) Had petitioner received a contract for the 2010-2011 school term, and worked one day, petitioner would have earned tenure.

On May 6, 2010, petitioner drafted a letter to James Opiekun, Kinnelon's superintendent of schools. She requested the written, specific, and detailed reasons that she was not offered a contract for the 2010-11 school term.² (P-B.) By letter dated May 20, 2010, Superintendent Opiekun advised petitioner of the following:

A review of your observations and evaluations does not demonstrate adequate progress towards meeting district standards. There are concerns around:

- Teacher interaction with students
- Performance of non-instructional duties
- Management of instructional groups
- Communicating directions and procedures
- Engaging students in the learning process
- Providing accurate and timely feedback to students
- Adequate supervision of students during extra-curriculum activities
- Punctuality

² On May 13, 2010, and May 17, 2010, petitioner also inadvertently received e-mails, relating to the evaluation of her performance that were meant for other staff and not petitioner. (P-K, P-L.)

[(P-B.)]

Petitioner stated that she was shocked by the detailed reasons that allegedly supported her failure to receive a contract. However, when subject to cross-examination, petitioner's testimony indicates that she has knowledge of certain incidents that could be viewed as supporting Kinnelon's concerns. When she held the position of Junior Variety Cheerleading Coach, petitioner acknowledged that she was spoken to, by Athletic Director Rosenberg, about the impropriety of the cheerleaders practicing unsupervised in the gym. Although she denied the veracity of the accusation, petitioner also acknowledged that two girls on the cheerleading squad complained to the administration that she called them "retards." (R-22.)

Petitioner acknowledged that Richard Maizell, the Director of Special Education and petitioner's direct supervisor, spoke to her about several incidents, that Kinnelon characterized as concerns that were considered when determining whether to offer petitioner a fourth year contract. Director Maizell expressed his concerns, in writing, about her duty to compile a summer reading list and about the misspelled items on the list after it was compiled. He spoke to her about her lesson plans not being done in a timely manner and without prompting from him. Director Maizell spoke to petitioner about a change in an IEP that he believed she had made without the consent of a parent (R-23.) He also spoke to her about the manner in which petitioner made arrangements and obtained approval for home instruction, which was not in accordance with District procedure. (R-24.)

Petitioner acknowledged that she had been spoken to by Principal Merckling about being late for her classroom on several occasions and about the number of sick days that she used in the 2009-10 school term. Principal Merckling also spoke to petitioner about Trust Club students going to a grammar school to work on a Trust Club activity, without her supervision.

In accordance with her statutory rights, after receiving the May 1, 2010 letter wherein Kinnelon provided petitioner with written, specific and detailed reasons that she was not offered a contract for the 2010-11 year, by letter dated May 27, 2010, petitioner requested an informal hearing before the Board of Education. Her request was granted. She was informed, by letter dated June 1, 2010, that her hearing would be June 24, 2010, immediately after the regular board meeting. (P-C., R-3.)

By letter dated June 17, 2010, petitioner advised Kinnelon that she had retained legal representation. (R-4.) In response, Kinnelon's legal counsel advised petitioner's attorney that petitioner would be allotted fifteen minutes to make a presentation at the Board of Education meeting. (R-4.) As part of their presentation to the Board, petitioner and her attorney provided Board of Education members with selected comments from petitioner's evaluations, that counsel argued clearly proved petitioner should be offered a fourth year contract. (P-E.) By letter dated July 1, 2010, the Business Administrator/Board Secretary informed petitioner that, "after deliberation and review of the complete record, the Board decided to uphold the Superintendent's recommendation for non-renewal of her contract." (P-D, R-5.)

Subsequent to being advised she would not be rehired for the 2010-11 school term, petitioner received letters of recommendation from certain parents and members of the Kinnelon staff. She submitted some of the letters as exhibits at the hearing. (P-H.) Petitioner is presently employed as a special education teacher at Bridges Academy, which is part of Bloomfield High School. However, should her appeal prevail, she would return to Kinnelon.

RESPONDENT'S EVIDENCE

Principal Merckling described Kinnelon as a prestigious school district, with stringent requirements for tenure. The goal is to offer tenure to only the best candidates for a teaching position. He stated that in January 2010, he met with Kinnelon administrators to review the six candidates who would become tenured teachers, if they were offered a contract for the 2010-11 school term and worked one day in September 2010. Four of the six teachers were not offered a fourth contract. Like petitioner, the other three teachers not offered tenure also had numerous positive comments in their evaluations.

Not every administrator at the January meeting had conducted a classroom observation of each candidate. However, Principal Merckling stated that he had observed petitioner for a sufficient amount of time to evaluate her as a candidate for tenure. While written evaluations were not reviewed at the meeting, copies of the evaluations of the teachers being considered for tenure were available for review by the meeting participants prior to the meeting. The decision regarding the candidates was characterized as a consensus, rather than the result of a vote. Every administrator had the opportunity to give his or her verbal input on each candidate. Principal Merckling stated that the consensus of the group was unanimous not to offer tenure to petitioner. Among the topics discussed relating to petitioner were her tardiness, numerous incidents where she failed to supervise students involved in extra-curricular activities that she moderated or coached, and the complaints of parents of two cheerleaders that petitioner had referred to their daughters as "retards."

Principal Merckling admitted that petitioner had received several e-mails relating to her evaluation in April and May that should have been sent to an administrator and not sent to petitioner. The substance of the e-mails was the drafting of petitioner's evaluation. Principal Merckling stated that his goal in requesting the evaluation revision was to make the evaluation more accurate in rating and performance comments and consistent with the group consensus at the January 2010 meeting. He acknowledged that saying that his word choice, "Try to make this more negative, also." was a poor word choice. Dr. Merckling adamantly stated that petitioner's spring evaluation was not the determining factor that prevented petitioner from obtaining tenure. The decision not to offer petitioner a fourth contract, for the 2010-11 school term, had been made three-to-four months earlier, in January 2010, when she and other teachers "up for tenure" considered for a fourth year contract.

Upon cross-examination, Principal Merckling answered numerous questions about petitioner's evaluations. As noted by the principal, the evaluations include many positive comments, and some areas where improvement is recommended. The evaluations, which speak for themselves, were produced by respondents in their entirety, as the following exhibits:

- 1.) Observation Report, dated October 24, 2007 (R-6.)
- 2.) Observation Report, January 9, 2008 (R-7.)
- 3.) Observation Report, April 10, 2008 (R-8.)
- 4.) Annual Evaluation Narrative, June 9, 2008 (R-9.)
- 5.) Observation Report, November 14, 2008 (R-10.)
- 6.) Observation Report, January 13, 2009 (R-11.)
- 7.) Observation Report, March 12, 2009 (R-12.)
- 8.) Annual Evaluation Narrative, May 21, 2009 (R-13.)
- 9.) Observation Report, October 26, 2009 (R-14.)
- 10.) Observation Report, February 9, 2010 (R-15.)
- 11.) Observation Report, April 30, 2010 (R-16.)
- 12.) Components of Professional Practice, April 8, 2010 (R-17.)
- 13.) Annual Staff Summary, May 2009-10 (R-17.)

Kinnelon also submitted petitioner's rebuttal to Kinnelon's Components of Professional Practice and Annual Staff Summary, dated June 3, 2010. Some rebuttal comments submitted by petitioner indicate that a problem existed. For example, petitioner agrees that some of the student grades that she entered were not correct, but states that the online grading program was new. Other rebuttal comments reflect a denial of the problem. For example, petitioner was rated as not "consistently organizing" classroom physical space for safety through the arrangement of furniture. In her rebuttal, petitioner states that no safety issues were ever brought to her attention. She also states that she taught in three different rooms that are used by other teachers and their students, as well as, petitioner and her students. (R-18.)

A letter from Principal Merckling to petitioner, dated January 7, 2010, was also introduced into evidence. In the letter, he advised petitioner that he had once again observed her students waiting for petitioner after the first-period bell had rung. Principal

Merckling noted his disappointment that petitioner had not ended what he characterized as a pattern of lateness. He emphasized that petitioner had to not only be in the office by 7:25 a.m., but she needed to be in her classroom for the first block by 7:30 a.m. (R-21.) Kinnelon also introduced into evidence an e-mail exchange between a parent and petitioner (with carbon copies to others). The parent expressed concern that her daughter's grade went from a B to a D-, without her knowledge. Regardless of petitioner's reply, the letter evidences a complaint that petitioner did not provide accurate and timely feedback, one of Kinnelon's stated reasons for not offering petitioner a fourth-year contract. (R-20.)

Superintendent James Opiekun testified as to the tenure procedure. He stated that of the 165 teachers that he hired, 93 were recommended for tenure, 45 did not receive tenure and 27 were not yet at the point that they were being considered for a fourth contract. He noted that Kinnelon was rated as 21st in New Jersey. Since Superintendent Opiekun believes that teachers who receive tenure basically receive a lifetime-employment contract, his goal is to only recommend to the board of education those teachers who can be recommended without any reservation. He came to have "reservations" about petitioner.

Superintendent Opiekun's first experience with petitioner was learning of the parental complaint that petitioner used the word "retards" toward her cheerleading squad, and that the squad was practicing unsupervised. Upon cross-examination, he did acknowledge that the students' allegation of the use of the word "retards" was uncorroborated by staff. However, he noted that incidents of unsupervised cheerleading practice were corroborated. R-22.)

Superintendent Opiekun became aware of other negative comments relating to petitioner, including reports that she was arriving late to her classes, which left her students unsupervised until she arrived. He characterized her tardiness as particularly egregious since it left special education children unsupervised. (R-13, R-21.) Superintendent Opiekun also learned that her work contained typographic errors (R-10.), that she had failed to report a child's absence after lunch in a timely manner (R-12.), that her students were observed "drifting off" (R-6, R-9.), and that the subject matter that she was presenting was not being sequentially presented and/or organized. (R-11, R-14.)

Superintendent Opiekun, like Principal Merckling, stated that the tenure decisions were made in a January 2010 meeting, where the Kinnelon administrators provided verbal feedback as to all of the candidates, including petitioner. The decision not to offer petitioner a fourth-year contract was a consensus decision of all the administrators. It was not based upon one evaluation, one comment, one incident, or one administrator's opinion. Superintendent Opiekun agreed with the consensus and made that recommendation to the school board. He affirmed that petitioner did not lose her position for budgetary reasons. Though other teachers were not re-hired in connection with budgetary restrictions—petitioner was replaced.

Superintendent Opiekun acknowledged that Principal Merckling told him that e-mails regarding petitioner's evaluations had inadvertently been sent to her, rather than to an intended staff member. While he felt the misdirected e-mails could become a union issue or legal matter, their transmittal did not change his intended recommendation that petitioner not receive a fourth-year contract. The administrative team (including the director of curriculum, supervisor of language arts, supervisor of mathematics, director of guidance, athletic director, director of special education, vice principal and principal), in a meeting in January 2010 concluded that they could not recommend petitioner for tenure. Petitioner's receipt of a poorly worded e-mail regarding how her evaluation was being revised for accuracy was unfortunate and unintended, but would not result in the reversal of the superintendent's recommendation.

Based upon a review of the testimony and the documentary evidence presented, and having had the opportunity to observe the demeanor and assess the credibility of the witnesses, I FIND the following pertinent FACTS:

Petitioner was employed by Kinnelon for three school terms as a special education teacher. During those years she received numerous evaluations, which reflect many positive comments and some areas where improvement is recommended.

Many of her evaluations memorialized a specific classroom observation. On January 2010, the Kinnelon administrators met to consider whether or not they would recommend six teachers for a fourth contract, essential to qualify for tenure. Verbal input was exchanged beyond classroom observations and written evaluations and included, among other things, parental feedback, extra-curricular activities, and non-instructional performance. The consensus among the administrators was not to recommend petitioner for a fourth-year contract. Petitioner was not advised in January 2010 that a decision had been made not to recommend her for tenure. Petitioner believed that the feedback she had received at Kinnelon indicated that she would be offered a fourth contract.

In April and May 2010, petitioner received three e-mails relating to revisions in the evaluation of her performance. In one e-mail, the school principal was directing the vice principal to make the evaluation "more negative, too." (P-G, P-K, P-L.) Based upon the wording of one e-mail and the negative changes in her evaluations after circulation of a first draft, petitioner came to feel that she was evaluated in "bad faith." When she was told of the decision not to offer her a fourth-year contract, she was convinced.

The documentary evidence presented does indicate that Petitioner's Renewal Profile somewhat changed negatively from one circulated draft to another. The earlier drafted version of petitioner's Renewal Profile indicates only one "mark" in the no column, under attendance/punctuality. In the revised version, petitioner received one more mark in the no column of the second version, under the category; professional dress, responsiveness to administrative suggestions, and initiatives, willingness to respond to district and building needs.³ In addition, the following two sentences are added under the two horizontal columns:

I am unable to recommend Donna Trisuzzi for tenure because of her continued inability to arrive at school on time, resulting in her students waiting unattended outside her door or having a colleague watch them until she arrives. In addition, failure to take advantage of small groups of students for trying less formal teaching strategies as well as insufficient use of technology was disappointing.

The first sentence, relating to her mark in the punctuality column is not viewed as a change of evaluation, but rather a more detailed explanation. The second sentence, which was not included in the first version, is certainly additional negative feedback, as is the added information that petitioner will be not be receiving tenure. (P-F; R-25.)

Petitioner's Components of Professional Practice also changed, somewhat for the negative, from one circulated version to another. As to the first four pages where petitioner's rating is indicated with an X, an earlier drafted version of petitioner's Components of Professional Practice, when compared to a later version, indicates three changes. She received a lower rate in the second version going from a "consistently evident" to "not consistently evident" in the category "Communicating Clearly and Accurately—Directions and Procedures." However, petitioner was actually rated higher in the later version in two categories. She was changed from a "not consistently evident" to a "consistently evident" in the category "Managing Student Behavior, Response to Student Behavior." And again "not consistently evident" was changed to a "consistently evident" in the category "Reflecting on Teaching—Use in Future Teaching". The following additional sentences reflecting negative comments were also added to the two-page narrative portion of the Components of Professional Practice:

At times reported student grades have been inaccurate.
Discussion and written concerns about arriving to school on time have not led to improvement.

Concerns have been raised by administrators of other buildings about supervision of students when visiting other buildings and notification of younger students of the planned activities.

[(P-J; R-17.)]

While the drafted evaluations changed in substance, petitioner had notice of the negative issues contained in the revisions prior to the April 8, 2010, the date when an instruction to try to make an evaluation more negative was given. (P-G.) For example, Kinnelon recommended, in writing, that petitioner take advantage of and use technology in her January 9, 2008, and June 9, 2008, evaluations. (R-7.) Petitioner's tardiness was addressed in her May 2008 evaluation. Her continued tardiness was characterized as an uncorrected pattern in a letter, dated January 7, 2010, sent to her by Principal Merckling. (R-13, R-21.) Petitioner acknowledged that some of her entries of student grades were inaccurate. (R-18.) It was agreed in testimony taken at the OAL hearing that some of the Trust Club students arrived at another school building to work on a project on a day that petitioner did not believe was scheduled for a Trust Club activity; and accordingly she was not in attendance to supervise them. Thus, while several negative comments were added to a later version of petitioner's Renewal Profile and Components of Professional Practice, I FIND that the evidence presented by both parties indicates a factual basis for Kinnelon to assert that it had concerns recommending petitioner for a fourth contract that would have allowed her to achieve tenure and that the changes in petitioner's post-April 8, 2010 evaluations, are consistent with her pre-April evaluations and the feedback that she received supplementing those evaluations.

LEGAL ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSIONS

"The teacher is a professional who has spent years in the course of attaining the necessary education and training." Yet, "when he is engaged as a teacher he is fully aware that he is serving a probationary period and may or may not ultimately attain tenure." Donaldson v. Bd. of Educ. of Wildwood, 65 N.J. 235, 245 (1974). To acquire tenure, the precise conditions in the statute must be met. A teaching staff member must: (1) work in a position for which a teaching certificate is required; (2) hold the appropriate certificate; and serve the required probationary period. The teaching staff member must hold employment in the district for three calendar years (unless a shorter period has been fixed by the employing board); or three-consecutive academic years, plus employment at the beginning of the next succeeding academic year; or the equivalent of more than three academic years within a period of any four-consecutive academic years. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5.

The board shall not withhold its approval for arbitrary and capricious reasons. N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1. Yet, "absent constitutional constraints or legislation affecting the tenure rights of teacher, local boards of education have an almost complete right to terminate the services of a teacher who has no tenure and is regarded as undesirable by the local board.” Dore v. Bedminister Town Bd. of Educ., 185 N.J. 447, 456 (182). The board has a right to reach its conclusion about a non-tenured teacher on a broad base of input received from a variety of people, including members of the public, parents of students and board member’s own knowledge of a teacher even if that knowledge is acquired through having a child in the teacher’s class. Id. at 454.

As argued by Kinnelon, indeed, the standard of review is actually much more stringent than “merely” arbitrary and capricious. The Commissioner of Education has held that “a non-tenured teaching staff member challenging a Board’s decision to terminate his employment on the grounds that the reasons given by the Board are not supported by the facts is entitled to litigate that question only if he facts he alleges, if true would constitute a violation of constitutional or legislatively conferred rights.” Adams v. Trenton Bd. of Educ., EDU 8237-07, Initial Decision (July 3, 2008), <http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search> (citing Guerriero v. Bd. of Educ. of the Borough of Glen Rock, State Board (February 5, 1986), aff’d, A-3316-85T6 (App. Div. 1986). A non-tenured employee challenging his or her non-renewal has to “demonstrate that the Board’s decision not to renew her contract was so far afield, so outside of the realm of rational, evidentially based decision-making as to fail to even stand as a reasonable determination.” Kondratick v. Hamburg Borough Bd. of Educ., EDU 11195-07, Initial Decision (June 29, 2009), <http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search>. The inquiry is whether petitioner has met her substantial burden of proof that the Board of Education “acted improperly to the exclusion of all of the bona fide reasons” that were asserted. Ibid. (quoting Bigart v. Paramus Bd. of Educ., 1979 S.L.D. 123, 133).

Petitioner was employed by Kinnelon for three-consecutive academic years. She received timely notice that she was not being recommended for a fourth-consecutive contract of employment. Upon request, Kinnelon advised her in writing of the reasons that she was not being recommended for a fourth contract, and scheduled fifteen minutes for petitioner’s attorney and petitioner to make a presentation to the board of education in rebuttal of the recommendation of the superintendent. After deliberation the board of education decided to uphold the recommendation of the superintendent.

At the OAL hearing, Kinnelon presented testamentary and documentary evidence as to the reasons why petitioner was not recommended for tenure. The decision not to offer petitioner a fourth-year contract was based upon the consensus of eight administrators who met in January 2010. They considered a broad base of input including their own in-classroom and out-of-classroom observations and the input of other administrators and parents in making their decision.

Though petitioner presented evidence that an initial draft of her spring 2010 evaluation was made more negative while it was being revised between the principal and vice principal, other evidence presented indicates that petitioner had prior notice of the negative concerns and the factual basis for the negative concerns contained in the final version of her Renewal Profile and Components of Professional Practice. I CONCLUDE that petitioner has failed to meet her burden and prove that Kinnelon's reasons for not offering her a contract for the 2010-11 school year was arbitrary, capricious, and in bad faith.

ORDER

It is ORDERED that petitioner's challenge of the non-renewal of her employment contract is hereby DENIED.,

I hereby FILE my Initial Decision with the DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified, or rejected by the DIRECTOR OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, which by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Director of the Division of Medical Assistance and Health Services does not adopt, modify or reject the decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the DIRECTOR OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, Mail Code #3, P.O. SYNOPSIS

In May 2011, the petitioner filed an appeal challenging her son's suspension from general education classes and his assignment to an alternative school. Petitioner also sought homebound instruction for J.W. pending a determination on the suspension. The parties executed a settlement agreement in June 2011 which disposed of the homebound instruction issue. At an October 2011 hearing regarding the issue of suspension, petitioner moved to rescind the settlement and litigate homebound instruction; the motion was opposed by the respondent Board. The ALJ issued an order in November 2011 denying the motion. A second hearing date on the suspension issue was set for December 5, 2011. Petitioner received appropriate notice of the hearing, but failed to appear and offered no explanation for her non-appearance. Accordingly, the ALJ dismissed the petition.

Upon review of the file, the Commissioner noted that petitioner filed hand-written exceptions to the ALJ's decision dismissing the matter, in which she explained that her failure to appear was beyond her control and that she was waiting for an attorney to assist her. Accordingly, the Commissioner determined to remand the matter to the OAL for further disposition pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-3.3(b).

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) advising of petitioner's failure to attend the second day of the scheduled hearing on December 5, 2011 have been reviewed.

Petitioner filed hand-written exceptions, which have also been thoroughly reviewed and considered. In her exceptions, the petitioner explains that her failure to appear was beyond her control and that she was waiting for an attorney to assist her. She also asserts that she has been cooperative when the respondent needed to change a date during the pendency of the case.

Given that R.W. has provided an explanation for her nonappearance, this matter is being returned to the OAL for further disposition, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-3.3(b).

Decided: December 7, 2011

BEFORE ROBERT BINGHAM II, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This matter is presented on respondent's motion. By way of background, R.W. appealed the Board's suspension and assignment of J.W. to an alternative school and requested homebound instruction. The Commissioner of Education transmitted the appeal as an emergent matter, pending a plenary hearing on the suspension, to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), where it was filed as a contested case on May 12, 2011.

On June 1, 2011, the parties executed a settlement agreement which disposed of the emergent matter, namely, homebound instruction for J.W. On July 18, 2011, the agreement was approved by the Board. On October 19, 2011, at the plenary hearing regarding the issue of suspension, R.W. moved to rescind the settlement and litigate homebound instruction, which respondent opposed. At that time, the parties were notified of the next hearing date, December 5, 2011. On October 26, 2011, OAL issued to the parties a written notice of hearing dates, including December 5, 2011. On November 10, 2011, the undersigned ALJ issued an Order denying petitioner's motion to rescind settlement.

On December 5, 2011, petitioner failed to appear at the scheduled hearing. Petitioner did not communicate with the OAL regarding the nonappearance and she also failed to do so within twenty-four hours thereafter. Furthermore, she did not communicate with counsel for respondent, who moved to dismiss petitioner's appeal with prejudice and for sanctions. Petitioner telephoned the OAL on December 7, 2011, stating that she had an emergency, and was directed to supply a written explanation for her nonappearance. No written explanation has been received.

LEGAL ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSION

Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.4, if no explanation for a nonappearance is received within one day the ALJ shall return the matter to the transmitting agency for appropriate disposition pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-3.3(b) and (c) (emphasis added). Petitioner failed to appear as scheduled and failed to communicate a satisfactory explanation for her nonappearance within the required time period. Although petitioner called the OAL on December 7, 2011, she has not supplied any written explanation as requested.

I therefore CONCLUDE that this matter should be dismissed with prejudice. I decline to impose sanctions at this time.

ORDER

Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that the above-captioned matter be and is hereby DISMISSED with prejudice.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

Petitioning Board filed tenure charges of conduct unbecoming a public employee and other just cause against respondent, a tenured social studies teacher, and sought to terminate his employment. Neither respondent nor any attorney acting on his behalf filed an answer to the petition following notice pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.3 and 6A:3-5.4.

The Commissioner concluded that the allegations – which respondent has chosen not to deny, and which specify that in November 2011, the respondent was indicted on 33 counts of Aggravated Sexual Assault, Sexual Assault and Endangering the Welfare of a Child for incidents involving students at his school – may be deemed admitted and are sufficient to warrant termination of the respondent from his tenured position. Accordingly, the Commissioner granted summary decision to the petitioner, dismissed the respondent from his tenured position, and forwarded a copy of this decision to the State Board of Examiners for action against respondent's certificate as that body deems appropriate.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF DEREK V. HILDRETH,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
SCHOOL DISTRICT OF LAWRENCE	:	DECISION
TOWNSHIP, CUMBERLAND COUNTY.	:

For the School District of Lawrence Township, Jane B. Capasso, Esq.

No appearance by or on behalf of Derek V. Hildreth

This matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education on November 28, 2011 through the certification of tenure charges of conduct unbecoming a public employee and other just cause by the School District of Lawrence Township, Cumberland County, against Derek V. Hildreth, a tenured social studies teacher. The District seeks Mr. Hildreth's dismissal from his position.

By notice dated December 12, 2011¹, the Commissioner directed respondent, via both certified and regular mail² – both of the certified green cards, signifying delivery, having been returned to the Department on December 15, 2011 – to file an Answer to the tenure charges against him. This communication clearly provided notice to respondent that, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.3 and 6A:3-5.4, an individual against whom tenure charges are certified “shall have 15 days from the day such charges are filed with the Commissioner to file a written response to the charges with the Commissioner,” and that failure to answer within the prescribed period would, absent granting of an extension for good cause shown, result in the charges being deemed admitted by the charged employee. Because no reply has been received from respondent – or any attorney on his behalf – in response to the District’s charges, such charges against respondent are deemed to be admitted.

² Because respondent has been incarcerated in the Gloucester County jail since his arrest on May 26, 2011, this notice was mailed to him at both his home address and that of the jail.

The Commissioner has reviewed the tenure charges certified against respondent by the District and the statement of evidence in support of those charges, which specify that on November 2, 2011 the Grand Jury of the State of New Jersey, Cumberland County, indicted respondent on 33 counts of Aggravated Sexual Assault, Sexual Assault and Endangering the Welfare of a Child for incidents involving young children who were students at his school. The District maintains that this Grand Jury Indictment evidences unbecoming conduct and warrants respondent’s dismissal as a public school teacher.

Noting that respondent has failed to respond to the allegations against him, the Commissioner finds that the District has demonstrated that respondent is guilty of conduct unbecoming and other just cause warranting the District’s requested penalty of respondent’s termination from his position.

Accordingly, summary decision is hereby granted to the District, and respondent Derek V. Hildreth is hereby terminated from his position with the School District of Lawrence Township, Cumberland County, effective with the filing date of this decision,³ a copy of which shall be forwarded to the State Board of Examiners for action against respondent’s certificate(s) as it deems appropriate.

Board of Education
Essex County Vocational School District

Newark, NJ 07107

Dear Parties:

Upon review of the petition of appeal filed in connection with the matter entitled Finesia Walker v. Board of Education of the Essex County Vocational School District, Essex County, Agency Dkt. No. 259-8/11, and based upon the board's failure to submit an answer to the petition, I have determined to grant summary decision in favor of petitioner.

On August 25, 2011, petitioner filed a petition of appeal pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-8.1 et seq. claiming that she was entitled to the restoration to her "sick bank" of all sick days utilized in connection with injuries caused by a work-related fall suffered by petitioner on September 18, 2006. A copy of the petition of appeal was served upon respondent's business administrator via facsimile on August 25, 2011. On October 27, 2011, after receipt of a copy of the applicable Workers Compensation settlement – approved by the Court on May 31, 2011 – the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes (Bureau) sent the parties notice that an answer to the petition was due within 20 days. N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.5.

Because the board failed to respond to the initial notice, a second notice was sent on November 18, 2011 to respondent's board secretary – via certified and regular mail – clearly indicating that, absent receipt of an answer to the petition of appeal within 10 days, each count in the petition could be deemed admitted and this matter could be decided on a summary basis, N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.5(e). An employee in respondent's office signed for the notice. Having received no response to the second notice, the Bureau sent out one more, final notice on December 6, 2011, which was accepted by an employee of respondent.

To date, no answer has been filed on behalf of respondent. Accordingly, petitioner's claim is deemed admitted by respondent, and respondent is hereby ordered to restore to petitioner's sick bank all days of absence flowing from petitioner's September 18, 2006 work related fall – up to one calendar year, consistent with N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1.¹

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF ALAN J. MEEKER,	:
SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE TOWNSHIP	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
OF OLD BRIDGE, MIDDLESEX COUNTY.	:	DECISION

The record of this matter, the parties' Settlement Agreement and the Initial Decision issued by the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1.

Upon such review, the Commissioner concurs with the Administrative Law Judge that the proposed settlement is consistent with established standards governing settlement of tenure matters. In re Cardonick, decided by the Commissioner April 7, 1982, aff'd State Board April 6, 1983, 1990 S.L.D. 842, 846. In so concluding, however, the Commissioner observes that Term 1 requires effectuation prior to final agency approval, contrary to N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1. The parties herein – and all litigants in controverted matters – are accordingly reminded that parties to proposed settlements act at their peril when including terms requiring effectuation prior to the Commissioner's approval, since the Commissioner may ultimately disapprove the term(s) in question.

Accordingly, the settlement is hereby approved and the tenure matter dismissed, subject to compliance with the terms of the settlement.

HEARING OF ALAN J. MEEKER, SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE TOWNSHIP OF OLD BRIDGE, MIDDLESEX COUNTY,

Christopher B. Parton, Esq., for petitioner, the Board of Education (Kenney, Gross, Kovats & Parton, attorneys)

Sanford R. Oxfeld, Esq., for respondent Alan J. Meeker (Oxfeld Cohen, attorneys)

Record Closed: December 2, 2011

Decided: December 5, 2011

BEFORE JESSE H. STRAUSS, ALJ:

On September 16, 2011, the School District of the Township of Old Bridge (District) charged tenured teacher Alan J. Meeker with unbecoming conduct and sought his removal or reduction in salary under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 et seq. The Bureau of Controversies and Disputes of the New Jersey Department of Education referred the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on September 26, 2011, as a contested case after having reviewed the Tenure Charges and having deemed them sufficient, if true, to warrant dismissal or reduction in salary. N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to F-13. Before the commencement of a hearing scheduled for December 16, 2011, the parties participated in settlement discussions, which successfully concluded with the execution of the attached Settlement Agreement, which the District's Board of Education approved by the attached Resolution of November 22, 2011.

The allegations which gave rise to the Tenure charges were that, on or about June 23, 2011, Meeker, a teacher of instrumental music at one of the District's middle schools, posted a statement on Facebook which falsely suggested an inappropriate relationship between another member of the District's teaching staff and a member of the District's Board of Education.

Based upon a review of the record as well as the proposed Settlement Agreement, and the representations therein, and the attached Board Resolution, I FIND that the nature of the charges has been documented by the submission of a Statement of Charges and Certificate of Determination.

I CONCLUDE that this Settlement Agreement, by its expressed terms, meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6 and that approval of it is in the public interest. See, In re Cardonick, decided by the Commissioner April 7, 1982, aff'd State Board April 6, 1983, 1990 S.L.D. 842, 846.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT

The above-captioned matter having been filed with the Commissioner of Education and transferred to the Office of Administrative Law for a hearing on Tenure Charges filed by Petitioner, the Old Bridge Board of Education against Respondent, Alan J. Meeker, and the parties to this matter having discussed the amicable resolution of this litigation without the allocation of further time and expense, the parties are hereby agreed as follows:

1. Respondent has been suspended without pay for the period of September 16, 2011 through October 31, 2011. He will be reinstated and shall return to work effective November 1, 2011;
2. Upon his reinstatement, Respondent will be assigned to any position within his professional certifications, endorsements and qualifications, at any school in the district, in the discretion of the Board and administration;
3. Respondent shall not be reimbursed for any lost pay, benefits or other consideration during the period of unpaid suspension, and upon his reinstatement, he shall not receive, nor shall he be eligible for, the stipends for Middle School activities that he received during the 2010-2011 school year and previously;

4. Respondent shall submit, on or before November 4, 2011, a written, signed letter of apology to Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Donofrio regarding Respondent's statements posted on Facebook in June 2011 in this matter, and a copy of said letter shall be attached to this agreement;
5. Respondent waives any and all claims, in any forum, arising out of his reinstatement, transfer and reassignment as set forth herein, including but not limited to contract claims, Grievances, Unfair Labor Practice Charges and Contested Transfer Petitions, as the result of his transfer, his suspension without pay and his loss of stipends;
6. The Board, via counsel, shall withdraw and dismiss with prejudice the Tenure Charges pending before the Commissioner of Education and the Office of Administrative Law under Docket Number EDU-11458-2100N and Agency Reference Number 268-9/11 upon approval of this Agreement;
7. The terms set forth herein constitute the parties' entire agreement with regard to this matter. No other terms shall be implied or included. In the event that the Commissioner of Education does not approve this Agreement, it shall become null and void, and the parties shall resume the litigation of this matter;
8. This Agreement shall not create any binding precedent for or against either party, and shall be used only for the enforcement of its own terms.
9. The parties acknowledge that all terms of this Agreement are subject to the review and approval of the Commissioner of Education pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6. As required by that regulation and in accordance with the standards established by the State Board of Education in In re Cardonick, the parties submit the following information in support of their mutual decision to resolve this matter:
 - a. The Tenure Charges allege, and the employee's Answer acknowledges, that during June 2011, Respondent, a tenured teaching staff member, made certain untrue and defamatory statements about another teaching staff member as well as the President of the Board of Education, in violation of certain Board Policies and Regulations, which comments violated Board Policies, reflected negatively on school officials and employees, and adversely affected the sound operation of the school district;
 - b. The parties, through counsel and with the assistance of Administrative Law Judge Jesse Strauss, have identified terms of settlement which will have the effect of adequately punishing Respondent for the conduct at issue and return him to work, allowing both parties to move forward without allocation of further time or expense involved in tenure litigation;
 - c. Both parties, having had the opportunity to review this matter with their respective legal counsel, consent to this Agreement voluntarily and with the mutual interests of closure and moving forward;
 - d. Respondent, in entering this Agreement, represents that he does so with a full understanding of his rights and the effects and implications of all terms of this Agreement, and that he does so having thoroughly reviewed this matter with legal counsel;

- e. The parties represent that this Agreement is in the public interest, as it adequately punishes Respondent for his actions, and resolves this matter and allows both parties to move forward without any payment to Respondent, and without any further expenditure of public monies for the discovery, hearing, review, and possible appellate components of the litigation of tenure charges;
- f. Respondent, in entering this Agreement, acknowledges that he has been advised of the Commissioner of Education's duty to refer tenure determinations to the State Board of Examiners in certain instances.

WHEREFORE, the parties to this matter are so agreed, and set their signatures on this _____ day of November, 2011.

From: Alan J. Meeker

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Donofrio,

As I said in my Certified Letter to you of June 26, 2011, I beg you accept my most heartfelt apology over the comment I made to what I thought was my friend's private message account, but in reality was her Face Book wall. Even though I used the euphemism "literally in bed with" I in no way meant to suggest an improper relationship. I had intended only to state, in a crude way, that you work closely with Miss Bolger and are a big supporter of her program and of the Old Bridge Marching Knights. I suppose I was a bit jealous that the High School gets what I thought, wrongly, was more attention than the Middle School. I am ashamed, terribly embarrassed, and so very, very sorry of any hurt that I have caused you, your wife and your family.

Without knowing what I had meant, the posting appears to be a vicious, slanderous, untrue attack on your character. I certainly can understand the anger you must be feeling and it is most justified. I would be livid if the same were said of me.

I am not writing you simply to apologize as per the terms of the agreement. I feel terrible over the hurt my words may have caused you, Mrs. Donofrio and your children. I swear on my life that I never intended to infer any wrongdoing. I know there is not a person in Administration or on the Board that believes that, but it's true. Upon hearing that someone other than my friend had read the posting, I immediately took it down. In addition to writing you an apology in a Certified Letter, I wrote an open letter of apology to everyone on Face Book. If there were a way to apologize to everyone who read the posting, I would.

I accept full responsibility for the posting, for the hurt and embarrassment caused, and the punishment given.

I can only once again, beg that you and your family please accept my most heartfelt apology.

Sincerely,

Upon review of the record and Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law concerning petitioner's challenge to respondent's determination that she has not met the requirements for a "Teacher of Students with Disabilities" endorsement to her instructional certificate, the Deputy Commissioner – to whom this matter has been delegated pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:4-33 – adopts the Initial Decision as the final decision for the reasons articulated by the Administrative Law Judge.

Accordingly, respondent's motion for summary disposition is granted and the petition is dismissed.¹

¹ Petitioner filed a letter dated December 28, 2011 bearing the heading "Exceptions." In the letter, petitioner indicated that after she completes the remaining six credits required by the Centenary College program in which she is enrolled, she will reapply for a "Teacher of Students with Disabilities" endorsement. She requests that she not be required to pay another application fee. She further requests that the State "review its policies and process (or in some ways, clarify the gaps), so that future situations similar to my case, may be judged on the facts submitted, as opposed to case law" There is no indication that petitioner served a copy of this letter upon respondent. Consequently, the Commissioner shall forward same to respondent as an attachment to the instant decision.

The petitioning Board certified charges of conduct unbecoming against respondent – a tenured business teacher employed by the district for more than 30 years – for making various misrepresentations concerning medical and psychiatric examinations requested by the Board. Additionally, the Board alleged that respondent exhibited a pattern of tardiness, insufficient class preparation and engagement, lack of communication, and incomplete paperwork related to field trips which constituted insubordination. Respondent denied the charges. The Board sought respondent's removal from her tenured position.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: although respondent may have had a legitimate medical condition, her excuses, changes of rationale and refusal to provide documentation substantiating her condition create a strong inference that she did not wish to cooperate with the Board; respondent postponed her post-observation conference indefinitely by asserting a medical condition that she then could not or would not substantiate; additionally, petitioning Board has met its burden of proving that respondent failed to notify school authorities when she changed hotel arrangements for the Future Business Leaders of America club's field trip to the State convention; failed to properly supervise her students on two separate occasions; and failed to follow the school district's lesson plan policy. The petitioner failed to prove that respondent was chronically late. The ALJ concluded that respondent engaged in multiple acts constituting conduct unbecoming a teacher, but that such conduct did not rise to the level necessary for termination of her employment. The ALJ further concluded that – balancing the respondent's overall successful teaching history with the nature and relatively brief period of her problematic conduct – a one-year suspension and withholding of respondent's annual increment in the following year is the appropriate penalty in this case.

Upon careful review and consideration, the Deputy Commissioner (to whom this matter has been delegated pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:4-33) concurred with the ALJ's findings and determination, and additionally ordered that respondent – as a condition of her re-employment and return to teaching duties – must produce a then-current medical assessment from a District-selected physician in order to reassure the Board, and respondent, that she is able to resume her responsibilities as a teacher. Accordingly, the respondent: was suspended for a period of one year without pay; will forfeit her salary increments for the year in which she returns to service; and was ordered to produce a medical report certifying her readiness to return to work prior to her reemployment.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF JOANNE BRUNO,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
SOUTH HUNTERDON REGIONAL	:	DECISION
SCHOOL DISTRICT,	:
HUNTERDON COUNTY.	:

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Respondent – with the consent of her adversary – was granted an extension of time to file exceptions, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4. The Board of Education's (Board) exceptions and reply, received January 17, 2012, and respondent's response were fully considered by the Deputy Commissioner – to whom this matter has been delegated pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:4-33 – in reaching his determination herein.

In petitioner's exceptions and reply, the Board fully endorses the Administrative Law Judge's decision, which finds that the respondent exhibited unbecoming conduct when she neglected to satisfy the post-observation meeting requirements, raised a questionable medical issue, ignored the need to advise the administration on a change of venue for the FBLA trip, failed to supervise students and disregarded the District's policies. The Board's only exception to the ALJ's decision related to the penalty. Given the finding that it had met its burden by a preponderance of the credible evidence, the Board argues that the penalty of termination is required rather than suspension for one year and loss of the increment upon re-employment.

In respondent's exceptions, Ms. Bruno contends that the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) erroneously sustained the Board's charge of unbecoming conduct and further asserted that the Board's evidence is insufficient and not adequately credible to warrant even a one-year suspension and the loss of her increment upon her return to employment.

In support of her arguments, respondent also asserts that it was not unbecoming conduct when she failed to attend her post-observation conference without being accompanied by a medical professional, whom she said was necessary. Instead, she believes that once she rescinded the demand, the meeting could have proceeded.

She further maintains that it was not unbecoming conduct when she failed to comply with the Board's resolution to submit to medical exams pursuant to N.J.A.C.6:32-6.3(e) because she claims she had a legal right to request a full evidentiary hearing before the Board on the issue of why the exams were necessary. After asserting her right before the Board in closed session, she and her attorney walked out of the session when her request was denied.

Additionally, respondent avers that it was not unbecoming conduct when she neglected to prepare an emergency lesson plan and leave it, along with the class roster, in her desk or in the main office in the event of an unexpected sick day. Moreover, respondent opines that the ALJ mistakenly characterized what actually happened and relied on questionable evidence. In support of her position, she posits that the only record of this incident was all made up and written by the principal or – if not written by him – by someone else whom the Board did not produce at the hearing to affirm its authenticity; therefore, the document was not credible.

Ms. Bruno also maintains that the ALJ erred when he found that she engaged in unbecoming conduct by unilaterally changing the venue of an overnight FBLA field trip without first seeking permission and, once effected, failing to apprise the administration of the change. Again, the respondent believes that it was not wrong to leave some students unsupervised while others attended a different event in the hotel, and asserts that she was going to tell the administration at some point. That the principal learned of the new arrangements two days before the trip – before Ms. Bruno had an opportunity to inform the administration – was happenstance.

Finally, the respondent argues that it was not unbecoming conduct when she failed to supervise the middle school children who ran the school store, or the students during lunch period, or the members of her FBLA club. Ms. Bruno explained that these lapses – if they occurred – were infrequent, of short duration and common practice, especially during lunch.

Upon full review and consideration and a thorough reading of the hearing transcripts,¹ the Commissioner makes the following observations. Ms. Bruno was the first to mention her medical condition and the need to have medical personnel accompany her to her post-evaluation conference. The principal, after having just observed her lesson and witnessed some planning and execution issues that a 30-year teaching professional should not have confronted, believed that her medical and mental condition could have an impact on her teaching and her students. In ordering medical and psychiatric exams, the principal sought to protect both the respondent and her charges. The record also revealed Ms. Bruno's unwillingness to follow certain directives –whether a Board resolution, an ALJ order or district policies – led to a protracted, time-consuming sequence of events: It took 16 months to schedule the medical exams the principal requested. Moreover, the ALJ comments that respondent's cardiology report had still not been submitted to the ALJ or attached to her post-hearing brief. (Initial Decision at 14, Footnote 10)

As to the other elements of the charge of conduct unbecoming, the Commissioner determines that the Board has proven by a preponderance of the credible evidence that Ms. Bruno's conduct manifested a fundamental disregard for authority; respondent exhibited no regret or qualms about engaging in behavior that undermined the public's trust and confidence in her services.

Based on the foregoing, the Commissioner finds and concludes that – in the absence of any basis in the record on which to dispute the fact-finding and credibility determinations of the ALJ pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(c), In re Morrison, 216 N.J. Super. 143, 158 (App. Div. 1987) – he concurs with the ALJ that the Board has established that respondent engaged in multiple acts of unbecoming conduct. The ALJ had the opportunity to assess the credibility of the witnesses who appeared before him and made findings of fact based upon their testimony; having found the Board's witnesses credible, he was nevertheless silent as to Ms. Bruno's credibility. In this regard, the clear and unequivocal standard governing the Commissioner's review is:

The agency head may not reject or modify any findings of fact as to issues of credibility of lay witness testimony unless it is first determined from a review of the record that the findings are arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable or are not supported by sufficient, competent, and credible evidence in the record. [N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(c)].

Moreover, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ's assessment of respondent's conduct, which – while egregious and disconcerting – does not warrant her termination in light of applicable law and prior decisional precedent. Additionally, he agrees that the conduct proven in this proceeding amply warrants respondent's suspension without pay for one year and the forfeiture of her salary increment. The Commissioner is also mindful that as a result of her suspension, the respondent will not have performed her teaching duties for an extended period of time. Consequently, the Commissioner also orders Ms. Bruno – as a condition of her re-employment and return to her duties – to produce a medical report from a new cardiology exam, performed by District-selected physicians and at the Board's expense. This new medical assessment will reassure the Board and Ms. Bruno that she is able to resume her responsibilities of serving her students, the Board and the community.

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed therein, the Initial Decision of the OAL – as modified above – is adopted as the final decision in this matter. Respondent is hereby suspended for a period of one year without pay from her tenured position with the South Hunterdon Regional Board of Education, and is ordered to produce the medical report, as outlined above, before her employment and salary shall re-commence; upon her return to service, respondent shall forfeit her employment and adjustment increments for the year.

INITIAL DECISION

AGENCY DKT. NO. 544-9/10

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE
HEARING OF JOANNE BRUNO, SOUTH HUNTERDON REGIONAL SCHOOL DISTRICT,
HUNTERDON COUNTY.

Allan P. Dzwilewski, Esq., for petitioner South Hunterdon Regional School District (Schwartz, Simon, Edelstein & Celso, LLC, attorneys)

Arnold M. Mellk, Esq., for respondent JoAnne Bruno (Wills, O'Neill & Mellk, attorneys)

Record Closed: June 15, 2011

Decided: December 14, 2011

BEFORE ISRAEL D. DUBIN, ALJ, t/a:

On August 30, 2010, the South Hunterdon Regional School District Board of Education certified tenure charges against JoAnne Bruno, a tenured teaching staff member, alleging that she had engaged in unbecoming conduct and other just cause warranting termination and loss of tenure. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. Specifically, the Board alleged that between March 2009 and July 2010, Bruno made various misrepresentations in connection with the resolution of a dispute concerning medical and psychiatric examinations. The Board also cited a pattern of tardiness, insufficient class preparation and engagement, a lack of communication, and incomplete paperwork related to field trips, which together also amounted to insubordination.

On September 27, 2010, the Department of Education received Bruno's answer in which she asserted that she had a legal right to refuse to provide documentation of her medical condition, that she did eventually see a cardiologist, and that she has generally performed within standards and should not be disciplined in any way. Upon receipt of Bruno's answer, the Commissioner of Education transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law, where it was filed on October 7, 2010. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15; N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. The initial hearing dates of January 25, January 27, and February 24, 2011 were adjourned at the request of the parties, and the matter was ultimately heard on January 31, 2011, and March 9, 2011. The record was closed upon receipt of the final responding brief on June 15, 2011.¹

JoAnne Bruno is employed by the South Hunterdon Regional School District as a business teacher at South Hunterdon Regional High School. Prior to the filing of the tenure charges, the parties were engaged in separate but related matters before the OAL (Docket Nos. EDU 6027-09 and EDU 6028-09) that arose over a March 11, 2009 resolution, Exhibit P-1, by which the Board ordered Bruno to undergo medical and psychiatric examinations, and placed her on paid administrative leave pending further action. After most of the procedural issues were resolved,² the parties withdrew their respective petitions, and on November 9, 2010, the matters were returned to the Department of Education. However, the facts that gave rise to, and the procedural history of, these matters, have been reiterated by the Board in the Tenure Charge.

The Board asserts that the reasons for the adoption of the resolution included "Bruno's assertion of a medical condition that impaired Bruno's ability to instruct and/or supervise students and/or to carry out various duties and obligations." Tenure Charge,

² By Order dated March 15, 2010, I rejected and dismissed Bruno's complaints alleging that the Board had violated the Open Public Meetings Act, N.J.S.A. 10:4-12, as well as N.J.S.A. 18A:16-2 and N.J.A.C. 6A:32-6.2, by failing to comply with her requests for a detailed Statement of Reasons, a discussion during an open public meeting, and a full adversarial hearing before the Board on the merits. Bruno also alleged that the Board's actions were taken in retaliation for her union activities, but did not prosecute this issue.

¶2. According to the Board, Bruno had requested an “employment accommodation regarding having a health professional attend a post observation conference with the Principal based on her health condition(s).” Ibid. But “[w]hen asked for documentation to verify the need for such an accommodation, Bruno refused to provide same and immediately offered to meet with the Principal without a medical professional.”³ Ibid.

By letter dated March 19, 2009, Exhibit P-3, Bruno, through her then attorney Stephen Klausner, responded to the Board’s resolution and requested a hearing pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:16-2 and N.J.A.C. 6A:32-6.3. On April 2, 2009, the hearing was convened but not completed due to issues regarding the scope and nature of the hearing and other procedural issues. Consequently, on April 15, 2009, the Board filed a petition with the Department of Education, Exhibit P-4, asking that the Commissioner construe the provisions of N.J.A.C. 6A:32-6.3(e)1 and determine that Bruno was not entitled to a full adversarial hearing. Bruno responded by filing a petition challenging the legitimacy of the resolution and need for the examinations. Tenure Charge, ¶2.⁴ The two petitions were then transmitted by the Commissioner to the Office of Administrative Law, and a hearing on the issue of whether Bruno should be required to submit to the examinations was scheduled to be held on March 17, 2010 and May 3, 2010.

Immediately preceding the commencement of the hearing, Mr. Klausner stated that Bruno was willing to submit to the examinations, and the parties reached an agreement by which they chose a cardiologist to perform the medical examination, and listed the names of three psychiatrists acceptable to the Board, any one of whom Bruno could choose to perform the psychiatric examination. The agreement was subsequently memorialized by the Board’s attorney, Allan P. Dzwilewski, in a letter dated May 25, 2010, Exhibit P-6. The parties also set July 15, 2010, as the date by which the written reports of the examinations were to be submitted to the Board. Ibid.

Bruno subsequently objected to the cardiologist chosen by the Board and, following an exchange of correspondence and a telephone conference, an order was issued on June 22, 2010, Exhibit P-9, directing Bruno to schedule and submit to examinations by the Board's cardiologist, and one of the two psychiatrists I selected from a list submitted by the Board. A short time later, Klausner informed Dzwilewski that Bruno would not undergo the examinations and that she had retained another lawyer, John Rowland, to represent her in the matter.

By letter dated June 30, 2010, Exhibit P-10, Dzwilewski asked Rowland to confirm that he had, in fact, taken over Bruno's representation. Later that same day, Rowland sent Dzwilewski a letter, Exhibit P-11, in which he stated that he did not represent Bruno. The following day, July 1, 2010, Dzwilewski sent Klausner a letter, Exhibit P-12, advising him of Rowland's response and asking that he have Bruno submit, by no later than July 7, 2010, written confirmation that she did not intend to comply with the terms of the June 22, 2010, order. In a telephone conversation on July 8, 2010, Klausner agreed to formally advise the Board of Bruno's intentions by July 13, 2010. Tenure Charge, ¶10.

Dzwilewski did not receive either a letter or phone call by that date. Therefore, by letter dated July 19, 2010, Dzwilewski again asked Klausner to provide the requested confirmation. Tenure Charge, ¶11. He also asked Klausner for the status of Bruno's appointment with the cardiologist and clarification of a communication the Board had received from one of the psychiatrists regarding payment of fees. Ibid.

On July 21, 2010, I received an unsolicited letter dated July 16, 2010, Exhibit P-14, from Dr. Marc S. Rabinowitz,⁵ who was not one of the doctors the parties had agreed upon, attesting to Bruno's good physical and mental health, and lauding her as an excellent teacher. One week later, in separate letters dated July 28, 2010, Exhibits P-15 & P-16, Klausner advised Dzwilewski and this tribunal that Bruno had scheduled an appointment with the designated cardiologist and had also requested that I select three other psychiatrists Bruno could choose from because neither the designated psychiatrist nor the alternate psychiatrist could see her. To the best of the Board's knowledge, the appointment with the cardiologist was kept, but attempts to have Bruno examined by a psychiatrist acceptable to the Board were unsuccessful. Tenure Charge, ¶13.

Based on the foregoing facts, the Board has alleged that Bruno's conduct in connection with the scheduling of the post-observation conference, request for medical supervision at the conference, refusal to provide documentation verifying the need for this accommodation, and failure to comply with its resolution requiring medical and psychiatric examinations "is contrary to her duties and responsibilities as a teacher and role model for students, sets an example unbecoming a teaching staff member who is entrusted with the education of students and constitutes unbecoming conduct and/or other just cause for dismissal." Ibid.

In a general all-inclusive concluding paragraph, the Board has also alleged that Bruno's conduct during the 2008-2009 school year, which led to the adoption of the resolution requiring cardiologic and psychiatric examinations, constitutes further evidence of unbecoming conduct or other just cause for dismissal. More particularly, the Board claims that Bruno fail[ed] to carry out her professional responsibilities regarding student supervision, fail[ed] to follow observation protocols, [sought] unsubstantiated employment accommodations and [] abandon[ed] same when asked for supporting documentation, [and] fail[ed] to follow school rules and administrative directives regarding lesson plans, supervision of students, field trip documentation and reporting of her absences.

[Ibid.]

As to these charges, Principal James Bevere testified that teachers were required to sign in about ten minutes before the students arrived in order to ensure that they were adequately supervised. However, Bruno had frequently been late, arriving at the same time as, or after the students. When her attendance didn't improve after he'd given her several verbal warnings, he expressed his concerns in a memo dated December 23, 2008. Exhibit P-17. Specifically, he explained that reporting to school on time was crucial to the safety and instruction of her students. And while he acknowledged that she had called ahead when she was going to be late, he also advised her that her classes still needed to be covered and, as a result, her colleagues had to be compensated at additional cost to the district. He therefore requested that she schedule an appointment with him to discuss the matter. Although the requested meeting never took place, "things improved."

On or about January 8, 2009, Bevere had his secretary, Bonnie Kendig, send Bruno an email, Exhibit P-18, advising her that he would be observing her teach one of her classes on Monday, January 12, 2009. Additionally, he had scheduled a pre-observation conference, during which he would look at the attendance books, grades, and lesson plans, for Block 3 on January 9, 2009. When Bruno did not appear for the conference, he had Ms. Kendig send her another email, Exhibit P-19, notifying her of the missed appointment, and requesting that she see him "first thing" on January 12, 2009, before her scheduled observation. Then, on January 12, 2009, Ms. Kendig notified Bruno that Bevere had rescheduled the observation for January 21, 2009, and that the pre-observation conference would instead be held on January 20, 2009. Exhibit P-20.

Although the pre-observation meeting did not take place, on January 21, 2009, Bevere observed Bruno's entrepreneurship class. As he wrote in his observation report, Exhibit P-21, he had "some major concerns about the actual preparation that [Bruno] put in for this lesson." Ibid. He also noted that "[t]here was entirely too much wasted time in this class" with respect to the activities assigned in the class. Ibid. Bevere testified that it was apparent that Bruno had "transitioning problems" and did not have a "back-up plan" or any "tricks in her bag." More particularly, after observing that computer problems had left the students with nothing to do, he cautioned that "[t]echnology should never be used as an excuse to have so many students sitting around with nothing but time on their hands. . . . evidence of prior planning would have been to quickly move onto [sic] another effective activity." Ibid.

Still, the lesson he observed was effective and the students seemed to like the class. As he wrote in the observation report,

Ms. Bruno should be commended on her rapport with her classes. Ms. Bruno is extremely approachable and shows genuine concern for her students' education and well being. Ms. Bruno is readily available and accessible to her students throughout the school day. Students in her class feel comfortable in their skin and are encouraged to take chances while thinking outside the box.

According to Bevere, most post-observation conferences are scheduled within five days of the observation, and that, "after a certain amount of time, if the teacher does not meet with you or respond to you with a rebuttal to the lesson, it becomes part of their personnel" file. However, in this instance, Bruno did not respond to his attempts to schedule a meeting. Consequently, on February 24, 2009, Bevere sent Bruno an email, Exhibit P-22, advising her that she'd had seventeen days to prepare for and attend the customary post-observation meeting and, if she'd desired, submit a rebuttal to his evaluation. In response, Bruno wrote that she had been unable to meet with him during the scheduled time because the "medical person" she'd asked to attend the meeting with her could not make it on the scheduled date. According to Bruno, she had been wearing a heart monitor for twenty-one days and felt she would be more comfortable meeting with him if the medical person were with her. Ibid.

By letter dated February 26, 2009, Exhibit P-23, Bevere thanked Bruno for informing him why she had been unable to keep their scheduled appointment on February 25, 2009. However, he also advised her that he had, nevertheless, rescheduled the meeting because he was unaware of her having any medical condition that would require her to have medical personnel present during their meeting. "Although Association representation is acceptable," he added, "you are not entitled to, nor am I obligated to, honor your request to bring medical personnel to your post observation conference." Ibid.

Since he had never before received such a request, he asked her to provide him with specific documentation pertaining to her diagnosis, treatment and prognosis, as well as the credentials of the medical personnel she wanted to accompany her. Moreover, he requested that she undergo a medical and psychological⁶ examination by District-recommended physicians. His request for the examinations was based on his belief that "if the medical concerns were so bad that she couldn't sit in a post observation, there would be concerns" about her ability to carry out daily activities in the building. Bevere forewarned her that if she failed to comply with his requests by March 6, 2009, he would ask the Superintendent to request that the Board mandate these exams. Ibid.

In her email dated February 26, 2009, Exhibit P-24, Bruno advised Bevere that it had been her intention to have Liz Hendricks, the school nurse,⁷ attend the meeting with her, adding, "I would assume that the District already knows of the credentials of this medical professional." Ibid. Nevertheless, she had decided to meet with him, "with or without Liz being present." Ibid. She also advised Bevere that her attorney had advised her that, "[a]ccording to the HIPPA regulations I am under no obligation to provide the District with any medical information." Ibid. (emphasis in original). And while "thank[ing] [him] for the invitation to visit the District physicians," she stated that she had decided to "declin[e] that offer at this time as well." Ibid.

Later that same day, Bevere postponed the post-observation meeting scheduled for February 27, 2009, explaining,

I am sorry, but I would like to wait until we feel that your medical condition has been assessed. Based upon your email, you indicated that you could only meet with me with a medical professional present due to a heart monitor. I don't want to jeopardize your health and will therefore continue to heed the March 6 deadline.

[Bevere email dated February 26, 2009, Exhibit P-25].

Bruno responded in an email dated February 27, 2009, Ibid., reiterating that, on the advice of counsel, she would neither provide the requested medical information, nor submit to any medical or psychological examination. She also suggested that Bevere contact her attorney, Stephen Klausner, if he wished to discuss the matter further. Ibid.

In the midst of these discussions, Bruno called out sick on February 18, 2009. In accordance with school policy, teachers were expected to make their lesson plans or, in case of an emergency, a set of generic plans, and a list of the students in the class, available for use whenever they were out. However, Bevere testified, neither Bruno's lesson plans nor a class list could be found on the date in question. What is more, several faculty members, including the vice principal and industrial arts teacher, were unable to open the word processing file Bruno subsequently sent in because it had been sent in Word Perfect.⁸ It was only after another faculty member, Toby Jefferis, converted the file that the substitute teacher was provided with a lesson plan. The list of students in the class was subsequently provided by the main office. Memo dated February 18, 2009, Exhibit P-26.

According to Bevere, it was during this same period of time that he had to send Bruno a written warning about her having reported for her contracted cafeteria duty seventeen minutes late on March 3, 2009. In his letter dated March 4, 2009, Exhibit P-27, he also reminded her that when on duty, she was supposed to be walking throughout the commons area (cafeteria) supervising the students, not sitting at a table eating her lunch. This was particularly important because all 100 to 150 ninth through twelfth grade students ate lunch together at the same time. As he emphasized, the safety of the students was an imperative.

Bevere stated that teachers were required to keep their classrooms locked when not in use for the same reason. But, also on March 3, she had reportedly left seventeen students unsupervised in her classroom between 11:40 a.m. and 11:51 a.m. Since she had done this "several" times before, Bevere documented the incident in a letter to ⁸ It may be that the school district had an earlier version of Word Perfect than Bruno, or a different word processing program such as Word, neither of which could "read" documents created using an updated version of Word Perfect.

Bruno dated March 4, 2009, Exhibit P-28, in which he emphasized that “[a]t no time are students permitted to be in a classroom unsupervised.” Ibid. He further stated that he’d noted Bruno’s lack of supervision because “I probably walked by on my way out of the cafeteria or back to the cafeteria” and “constantly circulat[ed] throughout the building.” While he could not recall how many other times he’d noticed unsupervised students in Bruno’s classroom, he explained that “for me to put it in writing it would have to come after several verbal conferences.”

Also during or about this same period of time, Bruno sent the following undated email to Bevere:

I am sending this email to let you know that I suspect someone is capturing emails that I open. I opened one intentionally to find out if this was happening. I can tell when email is being captured and the one I opened just now was from MBruno@jhcohn.com titled “Friends.”

I first became aware of this on Friday during a study hall in my classroom when I was on a web search for information for one of my classes. The same warning came up on my screen. If this is administrative, I hope it is being done to all computers in the school to all staff and faculty. Otherwise it will be considered a continuation of the harassment you have been inflicting on me. A copy of this email will also be sent to Steve Klausner.

[Bruno undated email, Exhibit P-29]

Bevere asserted that he knew nothing about this and that the superintendent of schools was the only person who had the authority to do it, if it was in fact being done. In other words, if it was being done, it had to be at the district level, and he therefore referred the matter to the technology director for review. He had no further discussions about the matter with her.

Bevere also testified that Bruno had planned to take some of her students on an overnight trip to the Future Business Leaders of America (FBLA) conference in Edison, New Jersey, March 11-13, 2009. However, based on her asserted unspecified medical condition, Superintendent of Schools Nancy Gartenberg notified Bruno that she had decided to send an additional adult chaperone, Matt Walker, on the trip "to offer you and the students the proper assistance necessary" Gartenberg Letter dated March 9, 2009. Exhibit P-30. Bruno was to provide Walker, who would be staying at the same hotel as the club, with a list of the students' names, room arrangements and assignments; FBLA conference sessions; and transportation and meal arrangements.

The following day Bevere sent Superintendent Gartenberg a letter, Exhibit P-31, regarding certain incorrect information Bruno had provided in her Field Trip Request Form. More specifically, Bevere advised her that [o]ur students going to the NJ State Leadership are staying at the Sheraton Edison Hotel Raritan Center and not the Holiday Inn Edison as listed in Ms. JoAnne Bruno's Field Trip Request Form. This was discovered by me, when I reserved an additional room for an extra chaperone. This could have been a potential administrative nightmare had we needed to get in touch with our students or staff at the conference. Her lack of attention has been an ongoing problem all year. These field trips have been allowed to go forward because it would not be fair to punish students that are state officers or have made prior commitments because of Ms. Bruno's lack of attention to her paper work.

Bevere testified that he also recommended that an additional chaperone accompany Bruno on the March 11, 2009 field trip over concerns with Bruno's health and the general safety of the students. After describing the sending of an additional teacher as a precautionary measure, he added that "it wouldn't hurt." Superintendent Gartenberg agreed and by letter dated March 10, 2009, Exhibit P-32, provided Bruno with the following information and admonition:

Matt Walker has been registered at the Sheraton. We have taken care of all of his needs. In reviewing your paperwork, it indicated that you would be staying at the Holiday Inn. Mr. Bevere, in registering Mr. Walker, was told that you were all staying at the Sheraton and NOT the Holiday Inn. We have provided the principal's secretary with the proper itinerary. Please be sure to update student information with the secretaries in the main office should any other important details change.

We are glad to support you with Mr. Walker as the gender ratios and events at separate locations, specifically A.B.'s separate dinner for officers and advisors, would leave some student(s) unsupervised. This will provide the remaining students with an adult chaperone, allowing you to attend the dinner with A.B. as his advisor.

[Ibid.]

On June 8, 2009, Bevere gave Bruno a poor assessment on the Co-Curricular Advisor's Evaluation Form, Exhibit P-35. Among other things, he indicated that Bruno's paperwork was often incomplete and untimely which, on several occasions, required administrative personnel to correct "last minute mistakes" to paperwork for FBLA field trips. As an example, he cited the March 2009 FBLA conference when the administration discovered that the students were spending an overnight trip in a completely different hotel than the one she had listed on her paperwork, which he deemed "inexcusable." He also pointed out that Bruno had been warned both verbally and in writing about leaving students unattended in her room during and after the school day. Consequently, he recommended that she not be rehired as an advisor for the FBLA chapter.

On June 16, 2009, Bevere prepared Bruno's Tenured Teacher Summative Assessment Report, Exhibit P-33, in which he assessed Bruno's teaching performance on the basis of "Four Domains of Teaching," and recommended that she not receive an increment for the then-upcoming school year. Among other things, Bevere based his determination on a low level of classroom planning, regularly failing to produce the required substitute lesson plans when she was absent, chronically failing to complete paperwork for field trips and a consistent disregard of the rules as outlined by the administration. More pertinently, "Ms. Bruno's decisions have been challenged throughout the year. She has demonstrated inconsistencies in her demeanor and a questionable ability to make reflective and sound decisions." Ibid.

Testifying on behalf of the Board, Superintendent Gartenberg stated that her decision to send an additional chaperone to the FBLA conference had been based on Bevere's concerns about Bruno's health. More particularly, he'd advised her that Bruno had requested the presence of a medical professional's presence at the post-observation conference. This was the first time in her thirteen years as a teacher and administrator that she'd heard of a teacher requesting the presence of what she understood would be an "outside" medical professional. Had she known "up front" that Bruno had been referring to Liz Hendricks, "there might not have been a problem."

Since she had not previously received any information regarding a medical condition that would have rendered Bruno unable to attend the post-observation conference alone, she believed it would be prudent to send another teacher as a precautionary measure pending receipt of more specific facts. She also advised Bevere to put off the post-observation conference and ask Bruno to provide documentation concerning her medical condition.

Gartenberg stated she was also concerned that the field trip form Bruno had submitted indicated that she and the students would be staying at the Holiday Inn, and it was not until Bevere registered Matt Walker that he learned they would be staying at the Sheraton. This could have made it difficult for the Board to contact a student in case of emergency. Additionally, it was evident from the itinerary that Bruno's attendance at the officers and advisors dinner would have left some of the students unsupervised. This, too, made Walker's assignment as a chaperone necessary. Consequently, she sent Bruno her letter of March 10, 2009, Exhibit P-32, supra, asking Bruno to "update student information with the secretaries in the main office should any other important details change." Ibid.

Concerning Bruno's tardiness, Gartenberg stated that she and Bevere had had frequent conversations—"more than once or twice a week"—regarding his need to provide coverage for Bruno's first period classes. Providing this coverage was problematic because teachers had to be compensated each time they were pulled from prep time to cover a class, thereby causing the Board to incur additional expenses.

Gartenberg added that Bruno was also frequently late for cafeteria duty and, when present, failed to circulate throughout the room and provide proper supervision.

Gartenberg also testified that Bevere had shared with her Bruno's email in which she'd advised him that she'd "sensed something strange," alleging that someone had been "capturing, looking at" the email on the computer in her room. Gartenberg, in turn, asked the network manager, Vince Cifelli, about these allegations and he advised her that it couldn't be done remotely; he'd have to go to the individual computer and check for the presence of a virus. She did not ask him to do so.

Testifying in her own behalf, Joanne Bruno stated that she'd sent Bevere an email on February 25, 2009, Exhibit P-22,⁹ supra, asking that her post-observation conference be moved to a different day because "the person I invited to come with me could not attend." Regarding her request for the presence of this person, she'd advised him that, "[a]s you may or may not know, I had been wearing a heart monitor for 21 days. I am under the care of my doctor at this time. I would be more comfortable meeting with you if the medical person is with me. It is purely precautionary on my part." Ibid. Bruno added that while Bevere had been agreeable to moving the date of the conference, it had not been rescheduled because the Board had directed her to undergo medical and psychological examinations.

Bruno attributed her delay in undergoing the exams to the fact that she had not immediately received this tribunal's order of June 22, 2010. Exhibit P-9, supra. However, she tried to schedule these exams on the day she received it. While the first two psychiatrists she called "refused to meet" with her, she was able to schedule an appointment with the third for September 9, 2010. In the meantime, she saw the cardiologist on August 4, 2010.¹⁰

⁹ Also introduced into evidence as Exhibit R-4.

Regarding Bevere's concerns over her tardiness and insufficient cafeteria supervision, Bruno acknowledged that she'd been late for cafeteria duty on March 3, 2009. However, she explained that she'd been helping a student with an assignment in her classroom, and if she had been late, it had not been for seventeen minutes; it could not have been for more than "a couple of minutes." As she recalled, another teacher was also assigned to cafeteria duty that day, and she did not know "beforehand" that this other teacher was not going to be there. She also denied having been warned about being late for cafeteria duty the month before.

Bruno also acknowledged that seventeen of her students might have been in her classroom without supervision for a period of time on March 3, 2009. However, she explained that the school store, which was "right around the corner" from her classroom, was open at the time and being operated by middle school students, who had to be supervised as well. She would "periodically check on them, see if they needed anything, and go back to my room." Consequently, it was "possible they were momentarily left unsupervised."

Although her oversight of the school store meant leaving a group of students unsupervised, she explained that she didn't need permission to do such things because it was "common practice" during unit lunch. Teachers did not always stay in their classrooms and the students could eat lunch anywhere they wanted. Consequently, teachers often had students in their classrooms, in the hallways, or in the courtyard, and there wasn't always supervision.

Bruno further testified that she had started the Future Business Leaders of America club at South Hunterdon Regional High School the year she became a faculty member. In fact, she'd received an award for her thirty years of dedication and service to that organization during the 2007-2008 school year.

In preparation for the group's 2009 convention, Bruno said that she'd submitted seven field trip request forms dated on or about September 25, 2008, Exhibit R-7A. She admitted that they had not been fully filled out, but explained that they could not be completed because there were "unknowns." These forms, and other field trip request forms like them, Exhibit R-8, were submitted sufficiently in advance of the trip to obtain approval. They were frequently amended to reflect changes in the arrangements such as a change of location made by the sponsor.

In this particular instance, the hotel had to be changed because the State Officer Team was staying at the Sheraton and one of her students, who was running for state-wide office, told her on March 9, 2009, two days before the start of the convention, that his room was going to be at the Sheraton. She then moved everyone to the Sheraton because she wanted all of her students to stay at the same hotel. Although she fully intended to inform the administration of the change, she was "not given any opportunity because it happened too quickly." She would have reported it to Kendig if she'd had the time. Then she received Gartenberg's letter of March 10, 2009, and realized that the administration, which had her cell phone number on file and could have called her in case of emergency, was already aware of it. Since Gartenberg "never asked for an explanation, I didn't offer one. I [didn't] think it would've made much difference if I told them why or why it didn't happen."

Tenure is designed to aid in the establishment of "a competent and efficient school system" by affording teachers a measure of security in the ranks they hold after years of service. Viemeister v. Prospect Park Bd. of Educ., 5 N.J. Super. 215, 218 (App. Div. 1949). It protects teachers from arbitrary dismissal for "unfounded, flimsy or political reasons." Spiewak v. Rutherford Bd. of Educ., 90 N.J. 63, 73 (1982). Toward that end, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 provides that no tenured teacher shall be dismissed or reduced in compensation "except for inefficiency, incapacity, unbecoming conduct or other just cause."

The Board of Education bears the burden of establishing the truth of the charges against a teacher by a preponderance of the credible evidence. Atkinson v. Parsekian, 37 N.J. 143 (1962). Preponderance may be described as the greater weight of credible evidence in the case, not necessarily dependent on the number of witnesses, but having the greater convincing power. State v. Lewis, 67 N.J. 47 (1975). Proof "need not have the attribute of certainty, but it must be well founded in reason and logic.” Lesniewski v. W.B. Furze Corp., 308 N.J. Super. 270 (App. Div. 1998) (citation omitted). In other words, the evidence must be such as to lead a reasonably cautious mind to a given conclusion. Bornstein v. Metro. Bottling Co., 26 N.J. 263 (1958). Precisely what is needed to satisfy this burden must be judged on a case by case basis.

The term unbecoming conduct is “elastic” and has been broadly defined to include any conduct “which has a tendency to destroy public respect for [government] employees and competence in the operation of [public] services.” Karins v. City of Atlantic City, 152 N.J. 532, 554 (1998). Behavior rising to the level of unbecoming conduct “need not be predicated upon the violation of any particular rule of regulation, but may be based merely upon the violation of the implicit standard of good behavior which devolves upon one who stands in the public eye as an upholder of that which is morally and legally correct.” Hartman v. Police Dep’t of Ridgewood, 258 N.J. Super. 22, 40 (App. Div. 1992).

Given the position of public trust in which their profession places them, teachers are held to certain prescribed standards of behavior. As the Commission stated in In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Jacque L. Sammons, School Dist. of Black Horse Pike Reg., Camden County, 1972 S.L.D. 302:

[T]hey are professional employees to whom the people have entrusted the care and custody of tens of thousands of school children with the hope that this trust will result in the maximum educational growth and development of each individual child. This heavy duty requires a degree of self-restraint and controlled behavior rarely requisite to other types of employment. ... Those who teach do so by choice, and in this respect the teaching profession is more than a simple job; it is a calling.

Having completed a comprehensive review of the record in this matter, I conclude that the South Hunterdon Regional School District Board of Education has met its burden and established that Joanne Bruno engaged in conduct unbecoming a teacher.

Although it is possible that Bruno had a legitimate medical condition of some concern to her at the time of the post-observation conference, the excuses, changes of rationale, and refusal to provide documentation substantiating her condition create a very strong inference that she simply did not want to attend. After initially requesting that an unspecified medical person be permitted to attend the conference, she postponed the scheduled meeting when she learned that the as yet unidentified person was unavailable on that date. Had she actually desired the presence of Liz Hendricks in her capacity as a nurse, she could easily have said so in the first instance. By the same token, since she was entitled to have a union representative present at the conference, she simply could have informed Bevere that Ms. Hendricks, who happened to be the representative, was unavailable. In fact, Superintendent Gartenberg testified that had she "known up front" that the unidentified medical person was in fact the school nurse, and not a private physician, "there might not have been a problem."

Later, when asked to provide medical records or other documentation of her previously undisclosed condition, she declined and advised Bevere that she would attend the conference alone. Pressed to provide the documentation and also undergo the examinations the Board was statutorily entitled to seek, she made one excuse after another, ultimately filing a petition of appeal with the Department of Education. Though she agreed to submit to the examinations, she breached the agreement and forced the Board to seek redress. As a result, the Board requested, and this tribunal issued, an order on June 22, 2010, directing her to make appointments with and be examined by certain named physicians. Still, Bruno objected to the cardiologist and selection of psychiatrists that had been chosen. It was not until July 28, 2010, approximately sixteen months after the Board issued its March 11, 2009 resolution, that the Board received notice that the appointments had been made.

The matter of In re Ingram, EDU 9068-01, Initial Decision (May 17, 2002), adopted, Comm'r (June 27, 2002) <<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html>>, is not dissimilar to the present dispute. In Ingram, a superintendent made several attempts to schedule a post-observation conference with a tenured teacher he had observed. A week after the January 11, 2001, observation, Ingram notified the superintendent that she would be too busy to meet with him until January 29, 2001. The superintendent, in turn, advised her that the conference had been scheduled for January 22, 2001, and that any further postponement would constitute direct insubordination. When Ingram failed to appear, the principal found and escorted her to his office for a conference with the superintendent. However, Ingram refused to participate in the conference and walked out of the office.

The superintendent recommended that Ingram be suspended until such time as she underwent medical and psychiatric examinations, and on February 12, 2001, the board of education passed a resolution to that effect. Ingram did not formally contest the board's resolution, but did hire a lawyer who requested time for Ingram to decide whether to retire from her teaching position. On April 26, 2001, the board notified Ingram that she had to make her retirement decision within seven days or the examinations would be scheduled and her failure to cooperate would constitute gross insubordination. On May 3, 2001, Ingram agreed to undergo the examinations, but failed to schedule any appointments. The board contacted her again on June 4, 2001, but to no avail, and filed tenure charges against her in August 2001. Following a hearing, Administrative Law Judge Margaret Hayden determined that the board had met its burden of proof that Ingram's behavior in connection with the post-observation conference and the medical and psychiatric examinations constituted insubordination and warranted her removal from her teaching position.

Here, Bruno postponed her post-observation conference, not because she was too busy, but rather by asserting a medical condition that she could not or would not substantiate. This assertion created enough concern on the part of the Board that the conference was put off indefinitely. Moreover, she refused to comply with the Board's March 11, 2009, resolution, not because she was mulling retirement, but rather because she did not believe she was under a legal obligation to comply. After her legal challenge to the legitimacy of the resolution proved unsuccessful, she agreed to resolve the then-pending petition of appeal by undergoing the examinations, only to renege and thereby force the Board to secure an order directing her to cooperate. And even then, she objected to the doctors that had been selected. The difference between Bruno's conduct and that of Ingram is that Bruno initially asserted a medical condition to delay her conference and then exercised due process in an attempt to prevent disclosure of that condition. And although it may be argued that her refusal to comply with legally issued directives and otherwise honor her legal obligations constituted insubordination, it did not rise to the level of defiantly walking out of a meeting with the principal and superintendent before that meeting could begin. However ill-advisedly, she used the legal tools at her disposal.

The Board has also proven by a preponderance of the evidence that Bruno engaged in conduct unbecoming a teacher by failing to notify school authorities when she changed the hotel arrangements for the FBLA club's field trip to the State convention. Among other things, Bruno stated that she did not have sufficient time to report the change. However, by her own admission, the South Hunterdon High School student who was running for vice president told her that he had been assigned to the Sheraton on March 9, 2009—two days before their scheduled departure. She did not state exactly when she effectuated the change in hotels; however, whether it was on March 9 or March 10, she certainly could, and should, have notified the administration in advance, if not at the time, of making the change. The fact that the Board learned of the change on its own and, as it turned out, did not have to contact a student in case of an emergency, while fortunate, is irrelevant. It did not obviate her responsibility to notify the Board of such an important change in arrangements.

Although not quite as serious as the foregoing, also constituting unbecoming conduct was Bruno's March 3, 2009, failure to properly supervise her students on two separate occasions. According to Bevere, on one of these occasions Bruno was seventeen minutes late for cafeteria duty, during which time she was supposed to be walking around the room and supervising students. He also stated that he'd warned her about such conduct in the past. Bruno, while admitting that she had in fact been late, disputed the number of minutes she'd been tardy and denied having been previously warned about such conduct. She also asserted that she'd been late because she'd been helping a student with an assignment and did not know that another faculty member assigned to this duty would not be present that day. Although these assertions may explain her conduct, they certainly do not excuse it.

Bevere also claimed that on the second occasion, Bruno left some of her students unsupervised in her classroom for eleven minutes. Bruno admitted that it was possible students were “momentarily left unattended” in her classroom,” but claimed it was necessitated by her responsibility for the middle school students who were contemporaneously managing the school store “right around the corner” during unit lunch. Not leaving well enough alone, she also asserted that it was “common practice” for teachers to leave students unsupervised in classrooms during unit lunch. Even in the latter was true, it was in contravention of established school policy. Moreover, however flawed it may have been, no reasonable interpretation of the unit lunch policy could or should have allowed Bruno to leave the younger middle school students managing the school store alone and unsupervised for any period of time.

Charges of inadequate supervision were also filed against a tenured teacher who on one occasion forced a student to leave and sit alone outside the classroom on one occasion, and left his class unsupervised for twenty-three minutes on another. In re Tenney, 1983 S.L.D. 836. Sustaining the charges, Administrative Law Judge Bruce Campbell concluded that while the teacher’s conduct was unbecoming, “in the hierarchy of wrongdoings in which a teacher may be involved, certainly the conduct of Tenney is relatively minor.” Id. at 841. Consequently, he determined that the teacher’s behavior¹¹ warranted a penalty short of dismissal and ordered that Tenney be reinstated to his tenured position and provided with any emoluments and salary which he otherwise would have received less three months of his salary.” Id. at 842.

The Board has alleged that Bruno also engaged in conduct unbecoming a teacher based of chronic tardiness arriving for school in the morning and reporting for cafeteria duty during unit lunch. To be sure, Bevere testified that after “two or three” verbal warnings, by letter dated December 23, 2008, Exhibit P-17, supra, he warned

Bruno that "arriving to school on time is crucial to the safety and instruction of your students," ibid., and asked her to call his office to schedule a meeting for a discussion of the matter. Similarly, Gartenberg testified that Bruno was late for school more than "once or twice a week," although she did sometimes notify the school that she was going to be late.

However, the testimony of these two administrators, while credible, was rather broad and lacking in specificity. For example, neither one mentioned or discussed any provisions in the district's teachers manual or collective bargaining agreement concerning attendance, reporting times, or tardiness, much less any sign in sheets that would have documented the number of times and total minutes Bruno was late. Also missing was any evidence establishing the amount of compensation the district had to pay the covering teachers. Thus, even though Bruno failed to dispute the allegations, there is no way to determine the gravity of this conduct. Consequently, I cannot find that Bruno was chronically late arriving for school in the morning or unit lunch in the afternoon.

Finally, the Board has met its burden of proving that Bruno engaged in conduct unbecoming a teacher by failing to follow the district's lesson plan policy. As Bevere testified, standard practice requires that a teacher ensure that her lesson plans are available for a substitute teacher should the need arise. More specifically, the lesson plans and class attendance lists should both either be on file in the main office or in the teacher's desk drawer. However, neither Bruno's lesson plans nor class attendance lists could be found in either location. And then, after Bruno was contacted and asked to send them in via email, the documents could not be immediately be opened, which caused additional delay. Still, "in the hierarchy of wrongdoings," this conduct, without more, should not warrant her dismissal. ibid.

After careful review of the record before me, I conclude that the South Hunterdon Regional School District Board of Education has established that from February 2009 through and including June 2010, Joanne Bruno engaged in multiple acts constituting conduct unbecoming a teacher between. Nevertheless, I also conclude that removal is not the appropriate penalty.

Bruno has been a teacher in the District and advisor of its FBLA club for approximately thirty-one years. And, with the exception of the period of time in question, she has, from all appearances, been a successful teacher who enjoyed a good rapport with her students. As Superintendent Gartenberg noted in one of her classroom observation reports, "Ms. Bruno demonstrates concern and respect for her students. She demonstrates an awareness of the uniqueness of each student. Teacher-student interactions are friendly and demonstrate general warmth, caring and respect." 2007-2008 Tenured Summative Assessment Report, Exhibit R-1. However, the relationship between Mr. Bevere and Ms. Gartenberg on the one hand, and Ms. Bruno on the other, became irreparably strained sometime during the 2008-2009 school year, and given the tone of particularly Ms. Bruno's correspondence early on in the dispute, perhaps well before February 2009.¹² Unfortunately, from that point on, things went downhill fast and resulted in the filing of the present matter.

Upon balancing Ms. Bruno's successful teaching history with the nature and relatively brief period of the problematic conduct, I conclude that a one-year suspension and withholding of her annual increment for the following year is appropriate.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

¹² During the first contested case between the parties, there was anecdotal evidence that Ms. Bruno was very active in the teacher's union, possibly as the president.

SYNOPSIS

Pro-se petitioner appealed the respondent's denial of his request for the issuance of a Teacher of Career and Technical Education: Carpentry Certificate of Eligibility for failure to attain a passing score on the required Praxis I exam. Petitioner contends that an allowance of five percent would give him a passing score on the Praxis, and that he should be allowed to substitute work experience for a passing score on the Praxis pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.13. The respondent filed a motion to dismiss the appeal in lieu of filing an answer to the petition.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:9-5.16(a), the respondent issues the appropriate certificate upon the candidate's completion of all certification requirements; the requirements for career and technical education certification are set forth in N.J.A.C. 6A:9-11.2; for an experience-based endorsement, a candidate must pass a State-adopted test of basic reading, writing and mathematical skills; and, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.16(a), the respondent may not permit an applicant to substitute education and/or experience for a passing score on any State-required test. The ALJ concluded that petitioner does not meet the requirements for issuance of a Teacher of Career and Technical Education: Carpentry Certificate of Eligibility and accordingly ordered the petition dismissed.

Upon review, the Deputy Commissioner – to whom this matter has been delegated pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:4-33 – adopted the Initial Decision of the OAL as the final decision in this matter and dismissed the petition. In so doing, the Deputy Commissioner noted that denial of certification to petitioner is compelled by law as petitioner has not satisfied the basic eligibility requirements for the certificate he seeks.

RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions were timely filed however, there is no indication that petitioner sent a copy of his exception letter to either counsel for the State Board of Examiners or the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) as required by N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4(a).

Although not contesting that he failed to meet the certification requirements of Teacher of Career and Technical Education: Carpentry Certificate of Eligibility, petitioner's exceptions urge that the current rules governing the obtaining of this certificate be amended. Petitioner contends that Praxis I does not test for the detailed knowledge required to teach carpentry, and that his four-year carpentry certificate from the New Jersey Department of Labor – issued after successful completion of 8000 hours of carpentry and construction technology – along with his 37 years of carpentry and construction experience, should be accepted as sufficient to qualify him as a teacher of Career and Technical Education.

Upon full review and consideration, the Deputy Commissioner – to whom this matter has been delegated pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:4-33 – concurs with the ALJ that summary decision with respect to the denial of certification to petitioner is appropriately granted to the State Board of Examiners as such denial is compelled by law.

In so concluding, the Deputy Commissioner is cognizant of the following regulatory provisions – enacted by the State Board of Education – attendant to this matter: 1) N.J.A.C. 6A:9-11.2(c)(1)(i), which sets forth the eligibility requirements for the experience-based certificate petitioner is seeking, clearly states that “[a]ll candidates for an experienced-based endorsement shall pass a state-adopted test of basic reading, writing, and mathematics skills...” (Praxis exam); 2) pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.16(b), the Board of Examiners is precluded – under any circumstance – from waiving this certification requirement; and 3) N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.16(a) clearly and unambiguously precludes the State Board of Examiners from allowing an applicant to substitute experience for a failing score on the state Praxis exam. It is uncontested in this matter that petitioner did not achieve a passing score on the Praxis exam. Consequently, as petitioner has not satisfied the basic eligibility requirements for the certificate he seeks, the State Board of Examiners correctly denied his application.

Accordingly, the recommended decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter and the instant petition of appeal is hereby dismissed.

Caroline Jones, Deputy Attorney General, for respondent (Paula T. Dow, Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney)

Record Closed: December 14, 2011

Decided: December 14, 2011

BEFORE RICHARD McGILL, ALJ:

Gregory R. Cea (petitioner) appeals from a decision by the State Board of Examiners (Board) to deny his request for the issuance of a Teacher of Career and Technical Education: Carpentry Certificate of Eligibility. The Board issued its Decision on May 18, 2011, and petitioner requested a hearing by letter dated June 11, 2011, to the Commissioner of Education.

On July 14, 2011, the Board filed a motion to dismiss in lieu of an answer, and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on July 15, 2011, for determination as a contested case. Petitioner submitted a response to the motion on October 21, 2011, and the Board replied by letter brief received on November 1, 2011.

MOTION TO DISMISS

A. Facts

A motion to dismiss filed in lieu of an answer should be granted where the petition has advanced no cause of action even if petitioner's factual allegations are accepted as true. N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.10. Based upon petitioner's request for a hearing and his response to the motion to dismiss, petitioner's factual allegations are as follows: Petitioner's credentials include a four-year training program, and upon completion thereof, petitioner received a Certificate of Carpentry issued by the New Jersey Department of Labor. The training program does not require college credits, and therefore, petitioner does not have a grade point average (GPA). Petitioner has thirty-seven years of experience in the carpentry trade.

Petitioner is now seeking issuance of a Teacher of Career and Technical Education: Carpentry Certificate of Eligibility. As part of the application process, petitioner took a State test (Praxis exam) for issuance of a Career and Technical Education Endorsement. Petitioner did not attain a passing score, but he came very close. With an allowance of an additional five percent, petitioner would have a passing score needed for certification. Nevertheless, petitioner was denied certification for lack of a passing score on the Praxis exam.

B. Law and Analysis

The Board issues the appropriate certificate upon the candidate's completion of all certification requirements. N.J.A.C. 6A:9-5.16(a). Requirements may include course work, degree, tests, fees, GPA and all certificate rules pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:9-8, 11, 12, and 13. Ibid.

The requirements for career and technical education certification are set forth in N.J.A.C. 6A:9-11.2. These requirements differ depending on whether the candidate seeks a certificate of eligibility based on experience, N.J.A.C. 6A:9-11.2(c)1i; a baccalaureate degree or higher, N.J.A.C. 6A:9-11.2(c)1ii; or an associate's level degree, N.J.A.C. 6A:9-11.2(c)1iii. For an experience-based endorsement, the candidate must pass a State-adopted test of basic reading, writing, and mathematical skills and an examination in physiology, hygiene, and substance abuse issues. N.J.A.C. 6A:9-11.2(c)1i. If the candidate seeks an endorsement in a regulated occupation for which a State-issued occupational license, certificate or registration is required, the candidate must hold the State-issued occupational license, certificate, or registration. Ibid. Further, the candidate must have employment experience, self-employment, or military experience. Ibid. For degree-based endorsements, the requirements are somewhat different and include provisions related to the candidate's GPA. N.J.A.C. 6A:9-11.2(c)1ii.

If an applicant has areas of deficiency in the requirements for certification, the applicant may provide the Board with evidence of alternative education or experience that the applicant believes is equivalent to the area(s) of deficiency. N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.13(a). The Board shall not permit an applicant to substitute education and/or experience for a passing score on any State-required test. N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.16(a).

General requirements for certificates of eligibility are set forth in N.J.A.C. 6A:9-8.1. One subsection, N.J.A.C. 6A:9-8.1(a), provides in part as follows: "Except as indicated in N.J.A.C. 6A:9-11 and (b) below, to be eligible for a [certificate of eligibility] CE in instructional areas, the candidate shall: 1. Hold a bachelor's or an advanced degree from a regionally accredited college or university" This section further provides in N.J.A.C. 6A:9-8.1(f) as follows:

A candidate with a GPA that is 3.50 or higher, when a GPA of 4.00 equals an A grade, but whose score in the appropriate State test of subject matter knowledge falls below the passing score by no more than five percent will meet the requirements of (a)2 and 4 above. This alternative requirement to (a)2 and 4 above should not be construed as a waiver to N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.16.

Subsection (a)2 relates to a candidate's cumulative GPA, and subsection (a)4 pertains to knowledge of basic pedagogical skills.

Petitioner's first argument is that the flexibility rule in N.J.A.C. 6A:9-8.1(f) should be applied to his failing score on the Praxis exam. Petitioner contends that an allowance of five percent would give him a passing score on the Praxis exam. The difficulty with petitioner's argument is that N.J.A.C. 6A:9-8.1 pertains to candidates who hold academic degrees and would have a GPA. This regulation is not applicable to candidates who seek a certificate of eligibility based on experience. The provisions which are applicable to candidates who seek a certificate of eligibility based on experience are set forth in N.J.A.C. 6A:9-11.2, but they do not contain a flexibility rule. It follows that petitioner's argument is without merit.

Petitioner next argues that he should be allowed to substitute work experience for a passing score on the Praxis exam pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.13. In accordance with this regulation, an applicant may substitute alternative education and/or experience for an area of deficiency. The difficulty with this argument is that in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.16(a) the Board cannot permit an applicant to substitute education and/or experience for a passing score on any State-required test. Further, the Board may not waive any test requirements for certification. N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.16(b). It follows that petitioner's argument is without merit.

Based upon the above, I CONCLUDE that petitioner does not meet the requirements for issuance of a Teacher of Career and Technical Education: Carpentry Certification of Eligibility. Accordingly, it is ORDERED that the appeal in this matter is dismissed.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

Petitioner – a school bus driver – appealed the Department’s determination to suspend his school bus endorsement pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:39-28 after an alleged incident in which a child was left on the school bus in January 2011 because petitioner failed to conduct the mandated visual inspection at the end of his route. Petitioner asserted that his bus aide did not pay attention to the count of children on his bus, and that he was not at fault for this reason. He also stated that he was sorry for the incident, and requested another solution to the situation rather than a suspension of his license. Respondent filed a motion to dismiss in lieu of an answer to the petition.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: on January 10, 2011, petitioner failed to discover that a child remained on his bus, notwithstanding his obligation under N.J.S.A. 18A:39-28 to properly inspect the bus at the end of his route; petitioner failed to advance a cause of action or offer any grounds that would entitle him to relief; petitioner also failed to raise any material facts in dispute that would warrant an evidentiary hearing; petitioner did not contest the fact that a child was left on his bus; and, given the mandatory nature of the penalty for a first-time violator of the statute, a six-month suspension is the only possible outcome in this case. Accordingly, the ALJ granted respondent’s motion to dismiss and ordered petitioner’s “S” endorsement suspended for six months.

Upon full review and consideration of the record, the Deputy Commissioner – to whom this matter has been delegated pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:4-33 – concurred with the findings and determinations of the ALJ. Accordingly, the petition was dismissed and the respondent was directed to notify the Motor Vehicle Commission of its obligation to suspend petitioner’s school bus endorsement pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:39-28 et seq., and to notify petitioner’s employer that he is ineligible for the period of suspension for continued employment as a school bus driver.

Decided: December 15, 2011

BEFORE MARGARET M. MONACO, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The New Jersey Department of Education, Criminal History Review Unit (the CHRU or respondent), intends to suspend petitioner's "S" endorsement on his driver's license, permitting him to operate a school bus. The CHRU intends to take this action due to an incident in which it is alleged that petitioner left a child on the school bus that he drove. On June 7, 2011, the CHRU notified petitioner by letter of its determination that on January 10, 2011, in Essex County, a child was left on the school bus to which petitioner was assigned, notwithstanding petitioner's obligation pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:39-28 et seq. to conduct a visual inspection at the end of his transportation route to assure that no pupil had been left on the bus. The letter further informed petitioner that, as this was petitioner's first offense, the CHRU intended to suspend his "S" endorsement to operate a school bus for six months, and informed petitioner of his ability to request, through the filing of a petition of appeal, an opportunity to be heard as to why the CHRU should not notify the Motor Vehicle Commission of the suspension of petitioner's endorsement. On or about June 20, 2011, petitioner filed a Petition of Appeal. In response, respondent filed a motion to dismiss in lieu of an answer. In support of its motion, respondent filed a brief and relies on the Petition of Appeal submitted by petitioner, which attached various letters. The Department of Education transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law, where it was filed on July 19, 2011. On October 31, 2011, petitioner submitted a letter in opposition to the motion. Subsequently, respondent submitted a reply brief and the record closed upon receipt of that submission.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

Petitioner is a school bus driver employed by Madison Coach. See letter dated May 25, 2011, attached to Petition of Appeal. After an investigation, the CHRU determined that on January 10, 2011, a child was left on the school bus to which petitioner was assigned in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:39-28 et seq. In his Petition of Appeal, petitioner does not dispute that a child had been left behind on his school bus, but, instead, states that he is "sorry for the unfortunate incident that happened" and asks "for another solution to this situation." In the letter that petitioner filed in opposition to the motion, petitioner asserts that he visually inspected the bus, and expresses the view that he was not at fault and that the incident would not have happened had his bus aide paid attention to the count of the children.

LEGAL DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

This matter arises under the School Bus Safety Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:39-26, et seq., which imposes certain affirmative duties on a school bus driver. More particularly, N.J.S.A. 18A:39-28 unambiguously directs:

A school bus driver shall visually inspect the school bus to which he is assigned at the end of the transportation route to determine that no pupil has been left on the bus.

“In the event that, after notice and opportunity to be heard, a school bus driver is found to have left a pupil on the school bus at the end of his route, his school bus endorsement shall be . . . suspended for six months, for a first offense; or . . . permanently revoked, for a second offense.” N.J.S.A. 18A:39-29 (emphasis added). In situations where the child “is harmed as the result of foreseeable danger and the driver is found . . . to have acted with gross negligence, his school bus endorsement shall be permanently revoked.” N.J.S.A. 18A:39-30.

“Where a school bus driver has been notified by the [CHRU] that a determination has been made that suspension or revocation, as the case may be, of the driver’s school bus endorsement is warranted pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:39-28 et seq. because a child was left on the school bus to which the driver was assigned . . . , the driver may contest such determination through the filing of a petition of appeal” N.J.A.C. 6A:3-13.1(a). However, N.J.A.C. 6A:3-13.1(b) limits the aspects of the CHRU’s determination that may be contested by the driver and states:

The following aspects of the Department’s determination may be contested:

1. That a pupil was left on the bus at the end of the driver’s route;
2. That the incident in question was the driver’s second offense;
3. That the pupil was harmed as a result of foreseeable danger; and
4. That the driver acted with gross negligence.

In the within matter, the criteria for contesting the CHRU's determination set forth in 2 through 4 above are not applicable. In short, the CHRU does not assert that the incident amounted to a second offense or that petitioner's endorsement should be permanently revoked because a pupil was harmed as the result of a foreseeable danger and petitioner acted with gross negligence. Accordingly, the pivotal issue presented is whether or not a child had been left on petitioner's bus at the end of his route.

The statute that forms the basis for the proposed suspension reveals that there are limited facts that must be established to substantiate a violation warranting the imposition of a suspension. Specifically, it is necessary to establish that the petitioner was the driver of the bus in question on the date of the incident and that a child was left on the bus after the completion of the route. Firman v. N.J. Dep't of Educ., Office of Criminal History Review Unit, EDU 4415-10, Initial Decision (February 7, 2011), adopted, Comm'r (March 24, 2011) <<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.shtml>>; Dacres v. N.J. Dep't of Educ., Office of Criminal History Review Unit, EDU 2278-09, Initial Decision (July 26, 2010), adopted, Comm'r (September 8, 2010) <<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.shtml>>. In this regard, "[e]videntially, that a child is left on a bus at the end of the route is itself at the very least prima facie evidence of a failure on the part of the driver to properly inspect the bus at the end of the route." Firman, supra, EDU 4415-10, Initial Decision (February 7, 2011) <<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.shtml>>; Dacres, supra, EDU 2278-09, Initial Decision (July 26, 2010) <<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.shtml>>.

If a school bus driver is found to have left a child on the school bus at the end of his or her route, the statute provides for the mandatory imposition of a six-month suspension of the driver's school bus endorsement for a first offense. N.J.S.A. 18A:39-29; see Firman, supra, EDU 4415-10, Initial Decision (February 7, 2011) <<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.shtml>>; Dacres, supra, EDU 2278-09, Initial Decision (July 26, 2010) <<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.shtml>>. Under the terms set by the Legislature, where a violation has been established no consideration may be given as to the circumstances of the event or the driver in determining the penalty to be imposed. Garner v. N.J. Dep't of Educ., Criminal History Review Unit, EDU 06655-08, Initial Decision (April 3, 2009) <<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.shtml>>, adopted, Comm'r (May 1, 2009) <<http://www.nj.gov/education/legal/>>. "The mandatory nature of the sanction may fairly be read as an indication of the Legislature's strong reaction to any such act on the part of someone entrusted with the care and safety of students, who in many instances are of tender years." Garner, supra, EDU 06655-08, Initial Decision (April 3, 2009) <<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.shtml>>. Inasmuch as the penalty for such an abrogation of duty is set by statute, it is apparent that the opportunity to be heard refers to an opportunity to contest the determination that a child was left behind, and not an opportunity to argue for waiver or leniency of the penalty. See Garner, supra, Final Decision at n. 1 (May 1, 2009) <<http://www.nj.gov/education/legal/>>. And, matters such as the adequacy of the bus driver's inspection or how it came to be that a child was left behind on the bus after a visual inspection are insufficient to raise a material issue of fact warranting an evidentiary hearing. See Lazo v. N.J. Dep't of Educ., Criminal History Review Unit, EDU 12143-10, Initial Decision (August 10, 2011) <<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.shtml>>, adopted, Comm'r (September 26, 2011) <<http://www.nj.gov/education/legal/>>.

Against this backdrop, "upon motion to dismiss filed in lieu of answer, the Commissioner may dismiss the petition on the grounds that the petitioner has advanced no cause of action even if the petitioner's factual allegations are accepted as true" N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.10. Stated differently, dismissal is appropriate if the petition fails to set forth a basis for relief and discovery would not supply any such basis. Banco Popular N. Am. v. Gandi, 184 N.J. 161, 166 (2005); Sloan v. Klagholtz, 342 N.J. Super. 385, 394 (App. Div. 2001).

In this regard, petitioner does not dispute that he was the driver of the school bus on January 10, 2011. Additionally, the Petition of Appeal, along with petitioner's response to the motion, fails to set forth any facts contesting the CHRU's determination that a child had been left on the bus at the end of his route. Rather, the crux of petitioner's appeal consists of his regrets for the incident and a plea for leniency due to the consequences that would result should his endorsement be suspended. Petitioner further argues that he visually inspected the bus and other persons should bear the responsibility for the child being left unattended. Simply put, the statute unambiguously directs that the mandatory penalty is triggered if the school bus driver is found to have left a child on the bus at the end of his or her route. As noted, evidence or facts that do not contest the determination that a child was left unattended on the bus are beyond the scope of matters that a driver may contest. See N.J.A.C. 6A:3-13.1(b); Lazo, supra, EDU 12143-10, Initial Decision (August 10, 2011) <<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.shtml>>. Further, the statutes evidence an intendment on the part of the Legislature to assign ultimate responsibility to the school bus driver to assure that children are not left on the bus at the end of the route and, thus, the bus driver will be held liable when such circumstance arises.

Based upon the undisputed evidence offered by the respondent, and giving all reasonable inferences to petitioner, I FIND that on January 10, 2011, petitioner was the driver of a school bus. I FIND that at the end of his route petitioner failed to discover that a child remained on the bus, notwithstanding his obligation to properly inspect the bus pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:39-28. Petitioner has failed to advance a cause of action or offer any grounds that will entitle him to relief, and has failed to raise any material facts in dispute that warrant an evidentiary hearing. Rather, given the limited facts that must be established to support a violation of the duty imposed by the Legislature on a school bus driver to properly inspect the bus at the end of a route to assure that no child is left on the bus, and inasmuch as petitioner does not contest that the child was left on his bus, the arguments offered by respondent amply support dismissal of petitioner's Petition of Appeal. And, given the mandatory nature of the penalty for a first-time violator of the statutory mandate, the six-month suspension is the only outcome where the violation is proven. N.J.S.A. 18A:39-29(a).

ORDER

I ORDER that respondent's motion to dismiss be and hereby is GRANTED. I further ORDER that petitioner's "S" endorsement shall be suspended for six months.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

The four petitioners in this consolidated case were employed under tenure as administrators by respondent Board when their positions were eliminated in a reorganization and reduction in force (RIF) effective July 1, 2009. Petitioners asserted entitlement to administrative positions currently held by non-tenured teaching staff members, including several new positions titled Assistant Director which were created during the 2009 reorganization of the Curriculum and Testing Department. Respondent contended that petitioners neither held the certifications required for the positions they seek, nor were entitled to these positions by virtue of their tenure or seniority rights. Candace Wallace, Director of Curriculum and Testing for the respondent, was granted the right to intervene in this case after petitioners alleged that they were entitled to Wallace's position by virtue of their tenure status.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: the petitioners are entitled to any positions in which they hold tenure that are currently held by non-tenured staff members; all of the petitioners held their positions of employment as supervisors under tenure, and petitioner Gray had additionally earned tenure as an Athletic Director; the petitioners correctly asserted that their tenure protection extends to the Assistant Director positions established by the respondent Board in 2009; the additional certification requirements imposed by the Board for these new positions cannot defeat the clear tenure entitlements of the petitioners, as the additional certifications are not necessary to properly develop curriculum in language arts, science or mathematics; the requirement that the Assistant Directors hold appropriate subject-matter certification is reasonable and petitioners do not assert rights to positions for which they are not properly certified as to subject matter; and none of the petitioners are entitled by virtue of tenure to the position of Director of Curriculum and Testing currently held by Candace Wallace. The ALJ concluded that: petitioner Gray is entitled to the position of Athletic Director, retroactive to June 30, 2009; two of the remaining petitioners are entitled to compensation for lost wages and benefits during the 2009-2010 school year due to the respondent's failure to appoint them to one of the Assistant director positions created in 2009; and, as to the position of Assistant Director for Mathematics and Science K-12, the respondent is directed to select between petitioners Richburg and Kohn, and immediately appoint the petitioner deemed better qualified for the position; the petitioner selected shall be compensated for lost salary and benefits retroactive to July 1, 2010.

Upon independent review of the record, the Commissioner, inter alia, concurred in part with the ALJ – albeit for different reasons – that Candace Wallace is entitled to serve as Director of Curriculum and Testing. The Commissioner also concurred that Sandra Gray is entitled to the Director of Athletics position, and that additional endorsements – beyond the appropriate subject matter endorsements – are not required for the new positions. The Commissioner went on to modify the ALJ's conclusions with respect to the Assistant Director positions, and directed that these positions be re-titled as Supervisors as there is no need for the district to utilize an unrecognized director title since the job descriptions for the positions in question do not specify that the holders will supervise other supervisors. Accordingly, the Commissioner ordered the Board: to appoint Gray as Athletic Director; to leave Candace Wallace in her role as Director of Curriculum and Testing; to compensate two of the remaining petitioners for lost wages due to its failure to appoint them to one of the new positions in the 2009-2010 school year; and to appoint either petitioner Richburg or petitioner Kohn – recognizing their seniority rights – to the position of Supervisor for Mathematics and Science K-12, and compensate that petitioner for lost salary and benefits retroactive to July 1, 2010.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
DECISION

The record of these consolidated matters and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed, as have the exceptions filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 by the petitioners, the Board and intervenor, Candace Wallace.¹ This consolidated matter involves claims by four tenured supervisors whose positions were abolished during reorganization. These petitioners claim an entitlement to the newly created Assistant Director positions, to the Director of Curriculum and Testing position, held by the intervenor, and also to the position of Athletic Director. They do not contend that the Board improperly abolished their supervisory positions, nor are any of the relevant facts concerning the certifications and/or endorsements that are held by each of the petitioners in dispute.

In their exceptions, the petitioners agree with the conclusions of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) that Sandra Gray, pursuant to her tenure and seniority rights, is appropriately the Athletic Director under the new reorganization. They agree, as the ALJ found, that each petitioner has the necessary certification and endorsements and each is thus qualified to undertake one of the new titles of Assistant Director. The petitioners only challenge the ALJ's conclusion in which, they assert, she erroneously determined that the petitioners were not entitled to the position of Director of Curriculum and Instruction, which is currently held by Ms. Wallace, who does not have tenure. The petitioners contend that the ALJ incorrectly found that the appropriate certification for the job was the school administrator endorsement despite the fact that all that was required by the Board in the job description² was an administrative certificate with a principal endorsement, which each of them currently holds. Additionally the petitioners argue that the ALJ improperly sought to distinguish the Director of Curriculum and Testing position from the Assistant Director titles by concluding that the position was a "qualitatively higher level of administrative responsibility than that entrusted to a supervisor.” The petitioners claim it is irrelevant that Ms. Wallace had a supervisory role over the Assistant Director positions, but instead argue that the controlling factor is that both titles are unrecognized under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5, and both titles fall under the administrative certificate. Further, Ms. Wallace does not have tenure as compared to the petitioners, each of whom is a tenured supervisor. Therefore, the petitioners maintain that under Duva v. State Operated School District of the City of Jersey City, EDU 9801-98, State Bd. of Educ. (March 6, 2002), the petitioners are entitled to the Director of Curriculum and Instruction position.

² On May 9, 2009, the Executive County Superintendent of Schools, Essex County, issued approval of the new titles of Assistant Director with a principal endorsement. It is unclear what exactly was provided for the Superintendent to review and whether or not he had the opportunity to review the addition of the dual content-specific certification requirement.

In its exceptions, the Board argues that the ALJ improperly determined that the petitioners were entitled to the Assistant Director positions.³ The Board takes exception to the ALJ’s finding that the additional certification requirements imposed by the Board cannot serve to defeat the tenure entitlements of the petitioners. The job descriptions for the Assistant Director positions require that, in addition to an endorsement for Principal, each must also hold an Educational Services certificate or a Special Education or ESL endorsement. The Board contends that its requirement that the Assistant Directors hold dual certification was to focus on the needs of certain student population groups and to raise the bar. The Board further argues that the decision to require a dual certification was sound and its educational expertise in approving the creation of the new positions should not be second guessed. Denmery v. Board of Education, 131 N.J. 626, 638 (1993). As a result, the Board contends that since none of the petitioners holds a dual certification, none is qualified for the position of Assistant Director.

In reply exceptions, intervenor Candace Wallace agreed with the ALJ that none of the petitioners is entitled to the Director of Curriculum and Testing position that Ms. Wallace currently holds. Ms. Wallace argues that before the reorganization, she supervised the very individuals who now seek to replace her and many of their duties have been assigned to building principals. In their former titles, all petitioners were responsible for the supervision of their limited content areas and some were further limited by grade level. In contrast, the intervenor maintains that her duties are significantly and qualitatively different from any of petitioners’ prior supervisory functions. Allowing a subordinate to “bump up” into a position of greater scope and level of responsibility without support of law would create an anomalous result. Moreover, she asserts, the ALJ correctly held that Ms. Wallace was fully qualified and met the requirements for this position.

Upon a comprehensive review of the record and exceptions filed in this matter, the Commissioner concurs in part with the Administrative Law Judge that intervenor Candace Wallace is entitled to serve as Director of Curriculum and Testing (but not for the reasons articulated by the ALJ) and that petitioner Sandra Gray, by virtue of her tenure and seniority rights, is entitled to the Director of Athletics position. The Commissioner agrees with the ALJ that – other than subject matter endorsements – the additional certifications are not required, and modifies the ALJ’s remaining conclusions as follows.

Initially, the Commissioner agrees with petitioners that pursuant to Duva v. State-Operated School District of Jersey City, supra, both the “Director of Curriculum and Testing” and the “Assistant Director” titles are unrecognized position titles and are, therefore, subject to the requirements of N.J.A.C. 6A:9-5.5. That regulation provides that the district must submit to the county superintendent a written request for permission to use the proposed title, together with a detailed job description. The county superintendent is then required to approve or disapprove use of the title and, if approved, to specify the appropriate certification and identify the actual title under which the teaching staff member will accrue tenure and seniority rights. There is no evidence in the record that the district complied with this requirement regarding the “Director of Curriculum and Testing” position, but – as in Duva, supra, and Jack A. Perna v. State-Operated School District of the City of Paterson, Passaic County, Commissioner’s Decision No. 2-12, decided January 4, 2012 – there is no need to remand this matter to the Executive County Superintendent to consider the merits. The Commissioner of Education is the ultimate arbiter of school law disputes and thus has the ultimate authority and responsibility to determine certification. The Commissioner agrees with the ALJ’s general description of Ms. Wallace’s job duties as district-wide and would agree with the judge’s conclusion concerning the appropriate certification, but for the fact that the administrative code carves out an exception to the rule that district-wide job duties require an administrator’s endorsement. Specifically, N.J.A.C. 6A:9-12.3(b) and (c) provide that an Assistant Superintendent for Curriculum and Instruction may perform those job duties for the district with either a principal endorsement or a supervisor endorsement. The Commissioner, upon review of the job description for Director of Curriculum and Testing, determines that the duties are actually those of an Assistant Superintendent for Curriculum and Instruction and that the necessary certification is either a principal or supervisor endorsement. The district may utilize the title "Director of Curriculum and Testing," but Ms. Wallace will accrue tenure and seniority rights as an Assistant Superintendent in charge of curriculum and instruction. Since this is a lesser included title under the assistant superintendent rubric, there is not a problem with her continuing to report to another Assistant Superintendent, and – pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:32-5.1(1)2i – each assistant superintendency shall be a separate category for seniority purposes.

With respect to the Assistant Director positions, the Commissioner determines to disapprove the use of that unrecognized title and instead directs that the respective positions be re-titled as Supervisors. Tenure and seniority will accrue under the recognized position title of Supervisor. There is no need for the district to utilize an unrecognized director title for these positions because the job descriptions do not specify that the holders will supervise other supervisors.

For the foregoing reasons, the Commissioner hereby orders the Board to immediately appoint Sandra Gray to the position of Athletic Director together with back pay from June 30, 2009, subject to mitigation, as well as restoration of all benefits and emoluments consistent with that position; further, the Board shall leave Candace Wallace undisturbed in her role as Director of Curriculum and Testing. With respect to the remaining petitioners, all of them hold appropriate endorsements for the supervisor positions in issue during the 2009-2010 school year, including subject matter certification in mathematics, science or physical education. Effective with the 2010-2011 school year, only petitioners Richburg and Kohn continue to have an entitlement to the positions in question by virtue of their tenure rights. They both hold the subject matter certification required for the Supervisor for Mathematics and Science K-12 position. Accordingly, the Board is directed to compensate two of the remaining petitioners for any lost wages, benefits or emoluments, less mitigation, due to its failure to appoint them to these positions for the 2009-2010 school year in accordance with their tenure and seniority rights. As to the position of Supervisor for Mathematics and Science K-12, the Board is directed to appoint either Curtis Richburg or Malvina Kohn – recognizing their respective seniority rights – and compensate that petitioner for all lost salary, benefits and emoluments, less mitigation, retroactive to July 1, 2010. If a dispute arises concerning seniority rights, a new petition shall be filed.

BEFORE ELLEN S. BASS, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioners, Elbert Smith, Curtis Richburg, Malvina Kohn and Sandra Gray, were employed under tenure as administrators by respondent, Board of Education of the City of Orange (the Board), when their positions were abolished, effective July 1, 2009. They assert an entitlement to administrative positions currently held by non-tenured teaching staff members. The Board replies that petitioners neither hold the certifications required for the positions they seek, nor are they entitled to these positions by virtue of their tenure or seniority rights.

Four separate petitions of appeal were filed with the Commissioner of Education in August 2009, and were transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for hearing as contested cases on September 22, 2009. By order dated December 7, 2009, the petitions were consolidated for hearing, in accordance with the standards set forth at N.J.A.C. 1:1-17.3. The order of consolidation directed that counsel for petitioners, on or before December 15, 2009, notify any Board employees whose employment status might be adversely affected by the outcome of this proceeding of their right to intervene, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-16.4.

