Meanwhile, the Appellate Division granted leave for interlocutory review. By a decision dated September 29, 1992, the Appellate Division reversed the trial court's ruling. Instead of dismissing the complaint, however, the Appellate Division transferred it to the Commissioner.[2] In so doing, the Appellate Division expressly "rejected plaintiff's claim that he has a legal, contractual remedy that may be adjudicated outside the parameters of the pertinent school laws applicable to reductions in force and the consequent impact upon affected teachers." Siegel v. Garfield Bd. of Educ., No. A-3926-91T1, slip op. at 3 (N.J. App. Div. Sept. 29, 1992).

Subsequently, on October 22, 1993, the Commissioner transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law "OAL") for hearing as a contested case. The OAL held a hearing on April 15, 1993. Witnesses and exhibits are listed in the appendix. Counsel submitted briefs by May 10, 1993, on which date the record closed.

Findings of Fact

All of the material facts are either stipulated or undisputed. I FIND:

On September 1, 1991 Siegel entered into a teacher's contract with the Board for the academic year to commence on September 1, 1991 and terminate on June 31,1992. Their agreement is set forth in a boilerplate "specimen contract" designed "to be modified in accordance with the terms of employment." Various spaces on the printed form were filled in by handwritten or typed notations. Salary for the entire ten-month term was $36,977.

The agreement contained a cancellation clause, reproduced here in full:

> It is hereby agreed by the parties hereto that this contract may at any time be terminated by either party giving to the other _____ days' notice in writing of intention to > terminate the same, but that in the absence of any provision herein for a definite number of days' notice, the contract shall run for the full term named above.

[2]Since Siegel instituted the court action within 90 days of receiving notice of the Board's adverse action, the filing with the Commissioner is timely. See N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c). Where a case is transferred from the Court to the Commissioner, "the date of filing with the Commissioner relates back to the original date of filing with the Superior Court." Driggins v. Newark Bd. of Educ., 93 N.J.A.R. 2d (Vol. 4A) 317, 318 (Comm'r of Ed.)

No definite number of days was specified in the written contract. The line reserved for that specific purpose was left blank.

Shortly after the start of the 1991-92 academic year, the Board notified Siegel by letter that it was "terminating [his] employment with the district effective 60 days from this date, due to a reduction in force[.]" Although that notice is dated September 30, 1991, Siegel's unrefuted testimony establishes that he did not actually receive the letter until October 15, 1991. His testimony is consistent with the acknowledged fact that the Board continued paying Siegel's salary through December 15, 1991, or sixty days from October 15, 1991.[3]

Since it was his very first year of employment in the district, Siegel did not have any tenure or seniority rights. Forced to look for a new job after school had already opened for 1991-92, Siegel was unable to find another teaching position. He scoured the greater New York-New Jersey metropolitan area unsuccessfully looking for vacancies in the educational fields which he is qualified to teach. Significantly, the Board introduced no evidence showing that suitable jobs were available. However, the Board did offer Siegel an opportunity to work as a substitute teacher in the Garfield school system at the rate of $60 per day. Siegel admits that he declined that offer because he wanted "a better position" and also because he would no longer be eligible for medical coverage and pension contributions.

[3]In point of fact, Siegel testified that he actually was paid for two additional days, through December 17, 1991

Conclusions of Law

Based on the foregoing facts and the applicable law, I CONCLUDE that Siegel is entitled to damages fixed by the cancellation clause in his contract of employment.

N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9 authorizes a local school district to reduce the number of teaching staff members "whenever, in the judgment of the board, it is advisable to abolish any such position for reasons of economy or because of reduction in the number of pupils or of change in the administrative or supervisory organization of the district or for other good cause[.]" A decision by a school board to abolish a particular position is a managerial prerogative "[t]hat cannot be negotiated" away. Old Bridge Twp. Bd. of Educ. v. Old Bridge Educ. Ass'n, 98 N.J. 523, 531 (1985). Only tenured teachers are entitled to seniority protection. Bednar v. Westwood Bd. of Educ. 221 N.J. Super. 239, 242 (App. Div. 1987), certif. den. 110 N.J. 512 (1988). Nontenured teachers must be notified before April 30 whether or not they will be offered a contract for the succeeding academic year, but that statutory entitlement is inapplicable here because Siegel was not hired until the beginning of the 1991-92 year. N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10, -11.

Petitioner's argument that Board bears the ultimate burden of proving the justification for a reduction in force must be rejected. In the first place, Siegel never challenged the good faith of the Board's decision to terminate his position. Rather, petitioner framed the issues in terms of whether the Board's action violated the agreement between the parties. It is settled law that, without an affirmative showing of dishonesty, fraud, or abuse, the Commissioner is "not empowered to substitute his discretion for that of the local board." Boult v. Passaic Bd. of Educ., 136 N.J.L. 521, 523 (E. & A. 1947). More pertinently, teaching contracts containing a standard termination provision "may be terminated in accordance with their terms, without the need to demonstrate "good" or "just" cause. Mozier v. Cherry Hill Bd. of Educ., 450 F. Supp. 742, 448 (D.N.J. 1978). Thus, this analysis of Siegel's legal rights proceeds on the basic assumption that the Board acted within its authority when it notified him that his services in the district were no longer necessary.

Nonetheless, Siegel is entitled to some sort of relief for the Board's premature cancellation of his teaching contract The vexing question is how to accommodate the teacher's interest in fairness with the board's managerial prerogative to terminate unnecessary employees. In Old Bridge Twp. Bd. of Educ. v. Old Bridge Educ. Ass'n, supra, a school board had originally notified a teacher in April that she would be rehired and, three months later, notified her in July that it was rescinding her employment for the upcoming school year. Balancing the interests of the parties, the New Jersey Supreme Court concluded that "awarding of a full year's pay (even with potential mitigation) would make a nullity of the Board's necessary power to reduce forces in the face of fiscal emergency." Old Bridge, 98 N.J. at 533. According to the Court, an award of a full year's salary "would eliminate the fiscal benefit of abolishing positions in times of economic crisis and would eviscerate the central propose of the statute." Id. Therefore, the Court devised its own remedy of measuring the extent of the damages by the number of days that the notice was late.

There are several crucial differences between the facts presented in Old Bridge and here. Unlike Old Bridge where the parties had "not actually negotiated a separate provision for notice of proposed fiscal layoffs," 98 N.J. at 534, Siegel's contract has an express cancellation clause dealing with termination of the relationship. Old Bridge also differs in that there was a definite cutoff date by which notice to the teacher was due (making it feasible to calculate damages in terms of lateness), whereas the Board's notice to Siegel was not similarly "late." Most important of all, the teacher in Old Bridge had the better part of the summer to find another job, whereas Siegel only learned of his termination in October when it is more difficult for unemployed teachers to find work.

Apart from such distinguishing features, a careful reading of Old Bridge provides support for Siegel's contractual remedy. Indeed, the Supreme Court itself acknowledged, "Had this been a non-tenured teacher, the Commissioner of Education would have looked to the standard contract of employment to find the correct resolution." 98 N.J. at 531. Relying on prior school law decisions, the Court elaborated:

> To determine the amount of the award the State Board has drawn upon the provisions in the standard contract of employment for non-tenured teachers requiring 60 days. Armstrong v. East Brunswick Bd. of Educ., 1975 SLD 117, aff'd 1976 SLD 1104 (App. Div. 1976) (non-tenured teacher who did not receive notice of nonrenewal until two days after statutory deadline awarded 60 days salary). Had the reduction in force > occurred in mid-term to a non-tenured teacher, the Commissioner would presumably draw upon the same provisions in teachers' contracts calling for 60 days notice of termination to value the claim. Cf. Contaldi v. Board of Educ. of Jersey City (Commissioner of Education, January 23, 1981) (non-tenured teacher awarded 60 days pay when he was not properly notified of his dismissal until the new school year had begun and he had already taught for one school day). 98 N.J. at 532

While 60-days notice of cancellation seems to have become the generally-recognized practice in the educational field, it is not enshrined in any statute or regulation. Review of the two administrative decisions cited by the Supreme Court reveals that in each instance the underlying contract or salary policy specified 60-days notice. Armstrong, 1975 S.L.D. at 1104. Contaldi, slip op. at 4. Accord, Mozier, 450 F. Supp. at 748 n.4, where it was said that the presence of an express 60-day notice provision in a teacher's contract"vitiates any expectancy of year long employment." See also, Canfield v. Pine Hill Bd. of Educ., 97 N.J. Super. 483, 492 (App. Div. 1967) (Gaulkin, S.J.A.D. dissenting), rev'd for reasons expressed in the dissent, 51 N.J. 400 (1968), suggesting that, absent a cancellation clause, "the teacher would, at most, be entitled to his salary for the full term of the contract, but not to tenure."

Nothing however, prohibits the parties from negotiating a shorter or longer notice period, so long as the agreement does not pose a significant threat to the public employer's ability to make substantive policy decisions. Old Bridge, at 529. Such an approach is also consistent with the holding in Rahway Educ. Ass'n v. Rahway Bd. of Educ., 1986 S.L.D. 1588, 1600 (Comm'r), wherein the Commissioner declared that "any agreement which extends salary benefits to nontenured teachers beyond the sixty-day termination provision included in their employment contracts is contrary to law." (Emphasis added).

If the Garfield Board had wanted to limit its exposure, it could have done so by putting the usual 60-day cancellation clause into its standard employment contract. Surely by September the Board ought to have had adequate knowledge of the district's financial condition and staffing needs for the immediate academic year. Consequently, the Board was in a much better position than the newly-hired teacher to anticipate the risk of future loss. If the employment contract had included the customary 60-day language, the Commissioner clearly would have enforced it.

Armstrong; Contaldi. Even if the cancellation clause were silent as to time, the Commissioner would be likely to impute 60 days as a "reasonable" time period. Ordinarily, if a contract contains no express terms as to its duration, it is terminable at will or after a reasonable time. In re Miller's Estate, 90 N.J. 210, 219 (1982); West Caldwell v. Caldwell, 26 N.J. 9, 27 (1958).

Here, however, the contractual language is not susceptible of such interpretation. Language chosen by the Board itself plainly provides that "[I]n the absence of any provision herein for a definite number of days' notice, the contract shall run for the full term[.]" Under these unique circumstances, where the Board could have easily limited its liability by using the appropriate language in its contract, it does not seriously interfere with managerial prerogatives to require the Board to honor the commitment that it voluntarily made.

Finally, consideration must be given to the question of whether Siegel made sufficient efforts to mitigate his damages. Since the terminated employee has available time which may be used profitably, the employer may reduce any damage award by showing that the employee could have secured other employment by reasonable efforts. Unreasonable refusals to accept other proffered employment will trigger mitigation principles. Goodman v. London Metals Exchange, Inc., 86 N.J. 19, 34-35 (1981). Proofs establish that Siegel flatly rejected the Board's offer to hire him as a substitute teacher at $60 per day. Although it is understandable that Siegel would have preferred more lucrative and secure employment, it was unreasonable for him to turn down this temporary source of income. Especially this is true because the job offer was in Seigel's regular line of work as a teacher. While the record may be somewhat imprecise as to how many days of substitute work the district could have offered him, the reason for this lack is that Siegel declined to consider any substitute work whatsoever. Public employers should not be required to pay anyone for not working when there is work available to be done. Accordingly, the Board is entitled to a credit of $60 for each day that it must pay damages.

Order

It is ORDERED that the Board pay to Siegel his salary and other monetary benefits for the period from December 18, 1991 to June 31, 1992.

And it is further ORDERED that the Board is entitled to an offset of $60 per day for every school day during that period.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, 8th Floor West, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

The record and initial decision rendered by the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Exceptions from both parties were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Upon a full and independent review of the record in this matter and the exceptions advanced by the parties, the Commissioner finds such exceptions to be without merit and fully concurs with the findings and conclusions of the ALJ in his initial decision that the Board is liable in damages to petitioner for salary and other monetary benefits for the period December 18, 1991 to June 31, 1992. As succinctly stated by the ALJ, the Board's own actions clearly compel the result in this matter.

> If the Garfield Board had wanted to limit its exposure, it could have done so by putting the usual 60-day cancellation clause into its standard employment contract. Surely by September the Board ought to have had adequate knowledge of the district's financial condition and staffing needs for the immediate academic year. Consequently, the Board was in a much better position than the newly-hired teacher to anticipate the risk of future loss. >
> (Initial Decision, at pp. 7-8)

The Commissioner further agrees that because petitioner rejected the Board's offer to hire him as a substitute teacher at $60 a day, he did not adequately mitigate his damages and, therefore, his monetary entitlement from the Board must be reduced by such $60 a day.

Accordingly, the Commissioner affirms the decision of the Office of Administrative Law. The Board of Education of the City of Garfield is hereby directed to pay petitioner his salary and other monetary benefits for the period December 18, 1991 to June 31, 1992, less an offset of $60 per day for every school day during that period.

For the Respondent-Appellant, Damiano & Cerruti
(Toni Belford Damiano, Esq., of Counsel)

Stanley Siegel (hereinafter "petitioner") was employed as a teacher by the Board of Education of the City of Garfield (hereinafter "Board") for the 1991-92 school year by a written contract dated September 1, 1991. That contract provided, in part:

> It is hereby agreed by the parties hereto that this contract may at any time be terminated by either party giving to the other _____ days' notice in writing of intention to terminate the same, but that in the absence of any provision herein for a definite number of days' notice, the contract shall run for the full term named above.

By letter dated September 30, 1991, the Board notified petitioner that as the result of a reduction in force, his employment was being terminated effective in 60 days.[1] Petitioner challenged such action, arguing that under the express terms of his contract, he was entitled to full compensation through the end of June 1992.[2]

[1] We note that the Board actually paid petitioner's salary through December 17, 1991.

On August 10, 1993, an Administrative Law Judge ("ALJ") concluded that petitioner was entitled to his salary and benefits for the period from December 18, 1991 to June 31 [sic], 1992 pursuant to the express terms of his contract. The ALJ also concluded that petitioner had failed to adequately mitigate his damages in that he had rejected the Board's offer of employment as a substitute teacher at a salary of $60 per day. The ALJ reasoned:

> Although it is understandable that Siegel would have preferred more lucrative and secure employment, it was unreasonable for him to turn down this temporary source of income. Especially this is true because the job offer was in Siegel's regular line of work as a teacher. While the record may be somewhat imprecise as to how many days of substitute work the district could have offered him, the reason for this lack is that Siegel declined to consider any substitute work whatsoever. Public employers should not be required to pay anyone for not working when there is work available to be done. Accordingly, the Board is entitled to a credit of $60 for each day that it must pay damages.

Initial Decision, slip op. at 8.

The ALJ acknowledged that petitioner had "scoured the greater New York-New Jersey metropolitan area unsuccessfully looking for vacancies in the educational fields in which he is qualified to teach" and that "the Board introduced no evidence showing that suitable jobs were available." Id. at 4.

2 Petitioner originally filed his complaint in Superior Court, but the Appellate Division transferred this matter to the Commissioner of Education, rejecting petitioner's claim "that he has a legal, contractual remedy that may be adjudicated outside the parameters of the pertinent school laws applicable to reductions in force and the consequent impact upon affected teachers." Siegel v. Board of Education of the City of Garfield, Docket #A-3926-91T1 (App. Div. 1992).

On September 15, 1993, the Commissioner of Education adopted the findings and conclusions of the ALJ and directed the Board to pay petitioner his salary and other benefits as recommended by the ALJ, less $60 per day for every school day during that period.

The Board filed an appeal to the State Board, arguing that petitioner was entitled to no more than 60 days notice of termination. Petitioner filed a cross-appeal, contending that the Commissioner improperly offset his damage award by $60 per day due to his failure to accept employment with the Board as a substitute teacher.

After a thorough review of the record, we affirm the Commissioner's determination to award petitioner his salary and benefits for the period from December 18, 1991 through June 30, 1992[3] substantially for the reasons expressed by the ALJ and adopted by the Commissioner. However, because the Commissioner failed to apply the correct legal standard in assessing whether petitioner had adequately mitigated his damages, we reverse her determination that petitioner's award should be reduced by $60 per day.

What the Commissioner failed to recognize is that petitioner's duty to mitigate his damages did not require that he accept any offered teaching position without regard to the nature of the position or such factors as the attending salary and benefits. Rather, the duty imposed upon a wrongfully discharged employee by the mitigation doctrine is to seek similar employment in order to reduce the amount of his or her damages. Goodman v. London Metals

[3] We correct the Commissioner's award of salary and benefits through June 31, 1992, a nonexistent date.

Exchange, Inc., 86 N.J. 19 (1981). "Similar employment refers to the nature of the activity, location and rate of compensation....Thus it may be unreasonable to apply mitigation principles when the available job would require the applicant to move his home or to accept a substantial reduction in pay." Goodman, supra at 36-37.[4]

In this case, it is evident from the record that the salary of the substitute teaching assignment offered by the Board was significantly less than that of the full-time employment from which petitioner was dismissed.[5] Thus, notwithstanding the fact that the employment offered to petitioner by the Board was in the teaching profession, his refusal of such offer may not have been unreasonable for mitigation purposes. As found by the ALJ and adopted by the Commissioner and undisputed by the Board, the petitioner "scoured" the New York and New Jersey areas for suitable employment. Had he abandoned such search and accepted the substitute teaching assignment, petitioner may have risked an even greater reduction from his damages by lowering his sights too soon. See Goodman, supra.

In that regard, we reject the ALJ's assertion adopted by the Commissioner that, in applying the mitigation doctrine,

[4] We note that "the degree of comparability required is not static. With the passage of time circumstances may dictate that the claimant lower his sights and accept employment with lower pay, with different work, or at a more distant location..." Goodman, supra at 38. Moreover, a wrongfully discharged employee who lowers his or her sights too soon by accepting lower paying work risks a reduction from damages in an amount equivalent to that which he or she should have accepted. Id. at 40 n.3.

[5] As expressly indicated in petitioner's employment contract, exhibit J-2, in evidence, his annual salary for the 1991-92 school year was $36,977.

"[p]ublic employers should not be required to pay anyone for not working when there is work available to be done." Initial Decision, at 8. There is absolutely no support in law for such a conclusion in the context of an employee's duty to mitigate.

Moreover, even assuming arguendo that petitioner did fail to properly mitigate his damages by refusing the substitute position, there is no support in the record for the conclusion that petitioner's damages should be reduced by $60 for every school day between December 18, 1991 and June 30, 1992 when, as acknowledged by the ALJ, there is no indication as to how much work might have been available to him as a substitute. In applying mitigation principles, the appropriate deduction from damages is the greater of the claimant's actual earnings or the salary such individual should have been earning had he or she adequately mitigated. Goodman, supra at 43. Here, in the absence of evidence as to the number of days during the pertinent period in which substitute work was available, the amount petitioner could have earned had he accepted the substitute assignment cannot be determined. Nor is there any indication in the record before us, which does not include the transcripts from the hearing below, when he was offered the substitute assignment.

Consequently, we affirm the Commissioner's determination that petitioner was entitled to his salary and benefits for the period from December 18, 1991 through June 30, 1992, but reverse her decision to reduce petitioner's damages by $60 per day. In that the record before us does not permit us to determine whether petitioner did, in fact, properly mitigate, we remand to the Commissioner for the limited purpose of providing the Board with the opportunity to demonstrate under the correct legal standard that petitioner failed to properly mitigate his damages by refusing the Board's offer of a substitute teaching position and, if so, how much he could have earned in such an assignment, and for a resultant computation of petitioner's damages. We emphasize that "[m]itigation, including the lower sights principle, is an affirmative defense and the burden of proving the appropriateness of its application rests on the wrongdoer," in this case the Board. PETITIONER,	:

V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF GARFIELD, BERGEN COUNTY,	:	DECISION ON REMAND
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

In this matter Commissioner had adopted ALJ's findings that petitioner was entitled to damages due to Board's premature cancellation of contract and due to contract language. Commissioner had ordered Board to pay petitioner mitigated compensation.

State Board remanded matter for the limited purpose of providing the Board the opportunity to demonstrate under the correct legal standard that petitioner failed to properly mitigate his damages by refusing the Board's offer of a substitute teaching position and, if so, how much he could have earned in such an assignment, and for a resultant computation of petitioner's damages.

On remand, the ALJ concluded that the Board was not entitled to any mitigation of petitioner's damages. Citing the State Board's decision which relied on Goodman v. London Metals Exchange, Inc., ALJ found that petitioner was not required to lower his sights and accept employment with lower pay until he has exhausted reasonable efforts to find similar work at comparable pay. Thus, petitioner's damages should be based on his annual salary for the 1991-92 school year. Board was ordered to pay petitioner his lost salary in the gross amount of $22,958, less the usual deductions for taxes and social security contributions.

Commissioner concurred with the ALJ that the Board failed to meet its affirmative burden, as established in Goodman, of providing that the amount of potential earnings from substitute teaching should mitigate its obligation. Board failed to demonstrate that the lower sights principle should be applied in this circumstance. Board was ordered to pay damages to petitioner as directed.

Statement of the Case

This is a remand by the State Board of Education for development of a more complete record on mitigation of damages.

Procedural History

Petitioner Stanley Siegel ("Siegel"), a non-tenured teacher, brought suit against respondent Garfield Board of Education ("Board"), alleging that the Board had terminated his employment in breach of the cancellation clause in his teaching contract. On August 10, 1993, the administrative law judge issued an initial decision recommending an award of damages to petitioner for violation of his contractual rights, but further concluding that the Board was entitled to an offset of $60 per day because of Siegel's failure to accept the school district's offer of substitute teaching work. Siegel v. Garfield Bd. of Educ., 93 N.J.A.R. 2d (Vol. 4B) 766. Thereafter, on September 15, 1993, the Commissioner of Education adopted this recommendation. By decision dated April 13, 1994, the State Board "affirm[ed] the Commissioner's determination that petitioner was entitled to a salary and benefits for the period from December 18, 1991 though June 30, 1992, but reversed her decision to reduce petitioner's damages by $60 per day." In making that determination, the State Board noted the lack of proof in the existing record "as to how much work might have been available to him as a substitute" and "when he was offered the substitute assignment." Siegel v. Garfield Bd. of Educ., 94 N.J.A.R. 2d (Vol. 4B) 319, 320. Consequently, the State Board remanded the matter to the Commissioner for,

> . . . the limited purpose of providing the Board with the opportunity to demonstrate under the correct legal standard that petitioner failed to properly mitigate his damages by refusing the Board's offer of a substitute teaching position and, if so, how much he could have earned in such an assignment, and for a resultant computation of petitioner's damages. 94 N.J.A.R. 2d at 320.

In turn, the Commissioner referred the matter to the OAL on April 29, 1994 for further proceedings in accordance with these instructions. The OAL held a hearing on February 6, 1995.

Findings of Fact

From the proofs adduced at the hearing, I FIND the following facts:

Garfield is a relatively large school district, comprised of seven lower schools and one high school. At all relevant times, Nick Pracilio was the Board employee responsible for notifying substitute teachers of the availability of daily employment. Typically, he would arrive at his desk in the high school at around 5:00 a.m. Principals from the various schools would telephone him with information about which teachers would be absent from work that particular day. Dr. Robert Van Zanten, superintendent of schools, had provided an approved list of names of substitute teachers. Using this list, Pracilio would telephone prospective substitute teachers and offer them a job for that day. Ordinarily, he would simply "go down the list" in order, without attempting to match a substitute's qualifications with a particular teaching assignment. According to Pracilio's testimony, however, Dr. Van Zanten had told him "to call Mr. Siegel first." Presumably, this preference was given because Siegel had lost his regular teaching job in the district as the result of a reduction in force.

In the two weeks immediately preceding the period in question, Siegel had accepted an offer of substitute work for ten out of ten work days. Specifically, he worked as a substitute for the district on Monday, December 2 through Friday, December 6, 1991 and on Monday, December 9 through Friday, December 13, 1991. Moreover, Pracilio telephoned Siegel on the morning of Monday, December 16, 1991 and offered him substitute work on that day as well. To the best of Pracilio's recollection, Siegel told him that he "wasn't available," but would let him know "when he is available." After that conversation, Pracilio never telephoned Siegel again to offer him substitute work. Siegel never informed Pracilio that he was ready to accept future assignments.

