QUARTER MASTER GENERAL'S OFFICE, }
TRENTON, January 13, 1863. }

To His Excellency

CHARLES S. OLDEN,

Governor, Commander-in-Chief, &c., &c.:

I have the honor to submit herewith my report of the transactions of this department for the past year, which has been one of great labor and responsibility, in the details of providing and issuing supplies of every kind pertaining to the recruiting, subsisting, clothing, arming, equipping, and transporting sixteen full regiments of infantry, mustered into the service of the United States.

In addition to the duties properly of Quarter Master General, have devolved upon me those of commissary and ordnance officer, and the responsibility of auditing and the preparation in triplicate of all bills, with the proper certificates for all expenses on war account, before being presented to your Excellency for payment.

An accurate account of the entire expenditure has been kept by the assistants in this office, and also a credit and debit account with the United States Government, for all bills presented and paid.

The supplies for these regiments have been drawn principally from the United States officers of the Quarter Master, Medical and Ordnance Departments, upon requisitions, to as great an extent as it was possible to obtain them under the circumstances. The sudden and unexpected call of the President for six hundred thousand men, in the months of July and August last, found the different bureaus of the Federal Government unprepared to supply the articles required, without considerably delay, for so great a number of troops. To avoid this delay and hasten the equipment of the troops, we were obliged to provide, at the expense of this State, such articles as were most required for immediate use. A detailed statement of the articles obtained by contract and purchase, and the number of each, together with the name of the contractor furnishing the same, will be found under the head of statement I.

It has been found from experience that it is highly important to clothe recruits as fast as they are reported to camps. A uniform enables the officers in command to enforce better order and discipline.

It enables them to distinguish the soldier from the citizen. It encourages the recruiting service. A great majority of recruits, upon their arrival at rendezvous, are in immediate want of clothing—some from absolute want, others from the fact of providing themselves with only sufficient to last for a few days, expecting to receive their first allowance immediately. We have endeavored to clothe recruits as promptly as possible, upon their being sworn into service. It has, however, frequently resulted in a loss to the Government. In the first outbreak of patriotic ardor, our young men, ambitious to enter the service, frequently concealed some permanent disability, which would, if known or discovered by the examining surgeons, have disqualified them from the arduous duties of the soldier, and after a service of a few weeks, to their great mortification and disappointment, the concealed malady is exposed by their inability longer to perform duty, and are dismissed without pay; others have got into the service by reason of the large bounties offered by municipalities for volunteers for the nine months service, who were soon discharged as entirely unfit for service.

Recruits for the three years service were mustered and sworn by lieutenants appointed and mustered into the United States service for that purpose; recruits for the nine months service by the commandants of rendezvous, and by them assigned to their respective companies and regiments, company officers being mustered and sworn into companies and clothed as privates. Upon the completion of their organization by companies and regiments, they were again mustered by the United States mustering officer, when a great number who had been received, sworn and assigned to companies and clothed, were dismissed, and their names stricken from the rolls as unfit for service. This will explain any discrepancy in the accounts of clothing between that charged to the quartermasters of regiments and commandants of rendezvous, and that which is received for by captains of companies, and charged in our statement as issues to regiments, and which embraces only the number of men mustered into service as privates at regimental muster. Captains of companies are charged with the account of clothing issued to the men of their respective companies, and are responsible to the Federal Government for it, and ought not in justice be charged with clothing issued to the men who are dismissed for disability, or to those who desert before muster.

In the year past very little clothing has been furnished by this State to our troops in the field—only such articles as were absolutely required for immediate use, and could not be obtained from the Government without great delay.

It has been the policy of this State, in equipping her troops, to furnish the best articles, with a liberality and a proper regard to the health and comfort of the soldier. It is believed that no state troops have taken the field better provided than those of this State.

To your liberality and kindness the New Jersey soldier is indebted for many articles necessary to his comfort, which have been furnished, not strictly in accordance with the army regulations. Men called suddenly into military life from comfortable homes, volunteers for the maintenance of the Government, could not be expected to be limited to such articles only as were allowed by regulations.

I take great pleasure in acknowledging in this general way the receipt of a large number of packages of hospital stores, clothing and delicacies, as presents from patriotic and benevolent persons and ladies' aid societies in different parts of this State, for transportation to troops in the field, which were forwarded as promptly as the means of transportation to our regiments would permit, free of expense, in accordance with the wishes of the donors. These donations have been gratefully and thankfully received, and have contributed much to the comfort of our sick and wounded soldiers, reminding them of thoughtful and kind friends at home.