The parties appeared for hearing on May 18, 2010, at which time I first learned that notice had not been sent to potential intervenors. Accordingly, the hearing did not proceed, and instead the day was devoted to settlement discussions, which proved unsuccessful. Letters were sent by petitioners' counsel on May 19, 2010, informing two potential intervenors that they must communicate with me in writing, before June 1, 2010, if they wished to participate. I did not receive a request for intervention.

The parties again appeared on June 1, 2010, at which time counsel were able to agree to a comprehensive stipulation of facts. In the course of reviewing those facts it was determined that additional intervenors should have been notified of this proceeding. Accordingly, on the record, I again directed counsel for petitioners to send letters to these additional potential intervenors, this time affording them until June 30, 2010, to contact me. Counsel did so via letters dated June 8, 2010, to Anita Vogel and Jason Green. Those letters clearly directed that I be advised prior to June 30, 2010, in writing, if the recipient wished to intervene. I did not receive a request to intervene from either Ms. Vogel or Mr. Green.

August hearing dates were adjourned at the request of the parties due to scheduling conflicts, and the matter proceeded to hearing on November 9, 2010. On the day of hearing, Mr. Green appeared, unrepresented by counsel, and asked to intervene. Green did not contend that he had not timely received counsel's June 8, 2010, letter. I denied his request on the record, as I felt he had been afforded more than ample time to communicate with me and that it would be inappropriate to delay the hearing further. At the conclusion of the hearing, I directed counsel to supply me with several additional documents, including Board resolutions and job descriptions, that I felt were necessary to complete the record. Counsel for the Board did so via letters dated November 29, 2010, and December 3, 2010. Post-hearing submissions were filed on December 20, 2010, and January 11, 2011.

In his post-hearing brief, counsel for petitioners alleged, for the first time, that petitioners were entitled, by virtue of their tenure status, to the Director of Curriculum and Testing position currently held by Candace Wallace. I contacted counsel via telephone, and expressed concern that there was an insufficient factual record developed to address this claimed entitlement, and that, additionally, Wallace had never been afforded notice of her right to intervene. Via letter dated January 25, 2011, counsel for the Board provided me with additional information regarding Wallace's certifications and employment background. I determined to reopen the record, and I directed that counsel for petitioners advise Wallace of her right to intervene. He did so via letter dated February 12, 2011.

Wallace filed a motion seeking leave to intervene, and an order was entered permitting her to do so on March 17, 2011. Additional testimony was taken on May 12, 2011, to address the limited issue of petitioners' entitlement to Wallace's position. That day, counsel for petitioners learned for the first time through Wallace's testimony that Richburg allegedly had been offered and had declined reemployment by the Board in an administrative capacity. I allowed Richburg to testify on this issue as well. Counsel for the Board appeared without witnesses, so I afforded him an opportunity to rebut Richburg's testimony, agreeing to hold the record open for the remainder of the day. Counsel advised that no Board representatives wished to appear, and instead he offered to file a certification of the Board Secretary. To date, none has been filed. Supplemental post-hearing submissions were filed on June 22, 2011, at which time the record closed.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Stipulation of Facts

The parties agreed to many of the underlying facts, and I FIND as follows:

Smith's Employment History

1. Elbert Smith was employed as a Supervisor of Vocational Career Education by the Board commencing in or about November 2000.

2. On or about May 15, 2009, Smith was advised that his title of Supervisor of Vocational Career Education was to be abolished effective at the end of the day on June 30, 2009.

3. Smith's compensation as Supervisor of Vocational Career Education ended on June 30, 2009.

4. Smith holds a Teacher of Physical Education and Teacher of Industrial Arts certificate issued in September 1976, and a Principal/Supervisor certificate issued in June 1984.

Richburg's Employment History

5. Curtis Richburg was employed by the Board as a Supervisor of Science beginning on or about January 8, 2001.

6. Prior to his service as Supervisor of Science, Richburg also served in the title of "Acting" Assistant Principal. When Richburg served as the Acting Assistant Principal, from September 19, 1994, to June 30, 1995, the Assistant Principal title was "vacant." Richburg was not replacing someone who was on leave. During this period of time, however, Richburg did not hold a Principal's certificate.

7. On or about May 15, 2009, Richburg was notified by the Board that his position of Supervisor of Science would be abolished at the end of the day on June 30, 2009.

8. Richburg's compensation as a Supervisor of Science ended on June 30, 2009.

9. Richburg holds a standard Supervisor certificate issued in January 1993, a certificate of eligibility for a Principal endorsement/certificate issued in May 2007, and a certificate of eligibility for a School Administrator certificate issued in August 2007.

10. Richburg is presently employed as a teacher of science for the Board, and it is uncontroverted that he is appropriately certificated to do so.

Gray's Employment History

11. Sandra Gray was employed by the Board as a Supervisor of Health and Physical Education K–12 from in or about September 1999 until June 2009.

12. Prior to her service as a Supervisor of Health and Physical Education K–12, Gray served as a Supervisor of Health and Physical Education 7–12 and Athletics 7–12 from 1995 to 1999.

13. From July 1, 1988, to June 30, 1993, Gray served as a "Department Chairperson" of Health and Physical Education and Assistant Athletic Director. Gray received a stipend for this position while assigned to a teaching position.

14. From on or about September 1, 1971, through June 30, 1995, Gray served as a health/physical education and driver education teacher.

15. On or about May 15, 2009, Gray was notified that her position of Supervisor of Health and Physical Education K–12 was to be terminated at the end of the day on June 30, 2009.

16. Gray's compensation as the Supervisor of Health and Physical Education K–12 terminated on June 30, 2009. Gray is currently employed by the school district as a teacher of physical education, and has held that position since June 2009.

17. Gray holds a certificate as Teacher of Health and Physical Education issued in July 1972, a Teacher of Driver Education certificate issued in November 1976, a Principal/Supervisor certificate issued in March 1984, and a School Administrator certificate issued in June 1992.

Kohn's Employment History

18. Malvina Kohn was employed by the Board as a Supervisor of Mathematics 7–12 beginning in or about August 8, 1997.

19. On or about May 15, 2009, Kohn was advised that her position of Supervisor of Mathematics 7–12 was to be abolished effective at the end of the day on June 30, 2009.

20. Kohn's compensation as Supervisor of Mathematics 7–12 terminated effective June 30, 2009.

21. Kohn holds a Teacher of Mathematics certificate issued in June 1984 and a Principal/Supervisor certificate issued in February 1990.

The District Reorganization in 2009

22. On or about May 26, 2009, the Board reorganized the Curriculum and Testing Department and created the title of Assistant Director. Titles newly created by formal Board resolution included:

- a. Assistant Director of Special Projects K–12 for Visual and Performing Arts, Technology Instructional Education and Media Specialists;
- b. Assistant Director for Language Arts K–6, Testing K–8, and Elementary Professional Development K–6;

- c. Assistant Director for Language Arts 7–12, Testing 9–12, and Secondary Professional Development 7–12;
- d. Assistant Director for Mathematics K–6, Science K–6, and Physical Education/Health K–6;
- e. Assistant Director for Mathematics 7–12, Science 7–12, and Physical Education/Health 7–12.

23. The following positions were abolished by formal Board resolution on May 26, 2009:

- a. Supervisor of Visual and Performing Arts K–12;
- b. Supervisor of Language Arts K–8;
- c. Supervisor of Language Arts 7–12;
- d. Supervisor of Professional Development;
- e. Supervisor of Mathematics 7–12;
- f. Supervisor of Science 7–12;
- g. Supervisor of Physical Education/Health K–12; and
- h. Supervisor of Vocational Education/Careers in the Department of Special Programs.

24. Via letter dated May 18, 2009, the Executive County Superintendent of Schools, Dr. Lawrence Feinsod, wrote to the Interim Superintendent for the Orange

School District, Dr. Judith Kronin, and granted approval for the newly created titles of Assistant Director. Dr. Feinsod's letter stated that the "legal title" for each position would be "principal," and that the "authorized endorsement" on the Administrative certificate would be "principal."

25. Each of the petitioners holds a School Administrator certificate with a Principal or Supervisor endorsement.

26. The Assistant Director job titles required the following job qualifications, per the job descriptions:

- a. A minimum of a master's degree from an accredited institution;
- b. A New Jersey Principal certificate or School Administrator certificate;
- c. Content-specific certifications depending upon assignment, i.e., math, science, health and physical education, music, art, media specialist, English, reading, reading specialist, and elementary education;
- d. One or more of the following certificates—Reading Specialist or Reading or Educational Support Services (LDTC, Guidance Counselor or Pupil Personnel Services, School Psychologist, Social Worker), or Teacher of Students with Disabilities, or Teacher of the Handicapped, or ESL or Bilingual/Bicultural;
- e. At least 5 years' experience as an administrator or supervisor in one or more position content areas as deemed by the superintendent;
- f. Demonstrative experience as described in the duties and responsibilities set forth in the job description;
- g. Such alternatives to the qualifications as the superintendent deemed appropriate.

27. Each of the petitioners has the requisite Administrative certificate/Principal endorsement set forth in the Executive County Superintendent's approval; each has the requisite standard certificate in one or more of the content areas. Petitioners do not hold an additional instructional certificate as a Reading Teacher or Reading Specialist or Teacher of Students with Disabilities, Teacher of the Handicapped, or ESL or Bilingual/Bicultural or the Educational Support Services certificate in the areas of: LDTC, Guidance Counselor or Pupil Personnel Services, School Psychologist, Social Worker, as required under the job descriptions.

28. The Board appointed a non-tenured staff member, Jason Green, to serve as full-time Athletic Director K-12, effective September 21, 2009, to June 30, 2010.

The Testimony

Gray's Service as Athletic Director

In uncontroverted testimony, Gray described her duties as Athletic Director during the years 1995-1999.¹ I FIND that she served in this role while holding a title that also encompassed responsibility for supervision of health and physical education for grades 7-12. Gray did not receive a separate stipend for her duties as Athletic Director. She reported to the building principals and the superintendent of schools.

I FIND that Gray was responsible for the entire athletic program for the Orange School District while serving as Athletic Director. These duties included hiring, supervising and evaluating athletics coaches; coordinating the scheduling of athletic events; coordinating transportation for these events; coordinating the hiring of game officials; coordinating transportation for the marching band and color guard; coordinating physicals and the efforts of team doctors; overseeing the concession stand; ordering equipment; and arranging end-of-season banquets. Gray is familiar with the New Jersey State Interscholastic Athletic Association (NJSIAA) and its rules and regulations; she stated that verifying athlete eligibility for participation in interscholastic sports was likewise her responsibility.

I FIND that Gray performed these duties on a full-time basis, in addition to the other duties required of her in supervising physical education and health for the secondary grades. She indicated that her duties as physical education supervisor entailed the supervision of only ten teachers, as well the responsibility for ordering equipment for and generally managing the activities of the Physical Education Department. Gray ceased performing the duties of Athletic Director in 1999, when these responsibilities were reassigned as part of an administrative reorganization, and assigned instead to an Assistant Principal. It is uncontroverted, and I FIND, that Jason Green continues to hold the position of Athletic Director, to date.

After the hearing, counsel supplemented the record with the job descriptions for the current Athletic Director and for the position held by Gray when she performed the duties she described at hearing.² This latter job description readily confirms that Gray testified with accuracy regarding the scope of her responsibilities as Athletic Director. The job description likewise echoes that of the current job description for the position, and I FIND that it is incontrovertibly the same job. Under both job descriptions the Athletic Director organizes and administers interscholastic athletics for district students, including determining athlete eligibility, and managing first aid, transportation, field locations, and coaching staff, among other responsibilities. The only genuine difference between Gray's prior job and that held by Green is that Gray was required to additionally supervise ten teachers in the Physical Education Department. While the earlier job description stated that the Athletic Director duties encompassed grades 7–12, and the current position encompasses interscholastic athletics for all grades, interscholastic sports are primarily conducted for secondary-school students.

² It should be noted that the latter job description states that it is for grades K–12, but the stipulation and the testimony reflect that Gray's duties were for grades 7–12. Counsel clearly indicated in correspondence, dated December 3, 2010, however, that this is the correct job description.

The Reorganizations for 2009–2010

School district administrators Candace Goldstein and Belinda Smiley testified regarding the rationale for the reorganization and for the Assistant Director certification requirements. Their testimony was uncontroverted, and I FIND:

Goldstein is employed by the Board as Director of Special Programs. She testified that in 2008 she was supervising eight departments. She did not supervise the petitioners, with the exception of Smith. Economic exigencies forced the district to analyze whether administrative services were being delivered in the most efficient way possible. She noted that Smith supervised only eleven employees. Accordingly, his position was abolished and his duties were subsumed in other district positions.

Smiley urged that while the reorganization was prompted by financial exigencies, it was also motivated by a desire to completely change focus; she described the reorganization as a “paradigm shift.” Whereas the supervisors were responsible for supervision of instruction, including the formal evaluation of instructional staff, these duties were now reassigned to building principals, as were many of the departmental managerial duties previously completed by the supervisors, such as ordering departmental supplies. The Assistant Director positions were now intended to focus on curriculum development. Smiley stated that a recent Collaborative Assessment and Planning for Achievement (CAPA) review of the district reflected that student test scores were low.³ A Quality Single Accountability Continuum (QSAC) evaluation of the district likewise found that while the district passed as to most indicators, it did not pass in the area of instructional progress. The district has been a “district in need of improvement” under No Child Left Behind (NCLB) for several years, necessitating a changed administrative focus; as Smiley expressed it, “from the top down.”

It was with these concerns in mind that the Board adopted job descriptions requiring Educational Services certifications or Reading or Special Education certifications for the holders of the new Assistant Director positions. Smiley testified that the subgroups at greatest risk in the district included special education students and English-language learners. Requiring either Educational Services certificates or Special Education or Reading certification would “raise the bar” and attract candidates for these Assistant Directorships who could focus on the needs of these discreet student populations. Raising the test scores of these subgroups would raise district test scores overall. Smiley urged that requiring these additional certifications would attract candidates to the Assistant Director position who understood the unique needs of the Orange student population.

During the 2009–2010 school year, the position of “Assistant Director of Special Projects K–12 for Visual and Performing Arts, Technology Instructional Education and Media Specialists,” was filled by Peter Crosta, who held both the Fine Arts certifications and Educational Services certifications required by the job description. Crosta is a tenured staff member. The position of “Assistant Director for Mathematics K–6, Science K–6, and Physical Education/Health K–6” was held by Anita Vogel, a non-tenured employee who likewise held the requisite Mathematics certification and the Educational Services certifications required by the job description. Vogel is no longer employed by the school district. The position of “Assistant Director for Language Arts K–6, Testing K–8, and Elementary Professional Development K–6” was held by Katherine Carter, a non-tenured employee who holds the requisite certifications under the newly created job description.

The district was unable to find suitably qualified candidates to fill the positions of “Assistant Director for Language Arts 7–12, Testing 9–12, and Secondary Professional Development 7–12,” and “Assistant Director for Mathematics 7–12, Science 7–12, and Physical Education/Health 7–12.” When asked how the duties of these positions were addressed in the interim, Smiley indicated that Wallace, who supervised the Assistant Directors, completed these duties as best she could. Wallace’s job description reflects that the only certification required for her position is a “valid New Jersey Supervisory/Administrator’s Certificate.” She is not required, like her subordinates, to hold an Educational Services certificate, even though she performed the very curriculum-development duties that Smiley urged could only be adequately completed by an individual with Educational Services, Special Education or Reading certification.

The job descriptions for the newly created positions confirm the emphasis on curriculum development and the use of curriculum to guide instruction. Job responsibilities include supervision of curriculum writing, monitoring of instructional programs, and assisting in the supervision of district-wide curriculum initiatives. The Assistant Directors report to the Director of Curriculum and Testing.

The Reorganizations for 2010–2011

The district budget became increasingly constrained during the 2009–2010 school year, necessitating a further reorganization effective with the 2010–2011 school year. It is uncontroverted, and I FIND, that the math and language supervisory positions were consolidated, leaving only three Assistant Directorships: “Assistant Director of Special Projects K–12 for Visual and Performing Arts, Technology Instructional Education, Media Specialists,” “Assistant Director for Language Arts, Testing and Professional Development K–12,” and “Assistant Director for Mathematics and Science K–12.” The district continued to require Assistant Directors to hold a Principal or School Administrator certificate, subject-matter certification and an Educational Services certification or specialized certification in Special Education or Reading.

Peter Crosta continued to serve as Assistant Director K–12, and Katherine Carter was reassigned to the K–12 Language Arts position. The math position remains unfilled.⁴ These unrecognized titles were approved by Dr. Feinsod via letter dated June 28, 2010. Dr. Feinsod's letter indicated that the endorsement to the Administrative certificate required for these positions is “Principal/Supervisor.” His letter of approval noted no further certification requirements.

Despite urging that the Educational Services certification requirement was thoughtfully added to the Assistant Director job descriptions to enhance the position and to improve student performance, Smiley readily conceded that a recent advertisement for the Math K–12 Assistant Director position indicated that if a candidate held a doctorate, this requirement would be waived. The job descriptions for the newly consolidated positions likewise so provide. Both Smiley and Goldstein conceded that the additional Educational Services certificate is likewise not required for other administrative positions in the district, including principal, deputy superintendent or superintendent of schools.

Candace Wallace's Testimony

Candace Wallace has held employment with the Board since January 26, 2009, at all times serving as Director of Curriculum and Testing. She holds an Administrator's certificate with a Supervisor endorsement, an Instructional certificate with an Elementary endorsement, grades pre-school–8, a provisional certificate and certificate of eligibility as a Principal, and a certificate of eligibility as a School Administrator.

Wallace offered uncontroverted testimony regarding her job duties, and I FIND that she coordinates district-wide academic testing, including State-mandated testing, and local benchmark testing. She writes curriculum, administers in-service training for district staff, and attempts to bring “best practices” strategies and methodologies to the district to guide instruction. She trains district personnel in test administration. Wallace analyzes test data so that it may guide instruction. When retained by the Orange schools, she understood her charge to be to bring instructional technology to the district, and promote professional development.

Wallace testified that she participates in weekly cabinet meetings, attended by the superintendent of schools, the deputy superintendent, the administrative assistant to the superintendent (who is responsible for Human Resources), the business administrator and other district directors. She supervises other, lower level, district administrators. It is uncontroverted, and I FIND, that Wallace directly supervised three of the petitioners: Kohn, Richburg and Gray. Currently, the Assistant Directors for

⁴ It should be noted that the math position previously included a physical education component—during the 2010–

Language Arts/Professional Development and Testing, Mathematics/Science, and the Assistant Director for Special Programs report to Wallace.

Wallace urged, and I FIND, that her duties are district-wide and global, whereas the supervisor positions previously held by the petitioners were content-area based. The supervisors directly supervised instructional staff, and their work effort was focused on the needs of their assigned instructional area, including ensuring that staff and students had proper supplies and equipment. Conversely, Wallace's role is to assist in formulating the educational philosophy that will guide the work of content specialists and instructional staff. Wallace's job description echoed her testimony, and revealed that she correctly described the scope and breadth of her responsibilities.

The Offer of Reemployment to Richburg

Sometime during the 2010–2011 school year, Superintendent Ronald Lee raised the issue of Richburg's employment status at a weekly cabinet meeting. Wallace could not recall many details regarding the exchange, including what month it took place. She could not recall who else was present. Lee had advised that he had offered an "administrative position" to Richburg at an alternative school, and that Richburg was uninterested in the position. Wallace indicated that the conversation came up in the course of "tossing around ideas" about reorganizing administration, but she could not describe the proposed offer to Richburg with any specificity. As Wallace's testimony was a hearsay recount of a conversation between Richburg and Lee, her testimony provided no assistance in clarifying what type of position was offered to Richburg.

Richburg testified at hearing and the district offered no testimony, documents or other evidence to rebut his version of the events. Thus, I FIND that Richburg was approached in or about November 2010 by the Director of Special Services regarding an opportunity at a specialized program conducted in a local church. He was advised that the district was looking for a teacher of science who could also perform some administrative duties, but the proposed position was not described to him with any greater specificity. The Director advised that she thought he would be a good fit for the position, and Richburg replied that he would need more information before he could react. The Director supplied neither the title for the position nor any detail about the scope of his duties or the salary proposed.

Richburg heard nothing further until, while home on a sick day, he received a phone call from Smiley, who advised that he had been appointed to a position at the Bridges Program. Richburg knew little about the program, except that it was for troubled children, and he expressed surprise, as he had never applied for the position. Richburg returned to school the next day, and was summoned to the superintendent's office. There he was again told that he had been appointed to this position, which would entail teaching and administrative duties. Richburg credibly testified that he was given no job description, no detail about the nature and scope of his administrative duties, no information regarding the certification requirements for the position, nor any clarification about how many students were enrolled in the program. He was presented with a copy of a Board resolution appointing him to the position and providing a stipend of $500 a month above his teacher's salary. I FIND that Richburg declined the position, and continues to be employed to date as a teacher of science for the district.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Petitioners claim an entitlement to the newly created Assistant Director positions, the position of Director of Curriculum and Testing, and the position of Athletic Director. Any right to these positions of employment upon the abolishment of their positions as supervisors arises from their tenure rights.⁵ N.J.S.A. 18A:28-1 to -18 defines the conditions under which teaching staff members are entitled to the security of tenure. Tenure is a "statutory right imposed upon a teacher's contractual employment status." Zimmerman v. Newark Bd. of Educ., 38 N.J. 65, 72 (1962), cert. den., 371 U.S. 956, 83 S. Ct. 508, 9 L. Ed. 2d 502 (1963). These statutory provisions supersede contractual terms. Spiewak v. Rutherford Bd. of Educ., 90 N.J. 63, 72 (1982). They are "designed to aid in the establishment of a competent and efficient school system by affording to principals and teachers a measure of security in the ranks they hold after years of service.” Viemeister v. Prospect Park Bd. of Educ., 5 N.J. Super. 215, 218 (App. Div. 1949). It is uncontroverted, and I CONCLUDE, that the petitioners held their positions of employment as supervisors under tenure. Gray had also earned tenure as an Athletic Director.

The Newly Established Assistant Director Positions

Dismissals resulting from a reduction in force (RIF) must be made on the basis of seniority according to standards established by the Commissioner and approved by the State Board. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-10; see N.J.A.C. 6A:32-5.1; Howley v. Ewing Bd. of Educ., 1982 S.L.D. 1328, 1339, aff’d, 1983 S.L.D. 1554. Our courts have held that “seniority provides a mechanism for ranking all tenured teaching staff members so that reductions among the tenured force can be effected in an equitable fashion and in accord with sound educational policies.” Capodilupo v. West Orange Bd. of Educ., 218 N.J. Super. 510, 514 (App. Div.), certif. den., 109 N.J. 514 (1987). Accordingly, the regulations specify precise categories of prior employment to which a tenured employee such as these petitioners may assert an entitlement in the event of a RIF.

But our case law recognizes that the rights of these petitioners are more expansive than their mere seniority rights would reflect. A tenured staff member continues to be entitled to retention as against a non-tenured teacher, regardless of his or her seniority rights. Our courts have held that “[t]o hold otherwise would be to defeat the purpose of tenure[,] which was to give a measure of security to teachers after the prescribed number of years of service.” Id. at 515. Thus, these petitioners are entitled to any positions in which they hold tenure, and that are currently held by non-tenured staff members.

The sometimes complex issue of which positions fall within the scope of an employee’s tenure protection is the subject of a wealth of post-Capodilupo case law. The “position” in which a teaching staff member achieves tenure is either one of the specifically designated positions in N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 or other employment for which an appropriate certificate is required. Ellicott v. Frankford Twp. Bd. of Educ., 251 N.J. Super. 342, 347 (App. Div. 1991); see Howley, supra, 1982 S.L.D. at 1337. The system of educational certificates established by the New Jersey Department of Education provides for three distinct types of certificates: the Instructional certificate, the Educational Services certificate and the Administrative certificate. N.J.A.C. 6A:9-5.2 et seq. Endorsements on these certificates specify categories within which an individual is authorized to provide service in a public school.

This petition requires an analysis of the tenure rights of the holder of an Administrative certificate, which according to regulation may carry endorsements as School Administrator, Principal, Supervisor and School Business Administrator. N.J.A.C. 6A:9-12.3. Insofar as various administrative positions are enumerated specifically in the tenure statute, our courts have held that these positions are “separately tenurable.” Nelson v. Old Bridge Bd. of Educ., 148 N.J. 358, 363 (1997). Thus, for example, a tenured staff member could seek to bump a less senior or non-tenured principal only by having actually served in the position of principal. Importantly, N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 provides that “[f]or purposes of this chapter, tenure in any of the administrative or supervisory positions enumerated herein shall accrue only by employment in that administrative or supervisory position. . . .” The statute states in pertinent part that “all teaching staff members employed in the positions of teacher, principal, other than administrative principal, assistant principal, vice-principal, assistant superintendent, and all school nurses . . . , and such other employees as are in positions which require them to hold appropriate certificates issued by the board of examiners,” may earn tenure if employed for the time periods specified in the statute.

Although tenured supervisors, Smith, Richburg, Gray and Kohn do not contend that they are entitled to any of the separately enumerated positions contained in N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. Nor would they be so entitled. But they rightly assert, and I CONCLUDE, that their tenure protection extends to the Assistant Director positions established by the Board in 2009. Petitioners’ rights are as governed by Duva v. State-Operated School District of Jersey City, EDU 9801-98, State Bd. of Educ. (March 6, 2002) <<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html>>, which held that since neither “director” nor “supervisor” is among those positions enumerated in N.J.S.A. 18:28-5, the petitioner there was entitled to be employed in assignments requiring a Supervisor endorsement in preference to any non-tenured individuals. See also Sahagian v. N. Bergen Bd. of Educ., 1989 S.L.D. 2878, 2883–84, which held that because the petitioner there was tenured as a supervisor, having served under that endorsement with his Administrator’s certificate, he was entitled, by virtue of his tenured status as a supervisor, to any other supervisory position in the district over a non-tenured individual.

Each of the petitioners here holds a School Principal or Supervisor endorsement on his or her Administrative certificate, a requirement for the Assistant Director positions.⁶ However, the Assistant Director job descriptions also require either an Educational Services certificate, or Special Education or ESL certification. I CONCLUDE that these additional certification requirements imposed by the Board cannot serve to defeat the clear tenure entitlements of these petitioners. N.J.A.C. 6A:9-5.5(a) provides that “[e]ach district board of education shall assign position titles to teaching staff members that are recognized in these rules.” Should a district board of education determine that the use of an unrecognized position title is desirable, prior to appointing a candidate the district board must submit to the county superintendent a written request for permission to use the proposed title, which shall include a detailed job description. N.J.A.C. 6A:9-5.5(b)(1). The county superintendent will then exercise his discretion regarding approval of the request and determine the appropriate certification and title for the position. N.J.A.C. 6A:9-5.5(b)(2).

It is well established that local boards may establish additional certification requirements for a particular supervisory position, but those requirements must have a clear nexus to effective performance of the job. Kendrick v. Bd. of Educ. of S. River, EDU 10331-96, Initial Decision (December 18, 1997), aff’d, Comm’r (February 2, 1998)

<<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html>>. A Supervisor endorsement is generic and authorizes the holder to supervise any subject matter and any grade level. Thus, "absent a showing that [additional] certification is necessary to perform the duties of the position at issue, such requirements cannot sidestep the educator's tenure rights on a preferred eligibility list." Lisa v. Bd. of Educ. of Washington, 97 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 478 (citing Galbraith v. Lenape Reg'l High Sch. Dist., 96 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 396). A case-specific assessment of the duties and responsibilities of any given position must guide the ultimate determination whether imposition of these additional requirements can serve to defeat a tenure claim. Kendrick, supra, EDU 10331-96, Initial Decision (December 18, 1997), aff'd, Comm'r (February 2, 1998) <<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html>>.

A review of the letters of approval issued by Executive County Superintendent Feinsod readily reflects that he did not make dual certifications a requirement of the position. But more importantly, I heard no convincing evidence that these requirements had any real relationship to the job responsibilities of the positions at issue. Indeed, this was such an unusual combination of skills that it proved impossible to fill many of the newly created positions. Candace Wallace, who did not possess these additional certificates, performed the duties of the positions in the interim; ultimately it was determined that the district would receive applications from individuals who lacked these certifications, but whose credentials were enhanced by having earned a doctorate. These facts support petitioners' challenge to the legitimacy of these additional certification requirements.

A review of the job descriptions for these new positions buttresses the conclusion that the unusual combination of certifications required by this Board is simply unnecessary. The clear focus of the new positions is curricular in nature. The responsibilities of the Assistant Directors center on curriculum writing and the monitoring of instructional programs in assigned content areas. Although Orange is a district with many "at risk" students, there is no reason why any properly certificated individual cannot write curriculum and monitor instructional programs. I am unpersuaded that added certification as a learning consultant, psychologist, school counselor or special educator is needed to properly develop curriculum in language arts, science or mathematics.

Conversely, the requirement that Assistant Directors hold subject-matter certification is quite logically related to the requirements of the position, and I CONCLUDE that this requirement may properly limit the entitlements of these petitioners in the aftermath of their RIF. While the County superintendent did not expressly make subject-matter certification a requirement when approving the job descriptions, the relevant case law directs that I look beyond his approval or lack thereof to the actual job responsibilities. Kendrick, supra, EDU 10331-96, Initial Decision (December 18, 1997), aff'd, Comm'r (February 2, 1998) <<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html>>. The goal of proper certification is the proper delivery of educational services. Clearly, an Assistant Director responsible for curriculum activities as they relate to assigned content and/or assessment areas will best serve district students with knowledge and background in that content area.

While earlier case law has rejected board claims that dual certification is essential, and upholds tenure entitlements to supervisory positions even where a staff member has no content certification, these holdings predate No Child Left Behind and its emphasis on "highly qualified" staff. 20 U.S.C. § 6319(a)(2); see Galbraith v. Bd. of Educ. of the Lenape Reg'l High Sch. Dist., supra, 96 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 396. Moreover, our Supreme Court has recognized that dual certification may be appropriate under certain circumstances, is not prohibited by any regulation, and is neither "anomalous, arbitrary [n]or irrational." Dennery v. Passaic County Reg'l High Sch. Dist. #1, 131 N.J. 626, 638 (1993).

Petitioners' post-hearing brief makes it plain that they do not argue otherwise, and they make no claims to positions outside their content expertise. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the petitioners were entitled by virtue of their tenure to employment in the Assistant Director positions as follows:

All four petitioners were entitled by virtue of their tenure to the positions of Assistant Director for Mathematics K–6, Science K–6, and Physical Education/Health K–6. All four hold the required certifications, including subject-matter certification, in mathematics, science or physical education. Likewise, all four petitioners were entitled by virtue of their tenure to the position of Assistant Director for Mathematics 7–12, Science 7–12, and Physical Education/Health 7–12.

Effective with the 2010–2011 school year, only Richburg and Kohn continued to have an entitlement to an assistant directorship by virtue of their tenure rights; they both held the subject-matter certification required for the Assistant Director for Mathematics and Science K–12 position.

Athletic Director

I CONCLUDE that all four petitioners were also entitled by virtue of their tenure to the position of Athletic Director, currently held by a non-tenured employee. Indeed, N.J.A.C. 6A:9-12.3(c) provides that the Supervisor endorsement authorizes service as an Athletic Director, an endorsement held by all these petitioners. But Gray's rights supersede those of her co-petitioners because she was also entitled to the position by virtue of having previously served as Athletic Director, and thus has earned seniority in the position. N.J.A.C. 6A:32-5.1. The fact that she previously performed additional duties, or that her prior title differed from the current title, is of no moment. It is well established that "[w]hen the duties of the position in which a teaching-staff member has acquired tenure are substantially identical to those of the position that the person seeks, a local school board may not sidestep an educator's tenure rights by simply renaming the position" Dennerly, supra, 131 N.J. at 639.

Director of Curriculum and Instruction

According to Wallace, petitioners request that I take the “unprecedented step” of awarding them their supervisor’s job. I concur that doing so would extend the holding in Duva in a manner inconsistent with legal precedent and sound educational policy. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that petitioners are not entitled by virtue of their tenure status to the Director of Curriculum and Instruction position held by Wallace.

An analysis of petitioners’ tenure entitlement must start, as always, with the certifications and endorsements they hold, and the certification requirements of the position they seek. The job description for Director of Curriculum and Development is somewhat vague in its certification requirements, stating only that a “[v]alid New Jersey School Supervisor/Administrator’s Certificate” is needed. The regulations governing certification in New Jersey offer clarity on this issue. N.J.A.C. 6A:9-12.3(a) provides that

[t]he school administrator endorsement is required for any position that involves services as a district-level administrative officer. Such positions shall include superintendent, assistant superintendent, and director. Holders of this endorsement are authorized to provide educational leadership by directing the formulation of district-wide goals, plans, policies and budgets, by recommending their approval by the district board of education and by directing their district-wide implementation. . . . Holders of this endorsement are authorized to direct district operations and programs, and to supervise and evaluate . . . central office staff

Clearly, the School Administrator endorsement is required for Wallace’s job. The Director of Curriculum and Testing is responsible for curriculum development district-wide, and supervises the efforts of subordinate administrative staff in curriculum implementation. She coordinates testing, including State-mandated testing, district-wide. The Director is a member of the administrative cabinet, and participates in weekly meetings with the superintendent of schools and other top central-office administrators. She provides “educational leadership by directing the formulation of district-wide goals” in two critical areas—what the children of Orange should be taught, and assessing if they have learned it. Her job responsibilities have a “qualitatively higher level of administrative responsibility than that entrusted to a supervisor.” Duva, supra, EDU 9801-98, State Bd. of Educ. (March 6, 2002) (citing Schaefer v. Bd. of Educ. of Lakewood, 93 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 741, State Board of Education, slip op. August 2, 1995) <<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html>>.

Neither Smith nor Kohn holds certification as a School Administrator, and, accordingly, I CONCLUDE that they are not qualified to perform the duties of the Director of Curriculum and Testing. Richburg holds a certificate of eligibility as a School Administrator, and Gray holds a standard School Administrator endorsement. Nonetheless, I disagree with their contention that they are entitled by virtue of tenure to the Director of Curriculum and Testing position.

Indeed, although the State Board in Duva held that the petitioner’s tenure protection there extended to any non-“separately tenurable” assignments under his Administrative certificate, he had been employed as a Director, and sought to bump a subordinate, a non-tenured supervisor. Furthermore, although the case law cited by the intervenor predates Duva, the decision in Sandri v. Bergen County Vo-Tech, 1986 S.L.D. 1501, surely reflects the Commissioner’s recognition that some consideration must be given to the nature and scope of the position sought by a RIF’d administrator. There, the Commissioner rejected a claim to a position that encompassed “a much broader range of responsibilities.” Sandri, supra, 1986 S.L.D. at 1514.

Likewise, the Supreme Court in Nelson recognized that a determination regarding the scope of tenure protection must always be made through the lens of educational policy. The Court there rejected the notion that an administrator could bump into a separately tenurable position in which he had never served precisely because this sort of transfer of tenure rights is “unsound public policy.” Nelson, supra, 148 N.J. at 367. Likewise here, it is inappropriate to require a district to promote an administrator in the aftermath of a RIF. The Commissioner and courts have historically viewed tenure and seniority rights expansively. But neither counsel nor I could unearth any case law extending tenure rights after a RIF to anything other than a lateral position. Just as the Nelson Court concluded that it is unsound to require a district to place an administrator who has never served as principal in charge of a school, it is equally unsound to compel a district to promote an administrator who implements district procedures to the position that formulates those procedures. The fact that these petitioners seek to displace their own supervisor emphasizes this point.

Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that none of the petitioners are entitled by virtue of tenure to the position of Director of Curriculum and Testing currently held by Candace Wallace.

Richburg's Offer of Employment

At hearing, the Board appeared to argue that Richburg has waived his right to further employment as a supervisor because he declined the position at the district alternative school. But somewhat surprisingly, the Board offered no testimony to rebut Richburg's contention that the details of this position were never adequately discussed with him, leaving him unable to assess if the job was truly administrative in nature. Likewise, despite being offered an opportunity to do so, the Board provided me with no documentary evidence of a bona-fide offer of employment as an administrator.

None of the supplemental briefs submitted after the May 2010 hearing addressed this issue, and, accordingly, it would appear that the contention that Richburg has waived his rights to reemployment has been abandoned by the Board. In any event, based on the facts presented at hearing, I CONCLUDE that Richburg did not waive his rights to reemployment as a supervisor, insofar as the Board did not provide him with sufficient information to intelligently determine whether the job offered was truly administrative.

Relief

The foregoing analysis confirms that the Board improperly failed to consider petitioners' entitlement to administrative positions when it reduced force in 2009. It is clear that Gray should be appointed, retroactive to the date of her reduction in force, to the position of Athletic Director. Unlike her co-petitioners, she is entitled to this position by virtue of both her tenure and seniority, having previously served the district in this capacity.

Fashioning relief for the remaining three petitioners is complicated by the fact that their entitlements arise exclusively from their tenure, and there are fewer Assistant Director positions than there are petitioners. Even if the Board had properly placed these petitioners in Assistant Director positions, each year, one petitioner would have been left without a supervisory job. There is some appeal to granting relief based upon their seniority as supervisors in the district, and, indeed, doing so feels consistent with the general regulatory scheme that makes seniority determinative of rights upon a RIF. But the rights of these remaining petitioners arise exclusively from tenure; none have served as Assistant Directors. Where more than one tenured staff member has an equal claim to a particular position, the Commissioner has made it clear that the "Board [is] free to select the candidate it believe[s] most qualified." Weinstein v. Old Bridge Bd. of Educ., 91 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 102, aff'd, 92 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 328.

In accordance with petitioners' tenure rights as set forth herein, and recognizing that only two of the remaining petitioners will be entitled to back pay and other retroactive compensation for the 2009–2010 school year, it is incumbent upon this Board to exercise its discretion and select the candidates it would have deemed most qualified to fill the Assistant Directorships from among Smith, Kohn and Richburg. Additionally, either Richburg or Kohn will be entitled to back pay and retroactive compensation for the 2010–2011 school year, as well as continued appointment to the Assistant Director position for Math and Science K–12 during the 2011–2012 school year. The Board must again exercise its discretion in choosing between them.

ORDER

Based on the foregoing, I ORDER as follows:

1. The Board is directed to immediately appoint Sandra Gray to the position of Athletic Director, with all salary, benefits and emoluments of this position, less mitigation, retroactive to June 30, 2009.

2. As to the positions of "Assistant Director for Mathematics K-6, Science K-6 and Physical Education/Health K-6," and "Assistant Director for Mathematics 7-12, Science 7-12 and Physical Education/Health 7-12," the Board is directed to compensate two of the remaining petitioners for any lost wages, benefits or emoluments, less mitigation, due to its failure to appoint them to these positions for the 2009-2010 school year.

3. As to the position of "Assistant Director for Mathematics and Science K-12," the Board is directed to select between Curtis Richburg and Malvina Kohn, and immediately appoint the petitioner it deems better qualified to this position, and compensate that petitioner for all lost salary, benefits and emoluments, less mitigation, retroactive to July 1, 2010.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE : COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
HEARING OF KIM BANKS, SCHOOL :
DISTRICT OF THE TOWNSHIP OF : DECISION
ORANGE, ESSEX COUNTY. :
_____:

The petitioning Board certified seven charges of conduct unbecoming and excessive absenteeism against respondent – a tenured secretary employed by the district since 1993 – for, inter alia, allegedly: conducting personal business during school hours; retrieving personal information about another District employee without permission; smoking on school grounds; unsatisfactory work performance; and attendance problems. Respondent denied the charges. The Board sought respondent's removal from her tenured position.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: witnesses for the petitioning Board presented credible and believable testimony, while respondent's testimony was not credible; respondent conducted private business on the petitioning Board's computer, which was a violation of the school district's computer policy; respondent accessed and printed out a confidential transcript of another district employee without her authorization or permission; respondent smoked on school grounds in violation of district policy; respondent's work performance during the 2001-02, 2005-06, and 2010-11 school years was unsatisfactory; and throughout her employment, respondent abused her sick leave by taking days off before and after holidays, vacations, and pay days. The ALJ concluded that the Board had sustained its burden of proving six of the seven tenure charges against respondent, and the proven charges are sufficient to terminate her employment.

Upon independent review and consideration, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ that petitioner met its burden to prove unbecoming conduct for the majority of the tenure charges, and that the proven charges are sufficient to warrant respondent's termination from tenured employment. Accordingly, the respondent was dismissed from her tenured position.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE : COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
 HEARING OF KIM BANKS, SCHOOL
 DISTRICT OF THE TOWNSHIP OF : DECISION

_____:

This controversy arose when petitioner certified charges of unbecoming conduct against respondent, a tenured secretary. Upon review of the record, Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), respondent's exceptions and petitioner's reply thereto, the Commissioner concurs with the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) that petitioner has met its burden to prove unbecoming conduct for the majority of the charges,¹ and that the proven charges are sufficient to warrant the discipline petitioner seeks.

The six charges found sustainable by the ALJ are:

Charge One – Conducting Personal Business during School/Work Hours

Charge Two – Retrieving Personal Information About an Employee Without Authorization

Charge Four – Smoking on School Grounds in Violation of N.J.S.A. 26:3D-58 and School District Policy

Charge Five – Unsatisfactory Performance in the 2001–02, 2005–06 and 2010–11 School Years

Charge Six – Excessive Transfers Due to Poor Performance During the Period from September 29, 1997, to September 1, 2006

Charge Seven – Failure or Refusal to Adhere to Recognized Procedures Regarding Staff Attendance Despite Counseling on Multiple Occasions.

Since the sustainability of the charges depends heavily upon factual findings, it is important to recognize at the outset that the Commissioner must accept the ALJ's credibility determinations unless the record blatantly contradicts same, see, e.g., N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(c); D.L. and Z.Y. on behalf of minor children, T.L. and K.L. v. Board of Education of the Princeton Regional School District, 366 N.J. Super. 269, 273 (App. Div. 2004).

¹ Of seven charges, the ALJ found six to be sustainable and found Charge Three to lack sufficient support in the record.

Thus, in evaluating Charge One, the Commissioner must consider the credibility determinations made by the ALJ. More specifically, the ALJ regarded as credible the testimony of Jocelyn Easley – former Supervisor of Guidance in petitioner’s school district – that she observed respondent conducting on-line shopping during school hours. (1T49-50²) This testimony related to a comment on the third page of respondent’s March 8, 2011 “Secretary Observation Report,” which comment disclosed that during times when respondent did not have regular tasks to complete, she would conduct personal business instead of requesting additional assignments. (Exhibit A-1(b)) Respondent denied that she shopped on-line at work, but there is nothing in the record as a whole that would compel the Commissioner to reject the ALJ’s determination that Easley was a more credible witness than respondent. The Commissioner accordingly sustains Charge One.

Charge Two does not require extensive discussion. Respondent admitted that she retrieved the transcript of another district employee – without authorization. (3T166-67) The charge is accordingly sustained.

Charge Four is based upon the observation of Maxine Johnson, a former principal and Board of Education member in petitioner’s district, who observed respondent leaving the Orange High School building with a cigarette in her mouth and entering an Orange Board of Education van. (3T12; 3T16-17) She testified that she did not see smoke, but that respondent “turned her head as you would to light a cigarette.” (3T18) Johnson reported the incident to High School Principal Erica Stewart, who issued respondent a written reprimand. (Exhibit D-11) Respondent ultimately, on cross examination, admitted that she had smoked in the Board of Education van on the way to the Board offices. (4T133-35) Accordingly, Charge Four is sustained.

The Commissioner agrees with respondent that it is appropriate to consider Charges Five and Six together, as the transfers referenced in Charge Six are not so much infractions as they are the consequence of deficiencies such as those alleged in Charge Five, i.e., unsatisfactory performance. Indeed, Belinda Scott Smiley – petitioner’s District Human Resources Administrator – testified that each transfer of respondent was made because a building administrator was dissatisfied with respondent’s performance. See, e.g. 2T111, 2T112-13, 2T114-15.

Examination of evaluations and memoranda in respondent’s personnel file over the thirteen or so years of her employment in petitioner’s district reveals the documentation of several performance issues that remained unresolved. Conspicuous among those issues were timeliness/accuracy, organization, and compliance with procedures and directives.

As early as August 1998 the principal of Heywood Avenue School, Matthew Bocchino, wrote to petitioner that her work was inaccurate and untimely, and would lead to a “negative job recommendation” if it did not improve. (Exhibit F19) In 2000, Bocchino’s successor, Amanda Wright-Stafford, documented an incident in which copies of test booklets were not completed in time for a first grade test because respondent left her post without informing Wright-Stafford of her whereabouts. (Exhibit E18) Respondent was advised 2005-06 and 2010-11 school years) indicate problems with attendance and punctuality. See, e.g. Exhibits A1a, A1b, E13, E15b, and E16.

Absenteeism has a negative impact on an employee's workplace. The foregoing evidence about respondent's unsatisfactory attendance, tardiness, and disregard of notification procedures is more than enough support for the petitioner's charge that respondent persistently failed to adhere to petitioner's policies regarding attendance and punctuality. Accordingly, Charge Seven is sustained.

In the Commissioner's view, respondent's performance history would be sufficient grounds for her termination from employment in petitioner's district. However, petitioner has also proven charges that suggest a lack of professionalism by respondent. Accordingly, Tenure Charges One, Two, Four, Five/Six and Seven are sustained and respondent is terminated from her position.

IT IS SO ORDERED.⁷

INITIAL DECISION

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 08582-11

AGENCY DKT. NO. 190/7-11

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF KIM BANKS, SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE TOWNSHIP OF ORANGE, ESSEX COUNTY.

Melvin C. Randall, Esq., for petitioner Township of Orange Board of Education
(Love & Randall, attorneys)

Nancy I. Oxfeld, Esq., for respondent Kim Banks (Oxfeld Cohen, attorneys)

Record Closed: December 5, 2011

Decided: December 22, 2011

BEFORE CAROL I. COHEN, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On July 18, 2011, the Board of Education of Orange, New Jersey, filed Tenure Charges against respondent Kim Banks. The respondent was charged with seven counts of unbecoming conduct and excessive absenteeism. The charges included that Ms. Banks conducted personal business during school hours; that she retrieved, without permission, personal information regarding another District employee; that she induced a student to allow her to claim the student and her infant son as dependents on her 2009 income tax return; that she was observed smoking on school grounds; that she exhibited unsatisfactory performance and failed or refused to improve her performance as a secretary; and that she failed to adhere to the recognized procedure regarding staff attendance and had to be counseled regarding same.

On July 19, 2011, the respondent filed an Answer to the Tenure Charges. On July 21, 2011, the matter was forwarded from the Department of Education to the Office of Administrative Law, where it was filed. A pre-hearing conference was held on August 10, 2011, at which time a discovery schedule and hearing dates were determined and an Order was issued. The matter was to commence on September 21. However, it had to be adjourned due to the illness of the District's attorney. It was heard on October 3 and 4 and continued on November 2 and 4, 2011. Simultaneous summation briefs were due on December 2, 2011. The District asked for an extension, which was consented to by the petitioner. Briefs were received on December 5, 2011.

ISSUES

1. Did the actions of the respondent rise to the level of conduct unbecoming such that Ms. Banks should lose her tenured position?
2. Did Ms. Banks' history of absenteeism warrant removal from her tenured position?
3. Was the respondent incorrectly charged with conduct unbecoming when she should have been charged with inefficiency?¹
4. What penalty, if any, should be imposed on the respondent?

¹ While this issue was raised at the pre-hearing conference, it was not addressed at the hearing or in the summation brief. Therefore, I assume that the issue has been abandoned and I will not deal with it in the decision.

ARGUMENTS OF THE PARTIES AND FINDINGS OF FACT

Charge 1 --- Conducting Personal Business during School/Work Hours

The District provided a copy of the Board policy on "Acceptable use of Computer Network(s)/Computer and Resources by Support Staff Members." In the document it stated that "The Board provides access to computer network(s)/computers for administrative and educational purposes only." Further, the document states: "it is prohibited to engage in other activities that do not advance the educational purposes for which computer network(s)/computers are provided." (Ex. G-32.) There was testimony from Ms. Easley, Ms. Banks' supervisor, that she saw Ms. Banks on the computer conducting private business involving the purchase of a T.V. and a car for Banks' son. She also said that Ms. Banks showed her on the school computer how to get coupons for the purchase of shoes from a website called Zappos. Ms. Easley stated that on a number of occasions she saw Ms. Banks away from her desk either fraternizing with the security people or taking rides in the District van. In addition, Ms. Banks would return back late from lunch and would take many cigarette breaks. At these times the Guidance office was left unattended.

Ms. Banks denied all these charges and added that she would not have looked to purchase a car, since she does not have a driver's license. She also asserted that if these charges were true, Ms. Easley would have mentioned them in prior performance deficiencies that she sent to Ms. Banks.

This comes down to a "she said, she said" situation. I can see no reason why Ms. Easley would have concocted these allegations. It was clear from Ms. Banks' tone and facial expressions during her testimony that there was no love lost between Ms. Easley and Ms. Banks. However, it did not appear from Ms. Easley's testimony that her charges against Ms. Banks arose from a personal dislike of Ms. Banks rather than her frustration at Ms. Banks' unwillingness to perform the tasks she assigned her. As will be outlined in other portions of this decision, I found Ms. Banks to be less than forthright in her testimony. Therefore, based on the credibility of the witnesses, I FIND that Ms.

Banks was conducting private business on the Board's computer, which was a violation of the Orange District's computer policy.

Charge 2 --- Retrieving Personal Information About an Employee Without Authorization

Both sides agree that Ms. Banks retrieved the transcript of Terry Everett, a security guard at Orange High School. Ms. Banks' version of the incident, which took place on February 15, 2011, was that, while spinning the microfiche to come up with a student's transcript, she came upon the transcript of Ms. Everett, who was a friend and co-worker. Ms. Banks thought it was a great coincidence that this occurred, and she decided to print out the transcript. She presented it to Ms. Everett, who became upset, because she felt that it was an invasion of her privacy. Ms. Banks offered to shred the transcript, but Ms. Everett took it. Banks acknowledged that if the situation ever presented itself again, she would not print out the transcript. According to Adekunle James, the District's business administrator and board secretary, he was asked by the superintendent to conduct an investigation into charges brought by Ms. Everett that her personal information was accessed by Ms. Banks without her permission. Mr. James produced a report and statements from witnesses. According to the report and testimony, Ms. Banks came to Ms. Everett, while other employees were present, and indicated that she had Everett's government information. She dropped a piece of paper on the desk in front of Ms. Everett. Ms. Everett became very upset about the fact that Ms. Banks had access to her personal information. Ms. Smiley testified that there was personal information, including Social Security numbers, on the transcripts. This information was confidential and a release of this information was required under FERPA (Family Educational Privacy Act).

It is clear that Ms. Banks printed out personal and confidential information. She had no authorization to do so and she admitted in her testimony that she would never do so again. It is not necessary to decide whether Ms. Everett was upset because this information was presented to her or why she took a period of time to report the incident.² It is also not necessary to decide whether Ms. Banks said that she had Ms. Everett's government/confidential information. In addition, I do not need to determine whether the District's proofs consisted of hearsay only. Ms. Banks has admitted that she accessed and printed a confidential transcript and presented it to Ms. Everett. Therefore, I FIND that Ms. Banks printed out the transcript of Ms. Everett without her permission and authorization.

Charge 3 --- Inducing a Student, with the Offer of Money, to Claim the Student and Her Infant Son as Dependents on Her 2009 Income Tax Return

The District introduced Ex. C-8(b), which was a note from N.N., a student at Orange High School. In the letter N.N. claimed that she was approached by Kim Banks and asked to claim her son on Ms. Banks' tax return as a dependent. N.N. stated that Ms. Banks had agreed to give her $600 if she could claim her son on her return. N.N. also asserted that Ms. Banks said that she was going to claim N.N. as a dependent also. Ms. Banks told N.N. to bring her son's Social Security card in, but she said that the respondent claimed that she did not need N.N.'s Social Security information because she had already taken the information out of her school files. N.N. stated that Ms. Banks was going to give her $500 for taking N.N. as a deduction. N.N. claimed that she later found out that Ms. Banks received a refund based on the dependent deduction, but she did not give N.N. any money. N.N. felt that she was taken advantage of. She also claimed that she never gave Ms. Banks permission to access her files to obtain her personal information. The District also introduced Ex. C-9, which was a letter from Mr. Randall, attorney for the Board, to Nancy I. Oxfeld, attorney for Ms. Banks. In the letter the District claimed that on March 16, 2011, in the presence of her representative and several school administrators, Ms. Banks admitted that she claimed a student and the student's child as dependents on her income tax return. Also introduced into evidence was Ex. C-10(b), a notarized letter from N.N. dated March 21, 2011. In the letter she stated that Ms. Terry (Everett) paid her $50 to write the letter (C-8 (b)), which contained a false statement that Banks went into N.N.'s personal file and took down the information about her Social Security number. N.N. said that she did what Everett asked because she needed the money. On the same day N.N. wrote a notarized statement in which she said that Ms. Banks did not steal her son Z.F.'s Social Security card. She said that she gave it to Ms. Banks so that she could claim her son on the tax return because she and her son stayed with Ms. Banks at her home for about six months. In addition, a letter from P.N., grandmother of N.N., was introduced into evidence as Ex. C-10(d). In this letter P.N. said that she was saddened by her granddaughter's behavior in making false claims against Ms. Banks when the respondent had given food and shelter to N.N. and her son. P.N. also claimed in the letter that she gave permission for Ms. Banks to claim Z.F. as a tax deduction in 2009, in order to repay Ms. Banks for her generosity and kindness.

In an interview conducted by Mr. Randall at the District's offices and in her testimony at court, P.N. claimed that she threw her granddaughter, N.N., out of her home in December 2008. P.N. said that her granddaughter told her that she lived with Ms. Banks from then until July 2009, when she returned to her grandmother's home. P.N.'s knowledge of where her granddaughter was staying came entirely from N.N. She never spoke to Ms. Banks, nor dropped by her home to see if N.N. was staying there. P.N. said that N.N. told her that she had given Ms. Banks Z.F.'s Social Security number to take him as a deduction on the respondent's income tax return. Later N.N. told her that Banks did not give her any money for claiming Z.F. because Z.F.'s father had already taken him as a dependent on his tax return. P.N. said that she knew that Ms. Banks did not take N.N.'s Social Security information from the school records because N.N. told her that she gave the Social Security information for herself and Z.F. to Ms. Banks to take them as dependents. P.N. said that she found out about what went on with the tax returns one day when N.N. got mad and told her that Ms. Banks had not given her any money from the tax return. P.N. said that Ms. Banks called her and told her that N.N. was telling people that she stole her identity. P.N. said that that was wrong, because N.N. had told her that she gave Ms. Banks her Social Security number and Z.F.'s Social Security number. P.N. offered to write a letter regarding the Social Security incident, and asked Ms. Banks how she felt about that. Ms. Banks said that that would be okay, but P.N. said that it was her idea to write the letter based on what N.N. had told her. During the hearing, P.N. said that when she asked Ms. Banks to whom she should send the letter, Ms. Banks told her to send it to Mr. Lee. During the interview at the Board, P.N. stated that she had not typed up Ex. C-10(d), the March 28, 2011, letter to Mr. Lee. She said that her friend (possibly a former foster child)³ typed up the letter. P.N. gave her thoughts to her friend and she put it in written form. She said that the statement "We gave permission to her [Ms. Banks] to claim him [Z.F.] as a tax deduction in 2009" was not correct. She stated that it should have said that N.N. gave Ms. Banks permission. P.N. said that she did not have the authority to give Ms. Banks permission to take Z.F. as a dependent.⁴

At the same meeting at District offices, N.N. was also interviewed regarding her relationship with Ms. Banks and her taking N.N. and her son as dependents. N.N. said that Ms. Banks had asked her in January 2009⁵ if she could take her and her son as dependents on her tax return. N.N. said that she gave her permission to do so. She got her son's Social Security card and gave Banks a copy of it. She claimed that she did not give Ms. Banks her Social Security card, which was kept at her grandmother's house. Rather, Ms. Banks got the information from her file at Orange High School.⁶ N.N. claimed that Ms. Banks promised to give her $600 for allowing her to take Z.F. as a dependent, and $500 for allowing her to claim N.N. as a dependent. N.N. voiced her resentment at not being given any money by Ms. Banks. She claimed that even though Banks did not get a rebate for Z.F., because his father claimed him as a deduction, Banks should have given her some money. N.N. thought that Banks had used the money she received for taking her as a dependent to pay for her daughter's wedding. When N.N. was told by Ms. Smiley that her grandmother claimed that N.N. had told her that she gave Ms. Banks her Social Security information, N.N. insisted that she did not give the respondent her Social Security information.

During questioning at the District offices and at the hearing, N.N. said that Terry Everett paid her $50 to write Ex. C-8(b). N.N. claimed that what she wrote in the letter

³ P.N. explained at the hearing that she had raised a number of foster children who she considered to be her children. The friend of one of her foster children typed up the letter for her.

was mostly true, except that Everett told her to write, "I feel as a student I was taken advances [advantage] of." N.N. said that she did not use big words like that. When asked why she wrote Ex. C-8(b), N.N. said that she needed the money to get her hair done for her birthday. N.N. claimed that Ms. Everett approached her and said that Ms. Banks had gone into her personal files, the same way she had gone into N.N.'s files.

N.N. also stated that she wrote Ex. C-10(b) & (c), dated March 21, 2011, at Ms. Banks' instance. She said that Ms. Banks called her and asked her to write the first letter because she was going to lose her job. N.N. stated that Ms. Banks and her boyfriend picked her up in his cab, and Ms. Banks told her what to say in the letter while they were sitting in the cab. Then she told N.N. that they had to get the letter notarized and went with her to the notary. Ms. Banks' boyfriend paid the notary fee. N.N. said that Ms. Banks told her to say in the first letter that she did not enter N.N.'s files, and that N.N. handed Banks Z.F.'s Social Security card. Banks also told her to say that she did not claim N.N. on her tax return. N.N. said she protested, but wrote it anyway. In a second letter (Ex. C-10(c)), Ms. Banks told her to say that Ms. Terry (Everett) paid her to write false information.

During the interview and during the hearing N.N. also stated that while Ms. Banks told her to write in Ex. C-10(c) that she lived with Banks for six months, she did not in fact live with her. N.N. acknowledged that it was a lie when she stated in the letter that she lived with Banks. She stated that she lived with her baby's father for a short time, and then she moved in with her mother in East Orange. She again claimed that Ms. Banks got her Social Security information from her school file.

Ms. Banks' rendition of the incident with N.N. and her son differs greatly from that of N.N. She claimed that N.N. came to her and said that her grandmother had thrown her out of her home and she had nowhere to go. She took care of N.N. and her son Z.F. for six months and never was given any money. When asked by the Board's attorney whether anyone could substantiate the fact that N.N. and her child had lived with her for that period of time, Ms. Banks could not provide any names. She claimed that she had not told anyone, including her two adult children, fiancé or friends, and no one saw N.N. and her son living at her home.

Ms. Banks testified that N.N. agreed to Ms. Banks' taking Z.F. as an income tax deduction and gave Banks her son's Social Security card.⁷ Banks said that she never agreed to give N.N. any money in exchange for taking Z.F. as a deduction. Banks denied ever taking N.N. as a deduction or telling anyone that she took that deduction. She also denied telling N.N. that she had her Social Security information from the school files. Ms. Banks produced a Tax Return Transcript which showed one deduction, which she said was for Z.F.⁸ However, she said that the IRS denied this deduction because someone else had taken Z.F. as a deduction (purportedly his father). Ms. Banks also denied that she had anything to do with composing the letters to the Board written by N.N. (Ex. C-10(b)&(c)).

The District's case in regard to this charge is problematic. P.N.'s testimony about N.N.'s living with Ms. Banks came entirely from secondhand knowledge supplied to her by N.N.⁹ P.N. never visited N.N. at the Banks residence and her information about the Social Security card and dependency deductions was from conversations with N.N. Therefore, the only testimony that can be considered is that of N.N. and Ms. Banks. As the respondent pointed out, N.N.'s testimony was far from credible. She testified that she was told by a classmate that Ms. Everett wanted to talk with her. Everett asked her if she wanted to make a few dollars ($50). N.N. agreed to write a letter (Ex. C-8(b)) in which she wrote that Ms. Banks approached her to claim her son as a deduction. She promised to give her $600 for that deduction. She also stated in the letter that Banks said that she was going to take N.N. as a deduction, but she did not need her Social Security information because she had taken it from the school files. She said that Banks agreed to pay her $500 for that deduction. Subsequently, N.N. wrote another letter disclaiming her first letter, supposedly because she felt bad about Ms. Banks losing her job. In this letter N.N. stated that Ms. Everett paid her $50 to put false information in the letter stating that Ms. Banks went in her file and took out her Social Security information. At the hearing N.N. claimed that some of the information in that letter was true, i.e., that she was paid $50 to write Ex. C-8(b), and other information was false, i.e., that Ms. Banks went into her file and took out her Social Security information. In Ex. C-10(c) N.N. said that she allowed Ms. Banks to claim her son as a deduction because they lived at her home for six months. P.N. also testified that N.N. told her that she lived with Banks from December to June. Yet, at the hearing N.N. testified that she never stayed at Ms. Banks' home, but rather lived with her son's father and her mother during this period of time.

⁸ Ms. Banks did not produce her actual tax return(s) for 2009.

⁹ There was conflicting testimony. P.N. testified that N.N. told her that she lived with Ms. Banks for six months. N.N. testified that she never told her grandmother that she lived with Ms. Banks and if her grandmother said that she told her that she lived with Ms. Banks, then she was lying.

It is clear that N.N. was "all over the board" when it came to her testimony about where she lived, whether she allowed Ms. Banks to take her as a deduction, and where the respondent got her Social Security information. N.N. appeared to be willing to change her story depending on who was the highest bidder. On the other hand, I do not find that Ms. Banks' testimony was entirely credible either. I find it unbelievable that Ms. Banks could not name anyone who could testify, let alone bring anyone to testify, to the fact that N.N. and Z.F. lived with her for six months in her home in the same town where she worked.¹⁰ Nor is it believable that she did not tell anyone in the school that one of the students was homeless and was living with her. She also could produce no bills to show that she was supporting Z.F. or his mother. I also find it less than believable that she had nothing to do with the composition of the two letters signed by N.N. and notarized (Ex. C-10(b) & (c)). Based on N.N.'s level of sophistication, I do not believe that she would have had the letters notarized, except at the instance of Ms. Banks. N.N.'s explanation, that the letters were composed in Ms. Banks' fiancé's cab on the way to the notary, seems more believable.

I FIND that the testimony of both N.N. and Ms. Banks is in many ways incredible, but I must base my decision on the preponderance-of-the-evidence standard. Because the testimony of N.N. is not credible, I must FIND for the respondent on this point.

Charge 4 --- Smoking on School Grounds in Violation of N.J.S.A. 26:3D-58 and School District Policy

Ms. Johnson, who was a former teacher and assistant principal and who served for six years as a member of the Orange Board of Education, testified that on August 25, 2009, she observed a school employee, who was later identified as Ms. Banks, smoking on school grounds. She said that as she pulled into the parking lot at Orange High School she saw a woman coming out of the school, lighting a cigarette, and entering a Board of Education van. At the time she did not know Ms. Banks, but she saw an ID around her neck. She reported the incident to the principal of the school. On cross-examination Ms. Johnson said that she saw Ms. Banks turn, as one would if lighting a cigarette, but she did not see smoke coming from the cigarette. Ms. Banks admitted that she was a smoker. However, she claimed that while she had a cigarette in her hand on the way to the van, it was not lit. She was going in the van to the Board of Education offices to drop off a log sheet to Accounting. She did not remember if she smoked in the van, but she said that many employees did smoke in the van.¹¹

N.J.S.A. 26:3D-58(b) states:

Smoking is prohibited in any area of any building of, or on the grounds of, any public or nonpublic elementary or secondary school, regardless of whether the area is an indoor public place or is outdoors.

Ms. Banks is attempting to rebut the charge of smoking on public school property by saying that Ms. Johnson did not see smoke emanating from the cigarette, and therefore she was not smoking. Ms. Banks could not remember whether she had smoked in the Board van, but she claimed that employees regularly smoked in the van. Ms. Banks' explanation is not persuasive. A Board member not only took the time to report to the principal, but also came to testify that she saw Ms. Banks with a cigarette in her mouth, and Ms. Banks had turned as one does to light a cigarette. Ms. Banks did not deny that she might have been smoking in the van, which is also school property. Her explanation that Ms. Johnson did not see smoke emanating from the cigarette and that "everyone" smoked in the van does not negate the eyewitness testimony. Ms.

¹¹ In respondent's answers to interrogatories she stated, "once I had entered my car and driven off school grounds, I smoked a cigarette while I was in the car."

Banks did not explain why Ms. Johnson should make up a story that the cigarette was in Ms. Banks' mouth, rather than her hand, which the respondent alleged. As the District pointed out, Ms. Johnson was close enough to Ms. Banks to read her ID tag—why would she not be close enough to see if the respondent had the cigarette in her mouth and not her hand? Ms. Johnson's rendition of the incident is more credible. I therefore FIND that Ms. Banks was smoking on school property.

Charge 5 --- Unsatisfactory Performance in the 2001–02, 2005–06 and 2010–11 School Years

The District produced a number of documents from prior supervisors stating that Ms. Banks had failed to perform her administrative duties in an accurate and punctual fashion. In her evaluation report for June 9, 2006 (Ex. E-13), Ms. Neain, the principal of Oakwood Avenue School, gave Ms. Banks an "unsatisfactory" in clerical and organizational skills and punctuality and attendance and "needs improvement" in ability to work independently, human relations skills, knowledge of job, telephone etiquette and overall evaluation summary. She recommended the withholding of her increment. The Board voted to withhold her increment for 2006–07. The District introduced another document, labeled "Performance," which was written by Principal Neain and dated November 7, 2005 (E-14), in which she stated that she was not satisfied with Ms. Banks' performance in entering the daily attendance for both students and staff. In her memo she stated that while she had told Ms. Banks that attendance had to be entered each day for staff by 9:00 a.m. and for students by noon, she discovered that Ms. Banks had failed to enter the information for September 13, 14, 19 and 27 and October 24 and 28, 2005. Ms. Neain also commented on Ms. Banks' lack of organization, which affected her efficiency. In another memo from Ms. Neain, dated January 26, 2006 (Ex. E-14), she noted Ms. Banks' lack of competence in her job. She pointed out that Ms. Banks took a personal day without notifying her.¹² In her absence, Ms. Neain noticed that Ms. Banks had not checked her messages from the day before and had not relayed the messages to the teachers. One of the messages was from a parent. Ms. Neain stated that she had talked to Ms. Banks before about the importance of checking messages and making sure that they were transmitted.¹³ On February 10, 2006, Ms. Neain sent another memo (Ex. E-14) about Ms. Banks' performance. Entering daily attendance continued to be a problem. In addition, Ms. Neain noted that on picture day Ms. Banks brought her own grandchildren for pictures when pictures were to be taken for students only. In addition, Ms. Banks had left her post to get her grandchildren's picture taken. Ms. Neain also pointed out that Ms. Banks had failed to send over the payroll information in a timely fashion. As a result of the performance issues, Ms. Neain was recommending disciplinary action. The District also introduced a memo from the assistant principal of Lincoln Avenue School, Helen M. Tinsley, to Ms. Banks (Ex. E-15(a)) in which she noted that the respondent failed to comply with tasks assigned to her, specifically, completion of the master eligibility list and five-day breakfast roster, and that timeliness of completion was essential. The evaluation from Ms. Whitworth dated March 8, 2002, (Ex. E-16) rated Ms. Banks as unsatisfactory in "ability to work independently and clerical and organizational skills." It also noted that she needed improvement in "ability to work with staff, knowledge of job and overall evaluation summary." There was a notation of "frequent absences." In the comments, Ms. Whitworth stated, "Ms. Banks refuses to use the task checklist in order to avoid forgetting routine items," and recommended that "Banks should seek employment where she can do as she pleases. We don't have time to beg her to complete routine tasks." On this evaluation Ms. Banks stated that a rebuttal would follow. The District also introduced a memo from Athenia Whitworth to Belinda Smiley dated April 11, 2002. In this memo Ms. Whitworth provided additional information regarding Kim Banks' evaluation in which she listed that the respondent "refused to use checklists that were prepared for her, was absent every time there was a scheduled task update conference, wasted time and refused to devote two days weekly to processing purchase orders as requested by Ms. Whitworth and 'yelled in a rude, insubordinate voice that orders should only be done in May-June of the previous year.'" An evaluation dated June 2, 2002, (Ex. E-15(b)) from administrator A. Whitworth at Central School rated Ms. Banks' performance unsatisfactory in "ability to work independently," "clerical and organizational skills," "knowledge of job," "punctuality and attendance" and "overall evaluation summary," and "needs improvement" in "ability to work with staff," "human relations skills" and "telephone etiquette." In comments, Ms. Tinsley stated, "Ms. Banks tends to base her decisions on her own convenience rather than on procedures appropriate for a child centered school." She did not recommend Ms. Banks for continued employment at Central School. Ms. Banks refused to sign the evaluation, and it was noted that "[s]he said that only one evaluation per year was needed."

¹² Ms. Neain noted that while Ms. Banks followed procedure in notifying the substitute service, she had also asked Ms. Banks to notify her of absences so that she could make arrangements for front-office coverage. This same issue came up with Ms. Easley years later. Ms. Banks testified that she had followed procedure by calling the substitute service and therefore was not obligated to call her supervisor.

In a memo to Ms. Banks from Ms. Whitworth dated November 4, 2001, (Ex. E-18) Ms. Whitworth claimed that other staff including herself were doing Ms. Banks' job to help her transition into a new position. However, the delayed payroll report, which was Ms. Banks' responsibility, caused hardship for many people and was unacceptable and preventable. To help Ms. Banks in her organizational skills, Ms. Whitworth prepared a Task Completion checklist. (This was the list referred to in other evaluations, which Ms. Banks refused to follow.) Also included in the exhibits was a memo labeled "Incident on May 2, 2000" from Amanda Wright-Stafford, principal of Heywood Avenue School, in which she stated that Ms. Banks needed to notify her or another staff person prior to leaving the building in all cases, including emergencies. According to the memo, Ms. Banks' failure to notify anyone that she was leaving the building caused a serious problem in the office.

Ms. Jocelyn Easley, former supervisor of Guidance for the Orange District from February 22, 2010, until September 2011, and presently assistant principal of Guidance in the Middletown Public Schools, testified regarding her evaluation of Ms. Banks. Ms. Easley outlined Ms. Banks' responsibilities as a secretary, which included organizing the front office, answering phones, taking messages, scheduling appointments for counselors, fulfilling transcript requests, reregistering students, ordering supplies and maintaining the integrity of confidential documents. Ms. Banks agreed that these were her duties as the Guidance secretary. Ms. Easley said that she was instructed to evaluate Ms. Banks only a week before the June 24, 2010, Evaluation. Since she found out so late that she was to evaluate Ms. Banks, she really did not think it would be fair to give her a negative evaluation, because she would not have enough time to give Banks a PIP. Therefore, she gave her a satisfactory evaluation in all areas. However, at the time, she had already gotten a number of telephone calls complaining that transcript requests had not been fulfilled. This was Ms. Banks' responsibility. She also noted that Ms. Banks seemed to have problems with organization, including clutter in her work area, late arrivals to work, and long lunches and breaks.

Ms. Easley testified about her March 15, 2011, Evaluation (Ex. A-1(b)) of Ms. Banks, which the respondent refused to sign. In that evaluation she gave Ms. Banks an "unsatisfactory" in maintains properly identified, organized and up-to-date files and records; prepares reports that are accurate, understandable and complete; handles work load efficiently; meets work deadlines set by supervisor; effectively adapts to changes or interruptions in work routine; and effectively handles several assignments at the same time. Ms. Easley said that even if she told Ms. Banks that something was high priority, the respondent would not complete the assignment. She also marked Ms. Banks unsatisfactory in ability to prioritize; ability to exercise discretion and maintain confidentiality; follows through on an assignment to its completion; seeks out additional work when own job demands are low; keeps office efficiently organized; accurately records and relays telephone messages; and maintains a schedule of appointments, arranges conferences, meetings and interviews. In a number of other areas Ms. Easley felt that Banks needed improvement. Ms. Easley noted that despite requests to the respondent to organize the front office, it remained disorganized. There were piles of paper in disarray on the desks, in the drawers and in the hutch, and Ms. Banks did not clean the area up despite numerous requests by Ms. Easley to do so. Ms. Banks did not move confidential files to locked cabinets as requested and refused to organize the microfilm drawer. She also found that Ms. Banks did not process transcript requests in a timely fashion, and the money submitted for the transcript requests did not tally with the number of transcript requests. Banks was instructed to keep a log of payments, but it was sent back on a number of occasions because of inaccuracies. This caused a problem for the Business office. Ms. Easley noted that Ms. Banks appeared to have difficulty handling the fast pace and workload of the Guidance department, was unable to multitask, had difficulty prioritizing, and refused to complete tasks in the order in which she was asked to complete them. Despite the fact that she was given help in completing her duties, and Ms. Easley tried to help her by setting up schedules and logs, Ms. Banks resisted following her directions. Ms. Banks continued to miss deadlines, and when she was not busy she did not request additional assignments, but instead conducted personal business.

Although Banks was asked to schedule appointments for students to see their counselors, she did not arrange appointments, and the students continued to congregate outside the Guidance door waiting to see their advisors. In addition, Ms. Easley testified that she discovered that college representatives would come to the Guidance department expecting to meet students who were interested in speaking to them about their colleges. On numerous occasions the representatives would arrive and there would be no students ready to meet with them. One college representative told her that she had come three times, and neither the counselors nor the students knew that the representative was available for interviews. According to Ms. Easley, it was Ms. Banks' job to arrange these meetings. Ms. Easley said that she did not know if there was a procedure for dealing with college representatives, but she said that she explained to Ms. Banks how to handle appointments with college representatives and wrote a letter to Ms. Banks outlining the proper procedure. However, Ms. Banks refused to follow the procedure and Ms. Easley continued to receive complaints from college representatives.

Ms. Easley also noted that Ms. Banks was frequently tardy and/or absent. Ms. Smiley also testified that Ms. Banks' sick days often preceded or followed weekends, holidays or vacations. Ms. Easley testified that Ms. Banks was absent from work on a number of occasions during the summer of 2009–10. She related that Ms. Banks was on vacation for three weeks. She was supposed to be back from work, but she did not return and no one had heard from her.¹⁴ Ms. Easley became alarmed and went to Ms. Banks' home with a coworker. They knocked on the door, but Ms. Banks was not there. When she spoke to Ms. Banks she told her that she had to produce a doctor's note and that she was required to call in to report her absences so that a substitute could be found. Ms. Banks ultimately produced a doctor's note, but she did not call in to report her absence.

¹⁴ There was also a memo from Ms. Neain in which she complained that Ms. Banks had not notified her that she would be taking a sick day. She told her that although Ms. Banks had followed procedure and had notified the substitute service, it was important for her to call the principal, so that she could get coverage for the office.

Ms. Easley claimed that she had instructed Ms. Banks to organize the office so that she could work more efficiently and have quick access to documents. Ms. Banks refused to do so because she claimed that it would just get messy again. Ms. Easley said that during the 2010–11 school year she got telephone calls and e-mails from students and their parents saying that they had not gotten the transcripts that they had requested. It was very important that the transcripts were sent out because this affected a student's ability to obtain a job or get into a college of their choice. Ms. Easley claimed that Ms. Banks had the responsibility to deregister students transferred to other districts. This was supposed to be done in five days so that students could be registered in the new district. Ms. Easley stated that, despite the fact that she gave the respondent instructions on the registration process (Ex. 31(e)), Ms. Banks failed to perform this job in a timely fashion, which then affected the student's ability to register in Orange and see their guidance counselors or register in a new district. Ms. Easley was also responsible to make sure that every junior took the HSPA examination. However, because Ms. Banks did not perform her job in a timely fashion, there were many students remaining on the computer who had in fact left the school. This made the process of finding out who should take the HSPA test more difficult. Ms. Easley recounted that during a meeting with Ms. Banks, the assistant superintendent and a union representative, Ms. Banks claimed that she had difficulty getting work done because of the volume and fast pace of the office. A substitute assistant was assigned to help her, but transcript requests were still not being fulfilled and the office was still disorganized and records were left out in the open. Ms. Banks would stay late at lunch and not complete her work. Easley observed several times that there was no coverage of the front office. She would go to Security or the Attendance office and find Banks there talking with the staff.

Ms. Easley also referred to Ex. A-2(a), dated August 2, 2010, in which she wrote to Ms. Banks that she wanted to see improvement in certain areas, including transcript requests being fulfilled within three working days of the initial request; maintaining the office in a neat and orderly fashion; and insuring confidentiality of documents and making sure there was coverage of the front desk at all times. Ms. Easley testified that Ms. Banks did not show improvement in these areas. A November 3, 2010, letter to Ms.

Banks from Ms. Easley (Ex. A-2(b)) talked about the fact that Ms. Banks was asked to maintain a daily log of transcript requests, but Ms. Banks had failed to provide logs since June 9, 2010, despite persistent requests for them. Again, on November 9, 2010, Ms. Easley wrote to Ms. Banks telling her that she should not schedule appointments with college representatives when they called the Guidance office. Instead, she was to take a message or transfer the call to Ms. Easley so that she could schedule a visit. Ms. Easley testified that she had asked Ms. Banks not to transfer calls to voice mail, but rather to take messages. She gave Ms. Banks a message pad, but the respondent refused to take messages.¹⁵

Ms. Easley testified that on December 7, 2010, she sent a letter to Ms. Banks in which she documented that she asked Ms. Banks four times during a single day to complete a task which required her to file confidential student developmental records, and Ms. Banks failed to complete the assignment. In her testimony, Ms. Easley also documented an incident regarding a child's removal from an HSPA standardized assessment test required for graduation. According to Ms. Easley, Ms. Banks contacted the library and requested that the counselor, who was acting as the proctor, send the student to the counseling office to be dismissed. Ms. Easley claimed that Ms. Banks did not notify her that the parent was requesting to have her son removed from the testing. In a memo to Ms. Banks, Ms. Easley stated that removal from the testing site had serious consequences to the student and the validity of the test results. Ms. Easley stated in her memo (Ex. A-2(e)) that in the future Ms. Banks was to contact the principal or herself before disturbing a test site.¹⁶

As to a number of the charges leveled against her by Ms. Easley, Ms. Banks claimed that she had sent in memos rebutting the charges. As to the six students who had withdrawn from the school, but were still listed on the rolls of the school, Ms. Banks claimed that she had sent in a memo through interoffice mail rebutting that charge. However, she did not keep copies of her rebuttals. Ms. Banks also claimed that she had sent in a rebuttal to the charge that she was responsible for keeping a daily record of transcript requests, but failed to do so. She said that she sent the rebuttal to Ms. Smiley with a copy to the union president, but she did not keep a copy for herself and never confirmed that anyone in the District had received a copy of the rebuttal. Ms. Banks also claimed that she sent in a rebuttal to Ex. A-1(b), the March 8, 2011, evaluation, to the Personnel department. However, she did not keep a copy of the rebuttal and there was no record of the rebuttal in the District's files. Ms. Banks claimed that there were only a couple of complaints about transcripts not going out, and these were really tied to problems that predated her arrival at the school. Ms. Banks said that at one point Mr. James came to her and gave her a big envelope filled with money orders and checks from 2007–08. This money was for transcripts that had never been sent out. Ms. Banks testified that she called all of the people who had sent in money and asked them if they were still interested in obtaining their transcripts. (Some of these requests were two to three years old.) Any of the current transcript requests that she received, she got to right away, and if there was a problem finding a transcript she called the parent or student right away. Ms. Banks said that once Ms. Easley came to the school, Ms. Easley wanted everything regarding transcripts to be changed. She wanted a log of daily transcript requests. Ms. Banks claimed that she complied with this request on a daily basis.

Ms. Banks testified that she was given a directive by Ms. Easley to clean up the papers around her office in preparation for getting a new desk. That is when she found checks and money orders for transcript requests for 2007–08. Ms. Banks acknowledged that she had not previously gone through the desk or the hutch in her office during the first eight months she was working at the high school and the eight months prior to the arrival of Ms. Easley. Ms. Banks said that Ms. Easley became upset because she wanted Banks to clean out the drawers of the filing cabinet. Banks testified that because she did not do it in a timely manner, Ms. Easley emptied out the contents of the file cabinet onto the floor. Banks said that she looked at Easley and told her that she should clean it up. The respondent then contacted her union representative, who took a picture of the mess on the floor and sent it to the vice president of the union, who called Easley's boss. The vice president of the union spoke to Banks and told her that Easley would be back to pick it up. Ms. Easley came back later and picked the stuff up from the floor. Ms. Banks said that she was not directed to put anything into the file cabinet. It was about one month between the time that Easley asked her to clean out the files and the time that this incident occurred. From the testimony it appeared that Ms. Easley became entirely frustrated by Ms. Banks' unwillingness to follow directives and clean up the office and "lost her cool." While Ms. Easley's behavior was inappropriate, it seems telling that, rather than realizing that she had a part in the incident and pitching in to clean up the mess, Ms. Banks took the position that she was wronged and reported it to the union.

As for the claim by Ms. Easley that Ms. Banks did not keep the microfiche drawer in good order, Ms. Banks testified that when she started her job, the drawer was not in any kind of order. She felt that it was of no help to her to organize the drawer, because it kept getting messed up. However, she did not recall telling Ms. Easley that she refused to organize the drawer.

Ms. Banks disputed Ms. Easley's allegation that she refused to take telephone messages for her even after she provided her with a message pad. Ms. Banks said that Ms. Easley had voice mail on her telephone and her supervisor did not tell her not to allow voice mail and to take messages. She did not remember the incident that precipitated Ms. Easley writing a memo to her about taking messages. Ms. Banks denied leaving the office uncovered.

As to the allegation of her not setting up appointments for the college representatives, Ms. Banks acknowledged that one of the college representatives came three times, but there were no appointments scheduled for her. Ms. Banks testified that it was not her responsibility to set up the appointments, but rather the job of the secretary in the main office. She said that another staff member, Ms. Thomas, had the calendar for the conference room where college interviews were held. Ms. Banks testified that the students were aware of the dates that the college representatives were going to be there because fliers were handed out. She had worked on handing out the leaflets once or twice.

Ms. Banks' rendition of what happened regarding the HSPA incident differed markedly from that of Ms. Easley. According to Ms. Banks a parent came to the office and said that she was there to pick up her son. The parent said that she had called Ms. Easley that morning and told her that she would be there at 10:30 a.m. to pick up her son to take him to upstate New York for a visit with his father at a prison there. Ms. Easley had told her that it was okay. When the parent arrived, Ms. Easley was nowhere to be found. Ms. Banks therefore contacted the principal, who tried to get the parent to allow her child to finish the HSPA test. However, the parent was persistent. Ms. Banks claimed that the principal and Ms. Easley conferred and agreed to let the child leave the test site. Ms. Banks argued that at the time of the incident she did not know the proper procedure when a parent wanted a student removed from testing. Ms. Easley admitted in testimony that she wrote a memo after the incident explaining the proper procedure to be followed. Banks argued that she could not be found to have performed unsatisfactorily by directing that a student be released from testing when it was acknowledged that "the identity of the individual to whom she spoke when she called the testing site is not known and that Banks could not have known the proper procedure!"

Ms. Banks testified that while she was absent for health reasons on a number of occasions, she had not exceeded the time allotted to her. She claimed that when she was sick, she called into the subservice to inform them that she would be out. She was not under an obligation to inform her superior that she was going to be out. Instead, the supervisor could check the list produced at the main office by the subservice, which showed the people who were going to be out for the day. Ms. Banks had a different rendition of what occurred in August 2010. She stated that she was scheduled to come back from vacation on August 24. She was not able to return to work because she had three herniated discs and could not get out of bed. She called into the subservice at 6:00 a.m. to report her absence. She was scheduled to be out Monday through Friday, but came to work on Thursday. On Wednesday someone called her and said that her supervisor and the assistant principal were on their way to her house. She asked the main office secretary if her name was on the substitute sheet that day and the secretary said that it was. She said that Ms. Easley and the vice principal never came to her house that day. On cross-examination, Ms. Banks testified that she considered Ms. Easley's coming to her home to be a form of harassment. However, she never reported this to the District.

Ms. Banks argued that the allegations of poor performance through the 2005–06 school year and the negative statements in some job performance observations and evaluations were meaningless because the District did not produce any negative evaluations during the period from 2006 until Ms. Easley became the respondent's supervisor in 2010. As for Ms. Easley's testimony, Ms. Banks argued that she did not point to one specific incident in which confidential files were left exposed to the public. Ms. Banks acknowledged that her office was cluttered, but she maintained that a claim of clutter did not prove that anyone entering the office could see confidential student material. It was Ms. Banks' position that the District had to specifically identify the date the confidential material was observed and the nature of the material. Further, the District had to specifically identify the individuals who complained that they did not receive their transcripts and the specific dates that the transcripts were requested.

What it comes down to is a matter of credibility. Do I believe Ms. Banks' testimony or that of Ms. Easley? I find it very difficult to believe Ms. Banks' rendition of her work history. If there was just one supervisor who disapproved of her work habits, then I could attribute the negative comments to a clash of personality, but in this case we have four supervisors who have expressed similar dissatisfaction with her work, including poor work habits, lack of organization, failure to get and keep the worksite in good order, failure to take and deliver telephone messages, refusal to follow procedures outlined by her supervisors, unnecessary absences, and inability or unwillingness to complete tasks assigned to her. I also find Ms. Banks' assertions that she wrote rebuttals to a number of negative evaluations and memos sent to her and yet she failed to keep copies of any of these rebuttals, and they are not present in her Personnel file in the District, to be unbelievable. In addition, while Ms. Banks acknowledged that she was aware that Ms. Easley's negative letters were sent to Personnel, she did not send any written responses to these negative reports. Ms. Banks certainly was familiar with the procedures to dispute negative evaluations and had called her union representative on a number of occasions, yet she did not respond at all to the letters sent to Personnel by Ms. Easley. Ms. Banks claimed that the problem with the transcripts was the fault of her predecessor. She discovered checks and money orders for old transcript requests when she cleaned out a hutch in the office eight months after she assumed her duties.

Ms. Banks claimed that she was hired to work at the high school in order to clean up the mess that was left by the prior secretary. Yet after eight months, she still had not opened the hutch in her office to see what was in the cabinet and to clean it up. Her idea of cleaning up was fixing up her desk and getting pencils and pens in order. Ms. Banks claimed that the person who was assigned to assist her was of little or no help and that the pace of the office was overwhelming. There is no doubt that the Guidance office housed confidential records. Ms. Banks acknowledged that confidential files were left in unsecured locations and often out in the open. She also acknowledged that parents, students and former students came to the office on a regular basis. It does not take a large leap of imagination to find that due to Ms. Banks' failure to secure the files and keep the office in an organized fashion, confidential files were exposed to the public. After a decade of working as a secretary in the school system it seems incredible that she could not find the time in eight months to get the office in order and secure confidential information.

As to the argument that, because of the lapse of time between the 2006 poor evaluations and increment withholding in 2007 and the negative evaluations of 2010–11, the prior assessments cannot be used to show conduct unbecoming, I do not find the argument persuasive. The problems with her performance from 1998 through 2006 were the same problems that Ms. Easley found in 2010–11, namely, a lack of organization, and an unwillingness to follow directions, to listen to suggestions from her supervisors, to report to her superiors, and to improve her overall work habits and attendance.

As for the incident involving the invalidation of the testing, while Ms. Banks might not have known the procedure to be followed to release a student from the test site, it is clear that she took it upon herself to allow the student to leave the site. I do not find believable her testimony that she conferred with Ms. Easley in the morning and Ms. Easley approved of the student leaving the test site. Given Ms. Easley's testimony of the importance of following test protocol, I cannot believe that she would have approved of allowing the student to leave prior to completing the test. I also find it difficult to believe the rest of Ms. Banks' story, that is, that she could not find Ms. Easley when the parent arrived, that she spoke to the principal, and that he hunted down Ms. Easley and they agreed to letting the student leave. Rather, it appears that Ms. Banks followed her usual pattern of failing to consult her supervisors on important matters and making decisions on her own. In this case the result of her decision was that the student's test scores on a standardized test were invalidated.

From the testimony and exhibits presented, it is clear that Ms. Banks was unwilling to change her work habits, to follow the suggestions of her supervisors or to go the extra mile to perform her job in an acceptable manner. Therefore, I FIND that the respondent's performance during the 2001-02, 2005-06 and 2010-11 school years was unsatisfactory.

Charge 6 --- Excessive Transfers Due to Poor Performance During the Period from September 29, 1997, to September 1, 2006

Ms. Banks was transferred a total of six times during the period from September 1997 to September 2006. She was transferred from Heywood to Central School effective September 1, 2001. (Ex. 20.) On September 10, 2002, Ms. Banks was notified that she was being transferred from Central School to Lincoln School effective immediately. (Ex. 21.) On August 25, 2004, Ms. Banks was informed that she was being transferred from Lincoln to Orange High School (Ex. 22), and on September 20, 2004, she was notified that she was being moved to Orange Alternative School. On February 11, 2005, Ms. Banks was moved from Orange Alternative School to Oakwood Elementary School. She was then transferred to Orange High School. According to Ms. Smiley, most of the transfers were as a result of recommendations to the administration that Ms. Banks was not doing well in her current school and perhaps she would fare better in another environment.

Ms. Banks explained these transfers by stating that in many cases she moved because a principal requested that she come in and straighten out the mess in the office. She testified that she went to Central High School at the request of Principal Athenia Whitworth. The respondent alleged that Ms. Whitworth called her and asked to go to Central High School to clean it up. The school had lost its Title 1 funds because of the mess in the office. Ms. Banks claimed that she was never told that she was being transferred from one school to another for disciplinary reasons. The respondent testified that at one point she worked for two schools at the same time because she was asked by the principal of the Park Avenue School to help her out. As for the transfer to Central School, Ms. Banks said that she did not want to go, but she agreed to go there for one year. After that time, she asked for a transfer to Lincoln School. Ms. Banks claimed that the principal at Central told her that there were performance issues, and she sent in a rebuttal to that evaluation. Ms. Banks could not produce a copy of the rebuttal and the District did not have a rebuttal on file. Ms. Banks said that she applied for a position at the Forest Street School, after the secretary to the principal died, and she was given that position. Ms. Banks said that she worked at Orange Alternative School for two years. She then received a request from the principal of Oakwood Avenue School to work for her. She worked at the Alternative School from 8 a.m. to noon, and at the Oakwood School from 1 p.m. to 8 p.m. She did this for about one year. Oakwood liked her work and wanted her full time, and she went there in 2005. She was there two years. She asked for a transfer from Oakwood because she was not happy there. Ms. Banks claimed that she was never told that the transfers were for disciplinary reasons or performance problems.

Ms. Smiley, the director of Human Services, had a different version of why Ms. Banks was constantly being transferred. She testified that Ms. Banks was transferred to practically every school within the school district due to her lack of performance. Ms. Smiley stated that most of the transfers were done to accommodate the building administrator's request that the respondent not continue in his or her school.

Ms. Banks argued that since the last transfer occurred five years prior to the charges being brought and there was no record that Ms. Banks was ever advised that she was being transferred because of performance, the District cannot utilize the transfers as a notice to Banks to improve her conduct. Therefore Charge 6 is meaningless and must be dismissed.

While it appears that Ms. Banks never received a notice that she was being transferred for disciplinary reasons, it seems impossible to believe Ms. Banks' rendition of the facts regarding her transfers. The respondent claimed that many of her transfers were the result of principals asking her to come to their schools to straighten out the mess in the office. However, in many cases these were the same supervisors who complained about her work ethic, her organizational skills and her willingness to follow the instructions of her superiors. A letter dated September 21, 1998, and written by Matthew Bocchino, the principal of Heywood Elementary School, (Ex. 19) stated that Ms. Banks' administrative work was not accurate. Mr. Bocchino stated that unless there was improvement he would give a negative job recommendation. Despite the fact that Ms. Banks promised to improve, he did not see signs of improvement in the three years that she worked for him. Ms. Banks claimed that the people at Oakwood School liked her work, and yet it was Principal Neain who recommended the withholding of her increment. Similarly, Principal Whitworth at Central School wrote Ms. Banks up regarding her refusal to follow directions, her wasting of time and her disorganization. She went so far as to recommend that "Ms. Banks should seek employment where she can do as she pleases. We don't have time to beg her to complete routine tasks." This does not appear to be a ringing endorsement of her work. Unfortunately, it appears that rather than deal with Ms. Banks' poor performance, the District just transferred her from school to school. However, this does not negate the fact that while Ms. Banks did not get formal notice that she was being transferred for performance reasons, I FIND it impossible to believe that Ms. Banks was not aware, based on the poor evaluations and constant transfers that she received, that her transfers were not linked to her substandard performance.

Charge 7 --- Failure or Refusal to Adhere to Recognized Procedures Regarding Staff Attendance Despite Counseling on March 8, 2011, April 14, 2010, May 11, 2009, February 16 and 27, 2007, January 29, 2007, and December 14, 2006

There was testimony from Belinda Scott Smiley, administrative assistant to the superintendent for Operations/Human Relations, that she had sent notices to Ms. Banks on a number of occasions regarding her overuse of sick time. Exhibit G-25 stated that Ms. Banks had overused her sick days by 1.50 days, and therefore they would be changing the sick time to personal time in order to avoid a payroll deduction. This occurred on December 14, 2006. Again on January 29, 2007, Ms. Banks received a notice (Ex. G-26(a)) stating that she had overused her sick time by one day and there would be a payroll deduction. There was also an exhibit marked (G-26(b)) in which the assistant principal at Orange High School wrote to Ms. Banks to tell her that her "pattern of occasional absences would make the school exceed the absentee rate of 3.5% established as a statewide standard." Ms. Hall also had a meeting with Ms. Banks on February 16, 2007, in which she advised Ms. Banks that she should not be absent from work for the remainder of the year. Ms. Hall asked if there was anything that the school could do to help support her work effort and better attendance, and Ms. Banks denied the need for any assistance. Ms. Smiley also testified about a pattern of absences, specifically on Mondays and Fridays, days before and after holidays, and pay days.

During the period from July 20, 2008, through June 2009, Ms. Banks was out on Tuesday after the Columbus Day holiday; Friday, October 17; November 13 and 14, Thursday and Friday; and November 21 and 24, Friday and Monday. Proceeding these two days were two personal business days on November 19 and 20. Ms. Banks also took off on Monday, December 1; Monday, December 8, and Tuesday, December 9; January 15, and January 30, both pay days; April 1, also a pay day; and June 5, a Friday. Ms. Banks received notifications regarding this pattern on May 11, 2009, April 14, 2010, and March 8, 2011. There was an opportunity to respond to the allegations on the second page of the notification form on May 11, 2009, but Ms. Banks did not respond. Later she noted on the comments section on April 14, 2010, that she had sarcoidosis and it affected her work, but she was feeling better. She also said that she would provide physicians' notes to the principal and Human Resources. For the 2010–11 school year Ms. Banks continued her pattern of absences on October 12, the day after Columbus Day, and Thursday and Friday, October 14 and 15. She was out on October 28 and 29, Thursday and Friday. She was out on January 18, the day after the Martin Luther King Day observance. She was out on Monday, January 31, and Friday, February 11. From March 16 through until May 1, 2011, Ms. Banks took medical leave. Because of the pattern of twelve or more occasional absences, Ms. Smiley was required, as per the Board's attendance policy, to schedule a meeting for Ms. Banks with the superintendent in 2010. In addition, Mr. Gibney, the principal of Orange High School, had a meeting with Ms. Banks on March 8, 2011, regarding her pattern of absences. As a result of the meeting Ms. Banks was to document all absences with doctors' notes and set up an appointment with Human Resources. Ms. Smiley had a meeting with Ms. Banks because she had eight or more occasional absences in 2011. Ms. Smiley also identified an e-mail (Ex. 31(a)) in which Ms. Easley told Ms. Smiley that Ms. Banks took a half personal day and did not inform her or the principal that she was not coming back after lunch. Ms. Smiley pointed out that while 48-hour notice of personal time was not required under the secretaries' contract, it was unprofessional to leave without notifying her supervisor that she would not be returning.

While Ms. Banks claimed that she did not exceed her allowable sick days, she did not dispute the fact that her Personnel record correctly reflected her days absent and/or tardy. From the testimony and the documentation, it is clear that she did exceed the days by 3.5 days. In addition, some days were changed in order to avoid having her pay being docked. While Ms. Banks may have had health issues, this does not explain the pattern of absences before and after weekends, holidays and vacation days. It is clear that Ms. Banks had been counseled on attendance early in her career in the Orange School District, yet her attendance pattern continued throughout her employment. The Board policy specifically discusses chronic absenteeism as a reason for disciplinary action. When a staff member is out, this causes problems for the District. Absenteeism affects the efficiency of the office and has a budgetary impact, since another person must be hired to cover the secretarial duties. In addition, the substitute is usually not as familiar with the workings of the office and as a result more time and money is expended in getting a job done. This can also have an impact on the students, since they need to make appointments with the guidance counselors, require transcripts to be sent to colleges and jobs,, and may need assistance in planning their school schedules. All of these things are handled through the Guidance office secretary. It is not the number of days, but the pattern of days that the respondent took off, that is telling. It is obvious that Ms. Banks took her sick days as additional vacation days, before and after holidays and vacations and before and after pay days. Sick days are meant to be used for valid sicknesses, not for additional days off. Being out sick is disruptive to the smooth workings of an office. Especially in the Guidance office of a high school, which both sides describe as busy and where present and former students, parents and college representatives interact, it is important to have staff that is available and responsive to the public. I FIND that throughout her employment Ms. Banks abused her sick leave by taking days off before and after holidays, vacations and pay days.

Based on the testimony presented and the exhibits submitted I make the following FINDINGS OF FACT:

1. Ms. Banks was originally hired by the Orange School District in 1993. She worked as a temporary secretary and then as a paraprofessional. She was laid off and rehired in 1997 as an administrative assistant.

2. Ms. Banks worked as an administrative assistant at the Forest Street School for the 1997–98 school year. She was then transferred to the Heywood School, where she stayed for three years. She was transferred again to Central Avenue School in the 2001–02 school year and to the Lincoln School in 2003. She worked at the Orange Alternative School in 2004–05 and part time at the Oakwood School in 2006–07. Ms. Banks was transferred to Orange High School in 2006. Originally she worked in the Attendance office at the high school, but after two years she was transferred to the Guidance office. In 2010, after her return from a leave of absence she was sent to Orange Preparatory Academy to work.

3. The respondent conducted private business on District computers including ordering personal property, researching the purchase of a car and printing coupons online.

4. During the time that the respondent was supposed to be at her desk she left her post and fraternized with members of the security staff and took rides in the District's van for non-school reasons.

5. Ms. Banks printed out a copy of a coworker's confidential school transcript without authorization and gave the transcript to the coworker in the presence of other staff.

6. On August 25, 2009, Ms. Banks smoked on the school grounds in violation of N.J.S.A. 26:3D-58 and school district policy.

7. The respondent received unsatisfactory performance evaluations in the 2001–02, 2005–06 and 2010–11 school years and had her increment withheld for the 2006–07 school year.

8. Ms. Banks was transferred six times during a nine-year period. These transfers can be attributed to her poor performance at the schools in which she was working.

9. Despite repeated counseling, Ms. Banks failed or refused to adhere to recognized procedures regarding taking and reporting sick absences. Ms. Banks exhibited a pattern of taking sick days following vacations, holidays and weekends.

ANALYSIS OF THE LAW

The tenure of education personnel is authorized by the Education Tenure Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:28-1 to -18. According to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10, no person under tenure of office, position, or employment shall be dismissed or reduced in compensation except for inefficiency, incapacity, unbecoming conduct, or other just cause. Tenure is a status in a particular position created by statute, not the agreement of the parties, therefore, it is a “statutory right imposed upon a teacher’s contractual employment’ [that] may not be forfeited or waived.” Spiewak v. Rutherford Bd. of Educ., 90 N.J. 63, 77 (1982) (quoting Zimmerman v. Newark Bd. of Educ., 38 N.J. 65, 72 (1962), cert. denied, 371 U.S. 956, 83 S. Ct. 508, 9 L. Ed. 2d 502 (1963), and citing Red Bank Educ. Ass’n v. Red Bank Bd. of Educ., 78 N.J. 122, 141 (1978)). Tenure was designed to protect employees “from dismissal ‘for unfounded, flimsy or political reasons.’” Wright v. Bd. of Educ. of E. Orange, 99 N.J. 112, 118 (1985) (quoting Zimmerman, supra, 38 N.J. at 71). Lack of fitness is usually demonstrated by a series of incidents, but it also may be found when there is a single incident that is sufficiently flagrant. Redcay v. State Bd. of Educ., 130 N.J.L. 369, 371 (Sup. Ct. 1943), aff’d, 131 N.J.L. 326, 327 (E. & A. 1944). While tenure was designed to protect employees, teachers (and other tenured employees) are responsible to act in a professional manner and to serve the welfare of the students in their care. Tenure charges can be sustained based on a history of unprofessional conduct, In re Riddick, 93 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 345, or based on a single incident, "if sufficiently flagrant." In re Fulcomer, 93 N.J. Super. 404, 421 (App. Div. 1967).

Among the charges lodged against Ms. Banks was "conduct unbecoming." This conduct was defined by the administrative law judge in In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Motley, State-Operated School District of Newark, Essex County, EDU 7421-97, Initial Decision (May 5, 1999), aff'd as modified, Comm'r (August 4, 1999), aff'd, State Bd. of Educ. (December 1, 1999) <<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html>>:

"Unbecoming conduct" is an elastic term broadly defined to include any conduct "which has a tendency to destroy public respect for [government] employees and [confidence] in the operation of [public] services." Karins v. City of Atlantic City, 152 N.J. 532, 554 (1998). Behavior rising to the level of unbecoming conduct "need not be predicated upon a violation of any particular rule or regulation, but may be based merely upon the violation of the implicit standard of good behavior which devolves upon one who stands in the public eye as an upholder of that which is morally and legally correct. Hartmann v. Police Dep't of Ridgewood, 258 N.J. Super. 22, 40 (App. Div. 1992). Despite the apparent vagueness of this standard, "it fairly and adequately conveys its meaning to all concerned." Laba v. Newark Bd. of Educ., 23 N.J. 364, 384 (1957). In the context of a school tenure case, "the touchstone is fitness to discharge the duties and functions of one's office or position." In re Tenure Hearing of Grossman, 127 N.J. Super. 13, 29 (App. Div. 1974), certif. denied, 65 N.J. 292 (1974).

It is the obligation of the District to prove the tenure charges by a preponderance of the credible evidence. The Commissioner, in In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Grundfest, School District of Madison, Morris County, EDU 5326-98, Comm'r (June 20, 2000), rev'g Initial Decision (March 29, 2000), aff'd, St. Bd. (November 1, 2000)

<<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html>>, outlined what a board of education had to prove in order to meet its burden in a tenure charge:

Sustaining tenure charges for unbecoming conduct, however, is a very serious matter. . . . Since the penalty for respondent would be severe, it is the Board's responsibility and its burden to prove by a preponderance of credible evidence [the tenure charges against respondent].

Determinations often turn on credibility. Credibility is the value that a finder of the facts gives to the testimony of a witness. The process of evaluating the credibility of witnesses entails: (a) observing demeanor; (b) evaluating the ability to recall specific details; (c) considering the consistency of the testimony under direct and cross-examination; (d) determining the significance of any inconsistent statements or evidence; and (e) otherwise developing a sense of the witness's candor. This requires an overall assessment of the witness's story in light of its rationality, internal consistency and the manner in which it "hangs together" with the other evidence. See Carbo v. U.S., 314 F.2d 718, 749 (9th Cir. 1963), cert. denied sub. nom., Palermo v. U.S., 377 U.S. 953 (1964).

In evaluating the weight, trustworthiness and reliability of the evidence, factors such as motive, bias, confirming witnesses or statements, corroborative evidence, and common sense must be considered. Frequently, the trier of fact relies on the innate sense of whether the testimony has the ring of truth.

CONCLUSIONS

Based on the FINDING OF FACTS and reasoning outlined in the ARGUMENTS and ANALYSIS OF THE LAW above, I CONCLUDE that the District has sustained its burden of proving Tenure Charges 1, 2, 4, 5, 6 and 7 against the respondent. The District has failed to sustain its burden to prove Tenure Charge 3. While the District has not sustained Charge 3, there is sufficient evidence regarding the other charges to sustain the Tenure Charges against the respondent.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

 DISTRICT, MONMOUTH COUNTY, :

PETITIONER, : COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

V. : DECISION

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE :
 BOROUGH OF BERGENFIELD, :
 BERGEN COUNTY, :

RESPONDENT. :

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner claims that respondent Board is obligated to share its cost of educating A.M. and M.M. – disabled twin brothers who have been in a residential placement since 2001 at Bancroft Neuro-Health – because their parents are separated and the twins’ father has continuously resided in Bergenfield since 2004, while the mother remains at the family home in Howell. Cross motions for summary decision were filed by the parties.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 provides children between the ages of five and twenty with an entitlement to a free public education; domicile is the primary criteria for determining which school district will pay the costs of this education; the existing regulatory scheme attributes a child’s rightful domicile to the home of one or the other parent; where parents live apart, the regulations favor single-district responsibility for education costs; costs are generally borne by the district of domicile of the children, but in this case the twins do not reside with either of their parents; N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a) provides that separated or divorced parents living in different communities can – by written agreement – designate a district for school attendance; although no such written agreement exists in this case, the intent of the twins’ parents is clear – through their conduct and depositions – that they want the house in Howell to serve as the twins’ home since it is where they grew up and continue to spend the majority of their time when not at Bancroft; and it appears that the twins’ mother is the parent most actively engaged in the boys’ care. Accordingly, the ALJ denied petitioner’s cross-motion for summary decision and granted respondent’s cross motion, thus determining that the petitioning Board must bear the full cost of education for A.M. and M.M.

Upon full and careful consideration, the Commissioner adopted the Initial Decision as the final decision in this matter as he concurred that – given the undisputed facts – summary disposition was appropriate, respondent’s motion for summary disposition was properly granted and petitioner’s motion for summary disposition was properly denied – for the reasons stated in the ALJ’s decision, as amplified in the within final decision.

V. : DECISION

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE :
BOROUGH OF BERGENFIELD,
BERGEN COUNTY, :

RESPONDENT. :

This controversy concerning financial responsibility for the education of two disabled students, twin brothers A.M. and M.M.,¹ comes to the Commissioner by way of cross motions for summary disposition. Upon review of the record, Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), petitioner's exceptions and respondent's replies thereto, the Commissioner concurs with the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) that, given the undisputed facts of this case, summary disposition was appropriate, respondent's motion for summary disposition was properly granted and petitioner's motion for summary disposition was properly denied.

The parties agree that it is the domicile of students that determines which district will be obliged to provide their free public education, N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1; N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a), and that the domicile of minor – or unemancipated – children is the domicile of their parents, legal custodians or legal guardians. See, e.g. N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a)(1.). The disagreement in this case flows from the fact that in 2004, when the twins were 16 years old, their parents separated. (At this point in time the twins had been living at Bancroft NeuroHealth – a residential facility – for four years.) Their mother remained domiciled in the family home in Howell, a municipality covered by petitioner’s regional high school district, and their father moved to Bergenfield, respondent’s district.

Petitioner maintains that the father’s move to Bergenfield made him a domiciliary of Bergenfield which, in turn, mandated respondent’s participation in the payment of the twins’ educational expenses – as of 2004. According to petitioner, “the plain language of [N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a)(1.)] compels the conclusion that A.M. and M.M. are domiciled in both [parents’] districts.” (Petitioner’s Exceptions at 4) The Commissioner disagrees.

The domicile of the twins’ father is not determinative of whether there will be shared responsibility for the education of the twins. As the ALJ found, and as the record reveals, notwithstanding that the twins live at Bancroft NeuroHealth, the Howell home in which they were raised, and in which their mother resides, still serves as the hub of their family life.² For most of their family outings, both with their mother and their father, they are brought to the Howell home. Both parents intend that the twins enjoy the continuity derived from keeping the Howell residence as their home. The twins have never lived in Bergenfield, and they rarely visit their father there. Further, while the twins’ parents are legally co-guardians of their sons, the record shows that it is the mother who attends meetings at Bancroft, hosts holidays for the entire family, and is the de facto primary custodian of the twins.

Nothing in N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a)(1.) compels a finding that the twins are domiciled in both Howell and Bergenfield, simply because their father lives in the latter municipality. That regulation provides that:

A student over five and under 20 years of age pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, or such younger or older student as is otherwise entitled by law to free public education, is eligible to attend school in a school district if the student is domiciled within the district.

(N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a))

And it explains that:

A student is domiciled in the school district when he or she is the child of a parent or guardian whose permanent home is located within the school district. A home is permanent when the parent or guardian intends to return to it when absent and has no present intent of moving from it, notwithstanding the existence of homes or residences elsewhere.

(N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a)(1.))

While the foregoing language bestows entitlement to a free public education upon a child in a district where his or her parent is domiciled, it does not mandate that a child whose parents are domiciled in separate districts must receive a free public education in both districts. To the contrary, N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a)(1.)(i) instructs that the domicile of a student with parents in separate school districts lies in “the school district of the parent or guardian with whom the student lives for the majority of the school year, regardless of which parent has legal custody” (emphasis added.) That provision contemplates that normally one, not both, of the parents’ districts of residence will provide the free public education. It further contemplates that the free education will be provided by the district of the parent with the most jurisdiction over and contact with the student. In the present case it is the twins' mother.

By way of contrast, N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a)(1)(ii) addresses situations where separated parents accept truly equal responsibility for the physical care of their children, and the children spend an equal amount of time in the parents' respective districts of residence:

ii. Where a student's physical custody is shared on an equal-time, alternating week/month or other similar basis such that the student is not living with one parent or guardian for a majority of the school year, and where there is no court order or written agreement between the parents designating the school district for school attendance, the student's domicile is the present domicile of the parent or guardian with whom the student resided on the last school day prior to October 16 preceding the date of the application.

(1) Where such a student resided with both parents or guardians, or with neither parent or guardian, on the last school day prior to the preceding October 16, the student's domicile is the domicile of the parent or guardian with whom the parents or guardians indicate the student will be residing on the last school day prior to the ensuing October 16. Where the parents or guardians do not designate, or cannot agree upon, the student's likely residence as of that date, or if on that date the student is not residing with the parent or guardian previously indicated, the student shall attend school in the school district where the parent or guardian with whom the student is actually living as of the last school day prior to October 16 is domiciled.

Those provisions of the regulation are not at play in this case, since the twins' dominant parent is their mother, who is domiciled in Howell.

Nor can N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a)(1)(ii)(2) be construed to support petitioner's contention that respondent must retroactively reimburse petitioner for a portion of the twins' expenses at Bancroft. That provision directs that:

[w]here the domicile of a student with disabilities as defined in N.J.A.C. 6A:14 cannot be determined pursuant to this section, nothing in this section shall preclude an equitable determination of shared responsibility for the cost of such student's out-of-district placement.

As the ALJ determined, the foregoing provision is permissive. It advises that the Commissioner is not precluded from making an equitable determination that two domiciles exist and that those districts should share responsibility for the student's education. Conversely, the Commissioner is not obliged to make such a determination.

The two cases relied upon by petitioner for the proposition that the Commissioner should divide the costs of the twins' educations between petitioner and respondent do not support petitioner's cause because they are not apposite to the instant controversy. The fact patterns in Somerville Bd. of Educ. v. Manville Bd. of Educ., 332 N.J. Super. 6 (App. Div. 2000), aff'd, 167 N.J. 55 (2001)³ and Cumberland Reg'l High Sch. Dist. Bd. of Educ. v. Freehold Reg'l High Sch. Dist. Bd. of Educ., OAL Dkt. No. EDS 2994-02 (July 27, 2005), aff'd 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 44212 (June 18, 2007), aff'd unpub. opinion 293 Fed. Appx. 900 (3d Cir. September 29, 2008), disclose histories of equal legal and physical custody, with no clear evidence that one parent and/or home was dominant, or that the parents in those cases had manifested the intent that one parent would have primary custody or control. In this case the facts show not only that the twins' mother was the dominant parent, but that both parents intended her home to be the twins' home, and Howell to be the twins' domicile. Moreover, the facts as a whole not only show that the twins have had virtually no connection with Bergenfield, but also that their father has maintained the kind of significant connections with Howell that are often examined in the course of determinations about domicile.

For the above stated reasons, as well as those articulated by the ALJ, the Commissioner adopts the Initial Decision as the final decision in this case. Accordingly, petitioner's motion for summary disposition is denied and respondent's motion for summary disposition is granted.

³ This case was superseded by regulatory amendments in 2010.

Record Closed: November 7, 2011

Decided: November 17, 2011

BEFORE SOLOMON A. METZGER, ALJ t/a:

This matter arises out of a claim by petitioner, Freehold Regional High School District, that respondent, Bergenfield Board of Education, is obligated to share its cost of educating A.M. and M.M., twin brothers. The matter was first filed in the Superior Court, Monmouth County, in March 2007, and was transferred to the Commissioner of Education in May 2007. The Commissioner in turn transmitted the file to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) in June 2007 to be heard as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -23. The parties have filed cross-motions for summary decision.¹ N.J.S.A. 1:1-12.5; Brill v. Guardian Life Ins. Co. of Amer., 142 N.J. 520 (1995).

