CITY OF PATERSON, PASSAIC COUNTY, PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF PATERSON, PASSAIC COUNTY, RESPONDENT.	:	DECISION

JANUARY 7, 1993

CITY OF PATERSON, PASSAIC COUNTY, PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF PATERSON, PASSAIC COUNTY, RESPONDENT.	:	DECISION

For Petitioner, Ralph L. DeLuccia, Jr., Esq.

For Respondent, Russell J. Schumacher, Esq.

This matter was opened before the Commissioner by way of a Petition of Appeal filed by the City of Paterson (City) on April 2, 1992 seeking a reduction of $8,197,522 in the current expense budget of the State-operated School District of the City of Paterson (District). The District filed its Answer to the Petition on April 20, 1992. Subsequently the parties filed position statements on May 19, 1992 (District) and June 18, 1992 (City). The District filed a Reply on June 29, 1992 and the City submitted a summation on July 8, 1992 whereupon the record in this matter was closed.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-52(a) the State District Superintendent of a State-operated School District is required "...[to] fix and determine the amount of money necessary to be appropriated for the ensuing school year and [to] certify the amounts to be raised by special district tax for school purposes ... to the county board of taxation and the amount or amounts so certified shall be included in the taxes assessed, levied and collected in the municipality or municipalities comprising the district." Unlike other budget appeal processes in the State of New Jersey, it is the municipality which must appeal the determination of the amount necessary to be raised for school purposes, setting forth those specific line items which it believes can be reduced without obstructing the district's ability to provide a thorough and efficient system of education.

Based upon the statutory language summarized above, the City proposed the following tax levy reduction:

Budget Adopted by by the District	Amount of Budget Proposed by Governing Body
Current Expense $219,493,816	Current Expense $211,296,294

Amount of Recommended Reduction in the Budget by Governing Body

I. CITY'S REASONS AND POSITION

By way of general argument the City contends that the Board's Brief and its Separate Defense as raised in the Answer to the Petition of Appeal relative to the lack of detailed reasons for the reductions recommended by the City oversimplifies the standard of review in budgetary matters. The City does not contest the necessity for detailed reasons in support of proposed budget cuts, however, it calls upon the Commissioner to consider the fact that the New Jersey Supreme Court in Board of Education of the Township of Deptford v. Mayor and Council of the Township of Deptford, 116 N.J. 305 (1989) recognized that the Commissioner cannot ignore political concerns of a municipality and cannot override those concerns absent a showing that the municipality has ignored constitutional mandates for providing a thorough and efficient system of education.

Further, while acknowledging that a statement of reasons must accompany the certifying resolution of the Mayor and Council as per Deptford, supra, the City contends that it did provide reasons for its reductions in exhibits attached to its certifying resolution of March 31, 1992. While acknowledging that the reasons provided with said resolution were not as detailed as those being set forth herein, they did suffice to meet the requirements as set forth by the Court particularly in light of what the City claims was only a 15 day period within which to review documents provided by the District.

The City disputes claims by the District that its statement of reasons was inadequate citing the qualifications of its consultant, Dr. Frank Marlow, and a series of workshops conducted by Dr. Marlow prior to the preparation of its certification resolution. (See Affidavit of Dr. Frank Marlow, attached to the City's Position Statement.)

The City likewise contends that it made every effort to seek information from the District prior to making its determination but was rebuffed by the State District Superintendent, Dr. Laval Wilson. The City contends that the District did not make itself available to its consultant as required in Deptford, supra, in order to facilitate its budgetary review.

The City, while acknowledging past deficiencies in the District and its designation as a special needs district, disputes what it considers the District's approach to improvement, namely increased expenditure. It states as follows:

> If the answer to the problems of the District of Paterson were merely to put more money in the budget, the local Board of Education and its administrative personnel would have been extremely successful over the past several years as the Board of Education budget increased by a large percentage in all of the years prior to the takeover. Obviously that was not true and the fact remains today that the mere infusion of money and additional staff will not, in and of itself, solve the District's problems.

The City argues that its position paper is based upon analysis of prior year budgets, prior year actual expenditures and the projections of the District's own auditor. Based upon the foregoing review, the City contends the reductions it has recommended can be effectuated without adversely affecting the District's students. Its proposed reductions are not directed at items which impact upon the quality of education but are aimed at "excessive or overlapping administrative staff and inflated non-educational items, such as insurance costs." (Letter Brief, at p.5)

Finally, the City urges the Commissioner to consider the special needs of all its citizens for police and fire protection as well as garbage pickup and other vital municipal services.

Account	Reduction
110 Administration, Salaries	$331,500

The City argues that the seven new positions projected by the District are unnecessary. It contends that past mismanagement and over-bureaucratization of the District were responsible for past failures and improvement cannot be accomplished by further adding administrative personnel. It argues that efficiency, not increased administrative personnel in the same jobs as existed prior to State takeover, is the key to success.

The City argues that the new administration of the District had already increased its Central Office staff from one superintendent and three assistant superintendents to one superintendent and five assistant superintendents. It contends that the District has always been burdened by large administrative costs and notes that administrative costs rose 30.4% in 1991-92 over 1990-91 and that such costs are now being increased in 1992-93 by a further 8.6% over the 1991-92 figure.

The City claims a review of the positions to be added reflect duplication of services as follows:

> For example, the City proposes both a purchasing agent within the Administrative Account 110, presumably to be hired for $47,000, and a Director of Purchasing placed under Account 710 for a salary of $75,000. The proposed position of Ombudsman is intended to facilitate community and parental communication within the District. However, the District already has a press officer who serves the Superintendent to perform this function. In addition, the Advisory Council itself is charged with the duty of acting as a liaison between the community and the District. The positions of Risk Management Specialist and Employee Benefit Specialist would appear to be positions which at best could be performed served by one individual. The District cites as justification for an Employee Benefits Specialist, the fact that the District's health benefits plan was previously mismanaged. However this position has nothing to do with actual management of the benefit plan but rather is to act as a liaison between employees and benefit providers.

It would seem that the Risk Management Specialist and the staff of the Personnel and Business Administrator's Office should be able to successfully field questions from employees regarding the fringe benefit plans. This is particularly true since the mismanagement of the District's Health plan will be corrected by participation in the State sponsored plan.

The City questions how many new positions are actually being sought by the District in this account, four or five, as well as the average salary to be paid to the new employees.

Contending that the District had already increased supervisory personnel immediately after the takeover, the City argues that the five or four new positions projected in this account are in addition to those persons in the supervisory category already added upon the takeover. The City contends that Attachment A to its Position Statement in this account reflects 38 supervisory positions as compared to 27 positions reflected in a 1991-92 payroll report (Attachment B), a net increase of 11 positions.

The City contends that the reduction it recommends would still leave an increase of six supervisory positions to minister to a stable student population.

Although the District submits that the proposed reductions will, in reality, result in a reduction of 36 new positions, the City contends that is not the case. The manner in which the City calculated the budget needs for the District in Account 213 without the addition of new employees was based on the auditor's projected need in that line item. The City took the projected expenditure for the 1991-92 school year from the audit report then added an additional 6.7% increase for the 1991-92 school year and a 6.7% increase for the 1992-93 school year. An additional figure was added for career development salary increases which were previously in a separate Account 1113. The 6.7% increase was also added to that figure for both years. The total projected need of the District was $57,692,052. This left a reduction, without the loss of any existing employees, in Account 213 of $1,342,317:

Audit projected need	$49,285,083.
6.7% for 1991-92	3,302,100.
6.7% for 1992-93	3,523,341.
Career Development salary increases 6.7% increase for 1991-92 and 1992-93	1,581,528.
Total 1992-93	$57,692,052.

It is to be noted that the population and enrollment in the City of Paterson schools has actually declined over the past several years. In the 1987-88 school year the actual pupil enrollment was 22,595; the estimated pupil enrollment for 1992-93 is 22,423, thus, there has been an actual reduction in pupil enrollment. However, the account for teachers' salaries, according to the District's proposal, would increase by 54.1% during the same period of time. From 1987-88 through 1991-92 school year this line item increased 31.9%:

1988-1989	$38,308,917.
1989-1990	$42,996,249.
1990-1991	$48,947,473.
1991-1992	$51,828,835.

While the City does not have the necessary documentation from the District to indicate the growth of staff during those periods of time, the increase in the salary account obviously establishes that additional staff was added. The District proposes a 13.9% increase over the 1991-92 account while the City proposes an 11.3% increase.

The City further argues that the District mischaracterizes the City's proposed elimination of 30 positions as impacting upon Special Education and Bilingual Education programs. The City claims that Special Education and ESL personnel are carried in lines 134 to 200 within the budget which all reflect increases for teacher salaries in those line items.

Thus, the City contends that proposed reductions in the 213 account will not impact upon Special Education and Bilingual/ESL programs.

215 Secretarial and Clerical Salaries $68,000

The City has proposed a reduction of $68,000 in this account by a reduction in the cost of 4 new positions. The position papers submitted by the District appear to indicate that the District budgeted compensation for each of the new positions in the amount of $27,000. The District has obviously made a numerical error in the calculation of this budget line.

As set forth in the listing of personnel by category provided by the District and attached as Exhibit A for Account No. 215, the District is proposing four new staff at a salary total of $148,000. The City argues that a review of the arithmetical calculation will reflect that this is an allocation of $37,000 per position rather than $27,000 and thus, even assuming for the purposes of argument the correctness of the District's position in this matter, a numerical miscalculation in the amount of $40,000.00 has been made in this account.

Further, the City submits that the proposed salary submitted by the District, even ignoring the arithmetical mistake, is unreasonable. The current average salary for secretarial and clerical salaries as set forth on Attachment A is $22,450. Obviously, new employees would be brought in at lower salaries.

Although the District responds that $7,000 of the proposed $27,000 is for fringe benefits, the City contends it is inappropriate to place fringe benefits in the salary account. Proper budget procedures require that the fringe benefits be allocated to line 820 for health benefits and other appropriate lines. The intermingling of fringe benefits and a variety of salary accounts makes it difficult to assess the District's salary proposal.

The City notes on the list of personnel by category that the page for Account No. 215, Attachment A, does not reflect that fringes are included within the salary line item. This is to be contrasted with the budget detail provided for Account No. 710, Attachment B, which specifically reflects within the budget that fringe benefits are considered within the salary line item. The City contends that the original aforesaid line item was not intended to include the fringe benefits and the District is now attempting to change its position.

The City argues that, taking into consideration the arithmetical mistakes incorporated by the District and the fact that the $27,000 figure is far in excess of the average salary for the personnel proposed, its proposed reduction of $68,000 is reasonable and would not adversely affect the educational program provided for the District's students.

The City contends that the District has historically overbudgeted in Account 630:

Year	Actual Expenditure	Budgeted Allocation
1990-91	$956,657	$ 985,000
1988-89	$810,489	$1,135,600

The City has proposed a budget of $1,000,000 in this account with an increase of 4.5% over the actual expenditures in the 1990-91 school year.

The District proposes as its justification for this increase "highly volatile global conditions which govern the price of foreign oil." (District's Position Statement, 630, at p. 21) However, in reality fuel costs have stabilized over the past several years. The City submits that, since the price of fuel has actually come down since 1990 and 1991, the District will be overbudgeted in the 1991-92 year, as it has been in the past.

640 Utilities $205,956

The 1991-92 budget for Account 640 was $2,042,261. Pursuant to the audit report (Attachment A) the projected expenditure in this account is $1,989,550. Thus, the City contends the District's own audit reflects that Account 640 was overbudgeted in the 1991-92 year by $52,711. The level of expenditure proposed by the City for the entire 640 Account represents an 11.6% increase above the current level of expenditure in that account.

The availability of the reduction in question is further substantiated by a review of the 640B and 640C subaccounts for electricity and gas. Not only is Account 640 presently overbudgeted but so are the electricity and gas subaccounts. The projected 1991-92 expenditure for the electricity and gas subaccounts, as set forth in the audit, is $1,531,550. This projected expenditure is $33,503 under budget for the 1991-92 budget for those subaccounts.

The Pepe affidavit proposes a 14.93% increase in electricity costs and a 10.7% increase in gas costs. For the purposes of argument, the City will accept Pepe's proposed rates of increase. The projected audit expenditure for 1991-92, which is not allocated between electricity and gas, is $1,531,550. When this figure is multiplied by the District's proposal of 14.93%, the figure which should be included in the 1992-93 budget would be $1,760,210. It is to be noted that the City has actually allowed the District more than it has requested with these figures as the District only requested a 10.7% increase in gas and the City has used the 14.93 figure for both subaccounts. However, because the projected expenditure figure in the audit is not broken down between electricity and gas, the larger proposed increase of 14.93% has been applied to the projected expenditure for electricity and gas. Even allocating that benefit to the District, the 1992-93 budget figure should be $1,760,210. That figure when added to the undisputed subaccounts for water and telephone totals the City's proposed expenditure for Account 640 of $2,220,210. The calculations are summarized as follows:

Projected Audit Expenditure for Electricity and Gas--

District's proposed rate of increase	X .1493
Total	$1,760,210

City's Proposal

Electricity/Gas	$1,760,210
Water	$ 100,000	(Undisputed)
Telephone	$ 360,000	(Undisputed)
Total	$2,220,210

660 Operation of Plant $100,000

The City has proposed a $100,000 reduction in the District's budgeted amount of $347,750 in Account 660. The District's position paper implies that the City has failed to consider expenditures made in Account 660 after January 10, 1992. The City has considered same. It is to be noted that the City in its review of the budget was forced to work with an audit which only provided figures as of January 10, 1992. The audit expenditures as of that date were $159,366. The City submits that the auditor's projected figure of $340,000 for the remainder of the 1991-92 year is completely unrealistic. The auditor's projection would have an additional amount of almost $200,000 spent in the remaining half of the year. There is no justification for such a projection. In fact, the budgeted figure for 1991-92 was $181,000.

The actual expenditures in Account 660 in the school year 1990-91 were only $157,985. As set forth above, the 1991-92 budget amount was $181,000. The City's proposal of $247,750 represents a 36.88% increase over the 1991-92 budget for Account 660 and an even greater increase over actual expenditures. An increase of that magnitude is more than reasonable. The budgeted amount proposed by the District would represent a percentage increase of 92.1% over the 1991-1992 budget. An increase of that size must be substantiated by more than conclusionary affidavits of employees of the District.

The District maintains that additional funds are needed to lease vehicles to be used by maintenance employees. In fact, the projected budget contains no provision for additional maintenance employees. Rather, the City submits that the District intends to utilize such funds for the leasing of vehicles for administrative and supervisory staff.

In summary, the City submits that the 36.88% increase over the 1991-92 budgeted amount is sufficient for operation of the District without affecting the educational programs to be provided to the students.

710 Maintenance of Plant, Salaries $75,000

The City has proposed a reduction of $75,000 in Account No. 710 for Maintenance of Plant, Salaries. The original amount budgeted by the District was $1,711,080. The organizational flow chart provided by the District calls for one director within this account at $75,000. However, the budget detail (Exhibit A) proposed four (4) directors at $75,000 each. The City had proposed reducing this to 1 director at $75,000 and 3 supervisors at $50,000 each, for a savings of $25,000 each.

In its position paper, the District conveniently states that "not all proposed expenditures for new personnel were placed in appropriate accounts." (District's Position Statement, 710, at p.27) Also, in its position paper, the District discloses that salaries for three (3) non-maintenance directors in different divisions were incorrectly provided for in Account 710. The City respectfully submits that the City should not be penalized for the District's errors in budgeting this account. At the time that the City proposed its reduction in this account, the budget detail provided for four directors within the account. The City had no way of knowing that the District had committed an error by putting three non-maintenance directors within this account.

The City contends that even assuming that the District should be allowed to put three non-maintenance directors in this account, the proposed salary of $75,000 is excessive.

The actual expenditures for Account 720 in previous school years were as follows:

The City's proposed budget of $2,000,000 is 48.6% higher than the 1990-91 actual expenditures by the District in this account. This exceptionally large increase in one account more than adequately covers proposed increases in the costs of those services. The District would propose an increase of 85.9% over the 1990-91 total expenditure.

The District provides no documentation other than unsubstantiated affidavits of employees with regard to the necessity for such an increase. The District has not indicated that any new contracted services are to be included in Account 720. The District attempts to explain this huge increase over the 1990-91 expenditures by an explanation that the position of School Business Administrator was not filled for several months during that year. However, there was an Acting Business Administrator during the period in question and the District continued to operate with an Acting Business Administrator. In addition, the District will now be complying with the appropriate bidding laws and should save substantial monies in conjunction with the award of contracts.

The City admits that its recommended reduction in this area was attributed to a reduction in medical benefits which should have more properly been attributed to Account 820. Nonetheless, it points out that a reduction of 42 new positions as recommended in the various salary accounts at approximately $7,500 per position for medical benefits would permit the $315,000 reduction in the 820 Account.

The City contends it should not be penalized for attributing the reduction to the wrong account number since the District itself has admitted to several errors in attribution and has helped to create confusion by including fringe benefits in some areas to salary accounts and to the appropriate accounts in other areas.

820 Insurance and Judgments $4,771,324

In Account 820, Insurance and Judgments, the City has proposed a reduction $4,771,324. This reduction is based on the excessive increase in this account over expenditures made in the account in the school year 1990-91 and the projected expenditures in that account for the school year 1991-92.

The City recognizes that Account 820 is broken down into subaccounts for property insurance and employee health insurance and associated benefits. It is interesting to note, however, that the City's audit is not broken down into such subaccounts regarding health and other benefits; thus a comparison is difficult. However, the City does not propose a reduction in subaccount (1) for property insurance, but rather seeks a reduction in subaccount (2) for employee health and associated benefits.

The actual expenditure in Account 820 for the 1990-91 school year was $11,139,952. The District's audit projection for employee health and associated insurance for the 1991-92 school year, excluding property insurance, liability insurance, and fidelity bonds, is $15,168,894. That audit projected expense is 36% higher than the entire 820 account actually expended by the District in the 1990-91 school year, including all other forms of insurance. The total budget proposed by the District for employee health, prescription, dental and optical, for the 1992-93 school year, is $20,750,800.

This proposed budget is 86% higher than expenditures in the entire account in the 1990-91 school year. It is 36.8% higher than the District's own auditor projections for 1991-92. The City submits that a proposed 86% increase over the 1990-91 expenditures is a flagrant example of runaway spending by the District.

Although there were problems of mismanagement in the past with this program, the District will now be participating in the State health plan. Presumably with the changes in administration, all of the other associated health benefits will be bid and result in additional savings to the District.

The City's proposed reduction of $4.7 million still allows for a 15% increase above the 1991-92 projected expenditures of the District's own auditor. The City submits that such an increase is reasonable and that, in fact, the Commissioner should investigate unreasonable increases in this account in the past year.

830(a) Rental of Facilities $119,086

The District has proposed a budgeted amount of $524,000. This amount is approximately $190,000 in excess of the auditor's projections of the District's expenditures for this account for the school year 1991-92. As set forth in the audit (Exhibit A), the cost of existing leases for the District is $334,914. Although the position statement submitted on behalf of the District indicates that the expenditures in this line item will total $404,914, in reality, the auditor has specifically referenced every existing lease with the District as follows:

St. Bonaventure	$176,000
35 Church Street	$ 58,914
	$334,914

The City projects an expenditure for this account of $404,914 which is $70,000 in excess of the current commitments of the District as set forth by the District's own auditor. In addition, no documentation has been provided as to the need for the lease of additional facilities or the proposed expenditure for said lease.

The City respectfully submits that since the City has proposed $70,000 in excess of the actual expenditures for the 1991-92 school year, the proposed reduction in the budgeted amount for Account 830(a) Rental Facilities is reasonable and does not adversely affect the educational programs provided by the District.

II. DISTRICT'S POSITION

The District's general position argues that the City has failed to meet its burden of proof to demonstrate that the amounts budgeted by the District are not necessary for a thorough and efficient system of education. The District points out that the City fails to recognize what standard the Commissioner must apply pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-52 in circumstances such as this, namely that it is the Commissioner's responsibility to approve an amount necessary "to provide a thorough and efficient educational program including the implementation of the plan to correct deficiencies."

The District asserts that the dispute is not about tax rates, noting that N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-52(b) provides an avenue for the City to appeal to the Division of Local Government Services in the Department of Community Affairs if it believes the school budget places an unreasonable tax burden on the City.

The District likewise rejects the argument of the City that Dr. Laval S. Wilson prevented Dr. Marlow, the City's consultant, from speaking to staff, contending instead that Dr. Wilson only requested to be informed as to what staff members were to be consulted.

The District further argues that the City fails to recognize that the Quality Education Act as amended in accord with the Supreme Court's ruling in Abbott v. Burke, 119 N.J. 287 (1990) requires that special needs districts increase their expenditures in order to narrow the gap between the poorest districts and the wealthier ones. Without such increased expenditures, the children of Paterson would be denied their entitlement to a thorough and efficient system of education.

The District further challenges the City's assertion that additional staffing is the District's answer to meet its constitutional mandate. The District points out that the statute governing State-operated school districts requires a reorganization of central office administrative and supervisory staff within the first six months of its establishment. The District contends that the positions established were all necessary to provide the supervision and oversight lacking under the previous administration and board.

The District also submits that the City's analysis centers almost completely on a review of expenditures in previous years. The District contends such analysis is inappropriate since the 1991-92 budget was prepared by the previous administration which budget did not reflect a relationship to actual expenditures. The District urges the Commissioner to focus on the amount necessary for the 1992-93 school year and reject "simplistic" analyses of percentage increases.

The District maintains that there are compelling reasons, as outlined in its written position statement, to support the addition of the positions of Assistant Business Administrator, Purchasing Agent, Assistant Supervisor of Custodian Services, Risk Management Specialist, Employee Benefits Specialist and Supervisor of Accounting in the Division of Business Services. The numerous deficiencies in the Division of Business Services were caused in part by an administration that was unable to identify its own staffing needs. The City makes conclusionary statements that certain positions are not needed or would overlap in duties. For example, the Risk Management Specialist and Employee Benefits Specialist positions involve different responsibilities. The functions of the Risk Management Specialist would be to seek ways to reduce the District's exposure to liability and to ensure that proper casualty insurance coverages are in place. The Employee Benefits Specialist would serve as the liaison between employees and health benefits providers. The additional positions in Business Services are all needed and are common in large school districts.

The City has no basis for its assertion that the position of ombudsman is not needed. The role of the ombudsman to facilitate community and parental involvement requires a full-time employee who can devote himself or herself to these responsibilities. This position will assist the State District Superintendent to fulfill his statutory requirement to involve parents and the community in the District. It is ironic that the City would seek to eliminate a position which would foster greater involvement of the community in the District.

In reply to the City's position statement regarding Account 212, Supervisory Salaries, the District submits that the City has failed to meet its burden of proof to support any reduction in this line item. As indicated in paragraph 6 of the Affidavit of Clarence Hoover submitted by the District with its position statement, this line item reflects the addition of four new director positions in the Division of Curriculum and Instruction. A fifth director position, the Director of Special Services, was added to the initial budget for the 1992-93 school year, but is not a new position for the District. The Director of Special Services position has been vacant since December 31, 1991 when the former director retired following an extended sick leave. The District's initial budget documents had erroneously listed the Director of Special Services as a new position. Accordingly, only the four director positions set forth in the District's position statement should be at issue.

The 1991-92 payroll report relied upon by the City for its assertion that there were only 27 supervisors prior to the State takeover does not provide an accurate reflection of the particular positions which are included in Account 212 for the 1992-93 school year. As evidenced by the District's budget detail, the payroll report did not include five supervisory positions of which two were added following the takeover, in addition to the four new positions which the District has budgeted for the 1992-93 school year. The District's position statement provides sufficient support for its addition of the new director positions in the areas of Instruction, Literacy, Student Support Services and Bilingual/English as a Second Language. These new supervisory positions will have over-sight in areas of critical need to the District to meet the educational needs of the District and to bring the District into compliance with laws and regulations.

The District submits that the City has provided no rationale to support the elimination of the new director positions which, as indicated in the organization chart, will provide for improved span of control and proper focus in the Division of Curriculum and Instruction.

In conclusion, the District submits that the entire amount budgeted in Account 212 is reasonable and necessary.

In reply to the position statement of the City, regarding Account 213, Teacher Salaries, the District submits that the City has failed to meet its burden of proof to support any reduction in this line item. The City's proposed reduction purports to eliminate thirty new teaching positions. The District maintains that the amount of the proposed reduction of $1,342,317 would, in fact, provide for the reduction of thirty-six positions based upon an average salary of $30,000 and $7,000 in benefits which was included in this line item for new teachers.

Notwithstanding the arguments of the parties regarding the number of teachers that would be affected by the proposed reduction, the District submits that the additional teaching staff is necessary and is not unreasonable in light of the high class size and special needs of the District. The District notes that all new teaching staff positions have been included in this account although a number will, in fact, service special education and bilingual/ESL programs/ ESL teachers, the amounts funded for those positions and bilingual/ESL teachers will be transferred to the appropriate accounts. The City's assertion that nineteen (19) new special education/ESL teaching positions are provided for in the 1992-93 budget is incorrect. The documents upon which the City relies indicate increases in the budget, but ignore the fact that the special education/ESL salary accounts were overspent during the 1991-92 year due to the failure of the prior Board of Education to provide adequate appropriations in these accounts.

215 Secretarial and Clerical Salaries $68,000

In reply to the City's position statement regarding Account 215, Secretarial and Clerical Salaries, the District submits that the City has failed to meet its burden of proof to support any requested reduction in this line item. The salary budgeted for each of the four new secretarial positions was $20,000. Also included in this line item was $28,000 for benefits for the new secretaries (at $7,000 each) and projected overtime of $40,000. The District acknowledges that the City's proposed reduction would then leave only $10,000, apart from benefits as salary for the secretaries.

The District submits that the $20,000 salary proposed for the four additional secretarial positions is reasonable. As the secretaries would support new administrators in the Business Services Division, it is essential that the budget adequately provide for the compensation for these new positions.

In reply to the City's position statement regarding this account, the District submits that the City has failed to meet its burden of proof to support any reduction.

The City appears to base its reduction on actual expenditures from the 1990-91 school year. The current appropriate ledger for the District as of June 25, 1992, indicates that the District will expend no less than $1,073,725 in this line item during the 1991-92 year. The District's budgeted amount of $1,090,859 provides for only a 1.6% increase. The budgeted increase is certainly reasonable in light of potential changes in the price of fuel oil and the potential for a colder winter in the 1992-93 year.

In reply to the City's position statement regarding Account 640, Utilities, the District submits that the City has failed to meet its burden of proof to support any reduction in this line item.

As indicated on the appropriation ledger, the expenditures and encumbrances in Account 640, as of June 25, 1992, were $2,001,876. The figures in the appropriation ledger should be utilized, not auditor's estimates made almost six months ago. This amount does not include all utility costs for the 1991-92 year. The District submits that the basis for its budget appropriation for the 1992-93 year is fully supported in its written position statement.

In conclusion, the District submits that the budgeted amount in Account 640 is reasonable and necessary.

660 Operation of Plant $100,000

In reply to the City's position statement regarding Account 660, the District submits that the City has failed to meet its burden of proof to support any requested reduction in this line item. The District submits that its projected expenditures as set forth in its position statement are accurate and that the increases budgeted for are also reasonable. Accordingly, the District submits that the entire amount budgeted in this line item is necessary. A review of expenditures to date in this account indicates that this line item has already been overspent by $72,768.70. The District has had to draw upon this line item for not only vehicle expense for maintenance but also costs the prior Board of Education had not anticipated including permits related to compliance with environmental regulations, including transfer station fees paid to Passaic County Utilities Authority for the disposal of refuse ($85,000 as of June 25, 1992) and refuse collection by a private hauler ($141,460 as of June 25, 1992). The City had formerly provided refuse collection for the District, and the Board of Education was not aware that the City was going to discontinue this service when the District's 1991-92 budget was prepared.

The District rejects as inflammatory and without basis the City's assertion that the District has sought to include funds in this account to be used for the lease of additional vehicles for administrative and supervisory staff. Other than a leased vehicle for the State District Superintendent pursuant to his contract with the State Board of Education and one vehicle utilized to transport administrative and supervisory staff, there are no other leased vehicles for administrators or supervisors in the District.

In conclusion, the District submits that the increases in this line item are clearly reasonable and necessary to meet the District's anticipated expenditures for the 1992-93 year.

710 Maintenance of Plant $75,000

The District avers that its position statement sufficiently sets forth the District's position that the four new director positions which were included in this account are necessary for the District to meet its mandates to bring the District into compliance with laws and regulations affecting its business services.

The City has no basis for its conclusionary statement that the salaries provided for in this account are excessive. The District submits that the compensation of $75,000, which includes $7,000 in benefits is reasonable for the director positions which were included in this account. These positions will have significant responsibilities in the area of business services and the proposed compensation is in line with comparable positions in other large school districts and city governments. The City errs in concluding that the Director of Purchasing would report to the Purchasing Agent. In fact, the Purchasing Agent will be reporting to the Director of Purchasing.

In conclusion, the District submits that the budgeted amount in Account 710 is reasonable and necessary.

In reply to the City's position statement regarding Account 720, Contracted Services, the District submits that the City has failed to meet its burden of proof to support any reduction in this line item.

The District accurately pointed out in its position statement and supporting affidavit of Barbara Kaye Mortimer, School Business Administrator, that the District's utilization of funds budgeted in this account was delayed due to the fact that the School Business Administrator position was not filled for several months and that there were no individuals on staff to coordinate the bidding and awarding of contracts. The District anticipates receiving the report of an outside consultant regarding its facilities during the summer of 1992 and anticipates that numerous repairs will be made based upon the report and the District's own assessment of its needs. The amount appropriated in this line item is needed to provide for the anticipated expenditures. The District also noted in its position statement that this line item includes $350,000 earmarked for the provision of maintenance and service to new copy machines and other equipment throughout the District's schools and central offices. Also, $50,000 was budgeted for snowplowing.

Any expenses for contracted building repairs and maintenance during the 1992-93 school year will be handled as current expense and drawn from the 720 Account. To address the District's needs, the District submits that the budgeted amount is reasonable and necessary.

810 Fixed Charges - TPAF/Social Security $315,000

In reply to the City's position statement regarding Account 810, Fixed Charges-TPAF/Social Security, the District submits that the City has failed to meet its burden of proof to support any reduction in this line item. Although the City states that Account 820 should be reduced, instead of Account 810, to reflect the cost of fringe benefits for the 42 new positions it proposes to eliminate, the District has indicated that the 1992-93 budget provided for the cost of fringe benefits in the particular salary accounts. Accordingly, no reduction should be sustained in Account 820 as the fringe benefits for the new positions are not contained in this line item. As noted in the District's position statement, the fringe benefits cost will be transferred to Account 820 upon the hiring of individuals for new positions.

The District submits that the reductions sought by the City are already accounted for in its proposed reductions in the salary accounts. Accordingly, there should no issue pertaining to any reduction in Account 810 or 820 new employees.

820 Insurance and Judgments $4,771,324

The District submits that the figures contained in its position statement accurately reflect the District's anticipated expenditures in this line item for the 1992-93 school year. As the District is not in a position to bring about reductions in the expenditures in this account, it submits that the entire budgeted amount is necessary.

The City has failed to provide any support for its inflammatory comments regarding the projected expenditures in this account. The District notes that its transition to the State Health Benefits Program will require it to pay $3,800,000 to Massachusetts Mutual pursuant to the termination clause in the agreement between the prior Board of Education and the insurance carrier to cover the payout for claims which arose during the 1991-92 school year, but will be paid for after June 30, 1992. The City's arbitrary assignment of a percentage increase to this line item is without a rational basis.

The District submits that the entire amount budgeted in Account 820 is reasonable and necessary.

In reply to the City's position statement regarding Account 830(a), the District submits that the City has failed to meet its burden of proof to support any reduction. In its position statement, the City relies upon erroneous information regarding the cost of existing leases for the District. As set forth below, the District leases two facilities which were not included in the City's calculations and an additional $74,000 in expenditures is anticipated to cover parking expenses for District employees at the Municipal Parking Garage. As the District anticipates the need to lease an additional facility, an increased appropriation for this account is reasonable and necessary.

The District submits that the budgeted amount in Account 830(a) is reasonable and necessary.

III COMMISSIONER'S DECISION

In rendering his determination in this matter, the Commissioner takes notes of the legal arguments raised by the parties by way of their general positions. In so doing, the Commissioner finds merit in the District's assertion that the City failed to set forth specific reasons for its recommended reductions in its Resolution appealing this matter to the Commissioner. Upon examination of the comments accompanying the recommended reductions, the Commissioner finds such purported reasons to be thoroughly lacking in detail and specificity and they do not meet the burden of demonstrating that the amount by which the various line items were reduced are unnecessary for the provision of a thorough and efficient system of education. Nonetheless, the Commissioner does recognize that Deptford, supra, does require him to take cognizance of and consider the reasons which may be offered at a later time by the municipality in light of the degree to which these reasons are consistent with the constitutional mandate.

Further, the Commissioner agrees with the position set forth by the District in this matter that his sole responsibility in this matter involving a State-operated school district, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-52, is to approve an amount necessary for meeting the aforesaid constitutional mandate including such amounts which may be necessary to correct deficiencies. He likewise must affirm the District's position that the City has an avenue, apart from appealing to the Commissioner, provided for in N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-52(b) if it believes the school district budget places an unreasonable tax burden on the City.

The District's legal argument is likewise sound when it points out that the Quality Education Act in accord with the Supreme Court's ruling in Abbott v. Burke, supra, requires a special needs district like Paterson to increase its annual expenditures so that they may reach a point within five years which will be equal to the average expenditures of the most affluent districts in the State. Therefore, it must be concluded that mere comparisons of expenditures in previous years without also meeting the very difficult burden of demonstrating that the budgeted funds of the District are not necessary for a thorough and efficient system of education cannot be accepted as an adequate basis for justifying budget reductions. Of particular moment in this regard is the decision of the State Board of Education in Mayor and Council of the City of Jersey City v. State-Operated School District of Jersey City, decided August 5, 1992 wherein it found:

> Moreover, given this district's history of educational inadequacy and fiscal mismanagement which resulted in our decision to order the creation of a State-operated school district, McCarroll v. Board of Education of the City of Jersey City, decided by the State Board, October 4, 1989, we find that the historical spending patterns of this particular district can not be used to conclude that amounts in its 1991-92 budget have been over-budgeted. Rather, in reviewing this district's budget, we must be particularly attentive to whether the District's > financial resources will be sufficient to enable it to meet the educational needs of its students. Accordingly, we must review the reductions sustained by the Commissioner with great care. (at p.4)

Consequently, while recognizing the heavy burden which the law places upon a municipality in appealing a budgetary allocation of a State-operated special needs district, the Commissioner, also mindful of the responsibilities placed upon him in considering the reasons projected by a municipal governing body pursuant to Deptford, supra, shall proceed to consider the reductions proposed by the City in this matter, line item by line item.

110 Administration, Salaries $331,500

The Commissioner notes that the City offers no cognizable basis for its proposed reduction other than its contention that the increases in administrative personnel create an administrative structure greater than that which existed in an admittedly ineffective and inefficient administration of the district prior to takeover. Consequently, the Commissioner finds and determines that the City has failed to meet its burden of proof and directs that the $331,500 proposed reduction be denied.

In this account, the Commissioner notes that the City's arguments rest almost exclusively on numbers of new persons to be hired and in a dispute over whether the District's intent is to create four or five new positions. It is noted by the Commissioner that the District has identified the new positions to be created as being in the areas of instruction, literacy, student support services, and bilingual/ESL. Under the circumstances which prevail in this matter, namely a special needs district whose supervisory structure was so lacking as to require a State takeover, the City has failed to demonstrate that these positions and the revised supervisory structure of the District are not necessary to assist the District in developing a thorough and efficient system of education as constitutionally mandated. Reduction of $277,000 is denied.

The City's arguments in reference to their proposed reductions in this account focus entirely upon past expenditures and auditor's projections of costs. This type of analysis fails to take into consideration educational needs in a District whose past performance has been so bad that the extreme step of a State takeover was required. Given past deficiencies and the District's need to reduce class size, despite the City's contention of falling enrollment, the City has failed to demonstrate that the 30 new teachers are not required, particularly in the areas of special education and bilingual/ESL.

While there is merit in the City's argument that the total number of new teachers to be hired, including special education and bilingual teachers, should not be carried in this account, as contended by the District, the fact that the Board has budgeted for its needs in an improper account does not detract from the need itself. The reduction of $1,342,317 is denied.

The City's argument once again focuses upon inadequacies of the District's budgeting procedures, namely the budgeting of fringe benefits in the salary account. While the City's criticism in this regard is meritorious, it does not address the question of whether the positions themselves are needed. Consequently, the City has failed to demonstrate the lack of need for the positions in question. The requested reduction of $68,000 is denied.

Notwithstanding contentions by the City of overbudgeting in this account, the District's latest figures indicate that it has expended the preponderance of the amount appropriated in 1991-92. Given the uncertainties which exist in this area, namely the degree of severity of the winter of 1993, the small increase in heating oil projected by the District is entirely reasonable. The reduction of $90,859 in this account is denied.

640 Utilities $205,956

The City's arguments in this area as they relate to alleged overbudgeting for utilities are all based upon the auditor's projections of 1991-92 expenditures. Actual expenditures for the utilities in question as demonstrated by the District were 98% of the amounts appropriated for 1991-92. Since the budgeting process is an estimate, at best, the total amount projected by the District in this account of $2,426,166 is not an unreasonable estimate. The reduction of $205,956 is denied.

660 Operation of Plant $100,000

Once again the City has utilized previously budgeted amounts to justify its recommended reduction. While its principal argument stresses large percentage increases in this account, it has failed to meet its burden that the amounts necessary for the services required as delineated by the District are unnecessary. The City's claim that the additional funds requested in this account are to provide for leasing of vehicles for use by administrative and supervisory staff are entirely unsubstantiated. The $100,000 reduction in this account is denied.

The principal argument of the City revolves around how much the District plans to compensate its personnel in this account. It further disputes the District's method of budgeting in placing non-maintenance positions in this account as well as its inappropriate inclusion of fringe benefits in the salary accounts. While there is merit in the City's position relative to the District's cavalier method of budgeting, these arguments fail to address the merits of the need for the positions budgeted by the District.

Even assuming, arguendo, the correctness of the City's position on what the District intends paying the personnel in this account, it has not demonstrated that non-curriculum related directors, such as those in Financial Operations and Management Information, do not have duties which would entitle them to greater compensation than that afforded curriculum supervisors. The $75,000 reduction in this account is denied.

Once again, the City relies upon past expenditures in justifying its proposed reductions in this account. Reliance upon such data in a district which has been notoriously remiss in meeting its responsibilities is entirely without merit. This is particularly true in a special needs district which is obligated under legislative and judicial mandate to increase its expenditures in order to meet constitutional mandates, one of which is to provide safe, clean and healthful facilities necessary to ensure a thorough and efficient system of education. The reduction of $501,480 is denied.

810 Fixed Charges $315,000

While the City makes an excellent point in reference to the appropriate place for budgeting fringe benefits such as hospitalization and medical benefits and the District is hereby admonished to correct its deficiencies in the manner in which it budgets such benefits, no reduction in this account is justified in light of the fact that the 42 new positions which the increase in this account is intended to cover have all been sustained by the Commissioner in this decision. The $315,000 proposed reduction is denied.

820 Insurance and Judgments $4,771,324

Again the City argues percentage increases without consideration of the necessity for such increases. The Commissioner notes that the District's explanation that it must pay $3,800,000 to Massachusetts Mutual pursuant to its termination clause with that company to cover payments for claims which arose in the 1991-92 school year, but payable in 1992-93, is not disputed by the City in its summation paper. The reduction of $4,771,324 is denied.

The documentation provided in this matter, which includes the payment for parking facilities, indicates the projected expenditure of $424,000 for facilities already leased. The District's contention that another facility is required to be leased during the 1992-93 school year is not refuted by the assertion of the City that if such facility had not been leased as of the time of this appeal it would not be leased. The Commissioner notes that the City's argument that the District should not pay for parking facilities for its administrative and supervisory staff is entirely without merit. Notwithstanding the alleged $70,000 figure used as salary for administrative and supervisory personnel, the provision of parking facilities for employees does not constitute a luxury or an excessive benefit, particularly in a crowded urban setting. The reduction of $119,086 in this account is denied.

In conclusion, the Commissioner has found that the City of Paterson has failed in its burden to demonstrate that the entire amount budgeted by the State-operated School District of the City of Paterson was not necessary to provide a thorough and efficient system of education to the pupils of Paterson. The Commissioner therefore directs that the entire recommended reduction of $8,197,522 in current expense proposed by the City be denied. The Commissioner therefore further determines that the amount of tax required for the Paterson Public School District in order to provide a thorough and efficient system of education is $38,500,534 which shall partially fund a total current expense expenditure of $219,493,816 as originally projected and certified by the State District Superintendent of the aforesaid district.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF OLD BRIDGE, MIDDLESEX COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning music teacher was riffed in 1991-92 (N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9). He claimed violation of tenure and seniority rights when Board retained another teacher and not him.

ALJ found that district had corrected errors concerning the other teacher's employment -- she should have been offered positions between 1985 and 1989 and when she was rehired in 1989 she was mistakenly listed as nontenured. Thus, she was a tenured teacher with superior seniority rights to those of petitioner. Therefore, petitioner's rights were not violated. Petition was dismissed.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision.

WALTER MC ALOON,
Petitioner,
v.
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF OLD BRIDGE, MIDDLESEX COUNTY,
Respondent.

Harold N. Springstead, Esq., for petitioner

Harold Smith, Esq., for respondent (Wilentz, Goldman & Spitzer, attorneys)

Record Closed: August 31, 1992 Decided: November 30, 1992

BEFORE JOSEPH F. FIDLER, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner Walter Mc Aloon, a tenured teaching staff member and a teacher of music, asserts that the respondent Board of Education of the Township of Old Bridge has acted in violation of his tenure rights pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5, and his seniority rights, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.10, by refusing to continue his 1991-92 employment. At issue is whether petitioner's tenure and seniority rights have been violated by the respondent, and if so, what remedies would be appropriate.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner filed a verified petition of appeal with the Commissioner of Education on June 5, 1991. The respondent Board filed its answer on June 19, 1991.

The Department of Education transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law on June 24, 1991, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

Prehearing conferences were held on January 9 and February 11, 1992. The matter was originally scheduled to be heard on July 9, 1992, but was adjourned from that date because the petitioner's principal witnesses were unavailable. The matter was then rescheduled to be heard on August 31, 1992. The hearing was held as scheduled in Old Bridge, New Jersey, and the record closed on that date. Subsequently, an order was entered extending the time limit for filing this initial decision.

FINDINGS OF FACT

There is no genuine dispute concerning the material facts in this matter. Jane Lamb is employed by the respondent Board of Education as a music teacher. She has certifications in music, English, and speech and drama. It was the testimony of Ms. Lamb that she was first hired by the respondent in 1974. Ms. Lamb obtained tenure in 1977.

By letter from Assistant Superintendent for Personnel Andrew Korshalla dated April 17, 1985 (Exhibit P-5), Ms. Lamb was informed that certain teaching positions for the 1985-86 school year would be abolished due to declining school enrollments, program modifications and budget uncertainties. Ms. Lamb was informed that she would be directly affected by the action and would not be offered a contract for the coming school year. Ms. Lamb testified that it had become commonplace for the teachers to receive such a notice. Although she had received them each year for a number of years, she had always been rehired for the next Fall. However, the respondent school district did not rehire Ms. Lamb for the 1985-96 school year.

It was the testimony of Ms. Lamb that she applied for a job in the Rumson School District and was hired. She began that job in September 1985. Ms. Lamb worked in the Rumson school district for three years, but she was not thereafter rehired by that district. It was her sincere and credible testimony that during the three year she worked for the Rumson school district, she was not aware of any openings for teachers in the Old Bridge School District. In addition, no one from the Old Bridge School District called her about any such openings. After Ms. Lamb lost her job in the Rumson district in June 1988, she learned of and applied for an opening in the Old Bridge district, commencing September 1988. Ms. Lamb was interviewed for the job, but she was not hired. However, the individual who was hired subsequently proved to not have the correct certification and she was let go during the school year. Ms. Lamb was then hired by the Old Bridge School District, effective April 27, 1989 (Exhibit P-10).

Ms. Lamb testified that she did not realize when she was rehired at Old Bridge that she was considered to be a non-tenured teacher. It was only after Ms. Lamb was observed for the fourth time that she realized that she was being treated as non-tenured. According to Ms. Lamb, at the beginning of her second year back with the Old Bridge District, she discussed her status with Dr. Peter Delaney, Assistant Superintendent for secondary education. It is undisputed that the respondent school board's error was subsequently corrected and Ms. Lamb was restored to the tenure and seniority rights to which she was entitled.

Dr. Andrew Korshalla testified that he has been superintendent for the respondent school district since 1989. Prior to that, he was assistant superintendent for personnel for about ten years. According to Dr. Korshalla's testimony, the school district used a seniority expert, Robert F. Strauss, to review the school district records and prepare seniority lists (Exhibit J-1). The superintendent's office maintains a preferential hiring list for the rehiring of teachers who had lost their positions due to reductions in force. Ms. Lamb had been informed by the letter of April 17, 1985 (Exhibit P-1), that she would be placed on a preferential hiring list for recall.

Dr. Korshalla testified that the superintendent's office may have been remiss in properly maintaining the preferred eligibility list for recalling tenured teachers. In September 1986, a music teacher with less seniority then Ms. Lamb was called back for rehire by the district (Exhibits P-3 and P-4). In August 1987, petitioner Walter McAloon was hired by the respondent school district as an instrumental music teacher (Exhibit P-7). An elementary music teacher was hired by the respondent district in September 1988 (Exhibit P-8). Dr. Korshalla had no information concerning whether the respondent district at any time contacted Jane Lamb to offer her these positions pursuant to a preferential rehire list.

Dr. Korshalla testified that Jane Lamb was hired by the district effective April 27, 1989 (Exhibit P-10). According to Dr. Korshalla, Ms. Lamb was hired as a non-tenured teacher with prior experience in the district (Exhibit P-11). By a Board resolution of May 8, 1991 (Exhibit P-12), there was to be a reduction in force affecting all non-tenured teachers. The names of Jane Lamb and petitioner McAloon both appeared as being non-tenured teacher (P-12). According Dr. Korshalla, it was brought to his attention by Dr. Delaney that Ms. Lamb should have been rehired by the respondent district as a tenured teacher. Dr. Korshalla did not know how the mistake concerning Ms. Lamb's tenure had happened, but the mistake was corrected.

Assistant Superintendent Delaney testified that Ms. Lamb asked him to look into her salary and seniority. When he did, he discovered that she had been affected by a reduction in force in 1985 and had not thereafter been called back by the school district. Dr. Delaney stated that he then advised the superintendent that Ms. Lamb was improperly classified as a non-tenured teacher. Dr. Delaney had no knowledge as to whether seniority lists were used to determine whom to rehire following a reductions in force. However, he had been told by consultant Robert F. Strauss that there was a period of about two year when teachers that had been affected by the reductions in force were not carried on the seniority list. In 1986, Ms. Lamb did not appear on the seniority list (Exhibit P-13). Dr. Delaney did not know whether any one from the school district had ever called Ms. Lamb to let her know about openings in the school district. In any event, when it was learned that Ms. Lamb should have been rehired as a tenured teacher, the school district records were corrected to so reflect. When there was a subsequent reduction in force for the 1991-92 school year, petitioner Walter McAloon was not renewed by the respondent school board.

All of the preceding evidence is essentially undisputed and believable, and is is thus FOUND AS FACT.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The petitioner asserts that the respondent Board has acted in violation of his tenure rights and his seniority rights by refusing to continue his 1991-92 employment. Under the applicable statutes, N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 and 18A:28-6, petitioner has acquired tenure in respondent's school district. However, the Board has discretion to reduce its work force pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9, which provides:

> [n]othing in this title or any other law relating to tenure of service shall be held to limit the right to any board of education to reduce the number of teaching staff members, employed in the district whenever, in the judgment of the board, it is advisable to abolish any such positions for > reasons of economy or because of reduction in the number of pupils or of change in the administrative or supervisory organization of the district or for other good cause upon compliance with the provisions of this article.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12, if any teaching staff member shall be dismissed as a result of such reduction, such personnel shall remain upon a perfered eligible list in the order of seniority for reemployment whenever a vacancy occurs in a position for which such person shall be qualified. When such vacancy occurs, the person shall be reemployed by the body causing dismissal, and in determining seniority, and in computing length of service for reemployment, full recognition shall be given to the previous years of service. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9 and N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.10, seniority shall be determined according to the number of academic or calendar years of employment, or fraction thereof, as the case may be, in the school district in specific categories.

In this matter, the petitioner contends that he is entitled to a teaching position ahead of Ms. Lamb. He acknowledges that Ms. Lamb had tenure and more seniority then he. However, the petitioner asserts that several music teachers, including the petitioner himself, where hired by the respondent Board before it rehired Ms. Lamb. If it were inferred that the Board had offered any of those positions to Ms. Lamb first, as it should have, then she would have forfeited her seniority if she had declined the position.

The respondent Board admits that it failed to properly keep a perfered eligibility list for those tenured teachers who had been affected by a reduction in force. It was an error that Ms. Lamb had not been offered any of the music teacher offerings in the school district between 1985 and 1989. It was also an error that when Ms. Lamb was rehired by the district in 1989, she was considered a non-tenured teacher. This error was subsequently corrected and Ms. Lamb's tenure and seniority were restored to her. The respondent Board contends that Ms. Lamb therefore has greater seniority then the petitioner, and that the petitioner has failed to establish otherwise.

I agree with the respondent Board. Ms. Lamb is a tenured teacher with superior seniority rights to those of the petitioner. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the respondent Board has not violated the petitioner's tenure and seniority rights. Accordingly, the petition of appeal is DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. WALTER MC ALOON,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF OLD BRIDGE, MIDDLESEX COUNTY,	:	DECISION

The record and initial decision rendered by the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Petitioner filed timely exceptions in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Petitioner's exceptions dispute the finding of the ALJ that Ms. Lamb did not know of any openings for teachers in the Old Bridge district between 1985-88. He avers that since she was on the preferential hiring list and since several teachers were hired during this period, it must be inferred that Ms. Lamb had knowledge of available openings. Petitioner contends that because Ms. Lamb was employed at a district closer to her home, she elected not to accept any of these positions. Petitioner further asserts that, through this failure to act, Ms. Lamb knowingly relinquished her tenure and seniority rights. In support of this hypothesis, petitioner contends that Ms. Lamb's subsequent reemployment in September 1988 as a "new hire" confirms her knowing forfeiture of her rights. Therefore, petitioner urges that the ALJ's decision be reversed and he be rehired with full back pay.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner agrees with the findings and conclusions of the Administrative Law Judge and finds petitioner's exceptions without merit. The Commissioner determines that there is no evidence whatsoever to substantiate that the Board ever gave Ms. Lamb formal notice of a teaching vacancy at Old Bridge which she subsequently rejected. Therefore, Ms. Lamb cannot be deemed to have voluntarily relinquished her tenure and seniority rights. The Commissioner further notes that the record clearly establishes that the reemployment of Ms. Lamb as a nontenured teacher in 1989 was a unilateral mistake of the Board which was corrected upon discovery.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law dismissing the Petition of Appeal is affirmed for the reasons stated therein.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

By award dated May 1, 1992, the arbitrator determined that Board properly withheld petitioner's increment for 1990-91 school year. Issue now is not correctness of withholding for disciplinary reasons or forum, but whether Board paid petitioner the proper salary for 1991-92 school year by not restoring her to a particular step on newly negotiated salary guide.

Citing Probst Supreme Court decision, ALJ found there is no obligation for Board to restore increment withheld. Petitioner's salary appropriately continued to lag behind salary of peers in same amount of increment withheld in 1990-91 school year. Petition was dismissed.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision.

Record Closed: October 29, 1992 Decided: December 3, 1992

BEFORE JAYNEE LaVECCHIA, CHIEF ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner, Juanita Fieseler, commenced this action by way of a petition of appeal filed with the Commissioner of Education on March 4, 1992, contesting the correctness of the salary paid to her for the 1991-92 school year following the withholding of her increment during the 1990-91 school year. An answer was filed by respondent, South River Board of Education, on March 23, 1992. The Commissioner of Education transmitted the matter on March 30, 1992, to the Office of Administrative Law for a contested-case proceeding pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

A prehearing conference was conducted on July 13, 1992, at which time it was determined that this matter would proceed by way of cross-motions for summary decision. A set of stipulated facts having been submitted and cross-motions and replies thereto filed, the record closed on October 29, 1992.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

The following facts were submitted by stipulation and are accepted as fact. Ms. Fieseler is a tenured physical education teacher employed by the Board of Education of the Borough of South River (Board) since September 1, 1956. On May 22, 1990, a fifth-grade student claimed that Ms. Fieseler hurt him by twisting his arm behind his back. Based on this claim, the Superintendent of Schools recommended to the Board that Ms. Fieseler's increment be withheld for the 1990-91 school year. On August 16, 1990, the Board voted to withhold Ms. Fieseler's increment of $2,750 for the 1990-91 school year based upon the recommendation of the Superintendent. The correctness of this withholding was tested by arbitration, and by an award dated May 1, 1992, the arbitrator determined that the Board properly withheld Ms. Fieseler's increment for the 1990-91 school year.

During the 1990-91 school year, Ms. Fieseler received a salary of $38,700. Due to the increment withholding during the 1990-91 school year, Ms. Fieseler remained at Step H of the 1989 through 1991 salary guide. Accordingly, she received $36,800 for salary and an additional $1,900 for longevity based on twenty-four plus years of experience, totaling the $38,700 salary received in the 1990-91 school year.

At its May 29, 1991 meeting, the Board acted to set the salary of Ms. Fieseler, as well as other tenured employees, for the period from September 1, 1991 through June 30, 1992, based on a salary list presented to it plus any negotiated increments agreed to following negotiations with the South River Education Association. That list reflected Ms. Fieseler's salary, to which increments would be added for the 1990-91 school year, as $38,700.

The 1991 through 1994 bargaining agreement agreed upon between the Board and the South River Education Association was concluded after the commencement of the 1991-92 school year. The salary increase contained in the salary guide for the 1991-92 school year for a teacher such as Ms. Fieseler, at Step H of the salary guide, amounted to $2,450. That amount represents an increase in the employment increment of $2,300 and an increase in the longevity increment of $150. Thus, the total increase for salary and longevity for an individual at Step H of the salary guide for the 1991-92 school year over that of the 1990-91 school year was $2,450 ($2,300 plus $150). The total salary paid to Ms. Fieseler during the 1990-91 school year amounted to $41,600.

LEGAL ANALYSIS AND FINDINGS

In this appeal, petitioner alleges she should have been returned to her contractual salary schedule step for the 1991-92 school year, which would have resulted in her receiving a total salary of $43,900. She maintains that the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14 do not apply in the context of setting the appropriate step for her on the contractual salary schedule for the 1991-92 school year. Instead, she maintains that because her increment withholding was determined to be for predominantly disciplinary reasons and therefore was reviewed in the context of binding arbitration provided by the 1990 amendments to the New Jersey Employer-Employee Relations Act, N.J.S.A. 34:13A-1 to -39, the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14 and its related case law do not apply to her. Petitioner claims that she is entitled to be restored to her contractual salary schedule step in effect for the 1991-92 school year. For the reasons which follow, I find petitioner's arguments to be without merit.

The amendments to the New Jersey Employer-Employee Relations Act effected by L. 1989, c. 269, expanded the scope of negotiations for public school employees in, among other things, matters relating to minor discipline. As expressed in the Assembly Labor Committee statement to Assembly Bill No. 4706:

> The bill provides public schools with the authority to impose minor discipline on employees, if negotiated. As amended, the bill defines minor discipline as including fines and suspensions, but not letters of reprimand, tenure charges, withholding of increments, or certain suspensions with pay. As amended, the bill permits an employer to use whatever disciplinary sanctions are authorized by law if there is no negotiated agreement regarding minor discipline. The bill includes in the scope of these negotiations the establishment of a schedule for the fines > and suspensions. As amended, the bill also provides that all discipline, including reprimands, may be appealed through the locally negotiated grievance procedures which must provide for binding arbitration as the final step in the procedure. The withholding of a teaching staff member's increment based on the actual teaching performance would still be appealable to the Commissioner of Education.

The amendments also included a provision which provided that the withholding of an employee's increment, if determined to be for predominantly disciplinary reasons, would be subjected to the binding arbitration grievance procedure described in the statement to the bill. Specifically, N.J.S.A. 34:13A-26 provides:

> Disputes involving the withholding of an employee's increment by an employer for predominantly disciplinary reasons shall be subject to the grievance procedures established pursuant to law and shall be subject to the provisions of Section 8 of this act.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 34:13A-27a, any dispute as to whether an increment withholding is predominantly disciplinary in nature is to be determined by the Public Employment Relations Commission (PERC). If it is determined to be predominantly disciplinary, the dispute is to be resolved through the grievance procedures established pursuant to the amendatory act. N.J.S.A. 34:13A-27c.

Nothing in the amendatory language or in the statements attached to the bill suggest that the amendments created new substantive rights for either the employee or the employer with regard to the right to withhold increments or with regard to the restoration of increments in subsequent years. The language quoted above, complemented by the Committee statement to the bill, reflects a procedure to be used to expedite dispute resolution of certain minor disciplinary disputes, including increment withholdings, which are effected for the purpose of imposing discipline on a teaching staff member.

The Board argues, rightfully, that the school board's authority to withhold an increment reposes in the language of N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14. That statute provides, in pertinent part:

> Any board of education may withhold, for inefficiency or other good cause, the employment increment, or the adjustment increment, or both, of any member in any year > by recorded roll call of the majority vote of the full membership of the board of education.

> It shall not be mandatory upon the board of education to pay any such denied increment in any future year as an adjustment increment. [Emphasis added.]

The latter emphasized language was not affected by the amendments of L. 1989, c. 269, although the Legislature surely could have altered this language when it altered the procedures regarding review of a certain type of increment withholding. It apparently chose not to do so. It is N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14 which authorizes increments to be withheld in the first instance when a board, by majority recorded roll call vote, determines to do so. N.J.S.A. 34:13A-26 pertains only to the forum in which the dispute as to the validity of the withholding is to be resolved. It does not specifically authorize the withholding of increments for predominantly disciplinary reasons; that authority still lies only with N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14.

The two statutes cited above are not inconsistent; they complement one another and should be read harmoniously since they relate to the same subject matter. State v. Green, 62 N.J. 547 (1973). One confers the authority to withhold an increment and the other offers a new procedure for rapid dispute resolution of one type of withholding. Only N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14 discusses the impact of the withholding in subsequent school years and addresses the scope of discretion afforded the Board in the setting of salary in years following an increment withholding.

As the Board correctly contends, N.J.S.A. 34:13A-26 is not applicable to this matter. The issue here is not whether an increment was properly withheld for disciplinary reasons during the 1991-92 school year, or the forum in which such a dispute should be resolved. The issue is whether the Board paid petitioner the proper salary for the 1991-92 school year. Petitioner's argument mischaracterizes the Board's action by stating that the Board withheld petitioner's increment for the 1991-92 school year. That is simply not the case. The issue is about restoration, or not, to a particular step on the newly negotiated salary guide applicable during the 1991-92 school year.

Nor is the validity of the increment withholding during the 1990-91 school year at issue here. Petitioner did not raise such an issue in the petition of appeal before the Commissioner, nor could she. PERC had decided that the increment withholding issue for the 1990-91 school year was predominantly disciplinary, and denied a request for restraint of arbitration on December 20, 1991. Thereafter, on May 1, 1992, an arbitrator determined the increment withholding to have been appropriate. Therefore, the issue of the validity of the increment withholding in the 1990-91 school year may not be contested in this proceeding before the Commissioner.

The issue in this case resolves itself to a simple one: Whether the Board had any obligation to restore petitioner's employment and adjustment increment which had been withheld during the 1990-91 school year when it set her salary for the 1991-92 school year. The Supreme Court's analysis in Probst v. Board of Education of the Borough of Haddonfield, 127 N.J. 518 (1992), is controlling on this issue.

In Probst, a tenured teacher employed by the Board of Education of the Borough of Haddonfield had her employment and adjustment increment withheld for the 1987-88 school year because of unsatisfactory performance. Her salary during the previous year (1986-87) was $25,000, which corresponded to the middle step (J/K) on the Haddonfield salary schedule. Because of the Board's decision, her salary remained at $25,000 for the 1987-88 school year. Her performance was deemed to be satisfactory during the 1987-88 school year, and, accordingly, the Board did not seek to withhold further increments from her salary. However, the Board did not take action to restore the increment which had been withheld from her. Her salary for the 1988-89 school year was established at $27,100. This amount was based upon an increase in her employment increment of $800 and an increase in her adjustment increment of $1,300, for a total increase of $2,100. These increments were consistent with the compensation progression established in the salary schedule; however, the resulting amount, $27,100, did not fit into the guide for the 1988-89 school year.

Probst claimed that she was entitled to receive the middle step (K/L) for the 1988-89 school year, a salary of $28,400. The Supreme Court held that Probst's argument was without merit. Because the local board increased her 1987-88 salary by $2,100, an amount which reflected the combined annual increases set forth in the Haddonfield guide for that school year, the compensation that she received for the 1987-88 school year was proper.

Significantly, the Court stated:

> We conclude that no statute mandates that local boards return teachers to an adopted salary schedule following a withholding. Local boards, however, do have the discretion to do so on finding that restoration to a place on the schedule is warranted for a particular teacher. That discretion should be exercised when a teacher has recovered from the previously-recognized shortcoming and recaptured lost ground by steadily improving performance. The possibility of being returned to the schedule thus serves as an incentive to maintain improvements.
> [127 N.J. at 528.]

The Supreme Court disagreed that continued off-guide compensation amounts to a continuing punishment. It referred to its earlier decision in North Plainfield Education Association v. Board of Education, 96 N.J. 587 (1984), where it had recognized that:

> "the fact that [a] teacher[ ] will always lag one step behind is not attributable to a new violation each year, but to the effect of an earlier employment decision."

See also Cordasco v. Board of Education, 205 N.J. Super. 407 (App. Div. 1985), which held that N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14 expressly prevents teachers from automatically recovering withheld increments. Restoration of denied increments was determined to be a statutorily-delegated function subject to "favorable exercise of discretion by the local board." 205 N.J. Super. at 411.

Accordingly, as the above-cited cases make clear, the issue of required restoration of past increments has been decided by our Supreme Court and I find that there is no obligation on this particular board of education, to restore the increment withheld to petitioner Fieseler in the 1991-92 school year. Her salary for the 1991-92 school year continues to lag behind those of her peers in the same amount of the increment withheld in the 1990-91 school year. This is not inappropriate.

The fact that the Board, by vote on May 29, 1991, established Ms. Fieseler's base salary, to which increments would be added in the 1991-92 school year, as the same amount which she had received in the 1990-91 school year was a lawful exercise of its discretion and it will not be disturbed here. No other action was required to affirmatively not restore her previously withheld increment. There being no genuine issue of material fact, and the law being clear, this matter is ripe for summary decision in favor of the respondent Board of Education. N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b). Accordingly, the petition of appeal is DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Pursuant to the provisions of N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4, petitioner filed timely exceptions reiterating the arguments of her prior brief, which arguments are well summarized by the ALJ and need not be repeated herein. A reply urging acceptance of the initial decision was timely filed by the Board.

Upon careful consideration, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ for the reasons stated in the initial decision that, notwithstanding that the increment withholding underlying this matter was disciplinary in nature and therefore appealable through the negotiated grievance procedure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 34:13A-26, the question of petitioner's salary following withholding is nonetheless controlled by N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14 and Probst, supra, which clearly hold that a board is under no obligation to return a teacher whose increment has been withheld to the regular salary guide unless it exercises its discretionary authority to do so.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law dismissing the Petition of Appeal is affirmed for the reasons well expressed therein.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

Petitioner, tenured business teacher, appealed abolishment of her position for 1991-92 due to RIF contending Board retained nontenured teachers in positions for which she was equally qualified.

ALJ concluded Board violated petitioner's tenure rights when it gave more favorable treatment to nontenured teachers (Bednar; Capodilupo) as Board assigned nontenured teachers to perform duties within scope of certificate held by tenured teacher. Further, Board's educational program would not have been seriously disrupted by recognition of petitioner's tenure. Board was ordered to pay petitioner lost salary and benefits (mitigated) resulting from failure to offer her full-time position in 1991-92.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision with clarification that job description for the assignment in dispute in this matter requires teaching endorsement of any type and that, therefore, position was instructional. Moreover, law does not permit boards of education to defeat or manipulate statutory tenure or seniority rights by establishing "tailor-made" qualifications for a position.

BEFORE KEN R. SPRINGER, ALJ:

Statement of the Case

This is an appeal by a tenured teacher of business education whose position for the 1991-92 school year was abolished due to a reduction in force. Petitioner Jane R. Fox ("Fox") contends that the school board violated her tenure rights under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 by terminating her employment while retaining nontenured teachers in positions for which she was certified. Specifically, Fox alleges that she is entitled to preference over nontenured teachers to teach so-called "academic support" classes as well as business and marketing courses. She also asserts a seniority claim against another tenured teacher for one period of "academic support."

Respondent Board of Education of the Morris School District ("Board"), defends on three separate grounds: that Fox's tenure rights are limited to claims against nontenured teachers holding the identical teaching certificates; that she lacks the proper qualifications to teach these particular courses; and, in any event, that the district is not required to adjust its class schedules to maximize Fox's employment opportunities.

Procedural History

On July 17, 1991, Fox filed a verified petition, seeking reinstatement and back pay, with the Commissioner of Education ("Commissioner"). The Board filed its answer on August 2, 1991. Subsequently, on August 7, 1991, the Commissioner transferred the matter to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") for hearing as a contested case.

By certified mail dated March 26, 1991, Fox served notice of the pendency of this matter on two teachers, John Porcelli and George Malanga, whose interests might be adversely affected by the outcome.[1] Neither of them moved to intervene in the proceedings, although the Board called Porcelli as its witness at the hearing. The OAL held a hearing on May 28, 1992. Witnesses and exhibits are listed in the appendix. Both parties submitted post-hearing briefs and replies by July 28, 1992.

[1]Fox failed to notify a third teacher, Robert Luisi, because she was unaware of her potential claim against him until the hearing had already commenced. In view of the conclusion that it is not necessary to reach the seniority issue, this lack of notice is inconsequential.

Findings of Fact

All of the relevant facts are uncontested. I FIND:

(1) General Background Facts

Jane R. Fox began working for the Board in March 1980 and has more than eleven years of service. Concededly, she has tenure as a teacher in the district. Fox holds an instructional certificate endorsed as teacher of business education and a second certificate endorsed as teacher of data processing.[2] Since coming to the district, she has been assigned to teach business education and computers at the high school level. During the course of her employment, she taught many different subjects, including accounting and bookkeeping, business law, business organization and management, typing and, last but not least, marketing. Board witnesses acknowledge that Fox taught an introductory marketing course in 1987-88, although the school administration now questions whether that assignment was appropriate. Moreover, at one time Fox had served temporarily as coordinator of a

[2]State regulations enumerate seven types of subspecialties under the broad heading of business education, namely: (i) comprehensive; (ii) bookkeeping and accounting; (iii) data processing; (iv) general business; (v) secretarial studies; (vi) typewriting; and (vii) marketing and distributive occupations. N.J.A.C. 6:11-6.2(a)(4). Fox's initial certificate, issued in September 1980, has the description "teacher of business education." Both parties assume that this description is equivalent to the "comprehensive" or most inclusive type of business education endorsement, but disagree on what subjects the holder of such endorsement may teach.

work-site training program while the regular teacher was out sick, even though Fox does not possess an educational services certificate endorsed for that purpose.[3]

Recently, Fox applied to the State licensing authorities for a marketing endorsement and also for issuance of an educational services certificate as teacher-coordinator of distributive education. In June 1991, the State denied the marketing endorsement because Fox failed to satisfy the current college course-work requirements and had not taken the qualifying test. The teacher-coordinator certificate was denied as well, largely because Fox needed the marketing endorsement as a prerequisite.

Meanwhile, in April 1991, the Board notified Fox that her contract would not be renewed for the 1991-92 school year. Fox does not challenge the fact that a staff reduction was necessitated by declining enrollment and lack of sufficient demand for business courses or the fact that she had the lowest seniority of all tenured teachers in the business department. Instead, she contends that the Board improperly retained nontenured teachers in assignments which should have been offered to her. If she had not been dismissed, her total salary for 1991-92 would have been $42,520.

(2) Tenure Claim to the Academic Support Program

One of these nontenured teachers was John Portelli, who only came to the district in 1989-90 as "teacher on special assignment" and head football coach. The Board's job description for his unusual title sets forth the qualifications as any "valid New Jersey State teaching certificate" and a "[d]emonstrated ability to work with at risk students in providing academic support."[4] Portelli has a certificate as teacher of social studies and spent nine years in another school district, where he taught social studies to students in the lowest ability-grouping and was responsible for dealing with disciplinary problems. Dr. Ernest Smith, principal of Morristown High School, recommended him for the job because of Portelli's background and because he projected an image of caring, patience and strength. As noted, Fox also has a valid teaching certificate and has more than a decade of teaching experience in the Morris district.

[3]An educational services endorsement as "teacher-coordinator of cooperative vocational-technical education" authorizes the holder not only to teach, but also "to act as liaison between the school and the co-operating employer's training station" in designated subject areas such as distributive education. N.J.A.C. 6:11-11.20.

Portelli's main assignment in 1991-92 was the "academic support program," to which he devoted three out of five teaching periods per day. "Academic support" is an activity designed to provide extra help for students at risk of failing. Answers supplied to interrogatories describe the program as "an intensive study hall for students with low averages" so that "they will complete their homework assignments." While the Board's proofs were somewhat contradictory on whether the period is "an extra duty assignment" like cafeteria duty or "an instructional assignment" like an academic subject, the nature of the program is perfectly clear. Teachers, chosen for "their special rapport with students and expressed interest in the program," give guidance to students on note-taking, study skills and organizational techniques, and monitor students to make sure that they finish their homework. According to Portelli, who helped develop the course proficiency, the academic support program has no formal curriculum. Students enrolled in the program write down their daily homework assignments in a little pad or notebook. Staff members do not provide actual instruction, but are available to "direct, guide [and] give assistance" to students on doing their homework. Grading is pass or fail, depending on whether the student finishes at least one assignment per session.

[4]Normally, a school board must assign staff members to recognized titles or obtain prior approval from the County Superintendent of Schools before making any appointment to an unrecognized title N.J.A.C. 6:11-2.2. Morris School District never obtained approval for the title "teacher on special assignment." Apparently, the County Superintendent's Office advised the district that approval is unnecessary whenever the job title includes the word "teacher."

Additionally, in 1991-92, Portelli taught two periods of history, which admittedly Fox is not qualified to teach and to which she makes no claim.

(3) Tenure Claim to Business Education Courses Including Marketing

Secondly, Fox contends that she, rather than a nontenured teacher, George Malanga, should have been assigned to replace another high school teacher, Mary Jo Wilk, who was on extended maternity leave for all of 1991-92. Wilk holds dual certification: an instructional certificate as a teacher of general business and of marketing and distributive education; and also an educational services certificate as a teacher-coordinator in the field of of distributive occupations. When she left on maternity leave in January 1991, Wilk's teaching schedule had included classes in typing, word processing, introductory and intermediate marketing, and "two release periods to supervise work/study students at the job." Neither Fox nor Malanga possess an educational services certificate needed to serve as coordinator of student activities at the work site. Indeed, Malanga does not even hold the "comprehensive" business education endorsement possessed by Fox. Instead, he has a more restrictive instructional certificate endorsed as "teacher of distributive occupations."[5]

Nevertheless, Malanga was allowed to perform job-site coordinator duties in addition to his teaching assignment. In 1991-92, Malanga taught courses entitled "Business Organization and Management" and "General Business" during periods two and three. Significantly, the Board concedes that Fox could also have taught these two classes, which "fall within the scope of her endorsements." During periods four and six, Malanga taught "Introduction to Marketing" and "Marketing Education I," subjects which Fox says are encompassed within her business education

[5]Since Malanga acquired his certificate in May 1970, the regulations have been amended to include "marketing" as part of this endorsement. See, 16 N. J. R. 1647 (July 2, 1984); 16 N. J. R. 2788 (Oct 15, 1984) Now the corresponding endorsement is known as "teacher of marketing and distributive occupations."

endorsement and which the Board says can only be taught by someone with a marketing and distributive occupations endorsement. Later in the afternoon, Malanga acted as coordinator for the cooperative education program "whereby students worked for private businesses." Fox makes no argument that she was authorized to serve as coordinator for the off-school program. Malanga will no longer be teaching in the district in 1992-93, because Wilk is returning from her extended maternity leave.

(4) Seniority Claim to One Period of Academic Support

Last, Fox raises a seniority claim against Robert Luisi, a tenured mathematics teacher. Luisi began employment for the district in September 1985, so he has fewer years of service compared to Fox. He holds an endorsement in mathematics and has taught that subject at the high school level. In 1991-92, Luisi taught five sections of mathematics and a single session of academic support during ninth period. Although Fox has never participated in the academic support program, she maintains that she has a greater seniority claim to that assignment.

Conclusions of Law

Based on the foregoing facts and the applicable law, I CONCLUDE that the Board violated Fox's tenure rights when it gave more favorable treatment to nontenured teachers.

It is well settled that a local school board's acknowledged right to reduce excess teaching staff cannot be used "to justify retaining a non-tenured teacher in a position within the certificate of a dismissed tenured teacher." Bednar v. Westwood Bd. of Educ., 221 N.J. Super. 329, 242 (App. Div. 1987), certif. den. 110 N.J. 512. Accord, Capodilupo v. West Orange Bd. of Educ., 218 N.J. Super 510 (App. Div. 1987), certif. den. 109 N.J. 514 (1987). Tenure "would be little more than a gesture" if persons without coverage had greater job security than those falling within its protection. Downs v. Hoboken Bd. of Educ., 12 N.J. Misc. 345, 350, aff'd sub. nom. Flechtner v. Hoboken Bd. of Educ., 113 N.J.L. 401 (E. & A. 1934). Similarly, in Kearny Bd. of Educ. v. Horan, 11 N.J. Misc. 751, 753 (Sup. Ct. 1933), the court declared that a teacher protected by tenure "may not be dismissed for reasons of economy while other teachers not so protected, whose assignments such [tenured] teacher is competent to fill, are retained under employment." See also, Seidel v. Ventnor Bd. of Educ., 110 N.J. L. 31 (Sup. Ct. 1932). If a vacancy occurs while another teacher is on maternity leave for at least one full academic year, a qualified tenured teacher "must be offered that teaching assignment and permitted to accrue seniority credits before an outsider is brought into the system." Lammers v. Pt. Pleasant Bd. of Educ., No. A-5494-90T1 (App. Div. May 1, 1992) (slip op. at 5).

Here Fox has tenure as a teacher in the district and both Portelli and Malanga do not. However, the Board seeks to distinguish the Bednar-Capodilupo line of authority on the basis that those cases involved teachers with the same endorsements, whereas the teachers in the instant case have different endorsements. While it is true that the rival teachers in Bednar were all art teachers and those in Capodilupo were all physical education teachers, the result does not turn on such narrow distinctions. Rather, the deciding factor is whether the Board assigned nontenured teachers to perform duties within the scope of the certificate held by the tenured teacher. Tenure attaches to a "position," such as teacher, principal, or superintendent. Howley v. Ewing Bd. of Educ., 1982 S.L.D. 1328 (Comm'r), aff'd 1983 S.L.D. 1554 (St. Bd.). Hence, the Appellate Division approved the reasoning of the State Board that a teacher acquires tenure "in all positions for which his instructional certificate qualifie[s] him." Capodilupo, at 514.

Recently, the State Board clarified that a teacher's "tenure protection extends to all endorsements on his instructional certificate," regardless of whether he had previously served under that endorsement. Grosso v. New Providence Bd. of Educ., 1990 S.L.D. __ (St. Bd. May 9, 1990) (slip op. at 6). In Grosso, a tenured high school business teacher, with an elementary endorsement but no practical experience at that level, displaced non-tenured individuals serving as elementary teachers. Courts have gone even further, extending tenure rights acquired under one type of certificate to other areas requiring a different type of certificate. See, Dennery v. Passaic Valley High Sch. Bd. of Educ., 251 N.J. Super. 144 (App. Div. 1991), certif. granted, 127 N.J. 561 (1992), holding that a tenured guidance counselor serving exclusively under an educational services certificate has an enforceable tenure right to a supervisory position under a supervisor's certificate. One need not necessarily subscribe to this broader view, however, to conclude that a tenured teacher has priority, as against all nontenured teachers, to teaching assignments covered by his instructional certificate.

Fox, who has an eleven year teaching career in the district, clearly has a superior right to teach the three periods of academic support assigned to newcomer Portelli in 1991-92. Morris School District can hardly suggest that Fox lacks the appropriate instructional certificate, when its own job description merely requires any valid New Jersey teaching certificate. See, Data-Samatak v. Scotch Plains-Fanwood Bd. of Educ., 1988 S.L.D. __ (Comm'r Jan. 27, 1988), aff'd 1988 S.L.D. __ (St. Bd. June 6, 1988), wherein a tenured teacher was qualified to fill the duties of in-school suspension teacher since she possessed a standard instructional certificate.

More problematic is whether Fox possesses the appropriate certificate to teach the business subjects assigned to Malanga, including the two marketing courses. On their face, the regulations suggest that she does, since Fox's "comprehensive business education" endorsement authorizes her to teach "business education subjects in all public schools" and expressly refers to "general business" which, in turn, encompasses "sales, retailing and advertising." In contrast, Malanga's more limited "distributive occupations" endorsement refers specifically to "sales, advertising [and] retailing" as the only subjects which comprise "distributive occupations."[6] Compare N.J.A.C. 6:11-6.2(a)(4)(i) with N.J.A.C. 6:11-6.2(a)(4)(vii).

Generally, these regulations seem to contemplate that the "comprehensive" endorsement entitles its holder to teach all of the underlying subspecialties for which a more limited endorsement is also available. Nevertheless, the fact that the licensing authority denied Fox's application for a marketing endorsement creates a strong inference that she is ineligible to teach marketing. Additionally, the [6]As previously noted, the distributive occupations endorsement has been expanded so that it presently constitutes an endorsement in "marketing and distributive occupations." See supra note 5. There is no evidence, however, that Malanga received any additional training or preparation in the field of marketing beyond that necessary to obtain a "distributive occupations" endorsement.

Commissioner has declared that "marketing is a topic much broader than sales, and it requires more technical preparation in its many and diverse aspects." Grossman v. Ramsey Bd. of Educ., 1988 S.L.D. 2202, 2219-20, (Comm'r Nov. 7, 1988), aff'd 1989 S.L.D. __ (St. Bd. March 3, 1989), rev'd on other grounds and remanded, No. A-3270-88T1 (App. Div. May 17, 1990). Consequently, the Commissioner has ruled that a general business endorsement suffices to teach selling, but that "to teach marketing requires the more specifically tailored endorsement known as marketing and distributive occupations." Id. Thus, it must be assumed that Fox is not properly certified to teach the marketing courses.

Even if Fox may not teach marketing, nevertheless she is properly certified to teach Malanga's two other courses in general business and business management. Combined with the three academic support periods which also should have gone to her, the total of five periods per day constitutes a full teaching load in this district. Any contention by the Board that it had sound educationally-based reasons for wanting the same person who teaches marketing to supervise the work-study program is belied by the fact that Malanga lacks the necessary educational services certificate.

Alternatively, the Board relies on Davis v. Ewing Bd. of Educ., OAL DKT. EDU 6539-84 (March 14, 1985), adopted, Comm'r (April 29, 1985), for the proposition that petitioner cannot force the school district "to rearrange its schedule to suit her desires and maximize its scheduled course offerings to coincide with her areas of certification." (slip op. at 13). See also, Fitzpatrick v. Weehawken Bd. of Educ., 1982 *S.L.D. 1500 (*App. Div. 1982), holding that a school board is not obligated to protect a teacher's tenure rights "by working out all possible permutations in assignments for which available teaching personnel had credentials and, thus, to restructure, if necessary, its entire teaching staff." 1982 S.L.D. at 1501. But Fox is not asking for extensive shuffling of teaching assignments. She makes the more modest claim that she should have been assigned work given to nontenured teachers with equal or lesser credentials. Unlike Davis, Fox is not seeking to displace teachers primarily assigned to subjects requiring more than a business endorsement. Contrary to Fitzpatrick, Fox is not demanding "a complex pattern of transfers" to save her own job regardless of the consequences. Significantly, the Board has not presented persuasive evidence of valid educationally-based reasons for its staffing pattern or shown that its educational program would have been seriously disrupted by recognition of Fox's tenure. Compare, Polo v. Bergen Cty. Vo-Tech Schs., 92 N.J. A.L.R 2d (EDU) 230,233 (Comm'r Jan 30, 1992), where the board of education had the goal of scheduling afternoon classes for shared students at two different locations.

Given the outcome in favor of Fox on the tenure issue, it is unnecessary to address the seniority issue, which pertains to one period out of a five-period teaching day. Suffice it to note, however, that Fox had no actual service as an academic support teacher and that her seniority accrued by virtue of her service as a business teacher.

Order

It is ORDERED that the Board of Education of the Morris School District promptly pay to Fox the lost salary and other lost benefits resulting from its failure to offer her a full-time teaching position in the 1991-92 school year; provided, however, that the amount of lost salary shall be mitigated by any earned income which Fox would not have otherwise received.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

JANE R. FOX,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE MORRIS SCHOOL DISTRICT, MORRIS COUNTY,	:	DECISION

The record and initial decision rendered by the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. The Board filed timely exceptions pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 to which petitioner filed timely reply exceptions. Petitioner's cross exception, included with her reply exceptions was untimely, however, and thus is not considered in the Commissioner's determination of this matter.

The Board excepts to all the findings and conclusions of the ALJ and seeks reversal of the initial decision. The Board claims Mr. John Porcelli, a nontenured teaching staff member and the head football coach, does not teach (emphasis in exceptions) three periods of "Academic Support" as a "Teacher on Special Assignment (Secondary Level)," but rather only teaches two periods of social studies. (Exceptions, at p. 3) The Board draws a distinction between Porcelli's duties on the academic support program with those of teachers such as Mr. Luisi, who were assigned a duty period of academic support.

Relying on Porcelli's testimony and that of the principal, the Board distinguishes Porcelli's duties with the academic support program by stating his primary role is to function as a "liaison between the Guidance Department and classroom teachers in developing support programs for students who are 'at risk'." (Exceptions, at p. 4) It stresses Porcelli's experience in having worked in another district with at-risk pupils and relies additionally on the job description, Exhibit J-1(h), in claiming the ALJ erred in concluding that petitioner should have received Porcelli's three academic support periods. The Board so claims because Porcelli does not have three periods of academic support, because his job does not include teaching academic support and, finally, because petitioner has not demonstrated she is qualified for the non-social studies portion of Porcelli's schedule, absent a showing of the ability to work with at-risk students.

In so stating, the Board would distinguish the ALJ's reliance on Susan Data-Samtak v. Board of Education of Scotch Plains-Fanwood, Union County, 1988 S.L.D 107, aff'd State Board 1988 S.L.D. 123 by contending that there is no teacher employed in its district as a teacher of academic support, nor is there such a position. It claims instead that the district set reasonable and relevant requirements in addition to mere certification as a teacher to hold the position of teacher on special assignment, namely, that there be a demonstrated ability to work with at-risk students.

The Board raises a second exception regarding the seniority issue between petitioner and Mr. Luisi because of the alleged incorrect conclusion reached by the ALJ regarding Mr. Porcelli's non-social studies assignment for 1991-92 and petitioner's alleged entitlement thereto. The Board claims there is nothing in the record upon which the ALJ can base his statement that academic support is an "instructional" period. (Exceptions, at p. 9, citing initial decision) It avers that while academic support could broadly be described as instructional, in no way can it be considered an academic assignment subject to tenure or seniority claims. The Board argues that based on the facts and testimony it brought to the record, it is necessary to conclude with regard to Mr. Luisi and any teacher assigned periods of academic support, that analysis of tenure and seniority rights is not appropriate. It finds support for this proposition in Carmine Forte and the Red Bank Regional Education Association v. Board of Education of Red Bank Regional School District, Monmouth County, decided by the Commissioner August 12, 1992 by suggesting that the nature of the academic support position is akin to the in-school suspension room position in the Forte matter, which the Board avers, was determined to be like hall or cafeteria duty because no teaching took place. Thus, the Board would have the Commissioner determine that academic support is an assigned duty period, to which petitioner can claim no tenure and/or seniority entitlement.

Finally, although the Board does not dispute that the "Business Organization and Management" and "General Business" courses taught by Mr. Malanga do fall within the scope of petitioner's endorsements, it excepts to the requirement imposed on the district by the ALJ that it rearrange its teaching assignments according to the standards articulated in the decision. It further excepts to the ALJ's finding that Malanga is not properly certified for the assignment to which he was assigned for the 1991-92 school year, although such issue is irrelevant in light of the ALJ's determination that petitioner was unqualified for the marketing assignment.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record of this matter, which, it is noted, does not include the transcripts of the hearing below, the Commissioner affirms those findings and conclusions of the Office of Administrative Law. However, the following comment is necessary regarding the Board's exceptions.

As to the Board's claim that the nontenured teacher, John Porcelli, did not "teach" as part of his duties as a teacher on special assignment, one need only look to the job description which specifically notes that said position requires a teaching endorsement of any type to negate the Board's claim. As noted in petitioner's reply exceptions, by definition, therefore, the position in question is a teaching position. Moreover, Exhibit J-1(h), the job description, specifies, inter alia, that the position is one that: "4. Assists students, individually and in groups, who are in need of academic support and behavior modification." It is unchallenged that Porcelli performed all of the duties of said job description and, thus, that he provided instruction to the pupils during those three teaching periods. The Commissioner so finds.

In so concluding, the Commissioner further finds that the ALJ did not err in concluding that Ms. Fox, a tenured teacher, was entitled to the position over nontenured Mr. Porcelli insofar as no particular endorsement was required for the three periods he was assigned as teacher on special assignment. See Data-Samtak, supra. Moreover, the Board's argument that petitioner has not demonstrated an ability to work with at-risk students, thus, barring her from claiming the teacher on special assignment position is without merit because it is well-settled that the law does not permit boards of education to defeat or manipulate statutory tenure or seniority rights by establishing tailor-made position qualifications. See Bednar, supra. See, also, South River Education Association, et al. v. Bd. of Education of the Borough of South River, 1985 S.L.D. 1384, aff'd State Bd. 1987 S.L.D. 2724, aff'd Super. Ct. (App. Div.) April 16, 1990, Dkt. No. A-1675-87T8. Consequently, the Commissioner dismisses the Board's exceptions regarding the three periods of teacher on special assignment as being without merit.

As to the position teaching business education including marketing, the Commissioner also agrees with the ALJ that without the educational services certificate required by regulation to serve as a teacher-coordinator in cooperative vocational education; petitioner can make no claim to any position as a coordinator of student activities at a work site. See N.J.A.C. 6:11-11.3. Accordingly, because neither petitioner nor Mr. Malanga possessed the requisite educational services certificate, neither was properly certified to teach work-study, notwithstanding the Board's contention that it had sound educationally-based reasons for wanting the same person who teaches marketing to supervise the work-study program. See Grossman, supra. See, also, initial decision, at p. 10. However, like the ALJ, the Commissioner finds that petitioner is properly certified to teach Malanga's two other courses in general business and business management, which the Board does not contest.

Additionally, as found by the ALJ, because this decision favors petitioner on the tenure issue, it is unnecessary to consider petitioner's claim based on seniority to one period out of five held by Mr. Luisi, but it bears emphasizing that because petitioner has no actual service as an academic support teacher, her seniority accrues by virtue of her service as a business teacher.

Finally, the Commissioner's review of the record comports with the ALJ's thorough and cogent discussion of whether the district must accommodate petitioner's schedule as a result of the findings of this case. The Commissioner agrees that no complex or extensive redesigning of schedules is necessary to effectuate the results required by law in this case. See initial decision, at pp. 10-11.

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed by the ALJ, the initial decision is adopted including the directive concerning lost salary and other benefits resulting from the Board's failure to offer petitioner full-time employment as a teaching staff member in the 1991-92 school year, less mitigation.

AND	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF CLAIBORNE MASON, SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE TOWNSHIP OF PENNSVILLE, SALEM COUNTY.	:	DECISION

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law in the form of a joint stipulation of settlement have been reviewed.

Upon review, the Commissioner cannot be satisfied by the present record that the proposed settlement in this matter meets the Cardonick standard for settlement of tenure matters (In re Cardonick, decided by the Commissioner April 7, 1992, affirmed State Board of Education April 6, 1983).

The charges underlying these consolidated matters, which involve use of public school time and facilities for personal business operations, reach to fundamental questions of public trust and integrity, and cannot be set aside merely because respondents' actions were subsequently not deemed to warrant criminal prosecution or because the Board, having brought charges to the Commissioner, now elects not to pursue them. Indeed, it is well settled that tenure charges may proceed even where a respondent has actually been tried for, and exonerated of, criminal wrongdoing, as the purposes and standards of criminal and tenure dismissal proceedings are altogether different, e.g., In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Jeffrey Wolfe, Randolph Twp., Morris County, App. Div. Opinion A-1610-80T2 (October 5, 1981). It is further well established that, having once taken up the burden of tenure charges, the Board may not lay it down without spreading forth on the record a reasonably specific explanation of why such charges can no longer be pursued or why it is now in the public interest not to pursue them. In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Kenneth Smith, School District of the City of Orange, Essex County, decided by the Commissioner March 22, 1982, decision on remand June 16, 1983, affirmed with modification State Board of Education November 2, 1983, affirmed Superior Court January 30, 1986

The present record contains no such explanation, and while the Commissioner does not preclude the possibility of settlement in this matter, she stresses that in order for her to meet her own obligation to the school children of this State, she must be assured that any settlement is consistent with appropriate standards for setting aside of tenure matters as expressed in Cardonick, supra.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law is remanded for revision of the settlement document and expansion of the record consistent with the intent of this decision.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

Record Closed: June 24, 1993 Decided: June 24, 1993

BEFORE NAOMI DOWER-LABASTILLE, ALJ:

The Commissioner of Education remanded these consolidated cases wherein a settlement with stipulation of dismissal of tenure charges was filed on December 15, 1992. In the Commissioner's remand decision of January 15, 1993, she ordered that the settlement document be revised and record expanded, so as to include a reasonably specific explanation of why such charges can no longer be pursued or why it is in the public interest not to pursue them. Additionally, she explains that the settlement must be reviewed to assure that it is consistent with appropriate standards.

Between January and April 1993, I requested that that parties file a settlement document meeting the Commissioner's directive. When this was not done by late May, I issued an order to show cause why the required information should not be placed on the record before me on June 24, 1993. On that date, a brief hearing was held and the record closed.

The parties submitted a stipulated statement of fact explaining the reasons for dismissal of the tenure charges which is fully satisfactory. In addition, I requested that the financial aspects of the settlement be placed on the record.

The parties calculated the amount of the backpay the teachers would have received had they worked from the time they were suspended without pay through February 1, 1993, when they returned to work, which was $42,289 for Freed, and $50,026 for Mason. The teachers were paid these sums from which they must reimburse the unemployment fund for benefits which received during their suspension. In mitigation, the teachers paid the Board back $20,000 (Mason) and $5,000 (Freed).

I have reviewed the record and the settlement terms and FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and therefore ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings by concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF RANDOLF FREED, SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE TOWNSHIP OF PENNSVILLE, SALEM COUNTY	:	STATEMENT OF FACTS IN SUPPORT OF DISMISSAL OF TENURE CHARGES AS REQUIRED BY THE COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

Commissioner decision 6-93

THIS STATEMENT OF FACTS follows the decision of the Commissioner of Education dated January 15, 1993, requiring the Pennsville Board of Education to spread forth on the record a reasonably specific explanation of why the tenure charges in the within matter can no longer be pursued, or why it is now in the public interest not to pursue them.

Made a part hereof and incorporated by reference, is the initial Stipulation of Dismissal that was submitted to the Administrative Law Judge in this matter and of which she found that the parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement, as evidenced by their signatures, and that the settlement disposes of all issues and controversy and is consistent with the law, and that the settlement met with the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1.

The procedural history of this matter is accurately set forth in the attached Stipulation of Dismissal. As that shows, contemporaneously with the Board's certification of tenure charges in this matter, the Board forwarded the matter to the Salem County Prosecutor's Office for investigation. As a result of that criminal referral, the matter was placed on the inactive list until the disposition of the criminal investigation in July of 1992. During that period of time, no discovery took place because of the fifth amendment rights of the respondents. The record in place clearly shows that the respondents were acting on advice of counsel during that period of time and could not effectively participate in discovery in the tenure dismissal matter based on that advice.

Immediately after the determination by the Division of Criminal Justice and the Salem County Prosecutor's Office, as evidenced by their communications dated July 2, 1992 and July 16, 1992, copies of which are annexed hereto, the discovery portion of the tenure dismissal case began under the management of Judge LaBastille, the Administrative Law Judge assigned to this matter. It should be noted that Richard T. Carley, Deputy Director of the Department of Law & Public Safety Division of Criminal Justice, felt that there were issues as to whether or not the respondents had notice about the school policy and whether or not there was prior tolerance of similar activities, and further had questions as to the value of what either man may have actually received. In conclusion, Mr. Carley felt that the Division of Criminal Justice felt that the matter should best be addressed as a disciplinary matter, which may have violated internal codes of conduct of the school district. See Carley letter of July 2, 1992, annexed hereto.

Once the discovery process began in the Summer of 1992, the employees had their real opportunity to respond to the Board of Education and explain their position with respect to the occurrences that took place.

As set forth in the Stipulation of Dismissal, the Board of Education was always cognizant of the reality that each teacher had unblemished employment records during their long standing employment with the Board of Education and was fully aware that the case law in such matters indicated that the unblemished employment records of the individual teachers would be considered in the disposition of any matter relating to their continued employment.

Upon reviewing the evidence that was developed during the discovery, the Board of Education learned that Mr. Freed and Mr. Mason had engaged in the activity of utilizing the printing shop equipment after school in the individual enterprise captioned F & M Enterprises. The Board further learned by review of their tax returns that in the relevant years in question that the venture really was not profitable in any true fashion and was small in

WODLINGER & GILSON
A PROFESSIONAL CORPORATION

size. The Board further learned that much, but not all of the work in question, was done for charitable causes, such as churches and civic groups.

The Board further learned that there was no evidence that there was any utilization of any school materials in the production of the printed materials in question, only the school building and school printing equipment. On the other hand, the Board learned that Mr. Mason in particular had apparently been able to obtain donations from various sources in the community of miscellaneous equipment that he utilized both in the small business venture that they pursued and in his every day instruction of students in the classroom at not cost to the district.

The Board further learned in discovery that the activity i question had been ongoing periodically for may years, having begun during the term of prior Administrators prior to the employment of the present Superintendent and Principal of the high school. There was some evidence in that regard that there was tolerance of this activity and some level of knowledge that Mr. Mason would utilize the print shop after hours for the printing of materials not related to this instructional activity. The record further showed however, that Mr. Mason never secured any formal written permission from any Administrator, or from the Board of Education at any point in time during the time period in question. The record further revealed that the present Administration, including the present Principal and Superintendent had no idea until the

LIPMAN, ANTONELLI, BATT, DUNLAP, WODLINGER & GILSON

discovery was made of the activity in question and have never been asked for permission or had given any permission for the activity in question. The present Administration never had any knowledge of the prior tolerance and/or knowledge of prior Administrators until they learned of that information through the discovery process in this litigation. The discovery also revealed that Mr. Freed relied on representations made by Mr. Mason to him that he had long standing authority to do the activity that was being engaged in after school.

Clearly, as a result of the discovery, the Board concluded that the utilization of the equipment in question, while not a theft in the criminal sense, was a violation of its own conflict of interest policy #4118.13, a copy of which is annexed hereto, and non-school employment policy #4237, a copy of which is annexed hereto. However, through discovery and confirmation with Administrators, the Board could never actually prove that either Mr. Mason or Mr. Freed were ever directly provided with those specific policies at any point in time during the course of their employment, until after this incident occurred. The evidence revealed that while certain policies were directed to employees at the beginning of each year, these policies were never specifically handed out to any of the school employees. Rather, teachers were advised of the existence of an entire policy manual that would cover almost any topic that they could imagine, or directed to its whereabouts in their specific school building for reference should they have any question in their minds regarding the efficacy of

LIPMAN, ANTONELLI, BATT, DUNLAP, WODLINGER & GILSON

any conduct that they might wish to engage in. The Board recognized that given the evidence of some prior tolerance of the conduct in question by past Administrators, the teachers could have been lulled into a false sense of security regarding the efficacy of their conduct in this instance and thus, not concern themselves with the formality of the policies in question.

The Board of Education further learned in the course of discovery that, regarding the attendance of Mr. Mason at the graphics show in New York City, that it was true as to their allegation that he represented himself as an employee of another entity rather than as a Board employee. However, discovery revealed that in fact, that employer paid for his attendance at that show, rather than the Board of Education, thus saving the Board that fee, and further, that while at that show, Mr. Mason engaged in activities connected to this teaching job as well as to activities revolving around his other employment.

The Stipulation of Dismissal that was prepared between the parties was done obviously on the advice of counsel, based upon all of the attendant facts and circumstances learned of through the course of discovery and counsel's recognition of prior case law regarding tenure dismissal cases against veteran teaching staff members with no prior disciplinary problems. As part and parcel of the resolution of this matter, the employees waived their privacy rights and allowed the disposition of this matter to be released to the local press, so that the public was fully aware of the resolution of this matter and the reasons for the resolution of the matter.

On February 1, 1993, both Mr. Freed and Mr. Mason were reinstated as teaching staff members in the Pennsville School system without incident. Their reinstatement went smoothly without incident with no public protest or outcry with respect to same. Both the Board of Education and respective teaching staff members are satisfied with the resolution of the matter, consider it closed and believe that fulfills the public interest with respect to same.

STIPULATION OF DISMISSAL OF TENURE CHARGES

This stipulation of dismissal is entered into by and between the Pennsville Township Board of Education ("Board") and its tenured employees, Randolph Freed ("Freed") and Claiborne Mason ("Mason").

WHEREAS, Freed has been continuously employed by the Board as a teaching staff member since September, 1971; and

WHEREAS, Mason has been continuously employed by the Board as a teaching staff member since September, 1965; and

Re: Randy Freed and Clay Mason (CJ-92-1967-38J)

Dear Mr. Paladino:

This Division has reviewed the captioned file and discussed the matter with you and Assistant Prosecutor Gregory G. Waterston. The Division has concluded that criminal prosecution is not warranted. While the actions of Mr. Freed and Mr. Mason may have violated school policy, questions exist as to notice about school policy, prior tolerance of similar activities and valuation of any actual theft. While this assessment is not to be construed as an evaluation that the conduct, if criminal, is de minimus, it is this Division's determination that the matter is better addressed as a disciplinary matter that may have violated internal codes of conduct.

Please advise appropriate Pennsville School District officials.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE :
HEARING OF JEROME KACPROWICZ, :
STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT : COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
OF THE CITY OF JERSEY CITY, : DECISION
HUDSON COUNTY. :

State-operated School District certified tenure charges of chronic and excessive absenteeism over a period of nine years from school years 1983-84 to 1991-92 against respondent, high school social studies teacher.

ALJ found respondent was given sufficient warnings by supervisors who were dissatisfied with pattern of absences especially in view of respondent's poor attendance record prior to serious injuries of 1991. ALJ found cause to remove respondent from his employment due to the significant adverse effect of his absenteeism on school children in the District. Thus, the ALJ concluded respondent should be removed as teacher.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision dismissing respondent from his tenured employment as of date of her decision and referred matter to State Board of Examiners for further action as appropriate. Commissioner noted District did consider particular circumstances and impact of respondent's absences prior to seeking removal.

Record Closed: October 23, 1992 Decided: December 7, 1992

BEFORE JOSEPH F. MARTONE, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This matter involves a hearing under the Tenure Employees Hearing Act in which the school district is seeking respondent's removal based upon charges of chronic and excessive absenteeism over a period of nine years from school years 1983-84 to 1991 92, allegedly resulting in a significant adverse effect on the schoolchildren of the school district.

The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on February 13, 1992, for hearing as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. The matter was scheduled for a telephone prehearing conference which was held on April 14, 1992. Following this, a prehearing order was entered on May 12, 1992, and the matter was scheduled for a hearing on September 23 and 24, 1992. On September 23, 1992, a hearing was held and concluded. The record remained open in order to allow the attorneys for the respective parties to submit legal arguments. After the submissions, the record closed on October 23, 1992.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

With certain exceptions, the essential facts in this matter are not disputed. In addition, the parties entered into a stipulation to the following facts:

1. The respondent, Jerome Kacprowicz, is a tenured teacher employed by the Jersey City School District.

2. He was initially hired by the Jersey City Board of Education on October 5, 1973, as a pool substitute teacher.

3. Respondent became employed as a contract teacher with the Jersey City School District effective November 17, 1977.

4. Since the 1981-82 school year, respondent has been a teacher of social studies at Dickinson High School in Jersey City.

5. The parties agreed to stipulate to the joint exhibits set forth in the appendix hereto.

The first witness to testify for petitioner was Anne E. Butler, who was the principal of Dickinson High School from September 1986 to June 1991. Ms. Butler is currently the principal at Public School No. 25. She indicated that respondent was under her supervision during her term as principal of Dickinson, where respondent was a social studies teacher. Ms. Butler indicated that while she did not observe respondent in the classroom, she was involved in the approval of his annual professional improvement plan (PIP).

Ms. Butler testified that she prepared an annual written performance report for respondent on June 23, 1989, and that page two of this, which is an improvement plan, was prepared by respondent. She indicated that a teacher's attendance is absolutely vital so that students can be taught. Furthermore, continuity in class is very important, especially in the teaching of social studies and history. She also indicated that attendance is important in urban areas such as Jersey City because teachers are role models and should set a good example. She indicated that if high school students are required to attend class, teachers should also attend. High school students are very aware of the actions of teachers; for these reasons, teachers' attendance is extremely important.

Ms. Butler indicated that her comments with respect to attendance and her recommendation to withhold respondent's increment for excessive absenteeism was based upon respondent's 1988-89 attendance record (Exhibit J-4). This revealed thirty-seven days, 1¾ hours used for personal illness and one day used for personal business for 1988-89. Ms. Butler explained that when she first became principal at Dickinson High School, she accepted respondent's absences for the 1986-87 school year as valid since respondent gave legitimate reasons for these absences. However, when in school year 1987-88 respondent's absences again exceeded thirty days, she advised the respondent that his record of absenteeism could not continue.

It was on the basis of respondent's excessive absenteeism during 1988-89 and his prior history of absenteeism that respondent's increment was withheld (Exhibit J-24). Ms. Butler indicated that respondent's absences were interfering too much with instruction and that respondent was always in a situation where his classes had to catch up. She also indicated that she could not bring in a substitute teacher on a continuous basis because of respondent's sporadic absences. She explained that when absences did not occur on a continuous basis, she would have to substitute for respondent with whatever teacher might be available at the time. This might be a teacher with a certificate in social studies, but on other occasions it could be a special education teacher, an art teacher, or a teacher not familiar with the subject matter of social studies.

Ms. Butler testified that she performed another evaluation of respondent on June 16, 1990 (Exhibit J-12). She explained that she prepared the first page and that respondent prepared the second page. She indicated that her comment with respect to respondent's attendance needing to be improved was based upon respondent's attendance record for the 1989-90 school year (Exhibit J-3). This record reveals that he was absent for thirteen days, 4¾ hours for personal illness or personal business and that he was absent for an additional thirty-nine days, ¾ hour as a result of a school accident. Ms. Butler indicated that she did not withhold respondent's increment based on his absenteeism because the thirteen days was an improvement over his absenteeism in prior years.

Ms. Butler testified that she agreed with the evaluation of respondent dated June 7, 1991 (Exhibit J-10). She indicated that the comments regarding the necessity to improve attendance in this report were based on respondent's attendance record for school year 1990-91 (Exhibit J-2) which shows seventeen days, 3¾ hours absences. She noted that this was not an improvement over the prior year and that she felt this to be excessive.

Ms. Butler indicated that the procedure for use of personal illness leave is that after six days, a teacher must produce a doctor's certificate which goes directly to the board of education for approval. However, she indicated that the issue in this case is not whether respondent followed the proper procedure, but the necessity to have the teacher attend in order to teach students. She indicated that a school cannot provide adequate instruction unless the teacher attends, that basic history courses are essential for advanced courses in history, and that teacher absences are detrimental to the student. Ms. Butler also indicated that the school district has adopted a carefully-worded policy (Exhibit P-1) for guidelines on absences and that this was circulated among administrators and supervisors only. She indicated that in the past, the policy of the school district has been that excessive absences may lead to increment withholding and tenure charges.

Ms. Butler also indicated that she reviewed respondent's record of absenteeism approximately one week before the hearing. She indicated that at the time she became principal of Dickinson High School, she did not consider respondent's prior record of absenteeism because she felt that everyone must start with a clean slate.

However, after a review of his entire record, she feels that respondent should be removed as a teacher.

On cross-examination, Ms. Butler indicated that her first involvement with respondent was the evaluation of May 14, 1987 (Exhibit J-16). She noted the respondent's record of absences for 1986-87 (Exhibit J-6) showed absences of thirty-one days. She admitted that the May 14, 1987 evaluation and improvement plan made no mention of attendance. However, Ms. Butler indicated that she believes she would have spoken to respondent concerning the problem of attendance. Ms. Butler also admitted that for school year 1987-88, respondent was absent for over thirty-two days and that other than mentioning this in the evaluation report of January 14, 1988, no action was taken regarding any excessive absences.

Ms. Butler testified that her recommendation to withhold respondent's increment in the evaluation of June 9, 1989 (Exhibit J-13), was made known to respondent at the time the evaluation and plan were approved. She explained that when she reviewed the plan, she automatically put a checkmark next to the "yes." However, she immediately crossed out this checkmark and inserted the checkmark which indicated that she was recommending against an increment, and she added the notation that this recommendation was based on excessive absenteeism. She testified that this change was made prior to giving the evaluation report to respondent. She also testified that she had advised respondent in each of the prior two years that if he did not improve his record of absenteeism, he was faced with the possibility of the withholding of an increment.

Ms. Butler also noted a marked improvement by respondent in his absences for the subsequent year. Respondent was only absent for a total of seventeen days, 3¾ hours for school year 1990-91. Ms. Butler indicated that by contract, a teacher is given fourteen days per year for personal illness and two days per year for personal business. The personal illness or sick leave days are cumulative. Additional leave, which is known as permissive personal illness leave, may be given to a teacher upon recommendation of the Superintendent and approval of the medical director in the amount of one additional day for each year of service as a regularly appointed teacher but for no more than eighty days in any one school year. Upon the granting of this permissive personal illness leave, the teacher is required to forfeit one-half of a substitute's per diem pay. These provisions are found in the negotiated contract between the Jersey City Board of Education and the Jersey City Education Association, Article 30 (Exhibit R-4).

Ms. Butler indicated that she has no data on the success or lack of success of the students in respondent's classes. She also acknowledged that while there was an improvement in respondent's sick leave for school year 1990-91, she was not satisfied with that improvement but accepted that it was an improvement over prior years. She restated that her concern was the effect of respondent's absences on the students in his class. She acknowledged that the school district gives sabbatical leave to teachers to allow them to remain out of school for a full school year for the purpose of advance studies.

On redirect examination, Ms. Butler indicated that while she did consider the school accident absence of thirty-nine days during school year 1989-90, she did not penalize respondent on this basis.

John Greco, supervisor of social studies and respondent's supervisor, testified for petitioner. He indicated that he evaluated respondent in 1987, 1988, and 1989. An evaluation consists of observing the teacher for one full class, evaluating the teacher's performance, preparing an evaluation report, and conferring with the teacher to discuss the observations and evaluation. A written record is made of the observation and evaluation.

Mr. Greco testified that his first observation/evaluation was done on March 31, 1987 (Exhibit J-17), and that he, as a matter of course, obtains from the administrative office a report as to teacher absences and records this on the report. The March 31, 1987 report indicates that as of that date, respondent's absences totaled twenty-seven and one-half days. Mr. Greco indicated that he discusses absences with the teacher if it needs discussion. He recalls that the twenty-seven and one-half days of absences struck him as excessive. He explained that there are only 180 teaching days per year and that there is a substantial amount of material that must be taught to the students over this limited period of time. He indicated that he is concerned about the impact of the absences in the classroom, and that it is difficult for a teacher to do a good job when too much time is lost with absences.

The witness explained that social studies courses, including history, which are taught by respondent, are survey courses and the attempt is made not to leave anything out. He also indicated that a teacher with a background in the subject matter rather than a substitute teacher would know the background necessary for these kinds of courses.

Mr. Greco indicated that he discusses the evaluation with the teacher and explained to respondent that it was detrimental to the students, to himself, to the school, and to the profession to have excessive absences.

Mr. Greco performed another observation/evaluation of respondent on March 15, 1989 (Exhibit J-14). It is noted that there were thirty-three teacher absences as of that date. Mr. Greco indicated that he usually questions the teacher as to the reason for the absences, and he recalls something about respondent having a problem with his back or his knee. Mr. Greco made it clear that he did not question the legitimacy of respondent's absences but merely that they were excessive. He again explained that the full 180 teaching days are necessary to teach course content in history. If there are excessive absences, there is a detrimental effect on the education process. It involves short-changing the students and they are not afforded the education to which they are entitled. Mr. Greco indicated that he was pretty sure that respondent told him he would try to improve on his absences.

On cross-examination, Mr. Greco indicated that another problem with teacher absences is that if the teacher is absent at the end of a marking period, it is necessary for a substitute teacher or other teaching staff to provide the grade. He has not analyzed the grades obtained by respondent's classes. However, he noted that with regard to his observation/evaluation report of January 14, 1988, excessive absences are reflected in the performance factors and in the areas needing improvement.

The observation of January 14, 1988, was two weeks before the midterm exams, which are scheduled for the last week in January. The subject matter of the lesson on the day of observation was the French and Indian War. However, the midterm examination includes questions concerning the Revolutionary War and the Constitution. Mr. Greco felt that respondent could not cover the Revolutionary War, the Articles of Confederation, and the Constitution in a proper fashion prior to the midterm examination. He felt that the failure of respondent to cover the material which was to be included on the midterm examination was the direct result of excessive absences.

The report noted that respondent's pacing needed improvement and that respondent should follow the course of study when planning his lessons, indicating that he was too far behind with midterms two weeks away. This observation/evaluation report also recommended improvement regarding teacher attendance and commented that better teaching attendance is beneficial to students, school, and teacher. Mr. Greco indicated that he had no knowledge of how well or how poorly the students performed on the midterm examination.

Mr. Greco indicated on the report of March 15, 1989, the notations of no latenesses and forty-six coverages were included thereon by respondent. He explained that coverages are where a teacher handles another class for an absent teacher. Where a teacher covers a class, he is given a credit of one-fifth of a day as compensatory time or days. These are reflected on the teacher attendance records. For example, in school year 1990-91, respondent earned eleven days in this fashion; in 1989-90, he earned nine days; in 1988-89, he earned twenty-five days; in 1987-88, he earned twenty-six days; in 1986-87, he earned twenty-two days; in 1985-86, he earned twelve days; in 1984-85, he earned eleven days; and in 1983-84, he earned ten days.

When Mr. Greco was questioned about the effects of these absences by respondent, he indicate that while there are failure rates in the school district's records, no study has been made of these. He indicated that respondent was a very fine teacher but that he would have been an even better teacher if he was not excessively absent. He finally indicated that he is aware of a board policy regarding absenteeism.

John Pacifico, who is currently director of Cluster 3, also testified for petitioner. He indicated that he was the vice principal at Dickinson High School from March 1985 until August 1986 and that he was also the interim principal of Dickinson High School in September 1991. He was familiar with respondent while he was the vice principal at Dickinson High School, and he evaluated respondent for the 1984-85 school year.

Mr. Pacifico indicated that he performed the evaluation of June 1, 1985 (Exhibit J-20), which noted that respondent's attendance was an area needing improvement and that respondent's improvement plan included the requirement that respondent devise a plan for improving attendance. Mr. Pacifico recalls that respondent was very positive about attempting to improve his attendance.

Mr. Pacifico also testified that he evaluated respondent in March 1986 (Exhibit J-19). He indicated that he made two classroom observations, the first on March 12, 1986, and the second on March 24, 1986. The report noted that respondent had been absent forty-two times as of March 13, 1986, that attendance was an area needing improvement, and the suggestion was made that some effort at improving attendance must be undertaken. Mr. Pacifico felt that the attendance of respondent had an effect on respondent's conduct of classes with respect to the demonstration of proficiency in the subject matter and the utilization of effective instructional techniques.

Mr. Pacifico indicated that he always discusses his evaluation comments with the teacher so there is no misunderstanding as to his comments. The report of March 1986 was based upon his attendance record for school year 1985-86 (J-7). As a result of this observation, respondent's improvement plan dated June 3, 1986 (J-18), included an improvement action to conduct a self-study as it pertains to respondent's attendance, devise a plan for improving his attendance, and implement a plan and evaluate its effectiveness. However, Mr. Pacifico indicated he does not know if respondent prepared or implemented such a plan, since he left Dickinson High School immediately thereafter.

Mr. Pacifico testified that he returned to Dickinson High School in September 1991 as its interim principal. He reviewed respondent's record and found that his chronic absenteeism had continued. On the first day of school, respondent did not report; Susan Butler, the attendance clerk, advised Mr. Pacifico that respondent had been injured because of an auto accident and would be out of work indefinitely. It was at this point that Mr. Pacifico recommended the filing of tenure charges seeking respondent's removal. He stated that the reasons for his recommendation were: first, the district cannot have an effective instructional program if teachers do not show up to teach; second, teachers are role models for students and respondent's actions were inappropriate conduct; third, respondent did not make sufficient efforts to improve his attendance problem.

On cross-examination, Mr. Pacifico testified that he recommended the tenure charges strictly because of respondent's absence commencing in September 1991 and based on his prior record of chronic absenteeism. Mr. Pacifico indicated that he did into the reasons for the September 1991 absence and that when he looks at the total number of absences over the past years, he feels the tenure charges are justified. He indicated that respondent has been absent in excess of 300 days over the past nine years if the school accident of thirty-nine days is counted. In addition, he indicated that his focus is on the effect of respondent's absences on students, and the fact that respondent had sick leave available to utilize is of no consequence when considering the effect on the educational program of the school district.

Jerome Kacprowicz testified that with the exception of these tenure charges and a prior increment withholding matter, he has never been subjected to disciplinary action. He identified an observation/evaluation report of April 18, 1991 (Exhibit J-11), conducted by vice-principal John Powers. That report notes that as of that date, he had been absent thirteen times. The report rated respondent as excellent in all performance areas and indicated that there were no areas needing improvement. No mention is made of a problem of absenteeism. Respondent testified that he was never cited for any deficiencies as a teacher other than for attendance.

Respondent testified he did not return to school in September 1991 because of two auto accidents which occurred on July 28, 1991 and on August 17, 1991. He indicated that on the first day of school, he called and spoke to Sue Butler and told her what occurred. He then received leave papers from John Pacifico, which he filled out and returned within the proper time. He never returned for the 1991-92 school year and at the present time he is suspended. He indicated that the school district has never requested a medical examination of him and that no one from the district has ever consulted with him concerning his absence. He has submitted all papers required by the district in connection with his absence.

Respondent testified as to the nature of his injuries. He indicated that he has numerous soft-tissue injuries ranging from his neck to his back and lower back. He indicated that he has cervical disc bulges, two herniated discs in his back, and nerve damage. At the hearing, he was wearing a pain management unit prescribed by his chiropractor, Dr. Rizzolo.

Respondent testified that as a result of the accident on July 28, 1991, he was brought to the Mountainside Hospital Emergency Room. Subsequently, he was treated by Dr. Rizzolo at Commerce Chiropractic Center, Dr. Garofalo, and Dr. Lock. In addition, he was diagnosed as having a postconcussion syndrome and a posttraumatic syndrome and was under the care of Dr. Irati, a psychologist, and Ms. Weinberg, a social worker who alternately treated and counseled him. He was also seen by Dr. Steven Heller, an orthopedic specialist. He was also sent for a magnetic resonance imaging (MRI) on his lower back, which revealed two herniated discs, L4-L5 and L5-S1. In addition, he was seen by Dr. Sorin, a neurologist, who found nerve damage. Dr. Garofalo prescribed a home nurse, who comes to his home two times per weeks for massage treatment and exercise.

On August 17, 1991, respondent was involved in another auto accident and that Dr. James Maresca came to his home to provide him with emergency medical treatment. He underwent an additional MRI and his condition was found to be getting worse instead of better. As a result of his overall situation, he was referred to a psychiatrist, Dr. Robert Latimer. He was also seen by and treated by Dr. John Infantalino, an internist, and Dr. Laspinosas, a spinal specialist. He was seen by Dr. Pedinoff, a psychiatrist. He has also been referred to a third orthopedic specialist, Dr. Cornelius Necoll, whom he is scheduled to see in the near future.

Respondent is still seeing his various doctors on a regular basis. He sees Dr. Latimer and Dr. Pedinoff two times per week. His home nurse sees him two times per week. He also sees his chiropractor one time per week or as needed.

Respondent testified that he is taking Drudis, an anti-inflammatory drug; Norflex, a muscle relaxant; and synthetic Morphine, Fiorinal, Codeine No. 3, Valium, and Zantac, for his stomach condition caused by stress. He provided printouts from the various pharmacies indicating the various medications he has been prescribed (Exhibit R-1).

Respondent maintained that permissive leave was granted to him by the school district on January 7, 1992.

With respect to the charges, respondent testified that he was trying to improve upon his attendance and that he has always tried to improve this area. With respect to his absences from class, respondent indicated that the success rate of his students was always very good and that it was better than most teachers. He indicated that he had a very good rapport with his students and that he made their success in his classes attainable.

Respondent testified as to his prior educational background and indicated that he has certificates in art, English, and social studies. Respondent denied that Mr. Pacifico evaluated him for two periods in March 1986. He indicated that on the first evaluation date, for various reasons, Mr. Pacifico could not complete the evaluation; he came back for another class observation.

With respect to the denial of his increment in August 1989, respondent testified that he was given the evaluation on June 23, 1989, which was the last day of class. He was asked to sign it and return it immediately, which he did. He was not provided with the signed copy of the evaluation until after he learned that the board of education was going to deny his increment. He first learned that the increment was to be denied on August 18, 1989, and it was eventually denied by the board of education on August 31, 1989. He indicated that he did not speak to Ms. Butler about her recommendation of June 23, 1989, either on that date or after he became aware of it her recommendation in August 1989.

Respondent stated that he felt that the course proficiencies required of his students were always covered. Whenever he was absent, he attempted to work with the substitute teacher by sending in assignments and work and otherwise trying to keep his students prepared. He feels that the school district has handled this entire situation very inhumanely, particularly in view of his automobile accidents and injuries and his inability to work.

LEGAL DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS

N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10, which governs dismissals of tenured teachers, such as the respondent herein, provides in relevant part that:

> No person shall be dismissed or reduced in compensation,
> (a) if he is . . . under tenure of office, position or employment during good behavior and efficiency in the public school system of the state. . . .
> except for inefficiency, incapacity, unbecoming conduct, or other just cause . . . [emphasis added].

A review of prior decisions indicates that chronic or excessive absenteeism has been found to constitute both "incapacity" and "unbecoming conduct" within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10, such as to warrant dismissal from employment. It has also been held that chronic and excessive absenteeism amounts to "just cause" under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 such as to warrant dismissal from employment. Trenton Bd. of Ed. v. Williamson, OAL DKT. EDU 7335-85 (Apr. 14,1986), aff'd by Comm'r (May 28, 1986).

In In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Reilly, 1977 S.L.D. 403, the Commissioner of Education affirmed the dismissal of a teacher, on grounds of incapacity and conduct unbecoming a teacher, whose absences ranged from five to 149 days a year over a ten-year period, notwithstanding the claim that most of the absences were in connection with a physical ailment plaguing the teacher. See also Malley v. Bd. of Ed. of Pequannock Township, OAL DKT. EDU 1858-86 (Nov. 19, 1986), aff'd by Comm'r (Dec. 29, 1986), aff'd State Bd. of Ed. (April 1, 1987); In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of DeKrafft, 1981 S.L.D. 1308, aff'd State Bd. of Ed., 1982 S.L.D. 1470, aff'd, No. A-4641-81T2 (App. Div. May 4, 1983).

Excessive absenteeism constitutes valid grounds for dismissing a tenured teacher, even where the absences have been excused or are caused by legitimate reasons of personal illness. State-Operated School District of Jersey City v. Pellecchio, 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 267, 269-270; Tenure Hearing of Lena White 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 157, 161; Tenure Hearing of Edna Booth, 1985 S.L.D. 722, 744, 760-761; Tenure Hearing of DeKrafft, supra; Tenure Hearing of Reilly, supra, 1977 S.L.D. at 413-415.

Even if a teacher's performance in the classroom is sufficient and even if the absences were approved leave or sick days to which the teacher was entitled, the absences may nevertheless be considered as material to the issue and can justify removal of the teacher. Trautwein v. Board of Educ. of Bound Brook, 1980 S.L.D.

1539 (No. A-2773-78, N.J. App. Div. April 8, 1980), certif. den., 84 N.J. 469 (1980); Tenure Hearing of Sheets, 1979 S.L.D. 790, 798, adopted State Bd. of Ed., 1980 S.L.D. 1536.

The underlying rationale was explained by the Commissioner in Tenure Hearing of Green, 1991 S.L.D. 1103. In that case, the Commissioner concurred with the Administrative Law Judge in ordering the removal of a high school teacher for chronic and excessive absenteeism ranging from twenty-three days to 105 days annually over a period of five and a half years. Although many of the absences had been approved as sick leave, the Commissioner pointed out that while "a school district has a responsibility to teachers who are plagued with illness and have medical problems . . . the overarching responsibility of the Commissioner and the local Board of Education is to the children" (Commissioner's Decision, July 31, 1991, p. 17).

The Commissioner further explained (pp. 17-18) by quoting from Meli v. Board of Education of Burlington Cty. Voc.Tech. School, 1984 S.L.D. 906, 913-914, aff'd, State of Bd. of Educ., 1984 S.L.D. 921:

> Common sense dictates that a teacher's continued absences must, at some point have a negative impact upon [his or] her pupils even if a board of education is unable to prove the relationship between a teacher's attendance and pupil progress. This conclusion is summarized by the Commissioner in Reilly, supra, where the Commissioner stated as follows:
> > Frequent absences of teachers from regular classroom learning experiences disrupt the continuity of the instruction progress. The benefit of regular classroom instruction is lost and cannot be entirely regained, even by extra effort, when the regular teacher returns to the classroom. Consequently, many pupils who do not have the benefit of their regular classroom teacher frequently experience great difficulty in achieving the maximum benefit of schooling. Indeed, many pupils in these circumstances are able to achieve only mediocre success in their academic program. The entire process of education requires a regular continuity of instruction with a teacher directing the classroom activities and learning experiences in order to reach the goal of maximum educational benefit for each individual pupil. The regular > contact of the pupils with their assigned teacher is vital to this process.

The point at which the absenteeism is judged to be excessive falls within the reasonable judgment and discretion of the local school district. Trautwein v. Board of Educ. of Bound Brook, supra, 1980 S.L.D. at 1542; State Operated School Dist. of Jersey City v. Pellechio, supra, 92 N.J.A.R. 2d at 270. There are certain procedural guidelines which must be followed, as indicated in Kelsey v. Board of Educ. of Trenton, 1989 S.L.D. 1622, modified, Comm. of Educ. (May 11, 1989), which are quoted in Tenure Hearing of White, supra, 92 N.J.A.R. 2d at 161:

> What a board of education is required to show, however, is that there was consideration of (1) the particular circumstances of the absences and not merely the number of absences, (2) the impact that the absences had on the continuity of instruction during the period of time the absences occurred, not merely after the fact and (3) that there be some warning given to the employee that his or her supervisors were dissatisfied with the pattern of absences.

School Year	Day Absent
1983-84	23 (J-9)
1984-85	23 (J-8)
1985-86	46 (J-7)
1986-87	32 (J-5)
1988-89	38 (J-4)
1989-90	13 Plus 39 (school accident) (J-3)
1990-91	17 (J-2)
1991-92	All (J-1)

From the above, it can be seen that for the eight school years between September 1983 and June 1991, respondent was absent a total of 262 days, or 223 days if the thirty-nine school accident days are excluded. This amounts to an average number of absences of approximately twenty-eight days per year.

There is no question that respondent's absences over the years were for legitimate reasons. In particular, respondent's most recent absences for the entire 1991-92 school year were based upon respondent's involvement in two motor vehicle accidents in July 1992.

Despite the foregoing, the touchstone upon which a case such as this is to be decided is the effect of the absences on the children of the school district. Common sense dictates that a teacher's continued absences ranging from forty-six days in school year 1985-86 to thirteen days (plus thirty-nine days for a school accident) in school year 1989-90 must have had a negative impact upon respondent's pupils. The pattern of absences shown in respondent's attendance records show frequent absences which necessarily disrupted the required continuity of instruction necessary to provide the opportunity for a pupil's maximum educational progress. Accordingly, in this case, I FIND that the petitioner's responsibility to respondent as a teacher who is plagued with illness and medical problems is far outweighed by the excessive number of absences of respondent.

In view of this finding, the issue arises whether respondent was given some warning that his supervisors were dissatisfied with respondent's pattern of absences. In this regard, the evidence reveals that as early as June 1985 and March 1986, John Pacifico, who was a vice principal at Dickinson High School at the time, indicated in respondent's evaluation that respondent's attendance was an area needing improvement.

Anne Butler, principal of Dickinson High School, indicated that while she accepted respondent's absences of thirty-one days for the 1986-87 school year, she advised respondent that his absences for thirty-two days in the 1987-88 school year could not continue. When respondent was absent for thirty-eight days in the 1988-89 school year, respondent's increment was withheld. Despite improving his absences to thirteen days for school year 1989-90 and to seventeen days for school year 1990-91, respondent was advised that his attendance needed to be improved in June 1990 (Exhibit J-12) and in June 1991 (Exhibit J-10). Accordingly, I FIND that respondent was given sufficient warnings that his supervisors were dissatisfied with his pattern of absences.

When viewed in light of its impact upon the students, respondent's absence from his teaching duties for the entire school year 1991-92 could be said to have less impact on the continuity of instruction than an absence of approximately one day per week. Nevertheless, the students of a school district are entitled to have available to them a teacher who is able to teach. One who is unable to do so may be properly found to be incapable of teaching and may be removed for "incapacity."

During the hearing, respondent was heard to complain about the inhumane way this matter has been handled by the school district. I would agree with his complaint if respondent's attendance record showed infrequent use of sick leave prior to his involvement in the accident in July 1991 leading to his inability to return to his teaching duties. However, in view of respondent's poor attendance record, and in light of respondent's apparently serious injuries, there is every indication that if respondent is able to return to his teaching duties, his pattern of absences will continue in the future.

Based on the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that respondent's conduct amounts to chronic and excessive absenteeism over a period of nine years from school years 1983-84 to 1991-92, resulting in a significant adverse effect on the school children of the school district. Therefore, I further CONCLUDE that respondent should be removed as a teacher on the basis of these charges.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 West State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF JEROME KACPROWICZ,	:
STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
OF THE CITY OF JERSEY CITY,	:	DECISION

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Timely exceptions were filed by respondent pursuant to the provisions of N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4. Replies thereto by the Board were filed out of time and are not addressed herein.*

In his exceptions, respondent principally argues that the ALJ erred in recognizing the established criteria for tenure dismissal based on charges of excessive absenteeism and then ruling against respondent notwithstanding the District's failure to meet those criteria. Specifically, respondent argues that the District, as evidenced by the attitude of Interim Principal Pacifico, who filed the charges, failed to consider the particular circumstances of his absences, instead looking solely to their number (Exception

* Respondent's exceptions were dated December 23, 1992 and received by the Commissioner on December 28, 1992. The Board's reply, due no later than five (5) working days after its receipt of exceptions pursuant to N.J A.C. 1:1-18.4, was not filed with the Commissioner until January 7, 1993.

1); that there was no evidence whatsoever of any actual impact on continuity of instruction at the time of his absences' occurrence (Exception 2); and that the District did not give him sufficient warning that his tenure status was in jeopardy as a result of his attendance, particularly upon commencement of his extended absence in 1991-92 (Exception 7) or that it had any concerns about the impact of his pre-1991 attendance pattern on continuity of instruction (Exception 8).

Respondent further argues that the District had no clear, specific or widely disseminated policy on staff absenteeism to which he might have looked for guidance (Exception 4), nor did district administrators themselves have a uniform notion of what constituted excessive absenteeism, as evidenced by the differing views of Principals Pacifico and Butler and by the absence of testimony from any central office administrator (Exception 6). Respondent also contends that his pre-1991 absences should have been considered in a different light from his absence of 1991-92, as the former were sporadic and short-term, while the latter was continuous, long-term and due to a legitimate reason such as is routinely recognized through grant of sabbaticals and leaves to teachers (Exception 5). Finally, respondent argues that it is unfair for him to be penalized through tenure charges for a pre-1991 attendance record for which he has already suffered the loss of an increment and which he improved significantly just prior to the accidents leading to the altogether different absence of 1991-92 (Exception 3).

Upon careful review of the record, the Commissioner is unpersuaded by respondent's exceptions and determines to affirm the decision of the ALJ.

Notwithstanding respondent's contentions, it is clear that the District did consider the particular circumstances of his absences, including those arising from his summer 1991 auto accidents, as well as the actual impact of his past absences and the potential impact of his anticipated absences before deciding to seek his removal. As properly noted by the ALJ, it is not necessary for a district to prove a direct correlation between student achievement and teacher attendance in order to validate concerns, clearly and consistently expressed in evaluations and conferences over a period of time, about the effect of a teacher's absence on the educational program of the district. Neither can respondent rely on the fact that prior warnings and expressions of concern were not couched specifically in terms of "continuity of instruction" or related to possible filing of tenure charges to claim that he had no warning of problems with his attendance or potential consequences for his employment based on those problems.

Similarly disingenuous is the notion that the absence of a highly detailed, widely disseminated written attendance policy somehow exonerates respondent from recognizing that the repeated absence of a teacher from his classroom, however legitimate, will have negative impact on instruction and compromise the basic purpose of the district and the most fundamental obligation of an educator to his students. Therefore, as found by the ALJ, respondent's poor attendance record prior to 1991-92, his protracted absence during that year and the clear indications of continuing medical problems which may reasonably be anticipated to result in further absences in the future, must be found to warrant his removal as a tenured teacher in the District notwithstanding that his teaching performance, when present, was undisputedly good and that his absences were for a legitimate purpose and properly effectuated in terms of reporting and use of leave.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law dismissing respondent from his tenured employment as of the date of the Commissioner's decision is affirmed for the reasons expressed therein. This matter is further referred to the State Board of Examiners pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6(a) for action as it deems appropriate.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF NEWARK, ESSEX COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

Petitioning vice princpal alleged violation of her tenure and employment rights when Board, which had appointed her as scheduling vice principal for July 1, 1991 to August 22, 1991, relieved her of all scheduling responsibilities on July 13, 1991. Petitioner sought compensation for 10 days of work she completed.

ALJ found petitioner was entitled to compensation for period of 10 days from July 1 to July 13 but was not entitled to appointment as scheduling vice principal for 1992-93 as there is no entitlement to summer employment. Further, there is no statutory authorization to award attorney's fees.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision.

INITIAL DECISION
OAL DKT. NO. EDU 10220-91
AGENCY REF. NO. 370-10/91

THELMA JONES,
Petitioner,
v.
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF NEWARK, ESSEX COUNTY,
Respondent.

Anthony P. Sciarrillo, Esq., for petitioner

Carolyn Ryan Reed, Associate Counsel, for respondent
(Marvin L. Comick, General Counsel, attorney)

Record Closed: November 2, 1992 Decided: December 11, 1992

BEFORE MARYLOUISE LUCCHI-McCLOUD, ALJ:

Petitioner in this matter filed a verified petition with the Department of Education on October 10, 1991, alleging a violation of her tenure and employment rights. An answer to that verified petition was filed by the respondent on October 24, 1991. The matter was then transferred to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on November 4, 1991, for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

A hearing was held in the matter on August 7, 1992, at the OAL, 185 Washington Street, Newark, New Jersey. At the conclusion of testimony, the record was left open for written briefs to be submitted by September 7, 1992. Upon consideration of the information in those briefs, this ALJ requested further written submissions. The date for submission of these was extended at the request of counsel for the petitioner with the consent of his adversary until November 2, 1992, at which time the record closed.

STIPULATION OF FACTS

At the time of the hearing, both sides entered into a number of stipulated facts which were marked J-5 in evidence. Those stipulations are as follows:

1. During the 1990-91 school year, Thelma Jones was assigned as vice principal to University High School.

2. At the board meeting on July 2, 1991, petitioner was appointed scheduling vice principal at University High School for the period July 1, 1991 to August 12, 1991, prorated for a period of ten days (agenda item HR-68B).

3. At the same board meeting on July 2, 1991, agenda item HR-59B transferring petitioner to East Side High School was held by the board and not acted upon.

4. By letter dated July 9, 1991, and received by petitioner on July 13, 1991, Eugene C. Campbell, executive superintendent of the Board of Education of the City of Newark, advised that it was his expectation that administrative reorganizations for the 1991-92 school year would necessitate her administrative appointment to a new school assignment for the September term in her current capacity as vice principal. Mr. Campbell further advised Dr. Jones that she was therefore relieved of all responsibilities for the scheduling of University High School for the 1991-92 school year.

As these facts have been stipulated to by the parties, I FIND them to be operational facts in this case.

TESTIMONY

At the time of the hearing, the petitioner, Dr. Thelma Jones, testified. She began by stating her credentials, which are not set out herein at length as there is no claim that she is not qualified for the positions under discussion. She further stated that she has been a scheduling administrator since 1976 and that the assignment includes preparing schedules for students and teachers for the next year. The tasks for this assignment begin in either February or March for the following September. Each summer when she was scheduling vice principal, she would be approved by the board of education. She did indicate that she usually started prior to board action during the school year in order to accomplish the task.

In order to arrange the scheduling, Dr. Jones would meet with the superintendent as well as department supervisors and guidance counselors. She would then review information regarding the individual students and would have a temporary schedule set up by the end of June. During the summer, that schedule is refined and information on homerooms as well as summer-school students is added. She stated that this has been a general practice during the thirty-two years she has worked for the Newark Board of Education. There is an application process for the position of scheduling administrator for the summer, and she did, in fact, apply for that position in 1991.

The petitioner learned on July 2, 1991, that she had been appointed to the position of summer scheduling administrator. As a result, she began doing certain items at home because she only had ten days listed that were authorized. She worked on a master schedule as well as assigning homerooms to individual students. The work was to be completed by mid-August. She indicated that between July 1, 1991 and August 12, 1991, she had worked on the scheduling assignment for at least ten days.

The first notice that she received of her change in status was the letter dated July 9, 1991, indicating that she would be appointed to a new assignment as vice principal in September in a different school.

The witness testified that there was another occasion when she was the scheduling vice principal and she was transferred from Broadway School to University High School and she was still to finish the scheduling functions that she had in the first school.

Charles Meadows, who is the associate executive superintendent for the school district, also testified during the hearing. He stated that he and the assistant superintendent make a recommendation as to hirings for the summer positions. The amount of days which are allotted to the task depends upon the funds available. The individual who does the scheduling at the initiation of the school year through the conclusion in June is usually the individual who does the summer scheduling. If the scheduling vice principal is ill or a problem results, then the principal would most likely fulfill the task.

Mr. Meadows testified that Dr. Jones was the subject of an administrative reorganization. As such, a new vice principal was assigned to University High School in July. Mr. Meadows stated that Mr. Daniels had indicated that there was nothing in the computer regarding scheduling; it was as though the computer program had been purged. Mr. Daniels began as the new vice principal in July.

Thelma Jones was recalled to testify, and she stated that the scheduling information that she generated was put in the computer on a weekly basis. In addition, she stated there is a backup disk; however, no one indicated to her that there was any problem. She stated that the backup disk was submitted to the school on the last day of the school term.

FINDINGS OF FACT

In addition to those facts which have been stipulated by the parties, I FIND the following to be fact:

1. Dr. Jones was appointed scheduling administrator on July 2, 1991, and was aware on that date that this had transpired.

2. It was not until July 9, 1991, that Dr. Jones became aware that she was being transferred from one school to the other.

3. A letter sent to Dr. Jones on July 9, 1991, and received by the respondent on July 13, 1991, specifically stated that she was relieved of all responsibilities for the scheduling of University High School for the 1991-1992 school year. This notice was received eleven days after the initial appointment by the board.

4. Dr. Jones had, at least on one other occasion, been transferred from one high school to another; however, she retained the scheduling duties for the first high school during the summer.

5. The amount of days for which an individual who acts as the scheduling vice principal is paid is determined by funds available rather than by the specific time used to perform the work. Ten days were provided for in 1991.

6. Dr. Jones did a substantial portion of the work both prior to authorization by the board on July 2, 1991, and during the period of time following that appointment, and she stored the information on a computer disk.

7. Although the school indicates that it was unable to find the information stored by Dr. Jones, she testified credibly as to the extent of her work and the fact that it was on a backup disk. It is also noteworthy that no one asked Dr. Jones specifically where the work she had done was.

Having assessed the credibility of the witnesses and having evaluated the evidence in this case, I FIND, in addition to those facts stipulated above, these to be operational facts in this case.

DISCUSSION

The petitioner in this case is requesting that she be paid for the ten days that she was authorized to work by the board. Her contention is that due to the fact that she began the work prior to the July 2, 1991 authorization and continued even after the July 9, 1991 letter which she received on July 13, 1991, she is entitled to the full pay for the ten days. It must be pointed out that the ten days authorized for payment are based upon budgetary considerations rather than any detailed analysis or estimation of the amount of time that it would take to complete the tasks involved in summer scheduling. If, in fact, Dr. Jones is entitled to be paid due to the board action in appointing her to the position of scheduling vice principal, it is clear that the period of time for which the board would be responsible does not predate the board's action in appointing her. As a result, only the period of time subsequent to July 2, 1991, will be addressed.

With respect to when the period of time for which Dr. Jones may be entitled to compensation would terminate, one must look at what, if any, action was taken by the board of education. The letter from the executive superintendent dated July 9, 1991, which was received by the petitioner on July 13, 1991, clearly states in the last paragraph that she was relieved of all responsibilities for the scheduling of University High School for the 1991-1992 school year. As a result, on July 13, 1991, petitioner had clearly been told that her scheduling responsibilities were terminated. Any work which may have been done after this date is also not to be considered since it was no longer authorized.

Having delineated the time frame which is pertinent for this discussion, the question now turns on whether or not Dr. Jones should receive payment for ten days for the position to which she was appointed on July 2, 1991. It must be pointed out, as was indicated in the findings of fact, that Dr. Jones testified most credibly that she did, in fact, do the work involved as scheduling vice principal. There is no indication that the work was somehow deliberately withheld from the board of education. As a result, this discussion is prefaced upon Dr. Jones's good-faith performance of the tasks given to her by appointment through the board of education.

The respondent board of education points out in its posthearing submission that there is no tenure entitlement to summer employment. It further states that because there is no entitlement to summer employment, the petitioner is not entitled to be paid for this additional service since it does not constitute part of her "full pay" under N.J.S.A. 18A:29-15. While the respondent is correct that there is no entitlement to summer employment, the petitioner is not claiming that she is entitled to employment which she did not receive. In this case, she was appointed to provide additional services for the board of education and, as a result, is requesting that she receive the compensation pursuant to that appointment.

N.J.S.A. 18A:29-15 states as follows:

> Nothing contained in this article shall be construed to interfere with or discontinue any salaries schedule now in force; provided, such schedule shall meet the requirements of this article, nor to prevent the adoption of any salary schedule which shall meet its minimum requirements, nor prevent the payment of extra compensation for additional service, nor to prevent the payment of any bonus pursuant to law, but no bonus payment may be made in lieu of an employment or adjustment increment.

In this case, the petitioner is requesting extra compensation as authorized by her appointment for the additional service which she rendered at the request of the board of education. Respondent also contends that since the board of education has the inherent management prerogative to select and assign candidates for summer positions, it should have the ability to change its plans. It is accurate that there is an inherent management prerogative to determine the qualifications, criteria, method of selection, employment, and transfer of personnel by the board of education. Ridgefield Park Education Association v. Ridgefield Park Board of Ed., 78 N.J. 144 (1978).

In this case, the petitioner is not questioning the managerial prerogative of the board of education but, instead, is claiming that the board exercised its management prerogative in appointing her to the position of summer scheduling vice principal. It is as a result of this exercise that she is claiming that she should be compensated. Respondent is correct in asserting that once the board determined that Dr. Jones's impending transfer would make it more appropriate to have the newly-assigned administrator complete any scheduling, it had the ability to make that change. The respondent's argument, however, is predicated upon an assertion that Dr. Jones did not render any services for the board of education. As indicated in the findings of fact and based upon Dr. Jones's testimony, it has been determined that she did, in fact, render services in her capacity as scheduling vice principal.

While Dr. Jones cannot be compensated for the work which was done prior to the action of the board in appointing her to the position of scheduling vice principal or after the time when she was advised by the executive superintendent on behalf of the board of education that she was relieved of responsibility for scheduling, a period of ten days exists between the two dates. As a result, Dr. Jones is entitled to compensation for the additional service rendered during the ten-day period from the July 2, 1991 action of the board to receipt of the letter on July 13, 1991.

Petitioner also requests in the initial petition "reinstatement to the position of summer scheduling administrator pursuant to her assigned duty for the 1992/1993 school year and thereafter." It is clear from the testimony in this case that no mention has been made regarding any appointment by the board of education of Dr. Jones as summer scheduling administrator for the school year 1992-1993. As previously discussed, there is no entitlement to summer employment; as such, this is not an appropriate remedy.

The petitioner also requests attorney's fees in this matter. In support of that, respondent cites Ross v. Board of Education of the City of Jersey City, 1981 S.L.D. 307, aff'd, Commissioner of Education, 1981 S.L.D. 319. That case, however, is distinguishable from the case at hand. In that case, the Commissioner awarded counsel fees to a superintendent who was compelled to file a petition in order to carry out mandatory statutory duties which he held. Dr. Jones is not acting in order to carry out any form of mandatory statutory duty.

Absent statutory authority, the Commissioner of Education does not have the authority to award payment of attorney's fees to a petitioner. Juanita Zielenski v. Board of Education of the Town of Guttenberg, 1981 S.L.D. 768. In this case, there is no statutory authorization to do so; therefore, no award of attorney's fees may be given.

CONCLUSION

Based upon the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that the petitioner, Dr. Thelma Jones, is entitled to compensation for the period of time from July 1, 1991, when she was appointed to the position of scheduling vice principal by the board of education, until July 13, 1991, when she received the letter indicating that she was relieved of her scheduling responsibilities.

I further CONCLUDE that petitioner is not entitled to appointment as scheduling vice principal in the 1992-1993 subsequent school year.

I further CONCLUDE that no award of attorney's fees may be granted in this case.

ORDER

It is hereby ORDERED that the petitioner's request for compensation based upon her lawful appointment as scheduling vice principal be and is granted for ten days during the period of time between July 1, 1991 and July 13, 1991.

It is further ORDERED that petitioner's request to be appointed as scheduling vice principal for the 1992-1993 school year be and hereby is DENIED.

It is further ORDERED that the petitioner's request for attorney's fees in this matter be and hereby is DENIED.

I hereby FILE my initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 West State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Respondent's exceptions and petitioner's replies thereto were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4. Both rely on the testimony, documentation, and post-hearing submissions which were fully and fairly considered by the ALJ in her initial decision and need not be repeated herein.

Upon careful review, the Commissioner concurs with the decision of the ALJ for the reasons articulated by her in the initial decision. The Commissioner finds that the petitioner's rendering of authorized services to the Board as scheduling vice principal for which she is entitled to compensation is fully supported by the record.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law granting the petitioner compensation for her Board-authorized appointment as scheduling vice principal for ten days during the period of time between July 1, 1991 and July 13, 1991 and denying petitioner's requests for attorney's fees and appointment as scheduling vice principal for the 1992-1993 school year is affirmed for the reasons stated therein.

Petitioning parents in two consolidated cases sought judgment of Commissioner that because distance measurement from their homes to the schoolhouse utilized to compute their children's entitlement to busing required the children to travel roads which were dangerous to their safety, this measurement should be discounted and the children allowed busing. Petitioners alleged Board's termination of bus service for their children was in contravention of Board's own polices concerning remoteness, measurement and safety. Moreover, petitioners charged noncompliance by Board with Open Public Meetings Act (OPMA).

ALJ found no genuine, material triable issues of fact remained in case. Law was clear that petitioners' children lived within two miles of school and were not entitled to busing under N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1 and N.J.A.C. 6:21-1.3 even if roadway danger was assumed as safety conditions of roadways are a municipal and not an educational concern. In addition, ALJ found no substantial or actual noncompliance by Board with OPMA.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision. Petitions were dismissed.

Record Closed: October 28, 1992 Decided: December 7, 1992

BEFORE JAMES A. OSPENSON, ALJ:

Under OAL Dkt No. EDU 9054-91, the Board of Education of the Township of Wayne, Passaic County, terminated busing to Schuyler Colfax Middle School for children of Potter petitioners effective September 27, 1991, the Board having determined a new route measure along Jackson Avenue to Webster path, all of Webster Drive, Wheeler Drive and Huberton Road would place petitioners within two miles of the school, under criteria of N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1 and N.J.A.C. 6:21-1.3. In a petition of appeal filed with the Department of Education on September 25, 1991, Potter petitioners alleged Board action was arbitrary and unreasonable by exposing school children to the risk of serious injury along dangerous roadways and was otherwise in contravention of the Board's own policies concerning remoteness, measurement and safety. Petitioners sought judgment of the Commissioner that they lived more than two miles from the school house and were thus entitled to busing. The Board's answer, filed October 11, 1991, admitted Board action generally but denied petitioners lived more than two miles form Schuyler Colfax Middle School using public walkways and public roadways, the Board for that reason not being obligated to provide busing under statute or regulation. The Commissioner transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law on September 25, 1991 for hearing and determination as a contested case in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

Under OAL Dkt. No. EDU 9413-91, Gaffney petitioners alleged Board action in terminating busing for their children was arbitrary, capricious and in contravention of Board policy for exposing children to risk of injury by requiring them to traverse hazardous roadways such as Hamburg Turnpike, Ratzer Road, Jackson Avenue, Newark-Pompton Turnpike, Black Oak Ridge Road, and Route 23, a route nevertheless that if used for route measurement under N.J.A.C. 6:21-1.3 would put them within two miles of Schuyler Colfax Middle School. Gaffney petitioners sought judgment directing the Board to restore busing for their children, in accordance with their rights under N.J.S.A. 18A:33-1 et seq. and N.J.A.C. 6:21-1.3. Gaffney petitioners' petition was filed with the Commissioner on October 7, 1991. The Board's answer was filed on October 15, 1991. The Commissioner transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law on October 7, 1991 for hearing and determination as a contested case in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

The matters were ordered consolidated by an administrative law judge on November 8, 1991. A motion by Potter petitioners for emergent relief by way of provision for busing until plenary hearing was denied by an administrative law judge on October 4, 1991 and affirmed by the Commissioner. A motion for similar relief by Gaffney petitioners was denied by an administrative law judge on October 9, 1991 and affirmed by the Commissioner on December 2, 1991.

On notice to the parties, the matter came on for prehearing conference in the Office of Administrative Law on April 13, 1992, and an order was entered establishing, inter alia, hearing dates on September 14 and 15, 1992, at the Office of Administrative Law. At issue in the case of Potter petitioners, under OAL Dkt. No. EDU 9054-91, it was determined, is whether the Board's measurement of remoteness under N.J.A.C. 6:21-1.3 along Jackson, Webster, Wheeler, crossing Hamburg Turnpike and Huberton is unlawful under N.J.S.A. 39:4-34 of the Motor Vehicle and Traffic Act and/or local ordinances and thus violative of petitioner's rights under N.J.S.A. 18A:33-1 ("convenience of access") and N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1.

In Gaffney petitioners, under OAL Dkt. No. EDU 9413-91, at issue is whether Board measurement of remoteness under N.J.A.C. 6:21-1.3 along Hamburg Turnpike is violative of petitioner's rights under N.J.S.A. 18A:33-1 ("convenience of access") and, if so, whether petitioners are entitled to be bussed under N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1.

The prehearing conference order was entered pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-13.1, which provides, inter alia, that any party may, upon written motion filed no later than five days after receiving prehearing order, request the order be amended to correct errors. N.J.A.C. 1:1-13.2(b). No corrective amendment was sought.

Before hearing, the Board then filed a motion for summary decision in its favor pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5, to which were annexed certifications of the Board secretary and a Board transportation supervisor, copies of advertised notices of Board meetings and changes of location, together with minutes of the Board's public work session on June 13, 1991. Rm. Theory of the motion, which was focussed on issues as narrowed by pre-hearing order, was that there remained in dispute no genuine, material triable issue of fact and that the Board's decision to abandon courtesy busing in the district for students within two miles of the school house should be tested accordingly and vindicated under long-standing authority of such Commissioner's decisions as Melick v. Board of Ed. of Lopatcong, 1985 S.L.D. -- (Comm. Ed. December 4, 1985). Petitioners' opposing papers, which consisted of their letter memorandum of law filed on September 1, 1992, contained no certifications or affidavits ostensibly challenging factual matters presented by the Board, as otherwise required under N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b), which provides:

> . . . when a motion for summary decision is made and supported, an adverse party in order to prevail must by responding affidavit set forth specific facts showing that there is a genuine issue that can only be determined in an evidentiary proceeding. If the adverse party does not so respond, a summary decision, if appropriate, shall be entered.

I

In argument on September 14, 1992, the Board conceded for purpose of the motion that it was required to assume the relative danger of the public roadway measurement route. It relied on the proposition that "students have no legal entitlement to district-provided transportation because of roadway danger, and any determination on the part of the Board to offer such service is clearly subject to that body's continuing discretion," as the Commissioner declared when he affirmed denial of emergent relief to Gaffney petitioners on December 2, 1991.

The Board argued there was no dispute that all petitioners resided less than two miles from the school house and thus were within the two-mile distance measurement of N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1. It argued that N.J.S.A. 18A:33-1, which requires each school district to provide "convenience of access" to school buildings, has been construed and interpreted to give petitioners no relief, since the phrase means merely "remoteness" that in turn refers to distance measurement in N.J.S.A. 18A:33-1 and N.J.A.C. 6:21-1.3. Beggans v. Board of Ed. of West Orange, 74 S.L.D. 829, 839; Trossman v. Board of Ed., Highland Park, 69 S.L.D. 61, 63; and Schrenk v. Board of Ed., Ridgewood, 61 S.L.D. 185. Holdings have been consistent, it was said, that road conditions and traffic hazards do not warrant a conclusion that a school does not have "convenience of access." Responsibility for safe roadways does not lie with the Board; it is well settled that safety conditions of roadways are a municipal and not educational concern. C.R.C. and G.M.C. v. Bd. of Ed. of Oxford, 85 S.L.D. -- (Comm. Ed. Sept. 9, 1985); Centofanti v. Bd. of Ed. of Wall, 75 S.L.D. 513. The amendment of N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1 by the Quality Education Act of 1990, L. 1990, c. 50, § 50, which omitted the words "remote from any schoolhouse," did not alter methodology of distance measurement of N.J.A.C. 6:21-1.3. The Act emphasized that cost of busing "other pupils" (courtesy or non-remote busing) would not qualify for State aid. N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1.1 and N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-18.

II

Petitioners argued that Board action by which courtesy busing was abolished in the district on June 13, 1991 was void for non-compliance with the Open Public Meeting Act, N.J.S.A. 10:4-6 et seq. Specifically, it was urged, place of the meeting was changed without proper notice to the public from a conference room in the administration building to the middle school library at Schuyler Colfax Middle School, contrary to provisions of N.J.S.A. 10:4-9(a) and N.J.S.A. 10:4-8(d). Petitioners argued that performance of a statutory obligation to give adequate notice to the public cannot be merely "substantially performed." Such mandate must be fully and literally obeyed or public action taken at meetings not in compliance therewith is void, citing Pollillo v. Deane, 74 N.J. 562, 577 (1977).

Because petitioners had not briefed the question before motion hearing nor furnished supporting certifications of fact, the administrative law judge on September 15, 1992 ordered the record on motion reopened for the limited purpose, only, of requiring the Board to supplement the record with certifications from the Board secretary of notices, advertisements, agenda and minutes of Board meetings. Such supplements were filed on September 30, 1992 in the form of an affidavit from the Board secretary/business administrator, together with minutes of Board meetings of June 13, 1992, June 27, 1991 and August 29, 1991. Petitioners' response consisted of an affidavit by one of the petitioners that did not address regularity of conduct of the meetings in reference to the Open Public Meetings Act. It is not considered here since it exceeded scope of the reopening inquiry as well as that of the pre-hearing order.

FINDINGS OF FACT

The Open Public Meetings Act requires that public bodies establish schedules of regular meetings of the public body to be held during the succeeding year. Notices must be posted and maintained throughout the year in at least one public place. Notices must be mailed to officially designated newspapers and they must be submitted to appropriate municipal offices. N.J.S.A. 10.4-18. There is no agenda requirement for regular meetings. Agendas are only required for special meetings. N.J.S.A. 10:4-8(d).

From review of unchallenged documentary evidence concerning scheduled meetings and compliance with the Open Public Meetings Act, I make the following FINDINGS OF FACT:

1. At a first organizational meeting in 1990, the Board of Education caused to be printed in the Record, a newspaper published and printed in Hackensack, Bergen County, a list of all future scheduled special and regular meetings of the Board for the balance of 1990 and the first six months of 1991. Publication of advertisement was attested by affidavit of an accounting clerk for the publication on May 9, 1990. One of the scheduled meetings was an executive session/executive meeting for 8 p.m. on June 13, 1991 in the administration building conference room.

2. On June 13, 1991 the same publication contained advertisement giving notice of change of location of meeting to Schuyler Colfax Middle School library. Notification to the newspaper was requisitioned 48 hours earlier on June 11, 1991.

3. In addition, notice was posted prominently on the Board of Education bulletin board on June 7, 1991. Copies of the notice were mailed on June 7, 1991 to two newspapers, according to the Board secretary/business administrator, the Record and the Independent News. In addition, a copy of the notice was filed with the municipal clerk by mail on May 23, 1991.

4. Advertisement of notices was thus in compliance with N.J.S.A. 10:4-8(d), 9.

5. The Board acted to eliminate safety or courtesy busing at the meeting of June 13, 1991. Rm-1, exh. E at 5.

6. Notice for a special meeting on June 27, 1991 was legally sufficient under N.J.S.A. 10:4-8(d), since notice was posted prominently on the Board bulletin board on September 21, 1990; and since two copies of the notice were mailed on September 21, 1990 to two newspapers, the Record and the Independent News. A copy of the notice was mailed with the municipal clerk on September 21, 1990. There was no discussion of courtesy busing by or before the Board at the meeting.

7. Notice for a regular meeting on August 29, 1991 was legally sufficient under N.J.S.A. 10:4-8(d), since notice was posted prominently on the Board bulletin board on May 28, 1991 and copies of the notice were mailed on that date to two newspapers, the Record and the Independent News. A copy of the notice was mailed to the municipal clerk on May 28, 1991. Citizens including a petitioner and petitioners' attorney addressed the Board on "deletion of courtesy busing." Rm-2, exh. C at 25-26.

CONCLUSION

From all of the above, I CONCLUDE that there have been demonstrated no genuine, material triable issues of fact that remain in the case. The Board's motion for summary decision, therefore, is ripe for determination under N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5. Because the law is clear that petitioners live within two miles of their children's school, they are not entitled to busing under N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1 and N.J.A.C. 6:21-1.3 even if roadway danger be assumed. I FIND no substantial or actual non-compliance by the Board with notice provisions of the Open Public Meetings Act for the Board meeting of June 13, 1991 when it resolved to rescind its policy of courtesy busing or on subsequent meetings of June 27, 1991 and August 29, 1991.

Summary judgment in favor of the Board dismissing the consolidated petitions is hereby ENTERED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 West State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

The record and initial decision rendered by the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Petitioners' request for an extension of time within which to file exceptions was not received within the period specified by N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.8(b) and, although forthright reasons were given for the delay, they did not rise to the level of emergency or other unforeseeable circumstance within the meaning of the regulation to justify a waiver. Accordingly, the Commissioner has not permitted late filing of exceptions in this instance.

Upon a careful and independent review of this matter, the Commissioner is in complete agreement with the Administrative Law

Judge's findings and conclusions and grant of summary decision to the Board. As recognized by the ALJ, the law is clear that the petitioners, who live within two miles of their children's school, are not entitled to busing under N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1 and N.J.A.C. 6:21-1.3. The law is also clear that this conclusion is not altered by the existence of roadway danger since safety conditions of roadways are the responsibility of the municipality not the Board.

The Commissioner also agrees that the record in this matter does not support petitioners' allegations of the Board's noncompliance with notice provisions of the Open Public Meetings Act for the Board meetings of June 13, 1991, June 27, 1991 or August 29, 1991.

Accordingly, the recommended decision of the Administrative Law Judge granting the Board's Motion for Summary Decision and dismissing the consolidated Petitions of Appeal with prejudice is adopted as the final decision in this matter for the reasons expressed therein.

Decided by the School Ethics Commission, January 27, 1993

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, February 9, 1993

For the Petitioner-Respondent, William C. Brown, Deputy Attorney General (Robert J. Del Tufo, Attorney General)

For the Respondent-Appellant, Glickman & Bassetti (Robert P. Glickman, Esq., of Counsel)

This is an appeal from two separate decisions rendered by the School Ethics Commission and by the Commissioner of Education. Both Commission decisions find that Appellant failed to comply with

MAR. 3, 1993

N.J.S.A. 18A:12-25c in that he did not file the required disclosure forms, either with respect to the Little Falls Board of Education or the Passaic County Regional High School Board. In both cases, the Commission recommended that Appellant be suspended from Board membership from the date of the Commissioner's decision, and by operation of law, he be automatically removed 20 days thereafter if he failed to file the forms.

In each case, the Commissioner concurred and adopted the "decision of the School Ethics Commission" and concurred with and "adopted as her own the recommendations of the Commission." She therefore ordered that "should the board member so suspended fail to properly file said statutorily required disclosure statements within 20 days...," automatic removal from office shall occur as recommended by the Commission."

Appellant has appealed to the State Board from the decisions in both cases and has filed an application for emergent relief, seeking to stay the Commissioner's determinations of the penalties pending our decision on the merits of the underlying appeal.

Initially, we direct consolidation of these cases so that we may consider and decide them together.

The only aspect to be decided today is Appellant's application for emergent relief. After considering the arguments of counsel, we deny that relief on the grounds that Appellant has failed to meet the standards for emergent relief specified by Crowe v. DeGoia, 90 N.J. 126, 132-34 (1982), in that he has not demonstrated a likelihood that he will succeed on the merits of his appeal.

Petitioning parent alleged improper change of designated bus stop. Petitioner contended Board had relocated a long-established bus stop from a "safe" location to an inherently dangerous one.

ALJ found petitioner failed to demonstrate Board acted improperly. Board acted within its legal authority to set up new route. ALJ found Commissioner has consistently held that local boards of education are not authorized by law to ensure safety conditions of roadways. Such authority has been vested in local, county or state governments. Petition was dismissed.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision. Commissioner did note the mention of petitioner's son as being perceptually impaired and that transportation for students with educational disabilities may be a matter for consideration as part of Individualized Education Program (IEP) under N.J.A.C. 6:28.

BEFORE LILLARD E. LAW, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner is the parent of a twelve year old child who attends school operated by the Board of Education of the Township of Barnegat (Board). Petitioner alleges that in the past, the Board allowed its school bus to pick up and discharge his children in front of petitioner's house. Petitioner alleges further that the Board has changed the designated bus stop to a location on Ocean County Road 554 which is a 50 mile per hour (mph) truck route with narrow shoulders, no sidewalks, at the bottom of a grade, with poor visibility and insufficient stopping distance.

The Board denies petitioners allegations and sets forth thirteen (13) affirmative defenses together with the demand for judgment dismissing the instant matter.

The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. Subsequent to a prehearing conference, the Board propounded a Motion for Summary Decision and Dismissal with supporting Brief and exhibits. Petitioner opposes the Board's motion.

BACKGROUND FACTS

The following facts are neither contested nor in dispute. Moreover, respondents stipulate to these background facts:

> Commencing with the 1991/1992 school year, petitioner's 12 year old son, who is perceptually impaired and assigned a bus stop located on County Road 554 and Old Brookville Road, Barnegat, New Jersey. County Road 554 is a 50 mile-per-hour truck route with narrow shoulders and no sidewalks. The bus stop assigned to petitioner's son is located at the bottom of a grade with poor visibility and insufficient stopping distance.
> For the two years prior to the 1991/1992 school year, petitioner's son resided in California with his mother. For the 16 years prior to the child's move to California, the three Peary children had been picked up by Barnegat Township school busses in front of their home on Old Brookville Road. When petitioner's son returned from California, the stop in front of his home was not re-established. His siblings have finished school.
>
> During the first week of the 1991/1992 school year, petitioner contacted the respondents requesting that the former stop in front of the Peary resident be re-established, as the current stop is unsafe. This request was denied, several reasons being given as to why a stop on Old Brookville Road could not be established. These reasons included: 1) a borough ordinance prohibited busses from using Old Brookville Road; 2) that the condition and width of the road prohibited busses from using it; and 3) that time prohibited the bus from detouring down Old Brookville Road.
> Respondent Robert Horbelt instructed petitioner to request from the Barnegat Township Police Department a survey of Old Brookville Road to determine if the current bus stop was safe. After being informed that the Barnegat Township Police Department did not have anyone qualified to do such a survey, Patrolman Michael Duffy was dispatched to inspect the location. By letter dated October 1, 1991, Patrolman Duffy forwarded his findings to Chief Edward J. Smith.
> On March 31, 1992, petitioner filed the within petition with the office of the Commissioner of Education seeking to have the stop in front of the Peary resident on Old Brookville Road re-established. Respondents filed an answer on or about April 15, 1992.