The call of the President of the eighth of July last, upon this State, for five regiments of infantry of ten companies each, to be mustered for three years service, provided that the recruiting, organizing, clothing and subsisting should be exclusively under the control of your excellency the Governor of this State, and that where desired the United States officers of the Quartermaster, Medical and Ordnance Departments were authorized to turn over stores to the State authorities, to be issued by them in accordance with the regulations, and accounted for to the proper bureau of the War Department, and contracts for subsistence would, if approved by your excellency, be allowed and paid. Immediately upon the receipt of this call, five camps were, by your excellency's order, located at the following places. These regiments were severally numbered and rendezvoused as follows :

Eleventh Regiment, Camp Perrine, at Trenton.

Twelfth Regiment, Camp Stockton, at Woodbury.

Thirteenth Regiment, Camp Frelinghuysen, at Newark.

Fourteenth Regiment, Camp Vredenburg, at Freehold.

Fifteenth Regiment, Camp Fair Oaks, at Flemington.

Suitable grounds were rented, camp and garrison equipage was immediately forwarded to these points, and every preparation completed for the quartering and subsisting recruits. General Order No. 74, of the War Department, to encourage enlistments in the volunteer forces, provided for the payment of one month's pay in advance, and a premium of two dollars to any citizen, non-commissioned officer or soldier, for each accepted recruit that he may bring to the rendezvous.

By special order, this State was required to advance the pay, as required by order No. 74, to recruits, as soon as they were inspected and mustered into service.

These several camps were placed under the charge of the following persons, appointed by your excellency disbursing officers and quartermasters, as follows :

Major Charles M. Herbert, for the Eleventh Regiment.

Major Benjamin Acton, for the Twelfth Regiment.

Colonel Cornelius Van Vorst, for the Thirteenth Regiment.

Major William S. Stryker, for the Fourteenth Regiment.

Colonel Charles Scranton, for the Fifteenth Regiment.

They reported immediately at this office for duty, and each rendezvous was opened simultaneously on July 22d. They were required, under instructions from this office, to receive and issue, in accordance with the regulations, stores to the troops forwarded from this depot; to make contracts for fresh beef, fuel, straw and stationery, which, after due publication, were awarded by these officers in all cases to the lowest bidder; to furnish transportation for recruits from place of recruitment to camp, and as an inducement for enlistment, to pay every recruit one month's pay in advance, and a premium of two dollars to every person presenting a recruit.

Funds for this purpose were furnished by your Excellency upon monthly estimates, approved by me, for disbursement under these several heads. These gentlemen had little or no experience in these duties. Their accounts have been found accurate, their purchases reasonable, and the issues of supplies, in quantity and kind, strictly in accordance with the rules and regulations of the service.

For their zeal, economy and integrity, and the gentlemanly manner in which they have performed their responsible duties, they are entitled to the gratitude of the State. To me they were of invaluable service, for which they have my thanks and approval.

The organization of these regiments being completed, inspected and mustered by the United States mustering officer for this State, they were forwarded to Washington in the order and dates as follows:

The Eleventh, August 25.

The Fifteenth, August 29.

The Thirteenth, August 31.

The Fourteenth, September 1.

The Twelfth, September 6.

The following statement shows the amounts advanced by this State (under General Order No. 74 of the War Department) to the recruits of the five regiments of volunteers mustered for three years, and also the amount received from the United States on account of said advances:

Deficiency between the amount advanced by this State on account of bounty and advanced pay and the amount refunded is $2,189, and is accounted for by promotions, deaths and desertions before the regiments were mustered into the United States service.

The Eleventh Regiment, encamped at this place, was subsisted at the expense of the United States, under direction of Major Jones, chief mustering officer; the Twelfth, Thirteenth, Fourteenth and Fifteenth Regiments by this State, at a cost of about $17,697 07. The State will be reimbursed so soon as the abstracts of the issue of provisions can be made out, and the signatures of the commanding officers of the regiments can be obtained thereto.

On the 9th day of August a second call was received from the President for 10,478 drafted men, to be organized into regiments of ten companies each, and mustered as infantry into the service for nine months. The same rendezvous were continued, with the exception of that at Woodbury, which, for convenience of transportation, was located at Beverly. The following officers, by your Excellency's appointment, took command of the several military posts, as follows:

No. 1—Camp Perrine, Trenton, Brigadier General N. N. Halsted, commanding.