The facts are substantially undisputed. D.M., the father, and M.M., the mother, were married in 1987 and purchased a home in Howell Township the following year. A.M. and M.M. were born in July 1988 and have been diagnosed on the autism spectrum. They are both eligible for special education under the Individuals with Disabilities Education and Information Act (IDEIA), 20 U.S.C. § 1400 et seq. In January 2001 both children were placed at Bancroft NeuroHealth, a residential facility in Cherry Hill, New Jersey, by the Howell Township Board of Education, their elementary school district. Petitioner, their high school district, continued this placement, and the parents were in accord.

In October 2004, D.M. relocated to an apartment in Bergenfield and has since continuously resided in Bergenfield. In October 2007 he moved into a house in Bergenfield with another woman and her two children. D.M. and M.M. gave their depositions in 2007, which are generally consistent. The couple has not sought a divorce, and they were declared co-guardians of the twins when the boys reached age eighteen. Although he has not ruled it out, D.M. has no current intention of returning to his home in Howell Township. Nonetheless, he continues to vote there, his driver's license and vehicle registration reflect the Howell Township home as his address, he and M.M. file joint tax returns using the Howell address, D.M. pays the mortgage on the house, and they maintain joint checking and savings accounts using the Howell address. D.M. and M.M. maintain no separate bank accounts. They have traded cars because she drives the boys more often than he does, and he owns the safer vehicle.

The boys have a maternal aunt and cousins in the Howell area and holidays are celebrated together. M.M. stated in her deposition that both she and D.M. want the Howell house to be home for the twins.

M.M. visits the twins at least twice weekly at Bancroft, and they stay in the Howell home overnight on average about two nights a month. They overnight in Bergenfield five or six times a year, and D.M. generally visits them on Saturdays at Bancroft. On these occasions he often drives them to Howell in the morning for horseback-riding lessons at a stable in the area designed to accommodate the disabled. He then stops by the Howell house for a short visit, and in the afternoon returns the twins to Bancroft and participates in any of their scheduled activities. M.M. attends most if not all the meetings with Bancroft staff; D.M. does not generally attend. This is the substance of the record.

N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 provides "persons" between ages five and twenty with an entitlement to a free public education. Since "free" in the statute really means that costs are shifted elsewhere, domicile is the mechanism of choice for determining which district will pay. In the main this is fair, as children generally live at home with their parents, who pay local school taxes. The section goes on to make provision for uncommon circumstances where domicile does not govern. N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1 expands the list, and here we are particularly concerned with the examples that relate to divorce. Though a person may have multiple residences, in general the law recognizes only one true home, or domicile, Lyon v. Glaser, 60 N.J. 259 (1972). The regulatory scheme works to remain true to this concept by attributing a child's rightful domicile to the home of one or another parent. Various criteria are used to make this assessment, such as the existence of a court order or written agreement between parents establishing a given district for school attendance, the home in which the child lives most of the time, or the district where the child most recently resided before October 16, a date used to determine school aid. Our facts do not fit squarely into these categories, as the twins do not reside with either of their parents.

There has now been some recognition that the single-domicile rule can create unacceptable levels of inequity in certain discrete situations, see Somerville Bd. of Educ. v. Manville Bd. of Educ., 332 N.J. Super. 6 (App. Div. 2000), aff'd, 167 N.J. 55 (2001); I.G. ex rel. L.G. v. Cumberland Reg. High Sch. Dist. Bd. of Educ., EDS 2994-02, Final Decision (July 27, 2005) <<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.shtml>>, aff'd sub nom., Cumberland Reg'l High Sch. Dist. Bd. of Educ. v. Freehold Reg'l High Sch. Dist. Bd. of Educ., 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 44212 (D.N.J. June 18, 2007); N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a)(1)(ii)(2). The question here is whether this is such a case. For petitioner, the unitary-domicile rule is not threatened by cost sharing in the unusual circumstance where parents and children all live apart. To respondent, the recent cases are either wrongly decided or inapposite.

Taken as a whole, the regulatory scheme is firstly concerned that students have clear uninterrupted access to education, and then that costs be attributed by domicile. The statutory priority is clear when the two principles collide, as for example in N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(d), where residence takes precedence over domicile in the interest of delivering education. Nonetheless, in general, costs are borne by the district of domicile, and where parents live apart the regulations favor single-district responsibility. Taking note of Somerville and Cumberland, the rules have been amended so as not to "preclude an equitable determination of shared responsibility for the cost of . . . out-of-district placement," N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a)(1)(ii)(2); 42 N.J.R. 179(b) (January 19, 2010). The language is carefully crafted. The rule does not extend to all cases where parents live in separate communities and children are in out-of-district residential settings. Even in this small cohort the facts must leave us without a sound foundation for invoking the unitary-domicile rule.

Though they live apart, D.M. and M.M. remain husband and wife and D.M. retains substantial ties to the Howell home. Whatever the nature of their personal relationship, their depositions make clear that D.M. and M.M. jointly desire to provide their two autistic sons with a sense of stability. They believe that maintaining the home in Howell where the boys were raised is a net positive toward that end. D.M. declined petitioner's invitation to enroll the boys in the Bergenfield school district. This united intent draws the case closer to precedents in which parents make their intent known by written agreement, see Roxbury Twp. Bd. of Educ. v. West Milford Bd. of Educ., 283 N.J. Super. 505 (App. Div. 1995), certif. denied, 143 N.J. 325 (1996). Regulations at N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a) provide that separated or divorced parents living in different communities can by written agreement designate a district for school attendance. The Department considered eliminating this possibility in its most recent proposed re-adoption over concerns that parents in discord might manipulate this provision. On reflection the clause was retained; the Department was satisfied that disputes over the legitimacy of such documents were reviewable case-by-case, see 42 N.J.R. 179(b) cmts. (January 19, 2010). Our record presents no writing, but neither does it present much debate about the intent of these parents. In their conduct and in their depositions, D.M. and M.M. have made fairly plain that they want the house in Howell to be their children's home.

The home in which children spend most of their time is also used as a criterion by which to attribute domicile. Here the twins reside at Bancroft, but considerably more off time is spent in Howell than in Bergenfield. Taken alone this criteria is not well suited to our facts, but coupled with parental intent, it does further lean responsibility in petitioner's direction. N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a) generally strives for the bright lines that our facts blur. Yet, in this regulatory scheme an imperfect fit into the well-defined categories does not lead automatically to burden sharing, the default position.

The Somerville facts presented a divorced couple that had agreed to joint legal and physical custody and two school districts that had for a number of years voluntarily shared tuition costs. Personnel changes ended the accord. Equal parenting in that case seemed to play an important role in the decision. In our situation the mother and the Howell house are important factors in the twins' lives. Cumberland again presented parents with joint legal and physical custody and a child that lived out-of-district. Yet again the decisions of the ALJ, the United States District Court and the Third Circuit, the latter having labeled the opinion as non-precedential, give no sense that one parent and one home play a dominant role in the life of that child. Indeed the out-of-district placements in that case were in Virginia and Florida; the child visited each parent equally but rarely.

Though a sincere effort must be made to find one domicile, the decision ought not to rest on marginal facts, or trivial distinctions. The courts in Somerville and Cumberland faced facts that did not substantively tip domicile in one or another direction. Our record points to the Howell Township home as the parental choice of domicile and it is the only home that these boys have ever known. Without diminishing the role of D.M., it does appear that the mother is the one most actively engaged in the boys' care.

Based on the foregoing, petitioner's cross-motion for summary decision is DENIED; respondent's cross-motion is GRANTED. Petitioner must bear the full cost of education for A.M. and M.M.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." STIPULATION OF SETTLEMENT

WHEREAS, on or about August 9, 2011, a Verified Petition of Appeal was filed on behalf of Petitioner with the Commissioner of Education alleging violation of Petitioner's tenure rights within the District; and

WHEREAS, on or about August 19, 2011, the Respondent Ridgewood Board of Education (Board) filed an Answer to Petitioner's Verified Petition of Appeal denying the allegations; and

WHEREAS, the matter was assigned to the Office of Administrative Law and a conference was conducted on September 9, 2011; and

WHEREAS, the parties having a desire to settle the above matter in an amicable way, hereby agree as follows:

1. The Superintendent will recommend for Board approval the assignment of Petitioner to the half-time Class VIII 10-month secretarial position at Orchard Elementary School concurrently with Petitioner's present assignment (she is currently also a half-time Class VIII Ridgewood High School secretary), and the Petitioner (and her association, the Ridgewood Education Association (REA)) will withdraw her Petition of Appeal herein, as well as the pending grievance filed on behalf of Petitioner regarding Petitioner's contractual seniority rights, with prejudice except as noted in Paragraph No. 8 below.

2. The Orchard School secretary position at issue here is a half-time Class VIII 10-month position whose sole function is to support the Orchard School Child Study Team (CST).

3. The half-time Orchard School secretary position is only temporarily open at present. Its incumbent remains employed by the district. Petitioner's initial assignment to this position will be as a long-term leave replacement covering for the incumbent; but this temporary assignment is made with the intention of having Petitioner' become permanent in the position if and when the incumbent's district employment terminates.

4. The parties agree the assignment of Petitioner to the half-time Orchard School secretary position is without prejudice to the parties' respective positions with respect to any re-filed grievance and/or a Petition before the Commissioner of Education, as described in Paragraph No. 8 below.

5. Upon the effective date of Petitioner' permanent appointment to the half-time Orchard School secretary position, all parties will consider Petitioner to hold a single full-time secretary position in the district that is assigned to split time between two schools. Accordingly, Petitioner's tenure and seniority rights will reflect Petitioner's assignment as a Class VIII full-time 10-month secretary.

6. The district will provide Petitioner with appropriate training and support in the procedures and systems used to fulfill the responsibilities of a secretary supporting a school CST. The district also understands that a reasonable amount of time will be necessary for Petitioner to learn and become proficient at fulfilling these responsibilities; and Petitioner will be allowed that reasonable time to progress through the "learning curve."

7. Petitioner will be always entitled to apply for, and potentially be appointed to, other secretary positions in the district.

8. If the incumbent in the half-time Orchard School secretary position returns to work in the district, and the district is unable to assign Petitioner to the Orchard School position permanently, Petitioner will be entitled to re-file a grievance asserting that Petitioner has a contractual seniority entitlement to full-time employment, and/or a Petition of Appeal before the Commissioner of Education asserting that Petitioner has a statutory tenure entitlement to full-time employment, based on the circumstances the current grievance and this current matter are based on, if she so chooses. The re-filing of such a grievance or Petition of Appeal would need to be done within timelines established by the applicable contract or regulations using the date Petitioner's assignment to the Orchard School position ended as the "trigger date."

9. Petitioner waives any claim for lost wages for the 2010-11 school year.

10. Petitioner waives any claim for reimbursement of attorneys' fees or other remuneration except as provided herein.

11. The parties have reached this compromise to avoid the expense, inconvenience, and potential acrimony of a hearing.

12. This Agreement contains the entire Agreement and understanding between the parties and constitutes a full and final Agreement on any and all issues.

13. This Agreement shall be governed by the laws of the State of New Jersey.

14. If, during the term of this Agreement, a specific clause of the Agreement is determined to be illegal or in violation of any Federal or State law, the remainder of the Agreement shall not be affected by such a ruling and shall remain in full force and effect.

15. The parties have entered into this Agreement freely and voluntarily with a full understanding of their rights and the contents of this Agreement. The parties acknowledge that they had the opportunity to consult with legal counsel or a representative of their choice and that they reviewed the Agreement in detail with their counsel or representative and fully understand its requirements and limitations. The parties acknowledge that they are represented by competent counsel and that they are fully satisfied with the legal representation provided by their respective counsel.

16. This Agreement shall remain confidential to the maximum extent permitted by law.

17. This Agreement may not be altered, amended or modified except by writing, signed and duly authorized by all parties.

18. This Agreement shall be incorporated as a proposed settlement agreement for review by the Office of Administrative Law and Commissioner of Education and if approved, resolves any and all claims that were raised or could have been raised in the captioned matter. If it is not approved by the Office of Administrative Law or Commissioner of Education, it is without prejudice to the parties' claims and/or defenses.

19. This Agreement is subject to ratification by the Board.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner sought reimbursement for P.B.'s senior year tuition at an out-of-district high school after unilaterally withdrawing her son from the Board's high school just prior to the beginning of the school year in September 2009. Petitioner alleged that the District had failed to address persistent intimidation, harassment and bullying of P.B. during his junior year. The specific allegations involved isolated incidents, one in P.B.'s sophomore year and three in April 2009 – the latter incidents all involving one other boy. The Board filed a motion for summary decision, which was denied. A hearing in the matter was held in June 2011, by which time P.B. had graduated from high school and attained majority. P.B. did not testify at the hearing.

The ALJ found that: pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:37-13, a board of education has an obligation to provide a safe environment in which a child can learn, and if it cannot provide this environment on its own school grounds, it has a responsibility to educate the student elsewhere; a district also has the responsibility to develop a plan to stop bullying in its schools; although most of the alleged incidents occurred off school property and protections for such incidents were not added to the legislation until November 15, 2010, respondent Board failed to adequately address petitioner's complaints of bullying and did not develop a written plan to stop the harassment until after J.K. removed her son from respondent's high school in September 2009; the plan developed to address J.K.'s concerns did not offer a solution to end the harassment, but rather shifted responsibility to P.B. for keeping himself safe; and the respondent Board's refusal to allow a transfer of P.B. to another school, together with the failure to devise a substantial plan to end the bullying, drove J.K. to remove her son from an unsafe environment. Accordingly, the ALJ concluded that: the actions of the Board to investigate and intervene in this matter were insufficient; the decision of J.K. to unilaterally place P.B. at an out-of-district school was appropriate; and the petitioner should be granted tuition reimbursement. The ALJ ordered that the Board reimburse J.K. – upon presentation of evidence – for the amount of tuition paid on behalf of P.B. for the 2009-2010 school year.

Upon comprehensive review of the record, the Commissioner rejected the Initial Decision, finding that the petitioner failed to sustain her burden to prove that: the alleged bullying actually took place; timely notice of the alleged harassing conduct was provided to the district; the board failed to take actions reasonably calculated to end the conduct; petitioner had exhausted all available administrative remedies with the district and had no alternative but to remove the student from the school environment; and that she in fact did so and enrolled him elsewhere at a specific cost to her. The petition was dismissed.

RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed.¹ The Board requested and was granted, over petitioner's objection, an extension of time within which to file exceptions to the Initial Decision. These exceptions were filed in accordance with the extended timelines pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4. The petitioner did not file a reply to the Board's exceptions.

In its exceptions, the Board first argues that the Commissioner is without jurisdiction to grant the monetary damages that the petitioner seeks since neither the prior nor current law provides a remedy for reimbursement of tuition in this forum. Title N.J.S.A. 18A:37-18 (L.2002, c.83 §6), the applicable law extant at the time of the controversy, does not include the award of damages before the Commissioner; however, it does not limit recourse in this regard to other redress. Indeed, the statute directs an aggrieved person to pursue remedies under other available laws. Similarly, the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination (NJLAD) and the Anti-Bullying Act, effective 2010, specifically do not create or alter any tort liability or afford compensation for these damages before the Commissioner. The Division on Civil Rights and Superior Court are the appropriate forums in which to seek monetary relief under these laws or tort theory. Since the Legislature did not explicitly grant him power, the Board argues, the Commissioner is without the authority to award monetary damages. (Board's Exceptions at 8)

The Board next contends that the ALJ should not have relied on the holding in L.W. v. Toms River Reg'l Schs. Bd. of Educ., 189 N.J. 381 (2007) because it is wholly distinguishable from the facts of this matter. Unlike L.W., the petitioner here did not make a claim under NJLAD nor has she alleged that any putative bullying against P.B. was the result of his being a member of a protected class or possessing a protected characteristic. Petitioner did not present any facts to support such a claim, and the ALJ did not make any such determination, the Board points out. Additionally, since jurisdiction and the award of monetary damages in matters brought under NJLAD rest with the Division on Civil Rights or Superior Court, the Commissioner is without authority to grant such relief. (Id. at 10, 11, 12)

Respondent Board also maintains that petitioner's reliance on M.P. and G.P. v. Delran Board of Education, OAL DKT. NO. EDU 3446-85 (Dec. 30, 1985) is misplaced. In M.P., the ALJ – in awarding monetary damages – determined that the Delran school and its administrators had failed in their duty to provide reasonable supervisory care, causing R.P. to be subjected to repeated and pervasive bullying, harassment, and isolation. The Delran school and its administrators did nothing. The ALJ in M.P., supra, also determined that the parents had exhausted all administrative remedies available to them, and thus had no choice but to remove the student from the Delran School District. Under the unique circumstances in M.P., the Commissioner awarded monetary damages for only a limited time until the Delran Board of Education created anti-bullying and harassment policies in preparation for R.P.'s immediate return to her regular school in Delran. (Board's Exceptions at 13, 14, 15)

Respondent asserts that in contrast to the Delran school, the Springfield school here maintained a district-wide, well-developed and fully enforced set of anti-bullying policies, which it disseminated to school administrators, staff, parents, and students alike. These policies were also set out on the District's website, and the schools complied with the policy requirements as the need arose. Before April 2009, in P.B.'s sophomore year, the school became aware of only one issue – which had to do with an invitation and attendance at a birthday party – involving P.B. and another student, M. The assistant principal met with both boys, and resolved the misunderstanding. No further conflicts occurred between the boys. In April 2009, late in P.B.'s junior year, school officials learned of the off-school grounds allegations of bullying or vandalism of P.B. and his property. Even though – under the law then in effect – the school was not required to take action on conduct occurring off school property, it did so anyway. Upon this notice, appropriate school personnel investigated the complaints, met with the aggressor, R.G., and his parents, and provided an “open door” to no less than five administrative individuals for P.B. to speak with and receive help from if he became upset or harassed. (Id. at 17)

Moreover, respondent argues that the officials were proactive in protecting P.B. by developing plans to ensure that nothing untoward occurred at the prom or after he injured his hand or in preparation for his to return to school in senior year. No other incidents of bullying were ever brought to the Board's attention, before that time or thereafter. Furthermore, the Board also asserts that J.K. did not avail herself of the administrative remedies the school offered when she refused to allow P.B. to take part in a supervised meeting with the student he claimed was harassing him or when she refused to at least consider a transfer to the school the superintendent suggested or when she failed to attend a scheduled meeting at the start of his senior year to discuss the plan to safeguard P.B. Instead, the Board charges that J.K. summarily and unilaterally enrolled P.B. into a “higher ranked” school of her choosing for P.B.'s senior year. It insists that school officials and personnel in Springfield did all that it could do once they became aware of the incidents, and satisfied the very requirements that the Delran school was deemed to lack. (Id. at 18)

In further challenging the Initial Decision, the Board asserts that the ALJ erred by employing two specious conclusions in her ruling. First, it claims that the ALJ relieved J.K. from her burden of proof here by concluding – without support of law – that petitioner did not have to prove that the bullying occurred at all; instead, she only had to prove that the Board – once advised of the bullying – failed in its responsibility to provide a “safe and civil environment for her son.” The Board objects to this conclusion because without proof of harm, there is no reason to question the Board’s concomitant duty to act. Second, the ALJ determined that the evidence of bullying sufficient to displace a student is determined by subjective standards. The Board argues this flawed conclusion is inconsistent with prior and current anti-bullying provisions of Title 18A and with the NJ Supreme Court’s guidance in L.W., supra. (Id. at 20)

The Board posits that the Court in L.W. provides an objective, “reasonable person” standard by which to judge a reasonable student’s reaction to a perceived harm, and a reasonable board’s response to known or anticipated incidents of harassment. The Court did not create a strict liability standard, requiring districts to “purge its schools of all peer harassment in order to avoid liability.” Instead that Court held “...school districts will be shielded from liability when their preventative and remedial actions are reasonable in light of the totality of the circumstances.” L.W., supra, at 407, 412. The Board contends that an objective finding of bullying is necessary to make that assessment. (Id. at 21- 22)

The Board next argues that J.K., on behalf of P.B., failed to sustain her burden of proving by a preponderance of the credible evidence that her son endured the alleged harassment, intimidation and bullying. The Board charges that in advancing her claim here, only J.K. and her husband, D.K. – who had no firsthand knowledge – testified. Not one other witness for the petitioner – not an expert, not the therapist, not a police officer, not a student, not a teacher, not a coach, and – most conspicuous by his absence – not P.B. himself. On cross-examination, it avers that when asked where his step-son was on that day, D.K. replied, “P. had other personal commitments today that would not allow him to be here.” (T1 at 112) The Board asserts that without a witness possessing first-hand knowledge of what actually happened, the record is bereft of any competent evidence. It points out that while N.J.A.C. 1:1-15.5 allows a modicum of hearsay, there must be some legally competent evidence to support each ultimate finding of fact. As such, it charges the record here does not support the ALJ’s findings. Moreover, the Board observes that J.K. and D.K. were able to testify only about their own impressions, about second- and third-hand conversations regarding what happened to and about P.B. or what they heard about what happened to him from P.B. himself or others. (Id. at 22, 31)

On the other hand, the Board stresses that the officials at the school testified to the facts they actually witnessed first-hand, which the petitioner and her husband were unable to provide. Of significance, the Board’s witnesses testified that P.B. was a good student and a member of the school’s ice hockey and football teams. They testified that they had no knowledge of any conflict between P.B. and R.G., the only alleged bully, until the students’ return from Spring break. Over the school recess, two incidents occurred off school property on or about April 8, 2009. Both episodes were reported to the police. When the assistant principal learned of these acts, he called in both boys, discussed the school’s position on bullying and warned them not to allow their dislike for each other to spill onto school grounds. No other reported incidents took place in or out of school until April 29th when, after an alleged “look” from R.G., P.B. injured the flat of his hand as he opened a door, shattering the glass pane instead of pushing the wooden frame. A review of the surveillance tape and a thorough investigation revealed nothing untoward. The Board’s unrebutted, competent evidence indicates that it was just an accident; P.B. said that he “didn’t mean to do that.”

(Davino T1 at 218) He “admitted that no one said anything to him or physically threatened him.”
(Board’s Exceptions at 24, 25.)

Preempting any concerns, the Board asserts that school officials made arrangements for P.B.’s comfortable return to class. The vice principal spoke with both R.G. and his parents; R.G. said that he and P.B. were avoiding each other and going their separate ways. (T1 at 149) The school allowed P.B. to leave class early so his hand would not be re-injured. They made sure P.B.’s prom went smoothly. From that point through June, he was invited to sit and talk at any time with the assistant principal, the principal, his guidance counselor, the affirmative action officer or the school superintendent to discuss any problems he was having. There were no other reported incidents on or off school property through the end of the school year. The Board contends that the two offsite incidents and the hand injury during the month of April 2009 do not satisfy the definition of “bullying” required by N.J.S.A. 18A:37-18 (L.2002, c.83 §2), the applicable law at the time of these events. (Id. at 18)

The Board maintains that J.K. not only failed to state a claim upon which relief could be granted and failed to sustain her burden of proof by a preponderance of the credible evidence, but also failed to meet her burden of establishing her claim for reimbursement. J.K. neglected to provide the ALJ with evidence – by way of testimony, school records or an invoice – to substantiate her claim that P.B. actually attended Governor Livingston School during his senior year. The record is devoid of any proof of the cost of tuition, or that she even paid it. (Id. at 29, 35)

Finally, the Board contends that the ALJ did not consider all relevant testimony in the record and that her findings and conclusions of law are not supported by the substantial credible evidence adduced at trial. Further, it maintains, the ALJ relied on uncorroborated hearsay as well as documents not admitted into evidence at the hearing, and further ignored the Board’s multiple objections to petitioner’s hearsay testimony about facts that she herself did not witness or know firsthand. Moreover, the ALJ did not require the petitioner to corroborate her testimony of third-party conversations or her perceptions about what P.B. felt or thought. (Id. at 34)

Upon consideration and review of the entire record – including a thorough reading of the transcript of the hearing held on June 6, 2011 at the OAL – the Commissioner rejects the Initial Decision.

The Commissioner agrees with the Board that neither L.W. v. Toms River Reg'l Schools Bd. of Educ., 189 N.J. 381 (2007), nor M.P. and G.P., parents of R.P., v. Board of Education of the Township of Delran, Burlington County, 1985 S.L.D. 1817 is binding precedent in this case. Unlike L.W., this matter was not pled as a New Jersey Law Against Discrimination (NJLAD) case, and there is no competent evidence that the student is a member of a protected class under the NJLAD. M.P. is a 1985 Commissioner decision which was not appealed to the State Board or the Appellate Division, and in administrative law the concept of stare decisis, i.e., adherence to precedent, is more “subject to the basic notion that experience is a teacher and not a jailer” than in a court. In re Masiello, 25 N.J. 590, 598-599 (1958). An agency is not irrevocably committed to its own precedents². Nevertheless, the opinions in those cases provide some guidance on the elements of a cause of action for bullying and harassment. Accordingly, the Commissioner concludes that it was petitioner’s burden to prove by a preponderance of the competent and credible evidence that the alleged bullying took place, that timely notice of the harassing conduct was provided to the district, that under all of the circumstances the Board failed to take actions reasonably calculated to remediate and end the conduct, that petitioner exhausted all available administrative remedies with the district and had no alternative but to remove the student from the school environment, and that petitioner did in fact remove the student and educate him elsewhere at a specific cost to petitioner. Petitioner herein proved none of the above with the exception of notice to the Board on or about April 20, 2009 of an April 9, 2009 incident wherein the student's car was vandalized off school grounds and thereafter of a police report that the suspected vandals were following the student, tailgating his car. She also proved notice of an April 29 incident wherein the student's hand was injured when he put it through the glass part of the door after the person identified as the bully allegedly gave him a "look" in the hallway at school.

Unlike the competent evidence offered by respondent, all of petitioner's evidence concerning what her son had said about the alleged bullying is hearsay evidence, and although it is admissible in administrative proceedings, there nonetheless must be some residuum of competent evidence to support each ultimate finding of fact. N.J.A.C. 1:1-15.5. Here there is no competent evidence that any of the events alleged occurred, with the exception of the off-campus events memorialized in police reports. Although petitioner testified that she personally observed students harassing her son as he was coming out of school when she was there to pick him up and that the kids would give her the finger and tell her to "go 'f' yourself", no notice concerning that allegation was ever given to the district until the date of the hearing in this matter; petitioner testified that she had mentioned the incidents only to secretaries at the high school. Notwithstanding that the statute requiring districts to address bullying, intimidation and harassment incidents occurring off school grounds was not effective until September 2011 – long after any of the alleged conduct in the within matter – the competent evidence in this matter reveals that the district nevertheless responded promptly after receiving notice of the April 2009 off campus incidents, meeting with the parties involved and counseling against negative interactions within the school environment and school-sponsored activities. Petitioner rejected the district's offer for mediation between the two boys. She rejected their initial offer of a transfer to the choice school in Kenilworth. The fact pattern in the within matter is nothing like the fact pattern in M.P., supra. The Commissioner concludes that respondent's attempts at remediation and prevention were reasonable in light of the totality of the circumstances herein. Even if petitioner had established the other elements of a cause of action, she offered neither one word of testimony nor any documentary evidence concerning payment of tuition or the cost of attendance at Governor Livingston High School. Decisions must be based upon facts in evidence, not speculation, conjecture or surmise.

Accordingly, the Commissioner rejects the recommended Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law and the instant Petition of Appeal is hereby dismissed.

J.K. ON BEHALF OF MINOR CHILD P.B.,

Petitioner,

v.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF SPRINGFIELD, UNION COUNTY,

Respondent.

J.K., petitioner, pro se

Kerri A. Wright, Esq., for respondent (Porzio, Bromberg & Newman, attorneys)

Record Closed: August 30, 2011

Decided: October 13, 2011

BEFORE LESLIE Z. CELENTANO, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner J.K. requests reimbursement for tuition for her son, P.B.'s, senior year of high school at Governor Livingston High School in Berkeley Heights. J.K. unilaterally withdrew her son from Jonathan Dayton High School after what she claimed were bullying events. She asserts that under N.J.S.A. 18A:37-13, her son was entitled to a safe and civil environment, in which the school would educate him, without disruption. She alleges that the administration of Jonathan Dayton failed to provide a safe haven for her son, leaving her no alternative but to remove him, when the school refused to develop an effective plan to end the intimidation and bullying or, in the alternative, to transfer him. On March 30, 2011, an Order was entered denying the respondent's motion for summary decision. The hearing was held on June 6, 2011, and, following the receipt of post-hearing submissions, the record was closed.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

P.B. was a student at Jonathan Dayton High School in Springfield, New Jersey. He maintained good grades, and was active in the sports program. He was a member of both the ice hockey and football teams.

The petitioner alleges that throughout his high school career, P.B. was repeatedly taunted and harassed by other students, who called him "gay" and "fag." He confided in his mother, but was reluctant to report these episodes to the school because he feared retaliation. This verbal abuse escalated until, in April 2009, P.B.'s car was vandalized while parked on his mother's property during spring break. The police were contacted, and through an investigation it was determined that two of P.B.'s schoolmates, R.G. and S.B., were involved in the vandalism.

On April 20, 2009, the petitioner contacted the school to advise school personnel of the latest events and to let them know that there was ongoing bullying and harassment by these students, which culminated in the damage to P.B.'s car during spring break. That Friday, after school hours, P.B. was driving in the town of Westfield when he noticed he was being followed by the same individuals who vandalized his car, and who habitually harassed and bullied him. He drove to the Westfield Police Station and filed a report, because he was frightened for his safety.

When P.B. returned to school after spring break in 2009, some sort of altercation occurred between P.B. and his harassers. This resulted in P.B. driving his fist through a wired glass window light in a door. He sustained some wounds on his hand that required medical attention.

There is some discrepancy in the stories of the parties concerning the efforts of school personnel to address the issues brought before them by the petitioner. In an e-mail exchange between the petitioner and Springfield Board of Education member Jeff Strumpf near the end of June 2009, the petitioner claimed to have contacted the school repeatedly and not received any calls back. Mr. Strumpf forwarded the e-mails to Mr. Davino, Springfield superintendent, who stated: "This letter is a complete and total misrepresentation of the truth." (Certification of Michael S. Williams, Esq., Ex. A.) Mr. Davino complained to Mr. Strumpf that the petitioner called the office of the Commissioner of Education, who in turn called the County superintendent's office. In his e-mail to Mr. Strumpf, Mr. Davino stated, concerning his response to the County superintendent: "I also advised her as a result of this parent's misrepresentations and all my prior efforts which she totally ignored, I will not be contacting the parent." (Ibid.; emphasis added.)

School personnel deny any reports of bullying involving P.B. and R.G. prior to the notification that P.B.'s car was vandalized. Norman Francis, the assistant principal, met with both P.B. and R.G. and notified P.B.'s guidance counselor. The school staff was contacted by a Springfield detective, who advised that he was investigating complaints leveled by the petitioner regarding incidents that occurred off school grounds and when school was closed.

After learning of the police involvement, Mr. Francis again met with P.B. and R.G., and also arranged a meeting with R.G. and his mother. He then referred the matter to the school district's affirmative action officer, and asked for the assistance of the school's student assistance counselor, Maria Sista, and P.B.'s guidance counselor, Lillian Abadir.

Petitioner was concerned that the prom might present an opportunity for an altercation between the alleged bullies and P.B., and she notified the school of her concern. Mr. Francis asked Mrs. Sista to handle the matter. She attempted to set up mediation between P.B. and R.G., but the petitioner refused to allow her son to attend. Ultimately, Mrs. Sista did meet with the two boys separately. While no overt incidents occurred at the prom, P.B. related that R.G. made disparaging remarks about P.B.'s date, but not directly to P.B.

At some point during August 2009, the petitioner met with Mr. Davino; Ellyn Atherton, the District's director of Human Resources and Professional Development and affirmative action officer; and Dr. Carmen Centuolo, the Union County superintendent of schools. At that meeting, the subject of an alternate placement for P.B. was discussed. The officials from the school suggested that they could place P.B. at David Brearley High School, because it is the Union County "choice school."¹ However, Mr. Davino insisted that P.B. did not need to be transferred, that Springfield had taken all appropriate steps to address the issues, and that P.B. was not in danger. (Certification of Michael S. Williams, Ex. A, Respondent's Answers to Interrogatories #15.) The petitioner objected to the proposal of the choice school because Brearley and Dayton shared a sports program, and P.B. would have to fraternize with the same individuals who targeted him at Dayton.

SUMMARY OF THE TESTIMONY

The following summarizes the testimony or evidence admitted in this matter, relevant to the issues to be decided.

¹ The School Choice Program was a pilot program in which students could attend an alternate, designated school outside their district of residence at no cost to the parents or the home school district. School Choices <<http://www.state.nj.us/education/parents/choice.htm>>. However, it appears that the School Choice Program is only designed to accept students up to the tenth grade, and P.B. was looking for acceptance into the twelfth grade. This was therefore not a viable alternative. N.J.A.C. 6A:12-2.2, eligibility criteria for students, provides:

- (a) To be eligible to participate in the program, a student shall be enrolled at the time of application in grades K through nine in a public school of the sending district and have attended school in the sending district for at least one full year immediately preceding enrollment in a choice district.

[Emphasis added.]

Additionally, in a September 1, 2009, letter to J.K. in which Director Duncan liberally construed the pro se pleading J.K. filed, in a footnote she stated, "We recognize that Jonathan Dayton is Springfield's only high school, existing charter schools in Union County are K-8 schools, and the county's 'choice' school, David Brearley High School, does not presently have open seats in the appropriate grade. We are uncertain as to whether viable options may exist in neighboring counties."

J.K.

J.K. is P.B.'s mother and the petitioner in this case. She appeared pro se. She testified that her son had endured several school years, beginning in 2006, in which he was taunted by other students, particularly in regard to what those students perceived to be P.B.'s sexual, or affectional, preferences. In his junior year, the insults and the bullying escalated to such a degree that it was commonplace for her son to hide in the bathroom, call her, and plead with her to get him out of there. He avoided the lunchroom and would eat in the library. She was aware of which children were responsible for the bullying because there were occasions when she would pick her son up from school, and those students would ridicule and insult her with gestures, laughter, and words.

In April of P.B.'s junior year, the incidents culminated in the vandalism of his car. J.K.'s youngest daughter, age seven or eight at the time, looked out the window and saw that there was writing all over P.B.'s car. J.K. described this vandalism as "filthy, filthy drawings and expletives" referring to body parts and linked with P.B.'s name and the name of the girl he had been dating. The police were called and a report filed.

Subsequent to this incident, P.B. was driving in the town of Westfield and realized he was being followed by the suspected vandals. He was afraid that they were going to cause an accident, because they were following so closely behind him. He drove directly to the Westfield Police Department and filed a report.

When P.B. returned to school after the Easter break, the antagonism carried into school with remarks such as, "What did you call the police for, you fag" and threats such as, "You're going to have problems, asshole." She testified that the manner in which these things were communicated was very surreptitious, and out of sight and earshot of any adults. Once again, P.B. called his mother from the bathroom, asking her to pick him up because he couldn't take it anymore.

For about a week thereafter, J.K. left messages for Mr. Davino, stating that there was a problem, her son was hiding in the bathroom and eating in the library to avoid his harassers. Her calls were not returned. During this time, the harassment continued, ultimately culminating with P.B. rushing into a stairwell and pushing his flat, open hand through a wired door window. The broken glass injured his hand so severely that P.B. required hand surgery that night.

Following this incident, J.K. received a call from Mr. Francis, the assistant principal, who told her that there had been an accident, and they couldn't stop P.B.'s bleeding. J.K. rushed to the school, and when she saw the principal, the assistant principal and the superintendent standing in the hallway, she burst out verbally, accusing that this was their fault, because she had been trying to tell them for seven days that something was going to happen, and now her son was hurt.

J.K. testified that when P.B. was ready to return to school after the hand surgery, she called the school to ask what she needed to do, and was told by the secretary, "drop him off," a non-answer, at best. At that point, J.K. was concerned for her son's safety, so when the time came, she accompanied her son into the school building and went directly to the nurse's office. J.K. wanted to tell the nurse that P.B. needed to take medication and needed to take breaks. The nurse brought in the guidance counselor, who stated that she was unaware that there had been an incident. Some accommodations were made for the injury, insofar as arranging for P.B. to report to and leave early from his classes, so that the injured arm did not get jostled in the hallways.

J.K. testified that no written plan was prepared to address the bullying, or to protect P.B. from those who had been bullying him. P.B. attended school that day, and told his mother that the bullying had escalated and there was one primary student, R.G., who was tormenting him. The following day, P.B. would not go to school, and J.K. went to sit in the office and wait until someone had time to speak to her. Finally, after demanding a meeting with Mr. Francis, she met with Ms. Atherton. She went home and brought P.B. back with her. P.B. was told, "If someone is picking on you, duck into a classroom, tell the teacher, or go to your guidance counselor." J.K. thought this was "the usual that you would expect a child to do."

P.B. returned to school, but was not reassured that the bullying wouldn't continue, and was nervous every day. He felt as though no one "had his back," and he felt as though the administration did not believe him. J.K. asked Mr. Francis to call R.G.'s parents in so she could speak to them, but that did not happen.

J.K. testified that her son still attends therapy, and at one point the therapist actually spoke to Mr. Davino about this ongoing situation.²

J.K. testified that after the incidents "erupted" in April, when approached by the student assistant counselor (SAC) she did not give permission for P.B. to participate in mediation with both boys present. The SAC then met with both boys separately, and without P.B.'s mother's permission.

As J.K. was completely dissatisfied with the response from the school, she contacted the Union County superintendent's office. The superintendent then personally chaired a meeting among J.K., Mr. Davino and others. At that meeting, Mr. Davino suggested that whether or not he believed P.B. had been bullied, he would be willing to consider a transfer to the choice school for Union County, David Brearley, in Kenilworth. J.K. testified that she dismissed the suggestion out of hand because her son was active in sports, the two schools collaborated on some of their sports programs, and this was therefore not a viable solution.

On cross-examination, J.K. admitted that the only bullying incidents that were contemplated by her answers to interrogatories were those of April 2009 (the car vandalism, the tailgating, and the injury to her son's hand), although she maintained that the bullying had been going on for years, by a group of students. To her knowledge, subsequent to the vandalism to the car, and filing a police report, there may have been some ramifications resulting in community service for one of her son's tormentors. She testified that she learned this "way after the fact" from the mother of the girl whose name was written on her son's car by the vandals.

J.K. testified that when she was called to the school after her son put his hand through the glass, she accused the members of the staff and administration of being at fault for this injury because she had warned them that he was at his breaking point. She has no knowledge as to whether the students named in the answers to interrogatories, except for R.G. and his girlfriend, were the same students who participated in the vandalism, and were present in the hallway the day P.B. put his hand through the door window in the stairwell. The other students were not on the hockey or football teams. She testified that she complained about them previously because they harassed her son while he was coming out of school, when she was there to pick him up, and they cursed and gestured toward her as well. She complained to the secretaries in the school office over the course of three years, and she had a discussion about them with the school principal, Mrs. Cresci.

J.K. testified that she contacted several schools regarding enrollment for P.B.'s senior year. The school that got back to her first was Governor Livingston in Berkeley Heights. Some schools had waiting lists. Summit had a six-month waiting list. If New Providence High School had gotten back to her first, she would have been happy for P.B. to go there. She based her selection of the schools to contact on the most convenient commute. The State educational rankings for Governor Livingston and New Providence were also higher than the ranking of David Brearley, and, notwithstanding that Brearley was not an appropriate option, if she were going to make a move she didn't want P.B. to go to a school with a lower ranking than Jonathan Dayton.

J.K. testified on cross-examination that her son began to see a therapist in 2008 for two reasons, the difficulty he was having with his father and because of the bullying he was enduring at school. She admitted that in a letter to the superintendent of schools in Berkeley Heights she wrote, "Throughout [P.B.'s] junior year ordeal, he has remained impressively optimistic and positive and is very motivated to undergo a productive senior year."

Norman Francis

Norman Francis is currently employed by the Parsippany Troy Hills school district as a principal. Previously, he was an assistant principal at Jonathan Dayton High School in Springfield. Discipline was his primary role, and any incident of bullying was investigated by him. An investigation consisted of receiving a report; speaking to the students involved; bringing in the guidance counselors, other teachers, and the school psychologist if necessary; notifying the parents; and then making a decision about discipline. If the events occurred outside of school, and involved one of the students, Mr. Francis would be in contact with the youth officer for Springfield, Det. Matt Lynch.

Mr. Francis identified the Springfield Schools' Policy on Harassment, Intimidation, and Bullying. He stated that each student gets a copy of the policy, and it is also available on the District website.

Mr. Francis testified that P.B. had a clean disciplinary record. He was involved in one incident in P.B.'s sophomore year in which P.B. had an issue with a particular boy, "M." Mr. Francis brought the two boys together, they let each other know how they were feeling, the conflict was acknowledged and dealt with, and they moved on. He was unaware that P.B. had any other ongoing conflicts with other students. He spoke to J.K. on several occasions and she never brought up other conflicts her son was experiencing during his sophomore year.

The next incident of which Mr. Francis was aware was the incident with R.G. during the spring of P.B.'s junior year. He was told by Detective Lynch that there was an incident of a car that was vandalized, and the incident of following that took place in Westfield. Prior to hearing from Detective Lynch, J.K. called him and gave him a heads up that this had happened and that she was concerned, and she asked him to keep an eye on things.

After learning of the incidents, Mr. Francis spoke to both the boys and reiterated that if the tension were building they needed to let him know. Neither of the boys told

Mr. Francis that there was an ongoing conflict between them. It was not presented to him by P.B. as "I am being bullied" or "I am being harassed." After he spoke to the boys, he spoke to both sets of parents.

On April 29, P.B. presented to the school nurse with an injured hand. First aid was administered and the EMTs were called. Mr. Francis called J.K.

Mr. Francis testified that he investigated the report from P.B. that R.G. gave him "a look." He determined where the incident took place and reviewed the videotape. There was nothing useful on the videotape. In fact, there was no footage of P.B. exiting the stairwell when he was injured. The girl who accompanied P.B. to the office did not witness anything and was only walking with him out of concern.

When P.B. was preparing to return to classes after his injury, Mr. Francis spoke with R.G. and with R.G.'s mother to make sure there would be no further issues. Before P.B.'s return, Mr. Francis met with P.B. separately from his mother, and Ms. Atherton also met with P.B. Mr. Francis, when questioned as to what measures would be in place to make sure there were no additional issues, testified that they needed to talk to P.B. and give him some steps to take if he felt issues "coming his way."

Mr. Francis also indicated that he spoke to J.K. regarding the junior prom and the potential for trouble, and that he suggested a "mediation," which R.G. agreed to; however, P.B. did not want to be in the same room with R.G. At the prom, Mr. Francis did not observe any interaction between the two boys. After the prom, P.B. reported that R.G. had made a comment about his date. When Mr. Francis spoke to R.G. about this, he denied making any remark at all.

From the prom until the end of the year, Mr. Francis did not receive any reports about bullying, intimidation or harassment, yet he recognized there were still concerns. He did not have an opportunity to speak with either P.B. or J.K. over the summer before P.B.'s senior year, because J.K. withdrew P.B. from school. A letter was sent to J.K. referencing an "action plan" developed in late August by Mr. Francis, the building principal and P.B.'s guidance counselor. (R-11.) According to Mr. Francis, the plan was developed to provide P.B. with specific things he could do if he were faced with any bullying, intimidation or harassment. The letter was mailed to J.K. on September 1, the same day P.B. was withdrawn from school. The plan, however, was not provided to J.K. until discovery began in this matter.

Ellyn Atherton

Ellyn Atherton has been employed by the Springfield Board of Education since 2004. She is the director of Human Resources and Professional Development. She is also the affirmative action officer for the District. As the affirmative action officer she is responsible for all the staff training required by the State, especially the harassment, intimidation and bullying policy. She is also responsible for making staff, parents and students aware of the policy. It is distributed to the students in their handbooks, and available on the District website. It is also posted in all the school buildings.

Ms. Atherton was asked by Mr. Francis to participate in the conversation with J.K. that took place before P.B. returned to school following his hand injury. She acts as a resource to parents and students when bullying has been reported. She was present when J.K. went home and returned to the meeting along with P.B. Ms. Atherton assured J.K. and P.B. that P.B. would be "perfectly safe" at Jonathan Dayton for the remainder of the school year. P.B. was very quiet, so Ms. Atherton could not get a feel for what his mental state was. She thought J.K. felt better about the situation because she was reassured that there were people P.B. could go to if issues arose.

The next time Ms. Atherton had any involvement was when she was asked by Mr. Davino to sit in on a conversation with him, J.K., P.B. and the Union County superintendent, Dr. Centuolo. That meeting took place in late August before P.B.'s senior year. At the meeting, P.B. mentioned R.G. when asked who was bullying him.

At that discussion, J.K. brought up a transfer to Governor Livingston. Mr. Davino countered with the suggestion of the choice school, David Brearley. J.K. objected, stating that P.B. would not be attending Brearley with "those students." Ms. Atherton understood her to mean that the sports teams of Brearley and Dayton had too many kids who knew one another.

She was not aware that the development of a plan was contingent upon whether or not P.B. came back to Dayton in September. Nor was she aware that Mr. Davino called J.K. to tell her that he was retaining P.B. as a student in late August. She was not aware of the date of September 1 as the date the letter was sent to J.K. regarding the development of an action plan to assist P.B. with peer conflicts. The meeting was set for September 8.

Michael Davino

Michael Davino has been the superintendent of schools for the Springfield Board of Education since 2004. As superintendent, he does not ordinarily mete out student discipline, until it reaches a very serious level, requiring expulsion, or situations of that nature. In terms of bullying, intimidation or harassment, he recognizes that there is a statutory requirement that schools provide a safe environment for students in which to attend school, and provide that regardless of "race, religion, sexual position or desire, gender or any other significant type or manner in which a student may or may not be singled out that those kinds of situations do not arise, do not impede the student's ability to have an appropriate and free public education and opportunity to explore and expand themselves to their greatest capacity, regardless of any of those factors." (Tr. at 202.)

Mr. Davino first came to know P.B. during his sophomore year when J.K. had some discussions with him regarding some academic concerns she had about P.B.'s difficulties. He recalled two specific times that P.B. made appointments to speak with him. He never had a conversation with P.B. in which P.B. related that other students were bothering him. The only student Mr. Davino was aware of as being the "protagonist" was R.G., and while he was aware that there was a girl involved in the described incidents, he was unsure exactly which girl that was. The first time he heard of R.G.'s involvement was when P.B. was injured and sitting in the office. Mr. Davino was notified by the staff of the injury and asked what had happened. P.B. stated that R.G. had looked at him. When Mr. Davino asked what he meant by that, P.B. replied "Well, you know, I walked by and he gave me a look." Davino stated that P.B. was "not the type of kid to punch glass," and so was concerned, as it "didn't make sense."

Mr. Davino described the steps taken to investigate this incident. He stated that during an investigation they always review the videotape, and interview students who were passing by, separately so that the students do not have an opportunity to coordinate stories, to determine who the initiator was and whether there was a face-to-face confrontation, and to try to get the students to tell the administration what they saw and heard. He also testified: "Kids are smart. They know where the cameras are. So they may try to take themselves out of camera range, but because the cameras cover a large range, you can see the reaction of other students, how they respond to moments or situations and given time frames. . . . You may not know what is taking place off to the side, but you know something happened in that corner, because we could see student reaction." (Tr. at 220.)

Mr. Davino testified that the meeting with the County superintendent took place because J.K. wrote to the County superintendent regarding issues surrounding P.B.'s placement for his senior year. The meeting took place at Mr. Davino's office. He claimed not to have been aware that J.K. was requesting a transfer for P.B. prior to the time of the meeting. At the meeting, Mr. Davino brought up David Brearley High School in the context of a transfer, which he was opposed to, but was willing to consider in light of J.K.'s concern for the well-being of her son. He suggested Brearley because it was the choice school, because the schools in Kenilworth accept students from all of Union County, and because he didn't "want to shine a light" on P.B. transferring into the school in his senior year. He also felt the co-op nature of the sports teams would work as an advantage to P.B. But, upon further consideration, Mr. Davino thought it was in P.B.'s best interest to remain at Jonathan Dayton. He agreed to confer with P.B.'s counselor and therapist and make a determination and convey it to the County superintendent and J.K. It was his opinion that they would be able to provide P.B. with a "safe, appropriate and viable" education during his senior year.

On cross-examination, Mr. Davino, when asked about the incident that led to P.B.'s injury, admitted that he did not think that P.B.'s personality was such that he would purposely strike out in anger and put his hand through the glass of the door. P.B. perceived that the other student "made a face at him"; whether the other student actually did anything or not was irrelevant, because that was the way P.B. perceived it. However, Mr. Davino was surprised that, based upon information he received from P.B.'s coaches, he didn't have "a football team and a hockey team beating the hell out of a kid in the hallway," and that "if it was that level of bullying" the teams would have had some serious involvement. He agreed it could be an anomaly, but agreed that the lack of team backup went into his decision to not recommend a transfer.

Mr. Davino believes that P.B. could have been safe at Jonathan Dayton in his senior year. It is his opinion that in any school, even out of Union County or in a parochial school, the same situation would have evolved because with technology and Facebook, there is no way to escape those who were presumably bullying P.B.

Mr. Davino denied that cost had any bearing on his decision not to agree to the transfer to Governor Livingston, and stated that the only issue to him was the best interests of P.B.

ANALYSIS AND DISCUSSION

The legislative intent, as plainly stated in N.J.S.A. 18A:37-13, is that a school needs to be a "safe and civil environment" in which children can learn. A broad reading of this can reasonably be interpreted to mean that the school has an obligation to provide that environment. If it cannot provide safety and civility for a child on its own school grounds, that does not obviate it from its responsibility to educate the student in a safe and civil environment.

When faced with allegations of bullying, intimidation or harassment, schools have the ponderous responsibility to provide a safe and civil learning environment, to stand in the shoes of the parents, and to protect children while in the custody and care of the schools. Most importantly, the school has a responsibility to develop a plan to stop the bullying.

I FIND that P.B.'s and his mother's complaints of bullying, supplemented by police reports, were met by the District's woefully inadequate response. Although the most serious acts of menacing and vandalism occurred off school property, those acts were substantiated by police reports from Springfield and Westfield. These acts occurred in April of P.B.'s junior year. No plan was developed for the remainder of the school year, and when J.K. expressed some apprehension about the possible volatility of the prom, she was placated with assurances that there would be teachers and security there. While there were no overt acts at the prom, there was no preemptive plan in place, either.

The plan was not even reduced to writing until after J.K. had removed her son from the rolls at Jonathan Dayton. She claims never to have seen it until this case commenced. The plan, such as it was, shifted most of the responsibility to P.B. for keeping himself safe, suggesting that he employ avoidance techniques (which he most likely was already doing) and that he report to his guidance counselor, which he was already doing; offered the services of the student assistance counselor or the school psychologist, at P.B.'s initiation; changed P.B.'s schedule so as not to put the boys in the same class (recognizing that at least one student was positively identified as the firebrand for these incidents); and imposed a reporting responsibility on him for every time the bullying happened, even in face of the likely retaliation, which he had already experienced, and the escalation that he feared most. I FIND that what the plan did not do was offer a solution to end the harassment and bullying.

The Current State of the Anti-Bullying Law

In 2002, New Jersey introduced the nation's most comprehensive anti-bullying legislation. In 2007 it was amended to include cyber-bullying, and in 2008 it was again amended to include a requirement that each school district post the school's policy to its website, as well as distribute the policy to all the families of students enrolled in the district. N.J.S.A. 18A:37-13.1.

The legislation was updated on November 15, 2010, P.L. 2010, c. 122, and extends the protections for incidents that occur off school grounds. Were the vandalism of P.B.'s car and the intentional tailgating incident in Westfield to have occurred in the 2011–2012 school year, perhaps the school's response would have been very different than it was, which was to effectively ignore those incidents, even in the face of police involvement. The legislative intent of P.L. 2010, c. 122, was to strengthen the standards for preventing, reporting, investigating and responding to incidents of bullying, and reduce the risk of suicide among students.³

Decisional Law

Bullying, and a school's overarching responsibility to end the harassment, while not a new problem, is a developing area of law. Reported decisions that address the issue of reimbursement for parental placement in a new school district to remove the child from his tormentors are scant. In M.P. and T.P. v. Delran Board of Education, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 3446-85 (December 18, 1985), a middle-school girl, R.P., was persistently harassed, on and off school property, by a specific group of students. The school was aware of the problems from the outset. After a particularly disturbing incident following a school-sponsored sporting event, R.P. refused to return to school and her parents decided to keep her out of school until the board of education resolved the matter. The board proposed rescheduling R.P.'s classes so that she could return to school. No discipline was meted out to the offending students. R.P.'s mother was denied any opportunity to meet with the parents of the children who were bullying her daughter. R.P.'s parents were unconvinced that what the board proposed would ameliorate the situation, and so, unilaterally, they removed R.P., and she began attending the Cinnaminson school district. Because the administrative law judge (ALJ) found that the board failed in its supervisory duty to R.P., he found authority for the board to pay the out-of-district tuition owed to Cinnaminson by analogizing the situation to special education cases, and noting the fact-sensitive circumstances where such a remedy would apply.

³ Because the stated intent is to "strengthen the standards and procedures for preventing, reporting, investigating, and responding to incidents of harassment, intimidation, and bullying of students that occur in school and off school premises," Anti-Bullying Bill of Rights Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:37-13.1(f), this may be considered curative or ameliorative legislation, and may meet the standards proscribed in the "Time of Decision Rule." The legislation takes effect at the beginning of the 2011–2012 school year. This case was pending at the time of the passage of this legislation, and the statute contains this language: "The Commissioner of Education may take such anticipatory administrative action in advance thereof as shall be necessary for the implementation of this act."

The respondent attempts to distinguish Delran by claiming that here, the bullying did not take place on school grounds, and if bullying on school grounds existed, it was minor or unreported. But Delran also offers support for the position that the school must bear some responsibility for students' safety off school grounds. It is ludicrous to think that bullying is limited to off-campus events when these students see each other daily at school. This dovetails with the language in P.L. 2010, c. 122, which, in acknowledging that bullying and harassment can no longer be confined by the metes and bounds of school property, school functions, or school buses, added the essential element of "on or off school premises."

The central issue in Delran was the ineffective response of the school, once there was notice of this activity taking place. Here, there is documentation that at least by April 2009 there was an alleged pattern of harassing behavior, and yet, despite police involvement, which was indicative of the seriousness of those acts, the school seems to minimize the conflict, adopting an out-of-date "boys will be boys" attitude, bolstered by the detective's purported statement that the incidents were relatively minor, and typical of boys of their age and level of maturity. Yet, the Board seems to give little weight to the written statement of Patricia Delgado, LCSW, with whom P.B. had been in therapy since the summer before his junior year. Mr. Davino testified that at the meeting with the County superintendent, he agreed to confer with P.B.'s therapist, yet no testimony was elicited describing the content of that conversation, or if it ever took place at all.

In the Delran case, the ALJ crafted a remedy, and looked to special education law to find analogous authority for such relief. However, he specifically stated:

Here special education regulations obviously do not govern. However, in like fashion, the Commissioner should exercise his constitutionally and statutorily based powers . . . to carve out an exceptional remedy. He should require reimbursement for past expenses in the Cinnaminson school district, because of the board's failure to provide R.P. with a thorough and efficient education.

[Delran, supra, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 3446-85.]

In the context of a civil rights case, there is mention of parents unilaterally removing a child from a school district because of bullying, and the financial responsibility to pay the bullied student's tuition fell to the home district. While there may not be an explicit private right of action to seek relief under the statute, there is some precedent for shifting the financial onus off the parents and putting it on the school that cannot meet the student's basic need for safety and security of property and person. In L.W. v. Toms River Board of Education, 189 N.J. 381 (2007), the Supreme Court considered the case of a student who was harassed based upon his perceived sexual orientation, some of the same grounds as alleged here. The Supreme Court upheld the decision of the Appellate Division that under the Law Against Discrimination, there was a cause of action against a school district if the school district failed to reasonably address student-on-student affectional or sexual-orientation harassment. In a recitation of the facts, the Court stated: "Within days of entering high school, the abuse culminated with a pair of physical attacks. Ultimately, L.W.'s unease prompted him to withdraw from his local high school and enroll elsewhere, at the expense of his school district." L.W., supra, 189 N.J. at 389.

The Court went on to explain: "During the following month, his mother attempted to find alternative placement for L.W., without assistance from the District. After his mother expressed an interest in Red Bank Regional High School, the District agreed to subsidize L.W.'s attendance and transportation expenses." Id. at 396.

When L.W. was decided, the school administrators, and the Court, had had the benefit of the intervening twenty plus years since the Delran Initial Decision. Although tuition reimbursement was not an issue to be decided in the L.W. case, it is persuasive that the school district had already capitulated to such a demand from L.W.'s parents. The Director of the Division on Civil Rights, in a review of the evidence adduced at the OAL hearing, stated:

The hearing testimony supports the finding that, in an effort to ensure L.W.'s safety, Respondent suggested that L.W. remain on school grounds during lunch period and ride the school bus instead of walking. However, Assistant Schools Superintendent John Gluck testified that it was Complainant L.G., rather than Respondent, who suggested that L.W. attend the Red Bank school and subsequently suggested that he transfer to the new vocational school, and that Respondent cooperated in carrying out the transfer arrangements at L.G.'s request (Tr. 4/15/03, p. 209, 213–214, 224) .

[L.G. o/b/o L.W. v. Toms River Reg'l Schs. Bd. of Educ., CRT 8535-01, Final Decision (July 26, 2004) <<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.shtml>>.]

Despite meeting with the County superintendent, and initially mentioning transfer as a possible solution, Springfield Superintendent Davino would only entertain a transfer to David Brearley, in Union County's choice school district in Kenilworth. Brearley, however, was not an option in any event, as the choice-school statute, which requires no tuition expense to the sending school district or the parents, only covers students entering kindergarten through tenth grade. P.B. was about to enter twelfth grade. Moreover, Director Duncan confirmed that there were no appropriate grade-level seats open at Brearley (see n. 1). Superintendent Davino then recanted his offer of transfer completely, immediately after this meeting with the County superintendent.

In a special education case, H.S. and N.S. on behalf of A.S. v. Moorestown Board of Education, EDS 10210-07, Decision (March 20, 2008) <<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.shtml>>, a child who was intelligent, and had achieved well in school, became psychologically and physically injured by bullies at his school. He shut down emotionally and refused to attend school. He was on home instruction for his eighth-grade and ninth-grade school years. He was accommodated by the board of education consistent with his 504 plan, but the board argued against his classification. The petitioners' experts concluded that the bullying, to a large extent, contributed to the child's disability, which mandated that he receive services and not be returned to the Moorestown school district. The ALJ stated:

Petitioners' experts point out that it does not matter if the bullying was real or perceived by A.S. Both physicians testified that it is clear that A.S. believes the bullying occurred and that A.S. is terrified of going back to the Moorestown school. I agree with petitioners' experts in this regard and, although I make no finding of fact regarding whether the bullying occurred, there is no doubt from the evidence that A.S. believes the bullying occurred and is in fact opposed to going back to the Moorestown school.

[Moorestown, supra, EDS 10210-07, Decision (March 20, 2008) <<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.shtml>>.]

The severity of the bullying incidents, then, should be regarded subjectively, from the target's point of view. The school should not, in the face of expert evidence, make a determination as to the severity of the bullying. Here, the school was notified that P.B. was in therapy for a year at the time, and the therapist advised that the depression and anxiety were exacerbated by difficulties with his high school peers. (Certification of Michael S. Williams, Exhibit B.) Superintendent Davino in fact acknowledged as much when testifying about the injury P.B. sustained, stating:

[H]e may have seen a face made at him. I am not going to dispute that. Whatever [P.B.] perceived is what really happened to [P.B.] . . . Whether the other kid did it or not is irrelevant. [P.B.] perceived it, that's my concern and his perception led him to feel whatever he felt.

Yet in the next breath, he diminishes the validity of those feelings by stating:

What I find peculiar in this case is that a kid who was so involved with his teammates in hockey and football . . . I am surprised I didn't have a football team and a hockey team beating the hell out of a kid in the hallway, and so what it says to me is that that really wasn't what was going on, that there are many other factors playing into [P.B.'s] issues and emotionality.

[Id. at 247.]

I don't believe that the level of bullying and harassment could take place, and I didn't have an all-out war with football players and hockey players involved on a variety of levels. I just can't see it.

[Id. at 248.]

CONCLUSION AND ORDER

In the face of a touted "zero-tolerance" policy for bullying, harassment and intimidation, Superintendent Davino seems to have substituted his experience, both professional and personal, for the incidents reported to him by J.K. and by the student himself, and determined that they did not rise to the level that constituted bullying.

That is not allowable under the law in effect at the time, and certainly not allowable under the current law, which would have taken the off-school-grounds events into the evaluation of the totality of the circumstances. I FIND that the District's intractable position not to allow a transfer, and yet, failure to devise a substantial plan to end the bullying, drove P.B.'s mother to do what she undoubtedly felt she was obligated as a parent to do, and that was remove her son from an unsafe environment.

J.K.'s burden is not to prove that the bullying took place, but that in the face of the reported incidents, the school did not respond in a manner that would provide a "safe and civil environment" for her son. No plan was developed until after P.B. was enrolled in Governor Livingston, and no attempt was made to end the bullying; in fact, the coping mechanisms the plan provided for P.B. were developed with the presumption that the bullying would continue. I CONCLUDE that the actions of the Board to investigate, and measures taken to intervene in this matter, were insufficient, and CONCLUDE that the decision of J.K. to unilaterally place P.B. at the Governor Livingston School was appropriate. Based upon all of the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that petitioner should be granted tuition reimbursement.

It is hereby ORDERED that the District reimburse J.K. upon presentation of evidence of the amount of tuition paid to Governor Livingston School on behalf of P.B. for the 2009–2010 school year.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE :
 HEARING OF IRANDOKHT TOORZANI, : COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
 (A/K/A IRANDOKHT TOORZANI) : DECISION
 SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE BOROUGH : OF ELMWOOD PARK, BERGEN COUNTY. :

SYNOPSIS

The petitioning Board certified tenure charges of unbecoming conduct, insubordination and/or other just cause against respondent – a teacher of mathematics – for conducting herself inappropriately on various occasions over a protracted period of time, including, inter alia, making numerous inappropriate, insubordinate and unprofessional statements or comments to and in the presence of parents, staff, administrators; repeatedly failing to comply with administrative directives; leaving assigned duties under false pretenses; expressing that she had problems teaching classified students, claiming that they were unmotivated and unable to learn; and continuing to engage in a pattern of misconduct notwithstanding numerous admonitions, directives, and intermediary disciplinary actions. The Board sought removal of respondent from her tenured position. Petitioner, acting pro se, submitted multiple filings denying the charges, but did not answer the Board's interrogatories and failed to appear or testify at the hearing despite appropriate notice of the hearing date. The Board presented ex parte proofs at the hearing, in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.4(d)

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: the evidence presented at the ex parte hearing showed that respondent repeatedly violated the implicit standard of good behavior that is expected of a teacher; respondent's behavior evidenced a lack of respect for authority, a refusal to obey directives, and a combativeness that undermined the morale and efficiency of the district's high school; respondent repeatedly criticized the district administration and her colleagues by challenging their honesty and integrity; and her claims of mistreatment were not directed at one source, but rather at seven separate supervisors and administrators, and one union representative. The ALJ concluded that the Board has established good cause that between 2003 and 2011, respondent repeatedly conducted herself in an insubordinate manner, and has met its burden of proving that respondent repeatedly engaged in conduct unbecoming a teacher. Accordingly, the ALJ determined that such a persistent pattern of unacceptable behavior cannot be tolerated in a school setting, and ordered respondent dismissed from her tenured teaching position.

Upon independent review of the record, the Commissioner concurred with the findings of the ALJ, and adopted the Initial Decision as the final decision in this matter. Respondent was dismissed from her tenured employment, and a copy of this decision was forwarded to the State Board of Examiners for action against her certificate(s) as that body deems appropriate.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF IRANDOKHT TOORZANI,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
(A/K/A IRANDOKT TOORZANI)	:	DECISION
SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE BOROUGH	:
OF ELMWOOD PARK, BERGEN COUNTY.	:
_____	:

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. By way of a 6-page facsimile – dated January 9, 2012 and entitled “Request for Extension” – respondent requested a 13-day extension to file exceptions to the Initial Decision.¹ Respondent was granted her requested extension. Upon expiration of the 13-day extension period on January 30, 2012 – rather than submitting exceptions – respondent hand delivered a 90-page document entitled “Motion for Emergency Relief Due to Lack of Jurisdiction in Lieu of Response to Judge Strauss’ Correspondence/Order Dated January 3, 2012, Which is Void Due to Officials [sic] Misconduct, Denial of My Due Process and Fraud Upon the Court.” In that there is no provision for emergent relief after the issuance of an Initial Decision, respondent's submission is being deemed her exceptions. The Board replied to respondent's filing² and both of these submissions were fully considered by the Commissioner.

The procedural history of this matter is as follows: On June 30, 2011, the District certified 28 tenure charges against respondent to the Commissioner, alleging unbecoming conduct, insubordination and/or other just cause. Upon receipt of respondent's Motion to Dismiss in Lieu of Answer, the matter was transmitted to the OAL for hearing. On September 12, 2011, the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) conducted a pre-hearing telephone conference with the parties. During this conference the ALJ denied respondent's Motion to Dismiss the Tenure Charges,³ denied her motion that he recuse himself from the proceedings,⁴ and orally established hearing dates in this tenure matter of October 18 and 19, 2011 at 9:00 a.m.

² Respondent attempted to file a response to the Board's reply exception. As there is no provision for such a submission, it has not been reviewed here. Similarly, the Board attempted to file a reply to respondent's reply. Again, there is no provision for this submission. It likewise was not reviewed.

³ Respondent's Motion to Dismiss the Tenure Charges was primarily predicated on her argument that the tenure charges were precluded by the doctrines of res judicata and collateral estoppel because of a prior suit she brought against the Board and certain of its employees in the United States District Court for the District of New Jersey. In this suit, respondent asserted claims which included retaliation and discrimination based on disability, ethnicity, religion and national origin. It is noted, however, that this suit was never litigated on the merits of her claims, but was instead dismissed – with prejudice – by the Court because she repeatedly failed to submit to depositions as ordered by the Court. The ALJ determined that, as res judicata and collateral estoppel attach only if there is a prior judgment on the merits in another forum, these doctrines are inapplicable here. An alternative basis for respondent's motion was a claim of invalidity of the tenure charges because they are based on fabrication of the facts, false and falsified information, and false and falsified statements. The ALJ found that respondent – by her own pleading – claims that the District's charges are based on a fabrication of facts, thereby raising genuine issues of material fact which can only be resolved in a plenary hearing.

at the OAL, 33 Washington Street, 7th Floor, Newark, N.J.⁵ These oral rulings of the ALJ were memorialized in his Prehearing Order dated September 19, 2011, which further specified with respect to the scheduled hearing dates: “[n]o adjournments will be granted except in strict accordance with the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-9.6. Additionally, the timing of these hearing commencement dates are mandated by N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.1.” (ALJ’s September 19, 2011 Prehearing Order, Motion to Dismiss Order, Motion to Recuse Order, at #4.) Finally, this Order set October 14, 2011 as the date discovery in this matter must be completed.⁶ Further submissions of respondent indicate she received this Order on September 20 or 21, 2011.

On September 28, 2011 respondent filed a request for Interlocutory Review by the Commissioner of Education of that portion of the ALJ’s Prehearing Order which denied her motion for dismissal of the tenure charges.⁷ By letter decision dated October 21, 2011 the Commissioner declined to grant interlocutory review. By letter dated September 18, 2011 to Laura Sanders, Acting Director and Chief Administrative Law Judge, OAL (“Acting Director of OAL”) respondent alleged an improper relationship between the Elmwood Park Board of Education, its attorney, and the ALJ, and requested an investigation. A second document, received at the OAL on September 30, 2011, appealed ALJ Strauss’s Order denying her motion for recusal.⁸ On October 6, 2011 the Acting Director of OAL agreed to interlocutorily review ALJ Strauss's denial of respondent's motion for his recusal from her tenure matter and by decision dated October 11, 2011, she affirmed Judge Strauss's Order denying respondent's motion for recusal. Pursuant to a letter to the parties dated October 21, 2011, the Acting Director of OAL advised that after a thorough review she found no basis to conclude the existence of any type of improper relationship or conduct on the part of the Board, its attorney and the ALJ.

⁷ It is additionally noted that on October 5, 2011, respondent attempted to file a Motion to Disqualify Board Counsel with the Commissioner. She was advised – by letter dated October 7, 2011 from the Director, Office of Controversies and Disputes – that such a motion was not properly before the Commissioner but, rather, must be first made to the judge assigned to the case in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-5.3. In the event she is dissatisfied with that judge’s ruling, respondent may appeal that ruling to the Acting Director and Chief Judge of the OAL, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.10.

As scheduled, the hearing in this matter took place on October 18, 2011. On that date counsel for the District appeared with witnesses. Respondent neither appeared nor contacted the OAL with an explanation for her failure to appear. In accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.4 (dealing with the failure of a party or his or her representative to appear at a scheduled proceeding), the ALJ did not take any evidence on October 18 but, rather, held the matter for a day in order to provide respondent with an opportunity to explain her non-appearance as required by N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.4(a). No explanation for respondent's non-appearance was received. On October 19, 2011, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.4(d) – because an Initial Decision is required in tenure charge cases – the ALJ accepted ex parte proofs from the District. At this ex parte hearing the District requested the opportunity to submit a brief and proposed findings of fact, based on the October 19, 2011 hearing. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10 (d), the ALJ granted this request, received the District's brief on November 17, 2011, closed the record of this matter on that date, and issued his Initial Decision on December 28, 2011.

Turning to respondent's voluminous exception submission in this matter, such exceptions, inter alia,:

⁸ The basis for respondent's two motions before the OAL was substantially identical – that the ALJ erroneously dismissed her motion to dismiss the tenure charges, that he intimidated her during the prehearing conference, that he misstated the law and facts during the prehearing conference, and that all of this was an attempt to assist the Elmwood Park Board of Education.

- Present an extensive recitation of her version of the entire history of this matter. Throughout her papers she charges the Board, its administrators, its attorneys, and the ALJ with knowing and intentional misrepresentation of the facts and the law, fraud, false statements and deprivation of her due process rights. She further contends that “[a]ll of these fraudulent conducts and violations of laws and rules have been willfully and intentionally condoned and permitted to be continued by both the OAL and Department of Education officials involved in the instant matter while I have been constantly informing them about all these fraudulent conducts.” (Respondent’s Exceptions, quote at 86)
- Continue to maintain that the tenure charges against her are barred by the Doctrine of Res Judicata and lays out an elaborate, albeit disjointed, argument as to why this is the case and presents reasons – such as bias and incompetence – as to why her motion to dismiss in this regard was denied.
- Maintain that she explained to the ALJ and the officials at the Department of Education – on at least three occasions – the reasons she would not attend the October 18 and 19, 2011 hearings:

“For the first time during the phone conference of September 12, 2011.

After I realized Judge Strauss was misrepresenting the facts and laws during that phone conference and I noticed that he was ignoring me and was not hearing me out, I told Judge Strauss (when he was setting up an [sic] schedule for tenure hearing) that because of my emotional distress and lack of concentration which had also affected on my speech and memory, I would not be able to attend and defend myself in any type of verbal conversation and hearing but I had provided them with the evidences attached to my motion to dismiss in lieu of answer to the tenure charges as Exhibits which could be reviewed by them. Judge Strauss asked me to stop talking and he did not respond [to]my concern and he said that if I had any trouble concentrating he would be issuing a prehearing order that would reflect what was discussed in that phone conference and also setting for [sic] hearing dates, which proves that Judge Strauss even was not listening to me when I was talking about my concerns.” (Respondent’s Exceptions at 41)

“For the second time in my appeal (dated September 26, 2011) to the Commissioner of Education regarding Judge Strauss’ order denying my motion to dismiss in lieu of answer to the tenure charges and denying and [sic] my motion for his recusal. In that appeal I stated:

*I feel that I (as an unrepresented party who is not even competent to defend herself verbally because of severe anxiety as Judge Strauss was witness of it during the phone conference of September 12, 2011) am being forced against the law by Judge Strauss into proceeding which is in the first place is [sic] barred by the law. No person with a [sic] common sense appears before a court and a judge who does not follow the law, misrepresent [sic] it and rules against it. Therefore I am respectfully requesting the Commissioner of Education to stay the proceeding of this case due to blatant prejudice against me[,] and for all of the reasons stated in this letter and Respondent’s Certification (attached) ...” (Ibid.)*

“For the 3rd time in my letter (dated October 12, 2011) which I wrote to Commissioner of Education.... In that letter I stated that:

I believe as every other citizen I have the right to defend my constitutional rights and immunity under the 14th Amendment of [the] constitution which guarantees the fundamental rights of citizens to due process and fair and impartial trial and equal protection of the laws...All these injustices have been poisoning my health and I have had enough of Fraud upon the Court in the Federal Court for almost two years. Now, again if I am not supposed to be entitled to equal protection of the Laws and due process, I prefer not to participate in any proceeding in which I do not have any right since I do not want to be harassed and get injured more, physically and emotionally...”(Id. at 42)

(Respondent’s Exceptions at 41-42)

- Again allege that the tenure charges against her are false or falsified and – with respect to each of them – raises what she alleges are factual discrepancies and alternate theories as to what actually occurred.

- Object to the ex parte hearing conducted on October 18 and 19, 2011 and the ALJ's January 3, 2012 decision⁹ that included statements that there were no witnesses or exhibits presented on behalf of Ms. Toorzani. Her exceptions take issue with these facts: "NO Exhibits and witnesses for Toorzani (me, Respondent) despite the fact that I had furnished the Department of Education and accordingly Judge Strauss with about 460 pages of brief and direct physical evidences included [sic] [a] CD of recorded voice (Motion to Dismiss in Lieu of Answer to the Tenure Charges) which prove that the instant matter had been initially procured by perjury and by violating the OPMA and refute all the tenure charges (one by one) which had been brought against me by Richard D. Tomko, Superintendent, who had perjured himself to bring me up on those tenure charges." (Respondent's Exceptions at 46) Respondent charges that the ALJ should have denied the District's request to proceed with the hearing as she submitted her explanation as to why she would not attend. (Id. at 59) She charges that the ALJ "abandoned proper procedure by abusing his judicial power and authority and deprived me of my rights." (Id. at 80)

Upon full review and consideration of the entire record in this matter, the Commissioner is in accord with the ALJ's determination – for the reasons clearly presented on pages 19-23 of his decision – that the District has established its charges of unbecoming conduct, insubordination, and other just cause against respondent. In so determining, the Commissioner fully agrees that – under the circumstances existing in this matter – the ALJ's proceeding with an ex parte hearing was entirely appropriate. The record here evidences that with the ALJ's denial of her motion to dismiss the tenure charges and her motion for his recusal, respondent unilaterally determined to defy all of his directives. Such defiance is clearly apparent by 1) her ignoring of the ALJ's established date of October 14, 2011 for completion of discovery when – rather than answering the Board's interrogatories – she returned them to the Board unanswered, and 2) her self-admitted adamant refusal to attend the scheduled hearings on the established dates. Notwithstanding respondent's exception claim that she sought a "stay" of the instant proceedings from the Commissioner in her request for interlocutory review of the ALJ's denial of her motion to dismiss the tenure charges or, alternatively, that she harbored a belief that her interlocutory appeals automatically resulted in the cancellation of the scheduled hearing dates established by the ALJ in this tenure matter, the OAL provision governing stays pending Interlocutory Review, N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.10(h), clearly dictates:

An agency head's determination to review interlocutorily an order or ruling shall not delay the scheduling or conduct of hearings, unless a postponement is necessary due to special requirements of the case, because of probable prejudice, or for other good cause. Either the presiding judge or the agency head may order a stay of the proceedings, either on their own or upon application. Applications for stays should be made in the first instance to the presiding judge. If denied, the application may be resubmitted to the agency head. Pending review by the agency head, a judge may conditionally proceed on an order or ruling in order to complete the evidential record in a case or to avoid disruption or delay in any ongoing or scheduled hearing. (emphasis added)

It is noted that no application for stay of the hearing dates – in accordance with the dictates of this provision – was ever made or granted in this matter. As respondent filed two requests for interlocutory review pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.10, she must be presumed to have knowledge of all of this regulation's provisions.¹⁰ More importantly, it is readily apparent on this record that respondent was not – in reality – seeking a "stay" of her tenure hearing but, rather, elimination of a hearing altogether. Respondent's proffered arguments make it abundantly clear that what she was seeking – or, better stated, demanding – was resolution of this matter in her favor either through the grant of her motion to dismiss the charges as being barred by res judicata and/or collateral estoppel or summary decision based solely on her submitted factual recitations and exhibits, written arguments and accusations. The Commissioner concurs with the ALJ's cogent, comprehensive analysis contained in his September 19, 2011 Prehearing Order concluding that this matter is not amenable to resolution under either of these theories. Initially, with respect to the applicability of res judicata and/or collateral estoppel the ALJ found:

Res Judicata and collateral estoppel are analogous legal doctrines designed to promote the conclusiveness of adjudications by precluding a party from relitigating issues previously decided by a tribunal. Res judicata, or claim preclusion, requires that a judgment in a prior action must be valid, final and on the merits; the parties in the later action must be identical or in privity with those in the prior action; and the claim in the prior action must grow out of the same transaction or occurrence as the claim in the earlier one. (citations omitted)

As indicated above, only a judgment on the merits in another forum will preclude a later action on the same claim. Res judicata does not apply if the prior action has been dismissed on grounds that do not go to the merits of the matter asserted. In her Motion to Dismiss, Respondent relies on a suit she initiated in the United States District Court for the District of New Jersey asserting claims which included retaliation and discrimination based on disability, ethnicity, religion and national origin. See, Toorzini v. Elmwood Pk. Bd. of Educ. et al., No. 09-4262 (D.N.J. May 19, 2011) and Order No. 09-4242 (D.N.J. May 19, 2011), aff'd. Toorzani v. Elmwood Pk. Bd. of Educ., et al., No. 11-1858 (3rd Cir., July 12, 2011) As set forth in an Opinion and Order of the Honorable Stanley Chesler, U.S.D.J., this suit was never litigated on the merits of Respondent's claims. It was, instead, dismissed with prejudice because she was "repeatedly ordered to appear for her deposition, and the record reflects [that she has] repeatedly failed to attend." Id. at 2. As there never was a trial on the merits of respondent's claims, no court ever made any factual determinations. In the absence of a judgment on the merits in the matter relied upon by Respondent, an essential element of res judicata claim, I CONCLUDE that there is no basis for dismissal of the instant matter on the basis of res judicata.

Collateral estoppel, or issue preclusion, "is that branch of the broader law of res judicata which bars relitigation of any issue which was actually determined in a prior action, generally between the same parties, involving a different claim or cause of action." State v. Gonzalez, 75 N.J. 181, 186 (1977) (citing Mazzilli v. Accident and Cas. Ins. Co., etc., 26 N.J. 307, 313-14 (1958); Kelley v. Curtiss, 16 N.J. 265, 273 (1954); Miraglia v. Miraglia, 106 N.J. Super. 266, 271 (App. Div. 1969). Again, there was no factual determination in the prior action upon which Respondent relies. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that there is no basis for dismissal of this matter under the doctrine of collateral estoppel. Additionally, the tenure charges which respondent claims to bar by the District Court action could not have been brought in that tribunal. Tenure charges are within the exclusive jurisdiction of the Commissioner of Education. "What constitutes grounds for a tenure dismissal is a question of fact and within the exclusive jurisdiction of the Commissioner of Education, who has the duty to conduct the hearing and render a decision." [emphasis supplied] In re Cardonick, 1990 S.L.D. 842, 849, citing In re Fulcomer, 93 N.J. Super. 404, 412 (App. Div. 1967).

(ALJ's Prehearing Order, Motion to Dismiss Order, Motion to Recuse Order, September 19, 2011, at 5-6)

As to respondent's claim of invalidity of the tenure charges because they are based on fabrication of the facts, falsified information and statements, the ALJ correctly concluded that a dismissal on this ground must satisfy the requirements of a Motion for Summary Decision:

Summary decision may be granted "if the papers and discovery which have been filed, together with the affidavits, if any show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law." N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b).

The standard for granting summary judgment (decision) is found in Brill v. Guardian Life Insurance Co. of America, 142 N.J. 520 (1995). In Brill, the Court looked at the precedents established in Matsushita Elec. Indus. Co. Ltd. v. Zenith Radio Corp., 475 U.S. 574 (1986), Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, Inc., 477 U.S. 242 (1986), and Celotex Corp. v. Catrett, 477 U.S. 317 (1986), wherein the Supreme Court adopted a standard that "requires the motion judge to engage in an analytical process essentially the same as that necessary to rule on a motion for a directed verdict, i.e., 'whether the evidence presents a sufficient disagreement to require submission to a jury or whether it is so one-sided that one party must prevail as a matter of law.'" Brill, supra at 533 (quoting Liberty Lobby, Inc., supra, 477 U.S. at 251-252). The Court stated that under the new standard:

A determination whether there exists a "genuine issue" of material fact that precludes summary judgment requires the motion judge to consider whether the competent evidential materials presented, when viewed in the light most favorable to the non moving party, are sufficient to permit a rational fact-finder to resolve the alleged disputed issue in favor of the non-moving party. The "judge's function is not himself [or herself] to weigh the evidence and determine the truth of the matter but to determine whether there is a genuine issue for trial." (Id. at 540 (quoting Liberty Lobby, Inc., supra, 477 U.S. at 251-252)).

The Brill standard contemplates that the analysis performed by the trial judge in determining whether to grant summary judgment should comprehend the evidentiary standard to be applied to the case or issue if it went to trial. “To send a case to trial, knowing that a rational jury can reach but one conclusion, is indeed worthless and will serve no useful purpose.” Id. at 541

In addressing whether the Brill standard has been met in this case, further guidance is found in Rule 4:46-2:

An issue of fact is genuine only if, considering the burden of persuasion at trial, the evidence submitted by the parties on the motion, together with all legitimate inferences therefrom favoring the non-moving party, would require submission of the issues to the trier of fact.

Respondent, by her own pleading, emphasizes her view that the allegations raised by the District in its tenure charges are based on a fabrication of facts, thereby raising genuine issues of material fact that can only be resolved in a plenary hearing. Each and every fact alleged and relied upon by Respondent in her Motion is in dispute. For each and every tenure charge, Respondent raises factual discrepancies and alternate theories as to what allegedly occurred. I CONCLUDE that the existence of genuine issues of fact defeats a Motion to Dismiss.

(ALJ’s Prehearing Order, September 19, 2011, at 4-5)

It is well established that tenure protects teachers from arbitrary dismissal for “unfounded, flimsy or political reasons.” Spiewak v. Rutherford Bd. of Educ., 90 N.J. 63, 73 (1982) (quoting Zimmerman v. Newark Bd. of Educ., 38 N.J. 65, 71 (1962)) Because of the due process concerns that inform tenure proceedings – in matters like the instant case, with numerous recognized genuine issues of material fact – respondent may only be dismissed for unbecoming conduct, insubordination or other just cause after a hearing in compliance with the Tenure Employees Hearing Law, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 et. seq., where respondent is entitled to present witnesses and evidence on her behalf and the District has the burden of proving the charges against her by a preponderance of the credible evidence. Here, however, respondent has steadfastly taken the position that this matter will proceed the way she wishes or not at all. She deliberately defied the Order of the ALJ with respect to discovery, the establishment of the hearing dates of her tenure case,^{11 12} the clear dictates of N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.10(h), and, rather, elected not to defend herself at the evidentiary hearing to adjudicate the tenure charges filed against her. As such, because the District required an Initial Decision on its tenure charges, the ALJ was well within his authority, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.4(d), to take ex parte proofs from the District with respect to its charges and to render his Initial Decision based on these ex parte proofs. As this situation is solely attributable to the actions/inactions of respondent, she cannot – at this point in time – be heard to complain about the consequences of her own actions.

The Commissioner is in complete agreement with the ALJ that – based on the testimony of its witnesses and its advanced evidentiary proofs – the District has established its charges of unbecoming conduct and insubordination against respondent, as detailed on pages 21-22 of the Initial Decision. Similarly, with respect to the penalty to be imposed, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ’s cogent analysis in this regard:

...the nature and circumstances of each of the incidents, when viewed singularly, are troubling rather than alarming. However, Toorzani’s prior record is a poor one. Although she has never previously been suspended, there are many written warnings and reprimands. Yet, her conduct continued unabated. Her present attitude is as inappropriate as it has consistently been in the past. The testimony and documentary evidence elicited from a wide range of administrators is overwhelming. The effect of her conduct on the maintenance of discipline among staff is evident. Simply, she has created a toxic work environment for her various supervisors and administrators. Finally, her repeated failure to respond favorably to many attempts to elicit appropriate and professional behavior suggests that her past conduct was not an aberration but instead leads to a reasonable prediction that such behavior is likely to recur. The proofs here “are not trivial but rather reflect a pattern of professionally unacceptable conduct which cannot be tolerated in a school setting.” (citation omitted) Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that Irandokht Toorzani should be dismissed from her tenured teaching position with the School District of the Borough of Elmwood Park. (Initial Decision at 23)

¹² Indeed, respondent’s submissions in this matter make it abundantly clear that she had no intention, whatsoever, of attending any hearing in this tenure matter.

Accordingly, the recommended decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter. Irandokht Toorzani is hereby dismissed from her tenured position with the School District of the Borough of Elmwood Park. A copy of this decision will be transmitted to the State Board of Examiners for action against respondent's certificate(s) as that body deems appropriate.

AGENCY DKT. NO. 170-6/11

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF IRANDOKHT TOORZANI (A/K/A IRANDOKT TOORZANI), SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE BOROUGH OF ELMWOOD PARK, BERGEN COUNTY.

Nicholas Celso, III, Esq., for petitioner, School District of the Borough of Elmwood Park (Schwartz, Simon, Edelstein, Celso, attorneys)

Irاندokht Toorzani (a/k/a Irاندokht Toorzani), pro se (failed to appear)

Record Closed: November 17, 2011

Decided: December 28, 2011

BEFORE JESSE H. STRAUSS, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The School District of the Borough of Elmwood Park (District) brought charges against tenured teacher Irاندokht Toorzani (a/k/a Irاندokht Toorzani) (Toorzani) for conduct unbecoming a teaching staff member, insubordination and/or other just cause. A tenured employee of a public school system shall not be dismissed except for inefficiency, incapacity, unbecoming conduct or other just cause. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10. The District certified charges alleging that, on various occasions over a protracted period of time, Toorzani conducted herself inappropriately, repeatedly interacting with colleagues, supervisors, parents, and students in a manner unbecoming a professional, and continued to engage in a pattern of misconduct notwithstanding numerous admonitions, directives, and intermediary disciplinary actions. The issues are whether Toorzani engaged in the alleged conduct, and, if so, what is the appropriate penalty.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The District certified charges against Toorzani to the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes of the Department of Education (Commissioner) on June 30, 2010. The Commissioner granted, until August 8, 2010, Toorzani's application for an Extension of Time to File a Motion to Dismiss or Answer. Upon the receipt of Toorzani's Motion to Dismiss in lieu of an Answer on August 15, 2011, the Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes referred the tenure charges to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on that date, as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

I conducted a telephone conference with Toorzani and counsel for the District on September 12, 2011, in accordance with the expedited requirements of N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.1. At that conference I orally denied Toorzani's Motion to Dismiss because she raised issues of disputed facts and erroneously relied on the doctrines of res judicata and collateral estoppel[s] to contend that the tenure charges must be dismissed because of the prior dismissal with prejudice of a federal suit Toorzani had initiated against the District. I also denied at that time Toorzani's request that I recuse myself from this proceeding. Those rulings were memorialized in a Prehearing, denial of Motion to Dismiss, and denial of Motion to Recuse Order which issued on September 19, 2011. The Prehearing Order also provided that Toorzani's submission in support of her Motion to Dismiss would serve as her Answer in this matter. The Prehearing Order established October 14, 2011, for the completion of discovery. Rather than answer the District's interrogatories, Toorzani, by letter received on September 23, returned them to the District unanswered.

On October 11, 2011, Laura Sanders, Acting Director of the OAL, affirmed my Order denying Toorzani's Motion for Recusal. On October 21, 2011, the Acting Director determined not to grant interlocutory review to my determination that the principles of res judicata and collateral estoppel[s] did not bar the prosecution of the tenure charges.

At the time of the September 12, 2011, Prehearing Conference, in accordance with the statutory timeline for the commencement of a tenure hearing within thirty days of the completion of discovery, I established October 18 and 19, 2011, as hearing dates in this matter. The parties were notified of these dates (1) orally on September 12, 2011, (2) in the Prehearing Order of September 19, 2011, which stated, "the hearing is scheduled for October 18 and 19, 2011, at 9:00 a.m. at the Office of Administrative Law, 33 Washington Street, 7th Floor, Newark, New Jersey" and (3) by a Notice of Hearing that issued on September 16, 2011, advising that the hearing in this case will be held on October 18 and 19, 2011, and setting forth the hearing location as "Office of Administrative Law, 33 Washington Street, 7th Floor, Newark, N.J. 07102." The Prehearing Order and the Notice of Hearing were sent by first class mail to Irandokht Toorzani, 175 Oxford Terrace, Apt. 2, River Edge, N.J. 07661. Neither mailing was returned as undelivered. Counsel for the District appeared on October 18 with witnesses. Toorzani neither appeared nor contacted my office that day with an explanation for her failure to appear. I did not take evidence on October 18. In accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.4, I held the matter for one day before taking any action. I received no explanation for the nonappearance from Toorzani within one day as required by N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.4(a). In accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.4(d), because an Initial Decision is required in tenure charge matters, I took ex parte proofs from the District on October 19, 2011. At the ex parte hearing, the District requested, and I verbally granted as allowed by N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.1(d), the opportunity to submit a brief and proposed findings of fact by November 21, 2011, based on the hearing of October 19. I received the District's submission on November 17, 2011, and closed the record on that day.

FINDINGS OF FACT

The District presented the following witnesses: Former Supervisor of Guidance Joseph Hulbert; Director of the Department of Testing and Assessment and former Supervisor of Social Studies, Music and Family/Consumer Science Anthony Iachetti; current High School Principal and former Assistant High School Principal David Warner; current Elementary School Principal and former High School Supervisor of the Math and Business Department Allison Jackter; High School Assistant Principal Corinne DiMartino; and current Superintendent of Schools and former High School Principal Richard Tomko. Neither Toorzani nor a representative on her behalf appeared. No witnesses or evidence were presented on her behalf.

There was no basis presented in the record to consider the testimony and supporting documentation to be anything but credible. Accordingly, based upon a review of the totality of the evidence including many memoranda memorializing various situations and warnings, and having had the opportunity to assess the demeanor and credibility of the witnesses who testified, I make the following critical FINDINGS OF FACT.

1. Toorzani, made numerous inappropriate, insubordinate and unprofessional statements and/or comments to and in the presence of parents, staff, administrators, and students.
 - a. On December 1, 2003, Toorzani refused to meet with Thomas Bierman, mathematics supervisor, in private to discuss a Teacher Observation Report and, instead, persisted in engaging him in inappropriate conversation in the school hallway. Bierman warned Toorzani, "most of the behaviors that I have documented in this memo are examples of your uncooperative and unprofessional behavior. It is this very type of behavior that I am insisting must change in the future. I have explained this to you in person and I hope to observe a substantial change in behavior as we move forward and continue to work together during this school year.”

- b. On Friday June 16, 2006, Toorzani entered Guidance Supervisor Hulbert’s office accompanied by multiple students and questioned Hulbert in an inappropriate, unacceptable, accusatory and aggressive manner regarding the scheduling of final examinations. She questioned Hulbert’s authority in front of students and a secretary rather than addressing in private her complaint as to the location for taking final exams. She knew of the schedule a week earlier. Hulbert, in a memorandum, advised Toorzani that her presentation and method was extremely inappropriate and unacceptable. Hulbert also counseled that, “it would behoove you to present these types of questions in a much less accusatory manner and certainly in a more appropriate location.” (Exhibit P-2.)
- c. On November 30, 2006, Toorzani stated to then Assistant High School Principal Warner, that “I’m not complaining [about an alleged odor problem in the classroom] because of me but these are American students, you should take care of them.” [Toorzani has an Iranian background.] Then, Principal Tomko advised Toorzani on December 13 that “your accusations that we are refusing to help you because of your ethnicity are not only false, but inappropriate, insubordinate and unsubstantiated.” He added that “your accusations are harassing and intend to cause harm to my authority and the authority of others.” (Exhibit P-4.)
- d. On December 13, 2006, in the High School main office, Toorzani approached, Social Studies, Music and Family Consumer Science Supervisor Iachetti, regarding an alleged odor in her classroom and stated “If not for me, then do it [resolve the odor] for the American students” Iachetti considered the statement to be inappropriate and of a prejudiced nature. He had made no statement to her that he was distinguishing between American students and others. (Exhibits P-3, P-4.)

- e. On December 13, 2006, in the presence of parents, Toorzani stated that a letter she had received from Supervisor Iachetti "was all lies." (Exhibit P-5.)
- f. Also, on December 13, 2006, Toorzani approached Warner and interrupted him while he was speaking to a parent. She was agitated and ignored his request to wait until he had finished with the parent and he would then speak to her. She instead told the parent that she has many personal problems with the administration and has "had enough with this school district." Warner was embarrassed by this public encounter. (Exhibit P-5.) Toorzani was formally warned at a January 8, 2007, meeting regarding the reprimand by Warner, that any concerns or comments she had with regard to "problems" with the administration are not to be conveyed to a parent while engaged in a conversation with an administrator in a public area. (Exhibit P-6.) She became argumentative at this meeting, kept interrupting and claimed that the administration had not handled the odor issue properly.
- g. In March of 2007, as evidenced by her Personnel Evaluation prepared by Supervisor Jackter, "Ms. Toorzani responds negatively to suggestions from the supervisor. During observation post-conferences Ms. Toorzani responds in an extremely defensive manner toward suggested areas of improvement." (Exhibit P-7.)
- h. On March 28, 2007, in conjunction with Jackter arriving late for a meeting as a result of a delay caused by a school assembly, Toorzani accused Jackter of being disrespectful for not notifying her that she would be late and then speaking to her in a disrespectful

- manner. Jackter did not speak to Toorzani in a disrespectful manner despite her claim to the contrary. Jackter advised Toorzani that "this behavior is unacceptable." (Exhibit P-8.)
- i. On February 6, 2008, in response to Warner informing Toorzani that a special education student cannot be removed from her class because he was placed there as a result of his Individual Education Plan (IEP), Toorzani stated to Warner in his capacity as vice principal that "You [Mr. Warner] do not care about the education of the students." (Exhibit P-11.) She had previously had this student removed from her class due to attendance and behavior problems. Rather than accept his reassignment to her class, she met the student in the hall and sent him away without arranging for anyone to accompany that student to another location.
 - j. Also on February 6, 2008, when Warner informed Toorzani that she should express her concerns to the Child Study Team, she responded "I am not walking to that office." (Exhibit P-11.) On numerous occasions, Toorzani had expressed that she had a problem teaching classified students claiming they were unmotivated and could not learn. In his memorandum Warner stated that "these comments and your attitude are disturbing and need to be changed immediately. All students have the right to be educated. It has been suggested to you on numerous occasions to seek professional development opportunities regarding teaching students with disabilities. To my knowledge you have not made an effort to attend any workshops." (Exhibit P-11.)
 - k. On February 6, 2008, Toorzani abruptly left Warner's office and stated, "like I told Mr. Iachetti, I guess I will just go to my class, shut the door and play with the students." (Exhibit P-11, P-12.)

- l. On February 8, 2008, in an e-mail correspondence sent by Toorzani in response to a memorandum sent by Warner, Toorzani accused Warner of falsifying information. He did not falsify any information. (Exhibit P-12.)
- m. On October 19, 2008, in an e-mail circulated to several supervisors and administrators, Toorzani accused Jackter of failing to provide instruction resources, stating that, "... I cannot use same material that other teachers use in Math Department to improve the quality of teaching and learning" Electronic correspondences sent to Toorzani, as well as Jackter's testimony, prove that this Toorzani allegation regarding instructional material has no merit. (Exhibits P-19, P-21, P-22.) In Jackter's view, Toorzani's accusations created a volatile situation.
- n. In that same October 19, 2008, e-mail correspondence, in response to a written reprimand from then Principal Tomko regarding her failure to provide proper notification when absent from school, Toorzani accused him of treating her differently because of her ethnic and religious background. "I have learned my lesson from all the incidents which have happened, that because I am Iranian Muslim, no matter what my conditions are, I cannot sign out early because I am being accused of being deceptive and putting the welfare of students in danger and as a result I have to get disciplined by partial-day docking of my salary" (Exhibits P-21, P-23.)
- o. On November 14, 2008, Toorzani and a custodian argued after he had removed a wood prop she was using to hold her classroom door open. He claimed it could damage the door. As she did not know his name, Toorzani informed Warner that she had a verbal confrontation with "the big fat" custodian. (Exhibits P-25, P-26, P-

- 27.) She was agitated and speaking quickly and went off on tangents rehashing prior disputes with administrators.
- p. On November 17, 2008, in an e-mail memorandum sent to the central office supervisors and administrators, among others, Toorzani accused Warner of being "dishonest and disinterested." Tomko admonished her for making hurtful and derogatory remarks against a staff member [the custodian] by choosing to identify him, out of anger, by his appearance. Tomko found this remark unprofessional but interesting in view of " . . . consistently made complaints against faculty and administrators for treating you specific ways because of your race, ethnicity and place of birth." (Exhibits P-26, P-27.) Toorzani responded with a November 19, 2011, e-mail to Warner advising him that she would not pick up any envelopes stamped "confidential" from her office mailbox until the end of each day because they cause her too much stress. She asked that confidential matters be relayed to her by e-mail. (Exhibit P-28.)
- q. On January 29, 2009, Toorzani confronted Jackter in an inappropriate manner during an in-service day outside of an articulation meeting and caused the session to be delayed. Other staff members could hear Toorzani's raised voice. (Exhibits P-31, P-33.) The assistant superintendent had asked staff to gather around their respective supervisors. Although the rest of Jackter's staff assembled around her, Toorzani walked past the group and continued to walk away after Jackter had called her. Toorzani then interrupted the training meeting by insisting that she needed to speak to Jackter privately. Toorzani then complained over what she claimed were inappropriate statements made to her in the auditorium. Jackter ended her January 29, 2009, memorandum to Toorzani with "in the future, you must follow directives and communicate more clearly with me. Be cautious of your tone and delivery when discussing matters with me. Your 'scolding' borders insubordination and will not be tolerated." (Exhibit P-31.)

- r. On February 1, 2009, in an e-mail circulated to various administrators and the mathematics department, Toorzani accused Supervisor Jackter, of "treating her like a slave," stating that when she was "hired in Elmwood Park district my [her] title was 'Teacher' not 'Slave.'" (Exhibits P-32, P-33, P-34.) She embarrassed and shocked Jackter by copying all of Jackter's superiors as well as fellow teachers.
- s. Additionally, on February 1, 2009, in that same e-mail correspondence, Toorzani accused Jackter of making up "false stories to justify themselves [herself] . . . [to] cover up their [her] wrong doing" as well as insinuating that Jackter is not "brave enough to tell the truth." (Exhibits P-32, P-33, P-34.) As set forth in Jackter's detailed response to Toorzani, none of Toorzani's complaints in her widely disseminated e-mail were accurate. Jackter's response concluded with, "Ms. Toorzani, your insubordination, fabricated conversations and personal attacks will not be tolerated as this behavior is unacceptable." (Exhibit P-33.) Moreover, Jackter never spoke to Toorzani in an offensive manner as Toorzani claimed. Tomko provided Toorzani with an additional written warning on February 3, 2009, expressing his dissatisfaction with derogatory statements in Toorzani's e-mail, calling them unbecoming and another documented event "in which you were insubordinate, made inappropriate remarks, false accusations and unsubstantiated reports to defame someone's character." Tomko further advised her that he was requesting the superintendent to investigate and pursue a formal tenure charge and appropriate employment dismissal on the basis of unbecoming conduct. (Exhibit P-34.)

- t. In March of 2009, Toorzani informed her students that she was upset because “they are bringing me up on tenure charges” and that the students may not see her anymore because the administration is trying to get rid of her. Jackter and Warner told Toorzani that these types of discussions were completely inappropriate to conduct with students. Tomko then met with Toorzani on March 23, 2009, with regard to these discussions with students and advised her that “this attempt to curry favor by including students in confidential matters with regard to your employment and other contents of my memoranda continues to be insubordinate.” (Exhibits P-35, P-37.) The meeting with Jackter and Warner was called because students were upset that Toorzani was reading their grades aloud in class. She became defensive, claiming that she read only certain grades. She was instructed not to read grades aloud at all.
- u. Also, in March of 2009, Toorzani engaged in inappropriate verbal dialogue with at least one student, E.H., concerning E.H.’s family members’ alleged opinions of the school principal. (Exhibits P-36, P-37, P-39.)
- v. On March 16, 2009, during a meeting held with Warner and Jackter, Toorzani stated that she, “still feels like a slave” and “I [she] don’t want to be treated like a slave.” (Exhibits P-35, P-38.)
- w. On March 29, 2009, in an e-mail correspondence sent to various administrators, Toorzani accused Tomko of authoring a memorandum “full of falsified information.” (Exhibits P-38, P-39.)
- x. On September 28, 2009, in a disciplinary referral sent home to student R.V.’s parents, Toorzani willfully misrepresented the alleged “consequences” to herself for sending a student disciplinary referral to Assistant Principal Warner when she stated that

"[b]ecause of consequences of sending her to Mr. Warner's office, I tried to handle the situation by myself" As Warner documented in a September 28, 2009, memorandum to Toorzani, her accusation was untrue and insubordinate in that he did not reprimand or discipline Toorzani for dealing with a student disciplinary issue. (Exhibit P-41.)

- y. In January 2010, a student, who had been tutoring another student, reported to Jackter that she felt uncomfortable when Toorzani ordered the tutor to meet with her. Tomko gave Toorzani the letter. On January 28, 2010, in an e-mail correspondence to Jackter with copies to various administrators in response to the comments attributed to a student and administrative follow-up related thereto, Toorzani stated that " . . . I am shocked that you call yourself an administrator who is following district policy" Toorzani further wrote, "(Even you let yourself to follow me around the school and pull me out of my classroom in front of my students to check my shoes to see if they were based on the district policy [when they were based on the district policy]) but you let yourself to allow a student to give you a letter (that there is no word in the world to describe it) about a teacher (me) and then you gave this letter to Mr. Tomko to arrange a fact finding meeting for the teacher (me) regarding this abusive letter. I am so sorry that I have to work in such a condition that a person who is math supervisor let a student to be discourteous, offensive, abusive, rude and impolite . . . toward a teacher." (Exhibits P-42, P-43.)
- z. On October 25, 2010, the Administration received a letter from student E.A.'s mother stating that Toorzani "belittles the students in front of each other and speaks to them in a very demeaning manner." (Exhibit P-45a.) Warner set up a conference with the parent, but Toorzani refused to attend. Warner then advised Toorzani that it is part of her job description to have open correspondence with parents about their child's academic performance and/or behavior in class. He added that, if she felt uncomfortable with a parent, a member of the administrative staff would provide assistance. (Exhibit P-45.)

- aa. In December 2010, in an e-mail correspondence sent to student A.F.'s parent, Toorzani willfully mischaracterized information that had been communicated to her by Warner, by informing A.F.'s parent that "I [Toorzani] was told by Mr. Warner that school cannot spend money to mail these reports to parents!" (Exhibit P-46.) The parent had e-mailed Toorzani complaining that Toorzani had spoken to A.F. in front of the class about Toorzani's communication to the parent concerning A.F.'s academic performance. Warner by memo, reminded Toorzani that there had been several documented situations in which students and/or parents had complained about her discussing grades and attendance in class and that he and Jackter had directed her not to discuss such matters in front of the class. Warner also criticized Toorzani for inaccurately characterizing to A.F.'s parent in an e-mail a discussion Warner and Toorzani had had about mailing progress reports. He had instead told Toorzani that it was not cost-effective for every teacher in the District to send out their own individual progress report and that there were alternate ways through e-mail or student courier to send out progress reports besides the official mid-point marking period reports. Warner warned Toorzani that "your inaccurate communication with this parent is also insubordinate."
- bb. On January 5, 2011, by memorandum, now Principal Warner asked Toorzani for a medical note for missing a meeting scheduled for that afternoon, since he found it unreasonable and unacceptable that she medically could not attend a meeting, but was able to teach and perform her daily responsibilities. Earlier that day Toorzani had told Warner in the hallway that she would not attend a meeting he had scheduled with her because of a medical condition of anxiety. (Exhibit P-47.) In response to the memo, Toorzani came into the main office of the High School, and in the presence of various members of the office staff as well as in the presence of at least one student, Toorzani stated that "I have a lawsuit against Mr. Warner and he is a defendant," and "I do not want his lawyers questioning my doctor." (Exhibit P-48.) Through a January 6, 2011, memorandum, Warner informed Toorzani that her public statements were inappropriate because, "these individuals are definitely not privy to this confidential information and this revelation has compromised my position as principal causing rumors and innuendos."

- cc. On February 24, 2011, during a meeting with Warner regarding Toorzani's repeated disregard of a prohibition of propping open the classroom door, Toorzani refused to answer Warner's questions and instead had an emotional outburst. Moreover, Toorzani was confrontational and attempted to control the meeting. Warner advised Toorzani that "once again, your willful, insubordinate and oppositional attitude" was demonstrated. (Exhibit P-52.)
- dd. On February 28, 2011, in an e-mail correspondence copied to various members of the administration in response to the reprimands issued by members of the administration, Toorzani stated that "issuing these reprimand letters constantly and maliciously to falsely accuse me and reprimand me for no cause with the intention of defaming my professional reputation and character, and anguishing me mentally to push me to nervous breakdown is abusing the authority." (Exhibit P-53.) Warner did not write the memoranda to harass Toorzani. She refused to meet with him to address the issues of various memoranda.

- ee. In March of 2011, in a meeting held with Warner and Connie Sudol, Elmwood Park education association president, Toorzani was extremely uncooperative, confrontational and simply unwilling to listen. (Exhibit P-54.)
- ff. On March 02, 2011, in an e-mail correspondence sent to Sudol and copied to various members of the administration, Toorzani accused the administration of using Sudol "as the local Union president to act as their witness to falsely accuse me [her] and place false and falsified information in my [her] personnel file. First time that you acted as the administrators' witness and I asked you to tell the truth, you told me that Mrs. Spina had asked you to stay silent, but this time Mrs. Spina is not involved therefore everything is up to you." (Exhibit P-55.)
- gg. In March of 2011, in a rebuttal directed to Director of Curriculum and Instruction Corinne DiMartino to her February 24, 2011, Observation Report, Toorzani accused members of the administration of "a continuing pattern of placing false and falsified information in my personnel file for the last several years to injury my professional reputation and character." (Exhibits P-56, P-62.) DiMartino had become upset that Toorzani was questioning her integrity and honesty, particularly since she had only been the director for one year and had not obtained tenure in that position. She did not put any false information into the evaluation as Toorzani had alleged and had not missed the first five minutes of the class as also alleged. When DiMartino had met with Toorzani after her classroom observation, Toorzani disagreed with the areas where she suggested improvement. Tooranzi refused to accept constructive criticism and DiMartino was compelled to terminate the meeting.

- hh. On March 26, 2011, in an e-mail correspondence sent to the High School and Central Office administrators, Toorzani accused the administration of issuing "reprimand letters contain[ing] false and falsified information" and directed the administration to cease leaving reprimand letters in her mailbox. (Exhibit P-57.)
 - ii. In April of 2011, Toorzani made comments concerning a private meeting between student K.S.'s parent and Toorzani in front of K.S.'s classmates. (Exhibit P-58.)
 - jj. In June of 2011, in a memorandum, Toorzani responded to a directive from DiMartino to conform her annual performance evaluation to required specifications, by informing DiMartino that she was considering filing a complaint with the Department of Education concerning DiMartino and accused DiMartino of "falsifying the facts." (Exhibit P-61.)
2. Toorzani has repeatedly failed to comply with administrative directives.
- a. On December 1, 2003, Toorzani refused to meet with her supervisor, Thomas Bierman, to discuss a Teacher Observation Report and, instead persisted in engaging him in an inappropriate conversation in the school hallway. She started to talk in the hallway about being fired from her job and was told by Bierman to stop making such comments as it was neither the time nor place to do so. In his memorandum to Toorzani regarding this incident as well as his overall observation of her, Bierman warned her that her uncooperative and unprofessional behavior must change in the future. (Exhibit P-1.)
 - b. At the end of the 2006-2007 school year, Toorzani did not complete the 2006-2007 checkout list; failed to comply with all of the directives set forth by the administration regarding "sign-out"; and

- failed to respond to the written correspondence sent to her to rectify this situation. (Exhibit P-9.)
- c. On or about March 16, 2009, Toorzani informed her students during class, among other things, that she was upset because, “. . . they are bringing me up on tenure charges” and that the students may not see her anymore because the “administration is trying to get rid of me,” despite a previous written directive issued on January 10, 2007, to not discuss her “problems” with administration and/or staff “in any hallway or public area and” and “that your [her] concerns, comments and allegations are not to be conveyed to any parent, guardian, . . . guest” or student. (Exhibits P-6, P-35, P-37.)
- d. On October 14, 2008, Toorzani failed to contact the Main Office when she was absent from work, despite prior written directive on November 19, 2007 and July 1, 2008 for all staff to call the Main Office in addition to the substitute-caller service when they were going to be absent from school. (Exhibits P-10, P-14, P-20.)
- e. On January 29, 2009, during an in-service day, Toorzani failed to comply with then Assistant Superintendent Pratt’s directive to meet with her supervisor and instead left the auditorium prematurely. (Exhibit P-31.)
- f. On September 23, 2009, Toorzani read a student’s grade aloud in front of the class despite a prior warning on March 16, 2009, from Warner and Jackter that “no individual student’s grades should be mentioned in front of class.” (Exhibits P-35, P-40.)
- g. In January of 2011, Toorzani spoke to student A.F. in front of her class about the student’s academic performance, despite prior warnings not to do so on September 23, 2009, and March 16, 2009. (Exhibits P-35 P-40, P-46.)

- h. On January 7, 2011, Toorzani failed to contact the substitute service or principal when she was absent from school despite previous directives to do so on October 14, 2008, November 19, 2007, and July 1, 2008. (Exhibits P-10, P-14, P-20, P-49.) Warner informed her that her failure to follow the call-out procedures were insubordinate.
 - i. In or around February of 2011, Toorzani repeatedly failed to follow administrative directives from both Superintendent Tomko and Principal Warner to not prop her classroom door open in violation of building code and State monitoring. (Exhibit P-50.)
 - j. On April 12, 2011, in an e-mail correspondence, Toorzani stated that she refused to attend a meeting with the principal to discuss an e-mail correspondence received from a student's parent. Toorzani wrote, "In regards to attending in the meeting (about my response Mrs. [S]'s e-mail in which she had falsely accused me), respectfully I just wanted to say that I am not going to attend in this meeting since I have not done anything wrong or out of the scope of my authority as a teacher. I am done with attending these interrogatory meetings and being subjected to abusive and harassing conduct and language." (Exhibit P-58.)
 - k. In or around June of 2011, Toorzani failed to comply with written directives from the Director of Curriculum and Instruction DiMartino to conform her annual performance evaluation in five specific areas. (Exhibit P-60.)
- 3. In or around February 6, 2008, Toorzani engaged in conduct unbecoming when, according to Mr. Warner, she "made it clear on numerous occasions that you [she] have a problem teaching classified students." (Exhibit P-11.)

4. On or about February 15, 2008, Ms. Toorzani engaged in conduct unbecoming when she left her assigned duties at approximately 11:30 a.m. under the false pretense of "very bad back pain" and, instead of going to her home, promptly visited the Board Office in an attempt to obtain a copy of her personnel file. According to then Principal Tomko, "this created a decreased amount of supervision in important areas and could have potentially endangered the welfare and safety of our students." (Exhibit P-13.)
5. On November 18, 2008, rather than devoting her full attention to her assigned teaching duties, Toorzani sent an electronic correspondence concerning a non-instructional matter to then Principal Tomko twice: fourteen and twenty-three minutes into the class period. (Exhibits P-15, P-16, P-28, P-29, P-30.)
6. On May 6, 2010, Toorzani called in "sick" and utilized a day from her sick bank in order to attend a legal proceeding. (Exhibit P-44.)
7. On October 25, 2010, Toorzani became "defensive and angry" during a meeting with student E.A.'s parent and then "stormed out of the room." (Exhibit P-45a.)

LEGAL ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSIONS

The District has brought tenure charges against Toorzani alleging unbecoming conduct, insubordination and/or other just cause. Under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10, tenured teaching staff members may be dismissed for inefficiency, incapacity, unbecoming conduct, or other just cause.