For the 1992/1993 school year, petitioner enrolled his son in the Ocean Township School District. Ocean Township busses, without inconvenience or trouble, picked up petitioner's son in front of his home on Old Brookville Road. Petitioner, whose property is located in both Ocean Township and Barnegat Township, was notified by the Superintendent of the Ocean Township School District, E. Steven Seeley, that his son was no longer eligible to attend Ocean Township Schools as he is a resident of Barnegat Township. The child has subsequently been re-enrolled at the Brackman School and the stop on Route 554 has been re-established. Petitioner accompanies his son to the bus stop each day and picks him up. This is a hardship on petitioner as this interferes with his work.

RESPONDENTS' LEGAL ARGUMENT

The Herein Matter Should be Dismissed as a Matter of Law
As No Genuine Issue of Material
Fact Exists, Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5

Respondents stipulates to all factual assertions made by petitioner is his Complaint and attachments for the purpose of the Motion for Summary Decision. The single assertion of merit in petitioner's Complaint is that the intersection in question on County Road 554 and Old Brookville Road is inherently dangerous. Relevant however to petitioner's assertion is Exhibit C2 of petitioner's own Complaint wherein Patrolman Michael J. Duffy of the Barnegat Township Police Department reports to Chief Edward J. Smith on October 1, 1991 that "as far as the stop at Route 554 and Old Brookville is concerned, it does not seem a hardship for a twelve year old boy to walk to the stop unless it was during hours of limited visibility." With respect to the report of George Pierro, of GPI Investigative Services, retained by petitioner which report is marked Exhibit J, respondents stipulates same and asserts that the conclusions reached by Mr. Pierro are not substantiated by the factual basis contained in his report.

Each local board of education is authorized to establish school bus transportation for its pupils when in its judgment it determines to do so. N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1. In instances where pupils live remote from the school house, boards of education are required to provide such pupils with transportation to and from school. The New Jersey State Board of Education defines the term "remote from the school house" at N.J.A.C. 6:21-1.3(a).

It has been consistently held that while parental concern for the safety of their children to and from the school is understandable, the legal responsibility for the removal of traffic safety hazards does not rest with the local board of education. The Commissioner has on many occasions expressed his concern for conditions affecting the safety of pupils in route to and from school in Schrenk vs. Board of Education of Ridgewood, 1960-61 S.L.D. 185, the Commissioner stated:

> "The provision for safe conditions of travel is a municipal function. A board of education is limited to educational functions. It can provide instruction in safety in order to inculcate habits of safety. It is not within its authority to enforce traffic laws, to provide sidewalks, traffic lights, crossing guards, police patrols, overpasses, etc., to meet the requirements of safe travel to school children." at p. 187.

Other decisions of the Commissioner over the years have produced no elements which would influence him to a contrary judgment. They include Read, et al v. Board of Education of Roxbury Township, 1938 S.L.D. 763 (1927); Iden, et al v. Board of Education of West Orange, 1959-60 S.L.D. 96; Frank v. Board of Education of Englewood Cliffs, 1963 S.L.D. 229; Livingston v. Bernards Township Board of Education, 1965 S.L.D. 29; Trossman, et al. v. Board of Education of Hyland Park, 1969 S.L.D. 61; Locker, et al v. Board of Education of the Township of Monroe, 1969 S.L.D. 178; Tolliver, et al v. Board of Education of the Borough of Metuchen, 1970 S.L.D. 415; Bocco v. Board of Education of the City of Camden, 1971 S.L.D. 71; Concerned Parents of Howell Township School Children v. Howell Township Board of Education, 1972 S.L.D. 600; Beggans, et al v. Board of Education of the Township of West Orange, 1974 S.L.D. 829; affirmed State Board of Education, February 5, 1975. Centofanti, et al v. Board of Education of the Township of Wall, Monmouth County, 1975 S.L.D. 513.

The Commissioner has stated:

> "local boards of education are not designated by statute to provide for the safety of children reaching school, inasmuch as traffic hazards are a local responsibility....the Commissioner must once again point out that local boards of education have the statutory authority to establish rules and regulations for the day to day management and operation. Accordingly, having found no basis to intervene in the actions taken by the board in the instant matter, the Petition of Appeal is hereby dismissed." Id. at page 518.

Further, when boards act within their statutory authority and discretionary authority pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:11-1, 39-1 and N.J.A.C. 6:21-1.3, the Commissioner has stated the principle enunciated in Boult and Harris v. Passaic, 1939-49 S.L.D. 7, affirmed State Board of Education 15, 135 N.J.L. 329 (Sup. Ct. 1947), aff'd 136 N.J.L. 521 (E.&A. 1948) as follows:

> "It is not a proper exercise of a judicial function for the Commissioner to interfere with local boards in the management of their schools unless they violate the law, act in bad faith (meaning acting dishonestly), or abuse their discretion in a shocking manner. Furthermore, it is not the function of the Commissioner in a judicial decision to substitute his judgment for that of the boards members on matters which are by statute delegated to the local boards." (at p.13).

Consistent with the case at bar is the matter of Walters, et al v. Board of Education of the Township of Mendham, Morris County, 1977 S.L.D. 854 wherein parents of pupils who attended school alleged the route their children must follow to reach the board's designated bus stop was hazardous. The board denied petitioner's allegations asserting that it met its obligation. The board filed Motion for Summary Judgment which was denied by the hearing examiner and discovery procedures took place. After discovery, the Commissioner held the matter ripe for Summary Judgment in that the facts were not in dispute. Those facts were very similar to the case at bar. Petitioners' children live remote from school and were entitled to bus transportation. The children walked two-tenths of a mile to a designated bus stop. Petitioners' alleged they must traverse Old Brookside Road to reach their bus stop and that it is extremely hazardous in that there were no sidewalks, sharp curves, narrow road, no shoulders, 35 m.p.h. speed limit, and a heavy flow of traffic during the hours in question. Petitioners alleged the board's failure to grant their request or a change in the bus stop by picking up the children at their respective driveways is arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable. The Commissioner cited the same series of cases herein, although boards must provide for the transportation of pupils who live removed from school, the board may in good faith evaluate conditions in various areas in the school district with regard to establishing bus stops. In that decision the Commissioner held:

> "When a local board of education has so acted, the Commissioner may not substitute his judgment for that board in the absence of evidence of discrimination or of evidence that the board's policy is arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. There is no such evidence herein. Accordingly, the Commissioner will not intervene." (Id. at page 857).

The Walters decision also included letters in evidence submitted by the Chief of Police, letters showing the Superintendent's disposition and discussions reflected in the board's minutes as in the case at bar. (Id. at page 857).

For the foregoing reasons, it is respectfully submitted that no genuine issue of material fact exists and petitioner's claim should be summarily decided as a matter of law in favor of respondents.

Petitioner's Legal Arguments

Respondents' Motion Must be Denied as a Genuine Issue of Material Fact Does Exist

Respondents states that the only issue of merit contained in petitioner's petition is that the bus stop established on County Road 554 is inherently dangerous. Respondents refers to the report of Patrolman Michael Duffy of the Barnegat Township Police Department as proof otherwise. This report was drafted in response to a request by petitioner, at the direction of respondent Robert Horbelt, that a survey of Old Brookville Road be conducted to determine if the road was safe for busses to travel. Petitioner was informed that, at the time, there was no one qualified in the Barnegat Township Police Department to make such a survey. Patrolman Duffy, however, was assigned to conduct such a survey.

Patrolman Duffy states in his report that Old Brookville Road "is very narrow (15') and poorly graded. Both berms are heavily wooded." However, walking the 2/10ths of a mile from the Peary home to the bus stop on Route 554, according to Patrolman Duffy, should not be "a hardship for a 12 year old boy . . . unless it was during hours of limited visibility."

The issue here is not whether the distance is a hardship, but that the walk itself and the location of the bus stop are hazardous.

In comparing Patrolman Duffy's analysis concerning the bus stop on Route 554 with his analysis of the bus stop located on Burr Street, which is contained on the same report, it is interesting to note the inconsistencies between the final results. Both stops are characterized as being inherently dangerous due to various factors, including, but not limited to heavy traffic, tree lines close to the edge of the roadway, no shoulder, no sidewalks, and the roadway is on a grade. Patrolman Duffy, however, considers the Burr Street stop to be unsafe and the Old Brookville Road and Route 554 stop to be safe.

In comparing Patrolman Duffy's report with the investigative report of George Pierro, it is clear that the stop on Route 554 is dangerous. Both reports state the same conditions as to the characteristics of Old Brookville Road. Additionally, Mr. Pierro points out that there is little to no safe room for petitioner's son to walk on Old Brookville Road which would keep him out of the line of traffic. Petitioner's son must, on at least one occasion daily, walk across Route 554. There are no crosswalks, signs or crossing guards to warn oncoming motorist of a school bus stop. There is a blind curve just north the Peary residence which obscures traffic to a pedestrian, and a pedestrian from traffic. These factors were not considered by Patrolman Duffy. His entire analysis of the safety of the stop on Route 554 does not consider all the necessary facts, and, therefore, cannot be considered as conclusive. Mr. Pierro, a qualified expert in accident reconstruction, considers the necessary factual information into his analysis and report. Petitioner, therefore asserts that the report by Patrolman Duffy, and the conclusions contained therein, are not substantiated by all of the relevant facts.

Respondents' argument regarding the removal of traffic safety hazards is moot and without merit. The Board relocated a previously existing, safe bus stop to an inherently dangerous location. Petitioner is not asking the Board to make the location safe, but to simply re-establish the bus stop at the previously used safe location in front of the Peary resident on Old Brookville Road. That stop had previously existed for over 10 years. As petitioner's son is the only child picked up at the current bus stop, it would not cause any inconvenience to others if the stop was relocated to its original position.

Of additional relevance is a past policy established by the Board, whereby, for the safety of the children living on Brookville Road and Old Brookville Road, pupils attending the Barnegat Township Schools would be picked up in front of their homes. This policy was in effect from at least 1976. During the period from 1976 to 1987, the Peary children, along with the children of the Pinto family, who live on Brookville Road, were picked up and dropped off by Barnegat school busses in front of their homes. The children were never required to traverse either Old Brookville Road or Brookville Road to meet the bus, nor was a stop ever established on County Road 554.

In establishing the current bus stop, the Board did not provide an explanation to the petitioner for the arbitrary decision to relocate the stop from its previous location. When questioned on the issue, respondent William Doty, the current Board Transportation Coordinator, stated that a bus stop never existed on Old Brookville Road. According to Peter De Felica, Jr., the previous Board Transportation Coordinator, the issue of locating school bus stops on Old Brookville Road was specifically addressed and resolved when he began to work for the Board as a bus driver in 1976. During the 1976/1977 school year, Mr. De Felica was the school bus driver who was assigned the route which picked up the Peary children in front of their home on Old Brookville Road. In fact, Mr. De Felica was contacted directly by petitioner on those dates when his children would not be attending school so as to eliminate the need to stop on Old Brookville Road.

Respondents cite numerous cases in which the Commissioner of Education has held, since it is improper for the Commissioner to either interfere in local school board management unless the actions of the Board violate the law, are in bad faith, or are a shocking abuse of discretion, or to substitute his judgment for that of the local board in matters which are, by statute, delegated to local boards of education (see Boult and Harris v. Passaic, supra., that a school bus stop could not be changed. However, the majority of these cases do not specifically deal with the relocation of pre-existing school bus stops, but with whether children who are not considered as living remote from school, as defined in N.J.A.C. 6:21-1.3(a), are entitled to transportation when stops have been eliminated.

Of the two relevant cases cited by respondent, Livingston v. Bernards Township Board of Education, 1965 S.L.D. 29, and Centofani, et al. v. Board of Education of the Township of Wall, Monmouth County, 1975 S.L.D. 513, the relocation of the bus stop in Livingston, supra, was done at the request of the police as the school bus had to make a u-turn in the middle of a well traveled road after picking up and discharging petitioners' children. Such an action created a great risk of injury to an entire bus load of children.

In Centofani, supra, the Commissioner held that the Board had supplied sufficient notice and sufficient reason to petitioners for the relocation of the bus stop to a site on a local highway, and that the actions of the Board were not arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable.

Respondents also cite Walters, et al. v. Board of Education of the Township of Mendham, Morris County, 1977 S.L.D. 854, as grounds for dismissal of the within petitioner. In Walters, petitioners sought to have a bus stop relocated on the grounds that the existing stop was inherently dangerous. The facts in Walters were very similar to the facts in the within matter. The Commissioner held that the actions of the Board were not arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable.

The major, significant difference between Walters and the within matter is that, in Walters, the bus stop that was being sought to be changed was a previously existing bus stop. The stop had not been relocated to an inherently dangerous location by the Board of Education of the Township of Mendham.

In the within matter, the Board relocated a long established bus stop from a safe location to an inherently dangerous location without reason, without informing petitioner of the change, or without permitting petitioner to address the matter before the Board implemented such change. When such a request was made by petitioner, he was informed that there was no possible way that a school bus could pick up his child in front of his home, and respondents began to give lame, and untrue, reasons for such. Included in the excuses were such reasons as a municipal ordinance prohibited such use of Old Brookville Road. Petitioner was supplied with the first page of Barnegat Township Municipal Ordinance § 71-7.2. The paragraph contained on that page addressed the streets on which trucks were prohibited. At no place was it stated that school busses could not use Old Brookville Road. Petitioner later acquired the remaining paragraphs of the ordinance. Under paragraph 2, the issue of busses is addressed. Of importance is the exclusion of school busses from the provisions of Barnegat Township Municipal Ordinance §71-7.2.

Another reason supplied to petitioner for why his son could not be picked up in front of his home was the width and condition of Old Brookville Road. Petitioner was told that the road was not wide enough and the surfacing was in such poor condition that it was unsafe for a school bus to travel down the road. However, Ocean Township Schools send four busses down Old Brookville Road daily. The Board further claimed that, since the road was located in both Barnegat Township and Ocean Township, Barnegat schools would have to obtain special permission from Ocean Township to use the roadway. If Ocean Township is sending four busses down the road daily, it is apparent that the roadway can handle school bus traffic and obtaining the claimed necessary permission to use the roadway for such would be possible. As such, each reason presented to petitioner is unfounded and without merit.

As per the Commissioner's decision in Boult and Harris v. Passaic, supra, at 13, and Walters, et al. v. Board of Education of the Township of Mendham, Morris County, supra, at 875, the Commissioner can intervene and substitute his judgment for that of a local school board when the Board's actions either violate the law, are in bad faith (meaning acting dishonestly), are an abuse of discretion, or are arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable.

In Livingston v. Bernards Township Board of Education, supra, the Commissioner, citing Hager v. Weber, 7 N.J. 201, 214 (1951), stated "Abuse of discretion has been defined to mean 'that the * * * ruling went far enough from the mark to become reversible error.'" In the within matter, that actions of the Barnegat Township Board of Education can be characterized as an abuse of discretion. There existed a viable, safe, and pre-established means by which to pick up and discharge petitioner's son, however, without a logical or rational, much less any explanation, the stop was relocated to an inherently dangerous location. Such an action could be considered reckless endangerment, due to the characteristics of the roadway and stop, as there is a foreseeable risk of injury to petitioner's son by causing him to cross and stand along side a heavily traveled truck route which has no sidewalks, shoulders or other safeguards to protect him.

The actions of the respondents cannot be characterized as anything but arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable, in bad faith and an abuse of discretion. Under the Commissioner's decision in Walters, supra, the decision of the Board to relocated the bus stop on County Road 554 must be overturned and the safe stop in front of the Peary residence on Old Brookville Road must be re-established.

To relocate the bus stop in front of the Peary home would cause no hardship or inconvenience to Barnegat Township. Conversely, having petitioner's son picked up and discharged on Route 554 places him in danger and causes a hardship on Mr. Peary who must accompany his son daily to the bus stop resulting in a loss in his working hours.

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

The Board's motion to dismiss the herein matter on the grounds of mootness is denied. Although the record demonstrates that petitioner attempted to change his son's school attendance from the Board's school district to Ocean Township School District because petitioner's property lies within both jurisdictions, that attempt failed and petitioner's son has been excluded from the Ocean Township schools. As a consequence of petitioners son's re-enrollment in the Board's schools, the matter may not be dismissed on the grounds of mootness for that reason. Accordingly, the Board's Motion to Dismiss on the basis of mootness is DENIED.

For the purpose of its Motion for Summary Decision. The Board and respondents stipulate to all factual assertions made by petitioners in his complaint before Superior Court of New Jersey, Chancery Division, and which the Court transferred jurisdiction to the Commissioner. Respondents incorporate in their stipulation all exhibits and attachments to petitioner's complaint which forms the basis of his herein claim.

Petitioner's son lives remote from the schoolhouse, therefore, is entitled to school bus transportation provided by the Board. N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1, N.J.A.C. 6:21-1.3(a). The Board is required to adopt policies and procedures governing the transportation of its pupils to and from school and school related services. N.J.A.C. 6:21-3.1(b). The Board has wide discretionary authority to promulgate pupil transportation policies so long as it operates within the law, does not act in bad faith or dishonestly, nor abuse its discretion in a shocking manner. Boult and Harris, supra.

Petitioner disagrees that the only issue to be determined is whether the bus stop for petitioner's son is inherently dangerous. Petitioner contends the "issue here is not whether this distance is a hardship, but that the walk itself and the location of the bus stop are hazardous." This, in my considered judgment, is a distinction without a difference. The issue is "whether the school bus stop for petitioner's son is inherently dangerous and, whether the Board is responsible to cure or remedy the danger?"

In the final analysis, this is a case wherein petitioner seeks to have the Board change its existing pupil bus route to overcome an alleged hazardous condition or, in the alternative, to convenience petitioner. As the Board observes, the Commissioner has consistently held that local boards of education are not authorized by law to provide for the safety of children in reaching the schoolhouse. Such authority lies with the local, county or state governments. See, Walters, supra. citing Read et al. v. Bd. of Education of the Twp. of Roxbury, 1938 S.L.D. 763 (1927). Thus, the Board's pupil transportation policy with regard to petitioner's son must stand unlesss the policy was enacted in bad faith or the Board abused its discretionary authority in a shocking manner.

I CONCLUDE that petitoner has failed to affirmatively demonstrate that the Board acted in an arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable matter or that it demonstrated bad faith or an abuse of its discretion.

I CONCLUDE that the Board operated within its legal authority in setting the pupil transportation pick-up and discharge locations for petitioner's son.

I CONCLUDE, therefore, that the Board's motion of Summary Decision must be GRANTED.

ORDER

Accordingly, it is ORDERED that the Board's Motion for Summary Decision is GRANTED and petitioner's appeal is DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 West State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF BARNEGAT, ROBERT L. HORNBELT, SUPERINTENDENT OF SCHOOLS AND WILLIAM DOTY, TRANSPORTATION COORDINATOR, OCEAN COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENTS.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions and respondent Board's replies thereto were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Petitioner's exceptions consisted of three certifications, his own and those of two other individuals. The major portion of petitioner's certification contains allegations regarding the performance of individual bus drivers in specific instances which are deemed irrelevant to the matter at hand, and other material which was fully and fairly considered by the ALJ in formulating his decision. The remaining portion of this certification and the other two certifications submitted present evidence which appears for the first time as exceptions. Since this material was submitted beyond the date that the record closed, the Commissioner will not consider it in making her determination.

Upon careful and independent review of this matter, the Commissioner is in agreement with the ALJ's findings and conclusions and grant of summary decision to the Board. As recognized by the ALJ, the law provides local school boards with wide discretionary authority to promulgate pupil transportation policies. When a board has acted within its lawful authority, the Commissioner will not substitute her judgment for the board's unless there is evidence of discrimination or it is demonstrated that the board's policy is arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable. The Commissioner finds that the record in the instant matter does not support such a determination.

Additionally, the law is also clear that this conclusion is not altered by the existence of roadway danger. Authority to ensure safety conditions of roadways has been vested in local, county or state governments and is not within the purview of local school boards.

As a final point, it bears noting that the background facts of the initial decision made a one line reference to petitioner's son as "perceptually impaired." It should be observed that transportation for students with educational disabilities is a matter for consideration as part of an Individualized Education Program (IEP) under the related service area of N.J.A.C. 6:28. Therefore, this decision does not preclude this issue from being raised as an IEP issue if warranted.

Accordingly, the recommended decision of the Administrative Law Judge granting the Board's Motion for Summary Decision and dismissing the Petition of Appeal with prejudice is adopted as the final decision in this matter for the reasons expressed therein.

DECISION ON MOTION

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, January 26, 1993

For the Petitioner-Appellant, Roeber & Stonehill (Roberta L. Stonehill, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Respondent, Masch, Visotcky, Cere, Fice & Carr (Paul J. Carr, Esq., of Counsel)

Appellants in this matter are appealing a decision of the Commissioner of Education which, adopting the Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) determination, found that Appellants had failed to demonstrate that the Board's action in denying their request to change a school bus stop was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable, or that it showed bad faith or abuse of discretion.

Appellants seek to supplement the record with affidavits relating to the Board's compliance in prior years with requests from others to move the stop. In that this information is material to Appellants' claim that the Board's refusal to do so in their case was arbitrary and capricious, we grant their motion to supplement the record.

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, January 26, 1993

Decision on motion by the State Board of Education, May 5, 1993

For the Respondents-Respondents, March, Visotcky, Cerefice & Carr (Paul J. Carr, Esq., of Counsel)

The facts herein are not in dispute. Petitioner's 12-year-old son, who attended school in the Barnegat Township school district, was assigned a school bus stop on County Road 554 in September 1991 following his return from living with his mother in California for two years. Prior to his son's move to California, petitioner's children attending the Barnegat public schools had always been picked up by the bus in front of their home on Old Brookville Road since they began attending such schools in 1976.

Petitioner requested that the former stop in front of his home be reestablished, contending that the assigned bus stop on

Oct. 6, 1993

County Road 554, a 50-mile-per-hour truck route with narrow shoulders and no sidewalk, was unsafe. The Board denied the request.

Petitioner challenged the Board's action in a petition filed with the Commissioner of Education on March 31, 1992, requesting that the bus stop be relocated to its former location on Old Brookville Road.

At the beginning of the 1992-93 school year, petitioner, whose property is located in both Ocean and Barnegat Townships, enrolled his son in the Ocean Township school district. During that time, the Ocean Township school buses picked up and discharged his son in front of their home on Old Brookville Road. Petitioner's son was subsequently reenrolled in Barnegat when the Ocean Township Superintendent determined that he was actually domiciled in Barnegat. The bus stop on County Road 554 was then reestablished by the Board.

The Board moved for summary decision, and on December 8, 1992, the Administrative Law Judge ("ALJ") recommended granting the Board's motion. Stating the issue as "whether the school bus stop for petitioner's son is inherently dangerous and, whether the Board is responsible to cure or remedy the danger," initial decision, slip op. at 11, the ALJ, noting that the authority to provide for the safety of children in getting to and from school lies with local, county and state governments and not local boards of education, concluded that petitioner had failed to demonstrate that the Board had acted in an arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable manner or had shown bad faith or abuse of discretion.

On January 26, 1993, the Commissioner adopted the ALJ's findings and conclusions and dismissed the petition. The Commissioner, also stressing that the authority to ensure safety conditions of roads is not within the purview of local school boards, agreed that petitioner had not demonstrated discrimination or shown that the Board's action was arbitrary or capricious. She added, however, that her decision did not preclude consideration of an Individualized Education Program for petitioner's son, who was classified as perceptually impaired.

Petitioner filed the instant appeal to the State Board of Education, along with a motion to supplement the record with affidavits relating to the Board's grant in prior years of other requests to relocate bus stops. On May 5, 1993, the State Board granted petitioner's motion to supplement, finding the information in the affidavits material to petitioner's claim that the Board's action was arbitrary and capricious.

After a thorough review of the record, including the supplemental affidavits filed by petitioner, we reverse the decision of the Commissioner.

Although district boards have wide discretion to promulgate pupil transportation policies, including school bus routes and stops, they may not discriminate or act in a manner that is arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. Our review of the Board's action herein is not limited to the relative safety of the school bus stop on County Road 554 or the Board's jurisdiction over safety conditions of sidewalks and roadways within the Township. Rather, the broader issue is whether the Board abused its discretion in denying petitioner's request to reestablish the former bus stop on Old Brookville Road in this particular case.

Under the particular circumstances in the record before us, we conclude that the Board's conduct in this regard was arbitrary and capricious. We find that the basis for the Board's action in refusing to reestablish the former bus stop on Old Brookville Road is not supported by the record.

As found by the ALJ and acknowledged by the Board, see Answer Brief, at 1, the Board predicated its denial of petitioner's request upon its contention that a local ordinance prohibited buses from using Old Brookville Road, that the condition and width of Old Brookville Road precluded buses from operating thereon, and that time constraints prevented the bus from using Old Brookville Road.

Our review, however, indicates that the ordinance cited by the Board, which prohibits trucks and buses over four tons from certain roads, does not bar buses from Old Brookville Road and, in any event, does not apply to buses that are picking up or discharging passengers on the prohibited roads. In addition, the ordinance expressly excludes school buses from its prohibition. Consequently, that ordinance does not in any way provide justification for the Board's action.[1]

The record also indicates that school buses routinely have picked up and discharged students on Old Brookville Road,

[1] We note that the provision of the ordinance dealing with buses was added on February 2, 1990, during the time in which petitioner's son was living in California and subsequent to the period in which the district's buses regularly stopped in front of petitioner's home on Old Brookville Road.

contradicting the Board's contention that its width and condition preclude such use. In fact, it is undisputed that petitioner's children attending school in Barnegat had been picked up in front of their home on Old Brookville Road on a regular basis since 1976. And there is no indication that the short drive down Old Brookville Road would in any way disrupt the district's bus schedule. Indeed, as established on the record, Barnegat's school buses have used this route regularly in the past.

Nor can we overlook the fact that the Board has granted similar requests from other parents. As indicated in the affidavits of another family living near petitioner in Barnegat, the Board had granted their requests every year to relocate their children's bus stop from County Road 554 to a location in front of their home.

Accordingly, we conclude that, under the circumstances, petitioner has demonstrated that the Board's action in refusing his request in this particular case to reestablish the bus stop on Old Brookville Road was arbitrary and capricious. We therefore reverse the decision of the Commissioner and direct the Board to relocate the bus stop for petitioner's son to its former location on Old Brookville Road.

In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Leonard Watson v. New Jersey State Department of Corrections	BEFORE THE COMMISSION OF EDUCATION OAL Docket No. EDU 08620-91S SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT

Petitioner New Jersey Department of Corrections ("DOC") and the Ocean Residential Group ("Ocean"), and Respondent Leonard Watson, desire to enter into the following settlement agreement in the public interest:

1. WHEREAS, Respondent, Leonard Watson, a tenured teacher with a certification for physical education, has been employed by the DOC as a Teacher Level II, twelve months since July 25, 1983; and

WHEREAS, on April 22, 1991, DOC advised Respondent that it was referring tenure charges to the Commissioner of Education ("Commissioner"), and in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9 et. seq. the following charges were specified: 1) violation of administrative procedures and/or regulations involving safety and security; 2) violation of a rule, regulation, policy, procedure order or administrative decision; 3) breach of security; and 4) unauthorized transportation of an inmate; and

4. WHEREAS, on August 8, 1991, the DOC filed written charges with the Commissioner requesting dismissal, reduction in salary of Respondent; and

5. WHEREAS, on September 5, 1991, Respondent filed his answer with the Department of Education Bureau of Controversies and Disputes; and

6. WHEREAS, Respondent has not been suspended; and

7. WHEREAS, Respondent is currently serving as a Teacher Level II at the Fresh Start Program in Farmingdale; and

8. WHEREAS, Respondent wishes to remain in the position of teaching physical education, and the DOC is eager for him to remain in such position; and

9. WHEREAS, said position will have no supervisory responsibilities of any paraprofessional staff; and

10. WHEREAS, tenure hearings were scheduled before administrative law Judge Joseph F. Fidler for July 13-16, 1992; and

IT IS THEREFORE AGREED that the DOC will withdraw the tenure charges against Respondent, subject to the approval of the Commissioner of Department of Education; and

IT IS FURTHER AGREED that DOC will allow Respondent to be based at the Fresh Start Program in Farmingdale as a tenure teacher Level II in physical education with no corresponding reduction in annual salary subject to approval of this settlement by the Commissioner of DOE; and

IT IS FURTHER AGREED that Respondent agrees to be based at the Fresh Start Program in Farmingdale as a tenured teacher Level II in physical education, after consultation with an attorney, subject to the approval of the settlement by the Commissioner of DOE; and

IT IS FURTHER AGREED that by this settlement, Respondent does not waive his rights, if he is subject to a reduction in force, to employment in any category he is entitled to by seniority; and

IT IS FURTHER AGREED that Respondent's personnel file will reflect the fact that tenure charges were filed and withdrawn in accordance with the terms of this settlement; and

IT IS FURTHER AGREED that the basis of this disciplinary action was due to Respondent's actions concerning the paraprofessionals at the Ocean Residential Group and there is a colorable issue as to whether Respondent received approval for his actions from his supervisors, and that by being based at the Fresh Start Program in Farmingdale, Respondent no longer performs any duties vis-a-vis the paraprofessional program at Ocean Residential Group, and that DOC agrees to move to dismiss the tenure charges against Respondent, subject to approval of this agreement by the Commission of DOE; and

IT IS FURTHER AGREED that this agreement, its contents and its terms do not constitute precedent of any kind to be used against the DOC; and

IT IS FURTHER AGREED that both parties waive the right to file exceptions and cross-exceptions; and

IT IS FURTHER AGREED that nothing in this settlement shall be deemed to be an admission of liability on behalf of either party.

HOWEVER, should the Commissioner of DOE or the State Board of Education refuse to approve any terms of the settlement, including the withdrawal of said tenure charges by DOC or by Respondent, any such refusal shall not interfere with the rights of either party to pursue the matter further.

THE REASONS FOR ENTERING INTO THIS AGREEMENT ARE AS FOLLOWS:

(a) The costs of continuing to prosecute the tenure claims against Respondent are expected to be substantial;

(b) In view of the fact that Respondent is based at the Fresh Start Program in Farmingdale and in this capacity does not perform any duties relative to the paraprofessional program at Ocean Residential Group;

(c) The charges did not involve abuse of students, inappropriate physical contact or any allegations of moral turpitude; and

(d) Both parties after consultation with counsel, fully endorse the agreement and are anxious to implement said terms.

Petitioning parent appealed NJSIAA's determination that his daughter, a 17-year-old high school senior, was ineligible to participate in athletic events during 1992-93 school year due to eight-semester rule (NJSIAA Bylaws, Article V, Section 4J), which prohibits participation in athletic events after the expiration of eight consecutive semesters following a student's entry into 9th grade. Petitioner contended his daughter's ineligibility was due to circumstances beyond her control since to retain her dual Belgian-American citizenship she was required to spend a six-month period of residence in Belgium prior to her 18th birthday. Due to family circumstances and other constraints, said stay became a year's stay in Belgium as a freshman and, thus, having spent two years as a freshman, on return to the United States, she was compelled to re-enter the system as a sophomore, thereby extending her high school career by one year.

After careful consideration of evidence and transcripts of Eligiblity Appeals Committee's deliberations, Commissioner upheld NJSIAA's decision. Commissioner found that NJSIAA's determination as to the essentially voluntary nature of petitioner's actions was reasonably based and reached after full and appropriate due process. (Koh and Kim) Thus, Commissioner had no authority to set it aside. Petition was dismissed.

DECISION

For Petitioner, Eugene Bradford, Pro Se

For Respondent, Michael J. Herbert, Esq. (Picco, Mack, Herbert, Kennedy, Jaffe and Yoskin)

This matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education on December 3, 1992 by the filing of a Petition of Appeal wherein petitioner disputed the decision of respondent (hereinafter "NJSIAA") to declare his daughter ineligible for participation in athletic events during the 1992-93 school year by reason of NJSIAA's so-called "eight-semester rule" (NJSIAA Bylaws, Article V, Section 4J), which prohibits such participation after the expiration of eight consecutive semesters following a student's entry into ninth grade.

An answer having been duly filed by NJSIAA, a briefing schedule was established and the record of proceedings before NJSIAA's Eligibility Committee and Eligibility Appeals Committee were submitted to the Commissioner together with NJSIAA's primary brief. Upon receipt of petitioner's responsive papers on December 18, 1992, the record of this matter was deemed closed.

PETITIONER'S ARGUMENT

Petitioner's daughter Michelle is a seventeen-year old senior at Rumson-Fair Haven High School who began there in 1988-89 as a younger than usual (thirteen-year old) freshman as a result of her early entry into elementary school in England. During 1989-90, she left the United States to attend school in Belgium, and upon her return in 1990-91, re-entered Rumson-Fair Haven as a sophomore, since she had spent her year in Belgium as a freshman and had transferred no credits back to Rumson-Fair Haven. She very successfully participated in interscholastic cross-country and track during 1990-91 and 1991-92, but did not play any sport during either her freshman year at Rumson-Fair Haven (1988-89) or her year of schooling in Belgium (1989-90).

Petitioner contends that his daughter's ineligibility under the eight-semester rule was due to circumstances beyond her control, in that in order for her to maintain the dual Belgian-American citizenship she enjoys by virtue of her parentage (her mother is a Belgian citizen notwithstanding eighteen years of residency in the United States) she was required to spend a six-month period of residency in Belgium prior to her eighteenth birthday. Upon Michelle's moving to Belgium for the 1989-90 school year, Belgian authorities determined that since instruction was entirely in Dutch, a language of which she had no knowledge, Michelle would not be able to adequately function at grade level and would have to enter school as a freshman rather than a sophomore even though she had already completed her freshman year in the United States. Thus, upon Michelle's return to Rumson-Fair Haven in 1990-91, she was compelled to re-enter the system as a sophomore, thereby extending her high school career by a year.

Petitioner further explains that Michelle could not, for practical purposes, limit her stay in Belgian to six months, as family circumstances permitted consideration of only a relatively small range of boarding schools, none of which would accept a student for less than a full year of attendance. Also, petitioner notes that the specific timing of Michelle's stay in Belgium was dictated by consideration of the age at which her parents felt she could reasonably handle such a situation and the availability of relatives to whom her care could be entrusted, and that the obligation imposed on Michelle by Belgium in order to maintain the citizenship that is hers by birthright should not be held against her by NJSIAA (petitioner likens this duty to that of military service, for which the eight-semester rule specifically provides a waiver).

He also contends that, since Michelle was young when she entered high school, she is now at age level for her grade; a circumstance which, together with the fact that she played no sports in either 1988-89 (her freshman year at Rumson-Fair Haven) or 1989-90 (her year in Belgium), places her on equal footing with her classmates and gives her no advantage whatsoever in terms of age or experience. Further, petitioner finds a manifest inconsistency and arbitrariness in NJSIAA's apparent willingness to accept an additional year of growth and development in a student prior to his or her initial enrollment in high school, but not after.

With respect to the conduct of NJSIAA proceedings in this matter, petitioner avers that off-record remarks to the effect that such proceedings were pointless because petitioner's actions were voluntary show that NJSIAA's position was set even before he and his daughter had a hearing. He further contends that a crucial error in NJSIAA's post-hearing communication with him (statements that Michelle repeated her sophomore year here after completing a sophomore year in Belgium) shows that NJSIAA did not understand a material fact underlying his claim of Michelle's school extension being beyond her control. He also opines that his failure to fully explicate the circumstances of Michelle's trip to Belgium in his initial letter to NJSIAA, which focused on the academic, athletic and career advantages of the family's decision rather than on the necessity for a period of residency to maintain Michelle's Belgian citizenship, was due to his ignorance of the criteria for judging an eligibility appeal and his desire to avoid airing sensitive family issues; and that this error on his part should not now prejudice Michelle's case before the Commissioner. Finally, petitioner posits Michelle's belief that she did not receive due process from a panel on which not a single woman was present.

RESPONDENT'S ARGUMENT

NJSIAA argues that its bylaws, duly approved by the Commissioner of Education and adopted by all participating districts, including Rumson-Fair Haven, are plain on their face and clearly provide that a student will be ineligible for varsity sports after expiration of eight consecutive semesters following entrance into ninth grade, with waivers granted, both according to interpretive guidelines and historically, only for circumstances beyond the control of the affected student(s). (NJSIAA Bylaws, Article V, Section 4J; Interpretive Guidelines, Section 5) NJSIAA further argues that it is now axiomatic that the Commissioner, even where he might decide otherwise in de novo review, will not substitute his judgment for that of NJSIAA where due process has been provided and there is a reasonable basis for NJSIAA's decision. Dam Jin Koh and Hong Jun Kim v. NJSIAA, 1987 S.L.D. 259

In the instant matter, NJSIAA contends, the case of petitioner's daughter was considered by the Eligibility Committee, which voted unanimously to deny petitioner's request after reviewing all available evidence. Petitioner was then given a full hearing before the Eligibility Appeals Committee, at which petitioner, his daughter and several school officials testified and produced further evidence in support of petitioner's request. Both committees concluded that, notwithstanding petitioner's laudable motives--and even granting arguendo petitioner's new contention at hearing that Michelle's travel was due not to potential personal advantage but to requirements for retaining Belgian citizenship--the decision to have Michelle spend a year abroad was essentially a voluntary one, so that she did not meet the established standard to qualify for a waiver from the eight-semester rule. As NJSIAA's determination was both reasonable and consistent with established rules and guidelines, in the absence of any compelling reason to overturn it, NJSIAA's decision must be sustained by the Commissioner.

COMMISSIONER'S DETERMINATION

Upon careful review and consideration, the Commissioner determines to uphold the decision of NJSIAA in this matter.

Initially, the Commissioner rejects petitioner's allegations regarding failings in the due process afforded him by NJSIAA, as the transcript of hearing before the Appeals Committee 1) evidences the panel's attempt to probe the citizenship question, newly raised at that time, as well as other related matters in a way that belies any claim that the Committee had pre-judged petitioner's case; 2) indicates that even at hearing, subsequent to the initial letter petitioner now seeks to repudiate and after the standard for judging an eligibility appeal was known to him (see, e.g., transcript at p. 89), petitioner and his daughter both spoke of reasons for their decision, and its timing, relating primarily to advantages in career advancement and social growth; and 3) shows no evidence whatsoever that sexism or gender factors were ever at play in any discussion or decision by the panel. Indeed, the transcript is clear that, after hearing all the testimony and reviewing all the evidence, the panel reasonably concluded that, however laudable petitioner's family choice may have been, it was fundamentally voluntary and therefore outside the scope of any waiver grantable under established rules.

The Commissioner further notes in this context that, while the letter informing Rumson-Fair Haven of NJSIAA's final decision in this matter did include the misstatement claimed by petitioner, it is clear from the transcript of the Committee's deliberations that any possible misunderstanding of Michelle's grade-level pattern played no role in the Committee's basic determination on the central issue in this matter, namely the voluntary nature of the decision to send Michelle abroad after she had entered high school. As that decision was reasonably based and reached after full and appropriate due process, the Commissioner has no authority to set it aside absent compelling reason to the contrary. Koh and Kim, supra

Petitioner does attempt to present such reasons in his somewhat fuller explanation to the Commissioner as to why Michelle's trip was timed as it was, and as to the effect of Belgian grade-level determinations on extending her high school career. However, even accepting petitioner's view that the duty to reside in Belgium was a requirement beyond his daughter's control, it is clear that the time and manner in which that duty was to be met were within the family's discretion notwithstanding that various personal circumstances and other restraints may have significantly limited the options realistically available to them. That these limitations led to a choice causing Michelle to be ineligible for 1992-93 athletics is unfortunate, but does not change the essentially voluntary nature of the family's actions and therefore cannot override the consequences of those actions in terms of established NJSIAA rules.

Accordingly, the decision of respondent NJSIAA is sustained for the reasons expressed in the record before that body, together with the additional reasons set forth herein. The Petition of Appeal is dismissed.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

IN THE MATTER OF THE SPECIAL	:
ELECTION OF THE EDISON TOWNSHIP	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
SCHOOL DISTRICT, MIDDLESEX	:	DECISION
COUNTY.	:

Board of Education sought declaratory judgment from Commissioner with respect to application of N.J.S.A. 18A:9-10 and 18A:9-11, which require in pertinent part that upon the voters' adoption of a change from a Type I (appointed) to Type II (elected) school board, the board shall be increased to nine members with the additional seats to be filled through a special election to be held not less than 60 nor more than 70 days from the date of the adopting election.

Petitioning Board had been unaware of this requirement and had scheduled additional seats to be filled at the 1993 annual school election in April notwithstanding that its voters had adopted the change of governance on November 3, 1992. Upon learning of its error, Board determined to hold the necessary special election on February 24, 1993, between 60 and 70 days from discovery of the oversight, and sought validation of this schedule from the Commissioner.

Commissioner determined that the intent of statute and the will of the electorate would be best effectuated by permitting the district to move as promptly and expeditiously as possible toward a fully elected school Board. Commissioner found that special election to be held on February 24, 1993, together with plan to fill three existing seats at April 1993 annual school election, was in compliance with statute under the particular circumstances of this matter.

JANUARY 28, 1993

IN THE MATTER OF THE SPECIAL	:
ELECTION OF THE EDISON TOWNSHIP	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
SCHOOL DISTRICT, MIDDLESEX	:	DECISION
COUNTY.	:

For Petitioner, R. Joseph Ferenczi, Esq.

Whereas, this matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education by way of a petition from the Edison Township Board of Education, filed on December 28, 1992, amended on January 5, 1993 and perfected on January 12, 1993, seeking a declaratory judgment with respect to application of N.J.S.A. 18A:9-10 and 18A:9-11 to a situation recently arisen in the Edison Township School District; and

Whereas, said petition set forth that the citizens of Edison Township, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:9-4 and 18A:9-5, had duly voted at the general election held on November 3, 1992 to change the governance of their school district from a seven-member appointed Board of Education (Type 1) to an elected (Type II); and

Whereas, N.J.S.A. 18A:9-10 provides that whenever the board membership of a district electing to change from Type I to Type II is less than nine, it shall be increased to nine at the next annual school election, unless the election adopting the change shall have been held more than 130 days prior to the annual school election, in which case the additional seats shall be filled at a special election to be held not less than 60 nor more than 70 days after the adopting election; and

Whereas, the Edison Township Board of Education was unaware of the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:9-10, and notwithstanding that the adopting election was held more than 130 days prior to the next annual school election, determined and announced that the two new seats would be filled at the annual school election to be held on April 20, 1993, together with the three seats for three years each that will expire on that date by ordinary operation of law; and

Whereas, on December 16, 1992, the Board discovered that it had not complied with the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:9-10, in that it had missed the sixty-to-seventy-day "window" for conduct of a special election for the two new seats following the adopting election on November 3, 1992, and announced its intention to hold such an election by the 70th day from discovery of its error, that is, on February 24, 1993; and

Whereas, the Board now seeks from the Commissioner a declaration that the proposed special election for the two new seats, together with the annual election on April 20, 1993 wherein voters will be asked to fill three seats for terms of three years each consistent with N.J.S.A. 18A:9-11, is valid and in compliance with N.J.S.A. 18A:9-10 and 18A:9-11; and

Whereas, the Commissioner has reviewed the circumstances of this matter and determined that, given that an error has already occurred, the intent of statute and the will of the electorate would best be served at this point by conduct of the special election as planned by the Board and moving on schedule toward effectuation of a fully elected body as dictated by the voters of Edison; now therefore

IT IS ORDERED this 28TH day of January 1993 that the Board of Education of Edison Township School District shall proceed to conduct a special election on February 24, 1993 for the selection of two Board members for terms of two years each; that three seats for terms of three years each shall be filled at the annual school election on April 20, 1993; and that these elections shall be deemed valid and in compliance with statute under the particular circumstances of this matter.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF WILDWOOD, CAPE MAY COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

Petitioner, attendance officer/teacher, alleged Board improperly terminated his employment for 1991-92 school year. Petitioner contended tenure statute grants tenure to attendance officers in city district after one year of employment.

ALJ found petitioner filed more than 250 days after Board notified him of its action in not renewing his contract and more than 128 days after last day of employment. Petition was dismissed as untimely based on 90-day rule, N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c). ALJ further found that, due to untimely filing, petitioner lost his tenure and, hence, his right to any future reemployment in the district.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision with regard to untimeliness. Commissioner modified decision, however, with regard to future employment entitlement, clarifying that tenure is not lost through filing of an untimely claim and that any future action on the part of the Board to fill the position of attendance officer with a nontenured person would constitute a new cause of action before the Commissioner. Record Closed: November 12, 1992 Decided: December 16, 1992

BEFORE EDGAR R. HOLMES, ALJ:

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on February 21, 1992, for determination as a contested case pursuant to the Administrative Procedures Act , N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq., the act establishing the OAL, N.J.S.A 52:14F-1 et seq. and the act granting jurisdiction to hear controversies and disputes involving teacher tenure to the Commissioner of Education, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9 and 10.

An Equal Opportunity Employer

The Wildwood Board of Education has moved for summary judgment pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5. These facts are not disputed:

1. Harshaw was employed by the Wildwood Board of Education (Board) on contract commencing September 1, 1989 and ending June 30, 1990.

2. Harshaw was reemployed by the Board on contract commencing September 1, 1990 and ending June 30, 1991.

3. On May 16, 1991, the Board advised Harshaw, by letter, that he would not be renewed for the 1991-92 school year.

4. For the purposes of this motion for Summary Decision petitioner's employment ended on September 15, 1991.

5. On January 21, 1992, Harshaw filed his petition for relief with the Commissioner of Education.

6. Harshaw's contract with the Board appears to be an annual contract for a teacher to which is appended a job description for an attendance director.

7. Harshaw's primary responsibilities were as an attendance officer. He taught some classes.

The Board moves for Summary Decision because the Administrative Code requires that a petition alleging a controversy or dispute be served "no later than the 90th day from the date of receipt of the notice of a final order, ruling or other action by the district board of education ..." N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2 (c). In this case Harshaw's petition was filed some 250 days after the Board notified him of its action in not renewing his contract and more than 128 days after his last day of employment.

Harshaw alleges that it was not until the week of November 11, 1991, that he discovered N.J.S.A. 18A:38-33. That statute grants tenure to attendance officers in city districts "after employment in such district for one year."

Harshaw further alleges that because the Board treated him as a teacher it misled him into relying upon the teacher tenure statute rather than the attendance officer statute. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 provides that teachers achieve tenure after three years of employment, whether measured by the calendar year or successive academic years. This argument has no merit. Harshaw did teach some classes at the school. He was not misled. He was treated as a professional.

The purpose of the 90 day rule is to provide repose in education matters. It is possible that Harshaw might not have discovered N.J.S.A. 18A:38-33 for years.

Would he still be entitled to relief after so long? The rule provides finality. Moreover, it has a long history of enforcement.

> Enforcement of the 90 day limitation has been the subject of many appeals to us as well as to the Supreme Court. See, e.g., Levin v. Hackensack Board of Education, 90 N.J. 145 (1982), and North Plainfield Education Ass'n v. Board of Education, 96 N.J 587 (1984). An agency's construction of a statute over a period of years without legislative interference is to be given great weight as reflecting conformity with legislative intent. Mallone v. Fender, 80 N.J. 120 (1979). The 90 day limitation for initiating a controversy before the Commissioner has been in effect for many years and reviewed many times by us and by the Supreme Court, yet the Legislature has not expressed any disagreement with the State Board and Commissioner's construction of the powers delegated to it by the Legislature in N.J.S.A. 18A:6-26. Kaprow v. Board of Education of Berkeley Township, 225 N.J. Super. 65 (App. Div. 1992)

Harshaw also opines that even if his tenure petition is dismissed because it is out of time he nevertheless has retained reemployment rights because it appears he was released due to a reduction in force. Numerous cases stand for the proposition that tenured teachers and administrators have reemployment rights if they are subject to a reduction in force. (See citations in petitioner's brief). Nevertheless, this argument begs the question of whether Harshaw has tenure. He did obtain tenure, and then lost it because he failed to exercise his right to a hearing within 90 days.

I CONCLUDE that the petition should be dismissed for failure to file the same within the time required by N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2 (c).

I CONCLUDE that petitioner does not retain reemployment rights to the position of attendance officer.

I DISMISS the petition filed herein, with prejudice.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 West State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

EDWARD HARSHAW,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF WILDWOOD, CAPE MAY COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record and initial decision rendered by the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Petitioner filed timely exceptions pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Petitioner rebuts the ALJ's conclusion that the instant petition is untimely by citing such case law as Kaczmarek v. N.J. Turnpike Authority, 77 N.J. 329 (1978) and Kaprow v. Bd. of Ed. of Berkeley Twp., 225 N.J. Super. 65 (App. Div. 1992) (cert. granted N.J.) for the proposition that his petition was timely filed, or that, in the alternative, relaxation of the 90-day rule is warranted under the facts of this case. Petitioner reiterates the position argued below that as soon as he became aware of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-33, which grants attendance officers in cities tenure after one year, he timely filed his Petition of Appeal. He also reasserts his claim that the actions and statements of the Board caused him to be misled, and thus that relaxation of the 90-day rule is appropriate, citing the case law elaborated upon in his post-hearing brief in support of his position. Accordingly, petitioner seeks reversal of the initial decision and a remand of the matter for plenary hearing.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record of this matter, which includes consideration of the parties' post-hearing submissions, the Commissioner agrees with the ALJ that the instant matter is untimely filed and that relaxation of the 90-day rule is not warranted under the facts of this matter.

The Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that petitioner's becoming aware of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-33 some 250 days after the Board notified him of its action to not renew his contract in a position combining duties as a social studies teacher with those of an attendance officer will not toll the time for filing a petition of appeal challenging the Board's action for the reasons expressed in the initial decision. The case law cited by petitioner in his brief does not persuade the Commissioner otherwise. Ignorance of the law will not toll the running of a statute of limitations, and as recently as the appellate decision in Kaprow, supra, the courts have maintained strict application of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2. That Kaprow, supra, is currently on appeal before the New Jersey Supreme Court does not alter this conclusion. Unless and until a matter is reversed on appeal, the law as it exists at the time of the Commissioner's determination has full force and effect. See, e.g., Thomas S. Marshall v. Board of Education of the Township of Neptune, 1985 S.L.D. 457, rev'd St. Bd. 1986 S.L.D. 3087.

The Commissioner rejects, however, the initial decision's holding that petitioner has lost his tenure and, hence, any right to future reemployment in the district. Tenure accrues by operation of statute and, once obtained, is not lost through failure to assert a timely claim; rather, what is lost is the right to the position at issue at the time the claim is filed. Thus, while petitioner has lost his right to claim the position of attendance officer at this time, should the position fall vacant in the future and the Board act to fill it with a nontenured person notwithstanding petitioner's tenure, such action would constitute a new cause of action before the Commissioner. Kaprow, supra Accordingly, for the reasons expressed by the ALJ, petitioner's appeal is dismissed as untimely filed. The initial decision is modified, however, with regard to its holding on petitioner's future reemployment rights for the reasons set forth herein.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, school bus driver, alleged N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1 required Board to pay her legal fees, incurred as result of successfully defending against a summons for running a stop sign while driving students.

ALJ concluded 18A:16-6.1 did not apply, as motor vehicle offenses are not criminal matters under the laws of this state. Petition was dismissed.

Commissioner set aside ALJ's findings and determination. Citing Cilento and reading N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1 and 18A:16-6 in pari materia, Commissioner found proceedings arising from motor vehicle offenses to be "criminal actions" for purposes of N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1, eligible for indemnification to the extent and under the conditions set forth in that statute. Commissioner further found equity to favor petitioner as motor vehicle action underlying matter undisputedly arose from petitioner's performance of her duties as a school bus driver.

BEFORE BRUCE R. CAMPBELL, ALJ:

Rose Drabich (petitioner) alleges N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1 requires the Hillsborough Township Board of Education (Board or respondent) to pay her legal fees incurred as a result of an automobile accident in which the petitioner was involved while driving students.

The Board denies that the statute applies to these circumstances and asks that the petition of appeal be dismissed.

The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law by the Department of Education pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 through -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 through -13. After notice, a prehearing conference was conducted by telephone on November 13, 1992. It was agreed that the sole issue in the case is whether N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1 applies to the facts and circumstances of this case. It was also agreed that the matter would proceed on motion and cross-motion for summary judgment. Counsel timely filed their motions and supporting papers and the record closed on December 17, 1992.

FACTUAL BACKGROUND

The petitioner is a bus driver employed by the respondent. The petitioner was involved in an automobile accident while driving students on January 28, 1991. She was cited for violation of N.J.S.A. 39:4-144, in that she allegedly failed to stop or yield right of way before entering an intersection. On May 28, 1992, a municipal court judge dismissed the summons. On May 29, 1992, the petitioner's attorney spoke to the Board secretary, informed him of the disposition and submitted a bill for professional services. On May 29, the Board's counsel wrote to the petitioner's counsel stating that the Board was not responsible for the petitioner's legal fees. The letter also stated that it was the Board's position that a motor vehicle offense is not a criminal action. The present petition was filed with the Commissioner on July 13, 1992.

THE ARGUMENTS

The petitioner urges that the accident occurred in the scope of her employment. On or about February 6, 1991, she retained counsel to represent her in defense of a citation issued as a result of the accident. On or about the same day, her attorney wrote to the Board secretary, advising

> I have been retained by Ms. Drabich to represent her in the defense of the charges. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1, it will be the Board's responsibility to pay my fee if I am successful.

The Board did not reply to the letter.

On May 28, 1992 Drabich was heard in municipal court and the charge was dismissed. On May 29, her attorney wrote to the Board secretary again, informing him of the disposition and submitting a bill for professional services. Through its attorney, the Board answered under date of June 17, 1992, stating

> I am responding to your letter of May 29, 1992 addressed to the Board Secretary of Hillsborough Township Board of Education. Please be advised that the Board of Education will not be responsible for payment of your bill. It is the position of the Board of Education that a motor vehicle offense is not a criminal action as set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1.

The petitioner asserts that a motor vehicle summons for failing to yield at a stop sign while operating a school vehicle with school children on board is a petty offense, is quasi-criminal in nature and has all of the state and federal constitutional protections of other crimes and offenses. The petitioner also claims that N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1 mandates payment of her legal fees in this matter. The statute provides

> Should any criminal action be instituted against any such person for any such act or omission and should such proceeding be dismissed or result in a final disposition in favor of such person, the board of education shall reimburse him for the cost of defending such proceeding, including reasonable counsel fees and expenses of the original hearing or trial and all appeals.

Counsel concedes he could find no case interpreting or applying N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1 to a motor vehicle offense. Nevertheless, the petitioner maintains that a motor vehicle violation has many of the same attributes and protections as a criminal offense. Therefore, it must be treated as criminal in nature for this proceeding. Had the petitioner been found guilty of careless driving, she could have been subject to discipline by the Board including a reprimand, increment withholding or tenure charges in addition to any penalty imposed by the municipal court and the Division of Motor Vehicles.

New Jersey courts have consistently held that alleged violations of the Motor Vehicle Code are quasi-criminal in nature with many of the constitutional rights and protections granted in criminal cases.

In State v. Wenzel, 113 N.J. Super. 215 (App. Div. 1971), interpreting the careless driving statute, N.J.S.A. 39:4-97, the court stated > Prosecution for a motor vehicle violation is a quasi-criminal proceeding and the State has the burden of establishing all elements of the offense beyond a reasonable doubt. State v. Cestone, 38 N.J. Super. 139, 147-148 (App. Div. 1955); State v.

> Ring, 85 N.J. Super. 341, 343 (App. Div. 1964), certif. den. 44 N.J. 407 (1965). Ibid. at 217

The Appellate Court reversed the County Court's application of res ipsa loquitur, holding that use of the doctrine places a burden on a defendant to explain why he was not negligent. The doctrine has no place in criminal or quasi-criminal proceedings, where the burden is completely on the State to prove beyond a reasonable doubt that the defendant violated a penal or quasi-penal statute.

More recently, in State v. Walten, 241 N.J. Super. 529 (App. Div. 1990), the court stated

> It is true that a motor vehicle charge is quasi-criminal in nature and not an "offense" under the Code of Criminal Justice. State v. Hammond, 118 N.J. 306, 571 A.2d. 942 (1930). Because of its hybrid nature, certain constitutional rights apply to defendants charged with such offenses while others do not. See, e.g., Rodriquez v. Rosenblatt, 58 N.J. 281, 293-94, 277 A.2d 216 (1971). It is not necessary to list which rights do and do not apply here. Suffice it to say that defendants charged with motor vehicle offenses are accorded the basic right of presumed innocence which imposes on the State the corollary obligation to prove a defendant's guilt beyond a reasonable doubt. State v. Feintuch, 150 N.J. Super 414, 422, 375 A.2d 836 (1978). In that important respect a motor vehicle offense is the same as a criminal offense. Therefore, because the improper application of statutory presumptions can impact on such a fundamental right, the analysis undertaken when such presumptions are relevant in criminal cases applies equally well to a motor vehicle offense charging a violation of N.J.S.A. 39:4-129. See State v. Ingram, 98 N.J. 489, 496, 488, A.2d 545 (1985).

In State v. Fogarty, 128 N.J. 59 (1992), the Court held

> We have uniformly recognized that motor vehicle violations, including violations of the DWI statute, are not offenses under New Jersey's Criminal Code. State v. Hammond, 118 N.J. 306, 571, A.2d 942 (1990). Thus Code defenses such as entrapment do not apply to the motor vehicle offense of DWI. See, e.g., Hammond, supra, 118 N.J. at 318, 571 A.2d 942 (involuntary intoxication is not a defense to DWI). Moreover, due to the comparative lack of severity of penalties for DWI, certain constitutional rights do not apply to DWI proceedings. See, e.g., State v. Hamm, 121 N.J. 109, 577 A.2d 1259 (1980) (no right to jury trial in prosecution for third DWI offense; State v. Macuk, 57 N.J. 1, 268 A.2d 1 (1970) (Miranda warnings not required before breathalyzer test).

> Nonetheless, a defendant charged with a motor vehicle offense does not forfeit all constitutional and common law defenses. See, State v. DeLuca, 108 N.J. 98, 527 A.2d 1355, cert. denied, 484 U.S. 944, 108 St. Ct. 331, 98 L.Ed.2d 358 (1987) (prohibition against double jeopardy applies to DWI cases); State v. Tropea, 78 N.J. 309, 316, 394 A.2d 355 (1978) (in motor-vehicle offenses considerations of fundamental fairness bar retrial because of insufficiency of evidence).

The petitioner also cites the Commissioner's decision in Cilento v. Hillside Bd. of Ed., 1985 S.L.D. 1513 in which the administrative law judge discussed N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1 with respect to a disorderly person charge that was dismissed in municipal court. The Commissioner adopted the judge's initial decision. 1985 S.L.D. at 1523.

The judge discussed the origin of the statue and its companion, N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6 which provides for board of education payment of costs where a teaching staff member successfully defends against any civil action. The judge determined that disorderly person offenses and crimes are both considered offenses under the Criminal Code. The relationship between a disorderly person offense and a crime has been recognized by our Appellate Division. Conduct that gives rise to a disorderly person offense still may be treated, in appropriate situations, as criminal even though it is not technically a crime under the State Constitution.

N.J.S.A. 18A:6-6.1 was enacted in 1965. It was noted in an introductory statement that the bill was intended to provide legal help under limited circumstances in the event of a criminal action against an employee. The judge reasoned that it was important for teaching staff members to be given financial protection whenever subject of a legal action, civil or criminal, provided the costs are reasonable and the conduct arose out of and in the course of the performance of their duties. The judge also considered N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6 and N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1 together and concluded that disorderly person charges, which represent a potentially large group of offenses that can be brought against teaching staff members in municipal courts, were intended to be included in the legislative protections. The judge also gives some legal history. The salient point of the history is that the division of Criminal Offenses into crimes and disorderly person offenses was not necessarily a functional or even qualitative distinction. Instead, it was a distinction based on the recognition that certain types of antisocial conduct are less severe than others and therefore deserving of separate treatment as to sanction or penalty. To a person charged with the conduct, the distinction is not always meaningful. The judge also stated that in a case such as Cilento's, in which a teacher is charged with assault by a pupil, use of the term disorderly person offense offers little solace. The teacher must engage an attorney and make a court appearance. These carry financial and emotional costs.

The judge also stated

> In summary, then, I believe that in enacting N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1, the Legislature did not intend to exclude from its protection circumstances involving disorderly person offense charges leveled against teaching staff members. Thus, unless otherwise barred for reasons independent of the sort of offense involved, the dismissal of the charge of simple assault against Cilento in municipal court does give rise to his entitlement to be reimbursed by the Board for the reasonable costs and expenses incurred in defending the action. Ibid. at 1518.

The petitioner urges that the same reasoning is applicable to her case. For these reasons, she seeks an order of the Commissioner requiring the Board to pay attorney's and legal fees attendant to the municipal court matter.

The Board argues that a motor vehicle violation is not a crime as defined by the New Jersey Code of Criminal Justice. N.J.S.A. 2C:1-4 clearly sets forth the classes of criminal offenses > a. An offense defined by this code or by any other statute of this State, for which a sentence of imprisonment in excess of 6 months is authorized, constitutes a crime within the meaning of the Constitution of this State. Crimes are designated in this code as being of the first, second, third or fourth degree.

> b. An offense is a disorderly persons offense if it is so designated in this code or in a statute other than this code. An offense is a petty disorderly persons offense if it is so designated in this code or in a statute other than this code. Disorderly persons offenses and petty disorderly persons offenses are petty offenses and are not crimes within the meaning of the Constitution of this State. There shall be no right to indictment by a grand jury nor any right to trial by jury on such offenses. Conviction of such offenses shall not give rise to any disability or legal disadvantage based on conviction of a crime.
> c. An offense defined by any statute of this State other than this code shall be classified as provided in this section or in section 2C:43-1, the sentence that may be imposed upon conviction thereof shall hereafter be governed by this code. Insofar as any provision outside the code declares an offense to be a misdemeanor when such > offense specifically provides a maximum penalty of 6 months imprisonment or less, whether or not in combination with a fine, such provision shall constitute a disorderly persons offense.

> d. Subject to the provisions of section 2C:43-1, reference in any statute, rule, or regulation outside the code to the term "high misdemeanor" shall mean crimes of the first, second, or third degree and reference to the term "misdemeanor" shall mean all crimes.

Motor vehicle violations are not considered crimes or petty offenses. State v. Dively, 92 N.J. 573 (1983). In State v. Senno, 79 N.J. 216 (1979), the Court stated that motor vehicle violations are petty offenses as compared to misdemeanors and high misdemeanors which are classified as crimes. And more than twenty years ago the Court stated "motor vehicle violations are not 'crimes' in this state, but only petty offenses. There is no right to indictment or to a jury under any circumstances and such matters are tried in the first instance in a summary manner in the Municipal Court. It is not considered a 'criminal prosecution'." State v. Macuk, 57 N.J. 1, 9-10 (1970). This has been affirmed and reaffirmed in a long line of decisions. See, e.g., State v. Tropea, 78 N.J. 309 (1978); State v. VanLanduyt, 157 N.J. Super. 469 (App. Div. 1978); State v. Raupp, 160 N.J. Super.315 (App. Div. 1978); State v. Bodtmann, 239 N.J. Super. 33, 44 (App Div. 1990). In the latter, the court stated "[V]iolations of the motor vehicle laws are not prosecutions for a crime." In 1964, Justice Jacobs listed factors that differentiate motor vehicle infractions from crimes.

> Motor Vehicle Act violations are generally tried quickly and informally . . . The maximum fines and terms of imprisonment are minor in comparison to those fixed for violation of our Crimes Act and indeed they are even much lower than those which may be imposed for violation of our Disorderly Persons Act. The defendant, if found guilty, may for the most part anticipate the imposition of a moderate fine. State v. Currie, 41 N.J. 531, 543 (1964).

Designation of a motor vehicle violation as quasi-criminal finds its origin not in the violation as such, but in the relationship of the violation to specific constitutional connections. Any designation of a motor vehicle prosecution as quasi-criminal is limited to the nature of the proceeding; that is, whether certain constitutional protections should be afforded the defendant. It is clear from the case law that there is a right to counsel and a right against self-incrimination; there is protection against double jeopardy; the burden of proof is on the state; there is a right to counsel in cases where potentially severe penalties exist, for example, six months in jail and substantial loss of driving privileges. State v. Zucconi, 93 N.J.

Super. 380, 384 (App. Div. 1967), aff'd 50 N.J. 361 (1967); State v. Francis, 67 N.J. Super. 377 (App. Div. 1961); State v. Ring, 85 N.J. Super. 341, 342 (App. Div. 1964); State v. Gonzalez, 186 N.J. Super. 609 (Law Div. 1982).

State v. Wenzel, above, as cited by the petitioner did not find careless driving to be a crime. The case merely holds that the state has the burden of establishing all elements of offense beyond a reasonable doubt. Not all constitutional protections apply to motor vehicle violations. In State v. Fogerty, above, the Court held > [W]e have uniformally recognized that motor vehicle violations, including violations of the DWI Statute, are not offenses under New Jersey's Criminal Code. State v. Hammond, 118 N.J. 306, 571 A. 2d 942 (1990). Thus, Code defenses such as entrapment do not apply to the motor vehicle offfense of DWI. See, e.g., Hammond, above, 118 N.J. at 318, 571 A 2d 942 (involuntary intoxication is not a defense to DWI). Moreover, due to the comparative lack of severity of penalties for DWI, certain constitutional rights do not apply to DWI proceedings. See, e.g., State v. Hamm, 121 N.J. 109, 577 A 2d 1259 (1990) (no right to jury trial in prosecution for third DWI offense); State v. Macuk, 57 N.J. 1, 268 A 2d 1 (1970) (Miranda Warnings not required before breathalyzer test).

Thus, the limited correlation between some motor vehicle offenses and a crime relate only to the proceeding and not the offense per se. A great number of cases hold clearly that a motor vehicle violation is not a crime. Cilento, above, as cited by the petitioner, is not a case involving a motor vehicle violation. Cilento involved an employee charged with a simple assault, a crime under N.J.S.A. 2C:12-1.a and N.J.S.A. 2C:1-4. Much of the Cilento decision concerns a discussion of the criminal attributes of a disorderly persons charge and are undeniable. However, these attributes cannot be extended to a motor vehicle violation. In 1965 when N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1 was enacted, it was intended to provide "legal help under limited circumstances in the event of a criminal action against an employee." No mention was made of motor vehicle violations notwithstanding that at the same time there were teachers, custodians and drivers who operated school vehicles. In State v. Pleva, 203 N.J. Super. 178, 188 (1985), the court concluded "If [a court] finds that the statute is clear and unambiguous on its face and admits only one interpretation, the sole function of the court is to enforce the statute according to its literal terms." In this case, the plain meaning of criminal in N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1 is that its application is limited to criminal matters and does not extend to this motor vehicle violation.

DETERMINATION AND ORDER

In State v. Macuk, 57 N.J. 1 (1970) the Court clearly said that motor vehicle offenses are not crimes, merely petty offenses and that a prosecution for a motor vehicle violation is not a criminal prosecution. Those pronouncements have been followed for twenty-two years. At least fifty New Jersey cases have cited Macuk and relied on the case.

Generally, defendants charged with motor vehicle offenses such as driving while intoxicated have no Sixth Amendment right to counsel. The law in New Jersey is unusual in that it does provide for the right to counsel for any person charged with a motor vehicle offense that carries with it the possibility of a substantial loss of driving privileges upon conviction. Obviously, there is no bright line between quasi-criminal motor vehicle matters and purely criminal cases. It must be observed, however, that a substantial gap exists between the two. Notwithstanding the additional protections that New Jersey affords defendants charged with motor vehicle offenses, they remain quasi-criminal and have not been classified as criminal matters by any court of competent jurisdiction.

The state ordinarily has the right under its police powers to regulate and control the use and operation of motor vehicles on the public highways of the state and the streets of municipalities. Because the right to operate a motor vehicle is not an unrestricted right, but is a privilege that can be exercised only in accordance with the legislative restrictions placed on it, a state legislature has the right under its police power to regulate and control, by reasonable rules and regulations, the use and operation of motor vehicles subject only to limitations or restrictions imposed by the Constitution of the United States and by the State Constitution. The primary purpose of motor vehicle regulations is to provide for the safety and protection of the general public and travelers on the highways and streets.

It is helpful to bear in mind that the Motor Vehicle Act is a penal statute, but not a criminal statute. Penal, in its ordinary sense, simply means punishable or containing a penalty. Many civil statutes and regulations are penal. This does not make them criminal even though, as noted above, some additional protections may be afforded defendants. Thus, if N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1 is construed in accordance with the ordinary meanings of its words, it does not by its language apply to prosecutions for violation of the motor vehicle laws which, although quasi-criminal, are not prosecutions for a crime. Macuk, above.

Notwithstanding the well-turned opinion in Cilento, above, I FIND that motor vehicle offenses are not criminal matters within the contemplation of N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1. The distinction between disorderly person offenses and motor vehicle offenses is significant. Disorderly person offenses are not part of a large and comprehensive administrative scheme as well as statutory attention. The fact that certain protections are afforded motor vehicle violation defendants is a function of the cases trenching on certain constitutionally protected areas rather than the inherent nature of the offenses.

I CONCLUDE that the laws of this jurisdiction do not recognize motor vehicle offenses as criminal matters. I also CONCLUDE that there is nothing in the circumstances of the present case as argued to move it under the contemplation of N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1.

The petitioner not having carried the burden of persuasion, I ORDER this appeal DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 West State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

ROSE DRABICH,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF HILLSBOROUGH, SOMERSET COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Timely exceptions were filed by petitioner pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4. No reply was filed by the Board.

In her exceptions, petitioner urges rejection of the initial decision and references the arguments of her brief before the ALJ, reiterating in particular her belief that Cilento, supra, is dispositive of this matter.

Upon careful review and consideration, although accepting the ALJ's conclusion that motor vehicle offenses are not, generally speaking, criminal matters within the strict technical meaning of that term, the Commissioner cannot concur with the ALJ's further conclusion that petitioner is therefore not entitled to relief under N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1.

In construing N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1, the ALJ relied on "the ordinary meaning of its words" to conclude that, since motor vehicle offenses are not criminal actions, petitioner's legal fee was not covered under the provisions of that statute. (Initial Decision, at pp. 9-10) Had N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1 existed in a vacuum, the Commissioner would concur with this conclusion. However, N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1 cannot be read independently of its companion statute, N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6, which provides for indemnification of school employees in civil matters. These two statutes, taken together, clearly intend to provide a "safety net" for school employees who have legal actions brought against them as a result of performing the duties of their positions. As noted by petitioner, in a matter where the Board refused to indemnify a teacher who had successfully defended against a pupil's charges of simple assault on grounds that simple assault is a "disorderly persons offense" rather than a "crime," the Commissioner adopted the ALJ's reasoning that:

> The threshold issue is whether petitioner is entitled to the benefits of N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1 with respect to fees incurred by him in connection with his defense against a disorderly persons charge which was dismissed in municipal court. The Board's position, as noted, is that the Legislature deliberately restricted that statutory entitlement to successful defenses against "criminal actions," and since "simple assault" is statutorily defined as a "disorderly persons offense," and such offenses are not considered to be "crimes," no reimbursement is proper. For the reasons which follow I must disagree with the Board's position.
> The statute, N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1, provides for reimbursement of costs, including reasonable counsel fees, to a teaching staff member who successfully defends against a "criminal action" brought against the member for any act or omission arising out of and in the course of the performance of his or her duties. It is a companion to N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6, which provides for such costs to be defrayed where a teaching staff member defends against "any civil action." While the Code of Criminal Justice specifically excludes "disorderly persons offenses" from the category of "crimes within the meaning of the Constitution of this State," N.J.S.A. 2C:1-4b, this is not dispositive of the issue at hand.

The criminal action reimbursement statute was enacted in 1965. See, L. 1965, c. 205, section 2. In an introductory statement, it was noted that the bill was intended to provide "legal help under limited circumstances in the event of a criminal action against an employee." Clearly, that observation articulates the logical conclusion that insofar as the Legislature was concerned, it was important that teaching staff members be given financial protection whenever they were made the subject of any legal action, be it civil or criminal, so long as the costs are reasonable and the conduct arose out of and in the course of the performance of their duties. Sensibly, reimbursement in non-civil cases was limited to dismissals or otherwise successful defenses. It is doubtful in the extreme that the Legislature intended that only those criminal offenses which called for indictment and jury trial were to be covered.

Statutes, of course, are to be read and construed in a sensible fashion. See, e.g., Suter v. San Angelo Foundry and Machine Co., 81 N.J. 150, 160 (1979). When one considers the total protection which N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6 and N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1 plainly are intended to provide for teaching staff members, it would not be sensible to conclude that disorderly persons charges, which represent a potentially large category of offenses which can be brought against teaching staff members in the local municipal courts, were intended to be excluded. Indeed, as petitioner accurately notes in his posthearing brief, a charge of simple assault by a student against a teacher is a circumstance which unfortunately may not be foreign to the student-teacher relationship. I cannot assume that in enacting N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1, the Legislature deliberately determined to confine the reimbursement benefit in such a narrow way as to knowingly exclude disorderly persons offenses from the ambit of "criminal actions."

In summary, then, I believe that in enacting N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1, the Legislature did not intend to exclude from its protection circumstances involving disorderly persons offense charges leveled against teaching staff members. Thus, unless otherwise barred for reasons independent of the sort of offense involved, the dismissal of the charge of simple assault against Cilento in municipal court does give rise to his entitlement to be reimbursed by > the Board for the reasonable costs and expenses incurred in defending the action." (emphasis in text) (Cilento, 1985 S.L.D. at 1516-1518)

Similarly, in the matter herein, the Commissioner cannot contemplate that the Legislature intended to exclude from the scope of school employee indemnification legal actions relative to motor vehicle offenses, when such offenses specifically arise out of performance of employee duties, merely because they "fall between the cracks" of statutory language as being neither "civil" nor "criminal" within the precise technical meaning of those terms. Therefore, for the sole, limited purpose of applying N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1, the Commissioner holds proceedings arising from motor vehicle offenses to be "criminal actions" eligible for indemnification to the extent, and under the conditions, set forth within that statute.

The Commissioner further finds this result consistent with considerations of equity, as the motor vehicle action underlying this matter undisputedly arose from petitioner's performance of her duties as a school bus driver, and denying her the relief she seeks would ignore the fact that, but for those duties, she would not have received the summons at issue and would not have been faced with defending herself in a court of law against a charge which ultimately proved unwarranted.

Finally, the Commissioner notes that in finding petitioner eligible for the protections of N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1, she expresses no opinion on the reasonableness of petitioner's counsel fees. Pursuant to statute, this matter is properly addressed by the Board, with any dispute arising therefrom constituting a new cause of action before the Commissioner.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law dismissing the Petition of Appeal is reversed for the reasons set forth herein, and the Hillsborough Board of Education is directed to reimburse petitioner's fees and expenses consistent with the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

For the Petitioner-Respondent, Klausner, Hunter, Cige & Seid (Stephen E. Klausner, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Appellant, Paul E. Griggs, Esq.

This is an appeal from a Commissioner's decision granting indemnification under N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1 for legal fees incurred by a school bus driver who successfully challenged a motor vehicle citation for violation of N.J.S.A. 39:4-144 for failing to stop or yield the right of way before entering an intersection.

N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1, which provides for "indemnity of officers and employees in certain criminal actions," mandates that:

> Should any criminal action be instituted against any such person for any such act or omission and should such proceeding be dismissed or result in a final disposition in favor of such person, the board of education shall reimburse him for the cost of defending such proceeding, including reasonable counsel fees and expenses of the original hearing or trial and all appeals. (emphasis added).

The petitioning school bus driver was involved in an automobile accident while driving students. As stated, she was cited for failing to stop or yield the right of way before entering an intersection. In proceedings contesting the violation, petitioner was represented by counsel. The summons was dismissed and petitioner's counsel sought payment of his fees from the Board. The Board declined payment on the grounds that a motor vehicle offense was not a criminal offense, and petitioner then petitioned the Commissioner of Education for relief under N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1.

In his recommended decision, the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) found that petitioner was not entitled to indemnification under N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1 because motor vehicle offenses are not criminal offenses under New Jersey law.

The Commissioner rejected the ALJ's determination. In so doing, he accepted the ALJ's conclusion that motor vehicle offenses are not generally criminal matters. He, however, rejected the determination that petitioner was therefore not entitled to relief under N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1, finding that N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1 together with N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6, which provides for indemnification of school employees in civil matters, provide a "safety net" for school employees who have legal action brought against them as a result of performing the duties of their positions. The Commissioner determined that the Legislature could not have intended to exclude motor vehicle offenses from the scope of indemnification "merely because they 'fall between the cracks' of statutory language as being neither 'civil' nor 'criminal' within the precise technical meaning of those terms." Commissioner's Decision, at 15. Further finding that indemnification was consistent with equitable considerations, the Commissioner directed the Board to reimburse petitioner's fees as provided by N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1. We reverse.

As found by the ALJ, motor vehicle violations are not crimes. Even before enactment of the New Jersey Code of Criminal Justice (hereinafter "Criminal Code"), motor vehicle violations were considered to be merely petty offenses. E.g., State v. Tropea, 78 N.J. 309 (1978). The current statutory framework expressly provides that petty offenses are not crimes within the meaning of New Jersey's Constitution. N.J.S.A. 2C:1-4(b). More directly, the Criminal Code affirmatively specifies what offenses constitute crimes by providing that:

> An offense defined by this code or by any other statute of this State, for which a sentence of imprisonment in excess of 6 months is authorized, constitutes a crime within the meaning of the Constitution of this State...

N.J.S.A. 2C:1-4(a).

In this case, the pertinent statute delineates that in cases of violations of such statutes as N.J.S.A. 39:4-144, which is the statute involved here,

> ...the offender shall be liable to a penalty of not less than $50.00 or more than $200.00 or imprisonment for a term not exceeding 15 days, or both.

N.J.S.A. 39:4-103.

We conclude that, under any approach, violation of the statute involved here quite simply is not a crime. See, e.g., State v. Dively, 92 N.J. 573 (1983). In the absence of any language which would bring a violation of N.J.S.A. 39:4-144 within the rhubric of N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1, we can not construe proceedings resulting from a citation for violating N.J.S.A. 39:4-144 as a "criminal action" against an individual so as to entitle him to indemnification for legal fees. Further, given the express language of N.J.S.A.

18A:16-6.1, we reject, as did the ALJ, the view that extending the statutory entitlement to indemnification for expenses related specifically to criminal actions can be justified by the fact that a motor vehicle violation may be considered quasi-criminal for limited purposes relating to constitutional protections.

Nor do the concerns articulated in Cilento v. Board of Education of the Township of Hillside, 1985 S.L.D. 1513, support extending the statutory entitlement to indemnification to this case. Simple assault, which was the offense involved in Cilento, was a disorderly persons offense, and, as such, although not a "crime" in the technical sense, was an offense under the New Jersey Code of Criminal Justice. Moreover, in contrast to motor vehicles violations, simple assaults were treated like the more serious offenses before enactment of the Criminal Code. The change in the way disorderly persons offenses, such as simple assaults, are treated under the Criminal Code was based on a judgment as to the degree of seriousness of the anti-social behavior involved rather than on the character of the conduct. See Cilento, supra. at 1518.

In sum, given the express language of N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1, we decline to apply that statute so as to entitle petitioner to indemnification in this case. In this respect, we emphasize that the intent of the statutory framework involved here was to provide legal help under limited circumstances and that there is no indication of any Legislative intent to include the kind of circumstances presented by this case. We further emphasize, however, that although the specific statute involved here does not mandate indemnification under these circumstances, the education laws do not preclude a district board from choosing to reimburse an employee for costs associated with challenging a summons such as the one at issue here. See Matawan Regional Teachers Association v. Board of Education of the Matawan-Aberdeen Regional School District, decided by the State Board, July 6, 1989.

BEFORE ELINOR R. REINER, ALJ:

On or about December 26, 1991, petitioner, Dennis Paul Jaffe, filed a petition of appeal with the Commissioner of Education alleging that respondent had violated the Open Public Meetings Act on November 25, 1991. On January 22, 1992, respondent filed an answer. Respondent also counterclaimed, requesting that the Commissioner determine and declare that the board's actions at the November 25, 1991 meeting (i.e., the board's censure of petitioner's conduct) were proper. On March 6, 1992, the Department of Education, Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, transmitted this matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for hearing as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

A telephone prehearing conference was held on April 21, 1992. At this time, the issues were isolated, and a hearing was scheduled for December 7, 8, and 9, 1992, at the OAL. On June 10, 1992, petitioner filed an amended petition. By letter dated June 9, 1992, respondent objected to petitioner's amended petition, indicating that petitioner only had the right to move to amend his petition and had not been granted permission to file an amended petition. A conference call was held on June 22, 1992, during which petitioner's amended petition was accepted as filed, and it was ordered that no additional amendments would be made to the petition filed in this matter.

On July 27, 1992, respondent filed an answer to the amended petition Settlement conferences were held on July 14, 1992 and October 9, 1992; however, no settlement was reached at that time. Prior to the hearing date, respondent filed a motion for summary decision on its counterclaim and for an interim stay prohibiting petitioner from divulging information concerning matters discussed or to be discussed in private session which fall under the categories enumerated in N.J.S.A. 10:4-12(b) as exceptions to the Open Public Meetings Act, including but not limited to information concerning personnel issues. Petitioner filed a response to the motion and respondent replied thereto.

On December 7, 1992, the date of the hearing in this matter, the parties agreed to settle this matter and prepared the attached Settlement Agreement indicating the terms of settlement. As a result, the hearing was not held.

I have reviewed the record and the settlement terms and FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures or their representatives' signatures.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and therefore ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 West State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention Exceptions" A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT

This Agreement between the Board of Education of the city of Englewood (Board) and Marianno Ferreira (Petitioner) and Eugene Kassan (Intervenor) dated this __/__ day of December, 1992.

1) Petitioner has filed a Petition of Appeal with the Commissioner of Education under Agency Reference Number: 346-9/91 and O.A.L. Docket Number: EDU 10440-91N, claiming his reduction in employment for the 1991-1992 and 1992-1993 school years violated his tenure and seniority rights in the district.

2) The Board has filed an Answer generally denying Petitioner's claims which resulted in the matter being referred to the O.A.L. for disposition as a contested case.

3) Intervenor appeared in the above referenced action as a party in interest and participated in the proceedings.

4) Without an acknowledgement of liability by the Board or the lack thereof by the Petitioner, the Board, Petitioner and Intervenor have agreed to resolve the matter in difference between them as follows:

A) The Board agrees to reemploy Petitioner on a full time basis as a Teacher of Business Education, effective February 1, 1993.

B) The Board shall reimburse Petitioner the out-of-pocket cost expended by Petitioner for health insurance for the period between June 30, 1991 and February 1, 1993, in the amount of $7,513.24, as full and complete settlement in lieu of litigation of the above referenced matter.

Said reimbursement shall be in the payment of a claim and not the subject of withholding taxes or the issuance of a 1099 or other form indicating earned income. Petitioner will provide the Board with copies of paid receipts for health insurance premiums for the period from June 30, 1991 through February 1, 1993 as a condition for payment.

C) The Petitioner shall be paid on step MA-9 of the salary guide. The annual salary is $51,279.00, or such salary as shall be finally determined for teaching staff members for the 1992-1993 school year, which shall be pro-rated.

D) This Settlement Agreement shall not affect Intervenor's employment for the 1992-1993 school year.

E) The Board shall adopt a resolution formally approving this Settlement Agreement. Payment under paragraph two (2) of this Agreement shall be made immediately following the approval of this Settlement Agreement by the Commissioner of Education.

F) Petitioner agrees to execute an Indemnification Agreement with respect to liability to any tax authority for withholdings.

G) Upon the execution of this Agreement by all parties and the adoption of a resolution approving the same by the Board, the Petitioner shall withdraw the above referenced Petition of Appeal with Prejudice.

BEFORE JAMES A. OSPENSON, ALJ:

Ernestine N. Dowling, a tenured teaching staff member employed by the Board of Education of the Borough of Wood-Ridge, Bergen County, was employed as a speech therapist from 1982 and assigned at Davis Regional School under a salary funding arrangement until February 1988, when she took an approved maternity leave of absence and continued on a child rearing leave of absence for the next three years. When she signified her readiness to return to employment and requested a part time position for the 1991-92 school year, she was informed no part-time position was available. After commencement of school in September 1991, however, she was offered and accepted a part-time speech therapist position at the Davis School, a circumstance that the superintendent of the district said constituted a break in service at the beginning of the 1991-92 school year that eliminated tenure and seniority for her. On May 8, 1992, petitioner was informed her part-time position would not be continued for the 1992-93 school year, the break in her service eliminating her tenure and seniority rights. During the 1991-92 school year, petitioner was paid below contract rate on an hourly basis, action she said constituting an unlawful reduction in compensation. In a petition of appeal filed with the Commissioner of Education on June 27, 1992, petitioner alleged failure of the Wood-Ridge district to place her in a part-time position occupied by less senior speech therapist in the 1991-92 year was violative of her seniority rights, that failure of the district to place her into a full- or part-time position for the 1992-93 school year while employing less senior and even non-tenured speech therapists likewise violated her tenure and seniority rights. She sought judgment that respondents, individually or jointly, violated her tenure and seniority rights and directing them to instate her in a full-time position for the 1992-93 school year in accordance with her seniority, and according her differential back pay and whatever other relief was just. Both respondent boards admitted petitioner's tenure and the sequence of events generally but denied violating petitioner's tenure and seniority rights or compensating her unlawfully below scale. Respondents pleaded estoppel and the bar of the limiting period of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2. The Commissioner transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law on August 24, 1992, for hearing and determination as a contested case in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

Prior to the scheduled hearing date, the parties advised that the matter had been settled amicably. Thereafter, a settlement agreement was submitted.

I have reviewed the record and settlement agreement and FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures on the agreement;

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy, is in the interest of parties and public and should be implemented forthwith.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and accordingly I approve the settlement and ORDER that the parties comply with the terms and that these proceedings be CONCLUDED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning Board of Education sought ruling that, under N.J.S.A. 18A:29-4.1 and 18A:1-1, it need not pay increments called for by salary schedule embodied in an expired agreement during negotiations toward a successor contract.

ALJ found N.J.S.A. 18A:29-4.1 is clear on its face that boards of education may adopt a one-, two-, or three-year salary policy only; therefore, Board was under no obligation to pay increments beyond the duration of the three-year policy at issue. Summary judgment was granted to Board.

Commissioner reversed, holding that the education statutes do not dispose of the issue raised. Commissioner found that even though Title 18A does not compel payment of increments following expiration of a salary policy, such payment is a matter of collective negotiations and is therefore subject to the provisions of the Employer-Employee Relations Act (N.J.S.A. 34:13A-1 et seq.). Boards are thus to be guided by that act and the prevailing rulings of the Public Employment Relations Commission. Petition was dismissed.

BEFORE LILLARD E. LAW., ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner, the Neptune Township Board of Education (Board), seeks a Declaratory Judgment concerning the application of N.J.S.A. 18A:29-4.1 and N.J.S.A. 18A:1-1 and whether prior adopted salary schedules are binding upon it subsequent to the expiration of collective bargaining agreement.

BACKGROUND AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The Petitioner Board is a body corporate organized under Title 18A of the New Jersey Statutes and empowered by the school laws to conduct and supervise the schools of the Neptune Township School District. Respondent Neptune Township Education Association (Education Association) is the majority representative of all certified educational personnel, secretaries, internal attendance officers, educational aides, van drivers, New Jersey ROTC Naval Science Instructors, and custodians employed by the Board. Respondent Neptune Township Principals Association (Principals Association) is the majority representative of all full-time principals, vice-principals, assistance principals, and the administrator in charge of athletics and co-curricular activities employed by the Board.

On September 14, 1988, the Board adopted a resolution approving the terms of a three(3) year contract with the Education Association for the period July 1, 1988 to June 30, 1991. The July 1, 1988 to June 30, 1991 Agreement between the Board and the Education Association contained various salary guides which were attached to the Petition For Declaratory Judgment as Exhibits A through P.

On June 8, 1988, the Board adopted a resolution approving the terms of a three (3) years contract between the Board and the Neptune Township Custodians' Association, the former majority representative of all custodians employed by the Board. The custodial employees are presently represented by the Respondent Education Association. The Agreement between the Board and the Custodians was in effect for the period July 1, 1988 to June 30, 1991, and contained salary guides which were attached to the Petition For Declaratory Judgment as Exhibits Q and R.

On March 23, 1988, the Board adopted a resolution approving the terms of a three (3) year contract between the Board and the Principals Association for the period July 1, 1988 to June 30, 1991. The July 1, 1988 to June 30, 1991 Agreement between the Board and the Principals Association contained salary guides which were attached to the Petition for Declaratory Judgment as Exhibit S.

Prior to June 30, 1991 the Board and Respondents were engaged in negotiations directed toward the consummation of collective agreements to replace their respective agreements, both of which expired on June 30, 1991.

On June 28, 1991 the Board received a letter from Stephen B. Hunter, attorney for the Education Association, advising the Board that the Education Association would institute legal proceedings if on July 1, 1991 the Board did not move the employees represented by the Education Association to the next step on the salary guides contained in the July 1, 1988 to June 30, 1991 Agreement.

On July 1, 1991 the Board moved all employees represented by the Education Association and the Principals Association who were not already at the top of a salary guide to the next step of their respective salary guides and adjusted their salaries accordingly.

The Board moved the affected employees up on the salary guides and paid them the increases in their salaries despite the fact that the salary guides were part of negotiated agreements that had expired. On July 11, 1991, the Board filed a Petition For Declaratory Judgment asking the Commissioner to construe the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:29-4.1 and N.J.S.A. 18A:1-1 and determine if, in the absence of a successor contract, the salary schedules contained in the expired Agreement obligated the Board to pay salary increments to its employees beyond the three year term of the expired contract.

On November 30, 1991, the Board approved by resolution the terms of a contract with Respondent Education Association for the period July 1, 1991 to June 30, 1994. On February 12, 1992, the Board approved by resolution the terms of a contract with Respondent Education Association for the period July 1, 1991 to June 30, 1994.

On July 11, 1991 the Board filed a Petitioner for Declaratory Judgment before the Commissioner of Education of New Jersey, (Commissioner), requesting the Commissioner to render a declaratory judgment concerning the application of N.J.S.A. 18A:29-4.1 and N.J.S.A. 18A:1-1, to a controversy which had arisen between the Board and Respondents.

On August 22, 1991 the Education Association filed an Answer To Petition For Declaratory Judgment. On August 26, 1991 the Principals Association filed an Answer to Petition For Declaratory Judgment.

On September 3, 1991 the Commissioner dismissed the Petition For Declaratory Judgment with prejudice pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.9. On October 2, 1991, the Board filed a Notice of Appeal of the September 3, 1991 dismissal of the Petition for Declaratory Judgment with the State Board of Education.

On March 4, 1992 the State Board of Education rendered a Decision remanding this matter to the Commissioner for a determination pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-2.1 as to whether the Commissioner would entertain the Board's Petition for Declaratory Judgment and for such further proceedings as necessitated by the determination.

On March 18, 1992, the Commissioner sent a letter to the parties advising the parties that upon a review of the matter and the March 4, 1992 Decision by the State Board, he had decided not to consider the instant matter as a declaratory judgment, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-2.1. Rather, the Commissioner referred the matter to the Office of Administrative Law for consideration of the Board's claims as though they had been filed in the form of a Petition of Appeal. The Commissioner further advised that he was advising the Office of Administrative Law that the Judge assigned to hear the matte should first consider the jurisdictional questions raised in the matter as well as the affirmative defense of mootness before proceeding to consideration of the merits of the Board's claim raised pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:1-1 and 18A:29-4.1.

On June 22, 1992 this tribunal entered a Prehearing Order setting forth that this matter would be submitted on the papers. The June 22, 1992 Prehearing Order set forth the following issues for resolution:

1. Whether the Petition of Appeal of Declaratory Judgment is moot by virtue of a negotiated agreement between the parties?

2. Whether the Commissioner of Education or Public Employment Relations Commission (PERC) has jurisdiction to determine the matter?

3. Notwithstanding the negotiated agreement between the parties, whether the Commissioner may render a Declaratory Judgment in the matter.

Subsequently, on July 27, 1992, the New Jersey School Boards Association (School Boards Association) filed a Notice of Motion for Leave to Participate as Amicus Curiae in the instant matter. By way of letter, dated August 11, 1992, the School Boards Association motion was granted.

The matter is ripe for adjudication on the record, including the pleadings, exhibits, affidavits and briefs of the parties in support of their respective positions. The record, therefore, was considered closed on November 10, 1992.

Respondents Education Association and Principals Association move for dismissal of the instant matter contending, among other things, that their organizations are parties to a new collective agreement with the Board for the period July 1, 1991 through June 30, 1994 and that the salaries for the 1991-92 school year were paid to their membership in accordance with that agreement. Respondents argue there is no longer a controversy or dispute between the parties and, therefore, the mater is moot.

The Board and School Boards Association argue the contrary contending, among other things, that the issue of statutory construction of N.J.S.A. 18A:29-4.1 will likely, in the future, confront the Board as well as other local school boards of education in this State. Boards of education are statutorily authorized to adopt salary schedules which are binding for one, two or three years. N.J.S.A. 18A:29-4.1. The statute does not, however, address the effectiveness of the adopted salary schedule at the conclusion of the one, two or three year term. The Board and School Boards Association contend that clarification of and guidance on this issue is essential.

The definition of "moot," as found in Black's Law Dictionary, (5th Ed. 1979) at 908, states as follows:

> Moot - A subject for argument: unsettled; undecided. A moot point is one not settled by judicial decision.

Although it is well established that the Commissioner does not decide moot issues, Carolyn Henry v. Board of Education of the City of Wildwood, Cape May County, 1975 S.L.D. 1 at 3., our Supreme Court has held that an issue is not moot where the potential for a recurrence of the action exists. Galloway Township Board Bd. of Ed. v. Galloway Township Ed. Assn., 78 N.J. 25, 46-47 (1978). In Oxfeld v. New Jersey State Board of Education, 68 N.J. 301 (1975), Justice Clifford dissented from a per curiam decision of the Court which held a challenge of the constitutionality of a school regulation governing the distribution of pamphlets and leaflets on school grounds to be moot because the challengers were no longer students at the public high school where the regulation was in force. Justice Clifford said in his dissent, among other things, that:

> Under the circumstance I conclude that there still exists an adversary proceeding, that a broad public interest against prior restraints is involved, that the circumstances which gave rise to this litigation are likely to recur, and that the issue presented is one requiring statewide uniformity of resolution (citation omitted). Id. at 305-306.

Having carefully considered the arguments of the parties, I CONCLUDE that the instant matter is not moot but, rather, presents an adversary proceeding by virtue of its broad public interest and the strong likelihood that the issue presented will recur, therefore, demanding statewide uniformity of resolution.

Accordingly, respondents' motion to dismiss the instant matter on the grounds of mootness is DISMISSED. Galloway, supra.; Justice Clifford's dissent in Oxfeld, surpa.

ISSUE NO. 2

The regulation at N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.9 provides that:

> At any time after the receipt of the answer and prior to transmittal of the pleadings to the OAL, the Commissioner, in his or her discretion, may dismiss the petition on the grounds that no sufficient cause for determination has been advanced, lack of jurisdiction, failure to prosecute or other good reason.

The Commissioner, on September 3, 1991, determined he lacked jurisdiction to render a decision on the Board's petition for Declaratory Judgment to interpret

N.J.S.A. 18A:29-4.1 and N.J.S.A. 18A:1-1 and, therefore, dismissed with prejudice the Board's application. In concluding he lacked jurisdiction to grant the requested relief, the Commissioner recognized the two statutes to be embodied within Title 18A, Education, however, that jurisdiction lay exclusively with PERC.

The State Board of Education, by way of decision dated March 4, 1992, held that the Commission did, in fact, have jurisdiction over education statutes where it said:

> Consequently, despite the Commissioner's conclusion to the contrary, there can be no question that a ruling with respect to the applicability of these statues is well within his jurisdiction. In this regard we emphasize that the Commissioner of Education is not deprived of jurisdiction under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9 to decide controversies under the education laws by the fact that, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 34:13A-5.4(c), the Public Employment Relations Commission has exclusive jurisdiction over any unfair labor practice listed in N.J.S.A. 34:13A-5.4(a) and (b). City of Hackensack v. Winner, 82 N.J. (1980). (Slip Op. at 2.)

The State Board, therefore, remanded the herein matter to the Commissioner who, in turn, transmitted it to the Office of Administrative Law for determination.

Amicus observes that the Commissioner's authority over educational matters originates from Title 18A, specifically at N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9, which provides that:

> The commissioner shall have jurisdiction to hear and determine, without cost to the parties, all controversies and disputes arising under the school laws, excepting those governing higher education, or under the rules of the state board of the commissioner.

The Commissioner's authority is broad and expansive with exclusive jurisdiction to determine fitness for teaching, In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Samuel C. Capalbo, (App. Div., unpublished opinion, Dkt. No. A-4686-83T6, July 17, 1985; cert. den. 102 N.J. 336 (1985)) and his office maintains concurrent jurisdiction with other administrative agencies, i.e., Division on Civil Rights over complaints alleging discrimination in public school curricula, Hinfey v. Matawan Regional Bd. of Ed., 77 N.J. 514 (1978); and over complaints alleging discrimination in employment by a school district, Jamison v. Bd. of Ed. of Rockaway Twp., 171 N.J. Super. 549 (App. Div. 1979). The Commissioner may also maintain jurisdiction over matters concerned with Title 18A and PERC. Thomas J. Kirschling v. Bd. of Ed. of Twp. of Pemberton, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 355-92, Commissioner's Decision, August 14, 1992.

As Amicus observes, when balancing the jurisdictional roles between boards of education and teachers associations, the courts have held in favor of the local boards of education. Dunnellen Bd. of Ed. v. Dunnellen Ed. Assn. 64 N.J. 17 (1973); Bd. of Ed. Piscataway Twp. v. Piscataway Maintenance & Custodial Assn., 152 N.J. Super. 235, 245 (App. Div. 1977); Bd. of Ed. Twp. of Rockaway v. Rockaway Twp. Ed. Assn., 120 N.J.. Super 564 (Chan. Div. 1972). The Boards reliance upon education law as the basis for its application implicates the Commissioner rather than PERC and, therefore, must yield to his jurisdiction.

I CONCLUDE, therefore, that jurisdiction to determine the Board's application for Declaratory Judgment in the instant matter lies with the Commissioner and not with PERC. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9.

ISSUE NO. 3

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-8, and as incorporated into N.J.A.C. 6:24-2.1, the Commissioner is authorized to render declaratory rulings. Within the scope of this statutory and regulatory authority, the Commissioner in his sole discretion, may make "a declaratory ruling with respect to the applicability to any person, property or state of facts or any statute or regulation enforced or administered" by him. The Commissioner has exercised this authority In the Matter of the Request of the Board of Education of the Township of Brick, Ocean County, for a Declaratory Judgment Concerning the Payment of Salaries, 1977 S.L.D., 704; In re: The Employees of the Board of Education of the Central Regional Highs School District, 1 N.J.A.R. 80 (1980); Board of Education of the Township of Neptune, Monmouth County v. Neptune Township Education Association, Neptune Township General Supervisors Association, Neptune Township Department Chairpersons Association and Neptune Township Principals Association, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 9656-91, Commissioner's decision September 28, 1992, among others.

The facts in this matter demonstrate that the collective bargaining agreement between the Board and respondents contained salary schedules which were binding for a term of three years, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:29-4.1 and, which, provides as follows:

> The board of education of any district may adopt a one, two or three year salary policy, including salary schedules for all full-time teaching staff members which shall not be less than those required by law. Such policy and schedules shall be > binding upon the adopting board and upon all future boards in the same district for a period of one, two or three years form the effective date of such policy but shall not prohibit the payment of salaries higher than those required by such policy or schedules nor the subsequent adoption of policies or schedules providing for higher salaries, increments or adjustments. Every school budget adopted, certified or approved by the board, the voters of the district, the board of school estimate, the governing body of the municipality or municipalities, or the commissioner, as the case may be, shall contain such amounts as may be necessary to fully implement such policy and schedules for that budget year.

This statute was amended by the Laws of 1987, Chapter 123, as a consequence of the Commissioner's decision in the matter of Orlando v. Mercer County Vocational-Technical Schools, 1984 S.L.D. ___ (unpublished, Commissioner's decision September 6, 1984), wherein the Commissioner adopted the language of Administrative Law Judge Bruce Campbell who said, in part, that:

> It is appropriate to note at this point that N.J.S.A. 18A:29-4.1 and, by extension, N.J.S.A. 18A:29-4.3, authorize boards of education to adopt salary schedules for a period of two years, but not more. A public body may do only what the Legislature authorizes it to do. The statute is clear and unequivocal. . . . . (Slip Opinion at 37).

In amending N.J.S.A. 18A:29-4.1, the Legislature merely extended by one year, the permissible period a board of education may adopt a salary policy; including salary schedules for full-time teaching staff members. Such adopted salary policy shall be binding upon the adopting board of education and all future boards for the period of adoption, up to three years. Thus, the statutory limitation has been set.

As Amicus observes, by the repeal of N.J.S.A. 18A:29-8 (the former automatic annual employment salary increment), the Legislature demonstrated its intent to eliminate automatic annual incremental salary increases under School Law. (N.J.S.A. 18A:29-6 to N.J.S.A. 18A:29-8, repealed by L. 1985, c. 321, §16, effective September 9, 1985, operative September 9, 1985). In its stead, the Legislature promulgated the "Teachers Quality Employment Act," N.J.S.A. 18A:29-5.1 et seq. which, among other things; established a minimum salary for teaching staff members; provided funding for the salaries prescribed; and, provided the legislated appropriation. The Legislature, in repealing N.J.S.A. 18A:29-8 and enacting N.J.S.A. 18A:29-5.1 et seq. did not provide for automatic salary increments. Rather, at N.J.S.A. 18A:29-5.5, it rejected automatic salary increases to those who were in receipt of salaries more than the mandated minimum even if the increase existed in a collectively negotiated agreement. N.J.S.A. 18A:29-5.5 provides as follows:

> Teachers receiving more than the minimum salary set forth in this amendatory and supplementary act shall not receive automatic salary increases pursuant to any existing collective negotiation agreement with a salary guide indexed to compute salaries on the basis of a ratio established between the minimum salary and all other ranges, increments, or increases.

Thus, the Legislature not only abolished the former automatic salary incremental increases, it forbade boards of education from awarding extant collective negotiated salary increases which exceeded the mandatory minimum salary set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:-29-5.a et seq.

The question to be resolved here is whether, at the conclusion of a three year agreement between the Board and respondents and in the absence of a successor agreement, the Board is obligated to pay salary increments contained in the expired agreement. In interpreting the statute in question (N.J.S.A. 18A:29-4.1), we are guided by the general rules of statutory construction as found at N.J.S.A. 1:1-1, which provides in pertinent part, as follows:

> In the construction of the laws and statutes of this state, both civil and criminal, words and phrases shall be read and construed within their context, and shall, unless inconsistent with the manifest intent of the legislature or unless another or different meaning is expressly indicated, be given their general accepted meaning, according to the approved usage of the language. . . .

Our Supreme Court also aids us where it said that, "Generally, a court's duty in construing a statute is to determine the intent of the Legislature." AMN, Inc. v. South Brunswick Twp. Rent Leveling Bd., 93 N.J. 518, 525 (1983). It also observed in Perez v. Patasote, Inc. 95 N.J. 105 (1984) at 114:

> . . . it is the statute's express language that determined in what manner and to what extent the Legislature sought to attain those goals. In the final analysis it is the statute as written that must govern. (Emphasis supplied.)

There can be no doubt it was the Legislature's intent to grant local boards of education the statutory authority to adopt a three year salary schedule by its 1987 amendment of N.J.S.A. 18A:29-4.1. The Assembly Education Committee Statement clearly expresses the intent of the Legislature where it states, among other things, that: "This bill gives a board the option of adopting or negotiating a three year salary schedule." The Statement also clearly demonstrates that the amendment to N.J.S.A. 18A:29-4.1 was a direct consequence of the Commissioner's decision in Orlando v. Mercer County Vocational-Technical Schools, supra., where it was held that a three year salary schedule, even if negotiated in good faith, was not binding because it fell outside the two year provision of the statute.

The statute, N.J.S.A. 18A:29-4.1, as amended, is clear and unequivocal. There is no ambiguity in its language that "any district may adopt a one, two or three year salary policy . . ." The Board, therefore, is authorized to adopt a salary schedule not to exceed three years. As Judge Campbell stated in Orlando, "A public body may do only what the Legislature authorized it to do." (Slip Op. at 30).

CONCLUSION AND ORDER

I CONCLUDE, therefore, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:29-4.1, the Board is under no obligation to pay salary increments to its employees subsequent to the expiration of duly adopted one, two or three year salary policy in the absence of a successor salary policy.

Accordingly, it is ORDERED that the petitioner Board's application for Summary Decision is hereby GRANTED.

It is, therefore, DECLARED and ADJUDGED that under the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:29-4.1, the Board is relieved from any obligation to pay its employees salary increments subsequent to the expiration of a one, two or three year salary policy in the absence of a successor policy.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 West State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF NEPTUNE, MONMOUTH COUNTY,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
NEPTUNE TOWNSHIP EDUCATION ASSOCIATION AND NEPTUNE TOWNSHIP PRINCIPALS ASSOCIATION,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENTS.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Timely exceptions were filed by respondent Neptune Township Education Association (NTEA) and respondent Neptune Township Principals Association (NTPA) pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4, and a reply thereto by participant New Jersey School Boards Association (NJSBA). No reply was filed by the Board.

In their respective exceptions, respondents espouse similar positions, averring that the ALJ erred in finding that the instant matter was not moot (NTEA Exception No. 2, NTPA Exception No. III) and that the Commissioner had jurisdiction over it (NTEA Exception No. 1, NTPA Exception No. II), and in ruling that N.J.S.A. 18A:29-4.1 was dispositive of the issues raised herein and subject to an interpretation contrary to the Supreme Court's decision in Galloway Township, supra (NTEA Exception No. 3, NTPA Exception No. I). With respect to mootness, respondents reiterate their previous argument that, in view of the fact that the Board has paid the increments at issue and negotiated a new collective agreement, there is no longer a controversy between the parties; therefore, the customary practice of both the Commissioner and the Public Employment Relations Commission (PERC) should be followed, and the Commissioner should decline to decide a matter which is clearly moot. With respect to jurisdiction, respondents reiterate their argument that judicial precedent clearly establishes PERC rather than the Commissioner as the primary adjudicator of matters involving unfair practice and terms and conditions of employment, citing Galloway, supra, and Red Bank Board of Education vs. Warrington et al., 138 N.J. Super. 564 (1976).

With respect to N.J.S.A. 18A:29-4.1, respondents contend that the ALJ should have been bound by the Supreme Court's decision in Galloway, supra, which requires that the increments at issue be paid; that the ALJ's reliance on repeal of N.J.S.A. 18A:29-8 (salary schedules) and enactment of N.J.S.A. 18A:29-5.5 (limitations on automatic increases indexed to statutory minimum salaries) is misplaced in that these statutes were not, and are not, relevant to payment of employee increments within the context of the issues raised by this matter; and that, even assuming the relevance of these statutes, the ALJ erred in interpreting them and N.J.S.A. 18A:29-4.1 to conclude that the Legislature by its various enactments and amendments demonstrated an intent to generally eliminate automatic salary increases, so that boards are not required to honor an established salary schedule once the contract within which it is embodied has expired. NTEA adds the further argument (Exception No. 4) that, even if the Commissioner accepts the ALJ's reasoning in the above areas, the statutes relied on in the initial decision refer only to certificated teaching staff members and therefore cannot be applied to support staff, which must continue to be treated in accordance with Galloway, supra, and prevailing PERC rulings.

NJSBA in turn urges affirmance of the ALJ's decision, which largely adopted arguments presented by NJSBA in its prior brief. In response to respondents' exceptions, NJSBA reiterates these same arguments, with particular emphasis on the notion that reliance on Galloway, supra, and PERC decisions based upon it, is misplaced because the court therein expressly did not consider the question of whether or not the terms and conditions of employment that prevailed under a previous collective agreement constitute the status quo after expiration of the agreement, and because the premise on which the Galloway decision relied was rendered invalid by subsequent repeal of N.J.S.A. 18A:29-8 and amendment of N.J.S.A. 18A:29-4.1, the statute on which the court's decision explicitly turned.

Upon careful review and consideration of this matter, the Commissioner determines to affirm the holding of the initial decision with respect to the Commissioner's jurisdiction over the education statutes relied on by petitioner, and its holding on mootness because petitioner has raised a novel question of education law implicating matters of substantial public interest. The Commissioner rejects, however, the initial decision's analysis and conclusions on payment of salary increments following expiration of a collective agreement for the reasons set forth below.

The initial decision rests on the premise that, because N.J.S.A. 18A:29-4.1 authorizes boards of education to adopt salary schedules for one, two or three years, boards cannot be bound to a salary schedule beyond three years, even in the absence of a successor schedule. It buttresses this conclusion by invoking certain portions of the "Teachers Quality Employment Act" (TQEA) and judging the intent of the Legislature in enacting those sections to have been rejection of automatic salary increases for teaching staff members. (Initial decision, at pp. 8-11)

The Commissioner, however, does not concur with this interpretation. Both the Commissioner's decision in Orlando, supra, and the 1987 amendment to N.J.S.A. 18A:29-4.1 that resulted from it, were framed in terms of the length of time a Board's salary policy may be drawn by the policy's own terms. The three-year policy in Orlando was rejected because, prior to amendment of 18A:29-4.1, under the provisions of that statute, a board could adopt or negotiate a salary policy effective for two years, with anything more being ultra vires (Orlando) and anything less being binding for two years notwithstanding the terms of the agreement, unless a successor agreement had been reached in the interim (Galloway, supra). Amendment of 18A:29-4.1 was expressly intended to permit a board the flexibility of drawing, and being bound to, its policy or contractual agreements for a one-, two-, or three-year period as it saw fit:

> On September 6, 1984, the Commissioner of Education held (Orlando v. Mercer County Vocational-Technical Schools) that the third year of a salary schedule, even if negotiated in good faith, was not binding and would have to be renegotiated since N.J.S.A. 18A:29-4.1 specifically provides for a two year salary schedule only. This bill gives a board the option of adopting or negotiating a three year salary schedule.

> The committee amendments provide the option of one, two or three year schedules, and also provide that any three year contract negotiated prior to the effective date of this act would be considered valid.
> (Assembly Education Committee Statement, Assembly Bill No. 2045--L.1987, c. 123)

Nothing in this line of development suggests that 18A:29-4.1 ever was, or is now, intended to be applied as a limitation on otherwise prevailing laws governing collective bargaining in school districts. Indeed, as the State Board recognized in its decision in the matter of Peter J. Romanoli v. Board of Education of the Township of Willingboro, Burlington County, 1987 S.L.D. 2678, notwithstanding the term limitations on salary schedules imposed by 18A:29-4.1, the requirement of the Employer-Employee Relations Act (N.J.S.A. 34:13A-1 et seq.) that the status quo be maintained during negotiations is fully applicable where salaries are set by collective bargaining (as opposed to individual agreement, as was the situation in Romanoli's case).

Nor did repeal of N.J.S.A. 18A:29-8 and enactment of TQEA (both effected by P.L. 1985, c. 321) have the import ascribed to them by NJSBA and the initial decision. Rather, c. 321 was a direct response to two practical realities: First and foremost, the starting salary levels for new teachers had fallen significantly behind the starting salaries paid to other recent college graduates and needed to be made more competitive to attract outstanding candidates to the teaching profession (c. 321, Legislative findings and declarations, now N.J.S.A. 18:29-5.2). Second, the existing statutory teacher salary schedule (N.J.S.A. 18A:29-8), which dated from 1963 and provided specific minimum salary amounts for various levels of training and service, had become effectively meaningless, as its actual dollar amounts (beginning at $4,400 per year for a new full-time teacher) had long since become obsolete, as had its step increment schedule, through such matters having become the province of collective negotiations with enactment of public sector bargaining laws in 1968. Thus, with c. 321, the Legislature sought to establish, through education law and for reasons of educational policy, a minimum dollar amount below which no full-time teacher could be paid regardless of negotiations, and then, having made this "baseline" intrusion into the collective bargaining process, held that teaching staff salaries above the minimum "would be established by local districts under the provisions of the New Jersey Employer-Employee Relations Act (N.J.S.A. 34:13A-1 et seq.)." (Legislative Statement, Assembly Bill 635, later c. 321)

Indeed, c. 321's sole reference to salaries above the new minimum, N.J.S.A. 18A:29-5.5, is not, as implied by the initial decision at pp. 9-10, a blanket disavowal of automatic increments; rather, by both legislative statement and its own terms, it is clearly a one-time "brake" on the "runaway" effect the new minimum would have on then existing collective agreements with salaries above minimum specifically indexed to the minimum itself:

> Teachers receiving more than the minimum salary set forth in this amendatory and supplementary act shall not receive automatic salary increases pursuant to any existing collective negotiations agreement with a salary guide indexed to compute salaries on the basis of a ratio established between the minimum salary and all other ranges, increments, or increases. (emphasis supplied)
> (N.J.S.A 18A:29-5.5)

As the Legislature specifically noted, this provision meant that, upon enactment of c. 321, "any indexed guide based upon a ratio between the minimum salary and all other salaries must be renegotiated (see [Section] 6). This would only apply to 16 school districts." (Senate Education Committee Statement to Senate Committee Substitute for Assembly Bill Nos. 634 and 635, later c. 321)

Thus, legislative repeal of N.J.S.A. 18A:29-8 and enactment of TQEA meant simply that teacher salaries were, except for their minimum level and the duration of the agreements within which they were embodied, to be matters of collective negotiation rather than education law. Nor did amendment of N.J.S.A. 18A:29-4.1 alter this construct; it merely provided greater flexibility to the parties in determining the duration of the contracts they could negotiate. The initial decision is correct, then, in concluding (as did the State Board in Romanoli, supra) that there is no automatic entitlement to salary increments under education law.

It is a distortion of that law, however, to further conclude that the education statutes are dispositive and that there is therefore no entitlement at all; this is to effectively ignore the concomitant requirements of law governing collective bargaining, the very process expressly contemplated by the Legislature as the vehicle for setting salaries above minimum levels and recognized by the State Board as applicable to collectively, as opposed to individually, negotiated salaries. Indeed, as held by the court in Board of Ed. of Rockaway Township v. Rockaway Township Education Association, 120 N.J. Super. 564 (Ch. Div. 1972), the Employer-Employee Relations Act and the provisions of Title 18A must be read together so that both are harmonized and each given its appropriate role.

In its essence then, the issue raised by petitioner is not susceptible to resolution under education law; rather, it is controlled by the provisions of the Employer-Employee Relations Act (N.J.S.A. 34:13A-1 et seq.), over which PERC enjoys exclusive jurisdiction and over which the Commissioner of Education has no authority. Therefore, while the Commissioner may interpret Title 18A, she can go no further than to rule, as she has herein, that the provisions of that title are not dispositive of the question of payment of increments following expiration of a collectively negotiated salary schedule, and that, in dealing with this question, boards of education and school employee associations must be guided instead by 34:13A-1 et seq. and prevailing PERC law.

Accordingly, the initial decision granting summary judgment to the Board is reversed and the Petition of Appeal dismissed.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION

DECISION ON MOTION

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, February 16, 1993

Decision on motion by the State Board of Education, June 2, 1993

For the Petitioner-Appellant, Paterson & Hundley (James T. Hundley, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Respondent Neptune Township Education Association, Klausner, Hunter, Cige & Seid (Stephen B. Hunter, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Respondent Neptune Township Principals Association, Wayne J. Oppito, Esq.

For the amicus curiae New Jersey School Boards Association, Kim Chapman-Belin, Esq.

This is an appeal from a decision of the Commissioner of Education which held that N.J.S.A. 18A:29-4.1 as now in effect neither prohibits nor mandates the payment of salary increments set forth in salary schedules included in a collective negotiations agreement that has expired. After arriving at this conclusion, the Commissioner stressed that while the education laws do not resolve the issue of whether a district board is prohibited from or required to pay such increments to its staff before a successor agreement has been reached, the question is controlled by N.J.S.A. 34-13A-1 et seq. and subject to the exclusive jurisdiction of the Public Employment Relations Commission (PERC).

The Board of Education of the Township of Neptune appealed the Commissioner's decision, contending that because N.J.S.A. 18A:29-4.1 provides authority to district boards to adopt salary schedules for a specified number of years up to three years, a district board is without authority to bind future boards to such schedules for more than the specific period of up to three years. The Board argues that, therefore, N.J.S.A. 18A:29-4.1 prohibits a district board from paying salary increments to staff members pursuant to salary schedules in a collective negotiations agreement once it has expired and that because the terms of N.J.S.A. 18A:29-4.1 are specific, the education statute rather than the New Jersey Employer-Employee Relations Act controls. Amicus curiae New Jersey School Boards Association did not file a separate brief, but joined the district board in its arguments.

In response, the Neptune Township Education Association urges that we affirm the Commissioner's decision. It argues that the Commissioner correctly determined that the New Jersey Supreme Court's decision in Galloway Township Board of Education v. Galloway Education Association, 78 N.J. 25 (1978), controls the issue of whether a district board must pay salary increments following expiration of a collective negotiations agreement and that Galloway mandates such payment. Amicus curiae New Jersey Education Association supports this position.

After reviewing the arguments of counsel, and substantially for the reasons expressed by the Commissioner, we affirm her determination that N.J.S.A. 18A:29-4.1 neither prohibits nor mandates the payment of salary increments once the collective negotiations agreement which includes the salary schedules setting forth those increments has expired. We reject the district board's construction of the statute, and we further agree with the Commissioner that resolution of whether or not such payment is required in any particular instance properly lies within PERC's jurisdiction. That being the case, we modify the Commissioner's decision to the extent necessary to clarify that this agency has not by its decision in this matter interpreted Galloway or passed upon its continued viability.

Petitioning teacher riffed in June 1991 alleged Board violated her tenure and seniority rights when it abolished her full-time position and created three part-time positions teaching typing at three different middle schools at same time every day by three separate teachers. Petitioner refused one of these part-time positions. Petitioner also claimed right to full-time positions held by intervenors. Petitioner was recalled to full-time employment for 1992-93.

ALJ found petitioner failed to establish by preponderance of credible evidence that Board improperly assigned intervenors to teach computers. Three intervenors were properly teaching computer courses, and two other intervenors were properly assigned to teach computer courses falling within mathematics curriculum. ALJ, however, did find that petitioner was entitled to salary and compensation for 1991-92 school year since Board violated her tenure rights by failing to consolidate three part-time typing positions into one full-time position absent evidence that such consolidation would disrupt pupil schedules.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision. Petitioner was already restored to a full-time position for 1992-93 school year.

BEFORE DANIEL B. McKEOWN, ALJ,t/a:

Sharon Taxman (petitioner) is employed as a teacher by the Piscataway Board of Education (Board). She claims in a Petition of Appeal filed to the Commissioner of Education that the Board violated her tenure and seniority when it determined to eliminate her employment for 1991-92 as the result of an alleged reduction-in-force taken in June 1991. After the Commissioner transferred the matter August 26, 1991 to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case under N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq., and after certain settlement efforts failed, intervention status was granted those teachers whose employment status may be affected by petitioner's claim. A limited hearing was conducted April 21, 1992 at the Edison Township Municipal Building. At the close of the hearing additional teachers whose employment may be adversely affected, though nontenured, were identified as not having been formally noticed of the proceeding. A briefing schedule was delayed until the teachers were noticed and retained counsel. Participation status [1] was granted and counsel was provided the opportunity to become familiar with the record. The record closed November 25, 1992 upon the filing of participants' letter memorandum.

This initial decision concludes petitioner failed to establish by a preponderance of credible evidence the validity of three of her claims. Petitioner did establish the validity of one claim and, hence, is entitled to relief.

BACKGROUND FACTS

The background facts are not in dispute, except as otherwise noted, and they are as follows. Petitioner possesses an instructional certificate with a comprehensive business education endorsement which authorizes her to teach business education subjects in all public schools, including bookkeeping and accounting, secretarial studies, general business, consumer education, business mathematics and business education. N.J.A.C. 6:1-6.2(a)(4). According to her filed Petition petitioner, who has acquired tenure, has ten years seniority in the Board's employ as of June 30, 1991. (Petition of Appeal, paragraph 3).

This case had its genesis on June 30, 1989 when petitioner was subjected to a reduction-in-force by the Board. She unsuccessfully challenged that action before the Commissioner, but a civil action under Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 is pending in United States District Court. Petitioner was unemployed by the Board for 1989-90. The Board did offer (R-1) petitioner a part-time position for 1990-91 at one of its three middle schools teaching two periods of typing for which she is properly certificated. N.J.A.C 6:11-6.2(a)(4)(2). The Board had created three part-time teaching positions for the 1990-91 year. Since then, typing is taught at each of three middle schools at the same time every day by three separate teachers. Petitioner refused the proffered part-time position. Petitioner claimed the Board deliberately scheduled the three classes simultaneously at three different schools to avoid having to offer her full-time employment. Rather, she suggested that the three part-time positions be consolidated into one full-time position which she said she would take. (See R-2 and R-4) The three part-time positions were not consolidated, but were staffed by three nontenured teachers.

Petitioner was eventually employed full-time by the Board for 1990-91 by replacing another teacher who went on a leave of absence. When the "on-leave" teacher returned for 1991-92, petitioner was advised (R-5) she would not be offered continued full-time employment for 1991-92. Petitioner was also advised that one of the three middle schools part-time typing positions, which had been initially offered to but rejected by her for 1990-91, was hers should she choose to accept it. Petitioner replied (R-6) she would accept the proffered part-time position so long as she was also assigned to teach the third typing course which was then assigned to another teacher but over whom petitioner had greater seniority. The Board rejected petitioner's conditional acceptance and counteroffer. Petitioner remained unemployed for 1991-92. She has since been recalled to full-time employment by the Board for 1992-93.

Meanwhile, petitioner filed the instant Petition on August 2, 1991 claiming that the present dispute stems from an action taken by the Board on June 24, 1991 by which it was to have "abolished" her full-time position. According to the evidence and undisputed facts in this record, that assertion is not accurate. The evidence shows that when the Board's Director of Personnel reminded petitioner by letter (R-5) dated June 18, 1991 the 'on-leave' teacher was returning for 1991-92 and her employment would not be continued, he also advised that the Board intended to adopt a resolution on June 24, 1991 to "effectively terminate your employment at the end of this school year." This so-called termination of employment is understood here to refer to that employment held by petitioner during 1990-91 while the other teacher was on leave.

The foregoing facts, together with petitioner's filed memorandum of law, show petitioner more accurately alleges the Board violated her tenure and seniority rights by failing to provide her with full-time employment for 1991-92. Specifically, petitioner alleges her rights were violated (1) when the Board assigned three specific teachers, Nancy Ostrowski, Deborah Williams, and Gerald Matcho, each of whom is an intervenor and each of whom has greater seniority than she, to teach Computers:

Business Applications, Word Processing, Keyboarding/Introduction to Computers, and Adaptive Computers for which, she claims, the individuals are not properly certificated for the subjects they are assigned to teach; (2) by the Board assigning intervenor Edith Fouratt, who has less seniority then she, to teach Introduction to Computer Programing for which she, petitioner, is certificated; (3) by the Board assigning intervenor Neil Campanella, who has greater seniority then petitioner, to teach Money Management for Everyday Life and Money Management in Planning the Future for which he is not properly certificated but for which she is; and (4) by the Board assigning participant nontenure teachers to three part-time typing positions when by consolidating the three positions she could have had full-time employment. Petitioner does not challenge in this Petition the propriety of the initial reduction-in-force effective June 30, 1989 by which her position of employment was abolished. Each of petitioner's allegations shall be considered in the order presented.

I

In regard to petitioner's first allegation intervenor Nancy Ostrowski, who has at least 20 years seniority as of June 30, 1991 (J-1), possesses an instructional certificate with endorsements to teach secretarial studies and Latin. The endorsement of secretarial studies at N.J.A.C. 6:11-6.2(a)(4)(v) authorizes the holder to teach "...secretarial studies in all public schools. Secretarial studies normally include: shorthand, typewriting, office procedures, business machines, business English". The endorsement of Latin under N.J.A.C. 6:11-6.2 authorizes the holder to teach Latin. In 1991-92 Ostrowski was assigned to teach Computers: Business Applications, Word Processing, and Keyboarding/Introduction to Computers. According to the evidence in this record, Computers; Business Application is an introductory course that briefly covers the history of Computing, Word Processing, data base and spread sheets, and the role of computers in modern society. It emphasizes the concepts of computing and problem solving and is given in a computer laboratory. (J-3A). Word Processing has a curriculum guide developed by intervenor Ostrowski. The course provides pupils with a working knowledge of Word Perfect. The subject matter of the course is designed to assist pupils refine language art skills and to acquire basic knowledge of word processing concepts and terminology. (J-3B). Intervenor Ostrowski also developed the Board's curriculum guide for Keyboarding/Introduction to Computers which provides pupils with knowledge of the computer keyboard through the touch method. (J-4).

Intervenor Deborah Williams who has at least 11 years seniority (J-1) as of June 30, 1991 possesses an instructional certificate with an endorsement to teach secretarial studies and a comprehensive business education endorsement. Authorization to teach under these endorsements have already been presented. In 1991-92 Williams was assigned to teach Keyboarding/Introduction to Computers.

Intervenor Gerald Matcho has 30 years seniority as of June 30, 1991. (J-1). He possesses an instructional certificate with endorsements to teach bookkeeping and accounting, social business studies, and typewriting. The endorsement bookkeeping and accounting authorizes the holder to teach bookkeeping, accounting, and business mathematics in all public schools; the endorsement social business studies is not presently listed as an endorsement for business education; and, the endorsement to teach typewriting authorizes the holder to teach typewriting in all public schools. During 1991-92 Matcho was assigned to teach Adaptive Computers: Business Applications and Keyboarding/ Introduction to Computers. Intervenor Matcho developed the curriculum guide for Adaptive Computers: Business Applications, a course which is intended to provide pupils who are classified in need of special education with the opportunity to learn keyboarding, the basics of word processing, and the basics of data base and spread sheet applications. (J-5).

In support of her position that intervenors Ostrowski, Williams, and Matcho are not qualified by endorsements held to teach computer courses, petitioner called Ida Graham as her witness. Ms. Graham is the acting director of the Department of Education Bureau of Teacher Certification. Ms. Graham testified that at the present time there is no specific instructional endorsement required to be possessed by one who is assigned to teach computer courses. Ms. Graham explained that anyone with an instructional certificate and any endorsement may be assigned to teach a computer course. Ms. Graham noted that her predecessor sent a memorandum (I-1) to all chief school administrators during July 1985 advising only that "computer education teachers must possess an instructional certificate."

Petitioner suggests that only the holder of an instructional certificate with a comprehensive business endorsement such as she possesses, or a data processing endorsement, is properly certificated to teach computer courses. The endorsement data processing, N.J.A.C. 6:11-6.2(a)(4)(iii), authorizes the holder to teach data processing in all public schools. The regulations explains that data processing normally includes the areas of keypunching, unit record operation, computer operation, programming and technology. However, as pointed out by the Board in its memorandum, the data processing endorsement regulation has not been revised since 1984 when computers were not standard classroom fixtures. More importantly, however, the Commissioner held in South River Education Association v. the Board of Ed of the Borough of South River, 1987 S.L.D. - (decided Nov. 4, 1987) that there is no separate endorsement for the teaching of computer literacy. While the State Board of Education observed in Morgan v. Wayne Board of Ed, 1991 S.L.D. - (decided Nov. 8, 1991) that a specific endorsement may be necessary when a computer course involves highly advanced and technologically sophisticated skills, it has not yet determined by rule the specific endorsement it had in mind.

Intervenors properly point out that even if petitioner is correct that a data processing endorsement is required to teach computer courses, she has no claim to teach those courses since she does not possess that endorsement. While a comprehensive business education endorsement would facially suggest that data processing is included as an authorized subject area for the holder to teach, the comprehensive business education endorsement is specific that the subject areas the holder is authorized to teach include bookkeeping and accounting, secretarial studies, general business, consumer education, business math, and business English.

Presently, a teacher of computers must possess an instructional certificate with any endorsement. Intervenors Ostrowski, Williams, and Matcho each possess an instructional certificate with one or more endorsements. Consequently, these three intervenors are authorized to teach the respective courses. Each of these three intervenors has greater seniority than has petitioner. Consequently, petitioner has no claim against the Board with respect to its 1991-92 assignments of intervenors Ostrowski, Williams, or Matcho.

II

With respect to petitioner's second allegation, the facts show intervenor Edith Fouratt has eight years seniority as of June 30, 1991. (J-1). She possesses an instructional certificate with an endorsement to teach mathematics. The endorsement to teach mathematics authorizes the holder "to teach mathematics in all public schools". N.J.A.C. 6:11-6.2(a)(14). During 1991-92 Fouratt was assigned to teach Introduction to Computer Programing. This course is designed to introduce pupils to computers, their uses, and impact upon society. Algorithmic logic is introduced, as is programing in BASIC language using loops, sort, search routines and graphics. Among other proficiencies expected to be acquired by pupils are the ability to convert between binary, hexadecimal, and the decimal number system. Intervenor Fouratt, who is assigned this course on the strength of her endorsement to teach mathematics, testified without contradiction that this course is in the mathematics department and pupils receive mathematics credit for successfully passing it.

Petitioner maintains that if it is correct all one needs to teach computer courses is an instructional certificate with any endorsement then she should have been assigned to teach Introduction to Computer Programming over intervenor Fouratt on the basis of seniority. Petitioner points out that she has ten years seniority, while Fouratt has eight years seniority. The Board notes that this course, Introduction to Computer Programming, is essentially a mathematics course which provides instruction and skills in mathematics. Computers are merely the vehicle utilized to teach those skills. Consequently, the Board maintains that a mathematics endorsement to an instructional certificate is the appropriate endorsement for this course. Petitioner simply claims that if this course is a mathematics course intervenor Matcho would not have been assigned to teach it because he is not properly certified to teach mathematics.

While a joint exhibit (J-1) shows Matcho taught Introduction to Computer Programming during 1991-92, the Board points out in its filed memorandum at page eight that that is error. The Board asserts, without contradiction, that Matcho taught Keyboarding/Introduction to Computers which is another course in its business department.

According to the evidence in this record, Introduction to Computer Programming is properly considered a mathematics course in that pupils are to become proficient in the ability to convert between binary, hexadecimal and the decimal number system as well as the use of algorithmic logic. Petitioner produced no evidence upon which any finding could be made that the Board assigned this course to its mathematics department in bad faith. Therefore, I CONCLUDE intervenor Fouratt is properly certificated to teach Introduction to Computer Programing on the strength of her endorsement to teach mathematics. I also conclude petitioner is not properly certificated to teach this course because she does not possess an endorsement to teach mathematics. Finally, I conclude because petitioner is not properly certificated to teach this course she has no enforceable claim against the Board regarding its assignment of Intervenor Fouratt to teach Introduction to Computer Programing for 1991-92.

III

With respect to petitioner's third allegations intervenor Neil Campanella has 11 years seniority as of June 30, 1991. (J-1). He possesses an instructional certificate with an endorsement to teach mathematics. During 1991-92 Campanella was assigned to teach Money Management for Everyday Life and Money Management in Planning the Future.

The courses Money Management for Everyday Life and Money Management in Planning the Future are described in course outlines (See J-7). These two course are one semester each and, combined, constitute a one year course. The former course is designed to assist pupils make real-world consumer decisions through basic arithmetic and problem-solving skills. The assigned text is "Consumer Mathematics". General proficiencies pupils are expected to acquire include the application of basic arithmetic skills such as addition, subtraction, multiplication, and division to computing regular and overtime wages, deductions, checking and savings accounts, sales tax, preparing a budget, and the like. The latter course is designed to assist pupils to use money wisely in regard to shelter, paying bills, and making investments. Specific pupil proficiencies include understanding data, the computation of residential bills such as telephone, electric, and gas, the computations of wages and state and federal taxes to be paid, determining the value of house, life and automobile insurance, and understanding stocks and bonds.

Petitioner maintains that intervenor Campanella is not authorized to teach these money management courses on the strength of his endorsement to teach mathematics because the course are business courses for which Campanella holds no endorsement. The Board and intervenor Campanella insist these courses are mathematics courses, not business courses.

The parties agree that the issue to be resolved is the nature of the course itself. That is, is the thrust of the course to teach mathematics or business while incidentally relying upon skills unique to the other discipline. Petitioner points out that the titles of the courses include "Money Management", not mathematics; the text book for both courses, petitioner says is a business education text, although it is noted the title is "Consumer Mathematics"; the outline of the course addresses the purchases of an automobile, insurance, clothes, food, and earning a salary along with banking, investments, housing and taxation. The subject areas covered according to the outline are business oriented, although petitioner acknowledges that the required proficiencies focus on arithmetic applications within the business context.

Intervenor Campanella points out that regardless of the course title, the thrust of the courses is on mathematics because they focus on the practical application of mathematics skills and concepts in everyday life. Despite the fact that the mathematics skills taught are utilized within a consumer setting the mathematical focus of each course does not change.

While the course titles contain the words "Money Management" and suggest a business orientation, the text "Consumer Mathematics" suggests the focus of the courses is on basic mathematics. When the proficiencies pupils are expected to achieve are considered, the conclusion is reached that both courses are properly considered mathematics courses. The focus of these courses does not appear to be upon how regular and overtime wages may be enhanced, the why or how of paycheck deductions, the theory of checking and/or savings accounts or the like. Rather, the focus of the course does appear to have been designed for those high school pupils who have not mastered basic arithmetic skills.

I have considered petitioner's reasons why she contends these courses are pure business courses but those reasons simply are not persuasive. Pupils who enroll in these two courses receive mathematics credit, the text is "Consumer Mathematics", and, the focus of the course is to strengthen basic arithmetic skills within the context of everyday life. Consequently, I find that Money Management for Everyday Life and Money Management in Planning the Future are mathematics courses and that the teacher assigned must be in possession of a mathematics endorsement. Intervenor Campanella possesses a mathematics endorsement; petitioner does not. Therefore, petitioner failed to show an enforceable claim against the Board for having assigned intervenor Campanella to teach these courses for 1991-92.

Therefore, I find petitioner has failed in her claim that the Board violated her tenure and/or seniority by assigning intervenor Campanella to these courses for 1991-92.

IV

Finally, with respect to petitioner's fourth allegation it is not disputed that three nontenured teachers were assigned three part-time teaching positions at three separate middles schools which the Board describes in its memorandum at page 5 as "three large middles schools serving the [Piscataway Township] sprawling suburban community." Neither petitioner, nor intervenors, nor participants dispute that assertion. However, intervenors join petitioner's claim that the Board violated her tenure by assigning three nontenure teachers to these part-time positions rather than combining the three positions into one full-time position for her. Participants join the Board in its argument that it is not obliged to create a full-time position for petitioner's benefit when to do so pupil schedules would be affected.

There is no evidence in this record to show why typing instruction was scheduled to occur simultaneously at each of the three middle schools when the three part-time positions were first created for 1990-91. It is recognized that the Board presently asserts it is under no obligation to consolidate these three part-time positions into one full-time position for petitioner's benefit because of the impact such a consolidation would have on pupil scheduling at each of the three schools. It cannot be determined on this record what impact, if any, a consolidation of the three part-time positions into one full-time position would have on pupil scheduling other than the obvious impact of pupils in each of the three middle schools receiving typing instruction at different times of the day.

It is recognized that petitioner seeks relief for 1991-92 and, consequently, the Board has available to it for that year the argument that to consolidate three part-time positions into one full-time position would have disrupted three existing class schedules at three separate schools. Of course, the preexisting class schedules "preexisted" for 1990-91. In order to reach whether the Board had an educational policy reason for refusing to consolidate the three positions into one full-time position for 1991-92, one would have to consider the why the three typing classes were scheduled to occur simultaneously at each of the three middle schools as of 1990-91. There is no evidence in this record to establish why the classes were simultaneously schedule for each of the three middle schools for 1990-91 nor 1991-92.

The State Board, in Valenski v. Board of Ed of Garwood, 1985 S.L.D. - (Nov. 13, 1985), held that while a local board has authority to reduce staff for legitimate reasons under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9, such authority may not be exercised in an arbitrary manner. The State Board recognized, nevertheless, that the elimination of employment of a tenure teacher must occur after the employing board eliminates positions of nontenured teachers who hold positions for which the tenure teacher is properly certificated. The State Board held that a board of education has the duty to attempt to assign the affected teacher to teach courses assigned to a nontenured teacher before reducing the tenured teacher's position from full-time.

In Laufenberg v. Ramapo Indian Hills Regional Board of Ed, 1991 S.L.D. - (Dec. 12, 1991) the Commissioner, adopting the initial decision of the administrative law judge, relied upon Valenski, supra, noted as follows:

> [T]he State Board reasoned that if the board does not have a sound educational policy, such as one favoring dual instruction for retaining the tenured and nontenured teacher, and full-time assignment of the tenured teacher does not affect pupil schedules (see Klinger, supra, 358), retaining the full-time teacher and reducing or eliminating the positions of nontenured teachers allows the board to achieve its goals without impairing the purposes underlying the tenure positions of the school laws. [Citation omitted].
> Therefore, if the respondent Board cannot establish it had educationally based reasons for not retaining petitioner, and thereby acknowledging her tenure rights, it has acted arbitrarily ***

To the extent the Board relies upon Klinger v. Cranbury Twp. Board of Ed, 190 N.J. Super. 354 (App. Div. 1984) in support of its primary defense that it is under no obligation to consolidate three part-time positions into one full-time position because the consolidation would "disrupt preexisting class schedules at three separate schools", such reliance is misplaced. In Klinger the court, in affirming an action to reduce a tenure teacher's employment to part-time, emphasized that its decision rested on the board's longstanding educational policy for dual instruction and the numerous problems inherent in altering that policy.

In this case, the Board has asserted as a defense to petitioner's claim to full-time employment as a teacher of typing for which she is properly certificated, that a consolidation would disrupt preexisting class schedules. However, there is no evidence in this record to reach such a finding. Therefore, I must conclude that the Board acted arbitrarily in refusing to consolidate the three part-time positions into one full-time position for 1991-92 and offering that full-time position to petitioner. Petitioner, by virtue of her tenure, was entitled to a full-time position as a teacher of typing in 1991-92 absent evidence to support the Board's assertion that such consolidation would disrupt pupil schedules.

Therefore, petitioner Taxman is entitled to the salary and other benefits and emoluments of employment she would have received for 1991-92 had the Board not violated her tenure rights by failing to consolidate three part-time teaching positions into one full-time position in recognition of those tenure rights.

It is so ORDERED.

SHARON TAXMAN,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF PISCATAWAY, MIDDLESEX COUNTY,	:	DECISION

The record and initial decision rendered by the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. The parties' exceptions and the replies thereto were timely filed pursuant to the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Petitioner, relying on her post-hearing brief and exceptions, avers that the ALJ misapplied the facts of the law necessitating reversal of his determinations in the first three parts of the initial decision relative to the business and computer courses at the middle school disputed in the instant matter. The Board and intervenors support the determinations reached by the ALJ relative to the positions discussed in Parts I, II and III of the initial decision.

The Board's exceptions are limited to the ALJ's determination that the Board was obligated to create a full-time teaching position in three separate middle schools for the typing courses disputed herein. Its disagreement with the ALJ rests on two arguments, i.e., he applied to the record a legal standard which was still evolving at the time of the hearing and thereafter, and that the Board was denied a fair opportunity to offer relevant evidence on the point once it was apparent this legal theory was being invoked in the matter. As to this, the Board argues, inter alia, that it did not become clear that such a claim was being pursued until post-hearing briefs were filed and that the confusion began with the Petition of Appeal itself which, it avers, even petitioner concedes misdescribed her claim. In support thereof, the Board recites from the initial decision the following:

> [P]etitioner filed the instant Petition on August 2, 1991 claiming that the present dispute stems from an action taken by the Board on June 24, 1991 by which it was to have "abolished" her full-time position. According to the evidence and undisputed facts in this record, that assertion is not accurate. The evidence shows that when the Board's Director of Personnel reminded Petitioner by letter (R-5) dated June 18, 1991 the 'on-leave' teacher was returning for 1991-92 and her employment would not be continued, he also advised that the Board intended to adopt a resolution on June 24, 1991 to "effectively terminate your employment at the end of this school year." This so-called termination of employment is understood here to refer to that employment held by petitioner during 1990-91 while the other teacher was on leave.
> The foregoing facts, together with Petitioner's filed [post-hearing] memorandum of law, show Petitioner more accurately alleges the Board violated her tenure and seniority rights by failing to provide her with full-time employment for 1991-92. [Initial Decision at 3.] [Emphasis added.] (Board's Exceptions, at p. 2)

The Board also sets forth a lengthy description of the procedural aspects of this case relative to the confusion over what claims petitioner was actually pursuing which is incorporated herein by reference. Among other things, the Board reiterates its argument that the legal theory regarding the three part-time middle school typing positions was first raised in petitioner's post-hearing brief wherein she cited Laufenberg, 1991 S.L.D. 2447 and McGlynn v. Sea Girt Board of Education, decided July 2, 1992, the former which was decided by the State Board shortly before the hearing was conducted and therefore not generally well known and the latter which was decided by the Commissioner three months after the factual record in the instant matter closed. As to this, the Board recites the following passage from its post-hearing reply brief to demonstrate that it alerted the ALJ well in advance of the initial decision that it wished to expand the hearing record to address the after-the-fact argument regarding the middle school typing positions and that it would be unfair to rest any decision on the legal theory belatedly offered by petitioner without affording it a reasonable opportunity to do so:

> Far from supporting petitioner's argument, Laufenberg and the cases cited in it support the Board in this case. The State Board there reaffirmed its earlier holding in Valinski v. Board of Education of the Borough of Garwood, S.B. #20-85 (decided November 13, 1985), that the Board's duty to a "riffed" instructor does not include creating or maintaining an otherwise unnecessary full-time position if, to do so, would "affect pupil schedules." [Valinski, supra, slip opinion at 5.]; See also Klinger v. Cranbury Tp. Bd. of Ed., 190 N.J. Super. 354 (App. Div. 1982).
> In McGlynn v. Sea Girt Board of Education, 1992 S.L.D. _____ (decided July 2, 1992), decided several months after the hearing in this case, the Administrative Law Judge noted the "unsettled" state of the law in this area, but felt that a modest alteration involving a small student body of only 147 students could be required to accommodate the rights of a tenured teacher whose position was abolished. We are confident that Your Honor's close reading of that decision will confirm that it addressed an employment action which, as a factual matter, was far removed from anything involved in our case. Moreover, it represents a development in the law, however modest, arising after the close of the factual record in our case and as to which we, of > course, had no opportunity to present proofs. There is no basis for inferring that the de minimis scheduling change at a tiny elementary school could be compared to the scheduling complications facing three large middle schools serving this sprawling suburban community.

> There is no contention that the duties of Taxman's former position were transferred to non-tenured instructors, or that non-tenured instructors were given preferential treatment in regard to any remaining position. It is clear that the result she urges is not required (or, we say, even permitted) by any existing precedent. At the same time, we recognize that the tenure and seniority decisions emanating from the State Board and our appellate courts in recent years have yielded surprising results, with broad policy implications for local school districts. Should Your Honor be at all inclined to consider extending the law in Taxman's favor, we respectfully suggest that such a policy decision be left to the Commissioner or higher authorities. [Letter brief dated September 18, 1992, from David B. Rubin, Esq., to Honorable Daniel B. McKeown.]

Further, the Board takes vigorous exception to the ALJ's statements on pages 10 and 12 of the initial decision relative to there being no evidence in the record regarding the scheduling of the three part-time typing courses, averring that the reason no such evidence was in the record should be obvious from the following passages found on pages 8 and 9 of the Board's exceptions:

> The reason there was no such evidence "in this record" should have been obvious. With the number of issues, parties and attorneys continuing to grow even after the hearing was concluded, and without a formal pretrial order in place squarely defining the issues in dispute, we were put in the position of responding to this point in Mr. Klausner's post-hearing brief based on a factual record not fully developed.
> The result is manifestly unfair to the Board, and points up the necessary role of the prehearing conference procedure in cases where the factual contentions and legal theories are not immediately apparent from the pleadings.[2] As another administrative law judge observed in the initial decision in McGlynn issued May 1992 issued after the hearing below:

> The tension between the authority of a local board of education not to change its pupil schedules to accommodate a tenured teacher subject to a RIF and the entitlement of a RIFFED tenure teacher to preference a retention within the endorsements on his or her certificate as against a non-tenured teacher remains unsettled. The courts have sustained both views. [Id. at 12.]....

[2] This is by no means intended as a criticism of Judge McKeown's handling of the case. His decision to forego a mandatory prehearing conference was no doubt motivated by a long history of counsel's voluntary cooperation as adversaries in many cases before him in the past. The Board's counsel should not be faulted either. The petition of appeal was clear enough -- it clearly alleged a claim which, on its face, the Board was confident it could defeat. As Judge McKeown himself later observed, however, the petition misdescribed Taxman's claim, the complete basis of which only became apparent (we suspect, to Taxman's counsel as well) "with petitioner's filed [post-hearing] memorandum of law." [Initial Decision at 3.]

It is the Board's position that pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.5(b) and N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.7(a), the Commissioner has the power to rectify the error that has occurred in the instant matter by remanding it to the Office of Administrative Law.

Petitioner urges that the Board's arguments are inaccurate, averring that one of the issues presented at hearing was her claim that three nontenured business teachers were retained in the middle schools while her tenured position was eliminated. She further avers that the Board introduced a number of exhibits relative to the issue, Exhibit R-1, a letter from its director of personnel to petitioner offering her one of the part-time positions; Exhibit R-2, her response which questions why she is not being given a full-time position; Exhibit R-3, the director's response thereto; Exhibit R-4, petitioner's response to the director's letter wherein she states, inter alia, "...I find it difficult to understand why you would create three part-time teaching positions with an intentional scheduling of classes at the same hours at all three middle schools...;" Exhibit R-5; and Exhibit R-6.

It is petitioner's position that at no time either in writing or testimony did the Board provide a valid educational reason for not combining the nontenured positions into a full-time position. She further avers that the Board was fully cognizant of the issue given the fact the nontenured typing teachers were participants in the matter and the above-cited exhibits were presented by the Board and testimony taken in regard thereto by the Board's personnel director. As to this, petitioner argues that it is simply insupportable that the Board was surprised by the arguments of her counsel in that she clearly and unambiguously requested that a full-time position be created, rather than three part-time positions, before her petition was filed and ten months before the hearing. (Petitioner's Exceptions, at p. 7)

In response to the Board's request for a remand of the matter to the Office of Administrative Law, petitioner states, inter alia, > N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.7(a) is inapplicable to this matter. The Board was on pristine clear notice, as previously stated, that Taxman wanted to know why non-tenured schedules were not adjusted so that she could have a full-time position.

> This issue was not newly raised or incompletely considered by Judge McKeown. Rather, the Board, for its own tactical or strategic reasons, [chose] not to introduce testimony on the alleged educational soundness of its decision. Mr. Moore easily could have been questioned on this point. The Board, not Petitioner, while questioning him about the substantial correspondence, could have asked Mr. Moore to explain to the Court, and Mrs. Taxman, "why you (the Board) would create three part-time teaching positions with an intentional scheduling of these classes at the same hours at all three middle schools" (R4) or why "you failed to explain to me why none of the typing classes, in any of the middle schools which are presently scheduled to be taught the last two periods of the day, are not being taught in the morning so that I can have a full time schedule" as she asked, in her letter of June 21, 1991 (R6). It chose not to do so.

Further, a review of Respondent's post-hearing brief discloses no request, by the Board to either reopen the record or supplement the record by affidavit. It is only now that the Board urges that it should have been permitted to "expand the hearing record . . ." and "that it would be unfair to rest any decision on that ground without affording us a reasonable opportunity to do so" (Page 7).

Petitioner asserts that there was a full and fair hearing and that Respondent had notice of this issue before the hearings. The Pretrial discovery also shows notice to all attorneys.
(Petitioner's Exceptions, at pp. 7-8)

As to the Board's arguments that the ALJ misapplied the law to the facts, petitioner avers:

The Board also argues that the A.L.J. misapplied the law to these facts. It first asserts that "Laufenberg v. Ramapo Indian Hills Regional High School District, 1991 SLD 2447 was decided by the State Board on December 12, 1991, shortly before the hearing and well before it had been generally circulated in the school law community." (Page 5 of exceptions). Petitioner finds it hard to believe that Respondent was unaware of this decision for more than four months after its issuance. Counsel had a copy of same by February, 1992.

McGlynn v. Sea Girt Board of Education, 1992 S.L.D. --- (7/2/92) was ignored by the A.L.J. in his decision.

> Valinski v. Garwood Board of Education, 1985 S.L.D. was nearly seven years old at the time of this hearing.
> Laufenberg, supra was not newly created law as suggested. Rather, the result reached therein was the necessary consequence of Klinger vs. Cranbury Township Board of Education, 190 N.J. Super. 354 (App. Div. 1982); Lingelback vs. Hopatcong Board of Education; Miller vs. Mendham Twp. Board of Education; Capodilupo v. West Orange Board of Education, 218 N.J. Super. 510 (App. Div. 1987); Bednar v. Westwood Board of Education, 221 N.J. Super. 231 (App. Div. 1987) and Miles vs. Watchung Board of Education, 1984 S.L.D. 1058, aff'd State Board 1984 S.L.D. 1069.
> Respondent had a full, fair and complete hearing and received a decision that was based upon all evidence presented. (Id. at pp. 9-10)

The tenured intervenors disagree with petitioner that the ALJ erred in his determination as to their respective positions discussed in parts I through III of the initial decision but they concur with petitioner's reply to the Board's exceptions that the ALJ reached a proper conclusion of law relative to petitioner's right to the typing positions held by the nontenured middle school teachers.

The participant nontenured teachers fully adopt the position set forth by the Board relative to the middle school typing positions. They further point out that although the instant matter was filed in August 1991, they were not granted participant status until June 1992 after the hearing had been conducted. As with the Board, participants urge that the legal standard used by the ALJ was still evolving when the hearing was held and given the position petitioner had advanced, they too aver that there is a need for the matter to be remanded to complete the record.

COMMISSIONER'S DETERMINATION

Upon a thorough review of the record in this matter including the various exceptions submitted by the parties, the Commissioner concurs with and adopts as his own the findings and conclusions of the ALJ as set forth in the initial decision. As to the arguments set forth by the parties relative to the three part-time middle school typing positions, the Commissioner finds and determines, for the reasons set forth below, that the ALJ did not deny the Board an opportunity to expand the record nor is the law so "unsettled" as to a tenured teacher's rights being paramount over those who are nontenured that the Board was in any way disadvantaged in the ALJ's disposition of this matter.

The Commissioner's review of the record does not support the Board's contention that it requested, and the ALJ denied, an opportunity to expand the hearing record to address petitioner's "after-the-fact" arguments about the nontenured teachers. Even granting arguendo that the Board did not have specific notice that petitioner was making a claim for the three middle school typing positions held by nontenured teachers prior to the hearing on April 21, 1992, the record supports that at least on or near the date of the hearing, the Board knew or should have known that the nontenured teachers were being accorded an opportunity to participate in the matter. See letter of April 23, 1992 from Mr. Friedman to the ALJ. Moreover, it is clear from the record that the post-hearing briefing schedule was specifically set to accommodate that participation. Given the nature of the case, i.e., a claim that petitioner's tenure and seniority rights had been violated and the correspondence relative to the participation of the nontenured teachers, it simply is not reasonable for the Board not to have anticipated that petitioner was seeking a full-time position out of the three part-time positions, particularly in light of the correspondence going back and forth between petitioner and the Board from as early a date as May 1990 (Exhibits R-1 through R-6) in which the issue was directly debated. Likewise, the Board knew or should have known that if it was shown that petitioner was qualified to teach the positions, she would be entitled to them unless the Board could demonstrate a compelling educational reason to defeat her tenure rights. See Capodilupo v. West Orange Board of Education, 218 N.J. Super. 510 (App. Div. 1987), Bednar v. Westwood Board of Education, 221 N.J. Super. 231 (App. Div. 1987). Moreover, while the law may still be "evolving" in the sense that there is no clear-cut formula which exists to define when a tenured teacher's claim may be defeated because of the disruptive impact the accommodation of those rights may cause on the scheduling of courses or assignment of teachers to given classes, the law is not in the least new or unsettled that a tenured teacher has employment rights which must be given the utmost deference except when it can be demonstrated that the board would have to stand on its head to honor those rights. Fitzpatrick et al. v. Weehawkin Board of Education, 1980 S.L.D. 595, 1982 S.L.D. 1500; Dorothy Godwin Davis v. Board of Education of the Township of Ewing, Mercer County, decided April 29, 1985, aff'd State Board September 4, 1985; Valinski, supra; Klinger, supra; Miller, supra

Moreover, if the Board believed it was not being accorded adequate means to establish its proofs, it could and should have specifically made a request of the ALJ to allow expansion of the record either through further limited hearing or through papers. A reasonable reading of the language cited ante from the Board's reply to petitioner's post-hearing brief does not, in the Commissioner's judgment, constitute such a request.

Therefore, it is determined that a remand to the Office of Administrative Law is not warranted, particularly in view of the fact that the record indicates that petitioner was restored to a full-time position for the 1992-93 school year and, thus, since the issue of combining the three part-time positions is moot, no disruption to the educational process will occur as a result of the relief granted herein.

Accordingly, for the reasons set forth in the initial decision and herein, the decision of the ALJ is adopted as the final decision in this matter.

PETITIONER-CROSS/APPELLANT,	:
V.	:	STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF PISCATAWAY, MIDDLESEX COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT-APPELLANT.	:

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, February 18, 1993

For the Petitioner-Cross/Appellant, Klausner, Hunter, Cige & Seid (Stephen E. Klausner, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Appellant, Rubin, Rubin, Malgran & Kuhn (David B. Rubin, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Intervenors, Zazzali, Zazzali, Fagella & Nowak (Richard A. Friedman, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Participants, Balk, Oxfeld, Mandell & Cohen (Randi Doner, Esq., of Counsel)

Sharon Taxman (hereinafter "petitioner"), a tenured teaching staff member holding an instructional certificate with a comprehensive business education endorsement, was subject to a reduction in force ("RIF") in June 1989 when her full-time teaching position was abolished by the Board of Education of the Township of Piscataway (hereinafter "Board"). Petitioner unsuccessfully challenged such action before the Commissioner of Education, and also filed a civil action in U.S. District Court under Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964. Petitioner was not employed by the Board in 1989-90.

SEPT. 1, 1993

In 1990-91, the Board created three part-time positions teaching typing in the district's three middle schools at the same time of day. Petitioner possessed the appropriate certification to teach such courses, and was offered one of the three part-time positions for 1990-91. In a letter to the Board's personnel director, petitioner declined the part-time offer, questioning the scheduling of three part-time positions when she was available for a full-time position. Petitioner was eventually employed full-time by the Board for the 1990-91 school year when another teacher took a leave of absence. Petitioner was advised in June 1991 that her employment would be terminated at the end of that academic year in that the teacher on leave was returning. As a result, she was advised, no full-time position would be available for her in 1991-92. She was, however, again offered one of the three part-time typing positions. Petitioner declined to accept such part-time offer, and all three positions were assigned to non-tenured teachers. Petitioner remained unemployed by the Board in 1991-92, but was recalled to full-time employment for 1992-93.

Petitioner filed the instant petition on August 6, 1991, claiming that this dispute arose from the Board's action in June 1991 when it "abolished Petitioner's full-time position." She alleged that the Board had "failed and refused to permit Petitioner to exercise her seniority rights." Petitioner did not specify the positions to which she claimed entitlement.

On March 20, 1992, the Administrative Law Judge ("ALJ") notified the parties that intervenor status had been granted to "teachers who are not yet identified in this matter."

A plenary hearing was held on April 21, 1992. During the course of that hearing, it was apparent that there still was uncertainty concerning the claims being made by petitioner. The non-tenured typing teachers had not been formally notified of the proceedings by petitioner, and were not represented at the hearing. Petitioner called one witness, Ida Graham, acting director of the State Department of Education Office of Teacher Certification, who testified as to the subject fields covered by a comprehensive business endorsement.

Following the close of petitioner's case, counsel for the Board requested that counsel for petitioner delineate his specific positions "so it doesn't surprise us in the [post-hearing] brief." Tr. 4/21/92, at 65. The ALJ thereupon asked counsel for petitioner to specify the claims being pursued in this proceeding. His response concerning the part-time typing positions was as follows:

> Mr. Klausner: Joint Exhibit 1, Paragraph 4, three non-tenured teaching one-third of the time in three separate middle schools.
> Judge McKeown: That's your claim?
>
> Mr. Klausner: Two, at least one of them. It's my understanding that they are all teaching by strange coincidence the very same hours of the day.
>
> Judge McKeown: Are you trying to imply something by saying "by strange coincidence."
>
> Mr. Klausner: I'm leaving that for the United States District Court of the District of New Jersey, a separate forum.

Id. at 66.

On May 6, 1992, the three non-tenured teachers who were assigned to the part-time typing positions were formally notified by petitioner of the instant action. On June 9, 1992, the ALJ granted them participant status.

On September 9, 1992, petitioner filed a post-hearing brief in which she alleged, inter alia, that the Board had violated her tenure rights by failing to consolidate the three part-time typing positions in the Board's three middle schools into one full-time position.

On January 7, 1993 the ALJ rendered his Initial Decision in this matter. He delineated petitioner's claims as alleging that her rights were violated:

> (1) when the Board assigned three specific teachers, Nancy Ostrowski, Deborah Williams, and Gerald Matcho, each of whom is an intervenor and each of whom has greater seniority than she, to teach Computers: Business Applications, Word Processing, Keyboarding/Introduction to Computers, and Adaptive Computers for which, she claims, the individuals are not properly certificated for the subjects they are assigned to teach; (2) by the Board assigning intervenor Edith Fouratt, who has less seniority then [sic] she, to teach Introduction to Computer Programming for which she, petitioner, is certificated; (3) by the Board assigning intervenor Neil Campanella, who has greater seniority then [sic] petitioner, to teach Money Management for Everyday Life and Money Management in Planning the Future for which he is not properly certificated but for which she is; and (4) by the Board assigning participant nontenure teachers to three part-time typing positions when by consolidating the three positions she could have had full-time employment.

Initial decision, slip op. at 4.

The ALJ concluded that petitioner had no entitlement to the positions she was claiming which were held by the tenured teachers, as set forth in the first three claims above. He did, however, conclude that the Board had violated petitioner's tenure rights in failing to consolidate the three part-time typing positions assigned to non-tenured teachers into one full-time position. Citing Klinger v. Cranbury Tp. Bd. of Ed., 190 N.J. Super. 355 (App. Div. 1982); Valinski v. Board of Education of the Borough of Garwood, decided by the State Board, November 13, 1985; and Laufenberg v. Ramapo Indian Hills Regional Board of Education, decided by the Commissioner, December 12, 1991, the ALJ found that there was no evidence in the record to indicate why the three typing positions were scheduled to occur simultaneously at each of the three schools and what impact, if any, consolidating the three part-time positions into one full-time position would have had on pupil scheduling.

On February 18, 1993, the Commissioner of Education adopted the findings and conclusions of the ALJ. The Commissioner rejected the Board's contention that it had not been given the opportunity to develop a record on petitioner's legal and factual claim regarding the non-tenured typing teachers raised in petitioner's post-hearing brief. The Commissioner concluded that "it simply is not reasonable for the Board not to have anticipated that petitioner was seeking a full-time position out of the three part-time positions..." Commissioner's decision, slip op. at 24. The Commissioner asserted that "[e]ven granting arguendo that the Board did not have specific notice that petitioner was making a claim for the three middle school typing positions held by nontenured teachers prior to the hearing on April 21, 1992, the record supports that at least on or near the date of the hearing, the Board knew or should have known that the nontenured teachers were being accorded an opportunity to participate in the matter." Id. at 23.

The Board has filed the instant appeal, limited to the Commissioner's determination that the Board had violated petitioner's tenure rights by failing to consolidate the part-time typing positions. The Board contends that the Commissioner applied a legal standard which was still evolving when the hearing was held and that it was denied a fair opportunity to offer relevant evidence on that point once it was apparent that petitioner was asserting such a claim. The petitioner has filed a cross-appeal limited to her claims to the positions assigned to the tenured teachers herein.

After a thorough review of the record, we affirm, for the reasons expressed therein, the Commissioner's decision to reject petitioner's claims to the positions assigned to tenured teachers. We, however, reverse the Commissioner's determination that petitioner's tenure rights were violated by the Board's failure to consolidate the part-time typing positions, and remand for the limited purpose of developing a record regarding the Board's action in scheduling those three part-time positions in different schools at the same time of day, and for a determination on petitioner's claim that her tenure rights had been violated by the Board's failure to consolidate. Although we reject the Board's contention that petitioner expressly waived such a claim at hearing or that the legal issue was not adequately settled at the time of hearing, we find that the petitioner did not assert her "failure to consolidate" allegation in a manner sufficient to fairly apprise the Board at the time of hearing that such a claim was being pursued in this proceeding.

Under the circumstances, we find that the Board could reasonably have concluded at hearing that petitioner was claiming entitlement in this particular proceeding to one of the part-time positions teaching typing, rather than alleging the Board's failure to consolidate those part-time positions into one full-time position.

As indicated above, the petition commencing these proceedings alleges violation of petitioner's seniority rights only,[1] and does not delineate the specific positions to which petitioner was claiming entitlement. The non-tenured typing teachers had not been formally notified of petitioner's case prior to hearing, were not represented at the hearing, and were not granted participant status until some time thereafter. Unfortunately, there was no prehearing order specifying the claims being pursued in these proceedings and it is evident that there was uncertainty even at the hearing as to the precise allegations being made. Indeed, the response of petitioner's counsel to the ALJ's query at hearing requesting clarification of petitioner's claims was so ambiguous as to heighten our confusion regarding the specifics of her claim in these proceedings regarding the typing positions. And, in fact, petitioner did not expressly raise her "failure to consolidate" allegation in this action until her post-hearing brief.[2]

The fact that the Board might or should have anticipated that petitioner would assert entitlement to a full-time typing position in this action is of no moment. It was petitioner's

[1] We note that petitioner's allegation that the Board failed to consolidate the part-time typing positions assigned to non-tenured teachers implicates her tenure, and not seniority, rights. See Capodilupo v. West Orange Bd. of Ed., 218 N.J. Super. 510 (App. Div. 1987), certif. den., 109 N.J. 514 (1987).