Evidence establishes that there was substitute work available if Siegel had been willing to accept it. During direct examination, Pracilio testified that "there was never a day in Garfield that the district did not require a substitute" and that "every day at least one [teacher] was out." A notebook maintained by Pracilio in the ordinary course of business corroborates that substitute work was available at least through April 16, 1992.[1] Each page of the notebook, which starts on September 3, 1991 and continues to April 17, 1992, contains four columns identifying: the school building; the teacher who was absent; the reason for the absence; and the name of any substitute. For example, on Tuesday, December 17, 1991, there were fourteen absent teachers. Any one of these absences could have been covered by Siegel. Only ten substitute teachers were available, leaving four vacancies which the district was unable to fill. Similarly, on Wednesday, December 18, 1991 there were eighteen absent teachers and only eleven available substitutes.

As indicated, the notebook stops on April 17, 1992, on which date school was closed for the Good Friday holiday. Apart from Pracilio's general testimony, the Board failed to produce any evidence to substantiate that any substitute work was available for the remainder of the 1991-92 school year.[2] If Siegel had been willing to accept

[1] Claiming unfair surprise, petitioner's counsel objected strongly to the admission of these records because the Board had failed to produce them in discovery. This objection was overruled in the interest of creating a complete record. At the hearing, petitioner's counsel declined an offer to continue the hearing to give him sufficient time to respond to this newly-discovered evidence.

[2] While the witness made passing reference to the existence of a second notebook, the Board never offered such notebook into evidence at the hearing.

employment as a substitute teacher, there were seventy-three school days between December 16, 1991 and April 16, 1992 which he could have worked.[3] Therefore, at a rate of $60 per day, Siegel could have earned a total of $4,380.

Conclusions of Law

Based on the foregoing facts and the applicable law, I CONCLUDE that the Board is not entitled to any mitigation of petitioner's damages.

Even if Siegel could have earned extra money by accepting the substitute-teaching offer, it does not follow that the Board is entitled to an offset. In its remand decision, the State Board expressly ruled that the agency below had misapplied the mitigation doctrine. Summarizing the law, the State Board commented:

> What the Commissioner failed to recognize is that petitioner's duty to mitigate his damages did not require that he accept any offered teaching position without regard to the nature of the position or such factors as the attending salary and benefits. Rather, the duty imposed upon a wrongfully discharged employee by the mitigation doctrine is to seek similar employment in order to reduce the amount of his or her damages. Goodman v. London Metals Exchange, Inc., 86 N.J. 19 (1981). "Similar employment refers to the nature of the activity, location and rate of compensation . . . Thus it may be unreasonable to apply mitigation principles when the acceptable job would require the applicant to move his home or to accept a substantial reduction in pay." Goodman, supra at 36-37. 94 N.J.A.R. 2d at 319-320. [Emphasis in the original]

Here, as the State Board remarked, "it is evident from the record that the salary of the substitute teaching assignment offered by the Board was significantly less than that of the full-time employment from which petitioner was dismissed." Ibid. Moreover, a claimant is not required to lower his sights and accept employment with lower pay until he has exhausted reasonable efforts to find similar work at comparable pay. None of the evidence offered by the Board indicates that Siegel was derelict in searching for comparable employment or that his unwillingness to accept an immediate drastic reduction in pay was unreasonable. Under the law, as outlined by the State Board in its decision, the Board has not met its affirmative burden of proving that the amount of potential earnings from substitute teaching, should be considered in mitigation.

Computation of the amount of Siegel's damages should be based on his total annual salary of $36,977 and 182 days in the 1991-92 academic year, or a per diem rate of $203.17. Both parties stipulated that there were 113 school days from December 18, 1991 to June 30, 1992. Accordingly the amount of lost salary is 113 x $203.17 = $22,958. No pre-judgment interest will be allowed against a public governmental entity in the absence of "a showing of overriding and compelling equitable reasons. . . to justify the award." Newark Bd. of Ed. v. Levitt, 197 N.J. Super. 239, 244 (App. Div. 1984).

Order

It is ORDERED that the Board pay to Siegel his lost salary in the gross amount of $22,958, less the usual deductions for taxes and social ecurity contributions.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. STANLEY SIEGEL,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF GARFIELD, BERGEN COUNTY,	:	DECISION ON REMAND
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon careful and independent review of the record of this matter on remand, the Commissioner finds that OAL properly applied the standard set forth in Goodman v. London Metals, supra, in determining that the Board is obligated to pay petitioner for his lost salary from December 18, 1991 through June 30, 1992, less usual deductions for taxes and social security contributions. The Commissioner concurs that the Board herein has failed to meet its affirmative burden, as established in Goodman, of providing that the amount of potential earnings from substitute teaching should mitigate its obligation. Here, no evidence is offered showing that petitioner was derelict in his search for comparable employment (Initial decision, at p. 6), nor was petitioner obligated to accept what would have amounted to a substantial reduction in pay (Goodman, at 37). Moreover, the lower sights principle is not to be applied automatically, but rather with caution and in consideration of the circumstances peculiar to the individual involved. (Goodman, at 40) The Board has failed to demonstrate that the lower sights principle should be applied in this circumstance.

Accordingly, the Commissioner adopts as his own the findings and conclusions of law by the Administrative Law Judge in the initial decision for the reasons expressed therein. The Board is ordered to pay damages to petitioner as therein specified.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

IN THE MATTER OF THE SCHOOL :
ELECTION HELD IN THE SCHOOL : COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
DISTRICT OF THE BOROUGH OF : DECISION
DEAL, MONMOUTH COUNTY. :

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, unsuccessful candidate for Board membership, sought inquiry into alleged violations and irregularities in school election proceedings in regard to validity of nominating petition, electioneering and actions of challengers.

ALJ concluded (1) nominating petition challenged was valid pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:14-9 to 12; (2) there was insufficient evidence that candidate engaged in electioneering; (3) there were irregularities involving challengers that should be referred to County Prosecutor for further action; and (4) petitioner's claim for invalidation of the election results as defective and untimely was dismissed. ALJ ordered Board election officials to comply with school election laws in the future.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision with modification. Commissioner set aside ALJ's dismissal of petitioner's claim for invalidation of election results noting that request contained in petition submitted met required statutory and regulatory requirements. Commissioner concurred with remaining findings and conclusions of ALJ, and concluded that petitioner had not met his burden of proof that any of the irregularities occurring in the Deal election thwarted the will of the people thereby justifying the ordering of a new election. Commissioner directed transmittal of copy of decision to County Prosecutor for any action he/she deems necessary under law.

IN THE MATTER OF THE DEAL SCHOOL ELECTION

Bernard Boglioli, Sr., Esq., for petitioner Kolodjeski (Boglioli, O'Mara, Reynolds & Mirra, attorneys)

Honora M. O'Brien, Esq., for Board of Education (Shebell & Schibell, attorneys)

Record Closed: July 21, 1993 Decided: July 23, 1993

BEFORE JOHN R. TASSINI, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Stanley Kolodjeski, an unsuccessful candidate in the April 20, 1993 election for a seat on the Borough of Deal Board of Education ("Board"), charges that, relative to that election, there were violations of the school election laws and he has requested an inquiry into the election. See N.J.S.A. 18A:14-1 to -104 and N.J.A.C. 6:24-6.1(b).

More particularly (in a letter requesting the inquiry) relative to successful candidates Richard Menahem and Robin Gavin, Mr. Kolodjeski alleges the following: (1) Mr. Menahem's nominating "petition for election was altered after it was notarized. The original signature attesting to the voters' signatures was snowpacked out and a different signature written." (2) Mr. Menahem's and Ms. Gavin's "[c]ampaign literature was mailed without a statement of who paid for it." (3) "Hand written sheets of paper were given by Mr. Menahem to unknown persons in the gym" (when and where voting was occurring).

Relative to the election officials, Mr. Kolodjeski alleges the following: (1) Challengers did not have name tags. (2) Voters who were asked for their names and addresses but who refused to give same were permitted to sign in the registration book.

Relative to Mr. Menahem's "challenger" Morton Hirschman, Mr. Kolodjeski alleges the following: (1) During the voting hours, in the lobby adjacent to the gym where voting took place, Mr. Hirschman passed out campaign circulars, discussed the election with voters and told voters what "lines" to vote and levers to pull. (2) At the above time, in the gym, Mr. Hirschman also had "discussions" with voters. (3) When his (Kolodjeski's) challenger approached the "judge of elections about [Mr. Hirschman's] conduct, he [Mr. Hirschman] was verbally rude to her" by asking what she was "bitching about." (4) After the "judge of elections" ordered Mr. Hirschman to "be quiet, sit down or go home," he complied for only a short time before resuming the above-noted conduct. (5) After the voting had ended, Mr. Hirschman "forced himself inside the machine curtain, attempting to read the results before the election committee,"and only after repeatedly being commanded to do so, did he leave.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

By letter dated April 23, 1993, Mr. Kolodjeski made the above allegations and requested that the Monmouth County Commissioner of Elections conduct "an inquiry" into the election be conducted. By letter dated April 26, 1993, the Monmouth County Superintendent of Schools transmitted Mr. Kolodjeski's letter to the New Jersey Commissioner of Education who, by letter dated April 30, 1993, transmitted it to the Office of Administrative Law where it was filed as a contested case. See N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9, N.J.S.A. 52:14B-2(b) and -9 and N.J.A.C. 1:1-3.1. By letter dated May 25, 1993, Mr. Kolodjeski's attorney entered his appearance and, by letter dated June 2, 1993, the Board's attorney entered her appearance. On June 8, 1993, during a telephone conversation with Mr. Hirschman, I confirmed that he knew that Mr. Kolodjeski had made allegations against him and complaints against him could follow; he had notice of the time, place and purpose of the hearing; he would be afforded an opportunity to be heard; he should consult with an attorney; and he had a right to testify or to refuse to testify relative to Mr. Kolodjeski's allegations.

A hearing was held on June 9, 1993, in the Borough of Deal Municipal Building. In his opening statement, Mr. Kolodjeski's attorney contended that, in his letter, Mr.

Kolodjeski set forth not only a request for an "inquiry into alleged violations" of relevant election statutes, but also a request or claim that Mr. Menahem's nominating petition, candidacy and election should be voided and that Mr. Kolodjeski, who received the next highest number of votes, should be deemed elected to the Board. Compare N.J.A.C. 6:24-6.1(a) to N.J.A.C. 6:24-6.1(b) and (c). In the alternative, Mr. Kolodjeski's attorney moved to amend the letter to add those claims. See N.J.A.C. 1:1-6.2. Mr. Kolodjeski's contention and motion were opposed and objected to by the Board's attorney, and are resolved below. Mr. Kolodjeski's attorney also submits that the evidence supports the voiding of Mr. Menahem's nominating petition, etc., and the Board's attorney denies that such evidence was presented. At the attorneys' request, the record remained open to allow them to obtain a transcript of the hearing and to file closing memoranda.

FINDINGS OF FACT

I FIND the following FACTS:

Board secretary, Anthony F. Moro, Jr., Ed. D., provided blank "Nominating Petition[s] for Annual School Election" to potential candidates for the April 20, 1993 election to the Deal Board of Education. The petitions had parts to be completed to assure compliance with relevant school elections statutes.

By February 9, 1993, a "Nominating Petition" was completed for Mr. Menahem's candidacy in the April 20, 1993 election: Part "A," the "Nominating Statement," identified Mr. Menahem as a candidate for membership on the Board in the April 20, 1993 election. Part "B," the "Signatories," included the signatures of ten Deal residents. See N.J.S.A. 18A:14-9. Part "C," the "Verification," included a statement to be "verified by the oath of [a signatory], taken and subscribed before a person qualified under the laws of this state to administer an oath," that the signatories were qualified voters, etc.; however Mr. Menahem, who, as a candidate could not also be a "signatory," incorrectly signed the "Verification." See N.J.S.A. 18A:14-11 (emphasis added). Part "D," the "Candidate's Acceptance," on February 9, 1993, was also signed by Mr. Menahem and notarized by the New York State notary. See N.J.S.A. 18A:14-10 and BOE-1a.

On or about February 10, 1993, Mr. Menahem presented his nominating petition to Dr. Moro for filing.

After Mr. Menahem's petition was filed, Dr. Moro reviewed it and noticed that, instead of one of the signatories, as required by statute, Mr. Menahem had signed the "Verification." Dr. Moro then (correctly) instructed Mr. Menahem that one of the "Signatories" must sign the "Verification." Therefore, Dr. Moro "whited-out" Mr. Menahem's signature (but he inadvertently failed to white-out the hand-printed name "Richard Menahem" in the beginning of the "Verification"). Mr. Menahem and Germaine Menahem, his wife, who was a "signatory," then brought the petition to Sandra H. Carasia, a New Jersey notary; and on February 19, 1993, Mrs. Menahem signed the "Verification" and Mrs. Carasia notarized that signature. Mr. Menahem then again presented his nominating petition to Dr. Moro, who accepted it for filing. (Dr. Moro did not date- stamp nominating petitions and kept no records as to dates of filing.) See N.J.S.A. 18:14-12 and BOE-1a.

In making the above findings, I have accepted Mr. Menahem's testimony and rejected Mrs. Carasia's testimony that she notarized Mr. Menahem's signature on the "Verification" for reasons including the following: Dr. Moro credibly testified that he instructed Mr. Menahem that a "Signatory" and not the candidate must sign the "Verification," and Dr. Moro whited-out Mr. Menahem's signature so a "Signatory" could sign it. Mr. Menahem credibly testified that he and his wife went to Mrs. Carasia for the sole purpose of having his wife sign the "Verification" and having Mrs. Carasia notarize that signature. After Dr. Moro's instruction, Mr. Menahem would not have repeated the mistake of signing the "Verification." Also, Mrs. Carasia volunteered that, when she norarized the "Verification," Mr. Menahem had "many papers" and she "[could] not say [that the nominating petition] was the only paper," i.e., evidencing uncertainty as to what she notarized. Mr. Menahem's nominating petition's "Verification" shows (over the white-out) the signature "Germaine Menahem" and the notarization by Mrs. Carasia.

Also, on February 19, 1993, Mr. Menahem signed and later filed with Dr. Moro an "Appointment of Challengers and Alternates," naming Morton Hirschman as his challenger. See N.J.S.A. 18A:14-15 and BOE-2.

On February 23, 1993, Ms. Gavin's nominating petition for election to the Board in the April 20, 1993 election was properly completed and notarized and it was timely filed with Dr. Moro. See BOE-3.

On February 24, 1993, Mr. Kolodjeski's nominating petition for election to the Board in the April 20, 1993, election was properly completed and notarized and it was timely filed with Dr. Moro. See BOE-4. On February 24, 1993, Mr. Kolodjeski's "Appointment of Challenger and Alternates," naming Dolores Kolodjeski as his challenger, was properly filed with Dr. Moro. See BOE-5.

Mr. Kolodjeski also asked Frances Fronapfel if she would act as one of his challengers and she said she wished to do so. However, after Mrs. Fronapfel contacted Dr. Moro and asked him about this and to be furnished with identification, Dr. Moro stated, since "[Everyone knew] one another. It [wasn't] necessary." See N.J.S.A. 18A:14-17.

Thereafter, after speaking with the office of the Monmouth County Superintendent of Schools, Dr. Moro telephoned Mr. Menahem and advised him to have his wife's "Verification" notarized "again" (although Dr. Moro was not clear about why it was "necessary") and, on March 3, 1993, Howard Londa, a notary public of the state of New York, so notarized Germaine Menahem's signature. See BOE-6.

During the election campaign, Ms. Gavin paid for the printing of about a hundred circulars urging "support" for herself and Mr. Menahem, which circular did not include a statement identifying who had paid for it, and it was distributed by Ms. Gavin and Mr. Menahem. See N.J.S.A. 18A:14-97, K-1 and K-1a. Also during the campaign, Mr. Menahem paid for the printing of two to three hundred handbills urging people to "vote for" himself and Ms. Gavin, which handbill did not include a statement identifying who had paid for it, and it was distributed by Mr. Menahem. See N.J.S.A. 18A:14-97 and K-2.

On April 20, 1993, from 4:00 p.m. to 9:00 p.m., in the Deal School gym, where two voting machines were located, the election took place with the following persons present during most of the voting: Brendan W. Kelly, as judge of the elections; Dolores Buck, as an election clerk; Josephine Cassaro, as an election clerk; Norma Furlong, as an election clerk; Mr. Hirschman, as Mr. Menahem's challenger; Mrs. Kolodjeski, as Mr. Kolodjeski's challenger; and Mrs. Fronapfel, as Mr. Kolodjeski's "challenger." See N.J.S.A. 18A:14-46. (The judge of elections and "election clerks" had previously served in such positions and Dr. Moro submitted their names to the Board, which approved their appointments. However, Dr. Moro did not know whether they had received certificates memorializing instruction in the use of voting machines or other duties. See N.J.S.A. 18A:14-6.1.) Challengers were not provided with and did not wear "mark[s] of identification." See N.J.S.A. 18A:14-17.

During the voting, challengers had no designated place to sit or stand, although desks and chairs were available, and Mr. Hirschman was "floating around" and "greeting" voters (it could not be determined how many) who entered the gym. In the gym, Mr. Hirschman introduced the reverend William Carton, a local pastor and voter, to Mr. Menahem. Mr. Hirschman also handed one of Mr. Menahem's handbills to James Carasia, another voter. Mr. Hirschman also helped Frances Kadre, an elderly voter, into the gym and several times told her and her sister, who accompanied her, to "Vote line two," i.e., for Mr. Menahem. Mr. Hirschman also approached Marilyn Tomaino, after she had voted, gave her a paper and said to her, "Take this list and go call people."

Mrs. Kolodjeski did not formally "challenge" any voter. However, she did ask the election officials to "call out" several persons' names and her requests were not always honored.

After the voting had ended, i.e., a few minutes after 9:00 p.m., Mr. Kelly and Mrs. Buck went to the voting machines to open them and count the votes. At that time, Mr. Hirschman entered a voting machine to see the vote totals; Mrs. Buck told Mr. Hirschman, whom she believed to be familiar with voting practice, "You know better! Get out! Out! Out!" Mr. Hirschman then withdrew. The votes for membership to the Board were then announced: 139 for Ms. Gavin, 97 for Mr. Menahem and 79 for Mr. Kolodjeski. See N.J.S.A. 18A:14-45 to -56, BOE-7 and BOE-8. (The school budget was also approved by the voters.)

On May 3, 1993, Ms. Gavin and Mr. Menahem were seated as members of the Board. See BOE-12.

LEGAL CONCLUSIONS

Laws governing school elections are found at N.J.S.A. 18A:14-1 to -104, N.J.S.A. 19:1-1 et seq. and N.J.A.C. 6:24-6.1 to -6.4.

Statement and Timeliness of Mr. Kolodjeski's Claim that Mr. Menahem's Election Should be Voided and that He (Mr. Kolodjeski) Should be Deemed Elected

Pleadings in administrative cases need not be formally prepared, but, consistent with notions of notice, due process and fundamental fairness, must state a party's claims or one's defenses sufficiently to fairly apprise an adverse party of the claims and issues involved. See N.J.A.C. 1:1-2.1 "Pleadings," N.J.A.C. 1:1-6.1 and N.J.A.C. 6:24-6.1. Compare R. 4:5-1, -2, -3, -4.

N.J.A.C. 6:24-6.1(a) requires that the request for "investigation" relative to a school election be written and "set forth with particularity the grounds on which the election results are contested." (Emphasis added.) Also, N.J.S.A. 18A:14-63.12 provides the following:

> Upon written request within 5 days of the announcement of the result of an election by a defeated candidate, . . . the Commissioner of Education or his authorized representative shall inquire into the alleged violations of statutorily prescribed procedures for school elections, to determine if such violations occurred and if they affected the outcome of the election.

By contrast, N.J.A.C. 6:24-6.1(b) refers to a "Request for inquiry into alleged violations of statutorily prescribed election procedures", i.e., with no requirement of "particularity."

It is apparent that a claim affecting "the outcome of [an] election," e.g., requesting the commissioner to invalidate and void the election of a board of education member, is subject to more stringent requirements relative to form (written), basis and timeliness than a "request" for "inquiry" into possible violations, which might be referred to and later prosecuted in court as, e.g., a disorderly persons offense or crime.

Mr. Kolodjeski's letter does allege facts upon which violations of statutorily prescribed election procedures could be determined, however not until well more than five days after announcement of the election results, during his attorney's oral opening statement, was there a claim stated for invalidation of the election results and the seating of Mr. Kolodjeski as a member of the Board. By that time, Mr. Menahem had been seated as a member of the Board and, consistent with N.J.S.A. 18A:14-63.12 and the usual statute of limitations' public policy favoring finality and repose, I CONCLUDE that the oral claim for invalidation of Mr. Menahem's candidacy, election and seating is defective, out-of-time and must be DISMISSED WITH PREJUDICE.

Mr. Menahem's Nominating Petition

Assuming arguendo that Mr. Kolodjeski's claim for invalidation of Mr. Menahem's candidacy, election, etc., was properly made, the following should be considered:

N.J.S.A. 18A:14-9 provides:

> Each candidate to be voted upon at a school election shall be nominated directly by petition, signed by at least 10 persons, none of whom shall be the candidate himself, and filed with the secretary of the board of education of the district on or before four p.m. of the 54th day preceding the date of the election. The signatures need not all appear upon a single petition and any number of petitions may be filed on behalf of any candidate but no petition shall contain the endorsement of more than one candidate.

N.J.S.A. 18A:14-10 provides:

> Each nominating petition shall be addressed to the secretary of the board of education of the district and therein shall be set forth:
>
> a. A statement that the signers of the petition are all qualified voters of the school district or, in the case of a regional school district, qualified voters of the constituent district which the candidate shall represent on the board of education of the regional district;
>
> b. The name, residence and post office address of the person endorsed and the office for which he is endorsed;
> c. That the signers of the petition endorse the candidate named in the petition for said office and request that his name be printed upon the official ballot to be used at the ensuing election; and > d. That the person so endorsed is legally qualified to be elected to the office.
>
> Accompanying the nominating petition and to be filed therewith, there shall be a certificate signed by the person endorsed in the petition, stating that:
>
> a. He is qualified to be elected to the office for which he is nominated, including a specific affirmation that he is not disqualified as a voter pursuant to R.S. 19:4-1; > b. He consents to stand as a candidate for election; and

c. If elected, he agrees to accept and qualify into said office.

[Emphasis added.]

N.J.S.A. 18A:14-11 provides:

> Each nominating petition shall be verified by the oath of one or more of the signers thereof, taken and subscribed before a person qualified under the laws of this state to administer an oath to the effect that:
>
> a. The petition is signed in their own proper handwriting by each of the signers thereof;
>
> b. The signers are to the best knowledge and belief of the affiants legally qualified to vote at the election at which the candidate shall be voted for; and > c. The petition is prepared and filed in good faith for the sole purpose of nominating the candidate therein named in order to secure his election as a member of the board.

N.J.S.A. 18A:14-12 provides:

> If, on or before the 49th day preceding the date of the election, the secretary of the board finds a nominating petition to be defective excepting as to the number of signatures, the secretary of the board shall forthwith notify the candidate of the defect and of the candidate's right to remedy the defect not later than the 49th day preceding the date of the election, and the candidate indorsing the petition may amend the same in form or substance, but not to add signatures, so as to remedy the defect at any time prior to said date. A nominating petition not so found to be defective shall be, as of the 48th day preceding the election, conclusively valid for the purposes of this chapter.