No. 2—Camp Cadwallader, Beverly, Brigadier General George M. Robeson, commanding.

No. 3—Camp Frelinghuysen, Newark, Brigadier General Cornelius Van Vorst, commanding.

No. 4—Camp Vredenburg, Freehold, Brigadier General Charles Haight, commanding.

No. 5—Camp Kearney, Flemington, Brigadier General Alexander E. Donaldson, commanding.

In obedience to the call contained in your Excellency's proclamation of August 15, upon the able-bodied men of this State, to fill up draft by volunteers rather than by conscription, 10,800 volunteers had reported at rendezvous on the 3d of September. Requisitions were immediately made upon the proper bureau of the War Department for blankets, tents and cooking utensils. Blankets and cooking utensils could not be obtained, in any reasonable time, except by purchase. Tents could not be supplied, nor were they to be purchased. By direction of the Quartermaster General contracts were made for the erection of one hundred and twelve barracks within the shortest possible time, each 16 by 50 feet and bunked for one hundred men, and suitable storehouses and cook sheds erected at each post. Eleven regiments were organized under this call—three at military post No. 2, and two at each of the other posts. The contracts that had been made for furnishing subsistence to the four regiments of volunteers under the first call were continued for furnishing stores to the new quota of nine months' men, notwithstanding all kinds of commissary stores had advanced considerably in price. Tents were afterwards furnished as rapidly as their organization by regiments was completed.

In response to our requisition upon the Quartermaster General of the United States for clothing, we were informed that regulation cloth or kersey and trimmings, for the manufacture of 10,478 uniform coats and the same number of pairs of trousers, would be supplied from the Schuylkill Arsenal, at Philadelphia, as the best mode of providing that part of the uniforms of the militia called into service for nine months, and the making it up into garments would give employment to some of those whom the soldiers would leave behind.

On the 28th of the same month the first invoice of goods was received. I immediately concluded a contract with Halsey, Hunter & Co., of Newark, for the manufacturing of these goods into garments, at prices very reasonable, considering the great demand at that time for labor upon army clothing, and at rates uniform with those paid by the government for similar work.

It was found, however, quite impossible to supply this part of the uniform for the nine months' men in the mode prescribed in a reasonable time, as the whole number of men had reported to rendezvous before the materials for the garments had been received. Requisitions were then made for the requisite number of uniforms, which were immediately furnished. In this manner we have received double the number of coats and pantalons required, and which will account for the large number now in the arsenal, contained in statement A.

Quartermaster and commissary stores were supplied in bulk from this depot to the several rendezvous, upon the requisitions of commandants of camps of rendezvous. The necessary articles, such as blankets and cooking utensils, were issued by the commandants to the men upon their assembling at rendezvous. After organization by companies, stores were issued by them upon requisitions and receipts of captains of companies.

After being mustered and clothed, a delay of some ten days occurred in the movement of the regiments, owing to the non-reception of suitable arms. As soon as armed and mustered by regiments they were ordered to leave the State, which they did as follows :

- Twenty-first Regiment, September 24.
- Twenty-third Regiment, September 26.
- Twenty-sixth Regiment, September 26.
- Thirty-first Regiment, September 26.
- Twenty-ninth Regiment, September 28.
- Twenty-second Regiment, September 29.
- Twenty-fourth Regiment, September 29.
- Thirtieth Regiment, September 30.
- Twenty-eighth Regiment, October 2.
- Twenty-fifth Regiment, October 10.
- Twenty-seventh Regiment, October 10.

The arms and accoutrements for the use of these regiments, as well as for the five regiments mustered for three years, were furnished by the Ordnance Bureau of the United States Army, upon estimates and requisitions from this office. Those for the Eleventh Regiment and the eleven regiments of nine months men, were issued by and receipted for directly to this office. The Twelfth, Thirteenth, Fourteenth, and Fifteenth, were furnished by and receipted for to Major Jones. The regiments were armed as follows :

The Eleventh and Twelfth with Austrian rifled muskets.

The Thirteenth, Fifteenth, Twenty-first, Twenty-second, Twenty-ninth, and Thirty-first, with Enfield rifled muskets, calibre 58.

The Fourteenth with Springfield rifled muskets, calibre 58.