[2] We note that the correspondence in the record between petitioner and the Board regarding the Board's offer of one of the part-time typing positions was introduced into evidence by the Board, over petitioner's objections, for the purpose of demonstrating that "Mrs. Taxman was offered and refused the very position which she is now claiming she is entitled to." Tr. 4/21/92, at 75. Thus, it is evident that the Board believed at hearing that petitioner was only asserting her entitlement to a part-time typing position in this proceeding.

obligation to fairly apprise adverse parties of her claims. Cf. Miltz v. Borroughs-Shelving, a Div. of Lear, 203 N.J. Super. 451, 458 (App. Div. 1985). Under the circumstances, particularly in light of the opportunity given to petitioner at hearing to clarify her position, we find that she failed to put the Board on sufficient notice of her "failure to consolidate" claim so as to permit the Board to defend thereagainst at hearing.

Accordingly, we conclude that the interests of justice require a remand to the Commissioner of Education for transmittal to the Office of Administrative Law for the limited purpose of developing a record with regard to the Board's action in scheduling three part-time typing positions in different schools at the same time of day, and for a determination of petitioner's claim that her tenure rights were violated by the Board's failure to consolidate those positions. We stress that the Board has the burden on remand of establishing that there were educationally based reasons for maintaining three part-time positions, such as that consolidation of these positions would have disrupted class scheduling. See Valinski, supra. We affirm the Commissioner's decision on all other points.[3]

Petitioning teacher alleged Board improperly riffed her September 16, 1991 while retaining less senior teacher as teacher of computer/keyboarding. Petitioner was rehired March 2, 1992. Petitioner sought lost salary, lost medical benefits and other emoluments.

ALJ found since petitioner's seniority rights were clearly violated, she was entitled to compensation but not pre-judgment interest. She should have been retained as teacher of computer/keyboarding as no specific certificate or endorsement is required for that position at the elementary level. ALJ awarded back pay, lost medical benefits and other emoluments.

Citing State Board decision in South River Education Association wherein it was determined that an elementary endorsement qualifies an individual to teach computer education at the elementary level, Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision.

Record Closed: December 10, 1992 Decided: January 12, 1993

BEFORE DIANA C. SUKOVICH, ALJ:

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On October 17, 1991, Elizabeth Takakjian (petitioner or Takakjian) filed a petition with the Department of Education (Department) seeking certain specified relief from the Borough of Fairview Board of Education (Board or respondent). Respondent filed an answer on November 8, 1991 The matter was transmitted by the Department to the Office of Administrative Law on November 18, 1991 for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52 14F 1 to 13.

A hearing was held on October 19, 1992. Petitioner filed an initial brief on October 28, 1992; and respondent, on November 5, 1992. Petitioner filed a reply brief on November 9, 1992. A reply brief was not filed on behalf of respondent. This judge requested clarification from the parties of their positions and supporting legal citations. Respondent did so by letter submitted on December 9, 1992, and petitioner, on December 10, 1992 The record closed on December 10, 1992.

NATURE OF THE CASE

Takakjian is a full-time tenured teacher employed by the Board. She was subject to a reduction in force (RIF) by respondent effective September 16, 1991 and was subsequently rehired by the Board on March 2, 1992.

Petitioner argues that respondent continued the employment of another teacher, Robert Eagleson (Eagleson), who has less seniority than she, in violation of her tenure and seniority rights. Petitioner seeks back pay in the amount of $7,611.25; interest on that amount for March 2, 1992 to November 2, 1992, at a monthly rate of $47.57, totaling $428.13; lost medical benefits in the amount of $2,040.39; restoration of seniority rights; and contributions to the pension fund and Social Security. Respondent opposes awarding petitioner interest and lost medical benefits. The Board does not dispute that petitioner is entitled to back pay in the amount of $7,611.25.

STIPULATIONS

The parties entered into the following stipulations:

1. Petitioner is a full-time teacher in the employ of respondent and is presently on a child-rearing leave of absence.

2. Petitioner was certified as a teacher of English (August 1980) and as an elementary school teacher (July 1985).

3. Petitioner has been employed by respondent in the Lincoln School, initially as a certified aid during the 1985-86 school year, and she taught compensatory education from February 5, 1987 through the 1989 school year in grades two to eight. From September 1989 through June 1991, she taught seventh- and eighth-grade English and reading.

4. Because of the temporary closing of No. 2 School, respondent found it necessary to lay off seven teachers, including petitioner, and did so by voting to give a thirty-day notice of termination of employment at a special meeting on August 15, 1991.

5. The RIF applied to petitioner on September 16, 1991, and petitioner was rehired by respondent on March 2, 1992. She was on maternity leave from April 8, 1992 through May 30, 1992, and returned on June 1, 1992 as a second-grade teacher.

6. Respondent retained an employee, Eagleson, as a teacher of computer/keyboarding, who commenced his employment with respondent on September 1, 1987.

7. Eagleson was certified as an elementary-school teacher and teacher of social studies (June 1983). There is no special certification to teach computer/keyboarding.

8. Petitioner attained tenure with respondent on February 5, 1990, and Eagleson obtained tenure on September 4, 1990.

9. At the time of the RIF, petitioner was on Step 5 of the negotiated salary guide, earning a salary of $27,275.00.

10. Petitioner's monthly salary was $2,727.50. She received payment from respondent in September for one-half month, or $1,363.75. That amount for the balance of September and for the following five full months through February 1992 amounts to a total of $15,001.25, which petitioner claims she would have received if she had not been affected by the RIF.

11. Petitioner received unemployment benefits of $6,790.00 during the time she was unemployed and an additional $600.00 from respondent for substitute teaching, for a total of $7,390.00. The resulting loss of pay to petitioner is $7,611.25.

12. In addition to the loss of salary, Petitioner claims the following lost benefits:

    (a) Contributions to the pension fund and Social Security;

    (b) Loss of seniority rights for the break in service; and

    (c) Medical benefits. In this regard, petitioner was treated as a new employee upon her return on March 2, 1992, and a portion of her medical expenses for the birth of her child on April 9, 1992, were not covered by insurance.

13. No other employees of respondent would be affected if petitioner prevails.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Petitioner testified on her own behalf, and several documents were moved into evidence by her. Joint exhibits in support of the stipulations were also moved into evidence. Respondent did not present any witnesses.

Petitioner testified regarding medical expenses incurred by her in relationship to her pregnancy, as well as medical expenses incurred by her husband, and her reasons for not maintaining medical coverage through respondent at her own expense during the period she was unemployed. Petitioner maintained records on her personal computer, based upon billings sent to her, of the medical expenses in question, and she testified regarding those records. Petitioner also testified that based upon her prior experience, all medical expenses incurred would have been covered, if she had continued her insurance coverage, by a combination of payments by her own insurer as well as that of her husband.

Respondent argues that petitioner has not presented sufficient credible evidence to establish medical expenses incurred, as well as coverage. I am persuaded by respondent's arguments regarding coverage, but not by the Board's analysis pertaining to costs incurred

Petitioner was a credible witness, who impressed me as being very well organized. Although it would have been helpful to have copies of the bills in question in the record, petitioner's records were extremely detailed, including dates of service provision, names of doctors, types of services provided, as well as invoice numbers and charges. I am persuaded that petitioner has established, by a preponderance of the credible evidence, the amount of medical expenses incurred by her and her husband.

However, I am not persuaded that petitioner has met the burden of demonstrating, by the weight of the evidence, what expenses would have been covered if she had maintained insurance coverage. Questions pertaining to coverage are not as straightforward as inputting into personal records information from invoices. By petitioner's own testimony, certain expenses in the past have been excluded from coverage based upon policy exclusions. It is reasonable to assume that petitioner's medical insurance policy defines services covered and specifies exclusions. In the absence of testimony by an individual knowledgeable of the details and application of the insurance policies in question, the absence in the record of copies of the insurance policies for both petitioner and her husband is a fatal defect.

Based upon a review of the entire record, I FIND the following to be additional FACTS.

A special meeting of the Board was conducted on August 15, 1991. The minutes of this meeting are as stated in Exhibit J-4.

Petitioner's insurance coverage ended on October 31, 1991. Her husband, during the time in question, was covered by the Cigna Insurance Company (Cigna). The cost for petitioner to have maintained coverage via respondent pursuant to the system referred to as COBRA during her period of unemployment would have been $405.31 per month. The cost to continue coverage for the months of November 1991 through May 1992 would have been $2,431.86. Upon receiving notification of her termination under the RIF, petitioner was advised that she could continue her coverage under COBRA at the rate of $405.31 per month. Petitioner was also advised, prior to her termination, that her insurance coverage would end on October 31, 1991. Petitioner was pregnant at the time she was RIFfed. Upon her return to work, petitioner was not covered by insurance through her employment for an additional sixty days.

Petitioner did not maintain insurance on her own during the period in question because, based upon discussions with her husband, she concluded that it was cost prohibitive. More specifically, petitioner considered the fact that she did not know whether or when she might find another position and also the fact that she did not anticipate anything other than a routine pregnancy and delivery. As it turned out, petitioner unexpectedly had to undergo a caesarean procedure. Petitioner's prior practice regarding insurance claims pertaining to herself was to submit bills to the Board's insurance company and the balance of any unpaid bills to Cigna. Petitioner's practice in the past was also to save a portion of her employment remuneration.

Total unpaid expenses incurred by petitioner in relationship to the delivery of her child not covered by Cigna were $2,076.39. In addition, petitioner's husband incurred medical expenses of $220 in January 1992 Of this amount, $56 was covered by Cigna, leaving a balance of $164.

CONCLUSIONS

The Commissioner of the Department (Commissioner) generally has jurisdiction to hear and determine all controversies and disputes arising under the school laws. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9. Tenure and the implementation of RIFs are addressed in the school laws.

The services of all teaching-staff members and other employees in positions requiring them to hold appropriate certificates shall be under tenure during good behavior and efficiency. Such individuals shall not be dismissed or reduced in compensation except for inefficiency, incapacity, unbecoming conduct, or for other just cause, and then only in a specified manner after employment in a school district or under any board of education for certain specified time periods not at issue in this case. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5.

However, tenure provisions do not limit the right of any board of education to reduce the number of teaching staff members whenever, in the judgment of the board, it is advisable to do so for reasons of economy, because of a reduction in the number of pupils, because of changes in the administrative or supervisory organization of a district, or for other good cause. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9. Such dismissal shall be made on the basis of seniority according to standards to be established by the Commissioner with the approval of the State Board of Education (State Board). Id. at §28-10. The local board of education shall determine seniority of the persons affected according to such standards and shall notify each person of his or her seniority status.

The board may request that the Commissioner issue an advisory opinion regarding the applicability of the standards to particular situations. Such a request shall be referred to a panel composed of the County Superintendent, the Secretary of the State Board of Examiners, and the Assistant Commissioner of Education designated by the Commissioner. An advisory opinion shall be furnished by the panel. Such opinion shall not be binding upon the board of education or any other party in interest or the Commissioner or State Board if any controversy or dispute arises as a result of such determination and an appeal therefrom. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-11. Any teaching staff member dismissed as a result of a RIF shall remain on a preferred eligible list in the order of seniority for reemployment whenever a vacancy occurs in a position for which such person shall be qualified. Such individual shall be reemployed if and when such vacancy occurs. Id. at §28-12.

The State Board is authorized to issue appropriate certificates to teach pupils in public schools operated by boards of education. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-38. No staff member shall be employed in the public schools by any board of education unless he or she is the holder of a valid certificate. N.J.S.A. 18A:26-2. In establishing standards of seniority, the Commissioner shall classify, to the extent practical, the fields or categories of administrative, supervisory, teaching, or other educational services which are being performed in the school district and may, in his discretion, determine seniority upon the basis of years of service and experience within such fields or categories of service, as well as in the school system as a whole, or both. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-13. The services of any teaching staff member who is not the holder of an appropriate certificate, in full force and effect, issued by the State Board, may be terminated without charge or hearing. Id. at §14.

The Department has promulgated regulations regarding seniority and certification. The State Board of Examiners is granted the authority to grant appropriate certificates to teach in public schools operated by district boards of education. N.J.A.C. 6:11-2.2. The State Board shall issue three educational certificates: an instructional certificate, an administrative certificate, and an educational service certificate. The State Board may issue for each certificate a special endorsement under the appropriate certificate. Id. at §2.3

The requirement of certification applies to any person who is employed by a district board of education to perform duties that are regulated by the certification rules. N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.1(a). Each newly-employed or reassigned teaching member shall be required to exhibit an appropriate certificate before assuming responsibility for the performance of regulated duties. Id. at §3.1(b).

District boards of education shall assign position titles to teaching staff members which are recognized in the pertinent rules. Id. at §3.3(a). If a district board of education determines that the use of an unrecognized position title is desirable, or if a previously established unrecognized title exists, the board shall submit a written request for permission to use the proposed title to the county superintendent of schools prior to making an appointment. The county superintendent is authorized to make a determination of the appropriate certification and title for the position. Decisions rendered by county superintendents regarding titles and certificates for unrecognized positions shall be binding on future seniority determinations on a case-by-case basis. N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.3(b).

The standard certificate is a permanent one issued to candidates who have met all requirements for State certification. N.J.A.C. 6:11-4.1. Each teaching endorsement is required for the corresponding teaching assignment. Each endorsement is valid for all levels, except that the elementary endorsement is valid for grades nursery through eight in all public schools. Id. at §6.1(a) & 6.2(a)6. Teachers with elementary endorsements are not permitted to devote more than one-half time to teaching art, music, health, home economics, industrial arts, or physical education in elementary grades. N.J.A.C. 6:11-6.1(b).

Teaching endorsements and authorizations are specified in the applicable regulations. The elementary education endorsement authorizes its holder to serve as an elementary-school teacher in grades nursery through eight in all public schools.

Teachers with elementary endorsements are authorized to teach the common branch subjects, such as reading, writing, arithmetic, and spelling, in the secondary school. N.J.A.C. 6:11-6.2(a)6. The English endorsement authorizes the holder to teach English in all public schools. Id. at §(7). Similarly, the social studies endorsement authorizes the holder to teach social studies in all public schools. Id. at §(21). There are no endorsements and authorizations specified for computer and/or keyboarding.

Seniority is required to be determined according to the number of academic or calendar years for employment, or a fraction thereof, in the school district in specific categories as provided for in the pertinent regulations. N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.10(b). Whenever a person holds employment simultaneously under two or more subject-area endorsements or in two or more categories, seniority shall be counted in all subject-area endorsements and categories in which he or she has been employed. Id. at §(f).

Where the title of any employment is not properly descriptive of the duties performed, the holder thereof shall be placed in a category in accordance with the duties performed, not by title. If the title of any employment is not found in the certification rules or the seniority rules, the holder of the employment shall be classified as nearly as may be according to the duties performed, pursuant to the provisions of N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6. N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.10(g). Whenever a person shall move from or revert to a category, all periods of employment shall be credited towards his or her seniority in any and all categories in which he or she previously held employment. Id. at §(h). Whenever any person's particular employment shall be abolished in a category, he or she shall be given employment in the same category to which he or she is entitled by seniority. Id. at §(i).

The regulations pertaining to seniority set forth twenty-one specific categories. N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.10(l). That pertaining to "elementary" includes kindergarten, grades one through six, and grades seven and eight, without departmental instruction. N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.10(l)20. Any individual employed at the elementary level in a position requiring an educational service certificate or a special field endorsement shall acquire seniority only in the elementary category and only for the period of actual service under such educational services certificate or special subject field endorsement. Id. at §20(ii). The regulations in this respect recognize additional categories of specific educational service endorsements issued by the State Board and listed in the State Board's rules pertaining to teacher certification (N.J.A.C. 6:11). N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.10(l)21.

There is no question that petitioner's seniority rights were violated. As stipulated, she had more seniority with respondent than did Eagleson. Both had certifications in elementary education and petitioner, as indicated, had an additional certification in reading; and Eagleson, in social studies. It is clear from the applicable statutory and regulatory provisions that the concepts of certification and tenure based upon seniority are crucial. As discussed, there are no specific certifications or endorsements for computers and/or keyboarding. There is nothing in the record on which to base any findings or conclusions that, based upon their certifications, Eagleson should have been retained and Takakjian RIFfed. To the contrary, in light of petitioner's greater seniority, the conclusion that he should have been RIFfed and she retained is compelling It is clear that petitioner is entitled to an award of back pay. As noted hereinabove, respondent does not, in fact, dispute that she is. In addition, the amount of back pay to which she is entitled is not in dispute.

Respondent argues, however, that petitioner is not entitled to an award of interest or to any relief related to loss of medical coverage. I am persuaded that Takakjian is entitled to relief pertaining to loss of medical coverage, but not to an award of interest.

Baten et al. v. Oakland Board of Education, OAL DKT. EDU 7871-85 (July 15, 1986), modified, Comm'r of Ed. (August 25, 1986) (Baten), involved a case in which a tenured part-time teacher employed by the Oakland Board of Education failed to offer a full-time position to Baten, who was subject to a RIF in violation of her seniority rights. In determining that Baten should receive credit for the difference between seniority for part-time service rendered and the full-time service improperly held from her, the Commissioner stated the following:

> Her entitlements extend to all those which served to make her whole, i.e. all emoluments and benefits she would have received had she been properly assigned by the Board, including any difference in seniority credit between that actually received and what she would have received had she actually filled the position. [Commissioner's Decision at 5]

Similarly, in Camille v. Board of Education of the Northern Highlands Regional District, OAL DKT. EDU 5752-84 (Nov. 14, 1984), adopted, Comm'r of Ed. (Jan. 3, 1985) (Camille), the Commissioner determined that the school district had violated petitioner's seniority rights and therefore directed the school board " . . . to assign petitioner immediately to the position to which he is entitled and to provide him any salary, benefits, and emoluments that may have been lost as a result of the Board's improper actions in denying him the full-time physics position." Commissioner's Decision at 6.

There is no question that Takakjian would have been entitled to medical insurance coverage during the period in question but for the improper action of respondent in subjecting her to a RIF in violation of her seniority rights. I am persuaded that she should be placed in a position in which she would have been had the Board not taken the action in question.

The statutory powers of an agency should be liberally interpreted to allow it to achieve the task assigned to it. An administrative agency has implied incidental powers as may reasonably be adapted to that end. Such incidental powers have been extended to the fashioning of remedies, including the award of specific items of compensatory damages not expressly enumerated by statute Newark Board of Education v. Levitt, 197 N.J. Super. 239 (App. Div. 1984) (Levitt) It is reasonable to construe "emoluments" as encompassing all benefits, including medical coverage, to which a tenured individual would have been entitled but for improper action by a local school board. The granting of seniority in Baten is analogous to the relief requested by petitioner in this respect. Such a result is especially equitable in light of the fact that it is the responsibility of a local school board to ensure that a tenured employee's seniority rights are not violated when making personnel determinations. See Camille at 9.

The more difficult question presented in this case is what specific relief should be granted to petitioner. Respondent's argument that petitioner should have expended funds to continue insurance through COBRA and then sought monetary relief from the Board has some merit on its face. However, adoption of respondent's position would mean that an individual finding himself in petitioner's position might have to forgo coverage because of monetary considerations. It is also noted, parenthetically, that such a measure of damages has the potential to cost local school boards monies far in excess of the rate for individual employees to continue coverage under COBRA. On balance, I am persuaded that the risk in this respect is more equitably placed on the local school board, which, as discussed, has the responsibility to insure that seniority rights are not violated. Petitioner would not have been placed in a position of having to make a difficult decision if respondent had not taken action in violation of her seniority rights.

An alternative measure of relief might be the cost to provide insurance coverage for petitioner to respondent, if such would have been lower than the COBRA rates. However, respondent offered no evidence in this respect.

In light of my determination that petitioner has not provided sufficient credible evidence regarding the costs not covered by Cigna which would have been covered through her own coverage, the amount of uncompensated costs should not be an explicit measure of damages in this case. Based upon the circumstances of this case, I am persuaded that an equitable measure of relief for petitioner, although not a totally precise one, is a monetary award which is the equivalent of the amount it would have cost petitioner to continue coverage through COBRA for the period in question. However, as a practical matter, the cost to petitioner to have continued medical coverage for the months of November 1991 through May 1992 exceeds the total amount of medical expenses which were not covered. Therefore, based upon the specific facts of this case, I am persuaded that petitioner's relief should be the equivalent of the costs which were not covered ($2,240.30), notwithstanding that I am not persuaded that Takakjian has sufficiently demonstrated what, if any, portion of this amount would have been covered via her insurance coverage from respondent.

Although the Commissioner does not have the express statutory authority to grant prejudgment or postjudgment interest, it is " . . . an ancillary power which he must be deemed to have in order to fully execute his statutory responsibility to hear and determine all controversies and disputes arising out of the school laws." Levitt, 197 N.J. Super. at 245.

The Commissioner's powers are of "great breadth"; he has "fundamental and indispensable jurisdiction over all disputes and controversies arising under the school laws." Id. at 246. The Commissioner's jurisdiction over school litigation includes questions regarding tenure rights and permits the Commissioner to fix dollar amounts due for retroactive benefits when a question of the accrual of tenure rights is resolved in a teacher's favor. Id. Interest on a money award is an essential part of the award itself since the purpose of the fixed-sum award is to make a petitioner whole. Prejudgment interest is in contemplation of "damages" for the illegal detention of a legitimate claim or indebtedness. As such, it serves to indemnify a claimant for the loss of what the monies due him or her would presumably have earned if payment had not been delayed. 197 N.J. Super. at 246.

Regulations promulgated by the Department grant the Commissioner the authority to award prejudgment and/or postjudgment interest in any circumstances in which a petitioner has sought such relief and has successfully established a claim to a monetary award. N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.16(a). Prejudgment interest is that interest awarded from the period of time prior to the adjudication of a monetary claim, and postjudgment interest is interest determined by the Commissioner to be due to a petitioning party for that period of time after a claim has been successfully adjudicated but remains unsatisfied N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.16(b). Certain specified criteria apply when awarding interest. Prejudgment interest shall be awarded when the Commissioner has concluded that the denial of the monetary claim was an action taken in bad faith and/or has been determined to have been taken in deliberate violation of a statute or rule. Id. at §(c)1. The interest rate shall be based on the average rate of interest earned on investments by the party responsible for such payment during the period of time when the monies awarded were illegally detained. Id. at §(d)1.

Respondent argues that prejudgment interest should not be granted because the Board, in reaching its RIF determinations, concluded that the curriculum and implementation of computer programming were of paramount importance to provide the best education of students as mandated by statute. In this respect, respondent argues that petitioner was discharged because her computer credentials were not as strong as those of the retained teacher and that, in light of the fact that this area of law is uncertain, the Board determined that the best course of action had to be based upon the principle of providing a curriculum most beneficial for the students.

As petitioner argues, however, there is nothing in the evidence or in the stipulation of facts to support such assertions. The parties stipulated in pertinent part only that it was necessary for respondent to lay off seven teachers because of the temporary closing of No. 2 School. The minutes of the special meeting of August 15, 1991 shed no light on any additional considerations underlying the determination to RIF Takakjian. The Board's reliance on N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.10 is also misplaced. Respondent presented no evidence demonstrating that it complied with the requirements of that provision.

Notwithstanding, I am also not persuaded that petitioner has met the burden of demonstrating that the action in question was taken in bad faith and/or was taken in deliberate violation of applicable statutory or regulatory provisions. In this respect, I am not persuaded that an action contrary to seniority rights is per se a basis for granting prejudgment interest. Parenthetically, I also note that the methodology for computing interest advanced by petitioner is on its face not consistent with the applicable regulation.

I CONCLUDE that petitioner is entitled to an award of lost salary in the amount of $7,611.25; that petitioner is entitled to relief representing lost medical benefits and that a reasonable approximation of such benefits is $2,240.39; that petitioner is entitled to restoration of seniority rights; that petitioner is entitled to contributions to the pension fund and Social Security; and that petitioner is not entitled to prejudgment interest for the period between March 2, 1992 to November 2, 1992.

ORDER

It is hereby ORDERED that respondent reimburse petitioner, within sixty days of the effective date of this decision, in the amount of $7,611.25, representing lost salary, and the amount of $2,240.39, representing lost medical benefits, and that respondent restore to petitioner seniority rights and contributions to the pension fund and Social Security for the period in question.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 West State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." The record and initial decision rendered by the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon review of the initial decision, the Commissioner concurs with and adopts as his own the recommended decision of the Administrative Law Judge for the reasons set forth in the initial decision. The Commissioner notes for the record that the State Board of Education determined in South River Education Association et al. v. Board of Education of South River, 1987 S.L.D. 2724, that an elementary endorsement qualifies an individual to teach computer education at the elementary level.

Board certified nine charges of unbecoming conduct against respondent, tenured science teacher. Charges included racial statements to 7th/8th grade science class, inappropriate behavior during class, and school events, use of physical force, and continuing pattern of unprofessional conduct that triggered parent and student complaints.

In light of testimony, ALJ found that although respondent was capable of being an effective teacher, despite admonitions, he engaged in numerous instances of conduct that were sufficiently flagrant to warrant dismissal from employment. Respondent was ordered dismissed from his position. Petition of appeal concerning increment withholding was dismissed as ALJ found Board acted properly in withholding respondent's 1991-92 increment.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision and referred matter to State Board of Examiners for further appropriate action.

Stephen B. Hunter, Esq., for respondent-petitioner Campbell (Klausner, Hunter & Cige, attorneys)

Record Closed: October 8, 1992 Decided: November 20, 1992

BEFORE DANIEL B. McKEOWN, ALJ, t/a:

On April 29, 1991 Ward Campbell (or respondent) who is a teacher with a tenure status in the employ of the Princeton Regional School District Board of Education (Board), was advised that the Board determined to withhold an employment and adjustment salary increment from his salary for 1991-92. Petitioner Campbell appeals that action on the basis that the withholding of salary increments from him by the Board is arbitrary, capricious, without good cause, in bad faith and contrary to N.J.S.A. 18A: 29-14. On November 20, 1991 the Board determined to certify nine charges of unbecoming conduct against respondent Campbell to the Commissioner of Education for determination under the provisions of the Tenure Employees Hearing Law, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10, et seq., and suspended him without pay under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14. The Board seeks respondent's removal from its employ. After both matters were transferred July 15, 1991 by the Commissioner to the Office of Administrative Law as contested cases under the provisions of N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq., an Order consolidating both actions was entered without objection. A hearing was conducted in both matters on ten separate days between April 9 through June 10, 1992 at the Office of Administrative Law, Mercerville. Thereafter, counsel for the parties filed briefs in support of their respective positions. The record closed September 28, 1992 upon receipt of simultaneously filed reply letter memoranda.

Findings are reached in this initial decision that certain charges certified against respondent by the Board are proven true in fact. The conclusion is reached that the termination of employment is warranted due to the gravity of the conduct so proven. Petitioner Campbell's petition of appeal by which he challenges the Board's action to withhold the salary increments from him for 1991-92 is dismissed for failure of Campbell to demonstrate that that action is, under the circumstances, improper in any manner.

OVERVIEW OF CHARGES

The nine charges of unbecoming conduct filed with the Board by the superintendent of schools allege respondent Campbell (1) made inappropriate racial statements to a seventh/eighth grade science class during the 1991-92 school year; (2) made inappropriate racial statements to his middle school advisees during the 1991-92 academic school year; (3) made inappropriate and sexist comments to a female student during the 1991-92 academic year; (4) exhibited crude behavior during class and announced he has been known to use physical force; (5) shoved a student and caused him to fall over a chair; (6) directed and/or manipulated a student to recant a particular statement and to tell an untruth to the school administration in order to save himself, respondent, from potential disciplinary action; (7) bragged to the school administration that he disciplined a student for use of a "walkman" in class by throwing the student's walkman into the class aquarium; (8) had unjustified and inappropriate physical contact with various students; and, (9) during the course of his career engaged in a pattern of unprofessional conduct triggering complainant from parents, students and administrators which demonstrate he is unsuited to remain as a teaching staff member in the Princeton School District. Each of these written charges is accompanied by detailed specifications which shall be presented, along with the proofs of the parties regarding each charge, and findings thereon.

BACKGROUND

The extensive evidence in this case portrays respondent as either a highly-skilled professional who dedicates himself to being an effective teacher and role-model for all pupils, particularly low-achievers and minority pupils in general, or as an individual who, while possessing the qualities necessary to be a highly skilled professional and effective teacher when he so chose, is also highly skilled in denying, or at the very least, deflecting responsibility for his own conduct which he knew or should have known was offensive and highly unprofessional. The Board explains, which is not disputed by respondent, that an Agreement between the Board and the Association provides, in part, that complaints regarding teachers must be made in writing. (See CA-47, 48, & 49) If complaints were not reduced to writing, Witherspoon Middle School Principal William Johnson, who plays a major role in this case, understood such complaints to be without supporting fact and, thus, he would not consider them in the performance evaluation regarding the complained of teacher.

Following graduation from Rutgers College in 1975, respondent was employed by the Franklin Board of Education for two years until a reduction-in-force occurred. He then came to his present employment with the Princeton Board. Campbell possesses certification in comprehensive sciences, grades kindergarten through 12, and he holds endorsements to teach agriculture and environmental studies.

Generally, the written observations and evaluations of performance in this record portray, facially at least, respondent as a person who has been gifted with innate talents which, when combined with his academic capacity for the teaching of sciences, make for a remarkable teacher. He was initially employed by the Board for the 1977-78 academic year as a teacher of science, assigned to the John Witherspoon Middle School. Campbell remained at the middle school through 1983-84 but then was assigned to Princeton High School for 1984-85 to teach a variety of sciences courses. He remained at Princeton High School through 1985-86 when he was granted a leave of absence by the Board for 1986-87 and 1987-88. During Campbell's two year leave of absence for 1986-87 and 1987-88 he lived and worked in Nagoya, Japan. (See CA77-82) He also studied Aikido which he describes as a martial discipline. In Campbell's words regarding his interest in Aikido,

> I had been studying ecology for a long, long time  before college - - and I had become fascinated with what I perceived to be the - - energy - - the forces in nature and how despite their differences every Ecosystem follows the set of dynamics, the same set of principles through stars. But after a period of time I went searching to find someone who is teaching it and  found that it was being offered by YMCA right in town. I enrolled in Aikido classes at the Y.  The people were nonaggressive  [T]he entire premise in Aikido is that it's entirely defensive in posture. That it works in harmony with the forces of life, forces of the earth. And that any aggressive action or activity is simply redirected and turned to the ground or against the aggressor  I guess that I had some kind of capability  [M]y instructor -- who is Japanese  observed my practice and my development and I was kind of a precocious student  and [he] invited me to come study with him in [Japan]. ***

Along with studying Aikido, Campbell also taught English at a YMCA in Japan, functioned as an instructor at the high school level for the Nagoya Board of Education and taught at the University level. Campbell was also employed by a translation firm in Japan to rewrite certain materials.

Campbell returned to active employment with the Board for 1988-89 and continued in his assignment at the high school. He remained at the high school through 1989-90 and 1990-91, but was reassigned to the Middle School for 1991-92.

Respondent's teaching assignments during the course of his employment with the Board included seventh and eight grade science at the Witherspoon Middle School, biology, geology, meteorology, oceanography, environmental studies, astronomy, earth science, life science, and physical and biology sciences at Princeton High School. After respondent was awarded a baccalaureate degree from Rutgers College of Agriculture and Environmental Sciences, he acquired a master's degree from the New Jersey School of Conservation and Montclair State College, and he has completed all course work necessary to be issued a school administrator's certificate. In addition, Campbell studied environmental education in England under the auspices University of Pennsylvania, he has attended many workshops sponsored by the New Jersey Science Teacher Association, the New Jersey Earth Science Teachers Association, the Marine Sciences Consortium, the New Jersey School of Conservation, the Agricultural Extension Service, and the Soil Conservation Service. He has taken courses under the auspices of the National Science Foundation at Trenton State College in physics and energy related problems and under the same sponsorship he took a course in geology at Princeton University. Finally, respondent explained he was admitted to a post-masters program at Drexel University where he successfully completed a program in environmental chemistry.

During the course of his employment with the Board, respondent Campbell was awarded a $1,000 grant from the Exxon Research and Engineering Company in recognition >  [of] your dedicated and outstanding work as a educator and teacher, your leadership in applying novel teaching methods, for continuously the standards of high school education, the mentorship you provide to your students and the high level motivation you instill in them.

In addition, Campbell testified that Exxon also awarded him a personal computer and printer for use in his classroom to assist in the preparation of class assignments and to create a data base for his pupils to access.

Finally, Campbell, aside from all other activities listed above, was involved in extracurricular coaching assignments for the Board in soccer and as an assistant coach for the girls' basketball team. He says he spent many hours after school tutoring pupils and creating a pupil publication, Shadow Branches (CA-62), for science.

Respondent's service as a teacher to the Board was at least rated as satisfactory for he acquired a tenure status of employment. In fact, Witherspoon Middle School Principal William Johnson wrote the following recommendation to the then superintendent urging that Campbell be reemployed for 1980-81 which recommendation was followed, and of course, Campbell then acquired tenure. The recommendation is reproduced here in full:

> This recommendation is based on evaluations, conferences, and observations of Mr. Campbell's teaching by me during the past three years.
> During his tenure as a teacher at the John Witherspoon Middle School, Mr. Campbell has consistently performed his duties as a teacher of science in a highly satisfactory manner. He is very knowledgeable in his field and possesses the skill to impart the knowledge to his students in a very successful manner.
>
> Mr. Campbell's classroom is organized for a variety of science experiences to take place. Plants, simple machines, various solar gadgets and scientific pictures are on display. He and his students take pride in constantly changing and updating the displays.
>
> He utilizes a variety of teaching techniques that maintains a balance of lecture, class discussions, seat work, homework, and experimentations in an organized and productive manner.
>
> In the three years he has been at the middle school he has served as chairman of our Environmental Education Committee and boys lacrosse coach. For the past two years he has been one of the staff's faculty liaison representatives to the middle school PTO.
>
> His rapport with parents, staff and students has become very satisfactory. He has learned the basics that are effective with Princeton parents, students and staff. Knowing what is expected, Mr. Campbell has been very effective.
> I'm pleased to have an enthusiastic and energetic professional of his stature on the middle school staff. I recommend with enthusiasm and without hesitation that Mr. Campbell be granted tenure as a teacher in the Princeton Regional School District.

Observation reports and evaluations based on those observations (CA-1 through CA-14) preceding Johnson's recommendation that Campbell be allowed to acquire tenure through continued employment tend to support what appears to be Johnson's unqualified, laudatory recommendation on his behalf. The observations and evaluations contain remarks such as respondent is very confident about his ability, he has excellent rapport with students, he is very knowledgeable in the area of environmental education and has contributed significantly to the district's environmental education curriculum guide, he provides leadership, he is unselfish in giving time to his students and he has brought youthful exuberance to the faculty. Such comments are sprinkled liberally throughout respondent's observations and evaluations even during post-tenure years when he engaged in certain conduct which now forms the bases for various tenure charges.

Nevertheless, there are signals contained within several observations and evaluations which reveal respondent's teaching performance had areas in need of improvement not mentioned in Johnson's letter recommendation for tenure. More significantly, each signal for improvement was disclosed by school administrators despite his denials which are spread throughout this record. The areas needing improvement were not improved by respondent after he acquired tenure which, in turn, resulted in these charges of conduct unbecoming.

The very first observation report (CA-1) prepared by Principal Johnson during November 1977 mentions Johnson's concern that Campbell's self-assuredness hinders him from acquiring assistance from his peers and, consequently, Johnson suggested Campbell seek alternative ways to bring about change without offending his colleagues. The next observation (CA-2) prepared during February 1978 show's Johnson advising Campbell to be aware patience and a calm attitude in stressful situations with parents will bring about positive results. Thereafter, Johnson suggested Campbell evaluate his assignments frequently to insure they are not unrealistic for his students (CA-3), that he not, through his own conduct and speech, communicate to pupils in his class they have license to misbehave (CA-8) (CA-9), that shy students generally due poorly in large group setting and alternative ways of allowing such pupils to achieve must be found (CA-10), that he continue to work on his professional posture and maturity and continue to find alternative ways to deal with lower achieving students (CA-11).

Despite the foregoing suggestions for improvement which imply something less than acceptable performance in the identified areas, Campbell's observations and evaluations except two, continued to be laudatory after he acquired tenure, although as before, various observations do recommend areas for improvement. One unsatisfactory evaluation (CA-24) occurred during May 1984 and will be discussed with Charge Nine, while another unwritten, though unsatisfactory, evaluation occurred when respondent was notified April 29, 1991 the Board determined to withhold salary increments for 1991-92 for conduct unbecoming which action is contested here. (See PS-18)

Consequently, the evidence portrays respondent as a teacher with many talents who, simultaneously by his conduct before and after he acquired tenure, offended individuals or groups because of impatience, anger, frustration, arrogance, a lack of maturity, or a lack of professional judgment. Until the Board acted on April 23, 1991 to withhold respondent's salary increments no formal disciplinary action had ever been recommended to be taken against him by school administrators with one exception. During May 1984 when respondent's performance was initially evaluated as unsatisfactory, Principal Johnson recommended to the then superintendent that his salary increments be withheld. The then superintendent, who had recommendations from other principals to withhold increments of other teachers, was persuaded by the teachers' association that to withhold increments from several teachers would send a "bad message" to the Princeton community. Consequently, the then superintendent refused to forward Johnson's recommendation, and others, to the Board. During his employment at Princeton, respondent was issued three written reprimands because of his conduct.

It is noted that during 1979 a study was published and circulated in the Princeton Community entitled The Education of Black Students in Princeton Regional Schools by a Princeton teacher who had been granted a sabbatical leave in order to perform the work. She investigated reasons why the Princeton Regional Schools continue to be desegregated, but not integrated, in spite of the level of asserted sophistication of Princeton citizens and why a disproportionate number of black students seem to make up the rosters of special education and remedial classes despite efforts to improve basic skills levels and thereby raise levels of student achievement. (CA-59) That study was followed by another study entitled Review and Analysis of Special Education Programs and Child Study Team Services in the Princeton Regional Schools. This study was published and circulated as well in June 1984 by PACE Clinical Services, Inc. Part of this study focused on minority group representation in special education and found that while black children make up 12% of the total student population they account for 41% of all students found to be in need of special education. (CA-62) Finally, a study (CA-60) was published, date and author unknown, which had as its objective to identify appropriate intervention strategies to address inequities in minority student program participation and academic performance at Princeton. In addition to these studies, local newspapers reported on September 1, 1991 that the Princeton School District was awarded a $440,000 state desegregation grant to support programs for minority students and broaden its multicultural curriculum. (CA-74) In the meantime, other newspaper articles appeared regarding a community group having been formed whose goal was to improve the education of minority students in Princeton (CA-69), regarding special public meetings the Board held during December 1991 to discuss a report showing black and hispanic students do not perform as well as their white and Asian counterparts (CA-70), a report on December 20, 1991 of members of the administration meeting with community members to discuss ways to improve the academic performance of the district's minority pupils (CA-63 &66), a newspaper report on December 25, 1991 regarding requests made to the Board to take action in order to raise minority student performance (CA-64), and similar kinds of newspaper reports.

Respondent relies on the studies as well as the newspaper reports circulated throughout the community of Princeton along with what he says was his personal well-known concern for the lack of performance by minority students as justification for certain remarks he made to a pupil and remarks he made to other pupils during the afternoon and morning of September 11, 1991 and which form the bases for Charges One and Two. Moreover, Campbell relies on the circulation of the newspaper reports to demonstrate that the subject matter of his remarks is a matter of public concern and, as such, the remarks he made are protected speech under the First Amendment.

PROOFS ON THE CHARGES

Proofs in support of Charges One and Two shall be considered consecutively, after which findings on each charge shall be entered, because the alleged underlying conduct is similar and was to have occurred on the same day.

CHARGE ONE

The specifications to the allegation respondent made inappropriate racial statements to a seventh/eighth grade science class during 1991-92 are as follows:

2. On Wednesday, September 11, 1991, between 1:55 and 2:40 p.m., Ward Campbell was assigned to teach a 7th/8th grade science class.
3. During the course of the class Ward Campbell directed that A.A., a Black, male student, move to a seat and table closer to the front of the classroom.
4. Upon moving A.A.'s seat, Ward Campbell stated to A.A. words to the effect that, "I'm going to have to give you my Blacks in Princeton speech."
5. Ward Campbell's "Blacks in Princeton" statement was made in a voice loud enough to be heard by the other students in the class.
6. During the course of the same 7th/8th grade science class Ward Campbell disparaged the manner in which Black people spoke and stated that it was necessary to correct their speech.
7. During the course of the same 7th/8th grade science class Ward Campbell indicated that Blacks and Whites should be separated.
8. The racial statements made by Ward Campbell were embarrassing, disturbing and upsetting to the students of the class and were reported to their parents.
9. The racial statements made by Ward Campbell during his 7th/8th grade science class on September 11, 1991 led to a disruption at Back to School Night on the evening of September 11, 1991 and a confrontation between Mr. Campbell and a parent.

Eight pupils who witnessed and heard comments made by respondent in regard to this charge (K.A., O.B., T.D., J.G., C.B., A.A., S.K., and N.S.) testified at hearing. A.A., who is black and to whom respondent directed the asserted racial remark on September 11, 1991 during an afternoon seventh/eighth grade science class, had taken a seat at a table in the back of the classroom where several white pupils were already seated. A.A. began singing and talking in response to which respondent directed A.A. to take another seat in the front of the classroom. A.A. says that while simultaneously directing him to the front of the classroom, respondent stated that he, respondent, would have to give him his "Black People's talk about Princeton" and, eventually, that respondent said there has to be a separation between the races. Respondent denies saying anything regarding a "Blacks in Princeton speech" or separation of the races other than, and it is noted at counsel's suggestion on cross-examination of A.A., that black pupils have difficulty in high school because of the separation between black and white students. Respondent explains that what he did say to A.A. as he was directing him to the front of the classroom was "When you and I get the chance I want to talk to you of the special problems blacks have in high school. " Respondent says he made this statement in a low voice while standing next to A.A. as A.A. was seated at the front of the room.

However, K.A., a pupil who was present in the classroom at the time, testified that as respondent directed A.A. to the front of the classroom, she heard him exclaim to A.A. that he, respondent, would have to give A.A. his blacks in Princeton speech and that most of the kids that drop out of the high school are black and that minorities and Europeans should be separated. O.B., another pupil who was also present, is not certain what A.A. did but does recall that respondent said to him that he, respondent, was going to give him the speech about black people in Princeton. T.D., another pupil who was present, recalled A.A. was singing or talking in the back of the room when respondent told A.A. if he did not be quiet he would have to give him the speech about blacks living in Princeton, and that he, respondent, did not understand why minorities and Europeans were not separated, and that he, respondent did not like the way black people talked and he would have to correct A.A. every time he spoke a word.

J.G., another pupil who was present in the classroom, recalls that A.A. was sitting with a group of white pupils during which time he was singing and talking. According to J.G., respondent "yelled" at A.A. for sitting with them and told him to move. T.D. recalls that respondent exclaimed to the pupils that black and white pupils should not be sitting together and that he, respondent, did not like the way black people talked. On cross-examination, T.D. testified that she did hear respondent also tell A.A. that if he continued to misbehave he will have to tell him of the special problems black persons have in Princeton.

C.B., another pupil who was present in the classroom and heard and observed what occurred, testified that respondent did tell A.A. after having directed him to the front of the room that he, respondent, would have to give him the "Black People in Princeton talk". C.B. explained the 'black people in Princeton talk', as explained by respondent during an earlier class that day attended by C.B. and which forms the basis for Charge Two, is about three black girls that respondent had had in his class at the junior high school level. When the girls got to high school they got pulled in by other black pupils and they avoided their studies and did not succeed.

S.K., another pupil who was present in the classroom, recalls that after A.A. was singing in the back of the classroom, respondent told him to take a seat in the front of the room. Then, respondent was to have said to A. that they should have the "black kids in Princeton talk" after which respondent commented that black and whites should be separated in mind and reality and that A.A. "should get out now because you're [A.A.] going to be eaten alive in high school."

N.S., another pupil who was present in this classroom as well as the earlier class when respondent uttered certain remarks forming the basis for Charge Two, recalls that respondent uttered the substance of the asserted 'blacks in Princeton speech' to A.A. as he did in the earlier class. That is, N.S. recalls that respondent essentially stated that black pupils had to watch out when they went to high school because their black friends will try to make them just want to have fun and not study and that before they knew it they would fail high school.

In response to the comments attributed to respondent, A.A. felt sad, angry, and, I infer, humiliated because, in his view, teachers have to work with different kinds of persons from different races and should not make statements singling out black people. A.A. says that if respondent had something to say to him regarding his conduct, he should have talked to him after class but not in class particularly in the manner and content of the remarks made. Other pupils became angry, considered respondent a racist, thought respondent's comments were rude, surprising, and simply not right.

Respondent's recollection of the entire incident in the afternoon as well as during Back-to-School night is that despite school having been started for the year for several days, he was allowing pupils to sit where they wanted. A.A. reported to science class September 11 and took a seat in the back. He began singing. He was talking with other pupils who were seated at the same table. Respondent asked A.A. to move his seat to the front of the room which he did. In respondent's words "I looked at him and I said when you and I get the chance I want to talk to you about the problems that are special to black students in the high school." In response to why he made such a statement to A.A., respondent replied as follows:

> [Because of the] phrase, students at risk. He [A.A.] absolutely was a person that I wanted to talk to impress upon him that singing in class and lack of any discipline on his own was not going to stand in good stead when it came to being successful.

Respondent denies ever using the language of giving a "Blacks in Princeton Speech"; he denies uttering any comment regarding the separation between whites and blacks or Europeans and non-Europeans; and, he denies uttering any comment regarding the need to correct the speech of black students. Respondent denies any student, including A.A. , said anything to him after what he admits he said to A.A. Respondent also denies any criticism regarding the speech of black persons.

However, the testimony of J.G. and T.D. regarding respondent's criticism of the way black people talk was independently corroborated by Assistant Principal Owen Schneider on rebuttal. Schneider testified that from time to time respondent, in conversation with him, would refer to black pupils by using a so-called black dialect. Schneider characterized the dialect as slurred speech, distinctly southern, with improper grammar. Schneider points out that respondent normally spoke without a southern dialect, unslurred and proper speech. Schneider also noted that respondent, in using this asserted black dialect, was not describing the manner of words as may have been uttered to him by black pupils; rather, from time to time he would simply recount an episode he had had with a black student by using a so-called black dialect. Nevertheless, Schneider did not raise any concerns he may have had with respondent for speaking in that manner. (10T:92,103)

A Back-to School Program was scheduled for that very same evening, September 11, 1991. When A.A. left school for the day, he went to the hospital to see his mother who had just given birth. A.A. told his mother of what happened in respondent's classroom and as described above. Mother told A.A. to tell his father. His father, Mr. A., accompanied A.A. to Back-to School night that evening and on the way A.A. told father. According to father, he thought the matter was a minor incident due to A.A.'s misbehavior and told A.A. he would talk with respondent. In the meantime mother, after A.A. had left the hospital, told a mutual friend, Debra Curtis, who also happens to be a Board member. Ms. Curtis was at the school that evening and she told father of what mother had reported to her.

Father did not know respondent at the time, nor did he hear anything about respondent's reputation. He went to respondent's classroom in order to discuss the matter as reported to him by his son and to find out what occurred. When father arrived at the classroom, another group of parents was just breaking up. A.A. was with father. Other parents were filing into the classroom as well. Father, who acknowledges that by now he was upset because of conversations he had with other parents regarding respondent, introduced himself to respondent and asked what happened that afternoon in class. Respondent replied that that was not the time nor the place to discuss the matter and that he would discuss the matter with him later. Father then told respondent he was evading the matter and that if he was not hiding anything and if all that occurred was A.A. misbehaved and had to have his seat moved, then he would understand. But by respondent refusing to discuss the matter then and there, father believed and told respondent that something more was occurring other than what he was told by A.A. Father says that the other parents who were in the classroom also wanted to know what had occurred. Consequently, in light of respondent's refusal to discuss the matter he directed A.A. to report to the assembled group what had happened that day and A.A. began to explain. Father acknowledges he was "pretty close" to respondent and was holding his right finger very close to respondent's face, about one or two inches away. While father acknowledges raising his voice to respondent, he insists he was not shouting at him.

Respondent's recollection of the encounter with father during Back-to School night differs from that of father's. Initially, respondent notes that a policy at Back-to School night is teachers should not have private conversations with parents due to the number of parents that should be seen that evening. Respondent first noticed father, not because he knew him, but because he says father was "antsy", shifting on his feet, seemingly ill at ease. The classroom was filled with about 30 to 35 parents and pupils. Father took one step towards respondent and put his nose one quarter inch from respondent's, raised his left hand and stuck his finger in his face, and proceeded to scream at him with father's finger touching his, respondent's, eyelash demanding to know what occurred. Respondent replied that then was not the time to discuss the matter, while father continued to scream at him. Father was shouting

"This is how we have to treat people like you." All the while, respondent says, the whole room was yelling as if they were egging father on. Respondent recalls looking at father's fingernail and the fingertip, just for a second, and then according to the training he received in Akido began paying attention to father's "energy", not his finger. Then, according to respondent, father began to scream at him with his fingertip touching respondent's eyelash. Father was demanding to know what he had said to his son that afternoon and what he meant by it. Respondent replied that he had no idea who he was nor what he was talking about but that then was not the time nor the place to discuss whatever it was. Father continued to scream but respondent said three times he did not know who he was nor what he was talking about. Finally, respondent says he left the classroom, saw a teacher in the corridor, and asked her to get the principal.

After the principal arrived, respondent returned to the classroom where the principal was present. The principal got father to leave the classroom, and respondent finished his Back-to School duties. However, a meeting between and among father, A.A., the superintendent, Principal Johnson, Assistant Principal Turbeville, Board Member Curtis, and respondent was scheduled to be held that evening after Back-to School night.

Respondent says that at the meeting which was held after Back-to School night, he was "abused" again by father. As soon as respondent walked in to the meeting room, father began yelling at him again. Father complained that A.A. had told him he was misbehaving in class but that respondent said he had to give A.A. his talk about black people in Princeton. According to respondent, father proceeded to lecture him regarding a teacher's duty to always be positive and, having excused his son from the meeting room, told respondent that the reason he was angry in the classroom was that other parents were assuring him he, respondent, was of ill-repute and a child molester. Respondent recalls Board member Curtis making the statement that "children are afraid of you" and the superintendent asking him what he was going to do the following day when the children were afraid to come into his classroom.

The superintendent then directed the school principal, William Johnson, to investigate the entire matter and report back to her. The following morning, principal Johnson excused respondent from science class in which A.A. was enrolled so that he could secure statements from the pupils who were present during the incident. When respondent left the classroom, Johnson instructed the pupils that they were to write out five questions he was about to ask and to which he wanted answers. After the pupils wrote out the questions as recited to them by Johnson, they were then to answer the questions independently, without talking to anyone and without "foolishness." Johnson also instructed that everything asked must be answered accurately based solely on their own knowledge and not what they heard from others. When the pupils finished answering the questions, Johnson collected the statements. The five questions posed to the pupils were:

1. What happened in class September 11, 1991 that required the teacher to move a student's seat?

2. What did you hear the teacher say re: seat change?

3. How long did the situation take place?

4. After the situation what did the teacher say and do?

5. What did the students do after he spoke to the class?

Principal Johnson collected statements from 23 pupils that day, each of whom was present the day before during the incident with A.A. It is noted that the statements collected by Principal Johnson also addressed respondent's remarks to the four advisees in the earlier LM/SS/AA period which preceded the class when the incident between respondent and A.A. occurred. (See statements, PJ1-28 attached to Johnson's affidavit accompanying the Statement of Evidence along with the tenure charges). Johnson shared the statements with the superintendent and a further investigation of respondent's conduct was ordered. When the investigation was completed, Johnson met with respondent and a representative from the Association. Johnson advised respondent of what the pupils wrote in their statements to which respondent replied "no comment" on the advice of the Association representative.

Within days, parents who were in attendance at Back-to-School night, or whose children reported to them the exchange between respondent and A.A., and one parent who took offense at respondent stating that all black students fool around in high school, wrote letters to school administrators registering their offense taken by respondent's conduct and comments and demanding something be done. (PJ 34-40)

CHARGE TWO

The allegation that respondent engaged in conduct unbecoming by making inappropriate racial statements to Middle School advises assigned him during 1991-92 is accompanied by five relevant specifications which are reproduced here:

1. Ward Campbell was assigned as advisor for a group of Witherspoon Middle School students for the 1991-92 academic year.
2. On Wednesday, September 11, 1991 at approximately midday, Ward Campbell was assigned an advisee class (LM/SS/AA) which included Black, 7th/8th grade, male students C.B., N.S., D.T. and R.W.
3. During the course of this advisee period, Ward Campbell interrupted a discussion among Black, male students to explain to them what Ward Campbell perceived as the "Black Problem" in Princeton.
4. Ward Campbell stated to these advisees words to the effect that when he taught at Princeton High School, only a small percentage of his classes were Black students, but that most of them failed or dropped out. Mr. Campbell explained to these Black advisees that Blacks do not fit in socially at Princeton High School and that there is a great pressure from other Blacks to hang out with Black crowds and have fun, rather than study. Ward Campbell told these advisees a story concerning three Black female students in his high school class who experienced great difficulty because they did not fit in socially.
5. The 7th/8th grade advisees felt humiliated and belittled by Mr. Campbell's statements and understood Mr. Campbell to mean that there was a white barrier at the Princeton High School which would be very difficult, if not impossible, for them to overcome.

Respondent had just been reassigned to the Witherspoon Middle School for 1991-92 from the high school. Reference in specification 2 above to LM/SS/AA is explained by Middle School Principal Johnson as being a home room period from which pupils would be excused to go to music or other special subjects if they chose. Invariably five to ten students would remain with the assigned LM/SS/AA teacher, in this case respondent. During that period of time respondent could do one of three things with the pupils who remained. One, he could enrich the pupils' science curriculum if he so chose; he could engage in an advisee-advisor relationship with the pupils who remained in which he would talk about common problems they were having adjusting to adolescence; or, he could engage in enrichment activities. In regard to the advisee-advisor relationships, Johnson further explained that the teacher, respondent, was to talk with the pupils in terms of organizing themselves for study, getting along with each other, and to establish a rapport with the youngsters so that they know the teachers are there to assist not only in science, social studies, and the like, but in daily school problems which may occur.

On September 11, 1991 at a time prior to the events in Charge One, four black male pupils, C.B., N.S., B.T., and R.W., among others, were assigned respondent's LM/SS/AA period. These four pupils had been talking during the study period when respondent decided to tell them what C.B. called respondent's "Black People in Princeton Speech." Their collective testimony is that respondent told of the experience three black female pupils had at Princeton High School, all of whom had attended Witherspoon Middle School. Respondent told them they have to be careful when they attend Princeton High School because the black pupils who are already there will cause them to fail because all high school black pupils were only interested in a good time. According to the collective testimony of the pupils, Campbell explained that the three female pupils were good students at the Middle School and that despite his having encouraged them to do well at the high school, one female pupil became so frustrated she attacked a white girl and eventually transferred to another school. Another female black pupil failed out of high school, while the third was successful. C.B. testified that respondent was attempting to convey the message for them to study hard in high school and not to let other black pupils in high school "lean on you." N.S. felt that respondent's speech made no sense, was racist, and not intended to encourage him to study, because in his mind respondent was simply stereotyping all black pupils which made him, N.S., feel "bad." D.T. testified that as the result of respondent relating the story of the three black female pupils he felt hopeless and saw no use going to school, despite the fact he knows black pupils at the high school who do not fail R.W. testified he recalls wondering why respondent would say such things to them and that respondent's words made him feel personally that white high school teachers are just like respondent, advocates of the separation of races.

Respondent Campbell recalls an incident similar to that as described by the four pupils having occurred September 11, 1991 but in a different manner. Campbell says the advisee-advisor portion of this period was intended to allow middle school teachers to interact in an unstructured manner with the students who are present. Respondent says that there was a total number of perhaps five who were present at some part of this 40 minute period. All pupils who were present were also assigned respondent's homeroom. On this particular occasion, respondent says the four male pupils presented him two problems. One, C.B., N.S., D.T., and R.W. simply did not have enough to do in class and, two, they were not involved in supplemental activities offered by the school. Respondent perceived these four, and the two problems presented, as creating a discipline problem for him, although he does not explain why a discipline problem, as opposed to a creative teaching problem, was created. He concluded that the four were extremely bored and were wasting their time. Respondent says that during this particular period, he was going over rules for reading during the class. In respondent's view, the most important basic study skill is the ability to read which, in turn, would leave little time to be wasted. Knowing that Princeton High School functions for students who are self-disciplined, he urged the four to become self-disciplined or "autonomous little study units." Respondent says he then related an experience he had had the preceding year while he was still teaching at Princeton High School. Three black female students were assigned his biology class. Respondent says that because he had students fail his courses because they did not do the work, early on in the school year he pulled these three black females pupils aside and told them there may come a time "if you get really serious about your studies" when they are going to be pressured by their friends not to study hard in order to spend more time with them. Of the three female pupils to whom he spoke, one dropped the course because she simply did not do the work, another transferred to another school, while the third was very successful in his course. Respondent acknowledges having told the four male pupils that there is an inordinate number of black pupils in the high school remedial classes and if they begin high school in the remedial class it is very difficult to get out of that track. Consequently, he urged them, he says, to take advantage of the opportunity at the Witherspoon Middle School to strengthen their skills. Respondent acknowledges he did state that there is pressure on black students at the high school to have fun rather than study based on his personal observations.

Respondent justifies his remarks to the four advisees upon the central thesis that in reality the remarks are not racist, race-based, nor demeaning in any manner. Rather, respondent contends, the remarks simply reflect his professional concern for low achieving pupils and his efforts to motivate such pupils he identifies as having been "at risk." Furthermore, respondent says his professional concern for lower achieving pupils in Princeton is validated by the District's receipt of the $440,000 desegregation grant it received, and the earlier referenced studies which show "declining academic performance of African-American students and other minorities" in the upper elementary grades at Princeton. (Respondent's initial legal memorandum, p.104)

It is to be quickly noted, however, that scant evidence exists in this record to portray respondent as a champion of civil rights on behalf of black or other minority pupils as he suggests. There is no evidence to show respondent had any role in the preparation of any application filed by the Board with the Department of Education– which resulted in the desegregation award, nor is there any evidence that he had a legitimate claim by way of a superior plan to expend any portion of the award to develop and operate an approved project under the terms of the award whatever they may be. Nor is there evidence to show respondent discussed any deep and abiding concern he says he had for the lack of academic progress generally by minority students with the school principal, superintendent, Board, or community leaders.

It is recognized that four black adult witnesses, each of whom is employed by the Board, testified regarding their individual conversations with respondent and his asserted efforts to help minority pupils. Tynetta Howard, a black female who had been an aide to the child study team, had breakfast with respondent every day in school and discussed minority pupils with him. In her view, respondent always tried to get minority pupils on the same level as other pupils and to succeed in life. She discussed with respondent various ways minorities are left behind in school, but never by respondent because he always tried his very best. Joann Parker, a black female instructional aide, testified that respondent's reputation is that he encourages pupils to set goals for life and to work towards achieving those goals. Neither Ms. Parker nor Ms. Howard ever heard respondent utter any racially negative comments and he always treated both women with respect. Ms. Parker acknowledges she was never in respondent's classroom at either the high school or the Witherspoon Middle School. She and Ms. Howard do volunteer work for the same church in the community. Evelyn Counts, a black female now employed by the Board as a teacher of fifth grade, had known respondent when she was employed as an instructional assistant in prior years. She and respondent discussed educational issues over the years and his concern with whether he was reaching the pupils with whom he was working. Ms. Counts never heard a racist remark uttered by respondent and she finds him to be intelligent, compassionate and she admires what he does and how hard he works with all pupils. Other than for a few days during September 1991, the last time Ms. Counts was in respondent's presence, she thinks, was in 1984. Consequently, all conversations Ms. Counts had with respondent had to occur prior to that time in 1984. Robert Vivens, a black male teacher, testified that when he first began with this Board in 1984, respondent offered him assistance. They often discussed the pupils with whom they worked including race relations. Mr. Vivens acknowledges that but for a few days during September 1991 he had not seen respondent for several years.

Neither the individual nor collective testimony of these four individuals, though honestly given, portray an individual as a positive civil rights activist whose conduct in regard to Charges One and Two should be viewed as beyond reproach.

FINDINGS ON CHARGES ONE AND TWO

It is acknowledged that the testimony of pupils given against a teacher, particularly their teacher, is to be used with great caution because of the authority the teacher exercises over them. Being called as a witness in a tenure proceeding against their teacher could provide the opportunity for pupils to manufacture evidence against the teacher in order to resolve, in their minds, any disputes they may have had with the individual as the result of the teacher-pupil relationship. However, the testimony of a teacher subject to tenure charges should not be accepted at face value in the light of surrounding evidence which may tend to contradict sworn testimony given by the teacher under oath. This entire case is filled with conflicting testimony from pupils who claim they were subjected to misconduct at the hands of respondent, while respondent either denies, straight-out, allegations or attempts to explain them away as simply comments or actions misunderstood by the pupils.

There is no evidence to suggest, much less find, that the pupils who testified before me regarding the underlying conduct of respondent held any bias or ill will towards him relating to Charge One. There is no evidence to suggest that the testimony given by any one of these pupils, including A.A., was anything other than their true, honest, and accurate recollection of what they saw and what they heard.

In light of the overwhelming consistency of the testimony given by these pupils in regard to what they heard and saw regarding this charge, I find respondent's recollection and explanation of what occurred to be less then persuasive. Respondent's effort to discredit their testimony on cross-examination failed. There is no evidence to show why the four pupils in Charge Two were considered a discipline problem or "at risk" by respondent, nor is there any evidence for respondent to believe A.A. was "at risk" of failing high school, other than the fact all five pupils are black!

In regard to Charges One and Two, I have weighed the testimony carefully and considered the evidence presented. I find that by a fair preponderance of credible evidence regarding Charges One and Two, that the following facts are established:

CHARGE ONE

1. A.A. entered respondent's classroom on September 11, 1991 and took a seat at a table in the rear of the classroom where at least one or more white pupils were seated. A.A. began talking and singing. There is no evidence to show respondent had started that particular class.

2. Respondent became annoyed by A.A.'s talking and singing. In a voice loud enough to be heard by all pupils in the classroom who were paying attention, respondent ordered A.A. to take a seat in the front of the classroom while saying to him, words to the effect, "I'm going to have to give you my Blacks in Princeton speech." In addition, I also find that respondent exclaimed, to the effect and in a voice loud enough to be heard by all other pupils in the classroom who were paying attention, that the races should be separated which, I further find, was a direct reference to A.A. sitting with at least one or more white pupils in the back of the classroom. I further find that respondent exclaimed to A.A. that it was necessary for him to correct the speech of black people.

3. I find that the statements made by respondent were indeed disturbing, upsetting, and source of embarrassment not only to A.A., but to other pupils, black and white, who were present in the classroom.

4. I find that a confrontation did occur between respondent and A.A.'s father that evening at Back-to-School night. Father, according to the evidence in this record, was the aggressor in that confrontation. However, a confrontation, I specifically find, would not have occurred had respondent not uttered the remarks to A.A. in front of the entire class as the evidence in this case shows he did.

5. Respondent's conduct in regard to A.A. disrupted Back-to-School night and the Princeton school community.

6. The remarks made by respondent to A.A. on September 11, 1991 in the context of this charge were, I CONCLUDE, intended by respondent to discipline A.A. for having been talking and singing in the classroom. Such remarks were not intended by respondent, I specifically CONCLUDE, to advance the academic performance of A.A., or black or minority pupils in general because such remarks were made by respondent solely because he was annoyed. Finally, I CONCLUDE that the remarks to A.A. are racist in nature for they would not have been made by respondent to a nonblack pupil and the remarks are based solely on the fact A.A. is black.

CHARGE TWO

1. On September 11, 1991, but prior to respondent having uttered the remarks as found in Charge One, respondent was assigned an LM/SS/AA period.

2. Pupils C.B., N.S., B.T., and R.W., each of whom is black, were in attendance.

3. These four pupils were seen by respondent as creating a discipline problem for him, although there is no evidence in this record to suggest that any one of the four, in fact, presented any discipline problem, then or ever, for respondent in LM/SS/AA.

4. Nevertheless, respondent proceeded to tell these pupils what they label, and more likely than not what he referred to, as his "Black People in Princeton Speech."

5. Among other things, respondent did use words to convey the notion that black pupils at Princeton High School are only interested in having fun and that the four pupils before him should avoid all black pupils at the high school in order to be successful.

6. While respondent justifies the remarks as his effort to strengthen study skills of the four pupils, the fact established in this record is that respondent categorized an entire race of people as being interested only in fun, not academics, based on his purported experience with three black females and the published studies referenced earlier regarding the inordinate number of black pupils in remedial classes. The remarks, despite respondent's assertion, are not at all related to the improvement of study skills.

7. There is no evidence upon which to draw an inference that had these four pupils not presented in respondent's mind a disciplinary problem, respondent would have engaged in similar remarks as part of the LM/SS/AA period. Despite respondent's view that he perceived his remarks as a "pep talk" to these four pupils, three of the four pupils found his remarks racially offensive. Moreover, given the circumstance by which respondent acknowledged these four pupils were presenting a discipline problem, I find his remarks were made in the context of negative discipline for not having taken advantage of supplemental activities offered by the school instead of simply remaining in study hall and further, because they are black, with the asserted inherent interest of all black high school students only being interested in fun, they more likely than not will not succeed in high school.

8. There is not a scintilla of evidence in this record that any one of the these four pupils are without the skills, abilities, and determination to be successful in high school solely because of their race or color.

9. I conclude such remarks are racist in nature because they would not have been made to white pupils and the remarks are based solely on the fact the four pupils are black.

MOTION TO DISMISS
CHARGES ONE AND TWO

The evidence in this record, taken as a whole, shows more likely than not that had it not been for the incident in which respondent engaged with A.A. on September 11, 199, and the confrontation which occurred with A.A.'s father that evening, these charges would not have been certified against respondent at the present time. On that basis, respondent reasons that all charges must be dismissed because whatever it is he said to A.A. regarding 'black pupils at Princeton High School' matter of public concern evidenced by the published studies, earlier referenced, as well as newspaper reports, also earlier referenced. In this regard, respondent relies upon Pickering v. Board of Education, 391 U.S. 563, 20 L. Ed. 2d 811, 88 S. Ct. 1731 (1968), Mt. Healthy City Board of Education v. Doyle, 429 U.S. 274, 50 L. Ed. 2d 471, 97 S. Ct. 568 (1977), Ghiven v. Western Line Consolidated School District, 439 U.S. 410, 58 L. Ed. 2d 619, 99 S. Ct. 693 (1979), and Connick v. Myers, 461 U.S. 138, 75 L. Ed. 2d 708, 103 S. Ct. 1684 (1983). Respondent also cites what he says is the leading New Jersey case concerning First Amendments Rights, In re Pietrunti , 128 N.J. Super. 149 (App. Div. 1974), certif. denied 65 N.J. 573 (1974), cert. denied 419 U.S. 1057 (1974). Respondent also relies upon other cases which I find to be cumulative and, therefore, unnecessary to recite here.

The motion to dismiss was filed March 27, 1992 prior to the first day of hearing and it sought dismissal upon the 90 day rule N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2, laches, and the First Amendment. A letter ruling issued April 1, 1992 denying the motion on the application of the 90 day rule, N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2, and laches. The motion regarding the First Amendment was also denied at the time as being premature.

FIRST AMENDMENT CLAIM

In Pickering, the United States Supreme Court held that a State, or in this case the Board, may not condition public employment on a basis that infringes the employee's constitutionally protected interest in freedom of expression. The Court held that a balance must be struck between the interests of the employee as a citizen in commenting upon matters of public concern and the interest of the State, as an employer, in promoting the efficiency of the public services it performs through its employees. 391 U.S. at 568. In Mt. Healthy City Board of Ed. v. Doyle, a public school teacher was not rehired because he had relayed to a radio station the substance of a memorandum relating to teacher dress and appearance that the school principal had circulated to various teachers. The memorandum was apparently prompted by the view of some in the school administration that there was a relationship between teacher appearance and the public support for bond issues. The radio promptly announced the adoption of the dress code as a news item. Doyle, who was untenured, did not have his contract renewed by the Board. Doyle sued and the District Court held that Doyle was entitled to reinstatement with back pay because the Board had violated his First Amendment rights. The Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals affirmed the judgment of the District Court. The United States Supreme Court, however, vacated these judgments and remanded for further hearing on the basis that a public employee's claim of First Amendment violation by the employer involves a three step analysis. First, teachers must demonstrate that their conduct was protected; second, teachers must demonstrate such protected conduct was a substantial or motivating factor in the adverse employment decision; and third, the employer may show that the employment action would have been taken even in the absence of the protected conduct. 429 U.S., at 287.

Givhan v. Western Line Consolidated School District involved a First Amendment claim by a teacher whose employment contract was not renewed for what she claimed was a First Amendment violation based on private encounters with the school principal. The Court held that First Amendment protection applies when a public employee arranges to communicate privately with his employer rather than to express his views publicly. Finally, in Connick v. Myers, a case decided 15 years after Pickering, an assistant district attorney was dissatisfied with the proposed transfer and circulated a questionnaire to coworkers regarding transfers, office morale, the need for a grievance committee, amount of confidence in supervisors, and pressure to work in political campaigns. Connick was subsequently terminated and challenged that action as violating her First Amendment rights. The Federal District Court and Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals found that the primary reason for the discharge was Connick's survey which, it also found, involved matters of public concern and that the State had not clearly demonstrated that the questionnaire substantially interfered with the operation of the district attorney's office. The Supreme Court reversed the Court of Appeals having found that Connicks' questionnaire touched upon matters of public concern in only a most limited sense and that it was primarily a grievance concerning internal office policy. The Court, relying upon Pickering, held that the identification of protected activity under the First Amendment involves a two step process. One, the speech must have addressed a matter of public concern and, two, the interest of the employee in so speaking must be balanced against the interest of the State, as an employer, in promoting the efficiency of the public services it performs. The Court went on to note that this balancing of interests considers factors such as the need for harmony in the office or work place; whether the government's responsibilities require a close working relationship to exist between a plaintiff and coworkers when the speech in question has caused or could cause the relationship to deteriorate; the time, manner, and place of the speech; the context in which the dispute arose; the degree of public interest in the speech; and whether the speech impeded the employee's ability to perform his duties. 461 U.S. at 149-154.

Recently, the Tenth Circuit Court of Appeals, in Johnsen v. Ind. School Dist. No. 3 of Tulsa County, 891 F.2d 1485 (10th Cir. 1989), a case involving a school nurse who alleged that her First Amendments rights were violated when her contract was not renewed after she spoke out against the district's medication policy, held as follows:

> The balancing of factors under Pickering and Connick v. Myers, is at times difficult to apply to the many fact patterns which arise, because the court is required to balance apples and oranges: the First Amendment rights of the employee against the nonconstitutional interest of government efficiency. In order to confirm the court's analysis under the Pickering balancing test, it may sometimes be helpful for the court to ask alternatively whether > the public employee's speech was reasonable in light of the surrounding circumstances.

> Reasonableness, as an objective standard, involves the same criteria as the Pickering balancing test but it provides the court with a more familiar framework to use in balancing the many factors under Pickering. To determine whether the speech is reasonable, and therefore protectable, the court can look first at the manner, form, and circumstances of plaintiff's speech. That is consistent with Connick, where the Court considered the "manner, time, and place" of the employee's speech. Connick, 461 U.S. at 152, 103 S. Ct. at 1692. Therefore, the court can look to when and where the speech took place and to whom the employee spoke.
>
> Another factor that could be considered by the court is the consequences of the public employee's speech. If the disruptions of the operations of the public employer are slight, the public employee's speech is more likely to be reasonable. Cf. Ware v. United School Dist., 881 F.2d 906, 910 (10th Cir. 1989) (speech did not justify termination because "effective functioning of the office was not affected by [plaintiff's] speech"). In contrast, if the normal functioning of the government operation is brought to a halt, plaintiff's speech is more likely to be deemed unreasonable.

The methodology used in Johnsen to analyze a public employee's First Amendment claim is applicable here. While the issues of a disproportionate number of black pupils being classified as in need of special education and a lack of academic achievement by minority pupils in general are topics of public concern in the Princeton community, that does not end the inquiry because First Amendment rights are not absolute. Rather, a balance must be struck between respondent's right to speak on matters of public concern and the Board's right to operate its schools efficiently for the benefit of its pupils and the community it serves by considering the manner, time, and form of respondent's speech.

Respondent's utterances in both Charge One and Two were made in a racial manner. Respondent, having personally concluded that most if not all black high school pupils are only interested in fun, not academics, applied that faulty premise to the four black pupils by reciting his "Black People in Princeton" speech to them during LM/SS/AA, on September 11, 1991 solely because they are black. He applied the same faulty premise to A.A. later the same day by publicly threatening to give A.A. the same speech, by publicly declaring he, A.A., should not sit with white pupils, and by negatively criticizing the manner of speech of black people in general. These remarks were made by respondent to A.A. solely because A.A. is black.

While discipline itself is not objectionable, it becomes objectionable as is the manner of the remarks when seen in the context that the discipline was intended to be negative. That is, respondent sought to impose discipline but the discipline selected was motivated only by his faulty conclusion regarding all black high school pupils, and because A.A. and the other four are black. Consequently, the discipline became negative when imposed solely on the basis of the race and color of these combined five pupils. Respondent reached an unreasonable conclusion regarding high school black pupils in general and, finding a need on September 11, 1991 to impose discipline upon the five pupils, forecast to them that more likely than not they will be unsuccessful in high school because they are black.

Respondent's offensive remarks to all five pupils were made in a public school classroom setting, at a time when positive self-attitudes are to be nurtured in pupils regardless of race, creed, color or sex. The testimony of all five pupils, and to some extent respondent's own testimony, is persuasive that they were individually and collectively subjected to stereotypical, race-based remarks by respondent which resulted in feeling of hopelessness, anxiety, frustration, and anger by the pupils. This is hardly the nature of positive self-attitudes to be nurtured in a public school classroom.

When viewed through the prism of the manner, form, and time of the remarks, I conclude respondent's utterances were unreasonable. Race-based remarks to pupils as made here are not within the legitimate scope of a teacher's duty. Remarks to pupils intended to be and which result in negative discipline and negative pupil-self images are outside the reasonably expected conduct of a teacher.

Neither respondent's speech to A.A., nor the other four pupils, may be characterized as a manifestation of his desire to assist black or other minority pupils in the Princeton school. Had that been his intention he certainly would not have denigrated the very essence of the pupils in whom he claims to have had an intense interest. Consequently, the conclusion is reached that respondent's speech was not reasonable.

Finally, respondent's remarks had a negative impact on the efficient operation of the Princeton schools. A confrontation between A.A.'s father and respondent occurred during Back-to-School night. Citizens in the community, when learning of the reports of respondent's utterances and the incident at Back-to-School night, made demands upon school administrators to correct what was perceived to be an intolerable situation. Pupils with whom respondent worked were justifiably angry, upset, and frustrated by his remarks. Tenure charges resulted from respondent's conduct. These occurrences, I FIND, are disruptive influences upon the smooth operation of the Princeton school district.

Consequently, I conclude that respondent's utterances which underlie the bases for Charge One and Charge Two are not, nor were they intended to be by him, comments on the public issue of academic achievement by black pupils in Princeton. Rather, the utterances were the expression of his personal opinion regarding the bleak academic future of these five pupils because they are black. Therefore, the utterances are not within the protection of the First Amendment to the United States Constitution. Respondent's motion to dismiss the charges is DENIED in its entirety.

CHARGE THREE

This charge alleges that respondent engaged in conduct unbecoming by making inappropriate and sexist comments to a female pupil during 1991-92. The specifications to the charge are reproduced here in relevant part:

1. During the week of September 9, 1991, Ward Campbell deemed to be deficient the science notebook of S.K., a female student in his 7th/8th grade science class.

2. During the week of September 9, 1991, S.K. approached Ward Campbell at his desk after class and asked if he would recheck her notebook.

3. Ward Campbell responded to the female student words to the effect that, "Sure, you know girls need more help than boys because girls are pretty stupid."

4. The female student, S.K. was embarrassed and belittled by Ward Campbell's unbecoming comments.

S.K., who also testified in regard to Charge One, testified that on the same day the incident with A.A. occurred, September 11, 1991, she had asked respondent in a science class to check her science notebook. According to S.K., respondent's reply was "Sure, [be]cause sometimes girls need more help than boys [be]cause girls can be pretty stupid." (5T-94) S.K. says this incident occurred at respondent's desk located in the front of the classroom and that it occurred earlier in the morning before the A.A. incident. S.K. acknowledges that she had to redo her science notebook the night before she requested respondent to review it because her notebook was not "perfect" (5T-100) as demanded by respondent.

S.K. is adamant in her testimony that respondent did not state, as he claims, that he was interested in giving girls extra held because they needed extra help in science and she is adamant that respondent said girls "can be pretty stupid".

Respondent testified that while he does not recall S.K. as a student of his, nor does he recall advising any female student in September of 1991 that "girls are pretty stupid", and denies ever having made that comment, he did check notebooks every day at the beginning of the school year. (6T:135-136) On cross-examination respondent testified that he did state numerous times to many female pupils that if they ever needed extra help in science to let him know. Respondent was then asked the following question and gave the answer that follows:

Q. But you deny that you've ever said to a female words to the effect that girls can be pretty stupid or girls can be pretty dumb?

A. When you use the words to the effect rather than specifically stupid, there is a tremendous difference. There is the point that girls are not encouraged in science. There is the point that > girls' science achievement tends to suffer, especially the beginning of the high school years and declines thereafter. I could have said anything along those lines that girls do not achieve in science and I am happy to give them extra help. Or extra encouragement. If you then misconstrued the fact that females do not achieve in science and say well, that is to the effect of stupid, then you would twist my words around. Did I use the specific word stupid?. No.

In support of respondent's position that he was interested in helping female pupils to improve their achievement in the sciences, he relies upon the testimony of Dr. F., whose stepdaughter was in respondent's biology class during 1990-91. Dr. F. testified she was impressed with respondent's ability to engage her stepdaughter's mind in biology and his insistence upon her stepdaughter doing assignments over and over again until she correctly completed the assignment. Dr. F. testified respondent corrected her stepdaughter's tendency to rush through whatever assignment she was working upon regardless of the result. Respondent also relies upon the testimony of C.M., presently a senior at Princeton High School who was in respondent 's biology class during her sophomore year, that she enjoyed respondent's teaching style because he was able to get the attention of pupils and keep them interested. Respondent worked with C.M. on projects after school and any problems she may have had. It is noted that respondent wrote C.M. a letter of recommendation for her attendance at an Intensive Math and Science Summer Program during the 1991 Summer. It is also noted that C.M. characterizes herself as a "fairly good" student who is leaving Princeton High School early in order to attend a college program and that her family, particularly her mother, has been very supportive of her. In fact, the math seminar she attended during the 1991 summer was as the result of her mother encouraging her to apply and attend.

Respondent also relies on the testimony of N.A., presently a junior at Princeton High School who was in respondent's biology class during 1989-90. N.A. testified that respondent stressed self organization and made pupils comfortable in class by discussing matters other than biology. As an example, N.A. recalls respondent showing pupils Aikido by using other pupils in class to demonstrate certain moves. N.A. equates Aikido with karate techniques.

FINDINGS

I have considered the testimony offered in support of this charge by the Board, which is limited to the testimony of S.K. as its direct evidence, and I have considered the testimony offered by respondent. No one of the witnesses who testified for respondent, other than respondent, were present at the time this incident was to have occurred when respondent stated that girls can be stupid. I have considered respondent's reply to the question posed on cross-examination as well as all of respondent's testimony and find that that reply, as recited above, is an effort to manipulate what it is that was said. I am persuaded, I am convinced, that S.K. accurately recalls respondent, in reply to her request to check her notebook, stating that he would do so because "girls can be stupid." Respondent's explanation that his concern for the asserted underachievement of females in the sciences was misconstrued by the hearer to ascribe to him the statement that "girls can be stupid" is completely rejected. It stretches credulity to believe a reasonable person, which I find S.K. to be even though she is of tender years, misunderstood a teacher's concern for a particular pupil and translated that concern into the expression "girls can be stupid" without those words having been said. Consequently, I find that a preponderance of credible evidence establishes this charge as true.

CHARGE FOUR

This charge alleges respondent engaged in conduct unbecoming by exhibiting crude behavior during class and by announcing he has been known to use physical force. The specifications to this charges are, in relevant part, as follows:

1. Ward Campbell was assigned to teach an eight grade Science class at the Witherspoon Middle School during 1991-92 school year.

2. On or about the second day of school, Ward Campbell was explaining his class rules to his Science classes.

3. During the course of his explanation of his special class rules, Ward Campbell announced to the class words to the effect that "I've been known to hit kids," who do not comply with his rules.

4. During the second week of September 1991, Ward Campbell approached a table of male students in his eighth grade Science class and proceeded to explain to them how he handled students at the high school. Present at the table were eighth grade male students S.R., J.K., T.S. and A.D. Mr. Campbell explained to the students that when the high school students would wise off to him in the hallway, he would say "fuck you" back to them and Mr. Campbell demonstrated how he would extend his middle finger at them in the vulgar gesture.

5. Other students in the same eighth grade Science class heard Mr. Campbell's statements and were under the impression that he was directing his vulgar comments and gesture at the eighth grade students seated at that particularly table.

6. During the first weeks of September 1991, Ward Campbell told seventh grade students in his LM/SS/AA class that when he was on vacation in Europe, someone with a gun tried to mug him. According to Mr. Campbell, he grabbed the gun from the assailant and shot the mugger.

7. Whether or not there was any truth in these statements made by Ward Campbell to his students, the comments were unbecoming and constitute unprofessional and unbecoming conduct by a teaching staff member.

The Board called four pupils to testify in support of this charge; S.M., K.A., O.B., and T.S. The background to the specification where respondent was to have told his class he has been known to hit kids who do not comply with his rules follows. When Principal Johnson was directed by the superintendent to continue investigating the conduct of respondent following the meeting which occurred following the Back-to-School night, and Johnson met with respondent's pupils the following day, one of the questions asked the pupils was to write out what respondent had explained to them about rules and regulations of the Science class. S.M. responded as follows:

> Mr. Campbell [respondent] told us to always be prepared with a pen, paper, notebook, and text book. He also said he hit several kids who had forgotten to bring one of those items. Or he said he had been [known?] to hit people for those reasons.

S.M. testified at hearing that when respondent told the class not to forget those rules because he had been known to "hit kids", he believed respondent was telling the truth and was not joking. S.M., on cross-examination, was adamant in his testimony that respondent said he has been known to hit kids who did not bring a pen, paper, notebook, and text book to class. (5T:137) S.M. was frightened by those comments.

T.S. and S.R., both of whom were in respondent's seventh/eight grade sciences class during September 1991 testified regarding the assertion respondent exclaimed of "fuck you" to high school pupils he met in the corridor who would "wise off" to him. T.S. testified that he and S.R. were sitting in the back of the classroom when respondent began telling them of his experiences in high school. Respondent was to have explained that when the students at the high school were loud in the corridors he would tell them to be quiet, in response to which they would extend their middle finger towards him and say "fuck you". T.S. testified he thought respondent's use of that language was crass. 5T:141-143

S.R. testified that he recalls respondent having related that when he was assigned the high school he, respondent, would reply "fuck you" when a student would stick up "the finger" after which S.R. simply stopped listening. S.R. testified that he, along with T.S., J., and E. were present. S.R. testified that he had never heard a teacher use that language before. On cross-examination, S.R. explained that respondent related that experience in regard to disruptive students at the high school.

Respondent, in his testimony, confirms the class rules having been that all pupils were expected to come to class with a pen, pencil, three-ring notebook with five sections. The first section was for class notes, the second section was for vocabulary, the third for laboratory work, the fourth for return tests and quizzes, and the fifth section for other materials. While respondent denies having ever told his class that he was known to hit pupils who do not comply with his rules, he modifies that denial in the following way:

 I believe - - I mean, really stretching my memory - - on the first or second day of school I believe someone said that. I remember - -

Q. A student?

A. Yes . I remember someone looking up from the first row chairs, looking at me and going, I hear you've been known to hit kids before.

Q. Did you respond?

A. No.

6T:131-132

In regard to the specification that he stated he had shot a mugger in Europe, respondent's testimony in this regard is as follows:

Q.  Do you recall any conversations during the course of this school year or specifically September of 1991, when there was any discussion of a mugger?

A. Yes, there was.

Q. What were the circumstances concerning this mugger incident?

A. I've been asked this story I think every single year that I've taught. It has - - it has amazing legs. And someone asked me about the fact that they heard that while I was on vacation someone tried to mug me and that I killed them. What my response to that story was, I have no idea. I have been asked that story on repeated occasions through the years.

6T:134-135

In regard to the allegation respondent's use of "fuck you" to high school students as he related to middle school pupils, respondent testified in the following manner:

Q. What do you recall?

A. The particular group of students at this table were the physically largest students in my classroom. Kind of - - the dominant people in the - - in the classroom they had been - -

Q. Did they include the students [T.S. and S.R.] who've testified in the proceeding?

***

A. They were, humph, testing me, you might say, to put it mildly. They were rude and talked amongst themselves loudly during the first two days of school. They would sit lounging backwards with their feet up on the table talking amongst themselves and ignoring me. And so I resorted to splitting them up and putting them in the four different corners of the classroom. The testing went on for about five days. After which they started to settle down and I let them sit together again. They were pretty good in class so at the end of the class I engineered moving the one table that they were sitting at, since they didn't fit at that table - - they were physically too large for their table - - for their legs to fit underneath the table - - to switch that with the one they had been sitting at and moved the two. During that I also told them I was happy with the way they were responding. That I was afraid the testing was going to go on for too long. And that their behavior made me remember a lot of the rude student behaviors that I'd been subjected to in the high school. I did give them the example that - - and it was so complete, the disregard or lack of respect for many teachers in the high school, that there were occasions when I would walk outside of my classroom and asked students who were conversing in the hallway to move their conversation someplace else or to get to their classroom and would be confronted with obscenities and obscene gestures and that I was certainly glad that this did not seem to be the way they were going. The conversation concluded with fixing the room and I asked them if they would be interested in taking care of bird feeder and keeping it supplied if I brought one from school or from home to school. The reason for that simply being that I was talking to two or three of the largest people who could - - who were big enough to hang out the window and put it on the branches of the tree next to the classroom.

6T:132-134

Not until cross-examination did respondent directly deny uttering "fuck you" as is alleged in this Charge, while simultaneously acknowledging he never backs down from a confrontation and that he is a strict disciplinarian.

FINDINGS OF FACT

In regard to the allegation respondent told his class that he has been known to 'hit kids' who do not follow his rules, I am persuaded by the testimony of S.M. that that is exactly what S.M. heard because, I FIND, that is exactly what respondent said to his class. Respondent's explanation that it was not he who had said that but a pupil in the first row, to which respondent made no reply, does not have the ring of truth whatsoever. A teacher in New Jersey in public or private school does not elect to be accused by a pupil in class of "hitting kids" without an immediate denial because of the strong public policy in this State against corporal punishment. S.M.'s testimony is indeed more persuasive because it was delivered in an honest, believable, and unpretentious manner. Respondent's testimony rings hollow that while he implicitly acknowledges the words were spoken, attributes those words to a pupil in his class.

So, too, with the assertion he stated that he shot a mugger. The testimony of K.A. and O.B. is found to be more persuasive than that of respondent. Recall that respondent explained this assertion by acknowledging the words were spoken but that someone in class stated to him during 1991 that he/she had heard he had killed someone who tried to mug him. While respondent implicitly states he does not know how, or does not recall how, that story started, and he had no reply to the query, this explanation as well rings hollow. Respondent's tendency regarding this charge and others, is to acknowledge the conduct alleged occurred but to modify or attribute such conduct to someone else, while maintaining he is the innocent bystander. I FIND respondent's testimony in this regard not credible.

Finally, the testimony of T.S. and S.R. that respondent related his experiences at the high school where student would raise their middle finger at him signifying a vulgar expression, and recited his response "fuck you" to those students, is persuasive. Respondent's explanation is found to be rambling at best, and an attempt to evade the direct testimony presented against him regarding his use of "fuck you" in front of students.

Therefore, I specifically find respondent announced to the class words to the effect "I've been known to hit kids" who do not comply with his rules; that he uttered the expression "fuck you" in class in front of at least two pupils; and, he related to his pupils he had shot someone who tried to mug him. I do not find the evidence persuasive regarding specification five that students other than those who testified before me had heard respondent's expression "fuck you". Nor is there evidence to show that the two pupils who did testify before me believed he was directing such an expression to them.

CHARGE FIVE

Charge Five alleges respondent engaged in conduct unbecoming by shoving a student and causing him to fall over a chair. The specifications to this charge are as follows:

1. During the 1990-91 school year, Ward Campbell was assigned to teach Science in the Princeton High School.

2. On Thursday, March 21, 1991, at approximately 5:45 PM several students remained after school to work in the biology lab on their science projects. These included students J.J., J.L., and T.R.
3. The students changed the station that Mr. Campbell had playing on the radio in the biology lab. When Mr. Campbell returned to the lab, he ordered the students to change the station back to its previous setting. Student J.J. attempted to do so.

4. When Student J.J. could not find the right station on the radio dial, Ward Campbell pushed or shoved J.J. away from the radio, causing him to fall over a chair and onto the floor.

Note that Charges One, Two, and Three relate to conduct engaged in by respondent during September 1991. Charge Five, under consideration now, occurred during the prior school year, 1990-91, specifically on March 21, 1991. Respondent's assignment was at the Princeton High School. Dr. MaryLu Coviello was the acting high school principal at the time and has since been named the high school principal.

Dr. Coviello testified that on or about March 25, 1991 she was asked by the superintendent to investigate reports regarding an incident which was to have occurred in respondent's biology class on or about the preceding Friday, March 22, 1991 and which was to have involved a pupil, J.J. Coviello called J.J. to her office and asked if an incident had occurred in respondent's biology class the preceding Friday. After having talked with J.J. and learning that an incident indeed occurred not on Friday, but on Thursday, March 21, Coviello then talked with respondent and his representative from the Association. Respondent denied the essence of what Coviello had learned from J.J.

At hearing, J.J. testified that on March 21, 1991 he went to respondent's biology classroom after school with his permission to finish some lab work. Two other pupils, T.R. and J.L., were also present. A radio was by the wall near the classroom windows. Respondent left the classroom and T. or J.J. changed the radio-station. T. and J.J. both tried to reset the station to its original place prior to respondent's return but they were unsuccessful. Respondent returned and directed whoever changed the radio station to reset it to where it was. J.J. got up and tried to change the station and asked respondent to what station he had had it set. Respondent did not reply, but left his desk which was in front of the classroom and came over to the radio to reset the radio and, in J.J.'s words, "I guess accidentally or purposely pushed me and I fell over a chair." (4T:4) J.J. testified that T. and J. were present at the time of this incident and saw him fall over the chair. J.J. was embarrassed, hurt his left arm, and left the room without saying anything to respondent. He did not report the incident to anyone until he was called to the office by Principal Coviello the following week at which time he reported to her, without anyone else present, what had occurred.

On cross-examination J.J. acknowledged that at the time of this incident he was receiving a failing grade in respondent's class and that he was doing his makeup work in respondent's classroom that day, had remained there a few hours and respondent had been assisting him. J.J. testified that two other pupils, G.G. and D.S., had been in the classroom but left before the incident happened. J.J. described the chair over which he was pushed as a small plastic chair, although there were some stools about as well as combination desks and chairs. (4T:20) J.J. also acknowledges that on one prior occasion in respondent's class he leaned back in a chair and accidentally fell (4T:30).

T.R. who was present in the classroom during the incident acknowledges he is friends with J.J. T.R. explained that he and J.J. went to respondent's classroom after school on March 11, in order to finish a science lab. After a while, respondent left the classroom and J.J. changed the radio station. Respondent returned to the classroom and upon realizing that the station had been changed he became angry. J.J. attempted to return the radio to the station it had originally been set by respondent but he could not find the right station. Respondent, already angry, went towards the radio and pushed J.J. out of the way. Contrary to what J.J.'s testimony is, T.R. said that J.J. fell over a stool. Later on, J.J. complained of his arm hurting. According to T.R., J.J. never told him, T.R., that maybe respondent "accidentally" pushed him.

J.L., who in 1990-91 was a transfer student to Princeton from Texas, joined respondents' biology classroom after a portion of the fall semester had passed because he had been in a more advanced biology class which he found too difficult. In J.L.'s view, respondents biology class was very disruptive because he says the pupils were out-of-hand talking, the boys were "messing around", and respondent allowed people to walk in and out of the classroom who otherwise did not belong there. J.L. acknowledges that he and respondent are not friendly and that he did not care for respondent as a teacher. In J.L.'s view, respondent did not respect him as an honorable student because respondent would not take questions he asked seriously. In fact, J.L. testified that respondent had called him a "fool".

In regard to the lab incident with the radio, J.L. testified that when respondent had left the classroom at about 5:00 p.m., J.J. and J.L. began fooling around and J.J. turned the radio station. When respondent returned J.L. says he asked who turned the radio station at which time J.J. and T.L. began to blame each other. Both students, according to J.L.'s recollection, began fooling around trying to find the correct radio station. Respondent got fed up, went to the radio and on his way pushed J.J. out of the way. While J.L. initially testified that J.J. fell over a chair, on cross-examination he acknowledges that J.J. could have fallen over a stool. In any event, respondent then reset the radio. About fifteen minutes later, J.L. left the classroom and saw J.J. in the corridor crying.

J.L. testified that he saw this entire incident out of the corner of his eye and he insists he saw respondent push J.J. out of the way and he saw J.J. fall over a stool. While J.L. was asked about the incident by principal Coviello during May 1991, he was never asked to give a statement. At the time of the incident, J.L. acknowledges that he was not doing to well in respondent's biology class, achieving mostly C work. J.L. says that he attempted to be transferred from respondent's classroom to another biology classroom but the guidance counselor was to have told J.L. that he could not do anything about his request. J.L. did not like the way respondent conducted his class because he mocked people, called them fools, and did not take some pupils seriously.

Respondent recalls J.J. as an immature pupil who should not have been placed in his biology class during 1990-91 because, in respondent's view, J.J. simply could not do the work. According to respondent, J.J.'s notes were not good, his homework was generally incomplete and he played video games in class for the most part. In fact, and in an effort I infer to show bias against him by J.J., respondent explained that he had taken a Game Boy video game from J.J. and had kept it for three weeks.

According to respondent, the first indication he had that anything untoward happened with J.J. on March 21, 1991 was during the morning of the following day, March 22, when a student identified as G.G. came to respondent and began discussing the "excitement" that occurred in the classroom last night. When he asked G.G. what he was talking about, G.G. told him that J.J. was in the lunch room saying that he had been thrown over three tables, twelve chairs, was kicked and stomped, and thrown to the floor by respondent. Respondent's reaction to what G.G. had told him was to "just let it go by" because he "had already had J.J. in class earlier that day." (6T:114) The next he knew of the incident was when on the following Monday, Principal Coviello took J.J. out of class for about twenty minutes. Later in the day, respondent says he received a written note from Coviello asking to meet with him after school that day. Coviello advised respondent of what J.J. had said and what was to have occurred, as recited above, during the makeup work on March 21.

Respondent does recall that some pupils were doing makeup work in his classroom after school on March 21. Most left by 5:00 p.m. However, respondent claims that G.G. was present as was another pupil D.S. J.L. was there as was J.J., and T.R. Respondent's testimony in regard to J.J. and T.R. both of whom it is noted again were friends, is as follows:

> They were in and out of the classroom. When he [J.J.] was in he was typically running around in the classroom and I would hold - - tell > him to stop that it was, you know, there's too many ways to trip over things and get hurt in that room with, you know, stuff that's crammed in there

Respondent acknowledges that he usually had a radio playing during make-up time in order to relax the students. Respondent does not recall directing students to change a station on the radio or resetting a station to one he wanted. Respondent says the radio was placed along the back wall next to windows because he received better reception from that location. Respondent acknowledges that there were tables, chairs, and desks in the immediate vicinity of the radio. In response to the question on direct examination "Do you recall if there were any stools or chairs right next to the radio?", respondent's reply is as follows:

> There wasn't more than three or four foot between the table and the radio. So again, it was not an area of circulation and there weren't extra chairs or stools in that area.

Based on the question asked, and the answer given, I infer that there were stools and chairs right next to the radio. Respondent denies pushing or shoving J.J. on March 21, 1991 and he denies pushing or shoving any student "during that time period" after school period.

Respondent testified that during the course of the 1990-91 year, J.J. engaged in certain conduct that he, respondent, found difficult to control. Respondent says J.J. had a knack for falling out of his chair onto the floor, he would walk across the floor and seemingly trip over his own feet, J.J. would walk into him deliberately and pretend to fall down, and he would dance on the top of his desk. None of these asserted conducts by J.J., however, were shared by respondent with the child study team, supervisor or principal. Respondent notes that even after the radio incident was to have occurred on March 21, J.J. continued to report to his classroom after school to make up lab work. When he finally did allow students to make up lab work after the radio incident, teaching colleague James Manzer saw the pupils there and began yelling at him for having allowed pupils after school in his classroom in light of what J.J. accused him. Respondent then claims he asked Principal Coviello to transfer J.J. out of his class but that J.J. continued in his class for the balance of the school year.

On April 15, 1991 Principal Coviello issued a written reprimand to respondent for his conduct on March 21, 1991. Coviello advised respondent that having investigated the matter, and having talked with J.J., and with him in the presence of his Association representative present, and having talked with other pupils who were in the classroom at the time of the incident, she concluded that he, respondent, "inappropriately" pushed J.J. with the result that J.J. fell over a chair. The letter of reprimand (PC-2) continues as follows:

> This writing constitutes a letter of reprimand for your actions to be placed in your file. You have been previously advised by administrative orders on multiple occasions that you are not to keep pupils so late after the end of the school day and that you are to avoid inappropriate physical contact with students.
> In light of this incident, I now reiterate those directives. Specifically, I direct you not to keep pupils so late after school and to avoid any unnecessary physical contact with them.

Ann Johnson, a former teacher of J.J.s' testified on behalf of respondent that she recalls J.J. as a pupil who would fail to do classwork as well as his homework. During a conference with J.J.s' parent and other teachers, which conference had been scheduled for after March 21 when the radio incident was to have occurred, Johnson testified one other teacher mentioned that J.J. always had an excuse why he did not complete his work.

James Manzer, a teaching colleague of respondents but who did not have J.J. as a student, testified he recalls seeing J.J. in respondent's class after school on a date after the radio incident. Manzer says he reacted in horror because, ostensibly, he did not believe respondent should have allowed J.J. in the classroom after school after having made the allegation against him that he, respondent, had pushed him over a chair. Manzer reported his concern immediately to Principal Coviello who proceeded to respondent's classroom and told respondent to release all the pupils who remained after school so that the pupils may go home.

William Bux, who retired from the Board's employ after thirty two plus years teaching and who had J.J. as a pupil in typewriting, categorizes J.J. as a "very bad student" who let the class know that he, J.J., knew everything. Bux claims J.J. is a "very bad citizen" who used to take the typewriter apart while he, Bux, would be in another part of the room. However, Bux adds that J.J. never acknowledged having taken the typewriter apart and Bux offered no independent evidence to demonstrate that it was J.J. who took the typewriter apart.

Anthony Biancosino, who is the director of the music program at Princeton High School, knew J.J. as a student assigned to his homeroom. Biancosino says J.J. constantly cut homeroom and he claims that J.J. gave him 100 lies in an attempt to excuse his missing homeroom. Biancosino, it appears, attempts to assign blame to J.J., but without any proof whatsoever, that J.J. had bent music stands.

Finally, Glen Nath, a former student of respondents' who graduated from Princeton High School in 1988 and was recently graduated from college and is now preparing to be a teacher, sat in on respondents' classroom during 1990-91 as part of his college requirements. J.J. was a pupil in one of these classes observed by Nath. Nath says that on one occasion he observed J.J. get out of his chair and begin slapping himself across the face for about three seconds. As quickly as J.J. began, he stopped. Nath claims that J.J. was very disruptive in the classroom and attempted to attract attention. Nath says he reported what he observed to vice principal Owen Schneider after class. Nath did not hear anything further from vice principal Schneider.

In his post hearing brief, respondent points out that when Coviello initially talked with him and his representative regarding what J.J. had reported to her, that either at that time or at some other time he asked Coviello to talk with two other students, G.G. and D.S. Respondent takes the position that these students would deny that the incident with the radio as related by J.J. ever occurred. Respondent complains that Coviello did not interview G.G. until sometime in May and she did not interview D.S. at all. Furthermore, respondent relies on Coviello's report (PC-5) of her interview with G.G. in support of his effort to demonstrate that J.J. lied about the entire matter. This report (PC-5), it is noted, shows G.G. was not present when the radio incident was to have occurred. Moreover, respondent elected not to call G.G. as his witness in this proceeding.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Initially, it must be noted that the testimony of respondent's teaching colleagues brought forward for the purpose of discrediting the testimony of J.J. is not at all persuasive that J.J. lied about his recollection of what occurred March 21, 1991. No one of the teachers who testified were present at the time the incident was to have occurred. Neither Johnson's testimony, nor the testimony of Bux, nor Manzer, nor student teacher Nath is individually or collectively persuasive that J.J. lied about the incident. Biancosinos' testimony regarding the suggestion that J.J. bent music stands is without proof. Buxs' testimony regarding J.J. taking a typewriter apart is equally without proof. Therefore, the credibility of J.J. has not been impaired by the individual or collective testimony of these teachers.

Respondents' argument that Principal Coviello failed to interview G.G. in a timely manner regarding the J.J. incident, and completely failed to interview D.S., both of whom he says would exculpate him from wrongdoing, is rejected. There is no proof whatsoever that G.G. and/or D.S. were present in respondent's classroom on March 21, 1991 when the radio incident occurred. While both pupils were present prior to the radio incident, they had both left. Furthermore, the very same document (PC-5) respondent relies on to demonstrate G.G. says J.J. lied, establishes that G.G. himself was to have said he had left the classroom by the time of the incident. Consequently, no merit is found to respondents' complaint that Principal Coviello did not interview G.G. until May nor to his complaint that Principal Coviello failed to interview D.S. The inference is drawn that had G.G. been able to show J.J. 'lied', respondent would have produced him as a witness.

Having considered the testimony and documentary evidence of the various witnesses who testified regarding Charge Five, the principal findings of fact reached are that when, on or about March 21, 1991, respondent left his desk area to retune the radio to its original station, he was angry that one of the three pupils had changed the station and could not properly retune it. It is further found that because J.J. had attempted, unsuccessfully, to retune the radio in respondent's presence, respondent concluded that J.J. had changed the station. As respondent proceeded towards the radio, J.J. was hit or pushed by respondent which resulted in J.J. falling over a chair or a stool onto the floor. I further find that respondent, through his own conduct, caused J.J. to fall over a chair or a stool which resulted in J.J. being embarrassed, humiliated, and suffering from a hurt arm. Finally, I find specifically an absence of evidence to demonstrate that J.J. was in any way the cause of his having fallen over the chair or stool as respondent made his way to the radio.

CHARGE SIX

This Charge alleges respondent engaged in conduct unbecoming by directing and /or manipulating a student to recant his statement and to tell an untruth to the school administration in order to save himself from potential disciplinary action. The specifications to this charge are reproduced here in part:

1. During the week of March 25, 1991, the school administration of the Princeton Regional School District undertook an investigation of allegations that Ward Campbell pushed or shoved Student J.J. in the biology lab.

2. During the week of March 25, 1991, several witnesses, including J.J., independently confirmed that Ward Campbell had, indeed, pushed or shoved J.J. over a chair in the biology lab.

3. Ward Campbell was questioned in the presence of his association's representative concerning the allegations of the biology lab incident. During said interview, Ward Campbell categorically denied ever touching the student.

4. During April of 1991, Student J.J. submitted a handwritten statement indicating that he had spoken with Mr. Campbell and had "apologized for the rumor." According to the student's note, "Mr. Campbell did not push me over tables! I was not pushed over tables! Mr. Campbell and I, as long [sic] as we are concerned this is over!"

5. In response to this note, the School Administration again interviewed separately Student J.J. and the other witnesses to the alleged incident. On April 29, 1991, each of the witnesses, as well as J.J., again confirmed that Ward Campbell had pushed or shoved J.J. over a chair in the biology lab on March 21, 1991.

6. On April 29, 1991, Student J.J. was asked by Acting High School Principal Marylu Coviello if he had written a letter of apology to Mr. Campbell. J.J. explained that Mr. Campbell kept him after class one day and asked J.J. to write a letter because people were trying to get Mr. Campbell fired. J.J. initially wrote a letter stating that Mr. Campbell had pushed him, but had not meant to harm him. After reviewing the letter, Ward Campbell told J.J. that it was insufficient and that J.J. had to write a letter stating that he had not been pushed. Under the direction and pressure from Ward Campbell, Student J.J. wrote an apology letter stating that he had not been pushed over tables. That letter was false. On April 29, 1991, J.J. reconfirmed in writing to the high school administration that Ward Campbell had, in fact, pushed or shoved J.J. in the biology lab on March 21, 1991, causing him to fall over a chair.

7. The conduct of Ward Campbell in manipulating and/or coercing Student J.J. to submit a false report to the School Administration is unbecoming and unprofessional conduct.

Principal Coviello testified that sometime during late April the superintendent advised her that a letter had been received from J.J. in which he revised his account of the incident of March 21 and apologized to respondent. The superintendent asked Coviello to look into the matter. In the meantime, Coviello had not yet seen the letter J.J. was to have written. The letter (PC-3) is in evidence and reads, over J.J.s' signature, as follows:

Dear whom ever it may concern:

A rumor was started about how I was pushed over tables by Ward Campbell which is not true. It is a false rumor. Mr. Campbell and I spoke about this and I apologize for the rumor. My mother and Mr. Campbell spoke also and everything should be cleared up. I am just writing this as you may have no false ideas about what happened. Mr. Campbell did not push me over tables! I was not pushed over tables! Mr. Campbell and I, as long (sic) as we are concerned this is over!

[signature of J.J.]

Principal Coviello, along with assistant principal Owen Schneider, called J.J. to the office in late April and asked why the letter had been sent if what J.J. had earlier told them was true. J.J. responded that what he had earlier told the administrators was true but that he had since been told by respondent to write the letter of apology. J.J. explained that he had written one letter of apology as requested by respondent, showed it to respondent but respondent made editorial changes so J.J. rewrote it until respondent approved. Principal Coviello then asked J.J. to put his explanation in writing. J.J. was placed in an adjoining office by himself where, on April 29, 1991, he penned the following writing:

> One day after class Mr. Campbell asked me to write a letter stating that he had not pushed me or in fact he might of non-purposely touched me or pushed me or even through me over tables and chairs. I wrote this letter and it said that he might of accidentally shoved me over one chair. When I gave this letter to him he looked at it, paused, and then turned to me and told me to specifically write that he didn't push me or even come close to me. Instead I wrote he didn't push me on purpose! [underlining in original]
> Date April 29, 1991
> (attachment to PC-4)

At hearing, J.J. testified that one day respondent told him to stay after class, which he did. Respondent said he wanted J.J. to write a letter stating that the radio incident was not his, respondent's fault. A rumor had started, and J.J. does not know by whom, regarding what occurred in respondent's classroom on March 21, 1991 as addressed in Charge Five. According to respondent, the pupil G.G. reported to him on March 22 that J.J. was in the lunch room claiming that "he had been thrown over three tables, one two chairs and then kicked and stomped when he landed on the floor. And that he had two witnesses and was going to sue me." (6T:114)

J.J. explained that respondent told him to write a letter which stated that his falling was not his fault. J.J. wrote a letter which said that he, J.J., did not know if respondent had pushed him purposely or not. This letter was rejected by respondent who told J.J. he had to say specifically that he, respondent, did not push him over. (4T-8) J.J. then wrote a second version of the requested letter but left out the last sentence as is recorded on PC-3; that is, "Mr. Campbell and I as long as we are concerned this is over." J.J. explained that respondent specifically told him to add that sentence, which J.J. did, and then gave the letter to respondent. Then, respondent allowed J.J. to leave the classroom.

J.J. was eventually called to the office by Principal Coviello, was asked questions about the letter, and was asked to put in writing what really had occurred. J.J. testified under oath that he did report in writing exactly what occurred. That writing is the attachment to PC-4. In this regard, J.J. testified that one word he would change in the letter is "asked" in the first sentence to "told" because respondent told him what to write and would not allow him to leave the classroom until he did so.

Respondents' version of J.J. having written the letter is that sometime during the week following March 21, as J.J. was leaving class, respondent said to him "I think you owe me an apology" regarding the rumor. According to respondent, J.J. said "I'm sorry" and left. About three weeks later, respondent says, he became ill at ease because Principal Coviello had not interviewed "his" student witnesses, G.G. and D.S. Consequently, respondent asked J.J. if "he would mind putting his apology in writing." (6T:122) Respondent gave him a blank piece of paper, had J.J. sit at one side of the classroom while he stayed on the other side. Respondent acknowledges he asked J.J. to be specific about what he was apologizing for. Respondent says that this incident occurred during the school day, but after one of his classes. Respondent denies telling J.J. to rewrite anything in the letter.

Respondent testified that when J.J. finally handed him the letter, he was to have asked J.J. what was behind the whole incident. It is noted that the question respondent says he posed to J.J. implies that no incident occurred. Nevertheless, respondent testified that J.J. responded in the following manner:

> He [J.J.] said that he was sitting on the edge of the table and that when I moved to go to the radio to change the station that he hopped off as I was going by and tripped getting out of my way. He said J. had come to him after class and said hey, you have a chance to get Mr. Campbell in trouble and that this was the story that was suggested to him by J.L.

Respondent did not report the asserted conversation he had had with J.J. regarding J.L. suggesting that J.J. "get" him or sue him because with the asserted written letter of apology he received from J.J. that day, the matter was finished.

Respondent claims J.L. wanted J.J. to get him because, respondent says, the relationship between him and J.L. was abysmal, not a positive or constructive relationship. However, respondent never referred J.L. to guidance or the administration.

Respondent testified T.R. has a bias against him and would testify against him regarding Charge Five and Six because T.R. was doing "extremely poorly" in class and he, respondent, would not let T.R. wear his baseball hat.

When respondent received the letter of apology from J.J., he gave either the original or a copy to Ann Johnson, the president of the Association. Eventually, respondent testified that he supplied the president with the letter in order for her to use it at her discretion but, in his view, the original allegation leveled against him by J.J. had been made less serious by this letter of apology. Respondent does acknowledge that he wanted this letter from J.J. for his "protection". (7T:115)

In regard to J.J. and other pupils using his classroom after school on days after the radio incident was to have occurred, respondent acknowledges that for the first week and a half after the incident was to have occurred he locked the lab after school. After that period of time, respondent elected not to lock the biology lab after school; he left it open in order for students to use. After school, respondent left the lab room unattended while students were present.

FINDINGS OF FACT

According to the evidence in this record a rumor began that respondent had pushed J.J. over tables in the classroom. Neither letter (PC-3; attachment to PC-4) contain, I FIND, misstatements of what did in fact occur regarding the radio incident. That is, J.J. was not pushed over tables; rather, through respondents' conduct J.J. was pushed or shoved over a chair. The evidence in support of this charge does establish that respondent directed J.J. to write a letter of apology and that it was he who initiated the notion of an "apology" from J.J. If there had been a prior conversation between the two, and if J.J. offered the words "I'm sorry" as respondent says, J.J.'s direct reference, I CONCLUDE, was to respondent's directive that J.J. owed him an apology and/or because a rumor had started which involved J.J. but with which he had nothing to do. Respondent wanted a written letter of apology for his own protection and to lessen the seriousness of what it is J.J. had reported to principal Coviello regarding what did, in fact, occur March 21, 1991 at the hands of respondent.

The focus of this charge is not necessarily on what it is that J.J. wrote in the letter, but the circumstances under which the letter was written in the first place. That is, respondent, in his role of teacher, directed or used words that one of his students understood to be a directive to write a letter of apology for a rumor with which he, J.J., had nothing to do.

I FIND that the evidence in support of Charge Six establishes respondent, through his status as a teacher of J.J., manipulated and/or coerced J.J. into submitting a report, eventually filed with the superintendent by the President of the Association at the behest of respondent, which report was intended by respondent to misrepresent what occurred March 21, 1991 as more fully described in the Findings to Charge Five. Respondent's conduct in this regard, specifically in regard to the manipulation and/coercion of a pupil under his control, is established as fact. I so FIND.

CHARGE SEVEN

Charge Seven alleges respondent engaged in conduct which, inferentially, constitutes conduct unbecoming. The specifications to that charge are as follows:

1. On or about September 10, 1991, the Assistant Principal of the John Witherspoon Middle School, Les Turbeville held an in service period for four (4) team teachers on the topic of assertive discipline.

2. During the course of the session, Ward Campbell expressed the view that it was about time the administration began to back its teachers. Mr. Campbell complained to the administrator and other teachers assembled that he had warned a student several times about the use of a "Walkman" during class. Mr. Campbell announced to the group that after several days of warnings, he removed the student's radio and dropped it into the class aquarium. Mr. Campbell believes his actions were appropriate.

3. The admitted conduct by Ward Campbell demonstrates his unprofessional and unbecoming conduct and his lack of the necessary judgment to serve as a teaching staff member.

The proofs offered by the Board in support of this charge show that the circumstances surrounding the complaint of conduct by respondent occurred at an in-service training meeting held September 10, 1991 by assistant principal Leslie Turbeville. Turbeville testified that he was conducting the training session on assertive discipline strategies. At this particular session, respondent and three or four other teachers were present. During the meeting respondent encouraged other teachers to give Turbeville their support because there had been "a conspicuous lack of administrative support in discipline in the district in the past." (2T:184) In order to support respondent's thesis that there was a prior lack of administrative support of teachers, respondent related an example where he removed a Sony Walkman from a student after prior warnings and dropped the walkman into a class aquarium. Respondent, according to Turbeville, then complained that the administration at that time did not support him in such conduct. Turbeville then told respondent that if anything is confiscated in school by teachers, the proper procedure is to bring the confiscated item to him for disposition because it was he, Turbeville, who was in charge of discipline.

In Turbevilles' view, he believes respondent was attempting to support his training program on discipline. While respondent related the Walkman episode somewhat in humor in his attempt to be supportive, Turbeville did not find it humorous. He reported the matter that day to the principal, although he did not file a written report until nine days later and then on the advice of counsel. Contrary to the Board's brief, assistant principal Turbeville did not immediately report the incident to the principal because of his concern about the judgment of respondent in regard to discipline. (Board's Brief, p.50)

Respondent testified, in essence, that so many pupils brought radio walkmans to class that he found it very distracting. Respondent claims that other pupils who did not bring walkmans to school were distracted as well. Respondent claims that he got the idea to put a walkman in the class aquarium as an example where they belong. Respondent explains that he related that event to assistant principal Turbeville after the training session on September 10 and Turbeville's response was to look at him and say, incredulously, "You put a Walkman in the aquarium?"

After respondent testified to that point, he then modified his claim that that was his idea. Respondent then claimed that he was not sure it was his idea as opposed to it being "kind of a group idea two or three students and he" created. Then, in a manner I find to be respondents' attempt to exculpate himself from the fact that it was his idea to put the Walkman in the aquarium, his testimony becomes more specific with respect to the idea being a group idea. Respondent claims as follows:

> Well, the students that I was talking with were kind of ticked that they would constantly lose class time, lab time was short enough as it was. And I would threaten to put Walkman in the aquarium, but it's kind of a toothless threat if there is no Walkman there or if I don't actually do it. Since I can't actually do something like that, there was only one other choice. And he had a broken Walkman that [here he names a specific student A.L. who was not called as a witness by respondent]

Respondent then goes on to explain that the Walkman that he had earlier told Turbeville he placed in the aquarium because he thought it was a great idea is now characterized as a group idea and that the walkman was broken.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Credibility which should attach to respondent's testimony is very difficult to measure because respondent has difficulty providing straightforward answers to questions asked. In this instance, respondent first testified that it was his idea to place a Walkman into the aquarium. Within seconds, respondent then modified that testimony to say maybe it was a group idea with students. Immediately thereafter, respondent testifies as if he specifically, and in a miraculous manner, recalls precisely the scene where it was agreed by students to place a broken Walkman in the aquarium. I find such testimony to be vague, unclear, uncertain, self-serving, and an effort by respondent to evade the truth of what he said..

I am convinced, taking assistant principal Turbeville's testimony and respondent's testimony as a whole, that respondent made the statement during the training session that he placed a pupil's Walkman into the class aquarium. I reject respondent's effort to mitigate that statement by proffering that it was a joint idea with students, no one of whom was called to testify.

In sum, I FIND the Board has proven respondent uttered the comment as alleged in Charge Seven and that that utterance constitutes an admission by him of such past conduct.

CHARGE EIGHT

Charge Eight alleges respondent engaged in conduct unbecoming by having unjustified and inappropriate physical contact with various pupils specifically though not limited to the 1989-90 school year. The specifications to Charge Eight are, in part, as follows:

1. Ward Campbell was assigned to teach in Princeton High School during the 1989-90 school year.
2. During the 1989-90 school year, Ward Campbell engaged in unjustified and inappropriate physical contact with students, including, but not limited to:
   (a) In the fall of 1989, kicking Female Student N.N. in the buttocks on more than one occasion when she bent over to pick up a pencil.
   (b) In the fall of 1989, grabbing Female Student N.N. from behind and tickling her or grabbing her at the waist, causing her to be startled.
   (c) During the fall of 1989, twisting the arm of Female Student N.N.
   (d) During the 1989-90 school year, grabbing the wrist of Female Student E.C. and turning her arm around which forced her to the ground.
   (e) During the 1989-90 school year, kicking the buttocks and twisting the arms of several students in his classes.
3. Ward Campbell utilized poor judgment and violated school policy by engaging in ongoing, unjustified and inappropriate physical contact with various students.
4. The conduct of Ward Campbell caused parental complaint, an investigation by the Division of Youth and Family Services and a disruption of the continuity of instruction for the students in Mr. Campbell's classes.

N.N., one of the two principal student witnesses against respondent regarding this charge, was first enrolled in the Princeton School District as a freshman at the High School for the 1989-90 year. Prior to that time, she attended the Cranbury Elementary Schools. During her freshman year, N.N. had respondent as a teacher of biology. During evening hours at home Mrs. C., the mother of N.N., explained that N.N. would complain that respondent's class was very loud, noisy, and that he would allow a particular student to come into the classroom, not otherwise assigned there, and jump on the tables. Moreover, N.N. complained that respondent would yell at students in the classroom. Mrs. C. advised N.N. that she was in a new school, with new teachers and new students, and that perhaps she was going through a breaking-in period. Mrs. C. did not report the complaints of her daughter to school officials because she was hoping that it was merely a breaking in period.

However, during the middle of October Mrs. C. observed on a particular evening that N.N. could not eat dinner and that she was very upset. After making inquiry, N.N. finally acknowledged to her mother that she was having a lot of trouble in respondent's classroom. She explained to Mrs. C. that respondent would take her arm and twist it behind her; that he had come up behind her to scare and tickle her; that he grabbed her by the shoulders and pushed her down into the seat; that when she was bending over to pick up a pencil respondent put his foot on her rear and pushed her to the floor; that on one occasion respondent while standing in front of her yelled at her, grabbed her pencil and jammed it down into her notebook on her desk and broke the point off in front of her which, N.N. added, he had done to other pupils in the classroom; that he said he was the teacher and they were students and they cannot complain to anyone because no one would believe them over him. N.N. explained to Mrs. C. that she had made no prior complaints because she was convinced that no one would believe her over respondent.

The following day, Mrs. C. contacted Gregory Youngman, a guidance counselor at the high school and advised him of what N.N. had told her the prior evening. Youngman assured Mrs. C. that he would talk to N.N., find out what was going on, and get back to her. Youngman did contact Mrs. C. and told her that he reassigned N.N. out of respondent's classroom to another teacher, and that John Sakala, who was then the principal of Princeton High School, would contact her about respondent's conduct as explained to her by her daughter. Principal Sakala requested Mrs. C. to put in writing N.N.'s complaints about respondent as explained to her, which she did on or about October 26, 1989 (See PS-10).

N.N., who is presently 16 years of age and a junior at Princeton High School, testified that respondent's class was not a regular, run-of-the-mill classroom because "Everybody was a little bit loud and kind of out of order because there wasn't to much order in the class." (3T:31). As examples, N.N. explained that a pupil, M.W., who was a sophomore at the high school and not otherwise assigned to that class, was allowed by respondent to come in and run around and cause commotion and from desktop to desktop. (3T:29) She described a typical day in respondent's biology class in the following manner:

> Usually every day in the beginning, just as the bell is beginning ringing to start the class, M.W. would come in and do his running around and craziness and Mr. Campbell would come in and - - and you know, yell or bang on his desk or something to get some kind of attention and you know, tell everybody to shut-up and calm down and sit. And you didn't usually - - actually, we never worked out of a text book or anything like that. It was just he would write a lesson on the board sometimes or give us the vocabulary words or things like that. It was just not - - there was no like structure to the class or to the lesson or anything.
> If anybody got out of their chair or - - or whatever, Mr. Campbell would yell. He would get like physically violent. Mr. Campbell, he twisted my arm, several times, behind my back to where it hurt. I bent down to pick up a pencil or something else other than that and he kicked me in the rear. A few times. I remember once I got up to sharpen my pencil at the sharp - - pencil sharpener and he got mad at me and said that I shouldn't have been out of my chair without permission and took the pencil and drove it into the book on my desk and broke it in half.
> He got - - he got very violent at things like that and you could just tell that he wasn't joking about it and he actually meant it.

> He was - - he was also mentally abusive in the fact where he would say things like I don't know why I even bother teaching this class because, you know, you're all so stupid.
>
> Umm, it wasn't just me that he did this to. He did it to - - to T. and to B. and to E. and all - - all in a similar fashion. I know I didn't like it and I asked him to stop. But I don't really think he cared.

N.N. testified that the twisting of arms occurred just about every day and she explained the twisting of arms by being taken by her wrist and having it twisted behind her to the point where she could not move her arm. Respondent, in N.N.s view, could be provoked into arm twisting because perhaps she had been out of her chair or he simply wanted to show some karate move although, in her view, respondent usually did not need a reason to engage in arm twisting. N.N. observed respondent twist the arms of other pupils, specifically E. C., who as the result of the arm twisting landed on the floor. In describing how respondent put his foot on her rear when she bent down to pick up a pencil, N.N. said respondent did not swing his legs and kick her but he did put his foot on her and pushed her down to the floor. N.N. felt very uncomfortable in respondents' class as the result of his conduct and she felt totally violated. N.N. acknowledges cutting respondent's class many times because she concluded that the class was totally worthless.

N.N. testified she had asked her guidance counselor on at least three occasions to be transferred to another biology class, but the counselor would advise her to stay where she was and that maybe things would change. After her efforts to be transferred were unsuccessful, N.N. testified she finally complained to her mother. Guidance counselor Richard Saldon specifically testified that N.N. never complained to him that respondent had twisted her arm or had "kicked" her in the buttocks, but he does not recall whether N.N. ever discussed respondent with him during 1989-90. (9T:61) N.N. does acknowledge having failed algebra during the 1989-90 school year and she acknowledges that she has cut classes during her sophomore and present junior year.

Principal Sakala recalls the incident with N.N. He testified he referred the matter to the Department of Human Services, Division of Youth and Family Services because he felt that what N.N. alleged, if true, was improper conduct. Sakala and his then assistant principal Coviello, met with respondent who denied N.N.'s allegations except to acknowledge he did approach N.N. and tickle her. On October 26, 1989 respondent was advised by the superintendent that after consultation with the Board President he was suspending him with pay immediately because of the then pending DYFS investigation. It is noted that a written report of the investigation was not received from DYFS until the following school year, 1990-91, and that in the meantime respondent was reinstated to his teaching position November 27, 1989. Upon reinstatement, Sakala told respondent in writing (PS-13) while DYFS would probably not recommend criminal charges of child abuse that his investigation of the matter revealed he used poor judgment and that he should seek counseling, which respondent did not do.

Nevertheless, the Board did an investigation of the N.N. incident which resulted in the superintendent issuing respondent a letter of reprimand (PS-17) for his conduct and the Board withheld respondent's 1991-92 salary increments because of the N.N. incident and the March 22, 1991 incident when he pushed J.J. off a chair (PS-18). In light of the increment withholding action, it is inferred respondent's performance for 1990-91 was unsatisfactory.

Sakala testified that he was concerned over N.N.'s allegations against respondent because at the close of the preceding school year another pupil complained that respondent struck him in the back of the head. That pupil's mother came in but elected not to press the matter. On another occasion, sometime in 1989, Sakala was told that respondent was running an informal karate class in the school gymnasium. According to Sakala, he was concerned over the safety of pupils in that kind of physical contact. Sakala personally met with respondent and his representative and made it clear that respondent must not have physical contact with students whatsoever. Sakala also took the opportunity to tell respondent that he must treat all pupils equitably and fairly in the classroom, to stop shouting and the verbal insults of which pupils, Sakala says, had complained. Sakala recalls respondent's comments being merely that he understood what was being said to him.

E.C., who is the subject matter of specification 2(d) above, and a witness to some of the other alleged conduct in this charge, is presently 16 years of age and in her junior year at Princeton High School. E.C. testified that she was in respondent's biology class during the 1989-90 year while she was a freshman. She remained in respondent's class less than one half year because she felt very uncomfortable in his class.

E.C. explained that respondent was uncomfortable with the strictness of the classroom of having to sit up straight and his incessant stare at her straight in the eye. She described this stare as intense eye contact which made her feel very uncomfortable. E.C. described respondent as very formal and unrelaxed in a very strict, self-disciplined way while she was very relaxed and "humorous". (3T:65) E.C. described the strictness she discerned about respondent in the following manner:

> He also made us do homework over again if we didn't do it exactly the way he asked it do be done. What I mean by this is by underlining things in different colors and getting all of the equipment - - all the school supplies that he asked like a see-thru ruler and - - and colored pencils and you know kind of nursery school type things. And instead of concentrating on learning the material we concentrated on the formalities of the material.

E.C. described respondent as demanding if the asserted formalities regarding the colored pens were not met because he would hand the submitted work back to the pupil and direct that the work be done over again until it was done exactly the way he wanted it. E.C. described herself as being frightened in the classroom because the classroom was kind of dictatorial and she felt worthless and without "power".

E.C. described the intrusion into the classroom by M.W., the sophomore pupil referenced already by N.N. Along with M.W., E.C. also identified other pupils, not assigned the classroom, who would simply walk into the class and engage in conversation with respondent and talk about matters unrelated to class such as having been to respondent's house, and seeing his house being built. E.C. described these kinds of intrusions as occurring more often then actual class time.

E.C. recalls that respondent spent classroom time discussing martial arts, particularly judo. Respondent would talk about how skilled he was in the martial arts and on many occasion he demonstrated his skills in class. On one occasion during class, E.C. acknowledges that she went to respondent and said something to the effect "I bet you couldn't get me" with a particular karate move. (3T:72)

Respondent said he could and E.C. said to try. E.C. put her arm out and said, in effect, to respondent "let us pretend I punched you" at which respondent grabbed or took her arm and twisted it around somehow and she fell to the ground. E.C. insists that while respondent did not mean to hurt her, that he did hurt her and she had a bracelet on her wrist at that time which pinched her skin. E.C. said that it did not hurt when she fell to the ground but the only thing that did hurt was respondent's grip on her wrist which was over the bracelet because the bracelet pinched her skin.

E.C. does recall respondent on another occasion in class proclaiming how he knocked a corner of a desk off with his bare hands and she recalls another occasion when N.N. was putting lipstick on at her assigned seat in the classroom. She recalls respondent coming up from behind her and in a playful way squeezed her waist and shouted something such as "Don't do that". (3T:79) E.C. quickly points out that the touching was not sexual nor did respondent say anything obscene. While E.C. describes respondent's demeanor in the classroom as strict, highly disciplined, and akin to a military style, E.C. herself points out the apparent contradiction with the way respondent allowed M.W. and others simply to walk into the classroom anytime at all.

Respondents' testimony regarding the conduct of this particular biology class, as well as the pupils who were assigned and what occurred, is quite to the contrary of what has already been presented. Initially, respondent acknowledges that M.W. and others would appear in and disrupt his biology class. Respondent explains that M.W. engaged in particularly outrageous behavior. He was apparently a student in need of special education. Respondent befriended him and told him essentially that before he lost his temper and did something he would regret to come in to his classroom, which he did. However, if respondent was lecturing at the time then M.W. knew he could not stay and would proceed to the school nurse. Consequently, respondent, I infer, justifies the intrusions by unassigned pupils into his biology class by claiming he was really working with them.

With respect to N.N., respondent claims that her behavior for the first month of 1989-90 made no impression upon him. Generally, respondent says he was dissatisfied with the lack of achievement of the whole class, and in particular, the lack of homework. Consequently, respondent began checking homework on a daily basis after which he began getting complaints and negative comments from N.N. Respondent claims that one day in October he was sitting in the corridor outside of the science department when N.N. walked by. He invited her to sit down, which she did, and he advised her that she was not doing really well in biology and asked what he could do to help her. Respondent claims that her response was he could let her sing when she wished to, he could stop grading homework, and he should allow her to walk in and out of class whenever she wanted. (6T:97)

Respondent says that the day N.N. told her mother what he was to have been doing to her, which respondent says are lies, N.N.'s behavior in class that day was bizarre. Respondent says that N.N.'s behavior was so "weird" that he asked her to move her seat from in front of his desk to the side of the room by the aquarium. Then, respondent claims N.N. simply started to sing a whole series of sounds including rhyming sounds and letters strung out one after the other. Respondent said N.N interrupted his lesson every couple of minutes and asked to move back to her seat in front of him and that he finally relented. After resuming her seat in front of his desk, N.N. was quiet for about two minutes and then looked at him and asked if she could draw his nose. Respondent said no and that she should do her work. A couple of minutes later, respondent says N.N. wanted to know if she could touch his mustache. Again, respondent said no and she should do her work. Five minutes later, respondent says N.N. got out of her chair, sat on the floor, and started to sing. After having told N.N. to get back in her chair, which she did, N.N. rolled her head around and continued singing louder and louder. At the end of whatever she was singing, respondent says she got out of the chair, onto the floor side ways with her knees up around her chest and began singing and "incredible series of rhyming sounds and - - and letters." (6T:99) Class ended and N.N. and other students left the classroom. Respondent did not discuss what he says was N.N's behavior that day with any member of the child study team, or any school official, or anyone else despite the fact N.N.'s behavior, he says, was unlike any behavior he saw as a teacher. (7T:86) Rather, respondent says he was going to discuss that behavior with a member of the child study team the following day until after he learned of the allegations N.N. had made about him to her mother.

Respondent denies that during the 1989 fall, he ever kicked or pushed N.N. or any student in the buttocks and he denies having ever twisted N.N.'s arm, or any other pupil's arm, behind their back, and he denies twisting any pupil's wrist or having used any form of martial arts in class. He does acknowledge that on one occasion during class he addressed a question to N.N. to which he received no response so he called her name twice and "went over and shook her by the shoulders and went N.?" (6T:101) On another occasion, respondent acknowledged that N.N.

was putting on lipstick after he had told her many times not to put makeup on during class. He walked up behind N.N. and told her to put the lipstick away and "tickled her" on her shoulders.

Respondent testified in regard to E.C. that he recalls sitting at his desk when E.C. got in line with other pupils for him to check their homework. E.C. became impatient so she walked right up to him and began shaking her homework papers in his face. According to respondent, the corners of the papers were hitting him on the cheek, near his eye so he grabbed her wrist and moved her and the papers away from his face. It appears that respondent denies twisting E.C.'s arm although in response to the question "Did you twist her arm?", his response was "You don't have to. You just grab the wrist and you move her away. It's very simple." (6T:103) Respondent recalls another occasion with E.C. when she wanted to talk with him while he was taking with someone while seated at his desk. According to respondent, E.C. began to poke him in the shoulder and shook her fist in his face. He grabbed her wrist and moved her away from him.

In regard to respondent's denial of pupil arm or wrist twisting, his testimony on cross-examination is illuminating:

> Q Now, your testimony is that other than the four physical contact incidents with you [two with N.N. and two with E.C.] which you have described which you think are entirely appropriate, you've had not other physical contact with students, putting aside playing basketball, lacrosse, football, anything like that; is that true?
>
> A No.
>
> Q Okay. What's the true testimony?
>
> A You can also add to basketball or the arm wrestling. You can also add showing them wrist stretching exercises and centering and meditation exercises.
>
> Q Anything else?
>
> A No.
>
> Q Now, didn't you previously tell us you did not show students any of these martial arts?
>
> A That's correct.
>
> Q Or is this some kind of explanation?
>
> A No. Neither. This - - the centering exercises and wrist stretches and mediation are not wazu (phonetic) or martial technique.

Q Do you come into physical contact with the other person?
A During.
Q Wrist stretching, centering or meditation.
A You could.
Q Did you?
A Most likely, yes.
Q You can't recall?
A The idea of centering - -
Q You can't recall?
A I cannot recall.
Q Okay, Now, wrist stretching implies from the words that there's some stretching of the wrist; is that correct?
Q By another person or by the subject himself or herself?
A By the subject him or herself.
Q Okay, Centering. What is that?
A In other words, instead of sitting like a snail vark (sic-phonetic), watching your posture and having a sense of where your own center of consciousness is. Some call it the hara (phonetic). Other (sic) call it the one point. Fred Astaire called it his center of gravity. ***

Respondent's own witness, N.A., testified he demonstrated karate, or aikido, moves in class on pupils. (10T:61-63)

Respondent points out that his performance rating for 1989-90, despite the allegations against him by N.N., was satisfactory, the highest rating to be received by a teacher at Princeton. Furthermore, respondent insists that he was not disciplined in any manner as the result of whatever conduct was alleged against him during 1989-90. Respondent claims that N.N. lies when she makes the allegations here against him and that she now has a vendetta against him (7T:80); that E.C. is truthful when she describes what occurred between him and her except, respondent insists, E.C. did not testify that he twisted her arm behind her back, made her fall to the ground, pinched the bracelet on her hand and caused her to cry. (7T:87) I FIND, contrary to respondent's insistence, that E.C. did so testify.

I have considered the testimony of C.M., C.B., and K.A., each of whom was a pupil in respondent's class and each of whom hold respondent in high regard, and I reviewed the testimony of N.A. who, as reported above, acknowledged that respondent demonstrated martial arts in class. The collective testimony of the pupils, except as specifically noted otherwise, is that respondent was a good teacher who kept their interest in class. However, no one of these pupils was present when the incidents described above by N.N. or E.C. were to have occurred. I have also reviewed the testimony of Guidance Counselor Saldon who cannot recall N.N. complaining of respondent; I reviewed the testimony of Ann Johnson who considers respondent a very effective teacher; I reviewed the testimony of James Manzer, William Bux, and Claudia Eberly who presented themselves to testify regarding the positive influence respondent had on pupils. I have reviewed the testimony of Sherry Sprague, Anthony Biancosino, Gil Mortensen, parent Cleo McCray, and Beth Frykberg. Each of these individuals testified regarding personal opinions they formed concerning N.N. which are negative and respondent which are positive and his effectiveness as a teacher, along with his honesty and integrity. Finally, I have reviewed and considered the testimony of Tynetta Howard who says she overheard N.N. said to another that her "plan" worked to get out of respondent's class. There is no evidence, however, that Ms. Howard reported what she was to have heard, in light of the seriousness of the matter, to Principal Sakala.

Nevertheless, respondent's performance was rated satisfactory for 1989-90.

FINDINGS OF FACT

I have considered the testimony and documentary evidence offered by the parties in support of their respective positions on this charge and while the individuals called by respondent to testify in his defense were honest and forthright in their personal opinions regarding him, I am persuaded that respondent did in fact engage in the conduct alleged in this charge. That is, I am absolutely persuaded that respondent kicked or pushed N.N. in the buttocks on more than one occasion during 1989-90; that he did grab N.N. from behind and tickle her; that he did twist the arm of N.N.; that he did grab E.C. by the wrist and turn her arm around her back which forced her to the ground; and, I am convinced that respondent did, in fact, demonstrate martial arts techniques in class on pupils and, more likely than not, caused wrist burns to be inflicted upon those pupils. Respondent's own testimony regarding this charge is equivocal at best and in my view offered as an attempt to mislead. If N.N.'s behavior on October 24 was as bizarre as respondent claims no valid reason exists why he did not take immediate steps to assist her. Therefore, the conduct underlying charge eight is found to be true in fact and that such conduct manifests poor judgment by him and caused DYFS to launch an investigation which, in turn, resulted in his suspension. Respondent's suspension from his teaching duties necessarily caused a disruption in the continuity of instruction for the pupils in his assigned classes. Contrary to respondent's Brief at page 44, his suspension is mandated by law, N.J.S.A. 9:6-3.1, not by local policy.

CHARGE NINE

Charge Nine is reproduced here without the 23 paragraphs of specifications:

> During the course of his career, Ward Campbell has engaged in a pattern of unprofessional conduct which has triggered complaints from parents, students and administrators and which demonstrates that he is unsuited to remain as a teaching staff member in the Princeton School District.

The Board offers this charge not to prove the truth of the complaints made against respondent, but to show that throughout his entire career he received notice that the complained of conduct in the specifications, which the Board asserts was repeated in charges one through eight, would not be tolerated and that such complained of conduct, if continued, would result in serious disciplinary action.

The extensive specifications to this charge repeat the conduct complained of in charges one through eight, and conduct allegedly engaged in by respondent from 1978 through 1986 which formed the bases for telephone complaints made to principal Johnson. The complained of conduct not already addressed in charges one through eight includes respondent's exclamation to a parent in February 1978 who had telephoned him to discuss her child that she was "so full of shit" for which he received a written reprimand (PJ-52); conduct in 1982 by which parents complained that respondent, in explanation to another parent why there was no grade on that parent's child's report-card, stated that it was not his fault, he was working with "assholes"; that he was denied permission for a weekend field trip with eight female students but conducted the field trip anyway and that on that field trip he used profanity in front of the female pupils. In 1983 complaints were lodged against respondent for having given "pink bellies" to pupil, for having used "four letter words," leaving his class unattended, issuing illegible ditto's and unreasonable ground rules, and for having used "bad language" in class.

During 1983-84 a number of complaints of respondent's conduct were telephoned to principal Johnson by three parents who claimed respondent gave pupils wrist burns, pink bellies, and "head locks", that he engaged in "strange" and/or "threatening" behavior, tore up pupils' papers in class, looked "intoxicated", and referred to a parent's child during a parent conference as a "twitch shit." A complaint was made also over an incident which was to have occurred in 1984 with a pupil C.S., who has since graduated from Princeton High School and is presently in attendance at the University of Pennsylvania, who appeared and testified at this hearing. The incident with C.S. which occurred in April 1984 and for which he received a written reprimand from Johnson, along with an earlier written reprimand from the superintendent (PJ-42) for "horseplay" with pupils, resulted in an unsatisfactory evaluation of respondent's performance for 1983-84, and a recommendation to withhold a salary increment. The "horseplay" in which respondent was to have engaged in March 1984 was the pink bellies, wrist burns, and swinging a pupil around a desk. The withholding recommendation was not forwarded to the Board by the then superintendent because of the "bad message" all such recommendations would send the community as already reported above in Background. Nevertheless, a letter of concern was issued by Principal Johnson (PJ-43) in regard to the C.S. incident.

When respondent was assigned to the high school for 1985-86 he received a memorandum from his supervisor (PS-5) regarding his conduct of shouting at the supervisor in front of students and teachers, along with the memorandum having memorialized an earlier incident when respondent exclaimed in front of students that room assignments given him were "stupid."

Principal Johnson testified that he personally discussed each of the complaints, with the exception of one, set forth in the specifications to this charge with respondent. Johnson did not discuss the field trip complaint because the trip occurred after the school year ended. Johnson was able to recall having discussed each telephone complaint with respondent because he maintained, and continues to do so, a log of telephone calls received during his principalship. Johnson testified that his practice regarding the log and telephone complaints received is that whenever the complaint deals with a matter sufficiently serious to require him to speak to the teacher involved he places a star alongside of that complaint in his log. Thus, Johnson was able to credibly testify that he discussed each complaint he received with respondent. Johnson also testified that throughout the years respondent was assigned his school, he had conferences with him "all the time" in order to give him suggestions for improvement of his complained of behavior as a teacher. Johnson explained that he wanted respondent to straighten out his conduct in order to eliminate parental and student complaints he had been receiving. Throughout the observations and evaluations of respondent's performance which are contained within this record, reference is made to the need for improvement in respondent's "professional posture." That reference according to Johnson, was an effort to get respondent to "fine tune" his professional demeanor as a teacher in the district based on parental complainants he received, but could not consider in his evaluations of respondent's performance under the Agreement.

Johnson worked out a procedure he calls "fact or fiction" with respondent regarding the numerous telephone complaints he had been receiving. Johnson explains under this "fact or fiction" procedure he would go to respondent and say, in essence, "Ward, I got a phone call. Is it true such and such happened? If it's true,– clean it up. If it's not true, forget it. " (1T:34) Johnson testified that the "fact or fiction" procedure with respondent went on for years because of the numerous telephone complaints he received from parents regarding the conduct of respondent. Johnson testified that he cannot recall respondent ever admitting that inappropriate conduct when Johnson discussed the complaints with him. In fact, Johnson testified that in most cases, after respondent denied having engaged in conduct which would be the subject of a complaint, respondent would then provide a litany of what was wrong with the pupil whose parent telephoned the complaint. (2T:25)

Respondent admits the vulgar exclamation to the parent in 1978 that she "was full of shit" and he admits "horseplay" but only in the form of having organized an arm wrestling contest in class, a picture of which he notes was published in the school yearbook. Respondent specifically denies the incident with C.S. and he denies having been put on notice or counseled regarding any other complaint which school administrators may have received regarding his conduct from 1978 forward.

Respondent testified that between the period 1977 through 1984 he and Johnson did discuss his vulgar exclamation to the parent who called on the telephone regarding her child; his arm wrestling for which the superintendent subsequently issued a letter of reprimand for the "horse play"; and, his conduct in regard to C.S. which incident, respondent insists, did not occur. Respondent specifically denies Johnson ever spoke to him concerning pink bellies, foul language, using head locks on students, wrists burns, referring to any student as a "twitch shit", exclaiming that he works with "assholes", or that he tore up pupil papers. However, respondent does not deny the "fact of fiction" mode of inquiry Johnson used with him on a number of occasions.

In regard to the superintendent's letter of reprimand (PJ-42) Johnson testified that he received a parental complaint on March 29, 1984 that respondent gave a pupil a wrist burn, swung another pupil around a desk, and that pink bellies were being administered in respondent's classroom. Johnson eventually reported the complaint to the superintendent. Johnson testified that he investigated the complaint because the parent had given him permission to do so. Johnson discovered that "there was some type of fooling around in Mr. Campbell's class," although respondent denied the fooling around, pink bellies, and wrist burns. There followed a conference with the superintendent, Johnson, respondent, and a representative from the Association. Following that meeting, the superintendent issued the letter of reprimand [PJ-42] which letter identifies respondent's complained of conduct, that is wrist burns, pink bellies, and swinging a pupil around a desk, as "horse play." In the reprimand letter, the superintendent notes that principal Johnson had had repeated discussions with respondent regarding his professional responsibilities and that he has engaged in unprofessional conduct; that his professional improvement plan for the preceding year required him to abide by professional expectations; and that "horse play" in class should be discouraged. Finally, the superintendent notes that respondent is expected to use professional conduct and judgment, not tolerate inappropriate student behavior, to cease engaging in brash, bravado, machismo activity because it may frighten timid children, and to eliminate all forms of "horse play." On cross-examination respondent's testimony regarding the letter of reprimand and his denial of prior warnings regarding his complained of conduct is as follows:

> Q. Now, let me refer you to the second paragraph [PJ-42: Letter of Reprimand], which reads: 'Over the course of your time in the district, you and Mr. Johnson have had repeated discussions about your professional responsibilities and his sense that you have not conducted yourself in a professional manner.'
> Do you see that sentence?
>
> A. Yes, I do.
>
> Q. Now, is that a false statement?
>
> A. That is a false statement.

Q. And did you write to Mr. Houston [the then superintendent] and Mr. Johnson saying that that was a false statement?

A. No, I did not.

***

Q. Then it says: 'This latest incident was in direct disregard of this year's PIP [Professional Improvement Plan]'

Is that true?

A. No.

Q. Now, if you'd move down on that same page, it says: 'Mr. Johnson pointed out that he expected the following.' And then paragraph number 2 says: 'You should apply professional judgment, involving yourself in juvenile activities or failing to maintain your composure would be opposed to this.'

Do you see that language?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. Now, do you know that he was talking about?

A. No, I do not.

Q. Did you ask him about it?

A. No, I did not.

Q. Did you write in response and either object to that or question it?

A. No, I did not.

Q. Now, paragraph three says: 'You should intervene and stop student behavior that might be construed as inappropriate.'

Did you know what he was talking about?

A. No, I did not.

Q. Did you write to him?

A. No, I did not.

Q. And did you ask for a conference about this?

A. No, I did not.

Q. Paragraph four says: 'Brash, bravado, machismo activity, while appealing to some children, frighten and alienate other children.'

Do you see that language?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. Did you know what he was talking about?

A. I believe it had something to do with the lacrosse team and my coaching of the lacrosse team. And there were some children that were intimidated by the lacrosse players coming into my classroom to drop off their equipment

Q. That was the machismo activity you were engaged in?

A. That is the machismo activity as best I can figure out what he was talking about.

Q. Were you curious about what he was talking about?

A. No, actually I wasn't.

Q. Now, the second page at the top says: 'We spent considerable time discussing your image in the community and how far you need to go to restore confidence in your professional demeanor.'

Do you see that language?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. Did you know what he was talking about?

A. Not in the slightest.

Q. Did you think that the restoration of confidence was due to one arm wrestling incident?

A. I had no idea what he was talking about?

Q. And you didn't think it was worthwhile to check with the Superintendent as to what this letter meant?

A. That's correct.

Q. Didn't you think it might have an impact on your employment?

A. In all honesty, if you want to know what was in my mind when I got it?

Q. I do.

A. I thought it was a joke. I couldn't - - I - - I just could not believe this. So I just wrote it off and went on with my life.

(7T:34-39)

Mr. Campbell was also questioned regarding the May 8, 1984 letter of concern from Principal William Johnson (PJ-43) regarding the C.S. incident;

Q. The third paragraph says: 'Throughout your tenure as a teacher at John Witherspoon School we [Johnson and respondent] have discussed and I [Johnson] have reinforced the importance of you maintaining a professional posture at all times.

Is that a true statement?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. So in the preceding, I guess it was seven years you'd had many discussions with Mr. Johnson about your professional posture?

A. No

Q. What's not true about the statement?

A. Throughout my tenure as a teacher from the very first year that I was there he informed me, he reminded me that I was the youngest person on the faculty and that I had to be careful with how the older people, both on the faculty and around, perceived me. Even the idea of going out and adopting and hugging a tree [as part of environmental science] raised eyebrows and created a ruckus. And then I got in trouble again when we were outside with the kids looking at the trees when we got caught in a rainstorm. So in addition to being chastised for naming trees and encouraging people to adopt them and hug them, then there was a problem when the kids got rained on. The nice thing was that the home ec teacher loved the fact that it happened because it finally got her a dryer for her classroom and she thanked me for getting the kids wet.

Q. In your mind, those two situations, the hugging the tree, and playing basketball at lunchtime, were the problems concerning your professional posture?

A. Yes.

Q. It then says: 'This latest incident leads me to believe that you -- that the area of professionalism is an area in which you cannot function up to our standards.

Again, you think he was only talking about the tree hugging and basketball?

A. I could not elaborate. I don't know.

(7T:40-42)

FINDINGS OF FACT

Findings on this charge are limited to whether principal Johnson and/or the superintendent discussed respondent's complained of conduct with him between 1978 through 1984. Findings do not reach the issue of whether respondent did, in fact, engage in the specific complained of conduct except where he acknowledges its truth as in telling the parent she is "so full of shit" which conduct is found true in fact.

I find principal Johnson's testimony credible that he personally discussed with respondent each complaint received regarding his conduct, except the field trip, between 1978 through 1984. This credibility assessment is based on Johnson's undisputed written compilation of his starred telephone log upon which he relied during his testimony regarding events which occurred years ago. It is also based on reasonably expected conduct of a high school principal that when complaints of this nature and quantity are received regarding a teacher's conduct, he/she will discuss the complaint with the teacher. Respondent's contrary testimony is found to be contrived, not worthy of belief, and not credible. It simply is not reasonable, as an example, for a teacher to have received a written reprimand from the superintendent as respondent did, discuss the reprimand with the superintendent, the principal, and his association representative, then claim he has little if any idea to which conduct the reprimand refers, make no inquiries at the meeting or thereafter, and conclude that the reprimand was a "joke"!

Another example of respondent's lack of credibility is the C.S. incident. C.S., who by all accounts in this record is and was an honest individual, an excellent student without ill will towards respondent, gave compelling testimony that respondent publicly referred to her as a slut in a classroom. C.S.'s testimony is so strong that had respondent's complained of conduct been a separate charge he would have needed more than simply to deny such conduct or to rely on E.K.'s writing, which was prepared a month later and appears to have been requested of her by him.

Finally, respondent offers no reasonable explanation for "fact or fiction" which he acknowledges having occurred. Principal Johnson's testimony is unrefuted that the complaints he had to discuss with respondent regarding his conduct were so numerous that he resorted to the use of "fact or fiction".

I am persuaded that the Board established the truth of Charge Nine that between 1978 through 1984 respondent knew that complaints of his conduct were being made against him and that he acquired such knowledge because Principal Johnson told him of such complaints and repeatedly cautioned him to cease conduct causing such complaints.

SUMMARY OF FINDINGS

While the observed teaching performance of respondent has been rated highly, except in 1983-84 and 1989-90, his conduct from 1978 forward not observed by supervisors but proven true in fact includes:

* Telling a parent she is 'full of shit';
* Being repeatedly told of parental complaints against his use, or allowing the use, of wrist burns, pink bellies, and inappropriate physical contact with pupils, his use of inappropriate language, and his use of intimidating conduct in class;
* A recommendation had been made by principal Johnson to the then superintendent to withhold salary increments for 1984-85 because of the C.S. incident and the 'horseplay' in which he was to have engaged. The recommendation was not forwarded to Board because of the "bad image" it, and other similar recommendations, would present; not because of a view that the recommendation was not justified by respondent's conduct.
* Respondent's teaching performance was rated as unsatisfactory for 1983-84 and, again, for 1990-91. The 1991 unsatisfactory evaluation was as the direct result of respondent's conduct regarding N.N. and J.J.
* Despite having been repeatedly told of alleged improper conduct, one year after having returned from his two year leave of absence, respondent engaged in inappropriate physical contact with N.N. by placing his foot on her buttocks as she bent down to pick up a pencil, by twisting her arm, and other objectionable conduct, and by engaging in similar conduct with E.C., and other unidentified pupils in the classroom.
* Respondent, through his conduct motivated by anger he would not, or could not, control pushed a pupil, J.J., from a chair onto the floor thereby causing J.J. pain and embarrassment.
* Respondent applied psychological pressure to J.J. in order to secure from him a letter of apology in order to deflect personal responsibility for his own conduct.
* Despite having been repeatedly cautioned of his improper conduct and inappropriate language, respondent announced to his class during September 1991 that he has been known to hit kids, uttered the epithet 'fuck you' in class in the presence of at least two pupils, and he bragged of having shot a mugger.

* On September 11, 1991 respondent uttered racial remarks to A.A. and four other black pupils including having to give A.A., who is black, his 'blacks in Princeton speech', that the races should be separated, that it is necessary for respondent to correct the speech of black people and that black pupils at Princeton High School are only interested in having fun, and that four specific black pupils more likely than not would fail high school because they are black.

In his filed brief at page 107 respondent asks the question, perhaps rhetorically but nevertheless asks, whether principal Johnson, teacher Vivens who testified on behalf of respondent, or Joann Parker, who also testified on behalf of respondent, and all three of whom are African-American, would have faced tenure charges if they had made the statements to A.A. and the advisees respondent had made and for which he was charged with conduct unbecoming. Respondent then argues that because he is a "white male" should not in anyway stigmatize his efforts to encourage minority students.

The answer to the question posed may only be answered by the Board for it is that body which determines whether to certify tenure charges against one of its employees. However, if what respondent suggests is that the comments he made to A.A. and the other four black pupils would not be considered racist if said by a black person, respondent misses the point of the need for this society to eliminate stereotypical race-based comments which are demeaning. Being an African-American, or a member of any other minority group, does not carry with it license to subject black students to stereotypical, racist comments which are offensive and demeaning particularly in a public school setting and particularly when the speaker of the remarks is a public school teacher.

CONCLUSIONS

Tenure of employment as a teaching staff member such as that possessed by respondent protects teachers from arbitrary dismissal for "unfounded, flimsy or political reasons." Spiewak v. Rutherford Bd. of Ed., 90 N.J. 63, 73 (1982). Tenure is designed to aid in the establishment of "a competent and efficient school system" by affording protective teachers a measure of security in the ranks they hold after years of service. Viemeister v. Prospect Park Bd. of Ed., 5 N.J. 215, 218 (App. Div. 1949). Unfitness to remain a teacher may be shown by a single incident, if sufficiently flagrant, but is "best shown by numerous incidents." Redcay v. State Bd. of Ed., 130 N.J.L. 369, 371 (Sup. Ct.) aff'd 131 N.J.L. 326 (E&A 1944); In re Fulcomer, 93 N.J. Super. 404, (App. Div. 1967).

N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 provides that a tenured teacher shall not be dismissed or reduced in compensation "except for inefficiency, incapacity, unbecoming conduct or other just cause." In this case, the Board established that respondent, who has the capacity to put on an excellent lesson while being observed, is also vituperative with pupils and parents, he has demonstrated an inability to control his temper, and he has a propensity to place his hands on pupils in order to correct what he perceives to be deficiencies or excesses in their performance. It must be quickly noted that there is no evidence whatsoever that respondent ever touched any pupil in a sexual manner and no one of these charges make such an allegation.

Respondent's argument that the Board failed to show he was counseled or warned regarding allegations of unprofessional conduct under Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Cowan, 224 N.J. Super. 737 (App. Div. 1988) is rejected. The proofs in this case amply demonstrate that respondent was warned by principal Johnson as early as 1978 regarding complaints of his offensive conduct. Those warnings continued thereafter whenever Johnson received a telephone complaint. Moreover, principal Sakala brought to respondent's attention complaints he received from pupils and parents regarding his conduct. While such warnings are not in the context of "WARNING-DO NOT ENGAGE IN SUCH CONDUCT", any reasonable person must see the conversations and written reprimand he received from Johnson and Sakala as warnings to respondent that his conduct as complained of by parents would not be tolerated. Regrettably, respondent failed to heed such warnings.

Respondent's reliance upon the absence of criticism regarding his conduct in his observations and evaluations to show he has always performed at a satisfactory level is misplaced. Principal Johnson's testimony is clear that he would not comment in respondent's observations/evaluations on complaints regarding his conduct which were not placed in writing. Consequently, Johnson used the evaluation device to direct respondent to improve his professional posture, which he knew referred to complaints received of which he was advised. The need to have had closer supervision of respondent by Principal Johnson and more direct comment on complaints received regarding his conduct is, nevertheless, indicated. Assistant Principal Schneider's silence to respondent mimicking the speech of black persons is puzzling.

Respondent argues that whatever occurred with N.N. or E.C. or any other pupil who may have testified against him in this proceeding does not constitute corporal punishment under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-1. While this defense is mounted, no one of the charges allege corporal punishment under law. Rather, what is in dispute is respondent's conduct of inappropriate physical contact with pupils characterized as unprofessional conduct. Respondent's conduct proven true does indeed constitute unprofessional conduct.

The facts in this case demonstrate that since initial employment in 1977-78 respondent's conduct has been the subject of complaints by parents, pupils, and supervisors. When a pupil school teacher admits having exclaimed to a parent seeking information on the progress of her child that she 'is so full of shit', when as the evidence in this case convincingly establishes the teacher refuses to cease inappropriate physical contact with pupils and sarcastic, demeaning, vulgar, intimidating, intemperate, and race-based remarks to pupils, when as the evidence convincingly establishes the teacher uses his superior position to apply psychological pressure for his benefit to a pupil to do something the pupil would not otherwise do, and when as the evidence in this case convincingly establishes the teacher receives a letter of reprimand from the superintendent and treats it as a 'joke' and ignores the admonitions contained therein, that teacher has manifested his intention not to conform his conduct to that expected by his employer, the Board of Education. Despite the fact the teacher may otherwise be rated as a highly satisfactory teacher through observable conduct in the classroom during a prepared lesson, the psychological and emotional detriments which befall certain pupils through that teacher's conduct, not observed by supervisors, create too much risk to pupils to have that teacher continue in his tenured employment.

Respondent has demonstrated over the years profoundly irresponsible conduct with pupils, he has refused to heed admonitions to conform his conduct to that expected of any teacher, and he has refused to cease and refrain from the use of objectionable conduct. While respondent may otherwise be an effective teacher during the presentation of a lesson observed by his supervisors, conduct in which he has engaged and in which he continues to engage is sufficiently flagrant for respondent to be separated from his employment with the Board and to forfeit his tenure. Accordingly, the employment of Ward Campbell as a teacher in the employ of the Princeton Regional Board of Education shall be and is terminated.

INCREMENT WITHHOLDING CHALLENGE

N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14 provides, in part, that "Any board of education may withhold, for inefficiency or other good cause, the employment increment, or the adjustment increment, or both, of any member in any year by a recorded role call majority vote of the full membership ***."

On April 29, 1991 respondent was advised that the Board had acted on April 23, 1991 to withhold employment and adjustment salary increments from him for 1991-9 because of his "inappropriate physical contact with pupils in September and October of 1989 [the N.N. incident] and on March 22, 1991 [the J.J. incident]" (PS-18).

Respondent seeks to have the Board's action withholding his salary increments set aside on the basis that it failed to present credible evidence that it had a reasonable basis for its conclusion that he engaged in any of the conduct identified by N.N. or by J.J.

In Kopera v. West Orange Bd. of Education, 60 N.J. Super. 288, 296-297 (App. Div. 1960), held that on an appeal of an increment withholding action by the affected employee, the Commissioner is to determine (1) whether the underlying facts were as those who made the evaluation claimed, and (2) whether it was unreasonable for them to conclude as they did upon those facts, bearing in mind that they were experts, admittedly without bias or prejudice, and closely familiar with the mise en scene. The burden of proving unreasonableness is upon the appellant. Respondent's complained of conduct regarding N.N. and J.J. has been proven true in fact. That conduct formed the underlying facts by the Board for the withholding action. Therefore, the facts are as stated by N.N. and J.J. It is imminently reasonable for a board of education, and specifically this Board, to withhold salary increments from a teacher who has engaged in such proven conduct. Therefore, respondent is not entitled to relief because he failed to show the Board was unreasonable in its judgment. The Petition of Appeal regarding the Board's action to withhold respondent's salary increments for 1991-92 is DISMISSED.

A final matter remains. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14 provides that a board of education which certifies a tenure charge to the Commissioner may suspend the affected employee with or without pay. If the employee is suspended without pay, as in this case, and if the determination of the charge is not made within 120 calendar days after the certification, excluding all delays granted at the employee's request, then that employee's full salary shall resume on the 121rst until such determination is made.

Respondent was suspended without pay on November 20, 1991 when the Board certified charges against him. His full salary resumed on the 121rst day thereafter while his suspension continued. The plenary hearing was conducted on 11 days between April 9 and June 18, 1992 at the Office of Administrative Law, Mercerville. There, the hearing rooms are equipped with an audio-recording device. Written transcripts of testimony heard are prepared on request of the parties from the audiotapes by Audio Transcription Service in West Orange. The extensive record in this case, the correct spelling of certain terms used by respondent, and the occasionally lack of clarity of the audiotapes caused some delay in transcript preparation. Consequently, respondent could not comply with an originally selected date of filing post-hearing memorandum by about mid-August 1992. The last writing was submitted by respondent on October 8, 1992, the date this record closed.

The Board seeks to have the delay from mid-August to October 8, 1992 charged to respondent as a "delay" for purposes of salary payments already issued him under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14. It prays for an Order authorizing it to recoup the approximate seven weeks salary payments made.

Respondent opposes the Board's motion and, and in an affidavit filed by respondent's counsel, points out that mid-August was a tentative date for the filing of memorandum and was never agreed as a firm date. Furthermore, respondent's counsel attests that Audio Transcription Service required correct spellings of certain names and phrases before it would prepare transcripts. In short, respondent's counsel asserts that he did all in his power to assure transcripts were promptly prepared.

I have considered the argument of the Board in support of its motion, as well as respondent's opposition thereto. I am not persuaded by the argument of the Board that whatever delay existed in the preparation of the transcripts from each day of hearing in this matter was caused by respondent. Whatever delay occurred in transcript preparation is due solely to the process of audio-recording as it presently exists. The Board's motion is DENIED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 West State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF WARD CAMPBELL, PRINCETON REGIONAL SCHOOL DISTRICT, MERCER COUNTY.	: AND	:
WARD CAMPBELL,	:
PETITIONER,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
V.	:	DECISION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE PRINCETON REGIONAL SCHOOL DISTRICT, MERCER COUNTY,	:
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Timely exceptions were filed by Respondent-Petitioner Campbell pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4, as were replies thereto by the Board of Education.