Mr. Kolodjeski submits that Mr. Menahem's nominating petition is fatally defective because, in Part "D," the "Candidate's Acceptance," Mr. Menahem's signature was not notarized by a New Jersey notary. However, the statute does not require notarization of the "Candidate's Acceptance" and, if the requirement of notarization could be inferred, unlike N.J.S.A. 18A:14-11, N.J.S.A. 18A:14-10 does not require that it be by "a person qualified under the laws of this state" (emphasis added). Mr. Menahem signed his nominating petition, certifying that he was qualified to be elected, etc., and, although the statute does not require it, his signature was notarized. I CONCLUDE that the fact that his certification was notarized by a New York notary does not make it invalid; statutory requirements and intent were satisfied by Mr. Menahem.

Mr. Kolodjeski also submits that, because Mr. Menahem's printed name remained and Mrs. Menahem's was not printed in the "Verification" Section, the "Verification" and petition were defective. However, Mr. Menahem's nominating petition included the statutorily required ten "signatories" and, by February 19, 1993, i.e., not later than the 49th day preceding the date of the election, it was lawfully verified and notarized by a New Jersey notary and filed. The fact that Mr. Menahem's printed name inadvertently remained in part "C" does not invalidate Mrs. Menahem's otherwise lawful verification. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the nominating petition must be deemed valid by operation of N.J.S.A. 18A:14-9, -10, -11 and -12.

The Circular Urging the Election of Ms. Gavin and Mr. Menahem

N.J.S.A. 18A:14-97 provides:

> No person shall print, copy, publish, exhibit, distribute or pay for printing, copying, publishing, exhibiting or distribution or cause to be distributed in any manner or by any means, any circular, handbill, card, pamphlet, statement, advertisement or other printed matter having reference to any election or to any candidate or to the adoption or rejection of any public question at any annual or special school election unless such circular, handbill, card, pamphlet, statement, advertisement or other printed matter shall bear upon its face a statement of the name and address of the person or persons causing the same to be printed, copied or published or of the name and address of the person or persons by whom the cost of the printing, copying, or publishing thereof has been or is to be defrayed and of the name and address of the person or persons by whom the same is printed, copied or published.

Everyone is conclusively presumed to know the law, statutory or otherwise, and, in the absence of statutory or constitutional requirements (which are not present here), actual notice of the law is not required for a duty of compliance or liability for a violation. Graham v. N.J. Real Estate Comm'n, 217 N.J. Super. 130, 138 (App. Div. 1987), and In re Krah, 130 N.J. Super. 366 (App. Div. 1974).

Ms. Gavin and Mr. Menahem appear to have violated N.J.S.A. 18A:14-97, a disorderly persons offense. On the other hand, there is no evidence that the violation was willful or in bad faith and, because they paid for and distributed circulars and handbills for their own election, the intent of N.J.S.A. 18A:14-97, i.e., to ensure public disclosure of financial and other supporters, was not thwarted. Finally, service on a board of education is usually an altruistic, but often a thankless, task and I CONCLUDE that this matter should not be referred to the Monmouth County Prosecutor or New Jersey Attorney General. N.J.A.C. 6:24-6.5.

Mr. Menahem's Passing "Sheets of Paper" at or Near the Polling Place

N.J.S.A. 18A:14-72 provides:

> If a person shall on any day fixed for any election tamper, deface or interfere with any polling booth or obstruct the entrance to any polling place, or obstruct or interfere with any voter, or loiter, or do any electioneering within any polling place or within 100 feet thereof, he shall be a disorderly person and shall be punished by a fine not exceeding $500.00 or by imprisonment not exceeding one year, or both.

N.J.S.A. 18A:14-73 provides:

> No person shall within the polling room mark his ballot in a place other than in the polling booth or show his ballot, nor shall anyone request such person to show his ballot during the preparation thereof, nor shall any other person inspect such ballot during the preparation thereof or after it is prepared for voting in such a way as to reveal the contents, nor shall any person within the polling place or within 100 feet thereof, loiter, electioneer, or solicit any voter or prompt a voter in answering any questions required to be answered by such voter in connection with any election.
> Any person violating any provisions of this section shall be a disorderly person and shall be punished by a fine not exceeding $500.00, or imprisonment not exceeding one year, or both.

N.J.S.A. 18A:14-81 provides:

> If a person shall distribute or display any circular or printed matter or offer any suggestion or solicit any support for any candidate, party or public question, to be voted upon at any election, within the polling place or room or within a distance > of 100 feet of the outside entrance to such polling place or room, he shall be a disorderly person.

N.J.S.A. 18A:14-101 provides:

> No person shall by abduction, duress or any forcible or fraudulent device or contrivance whatever, impede, prevent or otherwise interfere with the free exercise of the elective franchise by any voter at any election; or compel, induce or prevail upon any voter either to vote or refrain from voting at any election, or to vote or refrain from voting for any particular person or persons at any election.

I FIND and CONCLUDE that there is insufficient evidence that Mr. Menahem engaged in electioneering or committed any violations of the above statutes.

Challengers' Name Tags

N.J.S.A. 18A:14-17 provides:

> Each challenger shall wear a mark of identification as a challenger which shall be furnished to him by the secretary of the board.

Dr. Moro failed to provide challengers with identification and Mr. Kelly failed to ensure that challengers wore identification as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:14-17.

Overall, Dr. Moro and Mr. Kelly demonstrated either a lack of familiarity with school election laws or a lack of interest in compliance with them.

"Challenged" Voters Who Were Permitted to Sign In and Vote

N.J.S.A. 18A:14-18 provides:

> Each challenger may in the polling district for which he is appointed:
>
> a. Challenge the right of any person to vote in such district at any time after the person claims such right and before his ballot is deposited in the ballot box, or before the screen, hood or curtain of the voting machine is closed, and ask all necessary questions to determine this right; and
> b. Be present while the votes are being counted, in such position that he can observe the marking on the ballots > but not to interfere with the orderly counting of the votes, and challenge the counting or rejection of any ballot or part thereof.

N.J.S.A. 18A:14-50 provides:

> The voter shall, previous to the receipt of an official ballot, sign his name without assistance and state his address in an appropriate column of the poll list and the election officer in charge of the poll list shall record therein opposite the voter's name, the number of the official ballot furnished to the voter for voting.

N.J.S.A. 18A:14-51.2 provides:

> Upon any question or challenge of a voter duly registered, it shall be the duty of the election board and the privilege of all of its members to put such questions as are proper to determine the right of the voter to vote.

N.J.S.A. 18A:14-51.3 provides:

> In event that the right of any voter to vote shall be challenged, his right to vote shall be determined in accordance with the provisions of [N.J.S.A. 19:1-1 et seq.].

N.J.S.A. 18A:14-67 provides:

> Any officer or employee of any board of education or any person designated as an election officer to hold any election who shall willfully fail to perform or enforce any provision of this title, or shall willfully destroy any record directed to be kept thereby, or any person who shall willfully or fraudulently register to vote in any election or elections more than once, or register under any but his true name, or attempts to vote in any election by impersonating another, who is registered, or, being registered in an election district in which he is not a resident at the time of registering, votes or attempts to vote in any election, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor.

Mrs. Kolodjeski candidly admitted that she did not formally give notice of a "challenge" of any voter. However, she did request the election officials to "call out" the names of several voters and her requests were not always honored. While I cannot conclude that a violation of the above statutes occurred, I do CONCLUDE that a warning should be issued to Mr. Kelly that, if, in the future, he acts as a judge of the election, it is his duty to ensure that procedures are followed and order is maintained, so that a challenger may exercise her right to challenge (including learning the identity of) any person attempting to vote.

Mr. Hirschman's Distribution of the Election Handbill, Etc., and Suggestion and Solicitation of Support for Mr. Menahem in and About the Polling Place and His Resumption of Misconduct in Violation of the Order of the Judge of Elections

On the record made in this investigation, it appears probable that Mr. Hirschman electioneered, solicited votes, offered suggestions and/or solicited support for his candidate and distributed a printed campaign handbill, all within the polling place or within 100 feet thereof and in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:14-72, -73 and -81. Further, Mr. Hirschman's misconduct continued after the judge of elections directed him to end it. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that this matter should be referred to the Monmouth County Prosecutor and/or the New Jersey Attorney General, who may decide to prosecute Mr. Hirschman.

Mr. Hirschman's "Forcing Himself into the Voting Machine"

N.J.S.A. 18A:14-84 provides :

> A person who shall willfully obstruct or interfere with any election officer, while performing any duty prescribed by this title, shall be a disorderly person and shall be punished by a fine not exceeding $500.00, or by imprisonment at hard labor for a term not exceeding one year, or both.

On the record made in this investigation it appears probable that, as election officials were about to read and tally the votes, Mr. Hirschman forced himself into a voting machine, thereby interfering with the election officers in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:14-84. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that this matter should be referred to the Monmouth County Prosecutor and/or the New Jersey Attorney General.

ORDERS

While the record does not support the finding that Mr. Hirschman's actions affected a sufficient number of votes to have changed the result of the election, the conduct of the Borough of Deal's April 20, 1993 school election involved a number of irregularities which, in the future, must be eliminated as follows:

(1) Dr. Moro, relative to future school elections, is ordered to (a) advise candidates to study statutes governing school elections (see N.J.S.A. 18A:14-1 to -104, N.J.S.A. 19:1-1 et seq. and N.J.A.C. 6:24-6.1 to -6.4.); (b) mark or stamp nominating petitions to show their dates of filing; (c) confirm that persons proposed to serve as election officials will have had instruction, certification, etc., relative to operation of voting machines (see N.J.S.A. 18A:14-6.1); and (d) comply with statutory requirements for written appointment of challengers and furnish a mark of identification to each challenger (see N.J.S.A. 18A:14-17).

(2) Mr. Kelly, should he serve as judge of a future school election, is ordered to (a) complete instruction in the operation of a voting machine and keep a certificate establishing the same (see N.J.S.A. 18A:14-6.1), (b) study statutes governing school elections (see above), (c) confirm that a challenger wears a mark of identification (d) maintain order and prevent electioneering in the polling place.

The Monmouth County Prosecutor or New Jersey Attorney General are requested to consider investigation and appropriate action relative to Mr. Hirschman's probable violation of the above-noted school election laws.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, 8th Floor West, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

IN THE MATTER OF THE SCHOOL	:
ELECTION HELD IN THE SCHOOL	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
DISTRICT OF THE BOROUGH OF	:	DECISION
DEAL, MONMOUTH COUNTY.	:

The record and initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions and the Board's reply thereto were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 and are presented in pertinent part below.

Petitioner excepts to the ALJ's analysis and conclusion with respect to the timeliness and legal sufficiency of his claim for invalidation of the election results. Petitioner avers > that his letter addressed to Michael Maddaluna, Monmouth County [Superintendent of Schools], dated April 23, 1993, requested "an inquiry into the Deal Board of Education election held on Tuesday, April 20, at the Deal elementary school gym." The letter recites a number of irregularities in violation of the election law in support for Petitioner's conclusion that "the above warrants an investigation into the validity of Mr. Menahem's election." [Emphasis supplied] N.J.S.A. 18A:14-63.12 provides for an investigation into alleged violations of statutorily prescribed procedures for school elections "upon written request within five days of the announcement of the result of an election by a defeated candidate...." Petitioner's letter of April 23, 1993 satisfies the requirements of the statute.

Petitioner further argues that N.J.A.C. 6:24-6.1(a) > simply demands compliance with N.J.S.A. 18A:14-63.1 et seq. with respect to requests for recounts of the ballots cast or "for an investigation of the procedures at a school election" which "shall be in letter form addressed to the Commissioner and shall set forth with particularity the grounds on which the election results are contested." The Court's Initial Decision acknowledges that "Mr. Kolodjeski's letter does allege facts upon which violations of statutorily prescribed election procedures could be determined...." Neither the statute nor the applicable Administrative Code provisions require more than a request "in letter form" stating the requester's reasons for challenging the election.

Petitioner, therefore, concludes that the request for invalidation of the election results made in his initial petition satisfied the statutory and regulatory requirements for same and should not have been dismissed.

Petitioner next excepts to the ALJ's findings of fact and conclusions of law with respect to Richard Menahem's nominating petition. He argues, inter alia, that the Court's finding that Mrs. Carasia, in fact, notarized Germaine Menahem's signature on February 19, 1993 is contrary to her own testimony, without foundation in evidence, and makes no sense in light of the surrounding established circumstances. Petitioner avers that if the "finding" that Mrs. Carasia notarized Germaine Menahem's signature on February 19 is accepted as true, it would follow that Richard Menahem's petition, insofar as the verification, would have been valid on that date. Why then would Dr. Moro subsequently advise Menahem to have the petition notarized a third time? Petitioner alleges that the only rational answer is that Dr. Moro realized that the petition submitted to him for the second time was still defective in that Germaine Menahem's signature was written over Richard Menahem's "whited-out" signature and never properly notarized.

Petitioner next alleges that Richard Menahem's nominating petition was invalid for failure to adhere to statutory time requirements. Specifically, he asserts that N.J.S.A. 18A:14-12 provides that a candidate has the right to remedy a defective petition not later than the forty-ninth day preceding the date of the election, and a nominating petition not so found to be defective shall be presumed to be conclusively valid as of the forty-eighth day preceding the election. He argues that Dr. Moro found the Menahem petition to be defective on or before March 2 and on March 3 Mr. Menahem had the petition with him in New York for notarization; consequently, such petition was not in the possession of the Board Secretary on the forty-eighth day preceding the election (March 3, 1993). He maintains that Richard Menahem, therefore, failed to file a petition within the time specified by law and such petition must be found invalid.

Lastly, petitioner contends that the cumulative effect of the numerous incidents of electioneering noted by the Court justifies setting aside the election, particularly since the contest was a close one.

The Board in its response supports the decision rendered by the ALJ claiming that it is aptly supported by testimony elicited at the hearing, portions of which the Board reviews in its exceptions. It additionally points out that the record is totally void of any evidence that the election results would have been different had there not been any "electioneering" and, consequently, the election results should stand.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record, including the transcript of the hearing below, the Commissioner accepts the findings, conclusions and recommendations of the Office of Administrative Law with one exception which is fully detailed below.

With respect to petitioner's claim for invalidation of the election results, the Commissioner does not agree with the ALJ's conclusion that such request was first raised by petitioner's attorney at the hearing and, thus, must be dismissed as untimely. A review of the Request for Inquiry dated April 23, 1993 supports petitioner's exception argument that this request concluded with the words

> "I feel the above warrents [sic] an investigation into the validity of Mr. Menahem's election."

The Commissioner finds that, although further elaboration may have served to elucidate petitioner's prayer for relief, the language utilized was sufficiently clear to conclude that he was contesting "the outcome of the election," and that his submission met the statutory and regulatory requirements for advancing such request. Therefore, the conclusion of the ALJ dismissing petitioner's claim for invalidation of the election results as defective and untimely is reversed. The Commissioner is compelled to note, however, that were the petitioner to bear his burden of proof that Mr. Menahem was not properly elected to a seat on the Board of Education, petitioner is not entitled to be adjudged the successful candidate by virtue of such disqualification. In this event, the relief which would be accorded by the Commissioner is the ordering of a new election. (See In the Matter of the School Election of the Hopatcong School District, Sussex County, 1973 S.L.D. 115.)

With respect to the nominating petition of Mr. Menahem, the Commissioner is in full accord with the findings and conclusions reached by the ALJ. Although Mrs. Carasia, the Notary Public, testified that she witnessed the signature of Mr. Menaham on February 19, 1993, a thorough review of the entire record belies such contention and corroborates the determination of the ALJ in this regard.

> I have accepted Mr. Menahem's testimony and rejected Mrs. Carasia's testimony that she notarized Mr. Menahem's signature on the "Verification" for reasons including the following: Dr. Moro credibly testified that he instructed Mr. Menahem that a "Signatory" and not the candidate must sign the "Verification," and Dr. Moro whited-out Mr. Menahem's signature so a "Signatory" could sign it. Mr. Menahem credibly testified that he and his wife went to Mrs. Carasia for the sole purpose of having his wife sign the "Verification" and having Mrs. Carasia notarize that signature. After Dr. Moro's instruction, Mr. Menahem would not have repeated the mistake of signing the "Verification." Also, Mrs. Carasia volunteered that, when she notarized the "Verification," Mr. Menahem had "many papers" and she "[could] not say [that the nominating petition] was the only paper," i.e., evidencing uncertainty as to what she notarized. Mr. Menahem's nominating petition's "Verification" shows (over the white-out) the signature of "Germaine Menahem" and the notarization by Mrs. Carasia.
> (Initial Decision, at p. 4)

In reaching her determination, the Commissioner rejects petitioner's exception contention that to accept that Mrs. Carasia notarized Mrs. Menahem's signature leaves unexplained Dr. Moro's subsequent request to have the petition notarized a third time. The Commissioner finds that the reasoning of the ALJ in this regard is fully supported by the transcript of testimony, specifically that of Dr. Moro.

> I contacted Bruce Quinn and told him what the mistake had been and I told him that it had been notarized and Bruce indicated to me that the notarization verified the twelve people in Section B and I told him what I did.
> I said I whited-out Mr. Menahem's name and asked him to get one of the others and he said that is fine. He said it is not a big mistake but if you want to get it renotarized, do so.
>
>
> And at that point, Mr. Menahem again picked up his petition and got it renotarized but Mr. Quinn did, in fact, tell me that it was not an illegal petition at that particular point.

The Commissioner further finds no basis within the record to question the ALJ's assessment of credibility or weighing of evidence in this regard.

Consequently, the Commissioner determines that when Mr. Menahem presented his nominating petition to Mr. Moro after this February 19 notarization and it was accepted for filing, his petition was fully valid by operation of N.J.S.A. 18A:14-9, 10, 11, and 12. As such, any subsequent action of Dr. Moro, i.e., requesting an additional notarization of Mrs. Menahem's signature - just to be on the safe side - was unnecessary, irrelevant and immaterial.

With regard to each of the specific allegations of election irregularities, the Commissioner adopts as her own the findings and conclusions set forth in the initial decision for the reasons expressed therein.

Although the record reflects the existence of irregularities and deviations from statutory requirements pertaining to the conduct of school elections, the Commissioner finds that petitioner has failed to sustain his burden of proving that such election irregularities in Deal on April 20, 1993 require invalidation of said election results. Giving credit to the allegations set forth by petitioner and his proofs, the Commissioner cannot conclude that the will of the people was thwarted in connection with the election. (See In the Matter of the Annual School Election Held in the Township of Pittsgrove, Salem County, 1976 S.L.D. 585.)

In arriving at the above determination, however, the Commissioner cannot ignore those findings in the initial decision which clearly reveal that that Board, through its Secretary and the school election workers, must assume a large part of the responsibility for the violations of school election procedures which did, in fact, occur. The Deal Board of Education is hereby reminded of its obligation to have appropriate, overall election procedures established and followed and the need for adequate and proper instruction of its election workers, particularly with respect to familiarity with statutes governing school elections, maintaining order and preventing electioneering in the polling place.

Given that certain of the statutorily proscribed irregularities occurring in Deal involving the conduct of a person identified in the initial decision were sufficiently flagrant, the Commissioner is compelled to transmit a copy of this decision to the Office of the Monmouth County Prosecutor for the purpose of taking any further action deemed appropriate and consistent with law.

In all other respects, the instant Petition of Appeal is dismissed and the Board is hereby ordered to comply with all of those directives set forth in the initial decision, ante.

SEPTEMBER 21, 1993

IN THE MATTER OF THE CAP WAIVER	:
APPEAL OF THE BOARD OF EDUCATION	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
OF THE BOROUGH OF ROOSEVELT,	:	DECISION
MONMOUTH COUNTY.	:

For Petitioner, David B. Rubin, Esq. (Rubin, Rubin, Malgran, Kaplan and Kuhn)

For Respondent, John J. Ross, Esq.

This matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education on May 19, 1993 by way of the filing of a Petition of Appeal by the Board of Education of the Borough of Roosevelt (Board), wherein the Board sought to have included in the General Fund tax levy for the 1993-94 school year a cap waiver amount defeated by the voters at the annual school election.

On March 24, 1993, the Monmouth County Superintendent of Schools had notified the Board that its 1993-94 school budget was conditionally approved subject to passage by the voters of a cap waiver in the amount of $130,231 in current expense which was deemed necessary for provision of a thorough and efficient system of education in the district.

On April 20, 1993 the voters of the Borough of Roosevelt defeated both the proposed General Fund tax levy for the 1993-94 school year and the General Fund cap waiver request. Upon review of the defeated maximum permissible budget pursuant to N.J.S.A.

18A:22-37, the governing body of the Borough determined not to make any reductions to the amounts proposed by the Board as necessary for provision of a thorough and efficient education, so that no further Board action to appeal the voters' defeat of the base budget was necessary.

With respect to the defeated cap waiver, on August 23, 1993, the Borough advised that it did not wish to contest the Board's appeal or participate in the appeal process. Therefore, upon receipt of the Board's position statement on September 13, 1993, the record of this matter was deemed closed.

The cap waiver requested by the Board includes the following line items specifically determined by the County Superintendent to be essential for provision of a thorough and efficient education and unable to be funded by reallocation within the maximum permissible budget:

Current Expense	Account No.	Amount
Tuition to LEA's/Regular	11-000-100-561	$90,083
Tuition to Private Schools/Handicapped	11-000-100-566	33,721
Contracted Transportation/Spec. Ed.	11-000-270-514	6,427
	Total Cap Waiver Request:	$130,231

With regard to these line-item requests, in its initial filings and position statement the Board presents the following justifications:

Regular Tuition. This amount is necessary due to a significant (approximately 32%) increase in the tuition rate payable to East Windsor Regional High School District, to which Roosevelt sends students in grades 7 - 12.

Handicapped Tuition. Identification and classification of two special needs students has resulted in a tuition increase of 170% over 1992-93 adjusted tuition, for which an amount over and above that in the base budget is necessary.

Special Education Transportation. These monies are necessitated by the transportation requirements of the two newly identified special needs students noted above.

Upon review of the record of this matter, including the documentation provided by the district in support of the necessity for the cap waiver funds, which is incorporated herein by reference, the Commissioner finds and determines that the requested relief shall be and is hereby granted as the Board has borne its burden of demonstrating that these funds are necessary for provision of a thorough and efficient education to the students of the Roosevelt School District. East Brunswick Township Board of Education v. East Brunswick Township Council, 48 N.J. 94 (1966); Board of Education of the Township of Deptford v. Mayor and Council of the Township of Deptford, 116 N.J. 305 (1989); Board of Education of the Borough of Rutherford v. Mayor and Council of the Borough of Rutherford, Bergen County, State Board of Education decision, July 7, 1993

Accordingly, the Monmouth County Board of Taxation is directed to adjust the General Fund tax levy of the Roosevelt School District for the 1993-94 school year to reflect an increase of $130,231 pursuant to the determination above.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning Board sought declaratory judgment regarding whether its determination that certain contractual conditions were not met constituted "good cause" for withholding of increments under N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14. Matter was on remand from State Board decision of July 1, 1992 for resolution of question of whether the Commissioner had jurisdiction to entertain this matter.

ALJ found that Board's unilateral determination that contractual conditions had not been met did not constitute "good cause" within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14 for the withholding of respondents' salary increments. He further found that case did not present overriding issue of statutory interpretation or educational policy requiring the Commissioner of Education's intervention. ALJ determined outcome was to be determined by general contract principles of past practice, course of negotiations and meeting of the minds. Petition for declaratory relief was dismissed.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision and deferred to the dispute mechanism set forth in the parties' negotiated agreement.

BEFORE KEN R. SPRINGER, ALJ:

Statement of the Case

This is a petition for a declaratory ruling concerning the applicability to a particular set of facts of the statutes and rules administered by the Commissioner of Education ("Commissioner"). N.J.S.A. 52:14B-8 and N.J.A.C. 6:24-2.1 confers discretionary authority on the Commissioner to entertain such petitions for declaratory relief and to issue rulings which are binding on the parties.

Petitioner River Dell Board of Education ("River Dell" or "Board") seeks a declaration that its withholding of the salary increments of various teaching staff members pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14 was a valid exercise of its inherent managerial prerogative and was necessary to implement controlling State educational policy. River Dell took the action allegedly to freeze the salaries of these teachers so they would not receive any salary advancement for graduate-course credits which were obtained through an unapproved out-of-state university and which did not meet higher New Jersey standards. Respondents maintain that the issue is essentially one of contractual interpretation which does not require the special expertise of the Commissioner.