The District bears the burden of proving the charges upon which it relied by a preponderance of the competent, relevant and credible evidence. Atkinson v. Parsekian, 37 N.J. 143 (1962); In re Polk, 90 N.J. 550 (1982). The evidence must be such as to lead a reasonably cautious mind to a given conclusion. Bornstein v. Metro. Bottling Co., 26 N.J. 263 (1958). Therefore, the tribunal must "decide in favor of the party on whose side the weight of the evidence preponderates, and according to the reasonable probability of truth." Jackson v. Del., L. and W. R.R., 111 N.J.L. 487, 490

(E. & A. 1933). For reasonable probability to exist, the evidence must be such as to "generate belief that the tendered hypothesis is in all human likelihood the fact." Loew v. Union Beach, 56 N.J. Super. 93, 104 (App. Div. 1959). Preponderance may also be described as the greater weight of credible evidence in the case, not necessarily dependent on the number of witnesses, but having the greater convincing power. State v. Lewis, 67 N.J. 47 (1975).

The statutory status of a tenured employee may not be lightly removed. Tenure protects teachers from arbitrary dismissal for "unfounded, flimsy or political reasons." Spiewak v. Rutherford Bd. of Educ., 90 N.J. 63, 73 (1982). It is designed to aid in the establishment of "a competent and efficient school system" by affording teachers a measure of security in the ranks they hold after years of service. Viemeister v. Prospect Park Bd. of Educ., 5 N.J. Super. 215, 218 (App. Div. 1949).

"Unbecoming conduct" is an elastic phrase, which encompasses conduct that adversely affects the morale or efficiency of a governmental unit or that has a tendency to destroy public respect in the delivery of governmental services. Karins v. City of Atl. City, 152 N.J. 532, 554 (1998); see also In re Emmons, 63 N.J. Super. 136, 140 (App. Div. 1960). It is sufficient that the complained-of conduct and its attending circumstances "be such as to offend publicly accepted standards of decency." Karins, supra, 152 N.J. at 555 (quoting In re Zeber, 156 A.2d 821, 825 (1959)). Such misconduct need not necessarily "be predicated upon the violation of any particular rule or regulation, but may be based merely upon the violation of the implicit standard of good behavior which devolves upon one who stands in the public eye as an upholder of that which is morally and legally correct." Hartmann v. Police Dep't of Ridgewood, 258 N.J. Super. 32, 40 (App. Div. 1992) (quoting Asbury Park v. Dep't of Civil Serv., 17 N.J. 419, 429 (1955)). Unbecoming conduct is particularly troubling in public education where teachers should set the good example rather than engage in activity, which is inimical to the public interest and which is designed to impede the orderly process of public education. In re Sammons, 1972 S.L.D. 312, 321. The Commissioner in Sammons stressed that teachers are professional employees "to whom the people have entrusted the care and custody of tens of thousands of school children with the hope that this trust will result in the maximum educational growth and development of each individual child. 'This heavy duty requires a degree of self-restraint and controlled behavior rarely requisite to other types of employment.' Ibid.

I CONCLUDE that the District has met its burden of proving that Toorzani engaged in conduct unbecoming a teaching staff member. Examples of unbecoming conduct were her expression of having a problem teaching classified students; leaving assigned duties under false pretenses; sending electronic correspondence concerning a non-instructional matter during a class period; using a sick day to attend a legal proceeding; and becoming defensive and angry and storming out of the room during a meeting with a parent. In each instance, Toorzani has violated the implicit standard of good behavior that is expected of a teacher.

Black's Law Dictionary 802 (7th ed. 1999) defines insubordination as a "willful disregard of an employer's instructions" or an "act of disobedience to proper authority." Webster's II New College Dictionary (1995) defines insubordination as "not submissive to authority: disobedient." Such dictionary definitions have been utilized by courts to define the term where it is not specifically defined in contract or regulation.

"Insubordination" is not defined in the agreement. Consequently, assuming for purposes of argument that its presence is implicit, we are obliged to accept its ordinary definition since it is not a technical term or word of art and there are no circumstances indicating that a different meaning was intended.

[Ricci v. Corporate Express of the East., 344 N.J. Super. 39, 45 (App. Div. 2001) (citation omitted).]

Importantly, this definition incorporates acts of non-compliance and non-cooperation, as well as affirmative acts of disobedience. For the purpose of a tenure proceeding, insubordination is an action which demonstrates a willful refusal to comply with a supervisor's directive. In re Ingram, EDU9068-01, Initial Decision (May 17, 2002), adopted, Comm'r (June 27, 2002), <http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html>. Insubordination can occur even where no specific order or direction has been given to the allegedly insubordinate person. Refusal to obey orders and disrespect cannot be tolerated. Such conduct adversely affects the morale and efficiency of an educational facility. Insubordination is always a serious matter, especially in an educational setting where the complexity of providing a comprehensive curriculum and education to students requires interaction with the various components of the process such as staff, supervisors, administrators, students, and parents/guardians.

I CONCLUDE that the District has met its burden of establishing good cause that Toorzani has conducted herself in an insubordinate manner. The above findings abound with examples of acts of insubordination between 2003 and 2011. They reflect a lack of respect for authority, a refusal to obey directives and a combativeness which has undermined the morale and efficiency of the District's High School. Toorzani has criticized the administration and colleagues repeatedly by challenging their honesty and integrity, depriving them of the dignity to which they are entitled, creating an uncomfortable work environment and impairing the ability of the individual targets of her behavior to effectively discharge their duties. See In re Young, EDU 9771-09, Final Decision (October 15, 2010), <http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html>. Despite measured responses from the administration, Toorzani chose a course of conduct intended to antagonize, belittle, deride, and defame various administrators. She exacerbated her insubordination by disseminating her grievances, merit aside, to colleagues, administrators, students and parents, who were unrelated to those grievances. This could only be an attempt to embarrass the sources of her distress. It is noteworthy that her claims of mistreatment of her are not directed at one source, but rather at no less than seven separate supervisors and administrators and one union representative.

With respect to the appropriate penalty, each allegation against Toorzani, standing alone over the course of eight years, gives rise to concern about her behavior and temperament. However, the persistence and repetitiveness of Toorzani's behavior over an extended period of time, despite exhaustive attempts by various administrators through meetings, discussions, memoranda, and warnings to redirect her unacceptable behavior, gives rise to alarm. She has demonstrated an unconscionable and uncorrectable level of insubordination and unbecoming conduct. The District has meticulously memorialized Toorzani's history of contumacious misbehavior and has given her ample warning and opportunity to improve. Rather than foster a cooperative relationship, Toorzani repeatedly turned every criticism of her into an accusation against a superior. Factors to be taken into account in making a penalty determination include the nature and circumstances of the incidents or charges, the teacher's prior record and present attitude, the effect of such conduct on the maintenance of discipline among the students and staff, and the likelihood of such behavior recurring. Young, supra, EDU 9771-09 In re Suitt-Green, EDU 7071-96, Final Decision (October 14, 1997), aff'd, State Bd. of Educ. (February 4, 1998), <<http://www.state.nj.us/education/legal/index.html>>.

As already indicated, the nature and circumstances of each of the incidents, when viewed singularly, are troubling rather than alarming. However, Toorzani's prior record is a poor one. Although she has never previously been suspended, there are many written warnings and reprimands. Yet, her conduct continued unabated. Her present attitude is as inappropriate as it has consistently been in the past. The testimony and documentary evidence elicited from a wide range of administrators is overwhelming. The effect of her conduct on the maintenance of discipline among staff is evident. Simply, she has created a toxic work environment for her various supervisors and administrators. Finally, her repeated failure to respond favorably to many attempts to elicit appropriate and professional behavior suggests that her past conduct was not an aberration but instead leads to a reasonable prediction that such behavior is likely to recur. The proofs here "are not trivial but rather reflect a pattern of professionally unacceptable conduct which cannot be tolerated in a school setting." Suitt-Green, supra, EDU 7071-96. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that Irandokht Toorzani should be dismissed from her tenured teaching position with the School District of the Borough of Elmwood Park.

ORDER

I ORDER that the tenure charges against Irandokht Toorzani be AFFIRMED.

I further ORDER that Irandokht Toorzani be DISMISSED from her tenured teaching position with the School District of the Borough of Elmwood Park.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

APPLICATION FOR EMERGENT RELIEF

The record of this emergent matter – which included a digital recording of the hearing conducted at the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on February 3, 2012 – along with the recommended Order of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) have been reviewed by the Assistant Commissioner to whom this matter has been delegated pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:4-34.

L.B. ON BEHALF OF MINOR CHILDREN,

Petitioner,

v.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY

OF LINDEN, UNION COUNTY,

Respondent.

L.B., pro se, for petitioner

Katherine A. Gilfillan, Esq., for respondent Board of Education of the City of Linden, Union County (Weiner Lesniak, attorneys)

BEFORE KELLY J. KIRK, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner challenges the action of the Board of Education of the City of Linden (Board), removing her three children from Linden public schools.

On January 9, 2012, petitioner filed a Pro Se Residency Appeal with the Department of Education. On January 11, 2012 and January 23, 2012, M. Kathleen Duncan, Director, Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, Department of Education (Department), issued to petitioner letters relative to deficiencies in the filing.

The January 11, 2012 letter acknowledges receipt of materials from L.B. on January 9, 2012, and it states:

It is also noted that more than 21 days have passed since the Linden board of education sent you notification of the children's disenrollment. Consequently, if you would like the students to attend school in Linden during the pendency of this appeal, you must file an application for emergent relief – pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6 – explaining why you believe the Commissioner should grant such relief. In the motion you must address the four issues set forth in N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6(b).

Additional documents were filed by petitioner with the Department on January 10, 2012. A "Request for Relief Stay" was filed by petitioner with the Department on January 24, 2012. On January 24, 2012, the Department transmitted the case to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) under the Administrative Procedure Act, N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15, and the act establishing the office, N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -23, for a hearing under the Uniform Administrative Procedure Rules, N.J.A.C. 1:1-1.1 to -21.6, and the rules of procedure established by the Department of Education to hear and decide controversies and disputes arising under school laws, N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.1 to -1.17. Jurisdiction is conferred under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9. The case was filed at the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on January 26, 2012. Oral argument was heard on February 2, 2012.

LEGAL ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSIONS

Where authorized by law and where irreparable harm will result without an expedited decision granting or prohibiting some action or relief connected with a contested case, emergency relief pending a final decision on the whole contested case may be ordered upon the application of a party. N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.6(a).

Where the subject matter of the controversy is a particular course of action by a district board of education or any other party subject to the jurisdiction of the Commissioner, the petitioner may include with the petition of appeal, a separate motion for emergent relief or a stay of that action pending the Commissioner's final decision in the contested case. N.J.S.A. 6A:3-1.6(a). A motion for a stay or emergent relief shall be accompanied by a letter memorandum or brief which shall address the following standards to be met for granting such relief pursuant to Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982):

1. The petitioner will suffer irreparable harm if the requested relief is not granted;
2. The legal right underlying petitioner's claim is settled;
3. The petitioner has a likelihood of prevailing on the merits of the underlying claim; and
4. When the equities and interests of the parties are balanced, the petitioner will suffer greater harm than the respondent will suffer if the requested relief is not granted.

N.J.S.A. 6A:3-1.6(b)

In order to prevail on an application for emergent relief, Petitioner must meet all four conjunctive prongs set forth in Crowe.

The Board argues that the application for emergent relief is deficient on its face. However, it is noted that the petitioner's January 24, 2012 filing includes the previously missing language.

It appears from the "Student Tracker" printouts, that the children had attended Roselle schools from August 30, 2006 until September 5, 2007, and it appears, based upon authorizations for school and health records, request was made for the children's records to be transferred from Roselle to Linden on July 11, 2007. John is scheduled to graduate from high school in 2012, and Lucy and Joseph each have Individualized Education Programs (IEP). An IEP is a written statement for each child with a disability that is developed, reviewed and revised in accordance with 20 U.S.C.A. § 1414(d). 20 U.S.C.A. § 1401(14); 20 U.S.C.A. § 1412(a)(4). When a student is determined to be eligible for special education, an IEP must be developed to establish the rationale for the student's educational placement and to serve as a basis for program implementation. N.J.A.C. 6A:14-1.3, -3.7. At the beginning of each school year, the District must have an IEP in effect for every student who is receiving special education and related services from the District. N.J.A.C. 6A:14-3.7(a)(1). All three children have been attending Linden public schools for the past five years, and two are special education students with IEPs that would have been established and implemented by Linden.

L.B. was notified by letter dated December 20, 2011 that the Board determined that pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, the children were not eligible to attend Linden public schools because they were not domiciled or residing in Linden. In pertinent part, the letter states:

If you believe the Board's determination is in error, you have the right to appeal this decision to the Commissioner of Education within twenty-one (21) days of this notice. [John], [Lucy] and [Joseph] will be permitted to attend school during this period, and to continue in attendance while the appeal is pending before the Commissioner. However, if no appeal is filed by the 21st day following the date of this notice, your children will be removed from their respective schools and you will be asked to indicate where they will be educated. Information on how to appeal to the Commissioner is included with this letter.

Twenty-one days from the "date of this notice" would have been January 10, 2012. Review of the letters from the Commissioner reveals that the Commissioner did receive some materials from L.B. on January 9, 2012, and the documents stamped received on January 10, 2012 are titled "Pro Se Residency Appeal." Per Duncan's January 11, 2012 letter, it appears that the filing was defective and petitioner missed the filing deadline. However, it is noted that petitioner is pro se, and she did file an appeal, albeit a defective one, within the twenty-one days.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, the children could not be removed from their current school during the twenty-one day period, nor could the children be removed during the pendency of the proceedings before the Commissioner. Thus, had petitioner timely filed a complaint appeal, a motion for emergent relief would not have been necessary and the children would have been permitted to attend the Linden schools during the pendency of the proceedings.

With regard to the merits of the underlying claim, per the Board's December 20, 2011 letter, the Board voted to disenroll the children from Linden public schools pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 for failure to meet the residency requirements and the children were removed in January 2012, because petitioner failed to timely file an appeal. However, petitioner argues that residency is inapplicable to the within matter because the children were transferred to Linden by Roselle, because Lucy was sexually assaulted on the grounds of Roselle public schools. The Board conversely argues that this is strictly a residency case, and that the children had attended Linden public schools pursuant to an Order for Temporary Custody and Visitation (Custody Order), entered by the Honorable David J. Issenman, J.S.C., dated July 23, 2007, but an investigation revealed that the children did not reside with C.P., the family friend awarded residential custody of the children. It appears from a facsimile transmittal at Exhibit A to the Board's brief that the Board was provided a copy of the Custody Order on March 29, 2011.

Petitioner argues that the Custody Order was separate and apart from the school transfer, and that she refused to sign the residency affidavits sent in 2011, because her children did not reside exclusively with C.P. and that the Linden school district was fully aware that petitioner resided in Roselle for the duration of the time her children attended Linden public schools, and that petitioner's address was reflected as Roselle, New Jersey in Linden's school records. There were no official school records presented, thus it was not possible to verify what address(es) were on file in the children's records, or what addresses were reflected in the IEPs.

In support of her argument that the children were transferred to Linden by Roselle because of a sexual assault on Lucy, petitioner has presented correspondence between petitioner and the Roselle public schools, including the following:

- A May 1, 2007 letter ostensibly from L.B. to Elnardo Webster, Superintendent, states that L.B. wanted to file a written complaint regarding the incident, and was "still awaiting a response to [her] request regarding a safety school option transfer."
- A May 14, 2007 letter, ostensibly from Katie B. LaMar, Director of Special Services for Roselle Public Schools, to L.B., which references the allegation of Lucy "being allegedly kissed by an unknown Hispanic male"; a police report; a report to DYFS; "the possibility of a personal aide who could travel with [Lucy]," which was "rejected by L.B."; and "home instruction temporarily until all information was received to support [L.B.'s] concern." Additionally, the letter references L.B.'s delivery of an internet document entitled "Unsafe School Choice Option Policy," which "[LaMar] told [L.B.] that [LaMar] would have the Board Attorney review the document in regard to this matter and this is still in process."
- A May 19, 2007 letter, ostensibly from L.B. to LaMar,² states that "Due to [Lucy's] learning disabilities as well as her "traumatic state" caused by [the school's] gross negligence, I adamantly stated that [Lucy] would not be returning to [the school]."
- Another May 19, 2007 letter ostensibly from L.B. to LaMar states that "My concerns about a transfer was not met or addressed. In addition to our previous conversation you assured me that your office would work with my schedule. This was necessary because the incident that occurred with [Lucy] at [the school] has changed her living arrangement.”; that “In reference to the police report, although a police report was made the responsibility for the Board of Education to obtain a copy is not mine.”; that because “[Lucy] is a minor I would prefer certain details not be entered in her [permanent] file. I would be happy to provide an updated copy once I am aware of my rights on this matter.”; that “whenever I speak to Ms. Hansen about the arrangements she informs me that the arrangement can not take place.”; and that “In closing, I would like to resolve this issues also however, I made it clear that because of this incident [Lucy] would not be returning to [the school.]”

² The letter is addressed to LaMar, but the salutation states "Dear Mrs. Hansen:" and the body of the letter states "I am formally requesting that you the case manager, Elizabeth Hansen" be removed from my child's case." Additionally, LaMar is noted as a carbon copy at the bottom of the letter.

- A June 4, 2007 letter ostensibly from LaMar to L.B. states that “the district could not consider or address [the] request for a transfer until [it] received a statement from the therapist, the police department, and D.F.Y.S.”
- Another June 4, 2007 letter ostensibly from LaMar to L.B. states that “In reviewing your letter in regard to [Lucy’s] IEP, it appears you are in disagreement with her program and placement. Again her current IEP is home instruction until there is resolution to the matter of the alleged incident of the unidentified male kissing [Lucy]. Again we still need the therapists’ findings[,] the DYFS report and the police report as documentation to substantiate your allegations. Once these are provided we will consider your request for outside placement, based on the review and recommendations of the above.”

- Per a June 14, 2007 facsimile transmittal sheet, the Roselle Police Juvenile Investigation Report was ostensibly faxed from LaMar to Heather Mills-Pevonis.³

No correspondence was presented subsequent to June 14, 2007, so it is unclear whether the issue of the transfer was ever formally resolved. Petitioner argues that her own records were destroyed in Hurricane Irene, and that Roselle has not responded to her requests for copies of documents relating to this incident or other school records. Petitioner provided documentation that a tree fell on her residence, which destroyed the roof and second floor, and due to heavy rains and structural damage the family was not allowed to remain in the residence. Thus, review of the correspondence presented implicates various issues, including a request for a transfer pursuant to the Unsafe School Choice Option⁴ provision. In addition, petitioner argues that she is now homeless, which imposes other legal considerations.

It is of utmost concern that John has not attended school since January 20, 2012, and that Lucy and Joseph, both special education students with IEPs, have not attended school since December 2011. Petitioner has presented documentation to support her argument that the underlying issue is not residency, but a transfer for safety reasons. Balancing the equities and interests of the parties, the petitioner will suffer the greater harm if the emergent relief is not granted. Linden should not be responsible for tuition for children not entitled to attend its public schools, but the harm to Linden is monetary, and if the petitioner's appeal is unsuccessful on the merits, she is liable for tuition. Conversely, if the relief requested is denied, the harm to the children is greater as it impacts upon their daily lives and education.

In light of the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that the children should immediately commence attendance at their former respective schools in Linden, New Jersey, during the pendency of the proceedings in this matter. I note that pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, if the evidence does not support petitioner's claims, petitioner will be responsible for tuition for the time of the children's ineligible attendance in Linden.

ORDER

It is hereby ORDERED that petitioner's application for emergency relief is GRANTED. It is further ORDERED that the three children should immediately commence attendance at their former respective schools in Linden, New Jersey, and remain there during the pendency of appeal, unless enrolled elsewhere by their parents.

It is further ORDERED that an expedited plenary hearing has been scheduled for February 24, 2012 at 9:00 a.m. at the Office of Administrative Law, 33 Washington Street, 7th Floor, Newark, New Jersey.

This order on application for emergency relief may be adopted, modified, or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who is authorized by law to make the final decision in this case. The final decision shall be issued without delay but no later than forty-five days from the entry of this order. If the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION does not adopt, modify, or reject this order within those forty-five days, this recommended order shall become the final decision on the issue of emergency relief under N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Dear Counsel:

I have reviewed the papers filed in connection with the Petition for Declaratory Ruling in the matter captioned Board of Education of the Township of Winslow, Camden County v. Mark Benjamin, Agency Dkt. No. 340-11/11. Therein petitioning Board seeks a declaration as to whether the receipt of unemployment benefits from the District by Joanne Masciocchi, a member of the Board of Education is a disqualifying conflict of interest as alleged by Mark Benjamin, another Board member. Please be advised that I have determined not to consider this matter as one for declaratory ruling, pursuant to my discretionary authority under N.J.A.C. 6A:3-2.1(a). I find, instead, that this matter should proceed as a Petition of Appeal.

Accordingly, this matter will be transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for hearing consistent with N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.1 et seq. Additionally, I note that another petition of appeal, Mark Benjamin, Sr. v. Joanne Masciocchi, Agency Dkt. No. 285-9/11, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 14102-11, on the same issue, was transmitted to the OAL on November 25, 2011. The instant matter will be transmitted recommending possible consolidation with that case.

BUSINESS AUTOMATION TECHNOLOGIES, :

PETITIONER, : COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

V. : DECISION

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP : OR BERNARDS, SOMERSET COUNTY, AND OPTIMUM LIGHTPATH, :

RESPONDENTS. :

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, Business Automation Technologies, challenged the rejection of its bid for a voice and data services contract with respondent Board, which instead awarded the contract to Optimum Lightpath (Optimum). Petitioner alleged that the Board improperly scored the bids, resulting in the award of the contract to Optimum. Respondent contended that it acted at all times in full compliance with applicable laws and regulations, and filed a motion for summary decision.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: there are no genuine issues of material fact in this case, and the matter is ripe for summary decision; pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-4.5(d), respondent Board properly evaluated proposals in accordance with the methodology described in the RFP, and in all ways complied with the requirements of Public School Contracts Law; Optimum's proposal received the highest score of all the interested vendors, and provided the maximum benefit to the District; petitioner failed to show that the Board improperly weighted the price criterion; Optimum was the most responsive to the technical requirements of the RFP; and petitioner received a low score in terms of financial stability. Accordingly, the ALJ concluded that the Board awarded the contract to Optimum in accordance with Public School Contracts Law and granted the Board's motion for summary decision.

Upon full review and consideration of the record, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ that the Board did not act in an arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable manner in awarding the bid for voice, data and telecommunication services to Optimum. Accordingly, the Commissioner granted summary decision to the respondents and dismissed the petition.

 BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP :

 RESPONDENTS. :

The Commissioner has reviewed the record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on the Board's motion for summary decision. Respondent Optimum Lightpath (Optimum) joined in the Board's motion. No exceptions were filed by any party as provided by N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Upon his considered review, the Commissioner concurs with the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) that this matter is ripe for summary decision as there are no genuine issues of material fact to resolve. For the reasons cogently presented in the ALJ's decision, the Commissioner agrees that the Board – in anticipation of the district's growing and future requirements for voice, data and telecommunication services – did not act arbitrarily, capriciously or unreasonably in awarding the bid for these services to Optimum.

Accordingly, summary disposition is granted to the respondents and the petition is dismissed.

BEFORE EDWARD J. DELANOY, JR., ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner Business Automation Technologies (petitioner) seeks a determination that respondent Board of Education of the Township of Bernards (Board) improperly scored bids for an internet and communications technology contract. The Board counters that it at all times acted in full compliance with applicable laws and regulations. The Board brings a motion for summary decision.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner filed a petition for due process dated April 27, 2011, with the Bureau of Controversies & Disputes of the New Jersey Department of Education (DOE). On May 17, 2011, an Answer was filed by respondent Board, and on June 3, 2011, an answer was filed by respondent Cablevision Lightpath-NJ, Inc. The matter was transmitted for a hearing to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-2(b) and N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.9(b), where it was filed on June 6, 2011.

The Board filed a Motion for Summary Decision on October 18, 2011. Respondent Cablevision Lightpath-NJ, Inc joined in the motion on October 11, 2011. Responsive briefs and replies were filed by all parties on or before November 21, 2011, and on that date the record closed.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

This matter arises from respondent Board's award of a Voice and Data Services contract (contract) to respondent Optimum Lightpath (Optimum) instead of petitioner Business Automation Technologies. On October 28, 2010, the Board released a Request for Proposals (RFP) for Voice and Data Services. Markarian Cert., ¶ 6. The RFP was prepared by Nick Markarian, the Board's Business Administrator, and James Rollo, the Board's Technology Manager (Markarian and Rollo).¹ Markarian Cert., ¶ 3. The RFP stated in boldface that "[p]roposals must be cost neutral relative to the district's current voice, data and telecommunications costs. Preference will be given to solutions that can be most easily scaled up to facilitate the consolidation of the 6 schools [in the district] into a single data center." Board's Exhibit A, p. 8. The RFP included the following criteria, and the weight accorded to each, on which interested vendors would be evaluated: vender experience and references (100 points); price (400 points); quality and usability of online ordering, billing, and network management tools (50 points); responsiveness to the technical requirements of the RFP (150 points); E-rate references (100 points); assessment of the vendor's Service Level Agreement (SLA) (100 points); and assessment of the vendor's financial stability (100 points). Id. at p. 14.

On December 7, 2010, the Board received six vendor proposals, including one from petitioner and one from Optimum. Markarian Cert., ¶ 7. Subsequently, Markarian and Rollo issued to the Board a report evaluating the proposals in accordance with the methodology described in the RFP. Board's Exhibit D. The report included tables reflecting the scores given to each vendor based on the criteria included in the RFP. Ibid. Petitioner received the following scores: 100 out of 100 points for vendor experience and references; 400 out of 400 for price (noting that petitioner proposed the "best price at minimum spec, moderate scalability"); 45 out of 50 points for quality and usability of online ordering, billing, and network management tools (noting that "online billing tools not yet available"); 145 out of 150 points for responsiveness to technical requirements (noting that "most scalable solution is most expensive"); 100 out of 100 points for E-rate references; 100 out of 100 points for assessment of SLA; and 50 out of 100 points for financial stability (noting "concerns related to accountant's comments regarding financial statements"). Ibid. Petitioner received a total score of 940 out of 1000 points. Ibid.

Optimum received the following scores: 100 out of 100 points for vendor experience and references; 400 out of 400 points for price (noting "best price at largest scale"); 45 out of 50 points for quality and usability of online ordering, billing, and network management tools (noting "realtime utilization not available in web portal"); 150 out of 150 points for responsiveness to technical requirements; 100 out of 100 points for E-rate references; 100 out of 100 points for assessment of SLA; and 100 out of 100 points for financial stability. Ibid. Optimum received a total score of 995 out of 1000 points. Ibid.

In their report, Markarian and Rollo noted that petitioner and Optimum submitted the most relevant proposals because each included "a solution that would help consolidate data center services." Ibid. Markarian and Rollo also noted that petitioner's solution for data center consolidation "is $6,698 more per month [than Optimum's], while, at the same time, apparently offering half the Internet access [50 Mbps vs. 100 Mbps from Optimum]." ² Ibid. They concluded that Optimum's proposal "provided the maximum benefit and scalability while still costing the district less than its current monthly spend." Ibid.

Based on their evaluation, Markarian and Rollo recommended to the Board the awarding of the contract to Optimum. Ibid. On January 24, 2011, the Board by resolution awarded the contract to Optimum. Markarian Cert., ¶ 12.

LEGAL DISCUSSION

Standard for Summary Decision

N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5, governing motions for summary decision, permits early disposition of a case before the case is heard if, based on the papers and discovery which have been filed, it can be decided "that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law." N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b). The provisions of N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5 mirror the language of R. 4:46-2 of the New Jersey Court Rules governing motions for summary judgment. An adverse party does not bear an obligation to oppose the motion, but to survive summary decision, there must be "a genuine issue which can only be determined in an evidentiary proceeding." Ibid. The non-existence of one entitles the moving party to summary decision. Brill v. Guardian Life Ins. Co. of Am., 142 N.J. 520 (1995). Moreover, even if the non-moving party comes forward with some evidence, this forum must grant summary decision if the evidence is "so one-sided that [the moving party] must prevail as a matter of law." Id. at 536. "Applying this standard, the ALJ must determine whether the competent evidential materials presented, when viewed in the light most favorable to the non-moving party in consideration of the applicable evidentiary standard, are sufficient to permit a rational fact finder to resolve the alleged disputed issue in favor of the non-moving party." 1106 Ocean Ave. v. Governing Body of Point Pleasant Beach, ABC 4355-02, initial decision, (October 25, 2004) (citing Contini v. Newark Bd. of Educ., 286 N.J. Super. 106, 122 (App. Div. 1995)). I am therefore required to do "the same type of evaluation, analysis or sifting of evidential materials as required by Rule 4:37-2(b) in light of the burden of persuasion that applies if the matter goes to trial." Brill, supra, 142 N.J. at 539-40. Like the New Jersey Supreme Court's standard for summary judgment, the language for summary decision is designed to "liberalize the standards so as to permit summary [decision] in a larger number of cases" due to the perception that we live in "a time of great increase in litigation and one in which many meritless cases are filed." Id. at 539 (citation omitted).

The Public School Contracts Law, N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-1 to -59, allows boards of education to use competitive contracting "in lieu of public bidding for procurement of specialized goods and services the price of which exceeds the bid threshold."³ N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-4.1. One of the purposes of competitive contracting is "to provide . . . boards of education with greater discretion in entering into contracts with qualified vendors than is permitted under the normal requirements of public bidding." Sponsors' Statement to Assembly Bill No. 3519, at 104 (November 15, 1999); Sponsor's Statement to Senate Bill No. 2203, at 104 (November 8, 1999) (http://law.njstatelib.org/law_files/njlh/lh1999/ch440.htm). In particular, competitive contracting "permits a less detailed specifications [sic] with a request for proposals (RFP) approach and uses evaluation criteria and ranking of proposals to determine the contractor who is the 'most advantageous, price and other factors considered,' instead of an award to the 'lowest responsible bidder.'" Local Finance Notice AU 2000-1R, New Jersey Department of Community Affairs (May 1, 2000) (http://law.njstatelib.org/law_files/njlh/lh1999/ch440.htm); N.J.A.C. 5:34-4.3(d).

The Public School Contracts Law requires a board to follow certain procedures during the competitive contracting process. The process must be administered by a qualified purchasing agent, legal counsel, or school business administrator of the board (responsible board employee). N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-4.3(b); N.J.S.A. 40A:11-9 (purchasing agent qualifications). The responsible board employee or employees shall prepare an RFP that includes "all requirements deemed appropriate and necessary to allow for full and free competition between vendors; information necessary for potential vendors to submit a proposal; and a methodology by which the board of education will evaluate and rank proposals from vendors." N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-4.4(a). Also, "[t]he methodology for the awarding of competitive contracts shall be based on an evaluation and ranking, which shall include technical, management, and cost related criteria, and may include a weighting of criteria, all developed in a way that is intended to meet the specific needs of the contracting unit," without discriminating against an otherwise capable vendor. N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-4.4(b).⁴ Technical, management, and cost related criteria "are not intended to be limiting or all-inclusive, and they may be adapted or supplemented in order to meet a contracting unit's individual needs as competitive contracting may dictate." N.J.A.C. 5:34-4.2(a).

When evaluating a proposal, the responsible board employee(s) must follow the methodology described in the RFP. N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-4.5(d). After the evaluation of the proposals, the responsible board employee(s) shall prepare a report that ranks the vendors' proposals, recommends a vendor for a contract, and clearly states the reasons for selecting a particular vendor among others considered. Ibid. The board must award any such contract by resolution. N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-4.3(b); N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-4.5(e).

⁴ If a board weights criteria, it must notify the vendors prior to the submission of proposals. Ibid.

Competitive contracting may be used for “telecommunications transmission and switching services.” N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-4.1(d). For the following reasons, the Board’s motion for summary decision is GRANTED. First, the Board properly determined that Optimum’s proposal would be the most advantageous to the Board based on the evaluative criteria included in the RFP. Second, petitioner has failed to raise a genuine issue of material fact with respect to the evaluation of the proposals.

I. The Board properly awarded the contract to Optimum.

The Board properly awarded the contract to Optimum because the Board determined that Optimum’s proposal was the most advantageous, price and other factors considered. Under the Public School Contracts Law, the responsible board employee must evaluate proposals in accordance with the methodology described in the RFP, rank the vendors’ proposals, recommend a vendor for a contract, and clearly state the reasons for selecting a particular vendor among others considered. N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-4.5(d). Markarian and Rollo followed these requirements as follows:

First, Markarian and Rollo evaluated the proposals in accordance with the methodology described in the RFP. The report shows that Markarian and Rollo evaluated proposals based on the following criteria: vender experience and references (100 points); price (400 points); quality and usability of online ordering, billing, and network management tools (50 points); responsiveness to the technical requirements of the RFP (150 points); E-rate references (100 points); assessment of the vendor’s Service Level Agreement (SLA) (100 points); and assessment of the vendor’s financial stability (100 points). This is the methodology described in the RFP.

Second, Markarian and Rollo ranked the proposals based on the methodology described in the RFP. Petitioner received a total score of 940 points; Optimum received a total score of 995 points.

Finally, Markarian and Rollo recommended Optimum for a contract and clearly stated the reasons for their recommendation. Optimum received the highest score of all the interested vendors, and Markarian and Rollo determined that Optimum’s proposal would be the most advantageous to the Board. The RFP informed interested vendors that “[p]roposals must be cost neutral relative to the district’s current voice, data and telecommunications costs” and that “[p]reference will be given to solutions that can be most easily scaled up to facilitate the consolidation of the 6 schools into a single data center.” In their report, Markarian and Rollo clearly stated that petitioner’s proposal for data center consolidation was more expensive than Optimum’s proposal, and that given “[a]ll factors considered, Optimum Lightpath’s proposal provided the maximum benefit and scalability while still costing the district less than its current monthly spend.”⁵ Based on this recommendation, the Board resolved to award the contract to Optimum. Thus, the Board properly awarded the contract to Optimum in accordance with the Public School Contracts Law.

II. Petitioner has failed to raise any genuine issue of material fact.

Petitioner has failed to raise a genuine issue of material fact with respect to Markarian and Rollo’s evaluation of the proposals in terms of price, responsiveness to technical requirements, assessment of SLA, and assessment of financial stability. Under the Public School Contracts Law, “[t]he methodology for the awarding of competitive contracts shall be based on an evaluation and ranking, which shall include technical, management, and cost related criteria, and may include a weighting of criteria, all developed in a way that is intended to meet the specific needs of the contracting unit,” without discriminating against an otherwise capable vendor. N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-4.4(b).⁶ However, technical, management, and cost related criteria “are not intended to be limiting or all-inclusive, and they may be adapted or supplemented in order to meet a contracting unit's individual needs as competitive contracting may dictate." N.J.A.C. 5:34-4.2(a).

It is unclear which price quote is accurate, or whether the cost of providing Internet access at 100 Mbps is included in either quote. Regardless of which quote is accurate, with or without the cost of Internet access at 50 Mbps or 100 Mbps, Optimum’s proposal for consolidation was less than petitioner’s. Optimum’s proposal was $11,699 with Internet access at 100 Mbps. Thus, even if Markarian and Rollo mistakenly cited $18,397 as petitioner’s price quote, there is no evidence that they improperly concluded that Optimum’s proposal was the most advantageous, price and other factors considered.

⁶ If a board weights criteria, it must notify the vendors prior to the submission of proposals. Ibid.

Petitioner has not shown that the Board improperly weighted the price criterion. The Board had discretion under N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-4.4(b) to weight criteria, provided it notified interested vendors before the submission of proposals. The RFP clearly indicated the weight accorded to each evaluative criterion. And, the Board, in its discretion, accorded price a weight of 40% (400 out of 1000 total points).

Contrary to petitioner's statement that "everything [the Board] wants to do can be accomplished with the lower priced BAT alternatives," the proposals show, and the Board concluded, that Optimum was the most responsive to the technical requirements of the RFP because Optimum could provide data center consolidation at a lower cost. There is no genuine issue in this regard.

There is no genuine issue with respect to Optimum's compliance with the RFP's SLA requirements. The RFP included an SLA requirement that "loss of service for 8 consecutive hours results in a credit for 1 month," and Optimum's proposal provided for a credit of 2/5 of a day. However, in accordance with N.J.A.C. 5:34-4.3(a)(3), the Board gave Optimum the opportunity to clarify its submission prior to the completion of evaluating proposals. The Board asked Optimum about the credit, and Optimum agreed to satisfy the SLA requirement for a loss-of-service credit. Rollo Cert., p. 2 of attachment. Therefore, the Board did not have to reject Optimum's proposal for lack of compliance.

There is no genuine issue with respect to the Board's request for financial statements from the interested vendors. As stated above, technical, management, and cost related criteria "are not intended to be limiting or all-inclusive, and they may be adapted or supplemented in order to meet a contracting unit's individual needs as competitive contracting may dictate." The Board determined that, with respect to its individual needs, "financial statements were required to help [the Board] assess the vendor's viability of the delivery of any solution that would require a large capital construction project, such as a fiber-optic network.” Rollo Cert., p. 2 of attachment. Moreover, Markarian, the school business administrator, and Rollo, who holds a School Business Administrator Certificate of Eligibility, were qualified to assess the financial statements they requested. Petitioner received a low score in terms of financial stability because the CPA who prepared petitioner’s financial statements stated that petitioner did not engage in full financial disclosure and that, as such, the CPA could not express an opinion on or offer any assurance with respect to the statements. As a result, Markarian and Rollo concluded that they were not confident that the statements could be useful in assessing petitioner’s financial stability.

Finally, there is no support for the accusation that the Board favored Optimum because it is part of a large and recognizable company, Cablevision, and disfavored petitioner as a smaller company. Petitioner had a contract with the Board for several years prior to the awarding of the instant contract to Optimum. Moreover, Verizon, another large and recognizable provider, received a higher total score than petitioner, but was still not as highly considered.

CONCLUSION

This matter is ripe for summary decision. The Board’s motion for summary decision is GRANTED because there is no genuine issue of material fact and the Board is entitled to prevail as a matter of law. The Board awarded the contract to Optimum in accordance with the Public School Contracts Law.

ORDER

I ORDER that respondent Board’s motion for summary decision be GRANTED.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner – a resident of Rivervale, Bergen County, a taxpayer, and a Korean-American – challenged the provision of State funds to the New Jersey Japanese School (NJJS), a nonpublic school, by the Board of Education of Oakland and the New Jersey Department of Education (Department) for textbooks pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:58-37.3 and nursing services pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:40-25. Petitioner also challenged the designation of the NJJS as a nonpublic school recognized by the Department. Petitioner's challenge is based upon a passage in a civics textbook used by NJJS which sets forth that a small group of islets in the Sea of Japan – sovereignty over which has historically been disputed between Japan and South Korea, but which is currently administered by South Korea – is part of territory that belongs to Japan and is being occupied illegally by Korea. Petitioner contends, inter alia, that this view of the Japanese-Korean dispute is inappropriate, biased, and a form of propaganda that teaches NJJS students only the political perspective of Japan. The respondents in this matter all filed motions to dismiss in lieu of an answer to the petition.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: dismissal of a petition very early in litigation is warranted if there is no relief upon which this forum or the Department can act, or no relief to which petitioner is entitled as a matter of law; petitioner has only a tenuous, hypothetical personal interest in the offending paragraph from the NJJS civics textbook; granting petitioner standing to pursue this action to appeal the content of one sentence or paragraph in a textbook used by a private school – and from there to argue that NJJS should be deprived of recognition as a legitimate private school – would be to open a Pandora's box of litigation whereby any general State taxpayer could assert the right to question every line of text in every textbook in any New Jersey school, public, private, or charter; and parents have a right to choose an education for their children which teaches different concepts than are taught in the public schools. The ALJ concluded that petitioner does not have standing to challenge the provision of textbooks and nursing funds to the NJJS, and fails as a matter of law to state a claim upon which relief can be granted. Accordingly, the ALJ granted respondents' motions, and dismissed the petition.

The Assistant Commissioner, to whom this matter was delegated pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:4-34, fully concurred with the ALJ's findings, and adopted the Initial Decision as the final decision in this matter. The petition was dismissed.

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Exceptions of petitioner and replies to these from each of the respondents – submitted in accordance with the dictates of N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 – were fully considered by the Assistant Commissioner, to whom this matter has been delegated pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:4-34, in reaching his determination herein.

Petitioner's exceptions – in relevant part – recast and reiterate his arguments advanced below. In that it is determined that these were fully considered and addressed by the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) in her Initial Decision, further elaboration on them is unnecessary here.

Upon careful review and consideration, the Assistant Commissioner fully concurs with the ALJ that the respondents' Motions to Dismiss are appropriately granted as petitioner fails to meet the threshold requirements for standing and he fails as a matter of law to state a claim upon which relief can be granted.

Accordingly, the recommended decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter – for the reasons comprehensively stated therein – and the instant petition of appeal is hereby dismissed.

BEFORE GAIL M. COOKSON, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner Jay J. Choi (petitioner or Choi) is a resident of Rivervale, Bergen County, and a taxpayer. As set forth below, petitioner is also a Korean-American. Under date of September 21, 2011, petitioner filed a Petition to the Commissioner of the New Jersey Department of Education (Commissioner) challenging the provision of State funds to the New Jersey Japanese School (NJJS), a nonpublic school, by the Board of Education of the Borough of Oakland (Oakland) and the New Jersey Department of Education (Department) for textbooks pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:58-37.3 and nursing services pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:40-25. He also challenged the designation of the NJJS as a nonpublic school recognized by the Department. Choi named as respondents the NJJS, Oakland and the Department.

The matter was transmitted by the Department of Education to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), where it was filed on November 3, 2011, for hearing as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. The transmittal noted that each of the three respondents had already filed Motions to Dismiss in Lieu of Answers. Accordingly, I advised the parties by letter dated November 18, 2011, that the motions would be decided once perfected with additional briefs, prior to any case management conferences or the scheduling of any plenary hearings which might prove unnecessary.

FACTUAL FINDINGS

The facts as alleged in the Petition, or that reasonably can be presumed therefrom, can be enumerated thusly:

1. Petitioner lives at 810 Westwood Avenue, Rivervale, N.J. 07675.

2. Petitioner pays taxes through his municipality to both Bergen County and the State of New Jersey.
3. NJJS is located at 117 Franklin Avenue, Oakland, N.J. 07436.
4. Petitioner states that he lives three miles from the NJJS.¹
5. NJJS is registered with the Department and is a nonpublic school for grades kindergarten through ninth grade that caters to children whose primary language at home is Japanese or who are otherwise fluent in Japanese.
6. As a nonpublic school, NJJS receives State funds for textbooks pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:58-37.3 and for nursing services pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:40-25.
7. As a nonpublic school, the local Board of Education where NJSS is located—in this case, Oakland—administers those textbook and nursing funds to NJSS.
8. There is an island, or more accurately a group of two small islets and thirty-five smaller rocks, that is known in Japan as Takeshima, in Korea as Dokdo and in Franco-English as Liancourt Rocks.²

² Wikipedia, an open-edited website the contents of which I will not take judicial notice or premise any reliance upon, see, e.g., Jones v. Synthes USA Sales, 2010 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 85744 (D.N.J. Aug. 19, 2010), nevertheless provides some background to the present contested matter which appears consistent with the undisputed facts presented by each party:

The Liancourt Rocks, also known as Dokdo or Tokto (독도/獨島, literally “solitary island”) in Korean or Takeshima (たけしま/竹島, literally “bamboo island”) in Japanese, are a group of small islets in the Sea of Japan (East Sea). Sovereignty over the islets is disputed between Japan and South Korea. The islets are currently administered by South Korea, which has its Coast Guard stationed there. The Franco-English name of the islets derives from Le Liancourt, the name of a French whaling ship which came close to being wrecked on the rocks in 1849. Both the Korean and Japanese names have changed over time, a testament to the historical confusion over the subject which led to today’s heated dispute. The Liancourt Rocks consist of two main islets and 35 smaller rocks. The total surface area of the islets is 0.18745 square kilometres (46.32 acres), with the highest elevation of 169 metres (554 ft) found at an unnamed location on the west islet. Two Korean citizens—an octopus fisherman and his wife—are permanent residents on the islets. A small Korean

9. The islets are currently administered by South Korea, which has a Coast Guard station there.
10. The official position of Japan is that the islets are part of Japan and are being illegally occupied by Korea.
11. NJJS utilizes a civics textbook that sets forth that Takeshima is part of territory that belongs to Japan and is being occupied illegally by Korea.³
12. NJJS actively promotes this view.
13. This view of the Japanese-Korean dispute over the Liancourt Rocks is inappropriate, biased, intellectually dishonest, and a form of propaganda, and teaches the children who attend NJJS only the political perspective of Japan.
14. This curriculum promotes separatism and the political agenda of the government of Japan and demonstrates intolerance to cultural diversity in general and the Korean-American community in particular.
15. This curriculum is neither consistent with nor equivalent to the social studies curriculum being instructed in the public schools.

The facts that are not alleged in the petition but concerning which there can be no dispute can be enumerated thusly:

police detachment, administrative personnel, and lighthouse staff are stationed in non-permanent supporting positions on the islets. South Korea administers the islets as Dokdo-ri, Ulleung-eup, Ulleung County, North Gyeongsang Province. Japan classifies them as part of Okinoshima, Oki District, Shimane Prefecture.

As a former civil mediator, it would certainly be tempting to suggest that this historic Asian-Pacific dispute, which apparently remains the cause of wide-ranging emotions and politics on both sides, be settled through a designation of one islet to each country. Clearly, if the solution were that simple, it would have occurred before today.

³ It is not clear whether all students in all grades use the same textbook or whether different textbooks for different educational levels all contain variations of the offending passage. NJJS presented a photocopy of one civic textbook with a translation that describe Takeshima as "Japanese inherent sovereign territory," while petitioner presents a

1. Petitioner has no children in any school, public or nonpublic, in the Borough of Oakland.
2. Petitioner has no children in any school, public or nonpublic, in the County of Bergen.
3. No child attending NJJS has had any interaction with petitioner, whether negative or positive.
4. There is no allegation that NJJS or any of its students has harassed petitioner or any other member of the Korean-American community of New Jersey.

LEGAL ANALYSIS

This case is presented at this time on motions to dismiss the complaint for failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted by each of the three respondents. Such a motion must be based on the pleadings themselves. Roa v. Roa, 200 N.J. 555, 562 (2010). This forum must accept as true the facts alleged in the complaint and all reasonable inferences of fact flowing from those allegations, to ascertain whether there is or could be a claim upon which relief can be granted. Malik v. Ruttenberg, 398 N.J. Super. 489, 494 (App. Div. 2008). “[M]otions to dismiss should be granted in ‘only the rarest [of] instances.’” Banco Popular N. America v. Gandi, 184 N.J. 161, 165 (2005) (quoting Lieberman v. Port Auth. of N.Y. and N.J., 132 N.J. 76, 79 (1993)).

In evaluating a motion to dismiss a petition at the very earliest stage in the litigation, “courts are cautioned to search the complaint ‘in depth and with liberality to ascertain whether the fundament of a cause of action may be gleaned even from an obscure statement[.]’” Ibid. (quoting Printing Mart-Morristown v. Sharp Electronics Corp., 166 N.J. 739, 772 (1989)). “The test is whether a cause of action is suggested by the facts alleged in the complaint.” Russo v. Nagel, 358 N.J. Super. 254, 262 (App.

photocopy of a different civic textbook that references the island as “illegally occupied by Korea.” Either way, it is just this one portion of the textbook that forms the heart of the present dispute.

Div. 2003). Phrased another way, if there is no relief upon which this forum or the Department can act or no relief to which petitioner is entitled as a matter of law, even viewing the pled allegations in a light most favorable to him, then dismissal of the petition is warranted.

Specifically, petitioner objects to the provision of State funds, supported by his tax dollars, to the NJJS for the purchase of textbooks when, he claims, NJJS utilizes textbooks that promote the political and propagandistic teaching that Korea is illegally occupying the Liancourt Rocks. N.J.S.A. 18A:58-37.3. That statute provides:

a. The board of education in each school district in the State in which a nonpublic school is located shall have the power and duty to purchase and to loan textbooks upon individual request, to all students attending school in such district, who are enrolled in grades kindergarten through 12 of a public or non-public school.

b. No board of education shall be required to expend funds for the purchase and loan of textbooks in excess of the amounts provided in State aid pursuant to this act.

Textbooks which are loaned to students enrolled in grades kindergarten through 12 of any nonpublic school shall be textbooks which are used in any public elementary or secondary school of the State or are approved by any board of education.

[N.J.S.A. 18A:58-37.4(a).]

The implementing regulation makes it clear that funds are being used, if at all, to provide nonpublic students with textbooks also used by public students:

A district board of education shall distribute to all students on an equitable basis existing book stocks and newly purchased textbooks⁴ purchased pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:58-37.1 et seq. A district board of education shall not discriminate against students in either public or non-public schools.

⁴ Another fundamental objection to the petition, not raised by any party, might be that State funds have no nexus to the offending Japanese textbook. Query whether monies are given to NJSS from Oakland or just actual textbooks purchased by Oakland for use by all students? That fact is not alleged in the petition, but I do not consider it to be a reasonable inference from the petition in light of the regulations cited above.

With respect to the provision of taxpayer funds for nursing services, the law provides:

Each board of education of a district in which a nonpublic school is located shall:

a. provide nursing services for pupils who are enrolled full-time in the nonpublic school. The services shall include:

- (1) assistance with medical examinations, including dental screening;
- (2) conducting screening of hearing examinations;
- (3) the maintenance of student health records, and notification of local or county health officials of any student who has not been properly immunized; and
- (4) conducting examinations of pupils between the ages of 10 and 18 for the condition known as scoliosis.

b. adopt written policies and procedures extending the emergency care provided to public school pupils to those pupils who are enrolled full-time in the nonpublic school who are injured or become ill at school or during participation on a school team or squad.

[N.J.S.A. 18A:40-25.]

This is the basic starting point for nonpublic school nursing services, with some additional details or services set forth in the subsequent provisions. In fact, a nonpublic school can decline the services but for purposes of these motions, I must accept the allegations as pled. See also N.J.A.C. 6A:16-2.5.

All parties acknowledge that the NJJS is a nonpublic or private school located in Bergen County. New Jersey defines a "nonpublic" school as follows:

"Nonpublic school" means an elementary or secondary school within the State, other than a public school, offering education for grades kindergarten through 12, or any combination of them, wherein any child may legally fulfill compulsory school attendance requirements and which complies with the requirements of Title VI of the "Civil Rights Act of 1964," P.L. 88-352, (42 U.S.C. § 2000d et seq.).⁵

[N.J.S.A. 18A:40-24.]

In New Jersey, and in distinction from charter schools, there is no requirement that a nonpublic school must be certified. Cf. In re Red Bank Charter Sch., 367 N.J. Super. 462 (App. Div. 2004) (describing in general the charter school renewal process and role of the Commissioner, and specifically detailing the substance and process of challenging a charter school's disparate impact on non-minority enrollment in district).

The role of private education in this State has long been acknowledged, as set forth within the following court decision, albeit in a child support context:

Specifically as to the issue of private education, this public policy did not start or end with the amendments to N.J.S.A. 2A:34-23 and the adoption of the child support guidelines. In a series of enactments spanning more than two decades, the Legislature has endorsed a system of primary and secondary education that favorably acknowledges the large numbers of its citizens by reason of family tradition, background or religious belief who have chosen to enroll their children in non-public schools. To this day, to the extent constitutionally permissible, the Legislature continues to demonstrate an ongoing, parallel support for private schools. N.J.S.A. 18A:58-37.1 et seq. (loan of textbooks to non-public school students, L. 1974, c. 79), further supplemented by Amendment to N.J.S.A. 18A:58-37.5 (L. 1990, c. 52, p. 76); N.J.S.A. 18A:46-1 et seq. (compensatory education services for non-public school students, L. 1977,

⁵ The federal cross-reference provides:

No person in the United States shall, on the ground of race, color, or national origin, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance.

[42 U.S.C.A. § 2000d.]

Petitioner does not allege that NJJS is excluding non-Japanese or other ethnic groups from participating in the opportunities provided at its private school, or that any federal funds are at stake.

c. 192), further supplemented by Amendment to N.J.S.A. 18A:46-2, L. 1990, c. 52, p. 62; N.J.S.A. 18A:46-19.1 et seq. (remedial services for handicapped children in nonpublic schools, L. 1977, c. 193); N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1 et seq. (transportation aid, non-public school pupils, P.L. 1981, c. 57) further supplemented by L. 1990, c. 52, p. 2 & 3⁸; N.J.S.A. 18A:40-23 (nursing services for non-public school pupils, L. 1991, c. 226); N.J.S.A. 18A:40-26 (providing additional medical service and equipment, material and services for immunization for non-public school students, L. 1991, c. 226, p. 4).

An excellent example of the Legislature's strong support for non-public schools can be found in N.J.S.A. 18A:58-37.1 et seq., loan of textbooks. In 1971, the Legislature enacted the Nonpublic Elementary and Secondary Education Act (L. 1971, c. 336, N.J.S.A. 18A:58-59, et seq.) which provided parents of non-public school students reimbursement for the cost of secular textbooks, instructional materials and supplies. The law was challenged and then declared unconstitutional by the United States District Court, District of New Jersey, on April 5, 1973 (see Public Funds for Public Schools of N.J. v. Marburger, 358 F. Supp. 29 (1973), aff'd, 417 U.S. 961 (1974)). After the District Court decision, new legislation was introduced and by August 5, 1974, N.J.S.A. 18A:58-37.1, loan of textbooks, a successor statute, was signed into law, a reaffirmation to all that the Legislature's policy towards private schools remained unchanged then as it remains unchanged now.⁹

Respondents' motions raise as a threshold issue the question of whether this petitioner has standing to assert the allegations contained in his complaint. Standing is generated by someone who has a sufficient stake, real adverseness with respect to the subject matter of the dispute, and a substantial likelihood of some genuine harm in the event of an unfavorable decision. N.J. State Chamber of Commerce v. N.J. Election Law Enforcement Comm'n, 82 N.J. 57, 67 (1980); see also Ridgewood Educ. Ass'n v. Ridgewood Bd. of Educ., 284 N.J. Super. 427 (App. Div. 1995). An important function of standing rules and other justiciability norms is to protect against the issuance of advisory decisions. Id. at 431.

In Ridgewood, individual teachers who worked and also resided in Ridgewood and the local teachers' association challenged a policy of their local Board of Education with respect to limiting the employment of supplemental teachers. The Appellate Division reversed the Administrative Law Judge, the Commissioner, and the then-State Board of Education who had dismissed the litigation on standing grounds because no one was then being affected by the new policy.

The Commissioner's view of Higgins's and Hovan's standing was likewise too stinting. See Haines v. Burlington County Bridge Comm'n, 1 N.J. Super. 163, 171–72, 63 A.2d 284 (App. Div. 1949), aff'd sub. nom., Driscoll v. Burlington Bridge Co., 8 N.J. 433, 86 A.2d 201, cert. denied, 344 U.S. 838, 73 S. Ct. 34, 97 L. Ed. 652 (1952). To the extent their status as residents and taxpayers of the school district was not itself an adequate basis for according standing—a proposition of questionable validity, see Kozesnik v. Montgomery Twp., 24 N.J. 154, 177–78, 131 A.2d 1 (1957)—Higgins and Hovan, by reason of their professional status and involvement, must be seen as having satisfied any additional requirement that may exist for a “slight private interest, added to and harmonizing with the general public interest,” Hudson Bergen County Retail Liquor Stores Ass'n v. Board of Comm'rs, City of Hoboken, 135 N.J.L. 502, 510, 52 A.2d 668 (E. & A. 1947), in order for their standing to be recognized. Elizabeth Federal Sav. & Loan Ass'n v. Howell, 24 N.J. 488, 499–500, 132 A.2d 779 (1957). We see no reason why this State's historic liberal approaches to the issue of standing in general, see Crescent Pk. [Tenants Ass'n v. Realty Equity Corp. of N.Y.], [58 N.J. 98] 101, 275 A.2d 433 [(1971)], should not apply to taxpayer suits challenging the quasi-legislative actions of local boards of education. Silverman v. Board of Ed., Tp. of Millburn, 134 N.J. Super. 253, 257–58, 339 A.2d 233 (Law Div.), aff'd o.b. 131 N.J. Super. 435, 346 A.2d 611 (App. Div. 1975).

All of the cases referenced by Ridgewood (as well as those cited by petitioner) were instituted by local taxpayers challenging local public school action or local zoning action. See also Osborne v. Bd. of Educ. of the Twp. of Lakewood, EDU 6438-02, Commissioner Final Decision (Aug. 26, 2003), <http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html> (“[W]hile petitioner in this matter is neither a student nor the parent of a student in the school district, petitioner has presented convincing arguments that, as a resident and a taxpayer, he is directly affected by the annual expenditure of 2 million dollars for courtesy busing of students in the Lakewood School District.”).⁶

However, petitioner here is not a taxpaying resident of the Oakland School District but only of Bergen County and the State. Nor is he challenging the actions of Oakland except as a conduit for State funds. Petitioner pays no taxes to Oakland but only to his own municipality, River Vale Township, and the State. His standing, therefore, must stand or fall as a general State taxpayer challenging on statutory grounds the content of a textbook used by a private and not a public school. It bears repeating that he has no children in either the public or private schools involved in the controversy. Thus, his private interest is much slighter than even that at stake in Ridgewood. Unless the general public interest is substantial, those will not harmonize into a sufficient stake to withstand the motions to dismiss.

Here, it cannot be said that the general public interest is substantial. Petitioner is not vindicating a federal or state constitutional right; rather, he is challenging the entitlement of NJJS to receive some textbooks or nursing funds pursuant to statutory grants, the receipt of neither of which appears to be implicated in the offending paragraph. Further, there is no allegation of harm or injury—past, present or potential—befallen upon petitioner.

In California Parents for the Equalization of Educational Materials v. Noonan, 600 F. Supp. 2d 1088, 1095 (E.D. Cal. 2009), the California Parents for the Equalization of Educational Materials (CAPEEM) alleged that the California State Board of Education had discriminated against CAPEEM's members during the 2005–2006 history-social science textbook adoption process and that the adopted sixth-grade textbooks represented Hinduism in a discriminatory and denigrating manner. The court found that the parent association had standing but ruled against certain of their constitutional claims on summary judgment. The California federal district court summarized the distinctions that have developed between challenges to school procedural practices as compared to school curriculum decisions in the more substantial arena of First Amendment rights.

Significantly, the challenged passages of the textbooks are only a small portion of otherwise clearly nonreligious texts--the books at issue are history-social sciences textbooks--which are part of a clearly, nonreligious history-social sciences program. In that respect, this case is closely analogous to Brown v. Woodland Jt. Unified Sch. Dist., 27 F.3d 1373 (9th Cir. 1994), wherein the Ninth Circuit recognized that when a challenged textbook is only a small part of an otherwise clearly nonreligious program, it is "unlikely that [an] objective observer would perceive the inclusion of the [objected-to] selections . . . as an endorsement or disapproval of religion." 27 F.3d at 1381 ("The fact that the Challenged Selections constitute only a minute part of the Impressions curriculum further ensures that an objective observer in the position of an elementary school student would not view them as religious rituals endorsing witchcraft.")

[Calif. Parents for the Equalization of Educ. Materials v. Noonan, 600 F. Supp. 2d 1088, 1119 (E.D. Cal. 2009).]

The United States Supreme Court has also recognized that that courts should not be in the position of analyzing the minutia of textbook edits and curriculum decisions, as opposed to non-curriculum activities, of public schools on Establishment Clause or other constitutional grounds. Abington Sch. Dist. v. Schempp, 374 U.S. 203, 300, 83 S. Ct. 1560, 10 L. Ed. 2d 844 (1963) (Brennan, J., concurring). The curriculum decisions of private schools would obviously warrant even less scrutiny by the courts. Thus, the issue of the reliance by a nonpublic school of this paragraph in a Japanese textbook, that may or may not be currently in use, and that may or may not have any nexus to the textbook loan program, is not imbued with significant public interest.

The logical consequence of granting petitioner standing to pursue this administrative avenue to appeal the content on one sentence or paragraph in the civics textbook used by a private school and from there to argue that the NJJS should be deprived of recognition as a legitimate private school would be to open the true Pandora's box of litigation where any general State taxpayer could assert the right to question every line of text in every textbook in any school in New Jersey whether public, private, or charter. I must CONCLUDE that petitioner does not have anything other than a very tenuous or hypothetical personal interest in this paragraph from the NJJS textbook on civics. He does in fact present the case of an "interloper" who is seeking to have the State administrative process scour the minds of these private school children for possible bias against Koreans. Nor could it reasonably be said that upholding the provision of nursing fund support by the State to the benefit of New Jersey children who happen to attend NJJS will have any impact on petitioner's interest in not being offended by the civics textbook discussion on the Liancourt Rocks. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that petitioner does not have standing to challenge the provision of textbooks and nursing funds to the NJJS.

I must also concur with the respondents that even if petitioner had standing as a non-parental, non-resident general taxpayer, there would still be no action upon which relief may be granted. Significantly, nonpublic schools are not approved or certified by the Department, are not bound by the State's Core Curriculum Content Standards, N.J.A.C. 6A:8-1.1 et seq., or the Equality and Equity in Education regulations. N.J.A.C. 6A:7-1.1 et seq.⁷

It must be recognized that local boards of education have been charged by the Legislature with the orderly conduct only of public schools. K.O.H. ex rel R.H. v. Edison Twp. Bd. of Educ., 95 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 275, 276, adopted, 95 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 278, aff'd, 96 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 445. The Department has promulgated quality of education standards that must be implemented by boards of education, such as Oakland. The reach of the Core Curriculum Standards is appropriately circumscribed thusly:

(a) The Core Curriculum Content Standards apply to all students enrolled in public elementary, secondary, and adult high school education programs within the State of New Jersey.

(b) Throughout this chapter, unless otherwise noted, "district boards of education" shall be interpreted to include all providers of publicly funded elementary, secondary, and adult high school education programs, including county vocational schools, educational services commissions, jointure commissions, charter schools, regional day schools, adult high schools, county special services school districts, the Marie H. Katzenbach School for the Deaf, the Department of Human Services, the Department of Corrections, the Juvenile Justice Commission, public college-operated programs, and approved private schools for the disabled.

(c) District boards of education shall align their curriculum and instructional methodologies to assist all students in achieving the Core Curriculum Content Standards and to prepare all students for employment or postsecondary study upon their graduation.

(d) Progress toward meeting the Core Curriculum Content Standards shall be measured by the Statewide assessment system at grade levels three through eight and

a. Nonpublic schools are encouraged to comply with the provisions of the "Anti-Bullying Bill of Rights Act," P.L. 2002, c. 83 (C.18A:37-13 et seq.), as amended and supplemented by P.L. 2010, c. 122 (C.18A:37-13.1 et al.).

b. In the case of a faith-based nonpublic school, no provision of the "Anti-Bullying Bill of Rights Act," P.L. 2002, c. 83 (C.18A:37-13 et seq.), as amended and supplemented by P.L. 2010, c. 122 (C.18A:37-13.1 et al.), shall be interpreted to prohibit or abridge the legitimate statement, expression or free exercise of the beliefs or tenets of that faith by the religious organization operating the school or by the school's faculty, staff, or student body.

[N.J.S.A. 18A:37-31.]

11–12, or if ungraded at equivalent ages, and at any other grades deemed appropriate by the Commissioner.

[N.J.A.C. 6A:8-1.2.]

The scope of the genocide or diversity regulations are similarly circumscribed to public or charter schools and thus, are inapplicable to the NJJS:

These rules [on Equality and Equity in Education] specify standards that apply to district boards of education providing general education services to students in grades preschool through 12, special education services to students ages three through 21, or adult education programs, and to charter schools.

Petitioner cannot state a claim against the NJJS for its alleged failure to promote diversity and equality amongst various ethnic groups through its civics curriculum because these regulations are not binding on nonpublic schools. As set forth by respondents, parents have a right to choose for their children an education at home or in a religious or other private school at which different concepts are taught than could be taught in the public schools.⁸ Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that petitioner fails as a matter of law to state a claim upon which relief can be granted.

In assessing the propriety of the relief specifically sought against Oakland, I make one further observation that Oakland is a mere conduit of mandated State funds and exercises no discretion or authority over those funds that are directed for the limited purposes of aiding in the provision of textbooks and nursing services to students in private schools. Cf. Strubaus v. Whitman, 339 N.J. Super. 38, 50 (App. Div. 2001). To the extent that textbooks are physically loaned to the nonpublic schools, it is obvious that those would not fall within the petitioner's complaint because public schools do not have civics textbooks written in Japanese. N.J.S.A. 18A:58-37.4. Thus, there is no relief that can be required of Oakland and there has been no decision made by that Board which can be said to have been arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable.

There is simply no law and hence, can be no right to demand that the Department scrutinize the curriculum and textbooks of a nonpublic school for language, albeit a word, paragraph, page or chapter, that might offend some member of our greater public community for to do so would infringe on the rights of the NJJS, its parents and students.⁹

It is ORDERED that the motions of the Board of Education of the Borough of Oakland, the New Jersey Japanese School and the New Jersey Department of Education for Orders Dismissing the Petition of Jay J. Choi are GRANTED.

It is FURTHER ORDERED that the Petition of Jay J. Choi seeking a mandate that the NJJS cease certain teachings and that Oakland and the Department cease their provisions of funds to NJJS for textbooks and school nursing services with taxpayer monies is and the same is hereby DISMISSED.

It is FURTHER ORDERED that the Petition of Jay J. Choi seeking a mandate that the NJJS be declared not to be a nonpublic school with instruction equivalent to

⁹ An interesting analysis of the right of even public school officials to select a curriculum that an ethnic or political group might find offensive without federal court scrutiny can be found at Griswold v. Driscoll, 625 F. Supp.2d 49 (D. Mass. 2009). Further, the United States Supreme Court has long remarked on the importance of academic freedom:

The essentiality of freedom in the community of American universities is almost self-evident. No one should underestimate the vital role in a democracy that is played by those who guide and train our youth. To impose any strait jacket upon the intellectual leaders in our colleges and universities would imperil the future of our Nation. No field of education is so thoroughly comprehended by man that new discoveries cannot yet be made. Particularly is that true in the social sciences, where few, if any, principles are accepted as absolutes. Scholarship cannot flourish in an atmosphere of suspicion and distrust. Teachers and students must always remain free to inquire, to study and to evaluate, to gain new maturity and understanding; otherwise our civilization will stagnate and die.

that provided in the public schools for children of similar grades and attainments is and the same is hereby DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, P.O. CAPE MAY COUNTY.
_____ :

The record of this matter, the proposed "Settlement Agreement" (Settlement), and the Initial Decision issued by the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1, have been reviewed and found in compliance with N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6.

SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT

THIS SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT (hereinafter referred to as the “Settlement Agreement”) is made effective as of the ____ day of _____, 2011 by and between the Petitioner Board of Education of Upper Township, Cape May County, New Jersey (hereinafter referred to as the “Board”) and the Respondent Cathleen VanVorst (hereinafter referred to as the “Respondent”) (collectively the “parties”).

WHEREAS, the Board is a body corporate and politic of the State of New Jersey, charged with the statutory responsibilities for the management and administration of Upper Township School District in Cape May County, New Jersey; and

WHEREAS, the Respondent is presently employed by the Board as a tenured teacher at the Board’s Elementary School; and

WHEREAS, the Board filed certain charges against Respondent alleging unbecoming conduct, including but not limited to, violating Board Policy No. 3281 (Inappropriate Staff Conduct), Board Policy No. 2622 (Pupil Assessments), Board Policy No. 3150 (Discipline), Board Policy No. 3211 (Code of Ethics), and sought to remove Respondent from her tenured position, said charges more specifically described in the Tenure Charges filed by the Board and dated January 3, 2011 (the "Tenure Charges") attached hereto as Exhibit A; and

WHEREAS, the Respondent, by formal Answer (the "Answer") attached hereto as Exhibit B, contested the Tenure Charges and offered explanations for her actions and behavior; and

WHEREAS, the Commissioner of Education for the State of New Jersey (the "Commissioner") referred said charges to the Office of Administrative Law for a plenary hearing before the Honorable William Todd Miller, A.L.J.; and

WHEREAS, the parties appeared before the Honorable William Todd Miller, A.L.J. on September 20, 2011 for such hearing and on December 14, 2011 (Respondent by telephone) for a settlement conference; and

WHEREAS, the parties wish to settle all controversies among and between them, including the charges contained in the Tenure Charges, the defenses and counterclaims, if any, contained in the Answer and any and all related or unrelated claims, known or unknown, which could have been asserted by the Board or Respondent through this Settlement Agreement ("Settlement Agreement"); and

WHEREAS, the Respondent was questioned in open court, on the record on September 20, 2011 and questioned in open court on the record by telephone on December 14, 2011, regarding these representations and acknowledged her understanding that the Settlement

Agreement would be put in writing corresponding to the representations made in open court and that this Agreement does conform to those representations.

WHEREAS, the parties acknowledge that the merits of the controversy are in dispute and that neither the Board nor Respondent admits any liability to either, but both have reasons to desire a resolution of the matter; and

WHEREAS, the Board and Respondent specifically recognize and acknowledge that any settlement is contingent upon approval by the Commissioner as required by and consistent with New Jersey Administrative Code § 6A:3-5.6 and In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Frank Cardonick, State Board of Education decision of April 6, 1983 (1990 School Law Decisions, S.L.D. 842, 846); and

NOW THEREFORE, in consideration of the agreements, promises, covenants and conditions contained herein, the adequacy and sufficiency of which are expressly acknowledged by the parties hereto and the recitations set forth above which are incorporated by reference herein, the parties agree as follows:

1. DISMISSAL OF ACTION.

(a) The Board will pay Respondent her salary until the last regular pay for the 2011 calendar year. Contemporaneous with the signing of this Settlement Agreement, Respondent will deposit with Petitioner's attorney an irrevocable letter of retirement effective two weeks after the Commissioner of Education approves the Settlement Agreement retiring from any and all positions, tenured or untenured, held or claimed by Respondent with the Board attached hereto as Exhibit C. Respondent shall turn in all security cards, ID cards keys, laptop and/or other items that are Board property and shall not come on school premises except at such time as the general public is invited or permitted or with prior approval of the Superintendent, or as otherwise provided in this Agreement. Respondent shall not be entitled to any "retroactivity" or other payment if the Board and any collective bargaining agent who purports to act on Respondent's behalf shall settle any collective bargaining agreement setting forth a new rate of pay for Respondent.

(b) Two weeks after this Settlement Agreement is approved by the Commissioner of Education, the Board will pay Respondent in accordance with the following:

Salary 2011-2012	$84,239.00
Less Salary Received for 2011-2012 School Year until the end of calendar year 2011	($33,695.60)
Total:	$50,543.40

(c) Respondent acknowledges and represents that she shall not apply or seek any position with the Board or School District including but not limited to any paid, unpaid, appointed, or other position. However, Respondent may attend or volunteer to assist in any future School District functions as a family member of a student or as a member of the public subject to the District's rules regarding same.

(d) Upon Respondent's retirement she shall retire from any and all employment with the Board and shall be entitled to any benefit or privilege for persons retiring from service presently contained in the Board's collective bargaining agreement with the association representing Respondent in effect at the time of the execution of this Settlement Agreement.

(e) Said payment received as provided in Paragraph 1(a), (b) and (d) shall constitute full and absolute payment by the Board to Respondent for all salary, benefits, emoluments, or other claims, rights or privileges Respondent has, may have, claims or may claim, including but not limited to salary for any period, accumulated sick leave, vacation or other paid leave, benefits, fringe benefits, pension contributions, in-kind or other contributions, opt-out or other payments.

(f) Upon the approval of the Commissioner of Education of this Settlement Agreement, the Board will withdraw and dismiss the Tenure Charges.

2. RELEASE. Respondent, personally and for her legal or personal representatives, assignee, estate and/or heirs, waives, releases and gives up any and all other claims, demands, obligations, damages, liabilities, causes of action and rights, in law or in equity, known and unknown, that she may have against the Board and any and all of its officers, directors, agents, representatives and employees (present and former) and their respective successors and assigns, heirs, executors and legal or personal representatives, based upon any act, event or omission occurring before the execution of this Settlement Agreement including, but not limited to, any events related to, arising from or in connection with Respondent's employment with the Board or the Tenure Charges. Respondent specifically waives, releases and gives up any and all claims arising from or relating to her employment and/or association with the Board based upon any act, event or omission occurring before the execution of this Settlement Agreement including, but not limited to, any claim that was asserted or could have been asserted under any federal or state statutes, regulations, or common law or Board policies or regulations.

3. NO CLAIMS PERMITTED/COVENANT NOT TO SUE. Respondent waives her right to file any charge or complaint on her own behalf, to participate as a complainant, a plaintiff or a charging party in any charge or complaint, or to collect damages as a result of any charge or complaint which may be made by any other person or organization on her behalf, with respect to anything which has happened up to the execution of this Settlement Agreement, before any federal, state or local court or administrative agency against the Board except as such waiver is prohibited by law. Respondent hereby waives and releases any right to file a complaint for any actions related to any tort claim notices that she has previously filed against the Board and any employee.

4. ATTORNEY'S FEES. Each party agrees that each party will bear its own costs and attorney's fees which have been incurred in connection with the within matter and in conjunction with the negotiation and preparation of this Settlement Agreement.

5. NO ADMISSION OF LIABILITY. It is expressly understood that neither the execution of this Settlement Agreement, nor any other action taken by the Respondent in conjunction with the Board's claims or this settlement, constitute admission by the Respondent of any violation of any law, duty or obligation. It is also understood that the acceptance of this settlement does not constitute any representation by the Board as to the merits of its claims or the lack thereof.

6. ENTIRE AGREEMENT. This Settlement Agreement contains the sole and entire agreement between the parties hereto. Each party represents and acknowledges that prior to executing this Settlement Agreement, they consulted with or had an opportunity to consult with counsel, has had ample time to do so and that no party relied upon any representation or statement not set forth in this Settlement Agreement made by any other party hereto, or their counsel or representatives, with regard to the subject matter of this Settlement Agreement. No other promises or agreements shall be binding unless in writing, signed by the parties hereto, and expressly stated to represent an amendment to this Settlement Agreement.

7. BOARD APPROVAL. It is expressly understood that this Settlement Agreement and the settlement pursuant to the terms listed in this Settlement Agreement is contingent upon Board approval. A copy of the Board's Resolution approving this Settlement Agreement is attached as Exhibit D and incorporated herein by reference.

8. COMMISSIONER'S APPROVAL. It is expressly understood that this Settlement Agreement, and the settlement pursuant to the terms listed in this Settlement Agreement must first be approved by the Commissioner of Education and must meet the following standards as enumerated in N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6(a):

(a) Accompaniment by documentation as to the nature of the charges: Petition of Charges are attached hereto and incorporated herein as Exhibit A with the Answer attached hereto and incorporated herein as Exhibit B.

(b) Explanation of the circumstances justifying settlement or withdrawal: The Board agrees to request that the Commissioner of Education approve the Board's voluntary dismissal of the tenure charges, Agency Docket No. 16-1/11, OAL Docket No. EDU 01532-2011S, with prejudice in light of Respondent's retirement. In executing this Agreement, Respondent understands the ultimate decision with regard to the resolution of the tenure charges lies with the Commissioner of Education and in the event that the New Jersey Commissioner of Education rejects the settlement between the Board and Respondent, then this Settlement Agreement is completely null and void and the tenure charges currently pending will continue to be processed. Respondent understands and has been advised by her counsel of the Commissioner's duty to refer tenure determinations resulting in loss of position to the State Board of Examiners for possible suspension or revocation of certificate. Attached as Exhibit E is Respondent's Affidavit showing that she has been counseled in every respect and knows that the State Board of Examiners can act independently. Respondent is aware that the State Board of Examiners has been advised of the facts contained in the tenure charge and that they as a body have the right to take an action against her certification if they so desire.

(c) Consent of both the charged and charging parties is evidenced by this Settlement Agreement.

(d) Indication that the charged party entered into the agreement with a full understanding of his or her rights is evidenced by this Settlement Agreement as well as Respondent's sworn testimony on the record in person before Judge Miller on September 20, 2011 and by telephone before Judge Miller on December 14, 2011.

(e) A showing that the agreement is in the public interest as evidenced by this Settlement Agreement. This Settlement Agreement is also shown to be in the public interest as a result of the parties' separation and satisfaction of any and all claims related to the Tenure Charges. In addition, the public interest is supported by the saving of valuable witness educational time in the form of the avoidance of students missing class time to testify in Court and of teachers and administrators missing time in school during which time their services are required in order to continue providing a thorough and efficient education to the Board's students. The avoidance of subjecting student witnesses to the stresses of testifying in Court is also evidence that this Settlement Agreement is in the public interest. Furthermore, the cost savings to the Board and the public as a result of settling the matter, which is significantly less than the cost associated with prosecuting the Tenure Charges, including appeals, evidence that this Settlement Agreement is in the public interest.

(f) Where the charged party is a teaching staff member, a showing that the teaching staff member has been advised, and was advised, and by recitation of this provision Respondent is advised, of the Commissioner's duty to refer tenure determinations resulting in loss of position to the State Board of Examiners for possible suspension or revocation of certificate. Respondent is aware that the State Board of Examiners has been advised of the facts contained in the tenure charge and that they as a body have the right to take an action against her certification if they so desire.

9. REFERENCE. In the event the Board is contacted by any future possible employer of Respondent, the Board will not provide any reference positive or negative and will only provide Respondent's dates of employment.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the parties have set their hands and seals as of the day and year first written.

SPECIFICATION: The NJASK is a statewide assessment mandated by the New Jersey Department of Education and is created to be a comprehensive, multi-grade assessment program. Such training also advised all test examiners, administrators and school personnel that they were required to report, among other items, any testing irregularities as soon as possible. Such training also advised that "Examiners, proctors and other school personnel may not discuss or disclose any test items either before, during or after the test administration."

SPECIFICATION: On or about April 15, 2010 Catherine Van Vorst signed a New Jersey ASK Department of Education Statewide Assessments Test Security Agreement which provides among other items: paragraph 6: "I will not review any test items or passages with students before, during or after the assessment"; paragraph 8: "I will not interfere with the independent work of any student taking the assessment and I will not compromise the security of the test by any means...."; paragraph 9: "I will administer the assessment in accordance with the directions for administration set forth in the test examiner manuals; paragraph 10: "I have been trained to administer statewide assessments."

students how to answer open ended questions on the NJASK, and reviewing other specifically tested information of the NJASK, such as placement of decimal points and instructing students on how to fold a piece of paper to answer a fraction. In addition, Catherine Van Vorst did compromise the security of the NJASK for her fourth grade class by tapping students on the head if they made a mistake, telling students to check over their work, reading questions directly to students, giving examples of the test questions before the beginning of the test, telling students to raise their hands if they did not understand a question and giving examples of answers.

SPECIFICATION: Catherine Van Vorst's actions were without just cause or approval of the Board or the Board's administration. Catherine Van Vorst's actions were not caused by ignorance or mistake regarding the security protocols. In the Matter of Tenure Charges Against Cathleen Van Vorst, Upper Township School District

AGENCY DKT. NO.

CATHLEEN VAN VORST'S RESPONSE TO TENURE CHARGES

CATHLEEN VAN VORST, by and through her attorney, Ned P. Rogovoy, Esquire, answers the tenure charges by saying:

No investigation was properly done which allows for a conclusion that there was a breach by a preponderance of the evidence.

Preponderance of the evidence is not just a term of art. It is a term with legal significance. The 14th Amendment allows an individual due process by being represented by counsel, confronting the witnesses against her by cross examination and then having a trier of fact who is either a judge or a jury of peers who has also personally heard the case, then making a determination as to whether the scales of justice have been tipped in favor of the proposition of unprofessional conduct.

If there were to be a tenure case, then the due process that is specified above will have to occur with the school having the burden of proof and duty to prove by a preponderance of the evidence that teacher Van Vorst's conduct rises to such an unprofessional level that her tenure in the district after 25 years should be taken.

Preponderance of the evidence indicates who has the burden of proof and the school system has the burden of proof in a tenure case.

Something should also be said that whoever this author of the OFAC report is has not interviewed any witnesses himself, no witnesses were cross examined and he very cavalierly determined that there was a "breach of procedure." We as Americans are used to quantifying breaches in certain ways. If the breach happens to be that of an earthquake, then we have a Richter scale. We can all determine that a scratch is a breach to paint, however, the extent of the scratch we attempt to quantify in our minds after looking at the scratch and seeing the breach for ourselves. In this particular case, the breach could be akin to an earthquake on a Richter scale of a .001. There is no way to measure the breach.

To use the terms preponderance of evidence, without due process, without a burden of proof, without Mrs. Van Vorst having a right to cross examine witnesses on her behalf and coming face-to-face with accusers is nothing more than words and art. Mrs. Van Vorst was tried so far by hearsay and reports which admit to assumption.

Mrs. Van Vorst never looked at any of these tests prior to the children and then specifically taught them methods or supplied answers. All of that would be a terribly unprofessional act, but I quote Melissa Giacomo's statement when she said she, "... assumed (emphasis added) were on the test." She mentioned, referring to Mrs. Van Vorst's instructions to the children that, "On question six, you will use the nine times table." Has anyone in this investigation actually examined the math test and determined whether question number six has anything to do with the nine times table, or again, has anyone believed the statement that Mrs. Van Vorst has explained as to how the nine times trick came to be discussed in her classroom that day. It was not initiated by her and it was not related to any question on the test, but rather a student's recount of a method to get the nine times table correct.

Mrs. Van Vorst has over and over again from day one of the investigation explained when she had a chance, why she took longer than was anticipated. It is not that she gave the test to the children for a longer time period than was allowed. It is because she has a special education child mainstreamed in her class who would not leave and therefore, she could not begin the test until the child had been comfortably taken to his special education teacher. Therefore, the test got started late, but the amount of time allotted for each test protocol was done properly by Mrs. Van Vorst. The time issue is totally unrelated to impropriety.

The Board has seen the way in which the paper was folded so that the students could use it for 16 different answers. This was not something Mrs. Van Vorst originated herself. It was also discussed amongst other teachers in the school and they did likewise, it is not a disclosure of answers to questions.

There was never any hearing whereby the school had the burden of proof and the trier of fact, after due process, found that the Board of Education had sustained its burden of proof by a preponderance of the evidence. Any suggestion that there was a proper protocol used to make a determination of unprofessional conduct violates every principle of due process. To use the word breach without properly defining the depth and width of a breach on some type of measurable scale does nothing but lead to the conclusion that a presumably mild breach and a severe breach are one in the same when we know that an earthquake of a .001 on the Richter scale will not cause anywhere near the devastation of an earthquake measured at .7.

These general terms and this general investigation falls far short of due process and fairness, and to make assumptions which will possibly taint a teacher's professional career is not appropriate nor fair to say the least.

Cathleen Van Vorst, by and through her attorney, Ned P. Rogovoy, Esquire, will if the tenure charges are filed, contest same in the proper forum which mandates due process.

It should be noted, however, that before these charges are certified that a great deal of time, expense and inconvenience will flow to the District, and the District's stability, as well as the consternation caused to Cathleen Van Vorst. Therefore, I ask the Board that prior to certifying these charges, that you look with circumspect at the actions of Cathleen Van Vorst on May 10, 11 and 12, 2010, as well as for the past 25 years.

SYNOPSIS

The petitioner (DVSEC) appeals the Department's determination that petitioner – a private school for children with disabilities (PSD) which has been approved to educate students sent to it by public school districts – may not include in its tuition charges for the 2007-08 school year the undisputed amount of $10,360, which it incurred to provide student lunches. Respondent contends that the disallowance is justified pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:23A-18 et seq. The parties have filed cross motions for summary decision.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: there is no genuine issue of material fact, and the matter is ripe for summary decision; pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:23-4.2(a) (now codified as N.J.A.C. 6A:23A-18 (a)), a sending district may only be charged for allowable costs; non-allowable costs are defined by code and include the costs of meals for students, unless the PSD meets the criteria set forth in N.J.A.C. 6A:23-4.2(a)20; such criteria include receipt of two separate school board resolutions from a majority of the school districts that contracted to send students to the PSD in that fiscal year, the first resolution declaring that those districts do not require the PSD to apply for and receive funding from the State's Child Nutrition Program, and the second declaring that those district boards do not require the PSD to charge students for reduced and/or paid meals; the number of sending districts petitioner had for purposes of the regulation was seven; four, therefore, constituted a majority; and petitioner had only two valid resolutions for the 2007-2008 school year. The ALJ concluded that DVSEC did not meet its burden of proving that the respondent acted in an arbitrary and capricious manner when it disallowed $10,360 in food service costs incurred during the 2007-2008 school year, granted respondent's motion for summary decision, and dismissed the petition.

Upon a thorough and independent review of the record, the Commissioner found that, under the circumstances of this case, the number of sending districts under contract with the petitioner at the time designated by the regulations was five; three constituted a majority and only one district submitted the required resolutions. Consequently, the Commissioner concluded that the petitioner failed to show that respondent's disallowance of the food services fee as a component of tuition costs was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. The Initial Decision of the OAL was adopted as modified, and the petition was dismissed.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

Before the Commissioner is an appeal from respondent's determination that petitioner – a private school for children with disabilities (PSD) which has been approved to educate students sent to it by public school districts – may not include in its tuition charges for the 2007-08 school year the undisputed amount of $10,360 which it incurred to provide student lunches. Upon review of the record, Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), petitioner's exceptions and respondent's replies thereto, the Commissioner concludes that the petitioner has failed to show that respondent's disallowance of the food service fees as a component of tuition costs was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable.

Governing the controversy is N.J.A.C. 6A:23-4.5(a) (now codified as N.J.A.C. 6A:23A-18.5(a)) which identifies "[c]osts that are not allowable in the calculation of the certified actual cost per student." This Department of Education (Department) regulation provides, in pertinent part, that a PSD may not fold the costs of student lunches into tuition fees unless certain conditions have been met. N.J.A.C. 6A:23-4.5(a)(20). Two of those conditions are at issue in the instant case.

The first condition, articulated in N.J.A.C. 6A:23-4.5(a)(20)(ii), requires that for lunch costs to be included in the tuition calculations a PSD must have received, on an annual basis prior to the start of the fiscal year, school board resolutions from a majority of the school districts that have contracted to send students to the PSD in that fiscal year, which resolutions declare that those district boards of education do not require the PSD to apply for and receive funding from the State's Child Nutrition Program (CNP). The second condition, set forth in N.J.A.C. 6A:23-4.5(a)(20)(iii), similarly requires that for lunch costs to be included in tuition calculations a PSD must have received, on an annual basis prior to the start of the fiscal year, school board resolutions from a majority of the school districts that have contracted to send students to the PSD in that fiscal year, which resolutions declare that those district boards of education do not require the PSD to charge students for a reduced and/or paid meal.

As a threshold matter, the parties have offered differing theories about the number of school board resolutions that petitioner needed in 2007 for it to satisfy the above stated conditions for including lunch costs in the tuition fees. Petitioner's number is three – constituting a majority of the five school districts that had – before the beginning of the 2008 fiscal year – contracted to send students to petitioner. Respondent contends that the number should be five, which constitutes a majority of the eight schools that actually sent students to petitioner during the 2007-08 school year.

While respondent's position is not without appeal, the date identified in N.J.A.C. 6A:23-4.5(a)(20) as the time at which school districts must weigh in about whether they will allow food service costs to be included in tuition fees is clear. As regards the present matter, that date was June 30, 2007. Thus, for petitioner to have been allowed to include food service costs in its tuition fees, it would have had to have received the required board resolutions from three of the five districts that had entered into contracts with it by June 30, 2007.

The five districts in question were Bordentown, Trenton, South Brunswick, Rancocas Valley and South Orange-Maplewood. It is undisputed that Bordentown timely provided petitioner with the resolutions required both by N.J.A.C. 6A:23-4.5(a)(20)(ii) and (iii). It also appears undisputed that Trenton did not timely submit the required resolutions, and South Brunswick submitted no resolutions at all. Thus, the question of whether petitioner's food service cost for the 2007-08 school year was an allowable component of its tuition fees turns on whether the required resolutions were timely submitted by the Rancocas Valley and South Orange-Maplewood school districts.

The Commissioner concurs with the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) that the South Orange-Maplewood board of education timely submitted only one of the two resolutions required by N.J.A.C. 6A:23-4.5(a)(20). It did not submit a resolution excusing petitioner from the requirement – set forth in N.J.A.C. 6A:23-4.5(a)(20)(ii) – to apply to the CNP for funding, and can therefore not be counted as a school board which exempted petitioner from the prohibitions of N.J.A.C. 6A:23-4.5(a)(20). Nor can the Commissioner impute to the South Orange Maplewood board of education an intent that is not – contrary to petitioner's suggestion – evident in the correspondence from the South Orange-Maplewood Board.

Thus, petitioner did not have the required resolutions from a majority of the five sending school districts with which it had contracted by June 30, 2007. It was consequently not arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable for respondent to disallow lunch costs as an element of the per-child tuition rate which petitioner was entitled to charge.

In light of the foregoing, the instant controversy may be resolved without reference to the parties' competing theories about whether the Rancocas Valley's submission¹ could be deemed to have satisfied the conditions set forth in N.J.A.C. 6A:23-4.5(a)(20). However, the Commissioner makes the following observations.

Petitioner urged the Commissioner not to elevate form over substance, and to determine that the Rancocas Valley submission substantially complied with the waivers referenced in N.J.A.C. 6A:23-4.5(a)(20). While it is often appropriate to ensure that the substantive legislative intent of a statute or regulation is not frustrated by technicalities, the task at hand is less to interpret N.J.A.C. 6A:23-4.5(a)(20), and more to assess Rancocas Valley's submissions.

Ultimately, it is only the cover letter by Board Secretary Robert L. Sapp that mentions an intent to allow petitioner to include lunch costs in its tuition calculations without charging lunch fees. Respondent reminds us that the representations of individual board members or administrators are insufficient to bind a board to a particular course of action and that a board can only be bound by official board action. See, e.g. Robert Busler v. Board of Education of the Township of East Orange, Essex County, Commissioner Decision No. 281-01 (August 30, 2001), aff'd State Board of Education Decision No. 38-01 (February 6, 2002); Dorrington v. Board of Education of the Township of North Bergen, Hudson County, 1982 S.L.D. 247, aff'd, 1982 S.L.D. 256. The foregoing canon is especially sensible when financial accountability is at issue. Thus, the Commissioner cannot regard as arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable respondent's reluctance to rely on Sapp's cover letter in lieu of the formal resolution of the Rancocas Valley Board of Education.

In summary, petitioner failed to show that respondent's disallowance of food service costs as a component of petitioner's 2007-08 school year tuition calculations was an arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable act. Accordingly, the Initial Decision is modified as set forth herein above, and the petition is dismissed.

Record Closed: September 27, 2011

Decided: November 18, 2011

BEFORE LISA JAMES-BEAVERS, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On July 12, 2010, petitioner Delaware Valley School for Exceptional Children (DVSEC) filed a petition with the Commissioner of Education alleging that the decision of the respondent Department of Education, Division of Finance (respondent) to disallow $10,360 in food service costs incurred during the 2007-2008 school year was arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable. On July 23, 2010, respondent filed an answer to the petition denying the allegations and relying on its May 17, 2010 letter setting forth the justification for the disallowance. The Commissioner transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for hearing as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. It was filed with the OAL on August 27, 2010.

Respondent and petitioner filed cross motions for summary decision, setting forth that there were no material facts in dispute and each was entitled to judgment as a matter of law. I heard oral argument on September 27, 2011.

FINDINGS OF FACT

The following material facts have been stipulated and therefore I FIND them as FACT:

1. The Delaware Valley School for Exceptional Children, Inc. ("DVSEC") is an approved private school for the disabled ("PSD").
2. As an approved PSD, the DVSEC is subject to the provisions of N.J.A.C. 6A:23A-18, et seq.
3. As an approved PSD, the DVSEC must determine its final tuition rate in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:23A-18.2.
4. Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:23A-18.2, the final tuition rate charged by an approved PSD must be less than or equal to the certified actual cost per student.
5. N.J.A.C. 6A:23A-18.5(a)(20)(ii) prohibits an approved PSD from including specified costs in the calculation of the certified actual cost per student.
6. As an approved PSD, the DVSEC was prohibited from including the cost of meals for students in the calculation of its certified actual cost per student for the 2007-2008 school year, unless prior to the start of the fiscal year it received school board resolutions from five (5) of the school districts that it served in that fiscal year, resolving that the district board of education did not require the DVSEC to charge students for a reduced and/or paid meal.

7. As an approved PSD, the DVSEC was prohibited from including the cost of meals for students in the calculation of its certified actual cost per student for the 2007-2008 school year, unless prior to the start of the fiscal year it received school board resolutions from five (5) of the school districts that it served in that fiscal year, resolving that the district board of education did not require the DVSEC to apply for and receive funding from the Child Nutrition Program.¹
8. Prior to the start of the fiscal year, DVSEC received a school board resolution from Bordentown school district resolving that it did not require the DVSEC to apply for and receive funding from the Child Nutrition Program for the 2007-2008 school year.
9. Prior to the start of the fiscal year, DVSEC received a school board resolution from Bordentown school district resolving that it did not require the DVSEC to charge students for a reduced and/or paid meal for the 2007-2008 school year.
10. Prior to the start of the fiscal year, DVSEC did not receive a school board resolution from Trenton school district resolving that it did not require the DVSEC to apply for and receive funding from the Child Nutrition Program for the 2007-2008 school year.
11. Prior to the start of the fiscal year, DVSEC did not receive a school board resolution from Trenton school district resolving that it did not require the DVSEC to charge students for a reduced and/or paid meal for the 2007-2008 school year.
12. The Trenton Board of Education did not pass a resolution that it did not require the DVSEC to apply for and receive funding from the Child

¹ Although the DVSEC stipulated to the facts in number six and seven, it argued in its motion that the law required only three resolutions from school districts from which it contracted prior to the start of the 2007-2008 fiscal year. Ultimately, it is a legal, not factual issue, whether three or five resolutions were required.

Nutrition Program or to charge students for a reduced and/or paid meal for the 2007-2008 school year until March 2010.

13. During the 2007-2008 school year, the DVSEC incurred food services costs in the amount of $10,360.00.
14. Respecting the 2007-2008 school year, DVSEC did not, prior to the start of the fiscal year, receive school board resolutions from five (5) of the school districts that it served in that fiscal year, resolving that the district board of education did not require the DVSEC to apply for and receive funding from the Child Nutrition Program.

The following facts, set forth in the parties' briefs are undisputed, although not stipulated. Accordingly, I FIND them as FACT:

1. DVSEC opted not to charge students for meals due to its concerns about behaviorally challenged students carrying money to school.
2. On June 1, 2007, Dr. James Calderone drafted a letter to the five school districts that were planning to send students to DVSEC for school in 2007-2008 – Trenton, Bordentown, South Brunswick, Rancocas Valley and South Orange-Maplewood, explaining that the regulations had changed regarding student meals.
3. Dr. Calderone's letter requested a resolution absolving DVSEC from charging students for reduced or paid meals as referenced in N.J.A.C. 6A:23-4.5(a)2(ii) and (iii), explained the rationale for making the request and attached a copy of the new regulation. (Calderone Certification, Exhibit A).
4. Before sending the letter, he personally telephoned his assigned contact people in each of the five districts to let them know that the letter was coming and then faxed it to them.
5. Prior to the start of DVSEC's fiscal year on July 1, 2007, DVSEC received back resolutions from Bordentown, Rancocas Valley and South Orange-Maplewood.

6. Bordentown's resolution, adopted June 19, 2007, set forth that the DVSEC "will meet the nutritional requirement of the Children Nutrition Program as administered by the New Jersey Department of Agriculture, but will not be required to apply for funding or to charge for reduced and/or paid meals. Bordentown sent it under cover letter addressing only that DVSEC did not have to charge students for reduced and/or paid meals.
7. Rancocas Valley's resolution, adopted June 26, 2007, approved that the school "not require that private schools for the handicapped apply for and receive funding from the CNP." It was forwarded under a cover letter stating that the school "does not require the private schools to apply for and receive funding from the Child Nutrition Program. The cover letter further stated that the school "does not require the [DVSEC] to charge students for reduced and/or paid meals."
8. South Orange-Maplewood's resolution, adopted June 18, 2007, approved that the Board does not require private schools "to charge our district students attending these schools for a reduced and/or paid meal." It was forwarded under a transmittal letter advising that the board "approved a resolution absolving your school from charging students for reduced and/or paid meals."
9. South Brunswick opted not to reply.
10. Trenton's contact person told Dr. Calderone that it had approved the resolution, but did not provide one until April 28, 2008, which referenced the 2008-2009 school year rather than the 2007-2008 school year at issue. On March 8, 2010, the Trenton board approved a resolution absolving DVSEC from charging students for meals or applying for reimbursement from the Child Nutrition Program for the 2007-2008 school year.
11. As of July 1, 2007, DVSEC had resolutions from three of the five school districts that had contracted to enroll students. These were Bordentown, Rancocas Valley and South Orange-Maplewood.

12. In September 2007, three new school districts contracted to enroll students at DVSEC. They were Northern Burlington, South Hunterdon and Hamilton Township. Dr. Calderone called each district and faxed a letter explaining the need for a resolution.
13. Only Northern Burlington provided a resolution dated November 19, 2007, absolving DVSEC from charging students for reduced and or paid meals as stipulated under the Child Nutrition Program.
14. When the Office of Fiscal Policy and Planning (OFPP) wrote to DVSEC's auditor and asked for proof that DVSEC had secured the required number of resolutions, DVSEC's auditor responded and forwarded resolutions from Bordentown, Northern Burlington, Rancocas, South Orange-Maplewood and Trenton on March 9, 2010. He said, "As DVSEC served students from nine (9) districts during the 2007-2008 school year please note that five districts constitute a majority."
15. Mr. Verner from the OFPP set forth that only two of the nine resolutions, those of Bordentown and Trenton, had both resolutions and disallowed $10,360 in tuition charges for students' meals. (Respondent's brief, Exhibit J).
16. DVSEC's auditor requested that Mr. Verner consider the underlying intent of the resolutions, but Mr. Verner denied the request saying that the required language had to be in the resolutions.
17. On May 10, 2010, Dr. Calderone appealed the OFPP determination to the Assistant Commissioner for Finance, who denied it. DVSEC then filed the present appeal.

ANALYSIS

I. Is Summary Decision Appropriate?

The parties have filed cross-motions for summary decision pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5. These provisions mirror the language of R. 4:46-2 of the New Jersey Court Rules. See also Brill v. Guardian Life Ins. Co., 142 N.J. 520 (1995). Under N.J.A.C.

1:1-12.5(b), the motion for summary decision may be granted “if the papers and discovery which have been filed, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law.” The opposing party must submit responding affidavits showing that there is indeed a genuine issue of material fact, which can only be determined in an evidentiary proceeding, and that the moving party is not entitled to summary decision as a matter of law. Failure to do so entitles the moving party to summary judgment. Brill, supra, 142 N.J. 520. The New Jersey Supreme Court’s standard for summary judgment is thus designed to “liberalize the standards so as to permit summary judgment in a larger number of cases” due to the perception that we live in “a time of great increase in litigation and one in which many meritless cases are filed.” Brill, supra, 142 N.J. at 539.

The parties agree that there are no material facts in dispute and the issue remaining is one of the application of the law to the facts of the present case. Therefore, I CONCLUDE this matter is ripe for summary decision.

DVSEC, as an approved PSD, has public school districts that send students to its school. Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:23-4.2(a), a sending district may only be charged for allowable costs. Non-allowable costs are defined by code and include the cost of meals for students, unless the PSD meets the criteria set forth at N.J.A.C. 6A:23-4.5(a)20, which provides, in pertinent part:

20. The cost of meals:

- i. For students when the meals do not meet the nutritional requirements of the Child Nutrition Program as administered by the New Jersey Department of Agriculture;
- ii. Effective July 1, 2007, for students when a non-profit approved private school for students with disabilities has not applied for and received funding from the Child Nutrition Program as administered by the New Jersey Department of Agriculture except when the private school has received on an annual basis prior to the start of the fiscal year, school board resolutions from a majority of the school districts that have contracted to send students to the private school in that fiscal year, which resolves the district board of education does not require the private school to apply for and receive funding from the Child Nutrition Program (CNP);

- iii. Effective July 1, 2007, for students when the approved private school for students with disabilities has not charged students for paid and reduced meals in accordance with the income eligibility criteria established by the Child Nutrition Program as administered by the New Jersey Department of Agriculture except when the private school has received, on an annual basis prior to the start of the fiscal year school board resolutions from a majority of the school districts that have contracted to send students to the private school in that fiscal year, which resolves the district board of education does not require the private school to charge students for a reduced and/or paid meal;

II. How Many Resolutions Was DVSEC Required to Obtain?

DVSEC stipulated that it was prohibited from including the cost of meals for students in the calculation of its certified actual cost per student for the 2007-2008 school year, unless it received resolutions from five of the nine school districts that it served in that fiscal year resolving that the district board of education did not require the DVSEC to charge students for a reduced and/or paid meal or to apply for and receive funding from the CNP. (Respondent's brief, Exhibit C, 8 and 9). In addition, DVSEC's auditor wrote to Mr. Verner that, "As DVSEC served students from nine (9) districts during the 2007-2008 school year please note that five districts constitute a majority." (Respondent's brief, Exhibit B). Nevertheless, DVSEC now argues that the language of the regulation setting forth that the number of resolutions is based on the number of districts with whom the PSD has contracted at the start of the fiscal year. That number would be five, rather than nine, and the majority would be three. Further, in the moving papers of both parties, there are only eight sending school districts named, not nine, although admittedly, the majority would still be five. DVSEC further argues, however, that Hamilton should not be counted since the one student it was sending to DVSEC moved to Bordentown in October 2007. Noting this change would bring the number of sending districts to seven and the majority to four.

The plain language of the regulation says that the number of resolutions the PSD must obtain is that of a "majority of the school districts that have contracted to send students to the private school in that fiscal year” prior to the start of the fiscal year. Because DVSEC had contracted with only five districts prior to the start of the fiscal year on July 1, 2007, in order to get the number eight, respondent needs to draw an inference that the number of districts that constitute the pool must be the whole of those that contracted with the PSD during the entire 2007-2008 fiscal year, despite the plain language of the regulation. DVSEC’s auditor was accepting of this inference as noted in his letters of March 9, 2010 and April 8, 2010. (Respondent’s brief, Exhibits B and K). Attachments to DVSEC’s brief indicate that the Department extended the deadline to obtain resolutions in recognition of the fact that all contracts had not been signed between the sending and receiving districts as of July 1, 2007.

Thus, I CONCLUDE that, in the present case, the auditor’s letters, the stipulation and the logical inference to be drawn from the regulation is that the “majority” should be based on the number of districts that contracted with the PSD during the fiscal year 2007-2008. Regarding DVSEC’s argument that such a number would fluctuate so much as to be equivalent to threading a moving needle, determining the number was not difficult in the present case. The auditor and the OFPP were in agreement that all of the sending districts for the fiscal year should be counted. DVSEC had five sending districts contract with it by the start of the 2007-2008 fiscal year in July 2007, the majority of which was three. By the end of September 2007, three new school districts had chosen to enroll students at DVSEC, bringing the total to eight, the majority of which was five. In October 2007, the one student from Hamilton transferred to Bordentown bringing the number of sending districts to seven. The auditor was unaware or did not make the OFPP aware that the one student from Hamilton moved to Bordentown bringing the number of sending districts to seven for the fiscal year 2007-2008, the majority of which would be four. Rather than challenge the number of sending districts in its opposition to DVSEC’s cross-motion, respondent takes the position that DVSEC does not have enough appropriate resolutions to defeat its motion for summary decision using even five sending districts as the measure. I CONCLUDE that the number of sending districts the DVSEC had for purposes of the regulation at issue was seven, the majority of which constitutes four.

III. Was the Respondent's Determination that DVSEC Did Not Provide the Required Number of Resolutions Arbitrary, Capricious and Unreasonable?

Both DVSEC and respondent succinctly set forth their arguments in their cross-motions for summary decision. DVSEC argues that it is clear that the districts intended to give DVSEC both of the requested exemptions and to hold otherwise would violate the Commissioner's admonition not to exalt form over substance. See Kentwood Academy v. Lucille Davy, EDU 7165-08, adopted, Commissioner July 27, 2009. DVSEC supplements this argument with recent cases in which the Commissioner upheld a decision stating that substantial compliance with regulatory requirements was sufficient. Brookfield Schools v. N.J. State Dept. of Education, Division of Finance, EDU 11447-10, adopted July 28, 2011; Celebrate the Children v. N.J. State Dept. of Educ., Division of Finance, EDU 7771-10, adopted August 29, 2011. Last, DVSEC argues that it should not be held responsible for the clerical errors of its sending districts. Respondent argues, however, that it is longstanding principle that the representations of an individual board member or administrator are insufficient to bind a board to a particular course of action. See Cheryl Dorrington v. North Bergen Board of Education, 1982 S.L.D. 247. Respondent goes on to argue that it would be irresponsible for the Department of Education to accept a letter authored by a single board member or administrator as the equivalent of a board action. Respondent notes that the board resolutions are the only documentation of official board action.

DVSEC filed the petition and filed for summary decision on the grounds that, as a matter of law, respondent's decision to disallow $10,360 in food service costs for failure to provide the required number of resolutions was arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable. As stipulated and FOUND as FACT, one resolution, that of Bordentown, clearly complies in a timely manner with the requirements for a resolution giving DVSEC the exemptions. Thus, at issue is whether respondent was arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable in not accepting three others resolutions as compliant.

The Rancocas Valley resolution failed to exempt DVSEC from charging students for reduced and/or paid meals, but in its cover letter to the resolution signed by the Board Secretary said that Rancocas Valley does not require the private schools to apply for and receive funding from the Child Nutrition Program and does not require the DVSEC to charge students for reduced and/or paid meals. In the case of the Rancocas Valley resolution, the Board clearly intended to adopt a resolution absolving DVSEC of both the need to seek reimbursement from CNP and the choice to charge students for free or reduced meals. Thus, rejecting it would be to place form above substance for no good reason. See Kentwood Academy v. Lucille Davy, supra. It would not have been irresponsible for the respondent to consider the cover letter in that instance as it did not conflict with the board resolution, only clarified it. It would be the more logical interpretation since the Board opted to approve a resolution in the first place. As DVSEC's auditor argued, to find otherwise would mean that it took the time to adopt a resolution and set the requirements in the cover letter to not provide the required exemptions when it could have as easily done so by doing nothing. Therefore, I FIND that the resolution of Rancocas Valley substantially complied with the regulation and should have counted toward its necessary majority of sending school districts.

The South Orange-Maplewood resolution failed to exempt DVSEC from seeking reimbursement from the CNP and in its cover letter only said it was exempting DVSEC from charging students for reduced and/or paid meals. South Orange-Maplewood is a more difficult board to discern intent other than what was written. Both the resolution and the cover letter absolve DVSEC only of charging students for reduced or paid meals. Respondent's argument does not apply here as the cover letter does not say anything different than the resolution. DVSEC's argument that the district substantially complied and denying it would be putting form over substance also does not apply because the resolution is very clear. It says nothing regarding exempting DVSEC from seeking reimbursement from CNP. Whether it did so intentionally or unintentionally cannot be gleaned from the documents it sent. Thus, I FIND that the resolution of South Orange-Maplewood did not comply with the regulation requiring an exemption for both charging students and not seeking CNP and did not count toward achieving the majority of sending districts.

The Northern Burlington resolution specifically absolved DVSEC from charging students for reduced and/or paid meals and notes in the preceding paragraph that DVSEC is not currently participating nor desires to participate in funding from the CNP. However, it does not absolve DVSEC from seeking reimbursement. Northern Burlington's resolution stopped short of saying that it absolved DVSEC from doing so. The cover letter did not clarify why it referenced the CNP funding and acknowledged DVSEC's desire not to seek it, but did not say that the board approved DVSEC not to seek it. Referencing Dr. Calderone's letter to the district, it appears that he asked only for the one resolution regarding meals and failed to ask for the one absolving DVSEC from seeking CNP funding. (Calderone Certification, Exhibit A). DVSEC argues that the resolution should be accepted because there is no indication of disagreement with or withholding of approval of DVSEC's not seeking CNP funding. Further, DVSEC argues that the cover letter, setting forth, "Enclosed is . . . the resolution for the Out of District Non-Allowable Costs that the Northern Burlington Regional School District approved at the November 19, 2007 Board of Education meeting," indicates its desire to provide DVSEC with the required resolutions. Respondent does not have to go to such lengths to determine a Board's intent when both the resolution and the cover letter set forth only one resolution for meals. Based on the wording of the resolution and the cover letter, I FIND that Northern Burlington's resolution did not comply with the regulation requiring an exemption for both charging students and not seeking CNP and did not count toward achieving the majority of sending districts.

The Trenton resolution exempts DVSEC from seeking reimbursement from CNP and charging students for reduced and/or paid meals, but is not dated until March 8, 2010. Trenton's resolution had the correct wording setting forth that it absolved DVSEC from charging students for meals and from seeking reimbursement from the CNP. Respondent argues that the resolution was too late to be considered in the count of sending districts that adopted resolutions for the 2007-2008 year. DVSEC argues that Trenton said that it had adopted the resolution in a timely manner, but it neglected to file a resolution for 2007-2008 before March 8, 2010. DVSEC argues that it should not be held responsible for the delay. DVSEC further argues that the District intended to adopt the resolutions, even if it did so clumsily and belatedly. Given the fact that the resolution was not adopted until 2010, I FIND that Trenton's resolution did not comply with the regulation requiring an exemption for both the charging of students for meals and not seeking CNP funding for the year 2007-2008 and did not count toward the achieving resolutions from the majority of sending districts.

Based on the foregoing, I FIND that the DVSEC had two valid resolutions that complied with the regulation requiring resolutions for the 2007-2008 school year that absolved DVSEC from charging students for meals and from seeking reimbursement from CNP -- Bordentown and Rancocas Valley. I further FIND that Dr. Calderone's letters requesting the resolution asked only for a resolution absolving DVSEC from charging for meals, which contributed substantially to the faulty resolutions. I therefore CONCLUDE that DVSEC did not meet its burden of proving that the respondent acted arbitrarily and capriciously in disallowing $10,360 in food service costs that DVSEC incurred during the 2007-2008 school year. I further CONCLUDE that respondent has demonstrated that there are no material facts challenged and that it is entitled to summary decision as a matter of law pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5.

ORDER

Based on the foregoing findings of fact and legal authority, I hereby GRANT respondent's cross-motion for summary decision and DENY petitioners' motion for summary decision and ORDER the petitioner's Verified Petition be and hereby is DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter, the proposed "Settlement Agreement" (Settlement), and the Initial Decision issued by the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1, have been reviewed.

Upon such review, the Commissioner approves the Settlement terms, wherein it was agreed, inter alia, that petitioner would be reinstated to the position of "Principal on Special Assignment" on December 1, 2011, at an annual salary of $152,595, and would resign from employment in respondent's district as of December 31, 2012 and apply for retirement. Respondent is to pay petitioner $573,281 gross pay for the period of January 1, 2008 through November 30, 2011 – less the applicable state and federal payroll deductions and less mitigation in the amount of $24,080 which was received by petitioner in the form of unemployment benefits. Respondent has also agreed to reimburse petitioner for dental and healthcare premium deductions that were taken from her New York pension benefits – in the amount of $37,957.32 – and for legal expenses in the amount of $5,275. It was agreed that each of the foregoing sums would be paid in two equal installments: on or before December 31, 2011 and December 31, 2012.

In approving the settlement terms the Commissioner makes the following observation. Sections 4 and 6 of the Agreement reference actions that may have already taken place, and have therefore preceded consideration of the settlement by the Commissioner of Education. The parties are reminded that a settlement of litigation before the Commissioner is not binding until the Commissioner approves same.

Accordingly, the Commissioner adopts the Initial Decision as the final decision in this case, providing that the parties have either successfully implemented the settlement terms, or have agreed upon mutually satisfactory alternate dates for the effectuation of same. Assuming the foregoing, the matter is hereby dismissed, subject to compliance with the terms of the settlement.

This matter was remanded from the Appellate Division for a determination as to whether petitioner should be reinstated to her position as Principal on Special Assignment or some other position consistent with her seniority and tenure rights and the amount of back pay and other compensation to which petitioner is entitled.

The Acting Director and Chief Administrative Law Judge on April 27, 2011 ordered that this case be heard before the undersigned. After a prehearing conference with counsel, hearing dates were scheduled for September 12 and 13, 2011. SYNOPSIS

Petitioner filed a pro se residency appeal on behalf of her daughter in May 2011. A hearing at the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) was scheduled for December 29, 2011, but petitioner failed to appear despite having received appropriate notice and provided no explanation for her nonappearance. Having received no explanation from petitioner for her failure to appear, the OAL returned the file to the Commissioner.

There being no explanation filed, the Commissioner dismissed the petition with prejudice, noting that the file included notations indicating that petitioner's child has been re-enrolled in respondent's district.

The record for this matter, the Office of Administrative Law's (OAL) notice memorializing petitioner's failure to appear at the hearing on December 29, 2011, and a copy of the notification sent to the parties by the OAL on October 19, 2011 – informing them of the date of the hearing – have been reviewed. It is noted that the OAL hearing notice was sent to the address petitioner entered on her petition.

The Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) held the matter for one day after the scheduled hearing date to give petitioner the opportunity to offer an explanation for her nonappearance – pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.4(a). Having received no explanation from petitioner, the ALJ returned the file to the Commissioner.