In his exceptions, Campbell initially reiterates the proposed findings of fact set forth in his post-hearing brief, which generally credit and emphasize the evidence and testimony of Campbell and his witnesses while impeaching, re-characterizing or downplaying the importance of the Board's proofs. Turning specifically to the initial decision, Campbell first avers that the ALJ erred in concluding (Initial Decision, at p. 73, Charge IX) that there was, between 1978 and 1984, a pattern of counseling and/or warnings concerning unbecoming conduct on Campbell's part as required by Cowan, supra. Instead Campbell contends, his evaluations are filled with praise by evaluators who were not precluded, contrary to the ALJ's implication, from mentioning any concerns they had with respect to any aspect of Campbell's department, including concerns not relating to the particular classes they were observing. Thus, were there any concerns or had there been any warnings about Campbell's conduct, they would have been expressed in more than "the few amorphous criticismsincluded in several observations over a period of almost fifteen (15) years." Further, the ALJ should not have relied on testimony from William Johnson relating to anonymous complaints in view of the district's practice of considering such complaints untruthful. (Petitioner's Exceptions (Exception I), at p. 82)

Campbell next contends that the ALJ erred in crediting the testimony of N.N. and construing the testimony of E.C. to conclude that Campbell engaged in inappropriate physical contact with them and other students in his 1989-90 biology class (Charge VIII). E.C.'s testimony clearly established that Campbell only demonstrated martial arts techniques at her insistence and never meant to injure her, while N.N.'s testimony was totally uncorroborated and contradicted by other, more credible, witnesses; as well as belied by the fact that N.N., who disliked the rigor of Campbell's class and was a "problem" student, never reported any of the supposed incidents to her guidance counselors. (Exception II)

Campbell then argues that the ALJ erred in concluding that Campbell had hit or pushed J.J., causing him to fall over a chair, and then coerced the student into writing a letter denying that this had occurred (Charges V and VI). In so concluding, the ALJ ignored

J.J.'s well-known propensity toward lying, drawing attention to himself and self-abusive behavior, as well as his own earlier finding that the letter in question contained no misstatements of fact. Also ignored was the fact that no intention to harm had been demonstrated and the lack of credibility of the Board's "corroborating" witnesses. (Exception III)

In his next exception, Campbell avers that the ALJ erred in sustaining the Board's charge (Charge II) of inappropriate racial statements to middle school advisees during the 1991-92 school year, as it is abundantly clear from the testimony of the affected students that they recognized Campbell's intent as exactly what it was: encouragement and good counsel regarding pitfalls to avoid in high school and recognition that all students, regardless of background, could achieve the very best in academics if they were willing to overcome peer pressure and apply themselves to their work. In this context, any reference to race was merely an acknowledgement of the undisputed cycle of failure experienced by most black students within the Princeton system, and of the undisputedly disproportionate number of blacks in remedial classes, from which it was extremely difficult to emerge once "tracked" there through poor performance in middle school. (Exception IV)

Campbell then argues that the ALJ erred in finding that Campbell made inappropriate racial statements to his middle school science class regarding student A.A. and that he engaged in inappropriate behavior on "back to school" night when confronted there by A.A.'s father (Charge I). Accounts of Campbell's classroom comments, which were of the type discussed at Exception IV above, clearly became exaggerated and misrepresented as they passed from student to student; while Campbell's conduct on "back to school" night was entirely consistent with the purpose of that event and completely reasonable given the irrational and agitated state of A.A's father, whose provocative manner precipitated the entire incident. Also, there was no support in testimony or evidence for the ALJ's conclusion that Campbell referred to separation of races regarding A.A's choice of seating, and it is likewise clear that black staff members in the district--who actually appreciated Campbell's spontaneity and commitment to black students--saw no racism in, and took no offense at, Campbell's use of black dialect, one of the bases on which the ALJ concluded that Campbell evinced racist tendencies. (Exception V) With respect to Charges I and II, Campbell also reiterates the First Amendment arguments raised in his earlier Motion to Dismiss as set forth at length in the initial decision at pp. 25-30, averring that the ALJ's analysis fails because it is based on the erroneous assumption that Campbell's message in the comments at issue was negative rather than positive. (Exception VI)

Also without merit, according to Campbell, are the ALJ's findings regarding inappropriate sexist remarks to female student S.K. (Charge III), intimidating classroom behavior (Charge IV) and the "Walkman in the aquarium" incident (Charge VII). In the first instance, the ALJ took at face value the testimony of a witness who could in no way be found credible, as well as ignoring the general climate out of which the allegations against Campbell arose; in the second, he ignored both witnesses who corroborated Campbell's account and Campbell's own credible testimony. (Exceptions VII and VIII) In the third, he absurdly sustained charges when it was clear that Campbell had never taken an operational Walkman, but had only used a broken one volunteered by a student as a "message" to the disruptive students about whom both Campbell and other students were concerned. (Exception IX)

Campbell then reiterates his recitation of relevant tenure law as contained in his post-hearing brief, concluding that its application in his case compels dismissal of all charges. He further opines that it would be a tragedy for the Princeton system, as well as a travesty of First Amendment protections, to permit hysterical overreaction to constructive statements arising from known public issues and the testimony of a few disturbed students to terminate the employment of a gifted, dedicated teacher who routinely went out of his way for students and consistently received positive evaluations. (Exception X) Finally, Campbell reiterates his argument, summarized at p. 78 of the initial decision, regarding the absence of any basis for the Board's witholding of his 1991-92 increment. (Exception XI)

In reply, the Board references its various submissions before the ALJ and urges affirmance of the initial decision. In general reply to the three main thrusts of Campbell's exceptions, the Board also: 1) responds to Campbell's arguments on lack of evidence by noting that the charges against him were established by numerous witnesses and written statements, and, in virtually all cases, were directly disputed only by Campbell himself, notwithstanding his claims that other witnesses corroborated his testimony; 2) replies to Campbell's attacks on the ALJ's credibility determinations by citing the well-established principle of deference to the trier of fact who actually saw and heard the witnesses, and by noting the thoroughness and care with which the ALJ summarized Campbell's contradictory testimony; and 3) urges rejection of Campbell's arguments on protected speech, noting the critical distinction between this matter and the cases cited by Campbell in the manner, form and time of the speech at issue.

Upon careful review of the record, including ten volumes of hearing transcripts, the Commissioner determines to affirm the decision of the ALJ for the reasons well and fully expressed therein.

The Commissioner is unpersuaded by Campbell's exceptions, which largely raise arguments already addressed at length in the initial decision. Specifically, the Commissioner is fully satisfied that the ALJ's recitation of testimony is both accurate and thorough, and that he carefully measured conflicts, inconsistencies and potential biases in deciding which testimony to credit in reaching his findings of fact. The Commissioner is likewise unpresuaded by Campbell's attempts to discredit certain student witnesses by impugning their general character and deportment and to support his own case by general attestations to his character and teaching effectiveness which bear little or no relation to the actual incidents underlying the Board's charges. Finally, the Commissioner concurs with the Board that the credibility determinations of the finder of fact, who observed the witnesses first-hand, are to be accorded great weight in the absence of any meaningful basis on which to challenge them upon review of the hearing transcripts.

Moreover, the Commissioner finds disingenuous in the extreme Campbell's arguments to the effect that, because his evaluations were silent on incidents of the type complained of herein, he received no indication that such conduct was not acceptable to the district. To the contrary, as found by the ALJ, Campbell received numerous warnings over the years and simply continued to deny that his attitude and professional posture might be a problem. Similarly disingenuous are claims that, because a Walkman was not operational, because a forced letter of apology contained no factual inaccuracies, or because a demonstration of martial arts techniques was given in response to a student's dare, the conduct associated with these incidents as set forth herein is any less objectionable. Most egregious of all, however, is the notion that, from the mouth of a public school teacher addressing individual pupils in the classroom setting, comments of an overtly racist and sexist nature are nothing more than constructive attempts to guide students into better behavior and academic performance, and are furthermore protected expressions of concern and experience on a matter of established public interest within the school district.

In sum, then, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that, while it is regrettable that the decision herein will mean the loss of a teacher who has in some respects accomplished a great deal and shown much potential, Campbell's continuing--and evidently unrepentant--pattern of irresponsible and insensitive utterances, inappropriate physical gestures and intimidation tactics in dealing with students is sufficiently flagrant to warrant his dismissal from tenured employment in the Princeton school district, whatever his intentions may have been in engaging in such conduct.

Accordingly, for the reasons well expressed therein, the Commissioner affirms the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law sustaining the Board's withholding of Campbell's 1991-92 increment, finding that certain procedural delays were not caused by Campbell so as to warrant recoupment of salary paid during suspension, and dismissing Campbell from his tenured employment as of the date of this decision, which is hereby referred to the State Board of Examiners for action as it deems appropriate pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6(a).*

IT IS SO ORDERED.

* The Commissioner notes for the record that one non-material finding of fact in the decision above (Charge VIII, Initial Decision, at p. 66) appears to be in error. N.J.S.A. 9:6-3.1 does in fact mandate suspension for employees alleged to have committed an act of child abuse, but the statute specifically applies to "institution[s]" as defined in N.J.S.A. 9:6-8.21, and by this limitation does not include public schools, which are defined instead under the separate rubric of "day school."

PETITIONER,	:

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF RIDGEFIELD ET AL., BERGEN COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENTS.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, resident and taxpayer of Borough of Ridgefield and unsuccessful candidate for local school Board, challenged alleged use of public funds to promote political views and candidacy of incumbent Board members.

ALJ concluded that the Board did exceed its lawful authority in disseminating the flyers in question and that the proper remedy was injunctive relief to ensure equal representation of other viewpoints. Board was ordered to print and distribute four flyers, once a week for four weeks preceding the next school election, giving equal coverage and prominence to views of all candidates appearing on official ballot. Flyers were to be of comparable size, length and frequency as those mailed in connection with April 1991 school election.

Commissioner concurred with ALJ that the literature complained of by petitioner crossed the line into partisanship. The Commissioner, however, modified the ALJ's remedy. Commissioner has long held that partisan literature of any type has no role in Board-supported election activities. Commissioner directed that in order to ensure compliance with the letter and spirit of law requiring public-supported election literature to be nonpartisan in nature, the Board shall establish a procedure whereby Board publications concerning budget or election shall be reviewed for compliance by full Board in consultation with Board attorney and approved by Board prior to distribution to public. This procedure shall apply to all 1993 school election materials and shall remain in place for one year from date of decision.

BEFORE KEN R. SPRINGER, ALJ:

Statement of the Case

This is a suit by an unsuccessful candidate for the local school board challenging the alleged use of public funds to promote the political views and candidacy of incumbent board members. Basically, the pleadings raise three important issues: (1) whether expenditures by the board for the printing and distribution of certain flyers constitute a misuse of public funds; (2) whether the approval of the flyers was done in a manner which contravenes the Open Public Meetings Act, N.J.S.A. 10:4-6 to -21; and, (3) whether school officials were derelict in failing to exercise greater control over the content of editorials published in a student newspaper.

Procedural History

On May 28, 1991, petitioner John Schettino ("Schettino") filed a petition with the Commissioner of Education ("Commissioner") against the Ridgefield Board of Education ("Board") as well as the named individual board members. Respondents filed an answer on June 18, 1991. Subsequently, on June 27, 1991, the Commissioner transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") for hearing as a contested case.

Both parties have stipulated all material facts, consented to a common set of exhibits, and brought cross-motions for summary decision. Both parties filed legal briefs in support of summary decision on June 15, 1992. Schettino filed a reply brief on June 29, 1992. The Board filed a reply on August 3, 1992.

Findings of Fact

All of the underlying facts and the contents of the relevant documents are undisputed, although their legal significance is strongly contested. I FIND:

John L. Schettino is a resident and taxpayer of the Borough of Ridgefield in Bergen County. In April 1991, he was one of four candidates for two vacant seats on the Ridgefield Board of Education. Other candidates included the two incumbents Alfred L. Kotkin and Marianne Merwede. The election was held on April 30, 1991. During the preceding four weeks, the Board arranged for the mailing of four separate flyers to residents of the Borough. It is acknowledged that the Board paid for the flyers through the use of funds contained in the Board's regular operating budget. Costs for printing the four flyers amounted to $2,740 and for mailing them amounted to $1,615, or a total of $4,355. These costs were previously included as part of the district's annual printing expenses, which had been authorized for bidding at a public meeting held on July 12, 1990 and awarded at a public meeting held on July 31, 1990.

The Board as a whole did not draft the flyers. Instead, it delegated responsibility to prepare the flyers to three Board members, Marianne Merwede, Edmund Eyerman, and Nicholas Petrillo, who were assisted by various school administrators. Generally, the Board does not approve the content of each mailing made on its behalf by the school administration. In this particular case, the Board did not call for a public reading of the flyers or approve their content by formal vote.

Each of the flyers emphasized that the current Board had "lower[ed] school taxes," while promoting "good schools" which equate to "higher home values." Each contained a similarly-worded paragraph, usually highlighted in italics:

> This is to inform you that the Ridgefield Board of Education will continue to respond to the false "information" being spread throughout Ridgefield concerning the public schools. We believe it is necessary to respond to these critics. We want the citizens of Ridgefield to have all the information in order for your to understand what your tax dollar is proving the children and community of Ridgefield.

Each flyer, or "fact sheet" as the flyers described themselves, dealt with a specific topic of interest to parents and taxpayers. Each had the names of current Board members and a special telephone number at which a Board member could be contacted "anytime after 6:00 p.m."

The first flyer, dated April 5, 1991, made a comparison of the situation in 1985-90 with that in 1980-84, listing the accomplishments of the incumbent Board in such areas as public support for the school budget, expanded educational programs, reduction of the rate of salary increases, reduced administrative expenses, and improved communication with the Borough's governing body. Using emotionally-charged language, the first flyer referred to "an attempt to bring politics into the schools by organized political groups" and accused certain unidentified persons of "spreading misinformation and mistrust . . . to further their own political interest."

The second flyer, dated April 12, 1991, appeared one week later. It contained a relatively straightforward report of achievements by Ridgefield high school students in terms of acceptances by competitive colleges, average scores on college-entry examinations and other standardized tests, percentage going on to higher education, and various awards and commendations. The third flyer, dated April 19, 1991, included an excerpt from a newspaper article stating that the Board had adopted a budget for 1991-92 in "the same amount as last year's total" which resulted in a tax savings of "about $25 for the average homeowner." Additionally, the third flyer featured statistics contrasting Ridgefield school district's "zero increase" with school tax increases in several neighboring communities. Finally, the fourth flyer, dated April 26, 1992, compared student achievement in Ridgefield with similar or wealthier Bergen County districts and cost per pupil in Ridgefield with state and county averages.

Schettino does not deny the accuracy of the figures provided in these "fact sheets," which were derived largely from official data set forth in the "recent report card sent by the State of New Jersey." However, Schettino argues that the choice of data was "selective" and "biased" so as to use "only those districts to which Ridgefield compares most favorably." Further, Schettino criticizes the Board for failing to include the total dollar amount of the 1991-92 budget and for allegedly taking unfair credit for a spending reduction caused by the defeat of last year's budget.

Of course, it is not the proper role of the Commissioner to declare which candidate for the local school board has a better grasp of the issues, analyzes statistics more artfully, or advocates more appealing public policies. That is a question for the voters to decide for themselves at the school election. Rather, the limited function of the Commissioner is to determine whether or not the Board crossed the delicate boundary between the legitimate purpose of informing the public of its activities and the improper purpose of campaigning for reelection of one of its members.

Apart from the flyers mailed under Board auspices, Schettino also objects to the contents of two editorials which appeared in a special edition of the high school newspaper, known as The Crown, distributed one day before the school board election. The Crown is "prepared and published by students of Ridgefield High School" and the cost of its printing is "funded by the Board of Education as part of its educational program." Students control the factual and editorial content of their own school newspaper, subject to monitoring by a faculty advisor. Two of the six student editors for 1990-91 happen to have been children of incumbent Board members. Only one was the child of a candidate running for office. No proof exists that any parent exercised undue influence over the editorial slant of the student newspaper. Indeed, the parties stipulated that the Board "exercises no editorial or prior restraint control over political expression contained in student editorials[.]" Importantly, the offending edition itself had a clearly-worded disclaimer that, "These editorials represent the opinions of the student editors of The Crown, not the Board of Education or Administration."

Again, the nature of Schettino's complaint is that the student editorials took definite positions and supported platforms of individual candidates for the Board, not that they contained libelous or obscene materials or were poorly written or inadequately researched. One student editorial entitled Regionalization Rears Its Ugly Head Once Again opposed a proposal to explore economies available through regionalization and urged students to "[t]ell your parents how you feel about regionalization" and to "[t]alk to neighbors and other relatives." Another entitled Imagine There's No RMHS asked readers to "[p]lease urge parents and neighbors to vote for the budget."

Conclusions of Law

Based on the foregoing facts and the applicable law, I CONCLUDE that the Board exceeded its lawful authority in disseminating the flyers in question and that the proper remedy is injunctive relief to insure that other viewpoints are equally represented.

Guidance on the limits of a school board's authority to expend public funds for campaign literature was provided by the landmark ruling of the New Jersey Supreme in Citizens To Protect Public Funds v. Parsippany-Troy Hills Bd. of Educ., 13 N.J. 172 (1953). Citizens was a declaratory judgment action, seeking to invalidate a school bond referendum because of the board's failure to submit building plans in advance to the local planning board and also seeking a determination that the expenditure of public funds for the distribution of booklets advocating a favorable vote at the election was illegal. Although the narrow holding of the case is that submission to the planning board need not precede the election, the majority of the Court regarded the remaining question regarding the booklets to be of sufficient importance to justify "our comments upon the actions taken." (Citizens, at 178). Those actions included distribution of a pamphlet, found by the Court to present fairly the facts and advantages and disadvantages of the program in seventeen of its eighteen pages, but to endorse a "Vote Yes" in three separate places and to overdramatize "the dire consequences of the failure to do so." (Citizens, at 180).

Absent any express statute permitting a school board to pay for publication of such booklets, the Court recognized a power arising by necessary implication for school boards to incur "reasonable expenditures for the purpose of giving voters relevant facts to aid them in reaching an informed judgment when voting upon the proposal." (Citizens, at 179). In a thoughtful opinion written by Justice William J. Brennan Jr., the majority imposed reasonable restrictions on such implied authority. They drew the line at the point where,

> . . . the board made use of public funds to advocate one side only of the controversial question without affording the dissenters the opportunity by means of that financed medium to present their side, and thus imperiled the propriety of the entire expenditure. The public funds entrusted to the board belong equally to the proponents and opponents of the proposition, and the use of the funds to finance not the presentation of facts merely but also arguments to persuade the voters that only one side has merit, gives the dissenters just cause for complaint. (Citizens, at 181).

Realizing that its analysis was inconsistent with earlier pronouncements in City Affairs Committee of Jersey City v. Jersey City, 134 N.J.L. 180 (E. & A. 1945), which had upheld a seemingly broader municipal power to publicize one-sided views on subjects of public controversy, the majority in Citizens believed that "simple fairness and justice" require that use of public funds for advocacy be restrained within the suggested limits. (Citizens, at 182).

More recently, the Commissioner enjoined a school board from circulating a newsletter which "went beyond a straightforward presentation of factual information to advocate passage of the budget" and which "clearly conveyed" the impression that the current board of education "is doing a terrific job in contrast to its predecessors." Fenton v. Sullivan, 1991 S.L.D. 677, 682 (Comm'r April 23, 1991). Thus, Fenton stands squarely for the proposition that school boards are still governed by the standards enunciated in the Citizens decision. Despite the lack of any specific admonition to vote "yes" on the budget, the Commissioner found that "value judgments" expressed in the newsletter and its non-neutral tone constitute forbidden advocacy. (Fenton, at 683).

Here too, the flyers sent out by the Ridgefield Board transcend mere recitation of factual information and espouse a partisan point of view, extolling the virtues of the current board, deriding the stewardship of the former board, and accusing opponents of spreading lies and distortions. The general tenor of these documents is adversarial and argumentative, as distinct from nonjudgmental and dispassionate. Any impartial observer would conclude that the flyers amount to campaign literature designed to persuade voters on how they should vote in the upcoming election. Use of public funds for such purpose, however well-intentioned and high-minded, is an abuse of trust which cannot be condoned.

When fashioning an appropriate remedy, it is well to keep in mind that denial of access for outsiders to offer their side of the story is what brings this expenditure of public money "outside the pale." (Citizens, at 182). No legal precedent has been cited for holding board members personally liable for errors of collective judgment. Moreover, in Fenton, the Commissioner rejected the notion of individual liability for actions taken by board members in their official capacity. Even if such relief were theoretically permissible, it should not be invoked against a board member who may have been overzealous, but who is not charged with converting public funds for private financial gain. Rather, a more fitting remedy is to require the Board to give equal coverage to the views of all candidates in the next school board election. Such remedy would avoid the dangers inherent in prior restraint and censorship. It would have the advantage of expanding the opportunity for public debate and for greater understanding of the issues. And it would go a long way toward making amends for the wrong done to residents, like Schettino, who do not share the prevailing sentiment on the Board.

Given this outcome, it is unnecessary to reach the alternative ground for invalidating the Board's action, namely the claimed failure to comply with the Open Public Meetings Act. In passing, however, it should be noted that funds for the printing and mailing of the flyers were properly approved at a public board meeting and that no provision of the Act requires board members to review the precise wording of every publicity release issued in course of the year. Nobody contends that the contents of the flyers do not accurately reflect the consensus view of the Board membership.

Lastly, Schettino attacks the two editorials in the school newspaper as another example of "improper use of publicly funded media to support political candidates or positions." But this argument misconceives the educational purpose behind the school newspaper and misconstrues the function of educators in supervising learning activities.

Recently, in a 5-to-3 opinion, the United States Supreme Court recognized the right of a high school principal to make a pre-publication review of a school newspaper and excise two pages containing articles on student pregnancy and divorce. Hazelwood Sch. Dist. v. Kuhlmeier, 484 U.S. 260, 108 S. Ct. 562, 98 L. Ed. 2d 592 (1988). Rejecting the idea that school authorities had created a "forum for public expression," the court found that the school newspaper serves that role only if school authorities have followed a policy of opening such facilities "for indiscriminate use by the general public." Hazelwood, 484 U.S. at 267. Otherwise, the activity is reserved as "a supervised learning experience for journalism students." Hazelwood, at 270. Certainly the Ridgefield High School student paper is intended to be a teaching tool for students to develop critical thinking skills, hone their writing abilities, and practice their persuasive talents. No one, however, could reasonably be misled into thinking that this student paper was designed to represent all views in the community at large or as a mouthpiece for the Board. Any such misconceptions are quickly dispelled by the disclaimer at the bottom of the editorial page that the views expressed are those of the student editors alone.

With respect to adult supervision, the court held that "educators do not offend the First Amendment by exercising editorial control over the style and content of student speech in school-sponsored expressive activities so long as their actions are reasonably related to legitimate pedalogical concerns." Hazelwood, at 273. Examples of adequate reasons to intercede include speech which is "ungrammatical, poorly written, inadequately researched, biased or prejudiced, vulgar or profane, or unsuitable for immature audiences." Hazelwood, at 271. Mere existence of such editorial control does not mean that the faculty advisor is bound to exercise it whenever a piece might conceivably offend someone in the community. Whether or not one happens to agree with the particular stand taken, it can hardly be denied that the student editorials are cogent, intelligently written and suitable for high school readers. In times when so many young people are disaffected, it is hard to fault Ridgefield students for caring passionately about their education or for wanting to preserve what is good about their school. Far from being an appropriate instance for the imposition of editorial control, it would have been a gross violation of educational and journalistic standards to suppress these editorials simply because of disagreement with their content.

Order

It is ORDERED that the Board print and distribute four flyers, once a week for the four weeks preceding the next school election, giving equal coverage and prominence to the views of all candidates whose names appear on the official ballot for school board member. These flyers shall appear with the same frequency, be of comparable size and length, and be given an equivalent numerical distribution as the flyers mailed by the Board in connection with the April 1991 school election.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 West State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

JOHN L. SCHETTINO,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF RIDGEFIELD ET AL., BERGEN COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENTS.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Timely exceptions were filed by the parties pursuant to the provisions of N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

In its exceptions, the Board, together with the individually named respondents, references the arguments of its brief before the ALJ and reiterates its position that Citizens to Protect Public Funds, supra, does not prohibit dissemination of the type of literature at issue herein, which it characterizes as informational in nature and appropriate under the circumstances. The Board also contends that the initial decision improperly limits the Board's ability to respond to misconceptions and misinformation about its budget and negates the Board's right and duty to provide residents with comparative information about surrounding school systems, arguing that inference of comparative judgments about current as opposed to prior Board members is inconsequential and in no way violative of proper use of public funds.

In his exceptions, petitioner (who advises that he is now representing himself pro se) concurs with the ALJ's overall findings, but objects to the decision not to address petitioner's Open Public Meetings Act (OPMA) allegations and to the ALJ's choice of remedy. Petitioner contends that the ALJ's disposition of this matter has left unchecked, and indeed, through the remedial requirement of equal time for all candidates, actually expanded the very abuse he (petitioner) sought to end, namely the printing and distribution of partisan literature and of publications purporting to represent the views of the Board without specific prior approval at a public meeting.

Upon careful review of this matter, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that the literature complained of by petitioner, while in some respects consisting of legitimate factual presentations, crossed the line into partisanship through its pejorative language and clear aim at opposition candidates for school board membership. She further concurs with the ALJ's observation that OPMA does not require each and every publication of the Board to be discussed and approved by formal action of the Board prior to its preparation and/or distribution.

However, the Commissioner does not concur with the ALJ's choice of remedy in this matter. While clearly based in the cited language of Citizens to Protect Public Funds, supra (Initial decision, at p. 6) referring to absence of like opportunity for dissenters, the proposed remedy would, in the Commissioner's view, stand for the proposition that partisan literature paid for with public funds is acceptable so long as all sides are accorded equal representation. The Commissioner does not believe that Citizens, when taken in its entirety, either requires or supports this result; indeed, the Commissioner has long held that partisan literature of any type has no role in Board-supported election activities. Moreover, while the ALJ did not rule on petitioner's specific OPMA allegations and the Commissioner declines to remand this matter on that basis as it is unnecessary for a fair resolution of the controversy at hand, the Commissioner does note that the only indication in the record of full Board action with regard to the disputed literature is the "blanket" approval implied in its bid award for the upcoming year's printing expenses. Although no determination is made herein that this procedure constituted a Sunshine law violation, there is no question that it contributed to the underlying controversy and helped lead to the election literature violation proven in these proceedings.

Therefore, in fashioning a remedy for that violation, rather than requiring further partisan literature, the Commissioner instead directs that, in order to ensure compliance with the letter and spirit of law requiring public-supported election literature to be nonpartisan in nature, the Ridgefield Board of Education shall establish a procedure whereby Board publications pertaining either directly or by reasonable inference to the school budget or election of Board members shall be reviewed for such compliance by the full Board in consultation with the Board attorney and approved by the Board prior to their distribution to the public. This procedure shall apply to all materials related to the 1993 school election and shall review in place for one year from the date of this decision, after which time it may be continued at the Board's discretion.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law is affirmed in its analysis and conclusion regarding the Board's violation of relevant election literature law but modified in its discussion and order of remedial action as set forth herein. The Board is enjoined from publication of partisan literature and is further directed to establish appropriate review procedures consistent with the Commissioner's intent above.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

For the Respondent, Rand, Algeier, Tosti & Woodruff, attorneys (Ellen S. Bass, of counsel)

Barbara Brenner petitioned to the Commissioner of Education seeking an order declaring her tenured in the position of principal in the Township of Middlesex school district, assigning her to the position of principal at Hazelwood School for 1992-93, and retroactively compensating her for the Middlesex Board of Education's failure to assign her to that position pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case. In addition, Brenner filed a petition for contested transfer determination with the Public Employment Relations Commission. Brenner alleges that she was transferred from principal at Hazelwood to director of Project Climb in violation of N.J.S.A 34:13A-25.

The parties jointly moved to consolidate the petitions and for designation of the Commissioner as having the predominant interest pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-17.5. The parties agreed that the Commissioner's determination could serve to either moot the questions raised by the petition before the Commission or substantially affect the resolution of those questions.

The Administrative Law Judge concluded that the two matters should be consolidated pursuant to the terms of an executed consent order.

Having considered the record and the Administrative Law Judge's order, and having made an independent evaluation of the record, the Commissioner of Education on MARCH 1, 1993, 1993 and the Chairman of the Public Employment Relations Commission, acting pursuant to authority granted to him by the full Commission, on February 19, 1993 made the following determination in the matter.

ORDER

The Commissioner of Education and the Chairman of the Public Employment Relations Commission ORDER that EDU Docket No. 314-7/92 OAL Docket No. EDU 6112-92 and PERC Docket No. TI-93-1 be consolidated for hearing; and it is

FURTHER ORDERED that the predominant interest in the conduct and outcome of the consolidated matter rests with the Commissioner of Education; and it is

FURTHER ORDERED that the Administrative Law Judge shall conduct a hearing on this matter and issue a recommended decision; and it is

FURTHER ORDERED that the Commissioner of Education has the authority to issue a final decision on all issues raised by the prehearing order dated December 2, 1992; and it is FURTHER ORDERED that if resolution of the issues over which the Commissioner of Education has the predominant interest does not moot the issues raised by the petition for contested transfer determination, the Public Employment Relations Commission shall thereafter be granted 45 days to render a final decision on that matter.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, unsuccessful bidder, appealed decision of Board to accept bid from respondent for security services. Petitioner contended it was the lowest responsible bidder.

ALJ found petitioner had met all requirements of bid and was therefore the lowest responsible bidder. (N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-37) Board was ordered to contract with petitioner immediately replacing respondent as provider of security services for Board.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision.

BEFORE JOSEPH LAVERY, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner, Consec Security Group, Inc., (Consec), appeals for relief from the decision by the respondent Lakewood Board of Education (the Board). That body accepted a bid from respondent McRoberts Protective Agency, Inc., (McRoberts) to undertake security services for the Lakewood School District.

Consec argues that, as the lowest responsible bidder it is entitled to the contract for those services. The Board and McRoberts dispute this. They reply that, though not lowest in cost, McRoberts is still the lowest responsible bidder as intended by controlling law.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This matter was filed in the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) as a contested case on August 27, 1992. The case was assigned to the Hon. Steven C. Reback, who issued an Order of Motion for Emergent Relief on September 2, 1992. On October 1, 1992, the Commissioner decided the motion, and the matter was forwarded for plenary hearing. The hearing convened on October 26, 1992, in the Trenton hearing rooms of the OAL. Letter briefs followed, the last of which was date-stamped as filed on November 25, 1992. On that date, the record closed.

ANALYSIS

Background:

The material facts are not greatly in dispute. Essentially at issue are the legal implications of the evidence provided by the Board, McRoberts, and Consec. With that in mind, the critical background may be described:

Pursuant to applicable law, the Lakewood Township Board of Education advertised for bids preliminary to contracting for security services, to be undertaken by fourteen guards at three sites in the school district. The bids were to be submitted no later than May 4, 1992. In answer, four companies submitted bid proposals. Included among the four were Consec, with a bid of $164,304, and McRoberts, whose bid was $188,966.20.

After hearing the presentations during interview with all the bidders on May 26, 1992, the Board selected McRoberts. Consec, which had given an hour's presentation, complete with charts, reacted by bringing suit in Superior Court, arguing that it was the lowest responsible bidder under the Act. The court ultimately directed that a "responsibility hearing" be convened by the Board. In compliance with the court's order the Board held the hearing on August 13, 1992. The testimony on behalf of Consec was provided by Ronald Gilgallon, who has seventeen years' experience in the security business, and is the licensed qualifier under the Private Detective Act of 1939.[1] At the end of the hearing, the Board members individually and collectively declared that Consec should be rejected. They did so for the reasons expressed in the transcript of the hearing (Exh. J-1, at pp. 51-58).

In the course of both the "responsibility hearing" directed by the Superior Court, and the administrative hearing in the Office of Administrative Law, the comparative history of McRoberts and Consec unfolded. Consec, formed seven years ago, provides security in both New York and New Jersey. Its headquarters are in Harrison, and two other primary offices are in Kearny and Woodbridge. It has some 550 employees, and 120 accounts. Sixty-five to seventy percent of its customers are public sector entities, in federal, state, county and local political subdivisions. Nearby, Consec also services private sector retirement communities. The company is bonded.

Though it has no broad experience with schools, Consec did obtain a contract with the Orange School District. Once that expired, however, the contract was re-bid, and a different firm now is used by the District. (At the responsibility hearing, Mr. Gilgallon testified that Consec had the contract for 1992-93.) While there, however, Consec gave coverage to a high school and a middle school. Officers were present during the day and evening classes, and during the summer. As in all other settings, and as it would here, Consec provided the uniforms and associated security equipment.

In support of his bid, Ronald Gilgallon testified that the company has a strong credit line, and has never lost a contract. He was certain that the company could meet every requirement which was made known by the Board to prospective bidders. Describing the command table of organization, he described himself as the first level, followed by vice presidents, office managers, regional managers, on-site managers, and shift supervisors. Consec also employs roving inspectors for unannounced visits. Mr. Gilgallon agreed that no stationary supervisor is afforded, because of his company's elaborate system of centralized supervision by highly-paid managers. This includes a quality control system with on-site inspection. However, he stressed that, even though the bid hadn't asked for it, as is usually done, Consec could offer a roving on-site supervisor, by deducting lunch, at no additional cost.

Moreover, he stated, emergency response from nearby Consec sites would be ten minutes away. Local operating manuals (Exh. P-1) guide the on-site guards in every respect. As a matter of policy and practice, Consec sought to assure that all emergency measures and equipment were in place before needed. Further, as in Orange (though never used, despite student mini-riots), local law enforcement and emergency assistance would be summoned for such incidents. Mr. Gilgallon did not think his post, an hour-and-a-half distant, or inspectors stationed forty-five minutes away, amounted to detriments. He named other security companies whose centers were located out-of-state. Consec central office managers, he stated, were in constant contact with on-site personnel by phone twenty four hours a day. Significantly, sixty to seventy Consec guards were on duty in the immediately surrounding area.

When hiring, Mr. Gilgallon emphasized, two interviews precede a background and reference check. A third interview is accompanied by a "sensitivity test" and a psychological test (Exh. J-1, p. 23) Consec, Mr. Gilgallon emphasized, is always attuned to local conditions when employing guards. He added that, notwithstanding it was not made a bid condition, Consec would also be willing to drug-test. The estimated cost the Board would absorb for this (possibly $25 per guard) would not approach the more than $24,000 difference between Consec's bid and McRoberts's.

Beyond this, Consec was willing to allay another Board concern over the age of the guards. The company was agreeable to age-specific hiring, though, it contended, this too was not a condition of the bid. Finally, Mr. Gilgallon highlighted the company's three-tier redundancy in guard assignment. Absences are anticipated by pre-shift check, and replacements sent beforehand. Consec, Mr. Gilgallon asserted, took all relevant steps to offset lax guard attendance, a long-term industry-wide problem, no matter what the salary.

Mr. Gilgallon conceded there had been no formal "bid walk" by Consec. The Board of Education secretary had told the company by phone it would be unnecessary. He also had only a few days after he had discovered the bid solicitation to submit his papers. Nevertheless, a Consec official did visit the buildings without entering, after being directed there by the superintendent's secretary. Consec knew it had time to thoroughly inspect the buildings when it prepared their security for the next school year, Mr. Gilgallon stated.

In testimony answering Consec, Board Superintendent Ernest Cannava observed that other companies did drug and psychological testing, without cost. He conceded however that these requirements were not part of the bid. It was his recollection that the Board selected McRoberts instead of Consec because of: superior experience, on-site supervision, drug testing, location of main office, and age-adjustment in guard hiring.

Barbara W. Foster, vice president of McRoberts, recalled that she herself prepared the bids on behalf of her company. She was in charge of the McRoberts S. Jersey Office, in Brick Township, ten minutes from Lakewood. She acknowledged however that the Brick office deals with managers on site who are more distant. The farthest is in Blackwood, on the other side of the state. The company itself has been in business for some 115 years, with a presence in New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, Spain, England, and Brussels.

In April, Ms. Foster recalled, she personally went to the Lakewood District, talked to administrators, and "bid-walked" the area, with two other security companies and the High School principal. From her tour, she concluded that the guard age had to be raised as a deterrent, the number of supervisors should be increased, radios were needed, and training would have to be increased from twenty to forty hours. In the bid, she included an on-site supervisor, as required, to oversee and be a liaison. She thought the Board's bid specifications were unclear, and wrote to the Board. Nothing oral was permitted.

Addressing the company's experience with schools, she noted that it was currently responsible for St. Rose of Belmar, and Central Regional in Bayville, and had put in a bid to succeed Consec in the Orange School District. Ms. Foster added that McRoberts was insured, and performed drug and psychological testing at no extra charge.

Arguments of the Parties:

Consec's Argument:

Consec insists in its post-hearing brief dated October 27, 1992, that it has met the standard for responsibility, and as the lowest responsible bidder, it has a vested right in the contract award. The company argued that its experience and location satisfied Lakewood's needs, and that both the supervision and age criticisms of the Board were adequately countered by the facts. McRoberts's "supervisor" was simply a low-paid guard on site, designated as such. The call for drug-testing could be met, if compensated. It was not a requirement of the bid.

As a matter of law, the Board's preference for McRoberts does not render Consec irresponsible, and the Board has no authority otherwise to reject all bids. For those reasons, Consec must be selected.

The Board's Argument:

The Board argued in its brief that Consec did not make sufficient effort to acquaint itself with the schools. Consec also misread the bid specifications with respect to supervision requirements, and did not adequately explain proposed training to the Board. Further, Consec misrepresented its contract status with the Orange School District, placing its credibility and integrity in issue. Finally, the Board is free to impose post-bid conditions as a matter of law. In any event, neither the ALJ nor the Commissioner may overturn the Board's decision, unless it is arbitrary, capricious, and unreasonable.

McRoberts's Argument:

McRoberts contends that the Board's itemized expressions of dissatisfaction when it rejected Consec at the responsibility hearing of August 13, 1992, proved that Consec was an irresponsible bidder. Consec did not provide the supervisor on-site which the bid required. The record itself, in McRoberts's view, reveals Mr. Gilgallon's shifting testimony and lack of effort, particularly with respect to a bid walk, to determine what the Board required.

In contrast, Ms. Foster, on behalf of McRoberts, thoroughly explored the district, and her company's obligations during the bidding process. McRoberts demonstrated that it would offer all that the Board expected, both pre- and post-hearing. It would do so at no extra cost.

As a matter of law, McRoberts asserts, the Board made a reasonable decision. Unless shown to be arbitrary, capricious, and unreasonable, or unless found to have been made in bad faith, it may not be disturbed. Neither the ALJ nor the Commissioner may simply substitute their judgments.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The Applicable Law:

The law which must be applied here is the Public Schools Contract Law, N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-1 through N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-59. The controlling statutory sections are clear. The first, N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-4, states:

> Every contract or agreement for the performance of any work or the furnishing or hiring of any materials or supplies, the cost or the contract price whereof is to be paid with or out of school funds, not included within the terms of N.J.S. 18A:18A-3, shall be made and awarded only by the board of education after public advertising for bids and bidding therefor, except as is provided otherwise in this chapter or specifically by any other law.
> No work, materials or supplies shall be undertaken, acquired or furnished for a sum exceeding in the aggregate the amount set forth in, or calculated by the Governor pursuant to, N.J.S. 18A:18A-3, except by contract or agreement.

Additionally, N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-37 provides, in pertinent part:

> All purchases, contracts or agreements which require public advertisement for bids shall be awarded to the lowest responsible bidder.

In determining whether the Board has satisfied these sections in its disposition of the bids at issue, this tribunal and the Commissioner of Education are bound by overarching legal concepts, some cited by Consec, the Board and McRoberts:

Actions by local Boards of Education which lie within their discretion may not be upset, unless patently arbitrary, without rational basis, or induced by improper motives, Kopera v. West Orange Bd. of Education, 60 N.J. Super. 288, 294 (App. Div. 1960). In an analogous context, because of mirrored wording in the Local Public Contracts Law, N.J.S.A. 40A:11-1 through N.J.S.A. 40A:11-40, at N.J.S.A. 40A:11-6.1, a board of adjustment has discretion to reject the lowest bid, but only after hearing, and a finding that the bidder is not "responsible." That discretion to so find is not unlimited, and cannot be exercised arbitrarily. The decision must be based on bona fide judgment, grounded in facts tending to support the termination. The evidence of "irresponsibility" must be such as to cause fair-minded and reasonable persons to believe awarding the contract is not in the best interests of the Board, Stamato & Co., Inc., of Tp. of Vernon, 131 N.J. Super. 151, 156 (App. Div. 1974). The Court in Stamato declared that "responsibility" involves experience, financial ability, moral integrity, and availability of facilities to perform the contract, Id. at 157.

On the other hand, a public contract cannot be awarded on terms which are different from those contained in the bid. This rule assures against favoritism, improvidence, extravagance and corruption in the bidding process, and assures that all bidders are equal in their competition, Palamar Const., Inc., v. Tp. of Pennsauken, 196 N.J. Super. 241, 250-251 (App. Div. 1983). The reported exceptions upheld have been when more onerous terms have been placed on the successful bidder, rather than on those challenging, Ibid. However, a successful bidder is legally entitled to the contract as bid. Post-bid concessions must be voluntary and consensual. The bidder need not "knuckle under," Id. at 253.

Applying the Law to the Facts:

The facts of Consec's participation in the bidding show that the company conformed to the statutory and decisional law. It has met all the requirements of the bid:

It is a company of considerable size, seven years in existence. Its president has seventeen years' experience in security. Consec has undertaken security in a school, and was not replaced for cause, but through a comparable bidding process. I FIND that Mr. Gilgallon did not know of the Orange decision not to renew until after the responsibility hearing, and his testimony does not reflect tainted moral integrity, as argued.

As to supervision, a roving on-site supervisor satisfies the bid, with specification that it would provide a roving supervisor on-site. McRoberts's designation of a guard-level supervisor is not a superior offer.

The location of Consec headquarters is comparable with the rest of the industry. McRoberts, with an office in Brick, has guards in Blackwell, across the state. More importantly, Consec has sixty to seventy guards in the area, and constant, round-the-clock telephone contact, supplemented by local municipal enforcement.

Consec provides not only psychological testing, but "sensitivity" testing as well. It has promised to adapt to local conditions with its guards, and would satisfy the post-bid requirements of age imposed by the Board.

As to drug tests, these plainly were not a requirement of the bid, and, by law, Consec is not required to acquiesce. It is significant that the Board is willing to assume an increased cost of over $24,000, on the theory, in part, that it should not have to pay Consec some $25 a person for drug testing fourteen guards.

Finally, the dispute over a "bid walk," which I FIND that Consec missed because of a short time frame left for it to submit a bid, does not disclose a material defect. The company's absence was offset by an official's pre-bid visit to the grounds. That was sufficient for an informed decision on what was needed.

The reasonable man test outlined by the cumulative case law, supra, has been met. There is no dispute that Consec's bid is over $24,000 lower than McRoberts's. The reasons expressed by the Board members at the responsibility hearing of August 13, 1992 (Exh. J-1, at pp. 51-58) have not shown that Consec is irresponsible. What the rationales of individual board members show is mere preference, or irrelevant dissatisfaction with Consec's post-bid presentations. Consequently, the decision to reject Consec was arbitrary, capricious, and unreasonable.

ORDER

I ORDER therefore:

1. That Consec be declared the lowest responsible bidder, and

2. That the Lakewood Board of Education now contract with Consec for the security services sought under the bidding process of the Public Schools Contracts Law, and

3. That Consec immediately replace McRoberts Protective Agency as provider of security services for the Lakewood Board of Education.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 West State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Timely exceptions were filed by the respondent Board of Education pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4, to which no reply was made by petitioner.

In its exceptions, the Board argues that the ALJ improperly substituted his own judgment for that of the Board, which reached a reasonable determination as to petitioner's responsibility after a duly conducted hearing at which it concluded that petitioner did meet bid specifications in several key areas. As the Board's decision was neither arbitrary nor unreasonable, and was amply supported by testimony and evidence presented at both the responsibility hearing and proceedings at OAL, the Commissioner may not overturn the Board's determination merely because the ALJ reached a conclusion different from that of the Board. The Board further argues that, assuming arguendo that the bid award at issue should be set aside, there is no legal authority for the ALJ to have outright awarded the bid to petitioner rather than permitting the Board to reject all bids and begin anew as is its right by law.

Upon careful review of this matter, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that the central issue in this matter is whether petitioner is a responsible bidder, not whether the Board's preference for the second highest bidder was reasonably based. The Commissioner further concurs, for the reasons expressed in the initial decision, that the evidence and testimony herein clearly establish petitioner's responsibility. Therefore, as a matter of law, the Board's preference for another bidder cannot defeat petitioner's status as lowest responsible bidder and its consequent entitlement to the contract at issue. N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-37

Nor is the Commissioner persuaded by the Board's contention that, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-22, it should not be allowed to waive all bids and rebid the instant contract. While boards do have a general right to reject all bids on some reasonable basis, to permit a rebid at this late point in the present matter, after conduct of an impartial hearing which squarely established the responsibility of the low bidder, as well as its willingness to comply with the additional requirements imposed by the Board after bids were opened, would effectively permit the Board to circumvent the Public School Contracts Law and compromise a process designed to provide the public with specified services at the lowest cost and prevent bidders from having to compete on anything less than a level playing field.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law awarding the disputed security contract to petitioner is affirmed for the reasons expressed therein.

For Movant Board of Education, Richard K. Sacks, Esq.

For Respondent Consec Group, Ronald J. Cappuccio, Esq.

This matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education by way of the Board's March 16, 1993 Motion for Stay of the Commissioner's decision of March 1, 1993, wherein the Commissioner directed that the Board, having been found to have improperly awarded a bid contract to McRoberts Agency for reasons outside of the published specifications, must terminate its present arrangement with McRoberts and replace that agency with Petitioner Consec as the lowest responsible bidder. On March 23, 1993, McRoberts filed papers indicating that it wished to join in the Board's motion pending appeal to the State Board of Education.

In its moving papers, the Board argued that the district and its students would suffer if the Board must be compelled to alter its security arrangements at this late point in the school year, as McRoberts is now established in the district, is performing admirably and relates well to students, staff and administration. While the Board acknowledges the harm to Consec if a stay is granted, it contends that the harm to it would be greater, as the former consists of mere loss of income while the latter consists of disruption to the school environment and harm to student and staff morale.

In reply, Consec argues that the Board, having during the course of prior proceedings delayed in all ways possible so as to continue with its preferred bidder, now seeks yet another delay even in the face of the Commissioner's twice ruling against it, once on Consec's request for emergent relief and again on the merits of the case. Consec further argues that it was specifically found to be, and is, able to meet all of the Board's specifications so that there is no reason why its services cannot now be substituted for those of McRoberts.

Upon careful consideration, although recognizing the dislocation inherent in changing security services mid-year, the Commissioner does not find the Board entitled to a stay of the determination against it.

In so holding, the Commissioner notes that Consec has prevailed in both its claim for emergent relief and its case on the merits, and that in a decision on emergent relief dated October 1, 1992, it was specifically noted that arrangements with McRoberts during the pendency of proceedings on the merits would be on a per diem basis. Now that proceedings have come to conclusion and the Board has been found to have acted improperly in selecting McRoberts over the fullY qualified Consec, the Board cannot argue that the time taken by proceedings to establish this impropriety should now serve as the basis to deny Consec the relief for which it has fought, particularly in view of the fact that no damages are available to prevailing challengers of public bids for work which they should have been given but were not. M.A. Stephen Construction Co. v. Borough of Rumson, 125 N.J. Super. 67 (App. Div. 1973)

Accordingly, the Board's motion for stay is DENIED and the Commissioner's decision of March 1, 1993 stands unless and until reversed on appeal to the State Board of Education pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-25.

	:	SYNOPSIS

Board certified a series of tenure charges of unbecoming conduct against district's superintendent of schools. The 22 charges were of two basic types and categories. The bulk of the charges revolved around the superintendent's behavior in connection with various issues relating to a proposed $23.4 million Board-sponsored voter referendum which involved several construction projects including Bradley Gardens Elementary School. Charges alleged that Dr. Horowitz' conduct in connection with activities required to effectuate the referendum was inappropriate and improper. Other charges alleging improprieties unrelated to referendum and Bradley Gardens were also filed.

ALJ dismissed some charges prior to hearing and some during hearing. Based upon discussions, findings and conclusions, the ALJ concluded that Board successfully established by preponderance of credible evidence that Dr. Horowitz engaged in conduct unbecoming his position as a public servant in regard to several of the tenure charges (Charges I, V, VI, VIII, X, XI, XIII, and XIX). ALJ found Dr. Horowitz engaged in a series of actions or inactions which manifested a lack of appropriate professional judgment, a total disregard for State laws and regulations and Board policies, a lack of communication with Board and a lack of candor with Board and the public, and conduct, if not criminal, sufficiently questionable so as to raise concern as to capacity to perform his job within confines of legality. Moreover, ALJ found no taint in the certification of the tenure charges. ALJ found loss of tenure was warranted. (In re Fulcomer) ALJ ordered Dr. Horowitz' tenure revoked as superintendent of schools.

Commissioner affirmed with modification findings and conclusions of ALJ with respect to charge of unbecoming conduct and also concurred with ALJ that there was no tainted Board member vote in certification of tenure charges. Commissioner found Dr. Horowitz' continued presence as an educational leader in the District, in light of the seriousness of the charges and the divisive effect they have had on the District, was not tenable or in the best interest of students or the community. Thus, dismissal from tenured employment was warranted. Board was directed to terminate Dr. Horowitz' tenured employment and matter was forwarded to State Board of Examiners for further appropriate action.

BEFORE JEFF S. MASIN, ALJ:

This proceeding before the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") began as a result of a decision by the Board of Education of the Bridgewater-Raritan Regional School District ("Board" or "district") transmitted to the Commissioner of Education ("Commissioner") to certify a series of tenure charges against the district's Superintendent of Schools ("Superintendent"), Dr. Richard C. Horowitz (sometimes hereinafter referred to as "respondent"). The Board, acting pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11, had voted to certify the charges on January 27, 1992. On January 31, 1992 Dr. Horowitz filed an application for emergent relief with the Commissioner seeking to prevent the Board from certifying the charges. This application for injunctive relief was transferred to the OAL and was heard by Administrative Law Judge Jeff S. Masin on February 7, 1992 (OAL DKT.NO. EDU 927-92). Judge Masin denied the application for injunctive relief for reasons set forth in an Order issued on February 10, 1992. Thereafter, the Commissioner affirmed the denial of injunctive relief and separately determined that the charges certified by the Board should be transmitted to the OAL for hearing as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -21 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13 (OAL DKT. EDU 2031-92).

A prehearing conference was held on the consolidated cases on March 16, 1992. Hearings were then held on July 21, 22, 23, 24, 27, 28, 29, August 10, 11, 13, 14, 17 and 18. During the hearing on July 27, the judge issued a 62 page oral decision on issues which related to the claim made by Dr. Horowitz that several of the Board members who voted on January 27, 1992 to certify tenure charges should not have voted, as their participation had been tainted, thus requiring that the vote be voided and the certification of the charges be nullified. A copy of the oral opinion is appended to this initial decision and is made a part hereof for purposes of review by the Commissioner.

On August 13 the ALJ dismissed charges II, III, IV, XIV, XV and XVIII. In respect to these charges, the Board determined that it would not present any evidence to support them beyond the statements in support of these charges filed with the Commissioner when the charges were certified.

After the close of testimony on August 18, the parties prepared briefs and closing statements, which were filed with the ALJ on October 9 (Board brief), October 19 (Dr. Horowitz' brief) and October 23 (Board reply). The record closed upon receipt of the October 23 submission. Due to the complexity of the issues and the lengthy review of evidence necessary in the preparation of this opinion, the ALJ requested an extension of time in which to file the initial decision.

THE TENURE CHARGES

The charges which were the subject of the certification to the Commissioner were prepared and filed by Board member Dr. Michael Ryan, who filed them with the Board on January 8, 1992. These charges were of two basic types and categories. The first, constituting the bulk of the charges, revolved around the circumstances of a Board sponsored referendum held on October 2, 1990. This public vote was upon the basic question of whether the district should spend $23.4 million on several specified construction projects within the district. Among these was a project to renovate and enlarge the Bradley Gardens Elementary School ("Bradley Gardens"). The circumstances of the referendum, and most especially the proposed work at Bradley Gardens, became an issue of great concern within the district. The tenure charges brought by Dr. Ryan alleged in general that Dr. Horowitz' conduct in connection with this entire Bradley Gardens episode was so inappropriate and improper as to warrant action against his tenure, pursuant to the Tenure Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11.

In addition to the Bradley Gardens related tenure charges ("Bradley Gardens charges"), Dr. Ryan also filed several charges alleging improprieties on the part of Dr. Horowitz which were unrelated to the referendum and the Bradley Gardens matter. These have also been examined in the course of the hearing.

The issues for exploration in the hearing included not only the question of whether the substantive charges against the superintendent could be proven by a preponderance of the credible evidence, but also included a number of other matters. Among these are the question of whether the votes of certain board members were tainted, whether a reprimand and pay freeze issued to Dr. Horowitz in April, 1991 as a result of the Board's initial response to the Bradley Gardens matter should act as a bar to any tenure charges arising out of the referendum/Bradley

Gardens issues under the doctrine of equitable estoppel, whether certain of the non-Bradley Gardens charges should be barred by the equitable doctrine of laches, and, if any of the tenure charges were established, what would be the appropriate action to be taken in regard to the Superintendent's tenure.

The specific tenure charges will be reviewed below in the course of the discussion of the evidence and the analysis thereof. A list of the charges is attached to this decision as an appendix and is also an exhibit in evidence.

CHRONOLOGICAL HISTORY

Before beginning a review of the extremely detailed evidence presented during the course of the 13 days of hearing it will be helpful to set forth a basic chronology of the major events involved in the case. This listing does not delve into the actions and statements of the participants to a great degree, but only where essential to the chronology. Additionally, the chronology is not a recitation of all of the significant events, but is instead a relatively spare review of the highlights. Much additional material related to the activities of the various participants will be considered later on in this opinion.

The starting point of the entire Bradley Gardens incident, which forms the basic scenario in which the bulk of the events related to the tenure charges occurred, was a Board sponsored referendum held in February, 1989, in which the Board sought authority from the voters to issue bonds for the purpose of financing several proposed projects in the District. As indicated in the record, the bond referendum was rejected by the voters and, subsequent to the vote, certain groups expressed strong concern over the nature of the information which the Board had provided to the voters concerning the referendum, concerns which resulted in a petition filed with the Commissioner. In February, 1990, the Board, still interested in the need for certain projects, especially in regard to problems arising from the continued existence within the district of two high schools and the possibility of a new arrangement which might involve a consolidation of these, formed four committees whose purpose was to explore issues related to facilities. The intent was to prepare the groundwork for a new bond referendum to be submitted to the voters. One of these committees was a High School Design committee, another was an Elementary Facilities Committee (EFC). The EFC met several times through the late winter and spring of 1990 and rendered a preliminary report to the Steering Committee, which was overseeing the new referendum project, on June 6, 1990. Thereafter, the Steering Committee received a final report from the EFC on June 11, 1990.

The EFC's report referred in part to proposed work at the Bradley Gardens Elementary School. The idea was to bring this school up to parity with other elementary schools. The necessary improvements were listed as having a cost of $905,000. The exact formulation and significance of this figure is of primary importance to some of the issues regarding the tenure charges and will be discussed below. Suffice it to say, this number was a part of the data presented by the EFC to the Steering Committee and it subsequently was passed on by the Steering Committee to the full Board. (Executive Summary Report, RBG-14)

On June 26, 1990, the full Board adopted a resolution which approved the Steering Committee report. This report called for the voters to be asked to approve a referendum which was to be held in the early fall, which referendum would seek to authorize the expenditure of $23.4 million dollars for a number of projects detailed in the Steering Committee report, including the consolidation of the two high schools into one high school; the renovation of the Bradley Gardens school, including an expansion of the facility; the conversion of the Eisenhower School to an elementary school; the expansion of existing Instructional Media centers; the relocation of the office at the Adamsville School; and work involving the addition of Learning Center space.

Following the Board's adoption of the resolution on June 26, the Board set out to prepare for the referendum, which was authorized by a vote of the Board at it's meeting of August 21, 1990. The resolution adopted at that time mirrored the Board's adoption of the Steering Committee report on June 26.[1] In the summer months the Board also formed the Ad Hoc Committee, which was charged with the preparation of a special Board Bulletin.[2] This was to be a document submitted to the voters of the district in order to inform them as to the purposes and the proposals of the referendum. This committee met 3 or 4 times during the summer. A Board Bulletin was prepared and was in fact sent to the residents of the district in early September. The Board also sent out an errata sheet which was included with the Bulletin.

In addition to the mailed Bulletin, the Board also scheduled two public information sessions, which were held on September 12 at the Wade Administration Building and on September 17 at the High School West. Further, Board representatives participated in an informational cable TV program which was recorded on September 18. The program was broadcast on September 28, 29, 30 and October 1, 1990.

Another public information session was held at the Adamsville School PTO on September 26. A local newspaper, the Messenger Gazette, ran an article on the referendum which was published on September 27. This featured an interview which had been held with Dr. Horowitz and the then Board President William Tronolone.

1 The proposal read:

> The Board of Education of the Bridgewater-Raritan Regional School District in the County of Somerset, New Jersey is authorized (a) to renovate and to construct additions to the Bridgewater-Raritan High School West, to renovate and to construct an addition to the Bradley Gardens Elementary School, to renovate facilities at the Adamsville Elementary School, the Crim Elementary School, the Hamilton Elementary School, the John F. Kennedy Elementary School and the Van Holten Elementary School and to purchase furniture and equipment necessary therefor and (b) to issue bonds of the School District for the purpose in the principal amount of $23,400,000.

2 Board Bulletin, Volume 17, No. 1 "Bridgewater-Raritan Schools - The Next Phase" (hereinafter "Board Bulletin," or "Bulletin").

As the referendum date approached, the requirements of State regulation mandated that certain submissions be presented to the State Department of Education ("DOE"). These included schematic drawings and educational specifications and a Project Cost Estimate Form. N.J.S.A. 6:22-1.1 to -1.4. These were submitted to the DOE's Bureau of Facilities Planning ("Bureau"). The submission was made on September 20 or 21, and Pablo Jordan, of the architectural firm of Jordan and Pease, met with Dr. Macaluso of the Bureau in Trenton on September 21. The necessary approval of the submitted documents was issued by the Bureau on September 26.

On October 2, 1990, the voters of the district approved the referendum. This authorized the Board to proceed with the projects contemplated by the Steering Committee report and adopted by the full Board.

Following the vote of October 2, the architectural firm of Jordan and Pease submitted a bill for services to the district on October 17, 1990. (RBG-40). As will be detailed below, this bill was based on a cost of the portion of the referendum proposal which Jordan and Pease had worked on, that is, the proposed work at Bradley Gardens. The bill came to the district's Business Administrator, Dr. Peter Mazurak. Because the bill was calculated at 8% of the cost for the Bradley Gardens project, which was listed at $1,955,000.00, rather than the $905,000 which had been shown in the Elementary Facilities Report, Dr. Mazurak requested that Jordan and Pease send him a copy of the Project Cost Estimate Form. This form was sent to Dr. Mazurak on December 3, 1990. His actions upon receipt of the form will be examined below.

After the successful passage of the referendum, the Board enlarged the Building and Grounds Committee, chaired by Board Member Raymond Kovonuk. This committee met on December 17, 1990 and at that time Mr. Jordan presented it with detailed plans for the Bradley Gardens project. On December 18, the Board received a report on the December 17 meeting from Mr. Tronolone and also from Board Vice-President Clara Navarrete.

On March 12, 1991 a Board meeting was held at which a "Current Expense Surplus" computerized schedule was presented to the Board. This showed that there was a $1.925 million surplus for "special projects." In addition, a request was presented to transfer $1.383 million of the $1.925 million from "Current Expense Surplus" to "Current Expense-Budget 1990-91." This document listed the amounts of the transfer, broken down as to certain projects, including district-wide asbestos removal at $100,000.00; renovations for barrier-free facilities-district-wide at $150,000.00; relocation of boiler at Bradley Gardens $495,000.00; reroofing at Kennedy School $333,000.00 and reroofing of portions of Hillside School for $305,000.00. Clara Navarrete questioned this request. In response to her questions as to the reasons for and the necessity of such transfers, Dr. Horowitz sent Mrs. Navarrete a note, stating "don't you remember that we discussed that the $320,000 for the roof at High School West was going to be used for the overrun at Bradley Gardens?" Mrs. Navarrete asked the Superintendent to prepare a memo, putting down all of the expenses at Bradley Gardens and discussing the finances thereof. Dr. Horowitz prepared a memorandum dated March 18, for Mrs. Navarrete. The Project Cost Estimate Form of September 20, 1990 was attached to this memorandum. (RBG-43). When Mrs. Navarrete saw this she noted that the cost estimate was listed at $2.459 million dollars.

The reaction of Mrs. Navarrete to the information provided to her in the March 18 memo was to speak to Mr. Tronolone about the $2.459 million figure.[3] This led to a meeting with Pablo Jordan, held at his office on April 6, 1990. At that meeting, Jordan showed Navarrete and Tronolone the letter that had accompanied the submission of the Project Cost Estimate Form and the other documents which Jordan had submitted to the Bureau on September 21, 1989. Mrs. Navarrete's name was signed on this letter, as Board Vice-President. The letter purported to be a certification that the Board had authorized the proposal as submitted to the Bureau, a proposal showing the cost estimate at $2.435 million, rather than the $905,000 which had been the figure in the various documents produced, reviewed and adopted by the Board in June, 1989. Since Mrs. Navarrete had in fact not signed, or even seen, the letter, and since Mr. Jordan represented to Mrs. Navarrete and Mr. Tronolone that he had actually signed the names on the letter,[4] the Board members were concerned, to say the least. They proceeded to advise the full Board of the situation.

3 There is controversy as to the question of what, if any, knowledge Mrs. Navarrete had of the overrun prior to March, 1991. This will be considered herein.

4 The circumstances of the signing of Mrs. Navarrete's name and of Mr. Jordan's comments thereon are in dispute. See below.

On April 9, 1991, the full Board held a meeting. Mr. Tronolone provided them with the March 18, 1991 memorandum. Messrs. Horowitz and Jordan were asked to be present at the end of the meeting. Discussions ensued, which will be reviewed in detail below. However, for the purpose of this chronology, the outcome of the meeting was that the Board, meeting on April 12, decided that action should be taken immediately to deal with the information with which it had presented. As part of the response, the Board provided a so-called Rice letter to Dr. Horowitz, which advised him that he could have a personnel discussion regarding him in public, as opposed to private, session of the Board.[5]

On April 14 Dr. Horowitz submitted a written review of the Bradley Gardens matter to the Board. On April 17, the Board met in closed session to consider what, if any, personnel action should be taken against Dr. Horowitz. A decision was made to issue a formal reprimand to the Superintendent. In addition, the Board decided to appoint a Task Force for the purpose of undertaking a review of the Bradley Gardens matter. The exact parameters of the charge of the Task Force are in dispute and will be considered below.[6] The formal reprimand was presented to Dr. Horowitz by Mr. Tronolone on April 19.

The Task Force review was never actually concluded. Initial findings were presented to the Board on June 25, 1991. The Board then decided to hire the law firm of Stark & Stark to undertake an independent investigation of the Bradley Gardens matter. Once again, the record herein reflects some differing views as to the exact nature of this investigation and of the charge and/or direction given to the law firm. Nevertheless, Stark & Stark presented the Board with a report on September 13, 1991. (PBG-50). The Board commented thereon, and Stark & Stark then issued a report on September 18. (PBG-51). On October 4, Dr. Horowitz issued a response to the reports. (PBG-26, PBG-27). This was submitted to the Board. A additional response followed on October 28. (RBG-54). The Board issued a Board Report on October 31, 1991.

On October 11, 1991, Board Vice-President Clara Navarrete filed tenure charges against Dr. Horowitz. (RBG-52). These were related to the actions or inactions attributed to Dr. Horowitz in regard to the Bradley Gardens matter. His response to these was set forth in the October 28 document, RBG-54, which he submitted to the Board.

On October 30, the Board voted 4-4 not to certify the tenure charges. Mrs. Navarrete recused herself from the vote. Following this vote, the Board voted unanimously to request that the Attorney General of New Jersey undertake an investigation of aspects of the Bradley Gardens affair. (PBG-30).[7]

In the period following the Board's tie vote, attempts were made to arrange a settlement between the Board and the Superintendent, a settlement which would presumably have resulted in Dr. Horowitz leaving the district. Certain information as to allegedly inappropriate conduct by Dr. Horowitz unrelated to the Bradley Gardens/referendum affair was then purportedly brought to the attention of Board member Dr. Michael Ryan. On January 8, Dr. Ryan filed his series of tenure charges, (Appendix, RBG-89), which the Board certified by vote of January 27.

7 No information as to the status of the investigation has been received.

During the period of time that the Board was considering the tenure charges, it sought an opinion from it's bond counsel as to whether the events surrounding the referendum might jeopardize the validity of the vote approving the expenditures. In a letter dated November 13, 1991, bond counsel advised that the Board could undertake certain actions, such as scaling down the size and the expense of the Bradley Gardens work, actions which in all likelihood would serve to protect the referendum's approval from any questions as to its validity, regardless of whether the process was tainted by any bad faith actions on the part of either the Superintendent and/or the architect. (RBG-57).

THE ALLEGEDLY TAINTED VOTE

As noted, when the Board voted to certify the Ryan tenure charges to the Commissioner, Dr. Horowitz took to the offensive, arguing in his motion for emergent relief that the vote was tainted due to the alleged conduct and actions of certain Board members, which actions he claimed disqualified those members from participating in the vote. This issue was preserved for consideration in this hearing by the Commissioner's decision of March 6, 1992 affirming the decision of the ALJ denying emergent relief. The matter was the subject of four days of testimony at the hearings held in July. For the reasons expressed in the oral decision rendered by this judge on July 27, 1992, the transcript of which is attached hereto as a part of this initial decision, I CONCLUDE that the vote was not tainted, and the participation of the several members in the January 27, 1992 vote was not improper.

EXAMINATION OF THE EVIDENCE AS RELATED TO THE SPECIFIC CHARGES

The basic thrust of the Bradley Gardens related tenure charges is that Dr. Horowitz, from very early in the planning of the project, knew that the estimated cost of the Bradley Gardens portion of the proposed projects which were to be authorized in the October 2, 1989 referendum was far above that which had been estimated in the reports filed by the Elementary Facilities and Steering Committees (the latter adopted the EFC report) and that he failed to provide the Board with this information, failed to provide the information to the public, actively worked to avoid telling the Board of the news, and generally neglected his duty to the Board and the public. To this, Dr. Horowitz demurs, accepting a degree of responsibility for poorly handling certain aspects of the matter, but denying vigorously that he actively or passively deceived the Board or the public. As for the Board, he argues that at least some of its members had at least a general sense of the growing size and cost of the project prior to the referendum and as for the public, he seems to argue that information made available to it, as well as to the Board, was not only not misleading or deceptive, but, in fact, specifically showed that the project as architecturally envisioned by Jordan and Pease was not the same project as that proposed by the EFC.

THE PRE-REFERENDUM PLANNING PERIOD: PLANNING THE BRADLEY GARDENS PROJECT

The planning for the renovations and additions to the Bradley Gardens Elementary School was first considered by the EFC. This group consisted of lay individuals, that is, no architect, planner or other person on the committee was an expert with respect to the details of the specific process which would take the proposed changes in the building from concept to blueprints. The original proposal of the EFC, which was part of the report adopted by the Steering Committee, called for a 4,000 square foot addition to the building. The cost for such an addition was admittedly determined without any specific input from any architect who might be engaged to draw the plans for the work.[8] The Committee received input as to an estimated cost factor from Dr. Horowitz, who took the factors from the cost estimates arrived at by The Vitetta Group, the architectural firm which was involved in the planning of the proposed high school consolidation project. This formula was $110.00 per square foot for new construction and $60.00 per square foot for renovation, each subject to a multiplier of 1.25, plus 25% for overhead, which calculated out to a cost of $905,000.00 for the proposed 4,000 square foot addition at Bradley Gardens. When the EFC presented it's recommendations to the Steering Committee, the 4,000 square foot and the $905,000 figures were specifically referenced in the recommendation. (RBG-10, pg.9). The report did not state that the recommendation had been made without review or comment by an architect. The Steering Committee apparently did not question the figures as to the size of the project necessary to fulfill the goals of the EFC as to Bradley Gardens or the methodology or the sources used for the cost figures presented by the EFC.

At the same time as the EFC was wrapping up its work and the Steering Committee was reviewing and adopting the EFC's work, the Jordan & Pease firm was beginning its involvement in the process of bringing the proposals of the EFC for Bradley Gardens to fruition. On June 14, 1990, Pablo Jordan and his partner, David M. Pease, met with the Superintendent, the Principal of the Bradley Gardens School, John Petronella and Kenneth Grenci, the Plant Engineer for the district. It is not clear who arranged for or who authorized the meeting. Subsequent to this meeting, the evidence shows that Mr. Jordan assumed the primary responsibility for the firm with regards to the project, with Dr. Horowitz acting as the contact person for the district. However, Jordan also consulted with Mr. Petronella and others as he gathered the necessary information which he needed in order to draw the blueprints and other plans for the facility. No evidence has been presented that an executed contract for this work was entered into at this time.

Mr. Jordan testified that during this period he began to learn that as a result of certain Code requirements the space required to fulfill the goals of the project would have to be greater than the EFC's proposed 4,000 square feet. (Eventually the Jordan & Pease plan called for 12,460 square feet.) According to Mr. Jordan, the extra space included such things as an office in the gym, certain renovations within the existing space, an art room and a learning center, a second corridor and a relocated boiler room. Of course, the cost of this project grew as well. Mr. Jordan said that he discussed the initial assessment concerning additional costs with Dr. Horowitz on August 17, 1990. Dr. Horowitz told him that the additional monies needed for these additional costs could be obtained from other sources. All of these events were occurring in an "extremely tight time frame" in regards to the upcoming referendum. Mr. Jordan was hired "very late" and the job was proceeding "under pressure" with "little time to produce."

According to Dr. Horowitz, he was aware by the end of July or early August of an estimated cost for the project of $1.4 million. Mr. Jordan was recommending that a second corridor be included. This caused an access problem for the interior boiler room, and necessitated that a new boiler room be added to the building. After a meeting with Mr. Jordan on August 17, the estimated cost for the construction alone was nearly $2 million. Thus, at the time that the Ad Hoc Committee was in the process of preparing the groundwork for providing the public with information prior to the October 2, referendum, the Superintendent, and the architect, knew that whatever the basis of the $905,000 figure which had been contained in the reports at the time of the adoption of the resolution for the bond referendum, that figure was nowhere close to enough money to actually complete the Bradley Gardens project.

Dr. Horowitz described his reaction to the news which he was receiving concerning the increased cost necessary for the work intended at Bradley Gardens. According to him, as he saw the estimates growing, he began to view the concept for the project put forth by Pablo Jordan as only one possible plan for the job. The Superintendent testified that this perception, this doubt as to the actual utility of the Jordan plan, colored his thoughts and actions in the pre-referendum period, especially as to his contacts with the Board on the issue of the increase in costs over the $905,000 estimate.

As the planning for the various projects which were to be a part of the referendum went on, particularly the High School project which was admittedly the driving engine of the whole bond issue, the architects proceeded to prepare the required paperwork for the DOE, with the help of necessary Board and district employees. Pursuant to regulations, the referendum could not be held without the DOE first approving the preliminary submissions. N.J.A.C. 6:22-1.2. In early July, the Vitetta Group had been ready to transmit certain documents to the DOE in connection with the High School project and Learning Center projects. (RBG-17;PBG-4). The necessary enabling resolution for these had been adopted on June 26. The July 5, 1990 submission to the Bureau from Vitetta included a cover letter which certified that the Board had approved the submission. This letter bore the signatures of Dr. Horowitz, as the chief executive officer for the Board, and of Mrs. Navarrete, signing as the Vice President in the absence of the then vacationing President Tronolone. In September, as the date of the referendum vote rapidly approached, Pablo Jordan was preparing to file similar documents for the Bradley Gardens project. On September 13, Mr. Jordan faxed a copy of the Project Cost Estimate Form that was to be submitted to the Bureau to Dr. Horowitz. The figure shown on that form as the cost estimate for the project was $2.459 million. According to Dr. Horowitz, this figure made him "angry" and "upset."

On September 20, Mr. Jordan prepared a cover letter for the package of materials about to be delivered to the Bureau, with whose representative, Dr. Macaluso, Mr. Jordan was scheduled to meet the next day. The circumstances surrounding the preparation of this letter are of great significance, as the tenure charges include serious allegations of misconduct in connection with the letter, on the part of Dr. Horowitz, conduct purportedly rising even to the level of criminality. All agree that this letter was copied by Mr. Jordan from the July 5 letter filed by the Vitetta Group. The letter certified that the Board had, on June 26, 1990 "agreed that the attached educational specifications be submitted to the State Department of Education." The letter bore signatures purporting to be those of Dr. Horowitz and Mrs. Navarrete, although in contrast to the July 5 letter, Mrs. Navarrete's name was misspelled as "Navarrette." In fact, as freely acknowledged by Mr. Jordan, the September 20 letter did not bear Mrs. Navarrete's actual signature, since Mr. Jordan had signed both the Superintendent's and Mrs. Navarrete's names. The submitted documentation included the Project Cost Estimate Form, with it's $2.459 million estimate.

Mr. Jordan testified, in part basing his statements on the recollections he had previously recorded in a chronology of events which he prepared in April, 1991, that on September 20, he had a telephone conversation with Dr. Horowitz, in which conversation he discussed with the superintendent that all of the information necessary for the submission to the DOE had been gathered, except for the letter which had to accompany the documentation and which had to bear the signatures of the Superintendent and the Board President or Vice-President. Mr. Jordan told Dr. Horowitz that he had a meeting scheduled for the next day with Dr. Macaluso at the Bureau. In the course of his testimony, Mr. Jordan repeated the statement he had written in his chronology, saying that he and Dr. Horowitz > discussed and he approved that I would use a letterhead from one of the letters he received from him, copy the text used in a letter given to the architect hired for the other projects and copy the signatures attached.

Mr. Jordan claimed in the chronology that he undertook this course of action > openly and innocently in the best interest of expediting a process which is absolutely necessary before a referendum can be conducted.

In answer to the interrogatories from Stark & Stark, Mr. Jordan stated that Dr. Horowitz authorized him to sign his, that is, Dr. Horowitz' name on the letter. However, in response to the question of whether Dr. Horowitz had authorized the signature of Mrs. Navarrete's name, the witness stated at the hearing that > ...we did not discuss because at the time I didn't even know who was on the bottom line or the second line or the third line, a specific name to be authorized--to put the signatures on...All--I was authorized to sign the paper and send it out and I signed whatever was on that.

Mr. Jordan denied that he would have signed any name on the letter if he had not received the authorization of Dr. Horowitz to do so.

The letterhead paper which Mr. Jordan used had been supplied to him by Dr. Horowitz and had either been brought by messenger or delivered, but the architect could not recall from whom or exactly how he had received it.

When pressed on the issue, Mr. Jordan insisted that he "had no doubt" that he was authorized by Dr. Horowitz to put the signatures on the letter. Mr. Jordan recalled that after doing so and delivering the package to the Bureau, he personally went to the office of the Superintendent on September 21 and delivered a copy of the package.

Dr. Horowitz' recollection as to the subject of the cover letter was that he "absolutely" did not tell Mr. Jordan to either sign the names or to copy the Vitetta letter. He could not recall giving Mr. Jordan the Superintendent's Office letterhead "directly." He also questioned whether Mr. Jordan had called him regarding any need to sign a letter for the September submission to the Bureau, only recalling that the architect did discuss with him the need to get documents to Trenton, with no discussion as to the specifics of these. The filed documents were then brought to his office on the 20th, or perhaps on the 21st.[9] These were in booklet form with a cover. He does not recall that Mr. Jordan came to his office and handed him the package, although this possibly could have happened. As for the bound documents, he "thumbed through them" and they simply ended up on a shelf in his office. He did not look at them until he learned of the April 9, 1991 meeting and he then pulled out the bound material to look at them. When he did he saw the letter bearing Clara Navarrete's signature (as he then believed) and he wondered to himself and then expressed a question to Assistant Superintendent Dr. McGarry how the Board could have "a problem," since Mrs. Navarrete's signature was on the letter to the Bureau. According to Dr. Horowitz, at the time of this examination of the materials he did not realize that either Mrs. Navarrete's signature or his own were not genuine.

While the preparation of these documents and the work of Pablo Jordan proceeded, the Board's Ad Hoc Committee worked to prepare the Bulletin for submission to the voters. This committee included representatives from the public, Mr. Irving Putter and Dr. Michael Ryan, who later on became a Board member, Dr. Horowitz, Mr. Tronolone, Mrs. Navarrete and David Sandler, the district's communications specialist. The mission of the committee was substantially directed at assuring that the public received full and accurate information regarding the bond issue, in order to avoid the questions and accusations which had followed upon the previously rejected referendum.

9 September 20 was Rosh Hashanah, and Dr. Horowitz recalled that the school district was closed on that day.

The Board Bulletin (RBG-22) produced by this committee was a seemingly comprehensive look at the upcoming bond referendum, chock full of charts, figures and text explaining the costs, benefits, and goals of the proposal and contrasting the situation in the district's schools if the referendum was approved or if it were disapproved. Among the various charts was one contained on page 3. This one had two headings, the left hand side, headed "Financial and Educational Costs of the Status Quo" and the right hand portion, entitled "Financial Costs and Educational Benefits of a Passed Referendum." Under each of these headings the third of the elementary school issues listed dealt with "Bradley Gardens," the left side noting that if the referendum failed the result for this school would be that it would not have "parity" with the other elementary schools and that in contrast, an approval of the referendum would provide for "(N)ew all purpose room, learning center renovations and building repairs" which would "bring(s) school in parity with others in district." The "financial" factor for this achievement is listed as "905,000." There is no mention anywhere in the Bulletin that the estimated cost of the work to be performed at the school would be either $1.4, $1.8 or $2.459 million. The Bulletin also lists the proposed work to be done at the Adamsville School, which would provide for greater security and a more appropriate layout to conform to a new parking lot.

According to David Sandler, who now is a communications consultant for several boards of education and holds a B.A. in Journalism and English and a Masters in Secondary Education, the committee members all felt that it was very important that they show the public how open they were being about the October referendum. The understanding was that the voters were voting on the referendum as a whole, although the biggest issue by far was the proposed consolidation of the high schools. As Sandler understood, the learning center projects were a very small part of the committee's discussions.

The witness recalled that Dr. Horowitz, who was his boss, saw all the proofs for the Bulletin and approved them. Mr. Sandler edited the draft. Dr. Horowitz was not involved in putting the draft together. He "may have stuck his head in" to a committee meeting, but Mr. Sandler did not specifically recall the Superintendent as a member of the committee. As for Mr. Tronolone, he was a ex officio member, but was not at meetings "a lot."

During the period of time that the Ad Hoc Committee was working on the draft of the Bulletin, Mr. Sandler recalls that Dr. Horowitz mentioned to him that it looked like there would be a cost overrun on the Bradley Gardens project. The Superintendent stated that this was "something the Board would have to deal with." Dr. Horowitz was not specific on the figure for this overrun. The $905,000 figure came from the EFC and Sandler said that Dr. Horowitz called this a "best ballpark" figure and said that the $23.4 million figure was not going to change, thus he said that the $905,000 should be kept in the Bulletin. The witness characterized the "elementary as something of an afterthought" and said that this conversation occurred "in passing." While Mr. Sandler at first indicated that the conversation about Bradley Gardens might have come either a little before or after the referendum, he then agreed that it "certainly could have been a little before."

Mr. Sandler believed that he had attended each of the meetings of the Ad Hoc Committee and he could not recall that Mr. Putter had ever reviewed the numbers with Dr. Horowitz at any of these meetings. Indeed, he did not recall that the Superintendent was ever actually "at" any of the meetings.

The witness was shown a transcript of the statement he gave to the Task Force on May 21, 1991 at which time he told them that he did not know "exactly when" this conversation regarding the cost of the Bradley Gardens project occurred, but he said that he "think(s) it was after the referendum...Yes, and I'm really guessing, February, March 1991." Sandler testified at the present hearing that he didn't recall Horowitz mentioning it before the referendum. He also started that at the time he spoke to the Task Force he felt "fairly vulnerable due to his job being discussed at that evening's board meeting."

Sandler opined that had Dr. Horowitz told him that the $23.4 million was not the actual figure for the cost of the proposed work under the referendum he would have "had concern." However, it was not a major issue if the $2.45 million cost for Bradley Gardens did not change the total amount of the bond issue.

Sandler conceded that people reading the Board Bulletin would have thought that the $905,000 was the amount required for the Bradley Gardens portion of the proposed work. He recalls that Board members had said that they wanted the information presented to the public to be "absolutely accurate," due to the claims made as to the allegedly false nature of the information communicated in regard to the defeated February, 1989 referendum.

On redirect examination, the witness stated that he believed that the comment from Dr. Horowitz had been made prior to October 2. He also noted that the Bulletin had emphasized the High School project.

Irving Putter testified that he was a member of the Ad Hoc Committee and attended 2-3 meetings of the group. He recalled that Dr. Horowitz was present at the last two of these meetings, and that the specific figures were reviewed while the Superintendent was present at a meeting in the middle of August. Putter read the figures aloud to make sure that there were no errors and the Superintendent responded "yes," "yep," or words to that effect. He also remembered that he had met with Mr. Sandler in July and that Sandler has mentioned the time constraints and had said that the Committee should list all of the questions and answers that they could think of and go over the answers so as to make sure that they were not misleading.

Mr. Putter expressed his view that the Board Bulletin represented the "culmination" of a divided community coming together. It was to be an accurate fact sheet for the community.

Dr. Michael Ryan, also a member of the Ad Hoc Committee who later became both a Board member and ultimately the author of the tenure charges certified on January 27,1992, testified that the intent of the Bulletin and of the chart previously reviewed above was to show the voters that as result of their approval of the referendum the Bradley Gardens School would be brought up to parity for a cost of $905,000. He recommended at the time that the chart be placed in the Bulletin. According to the witness, no one then intimated that the work could not be accomplished for $905,000. The members of the committee "fully expected" that this would be done. However, he agreed that at the time that figure and the 4,000 square foot size of the project were established the Board's architect had not yet been involved in the project. The "driving force" behind the proposal was the idea of bringing the school to parity with the Crim School, which was the school which Dr.

Horowitz referred to as representative of the goal to be accomplished. Parity, not square footage, was to be the key factor in the Bradley Gardens project.

Clara Navarrete recalled that the goal of the Board Bulletin was to advise the public "as accurately as possible what they were voting on." Mr. Sandler and Dr. Horowitz had put together drafts which were then presented for review by the Committee, which then modified them. The "errata" sheet was put together by Mr. Sandler after an error was discovered on page 2 of the Bulletin.[10] The Notice regarding the public information sessions was also included with the errata sheet.

In regard to the $905,000, Mrs. Navarrete acknowledged that this figure was an estimate. As she put it, "everything is an estimate until you have the actual numbers." However, what the Board and the Ad Hoc Committee were looking for was a "ball park" figure. She understood that the $905,000 was just that, a "ball park" figure.

Dr. Horowitz testified that the responsibility for putting together the draft of the Bulletin was Mr. Sandler's. They spoke about it in a "conceptual fashion" and Dr. Horowitz later proofread the final copy before it was sent to the printer. Dr. Horowitz normally would have been on a committee such as the Ad Hoc Committee, but here he did not spend much time at it's meetings.

According to the witness, the Board Bulletin contained the $905,000 figure because this was the "hard information" then available which the Board and the architects had come up with, a figure that could be presented to the public with as "little ambiguity as possible." It was taken directly from the EFC report. Although in late July Pablo Jordan had explained to Dr. Horowitz that the impact of Code requirements on the number of square feet allotted to each child and the need for certain other changes in the original concept was such that the cost of the project might be as much as $500,000 more than the original $905,000 estimate, at the time that the Committee was busy putting together the Bulletin, Horowitz had received nothing in writing from Jordan as to this increased cost. Mr. Sandler explained to Dr. Horowitz that it was important to show in the Bulletin that passage of the bond issue would "save money by spending money." They were looking for a clear way to express all of this to the voters.

Dr. Horowitz contended that the purpose of the use of the $905,000 figure was to show the comparison between the cost of building the Bradley Gardens project versus not building it. The Ad Hoc Committee insisted on a comparison between the status quo and the "passed referendum" situations. The reference to the $6.9 million listed on page 2 of the Bulletin was drawn from the EFC report. This figure was intended to show the cost of addressing the elementary school needs if the bond issue was not passed. Dr. Horowitz was the one responsible for suggesting that the figures from the EFC report be used. If the Bulletin had used the estimates which were emanating from Pablo Jordan, it would have been necessary to redo these figures. This would have been very complicated and difficult to explain and the approach used, that is, the use of the $905,000 was the "clearest, the most straightforward" one available.

The Superintendent stated that at the time the Bulletin was prepared he had no doubt in his mind that the figures in the document were only meant for comparative purposes. However, since that time, he has come to appreciate that the Bulletin as published did not do what he, and apparently in his belief the Committee as well, thought it would do. It was necessary that any comparison be of "apples to apples."

The witness had no recollection, and therefore could not deny, Mr. Putter's assertion in regard to the Committee meeting of August 20, when, according to Mr. Putter, the Superintendent acknowledged the accuracy of each and every one of the figures in response to Mr. Putter's question as to whether each was correct. Had he been asked this at the time, he would have said they were accurate "for the way they were going to be used." Until September 13, there was nothing which changed the cost estimate from $905,000. On the 13th, he received the facsimile copy of the Project Cost Estimate Form which Mr. Jordan was then preparing for submission to the Bureau.

As noted in the chronology, in September the Board held the two public information sessions and the cable television program was taped. Several days before the first public session the architect and Board representatives appeared before the Planning Board. At these various events, presentations were made by Mr. Jordan and others to explain the projects which were to result from passage of the referendum and as part of these presentations, displays were shown, in the form of drawings which showed the contemplated size and general layout of, among other projects, the anticipated work at Bradley Gardens. Substantial testimony as to these meetings and the interesting and significant things which occurred during them was presented by both parties.

Pablo Jordan, of the firm of Jordan & Pease, a licensed architect for 30 years with substantial experience in the planning and design of school related projects, testified. Mr. Jordan was in attendance at the September 12 public presentation. Prior to this date, he had had no contact with anyone from the Board of Education regarding the Bradley Gardens project, other than with Dr. Horowitz, Mr. Petronella and staff. At the public meeting, Jordan was seated at the head table with Dr. Horowitz and members of the Board. During this meeting, Reverend Dr. John Stephenson, a member of the Board, passed a note to Mr. Jordan, a note which asked him whether the Bradley Gardens project could actually be constructed for $905,000. (RBG-27). This inquiry "surprised" Mr. Jordan, for he had previously discussed his estimates of increased costs with Dr. Horowitz and assumed that the information had been shared with the members of the Board. When he received Dr. Stephenson's note, he conferred with Dr. Horowitz, who told him that he, Jordan, should let Horowitz answer the query and any others from any Board members. As it was, there was no direct discussion of the anticipated cost of the Bradley Gardens project at either the September 11, Planning Board meeting or at the September 12 or 17 public meetings, or at the PTO meeting on the 26th at Bradley Gardens.

Mr. Jordan also used a display at the September 12 meeting. This was a floor plan, on which the square footage was listed at 12,640 square feet. This display was probably presented to the Planning Board at the presentation made to that body on September 11, when, as far as he can recall, the projected square footage was the same, or very close, to that which was shown on the reduction of the floor plan that was part of the documentation submitted to the DOE on September 20. (PBG-53) At the public meeting on September 12, Mr. Jordan placed the floor plan on display, containing the reference to the square footage at 12,640 square feet. In all probability, the reduction used that night and the one which was ultimately used in the submission to the DOE were the same, although Mr. Jordan said that he could not swear to this. As the parties stipulated, several Board members were present at the public hearings on the 12th and the 17th. In addition, Mr. Jordan believes that Mrs. Navarette was present at Bradley Gardens on the 26th.

Mr. Jordan explained that the purpose of the public hearing was to inform the public of the problems which the referendum was intended to address. The presenters also explained how the proposals would resolve those problems.

Reverend Dr. John F. Stephenson, Jr., an ordained Presbyterian minister and a member of the Board of Education from 1985 until his defeat in a reelection bid in April, 1991, was the co-chair of the EFC, along with Ray Kovenuk. While that committee was functioning, Dr. Stephenson and others on the committee had requested that the committee be provided with the consulting services of an architect. According to Dr. Stephenson, this request was turned down by Dr. Horowitz and then Board President Tronolone, who told the committee to use the same multipliers in their cost calculations as the Vitetta Group was using for the high school project. Stephenson believes that Dr. Horowitz actually supplied this data to the committee.

As Dr. Stephenson recalled at the hearing, sometime thereafter, probably on August 21, or perhaps on the 28th of August or September 4, either before or after a Board meeting, Dr. Horowitz approached Dr. Stephenson in the hallway and told Stephenson that he, Horowitz, owed Stephenson an "apology" because "You were right, you needed an architect." This conversation lasted 2-3 minutes at most and the witness said that he considered it to be an apology. At the same time as he apologized, Dr. Horowitz told Dr. Stephenson that some of the cost overrun could be covered by monies which had been previously earmarked for some of the other recommendations which the EFC had made, such as the additions to the media centers and the office relocation at the Adamsville School.

Dr. Stephenson explained that his reaction to the news from Dr. Horowitz was concern, in that Dr. Stephenson had lived through the previous referendum and the reaction to it and the allegations concerning the Board and he knew that "people delight to discredit the Board and administration." He was also concerned lest the cost overruns jeopardize the referendum and delay the high school consolidation, an outcome which would be "pennywise and pound foolish." The defeat of the first referendum was itself costing the taxpayers a great deal of money, some $3.5 million a year.

Dr. Stephenson testified that he believed that the cost overrun problem would be "taken care of" in due course. He recalled passing the note to Pablo Jordan on the 17th or 18th of September. He did not raise his query as to whether the project could be brought in within budget publicly (that is, out loud) so as not to provide an opportunity for others to discredit the Board.

On cross-examination, Dr. Stephenson said that he could not be "absolutely certain" that Dr. Horowitz had mentioned the media centers or the Adamsville School in the discussion following the apology, but he did believe that the mention of their being "architecturally not cost effective" did occur. He believes that the Superintendent said that the project would cost "considerably" more. In his deposition with Stark & Stark, he said "considerably" or a term "similar," suggesting "running quite a bit beyond." He made no connection at the time of this conversation with the Board Bulletin and did not recall the Ad Hoc Committee. He knew that the Bulletin was sent out to the public, but he did not recall that he took any action about it. As for the information which the Superintendent had given him in this conversation, Dr. Stephenson stated that he "assumed" that it would be "passed on to the Board." There was nothing "hard to work on."

Dr. Stephenson stated in his deposition that had he known that the cost estimate had grown to nearly $2.5 million that information "would have pulled the fire alarm." The Board would have had to reevaluate the matter. However, if the cost was in the neighborhood of $1.25-$1.5 million, this would not have surprised him." He was not certain as to whether he mentioned his concerns about the possible jeopardy to the referendum to Dr. Horowitz or whether he might have told the Superintendent that there was no "need" to put out this information about the increased costs at that time.

The witness opined that he never perceived that there was any deception being practiced in regard these cost estimates. The referendum for approval of a $23.4 million bond issue was, in his view, "absolutely" a "broad, amorphous plan." The funds did not have to be spent in the particular ways outlined in the Bulletin. If the cost of the Bradley Gardens component exceeded the $905,000 then the extra monies would have to be obtained from other sources of income.

Clara Navarrete, Vice President of the Board at the time of the pre-referendum meetings, testified that she was late in arriving at the September 12, meeting. However, she remembered that at that meeting, Board member Arthur Weigand reviewed the statements in the Bulletin and described its purpose. She remembers that Mr. Weigand used the list on page 3 as he did this. There was a blueprint displayed on an easel which was facing out toward the public. However, she claimed that she did not pay particular attention to this, never went up to it and commented that she never saw a square footage figure for Bradley Gardens (other than the original proposal of 4,000 square feet) until March, 1991. She never knew that the size of the Bradley Gardens project had grown beyond 4,000 square feet until March. At the September 17, meeting, Mr. Weigand followed the same format, but at this second meeting the presentation was shortened a bit. Dr. Horowitz, Mr. Jordan and Dr. Stephenson were all present at both of the meetings.

Mrs. Navarrete attended the PTO meeting at Bradley Gardens on the 26th. The Board had asked that some members of the Board and the administration visit the PTO and give it's members as much information as they could. There was no mention of the cost of the project at this meeting.

Mrs. Navarrete testified that during the summer of 1990, as the preliminary preparations for the referendum were ongoing, Dr. Horowitz had told her in passing that there might be a necessity to spend $3-400,000 hundred thousand dollars to move the boiler room at Bradley Gardens. She responded to this news, saying that it sounded like a reasonable cost, one which she believed the Board had already placed in it's surplus budget, at least to the amount of $120,000. As Mrs. Navarrete first recalled, this expense, and the need for it, were never discussed at the meetings held with the public in September. However, later in her testimony, Mrs. Navarrete stated that she did not recall whether or not the added expense for the boiler room move was mentioned at the public meeting of September 17. Skeletal minutes of the public meeting, (RBG-29), are not helpful as to the answer.[11] She also could not recall if she or the Board were told whether the $3-400,000 included the already set aside surplus of $120,000 for replacing the boiler. She personally saw the $3-400,000 as an added cost due to problems in the design phase of the project, but the Board had some money (the $120,000) set aside to offset this expense. The witness also acknowledged that she knew that there would have to be some additional square footage provided for the moved boiler room.

Arthur Weigand, who was elected to the Board of Education in April, 1989 and is a manager of business planning for Ingersoll-Rand, testified that he was present at the September 12 and 17 meetings. He gave a presentation at each meeting. When he spoke, he waved the Board Bulletin which had been sent out to the voters and which was available at the meetings and he specifically referred to page 3 and ran down the numbers, referring to the lower halves of pages 2 and 3 and mentioning the results of a positive or of a negative vote. To Weigand, the Bulletin was "the bible" regarding the referendum. In the 1989 referendum there had been confusion over the figures. Here, there was "one set of figures and that was it." There was no information conveyed to Mr. Weigand as to any increase in the projection of a cost for achieving parity at Bradley Gardens for $905,000. He had no idea as to the derivation of that figure and he had no real sense of the square footage involved in the project. His focus was always on the dollars involved. However, it is possible that he or someone at the meetings may have mentioned the square footage, although he has no specific recollection as to this. The only thing that registered with him as "firm" was the figure of $905,000. In fact, at the meeting on the 12th, he did not use the term "estimate" in his reference to the Bradley Gardens work or the $905,000 figure, because he did not know that the architects had not finished their work. He "only knew that they had not spent the money yet."

11 These only reflected that Dr. Horowitz spoke at each meeting as to the Bradley Gardens project, but the minutes give no details as to what he said.

William Tronolone, the Board President at the time of the referendum, confirmed the testimony of Arthur Weigand that Mr. Weigand had asked the public present at the September 12 meeting to follow along in the Bulletin. Mr. Jordan referred to a drawing, 1 foot by 2 feet, placed on a large placard with about 5 inches of the bare placard on each side of the drawing. He recalls no other reference to cost of the project, except what Mr. Weigand said in regard to the figures in the Bulletin. While the presentation made by the various speakers at the meeting on the 17th was shortened slightly at the suggestion of Mr. Sandler, Mr. Weigand again went through the charts.

When the cable television presentation was taped there was a script which was used (J-1), but it was edited for presentation. Although Dr. Horowitz spoke of the "extraordinary" communications between the committees who had worked on the various components of the plan and referred to the way in which the pieces "fit together," he never mentioned that the costs of the Bradley Gardens portion were anticipated to be higher than $905,000.

Mr. Tronolone and Dr. Horowitz were interviewed for an article which was published in the local weekly newspaper, The Messenger Gazette, in late September. In the course of that interview by reporter Steve Strunsky, the phrase used in reference to the cost of the Bradley Gardens work was reported as "at least $900,000." No reference was made to any specific higher cost or estimate of such. Indeed, Mr. Tronolone insisted that no mention was ever made to him by anyone, including Dr. Horowitz, of any increase over the figure of $905,000 at any time before the referendum, this even though after his return from vacation on July 29 until the date of the referendum he saw Dr. Horowitz frequently in person or spoke with him by telephone. The first that Mr. Tronolone heard of this was from Mrs. Navarrete in March, 1991.

On cross-examination, the witness explained that after the resolution was adopted on June 26, 1990, he believed that both architects, Jordan and Pease and Vitetta, were working with the district's School Administrator/Board Secretary, Dr. Peter Mazurak, within the confines of the authorized budget. He believed that if changes in that budget were required, those involved would come back to the Board. When he saw the footprint of the building displayed at the meetings in September, he sat there and "said to himself" that the $905,000 was buying the district a "nice product" and that he felt "very proud of it." He did not recall seeing any square footage reference.

Dr. Peter Mazurak, who retired from the employ of the Board of Education effective June 30,1991, after 25 years of service, was the Board's School Business Administrator since 1969 and the Board Secretary beginning in the early 1970's. Dr. Mazurak had played significant roles in regard to prior bond referendums and building projects, working with the architects and bonding counsel. In regard the referendum of October 2, 1990, Dr. Mazurak worked with Jordan & Pease on a contract between them and the Board, of which more will be said later. However, in regards to the pre-referendum period, Dr. Mazurak said that while he had heard of a possible escalation in the costs for the Bradley Gardens project, he did not have any knowledge as to any figures. He never heard any other amount than $905,000 prior to the referendum. As for whether any Board members knew anything about the escalation prior to October 2, the witness stated that although from some things said to him over time by Dr. Horowitz, he had assumed that Mrs. Navarrete had some such knowledge, he personally had no evidence that she, or any member, had such knowledge before the vote.

Dr. Mazurak acknowledged that he had a vague recollection of having seen a Jordan & Pease letter of July 18, 1990 from Linda Andreychik, that firm's business manager, which was accompanied by a document entitled, "Appendix No. 3" to the firm's "Standard Form of Agreement." This Appendix contained information as to the calculation of the fee for professional services which the firm would eventually charge. The standard language included the following:

> FEE SHALL BE BASED ON A PERCENTAGE OF CONSTRUCTION PER THE FOLLOWING FEE CHART:FIGURES WOULD BE PRORATED TO ACCOMMODATE THE ACTUAL CONSTRUCTION BUDGET.

Dr.Mazurak's recollection was that at the public meetings there was a discussion of the floor plan layout and elevations, but he could not "so much recall" any discussion of the physical size of the project.

The witness was questioned about the plans drawn for projects. He agreed that it is often necessary to change the plans as a result of State requirements.

Dr. Horowitz' management style was very "hands on" with regard to the business end of the operation. This was in contrast to other superintendents with whom Dr. Mazurak had worked. In addition, since Dr. Mazurak had already announced that he was retiring, the Superintendent was perhaps more involved. While everyone expects that the Superintendent of Schools know everything, this is "just not possible."

Dr. Horowitz testified that he was present at both of the public meetings and that there was some narrative by himself and possibly others as to the goals at Bradley Gardens and how they were to be met. Pablo Jordan had charts which he displayed and he spoke for about 5-10 minutes as to what the plans represented. There were two "mentions" of the 12,645 square feet, one being of the square footage for particular spaces. There was no reference that he recalled to the $905,000. He said nothing at these meetings, or on the cable TV presentation, concerning any change in the expected cost of the project.

The Superintendent spoke concerning the Planning Board meeting held on September 11, which he attended with Messrs. Jordan, Tronolone and Mrs. Navarrete, as well as Board Attorney Daniel Soriano. Mr. Soriano and the architects spoke, as did an environmental consultant. Mr. Jordan used a "footprint," display which Dr. Horowitz believed was the same as the one which was used at the public meetings. He believes that the size of the project was discussed, but there was no discussion as to the cost. Mr. Jordan mentioned to him that he had read in the newspaper that the Bradley Gardens project might come in at $905,000. He wanted to know "where do we stand with the public?" Dr. Horowitz told him not to lie and to tell the truth if the matter came up. It did not.

The Superintendent discussed his contacts with certain members of the Board in the pre-referendum period, contacts in which he contends that he in one fashion or another conveyed, or at least attempted to convey to them, and apparently to his thinking to the full Board, the fact that the original $905,000 estimate had been superseded by some new and greater estimate of the cost, or at least was most likely to be. These comments, conversations and suggestions occurred in August and early September.

As Dr. Horowitz recalled, in the period between August 1-31, he spoke to Clara Navarrete, a frequent visitor to his office, and showed her preliminary sketches of the project which he had received from Pablo Jordan. These showed the second corridor, a larger size all-purpose room, and the movement of the boiler room. Mrs. Navarrete looked at these plans and "liked what she saw." They discussed the boiler room "issue" as a "reasonable way of devoting another $.5 million as ...rationale for financing additional costs." He was "using her as a sounding board." She nodded and "seemed to feel this was a fair way." There was neither a suggestion from her or an offer or suggestion from her regarding sharing this information as to the changes in the plans and the increased costs with the other members of the Board. The Superintendent testified that in the course of these conversations with Mrs. Navarrete, he is "absolutely certain" that he told her of the cost estimate of $1.4 million, but less certain if he told her of the figure of $1.8 million, being only "reasonably certain" of this. He could not be sure whether at the time that he went over the plans with her the then current estimate of which he was aware was $1.4 or $1.8 million, but in reviewing the plans he told her of the $495,000 expense for the new boiler room, and she was "in agreement with the concept." He also asserted that prior to the referendum he told her that some of the referendum monies could be "reassigned to Bradley Gardens."

Dr. Horowitz did recall that he had spoken to Dr. Stephenson and had "apologized" to him regarding the need for the EFC to have an architect available to them during their deliberations, and he also recalled that he mentioned cost increases in the course of this conversation.

The witness stated that in early September he told Mrs. Navarrete that the increase was "even larger than the last time," that is, the last time he had revealed to her that the estimate had gone up from $905,000. He also believes that Mr. Tronolone asked him how he was "doing" with Mr. Jordan, and he then told Mr. Tronolone, the Board President, that the project might have to be bigger. This occurred just about at the time that the Board Bulletin had gone out to the voters.

As of the 13th or 14th of September, Dr. Horowitz was still "working" with the figure of $1.8 million for the estimate. He expressed his concern about this figure to Mr. Jordan. He was also concerned that the public might think that the cost of the project would actually be $905,000. He mentioned his concerns to both Dr. Mazurak and Dr. McGarry, and although he could not say exactly when these mentions occurred, they were before the referendum.

When Dr. Horowitz saw the faxed copy of the Project Cost Estimate Form on September 13th, and saw that the estimate had now grown to $2.459 million, he was quite concerned. The referendum was only 2 weeks hence. The plans had not yet gone to Trenton for approval. While Mr. Jordan gave him a lot of assurances that all of the calculations were on the high side and said that it was necessary to estimate "very high," the Superintendent was "concerned about the referendum." All of this "cemented his conclusion" that the Board should "just get approval to build." Then the Board could take another look at the project and determine how to proceed to completion.

Dr. Horowitz testified that he checked with bond counsel to determine if it would be legal to change the plans after the public approved the referendum. He learned that it would be, so long as the site and the educational goals were the same and would be met by any new plan. However, before the vote, he perceived that any changes that might be made at that late date might jeopardize the referendum. Here he said that he was speaking of its chances for success, not its legality.

As previously mentioned, Dr. Horowitz testified that at this time in the pre-referendum period, he had come to view the Jordan plan as only an option that the Board could follow. As the chief executive officer of the district, he was charged with the responsibility of implementing the Board's resolution. As part of this responsibility, Dr. Horowitz had concerns regarding the media centers for the elementary schools, which were intended to be a part of the referendum funded projects. The principals of the elementary schools had expressed a big concern with regard to the need for these, reflecting a general educational concern in the district. The plan had been to expand the libraries in each of the schools and to do so by adding perhaps 200-300 square feet to the libraries. The Vitetta Group was asked to look into this matter and Lisa Soulos of that firm was sent to examine the schools. Dr. Horowitz testified that he was informed by Ms. Soulos that the idea of adding this extra area to the libraries was not economically or architecturally reasonable. The firm recommended instead that additional shelving be purchased and arranged to improve the usable space in the libraries/media centers. Thus, Dr. Horowitz contended that he had become aware that the actual expense required for these centers would not be anywhere near to the $490,000 that the EFC had listed in its report. The Superintendent claimed that he sought documentation of this assessment from Ms. Soulos, but that it took many calls and a great deal of time to receive this. (In fact, a letter from Ms. Soulos, bearing a date of July 30,1991, was received in the Superintendent's office.) Dr. Horowitz was uncertain as to whether he had shared this information with Reverend Dr. Stephenson at the time he apologized to Dr. Stephenson in August, 1990. While he might have done so, he could not be sure that he had. At the same time, Dr. Horowitz testified that he did tell Dr. Stephenson "maybe in September" that the cost would be "far more than" $905,000.

As the date of the referendum approached, Dr. Horowitz was advised by Lisa Soulos that Dr. Macaluso would not approve the high school consolidation plans. This threw the Superintendent into a "panic." However, a meeting occurred soon thereafter and the plans were approved.

Dr. Horowitz related that prior to the referendum he had no definite knowledge of who on the Board of Education knew of the increased cost estimates. However, he felt that by his telling Mrs. Navarrete she would tell Mr. Tronolone. He had no "direct feeling" as to Reverend Dr. Stephenson. As for Mrs. Navarrete, the witness recalled that he showed her the plans for Bradley Gardens after he first saw them when they were brought to his office by Pablo Jordan about September 11, or shortly before that. As he recollected them, these were blueprints, on large rolls of paper, showing schematics of where the rooms were located. He met with Mrs. Navarrete in the conference room outside of his main office. He shared with her the information that the project would include not only the boiler room, but also the second corridor. This meeting was the culmination of at least six "communications" with Mrs. Navarrete which Dr. Horowitz claimed occurred during the summer of 1990, during which he discussed the size and/or cost of the project with her at least two or three times.

As for Mr. Tronolone, the Superintendent's best recollection was that he had mentioned to Tronolone that he was hearing from Mr. Jordan that the desires of the EFC could not all be designed as they had anticipated and that the plans called for a bigger addition than the committee had projected. He pinpointed this discussion as having occurred sometime in August, 1990. There was no mention of "dollars" during this talk. However, as Dr. Horowitz recalled, the talk was that the project would have to be "bigger and more expensive." The witness acknowledged that his recollection of the details of this contact with Mr. Tronolone was "not clear." When the Superintendent referred to his discussions of the size and/or cost increases with Dr. Stephenson and Mrs. Navarrete in his written statement rendered after the April 9, 1991 meeting with the Board, he did not mention anything as to this contact with Mr. Tronolone. He also told the Task Force that he "didn't inform the President of the Board." In explanation of these failures to mention this contact in the course of these attempts by him to reconstruct his communications to Board members in the pre-referendum period, the Doctor stated that at the time of these two incidents he had no "firm" memory of the matter, and that the "discussion" with Mr. Tronolone sounded "familiar" to him, although he had "no idea if he had informally told him (Mr. Tronolone). However, Dr. Horowitz asserted that as he now testified in the tenure hearing, he had a firm memory that while he did not communicate any of the information to the Board President "formally," that is, by way of memorandum or as part of the Board's agenda at its meetings or in the course of discussions as to the agenda with the President, he nevertheless did tell him "informally." As he has thought about the matter for fifteen months, the Doctor has been able to clarify this question as to his pre-referendum communication with Mr. Tronolone by reflecting on the way in which the Board "operated at that time." In fact, during the Stark & Stark deposition he stated that while he could not swear to the fact or the nature of such pre-referendum comments to Mr. Tronolone, he "assumes" that he did tell him "something based on the nature of the relationship." He never made any sort of "decision" either to notify or not to notify Mr. Tronolone. As for any discussions with any of the other Board members as to the cost ineffectiveness of the Adamsville office or library/media centers projects, he had no such contacts.

Reflecting on the pre-referendum situation, Dr. Horowitz conceded that his failure to formally advise the entire Board of the cost increases "may have been dumb." He was relying on the two Board members who "with 100% certainty" knew of the issue. Now, the Superintendent realizes that he should have "been covering (his) ass given the political blowup." In fact, as he put it, had he given the Board enough information, "we wouldn't be sitting here now," adding that at the time he thought that he was providing "enough."

On cross-examination, the witness clarified his statements as to what he might or might not have said to any Board members, especially Mrs. Navarrete, concerning the cost effectiveness question on which he was receiving advice from the Vitetta Group. He is not sure as to whether he imparted the news that the projects were not considered to be cost effective to any of the members, although he did mention to Mrs. Navarrete that additional funds would be available. He "might" have told Mrs. Navarrete or Dr. Stephenson and "in a general sense" Mr. Tronolone. While he is "absolutely certain" that this information was given to him before the referendum, he did say that it was after the referendum in his April 12, 1991 written statement to the Board. When confronted with this fact at the hearing, the witness agreed that "that's a contradiction" for which he admitted he had no explanation, adding only that that was his recollection at that time. He now recalls that "they" went out to the learning centers and the libraries and he believes that there was some feedback and some mention before the referendum. His testimony in the August 1, 1991 deposition was that there was already feedback from Vitetta in July, 1990 and that as to one of the elementary schools the proposal made "no sense at all." He also testified in the present hearing that he believes that he did mention the cost effectiveness issue to Dr. Stephenson in August, 1990.

Dr. Horowitz agreed that the Board Bulletin in no way conveyed to the voters any hint of the possibility that the library center project might be cost ineffective. As for the $905,000 figure, which was retained in the Bulletin despite his knowledge that the Bradley Gardens project could not be built for that cost as per the advice of Pablo Jordan, the witness recalled that when he saw the Project Cost Estimate Form drafted by Mr. Jordan and faxed to him on the 13th of September, he was "upset and angry." The estimate of $2.459 million was "fairly startling." However, despite this reaction, Dr. Horowitz did not share this information with the Board. At that time he felt that the Jordan designed project was "not necessarily" going to be the project that the Board would ultimately build. He believed that after the referendum "the matter could be taken care of." By this time, the Jordan plan was "theoretical" to him. He did not share the cost estimate of $2.459 million with the Board until March 18, 1991, at which time he provided a copy of the Project Cost Estimate Form to Mrs. Navarrete.

The witness spoke of the circumstance surrounding the query made by Reverend Dr. Stephenson to Mr. Jordan in September as to whether the Bradley Gardens project could be produced for $905,000. He could not remember whether this happened on the 12th or the 17th, but when Mr. Jordan expressed concern regarding the inquiry, Dr. Horowitz told him that he would give the Board information as to the cost. However, he did not provide them with the Project Cost Estimate Form until April, 1991.

Dr. Horowitz remembered that Dr. Mazurak had spoken to him regarding the boiler room expense at about the time that Mr. Jordan showed him plans which called for the second corridor. The money for the boiler was already in the surplus account.

POST-REFERENDUM EVENTS
OCTOBER, 1990-APRIL, 1991

Following passage of the bond referendum on October 2, the pace of events slowed. On October 17, 1990, Dr. Peter Mazurak received a typed version of RBG-40. According to his testimony, as of the date of the referendum Dr. Mazurak believed the cost of the Bradley Gardens project to be $905,000. He had not been involved in the drawings or the submission of documents to the DOE. When he reviewed the formula for the fee for the schematic drawings he saw that it was calculated at 8% of a contracted figure of $1,955,000. He saw the figure of $2,055,000 and understood this to represent the construction cost, which he had understood up to that point to be $905,000. He had no breakdown available to him to explain this new figure. He needed to see how the amount of the referendum, the $23.4 million, was broken down into its different components so that he could set up accounts for the purpose of making sure that no component was overspent, leaving too little money available for any of the other components. He went to Dr. Horowitz to find out this information. The Superintendent took a number out of his file. After this occurred, Dr. Mazurak discussed with Dr. Horowitz the need to discuss the escalating cost with the Board, telling his boss that he should probably do something to inform the Board. He asked Dr. Horowitz where there might be funds available to cover the additional costs. According to the witness, they spoke several times about this. However, the topic of the escalating costs was not brought up at the cabinet meetings, which were generally held on a weekly basis.

In his deposition of July 31, 1991, Dr. Mazurak spoke of his "unhappiness" regarding the Board not being told about the cost escalation and said that he told the Superintendent that if he had to pay the architect, it would "blow the whole thing out in the open." Dr. Mazurak saw it as his duty to tell Dr. Horowitz to tell the Board. He kept hoping the the matter would "momentarily be all straightened out." While he felt that he would be justified in making a partial payment to the architect, if he had to pay the whole amount, the Board would question him as to why the fee was so much. He explained the the normal procedure was to reserve the cost of the architect's fee by drawing a purchase order for that whole amount so as to protect that sum within the referendum funds. He felt that a purchase order drawn for the full amount of the Jordan & Pease fee, a fee calculation based upon the escalated cost estimate, would cause the Board to ask questions.

Dr. Mazurak said in his deposition that he never tried to "convince" the Superintendent to bring the subject of the increased costs to the Board, but only "suggested" it to him. He felt that this was the appropriate way to proceed, as Dr. Horowitz was his supervisor.

Dr. Mazurak never took it upon himself to personally advise the Board concerning the increased estimates. Each time that he raised the issue with Dr. Horowitz, the Superintendent gave him "plausible" answers, indicating to him that money to cover the difference could be had from other sources. He mentioned the use of surplus monies, but did not speak of specific amounts. He kept assuming that Dr. Horowitz would present the matter to the Board "shortly." Dr. Mazurak was scheduled to retire. He mentioned in his deposition that he was concerned that the Board would not be advised regarding the cost issue by the date of his retirement.

On December 17, 1990 a meeting was held at which some of the Board members had their first contact with the architect. The Board had expanded the Building and Grounds Committee to include those members of the High School Design and the EFC Committees. According to Board member Ray Kovonuk, this was the "first time there was any real certainty" as to the size of Bradley Gardens, although he did not recall any discussion at that meeting as to the square footage or the cost. The drawings shown were not entirely complete and there were some dimensions missing. Mr. Kovonuk was not able to tell the exact delineations of the plan. He gleaned nothing from the presentation to suggest the idea that there was any difference from the $905,000 figure.

Clara Navarrete attended the December 17 meeting and then gave a report to the Board at its December 18 meeting as to the results of the prior days meeting.[12] According to Mrs. Navarrete, the only discussion about cost which occurred at this December 17 meeting had to do with Mr. Jordan's review of options with respect to the roof and using a wood truss concept. Nothing was said regarding the overall cost of the Bradley Gardens work. Jordan presented unfinished sketches and elevations. The committee complimented him on the way the building would look after the work was completed.

Mrs. Navarrete, who holds a Bachelor's Degree in Electrical Engineering, recalled that she had leafed through the initial drawings and the elevations at the time of the December 17 meeting. The minutes of the meeting, PBG-55, reflect a discussion as to the need to move the boiler.

The witness reviewed a transcript of the December 18, 1990 Board meeting, a review which helped to refresh her recollection as to the events of that evening at least to "some extent." She "basically" reported what had gone on in the meeting of the night before, including the discussion about the wood trusses and the fact that the drawings made the project look "very pretty."

12 According to testimony, it was standard operating procedure for the Board to receive reports from it's committees. On December 18, Mrs. Navarrete presented a report to the Board on the Buildings and Grounds Committee meeting of the previous night.

Dr. Horowitz' recollection of the December 17 meeting was that the size of the project was discussed, as each page of the plan was reviewed. Mr. Kovonuk, Mrs. Navarrete and Dr. Stephenson were all present. Costs were discussed. A laymen on the EFC who was there said that the project was a lot bigger and asked if it would cost more. Dr. Horowitz responded that it was quite a bit bigger and that the cost was considerably more. He also noted that the Board had the option to decide how to fund the increased costs and that it had some alternate sources available.

The Superintendent also addressed himself to Dr. Mazurak's testimony about his suggestions to the Superintendent that he, Dr. Horowitz, tell the Board about the cost overrun. He denied that "suggestions" were made "in that form." He did acknowledge that Dr. Mazurak did speak to him about the Jordan & Pease fee request predicated on a cost of more than $905,000, raising a concern about how to pay this fee. There was no discussion of making a small, up-front payment so as to avoid having to present the entire bill to the Board. Dr. Horowitz did not go to the Board at that time, but instead went to the Board committee on December 17th. He could not recall the date of Dr. Mazurak's comments, which he thought were probably made in late 1990. Once again referring to the Jordan plans, the Superintendent testified that he never "had any faith in that number."

The issue of the actual cost of the Bradley Gardens project and the questions about the activities of the Superintendent in regard to this matter came to a head beginning in mid-March, 1991. It was then that a request for Board approval of transfers from surplus caused questions to be asked of the Superintendent.

In March, the Board of Education was faced with the task of crafting a school budget in the face of amendments made by the Legislature to the Quality Education Act ("QEA"), N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-1 to -36. Among the significant aspects of those amendments were requirements concerning the way in which Boards of Education could deal with surplus funds. The Act "capped" the amount of general free balance (surplus) that a district could carry. The effect of this limitation was to allow Boards to either transfer the amount which they held in surplus which constituted between 5%-10% of the 1990-91 net budget to the 1991-92 budget, or to transfer that amount to the current expense budget for 1990-91.

On March 12, 1991, the Board met to discuss its 1991-92 budget. A document, RBG-92, presented at the meeting, detailed the surplus purportedly existing as of that date. A second document, entitled, "Transfers," was also presented. This called for the Board to transfer a number of specified sums previously allocated to certain specified projects in the Current Expense Surplus to the Current Expense account for the 1990-91 budget. These proposed transfers were:

1. Asbestos removal-district-wide	$100,000.00
2. Renovations for barrier-free facilities-district-wide	$150,000.00
3. Relocation of boiler-Bradley Gardens School	$495,000.00
4. Reroofing John F. Kennedy School	$333,000.00
5. Reroofing portions of Hillside School	$305,000.00
TOTAL:	$1,383,000.00

These reports, presented to the Board at the meeting of the 12th, brought an inquiry from Clara Navarrete as to the necessity of utilizing these surplus funds. When Mrs. Navarrete objected to the approval of these transfers at the Board's meeting of March 18, Dr. Horowitz testified that he found her action "odd," considering his prior conversation with her as to the use of funds for the Bradley Gardens overrun. He stated that he whispered to Dr. McGarry, asking him rhetorically whether she did not remember the need for funds for Bradley Gardens. Dr. McGarry shrugged, and when the Superintendent made the same inquiry to Mr. Tronolone, he responded in the same fashion. A note was passed to Mrs. Navarrete, who nodded in a noncommittal way. After the meeting, Mrs. Navarrete asked Dr. Horowitz to refresh her recollection on the matter and to give her a memorandum. Dr. Horowitz explained at the hearing that he was not at that time intending to recommend any immediate transfers to the Board. He was simply sharing his thoughts with the Board about what might happen if the bids ever went out for the Bradley Gardens project.

As part of the memorandum which he prepared for Mrs. Navarrete, Dr. Horowitz appended the Project Cost Estimate Form, which had been filed with the Bureau on September 20, 1990. This was the first time that he had presented anyone on the Board with any document or other reference to the estimate of $2.459 million.

Clara Navarrete confirmed that the presentation of the information regarding transfers had surprised and perplexed her. She recalled at the time that she had seen previous surplus reports, which she remembered as having lower amounts listed for at least some of the projects, such as the JFK School roof. In addition, the then current budget already had a reserve of $600,000 for contingency projects if the referendum had failed. When Dr. Horowitz passed the note to her, asking if she remembered the concept of the West High School roof money being used for the overage at Bradley Gardens, she did not have any such recollection. She was only aware of the matter of the boiler work. The entire matter made no sense to her and she was "quite puzzled." After the meeting Dr. Horowitz seemed quite confused about why she raised the questions regarding the roof, etc., and she told him that she did not recall any conversation regarding the West roof funds and the idea of using them for something else. She asked him for a memorandum on the subject. In response, he supplied RBG-43, which she received on the 19th. The Project Cost Estimate Form was attached. This was a document which she had never seen before. She insisted at the hearing that she had no knowledge up to that date that the cost estimate was $2.459 million. Dr. Horowitz had never mentioned this to the Board before, nor had he said anything about taking specified bond monies and transferring them to the Bradley Gardens project.

After Mrs. Navarrete received the memorandum from Dr. Horowitz, she called Mr. Tronolone and asked him if he had ever heard anything about the cost increase. (It should be noted that Mrs. Navarrete acknowledged that the idea of an additional cost of $495,000 in regards to the boiler move did not surprise her.) Her request to Mr. Tronolone was based in part on the fact that as the Board President he would, in the normal course of events, have seen and signed the form. Mr. Tronolone told her that he did not know what she was talking about. She showed him a copy of the memo and they resolved that they had better find out what had happened.

On March 22, a dinner was held in honor of the retiring Dr. Peter Mazurak. Mrs. Navarrete approached Pablo Jordan at the dinner and told him that she wanted to ask him some questions. A meeting with the architect was arranged, which took place on April 6, after her return from vacation.

Prior to the April 6 meeting William Tronolone met with Dr. Horowitz on or about April 2, at which time he asked the Superintendent if he could shed any light on what was happening. Dr. Horowitz gave him a "whole rundown," telling Mr. Tronolone that the project had grown because of Code requirements and that the Board could "try to pay (the extra costs) from different pieces of the referendum." At this meeting, Mr. Tronolone did not ask Dr. Horowitz why he had not previously disclosed this information to the Board.

On April 6, a Saturday, Mrs. Navarrete and Mr. Tronolone met with Mr. Jordan at his office for a period of about five hours. This meeting was held without any notice to the full Board. As the participants in this meeting each noted in their testimony, as the meeting progressed, Pablo Jordan was perplexed by the apparent lack of information as to the situation at Bradley Gardens. He testified that he said to her "don't tell me that you haven't seen the packet sent to the State Department of Education...I signed for you." According to Mrs. Navarrete, he told her that she knew that he was signing her name to the documents, RBG-34, and showed her the letter of September 20, 1990 which had accompanied the various documents submitted to the Bureau. She noticed that her name was misspelled.

William Tronolone confirmed Mrs. Navarrete's testimony as to the April 6 meeting. The then president of the Board described himself as in "total shock," as he found out "all this had happened before the referendum."

On April 9, the Board met in closed session following its regular meeting. Dr. Horowitz and Mr. Jordan were present at the Board's request, as was Daniel Soriano, the Board attorney. Mr. Tronolone recalled that during this session Mr. Jordan was asked whether he had been directed to sign the September 20 letter to the Bureau by Dr. Horowitz. As the witness recalled, at that point Mr. Jordan hesitated and then finally said, "No." When Dr. Horowitz was asked why he had made no report to the Board regarding the escalating cost estimates, he responded, "No one asked." This testimony was corroborated by Pablo Jordan and by Clara Navarrete. She recalled that the question posed to Mr. Jordan as to the signatures was whether Dr. Horowitz had "authorized" him to sign, but she was not certain whether the question was posed as to one or both of the signatures. She said that in response to this query, Mr. Jordan looked at Dr. Horowitz, hesitated and then said, "No." As she understood Mr. Jordan's response, he signed the letter for the sake of expediency and thought that she knew of the signature. She believed that Mr. Jordan acted thinking that he had permission to do so. In further testimony, Mrs. Navarrete said that in her July 31, 1991 deposition, she had stated that the "indications" given at this meeting by Mr. Jordan were that he had been "directed" by Dr. Horowitz.

Arthur Weigand, a Board member in April, 1990, recalled that he first heard about the overrun on the late afternoon of the 6th of April, when he received a phone call from Mrs. Navarrete's husband asking if he could come over to the Navarrete's home. When he arrived, he found Mrs. Navarrete and Mr. Tronolone. He described these two as appearing like "death warmed over." He was told of the revelations of the meeting with Pablo Jordan, and Mr. Tronolone remarked that "I don't believe it, I'm in touch with that man just about every day." Mrs. Navarrete could not believe that anyone would sign her name. The two "appeared to need to talk to someone."

In a memorandum which he filed with the Board of Education on April 12, RBG-46, Dr. Horowitz stated that he had never given Mr. Jordan any authorization to sign the names on the September 20 letter. He also said that he had told Mrs. Navarrete of the fact that the $905,000 was insufficient in the summer of 1990.

After the meeting held on April 9, the Board met on the 17th of April to decide what it wanted to do in the face of the revelations made at that meeting. A determination was made to issue a letter of reprimand to the Superintendent and to freeze his salary. According to Mr. Tronolone's testimony, the Board directed him to present the letter to Dr. Horowitz and to advise him that this was the action of a unanimous Board. He was to remind the Superintendent that he had previously told the Board that if they as a body lost confidence in him that he would look for another job. In addition, the Board decided to form a Task Force to look into the Bradley Gardens matter. Mr. Tronolone was told to tell Dr. Horowitz that the Task Force was not engaged in a "witch hunt." As Mr. Tronolone related his understanding of the Task Force's mission in his hearing testimony, the purpose of the group was to look at the project and see what about the project could be scaled down. Any personnel matters that seemed to be involved would be presented to Mr. Soriano for whatever action was appropriate. Mr. Tronolone testified that he related all of this to Dr. Horowitz. He also told the Superintendent that it was the position of the Board that he, Dr. Horowitz, should leave. He also told the Doctor that the letter of reprimand was for the failure to let the Board know what was happening, but that he would ask the Board to remove the letter from the Superintendent's file if Dr. Horowitz had a problem in finding a job. Since the Task Force was to be composed of three district employees, Mr. Tronolone asked Dr. Horowitz to write letters to these three asking that they work on the Task Force.

The letter of reprimand, which is the subject of much testimony and legal analysis as to it's effect upon any additional actions against Dr. Horowitz, read in part:

> Dear Dr. Horowitz:
>
>
> The Board found that although you knew since last September that the estimated cost of the Bradley Gardens addition had increased to over two and one-half times the initial estimate, you withheld this information from the Board and permitted the project architect to proceed to finalize construction plans. You also modified initial building program proposals and made decisions regarding the allocation of referendum and reserve funds without the knowledge or authorization of the Board.
>
> Your actions have usurped the authority of the Board, and you are hereby formally reprimanded by the Board and denied any salary increase for 1991.
>
> In the future, the Board shall expect you to exercise better judgment regarding the parameters of your authority as Superintendent and to respect the prerogatives of the Board. Improved communications between you and the Board shall be carried out through the Board President.

As the issue of the purpose and the meaning of the letter of reprimand and it's possible affect upon the ability of the Board to take any further action against Dr. Horowitz is a central feature of his defense against those tenure charges that relate to the referendum and the Bradley Gardens affair, the testimony of those who spoke to their understandings as to these matters will be explored. As for Mr. Tronolone, he testified that it was never the intention of the Board that the letter of reprimand serve as the "final disposition" of the Board regarding Dr. Horowitz. Thus, as new information was developed, the Board was eventually to take a further look at Dr. Horowitz' conduct and was ultimately to certify tenure charges against him.

Mrs. Navarrete testified that the Board's action in reprimanding the Superintendent and in withholding his increment was taken in the absence of any sworn statements from Pablo Jordan. The letter made no reference to the signing of her name (or that of Dr. Horowitz) on the September 20 letter without her permission or authorization (an action which the Board was ultimately to charge had been a forgery in which Dr. Horowitz was in some fashion involved), but instead was only addressed to the withholding of information from the Board. She echoed the thought that the Board had decided that it was time that there be a parting of the ways between the Board and the Superintendent.

Mr. Weigand noted that after the meeting which he had with Mr. Tronolone and Mrs. Navarrete on the afternoon of April 6, they were concerned and uncertain as to how to proceed. As he put it, they were "neophytes and needed help." At the April 17, meeting, the Board members discussed the letter of reprimand, which had been drafted by Mr. Soriano. The attorney had advised the Board of the spectrum of possible actions at the Board's closed session of April 9, after Dr. Horowitz and Mr. Tronolone were excused.

Mr. Weigand explained that the Board did not decide that the letter of reprimand was to be the final action to be taken. The Board wanted more facts. The purpose of the Task Force was to find out how the Bradley Gardens project had gotten "off track" and how to get it "on track." At the time, the Board was not yet concerned with the issue of whether the bond issue might be void, an issue which was later brought up by private individuals at Board meetings.

Albert Tornatore, Esq., a member of the Board until April, 1992, was called as a witness by Dr. Horowitz. According to Mr. Tornatore, the reasons for the reprimand and the freeze were "multiple." The Superintendent should have told the Board of the "significantly higher" estimates. The message was that it was essential to "bring us on board." However, the reprimand had "nothing" to do with the $905,000. The project looked as if it was going to come in at a figure that was "much, much higher than expected." While it was "obvious(ly) not" going to be $905,000, this recognition of a likely increase over the $905,000 did not go so far as to encompass a figure of $2 million. The idea was that Dr. Horowitz had made a blunder, and now it was time to straighten it out and move on with the Bradley Gardens project. His understanding at the time of the issuance of the letter of reprimand was that it was a step in this direction and that it was meant to be the end of any discipline of Dr. Horowitz. It is Mr. Tornatore's belief that at that time the Board was going to put the matter to rest, but that the then Board majority wanted to go on a "start the hunt." "Witch hunts" were discussed many times in closed sessions.

Mr. Tornatore explained that he never viewed the $905,000 as an actual figure for the cost of the Bradley Gardens School portion of the bond issue. He said that the numbers in the various reports were estimates put together in the early to mid 1980's, and "all knew these not to be the numbers." The district could not "be that exact 1 1/2 years before putting the project out to bid." He felt that Dr. Horowitz had simply tried to deal with the issue without getting the Board involved. Had the Board been aware of the estimate of over $2 million, the Board could have then decided "what to do with these numbers."

Christine Henderson Rose, the current president of the Board and a member of the body in April, 1991, testified that she was in favor of the reprimand because Dr. Horowitz had failed to keep the Board apprised of the costs of Bradley Gardens. This failure had to result in a consequence, so as to convey the message to the Superintendent that he needed to keep the Board "much better informed." Mrs. Rose felt "betrayed" by the action of Dr. Horowitz. She had previously believed that she and Dr. Horowitz had talked about important matters, and she felt that they had a "trusting" and a "good relationship." However, on what she characterized as a "rather large issue," her "trust had been betrayed."

Mrs. Rose felt personally that the main issue as to the Superintendent's failure of communication with the Board was in regard to the pre-referendum period. The Board Bulletin "was not an issue." Mrs. Rose herself had seen the 12,000 plus square foot figure on the schematic presented back at the September public meetings, but she said that there was no actual discussion of the size until April 9. (There is no indication that she raised any question in September as to the increase and its possible effect on the cost estimate).

As Reverend Dr. Stephenson recalled the circumstances, at the April 9 meeting (to which he arrived late) the Board told Messrs. Horowitz and Jordan that the purpose of the Task Force was simply to ascertain the facts. The decision to issue the letter to Dr. Horowitz was undertaken in respect to what had happened, to chastise in order to settle the matter. The discussion was geared to what action the Board should take in light of what Dr. Horowitz had failed to do. There was no discussion about any future action one way or another.

The Reverend pointed out that the Board members were incensed because the failure of Dr. Horowitz to advise them of the increased estimates, either before or after the referendum, prevented them from giving consideration to questions and alternatives which the increase in the cost of the renovation Bradley Gardens would have raised, such as whether the Board wanted to spend that much money on that building. The Board was also concerned about any delay in the completion of the project that might result from the failure to keep the Board aware. As for himself, the witness did feel that Dr. Horowitz had responsibly shown the Board how it could go about the task of covering the increase in expense. Overall, he did not view what had occurred as an attempt to deceive anyone.

In the period following the issuance of the letter of reprimand to Dr. Horowitz, as the Task Force and then Stark & Stark undertook their respective reviews of the Bradley Gardens situation, the Board of Education entered into talks with Jordan & Pease. These eventually led to a settlement of the bill which that firm had rendered for its architectural services in the preparation of the plans for the school. The original amount sought by Jordan & Pease was $156,400, plus expenses. (RBG-40). An initial payment had been made in early March, 1991 in the amount of $28,488.82. As a result of the negotiations in late spring, an additional payment of $61,049.83 was agreed upon, for a total of $89,538.65. In Mr. Tronolone's words, the plans drawn up by the firm were "never used." According to Mrs. Navarrete, the reason for this was because of the need to scale down the project.

Questions as to the actual extent and timing of the contractual arrangements between the Board and Jordan & Pease were addressed by Dr. Peter Mazurak. During his testimony, he identified RBG-84, a February 7, 1991 document which he asserted was the first contract between the two. As Dr. Mazurak recalled, and as the evidence shows, prior to that date Jordan & Pease performed work for the Board on this project. Dr. Mazurak explained that the Board was trying to standardize all of its contracts with architects. Dr. Mazurak had retired by the time the Board negotiated the settlement with Jordan & Pease in June, 1991 and he played no part therein.

Clara Navarrete testified that she was unaware of the existence of any document which authorized Jordan & Pease to proceed with any work on Bradley Gardens, prior to the February 7, 1991 contract. She did find out that there was an unsigned contract which was different than the one which the Board had. She was not sure if she had ever seen PBG-3, the "Addendum," transmitted by Jordan and Pease in July, 1990.

With the end of June and the decision of the Board to appoint Stark & Stark to further examine the whole Bradley Gardens affair, the most active period of the incident ended, with the matter then progressing to the stage of reports, counter statements, charges, votes and ultimately a certification of tenure charges to the Commissioner. Some additional matters related to the Bradley Gardens portion of those charges will be considered in the course of the analysis and discussion below. However, one particular legal issue raised by Dr. Horowitz does necessitate a review of some further testimony. Specifically, Dr. Horowitz contends that the Boards' issuance of the April 19, 1991 letter of reprimand and the lose of increment prevents the Board from taking any further disciplinary action against him. While the legal implications of this argument will be considered below, counsel did explore with several of the Board's witnesses questions as to the nature of the information that was available to the Board at the time of this April action and what information it thereafter came into possession of.

Clara Navarrete, who authored the first set of tenure charges which the Board failed to certify after she recused herself from voting on them and the Board split 4-4, listed the information which she perceived to be newly available to the Board after the issuance of the Stark & Stark report on September 13, 1991.

According to her, the Board had no sworn statements available to it prior to that date, and certainly not in April when the reprimand was issued. The Board was also unaware of the fact that Dr. Horowitz had supplied the architect with Superintendent's office stationary before the date of the preparation of the draft of the letter ultimately issued to the Bureau on September 20, 1990, bearing the apparent signatures of Dr. Horowitz and Mrs. Navarrete. Of course, the Board did not have the benefit of the conversations held with various individuals by the Task Force, and she also claimed that in April the Board did not yet know of the early information transmitted to Dr. Horowitz as to the cost estimate of nearly $2.5 million. Finally, she argued that the Board did not know in April about Dr. Mazurak's attempt to get Dr. Horowitz to advise the Board that he, Dr. Horowitz, knew that the cost for the project had significantly escalated.

Mrs. Navarrete also pointed out that subsequent to the issuance of the letter of reprimand the Board became concerned about the validity of the whole bond issue. Additionally, according to Mrs. Navarrete the absence of a contract with Jordan & Pease until February, 1991 was not known to the Board at the time that the reprimand was issued. The eventual inability to use the Jordan & Pease plans, and the consequent loss of approximately $100,000, was also a factor in regard to the damage done by Dr. Horowitz, which was not appreciated in April, 1991.

Arthur Weigand and William Tronolone confirmed Mrs. Navarrete's view that at the time of the reprimand the Board was not yet focused upon the question of the possibility that the referendum results might be invalidated. They also echoed her statements as to the lack of sworn testimony and the absence of Dr. Mazurak's information regarding his concerns as expressed to the Superintendent.

Albert Tornatore expressed his view that while the Board did discuss the validity of the bond issue, this type of problem, that is, the need to find extra funds for projects, was one which the Board dealt with "all the time." While he acknowledged that the Board did not know of the blank letterhead supplied to the architect at the time of the reprimand, he asserted that Dr. Mazurak's concerns were known in January.

THE NON-BRADLEY GARDENS CHARGES
DR. HOROWITZ' CONDUCT ON MARCH 19, 1991

The first of the tenure charges which are not related to the referendum and the Bradley Gardens project relates to allegations that he engaged in conduct unbecoming his position as a public employee when he supposedly engaged in a noisy confrontation with Irving Putter, a citizen who has been significantly involved in school matters, including the referendum. Mr. Putter is a retired resident of Martinsville, and was formerly employed as a senior research director for Merck and Company. He possesses a B.S. in Chemistry. He previously served as Chairman of the the Zoning Board. He described himself as "having a long history of promoting better schools."

Mr. Putter was not involved in the pre-referendum activities regarding the February, 1989 referendum. However, concerned as he was over the "demise" of public education, he began to attend Board meetings thereafter. He became an alternate member of the High School Design Committee.

On March 19, 1991, Mr. Putter attended the public Board meeting. The purpose of the meeting was to explain the proposed budget to the public. Mr. Putter had "strong feelings about it." He had written a statement and during the public comment section of the meeting he was reading it aloud. In the statement, the witness made references to Dr. Horowitz as "misleading the Board...violating the trust" and questioned how the district could instill values in the students in the face of such conduct by it's superintendent. Dr. Horowitz stood up and began to say that Mr. Putter was "out of order, " that any discussion of personnel at the open meeting was against Board policy. Mr. Putter regarded this comment as wrong, as he believed that he had a First Amendment right to speak. He continued with his statement, the Board President having allowed him to do so. When the meeting was over, he was located on the right side of the auditorium. Dr. Horowitz approached him, "very, very agitated." The Superintendent called Mr. Putter a "demagogue" and asked him "are you crazy, insane, why are you doing these things." Mr. Putter did not believe that his statement deserved such a response. Dr. Horowitz' comments included a couple of "invectives."

Mr. Putter went to the men's room. After he emerged, he saw that Dr. Horowitz was speaking with Mr. Strunsky, a local newspaper reporter. As Mr. Putter walked by them, he heard his name. He knew that Dr. Horowitz "liked to speak to the press." Mr. Putter had the impression that Dr. Horowitz was trying to negate the statement that Mr. Putter had made to the Board and the public during the meeting. He interjected himself into the conversation, saying "Richard, stop trying to change the story...You're trying to put a spin on." An argument ensued over savings, the Superintendent saying that Mr. Putter did not know "what you're saying." Mr. Strunsky left, but the confrontation continued. Dr. Horowitz told Mr. Putter, "You know you're a no good shit." Dr. Horowitz continued comments included such language as "bastard" and "f--k." Mr. Putter responded that if Dr. Horowitz "could not stand the heat he should get out of the kitchen." He insisted that he had a right to criticize. Dr. Horowitz got "angrier and angrier." Mr. Putter told the Superintendent that "the best thing he could do for the district is to leave it." As this exchange continued, Dr. Horowitz was approximately 20 feet from Mr. Putter. He then "dashed" toward Mr. Putter, with his fist raised, and came to within a foot of Mr. Putter. He then turned away and walked out. The incident was described by the witness as a "yelling, shouting match."

On cross-examination, Mr. Putter recalled that when Dr. Horowitz interrupted him during the meeting and objected to the nature of the remarks, Board President Tronolone asked him to refrain from personal attacks. After the evening of the 19th, Mr. Putter and Dr. Horowitz chatted at Board meetings and in hallways on a number of occasions. The incident was never brought up again between them. As for others, the witness believed that he may have discussed the matter with individual board members prior to the issuance of the tenure charges by Dr. Ryan in January, 1992.

On or about December 8, 1991, Mr. Putter met with Dr. Horowitz and a Mr. Vaucher. These two men were described by Mr. Putter as "very concerned" about what was happening in the district. Some years before Dr. Horowitz had told Mr. Putter that if he became a divisive element in the district he would leave it. Messrs. Vaucher and Putter felt that Dr. Horowitz had done a "large disservice" to the district. Mr. Putter had read all of the depositions taken by Stark & Stark. He showed Dr. Horowitz a "tenure charge," which he had prepared after the Board failed to certify the tenure charges filed by Mrs. Navarrete in October. He told Dr.

Horowitz that he would not file the charge if the Board and Dr. Horowitz cooperated in an attempt to get an agreement which would remove the Superintendent from the district. Mr. Putter informed each of the Board members individually that he had drawn up tenure charges and that he had meet with Dr. Horowitz. The witness described his goal as to "get what was right for the kids." The "assault" by Dr. Horowitz, that is, the March 19th incident, was included in these charges.

Dr. Horowitz recalled the remarks made by Mr. Putter at the meeting on March 19 as being beyond the bonds of normal criticism and more in the nature of a personal attack. He said this to Mr. Tronolone. When he saw Mr. Putter in the hallway he "challenged" Mr.Putter, calling him a "demagogue." He told him that he respected Putter's right to disagree, but that he did not appreciate his remarks that he, Dr. Horowitz, was not "fit to be around children." This was a criticism of his integrity.

The witness denied that he swore during his confrontation with Mr. Putter, something that he would have remembered had he done it. He "absolutely" did not approach him with his fists raised, but he does talk with his hands. He did storm out of the door. He does not believe that he called the man any names, but he "probably" raised his voice to Putter. There were numerous interactions with Mr. Putter after that night and the incident was never brought up. In summary, Dr. Horowitz remarked that he "blew it" with regard to this incident.

Albert Tornatore testified that he witnessed the "argument" between Mr. Putter and Dr. Horowitz on March 19th. He was "right there," with Mr. Putter 3-4 feet to his left and Dr. Horowitz 15 feet to his right. He also recalled the probable presence of others, including a reporter. He remembers that Mr. Putter was badgering the Superintendent and Dr. Horowitz "lost his cool." He does not recall that Dr. Horowitz cursed, but he did hear the "demagogue" remark and recalls that Dr. Horowitz got very loud and then stormed out of the building. Dr. Horowitz was waving his arms as he spoke, but he did not raise his fists toward Mr. Putter. When Dr. Horowitz left, Mr. Putter seemed "quite pleased," as if he was trying to get Dr. Horowitz' goat and had succeeded.

On cross-examination, the witness acknowledged that in his view Mr. Putter was the aggressor in this incident, which arose perhaps a couple of hours after the statement by Mr. Putter during the Board meeting, a statement which the witness recalled as including references which he understood to be aimed at the Superintendent and which referred to him as "dishonest" and "deceitful." Mr. Tornatore also agreed that there might have been an earlier portion to this confrontation, a portion which he did not witness.

After the confrontation ended with Dr. Horowitz storming out of the building, Mr. Tornatore caught up with him in the parking lot. He told the Doctor that he should not let people "get to him."

This incident may have been brought up by Mr. Tronolone at a subsequent meeting at which the Board was evaluating Dr. Horowitz. Mr. Tornatore does not recall saying at that meeting that the incident was "worse than I said."

DR. HOROWITZ' CONDUCT ON OCTOBER 31, 1991

A second of the non-Bradley Gardens related tenure charges deals with a purported incident of October 31, 1991. On that night the Board met at the Wade Building and dealt with the report which was being issued in regards to the Bradley Gardens affair. During a break in the session, Dr. Michael Ryan, a member of the Board, went to the men's room. He observed Dr. Horowitz, standing in the hallway and gesturing while speaking "loudly." Dr. Horowitz was making negative references to the Board. This apparently continued, for as the Board resumed its meeting, Board President Tronolone asked what was going on out in the hall. Dr. Ryan responded "Richard," referring to Dr. Horowitz as the cause of the noise which was continuing out in the hallway and could be heard in the meeting room. Dr. Ryan described the hallway as adjacent to the meeting room.

William Tronolone recalled the incident and testified that as the meeting was progressing he heard a lot of noise and recognized Dr. Horowitz' voice. He was not able to make out what the Superintendent was saying. This noise continued, disrupting Mr. Tronolone in his role as the chair and the Board's meeting, "for a good ten minutes." Mr. Tronolone had to ask Dr. McGarry to close the door to the meeting room. According to the witness, this was the only time that it was necessary to close the door during a meeting, unless the session was a closed one. After the request was made to have the door closed, Dr. Horowitz returned to the meeting.

Dr. Horowitz addressed himself to this charge during his testimony. He recalled that during a break in the meeting he was going to the copy room to make some copies of the rebuttal which he had prepared in response to the Board's report. There was a great deal of activity that evening, a large audience was present, and the hallway at the Wade Building was fairly narrow. Dr. Horowitz could only say that it was quite common for it to be necessary to close the doors in the course of Board meetings due to outside noise. He heard nothing about any problem that night regarding noise that was purportedly related to him, until he saw the matter included in the January tenure charges.

DR. HOROWITZ' TESTIMONY AT AN OAL HEARING ON OCTOBER 7, 1990

The last of the non-Bradley Gardens charges deals with some testimony that Dr. Horowitz gave in a hearing held in the Office of Administrative Law before Honorable Daniel B. McKeown on October 7, 1990.[13] The hearing before Judge McKeown was in regard to a challenge to the validity of an election held in the district on April 4, 1989. More specifically, two witnesses called by the Board in the present hearing had charged that Dr. Horowitz had given false testimony under oath in the October 7, 1990 hearing with regard to when and whether he had seen write-in votes at a particular time on the evening of April 4.

Albert C. Bareis, a retired employee of Allied Signal Corporation, testified that in the election held on April 4, 1989, there were three seats on the Board which were being contested. Three incumbents, Dr. Block, Jean Crabtree and Mr. Tornatore, were running, as were write-in candidates Arthur Weigand, Ray Kovonuk and a person named Tilak. The first two of these three were elected. Of the incumbents only Mr. Tornatore was reelected. Mr. Bareis held the position of treasurer for the write-in candidates. Stickers were being used as the means for "writing-in" the names of these individuals on the pre-printed ballot.

13 A transcript of the relevant portion of the testimony is Exhibit RBG-99.

On the night of the election, Mr. Bareis was at the Crim School, which was a polling place. He had been present that day when the polls first opened and then was sometimes on duty and sometimes off duty, apparently as an observer. He was also there at the close of the polls at 9 P.M. He wished to observe the counting of the votes, especially the write-ins, those actually written or those were a sticker had been used. Shortly after 9 P.M. the witness saw poll workers taking the votes from the paper rolls, which were 8 feet or more long. Dr. Horowitz was present at this time.

As Mr. Bareis recalled the scene, one group of poll workers were tallying the votes from the machine for the registered candidates. Another group was counting the rolls, apparently the write-in votes. As this was occurring, the witness remembered that Dr. Horowitz came up and had a brief conversation with he and Mr. Tilak. Dr. Horowitz asked Tilak if he was a write-in candidate. After this conversation, Mr. Bareis remained at the polling location until all of the rolls had been counted and the rolls had been loaded in boxes and placed in the trunk of Election Judge Beverly Eaton's car for transport to the Administration Building. This took a couple of hours. During this post-closing period, Dr. Horowitz had been present from shortly after 9 P.M., but Mr. Bareis could not say exactly when the Superintendent had left, except that he was there until at least the preliminary count at Crim had indicated that the incumbents had won. This preliminary count had been made by about 1/2 to 3/4's of a hour after the close of the polls. According to the witness, the "numbers were there for anyone who wanted to see" them tabulated on the election sheet. However, no statement was made at Crim School as to who won the election.

According to Mr. Bareis, his complaint against Dr. Horowitz arises from the fact that when the Superintendent testified before Judge McKeown he stated that he had not seen a write-in paper roll on the night of the election until he saw one in the Administration Building later during the evening of the election or the next morning. (RBG-99). Mr. Bareis recollection of Dr. Horowitz' presence at the Crim School during the immediate post-poll closing caused Mr. Bareis and another campaign worker, Jean Moll, to conclude that Dr. Horowitz had perjured himself before Judge McKeown. However, Mr. Bareis admitted that neither he nor Jean Moll had brought the matter to the attention of the School Board or it's counsel, either at the time of the Superintendent's testimony or thereafter. As for the circumstances of his finally advising anyone connected with the Board of the matter, Mr. Bareis explained that Somerset County had proposed that it place a garage near the Vocational-Technical School and the County Library and that this had incensed residents of Bridgewater. Mr. Bareis attended a meeting of the Freeholders and sat next to Dr. Ryan. Mr. Bareis had been reading in the newspapers about the turmoil regarding Bradley Gardens and he expressed concern to Dr. Ryan, who he apparently knew to be a Board member, as to whether the truth regarding Bradley Gardens would ever be found out. He added that there was another incident that had him concerned. He related the story regarding the testimony to Mr. Ryan. This ultimately led to the preparation of R-2, a notarized statement signed by both Mr. Bareis and Mrs. Moll in which they asserted that Dr. Horowitz "may have committed perjury" in his testimony before Judge McKeown.

Mrs. Jean E. Moll of Martinsville, who described herself as a certified Somerset County election worker, testified that on the night of the April 4, 1989 election she was not working as an election worker, but was present at the polls at Crim School. She had been involved in the election as a worker on behalf of candidates running therein. She confirmed that she had seen Dr. Horowitz' at the time that she and her daughter entered the polling area as the polls closed. She first saw the Superintendent near a phone in the hall. When she entered the polling location, she observed that workers had locked the machines and were in the process of cranking out the paper rolls and taking out the write-in rolls. She saw the write-in stickers on the rolls. The election judge, Beverly Eaton, tore the rolls in order to place them in manila envelopes, but they would not fit in the envelopes. According to the witness, there had to be a couple of hundred stickers.

Mrs. Moll confirmed the accuracy of R-2, in which she became involved when Mr. Bareis called her a few days before January 7, 1992. She was not present at the hearing before Judge McKeown. She does recall that she had seen Dr. Horowitz in Crim School for about 20 minutes on the night of the election after the polls closed. According to Mrs. Moll, the stickers used for writing in the names of the slate of write-in candidates on whose behalf she had worked were white, with black printing, and these were "readily noticeable."

Dr. Horowitz testified that on April 4, after the polls had closed, he recalled being in Mrs. Long's area in the administration office located in the Wade Building. He had stopped at Crim School earlier that day in order to say hello to the head custodian. While at the school, he was "in and out" of the polling area. The polls were still open when he arrived. They closed perhaps 15 minutes later. He thinks that he recalls seeing the machines opened. Although he had been at elections before, he could not recall if he had ever before seen a machine open. He had no "specific recollection" of whether he had seen the rolls out of the machines that night and had no recall one way or the other as to whether he saw the write-in stickers while at Crim.

Dr. Horowitz opined that he now had a better recollection of the events on the night of this election than he may have had at the time that he testified before Judge McKeown "because of the tenure charge." He recalls a discussion about paper ripping and an inability to get a count. Overall, the witness stated that he may have seen the rolls and the stickers at Crim, probably saw something at Crim, but he could not be certain.

In his testimony before Judge McKeown, Dr. Horowitz had stated that he had seen a write-in sheet in Mrs. Long's office at the Board headquarters and when asked if this was the first time that he had seen a write-in sheet he responded, "yes, I believe so." RBG-99, pg. 81. On cross-examination by Mr. Soriano, he was asked again if it was his testimony that he had never seen "such a sheet" until "at or about the election in April of 89." He responded, "In my entire life experience, I can't say for certain, but one that I can know right away that that's an election sheet."

DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS
DISCIPLINE OF A TENURED EMPLOYEE

N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 provides the standards applicable to a school board's attempt to take disciplinary action against a tenured employee.

> No person shall be dismissed or reduced in compensation,
>
> (a) if he is or shall be under tenure of office, position or employment during good behavior and efficiency in the public school system of the state,or except for inefficiency, incapacity, unbecoming conduct, or other just cause, ...

These standards are applicable to proceedings brought under the Tenure Act to remove or otherwise discipline a Superintendent of Schools. Tenure is no longer available to incoming superintendents, but those in office at the time of the recent legislative changes in the Tenure Act, such as Dr. Horowitz, have a grandfathered status and are thus protected by the provisions of the above quoted statute.

ARE THE BRADLEY GARDENS RELATED TENURE CHARGES BARRED BY THE DOCTRINE OF EQUITABLE ESTOPPEL DUE TO THE BOARD'S PRIOR ISSUANCE OF A LETTER OF REPRIMAND?

Dr. Horowitz contends that the issuance of the letter of reprimand in April, 1991 prevents the Board from taking any further action against him in regards to any matter related to the referendum and the Bradley Gardens matter. In support of this argument counsel for Dr. Horowitz invokes the doctrine of equitable estoppel, arguing that once the Board chose to discipline Dr. Horowitz for matters arising from the referendum, the imposition of additional discipline for the same events would be inequitable.[14] As counsel argues this position, he contends that the Board did not have any new information after April 19 which could justify it's decision to pursue tenure charges. Counsel suggests that the Board knew in April that it felt that Dr. Horowitz had failed to communicate to it information as to the increased cost estimate and that whatever the precise wording of the later tenure charges, the Board is seeking in those charges simply to repunish the Superintendent for the same thing, that is, the lack of communication which was the very subject matter of the prior reprimand.

In addition to the contention that the charges dealt with in the reprimand are in fact the same as those addressed in the present tenure charges, Dr. Horowitz argues that the Board assured him at the time that it delivered the reprimand to him, through the person of Mr. Tronolone, that it had completed any action of a 14 Originally, counsel contended that the bar arose from the principles of res judicata, but traditionally that doctrine has been held to apply to instances of prior judicial action, of which there was none here.

disciplinary nature in regards to his conduct vis a vis Bradley Gardens. Therefore any further action against him should be barred, since he relied upon this representation and he should not now be called upon to answer to a further set of allegations arising from the same incident.

In response to this argument, the Board asserts that the letter of reprimand, issued as it was at the very beginning of the Board's examination of the lengthy and complex series of events related to the referendum and Bradley Gardens, was a limited response, dealing with limited facts and a limited scope of wrongdoing on the Superintendent's part. It was never meant by the Board to necessarily be its last word on the propriety of Dr. Horowitz' actions, and was not reasonably relied upon as such by him. In addition, on a more broad-based level, the Board argues that in matters of significant public interest and concern, such as the conduct of the chief executive officer of a school district, a matter which involves the exercise of essential governmental functions, the doctrine of equitable estoppel should be and is in fact rarely invoked as a bar to governmental action.

Traditionally, the use of equitable estoppel, if it is to be invoked to shield a party from what might otherwise be imposed upon that party, must be based upon a demonstration that the party against whom the doctrine is invoked made a knowing and intentional misrepresentation of material significance to the party seeking to invoke the estoppel and that that party reasonably relied upon that misrepresentation to it's detriment. O'Malley v. Department of Energy, 109 N.J. 309 (1987). While this doctrine is generally applicable in civil proceedings and is also applicable in the administrative context, the Courts have long held that as towards governmental bodies the doctrine has a far more limited applicability. Thus, "[e]quitable estoppel is rarely invoked against a governmental entity." Vogt v. Borough of Belmar, 14 N.J. 195, 205 (1954). The nature of the conduct in which the governmental body is engaged in a particular instance where a party seeks to invoke the doctrine against that body is of especial significance, for while even as a general concept the government is rarely estopped, where the function involved is an "essential governmental function(s)" the Vogt Court held that estoppel is even less favored. An estoppel will lie against a governmental body only "to prevent manifest wrong and injustice and where it would not hinder or prejudice essential government functions." In re Allstate Insurance, 179 N.J. Super. 581, 583 (App. Div. 1981).

That the Board of Education's examination of the circumstances surrounding conduct of a public referendum on a major bonding proposal and the conduct of it's chief executive officer in regards to that referendum and it's associated subsequent events is a matter in which the Board is engaged in an essential government function, can hardly be disputed. Whatever the "political" views of the individual members on the subject or on the matter of the Superintendent, the review of what happened, how and why the lines of communication faltered, of any possible criminal wrongdoing, and of how to straighten out the resulting problems, as well as questions as to how these might relate to the ongoing relationship with the Superintendent, are all matters of vital interest and concern to a school district. That the Board had a public responsibility to look into the matter, even if only to see how to best deal with the escalated costs and size of the Bradley Gardens project, can also not really be debated. Thus, it is fair to say that the Board, in its investigation of the entire affair, was engaged in the conduct of the sort of essential function in the context of which the successful invocation of the doctrine of equitable estoppel would be an almost extraordinary legal event.

The standards which the courts have established for the determination of whether an equitable estoppel will lie against a governmental body require that there be apparent a manifest injustice which will be prevented by imposition of the estoppel. In the present case, the respondent apparently contends that the injustice which any further disciplinary action arising from the circumstances of the Bradley Gardens matter will work against him is the addition of further punishment on top of that already imposed by the Board, punishment which he argues would be imposed in violation of the Board's word as conveyed to him that his culpability, such as it was, for the mistakes, misjudgments and errors involved in the incident had been addressed once and for all. The questions which arise therefore are whether such representations were actually made and whether, even if they were, allowing the Board to take further action(more accurately allowing the Commissioner to do so) would be of such a degree of wrong as to constitute manifest injustice.

The letter of reprimand advised Dr. Horowitz that he was being sanctioned for his failure to advise the Board of information which he knew about "since last September" concerning the increase in the estimated cost of Bradley Gardens and his permitting the architect "to finalize construction plans." It also referred to his having "modified initial building program proposals and having made decisions" in respect to allocation of monies from the referendum and surplus without Board authorization or it having knowledge of the matters. The letter makes no reference to such matters as the circumstances that surrounded the signing of the September 20 letter by Pablo Jordan, a matter of which the Board clearly had at least preliminary details at the time of the April 18 vote to issue the reprimand, or to such matters as the question of whether the Superintendent ignored the advice of Dr. Mazurak, whether he misled the voters in regard to the Board Bulletin and at the open meetings and on the cable TV program, at which times he addressed the public directly on the Bradley Gardens project, and whether his knowledge as to the increase pre-dated September, so as to raise even greater concern as to the degree and extent to which the Superintendent misled the Board and the public in the very early stages of the pre-referendum period. These were all matters of which the Board was at the time of the letter either ignorant or possessed of only sketchy knowledge. The letter itself does not in any way suggest that it is necessarily the final word of the Board as to the actions of it's Superintendent. While it does tell Dr. Horowitz what will be expected of him in the future, it cannot be read as a manifestly conclusive verdict on every aspect of Dr. Horowitz' conduct in the past in connection with the Bradley Gardens incident. Indeed, while there is some real dispute amongst the individual Board members as to the charge given to the Task Force, it would seem that the Superintendent, and all those otherwise involved with the whole affair, could not reasonably have assumed that no further disciplinary action of any sort could occur no matter what the information revealed by the Task Force might be. Assurances that the Task Force was not engaged in a "witch hunt," while quite reasonably understood as indicating that that group was not out to target the Superintendent, cannot reasonably be understood to have suggested that he was to be insulated from any further action whatsoever. The very fact that the Task Force was put into place by the Board at the very same time as it reprimanded the Superintendent suggests most strongly that the members of the Board were still sufficiently uninformed on the details of the whole Bradley Gardens affair as to preclude any sense of absolute finality in it's action against the Superintendent.

Statements made at hearing by some of the members that they believed at the time that the letter of reprimand was invested with such a degree of finality must be taken with some caution, for at the time the Board was just beginning to learn of the full parameters and meanings of the matter. It seems highly doubtful that any of the members had cause then and there to pause and consider whether the letter was an absolutely final, and legally preclusive, act. Had the members at the time been asked whether their letter was meant to address each and every act of wrongdoing by the Superintendent, they might well have paused at such an assurance and waited to act until at least the Task Force reported, when as testified to, any personnel matters would have been turned over to Mr. Soriano.

The Board's action, and it's intention, must also be considered in the light of the testimony of several of the members, including such as Mrs. Rose, who appears to generally be a supporter of Dr. Horowitz, that the information that they received had shocked them and had caused a feeling of hurt, a loss of trust and a generally depressive reaction. This Board, on learning of the first revelations of withheld information, acted quickly, perhaps even precipitously so, to set the Superintendent in his place and put him on warning as to his future conduct. It simply makes little sense to conclude that the Board actually meant to foreclose any other possible actions against him for whatever else he might be found to have done wrong in this context.

Any suggestion that Dr. Horowitz relied upon supposed promises of finality by Mr. Tronolone and as a result withheld any attempt to petition the Commissioner to review the propriety of the reprimand must likewise be considered with considerable doubt. Dr. Horowitz has readily accepted upon himself a significant degree of blame for the lack of communication and advice to the Board as a body in respect to the bond referendum. While he certainly has never agreed with the Board's assertions that his conduct had any criminal overtones or that he was anywhere as culpable as the tenure charges suggest, that he saw the fault of his conduct at least to the extent of the gap in communication is really hard to now dispute. It is rather difficult to believe that he would have seriously considered an appeal to the Commissioner from the reprimand and the increment withholding, given his own realization that his conduct was not without blemish, and the fact that the letter did not purport to suggest the sort of "criminal" conduct later alleged in the tenure charges. To now argue that he was dissuaded from such an appeal by the "assurances" of Mr. Tronolone that he was free from concern about any additional action against him is simply not a persuasive position.

As noted above, the test for invoking an estoppel is a conjunctive one. Even where it may be argued that a manifest injustice may occur, the law has recognized that precluding a governmental unit from engaging in otherwise appropriate action is a very serious matter. Government must be permitted to act so as to carry out it's assigned functions, and anything that would stand in the way of such action must be both a matter of extreme importance in itself and a matter which does not threaten the essential operation of government. Here, where the issue is the propriety of the conduct of the chief school administrator in matters of significant financial concern and where questions of honesty and integrity are raised, such preclusion, and it's possible impact were it to require that this Board continue to employ a seriously flawed superintendent, is inappropriate.

A related concept that also speaks in favor of permitting the Board to pursue the tenure charges is that which allows administrative agencies to reconsider and reopen matters previously considered. In the absence of statutory prohibitions, an administrative agency may "reopen or...modify and...rehear orders previously entered by it." In re Trantino Parole Application, 89 N.J. 347, 364 (1982). While there are obviously equitable limitations to this power, and "...sound discretion reflecting due diligence, and ... good and sufficient cause" must be demonstrated, Trap Rock Industries, Inc. v Sagner, 133 N.J. Super. 99, 110 (App. Div. 1975), aff'd, 69 N.J. 599 (1976), under the facts of this case, where the Board acted quickly in the face of a revelation which shocked a broad range of the membership and where it then first undertook to investigate and where the matter is of significant public concern, and in the absence of any reasonable understanding of finality, further review and action by the Board is not offensive to principles of administrative repose. Indeed, one of the important, although certainly not exclusive, factors to be considered in regards to the issue of whether the agency can revisit the matter is the thoroughness and the exhaustiveness of the agency's initial review. In re Trantino, supra. at 364-65; Ruvoldt v. Nolan, 63 N.J. 171 (1973). Certainly, the Board's consideration of the whole Bradley Gardens affair was not even remotely exhaustive at the time it voted to issue the reprimand and withhold the increment.

Respondent's reliance on Backer v. Board of Education of the Township of Roxbury, 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 441, in support of the use of equitable estoppel in the present case is unpersuasive. There, the Commissioner found that the superintendent had placed in writing a determination that there would be no further disciplinary action taken in respect to the incident in question, so long as there was no reoccurrence of the problems specified in a prior letter of reprimand. No such event occurred. The Board's decision to seek to take further action was apparently prompted by a separate incident of apparent insubordination. Here, there was no such representation of finality. In addition, the entire scope of the rather complex affair had not even begun to be examined when the Board issued the letter of reprimand. The full range of misdeeds which the Board ultimately perceived to have been committed by it's superintendent were not necessarily evident at the time that the Board issued the reprimand and withholding.

While the above discussion of the applicability of equitable estoppel as a bar to the tenure charges leads to the conclusion that the Board should not be estopped, the conclusion does not in any sense suggest either that the Board has proven any of the charges or, that if it has, that the appropriate sanction for the violations proven is necessarily any more severe than the punishment already meted out in April, 1991. Those determinations must now be addressed.

THE BRADLEY GARDENS RELATED TENURE CHARGES

Charge I and Charges V-XV relate to the referendum and the Bradley Gardens matter. Of these, the bulk, represented by #'s V- XIII, deal with the information withholding and forgery allegations. As a prelude to the consideration of the specific charges, several general comments and conclusions can be stated. The determination of the specifics will largely flow from these findings.