For the reasons which follow, this matter does not implicate genuine questions of school law or educational policy and, consequently, it is not an appropriate subject for the exercise of the Commissioner's acknowledged jurisdiction to issue declaratory rulings. Instead, the matter is best handled by the grievance mechanism which the parties themselves have established for resolving disputes about the meaning of their contract.

Procedural History

Initially, on December 3, 1991, River Dell filed its verified petition with the Commissioner. On or about December 10, 1991, respondents filed their answer, raising lack of jurisdiction as one of several affirmative defenses. On February 18, 1992, the Commissioner issued a letter ruling, dismissing the petition as presenting issues "outside my jurisdiction." River Dell took an immediate appeal to the State Board of Education ("State Board").

Thereafter, on July 6, 1992, the State Board reversed and remanded the matter to the Commissioner for consideration of "whether a determination [by River Dell] that contractual conditions have not been met constitutes 'good cause' for it to withhold salary increments under N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14." In so doing, the State Board emphasized that its ruling is "limited to the question of whether the Commissioner has the jurisdiction to entertain this matter," and does not address "any other questions that may affect the justiciability of the case." (slip op. at 2-3).

Subsequently, on July 16, 1992, the Commissioner transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") for hearing. Both parties submitted cross-motions for summary decision, together with supporting certifications and briefs, on February 26, 1993. They filed reply briefs by March 18, 1993. The OAL held oral argument on April 1, 1993. Because the facts necessary to determine the "good cause" issue are undisputed, the case may be decided on the papers.

Findings of Fact

All of the material facts are undisputed. I FIND:

At the time that this dispute arose, the Board and the River Dell Education Association, the majority representative for the teachers in the district, were engaged in protracted negotiations concerning the collective agreement for 1991-1994. These negotiations continued past the expiration date of the old contract on June 30, 1991, so that the teachers kept on working without a new contract. Under the terms of the old contract, an academic "credit" for purposes of placement on the salary guide was defined to mean "one full semester credit." (Paragraph 3.6). In addition, teachers could obtain "equivalence credit" for participation in certain "workshops," provided that the superintendent of schools gave her written approval before the teacher began the workshop. (Paragraph 3.5A).

The Board and the Education Association entered into a new contract on November 25, 1991, covering the period July 1, 1991 through June 30, 1994. During the first year of the new contract, until June 30, 1992, the definition of "credit" for placement on the salary guide remained unchanged. Starting in the second year however, the word was redefined to mean "one full semester course as commonly accepted for graduate credit given at a New Jersey State Institution approved by the State Department of Education." (Paragraph 3.6) Teachers could still earn "equivalency credits" for workshops approved in advance by the superintendent. (Paragraph 3.5A).

On November 25, 1991, the same day that the new contract was signed, the Board also adopted a resolution freezing respondents' salaries by withholding the negotiated salary increments of twelve teachers and denying horizontal movement along the guide to two others.[1] Significantly, the Board did not express any dissatisfaction with the job performance of these particular teachers. Rather, the Board acted solely because these teachers had received advancement on the salary guide for completion of credit-bearing courses, offered by the University of Bridgeport, which were later determined to be in violation of New Jersey standards for award of college credit. Consequently, the Board sought to freeze respondents' salaries until such salaries would have reached the same level without benefit of the disputed credits.

Each of the respondents had taken courses given in New Jersey by an outfit known as The Innovative Group and received credits awarded by the University of Bridgeport in Connecticut. Respondents concede that the courses offered by Bridgeport University through The Innovative Group do not count for degree credit in New Jersey. As the record clearly shows, on March 11, 1991 the New Jersey Higher Education Department wrote to the University of Bridgeport that its operations in this State violated New Jersey regulations by offering college credits without obtaining prior approval of the New Jersey Board of Higher Education and also by awarding more than one credit hour "for an experience compressed into one week's time or less." The University had been awarding three credits for a course lasting only four days. New Jersey officials gave the University of Bridgeport the option of either complying with the regulations or ceasing operation in this State immediately. By letter dated March 22, 1991, the University of Bridgeport replied that it was "stopping such activity immediately" and had informed The Innovative Group "that it may not offer, advertise or otherwise engage itself in credits from the University of Bridgeport."

Later, on May 1, 1991, the Commissioner of Education and the Chancellor or Higher Education jointly sent out a memorandum on the subject of college credit to all public school superintendents and principals in New Jersey. Summarizing the regulations governing the award of college credit, the memorandum discusses the "risks" for teachers who enroll in courses which do not satisfy the standards:

> First, if such a course comes to the attention of the Department of Higher Education, the organization offering the course will be sent a cease and desist order, which has the legal authority of the state of New Jersey through the office of the Attorney General. Therefore, teachers and others may find the course canceled, perhaps while it is in progress. Second, credit courses taken in New Jersey which do not meet the above standards will not meet the Department of Education standards for certification.

None of the respondents, however, are seeking to use the credits from the University of Bridgeport to gain a college degree or to obtain certification. Although the Board accuses respondents of attempting to deceive it into giving salary credits for "sham" courses, the record indicates that both sides only recently became aware of the deficiencies in the University of Bridgeport's authority to award credits for courses offered in New Jersey. Indeed, the River Dell superintendent of schools had previously given approval to the taking of these courses by her teaching staff.

Conclusions of Law

Based on the foregoing facts and the applicable law, I CONCLUDE that River Dell's unilateral determination that contractual conditions have not been met does not constitute "good cause" within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14 for the withholding of respondents' salary increments.

N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14 authorizes a local board of education to withhold the salary increments of any teaching staff member "for inefficiency or other good cause."

Annual salary increments are "in the nature of a reward for meritorious service to the school district" and should not be regarded as an automatic entitlement. Probst v. Haddonfield Bd. of Educ., 127 N.J. 518, 527 (1992); North Plainfield Educ. Ass'n v. Plainfield Bd. of Educ., 96 N.J. 587, 593 (1984). "Evaluation of that service is a management prerogative essential to the discharge of the duties of a school board." See Clifton Teachers v. Clifton Bd. of Educ., 136 N.J. Super. 336, 339 (App. Div. 1975).[2] In determining whether to withhold a salary increment, a local board is making a judgment concerning the quality of the educational system. Bernards Twp. Bd. of Educ. v. Bernards Twp. Educ. Ass'n, 79 N.J. 311, 321 (1979). Ordinarily, the burden is on the teacher to prove that a school board's denial of her increment because of unsatisfactory job performance was "patently arbitrary, without rational basis, or induced by improper motives." Kopera v. West Orange Bd. of Ed., 60 N.J. Super. 288, 294 (App. Div. 1960).

In this case, however, River Dell did not withhold respondents' increments because of any dissatisfaction with their job performance or concern about their professional qualifications. Instead, River Dell took its action to vindicate a supposed State policy on teachers' salaries. River Dell misconstrues the regulations found at N.J.A.C. 9:1-1.1 to 4.8, which deal specifically with licensure of institutions of higher education and not with the setting of teachers' salaries by local school boards. See generally, N.J.S.A. 18A:68-1 to 11, relating to licensing of colleges to confer degrees. Out-of-state institutions wishing to offer credit-bearing courses or degree programs in New Jersey must petition the Board of Higher Education for authorization. N.J.A.C. 9:1-6.2(a). Rules of the State Board require teacher candidates to present college study completed at accredited or approved institutions. N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.16(a). A teacher who earns credits at a nonapproved institution operating illegally in New Jersey will be unable to use those credits for obtaining teacher certification in this State. But the present statutes and regulations are silent on whether such credits may be counted for salary purposes.

[2]As the result of legislation effective January 4, 1990, an increment withholding "for predominately disciplinary reasons" is subject to grievance procedures. N.J.S.A. 34:13A-26. The withholding of a teaching staff member's increment based on the actual teaching performance is still appealable to the Commissioner of Education. Assembly Labor Committee Statement to Assembly Bill No. 4706 (1989). Undeniably, River Dell's withholding action was not performance-based. It is unnecessary for the Commissioner to decide whether Riverdale acted "for predominately disciplinary reasons."

Apart from the Teachers Quality Employment Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:29-5 to -5.12, which fixes minimum starting salaries for full-time teachers at $18,000, there is no current State policy governing teachers' salaries in New Jersey. Basically, the determination of salary levels in local school districts is left to the bargaining table. Working hours and compensation are the quintessential "terms and conditions of employment" within the contemplation of the Employer-Employee Relations Act. Englewood Bd. of Educ. v. Englewood Teachers Ass'n, 64 N.J. 1, 6 (1973). While the State has a clear interest in the quality of education being delivered and the overall costs of school funding, see Abbot v. Burke, 19 N.J. 287 (1990), it has no stake in where a local district places a particular teacher on the salary guide. As recognized in N.J.S.A. 18A:29-9, placement on the salary guide is not a managerial prerogative but, rather, is subject to agreement. Belleville Educ. Ass'n v. Belleville Bd. of Educ., 209 N.J. Super. 93, 98 (App. Div. 1986). Many disputes over contractual language may be resolved by binding arbitration if the agreement so provides, without resort to the Commissioner. South Orange-Maplewood Educ. Ass'n v. South Orange-Maplewood Bd. of Educ., 146 N.J. Super. 457 (App. Div. 1977)

It is in such context that one should interpret the Supreme Court's ruling that a school board's decision to withhold an increment is "a matter of essential managerial prerogative" which "cannot be bargained away." Bernards Twp., 79 N.J. 311, 321 (1979). In the Bernards Twp. case, the increment withholding was "dependent upon an evaluation of the quality of the services which the teacher has rendered." Id. River Dell, on the other hand, did not evaluate the quality of respondents' services or utilize the increment withholding as an incentive for needed improvement. See, Probst, 127 N.J. at 130. Rather, River Dell withheld respondents' increments in order to to impose its own views in an ongoing labor dispute over the meaning of disputed term in the contract. Use of the Board's legitimate management powers as a device to circumvent established mechanisms for resolving contractual disagreements does not constitute "good cause" for the withholding of an increment.

Cases on which River Dell relies are readily distinguishable. Baha v. Hoboken Bd. of Educ., 1980 S.L.D. 299 (Comm'r), Cafarelli v. Long Beach Island Bd. of Educ., 1976 S.L.D. 989 (Comm'r) and Brick Twp. Educ. Ass'n v. Brick Twp. Bd. of Educ., 1975 S.L.D. 521 (Comm'r), aff'd 1975 S.L.D. 524 (Comm'r), were all situations in which teachers sought the Commissioner's assistance in determining whether they held the appropriate doctoral degree or graduate credits for advancement on the salary guide. Since none of these cases involved withholding of salary increments, they do not provide any guidance on what constitutes "good cause" for such action. Moreover, the statutory scheme then in existence incorporated a minimum salary schedule which boards were obligated to follow, N.J.S.A. 18A:29-7, and mandated that any doctoral degree must be "acceptable to the state board of education for certification purposes." N.J.S.A. 18A:29-6. When the Teacher Quality Employment Act was passed in 1985, these statutory provisions were repealed and replaced by the present system which gives greater flexibility for negotiations. L. 1985, c. 321, §16. Nor is the present case analogous to Honaker v. Hillsdale Bd. of Educ., 1980 S.L.D. 906 (Comm'r), where the a board of education did not withhold a salary increment, but merely acted to correct a clerical error.

Here River Dell and the Association contemplated at least some occasions in which advancement on the salary guide could be granted for completion of non-credit bearing courses or seminars, as illustrated by the fact that the district was willing to recognize certain approved "workshops." Whether this generosity extended to credits earned at an unapproved out-of-state university accredited in its home state is a question of the parties' intent. While it seems improbable that any board of education would knowingly trade extra money for academic credits of doubtful value, the salary issue turns on what the actual understanding happened to be.

In short, this case does not present overriding issues of statutory interpretation or educational policy requiring intervention by the Commissioner. Its outcome will be determined by the more mundane contract principles of past practice, course of negotiations, and meeting of the minds. Even though the Commissioner has jurisdiction to issue declaratory relief, she should defer to the specialized forum which is better suited to develop those topics.[3] See Hackensack v. Winner, 82 N.J. 1, 34-35 (1980) (notwithstanding concurrent jurisdiction, the Public Employment Relations Commission should have voluntarily "abstained" from hearing a matter more appropriately before the Civil Service Commission). The result reached here is fully consistent with the remand order of the State Board, which refrained from expressing any opinion on other issues affecting "the justiciability of the case."

Order

It is ORDERED that summary decision is granted in favor of respondents, dismissing River Dell's petition for declaratory relief and deferring to the dispute-resolution machinery set forth in the negotiated agreement.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

[3]The River Dell Education Association has separately instituted an arbitration proceeding on behalf of respondents. However, the Appellate Division has temporarily stayed the arbitration proceeding pending appeal of a lower court order denying the Board's application for a restraining order. River Dell Reg. Bd. of Educ. v. River Dell Educ. Ass'n, No. A-5156-91T5 (N.J. App. Div. Oct. 6, 1992) (order granting stay).

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, 8th Floor West, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

RESPONDENTS.	:

The record and initial decision rendered by the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Petitioner filed timely exceptions in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Petitioner's exceptions essentially recast and reargue contentions presented in summary judgment submissions in this matter. The Commissioner determines that such contentions were fully and fairly considered by the ALJ in his initial decision.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusions of the Office of Administrative Law aptly expressed in the initial decision. She is in full agreement that this matter does not present overriding issues of statutory interpretation or educational policy requiring her intervention. Rather, the resolution of this matter will be determined by general contract principles of past practice, course of negotiations and meeting of the minds.

Accordingly, the Commissioner adopts the recommendation of the Office of Administrative Law as the final decision in this matter and hereby grants summary decision to respondents, dismisses River Dell's petition for declaratory relief, and defers to the dispute resolution mechanism set forth in the parties' negotiated agreement.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE RIVER DELL REGIONAL SCHOOL DISTRICT, BERGEN COUNTY,	:
PETITIONER-APPELLANT,	:
V.	:	STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION
BRENDA CANAL, ET AL.,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENTS-RESPONDENTS.	:

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, February 18, 1992

Remanded by the State Board of Education, July 1, 1992

Decision on remand by the Commissioner of Education, September 24, 1993

For the Petitioner-Appellant, Kalac, Newman, Lavendar & Campbell (Francis J. Campbell, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondents-Respondents, Bucceri & Pincus (Louis P. Bucceri, Esq., of Counsel)

This case was initiated by the Board of Education of the River Dell Regional School District (hereinafter "Board"), which sought by Petition of Appeal filed with the Commissioner of Education pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2 a ruling that its action in withholding increments based on its unilateral determination that certain contractual conditions had not been met was for "good cause" under N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14. The Commissioner dismissed the Board's petition prior to transmitting the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on the grounds that the Commissioner of Education did not have jurisdiction over the subject matter of the dispute.

On appeal, the State Board found that whether a determination by the Board that contractual conditions had not been met constituted "good cause" for it to withhold salary increments under N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14 raised a question under the education laws. However, in remanding the matter to the Commissioner, we emphasized that our ruling was limited to the question of whether the Commissioner had the jurisdiction to entertain the matter, and we observed that the question appeared to be more properly the subject of a declaratory judgment under N.J.A.C. 6:24-2.1 than a contested case.

On remand, the Commissioner transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL). The Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) considered the petition as one for a declaratory ruling. He found that the matter did not involve a subject that was an appropriate one over which the Commissioner should exercise her discretionary authority to issue declaratory rulings. However, in arriving at this determination, the ALJ reached the legal conclusion that, based on the undisputed facts in this matter and the applicable law, the Board's unilateral determination that contractual conditions had not been met did not constitute "good cause" within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14 for the withholding of the salary increments involved. It was on this basis that the ALJ found that the matter did not implicate any genuine questions of education law. He therefore recommended dismissing the petition.

The Commissioner adopted the ALJ's determination. In so doing, she found that "the resolution of this matter will be determined by general contract principles of past practice, course of negotiation and meeting of the minds."

The Board appealed. It contends that the Commissioner must issue a declaratory judgment in this matter because "the Commissioner is the appropriate authority to determine whether the Board's action taken to withhold the salary increments of teachers who obtained, or attempted to obtain, advancement on the salary guide by submission of education 'credits of doubtful value' was statutorily defensible under the 'good cause' language of N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14." Board's brief, at 1. For the reasons that follow, we disagree and therefore affirm the Commissioner's determination not to issue a declaratory judgment.

Initially, we emphasize that this matter does not involve a challenge by a teaching staff member to the Board's action in withholding an increment. Rather, it is the district board which, after acting under authority of N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14 to withhold the increments of certain of its staff members, is seeking a declaration that its action was proper under the education laws. Accordingly, the sole question before us in this appeal is whether it was appropriate for the Commissioner to decline to issue a declaratory judgment.

N.J.A.C. 6:24-2.1 provides in pertinent part that > ...any interested person(s) may petition the Commissioner for a declaratory ruling with respect to the applicability to any person, property or state of facts of any statute or regulation enforced or administered by the Commissioner. The determination to entertain such petitions for declaratory judgments shall be within the sole discretion of the Commissioner. A declaratory judgment shall be binding upon the Commissioner and all parties to the proceedings on the specific statement of facts set forth therein.

We recognize that administrative adjudication such as the proceedings herein are quasi-judicial rather than judicial. City of Hackensack v. Winner 82 N.J. 1, 29 (1980). Nonetheless, it is evident to us that the question of whether the Commissioner should grant declaratory relief under N.J.A.C. 6:24-2.1 should be judged with reference to the judicial standards governing the granting of such relief. Id. at 30-33.

As is the case under N.J.A.C. 6:24-2.1, judicial power to grant or deny declaratory relief is discretionary. E.g., New Jersey Ass'n for Retarded Citizens, Inc. v. New Jersey Department of Human Services, 89 N.J. 234 (1982); Hildebrandt v. Gaily, 65 N.J. Super. 274 (App. Div. 1961). The purpose of such proceedings is to provide a means by which rights, obligations and status may be adjudicated in cases involving a controversy that has not yet reached the stage at which either party may seek a coercive remedy. E.g., Hammond v. Doan, 127 N.J. Super. 67 (Law Div. 1974). While a declaratory judgment should not be denied lightly, Union County Bd. of Chosen Freeholders v. Union County Park Commission, 77 N.J. Super. 425, 432-33 (Law Div. 1962), rev'd, 41 N.J. 333 (1964), it is not appropriate to grant declaratory relief where to do so will not terminate the uncertainty or end the controversy giving rise to the proceeding. E.g., Unsatisfied Claim and Judgment Fund Bd. v. Concord Ins. Co., 110 N.J. Super. 191 (Law Div. 1970). Furthermore, declaratory relief is not available to preempt or to anticipate a decision to be made in another pending action, e.g., Hartman v. Maplewood School Transp. Co., 109 N.J. Super. 497 (App. Div. 1969), or where the request for a declaratory ruling is, in effect, an attempt to have the validity of a possible defense in an expected future suit adjudicated in advance. E.g., Donadio v. Cunningham, 58 N.J. 309 (1971).

In light of these principles, it is apparent that the Commissioner acted properly in denying declaratory relief in this instance. In this respect, we can not ignore that the validity of the Board's action is also the subject of a challenge through the arbitration process. Although those proceedings have been stayed, that stay was granted so as to permit judicial resolution of an appeal by the Board from a lower court decision denying its application for restraint of the arbitration. River Dell Reg. Bd. of Educ. v. River Dell Educ. Ass'n, Docket #A-5156-91T5 (App. Div. 1992). Given these circumstances, it is unlikely that a declaratory judgment involving the same subject issued by the Commissioner of Education would end the controversy. To the contrary, it is evident that any declaration on our part would serve only to complicate the situation.

For these reasons alone, we concur with the ALJ and the Commissioner that this petition for declaratory relief should be denied.[1] Hence, as modified herein, we affirm the Commissioner's determination to dismiss the Board's petition in this matter.

[1] As set forth above, in deciding this appeal we are affirming the Commissioner's determination to exercise her discretionary authority so as to refrain from issuing a declaratory judgment and, hence, we are not deciding whether or not the underlying dispute is arbitrable. In this respect, we note that the primary jurisdiction to make those determinations lies with the Public Employment Relations Commission (PERC). N.J.S.A. 34:13A-5.4. See Board of Ed. of Vocational School in Camden County v. CAM/VOC Teachers Ass'n, 183 N.J. Super. 206 (App. Div. 1982). See also N.J.S.A. 34:13A-26 and 27 (if there is a dispute as to whether withholding of an increment of a teaching staff member is disciplinary so as to be subject to the grievance process, it is PERC which shall resolve that dispute).

The Commissioner approves the settlement terms and adopts the settlement as the final decision in this matter. In so doing, however, the Commissioner notes that the "Stipulation of Settlement" appears to be merely a joint stipulation of facts signed by the parties with the title simply changed to reflect a stipulation of settlement. As such, the Commissioner emphasizes for the record that in approving the settlement in this matter, she makes no judgment whatsoever as to any conclusions to be drawn from these facts regarding the tenure and seniority claims set forth in the Petition of Appeal.

Petitioning bus drivers appealed Board's refusal to reimburse them for legal fees for dismissed speeding tickets.

ALJ concluded petitioners were entitled to be reimbursed for costs which they incurred defending against the motor vehicle violations herein under N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1 in light of the Commissioner's decision in Drabich. ALJ denied, however, petitioners' request for reimbursement for legal fees incurred in pursuing the proceeding.

Citing recent State Board decision in Drabich wherein it was held that provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1 do not extend to indemnification in motor vehicle offenses, Commissioner reversed. Commissioner affirmed ALJ's denial of petitioners' claim for reimbursement for legal fees incurred in commencing the proceeding herein. (Whalen) Petition was dismissed.

Record Closed: July 16, 1993 Decided: August 27, 1993

BEFORE JOSEPH F. MARTONE, ALJ

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioners, who are school bus drivers employed by respondent, appealed respondent's refusal to reimburse their legal fees for dismissed speeding tickets. Both matters were transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on November 16, 1992, for hearing as a contested case. The matter was assigned to the undersigned Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) on December 18, 1992.

On December 22, 1992, the ALJ conferred with the attorneys for the respective parties, at which time the attorneys agreed that consolidation of these matters would be appropriate. Accordingly an Order for Consolidation was entered on December 22, 1992, in which these two matters were consolidated into a single proceeding.

The matter was scheduled for hearing on April 26, 1993. Prior to the commencement of the hearing, the parties submitted a motion and cross motion for summary decision. Accordingly, the hearing scheduled for April 26, 1993, was adjourned. After the submission of additional memoranda of law on July 16, 1993, the record was closed.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

As indicated by the fact that the attorneys have filed cross motions for summary decision, the essential facts in this matter are not disputed.

On December 20, 1991, both petitioners were employed by respondent and were engaged in the operation of school buses pursuant to their employment. Each of the petitioners was operating a separate school bus occupied by students of the school district. Each of the petitioners received a traffic summons alleging that at approximately 2:34 p.m. on December 20, 1991 they had been traveling at approximately 70 miles per hour in a 50 mile per hour zone while operating the school buses.

On May 12, 1992, the matters were tried jointly in the Jackson Township Municipal Court. The charges against both petitioners were dismissed after the completion of the State's case.

Each of the petitioners paid to their attorney $400.00 in legal fees for this representation. Thereafter, petitioners requested reimbursement for the aforesaid legal fees pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1 but their applications were denied by respondent on July 9, 1992.

Specifically, the certification of Georgia Elms, Supervisor of Personnel, indicates that petitioners' request for legal fees was initially pursued as a grievance (Exhibit C-7). Petitioners' grievances were denied and the petitioners never sought arbitration of the grievances but brought this petition requesting reimbursement for their legal fees.

Petitioners assert that respondent has reimbursed employees for legal fees in similar situations. Respondent denies this and also argues that even if it has reimbursed employees for legal fees in similar situations in the past, this would not be determinative of the Board's duty under the statute.