The Twenty-third, Twenty-sixth, and Twenty-seventh, with Springfield smooth bore, calibre 69.

The Twenty-fourth and Thirtieth with rifles, Chasseur de Vincennes, calibre 69.

The Twenty-fifth and Twenty-eighth with French rifled muskets, calibre varying from 68 to 71.

Statement E, under the head of ordnance and ordnance stores, will show more particularly the number, kind and calibre of the arms and accoutrements issued to these regiments. They were not such as our men were entitled to, who had so promptly responded to your excellency's call. A large number of them were of very inferior quality. Our troops at first refused to receive them, until they were informed that persistent efforts had been made upon the Secretary of War, by letter and by special agents, to obtain for them a better class of arms. They were not to be had, and our troops reluctantly consented to take them, and have been placed immediately in front of the enemy, with an arm which in ordinary times would have been condemned as unserviceable. This was especially the case with regard to the muskets of the Twenty-third, Twenty-sixth, and Twenty-seventh, who were armed with old Springfield smooth bore muskets, which from appearance had seen long and hard usage; and of the Twenty-fifth and Twenty-eighth Regiments, who were furnished with French rifled muskets, altered from flint to percussion, of various manufactures, and in calibre ranging from 68 to 71, and differing in appearance and length as much as a rifle does from a musket, many of them bearing date in the last century. They were reported to Mr. Watson, Assistant Secretary of War, as unfit for service, when a person by the name of Forman, representing himself as an inspector of small arms for the Ordnance Bureau, called upon me after nine o'clock on the night of September 29th, to examine the arms, and after a superficial examination of some twenty muskets, by the light of a single lantern, he informed me that on his return he should report them to Mr. Watson as fit for service.

The Twenty-third, Twenty-fourth, Twenty-fifth, and Twenty-eighth Regiments were engaged in the hottest part of the conflict at Fredricksburg, and each lost heavily in killed and wounded. We have not been informed whether they still retain the arms furnished them by the Government before leaving this State.

It should be remembered in this connection that the Fourth, Fifth, Sixth, Seventh and Eighth Regiments of New Jersey Volunteers were furnished with arms belonging to this State, rifled muskets altered from flint to percussion, calibre 69, and mostly of the models of 32 and 42, numbering 4,291, with implements and spare parts complete.

Of the above number there have been returned

2,490 muskets,
2,219 bayonets,
1,600 ramrods,
1,672 rear sights,
2,374 hammers,

having been condemned and turned into the Washington Arsenal as unserviceable. This issue comprised at the time all of the best arms of the State. They were issued to troops inexperienced in the care and use of arms, and by the known recklessness and carelessness of the soldier, in a service of about six months, they were very much injured and many of them rendered worthless. They have been cleaned and repaired, as far as they were found fit for service, and issued to the New Jersey Militia.

A detailed account of the number of muskets altered, rifled, repaired and cleaned, will be found herewith under the head of ordnance and ordnance stores. I have also to call attention to the fact that about three thousand stand of flint lock muskets were almost constantly in use during the recruitment of the first nine regiments for the United States service, for drill and instruction of the soldier in the manual and use of arms, and subsequently largely used for guard duty at the several rendezvous during the last summer, and in consequence are rendered almost useless. They were in good order when issued in this service. I allude to this matter because the damage to these arms I consider a fair and just charge against the Federal Government.

It is the intention, as soon as possible, to place these muskets in the shop for repairs, and to keep an accurate account of the expenses, that the same may be presented to the Government for settlement, together with a claim for damages done to the same.

In the organization and subsistence of the troops for nine months service, it was expected that the expense would have been defrayed by disbursing officers of the United States, but owing to the tardiness on the part of the Government to furnish either the supplies or the funds, and the great injustice and hardship to contractors furnishing the same, the State has advanced and paid all bills for this service, acting simply as the agent of the United States. The issues of all property is receipted for by the officers for the use of their respective commands, and the same reported to the proper bureau of the War Department, to which the officers are required to make quarterly returns, showing the amount of property received, and the manner of its disbursement. Separate accounts are now being made out, to be presented to the different bureau for re-payment.

The cost of subsisting eleven regiments of nine months men amounts to fifty-nine thousand six hundred and fifty dollars and thirteen cents.

The State has been reimbursed by Major L. Jones to the amount of fifty-seven thousand seven hundred and thirty-two dollars and forty-seven cents, leaving a balance due of one thousand nine hundred and seventeen dollars and sixty-six cents.