It appears from notations in the file that petitioner's child has been re-enrolled in respondent's district, and in the absence of any filing from petitioner concerning her non-appearance at the OAL hearing, this matter is no longer deemed to be a contested case before the Commissioner and is accordingly hereby dismissed with prejudice.

SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT

This Settlement Agreement ("Agreement") is made and entered into between the Board of Education of the City of Englewood (the "Board") and MAUREEN SMITH (SMITH or Petitioner), collectively, "the Parties".

WHEREAS, all parties have been afforded the opportunity to consider the terms of this Agreement with advice of counsel and/or a representative of their choice;

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of the promises and the mutual covenants herein contained, and for other good and valuable consideration, the parties hereby agree as follows:

1. SYNOPSIS

Petitioner appealed the determination of the respondent Board that her children, T.B., T.B., and I.B., are not eligible for a free public education in the Highlands school district. Petitioner contended, inter alia, that she is a resident of Rumson, but intended to live temporarily in Highlands – in a property owned by her and her husband – while her Rumson residence was being renovated. She further contended that she was at all times honest with the Highlands School District, and was never alerted to the fact that she might end up owing tuition; since respondent failed to so notify petitioner, she argues that the Board should be stopped from seeking tuition reimbursement for the 2009-2010 school year. The Board sought tuition reimbursement in the amount of $20,211, which represents the cost of educating petitioner's triplets for a full year.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: petitioner's permanent home is in Rumson, not Highlands, and even if she did intend to live in Highlands for a brief time, her intent was always to return to Rumson; petitioner wrote that she lived in Highlands on her children's enrollment forms because she wanted her triplets to attend Pre-K in Highlands school district and was aware that she needed to live in Highlands in order for her children to receive a free education there; petitioner was not domiciled in Highlands during the 2009-2010 school year and therefore her children were not entitled to a free public education in Highlands schools pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1. Accordingly, the ALJ concluded that petitioner owes respondent Board tuition for the entire 2009-2010 school year in the amount of $20,211, and dismissed the petition.

Upon a full and independent review, the Commissioner concurred with the findings and conclusion of the ALJ. Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL was adopted as the final decision in this case, and the petitioner was ordered to pay tuition in the amount of $20,211 for the period of her children's ineligible attendance.

DECISION

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. The parties did not file exceptions to the Initial Decision.

Upon full review and consideration, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusion of the Administrative Law Judge that petitioner – as an admitted domiciliary of Rumson during the 2009-10 school year – was not entitled to receive a free public education for her children, T.B., T.B. and I.B. from the Board of Education of the Borough of Highlands during the period September 2009 through June 2010.

Accordingly, the recommended decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter and petitioner is hereby directed to pay tuition to the Board in the amount of $20,211 ($6,737 per child) for this period of the children's ineligible attendance in its schools.

Record Closed: October 7, 2011

Decided: January 5, 2012

BEFORE LISA JAMES-BEAVERS, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner K.B. appeals the ruling of the Highlands Borough Board of Education (Board) that her children, T.B., I.B. and I.B., who are triplets, were not entitled to receive a free public education provided by the Board, as it did not believe that petitioner was domiciled within the Highlands Borough School District (District).

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The Board issued a Notice of Final Ineligibility to petitioner on March 3, 2010. In addition to claiming that petitioner's children were ineligible to attend the schools of the District, this Notice also alerted her that if no appeal was filed from the Board's decision, the Board might assess her tuition for each day T.B., T.B. and I.B. attended the District's school while not entitled to do so for free. On April 8, 2010, petitioner filed a petition of appeal with the Department of Education's Office of Controversies and Disputes. On April 16, 2010, the Board filed an Answer to petitioner's appeal. The Department transmitted the contested case to the Office of Administrative Law, where it was filed on April 22, 2010.

The case was scheduled for hearing on October 18, 2010; however, on October 16, 2010, respondent's attorney notified the court that respondent's primary witness had to have emergency surgery and would not be available to testify for a while. He therefore requested an adjournment with the permission of his adversary. I granted the request. The hearing was rescheduled for December 17, 2010, but the witness remained on medical leave of absence through June 30, 2011. The parties attempted to settle, but were not successful. The case was rescheduled for October 7, 2011. Respondent's witness never recovered well enough to testify. On October 7, 2011, I heard the case and closed the record.

FINDINGS OF FACT

The following facts are admitted and undisputed; therefore, I FIND them as FACT. On or about August 24, 2009, petitioner enrolled three children, T.B., T.B. and I.B., in the pre-kindergarten program at Highlands Elementary School in the Borough of Highlands School District. At the time petitioner enrolled her children, petitioner advised the Board that she was a resident of the Borough of Rumson and an owner of property in Highlands. Throughout the entire 2009-2010 school year, petitioner and her children were domiciled in their full-time residence in the Borough of Rumson, New Jersey. At no time during the 2009-2010 school year did petitioner and her children live in the property that petitioner owned in Highlands. Petitioner enrolled her children in the Pre-K program at Highlands Elementary School for the 2009-2010 school year knowing that neither she nor her children were domiciled in the Borough of Highlands, but that in fact, they were domiciled in the Borough of Rumson. Petitioner's intention as of August 2009, was for herself and her children to temporarily relocate to the Highlands address at some point during the 2009-2010 school year while their home in Rumson was being renovated.

Sometime before January 12, 2010, petitioner was provided with new Highlands Elementary School Emergency Procedures cards to fill out for T.B., T.B. and I.B. On January 12, 2010, petitioner submitted to the Board signed Emergency Procedures Cards on behalf of T.B., T.B. and I.B., listing each student's "current address," as well as "Mother's address" and "Father's address" as "[] Shore Dr. Highlands." At no time during the period from July 2009 to December 2009 did petitioner ever petition or request of either the Board or the Superintendent permission to enroll T.B., T.B. and I.B. in the Highlands School District, despite their domicile in Rumson. During the 2009-2010 school year, petitioner had at least one discussion with District officials regarding the eligibility of her children for free enrollment, the possibility of their removal from the District and the charging of tuition.

The New Jersey Department of Education establishes the amount it costs each student to attend school in each school district in the state. For the period from September 2009 to June 2010, the amount it cost the Board to educate each pre-kindergarten student was $6,737 per year. The Board seeks $20,211 for the cost of the education of the three triplets for the full year.

In addition to the above FINDINGS of FACT, petitioner testified that the property that she and her husband owned in Highlands was income property that her husband owned before they were married. It is a two-family house that had one tenant living upstairs in 2009. A friend of theirs sometimes stayed downstairs during the summer paying informally with no lease. She and her husband decided to renovate their home in Rumson in January 2009. The ground had shifted and the floors had buckled. The floors needed sanding and refinishing. They were going to move to the Highlands property due to the dust and mess as their son is asthmatic. The tenant asked for a month's notice.

Petitioner further testified that when she began looking for childcare for her triplets, she was not satisfied. The children went to Sandy Hook Childcare Center from 2008 to August 2009. She began looking for a new center in April 2009, but it was hard to find three openings together. She was told to call Highlands. Petitioner does not know the name of the person with whom she spoke, but she told the person that she does not live there, but plans on living there for six weeks. The person did not tell her whether she could enroll her children. Petitioner called back and was able to obtain the necessary paperwork to enroll her children. She gathered her proof of ownership in Highlands and the children's birth certificates along with the application and drove them to Highlands Elementary School. She met with Lillian Colby and discussed her situation. She used the Highlands address on the application because she was asked if she would get mail there. She placed the Highlands address on the Emergency Procedures Card because she asked Lillian Colby which address she should write and someone behind Ms. Colby told her Highlands. Ms. Colby asked for documents showing ownership in Highlands, which she produced, but the documents also showed that they were sent to petitioner at an address in Rumson. (P-4, P-5 and P-6). There was no question in her mind that she honestly advised them of her residence in Rumson. She advised Ms. Colby that she was going to be moving into Highlands, but Ms. Colby did not ask to see a contract, estimate or anything showing that work was going to be done on her Rumson house. She was introduced to the superintendent, Ms. Galassetti, but she does not recall any conversation with her. The staff said that she could enroll her children and enrolled them. No one told her that there would be tuition.

In November 2009, the school nurse sent home a letter regarding the influenza vaccine. She left the letter for her husband at the Highlands address, but he did not pick it up, so it was returned to the Highlands Elementary School. She went to the main office to pick it up. She did not hear any more from the District until the middle of January 2010 when the school mailed home records asking her to update her contact information. She talked to Ms. Colby who thought there was confusion with the property address. Ms. Colby had petitioner fill out new Emergency Cards. At that time, petitioner and her husband were still having work done. At the end of January 2010, the work stopped. On February 8, 2010, petitioner received a letter from Highlands Elementary School that said that her children were not eligible for a free education in the District. (P-8). She had received a letter from Ms. Lynch prior to the February 8, 2010, letter saying that she had until March 1, 2010, to move into her house. (P-9). After receiving the letter dated February 8, 2010, she called the board secretary, the superintendent and the Monmouth County Schools Superintendent. No one called her back, including Ms. Galassetti. Someone told her to call a lawyer, which she did. She appealed before the Board and the Board found her ineligible to send her children to the District. Petitioner did not pull them out of school after receiving the March 3, 2010, letter from the Board. She was very upset, but tried to find a place for them. No one had space for three children in March.

On cross-examination, petitioner testified that Rumson has a lottery system for its Pre-K program and she was told that she would never get three children in the program. Petitioner was always clear that the children would not be living in Highlands. If they went to Highlands for Pre-K, she always intended for them to return to Rumson. She denied telling one at the District that she was in the process of moving into Highlands. She may have said she had started to pack. She had no money to move. When she signed an admission that she and her children were never domiciled in Highlands, she had never even heard the word "domicile." However, she answered the requests for admissions with Mr. Wolff and understood that she admitted only to being domiciled in Rumson. She left the letter from the nurse in the mailbox because she always left all the mail for her husband to take home. He never went back and got it. In January 2010, she filled out and updated her childrens' emergency cards. She again put Highlands for her address, although she was living in Rumson. No one told her that she was legally entitled to enroll her children in Highlands, but no one said that she was not. She admits that the February letter from Ms. Lynch asks for additional proof, but does not say that it was fine for her children to be attending the District schools. Petitioner knew the February 8 letter from Galasseti was serious, but she did not realize until February 8, 2010 that she may be on the hook for tuition. She had no idea that a public school could charge tuition. Petitioner believes that she had no choice when she was told that she had to disenroll her children and pay tuition from September to February or keep them in and pay tuition.

Lillian Colby testified that she is the Highlands Elementary School secretary and attendance officer and she was so employed for almost three years between 2008 and 2011. Her responsibility is to register students for school. She has no authority to give legal permission to enroll, so if she were asked, she would have to speak to the superintendent. Ms. Colby recalled petitioner coming in sometime in May 2009 with her three children to register them for the Pre-K program. Petitioner said that she was living in Rumson and she was planning to move to Highlands while her house was being worked on. Colby understood that petitioner would be living in Highlands. She never told petitioner that it was okay to enroll her children although they did not live in Highlands. When Ms. Galasseti came in, Ms. Colby introduced her to petitioner and told her that petitioner was registering her children for September and that they were going to be moving into Highlands. Ms. Galasseti only said, "Hello."

Ms. Colby further testified that she received petitioner's initial enrollment information, which listed a Highlands address. She told petitioner to write the address at which she will be living. In January 2010, she received a letter back that the District had sent to petitioner. When she called and asked petitioner why the letter was returned, petitioner said that the letter was left in the mailbox for her husband so he could see it and she thought the postman took the letter by mistake. Petitioner did not say at that time that she is not living in Highlands. Ms. Colby told petitioner that she needed to verify her residence. She gave her new emergency forms. Petitioner came in a day or so later. That was the first time Ms. Colby knew that petitioner was not living in Highlands. Petitioner told Ms. Colby that she had made it perfectly clear that she was not living in Highlands. Ms. Colby said that the forms were to reflect her current address and petitioner had written Highlands. Petitioner became very upset. Petitioner talked to Ms. Galasseti and said that she was a taxpayer in Highlands and deserved to have her children go there.

Ms. Colby further testified on cross-examination that she knew that ownership was not grounds for enrolling children in Highlands. She thought that petitioner showed the Highlands address as where she intended to live. She recognized documents that petitioner gave her that indicated that petitioner lived in Rumson. (P-4, P-5). The documents did not raise any red flags with regard to residency or eligibility. Ms. Colby denied telling petitioner to put the Shore Drive Highlands address on her emergency cards. She believed that is where petitioner intended to live. She did not ask for petitioner's license or voter registration card because she figured that those changes were in progress. She knew it was necessary for petitioner to move in and reside in Highlands, but did not do anything to check up to see if the petitioner moved in prior to January 2011. Looking back at it now, Ms. Colby thinks that she should have followed-up. The second time that petitioner came into the office, Ms. Colby did not ask if she had moved in. However, petitioner said that it was not her fault that the construction was delayed. That was the first time Ms. Colby learned that petitioner had not moved into the Highlands house. She never avoided petitioner's telephone calls.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The issue is whether petitioner was entitled to receive a free public education for her triplets in Highlands during the 2009-2010 school year. Regarding residency appeals, N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 provides:

Public schools shall be free to the following persons over five and under 20 years of age:

- a. Any person who is domiciled within the school district

"In a strict legal sense, the domicile of a person is the place where he has his true, fixed, permanent home and principal establishment, and to which whenever he is absent, he has the intention of returning, and from which he has no present intention of moving." In re Unanue, 255 N.J. Super. 362, 374 (Law Div. 1991) (quoting Kurilla v. Roth, 132 N.J.L. 213, 215 (Sup. Ct. 1944)). Thus, domicile is what is regarded as an individual's true and permanent home. In re Jaffe, 74 N.J. 86, 90-91 (1977).

Further, N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1 provides:

(a) A student over five and under 20 years of age pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, or such younger or older student as is otherwise entitled by law to free public education, is eligible to attend school in a school district if the student is domiciled within the district.

1. A student is domiciled in the school district when he or she is the child of a parent or guardian whose permanent home is located within the school district. A home is permanent when the parent or guardian intends to return to it when absent and has no present intent of moving from it, notwithstanding the existence of homes or residences elsewhere.

Petitioner admitted and I have FOUND as FACT that her permanent home was in Rumson, not Highlands. Even if she initially intended to live in Highlands for a brief time, it was always her intent to return to Rumson.

Petitioner presented two arguments. First, she argued that N.J.A.C. 6A:22-4.1(a)5 required notice of potential assessment for tuition, advising that she could be charged if her children were found ineligible for a free public education in Highlands. The Board did not provide such notice. However, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:22-1.1(b), the notice of potential tuition assessment applies only to students over the age of five and those otherwise entitled to a free public education by law. Petitioner's children were age four until February 11, 2010, and were not otherwise entitled to a free public education by law. By that date, they had received the letter of February 8, 2010, that petitioner's children were not entitled to a free public education. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the notice provision is inapplicable to the facts of this case. Petitioner seemed to have abandoned this argument in closing summations.

Second, petitioner argues through counsel that she was at all times honest with the Highlands School District, yet no one there ever told her that she could end up owing $20,000 in tuition. In addition, petitioner argues that all of the bills that she submitted showed that petitioner owned property in Highlands, but also showed that the bills were being sent to her residence in Rumson. To hit her with tuition in February when there was nowhere else that she could enroll her children was grossly unfair. Petitioner argues through counsel that promissory estoppel should apply since she relied on the representation of Board staff and she changed her position to her detriment. She argues that, although estoppel is usually not available against public entities, there are limited exceptions. Anske v. Bd. of Educ. of the Borough of Palisades Park, 139 N.J. Super. 342, 348 (App. Div. 1976). Estoppel is the doctrine, grounded in equity and justice, that one shall not be permitted to repudiate an act done or position assumed where that course would work injustice to another who, having the right to do so, has detrimentally relied thereon. Id. (citing N.J. Suburban Water Co. v. Harrison, 122 N.J.L. 189 (E. & A. 1939); West Jersey Title, etc., Co. v. Industrial Trust Co., 27 N.J. 144 (1958).) The equitable principles of estoppel will be applied against public bodies where the interests of justice, morality and common fairness dictate that course. Id. (citing Gruber v. Raritan Tp., 39 N.J. 1, 13 (1962); Skulski v. Nolan, 68 N.J. 179, 198 (1975)). Petitioner argues that there were red flags that the Board should have seen to prompt further inquiry. Ms. Colby is the Board's representative in charge of enrollment, so she should have alerted petitioner to the potential problem. Because she failed to do so, petitioner argues, the Board should be estopped from seeking tuition for the year.

To say that Ms. Colby should have been alerted to the possibility that petitioner did not live in the District is not the same as saying that she told petitioner that it was fine that she did not live in the District. Ms. Colby testified credibly that she did not have the authority to say that petitioner could legally enroll her children in the District and therefore, she never told that to petitioner. I so FIND. I also found Ms. Colby to be credible in stating that she did not tell petitioner to write that she lived in Highlands on the emergency forms. I FIND that petitioner wrote that she lived in Highlands on her forms because she wanted her triplets to attend Pre-K in the District. Estoppel fails in the present case because petitioner was aware that she needed to live in Highlands in order for her children to receive a free education there. She just did not know that the Board could charge her tuition in the event that it was discovered that she did not live in Highlands. I FIND that petitioner did not detrimentally rely upon representations made by the Board or its staff in enrolling her children in Highlands. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that estoppel does not apply to bar the Board from seeking back tuition for the 2009-2010 school year.

Assuming that there was intent on the part of petitioner to reside in the Borough of Highlands at the end of the 2008- 2009 school year, it did not materialize into the petitioner's family ever actually living in Highlands, much less establishing a domicile there. If the parents have not established domicile, the children are not entitled to a free public education in the district schools. K.L. and K.L. on behalf of minor children, M.L. and C.L. v. Bd. of Educ. of the Borough of Kinnelon, EDU 1191-08, Final Decision (July 23, 2008) <http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html>. Petitioner never established a domicile in Highlands. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that petitioner and her children T.B., T.B. and I.B. were domiciled in Borough of Rumson during the 2009-2010 school year. Further, I CONCLUDE that petitioner was not entitled to receive a free public education from the Borough of Highlands School District during the period from September 2009 to June 2010. As a result of the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that petitioner owes the Borough of Highlands Board of Education tuition for T.B., T.B. and I.B. for the entire school year from the start of the school year in September 2009 through the end of the school year in June 2010.

ORDER

Based upon the foregoing, it is ORDERED that petitioner's appeal is hereby DISMISSED. It is further ORDERED that the Board's claim for tuition costs associated with the triplets' attendance in Pre-K in the Borough of Highlands School District from September 2009 through the end of the 2010 school year in the amount of $6,737 each for a total of $20,211 for the three is hereby GRANTED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." Respondent specifically waives, releases and gives up any and all claims arising from or relating to his employment and/or association with the Board Based upon any act, event or omission occurring before the execution of this Settlement Agreement including, but not limited to, any claim that was asserted or could have been asserted under any Federal or State statutes, regulations or common law or Board Policies or regulations.

3. NO CLAIMS PERMITTED/COVENANT NOT TO SUE.

Respondent waives his right to file any charge or complaint on his own behalf, to participate as a complainant, a plaintiff or a charging party in any charge or complaint, or to collect damages as a result of any charge or complaint which may be made by any other person or organization on his behalf, with respect to anything which has happened up to the execution of this Settlement Agreement, before any Federal, State or local court of administrative agency against the Board except as such waiver is prohibited by law.

4. ATTORNEY'S FEES.

Each party agrees that each party will bear its own costs and attorney's fees which have been incurred in connection with the within matter and in conjunction with the negotiation and preparation of this Settlement Agreement.

5. NO ADMISSION OF LIABILITY.

It is expressly understood that neither the execution of this Settlement Agreement, nor any other action taken by the Respondent in conjunction with the Board's claims or this settlement, constitute admission by the Respondent or any violation of any law, duty or obligation. It is also understood that the acceptance of this settlement does not constitute any representation by the Board as to the merits of its claims or the lack thereof.

6. ENTIRE AGREEMENT.

This Settlement Agreement contains the sole and entire agreement between the parties hereto. Each party represents and acknowledges that prior to executing this Settlement Agreement, they consulted with or had an opportunity to consult with counsel, have had ample time to do so and that no party relied upon any representation or statement not set forth in this Settlement Agreement made by any other party hereto, or their counsel or representatives, with regard to the subject matter of this Settlement Agreement. No other promises or agreements shall be binding unless in writing, signed by the parties hereto, and expressly stated to represent an amendment to this Settlement Agreement.

7. BOARD RESOLUTION.

Attached hereto as Exhibit C is a true copy of a Resolution of the Board, adopted in compliance with the laws of the State of New Jersey, including the Open Public Meetings Act, duly satisfying this Settlement Agreement and authorizing the Board's signatory to sign this Settlement Agreement on its behalf.

8. COMMISSIONER'S APPROVAL.

It is expressly understood that this Settlement Agreement, and the settlement pursuant to the terms listed in this Settlement Agreement must first be approved by the Commissioner of Education and must meet the following standards as enumerated in N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6(a):

- (a) Accompaniment by documentation as to the nature of the charges: Petition of Charges are attached hereto and incorporated herein as Exhibit A with the Response attached hereto and incorporated herein as Exhibit B.
- (b) Explanation of the circumstances justifying the settlement or withdrawal: The Board agrees to request that the Commissioner of Education approve the Board's voluntary dismissal of the tenure charges, OAL Docket No. EDU10771-2011S, Agency Reference No. 238-8/11 with prejudice in light of Mr. Brooks' resignation and the lump sum consideration paid by the Board. In executing this agreement, Mr. Brooks understands the ultimate decision with regard to the resolution of the Tenure Charges lies with the Commissioner of Education and in the event that the New Jersey Commissioner of Education rejects the settlement between the Board and Mr. Brooks, then this agreement is completely null and void and the Tenure Charges currently pending will continue to be processed. Mr. Brooks understands and has been advised by his counsel of the Commissioner's duty to refer tenure determinations resulting in loss of position to the State Board of Examiners for possible suspension or revocation of certificate. Attached as Exhibit D is Mr. Brooks' affidavit showing that he has been counseled in every respect and knows that the Board of Examiners can act independently.

- (c) Consent of both the charged and charging parties is evidence by this Settlement Agreement.
- (d) Indication the charged party entered into the agreement with a full understanding of his rights is evidenced by this Settlement Agreement.
- (e) A showing that the agreement is in the public interest as evidenced by this Settlement Agreement. This Settlement Agreement is also shown to be in the public interest as a result of the parties' separation and satisfaction of any and all claims related to the Tenure Charges. In addition, the public interest is supported by the saving of valuable witness education time in the form of the avoidance of students missing class time to testify in court and of teachers and administrators missing time in school during which time their services are required in order to continue providing a thorough and efficient education to the Board's students. The avoidance of subjecting student witnesses to the stress of testifying in court is also evidence that this Settlement Agreement is in the public interest. Furthermore, the cost savings to the Board and the public as a result of settling the matter, which is significantly less than the cost associated with litigating the Tenure Charges, including appeals, evidence that this Settlement Agreement is in the public interest.

- (f) Where the charged party is a teaching staff member, a showing that the teaching staff member has been advised by counsel and, by recitation of this provision Respondent is advised of the Commissioner's duty to refer tenure determinations resulting in loss of position to the State Board of Examiners for possible suspension or revocation of certificate.

9. NON-DISCLOSURE.

Except as may be otherwise required of the Board pursuant to the Open Public Records Act and/or Open Public Meetings Act, such obligations may be modified by Federal or State statutory or administrative provisions as to the privacy of personnel records, no party will broadcast or publicize financial or other elements of this settlement to any third party. The parties are free to respond to inquiries made of them by indicating that the matter has been amicably resolved or satisfactorily settled, and recognize that the Board may disclose the substantive details of this settlement pursuant to a lawful request by providing a lawful request with a copy of this Settlement Agreement.

In The Matter of the

: SWORN STATEMENT OF EVIDENCE
: UNDER OATH

STATE OF NEW JERSEY)
:SS:
COUNTY OF CAPE MAY)

I, Christopher Armstrong, in support of the written charge for inefficiency filed against Patrick Brooks, employee of the Wildwood School District, upon my sworn oath do hereby depose and say:

1. I am a Principal for the Wildwood Public School District and I am hereby authorized to make representations on its behalf.
2. I have thoroughly investigated the matter of Patrick Brooks, an employee of the Wildwood School District, and I am qualified to execute this affidavit relating to Mr. Brooks and the facts as set forth in this sworn statement.
3. In a memo to Mr. Brooks from then Director of Guidance Russell Heaton from December 1, 2005 Mr. Brooks was admonished for failure to maintain accurate logs of his meetings with special needs students as required by their IEPs. It was noted his logs did not reflect any of the mandated sessions required for some IEP students and showed too few sessions for others. For example some students who should have

- received one session a week (approximately 8 sessions by the time of the memo) were shown in Mr. Brooks' logs as having received only two or three sessions. In several of those cases the counseling sessions indicate they were held on weekends.
4. In an annual performance report of Mr. Brooks for 2005-2006 dated May 5, 2006 it was noted that Mr. Brooks repeatedly failed to meet the mandates of special education student's IEPs with regard to the number and length of counseling sessions for special education students. It is also noted that Mr. Brooks failed to accurately document his IEP counseling sessions.
 5. In that performance report it is noted that in his logs Mr. Brooks recorded holding counseling sessions with students on days when the students were absent from school and on weekends, despite having been given written and verbal direction as to the necessity to maintain accurate records of these sessions.
 6. In that performance report it is noted that despite repeated requests Mr. Brooks failed to produce his IEP conference logs for the month of March 2006.
 7. In that performance report it is noted that Mr. Brooks was a member of the New Jersey Youth Correctional Facility Board of Directors and would attend meetings for that agency on a monthly basis. It was noted that Mr. Brooks had been granted, at his request, a full day of professional duty leave for the meetings. The memo states that the administration learned that attendance at the meetings did not require a full day of leave and informed Mr. Brooks that he would no longer be granted a full day of leave to attend those meetings.
 8. In a memo dated November 22, 2006 then Director of Guidance Russell Heaton admonished Mr. Brooks for failure to carry out an administrative directive which caused “a continuation of (a) dispute and interfered with (an) administrator’s attempt to mediate” between parties in an ongoing dispute.

9. In that same memo Mr. Heaton admonished Mr. Brooks for his failure to follow directives to notify his co-workers as to his whereabouts when not in his office and his failure to spend adequate time in his office “performing essential duties”.
10. In that same memo Mr. Heaton admonished Mr. Brooks for ignoring teacher requests for parent conferences, and for failing to attend parent conferences when requested.
11. In that same memo Mr. Heaton admonished Mr. Brooks for failure to complete in a timely manner the forms used to refer students for child study team evaluations.
12. In that same memo Mr. Heaton admonished Mr. Brooks for failure to enter schedule changes into the student data base. Mr. Heaton noted that both he and Mrs. Clevenger had given Mr. Brooks instruction on how to make those changes. Additionally, computer training workshops had been offered to Mr. Brooks which he chose not to attend.
13. In that same memo Mr. Heaton admonished Mr. Brooks for not scheduling students in a timely manner which “...interrupts their educational progress...”
14. In that same memo Mr. Heaton admonished Mr. Brooks for not seeing students who received poor progress reports, for failure to log any such discussions with students.
15. At the May 10, 2006 Wildwood Board of Education meeting the Board of Education voted to withhold Mr. Brooks’ 2006-2007 salary increment.
16. In August 2010, following a restructuring of the guidance department, Mr. Brooks was given a new office. Ms. Clevenger organized the office for Mr. Brooks and set up the files in order for them to be compliant with district requirements. One filing cabinet was organized to hold files pertaining to his job, with a drawer for each of the four grade levels Mr. Brooks was assigned (grades 6 through 9). A labeled file folder was established for each of the students assigned to Mr. Brooks. Labeled bins were established with necessary forms and additional bins were labeled for completed forms. A cork board was hung behind the desk with school calendars and schedules. A stand-up "flip file" with lists of students was attached to his desk. Binders of student schedules and information were organized by grade level and alphabetized by student name. On the first day of school Ms. Clevenger gave a complete in-service on how to use the organization and maintain it.

17. On October 13, 2010, Principal Gladys Lauriello forwarded a letter to Patrick Brooks regarding two students who were having problems with mathematics. A teacher had requested that the students' schedules be changed by Mr. Brooks. Mr. Brooks failed to respond in a timely manner and change the students' schedules to their detriment. The letter further informed him that he must communicate more effectively with teachers and students in the future.
18. On October 22, 2010, Mary Beth Clevenger, Assistant Principal, forwarded to Mr. Brooks a comprehensive outline of Mr. Brooks' responsibilities which specified his guidance counselor duties for grades 6 through 9. This outline also included a freshman procedure list/guide.
19. On October 22, 2010 and October 26, 2010, Mary Beth Clevenger, Assistant Principal, forwarded a memo to Mr. Brooks indicating that he was not using appointment forms as required as outlined in the memo of October 22, 2010, and that he was not scheduling enough appointments to meet with students during the course of the school day.

20. In addition, Ms. Clevenger provided Mr. Brooks with a list of freshmen in need of academic counseling due to their progress reports (each freshman had a D or an F on his or her report card). Ms. Clevenger instructed Mr. Brooks to send out appointment notices for these freshmen.
21. Also, Ms. Clevenger mandated that Mr. Brooks devise a weekly reporting system for freshmen with two or more failing grades.
22. In her October 26, 2010 memo, Ms. Clevenger also referenced an e-mail dated 10/19/2010 from Jean McCarthy, the Child Study Team Supervisor, to Mr. Brooks in which Ms. McCarthy stated that Mr. Brooks erroneously placed two new students in special education courses when they were not special education students. He did not respond to the e-mail, nor did he change the student's schedules. Because Mr. Brooks had not changed the schedules as directed, Mrs. Clevenger changed students' schedules to reflect their regular education enrollment. Despite the emails and memo, Mr. Brooks did not discuss this problem with Mrs. Clevenger or Ms. McCarthy.
23. On November 22, 2010, Mary Beth Clevenger again wrote to Mr. Brooks wherein she again implored him to utilize the appointment forms and schedule meetings with students who had Ds and/or Fs on their report cards. She directed that he fill out appointment notices for students in need of academic counseling and give the notices to the students' home room teachers.
24. Patrick Brooks refused and/or neglected to comply with Ms. Clevenger's instructions. From 9/2/2010-10/22/2010 there was no evidence or indication of compliance with

Ms. Clevenger's directives despite repeated conversations, specific directions, and training in all areas of concern.

25. In her November 22, 2010 letter to Mr. Brooks, Ms. Clevenger also told him to complete an academic conference report for each student he met with and to place the report in each student's file thereafter. She wanted to know what took place at the conferences as well as the duration of same. This form was developed by the former Director of Guidance, Mr. Russell Heaton, and has been used by all other counselors since the 2005-2006 school year. There is no evidence that Mr. Brooks ever used the forms.
26. On December 1, 2010, a concerned parent, Marielis Gonzalez, forwarded a letter to the District complaining that Mr. Brooks did not return her numerous telephone calls.
27. In the same letter, Ms. Gonzalez stated that her daughter was a classified student and that Mr. Brooks continually failed to counsel her daughter as required.
28. In addition, Ms. Gonzalez stated that she wanted to discuss with Mr. Brooks an issue her daughter had with another student in hopes of defusing a potential conflict. She believed Mr. Brooks' failure to respond resulted in her daughter being assaulted.

Mrs. Clevenger returned Ms. Gonzalez's call on 11/19/2010 and was told that there had been no return calls from Mr. Brooks. Ms. Gonzalez stated that on 11/15/2010 students started calling Marielis (her daughter) names. After talking with Marielis on 11/19/2010 Mrs. Clevenger intervened and put a stop to the disagreement
29. On December 7, 2010, the guidance counselor from Upper Township Middle School called to discuss a new student, advising Mary Beth Clevenger that she had left several messages for Mr. Brooks but he had never returned her calls. The student had been

- one of the students on Mr. Brooks' roster of students and was transferring to Upper Township. Because Mr. Brooks had never returned the telephone calls or supplied the needed information Ms. Clevenger had to supply the Upper Township counselor with the necessary statistical information for the purpose of placing the new student appropriately (these were duties that should have been performed by Mr. Brooks).
30. On or about December 8, 2010, Mr. Brooks was admonished for again violating school procedure outlining approval for schedule changes by placing a non-special education student into a special education class and for misrepresenting that an administrator (more specifically Mary Beth Clevenger) approved the change when she had, in fact, not done so. This represented a material misrepresentation of fact on the part of Mr. Brooks.
31. Mr. Brooks used the school's schedule change form to take a student out of a College Prep History class and placed him in a general level history class. Mr. Brooks did not get this change approved. He did not discuss the change in class and level with either of the teachers involved.
32. When Mr. Brooks made this change he incorrectly coded the student on the form as if the student were a special education student.
33. Mr. Brooks did not initiate a change of schedule in the student data base, so the student's official schedule and transcript still reflected the student as enrolled in the College Prep class.
34. Mr. Brooks did not communicate the schedule change to any of the teachers involved. He filled out the paper and asked the student to communicate the change to the teachers.

35. On December 9, 2010, then Principal Gladys Lauriello met with Mr. Brooks for the purpose of discussing his duties and responsibilities as mandated and thoroughly explained through various meetings, conversations and communications between the administration and Mr. Brooks dating back to October, 2010.
36. During this meeting, Ms. Lauriello discussed with Mr. Brooks the fact that he still was not providing daily logs, was not meeting with the requisite number of students as required in a timely manner, was not completing the requested counseling reports, and was not responding to e-mails or telephone messages (there were approximately 270 unopened messages, many from teachers regarding student concerns and other messages from school administrators regarding Mr. Brooks' duties and responsibilities).
37. Dr. Lauriello had previously verified this failure to read and respond to emails by opening Mr. Brooks' email account and viewing his unopened emails. This action was witnessed by Christopher Armstrong, Assistant Principal and Mrs. Clevenger, Assistant Principal
38. During the December 9, 2010 meeting with Principal Lauriello, Mr. Brooks produced a handful of student files, most of which contained no student information whatsoever.
39. The few files that contained information, merely included notes regarding dates of meetings (there was nothing in them pertaining to the purpose of the meetings or the duration of the meetings as required). The duration of the meetings is crucial for IEP and Academic At Risk student purposes. The importance of this information had been previously made clear to Mr. Brooks.

40. Dr. Lauriello stated to Mr. Brooks that he was still not following the documentation procedure prepared and provided by Ms. Clevenger on October 22, 2010.
41. Perhaps most importantly, there were discrepancies and inconsistencies contained in the appointment/conference logs.
42. During this meeting Mr. Brooks stated, and showed his logs as verification, that he had held conferences with students in his office on specific dates and times. Mr. Brooks could not possibly have met with the students at those times as he was, in fact, in other parts of the building attending Middle School Team meetings during the times he claimed to be meeting with students, constituting a misrepresentation of material fact.
43. Also, Mr. Brooks claimed to have met with students who were absent on the days he claimed to have met with them, constituting a misrepresentation of material fact.
44. In addition, Mr. Brooks claimed to have met with students who were no longer Wildwood students at the time he claimed to have met with them, constituting a misrepresentation of material fact.
45. On or about December 10, 2010, Mr. Brooks did not follow or otherwise carry out a progress report plan implemented by Cape May County Crisis Intervention intended to rehabilitate a student that was in trouble.
46. On or about December 21, 2010, Mr. Brooks blatantly ignored a secretary's request that he counsel a student that was physically and emotionally upset after he, the student, broke up with his girlfriend.
47. On January 18, 2011, it was noted in school records that despite a memo dated October 22, 2010 directing him to ensure his records were legible, Mr. Brooks was still preparing illegible log sheets that made it impossible for the Child Study Team to determine whether IEP's mandates were met. This also made it impossible for the Child Study Team to monitor the student interaction with Mr. Brooks in academic counseling to see that the administrative mandates were met. On January 19, 2011 a second memo was issued to Mr. Brooks directing him, again, to maintain his logs and records in a legible manner.

48. Between January 12, 2011 and January 21, 2011, Mr. Brooks failed to respond to a teacher's request that he meet with two students that were failing Spanish.
49. At the Board of Education meeting on January 19, 2011 the Wildwood Board of Education voted to withhold Mr. Brooks' salary adjustment increment for the 2011-2012 school year due to "blatant deficiencies" which were noted in his job performance. On January 20, 2011 Mr. Dennis J. Anderson, Superintendent of Schools, notified Mr. Brooks of this action in writing.
50. In light of the pattern of Mr. Brooks' conduct over many years, which remains unchanged despite him being provided with guidance, support and warnings from the school administrators, and remains unchanged despite having received formal disciplinary action by the Board of Education on two occasions in the form salary increment withholdings – one in 2006 and one in 2011 – I prepare and execute this sworn, written statement of evidence in support of the written charge that Mr. Brooks has performed and continues to perform his duties in an inefficient manner.

I hereby certify that the foregoing statements made by me are true. I am aware that if any of the foregoing statements made by me are willfully false, I am subject to punishment.

COUNTY OF CAPE MAY)

I, Christopher Armstrong, Principal of the Wildwood High School, by way of a written sworn statement of progress made by Patrick Brooks, employee of the Wildwood Public School District, towards remediation of the deficiencies presented to the Wildwood Board of Education says:

Whereas Patrick Brooks, employee for the Wildwood School District has been previously charged with inefficiency due to his continued inability and/or unwillingness to efficiently and effectively perform his duties, and;

Whereas Patrick Brooks was given the mandated ninety (90) day period in which to improve his job performance in several areas as detailed in a Corrective Action Plan for Professional Improvement, and;

Whereas the Improvement Period began for Mr. Brooks on March 29, 2011, the date when Mr. Brooks was presented with the charges against him and the Action Plan for remedying his deficiencies, and;

Whereas Mr. Brooks remains inefficient in several areas of his Corrective Action Plan for Professional Improvement following the 90 day period which was provided for improvement,

I, Christopher Armstrong, Principal of the Wildwood Middle School and High School, state that Mr. Patrick Brooks remains inefficient in the discharge of his duties as a Guidance Counselor at the Wildwood Middle School/ High School.

Below are the areas of the Action Plan and my subsequent performance evaluation of Mr. Brooks' improvement in each:

Goal # 1:

Increase daily student academic counseling for all at-risk students per progress reports and end of marking periods.

This goal was not successfully met

Mr. Brooks failed to construct a list of at risk students for the 3rd and 4th marking period both at progress report time, and at the end of the marking period. He did not counsel all students in danger of failing a class for the 2010/2011 school year, or students in danger of failing for a marking period during the school year. Mr. Brooks failed to present a list of academically at-risk students to his supervisor. According to his daily logs of counselees, he also failed to demonstrate that he met with all the students he was required to meet with. These deficiencies existed prior to the beginning of the Improvement Period. They were identified in the Action Plan for remediation. The deficiencies continued during the Improvement Period, and were not corrected.

Goal #2:

Increase communication with parents and families by providing information to students and their families regarding students' progress on major assignments, etc.

This goal was not successfully met

Mr. Brooks failed to send failure notices for each marking period for the 2010/2011 school year. He did not send contracts or weekly progress reports to parents. Mr. Brooks did not meet with parents of failing students, and did not respond to parents' communication in a timely manner. Mr. Brooks failed to implement a weekly progress report for a student as instructed to do during a Crisis Intervention Meeting. During the Improvement Period Mr. Brooks failed to send weekly progress reports to failing students in the 3rd and 4th marking period. He did not create a list of failing students following the 4th marking period progress reports. These progress reports were due to the guidance office on May 10, 2011, and were not received. These deficiencies existed prior to the beginning of the Improvement Period. They were identified in the Action Plan for remediation. The deficiencies continued during the Improvement Period, and were not corrected.

Goal #3:

Maintain Child Study Team counseling per the CST's IEP requirement.

This goal was not successfully met

A schedule was created for Mr. Brooks using the guidelines of the Child Study Team for individual and group counseling of students with disabilities. Mr. Brooks did not follow this schedule. Students with disabilities were not seen regularly as mandated by the IEP's. This schedule was created for Mr. Brooks at the start of the school year. The schedule was reviewed with him during the Improvement Period. Mr. Brooks did not demonstrate that he followed this schedule before or during the 90 day Improvement Period. As a result, the records kept by Mr. Brooks in this regard are limited; his records lack detail; and the records reflect that Mr. Brooks failed to meet with the IEP students on a regular basis. He failed to provide these students with the mandated counseling services they were entitled to. These deficiencies existed prior to the beginning of the Improvement Period. They were identified in the Action Plan for remediation. The deficiencies continued during the Improvement Period, and were not corrected.

Goal #4:

Increase students' involvement in Peer Mediation services when appropriately indicated.

This goal was not successfully met

Mr. Brooks did not use the Peer Mediation program successfully this school year. In one incident prior to the Improvement Period Mr. Brooks was directed by the Assistant Principal to use Peer Mediation for students who were involved in an argument. Mr. Brooks did not follow the directive, but instead met with students individually to personally mediate the situation. This required an inordinate amount of Mr. Brooks' time and subverted the peer mediation process. In a subsequent incident which occurred on April 26, 2011, during the Improvement Period, Mr. Brooks was directed by the Principal to meet with students who were involved in a disagreement. He was specifically directed by the Principal not to use Peer Mediators for these individuals because they had been involved in a physical confrontation earlier in the school year, and the Principal was concerned that the problem would escalate quickly. Mr. Brooks did not follow the directive, instead choosing to set up a Peer Mediation for this incident. Vice-Principal Clevenger, upon learning of Mr. Brooks setting up the session canceled the Peer Mediation before it occurred. In addition to being insubordinate, by failing to follow a directive by the Principal, Mr. Brooks' actions could have placed the students at risk. These deficiencies existed prior to the beginning of the Improvement Period. They were identified in the Action Plan for remediation. These deficiencies continued during the Improvement Period, and were not corrected.

Goal #5:

Attend and participate in all requested and contractual meetings (IEP, I&RS, Guidance Dept., Supervisor, Team, etc...)

This goal was successfully met

Mr. Brooks increased his involvement in required meetings.

Goal #6:

Effectively communicate with staff and administration

This goal was not successfully met

Mr. Brooks did not communicate with teachers or administration in writing on a regular basis. He did not use email or voicemail effectively. On several occasions teachers or other staff members emailed the Assistant Principal, or the other counselor because of lack of response to their communication from Mr. Brooks. These deficiencies existed prior to the beginning of the Improvement Period. They were identified in the Action Plan for remediation. These deficiencies continued during the Improvement Period, and were not corrected.

Goal #7:

Implement and oversee all Freshman Guidance areas as outlined in the Guidance Counselor responsibilities list provided

This goal was not successfully met

Mr. Brooks was provided with a detailed list of required duties for a freshman guidance counselor. He did not follow the guidelines during the school year. Prior to the Improvement Period he did not organize or actively participate in the ambassador program for Wildwood, North Wildwood and Wildwood Crest Middle School students. This is an activity directly related to the implementation of incoming Freshman schedules. Subsequent to the beginning of the Improvement Period Mr. Brooks failed to schedule all Eighth Grade students for classes for the upcoming school year. By the end of the school year Mr. Brooks' failure to schedule these students resulted in students not being scheduled for the 2011-2012 school year. These deficiencies existed prior to the beginning of the Improvement Period. They were identified in the Action Plan for remediation. These deficiencies continued during the Improvement Period, and were not corrected.

Goal #8:

Facilitate and maintain students' schedules and student records with regard to transfer in and transfer out

This goal was not successfully met

Mr. Brooks states that he was not trained in this area of counseling. During the fall of 2010 Mrs. Clevenger worked with Mr. Brooks individually to train him on how to register students. She trained him again during the winter/ spring of 2011. Mr. Brooks was also provided with help from another guidance counselor regarding transfer students. Mr. Brooks claims that he still does not know how to create an electronic schedule for students in the Admin Plus student database system. This system has been used by the Wildwood School District and the Guidance Department since the 2003/2004 school year. Mr. Brooks is the only member of the Guidance Department who claims he was not trained in the use of the scheduling module during the eight years it has been in use.

Prior to the Improvement Period Mr. Brooks changed a student's schedule without notifying his supervisor, teachers or parents. He did not change the schedule in the database, but rather on a piece of paper. He sent a verbal message with the student to tell the teachers that his classes had been changed. Contrary to policy, the classes had been changed without the input of parents or teachers. During the Improvement Period Mr. Brooks still did not use the "Approved Schedule Change Form" which was provided to Mr. Brooks by his supervisor prior to, and during, the Improvement Period. Mr. Brooks continues to state that he was not trained in the use of the proper transfer protocol and the electronic database. During the Improvement Period Mr. Brooks did not ask for any additional training to help him learn how to utilize these systems. These deficiencies existed prior to the beginning of the Improvement Period. They were identified in the Action Plan for remediation. These deficiencies continued during the Improvement Period, and were not corrected.

Goal # 9:

Effectively communicate with outside agencies as required

This goal was not successfully met

Prior to the Improvement Period Mr. Brooks did not return phone calls from a guidance counselor in another district regarding a transfer student. Mr. Brooks did not return phone calls to a DYFS case worker regarding an open DYFS case. Mr. Brooks did not complete a DYFS questioner correctly or completely. Mr. Brooks failed to provide DYFS with requested information regarding a student's attendance on January 21, 2011. This is documented in a memo to Mr. Brooks dated 2/4/ 2011. During the Improvement Period Mr. Brooks again failed to communicate with DYFS during the month of May regarding student issues. On May 23, 2011 a phone message was taken by secretary Carmen Vega from the DYFS Case Worker handling the matter of student C.P. The message states that they, "Need school collateral to close a case ... has been trying to contact Mr. Brooks since last week. Left messages. No answer." Vice Principal Clevenger was notified of this situation and was required to intervene and resolve this matter upon notification of Mr. Brooks' failure to respond. These sorts of deficiencies existed prior to the beginning of the Improvement Period. They were identified in the Action Plan for remediation. These deficiencies continued during the Improvement Period, and were not corrected.

Goal # 10:

Effectively maintain logs and records

This goal was not successfully met

Mr. Brooks did not maintain the filing system which was prepared for him during the summer of 2010. Prior to and during the Improvement Period it was found that some students' files were missing information, others were misfiled, and some transfer students did not have files. Mr. Brooks did not use the conference summary sheet which should be placed in each student's file following a counseling session. Mr. Brooks' daily counseling log sheets consistently lack detail and often have large blocks of unaccounted for time. Mr. Brooks' records continue to be illegible at times, poorly organized, inconsistent, and haphazard. These deficiencies existed prior to the beginning of the Improvement Period. They were identified in the Action Plan for remediation. These deficiencies continued during the Improvement Period, and were not corrected.

Conclusion

Overall, Mr. Brooks has failed to remediate the deficiencies outline in the Charges presented to him. Of the ten goals identified Mr. Brooks only achieved one – attendance at all required meeting.

Mr. Brooks has failed to utilize the Action Plan to improve his job performance. He has not availed himself to the assistance offered, both verbally and in writing as part of the Action Plan, to resolve the identified weaknesses in his job performance. Steps outlined in the Action Plan have not been taken, resulting in students being “short changed” in regards to their Guidance services, their federally mandated IEP-related services, their DYFS ordered services, and in other cases their necessary academic counseling. Additionally, in failing to follow clear directives, standard operating procedures, policies, and items outlined in the Action Plan Mr. Brooks may have placed students at risk (see Goal #4 regarding failure to properly handle an issue dealing with students who had been engaged in prior altercations, and see Goal # 9 regarding failure to respond to DYFS for information).

The records of the daily and weekly meetings with Mr. Brooks reflect a total lack of effort on the part of Mr. Brooks to remediate his professional deficiencies, as identified in the Charges and the Action Plan.

It is my professional opinion that Mr. Brooks has failed to improve and has failed to meet the minimum requirements of his position and of the Action Plan.

I, Christopher Armstrong, upon my sworn oath hereby acknowledge that the aforementioned written statement of progress with regard to the charge of inefficiency against Mr. Patrick Brooks is true and accurate to the best of my knowledge. I am aware that if any of the foregoing statements made by me are willfully false, I am subject to punishment.

Dear Mr. Brooks:

Please be advised that on July 19, 2011, Principal Armstrong forwarded a performance report to the Wildwood Board of Education regarding your Professional Improvement Action Plan implemented on March 29, 2011. You will recall the plan was devised to afford you an opportunity to correct the charges of inefficiency that were previously filed with the Board on January 19, 2011 (undertake review) and March 29, 2011 (charges filed). I regret to inform you that Mr. Armstrong's report indicates that 9 of the 10 inefficiencies requiring improvement as set forth in the Professional Improvement Action Plan were not corrected. They are as follows:

Goal No. 1: Increased daily student academic counseling for all at risk students per progress reports at the end of marking period. This inefficiency was not corrected.

Goal No. 2: Increased communication with parents and family by providing information to students and their families regarding students' progress on major assignments, etc. This inefficiency was not corrected.

Goal No. 3: Maintain child study team counseling for the CST's IEP requirement. This inefficiency was not corrected.

Goal No. 4: Increase students' involvement in peer mediation services when appropriately indicated. This inefficiency was not corrected.

Goal No. 5: Attend and participate in all requested and contractual meetings (IEP, IAP, RF Guidance Department, Supervisor, Team, etc.). This inefficiency was corrected.

Goal No. 6: Effectively communicate with staff and administration. This inefficiency was not corrected.

Goal No. 7: Implement and oversee all freshman guidance areas as outlined in the Guidance Counselor's Responsibility List provided. This inefficiency was not corrected.

Goal No. 8: Facilitate and maintain student schedules and student records with regard to transfer in and transfer out. This inefficiency was not corrected.

Goal No. 9: Effectively communicate with outside agencies as required. This inefficiency was not corrected.

Goal No. 10: Effectively maintain logs and records. This inefficiency was not corrected.

I have included a copy of Mr. Armstrong's report for your review.

At this juncture, please be advised that you have 15 days from receipt of this notice to respond in writing by filing a Statement of Evidence Under Oath in opposition to these charges with the Board. The Board will meet and make a determination after receiving your written response or upon expiration of the aforementioned 15 day time period should you fail to respond.

Should you have any questions or the need for additional information, do not hesitate to contact me.

Thanking you for your kind attention, I am

Sincerely,

RESPONSE TO TENURE CHARGES

PATRICK BROOKS, of full age, hereby certifies as follows:

1. I do not choose to answer every paragraph of the tenure charges with particularity and respond as follows:

2. I began my employment in the Wildwood School District on or about 1982 and have certainly rendered consistent service up and through the end of the school year in 2010-2011. STATEMENT OF THE CASE

This matter was transferred to the Office of Administrative Law on May 3, 2004. to the active hearing calendar. A hearing was scheduled for November 21, 2011 but the date was adjourned because the parties were discussing settlement.

On December 7, 2011 during a telephone status conference conducted by ALJ Jones, the parties advised that a settlement had been reached. A signed Stipulation of Settlement was forwarded to the OAL on January 5, 2012 and is attached hereto and made part hereof.

The parties in this appeal have voluntarily and amicably resolved all disputed matters and enter into the following settlement that fully disposes of all issues in controversy between Petitioner Barbara Howard ("Petitioner" or "Howard") and Respondent State-Operated School District of the City of Newark ("Respondent" or the "District") as follows:

1. Petitioner hereby agrees to withdraw, with prejudice, her appeal and request for a hearing, filed under OAL Docket No. EDUOA-03980-2004N which involves her appeal and request for a hearing relating to improper sick days charged to her during the 2002-03 and 2003-04 school years.

2. In turn, Respondent will be permitted to convert thirty one (31) sick days on the basis of the conversion formula contained in Art. 8, Section 10 in the Collective Bargaining Agreement between the District and the Newark Teachers Union dated July 1, 2003 to June 30, 2006 so that Petitioner will receive from Respondent four thousand one hundred eighty five dollars ($4,185.00), representing compensation for her unused sick days (31 days) at the contractual reimbursement rate of $135.00 per day. 4. By entering into this Settlement Agreement, Petitioner releases and discharges the District with respect to all claims or rights that she may have against the District. This includes without limitation, any and all actions, claims, and liabilities of whatsoever kind or character, in law or in equity, now known or unknown, suspected or unsuspected, directly or indirectly related to Petitioner's employment with the District. any claim for wrongful discharge, back pay, vacation pay, sick pay, wage, commission or bonus payment, attorneys' fees, costs, and/or future wage loss, with the exception of workers' compensation claims and claims arising under N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6 and N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1.

5. To comply with the Older Workers Benefit Protection Act of 1990, if applicable, this Agreement advises Petitioner of the legal requirements of the Act, and fully incorporates the legal requirements by reference into this Agreement. Accordingly, by executing this Agreement, Petitioner acknowledges that she: (i) fully understands the terms and conditions of this Agreement; (ii) has consulted with an attorney to review the Agreement; (iii) specifically waives her right to pursue any current claims she may have under the Age Discrimination in Employment Act; (iv) has been given at least twenty-one (21) days within which to consider this Agreement; and (v) has seven (7) days from the date of the execution of this Agreement to revoke it. 6. The parties respectively acknowledge that counsel has advised them regarding this Stipulation and that each is signing this Stipulation freely and voluntarily, without duress, coercion or pressure from the other party.

7. This Stipulation constitutes the full agreement between the parties, and shall be construed and enforced in accordance with New Jersey law.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner claims that respondent incorrectly determined that the Hazlet school district is responsible for the cost of educating J.M. – a student receiving special education services in a residential placement – for the 2010-2011 school year. Petitioner also sought an order declaring that J.M. is a resident within the Matawan-Aberdeen Regional School District because J.M. resides in the Matawan district with his father, K.M., pursuant to a guardianship order, and because J.M. has not lived with S.M., his mother, in the Hazlet District since 2009. Respondent contends that it properly determined, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12b, that Hazlet was the district of residence for J.M. The parties filed cross motions for summary decision.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: there are no genuine issues of material fact and the matter is ripe for summary decision; petitioner bears the burden of proving that the Department's residency determination was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable; pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12b and N.J.A.C. 6A:23A-19.2(a)(1)-(2), J.M.'s district of residence is his mother's present district of residence in Hazlet because he lived with her prior to placement and she is the custodial parent, and because the terms of the parents' divorce decree stipulates that J.M. is domiciled in Hazlet and would be educated in the Hazlet district. Accordingly, the ALJ concluded that the petitioning school district is responsible for J.M.'s education costs, granted respondent's motion for summary decision and denied petitioner's appeal.

Upon full and careful consideration, the Commissioner adopted the Initial Decision as the final decision in this matter as he concurred that – given the undisputed facts – summary disposition was appropriate, respondent's motion for summary disposition was properly granted and petitioner's motion for summary disposition was properly denied – for the reasons stated in the ALJ's decision.

_____	:

The Commissioner has reviewed the record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on the parties' cross motions for summary decision. The ALJ granted intervener status to Matawan-Aberdeen Regional School District by virtue of a companion case currently before him.¹ Petitioner, Board of Education of the Township of Hazlet (Hazlet) filed exceptions, and respondent, Office of School Funding (OSF) filed reply exceptions as provided by N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Hazlet argues in its exceptions that the ALJ erred as a matter of law when he determined that the 2009 Judgment of Incapacitation did not supersede the 2001 custody agreement, which granted custodial rights of J.M. to the mother, S.M. Moreover, Hazlet asserts that the ALJ relied, to its detriment, on facts not clearly established in the record regarding the parents' intent that S.M. should continue as the custodial, residential parent of J.M.

¹ See Matawan-Aberdeen Regional School District v. Board of Education of the Township of Hazlet, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 08759-10, Agency Dkt. No. 143-7/10. Since these matters involved substantially similar issues, the ALJ with the consent of the parties decided the cases concurrently.

In response, OSF agrees with the findings of the ALJ and argues that Hazlet offered no evidence that OSF's determination of residency was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. Additionally, it contends that the Judgment of Incapacitation, effective after J.M.'s placement at the residential facility, has no impact on the issue of domicile, which OSF determined to be pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12b, i.e., "the district of residence for children who are" placed in residential facilities "shall be the present district of residence of the parent...with whom the child lived prior to the most recent placement...."

Upon his considered review of the record and a thorough reading of the deposition transcripts,² the Commissioner concurs with the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) that this matter is ripe for summary decision as there are no genuine issues of material fact to resolve. For the reasons convincingly presented in the ALJ's decision, the Commissioner agrees that the OSF did not act arbitrarily, capriciously or unreasonably in its determination that the Township of Hazlet is the district of residence and is, consequently, responsible for the cost of educating J.M.

Accordingly, summary disposition is granted to respondent OSF and the petitioner's cross motion is hereby denied. Moreover, the appeal of petitioner Hazlet is dismissed.

David B. Rubin, Esq., for intervening party Board of Education of the Township of Matawan-Aberdeen Regional, Monmouth County

Record Closed: October 17, 2011

Decided: November 21, 2011

BEFORE EDWARD J. DELANOY, JR., ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner Township of Hazlet Board of Education ("Hazlet District") seeks a determination that respondent New Jersey Department of Education, Office of School Funding ("OSF") incorrectly determined that Hazlet District is responsible for the cost of educating J.M., a student receiving special education services, for the 2010-2011 school year. Petitioner also seeks an order declaring that J.M. is a resident of the Board of Education of Matawan-Aberdeen Regional School District ("Matawan District"), because J.M. resides in Matawan District with his father pursuant to a guardianship order, and because J.M. has not lived with his mother in the Hazlet District since August, 2009.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On May 6, 2011, Hazlet District filed a petition for due process with the Bureau of Controversies & Disputes of the New Jersey Department of Education (DOE). The matter was transmitted for a hearing to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-2(b) and N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.9(b), on May 31, 2011. On August 10, 2011, a Motion to Dismiss in Lieu of Answer was filed by respondent. Matawan District was granted intervener status by virtue of a Consent Order executed by the parties dated August 5, 2011. The Matawan District was granted intervener status by virtue of a concurrent companion dispute between it and Hazlet District regarding which district was the responsible party for the cost of educating J.M., for the 2010-11 school year. In that companion matter, entitled "Matawan-Aberdeen Regional School District v. Board of Education of Township of Hazlet," OAL Docket # EDU 08759-2010, Agency Ref. No. 143-7/10, each District counters that the other is the responsible party for the cost of educating J.M. Both parties in that matter brought cross-motions for summary decision, which decision shall be made concurrently with the decision herein. The Motion to Dismiss in Lieu of Answer filed by respondent was converted to a Motion for Summary Decision, and all parties herein now bring cross-motions for summary decision. Briefs were filed in this case on or before October 17, 2011, and as a result, the record closed herein on October 17, 2011.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

Having reviewed the submissions of the parties, I FIND the following as FACT: J.M. was born on November 13, 1991, and is currently nineteen years old. (Petitioner's Brief, Cert. of Susan Galbraith at page 1, para. 3.¹) In particular, since July 1998, J.M. has been classified as "Multiply Disabled," based on mild cognitive impairment, a learning disability, and Pervasive Developmental Disorder on mild Autistic Spectrum and Specific Learning Disability. He has been placed in both district and out-of-district schools throughout his educational career. (Petitioner's Brief, Cert. of Susan Galbraith at page 1, para. 3-4, Respondent's Brief at page 2² (1T 6:21-7:15.³))

In 2001, when J.M. was ten years old, his parents S.M. and K.M. divorced. The Dual Judgment of Divorce and Agreement divorce decree ("Divorce Decree") ordered and adjudged on July 23, 2001, contained a custody arrangement that gave "joint legal custody" to both parents but designated the mother, S.M., as the "residential custodial parent and primary caretaker." (Petitioner's Brief Ex. B.⁴) J.M. continued to reside with S.M. in Hazlet, and he remained enrolled in the Hazlet District, attending a series of out-of-district day placements. (Petitioner's Brief Ex. M and N, 1T 9:12-15; 2T 8:16-9:4.) The Divorce Decree provided that it was S.M. and K.M.'s intention that J.M. continue to be educated in and through the Hazlet school system. It also specified, in relevant part, that J.M. would be emancipated when he turned eighteen or graduated from high school, whichever occurred later. (Petitioner's Brief Ex. B at page 8.⁵) At all times

² Respondent's motion for summary decision was received by the OAL on October 3, 2011, will be referred to as "Respondent's Brief" throughout this Decision.

³ The transcripts from the deposition of K.M. and S.M. taken on December 7, 2010 and attached to petitioner's motions (transcripts are attached to petitioner's motion as Exhibit M and Exhibit N attached to petitioner's motion) will be referred to as 1T and 2T, respectively, throughout this memo.

relevant to this matter, K.M. lived in the Township of Aberdeen, a constituent municipality of the Matawan District. (Petitioner's Brief, Cert. of Susan Galbraith at page 2, para. 10.)

In August 2009, J.M. physically assaulted S.M. As a result, J.M. was placed in the Willowglen Residential Center (Willowglen) in New Lisbon, New Jersey by the Department of Children and Families (DCF). (Petitioner's Brief Ex. M and N, 1T 16:23-17:25; 2T 11:16-12:5) Willowglen is a residential placement for children with emotional and behavioral disorders. When J.M. was first placed at Willowglen, the Hazlet District provided transportation to and from Willowglen to the Jackson Regional Day School, where J.M. received his education. The Hazlet District paid the tuition for J.M.'s education at Jackson Regional Day School. (Petitioner's Brief, Cert. of Susan Galbraith at page 2, para. 6.) On November 13, 2009, J.M. turned eighteen years old. (1T 10:2-3.)

On or about January 22, 2010, J.M. was placed at the Willowglen facility in Sparta, New Jersey, where he currently resides and receives his education, pursuant to an Individualized Education Program (IEP) drafted by the Hazlet District's Child Study Team. He attends school on campus at the Sparta facility, and no longer travels to the Jackson Regional Day School. (Petitioner's Brief, Cert. of Susan Galbraith at page 2, para. 7.).

On January 25, 2010, K.M. filed for and was granted permanent sole legal guardianship over J.M. and his property because J.M. "is an incapacitated person as a result of unsoundness of mind and is incapable of governing himself and managing his own affairs." (Petitioner's Brief, Ex. C, Cert. of Susan Galbraith at page 2, para. 11.) S.M. and K.M. jointly agreed that, as a guardian, K.M. would handle J.M.'s "legal and financial matters" and because "[J.M.] has problems making the correct decisions." (1T 10:4-13:3; 2T 10:1-11:15.) The guardianship documents did not mention S.M. or J.M.'s living arrangements. (Petitioner's Brief, Ex. C.)

On or about April 7, 2010, after the Hazlet School District was notified of K.M.'s appointment as J.M.'s legal guardian, Dr. William George, the Superintendent of School for the Hazlet School District, notified Dr. Richard O'Malley, then the Superintendent of Schools for the Matawan-Aberdeen District, that K.M. had been appointed legal guardian of J.M. and that K.M. lived in Aberdeen. (Petitioner's Brief, Ex. D, Cert. of Susan Galbraith at page 2, para. 13.) On that same date, K.M. was notified that the Hazlet School District was aware that K.M. had been appointed as the guardian of J.M. and requested that K.M. enroll him in the Matawan-Aberdeen District, where K.M. lives (Petitioner's Brief, Ex. E, Cert. of Susan Galbraith at page 2, para. 14.) Also on that date, the Hazlet School District notified the principal of Willowglen, Susan Hackett, that K.M. had been appointed the permanent guardian of J.M. and that as a result, his residency was in Aberdeen, and the Matawan-Aberdeen District was responsible for J.M.'s tuition as of April 15, 2010. (Petitioner's Brief, Ex. F, Cert. of Susan Galbraith at page 2, para. 15.) Joel Glastein, the former Deputy Superintendent of the Matawan-Aberdeen District, contacted the Hazlet Department of Special Services to inform it that the Matawan-Aberdeen District did not believe it was responsible for J.M.'s education. (Petitioner's Brief, Cert. of Susan Galbraith at page 2, para. 16.)

When J.M. is able to leave Willowglen on short home visits, he stays overnight at his father's house, where J.M. has a bedroom, but also visits his mother's house during the day. (1T 14:24-16:9; 1T 30:13-15; 2T 12:19-14:6.) J.M. has spent "the bulk of his time" at S.M.'s house "on a number of occasions," despite not spending the night at S.M.'s house. (1T 16:5-9.) K.M. and S.M. are trying to gradually reintroduce J.M. back into S.M.'s home and life and are planning on letting him spend nights at S.M.'s house during home visits as long as he is acting appropriately. (1T 17:15-19; 1T 30:19-31:11; 2T 19:23-20:9.) K.M. characterized J.M.'s "home" as S.M.'s house because "reason number one, the [divorce] decree says so, reason number two that's what his mother wants, [and] [r]eason number three is I have a number of medical conditions that prevent me from having full time residential custody of my son." (1T 30:2-6.) Additionally, S.M. and K.M. discussed J.M.'s living arrangements if and when he comes home from Willowglen, and in S.M.'s view, J.M. would be living with both K.M. and her, but J.M. would predominately stay with her. (2T 14:7-18; 2T 18:8-16; 2T 19:23-20:9.)

Both parents conceded that there was no firm agreement in place that ultimately determined where J.M. would be staying if he left Willowglen. (1T 16:10-20; 2T 14:14-18.)

On or about December 26, 2010, the DCF asked the OSF to determine the district of residence of J.M in response to a dispute over who was responsible for J.M.'s education costs. (Respondent's Brief, Ex. B.)⁶ On February 9, 2011, the Hazlet District received a determination from the OSF that Hazlet was J.M.'s district of residence, and that it was financially responsible. (Petitioner's Brief, Ex. I, Cert. of Susan Galbraith at page 3, para. 21.) The OSF based its finding that J.M. resided in Hazlet with his mother on N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12b, which states:

The district of residence for children who are in residential State facilities, or who have been placed by State agencies in group homes, skill development homes, private school or out-of-state facilities shall be the present district of residence of the parent or guardian with whom the child lived with prior to his most recent admission to a State facility or most recent placement by a State agency.

[Ibid.]

On March 8, 2011, the Hazlet District submitted written notification to the Assistant Commissioner of Finance contesting the determination made by the OSF pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:23-19.2(d). (Petitioner's Brief, Ex. J, Cert. of Susan Galbraith at page 3, para. 23.) On April 8, 2011, Yut'se Thomas, the Acting Assistant Commissioner of Finance, by letter upheld OSF's determination regarding Hazlet's responsibility for the costs of J.M.'s education. (Petitioner's Brief, Ex. K, Cert. of Susan Galbraith at page 3, para. 24.) According to Assistant Commissioner Thomas, the Hazlet District is responsible for the costs of J.M.'s education under N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12(b) because J.M. resided with his mother in Hazlet immediately prior to the date of his placement, and she still lives there. Ibid. Thomas stated that K.M.'s appointment as an "adult guardian" over J.M. was irrelevant because the mother's parental rights were not terminated, and "[u]nless the mother's parental rights have been terminated by court order, she remains the child's parent/guardian for district of residence purposes." Ibid. Thomas also noted that the Hazlet District would continue to be responsible for J.M.'s education costs as long as S.M. remained a resident of Hazlet.

⁶ Respondent's Ex. will refer to the exhibits appended to respondent's motion for summary decision throughout this Decision.

LEGAL DISCUSSION

N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5, governing motions for summary decision, permits early disposition of a case before the case is heard if, based on the papers and discovery which have been filed, it can be decided "that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law." N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b). The provisions of N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5 mirror the language of R. 4:46-2 of the New Jersey Court Rules governing motions for summary judgment, and, as such, when entertaining motions for summary decision, a "judge's function is not himself [or herself] to weigh the evidence and determine the truth of the matter but to determine whether there is a genuine issue [to proceed to a hearing]." Brill v. Guardian Life Ins. Co. of Am., 142 N.J. 520, 540 (1995) (quoting Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, Inc., 477 U.S. 242, 249, 106 S. Ct. 2505, 2511, 91 L. Ed. 2d 202, 212 (1986)) (first brackets in original). A judge must "consider whether the competent evidential materials presented, when viewed in the light most favorable to the non-moving party, are sufficient to permit a rational fact finder to resolve the alleged disputed issue in favor of the non-moving party." Ibid. In determining whether summary decision is appropriate, this tribunal is required to do "the same type of evaluation, analysis or sifting of evidential materials as required by Rule 4:37-2(b) in light of the burden of persuasion that applies if the matter proceeds to a hearing. Id. at 539-40. The facts relevant to a decision on this motion are not in dispute. Therefore, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b) and Brill, supra, FIND that there are no genuine issues of material fact and that this matter is ripe for summary decision.

It is well-settled that a school district challenging DOE's district of residency determination bears the burden of proving the decision was arbitrary, capricious or without reason. Board of Education of Delaware, Hunterdon County v. New Jersey Dep't of Education, EDU 08011-05S, 2006 N.J. AGEN LEXIS 644, Final Decision (May 10, 2006). Additionally, the DOE's decision is entitled to a presumption of correctness. Ibid.

1. District of Residence, Domicile, Guardianship, and Custody

District of Residence

According to the State Facilities Education Act of 1979, N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-1 to -13, for school funding purposes, the Commissioner of Education shall determine district residence as follows:

b. The district of residence for children who are in residential State facilities or have been placed by State agencies in group homes, skill development homes, private school or out-of-State facilities, shall be the present district of residence of the parent or guardian with whom the child lived prior to his most recent admission to a State facility or most recent placement by a State agency.

[N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12(b).]

The regulations implementing Title 18A define "present district of residence" as follows:

(a) The district of residence for school funding purposes shall be determined according to the following criteria:

1. The "present district of residence" of a child in a residential state facility defined in N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-45 and referred to in the first paragraph of N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12b means the New Jersey district of residence of the child's parent(s) or guardian(s) as of the last school day prior to October 16.

2. The "present district of residence" of a child placed by a State agency in a group home, skill development home, approved private school for students with disabilities or out-of-state facility also referred to in the first paragraph of N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12b means the New Jersey district of residence of the child's parents(s) or guardian(s) as of the date of the child's most recent placement by the State agency. In subsequent school years spent in the educational placement made by a State agency, the child's "present district of residence" shall be determined in the same manner as for a child in a residential State facility as set forth in (a)1 above.

[N.J.A.C. 6A:23A-19.2(a)(1) to -(2).]

Thus, the "present district of residence" of a child placed in a residential facility by a State agency is the district of residence of the parent with whom the child lived prior to his most recent placement by the State agency. N.J.A.C. 6A:23A-19.2(a)(2). In subsequent school years, the "present district of residence" will be the district of residence of the child's parent as of the last school day prior to October 16. Id. at § 19.2(a)(1). A child's district of residence is responsible for the costs of his education. See Bd. of Educ. of the Lower Camden County Reg'l Sch. Dist. No. 1 v. State of New Jersey, Dep't. of Educ., Bureau of Sch. Fin., EDU 8578-98, Initial Decision (June 4, 1999), adopted, Acting Comm'r. (Aug. 13, 1999), affirmed, State Bd. of Educ. (July 5, 2000) (finding that the "present district of residence" is the residence of the child's parent as of the last school day prior to October 16 and if this cannot be determined, the district of residence shall be the district in which the child resided prior to such admission or placement, and the custodial parent is the parent whose district of residence is considered to determine which district is responsible for tuition⁷); Bd. of

⁷ At the time of the Lower Camden County, supra decision, the relevant provision of N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12 (1999) read:

b. The district of residence for children who are in residential State facilities, or who have been placed by State agencies in group homes, skill development homes, private schools or out-of-State facilities, shall be the present district of residence of the parent or guardian with whom the child lived prior to his most recent admission to a State facility or most recent placement by a State agency.

If this cannot be determined, the district of residence shall be the district in which the child resided prior to such admission or placement.

[L. 1999, c. 114, § 1060. (emphasis added).]

Educ. of the City of Wildwood v. New Jersey State Dep't of Educ., EDU 8017-94, Final Decision, State Bd. of Educ., (June 7, 2000) (noting that N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12 controls the financial responsibility of residential placements).

Domicile and Custody

The Legislature has provided that public education shall be free to any person over five and under twenty years of age who is domiciled within the school district. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a); N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a). Under the school laws, a residence is defined as "domicile, unless a temporary residence is indicated." N.J.S.A. 18A:1-1. Domicile, generally, is the place where a person has his true, fixed, and permanent home, and whenever he is absent, he has the intention of returning. State v. Benny, 20 N.J. 238, 250 (1955); In Re Unanue, 255 N.J. Super. 362, 374 (Law Div. 1991). While a person can have many residences, a person can have only one domicile at any one time. Benny, supra, 20 N.J. at 254.

In an education law context, determining the domicile of a student is usually based on the domicile of the child's parent or guardian. Mississippi Band of Choctaw Indians v. Holyfield, 490 U.S. 30, 48, 109 S. Ct. 1597, 1608, 104 L. Ed. 2d, 46 (1989); Roxbury Twp. Bd. of Educ. v. West Milford Bd. of Educ. 283 N.J. Super. 505, 521-22(citations omitted). The regulations implementing N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 specify where a child is domiciled when his or her parents live in different districts:

1. A student is domiciled in the school district when he or she is the child of a parent or guardian whose permanent home is located within the school district. A home is permanent when the parent or guardian intends to return to it when absent and has no present intent of moving from it, notwithstanding the existence of homes or residences elsewhere.
 - i. where a student's parents or guardians are domiciled within different school districts and where there is no court order or written agreement

- between the parents designating the school district for school attendance, the student's domicile is the school district of the parent or guardian with whom the student lives for the majority of the school year regardless of which parent has legal custody
- ii. Where a student's physical custody is shared on an equal-time, alternating week/month or other similar basis such that the student is not living with one parent for a majority of the school year, and where there is no court order or written agreement between the parents designating the school district for school attendance, the student's domicile is the present domicile of the parent with whom the student resided on the last school day prior to October 16 preceding the date of application.

After a divorce or judicial separation, a custody order is persuasive evidence of a child's domicile. See, e.g., W.A. O/B/O/ B.A. v. South Plainfield Bd. of Educ., EDU 4016-00, Initial Decision, (July 12, 2001), adopted, Comm'r. (August 27, 2001) (noting that even where a custody order is in place, the Commissioner will look to see where a minor child is actually residing, and a custody order is not always dispositive); D.M. v. Bd. of Educ. of the Twp. of Ewing, EDU 6448-00, Initial Decision,⁸ (January 18, 2002), rejected, Comm'r. (March 11, 2002), rev'd, State Bd. of Educ. (November 5, 2003) (finding that a child was domiciled with her mother, and not her sister, because the only evidence shown that the child lived with the sister was a temporary custody order); Bd. of Educ. of the City of Absecon v. M.L.G., EDU 10944-99, Initial Decision, (April 18, 2000), reversed Comm'r. (July 13, 2000) (finding that once a child's great aunt assumed legal and physical custody of a child, the only inquiry left for the Board was whether both the aunt and the child were domiciled in the district, and that absent a showing of fraud, a custody order must be accepted on its face); L.D.M. v. Bd. of Educ. of the Twp. of West Orange, EDU 3590-00, Initial Decision, (March 22, 2001), reversed, Comm'r., (May 11, 2001) (finding that where a child's sister assumed legal custody of him, the only appropriate inquiry was whether the sister and the child were domiciled in the district); V.S.-L. v. Bd. of Educ. of the City of Garfield, EDU 10879-06, reversed, Comm'r. (July 9, 2007) (finding that when a court order is entered awarding custody of a minor to an individual, the minor's domicile is determined by the domicile of that custodial individual, and this determination should only be reversed if there is overwhelming evidence that the child was not actually living with the individual that was granted custody); B.C. v. Bd. of Educ. of the City of Atlantic City, EDU 2623-08, Initial Decision, (October 19, 2009), adopted, Comm'r. (November 18, 2009) (finding that a child was domiciled with the grandmother because the grandmother had sole custody and guardianship of the child, and there was only speculative evidence presented by the school district that the child was not domiciled with the grandmother); R.A.R., O/B/O/ minor child R.D.R. v. Bd. of Educ. of the Black Horse Pike Reg'l High Sch. Dist., EDU 8849-07, Initial Decision, (January 25, 2008), adopted, Comm'r. (March 5, 2008) (finding that even though the mother had primary physical custody of a child, the child was permitted to attend the school district where the father was domiciled because the child actually permanently lived with the father and the custody order did not designate a school district for her attendance)

Some courts have emphasized that the parents' united intent should determine the child's district of domicile. In Roxbury, supra, 283 N.J. Super. at 513, divorced parents had joint custody and the mother had physical custody of a special education child.⁹ The mother lived in West Milford and the father lived in Roxbury Township. Ibid. The Law Division disagreed with the administrative law judge's (ALJ) conclusion that a person can have more than one domicile and determined that Roxbury and West Milford should split the cost of the child's education.¹⁰ Id. at 521. The Law Division required that the divorced parents have a united intent to establish a district in which their child should receive his education and that their decision would be determinative if reasonable and based on good faith considerations. Id. at 522. Based on these considerations, the Law Division determined, and the Appellate Division affirmed, that the child was domiciled with the mother in West Milford from the date that physical custody was transferred to her because the parents intended the mother's home to be the child's residence, the mother and her new husband intended the child to live with them if he no longer required a residential placement, and the child had a room and furniture at the mother's home. Ibid.

⁹Because the court distinguished between the parents sharing "joint custody" and the mother having "physical custody," this Decision will assume that "joint custody" refers to joint legal custody although this is not explicit in the decision.

In Bd. of Educ. City of Summit v. Bd. of Educ. of Twp. of Millburn, 95 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 506, temporary residence did not determine domicile and the ALJ would only look to the divorce decree if there was ambiguity as to domicile. In Summit, the divorce decree allowed for joint custody, but the father had physical custody. By mutual consent of her parents, the child had lived with her mother for most of her life except for intermittent occasions on which the mother was unable to care for her because she was committed to a psychiatric hospital. The ALJ determined that the only way that the domicile would change to that of the father is if the mother's intermittent incapacity to care for the child shifted the major parental responsibility to the father and if he exercised parental authority in decisions regarding his daughter's welfare. Id. at 507. Additionally, the ALJ held that if there was any ambiguity with respect to the child's domicile, the judgment of divorce might be determinative, but because there was no ambiguity with respect to where the child spent most of her time, the judgment of divorce was not controlling.¹¹

Another case that relied on the intent of the parents is Clifton v. Bd. of Educ. v. Sauro, 96 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 497. In that case, the parents were divorced, lived in two different cities, and had shared custody of their children who split time every week in each household. Under the original custody order, the mother was awarded custody while the father was granted liberal and reasonable rights of visitation. The mother began having difficulty with the children and let them spend more time with the father in Clifton, where they began attending school. After the Superior Court reaffirmed the mother's custody, the children began spending more time at the mother's house in Passaic. In finding that the children were domiciled in Clifton from the first day of the school year until entry of the Superior Court's custody order, and in Passaic thereafter, the ALJ relied on the reasoning of Roxbury, supra, and gave deference to the divorced parents' united intent to establish Clifton as their child's district. The ALJ determined that the decision to enroll the children in the district of the father's domicile was a united decision, reasonable, and made in good faith. It was only until the children began living with the mother more frequently after the reaffirmation of the mother's custody that the children were domiciled in Passaic and not entitled to attend school in Clifton. The Commissioner adopted the ALJ's decision, adding that an analysis of domicile does not necessarily depend on the "majority of the time" paradigm and that it is the parents' choice of domicile for their children during the operative time period, rather than their choice of school districts, that is determinative.

¹¹ It is important to keep in mind that the united intent of the parents' weighed heavily in determining the outcomes in both Summit and Roxbury, while in Roxbury, there was a custodial determination that did play some part in the holding.

Dual domicile has been found in very narrow circumstances. For example, in Somerville Bd. of Educ. v. Manville Bd. of Educ., 332 N.J. Super. 6, 9 (App. Div. 2000), a special education child lived with each of his divorced parents, who shared joint legal and physical custody on an alternating week schedule. The child was placed at an out-of-district placement, and the school districts of Manville, the mother's domicile, and Somerville, the father's domicile, entered into an oral agreement to share the costs of the child's special education on an alternating year basis. Somerville, supra, 332 N.J. Super. at 9. After five years of alternating the special education costs, the Manville school district determined it would no longer pay the child's tuition. Id. at 9-10. The Appellate Division reversed the Law Division's determination that the child was a domiciliary of Somerville because the father resided there, and instead held that fairness dictated that both districts must equally bear the costs of the child's education. Id. at 17. Other cases have relied on Somerville's narrow holding. In Cumberland Reg'l High Sch. Dist. Bd. of Educ. v. Freehold Reg'l High Sch. Dist. Bd. of Educ., 293 Fed. Appx. 900 (3d Cir. 2008), the court held that two school districts had to share the costs of a child's education where the divorced parents had joint legal and physical custody of the child and the child did not have a clear domicile.¹² Id. at 904. The court's determination that the absence of a pre-existing agreement to share the costs of a child's education like in Somerville was not dispositive, the court concluded, because the holding of Somerville was based on equitable considerations rather than contractual ones. Ibid.

Guardianship

Under, N.J.S.A. 3B:1-1, Administration of Estates, a “guardian” is defined as a person who has qualified as a guardian of the person or incapacitated individual pursuant to court appointment. An individual for whom a guardian is appointed is defined as a “ward.” N.J.S.A. 3B:1-2. An “incapacitated person” is someone who, in relevant part, is so impaired because of mental deficiency that he lacks sufficient capacity to govern himself and manage his affairs. Ibid. A general guardian appointed for an incapacitated individual shall exercise all rights and powers of the incapacitated person. N.J.S.A. 3B:12-24.1. The powers and duties conferred upon a guardian are all the powers conferred upon the guardian by law and the provisions of this chapter except as limited by the judgment. N.J.S.A. 3B:12-48. In accordance with N.J.S.A. 3B:12-24.1, a guardian “shall exercise authority over matters relating to the rights and best interests of the ward’s personal needs, only to the extent adjudicated by a court of competent jurisdiction,” giving deference to the preferences of the ward, if known to the guardian. N.J.S.A. 3B:12-57(f). “To the extent that it is consistent with the terms of any order by a court of competent jurisdiction, the guardian shall . . . take custody of the ward and establish the ward’s place of abode in or outside” of New Jersey. Id. § (f) to (f)(1) (emphasis added).

II. Hazlet is responsible for the costs of J.M.’s education because Hazlet is both J.M.’s district of residence and his domicile.

Hazlet District is responsible for the costs of J.M.’s education because Hazlet is both J.M.’s district of residence and his domicile. First, Hazlet is J.M.’s district of residence because Hazlet is the present district of residence of S.M., with whom J.M. lived with prior to his most recent placement by the DCF. In the subsequent time spent at Willowglen, S.M., J.M.’s custodial parent, continued to live in Hazlet as of the last school day prior to October 16, 2010. Second, J.M. is domiciled in Hazlet because the Divorce Decree provides that J.M. be domiciled and educated in Hazlet, J.M.’s parents continue to intend that J.M. be domiciled and educated in Hazlet, the Divorce Decree supersedes the guardianship order with respect to J.M.'s domicile, and the overnight visits at his father's household do not affect a finding that J.M. is domiciled in Hazlet.

Under N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12(b) and N.J.A.C. 6A:23A-19.2(a)(1) to -(2), J.M.'s district of residence is his mother's present district of residence in Hazlet because he lived with her prior to placement, she continues to live in Hazlet, and she is the custodial parent. Similar to the decision in Wildwood, supra, two determinations must be made before deciding which district is financial responsible for the child's tuition. The first determination is which district is responsible for the initial obligation when the placement was first made. Immediately prior to his placement in Willowglen by the DCF, he lived with his mother, who currently resides in Hazlet. So Hazlet District is responsible for tuition for the initial year at Willowglen. The second determination is the obligation for tuition in the subsequent time spent at the Willowglen. N.J.A.C. 6A:23A-19.2(a)(2). The subsequent time that J.M. has been at Willowglen is governed by N.J.A.C. 6A:23A-19.2(a)(1) which is the "the New Jersey district of residence of the child's parent(s) or guardian(s) as of the last school day prior to October 16." Still, the present district of residence is in Hazlet because S.M. was living in Hazlet prior to October 16, 2010, and she is still J.M.'s custodial parent. As a result, Hazlet District is responsible for the costs of J.M.'s education. See Lower Camden County, supra; Wildwood, supra.

Even if N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12(b) does not apply here, Hazlet District is responsible for the costs of J.M.'s education because J.M. is domiciled in Hazlet for purposes of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 and N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a)(1)(i). According to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, a student is entitled to a free education from the district in which he is domiciled. And, under N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a)(1)(i), where a student's parents are domiciled in different school districts, the student's domicile may be determined by a court order or written agreement between the parents designating the school district for school attendance. Here, the Divorce Decree designates S.M. as J.M.'s residential custodian, Hazlet as J.M.'s place of residence, and Hazlet as the school district through which J.M. shall receive his education. The Divorce Decree provides this should only change if the parents jointly and mutually agree to remove J.M. from the Hazlet school system, and the parents have not made such an agreement. Instead, the parents continue to intend that J.M. be domiciled and educated in Hazlet.

Moreover, the Divorce Decree, and not the guardianship order, is determinative of J.M.'s domicile. First, if K.M. took custody of J.M. and established his domicile in Aberdeen, this would be inconsistent with the sections of the Divorce Decree that name S.M. as the residential custodial parent and Hazlet as J.M.'s school district and place of residence.

The guardianship order did not terminate J.M.'s residential custodian rights. The guardianship order was executed pursuant to a judgment of incapacity that declared K.M. guardian over J.M.'s "person and property." The guardianship order gives K.M. control of his son's legal and financial issues but does not terminate the custodial rights of S.M. A guardian may take custody of the ward and establish the ward's place of abode, N.J.S.A. 3B:12-57(f)(1), but only "to the extent that it is consistent with the terms of any order by a court of competent jurisdiction" N.J.S.A. 3B:12-57(f) (emphasis added). Here, an arrangement by which K.M. took custody of J.M. and established J.M.'s domicile would be inconsistent with the terms of the Divorce Decree, an order by a court of competent jurisdiction.

Second, even though generally a child is legally emancipated at eighteen years old, the Divorce Decree here, presumably because of J.M.'s disabilities, specified that he would not be emancipated until, inter alia, he reached the age of eighteen or he graduated from high school, whichever occurred later. When emancipation occurs, "a parent relinquishes the right to custody and is relived of the duty to support a child." Newburg v. Arrigo, 88 N.J. 529, 543 (1982). In New Jersey, emancipation of a minor does not necessarily occur when a child turns eighteen; such an event establishes prima facie evidence of emancipation but not conclusive proof. Bishop v. Bishop, 287 N.J. Super. 593, 597 (Ch. Div. 1996) (citing Newburgh, supra, 88 N.J. at 543). This issue is fact sensitive and depends on the circumstances of the case. Ibid. A child is emancipated when "the fundamental dependant relationship between parent and child is terminated." Bishop, supra, 287 N.J. Super. at 598. Emancipation can occur, for example, upon a child's marriage, upon induction into military service, by court order based on the child's best interest, or by attainment of an appropriate age. Id. at 598 (internal citations omitted). Unless that dependant relationship has ceased, regardless of a child's chronological age, parental support obligations continue. Ibid.

If the terms of emancipation are incorporated in the custody agreement, it should be enforced by the courts. For example, in Dolce v. Dolce, 383 N.J. Super. 11, 21 (App. Div. 2006), the court found that the unambiguous terms of a property settlement agreement (PSA), which was incorporated into a divorce decree, were enforceable "as written and agreed to by the parties, absent a substantial change in circumstances." The parties agreed that the mother would have primary residential custody and the father would pay child support until the son's emancipation, which would occur when he turned twenty-three or completed college. Id. at 16. Despite the provision in the parents' PSA establishing age twenty three as an emancipation event, the father in Dolce wanted the son declared emancipated because he had turned eighteen. Ibid. While the Family Part declared the son emancipated, the Appellate Division found that the father could not demonstrate any unfairness or inequity in the PSA which the court said was "plain and explicit . . . [and] le[ft] no room for interpretation." Id. at 21. As a result, the Appellate Division vacated the order of the Family Part that declaring the son emancipated and terminating the father's child support obligation. Ibid.

While this case concerns custody and domicile, and not support obligations, the same analysis can be used. J.M. is not independent of his parents and no event triggering emancipation under the Divorce Decree has occurred. The guardianship order did not override the determination of custody, the emancipation triggers, or the residency arrangement contained in the Divorce Decree. There is no inequity, unfairness, or ambiguity regarding the Divorce Decree, and the terms of the agreement specifying J.M.'s emancipation event, district of education, and district of residence, should be enforced as written.

Finally, J.M.'s overnight visits at his father's house should not serve to change J.M.'s domicile to Aberdeen. A student's residence is his "domicile, unless temporary residence is indicated." N.J.S.A. 18A:1-1. Temporary residence does not determine domicile and if there is any ambiguity as to domicile, the divorce decree should be looked to for guidance. See Summit, supra. In the same vein as Summit, domicile should only change if the temporary residence of J.M. shifted the major parental responsibility and authority regarding his son's welfare to the father. It is important to note that J.M. has been improving behaviorally, and while it is not guaranteed that he will continue to transition to going back to his mother's home, the intent of the parents is that he will go back to the mother's home. While K.M. has taken on more responsibility (J.M. sleeps at his house when visiting), this has not fundamentally shifted the exercise of parental responsibility and authority to him. S.M. has retained those responsibilities despite the temporary living arrangements made in response to the incident in which J.M. assaulted his mother.

I therefore CONCLUDE that Hazlet District is responsible for J.M.'s education costs because Hazlet is both J.M.'s district of residence and the town in which he is domiciled. Hazlet is J.M.'s district of residence because J.M. lived with his mother in Hazlet immediately prior to his placement by the State in a residential facility, his mother continues to reside in Hazlet, and his mother is his custodial parent. Alternatively, J.M. is domiciled in Hazlet because the Divorce Decree stipulates that J.M. is domiciled in Hazlet and is to be educated there, the parents continue to intend for Hazlet to be J.M.'s domicile and the district through which he receives his education, the guardianship order does not supersede the Divorce Decree with respect to J.M.'s domicile, and J.M.'s overnight visits at his father's house in Aberdeen do not change J.M.'s domicile. Hazlet District has not proven that the decision of OSF was arbitrary, capricious or without reason.

ORDER

Respondent's motion for summary decision is GRANTED, and petitioner's cross-motion for summary decision is DENIED. Petitioner's appeal of the decision of OSF is DENIED. Petitioner shall continue to be responsible for the costs of educating J.M.

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner Matawan-Aberdeen Regional Board of Education (Matawan) sought a determination that respondent Hazlet Board of Education (Hazlet) is the party responsible for the cost of educating J.M. – a student receiving special education services in a residential placement – for the 2010-2011 school year. Since the divorce of his parents in 2001, J.M.'s custody has been governed by a divorce decree which gave joint legal custody to both parents but designated his mother, S.M., as the residential custodial parent and primary caretaker, and further provided that it was the parents' intention that their son continue to be educated in and through the Hazlet school district. In January 2010, J.M.'s father – K.M., who resides in Aberdeen – filed for permanent sole legal guardianship of his son, under which K.M. would handle J.M.'s legal and financial matters. The guardianship documents did not cover J.M.'s living arrangements. Hazlet contended that petitioning Board is responsible for the cost of educating J.M. pursuant to the guardianship order. The parties filed cross motions for summary decision.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: there are no genuine issues of material fact and the matter is ripe for summary decision; pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12b and N.J.A.C. 6A:23A-19.2(a)(1)-(2), J.M.'s district of residence is his mother's present district of residence in Hazlet because he lived with her prior to placement and she is the custodial parent, and because the terms of the parents' divorce decree stipulates that J.M. is domiciled in Hazlet and would be educated in the Hazlet district; the divorce decree and not the guardianship order is determinative of J.M.'s domicile; and the guardianship order did not terminate J.M.'s residential custodial rights as it was executed pursuant to a judgment of incapacity that declared K.M. guardian over J.M.'s legal and financial issues. The ALJ concluded that the respondent school district, Hazlet, is responsible for J.M.'s education costs and, accordingly, granted petitioner's motion for summary decision.

Upon full and careful consideration, the Commissioner adopted the Initial Decision as the final decision in this matter as he concurred that – given the undisputed facts – summary disposition was appropriate, petitioner's motion for summary disposition was properly granted and respondent's motion for summary disposition was properly denied – for the reasons stated in the ALJ's decision.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

The Commissioner has reviewed the record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on the parties' cross motions for summary decision. Respondent (Hazlet) filed exceptions, and Petitioner (Matawan-Aberdeen) filed reply exceptions as provided by N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Hazlet¹ argues in its exceptions that the ALJ erred as a matter of law when he determined that the 2009 Judgment of Incapacitation did not supersede the 2001 custody agreement, which granted custodial rights of J.M. to the mother, S.M. Moreover, Hazlet asserts that the ALJ relied, to its detriment, on facts not clearly established in the record regarding the parents' intent that S.M. should continue as the custodial, residential parent of J.M.

¹ On May 31, 2011, Respondent Hazlet filed a companion case, Hazlet Township Board of Education v. New Jersey Department of Education, Office of School Funding, EDU 6170-11, Agency Dkt. No. 116-5/11. Since the new matter involved substantially similar issues, the ALJ – with the consent of the parties – decided the cases concurrently.

In response, Matawan-Aberdeen agrees with the findings of the ALJ and argues that both parents, K.M. and S.M., testified without contradiction during depositions² that their son, J.M., was domiciled in Hazlet – residing initially with his parents and then solely with his mother after the divorce. Moreover, both parents testified that after a transition period J.M. would once again enjoy overnight stays at his mother's home. The father testified that his poor health made it impossible for him to undertake full custodial responsibility of his son.

Upon his considered review of the record and a thorough reading of the deposition transcripts, the Commissioner concurs with the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) that this matter is ripe for summary decision as there are no genuine issues of material fact to resolve. For the reasons convincingly presented in the ALJ's decision, the Commissioner agrees that the Township of Hazlet is the district of residence; Hazlet is the district of S.M.'s residence, and J.M. lived with her prior to the residential placement. Alternatively, Hazlet is J.M.'s domicile in accordance with the Divorce Decree; therefore, the Hazlet Board of Education is responsible for the cost of his education.

Accordingly, summary disposition is granted to petitioner Matawan-Aberdeen Regional School District, and respondent Hazlet's cross motion is hereby denied.

BEFORE EDWARD J. DELANOY, JR., ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner Matawan-Aberdeen Regional Board of Education (Matawan-Aberdeen District) seeks a determination that respondent Hazlet Board of Education (Hazlet School District) is the responsible party for the cost of educating J.M., a student receiving special education services, for the 2010-11 school year. Hazlet School District counters that Matawan-Aberdeen District is the responsible party for the cost of educating J.M. Both parties bring cross-motions for summary decision.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Matawan-Aberdeen District filed a petition for due process dated July 9, 2010, with the Bureau of Controversies & Disputes of the New Jersey Department of Education (DOE). On July 30, 2010, an Answer was filed by respondent Hazlet School District, and the matter was transmitted for a hearing to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-2(b) and N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.9(b), where it was filed on August 19, 2010.

Upon the motion of the parties, an order for the depositions of J.M.'s mother (S.M.) and father (K.M.) was entered on October 20, 2010. Depositions of S.M. and K.M. were taken on December 7, 2010. Petitioner and respondent then filed cross-motions for summary decision on or before April 26, 2011. Subsequently, a companion case was filed on May 31, 2011, involving substantially similar issues entitled, "Hazlet Township Board of Education v. New Jersey Department of Education, Office of School Funding", EDU 06170-2011, Agency Ref. No. 116-5/11 ("Companion Case"). Upon consent of the parties, the record in this matter remained open to allow for the cross-filing of motions for summary decision in the Companion Case. In that matter, Hazlet School District claims the Office of School Funding erred when it found that Hazlet School District was responsible for the costs of educating J.M. Motions and briefs were filed in the Companion Case on or before October 17, 2011, and the decision in the Companion Case shall be made concurrently with the decision herein. As a result, the record closed herein on October 17, 2011.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

Having reviewed the submissions of the parties, as well as the depositions of K.M. and S.M., I FIND the following as FACT: J.M. was born on November 13, 1991, and is currently nineteen years old. (Petitioner's Brief at 2 to -3.¹) He was adopted by K.M. and S.M., who were then living in Hazlet. J.M. was enrolled in the Hazlet School District at an early age and it was determined he was eligible for special education and related services. Id. In particular, since July 1998, J.M. has been classified as "Multiply Disabled," based on mild cognitive impairment, a learning disability, and Pervasive Developmental Disorder on mild Autistic Spectrum and Specific Learning Disability. He has been placed in out-of-district schools since the fourth grade. (Respondent's Brief at 2² (citing Cert. of Susan Galbraith; 1T 6:21-7:15.³))

In 2001, when J.M. was ten years old, his parents divorced. The Dual Judgment of Divorce and Agreement divorce decree ("Divorce Decree") ordered and adjudged on July 23, 2001, contained a custody arrangement that gave "joint legal custody" to both parents but designated the mother, S.M., as the "residential custodial parent and primary caretaker." (Petitioner's Ex. 5a.⁴) J.M. continued to reside with S.M. in Hazlet, and he remained enrolled in the Hazlet School District, attending a series of out-of-district day placements. (1T 9:12-15; 2T 8:16-9:4; Petitioner's Brief at 2-3.) The Divorce Decree provided that it was S.M. and K.M.'s intention that J.M. continue to be educated in and through the Hazlet School District. It also specified, in relevant part, that J.M. would be emancipated when he turned eighteen or graduated from high school, whichever occurred later. (Respondent's Ex. at 1.⁵) At all times relevant to this

² Respondent's motion for summary decision was received by the OAL on February 18, 2011, will be referred to as "Respondent's Brief" throughout this Decision.

³ The transcripts from the deposition of K.M. and S.M. taken on December 7, 2010 and attached to both petitioner and respondent's motions (transcripts are attached to respondent's motion and part of Exhibit 6 and Exhibit 7 attached to petitioner's motion) will be referred to as 1T and 2T, respectively, throughout this memo.

matter, K.M. lived in the Township of Aberdeen, a constituent municipality of the Matawan-Aberdeen District. (Respondent's Ex. at 4; Respondent's Brief at 3; Petitioner's Brief at 2.)

In August, 2009, J.M. physically assaulted S.M. As a result, J.M. was placed in the Willowglen Residential Center (Willowglen) in Lisbon, New Jersey by the Department of Children and Families (DCF). (T1 16:23-17:25; T2 11:16-12:5; Respondent's Petition of Appeal at para. 4-6⁶) Willowglen is a residential placement for children with emotional and behavioral disorders. (Respondent's Brief at 2 (citing Cert. of Galbraith at 6).) When J.M. was first placed at Willowglen, the Hazlet School District provided transportation to and from Willowglen to the Jackson Regional Day School, where J.M. received his education. (Respondent's Brief at 3 (citing Cert. of Galbraith at 6); Respondent's Petition of Appeal.) The Hazlet School District paid the tuition for J.M.'s education at Jackson Regional Day School. Ibid. On November 13, 2009, J.M. turned eighteen years old. (1T 10:2-3.) On or about January 22, 2010, J.M. was placed at the Willowglen facility in Sparta, where he currently resides and receives his education, pursuant to an Individualized Education Program (IEP) drafted by the Hazlet School District's Child Study Team. Ibid.

On January 25, 2010, K.M. filed for permanent sole legal guardianship over J.M. and his property because J.M. "is an incapacitated person as a result of unsoundness of mind and is incapable of governing himself and managing his own affairs." (Respondent's Ex. 2.⁷) S.M. and K.M. jointly agreed that, as a guardian, K.M. would handle J.M.'s "legal and financial matters" and because "[J.M.] has problems making the correct decisions." (1T 10:4-13:3; 2T 10:1-11:15.) The guardianship documents did not mention S.M. or J.M.'s living arrangements. (Respondent's Ex. 2.)

⁶ On May 6, 2011, Respondent filed with the Department of Education, Bureau of Controversies and Disputes a Petition of Appeal challenging a determination by the Department of Education, Office of School Funding (OSF) that Hazlet Board of Education is responsible for J.M.'s education costs pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7B 12.

On or about April 7, 2010, after the Hazlet School District was notified of K.M.'s appointment as J.M.'s legal guardian, Dr. William George, the Superintendent of School for the Hazlet School District, notified Dr. Richard O'Malley, then the Superintendent of Schools for the Matawan-Aberdeen District, that K.M. had been appointed legal guardian of J.M. and that K.M. lived in Aberdeen. (Respondent's Ex. 3.) On that same date, K.M. was notified that the Hazlet School District was aware that K.M. had been appointed as the guardian of J.M. and requested that K.M. enroll him in the Matawan-Aberdeen District, where K.M. lives. (Respondent's Ex. 4.⁸) Also on that date, the Hazlet School District notified the principal of Willowglen, Susan Hackett, that K.M. had been appointed the permanent guardian of J.M. and that as a result, his residency was in Aberdeen, and the Matawan-Aberdeen District was responsible for J.M.'s tuition as of April 15, 2010. (Respondent's Ex. 5.) Joel Glastein, the former Deputy Superintendent of the Matawan-Aberdeen District, contacted the Hazlet Department of Special Services to inform it that the Matawan-Aberdeen District did not believe it was responsible for J.M.'s education. (Respondent's Brief at 5 citing Cert. of Galbraith at 16.)

When J.M. is able to leave Willowglen on short home visits, he stays overnight at his father's house, where J.M. has a bedroom, but also visits his mother's house during the day. (1T 14:24-16:9; 1T 30:13-15; 2T 12:19-14:6.) J.M. has spent "the bulk of his time" at S.M.'s house "on a number of occasions," despite not spending the night at S.M.'s house. (1T 16:5-9.) K.M. and S.M. are trying to gradually reintroduce J.M. back into S.M.'s home and life and are planning on letting him spend nights at S.M.'s house during home visits as long as he is acting appropriately. (1T 17:15-19; 1T 30:19-31:11; 2T 19:23-20:9.) K.M. characterized J.M.'s "home" as S.M.'s house because "reason number one, the [divorce] decree says so, reason number two that's what his mother wants, [and] [r]eason number three is I have a number of medical conditions that prevent me from having full time residential custody of my son." (1T 30:2-6.) Additionally, S.M. and K.M. discussed J.M.'s living arrangements if and when he comes home from Willowglen, and in S.M.'s view, J.M. would be living with both K.M. and her, but J.M. would predominately stay with her. (2T 14:7-18; 2T 18:8-16; 2T 19:23-20:9.)

⁸Exhibit 4 attached to respondent's motion is a letter from K.M. from Susan Galbraith, the Director of Special Services from the Hazlet School District.

Both parents conceded that there was no firm agreement in place that ultimately determined where J.M. would be staying if he left Willowglen. (1T 16:10-20; 2T 14:14-18.)

Sometime after J.M. was placed in Willowglen by the DCF, the DCF asked the Office of School Funding (OSF) to determine the district of residence of J.M in response to a dispute over who was responsible for J.M.'s education costs. On February 9, 2011, the Hazlet School District received a determination from the OSF that Hazlet was financially responsible. (Respondent's Petition of Appeal.) The OSF based its finding that J.M. resided in Hazlet with his mother on N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12b, which states:

The district of residence for children who are in residential State facilities, or who have been placed by State agencies in group homes, skill development homes, private school or out-of-state facilities shall be the present district of residence of the parent or guardian with whom the child lived with prior to his most recent admission to a State facility or most recent placement by a State agency.

On April 8, 2011, Yut'se Thomas, the Acting Assistant Commissioner, Division of Finance, by letter upheld OSF's determination regarding Hazlet's responsibility for the costs of J.M.'s education. According to Assistant Commissioner Thomas, the Hazlet Board of Education is responsible for the costs of J.M.'s education under N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12(b) because J.M. resided with his mother in Hazlet immediately prior to the date of his placement, and she still lives there. Ibid. She stated that K.M.'s appointment as an "adult guardian" over J.M. was irrelevant because the mother's parental rights were not terminated, and "[u]nless the mother's parental rights have been terminated by court order, she remains the child's parent/guardian for district of residence purposes." Ibid. Thomas also noted that the Hazlet Board of Education would continue to be responsible for J.M.'s education costs as long as S.M. remained a resident of Hazlet.

On May 31, 2011, the Hazlet School Board filed a Petition of Appeal challenging the district of residence determination, alleging that J.M. resided in Aberdeen with his father pursuant to the guardianship order and the fact that he has not lived with his mother since August 2009. Hazlet School Board also alleged that the OSF “unreasonably refused to stay its determination despite having notice of controlling litigation in the [OAL]” Ibid.

LEGAL DISCUSSION

N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5, governing motions for summary decision, permits early disposition of a case before the case is heard if, based on the papers and discovery which have been filed, it can be decided “that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law.” N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b). The provisions of N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5 mirror the language of R. 4:46-2 of the New Jersey Court Rules governing motions for summary judgment, and, as such, when entertaining motions for summary decision, a “judge’s function is not himself [or herself] to weigh the evidence and determine the truth of the matter but to determine whether there is a genuine issue [to proceed to a hearing].” Brill v. Guardian Life Ins. Co. of Am., 142 N.J. 520, 540 (1995) (quoting Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, Inc., 477 U.S. 242, 249, 106 S. Ct. 2505, 2511, 91 L. Ed. 2d 202, 212 (1986)) (first brackets in original). A judge must “consider whether the competent evidential materials presented, when viewed in the light most favorable to the non-moving party, are sufficient to permit a rational fact finder to resolve the alleged disputed issue in favor of the non-moving party.” Ibid. In determining whether summary decision is appropriate, this tribunal is required to do “the same type of evaluation, analysis or sifting of evidential materials as required by Rule 4:37-2(b) in light of the burden of persuasion that applies if the matter proceeds to a hearing. Id. at 539-40. The facts relevant to a decision on this motion are not in dispute. Therefore, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b) and Brill, supra, FIND that there are no genuine issues of material fact and that this matter is ripe for summary decision.

1. District of Residence, Domicile, Guardianship, and Custody

District of Residence

According to the State Facilities Education Act of 1979, N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-1 to -13, for school funding purposes, the Commissioner of Education shall determine district residence as follows:

b. The district of residence for children who are in residential State facilities or have been placed by State agencies in group homes, skill development homes, private school or out-of-State facilities, shall be the present district of residence of the parent or guardian with whom the child lived prior to his most recent admission to a State facility or most recent placement by a State agency.

[N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12(b).]

The regulations implementing Title 18A define "present district of residence" as follows:

(a) The district of residence for school funding purposes shall be determined according to the following criteria:

1. The "present district of residence" of a child in a residential state facility defined in N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-45 and referred to in the first paragraph of N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12b means the New Jersey district of residence of the child's parent(s) or guardian(s) as of the last school day prior to October 16.

2. The "present district of residence" of a child placed by a State agency in a group home, skill development home, approved private school for students with disabilities or out-of-state facility also referred to in the first paragraph of N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12b means the New Jersey district of residence of the child's parents(s) or guardian(s) as of the date of the child's most recent placement by the State agency. In subsequent school years spent in the educational placement made by a State agency, the child's “present district of residence” shall be determined in the same manner as for a child in a residential State facility as set forth in (a)1 above.

[N.J.A.C. 6A:23A-19.2(a)(1) to -(2).]

Thus, the “present district of residence” of a child placed in a residential facility by a State agency is the district of residence of the parent with whom the child lived prior to his most recent placement by the State agency. N.J.A.C. 6A:23A-19.2(a)(2). In subsequent school years, the “present district of residence” will be the district of residence of the child’s parent as of the last school day prior to October 16. Id. at § 19.2(a)(1). A child’s district of residence is responsible for the costs of his education. See Bd. of Educ. of the Lower Camden County Reg’l Sch. Dist. No. 1 v. State of New Jersey, Dep’t. of Educ., Bureau of Sch. Fin., EDU 8578-98, Initial Decision (June 4, 1999), adopted, Acting Comm’r. (Aug. 13, 1999), affirmed, State Bd. of Educ. (July 5, 2000) (finding that the “present district of residence” is the residence of the child’s parent as of the last school day prior to October 16 and if this cannot be determined, the district of residence shall be the district in which the child resided prior to such admission or placement, and the custodial parent is the parent whose district of residence is considered to determine which district is responsible for tuition⁹); Bd. of Educ. of the City of Wildwood v. New Jersey State Dep’t of Educ., EDU 8017-94, Final Decision, State Bd. of Educ., (June 7, 2000) (noting that N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12 controls the financial responsibility of residential placements).

Domicile and Custody

⁹ At the time of the Lower Camden County, supra decision, the relevant provision of N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12 (1999) read:

b. The district of residence for children who are in residential State facilities, or who have been placed by State agencies in group homes, skill development homes, private schools or out-of-State facilities, shall be the present district of residence of the parent or guardian with whom the child lived prior to his most recent admission to a State facility or most recent placement by a State agency.

If this cannot be determined, the district of residence shall be the district in which the child resided prior to such admission or placement.

Additionally, N.J.A.C. 6:20-5.3 was the applicable regulation at the time of the decision.

The Legislature has provided that public education shall be free to any person over five and under twenty years of age who is domiciled within the school district. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a); N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a). Under the school laws, a residence is defined as "domicile, unless a temporary residence is indicated." N.J.S.A. 18A:1-1. Domicile, generally, is the place where a person has his true, fixed, and permanent home, and whenever he is absent, he has the intention of returning. State v. Benny, 20 N.J. 238, 250 (1955); In Re Unanue, 255 N.J. Super. 362, 374 (Law Div. 1991). While a person can have many residences, a person can only one domicile at any one time. Benny, supra, 20 N.J. at 254.

In an education law context, determining the domicile of a student is usually based on the domicile of the child's parent or guardian. Mississippi Band of Choctaw Indians v. Holyfield, 490 U.S. 30, 48, 109 S. Ct. 1597, 1608, 104 L. Ed. 2d, 46 (1989); Roxbury Twp. Bd. of Educ. v. West Milford Bd. of Educ. 283 N.J. Super. 505, 521-22(citations omitted). The regulations implementing N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 specify where a child is domiciled when his or her parents live in different districts:

1. A student is domiciled in the school district when he or she is the child of a parent or guardian whose permanent home is located within the school district. A home is permanent when the parent or guardian intends to return to it when absent and has no present intent of moving from it, notwithstanding the existence of homes or residences elsewhere.
 - i. where a student's parents or guardians are domiciled within different school districts and where there is no court order or written agreement between the parents designating the school district for school attendance, the student's domicile is the school district of the parent or guardian with whom the student lives for the majority of the school year regardless of which parent has legal custody
 - ii. Where a student's physical custody is shared on an equal-time, alternating week/month or other similar basis such that the student is not living with one parent for a majority of the school year, and where there is no court order or written agreement between the parents designating the school district for school attendance, the student's domicile is the present domicile of the parent with whom the student resided on the last school day prior to October 16 preceding the date of application.

After a divorce or judicial separation, a custody order is persuasive evidence of a child's domicile. See, e.g., W.A. O/B/O/ B.A. v. South Plainfield Bd. of Educ., EDU 4016-00, Initial Decision, (July 12, 2001), adopted, Comm'r. (August 27, 2001) (noting that even where a custody order is in place, the Commissioner will look to see where a minor child is actually residing, and a custody order is not always dispositive); D.M. v. Bd. of Educ. of the Twp. of Ewing, EDU 6448-00, Initial Decision,¹⁰ (January 18, 2002), rejected, Comm'r. (March 11, 2002), rev'd, State Bd. of Educ. (November 5, 2003) (finding that a child was domiciled with her mother, and not her sister, because the only evidence shown that the child lived with the sister was a temporary custody order); Bd. of Educ. of the City of Absecon v. M.L.G., EDU 10944-99, Initial Decision, (April 18, 2000), reversed Comm'r. (July 13, 2000) (finding that once a child's great aunt assumed legal and physical custody of a child, the only inquiry left for the Board was whether both the aunt and the child were domiciled in the district, and that absent a showing of fraud, a custody order must be accepted on its face); L.D.M. v. Bd. of Educ. of the Twp. of West Orange, EDU 3590-00, Initial Decision, (March 22, 2001), reversed, Comm'r., (May 11, 2001) (finding that where a child's sister assumed legal custody of him, the only appropriate inquiry was whether the sister and the child were domiciled in the district); V.S.-L. v. Bd. of Educ. of the City of Garfield, EDU 10879-06, reversed, Comm'r. (July 9, 2007) (finding that when a court order is entered awarding custody of a minor to an individual, the minor's domicile is determined by the domicile of that custodial individual, and this determination should only be reversed if there is overwhelming evidence that the child was not actually living with the individual that was granted custody); B.C. v. Bd. of Educ. of the City of Atlantic City, EDU 2623-08, Initial Decision, (October 19, 2009), adopted, Comm'r. (November 18, 2009) (finding that a child was domiciled with the grandmother because the grandmother had sole custody and guardianship of the child, and there was only speculative evidence presented by the school district that the child was not domiciled with the grandmother); R.A.R., O/B/O/ minor child R.D.R. v. Bd. of Educ. of the Black Horse Pike Reg'l High Sch. Dist., EDU 8849-07, Initial Decision, (January 25, 2008), adopted, Comm'r. (March 5, 2008) (finding that even though the mother had primary physical custody of a child, the child was permitted to attend the school district where the father was domiciled because the child actually permanently lived with the father and the custody order did not designate a school district for her attendance)

Some courts have emphasized that the parents' united intent should determine the child's district of domicile. In Roxbury, supra, 283 N.J. Super. at 513, divorced parents had joint custody and the mother had physical custody of a special education child.¹¹ The mother lived in West Milford and the father lived in Roxbury Township. Ibid. The Law Division disagreed with the administrative law judge's (ALJ) conclusion that a person can have more than one domicile and determined that Roxbury and West Milford should split the cost of the child's education.¹² Id. at 521. The Law Division required that the divorced parents have a united intent to establish a district in which their child should receive his education and that their decision would be determinative if reasonable and based on good faith considerations. Id. at 522. Based on these considerations, the Law Division determined, and the Appellate Division affirmed, that the child was domiciled with the mother in West Milford from the date that physical custody was transferred to her because the parents intended the mother's home to be the child's residence, the mother and her new husband intended the child to live with them if he no longer required a residential placement, and the child had a room and furniture at the mother's home. Ibid.