LEGAL DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS

N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1 refers back to N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6, thus making it clear that the two statutes should be read together. In that light and after close scrutiny of these provisions, the requirements for reimbursement may be set forth as follows:

1. Reimbursement is available only to persons holding any office, position or employment under the jurisdiction of a board of education;
2. Reimbursement is available for any act or omission arising out of and in the course of the performance of the duties of such office, position or employment;
3. In matters involving civil actions, the board is required to defray all costs of defending such action, including reasonable counsel fees and expenses, together with costs of appeal, if any, and shall save harmless and protect such person from any financial loss resulting therefrom;
4. In matters involving criminal actions, reimbursement is required only if the proceeding is dismissed or results in a final disposition in favor of such person;
5. In matters involving criminal actions, the board is required to reimburse the employee for the cost of defending such proceeding, including reasonable counsel fees and expenses of the original hearing or trial and all appeals.

Respondent takes the position that a prosecution for a motor vehicle violation is not a criminal action. Respondent relies on State v. Roth, 154 N.J. Super. 363 (App. Div. 1977). In that case, the issue before the court was the scope of discovery in a municipal court prosecution for drunken driving. The court held that a motor vehicle violation was not a criminal action and, therefore, the defendant was not entitled to the requested discovery. Respondent also relies on State v. Walsh, 236 N.J. Super. 151 (Law Div. 1989). In that case, the court addressed the issue whether the aggravating and mitigating factors which must be considered in sentencing under the Criminal Code must also be considered in sentencing for a motor vehicle offense. In that case, the court specifically held that motor vehicle offenses are not crimes and, therefore, are not covered by the Code.

Respondent also relies on State v. Hammond, 118 N.J. 306 (1990). In that case, the New Jersey Supreme Court addressed the nature of motor vehicle violation and noted that such offenses are not treated under the Code of Criminal Justice. The court concluded that the legislative history of both the Code of Criminal Justice and the Motor Vehicle Act indicate that the Code provisions were not intended to apply to motor vehicle offenses. Finally, respondent points out that under N.J.S.A. 2C:1-14(k) the term "offense" does not include a motor vehicle violation.

Petitioners rely on Cilento v. Hillside Bd of Ed., 1985 S.L.D. 1513. In that case the ALJ discussed N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6 and -6.1. N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1 was enacted in 1965, and it was noted that in an introductory statement that the bill was intended to provide legal help under limited circumstances in the event of a criminal action against an employee. It was reasoned that it is important for teaching staff members to be given financial protection whenever they are subject to legal action, civil or criminal, provided the costs are reasonable and the conduct arose out of and in the course of the performance of their duties. Accordingly, it was concluded that disorderly person charges were intended to be included in the legislation's protections. However, respondent argues that Cilento is distinguishable because a disorderly persons offense is covered by the Code of Criminal Justice.

A motor vehicle violation has many of the same attributes and protections as a criminal offense, and the State has the burden of establishing all elements of the offense beyond a reasonable doubt. State v. Wenzel, 113 N.J. Super. 215, 217 (App. Div. 1971). While defenses such as entrapment and constitutional rights such as the right to a jury trial and the right to receive Miranda warnings are not applicable to motor vehicle violations, other protections, such as the prohibition against double jeopardy are applicable. State v. Fogarty, 128 N.J. 59 (1992.

In State v. Dively, 92 N.J.. 573 (1983), the New Jersey Supreme Court held that a conviction for a motor vehicle 'offense' precluded a subsequent criminal prosecution arising out of the same incident based on the double jeopardy clauses of the State and Federal Constitutions. In its analysis, the Court stated at 585:

> Motor vehicle violations have not been considered to be crimes, but only petty offenses. State v. Tropea, 78 N.J. at 314; State v. Macuk, 57 N.J. 1, 9-10 (1970). This tradition has been continued under the New Jersey Code of Criminal Justice, effective September 1, 1979. A motor vehicle violation is presently not a crime under the Code. N.J.S.A. 2C:1-4.* * * . However, the proceedings involving motor vehicle violations in the municipal courts are quasi-criminal in > nature. State v. DiCarlo, 67 N.J. 321, 327 (1975). The offenses must be proved beyond a reasonable doubt. State v. Emery, 27 N.J.348, 353 (1958). Punishments may include imprisonment for periods of up to six months, . . . [citations omitted],and fines of as much as $2,000. . . [citations omitted].

In its broadest sense the term "criminal action" may be said to encompass all proceedings for the punishment of a public offense and includes all actions for the enforcement of penal laws. See, 1A C.J.S., Actions, Sec. 68(a) (1993).

In Drabich v. Hillsborough Tp. Bd. of Ed., 93 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 173, the Commissioner rejected the decision of the ALJ that motor vehicle offenses are not criminal matters within the contemplation of N.J.S.A.18A:16-6.1. The Commissioner reasoned that this and its companion provision, taken together, clearly intend to provide a "safety net' for school employees who have legal actions brought against them as a result of performing the duties of their positions. The Commissioner felt that the Legislature could not have intended to exclude motor vehicle offenses when such offenses specifically arose out of the performance of the duties of an employee merely because they "fall between the cracks" of statutory language as being neither "civil" nor "criminal" within the precise technical meaning of those terms. As a result, the Commissioner held that proceedings arising from motor vehicle offenses are "criminal actions" eligible for indemnification under N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1. It was also indicated that such a result is consistent with considerations of equity since the violation in that matter arose from a school bus driver's performance of her duties; denying relief would ignore the fact that, but for those duties, she would not have received the summons and would not have been faced with defending herself against a charge which ultimately proved unwarranted

Based upon the foregoing discussion, it is clear that N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1 is intended to reimburse a school district employee where a "criminal action" in its broadest sense, is instituted against and successfully defended by the employee. Such "criminal actions" include disorderly persons offenses and motor vehicle violations, if they arise out of and in the course of the employee's duties as an employee of the school district.

In the present matter, both petitioners were operating school buses pursuant to their employment when they each received traffic summons alleging that they were speeding. At the trial, the charges against both petitioners were dismissed after the completion of the State's case. Respondent argues that the charges against petitioner did not arise out of and in the course of their duties, citing Powers v. Union City Bd. aff'd., 124 N.J.Super 590 (Law Div. 1973), aff'd o.b. 127N.J. Super 294 (App. Div. 1974), cert. den. 65 N.J. 575 (1974).

However, it is clear, and I FIND,that the charges against petitioners arose out of and in the course of their employment as school bus drivers. As in the Drabich case, if petitioners were not engaged in their duties as school bus drivers, they would not each have received the summons and would not have been faced with defending themselves against charges which were ultimately found to be unwarranted. Accordingly I CONCLUDE that petitioners are entitled to be reimbursed for the costs which they incurred defending against the motor vehicle violations in this matter.

Petitioners also seek to be reimbursed for legal fees which they incurred in commencing this proceeding for reimbursement. However, unlike N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6, N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1 specifies only that the employee shall be reimbursed,

> "for the cost of defending such proceeding, including reasonable counsel fees and expenses of the original hearing or trial and all appeals."

In Cilento, supra at 1521 it was concluded that reimbursement of counsel fees incurred by one forced to litigate his right to enforce a statutory claim will not be allowed, absent a showing of bad faith, citing Van Horn v. City of Trenton, 80 N.J. 528, 538 (1979). This holding is consistent with the approach taken by the courts that "sound judicial administration will best be advanced by having each litigant bear his own counsel fees except in those few situations specially designated . . ." Gerhardt v. Continental Ins. Cos., 48 N.J. 291 (1966): Coleman v. Fiore Bros. Inc., 113 N.J. 594 (1989); R 4:42-9.

Based on the foregoing, I FIND and CONCLUDE that petitioners are not entitled to reimbursement for legal fees incurred in pursuing this present proceeding.

DECISION AND ORDER

It is hereby ORDERED that respondent shall reimburse petitioners for the reasonable costs incurred by them defending the motor vehicle summons including counsel fees and expenses. It is further ORDERED that petitioners' request for reimbursement of the legal fees incurred in pursuing this proceeding are hereby DENIED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, 8th Floor West, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

NANCY APGAR AND PENNY F. PILLER, PETITIONERS,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF JACKSON, OCEAN COUNTY, RESPONDENT.	:	DECISION

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office or Administrative Law have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon review of the record, the Commissioner finds that the August 4, 1993 State Board decision in Rose Drabich v. Board of Education of the Township of Hillsborough, Somerset County, holding that the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1 do not extend to indemnification in motor vehicle offenses, requires the reversal of the ALJ's determination in this matter.

However, the Commissioner fully concurs with the ALJ's findings and conclusions with respect to denial of petitioners' claim for reimbursement for legal fees incurred in commencing the instant proceeding. It is well established that the Commissioner does not have plenary authority to award counsel fees in determining controversies and disputes presented to her under Education Law, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9. (See Whalen v. Sayreville Board of Education, 192 N.J. Super. 453 (App. Div. 1983).)

Accordingly, the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law is reversed in part and affirmed in part and the within Petition of Appeal is hereby dismissed.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning Associations sought declaratory judgment that Boards' participation in the Grinspec Trust for providing health insurance coverage for Boards' employees was void and ultra vires.

ALJ found N.J.S.A. 18A:16-13 does not authorize, either directly or by fair implication, local boards to provide health benefits via the kind of trust intermediary represented by Grinspec herein. ALJ concluded respondents' execution of trust participation agreement was ultra vires. Respondent boards and all other local school boards participating as trustees in Grinspec Trust were ordered to give notice of their intention to withdraw from participation.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision and ordered withdrawal of boards from participation in Grinspec Trust by the end of 1993-94 school year.

Record Closed: April 30, 1993 Decided: July 22, 1993

BEFORE NAOMI DOWER-LABASTILLE, ALJ:

Each of the Teachers Associations, named above filed a petition against its Board of Education alleging that the board, after withdrawing from the State Health Benefits Plan, contracted to provide health insurance coverage through a plan called the Grinspec Trust (the Trust) rather than through a direct contract with an insurance company, in the manner authorized by N.J.S.A. 18A:16-13. Petitioners claim the Grinspec Trust plan is not authorized by law and is prohibited. They seek to have respondents ordered to provide health benefit coverage in the manner authorized by statute. Connecticut General Life Insurance Company (CG), which actually provides the health benefits through the Grinspec Trust, and the New Jersey School Boards Association, intervened in support of respondents. The New Jersey Education Association intervened in support of petitioners. After prehearings, the parties filed a stipulation of facts and exhibits. The stipulation and several policy pages designated C-1 constitute the record in these dockets. The record closed on April 30, 1993, after receipt of responsive briefs, but the time for decision was extended to July 29, 1993.

Factual Background

The Trust currently includes forty eight public and private sector employers who use this facility to provide employee health benefits guaranteed to be at least equal to the dollar level of benefits which would be paid by the State Health Benefits Plan (SHBP). The Trustees, which include each school board (participating trustee) and one bank trustee, together are the policy holder on a group insurance policy issued by CG, an authorized New Jersey carrier, on a group policy form filed with the New Jersey Department of Insurance (DOI). A school board applicant must be approved by the bank trustee, who is appointed by the settlor (Grinspec, Inc., an insurance licensee) and must satisfy eligibility requirements. The bank trustee alone shall have and exercise all rights and obligations with respect to the policy or the Trust (Exhibit BO. 4.01, 4.03, 7.01; Exhibits F page 3(l)). The employer boards pay premiums to the bank trustee (or its designee) who holds the trust fund. CG is the designee and Boards have been sending premiums directly to CG. The bank trustee appoints an administrator with the approval of Grinspec, Inc. Grinspec and CG are administrators.

The fixed premium is based on the pooled claims experience of all the employers in the trust. Any retired employee who qualified for coverage through the SHBP due to retirement after 25 years of government service or to disability retirement, is not covered by the Trust. "Non-qualified" retired employees can participate as Trust beneficiaries. All "qualified" retirees remain in the SHBP and their benefits are paid by the Teachers' Pension and Annuity Fund (TPAF). As petitioners point out:

> Finally, the Stipulations make plain that Grinspec, Inc. and its insurance carrier, Connecticut General, "market" their Trust by comparing the rates and benefits of their Trust to those of the State Health Benefits Plan (Stipulation 17). Connecticut General prepared a list which directly compares just two "plans": the State Health Benefits Plan and Connecticut General's under the Trust (Stipulation 17 and Exhibit D). Interestingly, and significantly, Connecticut General did not compare its benefits to the benefit plan of any of the carriers for those local boards who contract with other carriers. That is, the Trust was comparing itself solely to the SHBP, and it did so for "marketing purposes." (Stipulation 17). Similarly, the Trust compares its rates only to those of the SHBP. One could surmise from this marketing approach that the targets of the Trust's market are, in fact, certain local boards who are current participants in the SHBP. [PB. page 4]

CG avers that each school board has a direct contract of insurance with CG because the Trust agreement demonstrates that is the intention of the parties. If the parties wanted a direct contract, however, they would have made one, and there would be no need for the trust arrangement they devised. Similarly, although the boards are currently paying premium to CG as designee of the bank trustee, the trust agreement provides that, at any time, they may be required to pay into a trust fund which can cover more than premium expense alone. Currently, CG pays all trust administrative costs, broker fees and promotion expense and includes these costs in the premium. The trust fund, at the discretion of the bank trustee, may be used to "promote" the plan and to pay tax assessed on the trust fund. Thus what is occurring now may not be what will occur in the future. The real question is why the parties to this agreement find it so attractive.

Insofar as these particular school boards are concerned, the simple answer is that the Grinspec cost for coverage is ten percent less than that of the SHBP (stipulation 17) even though CG includes brokers fees in its premium and SHBP pays no broker fee. Since the premium is fixed, the Board is not faced with unanticipated fluctuations which can occur in small experience rated groups. The Trust reserves the right to deny membership based on underwriting guidelines. This means that the Trust need not solicit or accept school districts with poor claims experience. Such experience can occur because of a high incidence of claims per subscriber or high costs per incidence. It has been officially recognized in this State that medical providers charge less in some areas than in others. The Health Department denominated ten labor market areas in calculating hospital rate equalization factors. (N.J.A.C. 8:31A - Appendix C). Generally speaking, the highest costs areas are in large cities and heavily populated areas, both because labor costs in metropolitan areas are higher and also because this is where the teaching hospitals are located (CMDNJ is located in Newark). Teaching hospitals are always higher cost, and that factor has always been recognized in hospital rate regulation.

By aiming at small school districts (200 or fewer employees), in the southern half of the state, CG is marketing to groups likely to have lower claim costs. SHBP must take all governmental employers regardless of risk factors, however: thus smaller, low claim cost groups are pooled with the larger, higher claim cost groups. In insurance terminology, the activity of CG through the Trust is considered "cream skimming,"[1] and will result in migration of low claims cost boards out of the SHBP, and consequent higher cost per beneficiary within that plan. The effect of barring older retirees and disabled pensioners from Trust eligibility is, of course, to eliminate the highest risk individuals. They and their expenses remain with SHBP.

If each respondent Board individually purchased a group policy directly from an insurance carrier or from a nonprofit hospital or medical service corporation (the Blues), the rate would have to be based on the claims experience of its own group of employees. Thus the rate might not be stable. The claims experience of less than a group of 200 lives is never fully credible, in the actuarial sense. Generally one needs 500 lives and several years of claims for credibility).[2] By pooling the claims experience of these small governmental groups, Grinspec can obtain credible claims experience and avoid the rate fluctuations variations in incidence could create from year-to-year for a small experience rated group. SHBP achieves a similar result but it cannot refuse a governmental group with poor claims experience, nor can it refuse retirees with 25 years of service or those retired due to disability. CG says that it would not insure small groups (under 200 lives) without the Grinspec Trust facility.

1 The more modern term is "cherry picking."

2 The ALJ draws upon insurance agency expertise commonly known in the insurance industry for some general background, having been a Department of Insurance hearing officer and Assistant to the Commissioner.

Although respondents may not consider a background discussion of health insurance industry concepts germane to the issues in this case, I believe it illuminates some reasons why the petitioners are so concerned with what may appear to the uninitiated as a legal technicality. It may also shed light on the intentions of the Legislature in enacting or not enacting specific provisions of law which are at issue here. Respondents' concerns are obvious and their intentions are good: they seek to lower their costs and stabilize them. Petitioners are especially concerned about costs of coverage for SHBP beneficiaries in non-Grinspec school districts and the effect that rising SHBP expense will have on these districts, TPAF and the State, which pays the employers' share of TPAF costs for qualified retirees. (N.J.S.A. 52:14-17.32 as amended by L. 1987 c. 384). SHBP benefits are statutory, but are subject to modification in a collective bargaining agreement made on behalf of the State. N.J.S.A. 52:14-17.28a. Thus pressure for a reduction of benefits or for holding down compensation may occur if the expenses of the SHBP rise too precipitously. There is little doubt that skimming the cream off a group (i.e., removing retirees and the disabled), and skimming off the best groups (accepting only groups tending to have younger employees or to be in geographically lower medical cost areas) would adversely effect SHBP costs. This thesis may prove irrelevant to the legal issue, which must be decided on its own merits. Nevertheless, the practical effects should be known, even if they are of no consequence in determining the legal issues. I adopt the stipulations as Findings of Fact and FIND the stipulated exhibits and pages of the policy (C-1) to be authentic documents. In my discussion below, I will refer to portions of the documents which have legal significance on the issues.

Legal Discussion and Conclusions

Respondents and CG state that "the very simple issue involved here is whether N.J.S.A. 18A:16-13 authorizes a Board to contract for medical insurance "with" CG, an authorized New Jersey carrier. N.J.S.A. 18A:16-13 provides:

> Any local board of education may enter into contracts of group life, accidental death and dismemberment, hospitalization, medical, surgical, major medical expense, or health and accident insurance with any insurance company or companies authorized to do business in this State, or may > contract with a nonprofit hospital service or medical service corporation with respect to the benefits which they are authorized to provide respectively. Such contract or contracts shall provide any one or more of such coverages for the employees of the local board of education and may include their dependents. A local board of education amy enter into a contract or contractors to provide drug prescription and other health care benefits as may be required to implement a duly executed collective negotiations agreement, or as may be required to implement a determination by a local board of education to provide such benefit or benefits to employees not included in collective negotiations units. Nothing herein contained shall be deemed to authorize coverage of dependents of an employee under a group life insurance policy or to allow the issuance of a group life insurance policy under which the entire premium is to be derived from funds contributed by the insured employee.

> [emphasis added]

The statutes relating to group insurance for local boards of education, N.J.S.A. 18A:16-12 through 22 do not otherwise describe the authorized contracts, except that N.J.S.A. 18A:16-22 speaks of them as "contracts executed between a local board of education and an authorized insurer." This language supports an interpretation that the contract referred to is a two party contract.

CG argues that a direct contract of insurance exists between each board and CG because the Trust Agreement says that a participating trustee is an eligible group which agrees to the trust agreement, agrees to enter into one or more contracts of group insurance with an insurance company authorized to do business in New Jersey and agrees to be bound by the terms of the group policy "which the participating trustee has entered into with the insurance company" (Exhibit B, 1.01) This artful language is intended to define the trust agreement as a direct contract between a local board and an insurance company. CG cites five other indicia of a direct contract:

1. Monthly premium charges calculated separability for each school board.
2. School boards currently pay their monthly premium directly to CG.[3]
3. School boards can select types, limits, and deductibles applicable.
4. Claims are submitted to and paid by CG .
5. The Trustees are policy holders.

[3] The trust provides that premiums go into a Trust Fund, but the controlling entities have directed that the monies go to CG, recognizing that the Trust Fund feature raises regulatory concerns.

Petitioners respond that:

> . . . the Stipulation of Facts and the Trust Participation Agreement both state that the insurance policy here is issued by Connecticut General to the Trust, not to each board. The participating employers obtain insurance coverage for their employees from the "Trust Fund." (See Exhibit F, section 1). The Trust Agreement itself states that the participating employers gain coverage because and when they become a Participating Employer. (Exhibit B, section 4.02.) It is the Trust, not each individual employer, which has the insurance policy, and the individual participating employers gain coverage by virtue of participating in the Trust. If there were direct contracts between each participating employer and the insurance carrier, then surely they would have been supplied . . . they do not exist.
> . . . The Trust Agreement purposefully establishes that actual control of the Trust vests in the Bank Trustee, the Settlor, and the Insurance Carrier. In fact, the earmark of the Trust arrangement is that the Participating Trustees surrender all rights, duties and obligations to those three entities. Repeated throughout the Trust Agreement and the Participating Trust Agreements are provisions and clauses which state, explicitly, that the Bank Trustee has all of the rights and duties of control of the Trust and the Policy. Just by way of example, and in addition to the examples provided in the Petitioners' brief in chief, Section 4.01 of the Trust Agreement states: "All rights and obligations with respect to the Policy shall be vested solely in the Bank Trustee." (Exhibit B). In Section 6, the Bank Trustee alone is authorized to "enter into any agreements with the Insurance Company or any agent thereof which it may deem to be in the best interests of, and in furtherance of the purposes of, this Trust."
>
> . . . the Grinspec Trust is run and controlled by the Bank Trustee, the settlor (i.e., Grinspec, Inc.), and the Insurance Carrier.
>
> Control over the Trust is not the only matter which the school boards have surrendered under this arrangement. Despite assertions that each district pays its own premiums directly to Connecticut General based upon coverages which each district selects, the vital fact remains that the school districts surrender their own experience rating. . . . there is a pooling of risks of the employees of all participating employers . . . the policy issued by the carrier is based upon the premiums determined by the risk experience of all employees, "not on the experience of each school board." (Stipulation 32.) . . .
>
> Thus Section 3(G) of Exhibit F declares:
> > An adjustment in the premium rate applicable to the policy will be based upon the claim experience of all organizations participation [sic] in the Trust. No separate experience records will be maintained with respect to any Participating Trustee.

> . . . Hence the premiums paid by each board will depend on the claims experience of numerous employees of other employers, not on its own employees. Clearly this may result in some boards paying higher premiums than their own workforce's claims experience warrants. . . . the boards will never know this because the Trust forbids maintaining experience records for each participating employer. [RB, pages 3 to 6]

Although I respect the drafters' artful verbalizations in the Trust Agreement, paint cannot turn a horse into a zebra. The Trust Agreement is an agreement between Grinspec, Inc., (the settlor) and the Trustees (Exhibit B, Initial paragraph). The policy holder is the Trustees (C-1, page 1). The bank trustee alone has the power to execute group insurance applications (Article 4.01, Exhibit B). Premiums are held by the bank trustee in an unsegregated trust fund (Exhibit B, 3.01). The fact that Grinspec is having respondents pay premiums directly to CG at this time which assures insurance regulation of the funds does not change the nature of the instrument. I CONCLUDE that the trust agreement is not a contract executed between a local board of education and an authorized insurer, i.e., a direct policy of insurance between two parties as intended by N.J.S.A. 18A:16-13 and described in N.J.S.A. 18A:16-22. This interpretation of the statute is bolstered by the case law and the legislative scheme for group health coverage of local school board employees discussed in subsequent sections of this decision. Since I have concluded that the Trust mechanism is not a contract authorized under the statute, it follows that the Trust method of providing health benefits is not expressly authorized.

The issue then becomes whether or not a school board is permitted to or is authorized by fair implication to enter into a trust agreement of this kind with an intermediary for the provision of health benefits to employees. After all, the arrangement is beneficial to the boards financially and the employees have been guaranteed the same benefit level through the Trust as that offered by SHBP.