Soon after the battles of Roanoke and Newbern, in which our Ninth Regiment bore an honorable part, the sick and wounded were returned to New York. Upon their arrival they were without means to reach their homes or to procure subsistence, without furloughs and descriptive lists, upon which they could obtain either pay, clothing or transportation. It therefore became necessary to open at once a hospital at the most convenient point to New York city to receive and take care of all such as might arrive at that point requiring medical attendance, and to furnish transportation to such as were able to be forwarded to their homes upon short furloughs. The hospital was immediately opened at Jersey City for their accommodation, under the superintendence of General C. Van Vorst, whose report, giving a full account of his management of that institution will be found herewith. [See Appendix.]

Strenuous efforts were made to induce the Surgeon General of the United States Army, in anticipation of the battles in the peninsula, to establish a government hospital at this place for the accommodation of sick and wounded soldiers of the New Jersey regiments. Our efforts were unavailing. The battle of Williamsburg soon followed. A large number of wounded New Jersey troops were forwarded from Baltimore, with a notice by telegram from the General commanding at that post, requesting the State and municipal authorities to provide accommodations for them. The Hon. Marcus L. Ward was authorized by your Excellency to procure the necessary buildings and supplies for a hospital at Newark, which was immediately put into operation. It continued until July 2d, 1862, as a State institution, when it was turned over to the United States Medical Department, and greatly enlarged, and is now one of the largest hospitals in the country. For details of the operations of this institution and the expense to the State, while under Mr. Ward's management, you are referred to his report. [See Appendix.]

In the early part of the past year it was impossible to supply uniform companies with arms from our very limited stock in such numbers as were required, so rapidly were the companies organized under the effect of your Excellency's order calling out the reserve militia for drill and discipline in view of active service. Many of these companies have volunteered in the nine months' service, and the arms have been returned to the arsenal; while others have become so weakened numerically that they can hardly be considered as having an existence, under the requirements of the statute defining the number of men to constitute a uniform company. There have been issued during the past year to the militia 4,781 stand of arms, and returned, by disbanded companies and those volunteering in the United States service, 2,586 stand of arms. There are at this time 9,297 muskets and 1,147 rifles, making 10,444 stand of arms in the hands of the militia—a greater number, it is believed, than were ever before in the use of the active militia. It will be impossible to keep up even the present strength of military organizations without some radical change in the militia laws of the State, by which encouragement will be given in the way of pecuniary aid to lessen the individual expenses of the members of the companies.

No permanent improvements or additions have been made to the arsenal, only such slight repairs as were necessary to protect the property, and such alterations for convenience of receiving, storing and discharging goods. No part of the appropriation made by the last session of the Legislature for repairs to the arsenal have been expended, although very much needed. At no time during the last season was it possible to make the alterations and repairs contemplated by the act without serious inconvenience.

Your Excellency will find herewith annexed statement K, containing the whole amount paid in detail for every description of expenditure during the last year incident to the recruiting, organizing, clothing, equipping, arming, subsisting and transporting troops mustered into the service of the United States, and designating the names of all contractors from whom articles have been purchased, and the articles furnished by each.

The following is a statement of work done in the machine shop at the arsenal, under the charge of John Lathrop, during the year ending December 31, 1862:—

- 4,100 muskets rifled.
- 5,068 muskets cleaned and polished.
- 4,262 lock springs reduced.
- 968 altered muskets repaired.
- 1,000 Austrian rifle muskets repaired.
- 340 muskets altered from flint lock.

The following is a statement of the number of garments made in the Clothing Department at the arsenal, under the charge of Wm. B. Gaston, during the year ending December 31, 1862:—

2,637 blue flannel sack coats, lined.

5,736 flannel shirts.

5,316 cotton flannel drawers, pairs of.

12,165 bed sacks.

Statement A contains an accurate account of clothing, camp and garrison equipage, ordnance and ordnance stores, &c., remaining in the State Arsenal on the 1st day of January, 1863.

Statement B, the amount of stores, including clothing, camp and garrison equipage, hospital supplies, and ordnance and ordnance stores, received from the different bureau of the War Department for issue to the troops of this State mustered into the service of the United States.

Statement C contains in full and in detail the number and character of each article of clothing issued to the different regiments.

Statement D, the issue of camp and garrison equipage and hospital supplies to the regiments.