¹¹Because the court distinguished between the parents sharing "joint custody" and the mother having "physical custody," this Decision will assume that "joint custody" refers to joint legal custody although this is not explicit in the decision.

In Bd. of Educ. City of Summit v. Bd. of Educ. of Twp. of Millburn, 95 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 506, temporary residence did not determine domicile and the ALJ would only look to the divorce decree if there was ambiguity as to domicile. In Summit, the divorce decree allowed for joint custody, but the father had physical custody. By mutual consent of her parents, the child had lived with her mother for most of her life except for intermittent occasions on which the mother was unable to care for her because she was committed to a psychiatric hospital. The ALJ determined that the only way that the domicile would change to that of the father is if the mother's intermittent incapacity to care for the child shifted the major parental responsibility to the father and if he exercised parental authority in decisions regarding his daughter's welfare. Id. at 507. Additionally, the ALJ held that if there was any ambiguity with respect to the child's domicile, the judgment of divorce might be determinative, but because there was no ambiguity with respect to where the child spent most of her time, the judgment of divorce was not controlling.¹³

Another case that relied on the intent of the parents is Clifton v. Bd. of Educ. v. Sauro, 96 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 497. In that case, the parents were divorced, lived in two different cities, and had shared custody of their children who split time every week in each household. Under the original custody order, the mother was awarded custody while the father was granted liberal and reasonable rights of visitation. The mother began having difficulty with the children and let them spend more time with the father in Clifton, where they began attending school. After the Superior Court reaffirmed the mother's custody, the children began spending more time at the mother's house in Passaic. In finding that the children were domiciled in Clifton from the first day of the school year until entry of the Superior Court's custody order, and in Passaic thereafter, the ALJ relied on the reasoning of Roxbury, supra, and gave deference to the divorced parents' united intent to establish Clifton as their child's district. The ALJ determined that the decision to enroll the children in the district of the father's domicile was a united decision, reasonable, and made in good faith. It was only until the children began living with the mother more frequently after the reaffirmation of the mother's custody that the children were domiciled in Passaic and not entitled to attend school in Clifton. The Commissioner adopted the ALJ's decision, adding that an analysis of domicile does not necessarily depend on the "majority of the time" paradigm and that it is the parents' choice of domicile for their children during the operative time period, rather than their choice of school districts, that is determinative.

¹³ It is important to keep in mind that the united intent of the parents' weighed heavily in determining the outcomes in both Summit and Roxbury, while in Roxbury, there was a custodial determination that did play some part in the holding.

Dual domicile has been found in very narrow circumstances. For example, in Somerville Bd. of Educ. v. Manville Bd. of Educ., 332 N.J. Super. 6, 9 (App. Div. 2000), a special education child lived with each of his divorced parents, who shared joint legal and physical custody on an alternating week schedule. The child was placed at an out-of-district placement, and the school districts of Manville, the mother's domicile, and Somerville, the father's domicile, entered into an oral agreement to share the costs of the child's special education on an alternating year basis. Somerville, supra, 332 N.J. Super. at 9. After five years of alternating the special education costs, the Manville school district determined it would no longer pay the child's tuition. Id. at 9-10. The Appellate Division reversed the Law Division's determination that the child was a domiciliary of Somerville because the father resided there, and instead held that fairness dictated that both districts must equally bear the costs of the child's education. Id. at 17. Other cases have relied on Somerville's narrow holding. In Cumberland Reg'l High Sch. Dist. Bd. of Educ. v. Freehold Reg'l High Sch. Dist. Bd. of Educ., 293 Fed. Appx. 900 (3d Cir. 2008), the court held that two school districts had to share the costs of a child's education where the divorced parents had joint legal and physical custody of the child and the child did not have a clear domicile.¹⁴ Id. at 904. The court's determination that the absence of a pre-existing agreement to share the costs of a child's education like in Somerville was not dispositive, the court concluded, because the holding of Somerville was based on equitable considerations rather than contractual ones. Ibid.

Guardianship

¹⁴This decision is not precedential under the third circuit internal operating procedure rule 5.7.

Under, N.J.S.A. 3B:1-1, Administration of Estates, a “guardian” is defined as a person who has qualified as a guardian of the person or incapacitated individual pursuant to court appointment. An individual for whom a guardian is appointed is defined as a “ward.” N.J.S.A. 3B:1-2. An “incapacitated person” is someone who, in relevant part, is so impaired because of mental deficiency that he lacks sufficient capacity to govern himself and manage his affairs. Ibid. A general guardian appointed for an incapacitated individual shall exercise all rights and powers of the incapacitated person. N.J.S.A. 3B:12-24.1. The powers and duties conferred upon a guardian are all the powers conferred upon the guardian by law and the provisions of this chapter except as limited by the judgment. N.J.S.A. 3B:12-48. In accordance with N.J.S.A. 3B:12-24.1, a guardian “shall exercise authority over matters relating to the rights and best interests of the ward’s personal needs, only to the extent adjudicated by a court of competent jurisdiction,” giving deference to the preferences of the ward, if known to the guardian. N.J.S.A. 3B:12-57(f). “To the extent that it is consistent with the terms of any order by a court of competent jurisdiction, the guardian shall . . . take custody of the ward and establish the ward’s place of abode in or outside” of New Jersey. Id. § (f) to (f)(1) (emphasis added).

II. Hazlet is responsible for the costs of J.M.’s education because Hazlet is both J.M.’s district of residence and his domicile.

Hazlet School Board is responsible for the costs of J.M.’s education because Hazlet is both J.M.’s district of residence and his domicile. First, Hazlet is J.M.’s district of residence because Hazlet is the present district of residence of S.M., with whom J.M. lived with prior to his most recent placement by the DCF. In the subsequent time spent at Willowglen, S.M., J.M.’s custodial parent, continued to live in Hazlet as of the last school day prior to October 16, 2010. Second, J.M. is domiciled in Hazlet because the Divorce Decree provides that J.M. be domiciled and educated in Hazlet, J.M.’s parents continue to intend that J.M. be domiciled and educated in Hazlet, the Divorce Decree supersedes the guardianship order with respect to J.M.’s domicile, and the overnight visits at his father’s household do not affect a finding that J.M. is domiciled in Hazlet.

Under N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12(b) and N.J.A.C. 6A:23A-19.2(a)(1) to -(2), J.M.'s district of residence is his mother's present district of residence in Hazlet because he lived with her prior to placement, she continues to live in Hazlet, and she is the custodial parent. Similar to the decision in Wildwood, supra, two determinations must be made before deciding which district is financial responsible for the child's tuition. The first determination is which district is responsible for the initial obligation when the placement was first made. Immediately prior to his placement in Willowglen by the DCF, he lived with his mother, who currently resides in Hazlet. Therefore, Hazlet School Board is responsible for tuition for the initial year at Willowglen. The second determination is the obligation for tuition in the subsequent time spent at the Willowglen. N.J.A.C. 6A:23A-19.2(a)(2). The subsequent time that J.M. has been at Willowglen is governed by N.J.A.C. 6A:23A-19.2(a)(1) which is the "the New Jersey district of residence of the child's parent(s) or guardian(s) as of the last school day prior to October 16." Still, the present district of residence is in Hazlet because S.M. was living in Hazlet prior to October 16, 2010, and she is still J.M.'s custodial parent. As a result, Hazlet School Board is responsible for the costs of J.M.'s education. See Lower Camden County, supra; Wildwood, supra.

Even if N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12(b) does not apply here, Hazlet School Board is responsible for the costs of J.M.'s education because J.M. is domiciled in Hazlet for purposes of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 and N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a)(1)(i). According to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, a student is entitled to a free education from the district in which he is domiciled. And, under N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a)(1)(i), where a student's parents are domiciled in different school districts, the student's domicile may be determined by a court order or written agreement between the parents designating the school district for school attendance. Here, the Divorce Decree designates S.M. as J.M.'s residential custodian, Hazlet as J.M.'s place of residence, and Hazlet as the school district through which J.M. shall receive his education. The Divorce Decree provides this should only change if the parents jointly and mutually agree to remove J.M. from the Hazlet school system, and the parents have not made such an agreement. Instead, the parents continue to intend that J.M. be domiciled and educated in Hazlet.

Moreover, the Divorce Decree, and not the guardianship order, is determinative of J.M.'s domicile. First, if K.M. took custody of J.M. and established his domicile in Aberdeen, this would be inconsistent with the sections of the Divorce Decree that name S.M. as the residential custodial parent and Hazlet as J.M.'s school district and place of residence.

The guardianship order did not terminate J.M.'s residential custodian rights. The guardianship order was executed pursuant to a judgment of incapacity that declared K.M. guardian over J.M.'s "person and property." The guardianship order gives K.M. control of his son's legal and financial issues but does not terminate the custodial rights of S.M. A guardian may take custody of the ward and establish the ward's place of abode, N.J.S.A. 3B:12-57(f)(1), but only "to the extent that it is consistent with the terms of any order by a court of competent jurisdiction . . ." N.J.S.A. 3B:12-57(f) (emphasis added). Here, an arrangement by which K.M. took custody of J.M. and established J.M.'s domicile would be inconsistent with the terms of the Divorce Decree, an order by a court of competent jurisdiction.

Second, even though generally a child is legally emancipated at eighteen years old, the Divorce Decree here, presumably because of J.M.'s disabilities, specified that he would not be emancipated until, inter alia, he reached the age of eighteen or he graduated from high school, whichever occurred later. When emancipation occurs, "a parent relinquishes the right to custody and is relieved of the duty to support a child." Newburg v. Arrigo, 88 N.J. 529, 543 (1982). In New Jersey, emancipation of a minor does not necessarily occur when a child turns eighteen; such an event establishes prima facie evidence of emancipation but not conclusive proof. Bishop v. Bishop, 287 N.J. Super. 593, 597 (Ch. Div. 1996) (citing Newburgh, supra, 88 N.J. at 543). This issue is fact sensitive and depends on the circumstances of the case. Ibid. A child is emancipated when "the fundamental dependant relationship between parent and child is terminated." Bishop, supra, 287 N.J. Super. at 598. Emancipation can occur, for example, upon a child's marriage, upon induction into military service, by court order based on the child's best interest, or by attainment of an appropriate age. Id. at 598

(internal citations omitted). Unless that dependant relationship has ceased, regardless of a child's chronological age, parental support obligations continue. Ibid.

If the terms of emancipation are incorporated in the custody agreement, it should be enforced by the courts. For example, in Dolce v. Dolce, 383 N.J. Super. 11, 21 (App. Div. 2006), the court found that the unambiguous terms of a property settlement agreement (PSA), which was incorporated into a divorce decree, were enforceable "as written and agreed to by the parties, absent a substantial change in circumstances." The parties agreed that the mother would have primary residential custody and the father would pay child support until the son's emancipation, which would occur when he turned twenty-three or completed college. Id. at 16. Despite the provision in the parents' PSA establishing age twenty three as an emancipation event, the father in Dolce wanted the son declared emancipated because he had turned eighteen. Ibid. While the Family Part declared the son emancipated, the Appellate Division found that the father could not demonstrate any unfairness or inequity in the PSA which the court said was "plain and explicit . . . [and] le[ft] no room for interpretation." Id. at 21. As a result, the Appellate Division vacated the order of the Family Part that declaring the son emancipated and terminating the father's child support obligation. Ibid.

While this case concerns custody and domicile, and not support obligations, the same analysis can be used. J.M. is not independent of his parents and no event triggering emancipation under the Divorce Decree has occurred. The guardianship order did not override the determination of custody, the emancipation triggers, or the residency arrangement contained in the Divorce Decree. There is no inequity, unfairness, or ambiguity regarding the Divorce Decree, and the terms of the agreement specifying J.M.'s emancipation event, district of education, and district of residence, should be enforced as written.

Finally, J.M.'s overnight visits at his father's house should not serve to change J.M.'s domicile to Aberdeen. A student's residence is his "domicile, unless temporary residence is indicated." N.J.S.A. 18A:1-1. Temporary residence does not determine domicile and if there is any ambiguity as to domicile, the divorce decree should be looked to for guidance. See Summit, supra. In the same vein as Summit, domicile should only change if the temporary residence of J.M. shifted the major parental responsibility and authority regarding his son's welfare to the father. It is important to note that J.M. has been improving behaviorally, and while it is not guaranteed that he will continue to transition to going back to his mother's home, the intent of the parents is that he will go back to the mother's home. While K.M. has taken on more responsibility (J.M. sleeps at his house when visiting)), this has not fundamentally shifted the exercise of parental responsibility and authority to him. S.M. has retained those responsibilities despite the temporary living arrangements made in response to the incident in which J.M. assaulted his mother.

I therefore CONCLUDE that Hazlet School Board is responsible for J.M.'s education costs because Hazlet is both J.M.'s district of residence and the town in which he is domiciled. Hazlet is J.M.'s district of residence because J.M. lived with his mother in Hazlet immediately prior to his placement by the State in a residential facility, his mother continues to reside in Hazlet, and his mother is his custodial parent. Alternatively, J.M. is domiciled in Hazlet because the Divorce Decree stipulates that J.M. is domiciled in Hazlet and is to be educated there, the parents continue to intend for Hazlet to be J.M.'s domicile and the district through which he receives his education, the guardianship order does not supersede the Divorce Decree with respect to J.M.'s domicile, and J.M.'s overnight visits at his father's house in Aberdeen do not change J.M.'s domicile.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner – a school bus driver – appealed the Department’s determination to suspend her school bus endorsement pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:39-28 after an incident in which a child was left on her bus in December 2010 when petitioner failed to conduct the mandated visual inspection at the end of her route. Petitioner acknowledged that she had mistakenly left a child on the school bus unattended, but contended that she had not completed the end of her transportation route as she had two more school runs for which she was responsible. Petitioner further asserted that she left the school bus for only three minutes, and – by going into the school – did not leave the vicinity of the bus.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: on December 1, 2010, petitioner drove a school bus carrying kindergarten students for a 12:15 drop-off at an elementary school; petitioner exited the bus after the students without doing a full visual inspection, locked the bus, and went into the school building for approximately 3 minutes; upon returning to complete her afternoon routes, petitioner found that one child had not exited, but instead was standing inside the locked bus, crying; petitioner acknowledged that she had improperly left a child on the bus, albeit mistakenly; petitioner was suspended as a school bus driver two days later, and subsequently resigned in lieu of termination; the rules by which petitioner’s conduct must be judged are ambiguous, as the statutes do not define “end of transportation route” nor “vicinity of the school bus”; the school district’s policy manual implicitly defines the end of the transportation route as the depot where the bus is parked after all school runs are completed; petitioner had been a school bus driver for more than 14 years, had a prior unblemished record; and was visibly distraught and remorseful during her testimony. The ALJ concluded that respondent did not prove by a preponderance of the evidence that petitioner failed to conduct a visual inspection of her bus at the end of her transportation route or that she left the vicinity of the school bus in violation of state law; accordingly, the ALJ reversed respondent’s decision to suspend petitioner’s school bus endorsement.

Upon full review and consideration, the Commissioner rejected the Initial Decision of the OAL, concluding inter alia that “end of route” pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:39-26 terminates at the point where all of the children in a particular group leave the bus to enter their school and before the driver moves on to her next route; petitioner failed to inspect the bus before exiting and locking it; petitioner’s distress and remorse over the incident cannot mitigate the severity of her breach of duty and the concomitant imposition of the mandated 6-month penalty for the first infraction. Accordingly, the decision of the respondent Office of Criminal History Review was affirmed, and the petition was dismissed. The respondent was directed to notify the Motor Vehicle Commission of its obligation to suspend petitioner’s school bus endorsement pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:39-28 et seq., and to notify petitioner’s employer that she is ineligible for the period of suspension for continued employment as a school bus driver.

The record of this matter¹ and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed as have the respondent's exceptions, filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4. The petitioner did not file a reply thereto.

In its exceptions, the respondent agrees with the findings of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) that the petitioner left a child unattended on a school bus, and that the child was left alone for a period of approximately three minutes. The petitioner admits to having done so. However, the respondent asserts that the ALJ erred in his reasoning and conclusions, requiring reversal of the Initial Decision. Respondent argues that in reaching his decision, the ALJ relied heavily on the Wayne "Driver's Handbook," which it maintains is a private policy not relevant to determine statutory intent or language. The respondent further challenges the conclusions of the ALJ that the term "vicinity" is ambiguous because it is undefined in the statute and that "end of the route" is similarly ambiguous since the term is unclear. The respondent correctly points out that the term "vicinity" is nowhere mentioned in the relevant statute, the "School Bus Safety Act", and that a visual inspection at "end of the route," based on case law and a common sense application of the intent of the statute must certainly mean an inspection after each distinct, discernible route where the group of children is dropped off at the final destination and the bus is no longer in use for that group.

Upon review of the record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law, the Commissioner agrees with the exceptions advanced by the respondent and rejects the Initial Decision of the ALJ. In his assessment, the Commissioner concludes that the "end of the route" pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:39-26 of the "School Bus Safety Act" terminates at the point where all of the children in that group leave the bus to enter their school and the bus is empty of riders, and before the driver moves on to her next route. At that point, the driver shall inspect the bus for any remaining students. That did not happen here. The record shows that petitioner, by walking to the back of the bus on that day, turning off the "Child Minder" button, taking the keys out of the ignition, letting the children out, and locking the doors, fulfilled all indicia of "end of the route" activities save one: She did not inspect the bus. Accepting petitioner's argument that the inspection did not have to take place until the bus returned to the depot at the end of the day defies reason and eviscerates the fundamental purpose of the statute – to protect our children and ensure their safety. Additionally, petitioner's argument that she never left the vicinity of the bus is contradicted by the fact that she had entered two sets of glass doors, walked behind an interior cement wall, and entered the Ladies' Room – almost 122 feet away from her bus. Certainly, petitioner could not see her vehicle from that vantage point as it was out of her line of sight.

Contrary to the ALJ's finding, the Commissioner determines that the Wayne Board of Education did not misinterpret the meaning of "end of the route" and took this breach of duty very seriously. The Board has a policy to have their drivers inspect the bus at the conclusion of midday and afternoon routes. The petitioner did not notify the Transportation Office on the day of the incident. Her supervisor was contacted by the child's mother. Upon learning of her failure to inspect, petitioner's supervisor placed her on administrative leave the next day. Within six days of the incident, the Board recommended petitioner's termination. The petitioner elected to resign rather than be terminated.

Finally, the Commissioner determines that the ALJ erred by allowing the petitioner's distress and remorse over her inspection failure to mitigate the severity of her breach of duty and the concomitant imposition of the penalty. Here, the petitioner admitted that she left a child on the bus unattended. The "School Safety Bus Act" clearly mandates a 6-month penalty for the first infraction. There are no mitigating circumstances.

Accordingly, the decision of the Criminal History Review Unit is hereby affirmed, and the petition is dismissed. Respondent is directed to notify the Motor Vehicle Commission of its obligation, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:39-28 et seq., to suspend petitioner's school bus "S" endorsement on her driver's license for six months and to notify petitioner's employer that she is ineligible – for the period of suspension – to continue employment as a school bus driver.

NEW JERSEY DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION,

CRIMINAL HISTORY REVIEW UNIT,

Bryant Lawrence Horsley, Jr., Deputy Attorney General, for respondent (Paula T. Dow, Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney)

Record Closed: October 7, 2011

Decided: January 5, 2012

BEFORE LELAND S. McGEE, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner Yolanda L. Klein appeals the determination of respondent New Jersey Department of Education, Criminal History Review Unit, that petitioner left a child on a school bus to which she was assigned, having failed to conduct a visual inspection of the school bus at the end of her transportation route in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:39-28 et seq.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The Commissioner of Education transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law on January 18, 2010, for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. Following a Pre-Hearing Conference held on April 27, 2011, a Pre-Hearing Order was issued on May 3, 2011. On August 4, 2011, respondent filed a Motion for Summary Decision, which was denied, and a hearing was held on August 11, 2011. A post-hearing briefing schedule was established for two specific issues, and the record was held open until October 7, 2011.

STATEMENT OF FACTS

The following are stipulated facts of this case, and I FIND the following to be the FACTS of this case.

In December 2010 petitioner held an "S" endorsement on her driver's license, which authorized her to drive a school bus. On December 1, 2010, petitioner was employed as a school bus driver for the Wayne Township Board of Education. She was assigned to four school drop-offs, one of which was the 12:15 p.m. bus route to drop off the "p.m. kindergarten" students at the John F. Kennedy Elementary School. Petitioner was the only adult on board the bus that afternoon. In December 2010, A.O. was an afternoon kindergarten student at John F. Kennedy Elementary School, and on December 1, 2010, A.O. was assigned to the 12:15 p.m. bus route driven by petitioner. In December 2010, petitioner's supervisor was Darryl Fennell (Fennell).

On December 1, 2010, upon arrival at John F. Kennedy Elementary School for the 12:15 drop-off, petitioner placed the bus in park and traveled to the back of the bus to press the "child minder" button. She turned off the engine, and opened the passenger doors to let the children exit. All of the students were required to exit the bus upon arrival at the school. Petitioner also exited the bus at that time, took the keys, and left the bus door closed and locked. She had a personal emergency and hurriedly entered the school, to visit the nearest women's restroom, a total distance of approximately 93 feet.

Petitioner thereafter returned to the bus and found that A.O. had not exited the bus, but remained unattended for approximately two to three minutes. When she returned to the bus, A.O. was standing, locked inside the bus, crying. Petitioner escorted A.O. to the principal's office, and then proceeded to a subsequent school bus pick-up at New Beginnings School in Fairfield, New Jersey. This pick-up was an emergency early dismissal which petitioner had been notified of only moments before arriving at John F. Kennedy Elementary School. Thereafter, she was responsible to pick up students at two other schools as a part of her afternoon route. After completing her routes for these schools, petitioner returned the bus to the bus depot known as the North Cove.

Petitioner acknowledged that, although mistakenly, she improperly left a child on the school bus. On or about December 3, 2010, the Wayne Board of Education suspended petitioner as a driver as a result of leaving A.O. on the bus unattended. Petitioner subsequently resigned her employment with the Wayne Board of Education in lieu of termination effective December 16, 2010.

LEGAL ANALYSIS AND DISCUSSION

The statute governing the proper inspection of a school bus at the end of a driver's transportation route, N.J.S.A. 18A:39-28 states, in pertinent part, that

[a] school bus driver shall visually inspect the school bus to which he is assigned at the end of the transportation route to determine that no pupil has been left on the bus.

N.J.S.A. 18A:39-29 provides the following penalties for violating this provision:

In the event that, after notice and opportunity to be heard, a school bus driver is found to have left a pupil on the school bus at the end of his route, his school bus endorsement shall be:

- a. suspended for six months, for a first offense; or
- b. permanently revoked, for a second offense.

(Emphasis added)

N.J.A.C. 6A:3-13.1(b) limits the aspects of the CHRU's determination that may be contested by the driver and states:

The following aspects of the Department's determination
May be contested:

1. That a pupil was left on the bus at the end of the driver's route;
2. That the incident in question was the driver's second offense;
3. That the pupil was harmed as a result of foreseeable danger; and
4. That the driver acted with gross negligence.

In the within matter, the criteria for contesting respondent's determination set forth in 2 through 4 above are not applicable. Respondent does not assert that the incident was a second offense or that the child was harmed as a result of a foreseeable danger and that petitioner acted with gross negligence. The issue in this case is whether petitioner left the vicinity of the bus thereby leaving A.O. on the bus at the end of her transportation route.

Petitioner contends that she had not completed the end of her "transportation route." She had two more school runs for which she was responsible and the end of her transportation route was at the depot known as North Cove. Further, she contends that she parked the bus directly in front of the school's entrance where teachers and other staff were stationed. She left the bus for only three minutes, and by going into the school, she did not leave the "vicinity" of the bus.

The Wayne Board of Education Bus Driver's Handbook and Policies and Procedures states:

SLEEPING CHILDREN

At the conclusion of the morning, mid-day and afternoon routes, check the bus for items left behind and sleeping children. Place the "Bus Empty" sign in the back window if your bus is not equipped with the Child Minder® system. This procedure must be performed at the North Cove. THIS IS NOT OPTIONAL. If time allows, you can also check your bus after unloading students at their respective school.

(R-2, page CHRU-034) (emphasis added)

Further, the manual states, in part:

POST TRIP

At the conclusion of each route, check the bus for sleeping children or any items left behind. All items should be reported to the Transportation Office at the conclusion of the day.

All bus windows are to be closed at the end of the route . . .

(R-2, page CHRU 032-0330) (emphasis added)

The Wayne Board of Education Report of a Student Left on the School Bus Unattended states:

A student is considered to have been left unattended on the school bus at the end of the route when the driver has left the vicinity of the bus.

"End of the transportation route" is not defined in either N.J.S.A. 18A or N.J.A.C. 6A. While a definition may be provided in the company's manual, the undersigned recognizes that it is not binding on the Courts or indicative of the Legislature's intention. Legislative intent, however, may be gleaned from the language of the statute. It is clear that the safety of the children who ride the bus is paramount. That is, to avoid having a bus driver park a vehicle at the end of a route and go home leaving a child in a bus.

Respondent asserts that a "common sense" reading of the statute leads one to the conclusion that the "end of the transportation route" occurs at the point that the bus arrives at each individual school. It cites Firman v. N.J. Dept. of Ed., Crim. Hist. Rev. Unit, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 04415-10, Initial Decision (February 7, 2011), adopted, Comm'r, Final Decision, (March 24, 2011). In Firman the bus driver completed the mid-day run, then parked the bus "in a spot that was close to my p.m. run and where management would be able to reach me." The driver turned the bus off, removed the keys and then entered a pizza shop to use the restroom. Firman, supra, at page 4. Respondent suggests that when the Administrative Law Judge in Firman granted the Summary Decision motion against the bus driver, the judge implicitly affirmed that the end of the transportation route was the end of the drop-off at the school. However, the judge was silent on this issue as is the statute.

In the present case, respondent also offered substantial evidence concerning the distance from the school bus to the restroom inside of the John F. Kennedy Elementary School. The distance was a total of approximately 93 feet. The bathroom does not have windows and therefore the bus was not visible to petitioner.

Petitioner stopped the bus in front of John F. Kennedy School, the proscribed location for dropping off the students. There were teachers and other staff stationed outside of the front door where the vehicle was stopped. Neither N.J.S.A. 18A:39-28 nor N.J.S.A. 18A:39-29 defines "in the vicinity" of the bus. As distinguished from Firman, petitioner was still on school grounds at the time that she exited the bus. Further, Fennell testified that it is common for a bus driver to enter a school to use the restroom after delivering children. This was not a stop at a pizza shop as in Firman. Further, these statutes do not state that the inspection is to be conducted at the end of the "students" transportation route, or after each time that a driver exits the vehicle. Certainly the undersigned does not suggest that failure to inspect under any of these circumstances is appropriate, however, the rules by which petitioner's conduct is to be judged is ambiguous.

Arguably the "P.M. run" is not ended until the bus is returned to the depot. A review of the personnel manual which guides the conduct of the bus drivers, provides insight into, and "notice" of, actionable conduct. The section entitled "Sleeping Children" expressly states that the inspection procedure "must be performed at the North Cove" and expressly states that this policy is NOT OPTIONAL. However, with respect to inspecting the bus after unloading students it states, "[i]f time allows, you can also check your bus after unloading students at their respective school." Here, inspections are optional and to be performed only if time allows. Arguably, the emergency pick up at the New Beginnings School in the next town created a circumstance in which petitioner did not have sufficient time to conduct a thorough inspection. In any event, it is clear that the School District's interpretation of the statute is that the "end of the transportation route" is not at the end of a drop-off at each individual school but at the depot.

Further insight is found in respondent's policy manual section entitled "Post Trip" which, in addition to discussing inspections, requires that all windows in the bus be closed "at the end of the route." Certainly there would be no reason to close the windows on a hot summer day if the driver still has afternoon school runs to conduct. It is therefore clear from the plain language of the policy that the Board contemplated "end of the route" to be the point where the vehicle is parked at the North Cove depot.

Perhaps the Policy's safety concern focused on a child potentially being left on the bus for an extended period of following the driver leaving the vicinity of the vehicle at the end of the day. That would mean after all school runs are completed and the bus is parked at the depot. Clearly the Board did not have an expectation that by inadvertently leaving a child on a bus, in front of the school, for three minutes, with staff present, that a bus driver could lose her "S" endorsement and her ability to drive a bus for six months.

The undersigned recognizes that the neither N.J.S.A. 18A:39-28 nor N.J.S.A. 18A:39-29 are specific intent statutes. However, the undersigned had the opportunity to observe petitioner's demeanor. It was clear during her testimony that she was extremely distraught and remorseful. It is more likely that the incident was an aberration. In fact, petitioner has been a school bus driver in this district for more than fourteen (14) years and no such incident has previously occurred in this or any other district. There is no evidence that the child was harmed when petitioner escorted her to the Principal's office. There is no evidence of any residual harm following the incident. There is no dispute that petitioner had an emergency which required a quick exit to the restroom. Her supervisor confirmed that there was a last-minute emergency at the New Beginnings School in Fairfield and that petitioner received instructions to go to that location just prior to her arrival at John F. Kennedy School. Finally, a review of the video depicting the incident indicated that petitioner did conduct a visual inspection of the bus, notwithstanding the fact that it was inadequate and resulted in a student being left after everyone else exited.

CONCLUSION AND ORDER

The governing statute is ambiguous as to the definition of vicinity of the school bus and the end of the transportation route. The School District's policy manual implicitly defines the end of the transportation route as the North Cove depot where the bus is parked after all school runs are completed. Petitioner parked in front of the school and never left school grounds. For the foregoing reasons I CONCLUDE that respondent did not prove by a preponderance of the evidence that petitioner failed to conduct a visual inspection of her bus at the end of her transportation route or that she left the vicinity of the school bus in violation of New Jersey law.

I therefore ORDER that the decision of the Criminal History Review Unit be and is hereby REVERSED.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF LOURDES LEON,	:
SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
ELIZABETH, UNION COUNTY.	:	DECISION

SYNOPSIS

In 2007, the petitioning Board certified charges of conduct unbecoming against respondent – a tenured administrator – based on allegations that, inter alia, respondent directed the alteration and/or falsification of official school records. A settlement agreement was reached in these consolidated cases in 2009; however, the agreement included a clause which stated that the school district agreed that referral of the matter to the State Board of Examiners (SBE) was not warranted. The Commissioner approved the settlement, but referred the case to the SBE. Respondent then asked the Commissioner to reconsider the referral, arguing that the settlement agreement precluded the Commissioner from referring the case to the SBE, and further arguing that although she accepted responsibility for the actions at issue in this case, she denied any wrongdoing therein. The Commissioner therefore vacated the settlement decision and remanded the case to the OAL. Subsequently, the respondent became ill and requested a medical leave of absence, which was approved by the district, and advised that she would retire at the end of her medical leave.

The ALJ found that: since the date the parties settled this case, respondent became ill and requested a medical leave of absence, which the district approved; respondent additionally advised that she would be retiring at the end of her medical leave, on December 31, 2012; the educational programs of the school district would have continued to have been disrupted and substantial costs to the district would have continued to accrue if litigation were to continue; the student records in question have already been corrected; and both parties now fully acknowledge that the Commissioner has the duty to refer the case to the SBE. Accordingly, the ALJ concluded that a withdrawal in this case disposes of all of the issues in controversy, and should be approved.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurred with the findings and determination of the ALJ and deemed the matter to no longer be a contested case before the Commissioner. Accordingly, the matter was dismissed and a copy of the decision was sent to the SBE for action as that body deems appropriate.

The record, transcript¹ and Initial Decision Withdrawal transmitted to the Commissioner by the Office of Administrative Law pursuant to N.J.A.C. 17:27-19.2 have been reviewed. Under circumstances set forth, the Commissioner approves the consensual withdrawal by both parties of the instant tenure charges in these consolidated cases on remand. The Commissioner agrees that withdrawal is appropriate since respondent is currently on medical leave for a chronic, ongoing illness and that she has advised the District that she will resign from employment with the Board and apply for retirement at the end of her leave, effective December 31, 2012. Consequently, the matter is no longer deemed to be a contested case before the Commissioner and is accordingly dismissed.

By copy of this decision, the State Board of Examiner is notified of the instant tenure charges, which involve allegations of conduct unbecoming a public employee and the circumstances underlying its withdrawal.

Record Closed: January 4, 2012

BEFORE BARRY E. MOSCOWITZ, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Even though petitioner withdrew the charges in this case, respondent understands that the Commissioner has the duty to refer the case to the State Board of Examiners for possible suspension or revocation of certificates. Should the Commissioner approve the withdrawal? Yes. Although the Commissioner must approve any withdrawal under N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6(a)(6), the teaching staff member must still understand that the Commissioner has the duty to refer the case to the State Board of Examiners.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The Charges

On April 20, 2007, the Department of Education, Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, referred a set of tenure charges to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16.

The Director of the Bureau of Controversies determined that the charges, if true, were sufficient to warrant dismissal or reduction in salary.

The charges allege conduct unbecoming a public employee and specify that respondent, a tenured principal at Donald Stewart Early Childhood Education Center, School No. 51, ordered a secretary to falsify or improperly record the absences or lateness of several students during the 2005-06 school year in direct contravention of the school district's attendance policy and in violation of the tenured principal's ethical duty to preserve and protect student records.

The charges also specify discriminatory treatment of students as well as verbal abuse and public humiliation of staff.

On April 26, 2007, the OAL received the charges under Agency Docket No. 96-4/07 and assigned them Docket No. EDU 5073-07. The case was then assigned to me for a hearing under N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.1. During the initial telephone conference, the parties acknowledged that the case would require at least twelve days of hearings because it would require the testimony of many witnesses and the consideration of voluminous documents. In fact, the parties spent an entire day in the hearing room just marking documents for identification.

On December 4, 2007, the Department referred a second set of tenure charges to the OAL under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16. The Director again determined that the charges, if true, were sufficient to warrant dismissal or reduction in salary. The second set of tenure charges allege the same misconduct as the first but for the school year 2006-07.

On December 21, 2007, the OAL received the second set of charges under Agency Docket No. 360-11/07 and assigned them OAL Docket No. EDU 12540-07. The case was then assigned to me for a hearing under N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.1. During the next telephone conference, the parties acknowledged that the second case would require at least another twelve days of hearings because it would require the testimony of additional witnesses and the consideration of additional documents. Given these circumstances, the parties renewed their settlement efforts.

The Settlement

At the conclusion of discovery, the parties reached a global settlement. In short, the parties reviewed the facts and decided that the expense and uncertainty of litigation militated against a full hearing. Toward this end, I consolidated the two cases and approved the settlement.

In approving the settlement, I found that the settlement agreement acknowledged the continued disruption to the educational programs in the school district that the continued litigation would have caused by the continued absence of administrators, teachers, and students alike who would have had to testify at the hearing. In addition, I found that the settlement agreement acknowledged the substantial costs that the school district, which is an Abbot District, would have had to incur during what would have amounted to more than two dozen days of hearing. Moreover, I found that the settlement agreement acknowledged that the student records had already been corrected.

The Remand

The school district, however, had agreed that referral to the State Board of Examiners was not warranted. In addition, the school district had agreed that referral, upon respondent's resignation, was not required. In approving the settlement, I similarly suggested that referral to the State Board of Examiners was not warranted.

On May 7, 2009, the Commissioner approved the settlement but referred the case to the State Board of Examiners.

Respondent then asked the Commissioner to reconsider the referral. But in doing so, respondent argued that the settlement agreement precluded the Commissioner from referring the case to the State Board of Examiners. Respondent also argued that her acceptance of responsibility was not an admission of wrongdoing. As a result, the Commissioner vacated the settlement and remanded the case to the OAL for a revision of the settlement agreement or a full hearing on the merits.

On June 16, 2009, the Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes transmitted the case to the OAL. On June 22, 2009, the OAL received the remand and assigned it OAL Docket No. EDU 07233-09. On January 3, 2012, the school district withdrew the tenure charges due to changed circumstances—new circumstances that had arisen since the parties had initially settled the case.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Based on the documentation submitted, the testimony provided, and the representations the parties made, I FIND as follows:

The Withdrawal

Since the date the parties initially settled this case, respondent became ill and requested a medical leave of absence, which the school district approved. In addition, respondent advised that she would be retiring at the end of her medical leave. As a result, the school district withdrew its tenure charges.

This approved leave and subsequent withdrawal is memorialized in a letter from the school district dated January 3, 2012:

Please be advised that the District has agreed to a medical leave or absence for Ms. Leon in view of her ongoing and chronic medical issues. Ms. Leon will be retiring December 31, 2012. As a result of this situation, the District is withdrawing the pending tenure charges to enable Ms. Leon to address her medical needs and also because her retirement will moot all issues.

[(P-1.)]

The Understanding

The reported ongoing and chronic medical issues aside, many of the other considerations in approving the initial settlement still obtain.

In particular, the educational programs in the school district would have continued to have been disrupted and the substantial costs to the school district would have continued to have been incurred if the litigation continued.

In addition, the student records have already been corrected.

Moreover, both parties now fully acknowledge that the Commissioner has the duty to refer the case to the State Board of Examiners.

Indeed, respondent testified that she fully understands this after consultation with her attorneys about the distinction between a withdrawal and a retirement under N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6(a) and N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6(d), respectively.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Given my findings of fact, I CONCLUDE as follows:

Under N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6(a), once tenure charges are certified to the Commissioner, such charges may be withdrawn or settled only with the Commissioner's approval, and any proposed withdrawal must include the following: (1) documentation as to the nature of the charges; (2) explication of the circumstances justifying the withdrawal; (3) consent of both parties; (4) indication that the charged party fully understands his or her rights; (5) a showing that the withdrawal is in the public interest; and (6) a showing that the teaching staff member has been advised of the Commissioner's duty to refer the case to the State Board of Examiners for possible suspension or revocation of certificates.

Parenthetically, respondent notes that under N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6(d), where tenure proceedings are concluded before adjudication because the charged party has unilaterally retired, the Commissioner has the discretion to refer the case to the State Board of Examiners.

In this case, documentation as to the nature of the charges is already of record and repeated in the findings of facts.

Similarly, explication of the circumstances justifying the withdrawal is already of record and repeated in the findings of fact.

In addition, both parties consent to the withdrawal and respondent fully understands her rights.

Moreover, withdrawal is in the public interest for the same reasons withdrawal is justified—namely the continued disruption to the educational programs in the school district, the continued cost to the school district, and the uncertainty of litigation.

Finally, respondent testified that she had been advised of the Commissioner's duty to refer this case to the State Board of Examiners for possible suspension or revocation of certificates under N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6(a), and that this is no longer an open issue.

Given this application of the law to the facts, this withdrawal disposes all of the issues in controversy in this case under N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1, and the Commissioner should approve it.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for his consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify, or reject this decision within forty-five days and the time limit is not otherwise extended, then this recommended decision shall become a final decision under N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner challenged respondent's determination that petitioner improperly failed to solicit bids in conformity with the Public School Contracts Law, N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-1 et seq., when it awarded a contract for construction management to Tri-Tech Engineering (Tri-Tech) that improperly relied upon the "Extraordinary Unspecifiable Services" (EUS) exception contained in that statute, and additionally exceeded the multi-year provision of N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-42. Petitioner denies that its use of the EUS exception was improper, and asserts an appropriate exception to the two-year contract limitation pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-42(k). Respondent argued that – regardless of whether or not the EUS exception applies in this case – the January 2001 contract with Tri-Tech, by law, expired on or about January 31, 2003 and any further payments to Tri-Tech beyond that date were inappropriate as they were made without the solicitation of bids as required pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:1A-4. Respondent demanded repayment of $326,004.47 in state aid expended by the petitioner to pay Tri-Tech after the expiration of the contract in 2003.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: this dispute involves the question of whether the legality of petitioner's actions in regard to Tri-Tech should be based upon the January 2001 contract or upon the absence of any legally effective contract subsequent to January 31, 2003; the long-range project which was the subject of the January 2001 contract and the two defeated 2002 voter referenda was not in any sense the same project as those that were later offered to and approved by voters in three subsequent referenda; therefore, the multi-year exception for "any single project" pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-42(k) cannot be used to defend the length of Nutley's January 2001 contract with Tri-Tech and, as such, the petitioner had no effective contract with Tri-Tech after the expiration of 24 months following January 31, 2001; petitioner continued to treat the 2001 contract as if it were still effective, and made substantial payments to Tri-Tech under the terms of that contract after it expired in January 2003; and petitioner's failure to bid a new contract encompassing the terms of the limited project as approved by voters in 2003, or at least to authorize a new contract with Tri-Tech or some other company utilizing the EUS exception, led to a violation of the bidding statute. Accordingly, the ALJ concluded that respondent is entitled to recoup state aid in the amount of $326,004.47.

Upon full review and consideration, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ's findings of fact and conclusions, and adopted the Initial Decision of the OAL as the final decision in this matter. Accordingly, he granted summary decision to the respondent and ordered petitioner to return $326,004.47 in state aid. The petition was dismissed.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

The Commissioner has reviewed the record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on the parties' cross-motions for summary decision. Petitioner (Nutley) filed exceptions, and the respondent (OFAC) filed a reply thereto as provided by N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Upon his considered review, the Commissioner concurs with the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) that this matter is ripe for summary decision as there are no genuine issues of material fact to resolve. For the reasons cogently presented in the ALJ's decision, the Commissioner agrees that respondent OFAC did not act arbitrarily, capriciously or unreasonably when it determined that the contract Nutley Board of Education had entered into with Tri-Tech for additions and restorations to its seven schools exceeded the 24-month limitation for such contracts, in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-42.

Consequently, the Nutley Board of Education is ordered to return $326,004.47, the state aid portion of the amount of money the Board paid to Tri-Tech after their contract expired in 2003.

Accordingly, summary disposition is granted to the respondent and the petition is dismissed.

respondent (Jeffrey S. Chiesa, Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney)

Record Closed: November 30, 2011

Decided: January 13, 2012

BEFORE JEFF S. MASIN, ALJ:

This case involves a demand by the State of New Jersey, Department of Education, Office of Fiscal Accountability and Compliance (OFAC), that the Nutley Board of Education (Nutley) repay the State $326,004.47 in State aid which the school district received in connection with certain activities undertaken by the Board. The entire matter arises from plans that Nutley had to undertake work, described as "additions and restorations", to seven schools located within the District. As will be detailed, in 2001 Nutley executed a contract with Tri-Tech Engineering (Tri-Tech) to act as construction manager for this work. However, the original concept that Nutley had of the project to undertake this work, which had been developed as a district-wide facilities improvement plan, ran into difficulties. As a result, only some parts of the overall concept were later undertaken. OFAC contends that in contracting with Tri-Tech, Nutley improperly failed to solicit a contract in conformity with the Public School Contracts Law, N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-1 et seq., instead improperly relying upon the "Extraordinary Unspecifiable Services" ("EUS") exception contained in that statute. Additionally, OFAC contends that the contract entered into with Tri-Tech exceeded the multi-year provision of N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-42. Nutley denies that its use of the EUS exception was improper, and argues alternatively, that to the extent that it may have improperly relied upon that exception, the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-46.1 limit the State's recovery of funds to $25,000, as both parties agree that none of the exceptions to that limitation apply in this case.

The demand for recoupment came in a report entitled "Nutley School District Building Program Irregularities OFAC Case #1587" issued by OFAC under cover letter dated February 11, 2009. Nutley appealed, and the matter was reviewed first by OFAC, which determined that it would not change its findings and determination, a determination conveyed to Nutley by letter dated March 25, 2009. Thereafter, a second review was conducted at Nutley's request by John J. Hart, then the Chief of Staff of the DOE. He denied the appeal and determined that rescission of the demand for recoupment was not appropriate. Nutley then invoked its right to seek review by the Commissioner of Education and the Commissioner forwarded the contested case for hearing at the Office of Administrative Law, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. The case was assigned to Honorable Imre Karaszegi. After discovery, the parties filed cross-motions for summary decision, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5. Oral argument was conducted on November 30, 2011. In order to assure that the matter would be decided promptly given Judge Karaszegi's docket, determination of the cross-motions was transferred to Administrative Law Judge Jeff S.

Masin. Judge Masin reviewed the briefs and listened to the recorded oral argument. The parties were advised of the transfer of responsibility by letter dated January 4, 2012.

The undisputed record establishes that Nutley approved the retention of Tri-Tech to provide "construction management services" by Resolution of the Board dated December 18, 2000. The exact description of the purpose of this was to provide those services "in connection with future facility improvement projects." The Resolution further defines the services to be rendered by Tri-Tech as "an extraordinary, unspecifiable service which cannot be reasonably described by written specifications due to the qualitative nature of the service to be provided." This language is significant due to the wording of the Public School Contracts Law ("PSCL"), N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-1 et seq., more specifically at N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-5. This section addresses situations where a Board of Education may contract without proceeding through the normal bidding process.

Any contract, the amount of which exceeds the bid threshold, shall be negotiated and awarded by the board of education by resolution at a public meeting without public advertising for bids and bidding therefor if

a. The subject matter thereof consists of:

. . . .

(2) Extraordinary unspecifiable services which cannot reasonably be described by written specifications. The application of this exception as to extraordinary unspecifiable services shall be construed narrowly in favor of open competitive bidding where possible and the Director of the Division of Local Government Services in the Department of Community Affairs is authorized to establish rules and regulations after consultation with the Commissioner of Education limiting its use in accordance with the intention herein expressed; and the board of education shall in each instance state supporting reasons for its action in the resolution awarding the contract for extraordinary unspecifiable services and shall forthwith cause to be printed, in the manner set forth in paragraph (1) of this subsection, a brief notice of the award of such contract;

N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-2(g) defines "extraordinary unspecifiable services" as "services which are specialized and qualitative in nature requiring expertise, extensive training and proven reputation in the field of endeavor."

Following the adoption of this Resolution, Nutley and Tri-Tech entered into a contract. That agreement was memorialized in a "Standard Form of Agreement Between Owner and Construction Manager." This document was an American Institute of Architects ("AIA") Form Document B801/CMa. By its terms the agreement was for "the following Project" described as "[a]dditions and restorations of 7 schools in the Nutley School District." The Contract is dated January 31, 2001. In the section of the Agreement addressing "Basis of Compensation" compensation is broken down into that provided for Basic Services in the Pre-Construction and Construction Phases and "Compensation for Additional Services." According to a Certification provided by John C. Sincaglia, who served as the Business Administrator and Board Secretary for the Nutley Board from 1986 until his retirement in June 2002, the Contract was conditioned upon passage of a referendum to provide for the funding of the work. The Contract provides that "Pre-Referendum services" will not exceed $44,500. A referendum seeking approval of $49,000,000 in bonding for this school facilities project was submitted to the voters in January 2002, but it did not pass. Another such referendum, this time for $31,876,285 to fund the seven school project, also failed to pass in December 2002. Thereafter, the Board decided that rather than seek approval of the entire "project", it would submit the matter to the voters in phases. As will be discussed, this decision is a critical element with regard to the arguments of the parties.

Another feature of the Agreement was the provision that defined the length of the Contract. As modified by the Addendum to Standard Form of Agreement, section 13.5.1 provided for the "Basic Services" covered by the Agreement to be completed within twenty-eight (28) months of January 31, 2001.

The entire Nutley effort arose at a time when funding for up to 40% of such projects was available under the Educational Facilities Construction and Financing Act (EFCFA"), N.J.S.A. 18A:7g-1 to -44. The requirements for obtaining such funding included that the school district provide and obtain approval of a five-year long range facilities plan, or LRFP. It was in pursuit of such funding that Nutley prepared and submitted its LRFP. Mr. Sincaglia presents that he attended an informational training seminar in or about September 2000, provided by the DOE. At this session, it was offered that prior to the execution of a construction management contract, the contract would have to be approved by Board resolution and that "such a contract could be approved by the District under either the professional service or extraordinary unspecifiable services . . . provisions to the . . . PSCL."

After the defeat of the two referenda in January and December 2001, the Nutley Board decided that it would not again seek to obtain voter approval for the entire package of seven schools. Instead, it determined to proceed with smaller phases of work. In April 2003, it sought approval for $2,923,604 for bonds to fund a portion of an estimated cost of $4,872,673 for the renovation of Nutley High School. Subsequently, it sought and obtained approval in September 2004, for the bonds to assist in the funding of additions and renovations to the Franklin Middle School. The voters approved the issuance of $14,930,383, of a total cost estimate of $23,700,000. In December 2006, Nutley voters approved another referendum for bonding of $23,357,783, with the estimated cost of this work on the High School and elementary schools of $38,500,000.

Nutley received approval from the DOE in March 2003, for the high school portion of its long range facilities plan, which, according to the letter issued by the Director, Office of School Facilities, was "consistent with the District's approved long-range facilities plan . . . as approved or as amended as of October 7, 2002." According to a Certification provide by Dennis Oblack, assistant to the business administrator for the District from December 2001 through June 30, 2004, Tri-Tech was utilized as the construction manager for the high school project approved by the DOE in March, 2003. According to Mr. Oblack, as "the high school was a component part of the long-range facilities improvement plan of the District, and the District already had a contract in place for Tri-Tech . . . at a fixed percentage, the District utilized Tri-Tech as construction manager for this aspect of the project." Oblack "prepared the Checklist for the Design Phase of the high school for submission to the New Jersey Schools Construction Corporation ("NJSCC"), a pre-condition to the District receiving the second disbursement of the Grant . . . and advised that the District was utilizing a construction manager . . . pursuant to the extraordinary and unspecifiable services ("EUS") provision of the . . . ("PSCL")" He advised the NJSCC that the Board resolution approving this contract was adopted on December 18, 2000. Similar approval was sought for the Franklin Middle School work and Bernard E. Piaia, Jr., the DOE's Director, Office of Facilities, issued a letter dated April 30, 2004, approving this "school facilities project".

In May of 2004, the Board adopted a Resolution No. 19, which provided for a Contract Amendment for the Tri-Tech contract, which amendment placed in the contract certain language required by the Section 15 Grant Agreement between the District and the NJSCC. Nutley points to the Guidelines for such agreements, provided by the NJSCC for School Business Administrators, which contains a section regarding exceptions to the requirement for advertising for bids where professional services are involved, as provided for in N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-5(a) (1 & 2). The Guidelines state that all construction services valued above the bid threshold must be bid,

With the exception of professional services . . . or obtained using the Extraordinary Unspecifiable Services . . . process. Construction Management Firms (CMFs) do not qualify as a "professional service" unless 1.0 they are licensed to perform architectural and/or engineering services AND 2.0 they are engaged to perform such work for the school district. Therefore, a district must publicly bid CMF services (or obtain them using the EUS process) that are valued at a amount above the bid threshold unless they meet both 'professional service' tests listed above.

It is undisputed that from January 31, 2003, through the termination of the Contract with Tri-Tech, Nutley paid that company $1,656,109.74. This represents the period following the expiration of twenty-four months from the date of the execution of the Contract, January 21, 2001.

In addition to the Certifications supplied by Oblack, Sincaglia and by Michael DeVita, who was employed in several capacities for the Board during the period from September 2004 to December 2009, the DOE has offered the Certification of Bernard E. Piaia, Jr., the Director of the Office of School Facilities for the DOE. Mr. Piaia has served in that position since May 6, 2000. In his Certification, Mr. Piaia offers what can best be described as the opinions and positions of the person in charge of the Office of Facilities and it is fair to say that his comments include his description of what he purports to be at least his understanding of the meaning of such terms as "project" in the context of the laws in question in this case, as well as comments on procedural and technical aspects of the process that engages his office and school districts with respect to school construction planning (LRFPs) and approval by the DOE. To some degree, Nutley objects to the scope of Piaia's comments, as it believes that he offers opinions that he is not competent to provide, particularly as to the meaning of "project", which, as will be explained, is arguably a vital element of the case.

In its Report of Examination, issued in February 2009, OFAC listed several specific areas in which it determined that Nutley violated its legal obligations regarding its agreement with and dealings with Tri-Tech. For the purposes of this contested case, the important issues noted were "1. The Nutley Board of Education entered into a contract with Tri-Tech Engineering prior to approval of a bond referendum"; "2. The board did not solicit contract bids as required under the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-4, Contracts and agreements requiring advertising"; "4. The Nutley School Board has failed to adhere to the statutory provisions requiring approval for the redefining of construction projects and performing renovations that were not voter approved."

Summary Decision

Summary decision, or as it is known in judicial matters summary judgment, is a well-recognized procedure for resolving cases in which the facts that are crucial to the determination of the matters at issue are not actually in dispute and the application to that set of material facts of the applicable law and standard of proof lead to a determination of the case without the necessity of a hearing at which evidence and testimony need be taken. The standards for determining motions for summary judgment were defined in Judson v. People's Bank and Trust Co. of Westfield, 17 N.J. 67, 74-75 (1954). More recently, the Supreme Court has elaborated on the motion and its standard in Brill v. The Guardian Life Insurance Company of America, et al., 142 N.J. 520 (1995). Under the Brill standard, as in Judson, a motion for summary decision may only be granted where there are no "genuine disputes" of "material fact." The determination as to whether disputes of material fact exist is made after a "discriminating search" of the record, consisting as it may of affidavits, certifications, documentary exhibits and any other evidence filed by the movant and any such evidence filed in response to the motion, with all reasonable inferences arising from the evidence being accorded to the opponent of the motion. In order to defeat the motion, the opposing party must establish the existence of "genuine" disputes of material fact. The facts upon which the party opposing the motion relies to defeat the motion must be something more than "facts which are immaterial or of an insubstantial nature, a mere scintilla, fanciful, frivolous, gauzy or merely suspicious, . . .," Judson, supra, at 75 (citations omitted). The Brill decision focuses upon the analytical procedure for determining whether a purported dispute of material fact is "genuine" or is simply of an "insubstantial nature." Brill, supra at 530. Brill concludes that the same analytical process used to decide motions for a directed verdict is used to resolve summary decision motions. "The essence of the inquiry in each is the same: 'whether the evidence presents a sufficient disagreement to require submission to a jury or whether it is so one-sided that a party must prevail as a matter of law.'" Id. at 536, quoting Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, Inc., 477 U.S. 242, 251-52, 106 S.Ct. 2505, 2512, 91 L.Ed.2d 202, 214. In searching the proffered evidence to determine the motion, the judge must be guided by the applicable substantive evidentiary standard of proof, that is, the "burden of persuasion" which would apply at trial on the merits, whether that is the preponderance of the evidence or the clear and convincing evidence standard. If a careful review under this standard establishes that no reasonable fact finder could resolve the disputed facts in favor of the party opposing the motion, then the uncontradicted facts thus established can be examined in the light of the applicable substantive law to determine whether or not the movant is clearly entitled to judgment as a matter of law. However, where the proofs in the record are such that "reasonable minds could differ" as to the material facts, then the motion must be denied and a full evidentiary hearing held.

N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-46.1 reads

a. Notwithstanding any law to the contrary, except as otherwise provided in this section, the Commissioner of Education shall not withhold State funds from any school district, or require any school district to remit any State funds previously paid to that district, because of any act or omission by the district which the commissioner determines to have been taken or permitted to occur in violation of the extraordinary unspecifiable services exception to the requirements for public advertisement and bidding as set forth in N.J.S. 18A:18A-5, unless the commissioner determines that: (1) the act or omission was the result of any collusion between any officer or employee of the district and any contract vendor; or (2) the act or omission was prompted by an intent on the part of any officer or employee of the district to evade the public advertisement and bidding requirements of the "Public School Contracts Law," N.J.S. 18A:18A-1 et seq.; or (3) a prior act or omission resulted in a withholding of State funds or a remission of State funds due to a violation of the extraordinary unspecifiable services exception to the requirements for public advertisement and bidding as set forth in N.J.S. 18A:18A-5.

b. If the commissioner determines that the violation was caused by negligence and none of the provisions in paragraph (3) in subsection a. are met, the amount of State funds withheld shall not exceed 10% of the contract amount, or in the case of multiple contracts, 10% of the total amount of the contracts, or $ 25,000, whichever is less.

c. Any school district from which the commissioner withheld funds or has sought to collect funds prior to the effective date of this act due to a determination that the district acted or permitted an action to occur in violation of the extraordinary unspecifiable services exception to the requirements for public advertising and bidding as set forth in N.J.S. 18A:18A-5 may apply to the commissioner for restoration of funds so withheld. If the commissioner determines that none of the provisions set forth in paragraph

(1), (2) or (3) in subsection a. or in subsection b. applies, the commissioner shall remit to the school district the applicable funds previously withheld or forgive any amounts pending collection.

d. The limitations placed upon the commissioner pursuant to this act shall not restrict the commissioner's authority to supervise the compliance by school districts with the requirements of the "Public School Contracts Law," N.J.S.18A:18A-1 et seq., and to seek all other remedies pursuant to Title 18A of the New Jersey Statutes.

[N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-46.1.]

The DOE does not contend that Nutley acted in any collusive manner, with any intent to evade the public advertisement or bidding requirements of the PSCL, or that Nutley had ever previously been the object of any withholding or remission of funds due to a previous violation of the EUS exception. Additionally, the DOE does not contend that any negligence was involved in this matter. However, while the Board argues that it acted in compliance with the EUS exception with regard to its contract with Tri-Tech and that no recoupment of State funds is proper in this matter, the DOE contends that the EUS issue is not relevant. It instead claims that because the Tri-Tech contract violated the provision that precludes a contract of longer than twenty-four months duration, the EUS exception presented in support of the Board's not bidding the January 2001, contract has no application to the circumstances attendant to the Board's conduct after January 31, 2003. As there was no valid contract after that date, and as its recoupment of funds is limited to the period after the two-year duration allowable for the Tri-Tech contract even were it valid (thus a proper EUS exception), the EUS issue is not germane.

In its Report, OFAC condemned Nutley's contract with Tri-Tech as violating the prohibition on a contract exceeding twenty-four consecutive months, a prohibition that is contained in N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-42. "All contracts for the provision or performance of goods and services shall be awarded for a period not to exceed 24 consecutive months." Nutley argues that it properly considered the management contract to encompass the entire seven school rehabilitation "project" that was the subject of the Long Range Facilities Plan and as such, it believes that the two-year limitation does not apply. It points to N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-42(k), which provides an exception to the two-year limitation for Any single project for the construction, reconstruction or rehabilitation of any public building, structure or facility, or any public works project, including the retention of the services of any architect or engineer in connection therewith, for the length of time authorized and necessary for the completion of the actual construction;

[Ibid.]

It points to several instances where it conceives that even OFAC agreed that the entire plan constituted one project, such as in Allegation and Finding #1 of the Report where "OFAC recognized the seven schools project as one project in finding: 'The funding for the renovations and alterations to the seven district schools was not approved under one referendum but was approved incrementally by the voters of the District over several years.'" And the original Long Range Facilities Plan was approved by DOE in January 2001, which Nutley also perceives supports its assertion that the entire "Plan" constituted one project. In response, the DOE argues that the original plan, as presented to the voters as one project to renovate seven schools, was twice defeated by those voters and then was effectively separated into smaller individual "projects", each submitted to the voters in three separate referenda that were ultimately approved by the voters. The defeat of the original seven school "project" meant that there was not approved funding for that proposal, and funding for any of the work contemplated by the original Plan was only authorized by the voters in regard to separate, smaller, allotments that were tied to the lessened scope of the work offered for approval in the three referenda that were ultimately approved. As such, it is proper to consider that each separate proposal offered to the voters was a separate "project" and that as such, the contract for services as to each of these separate "projects" was surely not that created with Tri-Tech in January 2001. Any subsequent contract that might have been entered into for any of the three later approved "projects" might well have been for a period exceeding twenty-four months, as authorized by N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-42(k), but the January 2001, contract, which was tied to a "project" that the voters never approved and which never was funded, cannot be sheltered from the twenty-four-month rule by the exception in (k).

In support of its view that each of the three approved referenda funded separate "projects" and that Nutley's view of one "project" under one long-term contract entered into in January 2001, is legally incorrect, the DOE offers Bernard Piaia's interpretation that

In the case of the construction in Nutley school district, each bond referendum that was passed represents a different project because each one is funded by a separate funding source and each bond referendum constitutes an explanation of the work to be performed with that funding if the bond is approved.

Nutley objects to consideration of this position, arguing that Piaia seeks to "supplant the judicial function of the court by having Mr. Piaia conclude, as a matter of law, that contracts for school facilities projects cannot be initiated before funding is secured and that each project is defined by its funding stream." It urges that no deference be accorded to Piaia's opinion, which it deems conclusory and not dictated by statutory references or case law.

The crux of the dispute between these parties is over the question as to whether the legality of Nutley's actions in regard to Tri-Tech is to be determined based upon the January 2001, contract or based upon the absence of any legally effective contract from on or about January 31, 2003. In OFAC's view, as of that date any contract that purportedly lawfully existed between them had to have terminated due to the twenty-four-month limitation that is imposed by statute. Whatever the legality then of that January 2001, contract, whether it was properly awarded without bidding under the EUS exception or not, once that contract expired, as a matter of law, any further payments to Tri-Tech were made without the solicitation of bids as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:1A-4. Any payments made to Tri-Tech without the solicitation of bids were not appropriate and recoupment is called for.

The parties have each presented their own spin as to what constitutes a "project." The term has significance respecting the allowable length of a contract because of its use in N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-42(k), where the exception to the twenty-four-month limit is for "[a]ny single project for the construction, reconstruction or rehabilitation of any public building, structure or facility, or any public works project." Thus, here we must determine the relationship of a "Plan" to a "project" and the most reasonable approach to defining what exactly is addressed by this exception to the general rule governing the length of such contracts.

As noted, Nutley had created a Long Term Facilities Plan. This Plan contemplated that the district would perform work on seven buildings. In and of itself, the Plan was not a means to either carry out or to fund the work. Approval of the Plan by the DOE neither created contracts for performance nor provided the approval necessary for bonding to obtain the funding. And there is no evidence here that in fulfillment of its Plan, Nutley was ever required to attempt to obtain public approval for the funding for the entire seven-building vision at one time. In determining how best to achieve the goals of the Plan, once it was itself approved by the DOE, the District was presumably free to judge how best to effectuate the Plan, given its resources, its relationship with its constituency, time constraints and other considerations. Nutley chose to put all of its eggs in one basket, so to speak, and to seek approval by referendum for the funding necessary to carry out the whole plan. In that sense, it offered to the voters of the District a "project." The scope of that project was the total Plan. And the District chose to enter into a contract with Tri-Tech based upon its endeavor to carry out the full Plan. But the voters determined that the project, as presented them as a total package in January and December 2002, was unacceptable, as demonstrated by their rejection of the referenda on those two occasions. The District, no doubt taken aback by these rejections, did not give up hope that it would eventually be able to fulfill the Plan. But instead of once again presenting to the voters the same description of the work, that is, of the project, that was to be funded and carried out as the result of passage of the next referendum presented, a scope of work that had already been twice rejected, the District drew back from the total package and reformulated what it asked the voters to approve: a lessened scope and frankly, a newly defined project. It is certainly not too much to say that once the original conception offered the voters was scaled back, from the original amount sought for approval of $44,000,000 to the $31,876,285 sought in the second referendum to the $2,923,604 sought and approved in the third, April 2003, High School-only, referendum, that the "project" offered to the voters for approval changed. This is most clearly, although not exclusively, the case in regard to the difference between the seven-building referenda of 2002 and the 2003, and the single-building proposal approved in April 2003. The voters were not asked to approve the work to be done on all seven of the schools addressed in the Plan, but to approve only a very limited portion of the work contemplated by the Plan, that which was needed for the High School. Indeed, the later, December 2006 referendum also provided funding for some work at the High School, so it may be that the approval sought in 2003 for High School work did not seek to address even all of that school's needs. Regardless, there is no sense in considering that a proposal to the voters to fund $44,000,000 for work at seven buildings is the same as a proposal to fund $2,000,000 for work on one building. It is true that all of this work was part of the grand conception of the Plan, that in a sense it "related back" to that Plan as approved by the DOE, but it is simply too much to consider that these constituted the same "project." DOE's perception of the breakup of the larger project into discreet, smaller projects is a far more reasonable approach that takes into account both the scope of the actual work at issue in any given situation, as well as the very important question of what, at any given time, the voters were being asked to approve. Having rejected the "big" "project(s)" offered to them in 2002, the voters might be quite surprised to learn that they were approving the very same "project" in April 2003.

Nutley objects to Mr. Piaia's expression of his position as to the meaning of "project." He is the Director of the Office of School Facilities for the DOE, and as such, he is not an outside expert but instead is a person directly involved in the day-to-day operations of that unit of the DOE. An agency must undertake to understand and to implement the legislative directions and mandates it receives and in so doing, must, where the legislation is not in itself so crystal clear in its wording as to dictate the exact meaning of words and phrases, to formulate its interpretation of the meaning and import of the language. Even where language is clear, the day-to-day management of a statutory mandate requires agency personnel to seek to understand how the language applies to differing scenarios. As is commonly known, appellate courts give substantial deference to an agency's understanding and interpretation of the legislation entrusted to its care by the Legislature. Here, it is not offered by either party that the Commissioner of the DOE has issued any decision as to the meaning of "project" in connection with this legislation and this type of circumstance, or that the appellate courts have spoken as to the meaning of the term in this context. In such a circumstance, while neither the Commissioner nor an administrative law judge sitting for the Commissioner in a contested case is required to defer to the understanding of DOE staff personnel regarding the meaning of a term or phrase, that said, neither should either be precluded from hearing and considering the views of those most directly involved in the day-to-day implementation of the legislation. Thus, Mr. Piaia's views are properly offered and if they are in accord with those expressed herein, that is simply a reflection of the fact that both he and this judge may see the matter similarly, not that this judge must accept or defer to that which he offers. Indeed, here, the concept that a project offered at referendum and rejected is not the same project as a substantially altered one offered at another referendum makes great sense and is persuasive.

Guidance as to how to understand the concept of a "project" can be garnered from a review of the regulations attendant to the "management of capital projects" as described in N.J.A.C. 6A:26-4.4. A portion of this regulation is the basis for the finding in the report of irregularities issued by OFAC. It found that the district had failed to adhere to the provisions that require approval where a construction project is "redefined." N.J.A.C. 6A:26-1.2, defines both a "capital project and a "school facilities project"

"Capital project" means a school facilities project, other capital project or land acquisition project.

"School facilities project" means the acquisition, demolition, construction, improvement, repair, alteration, modernization, renovation, reconstruction or capital maintenance of all or any part of a school facility or of any other personal property necessary for, or ancillary to, any school facility, and shall include fixtures, furnishings and equipment, and shall also include, but is not limited to, site acquisition, site development, the services of design professionals such as engineers and architects, construction management, legal services, financing costs and administrative costs and expenses incurred in connection with the project. To qualify as a school facilities project, the project must be new construction in order to meet the housing needs of unhoused students, or rehabilitation for the purpose of keeping a school facility functional for its original purpose or for a new purpose accomplished within the gross square footage of the original building. Maintenance projects intended solely to achieve the design life of a school facility and routine maintenance do not constitute school facilities projects.

[Ibid.]

N.J.A.C. 6A:26-4.4(a)4 provides options for a school district where there are insufficient funds to complete a capital project

Redefine/scale down the scope of the project and seek approval of the board of school estimate or voters, as applicable, to use the original proceeds for the redefined scope and/or new purpose. All such projects require resubmission and redetermination of final eligible costs by the Division prior to seeking board of school estimate or voter approval; or

In this case, Nutley sought voter approval to provide the funding for a large capital project, one that by its very nature was also a "school facilities project." It failed to obtain voter approval on two occasions. It was therefore left with insufficient funds to carry out the proposed "project." Obviously, it then reassessed its position. While N.J.A.C. 6A:26-4.4(a)4 does not specifically state that the redefined or scaled down "project" that it can create after it finds itself with insufficient funding is a "new" project, it is important to note that the regulations differentiate between substantial redefinition and essentially minor changes. N.J.A.C. 6A:26-4.4 (a)2 provides another option in cases of insufficient funding "If contracts were previously awarded, seek approval pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:26-4.9 for a change order for modifications to effect economies which would not materially impact the nature or scope of the project as approved by the Division and board of school estimate or voters, as applicable;" (emphasis added).

While a change in the exact scope of a project under this provision may readily be viewed as of such an inconsequential nature as to still leave the "project" effectively the same, in Nutley's case the Board determined to redefine the scope of its project in, to say the least, a decidedly substantial manner. Given that the "project" which was the subject of the contract of January 2001 and the referenda of 2002 was not in any sense the same project as those later offered to and approved by the voters in three subsequent referenda, most particularly so in regard to the 2003 vote, the multi-year exception for "any single project for the construction, reconstruction or rehabilitation of any public building, structure or facility, or any public works project" cannot be utilized to defend the length of the Nutley-Tri-Tech contract of January 2001. As such, the District had no effective contract with Tri-Tech after the expiration of two years following January 21, 2001. When it determined that it should offer the voters in 2003 a project encompassing only $2,000,000 and only for work at the high school, it should have either solicited bids for the work previously contracted to Tri-Tech or, if it chose, to again contract with Tri-Tech or some other entity under the EUS exception, if it believed that provision applied to the work. It did not do so, and instead continued to treat as if the January 2001 contract was still effective. It made substantial payments to Tri-Tech under the terms of that contract after January 2003. Its failure to bid the contract, or at the very least to authorize a new contract with Tri-Tech or with some other company, utilizing the EUS exception, led it to violate the bidding statute.¹

OFAC seeks to recover $326,004.47, the State aid portion of money expended to pay Tri-Tech after the expiration of the contract in January 2003. There appears to be no dispute about the amount of money paid after that date. In the absence of any contract awarded after the solicitation of bids pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-4, or of any contract awarded after January 2003 under an appropriately applied EUS or other exception to the bidding requirement, these funds were paid by a district that failed to comply with the law. N.J.S.A. 18A:55-2 mandates that the Commissioner of Education "shall direct the State treasurer to withhold funds payable by the State from any district which fails to obey the law or the rules or directions of the State board or the commissioner." The recovery limitation embodied in N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-46.1a has no applicability. I CONCLUDE that Nutley's failure to abide by the bidding statute after January 2003 constitutes such a failure to comply with State law and I CONCLUDE that recoupment of the $326,004.467 is proper. The State Treasurer should therefore be directed to withhold from Nutley $326,004.47. It is so ORDERED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The following is a decision on respondent's motion to vacate a default judgment which has been entered against it, requiring respondent to restore to petitioner's sick bank all days of absence flowing from petitioner's September 18, 2006 work-related fall – up to one calendar year.

This matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education on August 25, 2011, by way of a verified petition against the respondent board of education. Petitioner alleged that sick days were improperly charged to her "sick leave bank." Upon notice by the Commissioner, petitioner submitted a copy of the workers' compensation settlement on October 27, 2011.

By notice dated October 27, 2011, the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes (the Bureau) directed respondent, via regular mail, to file an answer to the petition. On November 18, and then again on December 6, 2011, the Bureau directed respondent for a second and a third time – via both certified and regular mail – to file an answer to the petition. The certified mail receipts were signed and returned, and the notices sent by regular mail were not returned to the Commissioner.

The first communication from the Bureau clearly provided respondent with notice that, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.5, an individual against whom a petition is filed shall have 20 days from receipt of the petition to file an answer. The second and third notices advised that if respondent did not file an answer within ten days of its receipt of same, each count of the petition would be deemed to have been admitted and the Commissioner might decide the matter on a summary basis.

Having received no answer from respondent, the Commissioner concluded, on January 24, 2012, that petitioner's allegations could be deemed admitted, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.5(e), and were sufficient to justify an order that respondent restore to petitioner's sick bank all days of absence flowing from petitioner's September 18, 2006 work-related fall – up to one calendar year.

To support its motion to vacate the default judgment respondent's counsel has submitted a certification alleging that an answer was not filed to the petition bearing the above-referenced docket number because said petition is duplicative of a prior petition that was filed under the docket number 248-8/11 and transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL). Respondent's counsel further certifies that a hearing regarding said petition is scheduled for May 9, 2012 in the OAL, and argues that filing responsive pleadings to the duplicative petition would have been pointless. Thus, respondent's counsel urges that the default judgment entered against respondent on January 24, 2012 be vacated.

Upon consideration of the foregoing, the Commissioner concludes that the default judgment was issued as the result of procedural errors.

Accordingly, notwithstanding respondent's failure to contact the Commissioner with an explanation for its failure to respond to any of the above-referenced notices, respondent's motion to vacate the January 24, 2012, default judgment is granted.

Regis Academy Charter School, Amir Khan, appearing pro se

BEFORE DONALD J. STEIN, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The Township of Voorhees (petitioner) filed an application for emergent relief to stay the inclusion in its 2012-2013 budget of projection funding for the Regis Academy

Charter School (Regis) or that Regis be placed on probationary status for ninety days in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:11-2.4(a).

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On February 24, 2012, petitioner filed an application for emergent relief with the New Jersey Department of Education, Office of Special Education Programs. On February 24, 2012, the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for oral argument on the requested emergent relief. On March 1, 2012, the emergent application was heard in the OAL, Trenton (Hamilton Township), and the record closed.

STATEMENT OF FACTS

Some of the facts are undisputed. In March 2011, Regis submitted a new charter application. On May 5, 2011, the Department of Education (DOE) wrote to the petitioner stating:

If the application receives preliminary approval in September 2011, they will receive aid projections in February 2012. Please note that the calculated aid on enclosed report is an estimate and is for planning purposes only. Potential aid is contingent upon final approval of the charter. Once final approval is granted, the district would receive a payment schedule based on the projected enrollment as of February 2012 (R-1).

On September 30, 2011, the application was approved, contingent upon receipt of additional documentation, "successful participation of the preparedness process", and compliance with applicable state and federal regulation (R-2).

Petitioner asserts that they have not been provided with enrollment numbers for Regis, and that the previously provided figures from DOE would account for 89.7% of the 2% allowed budget growth for the 2012-2013 school year. Petitioners would be left with $83,377 for additional costs, including contractual obligations. The Board is required to submit a budget by March 5, 2012 (P-1).

Petitioner further asserts that they have not yet received any additional guidance from the DOE updating or modifying the estimates referred to in the May 5, 2011 letter (R-1). Petitioner argues that as a result, they will be left with no alternative except to eliminate programs, reduce staff and increase class size, and that the budget restrictions imposed by this aid would make it "impossible for the Board to comply with its obligation to deliver a 'thorough and efficient education'" (P-1).

On February 28, 2012, the DOE submitted two charter aid projections (P-2). One has a worst case scenario for fifty-two students, and the second has a projection for thirty students. Petitioner argues that they should not have given two projections.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

A party seeking emergent relief must satisfy the standards in Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982), which requires the movant to establish:

1. The petitioner will suffer irreparable harm if the relief is not granted;
2. The legal right underlying the petitioner's claim is settled;
3. The petitioner has a likelihood of prevailing on the merits of the underlying claim; and
4. When the equities and interests of the parties are balanced, the petitioner will suffer greater harm than the respondent will suffer if the requested relief is not granted.

The petitioner must satisfy all four prongs of the Crowe test.

I FIND it unlikely that the petitioner would have prevailed on the merits for both forms of the proposed relief.

While petitioner contends that it should not have to include projected aid numbers in its 2012-2013 budget, N.J.A.C. 6A:23A-15.2 clearly requires petitioner to do so. According to that provision, "[t]he resident and non-resident school districts shall use projected charter school aid as established by the Commissioner in a report to be distributed no later than February 15 of the pre budget year for budget purposes” N.J.A.C. 6A:23A-15.2(a). Moreover, “[a]nnually, on or before March 4, each district board of education shall adopt, and submit to the Executive County Superintendent for approval, together with such supporting documentation as prescribed by the Commissioner, a budget that provides for a thorough and efficient (T&E) education.” N.J.A.C. 6A:23A-8.1(a); N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-5(c). Thus, when read in conjunction, N.J.A.C. 6A:23A-15.2(a) and N.J.A.C. 6A:23A-8.1(a) require the District to submit to the county superintendent, on or before March 4, 2012, a 2012-2013 budget that includes the projected charter school aid for Regis as distributed by the Department.

It is also unlikely that the petitioner would prevail on the merits as to placing Regis on probation. Under N.J.A.C. 6A:11-2.4(a), probation is a penalty applied to charter schools that are not in compliance with their charters, or statutory or regulatory provisions. Here, there is no evidence that Regis is not in compliance with its preliminary charter, or any statute or regulation. Instead, all statutorily required documentation for final charter applications shall be submitted to the Department of Education by June 30. N.J.A.C. 6A:11-2.1(l) Thus, Regis has several months to comply with its requirements and probationary status at this juncture would be inappropriate. Therefore, there is no likelihood that the petitioner would prevail on the merits of this issue or that the petitioner has a legal right to prematurely request that the Commissioner place a charter school on probation.

Petitioner has not satisfied the requirement for irreparable harm. It is not disputed that budgeting for aid to Regis would cause some uncertainty and may cause the petitioner to make some cuts based on the projected aid for Regis, but this does not rise to irreparable harm. Every school district has to budget for charter schools in the district and deal with the possibility of cutting jobs and programs. And, at this point, the aid due to Regis is merely a projection, and the petitioner does not have to provide any payments to Regis unless and until the DOE grants final charter approval. Actual aid is annually adjusted by the Commissioner after the budgets have been set. Therefore, the petitioner will not know how much aid it actually owes until later in the year, which would still cause uncertainty in the budget.

The irreparable harm is speculative at best. The Commissioner has not granted final approval to Regis.

I FIND that the Board would suffer greater harm than petitioner if the requested relief was not granted.

DECISION AND ORDER

Since N.J.A.C. 6A:14-2.7(m)(1) and N.J.A.C. 1:6A-12.1 are written in the conjunctive and the petitioner has failed to satisfy three requirements, I CONCLUDE that the petitioner has failed to establish grounds for the granting of emergency relief. Accordingly, it is ORDERED that the petition of the Township of Voorhees for emergent relief is DENIED without prejudice. Since this matter involves the submission of documents by March 5, 2012, there are no other outstanding issues to be resolved.

This order on application for emergency relief may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The final decision shall be issued without undue delay, but no later than forty-five days following the entry of this order. If the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION does not adopt, modify or reject this order within forty-five days, this recommended order shall become a final decision on the issue of emergent relief in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Petitioner – a tenured assistant principal – contended that her tenure rights were violated when her annual salary was reduced in consequence of the change from a twelve-month to a ten-month position in respondent's school district following a reduction in force (RIF) which eliminated the twelve-month position of principal at Garfield East Elementary School – a position petitioner had held for eight months. Respondent Board asserted that it had acted pursuant to a RIF and in accordance with the law when it placed petitioner in a ten-month assistant principal position in an elementary setting at her base salary, pro-rated for ten months; and that this assignment had been made only after petitioner expressed dissatisfaction with the Board's intent to reassign her to a twelve-month assistant principal position at the district high school – a position that would have provided the same twelve-month work schedule and salary that petitioner had received prior to the RIF. Petitioner contends that she was reassigned from her principal position to the high school position as a result of the RIF, and that the Board then transferred her of its own volition to the elementary position, thereby illegally reducing her salary.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: it is undisputed that respondent instituted a RIF in the spring of 2010 which eliminated petitioner's twelve-month principal position; the evidence as presented was clear that petitioner had initially been advised by her superintendant that she would be recommended for an assistant principal position at Memorial Upper Elementary school; the Board, however, did not act on that recommendation but instead assigned petitioner to a new position at the high school that preserved her twelve-month work schedule and salary; petitioner appeared to be disgruntled with the assignment; the Board determined from petitioner's actions that she was seeking assignment to Memorial Upper Elementary as assistant principal and therefore changed the assignment; this assignment, which petitioner seems to have wanted, resulted in a reduction in her salary due to the ten-month nature of the position; and the reduction is not a violation of her tenure rights. Accordingly, the ALJ dismissed the petition.

Upon comprehensive review of the record, the Commissioner adopted the Initial Decision of the OAL as the final decision in this matter. The petition was dismissed.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE	:

RESPONDENT.	:

In this controversy petitioner contends that her tenure rights were violated when her annual salary was reduced in consequence of the change from a twelve-month to a ten-month position in respondent's school district. Upon review of the record,¹ Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), petitioner's exceptions and respondent's replies thereto, the Commissioner adopts the Initial Decision for the reasons expressed therein.

The event that precipitated the controversy was a reduction in force (RIF) which eliminated the position of principal of respondent's Garfield East Elementary School. Petitioner had held that twelve-month position for approximately eight months when notice of the reduction in force was issued in April 2010. (Respondent's Exhibit R-1) She was advised that her tenure in the position of Assistant Principal – which tenure had previously been earned in consequence of six years of service in the ten-month position of Assistant Principal of

Levitt Middle School – would give her “position rights” over non-tenured assistant principals within the district or allow her to be placed in a vacant assistant principal position. (Ibid.)

It is undisputed that, initially, respondent voted (on June 30, 2010) to assign petitioner to respondent’s high school – in the newly created twelve-month position of Assistant Principal/Dean of Students, which position was to have the same annual remuneration as did petitioner’s position as principal of Garfield East Elementary School.² (Respondent’s Exhibits R-2 and R-3) It is also undisputed that respondent voted on July 26, 2010 to assign petitioner to Memorial Upper Elementary School (Memorial) in the ten-month position of Assistant Principal. (Respondent’s Exhibits R-9 and R-10)

Respondent contends that the latter placement of petitioner into the ten-month assistant principal position at Memorial,³ and the attendant reduction in salary, was the result of petitioner’s expression of dissatisfaction with the high school assignment. It was, thus, a reassignment in consequence of the RIF. Relying on such cases as DiMaggio v. Board of Education of the City of Trenton, Mercer County, Commissioner Decision No. 219-99 (July 8, 1999), respondent reasons that the decrease in petitioner’s annual salary caused by the change from the twelve-month position that she rejected to a ten-month position (at the same rate of pay) given to her in consequence of the RIF was not a violation of her tenure rights. DiMaggio, supra, at 20.

Petitioner does not deny that respondent’s June 30, 2010 action assigning her to the high school was in consequence of a RIF. Rather, she maintains 1) that she never objected to that assignment, 2) that respondent’s July 26, 2010 placement of her into the position at Memorial was at its own initiative and should be deemed independent of the RIF, and 3) that the reduction in salary caused by her 'transfer' from the high school position to the assistant principal position at Memorial must be regarded as a violation of her tenure rights.

The resolution of this controversy boils down to an evaluation of the facts and the credibility of the respective parties and/or their representatives regarding their communications in June and July of 2010. Those communications included, inter alia, a July 1, 2010 letter from petitioner questioning her appointment to the high school position, a July 15, 2010 meeting – precipitated by petitioner's letter – attended by petitioner, respondent's Interim Superintendent David Hespe, respondent's Human Resources Director Terrell Everett and others, and correspondence subsequently sent to petitioner referencing the July 15 meeting. See, e.g., Respondent's Exhibits R-4, R-6, R-7, and R-8.

It is important to recognize at the outset that the Commissioner must accept the Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) credibility determinations unless the record blatantly contradicts same, see, e.g., N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(c); D.L. and Z.Y. on behalf of minor children, T.L. and K.L. v. Board of Education of the Princeton Regional School District, 366 N.J. Super. 269, 273 (App. Div. 2004). Here, the ALJ found respondent's witnesses to be credible as regards respondent's reason for changing petitioner's placement from the high school to Memorial. The ALJ accepted Hespe's testimony that 1) once the RIF was instituted it was Hespe's and petitioner's original expectation – before the first of respondent's board meetings – that petitioner would be given the assistant principal position at Memorial, 2) he interpreted petitioner's July 1, 2010 letter to be a complaint about the assignment in the high school and scheduled the July 15, 2010 meeting to address petitioner's concerns, 3) as a result of communications during the July 15 meeting, he understood petitioner to want the assistant principal position at Memorial, and 4) in the hope of appeasing a displeased employee, he proposed to the respondent board that it give petitioner the assistant principal position at Memorial – which it did.

On the other hand, the ALJ was not persuaded by petitioner's testimony. He found:

that Ms. Moore, despite her more recent attempt to make it appear as if she accepted the High School position and only wanted a better understanding of it, actually was very unhappy with the assignment and actively sought to both express her disagreement with her having been assigned to a job she had not sought (or even been aware of) and also directly sought to have that assignment changed to the one she had expected following her pre-June 29 meeting with Hespe, one that she had not made any protestation of public or private disagreement with prior to the Board's June 29 meeting. (Initial Decision at 8)

In addition to assessing petitioner's testimony, the ALJ noted that there was no indication in the record that petitioner – prior to respondent's July 26, 2010 board action – ever communicated to Hespe or the respondent Board any objections about the reassignment to Memorial – a change about which she had been alerted by Everett's letters of July 15 and July 22 and the Rice Notice of dated July 22, 2010. The ALJ concluded from this that during that time period petitioner was satisfied with the change to a ten-month position, notwithstanding that she would earn less over a calendar year in her more desired position at Memorial.⁴ (Initial Decision at 9)

The Commissioner has discerned nothing in the record that would lead him to believe that the ALJ's factual findings and credibility determinations are baseless or contraindicated. To the contrary, the Commissioner finds that the record supports only one non-speculative explanation for the reassignment of petitioner, and that is respondent's belief that the reassignment was what petitioner wanted.

⁴ The ALJ's account of petitioner's testimony also included the statement that any concerns petitioner may have had about being the only RIF'd administrator to be subject to a salary reduction were not communicated to Hespe or Everett or brought before the respondent Board. Rather, they were "later expressed to Mr. Nash [petitioner's counsel]." Initial Decision at 6.

Petitioner's suggestion, in her exceptions, that her placement in the Memorial assistant principal position should be seen as an action that was independent of the RIF is therefore rejected. The Commissioner concludes that petitioner's reassignment from a twelve-month to a ten-month position was in consequence of the RIF that was announced by respondent in April of 2010. Under those circumstances, the prorating of her salary did not violate petitioner's tenure rights. The petition is accordingly dismissed.

BEFORE JEFF S. MASIN, ALJ:

Dezoray Moore, a tenured employee of the Willingboro Board of Education ("Willingboro" or "Board") filed a petition with the Commissioner of the Department of Education asserting that the Board had violated her tenure rights, in defiance of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5, because it had illegally reduced her salary. The Board denied that claim, noting that while Ms. Moore's salary had not been reduced, it had been prorated to reflect that her assignment had been changed following a reduction in force (RIF) from a twelve-month to a ten-month position, thus resulting in a reduction of her annual earnings that was fully justified and in no way in derogation of her tenure rights. The Commissioner forwarded the contested case to the Office of Administrative Law for hearing, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to- 15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. A motion for summary decision on behalf of the Board of Education was denied by letter order dated August 3, 2011, and a hearing was conducted on November 29, 2011. Pre-and post-trial briefs were filed and the record closed on December 20, 2011.

There is no dispute that a RIF was instituted by the Board in the Spring of 2010. Prior to the RIF, Dezoray Moore was the Principal of the Garfield East School, a twelve-month position in which she earned $99,275 (plus $200 longevity). She had been promoted to this position from an assistant principalship at the Levitt Middle School, where she was assigned in the previous years 2003-2004 through 2008-2009. Moore did not have tenure in her position as principal at Garfield East. However, she did have tenure in the assistant principal position. She received notice of the RIF and resultant reassignment by letter dated April 28, 2010. This notice advised of the abolition of her position as Elementary Principal at Garfield East, effective June 30, 2010, subject to Board approval. The letter also noted that as a tenured staff member, she had position, or as it is often called "bumping", rights over other non-tenured staff and that the Interim Superintendent of Schools, David C. Hespe, would be recommending to the Board her reassignment to a position within her previous tenure. Dr. Hespe testified that his recommendation to the Board, presented during a multi-day Board meeting that commenced on June 29, 2010, was that Ms. Moore be reassigned to a ten-month position as an assistant principal at the Memorial Upper Elementary School, carrying a salary of approximately $82,000. However, the Board did not agree to Hespe's recommendation and instead determined that Ms. Moore should be assigned to the Willingboro High School in a position as Assistant Principal/Dean of Students, a twelve-month position that paid $99,275. The Board approved this appointment and notified Ms. Moore by letter dated July 1, 2010. In response, Ms. Moore wrote to Hespe on July 1. She noted that this appointment had been made despite the fact that she had been "unaware of such position and did not see a posting for the position, apply for the position, interview for the position, or know the job description of the position." She then essentially quotes from the description contained in the RIF letter of April 28, 2010, as to what might possibly happen regarding her position in the district given her tenure rights vis a vis non-tenured employees. She then notes that there have "been some discrepancies on a few occasions as it relates to me regarding hiring practices-job posting, applications, interviewing, and appointments." She then addresses an issue regarding the "Twilight Program" and a grievance she had filed. She asserts that the "unfair practices must end at the Willingboro Public School District in order for the district to become productive." She concludes,

I hope the Central Administration and the Board of Education begin to change the practice of favoring particular staff employees over other staff employees that have proven to have more qualification and/or experience.

Thank you for your attention to this matter.

[Exhibit R-4.]

On July 12, 2010, in a letter to Dr. Hespe, Ms. Moore requested a sabbatical from July 13, 2010 until August 31, 2010, for the expressed purpose of "further studies in pursuance of professional growth." She copied the Director of Human Resources, Terrell Everett, on this request.

On July 15, 2010, Mr. Everett wrote Moore to "memorialize our conversation today." He wrote that she had "indicated that it is your belief that you should be placed in a 10-month Assistant Principal position. We have asked you for a letter indicating that you are requesting a transfer from a 12-month position you were appointed to on June 30th to a 10-month Assistant Principal position." He noted that the administration wanted to bring this issue up to the Board at its meeting on July 26 and requested that she respond to his office in writing by July 20, 2010, a request for a response that was emphasized in the letter by bold type. On July 22, Everett wrote again, referencing the July 15 letter and "later attempts to contact you via phone and e-mail correspondence for a response." He advised that she was being transferred from the twelve-month Assistant Principal/Dean of Students position to a ten-month Assistant Principal at Memorial Upper Elementary School, at a salary of $82,729.16 for the "10-month Assistant Principal" position. On July 22, a Rice Notice was sent to Moore, advising that the Board might be discussing the transfer outlined in the July 15 and, more explicitly, in the July 22 letters, at its meeting of July 26, 2010. It outlined her choice regarding having the discussion take place in Executive session or in Public session and requested her decision as to that question. According to both sides of this dispute, she did not respond to either the letters or the Rice Notice. The Board took up and approved the transfer from the twelve- to the ten-month position at that July meeting and approved the same.

It is undisputed that after her assignment to the High School and before her assignment to Memorial Upper Elementary, that Ms. Moore received two paychecks that were the result of her assignment as a twelve-month employee receiving a salary of $99, 275.

David Hespe, now the Chief of Staff at the State Department of Education and formerly the State Commissioner of Education, served as the Interim Superintendent of the Willingboro School District for approximately thirteen months. He recalled that after the RIF was announced he met with Ms. Moore and discussed his recommendation that she be assigned to the ten-month position as Assistant Principal at Memorial Upper Elementary. Moore questioned why she could not simply return to Levitt, but he explained that he thought she best fit at Memorial. When the Board decided at its meeting, held over several days beginning June 29, that it felt she would be more appropriately assigned to the High School, the decision to assign her there was made without further discussion with Moore. After he received her letter of July 1, a meeting was held with Moore and Everett on July 15. Hespe, who had received her letter on July 2, understood that she was upset regarding the appointment to the High School. He understood her to argue that it was an illegal and inappropriate action and that she wanted action to be taken to undo that appointment. He told her that he would see what he could do. He contended that at the meeting he asked her what she wanted to happen and she wanted the Memorial Upper Elementary position. She presented as a "very unhappy employee" unhappy with the RIF, the reduction back to an assistant principalship, and her not being assigned to Levitt. After that meeting, all attempts to reach her were to no avail. She did not respond to letters or report to the High School. He did receive a letter about a sabbatical, a topic that she had not brought up in the July 15 meeting. This request "confused things." There was a process in place in the contract to make such a request and she did not follow that process, which, additionally, no one could recall ever having been used. The request came from "out of the blue," there was not time to consider it, the information supporting it was insufficient, and it was never approved.

Hespe offered that the recommendation to the Board to place Ms. Moore at Memorial Upper Elementary instead of the previously approved placement at the High School was precipitated by Moore's request at the July 15 meeting. He specifically denied that the decision to recommend her assignment to Memorial Upper was in any way a result of his determining that her assignment to the High School as Assistant Principal/Dean of Students was inappropriate or illegal.

Dezoray Moore, now assistant principal at Hawthorne Park Elementary School in Willingboro, testified that she was advised that as a result of a RIF she would no longer be a principal. There were at the time prior to the RIF eight or nine assistant principals in Willingboro and none was in a twelve-month position. When she met with Hespe and Everett and was told that she was being recommended for an assistant principal position at Memorial Upper Elementary, there was no discussion of the salary. The Dean of Students position at the High School had not previously existed. Assistant Principals at the High School had been ten-month employees.

Moore testified that after she learned of the appointment to the High School position instead of the Memorial Upper assignment, she wanted "clarification" concerning the new assignment, for which there was no existing job description. She did meet with Hespe and Everett. She also met with Everett on July 12 concerning her request for a leave of absence. He told her to put this request in writing. She asked for sabbatical to allow her to finish some course work and did not seek to be paid for the time off. As for her meeting on July 15 with Hespe and Everett, she did not ask for a move to a different assignment. She merely sought to clarify the assistant principal/Dean of Students position. As for the letter sent to her on July 22, she did not respond to it as a result of advice she had received by that date from David Nash, Esq., an attorney she had consulted regarding the legality of the appointment process. She does not recall if she responded to the Rice Notice. On September 1, she reported to Memorial and served there for the 2010-2011 school year.

Ms. Moore acknowledged that she was aware of the salary for the assistant principalship at Memorial Upper Elementary that was listed on the agenda for the June 29 meeting. That was the first time that she was aware of the salary, which she understood was based on the ten-month nature of that position, which itself was an understanding of the length of her year based upon what Hespe told her when they met in June. She did not express any concerns about this salary at the Board meeting. Later concerns that she claimed she had about being the only administrator whose salary was reduced were not brought up to the Board, Hespe or Everett but were later expressed to Mr. Nash.

Discussion

Ms. Moore asserts that the Willingboro School District violated her tenure rights when it placed her in the position of assistant principal at the Memorial Upper Elementary School after it had first placed her at the High School as an Assistant principal/Dean of Students following a RIF that had caused her to lose her position as a non-tenured principal. The most practical impact of this change from the High School assignment to the Elementary School position was that the latter was a ten-month position. The High School assignment was for a twelve-month period. The resulting yearly pay differential, based on the difference in months for the assignment, was approximately $17,000, based on pro-rating the twelve-month to a ten-month salary, and these salaries were also subject to the changes that might occur as a result of negotiations with the bargaining unit. A tenured school employee "shall not be dismissed or reduced in compensation except for inefficiency, incapacity, or conduct unbecoming such a teaching staff member or other just cause" N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5.

The parties have clashed over precisely the reason for the change of assignment from the High School to Memorial Upper. The Board insists that it acted pursuant to a RIF and that as such, since it followed the law in moving Moore from her principal's position to first the High School and then the elementary school, it simply carried out both reassignments as part of the RIF and in accordance with the law. More importantly perhaps, it contends that the reason for the second reassignment was not due to its own desire to either transfer Moore from the High School or to reduce her to a ten-month employee, with a concomitant salary adjustment to reflect that shorter work year, but was instead simply its effectuation of the change to satisfy an employee who had clearly expressed her unhappiness with the High School assignment and had questioned its legality. Moore argues that the reassignment from her principal position to the High School effectuated the RIF. The Board then transferred her of its own volition and in doing so illegally reduced her salary.

It is clear from the evidence that prior to the Board's approval of the assignment to the High School, Dr. Hespe had advised Ms. Moore that he had recommended that she be assigned to Memorial Upper Elementary as a ten-month employee earning $82,700. This was what she understood and this was the recommendation that she expected the Board to consider at the June 29 meeting. She did not express any alarm at this prospect, at least not to Hespe, Everett or the Board. To her surprise, the Board did not do as its Interim Superintendent had recommended. Instead, no doubt to her surprise, Moore found herself assigned to the High School as an assistant principal/Dean of Students, a position that as she noted in her letter of July 1, she neither sought, applied for, had seen posted or had even known existed. This new assignment carried with it two things at least: twelve-months service and a salary of $99,275, the very same salary she received in the position of principal she had held before the RIF. Ms. Moore's reaction to the news of this assignment is at the crux of the matter.

Ms. Moore's July 1 letter appears to assert that the Board has not followed allowable procedures in regard to hiring practices, while at the same time noting that in regard to her own situation, Moore has found that she has been appointed to a position she did not know about, was not alerted to by posting and did not apply for. She then notes her rights in regard to the RIF as set out in the RIF letter. Nowhere in the letter does she explicitly say that she wants or insists upon a change in the assignment to the High School, yet she does seem, by the words and the tone of the letter, to be complaining about what the Board has done.

The key to understanding the difference between the Board's view of the events of July and that of Ms. Moore's appears to be the difference in their understandings as to the significance of the July 15 meeting. Hesper testified that at that meeting Moore expressed her desire to be assigned to the elementary school position. He then set out to effectuate this and succeeded. She contends that she did not ask for any change at this meeting, only a clarification of her new position at the High School. Here, the difference in testimony must be reconciled by an assessment of the credibility of the witnesses. On this, I am persuaded that Ms. Moore, despite her more recent attempt to make it appear as if she accepted the High School position and only wanted a better understanding of it, actually was very unhappy with the assignment and actively sought to both express her disagreement with her having been assigned to a job she had not sought (or even been aware of) and also directly sought to have that assignment changed to the one she had expected following her pre-June 29 meeting with Hesper, one that she had not made any protestation of public or private disagreement with prior to the Board's June 29 meeting. Exactly why she did not want the High School assignment is not to be determined from this record, but I am convinced she was satisfied, in the face of the reality of a RIF, with the elementary school assistant principalship. But she did receive checks for the two pay periods in July as a twelve-month employee, reflective of the High School assignment.

The Board has contended that its actions here all relate to and flow from the RIF and as such, as the reduction from her principal position and salary adjustment are the result of the RIF, it has acted legally. I am persuaded that it changed the assignment from that approved by the Board to that which accorded with Dr. Hesper's original recommendation due to Hesper's intervention on behalf of his disgruntled employee.

The change reflected that Ms. Moore was unhappy with the Board's initial action in regards her tenure rights following the RIF and was, in essence, merely the Board placing her in position after the RIF more comfortable to her than that which it had first given her, a position that was also within those to which she could be assigned in conformity with those tenure rights. The fact that she received a salary for work in July was the result of the Board's initial step, which she did not see as proper or comfortable. That she now complains that her calendar year salary ended up lower, due to its pro-rated nature, is unfortunate. And her tenure right had been protected by the High School assignment and was similarly protected by the assignment to the elementary position, which assignment, it is noted, has not been attacked on the ground that it would have been legally inappropriate had it occurred as Hespe originally recommended. And I am convinced that the fact that she never objected to Hespe or the Board about the change to which she was clearly alerted by the letters of July 15 from Everett and July 22 from Everett and the Rice Notice of this latter date reflects that she was satisfied with the change, although no doubt she did not appreciate that she would earn less over a calendar year despite receiving the same monthly rate of compensation in her more desired position at Memorial Upper Elementary.

The Board essentially acquiesced to Ms. Moore's preference as to her assignment. That it resulted in a reduction in her salary due to the ten-month nature of the position is not a violation of her tenure rights. The rate of pay was maintained, only the total yearly salary was reduced due to the shorter work year. DiMaggio v. Bd. of Educ. Of the City of Trenton, EDU 6389-97, Initial Decision, (May 24, 1999), rejected, Comm'r. (July 8, 1999) p.20 <<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html>>.

I CONCLUDE that the Board of Education did not act in contravention of Ms. Moore's tenure rights. Her appeal is DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. SYNOPSIS

Petitioner – a tenured assistant principal, who had been employed by the Board as Assistant Principal at the district middle school – filed a petition contending that respondent violated his seniority rights when it failed to rehire him to his former position following a reduction in force (RIF). Petitioner asserts that respondent instead offered the position to another former vice principal who lacked seniority in this position at the middle school. The parties filed cross motions for summary decision.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: it is undisputed that petitioner was a tenured administrator in respondent's district; the person hired to replace petitioner after the RIF had a greater number of years of service in the district, but no seniority as a vice principal in the middle school; petitioner had over three and one-half years seniority as the middle school principal; N.J.A.C. 6A:32-5.1(b) mandates that seniority in the specific category of employment – not total length of service in the district – controls the recall process; petitioner had predominant seniority rights in the middle school vice principal position, and should have been recalled. Accordingly, the ALJ ordered petitioner reinstated to his former position effective October 8, 2010, with back pay and seniority

Upon comprehensive review, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ's findings and granted petitioner's cross motion for summary decision. The petitioner was reinstated to the position of middle school principal, together with back pay and benefits.

This synopsis is not part of the Commissioner's decision. It has been prepared for the convenience of the reader. It has been neither reviewed nor approved by the Commissioner.

Petitioner achieved tenure as an Assistant Principal at the middle school in respondent's district, but was terminated when the position was abolished in the Spring of 2010. In October 2010 respondent reactivated the Assistant Principal position at the middle school but filled it with a different employee. Petitioner appealed that action.

Upon review of the record, the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), and respondent's exception thereto, the Commissioner concurs with the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) that petitioner was entitled to the restored Assistant Principal position. While both petitioner and his fellow employee had served for over three years as assistant principals in respondent's district,¹ petitioner had served in the category of "Junior high school vice principal or assistant principal," see, N.J.A.C. 6A:32-5.1(l)(14), while the other employee had served primarily in the category of "High school vice principal or assistant principal," see N.J.A.C. 6A:32-5.1(l)(11). Accordingly, petitioner's cross motion for summary disposition is granted, respondent's cross motion for summary disposition is denied, and petitioner is herewith reinstated to the position of middle school assistant principal, together with back pay and benefits.

Respondent.

Robert M. Schwartz, Esq., for petitioner

Adam S. Weiss, Esq., for respondent (Methfessel & Werbel, attorneys)

Record Closed: January 3, 2012

Decided: January 18, 2012

BEFORE BRUCE M. GORMAN, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner appealed respondent's failure to reinstate him in a position of Middle School Principal in violation of his seniority rights.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The petitioner requested a fair hearing and the matter was filed at the OAL on February 22, 2011, to be heard as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to 15 and 14F-1 to 13. The parties filed cross-motions for summary decision and the record closed on January 3, 2012.

JOINT STIPULATION OF FACTS

The parties agreed upon the following Joint Stipulation of Facts.

1. Petitioner, Darren Palmer, began employment as an Asssitant Principal with respondent Pleasantville Board of Education on October 6, 2006.

2. In October 2006, the New Jersey Department of Education, State Board of Examiners issued a Standard Certificate with a Principal/Supervisor endorsement to petitioner Palmer.

3. Under cover of letter dated April 8, 2010, former Superintendent Gloria Grantham advised petitioner Palmer of the Board's intent to abolish his position pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9, et seq. due to a reduction in State aid.

4. Under cover of letter dated April 30, 2010, former Superintendent Gloria Grantham advised petitioner Palmer that the Board abolished the Assistant Principal position at its April 27, 2010, meeting and that his last day of employment would be June 30, 2010.

5. Under cover of letter dated May 6, 2010, former Superintendent Gloria Grantham rescinded her letter to petitioner Palmer dated April 8, 2010, further advised him that the Board abolished the Assistant Principal position at its April 27, 2010, meeting and that his last day of employment would be June 30, 2010.

6. Under cover of letter dated June 24, 2010, and in response to the May 6, 2010, letter from former Superintendent Gloria Grantham, petitioner Palmer wrote that he was "obliged to concur with the terms of the [sic] your HR letter, dated May 6, 2010."

7. On or about October 8, 2010, petitioner Palmer addressed the Pleasantville Board of Education during the public portion of its Board meeting and indicated his belief that he has seniority over other administrators in the District and is "fully qualified" to hold the positions of Principal, Vice Principal and Supervisor.

8. At its October 8, 2010, meeting, the Pleasantville Board of Education approved the hiring of the following individuals for the following positions:

- a. Teresa McGaney-Guy, Assistant Principal, South Main Street School
- b. Andrea Atkins-Turner, Assistant Principal, Leeds Avenue School
- c. Felicia Hyman-Medley, Assistant Principal, Middle School
- d. Cynthia Ruiz-Cooper, Assistant Principal, Pleasantville High School
- e. Kelvin Cherry, Assistant Principal, Alternative High School
- f. Nanette Stuart-Pitts, Assistant Principal, Pleasantville High School
- g. Carol Reynolds, Principal, Washington Avenue School.

9. Prior to meeting of the Pleasantville Board of Education on October 8, 2010, Felicia Hyman-Medley was not employed by Pleasantville Public Schools in the position of Assistant Principal, Middle School.

The parties supplemented the Stipulation of Facts with the following additional stipulations:

1. On what date was Ms. [Felicia] Hyman-Medley employed by the Pleasantville Board of Education?

ANSWER: Ms. [Felicia] Hyman-Medley has been employed by the Pleasantville Board of Education from 2001 to present.¹

2. Was Ms. [Felicia] Hyman-Medley subjected to a RIF?

ANSWER: Yes.

¹The month Ms. Hyman-Medley became employed by the Pleasantville Board of Education was unknown by counsel at the time of the response; however, in a supplemental submission, this answer was amended to indicate that Ms. Hyman-Medley began her employment with the District on September 1, 2011, as a teacher at the Leeds Avenue Elementary School.

3. If so, on what date?

ANSWER: April 27, 2010

4. Was the action of October 8, 2010, an attempt to recall Ms. [Felicia] Hyman-Medley or was she already re-employed?

ANSWER: The action of October 8, 2010 was an attempt to recall Ms. [Felicia] Hyman-Medley and other former Assistant Principals subsequent to the April 27, 2010 reduction in force. Petitioner was not recalled and the District's decision to employ the individuals was based upon length of service in the District and not length of service in a particular school.

5. What positions did Ms. Hyman-Medley hold at the Pleasantville Board of Education, and during what time periods?

ANSWER: 2001-2006
Elementary school teacher 2001-2006

August 2, 2006 – June 30, 2010
Assistant Principal of Pleasantville High School

April 29, 2010 – June 30, 2010
Assistant Principal of Leeds Avenue
Elementary School

October 8, 2010
Appointed Ass.t Principal of Middle School

LEGAL DISCUSSION

This case turns on the issue of seniority. It is undisputed that petitioner was a tenured administrator with the Pleasantville School District. He held the position of Assistant Principal at the Pleasantville Middle School commencing October 6, 2006, and ending June 30, 2010, a period of time that afforded him tenure. He was rified effective June 30, 2010.

Felicia Hyman-Medley was initially employed at Pleasantville as an elementary school teacher commencing with the 2001-2002 school year and ending with the 2005-2006 school year. On August 2, 2006, Hyman-Medley was appointed Assistant Principal of Pleasantville High School. Like petitioner, she was rified effective June 30, 2010.

On October 8, 2010, the Pleasantville Board of Education re-filled the position of Middle School Assistant Principal. But instead of recalling petitioner, it appointed Hyman-Medley, who had no seniority as a Middle School Principal. The question before me is, does petitioner's greater period of seniority entitle him to the position?

An analysis of re-employment rights must begin with the provision of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12. The relevant portion of that statute states:

If any teaching staff member shall be dismissed as a result of such reduction, such person shall be and remain upon a preferred eligible list in the order of seniority for reemployment whenever a vacancy occurs in a position for which such person shall be qualified and he shall be reemployed by the body causing dismissal, if and when such vacancy occurs and in determining seniority, and in computing length of service for reemployment, full recognition shall be given to previous years of service,...

N.J.A.C. 6A:32-5.1(b) provides, in pertinent part:

(b) Seniority, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:29-9 et seq., shall be determined according to the number of academic or calendar years of employment, or fraction thereof, as the case may be, in the school district in specific categories as hereinafter provided.

Finally, N.J.A.C. 6A:32-5.1(i) states, in pertinent part:

(i) Whenever any person's particular employment shall be abolished in a category, he or she shall be given that employment in the same category to which he or she is entitled by seniority.

Both petitioner and Hyman-Medley held tenure in the District. Hyman-Medley had a greater time in service in the District generally. However, petitioner had a greater time in service as Middle School Principal.

In this case, the necessary result is clear. Petitioner had over three and one-half years seniority as Middle School Principal. Hyman-Medley had no seniority as Middle School Principal.

The language of N.J.A.C. 6A:32-5.1(b) mandates that seniority in the specific position and not length of service in the district generally controls the recall process. Since petitioner has predominant seniority rights in the position of Middle School Principal, and the Board of Education was required to recall him to that position. The action of the Board of Education must be REVERSED.

ORDER

I ORDER that petitioner be reinstated to the position of Middle School Principal, effective October 8, 2010, with back pay, seniority, and any other emoluments to which he would otherwise have been entitled. The amount of back pay awarded is to be reduced and mitigated to the extent of any income earned or that could have been earned by petitioner during this period. Proof of income shall be submitted by or on behalf of petitioner to the Board of Education within thirty days of issuance of this decision. Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 4A:2-2.10, the parties shall make a good faith effort to resolve any dispute as to the amount of back pay. However, under no circumstances should the petitioner's reinstatement be delayed pending resolution of any potential back pay.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE TOWNSHIP	:	DECISION OF MONTVILLE, MORRIS COUNTY

The record of this matter, the proposed "Stipulation of Settlement and Release" (Settlement), and the Initial Decision issued by the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1, have been reviewed and found in compliance with N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6, which reiterates the standards for settlement of tenure cases set forth in In re Cardonick, 1990 S.L.D. 842 (1990).

The Commissioner approves the settlement terms with the following observation. Sections 2 and 4 of the Settlement reference actions that may have already taken place, and have therefore preceded consideration of the settlement by the Commissioner of Education. The parties are reminded that a settlement of litigation before the Commissioner is not binding until the Commissioner approves same.

Thus, the Commissioner adopts the Initial Decision as the final decision in this case, providing that the parties have either successfully implemented the settlement terms, or have agreed upon mutually satisfactory alternate dates for the effectuation of same. Assuming the foregoing, the matter is hereby dismissed, subject to compliance with the terms of the Settlement.¹

HEARING OF JENNIFER SOWA, BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF MONTVILLE,
MORRIS COUNTY.

John G. Geppert, Jr, Esq., for petitioner (Schwartz Simon Edelstein & Celso, LLC, attorneys)

Wayne Oppito, Esq., for respondent (NJ Principals & Supervisors Association, attorneys)

Record Closed: January 12, 2012

Decided: January 12, 2012

BEFORE Carol I. Cohen, ALJ:

On August 30, 2011, the Montville Township Board of Education ("the Board") certified tenure charges against the respondent, Jennifer Sowa, a tenured Supervisor of Special Education employed by the district. Sowa filed an answer denying the charges and on September 16, 2011, the New Jersey Department of Education transmitted the charges to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") having deemed the charges sufficient, if true, to warrant dismissal or reduction in salary.

The Board filed charges of unbecoming conduct and other just causes against Sowa involving the accessing and distribution of certain e-mails.

Prior to the commencement of the hearing scheduled for December 19, 2011, the parties engaged in settlement discussions and reached an agreement which was filed with me on January 11, 2012, at which time the record closed. The Board approved the settlement terms at its meeting of December 20, 2011, as evidenced by the attached certified Board resolution. Based upon a review of the attached settlement agreement, I FIND as follows:

1. The nature of the charges has been documented by the submission of a Statement of Charges and Certificate of Determination to the Commissioner of Education.
2. Pursuant to the settlement agreement, Sowa will resign from his position of employment effective December 31, 2011.
3. It is in the best interests of the parties and the public to resolve this matter without risking an uncertain conclusion after protracted and costly litigation. The settlement is financially prudent. Although Sowa will receive compensation for this school year through the end of December 31, 2011, a final decision in this matter would not have been reached for several months because of an extended hearing schedule. Sowa had been suspended effective August 30, 2011. In accordance with law, she would have resumed a fully paid status after 120 days of suspension.
4. The proposed settlement agreement is with the consent of all parties.
5. By the terms of the proposed settlement agreement, Sowa has entered into this agreement with a full understanding of her rights.

6. Furthermore, the agreement stipulates that Sowa is fully cognizant of the Commissioner of Education's obligation to refer this matter to the State Board of Examiners for review and possible action to revoke her certificate. Accordingly, Sowa's fitness to act as a Supervisor of Special Services will remain the subject of scrutiny by the Board of Examiners, which will have the opportunity to take whatever action it deems to be in the public interest.
7. The agreement does not contain any provisions which restrict public access to information about its terms.