It is true that aged and disabled ("qualified") pensioners are relegated to the SHBP, but their benefits are not diminished.[4] CG pays premium taxes to the State [4] I reviewed the policy, trust agreement and trust participation agreements carefully seeking a definition or provision defining the benefits of qualified versus non-qualified retirees as stated in the stipulation. With permission of petitioners' counsel, I spoke by telephone with CG counsel, requesting that he point out a policy or trust agreement provision distinguishing qualified and non-qualified retirees and their rights and benefits, because I could find none. None exists. CG pointed to an interpretation of the policy, (C-1, page 43) in conjunction with N.J.S.A. 52:14-17.32f. It is most unusual for a policy not to define all subclasses of eligible beneficiaries, such as retirees, when one subclass ("non-qualified") is covered and another subclass ("qualified") is not.

and, as an authorized insurer, the Guaranty Act (N.J.S.A. 17B:32A-3) covers its beneficiaries in the event of an insolvency.

Respondents and CG argue that the Legislature did not intend N.J.S.A. 18A:16-13 to limit lawful insurance mechanisms and that delegated power to provide benefits through a trust agreement with a policy of an authorized carrier can be found by fair implication in the statute. Petitioners argue that the Legislature knew exactly what it wished to prevent by specifying the kind of contract authorized by the statute, because it has specified when joint venture agreements are allowed and when boards can join together in a pool for specific types of coverage, such as tort claims, damages and workers' compensation. Health benefits are conspicuously missing from enablements for joint ventures and insurance pooling, other than through the SHBP.

CG cites an unpublished 1984 Appellate Division opinion in support of its argument: Irvington Education Assoc. v. Bd. of Ed. of Township of Irvington, (Dkt. A-4805-82T5). CG's thesis is that the Appellate Division held that the Legislature only intended to prohibit self insurance. The court described its determination as a "narrow question," that being, whether a local board of education may act as self insurer for health insurance. The court states, "It is . . . not the mere incurring of an open-ended liability that defeats defendant's proposed plan, but rather the lack of specific authority to accept [it] in the area of health benefits." Although other portions of this opinion are dicta, the court references significant factors for consideration. In concluding that self insurance was barred, "although the law governing a local board's power in this instance is far from clear, "the court weighed the factors of lack of express authority, availability of viable substitutes, absence of a uniform scheme of statutory protection for such funds and legislative history in analogous situations. The court found a lack of specific authority to accept such responsibility in the area of health benefits when the Legislature expressly authorized joint self insurance for other specified coverages in N.J.S.A. 18A:18B-1 et seq.

A careful reading of the joint self insurance statutes for school boards (N.J.S.A. 18A:18B-1 et seq.) demonstrates that there are many parallels of the Grinspec Trust form with the joint self insurance vehicle provided by statute. There is a board of trustees, a majority of which shall be members or employees of boards of education but no trustee shall enter into any contract with the group or receive monies (except for actual expenses and $200 a day for a meeting), for services performed for or on behalf of the group. The school board insurance group contributes to a joint fund for insurance and related services. The stated legislative intention is to attain for smaller districts the benefits of providing "protection from risks on a group basis - in a pool." (Senate Ed. Comm. Statement on Assembly, No. 1372-L. 1983 c. 108). The group may jointly purchase under a master policy or contract of insurance for participating members. N.J.S.A. 18A:18B-3(a). (I note the Legislature appears to be well aware of insurance terminology). A highly significant provision is that any board of education may join the group: there is no insurer or insurer controlled trustee who can bar a board from membership on grounds of "underwriting guidelines" although compliance with risk management programs is required. N.J.S.A. 18A:18B-3(b). These statutes were the ones which the Appellate Division reviewed in the Irvington decision of 1984.

CG interprets the Irvington holding as a ruling that N.J.S.A. 18A:16-13 provides only some examples of permissible insurance arrangements and does not preclude the use of others so long as they are not self insurance. The Irvington court says:

> Were the issue before us merely whether the school board, if it wished to provide health care benefits to its employees would be limited to either a private insurance program under N.J.S.A. 18A:16-13 or to participate in the State program under N.J.S.A. 52:14-17.34, the Teamsters Local 331 decision would have set the question to rest. It is clear that a board of education may both provide health benefits and seek a method of doing so other than by the methods expressly authorized by the two cited statutes.

The Teamsters Local 331 holding (191 N.J. Super. 404 (Ch. Div. 1981), aff'd o.b. 191 N.J. Super. 394 (App. Div. 1983), was based on a municipality's right to provide compensation to its employees who, in turn, had the right to collectively negotiate to contribute their payments to a union health and welfare fund. This method is a non-statutory alternative. The Teamsters case and the self insurance group statute adopted shortly prior to the appellate holding clearly showed that private insurance under N.J.S.A. 18A:16-13 and the SHBP were not the exclusive means of obtaining coverage. The holding did not, however, decide whether a trust agreement intermediary method is the same as the private insurance which the Legislature authorized and intended under N.J.S.A. 18A:16-13. The Irvington court noted, that even though the board carried excess insurance, the retention of $900,000 in self-insurance "as opposed to a statutorily authorized insurance program exceeds the authority of the board." I CONCLUDE that the issues before me were not determined in the Irvington case.

In addition to the lack of express authority, the Irvington court considered the availability of viable substitutes. Those substitutes, as to respondents here, in addition to the SHBP include both facilitations expressly authorized under N.J.S.A. 18A:16-13, namely contracts with insurers or the Blues. Respondents have not suggested there is a shortage of health coverages offered by the Blues and directly by insurance carriers. The absence of a uniform scheme of statutory protections for (self) insurance funds is not a substantially analogous factor here so long as the authorized carrier alone receives premiums, but the trust agreement provides that the bank trustee may do so and need not segregate the funds. The Insurance Commissioner does not have regulatory powers over the bank trustee and trust fund, as he or she has over authorized carriers and over self insurance funds under N.J.S.A. 18A:18B-7. I CONCLUDE this circumstance is a significant adverse indicator to finding implied power to use a trust vehicle as an intermediary.

The most significant factor in the balance mentioned by the Irvington court is the legislative history in analogous situations. By 1984, the Legislature had clearly opted not to allow local boards to join a pool for self insurance of health coverage, although it could easily have done so. CG argues that none of the analagous post 1984 legislative enablements expressly authorized trust, joint or pooled health insurance facilitations for local school boards because the Legislature was aware that all permissible private insurance modalities had been expressly authorized by N.J.S.A. 18A:16-13. Since the Irvington decision was unpublished and the narrow issue decided concerned self-insurance, I find no merit in this argument. In fact, when the Legislature expressly authorized local school districts to enter into contracts for group legal insurance in 1986, the Senate Education Committee Statement (S 1180, L. 1986 c. 73) urged passage because in the absence of specific statutory authority, questions may arise as to the authority of school boards to provide the benefits available under N.J.S.A. 17:46C-1 et seq. The manner in which this shall be done is clearly set forth in these statutes, N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-3.2, 3.3 and 3.4.

In 1990, the Legislature authorized local government units to obtain group health and life insurance coverage from an insurance carrier or the Blues through joint insurance funds. (N.J.S.A. 40A:10-36a, b(2)). The Assembly Insurance Committee Statement accompanying the bill (S 197, L. 1990 c. 120) reported that it "permits two or more local units to combine for the purpose of securing insurance coverage and allowing local units to achieve insurance cost savings made possible through risk pooling." The Legislature could readily have authorized school boards to join for the purchase of insurance group policies or Blues service contracts, but it did not. It did not adopt the group policy risk pooling savings mechanism for school boards. The SHBP remained the only statutorily authorized risk pooling mechanism for providing health coverage to local board employees.

The legislative intent and scheme for local board provision of health benefits was dispositively illuminated by passage of L.1992 c. 51. Although local boards were then authorized to join with the municipalities served by their schools to obtain the benefits of risk pooling for other forms of coverage, and the joined local unit could also pool with other local units under N.J.S.A. 40A:10-36; N.J.S.A. 40A:10-36.1 provided:

> 40A:10-36.1. Local unit to include boards of education; boards of education prohibited from joint agreements for group health or term life insurance
> For the purpose of P.L. 1983, c. 372 (C. 40A:10-36 et seq.), "local unit" shall be deemed to include boards of education which join together with municipalities pursuant to P.L. 1992, c. 51 (C. 40A:10-52 et al.), except that boards of education, other than boards of education of county vocational school districts, shall not join together with other local units as provided in section 1 of P.L. 1983, c. 372 (C. 40A:10-36) for the purpose of providing contributory or non-contributory group health insurance or group term life insurance, or both, to employees or their dependents or both, as otherwise permitted therein.
> [emphasis added]

The session law in L. 1992 c 51 is replete with exclusions barring a board of education from participating in a pool for group life and health coverage. A county vocational district can do so, presumably because the county may pool for other employees. Note also that none of the pooling statutes cited herein allows an entity other than a governmental one to be admissible to the group pool. I CONCLUDE that the omission of health insurance from the joint and pooling statutory enablements for local school boards was intentional. It is fundamental that what the Legislature omits, the courts will not supply Remedial Educ. & Diag. Serv. v. Essex County Educ. Serv., 191 N.J. Super. 524, 527 (App. Div. 1983).

I interpret N.J.S.A. 40A:10-36.1 to bar local boards from risk pooling group insurance mechanisms for the provision of health benefits as contrary to the statutory scheme. That scheme is inextricably bound up with SHBP provisions.

The Rest of the Legislative Scheme: Titles 52 and 17B

Local boards may only exercise those powers granted by the Legislature. Fairlawn Ed. Asso. v. Fairlawn Bd. of Ed., 79 N.J. 574, 583 (1979). Our Supreme Court therein considered a board's authorization to offer early retirement plans, found no express authorization and concluded it could not be implied because of an overriding concern for the fiscal health of TPAF and preemption by the Legislature. Although health benefits are not subject to the long term actuarial fiscal concerns of pensions, there are some analogies. In 1964, N.J.S.A. 52:14-17.34 was amended to permit local government units including school districts to participate in SHBP as "the logical way to provide the greatest benefits to public employees in New Jersey at the lowest cost to both employers and employees" (Senate Bill No. 6 Statement). The claims experience for state and local employees may be separated into subgroups. N.J.S.A. 52:14-17.29(c). Local employer experience is considered separately. N.J.A.C. 17:9-5.1. The SHB Commission is given the authority to particularize subgroups and determine rates to equitably reflect cost of benefits based on sound actuarial principles. Participation of local groups is voluntary, but, as we have seen, the means by which they may otherwise provide benefits is limited to a contract directly between an insurance carrier or the Blues and a single school district, not a pooling arrangement.

In 1988, the Legislature gave TPAF qualified retirees a right to participate in SHBP even if their former employer opted out of SHBP participation and provided that TPAF, not local boards, would pay for these benefits. N.J.A.C. 52:14-17.32f. Current law was not fully effective until 1992 (L. 1992 c. 126§2). Local government employees were not given this right. The Legislature financially assisted local boards served by SHBP by directing that TPAF pay SHBP benefits for qualified retirees and permitted all such retirees to elect to stay with the SHBP. The Legislature nowhere mandated that all qualified retirees must participate in SHBP rather than in a local board's group insurance plan. There can hardly be any question that if an instrument such as the Grinspec Trust can bar qualified retirees from benefits in a local group plan, to the financial benefit of the local district, all qualified retirees (the worst risk group) will be forced to migrate to the SHBP and the costs in that plan for all retirees (including those who must contribute for their own benefits) must inevitably rise. The cost to TPAF and its participants will rise. The rates will rise due to forced migration of older retirees and the disabled into SHBP at TPAF expense and election against the SHBP by out- migrating groups like Grinspec participants with underwriting guidelines which allow rejection of groups with poor claims experience. The effect of these occurrances will be to unbalance the careful legislative scheme where in SHBP and TPAF are protected from adverse selection by the prohibition against risk pooling by competing plans and the interaction of Title 17B mandatory provisions applicable to all group health insurance policies.

CG argues that the Legislature favored competition in the insurance field and did not intend to bar any permissible insurance facilitation. I have already concluded that the Legislature did not intend health coverage risk pooling for local boards, thus limiting rate competition. The competition favored is competition between private insurers and the Blues and among insurers on a circumscribed playing field. All competing carriers must comply with the statutes standarizing product. (I do not refer to whether or not carriers are providing the basic SHBP level of benefits: it is stipulated that they do). The contracts authorized by N.J.S.A. 18A:16-13 must conform with N.J.S.A. 18A:16-16 through 16-21, however. The statutory contract requirements are essential components of the Legislative scheme, having been adopted at the same time. Compliance of the insurance contract with the statutes can be readily ascertained if the direct insurance contract is the only effectuating instrument. What if, however, an intermediary trust agreement affects the terms and conditions? Does the local board of education file only a copy of the trustees' insurance contract and its own certificate (part of the policy), with the SHBC under N.J.S.A. 18A:16-21? Does it file both the trust agreement and policy as the complete contract? What the boards filed with SHBC is not of record.

N.J.S.A. 18A:16-14(a) and N.J.S.A. 40A:10-18a mandate that the contract shall exclude from eligibility active or retired employees who are eligible by age for Medicare, but are not covered by the complete Medicare program and those eligible under another group contract. Private employers' plans are not subject to these statutes. The CG policy (C-1, page 37) provides that CG will "assume the amount payable under " Part B of Medicare for a person who is entitled to be enrolled in that Part, but is not, to be the amount he would receive if he were enrolled." SHBP requires all persons who are Medicare eligible to be enrolled in Medicare, N.J.A.C. 17:9-6.3(d). If not enrolled in Medicare, they are excluded. (Not all qualified retirees are Medicare eligible, however.) N.J.S.A. 18A:16-14(a) intends that insurer group contracts have similar provisions to SHBP. The CG policy appears to provide that a Medicare eligible who does not enroll is still covered to the extent major medical coverage would wrap around Medicare payments.

N.J.S.A. 18A:16-19(b) provides that if a qualified retired employee "elects at time of retirement" to take SHBP coverage, he is not eligible for employer-paid coverage. The word "elect" clearly means "to select, or choose." Prior to N.J.S.A. 52:14-17.32f and f1 (L. 1992 c. 126), a qualified TPAF retiree could not remain in the SHBP if his former employer was not an SHBP participant. N.J.A.C. 52:14-17.32f provides that a qualified TPAF retiree who retired prior to the adoption of that law (1988 or 1992, depending upon class of retiree) may participate in the SHBP if the retiree applies within one year after the effective date. These statutes clearly give the employee the option to elect a benefit plan and tell him when he must apply. The Senate Committee Statement concerning L. 1987 c. 384, A 4363 corroborates this conclusion. The stated intention therein for a mandate that TPAF, rather than the local board pay for qualified retiree benefits in SHBP is to give local boards incentives to offer retiree coverage when they have not done so previously. There is no implication that a local board is to have the unilateral right to shift all qualified retirees to SHBP. All the cited law in this paragraph leads to a conclusion that the Legislature has given the retired or retiring employee the right to choose and a time frame within which this must be done.

CG's policy (C-2, page 43) says: "If your active service ends because you retire, your insurance may be continued upon your election at time of retirement in accordance with State law." The stipulation says at paragraph 45 that all retirees are eligible for coverage under the group insurance policy. This fact and the policy section cited above, prima facie would appear to comply with the statutes. But in stipulations 46, 47 and 48, I find that CG and respondents interpret the cited policy provision to mean that the policy does not cover all retirees, but covers only "non-qualified" employees and that qualified employees who wish to continue coverage must switch to the SHBP. They interpret "elect" in N.J.S.A. 18A:16-19 by way of the page 43 policy provision to mean any qualified employee who "elects" to continue coverage. This interpretation is inconsistent with the clear meaning of the statutes that a local board employee has the option to elect the SHBP. An "election in accordance with State law" is an election to stay in the local board's plan or to apply to SHBP. I so CONCLUDE.

A final part of the picture in determining whether the Legislature intended to authorize local boards to use trust agreement intermediaries, such as this, is the application of the recently enacted L. 1993 c. 8, which directly relates to the funding of TPAF qualified retirees' benefits. The insurance company with a policy covering local board employees must pay, each year, a surcharge which is a percentage of the claims (not the premiums) paid attributable to the coverage of these employees and their dependents. The Grinspec Trust participation agreement (Exhibit F, 3, G) expressly provides that the premium rate applicable to the policy will be based on the claim experience of all organizations participating in the Trust and "no separate experience records will be maintained "for any participant. This new statute reinforces the conclusion that the legislative scheme does not contemplate authorization for pooling under a trust agreement, but only a direct contract of insurance between a local board and the carrier under N.J.S.A. 18A:16-13.

The surcharge section of L. 1993 c. 8 includes a more explicit description of the insurance company from which school boards may obtain a policy. N.J.S.A. 18A:16-13, described such an insurance company as one authorized to do business in New Jersey. L. 1993 c. 8 describes the carrier as one "writing insurance pursuant to Title 17B of the New Jersey Statutes." The new description is more explicit in that it would be possible to have an out-of-state (non-domestic) insurance company authorized to do business in New Jersey for some lines of business, but not for group health coverage, which it did write in other states. Such a carrier could sell a policy to an out-of-state "trust" group established for insurance marketing purposes which would purchase the policy from the carrier in that state. The carrier could then claim as to the trust "members" in New Jersey, it was not selling a New Jersey group policy delivered or issued for delivery in New Jersey (N.J.S.A. 17B:27-26) and was therefore not subject to Title 17B requirements. By further describing the policy which local boards have with an authorized carrier as a company "writing insurance pursuant to Title 17B," the Legislature has made it clear that the manner in which the carrier contracts for the policy must be that of Title 17B.

The cited provision of c. 8 of L. 1993 imports into the description of the authorized contract that it must in all respects be written pursuant to Title 17B, which mandates certain benefits must be offered in group health policies (N.J.S.A. 17B:27-46.1 et seq.). For example, if an employee is terminated due to total disability, the group health policy must provide for continuation of all coverage in the group policy, even if the person is eligible for or covered by Medicare, for a payment no more than the group rate. N.J.S.A. 17B:27-51.12. The employee may "elect continuation" of his group coverage. The statutory mandate would be inconsistent with any interpretation that an employer can force a disabled individual into another choice. The language "electing continuation" in this statute allows definitive interpretation of that term in a group health policy context. It illuminates the meaning of the CG policy term used at page 43 of C-1, which speaks to active service which ends due to injury or sickness or retirement. Page 43 of the policy form was filed March 4, 1982, which was just after N.J.S.A. 17B:27-51.11 et seq. was approved (January 9, 1981), and before it was to become effective (90 days after enactment, *i.*e., about April 1, 1982). The policy also follows that statute in that it tells the beneficiary that the continuation plan may not "preclude individual selection." N.J.S.A. 17B:27-31 does not require that a group health policy must include retirees, but if it does include retirees, N.J.S.A. 17B:27-51.12 at (3)a, b and c (mandating continuation of all coverages for the disabled under any new group policy contracted for by the employer) requires that they cannot be dropped from any group plan continued by the employer. CG would have difficulty complying with this provision if it marketed to local boards carrying private insurer or Blues group health coverage, because it claims the Trust policy only covers "non-qualified" retirees. It could readily pick-up SHBP employers, however, because qualified retirees can continue in SHBP.

All of the above discussion illuminates the meaning of the policy. The policy form does not and was never intended to mean that qualified retirees (which include the disabled) may elect "in accordance with State law" to continue only in the SHBP and may be forced out of the employer's plan. "In accordance with State Law" refers to the provision of N.J.S.A. 17B:27-51.11 et seq. not N.J.S.A. 52:14-17.32f, as CG contends. No provision in the policy or trust agreement defines the classes of qualified and non-qualified retirees as these classes are described by CG and no provision clearly states that such qualified retirees are not eligible for coverage. In fact, the policy must cover qualified retirees of non-school public employees because SHBP will not. If a group plan such as the trust agreement as applied is inconsistent with Title 17B, it is not a contract of insurance written pursuant to Title 17B within the meaning of L. 1993 C. 8 and N.J.S.A. 18A:16-13, even if the insurer is authorized to do business in New Jersey, the policy form has been filed and the risk is not pooled. N.J.S.A. 17B:27-27 and 29 permit risk pooling through multiple employer trust funds. As the discussions here demonstrate, however, after 1982, it became more difficult for a group insurance plan to comply with both Title 17B and 18A.

CG contends that the speed with which L. 1993 c. 8 was passed due to intense lobbying of NJEA vitiates the existence of any legislative intent. "Legislative intent" as used in statutory construction is a legal term of art, not a description of the state of mind existing in a legislator at the time a vote is cast. Thus, the record of lobbying and of passage of the bill offered by CG in rebuttal to petitioners' argument is irrelevant. If it were relevant, it would logically support petitioners' argument, not that of CG: it can be seen as support of the NJEA position and an attempt at speedy correction of private insurers' implementation of pooled claim experience for local boards. The legislative intention behind L. 1993 c. 8 as found in its accompanying statement bolsters my conclusion concerning the entire legislative scheme, for L. 1993 c. 8 even provides a way back to the SHBP for local boards which currently have contracts with private insurers when these contracts terminate, but subjects those which contract with private insurers thereafter to the usual waiting period.

Taking into consideration the analogous factors alluded to in case law for a determination of whether or not the Grinspec Trust is a method authorized to provide health benefits and whether express authorization is needed, including the legislative history and statutory scheme related to the issue, I CONCLUDE that N.J.S.A. 18A:16-13 does not authorize local boards to provide health benefits via the kind of trust intermediary found here, and that authorization would have to be express and cannot be found by fair implication because the Grinspec arrangement is inconsistent with and detrimental to implementation of the legislature scheme for provision of such benefits by local school boards in the State as a whole. I CONCLUDE that respondents' execution of the trust participation agreement is ultra vires.

It is therefore ORDERED that the respondent boards and all other local school boards participating as trustees in the Grinspec Trust give notice of their intention to withdraw from participation upon a final order in this docket; that intervenor CG retrieve past claims experience for the period beginning January 1, 1993, and commence forthwith to record claims experience for each participating board separately consistent with the statutory requirement expressed in L. 1993 c. 8; and that participating boards take whatever steps are necessary to assure continuation of employee benefits in accordance with law in the event a final order in this docket requires withdrawal from Trust participation.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, 8th Floor West, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

The record and initial decision rendered by the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Intervenor Connecticut General Life Insurance Company (hereinafter CG) filed timely exceptions pursuant to the applicable provisions of N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4. Petitioning Associations filed a timely concurrence with the ALJ's decision. Five respondents filed untimely requests to join in CG's exceptions. Intervenor NJEA, as well as petitioning Associations, filed timely replies.

Upon careful and independent review of the record of this matter, including the exceptions filed by CG, the Commissioner affirms the findings and conclusions of the Office of Administrative Law, which established that N.J.S.A. 18A:16-13 does not authorize local boards of education to provide health benefits through trust intermediary funds such as Grinspec. Like the ALJ, the Commissioner finds that authorization for such trusts is not expressly provided for in statute, nor can it be found to exist by fair implication.

The matter at bar concerns the legality of a trust arrangement devised by a group of private and public sector employers who have joined together for the purpose of providing health insurance to their employees. For a public board of education to provide insurance coverage, statutory authority must exist. Local boards of education have only that authority to act delegated to them by the Legislature. See Fair Lawn Ed. Assoc. v. Fair Lawn Bd. of Ed., 79 N.J. 574, 583 (1979). See also Scatuorchio v. Jersey City Incinerator Authority, 14 N.J. 72, 85 (1953). Accord, In re Jamesburg High School Closing, 83 N.J. 540, 549 (1980) (Where there exists reasonable doubt as to a school board's power to act in a certain manner or area, "the power is denied.") N.J.S.A 18A:16-13 plainly states that contracts for health insurance made by a board of education must be with an insurance company or with a nonprofit hospital service or medical service corporation. It is equally plain from a reading of the statutes that the only way public schools can join together to provide insurance of any kind is through a Joint Insurance Fund (JIF) pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:18B-2 and 3. Said statutes provide:

> 18A:18B-2. Insurance authorized
>
> Any board of education is authorized to insure, contract or provide for any insurable interests of the district or board in the manner authorized by section 3 of this act [Section 18A:18B-3], for the following:
>
> a. Any loss or damage to its property, real or personnal, motor vehicles, equipment or apparatus;
>
> b. Any loss or damage from liability resulting from the use or operation of motor vehicles, equipment of apparatus owned or controlled by it;
>
> c. Any loss or damage from liability for its own acts or omissions and for acts or omissions of it officers, employees or servants arising out of and in the course of the performance of their duties, including, but not limited to, any liability established by the "New Jersey Tort Claims Act," N.J.S. 59:1-1 et seq., or by any federal or other law;
>
> d. Loss or damage from liability as established by Chapter 15 of Title 34 of the Revised Statutes, Labor and Workmen's Compensation (R.S. 34:15-1 et seq.);
>
> e. Expenses of defending any claim against the board, district, officer, employee or servant arising out of and in the course of the performance of their duties, whether or not liability exists on the claim.
> 18A:18B-3. School board insurance group
> a. Any two or more boards of education may form and become members of a school board insurance group. A board of education may take this action by resolution of the board. Through membership in a school board insurance group, a board of education may participate in any joint self-insurance fund or funds, risk management programs or related services offered or provided by the group. The group shall have the power to establish a fund or funds for coverages authorized in section 2 of this act [Section 18A:18B-2] and to jointly purchase insurance or coverages under a master policy or contract of > insurance for participating members. The group shall have the power to take other actions necessary to developing, administering, and providing risk management programs, joint self-insurance funds, joint insurance purchases, and related services.