Statement E, under head of ordnance and ordnance stores, will be found the number and kind of arms issued to the regiments.

Statement F will furnish a particular account of the number of arms and accoutrements turned into the arsenal, and the number issued to uniform companies organized in the past year.

Statement G contains a list of camp and garrison equipage furnished the different posts.

Statement H contains a list of clothing furnished the different posts.

Statement I, the names of contractors and others, and the articles and kind furnished by each.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

REPORT OF SUPERINTENDENT OF HOSPITAL AT JERSEY CITY.

“JERSEY CITY, Jan. 22, 1863.

“Gen. L. PERRINE, Quartermaster-General, Trenton, N. J. :—

“In compliance with your request of the 11th inst., ‘for an account of the necessity for the opening of a State hospital at Jersey City, the authority for its organization, the number of patients received, the cost to the State and the reasons for its discontinuance,’ I submit the following report as Superintendent of the hospital :

“By authority of the government, issued after the battles of Roanoke Island and Newbern, the sick and wounded soldiers were forwarded from those places to their homes or to hospitals established in several of the Northern States. Among the sick and wounded men thus forwarded were a number belonging to New Jersey regiments, who were placed in charge of Colonel Bliss, the agent of New York to attend to the soldiers of that State. Thanks are due to Colonel Bliss for his uniform kindness and his valuable assistance to our soldiers, both before and after the establishment of the hospital in this city.

“The arrangements of the government proved inadequate to the proper care and treatment of New Jersey soldiers beyond the boundaries of New York, complaints daily arising from the delay and neglect our soldiers experienced, many of them being compelled to remain several days in New York, in consequence of there being no authorized agent from New Jersey to take charge of them upon their arrival.

“His Excellency Governor Olden having become acquainted with the above facts, and desiring that the sick and wounded New Jersey soldiers returning to their homes should receive that care and attention which their sufferings demanded, deputed the undersigned to establish and organize a hospital in this city, the main purpose in view of its establishment being to afford food, clothing, lodging, medical treatment and transportation to the soldiers of New Jersey on their way home by way of New York and this city.

“For these purposes, on the 9th of April a building was procured for the accommodation of seventy or eighty men—cots, beds, bedding, furniture and other conveniences, nurses and attendants, were provided. The medical department was placed in charge of Doctors

Lutkins, Olcott and Olcott, Jr., all of whom tendered gratuitously their services, and were devoted in their attention to the sick and wounded men.

“On the 1st day of May, owing to the increased number of sick and wounded arriving, and in anticipation of a still greater number from the Army of the Peninsula, an additional building was procured and supplied with the necessary beds and bedding. Both of these buildings proving too small for the accommodation of all the patients, a spacious building, capable of accommodating over two hundred men, was obtained and fitted up with the conveniences for hospital purposes, and on the 5th day of July the patients were carefully removed to it.

“The management of the hospital appeared to give general satisfaction to our brave and suffering men, who uniformly conducted themselves with respect, and daily showed expressions of gratitude.

Although the Government furnished the principal medical stores, clothing, subsistence and furniture for the use of the inmates of the hospital, still we were dependent upon the beneficence of the citizens of the State for many indispensable articles for the health and comfort of the sick. Plain dressing gowns, shirts, drawers, socks, lint, bandages, and delicacies such as the sick and wounded men would relish, were bountifully supplied by the several ladies' aid societies of this State. We desire, in behalf of those for whom the liberal and appropriate donations of supplies were intended, to thank the donors most heartily, and assure them that through their timely assistance each patient was supplied with clean and comfortable garments. Many a sick soldier will remember with gratitude the several ladies' aid societies of New Jersey.

To the ladies of this city, who, by their bounty liberally bestowed, and their daily personal attendance at the hospital, alleviated much suffering, is due the efficiency and success of the enterprise.

By an order of the Government the hospital was closed on the 16th day of August, and the patients removed to the Government hospital at Newark, where arrangements were made for their comfort and care.

The number of patients admitted to the hospital from the date of its commencement, April 9th, to the date of its closing, August 16th, was three hundred and eighty-three, all of whom received subsistence, such clothing as was required, and medical treatment. In addition to this number, over one hundred patients, residents of this city and vicinity, were permitted to join their families, receiving daily the same medical treatment and care (with the exception of subsistence and lodging) as the regular inmates of the hospital.