I therefore CONCLUDE that this settlement agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6 and that approval of this settlement is in the public interest.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

A. Salary, less all normal payroll deductions (including but not necessarily limited to pension deductions), in lump sum fashion for the period of unpaid suspension imposed by the Board at the time of the certification of the subject tenure charges to the Commissioner of Education, from September 1, 2011 to December 31, 2011, in the amount of $36,967.60 to be paid within the first payroll period following receipt of the Commissioner's approval of this settlement.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE :
TOWNSHIP OF SOUTH HACKENSACK, :
BERGEN COUNTY, :

DECISION

RESPONDENT. :

SYNOPSIS

Petitioners – who admit to being domiciled in Hackensack – appealed the determination of the respondent Board that their minor children are not entitled to a free public education in the South Hackensack school district. Petitioners contended that – in addition to the Hackensack house they currently reside in – they own a property that straddles the border between Hackensack and South Hackensack, pay taxes to both municipalities, and should be allowed to have their children educated in South Hackensack schools. The respondent Board filed a motion for summary decision.

The ALJ found that: there are no material facts in dispute, and the matter is ripe for summary decision; petitioners are domiciled in Hackensack, not South Hackensack – even if they eventually intend to live in their South Hackensack house; petitioners' children have never attended school in respondent's district; and petitioners' children are not entitled to a free public education in South Hackensack schools pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1. Accordingly, the ALJ concluded that South Hackensack is not obligated to educate petitioners' children, and granted respondent's motion for summary decision.

Upon a full and independent review, the Commissioner concurred with the findings and conclusion of the ALJ. Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL was adopted as the final decision in this case, and the petition was dismissed.

DECISION

The Commissioner has reviewed the record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on the Board's motion for summary decision. No exceptions were filed by either party as provided by N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Upon his considered review of the record, the Commissioner concurs with the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) that this matter is ripe for summary decision as there are no genuine issues of material fact to resolve. For the reasons convincingly presented in the ALJ's decision, the Commissioner agrees that petitioners are not domiciled in South Hackensack simply because they pay taxes there. Instead, the record clearly shows that the petitioners actually reside in the City of Hackensack and are also domiciled there. As such, their children are entitled to a free public education within the Hackensack school district, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, until such time as the family may move to the other property in South Hackensack, as their plan for the future seems to indicate.

Accordingly, summary disposition is granted to respondent, and the appeal of petitioner is hereby dismissed.

V.A. and J.A. on behalf of their minor children, pro se

Record Closed: December 22, 2011

BEFORE EVELYN J. MAROSE, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioners V.A. and J.A., who reside in Hackensack and own a property which straddles the border of South Hackensack, seek to enroll their children in the school district of respondent, South Hackensack. The South Hackensack School District opposes the request for enrollment pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1.

On September 20, 2011, petitioners filed a complaint with the Commissioner of Education. Petitioners received notice that their matter would not proceed until proof was filed with the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes that the respondent had been served. On September 28, 2011, the Department of Education issued an Amended Acknowledgment, after petitioners provided proof of service upon respondent. Respondent filed an Answer dated October 5, 2011, which was received by the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes on October 11, 2011. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), where, on October 19, 2011, it was filed for hearing and determination as a contested case. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15; N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. Respondent filed a Motion for Summary Decision on November 3, 2011. Petitioners filed opposition on December 14, 2011.¹ Respondent submitted a reply brief on December 22, 2011.

STANDARD FOR SUMMARY DECISION

Summary decision may be granted "if the papers and discovery which have been filed, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law." N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b).

The standard for granting summary judgment (decision) is found in Brill v. Guardian Life Insurance Co. of America, 142 N.J. 520 (1995). In Brill, the Court looked at the precedents established in Matsushita Electrical Industrial Co. Ltd. v. Zenith Radio Corp., 475 U.S. 574, 106 S. Ct. 1348, 89 L. Ed. 2d 538 (1986), Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, Inc., 477 U.S. 242, 106 S. Ct. 2505, 91 L. Ed. 2d 202 (1986), and Celotex Corp. v. Catrett, 477 U.S. 317, 106 S. Ct. 2548, 91 L. Ed. 2d 265 (1986), wherein the Supreme Court adopted a standard that "requires the motion judge to engage in an analytical process essentially the same as that necessary to rule on a motion for a directed verdict: 'whether the evidence presents a sufficient disagreement to require submission to a jury or whether it is so one-sided that one party must prevail as a matter of law.'" Brill, supra, 142 N.J. at 533 (quoting Liberty Lobby, Inc., supra, 477 U.S. at 251-52, 106 S. Ct. at 2512, 91 L. Ed. 2d at 214). The Court stated that under the new standard, a determination whether there exists a "genuine issue" of material fact that precludes summary judgment requires the motion judge to consider whether the competent evidential materials presented, when viewed in the light most favorable to the non-moving party, are sufficient to permit a rational fact-finder to resolve the alleged disputed issue in favor of the non-moving party. The "judge's function is not himself [or herself] to weigh the evidence and determine the truth of the matter but to determine whether there is a genuine issue for trial."

The Brill standard contemplates that the analysis performed by the trial judge in determining whether to grant summary judgment should comprehend the evidentiary standard to be applied to the case or issue if it went to trial. "To send a case to trial, knowing that a rational jury can reach but one conclusion, is indeed 'worthless' and will 'serve no useful purpose.'" Id. at 541.

In addressing whether the Brill standard has been met in this case, further guidance is found in R. 4:46-2(c):

An issue of fact is genuine only if, considering the burden of persuasion at trial, the evidence submitted by the parties on the motion, together with all legitimate inferences therefrom favoring the non-moving party, would require submission of the issue to the trier of fact.

STATEMENT OF FACTS

The following FACTS are not in dispute:

V.A. and J.A. reside with their three minor children at 170 Louis Street, Hackensack. V.A. and J.A. own a second house, whose street address is 409 Taylor Avenue, Hackensack. The second house is located on a piece of property partially in Hackensack and partially in South Hackensack. While both municipalities issue annual tax bills, the tax bill issued by South Hackensack is larger.

Petitioners assert three reasons why their children should be allowed to attend school in South Hackensack, though the family resides in Hackensack: (1) they pay property taxes to South Hackensack; (2) they resided in the past at 409 Taylor Avenue, Hackensack, and intend to someday reside again at that property²; and (3) the New Jersey education system should be reformed to allow those who own multiple properties in multiple school districts to send their children to school in any district where they pay taxes.

LEGAL ARGUMENT

Public school shall be free to persons over five and under twenty years of age who are domiciled within a school district. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1. An individual may have several residences, but can have only one domicile. Miller v. U.S. Fidel. & Guar. Co., 127 N.J. Super. 37, 42 (App. Div. 1974). A domicile once established continues until it is superseded by a new one. Bd. of Educ. of Twp. of Middle v. K.K. and P.K., 1992 N.J. AGEN LEXIS 5259. The domicile of an unemancipated child is the domicile of the parents. P.B.K. v. Bd. of Educ. of Tenafly, 343 N.J. Super. 419 (App. Div. 2001).

Following the Brill standard, I CONCLUDE that, even after giving all favorable inferences to the evidence presented by the non-moving party, the evidence does not present a sufficient disagreement to require submission to a fact-finder in a plenary proceeding. In addition, the decision must be determined with consideration of the law as it presently exists, and not in accordance with any suggested reformation of the law.

Although petitioners might someday move, perhaps back to 409 Taylor Avenue in Hackensack or some other place, they presently reside at 170 Louis Street, Hackensack. Because petitioners currently reside in Hackensack, I CONCLUDE that petitioners are domiciled in Hackensack.

N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 provides that children are entitled to receive a free public education from the school district within which they are domiciled. The right to a free public education is not based upon the payment of taxes in a school district or based upon the ownership of property in a school district. While petitioners own another house or property partially in South Hackensack and while petitioners pay property taxes to South Hackensack, they are domiciled in Hackensack. I CONCLUDE that South Hackensack is not obligated to provide petitioners with a free public education.

ORDER

It is hereby ORDERED that respondent's motion for summary decision is GRANTED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

TOWNSHIP OF MANSFIELD,	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, the Superintendent of Schools in Mansfield Township, sought a determination that she was reappointed by operation of law to the position of Superintendent for the period from July 1, 2011 to July 1, 2015 at her current salary of $146,192, as a consequence of the respondent Board's failure to provide her with one year's notice of non-renewal pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:17-20.1. Respondent contends that petitioner's salary as of July 1, 2011 was correctly adjusted pursuant to revised regulations that became effective in February 2011 which limit the maximum salary for superintendents in public districts according to the number of students enrolled in the school district. Both parties filed motions for summary decision.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: there are no material facts in dispute, and the matter is ripe for summary decision; the salary cap regulations in effect since February 2011 were within the Commissioner's authority to adopt; the petitioner was employed pursuant to a four-year contract that commenced July 1, 2007, and was set to expire on June 30, 2011; the terms of the initial contract required the Board to provide petitioner with written notice no later than one year in advance of the termination date if it elected not to re-appoint her; as no notice was provided, petitioner was deemed reappointed for another four-year term on July 1, 2011; the Board's reduction of petitioner's salary beginning July 1, 2011 was not in violation of her tenure rights, as – pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:23A-3.1(c) and N.J.S.A. 18A:7-8(j) – her reappointment contract was not enforceable until the Board submitted the contract for review and approval by the Executive County Superintendent (ECS); in March 2011, the ECS instructed the Board to reduce petitioner's salary from $146,192 to $135,000 for the 2011-2012 school year pursuant to the revised regulations, and the Board so notified petitioner of the forthcoming change in May 2011; and, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:23A-1.2, the applicable maximum salary for petitioner during the 2011-2012 school year is $135,000. Accordingly, the ALJ granted the respondent Board's cross motion for summary decision, and ordered the parties to draft a contract with a maximum salary of $135,000 for the current school year, with the maximum rising to $145,000 for the year beginning July 1, 2012, based on applicable enrollment numbers.

Upon careful and independent review, the Commissioner adopted the Initial Decision of the OAL as the final decision in this matter for the reasons stated therein.

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions and the Board's reply thereto – submitted in accordance with the provisions of N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 – were fully considered by the Commissioner in making his determination herein.

Petitioner's exceptions in essence recast and reiterate her arguments advanced before the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) below. As it is determined that such arguments were considered and addressed by the in ALJ in her Initial Decision, further elaboration on them here is unnecessary.

Upon full review and consideration, the Commissioner agrees that summary decision is appropriately granted to the Board as he concurs with the ALJ – for the reasons detailed in her decision – that: 1) the Commissioner had the authority to place a cap on Superintendents' salaries (Initial Decision p. 6-8); 2) the Board did not violate petitioner's contractual tenure rights by reducing her salary effective July 1, 2011 (Initial Decision p. 8-11; and 3) petitioner's applicable maximum salary as of July 1, 2011 was $135,000 and for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 2012 her applicable maximum salary will be $145,000.¹

Accordingly, the recommended decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter for the reasons well stated therein. It is hereby ORDERED that the parties draft a contract for petitioner with a maximum salary of $135,000 for the July 1, 2011 to June 30, 2012 fiscal year and a maximum salary of $145,000 for the period July 1, 2012 to June 30, 2015, and submit it for review and approval by the Executive County Superintendent in compliance with N.J.A.C. 6A:23A-3.1.

Record Closed: November 7, 2011

Decided: January 20, 2012

BEFORE LISA JAMES-BEAVERS, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner Diane Bacher seeks a declaratory ruling that she was reappointed as Superintendent by operation of law, to the position of Superintendent for the period of July 1, 2011 through June 1, 2015 at her current salary of $146,192, as a consequence of the respondent Board of Education of the Township of Mansfield's (Board's) failure to give her one year's notice of non-renewal pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:17-20.1.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Ms. Bacher filed a petition for declaratory relief with the Commissioner of Education, Bureau of Controversies and Disputes on June 16, 2011. On July 1, 2011, respondent filed a brief and certification in answer to the petition. On July 6, 2011, the Bureau transmitted to and filed the case with the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for hearing pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. The parties set forth a briefing schedule having determined that there were no material facts in dispute and that the case could be decided on cross motions for summary decision. The parties agreed to file cross motions by October 28, 2011 and reply briefs by November 7, 2011. After receipt of all reply briefs, I closed the record.

STIPULATION OF FACTS

The parties have stipulated to the following undisputed material facts, which I FIND as FACT.

Bacher, (hereinafter "petitioner"), was appointed by the respondent, Board of Education of the Township of Mansfield (hereinafter the "Board") as Superintendent of Schools under an Employment Contract with a term beginning July 1, 2007, and ending June 30, 2011. (Exhibit A).
2. Since July 1, 2007, petitioner has served (and continues to serve) as the Board's Superintendent of Schools.
3. Paragraph 18 of the parties' Employment Contract states:

It is understood that the BOARD shall be required to give written notice to the SUPERINTENDENT by no later than one (1) year in advance of the termination date in the event it elects not to re-appoint or renew the SUPERINTENDENT'S contract as SUPERINTENDENT in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:17-20.1. (Exhibit B).

4. At no time prior to June 30, 2010, did the Board give written notice to petitioner that it would not reappoint her as Superintendent of Schools.
5. At no time prior to June 30, 2010, did the parties enter into another written employment contract.
6. At no time since June 30, 2010, have the parties entered into another written employment contract.
7. Petitioner's salary as Superintendent of Schools for the 2010-2011 school year was $146,192.
8. On or about August 27, 2010, Rochelle Hendricks was appointed by Governor Chris Christie as Acting Commissioner of Education.
9. CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The rules governing motions for summary decision in an OAL matter are set forth at N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5. These provisions mirror the language of R. 4:46-2 and the Supreme Court's decision in Judson v. Peoples Bank and Trust Co. of Westfield, 17 N.J. 67 (1954). Under N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b), the determination to grant summary judgment should be based on the papers presented as well as any affidavits, which may have been filed with the application. In order for the adverse, i.e., the non-moving party to prevail in such an application, responding affidavits must be submitted showing that there is indeed a genuine issue of fact, which can only be determined in an evidentiary proceeding. The Supreme Court in Brill v. Guardian Life Insurance Co. of American, 142 N.J. 520, 523 (1995), set the standard to be applied when deciding a motion for summary judgment. Therein the Court stated:

The determination whether there exists a genuine issue with respect to a material fact challenged requires the Motion Judge to consider whether the competent evidential materials presented, when viewed in the light most favorable to the non-moving party... are sufficient to permit a rational fact finder to resolve the alleged disputed issue in favor of the non-moving party.

If both parties agree that only a legal dispute is presented and wish the matter to be resolved by summary decision, cross motions for summary decision must be made. 37 New Jersey Practice, Administrative Law and Practice, §5.18 at 258 (LeFelt, Miragliotta and Prunty) (rev. 2d ed. 2000). The administrative regulation is essentially the same as the New Jersey Court Rule that provides for summary judgment; hence, precedent relating to summary judgment is sufficiently analogous to apply to administrative proceedings.

In the present case, the parties filed cross-motions for summary decision and submitted a stipulation of facts on which their briefs rely. It is undisputed that petitioner was bound by a four-year employment contract that began on July 1, 2007, and was set to expire on June 30, 2011. Likewise, the parties agree that petitioner was deemed reappointed by operation of statute for another four-year term beginning July 1, 2011. Petitioner contends that respondent's decision to reduce her salary from $146,192 to $135,000 effective July 1, 2011, was a violation of her tenure rights because the terms of her initial contract had automatically renewed pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:17-20.1. Respondent argues, however, that the terms of the renewed contract are subject to approval of the Executive County Superintendent (ECS) in accordance with the salary cap amendments, effective February 07, 2011. Petitioner further argues that the Commissioner was without authority to adopt regulations limiting salaries.

For reasons discussed herein, I CONCLUDE that there are no material facts in dispute and the only issues for decision are questions of law. Therefore, this matter is ripe for summary decision.

I. Does the Commissioner of Education Have the Authority to Place a Cap on Superintendents' Salaries?

On or about November 1, 2010, Acting Commissioner Hendricks proposed regulations to amend N.J.A.C. 6A:23A-1.2 and -3.1 and establish a range of maximum salaries for superintendents in public school districts depending primarily on the number of students enrolled in the school district. Petitioner contends that the salary cap regulations that became effective on February 07, 2011, are inconsistent with the legislatively delegated authority conferred to the Commissioner of Education.

The Legislature expressly authorized the Commissioner of Education to adopt standards by which an ECS will review and approve a superintendent's contract. N.J.S.A. 18A:7-8(j) (Each ECS shall "review and approve, according to the standards adopted by the commissioner, all employment contracts for superintendents[.]"); N.J.S.A. 18A:7-16; 43 N.J.R. 284(a)(comment 11); N.J. Ass'n of Sch. Adm'rs v. Comm'r of Educ., 414 N.J. Super. 530, 559 (App. Div. 2010), certif. granted, 2011 N.J. Lexis 526 (2011). The Legislature delegated this power to the Commissioner to curb excessive administrative costs, preserve public funds for thorough and efficient education, and in response to concerns that school districts throughout the state were "incapable of effectively negotiating superintendent contracts on behalf of their constituents in a fiscally responsible manner." 43 N.J.R. 284(a)(comment 1); See also N.J. Ass'n of Sch. Bus. Officials v. Davy, 409 N.J. Super. 467, 490 (App. Div. 2009) (in order to preserve public funds for thorough and efficient education by limiting excessive administrative costs, the Legislature has authorized the Commissioner to adopt standards prospectively limiting the award of excessive benefits to school administrators).

A regulation will be set aside only if it is arbitrary, capricious, transgresses the statute it purports to effectuate, or frustrates the policy embodied in it. N.J. Ass'n v. Comm'r., supra, at 546. The party challenging the rulemaking has the burden of proof. Ibid. In N.J. Ass'n v. Comm'r., the New Jersey Association of School Administrators (NJASA) challenged regulations adopted by the Commissioner in 2008. Particularly, NJASA challenged the addition of N.J.A.C. 6A:23A-3.1(e)(1),(3),(4),(5),(6),(7),(8),(9), and (11).¹ Petitioners argued that the Commissioner was without authority to promulgate the challenged regulations. The Appellate Division disagreed and unanimously held that the regulations at issue were promulgated in accordance with the Commissioner's authority. The Appellate Division found that "[t]he Legislature specifically authorized the Commissioner, through the office of the executive county superintendent, to review contracts under the school laws The regulations at issue were promulgated in response to that statutory authorization.” N.J. Ass’n v. Comm’r, supra, at 559. This included N.J.A.C. 6A:23A-3.1(e)(1), which required that a superintendent’s contract was comparable in salary, benefits, and other emoluments to contracts of similarly credentialed superintendents in the region. N.J.A.C. 6A:23A-3.1(e)(1).

N.J.A.C. 6A:23A-3.1(e)(1) limits a board’s discretion in salary negotiations, curb administrative costs, and gives the ECS authority, similarly to N.J.A.C. 6A:23A-3.1(e)(2), to deny a contract based on an excessive annual salary. Although N.J. Ass’n v. Comm’r, supra, is currently pending before the Supreme Court, there is currently no authority to the contrary. According to the court, this regulation was rationally related to a legitimate state interest in reducing the level at which spending has increased. N.J. Ass’n v. Comm’r, supra, at 556. Therefore, the salary cap regulations were within the Commissioner’s authority to adopt.

II. Was the Board’s Decision to Reduce Petitioner’s Salary a Violation of Her Contractual Tenure Rights?

Our Legislature has set forth that unless a board of education provides timely notice of non-renewal, a superintendent will be automatically reappointed “at the conclusion of the term of the initial contract[.]” N.J.S.A. 18A:17-20.1. The statute goes on to provide that the length of term will be equal to the initial contract, unless the board expressly reappoints the superintendent, by contract, to a different term. Ibid.

In the present case, petitioner was employed pursuant to a four-year contract that commenced on July 1, 2007, and was set to expire on June 30, 2011 (Exhibit B to Stipulated Facts). The negotiated terms of the initial contract required the Board to provide petitioner with written notice at least one year prior to June 30, 2011, if it wished to separate her from service in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:17-20.1. It is stipulated that the Board neither provided petitioner with written notice, nor reappointed her, by contract, to a different term before the expiration of the initial contract. Accordingly, petitioner by operation of statute was deemed reappointed for another four-year term commencing on July 1, 2011, and ending on June 30, 2015 (Reappointment).

Petitioner next contends that by operation of statute, the terms of the initial contract, including the $146,192 annual salary, "[were] carried forward and applicable" through the period of her reappointment. In support, petitioner cites two cases: Howard Jr. v. East Orange Bd. of Educ., EDU 7553-00 & EDU 9906-00 (Consolidated), Initial Decision, (April 04, 2001), aff'd, Comm'r (June 05, 2001), aff'd, State Bd. (November 07, 2001) <<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html>>, aff'd, A-1699-01T1 (App. Div. October 11, 2002); and Solomon v. Passaic County Educ. Servs. Comm'n, EDU 9721-02, Initial Decision, (July 15, 2005), aff'd with modifications, Comm'r (August 22, 2005), aff'd, State Bd. (January 06, 2006) <<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html>>. Petitioner is correct that the cases support the proposition that the terms of an initial contract are carried over, by operation of statute, into the succeeding term. In Howard, a board of education failed to provide the superintendent with notice of non-renewal in a timely manner. After finding that petitioner was reappointed by operation of statute, the Commissioner added that "the provisions of the [initial contract] renewed by operation of statute, including the 5% salary increases specified in the contract[.]" Howard, supra, at Comm'r 22. In Solomon, the board of education likewise failed to provide notice of non-renewal in a timely manner. The Commissioner affirmed the ALJ's conclusion that the petitioner must be reappointed to a new contract "pursuant to the same terms and conditions as contained in the previous contract." Solomon, supra, at Initial Decision. For purposes of binding a board of education, Howard and Solomon stand for the proposition that where the board, by its own doing, fails to provide timely notice of non-renewal, (and where the terms of reappointment are not renegotiated prior to the expiration of the initial contract), the terms of the initial contract, including the annual salary, will roll-over by operation of statute.

Further, petitioner contends that once the terms of the initial contract renewed by operation of statute, the Board was precluded from reducing her salary from $146,192 to $135,000, effective July 1, 2011, unless they certified tenure charges. The law provides that a board, "during the term of any employment contract," may not reduce a superintendent's compensation except for inefficiency, incapacity, conduct unbecoming, or other just cause. N.J.S.A. 18A:17-20.2.

The Board contends in its brief in support of the Motion for Summary Decision that the Howard and Solomon decisions pre-dated the enactment of the salary cap regulations and, "most importantly, did not require renewal of a contract containing terms and conditions that [were] inconsistent with New Jersey law." (Respondent's brief at 6). The Board further argues that the language in the tenure statute must be read in pari materia with N.J.S.A. 18A:7-8(j) and N.J.A.C. 6A:23A-3.1(a). The Board contends that petitioner's tenure argument fails to account for the fact that contracts are not enforceable, and therefore contractual tenure will not attach, until the contract is reviewed and approved by the ECS. See N.J.A.C. 6A:23A-3.1(c); N.J.S.A. 18A:7-8(j). This includes contracts for "superintendents reappointed pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:17-20.1." N.J.A.C. 6A:23A-3.1(a).

Petitioner points out in her reply to respondent's cross-motion that the above quoted language was added as part of the February 7, 2011, salary cap regulations. To that end, petitioner urges this tribunal to find that the ECS was without authority to review these types of contracts prior to February. Petitioner's argument, however, is without merit. Pursuant to enabling Legislation, the ECS is required to review and approve, according to the standards adopted by the Commissioner, all employment contracts for superintendents of schools. N.J.S.A. 18A:7-8(j). Further, 42 N.J.R. 2524(a), which accompanied the salary cap regulations, explains that the Commissioner amended N.J.A.C. 6A:23A-3.1(a) "to clarify that the Executive County Superintendents shall review the contract of any superintendent that has been reappointed when a district board of education has not given the requisite notice of intent to a superintendent pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:17-20.1." 42 N.J.R. 2524(a). To that end, the enforceability of petitioner's contract has always been subject to the review and approval of the ECS.

Petitioner argues in the alternative that she was not reappointed on July 1, 2011, but on the day the Board failed to take action to provide her with timely notice of non-renewal. Thus, she argues, effective the close of the day on June 30, 2010, she was reappointed to another contracted term of four years beginning July 1, 2011, and expiring July 1, 2015. Petitioner's theory, however, does not comport with the law or regulations. N.J.S.A. 18A:17-20.1 is clear that a superintendent is deemed reappointed "at the conclusion of the term of the initial contract," not any time prior. N.J.S.A. 18A:17-20.1. The June 2010 date was the date by which petitioner was assured of reappointment, but not the date the reappointment actually took effect. Thus, for purpose of determining petitioner's tenure rights, petitioner was reappointed on July 1, 2011, after the salary cap regulations became effective.

A "contract is unenforceable until the board of education submits the contract for review and receives approval from the ECS." N.J.A.C. 6A:23A-3.1(c); N.J.S.A. 18A:7-8(j). This, of course, includes contracts that were automatically renewed by operation of N.J.S.A. 18A:17-20.1. N.J.A.C. 6A:23A-3.1(a). It is undisputed that the terms of the four (4) year roll-over contract, effective July 1, 2011, were never approved by the ECS. To the contrary, on March 21, 2011, before petitioner's original contract expired, ECS Margaret J. Nicolosi instructed respondent to reduce petitioner's salary from $146,192 to $135,000 for the 2011-2012 school year. This directive was in compliance with N.J.A.C. 6A:23A-3.1, which required all contracts of superintendents, including those "reappointed pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:17-20.1" to not exceed the maximum salary guidelines set forth in N.J.A.C. 6A:23A-1.2. On May 10, 2011, respondent notified petitioner that effective July 1, 2011, the date of her reappointment, her salary would be reduced to $135,000. Petitioner contends that this reduction in compensation flies in the face of her contractual tenure rights. Tenure protections, however, only attach to enforceable contracts. Petitioner's contract was not enforceable. Consequently, I CONCLUDE that the reduction in petitioner's salary was not in violation of her tenure rights.

III. What is the Applicable Maximum Salary?

Because I have concluded that the Commission had the authority to cap superintendent salaries and it was not a violation of petitioner's tenure rights to reduce petitioner's salary in line with the salary cap regulations, the question becomes what was her appropriate salary under the regulations. The parties stipulated that the enrollment figures changed from May 2010 to October 2011. According to N.J.A.C. 6A:23A-1.2, the maximum salary corresponds with the enrollment figures provided by the district in the Application for School State Aid (ASSA) on the prior October 15. N.J.A.C. 6A:23A-1.2 (emphasis added). The regulation allows for a maximum salary of $135,000 for districts with student enrollment between 251-750 and a maximum salary of $145,000 for districts with student enrollment between 751-1500. On May 10, 2011, the Board notified petitioner that her salary would be reduced to $135,000 effective July 1, 2011, because as of May 10, 2011, "current enrollment" was 719 students. (Exhibit F, attached to the Stipulation of Facts). Notably, the stipulated facts do not support a finding that the Board relied on student enrollment provided in their October 15, 2010, ASSA as instructed by N.J.A.C. 6A:23A-1.2. Consequently, petitioner should be awarded back pay if more than 750 students were reported in respondent's October 15, 2010 ASSA. Such a circumstance is unlikely, however, and petitioner has not argued it. Rather, petitioner argues that she is entitled, at a minimum, to $145,000 effective July 1, 2011, because 760 students were enrolled as of October 15, 2011. This proclamation would be a misreading of the regulation. The relevant date for purposes of determining petitioner's annual salary effective July 1, 2011, is October 15, 2010, not October 15, 2011. However, there is nothing preventing the Board from granting her the maximum salary of $145,000 for the year beginning July 1, 2012, based on the October 2011 figure.

Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the applicable maximum salary for petitioner as of July 1, 2011, was $135,000. I further CONCLUDE that the applicable maximum salary for the year beginning July 1, 2012 will be $145,000.

ORDER

As set forth above, I CONCLUDE the Commissioner had the authority to impose regulations imposing caps on superintendent's salaries; the Board did not violate petitioner's tenure rights by reducing her salary effective July 1, 2011; and petitioner's applicable maximum salary for the year beginning July 1, 2011 was $135,000, although the maximum rises to $145,000 for the year beginning July 1, 2012. For the foregoing reasons, it is hereby ORDERED that petitioner's cross motion for summary decision be DENIED and respondent's cross motion for summary decision be GRANTED. It is further ORDERED that the parties draft a contract with a maximum salary of $135,000 for the fiscal year from July 1, 2011 to June 30, 2012, and a maximum salary of $145,000 from July 1, 2012 to June 30, 2015, and submit it for approval by the ECS in compliance with the salary cap regulations, N.J.A.C. 6A:23A-3.1.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP	:	DECISION
OF WEST ORANGE, ESSEX COUNTY,	:
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner appealed the determination of the respondent Board that her daughter, K.H., is not eligible for a free public education in the West Orange school district during the 2011-2012 school year. Petitioner contended that she and her daughter are domiciled in West Orange and produced documentation including a driver's license and a PSE&G bill which both bore a West Orange address. The Board asserted that petitioner was not domiciled in West Orange, but failed to produce documentation that petitioner was living anywhere else.

The ALJ found that: based on the testimony and documentation, petitioner and her daughter live in an apartment in West Orange with petitioner's spouse, W.S.; the lease for the apartment is in W.S.'s name; no evidence was presented to show that J.A.E., K.H., or W.S. reside or have resided elsewhere during the 2011-2012 school year; and J.A.E. and W.S. presented credible testimony in this matter. Accordingly, the ALJ concluded that the petitioner has met her burden of proof that she, her spouse and her daughter reside in West Orange and therefore K.H. is entitled to a free public education in West Orange schools. Further, the ALJ concluded that there are no grounds for a counterclaim for reimbursement of tuition. The ALJ ordered respondent to re-enroll K.H. in its schools.

Upon a full and independent review, the Commissioner concurred with the findings and conclusion of the ALJ. Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL was adopted as the final decision in this case.

This synopsis is not part of the Commissioner's decision. It has been prepared for the convenience of the reader. It has been neither reviewed nor approved by the Commissioner.

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. The parties did not file exceptions to the Initial Decision.

Upon full review and consideration, the Commissioner concurs with the Administrative Law Judge that petitioner has met her burden of establishing that she and minor child K.H. are domiciliaries of West Orange, thereby entitling K.H. to a free public education in that District's schools.

Accordingly, the recommended decision of the OAL is adopted for the reasons expressed therein. The Board is hereby ordered to continue K.H.'s enrollment in its school system, free of charge, as long as there is no change in circumstances that would alter her entitlement.

Stephen J. Christiano, Esq., for respondent West Orange Board of Education

Record Closed: January 10, 2012

Decided: January 30, 2012

BEFORE JAMES J. GERAGHTY, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner J.A.E., on behalf of minor child K.H., challenges the Respondent, West Orange Board of Education's September 20, 2011 declination of enrollment of K.H. without further proof of residency in West Orange. R-2. In addition, the notice stated that if she challenges the decision, fails to sustain her burden of proof, or if the matter is dismissed for any other reason, she may be assessed tuition for the period of ineligible attendance. R-2. She requested a hearing and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on November 15, 2011. Respondent answered R-4. The hearing was held January 10, 2012 and the record closed that day.

STATEMENT OF THE ISSUE

The issue is whether petitioner has established by a preponderance of the credible evidence that her daughter K.H. resides with her on Northfield Avenue in West Orange, New Jersey.

FACTUAL BACKGROUND

Petitioner J.A.E. testified that she moved into an apartment on Northfield Avenue in West Orange, New Jersey with her spouse (unmarried) W.S. who is the lessee. She attempted to register her daughter K.H. in the West Orange School system for the 2009-2010 school year. The School Board requested information and she failed to submit the documents. However, the child was not dis-enrolled.

On September 27, 2011 petitioner attempted again to enroll her daughter K.H. P-2. The Board requested documents substantiating residency including "statement of the landlord." Previously the petitioner submitted a "statement of the landlord" signed by W.S. He is not the owner of the property nor an agent of the landlord. R-3.

The school district registrar Gregory Brennan testified that his staff investigated K.H.'s residency. R-1. The investigator Mike Zarro visited the subject property on November 1, 2010, December 2, 2010, and February 1, 2011. On the first occasion, J.A.E. answered the door and stated that her daughter was at her grandmother's because J.A.E.'s car was disabled and she was unable to drive her niece to school. She had to take two buses to get to work. On the second occasion, there was simply no response at 7:15 a.m. J.A.E. later called the registrar's office and explained that she was at the doctors. She also stated that since her daughter was not attending the school, there was no need for her and her daughter to be at the residence. On the third visit, there was simply no response. Mr. Brennan's testimony confirmed the report that he submitted to the Superintendent. R-1. There was no surveillance for the current school year.

A "notice of rent increase effective September 1, 2010" addressed to W.S. by the 97 Northfield Avenue Partners, LLC included a "renewal of apartment lease" which stated that the rent was increasing $25 a month for a new rent of $875 per month. This renewal would expire August 31, 2011. P-1. W.S. was the only party named on the notice. Petitioner said the landlord was someone named Lazar and that he refused to sign a statement identifying the parties occupying the premises. No evidence was presented regarding any other residence for J.A.E. or K.H. Petitioner testified that K.H.'s natural father has not been involved in her life for several years and pays no child support. However, she refused to answer respondent's counsel's inquiries about him.

Petitioner submitted a Comcast bill for W.S. at the West Orange address P-3, a copy of her drivers' license with the West Orange address P-4, and an August 2011 PSE&G bill, addressed to petitioner at the West Orange address. P-5.

No evidence was submitted by the Board that petitioner and/or her daughter lived elsewhere than at the West Orange address.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Based on the testimony and documents of record, I FIND:

1. P.M., W.S. and K.H. reside in an apartment in West Orange, New Jersey.

2. There is no evidence that any of the parties identified in paragraph one reside or have resided elsewhere during the 2011-2012 school year.
3. W.S. and J.A.E. testified credibly.

LEGAL AUTHORITY

Persons over five and under twenty years of age are entitled to attend public schools without charge if they are domiciled within the school district in which the school is located. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1. A student is domiciled within a school district:

1. . . . when he or she is living with a parent or legal guardian whose permanent home is located within the school district. A home is permanent when the parent or guardian intends to return to it when absent and has no present intent of moving from it, notwithstanding the existence of homes or residences elsewhere.

4. A student is domiciled in the school district when his or her parent or legal guardian resides within the district on an all-year-round basis for one year or more, notwithstanding the existence of a domicile elsewhere.

N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a)1,4.

There is a substantial body of precedent on domicile. Our Appellant Division has explained:

Domicile is the relation which the law creates between an individual and a particular locality or country. In a strict legal sense, the domicile of a person is the place where he has his true, fixed, permanent home and principal establishment, and to which, whenever he is absent, he has the intention of returning, and from which he has no present intention of moving . . . it is the place with which he has a settled connection for certain legal purposes, either because his home is there or because that place is assigned to him by the law And every person, in all circumstances and conditions, is deemed to have a domicile somewhere; and, in general, a domicile once established continues until superseded by a new domicile, and the old domicile is not lost until a new one is acquired . . .

A person may have several residences or places of abode but he can have only one domicile at a time. Domicile of choice is essentially a question of residence and intention - of factum and animus. It involves an exercise of volition And he may have his residence in one place, while his domicile is in another There are certain legal rights and privileges which pertain to "residence" rather than to "domicile." One's "home" may be relinquished and abandoned, while one's "domicile" upon which may depend certain civil rights and duties, may in legal contemplation remain." Kurilla v. Roth, 132 N.J.L., 213, 215 (Sup. Ct. 1944) and authorities there cited.

To effect a change of domicile there must be a voluntary change of residence; the residence at the place chosen for the domicile must be actual; to the factum of residence there must be added animus manendi; and that place is the domicile of a person in which he has voluntarily fixed his habitation, not for a mere temporary or special purpose, but with a present intention of making it his home, unless, or until something uncertain or unexpected shall happen to induce him to adopt some other place as his permanent home. Harral v. Harral, 39 N.J. Eq. 279 (E & A 1884).

A change of residence for a special purpose such as taxation benefits, or a period of seasonal residence and obedience to the demands of health, does not necessarily amount to a change of domicile. The burden of proof to establish that a change of domicile has occurred rests upon the party asserting it. In re Michelsohn's Will, 136 N.J. Eq. 387 (Prerog. 1944).

Domicile is factual, and each case must be evaluated and determined by its own facts and circumstances.

Cromwell v. Neeld, 15 N.J. Super. 296 (App. Div. 1951).

The courts have established criteria to determine which residence constitutes a person's domicile, to wit: (1) physical characteristics of each residence, (2) the time spent and things done in each residence, (3) other persons found in each residence, (4) the person's mental attitude about each residence, and (5) whether, when absent, the person has the intention to return. Mercadante v. City of Paterson, 111 N.J. Super. 35 (Ch. Div. 1970), aff'd, 58 N.J. 112 (1971). Thus, the courts seek evidence of a person's intent by reference to "indicia of domicile." F.P. o/b/o N.P. and S.P., Petitioner v. Board of Education of Point Pleasant Beach, Ocean County, Respondent, OAL Docket No. EDU 6951-98 (Commissioner of Education April 13, 1999) citing Matter of Unanue, 225 N.J. Super. 326 (Law Div. 1991).

A school board may recover tuition from the parents of child found ineligible to attend a school in its district. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(6)(2). The tuition is 1/180th of the total annual per pupil cost to the local district multiplied by the number of days of ineligible attendance. Ibid.

ANALYSIS

Petitioner adduced evidence that her and her daughter's domicile is the West Orange apartment. Both she and her spouse testified consistently that they moved into the apartment together, had not resided elsewhere, that petitioner's daughter was part of their household, that she did not have another residence, and that the child visited her grandmother occasionally on weekends.

Petitioner also adduced her driver's license, and Comcast and PSE&G bills issued to either petitioner or her spouse showing the West Orange address. There is no evidence that any of the family unit members resided in another county even temporarily. Petitioner did not produce a letter from the actual landlord, a corporation, confirming the residents of the apartment in question. Also, the Board's surveillance on three occasions in 2010 and 2011 during which the minor was not seen leaving or entering the abode militated against petitioner. However, the Board never averred or produced evidence that petitioner and her daughter lived outside of West Orange. Accordingly, the preponderance of the credible evidence weighs in favor of the petitioner. Any gaps could be rectified by interviewing the landlord's representative.

CONCLUSION

Based on the foregoing findings of fact and legal authority, I CONCLUDE that petitioner has met her burden of proof that she, her spouse, and her daughter reside at the subject West Orange apartment and are therefore in the West Orange School District. I further CONCLUDE that there are no grounds for a tuition counterclaim for reimbursement. This ID is based on the assumption that were the Board to interview a landlord representative, that person would not contradict any of the involved findings.

DISPOSITION AND ORDER

Based on the foregoing findings of fact and conclusion of law, I decide this matter in favor of the petitioner, grant her petition, deny the Board's counterclaim for tuition reimbursement, and ORDER the subject minor re-enrolled in the West Orange Schools.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

INITIAL DECISION

SYNOPSIS

The controversy herein involves five audits conducted by the respondent Department on Archway's accounts for the school years from 1994-95 through 1998-99, in which the Department disallowed approximately $9 million in non-allowable costs and expenses and ordered these tuition overcharges returned to the sending districts. Archway appealed this conclusion.

The Office of Administrative Law (OAL) has to date issued three Initial Decisions in this case. In September 2008, the ALJ made recommendations regarding resolution of legal issues in connection with the five audits, but sent the case back to the Commissioner for computation and presentation of final calculations as to the disallowances; the Commissioner adopted the ALJ's recommendations regarding resolution of legal issues, but remanded the case back to the OAL with a directive for the ALJ to make the necessary calculations. On remand, the ALJ determined that it was appropriate to initially resolve only the first audit year as it will have a carryover effect on the remaining audits, and issued a Partial Initial Decision ordering Archway to reimburse the sending districts the amount of their overpayments for the 1994-95 school year. The Commissioner adopted the decision, ordered Archway to return a total of $2,315,855.51 to the sending districts, and returned the matter to the OAL in order to make the requisite calculations and recommended determination of monies due and owing for the remaining audit years. Archway appealed this decision to the Appellate Division of the Superior Court, which determined that – as all claims as to all parties in this consolidated action had yet to be resolved – Archway's appeal as a final agency determination was premature. In February 2011, the ALJ issued a second Partial Initial Decision, which addresses the amount of monies due and owing by Archway for the 1995-96, 1996-97 and 1997-98 school years, but left unresolved the amount due and owing for the 1998-99 school year. The Commissioner declined to review the second Partial Initial Decision, returned the matter to the OAL for resolution of the issues surrounding the last remaining audit year and for issuance of a final decision, and requested that the ALJ clearly present, in the final Initial Decision, the exact calculated monetary figure due and owing by Archway for each of the five audit years. The ALJ transmitted her proposed final decision in this matter on December 15, 2011, which did not include the aforementioned calculations for the five audit years.

The Commissioner determined that he must reject the ALJ's proposed final decision and remand the matter once again to the OAL for revision commensurate with his prior requests for the initial decision to include clear final monetary figures due and owing by Archway for each of the five audit years. In so determining, the Commissioner noted that the Administrative Procedures Act requires that a recommended decision be filed "in such form that it may be adopted as the decision in the case." N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(c).

The petitioner, Archway Programs (Archway), is a non-profit corporation which operates a private school for the handicapped (PSH) authorized to educate handicapped public school students pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:46-14(g), and receives tuition from sending districts commensurate with its actual cost per pupil as determined by a certified audit. Pursuant to governing regulations, certain specified items may not be included in the computation of a tuition rate chargeable to the sending districts. The controversy herein involves five audits conducted by the respondent Department of Education (DOE) on Archway's accounts for the school years from 1994-95 through 1998-99, in which the DOE disallowed approximately $9 million in non-allowable costs and expenses and ordered these tuition overcharges returned to the sending districts. Archway appealed this conclusion. In September 2008, the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) issued an Initial Decision recommending resolution of a myriad of legal issues concerning methodologies and allowable costs to be utilized in connection with the five contested audits, and further recommended that the Commissioner calculate and present final mathematical calculations as to disallowances based upon these resolutions. In a final decision dated December 5, 2008, the Commissioner adopted the ALJ's recommendations regarding resolution of the legal issues and methodologies, but rejected the proposal regarding computation and presentation of final mathematical calculations. The Commissioner remanded the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for such further proceedings as were necessary to allow the ALJ to conclude these consolidated cases by making the requisite calculations and recommended determination of monies due and owing.

On remand, the ALJ found that it was appropriate to initially resolve only the audit for the 1994-95 school year – and to reserve recommendation on the remaining years – as resolution of this particular audit would have a carryover effect on the remaining later audits, and ordered that the DOE prepare a new audit of the 1994-95 school year. Based on that audit, and the fact that Archway indicated no objections to the mathematical calculations contained therein, the ALJ determined that the revised DOE audit dated June 25, 2010 includes the amount that petitioner is obligated to return to the sending districts, and she issued a Partial Initial Decision ordering Archway to reimburse these districts the amount of their overpayments for the 1994-95 school year.

By decision dated October 28, 2010 (Commissioner Decision #453-10R), the Commissioner adopted the Partial Initial Decision of the OAL as the final decision as to the 1994-95 school year, and ordered Archway to return – within 60 days of that decision – a total of $2,315,855.51 to the districts which sent students to its PSH during the 1994-95 school year. The matter was returned to the OAL for further action deemed necessary by the ALJ in order to make the requisite calculations and recommended determination of monies due and owing for the remaining audit years. Archway appealed the Commissioner's October 28, 2010 decision to the Appellate Division of the Superior Court, which determined that – as all claims as to all parties in this consolidated action had yet to be resolved below – Archway's appeal as a final agency determination was premature.

On February 10, 2011, the Agency received a second Partial Initial Decision from the OAL which purported to resolve the amounts of monies due and owing by Archway for the 1995-96, 1996-97 and 1997-98 school years, leaving yet unresolved monies due and owing for the 1998-99 school year. Exceptions and reply exceptions to that decision were duly filed by Archway and the Department, respectively.

The Commissioner upon review – pursuant to the authority granted him under N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(e) – declined to review the second Partial Initial Decision of the OAL as he found that immediate review of this decision – which purportedly resolved final calculations for only three of the four remaining audit years, and in light of the prior decision of the Appellate Division – would not serve to avoid unnecessary litigation or expense. The Commissioner, therefore, returned this matter to the OAL for resolution of the issues surrounding the last remaining audit year in this contested case and for issuance of a final Initial Decision in this consolidated matter, reserving review of the ALJ's February 10, 2011 decision until the end of the contested case. The Commissioner, additionally, again requested that the ALJ's final Initial Decision in this matter clearly present the exact calculated monetary figure due and owing by Archway for each of the five audit years at issue.

On December 15, 2011, the ALJ transmitted to the Commissioner what she proposes is her final decision in this matter. The Commissioner is constrained to reject this decision without review and to remand this matter to the OAL for revision commensurate with his prior requests in this regard.¹ Throughout the protracted proceedings in this consolidated matter – starting with the Commissioner’s first decision on December 4, 2008 – the Commissioner has made it abundantly clear that he was requesting the ALJ to make the requisite calculations of monies due and owing to its sending districts by Archway for each of the audit years at issue. Notwithstanding that the ALJ elected to complete this task by a series of decisions covering individual audit years, it has always been contemplated that her final decision in this case would tie such various partial decisions together in a comprehensive decision which conclusively presented the necessary totals for each of the audit years, along with a final total of all monies due. The Commissioner finds that – given the nature of Archway’s petitions of appeal in this matter, and the dictates of the Administrative Procedure Act which require that a recommended decision shall be filed “in such form that it may be adopted as the decision in the case” (N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(c)) – the final decision of the OAL in this regard should result in recommendations which resolve the entire contested case, i.e., the adjudication of the involved rights, entitlements and obligations of Archway. Therefore, the Commissioner requests that the ALJ’s final decision in this matter contain in the body of her decision – by presentation, not by way of incorporation through the attachment of charts prepared by others – her recommendation as to the appropriate disallowances to all of the schedules and other adjustments for each of the five audit years at issue; additionally, the Commissioner requests a recommended finding as to the amount of money to be returned by Archway to the sending public school districts for each audit year, along with the recommended final total amount of money due and owing by Archway.

¹ In light of the Commissioner’s determination here, review of petitioner’s exceptions to the December 15, 2011 decision and respondent’s reply thereto will be deferred until the end of the contested case.

Accordingly, the recommended decision of the OAL is rejected and this matter is hereby remanded to the OAL for revision as indicated in this decision.

Record Closed: November 25, 2011

Decided: December 15, 2011

BEFORE BEATRICE S. TYLUTKI, ALJ t/a:

This matter concerns the December 5, 2008 remand by the Commissioner of Education (Commissioner) to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) of that portion of the consolidated case (OAL Dkt. Nos. 6956-00, 8646-00, 4834-01, 4607-03, 4608-03 and 427-06), which deals with the audits by the New Jersey State Department of Education (DOE) of the records of Archway Programs, Inc. (Archway) for its private school for the handicapped (PSH) for the 1994-95, 1995-96, 1996-97, 1997-98 and 1998-99 school years (audits in issue).

The total initial decision for this matter, EDU 10474-08, consists of two partial initial decisions issued on September 15, 2010 and February 7, 2011, and this decision.

Archway is a non-profit human services organization that provides various educational, social, psychological and residential services for developmentally disabled and mentally and physically challenged adults and children. It has both PSH programs and non-PSH programs. The PSH programs provide special education services to public school children, ages 3 to 21, with special needs. The number of school districts and the number of students sent to Archway varies from year to year. Archway's PSH programs are subject to state audits.

Archway's PSH programs are operated at two locations, a campus in Atco, Camden County and another campus in Washington Township, Gloucester County.

It was agreed at the hearing in the consolidated case that the former regulations that determined tuition rates for PSHs that were in effect during the years covered by the audits in issue were applicable in the consolidated case. These regulations were previously codified at N.J.A.C. 6:20-4.1 et seq. and were introduced into evidence in the consolidated case as J-1 and R-8. These regulations are also applicable in this matter.

In the final decision as to the consolidated case, the Commissioner adopted the conclusions in my September 2, 2008 initial decision as to the various schedules contained in the five audits in issue, but rejected my recommendation that the Commissioner calculate the final amounts that Archway must return to the sending school districts for the five school years. The Commissioner required that there be a procedure in the OAL to compute the revised audits for the five school years consistent with my initial decision and the Commissioner's final decision.

The remanded matter was transmitted to the OAL on December 5, 2008 for disposition pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15. I was assigned to the case.

I had a conference with the parties on January 7, 2009 regarding the remand. During the conference, I established a schedule whereby the DOE was to submit a recalculation of the 5 audits to determine the exact amounts that Archway had to return to the sending school districts. Archway would have the opportunity to review these recalculations and submit its objections, if any. Based on the filings by the parties, I would then decide if a hearing was necessary or that I could make a determination as to the amounts that Archway had to return to the sending school districts based on the written submissions.

I received the DOE's revised audits on January 23, 2009. Archway filed a response dated April 23, 2009 and listed 21 objections to the DOE's revised audits. I had a telephone conference with the parties on May 7, 2009, and I gave the DOE the opportunity to file a response as to these objections, which I received on June 24, 2009. Also, I gave Archway the opportunity to file a reply, which it did on August 7, 2009.

I held settlement conferences with the parties, and we were able to resolve 19 of the objections raised by Archway. The unresolved objections were number 7, which applies to the 1994-95 school year audit, and number 19, which refers to the 1998-99 school year audit.

By letter dated September 1, 2009, I told the parties that I wanted them to submit briefs as to only Archway's Objection Number 7, and that initially I wanted only to resolve the 1994-95 audit. It was not disputed that the resolution of the 1994-95 school year audit will have a carryover effect on the later audits.

After receipt of briefs from the parties, I issued an Order on May 6, 2010, in which I reached a conclusion as to Objection Number 7. I ordered the DOE to prepare a new audit of the 1994-95 school year using the May 6, 2010 order and the settlements as to the other objections raised by Archway which relate to this audit. Archway would then have the opportunity to review the audit and could submit a response as to the mathematical calculations only.

I received a revised audit from the DOE on June 25, 2010. This audit includes the amounts that Archway is obligated to return to the school districts who sent students to Archway's PSH during the 1994-95 school year. By letter dated August 24, 2010, Archway indicated no objections to the mathematical calculations in this audit. I issued a partial initial decision as to this audit on September 15, 2010.

The Commissioner adopted my September 15, 2010 partial initial decision by a final decision dated October 28, 2010. Archway filed an appeal with the Appellate Division of the New Jersey Superior Court. On February 4, 2011, the Appellate Division decided that since all audits in issue had not been resolved, that the appeal was premature.

I ordered that the DOE prepare new audits as to the 1995-96, 1996-97 and 1997-98 school years consistent with my May 6, 2010 order and the settlements as to the other objections originally raised by Archway. Archway would then have the opportunity to review the audits and could submit a response as to the mathematical calculations only. Once this was resolved, I indicated I would issue another partial initial decision as to these audits.

I received the new audits for the 1995-96, 1996-97 and 1997-98 school years from the DOE, which include the amounts that Archway is obligated to return to the school districts who sent students to Archway's PSH during these school years. By letter dated January 24, 2011, Archway indicated no objections to the mathematical calculations in these audits. I issued a partial initial decision as to these audits on February 7, 2011.

The Commissioner on March 18, 2011 decided that a review of my February 7, 2011 partial initial decision would be nonproductive at that time and reserved the review until after there was an initial decision as to the fifth and final audit.

Thereafter, I told the parties that I wanted them to submit briefs as to Archway's Objection Number 19 which refers to the 1998-99 school year audit. After receipt of briefs from the parties, including a revised audit by the DOE, I issued an Order on July 18, 2011, in which I reached a conclusion as to Objection Number 19. I ordered that the DOE prepare a revision of its revised audit for the 1998-99 school year consistent with my July 18, 2011 order.

I had a telephone conference with the parties on October 28, 2011, at which time we reached an agreement as to certain captions to be used in the revised audit for the 1998-99 school year. On November 7, 2011, I received a new revised audit from the DOE for the 1998-99 school year, which includes the amounts that Archway is obligated to return to the school districts who sent students to Archway's PSH during the 1998-99 school year (Attachment A which is attached and incorporated herein).

By letter received on November 25, 2011, Archway indicated no objections to the mathematical calculations in the revised 1998-99 school year audit (Attachment B which is attached and incorporated herein).

I ORDER that Archway reimburse the sending school districts the amount of their overpayments for the 1994-95, 1995-96, 1996-97, 1997-98 and 1998-99 school years within sixty (60) days after the final decision in this matter.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended initial decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make final decisions in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this initial decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended initial decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended initial decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

The record of this matter, the proposed "Release" and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1, have been reviewed.

The Commissioner approves the settlement terms and adopts the Initial Decision as the final decision in this case, with the following observation. Section 2 of the Release references actions that have apparently already taken place, and have therefore preceded consideration of the settlement by the Commissioner of Education. The parties are reminded that a settlement of litigation before the Commissioner is not binding until the Commissioner approves same.

Accordingly, the Commissioner adopts the Initial Decision as the final decision in this case, providing that the parties have either successfully implemented the settlement terms, or have agreed upon mutually satisfactory alternate dates for the effectuation of same. Assuming the foregoing, the matter is hereby dismissed, subject to compliance with the terms of the settlement.

BEFORE SANDRA ANN ROBINSON, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on August 4, 2011, for resolution as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. Hearings were scheduled for November 1 and 2, 2011. During the pendency of the case at the OAL, the parties reached a tentative settlement. The terms of settlement were presented in a CONSENT ORDER that had the approval of the Fort Lee Board of Education (Board); by resolution the Board adopted it on November 7, 2011. However, the Acting Commissioner of Education reviewed the CONSENT ORDER and Remanded the document back to the OAL on January 17, 2012, for the following reasons:

1. The language in paragraphs 2 through 6 references "Actions that may have already taken place, thus preceding consideration of the settlement by the Commissioner of Education."
2. The language in paragraph 7 infers that, "The Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) seeks to retain jurisdiction of the matter in the event that a dispute arises regarding the district of residence of the minor children."
3. The petitioner's signature is required on the CONSENT ORDER, so as to perfect an agreement between the parties.

On January 26, 2012, counsel for the parties and the undersigned completed a conference for the purpose of discussing amendments of the initial CONSENT ORDER. Thereafter, on January 30, 2012, the parties agreed on the modifications as set forth in the attached AMENDED CONSENT ORDER.

FINDINGS AND CONCLUSION

I have reviewed the AMENDED CONSENT ORDER and I FIND:

1. The parties have amended paragraphs 2 through 6 of the initial CONSENT ORDER, which were addressed by the Acting Commissioner of Education and were cause for the rejection of the initial CONSENT ORDER. The parties presented the required modifications in the attached AMENDED CONSENT ORDER.
2. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the AMENDED CONSENT ORDER pending the approval of the Commissioner of Education.
3. The AMENDED CONSENT ORDER fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I therefore CONCLUDE that the AMENDED CONSENT ORDER meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved.

ORDER

I approve the AMENDED CONSENT ORDER SETTLEMENT and hereby ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms, and that these proceedings be concluded, pending approval by the Commissioner of Education.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

As Z.C.'s and N.C.'s mother no longer resides in Fort Lee, the residency of the custodial parent, J.C., residing at 4 Seventh Street, Englewood Cliffs, New Jersey, shall now be the district of residency for the purposes of Z.C.'s and N.C.'s education.
2. Z.C. shall be entitled to attend Fort Lee Middle School through the completion of 8th grade. The Fort Lee Board of Education shall not seek compensation and/or reimbursement from Petitioners with regard to Z.C.'s attendance at Fort Lee Middle School.
3. Z.C. must continue the current residency and visitation arrangement she has with Petitioners. As such, Z.C. must continue to primarily reside with her aunt, V.M., who resides at 524 Bluff Road, Fort Lee, New Jersey.
4. Petitioners must enroll N.C. in the Englewood Cliffs School District upon approval of this Consent Order by the Commissioner of Education.

5. The District must provide all reasonable assistance with respect to enforcing N.C.'s current IEP, which will be prepared by the Fort Lee Board of Education within five (5) days of the approval of this Consent Order by the Commissioner of Education.
6. Upon approval of this Consent Order by the Commissioner of Education, the District and Petitioners shall split the costs of N.C.'s out-of-district residential placement from October 1, 2010 to June 30, 2011, with the District reimbursing $50,000.00 to Petitioner J.C.
7. This Consent Order shall be subject to the Fort Lee Board of Education duly ratifying the terms of this Order within thirty (30) days of approval of same by the Commissioner of Education.
8. The parties shall be responsible for the payment of their own counsel fees and costs associated with the prosecution and defense of this matter. Neither Petitioners nor Respondent shall seek reimbursement and/or contribution from the other party relative to same.

WHEREAS, the Board is a body corporate and politic of the State of New Jersey, charged with the statutory responsibilities of the management and administration of the Buena Regional School District in Atlantic County, New Jersey; and

WHEREAS, the Respondent is employed by the Board as a tenured teacher; and

WHEREAS, the Board filed certain tenure charges against Respondent alleging conduct unbecoming an employee, violations of District policy and applicable law and regulations, and insubordination, more specifically by (a) failing to obtain parental permission to take and publish student photographs; (b) making fellow staff uncomfortable; (c) failing to adhere to District computer use policy; (d) failing to follow District policy concerning classroom lighting requirements; (e) inappropriate comments/physical conduct with students; (f) overstepping his responsibilities with respect to disciplinary matters and taking actions in violation of students' privacy; (g) collectively demonstrating a pattern of unbecoming conduct, violations of school policy and insubordination as more specifically described in the tenure charges filed by the Board on August 30, 2011 (the "Tenure Charges") attached hereto as Exhibit A; and

WHEREAS, the Respondent, by formal response, contested the tenure charges and offered explanations for his actions and behavior, attached hereto as Exhibit B; and

WHEREAS, the Commissioner of Education for the State of New Jersey (the "Commissioner") referred said charges to the Office of Administrative Law for a plenary hearing before the Honorable William T. Miller, A.L.J.; and

WHEREAS, a telephonic pre-hearing conference was held on October 7, 2011; and

WHEREAS, a pre-hearing Order was prepared and filed on October 7, 2011; and

WHEREAS, at the first hearing date scheduled for December 8, 2011, the parties discussed terms and conditions of a settlement agreement which they believe will resolve the dispute; and

WHEREAS, the parties wish to settle all controversies among and between them, including the charges contained in the tenure charges, the defenses and counterclaims, if any, contained in the response, and any and all related or unrelated claims, known or unknown, which could have been asserted by the Board or Respondent; and

WHEREAS, the Respondent acknowledges that on Monday, January 16, 2012, Respondent signed an undated letter of resignation and acknowledges understanding that the settlement agreement would be put in writing corresponding to the representations discussed between the parties and their attorneys attached hereto as Exhibit C; and

WHEREAS, this Agreement conforms to the discussions between the parties and their attorneys; and

WHEREAS, the parties acknowledge that the merits of the controversy are in dispute and that neither the Board nor Respondent admits any liability to either, but have reasons to desire that the matter be resolved; and

WHEREAS, the Board and Respondent specifically recognize and acknowledge that any settlement is contingent upon approval by the Commissioner as required by and consistent with the New Jersey Administrative Code, §6A:3-5.6 and In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Frank Cardonick, State Board of Education decision of April 6, 1983 (1990 School Law Decisions, S.L.C. 842, 846); and

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of the agreements, promises, covenants and conditions contained herein, the adequacy and sufficiency of which are expressly acknowledged by the parties hereto, the parties agree as follows:

(1) DISMISSAL OF ACTION.

(a) The Board will accept Respondent's letter of resignation and shall pay to Respondent the sum of Fifty Thousand Dollars ($50,000.00). On the date this settlement is approved by the Commissioner of Education, Respondent shall be removed from the Board's payroll retroactive to the date of his resignation and no additional further payments, salary or benefits (including health benefits) shall be paid to Respondent.

(b) Payment of the $50,000.00 shall be made to Respondent or his assignee in two equal payments of $25,000.00 in the following manner: The Board, within two (2) weeks (ten (10) business days) of the Commissioner of Education's approval of this Settlement Agreement, shall issue a check payable to the order of Respondent or his assignee in the amount of $25,000.00. Thereafter, the Board, on or before July 16, 2012, shall issue a second and final check to Respondent or his assignee in the amount of $25,000.00 representing full and final satisfaction of this Settlement Agreement. The Board will report the payments to the taxing authorities via an IRS Form 1099.

(c) In the event that it is subsequently determined that either party owes any employment taxes with respect to this payment, Respondent expressly acknowledges and agrees that he and/or his heirs, executors, administrators and assigns, and not the Board, will be responsible for the payment of any such taxes, liabilities, payments or costs, interest and penalties. Respondent agrees to indemnify and hold harmless the Board to the full extent of any such taxes, liabilities, payments or costs, interest and penalties, which may be assessed against the Board in connection with any payment made to or on behalf of Respondent hereunder, however, it is acknowledged by all parties that this is a lump sum settlement for consideration of Respondent's resigning his position and any and all matters that were or could have been brought in this proceeding by Respondent, or any matter that could be brought against the Board in the future, and the Board agrees to dismiss with prejudice the tenure charges against Respondent and Respondent agrees to execute his resignation.

(d) Said payment received as provided in paragraphs 1(a) and 1(b) shall constitute full and absolute payment by the Board to Respondent for all salary, benefits, emoluments or other claims, rights or privileges Respondent has, may have, claims or may claim, including but not limited to salary for any period, accumulated sick leave, vacation or other paid leave, benefits, fringe benefits, pension contributions, in-kind or other contributions, opt-out or other payments excluding those benefits available under the Consolidated Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act ("COBRA") and/or any pension payments Respondent may be eligible for under the New Jersey Teachers' Pension and Annuity Fund ("TPAF")

(e) Upon the approval of the Commissioner of Education of this Settlement Agreement, the Board shall be deemed to have withdrawn and dismissed the tenure charges and such charges shall also be deemed withdrawn and dismissed under the Department of Education, OAL Docket Number EDU-10979-2011S and Agency Reference Number 249-8/11, and the Board shall forward Respondent the first check provided for in paragraph 1(b) of this Settlement Agreement and Respondent's letter of resignation will become operative.

2. RELEASE. Respondent, personally and for his assignee, estate and/or heirs, waives, releases and gives up and all other claims, demands, obligations, damages, liabilities, causes of action and rights, in law or in equity, known and unknown, that he may have against the Board and any and all of its officers, directors, agents, representatives and employees (present and forever), and their respective successors and assigns, heirs, executors and legal or personal representatives, based upon any act, event or omission occurring before the execution of this Settlement Agreement, including, but not limited to, any events related to, arising from or in connection with Respondent's employment with the Board or the tenure charges. Respondent specifically waives, releases and gives up any and all claims arising from or relating to his employment and/or association with the Board based upon any act, event or omission occurring before the execution of this Settlement Agreement, including, but not limited to, any claim that was asserted or could have been asserted under any federal or state statutes, regulations or common law or Board policies or regulations.

The released claims also specifically include, without limitation, any claims arising under any federal, state and local statutory or common law, such as Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, the Civil Rights Act of 1991, The Federal Age Discrimination and Employment Act, the Older Workers Benefit Protection Act, The Federal Family and Medical Leave Act, The Americans With Disabilities Act, The Employee Retirement Income Security Act, The Fair Labor Standards Act, The Equal Pay Act, The Rehabilitation Act of 1973, Age Discrimination in Employment Act ("ADEA"), the New Jersey Family Leave Act, the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination, the Fair Labor Standards Act, The New Jersey Wage and Hour Act, the New Jersey Conscientious Employee Protection Act, Title 18A of the New Jersey Statutes including any and all tenure statutes, and any and all amendments to any of same, and the Law of Contract and Tort, and any claim for recovery of costs and/or attorneys fees.

3. NO CLAIMS PERMITTED/COVENANT NOT TO SUE. Respondent waives his right to file any charge or complaint on his own behalf, to participate as a complainant, a plaintiff or a charging party in any charge or complaint, or to collect damages as a result of any charge or complaint which may have been made by any other person or organization on his behalf, with respect to anything which has happened up to the execution of this Settlement Agreement, before any federal, state or local court or administrative agency against the Board except as such waiver is prohibited by law.

4. ATTORNEY'S FEES. Each party agrees that each party will bear its own costs and attorney's fees which have been incurred in connection with the within matter and in conjunction with the negotiations and preparation of this Settlement Agreement.

5. NO ADMISSION OF LIABILITY. It is expressly understood that neither the execution of this Settlement Agreement, nor any other action taken by the Respondent in conjunction with the Board's claims or this settlement, constitute admission by the Respondent or any violation of any law, duty or obligation. It is also understood that the acceptance of this settlement does not constitute any representation by the Board as to the merits of its claims or lack thereof.

6. ENTIRE AGREEMENT. This Settlement Agreement contains the sole and entire agreement between the parties hereto. Each party represents and acknowledges that prior to executing this Settlement Agreement, they consulted with or had an opportunity to consult with counsel, have had ample time to do so and that no party relied upon any representation or statement not set forth in this Settlement Agreement made by any other party hereto, or their counsel or representatives, with regard to the subject matter of this Settlement Agreement. No other promises or agreements shall be binding unless in writing, signed by the parties hereto, and expressly stated to represent an amendment to this Settlement Agreement.

7. BOARD RESOLUTION. Attached hereto as Exhibit D is a true copy of a Resolution of the Board, adopted in compliance with the laws of the State of New Jersey, including the Open Public Meetings Act, duly satisfying the Settlement Agreement.

8. COMMISSIONER'S APPROVAL. It is expressly understood that this Settlement Agreement, and the settlement pursuant to the terms listed in the Settlement Agreement must first be approved by the Commissioner of Education and must meet the following standards as enumerated in N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6(a):

(a) Accompaniment by Documentation as to the Nature of the Charges: Petition of Charges are attached hereto and incorporated herein as Exhibit A with the response attached hereto and incorporated herein as Exhibit B.

(b) Explanation of Circumstances Justifying the Settlement or Withdraw: The Board agrees to request that the Commissioner of Education approve the Board's dismissal of tenure charges in light of Respondent's resignation and in light of the payment of $50,000.00, made in two payments of $25,000.00, to Respondent in full and complete payment of all claims, losses, and so forth as more particularly enumerated herein including, but not limited to, any salary and other benefits for the 2011-2012 school year that might be due to Respondent. The Board believes that there are circumstances that justify settlement of the tenure charges. First, Respondent has agreed to resign his position in the District and has agreed not to seek any further employment within the District. Second, it is in the financial interest of the District to dispose of this matter by the payment of $50,000.00 to Respondent. Currently, Respondent commands a salary over $50,000.00 and will continue to have his salary increased on a yearly basis. Respondent also receives other benefits as part of his employment with the District. Payment of $50,000.00 to Respondent will alleviate any back and future payments to Respondent, as well as any additional payments for earned vacation, sick pay, or any other benefits and payment of any other claims, losses, obligations and so forth as more particularly enumerated herein. Third, given the fact specific nature of the charges against Respondent and the inherent uncertainty of litigation, the Board believes it is in the best interest of the District to settle this matter with a guarantee that Respondent will no longer teach within the District. Respondent's resignation alleviates the need to further pursue any charges. In executing this Agreement, Respondent understands the ultimate decision with regard to the resolution of the tenure charges lies with the Commissioner of Education and in the event that the New Jersey Commissioner of Education rejects the settlement between the Board and Respondent, then this Agreement is completely null and void and the tenure charges currently pending will continue to be processed. Respondent understands and has been advised by his counsel of the Commissioner's duty to refer tenure determinations resulting in loss of position to the State Board of Examiners for possible suspension or revocation of certificate. Attached hereto as Exhibit E is Respondent's Affidavit showing that he has been counseled in every respect and knows that the Board of Examiners can act independently.

(c) Consent of both the charged and charging parties is evidenced by this Settlement Agreement.

(d) Indication the charged party entered into the Agreement with a full understanding of his rights is evidenced by this Settlement Agreement and is evidenced by Respondent's Affidavit attached hereto as Exhibit E.

(e) A showing that the Agreement is in the public interest is evidenced by this Settlement Agreement. This Settlement Agreement demonstrates that it is in the public interest as a result of the parties' separation and satisfaction of any and all claims related to the tenure charges. Additionally, the public interest is supported by saving valuable education time for both students and District Staff. It is anticipated that students, teachers and administrators within the District would be required to miss valuable education time when school is in session in order to testify in this matter. Further, the avoidance of subjecting student witnesses to the stress of testifying in Court is of paramount importance to the Board, which is alleviated by approval of this Settlement Agreement. District students are also insured by approval of this Settlement Agreement that they would not have to interact with Respondent again. With respect to the teachers and administrators involved, the District avoids both the direct and indirect costs of having to provide substitutes for their services which includes not only the out of pocket costs, but the impact on the other students in the District. Lastly, this proposed Settlement Agreement represents cost savings to the Board and the public as a result of settling this matter and is significantly less than the costs associated with litigating the tenure charges, including appeals. Further, the cost savings to the Board and the public with the proposed payment to Respondent is also significantly less than keeping Respondent on staff. These cost savings associated with this matter will be able to be redirected in further focusing on other more valuable educational goals and needs within the District.

(f) Where the charged party is a teaching staff member, a showing that the teaching staff member has been advised by counsel and, by recitation of this provision that Respondent is advised of the Commissioner's duty to refer tenure determinations resulting in loss of position to the State Board of Examiners for possible suspension or revocation of teaching certificate. Such showing is demonstrated by this Settlement Agreement and by Exhibit E.

9. NON-DISCLOSURE. Except as may be otherwise required of the Board pursuant to the Open Public Records Act and/or Open Public Meetings Act, such obligations may be modified by federal or state statutory or administrative provisions as to the privacy of personnel records, no party will broadcast or publicize financial or other elements of this settlement to any third party. The parties are free to respond to inquiries made of them by indicating that the matter has been amicably resolved or satisfactorily settled, and recognize that the Board may disclose the substantive details of this settlement pursuant to a lawful request by providing a lawful request with a copy of this Settlement Agreement.

10. REFERENCE. In the event the Board is contacted with regard to Respondent's employment, the Board will not provide any reference, positive or negative, and will only provide Respondent's dates of employment.

WHEREFORE, intending to be legally bound, the parties have agreed to the aforesaid terms and indicate their agreement by signing below.

PLEASE READ CAREFULLY. THIS AGREEMENT IS A LEGAL DOCUMENT AND INCLUDES A RELEASE OF ALL KNOWN AND UNKNOWN CLAIMS, INCLUDING, WITHOUT LIMITATION, ALL CLAIMS ARISING UNDER THE AGE DISCRIMINATION IN EMPLOYMENT ACT, THE OLDER WORKERS BENEFIT PROTECTION ACT, THE AMERICANS WITH DISABILITY ACT, TITLE XII OF THE ADMINISTRATIVE RIGHTS ACT OF 1964, THE EQUAL PAY ACT, THE EMPLOYEE RETIREMENT INCOME SECURITY ACT, THE FAIR LABOR STANDARDS ACT, THE OCCUPATIONAL SAFETY AND HEALTH ACT, THE NEW JERSEY LAW AGAINST DISCRIMINATION, THE NEW JERSEY CONSCIENTIOUS EMPLOYEE PROTECTION ACT, TITLE 18A OF THE NEW JERSEY STATUTES INCLUDING ANY AND ALL TENURE STATUTES, STATE AND FEDERAL FAMILY LEAVE LAWS, STATE AND FEDERAL WAGE AND HOUR LAWS AND ANY OTHER FEDERAL, STATE, LOCAL OR COMMON LAW CLAIM.

: STATEMENT OF TENURE CHARGES

Walter W. Whitaker, Jr., Superintendent of the Buena Regional School District, County of Atlantic, State of New Jersey ("District"), pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 and N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11, hereby institutes the following tenure charges against teacher Robert Morris for conduct unbecoming an employee, violations of District policy and applicable law and regulations and insubordination:

Charge 1: Unbecoming Conduct and Policy Violation.

On or about December 17, 2008, Robert Morris, while assigned to the John C. Milanesi Elementary School as an ESL (English as a Second Language) teacher was observed taking photographs of students in the school hallway after the holiday concert. Mr. Morris was questioned about the reason for taking the pictures. He responded to another teacher that he "liked taking pictures of little girls".

Upon further investigation, Mr. Morris advised that he took pictures of students to put on the screensaver for his computer in his classroom. It was also determined that he had pictures of students from a field trip from a previous year posted on his personal Facebook page on the internet. Mr. Morris was reprimanded and verbally instructed as to the legal issues surrounding publishing photographs of students. A letter was placed in his personnel file regarding this matter.

Parental permission to take the student photographs and to publish them had not been obtained in violation of student privacy policies, laws and regulations.

WHEREFORE, Robert Morris should be terminated for unbecoming conduct and violations of policy and applicable law.

Charge 2: Unbecoming Conduct.

A newly assigned female preschool teacher at the John C. Milanesi Elementary School reported to the Principal, Anna Bettini, that she was uncomfortable whenever she was walking through the school hallways because of what the teacher felt was the inappropriate manner in which Robert Morris would stare at her. The teacher was a young, petite female who did not appear older in appearance than some of the District's high school students. She stated to Ms. Bettini that she found Mr. Morris' attention uncomfortable and unwelcomed. The teacher indicated that she was going to speak to Mr. Morris directly. No formal complaint was filed or pursued by the teacher.

WHEREFORE, Robert Morris should be terminated for unbecoming conduct.

Charge 3: Unbecoming Conduct in Violation of Policy.

On or about February 25, 2011, it was reported to Kenneth Nelson, the Principal of the Buena Regional Middle School, that a number of sixth grade students were accessing blocked sites on their school provided laptop computers using the login and password to the District network assigned to teacher Robert Morris. Mr. Morris was assigned, as an ESL teacher at both the Middle School and the John C. Milanesi Elementary School.

Investigation revealed that Mr. Morris had given his login and password to a student, I.M., apparently the year before when the student was in fifth grade. I.M., now in the sixth grade, discovered that the login and password were still operable to use on the laptop computers provided through a District grant to all sixth grade students. The login and password for the District network assigned to teachers allow full access to the network. The District network contains confidential information concerning both students and staff. Access by the teaching staff is allowed with respect to student records and other confidential information as a necessary component of a teacher's duties. Access by students on the District network is limited. Students do not have full access to confidential information stored on the District network. Additionally, the District blocks student access to sites determined by the District to be inappropriate for access by the students. I.M. was selling the login and password of Mr. Morris to other sixth grade students who were using this information to gain access to sites blocked to students and potentially also to access confidential information on the network.

Both I.M. and Mr. Morris confirmed that Mr. Morris gave the login and password to I.M. Mr. Morris' actions in doing so violated District computer use policy, compromised the integrity of the District computer network, compromised confidential information and enabled students to access computer sites that had been determined inappropriate for student access, thereby potentially causing harm to these students. Mr. Morris also failed to report that his login and password had been compromised as required by District computer use policy.

WHEREFORE, Robert Morris should be terminated for unbecoming conduct and violation of policy.

Charge 4: Violations of Policy and Insubordination.

At the commencement of the 2010-2011 school year, the administration of the Buena Regional Middle School instituted a school policy that was discussed with all teachers assigned to the building. The policy involved the showing of videos or movies in the classroom. All teachers were instructed that when showing a video or movie in class, all of the lights in the classroom were not to be turned off. Sufficient lighting was to remain on in the classroom to enable the teacher to monitor student conduct at all times. This policy was adopted as a result of certain incidents which had occurred the previous year when classrooms were darkened resulting in certain students being charged with sexual harassment of another student.

It was reported to the Principal and Vice Principal that Mr. Morris was not following this policy and that his classroom was completely dark while showing videos and/or movies. The Principal, Kenneth Nelson, discussed the policy directly with Mr. Morris and directed him that he was to follow this policy by not turning all of the lights out in his classroom. It was reported again to both Mr. Nelson and the Vice Principal, Karen Santoro, that Mr. Morris was observed in his classroom with all of the lights out. Both Mr. Nelson and Ms. Santoro spoke again to Mr. Morris directing him that he was to follow this policy.

Mr. Morris' conduct violated school policy. His conduct further constituted insubordination in that the Principal and the Vice Principal were required to direct him on multiple occasions that he was required to follow this policy, before he adhered to the policy.

WHEREFORE, Robert Morris should be terminated for violation of policy and insubordination.

Charge 5: Unbecoming Conduct.

In March 2011, a teacher assigned to a classroom in the Buena Regional Middle School across the hall from the classroom assigned to Mr. Morris reported that on several occasions he had to request that Mr. Morris lower the volume on videos that Mr. Morris was showing in his classroom since the sound was loud enough to interfere with the teacher teaching his students. The teacher reported that the first two times he went to Mr. Morris' classroom directly and spoke to Mr. Morris who turned down the volume. Several days after the second incident, the volume was again intrusive in the teacher's classroom. The teacher sent a female student, Z.G., over to Mr. Morris' classroom to request that he turn the volume down. The teacher reported to the Vice Principal that upon the student's return to the classroom, the student was "shuddering". She told the teacher that Mr. Morris had put his hands on her by rubbing her hair while speaking to her. The student stated that she was very uncomfortable with him stroking her hair while explaining to her that he would "take care of" the sound volume.

After class, the teacher went over to Mr. Morris' classroom to speak with him. When the teacher looked into the classroom, he thought that the classroom was empty since the shades were fully drawn and all of the classroom lights were off. The teacher then heard students in the room and he entered the classroom. Mr. Morris was in a fully darkened classroom with his students in violation of the policy set forth in Charge 5 above.

The incident was reported to the Vice Principal who reported it to the Principal, Kenneth Nelson. Mr. Nelson spoke to Mr. Morris with regard to both the turning out of all the lights and the improper touching of the student.

WHEREFORE, Robert Morris should be terminated for unbecoming conduct.

Charge 6: Unbecoming Conduct, Violation of School Policy and Student Privacy Rights.

On April 1, 2011, Robert Morris sent an e-mail to the Vice Principal of the Buena Regional Middle School, Karen Santoro, regarding actions that he undertook while on bus duty at the John C. Milanesi Elementary School. Mr. Morris stated in his e-mail to Ms. Santoro that the driver of Bus 20 told him that a child, who Mr. Morris identified by the first name of Asia, from the Middle School constantly acted up on the bus, refusing to sit down and walking around the bus all of the way from the Middle School. The bus driver allegedly told Mr. Morris that this student was a constant distraction to him while he was driving and would not listen to his direction. The student was left off at a daycare center in front of the John C. Milanesi Elementary School. Mr. Morris reported that following his bus duty, he stopped at the daycare center to discuss this student with the staff of the daycare facility.

Principal Kenneth Nelson and Vice Principal Karen Santoro of the Middle School had a conference with Mr. Morris. He was advised that he was not authorized on behalf of the District to go to the daycare center to look for the student and that he was overstepping his responsibilities. During that conference, Mr. Morris was very argumentative to both Mr. Nelson and Ms. Santoro regarding his conduct. He told Mr. Nelson and Ms. Santoro that prior to becoming an ESL teacher, he had been a private investigator working for the government investigating teacher misconduct. Mr. Morris was advised that he was not hired by the school district as a private investigator, but as an ESL teacher and that his duties did not involve investigating students or other staff or bus drivers. Mr. Nelson and Ms. Santoro contacted the transportation department since neither one of them had received any referrals or write ups regarding misbehavior on Bus #20 for anyone on the bus, including but not limited to any student by the first name of Asia. The transportation department confirmed that it had not received any discipline referrals from the bus driver of Bus 20 and therefore, there were no referrals or write ups to forward to Mr. Nelson or Ms. Santoro for attention.

In a subsequent discussion with Mr. Morris concerning this matter, Mr. Morris gave a conflicting statement regarding his reason for going to the daycare facility. Mr. Morris stated that he knew the student involved and that he was concerned about her as a result of the report from the bus driver. He stated that he went to the daycare center to seek the student out to talk to her and was not going there for the purpose of speaking to the staff about her.

Neither proffered reason for his actions justified Mr. Morris' conduct in violating the student's privacy and overstepping his responsibilities with respect to discipline matters.

WHEREFORE, Robert Morris should be terminated for unbecoming conduct and violations of policy.

Charge 7: Unbecoming Conduct.

On or about May 16, 2011, Kenneth Nelson, Principal of the Buena Regional Middle School, while doing a walk through of the building while classes were in session, entered the classroom of Mr. Morris. At that time, Mr. Nelson observed a female student in the classroom with her feet crossed on the desk. The student was seated directly in front of Mr. Morris. Mr. Nelson upon entering the room directed the student to put her feet down and sit properly in her seat. When Mr. Nelson spoke to Mr. Morris after class concerning this incident, Mr. Morris stated that he had not seen the student, although the student was seated directly in front of him. Mr. Morris was directed to pay more attention to the conduct of his students during class. Mr. Nelson advised Mr. Morris that the manner in which the student was sitting was inappropriate and should not be allowed in Mr. Morris' classroom.

WHEREFORE, Robert Morris should be terminated for unbecoming conduct.

Charge 8: Unbecoming Conduct.

On or about May 13, 2011, several students approached Mr. Nelson visibly upset and asked if they could speak to him in private. The students were N.B., a seventh grade male student, M.R., A.A. and M.O., who were all seventh grade female students.

N.B. told Mr. Nelson about an incident that had taken place on May 12, 2011 while the students were in the cafeteria eating lunch. Mr. Morris was on cafeteria duty at the time. Mr. Morris approached the table where N.B. was seated.

N.B. stated that Mr. Morris began to rub his back and said, "I like how white your shoes are". A few minutes later, N.B. bent over to tie his sneakers. At that point, Mr. Morris commented to N.B. in front of the other students, "You are tempting me N., you are tempting me,". N.B. reported that the touching and the comments made to him by Mr. Morris really bothered him and upset him.

M.R., A.A. and M.O. confirmed N.B.'s statements. They were seated at the same table as N.B. throughout the incident. M.R., A.A. and M.O. also stated that Mr. Morris was always staring at them and it made them uncomfortable.

The Principal called into the office another staff member, Mr. Mancini. The students were asked to repeat their story. The students repeated the incident the same way as it was relayed to Mr. Nelson. The students were advised to tell their parents. Subsequently, Mr. Nelson heard from the parents of several of the students reporting that their children were very upset by the conduct and statements of Mr. Morris.

A Spanish teacher assigned to the Middle School, Hilde Pesantes, further reported to the Vice Principal, Karen Santoro, that on May 12, 2011, N.B. had come to her and relayed to her the incident which had occurred during lunch regarding Mr. Morris. N.B.'s statements to Ms. Pesantes were consistent with the statements N.B. made to Mr. Nelson on May 13th. Ms. Pesantes also stated that student M.R. came to her and confirmed the statements of N.B.

Mr. Morris' actions in touching the student and in making suggestive comments to the student were inappropriate and constitute unbecoming conduct toward the student involved, as well as the other students who were witnesses to this unbecoming conduct. Mr. Morris was suspended with pay for the remainder of the school year pending further investigation of this and the other incidents referred to in this Statement.

WHEREFORE, Robert Morris should be terminated for unbecoming conduct.

Charge 9: Unbecoming Conduct, Violation of Policy and Insubordination.

While charges 1 through 8 each individually constitute separate grounds for termination of Robert Morris as a tenured teacher, these charges collectively demonstrate and evidence a pattern of unbecoming conduct, violations of policy and insubordination which when viewed collectively, demonstrate that Mr. Morris should be terminated for such conduct.

WHEREFORE, Robert Morris should be terminated for unbecoming conduct, violation of policy and insubordination.

: RESPONSE TO TENURE
: CHARGES

ROBERT MORRIS, of full age, hereby certifies as follows:

Answer to Charge 1- Unbecoming Conduct and Policy Violation:

1. I began my teaching career at Buena Regional School District (BRSD) in September 2000 as an ESL (English as a Second Language) teacher. Prior to 2008, while assigned to Milanesi Elementary School, I did place some pictures of my ESL students on a field trip having a good time on Facebook for all to see. I was told never to do it again and I immediately took the pictures off my site and have never again used photographs of students as instructed.
2. On or about December 17, 2008, at our School Holiday Pageant Day when children were all dressed up for their Christmas musical performance, I took pictures with my new digital camera of the Christmas tree in the lobby, the children performing on the stage and my ESL students and other students who were all dressed up and I was going to review them with my students to show the meaning of celebration, fiesta, gala and pageant. Those pictures were never disseminated, however, I was called into a meeting and was told not to ever take pictures of the students and this was at the same time when I was admonished about placing students, having a good time, or my Facebook page on the internet. I never again took photographs of students.

3. The comment that I "liked taking pictures of little girls" does not ring true to me. I am the father of children who were once little girls and I did like to take pictures of them when they were dressed up in their holiday clothes, but certainly there is no sinister connotation that should ever be taken if I did make the remark, which I don't remember making.

Charge 2 - Unbecoming Conduct:

4. I know the teacher that is being referenced and she knew my wife, who is a teacher in the Vineland system. We had conversation and she never advised me that she felt uncomfortable, and again, any connotation that I did something wrong or because it is characterized that she looked like a high school student is not an appropriate characterization which seems to in some way further demean my character and cause someone to believe that this representation is an example of unbecoming conduct. It is not unbecoming conduct.

Charge 3 - Unbecoming Conduct in Violation of Policy:

5. The representation in this charge that I had given I.M. my login and password for my laptop computer, and that I said that I did so, is absolutely not true. I taught I.M. in the elementary school two years prior to February 25, 2011 when I was teaching solely at the elementary school. I.M. was a very street smart, conniving student. In the fourth grade, when I taught him in my ESL classroom, we had 11 computers. When I teach English as a Second Language, pictures speak a thousand words, sometimes, the pictures have subtitles, but certainly they can depict concepts as has been pointed out in a prior answer such as fiesta. So through pictures, I teach the language of concepts both in English and Spanish.

6. At that time, in the elementary classroom where I controlled 11 computers, there would be many instances in 2008-2009 school year when the computers, for whatever reason, would shut down and I would have to restart them by logging on and using the password which I had in the District, and which I was still using in February 25, 2011 when this incident came to the forefront. I had to log in using my password, because we used many ESL internet sites for teaching.

7. I.M., while watching me restart computers, however that may have occurred, learned and memorized and in essence stole through his clever observation my password that allows me to login. I did not, and never have, given any student my password. If I did, more than one student would have come to the fore since it is readily known that students will obviously try to abuse the internet and, therefore, we keep those passwords and, therefore, the ability to login to the internet absolutely sacrosanct. My password in February, 2011 was the same as 2008.

8. I.M., through that methodology described, usurped my password and I later found was coerced by someone else, JS, to reveal it. JS then sold that password to other students.

9. Obviously the minute we learned this was the case, the issue was resolved.

10. The allegation that I gave this 4th grader the ability to login to my computer by providing my password is an improper characterization of what happened. My conduct in this matter was not unbecoming.

Charge 4 - Violations of Policy and Insubordination:

11. I first wish the reader of this rebuttal of this charge to know that in the middle school, I had one class of 6th grade and one class of 7th grade students. The 6th grade had 5 students and the 7th grade had 4 students and each class would meet for 1 ½ hours of instruction. My other time was spent in the elementary school. During that hour of instruction, the final ½ hour was used for video instruction since I have demonstrated before pictures are worth many words. The room at the middle school has what is called a smart board which can be seen by all the students and it is controlled from the teacher's computer and acts as an overhead projector. It is a large permanent screen, approximately 4' x 4' in size and it can also be operated manually because it has an interactive touch screen computer program as well as its own volume knob control in addition to the computer control.

12. As has been aforesaid, many of the videos which I use have subtitles, some in Spanish, some in English, and some in both. Also, some of the pictures and videos which are shown on the smart screen are pictures that are taken at night.

13. The charge says that teachers were instructed that all of the lights in the classroom were not to be turned off since there were charges the prior year about one student sexually harassing another which couldn't be monitored because of the darkened room. Firstly, I want the reader here to know that I never received any type of instruction at the beginning of the year nor did I receive a policy where that concept was presented. I didn't even know that was an issue until on or about May 13, 2011. The fact remains that I am easily able to monitor the 5 students in my 6th grade class and the 4 students in my 7th grade class since they are sitting in front of me and we are looking at the smart screen somewhat above our heads. If there were any inappropriate conduct between students, I would, whether the lights were on or off, be able to detect it.

14. It is a significantly better viewing quality of the smart screen for the purpose of my teaching if the lights are out.

15. However, now that I am being made fully aware of the significance and the adamant approach by the administration of the concept, it will no longer occur.

Charge 5 - Unbecoming Conduct:

16. Again, as aforesaid, I employ the smart screen ½ hour for each one of my 1 ½ hour classes of instruction of my 6th and 7th grade students. Realize that this is much more than other teachers would use the smart screen, and I am, certainly, sympathetic to the fact that the volume seems carry through the ceiling and as I am told into other classrooms.

17. It has come about, prior to March, 2011, when a teacher, in this case, Mr. D who teaches Math across the hall has called me on our intercom phone and advised that the sound was too loud in his classroom and, of course, I immediately turned it down.

18. Actually on this day in March when we began to use the smart screen, I could immediately tell when it went from one program to another that there was a volume increase and went to the screen itself and turned down the volume just before there was a knock at my classroom door.

19. When I went to the classroom door, I was aware that a female student was requesting me to turn down the volume and because I had already done so before her knock on the door, I put my hand on her shoulder, turned her around, and told her to go back to her classroom. I never stroked her hair, however, it is possible that my touching her shoulder and turning her around caused my hand to touch her hair, but I am not aware of that fact. I never said anything except "ok, go back to your classroom" and I don't understand the significance of this complaint.

20. I don't understand either why the teacher didn't just call me on my phone as he had done in the past. However, again, any sinister connotation based on this incident is just wrong.

Charge 6 - Unbecoming Conduct, Violation of School Policy and Student Privacy:

21. I have been doing dismissal at the John C. Milanesi Elementary School for 10 years. I handle the outside position where the buses load and I call the bus numbers on a two-way radio as the buses arrive. I get to know the bus drivers by name and we chat everyday and they tell me if they have problems with children on the bus. On or about Thursday, March 31, 2011, Danny Marandino, whom I know, was the newly assigned driver on bus 20, asked to talk to me about a problem that just occurred on the bus. He had just finished his run for the middle school and had pulled up to the elementary school and told me about a female Spanish student who would not sit down and was walking all around the bus and wouldn't listen to him. He also described her to me. He was worried about the child being injured if the bus had to stop or swerve because the child would not remain in her seat. He was very upset and worried because he believed her distraction might cause him to have an accident. He did not know the child's name, but he told me that he drops her off at One Love Child Care which is a day care facility located right next to Milanesi Elementary School. I told the bus driver that I would look into it. When bus dismissal was over, I decided, on my way home, to stop at One Love Child Care to tell the aide who watches the children at the center and who knows me. I told her that the bus driver wanted them to know that the girl he drops off from the middle school was giving him a rough time because she was walking all around the bus. The aide said, "Oh, you mean Asia?" whom I then suspected to be Asia Morales, whom I know and who has had disciplinary problems in the past. I asked the aide to please counsel her about it. I further happen to know that a student who rides bus 20 is CS, who is a middle school student whom I have known since 1st grade. Her step-mother is a substitute teacher in the district. I asked CS if there was a girl named Asia on bus 20 and she advised that there were two, but said that Asia Morales was the one causing the problem.

22. This is now said to be unbecoming conduct and a violation of a policy of which I am not familiar.

23. I sincerely was trying to resolve what I perceived to be a real bus problem which put Asia Morales and all students on the bus in harm's way. I was going to attempt to make sure that the message was sent to Asia Morales that she needed to be confined to her own seat and not walking around when the bus was moving. The only reason I took the next step was that I was sincerely concerned about the safety of the children and wanted to try to resolve the problem by supplying the information to the middle school assistant principal who would handle the matter. Any other connotation placed on my actions is inappropriate.

Charge 7 - Unbecoming Conduct:

24. First of all, May 16, 2011, would have been a date after my suspension, but assuming that is a typographical error, I do remember the Principal coming into my room and correcting this child's posture, but certainly she did not have her feet on the desk; she had them either on the rung of another chair or rung of the desk. I can't really remember since I didn't believe it was significant whatsoever, in fact, the Principal then was joking with the students and everything seemed to be fine. In fact, he appeared to be kidding. So I am taken by surprise that this incident would be an act of unbecoming conduct.

Charge 8 - Unbecoming Conduct:

25. The middle school has several lunch periods of 30 minutes each. I arrive at the middle school on or about 10:30 a.m. and have been assigned to "cafeteria duty" from 12:15 p.m. to 12:45 p.m. with 2 other teachers. Therefore, I teach my 6th grade class for 1 ½ hours, then I am assigned to the cafeteria from 12:15 p.m. to 12:45 p.m. In the cafeteria, there are about 18 round tables where 5 or 6 children can sit comfortably and there are about 60 children in the cafeteria group that I monitor and the tables are approximately 10 feet apart. Because there have been problems with students leaving the cafeteria early as well as students moving from table to table, I station myself close to the double doors which comprise the entrance/exit area to the cafeteria and set up a formal monitor station and a sign out table next to the doors. That was my base for observation during cafeteria duty. Everyone had to sign out in front of me and if they had a pass to the youth center, or elsewhere, they had to show it to me. From that position, I can scan all 18 tables. Attempting to resolve problems in the cafeteria, I also developed a letter titled Cafeteria Considerations. This letter was distributed to all tables during all lunches, which had worked well to correct many problems we were experiencing.

N.B. sits at a table with 3 other girls and his table is approximately 35' away from my station at the double doors. On May 12, 2011, as the lunch period was underway for 5 minutes or so and prior to my taking my stand at the door, I was using a wooden yard stick to police the trash from the floor and I felt someone strolling and heard someone shuffling behind me. I turned to notice that it was N.B. He was away from his table and he had brand new $150 branded sneaks and I said to him "Nick, if I ever wore such angelic white sneaks like that in my day, other kids would be stepping all over them to make them dirty." As I did that, I tapped the back bottom of his right heel with my yard stick to nudge him back to his table. We were laughing the whole time. Then, when I took my regular observation position at the double door and about 5 minutes later as I was scanning the cafeteria, I noticed to my right that a person was scrunched on the floor. As I looked closer, I saw it was N.B., away from his table again. My immediate thought was "what is he doing here?" He was about 35' from the table where he usually eats with the girls. He was squatting down with his left foot extended. The sneaker on his left foot was very untied and loose and it appeared that Velcro attachments might be loose in addition to the laces. When I was a football kicker, the center would snap the ball to the holder and the holder would put the ball on the toe of his foot to elevate the ball from the ground so that the kicker could get loft. N.B.'s position reminded me of a holder and, therefore, again attempting to use humor in order to try to get him back to the table and stop squatting in the middle of the room, I said "You're tempting me Nick; I used to be a football kicker." With that he popped up and returned to his table laughing. Again, a minute or so later, I went over to the table where Nick was sitting with the girls and said, "You know I was just kidding Nick, I was a football kicker." which I again reiterated and everybody laughed.

26. I don't believe the girls could have in anyway heard what I said to N.B. when he was squatting with his left leg out trying to tie his shoes since they were a good distance away and the cafeteria was noisy.

27. I really don't know what connotation is being place upon this incident; however, I can certainly tell you that I was doing my best with words to keep N.B. in his proper position.

28. Honestly, N.B., is known to be a showoff, and while I like him, if he is not properly controlled, he can be a ring leader who can spark conduct which can then cause a situation to get out of control.

Summary:

I have had a long career and have never in any venue been accused of any inappropriate conduct towards anyone. Any suggestion that I have an unclean motive in the performance of my duties is untrue and I intend, in whatever setting, to defend the appropriateness of my actions.

I ask that the Board of Education not in any way certify any tenure charges against me, however, should that occur, I will have no choice but to defend on the basis of the thrust communicated in the answers to these charges herein.

I hereby certify that the foregoing statements made by me are true and correct to the best of my knowledge and belief. I am aware that if any of the foregoing statements made by me are willfully false, I am subject to punishment.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner filed a pro se residency appeal in October 2010, challenging the determination of the respondent Board to remove her niece, T.C., from Union Township schools. Petitioner contended that she was awaiting a court date for proceedings that would grant her custody of T.C., and that her niece was living with her in Union. T.C.'s mother, D.C.-R resides in Newark. T.C. attended Union High School from September 27 until December 1, 2010. The respondent Board claimed tuition for two months of ineligible enrollment in the amount of $2,634. Subsequent to testimony presented on the first day of hearing, the Board agreed to settle the matter for a payment of $1,000 from M.M.-C., who submitted a statement indicating that she promised to pay $1,000, but would be unable to make any payment until she was "gainfully employed." As of the date of the ALJ's Initial Decision in this matter, no payment had been made to respondent from M.M.-C.

The ALJ found that: the petitioner bears the burden of proving domicile within the school district under N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1; in this case, petitioner disclosed during testimony that T.C. was living with M.M.-C. while D.C.-R traveled for work, but usually lived with her mother in Newark; the parties in this matter entered into a settlement agreement knowingly and voluntarily, which agreement was made absent a payment plan; as petitioner failed to pay the amount agreed to in the settlement, the Board requested a judgment in favor of the respondent for the full amount of tuition owed for the period of T.C.'s ineligible attendance, $2,634. The ALJ concluded that there are no further facts in dispute and, accordingly, the Board is owed tuition reimbursement in the amount of $2,634.

Upon a full and independent review, the Commissioner adopted the Initial Decision of the OAL as the final decision in this matter, ordered petitioner to pay respondent Board $2,634, and dismissed the petition.

This synopsis is not part of the Commissioner's decision. It has been prepared for the convenience of the reader. It has been neither reviewed nor approved by the Commissioner.

BEFORE MUMTAZ BARI-BROWN, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner M.M.-C. on behalf of her child T.C. challenges the determination of the Union Township Board of Education (Board) to remove T.C. from enrollment because he is not a resident of the school district. Additionally, petitioner challenged the Board's counterclaim for tuition for the period of ineligible attendance.

he is not a resident of the school district. Additionally, petitioner challenged the Board's counterclaim for tuition for the period of ineligible attendance.

On November 23, 2010, the Department of Education transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. A hearing was held on June 27, 2011. Subsequent to the hearing, the parties had several telephone conferences with the undersigned. Thereafter, they reached an agreement, which is contained in separate documents filed with the undersigned. Additionally, respondent's document contained a motion for decision for full tuition if petitioner fails to comply with the agreement. Upon review of the documents the record closed on January 30, 2012.

FACTS

Based on a review of the relevant and undisputed evidence I FIND as FACT:

Petitioner M.M.-C. resides in Union Township and is the aunt of T.C. D.C. is the mother of T.C. and they reside in Newark. T.C. attended Union High School from September 28, 2012 to December 1, 2010.

Respondent claims tuition for two months of ineligible enrollment for the sum of $2,634.00. Karen Dunn, Business Administrator for the Board submitted a certification, which shows the calculation of tuition from the period of September 28, 2010, to December 1, 2010, at a monthly rate of $1,317.00. (R-2.)

After the first hearing date on the issues of T.C.'s residence and the Board's claim for tuition reimbursement, the parties settled the matter. M.M.-C. submitted the following statement:

This letter is to confirm that I agree to pay the Township of Union Board of Education the sum of $1,000 in settlement of the above captioned matter.

However, there is no payment arrangement agreed to as of yet, and since I do not have access to the resources at the present time, there is no way I can make any payments on any amount until gainfully employed. Thank you for your and kind consideration in this matter.

Respectfully yours,
[M.M.-C.]

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

The state of New Jersey provides that "public schools shall be free to. . . any child who is domiciled within the school district." N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a). The domicile of a minor child follows that of his parents. See V.R. on behalf of A.R. v. Bd. of Ed. Of Hamburg, 2 N.J.A.R. 283, 286. The applicable statute, N.J.S.A. 18A-38-1(b)1, reads, in pertinent part:

Any person who is kept in the home of another person domiciled within the school district and is supported by such other person gratis as if he were such other person's own child, upon filing by such other person with the secretary of the board of education of the District, if so required by the board, a sworn statement that he is domiciled in the District and is supporting the child gratis and will assume all personal obligation for the child relative to school requirements and that he intends so to keep and support the child gratuitously for a longer time than merely through the school term, and a copy of his lease if a tenant, or a sworn statement by his landlord acknowledging his tenancy if residing as a tenant without a written lease, and upon filing by the child's parents or guardian with the secretary of the board of education a sworn statement that he is not capable of supporting or providing care for the child due to a family or economical hardship and that the child is not residing with the resident of the District solely for the purpose of receiving a free public education in the District. The statement shall be accompanied by documentation to support the validity of the sworn statement, information from or about which shall be supplied only to the board and only to the extent that it directly pertains to the support or nonsupport of the child. If in the judgment of the board of education the evidence does not support the validity of the claim by the resident, the board may deny admission to the child.

Petitioner bears the burden of proving domicile within the school district under N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1. Petitioner disclosed during testimony that D.C. traveled for work and M.M.-C. helped to care for T.C. During this period, T.C. attended Union High School for two months. Subsequent to the testimony, Petitioner and the Board agreed to settle the matter on the condition petitioner pay the school $1,000.00. While the settlement agreement provides no schedule for payment, petitioner promised to pay when she obtains employment.

The Board accepted the agreement to settle the matter for $1,000.00 payment from M.M.-C. However, the Board argues that petitioner has not offered a payment plan therefore, Respondent submits:

Based on that, it is Respondent's position that Petitioner has repudiated the proposed settlement and the compromise settlement is not binding on Respondent."

In the event that petitioner tenders the full One Thousand ($1,000.00) dollar payment to Respondent prior to the issuance of Your Honor's decision, Respondent would be willing to agree to renew the prior settlement discussions to confirm a settlement of the matter. Absent that, Respondent is entitled to entry of the decision in its favor for the full sum of two Thousand Six Hundred and Thirty-Four ($2,634.00) dollars in unpaid nutrition.

Essentially Respondent seeks enforcement of the agreement and in the alternative summary decision for full tuition.

New Jersey has a strong policy favoring the settlement of lawsuits. Dept. of Public Advocate v. N.J. Bd. of Public Utilities, 206 N.J.Super. 523 (App. Div. 1985). This policy is premised on "the notion that the parties to a dispute are in the best position to determine how to resolve a contested matter in a way which is least disadvantageous to everyone. In recognition of this principle, courts should strain to give effect to the terms of a settlement whenever possible." 206 N.J.Super. at 528.

An agreement to settle a lawsuit is a contract Pascarella v. Bruck, 190 N.J.Super. 118 (App. Div. 1983), cert. den., 94 N.J. 600 (1983). Courts must honor and enforce settlements as it does other contracts. Id. at 124-125. However, a court may refuse to enforce a settlement if the moving party can demonstrate, by clear and convincing proof, fraud or other compelling circumstances. De Caro v. De Caro, 13 N.J. 36 (1953).

In determining whether the circumstances of the case are sufficiently compelling to vacate a settlement the courts generally focus on the moving parties representation by competent legal counsel, his awareness of the terms of the agreement and whether he knowingly and voluntarily entered into the settlement agreement. [A] showing of "deception, lack of independent advice, abuse of confidential relations or similar indicia generally found in the reported instances where equity has declined to enforce, as unfair or unconscionable, an agreement voluntarily executed by the parties" may justify the setting aside of a settlement. 13 N.J. at 44. The only basis for vacating the settlement is on a showing ... of fraud or other compelling circumstances. Pascarella, 190 N.J.Super. at 124-125.

Here, the parties entered into an agreement knowingly and voluntarily. The agreement was made absent a payment plan. Thus, upon petitioner's failure to pay the agreed amount the Board may seek enforcement of the settlement or summary decision for tuition owed.

Summary decision may be rendered "if the papers and discovery which have been filed, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law." N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b). Furthermore, the rule provides that "[w]hen a motion for summary decision is made and supported, an adverse party in order to prevail must by responding affidavit set forth specific facts showing that there is a genuine issue which can only be determined in an evidentiary proceeding." Ibid. In Brill v. Guardian Life Insurance Co. of America, 142 N.J. 520 (1995), the New Jersey Supreme Court clarified the summary judgment standard. Ultimately, it is not a court's role "to weigh the evidence and determine the truth of the matter but to determine whether there is a genuine issue for trial." Id. at 540.

Karen Dunn, Business Administrator for the Board assessed tuition for the period T.C. attended Union High School. The tuition cost from the period of September 28, 2010 to December 1, 2010 $2,634.00 at a monthly rate of $1,317.00. (R-2.) The evidence was undisputed.

Based on the whole of the record I CONCLUDE the parties entered an agreement to settle the matter upon petitioner's payment of $1,000.00.

I further CONCLUDE that either party may seek enforcement of the settlement in the appropriate tribunal.

I further CONCLUDE that there exists no disputed facts remaining to be resolved.

ORDER

Accordingly, it is ORDERED that Union Township Board of Education is owed tuition reimbursement in the amount of $2,634.00.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

Petitioner – now a tenured elementary teacher in respondent's school district – sought back pay, leave benefits and pension credits in connection with his employment in the district prior to the issuance of his certificate of eligibility with advanced standing (CEAS) in September 2004. Petitioner accepted a teaching position beginning in September of 2003 based on a contingency employment agreement with the respondent district, with the expectation that his CEAS would be issued imminently. When it was not, the respondent Board instead employed petitioner for the 2003-04 school year as a per diem substitute teacher, at a rate of pay that was less than the salary included in the contingency contract he had signed. Although paid as a substitute, petitioner contends that he was in charge of his own fifth grade classroom for the entire year and treated as a regular teaching staff member, except for his rate of compensation and lack of benefits. The respondent Board asserted that petitioner received the salary and benefits to which he was entitled.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: because petitioner did not receive any teaching certificate from the State of New Jersey at any time during the 2003-04 school year, he did not comply with one of the express contingency terms of his Contingency Employment Contract and the contract was therefore void; there is no legal and competent evidence that the petitioner's principal promised that he would receive retroactive pay; petitioner admitted that he delayed asserting a right to retroactive pay and benefits until he was granted tenure; petitioner initially filed a complaint in the Superior Court in November 2009, which was dismissed; the parties agreed that the six-year statute of limitations was tolled upon the filing of petitioner's claim in Superior Court; and the petitioner filed his complaint more than six years from the date when his cause of action for a compensation differential accrued. Accordingly, the ALJ denied petitioner's appeal.

Upon careful and independent review, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ that the petition must be dismissed as untimely, but noted that the applicable limitations period is not the six-year statutory period for contract disputes that would attach in Superior Court. Jurisdiction in this case lies with the Commissioner, and the applicable limitations period is 90 days, as set forth in N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(i). Accordingly, the petition was dismissed.

RESPONDENT.	:

This controversy was brought before the Commissioner by a teacher who – due to delays in the issuance of his certificate of eligibility with advanced standing (CEAS) to teach elementary education – was hired as a substitute in his first year of employment with respondent, i.e. the 2003-04 school year. He was paid on a per diem basis and was assigned to the same fifth grade class for the entire academic year.¹ Petitioner received his CEAS at the beginning of his second year of employment with respondent and was subsequently paid the appropriate teacher salary. Five years later, in November 2009, petitioner filed suit in Superior Court seeking reimbursement of the differential between the per diem pay he received for the 2003-04 school year and the salary he would have earned had his CEAS been timely issued – plus ancillary benefits and pension credits. That action was transferred to the Commissioner for adjudication on or about May 18, 2010.

¹ While it does not affect the outcome of this case, the Commissioner is constrained to remind the parties that the employment of an uncertified teacher for more than 20 days in the same position in a district is a violation of N.J.A.C. 6A:9-6.5.

Upon review of the record² and Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), to which Decision no exceptions have been filed, the Commissioner concurs with the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) that the petition must be dismissed as untimely. However, the applicable limitations period is not the six-year statutory period for contract disputes that would attach in Superior Court. Jurisdiction over this controversy lies with the Commissioner, and the applicable limitations period is 90 days, as set forth in N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(i).

Petitioner,

v.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF IRVINGTON, ESSEX COUNTY,

Respondent.

Record Closed: November 4, 2011

Decided: December 19, 2011

BEFORE EVELYN J. MAROSE, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner, Joseph Pinsl, seeks back pay, leave benefits, and pension credits in connection with his employment with the Board of Education of the Township of Irvington, Essex County (Irvington) during the 2003–04 school term. The Irvington Board of Education asserts that petitioner received the salary and benefits to which he was entitled and opposes petitioner's request for back pay, leave benefits, and pension credits.

Petitioner filed a Complaint in the Superior Court of New Jersey, Law Division, Bergen County, Docket No. 10368-09, on November 25, 2009. Upon motion by respondent, which was opposed by the petitioner, the complaint was dismissed without prejudice. By Order dated April 30, 2010, the Court provided petitioner with thirty days to file his claim with the Office of Administrative Law (OAL). If the OAL determined that it did not have jurisdiction, petitioner would have thirty days to file a motion to restore his complaint to the active trial calendar. The Court tolled the statute of limitations until jurisdiction was established either by the OAL or the Superior Court. In the event that the petitioner did not file his claim within thirty days with the OAL, or file a motion to restore within thirty days should the OAL determine that it did not have jurisdiction, then respondent could submit a certification, reciting the appropriate facts, to the Superior Court. The case would then be dismissed with prejudice. (R-11.)

The matter was transferred to the OAL on June 10, 2010, for a hearing as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. A hearing was held on March 15, 2011. The record remained open until May 23, 2011, in connection with the submission of a document and correspondence regarding the document. Due to a voluminous caseload, the time for issuance of this Initial Decision was extended to November 14, 2011. Prior to the issuance of this Initial Decision, the record was re-opened. Upon receipt of correspondence from the parties relating to the statute of limitations, the record closed on November 4, 2011.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION AND FINDING OF FACTS

Alberta Sharif, the director of Human Resources, testified on behalf of respondent. Petitioner testified on his own behalf. Santo Bonanno, Esq., petitioner's attorney, also briefly testified to identify two letters that he had written, to which he never received a response on behalf of respondent.

TESTIMONIAL AND DOCUMENTARY EVIDENCE

Joseph Pinsl

Petitioner Joseph Pinsl testified that after completing all of the necessary requirements, he applied to the State of New Jersey for his Teaching Certificate. He also applied for employment as a teacher in the Irvington School District. After the principal and superintendent recommended that petitioner be hired, he was offered a Contingency Employment Contract ("contract"), which he signed on August 6, 2003. The contract provided that the employment agreement was valid only after verification of the submitted documentation, criminal history review and approval by the Board of Education (Board) at a regularly scheduled monthly Board meeting. (P-3; P-1.) The contract provided that petitioner was hired as a fifth-grade teacher from September 1, 2003, to June 30, 2004, at an annual salary of $35,608. The contract also provided that petitioner was required to hold a Teaching Certificate issued by the State of New Jersey and that the certificate had to be in full force and effect. If petitioner did not hold a certificate, he had to procure a certificate before the date when he would begin service and before entering upon the duties of his teaching position. Once petitioner obtained his Teaching Certificate, he had to show the Teaching Certificate to the County superintendent of schools and to the superintendent of the Board (or Board secretary if there was not a superintendent). A provision of the contract provided that the contract would only be valid after verification of submitted documentation, criminal history review and approval by the Board at a regular monthly Board meeting. (P-1.)

Petitioner did not receive his Teaching Certificate prior to the beginning of the school term in September 2003, though he, and others on his behalf, made many telephone calls to the State as to why the certificate had not yet been received. In fact, he did not receive his Teaching Certificate until October 2004. (P-2.)

Despite his failure to procure a Teaching Certificate from the State, petitioner was employed by Irvington from September 2003 to June 2004, and for the month of September 2004. (P-6.) He was paid as a substitute teacher, rather than as a teacher.

His salary ranged from $100 to $125 per day, which was less than the annual salary of $35,608 referenced in his proposed contract. (R-1; R-2.) Petitioner testified that his job responsibilities did not differ from those of a teacher who had received his or her Teaching Certificate. He had his own fifth-grade class for the entire school year. He received notice of, and attended, all workshops offered to teachers during the 2003–04 academic school year.

On September 4, 2004, the State of New Jersey issued a Certificate of Eligibility with Advanced Standing ("Certificate") to petitioner. The Certificate noted:

John J. Pinsl has completed an approved college teacher preparation program and is eligible to seek employment in positions requiring the Provisional Certificate in the area of Elementary School Teacher in Grades K–5. The provisional Certificate will be issued contingent upon evidence of employment in a district that agrees to provide an approved induction program, including required job support and performance evaluation.

[R-3.]¹

Petitioner did not receive the State-issued Certificate until October 2004. Upon receipt, he provided the Certificate to Irvington. At the October 27, 2004, meeting, the Irvington Board of Education made several appointments by resolution, including petitioner's appointment as fifth-grade teacher at the Grove Street School, at an annual salary of $36,808, Step 3, effective October 28, 2004. (R-4.)

On November 25, 2009, petitioner filed a Complaint in the Superior Court of New Jersey, asserting that he was entitled to back pay, leave benefits and pension credits for the 2003–04 academic year, during which he was paid at an hourly substitute's rate. (P-4.) As a result of a motion filed by Irvington, petitioner's Complaint was dismissed without prejudice, to allow petitioner thirty days to file his claim with the OAL. (R-11.)

¹In October 2005, the State of New Jersey issued petitioner a Standard Certificate. That certificate certified that "John J. Pinsl has met all of the requirements established by the State Board of Education and is authorized to serve in the public schools of New Jersey as an Elementary Teacher in Grades K–5." (R-7.)

Though petitioner was a union member, he never filed a grievance with the union. Petitioner never made a demand for back pay and/or benefits directly to the Board until November 2009, shortly before his Complaint was filed. (P-5.) He also never demanded back pay and/or benefits from the director of Human Resources. Petitioner discussed the concept of a retroactive pay differential with his school principal, Alan A. Gamba. Petitioner stated that it was his building principal who provided him with a copy of Governor McGreevey's Executive Order No. 138, issued on October 12, 2004, which related to the delay in processing teachers' certifications and the possibility of paying substitute teachers retroactively according to the teachers' salary guide. (P-2.) Petitioner acknowledged that he could have made a claim for back pay and benefits many years ago. Initially, he chose not to file a claim or initiate a legal proceeding until he had received tenure. He feared filing a claim, before receipt of tenure, as it might adversely affect his consideration for a fourth-year contract.