> b. The bylaws of the school board insurance group shall provide that any board of education may join the group, provided it agrees to comply with the standards for membership, including risk management programs, which shall be established by the group, and may be a member as long as it complies with the standards for membership.
> c. A school board insurance group may sue or be sued and shall appoint a natural person residing in this State or a corporation authorized to do business in this State as its agent for service of process. The group shall notify the commissioner of the appointment.
> d. A school board insurance group is not an insurance company or an insurer under the laws of this State and the development, administration or provision by a group of joint self-insurance fund or funds, risk management programs and related services does not constitute the transaction of insurance nor doing an insurance business. A group shall not be subject to the provisions of Title 17, Subtitle 3, Insurance, of the Revised Statutes.

Health insurance is conspicuously absent from the types of insurance envisioned by the Legislature that public schools may provide. A review of the legislative history of N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-1 et seq., reveals that repeated efforts have been made to add health insurance to the list of insurances for which boards may join together to provide; however, the Legislature has repeatedly rejected such attempts. See initial decision at pp. 9-19.

Were public boards of education permitted to join Grinspec Trust, then it would become a JIF. Grinspec would then become subject to regulation by the Department of Insurance and, concomitantly, become subject to statutory restriction as to what kinds of insurance would be permissible pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:18B-2, and 3. As noted above, said statutes exclude health insurance coverage. Hence, because boards are without inherent power to join together for purposes other than those specifically provided for by statute (Scatuorchio, supra), Grinspec is outside the allowable parameters of law .

In arriving at this determination, the Commissioner notes that while she adopts the findings and conclusions of the Office of Administrative Law in this case, she does so without specifically endorsing the ALJ's comments based upon the ALJ's individual experience as a former hearing officer and Assistant Commissioner for the Department of Insurance, such as that observation made at pp. 9-10 of the initial decision regarding the Guaranty Act. While the ALJ's reading of N.J.S.A. 17B:32A-3 may be true generally, because said statute specifically excludes JIFs, it may have no application to this case. Similarly, the Commissioner makes no comment on, nor draws any conclusions from, the ALJ's language on page 11 of the initial decision, which could be read to suggest that school board JIFs must accept all applicants.

Yet, to find such intermediary trusts such as Grinspec permissible, with the understanding that the Trust admits that it provides coverage by being selective as to its participants based upon exclusion of certain categories of clients such as retirees ("cherrypicking"), is to suggest that the State Health Benefits Plan (SHBP) would eventually becomes analogous to the now defunct Joint Underwriters Association (JUA), a collective of high risk individuals for which some public entity would have to shoulder the costs of providing health insurance. Such arrangements would exist in contravention to the best interests of the State.

It is further observed that among those instances whereby the Legislature has provided for pooling in purchasing insurance, only public employers are mentioned. None of the statutes considered herein envisions pooling by public sector entities with private sector employers. Yet, Grinspec does permit both public and private sector employers to participate in the Trust. As noted by petitioners in their post-hearing brief, "[t]he differences in the laws and rules regarding health benefits between private and public sector employers [are] enormous and diverse." (Petitioners' Trial Brief, at p. 11) The Commissioner finds such diversity in entities speaks against a finding of validity under public education law.

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed in the initial decision, as augmented herein, the Commissioner finds and determines that N.J.S.A. 18A:16-13 does not authorize local boards of education to provide health benefits through the kind of intermediary such as Grinspec Trust. The Commissioner finds, accordingly, that respondents' execution of the trust participation agreement herein is ultra vires. The Commissioner therefore directs that the respondent boards and all other local school boards participating as trustees in the Grinspec Trust give, as of the date of this decision, notice of their intention to withdraw from participation by the end of the 1993-94 school year. Moreover, no boards of education whose participation in the Trust may be pending shall be permitted to do so.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

This matter has come before the Commissioner on November 12, 1993 by way of Notice of Motion with accompanying certification and brief filed by Intervenor Connecticut General Life Insurance Company (CG), seeking a stay of the Commissioner's decision rendered in the above-captioned matter on October 12, 1993. Relying on Zon. Bd. of Adj. v. Service Elec. Cable T.V., 198 N.J. Super. 370 (App. Div. 1985) and Humble Oil & Refining Co. v. Wojtycha, 48 N.J. 562, 566 (1967), CG claims a stay should issue pending review of this case before the State Board of Education because it is likely to succeed on the merits of its case, it will suffer irreparable harm if the stay is not granted, there are substantial legal issues raised and the order sought to be stayed will enjoin ongoing operations of a public body. Millstone Township Board of Education, South Amboy Board of Education, Rumson Borough Board of Education, and Medford Lakes Borough Board of Education joined in the Motion for Stay, relying on the submissions of CG for their position.

On November 19, 1993, Millstone Township Teachers Association on behalf of petitioners filed an Affidavit in Opposition to CG's Application for Stay. Intervenor/Petitioner New Jersey Education Association joined in the Opposition filed by Millstone Education Association and adopted the submissions filed by Millstone Education Association in so doing.

CG first argues that it will likely succeed on the merits because under Irvington Education Association v. Board of Education of the Township of Irvington, Dkt. No. A-4805-82T5, (App. Div. 1984), the existing relationship between it and the Boards of Education named as respondents in this matter in the form of the Grinspec Trust is valid. CG also relies on N.J.S.A. 17B:27-27 for its contention that as an insurance trust made up of employers it is a permissible vehicle to deliver health insurance under N.J.S.A. 18A:16-13. CG also claims that the respondent Boards and it freely entered into a contractual relationship which defines that a contract of insurance exists between it and those Boards.

Second, CG claims it will suffer immediate and irreparable harm if a stay is not granted because the effect of the Commissioner's decision is to prevent it from using the Grinspec Trust policy to deliver insurance coverage to the respondent Boards. If the Commissioner's decision is not stayed, CG avers, it may forfeit part of this business even if CG's position and the Trust are subsequently vindicated.

Third, CG submits that the balancing of harms weighs in its favor and, also, that a stay is in the public interest because the Trust provides health benefits at a cost that is ten percent less than the cost from the State Health Benefits Program (SHBP). It argues that if the final decision is enforced, the Boards will be forced to either undo their arrangement with CG to enter into another less advantageous arrangement or to enroll in the SHBP. CG suggests there is no reason why the Boards should be forced to make this election before the conclusion of all appeals.

Further, CG contends there is no harm to the Associations if the stay is granted in that the record shows that the benefits and the administration of the health benefits coverage is not deficient or inadequate in any way, and, in fact, is equal to or better than the SHBP benefits. CG thus contends that the Associations will not suffer harm if the stay is entered and the Boards' choice delayed until the conclusion of this litigation. It claims it makes no sense to direct a public employer to use its scarce resources to search out different insurance arrangements for its employees when a final judicial determination on a question of law has not been made.

The Affidavit in Opposition to the Motion for Stay submitted by Millstone Township Teachers Association's counsel contends preliminarily that the stay should be denied because the Commissioner did not order immediate action, but rather permitted ample time for the Boards to discontinue their participation in, and use of, Grinspec Trust. Further, the Associations contend the requisite criteria for a stay have not been satisfied by CG and those Boards joining in CG's application for stay.

The Commissioner has delegated her authority to hear and decide this matter to Win L. Tillery, Assistant Commissioner, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:4-34.

Upon careful review of the papers submitted by the parties, and under the legal standards that apply to an assessment of whether a stay of the Commissioner's decision should be issued, the Assistant Commissioner denies CG's and the Boards' motion. See Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982). In denying this motion, the Assistant Commissioner finds that CG has failed to make any showing that it will prevail on the merits of the appeal before the State Board or that it will suffer any irreparable harm from complying with the Commissioner's decision in this matter, which fully addressed the arguments raised by CG in its request for stay.

In so deciding, the Assistant Commissioner stresses that the Commissioner's decision represents the final determination in this matter, unless and until reversed upon appeal. (N.J.S.A. 18A:6-25) Consequently, CG and those Boards seeking the instant stay are, by operation of law through the denial of their request for stay, bound by the Commissioner's directive that they cease to be a part of Grinspec Trust or any other similar arrangement as Grinspec Trust by June 1994. The Commissioner's decision found that such date affords the Boards ample time to comply with the law regarding the provision of health insurance for their employees and agents.

Accordingly, the instant Petition with Motion for Stay is denied.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

For the Intervenor New Jersey School Boards Association, Kim Chapman-Belin, Esq.

This case was initiated by separate Petitions of Appeal to the Commissioner of Education filed by six education associations against the district boards of education which employed the individuals represented by each association. The impetus for the action was that each of the district boards had withdrawn from the New Jersey State Health Benefits Plan and had contracted to provide health insurance coverage to its employees by an arrangement with Connecticut General Life Insurance Company known as the Grinspec Trust. Petitioners claimed that this arrangement was not authorized by law and was prohibited.

Connecticut General and the New Jersey School Boards Association intervened on behalf of the respondent district boards, and the New Jersey Education Association intervened in support of petitioners.

On October 13, 1993, the Commissioner adopted the findings and conclusions of the Administrative Law Judge and held that N.J.S.A. 18A:16-13 as then in effect did not authorize district boards of education to provide health benefits through arrangements such as the Grinspec Trust and that such authorization could not be implied from the statutes. She directed that all district boards participating in the Grinspec Trust give notice of their intention to withdraw from it by the end of the 1993-94 school year.

Connecticut General appealed the Commissioner's decision to the State Board contending that the Grinspec Trust was a permissible method for providing health insurance benefits under New Jersey Law as then in effect.

On May 4, 1994, the State Board of Education stayed the Commissioner's decision pending our decision on the merits.

On January 19, 1995, P.L. 1995 c. 74 was signed into law. This legislation amended N.J.S.A. 18A:16-13 so as to authorize district boards to provide group health insurance benefits to their employees and dependents through joint insurance fund arrangements subject to certain conditions specified in the statute.

By letter of April 20, 1995, the parties were advised that the State Board would take notice of P.L. 1995 c. 74 in relation to this matter and that the parties were being afforded the opportunity to address the impact of the legislation.

It is Connecticut General's position that the new legislation expressly and unambiguously permits district boards to make use of arrangements such as the one involved here. It further argues that examination of the terms of the amendment bolsters the position it took when it appealed the Commissioner's decision, i.e., that the arrangement involved was permissible even under the prior law.

The Associations contend that P.L. 1995 c. 74 does not cure the legal defect in the Grinspec Trust because the Grinspec Trust uses group experience to establish rates rather than using individual rating and that the terms of the legislation do not authorize establishing rates through group experience.

Connecticut General counters that the new legislation does not in any way qualify the grant of express authority for district boards to enter trust arrangements and that by allowing boards to insure their employees jointly, it permits group rating.

We conclude that by expressly authorizing joint insurance, P.L. 1995 c. 74 renders moot any question of whether arrangements such as the Grinspec Trust were permissible under prior law, and, hence, we need not decide such questions in order to dispose of the instant appeal.

Upon review of the current law, we agree with Connecticut General that the law now provides the express authority for joint insurance plans like the arrangement involved here and does not prohibit group rating. On this basis, we dismiss the appeal in this matter. In doing so, we stress that P.L. 1995 c. 74 requires compliance with certain conditions, including approvals by the Commissioner of Education. We therefore extend our stay of the Commissioner's directive that all district boards withdraw from the Grinspec Trust to the extent necessary to insure that the district boards involved can comply with the current law without any interruption of coverage.

For the Intervenor New Jersey School Boards Association, Kim Chapman-Belin, Esq.

By decision of June 7, 1995, we acted on a motion filed by Connecticut General Life Insurance Company (Connecticut General) and dismissed its appeal in this matter as moot given the enactment of P.L. 1995 c.74.

The case had been initiated by the filing of petitions of appeal to the Commissioner of Education when six districts withdrew from the New Jersey State Health Benefits Plan and contracted to provide health insurance coverage to its employees by an arrangement with Connecticut General known as the Grinspec Trust. The petitioning education associations had claimed that this arrangement was not authorized by law and was prohibited.

In her decision, Commissioner Fitzgerald had adopted the findings of the Administrative Law Judge, and the Commissioner concluded that, were district boards of education permitted to join it, the Grispec Trust would be a joint insurance fund (JIF) subject to regulation by the Department of Insurance. She also held that N.J.S.A. 18A:16-13 as then in effect did not authorize district boards of education to provide health benefits through arrangements such as the Grinspec Trust and that such authorization could not be implied from the statutes. She directed that all district boards participating in the Grinspec Trust give notice of their intention to withdraw from it by the end of the 1993-94 school year.

In dismissing this appeal, we rejected the education associations' arguments that P.L. 1995 c. 74 did not cure the legal defect in the Grinspec Trust because the Grinspec Trust uses group experience to establish rates. Rather, we agreed with the position taken by Connecticut General that the new legislation did not in any way qualify its grant of authority for district boards to enter trust arrangements and that by allowing boards to insure their employees jointly, it permitted group rating. On that basis, we dismissed the appeal. We however extended our stay of the Commissioner's directive so as to permit the district boards involved to take such steps as required to comply with the new law without any interruption of coverage.

Connecticut General has now moved for clarification and reconsideration of our decision granting its motion to dismiss its appeal. It requests that we modify the decision to include a finding that it is specifically Section 4 of the new legislation which rendered the controversy moot. That section expanded the authorization granted district boards to contract for health insurance so as to expressly authorize them to do so through trusts.

Initially, we clarify that we made no determination as to whether or not the Grinspec Trust was also a joint insurance fund arrangement when we dismissed the appeal in this matter. Rather, we merely agreed with Connecticut General that there is no question that district boards are now expressly authorized to contract for health insurance by trust arrangements regardless of whether or not a specific trust arrangement is also a joint insurance fund. Consequently, we perceived no need to pass upon the Commissioner's finding in this case that the Grinspec Trust was a joint insurance fund in order to dismiss the appeal.

Our dismissal of the appeal neither imposed on nor excused the district boards involved in the Grinspec Trust from complying with any provisions of the new legislation which would otherwise be applicable to them. The reference to the Commissioner of Education in our decision was a typographical error. We recognize that the legislation places responsibility for any required approvals on the Commissioner of Insurance.

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Board appealed General Fund tax levy reductions in the amount of $200,000 made by governing body following voter rejection of proposed budget on April 20, 1993.

Upon review of the appeal herein to determine whether Board demonstrated that restoration of specific line item reductions was necessary in order to provide a thorough and efficient system of education in the district, Commissioner determined to restore the $200,000 reduction made to the surplus given the additional state aid received by the district as a result of a population composed of 45% plus senior citizens.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

Thomas E. Monahan, Esq. (Gilmore & Monahan), for Petitioner

Edmund Glasner, Esq. (Glasner & Sheehan), for Respondent

This matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education by way of a Petition of Appeal submitted by the Berkeley Township Board of Education (Board) on June 9, 1993 seeking restoration of a $200,000 reduction in the 1993-94 General Fund tax levy imposed by the Mayor and Council of the Township of Berkeley (Township Council) after defeat of the district's budget by the voters of the district at the annual school election held on April 20, 1993. As a result of the aforesaid reduction imposed by the Township Council, the amounts in dispute before the Commissioner are summarized below:

Proposed Tax Levy Adopted by Board	Amount of Tax Levy Certified by Governing Body
$9,697,778	$9,497,778
Amount of Reduction By Governing Body	Amount of Reduction in Dispute Before Commissioner
$ 200,000	$ 200,000

On June 29, 1993 the Township Council filed its Answer to the Petition of Appeal pursuant to the provisions of N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.6 and 7.7. On July 19 the Board filed its Position Statement in support of its appeal and the Township Council filed a response on August 9, 1993. The Township Council filed its Position Statement on July 29, 1993. A response to the Township's Position Statement and a subsequent final summation were filed by the Board, respectively, on August 9 and August 17, 1993. No further papers were filed thus closing the official record.

STANDARD OF REVIEW

In rendering judgment relative to budget appeals, the Commissioner notes that the Constitution of the State of New Jersey requires the Legislature to provide for a thorough and efficient system of education. The Legislature by way of statutory scheme has delegated the responsibility for providing such thorough and efficient system to local boards of education. Additionally, the Legislature pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9, 22-14, 22-17 and 22-37 has authorized the Commissioner of Education to review and decide appeals by boards of education seeking restoration of budgetary reductions imposed by local governing bodies. (See also Board of Education of East Brunswick Township Council of East Brunswick, 48 N.J. 94 (1966) and Board of Education of Deptford Township v. Mayor and Council of Deptford Township, 116 N.J. 305 (1989).)

In reviewing such appeals, the Commissioner must determine whether a district board of education has demonstrated that the amount by which a specific line item reduction imposed by the governing body is necessary for the provision of a thorough and efficient system of education.

BOARD'S POSITION

It is the Board's position that the action of the Township Council in reducing the General Fund tax levy by $200,000 was arbitrary and capricious in that it failed to participate in meaningful consultation as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37. The Board argues that the only meeting held between the parties occurred on May 6, 1993 and was of approximately one hour's duration. At said meeting, the Board presented the Township Council with a list of items totaling $203,189 which, according to the Board, had been inadvertently omitted from the budget. The items submitted by the Board as excerpted from the affidavit of Pellegrino W. Goione, Acting Superintendent, were as follows:

> (1) In the Account: Operation and Maintenance of Plant Services, there had been the omission of a contractual obligation for garbage removal, the cost of which was $30,500.00.
> (2) In the Account: Instruction, provision had to be made for the reinstatement of a substance awareness coordinator position at a cost of $50,000.00.
>
> (3) In the Account: Attendance, there had been an omission for the costs associated with occupational therapists and physical therapists, resulting in a shortage of monies needed to pay for occupational therapy and physical therapy for the students in the amount of $32,389.00.
> (4) In the Account: Tuition, it was anticipated that the cost would be $95,000.00. There were actually five placements at a total cost of $121,900.00 resulting in a shortage of $26,900.00.
> (5) In the Account: Tuition, $56,000.00 was budgeted but there were placements requiring the expenditure of $91,400.00 resulting in a shortage of $35,400.00.
> (6) In the Account: Instruction, $219,900.00 was budgeted for Kindergarten staff. As a result of Kindergarten registration, it was necessary to project one additional teacher because of the additional Kindergarten students resulting in a shortage of $28,000.00. (Affidavit, at pp. 2, 3)

After said presentation, it is the Board's contention that the Township Council terminated the meeting without consideration of the items presented and distributed a pretyped copy of a letter setting forth its intent to reduce the tax levy by $200,000. The contents of said letter which contains the Township's reasons for the reduction are set forth below:

> Berkeley Township School Board May 6, 1993 > Negotiating Team
>
> Subject: Return of Surplus Monies to the Taxpayers of Berkeley Township without impacting on the quality education of the Children of Berkeley Township.
>
> 1. Last year's Negotiating Team played hard ball with the Township Council and finally after many, many, meetings and threatening to spend Legal Fees in appeals to the State, gave us an $80,000 cut to Berkeley Township taxpayers.
> As a result, the School System had a $960,000.00 surplus this year. The Cap this year was 6.75% higher than last year's budget and you are spending $750,000.00 over last year's budget.
>
> $360,000.00 of this year's surplus is being used to get to Cap.
> 2. Current surplus is over $500,000.00 and normally $700,000.00 to $900,000.00 dollars in surplus is generated every year. If you only generate $500,000.00 surplus this year, you will experience a surplus of over a Million dollars.
> 4. Therefore, under the above conditions, the following are standing firm and requesting $220,000.00 to be returned, from surplus monies, to the Taxpayers of Berkeley Township. (Beekman Affidavit, Exhibit A)

In the Board's view the failure to discuss the items brought to the Township Council's attention by the Board's representatives, as well as the distribution of a previously prepared position statement, supports a determination that the Township Council's actions were arbitrary and capricious and not based upon educational considerations. The Board further contends that the arbitrary nature of the Township Council's actions are further buttressed by the unwillingness to meet again unless a particular Board member who had voted against the budget was present, a demand rejected by the Board as being an intrusion on its prerogative of determining the composition of its representatives.

The Board further iterates that the Township Council made no finding of fact nor did it identify specific areas of reduction or file a statement of reasons at the time such reductions were made.

Finally, the Board argues that its surplus at the time of budget preparation was $507,770 for a budget in the amount of $12,315,739, well within the permissible limit to be maintained for emergencies and catastrophies as presented by the Commissioner. The Board points out that the $203,000 in inadvertent omissions from the budget will further reduce the availability of surplus to meet unforeseen contingencies.

TOWNSHIP'S POSITION

The Township Council for its part denies that it failed to participate in meaningful consultation. It contends that it met with Board representatives on three occasions and that it submitted the pre-typed May 6 letter to the Board only after it became convinced that the Board was unwilling to negotiate.

The Township Council further contends that the alleged omission of over $200,000 from the budget is a subterfuge. It is the Township Council's position that the $200,000 reduction in the tax levy will not jeopardize educational goals and that the letter of May 6, 1993 sets forth its reason for such reduction. It further points out that the reference to tax consequences to the taxpayers of Berkeley is a legitimate concern that may be considered so long as the budgetary amount provided is sufficient to provide a thorough and efficient system of education. East Brunswick, supra

Finally, the Township Council contends that the Board will have over $360,000 in funds available to it in surplus as well as an additional amount of state school aid of $383,240.

COMMISSIONER'S DECISION

In assessing the arguments raised by the Board in regard to the reductions imposed by the Township Council on the Board's surplus, the Commissioner finds as meritless the Board's argument that the Township failed to meet the requirements of the administrative rules and East Brunswick, supra, and Deptford, supra, insofar as the statement of reasons is concerned. She further determines that the Township Council was in substantial compliance with N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37 as set forth in Board of Education of the Township of Branchburg v. Township Committee of the Township of Branchburg, 187 N.J. Super. 540 (App. Div. 1983).

The record amply supports the fact that the Township Council's letter of May 6, 1993 which was submitted to the Board members in attendance at the meeting of that date clearly indicates that the Township Council viewed the Board's surplus as being excessive and thus constituted a reason for reducing the General Fund tax levy by $200,000. As to whether the said surplus can be reduced as contemplated by the Township Council will be considered by the Commissioner below.