The preliminary conception of the EFC regarding the need for changes at the Bradley Gardens School was formulated by a committee which operated in the absence of any expert guidance as to the actual architectural consequences of it's perceived plan. The intent of the committee was to bring the school to a state of parity with the district's other elementary schools, and in this regard Dr. Horowitz looked to the Crim School as a guide for what was needed at Bradley Gardens.

While members of the committee did express some concern to the Superintendent and the Board President about the need for architectural guidance during the course of the committee deliberations, for reasons which are unclear, this assistance was not provided. The failure to provide this assistance appears to have been an error in judgment and Dr. Horowitz acknowledged this fact when he apologized to Reverend Dr. Stephenson. This error may well have led to some serious misconceptions about what the physical ramifications of the committee's plans were.

The result of the committee's unaided decisions was to pass on to the Steering Committee a plan which was assigned a dollar amount for completion which was derived from a formula which was borrowed by Dr. Horowitz from the Vitetta Group's work on the High School, a formula which produced the infamous $905,000 figure, which was then incorporated into the Steering Committee's report. I FIND that the $905,000 figure, derived as it was without professional input by an architect who had reviewed the committee's work and the implications thereof, was never a realistic assessment of the likely cost of the Bradley Gardens project. It was instead a rough estimate, one which unfortunately became incorporated in reports and in Board communications, most significantly the Board Bulletin, without any indication as to its actual uncertainty. This figure, which some witnesses have testified always seemed to them as no more than an estimate, and a rough one at that, and which other witnesses have testified was to them a very real, meaningful figure upon which they placed real reliance, was never qualified in either of the committee's reports or the subsequent Board sponsored Bulletin as being the kind of initial assessment, prepared and arrived at without architectural review, which it in fact was. In the sense that the entire preliminary consideration of the project was done without the kind of professional, expert review which might well have better informed those working on the reports and might have led to a more realistic assessment of real costs, the early process was flawed, and this flaw clearly, although I would suggest, not inevitably, resulted in false understandings, assumptions and positions even before Pablo Jordan and Richard Horowitz first met to discuss the project in mid-June, 1990.

At the first meeting between Superintendent Horowitz and architect Jordan on June 14, the architect was presented with at least the general concept of the Bradley Gardens project, as it was conceived by the EFC and Dr. Horowitz. There is no evidence that at that point Mr. Jordan gave Dr. Horowitz any reason to be concerned that the cost of the project would be much in excess of the $905,000. No evidence suggests that Mr. Jordan expressed or felt any concern about the cost estimate at the time, but it must also be conceded that at that point he himself may not yet have begun to focus upon the cost factors or the full ramifications of the proposal. See, Jordan answers to Interrogatories, RBG-77, Question #6, Answer at pg. 3a.

The reason why anyone would appreciate the likely prospect that the actual cost would exceed the figure of $905,000 is in itself an obvious one. It seems very difficult to imagine that any person with any degree of common knowledge in regard to construction of large structures would assume that there would not be some inflation of the original estimate. Thus, Dr. Horowitz and Mr. Jordan probably both appreciated at the time of their first meeting that the cost when the project was completed was not likely to be exactly $905,000. However, I FIND that nothing which occurred at the June meeting alerted the Superintendent to the idea that their would be a significant, much less an exponential, growth in the cost estimate.

As Dr. Horowitz testified, I FIND that his first real indication of a large growth in the cost estimate occurred when Pablo Jordan reported to him in July that the boiler room had to be moved and that a second corridor was necessary. Mr. Jordan's determination that Code requirements necessitated changes in the original conception of what needed to be done to accomplish the committee's goal of bringing the school to parity was made in and around the early part of July. Thereafter, as the summer continued, I FIND in accordance with Dr. Horowitz' testimony that he learned from Mr. Jordan that the cost estimate, which had grown to $1.4 million with the needed second corridor and the boiler room move, had again grown to $1.8 million. I FIND that it was this figure which Dr. Horowitz was aware of during the period when the Board Bulletin was being drafted by Mr. Sandler and the Ad Hoc Committee, with Dr. Horowitz having seen and approved the draft that was to proceed to the printer and be prepared for public distribution. This $1.8 million figure was to last as the estimate until the fax transmittal of the Project Cost Estimate Form to Dr. Horowitz on September 12. I FIND that at that time, for the first time, the Superintendent learned of the growth of the estimate to $2.459 million.

As noted, the Doctor knew at the time of the preparation of the Bulletin that the architect working on the plans for the Board was estimating the cost of the project at a figure nearly double that of the original estimate presented to the Board. I FIND that despite this knowledge Dr. Horowitz did not tell the Committee about his knowledge. Instead, he kept to himself the knowledge that the estimate of $905,000 was no longer even remotely a "ball park figure," telling Mr. Sandler only that there would be an increase, an "overrun," without specifying the extent thereof. I FIND that the Superintendent decided on his own not to share any information as to the newer estimates with the Committee, which included both Board and lay members. His reasoning for this decision, the "lack of hard information," hardly appears to justify his decision. The determination of how and if to present information to the public as to the estimated costs of the Bradley Gardens project and how to portray to the public the relationship of that cost to and as a part of the entire $23.4 million bond issue was not the Superintendent's to make alone. The very purpose of the Ad Hoc Committee was to work on the best way to publicize the bond referendum to the public so as to provide it with the best and most accurate information from which the public could decide on how to vote. As was clearly noted in the testimony of several witnesses, this task, and in fact the whole bond issue, was undertaken by the Committee, and by the Board, in an atmosphere colored by the well publicized concerns as to the credibility of information emanating from the Board in respect to the 1989 referendum. Given this very evident and important concern to assure the public that it could rely upon the data put forth by the Board to the greatest degree possible, the choice as to how to explain the cost estimates, and how to deal with the "softness" of the data, was clearly and rightfully that of the Ad Hoc Committee, and ultimately of the Board, not that of the Superintendent acting alone.

While Dr. Horowitz was learning of the increase in the cost estimate during the summer of 1990, I FIND that he began to share limited information as to the likelihood of increases with several persons. He told Clara Navarrete that the boiler would have to be moved, mentioning the figure of $3-400,000 for that work. As Dr. Horowitz himself stated, at the time that he told her of the need for this additional expense, the cost estimate which he had received word of may have already grown to $1.8 million, exceeding the amount of the increase to which he made Mrs. Navarrete privy by some $400,000. Yet, the Doctor did not suggest that he had told Mrs. Navarrete of this even higher estimate in August when he told her of the boiler room move. According to him, this information, concerning an even higher expense, was mentioned to her in early September. However, I FIND that his recollection as to the mention of an "even greater estimate" is at best hazy and not to be relied upon.

In addition to his comments to Mrs. Navarrete, such as they were, Dr. Horowitz says that he made mention to Mr. Tronolone of an increased cost at about the time the Board Bulletin went out to the public, that is, about September 12. This was the time just before the first of the public meetings. Mr. Tronolone denied that he had any knowledge of any increase before the referendum. While Mrs. Navarrete's level of interest and her apparent curiosity may have led Dr. Horowitz to show her sketches and to mention the boiler room issue to her in August, Dr. Horowitz' recollection that he passed on information to Mr. Tronolone as to an increase in response to a casual remark by Mr. Tronolone as to how he was "doing" seems far less reliable. I FIND that he did not tell Board President Tronolone of the possibility of increases prior to the referendum.

As for Reverend Dr. Stephenson, as the Board itself recognized at the time of its report, Dr. Stephenson did have some degree of information that the costs were rising after Dr. Horowitz offered his "apology" for not providing the EFC with architectural consultation. This occurred in August. Dr. Stephenson agrees with this fact, while both he and Dr. Horowitz are uncertain about the full contents of their discussion, particularly in regard to the possibility that the topic of the inefficiency of portions of the referendum projects was discussed.

It must be emphasized in regard to these findings as to the Superintendent's communication of cost estimate increases to two Board members in the pre-public meeting, pre-referendum stage, that they cannot, and should not, be considered as in any way serving as a form of notice to the Board as a whole that the $905,000 was a dead issue. Casual mentions to a minority of members is not formal notice to the Board. While the exact form which any "official" communication to the Board that the figure for the project was at the minimum reasonably likely to grow to a considerable degree may not be a matter of any importance, the fact of such an "official" notice is a matter of real, and significant, importance. A senior public official such as a school superintendent cannot share significant information with some "select" members of the body to whom he reports and then try to claim that the full body has knowledge of the information by some form of osmosis, or that he assumed that the "privileged" members had passed on the information, even in the absence of any request by him that they do so. No such request was made here.

Dr. Horowitz told the Task Force that he wasn't "worried" about the information regarding the increases in estimated cost, because Stephenson and Navarrete knew. "That's the way superintendents think." RBG 111, pg. 37. He continued

> But I have two key people on the Board with different sides of the aisle so to speak, who both know about this, that's fine, I didn't keep it all to myself. No one raised the red flag. I know what I got to do administratively, I got to get that damn referendum passed, that's number one for the community, we got to get Bradley Gardens built... we got to find money that's where my interest was.

The difficulty with the sentiments expressed in this revealing statement is that the simple reference to these two "key" people was not any assurance that the other "key" people, that is, the rest of the members of the Board, would learn of what was going on. Admittedly, Boards and superintendents work out relationships with regard to their communications and procedures. However, a superintendent must take into account the specific circumstances of a situation in determining exactly how to deal with the Board on any given matter. Here, given the nature of the public concerns regarding accuracy, the Board's obvious stated interest and concern in addressing this public concern, the rapid and significant increase in estimated cost and the superintendent's own acknowledgement as to his uncertainty regarding what numbers he had mentioned to these two "key" people, as well as his admission that these references came in discussions that were "more just conversations" (RBG-111, pg. 7), I see nothing about the fact that Stephenson and Navarrete knew "something" which lessens Dr. Horowitz' culpability to any significant degree.

Dr. Horowitz entered the period of the public presentations regarding the bond issue with full knowledge that the cost estimate had risen to $2.459 million. Even though he had not actually seen the faxed copy of the Project Cost Estimate Form prior to the meeting on September 12, nevertheless, he clearly had knowledge that that figure, a figure which "shocked" him, was on the Form by the time that he appeared at the second public meeting on September 17, and then later on when he appeared on the cable TV program.[15] What is of course even more significant than his mere knowledge of the increase is the fact that his attention to the entire cost matter was focused on the issue by Pablo Jordan's query to him in regard to the note from Dr. Stephenson. Here was a Board member directly questioning the architect, who had been in constant contact with Dr. Horowitz, as to the significance, and the viability, of the $905,000. If anything should have alerted Dr. Horowitz to the necessity of addressing himself to the Board as a collective body as to the new cost information that he possessed, this inquiry, which he became aware of when Mr. Jordan pointedly asked him how to handle it, should have been the warning alarm. Yet, despite this specific inquiry directly questioning the issue of the reality of the original cost estimate before the referendum and at a time when the Board could still have considered how to deal with the matter, Dr. Horowitz chose to do nothing, telling Mr. Jordan that he would deal with the matter. The testimony of both men that Dr. Horowitz counseled Mr. Jordan not to lie if asked about the estimate, while believable in itself, nevertheless does nothing at all to relieve the sense that here, most pointedly and clearly, the Superintendent took it upon himself to deny to the Board information concerning a vital matter of financial concern, a matter directly related to a public referendum soon to be held, a matter that the Board surely had every right to know about. Additionally, Dr. Horowitz appears never to have advised the whole Board of the questions which he said had arisen regarding the viability of the proposed media centers and other aspects of the proposed projects. Once again, this failure of communication, which is really a withholding of material information, had the definite potential of depriving the Board of the possibility of dealing with the information pre-referendum. What is more, the voters, particularly those who had an interest in the affected schools, may have been mislead as to the benefits that the bond issue could offer them, and this could easily have resulted in persons voting without having a realistic sense of what they were voting for.

15 In fact, he told the Task Force that when he received the fax of the Project Cost Estimate Form on September 13 he called Jordan and said, "Pablo, last time you told me $1.7-$1.8, what the hell is this $2.459? This is out of sight." RBG 111, pg. 3.

In his testimony, Dr. Horowitz seemingly sought to excuse, or at least to explain, his conduct at this time as flowing in part from his "perception" that the Jordan & Pease plan was no longer necessarily the plan that the Board would ultimately use and that therefore the cost estimate regarding that plan was no longer of much significance. Apparently, the theory is that if the Superintendent no longer viewed the plan as viable, he could, on his own, decide that it was not important for the Board to know information directly related to that "irrelevant" plan. Of course, at the time that Dr. Horowitz was purportedly deciding that the Jordan & Pease plan was of such unlikely significance, the Board had not been clued in to the Superintendent's doubts. If in fact this was a reason for Dr. Horowitz' decision of how to deal with the Stephenson inquiry, such a decision was an arrogant usurpation of the Board's role. While the Superintendent may have been the primary point person in regards to the day to day dealings with the Bradley Gardens matter and the architect, he was not the final authority, and in the case of such essential matters as the projected cost of the project and the news of a very significant increase therein, he was surely wrong in thinking that his doubts as to the likelihood of using the Jordan plan were a reason for not sharing his knowledge with the Board, especially after the query by Dr. Stephenson.[16]

While Dr. Horowitz professed his uncertainties regarding the matter of whether the Board would actually be using the Jordan plan and tied this to his conduct in the pre-referendum period, more specifically in September, I am not at all convinced that he was really considering this as a factor in his decisions as to what to tell anyone at that time. From the record, there is considerable reason to believe that he did not really see the question of funding the additional costs for Bradley Gardens as that much of a problem. In light of this, while he certainly may have quite legitimately felt that some alterations in the details of the Jordan plan might be appropriate, it seems less likely that he was really motivated at his time in respect to his decisions on the question of what to tell the Board by this matter of the unlikelihood of using the basic Jordan plan. Most especially, I doubt strongly that this played a real role in the decision as to how to respond to Dr. Stephenson's inquiry. This is not to say that Dr. Horowitz' testimony in this hearing as to his thoughts at the time was false. He may now believe that he was less committed to, or more uncertain about, the ultimate usefulness of the Jordan plan than he really was at the time. It is clear that he now understands that he made some very significant errors of judgment at the time. It may well be that his thoughts and recollections as to the exact matters he was thinking about at the time has been colored to a degree by his attempt to justify the course he took, while not necessarily attempting to argue that he did nothing wrong. Regardless, I FIND that he was not as motivated by these uncertainties as he now claims.

16 In regard to this, it is important to also note Dr. Horowitz' expressed views on the theoretical nature of the project during this period of time, See, RBG 111, pg. 15 and his view on his role as the person with the responsibility to "get that done" in regard to resolving facility problems at Bradley Gardens, RBG 111, pg. 6 (lengthy answer).

Another basis for Dr. Horowitz' "defense" rests upon the concept that the vote on October 2, 1990 was actually only a vote to approve or to disapprove a $24.5 million bond issue, and that the details of the breakdown of that total authorized amount into the constituent projects which together made up the total package was neither offered to the voters as a part of the referendum question adopted by the Board in August, nor was it a vital feature of the pre-referendum information offered to the voters as an informational base from which they could, with assurance, draw so that they could cast an informed ballot. In this conception, it mattered little how the approved total was ultimately carved up, and if the information offered to the public by such means as the Board Bulletin and the open public forums was inaccurate, it did not matter very much. Since the Board was not bound to actually spend each and every dollar in the exact fashion which was stated in the report of the Steering Committee as adopted by the full Board on June 26, and since even the submissions to the Bureau were not so binding that the Board could not revise it's plans for the money, any "harm" which could possibly have occurred as a result of the withholding or consequent misrepresenting of information from Board and/or public is of little or no consequence.

The difficulty with the idea that it was the total amount of the package that mattered and not how the sums contained therein were apportioned is that it overlooks such fundamental concepts as truthfulness and integrity, trust and fairness. While the Board might well have ultimately deemed it appropriate and necessary to change the exact spending estimates and actual expenditures, as it prepared for the referendum, the Board, which is an agency and a servant of the public, was duty bound to play fair with it's constituency. It had an obligation to give the potential voters of the district as true a picture as it possessed of both the positives and the negatives of the proposed plan. This important, even fundamental, role and obligation was heightened to an even greater degree by the events of the previous referendum and the subsequent furor over the questions as to the Board's fulfillment of this commitment to honesty and accuracy in that instance. The Board, possessed of knowledge that some of the proposals in the adopted report could not likely be completed, or were in fact not needed as proposed, would have certainly been obligated to share this information with the public in a manner that would preserve to the Board sufficient flexibility so as to permit it to carry out as many of the objectives of the bond proposal as possible. Deprived of existing information on this front, the Board was in no position to fulfill its obligation. The theory that all that mattered was the sanctity of the $24.5 million and not the accuracy or reliability or truthfulness of the constituents simply does not wash.

The last and perhaps most troubling issue concerning the pre- referendum period relates to the signing of Mrs. Navarrete's name to the September 20 letter to the Bureau and the uncertainties of whether Mr. Jordan signed the name at the "direction" or by "authorization" of Dr. Horowitz, or instead acted totally on his own. First, I FIND no significant evidence that the actions of Dr. Horowitz and Mr. Jordan, under any of the various suggested scenarios, were motivated by any concern other than that of the need to file the required papers in Trenton prior to the referendum in order to gain the necessary approval.[17] Any decisions made were made without any idea of seeking to circumvent a review of the papers by Mrs. Navarrete or any of the members of the Board, particularly without any attempt to prevent their review of the Project Cost Estimate Form with it's estimated cost of $2.459 million.

17 Interestingly, the August 14 letter from Mr. Jordan which listed the documents required to be submitted to the Bureau does not list the certification. PBG 5.

Initially, I FIND that Pablo Jordan faxed the Project Cost Estimate Form to Dr. Horowitz along with the other paperwork on September 12. Dr. Horowitz first saw it on September 13. Dr. Horowitz was extremely upset at the estimate of $2.459 million for Bradley Gardens. However, he did not suggest to Mr. Jordan that the forms not be filed. Mr. Jordan, who was quite concerned at the rapid approach of the referendum and who had worked on the project through the summer under a rushed schedule, then prepared to actually file the forms in advance of a meeting with Dr. Macaluso at the Bureau. He was aware of the letter prepared by the Vitetta Group in July. It was in form the exact letter which needed to be filed with the documents in September. It would have made much sense to simply copy the body of the letter had the information in that letter been a fully accurate statement of the actions of the school board, which in regard to the implication that the Board had in fact approved a cost estimate of $2.459 million it was clearly not. However, once the decision was made to simply copy the Vitetta letter's language, the only question was whether it would then be presented to Mrs. Navarrete to sign, or whether it would be given to the now available Board President Tronolone to sign (which would have been the proper procedure), or alternatively, whether the signatures on the letter would themselves be copied.

The uncertain factual issue here is whether Pablo Jordan simply copied the letter and signed both the Superintendent's and Mrs. Navarrete's name without consulting on the issue with Dr. Horowitz or whether he did speak to Dr. Horowitz and either tell him what he proposed to do, or was instead told what to do by the Dr. Horowitz. As the undisputed evidence shows, and as I FIND, Mr.Jordan did have access to Superintendent's office stationary at the time he prepared the final copy of the letter. This was definitely supplied to him at some time previous to the 20th by Dr. Horowitz. Neither of the men could specifically explain when or under what exact circumstances this stationary was supplied to Mr. Jordan, and it is impossible to determine the answer to this question from the meager evidence on the subject. However, from the evidence and the inferences which arise therefrom, I FIND that the letter was prepared and signed by Pablo Jordan based upon his understanding that he should proceed to file the documents with the Bureau forthwith, prior to the scheduled meeting which was to be held the next day with Dr. Macaluso. I FIND that although he never actually said to Dr. Horowitz that he was going to sign the name of either Board President Tronolone or Board Vice President Navarrete to the letter, Mr. Jordan simply went ahead and did so, using the format and even the signatures from the Vitetta letter, with the assumption of tacit approval for such action from the superintendent, to whom he had previously spoken in order to tell him that the papers had to be filed. I FIND no evidence to suggest that the two men conferred and schemed for the purpose of a coverup of what they were filing. As for the actual placement of the signatures upon the letter, I accept Mr. Jordan's testimony that this occurred after he spoke to Dr. Horowitz about the need to file the papers. However, I accept Dr. Horowitz' statement that Mr. Jordan did not specifically ask him about whether he, Jordan, should sign the letter. Instead, I FIND that in the general course of a conversation concerning the need to file papers with the DOE the idea was conveyed from Dr. Horowitz to Mr. Jordan that it was a good idea to make use of the pre-existing language of the Vitetta letter for the required certification. No specific mention of the practical issue of obtaining signatures on the letter occurred. Mr. Jordan, pressed for time as he found himself, then took it upon himself to copy the letter, and he also deemed it appropriate and within his authorization to copy the signatures. As for the date of this conversation, I FIND that it occurred prior to September 20, since Dr. Horowitz was not at work on Rosh Hashanah and the district offices were closed that day.

Certainly, Mr. Jordan's decision to sign Mrs. Navarrete's name was a incorrect one. It is quite probably true that the architect was far more familiar with the process and procedure surrounding this filing requirement. As such it is not clear from the record exactly what Dr. Horowitz understood as to the exact nature of the specific filings. Any laxity on his part in regard to questioning Mr. Jordan about the issue of signatures on the letter was wrong. However, I do not find sufficient credible evidence that any such laxity was guided by nefarious reasons. Suffice it to say, the architect took an easy shortcut at a time of some pressure and the Superintendent did not question him or direct him as to the proper procedure. He surely did know of the general concern of the architect in respect to the filings and he certainly conveyed a general idea that the matter should be quickly and efficiently dealt with. However, from the available evidence I cannot conclude that his general authorization should be read as a tacit approval of forgery, in any way, shape or form.

It must also be remembered that at the time that Mr. Jordan acted he was under the belief that Dr. Horowitz had already, or was in the process of, advising the Board that the cost estimate had grown. This logical belief might well have flowed from the assurance that Dr. Horowitz gave to Mr. Jordan at the time of the passage of Dr. Stephenson's note. Given his understanding, Mr. Jordan might well have found nothing surprising about the idea of simply filing a letter of certification with the signatures thereon, copied from a previous such letter. Since Dr. Horowitz did not advise Mr. Jordan of any new problem or opposition from the Board, Mr. Jordan could well have assumed, albeit incorrectly, that the Board was aware of, and willing to go along with, a cost estimate of $2.459 million. That the Superintendent's actions, or his inactions, may have fostered such an understanding, contrary as it was to the facts, is simply another fault to be laid at the doorstep of Dr. Horowitz.

One of the persistent themes raised by Dr. Horowitz throughout his counsel's presentation of evidence and examination of witnesses dealt with the presence at the public meetings, as well as at the Planning Board meeting and at the cable TV presentation, of the sketch of the Bradley Gardens School which showed the square footage of the renovations and additions to be in excess of 12,000 square feet. Apparently, the respondent feels that since this document was open for all to see at those times that the Board members, individually at least, must have known, or at least should have known, that the plan no longer contemplated a 4,000 square foot project, but instead one of triple the size and quite logically one of a greater expense than the $905,000 contemplated for the 4,000 square foot job mentioned in the EFC and Steering Committee reports. In some way, the respondent seems to suggest that although he may have been lax in his responsibilities towards the Board and the public in this period of time, nevertheless, the information was there for all to see, and to pursue, and this in a way mitigates or negates some or all of his fault.

Once again, it is not enough for one holding the exalted position of trust and responsibility that Dr. Horowitz held to rely on happenstance, luck and the good fortune of others to fulfill his responsibilities. Armed as he was at the time of these meetings and presentations with the information that he had as to the increase in costs and square footage, Dr. Horowitz had an affirmative obligation to bring to the attention of the Board this type of important information. That others might chance to see the square footage figure on the drawings and might follow up this visual notice by asking questions as to what had happened to the 4,000 square foot project and what impact had occurred in regard to costs is not a proper and effective means of informing the collective Board. While someone may have paid enough attention to the sketch and been alerted, there was every chance that others would not. It was up to Dr. Horowitz to take it upon himself to go to the Board in a formal and direct manner and keep them abreast of developments. This he most assuredly did not do[18].

Subsequent to the referendum, the appearance of the Jordan & Pease bill caused Dr. Mazurak to raise concerns with Dr. Horowitz. While he acknowledged having heard some vague mention of a cost escalation during the summer, Dr. Mazurak denied that he had any definite information on the subject and he also did not indicate having discussed this subject with Dr. Horowitz until the arrival of the aforementioned bill in October. As to these recollections, I FIND that Dr. Mazurak recall was accurate, this despite Dr. Horowitz' belief that he had spoken with Dr. Mazurak about the additional boiler room expense at about the time that Mr. Jordan brought up the need for the second corridor. Given the role that Dr. Horowitz had assumed with regard to this project and the limited involvement of Dr. Mazurak, as contrasted to his description of his role in the past, the lack of such a discussion is not surprising.

The whole issue of the interchanges between Drs. Mazurak and Horowitz in regard to the implications of the bill received in October is an interesting one. Here was Dr. Mazurak, according to his version of the matter, asking his boss what the bill was all about, as it was clearly calculated on the basis of a cost that was far beyond that which Dr. Mazurak knew of. He describes himself as suggesting to Dr. Horowitz that the Board should be told that a cost escalation had occurred, or embarrassing questions might later be raised as to the reasons and the basis for the bill. As Dr. Mazurak recalls, the Superintendent, while apparently acknowledging Dr. Mazurak's concern in the course of several references to the issue over a period of time, nevertheless never brought up the subject at cabinet or Board meetings. As for Dr. Horowitz, he did not deny that his subordinate had expressed concern. While denying that this was raised in the form of "suggestions" that he bring the issue to the attention of the Board, nevertheless, Dr. Horowitz does not appear to deny that he was very aware that another senior member of the executive office of the district felt that the information that he, the Superintendent, had should not remain solely within his own realm, but should be shared with the district's governing body, which was after all the instrument responsible to the voters and taxpayers of the district. However, despite the knowledge of this very reasonable concern, the Superintendent once again did not see fit to go to the Board and advise them directly of what had occurred. According to the respondent, he instead appeared at the meeting of the expanded Buildings and Grounds Committee on December 17, a date which was about two months after the arrival of the Jordan & Pease bill at the Superintendent' office, the event which had sparked the concern of Dr. Mazurak.

18 Review of the videotape of the cable TV presentation demonstrates that the writing on the plan which listed the square footage is unreadable for the viewer. While those at the meetings, and Mr. Tronolone at the cable presentation, might have come close enough to see the numbers is of course possible, but there is no evidence to support any finding that this occurred.

Here again, the respondent's reasoning for his course of action is tied to his continuing claim that at the time he "had no faith in that number." Apparently this statement is meant to once again convey at least a degree of uncertainty as to whether the Jordan plan was ever to serve as the actual basis for the Board's attempt to bring to fruition it's promise to raise Bradley Gardens to parity with the district's other elementary schools. As before, the contention about this factor of "uncertainty" and a "lack of faith" raises the obvious question of why Dr. Horowitz did not simply go before the Board and lay the whole matter on the table so that the Board, the properly constituted legislative body, could deal with the issue as it saw fit. Perhaps the answer lies in the fact that the Doctor was not so unsure of the ultimate usefulness of the plans, but instead was rather sure that a way existed to fund the larger plan by using surpluses and funds released from other portions of the referendum package, a release he foresaw due to the information which he had as to the architect's position on the lack of feasibility of some of those portions.

Dr. Horowitz once again points to the December 17 meeting as a time and place where information as to the growth of the project was readily available to those in attendance, and then, through the medium of the report given the next day at the Board meeting by Mrs. Navarrete, to the whole Board. This seems to represent another example of the Superintendent saying that he passed the significant information to the Board by indirect means, but he might claim that as far as he was concerned, the Board already knew the score by means of the earlier public meetings and displays thereat, and the informal words to Reverend Dr. Stephenson and Mrs. Navarrete and Mr. Tronolone. Since I have already commented on these and the efficacy of such communications, suffice it to say that here, once again, the Superintendent made errors of judgment, compounding those of before, and he failed in his duty to come right out and discuss the expansion of size, and more importantly of cost, as he should have. While Dr. Horowitz recalled a discussion of the size and he also remembered a question from a lay member of the Committee that prompted a word concerning the "considerably" greater cost, others who were present remembered this cost discussion only in regard to the roof truss question, and while Mr. Kovonuk did remember that he was aware at this meeting for the first time of the size of the project, he could recall no reference being made to the effect of that upon the cost.[19] Based upon the various statements, I FIND that there was never a statement made or a reference conveyed at that meeting to the effect that the cost of the project was "considerably" greater than the originally estimated $905,000. While perhaps this is an example of a situation where the persons present at the meeting should have raised some questions about what they were seeing and hearing and how it might affect what the cost would be, in the end, the meeting failed to serve as a medium for transmission of such critical data to the Board. I FIND nothing to suggest that Mrs. Navarrete left that meeting and then went to the Board meeting the next night with any real reason to suspect, much less to report, that the cost was to be $2.459 million, or any such figure beyond at most the extra $3-400,000 for the move of the boiler room. There is nothing in the transcribed remarks of her December 18 report, RBG-97, which conveys any sense of such knowledge. While it reflects that certain plans were shown and certain costs discussed, there is no sense of any overall cost having been mentioned.

Thus, based upon the above discussion and findings, I FIND that in March when the Superintendent presented his request to the Board for the transfer of funds from surplus in order to cover the extra expenses for the Bradley Gardens project, no member of the Board of Education had any information that the most recent estimate of the cost of the project was $2.459 million, no member of the Board had any knowledge that some of the intended projects which were to have been funded by the bond referendum were not financially or architecturally feasible, and no member was aware that the documents submitted to the Bureau of Facilities Planning in September, 1990 had represented that the Board had approved the proposal as submitted, a proposal represented therein to have an estimated cost of $2.459 million. Further, as is obvious from these conclusions, the Board had never been asked nor had it ever authorized its Superintendent, or any architect, to proceed with a plan for the school that would be likely to cost so much more than the cost which had been represented in the Board Bulletin and at the public meetings (by inference if not by actual statement.) I FIND that when the request for the transfers was made and Mrs. Navarrete expressed objection and asked Dr. Horowitz for an explanation, she did so because she genuinely did not at that moment understand what the purpose and the intent of the requested action was. Although I FIND that she did have some knowledge that the Superintendent had in the past mentioned to her the need to spend money to move the boiler, the exact understanding which she had as to that matter is not clear. Her genuine surprise, while not entirely and absolutely based on a complete tabula rasa as to the entire subject of cost overruns for the Bradley Gardens work, was nevertheless not feigned. As for the other Board members, they were at least as in the dark as she, and as for the cost estimate of $2.459, they were all equally as uninformed.

The reason for this "state of innocence" as to this estimate can rightfully be laid primarily at the feet of the Superintendent of Schools. His lack of openness, candor and judgment caused the responsible body to be unaware of the facts as they existed in March and for sometime prior. That some members might have had a chance to learn more about the situation, had they focused upon the sketches at some point and begun to ask searching questions, or through some other happenstance, is not a defense to, or even a mitigation of, the Superintendent's failures. Having the information, Dr. Horowitz should have shared it with the Board of Education, long before it came out. Indeed, the manner in which it emerged itself reveals much. It does not appear that the request for the transfer was explained in a forthright and open manner as being related to the increase in costs, with a clear statement of what the increase was anticipated to be. Not until the questions raised by Mrs. Navarrete were addressed through the submission of materials and information by Dr. Horowitz and Pablo Jordan did the Board truly see for the first time the picture of what had happened.

CONCLUSIONS AS TO SPECIFIC CHARGES

Charge I of the certified tenure charges relates to contract matters. The Board alleges that Dr. Horowitz has permitted the district business administrator to present bills and receive authorization for payment of such bills in instances where "there was no valid signed contract."

In support of its contentions the Board cites sections of its own Operations Manual, which requires that all contracts which encumber district funds be written and approved by the district business office before "finalization" (Section 3301) and that the policy of the Board is to strictly observe "the letter and the spirit of all laws and regulations relating to . . . expenditures," a policy which the Board "holds the Superintendent and Board Secretary/Assistant Superintendent for Business directly responsible for carrying out . . . ." (Section 3300)

In addition to these policies of its own, the charge notes that the New Jersey Statutes require that no public body may make payments without a "signed, valid contract." No specific statutory provision is cited within the body of the charge. In the Board's post-hearing brief counsel cites N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-40 and N.J.S.A. 2C:30-4, the latter a criminal statute.[20]

Evidence as to the exact circumstances of the arrangements and the working relationships between the Board, Dr. Horowitz and Jordan and Pease is not extensive. For instance, although Mr. Jordan and Dr. Horowitz met on June 14 and discussed the Bradley Gardens project on a preliminary basis there is no evidence as

20 N.J.S.A. 18:-18A-40 provides:

"All contracts for the performance of work or furnishing materials, supplies or services shall be in writing . . . ."

N.J.S.A. 2C:30-4 makes it a crime for a "person . . . charged with or having the control of a State office . . . or a member of a county or municipal governing body or a member of a board of education" to "purposely and knowingly . . .

to a contractual relationship existing between the Board and the firm at that time for this particular project or for the bond issue in general. Subsequent events indicate that on July 18, 1990, the Appendix No. 3 was forwarded from Jordan and Pease to Dr. Mazurak, specifically in reference to the "Bradley Gardens Project J & P 9026-100." This is described simply as an appendix to "our Standard Form of Agreement between Owner and Architect on the above referenced project." No evidence has ever been produced that the Board, as "Owner," and Jordan and Pease, as "Architect," had up to that date ever entered into a signed contract. The Appendix appears to be a supplement to a then nonexistent contract, at least there is no evidence that at the time it was forwarded to the Board in July there existed any written agreement, much less any fully agreed upon oral terms. Dr. Mazurak testified as to discussions concerning a contract, but the evidence supports the conclusion that there was no written contract upon which to append anything even at the time that Jordan and Pease submitted their bill in October for investigation and field measurements, in the amount of $28,488.82. It was at this time that the issue of Dr. Mazurak's concern over the amount of the bill and the circumstances surrounding it was raised to Dr. Horowitz. Despite the fact that he admittedly knew from these discussions that there was no underlying written contract in existence at the time and that Dr. Mazurak saw real problems in paying the invoice in the absence of a contractual basis, there is no evidence that Dr. Horowitz prevented the payment from being made, as was eventually done on March 10, 1991, only a short time before Dr. Horowitz came before the Board with his request to transfer funds, the spark which led to disclosure of the whole Bradley Gardens affair. Not for the first time, it must be said that he did not choose to go to the Board to discuss any of this, but simply let the payment be made.[21]

Counsel for Dr. Horowitz argues in his brief that his client was not involved in the settlement of the contract with Jordan and Pease. This is true, as he had been excluded from any involvement after the April 9 meeting. However, to argue his lack of involvement and knowledge of the monetary issues surrounding the October, 1990 invoice ignores the clear evidence, including the testimony of the respondent himself. I FIND that he did know of the lack of a written contract.

21 By this time, a contract had been concluded, but the payment was for services rendered at a time when none existed.

The policies of the Board, as cited in the body of Charge I, require a written contract if funds are to be encumbered. No such written instrument existed. Despite counsel's protestations that everything done in this regard with respect to the early invoice occurred without Dr. Horowitz' knowledge, the evidence does not support that claim.

I CONCLUDE that the Board has sustained charge I. Dr. Horowitz did knowingly permit the payment of the Jordan and Pease invoice for services which were rendered by that firm at a time when no written contract existed for such services. In doing so, he violated the spirit and the letter of the Board policies 3301 and 3300. Further, his conduct was in derogation of the mandate of N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-40.

As regards the criminal statute, N.J.S.A. 2C:30-4, as a member of the Board, albeit without a vote, N.J.S.A. 18A:17-20, the Superintendent falls within the coverage of the 1989 enactment. I FIND that Dr. Horowitz' conduct in regard to this matter arguably involved at least an acquiescence in the disbursement of monies for which there had been no appropriation by the Board.

Charge V alleges that Dr. Horowitz permitted the submission of documents to the Bureau of Facilities Planning, which conduct was, in light of the content of the documents submitted, in violation of the intent of N.J.A.C. 6:22-1.2, the regulation which requires the submission of educational specifications and a project cost estimate form to the Bureau. More specifically, the allegation centers on the claim that Dr. Horowitz knew that the Board's resolution of adoption of the Steering Committee report had authorized a project for $905,000 and the papers which he allowed to be filed showed that the Board had authorized work which was estimated to cost $2.459 million. Since the Board was never presented with, much less never agreed to authorize or even to consider a project of such financial magnitude, the Board contends that the Superintendent's allowance of the submission of the documents, as he knew them to have been drafted by Pablo Jordan, was a act unbecoming Dr. Horowitz' "position of public trust."

N.J.A.C. 6:22-1.2 requires that educational specifications detailing all facilities considered for a construction program be submitted to the Bureau of Facility Planning Services for its approval. This submission must include estimates of dimensions and square footage and explanations of planned usage, and this submittal must be signed by the president of the board of education and by the chief school administrator "as evidence of certification of approval by the local district board of education." N.J.A.C. 6:22-1.4 provides for the submission of schematic plans for approval before any funds are authorized locally via a bond referendum. As a part of this submission, the project cost estimate must be presented.

The evidence clearly reveals that the estimated cost of the Bradley Gardens project, as represented to the Board at the time it voted to adopt the idea, was $905,000. At no time after June 26, 1990, did anyone come before the Board and explain to it that the estimate was off base, much less that it was widely off the mark, and that it should consider whether it wished to take another look at the proposal, limit more clearly the extent of it's concept, expand it's idea of what should be done, or whatever other action, or inaction, that it might deem appropriate. On September 13, when he received the draft of the submissions from Pablo Jordan, Richard Horowitz well knew that the Board of Education had never seen any proposal, any documentation, any suggestion that the cost estimated for the project was nearly three times that which was referenced in the Steering Committee report. While it is all well and good to remember that all of these figures as to estimated costs were just that, estimated costs, and while all involved knew and acknowledged, or in candor should have known, that the actual finished cost of the project was not likely to really be $905,000, nevertheless, the Superintendent had to be aware that his Board, to which he owed substantial obligations of trust and candor, had no knowledge whatsoever of this figure that Mr. Jordan was telling him that he, Jordan, was about to send off to the Bureau, bearing the imprimatur of Board acceptance and approval. While the ultimate fate of any estimate, and indeed of the educational specifications and plan sketches submitted pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:22-1.2, is of course an uncertain one, and while as the Superintendent argues, the submission in no way absolutely binds the Board and freezes it as to the nature of what is ultimately done, the clear purpose and intent of this regulation is to have the Board place before the Department of Education its then current, best and agreed to understanding of what it proposes to accomplish. To even suggest that the truth of the submissions (as well as the truth can be understood at the time that the submission is made), is an irrelevant or a loose concept, ignores the fact that it is inconceivable that a Board can act so cavalierly in its relations with the Department, or with the truth. The regulation has to mean something, it has to have a purpose, and in order to serve that purpose it must demand that the information provided pursuant to the regulation's command be as truthful and accurate as possible. Thus, any submission of data which was false, or any submission of material data which is unknown to the very Board who by its purported certification proposes to stand behind the submission as representing an authorized plan of the Board, is an improper submission.

There is no evidence that Dr. Horowitz took any action whatsoever to prevent Mr. Jordan from filing the Project Cost Estimate Form as it was presented to Dr. Horowitz in draft, with the $2.459 million figure. He neither asked or directed Mr. Jordan to change it, nor did he come to the Board to get specific authorization from it to make the representation to the Bureau that the Board was contemplating undertaking, and/or knew of the possibility that it might be undertaking, such an expense for the project. While "shocked," Dr. Horowitz was nevertheless unmoved to do anything to prevent what was in fact a false representation as to the nature of the cost estimate which the Board had authorized. Given that the Board was responsible for this submission, that as the superintendent Dr. Horowitz was the Board's representative in contact with the architect, and given that he knew of the intention of Mr. Jordan to file the form, Dr. Horowitz' failure to act constituted conduct unbecoming a School Superintendent.

Charge VI alleges the failure of Dr. Horowitz to sign the plans for construction submitted to the Bureau and contends that his failure to do so and to advise the authorities of such failure was an omission constituting misconduct in office and thus conduct unbecoming his position of trust. This charges relates to the uncontested fact that Dr. Horowitz did not personally sign the letter of certification submitted to the Bureau. The letter was actually signed with Dr. Horowitz' name by Pablo Jordan. As previously discussed, the decision to sign Dr. Horowitz' name was directly that of Mr. Jordan. Had Mr. Jordan chosen he could have sent the unsigned letter to Dr. Horowitz for his signature, and he no doubt could have arranged for Mr. Tronolone, as Board President, to personally sign his name as well. In fact, Mr. Jordan signed the Superintendent's name and copied Mrs. Navarrete's name. That he did not have the specific authorization of Mrs. Navarrete is certain. As for the Superintendent's, as I have previously noted, Mr. Jordan proceeded to prepare and submit the letter with the implied agreement of Dr. Horowitz. He may well have believed that the Doctor would have no problem with him signing, that is, in this context copying, the signature of the Superintendent. As this was happening, Dr. Horowitz quite clearly made no attempt to assure that he, personally, complied with the requirements of N.J.A.C. 6:22-1.2 that he, as the chief school administrator, sign the plans. After the plans were filed, Dr. Horowitz never contacted the Bureau to advise that the filed plans lacked his own, personal signature. This conduct, which reflected at least a lax approach to the responsibilities inherent to the Superintendent in this particular matter, was conduct which the Superintendent should not have condoned or participated in.

In charges VIB and VII the charging body asserts that Dr. Horowitz directed Mr. Jordan to sign Mrs. Navarrete's name to the certification letter of September 20, 1990 and that since this was done without obtaining her authorization, the act constituted forgery in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:21-1. Charge VIB alleges that such conduct constitutes unbecoming conduct. Charge VII contends that Dr. Horowitz received a copy of the letter bearing the forged signature and that he then failed to inform the Board or the State authorities of the forgery, conduct again identified as unbecoming one in Dr. Horowitz' position.

Forgery is defined in N.J.S.A. 2C:21-1 as > a. Forgery. A person is guilty of forgery if, with purpose to defraud or injure anyone, or with knowledge that he is facilitating a fraud or injury to be perpetrated by anyone, the actor:

>
> (1) Alters or changes any writing of another without his authorization;
>
> (2) Makes, completes, executes, authenticates, issues or transfers any writing so that it purports to be the act of another who did not authorize that act or of a fictitious person, or to have been executed at a time or place ...other than was in fact the case,...
> (3) Utters any writing which he knows to be forged in a manner specified in paragraphs (1) or (2).

In this case, the evidence does not sustain the suggestion that the Jordan signing of the Navarrete name occurred at the express direction of Dr. Horowitz. Instead, as I have said, Dr. Horowitz knew that the forms and documents were to be filed and that Mr. Jordan was very concerned about getting the filing accomplished. Despite the fact that he had this knowledge, I do not find any substantial evidence that Dr. Horowitz was ever directly asked for specific permission or authorization to sign Mrs. Navarrete's name. Mr. Jordan himself testified credibly that at the time he spoke to Dr. Horowitz about the need to file the submissions with the DOE he himself did not know whose specific name was signed on the Vitetta letter that he was proposing to use as the form for his own letter of certification. As previously discussed, I have concluded that the conversation which occurred between these two gentlemen, while including a general reference to the idea of copying the Vitetta letter, did not focus upon the question of obtaining new signatures for the new letter or simply copying the signatures which already appeared on the old letter. I FIND that the ultimate decision to merely copy the signatures was Pablo Jordan's, who, as noted before, acted in haste and clearly in error. I FIND no evidence that Dr. Horowitz was knowingly involved in a decision to copy Mrs. Navarrete's name and make unauthorized use of it. While the practical affect of the discussion regarding the copying of the Vitetta letter may well have been to induce Mr. Jordan to take the "shortcut" of copying the names as a matter of expediency, I FIND nothing here to suggest that Dr. Horowitz knowingly facilitated a fraud upon anyone in regard to the unauthorized signature which Mr. Jordan undertook to place upon the September 20 letter. Thus Charge VIB has not been sustained.

As for Charge VII, the focus here is upon the after-the-fact conduct of the Superintendent. Certainly, as the charge states, Dr. Horowitz must have been aware, or at least he should have been had he taken the time to think about it, that he had not signed any papers at all in regard to the required submission to the Bureau in late September. Whether he thought about the requirement for his signature subsequent to the conversation in regard to the copying of the letter is doubtful.

The next question that arises under the terms of this charge is whether Dr. Horowitz was in fact aware after the submission of the documents and the delivery of a copy of them on September 21 that there was a forged document in the package. If he did know, and chose to ignore the fact, either out of a lack of concern for the seriousness of the matter, or of the implications of the submission of documents purporting to certify matters never even presented to the Board over the purported, but in fact unauthentic signature of the Board Vice President, or simply out of an uncalculating neglect, his conduct would no doubt be properly characterized as unbecoming. If he let the matter be because he had no concern about Mr. Jordan signing his name to the letter since he felt that he had, in essence, authorized Mr. Jordan to do so, if not specifically than by implication, then he might well have conceived that nothing wrong had occurred and that there was nothing of consequence to report to the Board. If on the other hand, he never saw the letter at all, or glanced at it in so casual a fashion as he leafed through the bound documents which Mr. Jordan had dropped off, then it is very difficult to fault Dr. Horowitz for not advising the Board or any other authorities.

I FIND that the credible evidence, such as it is, does not demonstrate by a preponderance that Dr. Horowitz actually reviewed the September 20 letter when he received the package after it had been filed. I FIND that he testified truthfully that he looked over the contents of the package in a "thumbing through" fashion, which I FIND implies a rather quick skim of the contents, and that while he may have actually "seen" the letter in the package, he did not focus on it's contents, much less on the signatures. Thus, as for the allegation that he knew of the fact that he had not signed the document and failed to report that the forgery of his name appeared on the filed papers, I CONCLUDE that the proofs do not support a finding to that effect. Thus charge VII must be dismissed.

Charges VIII, IX and X allege that the Superintendent "allowed" the submission of documents to the DOE which were known to him to contain false information. The forms were of course actually filed by Mr. Jordan. In Charge VIII, the reference is to the forms "stating that the Bradley Gardens project at $2.45 million was to be funded through a referendum and capital outlays, and that the project had been approved by the Board on June 26, 1990." Obviously, there was no approval on June 26 of a project of that cost magnitude at that school. While the general concept of a project was approved, the Board at that stage was looking at a proposal of a much smaller financial scale. It would have been wholly wrong to suggest that the June 26 approval was in any way an approval of the far larger cost. Any assumptions as to how the funding of a nearly three times more expensive project would take place, and any assumption as to the use of other funds from the referendum, funds which were already assigned to other projects within the bond issue, was unwarranted. Thus, when Dr. Horowitz saw the draft of the submissions, especially the Project Cost Estimate Form that was sent to him by Mr. Jordan some 7 or 8 days before the filing of the documents, Dr. Horowitz could very easily have told Mr. Jordan that he could not agree to the filing of any documents that would suggest any approval, or even any contemplation, by the Board of a project estimated to cost nearly $2.5 million dollars. He could have told Mr. Jordan that he would quickly take the matter up with the Board so as to alert them to the apparent realities of the situation and obtain their approval for a submission which made such a representation (or perhaps their disapproval, which might have prompted an early pre-referendum review of exactly what was going on in regards to the Bradley Gardens project). In the event, Dr. Horowitz did no such thing. He agreed with Mr. Jordan that the paperwork should be filed as per the requirements of the Code, without any apparent concern that the documents were speaking of a project grossly out of line with the original estimate, and even well beyond the sums that Dr. Horowitz claimed to have mentioned in passing to several Board members.

Dr. Horowitz' failure to raise his hand and his voice and to call to the Board's attention in any real and meaningful fashion the entire issue of the escalating cost estimates for the Bradley Gardens project, an ongoing failure which has been discussed extensively in this opinion, manifested itself once again in respect to these submissions. I FIND that he did "allow" the submissions referenced in Charge VIII and that at the time he knew that the project as proposed in the submission was not what had been contemplated, much less approved, by the Board. Again, even Dr. Horowitz acknowledged his substantial doubts about the efficacy and viability of the project as contemplated by Jordan & Pease at the time of the submissions in September. While I have tended to diminish the importance of this "lack of confidence" excuse in the course of this decision, it is possible that this reasoning may have played a role in Dr. Horowitz' action regarding the "allowing" of the submissions. Perhaps he simply felt it did not matter what the submission said, because in his view the whole project had taken on an air of unreality. If this was in fact a motivating factor, even to a subtle degree, it simply points out once more the essential failure of Dr. Horowitz to communicate with his Board and take them into his confidence on matters with which they had a vital, and indeed an ultimate, interest.

Charge IX argues that Dr. Horowitz' had knowledge that Pablo Jordan was "submitting a letter with false statements and forged signatures". It contends that he "acted in a manner that would constitute official misconduct," in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:30-2. This provision of the New Jersey criminal statutes makes it a crime for

A public servant ... with purpose to obtain a benefit for himself or another or to injure or to deprive another of a benefit:

a. He commits an act relating to his office but constituting an unauthorized exercise of his official functions, knowing that such act is unauthorized or he is committing such act in an unauthorized manner; or

b. He knowingly refrains from performing a duty which is imposed upon him by law or is clearly inherent in the nature of his office.

Apparently, the thrust of this awkwardly worded charge is that Dr. Horowitz knew of the false and forged quality of the submissions which Mr. Jordan was about to make to the Bureau and did nothing to prevent the submission from being made in this inappropriate manner. As for the forgery, I have previously found that Dr. Horowitz did not have actual and specific knowledge of the fact that Mr. Jordan had in fact forged names on the letter. He had implicitly given permission to Jordan to sign his name, and he never specifically discussed the idea of Jordan signing Navarrete's name. See discussion, ante. at pages 73-76. As for the falsity of statements in the submission, the Superintendent knew that the Board had not authorized a project with the cost estimate shown on the Project Cost Estimate Form. He saw the Form in draft. He made no effort to prevent Mr. Jordan from filing the Form as drafted, despite his now expressed misgivings and concerns regarding what he was seeing. Dr. Horowitz thus knew that false representations were being made to the Bureau, albeit, as I have noted before, he probably did not view the matter with much concern.

The failure of Dr. Horowitz to take any steps to prevent the filing in the form and manner that he saw it at the time the draft documents were submitted to him was a failure to exercise a responsibility inherent in his position as the chief school administrator of the district. He certainly had the authority to tell the architect that the representations in the documents were at best misleading with regard to the proposal as envisioned and approved by the Board. He did not choose to exercise his authority. This failure can certainly be characterized as conduct which was unbecoming a public official in a high position of trust and authority.

The issue that must of course be considered with regard to the allegation in this charge is whether it can be said that the conduct reached a level of criminality, as the statute defines the act by the purpose with which the actor proceeds. Failures to perform actions which a public official is, can and should, indeed even must, undertake, are not necessarily criminal acts. The statute requires that the public servant have a purpose "to obtain a benefit for himself or another or to injure or to deprive another of a benefit." In the instant case, I FIND no evidence that Dr. Horowitz acted, or failed to act, out of any intent to injure or deprive anyone of a benefit. As for any intent to benefit himself personally, only in a most strained way can it be said that allowing the submissions to take place without Board review would have moved the referendum and, if it passed, the project to proceed speedily, in a manner that might engender Board, and public, approval for the Superintendent. This possibility is too remote and uncertain a reward to even be considered as the kind of benefit meant by the statute. As for any benefit to another, presumably here Pablo Jordan and his firm, while approval of the plans by the Bureau would set the stage for the referendum to take place as scheduled, that fact, and the possibility of ultimate approval of the bond question and construction of the project, to suggest that Dr. Horowitz acted, or failed to act, as he did in an attempt to give some benefit to Mr. Jordan is simply not a supportable conclusion.

I CONCLUDE that although Dr. Horowitz acted in a manner that was unbecoming, he did not violate N.J.S.A. 2C:30-2. Charge IX must therefore be dismissed.

Charge X alleges that Dr. Horowitz knew the Project Cost Estimate Form contained false information concerning both the Board's approval of the project as submitted and the source of the funds for the project as it appeared in the submitted documentation. The Board contends that Dr. Horowitz concealed this knowledge from the Board and that this conduct violated N.J.S.A. 2C:21-4, which provides > a. Except as provided in subsection b. of this section, a person commits a crime of the fourth degree if he falsifies, destroys, removes, conceals any writing or record, or utters any writing or record knowing that it contains a false statement or information, with purpose to deceive or injure anyone or to conceal any wrongdoing.

> b. A person is guilty of issuing a false financial statement, a crime of the third degree, when, with purpose to deceive or injure anyone or to conceal any wrongdoing; he by oath or affirmation:
> (1) Knowingly makes or utters a written instrument which purports to describe the financial condition or ability to pay of some person and which is inaccurate in some substantial respect; or

> (2) Represents in writing that a written instrument purporting to describe a person's financial condition or ability to pay as of a prior date is accurate with respect to such person's current financial condition or ability to pay, whereas, he knows it is substantially inaccurate in that respect.

Once again, the evidence shows that Dr. Horowitz was aware of the contents of the draft Project Cost Estimate Form before Mr. Jordan filed that document. He never told the Board about the fact that the architect's latest estimate, the one that was being filed with the Bureau, was for $2.459 million. He knew that the Board had never approved a project of such financial magnitude. He also knew that the estimates as to the portion of the bond monies which would be allocated to the Bradley Gardens project were only $905,000. He therefore had every reason to know that it could not be properly represented to the Bureau that the Board had approved the use of nearly $2.5 million of the monies to be raised from the proposed bonds for this particular project. Thus, when Dr. Horowitz, by both his active agreement with Mr. Jordan concerning the filing of the documents, including the Project Cost Estimate Form, and his inaction, that is, his failure to prevent the filing of a document which contained false and highly misleading information, may be said to have participated, or at least to have acquiesced in, the uttering of a "false statement."

Merely uttering a false document in and of itself does not automatically violate N.J.S.A. 2C:21-4. The required intent must be demonstrated to have existed at the time of the uttering. Here, the purpose of the filing of these documents was to convince the Bureau to approve them so that the bond referendum could be held as scheduled. Clearly, had the documents indicated that the Board had not considered, much less agreed to, an estimate for the work of nearly $2.5 million, or to the plan as modified from its original concept, the Bureau might have refused to approve them. Thus, the submission of these documents, in which Dr. Horowitz played a role, albeit not the primary one, but nevertheless an important one, was done for the purpose of inducing a government agency to act based upon inaccurate and in fact clearly false information.

Based upon the above, I CONCLUDE that, although I do not believe that at the time he spoke with Mr. Jordan and then reviewed the faxed copies of the documents to be submitted (which included the Project Cost Estimate Form), Dr.

Horowitz had an active and formed desire to practice deceit upon anyone, his conduct aided in a submission that had the significant potential for doing that. The purpose here was to induce action by fostering a belief in a state of affairs regarding the Board of Education's view on the referendum which was in fact not the actual state of affairs. This is deception. Whether a prosecutor would charge someone (particularly Dr. Horowitz), or a grand jury would indict, under the circumstances of this case is impossible to know. However, reviewing the evidence, I CONCLUDE that the preponderance of the credible evidence demonstrates that Dr. Horowitz' conduct as at least an aider and abettor of the uttering meets the definition of the crime as set forth in the statute. Such conduct, even if not clearly criminal, is nevertheless conduct which is unbecoming for a public servant. While Charge X affirmatively states that Dr. Horowitz violated the criminal statute, a finding which a jury in a criminal case could only make if it found that all of the required elements of the statute had been proven beyond a reasonable doubt, it can at least be affirmatively concluded here that the conduct contains all of the elements of the violation as defined in the statute. Within the limitations of the caveat, I CONCLUDE that Charge X has been sustained.

Charge XI asserts a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:21-16. This statute makes it a crime for a person to

> . . . by deception as to the contents of the instrument he causes or induces another to execute any instrument affecting, purporting to affect, or likely to affect the pecuniary interest of any person.

Here, as in the case of Charge X, the thrust of the allegation is that Dr. Horowitz "caused the execution of State approval which was likely to affect the pecuniary interest of the district public." This is again a focus on the "deceiving" of the Bureau concerning supposed Board approval of the estimated cost and the sources of funding for Bradley Gardens.

That the submission of the documents to the Bureau was meant to induce it to issue an approval so that the referendum could be conducted is not to be doubted. That there were false and misleading representations made is also true. The referendum was a vote to authorize the sale of bonds which would create a public debt. Thus, the issuance of the approval would allow the referendum to go forward and, if the result of the vote was to approve the Resolution, the public's pecuniary interests, as well as the district's itself, would have been affected (assuming of course a successful sale of the bonds). As before, the question of the actual intent to work a deception is the key as to whether a crime was committed. The certain intent of Messrs. Horowitz and Jordan at the time was to induce an approval by the Bureau. In the sense that either of them acted to send the Bureau documents which either of them knew made representations about what the Board had actually approved, representations which could hardly have been understood as being true, the actor or actors engaged in wrongful conduct since Dr. Horowitz, at the time that he saw the documents knew that the representation was false, I CONCLUDE that Dr. Horowitz did at least acquiesce in the presentation to the Bureau of information which he knew was untrue as stated, information which could easily have misled the Bureau. I CONCLUDE that the conduct fits the definition of the crime. The conduct, even if unlikely to lead to a criminal charge, was nevertheless conduct unbecoming Dr. Horowitz' position.

The twelfth charge brought by the Board refers to the Superintendent's direction to David Sandler to use the $905,000 figure in the Board Bulletin, this despite Dr. Horowitz' knowledge at the time that he told this to Mr. Sandler that the cost estimate received from the architect was far in excess of that figure. It is alleged that this conduct "interfered with the right of the voters to make an informed vote." As Dr. Horowitz has acknowledged, he was consulted "regularly" on the drafting of the Bulletin. See, RBG 111, pg. 1.

It is not at all certain exactly how the Board of Education would have dealt with the matter of the Bradley Gardens project had it been advised in July or August, 1990 of Mr. Jordan's revision of the cost estimate. In theory, the Board could have told the architect to downscale, could have sought to revise upward the cost of the bond referendum by a subsequent resolution, could have simply told the voters in writing and later at the September meeting of the uncertainties raised by the information received from Mr Jordan, or could perhaps have taken some other course. It cannot be presumed that they would have chosen to do absolutely nothing, to simply sit on the information and deal with it after the referendum. However, as discussed above, the Board was not advised of the increases. When Mr. Sandler raised the question of how to deal with the cost issue in the Bulletin, Dr. Horowitz, relying, according to his testimony, upon the "lack of hard information," directed the use of the $905,000 figure, which he saw as the only "hard" figure available. Why this was any "harder" a figure, any more of a reliable estimate, than the architect's own more current numbers, is unclear. Suffice it to say that by using the $905,000 amount, without reference of any kind to the already identified likelihood of substantial additional expenses, the Bulletin risked creating the impression with the voters that that figure, or at least one very close thereto, was the cost for Bradley Gardens. At the time of distribution of this very Bulletin, after he already had been told by the architect that the estimates had grown to at least double the original $905,000, Dr. Horowitz was being told that the estimate was not nearly $2.5 million. While it is not clear that the Bulletin could have been easily stopped from distribution by the time he saw the draft Project Cost Estimate Form, allowing Mr. Sandler to place the unexplained, unqualified $905,000 in the Bulletin was an action which had the potential for misleading voters in their understanding of the financial package and of its constituent parts. While this is not to say that any voters were in fact "interfered" with, the proof of such definite interference is not crucial. The issue is the likelihood that the conduct created a situation which had the reasonable potential for such interference. Here, although it is perhaps true that all dollar figures mentioned in the Bulletin, except for the total of $24.5 million, should have been qualified as tentative, where the Superintendent had information from the architect, a seemingly well-versed and reliable source, that the figure was now grossly off, the direction to Mr. Sandler to simply use the original and now highly questionable estimate fits the category of an action that was likely to interfere with the proper and informed consideration of the voters on the issue of significant public concern.

I CONCLUDE that the Board has established by the preponderance of the credible evidence that Dr. Horowitz' direction to Mr. Sandler was, in the circumstances, an act of misconduct.

Charge XIII is related to the information which Dr. Horowitz was receiving that not all of the projects which were to be funded by the bond issue were economically or architecturally feasible as originally proposed by the EFC. The Board contends that with this knowledge available to him the Superintendent nevertheless advised Mr. Sandler that the Board Bulletin should reflect the idea that all of the originally proposed projects would be funded with monies from the referendum. However, as the Charge states, "the Superintendent knew that the plans sent to the State did not correspond to what the voters were told."

The evidence clearly shows that by the time that the Board Bulletin was in the final drafting stage, Dr. Horowitz was aware of questions having been raised as to the feasibility of some of the media center and other projects. Nothing about the doubts with regard to these projects was reflected in the Board Bulletin, nor was there any actual communication to the Board of these matters in this time period. Mr. Sandler was not instructed to place any caveats, any qualifications or any words of caution in the Bulletin. In this situation, once more the conduct of Superintendent Horowitz was lacking in candor. As the public meetings proceeded, the Board presented the voters, and perhaps more directly those voters who were in some way more directly interested in the particular elementary schools, with the continued picture of improvements and solutions to be performed in accord with the recommendations of the EFC, as later adopted by the full Board. Since he at this point had serious doubts as to whether this was a true picture of the likely realities, and since that information was coming from the professionals working on the projects for the involved architects, Dr. Horowitz had good reason and a strong basis for revealing the concerns to the full Board and, either through it or at its direction, to those who were so soon to vote on the referendum. His failure to do so was certainly conduct which had a serious potential for deceiving both the Board and the voters. Whether it in fact did so is secondary. The conduct was unbecoming one in whose person and position great public trust was placed.

I CONCLUDE that the Board has proven Count XIII by a preponderance of the credible evidence.

THE ADDITIONAL CHARGES

The several charges which are unrelated to the referendum and the Bradley Gardens project can be readily disposed of. Unlike the previously considered matters, I see little that needs extended comment.

Charge XVI relates to the testimony of witnesses regarding Dr. Horowitz' testimony during the election contest before Judge McKeown. The Board's charge assumes that Dr. Horowitz testified "contrary to fact" and the allegedly incorrect testimony was in regard to the question of when he saw the rolls containing the write-in votes. Interestingly, the body of this charge, while claiming that the testimony was "contrary to fact" and that the presentation of such was conduct unbecoming, does not state that the incorrect evidence resulted from knowingly false statements. Certainly, if Dr. Horowitz misstated the facts as to any significant matters, but did so due to a failure of memory, confusion, honest mistake or for other legitimate reasons, it could not rationally be argued that his conduct was worthy of any finding that he had done something sanctionable. The charge itself suggests such an unreasonable argument. In the event, I FIND no evidence, much less any persuasive evidence, that Dr. Horowitz engaged in perjurious testimony before Judge McKeown. The testimony of Jean Moll and Mr. Bareis does not support a conclusion that the Superintendent lied. While they did see him at the school and it appears that he was there at a time when the rolls were being worked on, to jump from these findings to one that he purposely and knowingly committed a criminal offense, to wit, perjury, is not a jump which this very limited evidence will support. I FIND that Dr. Horowitz' testimony as to the recollections he had as to when he saw the rolls, while perhaps mistaken, was nevertheless his best, honest recall, not a willful misstatement of fact. In fact, his responses to the questions concerning his prior experience of seeing these sheets or similar ones, prior to his seeing them in Mrs. Long's office, were statements couched in terms of his "belief" and his being unable to say for "certain" that he had not previously seen a sheet "in my entire life experience." While certainly these responses could have been knowingly false recitations, the evidence here is simply too limited and speculative to allow for a finding that perjurious evidence was offered. Therefore, if Charge XVI was meant to relate to such knowing misrepresentations, as I suspect it surely was, the charge must be DISMISSED.[22]

The nineteenth charge arises from Mr. Irving Putter's revelations of the incident at the meeting on March 18 and the subsequent confrontation in the hallway. Dr. Horowitz admits that during this very heated post-meeting incident he "lost it." He admits that he called Mr. Putter a demagogue, but denies the stronger epithets and vulgarities related by Mr. Putter. This gentleman, who sought at the Board meeting to exercise his right to comment on the Board and the Superintendent's performance, paints a somewhat darker picture, complete with physical and verbal threats.

22 As such, Dr. Horowitz' defense of laches need not be considered.

I FIND that Mr. Putter saw Dr. Horowitz in the hallway in conversation with a reporter. He decided to intervene in this conversation because of his belief that Dr. Horowitz was attempting to negate Mr. Putter's comments regarding the Superintendent. At this point, Dr. Horowitz was quite incensed at Mr. Putter for what Dr. Horowitz viewed as an uncalled for and inappropriate personal attack during the Board meeting. Reacting to this anger and the appearance to him that Mr. Putter, by intervening in his conversation with Mr. Strunsky, was carrying on his assault upon his character, Dr. Horowitz, who is a rather large figure, speaking in a voice which I FIND is characteristically loud, and with gesticulations of hand and arm, vented a good measure of verbal "reaction" to Mr. Putter. Although Mr. Putter attempted to characterize a portion of this as an assault and perhaps even as a battery about to happen, I do not find that the Superintendent made any actual threats of a verbal or a physical nature upon Mr. Putter. The arm motions were not meant to be assaultive, but Mr. Putter may have viewed them as such in the heat of the moment, faced as he was by a man who was large, upset, verbally aggressive and loud.

The Board contends that Dr. Horowitz' conduct, his use of abusive language and his threat toward Mr. Putter were unprofessional and therefore conduct unbecoming his position. Without at this point considering just how serious the consequences for his actions should be, I CONCLUDE that on the evening in question Dr. Horowitz, as he himself candidly admitted, "lost it." His loud, aggressive and at least to some degree abusive response to an admittedly disturbing attack cannot be condoned. As Superintendent, Dr. Horowitz is a prominent public figure, one whose actions in office are generally fair game for comment, critical and otherwise, by citizens. No doubt some of this criticism is unfair, even highly so. Mr. Putter's particular remarks at the Board meeting were strong and personal. They attacked the Superintendent in a way that suggested flaws in his character and doubts as to his fitness. These were the type of remarks that could well rile their object. Regardless, one in such a position must temper his or her reaction, must put aside the temptation to respond in kind. While Dr. Horowitz is, like all of us, only human, and can be expected to take strong exception to unfair, even vicious attacks upon him, he must, due to the role he plays and the position he holds, refrain from either verbal or physical manifestations of uncontrolled reactions. Dr. Horowitz failed to do so on the night of March 18. This conduct was unbecoming. The charge is sustained.

The last of the charges, XX, alleges conduct unbecoming in connection with the October 31, 1991 incident described by Mr. Tronolone where he contends that Dr. Horowitz' loud yelling in the outer hallway interfered with the Board's ongoing session and forced him, as the Board President, to ask that the doors to the meeting room be closed. Mr. Tronolone asserted that this was the only time such an action was necessary during his time on the Board, a claim disputed by others.

Having heard the witnesses on this issue, I FIND that Dr. Horowitz was upset that night at the Board's actions in respect to the ongoing, and then quite active, tenure dispute. He did speak in loud tones in the hall and could be heard in the meeting room. Although Mr. Tronolone did find the noise disturbing, I FIND that this was not the only time noise outside the meeting room required that the doors be closed. As for the contention that Dr. Horowitz' loudness that evening was unprofessional, reflected "adversely on the district" and was therefore unbecoming conduct, I CONCLUDE that this makes far too much of the event, and that the circumstances, even as described by Mr. Tronolone, do not rise to a level sufficient to permit a finding of misconduct. For this reason, Charge XX is DISMISSED.

SUMMARY OF CONCLUSIONS AS TO THE TENURE CHARGES

Based upon the discussions, findings and conclusions related above, I CONCLUDE that the Board has successfully established by a preponderance of the credible evidence that Dr. Horowitz engaged in conduct unbecoming his position as a public servant in regard to several of the tenure charges. These are Charges I, V, VI, VIII, IX, X, XI, XII, XIII, and XIX. The Board has failed to prove Charges VIB, VII, XVI, and XX. Charges II, III, IV, XIV, XV, XVII and XVIII were previously dismissed.

WHAT IS THE APPROPRIATE SANCTION FOR THE PROVEN VIOLATIONS?

Tenure is granted to certain public employees at least partly as a protection for them against the possibility of job loss resulting from the whims and fancies of appointing authorities, whose makeup often changes. The strong protection which tenured employees are shielded with makes it very difficult for a public employer to discipline and even harder for one to remove, a tenured employee. The evidence needed to justify the imposition of a sanction against a tenured individual must therefore reflect the serious nature of that person's wrongdoing. Minor infractions are not the stuff which should lend itself to the major step of imposing a serious penalty on a tenured employee. Removal of tenure is the ultimate sanction for such an individual, and therefore, where the employer seeks removal, major defalcations of the employee's responsibilities and duties need be proven.

A superintendent of schools serves as the chief executive officer of a school district. The superintendent is responsible by statute for the "general supervision over the schools of the district . . . under rules and regulations prescribed by the state board . . . and he shall have such other powers and perform such other duties as may be prescribed by the board . . . employing him." N.J.S.A. 18A:17-20.

The tenured superintendent may continue to serve "during good behavior and efficiency." N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10. This statute establishes that a tenured employee who engages in conduct manifesting "inefficiency, incapacity, unbecoming conduct, or other just cause . . ." may be "dismissed or reduced in compensation."

In deciding on the appropriate penalty, this judge, and ultimately the Commissioner, must perform a "delicate balancing act" (as the test is described in In The Matter of the Tenure Hearing of David Fulcomer, 93 N.J. Super. 404 (App. Div. 1967)) and must also be aware of the obviously strained relationships between the majority of the Board which voted to certify the tenure charges in January and the Superintendent. As the State Board of Education noted in In The Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Dr. Frank J. Napoli, 1988 S.L.D. 284 it is necessary to "separate out what may be the actual shortcomings in respondent's performance and what may be the result of deplorable relations between him and the Board. Napoli, supra., at 291. The balancing test, as described in Fulcomer, (which was a case involving a teacher) requires consideration of the > . . . findings as to the nature and gravity of the offenses under all the circumstances involved, any evidence as to provocation, extenuation or aggravation, and should take into consideration any harm or injurious effect which the teacher's conduct may have had on the maintenance of discipline and the proper administration of the school system.

> In Re Fulcomer, supra., at 422.

The Fulcomer test is fully applicable to this case, for the fact that Dr. Horowitz holds a different position from that of a teacher is one which does not change the fundamental factors at work in the test. However, the different position which he holds does add a factor, for as the State Board made quite clear in Napoli, > the standard of behavior required of teachers is stringent, the standard for high administrative personnel must be even more stringent. Napoli, supra., at 288.

In the present case, the findings and conclusions reached by this judge establish that Dr. Richard Horowitz engaged in a series of actions, or in some instances inactions, which manifested a lack of appropriate professional judgment, a lack of communication with the Board of Education, a lack of candor with the Board and with the public, a failure to respond to the demands of his office, a failure to honor the meaning and the spirit of administrative regulations governing aspects of his job and the activities in which he became involved in that position, and conduct which, if not in fact criminal, was in some instances sufficiently questionable so as to raise concern as to his capacity to perform his job within the confines of legality. In sum, these actions and this conduct demonstrate that Dr. Horowitz engaged in misconduct, in activities which were unbecoming a public official holding a high position of trust and responsibility in a major school system of this State. For these actions, Dr. Horowitz most definitely should be disciplined.

Of course, in this case, the school board has already imposed discipline on the Superintendent. As I previously noted, the fact that equitable estoppel does not bar further discipline does not automatically imply that the outcome of this case must result in some greater penalty. Yet, after a full review of the total picture in the context of the Fulcomer test, including an analysis of Dr. Horowitz' conduct and a consideration of the function within the district which he fulfills, I am convinced that the previous sanction of a reprimand and a withholding of increment is insufficient. Instead, I CONCLUDE that loss of tenure is the necessary and appropriate result.

At bottom, the primary cause of Dr. Horowitz' difficulties no doubt lies in an exercise of poor judgment. In fulfilling the important responsibilities of his position, the Superintendent, faced with the growing knowledge that the Bradley Gardens project was a more complex and expensive affair than the Board and its committees had thought, apparently did not understand that the escalation of estimated cost was so much greater than the mere inflationary rise that might otherwise have been normally expected, that it was absolutely imperative that he take clear and affirmative steps to advise his full board and to seek their input and advice, their direction and counsel as to the manner in which they and he should or might proceed in regard to this aspect of the referendum. It was even more imperative that he do so because, even beyond the normal need to keep the Board abreast of significant happenings, particularly those of a financial nature, in the circumstances of this Board and this referendum there existed a heightened need to assure that the Board possessed the most complete, most up to date and most accurate information available, so as to allow it to both understand on its own and to be able to convey to the public, as its collective judgment deemed appropriate and necessary, truthful and accurate information regarding the referendum. Given the experience of the 1989 referendum and the criticism to which the Board was subjected thereafter, anything which prevented the Board from acting in this manner was a serious interference with its responsibilities. The very concerns and problems which had surfaced in 1989 were implicated again in the determinations of the Superintendent not to openly and fully discuss the information that he had with the Board in a timely fashion. That some of this information was "soft" was irrelevant. This Board, particularly under the circumstances, needed and deserved the opportunity to judge for itself what this information meant. Thus, Dr. Horowitz, who served in a fiduciary capacity and therefore had a very substantial responsibility to both the Board and the public, breached that duty under circumstances and against a backdrop of prior events which only served to exacerbate the nature of his deficiencies.

In exercising his authority as Superintendent in respect to how to proceed, Dr. Horowitz demonstrated a serious lack of professional judgment. His failings went well beyond the important, but perhaps less pejorative, "lack of communication" which was the concern addressed by the Board in its reprimand of April, 1991. Beyond this lack of judgment, Dr. Horowitz demonstrated that he was not sufficiently attuned to the vital need to keep faith with the Board of Education and the public. Trust is a key element in any employment relationship, trust is vital in the relationship between public officials and the public, trust is paramount in the relationship of a school superintendent who is the chief operating officer and professional employee of a school district, and the Board of Education, which generally consists of lay persons serving in a part-time public service capacity, persons who thus must place extreme reliance upon the ability, the efficiency, the judgment and the faithfulness of the superintendent.

While certainly there are circumstances where the public's need to know of each and every significant development regarding the schools may be outweighed by competing considerations for at least a period of time, in the context of this proceeding, the public was ill served by the practices and the decisions made by this Superintendent[23]. By his actions, he broke faith with those to whom he stood in a fiduciary relationship.

The reasons for imposing a penalty which goes beyond that of the reprimand and withholding of increment are also related to other conclusions reached herein concerning the problems with Dr. Horowitz' performance. His refusal to seriously and directly address the concerns of Dr. Mazurak, his refusal to show due concern about the nature of the documents which were to be filed by Mr. Jordan, his failure to advise the Board after he suggested to Pablo Jordan that he would do so after Dr. Stephenson passed his vote, his long term failure to deal openly and forthrightly with the information available to him from July, 1990 onward into September and even beyond into March, 1991 about the very likely significant to even gross increases in the cost estimate, raise serious questions as to his capacity to properly fill the role of Superintendent of Schools. While of course Dr. Horowitz has done well in this role in some of its aspects, the findings and conclusions here demonstrate that his ability to rise to the "stringent" level of behavior demanded of a Superintendent must be doubted.

As a result of Dr. Horowitz' actions, the Board of Education reasonably determined that it had to appoint a Task Force, and then an independent law firm, to conduct inquiries into what had happened in regards to the Bradley Gardens proposal.[24] The Superintendent's conduct has created a difficult and admittedly 23 That some present or former members of the Board may have also erred is a matter of concern. The voters of the district have had, or will in the future have, the opportunity to address the continued fitness of members to sit on the Board.

24 Despite the continuing protestations of the minority members of the Board, I FIND no evidence to suggest that these determinations arose out of a "witch hunt," or that they were conducted in any sense to "get" Dr. Horowitz.

divisive issue for the Board, and this controversy has spilled over to the public. The conduct opened up the Board to the substantial risk that the previous concern as to the honesty of its approach to the public in regard to referenda would once again arise. The conduct has lead the Board to expend substantial sums of money in order to see if its administrative operation was in order, and if not, why not. The conduct has, in short, led to a serious disruption of the orderly and smooth operation of this school district.

Despite the fact that I am cognizant that a new majority now prevails on the Board which may have some different leanings with respect to Dr. Horowitz than the Board which voted to certify the tenure charges, I am convinced that his conduct as proven here demands additional, and very serious, treatment. While the findings here do not suggest to me in the slightest that Dr. Horowitz is a "bad" individual or that his character is in any way "tainted," nevertheless, the evidence demonstrates ample just cause for removal of his tenure as Superintendent of Schools.

ORDER

It is HEREBY ORDERED that the tenure held by Dr. Richard C. Horowitz as Superintendent of Schools be REVOKED.

APPENDIX A

TRANSCRIPT OF ORAL DECISION

It had to do with the individual conduct of the teaching staff member vis-a-vis two Board members. Personal interest.

This case -- we have some charges. This case has to do with a $23.4 million bond issue, of which one major component had been I think tripled or almost tripled with all the attendant facts.

It didn't deal with interaction between Dr. Horowitz and Mr. Tronolone and Mrs. Navarrete. It had to do with Mr. or Dr. Horowitz's conduct vis-a-vis that public issue. That's what's involved here. And you can't disqualify the messenger. That's what Mr. Stern is attempting to do. It's not a personal interest.

THE COURT: All right. This case arose when the Board of Education certified tenure charges to the Commissioner of Education in early February of 1982. (Sic) And at that time Counsel, on behalf of Dr. Horowitz raised an issue as to whether certain Board members need be disqualified from voting or should have been disqualified from voting because of alleged taints upon their ability to fairly and impartially perform their duties.

And, of course, we had a proceeding with regard to an application for emergent relief and at that time I indicated certain views with respect to these issues.

But, of course, the standard that applied at that time was a different standard than applies at this time. And, therefore, it is essential that I re-visit the issue completely with respect to whether or not the allegations made here do raise a sufficient specter of a taint upon the ability of any one or more Board members to vote and to consider the charge fairly and impartially, such that that Board member or Board members should be disqualified from voting.

And we approach the task of determining whether or not there is a tainted vote with some guidance from the courts and from the Commissioner, but perhaps because of the nature of what we're dealing with, the disqualification and the issue of when one is so affected by some interest as to be disqualified because that's such a difficult issue to pin down, the guidance that we have is general in nature and then it's specific to particular case facts.

And that means that, as has been suggested, it's necessary to apply these rather general concepts to the specific facts of each case. And in most instances there is no, as it's been referred to, no bright line test as to when one is disqualified or when one is not.

Now, there are situations where there is something close to a bright line test. And those arise when there are clear indications of financial conflicts of interest or when there are specific -- what we can perhaps call familial or relation conflicts where it's clear that certain individuals cannot expect to fairly and impartially deal with matters involving, for instance, members of their family or something of -- or certain other individuals with whom they have a close personal relationship.

And in those situations we sort of have a bright line test that says in those cases the public official should not be involved and should step aside.

But in this case we deal with a more difficult and hard to define set of interests where the matter is not financial and the matter is not familial and the matter is not of the almost quasi familial relationship.

We deal here with the relationships between members of a public body and an individual who they have an infinite relationship with in the context of the professional positions that they hold as members of the Board and as Superintendent of Schools, the chief executive officer.

And in these situations when -- in these situations the judgment as to when a tainting or disqualifying factor exists is much more elusive.

If we look at the case law we indicate -- we find that generally the question that must be looked at is whether -- and this is quoting from the Van Italie case at 28 New Jersey, in this case at 268, -- the question will always be whether the circumstances could reasonably be interpreted to show that they have the likely capacity to tempt the official to depart from his sworn public duty.

The Court in Van Italie recognized the fact that local governments would be seriously handicapped if every possible interest, no matter how remote and speculative, would serve as a disqualification of an official, pointing out that if that were the case, it would discourage capable men and women from holding public office.

And the Court went on to note that while the Courts have to be very careful in scrutinizing certain circumstances with great care and condemning anything which "indicates the likelihood of corruption or favoritism" when the Courts review these situations they have to be mindful that abrogating a municipal action at the suggestion that some remote and nebulous interest is present would be to unjustifiably deprive a municipality in many important instances of the services of its duly elected or appointed officials, the determinations of municipal officials should not be approached with a general feeling of suspicion, for as Justice Holmes has said "Universal distrust creates universal incompetency".

So we note that -- well, the Courts have to be careful and, of course, all of these things apply equally to the Commissioner and to Administrative Law Judges sitting for the Commissioner in these matters and deal with -- and to all public bodies as well as municipalities.

We have to be careful in balancing the interests, that we are careful to assure that those situations which rise to a level in which there is a reasonable likelihood of corruption or favoritism or the appearance of such are condemned, but that those in which the suspicion is raised or the allegation is raised or the accusation is made of either favoritism or the appearance of such or personal interest or the appearance of such, are not automatically used as basis for eliminating the right of duly appointed or elected public officials from performing the duties for which they have been elected or appointed.

And with that as background, we proceed to look at the situation in this case and also to look at the guidance that we have from certain other cases to see whether this situation raises the kinds of concerns that would suggest removal of one or more of the Board members from their right to have voted on these charges.

Now, there has been a lot said in this case about the Colella matter. And one has to look, of course, at the Colella matter with care to see what it was that was condemned in Colella and then to weigh that against what we have here.

And in Colella we see that the charges in that case concern two incidents occurring in February and March of 1983 respectively in which it was alleged that Mrs. Colella -- I don't know if it's Miss or Mrs., it was Miss when she was my Algebra teacher, I don't know what it was here -- Ms. Colella had allegedly --

(Beginning of Tape H-6077)

THE COURT: (Continuing) -- sent what were described as scurrilous, anonymous notes to two Board members which alleged gross improprieties by a certain teacher and accusatory statements including some concerning family members.

The decision refers to the reactions of the two Board members involved. Board member Broncaccio (Phonetic) described as "extremely upset, disgusted and saddened" concerning the fact that the letter would be written and Board member Nestrian (Phonetic) describing himself as "very upset" and viewed the note as an attempt to "intimidate myself and my family".

Nestere went so far as to retain -- I'm sorry, Broncaccio went so far as to retain a handwriting expert to investigate or to look into this matter to see who had written the note.

Criminal charges were filed by both of these Board members. In this context the Administrative Law Judge in reviewing the matter concluded that neither of these individuals could properly vote.

And in doing so, she pointed out that the -- she pointed to these factors: The fact that they filed criminal charges up "upon the clear belief that she" Colella, "had sent the letters", that the note to Nestere included grossly insulting references to his family and that the letter to Broncaccio made disparaging remarks concerning the conduct of her niece and sister-in-law.

These two Board members believe that Colella attached them and their families. Broncaccio advanced personal funds to hire a handwriting expert. And then Judge LaBastille goes on to state that "most assuredly their votes to charge and remove Colella had the capacity to be effected by a personal interest in the result."

And she cites the South Plainfield case at 1975 SLD 47, in which the Board member involved who voted had been specifically the individual who gave certain records to teaching staff members who were then alleged to have disseminated this confidential information; a situation where Cerille, the Board member had clearly had a clear self interest in the disciplinary actions taken because in fact he had been engaged in the conduct which may have led to the dissemination or aided it.

So we have in the Colella case a situation where we had very specific personal familial attacks made on Board members who when faced with these went out and went to the Prosecutor, filed charges.

In the case of one, paid for part of the investigation. We have individuals who were clearly incensed by the fact that they had been and their families had been personally attacked. And that was the basis of the charges, that the letters which were sent constituted insubordination and conduct unbecoming a teaching staff member.

It was a specific response, the Board's charges, to this same specific set of facts that was causing these individuals to have these reactions and to go out and pay for investigations and file criminal charges and so forth.

And in that situation Judge LaBastille and ultimately the Commissioner agreed that these individuals had such a personal interest that they could not properly vote.

Now, with that as background, so that we are clear on what Colella actually involved, let's look at what we have in this case.

First of all, and I think we can start perhaps near the beginning. There is an allegation made that Mr.

Tronolone was tainted because he -- and of course this goes for Mrs. Navarrete too -- attended a meeting in early April with Pablo Jordan, a meeting which I think the evidence would fairly suggest was not specifically authorized by the Board in any sense. There was no Board resolution. There had not been any discussion of the full Board about the idea of going to talk to Pablo Jordan. They acted essentially on their own, although -- excuse me -- clearly they seem to have acted in a capacity as Board members.

And at that point, of course, the matter was rather new to the Board. They had only begun to learn of what had occurred, at least according to the evidence that's before me at this point. And they had a meeting. It has been suggested that the mere fact that they met with Mr. Jordan tainted their ability to fairly and impartially make judgments with respect to the question of whether to certify charges.

And we always have to remember here, although I don't think this is by any means dispositive, what we're dealing with here is not making a final determination on the charges and a determination on the punishment for the violation of those alleged tenure charges because that's not in the hands of the Board. That's in the hands of the Commissioner.

The Board acts in this matter somewhat akin to a Grand Jury. They look at the evidence and they then make some determination on whether or not there appears to be a probable cause that tenure charges have or tenure violations have occurred and they then certify the charges to the Commissioner who makes the ultimate determinations on this.

And at any rate, the allegation has been made and repeated that that meeting tainted these individuals. I've pressed Mr. Stern on a number of occasions to tell me why and, frankly, I don't think I received a satisfactory answer to why the attendance at that meeting in and of itself constituted a disqualifying act on the part of these individuals.

There is no evidence before me that would suggest that something occurred at that meeting that would have dealt a blow to the ability of these members to take a look at what occurred much later on, which was following the Stark and Stark report, task force work, the responses filed by Dr. Horowitz, the lengthy deposition he gave and so forth, there's nothing to suggest that that meeting with Pablo Jordan in early April eliminated or even affected in the slightest the individual's ability to fairly look at these potential charges later on.

Not only is there no evidence, but frankly I have no heard really a legal theory on this to suggest why that meeting tainted them. And I find nothing about that meeting that would constitute a taint on the ability of either Mr. Tronolone or Mrs. Navarrete to have ultimately voted on these charges.

Now, as we move forward we go into what we call the investigative phase. The allegations are made with regard to the investigation that Mr. Tronolone should be disqualified because of some conduct on his part or the appearance of some conduct on his part -- and I am well aware as Counsel has pointed out, that we're dealing here with two things. We're dealing with the appearance and we're dealing with the actuality. And the appearance is really more important than the actuality because the actuality of conflict is usually a more stark situation which one can more easily identify.

But the public interest is also to be protected against the appearance of possible impropriety; the appearance of taint.

Was there something about the way Mr. Tronolone conducted himself in connection with these investigations? First the task force and then the Stark and Stark investigation, which would suggest that his ability to fairly and impartially deal with the charges was tainted.

There have been suggestions made that Mr. Tronolone ran the investigation. He directed the investigation. He directed who should be deposed, who should be spoken to. He controlled what access and in fact the suggestion has been strongly made that he denied access to Dr. Horowitz to the Board and it's not so clear that it's suggested he denied access Dr. Horowitz to the investigators, but at any rate, the allegation is made that the investigation was really Mr. Tronolone. He was in charge. He was running it. He was directing it. In fact, he's -- it was suggested in argument that he was the one who picked Stark and Stark and the implication from all of this was that Mr. Tronolone, who according to the suggestion had it in for Dr. Horowitz and wanted to get him, used this investigation and directed this investigation as a vehicle to get Dr. Horowitz.

Well, when one looks at the evidence that's actually been presented here, we find that it's woefully short of establishing what has been suggested by Counsel in his arguments and perhaps by Dr. Horowitz in his testimony.

There is no doubt that the Board set up a task force. And there is no dispute about the fact that the individual who was elected to be the head of that task force happened to be the Principal in the school where Mrs. Tronolone was employed as a special education teacher.

That's about the extent of the suggestion that Mr.

Tronolone -- I'm sorry -- that Mr. DeCicco's role as Principal in that school created a -- even an appearance of conflict.

It would be very hard I suspect to conclude based solely on the fact that she was a teacher in the school to find that there was some conflict in Mr. Tronolone's ability to make a fair judgment ultimately on what came out of this task force investigation and the Stark and Stark investigation, which of course subsequently came into place and seems to have been a far more extensive -- whether one agrees with its outcome or not -- a far more extensive look into this than the task force investigation was. It's awfully hard to find that there was something about this relationship between Mrs. Tronolone and Mr. DeCicco that would have even remotely suggested an impact on Mr. Tronolone's ability to make fair and impartial judgments on the charges when they were finally brought up.

There was a suggestion made in Dr. Horowitz's testimony that perhaps Mr. -- perhaps there was too much time -- Mr. Tronolone spent too much time at the school and some kind of intimation here that, well, maybe something was going on. And in fact, there was some suggestion at one point that Mr. DeCicco had had some discussions about salary in connection with the position that he was being suggested for which happened to be one involving this referendum, separate from any of the doings in this matter, and the idea that some hours later Mr. Tronolone made the same suggestion, indicating perhaps some kind of contact.

Well, that's awfully nebulous, all of that. It's so nebulous that it doesn't even arise, as I see it, to even suggesting the possibility of some favoritism or some bias or some personal interest here.

And that I think characterizes that nebulous term, perhaps characterizes the whole idea regarding the relationship of Mr. Tronolone to Mr. DeCicco. If there were evidence in this case of a more direct and clear nature that would suggest that there was something here, perhaps that could have risen to the level of establishing a concern on the part of the public as to whether fairness was occurring and, therefore, a potential for self-interest that would have been disqualifying.

But I cannot find that this evidence and the suggestions made here with respect to this relationship constitute anything even close to something that even created an appearance. And therefore, I find that the -- what we'll call the Tronolone/DeCicco relationship in and of itself was insufficient to create a taint.

Now, with respect to the allegation that Mr.

Tronolone directed this investigation, I heard that statement made several times, but if you look at the evidence to see whether there's any real indication of that, it's awfully hard to find.

Yes, Mr. Tronolone was Board President and, yes, the Board looked to him because he apparently had some contacts with the School Board Association for some suggestions with regard to the name of a law firm to become the outside investigator.

And, yes, apparently he made some suggestions, although there was some indication that he consulted with some other people as well.

And even if he had been the one who had suggested Stark and Stark and perhaps maybe he had made that suggestion and there were no other suggestions made.

The mere fact that he suggested that Stark and Stark be brought in as the independent investigator, in and of itself certainly doesn't suggest that he was going to run Stark and Stark's investigation or that he had any control over who they would talk to or how they would go about the business they were hired for.

Interestingly enough, there's been no testimony presented by either side here from anyone from Stark and Stark.

But in the absence of some real evidence that Mr.

Tronolone was able or even suggested to them or even tried to control who the attorneys for Stark and Stark decided that they should speak to and who they should depose and who they should question and what documents they should look at, it would be awfully presumptuous for me to conclude that Stark and Stark allowed itself and the attorneys who were involved in this allowed themselves to be directed by the Board President as to how they should conduct this investigation.

And while nothing is beyond the realm of possibility, on the evidence before me I certainly couldn't make the conclusion that those attorneys when brought in and given the task of looking into this allowed themselves to be co-opted in that fashion.

Now it may well be that Dr. Horowitz thinks they were because we can assume that he doesn't agree with the results of the Stark and Stark investigation -- in fact, he's made that very plain in the context of his response -- but no one here is suggesting, at least in this context in the taint situation, that anybody had to agree with what Stark and Stark did.

The question is how did they conduct the investigation and was it reasonably fair. And I say reasonably because in the context of almost any investigation someone will probably point to something and say well, they should have done this, they should have done that, they should have spoken to this person, they didn't speak to that person, they shouldn't have done this. That's almost endemic in the fact that when there's an investigation there are often two sides and when the results come out, there are people on both side who look at that investigation and they can pick it apart and they can see faults with it and they can see things they don't even think were fair.

That doesn't mean the investigation was controlled by anybody; that it was purposely aimed at anybody or that it was engineered.

And while the allegation was made here that Mr. Tronolone conducted -- controlled it, I just don't see any evidence to that effect. The same thing really with the DeCicco situation and the task force situation. Although the suggestion is made that -- and I have to say that I think perhaps in the context of this whole thing and one has to look at the whole context, that the task force situation in and of itself can't be isolated from the fact that there was an ongoing investigation that brought in Stark and Stark and that involved a lot more in the investigation than simply the task force.

When we look at the evidence regarding the task force, once again there seems to be an absence of any real evidence to suggest, much less to lead to a conclusion, that Mr. Tronolone actually engineered that investigation or directed it or that anybody reasonably could think that he did.

Now, merely the fact that he's the Board President and merely the fact that he has some general connection with DeCicco or that he had some general connection perhaps with Stark and Stark in the sense of having had suggested that is not sufficient to even create the appearance -- and again, we have to focus on the appearance here -- the appearance that Mr. Tronolone had some control over the investigation. If that were the case, then this would be a very easy situation. It would be almost bright-line to suggest that merely because somebody happens to suggest who the investigator should be, that automatically they control the investigation or that the public should think that they controlled it.

That would be absurd.

I see no evidence here from which I could conclude that the public had any concern or had any reason to be concerned that Mr. Tronolone was running this investigation.

Now, I have to say this in the context of something else, which I have to touch on here. And that is, although there is not a lot of evidence in this case yet concerning -- and there may not be -- concerning the overall relationship between Dr. Horowitz and this Board, I don't have to be blind to the fact here -- and I think there's some evidence of this and in fact there has been some testimony about this -- that this relationship with the Board and its individual members has not always been a smooth one. And there's no question that some Board members and Dr. Horowitz probably, have some very strong feelings about each other.

And that's probably normal in the context of public business between a Board and a Superintendent because this is a relationship which is unlike many that are dealt with in the context of even taint proceedings where you have a Board or a Judge or a body which has a short and limited contact with an individual and there is really little if any personal knowledge of each other and they don't work together and, therefore, it's a very discreet situation.

In this situation we've got people who work with each other every day and who had a very close professional contact. And no doubt in that situation there were some strong feelings and there were perhaps some likes and dislikes; and there were perhaps some strong views on how well or how poorly Dr. Horowitz performed his duties and he may have had some strong views about how the Board members performed their duties. And that context can't be totally overlooked here.

But when we look at the investigative process here and we look to see whether in the context of that there's any indication that the Board President or that the public would think that the Board President controlled that, -- there may be some members of the public who were so certain at the time that this was all going on that Mr. Tronolone was not a fan of Dr. Horowitz's that they might perhaps have conceived that oh, you know, this investigation, Mr. Tronolone, he doesn't like Dr. Horowitz and he's involved in some way in making suggestions here. Oh, automatically Mr. Tronolone is running this and it's going to come out the way he wants it.

Well, there might be some people in the public who would think that and people are entitled to their opinions, but in this context I have to deal with this in the context of evidence and reasonable implications that arise therefrom and from what has been presented, I do not see any basis for concluding that Mr. Tronolone's conduct in the context of this investigation process constituted action which would either taint him directly because of some actual conflict or would taint him because of an appearance or a reasonable appearance of such conflict.

Now, the next -- I guess the next category that we have to deal with in the context of these suggestions here deals with the question of Mrs. Navarrete.

Now there is no doubt that in October Mrs. Navarrete had expressed a position in the sense that she had come forward and filed tenure charges against Dr. Horowitz. And while she did not vote on those charges, the mere fact that she filed the charges undoubtedly suggested to the public -- and again, because we're dealing with perception, we can look at the fact that she filed the charges almost separate from the fact of whether she voted -- undoubtedly that might suggest to the public that a person who files charges against someone has an opinion in favor of those charges or believes that those charges are probably true.

No doubt there are situations where someone will file charges without any notion of whether they're true or not or any feeling about it. But because something has occurred, they may think it's appropriate to put this into the public forum in the sense of saying, well, you know, we hear about this, here's some charges, let's vote on them.

But I think more realistically people will look at a situation where someone files charges and feel that that person has some belief that those charges are warranted. And in fact, it might be -- it might well be of questionable propriety for someone who didn't think the charges had some reasonable likelihood of being true to even throw them out into the arena to have them voted on.

Well, we have Mrs. Navarrete filing charges in October. And the public could have looked at that and drawn whatever conclusions it wanted to draw. But as the Mackler case holds, there is nothing improper about a member of a public body who files the charges to vote on those charges.

It's simply not the case that the mere filing of charges constitutes a conflict. And although I think Mr. Stern has backed off on that in the context of the argument here, originally there was the suggestion made -- and I think it's worth addressing because it's even come up I think here -- that the mere filing of the charge was sufficient to disqualify her.

The case law and common sense suggested that's not the case. So there was nothing about the fact that Mrs. Tronolone filed the charges in October that would have disqualified her from voting at that time.

She chose not to vote. There's been some testimony and there's some document in here about why she chose not to vote. I don't see anything about the circumstances at that time that would have required her not to vote.

Now, she suggested that she wanted to keep her options open. The letter that she filed with the Board is not quite as explicit and it's open to some -- I think it's fairly open to some interpretation as to what was going on in her mind. One could even look at that letter and without her explanation or separate from her explanation, one could think that perhaps she really did think that because she filed the charges it was better that she not vote.

Even if that was what was in her mind, and she has testified that that was not the actual reason, but even if we were to assume for purposes of this proceeding that the reason why she did not vote was because she believed that it was better that she didn't because she had filed the charge, the law would not have required her to do that.

And there is nothing about the fact that she decided not to vote that in and of itself suggests that she didn't think that she could fairly vote. She might have questioned whether there might be some perception on the part of the public, but the case law seems to preclude that as a concern because if the case law was concerned about the fact that the Board -- and the Mackler case was decided by the Supreme Court in 1954 -- if the Supreme Court had been concerned that the public would have a perception that the charging party had an predilection and couldn't fairly and impartially consider the -- maybe predilection isn't the right word -- if the Supreme Court was concerned that the public would look at the situation of a charging party and say, oh, the charging party can't fairly judge these charges because here she is the charging party.

So, therefore, on the basis of public perception as opposed to actual conflict, we're going to bar the charging party from voting, well, the Court didn't go that way. The Court apparently was convinced that the public perception would not be that the charging party wasn't fairly and impartially looking at the charges. Even if the charging party had some strong belief that the charges were sustainable because after all, when one files a charge, one is supposed to look at the evidence in support of that and make some judgments and then decide whether or not it appears to that individual the charges are warranted.

And there's nothing improper about that. That's what a public official is supposed to. And the mere fact that she filed the charges, as the Court has said, would not have disqualified her. Therefore, the fact that she chose not to vote did not set a precedent because it was not something that she was required to do and it did not set a precedent that would have barred her from voting on the later set of charges, which were much identical to the first set, although they included some other things as well.

Now, with regard to her reaction to the first vote, the 4/4 vote, that reaction, as described by Mrs. Rose, was rather strong and it could be interpreted in a personal sense I suppose because as described by the witness, there was a statement about where's my retribution. And then there was some testimony about other statements involving retribution, some of which might have been more of the Board's retribution.

Well, retribution is a strong word and Mrs. Navarrete suggested in her testimony that it's not a word that's in her common parlance.

This was a situation in which, from the testimony, even from that of Mrs. Rose I think, there's an indication that the Board, upon learning of the circumstances surrounding the Bradley Gardens matter and the letter and the apparent -- and here I have to say and be clear about the apparent lack of authorization because I've made no judgments with regard to that at this point -- but the Board looking at this at that point could have looked at it and seen what appeared to them to be a lack of authorization for the signing of the letters, what might look like a forgery, what might look like misrepresentation, what might look like deception, what might look like putting the Board in the appearance of having misrepresented to the public what was going on with regard to this bond issue because, after all, the Board is the public body here which was standing behind this bond issue, and a lot of things that might have made this Board very upset and very angry and might have caused the Board as a body and the individual members of the Board to have some real question about the conduct of its Superintendent in the performance of his public duties.

And while the evidence might ultimately not support their view, it's certainly fair to say that this Board, including the individual members, including even Mrs. Rose, were quite upset and disturbed, shocked by all of this.

Mrs. Tronolone -- I'm sorry -- Mrs. Navarrete files a charge, a series of charges based on the Bradley Gardens matter which undoubtedly she thought were warranted and which there was some evidence to look at and if one judged the evidence in a certain way would appear to support the charges.

And I say that because obviously not every member of the Board may view the charges exactly the same; not everyone may have accepted everything exactly the same as any other member, but some members of the Board certainly at the time these charges were voted on, had some strong belief as to what that evidence and what that investigation had disclosed and undoubtedly had some strong belief that Dr. Horowitz had conducted himself in an improper fashion.

And what happens from this vote is a tie vote, which does not certify the charges.

Mrs. Tronolone comes back in the room and learns -- Mrs. Navarrete, I'm sorry, comes back into the room and learns that the charges have not been sustained. In fact, they haven't been voted down -- they've been voted down by the mere fact that there is a tie vote.

And at that point it's alleged that she made a strong statement which could be interpreted as suggesting that she, as an individual Board member, and her other statements, one of her other statements, that the Board as a Board is not going to get its response -- it's reaction -- it's not going to get something back in regard -- it's not going to get action against Dr. Horowitz for what they perceive, Mrs. Navarrete and some, if not all of the Board members, perceived as being serious misconduct on his part.

It isn't surprising at that point that a Board member might have a strong reaction, a strong negative reaction to what occurred.

Does the fact that Mrs. Navarrete -- and we'll take it for the purposes of this application at this point -- if you were to take the worst case scenario that she did in fact say "Where's my retribution", does that indicate that she has such a personal interest here that she could not fairly and impartially have voted on the charges when they came up the second time?

Well, here we start to go back into the Colella situation because here we have to look at the nature of the personal interest that's alleged.

The Board learned that a letter had been drafted and signed with two names on it, Dr. Horowitz's and Mrs. Navarrete's. At no time, at least during the time that the Board was considering the charges, either the first time of the second time, does it appear that there was any suggestion that Mrs. Navarrete had in fact signed the letter and was now backing off from that and was now not telling the truth about having signed it, nor, at least on the evidence before me at this point, is there any indication that there was any serious or perhaps any suggestion that Mrs. Navarrete had in fact authorized that her name be placed on the document, even if she didn't sign it.

What the Board was faced with was a letter which had been signed with her name. Who signed it might be in dispute, but she was not one of the people who was being looked at as having signed it. Who authorized that her name be signed was being looked at, but she was not one of the persons who was being looked at as having authorized the signature.

Does that kind of situation involve the kind of personal interest on her part that Nestere and Broncaccio had, the Board members in Colella? There's no question that Mrs. Navarrete was upset by the fact that her name had been used. There's no question that undoubtedly she had some personal reaction to that.

It would be, I suppose, not consonant with human nature not to have some reaction to the fact that you saw your name there. But is that what we dealt with -- is that what was dealt with in Colella? Is that the kind of situation, as Counsel suggests, that's on all fours or within the very close to being on all fours with Colella?

In Colella we had letters written that have specific and apparently very nasty, I take it, personal allegations against members of the families of Board members. In fact they're described I think as being disparaging comments concerning family members and grossly insulting. I quote: "Grossly insulting" references to one of the Board member's families.

Is that the same thing as seeing your name put on a document where you're not suggested as being the person who did anything wrong in connection with that name getting there? I don't think so.

We're dealing with degrees. We're dealing with perhaps fine lines. We're dealing with the question of public perception. We're dealing with things that are not easy to pin down and not easy to create tests for.

And it's, I suppose, possible that someone -- some other Judge can conceivably have a different viewpoint on this, but I look at the situation and I look at Colella and I look at what happened there and I look what happened here in connection with whether the appearance of the name of Navarrete on the letter engendered the kind of personal interest that you had in this case, in Colella, and I jus' don't see it.

It's very clear that where the writer of the letter in Colella was going after the members of a family and making -- and we don't have the description of what these are except in terms like "gross remarks" and "scurrilous remarks" and "disparaging comments about the family members" and so forth.

Those are such personal kinds of things. And those are the kinds of things that strike home with an individual and strike at the heart of an individual so much that it would clearly create a personal interest in getting this person.

Does this do that? I don't think that one can quite go to that point of saying that merely by seeing one's name there when there was no suggestion that she had been involved, there was no accusation against her, there was no disparagement of her here, I don't think it rises to the level of the Colella situation.

Now that would be a different case. This would be an entirely different case, as Mr. Herbert acknowledged. This would be an entirely different case if at the time or subsequently there were some suggestions anywhere -- and if there are, they're not before me -- there were some suggestions anywhere that Mrs. Navarrete had a role in connection with that letter, that she was trying to hide something about that letter; that she knew what was going on at the time of the letter; that she had been part and parcel of what was happening when that letter was written and when that letter was signed.

If that was the case at all, if there was any suggestion about that, if that had been raised, then I absolutely would agree that Mrs. Navarrete's personal interest in that situation would be one that would be much more akin to the Colella situation because one could then look at it and say here's somebody who in the context of the very thing being investigated, the very thing that is being suggested as creating the taint, that is the name on the letter and the fact that she found the name -- saw the name on the letter and that that caused her to have this personal reaction, if she were alleged to have had something to do with that, arguably, then I would say that there would probably be a personal interest such as to raise the taint.

But that's not alleged here. I have heard no evidence or even any suggestion in argument that that's the situation that was faced by Mrs. Navarrete at the time or that the Board had any reason to think that that was the situation, whether the public had any reason to think that that was the situation at that point in the course of events.

And in that situation I don't think that that rises to the level of the kinds of things that we have in Colella or in some of the other cases where it has been determined that there was a personal interest, such as to disqualify one.

Now, did Mrs. Navarrete have some personal interest in a remote sense? Did she want to see perhaps the individual who had used her name brought to justice, so to speak? I suppose so. It wouldn't be part of human nature if she didn't.

But did that rise to such a level -- that personal interest -- and I think it's fair to say that every Board member had, to a degree, a personal interest in protecting their integrity, the integrity of a body on which they sat against what might have appeared to be, to the public, an action on the part of the Board that misled the public because the public looks at this whole thing and it's not clear whether the public distinguishes between the actions of the Superintendent and the actions of the Board. The Board is the one that comes to the public and says we want you to vote in favor of this bond issue and here's what we represent to be the dollar figures and so forth. And in fact, that's not what may have been the case. The public may have some real concern about what the Board is doing and every Board member may have some personal feeling and some personal interest in defending the Board as a body and their own integrity in the sense that they don't want the public to think that they went out and misled the public.

So everybody has a certain degree of personal interest, but do those personal interests rise to the level of disqualifying them? I don't think so and I don't think the facts concerning the letter and Mrs. Navarrete's name being on there would rise to that level.

So that Mrs. Navarrete's reaction, even if we take the worst case scenario, as described by Mrs. Rose, I don't believe is indicative of the kind of personal interest. It's not the kind of reaction that I find to b so obviously a personal and direct and specific and so over-involving and all-consuming kind of personal interest that it should have suggested to the public, which of course may not have even known about that reaction and there's no evidence that the public would have known about that reaction so as to create to the public outside the Board itself the perception of a taint.

I don't think that that rises to that level.

Now, we then move on to the January situation and the investigation.

The January situation has to be taken both in isolation by itself and in the context, I think, of the entire scenario here because the January situation, that is the filing of the tenure charges in January, the vote on the tenure charges, Mrs. Navarrete's role there, none of that is completely separate from what was going on before.

We are once again faced with a Board that had before it information that had been brought together through a rather lengthy investigative process, and which on its face may well have suggested to every member of the Board and in fact the Board's actions prior to January strongly support the fact that every member of the Board to some degree or another was dissatisfied with the conduct of the Superintendent and was concerned with whether the Bradley Gardens affair had been handled properly.

So that this was a Board that did not come to the January vote completely -- it was not a -- I think it's fair to say voting on this on a totally clean slate and completely without reference to what had gone on before. Obviously they weren't because this was a matter in which there had been an extensive investigation, responses to that and so forth.

Now, when the investigation began concerning Mr. Donte's accusations, when that began and was eventually passed on by Mr. Cardaneo to the Superintendent, the Board was unaware of that as far as we know.

The Superintendent received the letter -- received information about a letter December 16th. Mr. Herbert suggests that at that point he did nothing and only began investigating this with any seriousness after he learned about the tenure charges being filed by Dr. Ryan.

One could, I suppose, draw that conclusion if one wanted to. On the other hand, Dr. Horowitz has proffered an explanation involving the Christmas vacation period and the circumstances of the timing and such that individuals were not available or it was deemed not appropriate during the Christmas recess period to investigate.

Evidence has been presented about the work schedules of certain individuals, one I suppose could decide either way in this based on what's before me. It's not a situation I think that's clear-cut one way or the other as to exactly what was going on at the time.

And I prefer, I think, rather than to try to, at this point in the case at least, make a conclusion -- draw a conclusion as to whether Dr. Horowitz suddenly raised this thing when he got the charges to look at it more in the context of what does it mean that he did advise the Board that he was looking into something and he was passing it on to them to look into about Mrs. Navarrete.

Now, when he advised the Board on January 23rd, 1992 -- I'm sorry, not January 23rd -- on January 16th, 1992 the Board became aware of the fact that there was some suggestion that Mrs. Navarrete might have done something that wasn't proper.

That was the extent really of the investigative statement -- the investigative report. One might look at this and decide that Dr. Horowitz had drawn conclusions, but, of course, he had passed it on to the Board. He had not taken action against Mrs. Navarrete. He couldn't take action against her.

What he did was he passed on to the Board what he had found, according to his report, and drew some conclusions by it, which he labeled as preliminary and said here it is and I'm uncomfortable and you look at it.

At that point the Board was on notice, so to speak, that Mrs. Navarrete might have done something, something that was totally unrelated to anything that had to do with the series of charges that were pending against Dr. Horowitz.

They were not charges that Mrs. Navarrete had done anything improper in connection with Bradley Gardens or for that matter with any of the other things that were listed in Dr. Ryan's charges, the non-Bradley Gardens matters.

They were a separate, totally separate, set of circumstances in which he suggested that perhaps Mrs. Navarrete had done something wrong.

Now, as I understand Mr. Stern's theory here, and I've asked him about this several times, there are at least two aspects to the alleged taint regarding the investigation: The first of these is in respect to the fact that a charge is filed in and of itself. And the suggestion that merely because Dr. Horowitz filed a charge and it involved Mrs. Navarrete -- I won't call it a charge -- the investigation and it involved Mrs. Navarrete, that she was disqualified.

Well, as has been suggested here, and I think it was suggested even at the arguments back in February, there is a great danger in any policy determination that would hold that merely because a member of a public body is the -- either the target of or their name has been raised in the context of a "investigation" by someone who they are charged with supervising or reviewing, that that would automatically preclude them from being involved in any review of the conduct of that individual, that that would be a dangerous precedent.

It would set up a situation in which someone who knows that they are -- that charge are pending against them or contemplated against them or that an investigation is occurring about them, could simply create an investigation on paper and let the public body know about it and say ah ha, this person is now precluded from making any judgments about me.

So in the theoretical sense any policy that would be -- would allow for that kind of automatic disqualification would be very dangerous.

If we take it down for the situation here or if we take it down to a more -- perhaps a more concrete level, if there is some "substance" to the investigation in the sense that it's not something created one morning on a piece of paper with nothing at all behind it, but instead it's something in which there is some factual material that is actually being looked into, that's more akin to what we've got here.

And the question there is would the existence of that kind of investigation create a taint on the person being "investigated".

It's probably not terribly hard I suppose for someone who wants to to look at something, find something that actually is in writing or that exists or something rather than coming out of whole cloth, and suggesting that there might be something wrong here about the conduct of a particular individual and here's some documents and I want you to look into this.

Unfortunately, accusations can be made sometimes without a lot of support, but with something that one can point at and say something happened here, something happened there and therefore, I think you better look into it.

And while I'm not suggesting that's what happened here, once again one would have to be very careful before one would create a policy that would say that anybody whose name has come up in an investigation that has some background is disqualified.

So what we have here then is a situation where there is some background to this investigation. I say that in the sense that there are letters that came in. There was some allegation that had been made by Mr. Donte. There was some allegation apparently made by another individual who was identified.

It's not something that's totally out of whole cloth. It may not mean anything. It may not have involved any impropriety at all. The facts asserted by the these individuals may be totally false. And in fact in the case of Mr. Donte, it may well be that it was shown to have been false.

But the point is that there was something back there. It wasn't something that Dr. Horowitz sat down on the morning of the 9th or 10th of January over breakfast and said I'm going to create an investigation and what could it be, what could the scenario be and he started writing down something that was entirely fictitious and had no backing at all. There was something here, even if it didn't amount to anything.

So he takes this and he sends it off to the Board. Does that disqualify Mrs. Navarrete?

I don't think that the state of the law, as best as one can glean it from what we've got here, suggests that that automatically disqualified Mrs. Navarrete.

Had Dr. Horowitz made allegations that struck at the Bradley Gardens matter and Mrs. Navarrete's role or purported role or conduct in connection with the Bradley Gardens matter in terms of the alleged misrepresentations, the letter and all of these things, and had that been the subject of this so-called investigation, one might have a more difficult task in deciding whether that would disqualify her because one might then say well, you know, they're both accused or they're both being investigated in the context of the Bradley Gardens matter, so maybe it wouldn't be appropriate to allow her to vote because she has an interest in protecting her position here because she may be guilty of the things he's alleged to be guilty of or maybe they're, you know, maybe they worked together on this and now they're trying to pawn it off on each other or something.

In that context maybe that would require that she not vote. And I'm not making a judgment -- I'm certainly not making a decision on that because that's not the facts here.

The facts of this investigation, the January 16th investigation, have nothing at all to do with Bradley Gardens or as far as I'm aware, with any of the other matters that were pending before the Board -- and Mrs. Navarrete is a member of the Board -- at the time of the vote in late January. They're totally separate.

And even if Mrs. Navarrete had done something wrong in the context of this Buildings and Grounds matter, even if she had done something for which she could be reasonably found to have done something wrong, that would not, as long as she was a member of the Board, seem to preclude her from voting on whether or not Dr. Horowitz had done something wrong in a totally separate matter that was before the Board. Until such time as she might be suspended by the Board, if they had the right to do that or removed, she is a member of the Board.

And in the absence of the kind of particularized charges involving the same set of circumstances of the charges against Dr. Horowitz, if that would be -- I'm not deciding -- if that would be a disqualifying factor. In this context where they're totally separate tracks, they're totally separate matters, I see nothing about this investigation being brought to the attention of the Board that would suggest that they should have turned to Mrs. Navarrete or she should have on her own concluded that I can no longer vote on the charges against Dr. Horowitz because he has raised to the Board the possibility that I have done something wrong in a totally separate matter.

I don't think that there's any law, and nothing has been cited to me here, that would suggest that this kind of situation works what we might call a bright-line disqualification, an automatic disqualification.

Now, having said that, we now go on to what happened when Mrs. Navarrete, having learned of this, responded.

Does the response of the January 23rd, 1992 memo, does that suggest that Mrs. Navarrete should be disqualified?

Mrs. Navarrete received this document as did the Board under some interesting circumstances. And I don't at this point intend to make any conclusions of what they all meant, but she was brought in and questioned by Dr. Horowitz about the Donte allegations, gave her version and left and apparently Mr. Donte ultimately seemed to have agreed with what she said, more or less.

Another set of allegations involving another Buildings and Grounds worker then were looked into by Dr. Horowitz the next day. For reasons which he has explained in his explanation he did not choose either before speaking with that individual or after speaking with that individual to bring Mrs. Navarrete in and to question her again and then perhaps to find out whether that individual was also going to recant as Mr. Donte apparently had done when faced with whatever Mrs. Navarrete's version might be.

So when Mrs. Navarrete got this, given the way this investigation had been conducted, she might well have wondered what was going on and why she wasn't given the same opportunity with regard to the second assertions as she was with regard to the first ones.

And in her letter she expresses a view that her rights were violated, that she wasn't informed or given the opportunity to respond and I think that's clear with respect to the second set of allegations; and then she makes some demands to protect her name, as she says, demanding that Dr. Horowitz rewrite his report to correct -- as to her statements, that he not refer to rumor and innuendo and that he apologize and that the Board reprimand him.

There is no doubt at this point that Mrs. Navarrete was upset about the way in which Dr. Horowitz may have conducted this investigation, and undoubtedly she was upset about his suggestion because he worded it in a way that is not simply a here's some statements, you look into it. He worded it in a more direct way. He drew some preliminary conclusions. And there's some language in here that could be construed as indicated he was making some judgments rather than simply being a -- solely a fact gatherer who was passing it on to the Board.

So she had some reason I think at this point to view what he had said as being if not an out-and-out accusation, certainly something close to that and she reacted with this letter.

Now, does this reaction suggest the inability to fairly vote on the pending charges on Bradley Gardens and the other charges?

Well, I have to look at this in the whole context of this entire matter. I have to look at this not solely as to this particular piece of paper and what it stands for, but I have to look at the fact that Bradley Gardens was not a new issue; that Bradley Gardens had been voted on before, that Mrs. Navarrete had filed charges before, that she had undoubtedly made some judgments before, that she did not come to the January vote as did nobody on this Board, they couldn't have come to this with a completely blank view of the Bradley Gardens matter.

The matter was too prominent and had been going on for too long and had been the subject of too much activity for this Board to have addressed this matter in January with a totally clean slate as to these charges.

And whether that creates any other problems in this case is not the issue at this moment. The issue at this moment is whether or not Mrs. Navarrete's response to this investigation would disqualify her from fairly and impartially voting on those charges.

And while I could conceive that she might at this point have had some strong feeling about Dr. Horowitz, I think one has to realistically look at this in the whole context and say that there is nothing about this with -- I'm sorry -- there is nothing about this which would suggest that her ability to have a fair and impartial view on Bradley Gardens, which is the primary subject of the tenure charges filed by Dr. Ryan, was impacted by this.

Now perhaps what I'm saying here and I think I'm trying to look at this realistically -- perhaps what I'm saying here is that it's probably unrealistic to suspect that by the time this letter arrived or by the time this reaction manifested itself that Mrs. Navarrete did not already have before her a lot of things regarding Bradley Gardens which she had undoubtedly already made some judgments about.

I think, in all honesty, and in what might be seen as a -- what is I think a realistic assessment of the situation, rather than perhaps trying to be too idealisti about this, Mrs. Navarrete, who brought the charges in October and who had seen this investigative material and undoubtedly made some judgments about it, came to this January vote as I suspect that most Board members did -- certainly the ones that were on the Board in October, which I think was the -- it was the same Board because the election was later -- most Board members had to have some strong feelings about this matter one way or the other.

It would be, I think, the height of absurdity to suggest that this Board took a completely fresh look at this matter in January with no residuum from their previous review of what was before them.

Now, perhaps one might argue that somehow or another that tainted the whole Board. Perhaps one might argue that having acted back in April with the reprimand, and this is a part of this case that having acted back in April that they couldn't properly have acted in October, and having looked at the matter in October and not having been able to do anything but get a four/four vote, that in January they shouldn't have been allowed to look at it again and they shouldn't have been allowed to vote again because the whole thing was tainted at that point.

Maybe someone might argue that and that has not been argued here except in a different sense, in the context of the -- what you've called the res judicata argument, Counsel. But that's not really the subject of this particular taint claim.

The particular taint claim here is Mrs. Navarrete and I am unwilling to conclude here that what happened in regard to this so-called investigation and the response is a sufficient basis to deny Mrs. Navarrete the right to vote, given the whole context of this case because what we're dealing with here is not a discreet and limited issue, as we sometimes have in cases where something happens that's quickly addressed by a Board, there is no long history, there is no lengthy investigation, there is no prior vote, there is no prior action of the Board. You don't have a record, so to speak which everybody sort of brings to them to the ultimate -- to the subsequent vote that we had here. In most cases that's not the case. In this case it is.

So when this Board voted in January it's hard to imagine that whatever happened here in connection with this could have been something that would have ousted Mrs. Navarrete's ability to make a judgment on these charges if it had not already been tainted before. And since I find no taint to have existed prior to January and given what I view as -- I believe is the only realistic way to look at this entire matter, that is as a sort of a continual, I don't think that this situation and this response in January is such as to raise the kinds of personal interests and conflicts that are suggested in the cases.

Now finally, what we're dealing with here is an allegation that a School Superintendent in the context of his conduct of Board business on behalf of the public engaged in misconduct, what has been alleged to as misconduct, deception, some implication in a forgery, things of a very serious nature.

It's fair to say that the public, both the citizens of Bridgewater-Raritan District as well as the broader public as the interests are represented by the Commissioner, generally have a right to have those allegations thrashed out in the context of a proceeding of this nature, so that it can be determined whether the Superintendent is wholly blameless and his name should be restored or whether he is to be blamed and is to suffer the consequences for his misconduct.

It would be -- and it is only in the rarest of circumstances that that ability of the public to have the charges resolved on their merits is limited by a determination that because of some flaw in the procedural process, that the merits should not be reached. And while we know, and for very good reasons, that there are times when the procedures have to stand in the way of getting at the merits, at the same time one has to be very careful, as has been suggested in the case law, in the Mackler case, -- I'm sorry, in the Van Italie case -- we have to be very careful in making that balance between what we might call the procedures, as important as they are, and the ultimate determination on the merits.

We must be very careful not to, unless absolutely necessary, allow the procedures to get in the way of the substance.

I have given careful consideration to the suggestion here that this Board's actions were tainted. I have viewed that in the context of a continuum of activity surrounding this investigation and I have tried to assess that in the most reasonable fashion that I can.

I don't think -- although in the context of going through this we've had to look at the segments of this investigation and of this vote and the subsequent vote and so forth, we've had to look at the segments -- I don't think one can solely do it that way. One has to look at the whole picture as well.

And looking at the whole picture I find a Board which started out in this proceeding back in April of 1991 already having before it something that apparently to the entire Board, because of the action they took, seemed to involve some improprieties of whatever level and degree and seriousness the individual Board members and the Board as a whole may have viewed it. They did not start out in April nor did they face this in October nor did they face this in January without already having before them something that implied that something went on that didn't seem right, and that in fact something had gone on that they could put their fingers on, whatever fault there was, whatever blame there was, they had a letter that had been signed by people -- signed by -- at least in the case of Mrs. Navarrete which apparently had not been authorized by the Board or by her individually. They knew about that. They knew that there was some indication that something had happened to this $905,000 figure and that it had exploded in size.

They knew that there was something that didn't look right. In fact they acted on it in April.

So that when they approached this as individual Board members later on, despite the distractions that might have occurred in connection with some of the suggestions, some of the allegations, the ultimate Navarrete investigation and so forth, one sort of has to take those and look at those as being almost -- I don't want to call them side shows, that's not what I'm really trying to imply here -- but they are things that came along and sort of tagged on to the back, rode along on the context of the main problem which was what happened with Bradley Gardens and did somebody do something wrong here.

And while there is no question in my mind that a fair assessment of the relationship between Dr. Horowitz and this Board -- and I say -- and individual members of the Board -- which suggested there was a rocky road, that there were personality clashes, that there were problems in terms of the professional relationships and so forth and so on, I don't see any of those having risen to a level that they overcome even on a matter of perception that they can reasonable be seen as overcoming what was at the bottom of this which was this Board's ultimate concern with whether there was some wrongdoing in connection with Bradley Gardens and the fact that at some point this Board came to a conclusion and -- the Board members came to a conclusion that they better go forward with this, that they better bring these charges because they weren't satisfied with what had occurred. They saw the potential for some serious wrongdoing. They could not resolve the matter with Dr. Horowitz. And there's been testimony -- the record is replete with testimony that there were attempts to resolve this in a way that would have removed them from the district on an amicable basis prior to any charges being filed. They could not resolve that for whatever reason.

And that, therefore, as Mrs. Navarrete determined in October and as Dr. Ryan determined in January, something had to happen to bring this matter to the attention of the Commissioner and let the Commissioner, who is the one who decides this matter, not the Board as to whether or not there have indeed been improprieties, let the Commissioner look at this.

Having said all that, I find that the allegations of taint in this matter as to Mr. Tronolone and Mrs. Navarrete have not been and ultimately -- although I've referred to this previously, I'll say it again -- with regard to Dr. Ryan as a charging party -- have not been established.

I find no basis for concluding that there was either an actual conflict of interest or that there was a reasonable public perception of a conflict of interest that would have suggested that any of these Board members who have been alleged to have been tainted could not, in the context of this proceeding, in the context of the entire situation, fairly and impartially made a determination on these tenure charges.

Ultimately the Board has determined that the matter was serious enough to require that the Commissioner of Education look at the entire matter through this hearing process before me and determine whether these charges are sustainable or not.

If they're not, then Dr. Horowitz's name will be cleared, and if they are, then he will suffer whatever consequences are appropriate.

I do not see this proceeding as having been tainted by these matters which have been raised.

I think that Counsel, in good faith, has attempted to establish what he saw and what undoubtedly Dr. Horowitz saw as problems with the process. But I am not convinced that he has sustained the burden of showing that this proceeding on the part of this Board or its individual members was tainted.

And, therefore, I conclude that these charges must go forward on their merits. We have been here for quite s time. I suspect strongly that everybody is dying to stand up, walk around, so we will recess until 1:15 at which point we will continue with the merits.

MR. HERBERT: Your Honor, may I suggest one thing?

Could Counsel and I confer with you for about fifteen minutes?

THE COURT: Okay. Do you want to do that first and then we'll break until 1:30?

MR. HERBERT: Yes, your Honor.

THE COURT: I think everybody has been very patient this morning and I think I shouldn't rush everybody back in. All right, 1:30.

(Luncheon recess held)

THE COURT: All right. Good afternoon. The record will reflect that after we recessed, before lunch, Counsel and I had some discussion in chambers regarding future scheduling in this matter.

Counsel have indicated to me that it is clear to them that we will not be able to complete this case before the conclusion of Wednesday, which was the last scheduled hearing date.

We will continue the matter, assuming that to be so, I have no reason to doubt it, we will continue this matter on August 10th is the Monday, Mr. Herbert?

APPENDIX B

TENURE CHARGES

CHARGE I

During his time in office the Superintendent has allowed the business administrator to present bills to the Board of Education and has received authorization to pay bills for which there was no valid signed contract.

Section 3301 of the Bridgewater-Raritan School District Operations Manual provides:

> All contracts incumbering district funds shall be in writing and approved by the Business Office prior to finalization.

Section 3300 provides, in part:

> It is the policy of the Board that the Administration strictly observe the letter and the spirit of all laws and regulations relating to expenditures by the school system... The Board holds the Superintendent and Board Secretary/Assistant Superintendent for Business directly responsible for carrying out this policy...

The N.J.S.A. requires that no public body may make payments without a signed, valid contract.

The Superintendent's failure to follow N.J.S.A. and Board Policy with respect to contracts and payments constitutes conduct unbecoming his position of public trust as a District Superintendent.

CHARGE II

The Superintendent participated in the writing of the 1991-1992 District Budget. In that Budget there was the presentation of line items that were intended to mislead the reader as to the true intent of the Administration. This budget was presented to the voters for the District voters to vote on.

Section 2210 of the Bridgewater-Raritan School District Operations Manual provides a Code of Ethics that in part reads:

> 2. Professional school administrators obey local, state, and national laws; hold themselves to high ethical and moral standards...

The Superintendent's presentation to the voting public of budget line item expenses that were intended to deceive the reader constitutes conduct unbecoming his position of public trust as a District Superintendent.

CHARGE III

Section 2210 of the Bridgewater-Raritan School District Operations Manual provides a Code of Ethics that in part reads:

> 2. Professional school administrators obey local, state, and national laws; hold themselves to high ethical and moral standards...

In his efforts to have Bridgewater Township and Raritan Borough Councils approve the 1989-1990 District Budget, which Budget had been defeated in the annual election, the Superintendent presented to the Township and Borough Councils that the student enrollments would be far greater than the official projections that the Administration provided to the County Superintendent. Such action constitutes conduct unbecoming his position of public trust as a District Superintendent.

CHARGE IV

The Superintendent in 1990 ordered architectural services without a purchase order and without the required Board approval. The Superintendent's obligating the Board for payments not authorized by the Board constitutes conduct unbecoming his position as a District Superintendent.

CHARGE V

In the Summer of 1991 the Board of Education authorized the Superintendent to work with architect Pablo Jordan to design plans for improvements to the Bradley Gardens School, totalling $905,000. By September 1991 the Superintendent had caused by his instructions to the architect new and unauthorized plans with an estimated cost of $2,459,000. The Superintendent knew that these plans were forwarded to the Department of Education, Bureau of Facility Planning Services pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:22-1.2. The accompanying transmittal letter falsely stated that the Board of Education had approved the plans. The plans were then approved by the Bureau of Facility Planning Services.

By allowing, with his knowledge, the submissions of false statements to State authorities and acceptance of approval for plans based on those false statements and conducting a referendum based on the approval, the Superintendent violated the intent of N.J.A.C. 6:22-1.2, and his action thus constituted conduct unbecoming his position of public trust as District Superintendent.

CHARGE VI

Plans for construction of school facilities are to be signed by the chief school administrator and submitted to the Department of Education, Bureau of Facilities Planning for approval (N.J.A.C. 6:22-1.2). The Superintendent did not sign the required documents that were forwarded to the State Department of Education prior to the October 1990 referendum. He knew that the documents upon which the approval for the referendum were based contained false information and did not have his signature.

The Superintendent did not sign the required documents and did not inform the authorities of his failure. This omission appears to constitute misconduct in office and therefore was conduct unbecoming his position of public trust as District Superintendent.

CHARGE VIB

Wherein N.J.S.A. 2C21-1 outlines the minimum standard of conduct to be followed by the general population, a standard clearly lower than that to which a District Superintendent, as a public official would be held; by providing Pablo Jordan with blank official Superintendent stationery and directing him to copy the text of the July 5, 1990 letter from another architectural firm to the State Board, sign the names contained thereon and submit the new letter to the State Board in the schematic plan submission packet as evidence of Board certification of approval, without the permission of Clara Navarrete, an intended signator, the Superintendent acted in a manner which would constitute forgery, as defined by N.J.S.a. 2C:21-1, and, as such, thereby conducted himself in a manner unbecoming his position of public trust as District Superintendent.

CHARGE VII

The Superintendent testified that he knew that the Board had authorized $905,000 for the Bradley Gardens School construction and that he had directed the architect to change the plans, an action that increased the cost estimate to $2,459,000. Documents to secure approval for the referendum by the State Department of Education required the signature of the Superintendent. He did not sign the documents. He knew the State Approval was given. He received a copy of the documents along with the cover letter carrying his forged signature. He did not inform the Board, nor did he inform the State that "his" signature was a forgery.

The Superintendent's failure to inform the Board and State authorities in a timely manner of a forgery of his name on official documents constitutes conduct unbecoming his position of public trust as District Superintendent.

CHARGE VIII

In 1990 the Superintendent allowed the submission of Schematic Plans to the Bureau of Facilities Planning, and a Project Cost Estimate Form stating that the Bradley Gardens project at $2.45 million was to be funded through a referendum and capital outlays, and that the project had been approved by the Board on June 26, 1990. These statements were false. Thus, the Superintendent acted in a manner which would constitute offering a false instrument, as defined by N.J.S.A. 2C:21-3. He therefore conducted himself in a manner unbecoming his position of public trust as District Superintendent.

CHARGE IX

Pablo Jordan, the architect, with the knowledge of the Superintendent, submitted to the State Department of Education a letter with false statements and forged signatures. Thus, the Superintendent acted in a manner that would constitute official misconduct (N.J.S.A. 2C:30-2) that being the knowing commission of an act related to his office, under the color of his office, which was unlawful and unauthorized exercise of his power. He thus conducted himself in a manner unbecoming his position of public trust as District Superintendent.

CHARGE X

The Superintendent concealed from the Board of Eduction the data in the Project Cost Estimate Form of the Bradley gardens Project that was in his possession and had been submitted to State authorities. He knew the document contained false information concerning the Board's approval and the source of funds. The Superintendent thereby acted in a manner that would constitute falsifying or tampering with documents and thus violated N.J.S.A. 2C:21-4, and therefore acted in a manner unbecoming his position of public trust as District Superintendent.

CHARGE XI

By deceiving the Bureau of Facilities Planning Services as to the Board Approval and source of funds for the Bradley Gardens Project, the Superintendent caused the execution of State approval which was likely to affect the pecuniary interest of the district public. In doing so he conducted himself in a manner which would constitute securing execution of documents by deception as defined in N.J.S.A. 2C:21-16. He thus conducted himself in a manner unbecoming his position of public trust as District Superintendent.

CHARGE XII

The Superintendent knew that the cost of the Bradley Gardens Plan that he and the architect had developed would cost far in excess of $905,000. In fact, under the Superintendent's direction cost estimates increased to approximately $1,300,000, then $1,800,000 and eventually to $2,459,000. Yet, the Superintendent directed the communications specialist, Mr. Sandler, who was employed by the District, to include a statement in a Board Bulletin that represented to the readers that the cost of the project would be $905,000.

By his deceiving the Board and the voters as to the true cost estimates for the Bradley Gardens project, the Superintendent interfered with the right of the voters to make an informed vote. Such conduct is unbecoming his position of public trust as District Superintendent.

CHARGE XIII

The Superintendent gave information to the communication specialist, Mr. Sandler, who was employed by the District, to write a Board Bulletin as an information source for voters prior to the October 1990 referendum, in which Board Bulletin the voters were told that the monies from the referendum would be used for improvements at every school in the District and delineated the planned spending. At the time the Board Bulletin was sent to the voters the Superintendent knew that the plans being sent to the State did not correspond to what the voters were told.

The Superintendent thereby deceived the Board and the voters on the substance of a public election and thus conducted himself in a manner unbecoming his position of public trust as District Superintendent.

CHARGE XIV

Section 2210 of the Bridgewater-Raritan School District Operations Manual provides a Code of Ethics that in part reads:

> 2. Professional school administrators obey local, state, and national laws; hold themselves to high ethical and moral standards...

In 1989 the Superintendent opposed a Board-appointed committee's recommendation to reconfigure the grades, e.g. the high school would in that plan be grades 10-12. In an article that he wrote and had published in the Courier News (1/29/89) the Superintendent claimed that state regulations would cause the plan to cost the District $17,000,000. When a citizen pointed out that the regulations did not require that expenditure, the Superintendent and the Assistant Superintendent caused a letter to be published in the newspaper, in which letter a misrepresentation of the pertinent state regulations concerning school facilities was given. Thus, the Superintendent misinformed the public on the state regulations concerning possible expenditures, which act constitutes conduct unbecoming his position of public trust as District Superintendent.

CHARGE XV

Prior to a bond referendum in 1989 the Superintendent allowed election materials urging a "Yes" vote to be sent home with children, and allowed public funds to be used for promotion attempting to influence the outcome of the election. These were improper actions, possibly violations of Election Law, and constitute conduct unbecoming his position of public trust as District Superintendent.

CHARGE XVI

Testifying under oath at hearings of the State of New Jersey, Office of Administrative Law, the Superintendent made statements that were contrary to fact, thus conducting himself in a manner unbecoming his position of public trust as District Superintendent.

CHARGE XVII

In a Board investigation of the irregularities surrounding the 1990 Bond Referendum in Bridgewater-Raritan, the Superintendent was questioned under oath and made statements in a deposition, which statements were contrary to fact; which act constitutes conduct unbecoming his position of public trust as District Superintendent.

CHARGE XVIII

The Superintendent supplied data on enrollment and school capacities and verified his statements to members of a Board-appointed committee. The Superintendent disagreed with the committee's recommendations and just before the release of the committee's report, the Superintendent claimed that the data and information which he had supplied were incorrect. The Superintendent's failure to provide full, correct information to a Board-appointed Committee and his last-minute attempt to discredit their work constitutes conduct unbecoming his position of public trust as District Superintendent.

CHARGE XIX

On March 19, 1991 the Superintendent behaved very unprofessionally and in anger in speaking to a resident of Bridgewater. The Superintendent's use of abusive language and his threatening a senior citizen with physical violence is conduct unbecoming his position as District Superintendent.

CHARGE XX

On October 31, 1991 the Superintendent left a Board Meeting and yelled in anger in the hallway, behaved in an unprofessional manner, and disturbed the Board Meeting, which action reflected adversely on the District, and thus constitutes conduct unbecoming his position as District Superintendent.

OAL DKT. NOS. EDU 2031-92 & 972-92

Dear Counsel:

It has been called to my attention that on page 99 of the Initial Decision in the above matter, in the Summary Of Conclusions as to the Tenure Charges, charge IX was mistakenly included in the charges that were sustained. As noted on page 91 of the decision, Charge IX was in fact dismissed.

Yours very truly,

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF DR. RICHARD C. HOROWITZ, BRIDGEWATER-RARITAN REGIONAL SCHOOL DISTRICT, SOMERSET COUNTY.	:
AND	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
DR. RICHARD C. HOROWITZ,	:	DECISION
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BRIDGE-WATER-RARITAN REGIONAL SCHOOL DISTRICT, SOMERSET COUNTY,	:
RESPONDENT.	:

The record and initial decision rendered by the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. The Commissioner notes that the initial decision is composed of two major parts - an oral decision rendered by Administrative Law Judge Jeff S. Masin on July 27, 1992 and the written initial decision issued by him on December 18, 1992. Petitioner Horowitz was granted an extension until January 11, 1993 to file exceptions to the initial decision. His exceptions were timely filed on that date. The Board's exceptions and reply exceptions were timely filed. It is observed that petitioner's voluminous submission and the Board's lengthy reply submission contain extensive reference to the transcripts of the testimony taken at 13 days of hearing in this matter. Said submissions, as well as the post-hearing briefs of the parties, are incorporated herein by reference.

The Commissioner requested and received an Order of Extension from the Office of Administrative Law to file her final decision in this case. The Commissioner has conducted her own detailed and exhaustive examination of the record in this matter, including a careful review of the transcripts of the proceedings.

The Commissioner determines that prior to consideration of the tenure charges in this matter, a threshold determination must be made as to whether the vote of one or more members of the Board certifying these charges was tainted. The exceptions and reply exceptions on this issue are summarized below.

I. THE ALLEGEDLY TAINTED VOTE

1. As to William Tronolone

Petitioner takes exception, inter alia, to the ALJ's determination that Mr. Tronolone did not manipulate the investigation of Dr. Horowitz for personal, vindictive reasons. As support for his argument he offers the following: Mr. Tronolone proposed the idea of a task force; he suggested the specific outside firm to conduct the investigation; this investigating firm only interacted with specific individuals, and some members of the Board did not necessarily agree with all the conclusions of the outside investigators.

Petitioner also takes issue with the ALJ's finding regarding Mr. Tronolone's relationship with Mr. DeCicco. Petitioner further avers that the ALJ unfairly limited testimony on both of these issues which would have been relevant to establishing bias and, therefore, remand on these points is required.

The Board responds that the ALJ limited testimony in these areas only when proffers of relevancy were requested from petitioner's counsel in response to objections and none were forthcoming.

2. As to Mrs. Clara Navarrete

Petitioner excepts, inter alia, to the ALJ seeking to impose an additional requirement to the Colella "disqualifying interest" definition as applied to the investigation being conducted on Mrs. Navarrete i.e., that the subject matter of the personal interest capable of producing bias - the investigation, be the same as the subject of the tenure charges. (In re Colella, 1985 S.L.D. 118) Petitioner maintains that there is no legal support for this additional requirement which he alleges was a key factor in the ALJ's findings.

Petitioner also contends that the ALJ improperly limited testimony on certain issues relative to the taint of Mrs. Navarrete such as details regarding the grounds, seriousness, and scope of the investigation which was being conducted on her and the "acrimony" which existed between her and Dr. Horowitz.

Petitioner further excepts to what he avers were probably the real reasons for the ALJ's ruling on the taint issue.

> The ALJ opines that the charges against Dr. Horowitz are serious that the public has a right to have them heard at a hearing, and that "some flaw in the procedural process" should not deny them this.(Petitioner's Exceptions, at p. 25)

The Board, in response to the limitation of testimony assertion, avers that the ALJ continuously granted petitioner's counsel great leeway to develop his theories and only limited testimony when it went so far astray of resolution of the taint issue or when he perceived evidentiary problems. Accordingly, the Board contends that petitioner was not limited from presentation of any relevant taint testimony and the matter need not be remanded. (Board's Reply Exceptions, at p. 10)

As to the procedural process allegation, the Board argues that petitioner has distorted a portion of the ALJ's ruling in an attempt to establish that the ALJ may have found taint. The Board maintains that the actual finding was clearly opposite and states that the accurate statement made by the ALJ was:

> I do not see this proceeding as having been tainted by these matters which have been raised.
> I think that Counsel, in good faith, has attempted to establish what he saw and what undoubtedly Dr. Horowitz saw as problems with the process. But I am not convinced that he has sustained the burden of showing that this proceeding on the part of the Board or its individual members was tainted. (Board's Reply Exceptions, at p. 17, citing ALJ Decision, Transcript of Oral Decision, at p. 106)

The Commissioner, upon a full review of the record and transcripts, finds all of petitioner's exceptions in this regard to be without merit and adopts the findings and conclusions of the ALJ, with the modifications noted below.

As the ALJ articulately notes, under Mackler v. Board of Education of the City of Camden, 16 N.J. 362 (1954), it is clear that > [T]here is nothing improper about a member of a public body who files the charges to vote on those charges.

> It's simply not the case that the mere filing of charges constitutes a conflict. (Initial Decision, Transcript of Oral Decision, at p. 75)

The Commissioner finds, therefore, that neither Mrs. Navarrete nor Dr. Ryan were precluded from voting on the tenure charges brought by them in October and January, respectively, by virtue of being the initiators of these charges.

The Commissioner additionally finds that the record supports the ALJ's conclusion that had Mrs. Navarrete chosen to vote on the October tenure charges, any personal interest she possessed at that time did not rise to the level required under Colella, supra, to taint her vote.

The Commissioner notes that the individual, factually dependent determinations as to whether the particular interests of Board members Tronolone and Navarrete were sufficient to disqualify their January tenure votes must be undertaken with great care. As articulated by the ALJ:

> We have to be careful in balancing the interests, that we are careful to assure that those situations which rise to a level in which there is a reasonable likelihood of corruption or favoritism or the appearance of such are condemned, but that those in which the suspicion is raised or the allegation is raised or the accusation is made of either favoritism or the appearance of such or personal interest or the appearance of such, are not automatically used as a basis for eliminating the right of duly appointed or elected public officials from performing the duties for which they have been elected or appointed. (Initial Decision, Transcript of Oral Decision, at p. 58)

As to William Tronolone, after a through review of the record, including petitioner's exceptions, the Commissioner finds, as did the ALJ, that the evidence does not support petitioner's allegation that Mr. Tronolone had any personal interest which would taint his vote. The Commissioner further finds that relevant proffered testimony was fully and fairly received by the ALJ.

As to Mrs. Clara Navarrete, the Commissioner determines that petitioner's reliance on the investigation being conducted on Mrs. Navarrete and her reaction to it as compelling evidence of her strong personal interest requiring a finding of taint under Colella, supra, totally unpersuasive. As aptly noted by the ALJ

> [T]here is a great danger in any policy determination that would hold that merely because a member of a public body is the -- either the target of or their name has been raised in the context of an "investigation" by someone who they are charged with supervising or reviewing, that that would automatically preclude them from being involved in any review of the conduct of that individual, that that would be a dangerous precedent. (Initial Decision, Transcript of Oral Decision, at pp. 90-91)

After a full review of the record, the Commissioner finds that this investigation conducted in earnest by Dr. Horowitz after Mrs. Navarrete filed a set of tenure charges against him and first brought to the Board's attention after he learned that a second set of charges had been filed, falls woefully short of establishing his taint allegation. Neither does the Commissioner find that Mrs. Navarrete's reaction to this particular investigation was any more than that which could be reasonably expected by any individual under the particular circumstances, nor does the Commissioner agree that this reaction evidences the level of personal interest required to establish taint under Colella, supra.

The Commissioner does, however, specifically reject any attempt by the ALJ to establish or to rely on in rendering his determination any "bright-line" test which concludes that an investigation of a board member which concerns allegations related to the tenure charges may constitute a personal interest rising to the level of a Colella, supra, disqualification but an investigation involving unrelated charges would not. Clearly, this type of test is unnecessary in the instant case. The Commissioner notes that the sensitivity and importance of situations of this type demand a case-by-case analysis irrespective of the investigation's subject matter. Additionally, the Commissioner observes that the routine application of such a broad test could lead to a grossly unjust result.

The Commissioner hereby adopts the suggested findings and conclusions of the ALJ, as modified above, for the reasons clearly articulated by him, concluding that there was no tainted Board member vote in the certification of tenure charges against Dr. Richard Horowitz.

* * * *

Dr. Horowitz makes a number of general exceptions to the ALJ's recitation of testimony, examination of evidence, and findings of fact which include extensive reference to preferred testimony. After a full review of these and the Board's reply exceptions, the Commissioner determines that these exceptions of Dr. Horowitz are without merit and discussion of this material is unnecessary.

Each of the tenure charges will now be examined and further exceptions addressed.

II. TENURE CHARGES

> CHARGE I - Engaging in conduct unbecoming a District Superintendent by allowing payment of invoices without contracts in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-1 et seq., N.J.S.A. 2C:30-4, and Sections 3300 and 3301 of the Bridgewater-Raritan School District Operations Manual.

Dr. Horowitz' exceptions argue, inter alia, that there is no evidence establishing that he knew of the lack of a signed contract. Further, he urges that this charge, if anything, would constitute inefficiency, rather than unbecoming conduct, for not properly supervising his subordinate, Dr. Mazurak, who was responsible for these business details. Dr. Horowitz avers that since the conduct constitutes "inefficiency," this charge must be dismissed because he did not receive 90-day notice pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11.

Dr. Horowitz' exceptions further object to the use of a criminal statute in this charge maintaining that there was no evidence that he acted with any criminal intent in the Board not having a formally executed contract.

The Board responds that the record does not support Dr. Horowitz' supposed lack of knowledge regarding the absence of a signed contract. It argues:

> Bridgewater-Raritan is a "unit control system", in which the Business Administrator (until April, 1991, Dr. Mazurak, reports to and is supervised by the Superintendent of Schools (Mazurak T7/27 at 113, 114). In response to an October 17, 1990 Jordan & Pease billing (RBG-40; App. 13) Dr. Mazurak issued a March 10, 1991 payment in the amount of $28,488.82; yet at that time there was no signed contract off of which the payment was to be drawn (RBG-87 at pages 36-39). He did so with the knowledge of the Petitioner.

> Dr. Mazurak testified that the October bill for Investigation and Field Measurements "was arranged through Dr. Horowitz and there was nothing -- there wasn't any purchase order for him" (RBG-87 at page 42)
> (Board's Reply Exceptions, at pp. 29-30)

The Board further avers that at the time Dr. Horowitz allowed payment of the Jordan & Pease invoice without a signed contract, the following provisions of the Operation Manual for the Bridgewater-Raritan Regional School District were in effect:

> BUSINESS AND NON-INSTRUCTIONAL OPERATIONS 3300
>
> Expenditures
>
> It is the policy of the Board that the administration strictly observe the letter and the spirit of all laws and regulations relating to expenditures by the school system and to the control of its finances and property.
>
> Within the framework of applicable laws and regulations, purchases and use of materials and manpower shall be accomplished in accordance with good business practices with the primary purpose of serving the program of instruction.
>
> The Board holds the Superintendent and Board Secretary/Assistant Superintendent for Business directly responsible for carrying out this policy, and toward that end, the Superintendent shall detail the procedures for executing this policy in written administrative directives.
>
>
>
>
> Requesting Goods and Services (Requisitions)
>
> Requisitions for budgeted items shall originate from the key personnel directly responsible for their use. All requisitions will be examined and approved, or disapproved, for purchasing by the appropriate administrator.
>
> See Purchasing Handbook for detailed procedures.

No employee of the school system may obligate the Board without its having gone through the regular, approved procedures.

* * * *

BUSINESS AND NON-INSTRUCTIONAL OPERATIONS 3351

EXPENDITURES

The Board will authorize payment for goods and services when the following criteria have been met:

1. Orders have been contracted within budgeting limits. [emphasis added] (Board's Reply Exceptions, at pp. 30-31)

The Board states that this policy makes it completely clear that the superintendent would be held absolutely accountable to assure that district funds were neither obligated, or expended, in the absence of a signed contract.

Upon review of the record and the arguments advanced in the exceptions and reply exceptions, the Commissioner agrees with the findings and recommendations of the ALJ with respect to this charge. The Commissioner finds that Dr. Horowitz allowed the submission and payment of an invoice from Jordan & Pease when he knew there was no valid contract in place with this firm with respect to this subject matter. The Commissioner rejects Dr. Horowitz' contention that he had no knowledge regarding the lack of a contract, finding that the totality of the evidence indicates that any such lack of knowledge would have to be attributable to a purposeful attempt to remain ignorant of the situation. This also would be totally unacceptable behavior for an individual in his position.

With respect to the inclusion of a criminal statute in the charge, the Commissioner specifically notes that in her consideration of this charge, she, like the ALJ, did not attempt to ascertain Dr. Horowitz' guilt or innocence on the criminal charge but rather confined her examination to determining whether the underlying behavior established constituted unbecoming conduct. This will be discussed in greater detail in relation to subsequent charges.

The Commissioner finds that the failure of the district's chief school administrator to comply with statutory requirements and the clear mandates of his own Board is inexcusable and constitutes nothing less than unbecoming conduct. The Commissioner hereby adopts the findings and conclusions of the ALJ in his initial decision as her own.

> CHARGE V - Engaging in conduct unbecoming a District Superintendent by knowingly permitting the submission of false statements to the State; accepting approval for those plans based on those false statements and, therefore, conducting the 1990 Bond Referendum based on the same in violation of the intent of N.J.A.C. 6:22-1.2.

Dr. Horowitz takes exception to the determination that the submission to the Department of Education was false or in violation of the statute. He argues, inter alia, that the architect, Pablo Jordan, testified that > [T]he transmittal letter referred to educational needs, and not construction cost estimates. (T24-47) [and] that it was usage, not Code, that required a transmittal letter. (T24-47).

>
> (Dr. Horowitz' Exceptions, at p. 50)

Dr. Horowitz continues that Mr. Jordan further testified that

> [T]he [transmittal] letter had nothing to do with the cost estimate sheet. There was no requirement that the Board or the Superintendent sign or approve this sheet. (Id., at p. 52)

The Board in its reply avers that Pablo Jordan specifically testified that a letter signed by the Board President and Superintendent was required to accompany the educational specifications for the Department of Education presentation required to obtain project approval prior to the referendum (Jordan T7/24 at 86).

The Board further points out the Department of Education's pre-referendum oversight procedures embodied in part in N.J.A.C. 6:22-1.2 and 1.4, which at the time of the District's submission in September 1990, provided in relevant part as follows:

> Education specifications for building construction or modifications.
>
> (a) Education specifications shall be prepared in writing detailing all the facilities considered for the construction program and shall be submitted to the Department of Education, Bureau of Facility Planning Services for approval.
>
>
> (b) Estimates of dimensions and square feet for each area of new or modified construction shall be provided, together with an explanation of the proposed area utilization and relationships, and shall be signed by the president of the district board of education and chief school administrator as evidence of approval by the district board of education.
>
> (c) Educational specifications and subsequent revisions must be approved prior to the submission of plans and specifications. Incomplete specifications will not be accepted and shall be returned to the district board of education.
>
> N.J.A.C. 6:22-1.4 Submission of schematic plans prior to local funding....
> (d) This set of plans shall be submitted to the Bureau of Facility Planning Services with a site plan whenever site work is being affected, a > project cost estimate (including a construction cost estimate escalated to the mid-point of construction), a project schedule, a transmittal letter indicating plan submission to the county superintendent, and local planning board, when applicable, and a five-year long-range facility plan in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6:22-7.1, including a current five-year enrollment projection. [emphasis added]

> (Board's Reply Exceptions, at pp. 35-36)

Upon review of the record, the Commissioner fully supports the ALJ's findings and conclusions with respect to this charge and adopts them as her own.

> CHARGE VI - Engaging in conduct unbecoming a District Superintendent by permitting the submission of plans to the State without his signature as required by N.J.A.C. 6:22-1.2, accepting approval for those unsigned plans and, thereafter, conducting the 1990 Bond Referendum, knowing that the approval of the referendum was based upon those plans which did not have his signature.

Dr. Horowitz' exceptions urge that because Charges V and VI deal with the same alleged action, i.e., the transmission of "false" information to the State, the charges should be treated as one. In the alternative, Dr. Horowitz argues that Charge VI should be treated as a de minimis violation of the Code for failure to actually place a signature on a document.

Dr. Horowitz also argues that prior to August 6, 1990 the cited provision of the New Jersey Administrative Code did not require the signature of the superintendent for the submission of educational plans. He avers that given that the rule adoption was just a little over a month before his required submission, it is understandable that he would not be in possession of this new requirement until his Code volumes were updated.

The Board's reply avers that the Administrative Code signature requirement has been in effect since April 4, 1988. The Board states that

> [T]he August 1990 amendments revised the review and approval process and moved the signature requirements contained in 6:22-1.1 to 6:22-1.2. However, the signature requirements under 6:22-1.2, formerly at 6:22-1.1, were not altered. (Board's Reply Exceptions, at p. 39)

After a full review, the Commissioner agrees with the findings and conclusions of the ALJ, the Board has established that Dr. Horowitz exhibited conduct unbecoming a superintendent by his failure to sign the State submission.

The Commissioner specifically rejects Dr. Horowitz' contention that this violation of the New Jersey Code is a de minimis infraction. As a requisite regulatory mandate attendant to the approval of the Board's planned voter referendum on October 2, the absence of Dr. Horowitz' signature had the potential to delay the required approvals necessary to permit the timely conducting of the referendum. The superintendent was fully aware of the importance of this particular referendum to his Board. As such, Dr. Horowitz, by virtue of his position, had an obligation to assure that all necessary details, no matter how trivial such details may have appeared to him, were attended to in order to ensure that the wishes and expectations of his Board were met. The Commissioner finds that Dr. Horowitz' failure to exercise this requisite degree of care is nothing less than unbecoming conduct.

The Commissioner, likewise, rejects Dr. Horowitz' contention that since Charges V and VI spring from the same activity they should be treated as one charge. The Commissioner finds the fact that there were two regulatory infractions by Dr. Horowitz, irrespective of their being connected to the same activity, evidences a serious failure to honor the meaning and spirit of State rules and regulations governing his administrative responsibilities as a superintendent and further demonstrates a disregard for the expressed concerns of his Board that the referendum be conducted in a timely, honest, and open manner.

> CHARGE VIB - Engaging in conduct unbecoming a District Superintendent by acting in a manner which would constitute forgery, as defined in N.J.S.A. 2C:21-1.

No exceptions were filed by either party with regard to this charge. Upon review of the record, the Commissioner agrees with the ALJ's finding that the evidence does not substantiate that Dr. Horowitz was knowingly involved in a decision to copy Mrs. Navarrete's name and make unauthorized use of it. Therefore, the Commissioner finds that unbecoming conduct has not been established and agrees with the conclusion of the ALJ that this charge must be dismissed.

> CHARGE VIII - Engaging in conduct unbecoming a District Superintendent by allowing the submission to the State of official documents, knowing the same to contain false statements and forged signatures; thus, acting in a manner which would constitute offering a false instrument, as defined in N.J.S.A. 2C:21-3.

> CHARGE IX - Engaging in conduct unbecoming a District Superintendent by permitting the submission to the State of documents containing false statements and forged signatures; thus acting in a manner which would constitute official misconduct, as defined in N.J.S.A. 2C:30-2.

CHARGE X - Engaging in conduct unbecoming a District Superintendent by acting in a manner which would constitute falsifying or tampering with documents, as defined in N.J.S.A. 2C:21-4.

CHARGE XI - Engaging in conduct unbecoming a District Superintendent by acting in a manner which would constitute securing execution of documents by deception, as defined in N.J.S.A. 2C:21-16.

Dr. Horowitz' exceptions object to the framing of these charges in terms of criminal statute violations. He avers that this permits multiple findings of unbecoming conduct for one behavior, i.e., the submission of educational specifications to the DOE. He urges the Commissioner, if she finds he acted in a manner unbecoming a superintendent under these charges, to recognize that finding as one act of unbecoming conduct.

The Board in its reply fully agrees with the reasoning and findings of the ALJ on these charges.

The Commissioner finds that the framing of these four charges in terms of the violation of criminal statutes was unfortunate. Determining the guilt or innocence of Dr. Horowitz on the underlying criminal charge is, as recognized by the ALJ, totally outside the purview of this forum. The review of the ALJ and the Commissioner in this connection must be solely confined to the examination and weighing of the factual circumstances attendant to the charge to determine whether unbecoming conduct has been established. The Commissioner determines that when the distinguishing criminal statute citations are removed from Charges VIII, IX, X, and XI, what remains is a number of serious behavior infractions which stem from one foundational act. Consequently, the Commissioner concludes that the above-referenced charges shall be combined and she finds that the factual evidence fully supports the establishment of unbecoming conduct on this combined charge.

In reaching this determination, the Commissioner specifically rejects the ALJ's conclusion with respect to Charge IX wherein he found that unbecoming conduct was established but all of the necessary elements to the criminal charge were not substantiated, requiring him to dismiss the charge. As previously discussed, for purposes of this tribunal the examination of this charge must cease when the conduct determination is achieved.

> CHARGE XII - Engaging in conduct unbecoming a District Superintendent by deceiving the Board and the voters as to the true cost estimates for the Bradley Gardens Project and interfering with the right of voters to make an informed vote in the 1990 Bond Referendum.

Upon review of the record including Dr. Horowitz' exceptions, the Commissioner finds such exceptions to be without merit and hereby adopts as her own the findings and conclusions of the ALJ with respect to this charge for the reasons clearly articulated by him in the initial decision.

The Commissioner particularly notes that as a result of the prior disastrous Board-sponsored referendum in February 1989, Dr. Horowitz was fully aware of the Board's particular concern that all information provided to the public on the upcoming referendum be as full and accurate as possible. By directing the use of the $905,000 cost figure for the Bradley Gardens project in materials disseminated to the public when he was clearly aware that this figure did not come any where near to an approximation of the true cost of the proposal, Dr. Horowitz exhibited a flagrant disregard of the Board's wishes and the best interests of the district and public.

> CHARGE XIII - Engaging in conduct unbecoming a District Superintendent by misrepresenting to the voters in the Board Bulletin that the monies from the 1990 Referendum would be used for improvements at every school in the district in contrast to spending as delineated in State submissions.

Dr. Horowitz avers in his exceptions that the referendum breakdown chart on page 3 of the Bulletin did not state that the project relating to the Library/Media Centers would involve actual physical expansion but rather:

> The bulletin stated that a solution would be to "Improve Library/Media Centers so students can enjoy greater participation in technological advances of the information age." As to the allotted monies (in the chart, on page 3 of the bulletin), the money was to "allow[s] schools to keep up with advances in information retrival [sic] techniques."

Further, Dr. Horowitz states that there were no plans or drawings regarding the Library/Media Centers presented to the public which could have served to mislead them. He maintains that

> The language of the Board Bulletin was broad -- it did not promise exact projects but spoke of what the goals and solutions were to be. (Id.)

Dr. Horowitz next argues that this matter, unlike the Bradley Gardens project, did not involve any large increase in costs that the voters would allegedly be misled about and, therefore, should have been informed of prior to voting.

In its reply, the Board argues that the chart on page 3 of the Bulletin:

> unequivocably advised voters that $905,000 of the $23.4 million dollar proposed referendum would be used for a "new all purpose room, learning center renovations and building repairs" for Bradley Gardens to bring that school in parity with others in district." That chart further advised the voters in the other districts that their schools would receive $490,000 for Library/Media Centers (enlarging the existing media centers into 1,600 square foot facilities, based upon the elementary facilities committee report (RBG-10 at 13; App. 2)). As well, the voters in the Adamsville elementary school district were advised that $90,000 would be allocated from the $23.4 million dollars to build a new main office.
> (Board's Reply Exceptions, at p. 52)

The Board avers that the plain language of the Bulletin and common sense support the ALJ's conclusion on this charge.

Upon review of the record, the Commissioner finds Dr. Horowitz' arguments unpersuasive and concurs with the ALJ's findings and determination with respect to this charge. Contrary to Dr. Horowitz' apparent argument that a large increase in costs was the only factor of which voters might need to be informed to preclude the possibility of misleading them, the Commissioner finds that undisclosed known variations in the "scope" of the envisioned project could be equally misleading. Along with the total cost of the package placed before them, voters were entitled to review and consider an accurate breakdown of what those monies were proposed to achieve for them.

The Commissioner notes that once again, knowing the Board's concern for the accurate presentation of material connected to the referendum to the public, Dr. Horowitz' failure to disclose his serious doubts as to whether the presented material reflected a true picture of the likely realities demonstrated a complete lack of regard for the best interests of the Board.

> CHARGE XIX - Engaging in conduct unbecoming a District Superintendent on March 19, 1991, by using abusive language and threatening a senior citizen of the District with physical abuse.

Dr. Horowitz avers, inter alia, that this charge should be dismissed because the behavior established by the evidence does not support the allegation that he "threatened" a senior citizen.

> [T]he ALJ found only that Dr. Horowitz "vented a good measure of verbal 'reaction'" to Putter, and that while he did not find that Dr. J. Horowitz made any threats of a verbal or physical nature upon Mr. Putter, Mr. Putter "may have viewed" Dr. Horowitz's arm motions as a threat.
> (Dr. Horowitz' Exceptions, at p. 73)

Additionally, Dr. Horowitz avers that the ALJ did not fully consider or give appropriate weight to eyewitness testimony (Tornatore T13-135, 136, 137, 230, 234) and even Mr. Putter's own testimony (Putter T11-126, 127, 128, 129, 137) regarding the extent to which Mr. Putter deliberately provoked the "verbal reaction" he received from Dr. Horowitz. He alleges that this testimony corroborates that:

> Mr. Putter clearly picked a fight with Dr. Horowitz and was ready for -- in fact, eagerly anticipated -- the consequences.
> (Dr. Horowitz' Exceptions, at p. 70)

Dr. Horowitz next argues that even if the factual findings of the ALJ are accepted, the legal standard which he applied was incorrect. He avers that the ALJ found that:

> Dr. Horowitz is a prominent public figure, one whose actions in office are generally fair game > for comment, critical and otherwise, by citizens. No doubt some of this criticism is unfair, even highly so.

> (Initial Decision, at p. 98)

Dr. Horowitz then argues

> The ALJ acknowledges that Putter's remarks were strong, personal, and attacked Dr. Horowitz in a way suggesting flaws in his character and doubts as to his fitness, remarks that could well rile their object. However, the ALJ states that one in "such a position" as Dr. Horowitz must "temper his reaction" and must put aside the temptation to respond in kind. Even though Dr. Horowitz is only human and can be expected to take strong exception to unfair, even vicious attacks upon him, due to the "role he plays" and the "position he holds" he must refrain from either "verbal or physical manifestations of uncontrolled reactions."
> (Dr. Horowitz' Exceptions, at pp. 73-74)

Dr. Horowitz avers that this standard is contrary to prior decisions of the Commissioner in similar tenure charge cases involving "altercations." Specifically, Dr. Horowitz cites In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Romanoli, 1975 S.L.D. 352 involving a tenure charge against a superintendent for an altercation with a board member, where the Commissioner stated:

> Indeed, the Commissioner finds the private nature of the incident herein is a bar to the exercise of any authority by him, and he opines that a decision to the contrary would mandate the formulation of a graduated set of moral, ethical and legal standards applicable to the use of language by public school employees in private situations for which he finds no jurisdiction.... [T]eachers do not "shed their constitutional rights to freedom, of speech or expression at the schoolhouse gate. Neither, the Commissioner holds, are they, nor superintendents of schools, divested of such rights when they engage in essentially private, personal conversations - albeit other than that used in polite exchange -- at midnight in a school parking lot.