Alberta Sharif, Director of Human Resources

Alberta Sharif testified regarding Irvington's hiring process for teachers. Job candidates who are recommended for hire by a school principal are initially offered a "Contingency Employment Contract." The contract is valid only after verification of submitted documents, a criminal background check and approval by the Board of Education. The contract is also contingent upon the candidate submitting a Certificate of Eligibility, a Provisional Certificate or a Standard Certificate issued by the State.

To substitute for a teacher, a person must present a different certificate. Substitute Teacher's Certificates are issued by the counties, upon proof of completion of sixty undergraduate college credits. In Irvington, substitutes earn between $100 and $125 per day. Substitutes who will likely work every day were initially referred to as "Permanent Substitutes." Now they are referred to as "Building Substitutes." Substitutes are not paid for days that they do not work. They receive no vacation days, sick days or personal days. They earn no pension credits.

During petitioner's job interview in August 2003 he expressed his belief that he would shortly be receiving a Teaching Certificate from the State of New Jersey.

However, when petitioner did not provide Irvington with a Teaching Certificate by the beginning of the 2003–04 academic school year, his name was not placed on the Board of Education's agenda for a teaching appointment. His name was placed on the agenda for appointment as a substitute teacher. (R-1.) Petitioner worked as a substitute teacher in Irvington for the entire 2003–04 academic school year. During that year, he never presented Irvington with a Teaching Certificate issued to him by the State of New Jersey.

At the beginning of the 2004–05 academic year, since petitioner had not yet presented Irvington with a Teaching Certificate issued to him by the State, his name was again placed on the Board agenda for appointment as a substitute teacher. The Board agenda noted that he would be assigned to the Grove Street School, and be paid $125 per diem. (R-2.)

The first time that petitioner provided Irvington with a Teacher Certificate was October 2004. (R-3.) Petitioner was listed on the October Board agenda for appointment as a teacher, and his appointment was approved. (R-3.) He was immediately paid according to the teachers' salary guide (Step 3) and began receiving benefits, including pension credits, sick days, and personal days. Ms. Sharif was unaware of petitioner's claim of entitlement to retroactive salary and benefits for the 2003–04 academic school year and for a portion of the 2004–05 academic school year until she learned that petitioner had filed a Complaint in November 2009.

Based upon a review of the testimony and the documentary evidence presented, and having had the opportunity to observe the demeanor and assess the credibility of the witnesses, I FIND the following pertinent FACTS:

Petitioner executed a Contingency Employment Agreement on August 6, 2003, wherein it was agreed that Irvington would employ petitioner as a fifth-grade teacher from September 1, 2003, to June 30, 2004, at an annual salary of $35,608. The contract expressly provided that it would only be valid after verification of submitted documents, criminal history review and approval by the Irvington Board of Education at a regular scheduled monthly Board meeting. The contract also provided that petitioner was required to hold, or obtain, a Certificate issued by the State of New Jersey before he began service or entered upon the duties of his position. The Certificate had to be in full force and effect and submitted to the County superintendent of schools and to the superintendent of Irvington. (P-1.) Though petitioner applied for a Certificate prior to executing the Contingency Employment Agreement, he did not receive a Certificate from the State of New Jersey until October 2004. Accordingly, I FIND that petitioner did not comply with one of the expressed contingency terms of his contract for the 2003–04 academic school year.

When petitioner did not present, to Irvington, a Teaching Certificate issued by the State of New Jersey before the start of the 2003–04 academic school year, the Board approved his hiring as a substitute teacher for a per-diem rate of $100. His compensation did not include benefits such as sick and personal leave time or pension credits. When petitioner did not present a Teaching Certificate issued by the State of New Jersey before the start of the 2004–05 academic school year, the Board approved his hiring as a substitute teacher at Grove Street School for a per-diem rate of $125. His compensation again did not include benefits such as sick and personal leave time or pension credits. Upon presentation to Irvington of a Teaching Certificate issued by the State of New Jersey, petitioner was listed on the next Board agenda for appointment as a teacher. His appointment was approved, effective the day after the Board meeting. Petitioner was then paid on the teachers' salary guide, Step 3, and was entitled to benefits such as sick, personal and vacation days, and pension credits. During the 2003–04 academic school year and in September and October of 2004, though petitioner was paid at a substitute's rate and was not entitled to benefits, he was the sole teacher assigned to a fifth-grade class in the Grove Street School. I FIND that despite the duties that petitioner was assigned from September 2003 through October 2004, until he presented Irvington with a Teaching Certificate and was appointed as a teacher by the Board, he was compensated at a substitute-teacher rate.

Discovery is a process that allows each party to learn about the other side's case. The purpose of discovery is to make sure that there are no surprises at the hearing, so the result will be based on the merits of the case. During discovery, each side learns the evidence that will be used at trial to support either side's case. All discovery must be completed ten days before the first hearing date. N.J.A.C. 1:1-10.4(e). During the hearing of this matter, for the first time petitioner provided a document to his counsel that he received some time in 2004 or 2005. The document, a press release from the Office of the Governor concerned an Executive Order issued by Governor McGreevey (Release) relating to a delay in processing teaching certificate applications, was presented in support of petitioner's claim of entitlement to back pay and benefits. (P-2.) Since petitioner had not provided the document to his counsel, petitioner's counsel had not provided the document in response to discovery demands that were served by Irvington upon petitioner. Irvington objects to late introduction of the Release, which was known to petitioner for many years, as unfair, prejudicial and untimely. I FIND that the Release was not produced in accordance with the New Jersey Administrative Code and should be suppressed.

Petitioner's counsel argued that whether or not Exhibit P-2 is suppressed, the subject of the exhibit, Executive Order #138 of Governor James E. McGreevey, should be considered by me as controlling law. Upon review, I FIND that Executive Order #138 is not applicable to petitioner. (R-3.) Executive Order #138, which was signed on October 12, 2004, provides relief for approximately 1,000 applicants whose applications had not yet been processed at the time of the signing of the Order. However, the State of New Jersey issued a Certificate of Eligibility with Advanced Standing to petitioner in September 2004. Even if petitioner was by definition entitled to some relief provided in Executive Order #138, and he is not, the bulk of the damages asserted by petitioner are beyond the scope of the Order. Executive Order #138 only references the ability to possibly qualify for back pay to the beginning of the 2004–05 academic year. Petitioner seeks back pay for the full 2003–04 academic year and approximately two months of the 2004–05 term.

Both parties agree that petitioner filed a Complaint in the Superior Court of New Jersey on November 25, 2009. Petitioner argues that his claim did not accrue until after he learned that Irvington would not pay him retroactively, as his principal led him to believe. Petitioner's principal did not testify at the hearing. All alleged statements made by the principal are hearsay. While hearsay is admissible in administrative agency proceedings, it is subject to the "residuum rule," which mandates that there must be a residuum of legal and competent evidence in the record to support it. Weston v. State, 60 N.J. 36, 51 (1972). I CONCLUDE that no legal and competent evidence was presented that the petitioner's principal promised that he would receive retroactive pay. To the contrary, Alberta Sharif testified that the principal had no authority to even consider any requests for retroactive pay or any other financial adjustment. All such requests had to be made to her or to the superintendent or Board.

LEGAL ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSIONS

No teaching staff member shall be employed in the public schools by any board of education unless he is the holder of a valid certificate to teach, administer, direct or supervise the teaching, instruction or educational guidance of, or to render or administer, direct or supervise the rendering of nursing service to, pupils in such public schools and of such other certificate, if any, as may be required by law.

[N.J.S.A. 18A:26-2.]

Petitioner executed a Contingency Employment Agreement on August 6, 2003, wherein it was agreed that the Irvington Board of Education would employ petitioner as a fifth-grade teacher from September 1, 2003, to June 30, 2004, at an annual salary of $35,608. The contract expressly provided that it would only be valid after verification of submitted documents, criminal history review and approval by the Irvington Board of Education at a regular scheduled monthly Board meeting. The contract also provided that petitioner was required to hold, or obtain, a Certificate issued by the State of New Jersey before he began service or entered upon the duties of his position. The Certificate had to be in full force and effect and submitted to the County superintendent of schools and to the superintendent of Irvington. Though petitioner applied for a Certificate prior to executing the Contingency Employment Agreement, he did not receive a Certificate from the State of New Jersey at any time during the 2003–04 academic year. Since petitioner did not comply with one of the express contingency terms of his Contingency Employment Contract, and Irvington by statute could not employ petitioner as a teaching staff member, I CONCLUDE that the contract was void.

The parties agree that that the six-year statute of limitations was tolled upon the filing of petitioner's claim in the Superior Court of New Jersey on November 25, 2009. As noted above, no credible evidence was presented that petitioner delayed filing a complaint in reliance upon promises of retroactive pay by his principal. Petitioner himself testified that he delayed asserting a right to retroactive pay and benefits until he was granted tenure. Petitioner was aware from the first check that he received in September 2003 that Irvington was paying him in accordance with the per-diem rate given to a substitute teacher, despite his assignment to a fifth-grade class and to the duties performed by teachers who had received their certificates. I CONCLUDE that petitioner filed his Complaint more than six years from the date when his cause of action for a compensation differential, including back pay and benefits, accrued.

ORDER

It is ORDERED that petitioner's request for entitlement to back pay, leave benefits, and pension credits is hereby DENIED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

Petitioner is a certified teacher whose employment with the respondent board of education was terminated in July 2009 after petitioner failed to respond to tenure charges brought against him. In February 2012 he filed a petition to reopen the referenced litigation, seeking reinstatement and back pay. Accompanying the petition was an application for emergent relief, which was promptly forwarded to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) and expeditiously adjudicated there.

In conjunction with his consideration of the OAL Order denying petitioner emergent relief, the Commissioner has reviewed the record, including an audio recording of the February 27, 2012 hearing in the OAL. For the reasons expressed by the Administrative Law Judge, the Order is adopted.

Accordingly, the status quo is maintained and the matter has been returned to the OAL for disposition of the remaining issues by way of an Initial Decision.

BEFORE WALTER M. BRASWELL, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

This matter arises out of a "Petition to Re-open the Tenure Charges Against Anatol M. Kous" filed with the Department of Education by Petitioner, Anatol M. Kous, pro se, on February 2, 2012. The Petition included a request for injunctive relief, and was transferred on an expedited basis to the Office of Administrative Law and set down for an emergent hearing on February 6, 2012. At the request of the Petitioner due to scheduling conflicts, the matter was rescheduled for a hearing on 1:30pm on Monday, February 27, 2012.

An appearance was made and a brief was submitted on February 20, 2012 by Christopher B. Parton, Esq., Kenney, Gross, Kovats & Parton, Esqs., on behalf of the Respondent Board of Education and its agents Cittadino, Arico and Piscatelli ("the Board Respondents"). An appearance was made and a brief was submitted on February 7, 2012 by Steven R. Cohen, Esq., Selikoff & Cohen, PA, on behalf of Respondents Old Bridge Education Association and its agents Chomko and Saladino, as well as the New Jersey Education Association ("the Union Respondents").¹

The relief sought by Petitioner is as follows:

1. That the Commissioner enters an Order reopening the Tenure Litigation that was concluded against Petitioner by a final order of the Commissioner dated July 17, 2009;
2. That the Commissioner declares the Petitioner's termination, which resulted from said litigation, illegal; and

3. That the Commissioner enter injunctive relief reinstating the employment of the Petitioner and awarding him back pay and emoluments.

The Board and Union Respondents seek the following relief:

1. The denial of any claim for emergent relief; and
2. The dismissal of the Petition in its entirety on the combined or alternative bases of untimeliness under the controlling laws and regulations and the lack of subject matter jurisdiction in the Commissioner;

As such, the I have considered the papers submitted by the parties and counsel where applicable, the arguments made, and the applicable laws, regulations and decisional law. For good cause having been shown, I now rule as follows:

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This matter arises from a series of events taking place two and a half years ago in 2009. At that time, Petitioner was a teaching staff member employed by Respondent, the Old Bridge Board of Education. As acknowledged in his papers, Petitioner was going through various and significant personal difficulties at that time. As a result of those difficulties, Petitioner apparently exhibited what the Board of Education and Administration determined to be a deviation from normal physical or mental health. Therefore, pursuant to state statute N.J.S.A. 18A:16-2, Petitioner was placed on paid leave and directed to undergo a psychiatric assessment of fitness to return to work. Documents in the record, including the exhibits to Petitioner's papers, evidence that the directive to undergo such an assessment was made and discussed no later than November 2008. The record reflects that Petitioner sought legal counsel from at least two attorneys, each of whom corresponded and spoke with the former Board Attorneys regarding the directive for Petitioner to undergo the assessment.

Notwithstanding the district's directive, over the period between November 2008 and May 2009, Petitioner neither underwent a psychiatric assessment as directed, nor challenged the Board's directive that he obtain such an assessment. Ultimately, on April 17, 2009 Tenure Charges for Insubordination were filed with the Board Secretary. Petitioner and his attorney were served with said Charges, but chose not to respond. As such, the Board voted on the Charges on May 19, 2009, and the Charges were filed with the Commissioner of Education on June 1, 2009.

The Board provided Petitioner with written notice of those Charges via certified mail on May 20, 2009. Again, Petitioner chose not to respond. The Commissioner's office then independently contacted Petitioner on June 2, 2009 to respond to the Tenure Charges. He signed for the Certified Mail copy of the Commissioner's letter on June 4, 2009. However, again, he failed or refused to respond to the Charges. At the hearing, Petitioner admitted receiving and signing for the Certified Mail copy of the Charges and the letter from the Board of Education, but stated that he was "inundated with mail at that time," and that he neither opened nor read either documents.

The Commissioner granted Summary Decision in favor of the Board of Education by decision dated July 17, 2009 under Agency Docket No. 109-6/09. That decision was never appealed, nor was reconsideration of that decision sought by any party. No subsequent case history existed until Petitioner first raised the issue of "re-opening the case" in a December 13, 2011 letter to the Commissioner. In a January 4, 2012 response, Director Kathleen Duncan of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes advised Petitioner that his procedural avenue would be to file a Petition of Appeal, and this Petition followed.

PETITIONER'S APPLICATION FOR EMERGENT RELIEF

Petitioner requested emergent relief of reinstatement and back pay pending a hearing.

Regarding the petitioner's request for emergent relief I ruled that petitioner cannot meet the required elements of Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 NJ 126, 132-34 (1982) and that as such, injunctive relief could not be entered.

RESPONDENT'S MOTION FOR DISMISSAL

Both the Board Respondents and the Union Respondents have also moved for the dismissal of the Petition of Appeal in its entirety. These motions are made on the basis of alleged untimeliness of the Petition of Appeal, as well as an alleged lack of jurisdiction.

The Commissioner of Education and the OAL reserve the authority to dismiss a Petition of Appeal for failure to state a claim upon which relief may be granted, whether for want of subject matter jurisdiction, because such a an application is time-barred, or for other reasons. N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.10; N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.

The Union Respondents argue that the majority of the claims in the Petition of Appeal fall outside of the subject matter jurisdiction of the Commissioner, as they do not arise under N.J.S.A. Title 18A, as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9. Specifically, the Union Respondents posit that all claims of failure of the duty to represent—arising out of Petitioner's claims that the Union did not provide him with adequate backing in 2009, are cognizable only under the PERC Act, N.J.S.A. 34:13A-1.1 et seq., particularly section 5.4(b)(1). For this conclusion, the Union Respondents rely upon Belen v. Woodbridge Bd. of Ed., 142 N.J.Super. 486 (App.Div.), certif. den. 72 N.J. 458 (1976); Kaczmarek v. New Jersey Tpk. Auth., 77 N.J. 329, 336-37 (1978); City of Hackensack v. Winner, 82 N.J. 1, 24 (1980).

The Union Respondents, as joined by the Board Respondents, also note that any claim cognizable as an Unfair Labor Practice Charge, including for the failure of the duty of fair representation, carries a limitations period of 180 days. N.J.S.A. 34:13A-5.4(c). Such a period would have run, at the latest, 180 days after the Commissioner's abovecited July 17, 2009 decision, on or about January 17, 2010, now more than two years ago.

The Board Respondents make a similar claim with regard to the claims of ethical misconduct by their various agents. Respondents assert that such claims are cognizable only under the School Ethics Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24 and 24.1, and are strictly irrelevant to the matter before this Court. Moreover, the Board Respondents note that with regard to any claim of an ethics violation on behalf of a school official or employee, N.J.A.C. 6A:28-6.5 imposes a 180-day limitations period. Finally, the Union Respondents argue that Petitioner's claims of right-to-counsel was not violated, as the operative law, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-20, does not oblige either a Board of Education or a bargaining unit to provide legal services. Moreover, the record is clear—again from documents submitted by Petitioner—that the NJEA did, in fact, arrange for representation of Petitioner by Michael Barrett, Esq., and that for his own reasons, and after documented discourse between Mr. Barrett and the Board Attorney, Petitioner chose to no longer avail himself of Mr. Barrett's representation.

With regard to the remaining claim—the application to “re-open the tenure case,” both groups of Respondents make the same argument. Petitioner testified on his own behalf that he was aware of the requirement to undergo a psychiatric fitness-for-duty assessment. The Board had the right to impose such a requirement per N.J.S.A. 18A:16-2, subject to Petitioner's right to contest that requirement, to which he did not avail himself. Despite discourse between two different attorneys on behalf of Petitioner and the former Board Attorney and repeated warnings between November 2008 and April 2009, Petitioner never submitted himself to the assessment.

Similarly, the record, notably including Petitioner's testimony, is clear that he received the Tenure Charges from the Board of Education via Certified Mail, and that he also received a letter from the Commissioner of Education instructing him to respond to the Tenure Charges or face default. Petitioner posits that he was “inundated with mail” at the time, and his testimony also indicates that he was facing various personal difficulties. However, the fact remains that he took no action whatsoever to respond to—or even open, by his own admission—official, certified communications from his employer and from the Commissioner of Education.

Time-bars in litigation before the Commissioner are promulgated for a reason, and are uniformly enforced. Kaprow v. Berkeley Tp. Bd. of Ed., 131 N.J. 572, 587 (1993); Portee v. Newark Bd. of Ed., 94 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 381, 383. These time limitations are strictly enforced—at times to the detriment of a litigant filing an action two days too late, Dreher v. Jersey City Bd. of Ed., 1987 S.L.D. 1706, aff'd State Bd. of Ed. 1988 S.L.D. 2439, rev'd on other grounds, App.Div. A-6120-82 (Feb. 28, 1958).

Based upon these facts, which I FIND to be accurate and conclusive in the record, Respondents argue that there is no basis upon which to “re-open the tenure case” at this point. As noted above, the applicable Department of Education regulations and Rules of Court provide for a ten-day limitations period for a motion for reconsideration, and a 45-day limitations period for an appeal to the Appellate Division. Petitioner took no action whatsoever to avail himself of either. As of the date of the arguments in this matter, the Board Respondents’ counsel accurately calculated that it had been 933 days since the Commissioner issued the decision at issue. The Board and Union Respondents submit that there is no excusable neglect or justification for such a delay, and moreover, Petitioner presents none in his moving papers and arguments.

ORDER

Based upon the foregoing, it is ORDERED that the within Petition of Appeal is DISMISSED with prejudice, for the reasons set forth above.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE :
HEARING OF PAMELA WILLIAMS : COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY : DECISION OF CAMDEN, CAMDEN COUNTY. :

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning Board filed tenure charges of unbecoming conduct, neglect of duty and insubordination against respondent, a tenured special education teacher, and sought to terminate her employment with the district. Neither respondent nor any attorney acting on her behalf filed an answer to the petition following notice pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.3 and 6A:3-5.4.

The Commissioner concluded that, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.4(h), the allegations – which respondent has chosen not to deny – may be deemed admitted and are sufficient to warrant termination of the respondent from her tenured position. Accordingly, the Commissioner granted summary decision to the petitioner, dismissed the respondent from her tenured teaching position in petitioner's school district, and forwarded a copy of this decision to the State Board of Examiners for action against respondent's certificate as that body deems appropriate.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE :
HEARING OF PAMELA WILLIAMS : COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY : DECISION
OF CAMDEN, CAMDEN COUNTY. :

For the District, Louis R. Lessig, Esq., Brown & Connery LLP

No appearance by or on behalf of Pamela Williams

This matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education on February 23, 2012 through the certification of tenure charges of unbecoming conduct, neglect of duty and insubordination by the School District of the City of Camden against Pamela Williams, a tenured special education teacher in the District.

By notice dated February 23, 2012, the Commissioner directed respondent, via both certified and regular mail – the certified copy having been signed for on February 27, 2012 – to file an Answer to the tenure charges against her. This communication clearly provided notice to respondent that, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.3 and 6A:3-5.4, an individual against whom tenure charges are certified “shall have 15 days from the day such charges are filed with the Commissioner to file a written response to the charges with the Commissioner,” and that failure to answer within the prescribed period would – absent granting of an extension for good cause shown – result in the charges being deemed admitted by the charged employee. No reply was received from respondent or any attorney on her behalf.

The Commissioner has reviewed the tenure charges certified against respondent by the District, i.e., unbecoming conduct, neglect of duty and insubordination, and the statement of evidence in support of those charges. The District further reports that Ms. Williams has been, and continues to be, absent without official leave from her assigned duties since September 1, 2011.

Deeming the allegations to be admitted and noting that respondent has failed to respond to the charges certified against her, the Commissioner finds that the District has demonstrated that respondent is guilty of unbecoming conduct, neglect of duty and insubordination, warranting dismissal from her tenured position.

Accordingly, summary decision is hereby granted to the District, and respondent Pamela Williams is dismissed from her tenured teaching position in the District's employ as of the date of this decision. A copy of this decision is being forwarded to the State Board of Examiners for action as that body deems appropriate.

SYNOPSIS

The School Ethics Commission determined that Camden Board of Education member Sean Brown violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(i) of the Code of Ethics for School Board Members when he compared Camden's Superintendent of Schools to a terrorist on his Facebook page. After considering the nature of the charge, the Commission recommended that the Commissioner of Education impose a penalty of censure.

The Commissioner, whose jurisdiction – in the absence of an appeal – is limited to reviewing the Commission's recommended sanction, did not adopt the Commission's recommendation that respondent be censured, but instead elected to change the penalty to a reprimand based upon the absence of any prior violations by respondent. Accordingly, the Commissioner ordered that the above-named respondent be reprimanded as a school official found to have violated the School Ethics Act.

The record of this matter and the decision of the School Ethics Commission (Commission) have been reviewed.¹ In its decision, the Commission determined that respondent – Camden Board of Education member Sean Brown – violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(i) of the Code of Ethics for School Board members when he published, on his Facebook page, certain statements comparing the Camden School District Superintendent to a terrorist. Further, the Commission determined that censure is the appropriate penalty. (Commission Decision at 8)

Initially, it must be emphasized that pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c) and N.J.A.C. 6A:3-9.1, the determination of the Commission as to violation of the School Ethics Act is not reviewable by the Commissioner unless a notice of appeal is filed pursuant to P.L. 2008,c. 36 and N.J.A.C. 6A:4. Because respondent did not file such an appeal, this decision is restricted solely to a review of the Commission's recommended penalty.

In recommending the penalty of censure in the instant case, the Commission recognized "respondent's right to express his difference of opinion with the Board and the administration." (Commission Decision at 7) However, the Commission determined that the approach utilized by respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(i) of the Code of Ethics for School Board Members, which provides: "I will support and protect school personnel in proper performance of their duties."

The Commissioner concurs that comparing the Superintendent to a terrorist goes beyond the expression of differences or good faith criticism of the Superintendent's performance. To the contrary, such a public slur by a Board member is likely to undermine the Superintendent's effectiveness. Further, the Commissioner agrees with the Commission that "in using social media, the affirmative duties within the Code of Ethics for School Board Members may not be overlooked." (Commission Decision at 8) This is so because while Facebook is a vehicle for people to communicate simultaneously with friends, it operates in a manner that allows wide distribution of the entries of any given Facebook user. Indeed, respondent testified before the Commission that he has approximately 1200 Facebook "friends" and that most of his Facebook comments are accessible to the public. (Commission Decision at 3)

The Commission decided upon the sanction of censure to convey a "cautionary message" of first impression that social media postings do not lie outside the purview of the Code of Ethics for School Board Members. (Commission Decision at 8) In view of the absence of prior violations by respondent, the Commissioner has elected to change the penalty to a reprimand.

Accordingly, respondent is hereby reprimanded as a school official found to have violated the School Ethics Act.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

BEFORE THE SCHOOL ETHICS COMMISSION

v.

SEAN BROWN
CAMDEN BOARD OF EDUCATION
CAMDEN COUNTY

Dkt. No. C25-11
DECISION

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This matter arises from a complaint filed on May 16, 2011 by Susan Dunbar Bey alleging that Sean Brown, a member of the Camden Board of Education ("Board") violated the School Ethics Act ("Act"), N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et seq. Specifically, the complainant alleges that the respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(g) and (i) of the Code of Ethics for School Board Members in connection with statements made on his Facebook page and in a newspaper article. The respondent filed an answer on June 8, 2011. The answer alleged that the complaint was frivolous. Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:28-7.2(b), the complainant was accorded the opportunity to submit a reply to the frivolous allegation, but did not.

The parties were notified by letter dated June 22, 2011 that the Commission would consider this matter at its meeting on July 26, 2011 in order to make a determination pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:28-10.8(a) as well as to consider the allegation of frivolousness. At its meeting on July 26, 2011, the Commission voted to find that the above-captioned complaint was not frivolous, in accordance with the standard set forth at N.J.A.C. 6A:28-1.2. Additionally, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:28-10.8(a), the Commission voted to retain this complaint for hearing.

By letter dated October 12, 2011, the parties were notified that this matter would be scheduled for hearing at the Commission's meeting on November 22, 2011. Both parties appeared pro se. After hearing all testimony, as summarized below, the Commission voted during the public portion of its meeting to find that the respondent had violated the Act, as set forth below.

SUMMARY OF THE RECORD

The complainant, who is President of the Board, testified that the respondent was present at the Board's meeting on January 25, 2011 and, after the meeting, he stated on his Facebook page that the Board President does not let students speak. In this instance, the complainant explained that a student representative was going to make statements at the meeting which the complainant believed would be detrimental, so she, as Board President, did not allow the student representative to speak. Exhibit C-1, a printout of the respondent's Facebook page, was accepted into evidence. In response to questions from the Commission, the complainant stated that the student was, indeed, a student representative and not a voting member of the Board. The complainant further testified that the Board's counsel was present at the meeting, but did not raise a concern about not letting the student speak.

The complainant testified that on May 2, 2011, the respondent posted a statement on his Facebook page wherein he compared the Superintendent to a terrorist. Exhibit C-2 was accepted into evidence and the complainant read from the text of the posting, which also included a picture of the Superintendent. The complainant testified that such writings hurt the students who grapple with constant negative publicity about the District. Moreover, when Board members say such things, the complainant testified that there is an assumption that the Board member has some insight, which is not true.

The complainant testified that the media frequently attend Board meetings in pursuit of a story. Based on her training, she believes that she, as the President, is the spokesperson for the Board. The complainant read from a newspaper article published on May 8, 2011, which was accepted as Exhibit C-3. Therein, the respondent is quoted stating there has been no improvement in the graduation rate for years. The complainant testified that she particularly objected to the respondent's statement in the article that the Board and the administrators believe that minorities cannot perform better than they are performing. In response to questions from the Commission, the complainant could not point to any specific inaccuracy with respect to the respondent's statement about graduation rates, but added that the official graduation rates were not available when he made this statement. The complainant questioned the basis for the respondent's statement about the Board and the administration being satisfied with the students' performance.

The respondent, Sean Brown, has been a member of the Board since May 2010. He stated that he believes the basis of these charges is an ideological difference of opinion. As to his comments on Facebook, the respondent questioned how any such statements were any different from him making statements to a group of his friends at his home. In the instance following the January 25th Board meeting, the respondent said that he merely posted what happened at that meeting. The respondent testified that the complainant did not let the student representative speak. He explained that at the Board meeting, there was a proposed after school program and the Board was being asked to approve the teachers for the program. The respondent testified that the student's question was essentially challenging the wisdom of an afterschool program and whether it would be effective, but the complainant did not let the student finish. Maybe, the respondent posited, the student was going to make a statement about a teacher, but he affirmed that it irritates him when students are not able to speak. This was the essence of his statement on his Facebook page. He also referred to the fact that the District did not, after six months, have a District plan. Thus, he stated that parents and students needed to be scared because the District was not providing a thorough and efficient education. The respondent testified that the forthcoming QSAC¹ report will verify his admonition. The respondent stated that he has an obligation to let the community know this information.

In response to cross-examination from the complainant, the respondent explained that Facebook is a tool for him to share information with his friends and his only limitation in doing so should be that he cannot discuss matters that were discussed in closed session. In response to questions from the Commission, the respondent stated that, as of today, his Facebook account is not public. However, he stated that most of the things that he has on his page are accessible to the public and he has about 1,200 Facebook friends.

With respect to Exhibit C-2, the respondent testified that he wrote this statement at about 1:00 in the morning. Noting that he is always careful in choosing his words, he posted, "Now if we could only do something about our local terrorists that destroy dreams and burn futures." The respondent notes that in this posting, he did not directly mention a particular person. He testified that the reason the picture of the Superintendent is there is because when he posted the link to the Camden City Public Schools, the Superintendent's picture came up. The respondent was clear in his testimony that he saw the Superintendent's picture before allowing the statement to "go live," but he did not remove it. He affirmed that he does not regret the posting. He stated that it was "possibly mean," but "not inappropriate." The respondent explained that there was so much attention on May 1, 2011 about the killing of Osama Bin Laden, he could not help but think how "off-focus" people were in that there are so many people struggling in the City of Camden. On cross-examination, the respondent further explained that he did not take down the picture of the Superintendent because he was claiming that there are certain people who are terrorists for their own District and the Superintendent was included in that group.

With respect to his comments to the press as shown in Exhibit C-3, the respondent's testimony addressed the complainant's concern with his statement in the article that the Board and the administrators believe that minorities cannot perform better than they are performing. On this, the respondent testified that meeting after meeting, he believes there is an ideology exhibited by some that a 50% graduation rate is the best they can do in a poor minority community. He stated that he hears this all the time and maintains there is a philosophical difference about education and how the Board chooses to use its power to meet its duty to provide a thorough and efficient education. The respondent acknowledged that he cannot speak for the Board and that the better practice is to allow the Board President to be the spokesperson. However, the statements in Exhibit C-3 represent his opinion; he chose to talk to the media because he maintains that parents need to know that not everyone wants to be a cheerleader or blind supporter of poor management. When cross-examined about the basis for this statement, the respondent replied that this is the way the District is governed. He based his statement on comments from the Superintendent and from other Board members. He testified that he believes the students suffer because of the poor management in the District.

operations and governance, so as to determine the extent to which they are providing a thorough and efficient education. N.J.A.C. 6A:30-1.1.

² The respondent did not offer any exhibits into evidence.

FINDINGS OF FACT

The Commission finds the following facts:

1. The complainant is the President of the Board.
2. The respondent has been a member of the Board since May 2010.
3. At the Board's meeting on January 25, 2011, the complainant believed that a student representative was going to make inappropriate statements, so she, as Board President, did not allow the student representative to speak.
4. The respondent posted the following statement on his Facebook page after the January 25, 2011 Board meeting:

The school board President doesn't let students speak; the board votes for programs that are not effective; six months is not long enough to write a plan. PARENTS AND STUDENTS - BE SCARED. (Exhibit C-1)

5. The respondent posted the following statement on his Facebook page on May 2, 2011:

Now if we could only do something about our local terrorists that destroy dreams and burn futures. (Exhibit C-2)

Under this statement is a link to the Camden City Public Schools and a picture of the Superintendent. The respondent acknowledged that he saw the photo, but did not remove it.

6. The following statement appeared in the press on May 8, 2011:

School board member Sean Brown said he had been unable to secure information from the district about how the graduation rate is calculated and how newly funded police officers would be assigned in the schools. "There is no improvement in high school graduation in many years, nor are there many initiatives to address that issue," Brown said. "What happened in Newark is exactly what needs to happen in Camden," Brown said. "The difference between some of the school board members and school administrators and me is that they believe that poor, minority students can't do any better than this." (Exhibit C-3)

ANALYSIS

The complainant bears the burden of factually proving any violations of the Code of Ethics for School Board Members in accordance with the standards set forth at N.J.A.C. 6A:28-6.4(a). See also, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(b). Here, the complainant asserts that the respondent's actions violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(g) and (i) of the Code of Ethics for School Board Members.

Count 1

In Count 1 of the complaint, the complainant asserts that after the January 25, 2011 Board meeting, the respondent made inaccurate statements pertaining to the Board president and Board business on his Facebook page, which was in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(g), which provides:

I will hold confidential all matters pertaining to the schools which, if disclosed, would needlessly injure individuals or the schools. In all other matters, I will provide accurate information and, in concert with my fellow board members, interpret to the staff the aspirations of the community for its school.

The Commission's regulations require that:

Factual evidence of a violation of the confidentiality provision of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(g) shall include evidence that the respondent(s) took action to make public, reveal or disclose information that was not public under any laws, regulations or court orders of this State, or information that was otherwise confidential in accordance with board policies, procedures or practices. Factual evidence that the respondent violated the inaccurate information provision of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(g) shall include evidence that substantiates the inaccuracy of the information provided by the respondent(s) and evidence that establishes that the inaccuracy was other than reasonable mistake or personal opinion or was not attributable to developing circumstances. N.J.A.C. 6A:28-6.4(a)7.

The respondent does not deny that he made the statement in Exhibit C-1 on his Facebook page. Although the complainant claims the statement was inaccurate, she also testified that she did, indeed, prohibit the student from speaking at the January 25, 2011 meeting. As to the remainder of the posting, the complainant has offered no evidence that substantiates that the respondent posted inaccurate information. Rather, it appears that the respondent was offering his personal opinion. Accordingly, the Commission finds that the complainant failed to factually establish that the respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(g) and Count 1 is, therefore, dismissed.

Count 2

In Count 2 of the complainant, the complainant asserts that on May 2, 2011, the respondent compared the Superintendent to a terrorist on his Facebook page, which was in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(i), which provides:

I will support and protect school personnel in proper performance of their duties.

The Commission's regulations require that:

Factual evidence of a violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(i) shall include evidence that the respondent(s) took deliberate action which resulted in undermining, opposing, compromising or harming school personnel in the proper performance of their duties. N.J.A.C. 6A:28-6.4(a)9.

The respondent does not deny that he was responsible for the Facebook posting in Exhibit C-2. In this connection, the Commission notes that it has found violations of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(i) where the comments made to or about a school employee were direct, confrontational and intimidating. For instance, in I/M/O Charles Fischer, Eatontown Bd. of Ed., Monmouth County, C30-03 (February 24, 2004), Commissioner of Education Decision No. 157-04SEC, April 12, 2004, the Commission found that a board member violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(i) when he called an employee at home and became angry when she refused to provide him with the reports that he had requested. In I/M/O David Kanaby, Hillsborough Bd. of Ed., Somerset County, C53-05 (July 24, 2007), Commissioner of Education Decision No. 350-07SEC, September 10, 2007, the Commission found that the respondent Board member violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(i) when he sent an email to the Superintendent which was both "threatening and intimidating" in that it asked the Superintendent for an accounting of her personal leave. The Board member sent the email to all Board members, as well as the Business Administrator, the Assistant Superintendent and his subordinate. The Commission found the respondent's email to be "a personal and highly critical expression of his anger towards the superintendent in the proper performance of her duties." (Kanaby at slip op. page 3)

In I/M/O David Hollander, Springfield, Bd. of Ed., Union County C49-07 (February 24, 2009), aff'd, Commissioner of Education Decision No. 62-10ASEC, decided March 5, 2010, the respondent Board member wrote a letter to the State complaining about his Superintendent. The Commission found that the letter was not a mere statement of disagreement or dissatisfaction with the Superintendent's handling of matters. The respondent accused the complainant of allowing his administrative staff to violate Board policy, then directed his recriminations to the attention of State officials. Finally, in Brown et al. v. David Matthews, City of Englewood Board of Education, Bergen County, C13-07 (October 27, 2008), aff'd, Commissioner of Education Decision No. 123-09A, April 14, 2009, the Commission found the respondent in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(i) when he refused to cooperate with the District's affirmative action officer (AAO) and, in so doing, engaged in offensive comments so upsetting to the employee that she resigned as the District's AAO.

Here, the Commission finds that the respondent's action in posting the "terrorist" message was, indeed, deliberate. He candidly testified that, even though he did not mention a particular person in the text, when the Superintendent's photo came up as a result of posting a link to the District's website, he saw the picture and did not remove it. The respondent explained that he did not take down the picture of the Superintendent because he was claiming that there are certain people who are terrorists for their own District and the Superintendent was included in that group. In so stating, the respondent explained that there was much attention focused on the killing of Osama Bin Laden, but not enough attention focused on the struggles of the students in the City of Camden. The respondent testified that he does not regret the posting; he stated that it was "possibly mean," but "not inappropriate."

The Commission disagrees. While it recognizes the respondent's right to express his difference of opinion with the Board and the administration, it must also find, under these circumstances, that the respondent's chosen method and manner for doing so was inappropriate. Comparing the Superintendent to a terrorist, on a social media outlet which allowed for access by many people, was an intentionally confrontational act. In this connection, the Commission acknowledges the complainant's observation that members of the community assume that Board members have insight that others do not have. Thus, when a sitting Board member makes such a judgmental proclamation, it is likely to be credited far more than a statement offered by an ordinary citizen. As such, the Commission finds that the statement may reasonably be considered as undermining, opposing, compromising or harming the Superintendent in the proper performance of her duties. Accordingly, the Commission finds that the complainant has established that the respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(i).

Count 3

In Count 3 of the complainant, the complainant asserts that the respondent was quoted in a newspaper article in which he made inaccurate statements concerning fellow board members and school administration. The complainant asserts this was a violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(g) and (i), as set forth above. The respondent does not deny that he made the statements to the media that are in Exhibit C-3. To the extent that the complainant claimed that the graduation statement was inaccurate, she offered no evidence to substantiate the alleged inaccuracy. The complainant's testimony on this count essentially focused on the respondent's statement that the school board members and school administrators believe that poor, minority students cannot do any better. While this may be a loaded statement, the Commission finds that absent any evidence to the contrary, it appears that the respondent was, again, offering his personal opinion. Accordingly, the Commission finds that the complainant failed to factually establish that the respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(g). Neither does the Commissioner find that the complainant's statements to the media rise to the level of a violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(i). Accordingly, Count 3 is, therefore, dismissed.

DECISION

For the reasons set forth above, the Commission dismisses Counts 1 and 3 in the complaint, but finds that Sean Brown has violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(i) of the Code of Ethics for School Board Members as set forth in Count 2.

PENALTY

The Commission recommends a penalty of censure in this matter. In so doing, the Commission notes that this is essentially a matter of first impression. That is, while there have been incidents of Board members posting inappropriate information online at NJ.com, (see, I/M/O Valerie Jordan, High Bridge Bd. of Ed., Hunterdon County, C03-09 (April 20, 2010) Commissioner of Education Decision No. 173-10SEC, decided June 7, 2010; Jacobs v. Delbury, Sussex Wantage Reg'l Bd. of Ed., Sussex County, C44-07 (November 25, 2008) Commissioner of Education Decision No. 7-09 SEC, decided January 9, 2009), this is the first time the Commission has found a violation of the Act for a Board member's postings on Facebook. As such, the Commission declines to necessarily be guided by the penalties designated in those online cases (reprimand and six-month suspension, respectively) or even by the penalties issued in the matters cited in this decision (i.e., I/M/O Charles Fischer, supra; I/M/O David Kanaby, supra; I/M/O Hollander, supra; and Brown et al. v. David Matthews, supra.) Rather, the Commission takes this opportunity to impress upon this respondent, as well as other Board members, that in using social media, the affirmative duties within the Code of Ethics for School Board Members may not be overlooked. The Commission finds that a censure is an appropriate sanction to convey this cautionary message.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c), this decision shall be forwarded to the Commissioner of Education for review of the School Ethics Commission's recommended sanction. Parties may either: 1) file exceptions to the recommended sanction; 2) file an appeal of the Commission's finding of violation; or 3) file both exceptions to the recommended sanction together with an appeal of the finding of violation. Parties taking exception to the recommended sanction of the Commission but not disputing the Commission's finding of violation may file, within 13 days from the date the Commission's decision is forwarded to the Commissioner, written exceptions regarding the recommended penalty to the Commissioner. The forwarding date shall be the mailing date to the parties, indicated below. Such exceptions must be forwarded to: Commissioner of Education, c/o Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, NJ 08625, marked "Attention: Comments on Ethics Commission Sanction." A copy of any comments filed must be sent to the School Ethics Commission and all other parties.

Parties seeking to appeal the Commission's finding of violation must file an appeal pursuant to the standards set forth at N.J.A.C. 6A:4 within 30 days of the filing date of the decision from which the appeal is taken. The filing date shall be three days after the date of mailing to the parties, as shown below. In such cases, the Commissioner's review of the Commission's recommended sanction will be deferred and incorporated into the Commissioner's review of the finding of violation on appeal. Where a notice of appeal has been filed on or before the due date for exceptions to the Commission's recommended sanction (13 days from the date the decision is mailed by the Commission), exceptions need not be filed by that date, but may be incorporated into the appellant's briefs on appeal.

SETTLEMENT AND RELEASE

This Stipulation of Settlement and Release ("Agreement") is made by and between Petitioner, Darrell Jones, and the Respondent, Ewing Board of Education ("Board").

RECITALS

WHEREAS, in or about August of 2011, Respondent Ewing Board of Education held that, based on the results of a residency investigation, minor student D.J. was not domiciled in the Ewing School District ("District") and thus not entitled to a free, public education in the District and passed a resolution ordering the removal of the students from the District; and

WHEREAS, Petitioner thereafter commenced an administrative action to challenge the Board's residency determination with regard to D.J.; and

WHEREAS, this administrative action is captioned D.J. o/b/o D.J. v. Ewing Board of Education, and is presently pending before the Commissioner of Education in the Office of Administrative Law and docketed as OAL Dkt. No. EDU 11821-11, Agency Dkt. No. 270-9/11

("the Litigation"), the allegations of which are detailed more fully in the Petition of Appeal served and filed in the Litigation; and

WHEREAS, in order to avoid the expense, inconvenience, distractions and inherent uncertainties associated with continuation of this dispute, and the fees and expenses that inevitably would result therefrom, the Parties, by this Agreement, herein agree to adopt a full and final settlement of any and all claims, lawsuits, complaints, and/or disputes between Petitioners and Respondent in connection with any and all damages and losses arising from the Litigation; and

WHEREAS, by this Agreement, Petitioner will voluntarily dismiss the Litigation with prejudice, without costs to any party as against the other;

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of good and valuable consideration, the sufficiency and adequacy of which is acknowledged, the parties to this Agreement agree as follows:

1. The Parties mutually agree that, during the pendency of the residency investigation, which began on or about May 5, 2011 through June 30, 2011, D.J. was found not to be domiciled in Ewing, but rather, in Trenton, New Jersey.
2. Petitioners shall pay the Board the sum of Two Thousand, Three Hundred Thirty Four dollars and Seventy-Eight cents ($2,334.78), representing back tuition due and owing for the period of D.J.'s ineligible attendance in the District during the 2010-2011 school year and which shall constitute a full and final settlement of the claim for back tuition asserted against Petitioners by Respondent Board of Education in the Litigation.
3. The amount of $2,334.78 is to be paid as follows: Within fifteen (15) days following the adoption by the Board of Education of a resolution accepting this Agreement, but in no case prior to the receipt of a fully executed copy of this Agreement, Petitioners shall make an initial payment in the amount of One Hundred Dollars ($100.00), in the form of a check made payable to the "Ewing Board of Education," hand-delivered or mailed to the office of Brian Falkowski, School Business Administrator/Board Secretary, at the District Administration office, 2099 Pennington Road, Ewing, New Jersey 08618. The remaining amount of $2,234.78 shall be paid in equal monthly installments of Fifty Dollars ($50.00) each, until the full amount has been satisfied. Nothing herein shall prevent Petitioner from paying a greater amount than the monthly payment amount, provided that at least the minimum payment of $50.00 is received monthly.

4. Each payment of $50.00 is due on the first (1st) day of each Month at the office of the School Business Administrator at the above address, beginning in the month following that in which the initial payment was made. Payments received by the School Business Administrator after the 5th of the month shall incur a late fee of $5.00. Any payment and late fee not received by the 15th of the month shall constitute a default by Petitioner and a breach of this Agreement. Petitioner will receive receipts for each payment from the School Business Administrator.
5. Petitioner, in consideration of this Stipulation of Settlement and Release, and in full, final, and complete settlement of the matter, hereby agree to a withdrawal and/or dismissal, with prejudice, of their Petition of Appeal in this matter.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE	:	APPLICATION FOR EMERGENT RELIEF
TOWNSHIP OF WAYNE, PASSAIC	:

RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this emergent matter, the sound recording of proceedings at the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), and the recommended Order of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) have been reviewed. Upon such review, the Commissioner finds that the petitioner has demonstrated entitlement to emergent relief pursuant to Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982), and codified at N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6, with respect to petitioner's claim that D.D. was not afforded adequate due process prior to his long-term suspension.¹

Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.3(a)10, in each instance of a long-term suspension, the board of education is required to provide the student with a formal hearing where the student is given the opportunity to present a defense to the charges. In this case, it is undisputed that D.D. was not given a formal hearing by the Board in connection with his suspension that stemmed from an incident at school, and a positive test result for the steroid Nandrolone. Regardless of whether D.D.'s suspension was for medical or disciplinary reasons, D.D. was still entitled to the due process protections outlined in N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.3.² The regulations also require the Board, at the completion of a long-term suspension, to either reinstate the student or to continue the suspension. N.J.S.A. 18A:37-5; N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.3(c). Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.3(c), this determination must be made based on the following criteria:

- i. The nature and severity of the offense;
- ii. The district board of education removal decision;
- iii. The results of any relevant testing, assessments or evaluations of the student; and
- iv. The recommendation of the chief school administrator, principal or director of the alternate education program or home or other in-school or out-of-school instruction program in which the student has been placed. [N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.3(c)1.i.-iv.]

Based on the circumstances in this case, the Commissioner finds that the Board shall provide the petitioner with a due process hearing to determine whether D.D.'s suspension was appropriate, and if so, whether the long-term suspension should continue or whether D.D. should immediately return to the general education program.³ Therefore, the Board is directed to provide the petitioner with a due process hearing as soon as possible, but not later than March 31, 2012. To that end, if there are currently no Board meetings scheduled prior to March 31, 2012, the Board is directed to schedule a special meeting to afford the petitioner with the opportunity to have a due process hearing. The Board is reminded that it must also continue to follow the applicable regulatory provisions concerning the educational services that must be provided to D.D. while he is on long-term suspension. N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.3(a)9.

² It is not clear from the record whether D.D. is in fact being held out of school for medical reasons, disciplinary reasons or a hybrid of both.

³ The Commissioner is mindful of the petitioner's assertion that a formal hearing at this juncture should not further delay the ultimate resolution of this matter since the Board should have conducted the hearing when D.D. was initially suspended in January. The petitioner, however, did not challenge the Board's failure to provide the petitioner with a hearing until he filed this application for emergent relief on March 5, 2012.

Accordingly, the recommended decision of the ALJ is modified for the reasons expressed herein, and the petitioner's application for emergent relief is adopted with respect to the petitioner's claim that D.D. was not afforded a formal hearing prior to his long-term suspension. This matter shall continue at the OAL with such proceedings as the parties and ALJ deem necessary to bring it to closure.

of Education (Schwartz, Simon, Edelstein & Celso, attorneys)

BEFORE WALTER M. BRASWELL, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

This matter arises out of a Petition filed with the Department of Education on March 5, 2012, by D.D., Sr., as Guardian Ad Litem for D.D., Jr., a minor, seeking that

D.D., Jr. be immediately permitted back into Wayne Hills High School. The Petition included an emergent motion requesting the minor, D.D., Jr., who has been suspended, without a hearing, for two months, to be immediately allowed back into school. The motion included Affidavits of the minor and his parents, a report from the minor's drug counselor and a report from a toxicologist hired by the Petitioner.

On March 6, 2012, the matter was transmitted from the Department of Education to the Office of Administrative Law and set down for a motion to be heard on March 12, 2012. An appearance was made by Frederick E. Gerson, Feitlin, Youngman, Karas & Gerson, L.L.C., on behalf of Petitioners. An appearance was made and a brief and Certifications were submitted on March 12, 2012 by Nathanya G. Simon, Esq. and John Croot, Esq., Schwartz, Simon, Edelstein & Celso, attorneys on behalf of Respondent, Wayne Board of Education.

The relief sought by the Petitioner is the immediate reinstatement of D.D., Jr., back to Wayne Hills High School.

The Board of Education seeks not to permit D.D. back to school pending a negative, non-dilute chemical screen.

As such, I have considered the papers submitted by the parties and counsel, the arguments made, testimony of the minor, D.D., Jr., the exhibits presented at the hearing, and the applicable laws, regulations and decision law.

For good cause having been shown, I now rule as follows:

This matter arises from events that occurred at the Wayne Hills High School, in Wayne, New Jersey on or about January 11, 2012. At that time, D.D., Jr. was a Junior in High School. He apparently had some altercation with another minor, R.I. It is undisputed that R.I. started the altercation. Based on the actions of D.D., Jr. during the altercation, he was requested to take a steroid test. D.D., Jr. initially refused to take the steroid test. Thereafter, on or about January 18, 2012, D.D., Jr. consented to the steroid test. The steroid test was positive for the anabolic steroid, Nandrolone. D.D., Jr. was not allowed back to school pending a negative steroid test.

D.D., Jr. took a subsequent steroid test, which, again, was positive for the steroid, Nandrolone. As a result, D.D., Jr. was not allowed back to school. D.D. was not provided with any notice of any due process rights to a hearing and was not provided with a hearing in reference to his continued absence from school.

As a result, on or about March 5, 2012, D.D., filed the aforementioned Petition for relief, with Affidavits of D.D., Jr., D.D., Sr., and Certification of D.D.'s mother and counsel.

In addition, D.D. presented a letter from the drug evaluator who is on the Commissioner's approved list of drug counselors. D.D. also presented a report from a toxicologist.

The Petition and Motion were forwarded to the OAL and Motion was heard on March 12, 2012. At that time, Respondent's counsel provided a letter memorandum and Certifications.

PETITIONER'S APPLICATION FOR EMERGENT RELIEF

The minor has certified and testified that he had taken the steroid Nandrolone in October and November, 2011. D.D., Jr. testified that he purchased Nandrolone from a fellow student. He testified that he purchased enough Nandrolone for ten (10) injections. However, he stopped after four (4) injections, in November, 2011. He testified that he has the remaining amount in the original vial.

Exhibits were presented at trial showing D.D. during the time period, October, 2011/November, 2011 in which he testified he injected the steroid. He testified that he had lost twenty three pounds (23) since he stopped taking the steroid in November, 2011. The photographs depicting how he looked while taking the steroid compared to now were accepted into evidence.

Petitioner also presented a report from Amy Klein the drug counselor recommended by the respondent whom he was sent to. The drug counselor prepared a report stating that D.D., Jr. should return to school.

Petitioner's Motion papers included a report from a toxicologist, Dr. Robert Lipsey. Dr. Lipsey's report stated that Nandrolone could remain in a person's system for up to eighteen (18) months in the lay literature, but it has been documented to stay in a person's body, and can be detected for up to six (6) months in actual lab analysis. The report further stated that while the person may not be actively taking the drug for months, the tests may be positive, but there would be absolutely no impairment or visible signs or symptoms for trace amounts in the person's urine or blood.

Respondent's position is that there is a zero tolerance and students are not be permitted back to school, regardless of how long a drug may remain in one's system, until there is an actual negative blood test. The Respondent's position is that this policy is necessary for the safety of the Petitioner and other students. Respondent indicated that this matter was treated primarily as a medical rather than a disciplinary matter. Nevertheless, Respondent offered to provide Petitioner with a due process hearing at the next Board of Education meeting. Petitioner denied that this was a medical rather than a disciplinary matter and argued that the due process procedures in reference to a suspension were applicable.

Based upon the aforesaid facts, I find as follows,

By consent, Petitioner must provide the remaining portion of the steroid to Respondent's counsel by 12:00 p.m. on Wednesday, March 14, 2012. I further find that the minor, D.D., Jr., was in a confrontation on or about January 11, 2011, which was initiated by another student, R.I. I find that D.D., Jr.'s behavior in reference to the confrontation was not appropriate. Moreover, I find that D.D., Jr. has already been disciplined for two (2) months. Respondent's position is that there must be no traces of the steroid in his system prior to being allowed in school. This constitutes an indefinite suspension which I find is improper.

I find there is no basis to continue to keep D.D., Jr. out of school. I find that the fact that he has been out of school for two months is an example to others not to take steroids and to keep him out longer is unfair and not the appropriate remedy pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:40A-12(b).

N.J.S.A. 18A:40A-12(b) is the proper statute in reference to a student's use of anabolic steroids. The statute states, in part, A "if it is determined that the pupil's involvement with and use of these substances represents a danger to the pupils health and well being, the coordinator or other teaching staff member shall refer to the pupil to an appropriate treatment program which has been approved by the Commissioner of Health and Senior Services."

I find that the above is the remedy pursuant N.J.S.A. 18A:40A-12(b), and this has, in fact, been accomplished. Based on the above and based on the arguments of counsel and testimony, I find that D.D. should be immediately allowed back into school.

ORDER

Based on the foregoing, it is ORDERED that the Motion for Emergent Relief is GRANTED for the reasons set forth above.

This order on application for emergency relief may be adopted, modified or rejected by COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who/which by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The final decision shall be issued without undue delay, but no later than forty-five days following the entry of this order. If (title of agency head) does not adopt, modify or reject this order within forty-five days, this recommended order shall become a final decision on the issue of emergent relief in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner in this case on remand – whose position as a substance awareness counselor (SAC) was eliminated in a reduction in force (RIF) at the end of the 2009-2010 school year – asserts that the respondent Board improperly terminated his employment in violation of his tenure rights by failing to re-employ him in one of two school psychologist positions held by non-tenured staff members. At the time of his hire in September 2006, petitioner held a Certificate of Eligibility (CE) which allowed him to seek provisional employment as a SAC. He served for four years under that provisional certification. Petitioner had also earned an educational services certificate with a standard endorsement as a School Psychologist, but had not served in that capacity in respondent's district. The Board contends that petitioner never earned tenure in its district. An Initial Decision from the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), issued in May 2011, determined that petitioner was not employed under tenure at the time of his RIF because he had not earned a standard certificate as a SAC. The ALJ recommended dismissal of the case. The Commissioner subsequently issued a decision remanding the case to the OAL for additional factual findings concerning whether or not petitioner had satisfied the conditions of provisional certification and the requirements for standard certification.

On remand, the ALJ found, inter alia, that: petitioner's provisional SAC certification has now expired; petitioner did not meet the academic requirements for standard SAC certification prior to his termination by respondent and prior to the expiration of his provisional certificate, nor has he done so to date; petitioner's claims that he was impeded by the respondent and by the Department of Education in his attempts to earn standard SAC certification were fully adjudicated in a related appeal to the New Jersey State Board of Examiners (NJSBOE) and are barred in the instant matter under the doctrine of collateral estoppel; and it is unnecessary to reach to petitioner's argument that his tenure rights extend to all endorsements on his educational services certificate, entitling him to positions held by non-tenured school psychologists. The ALJ concluded that petitioner was not employed under tenure at the time of his RIF, and ordered his appeal dismissed.

Upon thorough and independent review, the Commissioner adopted the Initial Decision as the final decision in this case. In so doing, the Commissioner found, inter alia, that the NJSBOE previously determined that petitioner had not satisfied the academic requirements for a standard SAC endorsement, and the Commissioner had upheld this determination. The lack of qualifications for a standard SAC endorsement bar the petitioner from claiming tenure in respondent's district and, in turn, preclude petitioner from any "bumping rights" in the wake of the RIF. Nor does respondent have any jurisdiction to waive the regulatory requirements or disturb the determinations of the NJSBOE. Accordingly, the petition was dismissed.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE	:
BOROUGH OF FORT LEE,	:
BERGEN COUNTY,	:
RESPONDENT.	:

This matter originally came before the Commissioner when respondent terminated petitioner's employment as a substance abuse counselor (SAC) – as a result of a reduction in force (RIF). Petitioner maintained that he had achieved tenure in the SAC position and, because he possessed a standard school psychologist endorsement to an educational services certificate, his tenure in the SAC position allowed him "bumping rights" to school psychologist positions in respondent's district that were held by non-tenured employees. On August 17, 2011, the Commissioner remanded the case to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for factual findings as to whether – at the time that he was "RIF'd" – petitioner had satisfied all of the conditional requirements of his provisional certificate, which he would have had to have done in order to claim tenure rights.

Upon review of the record, the OAL's Initial Decision on remand and petitioner's exceptions, the Commissioner adopts the Initial Decision as the final decision in this case. The record reveals that the New Jersey State Board of Examiners (NJSBOE) determined on July 28, 2010 that petitioner had not satisfied the academic requirements for a standard SAC endorsement.¹ Petitioner appealed to the Commissioner, but the Commissioner upheld the NJSBOE's determination in a decision dated December 23, 2011. No appeal of the Commissioner's decision was filed.

In light of the Commissioner's holding that the NJSBOE correctly found petitioner to have fallen short of the academic requirements for a SAC endorsement, the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) assigned to the remanded action against the Fort Lee Board of Education correctly determined in her Initial Decision that the lack of qualifications for a standard SAC endorsement barred petitioner from claiming tenure in respondent's district. In turn, the lack of tenure precluded petitioner from any "bumping rights" in the wake of the above referenced RIF.

Petitioner's exceptions to the Initial Decision on remand rely heavily upon the respondent district's failure to timely process the paperwork required for the securing of "a provisional educational services certificate with a SAC endorsement." N.J.A.C. 6A:9-13.2(e)(1). However, the provisional SAC endorsement was issued well before the RIF and is not at issue here. Nor is there any allegation that respondent failed to execute its responsibility to provide a six-month school residency program for petitioner – another prerequisite to the issuance of a standard SAC endorsement. N.J.A.C. 6A:9-13.2(e)(3).

Rather, as explained in the Initial Decision, the basis for petitioner's ineligibility for a standard SAC endorsement was his failure to complete the academic requirements set forth in N.J.A.C. 6A:9-13.2(e)(2). Of the three preconditions to standard SAC endorsements that are set forth in N.J.A.C. 6A:9-13.2(e), the second one – N.J.A.C. 6A:9-13.2(e)(2) – calls for full responsibility on the part of the candidate. More specifically, it is the candidate who must ensure that he or she has completed the appropriate courses. It is then the responsibility of the NJSBOE to determine whether the candidate has satisfied the requirements of N.J.A.C. 6A:9-13.2(e)(2). Neither petitioner's lack of diligence in clarifying and, if necessary, supplementing his academic qualifications, nor any alleged delays on the part of the NJSBOE can bestow upon the respondent in this case – i.e., the Fort Lee Board of Education – the jurisdiction to determine that petitioner had satisfied all of the conditional requirements of his provisional certification so as to qualify for the standard SAC endorsement, which is prerequisite to petitioner's achievement of tenure. Thus, petitioner did not achieve tenure in respondent's district and holds no bumping rights.

Accordingly, the petition is dismissed.

BEFORE ELLEN S. BASS, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner, Raymond Ruiz, a substance awareness coordinator (SAC) employed by respondent, the Board of Education of the Borough of Fort Lee (the Board), asserts that the Board improperly terminated his employment due to a reduction in force (RIF), effective June 30, 2010. Ruiz contends that the Board acted in violation of his tenure rights by failing to re-employ him in professional positions he held under tenure, and that are presently held by non-tenured staff members.

Ruiz filed his appeal with the Commissioner of Education (the Commissioner) on July 15, 2010.¹ An answer was filed on behalf of the Board and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) as a contested case on July 29, 2010. An order permitting Reina Sandouk to intervene was entered on November 23, 2010. An Initial Decision was issued on May 19, 2011. (C-1.) On August 17, 2011, the Commissioner issued a decision remanding the case to the OAL for additional factual findings. (C-2.)

I conferred with counsel via telephone on December 9, 2011; all agreed that the issues raised by the remand decision did not warrant a reopening of the evidentiary record. Counsel were afforded an opportunity to file briefs addressing the issue raised by the Commissioner's remand decision. The Board and the intervenor chose not to do so, relying instead on their submissions below. Ruiz submitted a certification and letter from counsel dated January 20, 2012, and received by me on January 27, 2012, at which time the record closed. (P-1.)

ISSUE PRESENTED ON REMAND

Has Ruiz satisfied the conditions of his provisional certification and the requirements for standard certification and, if so, did he achieve tenure in the Fort Lee public schools?

¹ Ruiz's original appeal bore docket number EDU 08187-10.

FINDINGS OF FACT

The findings of my May 19, 2011, Initial Decision are incorporated herein by reference. (C-1.) I additionally FIND as follows:

Ruiz's provisional certification has expired.² Ruiz did not meet the academic requirements for standard certification prior to his termination in Fort Lee, prior to the expiration of his provisional certificate, nor has he done so to date. Ruiz's eligibility for standard certification as a SAC was the subject of an appeal by him in Ruiz v. State Board of Examiners, EDU 12754-10, which I decided via Initial Decision dated November 9, 2011. (C-3.) Ruiz had challenged the denial of his application for standard certification. My Initial Decision affirmed the action of the State Board of Examiners, and was adopted by the Commissioner on December 23, 2011. (C-4.)

The thrust of the facts contained in Ruiz's certification is that he was unable to earn standard certification through no fault of his own. But Ruiz admits that as early as February 25, 2008, he received an e-mail from the Fort Lee Human Resources officer stating that he might be short credits needed for standard certification. It was then that Ruiz began to urge the Office of Licensure and Credentials that the 21–27 missing credits were encompassed in other course work he had completed. Those efforts continued with a package of information sent to the coordinator of administrative training of the Office of Licensure and Credentials, including transcripts and other documents which purported to demonstrate that the required course work was complete. On December 11, 2009, another e-mail from Human Resources in Fort Lee again alerted Ruiz that he needed an additional 21–27 credits to qualify for standard certification. Rather than take the required courses, Ruiz continued to assert that they were unnecessary. By December 15, 2009, he had filed a letter of appeal with the director of the Office of Licensure and Credentials. Ruiz took two more graduate courses at Montclair State University in May 2010; nonetheless, the Board of Examiners continued to maintain that he lacked sufficient credit for standard certification.

² As noted in the Initial Decision (C-1), a renewal of Ruiz's provisional certificate was issued in August 2009. The provisional certificate is a temporary two-year certificate; hence, it expired in July 2011. N.J.A.C. 6A:9-6.2; N.J.A.C. 6A:9-2.1.

Ruiz urges that the Fort Lee district was slow in formalizing his provisional certification. This point was duly noted by the Commissioner, who reminded the Board “that the responsibility for securing provisional certification for a novice professional lies with the school district that hires the staff member.” (C-2 at 4.) As a result, the Commissioner held that Ruiz was deemed to have worked under his provisional certificate throughout his employment in Fort Lee. (C-2 at 5.) But the district’s misfeasance in no way impacted Ruiz’s ability to complete the course requirements for standard certification.

Ruiz’s employment in Fort Lee terminated on June 30, 2010. As of the date of his termination, Ruiz had not yet received a decision on his application for standard certification. In a decision dated July 28, 2010, the Examiners concluded that Ruiz had satisfied all the requirements for certification except for 21–27 semester-hours credits completed through a State-approved graduate program.³ Ruiz had failed to supply the Examiners with a Verification of Program Completion (VOPC) form properly completed and signed by the appropriate representative of New Jersey City University (NJCU), where he had completed his graduate credits. His application for standard certification was denied, and an appeal of the Examiners’ decision to the Commissioner followed.

Ruiz initially continued to maintain that he had completed the needed course work, and that he could not complete the VOPC form because he was not being directed to the proper representatives of NJCU. But with the assistance of the deputy attorney general assigned to the Examiners appeal, Ruiz was put in contact with the correct signatory for the VOPC form, a Dr. Warren. Ruiz submitted a certification in his Examiners appeal stating, “[a]fter several weeks of attempting to get a definitive answer, [I] was informed that Dr. Warren would sign the form if [I] took two more classes at NJCU and those classes happened to be offered that upcoming summer semester.” (C-3.) It was thus clear that Ruiz continued to be short credits, and for this reason was deemed ineligible for standard certification.

³ It is uncontroverted and I FIND that Ruiz had met the other requirements for certification, including completion of a six-month residency while employed full time under a provisional certificate, per N.J.A.C. 6A:9-13.2(e)(3).

ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Tenure is a legislative status that is earned by operation of law, and upon meeting the precise requirements of the tenure statute. Spiewak v. Rutherford Bd. of Educ., 90 N.J. 63 (1982); Zimmerman v. Newark Bd. of Educ., 38 N.J. 65 (1962). Ruiz's claims spring from N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5, which provides in pertinent part:

The services of all teaching staff members . . . in positions which require them to hold appropriate certificates issued by the board of examiners, serving in any school district or under any board of education, excepting those who are not the holders of proper certificates in full force and effect . . . shall be under tenure during good behavior and efficiency . . . after employment in such district or by such board for:

- (a) Three consecutive calendar years, or any shorter period which may be fixed by the employing board for such purpose; or
- (b) Three consecutive academic years, together with employment at the beginning of the next succeeding academic year; or
- (c) The equivalent of more than three academic years within a period of any four consecutive academic years.

In my Initial Decision, I concluded that a provisional certificate is not the "proper certificate" contemplated by N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5, and that, accordingly, Ruiz was not employed by the Board under tenure at the time of his RIF. In so determining, I gave consideration to the argument that Ruiz's rights should be governed by the holding in Anson v. Bridgeton Board of Education, 1972 S.L.D. 638. There it was determined that one of the petitioners was employed under "an appropriate provisional certificate issued by the State Board of Examiners" and thus had earned tenure. Anson, supra, 1972 S.L.D. at 639. I was of the view that the provisional certificate when Anson was decided came with far different standards and requirements. In 1972, the provisional certificate was issued for one year to applicants for a standard certificate who were short academic credits. The holder was assured continued eligibility for employment so long as the needed credits were earned. Id. at 638 (citing N.J.A.C. 6:11-4.2).

In the ensuing years, the certification process underwent sweeping changes. In 1984, major reforms were enacted to eliminate the practice of emergency licensure from academic teaching fields, and in 1988–89, further amendments required candidates for licensure to serve a provisional year of employment under the guidance of a mentor, and as a condition of earning permanent licensure. 28 N.J.R. 5128(a) (December 16, 1996). I thus concluded that the provisional certificate as it is issued today is a substandard certificate that allows its holder to pursue the required mentoring and experience needed to qualify for standard certification, and that only standard certification is the “proper certificat[ion] in full force and effect” contemplated by the tenure law. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. Since Ruiz had not earned standard certification prior to his termination, I concluded that he could not successfully assert that he had earned tenure in Fort Lee.

But the Commissioner took pains to emphasize that Anson remains good law, citing the following language:

The holder of a provisional teaching certificate accepts a conditional requirement of earning four academic credits per year, and the validity of a provisional certificate cannot be questioned as it relates to tenure, so long as this requirement is met.

[C-2 at 6, citing Anson, supra, 1972 S.L.D. at 638 (Commissioner’s emphasis).]

The Commissioner thus held that Ruiz would have earned tenure in Fort Lee under his provisional certificate if he had “satisfied all of the conditional requirements of his provisional certification.” (C-2 at 6.) The Commissioner elaborated that tenure is “conditioned not just upon . . . years of service under provisional certification, but also upon . . . timely completion of the academic and professional requirements for standard certification.” (C-2 at 8.)

Ruiz did not timely complete the academic requirements for standard certification either prior to the termination of his employment in Fort Lee, or prior to the expiration of his provisional certificate. Nor has he done so to date. Accordingly, I am compelled to again CONCLUDE that Ruiz was not employed under tenure at the time of his reduction in force.

Ruiz asserts via his certification that he diligently worked to timely complete the conditional requirements of his provisional certification, and that he “complied with every obligation placed upon [him].” He urges that he should not be penalized for ministerial errors by the Board and Department of Education that impeded his ability to earn standard certification. But these claims by Ruiz were fully adjudicated in his appeal before the State Board of Examiners, and revisiting them is barred under the doctrine of collateral estoppel. It is well established that a party is precluded from relitigating any issue actually determined in a prior action. See State v. Gonzalez, 75 N.J. 181, 186 (1977); United Rental Equip. Co. v. Aetna Life and Cas. Ins. Co., 74 N.J. 92, 101 (1977). The policy considerations that support judicial doctrines like collateral estoppel—finality and repose; prevention of needless litigation; avoidance of duplication; reduction of unnecessary burdens of time and expense; elimination of conflicts; and basic fairness—have equal applicability in the administrative forum. Hackensack v. Winner, 82 N.J. 1, 32 (1980).

In light of my continued conclusion that Ruiz did not earn tenure, it remains unnecessary to reach his remaining argument that his rights extend to all endorsements on his educational services certificate and that he is entitled to the positions held by non-tenured school psychologists by virtue of his tenure status. Dennerly v. Bd. of Educ., 131 N.J. 626 (1993); Ellicott v. Franklin Twp. Bd. of Educ., 251 N.J. Super. 342 (App. Div. 1991).

SYNOPSIS

Pro-se petitioner appealed the respondent's denial of her application for the issuance of a Principal Certificate of Eligibility (PCE). Petitioner contended that, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:9-12.5(a), the 31.5 credits that she earned toward completion of a post-master's program in Educational Administration at Drexel University satisfies the "coherent sequence of 30 semester hours credits" required by the regulation. Respondent asserted that: the regulation requires completion of a post-master's program; petitioner never completed her program at Drexel University; petitioner is therefore not eligible for the PCE. The parties filed cross motions for summary decision.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:9-12.5(a)liii, candidates for the PCE must complete a post-master's program; by regulation, petitioner had to meet the requirement that she complete a post-master's program, not just acquire credits toward completion of the program; petitioner has not shown, and cannot show, that she has completed a post-master's program; and there are no material facts in dispute and the matter is ripe for summary decision. The ALJ concluded that petitioner does not meet the requirements for issuance of a PCE and accordingly ordered the petition dismissed.

Upon review, the Commissioner adopted the Initial Decision of the OAL as the final decision in this matter, granted summary decision in favor of respondent and against petitioner, and dismissed the petition. In so doing, the Commissioner noted that denial of PCE to petitioner is compelled by law as petitioner has not satisfied the basic eligibility requirements for the certificate of eligibility that she seeks.

The Commissioner has reviewed the record of this case and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL),¹ and concludes that petitioner has not satisfied all of the regulatory requirements for earning a principal's certificate of eligibility (PCE).

N.J.A.C. 6A:9-12.5(a) identifies five conjunctive prerequisites for attaining a PCE. Respondent maintains that petitioner failed to satisfy the first prerequisite, rendering her ineligible for a PCE regardless of whether she met the remaining four requirements.² That first prerequisite, set forth in N.J.A.C. 6A:9-12.5(a)(1), mandates that a candidate complete one of four program options (i. ii. iii, or iv).

More specifically, to satisfy the first of the five prerequisites for a PCE, a candidate must have either completed a masters or higher degree program in "educational leadership, or in curriculum and instruction, or in one of the recognized fields of leadership and

² Section 3 of the petition appears to incorrectly allege that respondent's rejection of petitioner's application for the PCE was based upon a failure by petitioner to satisfy the second prerequisite for a PCE, i.e., the condition of completing 30 or more graduate credits in certain designated subjects. N.J.A.C. 6A:9-12.5(a)(2)

management,” N.J.A.C. 6A:9-12.5(a)(1) (i and iv), or have completed a post-masters “certificate of advanced study in educational administration and supervision,” N.J.A.C. 6A:9-12.5(a)(1) (ii), or have “completed [a post-masters program of 30 credits] at one institution in fields outlined in (a)1i above” [i.e. educational leadership, curriculum and instruction or recognized fields of leadership or management], N.J.A.C. 6A:9-12.5(a)(1) (iii). (Emphasis added.)

It is undisputed that petitioner did not earn the post-baccalaureate degrees called for in options i and iv of N.J.A.C. 6A:9-12.5(a)(1). Nor has petitioner produced a certificate of advanced study in educational administration and supervision as referenced in option ii of N.J.A.C. 6A:9-12.5(a)(1). It remains for the Commissioner to determine whether petitioner’s studies at Drexel University satisfy the conditions set forth in option iii of N.J.A.C. 6A:9-12.5(a)(1).

In so determining, the Commissioner notes that petitioner conceded in her pleadings that she did not complete the Drexel University program, which apparently requires at least 48 semester hours. (Petition at 2) Thus, the Commissioner must concur with respondent and the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) that petitioner failed to satisfy option (iii) of N.J.A.C. 6A:9-12.5(a)(1), pursuant to which a candidate must hold a masters degree and complete – at one institution – “a post-masters program in a coherent sequence of 30 semester hour credits [in fields outlined in N.J.A.C. 6A:9-12.5 (a)(1)(i)] as they appear on the institution’s transcripts.”³

Having failed to satisfy any of the four options set forth in N.J.A.C. 6A:9-12.5 (a)(1), one of the five conjunctive prerequisites for a PCE, petitioner was not eligible to receive that certification when she submitted her application to respondent in 2011. The Commissioner accordingly concludes that it was not arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable for respondent to deny the application. The Initial Decision is adopted as the final decision in this case, summary disposition is granted in favor of respondent and against petitioner, and the petition is dismissed.

NEW JERSEY STATE BOARD

OF EXAMINERS,

Cecelia Crespo, petitioner, pro se

Caroline Jones, Deputy Attorney General, for respondent (Jeffrey S. Chiesa, Attorney General of New Jersey, attorneys)

Record Closed: December 8, 2011

Decided: January 30, 2012

BEFORE LISA JAMES-BEAVERS, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On August 17, 2011, petitioner Cecelia Crespo sought a declaratory ruling that she completed the requirements for a Principal Certificate of Eligibility pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.13. She also sought a declaration that she is eligible for Principal and Supervisory Certificates. However, since the denial of her Supervisor certification was not reviewed by the State Board of Examiners, which transmitted the case to the OAL, it is not currently before me.

On September 8, 2011, respondent New Jersey State Board of Examiners (respondent) filed a motion to dismiss in lieu of answer and a brief in support of the Motion. On September 12, 2011, the Bureau transmitted to and filed the case with the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for hearing pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. On November 30, 2011, I denied the motion to dismiss on the grounds that Ms. Crespo had alleged enough facts in her pleadings to require the respondent to file an answer. On December 7, 2011, respondent filed an answer to the petition. I held a telephone conference with the parties on that date. Both indicated that they were amenable to having me treat the motion to dismiss in lieu of answer and the reply as cross-motions for summary decision and decide whether declaratory judgment may be granted in petitioner's favor. Based on the information before me, I am granting respondent's motion for summary decision and denying that of petitioner.

FINDINGS OF FACT

The following material facts are undisputed. Therefore, I FIND them as FACT.

Ms. Crespo earned a Master's degree in City/Regional Planning from Rutgers University. She then enrolled in an Education Administration program at Drexel University earning a total of 31.5 credits by the fall quarter of 2010. Ms. Crespo satisfied the requirements toward certification, except for evidence of completion of a program of study. Ms. Crespo did not complete the program. (Petition at 2). Ms. Crespo's coursework in Education Administration is within the letter of Endorsement Code 0299 requiring thirty credits in an Educational Leadership program. After Ms. Crespo submitted her application for the Principal Certificate of Eligibility, the Office of Licensing and Credentials (OLC) informed her that if she submitted a Verification of Program Completion (VOPC), a review by the credentials board would not be necessary. Thinking that her requirements had been fulfilled, she began an educational Doctorate program in Educational Leadership at Rutgers without completing the 48+ Master's Program in Educational Administration. When she received the denial of her application from OLC, she submitted her application to the Credentials Review Board with her transcript and course evaluation that she believed showed adherence to the regulation N.J.A.C. 6A:9-3.4(a)1-6, prescribing Interstate School Leaders Licensure (ISLLC) standard, for review of her coursework. On March 31, 2011, the Board determined that petitioner did not satisfy the basic requirements for issuance of a certificate.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

In order to be issued an administrative certificate for principal, an applicant must show that she completed a state approved educational leadership preparation program for candidates matriculated and enrolled in such a program on or after September 1, 2008. N.J.A.C. 6A:9-12.5(a). Petitioner argues that she successfully completed the program because she met the requirements that:

1. She holds a master's degree from a regionally accredited college or university and completed a post-master's program in a coherent sequence of thirty semester hour credits as they appear on the institution's transcript.
2. She completed a minimum of thirty graduate credits, in addition to the master's program, in the quality components of preparation to promote student learning as set forth in N.J.A.C. 6A:9-3.4(a)1-6.
3. She completed a 300-hour internship in educational leadership independent of other course requirements;
4. She passed a State-approved examination of knowledge that is acquired through study of the topics listed in N.J.A.C. 6A:9-12.5(a)2 and that is most directly related to the functions or principals as defined in N.J.A.C. 6A:9-12.3(b); and

5. She provided documentation evidencing completion of five years of successful educational experience under a valid provisional or standard New Jersey or equivalent out-of-State certificate.

Ms. Crespo argues that respondent defines its credentials review as "a request to substitute alternate education or experience, submitted by an applicant to the Board following an adverse evaluation of credentials by the [OLC] due to a licensure deficiency or compliance with a regulatory requirement in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.13." She contends that respondent contradicted its defined task when it decided that the only way that it could determine successful completion of a program was through a VOPC, saying, "The Board views completion holistically for any one of the educational leadership preparation programs upon receipt of the VOPC form." (Board decision at 4). She submits that respondent should have reviewed the history of her experience of effective teaching and education leadership in New Jersey.

Respondent, both in its answer and motion, disputes that petitioner has submitted all documents and proofs that she has met the requirements for Principal Certificate of Eligibility. It states that the regulation requires that an applicant "complete a post-master's program in a coherent sequence of 30 semester hour credits as they appear on the institution's transcript." N.J.A.C. 6A:9-12.5(a)1iii (emphasis supplied). The requirement of a VOPC is to verify that the program was completed. The necessity of the VOPC is obvious given the mandatory nature of the regulatory certification requirements. See Glennon v. New Jersey State Board of Examiners and Centenary College, EDU 7419-07, Final Decision (September 18, 2009). In the Glennon case, the Final Decision upheld the Board's requirement that an applicant provide verification from the college the applicant attended pursuant to the certification requirement that applicant complete a post-baccalaureate program.

Petitioner has not shown and cannot show that she completed a post-master's program. She has over thirty credits in addition to her masters. However, the respondent made it known to petitioner that it cannot waive regulatory requirements. Thus, petitioner's expectation that respondent would consider her history of experience in effective teaching and education leadership was an unrealistic one. By regulation, she had to meet the requirement that she complete a post-master's program, not just acquire credits toward it. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that petitioner did not meet the requirements for the Principal Certificate of Eligibility since she did not complete the post-master's program.

Summary decision is appropriate when the papers filed show there is no genuine issue of material facts challenged and the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law. N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5. I CONCLUDE respondent's papers have demonstrated that there are no material facts in dispute and judgment in its favor is appropriate as a matter of law.

ORDER

Based on the foregoing, I ORDER that Ms. Crespo's request for declaratory ruling that she is entitled to a Principal Certificate of Eligibility be DENIED and her petition DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." OF ELIZABETH, UNION COUNTY,

PETITIONER,

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

V.

DECISION

NEW JERSEY STATE DEPARTMENT
OF EDUCATION, OFFICE OF
COMPLIANCE INVESTIGATIONS,

RESPONDENT.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning Board challenged respondent's determination that petitioner violated provisions of the Public School Contracts Law when it awarded a contract for school uniforms to The Uniform Group in 2006, and respondent's consequent demand that petitioner refund State aid in the amount of $594, 217.10. The Uniform Group was not the lowest bidder, but submitted the lowest bid that complied with the criteria set forth in the bid specification documents. The low bidder, Kids Place, submitted a complaint to the Department of Education alleging improprieties in the bidding process. Respondent contended that the petitioning Board violated N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-15 – which requires that bid specifications must be drafted in a manner to encourage free, open and competitive bidding – when it, inter alia, listed the wrong style number for mesh shorts, which allegedly made it impossible for prospective bidders to provide the item, and when it allegedly called for a special order item.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: the Department failed to prove by a preponderance of the evidence that the Board violated N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-15, as respondent based its arguments on a mistake of fact, a mistake of law, or both; the bid specifications were as definite, precise, and full as practicable when petitioner advertised for bids; and the award of the contract to The Uniform Group was proper, as it was the lowest responsible bidder. The ALJ concluded that the Board acted in compliance with the law.

Upon full review and consideration of the record, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ's findings of fact and conclusions, and found that the facts in this matter do not support a finding that petitioner violated the school bidding laws. Accordingly, no refund of State aid from petitioner is warranted.

This synopsis is not part of the Commissioner's decision. It has been prepared for the convenience of the reader. It has been neither reviewed nor approved by the Commissioner.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY : OF ELIZABETH, UNION COUNTY, :

PETITIONER, :

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

V. :

DECISION

NEW JERSEY STATE DEPARTMENT
 OF EDUCATION, OFFICE OF
 COMPLIANCE INVESTIGATIONS, :

RESPONDENT. :

In this controversy, petitioner asks the Commissioner to set aside a January 2007 report wherein respondent 1) determined that petitioner had violated provisions of the Public School Contracts Law, and 2) demanded a state aid refund from petitioner in the amount of $594,217.10. Upon his review of the record,¹ Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), respondent's exceptions, and petitioner's reply thereto, the Commissioner concurs with the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) that the facts do not support a determination that petitioner violated N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-15 in 2006 when it awarded a contract for school uniforms to The Uniform Group. It follows that no basis exists for respondent to demand a refund of State aid from petitioner.

In its exceptions, which were filed in accordance with the order granting a motion for leave to file them out of time, respondent asks the Commissioner to reject the Initial Decision and offers two reasons for its request. First, respondent contends that the ALJ erroneously assigned the burden of proof to respondent. Second, respondent maintains that the ALJ overlooked relevant evidence and assumed facts not in evidence. Thus, respondent urges, the ALJ's legal analysis of the controversy was invalidated by its reliance on misinformation.

As to the first proposition, the Commissioner concludes that although the ALJ did appear to erroneously assign to respondent the burden of persuasion,² the facts as a whole support petitioner's claim that it did not violate the school bidding laws when it rejected the unresponsive Kids Place bid and accepted the higher responsive bid offered by The Uniform Group. Thus, notwithstanding the ALJ's misapplication of the burden of persuasion, petitioner made the showing necessary to sustain its case.

As to the broad allegation of erroneous fact-finding and legal analysis, respondent raises, for the most part, the same issues here that it raised below. First, it once again asserts that petitioner's bid specifications were impermissibly vague because an incorrect style number was used to identify the model of gym shorts that petitioner sought, and because Isaac Dweck, Vice President of Kids Place (Dweck), alleged that he could not find contact information for Style Plus, the named manufacturer of the full skort called for in the specifications.

Examination of the facts regarding the gym shorts reveals that an incorrect style number was indeed printed in the specifications, and that it was easily ascertainable that the incorrect number corresponded to a type of tank top, as opposed to shorts. In the case of such an obvious error, it cannot be said that a bidder is precluded from making an intelligent decision. The school bidding law contemplates errors in specifications and provides an avenue for the correction of such errors. More specifically, a bidder may seek clarification or challenge a specification – in writing so that all bidders are equally apprised of the issue. N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-15. Dweck conceded that he had recognized that the style number was a mistake when he reviewed the specifications but never wrote to petitioner for clarification. (T190-91)³ Instead, he unilaterally offered cotton shorts.⁴ Thus, it was Dweck's failure to follow public bidding procedure – not petitioner's solicitation – that caused Kids Place's unresponsiveness to the specifications concerning gym shorts.

As to respondent's assertion that the portion of the bid calling for a full skort was vague – because Dweck complained that he could not contact the company listed in the specifications as the manufacturer – the Commissioner agrees with the ALJ that the record does not support such an allegation. Respondent's own investigator, Sonya Donalson, reported that she was able to reach Style Plus. (T58-59) Based upon her research, she determined that Dweck's allegations concerning the skort were "unsubstantiated." (Joint Exhibit J-21 at 6) Thus, any confusion about acquiring the skort should not be attributed to petitioner. And, as mentioned above, even if there had been ambiguity in the section of the specifications pertaining to the skort, N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-15 provides an avenue for avoiding the invalidation of an entire bid due to one irregularity.

Another of respondent's reasons for challenging the ALJ's findings relates again to the above-mentioned full skort. Respondent appears to suggest that petitioner's specifications were unfair because they called for a skort that had been produced by Style Plus for the previous year's pilot uniform program – at the request of The Uniform Group.

⁴ When asked why he provided cotton shorts instead of the mesh shorts requested in the specifications, Dweck answered "no reason." (T217-18)

As mentioned above, no finding of unfairness regarding the skort solicitation appeared in respondent's original investigative report. Respondent first raised the issue in its response to petitioner's first appeal of the investigative report. (Joint Exhibit 23 at 2) In the appeal denial, respondent observed that the specified skort was "not a catalog item," and opined that it was "not a traditional skort." (Ibid.) Further, respondent assumed that because The Uniform Group had supplied the full skort in the previous year, it held an unfair advantage over the other bidders. (Ibid.) After petitioner brought a second level appeal, respondent opined, in its appeal denial, that "the full skort was "not readily available over the internet . . . namely because [it] was not a catalog item nor was it a traditional skort." (Joint Exhibit 25 at 2) And respondent again assumed that The Uniform Group's procurement of the skort for the previous year's pilot program gave it an unfair advantage over other bidders. (Ibid.)

The Commissioner cannot accept respondent's conclusions because there are no grounds in the record to support them. While it is true that a petitioner bears the burden of producing evidence to support its allegations, it is also true that investigative conclusions must be grounded in fact – not assumptions. First, nothing in the record – aside from the opinion of respondent – supports the supposition that a full skort is a non-traditional skort. Second, while the Style Plus full skort may not have been a catalog item, that does not signify that it is unavailable. Third, there is no evidence in the record that The Uniform Group had an exclusive right to sell the Style Plus full skort – as Dweck assumed. (T144-45) Finally, while petitioner's solicitation identified specific brands, it also allowed for approved equivalents. (Joint Exhibit 2 at 2 and 9)

Further, it would be counter-intuitive to penalize petitioner for soliciting a bid item – i.e., the Style Plus skort – that it had previously found satisfactory, when there is no proof in the record that bidders other than The Uniform Group would have been precluded from ordering same.⁵ And there is also nothing in the record suggesting that Style Plus is the only manufacturer of full skorts. As referenced above, the bidders on petitioner's solicitation were expressly allowed to ask for permission to submit a substitute brand (so long as they did so in writing, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-15(d)). As the ALJ found, "[h]ad Kids Place submitted a full skort by another manufacturer, then [respondent] would have had a more persuasive argument." (Initial Decision at 27) In light of the foregoing, the Commissioner rejects respondent's contention that petitioner's specifications were impermissibly vague.

The second of respondent's reasons for attacking the ALJ's fact-finding and legal analysis relates to "the selection process." (Respondent's Exceptions at 21) Respondent contends that petitioner's selection of the blazer submitted by The Uniform Group was a departure from its own specifications, and thus a violation of the laws requiring free, open and competitive bidding. This contention rests on Dweck's allegation that the specifications called for dry-clean only blazers.

It is undisputed that the specifications do not mention cleaning instructions for the blazers. (T143; T166) Respondent's position rests on Dweck's recollection that Executive Apparel – the manufacturer named in the specifications – only manufactured dry-cleanable blazers in 2006. (T199-200) He produced no catalogues or labels to support this assertion, T186, and the ALJ consequently did not assign much weight to same.⁶ Additionally, Dweck admitted that he did not inspect the sample blazers that Uniform Group offered with its bid and consequently did not know which model/style number Uniform Group submitted.

In light of the foregoing, there is no reason for the Commissioner to overturn the ALJ's determination that Dweck's testimony about the blazers was unreliable. See, N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(c); D.L. and Z.Y. on behalf of minor children, T.L. and K.L. v. Board of Education of the Princeton Regional School District, 366 N.J. Super. 269, 273 (App. Div. 2004) (the Commissioner must accept the ALJ's credibility determinations unless the record blatantly contradicts same). As there is nothing else in the record that suggests that petitioner, in choosing washable blazers, deviated from its specifications, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ's finding that no procedural violation of the bidding laws occurred in the selection of the blazers.

Respondent's third criticism of the ALJ's findings and analysis is that he failed to conclude that an unfair advantage was bestowed upon The Uniform Group, in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-15(e). (Respondent's Exceptions at 26) This accusation appears to encompass a wide range of issues, some of which have already been addressed supra, and will not be readdressed.

The first issue relates to the testimony of petitioner's purchasing agent, Robert Jaspan, that – in an effort to publish a more specific bid than it had for the previous year's pilot project – he asked The Uniform Group for the manufacturers and style numbers of the garments which had been supplied in the pilot program, and with which petitioner had been satisfied. (Initial Decision at 7)⁷ Respondent alleges that petitioner "disseminat[ed] Uniform Group's deficient bid specifications," therewith creating a situation in which The Uniform Group knew what petitioner wanted, but – because the specifications were allegedly erroneous and vague⁸ – other bidders could not know what was sought. (Respondent's Exceptions at 27)

At the outset, respondent points to nothing in the school bidding laws or regulations that bars a board of education from obtaining information from a former supplier about model numbers for goods which the board wishes to include in a subsequent solicitation.⁹ The information, of course, must be incorporated into the specifications in a manner that is clear and specific to everyone, so that the former supplier is not the sole possessor of the information. Examination of Joint Exhibit J-2 – petitioner's specifications – reveals that they were, in fact, clear and specific. As already discussed supra, the one typo regarding the mesh shorts was easily identifiable by anyone who checked the Augusta catalogue, and was curable by means of the clarification options that are incorporated in N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-15. And, respondent's allegations notwithstanding, the information provided in the specifications about the full skorts was sufficient for a bidder to identify and procure that item.

Respondent also suggests that because "Uniform Group presumably had an established relationship with each manufacturer listed in the bid specifications that other prospective bidders did not enjoy," petitioner was allowing The Uniform Group an unfair advantage. (Respondent's Exceptions at 28) The key word in this allegation by respondent is "presumably." Neither respondent nor the Commissioner may make determinations based upon speculation. Equally problematic is respondent's tacit inference that once a supplier forms a relationship with one vendor, it will not be eager to establish new business relationships with similarly situated vendors. Moreover, the Commissioner notes that the bidding laws do not –

⁸ For example, the already discussed style number error regarding the mesh gym shorts.

⁹ Indeed, respondent's witness, Investigator Karl Feltes, did not regard The Uniform Group's assistance to petitioner in drafting the specifications as a bidding violation. (T102) and logically should not – bar a board from soliciting items that were previously procured simply because the previous supplier, who obviously is familiar with the items, might be among the bidders.

Another of respondent's allegations of unfair advantage relates to the fact that Deborah Brady, one of the three school principals who comprised the selection committee for the bid submissions, had previously met with The Uniform Group representatives to see samples and discuss same. Respondent contends that including Brady in the review committee gave The Uniform Group an unfair advantage, since she would have purportedly recognized which samples were submitted by The Uniform Group and which were not.

The Commissioner does not have a transcript of Brady's testimony, but the ALJ summarized it on page 12 of the Initial Decision. Brady apparently denied knowing – at the time the selection committee reviewed the bid samples – which vendor submitted which samples with its bid. The ALJ found her to be a credible witness. (Initial Decision at 9) Equally as significant is the fact that, once again, respondent rests its argument upon conjecture – namely, that Brady's agenda was not to pick the best garments for petitioner's students but rather to make sure that The Uniform Group got the contract. There is nothing in the record to support the latter scenario and the Commissioner therefore cannot agree that Brady's inclusion in the selection committee was an impediment to open, competitive bidding.

The last argument that respondent makes in support of its position that The Uniform Group was given an unfair advantage pertains not to petitioner's specifications, but to an error made by The Uniform Group in its bid. A significant disparity in the respective bidders' prices for girls tights led to the realization that The Uniform Group had mistakenly submitted as its rate for one pair of girls tights, the cost of a 3-pack of tights. This error led to a total bid price of $431,517.90, instead of $412,357.98, the latter of which figures would have been the total price if the correct rate for tights had been used. As the Kids Place bid was $415,687.70, The Uniform Group's mistake converted it from lowest bidder to highest bidder.

No allegation is made that petitioner allowed The Uniform Group to modify its official bid and become the lowest bidder. Indeed respondent concedes that the bid was awarded to The Uniform Group at the higher, erroneous price. Rather, respondent urges that Jaspan's detection of the error and query to The Uniform Group about it signifies a special preference for The Uniform Group, and that the fact that petitioner ultimately paid the correct, lesser price for the tights somehow connotes preferential treatment. The Commissioner cannot agree.

Jaspan's close scrutiny of the submitted bids must be regarded as a proper execution of his responsibilities as purchasing agent for petitioner. While it appears undisputed that he asked The Uniform Group about the price for girls tights, there is no allegation that he allowed The Uniform Group to change the total bid price from the amount set forth in their bid papers on the day of the official bid opening.

Further, the Kids Place's bid was ultimately rejected not on the basis of price, but on the basis of unresponsiveness, or 'disadvantageousness,' as is permitted under N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-37(a). The applicable law is well settled. After identifying the existence of a deviation, the issue is "whether a specific non-compliance constitutes a substantial [material] and hence non-waivable irregularity." Township of River Vale v. R.J. Longo Construction Co., Inc. and Campoli and Son, Inc., 127 N.J. Super. 207, 216 (1974) (emphasis added). The test is:

[F]irst, whether the effect of a waiver would be to deprive the municipality of its assurance that the contract will be entered into, performed and guaranteed according to its specified requirements, and second, whether it is of such a nature that its waiver would adversely affect competitive bidding by placing a bidder in a position of advantage over other bidders or by otherwise undermining the necessary common standard of competition. River Vale, supra, 127 N.J. Super. at 216. Emphasis added.)

If the test results in a determination that the deviation is material, and thus non-waivable, the inquiry is over because the bid is non-conforming and a non-conforming bid is no bid at all. In the Matter of the Protest of the Award of the On-Line Games Production and Operation Services Contract, Bid No. 95-X-20175, 279 N.J. Super. 566, 595 (App. Div. 1995)

The record fully supports petitioner's assertion that Kids Place's submissions for multiple items – most notably the skort – were unresponsive to the specifications. As regards the skort, Anne Marie Remus – one of the principals on the selection committee – described the Kids Place half skort as a “deal breaker.” (Initial Decision at 10)¹⁰ The specifications called for a full skort, which looks like a skirt both in front and in back. Kids Place supplied a half skort – a garment that looks like a skirt in front and shorts in the back – which Remus knew the female students would not want to wear. (Ibid.) Petitioner was thus justified in concluding that Kids Place's intention to supply a half skort constituted a material deviation from the specifications, and was within its rights to reject Kids Place's bid.

Finally, the Commissioner does not find petitioner's ultimate payment of the correct price for the tights to be a violation of the bidding laws or an unfair practice. Once the bid was awarded – on legitimate bases – it would have been irresponsible of petitioner to waste the public's money by paying $8 for tights that cost considerably less.

In summary, consideration of the record as a whole leads to two main conclusions. The first is that Kids Place's lack of success with petitioner's school uniform solicitation was due in great part to Dweck's ignorance of the public bidding laws.¹¹ He, for example, attempted to handle questions concerning the specifications by conducting ex parte conversations with purchasing agent Jaspan instead of submitting written questions about the various items requested in the bid solicitation. The school bidding laws, which are designed to insure that all bidders have equal access to all issues raised by individual bidders and all responses by the soliciting agency, do not permit representatives of public agencies to answer ex parte questions. See, e.g. N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-4.4(c). Further, the record indicates that Dweck did not diligently seek out the manufacturers of the solicited items and attempt to procure what was asked for in the specifications.

The second conclusion that the Commissioner is constrained to reach is that respondent's factual investigation was not well developed and its determination that petitioner violated bidding laws rested heavily on assumptions. Accordingly, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that 1) the facts do not support a finding that petitioner violated the school bidding laws, and 2) no refund of school funds is warranted. The petition is thus granted.

BEFORE BARRY E. MOSCOWITZ, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

In May 2006, the Board awarded a contract for school uniforms to the second-lowest bidder because the bid specifications required a full skirt and the lowest bidder submitted a half skirt. Should the Board still have awarded the contract to the lowest bidder? No. Under caselaw, a contract must be awarded not only to the lowest bidder but also to the bidder who complies with the specifications. Any material departure invalidates the non-conforming bid.

Under N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-15, specifications must be drafted to encourage free, open, and competitive bidding. In May 2006, the full skirt, which the specifications required as a reference or point of comparison, had been custom-made for the second-lowest bidder, but it was not an exclusive. Did the Board violate the statute? No. Under N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-15, a specification may require a brand name or equivalent to serve as a reference or point of comparison.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On May 2, 2006, the Elizabeth Board of Education (the Board) advertised for bids for school uniforms. Both Kids Place of New Jersey, Inc. (Kids Place) and The Uniform Group, Inc. (The Uniform Group) submitted bids. On June 15, 2006, the Board awarded the contract to The Uniform Group.

Ostensibly, the Board did not award the contract to Kids Place because the bid specifications required a full skirt and Kids Place submitted a half skirt.

Nevertheless, on August 8, 2006, Kids Place submitted a complaint to the New Jersey Department of Education, School Ethics Commission, alleging improprieties in the bidding process.

On August 16, 2006, the School Ethics Commission forwarded the complaint to the New Jersey Department of Education, Office of Compliance Investigations (the Department) because the allegations did not fall under the School Ethics Act.¹

On January 24, 2007, the Department issued its Investigative Report. In its report, the Department concluded that the Board violated N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-15 because the Board drafted specifications in a manner that discouraged "free, open, and competitive bidding." In particular, the Department determined that the Board discouraged free, open, and competitive bidding because the bid specifications included the wrong style number for a pair of shorts and that this deficiency gave The Uniform Group an advantage because The Uniform Group had helped the Board draft the specifications:

The bid speculations were not accurate or clear. The style number 136 for shorts manufactured by Augusta was incorrect and was actually the style number for reversible mini mesh league tanks. The specifications did not indicate if the district was requesting cotton or mesh shorts and since the specifications were incorrect, Kids Place could not determine the specific material the district was requesting. Both The Uniform Group and the purchasing agent confirmed that an incorrect style number was used when putting together the bid specifications. This hindered Kids Place from submitting appropriate short samples.

[(J-21) (EBOE 403).]

In addition, the Department determined that that the Board discouraged free, open, and competitive bidding because the bid specifications required a dry-clean-only blazer and the Board deviated from those specifications when it accepted a machine-washable blazer:

Kids Place provided dry clean only Executive Apparel 2000/4000 girl blazers and Executive Apparel 1000/3000 boy blazers as the specifications required. However, The Uniform Group submitted washable blazers contrary to what was requested on the specifications. Nevertheless, the district decided that the washable blazers were of better quality and therefore selected the samples submitted by The Uniform Group.

[(ibid.)]

As a result, the Department demanded the return of $594,217.10 in State aid.

On March 30, 2007, the Board appealed this determination. On May 11, 2007, the Department denied the appeal, and on June 20, 2007, the Board appealed again. On August 9, 2007, the Department denied this second-level appeal and renewed its demand for the return of the State aid. On November 6, 2007, the Board appealed to the Office of Administrative Law.

On December 26, 2007, the Department transmitted the case to the Office of Administrative Law under the Administrative Procedure Act, N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15, and the act establishing the Office of Administrative Law, N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -23, for a hearing under the Uniform Administrative Procedure Rules, N.J.A.C. 1:1-1.1 to -21.6.

On March 16 and March 17, 2011, I held the hearing. After the hearing, the parties submitted closing briefs. Upon their receipt, I closed the record.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Base upon the testimony the parties provided, and my assessment of its credibility, together with the documents submitted, and my assessment of their sufficiency, I FIND as follows:

I.

The Bid Specifications

In May 2006, the Board advertised for bids for school uniforms for the school year 2006-07 for the upper and lower academies of its high school and for schools 30 and 31 with the option to include additional schools.

The published advertisement instructed prospective bidders to contact its purchasing agent for the specifications of the uniform contract.

In response, the Board provided a bid package, which contained, among other things, bid specifications and instructions.

More specifically, the bid specifications, which were organized by grade and gender, provided prospective bidders with, among other information, the approximate quantity of each item, the quantity for each student, a description of each item, the manufacturer of each item, the style number of each item, and the color of each item.

Moreover, the specifications and instructions provided that all of the bids had to strictly conform to the specifications and descriptions:

All materials, supplies, or equipment bid on must strictly conform to the description and specification.

[(J-2) (EBOE 0036).]

Nevertheless, the specifications provided that bidders could substitute items where a special make was specified as long as they were just as good. Toward this end, bidders had to specify the make and number of the article they were substituting. If not, the bid would be interpreted to mean that the bidder intended to furnish the particular make specified in the specifications.

Finally, the Board had the right to accept or reject any substitutes:

Where a special make of any article is specified, bidders may quote prices on articles equally as good, in which case they must specify on the proposal the make and number of the article on which they are bidding, and failure to do so will be interpreted to mean that the bidder intends to furnish the particular make of article called for in these specifications.

The Board of Education reserves the right to accept or reject any or all makes of the different articles if, in its judgment, it is deemed best for the interest of the Board.

[(J-2) (EBOE 0036).]

The bid specifications, however, contained an error. For one item, the specifications listed the wrong style number. More specifically, the specifications described a pair of shorts as "Shorts (silk screened school logo, not heat sealed)," identified the manufacturer as "Augusta," and listed the style number as "136," when it should have listed the style number as "746."

The item manufactured by Augusta bearing style number 136 was a mesh tank top ("Reversible Mini Mesh League Tank") while the item manufactured by Augusta bearing style number 746 was a pair of mesh shorts ("Youth Micro Mesh Short").

Unfortunately, this error was repeated every time the item was listed in the specifications.

The Credible Witness

Robert Jaspan, who was the purchasing agent for the Board at the time, explained what happened. Significantly, Jaspan was a highly credible witness. Inexplicably, the Department never interviewed him during its investigation.

The Pilot Program

Jaspan testified that in December 2005, the Board had advertised for bids for school uniforms for a single school, School 29, as part of a pilot program, and The Uniform Group was awarded the contract. The pilot program, however, had been a disaster. It was the first time that the Board had put uniforms out for bid and they were delivered in bulk, not packaged by student. Moreover, the bid specifications had only included the approximate quantity and description of each item, not the manufacturer or style number.

Jaspan continued that it was the first time he had drafted bid specifications for school uniforms; that it was his job to take the bid specifications as they were given to him and incorporate them into the bid package; and that he had in fact taken the bid specifications as they were given to him and incorporated them into the bid package.

Incidentally, Kids Place was the only other entity to have submitted a bid for the pilot program in December 2005.

The Expanded Program

In April 2006, when the bidding process began again, Jaspan asked for help. Although he thought The Uniform Group had performed "well enough" in the pilot program, and "everyone was happy"; Jaspan wanted a "better bid" in the expanded program. In particular, Jaspan wanted to include the manufacturer and style numbers for each item. He also wanted the uniforms packaged by student.

Since the expanded program was going to include the same uniforms as the ones from the pilot program, Jaspan asked the sale representative from The Uniform Group, Janice Acheson, to provide him with the manufacturer and style numbers.

Jaspan admitted that he was not an expert in school uniforms and that it would have been very time consuming for him to have identified the manufacturer and style numbers without her help. Toward this end, Acheson emailed Jaspan the manufacturer and style numbers in a document entitled, "Bid Specs for Elizabeth School Uniforms," which included the manufacturer and style numbers for all the items to be included in the bid specifications. She also emailed him tips on measuring, fitting, and packaging in a document entitled, "Suggested Additions and/or Modifications for Terms and Conditions on Uniform Bid."

Acheson, however, made a mistake. Instead of listing the shorts manufactured by Augusta with style number 136, she listed the shorts manufactured by Augusta with style number 746, and neither she nor Jaspan noticed it. As a result, the mistake was carried over into the bid specifications for the expanded program in May 2006.

To be clear, no evidence—let alone an allegation—exists that this was done intentionally.

Significantly, this mistake remained undiscovered until the investigation in this case. In fact, none of the bidders made an issue of it, raised it as a concern, or asked the Board to clarify it during the bidding process. More significantly, Isaac Dweck, the vice president and representative of Kids Place who first complained about the bidding process, testified that he thought the style number was a mistake when he reviewed the bid specifications in May 2006 but acknowledged that he never made an issue of it, raised it as a concern, or asked the Board to clarify it. To the contrary, Dweck simply substituted cotton shorts for the mesh shorts in his bid.

The Bid Opening

The date set for the opening of the bids was May 16, 2006, and on that date, the Board received three bids: One was from Kids Place, totaling $415,687.70; one was from The Uniform Group, totaling $431,517.90; and one was from Flynn & O'Hara Uniforms, LLC, which could not be considered because its paperwork was not in order.

Jaspan, however, noticed that the price of the girls' tights in the bid The Uniform Group had submitted was much higher than the price of the girls' tights both Kids Place and Flynn & O'Hara had submitted in their bids. Given this irregularity, he called The Uniform Group to ask why. Upon review, The Uniform Group discovered that it had listed the price of a three-pack of girls' tights as the price of a single-pack of girls' tights.

On May 17, 2006, The Uniform Group sent Jaspan a letter memorializing this:

After reviewing the Student School Uniform BID that was submitted, it was determined that a calculation error was made on the girls' tights. The cost listed was $8.00, which was really for 3 pairs. As a result, the ACTUAL UNIT COST will be $2.66 each (3 pairs for $8.00).

[(J-12.)]

If the price of the girls' tights had been corrected, then the bid The Uniform Group would have submitted would have totaled $412,357.98, which would have been $19,159.92 less than its original bid. It would have also been $3,329.72 less than the bid Kids Place had submitted. But the Board did not award the contract based on the prices submitted; rather, the Board awarded the contract based on the samples submitted. More expansively, the Board awarded the contract based on the recommendation of the review committee, which had determined after careful consideration that the samples The Uniform Group had submitted had been more responsive and of higher quality than the samples Kids Place had submitted.

The Review Committee

The members of the review committee consisted of the three principals whose students were going to be required to wear the school uniforms: Anne Marie Remus (who was the principal of Elizabeth High School), Deborah Brady (who was the principal of School No. 30), and Michael Webb (who was the principal of School No. 31). All three testified and all three provided credible testimony. As with Jaspan, the Department did not interview any of them during its investigation.

Remus testified that the review committee met in Jaspan's office on May 16, 2006, the date the bids were opened, to review the samples. She stated that Jaspan gave them as much time as they needed to make their decision and that he told them to pick one bid over the other. In other words, she explained, they could not mix and match—or substitute samples from one bid with the other. And she emphasized that they did not know the identity of the bidders or which samples were submitted by which bidder.

Remus said that they took their review seriously; that the school uniforms were going to showcase the students in the gifted-and-talented program; and that they ultimately reached a consensus.

She even noted that they tried on some of the samples.

The Primary Concerns

The Girls' Skort

Remus testified that she reviewed the samples like she was shopping for her own children and stated that she was concerned with the girls' skort.

She explained that Kids Place had submitted a half skort, which meant it looked like a skirt from the front and a short from the back, while The Uniform Group had submitted a full skort, which meant it looked like a skirt from the front and the back.

The bid specifications, however, required a full skort. More specifically, the bid specifications described the skort as "Khaki Full Skort with Front and Back Partially Pleated Panels/Elastic Waist Back," identified the manufacturer as "Style Plus," and listed the style number as "SK275." Although this item was a specialty item, which Style Plus had custom-made for The Uniform Group in December 2005 for the pilot program, it was not exclusive to The Uniform Group. Indeed, no evidence exists that The Uniform Group had the exclusive right to make or sell them. Stated otherwise, no evidence exists that it was unavailable to the public—including Kids Place.

Remus said that she knew what the students liked; that she had promised the girls in advance that they would not look like "dorks"; and that the girls would not like the half skort. Remus made the point quite clear, though she did so delicately, that the girls, especially the larger ones, would be uncomfortable wearing the half skort. As a result, Remus asserted that the submission of the half skort was a "deal-breaker."

The Boys' Pant

Remus testified that she was also concerned with the boys' pant. She explained that Kids Place had submitted a boys' pant with an elastic waist while The Uniform Group submitted a boys' pant with a zipper. The bid specifications, however, had required neither an elastic waist nor a zipper. More specifically, the bid specifications described the boys' pant as "Khaki Boys Flat Front Pants," identified the manufacturer as "Dickies," and listed the style number as "56-362/562."

Although the specifications required neither an elastic waist nor a zipper, the review committee preferred the zipper. "You're not going to tuck a shirt into an elastic pant," Remus exhorted. As a result, Remus asserted that the submission of the elastic pant was an "absolute-no."

The Secondary Concerns

With the girls' skirt a "deal-breaker" and the boys' pant an "absolute-no" for the review committee, all of their remaining concerns—their concern with the boys' and girls' short, the boys' and girls' white oxford shirt, and the boys' and the girls' blazer—were relegated to mere secondary concerns.

Remus explained that the short The Uniform Group had submitted was preferable to the one Kids Place had submitted because the one The Uniform Group had submitted was mesh while the one Kids Place had submitted was cotton, which was no longer in fashion.

Similarly, Remus explained that the white oxford shirt The Uniform Group had submitted was preferable to the one Kids Place had submitted because the one Kids Place had submitted had grey undertones and did not have that "sharp white snappy look."

Finally, Remus explained that the blazer The Uniform Group had submitted was preferable to the one Kids Place had submitted because the one The Uniform Group had submitted was machine-washable while the one Kids Place had submitted was dry-clean-only, which was more costly to maintain.

Nevertheless, Remus explained that the blazer was decidedly not a deal-breaker for the committee.

The Other Principals

Brady and Webb corroborated Remus's testimony. But they also mentioned some additional concerns or preferences of their own. These additional concerns or preferences notwithstanding, the girls' skirt and boys' pants remained their primary concerns.

Brady

Brady testified that she reviewed the samples like she was shopping for herself and stated that she preferred the girls' jumper The Uniform Group had submitted because it had adjustable buttons; that she preferred the boys' and girls' cardigan sweater The Uniform Group had submitted because it was thicker and less likely to pill; and that she preferred the polo shirt The Uniform Group had submitted because it was softer.

And though she did meet with The Uniform Group in March and April of 2006, Brady explained that she did so because The Uniform Group had supplied the school uniforms in the pilot program and she wanted to become familiar with the uniforms that her students were going to be required to wear in the expanded program.

Indeed Brady noted that there could not have been any conflict of interest between her and The Uniform Group when she reviewed the samples because Jaspán had not even asked The Uniform Group for help—let alone drafted or released the bid specifications—when she met with The Uniform Group to become familiar with the school uniforms that her students were going to be required to wear.

Moreover, she did not know the identity of the bidders or which samples they had submitted when she did review the samples.

Webb

Webb testified that he was more concerned with the packaging of the school uniforms than he was with the selecting of the school uniforms—but Webb continued that an issue for one was an issue for all and he recalled that the girls' skort and the boys' pant were their primary concerns.

The Additional Corroboration

In keeping with this testimony, Brady remembered that Webb was not as involved as she and Remus were in the selection of the school uniforms but that Webb had agreed with them that the boys' pant with the zipper was preferable to the boy's pant with the elastic waist.

Jaspan too remembered that the skort was the primary concern of the review committee and that everything else was merely a secondary concern of theirs.

The Award

On May 25, 2006, Jaspan notified The Uniform Group in advance of formal Board approval that it was the successful bidder in the school uniform program because the next Board meeting was not for another three weeks and the students needed to be measured as soon as possible to avoid the measurement-and-fit issues that had plagued the Board earlier in the pilot program.

On June 15, 2006, the Board formally approved the award of the contract to The Uniform Group at its original bid price of $431,517.90.

On July 7, 2006, the Board forwarded a written agreement to The Uniform Group with the original bid price of $431,517.90.

And on July 17, 2006, the Board received a signed copy of agreement from The Uniform Group at its original bid price of $431,517.90.

Although the Board awarded and entered into the contract with The Uniform Group at its original bid price of $431,517.90, The Uniform Group only charged (and the Board only paid) the corrected amount of $412,357.98 for the school uniforms.

The Complaint

Kids Place, which is headquartered in Elizabeth, is a chain of clothing stores that supplies, among other things, school uniforms to about 200 schools throughout New Jersey, both public and private, including Elizabeth.

Kids Place, however, had never participated in a public bid for school uniforms before—other than the pilot program in December 2005 and the expanded program in May 2006—and Dweck, who had been the vice-president of Kids Place for the past twenty-five years, had never participated in a public bid for school uniforms outside of these two programs either.

"The bidding process was new to me," he said.