The total expense for the maintenance of the hospital, including rent of buildings, fitting up the same, medical stores, subsistence, nurses, attendants and transportation of the men from New York to this city, was three thousand and eighty-seven dollars and seventy-two cents, which amount was promptly paid by the State upon presentation of the claim with proper vouchers.

Before closing this report we would express to yourself our hearty thanks for the interest you uniformly manifested, and for the promptness with which you responded to our requisitions for blankets, clothing and supplies.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,
CORNELIUS VAN VORST,
Superintendent.

REPORT OF SUPERINTENDENT OF HOSPITAL AT NEWARK.

---

“NEWARK, N. J., December 15, 1862.

“Gen. L. PERRINE, Quartermaster General of New Jersey :

“Sir—In presenting for adjustment the accounts of the New Jersey hospital at Newark, N. J., lately under my superintendence, for moneys advanced by me, I have the honor to submit the following brief report of its origin, management and results :

“Having been applied to, as Chairman of the Public Aid Committee, of this city, on Sunday morning, May 11th, 1862, to furnish accommodations for several New Jersey soldiers who had been wounded at the battle of Williamsburg, and who had arrived by the night train from the seat of war, and being thus brought to a realizing sense of our utterly unprepared condition to receive and care for our brave and suffering soldiers, I immediately repaired to the residence of his Excellency Governor Olden, at Princeton, to secure his authority for the establishment of a hospital in this city. Governor Olden promptly and cordially authorized the undertaking, and empowered me to procure necessary buildings, furniture, surgeons, nurses, assistants, stores, and indeed all things needed to promote the comfort and well being of the patients, appointing the undersigned superintendent of the hospitals to be thus established.

“On the following day, May 12, I secured a large and commodious building—situate at Centre street, between the Passaic river and the New Jersey Railroad—answering the conditions of the government, which requires that military hospitals shall, when practicable, be easy of access by railroad and water communication. I proceeded at once to have the building freed of its contents, cleaned, and otherwise prepared for the reception of patients. On the same evening a despatch was received from General Dix, military commander of Baltimore, giving notice that forty-six wounded Jerseymen were en route for Newark, and requesting that accommodations should be provided for them. The following day, the 13th May, the soldiers arrived, and constituted the first patients received at the hospital, demonstrating at the same time the great necessity for its establishment. In the conduct of the institution it became evident that to secure order, proper subordination, and the greatest good to the patients, the hospital should be under military and governmental control. To accomplish these important objects (and with the consent of Governor Olden) I visited Washington, and secured from the Secretary of War, on the 11th day of June, the acceptance of the institution as a United States military hospital, the government agreeing to assume the expenses from its organization. On the 17th June Brigadier General Hammond, Surgeon General, commissioned Drs. J. B. Jackson and Isaac A. Nichols as acting assistant surgeons in charge. The management and affairs of the institution continued as they had been from the beginning until the 2d day of July, when Dr. J. H. Janeway Assistant Surgeon United States Army, assumed the charge of the institution.

“The whole number of patients received at the hospital from May 13 to July 2 was one hundred and sixty-three. The gross amount paid by the State in support of the hospital, for commissary and quartermaster's stores, drugs and medicines, as per the vouchers accompanying this, is $2,205 57, including the preparation of the building, upholstering, &c., so as to furnish accommodations for seven hundred and sixty-seven patients, which was the capacity of the hospital on the day that Dr. Janeway assumed charge.

“Immediately on receiving authority to establish the hospital Drs. J. B. Jackson and Isaac A. Nichols, at my request, assumed the entire charge of the surgical and medical department.

“To them and to the whole faculty of the city, who gave daily and gratuitous attention at the hospital—to Mr. J. H. Landell, and many ladies and gentlemen of the city, who gave valuable and gratuitous assistance in maintaining and conducting the hospital—I desire to express my appreciation of their important and valuable aid. Thanks are due also to Mr. R. T. Nichols for the gratuitous use of his building, and to many citizens for generous contributions. To yourself personally, for the energy you have manifested, and the promptness with which you have at all times responded to my requisitions, is due much of the success which has attended the institution.

“The hospital thus established has been much enlarged and improved under the liberal management of the government, and its capacity is now about seventeen hundred beds, being one of the largest, most convenient and best conducted hospitals in the country, where thousands of sick and wounded soldiers receive the advantages of its beneficent ministrations.

“Respectfully, your obedient servant,