Dr. Horowitz further cites In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Belford, 1978 S.L.D. 660; In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Villani, 89 S.L.D. 2297; In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Buch, 77 S.L.D. 95, as support for his contention that rather than imposing the stringent standard utilized by the ALJ, the Commissioner considers existing factual circumstances such as the privateness of the confrontation, whether a single encounter was involved, whether the event was unpremeditated and of short duration, and whether evidence in the case establishes any deleterious effect on the educational program of the Board, in reaching a tenure charge determination. Dr. Horowitz argues that when evaluated under the correct legal standard, this charge cannot be sustained.

The Board in its reply notes that while not denying that he lost control in his confrontation with Mr. Putter, Dr. Horowitz nonetheless urges that his conduct was somehow provoked and, therefore, excusable. In this regard the Board relies on what it sees as the well-substantiated conclusion of the ALJ.

After a full and careful review of the record, the Commissioner finds Dr. Horowitz' exceptions unpersuasive. She specifically rejects his reliance on Romanoli, supra, and the other cited cases for the proposition that existing school law supports the evaluation of a school superintendent under some lesser standard than the one articulated by the ALJ. First of all, the Commissioner is compelled to point out that the holding in Romanoli, supra, was unequivocally qualified:

> This determination is limited to the specific factual circumstances in this case. It does not > negate the numerous prior decisions of the Commissioner and the courts that private conduct may, in other circumstances, properly be the subject of a charge before the Commissioner.

> (1975 S.L.D. at 357)

The remaining cases cited by Dr. Horowitz are ones which involved an "altercation" as the sole tenure charge where the issue before the Commissioner was whether the one charge involved was sufficient to warrant a penalty of discharge. The Commissioner further notes that the factual circumstances existing in the above-cited cases are in no way similar to those in the instant case. The "altercation" which is being reviewed here involves a school superintendent and a senior citizen member of the general public, which took place inside a public building shortly after a public school board meeting, and was anything but "private" having taken place before witnesses, one of whom was a reporter. The Commissioner determines that these particular factual circumstances could most assuredly have had a deleterious effect on the Board and its programs.

The Commissioner further finds that prior decisions regarding the level of conduct expected from teaching staff are uniformly consistent in holding that teachers hold positions of public trust, are responsible for the care of children for whom they serve as role models, and are thus held to higher standards of behavior than most other employees and individuals. See e.g., In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Jacque L. Sammons, 1972 S.L.D. 302. It is equally clear in prior decisions that the professional conduct demanded of a superintendent is significantly higher yet.

As enunciated by the State Board of Education in In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Frank J. Napoli, 1988 S.L.D. 284:

> If the standard of behavior required of teachers is stringent, the standard for high administrative personnel must be even more stringent. As was noted in In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Louis Cirangle, 1980 S.L.D. 95, 96, aff'd by the State Board, 1980 S.L.D. 97, aff'd, Docket #A-3967-79A (App. Div. Jan. 30, 1981), certif. denied, 87 N.J. 347 (1981):
>
> > The position of Chief School Administrator, difficult at best, cannot be exemplified by one who displays less than the self-restraint and controlled behavior requisite as an example to the Board, teachers and pupils alike.
>
> The Respondent, as superintendent of schools, occupies a crucial position within the school district and community. He is entrusted with the responsibility for providing educational leadership and for administering the school district so as [to] ensure proper implementation of board policy with respect to personnel matters as well as educational programming.

The Commissioner is not unmindful that it may well be true that Mr. Putter was not without fault in this situation. However, she cannot agree that a superintendent may be categorized as a professional person if he substitutes inflamed, irate reaction for the application of that kind of reasoned action which should be characteristic of the District's highest administrative officer. Dr. Horowitz, by "losing it" in an altercation with this senior citizen member of the general public of his District, exhibited a lack of restraint and self-control required by one who is responsible for educational leadership. His actions also did a serious disservice to his Board which relies upon him to conduct himself properly and appropriately in fulfilling his responsibilities. Clearly, the behavior of Dr. Horowitz with respect to this incident was entirely unprofessional and nothing less than unbecoming conduct.

Finally, the Commissioner agrees that the use of the words "threatening a senior citizen with physical abuse" in the phrasing of this charge was unfortunate in its legal connotations but she also believes that judgment on this charge should not be frustrated by the imprecise use of this term when its intended meaning is so clearly spelled out in the language of the remainder of the charge, which in itself established unbecoming conduct on the part of a school superintendent.

The Commissioner, therefore, agrees with the findings and conclusions of the ALJ in his initial decision with respect to this charge and adopts them as her own.

III. PENALTY

Dr. Horowitz excepts to the ALJ's determination that the evidence does not support the assertion that certain Board members were "out to get him." Dr. Horowitz avers that evidence, such as that pertaining to the Stark & Stark investigation, substantiates a "vendetta" against him and this must be considered in the imposition of a penalty.

Dr. Horowitz further avers that his misconduct does not rise to a level warranting dismissal arguing that the heart of the charges against him relate to Bradley Gardens and his failure to inform the Board and the public of increased costs. Dr. Horowitz relies on a number of cited cases wherein the Commissioner imposed a penalty of dismissal only after finding a continual pattern of wrong doing or a personal pecuniary interest of the superintendent, which Dr. Horowitz alleges is not present in this case.

Dr. Horowitz next excepts to the ALJ's refusal to permit evidence as to his past record as a superintendent (T13-301) alleging that such a determination was prejudicial as this information is highly relevant to a decision on the appropriate penalty to be imposed, especially when unbecoming conduct is charged. Dr. Horowitz presents a number of unbecoming conduct cases where the Commissioner determined dismissal was too harsh a penalty after considering such factors.

Dr. Horowitz urges that if he is dismissed as a superintendent, he be permitted to return to an elementary school principal position, since the instant charges relate to conduct as a superintendent not as a principal and both the ALJ and the Board recognized that he performed adequately as a principal. Dr. Horowitz points to the Commissioner's decision in In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Paul J. McCormick, Hunterdon Central Regional High School District, 1980 S.L.D. 145 as support for his partial dismissal from tenure argument.

The Board in its reply exceptions avers that Dr. Horowitz is attempting to categorize his deception of the public, Board, and the Department of Education as inefficiency or bad judgment. The Board argues that Dr. Horowitz' actions went well beyond mere inefficiency in performance or bad judgment and could more appropriately be defined as fraud or deception.

The Board further notes that the cases cited by Dr. Horowitz to support his argument that dismissal is too severe a penalty all involve teachers and not superintendents, who, because of their high position, the Commissioner has found are to be held to a significantly more stringent level of behavior.

The Board urges that the ALJ's imposed penalty of tenure revocation be upheld.

From her review of this matter, the Commissioner agrees that the relationship between Dr. Horowitz and the Board became increasingly strained in the months before the institution of the within charges but she is not persuaded by the evidence that Dr. Horowitz' allegation that the charges are the culmination of a vendetta against him for purposes of ousting him from his position can in any way be supported. Neither does she find a factual situation approximating that in In re Onorevole, 1987 S.L.D. 96, 172 to exist in this case.

Upon a careful and thorough consideration of the record, the Commissioner finds that the totality of factual evidence in this case reveals a superintendent who completely failed to understand or appreciate the very substantial fiduciary duty he owed, by virtue of his position, to his Board, the District and the taxpayers. A superintendent of schools serves as the chief executive officer of a school district and, as such, the Board must place considerable reliance on his ability, honesty, integrity, efficiency, judgment and faithfulness in the performance of his duties. It is likewise critical that in his dealings with the District and the taxpayers he continually maintain their trust and confidence.

The Commissioner determines that through a series of behaviors which are the subject of the instant case, Dr. Horowitz breached the fiduciary duties owed to all of these parties. As articulated by the ALJ in his initial decision:

> Dr. Horowitz engaged in a series of actions, or in some instances, inactions which manifested a lack of appropriate professional judgment, a lack of communication with the Board of Education, a lack of candor with the Board and with the public, a failure to respond to the demands of his office, a failure to honor the meaning and the spirit of administrative regulations governing aspects of his job and the activities in which he became involved in that position, and conduct which, if not in fact criminal, was in some instances sufficiently questionable so as to raise concern as to his capacity to perform his job within the confines of legality.
> (Initial Decision, at p. 101)

The Commissioner further determines that the charges in this case are not mitigated because the majority of them relate to the Bradley Gardens affair. What the Commissioner finds here are a series of derelictions of responsibilities by Dr. Horowitz as a superintendent. Any one of these incidents considered alone and unrelated to the others could possibly be ascribed to misunderstanding, unintentional oversight, or an error of judgment. Unfortunately, however, they are not unrelated and taken as a whole they add up to a pattern of behavior that conclusively demonstrates unfitness for an educational leadership position in the Bridgewater-Raritan school system.

The Commissioner particularly notes that she is fully cognizant of her discretion to fashion whatever penalty she deems suitable in this situation. However, for all of the previously discussed reasons, she concludes that anything less than forfeiture of Dr. Horowitz' tenure in the district would be inappropriate. His failure to deal openly and forthrightly with information available to him over an approximately eight-month period, including the almost tripling of the cost for the Bradley Gardens Project from $908,000 to $2.459 million, his total disregard for State requirements and Board policies, and his failure to honor what he clearly knew to be a heightened need for open and honest disclosure to the public call into question his fundamental personal character - his truthfulness, integrity, sense of fairness, openness, candor, and, obviously, judgment.

In reaching this determination, it must be emphasized that the Commissioner was also particularly mindful of and sensitive to the divisiveness and strong emotions this controversy has evoked in the community. Dr. Horowitz, through his actions in this regard, created a climate of disharmony, loss of confidence, and mistrust in which the Bridgewater-Raritan school district should not be required to operate.

As stated in In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Joseph A. Maratea, 1966 S.L.D. 77, aff'd State Board 106, aff'd N.J. Superior Ct. (App. Div.) 1967 S.L.D. 351:

> The Commissioner is assiduous to protect school personnel in their employment when they are subjected to unfair or improper attacks or when they are unable to perform effectively because of conditions not of their own making or beyond their control. An employee is not entitled to protection of tenure, however, when, by his own acts or failures, he creates conditions under which the proper operation of the schools is adversely affected.

The Commissioner finds that such is the case here. She is forced to the conclusion that the Bridgewater-Raritan school district has been so adversely affected by Richard Horowitz' actions that his continued presence as an educational leader in the District is simply not tenable nor is it in the best interest of the students or the community. The imposition of a penalty other than dismissal from tenured employment in the District would not cure these conditions and would only serve to exacerbate the distressful conditions under which this school district now finds itself.

The Commissioner has fully reviewed the cited circumstance where Dr. Horowitz alleges he was precluded from presenting testimony regarding his past record which might serve to mitigate the penalty in this decision and she agrees with the ALJ's determination that such testimony was inappropriate at the time offered. The Commissioner further notes that Dr. Horowitz makes no claim to have ever attempted the introduction of this type of evidence at a later time during the hearing proceedings and she, therefore, finds his allegation of prejudice unpersuasive.

The Commissioner additionally notes that Dr. Horowitz' reliance on McCormick, supra, in arguing for a partial dismissal from tenure is totally without merit. The Commissioner finds no analogous factual pattern which could in any way justify permitting a superintendent whose actions caused such a devastating effect in his District to remain there in any capacity as an educational leader, albeit as a superintendent or principal.

IV. CONCLUSION

Upon careful and thorough consideration of the record, the Commissioner concludes that the Board has proven unbecoming conduct on the part of Dr. Horowitz on Charges I, V, VI, the combined Charge (VIII, IX, X, XI), XII, XIII, and XIX. She concludes that the totality of these incidents and their character, along with the consequences they have caused in the District, clearly show Dr. Horowitz to be unfit to fulfill the duties of a teaching staff member in the Bridgewater-Raritan school district.

The foregoing determination rendered by the Commissioner is based upon those findings and recommendations set forth in the initial decision of the ALJ as modified herein.

The Board is hereby directed to terminate Dr. Horowitz' employment as a tenured teaching staff member in the Bridgewater-Raritan school district as of the date of the Commissioner's decision.

It is further ordered that pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6(a)(1), a copy of the final decision in this matter be forwarded to the State Board of Examiners for its review and, in its discretion, further appropriate action.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

MARCH 4, 1993

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF LINCOLN PARK,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOROUGH COUNCIL OF THE BOROUGH OF LINCOLN PARK, MORRIS COUNTY,	:	DECISION

This matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education by way of a petition filed by the Board of Education of Lincoln Park (Board) appealing the defeat of a cap waiver placed before the voters of the Borough of Lincoln Park in the amount of $629,159. The Board's appeal argues that the above-cited amount is necessary in order to provide a thorough and efficient system of education to the children of the district.

On March 4, 1992, the County Superintendent of Morris County by letter authorized the Board to place a cap waiver proposal before the voters of the district in the amount of $629,159 pursuant to the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(f).[1]

[1] The Commissioner had previously on February 28, 1992 granted a cap waiver of $240,496 due to unanticipated special education costs as authorized under N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(e) which was included within the basic budget advertised and placed before the voters. Since the basic budget was approved by the voters that amount is not part of this appeal.

The County Superintendent's letter, however, notified the district that while the entire $629,159 could be included in the cap waiver proposal being presented to the voters, only $299,035 for specific line items was approved as being necessary to provide a thorough and efficient education. She further notified the Board that it must appeal that amount to the Commissioner should the cap waiver proposal be defeated. The amount of $330,124, not deemed essential for T&E, was not eligible for appeal to the Commissioner.

When the voters approved the current expense budget presented by the Board, but defeated the cap waiver proposal submitted under N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(f), the Board appealed to the Commissioner seeking approval to increase its current expense budget by the entire amount of $629,159 and challenged the action of the County Superintendent in not determining that the entire amount was necessary in order to provide a thorough and efficient system of education. The Borough of Lincoln Park (Borough) in its Answer urged the Commissioner to dismiss the petition contending that the Commissioner was barred by the express language of N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(f)[2] from considering any appeal of a defeated cap waiver proposal.

2 N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(f) provides:

> Any school district may submit a proposal to raise the amount of tax levy necessary to exceed the maximum permissible net budget permitted by this section to the legal voters of the district for type II school districts without a Board of School Estimate and to the Board of School Estimate for those school districts with a Board of School Estimate as required during the school budget approval process pursuant to chapters 22 and 54 of Title 18A of the New Jersey Statutes and section 13 of P.L. 1971, c.271 (C. 18A:46-41). The proposal to raise additional tax levy to exceed the maximum permissible net budget shall be in

Acting on the Borough's motion to dismiss, the Commissioner determined that authority to consider such appeals did exist, citing an Attorney General Opinion which held as follows:

> It is our opinion that the constitutional mandate for a thorough and efficient school system of education, which incorporates an obligation that districts have adequate fiscal resources, would empower the Commissioner to order a budget increase where necessary to meet the constitutional mandate. This interpretation is consistent with the longstanding and continuing legislative delegation of this constitutional responsibility to the Commissioner and the State Board, Robinson (V), id. at 461, which has been recognized by the courts.
>
> The QEA and subsequent amendments have not relieved the Commissioner of this constitutional responsibility. Thus, based on this delegation and the court's expansive interpretation of the Commissioner's authority and obligation to meet the constitutional mandate, it is reasonable to conclude that the Legislature did not intend to restrict the Commissioner's ability to fulfill his constitutional responsibilities. The recently enacted provision, therefore, does not preclude the Commissioner from entertaining a petition from a local school district whose budget -- without the cap waiver -- is determined to be inadequate to provide a thorough and efficient education to the children in that district. Those districts should be readily identifiable since the county superintendent should approve their budgets conditioned on the district receiving approval of a cap waiver.
> (Attorney General Opinion, July 8, 1991, at p. 4)

addition to the amounts required to be approved for each school district in accordance with chapters 22 and 54 of Title 18A of the New Jersey Statutes and section 13 of P.L. 1971, c.271 (C. 18A:46-41). In the event that a school district's proposal to raise the tax levy to exceed the maximum permissible net budget is not approved in accordance with the budget approval process set forth in chapter 22 of Title 18A of the New Jersey Statutes for type II districts and for type I districts, chapter 54 of Title 18A of the New Jersey Statutes for county vocational school districts and section 13 of P.L. 1971, c.271 (C. 18A:46-41) for county special services school districts, that disapproval shall be deemed final and shall not be subject to further review or appeal.

Additionally, the Commissioner dismissed that portion of the Board's cap waiver appeal which was not deemed essential for a T&E education by the Morris County Superintendent, also concluding that any appeal of the County Superintendent's determination should have been made prior to presenting the cap waiver proposal to the voters.

The Board appealed to the State Board arguing that the Commissioner had the obligation to consider the full amount of the cap waiver request. The Borough cross-appealed arguing once again that the Commissioner lacked authority to hear an appeal of a defeated cap waiver and that hearing the matter under procedures not codified denied it due process.

The State Board affirmed the Commissioner's authority to direct an increase in a district's budget when such an increase is necessary to meet the constitutional mandate of providing a thorough and efficient system of education relying, inter alia, on the Attorney General Opinion referred to above. However, citing the sparseness of the record and the absence of regulatory criteria by which the County Superintendent determined what additional amounts were necessary to provide a T&E education, the State Board remanded the entire cap waiver appeal to the Commissioner finding no basis in the record to treat differently those items deemed "approved T&E amounts" and those deemed "not approved T&E amounts." See Board of Education of the Borough of Lincoln Park v. Borough Council of the Borough of Lincoln Park, State Board Decision December 2, 1992.

Further, in the absence of regulations specifically codifying a cap waiver appeal process, the State Board held that it found nothing in the current regulatory scheme which would preclude the Board from having the opportunity to demonstrate to the Commissioner that the entire amount of the cap waiver proposal was necessary to provide a T&E education.

Moreover, the State Board concluded, that unlike the circumstances which prevail when a budget is defeated and when a Board of School Estimate establishes a budget amount necessary for a thorough and efficient system of education, the municipal governing body has no statutorily prescribed role in a cap waiver appeal before the Commissioner. Indeed, the State Board concluded that it found no basis upon which the Commissioner or the State Board would be precluded from affording complete relief to the Board even if the Borough were not joined as a respondent. Nevertheless, the State Board found that there was no basis upon which it could conclude that permitting the municipality to participate on a voluntary basis could deprive it of its right to due process as contended in the Borough's cross-appeal. Thus, by virtue of the State Board's decision in this matter, the Commissioner presently has before her the entire amount of the cap waiver proposal as submitted to the voters.

Upon remand from the State Board, a review of the record indicated that while the Board in its original submission of its Position Paper on August 19, 1992 had presented its rationale for the entire amount of $629,159, the Borough's Position Paper addressed only those line items included within the $299,035 found to be necessary for a thorough and efficient system of education by the Morris County Superintendent of Schools. Further, the Commissioner noted in light of the remand from the State Board that nothing in the record existed to explicate the County Superintendent's rationale for her rejection of the $330,124 from the cap waiver proposed as not being essential to the provision of a T&E education. Consequently, on December 28, 1992, Dr. Maureen Keller, Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, addressed a letter to the parties informing them that Dr. Sharon Clover, Morris County Superintendent, was to submit a sworn affidavit setting forth her rationale as to why she had determined the $330,124 was not essential to a T&E education. The letter from Dr. Keller also afforded the Borough an opportunity to supplement its original Position Paper to include its position relative to the $330,124 which it had not addressed.

The County Superintendent's affidavit was filed on January 22, 1993. The Borough did not submit a position on the $330,124, relying instead on the County Superintendent's submission. The record in the matter closed on February 8, 1993 upon receipt of the Board's reply to the County Superintendent's submissions.

BOARD'S POSITION

The Board's position in this account stems from its alleged need to undertake a building program to more adequately meet the needs of its middle school pupils at the Chapel Hill School whose newest wing is 35 years old. The funds requested in this account are for architectural services and filing fees which the Board contends cannot be reallocated from other areas budgeted in the Professional and Technical Services Account.

BOROUGH'S POSITION

The Borough contends that the Board showed a budget surplus of $361,157 after appropriating $167,424 into the 1992-93 budget and could therefore allocate a portion of that surplus to cover all approved T&E cap waiver programs.

The Borough likewise argues that all work requiring architectural services has been completed and submitted to the State.

COUNTY SUPERINTENDENT'S POSITION

The County Superintendent disapproved the inclusion of this amount in that portion of the cap waiver proposal because she deemed it not necessary for a T&E education given the status of the project for which the architectural fees are allocated, i.e., the plans were already submitted to Trenton and the project was on hold. The Board avers this position is in error.

Account	Request for Cap Waiver
130	$8,892

BOARD'S POSITION

The Board's request is based upon increases in New Jersey School Boards Association membership fees, increased cost of seminars and workshops for Board members and administrators and the need to replenish supplies.

Failure to increase the amount available will result in inability to receive adequate training for Board members and administration.

COUNTY SUPERINTENDENT'S POSITION

The County Superintendent indicates in her affidavit that the costs for this cap waiver request could be deterred for one year since the training and seminars are not required by code or statute and the account still has $85,507 for "other Board expenses." The Board rebuts the County Superintendent's position by pointing out that board membership training is now statutorily required.

Account	Request for Cap Waiver
211	$15,000

BOARD'S POSITION

The amount requested here is for salary increases totaling $4,074 for three building principals. In requesting this amount, the Board waived the additional $11,000 which it had originally requested.

BOROUGH'S POSITION

The Borough argues that the increases enjoyed by principals over the last five years have exceeded the inflation rate by two to three times. With the increase requested here, the Borough contends that the average increase in salary for principals will amount to over 8% per year over the last five years. It contends sufficient funds are available in surplus.

COUNTY SUPERINTENDENT'S POSITION

Having approved $4,074 for the purpose in her original review, the County Superintendent did not address this item in her sworn statement since the Board has waived the remaining $10,926.

Account	Request for Cap Waiver
213	$127,032

BOARD'S POSITION

The Board's request arises from a professional need for $90,000 for two additional elementary teachers to meet increasing enrollment anticipated for kindergarten and first grade to maintain lower class sizes at these two levels. Additionally, the Board argues that it employed three second grade teachers and only two third grade teachers in 1991-92 and, therefore, will require an additional third grade teacher in 1992-93 when the second graders move to the third grade.

Without the funds requested, the Board argues that it will also have to riff a Basic Skills Teacher and increase the number of students handled by four remaining teachers in an area requiring individualization.

BOROUGH'S POSITION

The Borough argues that the district is currently overstaffed at the middle school and recommends transfers to the elementary schools. It also argues for the elimination of a part-time position shown in the 1991-92 budget.

COUNTY SUPERINTENDENT'S POSITION

The County Superintendent points out that her original approval of $90,000 was based upon the $31,690 salary of the Basic Skills teacher and a starting salary of $30,000 for the two additional teachers requested.

Account	Request for Cap Waiver
214	$77,450

BOARD'S POSITION

The Board contends that the amount budgeted for 1992-93 in this area of Salaries Other Instructional Staff is a decrease from what was expended in 1991-92. Unless the entire cap waiver request is granted, the district will be required to eliminate a librarian and discontinue its part-time guidance person.

The Board contends the additional guidance services are necessary to address a need identified by the administration, Board and community for individualized elementary school counseling, crisis intervention and to expand the suicide prevention program and drug counseling program.

Presently one full-time and one part-time person are providing guidance to 969 pupils.

In its February 8, 1993 submission, the Board indicated it was unable to staff the library position and believes it essential that the funds be made available to bring the librarian back.

BOROUGH'S POSITION

The Borough argues that this account has shown extraordinary increases in five of the previous six years averaging 7 to 8% per year. The increases in expenditures will result in increases greater than the increases in pupil population growth. The Borough contends that current staffing levels have been the same for five of the last six years without detriment to a T&E education and therefore the requested increases are not warranted.

COUNTY SUPERINTENDENT'S POSITION

The County Superintendent originally approved as necessary for T&E an amount of $38,725 for the salary of the librarian. Her statement declares that a guidance counselor is not required for elementary school under current legislation defining T&E.

Account	Request for Cap Waiver
215	$4,000

BOARD'S POSITION

The amount requested in this account is to bolster the account for substitute secretaries which without the amount requested would be $7,500. For 1991-92 the district expended $11,101.51 for this purpose thus leaving it without sufficient resources for meeting this important service.

COUNTY SUPERINTENDENT'S POSITION

The County Superintendent points out that the actual audited expenditure in this account for 1991-92 was $85,542 out of $90,378 appropriated. Thus, the County Superintendent concluded that the requested cap waiver was not necessary based upon the previous year's budget expenditures. The Borough joins in this position.

Account	Request for Cap Waiver
216	$100

BOARD'S POSITION

The Board waived this request in its February 8, 1993 submission (p. 4).

Account	Request for Cap Waiver
220	$20,000

BOARD'S POSITION

The advertised budget in this area for textbook purchases is approximately $15,000 less than the 1991-92 unaudited expenditures. The Board contends that the total sum requested (including cap waiver amount) represents approximately $32 per pupil for replacement of existing texts, as well as the purchase of new science books for its elementary schools. These texts are replaced on a five-year review plan. Failure to replace the science texts will disrupt the cycle and require increased expenditures in future years.

BOROUGH'S POSITION

The Borough contends that this account has gone through extraordinary fluctuations in previous years (1990-91 - 1991-92) presumably based upon the need for science textbooks. It is the Borough's contention that substantial purchases of science textbooks have already occurred under grievants' budgets; therefore, no new science textbooks are necessary for T&E.

COUNTY SUPERINTENDENT'S POSITION

The County Superintendent approved the cap waiver request in this account as necessary for T&E.

Account	Request for Cap Waiver
230	$23,124

BOARD'S POSITION

The Board contends that it cannot maintain its library and audio visual materials on the $7,330 in its advertised budget when last year it expended $26,304.49 in this account. It contends that the amount requested is necessary to provide its students with up-to-date materials, periodicals, newspapers, records, maps and globes and such expenses cannot continue to be deferred.

COUNTY SUPERINTENDENT'S POSITION

The County Superintendent believed that the amounts requested could be deferred until next year and that the amount budgeted of $7,339 was sufficient to meet those expenditures which were necessary. The Borough joins in this position.

Account	Request for Cap Waiver
240	$25,200

BOARD'S POSITION

The Board contends that the amount budgeted in the advertised budget was less than that budgeted for 1991-92 which was itself less than expended in 1990-91.

Such reductions, it contends, increase needs in succeeding years. The Board contends that it will not be able to provide K-8 workbooks for drill and reinforcement without the additional funds.

Its instructional music program, argues the Board, will have to be reduced due to lack of sheet music.

BOROUGH'S POSITION

The Borough contends that this account has also had extraordinary increases in the last five years. The Borough contends that the amount budgeted for 1991-92 was sufficient to provide for a T&E education and no further increase is necessary. It urges the use of surplus if the Board seeks to expand its expenditures.

COUNTY SUPERINTENDENT'S POSITION

The County Superintendent states an increase of 9.23% of the $25,000 ($6,193) was warranted, an amount equal to the district's cap allowance. This would permit expenditures of $93,387, an amount approximately $1,000 over the previous year's budgeted amount. The Board denies any relationship between the cap allowance for the need for supplies and the supplies requested.

Account	Request for Cap Waiver
250	$16,400

BOARD'S POSITION

The Board contends that the consumable supplies in this account are necessary to update computer software and to upgrade computer facilities for sixth graders who have been moved to the district's middle school.

The monies will also be used to purchase building office supplies, the eighth grade Washington trip, graduation costs and administrative travel expenses.

COUNTY SUPERINTENDENT'S POSITION

The County Superintendent in her statement contended that the software expenditures could be deferred. Further, she pointed out that the $33,749 in the basic budget was greater than the audited 1991-92 actual expenditures by over $3,000. The Borough joins in this position.

Account	Request for Cap Waiver
260A	$3,000

BOARD'S POSITION

This line item is for the hiring of a consultant to assist in developing educational specifications for a new middle school or additions to the elementary school. In addition, it avers it is being required for bonding purposes to have its enrollment projections recalculated and extended, which cost is in the neighborhood of $3,000.

COUNTY SUPERINTENDENT'S POSITION

The County Superintendent denied this originally when reviewed but offers no specific reason for so doing other than to refer to the original denial of funds for architectural fees. The Borough joins in this position.

Account	Request for Cap Waiver
260B	$15,000

BOARD'S POSITION

The Board originally contended this amount was necessary to secure the services of an engineer to complete surveying and site work for its contemplated building program. However, in its February 8, 1993 submission it waived its request.

Account	Request for Cap Waiver
320	$325

BOARD'S POSITION

This request for travel service for attendance personnel has been waived by the Board.

Account	Request for Cap Waiver
410	$51,700

BOARD'S POSITION

This request is to provide a nurse at each building. The Board contends that the geographics of the district make it ineffective and inefficient for one nurse to be assigned to two buildings.

BOROUGH'S POSITION

The Borough insists that the amount necessary to maintain a nurse for each building is available in surplus. It also argues that there is no justification for nursing staff levels found adequate for T&E purposes in previous budget years.

COUNTY SUPERINTENDENT'S POSITION

The County Superintendent approved this expenditure in her cap waiver review.

Account	Request for Cap Waiver
430	$300

BOARD'S POSITION

This request is to provide X-rays and physicals to newly hired employees.

BOROUGH'S POSITION

The Borough's position wrongfully identifies the services provided in this account.

COUNTY SUPERINTENDENT'S POSITION

The County Superintendent approved this amount in the cap waiver.

Account	Request for Cap Waiver
510	$27,050

BOARD'S POSITION

The Board's rationale is to provide available funds should Special Education pupils require bus aides. The amount budgeted is sufficient to provide only one aide while the district contends that six children have been identified for school year 1992-93 who require such aide assistance.

COUNTY SUPERINTENDENT'S POSITION

The County Superintendent rejected this amount due to what she perceived as its speculative nature. The Borough joins in this position. The Board denies the amount is speculative, avering that it constitutes prudent budgeting.

Account	Request for Cap Waiver
520	$25,000

BOARD'S POSITION

This amount, the Board contends, is necessary to cover the cost of maintaining the same level of mandated busing as the previous year.

COUNTY SUPERINTENDENT'S POSITION

The amount for after-school trips and field trips was not considered essential for T&E. Additionally, Account 520C contained $13,820 budgeted for transportation for trips other than to or from school. The Borough joins in this position.

Account	Request for Cap Waiver
550	$810

BOARD'S POSITION

This amount is requested for clerical assistance and supplies for bus transportation. Without these funds the Board contends it will be unable to provide the necessary bus passes and mailing of transportation information to parents.

COUNTY SUPERINTENDENT'S POSITION

The County Superintendent found no monies provided for these services in the 1991-92 audited budget. The Borough joins in this position.

Account	Request for Cap Waiver
610	$19,255

BOARD'S POSITION

The monies requested here are to retain the services of a district messenger and to provide funds for overtime for custodians. The messenger service is deemed important to the Board for delivery of mail and messages to district building and county and state offices.

Overtime pay is deemed less expensive than hiring additional custodial help.

COUNTY SUPERINTENDENT'S POSITION

These monies were deemed not necessary by the County Superintendent since audited expenses in this account for 1991-92 were $208,871 and 1992-93 appropriations are $228,387. The Borough joins in this position.

Account	Request for Cap Waiver
630	$5,000

BOARD'S POSITION

The Board is on a heat budget plan and originally contended that it needs the $5,000 to make an adjustment on its anniversary date. However, it now waives that request as it has received its final billing.

Account	Request for Cap Waiver
710	$46,089

BOARD'S POSITION

The Board contends that without the funds requested it would be required to eliminate a maintenance mechanic. Since some of the funds requested in this account were already utilized for summer maintenance work, failure to provide the monies requested in this account would require depleting the Board's surplus.

BOROUGH'S POSITION

The Borough argues that maintenance staffing has increased dramatically over the last five years with three part-time positions being added in 1991-92. The Borough argues that the Board offers no specific justification for the waiver amounts requested and urges that the Board use surplus to meet any needs in this area.

COUNTY SUPERINTENDENT'S POSITION

Having originally approved this amount as necessary for T&E as part of the cap waiver review process, the County Superintendent offers no further justification.

Accounts	Request for Cap Waiver
730 and 730C	$58,469

BOARD'S POSITION

The Board points out that the basic budget approved by the voters contained no appropriation in this account for new and replacement instructional and non-instructional equipment. While acknowledging its willingness to accept the $31,954 approved as part of the T&E cap waiver amount by the County Superintendent, the Board argues that it cannot operate the district with no money allocated in this account.

BOROUGH'S POSITION

The Borough argues that the Board has expended large amounts in this area in previous years and since the equipment involved is of a durable nature, the Board should be able to function for a year without further expenditure in this account.

COUNTY SUPERINTENDENT'S POSITION

The $31,954 was already approved as essential by the County Superintendent in her cap waiver review process. In her affidavit submitted at the Commissioner's request, the County Superintendent rejected the Board's original request for an additional $26,515 under 730C as not having been justified by the Board since no specific equipment was delineated.

Account	Request for Cap Waiver
820	$13,800

BOARD'S POSITION

This account involves premiums for the Board's various insurance policies including health insurance. The Board contends that the amount appropriated for 1992-93 is based upon the actual premiums due. The additional $13,800 requested by way of cap waiver was to cover health benefits for the two new elementary teachers and the BSI teacher.

BOROUGH'S POSITION

The Borough maintains that the $10,000 approved for T&E purposes by the County Superintendent in this account can be taken from the Board's surplus.

COUNTY SUPERINTENDENT'S POSITION

The County Superintendent argues that the $10,000 cap waiver amount approved by her is sufficient to meet the actual costs of the insurance premiums including the two new elementary teachers and the BSI teacher based upon the actual State Health Benefits Plan rate increase.

Account	Request for Cap Waiver
930	$6,000

BOARD'S POSITION

The Board points out that it annually has a deficit in its cafeteria account. Based upon auditor's advice, the Board has budgeted an amount each year necessary to eliminate any deficit. It further avers it cannot offset any additional deficits in the cafeteria account by increasing revenues. The amount it charges for lunches is very close to the maximum allowed and it already has a high participation rate.

COUNTY SUPERINTENDENT'S POSITION

This amount was not approved since the Board could handle the amount requested with increased revenue if a deficit was projected prior to the start of the school year. The Borough joins in this position.

Account	Request for Cap Waiver
Program #27	$7,500

BOARD'S POSITION

The Board has waived its $7,500 request for this adult education program account.

Account	Request for Cap Waiver
22-210	$16,680

BOARD'S POSITION

The amount requested here is to increase the speech program an additional two days per week to supplement the one full-time and one part-time speech teacher. The Board contends that at present 85 pupils in three buildings are serviced under existing staff. The additional time is required to serve more students likely to be identified by virtue of increasing enrollment.

COUNTY SUPERINTENDENT'S POSITION

Based upon prior year expenditures and no increase in speech class enrollment, the County Superintendent deemed this amount as not being required. The Borough joins in this position.

COMMISSIONER'S DETERMINATION

The Commissioner has carefully considered the arguments presented by the parties, as well as those provided by the Morris County Superintendent of Schools. Based upon the above, the Commissioner finds and determines as follows:

Account 120D $15,983

The Commissioner finds that the Board has not met its burden to demonstrate the need for the architectural services requested. Cap waiver request is denied.

Account 130 $8,892

The Board has not met its burden of demonstrating that it cannot meet its obligations in this account with the approximately $1,000 more appropriated in 1992-93 than was appropriated in 1991-92. Cap waiver request is denied.

Account 211 $15,000

The Board having waived its request for $10,926, the cap waiver in the amount of $4,074 is approved. The Borough's argument that this amount can be met by appropriation from the Board's surplus is without merit. A $361,157 surplus in a $12,216,762 budget as maintained exists by the Borough is barely sufficient to meet possible emergencies and well within state guidelines. The $4,074 in cap waiver funds is granted.

Account 213 $127,032

Based upon the County Superintendent's assessment of the cost of hiring two new teachers and maintaining the services of a BSI teacher, the Commissioner grants the approval of $90,000 in cap waiver funds.

Account 214 $77,450

The Commissioner determines that the Board has met its burden of demonstrating its need for the entire $77,450 requested here. The Commissioner finds the Board's argument for maintaining guidance services compelling given the uses to which those services are put as described by the Board in its Position Statement. The waiver request of $77,450 is granted.

Account 215 $4,000

The Commissioner finds that the Board has not met its burden of demonstrating that it cannot meet its requirements for substitute secretaries without the amount requested here. The 1992-93 appropriated amount is over $2,000 more than appropriated in 1991-92. The waiver request is denied.

Account 220 $20,000

The cap waiver amount requested in this account of $20,000 is approved. The Board's argument of the need for replacement and new textbooks is compelling as its rationale for not disrupting an orderly process for textbook replacement.

Account 230 $23,124

The Commissioner finds the Board's argument for additional funds to maintain its library and audio visual materials current persuasive. The $7,339 approved for this purpose by the County Superintendent is insufficient for that purpose. The Commissioner directs a cap waiver amount of $16,607 be granted to equal the amount appropriated in 1991-92.

Account 240 $25,200

The Commissioner finds that the $6,193 approved by the County Superintendent as a cap waiver amount is sufficient to meet the district's needs since it would provide an amount more than equal to the $92,251 appropriated in this account in 1991-92. A cap waiver amount of $6,193 is approved.

Account 250 $16,400

The cap waiver amount requested in this account is denied. The County Superintendent points out that the audited expenditures in this account for 1991-92 are approximately $3,000 less than what is appropriated for 1992-93.

Account 260A $3,000

The Board has not demonstrated the need for a consultant to write educational specifications for its proposed building program.

Account 410 $51,700

The amount requested in this account for retention of a school nurse is approved. The Commissioner finds that, while a nurse in each building is not a statutory or regulatory requirement, the actual reduction of nursing services in a district which has seen it necessary due to its geographics to provide a nurse in every building could be detrimental to the well-being of the pupils. A cap waiver amount of $51,700 is approved.

Account 430 $300

The requested waiver amount of $300 in this account is denied. The Board has failed to demonstrate that there is an inability to reallocate such a small amount from its budget.

Account 510 $27,050

The amount requested in this account is denied based upon the reasoning of the County Superintendent that the need for additional bus aides is too speculative.

Account 520 $25,000

The cap waiver request in this account is denied based upon the County Superintendent's reasoning that the after-school activities recounted by the Board as part of its need are not essential to a T&E education. The Commissioner is also persuaded by the County Superintendent's argument that 520C contains funds for trips other than to or from school.

Account 550 $810

The cap waiver amount in this account is denied. The Board has failed to meet its burden of demonstrating need in that no funds for this account were expended in the 1991-92 school year as audited.

Account 610 $19,255

The Commissioner determines that the Board has failed to meet its burden. The County Superintendent's statement indicates that audited year expenditures in this account were $208,871 and 1992-93 appropriations allowed are $228,387 and should be sufficient to meet the needs described by the Board. The cap waiver amount is denied.

Account 710 $46,089

The Commissioner determines that the Board has met its burden of demonstrating the need for maintaining its current level of maintenance services. Given the level of past year expenditures, $87,644 in 1991-92, it would appear obvious that an appropriated amount of $47,891 would be insufficient to meet the need to maintain clear and safe facilities. The cap waiver request of $46,089 is granted.

Accounts 730 and 730C $58,469

The Commissioner notes that the amount budgeted by the Board in these accounts for 1992-93 is zero. In light of the need for assuring the Board ability to meet its needs for at least maintaining its current level of business and instructional equipment, the Commissioner affirms the County Superintendent's recommendation of a cap waiver amount of $31,954 as being necessary to ensure a T&E system of education.

Account 820 $13,800

The Commissioner affirms the recommendation of the County Superintendent that a cap waiver of $10,000 be granted in this account to cover the cost of health benefits for the two new elementary teachers. The Commissioner finds the Board's argument for additional funding to be unpersuasive.

Account 930 $6,000

The Commissioner, upon review of the 1991-92 June 30 status report, affirms the Board's request for a $6,000 cap waiver in this account. The Board's argument that the above amount is necessary to offset an anticipated deficit in the cafeteria account is persuasive based upon past experience. A zero amount budgeted in this account for 1992-93 would not be prudent.

Account 22-210 $16,680

The Commissioner denies the Board's request in this account. Given the estimate of the County Superintendent that the district has not demonstrated firm figures that would indicate an actual increase in the number of students requiring speech services, the amount budgeted for 1992-93 $40,260 would appear sufficient to meet their needs.

SUMMARY

The following represents a summary of the accounts and cap waiver amounts approved by the Commissioner:

Account	Amount of Waiver Approved
211	$ 4,074
213	90,000
214	77,450
220	20,000
230	16,607
240	6,193
410	51,700
710	46,089
730	31,954
820	10,000
930	6,000
Total Cap Waiver	$360,067

As a consequence of the cap waiver amount approved above, the Commissioner directs the Morris County Board of Taxation to increase the amount of taxes raised for Current Expense in the Lincoln Park School District for the 1992-93 school year by $360,067 bringing the total Current Expense tax levy for the 1992-93 school year to $9,592,302.

v.	:	STIPULATION OF DISMISSAL
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF CITY OF TRENTON, MERCER COUNTY,	:
Respondent.	:

This Stipulation of Dismissal is entered into by and between the Board of Education of the City of Trenton, Mercer County ("Board") and Dorothy Loffredo and Patricia William Turner as follows:

1. At the end of the 1991-1992 school year, the Board deducted $545.80 from the salary of its Secretary Dorothy Loffredo and $390.40 from the salary of its Secretary Patricia Williams-Turner.

Record Closed: January 12, 1993 Decided: March 12, 1993

BEFORE MARY ANN BURGESS, ALJ/t.a.:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Eddie Lee Harrell is a tenured teacher in the employ of the City of Paterson School District, now the State Operated School District of the City of Paterson (hereafter the School District). Mr. Harrell has been employed by the School District as a physical education teacher since 1962.

On May 28, 1992, the School district received a written Statement of Charges and Statement of Evidence field by Emmajean Stepherson, Ph.D., Assistant Superintendent of Schools, charging Mr. Harrell with (1) acts of corporal punishment, as prohibited by N.J.S.A.

18A:6-1; (2) unjustified physical contact with pupils; (3) use of profane language directed to pupils; (4) insubordination and (5) sleeping during the course of the performance of his professional duties. These charges were served upon Mr. Harrell who formally opposed their certification.

By resolution dated July 29, 1992, the School District authorized the filing of the above-described tenure charges with the New Jersey State Commissioner of Education. The School District also suspended Mr. Harrell without pay pending the resolution of the tenure proceeding in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14.

These tenure charges are the subject of the present administrative proceeding.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Tenure charges against Eddie Lee Harrell were formally filed with the State Commissioner of Education John Ellis on July 30, 1992. Thereafter, the School District, through its counsel, requested that this proceeding be accelerated in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-9.4(b). The School District also requested that the matter be transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) immediately and that Mr. Harrell file his Answer directly with the OAL. Commissioner Ellis, in a letter dated August 6, 1992, denied both requests.

An Answer, denying the allegations contained in the charges, was filed on behalf of Eddie Lee Harrell on August 19, 1992. The matter was thereupon transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law.

A prehearing conference was conducted in the matter on September 22, 1992 which resulted in the entry of an Order on the same day. Thereafter, two telephone conferences were held to resolve discovery issues. Further, at the request of both parties, OAL arranged to conduct the hearing at the Totowa Municipal Building. The numerous local witnesses were, therefore, accommodated at a field location adjacent to the Paterson school district.

Prior to the commencement of the hearing, counsel for Mr. Harrell requested that the witnesses be sequestered. The School District did not object. Therefore, with the exception of Mr. Harrell and one adult witness for the School District, all witnesses were sequestered prior to their testifying in this proceeding.

Counsel for respondent also submitted a motion seeking resumption of Mr. Harrell's salary payments. Since Mr. Harrell had been suspended without pay on July 29, 1992, it was argued that the statutory 120 day period of "suspension without pay" expired on November 26, 1992. The School District resisted this application arguing that the respondent had not cooperated in providing information concerning earnings from substituted employment. If Mr. Harrell were receiving income from substituted employment, the District would be entitled to offset its salary payments to him by any income he received from that employment. After considering the arguments advanced by counsel, an Order was entered on December 9, 1992 directing the School District to resume full salary payments to respondent, Eddie Lee Harrell, effective November 27, 1992. The Order further stated that the salary payments would be reduced by all moneys Mr. Harrell received from substituted employment. During the hearing, the School District would be permitted to question Mr. Harrell to determine whether he had received any such compensation during the course of his suspension.

The plenary hearing in this matter was conducted on December 1, 2, 3, 4 and 9, 1992 and on January 11 and 12, 1993. At the close of the School District's case, counsel for Mr. Harrell moved for dismissal of the charges. Based on the record before it, the court concluded that the School District had met its burden of establishing a prima facie case as to all the charges certified against Mr. Harrell. The respondent's motion to dismiss was, therefore, denied.

At the conclusion of the hearing, counsel for the School District advised the court that he would not question Mr. Harrell concerning the issue of compensation for substituted employment. Both counsel also waived the opportunity to present written or oral summations to the court.

OVERVIEW OF THE CHARGES

The School District certified five charges against its physical education teacher, Eddie Lee Harrell.

Charge One asserts that Mr. Harrell:

> . . . committed several acts of corporal punishment by causing trauma or inflicting physical injuries upon pupils and otherwise using undue physical force upon pupils assigned to his care and supervision:
>
> 1. On February 25, 1988, respondent while supervising a physical education class inflicted corporal punishment upon a pupil, J.R., by grabbing, striking, kicking and otherwise injuring said pupil absent justification for use of physical contact.
>
> 2. On January 29, 1991, respondent while supervising a physical education class inflicted corporal punishment, absent justification upon a pupil, G.C., by grabbing the pupil by the neck and pushing the pupil in his chest.
>
> 3. On March 25, 1991, respondent while supervising a physical education class inflicted corporal punishment upon a pupil, D.F., by grabbing him by the shirt and striking the pupil in the back and pushing him down the stairwell.
>
> 4. On March 6, 1992, respondent while supervising a physical education class inflicted corporal punishment upon a pupil, G.B., by pushing the pupil in the back of the head into a brick wall in the gym equipment storage room.
>
> 5. On March 6, 1992, respondent while supervising a physical education class inflicted corporal punishment upon a pupil, A.R., by grabbing the arm and pushing the pupil into a brick wall in the gym equipment storage room.
>
> 6. On March 6, 1992, respondent while supervising a physical education class inflicted corporal punishment upon a pupil,R.R., by grabbing the arm and throwing the pupil to the floor.
>
> 7. On March 6, 1992, respondent while supervising a physical education class inflicted corporal punishment upon a pupil, J.M., by pushing the pupil in the back on to the floor mat injuring his nose.

The second charge, that Eddie Lee Harrell engaged in "unjustified physical contact" is based on the same seven incidents set forth in Charge One.

The third charge asserts that Eddie Lee Harrell, engaged in conduct unbecoming a teaching staff member, when

> On, March 26, 1991, . . . [he] used profane and inappropriate language directed toward pupils, D.F. and N.I., in disrespect.

Charge Four asserts that Eddie Lee Harrell engaged in acts of insubordination. This charge specifies:

> On March 1, 1991, Principal Glenn Lagatol expressly instructed respondent not to put his hands on any more pupils assigned to his physical education class. Respondent was instructed to notify the administration of any problems. On March 25, 1991 and March 6, 1992, the respondent failed to obey this directive to cease and desist from using physical force on pupils.

The fifth and last charge asserts that Eddie Lee Harrell, on June 10, 1991, and on other dates, ". . . fell asleep during the course of performing his duties in the classroom or attending faculty meetings." Mr. Harrell, therefore > . . . risked the safety of pupils under his care and supervision and exhibits disrespect to fellow teaching staff members. . . [his] conduct constitutes conduct unbecoming a teaching staff member.

Charges One, Two and to a lesser extent Four are based upon the same specifications or incidents. The testimony of the witnesses will, therefore, be discussed in the order of those seven incidents and appropriate findings of fact made with regard to each incident. There will be a further grouping of the four incidents which occurred on March 6, 1992 since these involve many common witnesses. Furthermore, Charge Three: Use of Profane Language involves the March 26, 1991 incident listed in Charges One and Two and will be addressed at that point. The remainder of this decision will then address Charge Four: Falling Asleep During Duty.

In his opening statement, counsel for the school district contended that it would be established by a preponderance of the evidence, that Mr. Harrell had committed acts of corporal punishment against seven students in the Paterson school district. The district would also establish that Mr. Harrell was guilty of insubordination in failing to follow the Policy on Corporal Punishment and his principal's directions with regard to this policy. Finally, the district would establish that Mr. Harrell had fallen asleep while on duty. Having proven these charges, counsel argued that Mr. Harrell would be unfit to continue as a teacher in the school district and should, therefore, be dismissed from that position. Citing language of the Commissioner of Education, In the Tenure Hearing of Sammons, 1972 S.L.D. 302, 321 (June 15, 1972) counsel stressed that teachers have a heavy duty to their students which ". . . requires a degree of self-restraint and controlled behavior, rarely requisite to other professions." Counsel pointed out that Mr. Harrell had already breached this responsibility in 1979, when he was found guilty of slapping a student while breaking up a fight. At that time the Commissioner ordered that he forfeit two weeks salary.

Counsel for Mr. Harrell argued that his client has been teaching physical education in one of the toughest urban school districts in the State New Jersey for over 30 years. Throughout this time, he has continued to be a strict disciplinarian. Counsel argued that the students decided to "get back" at Mr. Harrell for being too tough by making up these charges of corporal punishment (1 T:17). He concluded that Mr. Harrell did not mistreat his students and that he is not guilty of the tenure charges filed against him.

CHARGE ONE: CORPORAL PUNISHMENT
CHARGE TWO: UNJUSTIFIED PHYSICAL CONTACT
(1) February 25, 1988 Incident Involving J.R.

The District called Kathleen Ruffer as its first witness in connection with the February 25, 1988 incident. Ms. Ruffer has been an elementary school teacher with the School District since 1975. During the 1987-88 school year, this witness was employed as a seventh grade teacher in P.S. No. 11 in the City of Paterson. Ms. Ruffer described her students as ranging in age from 11 through 15 primarily of Spanish origin or black from extremely low-income families. She described the neighborhood as depressed.

During the 1987-88 school year, Ms. Ruffer had approximately 23 youngsters in her seventh grade class. One of her students was J.R. She described J.R. as approximately 5'4" tall, of medium build, thin, and wearing glasses. Ms. Ruffer taught all subjects to her class and never had a problem with J.R. He was a solid C/B student who had a good attendance record. He was popular with his classmates although somewhat quiet.

Ms. Ruffer testified that during that school year, her class had gym class with Mr. Harrell after the lunch period between 1:00 and 1:30 on either Thursdays or Fridays. Ms. Ruffer knew Mr. Harrell for at least two years when he taught physical education at P.S. No. 11. Ms. Ruffer testified that since P.S. No. 11 had no gymnasium, the children had their physical education classes in the outdoor play ground, weather permitting. It was the required procedure for the teacher to bring the class to the playground for the physical education class and to pick the class up at the end of the gym period. On this particular day in February, 1988, Ms. Ruffer went to pick up her class at the outside play ground. It was a cold, windy day and the witness noticed a great deal of newspaper flying around on the play ground. Her class was also excited and rather noisy. She tried to quiet them down as she brought them to the first stairway (P-21). Ms. Ruffer then observed Mr. Harrell and J.R. come though the outer door behind her class. When she realized what was happening, she sent her class to the next level to get them out of the way.

Ms. Ruffer testified that Mr. Harrell was behind J.R. and had his arms across J.R.'s chest. The boy's back was against Mr. Harrell's chest. J.R. was raised off the ground and being thrust forward by Mr. Harrell. Mr. Ruffer was about to pass to the next level with her class, when she heard a thud in the hallway. She turned and saw J.R. sprawled prone, face down, on the ground with Mr. Harrell standing over him. Mr. Harrell was swinging both his arms over J.R. as he said "Get up and fight. You're a tough guy" (2T-14-17 to 18).

Ms. Ruffer testified that as she approached Mr. Harrell and reached for his arm, he started to kick J.R. She described a minimum of three kicks directed to J.R.'s leg, thigh and buttocks. The boy squirmed away trying to avoid the blows. Sometime, during the altercation, J.R.'s glasses were knocked off and came to rest near a closet door. As one point Ms. Ruffer caught J.R.'s eye and he said to her: "Please get him off me. Please help me" (2T:16-6 to 8).

Ms. Ruffer tried to get Mr. Harrell's attention by placing her hand on his arm. He did not respond. It was her opinion that during this incident Mr. Harrell was out of control.

The incident ended when Mr. Rosenblum, the principal, came out of his office and got between J.R. and Mr. Harrell, separating them. Mr. Rosenblum then assisted J.R. to his feet. He indicated to Ms. Ruffer that he would take care of the matter and that she should return to her class. About ten minutes later, the basic skills instructor came to Ms. Ruffer's room and she went to the main office to find J.R. She found him in the office and noticed that he had cuts to the side of his eye and that he was crying. Since J.R. had not yet seen the nurse, Ms. Ruffer brought him to her office. Ms. Ruffer returned to her class when the nurse, Ms. Hopko, said she would take care of J.R.

Ms. Ruffer was later contacted by DYFS and questioned as part of their investigation of this incident. As a result of the investigation, Mr. Harrell was arrested at school on a Friday. The next morning, between 6:30 and 7:00 a.m., Mr. Harrell called Ms. Ruffer's home to complain that she had helped get him arrested. Ms. Ruffer felt intimidated and harassed by the telephone call. Up until that time, she believed she had a pleasant relationship with Mr. Harrell.

On cross examination, Ms. Ruffer explained that while Mr. Harrell had J.R. in a bear-hug, J.R. tried to move his arm from side to side and that when Mr. Harrell lifted J.R. his legs were dangling. This witness also conceded that she did not see what caused the thud that caught her attention and, therefore, did not know how J.R. got to the floor. Ms. Ruffer testified that until this incident none of her children had complained about Mr. Harrell; in fact, they loved gym. She also explained that none of the physical education teachers assigned to P.S. No. 11 were pleased by the assignment since the school had no gym.

On re-direct, Ms. Ruffer testified that J.R. returned to school the day after the incident. Further, J.R. completed the school year and was promoted to the eight grade in June, 1988. He was fourteen years of age at the time.

The next witness to be called by the District in connection with the February 25, 1988 incident was Norman Rosenblum. Mr. Rosenblum has been employed as a building principal in the Paterson School District since 1969. His first appointment was as principal of P.S. No. 20. He was thereafter transferred to P.S. No. 11 in 1976. Mr. Rosenblum testified that he was on sick leave in 1989 and officially retired from the system in December, 1990.

During the 1987-88 school year, Mr. Rosenblum was principal of P.S. No. 11 where Ms. Ruffer was the seventh grade teacher and Mr. Harrell taught physical education on a part-time basis. Mr. Rosenblum testified that on February 25, 1988, he was working in his office when he heard a commotion by the first floor stair case. Mr. Rosenblum left his office and saw J.R. on the floor with Mr. Harrell standing over him. This witness recalled that Mr. Harrell had J.R. by the neck or jacket collar and that he told him to let the boy go. Mr. Rosenblum then picked J.R. up from the ground.

Mr. Rosenblum testified that, after the incident, he called J.R.'s home and that his father came in for a conference. When J.R.'s father saw his son with a bruise under his eye, he became quite upset. J.R.'s father was given permission to take his son home for the remainder of the school day. Mr. Rosenblum also sent home to J.R.'s parents a "Conduct Report" prepared by Mr. Harrell. On the report, he noted: "Parent must come in to see the teacher" (P-19). Mr. Rosenblum testified that J.R.'s father did return to the school on the next day and that the matter appeared to be satisfactorily resolved (P-20). This witness further stated that J.R. was never disciplined despite Mr. Harrell's initial report.

On cross-examination, it became apparent that Mr. Rosenblum did not have a clear recollection of some of the details of the February 25, 1988 incident. Indeed, this witness admitted that his memory of the event was refreshed by reading a transcript of the testimony which he had given the Paterson Police Department. The Police Department, together with the Division of Youth and Family Services, had conducted a joint investigation into the February 25, 1988 incident. After considering the arguments of counsel, this court concluded that the transcript of Mr. Rosenblum's testimony was not shielded by the confidentiality provision of N.J.S.A. 9:6-8.10 since it was part of the police investigation. It was also noted that the transcript of Ms. Ruffer's testimony, part of the same investigation, had been included in the Statement of Evidence in this matter. Mr. Rosenblum's testimony was, therefore, provided to Mr. Harrell's counsel and introduced into evidence as R-3.

Referring to this document, Mr. Rosenblum stated that Mr. Harrell had told him that J.R. brought a rolled up newspaper to the play ground and was using it to hit other students. Further, a section of the newspaper was blown about the schoolyard and J.R. refused to clean it up as directed by Mr. Harrell. Mr. Rosenblum also restated his opinion, originally given to the Paterson Police that Mr. Harrell was "not in a rage" (2T:83-16 to 17).

The School District next called Dorothy Hopko to testify concerning the February 25, 1988 incident. Mrs. Hopko testified that she has been employed by the Paterson school district for nine years and that she has been the school nurse of P.S. No. 11 during that entire period.

The witness stated that she treated J.R. on February 25, 1988 at about 1:45 p.m. She prepared a "Student Incident/Accident Investigation Report" of that treatment in which she noted his injuries.:

> . . . . right side of his face was red and bruised; his right eye was red and weeping; his right ankle and knee were bruised and abrased; and the area over his right shoulder and lumbar region of his back were red in color. (2T:91-17 to 22) (P-18)

It was this witness's opinion that these injuries were consistent with someone falling to the ground and being kicked in some manner. Mrs. Hopko further described J.R. as very emotional when he arrived at her office and as being "overwhelmed," "unable to cope". (2T:92-3, 9 to 10).

Mrs. Hopko also included in her report J.R.'s account of what transpired between himself and Mr. Harrell:

> Student states 'I was leaving the playground after gym. I was going up the stairs to the first floor when Mr. Harrell grabbed me by the back of my coat collar and dragged me back to the playground. Mr. Harrell then dragged me back into the building and we started to fight. He kicked me on my right shoulder.' (P-18) (2T:92-18 to 94-12).

Mrs. Hopko testified that she spent some time with J.R. applying cold compresses to his injuries. She also recommended that the boy see his own physician. Although she believed her recommendation was followed, she did not receive any report back or medical slip from the family.

Ms. Hopko, on cross examination, rethought her opinion that J.R.'s bruises and injuries were consistent with a fall and kicking. She conceded that she could not give a definitive opinion as to the cause of J.R.'s injuries.

The respondent, Eddie Lee Harrell, testified in his own behalf. He testified that he has been employed by the Paterson school system as a physical education teacher since 1962. Mr. Harrell further stated that he has a B.S. in physical education and social studies. He also has a masters in education administration specializing in principalship. The respondent has numerous certifications including physical education teacher, principal supervisor, science, social studies and driver education.

With regard to the February 25, 1988 incident, Mr. Harrell testified that it occurred at the end of his physical education class with the seventh grade. J.R. and several other students had newspapers and were hitting one another with them. The other students were not in Mr. Harrell's gym class and left the playground when recess ended. J.R. was left on the playground with the remainder of the 7th grade physical education class. When the bell sounded, Mr. Harrell had the class line up. He then told J.R. to come with him and pick the paper up; J.R. went outside but just stood there. Mr. Harrell stated that if he did not pick up the paper, he would take him to the office. The respondent then put his hand on J.R.'s back and they walked through the doors into the school building. Mr. Harrell testified that when they reached the second level area shown in P-22 that J.R. dropped to the floor "right on his buttocks" (5T:27-3 to 8). J.R. then > . . . started cursing and kicking me in the front part of my leg, and what I was doing at this particular time was trying to keep him from kicking me on the shins and the legs. I kept snatching my leg back and saying '. . . you got to go to the office. You got to go to the office,' and the next thing I knew, Mr. Rosenblum was there, and he told me to let him take . . [J.R.], and he took . . . [J.R.] and he told me to go to the office and write it up and I went to the office and wrote it up. . . (5T:26-12 to 22).

Mr. Harrell denied kicking J.R. or challenging him to fight. He also denied seeing any visible injuries when J.R. got up from the floor.

Mr. Harrell testified that on the following day, February 26, 1988, he met with J.R.'s father and explained what happened. It was his view that the matter was resolved and that if J.R. gave him a hard time, the office was to call J.R.'s father who would remove him from the school immediately.

Mr. Harrell testified that he continued teaching his physical education classes for the next three weeks. According to his schedule, he would teach at P.S. No. 14 on Mondays and Tuesdays and at P.S. No. 11 for the next three days. On Friday afternoon of the third week, he was arrested by the Paterson police for assaulting a student. Mr. Harrell testified that when the parties appeared in municipal court on this complaint, J.R. agreed to dismiss it. It was Mr. Harrell's recollection that J.R. told the judge that ". . . it was a minor thing" (5T:38-16 to 20).

In addition to the dismissal of the complaint, Mr. Harrell was notified on April 18, 1988 that "no indictment had been found against" him based on the February 25, 1988 incident (R-4). At a later date, J.R. filed a civil suit against the School District and Mr. Harrell based on the events of February 25, 1988.

On cross examination, Mr. Harrell denied the testimony of both Ms. Ruffer and Mr. Rosenblum. Nor was Mr. Harrell able to offer a reasonable explanation for the injuries sustained by J.R. during the February 25, 1988 incident.

On rebuttal, the school district called J.R. and his father, I.R. The respondent did not object to these witnesses testifying on rebuttal. Since J.R. is no longer a student within the Paterson system, the district had difficulty locating him and informing him of the hearing dates.

J.R. testified that he attended the seventh grade at P.S. No. 11 during the 1987-1988 school year and that Kathleen Ruffer was his homeroom teacher and Eddie Lee Harrell, his gym teacher. With regard to the February 25, 1988 incident, J.R. testified that Mr. Harrell asked him to pick up some papers in the playground and he said "No" since he had not put them there.

Mr. Harrell then grabbed him by the collar and dragged him outside. Mr. Harrell next dragged J.R. back into the school and up the stairs.

J.R. testified that:

> . . . in my defense, I hit him or tried to hit him, and then after that he just threw me on the floor. He was still holding me. He threw me on the floor, and then he started hitting me, swinging at me (7T:9-12 to 16).

J.R. who was wearing his glasses at the time of the incident, testified that when Mr. Harrell swung at him, his glasses flew off causing cuts to the face. Once on the ground, Mr. Harrell started kicking J.R. in his ribs. This witness further testified that Mr. Harrell only stopped kicking him when Mr. Rosenblum came between them.

J.R. confirmed that he was taken to Nurse Hopko for treatment and then to Mr. Rosenblum's office. After being called by the principal, J.R.'s father came to P.S. No. 11.

J.R. testified that he is presently eighteen years of age and that at the time of the incident he was fourteen. He conceded, that after four years, he did not remember all the details of the incident but that he clearly recalled that Mr. Harrell did kick him.

With regard to the municipal court complaint, J. R. testified that he and his family were not represented by counsel. He explained that his father agreed to dismiss the complaint because he did not know that much English and was confused. J.R. testified that he was upset by the dismissal. He did not feel he had done anything wrong to be treated the way Mr. Harrell had treated him.

On cross examination, J.R. testified that after the dismissal of the criminal complaint, his family retained an attorney to bring a civil action against the Paterson school district and Mr. Harrell. This matter was settled before it went to trial and J.R. received $10,000 from the settlement.

As to the incident itself, J.R. testified that he struggled to get away from Mr. Harrell as the teacher dragged him back out to the playground. Mr. Harrell, however, held on to him dragging him back into the school and up the stairs to the next level. J.R. recalled that Mr. Harrell held him low as he dragged him along and that his legs first bumped along the ground and then up the stairs. As the next level, Mr. Harrell held J.R. against a wall and J.R. tried to hit him in self-defense. It was then that Mr. Harrell threw him to the floor and reached over him trying to hit him with his hands. At this time J.R. tried to push Mr. Harrell away with his feet.

J.R. admitted that he was "blinded" with rage during this incident so he could not see clearly what was going on. He did recall that Mr. Harrell, after trying to hit him with his hands, started kicking him.

The final witness to testify concerning the February 25, 1988 incident was J.R.'s father, I.R. Mr. R. confirmed that he was called by the principal to come to the school to pick up his son. When Mr. R. arrived at P.S. No. 11, he spoke with Mr. Rosenblum and Mr. Harrell. Mr. R. testified that he was not told the truth about what happened. He was told that his son had disobeyed Mr. Harrell. J.R. came into the office while his father was meeting with Mr. Rosenblum and Mr. Harrell. Mr. R. became angry when he saw his son because J.R.'s face was red, with a scratch on his right eye and his glasses were broken. Mr. R. was angry because "the teacher not supposed to do that." Mr. R. later called the Spanish Handicapped Association because J.R. was a classified student.

Mr. R. denied that he had told Mr. Rosenblum or Mr. Harrell that he was satisfied. He said J.R. is a "special kid" and should have more consideration than the others (7T:70-14 to 17). Mr. R. testified that after this incident, his son lost interest in school and dropped out before graduation.

As to the appearance before the municipal court, Mr. R. testified that no one from DYFS or from the Paterson Police Department appeared. After talking to Mr. Harrell's attorney, Mr. R. agreed to dismiss the complaint because he understood that Mr. Harrell "was out of the school, not with the Board of Education" any more (7T:75-3 to 6).

On cross examination, Mr. R. testified that during his conference at the school, Mr. Harrell said J.R. was disrespectful and that when Mr. Harrell grabbed J.R., the boy threw himself to the floor. When he saw the marks on J.R.'s face, he asked his son what happened.

> He told me he put some paper on the floor, and Mr. Harrell wanted him to pick it up. He didn't pick it up, and Mr. Harrell said come here,' threw him to the floor, and hit him with the foot. (7T:81-1 to 5).

Mr. R. further denied that his son got into a lot of fights when he was 14 years of age.

This witness also testified that he never contacted the police. The police had been notified by DYFS. Thereafter, representatives of both DYFS and the police came to Mr. R.'s home and took statements from J.R. and from his father. Mr. R. denied that he ever told the municipal court judge that the matter should be dismissed because it was not serious. He also confirmed that after the dismissal of the complaint, no one from DYFS or the Paterson Police Department contacted the family.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Having carefully considered the testimony of the witnesses presented by the School District in support of the first specification of Charges One and Two and the testimony of the respondent presented in his own defense, and having had the opportunity to view the demeanor of those witnesses as they gave their testimony, and having fully reviewed the exhibits entered into evidence relevant to this incident, I FIND the following:

During the 1987-88 school year, J.R. was a fourteen-year-old student in the seventh grade at P.S. No. 11 in the Paterson School District. This school, located in an economically depressed area of Paterson, has a large number of Spanish speaking students. During that year, Ms. Kathleen Ruffer, was J.R.'s homeroom teacher. She taught all subjects to the students in her class. J.R. was a solid C/B student with a good attendance record. Although he was a quiet boy, he got along well with his classmates who respected him. At 14 years of age, he was approximately five feet four inches tall, of medium build, but slender, and wore glasses.

In that school year, Eddie Lee Harrell had a split assignment. He taught physical education classes at P.S. No. 14 on Mondays and Tuesdays. For the remainder of the week, Mr. Harrell taught physical education at P.S. No. 11. J.R. was in Mr. Harrell's Thursday afternoon physical education class at P.S. No. 11. Since there was no gymnasium at P.S. No. 11, Mr. Harrell taught his class on the school playground in good weather and in the class home room on bad days.

The seventh grade students looked forward to, and enjoyed, their physical education classes with Mr. Harrell. Ms. Ruffer had a pleasant relationship with Mr. Harrell while Norman Rosenblum, the principal of P.S. 11, was happy that Mr. Harrell was assigned to teach physical education at his school.

On Thursday, February 25, 1988, Mr. Harrell was conducting his physical education class for Ms. Ruffer's seventh grade on the playground of P.S. No. 11. J.R. was present on the playground for the class. It was a windy day and newspapers had blown about the playground. Mr. Harrell asked J.R., who was already in the school building, to go back to the playground and pick up the newspapers. J.R. refused. Mr. Harrell grabbed J.R. and dragged him back out to the playground. He again told J.R. to pick up the paper or he would take him to Mr. Rosenblum's office. J.R. again refused. Mr. Harrell, putting his arms across J.R.'s chest in a bear hug, lifted J.R. off the ground and propelled him back into the school and up the stairs. Ms. Ruffer escorting her class back to its homeroom, witnessed this part of the incident. When the pair reached the hallway at the second level, Mr. Harrell pushed J.R. up against the wall; when J.R. struck out at Mr. Harrell, the latter threw him to the floor. J.R.'s glasses were knocked off. Hearing the thud, Ms. Ruffer turned and saw Mr. Harrell standing over J.R., swinging his arms over J.R. in a threatening fashion and challenging him to get up and fight. Ms. Ruffer tried to get Mr. Harrell to stop but he did not. As J.R. lay on the floor, Mr. Harrell kicked him at least three times on his leg, thigh and buttocks. J.R. squirmed on the floor in an effort to avoid the blows.

Hearing the commotion, Mr. Rosenblum left his office and found J.R. lying on the floor with Mr. Harrell standing over him. He told Mr. Harrell to stop and then Mr. Rosenblum helped J.R. stand up. The principal then sent J.R. to the nurse.

As a result of this incident, J.R. sustained a bruise to the right side of his face, with a red and weepy right eye. J.R.'s right ankle and knee were bruised and abrased and his right shoulder and lumbar area were red in color.

J.R.'s father came to the school on February 25, 1988, for a conference with Mr. Rosenblum and Mr. Harrell. He became angry when he saw his son's condition. He believed a teacher should not have done this to his son. I.R. later dismissed criminal charges against Mr. Harrell. He did so because he believed that Mr. Harrell was permanently removed from the school and would not harm another student. I.R. did not agree to dismiss the charges because he thought the incident was "minor" or "not serious." After this incident, J.R. lost interest in school and eventually dropped out before graduation.

Mr. Harrell's account of the incident, that J.R. was disrespectful, cursed and kicked at him, sat down on his backside, and refused to go to the principal's office, does not provide a reasonable explanation for the injuries sustained by J.R.

Although four years had passed since the incident, J.R. was able to testify to the main aspects of the occurrence. This testimony was consistent with his statements at the time of the incident and consistent, to a large extent, with the testimony of Ms. Ruffer and Mr. Rosenblum.

Ms. Ruffer, a very convincing witness, gave a straight forward account of the events she witnessed. There was no testimony which would establish any reason for Ms. Ruffer either coloring or exaggerating her recital of the events she witnessed.

Mr. Rosenblum, the building principal, had very little recollection of the events of the February 25, 1988 incident apart from the written record. Further, Mr. Rosenblum was interested in retaining Mr. Harrell as a physical education teacher and thus was anxious to satisfactorily resolve the matter with J.R.'s family.

Although J.R. was disrespectful to Mr. Harrell, Mr. Harrell's conduct to J.R. was not permitted under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-1. Mr. Harrell laid hands on J.R. and kicked him and these actions were not required to prevent injury either to himself or another student. The School District has therefore established by a preponderance of the credible evidence that Eddie Lee Harrell inflicted corporal punishment on J.R. and had improper physical contact with him as charged herein.

CHARGE ONE: CORPORAL PUNISHMENT
CHARGE TWO: UNJUSTIFIED PHYSICAL CONTACT
(2) January 29, 1991 Incident Involving G.C.

The School District's next witness, Glenn J. Lagatol, testified with regard to the remainder of the charges filed against Mr. Harrell. Mr. Lagatol has been employed by the Paterson school district for approximately twenty-two years. He has been principal of P.S. No. 15 since July, 1989. Previously, Mr. Lagatol was principal of P.S. No. 2 and was vice principal of six different schools throughout the system.

This witness attended Montclair State College for his undergraduate degree and William Paterson College for his masters. He holds a principal certificate, a Spanish teacher's certificate - K through 12 and an elementary certificate.

Mr. Lagatol described P.S. No. 15 as a sprawling edifice built in 1928. It is the second largest elementary school in Paterson having 1100 students and 150 faculty and staff members. P.S. No. 15 is a full service institution offering a K through 8 curriculum.

This witness described his responsibilities as building principal, as supervising instruction, effectuating curriculum, expediting problems. He is ultimately responsible for everything which goes on in P.S. No. 15. He monitors discipline with the assistance of the vice principals and contacts parents, if necessary.

Mr. Lagatol testified that he is very familiar with the faculty of P.S. No. 15 seeing everyone at least once a day and most twice a day. This witness first met Eddie Lee Harrell in 1986 when Mr. Lagatol was vice principal of Eastside High School and Mr. Harrell was assigned to the physical education department in the high school. He described his relationship at that time as cordial but more recently colored by his concerns that Mr. Harrell needed to improve in certain areas. He described Mr. Harrell as lacking in an ability to curb his temper and see things clearly. Although he thought Mr. Harrell a competent educator, he was of the opinion that he reacts in a hard-headed, vociferous, hot tempered manner most of the time.

As an example of this behavior, Mr. Lagatol identified a note which he received from Mr. Harrell on March 23, 1990 in which Mr. Harrell complained that he was ". . . put on the spot by some-ones spoiled brat," and was being "set up" by these kids for actions which are "taken or interpreted as corporal punishment." Mr. Harrell further asked that his classes be covered for the remainder of the day since he was going home. (P-1).

Mr. Lagatol explained that he has had group discussions with all his staff about corporal punishment. He has also met with individuals, including Mr. Harrell, to discuss the prohibition against corporal punishment in solving problems.

Mr. Lagatol testified that Mr. Harrell was one of two gym teachers assigned to P.S. No. 15. The other teacher is Miss Cynthia Jones. On an ordinary school day, Mr. Harrell was required to sign in at 8:40 and then report to his duty station which was the gymnasium. Mr. Harrell's first period would start at 8:48. The homeroom teacher would drop off the class to the gym teachers; the girls would go into the girls' locker room supervised by Ms. Jones and the boys would be supervised by Mr. Harrell in their locker room. After the children were suited up, they would return to the gym and each teacher would take attendance for his/her class. Those students who did not change would sit on the bench and would not participate in gym class. The students who were prepared for gym would have their warm up exercises and then their gym activities which often were planned by the two teachers. On any given day, Mr. Harrell would have 5 to 6 classes, each consisting of between 25 to 35 students.

This witness next testified concerning the January 29, 1991 incident. On that day, G.C., a fifth-grade student who was eleven years old at the time, was brought to Mr. Lagatol's office. The child told this witness that he was playing with another student when Mr. Harrell told him to stop. He did not and Mr. Harrell grabbed him by the neck, pushed him into the lockers and then lifted him up. Mr. Lagatol testified that G.C. was crying when he came into his office and that he saw bruises on his neck. There were three or four bruises on his neck separated by spaces.

After speaking with G.C., Mr. Lagatol interviewed three students, A.T., D.S. and O.S., who witnessed the incident in the boys locker room. These students essentially corroborated the statement of G.C. One student, O.S., stated that he tried to get Mr. Harrell to take his hands off G.C. Mr. Lagatol then called Mr. Harrell into his office and questioned him about the incident. Mr. Harrell denied putting his hands on G.C.'s neck but stated he used the physical restraint necessary to break up a fight in his locker room.

This witness also testified that he sent G.C. to the school nurse who noted the two to two and one-half reddened areas on the side of the boy's neck. There was no discoloration on the trunk of the body. The nurse reported:

> Student states that he was playing/wrestling in Gym locker room with A.T. Mr. Harrell came in and pushed him. He cursed at Mr. Harrell and Mr. Harrell grabbed him by the neck. (P-4).

After investigating the matter, Mr. Lagatol notified the Division of Youth and Family Services and reported the incident to William M. Kline, the Assistant Superintendent of Schools. Mr. Lagatol identified two documents which are annually contained in the staff handbook and distributed to all staff members at the commencement of the school year. The first document is the 1991-92 Statement on Corporal Punishment which points out the prohibition contained in N.J.S.A. 18A:6-1 and the second which contains the requirements to report suspected incidents of child abuse to DYFS (P-5). Mr. Lagatol testified that Mr. Harrell was present for the orientation session for the three years he was assigned to P.S. No. 15 and, therefore, had received copies of these documents.

This witness also testified that he had discussed with Mr. Harrell the procedures for quelling disturbances among students. Initially, a teacher should verbally instruct the students to stop. If they do not, the teacher should ask other students to separate those who are fighting. In this way, the teacher is not placed in a compromising situation in which he may have improperly restrained a child. Of course, the teacher must intervene directly if there is a danger to students.

After reporting the January 29, 1991 incident, Mr. Lagatol removed Mr. Harrell from his teaching duties and assigned him to do clerical work for the vice principal, Hilda Ruiz. Mr. Harrell remained on administrative assignment until March 1, 1991 when he was returned to the classroom.

On cross examination, Mr. Lagatol conceded that he too has a hot temper. Further, when he and Mr. Harrell had worked at Eastside High School, they did not always see "eye-to-eye." Mr. Lagatol also admitted that he did not personally observe any of the incidents of corporal punishment charged against Mr. Harrell, but simply reported statements given by the involved students and other witnesses.

With regard to the January 29, 1991 incident, Mr. Lagatol testified that G.C. had told him that he was playing, "fooling around" with his friend in the locker room (1T:88-12 to 89-25). Although G.C. told the nurse that he was "wrestling" with his friend, G.C. did not use that word when he reported the incident to Mr. Lagatol. This witness conceded that G.C. might have sustained the bruises on his neck as a result of wrestling. Mr. Harrell was returned to his teaching duties without formal action to suspend him as a result of the January 29, 1991 incident.

The School District next presented G.C., the child involved in this incident. This student, as well as all others called to testify, was initially questioned by the court. In each case, the court was satisfied that the student understood the obligation to tell the truth and that punishment would follow should he not tell the truth and was, therefore, competent to testify.

G.C. testified that he is currently 13 years of age. At the time of the 1991 incident, G.C. attended fifth grade at P.S. No. 15. Miss Palumbo as his homeroom teacher and Eddie Lee Harrell as his gym teacher. On January 29, 1991, Miss Palumbo brought her class to the gym. Mr. Harrell told the boys to go into the locker room and change into their gym clothes. Following the end of the class, Mr. Harrell sent the boys to the locker room to change. G.C. testified that he was in the locker room, in his street clothes, and he was playing with D. S. and his cousin, O.S. This witness testified that Mr. Harrell was at his desk and told them ". . . to shut up and to get in line. And we went to that line and we went to the back of the line, and we kept playing. . ." (1T:148-20 to 23). Mr. Harrell pushed him and G.C. told him not to push him but he kept pushing him so G.C. " . . said the F word" to Mr. Harrell (1T:149-14 to 18). Mr. Harrell then threw G.C. into the corner of the locker room, causing his head to hit the lockers, and grabbed him by the neck. G.C.'s cousin, O.S., tried to stop Mr. Harrell but was pushed away. Mr. Harrell then threw him into a chair and told him to stay there. An older student then brought G.C. to Mr. Lagatol's office. G.C. did state that before the incident with Mr. Harrell, he and his friends were fooling around and ". . . grabbing by the neck and pushing, not hard, but a little bit hard." G.C. denied that the bruise on his neck was made by his friends since they did not grab him in the spot where Mr. Harrell grabbed him.

On cross examination, G.C. stated that there were approximately 20 boys in the locker room with Mr. Harrell. He conceded that while playing around, his friend A.T. scratched him on his neck. He also admitted that when Mr. Harrell pushed him he did not hit the locker, but bumped into a friend who was standing behind him. At the end of the incident, Mr. Harrell pushed G.C. into a chair.

G.C. admitted that it was usually fun having gym with Mr. Harrell. However, the kids were sometimes upset with him when he yelled at them.

The next witness called by the School District was D.S. who testified he was 13 years of age. D.S. was in Ms. Palumbo's homeroom and in Mr. Harrell's gym class with G.C. and was a witness to the January 29, 1991 incident. D.S. testified that he saw Mr. Harrell push G.C. three or four times toward the locker. According to this witness, G.C. did not hit the lockers at this time. After G.C. said the "F" word to Mr. Harrell, the teacher grabbed G.C. by the neck, threw him into the lockers and then into a chair. This witness also confirmed that G.C. was crying when Mr. Harrell threw him down into the chair. D.S. also denied that any of the students in his class were out to get Mr. Harrell.

On cross examination, this witness admitted that he did not know whether G.C. was "fooling around" with his friends. D.S. did not pay attention to G.C. until everybody started screaming. This witness also admitted that the boys liked having gym with Mr. Harrell since he let the boys play basketball and kickball if they were ready before the girls were suited up for gym. D.S. also testified that only O.S. had trouble with Mr. Harrell because he "used to be bad" and he wanted to get even with the teacher (1T:197-11 to 2.4).

The School District also presented the testimony of Hilda Ruiz. This witness is the vice principal of P.S. No. 15 and was directly involved in several of the charges filed against Mr. Harrell. However, her sole testimony with regard to the January 29, 1991 incident related to the involved students' reputation for honesty. When asked, on cross examination whether ". . . G.C. is in the group that you find to be more trustworthy or the one that you find to be otherwise." Mrs. Ruiz responded, "I would say otherwise" (2T:202-15 to 24).

In his own defense, Mr. Harrell testified that on January 29, 1991, he observed G.C. and another student wrestling. Mr. Harrell observed that one student had an armlock on G.C.'s neck. This witness told the two to cut it out. Since they continued to wrestle, Mr. Harrell got up from his desk and pushed the two boys apart. As the students were lining up, G.C. cut the line. Mr. Harrell told him to go to the end of the line. G.C. did not obey so Mr. Harrell then backed him up with his hand until he was at the end. When Mr. Harrell turned around, G.C. moved. Mr. Harrell told him "You're out of line" (5T:53-1 to 5). G.C. then said "F" you to Mr. Harrell. At this point, Mr. Harrell walked over to G.C., who had started to cry, placed both hands in the front of his shirt and moved him over to his desk and sat him down. When G.C. popped up, Mr. Harrell sat him down again. Mr. Harrell then took the class to meet its homeroom teacher; when he returned to the locker room, G.C. was gone.

On cross examination, Mr. Harrell simply denied that the January 29, 1991 incident had occurred as described by G.C. and D.S.

Ms. Cynthia Jones, the other gym teacher, testified on behalf of Mr. Harrell. However, the January 29, 1991 incident occurred in the boys' locker room. Ms. Jones did not witness this incident since, at the time, she was within the girls' locker room supervising her students.

The School District called as its final rebuttal witness, J.C. This witness testified that he is 13 years of age and was a student in Ms. Palumbo's fifth grade class during the 1990-91 school year. J.C. witnessed the January 29, 1991 incident involving G.C. This witness testified that the incident occurred while the students were getting ready to take gym. J.C. related that G.C. ". . . jumped out of the line. Mr. Harrell, he grabbed him and tried to talk to him and threw him against the locker." 7T:94-20 to 23. This witness described Mr. Harrell as grabbing G.C. by the neck and estimated that the incident lasted about 30 minutes.

On cross examination, J.C. admitted that he did not observe the beginning of the incident. He was facing forward when he heard noise from behind. He turned and saw Mr. Harrell grab G.C.'s shirt front. The teacher held on to him, walked him backward to the lockers and held him against the lockers. This witness stated that he then saw Mr. Harrell grab G.C. by the neck. According to J.C., Mr. Harrell raised G.C. off his feet and held him against the lockers by the neck. This witness also testified that after the incident he heard some kids say "something like" we will "really get Mr. Harrell this time" (7T:117-22 to 25).

FINDINGS OF FACT

Having carefully considered the testimony of the witnesses presented by the School District in support of the second specification of Charges One and Two and the testimony of the respondent presented in his own defense, and having had the opportunity to view the demeanor of those witnesses as they gave their testimony, and having fully reviewed the exhibits entered into evidence relevant to this incident, I FIND the following:

During the 1990-91 school year, G.C. was eleven years of age and attending the fifth grade in P.S. No. 15. G.C.'s home room teacher was Mrs. Palumbo and his gym teacher was Eddie Lee Harrell.

On January 29, 1991, G.C. completed his gym class with Mr. Harrell. He returned with the other boys to the boys locker room and changed into his street clothes. G.C. then began playing and wrestling with his friend, D.S., and his cousin, O.S. The boys were grabbing each other around the neck "a little bit hard."

Mr. Harrell told the boys to stop and to get in line. They stopped briefly but started up again. Mr. Harrell rose from his desk and pushed the boys apart. I FIND that Mr. Harrell acted appropriately in separating the boys. Mr. Harrell then directed A.C. and his friend to the end of the line. G.C. did not follow this directive but cut in the line. Mr. Harrell put his two hands on G.C.'s chest and pushed him backward toward the lockers. While being pushed, G.C. said "Fuck you!" to Mr. Harrell. At this point the teacher grabbed G.C. and pushed him first to the lockers and then pushed him into a chair.

The conduct of G.C., in failing to follow Mr. Harrell's directives and in cursing him before his class, was clearly disrespectful and provocative. However, Mr. Harrell overreacted to this conduct and improperly placed his hands on G.C. and pushed him first into the lockers and then into a chair.

The credibility of the student witnesses was undercut by the admission that one of the participants, O.S., wanted to get even with Mr. Harrell. Further, after the incident, there was talk among the students that they would really get Mr. Harrell this time. Finally I did not find G.C. a particularly convincing witness.

Accordingly, although there was a bruise on G.C.'s neck after the January 29, 1991 incident, I FIND that it was not established by a preponderance of the credible evidence that this bruise was caused by Mr. Harrell. The evidence before this court equally supports the conclusion that G.C. sustained this injury when his friend grabbed him around the neck "a little bit hard."

The School District has, therefore, failed to establish by a preponderance of the credible evidence that Eddie Lee Harrell has inflicted corporal punishment upon G.C. However, the School District has established by a preponderance of the credible evidence that Mr. Harrell overreacted to G.C.'s disrespectful conduct and improperly physically restrained G.C. as included in the second specification of Charge Two.

CHARGE ONE: CORPORAL PUNISHMENT
CHARGE TWO: UNJUSTIFIED PHYSICAL CONTACT
(3) March 25, 1991 Incident Involving D.F.
CHARGE THREE: USE OF PROFANE LANGUAGE
March 25, 1991 Incident Involving D.F. and N.I.

Mr. Lagatol, the principal of P.S. No. 15, next testified concerning an incident which occurred on March 25, 1991. This witness stated that he was attending a Board of Education Workshop on that date and left Vice Principal Hilda Ruiz in charge of the school. When Mr. Lagatol returned from the conference, Mrs. Ruiz reported that a fourth-grade student had stated that Mr. Harrell had pushed him, with a half clenched fist on his back, down a flight of stairs (P-7).

On March 26, 1991, after reviewing Mrs. Ruiz' report, Mr. Lagatol interviewed the student, D.F. The student told the principal that Mr. Harrell punched him in the back and knocked him down the stairs. Mr. Lagatol described D.F. as a ten year old youngster who was approximately 4'2" or 4'3" tall. The student indicated that when Mr. Harrell punched him, he almost fell down the stairs but his friend, N.I., caught him and saved him from falling down the stairs. D.F. further reported that the only thing he was doing was talking softly to his friend while lined up on the stairs.

Mr. Lagatol also testified that Mrs. Valdes, D.F.'s homeroom teacher, had initially brought D.F.'s complaint to the attention of Mrs. Ruiz. When D.F. returned from gym, he reported that Mr. Harrell punched him in the back. Mrs. Valdes saw the mark on D.F.'s back and showed the mark to two other staff members. Mrs. Valdes sent a report on D.F.'s complaint to Mrs. Ruiz. (P-8).

On the next day, D.F. was brought to the nurse, Kathleen Moffitt. She prepared a report which described a "bruise. . . midway down the boy's back" (P-10). When Mr. Lagatol confronted Mr. Harrell with the report, he denied it. However, Mr. Lagatol told him that the incident would be reported to DYFS and to Mr. Kline. Mr. Lagatol also relieved Mr. Harrell of his classes and reassigned him to clerical duties. Mr. Harrell continued to work for Vice Principal Ruiz until May 1, 1991. At that point, Mr. Harrell was reinstated to his teaching position since Mr. Lagatol was given no direction to the contrary by his supervisor.

Before Mr. Harrell was returned to his position, Mr. Lagatol met with him. Mr. Harrell complained about Ms. Ruiz, the Vice Principal responsible for his supervision. Mr. Harrell felt the "kids were getting over her and they were trying to frame him" (1T:54-10 to 11). In order to make Mr. Harrell feel more comfortable, Mr. Lagatol informed him that he should report any difficulties directly to him and that he need not go through Mrs. Ruiz. Mr. Lagatol testified that he emphasized at this meeting at the beginning of May, 1991, as he had done many times previously with Mr. Harrell, "do not put you hands on the children," (1T:56:3 to 7). Mr. Lagatol testified that between September, 1990 and October, 1991, he met approximately twelve times with Mr. Harrell to discuss the proper way to utilize physical restraint. Mr. Lagatol testified that in his opinion this was an "insubordinate" number of times to have to meet to discuss this problem with an experienced teacher (1T:58-25 to 59-8).

On cross examination, Mr. Lagatol testified that from his interview with D.F., he was not certain whether the incident occurred when the students were lined up to go to gym or when then were lined up at the end of class. Mr. Lagatol also conceded that when D.F. returned to his homeroom, his teacher, Ms. Valdes, showed the mark on his back to two Hispanic staff members. However, when Mr. Hargrove, the security guard who is Afro-American, appeared at her room, Mrs. Valdes would not explain the problem to him. Mr. Lagatol was unable to offer a definitive explanation for Mrs. Valdes' actions.

The School District next called Mrs. Loida Valdes to testify as to the March 25, 1991 incident. Mrs. Valdes stated that she is employed by the School District as a bilingual teacher in P.S. No. 15. During the 1990-91 school year, this witness taught the fourth grade bilingual class and D.F. was a student in that class.

Mrs. Valdes testified that on March 25, 1991:

> . . . I went to pick up my class in the gym room and when we got back to my room. . . D. was crying. And I asked him what happened to him and D. and another student told me that he was hit by the gym teacher. (1T:225-3 to 8).

D.F. then lifted his T-shirt and Mrs. Valdes observed red mark on his back somewhat beneath the shoulder blade. Mrs. Valdes described the mark as large, red and circular.

Mrs. Valdes tried to report the incident immediately to her Vice Principal, Mrs. Ruiz. However, Mrs. Ruiz was not available and sent the security guard, Mr. Hargrove, to find out what happened. Mrs. Valdes declined to tell Mr. Hargrove what had happened or to show him the mark in D.F.'s back. This witness explained:

> . . . I was a new teacher and I don't want nobody else involved in the problem I want to see Ms. Ruiz. (1T:228-8 to 10).

Mrs. Valdes explained in cross examination that Mr. Montanez, her teacher's aide, was in the room when D.F. showed the mark on his back. Further, Ms. Deulofeu, a teacher's aide in the next room, came to her class at the moment that D.F. was showing the mark on his back.

The Vice Principal, Mrs. Hilda Ruiz, also testified concerning her involvement with the March 25, 1991 incident. Mrs. Ruiz testified that she has been employed by the School District for approximately eighteen years. This witness started as an instructional aide, later became a teacher and is currently one of two Vice Principals at P.S. No. 15. She holds certifications as principal, supervisor, elementary grades K-8, bilingual, bicultural and ESL. Mrs. Ruiz supervises instruction, chairs various committees, is in charge of discipline for the grades assigned her and handles misconduct reports.

Mrs. Ruiz testified that she prepared the incident report which was dated March 26, 1991 and sent to Mr. Lagatol (P-7). This report was prepared after she interviewed D.F. sometime between 8:45 and 9:00 a.m. on the morning of March 26, 1991. Mrs. Ruiz explained that she was in a meeting with the eighth grade on Monday afternoon when Mrs. Valdes had tried to contact her. Mrs. Ruiz, therefore, sent the security guard, Mr. Hargrove, to Mrs. Valdes' class. Mr. Hargrove was to find out the nature of the problem and let her know if it was an emergency.

Mrs. Ruiz admitted that she initially told the nurse, Ms. Moffitt, that Mr. Harrell had pushed D.F. because that is what the child most likely told her. In her report to Mr. Lagatol she stated that Mr. Harrell punched D.F. Again, Mrs. Ruiz believed that D.F. had also used that term. This witness explained that D.F. is a bilingual student and his use of English words was imprecise.

With regard to her relationship with Mr. Harrell, Mrs. Ruiz testified that she was aware that Mr. Harrell had objected to her being his supervisor. Mrs. Ruiz thought that Mr. Harrell was not happy with her style of supervision. This witness stated that it was fine with her if Mr. Harrell felt more comfortable with Mr. Lagatol as his immediate supervisor.

On cross examination, Mrs. Ruiz was unable to fully explain why Mrs. Valdes would not tell Mr. Hargrove, the security guard, the nature of the problem in her classroom. Mrs. Ruiz speculated, that Mrs. Valdes, an untenured teacher, may have been concerned about being involved in a controversy. The next morning, when Mrs. Ruiz spoke to Mrs. Valdes and Mr. Montanez, she was told about the red mark on D.F.'s back. She also spoke with D.F.'s father who was very upset about the mark on his son. Mrs. Ruiz was, therefore, confident that the day-old bruise she saw on D.F.'s back when the nurse examined him was the same injury observed by Mrs. Valdes on the prior day.

The student, D.F., testified as to the events of March 25, 1991. This witness will be thirteen in April, 1993. During the 1990-91 school year, D.F. stated that he was in Mrs. Valdes' bilingual fourth grade class in P.S. No. 15. D.F. also testified that Mr. Harrell was his gym teacher; his gym class took place in the afternoon and there were approximately forty-one students in the class.

On March 25,1991, D.F. testified that he had changed into his gym clothes in the locker room. He engaged in various activities and testified that he had fun in gym that day. After gym, the boys lined up to go back to the locker room to change back into their street clothes. When he had lined up, D.F. was standing toward the top of the steps and was talking to his friends N.I. and V.R. Mr. Harrell told him to be quiet so he spoke "lowly." Mr. Harrell said "Come here." Mr. Harrell grabbed him by the back of his gym shirt and then hit him in the back. D.F.'s friends grabbed him to prevent him from falling backward down the stairs. When in the locker, D.F. told Mr. Harrell that he would bring his father to school. Mr. Harrell said

"I don't know Spanish;" then he said the "bad word;" Mr. Harrell said "Fuck You." (1T:205-12 to 24).

D.F. testified that Mrs. Valdes came for her class. D.F. was crying and told her what happened. D.F. confirmed that he showed his back to Mrs. Valdes, Mr. Montanez and Miss Deulofeu when he returned to class. D.F. testified that Mr. Harrell hit him hard, hard enough to make him cry. Mrs. Valdes called Mrs. Ruiz and tried to take D.F. to the nurse but could not do so. It was then the end of the school day and D.F. went home.

On cross examination, D.F. admitted that when he was lining up to go to the locker, he cut around the divider. Mr. Harrell saw him and sent him to the back of the line, but he went toward the top standing between his friends N.I. and V.R. D.F. also stated that when he was in the locker room, he was speaking to his friend in Spanish. Mr. Harrell said to him, "I don't know Spanish, talk English." (1T:221-1 to 2). When D.F. went home, he showed his father the mark on his back.

Another witness to this incident who testified on behalf of the School District was N.I. This student testified that he is presently thirteen years of age and during the 1990-91 school year was a student in Mrs. Valdes' fourth-grade bilingual class at P.S. No. 15. On March 25, 1991, N.I. was taking gym with Mr. Harrell.

N.I. confirmed D.F.'s testimony that D.F. had cut in the line and had been sent to the back by Mr. Harrell. Instead of going to the back, D.F. stood between this witness and V.R. Mr. Harrell called DF.. to him and D.F. moved closer to him. Mr. Harrell hit D.F. and this witness grabbed D.F. so he would not fall down the stairs. N.I. stated that he saw Mr. Harrell hit D.F. with a closed fist with a graduation ring on it. N.I. also testified that once in the locker room Mr. Harrell said "Fuck you" to D.F. when he heard him speaking in Spanish.

On cross examination, N.I. described Mr. Harrell as angry when he said the bad word to D.F.

The final witness to testify on behalf of the School District was V.R. This witness was ten and one-half years old at the time of the incident. During the 1990-91 school year, he was a student in Mrs. Valdes' bilingual fourth grade class in P.S. No. 15. V.R. was in Mr. Harrell's gym class with D.F. at the time of the March 25, 1991 incident.

V.R. testified that on that date, Mr. Harrell hit D.F. This witness stated that as the boys were lined up on the stairs waiting to go to the locker room, D.F. was talking softly. Mr. Harrell then took D.F. out of line "and that's when he hit him and he sort of fell." (3T:213-18 to 19). The boy's friend, N.I., kept him from falling. When the boys were in the locker room, D.F. started speaking Spanish and that's when Mr. Harrell said "Fuck you" to D.F. (3T:221-10 to 12).

This witness confirmed that D.F. was crying after Mr. Harrell hit him and that he was still crying when he returned to Mrs. Valdes' class. He also looked at the mark of D.'s back both in gym and in the classroom. This witness told Mrs. Valdes what happened to D.F. and corroborated that Mrs. Valdes also saw the mark on D.'s back.

On cross examination, V.R. conceded that he and D.F. went around the curtain "for nothing" and Mr. Harrell sent him to the front of the line and D.F. to the end.

In his own defense, Eddie Lee Harrell testified that he recalled having D.F. in his class. Mr. Harrell testified that he had approximately 42 students in that particular class and that he does not recall the circumstances surrounding the March 25, 1991 incident. Mr. Harrell did deny that he ever hit D.F. or used profane language to him. He also denied that he told D.F. to speak English.

Mr. Harrell explained that at the end of the gym activities, he has the boys line up single file on the steps going up to the locker room. On this particular day, the boys went wild as they were lining up so he had them go back. They lined up a second time and he unlocked the locker room for the boys. Mr. Harrell again testified that he did not recall any incident with D.F.

On cross examination, Mr. Harrell admitted that he had a conference with Mr. Lagatol following the incident with D.F. Mr. Lagatol informed him that he would be suspended from his teaching duties until the investigation into this incident was resolved. Mr. Harrell conceded that he refused to put anything in writing since Mr. Lagatol had already decided to refer the matter to DYFS.

Mrs. Cynthia Jones also testified on behalf of Mr. Harrell. Mrs. Jones testified that she has been employed as a physical education teacher in the School District for thirteen years. The present school year is her twelfth at P.S. No. 15. Mrs. Jones testified that she knew Mr. Harrell since he was transferred to P.S. No. 15.

Mrs. Jones explained that during many physical education periods both teachers were in the gym with their classes. At those times, they would either team teach or take their classes and work with them separately. There were times, however, when one of the teachers had a health class. At those times, the other gym teacher would be in the gym alone with his/her class. Mrs. Jones also testified that even when she and Mr. Harrell team taught, each teacher was responsible for, and had to supervise, his/her own class. With the two classes together, there would be from 45 to 60 students in the gym.

This witness testified that both teachers followed the same procedures. The classroom teacher would bring the students to the front of the gym. When they were quiet, the children would come into the foyer area of the gym. When they were again quiet, the boys would enter their locker room, the girls theirs. When finished changing their clothes, the students would come out and line up on the stairs. When quiet, they would pass into the gym and form their squads. After the gym class, they again line up on the stairs. When quiet, they return to the locker room. After they change, they again line up on the stairs. When the bell rings for the end of the class, the homeroom teacher comes and receives the class. Mrs. Jones supervises the girls while they are in the locker room; Mr. Harrell would supervise the boys. If both classes did not arrive together, they would either wait or let the first class pass to the locker room and start changing. With regard to the locker rooms, the teacher unlocks the door and then allows the students to pass in first.

With regard to the March 25, 1991 incident, Mrs. Jones did not recall any problem on the staircase nor was she questioned about it by anyone in authority. Mrs. Jones also denied that D.F. had come to her to complain about Mr. Harrell. However, she stressed that her attention was focussed on the girls during that period of time. Furthermore, she had difficulty recalling who D.F. was.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Having carefully considered the testimony of the witnesses presented by the School District in support of the third specification of Charges One and Two and in support of Charge Three and the testimony of the respondent and the witness presented in his support, and having had the opportunity to view the demeanor of those witnesses as they gave their testimony, and having fully reviewed the exhibits entered into evidence relevant to this incident, I FIND the following:

During the 1990-91 school year, D.F., a ten-year-old, was a student at P.S. No. 15 in the Paterson School District. He was in the fourth-grade bilingual class of Mrs. Loida Valdes. D.F. was also in Mr. Harrell's afternoon physical education class. During that same year, N.I., an eleven-year-old, and V.R., a ten-year-old, were also students in Mrs. Valdes' fourth-grade class and had an afternoon gym class with Mr. Harrell.

D.F. who will be thirteen in April is a short boy of slight build. When in the fourth grade, he stood approximately four feet, two and one-half inches tall. He spoke in a very quiet voice and, although able to testify without the aid of interpreter, he occasionally had difficulty using the correct English word.

On March 25, 1991, the three students: D.F., N.I. and V.R., were present for Mr. Harrell's gym class. After D.F. suited up, he fully participated in the gym activities and enjoyed this particular class.

The gym at P.S. No. 15 has a curtain-like divider which can be moved by hand. At the end of the gym activities, the boys were to line up in single file on the stairs leading up to the locker rooms. D.F. and V.R. ran around the gym divider; D.F .wanted to cut to the front of the line waiting to go to the locker rooms. Mr. Harrell, having seen D.F. and V.R. run around the divider, separated the boys sending D.F. to the back of the line. Instead of going to the end, D.F. stood toward the front of the line. V.R. was in front of D.F. while N.I. was behind him.

D.F. was talking loudly to his friends when Mr. Harrell told him to be quiet. D.F. continued to talk in a very soft voice. Mr. Harrell called him. As D.F. started to go up the stairs, Mr. Harrell grabbed him by his gym shirt and then hit D.F. hard in the back. The blow, struck with a semi-closed fist, caused D.F. to lose his balance and begin to fall backwards down the stairs. N.I., standing behind D.F., caught him and prevented him from falling down the stairs. D.F. , who may have not strictly followed Mr. Harrell's directives was not openly disrespectful to him nor did he provoke him in any way.

D.F. began to cry after Mr. Harrell hit him. When D.F. was in the locker room, he spoke Spanish to his friends telling them that he was going to tell his father and bring him to the school. Mr. Harrell told D.F. "to speak English and not Spanish" and then said "Fuck you" to D.F. and N.I.

Mrs. Valdes observed D.F. crying when she picked up her class. D.F. told her what happened and lifted his shirt to show the mark on his back. Mrs. Valdes saw a large, red, circular mark on D.F.'s back, below the shoulder blade. Two aides, Mr. Montanez and Mrs. Deulofeu, were in the room at the time and also saw the red mark.

Mrs. Valdes tried to report the incident to Vice Principal Ruiz. Mrs. Ruiz, involved in a meeting, sent the security guard, Mr. Hargrove, to Mrs. Valdes' class to find out the nature of the problem. Mrs. Valdes wanted to report directly to Mrs. Ruiz and did not provide any information to Mr. Hargrove. Mrs. Valdes also tried to have the nurse look at D.F. but the nurse was involved in an emergency. As it was the end of the school day, D.F. went home.

On the following day, March 26, 1991, D.F. returned to P.S. No. 15 with his father. Mrs. Ruiz had a conference with the father who was quite upset by the incident. Mrs. Ruiz then interviewed D.F., N.I. and V.R. She then brought D.F. to the nurse, Miss Moffitt who noted a bruise midway down the boy's back. Mrs. Ruiz prepared a report to the Principal, Mr.

Lagatol. The principal interviewed Mr. Harrell who denied the incident, but refused to give any specifics about the events of March 25, 1991.

After considering the reports before him, Mr. Lagatol referred the matter to DYFS and reported the incident to his immediate supervisor. Mr. Lagatol also relieved Mr. Harrell of his teaching duties and assigned him to clerical duties in Ms. Ruiz' office.

The above findings, as they pertain to the occurrences within Mr. Harrell's gym class on March 25, 1991, basically reflect the testimony of D.F., N.I. and V.R. I FIND all three boys to be entirely credible witnesses. Their testimony was direct and, although consistent, gave no hint of its being rehearsed or fabricated. D.F. was a particularly convincing witness demonstrating a quiet sense of shock at Mr. Harrell's acts toward him. There was absolutely no evidence in the record which would support Mr. Harrell's general theory that these particular boys were out to get him.

Mr. Harrell's flat denial of this incident, despite the mark on D.F.'s back observed by at least three adults immediately following the gym period, is totally unpersuasive. Similarly, Ms. Jones, who simply testified that she did not recall an incident involving D.F., was similarly unconvincing since it was not clear that this witness remembered who D.F. was.

Based upon the above, I FIND (a) that the School District has established, by a preponderance of the credible evidence, that Eddie Lee Harrell did improperly inflict corporal punishment on D.F., causing him injury, and that such action was not permitted by the language of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-1(a) through (4) as charged herein, (b) that Eddie Lee Harrell did have unjustified physical contact with D.F. as charged herein; and (c) that Eddie Lee Harrell did use profane language to D.F. and N.I. as charged herein.

CHARGE ONE: CORPORAL PUNISHMENT
CHARGE TWO: UNJUSTIFIED PHYSICAL CONTACT
CHARGE FOUR: INSUBORDINATION

(4) March 6, 1992 Incident Involving G.B.
(5) March 6, 1992 Incident Involving A.R.
(6) March 6, 1992 Incident Involving R.R.
(7) March 6, 1992 Incident Involving J.M.

The principal of P.S. No. 15, Mr. Lagatol also testified concerning four separate incidents which occurred on March 6, 1992. This witness identified the Incident Report which he wrote on March 9, 1992 to his immediate supervisor, Dr. C. Jean Stepherson (P-14). Mr. Lagatol informed Dr. Stepherson that on that date, four fourth-grade students: G.B., A.R., R.I., and J.M., reported to him that Eddie Lee Harrell had mistreated them during gym class on March 6, 1992.

Mr. Lagatol testified that before he prepared this report, he interviewed the students involved. G.B. stated that Mr. Harrell "pushed him in the back of the head into the wall." A.R. indicated that the gym teacher "dragged him by the arm and pushed him in the closet." The third student, R.I., reported that Mr. Harrell "dragged him by the arm and threw him on the ground" while J.M. stated that Mr. Harrell "pushed him by the shoulder and then pushed his head down with his nose going into the mat on the gym floor" (1T:62-2 to 10). Mr. Lagatol also interviewed five additional students who witnessed the incidents. The statements of these students corroborated the reports given by the four involved in the incident. All the students appeared very anxious, concerned and upset when reporting these events to the Principal.

Mr. Lagatol further testified that he was not in school on Friday, March 6, 1992 when the incidents occurred. The matter was brought to his attention by Vice Principal Hilda Ruiz who called him at home on March 6, 1992. Mr. Lagatol investigated the reports when he returned to school on Monday, March 9, 1992.

This witness identified Ms. Karen Drozdale as the fourth-grade teacher of the four students involved in the March 6, 1992 incident. Mr. Lagatol described Ms. Drozdale as a first-year teacher who had come to Paterson with seven years teaching experience. This teacher provided Mr. Lagatol with a hand written report of the March 6, 1992 incident (P-16).

After investigating the incident and receiving reports from Ms. Ruiz and Ms. Drozdale, Mr. Lagatol interviewed Mr. Harrell who flatly denied the charges. Shortly after the March 6, 1992 incident, Dr. Stepherson supported Mr. Lagatol's decision to suspend Mr. Harrell from his teaching duties.

Mr. Lagatol also identified Mr. Harrell's annual performance evaluation which was dated March 9, 1992 (P-13). Mr. Lagatol testified that he indicated on the evaluation that Mr. Harrell "needs improvement" in the area of "relating to students." As Mr. Lagatol testified:

> It was my impression that he had a severe lack in effective skills as far as developing a rapport . . . with the students (1T:60-6 to 15).

This evaluation of Mr. Harrell by Mr. Lagatol was specifically related to the growing incidents of alleged physical abuse of children. The evaluation was given to Mr. Harrell during the period of his suspension.

On cross examination, Mr. Lagatol conceded that because of the term of Mr. Harrell's suspension, the formal procedures for the annual evaluation were not followed. With regard to the March 6, 1992 incident, Mr. Lagatol reiterated that he did not observe the occurrences but simply reported the statements of the students. Mr. Lagatol also admitted that following the incident, the nurse saw only two of the four students involved. According to the report of the nurse, Joan Hochman, there were no visible marks on the students, J.M. and R.R. (R-1 and R-2).

Mr. Lagatol further testified that he was aware of some animosity existing between Mrs. Drozdale and Mr. Harrell. He recalled a negative incident transpiring between the two prior to March 6, 1992. He believed it concerned a health class which Mr. Harrell was to teach in Ms. Drozdale's fourth-grade class.

Mr. Lagatol also testified that he had interviewed Ms. Jones, the other gym teacher, concerning the March 6, 1992 incident. Ms. Jones told the principal that "She has never seen anything" (1T:126-5 to 6).

The Vice Principal, Mrs. Hilda Ruiz, also testified concerning the March 6, 1992 incident. Mrs. Ruiz stated that she was in the office of the other Vice Principal, Mr. Garibell, when Mrs. Drozdale came in. The teacher brought two students and told the Vice Principals that Mr. Harrell had hurt them during the gym period. Mrs. Drozdale also reported that Mr. Harrell had not been at his duty station when she had brought her class to the gym that morning. Mrs. Ruiz explained that Mrs. Drozdale's class had gym the first two periods of the school day with the first period starting at 8:50 a.m.

Mrs. Ruiz initially interviewed the two students who were brought to the office on March 6, 1992, R.R. and J.M. One reported he was grabbed by the arm and the other that he was thrown to the mat. These two students were taken to the nurse who found no visible marks on them. That afternoon, Mrs. Ruiz interviewed Mr. Harrell who denied hitting the students. Mrs. Jones, the female gym teacher, joined the conference and told Mrs. Ruiz that > . . . Mrs. Drozdale said that she will get even or something like that with Mr. Harrell because of something that had happened previously, a bad evaluation to her when the students returned from gym to the classroom. . . (2T:150-1 to 5).

Following this interview, Mrs. Ruiz reported to Mr. Lagatol, who was not in school that Friday. The principal indicated that he would take charge of the matter on Monday, March 9, 1992.

However, on March 9, 1992, Mrs. Ruiz did send notices home to the parents of G.B., A.R. and J.M. (P-23, P-24 and P-25) and asked them to come in for a conference. Mrs. Ruiz believed that two of the boys had their parents come in and that she discussed the March 6, 1992 incident with them.

Mrs. Ruiz testified that from her contacts with Mrs. Drozdale, she had no impression that Mrs. Drozdale was trying to get even with Mr. Harrell. This witness also stated that there have been no problems at P.S. No. 15 between blacks and Hispanics.

On cross examination, Mrs. Ruiz admitted that on Friday March 6, 1992, Mrs. Drozdale brought two students to her who were hurt during Mr. Harrell's gym class. However, by Monday, March 9, 1992, Mrs. Drozdale was convinced that four students had actually been harmed during the gym class (P-16). Mrs. Ruiz conceded that she had no idea whether Mrs. Drozdale's students gave the reports they did in an effort to please her.

The School District next called Mrs. Karen Drozdale to testify in support of the charges against Mr. Harrell. This witness testified that she is employed by the Paterson School District as a fourth-grade teacher in P.S. No. 15. Mrs. Drozdale began teaching in Paterson in September, 1991.

This witness has a B.S. in Education from Long Island University. She has taught for eight years in the elementary area. Mrs. Drozdale's first teaching assignment was in a prep school in Manhattan. She then taught for a year in the inner city in New Haven, Connecticut. Thereafter, she taught for three years in a prep school in Manhattan. After taking a year off, she began in P.S. No. 15 in September, 1991.

During the 1991-92 school year, Mr. Harrell was the physical education teacher for her fourth-grade class. The gym class was scheduled for the first two periods on Fridays. Mr. Harrell also taught her class health one period a week, sometime after lunch. Mrs. Drozdale explained that she was new to the school and really did not know Mr. Harrell; he was just another teacher in the building. This witness also stated that her children liked gym, observing that "gym is something that's positive for children" (4T:38-4 to 5).

Mrs. Drozdale testified that her classroom was not in the building but in an outside mobile unit. After morning announcements, Mrs. Drozdale would line up her class and walk them from the outside unit, which is by the faculty parking lot, to the school building. She would take them into the building and down the stairs to the gym.

On March 6, 1992, when Mrs. Drozdale brought her class to the gym, at about 9:00 a.m., Mr. Harrell was not there to receive them. She waited five to ten minutes and tried to call the office. Mrs. Jones, the other gym teacher, did not say where Mr. Harrell was but offered to watch her class until Mr. Harrell returned.

Mrs. Drozdale thought it was unsafe and unfair for Mrs. Jones to watch both classes so she went to the main office to report Mr. Harrell's absence. As she was doing so, one of the secretaries saw Mr. Harrell returning in his van. Mrs. Drozdale testified that it was close to 9:20 a.m. when Mr. Harrell returned to the school.

Since the gym period ended at 10:05 a.m., Mrs. Drozdale went down to the gym about 10:00 a.m. to pick up her class. This witness testified that she waited for her class in the cafeteria which is outside the doors to the gym. As she waited for her class, Mr. Harrell came out of the gym and approached her. Mr. Drozdale described Mr. Harrell as:

> . . . very angry. . . he basically put his face in mine and his finger in my face and started to yell at me and curse at me
> * * *
> He said, 'You f'ing bitch, keep your Goddam nose out of my business. It's not your business where the hell I am.' (4T:48-20 to 49-5)

Mrs. Drozdale asked Mr. Harrell to stop yelling. She was very surprised and upset by his unprofessionalism and the extent of his anger.

Mr. Harrell then returned to the locker room. Shortly thereafter, her class came out and was dismissed to her in accordance with normal procedure. The children were very excited on the way back to the classroom. Mrs. Drozdale explained that she had to stop the line at least five times to quiet the children. She asked them to stop talking until they reached their classroom.

When they did so, the students began to shout out and tell Mrs. Drozdale what Mr. Harrell had done during the gym period. This witness testified that she made all the students sit down and told them to raise their hands if they had something to say. She would listen to the students, one at a time. Mrs. Drozdale testified that initially two boys came to her, J.M. and R.R., who seemed incredibly disturbed. After listening to the boys, she noted down their statements (P-28). At lunch time, she took the boys, J.M. and R.R., to the Vice Principal, Mrs. Ruiz. Together they brought the boys to the nurse, Mrs. Hochman, who examined them. On Monday, March 9, 1992, both Mrs. Drozdale and Mr. Harrell were asked to provide written reports on the events of March 6, 1992 to Mr. Lagatol. Mrs. Drozdale provided a handwritten report to her principal on that day (P-27; P-16).

Mrs. Drozdale described the four students as "good kids" (4T:70-2). Although J.M. is not a very bright student, he has a "heart of gold" and will help the little kids (4T:70-3 to 7). R.R. is a good kid, quiet and an excellent student. G.B. is a very good kid and a fairly good student while A.R. is an average student. Mrs. Drozdale testified that she had had no disciplinary problems with these students.

On Friday, March 6, 1992, Mrs. Drozdale only reported that two students were involved in the incident. However, on Monday she saw G.B. and his mother and spoke to A.R. She then drafted the report to Mr. Lagatol in which she listed the four students who were hurt, in some way, by Mr. Harrell.

Mrs. Drozdale admitted that, as a first-year teacher, she was concerned about her January 15, 1992 evaluation. Mr. Lagatol had rated her as "acceptable" rather than "good" in the areas of "discipline" and "students growth in self control." (4T:79-7 to 20). This evaluation took place in the period after Mr. Harrell had taught health to her class. Mrs. Drozdale complained that there was no closure to Mr. Harrell's lesson. He had given the students a test but had not collected the papers; there was writing on the blackboard; the students were in four corners of the room and it took her ten minutes to calm them down. After explaining the situation to Mr. Lagatol, he indicated that he understood why it took her so long to get the class under control.

On cross-examination, Mrs. Drozdale conceded that as a result of her initial analysis, she believed two students, J.M. and R.R., had been hurt by Mr. Harrell. However, after further interviews on Monday, March 9, 1992, she came to believe that two additional students, G.B. and A.R., had also been involved in the incident with Mr. Harrell. However, she noted no physical injuries on G.B. or A.R. on Friday and neither student asked to see the nurse on that day.

Mrs. Drozdale admitted her concern over her "acceptable" rating on two categories of her January 15, 1992 evaluation. However, she denied discussing that evaluation with Mrs. Jones, the other gym teacher and could not recall discussing it with anyone else. With regard to her discussion with Mrs. Jones on the morning of March 6, 1992, Mrs. Drozdale denied ever saying that she would take Mr. Harrell to the cleaners.

Although there was much discussion of the events which took place in gym on March 6, 1992, Mrs. Drozdale testified that she tried to contain and preclude such discussions after that day.

The School District next presented the students who had been involved in the March 6, 1992 incident.

G.B. testified that he was a student in Mrs. Drozdale's fourth-grade class at P.S. No. 15 during the 1991-92 school year. He also had Mr. Harrell for gym and was present for class on March 6, 1992.

This witness testified that when gym finished that day, the students were helping put away the basketballs. G.B. was inside the equipment room near to the doorway. Mr. Harrell grabbed him by the back of the neck and threw him against the wall. G.B. testified that his forehead hit the brick wall and he "was in a lot of pain." (3T:16-22). When the students were lined up, G.B. heard Mr. Harrell call Mrs. Drozdale a "bitch" (3T:23-14 to 25).

After the students returned to their homeroom ,G.B. told Mrs. Drozdale what had happened to him during Mr. Harrell's gym class. G.B. also told his mother when he went home. Because his head still hurt, his mother took him to the doctor.

On cross-examination, G.B. testified that when Mr. Harrell grabbed him by the neck, he told him "get over there" (3T:32-9), because there were too many kids in the equipment room. When G.B. got home, he saw a red bump on his forehead where he hit the wall.

This witness also testified on cross examination that he saw Mr. Harrell grab A.R. by the arm and throw him to the floor. G.B. stated that Mr. Harrell hurt him first and later threw A.R. to the ground. During these occurrences, Mrs. Jones, the other gym teacher, was at a distance and was talking to a girl who asked for a hall pass.

The next student to testify was A.R. who was eleven years old when he was in Mrs. Drozdale's fourth-grade class during the 1991-92 school year. On March 6, 1992, A.R. participated in Mr. Harrell's gym class.

This witness testified that the boys were in the gym before the girls and were playing with the basketballs. Mr. Harrell said:

> 'Put the ball back' I went to put the ball back, and he caught me and threw me. (3T:63-1 to 3).

A.R. testified that when Mr. Harrell threw him, his left shoulder hit the wall. When the students returned to their homeroom, A.R. did not tell Mrs. Drozdale what had happened to him. He waited until Monday, March 9, 1992, to tell Mrs. Drozdale.

On cross-examination, A.R. stated that when the boys lined up, J.M. had told him that Mr. Harrell had "clipped" him ". . . or pushed him, something like that." (3T:85-1 to 3).

The student, R.R., next testified on behalf of the School District. This witness, who was nine at the time of the incident, was also in Mrs. Drozdale's fourth-grade class in P.S. No. 15. R.R. testified that he was in Mr. Harrell's gym class and that he enjoyed it.

On March 6, 1992, R.R. stated that he:

> . . . had a basketball, and Mr. Harrell said, 'Put the basketball away,' and then I went to put the basketball away, and then my other friend gave me the basketball so I could put it away, and then when Mr. Harrell saw me with the other basketball, he threw me. He grabbed me and pushed me (3T:103-2 to 8).

This witness stated that Mr. Harrell grabbed him by the arm. When Mr. Harrell threw him, his shoulder hit the wall. R.R. testified that when he returned to his homeroom, he told Mrs. Drozdale what had happened to him in the gym class. This witness also confirmed that Mr. Harrell had called Mrs. Drozdale a "bitch" (3T:111-11).

On cross-examination, R.R. confirmed that the incident with Mr. Harrell occurred at the end of the gym period when the students were returning the basketballs to the equipment room. As he was going into the room with his second basketball, Mr. Harrell grabbed R.R.'s right arm and threw him. R.R. landed between the wall and the door to the equipment room and struck his right shoulder. This witness further confirmed that after he told Mrs. Drozdale about the incident, he was taken to the nurse. This witness also testified that he witnessed Mr. Harrell throw G.B. causing him to hit his head.

R.R. conceded that Mr. Harrell was a strict teacher and that the class wanted to get even with him after the events of March 6, 1992. On re-direct, the witness explained:

> I said, 'I'm going to tell the principal because he can't touch me, because he's not my parent. (3T:137-18 to 20).

R.R., therefore, stated that the boys who were hurt by Mr. Harrell wanted to get even by reporting him to the principal who could do something about the situation.

Another student who testified concerning the events of March 6, 1992 was J.M. This student testified that he has been attending P.S. NO. 15 since approximately the second grade. During the 1991-92 school year, he was 11 years old and in Mrs. Drozdale's fourth-grade class and Mr. Harrell's gym class. J.M. testified that he liked to participate in Mr. Harrell's class. On March 6, 1992, J.M. had forgotten his gym shorts and was sitting on the side. Mr. Harrell who was passing out the balls, rolled one to V.C. Instead, the ball went to J.M. who

> . . . just took it and tried to throw it in the court, and then he took it, and Mr. Harrell just came and pushed me, and I tripped on the mat and almost hit my head on the cement wall (4T:7-10 to 13).

J.M. explained that Mr. Harrell took him by surprise "just pushed him" and that he tripped and fell on his side. This witness gave him a "medium" push from his left shoulder. When he fell on the mat, he hit his shoulder which hurt a little. After gym was over, another student, A.P., said he should tell their teacher what happened. J.M. did tell Mrs. Drozdale. The teacher brought him to Vice Principal Ruiz, who then brought him to the nurse.

On cross-examination, J.M. explained that when the class returned to the homeroom, A.P., V.C. and B.D. called him and together they went to the teacher to tell her what happened in Mr. Harrell's class. Mrs. Drozdale then asked the rest of her students whether they saw "things" during the gym period.

Another student who testified concerning the March 6, 1992 gym class was V.C. During the 1991-92 school year, 9-year-old V.C. was in Mrs. Drozdale's fourth-grade class and in Mr. Harrell's gym class. This student testified that he liked taking gym with Mr. Harrell.

V.C. was present on March 6, 1992 when Mr. Harrell was throwing the basketballs from the equipment room. According to this witness, Mr. Harrell threw a ball which hit J.M. in the stomach. He then grabbed J.M. by the arm and threw him to the wall.

On cross-examination, V.C. admitted that he was "real far" when Mr. Harrell grabbed J.M. and he could not hear anything (3T:255-3). After they returned to Mrs. Drozdale's classroom, the students started shouting out what had happened during Mr. Harrell's class.

The School District next called D.S. to testify in support of the charges against Mr. Harrell. This witness was also in Mrs. Drozdale's fourth-grade class in P.S. No. 15 and had Mr. Harrell for gym during the 1991-92 school year. D.S. testified that on March 6, 1992, she saw Mr. Harrell grab J.M. and push him to the wall. She also saw the gym teacher grab A.R. and throw him to the floor. This witness further testified that she heard Mr. Harrell call Mrs. Drozdale, a "bitch" (3T:167-1).

On cross-examination, this witness testified that Mr. Harrell grabbed J.M. by the arm and pushed him by the wall. Mr. Harrell then called A.R. and grabbed him by the arm, between the elbow and the wrist. The gym teacher pulled A.R. and he fell.

Another student called to testify concerning this incident was A.P. This witness was also in Mrs. Drozdale's fourth-grade class during the 1991-92 school year. A.R. participated in Mr. Harrell's gym class on March 6, 1992. She testified that Mr. Harrell pushed J.M. and that he fell on the mat and almost hit his head.

On cross-examination, A.P. testified that when the students returned to their classroom, Mrs. Drozdale started "getting more mad and more mad because she said that Mr. Harrell said a bad word to her" (3T:287-20 to 22).

The final student to testify concerning the March 6, 1992 incident was B.D. This student was in Mrs. Drozdale's fourth-grade class, during the 1991-92 school year. This witness testified that she saw Mr. Harrell push D.S. when she did not follow his directions. B.D. also testified that after gym, the students told Mrs. Drozdale what happened during that class. B.D. confirmed that J.M. told Mrs. Drozdale that Mr. Harrell had pushed him. On cross-examination, this witness explained Mrs. Drozdale questioned the class to determine exactly what had happened during Mr. Harrell's class.

Mr. Harrell testified in his own defense. He did not recall any incidents occurring during the first two gym periods on March 6, 1992. He first learned of the allegations, when Vice Principal Ruiz sent for him after lunch on March 6, 1992. Mrs. Ruiz indicated that two students had reported that they had been punched by Mr. Harrell. When this witness learned that the students were in Mrs. Drozdale's class, he explained to Mrs. Ruiz that Mrs. Drozdale was out to get him. Mr. Harrell told Mrs. Ruiz that:

> . . . 'Mrs. Drozdale came to the gym and informed Mrs. Jones, who was the other phys. ed. teacher, that she was going to take me to the cleaners and that I didn't know who I was messing with. I had caused her to get a bad rating before, and this time she was going to capitalize on it and that she was going to report me to the authorities because her kids observed me leaving the building.' (5T:72-4 to 11).

Mr. Harrell then testified concerning the events which occurred on March 6, 1992. Mr. Harrell and Mrs. Jones were standing in the corridor by the gym door. It was approaching 9:00 a.m.; Mrs. Jones' class had arrived but Mrs. Drozdale's had not. Mr. Harrell told Mrs. Jones that he was going out to the parking lot to move his van which was blocking another car. Mrs. Jones agreed to cover Mrs. Drozdale's class if she arrived before Mr. Harrell's return.

Mr. Harrell left the building, moved his van and used the bathroom in the teachers' room. He estimated that he was gone from five to ten minutes. When he returned, the boys and girls were in the locker rooms changing into their gym outfits. Mrs. Jones told him that Mrs. Drozdale had gone to the administration to report that he had left the building and was not there to receive her class for gym. Mrs. Drozdale said it was not fair to leave both classes with Mrs. Jones.

Mr. Harrell testified that the gym class proceeded and that G.B., A.R., R.R. and J.M. were in attendance. However, J.M. was not dressed in his gym clothes and, therefore could not participate in the class. Mr. Harrell would sometimes permit a student who had not suited up to engage in free play before the start of the formal gym class.

Mr. Harrell did not recall G.B. helping put away the basketballs on March 6, 1992 nor did he recall pushing him. This witness also did not recall grabbing A.R. or R.R. Finally, Mr. Harrell did not recall J.M. tripping and falling backwards. Indeed, Mr. Harrell could recall no incidents during the course of the gym class in which the two classes played "number" basketball and were using four basketballs.

This witness confirmed that several minutes before the end of the period, he left the gym to talk to Mrs. Drozdale. Mr. Harrell testified that he:

> . . . told Mrs. Drozdale that, when did she get off going to report me to the administration when she was late coming to class, and when I had someone there to receive the class? I said, 'Mrs. Jones has told me everything that you have said, and you have stated the fact that I caused you to get a bad rating, etc., and the fact that you are going to take me to the cleaners.' I said, 'Lady, do me a favor. Mind your own damn business,' and left. (5T:91-12 to 21).

As Mr. Harrell gave this testimony, he stood, his voice rose and he gestured with his arms. He also gave the impression that he moved very close to Mrs. Drozdale when he spoke to her. This witness denied calling the teacher a "bitch" or a "f'ing bitch." (5T:91-22 to 25). However, he did describe Mrs. Drozdale as looking "dumbfounded" after he had confronted her.

Prior to this incident, Mr. Harrell had been made aware that Mrs. Drozdale was annoyed with him. This witness testified that Principal Lagatol and Sandra Mickens, Chairperson of the Fourth Grade, had both mentioned that Mrs. Drozdale blamed him for a low rating she received on her January 15, 1992 evaluation.

Mr. Harrell confirmed that he was suspended as a result of the March 6, 1992 incident. This witness also denied that he had had any discussions with Mr. Lagatol regarding the use of physical contact with students prior to his final suspension.

On cross examination, Mr. Harrell denied that he had often been in Principal Lagatol's office concerning allegations of corporal punishment. This witness could not, however, explain the note which he sent to Mr. Lagatol on March 23, 1990 in which he stated:

> . . . Every time I turn around I am in your office for something I didn't do but taken or interpreted as corporal punishment!! (P-1)

Despite the language of P-1, Mr. Harrell denied that had any conferences, discussions or meetings with Mr. Lagatol regarding allegations of corporal punishment. He did concede, however, that each time a referral was made to DYFS that Mr. Lagatol met with him. Mr. Harrell recalled three such meetings. He admitted that since the decision to refer these matters to DYFS had been made, he had refused to provide Mr. Lagatol with written reports on the various incidents.

The respondent, Eddie Lee Harrell, called Joan Hochman to give testimony in support of his case. Mrs. Hochman testified that she has been employed by the Paterson School District for twenty-three years. This witness has been the school nurse at P.S. No. 15 since September 1991.

Mrs. Hochman testified that on March 6, 1992, she conducted an examination of J.M. and R.R. in the presence of their teacher, Karen Drozdale, and Vice Principal Ruiz. At the time of the examination, Mr. Harrell had been told by Mrs. Ruiz that the two boys had been "manhandled" by Mr. Harrell (6T:5-21).

Further, one of the boys reported to her that he had been pushed against a locker while the other informed her that he had been hit in the shoulder. Mrs. Hochman could not recall the name of the student making each complaint.

This witness testified that, as part of her examination, she lifted the boys' shirts, examined their skin, palpated, moved their shoulders and checked their range of motion. As a result of these procedures, Mrs. Hochman found nothing physical. Neither boy had any complaints of pain and both had a complete range of motion. This witness told Mrs. Ruiz and Mrs. Drozdale of her findings and prepared two reports, one dated March 6, 1992 and another dated March 10, 1992 (R-1 and R-2). Mrs. Hochman could not explain why there were two reports; she theorized that the first might have been temporarily misplaced resulting in a request that she prepare the second. The substance of both reports were virtually identical.

One cross examination, Mrs. Hochman conceded that the boys may have been shoved or pushed by Mr. Harrell without having marks on their skin.

Mrs. Cynthia Jones, the other physical education teacher, also testified in Mr. Harrell's behalf with regard to the events of March 6, 1992.

On that morning, Mrs. Jones testified that Mr. Harrell had asked her to watch his class for a moment and said that he'd be "right back" (6T:24-8). This witness indicated that those words were generally used when a teacher had to go to the men's or ladies' room. After Mr. Harrell left, Ms. Jones' class arrived and then Mrs. Drozdale brought her class for Mr. Harrell at about 8:55 a.m. This witness told Mrs. Drozdale to leave the class and she would watch the students until Mr. Harrell returned. While her students were still nearby, Mrs. Drozdale objected:

> 'This is not fair to you.' She told me, 'My kids saw him get in his car and go someplace. He was the cause of my getting a poor rating. I'm going to take him to the cleaners,' and I said 'You should calm down.' 6T:24-20 to 24.

Mrs. Drozdale then left her class with Mrs. Jones. Mrs. Jones stated that until that day she was not aware of any animosity between Mr. Harrell and Mrs. Drozdale.

On that particular day, the two classes had gym together. The curtain which partitions the gym was, therefore, not drawn. Mrs. Jones did not see Mr. Harrell touch, shove or push any of the students that day. She also did not see him go into the equipment room or hear any noise from that room.

Mrs. Jones also testified that she had never been told by Mr. Lagatol or anyone in administration that she should ask other students to separate students who are fighting. It was her opinion that you do not involve other students in the fight.

On cross examination, Mrs. Jones conceded that when she had been interviewed by the District's attorney earlier, she had never mentioned Mrs. Drozdale's comment. The witness' explanation was that she was never asked about it. Mrs. Jones, however, did inform Mr. Harrell of Mrs. Drozdale's statement as soon as he returned to the gym on March 6, 1992. She did not recall Mr. Harrell speaking to Mrs. Drozdale at the end of the gym period.

Mrs. Jones further stated that she had only assumed that Mr. Harrell had gone to the men's room because of the language he used. He could very well have gone to move his van which was illegally parked.

Mrs. Jones conceded that although she has no clear recollection of the meeting, she may have been interviewed by Mrs. Ruiz concerning the events of March 6, 1992. This witness also admitted that, while she did not observe Mr. Harrell hitting, shoving or pushing any students, her attention was not directed to Mr. Harrell.

> I'm not watching Mr. Harrell. I don't watch what he does.
>
> . . . my job is to teach the children, so I'm watching the children. If they're making any mistakes, I have to correct the mistakes. . . (6T:46-16 to 47-2).

Mrs. Jones further clarified that if Mr. Harrell had used any profanity in the boys' locker room, she would not have been able to hear it.

> In the boys' locker room, I can't hear anything. His door is closed, my door is closed, so I wouldn't hear anything. I don't hear anything that's going on. It's far apart. My door is closed.
>
> I don't know anything that going on in the locker rooms (6T:49-9 to 19).

On redirect, Mrs. Jones explained that if the boys are on the gym floor before the girls, they generally have a brief period of free play. That activity stops as soon as the girls line up on the stairs. The boys then put the basketballs away in the mesh holder. However, on re-cross, Mrs. Jones did not recall whether the boys had been playing with the basketballs on March 6, 1992, when the girls came out.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Having carefully considered the testimony of the witnesses presented by the School District in support of the specifications of Charges One and Two and Charge Four and the testimony of the respondent and the witnesses presented in his behalf, and having had the opportunity to view the demeanor of those witnesses as they gave their testimony, and having fully reviewed the exhibits entered into evidence relevant to these charges, I FIND the following.

During the 1991-92 school year, G.B., A.R., R.R., J.M., V.C., D.S., A.P. and B.D. were all students in Mrs. Drozdale's fourth grade in P.S. No. 15. These students were also in Mr. Harrell's physical education class during the same year. These students described Mr.

Harrell as being a strict teacher who demanded compliance with his many rules. However, the students generally liked Mr. Harrell and enjoyed participating in his class.

On the morning of March 6, 1992, Mrs. Drozdale brought her fourth-grade class from their mobile classroom which was in the faculty parking lot to the gym in the school building. Although the first period began at 8:45 a.m., Mrs. Drozdale arrived with her class at approximately 9:00 a.m. Mr. Harrell was not at the gym to receive Mrs. Drozdale's class. Mrs. Jones, the other gym teacher, offered to watch the class until Mr. Harrell's return. Mrs. Drozdale became concerned since some of her students said they had seen Mr. Harrell leave the school parking lot in his van. In front of her students, Mrs. Drozdale told Mrs. Jones that she was going to report Mr. Harrell to the administration. She said he had already been the cause of her receiving a poor rating and she was not going to let him get away with this. Mrs. Drozdale left her class with Mrs. Jones and reported Mr. Harrell's absence to the main office. As she was doing so, Mr. Harrell was seen returning to the school after moving his van in the faculty parking area.

When Mr. Harrell returned to his gym class at approximately 9:15 a.m., he was told by Mrs. Jones that Mrs. Drozdale had reported him to the administration.

Before gym class formally began on March 6, 1992, the boys had free time to play with the basketballs. Mr. Harrell told A.R. to put the basketball back. As he began to do so, Mr. Harrell caught him and pushed him causing his left shoulder to hit the wall. A.R. did not tell Mrs. Drozdale of this incident until the following Monday, March 9, 1992.

On the same day, J.M. did not bring his gym outfit and, therefore, could not participate in the gym class. Before the class began, J.M. was sitting by the mats, when a basketball rolled toward him. J.M. took the basketball and shot a basket. Mr. Harrell saw J.M. with the basketball and pushed him toward the mats. J.M. tripped over the mat, fell and hit his left shoulder on the mat. When he returned to his homeroom, J.M. told Mrs. Drozdale what Mr. Harrell had done to him during the gym class.

At the end of the gym activities on March 6, 1992, G.B. helped return the basketballs to the equipment room where the balls are kept. Because there were too many boys in the room, Mr. Harrell grabbed G.B. by the back of the neck and pushed him toward the wall, telling him to "Get over there!" G.B.'s forehead hit the brick wall leaving a red bump and causing his head to hurt. G.B. told his teacher, Mrs. Drozdale, what Mr. Harrell had done to him. When he went home, G.B. told his mother who took him to a doctor since his head still hurt.

R.R. was also returning a basketball to the equipment room at the end of gym glass on March 6, 1992. When R.R. returned with a second basketball, Mr. Harrell grabbed him by the arm and pushed him causing his shoulder to hit the wall. R.R. told Mrs. Drozdale what Mr. Harrell had done to him when the class returned to its homeroom.

Several minutes before the end of the gym period, Mr. Harrell left the class and confronted Mrs. Drozdale who was waiting in the cafeteria. Mr. Harrell, who was visibly angry, told Mrs. Drozdale, in a loud voice, that she should mind her own damn business.

Following the gym period, which ended at 10:05 a.m., Mrs. Drozdale's students were agitated and were shouting out that Mr. Harrell had hurt several students during that period. Some also told Mrs. Drozdale that Mr. Harrell had cursed her out, referring to her as a bitch. After trying to calm her students and ascertain the facts, Mrs. Drozdale determined that J.M. and R.R. had been hurt by Mr. Harrell. Although Mrs. Drozdale tried to report immediately to Mrs. Ruiz, she was unable to do so.

Mrs. Drozdale, therefore, brought J.M. and R.R. to Mrs. Ruiz during the lunch period which started at 12:05 p.m. Mrs. Drozdale had reported that both boys were punched by Mr. Harrell. Mrs. Ruiz interviewed the boys and concluded that they had been grabbed and pushed by Mr. Harrell and both had struck their left shoulder area. Mrs. Ruiz brought the boys to the nurse, Mrs. Hochman, who found no physical evidence of Mr. Harrell's contact with the boys.

On the following Monday, March 9, 1992, upon further reflection, Mrs. Drozdale reported to the principal, Mr. Lagatol, that four students: G.B., A.R., as well as R.R. and J.M., had been hurt by Mr. Harrell during the gym period on March 6, 1992. Mr. Lagatol interviewed the students as well as five additional student witnesses. Mr. Lagatol also interviewed Mr. Harrell who flatly denied the charges. Mr. Lagatol reported the incident to his superior as well as to DYFS. Mr. Harrell was thereupon suspended from his teaching position.

In making the above findings, I have determined that the students who were involved in the March 6, 1992 incident were believable. I have accepted the assessment of Mrs. Ruiz that these students are trustworthy, the evaluation of their teacher, Mrs. Drozdale that they are good kids and the reluctant acknowledgment of Mr. Harrell that they are not disciplinary problems. The testimony of G.B., A.R., R.R. and J.M. was straightforward and their individual testimony was generally corroborated by at least one other student witness. Although the testimony of the children was consistent in many areas; it differed depending upon which segment of the March 6, 1992 incident was witnessed. I found nothing in the testimony of the children nor in their demeanor as they gave this testimony which would persuade me that these events were either imagined or fabricated in an elaborate scheme to get Mr. Harrell. Indeed, I find that the students essentially liked Mr. Harrell and enjoyed participating in his classes.

Further I find that Mr. Harrell's testimony was at times evasive, that some of his explanations of events were simply not believable and that his demeanor on the stand occasionally showed signs of his excitable nature and physically aggressive mannerisms.

Although Mrs. Jones, the other physical education teacher, was a credible witness, I find that the incidents of March 6, 1992, happened either before Mrs. Jones arrived in the gym with the girls or in the area of the equipment room which was out of Mrs. Jones' range of vision.

I find that Mrs. Drozdale's action in reporting Mr. Harrell's absence to the administration and Mrs. Jones' report of her conversation with Mrs. Drozdale concerning that action, angered Mr. Harrell. That anger continued through the gym period and culminated in Mr. Harrell's loud and unpleasant confrontation with Mrs. Drozdale in the cafeteria.

That anger may also partially explain Mr. Harrell's harsh dealings with J.M., A.R., R.R. and G.B. Mr. Harrell grabbed and pushed these students causing them to either trip or fall.

His actions were reckless and could have resulted in injury to the boys. However, with the exception of the bump on G.B.'s forehead, Mr. Harrell's actions did not result in physical marks or bruises to the boys.

I do not find that Mr. Harrell acted intentionally to inflict corporal punishment upon the boys. Rather, I find that his actions constitute rough handling or improper physical contact with the four students which might have, but did not, result in harm to the boys. I do find that Mr. Lagatol met with Mr. Harrell on numerous occasions, during the 1990-91 and 1991-92 school years, to discuss with him the prohibitions against corporal punishment and having unjustified physical contact with students.

It is therefore concluded that the School District established by a preponderance of the credible evidence that on March 6, 1992, Eddie Lee Harrell did have unjustified physical contact with G.B., A.R., R.R. and J.M. Further, since the record herein demonstrates that Mr. Harrell was directed not to have improper physical contact with his students, the School District has established that Eddie Lee Harrell was guilty of insubordination as listed in Charge Four.

CHARGE FIVE: FALLING ASLEEP DURING DUTY

The School District also presented testimony in support of its charge that Eddie Lee Harrell had fallen asleep on duty during the 1989-90, 1990-91 and 1991-92 school years.

Mr. Lagatol, the principal of P.S. No. 15 testified, that on several occasions Mr. Harrell had fallen asleep during faculty meetings. The principal, during his rounds of the school building, also "observed Mr. Harrell asleep behind his desk when students were inside the locker room" (1T:71-1 to 6). Mr. Lagatol described Mr. Harrell as sitting upright, with his eyes closed and breathing evenly. When students were close by, Mr. Lagatol would speak in a loud voice so that Mr. Harrell would wake up and save face. On one occasion, when Mr. Lagatol spoke to the gym teacher, he denied he was sleeping but simply "resting his eyes" (1T:71-15 to 18).

Mr. Lagatol also testified that Vice Principal Hilda Ruiz had observed Mr. Harrell asleep in his class on June 10, 1991. The principal authorized Mrs. Ruiz to issue a letter of reprimand which was prepared and sent to Mr. Harrell on June 11, 1991 (P-17). Mr. Lagatol testified that if a teacher is asleep and not attending to his duties:

> . . . students are at their own will to do whatever they wish to do. Kids can get into mischief and they can cause physical harm to one another (1T:76-13 to 17).

On cross examination, Mr. Lagatol testified that he had observed Mr. Harrell sleeping in the locker room during the "5 to 7 minutes" when the boys change into or out of their gym clothes. He made these observations during the 1990-91 and 1991-92 school years.

Mrs. Ruiz, one of two vice principals at P.S. No. 15, testified concerning her observations which resulted in the letter of reprimand which was sent to Mr. Harrell on June 11, 1991 (P-17). Mrs. Ruiz recalled that on the day before she wrote the letter, she observed Mr. Harrell falling asleep in Room 305 while she was checking classrooms on the third floor. This witness testified that the students were talking and out of their seats while Mr. Harrell was asleep. Mrs. Ruiz described Mr. Harrell's head as falling forward. She did not recall Mr. Harrell's schedule, but thought he should have been teaching a health class at that time. Mrs. Ruiz walked into the room and touched Mr. Harrell's arm to wake him. The witness stated that Mr. Harrell opened his eyes and smiled at her. He explained that he was taking medication which made him drowsy. Mrs. Ruiz stated that she also observed Mr. Harrell falling asleep at staff meetings.

A.R., one of Mrs. Drozdale's fourth-grade students, testified that he observed Mr. Harrell fall asleep in health class. He described Mr. Harrell as falling asleep and then waking up to again read questions to the class. A.P. and R.R., also students in Mrs. Drozdale's fourth-grade class during the 1991-92 school year, confirmed that Mr. Harrell would fall asleep during health class.

Other students testified that they observed Mr. Harrell sleeping in the locker room. J.C., a student in Mrs. Palumbo's fifth-grade class, testified that he had observed Mr. Harrell sleeping in the locker room approximately five times. J.M., who was in Mrs. Drozdale's fourth-grade class during the 1991-92 school year, described Mr. Harrell as sitting down in the locker room with his eyes closed and head back. He would sleep for about five to eight seconds until the boys got loud and woke him up.

Mr. Harrell testified in his own behalf concerning the charge of falling asleep. This witness denied falling asleep but did recall feeling drowsy on the date Vice Principal Ruiz observed him. Mr. Harrell stated that he was covering the class for a teacher who had to attend a chairperson's meeting. That teacher had given the students enough work to keep them busy until she returned. Mr. Harrell's only responsibility was to monitor the students' conduct. This winess also denied that he had fallen asleep during health class although he did admit that he has a habit of closing his eyes while thinking. Mr. Harrell also denied sleeping in the locker room which he described as too noisy for that to happen.

On cross examination, Mr. Harrell conceded that Mrs. Ruiz, who had observed him sleeping on June 11, 1991, was "somewhat fair" and only wrote him up because of Mr. Lagatol's recommendation that she do so. Mr. Harrell further acknowledged that he had heard various students testify that they had observed him sleeping. Mr. Harrell admitted that these children were not hard core disciplinary problems but only had to be admonished on occasions.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Having carefully considered the testimony of the witnesses presented by the School District in support of Charge Five and the testimony of the respondent presented in his own defense, and having had the opportunity to view the demeanor of those witnesses as they gave their testimony, and having fully reviewed the exhibits entered into evidence relevant to this charge, I FIND that following:

On at least two occasions, Eddie Lee Harrell fell asleep at faculty meetings which are held on a monthly basis after regular school hours. Lack of attention during these meetings might result in Mr. Harrell missing information important to the proper discharge of his teaching responsibilities.

On June 11, 1991, a particularly hot day, Mr. Harrell fell asleep while monitoring a class for another teacher. Medication taken by Mr. Harrell contributed to his drowsiness.

While teaching health classes, Mr. Harrell would occasionally sit at his desk, close his eyes and doze. He would generally be awakened by noise in the classroom.

While monitoring the boys in the locker room, Mr. Harrell would sit at his desk and close his eyes. At times, he would fall asleep for very brief periods. The noise in the locker room would quickly awaken him.

Mr. Harrell's sleeping, even for very brief periods of time, when he was scheduled to either teach health classes or monitor the conduct of students, diminishes the educational process and exposes to harm the children in his care.

Based upon these findings, it is CONCLUDED that the School District has established by a preponderance of the credible evidence that Eddie Lee Harrell fell asleep while on duty as listed in Charge Five.

LEGAL DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

State statutes grant teachers in New Jersey the right to tenure. Zimmerman v. Newark Board of Education, 38 N.J. 65, 70-72 (1962) certif. den. 371 U.S. 956, 83 S. Ct. 508, 9 L.Ed.2d (1963). The tenure statute prevents school boards from abusing their superior bargaining power over teachers in contract negotiations. Spiewak v. Rutherford Bd. of Ed. 90 N.J. 63, 73 (1982). It protects teachers from dismissal for "unfounded, flimsy or political reasons." Zimmerman v. Newark Board of Education, 38 N.J. at 71.

It has long been held that unfitness to remain a teacher may be shown by a single incident, if sufficiently flagrant, but it is best evidenced by a series of incidents. In re Fulcomer, 93 N.J. Super. 404 (App. Div. 1967); Redcay v. State Bd. of Ed., 130 N.J.L. 369, 371 (Sup. Ct.) aff'd. 131 N.J.L. 326 (E & A 1944). In determining the appropriateness of a teacher's conduct, the Commissioner of Education has often stressed ". . . that those persons who enter the teaching profession exercise a significant influence upon those they teacher and. . . must exercise a high degree of exemplary behavior." In re Tyler, 13 N.J.A.R. 297

> While teachers are sensitive to the same emotional stresses as all other persons, their particular relationship to children imposes upon them a special responsibility for exemplary restraint and mature self-control. In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Thomas Appleby, 1969 S.L.D. 159, 173, aff'd. State Board, 1970 S.L.D. 448.

The respondent in the present case, Eddie Lee Harrell, had been charged in 1977 with inflicting corporal punishment on a student, M.F. Following a hearing on that charge, the Commissioner of Education concluded that Mr. Harrell did slap M.F. in an effort to restrain that student in an altercation he was having with another boy. In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Eddie Lee Harrell, 1979 S.L.D. 479. The Commissioner specifically found no justification for the use of undue physical force by respondent against M.F. to maintain discipline in his classroom. However, in determining what penalty would be appropriate, the Commissioner considered the following factors:

> . . . The circumstances under which the episode occurred, its provocation, the nature of the incident itself, the age of the pupil, the teacher's record, his attitude and the prognosis for his continued effective performance and usefulness in the school system. . . . In the Commissioner's opinion each such matter must be judged in light of all of the circumstances. The kind and degree of penalty will necessarily vary also according to the particular problem. In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Frederick L. Ostergren, 1966 S.L.D. 185, 188

The Commissioner concluded that under all the circumstances, dismissal of Mr. Harrell was not warranted. However, his conduct could not be "ignored or condoned". 1979 S.L.D. at 486. The Commissioner, therefore, directed that Mr. Harrell forfeit a sum of money equal to two weeks salary.

In the present tenure proceeding, there is not a single incident but rather seven separate instances of either corporal punishment or unjustified physical contact. The first occurred in 1988. As specifically found, Mr. Harrell laid hands on J.R., lifted him off the ground, threw him to the floor and kicked him at least three times. J.R. was bruised as a result of these actions which were not done in self defense or to protect other students. This incident is a serious one and if it were the sole incident involving Mr. Harrell, might be "sufficiently flagrant" to warrant his removal.

This incident, however, does not stand alone. It is followed by one in January, 1991 when, as found, the respondent overreacted to G.C.'s disrespectful conduct and physically restrained him in an improper manner. Within two months of this incident, and following a period of suspension from his teaching duties, respondent was again found to have committed an act of corporal punishment when he grabbed D.F. and punched him in the back. This act was totally unprovoked and resulted in a large, round bruise midway down D.F.'s back.

In the following school year, Mr. Harrell, angry with a fourth-grade teacher, was found to have taken his anger out on her students. Mr. Harrell improperly pushed, G.B., causing him to hit his forehead on a wall; improperly grabbed and pushed A.R. causing him to strike his shoulder; improperly grabbed and pushed R.R. and improperly pushed J.M. causing him to trip and fall on his shoulder. The conduct of the students involved was not provocative nor were Mr. Harrell's actions taken to protect either himself or other students. Indeed, Mr. Harrell's rough handling of the four students was done without considering the potential harm to the students.

A review of the factual findings herein amply demonstrates that Mr. Harrell is sadly lacking in the self restraint and self control so necessary to an effective and successful teacher. Indeed, the evidence herein discloses a pattern of conduct by Mr. Harrell where he deals with incidents of misconduct, either real or perceived, in a physically aggressive manner, at times causing injury to his students.

In a society which is becoming ever more violent, it is essential that teachers be exemplars of problem solving that does not resort to physical aggression. Mr. Harrell has failed to discharge that important responsibility to his students. Indeed, his actions may unfortunately give a clear signal to his students that physical aggression is an appropriate and acceptable response.

The Commissioner concluded in his earlier decision that while Mr. Harrell's single act of slapping a student could not be condoned, it did not warrant dismissal. Unfortunately, the record developed herein, involving seven incidents, does warrant such action. The incidents involving J.R. and D.F. resulted in physical harm to those students. The other incidents demonstrate a pattern of repetitive conduct which puts students at risk.

In addition to these charges, Mr. Harrell was also found to have used profane language to D.F. and N.I. and to have fallen asleep in the course of his duties. This conduct, in and of itself, would not warrant dismissal. However, when viewed as part of the total record, it further demonstrates that Mr. Harrell's action show little respect for his students and diminish the teaching profession.

Accordingly, the employment of Eddie Lee Harrell as a physical education teacher in the employ of the State Operated School District of the City of Paterson is hereby terminated.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 West State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE :
HEARING OF EDDIE LEE HARRELL, : COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT : DECISION OF THE CITY OF PATERSON, : PASSAIC COUNTY. :

The record and initial decision rendered by the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Respondent's exceptions were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Respondent's exceptions urge, inter alia, that the initial decision should be rejected because the ALJ found many of the district's charges to be proven based solely on the testimony of young children who she found to be credible despite inconsistencies in their testimony and conflict in their stories of the same events. Respondent provides numerous transcript citations which he avers support his position and maintains that such conflicts and inconsistencies prove the relied upon testimony was not credible and, therefore, the district has not met its burden of proof with respect to these charges.

Respondent also asserts that testimony regarding his hitting J.R. in the face is inherently incredible. He states:

> The respondent testified that at the time of the incident, J.R. was about as tall as the respondent (TV27/15-20). J.R. claims that while he was lying on his back on the floor, kicking out at the respondent who was standing by his > feet, the respondent leaned over kicking the boy and punched him in the face. Such an action would be physically impossible and respondent would have fallen over on top of J.R. if he had leaned over far enough to touch his face.

> (Respondent's Exceptions, at pp. 7-8)

He additionally excepts to the ALJ's finding that his account of the incident did not provide a reasonable explanation for J.R.'s injuries averring that:

> J.R. himself claimed that he hit the respondent (TVII 9/12-13), that he was kicking out at the respondent (TVII 13/17-19) and that he banged his legs against the steps while struggling with the respondent (TVII 40/13-24).
> (Id., at p. 8)

He submits that the ALJ could not conclude with any certainty that these actions were not the cause of J.R.'s injuries rather than the respondent.

The Commissioner has conducted her own detailed and exhaustive examination of the entire record in this matter including the transcripts of the seven days of hearings and each of the exceptions advanced in respondent's 23 page submission, and determined that she is in full agreement with the ALJ's findings and conclusions that the district has proven the following charges against respondent:

CHARGE 1 - CORPORAL PUNISHMENT

(a) February 25, 1988 on J.R.

(b) March 25, 1991 on D.F.

CHARGE 2 - UNJUSTIFIED PHYSICAL CONTACT

(a) February 25, 1988 on J.R.

(b) January 29, 1991 on G.C.

(c) March 25, 1991 on D.F.

(d) March 6, 1992 on G.B., A.R., R.R., and J.M

CHARGE 3 - UNBECOMING CONDUCT (PROFANE AND INAPPROPRIATE LANGUAGE)

- March 26, 1991 toward D.F. and N.I.

CHARGE 4 - INSUBORDINATION

- With regard to the March 6, 1992 incident involving G.B., A.R., R.R. and J.M.

CHARGE 5 - FALLING ASLEEP DURING DUTY

In reaching this determination, the Commissioner was particularly mindful of her responsibility to assure that the decision is supported by a preponderance of credible evidence, particularly when, to a great extent, these charges depend upon the testimony of young students. As articulated by the State Board in In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Barry Deetz, School District of the Village of Ridgewood, 1984 S.L.D. 1923, aff'd. N.J. Superior Court, Appellate Division, May 10, 1985 (A-1264-84T5), Cert. den. 101 N.J. 321 (1985):

> Although we recognize that corroboration of student testimony is not required, it has long been established that student testimony must be examined with great caution. See, e.g. In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Portia Williams, decided by the Commissioner August 27, 1981, aff'd State Board March 24, 1982, aff'd Docket No. A-4036-81T3 (App. Div., December 15, 1982). (at 1926)

Moreover the Commissioner was fully cognizant of the fact that she may make her own independent findings of fact, although due consideration must be given to the opportunity of the ALJ to observe the parties and their witnesses.

After her full review of this matter, the Commissioner finds respondent's exceptions to be without merit. She specifically rejects his assertion that because inconsistency or apparent conflict existed in the testimony of student witnesses this leads to the conclusion that their testimony is not to be believed. That certain of the district's allegations elicited conflicting testimony is not in and of itself evidence that the allegations are untrue only that they remain disputed by the respondent. It is clear from the record that the ALJ considered all testimony and weighed it according to the credibility of the witnesses and the plausibility of its content. The Commissioner finds no basis in the record for overturning the credibility assessments of the ALJ who had the benefit of observing the witnesses first hand.

The Commissioner notes that her own review reveals that variances in testimony so criticized by the respondent were in the individuals' recollections of or failure to recall minute details of the respective incidents, some of which occurred as long as five years earlier, not the underlying actuality of the occurence of the incidents themselves. Moreover, none of the testimony so criticized by respondent can fairly be said to have been crucial in reaching either the ALJ's or the Commissioner's ultimate conclusions in this matter.

In considering the appropriate penalty to be imposed in this matter, the Commissioner is compelled by the record to agree with the ALJ's recommendation that the respondent be dismissed from his tenured teaching position in the State-Operated School District of the City of Paterson. In reaching this conclusion she was particularly cognizant of the important role served by members of the teaching profession:

> they are professional employees to whom the people have entrusted the care and custody of tens of thousands of school children with the hope that this trust will result in the maximum educational growth and development of each individual child. This heavy duty requires a > degree of self-restraint and controlled behavior rarely requisite to other types of employment. As one of the most dominant and influential forces in the lives of the children, who are compelled to attend the public schools, the teacher is an enormous force for improving the public weal. Those who teach do so by choice, and in this respect the teaching profession is more than a simple job; it is a calling.

The charges against the respondent in this matter are serious, involving seven separate instances of either corporal punishment or unjustified physical extending back to 1988. As aptly stated by the ALJ in her initial decision:

> A review of the factual findings herein amply demonstrates that Mr. Harrell is sadly lacking in the self restraint and self control so necessary to an effective and successful teacher. Indeed, the evidence herein discloses a pattern of conduct by Mr. Harrell where he deals with incidents of misconduct, either real or perceived, in a physically aggressive manner, at times causing injury to his students.
> In a society which is becoming ever more violent, it is essential that teachers be exemplars of problem solving that does not resort to physical aggression. Mr. Harrell failed to discharge that important responsibility to his students. Indeed, his actions may unfortunately give a clear signal to his students that physical aggression is an appropriate and acceptable response. (Initial Decision, at p. 60)

The Commissioner further notes that in addition to these charges, respondent was also found to have used profane language to students D.F. and N.I., and to have fallen asleep on a number of occasions in the course of his duties. As also noted by the ALJ

> This conduct, in and of itself, would not warrant dismissal. However, when viewed as part of the total record, it further demonstrates that Mr. Harrell's action[s] show little respect for his students and diminish the teaching profession. (Initial decision, at p. 61)

Accordingly, the Commissioner adopts the initial decision for the reasons expressed therein and as indicated above. Respondent is hereby dismissed from his tenured teaching position as of the date of this decision. It is further ordered that pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6(a)(1), a copy of the final decision in this matter be forwarded to the State Board of Examiners for its review and, in its discretion, further appropriate action.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, tenured clerk-typist, alleged Board violated her tenure and seniority rights by abolishing her full-time position and continuing to employ part-time nontenured staff to perform the same type of functions.

ALJ concluded that when petitioner's position was abolished, she had less seniority than any other clerk-typist, and was offered a position as a per-diem clerk-typist for the maximum number of hours authorized which she declined. The ALJ further found that the new part-time clerk-typist position which was established is not the same as the abolished position, and that the Board has demonstrated valid reasons based upon its budgetary constraints and the available work load for maintaining its present staffing.

ALJ determined that petitioner's tenure and seniority rights were not violated and ordered the petition dismissed with prejudice.

Commissioner adopted the findings and determination in the initial decision.

ERNA O'NEILL,
Petitioner,
v.
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF FORT LEE, BERGEN COUNTY,
Respondent.

Alfred F. Maurice, Esq., for petitioner (Springstead & Maurice, attorneys)

Robert T. Tessaro, Esq., for respondent

Record Closed: February 1, 1993 Decided: March 17, 1993

BEFORE EDITH KLINGER, ALJ:

This matter is the appeal of Erna O'Neill from the termination of her employment by respondent as a result of a reduction in force (RIF). On June 4, 1992, O'Neill filed a verified petition with the Commissioner of the Department of Education alleging that her employment was terminated while the Fort Lee Board of Education continued to employ nontenured staff performing the same type of functions, in violation of her tenure and seniority rights, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:17-2, N.J.S.A 18A:6-9, N.J S.A. 18A.6-10, and Title 6 of the New Jersey Administrative Code. Respondent filed its answer on June 5, 1992, and the Department of Education transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law on June 11, 1992, as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

The hearing was held on January 6, 1993, but the record was held open in order to allow the parties to submit briefs. The record closed on February 1, 1993, when all submissions were received from the parties.

STIPULATION OF FACTS

The parties stipulated to the following facts:

1. Erna O'Neill was a tenured clerk typist in the employ of the Fort Lee Board of Education (Board) from July 1, 1987 to June 30, 1992.

2. On or about April 14, 1992, O'Neill was notified that she was the subject of a RIF and that her employment would be terminated effective June 30, 1992.

3. Petitioner's notice of termination was given by Alan W. Sugarman, Ph.D., Superintendent of Schools

4. On April 15, 1992, a memorandum was sent from Juanita Adams, grievance chairperson of the Fort Lee Education Association (Association) to Dr. Sugarman. She objected to the termination of O'Neill while the Board continued to employ nontenured staff performing the same type of functions

5. On May 13, 1992, a request was submitted to Dr. Sugarman from Ms. Adams requesting a list of part-time employees performing clerical duties with their hours and length of service.

6. On June 8, 1992, Dr. Sugarman provided information to Ms. Adams in response to the request in the May 13, 1992 memorandum.

7. On May 19, 1992, Dr. Sugarman directed the Fort Lee District's principal to post a job vacancy for clerk typist.

8. On July 27, 1992, the Board offered O'Neill a part-time, per diem job for twenty-five hours a week at $9 75 per hour as a clerk typist without health benefits.

10. Petitioner declined the Board's offer of part-time employment.

11. Petitioner's position, from which she was the subject of a RIF, provided health benefits and salary as contained in the collective-bargaining agreement.

ISSUES TO BE RESOLVED

The major issue to be resolved is whether the Board can terminate a tenured, full-time employee while retaining part-time, nontenured employees The other issues are whether the Board is obligated to create a full-time job for O'Neill and whether O'Neill has done anything to mitigate her damages since her termination on September 1, 1992.

REVIEW OF TESTIMONY

O'Neill was hired as a full-time clerk typist in the library at the Fort Lee High School building in July 1987.

During the summer months when the library was closed, O'Neill worked in the guidance department or the central office. From the first day of school until the week after Thanksgiving, she worked in the library. From then until after Christmas, she was sent to the central office to assist in preparing the budget. After the new year, she returned to the library, where she remained until the beginning of the summer vacation. This was generally the pattern of her employment except for one month when she was sent to help an assistant principal whose secretary was out ill.

O'Neill has had no other employment since her termination, but she testified that she has been looking for work on a regular basis. She explained that she refused the part-time job offered to her by the Board because she needed the salary and medical benefits that went with the full-time position.

Dr. Alan W. Sugarman is Superintendent of Schools in the Fort Lee District (District). He testified that at the time of O'Neill's termination in 1992, there were no full-time clerk typists with less seniority than O'Neill. All of the less senior and nontenured clerk typists were employed on a part-time basis. O'Neill was offered a part-time position but refused it.

She has asked the District to create a full-time clerk typist position by displacing several nontenured part-time employees, to create a job for her in one location, or to assign her on a part-time basis to several locations.

Sugarman explained that this can not be done. Part-time clerk typists work from 8:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m., five days a week. Some also serve as lunch aides as well as clerical aides. The one hour of lunch-aid service may be worked during or after the five hours of clerical work.

There are six schools in the District. A part-time clerk typist is assigned to each school. Most of their job requirements must be performed in the morning hours. Every morning, it is their responsibility to call the parents of absent or late students and find out the reasons. Each school in the District has approximately 400 students, of which five to eight percent, or thirty-two students, are absent on a daily basis. The clerical aide begins to make calls at 9:30 and continues until all parents have been reached. After 1:30 p.m., there is no work of any significance left to do. Sugarman testified that the job duties do not justify expanding any of the part-time positions to full-time positions.

According to Sugarman, the clerical positions in five of the six schools cannot be consolidated because the duties are simultaneous in five different locations. The schools are separated geographically and no individual could fill more than one clerk typist position.

There is a seventeen-hour-per-week clerk typist position in the central office and one position for an individual to work as needed. The seventeen-hour position was also abolished by the Board effective approximately one week after the hearing date.

Sugarman testified that O'Neill's prior position in the library was eliminated and was never filled. A vacancy notice was posted on May 19, 1992, for a part-time clerk typist at the central attendance office, where new enrollments in the District are processed. The function of this office differs from that of the attendance office at Fort Lee High School, where O'Neill occasionally worked. The high-school attendance office tracked absences and tardiness of the students. Therefore, O'Neill's duties were not assigned to a part-time employee when her position was abolished.

O'Neill and Juanita Adams, grievance chairman of the Association, who testified on petitioner's behalf, thought that there were part-time clerk typists who were freely sent to different schools to work. Sugarman testified that in his thirteen years as Superintendent of the District, he had the power to prioritize clerk typist assignments as required; however, his policy has been to assign people permanent responsibilities. These employees are rarely asked to work elsewhere.

O'Neill and Adams also believed that there were part-time clerk typists working more than twenty-five hours a week. They did not, however, take into consideration that they were paid for only twenty-five hours a week and some also performed lunch duty One clerk typist particularly singled out by Adams apparently has a child in the school in which she works and might remain in the building after her working hours without compensation. Sugarman testified that the Board has authorized workweeks of no more than twenty-five hours for part-time clerical aides.

Based upon the evidence, I FIND the following FACTS: O'Neill had the least seniority of the full-time clerk typists employed by the Board. Her position as Library Clerk I was abolished because of budget constraints and was not filled by anyone O'Neill was offered a part-time clerk typist position but refused it. The new clerk typist position is not the same as the Library Clerk I position which was abolished. It is the same or an equivalent position to the ones occupied by the nontenured employees. The part-time clerical positions cannot be consolidated because they are necessarily performed at different geographical locations at the same time of day. The available work load does not justify the expansion of any of these positions to a full-time one. O'Neill has been placed on a preferred eligibility list.

DISCUSSION OF LAW AND CONCLUSIONS

I FIND that the Board has demonstrated valid reasons. based upon its budgetary constraints and the available work load, for maintaining its present staffing pattern. When O'Neill's position was abolished, she had less seniority than any other full time clerk typist and was offered a position as a per diem clerk typist for the maximum number of hours authorized. As long as she did not receive worse treatment than the nontenured per diem clerk typists, her seniority rights were not violated. Klinger v. Cranberry Tp. Bd. of Ed., 190 N.J. Super. 354, 358 (App. Div. 1982). "Boards of education need not structure programs or positions solely to accommodate employee rights." Polo v. Bergen Vo.-Tech. Schools, 92 *N.J.A.R.*2d (Vol. 4) 230, 233, (Dep't of Educ), citing Eftychiou v. Bergenfield Bd. of Ed., 1990 S.L.D. __ (Comm'r of Educ , July 19, 1990) (slip op. at 20). I therefore CONCLUDE that petitioner's tenure and seniority rights pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:17-2 have not been violated.

Petitioner has attempted to argue that the staffing in the District as regards employees in the category of clerk typist is in violation of the collective-bargaining agreement between the Board and the Association. I CONCLUDE that these contractual issues are not within the jurisdiction of the Commissioner of Education and, therefore, not within the jurisdiction of the undersigned; they should be addressed in the appropriate forum.

For the reasons above, I CONCLUDE that petitioner is entitled to no relief which can be granted by the Commissioner of Education.

ORDER

It is hereby ORDERED that the petition of Erna O'Neill be DISMISSED WITH PREJUDICE.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 West State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." The record and initial decision rendered by the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions and the Board's reply thereto were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

The Commissioner notes that the petitioner's exceptions and the Board's reply essentially reiterate the arguments presented to the ALJ which were fully and fairly considered by her in the initial decision.

Upon careful and independent review of the record, the Commissioner agrees with the findings and conclusions of the ALJ that petitioner's tenure and seniority rights pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:17-2 have not been violated by the Board in the abolishment of her full-time clerk typist position.

Accordingly, the Commissioner accepts the recommendation of the Office of Administrative Law dismissing the petition of appeal for the reasons expressed in the initial decision, and adopts it as the final decision in this matter.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, teaching staff member, alleged Board violated her tenure rights when it transferred her from an administrative position to a teaching position.

Initial decision determined petitioner had had no formal appointment to an administrative position. Board did not know that petitioner was claiming title of principal and performing the job duties without authorization. ALJ concluded petitioner was not entitled to equitable relief requiring District to recognize her as tenured in a principal/administrator's position. Thus, transfer was not a violation of any tenure rights pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. Petition was dismissed.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision.

BEFORE EDITH KLINGER, ALJ:

Petitioner, Dawn V. Reynolds, alleges that her tenure rights pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6 were violated when respondent, the State-Operated School District of Jersey City (District), removed her from an administrator's position and transferred her to a teaching position. Reynolds filed a petition with the Commissioner of the Department of Education on January 10, 1992. The District filed its answer on February 5, 1992. On February 13, 1992, the Department of Education transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

The hearing was held on November 30, 1992, but the record was held open in order to allow the parties to submit briefs. The record closed on February 1, 1993, when the final submission was received from the parties.

At a prehearing conference with the parties held on April 27, 1992, it was determined that the following were the issues to be decided at hearing:

1. Is the petition timely pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2?

2. Did petitioner serve in the position of principal at the Adult Learning Center from September 27, 1988 to October 20, 1991?

3. If it is determined that petitioner was not a principal from September 27, 1988 to October 20, 1992, is the remainder of her petition moot?

4. If it is determined that petitioner was a principal during the relevant time period, did petitioner gain tenure as a principal pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5?

5. If so, were petitioner's tenure rights violated when she was assigned as a classroom teacher on October 20, 1991?

6. If so, to what relief is petitioner entitled?

REVIEW OF EVIDENCE

Most of the facts in this matter are not in dispute. I FIND the FACTS set forth in the following summary to be uncontested.

Reynolds has been employed for sixteen years in the school district. She holds certificates in early-childhood education and elementary education; she has held a principal/supervisor certificate since 1985.

When she first came to the school district, she was employed as a fifth-grade teacher. She then became a sixth-grade teacher.

On September 1, 1988, Louis Lanzillo, assistant superintendent/personnel of the Jersey City Public Schools, notified Reynolds that pending official action by the Jersey City Board of Education (Board), she was being transferred from her position as teacher at Public School No. 15 to teacher at the Adult Learning Center (ALC) effective September 8, 1988. Reynolds's immediate supervisor in the new position was John Cash, then director of adult education for the school district. She interviewed with Cash for the position, and he gave her the title of administrator of the ALC; she was evaluated by Cash under this title.

The ALC is a self-contained facility which is part of the school district. There were twelve members of its faculty, nine of whom were certificated teaching personnel. Reynolds acted as supervisor to all of them and performed their evaluations. She called and conducted faculty meetings, monitored existing instructional programs, assessed needs, and made recommendations to the director of adult education. In addition, Reynolds supervised the noninstructional staff. She ordered supplies, signed off on purchase orders, and she certified the payroll.

Reynolds stated that she took a leadership role in curriculum development in administration, held conferences, conducted in-service and outside training of staff, and made budget proposals. She also interviewed and hired teaching-staff members with the consent of the director.

Students attending the ALC were adults or sixteen- and seventeen-year-old pupils who had been signed out of the regular school program by their parents. Students graduating from the ALC received a diploma upon successfully completing the General Equivalency Diploma (GED) program. For this purpose, Reynolds signed certifications that the students had completed the program requirements.

In addition to the above, Reynolds was responsible for conferring with the director concerning needed repairs to the schools. She also met with parents of students, disciplined teaching-staff members and students, and signed the records required by the school district as the administrator of the program.

When she assumed the job of administrator, her salary did not change from her teacher's salary. She asked Cash why she was being paid a teacher's salary as an administrator.; however, she could not recall his explanation. At no time did Reynolds have any teaching duties at the ALC.

Reynolds admits that she had no written notification that she was appointed by the Board to the position of administrator of the ALC. She stated that this title was conferred upon her by the director of adult education for the District.

Reynolds received the position after the prior administrator was removed for not having an administrator/supervisor certificate. She was interviewed by Cash at the Board offices in August 1988. No one else participated in the interview.

At no time did Reynolds communicate with anyone other than Cash with respect to any personnel or administrative action she took at the ALC. She gave him all of her evaluations of the instructional and noninstructional staff.

Following the State takeover of the school district in October 1989, Dr. Eloise Forster became the state assistant superintendent of the District. She testified that the new District was required to conduct an assessment of the existing staff for the purpose of reorganizing the District. By statute, they had to assess the central office, administrative, and supervisory staff within six months of the takeover. They also had to perform an assessment of the school principals by means of criteria written into the takeover statute. Reynolds was not one of the people assessed.

Between October 1989 and April 1991, the assessment process was conducted by an external evaluation team. Forster, the other assistant superintendent, and the superintendent of the District contributed to the process.

A corrective action plan was formulated during the monitoring period prior to the State's takeover of the District. A reorganization of the adult education program was part of the plan but was put off because of time and priority factors. The adult education program was not reorganized until 1991.

The assessment determined that the adult education program did not merit a directorship due to the drop in enrollment. This position was abolished and the program was placed within the jurisdiction of the director of the Education/Business Alliance (EBA). In February 1991, the ALC was under the supervision of Dr. Charles Epps, then acting director. It is now headed by a supervisor.

The reorganization affected the ALC in other ways. It had to be relocated because it occupied a rented site that was too expensive. The new District then assessed its effectiveness relative to its cost, program, staff, and student achievement. At the end of the first year, they corrected what Forster referred to as glaring problems: staffing, lack of certification of certain teachers, and a program too costly for its size.

In regard to staffing, it was determined that the ALC does not have a static enrollment like a regular school program. Students enter and leave the program at will. Forster said that the District found that because she was not teaching, it was not cost effective to maintain Reynolds on the staff of the ALC. No one knew initially that she was performing administrative functions.

When this fact came to light during a subsequent investigation, Marilyn Roman, the director of the EBA, wrote a memorandum to Reynolds on September 24, 1991, stating the following:

> It has come to my attention you may be or have been performing formal evaluations on your colleagues. I understand that you may have also assumed certain tasks, such as evaluating plan books, sending students home and docking compensation for lateness.
>
> With respect to formal evaluations, such supervisory tasks are outside the scope of your responsibility for the State Operated School district. However well intended, please cease these tasks immediately.
>
> With respect to assistance to colleagues, certainly on an informal basis a senior teacher helping others has always been welcomed and encouraged in the teaching profession.
>
> Thank you for your timely cooperation.

Reynolds was transferred to a classroom teaching position on October 20, 1992, with no decrease in salary.

Both Cash and the adult education program were evaluated. It was found that Cash functioned independently in his role as director of adult education. He circumvented the chain of command and school district procedures and policies. His appointment of Reynolds to a nonteaching administrator's position is an example of this circumvention. The duties that Reynolds was performing were authorized by Cash on his own accord. There is no documentation that shows Reynolds was granted this authorization by the Board prior to the takeover.

Epps testified that from what was learned of Cash's responsibilities as director of the Center between 1988 and 1991, it was Cash's job that Reynolds was performing.

According to Epps, the ALC is a program, not a school. It has always had a head teacher, not a principal. The head teacher should have been teaching in the classroom, not acting as administrator as Reynolds did.

Based upon the testimony in this matter, I make the following FINDINGS OF FACT:

1. Reynolds was appointed by the Board of the District to the position of head teacher at the ALC beginning September 1988.

2. She was not appointed as principal of the ALC by the Board; the ALC has never had a principal and there is no record of her appointment to this position by the Board.

3. Reynolds was made principal/administrator of the ALC by Cash, who did not have the authority to make the appointment.

4. Cash, without authorization, assigned Reynolds the duties of his position, and she did not perform the teaching duties assigned to her by the Board.

5. When this was discovered by the District, Reynolds was ordered to discontinue her unauthorized administrative activities immediately.

6. Reynolds had reason to know that she was not serving as the principal of ALC because she was not appointed to the position by the Board, she was not receiving a principal's salary, and she was not performing functions in the school district as a principal, such as attending meetings at the Board with other principals from the school district.

7. On October 20, 1992, Reynolds was transferred from the position as head teacher at the ALC, where her services were not needed, to another teaching position in the District.

DISCUSSION OF LAW AND CONCLUSIONS

It is settled law that only the Board has the authority to appoint or promote staff. These appointments and promotions are made pursuant to formal Board action. I therefore CONCLUDE that Cash, the director of the ALC, did not have the authority to appoint and promote Reynolds to a position of principal at the ALC. He, In fact, created a de facto principal position and assigned to Reynolds what would appear to have been his duties.

The cases relied on by petitioner may be distinguished because their facts are materially different from those in the present case. In each and every one of the cases cited, the teaching staff members acquired their positions and/or duties by the action of a board of education.

In this case, neither the Board nor the District are bound by the acts of Cash, since they did not have knowledge that Reynolds was claiming the title of principal and performing the duties of the job without authorization. Because of the circumstances, Reynolds was in a better position than the Board to know that she was doing a job other than the one to which she had been appointed. She was a teacher with no teaching duties, she was acting as a principal without being given a principal's salary, she was not treated as an administrator outside of the ALC and Cash's office, and she had no formal appointment to an administrative position by the Board. I therefore CONCLUDE that Reynolds is entitled to no equitable relief requiring the District to recognize her as tenured in a principal/administrator's position.

On October 20, 1992, the Board simply transferred her from one teaching position in the District to another with no decrease in salary. I CONCLUDE that this transfer is within the power granted to the Board and, therefore, it was not in violation of any tenure rights of petitioner pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. For this reason, I CONCLUDE that Reynolds is entitled to no relief because of the transfer.

ORDER

It is ORDERED that the petition of Dawn V. Reynolds is hereby DISMISSED WITH PREJUDICE since she is entitled to no relief.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, a tenured teacher, alleged he was entitled by virtue of his tenure and seniority to displace either an individual teaching plumbing or one teaching building maintenance courses.

ALJ found petitioner lacked the appropriate endorsements to teach either of these courses. ALJ determined that petitioner's skilled trades endorsement was not a comprehensive one which allowed him to teach every trade in diverse fields, and that he would need a specific "plumbing and pipe fitting" endorsement to teach plumbing. ALJ also found that petitioner's Teacher of Industrial Arts endorsement did not qualify him to teach custodial training which requires a PPSO (production, personal or service occupations) endorsement. ALJ denied petitioner's requested relief.

Commissioner adopted the findings and determination in the initial decision.

An Equal Opportunity Employer

Statement of the Case

This is the second of two successive appeals regarding the tenure and seniority rights of a tenured carpentry teacher employed by a county vocational school district.

Originally, in April 1990, the Board of Education of the Vocational Schools of the County of Bergen ("Bergen Voc-Ed") reduced petitioner Anthony Polo ("Polo") from full-time to a 3/7th-time position for the 1990-91 academic year. Last year, in a matter entitled Polo v. Bergen Cty. Vo-Tech Schs. (Polo I), 92 N.J. A.R. 2d (Vol. 4) 230 (Comm'r Jan 30, 1992), modified 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (EUD) 459 (St. Bd. Aug. 5, 1992), appeal docketed, No. A256-92-T2 (N.J. App. Div. Sept. 18, 1992), the State Board decided that both petitioner and another carpentry teacher, Ralph Rossi, had equal credit for seniority purposes and, therefore, that the district was entitled to reduce Polo to part-time while retaining Rossi in a full-time position.

The following year, in June 1991, Bergen Voc-Ed notified Polo that he would continue in essentially the same part-time position for the 1991-92 academic year. Although this notification did not represent a genuine change in assignment, Polo brings the present suit raising two issues which were never determined on their merits in the first suit: First, what is the scope of the skilled trades endorsement on Polo's instructional certificate? Is it limited to specified areas, such as carpentry or brick and masonry, or is it a general endorsement covering other trades, such as plumbing or electrical construction? Second, does Polo's industrial arts endorsement authorize him to teach a course on custodial training?

Procedural History

On July 30, 1991, Polo filed his verified petition with the Commissioner of Education ("Commissioner"), challenging his assignment to only part-time employment for 1991-92. Bergen Voc-Ed filed its answer on September 3, 1991. Subsequently, on September 20, 1991, the Commissioner forwarded this matter, known as Polo II, to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") for hearing as a contested case.

At an earlier stage in these proceedings, Polo II had been consolidated for hearing along with similar or related claims of two other teachers in the district; however, all of the other cases have been either settled or dismissed.[1] Bergen Voc-Ed also moved to dismiss the second Polo suit as untimely and violative of the single controversy doctrine. While Polo successfully withstood this motion to dismiss, the Commissioner carefully circumscribed the issues which remain:

> Petitioner Polo timely filed his petition within 90 days of learning that the Board allegedly intended to assign individuals to positions that they had not filled in the 1990-91 school year in the 1991-92 school year. Petitioner claims three individuals, including a new plumbing teacher named Mark Levy, enjoy less seniority or no tenure entitlement over him. Thus, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that the matter should proceed as a new cause of action to the Office of Administrative Law for adjudication on the merits of Petitioner Polo's claims. The Commissioner stresses that the review of Polo's claims for 1991-92 is limited solely to newly assigned individuals for the 1991-92 school year.

> Boles v. Bergen Cty. Vo-Tech. Schs, 92 N.J.A.R 2d (Vol. 4A) 554 (Comm'r Sept. 10, 1992), aff'd (St Bd Jan 6, 1993) [at 559].

Meanwhile, the OAL conducted hearings on July 27 and 29, 1992. Witnesses and exhibits are listed in the appendix Both parties filed briefs by September 25, 1992. After the Commissioner issued his interlocutory ruling, both parties filed supplemental briefs by October 20, 1992.

Only two newly-hired teachers fit the Commissioner's description of individuals holding assignments, claimed by Polo in 1991-92, which had not been filled in the prior 1990-91 school year. One is Mark Levy, who teaches plumbing. The other is Bruce Suraka, who teaches custodial training.[2]

Findings of Fact

Many of the material facts are set forth in the first case and are incorporated herein by reference. Polo I, 92 N.J.A.R. 2d at 231-232. At the second hearing, Polo offered greater details concerning his occupational training and experience; the types of instructional certificates which he held; and his teaching assignments. I FIND the following additional facts:

Anthony Polo obtained his high school equivalency diploma in or about 1962 and earned a bachelor of science degree in 1978 from Montclair State College, where he majored in industrial arts Before he began teaching at Bergen Voc-Ed in 1971, Polo held a variety of odd jobs in what might be loosely called construction work. From 1954 to 1964, he was self-employed as a general contractor. He was "always open to whatever job came along." Often he did carpentry or masonry work, which might include applying brick veneer, erecting the foundation of a house, or pouring concrete. Occasionally he did plumbing jobs, like installing heating systems or putting in sinks When working on an addition to an existing house, he served as jack-of-all trades, doing everything from excavating the site to raising the roof

During 1960 to 1970, Polo performed extensive renovations and repairs on several old houses or multi-family dwellings, which he owned and managed. One of these houses he built himself in 1964. Renovations which he made include installing a hot water heating system, running copper pipes from a basement furnace, and rewiring of the building and placing of new electrical outlets. Since most of his electrical work was on properties owned by either himself or friends and relatives,

[2]On June 9, 1992 Polo served notice by certified mail on Mark Levy, advising him of the pendency of this matter and of his opportunity to apply to intervene or participate in this proceding. Mr. Levy did not respond Polo was unable to give notice to Bruce Suraka, however, because his name did not appear on the master seniority list furnished by respondent and his identity was unknown to Polo until after the hearing had commenced.

he did not usually have the finished jobs inspected by an underwriting outfit. From time to time, he also assisted his brother, who is a licensed electrician.

Between 1971 and 1973, he held supervisory positions for three different construction companies. In this capacity, he acted as job foreman, coordinating the activities of other trade specialists, but not doing any actual plumbing and electrical work himself. For one of these companies, he functioned as the layout person, which involved reading blueprints and making sure that the building plans were properly implemented. In his last supervisory position, he worked for a company which supplies precast concrete.

Significantly, Polo cannot establish that he worked full-time for six years in any trades other than carpentry and masonry. He did not keep records and cannot allocate the amount of time spent doing electrical work, plumbing, or other specialized trades. Polo never served an apprenticeship as a plumber or an electrician. Although Polo is a member of the bricklayers, masons and plasters union, he does not belong to any union or guild for plumbers or electricians.

When Polo started working for Bergen Voc-Ed, he did so under an emergency instructional certificate, issued in September 1971, as teacher of skilled trades with approved occupational experience in "building construction." Shortly thereafter, in August 1972, he obtained a permanent instructional certificate endorsed simply as teacher of "skilled trades." He also holds a certificate endorsed as "teacher of industrial arts," which was issued in August 1978.

In a series of three affidavits, Ida Graham, current director of the Bureau of Teacher Education and Academic Credentials ("Bureau") at the Department of Education, provided the historical context of the skilled trades endorsement. Despite the absence of any specific skill area printed on the certificate, "[t[here was no intent by the [Education Department] that issuance of a certificate of 'Teacher of Skilled Trades' would be a blanket certificate usable in any of the skilled trade areas." Indeed, a letter, written in August 1980 by Dr. Fred A. Price, Graham's predecessor as director at the Bureau, explained that the designation of the specific skills area was omitted on the certificate with the advent of computerized certificates in the 1970's because the multiplicity of skilled trade areas presented a "computer programming problem." Nevertheless, issuance of the skilled trade certificate was "based on specific experience in the skilled trades to be taught." In or about 1975, "complaints of misuse of the certificates caused [the Department] to return to the pre-computer method of indicating the specific skill trade area on the certificate itself."

Department files reflect that Polo's permanent skilled trades certificate was issued in 1972 "with approved occupational experience in the category of 'Building Construction.' " That particular category was discontinued in 1983 and is no longer issued by the Department. According to Graham's second affidavit, the categories of "carpentry" and "brick and stone masonry," which predate 1983 and still exist today, are "much narrower" than the former category of "building construction." Her third affidavit elaborates, however, that building construction "was not a comprehensive certificate and could not subsume any other designated area under the Skilled Trades Certificate."

When Bergen Voc-Ed began considering curriculum changes which might adversely affect Polo's employment, assistant superintendent Anthony Miller suggested that Polo ought to protect himself by obtaining specific endorsements in the areas of his occupational experience. As Polo recalls their conversation, Miller told him to apply for particular endorsements in carpentry and masonry. Consequently, in January 1982, Polo obtained an instructional certificate endorsed as "teacher of carpentry" and "teacher of brick and stone masonry."[3] To qualify for these endorsements, he presented documentation of six years of full-time experience in each trade. Graham's first affidavit recites that six separate years of experience is required for each designated category, and that "[t]he experience used to obtain one endorsement cannot be co-mingled with or credited to another endorsement under the skilled trade certificate." It is undisputed that Polo never applied for a specific endorsement in any other skilled trade category, such as plumbing and pipefitting.

[3]Additionally, the certificate has a third endorsement as "teacher of vocational technical related subjects," but this case does not involve any claim under that endorsement.

In his early years at Bergen Vo-Ed, Polo had taught a course in building mechanics, covering "virtually anything that would be done in home construction." Polo I, 92 N.J.A.R. 2d at 231. Elaborating on his earlier testimony, Polo explained that the course content encompassed not only carpentry and wall-building, but also blueprint-reading, electrical wiring, and plumbing and heating systems. The impact of this supplemental testimony is undercut, however, by Polo's reliance on his own three-year course outline, which reveals that the objective of the tenth-grade year was for students to become acquainted with tools and materials of masonry work and woodworking; that the objective of the eleventh-grade year was to progress to "more complicat[ed] bricklaying" and "more intricate woodworking;" and that not until the twelfth year were students introduced to "basic" welding, electrical wiring, and plumbing. Nevertheless, Bergen Vo-Ed does not deny that building mechanics, as taught by Polo in the early to mid-1970's, included the teaching of some aspects of drafting, electrical wiring and plumbing. For the last fifteen or so years, however, Polo has taught a much narrower course devoted exclusively to carpentry.

Presently, Polo seeks to displace Mark Levy, who holds a skilled trades certificate in the category of "plumbing and pipefitting" and who started employment as a teacher of "plumbing" in 1991-92. Alternatively, Polo contends that he should have been offered the opportunity to teach "custodial training," which instead was given to newcomer Bruce Suraka in 1991-92. While the record does not contain much information about the recently-hired Suraka, Bergen Vo-Ed takes the position that a course in janitorial or custodial work must be taught by the holder of a PPSO endorsement as a "teacher of production, personal or service occupations."

Although it is no longer part of this case due to the Commissioner's interlocutory ruling, Polo made a similar argument that he was entitled to teach the "building maintenance" courses taught in 1991-92 by Howard Rozic and Harold Winters, each of whom has considerably less years of service than Polo.[4] Rozic started working as a vocational teacher in the district in 1986 and Winters in 1987.[5] Admittedly, neither possessed a PPSO endorsement at the time of initial hire. Rozic acquired his PPSO endorsement in April 1991 and Winters in November 1988. Their names appear under "industrial arts" on the district's latest seniority list. As previously noted, Polo has an industrial arts endorsement. Recognizing that it may have made past mistakes in determining the proper certificate and seniority category for Rozic and Winters, Bergen Vo-Ed still insists that Polo cannot currently teach custodial training without a PPSO endorsement.

[4]Like custodial training, the "building maintenance" refers to the upkeep and repair skills needed to work as a "building superintendent" in such facilities as offices, schools, hotels, and apartment buildings.

Conclusions of Law

Based on the foregoing facts and the applicable law, I CONCLUDE that Polo lacked the appropriate endorsements to teach the plumbing or custodial training courses in 1991-92.

Under current regulations, the holder of an endorsement as a teacher of skilled trades is authorized "to teach skilled trades courses in the area of his or her State-approved occupational experience in all public schools." N.J.A.C. 6:11-6.2(a)(27). Thus, the skilled trades endorsement is not a "blanket certificate" usable in all of the skilled trade areas, but rather is restricted to the particular area in which the applicant has demonstrated sufficient work experience. At one time, the regulations actually listed thirty-five separate trade categories, starting with "air conditioning and refrigeration" and continuing through "welding." 16 N.J.R. 1646(a) (July 2,1984); 16 N.J.R. 2788(a) (Oct. 15, 1984). "Plumbing and pipefitting" was distinct from "carpentry" which, in turn, was distinct from "brick and masonry." There was no comprehensive endorsement allowing one person to teach every trade in fields as diverse as "aircraft mechanics," "baking," "millwright" and "upholstering." While the enumerated list was deleted in the most recent version, the present regulations clearly retain the requirement of "State-approved occupational experience." 22 N.J.R. 1882(a) (June 18, 1990); 22 N.J.R. 3240(a) (Oct. 15, 1990). Prior to September 1, 1992, an applicant for a skilled trades endorsement must have been able to show "six years of approved full-time experience" in each skilled trade for which approval is sought. N.J.A.C. 6:11-8.1 [recodified in 1990 from N.J.A.C. 6:11-8.3].[6]

[5]In addition, Rozic had been a teacher of the handicapped in the district since the 1970's.

What is troublesome about this case is the difficulty of determining the scope of the "building construction" category recognized in 1972 but now defunct. Neither side has pointed to any past or present regulations or official Department publication which might help to delineate the parameters of this category. All that we know is that building construction was "broader" than carpentry or brick and masonry, but "narrower" than all the skilled trades combined. Given the known set of facts, the most satisfactory conclusion is that the skilled trades endorsement in building construction authorized Polo to do exactly what he did, which was to expose students to a few of the basic principles of plumbing and electrical wiring as an adjunct to a survey course focused on the carpentry and masonry techniques of home-building. The building construction endorsement does not signify that Polo has the necessary background to teach a course devoted entirely to plumbing, for which he must obtain the more specific skilled trades endorsement in "plumbing and pipefitting."

Similarly, there is confusion over what certificate is needed in 1991-92 to teach the course called custodial training. Before 1983, "custodial training" was one of the categories available under the skilled trades endorsement. See New Jersey Regulations & Standards For Certification (22d ed. 1976). In March 1983, the Department revised its list of approved vocational occupations, omitting "custodial training" from the skilled trades list and creating a new category called "building maintenance" under the heading of "production, personal or service occupations."[7] This change was formally ratified in the 1984 version of the certification regulations. Significantly, Polo possesses neither the old skilled trades endorsement in custodial training nor the new PPSO endorsement in building maintenance.

[6]Since September 1, 1992, the applicant must be able to show "at least four years of successful work experience in the relevant trade or occupation as approved by the employing district" and satisfy new requirements including passage of a State test of basic communication skills and completion of a State-approved district training program. N.J.A.C. 6:11-8.2.

Polo attempts to rely on his endorsement as "teacher of industrial arts." Such endorsement permits its holder to teach "industrial arts," defined as including "graphic arts, drafting, woodworking, metal working, arts and power mechanics," in all public schools. N.J.A.C. 6:11-6.2(a) (13). Custodial training or building maintenance does not fall within these general subject areas. Typically, the industrial arts endorsement is held by teachers of shop or design and technology classes in local middle schools and high schools, as opposed to the more intensive occupational preparation provided to students in county vocational schools. Bergen Vo-Ed has not offered traditional industrial arts courses as part of its curriculum in over ten years. Because Polo lacks the PPSO endorsement, he was not entitled to teach custodial training in 1991-92.

Order

It is ORDERED that relief requested by Polo is denied.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days

[7]Presumably, the skilled trades are in the nature of crafts, whereas the service occupations are more service-oriented and require less artisanship. The terms "custodial training" and "building maintenance" appear to be used interchangably.

and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions and Board's reply thereto were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4. Petitioner additionally submitted a reply to the Board's reply exceptions. There is no provision for such a submission under N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4, therefore, these were not considered by the Commissioner.

It is noted that petitioner's exceptions and the Board's reply essentially reiterate the arguments presented in post-hearing submissions which the Commissioner finds were fully and fairly considered by the ALJ in the initial decision.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner agrees with the findings and conclusions of the Office of Administrative Law for the reasons clearly expressed in the initial decision.

Accordingly, the Commissioner accepts the recommendation of the Office of Administrative Law denying petitioner's requested relief and adopts it as the final decision in this matter.

Record Closed: February 1, 1993 Decided: March 15, 1993

BEFORE MARYLOUISE LUCCHI-McCLOUD, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Sheryl Fall and Catherine Stone, both unsuccessful candidates for seats on the Board of Education in the Borough of Fairview (board), submitted a written request to the Commissioner of Education (Commissioner) dated April 9, 1992, requesting an inquiry into alleged violations of the annual school election held on April 7, 1992, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:14-63.

The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on April 24, 1992, for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. The matter was set down for a hearing on September 9, 1992, however, due to a death in the family of the petitioners' attorney, that date was adjourned. The hearing did take place on September 15, 1992, at the South Hackensack Municipal Building, 227 Philips Avenue, South Hackensack, New Jersey.

The hearing record was left open for posthearing submission by the parties. That date was originally to be sometime in the latter portion of October 1992. The parties requested transcripts of the proceedings in order to prepare posthearing submissions. Due, however, to difficulty in obtaining the transcripts, the parties were delayed in producing their posthearing submissions. After repeated attempts to determine a date upon which posthearing submissions would be submitted, attorneys for both sides finally received the transcripts and posthearing submissions were prepared, the last of which was received by mail on February 1, 1993. That is the date the record closed in this case. All requests for extensions of time to file and for extensions of time to leave the record open were made by counsel as joint applications and were granted for good cause.

At the time of the hearing, both cases were consolidated due to the fact that they arose out of one single letter submitted and signed by both petitioners. That letter, however, was sent to the Department of Education twice, thereby generating two different cases. All of these allegations contained within the letter apply equally to both petitioners, and both petitioners asked that the case be heard as one case. That request was granted, and the matters were consolidated.

Also prior to the onset of the hearing, the attorney for the petitioners indicated that he was requesting solely and exclusively a procedural inquiry regarding the appointment of challengers and the dissemination of information regarding the election. He conceded that even if sustained, the allegations which were being brought forth as to election irregularities in the town of Fairview would not require invalidation of the school board election since they would not be sufficient to have changed the outcome or be sufficient enough to be considered a thwarting of the will of the people.

Also, certain paragraphs in the initial petition were withdrawn by the petitioners prior to the start of the hearing. The second paragraph was one of those removed. It alleged that absentee voters were physically present at polling places attempting to vote in person, thereby casting votes. The other portion withdrawn alleged that the petitioners were denied access to the polling district except to vote.

These two paragraphs were stricken from the original petition and they constitute paragraphs two and four. The hearing began with respect to the other aspects alleged to have been infractions.

The attorney for petitioners indicated that the only procedural inquiry they were requesting was with respect to the procedure involved in appointing challengers during the school board election as well as the question of dissemination of information regarding the school election.

TESTIMONY

Pat Caufield testified during the time of the hearing. He was the board secretary and has been employed by the board for seven years. He is a tenured employee and he has never represented any other board. He has participated in seven annual school elections and no one exists to oversee him.

He stated that he familiar with state law in a general sense. He also stated that he knows some of what goes into the appointment of challengers.

The witness stated that he is usually present in the district and he also visits them during elections. He acknowledged that it is normal to appoint some challengers. He stated that this was the only election which had been contested in the seven years with which he is acquainted. He stated that he had a list of challengers submitted by Mr. Pizzichillo, who acted as campaign manager for some of the candidates. This document was received March 5, 1992. It has only the signature of Mr. Pizzichillo; it does not contain any addresses of the challengers. These challengers were for candidates Dolecki, Kahn, and Talamini. Nine challengers were appointed in all.

No other documents were submitted on the appointment of any challengers, and no documents were received regarding challengers with the signatures of Dolecki, Kahn, or Talamini.

The secretary then typed up the badges for the challengers, and no other certification was obtained or produced regarding the challengers or how they are appointed. The witness was shown a copy of N.J.S.A. 18A:14-15, which deals with the appointment of challengers, as well as N.J.S.A. 18A:14-16, which deals with certification of appointment. In essence, the first provision indicates that challengers shall be appointed in writing, signed by the candidate, specifying the names and addresses of the challengers and the polling district for which they are severally appointed. It further states that this shall be filed with the secretary of the board of education not later than five days preceding the election. The second provision found in N.J.S.A. 18A:14-16 requires that the secretary of the board of education shall make a certificate of the appointment of the challengers and the polling district for which they are severally appointed, which shall be submitted by the challengers to the election officers of said respective district

The witness stated that he was not entirely familiar with these provisions. He acknowledged that he did not receive a document signed by the candidates appointing challengers and that he did not file a certification.

Testimony was also presented from Charles Stone, who is the husband of Catherine Stone, one of the petitioners. His wife was a candidate in the school election, and on April 7, 1992, he was at Day Street at the Anderson School polling place with his wife between 6:00 and 9:00 p.m. Sometime during that time frame, he was introduced to Frank Pizzichillo and also saw Mr. Caufield.

He stated that there was a conversation between his wife and Mr. Caufield regarding the procedures and that the discussion included an inquiry regarding a package of electoral materials which his wife had not received; she asked Mr. Caufield about the reason for this. According to the witness, Mr. Caufield responded that "he forgot."

On cross-examination, the witness acknowledged that he helped his wife distribute flyers and gave her moral support in the election. He never delivered or received absentee ballots.

He does not know who else was present during the conversation that he described, although he said there was a policeman he did not recognize. Mr. Stone stated that there were a number of people "hanging out" in the area where the conversation took place. The witness was unable to recall what Mr. Caufield was wearing. He believes that his wife started the conversation, but he is not certain.

The witness testified that his wife first realized three or four days to one week prior to the election that she did not receive a package of materials. This was based upon what his wife told him. She never informed him of how she determined that she had not received some form of information which should have been sent.

Sheryl Fall and Karen Foglio were other candidates who were running with his wife. The witness does not know if the other two individuals received their package of materials. The witness also did not know if his wife ever complained or made a request for the materials prior to the day of the election.

The witness acknowledged writing a May 5, 1992 letter addressed to the undersigned detailing his conversations on April 7, 1992, and having it notarized. He acknowledged that it was typed by his wife, but that he did read the letter before signing it. According to him, his wife thought that the incident discussed was important. He acknowledged that if his wife asked him to do something, he would in fact do it. He indicated that he came to this tribunal at the request of his wife.

Catherine Stone, one of the petitioners in this matter, also testified during the hearing. This is the first time that she ran for office at the school board, she was unsuccessful. She acknowledged receiving a document regarding ballot position date on February 14, 1992 (J-1c). She did appear on that date, although not all candidates were there. Mr. Caufield was present. She stated that no other documents were attached to the document which she received. She also indicated that no documents were given out on February 14, 1992.

The witness acknowledged receiving a document which indicated that it was a calendar of dates regarding the upcoming school election (J-1h). She stated that it was received in the mail with a number of other documents, along with a booklet, in a manila envelope.

She also acknowledged receiving a memo dated January 19, 1992, in a package along with a booklet. (J-1f). There was a document on financial and ethical considerations, and the school election dates were on another document.

The witness stated that she did not recall receiving anything else. She did not recall ever receiving anything regarding the appointment of challengers; she did not know about the function of challengers. She did not know what, if anything, other candidates received. She became aware of that on the day of the election from Ms. Fall, her copetitioner, as well as from the county superintendent's office. She attempted to act as a challenger at one of the schools; however, someone told her that she had to leave, and she was told to call Karen Foglio. She then moved to the Lincoln School and developed another problem trying to enter. While at the Lincoln School, she and her husband were outside, and she introduced him to Frank Pizzichillo. Mrs. Stone stated that she was told that the laws had to be enforced. She told Mr. Pizzichillo that they did not receive a package of information, and he told her that she should speak with Mr. Caulfield.

She spoke with Mr. Caufield and asked why she had not received the information. According to the witness, he responded that he forgot. No specifics of the package were discussed.

The witness did acknowledge that she received documents on financial disclosure and one on ethics as well as other documents. She stated, however, that as of April 7, 1992, she was unfamiliar with election laws, and the information that she had was from the county superintendent's office.

Mrs. Stone stated that her husband was incorrect when he testified that she knew about the information prior to the day of the election. She stated that it was not until that day that she was aware that there was information she had not received.

Sheryl Fall, also a petitioner, testified. She, too, was a candidate for the board of education in the election of April 7, 1992. She stated that she did receive a number of items which have been marked R-1a through R-1d prior to April 7, 1992. These were all received by her at home in the mail. She also received J-1i, which was a calendar, in the mail in the same package containing the other materials. She did not recall getting anything else. She also did not recall anything regarding challengers. She did have a conversation with the county superintendent's office.

The witness was later told that she was not allowed in the polling places because papers for her to be a challenger had not been filed. She did not know the procedure. Other than for voting, she had never attempted to enter polling districts.

The witness was not present during the conversation between Mrs. Stone and either Mr. Pizzichillo or Mr. Caufield. Also, the witness does recall having received a document along with others which has been marked J-1i, which states on page four that Thursday April 2, 1992, was the last day for candidates to file for appointment of challengers and alternates with the secretary of the board of education. She stated that she did not know if any of the other individuals received this.

This testimony concluded the petitioner's case.

It should also be noted that at the time the two paragraphs were withdrawn from the original complaint, the petitioners also withdrew all allegations of impropriety against Frank Pizzichillo in his personal capacity. As a result, those are also no longer under consideration.

The respondent began its case by calling Frank Pizzichillo. He has been a school teacher for thirty years with the Fairview Board of Education. He has been on the board of education for twenty of those years and has run seven times. He also acted as campaign manager for Kahn, Dolecki, and Talamini, who were opposing Mr. Foglio and petitioners Stone and Fall. He indicated that he was not a candidate in this particular election. The witness stated that he sends out a calendar of things that candidate need to do. This was also done before his tenure with the board of education.

On the day of the election, the witness was at the Lincoln School handing out campaign cards. He was introduced by Mrs. Stone to Mr. Stone at approximately 7:00 or 8:00 p.m, and the three of them spoke. The witness had never met Mr. Stone prior to the conversation on that date. There was a large group of people near them. They spoke about one of the Stones' children who apparently had arthritis. The witness remembers what he referred to as mild "chit chat."

The witness stated that Mr. Caufield was not present and that he never saw the Stones speaking with Mr. Caufield; he only saw Mr. Caufield inside the building.

Although the witness and Mr. Caufield did not run together in the school board elections, he characterized them as being "on the same team."

The witness maintained that he never discussed legality with Mrs. Stone and her being present at a polling district, and he does not recall what information beyond the calendar in the packet which was discussed that he received prior to the election.

Patrick Caufield was then recalled. He testified that he made two mailings, one for ballot position, which included items R-1a through d, and a second mailing which was general, including J-1i. He said that those mailings went to all candidates. He physically mailed them and only one came back as undeliverable, which was the one addressed to Mr. Kahn. None of the other packets was returned. He stated that he sent the same information to all of the candidates.

According to Mr. Caufield, neither Mrs. Stone nor Ms. Fall ever requested other information from him. They did not request to have challengers present on election day. He was located in his office that night and denied ever having said that he forgot to send out any information. He denied having had any conversation with them.

The witness testified that J-1i went out to all candidates. This was the calendar that mentioned the deadline for the appointment of challengers. No form was sent for the specific purpose of appointing challengers along with the calendar.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Based upon the evidence adduced at the hearing, including the testimony and documents in evidence, and having given fair weight thereto, I FIND the following facts in this matter.

Testimony regarding alleged violations of statutorily prescribed procedures dealt with several different areas.

The first paragraph that alleged a violation in the petition states that during the entire election process, board of education trustees consistently misused their powers. The board secretary failed to supply appropriate documentation and/or information to the opposing candidates regarding electoral procedures including N.J.S.A. 18A:14-14 re: appointment of challengers. The testimony on this particular area indicates that the board secretary sent packets of information, which all included the same information, to all candidates. One of the petitioners acknowledges having received the calendar, which specifies the last date for filing for appointment of challengers. Whether or not this was completely explained to the satisfaction of the petitioners is not at issue here. The question is whether or not the board secretary supplied appropriate documentation and/or information to all candidates regarding electoral procedures, including the School Election Law found in Title 18A I FIND as a matter of fact that information regarding the School Election Law was sent to all candidates personally by Pat Caufield, the board of education secretary.

Further allegations were made that the petitioners were not permitted into the polling districts to insure that improper electioneering, among other violations, would be kept in check,. This left the incumbent representatives, their challengers, and the incumbents themselves unsupervised. Therefore, when the tabulations from the machines were read, only the incumbent representatives were entitled to view and call the tallies. It is further alleged that this was found to be a violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:14-18 (powers). There has been no testimony that improper electioneering occurred in this case. No challengers were appointed for Mrs. Stone or Ms. Fall; that alone, however, does not indicate that improper electioneering or other violations took place at polling places during the election. It is impossible to jump to a conclusion that because petitioners did not have challengers present, improper or illegal activity must have occurred, absent some form of testimony that such actions did take place.

I further FIND that paragraphs two and four were withdrawn prior to the hearing.

The only violations that have become apparent as a result of this inquiry are a violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:14-15, involving the appointment of challengers. This states that challengers shall be appointed in writing, signed by the candidate, specifying the names and addresses of the challengers and the polling district for which they are severally appointed, which shall be filed with the secretary of the board of education not later than five days preceding the election. In this case, I FIND that although a list of challengers was supplied to the secretary of the board of education, it was not signed by the candidates involved and did not specify the names and addresses of the challengers who were being appointed.

I further FIND a violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:14-16, requiring certification of appointment. That provision states that the secretary of the board of education shall make a certificate of the appointment of the challengers and the polling districts for which they are severally appointed, which shall be submitted by the challengers to the election officers of said respective polling districts.

I FIND the above to be the operational facts in this case.

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

Having found that no evidence was produced at the inquiry to support petitioners' allegation that the board of education trustees consistently misused their powers and that the board secretary failed to supply appropriate documentation and/or information to the opposing candidates regarding electoral procedures, including N.J.S.A. 18A:14-15 (appointment of challengers), I CONCLUDE that said paragraph be and hereby is DISMISSED.

In finding insufficient evidence to show that there was improper electioneering or other violations as a result of incumbent representatives and their challengers being unsupervised at polling places as alleged in paragraph five of the petition I CONCLUDE that said paragraph be and hereby is DISMISSED.

I further CONCLUDE that paragraphs two and four were withdrawn by the attorney for the petitioner and are hereby DISMISSED.

While these paragraphs were the substance of the complaints for violations, it did become apparent that two violations of the School Election Law did in fact occur in this case. Those violations consisted of the violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:14-15 regarding the appointment of challengers who shall be appointed in writing, signed by the candidate, specifying the names and addresses of the challengers and the polling district for which they are severally appointed, which shall be filed with the secretary of the board of education no later than five days preceding the election. Clearly, this did not occur in this case.

The other violation which came forward during the inquiry was that of N.J.S.A. 18A:14-16, which involved certification of appointment. It states that the secretary of the board of education shall make a certificate of the appointment of the challengers and the polling districts for which they are severally appointed, which shall be submitted by the challengers to the election officers of said respective polling districts.

It is clear from the testimony of Mr. Caufield that he was unacquainted with the specifics of these two provisions and did not comply with them. However, while there is no question that there are irregularities, I CONCLUDE that they are insufficient proof to sustain the petitioner's allegations of election irregularities pursuant to the complaint.

I FIND and CONCLUDE, as did the Commissioner in In the Matter of the Annual School Election Held in the Township of Pittsgrove, Salem County, 1976 S.L.D. 585 at 589, that:

> The Commissioner concludes that, taken as a whole, the testimony falls far short of that needed to invalidate an election. It is well established that elections are to be given effect whenever possible and are not to be set aside unless it can be shown that the will of the people was thwarted, was not properly expressed, or could not fully be determined.

The testimony in the instant matter does, indeed, fall far short of that needed to sustain petitioner's allegations that the violations would have been sufficient to invalidate the election. There is no evidence that the will of the people was thwarted by the outcome of the election. While there were several violations, those violations, as discussed, appear technical in nature. While they require immediate correction for all future elections, they are not sufficient to show that the will of the people was thwarted by the outcome of the election. Accordingly, petitioner has failed to demonstrate that the will of the people was thwarted, was not properly expressed, or could not fully be determined.

ORDER

Therefore, it is ORDERED that petitioner's complaint be and hereby is DISMISSED. It is further ORDERED that the will of the electorate must be given full effect.

I hereby FILE my Initial Decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 West State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

BEFORE MARYLOUISE LUCCHI-McCLOUD, ALJ:

PROCEDURAL HISTORY AND STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioners J.B. and his parents, Joseph B. and N.B., as guardians ad litem, appealed the determination by the respondent, Board of Education of the Township of Jefferson, denying J.B. admission into the Jefferson Township High School chapter of the National Honor Society. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on April 2, 1992, for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. The matter was given hearing dates of September 1 and 2, 1992.

It is undisputed that J.B. was denied entry into Jefferson Township Honor Society.

The record was originally to close on November 30, 1992 with the submission of posthearing memoranda by both sides. The time was extended until January 5, 1993 due to the fact that the parties wished to obtain transcripts of the proceedings. On that date the record closed. Subsequently an extension of the time to file the initial decision was obtained for good cause by the undersigned until April 5, 1993.

LEGAL STANDARD

In this case the burden rests on the petitioners to show by a preponderance of the credible evidence that the decision of the Jefferson Township High School's Honor Society committee was arbitrary and capricious and an abuse of discretion. It should be made clear from the outset that this case is not one of substituted judgment by the undersigned as to whether J.B. is an appropriate candidate.

UNDISPUTED FACTS

A number of the facts in this case are not in dispute. J.B. was in his junior year at Jefferson Township High School when he applied for membership in the National Honor Society (NHS).

The selection process includes the committee receiving a list of juniors and seniors with a 3.5 grade point average (GPA) or better. A ballot is then presented to each faculty member and they are asked to rate the individual students. Faculty members respond only to those individuals that they feel they are able to. In the 1991-1992 school year that is the subject of this litigation 100 students were on the list. A selection committee then takes the numbers which are submitted by the teachers and gives the individuals a rank. Fifty of the 100 were given letters to apply by way of resume. Of those 50, J.B. was ranked 35.

The selection commitee for NHS consists of five members who can vote either to give membership to an individual, to deny membership or are free to abstain should they feel the need to. The vote in this case was zero to five against membership in NHS for J.B.

The selection committee consists of five members appointed by Mr. Ross who is the principal. Myrna Speert is the advisor to the National Honor Society but not a voting member on the committee. She has also been the advisor for the math league and her role with the National Honor Society (NHS) as advisor has gone for approximately 10 years. Her role is to help students with activities and to facilitate the selection process for NHS. The other members on the committee for NHS included Sylvio Crespo, James Wynne, Randy Evans, Judy Van Dunk and Linda Weir.

These individuals evaluated those potential members for the NHS for the year in question.

As these facts are not in dispute, I FIND them to be operational facts in this case.

DISPUTED FACTS

This case arises essentially out of a dispute over two separate and distinct question.

The first one alleged is that the committee inappropriately or incorrectly weighed the activities which J.B. listed in making its determination not to extend membership in the NHS to him. The second contention is that there was a conflict of interest in existence which involved Linda Weir and the B. family which would, according to the petitioners, make it impossible for her to vote in a fair and impartial manner on his participation.

Lengthy testimony was taken regarding J.B.'s participation in sports as well as his achievements, character and service.

Joseph B. (petitioner J.B.'s father) testified that Mrs. Weir is the girls' varsity head coach. Mr. B. had been involved in school athletics and had experienced difficulties relating to both Mrs. Weir and her husband regarding the athletic program.

Mr. B. also indicated that he felt that it was unfair that he was not given specific reasons for the rejection in writing although he requested them by way of letter to Mr. Ross dated December 4, 1991.

On January 7, 1992 Mr. Ross appealed on behalf of his son to the board of education and present at this meeting were Mr. Ross, Ms. Healy an associate of Mr. Schachter's firm, as well as Mr. Schachter. Additionally Joseph B.'s wife was present with him.

During that meeting Mr. Ross informed them that Mrs. Weir's credentials were above approach and he did not find any conflict to exist. He also denied that Mrs. Weir had ever expressed reservations about her ability to vote with respect to J.B.

J.B. had particpated in an oratorical championship which involved six months of preparation both in and out of school. He was also named academic athlete in his sophomore year for wrestling and maintained a grade point average (GPA) of 4.62 and made first team all conference in that sport. He was also named academic athlete in his junior year which was 1992 in two sports, those being wrestling and soccer.

Mr. B. explained that practice for sports lasted somewhere between two and three hours every day for both soccer and wrestling except if it was the day of a game.

Joseph B. stated that he was disturbed by the rejection and completely dissatisfied by the reasons for it. He stated that he felt that the rejection was due somehow as a result of reprisals for his participation in the soccer committee. He had begun participation in the soccer committee in order to improve the girls' program. He was the head and it consisted of concerned parents as well as girls and other coaches and officials along with board of education members.

This committee was founded in October 1991. At that time he felt the present program in the school was not up to the level it should be. During this period of time Mrs. Weir was the soccer coach for the girls. Her husband was also the head wrestling coach for the boys who had stepped down in the fall of 1989 due at least in part to parental pressure. Joseph B. acknowledged that he had supported efforts to bring in a new coach other than Mr. Weir.

Mr. B. stated that he had never been advised of any problems with J. and has had only positive feedback regarding his son.

Mr. B. stated that he felt the decision was unfair for a number of reasons which he enumerated as follows:

1. He felt that his son's achievements were self-evident.

2. He was disturbed also by the process since three of the five people who voted had little or no experience with his son.

3. Mr. Wynne and Ms. Van Dunk cast negative votes but had no contact at all with J.B.

It is the impression of J.B.'s father that he has been the victim of "blackballing."

The witness did acknowledge that he neither met nor contacted Mrs. Weir but did feel that Mrs. Weir knows who he is and what organization he was with.

N.B. also testified during the hearing. She stated that when she learned of J.B.'s rejection from the NHS she was stunned. She had never previously been informed of any problems. Her son was involved with athletics which included soccer on the varsity team as well as varsity wrestling. He also participated in the math league and the biology league as well as student council in his freshman and sophomore years.

J.B. also acted as an assistant coach with the younger children in midget wrestling. He volunteered for the safe drive program run by students on Friday and Saturday nights and worked for the program prior to receiving his drivers license.

The witness stated that on the January 7, 1992 appeal to the board of education Mr. Ross the principal stated that Mrs. Weir had expressed some reservation about voting on J.B. although Mr. Ross indicated that he had full confidence in Mrs. Weir.

J.B., the student we have been discussing, also testified. He is 17 years of age and attends Jefferson Township High School. He was just entering his senior year. He had been handed an instruction sheet on how to be eligible for the NHS. He received no further instructions and he wrote down his in school activities and honor classes on the resume sheet that was provided. The information he received did not say anything about out of school activities.

J.B. stated that he had been a member of student council as well as PDP which is the peer development program. In that program juniors and seniors act as guidance counselors for other students. It also has a steering committee which makes initial selections of individual to join. Teachers then select the individuals to participate from that list.

J.B. also testified that he participated in the HOBY seminar as well as the state oratorical contest. He practiced for the state oratorical contest approximately two hours per day between September 1991 and April 1992.

In addition to those activities he played soccer which require practice from two to three hours every day and also participated in wrestling whose practices also ran from two to three hours every day. He also was involved in wrestling outside the school and this had a time constraint of approximately two hours on two to three other days.

The witness described that he participated in safe ride in his junior year on Friday and Saturday nights.

After a period of time had passed a ditto was posted with the names of those individuals selected.

After observing the posting he spoke with the principal, Mr. Ross, who said that he had been observed talking to his girlfriend during a PDP meeting and that he also had displayed problems with other team mates. He was however informed that he could appeal the decision.

J.B. did appeal to Mr. Ross, Mrs. Speert and Mrs. Togno. On January 7, 1992 the appeal went to the full board of education.

J.B. indicated that he participates in classroom discussions and also volunteers for committees. He stated that he was aware of his father's active role in upgrading the girls' soccer program and that previously he had also been involved in trying to upgrade the boys' varsity wrestling. J.B. indicated that the individuals on the committee were Mrs. Weir, Mr. Evans, Ms. Van Dunk, Mr. Crespo and Mr. Wynne. Mr. Crespo was advisor to the student council and was also involved in PDP. Mr. Evans was the advisor on safe ride but not while J.B. was there, as a result there was no interaction between them.

J.B. stated he had no involvement with Ms. Van Dunk nor Ms. Wynne. He did know Mrs. Weir who had taught him freshman gym and health.

He stated that he spoke with Mr. Ross after the appeal had been denied and was told that he should learn from the experience and try again next year at which time Mr. Ross gave him the two reasons listed above.

J.B. felt that the decision was unfair and he did not know how three teachers, (specifically Van Dunk, Wynne, and Evans) could vote against him since they had no involvement with him.

J.B. acknowledged that when he had Mrs. Weir for a teacher she had given him A's in every marking period. While he was involved with student council he had never been an officer.

That testimony concluded the petitioner's case.

The respondent began its case with the testimony of Myrna Speert. She is a math teacher at the high school but is also advisor to the National Honor Society (NHS) as well as the math league. She has been the NHS advisor for approximately ten years and her role is to help the students with activities and facilitate the selection process for NHS. The witness described at great length the selection process which begins in September when they receive a list of juniors and seniors with a GPA of 3.5 or better. A ballot is presented to each of the faculty members and they are asked to rate the students. Faculty members respond only to those that they feel they are able to. In the year in question 100 students were on the list and by taking the numbers assigned to them they were then ranked. Fifty of the 100 were given letters to apply and submit a resume and J.B. fell at number 35.

The five faculty members and a witness meet one afternoon for lengthy discussions and have packets regarding the applicants. The members are picked for their knowledge of the school as well as the activities in which they are involved. A discussion ensues and then a vote on the student occurs. It is necessary for the student to receive three out of five votes by the committee. It should be noted that Ms. Speert acts only as the advisor and does not vote on these occasions.

When individual students are not known by certain faculty members they use the information given to them by other faculty members in order to arrive at a decision. In this case J.B. was known to three members of the committee although Mrs. Speert does not know J.B.

Mrs. Speert is also a part of the appeal committee.

The witness stated she recalled nothing being discussed with her about any potential conflict of interest. She also pointed out that any member who felt that a potential conflict might exist was free to abstain from the vote. In the case of J.B. the vote was zero to five against admission. No mention of conflict was made.

Subsequently a meeting was called for an appeal and a vote was taken. On the appeal the vote was zero to three against admission.

Mrs. Speert said that she was asked about the math league but was unable to identify J.B. as being a participant. Mr. Crespo, Mr. Evans and Mrs. Weir knew J.B.

She stated that Mr. Crespo indicated he knew that J.B. was on the student coucil as an advisor and was active in science. He mentioned that he did not recall J.B. participating in any committees or in the biology league. He was also not aware of J.B.'s involvement in planning for the blood bank which was not yet functional.

Mrs. Speert recalls that there was discussion about J.B. being involved in soccer and also his participation in the oratorical contest.

Out of the 50 students who ultimately sent in resumes 23 members were inducted into the NHS. The areas that they looked at were character, leadership and service combined with the student's total GPA. This then gave them a tabulated rank. She stated that Mr. Evans knew J.B. from the peer development program PDP and the safe ride program. He had recalled that J.B. had participated at least one evening. He also mentioned that J.B. attended PDP meetings.

The witness stated that Mrs. Weir did not discuss knowledge of J.B. although she did respond to a question as to whether or not he was a captain or a co-captain of an athletic team. According to her Mrs. Weir and Ms. Van Dunk had no specific input with respect to J.B. during the process.

The witness explained that the math league consists of six competitive exams yearly the results of which are then used for the high schools to compete with one another. Those tests are given at 2:15 in the afternoon.

She also described the biology league as being somewhat similar to the math league in the fact that it was competitive and involved exams being taken. She stated that she believed J.B. took one math league test.

With respect to student council it meets during the school day and the individual would have to miss a class or other period in order to attend.

Mrs. Speert stated that the committee rates an individual if as few as three teachers respond or as many as 25 do so in order to obtain the teacher ranking. The responses given by the faculty members are anonymous. The original 100 candidates are known to the faculty in advance however the final 50 were not.

The witness stated that Mr. Crespo indicated he had no knowledge of J.B. participating in the biology league.

Mrs. Speert also related that information had been brought forward by Mr. Evans stating that J.B. was at a PDP meeting however he was not involved in the discussion but was in fact talking to someone else. He had not been invited to the PDP planning group.

Ms. Speert also explained concern over the fact that J.B.'s rank was approximately 35 out of the total 50 possible candidates. She indicated some concern that the resume might have been somehow inflated and gave the example of science. She was also concerned about a line at the end which indicated "soon to be" blood bank.

The witness once again reiterated that Mrs. Weir never expressed any reservations about her ability to vote in a fair and impartial manner.

The principal of the high school, Robert J. Ross, also testified. In addition to his other job responsibilities as principal he is responsible for the NHS. This includes choosing advisors and the selection committee as well as setting up the process for appeals. It is his obligation to publish the rules and see to it that the procedure is followed. He stated that he picks an advisor by choosing a person with an interest in academics such as Mrs. Speert who has held that position for 10 years. The committee itself changes from year to year. The committee members are chosen for their expertise in a variety of areas. Someone was chosen in the field of athletics and that was Mrs. Weir. With respect to the area of music, PDP and safe ride Mr. Evans was chosen. Mr. Crespo served as the student council advisor.

Mr. Ross stated that he has no input on the selection of the individual students unless and until there is an appeal. If the individual is not selected they have one week in which to write a letter of appeal. If an appeal is filed Mr. Ross, Mrs. Speert and Mr. Togno listens to the original five committee members and then vote on whether or not the candidate should be granted admission. He did acknowledge that there have been successful appeals filed.

In this case J.B. did appeal. The witness spoke with the father who asked who the individuals were on the committee. During this conversation J.B.'s father said that Mrs. Weir should not have been permitted on the committee. Mr. Ross however reinterated that he has confidence in Mrs. Weir. Mr. Ross also spoke with Mrs. Speert and asked if Mrs. Weir had influenced the committee in any way either for or against J.B.'s admission to the NHS. He stated that her reply was that Mrs. Weir had said little if nothing.

After the appeal process had been exhausted he received a letter asking for specifics from Joseph B. He did not supply that information to Mr. B.

He later called in J.B. after he had been unsuccessful and Mr. Togno was also present. They told him that his academic record was very good however he needed bolstering in service and leadership.

Mr. Ross stated he received another letter from Joseph B. asking for specific reasons for denial. Mr. Ross answered the letter without specifics. Subsequent to this Mr. B. came in and did talk to him regarding the question of depth of service at which time Mr. Ross related the PDP incident which he had observed with J.B. speaking to another individual.

On January 7, 1992 an appeal was made to the full board of education.

According to the witness Mrs. Weir never expressed any reservations at all about voting in the matter.

Mr. Ross acknowledged that Mr. B.'s participation in the parents group to upgrade soccer was common knowledge. In 1989 Mr. Weir was involved with a parents group regarding the wrestling team although the witness did not recall whether or not Mr. B. was the organizer. Subsequent to this Mr. Weir who had been the wrestling coach stepped down for several reasons.

The witness admitted there is no question about J.B.'s involvement in soccer and wrestling as well as the oratorical contest.

Mr. Weir has now returned to coaching and coaches two different sports. According to the witness the wrestling committee does not recall Joseph B. as being the leader of that committee.

The witness stated that on the July 7, 1992 board of education meeting regarding the appeal he did not say anything about Mrs. Weir approaching him about making any statement at all about whether or not whether or not she should vote.

Randolph Evans also testified at the time of the hearing. He is a guidance counselor at the school and is the advisor for the safe ride as well as PDP and a program called "Each One, Reach One" and also teaches adaptive physical education. He too was a member of the selection committee.

He stated that first he looked at the resume and then looked at the courses written down. Each individual who has reached this point has already passed the scholarship question and as a result he would cross out anything which dealt with scholarship alone. He stated he would then go back through the resume and look for areas that dealt with service.

He acknowledged that there is no doubt about J.B.'s participation in soccer or wrestling. Instead he would circle safe ride, PDP, HOBY seminar and Spanish honor society. He stated that he would look for leadership in these items.

With respect to safe ride he stated that J.B. had signed up for one night and as a result he gave him neither a plus nor a minus for that category. In PDP he spoke about a meeting in which J.B. arrived late and spent his time speaking with another individual and not paying attention. This was the first meeting in which he had participated and as a result the witness gave him neither a plus nor a minus for that particular aspect.

Mr. Crespo also spoke of student council and indicated that J.B. was involved but not to a significant extent. He also stated that he would put HOBY more in a scholarship category. He did however, give him a plus with respect to HOBY participation and the state oratorical competition. As a result he gave J.B. a minus in the category of service a minus in the category of leadership and a plus in the category of scholarship. He did not go further than that into the question of character. As a result of the foregoing he voted no for admission.

Mr. Crespo also stated that he did not feel that J.B. participated to the extent should have with the bio league. He also asked Mrs. Speert with respect to the math league and asked Mrs. Weir whether or not J.B. was a captain or co-captain of any sport team. Mrs. Weir did not volunteer any information other than a response to the question she was asked.

The witness indicated that one of the things to which he would look with respect to leadership was whether or not J.B. was a captain. He was not. The witness did acknowledge that there is a significant amount of time involved in both soccer and wresting making it impossible to participate in many other activities

The witness knew what HOBY was however he did not know specifically what a HOBY seminar was. He acknowledged that there is a leadership component to HOBY and as a result gave it, as he put it "a small plus." The witness also stated that he gave J.B. a neutral for participation in PDP due to the fact that he had been able to attend only one meeting before the NHS committee began. The meeting began at 4:00 p.m. and J.B. was late although the witness acknowledged it was probably due to some form of athletic practice. The meeting itself goes until 10:00 p.m. This was a training sesssion on what to look for when meeting with eighth graders. He noted that J.B. was talking a good deal of the time during the meeting. Mr. Ross, and Mr. Crespo were also present at the time.

The witness give J.B. a minus for biology league since Mr. Crespo indicated his participation was insufficient. He also received information from Mr. Crespo that J.B.'s participation in student council was also not sufficiently satisfactory.

Linda Weir also testified during the hearing. She has been a teacher at the school for nine years and has also acted as a coach. She has taught health as well as physical education and been involved in the girls soccer on a varsity level as well as cheerleading. Soccer extends from August through November each season. In the winter months from December through March she is involved in cheerleading. She was selected as a committee member for NHS by Mr. Ross.

She stated that she knows J.B. because he was a student in her health and physical education class and that he received A's in both of her classes.

The witness stated that she did not know Joseph B. and had never met him nor spoken with him. She testified that she did not feel that there was a conflict in voting upon the potential entry into the NHS for J.B.

She did acknowledge that she knew there was a group of parents who were involved in the coaching question. Mr. Knowles had told her this however no names were mentioned and she was not aware that Joseph B. was on the committee at the time the NHS committee met.

In 1987 and 1988 her husband had been coaching wrestling. She did know that there was a parents' committee but she does not recall Mr. B.'s name with regard to that.

She described the system for choosing students for NHS which included being given a sheet with class rank based upon teacher rankings. She stated that she then looks at the resume. Mrs. Weir stated that she was asked by one of the individuals of J.B. was a captain and she responded that she did not think so.

She was interested in both math and bio league since they involved after school tests. She asked Mr. Crespo if J.B. had continued but was told he had taken only one test. Mrs. Speert stated that she did not know of him even though he listed math league. The information she received at the meeting was that although he participated in safe ride he had only worked on one particular night. She was also informed that with respect to PDP he was talking while the meeting was going on. She however was more concerned that he was not active in the planning phases. She also did not count the blood bank since his resume listed "soon to be" which showed that he was not involved in the planning phase for the blood bank.

According to the witness she looks for leadership in captains of sport teams as well as chairman of committees and looks for anything else that shows the person is involved in planning of activities. She stated that she found this aspect lacking in J.B. She also indicated that she looks for continuity to see that the individuals improved and go more into depth in certain areas rather than changing those activities in which they are involved from year to year.

The witness acknowledged that J.B. certainly had the appropriate acacemics credentials. She also agreed that J.B. exhibited commitment when it came to both wrestling and soccer although she felt there was lack of follow through on the biology league.

James Wynne also testified during the hearing. He teaches vocal and electronic music at the high school. He has been there for 11 years although this is his twentieth year as a teacher. He has served on the NHS committee although he does not know J.B. He stated that he uses what is in "black and white" as well as what is said and uses the teacher rank and resume in making his decision. He explained that he would discount soccer and wrestling and that he would also discount honors since that goes into the academic portion.

According to him PDP starts in the junior year and it was too soon to tell whether or not that would be a positive factor. The same holds true for safe ride.

The witness did acknowledge that both HOBY and the oratorical award stood out in his mind as positive things.

The only thing he recalls Mrs. Weir as having said was that J.B. was a member of sport teams.

The witness did not consider abstaining because he did not know J.B. Instead he had all the information available to him in order to make a decision.

He acknowledged that he was aware of the depth of commitment J.B. had made to both wrestling and soccer.

Silvio Crespo also testified during the hearing. He has been a teacher of science for 26 years and has been an advisor to the student council for 20 years. He also serves as an advisor to PDP and is on the NHS committee. He is acquainted with J.B.

The witness then went through the selection process as it occurs and then indicated that he reads the individual's biography to see how it fits into those categories that they are looking at. He stated that soccer and wrestling gave this candidate an excellent record in athletics so he received a plus for that. He negated any weight that might have been given to honors english, science or history as well as algebra since all those were academics and already taken into account. He did not count biology league competition because J.B. did not make many appearances. The same held true for math league. With respect to PDP, J.B. was in the organization but the witness found no depth of service or leadership with respect to that. He also weighed in the question of safe ride however, due to the fact that J.B. did not participate much, that did not weigh heavily in his mind. With respect to honors earth science, biology and Spanish, these were academic subjects and therefore already counted.

The witness stated with respect to the HOBY seminar he was in a "quandry" because he had a question over the word "seminar." He was unable to remember whether or not J.B. was their representative.

He also indicated that participation in the state oratorical contest and becoming a winner indicated good participation but did not show service and leadership to him.

He also discarded the portion of the resume that said "soon to be" blood bank.

As a result of these things the witness found that J.B.'s depth of service was not sufficient and he had not shown sufficient leadership.

When asked whether athletics were considered a service the witness stated that he did consider them to be a "low plus" in the service category. According to him service was the giving over of time and helping the school and the larger community. He was also aware that participation in sports requires a tremendous committment as the time and energy.

Elizabeth Fuselaier also testified during the hearing on behalf of the petitioner. She is an attorney employed by Mr. Schachter's office who represents the petitioner. She stated that she attended a board of education meeting in January 1992 with Mr. Schachter as well as Mr. and Mrs. B. and recalled a discussion regarding Mrs. Weir. According to her Mr. Ross stated that at some point Mrs. Weir had approached him and indicated she might have some bias and perhaps should not vote with respect to J.B.

J.B. was also recalled and he explained both the incident when he was talking during a PDP meeting and was late. According to him he was not disturbing anyone and no one said anything to him at the time.

He explained that with respect to biology league he had been contacted by Mrs. Hopper and while he said he would be interested in participating he had a conflict with wrestling and soccer. In all he stated that he took two tests. He did participate in the oratorical contest and had attended one Friday evening with respect to the safe ride program.

FINDINGS OF FACT

In addition to those undisputed facts listed above and having heard the testimony of the witness and having assessed their credibility I FIND the following to be fact:

1. J.B. applied for a membership in the NHS in 1992.

2. J.B. was denied entry into NHS after committee evaluation.

3. Originally 50 candidates were possible and the field was narrowed to 50 with J.B. remaining on spot 35 in that heirarchy. Of those 50 who were asked to submit resumes only 23 members were inducted into the NHS from that chapter that particular year.

4. It is without question that J.B.'s academic record qualified him for consideration for entry into the NHS.

5. Five members of the committee voted with respect to J.B.'s application and the total at the conclusion of the vote was zero to five against recommending membership for J.B.

6. An appeal was subsequently held at the request of J.B. and after a review of the materials that appeal proved to be unsuccessful by a vote of zero to three.

7. In addition to excellent academic credentials J.B. is involved in soccer as well as wresting which constitutes a major time infringement on J.B. leaving him little time to participate in many other activities in which he would either like to participate or feels it would be in his best interest to participate.

8. Of those five individuals, Mrs. Weir, Mr. Wynne, Mrs. Van Dunk, Mr. Evans and Mr. Crespo all voted unanimously not to extend invitation to join the local chapter of NHS to J.B.

9. Of the five individuals listed above Mr. Wynne and Mrs. Van Dunk had no prior involvement with J.B.

10. Although J.B.'s father has been involved in upgrading the sports programs at the school and may have experienced some difficulty with respect to Mr. Weir who is married to Mrs. Weir on the committee, there is no evidence that Mrs. Weir was unable to vote in a fair and impartial manner.

11. Even assuming, but not deciding, that Mrs. Weir had some kind of inner conflict which would make it difficult for her to vote on the matter, it is clear from the testimony that she did nothing either overtly or covertly to influence other members of the committee to vote against J.B. and his admission to the NHS. In fact the only indication of input from Mrs. Weir is that when asked whether or not J.B. was a captain of any particular sport team she indicated that he was not. Mere conjecture does not rise to the level of provable conflict.

Even assuming but not deciding that Mrs. Weir did in fact have a conflict, which she in no way used to influence others, she would still have been free to abstain. Had she abstained from the vote the outcome would remain the same and the vote would then stand at zero to four against admission in the NHS.

DISCUSSION

It is well established in school law decisions that the Commissioner has jurisdictional authority to determine disputes over admisisons to the National Honor Society. J.B.A. and A.M.A. v. Board of Education of the Borough of Bernardsville, 4 N.J.A.R., 136, 145. It must be noted however that the Commissioner has maintained in matters brought before him in this area that his review is limited. The Commissioner has not and will not intervene in a determination regarding Honor Society eligibility unless the local board's action has been shown to be arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. See, J.B.A. and A.M.A. v. Bernardsville Board of Education, 4 N.J.A.R. at 152 (". . . it is not [the Commissioner's] desire or intention to substitute his judgment for that of local board of education, administrators or teachers carrying out the responsibilities in the many selection processes in which they are continually engaged.")

It would perhaps, be best off to start with respondent's contention that the petitioners have no right to disclosure of the specific reasons supporting respondent's decision against selection to the NHS. Respondent's claim that this is contrary to the law and the guidelines set forth by the National Honor Society. While respondents argue that this does not fall into the right to know law it follows logically that while these are not kept as permanent records and any note taken during the discussions of the committee may be destroyed lost or disposed over time may not insulate the committee from having to come forward and indicate the reasons for their rejection should a hearing be requested before the Commissioner of Education. It is clear that under J.B.A. and A.M.A. v. Bernardsville Board of Education, 4 N.J.A.R. 136 reasons must be given indicating why an individual was turned down for admisison. While that case relied in large part on the language in a prior edition of the National Honor Society handbook some guidance can be found in the handbook presently being used published in 1987 which on page 36 states the following:

> Procedural Matters
> While students not selected for membership in the NHS are not legally entitled to any kind of formal hearing or other kind of due process, common courtesy would suggest that they be graciously received, along with their parents, and that the selection process be reexplained to them.
>
> This does not mean that the students or their parents have a right to see the evaluation sheets or other papers which may have been used by the faculty council in making their decisions or selection. In recent years, a number of parents have made such demands, and a few have claimed that a federal law, The Family Educational Rights and > Privacy Act of 1974 (FERPA), required school personnel to make such documents available to them.

>
> In our opinion this contention is without merit. FERPA does not require that most school records be available to parents (or to students themselves if they are over 18 years of age) but, in most cases, materials used by the faculty council are not, and should not be, school records as contemplated by the federal law. They are, rather, working papers of the teachers involved, unless and until they are made a permanent part of the student's personnel file or some other school file. If these papers are retained, however they may well become records in the terms of the law, and they not only become available to the parents upon demand but also cannot be destroyed if once requested by the parents.
>
> It should be noted incidently that even in absence of the applicability of FERPA, any papers in the possession of school personnel are subject to a demand for production in court should some kind of litigation be initiated to which they are relevant. (emphasis supplied)
> To avoid these problems, most faculty councils merely do not retain their working papers after they reach their decisions, preparing only a summary sheet listing those students who were considered, and those who were selected, showing in addition, perhaps, total scores of all students considered. In case of a protest, such a summary sheet can be reviewed by the principal and the part showing a particular student's score can even be shown to the parents in substantiation of the student's non-selection. Requests or demands that members of the faculty council should be presented for interrogation on how each member evaluated the complaining student, should be firmly but politely refused.

While there is much commendable to be said for not disclosing the reasons that go behind the decision-making process for entry into the NHS, the opposite theory must be looked at. Any individual who feels that they have been treated in a discriminatory manner or that the board has acted arbitrarily, capriciously or unjustly in their case would, without doubt, need information as to how the committee reached its decision in order to be able to determine whether or not that decision was based reasonably upon the evidence presented before it. It cannot be thought that the manner in which an agency or committee weighs and evaluates evidence and comes to a conclusion cannot at any time be reviewed to determine whether or not those actions were arbitrary, capricious or an abuse of discretion. To apply a blanket and absolute prohibition against looking at those reasons that went into the decision-making process would be tantamount to saying that any decision made by any committee on behalf of membership in the NHS would stand whether well reasoned in nature or the result of arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable exercises of discretion. Surely the principle of protection of deliberation is not meant to take away the ability of any reviewing body to see whether or not that action was reasonable or fell severely short of that goal. To never permit discussion of what went into the decision would mean that all decisions no matter how absurd, arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable would remain and would be entirely insulated from challenge. That certainly is not intended by the language used.

Having passed the question of whether or not that information should have come in in the first place and may be considered in making this decision we now turn to whether or not the decision itself was reasonble given the information available or whether it was somehow arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable.

Before beginning that discussion it is important to note that J.B. who appeared to testify is a fine young man with excellent academic credentials and a great dedication to sports in both soccer and wrestling. Those sports take a significant amount of his time and make it difficulty to participate in other activities. He has displayed both in the documentary evidence that was presented as well as by way of his demeanor during his testimony and the testimony itself that he is bright, articulate and an extremely capable young man. It must also be noted that the standard in this case is that the petitioner must prove by a preponderance of the credible evidence that the decision of the committee in denying J.B. membership into the NHS was arbitrary and capricious and an unreasonable exercise of discretion. It is not unfortunately a case of substituted judgment. Whether or not the undersigned would have chosen J.B. to participate in the National Honor Society has no bearing upon the outcome of this case.

The first question that must be addressed is whether or not there was a conflict of interest with respect to Mrs. Weir and her ability to vote on J.B.'s potential membership in the NHS. I have found above and do hereby reinterate that I do not find any conflict sufficient that Mrs. Weir would be unable to vote in this matter. Even assuming arguendo that Mrs. Weir should have abstained there is no indication from any of the witnesses that Mrs. Weir did or say anything in order to influence the other members of the committee to vote in a manner adverse to the petitioner. As a result of this, even excluding Mrs. Weir's vote, and treating it as though she had abstained, the vote would remain zero to four against admission into the NHS for J.B.

Additionally petitioners argue that because two of the five members of the committed were not personally acquainted with J.B., they were not in a position to vote upon whether or not he should be admitted. I FIND no merit in this contention since the vote is brought about by information received from questionnaires handed out to all faculty members which are then returned to the committee and those individuals who are acquainted with the petitioner have the opportunity to fill out the boxes next to the petitioner's name. Beyond this information is shared among the members of the committee regarding the individual such as whether or not he had been serving as a team captain or other things of that nature. The mere fact that two members did not have personal knowledge of a candidate does not invalidate the vote when they have received sufficient information upon which they may make a judgment. Parenthetically it should be pointed out that it would be almost impossible to have one committee with five people in which every single member of the committee would have personal knowledge of every single student applying for membership in the NHS. I therefore FIND no merit in the contention that due to the fact that two individuals had no knowledge of J.B. prior to the evaluation procedure the vote must be voided.

Subsequent to the initial committee decision the principal reviewed this matter and determined to uphold the decision of the faculty council. I agree with the determination of the principal. I FIND nothing invalid with the process itself in terms of its assessment of the character and service portions regarding the individual. Indeed, as stated by Judge LaVecchia in Hook v. Board of Ed. of the Borough of South Plainfield, 92 N.J.A.R. 2d 333, I am hard pressed to criticize a faculty council for soliciting additional information from teachers who may have had more contact with a student, in order to evaluate the somewhat subjective assessment of a student's character. It is difficult to image that a five-member faculty council in any high school could, without reaching beyond its membership, be able to satisfactorily assess a student's character. See, Hook, supra, 333.

In this case the process was not done in bad faith, not did its result constitute an abuse of discretion.

All this having been said it must be pointed out once again that this is a student who shows great promise and has great things ahead of him. Nothing in this opinion is meant in any way to minimize those accomplishments which he has already achieved and he will no doubt continue to achieve and do well.

CONCLUSION

In conclusion, I am persuaded the by argument of the board that petitioners have failed to show that the actions of the board were arbitrary and capricious and an unreasonable exercise of their discretion and have further failed to state a claim upon which relief should be granted, and therefore the petition of appeal in this matter be and hereby is DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE my Initial Decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 West State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." RESPONDENT.	:

The record and initial decision rendered by the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Exceptions by petitioners were untimely filed pursuant to the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 and are, consequently, excluded from consideration herein, together with the reply thereto submitted by the Board.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record of this case, the Commissioner is in agreement with the findings and conclusions of the ALJ and adopts them as the final decision in this matter.

In reaching this determination, the Commissioner was fully mindful that in her review of this matter she could not substitute her own judgment as to whether J.B. was an appropriate candidate for membership in the Honor Society, but rather such review had to be confined to determining whether the decision of the committee denying J.B. Honor Society membership was arbitrary, capricious, or an unreasonable exercise of its discretion.

The Commissioner notes that from a pool of 50 qualified candidates only 23 were selected for Honor Society membership. This necessarily required that 27 students were rejected, which in no way diminishes the accomplishments and achievements of those individuals not selected, but rather suggests that the selection process utilized had to provide a methodology of distinguishing among an exceedingly qualified pool of applicants. The Commissioner further notes that there is no indication in the record that the process used to evaluate J.B. deviated in any respect from the process utilized to evaluate all the other candidates.

Accordingly, the Commissioner determines that the decision of the Jefferson Township High School's Honor Society Committee regarding J.B. was not arbitrary, capricious or an abuse of its discretion. Therefore, the within Petition of Appeal is dismissed for the reasons well set forth by the ALJ in her initial decision.

IN THE MATTER OF THE ANNUAL SCHOOL ELECTION HELD IN THE SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF CAMDEN, CAMDEN COUNTY.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

The announced results of the balloting for three members of the Board of Education for full terms of three years each at the annual school election held on April 20, 1993, in the school district of the City of Camden, Camden County, were as follows:

CANDIDATES	AT POLLS	ABSENTEE	TOTAL
Rev. Edwin Martinez	1,419	6	1,425
Jerrothia Riggs	1,322	10	1,332
Jose "Popsie" Rodriguez	957	4	961

Brenda Vallecilla-Gonzalez	794	7	801
B. Alicia Santos	606	4	610

Gilbert Shepherd	286	9	295

Pursuant to an April 21, 1993 letter request from Mr. William R. Bostic, Esq., on behalf of Gary McGahee, the Commissioner of Education directed an authorized representative to conduct a recount of the machine ballots cast. The recount was conducted on May 5, 1993 at the Voting Machine Warehouse, South Jersey Port Corporation, Camden. The absentee ballots were recounted by the Camden County Board of Elections also on May 5, 1993.

At the conclusion of the recount, the totals were as follows:

CANDIDATES	AT POLLS	ABSENTEE	PAPER BALLOTS	TOTAL
Rev. Edwin Martinez	1,421	6	9	1,436
Jerrothia Riggs	1,303	10	8	1,321
Jose "Popsie" Rodriguez	963	4	5	972
Gary McGahee AKA Casbah Salaam	955	0	8	963

B. Alicia Santos	620	4	4	628
Ernest Still	334	10	2	346
Gilbert Shepherd	285	9	2	296

Although there were some minor changes in totals, the names of the three winning candidates remain the same as those derived from the balloting of April 20, 1993. Therefore, it is recommended by the Commissioner's representative that the results as announced at the conclusion of the election remain unaltered.

This concludes the report of the Commissioner's representative.

The Commissioner has reviewed the report of her authorized representative and adopts it as her own.

Accordingly, the Commissioner finds and determines that Rev. Edwin Martinez, Jerrothia Riggs and Jose Rodriguez were elected to full terms of three years each on the Board of Education of the City of Camden at the annual school election held on April 20, 1993.

SYNOPSIS

Defeated candidate requested recount of votes cast for Board membership.

Following recount, Commissioner's representative found that after including 36 write-in votes for said defeated candidate, the recount resulted in a reversal of the announced results of the balloting held on April 20, 1993 with defeated candidate prevailing over the announced winner.

Commissioner set aside findings of her representative. Commissioner determined that pursuant to N.J.S.A. 19:49-5, the 36 write-in ballots must be voided as they were not cast in the appropriate place on the machine. Therefore, Commissioner found original results were sustained. Matter was ordered transmitted to Office of Administrative Law to supplement the record of the pending inquiry.

IN THE MATTER OF THE ANNUAL :
SCHOOL ELECTION HELD IN THE : COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE TOWNSHIP : DECISION OF EAST AMWELL, HUNTERDON COUNTY. :

The announced results of the balloting for three members of the Board of Education for full terms of three years each at the annual school election held April 20, 1993 in the school district of the Township of East Amwell, Hunterdon County, were as follows:

CANDIDATES - 3-YEAR TERM	AT POLLS	ABSENTEE	TOTAL
Judith DiGiandomenico	396	4	400
Gerard Tarabakia	393	3	396
James Mianecki	386	3	389
Darlys Maksymovich	36	0	36
John Russell	20	2	22
Jim Hall	17	0	17
Les Hamilton	1	0	1
Tom Weiss	1	0	1

The announced results of the balloting for one member of the Board of Education for a one-year unexpired term at the annual school election held April 20, 1993 in the school district of the Township of East Amwell, Hunterdon County, were as follows:

CANDIDATES - 1-YEAR TERM	AT POLLS	ABSENTEE	TOTAL
Claude Case	177	5	182
Jim Hall	178	0	178
Darlys Maksymovich	3	0	3
Ilona English	1	0	1
Hill	1	0	1

Pursuant to a letter request from Ed Pagan, Jr., Esquire for James M. Hall, defeated candidate, dated April 23, 1993, an authorized representative of the Commissioner of Education from the Office of the Hunterdon County Superintendent of Schools was directed to conduct a recount of the ballots cast. The recount was conducted on April 29, 1993 at the East Amwell Township School, Ringoes.

AS A RESULT OF RECOUNT

CANDIDATES - 3-YEAR TERM	AT POLLS	ABSENTEE	TOTAL
Judith DiGiandomenico	396	4	400
Gerard Tarabakia	393	3	396
James Mianecki	386	3	389
Darlys Maksymovich	37	0	37
John Russell	20	2	22
Jim Hall	17	0	17
Tom Weiss	1	0	1

CANDIDATES - 1-YEAR TERM	AT POLLS	ABSENTEE	TOTAL
Jim Hall	213	0	213
Claude Case	177	5	182
Darlys Maksymovich	4	0	4
Ilona English	1	0	1
Hill	1	0	1
CWR	1	0	1

Included in the above totals are 36 write-in votes for Jim Hall and 1 write-in vote for Darlys Maksymovich that appeared on Lines 6 and 7. All other votes appeared on write-in line 5. Although the machines had been programmed to lock out votes on lines 4, 6-12, some voters had managed to open those write-in slots. It must be noted that a voter could easily believe line 6 was appropriate since both write-in slots 5 and 6 are above the candidate's name that appeared on the ballot. The 33 votes on line 6 for write-in candidate Hall all came from one machine where the write-in slots all appear to be half above one ballot position and half above another.

In addition to the above, the following totals were cast on line 4.

Jim Hall	16
Darlys Maksymovich	3
John Russell	1
Kris Polhemus	1

These votes were not included since it was impossible to determine whether they should be applied to the three-year term or the one-year term.

Furthermore, Jim Hall also received 1 vote on line 13 and line 17. These were also not included since they were so far removed from the ballot lines used, it was impossible to determine whether they should be applied to the three-year term or the one-year term.

Additionally, all of the line 4, 13 and 17 votes, if included, do not materially affect the outcome.

Votes for the candidates on the ballot were voided. Each of the candidates appearing on the ballot for three-year terms received one vote. The candidate appearing on the ballot for the one-year term received 2 write-in votes.

This concludes the report of the Commissioner's representative.

* * * * *

The Commissioner has reviewed the report of her representative in this matter. Such report assigns to Jim Hall, a defeated candidate for a one-year seat on the East Amwell Board of Education, 36 write-in votes, resulting in a reversal of the announced results of the balloting held on April 20, 1993 for such seat on the Board in favor of Mr. Hall over Mr. Claude Case. The Commissioner cannot accept the report of her representative for the reason which follows.

N.J.S.A. 19:49-5 establishes that "[b]allots voted for any person whose name does not appear on the machine as a nominated candidate for office are herein referred to as irregular ballots.  An irregular ballot must be cast in its appropriate place on the machine, or it shall be void and not counted." See also, In the Matter of the Annual School Election Held in the School District of Shamong Township, Burlington County, 1986 S.L.D. 2438, 2446, 2453-54. Given that slot 5 was the appropriate slot, pursuant to N.J.S.A 19:49-5, for write-ins for the one-year term, only those votes recorded in slot 5 may be counted for write-in candidates.

Accordingly, the Commissioner rejects that conclusion found in her representative's report assigning 36 additional write-in votes to Jim Hall from lines 6 and 7. Consequently, the results of the voting in East Amwell stand as originally announced with respect to the one-year term. Accordingly, Claude Case was elected to said seat on the East Amwell Township Board of Education.

In so finding, the Commissioner notes that questions regarding how or where voters may have believed they were to cast write-in votes is more properly an issue to be addressed in the inquiry now pending in this matter before the Office of Administrative Law. As found in the Shamong, supra, matter, therefore:

> The record of this matter shall immediately be transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law where an inquiry is pending into the allegations . The purpose of this transmittal is to supplement the record of the inquiry and to permit any responsive statements made by those persons at the time of the recount, which are contained in the report of the Commissioner's representative, to be subject to further inquiry under oath; as deemed appropriate by the ALJ. This decision is binding upon the parties unless a contrary determination is rendered by the Commissioner upon receipt and review of the initial decision to be issued by the Office of Administrative Law. (Shamong, supra, at 2440)

IT IS SO ORDERED.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

The announced results of the balloting for the Proposals for the Board of Education at the annual school election held April 20, 1993 in the school district of the City of Passaic, Passaic County, were as follows:

PROPOSAL 1		PROPOSAL 2		PROPOSAL 3
YES	NO	YES	NO	YES	NO
1,133	330	1,104	525	1,100	539

Pursuant to a letter request from Henry Lee for the Passaic Board of Education dated April 28, 1993, an authorized representative of the Commissioner of Education from the Office of the Passaic County Superintendent of Schools was directed to conduct a recount of the machine ballots cast. The recount was conducted on May 3, 1993, at the Voting Machine Warehouse, Paterson.

At the conclusion of the recount, the ballots for the Proposals changed as follows:

PROPOSAL 1		PROPOSAL 2		PROPOSAL 3
YES	NO	YES	NO	YES	NO
1,288	381	1,088	569	1,095	542

This concludes the report of the Commissioner's representative.

* * * * *

The Commissioner has reviewed the report of her authorized representative and adopts as her own the findings set forth above. Accordingly, the Commissioner finds and determines that the Proposals for the school district of the City of Passaic were passed.

It is noted in the record that the request by the Board for recount was due to a report by the poll workers at districts 11A and 15 that no votes were cast for proposals #1 and #2.

IN THE MATTER OF THE ANNUAL SCHOOL ELECTION HELD IN THE TOWNSHIP OF RIDGEFIELD PARK, BERGEN COUNTY.	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION DECISION

MAY 24, 1993

IN THE MATTER OF THE ANNUAL SCHOOL ELECTION HELD IN THE TOWNSHIP OF RIDGEFIELD PARK, BERGEN COUNTY.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

The announced results of the balloting for six members of the Board of Education for three full terms of three years each were as follows:

CANDIDATES	AT POLLS	ABSENTEE	TOTAL
Joseph Picone	518	9	527
Raymond J. Dwyer, Jr.	454	7	461
Robert Thiemann	435	6	441
Mary Ann Foldi	376	15	391
Lorraine DiArchangel	289	20	309
Thomas A. Blumenthal	236	2	238

Pursuant to a letter of application from Lorraine DiArchangel dated April 21, 1993, the Commissioner of Education directed her representative from the office of the Bergen County Superintendent of Schools to conduct a recheck of the votes cast on the voting machines. This recheck was conducted on May 3, 1993, at the County Voting Machine Warehouse, Carlstadt.

At the conclusion of the recheck of the votes cast on the voting machines, the tally remained unchanged.

There was no request for a recount of the absentee ballots.

This concludes the report of the Commissioner's representative.

* * * * *

The Commissioner has reviewed the report of her authorized representative and adopts as her own the findings set forth above.

Accordingly, the Commissioner finds and determines that Joseph Picone, Raymond J. Dwyer, Jr. and Robert Thiemann were elected to full terms of three years each on the Board of Education of the School District of the Township of Ridgefield Park.

However, insofar as the recount in this matter was conducted upon an allegation that district 6 and 8 machines malfunctioned and because this allegation is the subject of an inquiry now before the Office of Administrative Law,

> [the] record of this matter shall immediately be transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law where an inquiry is pending. The purpose of this transmittal is to supplement the record of the inquiry and to permit any responsive statements made by those persons at the time of the recount, which are contained in the report of the Commissioner's representative, to be subject to further inquiry under oath as deemed appropriate by the ALJ. This decision is binding upon the parties unless a contrary determination is rendered by the Commissioner upon receipt and review of the initial decision to be issued by the Office of Administrative Law. (In the Matter of the Annual School Election Held in the School District of Shamong Township, 1986 S.L.D. 2438, 2440)

IT IS SO ORDERED.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning citizens alleged violation of Board policy in Board President's determination not to allow public comment at April 15, 1992 Board meeting. Petitioners sought declaration that actions of that Board meeting were null and void.

ALJ concluded Board did not violate either its own policy or applicable law when it determined not to permit public participation at April 15 meeting. ALJ found Board policy was to allow and encourage public participation at meetings but not to require it in all circumstances.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision.

BEFORE ROBERT S. MILLER, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

In this case, petitioners seek to have the Commissioner of the Department of Education determine and declare that all meetings of the respondent Board of Education shall be opened to the public, that the public must be allowed to participate in such meetings by being allowed to speak, and that all actions taken by the respondent Board of Education at its meeting of April 15, 1992, are null and void.

The petition in this case was filed on or about May 27, 1992. Respondent filed an answer on or about June 23, 1992. On July 14, 1992, the matter was filed in the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case, pursuant to the provisions of the New Jersey Administrative Procedure Act.

A prehearing conference was conducted by telephone on November 24, 1992. The parties agreed that there were two issues requiring resolution:

1. Was the meeting of April 15, 1992, conducted in violation of adopted and promulgated policies of respondent?

2. Was it arbitrary, unreasonable or capricious on the part of respondent, Board of Education, to deny public participation at the April 15, 1992, meeting?

On January 20, 1993, the parties filed a Joint Stipulation of Facts, and suggested that such stipulation obviated the need for an evidentiary hearing. Accordingly, the hearing scheduled for January 29, 1993, was adjourned. Briefs and reply briefs were subsequently filed.

During the course of another telephone conference, held on March 18, 1993, it was agreed that it would be unnecessary to decide the second issue set forth in the prehearing order and that the first issue would be modified to read as follows:

> Was the meeting of April 15, 1992, conducted in violation of adopted and promulgated policies of respondent and of applicable law?

Finally, counsel agreed that the record would be closed as of March 18, 1993, and that I would thereafter render a decision, without having conducted an evidentiary hearing, on the basis of the stipulated facts and applicable law.

As indicated, the essential facts in this matter are relatively simple and undisputed. As gleaned from the stipulation of facts, they are as follows:

FACTS

On April 14, 1992, the Board of Education ("Board") held its annual reorganization meeting. At that meeting, the Board readopted its Policy Manual in its entirety. Among the policies readopted was a policy entitled "Public Participation at Regular and Special Board Meetings." This policy reads as follows:

> All regular and special meetings of the Middlesex Board of Education are open to the public. All actions of the Board will be taken openly and the deliberations leading to Board action shall be likewise conducted openly. The public is invited to attend these Board meetings and will be given limited time to voice opinions or problems.
>
> The Board recognizes its responsibility to conduct the business of the district in an orderly and efficient manner and will, therefore, require reasonable controls to regulate public presentations to the Board. A person wishing to be heard by the Board shall first be recognized by the President who shall request the name and address of the speaker. The speaker shall proceed with comments as briefly as the subject permits. The President is responsible for the orderly conduct of the meeting and shall rule on such matters as the time to be allowed for public discussion, the appropriateness of the subject being presented and the suitability of the time for such a presentation. The Board as a whole shall have the final decision in determining the appropriateness of all such rulings.
>
> [Exhibit B attached to Joint Stipulation of Facts]

Also readopted at the April 14, 1992 meeting, was a policy captioned "Suspension of Policy." This reads as follows:

> The operation of any section or sections of Board policies not established by law or contracts may be temporarily suspended by a majority vote of Board members present at a regular or special meetings.
>
> [Exhibit C attached to Joint Stipulation of Facts]

On April 15, 1992, a special meeting of the Board was conducted. This meeting was duly advertised to members of the public. (Copies of the public notice and of the minutes of the April 15, 1992 meeting are attached to the Joint Stipulation of Facts as Exhibits D and E, respectively.)

At the April 15, 1992, meeting, it was announced by the Board through its President and the Board attorney that there would be no "public forum" that evening due to the extensiveness of the agenda. The "public forum" is an opportunity provided by the Board for members of the public to ask questions or to make comments regarding Board issues.

The minutes of the April 15, 1992 meeting reflect that no motion to "suspend policy" was made or voted upon by the Board prior to its decision not to conduct a "public forum" that evening. By entering into the stipulation, the Board in no way concedes that such a motion was required either by Board policy or by law.

As reflected by the minutes of meetings, on at least four dates in 1987 and 1988, a "public forum" was conducted during Board meetings, and on at least sixteen dates during 1987, 1988, 1989 and 1990, no "public forum" was conducted during Board meetings. (See Exhibits F and G attached to the Joint Stipulation of Facts.)

ISSUE AND ANALYSIS

As noted above, the issue in this case is whether the Board meeting of April 15, 1992, was conducted in violation of Board policies and of applicable law. For the reasons to be expressed hereafter, I am of the opinion that this question should be answered in the negative.

First, petitioners have cited no authority, statutory or case law, indicating that public participation at meetings of boards of education is required as a matter of law. On the contrary, the New Jersey Open Public Meetings Act (the "Sunshine Law"), N.J.S.A. 10:4-6 to -21, provides as follows:

> Except as provided by subsection b. of this section all meetings of public bodies shall be open to the public at all times. Nothing in this act shall be construed to limit the discretion of a public body to permit, prohibit or regulate the active participation of the public at any meeting.
> [N.J.S.A. 10:4-12a]

Furthermore, applicable case law, although predating the Sunshine Law, supports respondents' position that such participation is not required. See, Howard v. Jefferson Township Board of Education, 1967 S.L.D. 280, 282, and Moore v. Roselle Board of Education, 1973 S.L.D. 526, 534-535 ("The Commissioner has previously held that there is no requirement in law for such an opportunity for public participation in school board matters").

Additionally, our courts have attached a presumption of validity to local board of education actions, declaring that such actions should be upheld unless there is a showing that such board action is either arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. Thomas vs. Morris Township Board of Education, 89 N.J. Super. 327 (App. Div. 1965), aff'd 46 N.J. 581 (1966). There has been no showing whatever to this effect.

Petitioners' argument that the Board violated its own policy is based on the following sentence: "The public is invited to attend these Board meetings and will be given limited time to voice opinions or problems." (Exhibit B attached to Joint Stipulation of Facts) Petitioners emphasize the word "will" and argue that it should be read as mandatory. Respondents, on the other hand, point to other sections of the policy stating that the president of the Board is responsible for ruling on such matters as "the time to be allowed for public discussion, "and" the suitability of the time for such a presentation" (Ibid.) Respondents say that, read in context, the word "will" should be interpreted as permissive, not mandatory.

There was no direct evidence presented, either testimonial or otherwise, respecting the intention of the Board when it adopted the policy in question. Consequently, I must attempt to render an opinion on this question, which amounts to little more than guesswork, although informed by experience, common sense, and past practice.

In this regard, I must reject petitioners' argument because it would have the effect of putting the Board in a straitjacket. Although public input into the decision-making process is clearly desirable, there will inevitably be meetings when meaningful public participation is not practical because of the length of the agenda, the complexity of matters to be discussed, limitations of time, and other factors. It is not likely that the Board intended that the public must be allowed to participate under any and all conditions. This conclusion is buttressed, moreover, by the conceded fact that no "public forums," i.e., public participation, had occurred in at least sixteen Board meetings held during the preceding fifteen years. Such past practice is some evidence, although indirect, of Board intention. In short, I am of the opinion that the policy of the Board is to allow and to encourage public participation at meetings, but not to require it in all circumstances.

CONCLUSION AND ORDER

For the reasons expressed above, I CONCLUDE that the Board did not violate either its own policy or applicable law when it failed to permit public participation in the meeting of April 15, 1992, and, accordingly, that the petition filed herein should be DISMISSED. It is so ORDERED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 West State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Timely exceptions were filed by petitioners pursuant to the provisions of N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4, as were replies thereto by the Board.

In their exceptions, petitioners reiterate the major arguments of their filings before the ALJ, and note in addition their disagreement with the ALJ's use of prior minutes to infer a "past practice" with which he deems the Board's actions to be consistent, arguing that these meetings are distinguishable, either in form or content, from the meeting under dispute herein. Petitioners further note their disagreement with the ALJ's characterization of their position as "straightjacketing" the Board, claiming that the policy at issue, properly followed, still provides ample flexibility to the Board.

In reply, the Board notes that even if the Board had never conducted a meeting without a "public forum," it would still have been within its discretion to do so on April 15, 1992, both as a matter of law and under pertinent district policies; therefore, petitioners' objection to the ALJ's "past practice" inference is of no import. Even if it were, petitioners' attempt to distinguish past regular Board meetings where no public sessions were held must fail because it rests solely on what petitioners judge to be "important," in this case the nonrenewal of certain staff member(s) as opposed to budget approval, election schedule changes or development of bid specifications.

Upon careful review of the record of this matter, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that the Board meeting of April 15, 1992 was conducted fully in accord with law and applicable Board policy. In so holding, the Commissioner reiterates that boards of education have the lawful authority, and need the operating flexibility, to regulate public participation at board meetings. She further notes that the policy controlling herein does not on its face preclude a determination that under a particular set of circumstances, no public forum will be held, so that the absence of a Board motion to suspend policy on this particular occasion was neither procedurally necessary as a matter of routine operation nor warranted as a consequence of disagreement by other members of the Board as to the President's ruling. Nor is there any indication in the present record that this ruling was so arbitrary or unreasonable as to permit the Commissioner to substitute her judgment for that of the Board.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law dismissing the Petition of Appeal is affirmed for the reasons expressed therein.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

Record Closed: March 1, 1993 Decided: April 15, 1993

BEFORE M. KATHLEEN DUNCAN, ALJ:

These matters commenced on January 16, 1992, when Kathleen Connors-Ryan, a tenured teaching staff member in the Freehold Regional High School District, filed a petition with the Commissioner of Education seeking an Order compelling the Board of Education of the Freehold Regional High School District (hereinafter Board) to grant her request for an extension of her leave of absence in order to personally care for another child who suffered from febrile convulsions. On January 29, 1992, the Board filed an Answer to the Petition wherein it noted that Ms. Connors-Ryan had been granted a leave of absence from February 1990 through September 1991 for maternity and postnatal care reasons and defended its September 1991 decision to deny an additional leave of absence extension request to allow Ms. Connors-Ryan to care for an older child whom she alleged was ill. The Board also responded that it had in effect granted Ms. Connors-Ryan an additional leave from September 1991 through December 1991after Ms. Connors-Ryan asserted that she was entitled to an additional leave of absence without pay under the Family Leave Act, N.J.S.A. 34:11B-1 to 16. On May 18, 1992, this matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to 21 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to 13.

On January 31, 1992, in accordance with the Tenure Employees' Hearing Law, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 to 18.1, the Board certified to the Commissioner charges that Ms. Connors-Ryan had abandoned her teaching position and had been insubordinate when she refused to return to her position in December 1991, when instructed to do so by the Board. A response on behalf of Ms. Connors-Ryan was filed on April 13, 1992, and on May 15, 1992 the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case.

A prehearing conference was conducted on August 24, 1992, at which time the two matters were consolidated for hearing. Also at that time a schedule was established for submission and determination of a motion by the Board to dismiss the petition filed by Ms. Connors-Ryan for lack of jurisdiction. The motion papers and a response were filed as scheduled, and on December 2, 1992, the undersigned issued a Letter Order granting the Board's motion to dismiss all claims arising out of the Family Leave Act, N.J.S.A. 34:11B-1 to 16 and denying the motion to dismiss the remaining allegations of the petition. Thereafter on January 19, 1993, the first date scheduled for the hearing in these matters, the parties appeared before the undersigned to commence the hearing as scheduled. After several hours of discussion between the parties on that date, however, they advised that they had reached a settlement, the language and terms of which were read into the record as follows:

> The Freehold Regional High School District Board of Education and Kathleen Connors-Ryan hereby agree to the following terms:
>
> 1. Kathleen Connors-Ryan shall submit an irrevocable letter of resignation from her employment with the District, effective June 30, 1991.
>
> 2. The Freehold Regional High School District Board of Education shall provide to Kathleen Connors-Ryan a letter to prospective employers from Dr. Harvey Casey and Mr. Walter Zuber, which shall read as follows:
>
> "Dear :
>
> Please be advised that Mrs. Kathleen Connors-Ryan has been employed by this District from September, 1977 through June 30, 1991. During Ms. Connors-Ryan's employment she has consistently had positive evaluations in all social studies and psychology classes.
>
> Mrs. Connors-Ryan resigned from the District effective June 30, 1991.
>
> Sincerely,
>
> Harvey Casey
> Principal/Marlboro High School
>
> or
>
> Walter J. Zuber
> Assistant Superintendent/Personnel
>
> or
>
> Both."
>
> 3. The parties agree that the terms of this settlement shall not be publicized by the parties.
>
> 4. The Board agrees to withdraw with prejudice Docket # EDU 3621-92.

5. Kathleen Connors-Ryan agrees to withdraw with prejudice Docket # EDU 3656-92.

Ms. Connors-Ryan was then sworn and questioned concerning her voluntary acceptance of the terms of the agreement. In response to questions from the undersigned, she testified that she had heard the terms read into the record by counsel for the Board and that she agreed that what was read into the record were the terms to which the parties had agreed. She further testified that she felt she had had sufficient time to consider the matter and to discuss it with her attorneys, Mr. Barlow and Mr. Kielbowicz, who had represented her throughout these proceedings. She further indicated that she had been satisfied with her attorneys' services and that she had no questions about any of the terms of the agreement. Finally, Mr. Connors-Ryan testified that accepting the settlement terms had been a voluntary decision on her part and that no one had placed any undue pressure on her or had coerced her to enter into the agreement. The attorneys agreed to provide a signed, written document setting forth the terms which had been read into the record to be attached to the initial decision settlement. The Board ratified the agreement that evening. On February 16, 1993, however, the undersigned received a facsimile transmission from Ms. Connors-Ryan herself, forwarding a copy of the settlement agreement which she had signed on February 15, 1993, but on which she had changed the effective dates from June 30, 1991 to February 15, 1993. Her cover letter indicated that she had a problem with the June 30, 1991, date "since I was granted a leave by the Board and was not due back until September 2, 1991." She further indicated that she felt to make the resignation retroactive to June 1991 was extremely inappropriate and served no legitimate purpose. Thereafter, discussions by telephone conference call took place between counsel for both parties and the undersigned wherein the attorney for the Board indicated that he had no problem with changing the June 30, 1991 date to September 2, 1991, since in fact she had been on an officially approved leave until that date. The Board was unwilling to agree to the February 15, 1993, however, because in it's view such a date would, after the fact, provide Ms. Connors-Ryan with the approved leave to which she had alleged she was entitled and which the Board had denied. The agreement as executed by Ms. Connors-Ryan on February 15, 1993, is attached hereto and made a part hereof.

By letter dated February 25, 1993, counsel for Ms. Connors-Ryan advised that she now felt that she had been coerced into the settlement agreement and wished to have the settlement set aside.

By letter dated March 1, 1992, the undersigned advised the parties that the agreement placed upon the record on January 19, 1993, was a binding agreement, that the fact that the agreement was oral was relevant only to the paperwork necessary to closeout the file and that a signed written agreement usually provided by the parties was only a convenience and a courtesy to the judge so that he or she would not have to recite the terms. The letter further advised that the record would be considered closed as of March 1, 1993, and an initial decision would be issued.

Based upon all of the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that the present case is one which is appropriate for settlement pursuant to the principles annunciated in Cardonic v. Board of Education of the Borough of Brooklawn, EDU 7093-81, 7094-81, dec'd April 6, 1983 by the State Board of Education. The charges herein reveal no allegation of affirmative wrongdoing; although the word "insubordination" is used in the charges, the facts relevant to that charge are the same facts relevant to the allegation that Ms. Connors-Ryan abandoned her position, i.e., she failed to return to her position when the Board advised her that no further approved leave would be forthcoming. Although the Board disagreed that the circumstances set forth by Ms. Connors-Ryan warranted an additional extension of her leave of absence, at all times the Board was aware of Ms. Connors-Ryan's position and her reasons therefor, and, accordingly, the Board was able to arrange for long-term substitutes so that no disruption to educational continuity occurred. Ms. Connors-Ryan was on an approved leave of absence prior to the certification of the tenure charges and therefore, these proceedings involve no salary payments pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A;6-14. Although the decision is exclusively for the State Board of Examiners to make, the charges do not appear to be of the degree of seriousness as they would require action by the State Board of Examiners for revocation or suspension of respondent's certificate.

Furthermore, if the tenure charges were to be upheld following a hearing on the merits, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:66-36 Ms. Connors-Ryan would forfeit her rights to deferred retirement benefits based upon her fourteen years of creditable service. Although the Legislature has provided for absolute forfeiture of pension rights for those members removed for cause before they are eligible to actually receive retirement benefits, a voluntary resignation prior to removal for cause will permit Ms. Connors-Ryan to avoid the effect of the mandatory forfeiture provisions on her deferred retirement benefits. Widdis v. Retirement System, 238 N.J. Super. 70 (App. Div. 1990). Preservation of pension rights is a legitimate concern for the Commissioner when considering proceedings involving tenure charges. In re Fulcomer, 93 *N.J. Super.*404, 421 (App.Div. 1967).

For all these reasons, I CONCLUDE that the public interest does not require a plenary hearing to fully determine the issues in this case and I, therefore, recommend to the Commissioner of Education the approval of this settlement as an appropriate voluntary resolution of this matter entirely consistent with the law and philosophy expressed in Cardonic v. Board of Education of the Borough of Brooklawn, supra.

With respect to Ms. Connors-Ryan's allegations that the settlement agreement was coerced, I saw no evidence of that on January 19, 1993, and when she was specifically asked, under oath, whether anyone had coerced her or placed undue influence upon her to enter into the agreement, she had responded in the negative. A settlement agreement between parties to a law suit is a contract. Nolan v. Lee Ho, 120 N.J. 465, 472 (1990). The party seeking the extraordinary remedy of reopening a case or issues previously resolved by a voluntary settlement must demonstrate by clear and convincing proof that the agreement was the result of fraud, undue influence or duress, or mutual mistake as to a material fact. Other standard reasons for rescission of settlement agreements include substantial failure of consideration, nonperformance or breach or other such compelling circumstances. A settlement cannot be vacated because the party later determines that he or she had made a bad deal or because he finds the contract less profitable to him than he had anticipated when the contract was made. The cases cited by the Court in Nolan v. Lee Ho, supra, in tracing its approach to setting aside settlement agreements were all resolved against the parties seeking rescission. Each time the Court emphasized that the claimant had been represented by competent legal counsel, had been fully apprised of the settlement agreement's terms and had entered into the agreement knowingly and voluntarily. In the present matter there is no question that Ms. Connors-Ryan was represented throughout by competent, legal counsel; she testified under oath in response to a question from the undersigned that she had been satisfied with the services provided by her attorneys.

With respect to the "effective date" in the settlement agreement which is disputed by Ms. Connors-Ryan, she is in fact correct that she had been officially granted a leave of absence up to and including September 2, 1991. During a telephone conference call between counsel and the undersigned, the attorneys agreed that September 2, 1991, would be an appropriate effective date and indicated that the original agreement had used June 30, 1991, probably inadvertently.

Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that the terms of the settlement agreement which were read into the record on January 19, 1993, and which are quoted hereinabove are hereby MODIFIED to substitute September 2, 1991 for June 30, 1991, each time that date appears. It is further ORDERED that the parties are bound by the terms of their agreement as set forth in the stipulation of settlement quoted hereinabove and as modified by this order and these proceedings are hereby DISMISSED WITH PREJUDICE.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, part-time Spanish teacher who was on preferred eligibility list, alleged Board violated her tenure rights by hiring a nontenured teacher for a full-time Spanish position. Petitioner was subsequently restored to a part-time position.

ALJ concluded petitioner's tenure rights were violated. ALJ found petitioner acquired tenure on February 1, 1992. Board erred in failing to offer petitioner full-time position that arose prior to the part-time position. ALJ ordered Board to place petitioner in full-time position retroactive to September 1, 1992 with compensation.

Commissioner agreed with ALJ's legal analysis if petitioner were tenured. However, Commissioner remanded matter to OAL for further findings of fact and conclusions of law pertaining to petitioner's tenure status as such status is not clear from the record.

AIDA MUELLER,
Petitioner,
v.
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE HUNTERDON CENTRAL REGIONAL HIGH SCHOOL DISTRICT,
Respondent.

Stephen B. Hunter, Esq., for petitioner (Klausner, Hunter, Cige & Seid, attorneys)

James P. Granello, Esq., for respondent

Record Closed: March 3, 1993 Decided: April 14, 1993

BEFORE BRUCE R. CAMPBELL, ALJ:

Aida Mueller, petitioner, alleges the Hunterdon Central Regional High School Board of Education, respondent, violated her tenure rights when it hired a nontenured full-time Spanish teacher for the 1992-93 school year.

This matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education and transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 through -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 through -13. After notice, a prehearing conference was conducted by telephone and, among other things, it was agreed that all essential facts could be stipulated and that the matter could proceed on motion and cross-motion for summary judgment. A joint stipulation of facts and six exhibits were submitted and counsel then filed papers supporting their respective motions.

FACTUAL BACKGROUND

The parties submitted and I FIND as fact:

1. Petitioner Aida Mueller possesses Teacher of Spanish and Teacher of French endorsements on her instructional certificate.

2. The Hunterdon Central Regional High School Board of Education is responsible for all of the students within the Hunterdon Central Regional High School District of Hunterdon County.

3. Petitioner was first employed on a full-time basis by the Board for the period September 1, 1988 through January 30, 1989 as a replacement teacher for a teacher on maternity leave.

4. Effective February 1, 1989 Petitioner was employed by the Respondent Board of Education through June 30, 1989 on a full-time basis as a Teacher of Spanish. Petitioner filled a teaching vacancy during the period February 1, 1989 through June 30, 1989. She contends that she was not a "replacement teacher" during this period. The Board of Education assumes for the purpose of these motions for summary decision that this half-year period did count towards her tenure in the district.

5. Petitioner was employed during the 1989-90 school year as a two-fifths time Spanish Language Teacher within the Hunterdon Central Regional High School District. This employment was not on a replacement teacher/substitute basis.

6. Petitioner was employed during the period September 1, 1990 through June 30, 1991 as a four-fifths time Spanish Language Teacher by the Respondent Board of Education. Petitioner was not employed on a replacement teacher/substitute basis during this period of time.

7. Petitioner was employed for the period September 1, 1991 through June 30, 1992 as a four-fifths time Spanish Language Teacher by respondent Board of Education. Petitioner was not employed as a replacement teacher/substitute.

8. On or about April 28, 1992 Petitioner was advised that her contract would not be renewed for the 1992-93 school year. At the same time, the Board of Education advised Lynn Luster, a non-tenured Teacher of Spanish and the only non-tenured Teacher of Spanish at that time (assuming Petitioner's tenure), that she would not be renewed for the following school year. Ms. Luster holds certifications in Spanish and English. Petitioner had the least seniority of all the tenured Teachers of Spanish.

9. On May 21, 1992 the Board of Education posted a full-time Teacher of Foreign Language position to begin September 1, 1992. At that time, the Board of Education was seeking teachers with dual German and Spanish certification. (See Exhibit "A.")

10. The Petition of Appeal in the instant matter was filed with the Commissioner of Education on or about June 22, 1992 and received by the Board of Education on June 25, 1992.

11. Lynn Luster, a non-tenured teacher, was reappointed to a full-time position of Teacher of Foreign Language by motion of the Board of Education on June 23, 1992 for the 1992-93 school year to begin on September 1. 1992. Ms. Luster's assignment was a full-time Teacher of Spanish assignment. (See Exhibit "B.")

12. In a letter dated July 1, 1992 the Board of Education through its Superintendent of Schools, Raymond Farley, advised Petitioner that she would be recommended for "a part-time, tenured teaching position for the 1992-93 school year." Ms. Mueller was subsequently advised that she was employed on a three-fifths time basis for the 1992-93 school year as a Teacher of Spanish to begin on September 1, 1992. (See Exhibit "C.")

13. On July 15, 1992 the Board of Education posted a vacancy for a Foreign Language Teacher with dual certification in Spanish and German. (See Exhibit "D.")

14. Unable to find a candidate with German and Spanish certifications, on July 28, 1992 the Board of Education advertised for a full-time Spanish Teacher to be available September 1, 1992. (See Exhibit "E.") The Board of Education had authorized filling a vacant full-time Spanish teaching position within the district by Lynn Luster prior to the July 28, 1992 posting and prior to the time that the Board of Education appointed Petitioner to a three-fifths position for the 1992-93 school year.

15. At the September 21, 1992 Board of Education meeting the Board of Education moved the Petitioner to a position of four-fifths time Teacher of Spanish retroactive to September 1, 1992. Petitioner actually began working as a four-fifths time teacher on September 1, 1992. (See Exhibit "F.") As a result, Petitioner's continuing employment with the Board of Education and the level of compensation and benefits has not changed since she held a four-fifths position at the end of the 1991-92 school year.

16. In addition to Lynn Luster, two (2) additional non-tenured first year teachers were employed by the Board of Education to fill the full-time Teacher of Spanish positions within the district for the 1992-93 school year effective September 1, 1992 by action of the Board of Education taken on September 21, 1992. They were Mr. Robert Baca and Mr. Gregory Mantore. (See Exhibit "F.") Mr. Baca was offered a full-time Teacher of Spanish position by the Board of Education on or about July 31, 1992 and accepted said position on or about August 15, 1992. Mr. Mantore was offered a full-time Teacher of Spanish position by the Board of Education on or about August 10, 1992 and accepted said position on or about August 10, 1992.

PARTIES' ARGUMENTS

Respondent

The respondent Board assumes for the sake of this argument that the petitioner has acquired tenure in the District and that a non-tenured teacher was hired to fill the full-time vacancy posted in July 1992. Based on the facts stipulated above, petitioner claims she acquired tenure as of February 2, 1992 as a Spanish teacher and seeks full-time employment based on a vacancy for a full-time Spanish teacher on the basis of being notified in April 1992 that her position would be eliminated for the following school year. However, on September 22, 1992, the Board restored the petitioner to her 4/5-time Spanish teaching position retroactive to September 1. In effect, her employment as a ten-month teacher was not interrupted.

The Board relies on Gainer v. Wayne Bd. of Ed., OAL DKT. EDU 7545-90 (July 8, 1991), adopted, Comm'r of Ed. (Aug. 26, 1991). In Gainer, the petitioner was employed as a part-time supplemental teacher and acquired tenure. She was notified she would not be reemployed because of a reduction in force (RIF). She sought a full-time vacancy that occurred because of the untimely death of an English teacher. Gainer applied for consideration for the full-time position but the Board took no action on her request. Thereafter, the Board appointed Gainer to her part-time position before the opening of school. At the same meeting, the Board appointed a nontenured teacher to the vacant English teaching position.

In Gainer, the Board argued that Gainer's seniority rights were never triggered as she was reemployed in her part-time supplemental teaching position for the following school year. The Administrative Law Judge agreed that her seniority rights were never triggered because she was restored to her previous position at the start of the next school year. The Commissioner adopted the Administrative Law Judge's conclusions but found that a RIF did take place and that, in fact, Gainer was recalled as a part-time supplemental teacher. The Commissioner found Gainer was "saved harmless by virtue of such recall." Slip op. at 15. The Commissioner stated, "She may not lay claim to any other position when she has suffered no reduction in compensation, has had no reduction in duties, and has not been dismissed." Id.

The petitioner has also relied on Lichtman v. Ridgewood Bd. of Ed., 93 N.J. 362 (1983) to support the position that she is entitled to a full-time vacant position over a non-tenured teacher. However, in Lichtman, the appellant's part-time position had been eliminated. The court held that her position was eliminated and by law her seniority acquired in a part-time librarian position entitled her to full-time employment over a non-tenured employee. She was entitled to invoke her seniority rights under N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.10. The court found no distinction between full-time and part-time positions when it came to the award and calculation of seniority. Gainer and Lichtman both hinge upon the continuation or elimination of the affected employee's position. In comparing these cases with the present matter, it is clear that this matter is controlled by Gainer.

Because the petitioner was recalled to her 4/5-time position, her seniority rights were not invoked and she has no right to claim any other position at this time.

If there had been only one vacancy in the district for a Spanish teacher and that vacancy was a full-time position, the Board agrees that, assuming the petitioner is tenured, she would be eligible to fill that position over a non-tenured teacher. However, that is not the case. Two positions were filled during the summer months in the Spanish area: the first was the petitioner's position and the second was a full-time Spanish position.

The Board submitted a certification of its Director of Humanities who is responsible for the hiring and termination of all teachers in the foreign language department. He iterates that, as stipulated, the Board sought a person certified in Spanish and German because of needs in both areas. Final staffing needs were not determined until the end of June or later. In consideration of the foregoing, the Board has acted properly in all respects.

Petitioner

The petitioner concedes that, initially, it appears that Gainer supports the Board's contentions. However, Gainer's attorneys filed an appeal with the State Board of Education from the Commissioner's decision. Nevertheless, Gainer has no precedential value in this case.

The Board violated the petitioner's tenure rights when it failed and refused to appoint her to the vacant full-time Spanish position. The tenure laws are clear in establishing the scope and purpose of the petitioner's tenure rights and protections. Given her employment history and Spanish endorsement, the petitioner gained tenure within the district as of February 2, 1992 pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. Tenure is a legislatively created status and no exceptions or limitations to tenure on the basis of policy decisions, administrative convenience or other nonstatutory rationales are permitted.

The petitioner was notified in late April 1992 that she would not be reemployed for the 1992-93 school year. This was a RIF. And, as a tenured teacher, the petitioner immediately was covered by the guarantees in N.J.S.A. 18A:20-12, which states

> If any teaching staff member shall be dismissed as a result of such reduction, such person shall be and remain upon a preferred eligible list in the order of seniority for reemployment whenever a vacancy occurs in a position for which such person shall be qualified and he shall be reemployed by the body causing dismissal, if and when such vacancy occurs and in determining seniority, and in computing length of service for reemployment, full recognition shall be given to previous years of service . . . .

Because of her employment under an instructional certificate with a Teacher of Spanish endorsement, the petitioner was entitled to placement on the district's preferred eligible list and seniority list in the category of secondary Spanish. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12 and -13; N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.10(l)19.

After the end of the 1991-92 school year, the petitioner was advised that the Board would fill, among other positions within the Spanish Department, a full-time teacher of Spanish position. The petitioner, on or about June 22, 1992, filed the present petition of appeal asserting her entitlement to a full-time teaching position pursuant to her tenure status and applicable statute and code.

Because of her statutory placement on the preferred eligible list in the Spanish category, the petitioner had an absolute right to the vacant full-time Spanish position. Statue and code mandate this outcome. In particular, N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12 states that a tenured teacher on a preferred eligible list must be reemployed whenever a vacancy occurs in a position for which such person shall be qualified. Simply stated, the petitioner was, by statute, on a preferred eligible list for reemployment as of April 28, 1992. Prior to the end of the 1991 school year and certainly after the Board posted a notice of vacancy for a full-time Spanish teacher position on July 28, 1992, the petitioner had a statutory entitlement to a full-time Spanish teacher position.

N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12 is clear. An employee must be rehired from a preferred eligible list whenever a vacancy occurs. The vacancy in question came into being prior to the time the petitioner was reemployed on a 4/5-time basis. The petitioner was entitled to fill the full-time Spanish teacher vacancy that first came about in June 1992 and was posted in July 1992, not the so-called vacancy in the part-time position eventually given to her for the 1992-93 school year. The obligation of a board of education to recall an employee from the preferred eligible list must be deemed to occur whenever the vacancy itself comes into existence, not at a later time so as to permit the Board to rearrange positions to establish after-the-fact vacancies that may be used to circumvent the statute and teachers' tenure rights.

Baruffi v. Morris Hills Reg'l School Dist. Bd. of Ed., 1990 S.L.D. 702, holds that a vacancy, within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12, comes into being at the moment it is created. In Baruffi, two teachers who were notified of a RIF under date of April 25 and effective June 30, 1989, were found entitled to reemployment in vacancies that opened in May 1989, the day they were posted. In the present case, the vacancy at issue occurred in June 1992 and the Board may not avoid this fact and the attendant legal responsibilities. A board of education cannot terminate or reduce a tenured teacher while retaining a nontenured teacher.

The Commissioner promulgates seniority regulations, but these regulations do not address the rights of tenured employees vis-a-vis nontenured employees. Rather, seniority provides a mechanism for determining respective rights among tenured teachers in the event of a RIF. Seniority is accrued as a consequence of tenure and is acquired only after tenure is achieved. Whatever seniority distinctions may exist among tenured teachers, seniority cannot limit a teacher's tenure rights over nontenured teachers. Seniority was never intended to limit a teacher's tenure rights and any limitation, particularly concerning nontenured teachers, would contravene the legislative policy by improperly limiting tenure rights.

Here, the Board terminated the petitioner's employment. The petitioner was tenured as a teacher. As a result, her tenure rights extend to all assignments covered by her instructional certificate(s). Her certificate and Spanish endorsement provide the relevant scope of her tenure rights. The Board could not terminate or reduce her employment while employing a nontenured teacher in a full-time Spanish position. In Dennery v. Passaic Valley High Sch., 251 N.J. Super. 144 (App. Div. 1991), the court upheld a tenure claim for an individual who held, but had not previously used, a Supervisor endorsement. The court's decision indicates the value, importance and obligation of filling vacant positions with tenured employees.

The cases do not permit a board of education to RIF a tenured teacher, regardless of whether the teacher had been employed on a full- or part-time basis, and then pass over that employee who was on a preferred eligible list pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12 for a vacant position within the appropriate category in favor of a nontenured teacher.

DETERMINATION

It is well settled that a petitioner has failed to state a claim upon which relief can be granted unless she is actually subject to a loss of position and reduction in pay pursuant to a RIF. In Andreula v. Hoboken Bd. of Ed., OAL DKT. EDU 6537-84 (Dec. 18, 1984), aff'd Comm'r of Ed. (Jan. 31, 1985), a physical education teacher's claim was declared moot because, although the teacher, like the petitioner here, was notified that his position would be abolished for the next school year, he subsequently was rehired before the start of that year. If there is no RIF, no rights are triggered under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12. In the present case, there was a RIF. The petitioner was notified by letter that she would not be reemployed for the 1992-93 school year. Once the RIF occurred, the petitioner's full panoply of rights attached. According to the stipulations, the Board had authorized filling a vacant full-time Spanish teaching position by a nontenured teacher prior to the July 28, 1992 posting and prior to the time the Board appointed the petitioner to a 3/5-time position.

Although many of the same actions occurred in Gainer and here, the timing is different. It is true that the petitioner was, in effect, saved harmless by virtue of appointment on September 21, 1992 to a 4/5-time position. She has suffered no reduction in duties and has not been dismissed. Her restoration, however, occurred after her rights to a full-time position were triggered by virtue of the RIF. Even if her tenured status were not stipulated for purposes of this argument, I would FIND that the petitioner achieved tenure status on February 1, 1992. Whether her tenure was in a part-time position or a full-time position, she may assert seniority rights to a full-time position held by a nontenured teacher following a RIF.

As the Commissioner, State Board and Appellate Division held in Edison Tp. Education Ass'n v. Edison Bd. of Ed., OAL DKT. EDU 9457-92 (Nov. 14, 1983), aff'd Comm'r of Ed. (Dec. 29, 1983), aff'd St. Bd. (Aug. 8, 1984) aff'd N.J. App. Div. (Feb. 26, 1986, A-515-84T7) (unreported), seniority rights are not assertable at the convenience of a board. Rather, "When a position becomes available, teachers on a seniority list are to be so placed immediately, as determined by such list." Slip op. at 23. These conditions obtain in the present case.

On April 28, 1992, the petitioner received a nonrenewal notice (RIF). She was a tenured teaching staff member at the time. All rights attached by action of law; the petitioner was required to do nothing to activate her tenure and seniority rights. On June 23, 1992, a nontenured teacher was hired for a full-time Spanish teaching position. A week later, the superintendent wrote to the petitioner stating that he would recommend her for a part-time, tenured position for the 1992-93 school year. On July 15, a full-time Spanish-German position was advertised. On July 28, the posting was changed to a full-time Spanish position.

It is clear the Board hired a nontenured teacher for a full-time Spanish position for 1992-93 before it hired the petitioner for a part-time position for 1992-93. The Board compounded this when, on September 21, 1992 it hired two other full-time Spanish teachers and the petitioner on 4/5-time retroactive to September 1, 1992. Inasmuch as the harm was done on June 23, it is not necessary to address the September 21 action.

Having considered all facts and arguments put forward, I FIND:

1. The petitioner was a tenured teaching staff member in the employ of the Hunterdon Central Regional High School District when, on April 28, 1992 she received an official communication stating that she would not be employed in September 1992.

2. The Board posted a full-time Spanish-German position on May 21, 1992.

3. On June 23, 1992, the Board hired Lynn Luster, a nontenured teacher for a full-time Spanish teaching position beginning in September 1992.

In Baruffi, above, the Commissioner said, "Petitioners were subject to abolishment of their positions in April 1989. Therefore, when the vacancies for ISS/Remedial positions became open in May 1989, petitioners should by virtue of their tenure rights have been assigned to them as they were qualified for the positions. " Slip op. at 16. 1990 S.L.D. at 714. And, as the State Board of Education noted in Szpiech v. Hopatcong Bd. of Ed., OAL DKT. EDU 5950-84 and EDU 5951-84 (Feb. 13, 1985), aff'd Comm'r of Ed. (Apr. 1, 1985), aff'd in part, rev'd as to relief, St. Bd. (Feb. 4, 1987),

> [W]e reiterate that, as we concluded after extensive analysis in Capodilupo v. Bd. of Ed. of the Town of West Orange, decided by the State Board, September 3, 1986, appeal pending, Docket #A-943-86T7, the position in which a teaching staff member achieves tenure and to which tenure protection attaches is either one of those specifically enumerated in N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 or some other employment with a board for which a certificate is required, either instructional, educational services or administrative and supervisory. See Howley v. Bd. of Ed. of the Township of Ewing, 1982 S.L.D. 1328, aff'd by the State Board, June 1, 1983. Although the scope of a tenurable position is limited by the certification qualifying a member for assignment within the position, once tenure is achieved, tenure protection extends to service in all assignments within the scope of the endorsement qualifying the member for > service within his tenured position. Capodilupo, supra. Slip op. at 5. 1985 S.L.D. 2731, 2733.

> And, perhaps most tellingly,
>
> We now hold that a tenured part-time teaching staff member with proper certification can claim, as against a nontenured applicant, seniority rights in seeking appointment to a full-time position that is within the specific categories covered by the certification and that has responsibilities identical to those of the part-time position in which employment was actually held. Lichtman v. Ridgewood Bd. of Ed., 93 N.J. 362 (1983).

See also, Ellicott v. Frankford Bd. of Ed., 251 N.J. Super. 342 (App. Div. 1991).

I CONCLUDE that the tenure rights of Aida Mueller were violated when a nontenured person was hired for a full-time Spanish teaching position on or about June 23, 1992 while Mueller, a tenured teacher in the Spanish category, was on a preferred eligible list pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12. Mueller enjoyed tenure rights to all positions for which her certificate qualified her, including the full-time Spanish teaching position that was given to a nontenured person on June 23, 1992.

Accordingly, I ORDER the appointment of Aida Mueller to a full-time Spanish teaching position retroactive to September 1, 1992 together with back pay and other economic emoluments of employment, including appropriate pension fund adjustment.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

AIDA MUELLER,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE HUNTERDON CENTRAL REGIONAL HIGH SCHOOL DISTRICT, MERCER COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record and initial decision rendered by the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. The Board filed timely exceptions and petitioner filed timely reply exceptions pursuant to the applicable provisions of N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

The Board cites three exceptions. The first avers that the ALJ below should not have found as a fact that petitioner achieved tenure on February 1, 1992 insofar as the ALJ reached such conclusion by relying, in part, on an assumption agreed to by the Board for the purposes of the cross-motions for summary decision only. Said assumption, the Board claims, is set forth in paragraph four of the joint stipulation of facts which states:

> Effective February 1, 1989 Petitioner was employed by the Respondent Board of Education through June 30, 1989 on a full-time basis as a Teacher of Spanish. Petitioner filled a teaching vacancy during the period February 1, 1989 through June 30, 1989. She contends that she was not a "replacement teacher" during this period. The Board of Education assumes for the purpose of these motions for summary decision that this half-year period did count towards her tenure in the district.

The Board seeks a remand of this matter for a plenary hearing to determine whether petitioner's employment satisfied the statutory criteria under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5.

Exception two submits the ALJ erred in concluding that Petitioner's tenure rights were violated when a nontenured person was hired to fill a full-time position effective September 1, 1992. The Board reiterates that it was unable to find a candidate with German and Spanish endorsements and that it advertised on July 28, 1992 for two full-time positions to be available September 1, 1992. It claims that none of the nontenured teachers began working prior to petitioner on September 1, 1992. The Board submits the vacancy in question occurred as of September 1, 1992 even though the hiring might have occurred earlier. Thus, the Board contends, petitioner did not lose her previous employment status.

Exception three would have the Commissioner apply the holding of Mary Ann Gainer v. Board of Education of the Township of Wayne, Passaic County, 1991 S.L.D. 1347 to the within matter, claiming that petitioner herein was "'saved harmless" (Exceptions, at 2, citing Gainer at 1361) because her tenure rights to her former position were restored.

The Board seeks reversal of the ALJ's decision and that the Petition of Appeal be dismissed with prejudice.

Upon careful and independent review of the instant matter, the Commissioner concludes that the ALJ below has accurately discerned that, accepting the facts as stipulated, the instant matter is distinguishable from Gainer, supra, because of the timing of the vacancies posted by the Board. Notwithstanding the Board's complaint that it could not secure the services of a combination

German-Spanish teacher, that position was not the first posted. Rather, on June 23, 1992 it hired a nontenured teacher for a full-time Spanish teaching position, one for which petitioner was qualified. Because petitioner had been riffed on April 28, 1992, her status on the preferred eligibility list mandated that the Board first offer her the full-time Spanish position. The full-time Spanish-German position was not advertised until July 15. Thus, the Board abridged petitioner's tenure rights as of June 23, 1992.

However, notwithstanding this determination, the Commissioner is troubled by the ALJ's conclusion regarding petitioner's tenure status. While the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ's analysis of the law applicable in this matter, the record before her will not permit a conclusion regarding the threshold issue of whether petitioner is in fact a tenured employee in respondent's district. On page nine of the initial decision the ALJ concludes that petitioner achieved tenure status on February 1, 1992. However, he does not set forth the basis upon which such conclusion is drawn. Inquiry to establish petitioner's tenure status is not aided, moreover, by the Board's exceptions. While the Board has attempted in the joint stipulation of facts to reserve its right to challenge petitioner's claim of tenure resulting from the period of employment from February 1, 1989 to June 30, 1989, its own Answer admits those pleadings set forth in the Petition of Appeal at paragraph 4, which state:

> Petitioner filled a teaching vacancy during the period between February 1, 1989 through June 30, 1989. She was not a "replacement teacher" during this time period.

Matters are further muddied by observation of paragraph two of the Board's Answer which states:

As to paragraph 5 of the petition of appeal, respondent Board denies petitioner was not a "replacement teacher" during the 1989-90 school year, and in fact she replaced a non-tenured teacher, Rosa Borga, who was granted maternity leave for the 1989-90 school year.

Hence, because the Commissioner must be vigilant in protecting the employment rights of not only petitioner but also of all individuals whose employment could be affected by a determination in this case, a remand to the Office of Administrative Law is required for further findings of fact and conclusions of law pertaining to whether petitioner is tenured in respondent's district.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

v.
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE HUNTERDON CENTRAL REGIONAL HIGH SCHOOL DISTRICT,
Respondent.

Stephen B. Hunter, Esq., for petitioner (Klausner, Hunter, Cige & Seid, attorneys)

James P. Granello, Esq., for respondent

Record Closed: July 1, 1993 Decided: July 7, 1993

BEFORE BRUCE R. CAMPBELL, ALJ:

Aida Mueller, petitioner, alleged the Hunterdon Central Regional High School Board of Education, respondent, violated her tenure rights when it hired a nontenured full-time Spanish teacher for the 1992-1993 school year.

The matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education and transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 through -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 through -13. After notice, a prehearing conference was conducted and it was agreed that all essential facts could be stipulated and that the matter could proceed on motion and cross-motion for summary judgment. A joint stipulation of facts and six exhibits were submitted. Counsel then filed papers supporting their respective motions.

On April 14, 1993, an initial decision issued ordering the appointment of Aida Mueller to a full-time Spanish teaching position retroactive to September 1, 1992 together with back pay and emoluments.

On May 26, 1993, the Commissioner remanded for further findings of fact and conclusions of law concerning the petitioner's tenure in the district. On June 22, 1993, counsel for the Board advised this judge that it no longer wished to contest the matter. On July 1, 1993, the judge received a letter dated June 29, stating:

> This letter will serve to confirm that the respondent, Hunterdon Central Regional High School District Board of Education, no longer wishes to contest the issue of the tenure status of the petioner, Aida Mueller, in connection with the above-referenced matter. . . .

The respondent having conceded the petitioner's tenure status, I FIND and CONCLUDE that there no longer is a justiciable matter before me. Accordingly, the petition of appeal is DISMISSED FOR MOOTNESS.

It is so ORDERED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, 8th Floor West, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

Accordingly, we will comply with the decision rendered by the Commissioner of Education that petitioner is to be placed in a full-time position retroactive to September 1, 1992 with compensation.

The record and initial decision on remand rendered by the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties. Upon careful and independent review of the record of this matter, the Commissioner concurs with the conclusion of the ALJ that the matter is moot. She so decides because the Board conceded that petitioner is tenured in the district and agreed in the letter of June 29, 1993 submitted to the ALJ through its counsel that it will comply with the Commissioner's decision of May 26, 1993 directing that petitioner be placed in a full-time position retroactive to September 1, 1992 with compensation.

The Petition of Appeal is hereby dismissed for mootness.

For the Board, Nicholas Celso, III, Esq.
(Schwartz, Simon & Edelstein)

Whereas, this matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education on January 25, 1993 by way of tenure charges of incapacity, unbecoming conduct and other just cause against respondent, a custodian under tenure in the school district; and

Whereas, respondent was directed to file an answer to these charges by notices from the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes dated January 27, 1993 and February 23, 1993; and

Whereas, no reply was received from respondent, resulting in issuance on March 17, 1993 of a letter sent by regular and certified mail, advising respondent that unless an Answer were received from him or his attorney within ten (10) days, the charges against him would be deemed admitted and the Commissioner would render a decision on a summary basis; and

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF TEANECK, BERGEN COUNTY,

RESPONDENT.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning parents sought determination that respondent Board should be required to reimburse them in part for the costs of private schools since Board did not ensure the safety of their children when they were enrolled in the district's high school by refusing to discipline students involved in altercations with their children. Board contended it did all it could reasonably be expected to do under the circumstances.

ALJ concluded petitioners were not entitled to reimbursement for costs of private schools. None of the incidents occurred on school premises nor adjacent to school premises. Further, the Board took reasonable actions to ameliorate the situation including filing criminal proceedings. Petition was dismissed.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision, specifically noting it is well-established in law that a board has the right to discipline a student for conduct occurring away from school premises but that the record in this matter does not substantiate petitioners' allegations that Board's actions were arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable.

BEFORE DIANA C. SUKOVICH, ALJ:

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On January 15, 1992, a petition was filed with the Department of Education (Department) on behalf of B. J. (petitioner) and L. F. (petitioner), seeking partial reimbursement by the Board of Education of the Township of Teaneck (respondent or Board) of costs incurred for the education of petitioners in private schools. The matter was transmitted by the Department to the Office of Administrative Law on February 7, 1992 for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

Hearings were held on November 17, 1992 and January 28, 1993. Initial briefs were filed on February 16, 1992. Petitioners filed a reply brief on February 29, 1993; and respondent, on March 5, 1993, on which date the record was closed.

NATURE OF THE CASE

Petitioners allege that, commencing in the spring of 1991, while they were students at Teaneck High School (High School or School), they were harassed and physically attacked in the community and on the streets going to and from school by a group of students in the Township of Teaneck (Teaneck) public school system and that such attacks escalated until approximately September 17, 1991. It is also alleged that the adult petitioners consulted with the principal of the High School throughout this period seeking assistance in protecting B. J. and L. F.; that while some security was provided in the school, no security was provided outside of the school; and the principal was unable to guarantee petitioners' safety. Petitioners further allege that their parents approached respondent's Superintendent of School and that he could not assure them that the attacks would not continue. Finally, petitioners allege that subsequent to September 17, 1991, on which date L. F. was injured, petitioners withdrew their children from the High School and enrolled them in private schools.

As noted hereinabove, petitioners seek a determination that respondent should be required to reimburse them, in part, for the costs of the private schools. More specifically, petitioners argue that the Board should reimburse them in the same amount as out-of-district students pay to attend school in Teaneck.

Respondent argues that it did all, if not more, than it could have done and was required to do in the circumstances and that in any event, it is not responsible to ensure the safety of students outside of school premises.

FINDINGS OF FACT

B. J. and L. F. and L. J. and D. F., their mothers, respectively, testified on petitioners' behalf. High School and Board administrators testified for respondent.

Their testimony was not inconsistent in most material aspects. The Board's arguments regarding those areas in which there are discrepancies (communications among the individuals in question, actions taken by respondent regarding the incidents in question, as well as generally regarding safety matters and discipline and the geographic location of some of the incidents vis-a-vis the High School) are consistent with the record.

Based upon a review of the entire record, I FIND the following to be FACTS.

The Board operates five elementary schools, two middle schools, the High School and one alternative school in Teaneck. Respondent is responsible for the education of approximately 4400 pupils, approximately 1300 of whom are students at the High School. The school day commenced at 8:15 a.m. and ended at 2:50 p.m.

At the time in question, and at the current time, Joseph White (White) and Peter Turnamian (Turnamian) were assistant principals at the High School. James Delaney (Delaney) was principal of the High School, and Dr. Howard Morris (Morris) was superintendent of the Teaneck School District.

L. F. is a 17-year-old male resident of Teaneck. His mother is D. F. L. F. attended the High School until September 1991. B. J. is also a 17-year-old male resident of Teaneck. He attended the High School until November 1991 and thereafter recommenced attendance at the High School in September 1992. L. J. is B. J.'s mother.

On approximately October 2, 1990, G. F., who was not a student at the High School, walked up to B. J.'s classroom and addressed B. J. in a harassing manner from the hallway. G. F. was accompanied by B. P., D. J., and J. H., who were students at the High School. G. F. had gone into the High School looking for B. J. He yelled into B. J.'s classroom, as indicated, directing remarks to B. J., but was not physically aggressive. G. F. was a student at another Teaneck school at the time in question.

This incident, as well as other alleged incidents involving G. F. during the summer of 1990, were reported to White at a meeting with him attended by L. J. and the father of another student, J. K., on October 3, 1990. A teacher at the High School had also reported that G. F. was on the premises of the School. After meeting with the parents, White and Turmanian spoke to D. J. and J. H. and warned them of the consequences of intimidation, harassment and fighting. In addition, Turmanian filed trespass charges against G. F. with the Teaneck police department.

During the spring of 1991, B. J. had heard, through individuals whose identity cannot be determined from the record, that B. P. had been making threats against him, more specifically, that B. P. had said he would "cut B.J.'s throat. " On one occasion, B.J. also heard B.P. saying that the latter would "get" B.J. At the time, B. J. did not report any such threats to High School officials, officials of the Board, nor to local police. B.J. did tell his mother, in the spring of 1991, that he was being harassed by a group of youths. L.J. went to the High School during this general time period and met with Delaney. J.K.'s father was also present. In this general time period, B. J. was leaving school early to avoid contact with the students in question after school. L. J. was told by Delaney that nothing could be done unless incidents occurred on school premises. During the summer of 1991, J.B. was active on a local baseball team. He did not report any problems to his mother during that period.

In September 1991, B. J. reported to his mother that a group of young people were harassing him. On September 14, 1991, a Saturday, a dance was held at the Women's Club in Teaneck. The dance was not sponsored by the High School, and no School chaperones were provided. The dance was not held after a school function. The site was located in a main shopping center approximately seven to eight blocks from the High School, a distance of somewhat less than one mile.

B.J., L.F. and their friend, J.K., attended. The three left the Women's Club at approximately 1:00 a.m. While walking on Grayson Street, towards the High School, they realized that they were being followed by a group of youths. The latter included P.H. and B.P. B.J. told L.F. and J.K. that the group was following B.J. At some point, B.J. left J.K. and L.F. In the vicinity of Grayson Street near Palisade Avenue and Queen Anne Road, someone in the group, which now consisted of 5 to 10 individuals, asked for B.J. L.F. responded that B.J. was not with them. In fact, B.J. was farther up on the walkway. At this point, L.F. was punched in the back of his head. J.K was also attacked. A fight ensued, which altercation lasted for approximately 10 to 15 minutes. L.F. defended himself. He ended up lying on the ground, as did J.K. The other youths left. L.F. and J.K. thereupon went to the latter's house. L. F. stayed for a very short period of time and then went to his own house. He told his parents what had happened.

B. J. subsequently went home and learned of the attack. He then went to the home of a Mr. March, a teacher at the High School. B. J. is a friend of March's son. B. J. and March thereafter went to L. F.'s house. L. F. was home by then. L. F.'s eyes were red and black, and his clothes were disheveled.

B.J. called his mother from J.K.'s house at approximately 1:15 a.m. She took both him and J.K. to the Teaneck police station. L.J. filed a police report. Statements were taken from both her and her son. J. K., B. P. and P. H. were identified as individuals who were part of the group who had been following B. J. and his friends.

By the time L.F. arrived home on September 14, 1991, his eyes were partially closed, his lips were bleeding and swollen, his clothes were disheveled, and he had black and blue marks on his face. After he had removed his clothes, D.F. observed black and blue marks all over his body. D.F. suggested that the incident be reported to the police and L. F. responded in the negative, expressing fears that that would make the situation worse. Not wanting to "pressure him," she told him to go to bed. The next morning, a Sunday, D.F. drove L.F. to J.K.'s house to determine what had happened. L.F. "begged" her not to do anything regarding the matter. D.F. did not go to the High School regarding the incident because it had occurred on a weekend and did not involve L.F. traveling to and from school.

The incident was not reported to High School administrators until September 18, 1991. B.J. and L.F. attended school on September 16 and 17, 1991, the following Monday and Tuesday, respectively. B. J. was accompanied to school by his mother. On both days, B.J. was driven home by March. There were no incidents regarding B.J. at school on Monday and Tuesday. D.F., L.F.'s mother, was not aware of any problems regarding L.F. prior to September 14, 1991.

A second incident involving L.F. occurred on September 17, 1991. At approximately 3:15 p.m., some 25 minutes after school dismissal, L.F., while enroute home, was confronted by K.R. in proximity to the intersection of Margaret Street and Selvage Avenue in Teaneck. K.R. was with a group of five to ten youths. K.R.

swung at L.F., and the latter tried to defend himself. Someone broke up the encounter. This incident occurred at a location across a Route 4 bridge, spanning a five-lane highway, and one long city block away from the High School, a distance of at least 150 yards. This location is not visible from immediately outside Teaneck High School. The only point within the High School from which this location is visible is the third-floor cafeteria; however, the site is visible from the cafeteria only during those months when the trees lining Margaret Street are bare, a situation which did not exist at the time in question.

After this incident, L. F. continued home. Several minutes later, he was confronted by a group of youths, which group did not, at this time, include K. R., in the area of Selvage Avenue and Alicia Street. The group included P.T. One of the youths swung at L. F., and a fight ensued. The altercation lasted for five to ten minutes. L. F. ended up on the ground. He was hit with fists and was stomped. Again, someone stopped the confrontation.

L. F. subsequently went home. No one was present, and he called his mother, who works in New York City. L. F. informed his mother that they "did it again." His mother immediately left for home, taking a taxi cab because it was the fastest means of transportation. She arrived some 45 minutes to one hour later. By this time, L. F.'s clothes were torn and he had bruises on his body, including on his knees. The School was closed by the time she arrived home. D. F. called her physician, Dr. Robert Adair (Adair), and made an appointment with him for L. F. for 9:00 a.m. the following morning. Adair's report of the examination indicated that L. F. had sustained multiple contusions and abrasions of the face, neck, torso, elbows and back, as well as bilateral ecchymosis of the eyes and a cervical sprain.

L. F. had become withdrawn subsequent to the September 14, 1991 incident. He became even more withdrawn subsequent to the September 17, 1991 incidents. He expressed fears to his mother regarding returning to the School. D. F. decided, after the September 17, 1991 incidents, that L. F. could not return to the High School.

B. J. was not involved in any incidents on Monday nor Tuesday of the week in question. He was not with L. F. on September 17, 1991, when the incidents involving the latter occurred. B. J. subsequently learned of them from another individual and, in turn, B. J. told his mother about them. In addition, D. F. told L. J. of the injuries which L. F. had sustained on September 17, 1991.

On September 17, 1991, subsequent to the incidents which occurred on that day, L. F.'s father took L. F. to the Teaneck police station. A report was filed. L. F. was interviewed by a police officer. L. F. identified K. R. and D. J. as being part of the group which confronted him on September 17, 1991. Police personnel subsequently filed a complaint against K. R.

Subsequent to L. F.'s appointment with Adair on September 18, 1991, L. J., B. J., D. F., and L. F. went to the School to meet with Delaney to report the incidents of both September 14 and September 17, 1991, as well as to demand assurances of protection for their children. J. K. and his father also met with them at this time. The individuals met for approximately one hour. L. J. and D. F. requested assurances regarding the safety of their sons, both on and off school premises. Delaney responded that the Board could not undertake action to protect pupils off school property and that such protection was out of the High School's control. L. J. also told Delaney at this meeting of the incidents which had occurred involving B. J. during the prior year. D. F. showed Delaney a bill and report from Adair. She also told Delaney that L. F. did not want to return to the High School, that L. F. was withdrawn and upset, and that she felt this was an unhealthy situation and feared for his safety. As found, Delaney indicated there was little he could do because the incidents in question did not occur on school premises. D. F. expressed the opinion that Delaney should consider the locations where students lived, in proximity to the High School.

Immediately after the meeting with Delaney, the group of parents and students went to Board of Education offices and met with Morris. Petitioners informed Morris of the incidents in question and asked what could be done to ensure the safety of the students. Petitioners sought assurances that the pupils would be protected, as well as guarantees concerning their safety, both on and off school premises. This was the first time that Morris had ever met with L. J. and D. F. The parents were visibly upset regarding the safety of their sons and the impact of problems in the community on their school involvement. D. F. showed Morris Adair's bill and report. Morris told D. F. and L. J. that it was not within his power, nor responsibility, to ensure the safety of students in the community, but that he would do whatever had to be done to ensure the safety of their children on school premises. D. F. informed Morris that she had decided to withdraw L. F. from the High School. Morris voiced the opinion that that was a "mistake" and "unfortunate." He assured her that respondent could provide an educational environment for L. F. D. F. told Morris that she wanted respondent to pay for L. F.'s tuition in another school. Morris responded in the negative, indicating that he would recommend against such reimbursement. Morris offered his efforts to assist L. J. and D. F. with whatever he could do in working with them, parents, and law enforcement officials, as well as other Township officials, to help the situation. Morris met with petitioners for approximately 45 minutes to one hour. One of the other parents present, most likely L. J., also expressed a determination to withdraw his/her child from respondent's schools and requested tuition reimbursement. Morris again responded in the negative. Requests were made that Morris ensure the safety of students off premises and on weekends. Again, Morris indicated he could not do so. Morris felt that respondent had no jurisdiction to discipline students regarding either incident. More specifically, Morris told the parents that he would work with them and with police officials. He indicated that he would act as a liaison. He also informed the parents that discipline could be imposed on students for incidents occurring off Teaneck school premises only if they occured in relation to school-related activities or activities held on school premises during non-school hours. Morris also expressed the view that events occurring in the community in general were the responsibility of police department officials, not respondent.

Immediately after the meeting held on September 17, 1991, Delaney notified White that an incident had occurred and directed White to conduct an investigation. White immediately commenced such an investigation, speaking via telephone and/or in-person with B. J. and L. F., as well as with J. K., A. W., D. P., D. J., and P. H. At the time, A. W. was the girlfriend of L. F. and was present during the September 17, 1991 incidents. White obtained oral statements from all these individuals, with the exception of A. W., who refused to give a statement. White also obtained written statements from P. H. and D. J. White questioned L. J. and B. J. regarding both the September 14 and September 17, 1991 incidents. The statements of P. H. and D. J. indicated that L. F. was an aggressor in the incidents.

White was not aware of any incidents involving petitioners subsequent to October 3, 1990 until the September 18, 1991 meeting. None of the youths implicated in the incidents were in school at the time White commenced his investigation. He spoke with L. F. on September 19, 1991, as L. F. was leaving the school nurse's office. B. J. was also present at this time. White spoke with them briefly, as the two youths were in a hurry. At the time. L. F. was in the process of signing out of school. As a general procedure, school officials cannot force students to provide statements. As a result of this investigation, White learned of the incident which had happened on September 14, 1991.

Based upon his investigation, White determined that there had been an altercation following a dance at the Womens Club on September 14, 1991, in which J. K. and L. F. were involved, along with B. P., P. H., J. G., and others, and that B. J. was not involved in this incident. White also concluded that L. F. was involved in another altercation on September 17, 1991, which occurred some 25 minutes after the dismissal of school, and that B. J. was also not involved in this incident. White also determined that he was unable to identify the initial aggressors because of the conflicting statements given. White prepared a memorandum to Delaney regarding his investigation on September 20, 1991, in which he set forth the results of the investigation.

High School officials concluded that discipline of the pupils involved should not be imposed because it was not possible to determine the aggressors, because such incidents occurred off school property, and because they were not related to school activities. No students were disciplined regarding the September 14 and September 17, 1991 incidents. This lack of discipline resulted from the fact that the September 14, 1991 incident occurred off school premises, on a weekend, and was in no way related to any activities sponsored by respondent. Similarly, the September 17, 1991 incidents occurred after school and not on the premises of any Teaneck school.

Several days after September 17, 1991, two incidents involving B. J. occurred. On one evening, at approximately 9:00 p.m., as B. J. approached his house, he observed B.P. and J.G. sitting on the front curb. B. J. went to a neighbor's house and waited until B. P and J. G. left. On another occasion, B. J. went to the schoolyard of a Teaneck public school, the Bryant School, during evening hours. J. G. was present and chased B. J. around a corner. They stopped in the vicinity of B. J.'s house.

Neither of these incidents were reported to High School personnel, Board personnel, nor local police officials.

By the end of the meeting held on September 18, 1991, D. F. had determined to transfer L. F. to another school. L. F. was in the eleventh grade at this time. D. F. called L. F.'s godmother, who lives on Long Island, New York, and asked her to investigate the schools on Long Island. Both D. F. and her husband, L. F.'s father, work in New York, New York. D. F. considered arranging for L. F. to live with his godmother and attend school on Long Island. This possibility did not come to fruition because of perceived problems with Long Island schools. D. F. also applied for admission for L. F. to other schools, whose identity cannot be determined from the record, but ascertained that there were waiting lists. D.F. was also concerned about safety factors regarding some of the other schools considered. For this reason, she determined that L. F. should not attend a public school in New York City. She also felt that public schools in other communities in proximity to Teaneck, such as Bergenfield, Hackensack and Bogota, were not sufficiently safe. D. F. also had concerns that L. F. would encounter problems with youths in the community if he had to wait for public transportation at certain times.

On approximately September 19, 1991, prior to the completion of White's investigation, D. F. commenced transfer proceedings on behalf of L. F. Following his transfer from the High School, L. F. enrolled in the Dwight School, which is located in New York, New York. The yearly tuition is $12,500. Total expenses, including other costs, are $13,675. L. F. has been awarded a $5,000 annual scholarship. L. F. commutes to the Dwight School via public bus transportation at a daily cost of $7.00. Assuming a 180-day school year, the total transportation costs approximate $1,260. The total annual net cost for L. F. at the Dwight School is approximately $9,935. The Dwight School was on a list of schools provided to D. F. by a school counselor.

D. F. was able to pay for L. F.'s tuition and expenses at the Dwight School during his first year there, at least in part, from funds received through a loan which she took against her pension. D. F. commenced working extensive hours during L. F.'s second year at the Dwight School in order to meet expenses. D. F. arranged for a payment plan with the Dwight School which requires monthly payments of $652.50. At the time of hearings, D. F. was working from 8:30 a.m. until 11:00 p.m. in order to maintain payments.

Subsequent to his transfer to the Dwight School, during the winter of 1991-92, L. F. returned to Teaneck High School to attend activities. One was an activity referred to as a Lip Synch Talent Show; the other was a dance. Both activities were attended by some of the individuals who were participants in the September 14 and September 17, 1991 incidents. No problems were experienced by L. F. when he attended these activities nor at other times in Teaneck generally, subsequent to his transfer to the Dwight School. As of the time he attended activities at the High School, L. F. believed that the disputes which had previously existed among himself and other youths were settled. At the time of hearings in this matter, L. F. did not believe that he would be at risk if he returned to Teaneck High School. D. F. does not want L. F. to return to Teaneck High School, in part, because of continued concerns regarding his safety. In addition, D. F. does not want to interrupt the structure of L. F.'s education. She views the Dwight School as being "different" from the High School. Classes at the Dwight School are much smaller, allowing for more individual attention from teachers. In addition, D. F. is able to attend more school activities at the Dwight School without taking full days off from work because of its proximity to her employment.

B. J. transferred to the Laurinberg Institute, a private school located in Laurinberg, North Carolina, on November 22, 1991. B. J. attended the High School from September 17, 1991 until the transfer. In the interim, B. J. was escorted to school by March. During that period, no incidents involving B. J. were reported to School or Board administrators. B. J. attended the Laurinberg Institute for the remainder of the 1991-92 school year. Tuition at the Laurinberg Institute was $5,000 per term, or $10,000 annually. B. J. received $2700 in annual financial aid. L. J. incurred costs of some $775 to have someone drive B. J. back and forth between the Laurinberg Institute and his residence during holidays and other vacations.

B. J. returned to the High School as a student in September 1992. Since his return to the School, B. J. has not been involved in any incidents relating to harassment, intimidation, or assaults. No incidents have been reported regarding the participants in the September 1991 altercations with L. F. Since his return to Teaneck High School, B. J. has become closely associated with B. P. and J. G.

B. J. returned to Teaneck High School because L. J. could no longer afford to keep him at the Laurinberg Institute. She is a single parent, responsible for the support of B. J. In addition, another child, a college student, resides with L. J. and B. J. L. J. is obligated to repay the Laurinberg Institute $700 financial aid because B. J. did not continue at the facility. In addition, an outstanding balance of $332 is owed on B. J.'s account. L. J. initially learned of the Laurinberg Institute from a recommendation of a counselor at the High School. L. J. subsequently contacted public school districts and communities in proximity to Teaneck, more specifically, Englewood and Bergenfield. She ascertained that it would cost approximately $8,000 to $10,000 to send B. J. to a public school in another community.

Respondent charges $10,000 annually to out-of-district youngsters to attend public school in Teaneck.

The imposition of discipline of students by High School administrators is dependent upon the individual circumstances of each case and the relationship of an incident to the safety and security of the High School. Discipline is generally not imposed for off-campus occurrences, except when such incidents occur at a school-related activity or where the off-campus behavior is a direct violation of recent disciplinary actions or warnings. It is not respondent's practice to police areas in Teaneck generally to ensure the safety of students at all times. During the past several years, Board representatives have worked in a cooperative effort with Teaneck officials, as well as religious and civic leaders, in addressing incidents occurring within the Teaneck community generally. In order to address community concerns, Board personnel have engaged in activities such as individual and group counselling, conflict resolution instruction, and extra-curricular activities at the High School.

At the times in question in 1991, there were two assistant principals at the High School. The assistant principals were each assigned to specific classes of students and were charged with investigating any incidents that occurred. White was responsible for a group that included B. J. and L. F. It was the practice at the High School that two school administrators would stand outside the main entrances until the majority of students left school premises, after school, generally from 2:50 p.m. until 3:10 p.m. This was done in order to ensure that there were no problems on both sides of the building. By the time the incidents in question occurred on September 17, 1991, administrators were inside the building. No staff member saw the altercations in question or any indications of problems. School personnel can generally detect problems developing if they note a large group of students walking in the same direction after school. In addition to White, it was the practice of the principal and a truant officer, who is a retired policeman, to stay outside of the High School near a main entrance on Elizabeth Avenue, after school. A warning bell rings before school, at 8:10 a.m. White, as well as other personnel, including the truant officer, are outside on school grounds in the morning before classes start.

In general, School administrators report assaults occurring off-school premises to police officials. School administrators, including White, view occurrences off-school premises as not falling within the Board's jurisdiction, but as police matters. Incidents occurring on school premises are dealt with depending on the circumstances of each case. As found, discipline may be imposed on students for off-school premises if safety at the High School might be affected. However, the school has limited options if students involved in incidents subsequently withdraw. If school administrators can clearly identify perpetrators in incidents occurring on school premises, in general, a suspension of between one to five days is imposed.

A school related activity is one either sponsored by a school, related to curriculum development or a club activity, or to interscholastic activities, field trips, conferences, seminars, etc. As found, discipline occurring off-school premises may be imposed if an incident relates to a school activity. Board personnel generally receive any police reports regarding incidents occurring off-school premises and during non-school hours. Board personnel may investigate such incidents. Respondent generally has a close working relationship with Teaneck police personnel, as well as personnel in other school districts in the vicinity of Teaneck. In order to ease tensions generally in Teaneck, the Board, as found, has conducted community dialogues, working with local agencies, and Board counselors, in providing programs within school settings. Respondent also funds peer counseling activities and a jobs program for "disaffected youths." Within school settings, progressive discipline guidelines are followed. Board personnel also work closely with crisis intervention groups, which organizations sponsor activities in school settings for "behaviorally disaffected" youths In order to encourage the resolution of conflicts without violence.

Teaneck consists of approximately five square miles. At Morris' initiation, Teaneck police personnel patrol on a regular schedule in the vicinity of the High School on immediately surrounding streets. They patrol between 7 a.m. and 7:30 a.m. during school days, and during the school day, as well as after school until 4:00 p.m. Police personnel are also present at School activities held during evening hours. In addition, the Board makes provisions for its own security personnel to be present at activities during evening hours.

CONCLUSIONS

The Commissioner of the Department is charged generally with resolving disputes involving the school laws. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9. Applicable statutory provisions incorporate the goal of providing a thorough and efficient system of free and public schools for all children in New Jersey. Id. §4. A thorough and efficient system of free public schools shall include adequately equipped, sanitary and secure physical facilities. Id. § 5.

The duty of school personnel to exercise reasonable supervisory care for the safety of students entrusted to them, and their accountability for any injuries resulting from a failure to discharge such duty, are well recognized in New Jersey, Titus v. Linberg, 49 N.J 66 (1967) (Titus). A school may be liable in the commission of acts as well as the neglect or failure to act.

The standard of care imposed upon school personnel is that degree of care which a person of ordinary prudence charged with comparable duties would exercise under the same circumstances. Caltavuturo v. Passaic, 124 N.J. Super. 361 (App. Div. 1973) (Caltavuturo). The imposition of such duty on school personnel is based upon the recognition that the relationship between a child and school authorities is not a voluntary one. The child must attend school and is subject to school rules and disciplines. In turn, school authorities are obligated to take reasonable precautions for the safety and well being of the child. Jackson v. Hankinson and Bd. of Ed. of New Shrewsbury, 51 N.J. 230 (1968) (Jackson).

The imposition of a duty of reasonable care upon school personnel exists in situations occurring on school property, relating to school-provided services and, in certain circumstances, relating to occurrences not, strictly speaking, on school property but in school-sanctioned areas. The Court in Titus held that school officials could be held responsible for injury sustained by a student struck with a paper clip from an elastic band by another student outside on school grounds shortly prior to the start of classes in the morning. The Court noted, in part, that it was reasonable for students to commence arriving at school premises some 15 minutes prior to the official start of classes and that the principal knew of the situation. "Obviously the students would be expected to and could properly come to the school grounds during some short period before the classrooms actually opened. They customarily begin coming at 8 A.M. and that was reasonable." Titus at 75.

The court in Caltavuturo found a local school board subject to potential liability for injuries sustained by a student who, on his way home for lunch following his school patrol duties, was injured while going through a hole in a fence surrounding city property adjacent to the school playground. The court noted in pertinent part that for some twelve years, the school had routinely used the area adjacent to school premises as a playground and that there was no natural dividing line indicating where school property ended and municipal-owned land began. Caltavuturo at 365. "For all practical purposes, it formed an integral part of the school ground to which the duty to supervise fairly extended." Id. at 367.

Similarly, a school board may be liable for injuries sustained by a pupil on a school bus. Where school officials provide transportation to and from school on a school bus, their obligations continue during the course of the transportation. Jackson at 235.

Some support exists for petitioner' argument that a local school board shall be liable for the safety of students off school premises and that such liability may include reimbursement of tuition for alternative schooling, based upon the decision in M.P. and T.P. v. BOE of the Twp. of Delran, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 3446-85 (December 18, 1985) (Delran). Delran involved a petition by the parents of R.P. R.P. was subjected to verbal and physical assault, threats of violence, and harassment over a four-month period by an identified group of students in the Delran Middle School which she attended. The local board of education was aware of the problems from their inception. The incidents in question occurred on and off school grounds, but mostly on school premises or in conjunction with school-sponsored activities. The incidents included verbal abuse on school grounds, an instance of harassment at

R.P.'s home on Halloween night, harassing telephone calls, and a verbal and physical assault after a school-sponsored basketball game. R.P. was so distraught after the game, that her parents decided to keep her at home until the local board resolved the situation. The board eventually proposed to remove R.P. from her normal scheduling to avoid confrontations, without discipline to the harassing students. R.P.'s mother was denied the opportunity to participate in any meeting which would include the harassing students. Finding such proposal unacceptable, petitioners unilaterally decided to remove R.P. to the Cinnaminson school district, necessitating the payment of approximately $4,000 for the remaining and succeeding academic years.

The presiding administrative law judge (ALJ) found that the local board failed to discharge its supervisory duty to R.P., criticizing the board's handling of policy matters. He determined that the board was obligated to reimburse R.P.'s parents, under the particular circumstances of the case, for the unilateral placement outside of the school district, analogizing to reimbursement for unilateral placement in the context of special education cases. The ALJ also directed that the local board establish guidelines to end the conflict between the parents and students involved, at the completion of which reimbursement would end and R.P. would be returned to the Delran school district. The Commissioner affirmed, noting the exceptional circumstances of the case.

I am persuaded that petitioners are not entitled to reimbursement. None of the incidents in question occurred on school premises nor adjacent to school premises. In addition, none of the incidents occurred in relation to school-sponsored activities nor in areas which, for practical purposes, can be viewed as functionally an extension of the school premises. The incidents in question in this case, are not analogous to the extenuating circumstances which existed in the Delran case. None of the incidents in question in the instant matter occurred on school premises. In addition, in contrast to the situation in Delran, Board personnel took reasonable actions available to them in efforts to ameliorate the situations resulting in the September 14 and September 17, 1991 incidents, including the filing of criminal proceedings. It is unreasonable, and not required by applicable legal principles, to require respondent to ensure the safety of its students throughout the Township of Teaneck. As the Board argues, such is the responsibility of police personnel.

In light of the results of White's investigation, respondent's determination not to impose discipline on any of the students involved in the incidents in question was not an abuse of its discretion. As found, respondent did institute procedures, even prior to September 1991, to facilitate the resolution of disputes among students in a nonviolent manner. It also cooperated with police and other Township officials.

In reaching the determination that respondent is not liable to reimburse petitioners for costs incurred for private education, I do not minimize the seriousness of the altercations in which petitioners were involved, especially L.F. I note, however, that even if a basis for liability by respondent was supported, that B.J.'s arguments have substantially less merit than those of L.F. The record does not support findings of any physical attacks on B.J. The incidents relating to B.J. which occurred subsequent to September 17, 1991 were never reported to School or Board officials. In addition, I note that the withdrawal of L.F. from the Teaneck school system hampered the ability of School administrators to continue their investigation. There is no evident reason for L.F's continued attendance at a private school. As found, L.F. attended several functions at the School subsequent to his transfer, without incident. It is also reasonable to conclude, based on the record in this case, that D.F., at least in part, has kept L.F. at the Dwight School because of considerations other than those relating to safety concerns. Although such considerations may be understandable, there is no persuasive argument that their expense should be borne by public tax funds.

Respondent argues that petitioners do not have standing to contest the discipline, or lack thereof, imposed on other students. In light of my determination that petitioners are not entitled to tuition reimbursement, it is not necessary to reach this issue.

Based upon the above findings of fact, I CONCLUDE that petitioners are not entitled to reimbursement for the costs of their private school placement by respondent. Their petition should be dismissed.

ORDER

It is hereby ORDERED that petitioners' petition for reimbursement by respondent of the cost of private school tuition incurred on their behalf be, and is, hereby DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 West State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

PETITIONERS,	:

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF TEANECK, BERGEN COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record and initial decision rendered by the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Exceptions by petitioners and the Board's reply thereto were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Petitioners except to the ALJ's determination that the Board's failure to discipline students involved in the altercations involving B.J. and L.F. was not an abuse of discretion because it was not possible to determine who the aggressors in the fights were. Petitioners allege that testimony and Mr. White's report indicate that the other students were the aggressors.

Petitioners additionally aver that the ALJ failed to comment on a point which they argued in all briefs and oral arguments before her, i.e., that the way to protect students in a situation such as this is to institute discipline, not to provide security outside of the school grounds. Petitioners assert that districts will take this decision as an endorsement of the failure of school boards to undertake disciplinary actions. Petitioners further contend that the ALJ's decision sends a message to aggressive students that as long as an assault takes place off school premises, schools do not care.

The Board avers that the ALJ relied upon more than who the aggressors in the altercations were in making her finding that the Board did not abuse its discretion in not disciplining the students involved. The Board states that in making such finding the ALJ also considered that no incident occurred on school premises or in relation to school-sponsored activities, nor in areas which can be viewed as functional extensions of school premises, and that the Board personnel took reasonable steps to ameliorate the situations giving rise to both incidents, including the filing of criminal charges.

The Board submits that, contrary to petitioners' assertions, this decision does not act as an endorsement for school boards to resist imposition of discipline for off-school premises activities but, rather, effectively endorses district activities designed to address off-campus behavior by utilizing constructive means, in addition to discipline. The Board avers that the decision does not conclude that discipline cannot be imposed for behavior which has occurred off school grounds. It maintains that the ALJ merely concluded that it is unreasonable, and not required by applicable legal principles, to require school boards to insure the safety of its students throughout the municipality, as this is the responsibility of police personnel.

Upon careful and independent review of the record, the Commissioner agrees with the findings and conclusions of the ALJ denying petitioners reimbursement for costs incurred for private education. At the onset, lest there be any confusion, the Commissioner notes that it is well established in law that a board has a right to discipline a pupil for conduct occurring away from school premises where such is reasonably necessary for a student's physical or emotional safety and well-being or for reasons relating to the safety and well-being of other students, teachers or school property. (See R.R. v. Board of Education of the Shore Regional High School District, 109 N.J. Super. 337 (Chan. Div. 1970).) But in making her determination in this matter, the Commissioner believes that the record before her does not support petitioners' allegation that the Board acted in an arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable manner with respect to its actions in connection with the altercations involving L.F. and B.J.

Accordingly, the Commissioner accepts the recommendation of the Office of Administrative Law dismissing the Petition of Appeal and adopts it as the final decision in this matter for the reasons expressed in the initial decision.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BLACK HORSE PIKE REGIONAL SCHOOL DISTRICT, CAMDEN COUNTY,

RESPONDENT.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION ON MOTION

This matter has come before the Commissioner by way of Petition of Appeal and Motion for Emergent Relief filed on May 17, 1993 seeking, inter alia, an order 1) directing the Board to maintain the status quo for J.R. to stay put in his current educational program pending the final outcome of this matter; 2) ordering that the prior suspensions against J.R. be vacated and expunged from his record due to the Board's denial of J.R.'s due process rights and/or because said suspensions were arbitrary and capricious; 3) restraining the Board from retaining J.R. due to loss of credit from absences caused by improper suspensions; and 4) ordering the Board to afford J.R. his due process rights prior to implementing any future suspension.

By letter dated May 17, 1993 the Board was provided a period of five working days to file an Answer to the Petition and Motion, which documents were received on May 24, 1993.

Petitioners claim their son is a non-handicapped student in the Board's high school who, during the 1992-93 school year, has been suspended nine times. They aver that contrary to New Jersey's Constitution, Tibbs v. Board of Education of the Township of Franklin, 59 N.J. 506 (1971) and Goss v. Lopez, 419 U.S. 565 (1975), the Board failed to provide him due process pertaining to such suspensions. Moreover, petitioners contend that J.R. will suffer immediate and irreparable harm unless a stay of the Board's letter of May 6, 1993 issues, which letter advised J.R. that any future suspension would lead to expulsion. They submit the Commissioner must order the Board to hold a due process hearing prior to consideration of any future suspension because they claim the Board will use suspension absences to reduce J.R.'s attendance credit and cause him to be improperly retained.

Citing Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982), petitioners suggest the harm to J.R. is severe and may be irreparable. They claim if the Board is not restrained from suspending J.R. at will, he will be at risk of being retained and will needlessly miss more days of school. They aver further that J.R. is at risk of being expelled and that the Board must be restrained from disregarding J.R.'s right to a free public education. Finally, regarding the balancing of equities in this case, they submit the harm to the Board is "nominal" to maintain J.R. in his current educational placement and to provide him a full due process hearing before issuing any future suspensions.

The Board's Answer recites its version of the disciplinary measures meted J.R. during the current school year and acknowledges that J.R. has a constitutional right to a free public education.

However, it denies that the Board has failed to prove J.R.'s conduct created a danger to persons or property or disruption of the educational process. The Board also claims it has afforded him all due process, and it thus claims the suspensions in question were not arbitrary or capricious.

The Board affixes to its Answer affidavits from the Superintendent of Schools and the Vice Principal regarding J.R.'s disciplinary record, and a copy of its policy on student absences and excuses, Policy JED. The Board submits it abided by it in disciplining J.R. Moreover, it does not contest that J.R. is entitled to the status quo maintenance of his position with the school district provided it is understood that the status quo is subject to the district's rules and regulations pertaining to student absences and excuses as set forth in Policy JED. It further submits that J.R. must continue to comply with the Board's concerns that he maintain good order and discipline within the school district. It denies any harm to J.R. is severe or irreversible and relies on its Policy JED for the reasonableness of its procedures regarding absences and excuses.

The Board would have the Commissioner deny petitioners' application for emergent relief and dismiss what it deems to be a frivolous action.

The Commissioner of Education designates her authority to decide this emergent relief matter to Assistant Commissioner Elena J. Scambio pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:4-34.

Upon careful review of the papers submitted in this matter, the Assistant Commissioner denies Emergent Relief for failure to meet the Crowe v. DeGioia, supra, standards. In so deciding, it is observed that no where in petitioners' pleading is it established that J.R. is currently suspended or that there is a suspension pending. Similarly, no where is it established in the pleadings that petitioners have been noticed that J.R. has lost or shall lose credit for any course he now studies. Hence, petitioners and J.R. suffer from no imminent, irreversible or irreparable harm. They have also failed to demonstrate a likelihood of succeeding on the merits of any claim of harm to themselves or their son. In other words, petitioners herein are attempting to foreclose future action by the Board, insofar as the record indicates that J.R. is currently in school and is not now subject to any form of disciplinary action. Consequently, the instant Motion for Emergent Relief is not ripe for adjudication. The Assistant Commissioner so finds and dismisses the Motion for Emergent Relief.

However, in so determining, the underlying claims of arbitrary action by the Board based on improper calculation of absences, as well as those allegations dealing with due process violation, shall proceed to the Office of Administrative Law for adjudication in the usual course. It is further determined that the Motion for Emergent Relief is dismissed without prejudice to petitioners to renew their motion at the Office of Administrative Law should J.R. be subject to actual disciplinary action hereafter or upon J.R.'s actually being noticed of the Board's intention to deny him course credit or his actually being denied course credit.

Finally, as to petitioners' prayer that J.R. be provided a full hearing in advance of any attempt to expel him, the Assistant Commissioner directs the Board that if expulsion is contemplated, it is required to provide a full due process hearing, as well as a child study review. See R.R. v. Board of Education of Shore Regional High School District, 109 N.J. Super. 237 (Chan. Div. 1970). See also N.J.A.C. 6:28-2.8(g).

Accordingly, for failure to meet the standards articulated by the Court for pendente lite restraints, the Motion for Emergent Relief is denied, without prejudice, and the matter shall proceed to the Office of Administrative Law for a plenary hearing on the merits of petitioners' claims.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

The announced results of the balloting for one member of the Board of Education for a one-year unexpired term at the annual school election held April 20, 1993 in the school district of the Township of Upper Pittsgrove, Salem County, were as follows:

ONE-YEAR TERM	AT POLLS	ABSENTEE	TOTAL

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-15, the Commissioner of Education directed her authorized representative to conduct a recount of the ballots cast for the two Board candidates receiving an equal number of votes at the April 20, 1993 school election. The recount was conducted on May 11, 1993, at the office of Salem County Superintendent of Schools in Woodstown.

At the conclusion of the recount, the tally of the uncontested ballots counted, including the absentee ballot tally as reported by the County Board of Elections, for the two candidates receiving an equal number of votes stood as follows:

ONE-YEAR TERM	AT POLLS	ABSENTEE	TOTAL
Polly B. Deal	266	0	266
Herbert J. Wentzell	263	0	263

There were two (2) ballots identified by the Commissioner's representative as requiring a ruling by the Commissioner which were, therefore, not counted. Of the 546 total ballots cast, 529 were counted for the two candidates, two (2) ballots were questioned and fifteen (15) ballots were blank.

The two (2) questioned ballots were marked C-1 and C-2 for determination by the Commissioner.

C-1 has a vote cast for write-in candidate Ralph McQuade and a vote cast for Herbert J. Wentzell.

C-2 has a vote cast for both candidates, Polly B. Deal and Herbert J. Wentzell.

The questioned ballots would not have a bearing on the final outcome of the election as the difference in the tally was three (3) votes.

This concludes the report of the Commissioner's representative.

* * * * *

The Commissioner has reviewed the report of her authorized representative and adopts it as her own.

With respect to the two disputed ballots, the Commissioner notes that it is well established that ballots containing more votes than there are seats available will be voided; therefore, C-1 and C-2 are not to be counted and the tally on recount remains as reported by the Commissioner's representative above. In the Matter of the Annual School Election Held in the School District of the Township of Monroe, Gloucester County, 1973 S.L.D. 212, affirmed State Board 1974 S.L.D. 1413

Accordingly, the Commissioner finds and determines that Polly B. Deal was elected to a one-year unexpired term on the Upper Pittsgrove Township Board of Education at the annual school election held on April 20, 1993. The Commissioner further notes that an inquiry into the general conduct of this election is presently pending before the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) and directs that a copy of the within decision be forwarded to OAL for inclusion in the record of the inquiry.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, tenured learning disabilities consultant, challenged Board's recoupment of alleged salary overpayment of $999 made to petitioner due to clerical error during 1991-92 school year. Petitioner contended she did not agree to deductions in paychecks of January 17, and 31, 1992.

ALJ concluded there was no agreement between parties that petitioner would reimburse Board. A board of education cannot require the reimbursement of monies paid in error through no fault of the employee. (Trenton Education Association v. Trenton Bd. of Ed.) Board was ordered to repay petitioner $999. Moreover, ALJ denied pre-judgment interest, finding Board did not act in bad faith nor did it deliberately violate any statute or rule.

Commissioner aodpted findings and determination in initial decision.

Record Closed: March 12, 1993 Decided: April 23,1993

BEFORE BEATRICE S. TYLUTKI, ALJ:

This matter concerns the recoupment by the respondent, the Trenton Board of Education (Trenton), of an alleged salary overpayment during the 1991-92 school year. The petitioner, Deborah Kalapos, filed a petition challenging the recoupment, and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on May 15, 1992, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

The matter was initially scheduled for a prehearing conference on August 10, 1992, and was adjourned at the request of the respondent. The conference was rescheduled and took place on August 18, 1992. During the conference, Martin Sumners, Esq., represented the respondent, and Richard A. Friedman, Esq., represented the petitioner. Both agreed that the only issues in the matter are (1) whether Trenton had the right to recoup the amount of the overpayment and (2) whether the petitioner agreed to the recoupment. Also, the parties discussed the possibility of a settlement and of preparing a stipulation of facts in lieu of a hearing.

It was decided that the conference would be continued on September 3, 1992. This conference date was adjourned at the request of the petitioner, and was rescheduled for September 25, 1992. Because of my conflict, the conference was adjourned and took place on September 29, 1992. On that date, the parties indicated that there would be no settlement and that there was a need for a brief hearing as to the issue of whether the petitioner agreed to the recoupment. Since this is an affirmative defense issue, the Board was ordered to present its proofs first at the hearing. The hearing was scheduled for December 11, 1992, and was adjourned at the request of the respondent. The hearing took place on January 25, 1993. Both parties submitted briefs on March 5, 1993, and neither submitted a reply brief within the specified period. The record closed on March 12, 1993.

The parties stipulated to the following:

1. The petitioner is a certified and tenured learning disability consultant employed by the respondent since September 1, 1970.

2. In December of 1991, the petitioner was advised by respondent's payroll supervisor, Belinda Pinckney, that she had been overpaid $999 due to a clerical error.

3. Deductions in petitioner's pay were made in paychecks dated January 17, 1992, and January 31, 1992, to recover the overpayment.

4. There is a dispute between respondent and petitioner as to whether petitioner agreed to the deductions.

5. The above facts constitute the entire and complete stipulation of facts in this matter.

At the hearing, Ms. Pinckney stated that she first met the petitioner in 1991 when there was a problem with the computer-generated paychecks issued to the petitioner. In December 1991, Ms. Pinckney found out that there was an overpayment of $999 in a paycheck dated October 11, 1991. The petitioner does not deny that there was an overpayment; however, because she received irregular salary payments at that time (R-1), the petitioner was not aware of the overpayment when she received the October 11, 1991 check.

After she discovered the overpayment, Ms. Pinckney spoke to the petitioner by telephone, informed the petitioner of the overpayment and told her that the amount of the overpayment would be taken out of the next paycheck. According to Ms. Pinckney, the petitioner was concerned about having the amount taken out of the next paycheck because of the Christmas holiday, and they discussed the possibility of installment deductions in January. During this conversation, Ms. Pinckney stated that the petitioner had no objection to the reimbursement and had verbally agreed to the reimbursement.

Ms. Pinckney stated that she did not talk to her supervisor or Trenton's attorney before she called the petitioner, and she did not think that this reimbursement violated the petitioner's rights. Ms. Pinckney indicated that the current procedure is for the employee to come to the payroll office and sign a written reimbursement agreement. However, Ms. Pinckney was not sure when this procedure went into effect and whether her call to the petitioner occurred before the procedure was adopted. Ms. Pinckney denied telling the petitioner that she had to pay the amount of the overpayment. However, Ms. Pinckney did not advise the petitioner that she did not have to pay back the money. Ms. Pinckney stressed that she only told the petitioner the amount of the overpayment and the arrangement for reimbursement.

Ms. Kalapos confirmed that she spoke to Ms. Pinckney before Christmas regarding the October 11, 1991 overpayment. Ms. Kalapos stated she was surprised since she was not aware of the overpayment. According to petitioner, Ms. Pinckney told her the amount of the overpayment and that Trenton was going to take that amount out of her next paycheck. Ms. Kalapos stated that no one informed her that she did not have to reimburse Trenton and it was her understanding that the only option she had dealt with the arrangement for the payment. After the reimbursement, Ms. Kalapos was informed that she could have refused to reimburse Trenton.

Both parties agree that the case law has clearly established that a board of education cannot require the reimbursement of monies paid in error through no fault of the employee, Trenton Educ. Ass'n v. Trenton Bd. of Educ., 1986 S.L.D. 2415, Galop v. Hanover Bd. of Educ., 1975 S.L.D. 358, Honaker v. Hillsdale Bd. of Educ., 1980 S.L.D. 898, and Conti v. Montgomery Bd. of Educ., OAL DOCKET NO. EDU 7118-84 (April 25, 1985), rev'd, Comm'r of Educ. (June 10, 1985), rev'd, State Bd. (July 2, 1986).

Although Trenton recognizes that it cannot mandate the reimbursement, it contends that it is entitled to retain the money in this matter since Ms. Kalapos voluntarily agreed to the reimbursement and that she should be estopped from vacating the agreement.

Kathleen A. Naprstek, Esq., on behalf of the petitioner, disagrees and argues that Ms. Kalapos never voluntarily agreed to the reimbursement and, as a matter of law, she is entitled to the return of the money.

After reviewing the testimony of the parties, I agree with the petitioner's argument. Ms. Kalapos was never informed that she had the option of retaining the money paid in error. It is clear from the testimony that the only option given to Ms. Kalapos was the arrangement of the reimbursement. The fact that she requested a delay cannot be construed as a voluntary agreement to make the payment since she didn't think she had a choice. In order for the Board to be entitled to retain the money it has to show that the petitioner was aware that she had the right to retain the money and that she waived this right and voluntarily agreed to the reimbursement. See, Shebar v. Sanyo Business Sys. Corp., 111 N.J. 276, 290-91 (1988). The facts clearly established that there was no such waiver since Ms. Kalapos was not aware that she had the option.

Therefore, I CONCLUDE that there was no agreement between the parties that Ms. Kalapos would reimburse the respondent and I ORDER the respondent to repay $999 to the petitioner.

In her brief, Ms. Naprstek suggests that the petitioner is entitled to pre-judgment interest pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.16. A request for interest was included in the petition filed by Ms. Kalapos. Ms. Naprstek noted that in the 1986 Trenton Educ. Ass'n case, and in a recent case, Trenton Bd. of Educ. v. Trenton Ed. Ass'n, Agency Dkt. No. 455-9192 (Comm'r of Educ., Jan. 22, 1993), Trenton was admonished by the Commissioner of Education as to its efforts to obtain reimbursement of overpayments. Trenton did not respond to the petitioner's request for interest in its brief.

Having reviewed the provisions of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.16, I CONCLUDE that the petitioner is not entitled to pre-judgment interest. Trenton has taken the position in this matter that the petitioner agreed to the reimbursement and, even though I disagree, I CONCLUDE that its position was not taken in bad faith nor was it a deliberate violation of any statute or rule. Further, there is a factual difference between this case and the two prior Trenton decisions cited above. In the two prior cases, there was no allegation of an agreement by the parties as to the reimbursement.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, 7th Floor, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." The record and initial decision rendered by the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon careful and independent review of the record of this matter, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ's findings of fact and conclusions of law which establish that respondent is not entitled to recoup an overpayment paid to petitioner. See Trenton Education Association v. Trenton Board of Education, 1986 S.L.D. 2415.

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed in the initial decision, the Petition of Appeal is dismissed, with prejudice.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning citizen alleged Board violated federal and state special education laws and implementing regulations by subjecting students with disabilities to inappropriate psychological testing (Slosson Intelligence Test) at the time of their periodic updates and triennial evaluations. Petitioner sought investigation by respondent Division of Special Education; request was denied for lack of jurisdiction.

ALJ dismissed petition for failure to state cause of action. ALJ found selection of tools for evaluating is a matter left to professional judgment of those individuals who are immediately involved with students, provided that tests used meet general criteria of regulations. Petitioner's papers demonstrated his complaint was fundamentally one of professional disagreement about general value of Slosson Test even for purposes consistent with its intended and accepted usage. Division was therefore correct in finding complaint investigation procedure inappropriate in this instance. Petition was dismissed noting that claims of improper use in individual cases are properly resolved through due process proceedings.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision, noting that while there is debate about use and validity of Slosson and other intelligence tests, such debate cannot in itself serve as a basis to allege violation of law and compel investigation where the alleged facts and circumstances do not otherwise warrant.

Record Closed: March 9, 1993 Decided: April 20, 1993

BEFORE JOSEPH F. MARTONE, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The petitioner filed a petition of appeal with the Commissioner of Education on October 27, 1992, alleging that the school district of the Township of Jackson has violated Federal and State special education laws and implementing regulations by subjecting students with disabilities to inappropriate psychological testing at the time of their triennual reevaluations. Accordingly, petitioner sought an investigation of this allegation by the Division of Special Education. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on January 6, 1993, for hearing as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

On November 20, 1992, prior to the transmittal of this matter to the OAL, attorney for respondent filed an answer and a notice of motion to dismiss the petition for failure to state a claim or for summary disposition.

The matter was assigned to the undersigned Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) on February 26, 1993, and a telephone conference was scheduled for March 9, 1993. The telephone conference was held on March 9, 1993 and on that date, the parties agreed that they would rely upon their prior submissions with respect to the motion to dismiss or for summary decision. Accordingly, the record closed on March 9, 1993, with respect to the submissions on the motion and petitioner's responses thereto.

NATURE OF THE MOTION

In this matter, attorney for respondent has made a motion to dismiss or, in the alternative, for summary decision. Motion practice in the OAL is governed by the provisions of N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.1 to 12.7. These provisions do not specifically deal with a motion to dismiss such as has been made by respondent in this matter. However, N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b) provides that a motion for summary decision may be rendered if the papers and discovery which have been filed, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law.

While respondent has sought an order for summary decision as an alternative, the nature of respondent's motion is to dismiss for failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted. Such a motion is not included within the New Jersey Uniform Administrative Procedure Rules, N.J.A.C. 1:1-1.1 to -21.6. However, N.J.A.C. 1:1-1.3(a) provides that in the absence of a rule, a judge may proceed in accordance with the New Jersey Court Rules provided the rules are compatible with the purposes of achieving just results, simplicity in procedure, fairness in administration and the elimination of unjustifiable expense and delay.

Rule 4:6-2e of the New Jersey Court Rules permits a party to file a motion with briefs if the party is seeking the dismissal of a case for failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted. The courts approach with great caution applications for dismissal under this rule and have indicated that such a motion should be granted only in the rarest of instances and after it has been accorded meticulous and indulgent examination. Printing Mart v. Sharp Electronics, 116 N.J. 739, 771-772. In ruling on a motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim, all of the facts alleged in a complaint and the legitimate inferences drawn therefrom are deemed to be admitted. Polk v. Schwartz, 166 N.J. Super. 292 (App. Div. 1979). As was indicated in the Printing Mart case, the court is obligated to search the complaint in depth and with liberality in order to ascertain whether a cause of action may be gleaned even from obscure statements of a claim. C.B. Snyder Realty Co. v. Seeman Bros. Inc., 79 N.J. Super. 88 (App. Div. 1963).

In order to apply the foregoing principals in this matter, it is necessary to determine which of petitioner's pleadings must be examined in order to determine whether a cause of action has been stated. In order to make this determination, it is necessary to examine the regulations governing this proceeding.

GOVERNING REGULATIONS

Pursuant to the provisions of 20 U.S.C.A. §2831(a), the United States Secretary of Education is authorized to issue such regulations as are considered necessary to reasonably ensure that there is compliance with the specific requirements and assurances required by Federal education laws. Pursuant to this authority, the Secretary has adopted regulations found at 34 C.F.R. §300.660 to 300.662. Section 300.660 requires each state education agency (SEA) to adopt written procedures for resolving any complaint that meets the requirements of §300.662 by providing for the filing of a complaint with the SEA. Section 300.661 requires each SEA to include in its complaint procedures a time limit of 60 calendar days after a complaint is filed to carry out an independent on-site investigation if the SEA determines that such an investigation is necessary, give the complainant the opportunity to submit additional information about the allegations in the complaint, review all relevant information and issue a written decision setting forth findings of fact and conclusions and the reasons for the SEA's final decision. Section 300.662 provides that an organization or individual may file a signed written complaint which must include a statement that a public agency has violated a requirement of part B of the Act, and the facts on which the statement is based.

Pursuant to the foregoing requirements, N.J.A.C. 6:28-9.2(a) designates the Director of the Division of Special Education or his or her designee as being responsible for reviewing, investigating and taking action on any signed written complaint of substance regarding the provisions of special education and/or related services. The regulation goes on to require that the Division of Special Education shall complete such an investigation within 60 calendar days after a written complaint is received. N.J.A.C. 6:28-9.2(c) provides that a report of findings, conclusions and, when warranted, the required corrective actions shall be sent to the parties involved. Finally, N.J.A.C. 6:28-9.2(d) provides that upon receipt of the complaint investigation report, either party may appeal the findings and/or recommendations by filing a petition with the Commissioner of Education in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6:24 or the United States Secretary of Education in accordance with 34 C.F.R. 76.781.

DISCUSSION

Based upon the foregoing provisions, it now appears clear that the complaint which must be closely examined to determine whether its states a claim upon which relief can be granted is petitioner's letter of October 5, 1992 which was received by the Division of Special Education on September 20, 1992 (Exhibit C-1). This one-page letter had attached to it a four-page excerpt from the Seventh Mental Measurement Yearbook (Exhibit C-2) and 25 psychological evaluations variously referred to as either updates prior to a student's entering high school or periodic updates. These evaluations were dated between May 22, 1989 (Exhibits C-3, C-4 and C-10), to March 27, 1990 (Exhibit C-11). Each of these evaluations indicated that the Slosson Intelligent Test was administered as part of the evaluation. The majority of these evaluations indicated that the Wechsler Intelligence Scale for Children-Revised (WISC-R) had been previously administered to the student.

In his letter, petitioner alleges that his complaint relates to noncompliance with special education laws and to inappropriate psychological evaluations. Petitioner alleges that the psychologist at the Jackson School District continues to use the Slosson test as a basis for evaluating students intellectual levels. Petitioner asserts that based upon the Seventh Mental Measurements Yearbook the Slosson test appears to be available as a quick screening device. However, the uncritical use of the Slosson test as a substitute for Wechsler or Binet instruments is ill-advised. The letter of complaint also sets forth that it is of concern to the petitioner that in many cases attempts are made to justify the Slosson test scores when results are not consistent with Wechsler results.

In his letter of response, the Director of the Division of Special Education indicates that the Division has reviewed the complaint and has determined that petitioner's concerns were not within the jurisdiction of the Division to investigate in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6:28-9.2. The Director further advises petitioner of his right to appeal this determination to the United States Secretary of Education or to the Commissioner of Education.

While the Director's letter does not specifically set forth the grounds or basis for his determination that petitioner's concerns are not within the jurisdiction of the Division to investigate, respondent's Answer to the Petition of Appeal does elaborate on these reasons. Paragraph 11 of respondent's answer indicates that the value of the (Slosson) test is a matter of professional judgment or opinion and the value of the test is irrelevant to the question of whether the Division of Special Education has jurisdiction to investigate the complaint. In paragraph 12 of the Answer, respondent states that the value of the Slosson test is irrelevant to the issue of whether the Division of Special Education has jurisdiction to investigate the complaint. Paragraph 13 states that the allegations are a matter of opinion or professional judgment. Finally, in the Thirteenth Separate Defense, respondent asserts that it is not the function of the Department of Education to evaluate standardized tests that meet the requirements of N.J.A.C. 6:28-3.4(d)(5) but rather this is left to the professional judgment of the professional administering the test.

The position taken by the respondent in this matter has the support of Federal authorities. In response to an inquiry concerning reliance on the basis of an IQ score, Robert R. Davila, Assistant Secretary, stated at 18 IDELR1231 (May 1, 1992):

> In the evaluation process, the role of professional judgment in decision-making cannot be overlooked. In terms of the scores that a student obtains during testing, the true score falls somewhere along a confidence interval . . . Decisions about this score value are left to the judgment of the professional administering the test. See, 34 C.F.R. §300.532(a)(3).
> In 34 C.F.R. §300.532(a)(3), a foundation is provided for the use of professional judgment in the interpretation of evaluation data used for the determination of student eligibility for special education and related services.

In this matter, petitioner asserts that psychologists in the Jackson school district continued to use the Slosson test as a basis for evaluating students intellectual levels and asserts that in many cases efforts are made to justify the Slosson test scores when results are not consistent with WISC-R results. No additional information is provided by petitioner. Thus, the Division of Special Education has been left to guess in what way petitioner asserts that the Slosson tests has been inappropriately used. Each of the evaluations provided by petitioner make it clear that these are updates prior to the student entering high school or they are part of a triennial reevaluation. Thus, it may be that the psychologist possesses other data, materials and information relating to the student's intellectual assessment and that the Slosson test is merely being utilized to confirm other assessments. In addition, it appears clear that the school psychologist, in comparing the Slosson test results with prior WISC-R testing, is making the determination that the test results are relatively similar and that there has been no significant change on the part of the student.

As attorney for respondent points out, the Seventh Mental Measurements Yearbook does not indicate that the Slosson test should never be used. Even if it is assumed that the Seventh Mental Measurements Yearbook is a learned treatise, Fed R. Evid. 803(18), it still amounts to no more than the opinion of the author. There may be other professionals who do not agree with the opinions expressed by the author of the Seventh Mental Measurements Yearbook.

The choice of a standardized test is left to the professional judgment of the child study team, and its members, as long as the test meets the four criteria established in N.J.A.C. 6:28-3.4(d)(5). However, the selection of tools for evaluating is a matter that is left to the professional judgment of those individuals who are immediately involved with the student.

Thus, although the assertions in petitioner's letter of complaint must be taken as true, petitioner has cited no authority to establish that respondent has an obligation and responsibility to investigate decisions made by experts in their professional judgment. The type of inquiry which the petitioner seeks in this matter is best made at a due process hearing convened pursuant to 20 U.S.C.A. §1415. (b) and involving the professionals responsible for the evaluation of the special education student. It is only then that all of the facts and circumstances giving rise to the decision made by the school psychologist or other expert to use a particular test can best be evaluated and its validity determined.

DECISION AND ORDER

Based upon the foregoing, it is hereby ORDERED that petitioner's appeal be DISMISSED for failure to state a cause of action.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Timely exceptions were filed by petitioner pursuant to the provisions of N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4. Respondent requested an extension of time in which to submit a reply to these exceptions, which request was denied on grounds that it would impede issuance of the Commissioner's determination within the 45-day statutory deadline. Subsequently, respondent filed a motion to suppress petitioner's exceptions because they included as exhibits documents not introduced into evidence in proceedings before the ALJ. The Commissioner declines to entertain this motion, as it raises issues properly within the purview of reply exceptions and was submitted well beyond the period permitted for such replies; however, in so declining, the Commissioner notes that the disputed documents, while in fact not introduced into evidence, are included in the record of this matter as transmitted to the Commissioner by the Office of Administrative Law.

In his exceptions, petitioner first argues that the ALJ erred in dismissing his appeal based on the original letter requesting a complaint investigation rather than on the contents of his petition and amended documentation, which, he claims, contain ample basis to demonstrate that his challenge to the Division of Special Education's determination did indeed deserve a hearing on the merits. Petitioner further contends that the ALJ erred in considering and weighing petitioner's substantive evidence in deciding a motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim, rather than confining himself to the sufficiency of petitioner's pleadings as would have been proper in a matter of this type. Finally, petitioner claims that he was denied discovery by respondent pending the outcome of its motion to dismiss, and that had he had such discovery and the proper opportunity to present his evidence, he would have been able to demonstrate that the Division of Special Education had jurisdiction to investigate his complaint.

Upon careful review of this matter, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that the Petition of Appeal should be dismissed.

It is clear from the letter and supporting attachments originally filed with the Division of Special Education, as well as from the further explication and clarification provided by petitioner in conjunction with the instant appeal, that the essence of petitioner's complaint--no matter how he casts it or how much of the requested information he may have been able to obtain from respondent on discovery had his case proceeded--is his professional belief that a particular testing instrument is uniformly inappropriate for use in special education evaluations of any type and should be disallowed altogether in this context. However, petitioner's own filings demonstrate--nor does he claim otherwise--that the disputed test is not being used in initial evaluations or for placement purposes, nor is it being routinely used as the sole standardized instrument in the periodic updates and re-evaluations of which petitioner complains; to the contrary, it is being used in a manner consistent with its stated purposes as derived from petitioner's own supporting papers, with its administration and interpretation in each child's case left to the judgment and discretion of the evaluating professional. Under these factual circumstances, where the issue is manifestly one of disagreement in professional judgment rather than of generally improper use, the Division of Special Education acted appropriately in determining, after review of petitioner's letter and supporting papers, that petitioner's concerns were not of the type proper for pursuit through the complaint investigation procedure set forth in N.J.A.C. 6:28-9.2.

The Commissioner further notes that, while it is evident that there is a lively academic and professional debate about the use and validity of the Slosson Intelligence Test, and indeed, of most standardized intelligence tests, such debate cannot in itself serve as a basis to allege violation of law, and hence warrant investigation or interdiction, when a professional exercises his trained judgment and lawful discretion and generally elects to use a particular instrument even in the face of stated disagreement by another professional, so long as the test is being used, as herein, consistent with its accepted purpose. In cases where such use may be individually inappropriate, as noted by the ALJ, remedy lies in use of available due process proceedings.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law dismissing the Petition of Appeal is affirmed for the reasons expressed therein together with the reasons set forth above.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Petitioners, 14 high school teachers, challenged Board's withholding of their salary and adjustment increments due to excessive absenteeism or unsatisfactory evaluations.

ALJ dismissed appeals of five petitioners who did not appear at hearing. Following review of record, testimony and evidence, ALJ concluded Board's withholding of increments of remaining petitioners was not arbitrary, without rational basis or induced by improper motives. ALJ affirmed withholdings.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision, noting ALJ did address each petitioner's individual circumstances before affirming withholdings.

BEFORE JOSEPH F. MARTONE, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioners challenge the withholding of their salary increments and salary adjustments claiming that they were inappropriately withheld in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14. This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on January 10, 1990, for hearing as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. The matter was then scheduled for a telephone prehearing conference before the Honorable Ward R. Young, ALJ, on April 11, 1990. The telephone prehearing conference was adjourned at the request of the attorney for petitioners due to his unavailability and it was rescheduled for May 9, 1990. It was thereupon assigned to the undersigned ALJ.

The telephone prehearing conference scheduled for May 9, 1990, was adjourned due to the illness of attorney for respondent, and it was rescheduled for May 21, 1990. A telephone prehearing conference was held on May 21, 1990 and a prehearing order was entered on May 31, 1990 settling the procedures in this matter. A hearing was scheduled for October 24, 26, 30 and 31 and November 2 and 14, 1990.

On June 27, 1990, attorney for respondent filed a motion to dismiss the petition of appeal for failing to comply with the ninety day time limit set forth in N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2. By letter dated July 25, 1990, attorney for respondent withdrew the motion. The scheduled hearings on October 24 and 26, 1990 were adjourned at the request of attorney for respondent. The hearings scheduled for October 30 and 31, 1990 were adjourned due to court scheduling conflicts. The hearing scheduled for November 2, 1990 was adjourned due to a death in the family of attorney for respondent. The hearing of November 14, 1990 was adjourned at the joint request of both attorneys in order to afford them an opportunity to prepare and submit a stipulated statement of facts in order to avoid the necessity for a hearing. The matter was rescheduled for November 27, 1990, but this was adjourned at the joint request of both attorneys since neither was available on that date and neither had taken steps to prepare the joint stipulation of undisputed facts.

When counsel failed to submit the agreed upon stipulation of facts by January 19, 1991, a hearing was rescheduled for April 19, 1991. The hearing commenced on that date with the expectation that counsel would submit stipulated facts. No facts were stipulated at that time and when the hearing was not concluded on that date the hearing was rescheduled to continue on the earliest available dates which were September 19 and 25, 1991.

The hearing concluded on September 25, 1991. Both attorneys requested that the record remain open pending their receipt of transcripts and that they be given an opportunity to submit written closing arguments. The attorneys agreed to provide written closing arguments including proposed findings of fact and conclusions of law 45 days after their receipt of transcripts in this matter.

Both attorneys submitted legal arguments on or about May 19, 1992. Through inadvertence on the part of the ALJ, the record remained open pending receipt of additional submissions. It was eventually determined by the ALJ to close the record on November 17, 1992, and that no further submissions were to be accepted from the parties.

Because of the extensive testimony and voluminous documentary evidence, and because of the long delays between hearing dates and between the conclusion of the hearing and the consideration of the record for this Initial Decision an extension of time to render this Initial Decision was required.

Petitioners Mary Dombrowski Rosemary Hurtado, Marsha Brooks, Roosevelt Wright and David Haines failed to appear at any of the scheduled hearing dates in this matter and accordingly with respect to these five petitioners the petition shall be deemed to have been abandoned.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

Michael Faccone

Petitioner Michael Faccone, a math teacher assigned to Dickinson High School was subject to the withholding of his salary increment for school year 1989-90 for unsatisfactory ratings (J-1).

Mr. Faccone testified that in June, 1989, he was advised by Ann Butler, Principal of Dickinson High School that his increment was to be withheld. He indicated that he had received no notification prior to that time.

Mr. Faccone was provided an Observation/Evaluation Report dated February 23, 1989 (Exhibit D-1) by Anita R. DeRosa, Supervisor of Compensatory Mathematics. Mr. Faccone testified that at the meeting following the evaluation, he met with Ms. DeRosa and she advised him that she did not like the looks of his plan book and that he lacked objectives and examples. Mr. Faccone admitted that he did not have objectives in the plan book, but that they were exhibited on the board for the students. Mr. Faccone also indicated that Ms. DeRosa advised him that she did not like the way he was dressed and for that reason he was given an unsatisfactory rating in the category of exhibiting of professional attitude and manner. Mr. Faccone testified that there is no dress code in the Jersey City school system, but admitted that he had been previously advised by another administrator concerning the need to dress professionally. With respect to the unsatisfactory rating regarding implementing and enforcing school rules, administrative regulations and board policy, Mr. Faccone believed that this had to do with his attendance.

Mr. Faccone testified that he was evaluated again on May 25, 1989 by Ms. Butler (Exhibit D-2). He indicated that he received one unsatisfactory rating because she did not like his plan book.

On cross-examination, Mr. Faccone testified that he was never previously a warned by anyone concerning his attendance. Mr. Faccone indicated that in 1987 he was absent 97 days, but that no one told him that 97 absences during the year was not satisfactory. In school year 1987-88 he was absent approximately 28 days, and in 1988-89 he was absent for 30 or more days, but he felt that these absences were satisfactory under the circumstances since they were for legitimate reasons. He indicated that when he was absent he was replaced by a substitute teacher who may or may not have been licensed. However, he felt that certified substitute teachers are able to teach as well as he.

Mr. Faccone also testified that on the date of his evaluation by Ms. DeRosa he was considered late because he was not standing in front of his room. However, he indicated that he was in his class when the bell rang and that Ms. DeRosa's statement that he was five minutes late is inaccurate.

On redirect examination Mr. Faccone testified that he was out 97 days in 1986-87 because he was waiting for surgery on a knee which he hurt in a work related incident.

Anita DeRosa, Program Supervisor of Mathematics, testified that on February 23, 1989, she observed Mr. Faccone and prepared an Observation/Evaluation Report (Exhibit D-1). Ms. DeRosa testified that she gave Mr. Faccone an unsatisfactory rating in the category "assesses needs and evaluates progress of pupils" because there were no student improvement plans available for her review and there were no test grades recorded in the role book for the students in the class. In addition, Mr. Faccone was given an unsatisfactory for employing effective organization and planning because there was no plan book. Ms. DeRosa explained that a plan book is important because it is necessary to know the skills that a teacher wants to teach to the students and a plan book organizes a teacher's thoughts. A plan book also insures that a teacher follows a prescribed curriculum and it is necessary for continuity. Ms. DeRosa testified that in the absence of a plan book, the students are being cheated of a guide for their education. Ms. DeRosa also testified that she gave an unsatisfactory to Mr. Faccone in the category of exhibiting professional attitudes and manner because he was five minutes late to class thereby not giving his students his fullest attention. Ms. DeRosa also indicated that she gave an unsatisfactory to Mr. Faccone in the category implementing and enforcing school rules, administrative regulations and board policy because he engaged in a game with the students where the winning student or would not have homework assigned over the weekend. Ms. DeRosa indicated that it is contrary to board of education policy not be assign homework. Finally, Ms. DeRosa indicated that she advised Mr. Faccone that his attendance needed improvement. She explained that continuity of instruction for the students is important and that if a teacher is not present the students are being deprived of an education. She explained that this class was a basic skills class and it is necessary that the students have the benefit of having a teacher to teach them properly. She indicated that when a teacher is absent, other teachers are asked to cover and the covering teacher may have no knowledge of mathematics. As a result the education of the students is disrupted and in some instances there is no instruction.

On cross-examination Ms. DeRosa indicated that Mr. Faccone did not assign homework at the end of his class and that the policy of the school district is to require homework assignments for each class. She also indicated that she did not consider Mr. Faccone's absences in arriving at any of the unsatisfactory performance ratings. Ms. DeRosa also indicated that the individual student improvement plans were not available in the classroom but that Mr. Faccone indicated that they would be made available. She also indicated that she did not recall following up to see if the plans were available. She also indicated that Mr. Faccone was not addressing those skills and student weaknesses necessary in order to have the students pass the high school proficiency test, which was the purpose of the class. Ms. DeRosa also indicated that when she questioned Mr. Faccone as to why he was five minutes late he said that it was because he was clearing the hall of students. She indicated that this is not part of his teaching duties when he has an obligation to be in class on time.

On redirect examination, Mr. Faccone indicated that he was absent in school year 1986-87 (Exhibit D-5) because he sustained a work related injury in June 1985. In January 1986 he had a knee operation because of this injury.

Ann E. Butler, a Principal in the Jersey City School District also testified that she conducted an evaluation of Mr. Faccone on May 25, 1989 (Exhibit D-2). She indicated that she recalled speaking to Mr. Faccone regarding his absentee record because he was absent 35 days for that school year. She indicated that a teacher's absences effects his ability to teach because it takes away from teaching and the learning by the students. She testified that substitutes are provided or other teachers are assigned during their on-call periods to cover the class, and if a lesson plan is left, the substitute will follow it. If there is no lesson plan the substitute will try to get something from the department chairperson to keep the students busy. However, a substitute or a teacher who covers usually babysits. She indicated that there is a difference between the regular teacher teaching and a substitute or on-call teacher. On cross-examination Ms. Butler indicated that she probably spoke to Mr. Faccone concerning his absenteeism and she used the word "probably" because she could not remember exact dates when she spoke to him about his absenteeism.

Ms. Butler indicated that based upon the evaluation of Mr. Faccone she recommended the withholding of his increment. She indicated that on her Observation/Evaluation Report (Exhibit D-2) an unsatisfactory rating was given to Mr. Faccone for employing effective organization and planning because he failed to have his plan book available. she stated that teachers are required to have plan books at all times. Ms. Butler also testified that Mr. Faccone failed to have objective to the lesson as to what the students were going to be learning on the date of her evaluation. Finally, Ms. Butler indicated that her recommendation to withhold Mr. Faccone's increment was based only upon her report, and that one unsatisfactory rating is a sufficient basis for denying an increment.

Mr. Faccone testified on rebuttal that Ms. Butler evaluated him only one time. Mr. Faccone testified that he has a plan book but the lesson that Ms. Butler came in to observe was not in the plan book because he had started to review with the class. As a result, he had to put something together while Ms. Butler was present. He indicated that he had finished all course instruction for the year and that he was reviewing for the final exam. Accordingly, Mr. Faccone testified that the plan book existed and it was in the classroom but that they only plan for that day was to review material for the final exam.

Jerome Kacprowicz

The employment increment of Jerome Kacprowicz, a history teacher, for the 1989-90 school year was withheld for the reason of chronic and excessive absenteeism (Exhibit J-1). Mr. Kacprowicz testified that prior to the denial of this increment he was never disciplined in any manner.

Mr. Kacprowicz testified that the school board does not have any kind of attendance policy and that the rule of thumb has been that a teacher is entitled to use sick days up to the amount in the teacher's sick leave bank. If a teacher is out a certain number of days within a 30-day period, the teacher is required to provide a medical doctor's explanation for the absences.

Mr. Kacprowicz testified that in none of the years that he was sick did he ever exceed the number of days in his sick leave bank. He also has never been denied any increment as a result of being absent.

Mr. Kacprowicz identified his Annual Performance Report dated June 23, 1989 (Exhibit D-14). He testified that he was not aware until August , 1989, that the principal, Ann E. Butler recommended against his increment because of excessive absenteeism. He indicated that Ms. Butler never communicated her concern regarding his absences and never advised that his increment was in jeopardy based upon his attendance record.

On cross-examination Mr. Kacprowicz testified that his absences of 31 days for the 1986-87 school year (Exhibit D-8) and his absences of 32 days for the 1987-88 school year (Exhibit D-9) were satisfactory because his absences were for legitimate reasons. He admitted that at the time of his evaluation that he reviewed his Observation/Evaluation Report of March 31, 1987 (Exhibit D-11) wherein it was suggested that he reduce his absences to benefit his students, the school and himself because a teacher is a role model. Mr. Kacprowicz also indicated that he was aware of the Observation/Evaluation Report of January 14, 1988 (Exhibit D-12) which indicated that better teacher attendance is beneficial to students, school and teacher. Finally, Mr. Kacprowicz indicated that he reviewed the Observation/Evaluation Report of March 15, 1989 (Exhibit D-13), also indicating that his attendance needed improvement.

Mr. Kacprowicz testified that when he was absent he made sure that he sent in assignments for his students in order to maintain continuity with his classes.

Ms. Butler identified the teacher attendance records for Mr. Kacprowicz (Exhibits D-8, D-9 and D-10). She indicated that her prior testimony regarding how teacher absences effects the educational services received by students applies equally to a history teacher as to a teacher of mathematics. Ms. Butler testified that when she signed Mr. Kacprowicz's Annual Performance Report (Exhibit D-14) she mistakenly recommended him for an increment but that she corrected this mistake and she indicated that the reason for recommending the denial of the increment was based on his excessive absenteeism. Ms. Butler testified that she spoke to Mr. Kacprowicz every year concerning his poor attendance. She recalls telling him on prior occasions that he was out too much and that she would recommend withholding his increment. However, nothing ever came of it. She testified that she previously recommended withholding the increment of Mr. Kacprowicz but that the school board did not follow through.

On cross-examination Ms. Butler testified that Mr. Kacprowicz was aware prior to June 23, 1989 that his increment was in jeopardy because a letter was sent advising him of this. She admitted that in no year did Mr. Kacprowicz use in excess of the number of sick days accumulated in his sick leave bank. Ms. Butler stated that while there was no comparative measurement of the effect of the absences of Mr. Kacprowicz on his students, that it is incredible to believe that the students got everything they should have out of the class because of his absences.

Susan Velardi

Susan Velardi's employment increment for the 1989-90 school year was withheld for the reason of chronic or excessive absenteeism (Exhibit J-1). Ms. Velardi testified that she had resigned from the school district in February, 1990. At the time of her resignation she was employed as a mathematics teacher at Dickinson High School.

Ms. Velardi testified that prior to the withholding of her increment, she had never been disciplined in any fashion. She indicated that in September, 1986, she fell accidentally in school, hit her head and slid down the stairs and as a result she was absent on those days shown as "s.a." on her teacher attendance record for school year 1987-87 (Exhibit D-15). In addition, Ms. Velardi testified that in 1987 and 1988, she was out on various days because of severe migraine headaches and medication caused by the September, 1986 injury.

Ms. Velardi testified that for the 1988-89 school year, she was out 177 days, which is virtually the entire school year, because she was a passenger in a car involved in an accident (Exhibit D-17). Ms. Velardi testified that she did not exceed her sick leave bank for 1988-89 and that at the beginning of the year she had sufficient days in her sick leave bank to cover any absences. She testified that no one advised her at that time that as a consequence of her involvement in the automobile accident that her increment was in jeopardy. She did indicate that she received the certified letter in the summer of 1989 saying that the school board was meeting concerning her increment.

On an Observation/Evaluation Report of April 21, 1988, (Exhibit D-18) there is noted that teacher attendance is an area needing improvement. The same is true with regard to the Observation/Evaluation Report of March 28, 1988 (Exhibit D-19).

Ms. Velardi testified that in the year 1988-89 she did not receive any communication from respondent that because she was out for virtually the entire school year her increment was going to be denied.

Ann Butler, Principal of Dickinson High School, testified that Ms. Velardi came in the first two days of school year 1988-89, and then commenced requesting leaves of absences for the balance of the entire year. As a result there were problems with covering Ms. Velardi's mathematics class. Because of these absences, Ms. Velardi was not present to teach and there was no way to measure her performance. Because of the inability to evaluate Ms. Velardi's performance, Ms. Butler indicated that her increment was recommended to be withheld.

On cross-examination Ms. Butler indicated that Ms. Velardi's requests for leaves of absences were approved by the Board of Education and that they were apparently for legitimate purposes.

Monica Meadē-Stephens

The employment increment of Monica Meade-Stephens for 1989-90 was withheld for reason of chronic and excessive absenteeism (Exhibit J-1). Mrs. Stephens is a Spanish teacher assigned to Dickinson High School. She testified that prior to the withholding of this increment she was never disciplined or denied an increment.

Ms. Stephens testified that in August 1989, she was notified by letter that the school board was to consider the denial of her increment. She indicated that prior to that letter she was never counseled or notified that her absences may have an impact on her increment.

Ms. Stephens indicated that in the 1986-87 school year she had two leaves of absence beginning in January, 1987, when she had her eighth operation for diverticulitis. Her teacher attendance record for 1986-87 (Exhibit D-20) shows 119 days absent. Ms. Stephens was also absent a total of 55 days in 1987-88 (Exhibit D-21). She explained that she has a condition as a result of her operations called ulcerative colitis. Ms. Stephens indicated that she was not advised during that school year that any of her illnesses or absences would result in action being taken against her and that no action was taken against her. For school year 1988-89 Ms. Stephens was absent for 43 days for the same reasons. She indicated that the school was aware of her illness but at no time did anyone advise her that her absences are a detriment to her teaching efforts or that they may impact on her getting an increment.

On cross-examination Ms. Stephens indicated that every time she was absent it was because she was ill and that her illness prevented her from performing her teaching duties. Ms. Stephens indicated that even though she was absent for extended periods in prior school years, and even though she was having sporadic relapses, her increments were not withheld in those prior years.

Ann Butler testified that she discussed her attendance record with Ms. Stephens quite often. She testified that in January, 1988, Ms. Stephens' absences were becoming excessive, and that she inquired of Ms. Stephens concerning her absences. She indicated that Ms. Stephens's students were getting upset because of her absences and the resulting impact on their grades and their futures. After her discussion with Ms. Stephens, there was some improvement in her attendance in February, and March, 1988. However, in April, 1988, Ms. Stephens was absent 15 days and she was absent for 9 additional days in May and June, 1988. According to Ms. Butler, she again spoke to Ms. Stephens concerning her excessive absences, prior to the close of the 1987-88 school year.

Ms. Stephens attendance record improved slightly for the 1988-89 school year. She was absent 43 days as opposed to 55 days for the prior school year. However, Ms. Butler indicated that 43 days absent is a significant amount of time and it is difficult to obtain substitute Spanish teachers. Ms. Butler testified that she again discussed the excessive absences with Ms. Stephens during school year 1988-89, and that the response of Ms. Stephens was to explain her illnesses, and the pressures and difficulties she was facing in her personal life. Ms. Butler explained that the bottom line was that a teacher is required to be present in order to teach students and that the record did not show improvement. Ms. Butler indicated that discussions with Ms. Stephens occurred quite often.

Ms. Butler testified that following an evaluation on March 15, 1989, she discussed with Ms. Stephens her absences and excessive latenesses.

Ms. Butler indicated on cross-examination that she recommended the withholding of Ms. Stephens' increment on the basis of excessive absenteeism and excessive lateness. Ms. Butler also testified that a pool substitute teacher was assigned to the school and that she has a certification in Spanish. She was assigned to substitute when a Spanish teacher was absent. However, Ms. Butler also indicated that if two Spanish teachers were absent, the pool substitute would only be able to replace one of them.

Ms. Butler also admitted that prior evaluations did not mention excessive absenteeism. However, she indicated that she verbally advised Ms. Stephens of her excessive absences at the time of the prior evaluations.

Margaret Sullivan

The 1989-90 employment increment of Margaret Sullivan was withheld for reasons of chronic and excessive absenteeism (Exhibit J-1). Ms. Sullivan is assigned to Ferris High School teaching Spanish to Hispanic students. Ms. Sullivan testified that in March, 1989, she received a letter from Mr. Matthews indicating that there was some concern about her attendance. At that time, she had been absent 10 or 11 days. Ms. Sullivan indicated that she met with Mr. Matthews and he told her that if she continued to show improvement in her attendance there would be no increment withholding. She indicated that between March and June, 1989, she was absent two or three times. However, she had a sufficient number of days in her sick leave bank to cover these absences. She also indicated that she is allowed sick leave and personal leave of 16 days in any school year without any loss of pay. Ms. Sullivan indicated that the most absences that she had in prior years was 19 days involving illnesses and deaths in the immediate family. She also indicated that she is not aware of any board policy concerning absences.

Ms. Sullivan testified that over the years her students continually improved and that they had a satisfactory success rate as a result of her instruction.

Ms. Sullivan testified that after the discussion with Mr. Matthews in March, 1989, no further discussion occurred concerning her attendance.

On cross-examination, Ms. Sullivan indicated that the Observation/Evaluation Report of December 12, 1986 (Exhibit D-29) suggested improvement in her absenteeism. In addition, the Observation/Evaluation Report of March 17, 1988 (Exhibit D-30) indicated that Ms. Sullivan should attempt to improve her attendance record and that teacher absences impact heavily on the continuity of instruction. Ms. Sullivan also identified a memorandum addressed to her referring to a meeting on May 9, 1989, advising that she had been late 39 days and absent 12 days (Exhibit D-32).

Ms. Sullivan testified that in the post-evaluation conference for the evaluation of March 17, 1988, the evaluator did not mention attendance.

Mr. Terrence Matthews, Principal of Ferris High School, testified that on October 13, 1987, a memo addressed to the faculty was sent out advising them that the school district was attempting to improve faculty attendance based on a State and local board initiative (Exhibit D-36). An attendance improvement plan was developed and submitted to the superintendent and a goal of 97 percent attendance was established.

Mr. Matthews testified that the attendance improvement plan was implemented by discussions with staff members, posting of percentage of attendance for students and faculty for each month and providing copies to the faculty and keeping a log on latenesses and attendance. Mr. Matthew indicated that the approach they were looking at was not so much number of days absent but "instances" of absence. He explained that if a teacher was out five days with the flu, that was considered one instance of absence. A figure of seven or more instances of absence resulted in a conference with individuals concerning their attendance. Eventually, after a period of time, some individuals were recommended to have their increments withheld because of their pattern of absences over a period of years.

Mr. Matthews testified that Ms. Sullivan's attendance for the 1986-87 school year (Exhibit D-35) of 14 days absent at one or two days at a time is disruptive of the educational process. Ms. Sullivan's absences for the 1987-88 school year totaling 19 days (Exhibit D-37) is less then satisfactory. Finally, based upon Ms. Sullivan's absences for the 1988-89 school year (Exhibit D-38) consisting of 13 days absent it was recommended that her increment be withheld.

Mr. Matthews indicated that when he was considering withholding Mr. Sullivan's increment, it was narrowed down to a number of teachers which he felt had enough warning and enough conferences. These teacher were given an opportunity for a hearing, but Ms. Sullivan failed to request such a hearing. As a result, it was recommended that her increment be withheld.

Mr. Matthews testified that a teacher's absences effect students because a student cannot be taught if a teacher is not present. With a substitute, the quality of the teaching is not the same. Mr. Matthews also testified that Ms. Sullivan was late a substantial number of times and that she was advised as to the negative impact of the latenesses. Mr. Matthews testified that lateness is an absence for a period time. However, because Ms. Sullivan's increment was withheld for absenteeism, the ALJ held that evidence related to lateness was irrelevant to these proceedings.

Mr. Matthews testified that information was given to teachers alerting them that if they were out more than a certain number of days their increment would be denied. A teacher was warned once they hit seven instances of absences, that the increment may be denied in the discretion of the administration. However, it would depend upon the circumstances of the absences and the teacher's historical pattern of absences. On cross-examination Mr. Matthews further indicated that while there was no specific written policy with respect to the number of absences required for withholding of an increment, that it would depend upon the circumstances of each case and that it is an educational judgment depending on the circumstances and the teacher's historical pattern of absences.

On rebuttal, Ms. Sullivan testified that all of her absences were for reasons of personal illness. She also indicated that when she spoke with Mr. Matthews in March, 1989, he was the only one who spoke to her concerning her absences and that he advised her that the letter was a formality and that if she showed improvement no action would be taken and her increment would not be withheld.

Joseph Miceli

The employment increment and adjustment increment of Joseph Miceli was withheld for school year 1989-90 for reasons of chronic and excessive absenteeism (Exhibit J-1). Mr. Miceli testified that he is an instrumental teacher/band director at Ferris High School, and in connection with his position he is in school at 8:30 a.m. and most of the time he leaves between 5:00 and 5:30 p.m. He is also coordinator of the music department.

Mr. Miceli testified that none of his prior evaluations mentioned attendance. The first time he was aware that attendance was of concern was as a result of a letter he received on March 8, 1989, wherein Mr. Matthews advised that he was recommending the withholding of any monetary compensation. No one from the administration met with him to discuss his attendance prior to that letter. Following that letter, Mr. Miceli requested a meeting. At that meeting, Mr. Miceli specifically advised that he was absent due to illnesses consisting of an occasional virus and on other occasions because he suffers from what he called a "spastic colon" which causes diarrhea. Up until the date Mr. Miceli received the letter he was absent twelve days. In addition, he testified that in no school year was he absent more than 21 days, which occurred in 1983-84. Mr. Miceli testified that he never received any warning whatsoever that his increment was in jeopardy prior to March, 1989.

On cross-examination Mr. Miceli indicated that prior to March, 1989, he was never advised in writing that his attendance needed improvement. Mr. Miceli's Observations/Evaluation Report of February 12, 1987 (Exhibit D-40) indicates attendance as a area needing improvement to enable students to attain a sense of continuity of the subject being taught. However, Mr. Miceli testified that he was never notified formally that his attendance would result in withholding of an increment. In addition, the Annual Performance Report of June 15, 1987 (Exhibit D-41) indicates that attendance is an area needing improvement. Likewise, the Observations/Evaluation Report of April 28, 1988 (Exhibit D-42) indicates attendance must be improve as per district and State requirements so that students can sense continuity of subject being taught. Mr. Miceli denied having received a memo addressed to him from Terrence Matthews dated February 15, 1989 (Exhibit D-43). With respect to Mr. Miceli's absences by year (Exhibit D-44) Mr. Miceli indicated that it is possible it might be off by a day but it appears to be a correct record of his absences.

Terrence Matthews identified the attendance record of Mr. Miceli for school year 1986-87 (Exhibit D-45), his attendance record for 1987-88 (Exhibit D-46), and a memo listing Mr. Miceli's absences by various years (Exhibit D-44). Mr. Matthews testified that the absences by year dating back to 1973-74 was obtained from the attendance records on file in the school.

Mr. Matthews also testified that the memo dated February 15, 1989 to Mr. Miceli (Exhibit D-43) was sent to him on that date. He stated that he discussed Mr. Miceli's attendance with him on many occasions over the years. He indicated that these discussions were to the effect that Mr. Miceli had to improve his attendance, that his absences were too high and that while he sympathized with the reasons it was having a negative impact. Mr. Matthews testified that Mr. Miceli gave as the reasons for his absences that his son was ill.

Mr. Matthews testified that he recommended the withholding of Mr. Miceli's increment for 1989-90 because Mr. Miceli had been warned in the two prior school years, and his record of attendance was not getting any better.

On cross-examination Mr. Matthews indicated that Mr. Miceli's past record of absences was considered and that his improvement from twenty-one days absent in 1986-87 to sixteen days in 1988-89 was not a sufficient improvement. In addition, Mr. Matthews testified that he knows Mr. Miceli received the memo of February 15, 1989 (Exhibit D-43), because they discussed its contents.

Mr. Matthews testified that Mr. Miceli's sporadic absences had an effect on the continuity of education because the instruction process is not occurring even though the youngsters are being covered. Other teachers cover the class on their on-call periods.

William Millevoi also testified that at the time of his Observations/Evaluation Report of February 12, 1987, he discussed with Mr. Miceli the need to improve his attendance. (Exhibit D-4). He also indicated that attendance was discussed with Mr. Miceli at the time of the Annual Performance Report dated June 15, 1987 (Exhibit D-41), and at the time of the Observation/Evaluation Report of April 28, 1988 (Exhibit D-42). He testified that he discussed with Mr. Miceli his attendance problem on many occasions. Mr. Millevoi indicated that when a faculty member is out in excess of eight days as set forth in the Observation/Evaluation Report of February 12, 1987 (Exhibit D-40). This violates the policy set forth in the memo of October 13, 1987 (Exhibit D-36) and that a warning is necessary.

Mr. Millevoi testified that the reduction in the number of Mr. Miceli's absences over the years was a numerical improvement but not an educational improvement.

John Zaucha

The employment increment of John Zaucha for school year 1989-90 was withheld for reasons of chronic and excessive absenteeism (Exhibit J-1). Mr. Zaucha testified that he had been employee for seventeen years and that he had never been denied an increment until school year 1989-90. He testified that the first notification that his increment was going to be denied was by letter received by him in August, 1989.

Mr. Zaucha testified that in school year 1988-89 he was teaching at both Dickinson High School and Ferris High School on a split schedule. He teaches cooperative industrial education which is a program for special education students.

Mr. Zaucha testified that in school year 1988-89 he was evaluated by Richard O'Brien, Vice-principal of Ferris High School. He indicated that he spends most of his time at Ferris High School because his office is there but he reported to Dickinson High School every day. His evaluations during the 1988-89 school year were excellent and he was recommended for an increment (Exhibit D-55). Accordingly, he had no knowledge that his increment was in jeopardy until August, 1989.

Mr. Zaucha testified that he received a letter listing how many times he had been absent and indicating that absences are a basis for withholding an increment. At that time he had thirteen or fourteen absences. He also testified that he received a letter dated March 8, 1989, stating that a decision had been made to withhold his increment (Exhibit D-53).

Mr. Zaucha recalls that mention was made at a faculty meeting concerning a policy regarding absences. During the course of the 1988-89 school year he was absent fourteen sick and two personal days and the collective bargaining agreement allows fourteen sick and two personal days. This amounted to seven or nine instances of absence. He also indicated that he was only absent more than sixteen days in the 1986-87 school year.

Mr. Zaucha testified that he recalls Mr. O'Brien's speaking to him on one occasion which may have been the prior year concerning his absentee record. At that time Mr. Zaucha told Mr. O'Brien that he was sick.

Mr. Zaucha identified an Annual Performance Report dated June 20, 1988, wherein the improvement action to be taken was that Mr. Zaucha would try to improve attendance to comply with state mandates (health permitting). Mr. Zaucha indicated that he understood that the State mandate refers to the school average for attendance and that the desired attendance was 97 percent. He also indicated that faculty meetings occurred at which attendance improvement was discussed.

Mr. Zaucha testified that it was not until February 15, 1989 (Exhibit D-52) that he was advised that there was going to be a financial impact upon him. After that date, Mr. Zaucha testified that he was only out two additional days.

Terrence Matthews testified that Mr. Zaucha was absent 19 days during school year 1986-87 (Exhibit D-49) for school year 1987-88 there were sixteen absences (Exhibit D-50), and for school year 1988-89 there were sixteen absences (Exhibit D-51). Mr. Matthews then identified the letter sent to Mr. Zaucha on February 15, 1989 (Exhibit D-52). As a result of this letter Mr. Zaucha came into see Mr. Matthews and advised him that his son was ill. However, Mr. Matthews said that on March 8, 1989 he forwarded a letter to Mr. Zaucha advising him that he was going to recommend that his increment be withheld based on a pattern of absenteeism (Exhibit D-53). Mr. Matthews also identified a memo dated June 21, 1989 (Exhibit D-54) outlining the number of days absent from school years 1979-80 through 1988-89. The purpose of this was to bring to Mr. Zaucha's attention his pattern of excessive absences. This was considered in recommending an increment withholding on the basis that the attendance pattern was detrimental to the school and to the educational process. Mr. Matthews indicated that the fourteen sick days per year provided to teachers by the collective bargaining agreement are in case of necessity but they are not to be abused. The negotiated agreement provides for bank days and Mr. Matthews indicated that the intent of the sick leave bank days was to enable individuals to accumulate days in case of a long-term illness to avoid major financial problems.

Richard O'Brien, vice-principal of Ferris High School, testified that he had occasions to discuss with Mr. Zaucha his attendance record in the Fall, 1987. At that time Mr. Zaucha indicated that there were some family problems that were impeding his attendance and it involved getting a babysitter, or if the children were sick that some one had to watch the children. In the Spring, 1988, another conversation occurred at which time Mr. Zaucha indicated that he was going to work to improve his attendance.

Mr. O'Brien identified Mr. Zaucha's Annual Performance Report dated June 1, 1989 (Exhibit D-55) wherein it is indicated that Mr. Zaucha should improve his attendance. Mr. O'Brien indicated that he had discussed attendance a couple of times with Mr. Zaucha. Mr. O'Brien indicated that he recommended that Mr. Zaucha receive his increment based upon his teaching performance.

Dawn Dent

The 1989-90 employment increment for Dawn Dent was withheld for reasons of unsatisfactory evaluations and chronic and excessive absenteeism (Exhibit J-1). Ms. Dent testified that she had been employed for eight years as a special education teacher for neurologically impaired students at Lincoln High School. Prior to being denied an increment in the 1989-90 school year, she had never suffered the loss of an increment. In addition she was never previously disciplined in any fashion. Ms. Dent testified that prior to the denial of her increment she was never given any indication that her work effort or her attendance were not satisfactory.

Ms. Dent first became aware of a problem with her teaching performance being unsatisfactory around January 24, 1989 when she was so advised by John Pacifico, Principal at Lincoln High School. On that date Mr. Pacifico called her into his office and advised her that he was going to give her a poor evaluation and withhold her increment. Mr. Pacifico then evaluated Ms. Dent within five minutes after that conversation.

Ms. Dent identified the Observation/Evaluation Report of January 24, 1989 (Exhibit D-56). Ms. Dent indicated that as a special education teacher her instruction differs from student to student. She indicated that at no time was she ever notified by Mr. Pacifico or any one as to what was needed at the time of her evaluation. In addition, she was not advised at the time of the evaluation that her attendance was of some concern. However, attached to the Observation/Evaluation Report of January 24, 1989 was Ms. Dent's attendance record from school year 1983-84 through January 19, 1989 (Exhibit D-56). Ms. Dent testified that through January 20, 1989 she had been absent thirteen days. In the prior year she was absent seventy-one days because she had been in a car accident. Ms. Dent testified that none of her leave requests for the prior year had been denied. In school year 1986-87 Ms. Dent was out twenty-four days, in the year before that she was out nineteen and one-half days and the year previous twenty-one days. Ms. Dent indicated that she did not lose pay for any of those days because she had sufficient days in her sick leave bank to cover these absences.

Ms. Dent testified that she was subsequently evaluated by Mr. DiNardo on February 28, 1989 (Exhibit D-57). Ms. Dent indicated that there was no discussion possible with Mr. DiNardo concerning this evaluation. She testified that she was satisfied with the success of her students since the goals of the students were reached in all cases.

On cross-examination Ms. Dent identified a memo received by her on March 2, 1989 (Exhibit D-58). She indicated that the memo accurately reflected her attendance record. She also indicated that she teaches special education and that this is specialized area. Ms. Dent stated that she first became aware that her attendance was unsatisfactory when she received her evaluation in 1989. Ms. Dent identified an Annual Performance Report dated May 10, 1989 (Exhibit D-59) which recommended that Ms. Dent not receive an increment and which indicated the necessity to improve her performance in various areas and to improve her attendance.

John Pacifico, Principal of Dickinson High School, and former principal of Lincoln High School, identified Ms. Dent's attendance record for school year 1986-87 (Exhibit D-60), for school year 1987-88 (Exhibit D-61) and for school year 1988-89 (Exhibit D-62).

Mr. Pacifico testified that he first commenced discussing Ms. Dent's attendance record with her the first year he arrived at Lincoln High School. Generally he discussed with her that time lost in the classroom can never be made up and that everyone should try to come in even when they have reasons not to come in. He indicated that Ms. Dent always showed an interest in trying to improve and that whatever the medical problems were she said she would try to do better.

Mr. Pacifico testified that the absence of a teacher effects the educational process because the time can never be made up, that the time is lost to the student forever and there is nothing that anyone can do to recover it. A substitute can never do a fraction of what is expected of the professional staff. They are filling in and they often use emergency lesson plans. He indicated that what is expected of teachers is considerably more than what can be obtained with a person with minimal training.

Mr. Pacifico indicated that he sent a letter dated March 2, 1989, to Ms. Dent advising her that her increment would be withheld. Her attendance after that letter was sent did not improve.

With respect to the evaluation of January 24, 1989 (Exhibit D-56), Mr. Pacifico indicated that when he observed this class it was not a good class, that Ms. Dent's record keeping was not very good, that her planning was poor and that her instruction technique left much to be desired. In addition, under professionalism he indicated that her attendance and personal grooming needed attention. Her mid-term examination was poor.

Mr. Pacifico testified that on a number of occasions Ms. Dent came to school inappropriately dressed, and that as role models teachers are required to dress in a professional manner. Mr. Pacifico also indicated that the subsequent evaluation of Ms. Dent on February 28, 1989, by Mr. DiNardo (Exhibit D-57) was also unsatisfactory.

Mr. Pacifico denied the occurrence of an incident in December, 1988, when he allegedly yelled at Ms. Dent in front of her students.

On cross-examination, Mr. Pacifico testified that he had no indication other than subjective evidence that the success of the children in Ms. Dent's class was less than other classes. However, he testified that if teachers don't come to school regularly and do not dress professionally they are communicating to the students how little they care about them.

Mr. Pacifico testified that he did not make up his mind to recommend the withholding of Ms. Dent's increment until after the evaluation by Mr. DiNardo, the District-wide Supervisor of Special Education. He also indicated that while there was an improvement in Mr. DiNardo's evaluation over his evaluation, he felt that Mr. DiNardo saw some things differently.

Andrew Washington

Andrew Washington's 1989-90 employment increment was withheld based on unsatisfactory ratings (Exhibit J-1).

Mr. Washington, a fifth grade teacher at PS Number 3 testified that he was first notified in April, 1989, that his increment was in jeopardy. Mr. Washington testified that he is no longer employed in the school district and that he left in June, 1990.

Mr. Washington identified an Observation/Evaluation Report dated October 26, 1988 (Exhibit D-63), but indicated that he did not know why he received unsatisfactory ratings from Ms. Cosgrove. He testified that after the evaluation there was a very short meeting but no detailed discussion occurred.

Mr. Washington also identified an Observation/Evaluation Report dated December 21, 1988 (Exhibit D-64), by Marsha Leff, Principal of the school. Mr. Washington also indicated that he did not really have a discussion with Ms. Leff following this evaluation.

Finally, Mr. Washington identified an Observation/Evaluation Report dated February 14, 1989 (Exhibit D-65), and also indicated that he did not really meet with the evaluator after the evaluation.

With respect to the unsatisfactory rating on the report of February 14, 1989, Mr. Washington indicated that he received it because two students in his class were disruptive and he was unable to effectively discipline the entire class. Mr. Washington felt the unsatisfactory ratings he received were incorrect based upon his prior years of teaching experience and the fact that he was able to use effective teaching techniques.

Mr. Washington identified the Annual Performance Report of June 23, 1989 (Exhibit D-66). He indicated that this was the first time that he was aware that he was not recommended for reemployment and that he was not recommended for an increment.

On cross-examination, Mr. Washington indicated that his class was occasionally disruptive. He testified that on the second day of class one of the students knocked everything off of his desk and the student was removed by the principal. Other students who were disruptive were removed from his class by his supervisors. Mr. Washington indicated that the disruptions in his classroom were sporadic. When questioned concerning the evaluations indicating that he needed improvement in his management of the classroom, Mr. Washington stated that he does not recall any of his supervisors ever speaking with him about this.

Mr. Washington testified that there were about twenty-five or twenty-six children in his class and some of them were troublesome and others were a joy. Some of the students required a disproportionate amount of attention for disciplinary reasons.

Mary Ann Wallace, Principal of PS Number 3, also known as the Frank R. Conwel School testified that she performed the Observation/Evaluation Report of February 14, 1989 (Exhibit D-65) and indicated that this report was given to Mr. Washington with the notation referring to numerous incidents. Ms. Wallace testified that because Mr. Washington was new to the building, and because he was evaluated poorly by his supervisor, she tried to work with Mr. Washington helping him improve so that he would not fail in his teaching. As a result they spent much time together, with her visiting his classroom when needed and being there when he had a problem. The children in his class were frequently sent to her. A subsequent evaluation showed failing grades for Mr. Washington but Ms. Wallace testified that Mr. Washington appeared to be trying. As a result on February 14, 1989 Ms. Wallace spend from 11:00 a.m. until 2:30 p.m. observing Mr. Washington's class. Her presence eliminated the discipline problem he was experiencing. However, no matter what was done, Mr. Washington could not correct the discipline problem in the class.

Ms. Wallace testified that she worked with Mr. Washington almost daily trying to relieve the problems that were being created in the classroom by his lack of classroom control. There were disruptive activities throughout the entire day. One girl who was a discipline problem in Mr. Washington's class was moved to another fifth grade class where she was not a discipline problem. Ms. Wallace also testified that on another occasion, a child urinated on the floor and Mr. Washington said that it was not the first time that the child had done that. The child was reassigned to another fifth grade teacher.

Ms. Wallace testified that it is the responsibility of the classroom teacher to maintain control of the classroom. She indicated that Mr. Washington's class was an unusual situation and there was not another class in the building which was not being controlled by the teacher.

Ms. Wallace indicated that the class given to Mr. Washington was typical in its distribution of students but its behavior became unbelievably atypical. Ms. Wallace stated that were three other black teachers in the school ,which is predominantly Hispanic, and that their performance has been fine. On occasion, the fifth grade class was split into reading groups and math groups and the other teacher handling the split group did not experience the problems of disruption that Mr. Washington experienced. Mr. Washington was always cooperative and was a very willing worker. However, because of the classroom disruption there was a serious loss of learning.

Ms. Wallace testified that she recommended that Mr. Washington not be reemployed on the Annual Performance Report (Exhibit D-66) because the safety of the children in his classroom could not be secured.

On cross-examination Ms. Wallace indicated that the improvement between the three Observation/Evaluation Reports were the result of her interpretation of Mr. Washington's efforts but not of the fact of learning. Ms. Wallace indicated that the unsatisfactory ratings revolved around Mr. Washington's inability to maintain discipline in the classroom and a total lack of the control over the students.

Ms. Wallace indicated that she agreed with the recommendation to withhold Mr. Washington's increment because an increment is a reward for demonstrated success.

Mary Dombrowski, Rosemary Hurtado, Marsha Brooks, Roosevelt Wright and David Haines

The increments of the above-named individuals were withheld for the reasons stated in the resolution the Board of Education (Exhibit J-1). While a petition was filed by or on behalf of these petitioners, they failed to appear for the purpose of presenting their reasons for challenging the withholding of their respective increments. At the hearing, respondent moved to dismiss the petition of these five individuals and the ALJ indicated that he would find that these individuals had abandoned their petition and an appropriate order would be entered.

LEGAL DISCUSSION

Annual increments are "in the nature of a reward for meritorious service to the school district" and entitlement to an increment is related "to the teachers' qualifications, performance or quality of teaching services rendered." North Plainfield Education Assoc. v. Bd. of Ed. of North Plainfield, 96 N.J. 587, 593 (1984); see also Bernards Township Board of Education v. Bernards Township Education Association, 79 N.J. 311, 321 (1979).

N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14 authorizes a board of education to withhold a teacher's increment for inefficiency or other good cause. Such a decision is a discretionary action and may not be upset unless found to be patently arbitrary, without rational basis or induced by improper motives. Kopera v. West Orange Bd. of Ed., 60 N.J. Super. 288, 294 (App. Div. 1960). On appeal, the Commissioner is not to substitute his or her judgment for that of the evaluator's, and the scope of the Commissioner's review is to determine whether the board has a reasonable basis for its factual basis for its factual conclusion. Id. at 295. It should be determined on appeal whether the underlying facts were as those who made the evaluations claimed, and whether it was unreasonable for them to conclude as they did upon those facts, bearing in mind that they are experts without bias or prejudice and are closely familiar with the surrounding circumstances. Id. at 296-297. In such an appeal, the burden of proving unreasonableness is on the teacher.

In cases of increment withholding based upon chronic or excessive absenteeism, the foregoing principles apply. However, certain additional and somewhat confusing principles have been established by virtue of court and administrative decisions.

In Trautwein v. Bound Brook Bd. of Ed., 1980 S.L.D. 1539 (App. Div. April 8, 1980), certif. den. 84 N.J. 469 (1980), the decision of a board of education to withhold a teacher's increment on the basis of excessive absenteeism was upheld by the Appellate Division. In that case, the teacher had a record of "excellent" to "good" classroom performance. However, the Board of Education reasoned that the teacher's total of 12 days absent during the school year when considered in light of her prior annual average of 20.6 days absent per school year diminished her effectiveness and deprived students of quality teaching and continuity of instruction to which they were entitled. In the absence of a showing that the board's actions were arbitrary or unreasonable or in any way constituted an abuse of legislatively vested discretion, the Appellate Division held that its decision should be affirmed.

In In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Sheets, 1979 S.L.D. 790, rev'd, Comm'r of Educ., 1979 S.L.D. 800, rev'd, State Board, 1980 S.L.D. 1536, it was held that chronic absenteeism may be grounds for discipline because of the disruption of the continuity of instruction, even if a teacher's classroom performance is satisfactory and even if the absences are for an approved leave or sick days to which the teacher is entitled.

In Borelli v. Bd. of Ed., Borough of Rutherford, 1985 S.L.D. 1848, it was held that past absences over a reasonably relevant period of time may be considered, where it establishes a pattern of absenteeism which has continued into the school year in which the action to withhold is taken. Under Borelli, the local board may evaluate all the years in contention to determine whether there is continuity of conduct creating a pattern, the cumulative effect of which has a deleterious impact on the delivery of educational services.

In Transky v. Bd. of Ed., City of Trenton, 1989 S.L.D. 1509 aff'd, State Board, 1989 S.L.D. 1531, it was held that a local board need not make a prima facie showing that a teacher's performance was lessened by absenteeism or that the discontinuity of instruction was proved by the board. Rather, it is necessary for the board to show that the concern for continuity of instruction was considered by the board when weighing its decision to withhold an increment and by the supervisors during the period in which the excessive absenteeism was occurring.

In Smith v. Bd. of Ed., City of Trenton, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 5255-88 (March 6, 1989), adopted, Comm'r of Educ. (April 18, 1989), the Commissioner found that the local board had applied a mechanistic policy of prohibiting an arbitrary five percent or more "incidental" days absent as excessive or improper. It was held that in order for an increment withholding to be upheld there must be clear evidence of the school principal and the board having considered (1) the nature of the illness and not just the number of absences and (2) the impact of the absences on continuity of instruction. The consideration of these two elements cannot be mechanistic and cursory. Finally, the local board must demonstrate that the concern for the continuity of instruction was specifically conveyed to the teacher during the period in which the excessive absenteeism was occurring. 1989 S.L.D. at 1507-1508.

In Kuehn v. Bd. of Ed. of the Twp. of Teaneck, 1983 S.L.D. 1582, a teacher was absent more than 90 days during the school year because of serious illness. The board of education had an unwritten practice that any staff member absent more than 90 days in a school year is ineligible for an increment in the following school year. The State Board of Education held that the determination of the local board that the teacher's absence exceeding 90 days, in and of itself, is sufficient reason for the increment withholding, without consideration of the particular circumstances for the absence, is arbitrary and without any demonstrated rational basis.

The burden of proving that a teacher's excessive absenteeism is not harmful to the education process rests with the teacher and not with the Board of Education. Angelucci et al. v. Bd. of Ed. of West Orange, 1980 S.L.D. 1066, aff'd State Board (Feb. 4, 1981); Transky v. Bd. of Ed., City of Trenton, supra.

While it may appear that the holdings in Smith and Kuehn and other similar cases, which require a local board to consider the nature of the teacher's illness and not merely the number of days absent, are inconsistent with the holdings in Trautwein, Borelli and Angelucci, such is not necessarily the case. In Smith and Kuehn, the local board attempted to apply an arbitrary standard to absences which occurred in a single school year. In such a case, the local board is required to consider the reasons for the teacher's absences, and not merely the number of absences. However, if the local board has considered a teacher's absences in a current year in light of the teacher's past absences over a reasonably relevant period of time, and it finds a pattern of absenteeism which has continued, the cumulative effect of which is a deleterious impact on the delivery of educational services, it may withhold the increment. In such a case, the reasons for the teacher's absences are irrelevant since they are harmful to the educational process.

To summarize, a school district may withhold a teacher's increment for chronic and excessive absenteeism:

(1) If the teacher has failed to render teaching services to the school district (North Plainfield, supra); or

(2) If at the time it determined that a teacher's absences were excessive, the school district considered either (a) the nature of the teacher's illness and not merely the number of days absent (Smith and Kuehn), or (b) a continuing pattern of absences over several recent years having a cumulative deleterious impact on the delivery of educational services (Trautwein, Borelli and Angelucci);

(3) If the school district's concern for continuity of instruction was considered when weighing the decision to withhold the teacher's increment (Transky);

(4) If the school district's concern as to the effect of the teacher's absences on the continuity of instruction was made known to the teacher during the period when the absences occurred (Smith); and

(5) If the teacher has failed to meet the burden of proving that the absences were not harmful to the educational process (Angelucci and Transky).

ANALYSIS WITH RESPECT TO EACH PETITIONER

It is now necessary to review the testimony and documentary evidence respecting the increment withholding as to each of the petitioners in light of the foregoing legal discussion.

Michael Faccone

Michael Faccone's 1989-90 increment was withheld based upon an Observation/Evaluation Report dated February 23, 1989 (Exhibit D-1) by Anita R. DeRosa, Supervisor of Compensatory Mathematics and an Observation/Evaluation Report dated May 25, 1989 (Exhibit D-2) by Ann E. Butler, Principal. Ms. DeRosa testified that Mr. Faccone received an unsatisfactory rating in the category assessing the needs and evaluating the progress of pupils because he had no student improvement plans available and no test grades were recorded by him in the role book for the students in the class. In addition, he was given an unsatisfactory for employing effective organization and planning because he had no plan book. Ms. DeRosa stated that a plan book is important in order to know the skills to be taught to students and it is a way of organizing a teacher's thoughts. It also insures that a teacher follows a prescribed curriculum and it is necessary for continuity of instruction. Ms. DeRosa gave an unsatisfactory to Mr. Faccone in the category of exhibiting professional attitude and manner because he was five minutes late to class. Ms. DeRosa also gave an unsatisfactory to Mr. Faccone for implementing and enforcing school rules, administrative regulations and board policy because he failed to give homework to the students as directed by school district policy. Finally, Ms. DeRosa advised Mr. Faccone that his attendance needed improvement. However, she indicated that she did not consider Mr. Faccone's absences in arriving at any of the unsatisfactory performance ratings.

Ann Butler, Principal, testified that she gave an unsatisfactory rating to Mr. Faccone for employing effective organization and planning because he failed to have his plan book. She explained that teachers are required to have plan books at all times. In addition, she indicated that Mr. Faccone failed to have an objective for the class's lesson setting forth what the students were going to be taught on the date of the observation.

Mr. Faccone testified that he had his plan book available for review, but that Ms. DeRosa did not like its looks because it lacked objectives and examples. Mr. Faccone admitted that he did not have objectives in the plan book but that they were exhibited on the board for the students. Mr. Faccone also indicated that Ms. DeRosa also advised him that she did not like the way that he was dressed and for that reason he was given an unsatisfactory with respect to exhibiting professional attitude and manner. Finally, with respect to the unsatisfactory rating regarding implementing and enforcing school rules, administrative regulations and board policy, Mr. Faccone believed that this had to do with his attendance. Mr. Faccone indicated that the unsatisfactory rating given to him by Ms. Butler was because she did not like his plan book.

With respect to the testimony presented by the parties I FIND that the underlying facts were as to those who made the evaluation claimed. I FIND that on the occasion of both evaluations, Mr. Faccone failed to have his plan book available. I FIND that on February 23, 1989, Mr. Faccone was late for class. I FIND that there were no student improvement plans available for review and that no test grades were recorded in the role book for students in the class. I FIND that on that date, Mr. Faccone failed to assign homework to the students, contrary to school district policy. In addition, I FIND that on May 25, 1989, Mr. Faccone failed to have his plan book available and failed to have an objective for the lesson. In this regard I FIND that Mr. Faccone has not established that it was unreasonable for the evaluators and the school board to conclude, based upon the foregoing facts, that Mr. Faccone's 1989-90 increment should be withheld, and I CONCLUDE that their action should be affirmed.

Jerome Kacprowicz

Jerome Kacprowicz's increment was withheld for reasons of chronic and excessive absenteeism. It is undisputed that in the three years prior to the withholding of his increment, Mr. Kacprowicz was absent 31 days in school year 1986-87 (Exhibit D-8), 32 days in the school year 1987-88 (Exhibit D-9) and 38 days in school year 1988-89 (Exhibit D-10). It is also undisputed that at the time of his annual evaluation on March 31, 1987 (Exhibit D-11) on January 14, 1988 (Exhibit D-12) and on March 15, 1989 (Exhibit D-13), Mr. Kacprowicz was advised by his supervisors of their concern for his absenteeism and he was advised that this was an area needing improvement. In addition, Ms. Butler, the school principal, testified that she spoke to Mr. Kacprowicz every year concerning his poor attendance, but nothing ever came of it.

In this matter respondent has established that Mr. Kacprowicz's supervisors had a concern about his continuing pattern of absences and their effect on the continuity of instruction being provided to his students and they expressed that concern both in their evaluation reports and in their discussions with him. In each of the evaluations (Exhibits D-11, D-12, and D-13), his supervisor suggested that Mr. Kacprowicz reduce his absences to benefit students, school and self. In addition, the reference in the evaluations to planning, pacing and assessment of student progress was related to the fact that Mr. Kacprowicz 's absences were causing delays in the students' completion of course requirements. Finally, the concern as to the continuity of instruction was clearly made known to Mr. Kacprowicz not only during the period in which the absences occurred by means of the evaluation report of March 15, 1989 (Exhibit D-13), but also was made known to him by the prior years' evaluations (Exhibit D-11 and D-12).

Under the terms of the collective bargaining agreement (Exhibit P-1) every teacher is entitled annually to 14 days of sick leave (Article 30) and two personal business days (Article 35). Mr. Kacprowicz's absences during 1988-89 as well as during the preceding two years far exceeded these numbers.

As discussed above, the burden of proving that a teacher's excessive absenteeism is not harmful to the education process rests with the teacher. In this regard, Mr. Kacprowicz testified that when he was absent he always made sure that he sent in assignments for his students in order to maintain continuity with his classes. This testimony is insufficient to meet the burden of showing a lack of harm to the education process, particularly in view of the evidence that Mr. Kacprowicz' absences were causing delays in the students' completion of course requirements.

As a result, I FIND that respondent's absences of 38 days in 1988-89 exceeded the 16 days allowed by the collective bargaining agreement, and was excessive when considered in light of his pattern of absences of 32 days and 31 days in the two proceeding school years. I FIND that respondent considered the concern for the continuity of instruction and made known this concern to Mr. Kacprowicz during the period in which excessive absenteeism was occurring. In addition, I FIND that Mr. Kacprowicz failed to prove that his excessive absenteeism was not harmful to the education process. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that it has not been established that respondent's action in withholding the increment of Jerome Kacprowicz was patently arbitrary, without rational basis or induced by improper motives, and that its action should be AFFIRMED.

Susan Velardi

The increment of Susan Velardi was withheld for school year 1989-90 for reasons of excessive absenteeism. During the preceding school year 1988-89, Mr. Velardi was absent a total of 177 days. It is not disputed that these absences were for a valid purpose, Ms. Velardi having been involved in a car accident.

There is no dispute that at the time Ms. Velardi was evaluated during school year 1987-88 (Exhibit D-18 and D-19) she was advised that her attendance was an area needing improvement. However, there is no indication that Ms. Velardi was advised by respondent during the 1988-89 school year that her supervisors were concerned as to the continuity of instruction or that they made known this concern to her. They could not advised her of this because she was absent for virtually the entire year.

Annual increments are in the nature of a reward for meritorious service to the school district, serve the purpose of encouraging quality in performance and entitlement to an increment is related to the teacher's performance or quality of teaching services rendered. North Plainfield Education Assoc. v. Bd. of Ed. of North Plainfield, supra. When viewed in this light it becomes clear that Ms. Velardi failed to provide any type of service, meritorious or otherwise so as to be entitled to an increment. Because Ms. Velardi failed to render teaching services to the school district, I FIND that the action of respondent in withholding the increment of Susan Velardi for chronic and excessive absenteeism based on her absences of 177 days during the school year 1988-89, particularly when viewed in light of her prior year's absences, was not patently arbitrary, without rational basis or induced by improper motives. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that respondent's action should be AFFIRMED.

Monica Meade-Stephens

Monica Meade-Stephens' 1989-90 increment was withheld due to chronic and excessive absences. She was absent 119 days during school year 1986-87 (Exhibit D-20), 55 days during school year 1987-88 (Exhibit D-21), and 43 days during school year 1988-89 (Exhibit D-22). It is undisputed that her absences were for legitimate reasons of illness and that her illness prevented Ms. Stephens from performing her teaching duties on the days she was absent.

Ann Butler, Principal, testified that she discussed with Ms. Stephens her attendance record very often. She inquired of Ms. Stephens' concerning the reasons for the absences. She also testified that Ms. Stephens' students were becoming upset because of her absences and because of the impact on their grades and their futures. Ms. Butler testified that in Ms. Stephens' Annual Performance Report dated May 15, 1987 (Exhibit D-23), and in an Evaluation Report dated March 15, 1989 (Exhibit D-24), concerns about Ms. Stephens' excessive absences and the need to improve her attendance were expressed to her.

With respect to Ms. Stephens, it cannot be disputed that her absences of 43 days during school year 1988-89 and her absences of 55 days and 119 days in the two years preceding, amount to chronic and excessive absenteeism. In addition, through the testimony of Ms. Butler, I FIND that it was established that the nature of Ms. Stephens' illness and reasons for her absences were considered. Through the testimony of Ms. Butler, I FIND that it was established that the concern for continuity of instruction was considered by Ms. Stephens' supervisor and that this concern was made known to Ms. Stephens during the period in which the excessive absenteeism was occurring. Finally, I FIND that Ms. Stephens has failed to meet her burden of showing that her excessive absenteeism was not harmful to the education process. In fact, the testimony of Ms. Butler to the effect that Ms. Stephens' students were getting upset because of her absences and the impact on their grades and their futures tends to show that her absences were having an adverse impact on the education process.

Based upon the foregoing, I FIND that Ms. Stephens has failed to establish that the actions of the respondent in withholding her 1989-90 increment based upon chronic and excessive absenteeism was patently arbitrary, without rational basis or induced by improper motives. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that respondent's action in denying Ms. Stephens' annual increment for 1989-90 should be AFFIRMED.

Margaret Sullivan

Margaret Sullivan's increment for school year 1989-90 was withheld based upon chronic and excessive absenteeism based on her absences for the 1988-89 school year consisting of 13 days (Exhibit D-38).

There is no evidence in the record to establish that respondent considered the nature of Ms. Sullivan's illnesses when it determined that Ms. Sullivan's record of absences was excessive. On the other hand, I FIND that respondent established that it considered her absences of 14 days in 1986-87 and 19 days in 1987-88 in determining whether her 13 days absent in 1988-89 was excessive. While her 19 absences for the 1987-88 school year exceeded the number of sick and personal days given to a teacher by the collective bargaining agreement (Exhibit P-1) it appears to have been the only year in which this occurred. The decision in Trautwein, supra, is very similar to the factual scenario involving Ms. Sullivan. In that case, the teacher was absent 12 days during the school year. When that was considered in light of her prior annual average of 20.6 days absent per school year, the board concluded that the 12 days absences diminished the teacher's effectiveness and deprived the students of quality teaching and continuity of instruction to which they were entitled. See, also, Borelli, supra.

I FIND that Ms. Sullivan's principal, Terrence Matthews, expressed his concern to Ms. Sullivan by letter dated March 8, 1989 (Exhibit D-28) that her absenteeism was having a detrimental effect on the learning process. In addition, I FIND that this concern was also expressed by memo dated February 15, 1989 (Exhibit D-34). Finally, I FIND that Ms. Sullivan has failed to bear her burden of proving that her excessive absenteeism was not harmful to the education process.

Accordingly, I FIND and CONCLUDE that the action of respondent in withholding Ms. Sullivan's 1989-90 increment is not patently arbitrary, without a rational basis or induced by improper motives and should be AFFIRMED.

Joseph Miceli

Joseph Miceli's employment and adjustment increments were withheld for school year 1989-90 for reasons of chronic and excessive absenteeism. Mr. Miceli indicated that a record of his absences dating back to school year 1973-74 dated June 16, 1989 (Exhibit D-44) appeared to be a correct record of his absences. This indicated that for the 15 years commencing September 1973 and ending June 1988, he was absent a total of 278 days or 18.5 days per year. For school year 1986-87 Mr. Miceli was absent 21 days (Exhibit D-45), for school year 1987-88 he was absent 19 days (Exhibit D-46) and for school year 1988-89 he was absent 16 days (Exhibit D-47).

Mr. Miceli testified that none of his prior evaluations mentioned attendance, and that the first time he was aware that attendance was of concern was as a result of a letter he received on March 8, 1989. However, the evaluation report of February 12, 1987 (Exhibit D-40) indicates that attendance is an area needing improvement, and that improvement in attendance is necessary to enable students to attain a sense of continuity of the subject being taught. In addition, Mr. Miceli's Annual Performance Report of June 15, 1987 (Exhibit D-41) indicates attendance as a performance area needing improvement and that the improvement action is to reduce to one-third the number of absences of 86-87. Likewise, the evaluation report of April 28, 1988 indicated under areas needing improvement that attendance must be improved as per district and State requirements so that students can sense continuity of subject being taught. By memo dated February 15, 1989 (Exhibit D-43), Terrence Matthews, Principal of Ferris High School notified Mr. Miceli that as of that date he had been absent 12 times and that excessive absence has a negative effect on his teaching assignment. The memo inquired of any outstanding mitigating circumstances and that the principal should be made aware of these. Mr. Matthews also testified that he discussed with Mr. Miceli his attendance on many occasions over the years. These discussions were to the effect that Mr. Miceli had to improve his attendance, that his absences were too high, and that while he sympathized with the reasons it was having a negative impact.

With respect to Joseph Miceli I FIND that his supervisors established that they considered the nature of his illnesses when they determined that his absences were excessive. I FIND that their concern for the continuity for instruction was considered when deciding whether to withhold Mr. Miceli's increment. In addition, I FIND that the concern as to continuity of instruction was made known to Mr. Miceli during the period in which the excessive absenteeism was occurring. Finally, I FIND that Mr. Miceli has failed to sustain the burden of proving that his excessive absenteeism was not harmful to the education process. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the action of respondent in withholding the employment increment and adjustment increment of Joseph Miceli for school year 1989-90 was not patently arbitrary, without rational basis or induced by improper motives and should be AFFIRMED.

John Zaucha

The employment increment of John Zaucha for school year 1989-90 was withheld based on chronic and excessive absenteeism. Mr. Zaucha was absent 19 days during school year 1986-87 (Exhibit D-49), 16 days for school year 1987-88 (Exhibit D-50) and 16 days for school year 1988-89 (Exhibit D-51). By memo dated June 21, 1989 (Exhibit D-54) Terrence Matthews, Principal at Ferris High School, advised Mr. Zaucha that from school year 1979-80 through school year 1987-88, Mr. Zaucha had been absent a total of 117 days or an average of 13 days per year.

Mr. Zaucha indicated that mention was made at a faculty meeting concerning the policy regarding absences. He also testified that he was only absent more than 16 days in the 1986-87 school year. He recalled a supervisor speaking to him on one occasion in a prior year concerning his record of absences. However, Mr. Zaucha admitted that in his Annual Performance Reports of June 20, 1988 (Exhibit D-48) and June 1, 1989 (Exhibit D-55), it was indicated that attendance was an area needing improvement since it exceeded the State mandate. Mr. Zaucha also admitted receiving the memorandum dated February 15, 1989 (Exhibit D-52) advising him that he had been absent 13 times and that this excessive absence has a negative effect on his teaching assignment. By this memo he was further advised that if there were any outstanding mitigating circumstances to advise the principal. Finally, Mr. Zaucha admitted receiving the letter of March 8, 1989 (Exhibit D-53) recommending the withholding of his increment based upon the conclusion that the pattern of absenteeism has a detrimental effect on the learning process.

With the exception of school year 1986-87 when he had 19 absences, Mr. Zaucha's record of absenteeism did not exceed the 16 days allotted to him under the collective bargaining agreement. However, as is indicated in the letter of March 8, 1989 (Exhibit D-53) Mr. Zaucha's supervisor determined that his absences during the school year 1988-89 together with his prior record of absenteeism has a detrimental effect on the learning process.

In this matter, I FIND that respondent considered both the nature of Mr. Zaucha's illnesses and his continuing pattern of absences in recent years. I FIND that respondent has shown that concern for continuity of instruction was considered by it when weighing its decision to withhold Mr. Zaucha's increment. In addition, I FIND that the respondent established that it considered the impact of Mr. Zaucha's absences on the continuity of instruction. I FIND that respondent established that the concern of respondent as to the continuity of instruction was made known to Mr. Zaucha not only during the period in which the excessive absenteeism was occurring but also in prior school years. Finally, I FIND that Mr. Zaucha has not established that his excessive absenteeism was not harmful to the educational process. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that in the case of John Zaucha the withholding of his 1989-90 increment was not patently arbitrary, without rational basis or induced by improper motives and accordingly, it should be AFFIRMED.

Dawn Dent

The employment increment of Dawn Dent for 1989-90 was withheld for reasons of unsatisfactory evaluations and chronic and excessive absenteeism.

I will first consider the unsatisfactory evaluation reports as to Dawn Dent. The Observation/Evaluation Report dated January 24, 1989 (Exhibit D-56) was conducted by John Pacifico and gave to Ms. Dent four unsatisfactory ratings out of a total of seven. An evaluation report of February 28, 1989 by Thomas P. DeNardo (Exhibit D-57) gave two unsatisfactory ratings out of seven performance factors to Ms. Dent. Mr. Pacifico testified as to the bases and reasons for his negative evaluations.

I have closely scrutinized the testimony of Ms. Dent with respect to the unsatisfactory evaluation reports. She indicated that she first became aware of the problem with unsatisfactory teaching performance on January 24, 1989, when Mr. Pacifico called her into his office and advised her that he was going to give her a poor evaluation and withhold her increment. Mr. Pacifico then evaluated Ms. Dent within five minutes after that conversation. She testified that at no time was she ever notified by Mr. Pacifico or anyone as to what was needed at the time of her evaluation. In addition, when she was subsequently evaluated by Mr. DeNardo on February 28, 1989, Ms. Dent indicated that there was no discussion possible with Mr. DeNardo concerning his evaluation. Finally, she testified that she was satisfied with the success of her students since the goals of the students were reached in all cases.

She indicated that as a special education teacher her method of instruction differs from student to student.

In this matter, I FIND that Ms. Dent has provided no testimony or documentary evidence to show that the underlying facts were not as claimed by those who made the two evaluations of her. Accordingly, I FIND that Ms. Dent has failed to show that the withholding of her increment based upon unsatisfactory evaluations was patently arbitrary, without rational basis, or induced by improper motive.

An additional basis for the withholding of Ms. Dent's increment was chronic and excessive absenteeism. Ms. Dent was absent 17 days in school year 1988-89 (Exhibit D-62), 71 days in school year 1987-88, because of her involvement in a car accident (Exhibit D-61), 24 days in school year 1986-87, 19.5 days in school year 1985-86, 21 days in 1984-85 and 40 days in 1983-84 (attachment to Exhibit D-56). Ms. Dent testified that she was not advised at the time of her evaluation on January 24, 1989 that her attendance was of some concern. However, the evaluation report (Exhibit D-56) indicates that her attendance record reflected a very high level of absenteeism and that lost instruction time to students due to faculty absences can never be made up. In addition, Mr. Pacifico testified that he commenced discussing Ms. Dent's attendance with her in the first year he arrived at Lincoln High School. He testified that the absence of a teacher effects the educational process because the time can never be made up that time is lost to the student forever and that there is nothing anyone can do to recover it.

With respect to the withholding of Ms. Dent's increment on the basis of chronic and excessive absenteeism, I FIND that respondent considered a continuing pattern of absences by Ms. Dent over several recent years when it determined that her absences were excessive. I FIND that respondent has shown that the concern for continuity of instruction was considered when weighing the decision to withhold Ms. Dent's increment. In addition, I FIND that respondent has established that this concern as to continuity of instruction was made known to Ms. Dent during the period in which the excessive absenteeism was occurring. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that it was not patently arbitrary, without rational basis or induced by improper motives for respondent to withhold Ms. Dent's increment for the school year 1989-90 and that this action should be AFFIRMED.

Andrew Washington

Mr. Washington's 1989-90 employment increment was withheld based on unsatisfactory ratings. The evaluation report of October 26, 1988 (Exhibit D-63) gave Mr. Washington unsatisfactory ratings in the categories of assessing needs and evaluating progress of pupils, utilizing effective instructional techniques and establishing a rapport with pupils, staff and/or parents and community. The evaluation report of December 21, 1988 (Exhibit D-64) gave unsatisfactory ratings to Mr. Washington with respect to employing effective organization and planning and utilizing effective instructional techniques. Finally, Mary Ann Wallace conducted an evaluation on February 14, 1989 and gave to Mr. Washington an unsatisfactory rating with respect to implementing and enforcing school rules, administrative regulations and board policy and she indicated that this evaluation was based on numerous incidents with no visible signs of improvement.

I have carefully scrutinized the testimony of Mr. Washington with respect to these evaluation reports. With respect to the report dated October 26, 1988, Mr. Washington indicated that he did not know why he received unsatisfactory ratings. With respect to the evaluation report of December 21, 1988, he indicated that he did not really have a discussion with the evaluator following this. Finally, with respect to the evaluation report of February 14, 1989, he testified that he did not really meet with the evaluator, Ms. Wallace after the evaluation. He indicated that he received the unsatisfactory rating on the report of February 14, 1989 because two students in his class were disruptive and he was unable to effectively discipline the entire class. He felt that the unsatisfactory ratings he received were incorrect based upon his prior years of teaching experience and the fact that he was unable to use effective teaching techniques. Nowhere in his testimony did Mr. Washington dispute the factual basis for the evaluator's conclusions.

With respect to these evaluations, Mary Ann Wallace, school principal, testified that she made numerous attempts to work with Mr. Washington trying to help him improve so that he would not fail in his teaching. The problem with Mr. Washington was that he was unable to control the children in his classroom, and they were frequently sent to her. Certain of the children were transferred to another class following which they presented no discipline problem. Ms. Wallace testified that she worked with Mr. Washington almost daily trying to relieve the problems that were being created in the classroom by his lack of control but that there were disruptive activities throughout the entire day. Ms. Wallace testified that it is the responsibility of the classroom teacher to maintain control of the classroom. There was not another class in the building which was not being controlled by the teacher.

In Friedelbaum v. Bd. of Ed., Manalapan-Englishtown Reg. H.S. District, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 4417-83 (June 12, 1984), adopted by the Commissioner (July 26, 1984), the failure of a teacher to control and discipline the students in the classroom was held to be a rational basis for withholding an increment. With respect to Mr. Washington I FIND that he has had failed to establish that the underlying facts were not as those who made the evaluations claimed them to be. Accordingly, I FIND that the withholding of Mr. Washington's increment for the 1989-90 school year was not patently arbitrary, without rational basis, or induced by improper motive and should be AFFIRMED.

PETITIONERS,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF JERSEY CITY, HUDSON COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record and initial decision rendered by the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Petitioners' counsel filed timely exceptions and the Board filed timely reply exceptions pursuant to the applicable provision of N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Petitioners' exceptions as to the ALJ's findings largely reiterate those arguments presented at hearing and in their post-hearing submission. Petitioners contend the ALJ erred in applying the case law applicable in increment withholding matters to the facts of each of their circumstances. Further, they aver that North Plainfield Education Association v. Board of Education of North Plainfield, supra, is inapplicable to this matter because that case dealt with an issue of time spent in the military and how that time affected the 90-day appeal period to the Commissioner. Petitioners find Bernards Township, supra, inapposite also because the case at hand does not deal with arbitration. Finally, petitioners object to the ALJ's reliance on Kopera, supra, contending that the Kopera case involved language contained in the rules of the West Orange school board, which policy specified which terms had to be met before a teacher was entitled to an increment. Petitioners advance that such facts are not at issue herein.

Petitioners submit that the sole authority which allows a school district to withhold an increment is N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14, and that contrary to the requirements of such law, the Board's action in withholding their increments was arbitrary.

Petitioners seek reversal of the initial decision and restoration of their increments. Contrary to petitioners' exceptions, the Commissioner concurs wholly with the ALJ's recitation of the case law applicable in withholding cases, as set forth in the initial decision under the heading "Legal Discussion" at pages 24-27. The Commissioner commends the ALJ for expressing simply and accurately what, upon first blush, might appear to be a "somewhat confusing" body of case law. (Initial Decision, at p. 24)

More specifically, the Commissioner rejects petitioners' attempt to shift from the petitioner the burden of demonstrating unreasonableness in the Board's action to withhold increments. See, Kopera, supra, wherein it is stated:

> [W]e think the Commissioner should have determined (1) whether the underlying facts were as those who made the evaluation claimed, and (2) whether it was unreasonable for them to conclude as they did upon those facts, bearing in mind that they were experts, admittedly without bias or prejudice, and closely familiar with the mise en scene; and that the burden of proving unreasonableness is upon the appellant. (emphasis supplied) (60 N.J. Super. at 296-297)

Further, the Commissioner rejects petitioners' attempt to distinguish their facts from the applicable principles of law as found in such cases as North Plainfield, supra. While North Plainfield, for example, did deal with a timeliness issue, it also stands for the proposition cited by the ALJ below, concerning the nature of annual increments, "a reward for meritorious service to the school district" (North Plainfield, 96 N.J at 593) (Accord, Bernards Township, 79 N.J. at 321.) Similarly, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that the burden of proving that a teacher's excessive absenteeism is not harmful to the educational process rests with the teacher not the Board. See Angelucci et al., 1980 S.L.D. at 1077 wherein it is stated:

> The Commissioner further determines that the argument that the teachers' absences did not lessen their performance improperly places the burden of proof on the Board, rather than the teacher, where it belongs.

See also, Transky, supra.

Having found the standards in increment withholdings were properly articulated and applied to the facts herein by the ALJ, it only remains to note in regard to Ms. Sullivan's and Mr. Miceli's fact patterns that even though a teaching staff member's absences do not exceed the statutorily granted number of days available to the employee for sick leave, the Board may nonetheless withhold an increment when it determines that the number of absences is excessive after considering the nature of those absences and when it apprises the employee during the period in question of its concern that such absences negatively affect the educational process of those students entrusted to the employee's care. Smith, supra, Kuehn, supra and Bass, supra In regard to Sullivan, Miceli and the other petitioners herein, the Commissioner's review of the record satisfies her that the ALJ's findings of fact and conclusions of law support the Board's determination to withhold each petitioner's increment in this matter. Consequently, petitioners' individual circumstances are deemed to have been fully and fairly addressed in the initial decision and their exceptions to the contrary are hereby dismissed as being without merit.

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed in the initial decision as augmented herein, the instant Petition of Appeal is dismissed, with prejudice.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF JERSEY CITY, HUDSON COUNTY, RESPONDENT-RESPONDENT.

STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, June 3, 1993

For the Petitioners-Appellants, Feintuch, Porwich & Feintuch (Philip Feintuch, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Respondent, Murray, Murray & Corrigan (David Corrigan, Esq., of Counsel)

The State Board of Education concurs with the Administrative Law Judge that none of the nine petitioners in this case have demonstrated that the withholding of their increments for 1989-90 was arbitrary or unreasonable.[1] Kopera v. West Orange Bd. of Education, 60 N.J. Super. 288 (App. Div. 1960). Nor have any of them shown that the district Board[2] failed to consider the 1 We note that while the petition in this case was filed in December 1989, due to adjournments and delays by both parties, the Administrative Law Judge did not issue his initial decision until April 20, 1993. We further note that although the Commissioner's decision was appealed to the State Board on June 30, 1993, the matter was in abeyance until March 1994 at appellant's request. At that time, briefing by the parties resumed.

2 We note that the withholdings challenged here occurred in August 1989. On October 4, 1989, the district Board was removed and a State-operated school district was created by Administrative Order issued by the State Board of Education pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-15.

circumstances of their absences. Kuehn v. Board of Education of the Township of Teaneck, 1983 S.L.D. 1581.

The record also supports the conclusion that the Board conveyed its concern for the impact of each petitioner's absences on the continuity of instruction. We stress, however, that this was not a prerequisite to the Board's action herein. Kochman v. Board of Education of the Borough of Keansburg, decided by the State Board, October 6, 1993.[3] Accordingly, to the extent that it may be read to require that concern regarding the impact of absences on the continuity of education be communicated to the affected staff member prior to withholding his increment for absenteeism, we modify the Commissioner's decision. Kochman, supra.

With this modification, the State Board of Education affirms the decision of the Commissioner.

3 In Kochman, we found that there was no legal requirement in an increment withholding case that concern for the impact of absences be communicated to the staff member, and we expressly overruled all previous decisions of the Commissioner which, as this one, included this as a prerequisite to the withholding of an increment.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF BONNIE LOTT, SCHOOL	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
DISTRICT OF THE TOWNSHIP OF	:	DECISION
WILLINGBORO, BURLINGTON COUNTY.	:

SYNOPSIS

Board certified tenure charges of unbecoming conduct against elementary school art teacher who had pled guilty of possession of marijuana in excess of 50 grams.

Initial decision found that although Board and respondent had originally attempted to negotiate a settlement in this case, an executed copy of the proposed settlement was not returned by the respondent and the matter, therefore, proceeded to hearing. ALJ found respondent guilty of unbecoming conduct and found that the nature of incident was of such a serious nature that it outweighed any evidence of excellence in proficiency which may have been demonstrated by respondent. Distinguishing this matter from Valenti which involved a disorderly offense, ALJ found matter herein warranted loss of employment.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision and ordered respondent dismissed from her tenured position as of date of Commissioner's decision and forwarded matter to State Board of Examiners for further appropriate action.

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 2384-92S
AGENCY DKT. NO.64-3/92

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF WILLINGBORO, COUNTY OF BURLINGTON, Petitioner,
v.
BONNIE LOTT,
Respondent.

Lisa James, Esq., for petitioner (Hill Wallack, attorneys)

Steven R. Cohen, Esq., for respondent (Selikoff and Cohen, attorneys)

Record Closed: March 23, 1993 Decided: April 21, 1993

BEFORE JEFF S. MASIN, ALJ:

Bonnie Lott, an elementary school art teacher employed by the respondent Board of Education, was arrested on September 4, 1990 by the Willingboro Police Department and charged with possession of marijuana in excess of 50 grams, possession with intent to distribute, manufacturing marijuana over 5 pounds and possession within 1,000 feet of a school.[1] She ultimately pled guilty to possession of the marijuana, which consisted of 64 plants which she concededly was growing in the backyard of her home in Willingboro. The plea was to an offense classified as a crime of the fourth degree, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2C:35-10a(3).

1 This charge was dropped when it was discovered that her home was not within 1,000 feet from a school.

Following her plea and a period of time during which the attorneys for the parties to this proceeding engaged in an attempt to reach an accord concerning Ms. Lott's employment status with the district, the Board voted to certify tenure charges to the Commissioner of Education under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10. Ms. Lott filed an answer to the charges and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") as a contested matter, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -21 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. Following transmittal to the OAL, a prehearing conference was held on June 30, 1992 and a prehearing order was entered by Administrative Law Judge Jeff S. Masin on July 7, 1992.

The Board of Education moved for summary judgment by motion filed on August 26, 1992. Ms. Lott cross-motioned for summary decision on September 29, 1992. After receiving briefs from the parties, the undersigned ruled in a decision on motion issued on November 1, 1992 that the conduct in which the respondent had engaged and to which she had pled guilty in the criminal case was beyond any dispute "conduct unbecoming a public school teacher" and that as such the Board was entitled to summary judgment as to the commission of a tenure offense under the Act. At the same time, the decision concluded that since Superior Court Judge Cornelius Sullivan had ruled at the time of Ms. Lott's sentencing that her conduct did not touch upon her employment, the issue of whether Ms. Lott had forfeited her position as a result of the conviction pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2C:51-2 was foreclosed and could not be litigated in this administrative proceeding. Further, the decision on motion considered the respondent's argument that the Board of Education had, during the period prior to the vote on tenure charges, entered into an enforceable agreement not to bring tenure charges against the respondent. The decision denied summary decision in favor of the respondent on this issue, concluding that additional proofs were necessary on issues regarding the nature of the negotiations between the parties. Finally, the decision held that if the tenure charges were not barred by any such enforceable agreement, the issue of the proper penalty to be imposed upon the respondent could only be determined after the presentation of evidence from both parties on the question. Thus, the case was set down for hearing on these remaining issues.

A hearing was held before Judge Masin on February 24 and 26, 1993. Thereafter, the attorneys filed briefs and closing arguments. The record closed upon receipt of the Board's reply brief, which was received on March 23, 1993.

THE ALLEGED AGREEMENT
The Evidence

Ms. Lott asserts that in the course of negotiations between her then attorney, Steven R. Cohen, Esq., of the firm of Selikoff & Cohen, P.A. and the Board's former attorney, James P. Granello, an agreement was reached under which the Board would not bring tenure charges against her in return for her agreement to accept a suspension, undergo drug monitoring and random drug testing. The Board denies that the negotiations entered into by Mr. Granello and the respondent's attorney ever produced a binding agreement which would prevent the Board from certifying the current tenure charges.

Initially, the negotiations over the future of Ms. Lott's employment with the Board commenced at the time of her sentencing. Mr. Granello was present at the sentencing, as was Mr. Charles Goldstein, Esq., then an associate of the Selikoff & Cohen firm. In a letter written to Mr. Goldstein on April 15, 1991, one week after the April 8 sentencing hearing, Mr. Granello set forth his understanding of the terms of the agreement which he believed that he and Mr. Goldstein had negotiated subsequent to the sentencing. The agreement provided that the Board would forego tenure charges if Ms. Lott agreed to a suspension without pay from February 25, 1991 to the end of the 1990-91 school year, would agree that following the completion of her drug monitoring under the terms of her probation as imposed by the Court, she would, while working for the Board, submit to drug monitoring every other month on random dates as selected by the Board for a period of one year and would test drug free, and would agree to random drug testing over an additional four year period, twice a year, on dates selected by the Board, and would test drug free. The letter also confirmed information that the respondent was likely to be subject to a reduction in force ("RIF") at the end of the 1990-91 school year as a result of declining enrollment in the district. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9. The letter noted that if such a reduction in force occurred that she would be placed on a preferential hiring list for possible future employment, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12. The last paragraph of the letter read

> Please have your client sign the original of this letter and return same to my attention for filing with the district's personnel office.

The signature of Mr. Granello followed and then, after the cc:'s, the following

> I have read the terms set forth in this letter and, after conferring with my attorney, agree to be bound by its terms.

A space was provided for Ms. Lott's signature, as well as that of a witness, and a date line was provided.

No response was received to the April 15 letter until June 12, when Mr. Goldstein responded with both a letter and what he termed as a "Proposed Settlement Agreement." This document contained provisions which were not among those set forth in Mr. Granello's April 15 letter. Specifically, the "Agreement" provided for the suspension of Ms. Lott for the period from February 25, 1991 through the end of the 1991 contractual year and continued health benefits "at least to the end of that school year," the one year period for random drug testing every other month as proposed by Mr. Granello, and the 4 year period of twice a year random testing as proposed by Mr. Granello. However, in addition to these provisions the proposed agreement added a provision which required that "upon expungement of LOTT'S arrest and conviction the BOARD shall be directed to expunge any record of her suspension by the BOARD" and another provision which provided that the "BOARD agrees, . . . that neither it, nor its officers, . . . will communicate or disclose the terms of this Agreement And General Release or settlement as described herein unless required to do so by law."

Mr. Granello responded to this letter and the "Proposed Agreement" in a letter written on June 13. He told Mr. Goldstein that he was "somewhat taken aback by the long delay" in receiving a response to his April 15 letter. He noted that the "proposed settlement agreement is not signed by your client, which makes me wonder whether your client understands what is being proposed on her behalf." He then turns to the terms proposed in Mr. Goldstein's draft and notes that he questions the validity of the expungement condition due to issues regarding credit for service and attendant seniority considerations and that he also "cannot believe you are including matters that already have been identified in the public record both in Court and by the Board minutes" in the proposed non-communication provision. He closes his response

> I ask that these matters be considered by you and that the proposed agreement and release be modified accordingly.

On August 16, having heard nothing in response to his June 13 letter and having learned that Mr. Goldstein was apparently no longer associated with Selikoff & Cohen, Mr. Granello wrote to the firm asking that it provide a response to the "modifications contained in my letter dated June 13, 1991."

The trail of events now becomes a bit murky, as the stage shifts partially from correspondence to telephone communications. According to the time records maintained by Mr. Cohen, he spoke to Mr. Granello on October 14, 1991 and that same day's note shows the entry "draft settlement agreement & make revisions." Thereafter, the October 17 record lists 2 calls to the client and a call to the Board attorney. On October 21 the slip reveals an entry "Revisions to documents," followed with an entry for October 23 which reads "Meet w/client re: settlement agreement" and "further revisions to Granello letter."

On October 23 Mr. Cohen wrote to Mr. Granello. This letter purports to relate to a prior discussion regarding the terms of the settlement agreement. It encloses a "Settlement Agreement and General Release." Mr. Cohen relates that he has deleted language in paragraph #3 of the "earlier draft" of the document "as you have requested." He also notes that he has maintained "the language of paragraph (4) in the draft Agreement which simply requires that the terms of the Agreement remain confidential unless disclosure is required 'by law'." He then states

> My understanding is that you have indicated to Mr. Goldstein that you will advise the Board that maintaining this aspect of the Agreement is appropriate.

After referring to a clarification of the meaning of the phrase "test drug free," Mr. Cohen concludes by requesting that Mr. Granello "return two fully executed copies of the Agreement to me. I will, in turn, forward a copy to Ms. Lott." The "Agreement And General Release," attached to the letter, bore a signature "Bonnie Lott," and the signature of a witness, and provided signature lines for the "Board Secretary" and the "Board President," as well as for a witness.

In explanation of the events of the October 14-23 period, Mr. Cohen testified at the hearing that he took over the Lott case after Mr. Goldstein left the firm. His time slips indicate that he reviewed the file on October 14. He then contacted Mr. Granello concerning the issues of concern raised by Mr. Granello in the June 13 letter to Mr. Goldstein. As he interprets the time slips and recalls the situation, he spoke to Mr. Granello on the 14th and agreed to remove the expungement language. As for Granello's concerns over the language of the non-disclosure provision contained in Mr. Goldstein's draft agreement, he told Granello "Jim, you know, of course, that's something which is required by law, it's already been disclosed and the language covers it" and said that he saw no problem with it. Mr. Granello responded that he also saw no problem and Mr. Cohen said that he would make the necessary changes and get back to him. Cohen then revised the document and gave it to his secretary to type. On October 17, he called Ms. Lott and told her of the conversations with Granello and the proposed revisions. She approved them and he called Granello and told him that Ms. Lott had approved the changes and that in effect it was a "done deal." He read the proposed revised language to Mr. Granello and Granello approved it. During this conversation, Mr. Cohen advised the Board attorney that if the proposed revisions were acceptable he would call his client in and have her sign it after which he would send the agreement to Granello "as soon as he could." After receiving Mr. Granello's approval of the revisions over the phone during this conversation, Mr. Cohen did in fact contact Ms. Lott, met with her on October 23, and she then signed the document. The October 23 "Agreement and General Release" was the agreement as it was discussed with Mr. Granello in the telephone conversation of the 17th.

Mr. Granello testified that he recalled one telephone conversation with Mr. Cohen which took place about a week before he received Mr. Cohen's October 23 letter on October 25. Mr. Granello generally returns his phone calls the same day, but if he is in at the time of a call no phone log is normally made. October 14 was Columbus Day and Mr. Granello may have been out of the office that day, although the office was open. Mr. Granello has no billing record showing him as having spoken to Mr. Cohen on the 14th. As for the 17th, his records show that he did some work for the Board that day, but there is no specific reference to anything involving Mr. Cohen. It is possible that a short telephone call may not have been listed on his billing records. From his review of the billing records Mr. Granello would conclude that there was no extensive telephone conversation on the 14th or on the 17th.

As for his recollection of the one phone call that he does recall having with Ms. Lott's counsel, Mr. Granello stated that Mr. Cohen told him that he, Cohen, had reviewed the file and the June 13th letter and said that he would send a revised version of the Goldstein draft to Granello, one which would address the concerns raised about the provisions of the original. Mr. Granello said "Fine, send it on," but he does not recall that the exact language of Mr. Cohen's proposed revisions was read over the phone or that the solution to the concerns were "conceptualized" during the conversation. He cannot recall how he handled the matter from this point onward. However, at the end of the conversation he believed that the attorneys had reached an understanding.

Following the receipt of Mr. Cohen's letter of October 23, Mr. Granello sent the "draft of the Settlement Agreement and General Release" on to Board Secretary Lee Muller. The letter reads in part

> It would be my suggestion to receive an update from Bill Hybbeneth as to the likelihood of Ms.Lott returning to the district during the school year. I believe the Board should be aware of this situation before this Settlement Agreement and General Release is approved.

On December 30, Mr. Granello advised Mr. Cohen by letter of the Board's intention to proceed with tenure charges. In response, Mr. Cohen sent Mr. Granello a letter dated January 2, 1992 in which he explained "As far as Ms. Lott is concerned, it is her position that she had a binding agreement with the . . . Board . . . as evidenced by your letter dated April 15, 1991." Mr. Cohen warned that any failure to comply with this agreement by instituting tenure charges would be considered a breach of the agreement. He attached to the letter a copy of the April 15 Granello letter, this copy bearing a signature, purportedly that of Bonnie Lott. The date under her signature is apparently 4/26/91. There is no mention in Mr. Cohen's letter of the discussions which he had with Mr. Granello in October and of any purportedly binding agreement as to a modified version of the April 15 Granello proposal, incorporating therein revisions partially in line with the Goldstein draft of June 12.

Mr. Granello replied to this letter on January 3. In that letter he refers to a telephone conversation which he apparently had with Mr. Cohen that day in which Mr. Cohen told him that the "original signed letter," that is the original of the April 15th proposal, "remains in your file and that you cannot explain why it wasn't returned to me." He details the history of negotiations after the purported signing of the April 15 letter, never sent to him, and argues that the proposed draft issued by Mr. Goldstein in June appears to be at odds with any suggestion that the April 15th proposal had ever been accepted as the "binding agreement" by Ms. Lott and her attorneys. In conclusion, Mr. Granello rejects the suggestion that there ever was a "mutual meeting of the minds as to the terms of an agreement with" Ms. Lott.

In an affidavit filed by Mr. Granello in connection with the motions for summary decision, he notes that in late November, 1991, he advised Mr. Cohen that the Board was only willing to forego tenure charges if Ms. Lott was willing to resign. When the Board determined that she was unwilling to do so the letter of December 30 was issued.

Discussion

Initially, it is difficult to understand how Mr. Cohen could have taken the position in his letter of January 2, 1993 that the April offer from Mr. Granello had been accepted by his client such that it constituted a binding agreement. After the terms of that offer were conveyed to Mr. Goldstein and following the period of silence during the later part of April and May until the June 12 response, the letter of June 12, with the attached "Proposed Settlement Agreement," was in no way an acceptance of the Board's terms as expressed by Mr. Granello. While it did not reject the provisions of the April 15 letter, it supplemented them with at least two significant proposed terms regarding confidentiality and expungement which were in no way referred to in the Board's proposal, and which I FIND were, given the nature of the matter, material terms which necessarily had to be resolved for the entire agreement to be accepted by both parties. The addition of these terms to those originally proposed by the Board's attorney placed the issue of whether or not to accept the agreement as now modified into the hands of the Board. When Mr. Granello promptly responded to Mr. Goldstein the very next day, June 13th, he made it plain that the Board was not comfortable with the newly suggested form of the proposal and he suggested that Mr. Goldstein and his client review the Board's objections and respond with appropriate revisions. Thus, as of the 13th of June, the parties had not reached an accord, they were still disputing the exact nature and parameters of their agreement. No binding offer and acceptance had occurred. The parties were simply negotiating, jockeying for the best and most appropriate terms as they each saw their interests.

Of course, despite the clear evidence from the documentary record of the fact that no accord had been reached as of June 13th, in his letter of January 2, 1992 Mr. Cohen included, and sought to rely upon, the strange and unexplained copy of the April 15 Granello letter bearing the purported signature of Ms. Lott, purportedly signed by her on April 26, just 11 days after the Granello proposal was dated. Where this signed acceptance of the Board's terms, sans any modifications such as those proposed by Mr. Goldstein in his June 12 letter, was throughout the period April - December remains unexplained, except for the reference to its being in the Selikoff and Cohen file. Assuming the authenticity of both the Lott signature and the date of April 26, the record is clear that neither Ms. Lott nor her attorney ever sent this signed document, which clearly would have bound the Board, to either Mr. Granello or to his client, nor did they ever suggest, throughout the whole course of dealing up to the letter of January 2 that the original unamended Board proposal had in fact been accepted in writing, or even in thought, by Ms. Lott. Given these facts, the appearance of the signed letter as part of the Cohen response to Mr. Granello's December 30 letter advising that the Board would proceed with tenure charges can only be explained as either (1) a letter signed by Ms. Lott, who then decided, with or without the advice of counsel, that she should seek better terms and thus the letter was never mailed; (2) a letter signed by Ms. Lott and then somehow overlooked by Mr. Goldstein, who proceeded to seek other terms apparently oblivious to the fact that his client had already accepted the original offer; (3) a letter signed and then purposely held aside while better terms were sought, but which was nevertheless available to be resurrected from the file if the attempt at better terms failed, or (4) a letter which was not signed in April, 1991, but which was signed much later and put forward as a defense to the institution of tenure charges after the attempt to secure modifications of the Board proposal was unsuccessful. As this last possibility is one which does not assume the authenticity of the dating of the document at the purported time and carries with it serious implications which I deem unwarranted by the circumstances and the persons involved, I believe that the most logical explanation is that Mr. Goldstein chose not to forward the signed letter or to even mention its existence as he sought additional terms which he and his client felt to be advantageous to her. Regardless of the exact reason why it was not sent to Mr. Granello before January, since Mr. Goldstein took no action to simply accept the April proposition, but chose instead to communicate what was in effect a counter proposal to Mr. Granello, I FIND that the April 15 offer was never accepted by Ms. Lott or by her attorneys on her behalf and that the attempt to reach a mutual agreement entered a new phase with the counter offer and Mr. Granello's immediate negative response thereto, that is, his June 13 letter in which he rejected the additional terms proposed by Mr. Goldstein and sought to have Mr. Goldstein revise his offer.

The focus now shifts to the occurrences of October. Following Mr. Granello's August letter seeking to find out what was happening in regard to his June 13 letter, the first contact was initiated by Mr. Cohen. Whether there was one or two phone conversations, the theory upon which Ms. Sapakie proceeded at trial was that the binding agreement arose through the oral discussion of terms between Messrs. Cohen and Granello on October 17. According to Mr. Cohen's thesis, by the end of this call he and his adversary had reached total agreement and what is more, the Board attorney had in no way suggested that the agreement reached was not final and thus binding, not in any way subject to any further approval by the Board.

Mr. Cohen's recall of the details of the October 17 call was far more extensive than that of Mr. Granello. Yet, even assuming that Mr. Cohen did read the exact language of the proposed modification of the Goldstein June 12 proposal to Mr. Granello and even assuming that Mr. Granello suggested, even directly stated, that these modifications were so satisfactory in respect to the concerns that he had expressed on June 13 that Mr. Cohen could conclude in his mind that there was a "done deal," nevertheless, this belief and the Board attorney's satisfaction with the arrangements does not automatically render the agreement binding. While it is true that if parties intend to be bound by an oral agreement, a written memorialization of the contract is not necessary for enforcement purposes, Bistricer v. Bistricer, 231 N.J. Super. 143 (Ch. Div. 1987), the entire circumstances of the matter, including any evidence bearing upon the understandings of the parties as well as the course of dealing, must be examined to determine their intentions.

According to Mr. Granello, at the time that he received Mr. Goldstein's June proposal he had only spoken to the Board about the terms of the proposal that he had made to Ms. Lott's attorney in the April 15 letter. The terms added by Goldstein relating to confidentiality and expungement were never topics of conversation between he and the Board. When he replied and received no further answer from Mr. Goldstein, and subsequently when he resumed talks with Mr. Cohen some 4 months later, he did not first go back to his principals to discuss these added terms. Thus, when he spoke to Mr. Cohen he may have expressed general satisfaction as to the fact that the two men appeared to understand what was needed to settle their differences, but he did not suggest that he had the Board's authorization to agree to the additional term regarding confidentiality which was new at the time of the Goldstein proposal and not part of the Board's original settlement offer. In fact, Mr. Granello points to the language of the letter of October 23, in which Mr. Cohen refers to the idea of his advising the Board as to the propriety of the confidentiality provision as modified. To Mr. Granello, this suggests that Mr. Cohen full well knew that he, Granello, needed to take the now revised proposal back to his board for final approval, and not merely for a ministerial signature, which is precisely the characterization of the required action which Mr. Cohen testified that he foresaw as necessary.[2]

Based upon the testimony and the documentary evidence, I CONCLUDE that the parties did not reach an agreement on the terms and conditions under which the Board of Education would agree to forego a tenure charge against Ms. Lott up to October 14, 1991. Thereafter, I FIND that Mr. Cohen and Mr. Granello spoke once or twice, but that only on October 17 did they reach a conceptual agreement that certain modifications to the original counterproposal of Mr. Goldstein's June 12 letter would settle the terms upon which such an agreement

2 The fact that Mr. Granello apparently was aware of a possible change in the status of Ms. Lott's position vis-a-vis the RIF is not in itself a factor which suggests that the Board simply was attempting to avoid the consequences of a previously completed bargain. If the agreement was not binding as of the conclusion of the Cohen-Granello exchanges, the fact that it was not may play into the hands of the Board as it seeks to prevent Ms. Lott's return to active teaching in the district, but this is merely a consequence of the circumstances.

would rest. Further, I FIND that Mr. Cohen did read to Mr. Granello wording that Mr. Granello indicated sounded acceptable to him. Mr. Cohen did tell Mr. Granello that he would be presenting these terms, as revised, to his client. He then prepared the revised Settlement Agreement and Release, and had his client sign it. He then forwarded the signed document to Mr. Granello.

I FIND no indication that Mr. Granello ever told Mr. Cohen that the Board of Education was committed to a settlement by the discussion which he was having with Mr. Cohen. At the same time, I FIND that he did not specify to his adversary on the telephone that the acceptable language which he, Granello, had heard from Mr. Cohen was likely to be rejected by the Board, this despite any indications that Mr. Granello had about the possibility of the RIF not depriving Ms. Lott of her position. Clearly, Mr. Granello had apparent authority to negotiate on behalf of the Board and there is no indication that he did anything or said anything directly to dissuade Mr. Cohen from this understanding.

I FIND that Mr. Cohen prepared the Settlement Agreement for the signature of the principals involved as a matter of course. However, from his letter to the Board attorney of October 23, it seems quite evident that he, Mr. Cohen, knew that the Board had to be satisfied by its attorney as to the propriety of this term regarding confidentiality and disclosure, a term not found in the Board's original proposal and a term which the Board attorney had indicated concern about ever since it was proposed by Mr. Goldstein. Thus, Mr. Cohen had reason to believe that the attorney did not have actual authority to bind the Board, but instead could negotiate within parameters and then go back to the Board for final approval. This should have been especially evident given the seriousness of the matter, involving as it did an agreement by a public board of education to refrain from seeking tenure action against a staff member who had admitted criminal responsibility for a drug offense, a matter already publicized and thus fraught with potential for public interest and concern. While Mr. Cohen might now argue that the assurance to the Board was a mere formality, given the nature of this case such an argument is less than persuasive.

Based upon the above, I CONCLUDE that the negotiations between Mr. Cohen and Mr. Granello in October did not result in an agreement which was binding upon the Board of Education prior to their having an opportunity to review and approve the results of the negotiations. I further CONCLUDE that Mr. Cohen had reason to understand that the process of arriving at a binding agreement to preclude tenure charges in exchange for an agreement to certain conditions was not final at the time that he concluded his telephone conversation with Mr. Granello on the 17th. As such, I CONCLUDE that the Board was not bound to refrain from instituting tenure charges against Ms. Lott.

THE APPROPRIATE DISCIPLINARY ACTION

Ms. Lott engaged in an activity which constituted unbecoming conduct for a public school teacher. The undisputed record demonstrates that during her 11 years as a teacher of art in the Willingboro district she was praised for her work and her commitment. The record contains no blemishes; on the contrary it contains many positives. That Ms. Lott was a very fine teacher cannot be doubted from this record. In addition, her testimony indicates that during the time following her suspension she has taken advantage of the time to obtain further education, taking graduate level courses for which she has obtained outstanding grades. Ms. Lott offered that if asked she could incorporate drug awareness into her art classes, something she had not previously been asked to do. She felt that "she had a lot to offer."

The witness testified that after her conviction she continued to live in Willingboro for some time. Students often came by to offer to help her with yard work. Some asked her when she was coming back to school and said that they missed her. She heard no negative conversations about herself.

Ms. Lott explained that she believes that teachers should be examples to the students they teach. She called herself a "product of society" and noted that what happened to her could happen to the children's relatives. She is learning to overcome her mistake and trying to better herself. She believes that it is important to "turn a negative into a positive." She did not realize the "seriousness of growing the marijuana." The incident "shook her," made her "see the light." She "had not paid much attention to the legalities," although on cross-examination she admitted that she knew at the time of the offense that possession of marijuana was illegal. If she now can help someone to not get involved "it would be "110%" better." She can help others to avoid mistakes from her own personal experience.

The Board of Education presented one witness with regard to the appropriate action to be taken against the respondent due to her involvement in criminal conduct involving marijuana. William C. Lonkart, a member of the Board of Education since April 1990, was a member of the Board at the time of Ms. Lott's arrest. He does not know her personally. According to Mr. Lonkart, the Board reviewed the police reports of the arrest and ultimately determined that possession of over 50 grams of marijuana required dismissal from employment in the district. The Board has an active policy to promote an anti-drug attitude in the district, including signs placed in the schools and counseling. He pointed to a Board policy, adopted January 11, 1982, entitled "Teaching About Drugs, Alcohol And Tobacco," but he conceded that he was not specifically aware of the statutes cited within that policy. Mr. Lonkart also noted that there had been newspaper publicity surrounding Ms. Lott's arrest and her suspension and that he was "constantly asked by people - what happened with the case."

Mr. Lonkart explained that although the Board did originally enter into settlement discussions concerning the future employment of the respondent, it ultimately determined that permitting Ms. Lott to remain on staff would have sent the wrong message, i.e. "its okay to do drugs." The message which her dismissal sent was that it was not okay, that drugs were "wrong," and that it did not matter who the person was.

The witness acknowledged that he had not personally reviewed the teacher's performance evaluations, but it was "possible" that other members of the Board did so, perhaps including the members of the personnel committee of which he is not a part. However, Mr. Lonkart did agree that he was aware that Ms. Lott had a "clean" record as a teacher, although he did not recall that she had been described as "excellent" or "outstanding." In conclusion, Mr. Lonkart added that it did not make a difference as to how Ms. Lott was characterized in regard to her abilities, she simply "didn't belong in the district."

Ms. Lott presented testimony from her probation officer Jeffrey A. Finer and from Chief Burlington County Probation Officer J. Edward Paglione to the effect that she successfully completed the terms and conditions of her probation, including the drug testing ordered as a part of the probation.

Discussion

The nature of a penalty to be imposed on a school employee who violates the state's laws against the use and/or possession of controlled dangerous substances has been the source of recurrent consideration by administrative law judges and the Commissioner. While the determination that such conduct is improper has been made without difficulty, the decision as to how to balance the need for serious and clear action against persons who violate these laws while taking into account their past records of performance and the specific facts of the particular violations has proven more difficult.

There is no question that even one incident of improper conduct on the part of a school employee can support a termination of that employee's tenure, if the incident is sufficiently flagrant. The factors which affect the determination of the fitness to teach are broad in scope and are not necessarily limited to classroom proficiency. Gish v. Board of Education of Paramus, 145 N.J. Super. 96, 105 (App. Div. 1976), certif. den. 74 N.J. 251 (1977), cert. den. 434 U.S. 879 (1977). Here, the Board's position is that the nature of the incident, involving a criminal conviction for a drug offense, is in and of itself of such a serious nature that it outweighs any evidence of excellence in "proficiency" which may have been demonstrated by Ms. Lott.

Initially, a word must be said regarding the Board policy cited by Mr. Lonkart. The policy refers to a "philosophy that drug abuse includes any physical or mental state resulting from the use of a drug for any purpose other than its medically prescribed use, and that this mental and/or physical effect precludes realization of the educational potential of the individual." The policy then refers to the "objectives of the drug education curriculum" as "rooted in the Board's belief that prevention requires education and that the most important aspect of the policies and guidelines . . . should be the education of each individual student to the dangers of drug use." Finally, the policy makes it the responsibility of the Superintendent to review the guideline's "for staff members in conducting drug education and dealing with drug abuse." The 1982 policy cites N.J.S.A. 18A-4-28.7, since repealed, which dealt with workshops for teachers on drug education, and N.J.S.A. 35-4, also since repealed, which provided for teaching classes on the nature and effect of alcoholic drinks and narcotics.

It seems clear from the text and the citations that the Board's 1982 policy regarding "Teaching About Drugs, Alcohol and Tobacco," while indicative of the Board's concern for promoting an anti-drug abuse message to its students and, of course, impliedly to its employees as well, is not itself a policy meant to serve as a vehicle which either intends to direct and control the actions of faculty members in regard to their personal conduct or to serve as a tool for disciplining such persons. The entire thrust here is one of education. While the policy is itself inappropriate as a vehicle for discipline, it nevertheless does serve to point out the direction that the Board wished to go, indeed was mandated to go, in promoting a message concerning the avoidance of illicit drug use. The lack of a distinct Board policy upon which to premise action is not an impediment to discipline under the statute in the case of a criminal conviction for illegal possession of a controlled dangerous substance.

A review of case law reveals that the issue of what is the appropriate discipline is at least to some degree fact sensitive. In The Matter of The Tenure Hearing of Jeffrey Wolfe, School District of The Township of Randolph, 1980 S.L.D. 721, the Commissioner considered a case where an Administrative Law Judge upheld a dismissal of a tenured teacher who had been charged with growing marijuana on his premises and possession of more than 25 grams of marijuana. Mr. Wolfe was granted a conditional discharge as a first time offender, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 24:21-27. The Appellate Division affirmed the Commissioner's decision, noting > [T]he charges involve the cultivation, growth and possession of narcotics. There is a strong legislative policy of concern about the problem of drugs in the public schools...The evidence of Wolfe's guilt of the charges stands unrefuted and they involve a peculiarly sensitive area. No evidence of mitigating circumstances or personal hardship was presented.

In the more recent case of The Tenure Hearing of Robert P. Valenti, School District of The Township of Monroe, OAL DKT. NO. EDU 4926-89, Commissioner's Decision 177-89 (March 6, 1990), the teacher was also arrested for possession of marijuana. The amount involved was one hand rolled cigarette and an additional 2.5 grams. The violation was of the disorderly persons statute, rather than of the criminal statute. The teacher had been employed in the district for 20 years and the testimony of a number of witnesses indicated that he was an outstanding educator. While the administrative law judge weighed the offense versus the proofs as to the teacher's proficiency and concluded that removal was not warranted and a forfeiture of 120 days pay was appropriate, the Commissioner raised the penalty to a 180 day forfeiture and also ordered that Mr. Valenti not receive an increment. Thus, in Valenti, the Commissioner appears to have determined that there are some cases of marijuana possession that do not call for removal. The reasoning for this conclusion is not stated at any length, but it appears that the Commissioner agreed with Judge Holmes' analysis that the "single disorderly act, when viewed in the light of petitioner's exemplary record of 20 years, does not compel one to the conclusion that loss of tenure and termination is the only legitimate penalty."

In the case at bar, the facts present a case of possession of 64 marijuana plants grown in the yard of the respondent's home. The respondent stands convicted of a criminal offense, not a disorderly offense as was Mr. Valenti. No conditional discharge or other pretrial release was involved, as in Wolfe. The amount possessed and the circumstances of the possession, while apparently for personal use, was nevertheless far different that that in Valenti, where the marijuana consisted of the single cigarette and the 2.5 grams found in the possession of the teacher and a companion in a bar parking lot. With the facts of this case, the significance of the mitigating evidence of the teachers' fine performance as an educator fades in comparison with the Valenti mix of a very limited amount of marijuana, no evidence of ongoing cultivation of a personal "crop" and a disorderly conviction. The factors that may have allowed Mr. Valenti to survive may not be so applicable to Ms. Lott.

Teachers ". . . are professionals to whom the people have entrusted the care and custody of tens of thousands of school children with the hope that this trust will result in the maximum educational growth and development of each individual child. This heavy duty requires a degree of self restraint and controlled behavior rarely requisite in other types of employment." In The Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Jacque L. Sammons, School District of Black Horse Pike Regional, Camden County, 1972 S.L.D. 302, 321. As such, those educators who flaunt the law, especially in the area of illicit involvement with drugs, must be prepared to pay a very heavy price for their lack of lawfulness. While I recognize that the drug involved here is not one of the so-called "hard" drugs and that the respondent has an exemplary record, I am nevertheless constrained to agree with the Board that Ms. Lott's conduct requires that she lose her tenure.

It is ORDERED that the respondent's employment as a tenured teacher in the district be terminated.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF ROBERT BRYANT, SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF ORANGE.	:	BEFORE THE COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION/OFFICE OF ADMINISTRATIVE LAW O.A.L. DOCKET NO. EDU 09332-92 AGENCY REF. NO. 486-10/92 SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT

The parties hereto, wishing to amicably resolve the dispute between them, do hereby agree as follows:

1. Robert Bryant was originally employed by the Orange Board of Education (the 'Board') as a Teacher of Social Studies in September, 1971. Mr. Bryant also served as Social Studies Department Chairman until that position was eliminated in 1991.

2. Until the field trip of June 10, 1992, which was the basis for the charges filed in this matter, Mr. Bryant's teaching career was not only unblemished, it was commendable. He was selected as an outstanding teacher through the New Jersey Governor's Teacher Recognition Program in 1987, received a certificate of achievement from the Orange School District in 1988 for outstanding contributions to the high school and has received many other accolades. His abilities in dealing with and helping adolescents are well known.

3. The field trip of June 10, 1992 was designed as both a fund raising event for the Peer Leadership Program and as a reward for the student participants in that program. The Peer Leadership Program is designed to instill leadership qualities and values of self-esteem in students, particularly in an urban environment. Mr. Bryant has been a primary organizer and adult leader of that program for many years. It has been a very successful program in the Orange School District.

4. At the time the charges were filed, the Board was given information as to the events which allegedly transpired on June 10, 1992 from sources which, after thorough investigation, have been established as erroneous in many significant respects.

5. It is unquestionably true that errors in judgment were made by Mr. Bryant, particularly with regard to his allowing the trip to proceed when some of the scheduled chaperones failed to appear and when bus transportation proved to be inadequate to accommodate all who wished to attend. Subsequent investigation has established that these errors were not the result of a negligent or careless attitude, but rather one based on Mr. Bryant's genuine, but misplaced, desire to avoid disappointing over 100 high school students who were present and were excitedly anticipating the excursion to Cheesequake State Park.

6. Although student rowdiness led to a premature termination of the trip, there were no injuries or damage resulting from the events of June 10, 1992.

7. Allegations with regard to student drinking during the trip have not been substantiated and it is clear that no such conduct was permitted or ignored by Mr. Bryant or any of the other adult supervisors.

8. There is no evidence to support allegations of intentional misrepresentations, deceptive tactics or a 'scheme' of any type. No abuse of funds collected has been established and parental consents were sought from the students who were scheduled for the trip. All monies outstanding were promptly turned over to school authorities.

9. Failures to comply with Board policy appear to have resulted from ignorance of those policies and not intentional disregard.

10. Every effort was made by Mr. Bryant to monitor and control student behavior. Those efforts proved insufficient due to the failure of several chaperones to appear for the trip.

11. Based on the Board's investigations, it is apparent that while some sanctions are appropriate in this matter, the sanction of dismissal is not warranted. It is indeed apparent that Mr. Bryant's abilities are needed at Orange High School.

12. Since Mr. Bryant is willing to acknowledge his failings in regard to this trip and since it is apparent that the experience has alerted him to the areas of urgent concern on the part of the Board and the community, it is the desire of the Board that the pending tenure charges against Mr. Bryant be withdrawn and dismissed, with prejudice.

13. It is further stipulated by Mr. Bryant that he understands and agrees to the statements set forth herein and as to the proposed settlement. Mr. Bryant agrees to accept, without contest, the Board's decision with respect to its intended action to withhold his 1993-94 salary increment. Mr. Bryant further agrees to waive any claim to back salary for the period of his suspension without pay.

14. The stipulations and agreements set forth in this document are made as part of this settlement. In the event this settlement is not approved by the appropriate authorities, it is agreed that nothing set forth herein may be used as evidence in any subsequent proceedings.

15. The parties agree that the pursuit of this litigation through plenary hearing is not in the best interests of the students, parents or the community constituting the Orange School District. Rather, this settlement is in the best interests of all concerned and, in particular, is in the public interest. The standards set forth in The Tenure Hearing of Frank Cardonick, 1983 S.L.D.____ (St. Bd., 4/6/83) have been met.

16. Both parties have had legal representation and are aware of their respective rights to litigate the issues in this case with a final decision to be made by the Commissioner of Education as an alternative to settlement. The decision to enter into this settlement rather than to avail themselves of the right to litigate has been made of their own free will without duress or coercion.

17. The parties acknowledge that this settlement must be approved by the Office of Administrative Law and the Commissioner of Education. In the event such approvals are not forthcoming, the parties will be returned to the status quo pending at the time when this settlement was adopted and this agreement shall be null and void.

18. All terms of this agreement are material and shall be controlled by the laws of the State of New Jersey.

This document may not be altered except by the written consent of all parties.

19. The parties signing below hereby acknowledge that they have been duly authorized to enter into this agreement. A copy of the Board's resolution adopting this agreement is attached hereto.

WHEREFORE, this Agreement is signed and sealed by the parties as and for their act and deed.

W.H.V.P. and J.P.V.P., petitioners, pro se

James E. Stahl, Esq., for respondents (Borrus, Goldin, Foley, Vignuolo, Hyman and Stahl, attorneys)

BEFORE JOSEPH F. FIDLER, ALJ:

The petitioners seek emergent relief from a three-day suspension scheduled to begin June 1, 1993. In their petition to the Commissioner of the Department of Education filed pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9 on May 24, 1993, the petitioners allege that the respondents have violated district policies and have denied T.L.V.P. due process prior to the imposition of discipline, contrary to Goss v. Lopez, 419 U.S. 565 95 S.Ct. 729, 42 L.Ed. 2d 725 (1975).

T.L.V.P. is a graduating senior in respondents John P. Stevens High School. In their request for relief, the petitioners ask that the suspension not be enforced on June 1, 2, and 3, or any other date, for the following reasons:

1. This action could cause irreparable harm by having a negative impact on his final marking period grade, final exam grade and his college acceptance to Colgate, if Colgate should decide to re-evaluate his status at the end of the year.

2. The Supreme Court has ruled that education is a legal right that cannot be taken away without due process of law, which we have not been granted by the respondents.

As noted, the petition and application for emergent relief was filed with the Commissioner of the Department of Education on May 24, 1993. The Department of Education transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law on May 25, 1993, for a hearing on the application for emergency relief, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.6. Argument and brief testimony on the application for emergent relief was heard on May 27, 1993, and for the reasons which follow, the application is denied.

The petitioners assert that their disagreement with the respondents arises from a fighting incident following a basketball game between Sayreville High School and J.P. Stevens High School on January 26, 1993. T.L.V.P. acknowledged that he had admitted to a police detective that he was large cause of the fight. However, although he admitted that he was an instigator, he stated that the backed away from the altercation and did not fight. Within a day or two after the incident at the basketball game, T.L.V.P. and his father met with high school Principal Cedric Richardson. The petitioners acknowledged that they were told T.L.V.P. would be barred from basketball games and wrestling matches for the remainder of the year. T.L.V.P. denied being told by any school administrator that he was prohibited from attending all evening activities. Principal Richardson testified to the contrary. It was his recollection that he told T.L.V.P. that he would not be permitted to attend after school or evening activities for the remainder of the school year. Two other administrators were present.

T.L.V.P.'s parents assert that they were unaware of the ban from all evening activities and it is stipulated that they were not provided with written notice of the prohibition. However, student government advisor Christine Polyak testified that she had attempted to recruit T.L.V.P. to serve on a committee for an event which would take place during the evening hours. It was her testimony that she clearly recollected T.L.V.P. telling her that he could not attend an evening activity because of discipline from the Sayreville altercation. T.L.V.P. further informed Ms. Polyak that he had spoken to Mr. Richardson and was told that he could not be there for the event.

It is undisputed that T.L.V.P. attempted to attend a "Mr. J.P.S." contest being held in the high school auditorium on the evening of February 26 or 27, 1993. After purchasing a ticket and sitting down, T.L.V.P. was approached by a security guard who told him that his name was on a list and that he would have to leave. T.L.V.P. acknowledged that he was upset and that when he got up, he said in a somewhat loud and boisterous manner that it was "like Hitler," meaning tyrannical. T.L.V.P. was with C.M., another student who allegedly was not allowed to attend after school activities. According to T.L.V.P. he got his money back and left with C.M. However, they felt that it was unfair that they could not stay for the performances and they went to the back door of the auditorium and decided that they would dance across the stage. As T.L.V.P. put it, "they wouldn't let us watch, so we'd be in it." While a student was performing in the contest, T.L.V.P. and C.M. waked behind him on the stage for five or ten seconds and then left the building. T.L.V.P. denied that he grabbed his crotch while on stage, but Ms. Polyak, who observed the incident, testified that it appeared to her that both T.L.V.P. and C.M. grabbed their crotches while they were on stage.

By letter to Superintendent of Schools Dr. Joseph A. Kreskey dated March 5,1993, the petitioners appealed from "a proposed suspension of five days" for T.L.V.P. arising from his attendance at the evening activity on or about February 26, 1993, and for reentering the auditorium and briefly appearing on stage prior to again leaving. This letter to the superintendent establishes that the petitioners had at least oral notice of the proposed suspension. By letter to the petitioners dated March 9, 1993, Dr. Kreskey stated that he had carefully considered the issues related to their appeal of the five-day suspension which resulted from T.L.V.P.'s "unauthorized attendance and disruption of a program at John P. Stevens High School on February 27, 1993." Dr. Kreskey reduced the five day suspension to three days because the parents had never been informed in writing that T.L.V.P. was barred from attending evening activities at the high school.. The parents were informed that his decision regarding the incident could be appealed to the Board of Education. The parents pursued this appeal and an informal hearing was conducted on April 13, 1993. It was agreed that a further meeting would be scheduled and the date of April 28, 1993, was acceptable to the petitioners. However, the respondent Board denied the petitioner's appeal of the three-day suspension in the privileged session of its meeting on April 27, 1993. The three-day suspension was originally scheduled to commence on May 5, 1993. However, by letter to Dr. Kreskey dated April 30, 1993, the petitioners advised that they would be appealing the decision of the Board of Education and the scheduled suspension was not imposed. The Board thereafter scheduled the suspension to commence on June 1, 1993. The petitioners seek emergent relief from the scheduling of the suspension, asserting irreparable harm will result.

However, T.L.V.P. acknowledged in his testimony that his academic courses and by 11:48 a.m. each day. He has missed nine days of school this year, five of which were excused. He has been accepted for college at Colgate.

This is the substance of the record on the application for emergent relief. Based upon this record, I CONCLUDE that the petitioners have failed to meet the standards for granting emergent relief articulated by the New Jersey Supreme Court in Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982). While a three-day suspension will deprive T.L.V.P. of academic classes for three mornings, the petitioners have failed to demonstrate how he would experience irreparable harm if their motion were denied. The potential impact of the suspension on his final marking period grades and final exam grades is speculative. It is also speculation to suggest that his suspension will affect his college acceptance, since information about the suspension will appear only in the student's confidential records which are not provided to colleges.

The petitioners have also failed to demonstrate a likelihood of prevailing on the merits of the matter. To determine whether T.L.V.P. knew or should have known that he was prohibited from attending evening activities at the school for the remainder of the school year will require credibility determinations which would be made only after a full hearing. However, it is undisputed that T.L.V.P. reentered the school auditorium after being informed that he must leave. He and another student thereafter walked onto the stage while a performance was in progress. Such open defiance of the authority of a teacher or person having authority over him constitutes cause for suspension pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2. The petitioners thereafter received at least oral notice of the proposed suspension, since they brought an appeal to the superintendent of schools which specifically referenced the proposed suspension and the reason for it. The petitioners were permitted to express their disagreements with the proposed suspension in writing and in person to the school administrators. Ultimately, the Board of Education denied the petitioners' appeal and advised that a three-day suspension would be imposed. In Goss v. Lopez, Supra., at 581, the Supreme Court determined that students facing temporary suspension have interest qualifying for protection of the Due Process clause, and due process requires, in connection with a suspension of ten days or less, that the student be given oral or written notice of the charges against him, and if he denies them, an explanation of the evidence the authorities have and an opportunity to present his side of the story. Given this standard, the petitioners have not demonstrated a likelihood of prevailing on their allegation that T.L.V.P.'s due process rights were violated by the respondents.

The relative hardship to the parties in granting or denying emergency relief must be considered. T.L.V.P. faces a three-day suspension which will deprive him of academic classes for three morning. Any other hardship appears to be speculative. The respondents have a substantial interest in maintaining discipline and providing a safe and orderly school environment for the Board's students. The hardship to the respondents would likely be greater if the relief is granted than the hardship to the petitioners if the relief is denied. Finally, the petitioners have failed to demonstrate that the public interest compels the granting of emergency relief to them.

Based upon all of the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that the petitioners have failed to meet the standards for granting emergent relief. Accordingly, I ORDER that the petitioners' application for emergent relief is denied. A hearing on the merits of the issues raised in the petition of appeal shall be convened as expeditiously as possible if the petitioners wish to pursue their appeal.

This order on application for emergency relief may be adopted, modified or rejected by Commissioner of the Department of Education, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The final decision shall be issued without undue delay, but no later than forty-five (45) days following the entry of this order. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this order within forty-five (45) days, this recommended order shall become a final decision on the issue of emergent relief in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF EDISON ET AL., MIDDLESEX COUNTY,	:	DECISION ON MOTION
RESPONDENTS.	:

The limited record of this emergent relief matter, including the initial decision and tape of the hearing, have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Based on her independent review of the matter, the Commissioner concurs with those findings of the ALJ determining that petitioners have failed to meet the standards for pendente lite restraints as articulated in Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982). Accordingly, for those reasons expressed in the initial decision dated May 28, 1993, the Motion for Emergent Relief is denied. The Commissioner directs that the matter proceed to a hearing on the merits of petitioners' claims in the usual course.