It is further clear that a municipal governing body has the right to consider the total budget including the availability of surplus in making its determination as to what figure need be arrived at in order to ensure a thorough and efficient system of education. Subsequently, the Commissioner has further determined that such determinations by a governing body need not specifically identify line item reductions in arriving at a determination relative to a reduction in surplus, provided the governing body has given due consideration to its obligation to ensure a sufficient levy to meet the constitutional mandate for a thorough and efficient system of education. Board of Education of the Borough of Oakland v. Mayor and Borough Council of the Borough of Oakland, Bergen County, 91 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 21, 1991 S.L.D. 1657

In weighing the need of the Board for the surplus allocation in the instant matter, the Commissioner is mindful of the fact that it is well established that a Board is empowered to maintain a reasonable surplus to meet unforeseen contingencies. Fair Lawn Board of Education v. Mayor and Council of Fair Lawn, 143 N.J. Super. 259 (Law Div. 1976) Further, the Commissioner has consistently held that a 3% surplus for unforeseen contingencies is reasonable. Board of Education of the City of Perth Amboy v. Council of the City of Perth Amboy, Middlesex County, 1987 S.L.D. 2262

A review of the record in the instant matter indicates that the estimated free balance as of June 30, 1993 was $507,770 in a budget of $12,315,739 which amounted to approximately a 4% surplus. A further reduction of such surplus by the $200,000 reduction contemplated by the governing body would have reduced the available surplus to approximately 2.5%, a figure decidedly below the 3% normally considered as necessary by the Commissioner to meet emergencies which may occur during a school year. The equation in this matter, however, has been drastically altered by notification from the New Jersey State Department of Education that the Board would be receiving an additional amount of $383,240 in state aid as a result of a population composed of 45% plus senior citizens. (See letter to Melvin Wyns as part of Board's Response Statement.) Under such circumstances, the Commissioner finds and determines that the Board may sustain a $200,000 reduction in its surplus without doing harm to its ability to provide a thorough and efficient system of education. The Commissioner notes that the Board objects to the introduction by the Township Council of this notification of the additional amount of state aid since this windfall was unknown to it at the time of the preparation of its budget. Notwithstanding the Board's contention, however, the Commissioner's determination must be based upon the information available to her at the time she renders her decision just as the Commissioner would have considered an argument from the Board had its audited free balance proven to be drastically below its estimate.

In conclusion, therefore, the Commissioner finds that the Board has failed in its burden of demonstrating that it cannot sustain a thorough and efficient system of education without the amount by which the Township Council reduced its General Fund tax levy. The reduction of $200,000 is sustained and the amount of tax levy certified for the 1993-94 school year will remain at $9,497,778.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Board appealed General Fund tax levy reductions in the amount of $11,200,000 made by governing body following voter rejection of proposed budget on April 20, 1993.

Upon review of the appeal herein to determine whether Board demonstrated that restoration of specific line item reductions was necessary in order to provide a thorough and efficient system of education in the district, Commissioner determined to restore $1,137,670 for a total General Fund tax levy of $19,394,591 for 1993-94 school purposes.

DECISION

James T. Hundley, Esq. (Hillman, Hundley, Parry & Fallon, P.C.), for Petitioner

Donald L. Beekman, Esq. (Beekman & Missett, P.C.), for Respondent

This matter was opened before the Commissioner on May 27, 1993 through the filing of a Petition of Appeal by the Board of Education of The Township of Neptune (Board) seeking restoration, on the grounds of necessity for a thorough and efficient system of education, of reductions by the Mayor and Township Committee of the Township of Neptune (Committee) in the General Fund tax levy for the 1993-94 school year. These reductions were made pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37 and N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.2(b)2 following voter rejection of the Board's proposed budget on April 20, 1993 and after consultation with the Board as required by law.

The total proposed and certified budgets, as well as the amounts in dispute in this matter, are set forth below:

Proposed Tax Levy Adopted by Board		Amount of Tax Levy Certified by Governing Body
General Fund	$19,456,921	General Fund	$18,256,921

General Fund $1,200,000	General Fund $ 1,200,000

On June 14, 1993 the Committee filed its answer to the Petition of Appeal pursuant to the provisions of N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.6. On June 28, 1993, the Committee submitted a letter stating that it would rely on the reasons for reduction as originally submitted and that the School District surplus, the main thrust of the Committee reduction, should be verified prior to a decision on the appeal. On July 6, 1993, the Board filed its Position Statement. On August 13, 1993, the Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes of the State Department of Education sent a letter to the Committee advising that the regulatory period for the creation of a record in this appeal had expired and that it was being provided a period of five (5) working days from the receipt of that letter to augment its position regarding verification of the surplus figures at issue in this matter. The Committee was further advised that the Board would be provided five (5) working days from the receipt of the Committee's submission to issue a rebuttal to any objections to the surplus calculations. On August 23, 1993, the Committee filed its response that it preferred the surplus funds to be verified by audit but that it believed the unaudited figure of $648,032.92 as surplus after the Committee reduction as identified by the Board is sufficient. It must be noted that the calculations attached to that letter had two errors: 1) The Balance Appropriated as of July 1, 1993 was listed as $1,500,000.00 when the correct amount as per the budget and all other documents is $1,200,000.00; and 2) the Committee reduction is listed as $833.00, although it was subtracted correctly as $833,000.00. On September 1, 1993, the Board responded that the Committee's reduction would result in a surplus of less than 2% and that anticipation of any additional surplus funds prior to audit from the 1992-93 year for the 1993-94 budget is not sound business or budgeting practice. It must be noted that this letter contained two figures for the surplus after the Committee reduction, one of $336,748 and one of $648,032.92. On September 7, 1993, the Committee submitted another letter disputing the Board's position on the percentage of surplus to be maintained. Upon receipt of all papers from both parties, the record of this matter was closed on September 10, 1993. The reductions to the General Fund tax levy and reasons for reductions as determined by the Committee are as follows:

STANDARD OF REVIEW

In rendering judgment relative to budgetary appeals, the Commissioner notes that the Constitution of the State of New Jersey requires the Legislature to provide for a thorough and efficient system of education. The Legislature by way of statutory scheme has delegated the responsibility for providing such thorough and efficient system to local boards of education. Additionally, the Legislature pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9, 22-14, 22-17 and 22-37 has authorized the Commissioner of Education to review and decide appeals by boards of education seeking restoration of budgetary reductions imposed by local governing bodies. (See also Board of Education of East Brunswick Township v. Township Council of East Brunswick, 48 N.J. 94 (1966) and Board of Education of Deptford Township v. Mayor and Council of Deptford Township, 116 N.J. 305 (1989).)

In reviewing such appeals the Commissioner must determine whether a district board of education has demonstrated that the amount by which a specific line item reduction imposed by the governing body is necessary for the provision of a thorough and efficient system of education.

Mindful, then, of the balance to be applied in this standard of review, the Commissioner makes the following determination with respect to the reduction in the General Fund tax levy effectuated by the Committee.

Account		Reduction
11-303	Fund Balance	$833,000

A major issue in this matter was the amount of surplus funds available to the Board at end of the 1992-93 school year. The many documents submitted by both parties listed many different figures as possible free balance. It was also determined that the Board had submitted contradictory information on the surplus funds available. The Position Statement indicated a possible 1992-93 surplus (Funds Available as of June 30, 1993) of $479,642, but the Budget Summary for 1992-93 as of June 30, 1993, submitted by the Board as Exhibit 6, listed the Funds Available as of June 30, 1993 as a negative $479,642. On September 1, 1993, the Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes sent a letter to the Board requesting clarification of the surplus funds issue. A copy of that letter was sent to the Committee. A response was received from the Board on September 10, 1993 acknowledging that the $479,642 listed as the 1992-93 surplus was in error and that the negative $479,642 in Budget Summary was due to Reserve and Clearing Accounts which do not impact the regular budget.

The Board presented an updated calculation of the Fund Balance as of August 31, 1993, beginning with the Audited Fund Balance for Current Expense as of July 1, 1992 of $3,444,748.92. From this amount it deducted $1,200,000 appropriated by the Board for 1993-94, $350,000 appropriated for matching funds for the EDA Grant, and $114,077.15 expected to be the amount of expenditures exceeding revenues in 1992-93. These deductions leave an Unaudited Fund Balance of $1,780,671.77, which would be reduced with the Committee reduction of $833,000 to $947,671.77. In its calculations, the Board neglected to subtract the 1992-93 appropriation of $725,000 from the Audited Fund Balance of July 1, 1992. This reduces the anticipated balance, prior to the Committee reduction, to $1,055,671.77, which is less than 3% of the 1993-94 Current Expense budget.

It has been determined that a surplus fund balance of 3% is reasonable for protection against unforeseen circumstances and/or emergencies. Board of Education of the Township of Branchburg v. Township Committee of the Township of Branchburg, 187 N.J. Super. 540 (App. Div. 1983); Board of Education of the City of Perth Amboy v. Council of the City of Perth Amboy, Middlesex County, 1987 S.L.D. 2262. The Commissioner therefore orders the restoration of the $833,000 reduction.

It must be noted, however, that there is concern about the anticipated deficit spending in 1992-93. If the official 1992-93 audit confirms the over expenditure, the Board will be advised at a later date of any penalty that may be applied because of the deficit.

Account		Reduction
11-000-230-20-339-1	Accountant Fees	$5,000

The Committee's position was that the percentage of increase was disproportionate to usual and customary fees for this area. However, the adjusted amount of $17,000 certified by the Committee is less than the $20,900 spent in 1992-93 for these services according to the June 30, 1993 budget status report submitted by the Board. Also, the Board states that it will be requiring additional services from the accountant in 1993-94 because of the bond referendum scheduled for September 28, 1993. Based on the Board's 1992-93 expenditures and anticipated additional fees for 1993-94, the Commissioner determines that the $5,000 reduction to this account is restored.

11-000-230-20-331	Legal Fees	$10,000

The Committee's position was that the percentage of increase was disproportionate to usual and customary fees for this area. However, the adjusted amount of $53,000 certified by the Committee is less than the $53,700 spent in 1992-93 for these services according to the June 30, 1993 budget status report submitted by the Board. The Board also argues that costs for legal services will increase in 1993-94 because of several legal issues - two pending contested matters, one tenure matter awaiting trial, and an Unfair Labor Practice scheduled for trial in August and September, 1993. Based on these facts, the Commissioner determines that the $10,000 reduction is restored.

11-000-230-20-339	Architect Fees	$5,000

The Committee's position is that the percentage of increase is disproportionate to usual and customary fees for this area. The amount of $30,000 budgeted by the Board, however, is significantly less than the $80,216 spent in 1992-93 according to the June 30, 1993 budget status report submitted by the Board. The Board also states that it will require the services of an architect for roof and building projects approved for 1993-94 and for the referendum scheduled for the 1993-94 school year. Since the provision of safe and healthy school buildings that comply with code requirements is essential to a thorough and efficient educational system, the Commissioner orders the restoration of the $5,000 reduction to this account.

11-000-230-9-340	Substitute Caller	$1,000

The Committee states that the amount budgeted exceeds customary salary increases. The Board submits with its Position Statement Exhibit 11, a contract for these services in the amount of $12,000, which is greater than the $12,000 certified by the Committee. The Board also states that additional funds were budgeted for maintenance of the equipment for this service. The Commissioner orders that the reduction of $1,000 is restored.

11-000-230-20-339-2	Field/Landscape Architect Fees	$10,000

The Committee states that the costs for these services can be included in the referendum. The Board states that it has embarked on a district-wide site improvement project for 1993-94 and that these items are not included in the referendum. The June 30, 1993 budget status report submitted by the Board lists expenditures in 1992-93 of $20,903 for these services. Since there has been extensive work completed in 1992-93 and some site work will also be part of the referendum, the Commissioner sustains the reduction of $10,000.

Account		Reduction
11-000-230-20-339-3	Engineer Services	$7,500

The Committee states that these costs can be included in the referendum. The Board states that it plans to have a district-wide assessment of the district's plumbing, heating, and ventilation systems and that this work is not included in the referendum. The June 30, 1993 budget status report submitted by the Board lists expenditures of $7,500 for these services in 1992-93. Based on this fact, the Commissioner determines that work has already been done in this area and that the Board did not substantiate the need for funds for this service in 1993-94. The Commissioner sustains the reduction of $7,500.

11-000-230-20-890-2	BOE Dues/Travel/Meetings/Conf.	$3,900

The Committee's position is that there should be no additional travel in 1993-94 over the past year. The Board states that it plans to expand the development program for individual Board members in 1993-94. It is noted that board member knowledge and information are essential for effective services to the school district. Also, the amount certified by the Committee is less than the amount expended in 1992-93. Accordingly, the Commissioner orders the restoration of the $3,900 reduction.

11-000-230-20-610-2	Board Computer Supplies	$2,000

The Committee states that no increase is needed for this item over 1992-93. The Board states that it plans to expand the district's new computer system to all individual school sites to assist in site-based management. The Board also states that its expenditures for 1992-93 total $3,784. The amount of $7,000 certified by the Committee is almost double the amount spent in 1992-93. Accordingly, the Commissioner sustains the reduction of $2,000.

Account		Reduction
11-000-230-20-890-1	Board Member Other Expenses	$5,860

The Board accepts the reduction of $5,860 and the Commissioner sustains this reduction.

11-000-230-20-590	Election Expenses	$7,000

The Committee states that the Board should hold elections during regular election dates. The Board is planning to hold a separate bond referendum during 1993-94. A special separate election is sometimes advisable and is provided for in statute. Based on the 1992-93 election costs of $5,965 as submitted by the Board and the plan for a special election in 1993-94, the Commissioner orders the restoration of the $7,000 reduction in this account.

11-000-230-9-890	Supt. Dues/Travel/Meetings/Conf.	$2,500

The Committee states that travel should be limited to the 1991-92 level. The Board states that the amount expended in 1992-93 was $10,006. The budgeted figure for 1993-94 was $10,000. Restricting expenditures to a level of two years prior does not seem reasonable and the Board has demonstrated fiscal constraint with no increase in this account over the prior year. The Commissioner therefore orders the restoration of the $2,500 reduction.

11-000-230-9-610-4	Superintendent Office Supplies	$8,000

The Committee states that the percentage of increase is disproportionate. The Board responds that the 1992-93 expenditure for this item was $12,401. The Board also states that it plans in 1993-94 to expand the computer support activities for the district.

However, the amount certified by the Committee is an increase of more than 20% over the prior year expenditures. The Commissioner therefore sustains this reduction of $8,000.

Account		Reduction
11-000-230-9-610-5	Superintendent Copier Supplies	$4,000

The Board accepts the reduction of $4,000 and the Commissioner sustains this reduction.

11-000-230-9-610-7	Superintendent Other Expenses	$1,000

The Board accepts the reduction of $1,000 and the Commissioner sustains this reduction.

11-000-230-9-610-8	Superintendent Machine Paper	$ 500

The Board accepts the reduction of $500 and the Commissioner sustains this reduction.

11-000-290-9-590	Printing/Publishing	$5,000

The Committee states that the percentage increase is disproportionate. The Board states that the expenditure for this account in 1992-93 was $39,119 and that it plans to increase the number of newsletters to be published from five to seven. The Committee's position that the percentage increase is disproportionate is inappropriate since there is no increase in this line item over the 1992-93 budgeted amount or expenditure. The Commissioner accordingly orders the restoration of the $5,000 reduction.

11-000-221-9-102-1	Supervisor/Coordinator Salaries	$ 35,180

The Committee states that it provided an allowance for negotiated contractual salaries for this item. The Board states that it is responding to a specific recommendation by the Department of Education External Review Team on supervisory personnel. The Board also submitted the names of the supervisors and 1993-94 salaries which total the $176,000 budgeted. Based on this confirmation of need, the Commissioner orders the restoration of the $35,180 reduction.

11-130-100-2-101-1	Grades 6-8 Teachers Salaries	$177,615

The Committee again states that it provided an allowance for negotiated contractual salaries for this item. The Board responds that additional pupils are anticipated at the Middle School in 1993-94. The Board submitted the names and 1993-94 salaries for the teachers assigned to the Middle School for 1993-94. These salaries total $2,730,700, which is significantly more than the amount certified by the Committee and is only $4,876 less than the amount budgeted. Based on this confirmation of need, the Commissioner orders the restoration of the $177,615 reduction.

11-000-260-1-620-20	High School Heat/Gas	$ 7,300

The Committee states that the amount provided reflects the actual amount spent over last year. The Board responds with three positions: 1) 1992-93 was a year with a mild heating season with only one snow day school closing; 2) Board plans for increased community use of school buildings on evenings and weekends in 1993-94 in response to the External Review Team recommendation for Community Linkages, as noted in Exhibit 14; and 3) a rate increase petition filed by the Board's gas utility, New Jersey National Gas. The Board states that the total expenditures for this line item in 1992-93 was $89,999. The amount of $90,400 certified by the Committee provides an increase of only $400 over that amount. Since appropriate heat in a building is mandated by code during school hours and is essential for the health and welfare of occupants at all times, the Commissioner determines that the positions presented by Board are valid. The Commissioner orders the restoration of the $7,300 reduction.

Account		Reduction
11-000-260-2-620-20	Middle School Heat/Gas	$4,500

Positions presented by the Committee and the Board are the same for this item as for High School Heat/Gas as above. The Commissioner again determines that the Board's positions validate the need for a budgeted increase for this item. However, the amount of $56,000 certified by the Committee provides an increase of almost 10% over the amount of $50,999 spent in 1992-93. The Commissioner therefore sustains the reduction of $4,500.

11-000-260-3-620-20	Ridge Avenue School Heat/Gas	$1,450

Positions presented by the Committee and the Board are the same for this item as for High School Heat/Gas as above. The Commissioner again determines that the Board's positions validate the need for a budgeted increase for this item. However, the amount budgeted by the Board is almost 16% over the amount spent in 1992-93, whereas the amount certified by the Committee provides a more reasonable increase of approximately 7 1/2%. The Commissioner therefore sustains the reduction of $1,450.

11-000-260-4-620-20	Gables School Heat/Gas	$600

Positions presented are again the same as noted above, and it is determined that the Board's positions are valid. The amount certified by the Committee for this item is less than the amount expended in 1992-93. The Commissioner therefore orders the restoration of the $600 reduction.

11-000-260-5-620-20	Green Grove School Heat/Gas	$2,100

Positions presented are again the same as noted above, and it is determined that the Board's positions validate the need for an increase. However, the amount certified by the Committee provides an increase of almost 45% over 1992-93 expenditures. The Commissioner sustains the reduction of $2,100.

11-000-260-7-620-20	SRH School Heat/Gas	$3,800

Positions presented are again the same as noted above, and it is determined that the Board's positions are valid. The amount certified by the Committee is less than the amount expended for this item in 1992-93. The Commissioner therefore orders the restoration of the $3,800 reduction.

11-000-260-8-620-20	Summerfield School Heat/Gas	$2,400

Positions presented are again the same as noted above, and it is determined that the Board's positions are valid. The amount certified by the Committee is again less than the amount expended for this item in 1992-93. The Commissioner therefore orders the restoration of the $2,400 reduction. It should be noted that there was a typographical error in the Board's Position Statement for the original amount budgeted for this item. The amount restored when added to the adjusted amount certified by the Committee equals an original amount of $32,300, which agrees with the Board's last sentence for that item in the Position Statement.

11-000-260-9-620-20	Central Heat/Gas	$1,140

Positions presented are again the same as noted above, and it is determined that the Board's positions are valid. The amount certified by the Committee is the amount expended for this item in 1992-93 and thus provides no increase. The Commissioner therefore orders the restoration of the $1,140 reduction.

Account		Reduction
11-000-260-30-620-20	Maint. Garage Heat/Gas	$225

The Board accepts this reduction and the Commissioner sustains the reduction of $225.

11-000-260-5-490-23	Green Grove School Water/Sewer	$1,390

The Committee states that the amount of $2,860 certified reflects the actual spent over last year. However, the Board states that the amount spent was $4,156, and this is supported by the Budget Summary as of June 30, 1993 submitted by the Board as documentation. The Commissioner orders the restoration of the $1,390 reduction.

11-000-260-1-620-21	High School Electric	$7,300

The Committee states that the amount certified reflects the actual spent over last year. The Board presents two positions: 1) Board plans for increased community use of school buildings on evenings and weekends in response to the External Review Team recommendation for Community Linkages, as noted in Exhibit 14; and 2) the projection of a rate increase by the Board's electric utility, Jersey Central Power & Light. Since appropriate lighting is mandated by code during school hours and is essential for the health and welfare of occupants at all times, the Commissioner determines that the positions presented by the Board are valid to justify the need for a reasonable increase. The amount of $91,800 certified by the Committee provides only a slight increase over the amount of $89,537 spent for this item in 1992-93. The Commissioner therefore orders the restoration of the $7,300 reduction.

11-000-260-2-620-21	Middle School Electric	$8,050

Positions presented by the Committee and the Board are the same for this as for High School electric cited above. The Commissioner again determines that the Board's positions validate the need for a budgeted increase for this item. However, the amount of $100,750 certified by the Committee provides an increase in excess of 13% over the amount of $88,999 spent in 1992-93. The Commissioner therefore sustains the reduction of $8,050.

11-000-260-3-620-21	Ridge Avenue School Electric	$2,350

Positions presented by the Committee and the Board are the same for this item as for High School electric as above. The Commissioner again determines that the Board's positions validate the need for a budgeted increase for this item. The amount certified by the Committee is less than the amount expended for this item in 1992-93. The Commissioner orders the restoration of the $2,350 reduction.

11-000-260-4-620-21	Gables School Electric	$1,650

Positions presented by the Committee and the Board are the same for this item as for High School electric as above. The Commissioner again determines that the Board's positions validate the need for a budgeted increase for this item. However, the amount of $16,500 certified by the Committee provides a significant increase over the amount of $11,961 expended in 1992-93. The Commissioner therefore sustains the reduction of $1,650.

11-000-260-5-620-21	Green Grove School Electric	$2,500

Positions presented by the Committee and the Board are the same for this item as for High School electric as above. The Commissioner again determines that the Board's positions validate the need for a budgeted increase for this item. The amount of $31,250 certified by the Committee provides a minimal increase of over the amount of $30,499 spent in 1992-93. The Commissioner orders the restoration of the $2,500 reduction.

11-000-260-6-620	Ocean Grove Electric	$700

The position presented by the Committee is the same for this as for High School electric as above. The Board cites the projected rate increase by the Board's electric utility, Jersey Central Power & Light. The Board also states it is in the process of installing new exterior security lights at this closed school site. The amount of $500 certified by the Committee is less than the $811 spent for this line item in 1992-93. The Commissioner orders the restoration of the $700 reduction.

11-000-260-7-620-21	SRH School Electric	$1,785

The positions presented by the Committee and the Board are the same for this item as for High School electric as above. The Commissioner again determines that the Board's positions validate the need for a budgeted increase for this item. The amount of $17,850 certified by the Committee is a minimal increase over the $16,999 spent in 1992-93 for this item. The Commissioner orders the restoration of the $1,785 reduction.

11-000-260-8-620-21	Summerfield School Electric	$3,345

The positions presented by the Committee and the Board are the same for this item as for High School electric as above. The Commissioner again determines that the Board's positions validate the need for a budgeted increase for this item. However, the amount of $33,450 certified by the Committee provides an increase of approximately 8% over the expenditures of $30,999 in 1992-93. The Commissioner sustains the reduction of $3,345.

Account		Reduction
11-000-260-9-620-21	Central Electric	$1,950

The Board accepts the reduction of $1,950 and the Commissioner sustains this reduction.

11-000-230-1-530	High School Telephone	$2,000

The Committee states that the percentage of increase is disproportionate. The Board states that it is planning the installation of a new automatic calling system for pupil attendance/tardies and increased use of telephone lines for FAX transmissions between school and central office replacing the former employee messenger service. The Committee's position is confusing and weak since it refers to a percentage of increase and certifies less than the 1992-93 expenditures. The Commissioner orders the restoration of the $2,000 reduction.

11-000-230-2-530	Middle School Telephone	$850

The positions presented by the Committee and the Board are the same as for High School telephone as above. The amount certified by the Committee provides no increase over the amount expended in 1992-93. The Commissioner orders the restoration of the $850 reduction.

11-000-230-3-530	Ridge Avenue School Telephone	$700

The positions presented by the Committee and the Board are the same as for High School telephone as above. Again, the Committee's position is confusing and weak with reference to a percentage of increase since it certified an amount less than the 1992-93 expenditures. The Commissioner orders the restoration of the $700 reduction.

Account		Reduction
11-000-230-4-530	Gables School Telephone	$1,400

The positions presented by the Committee and the Board are the same as for High School telephone as above. Again, the Committee certified an amount less than the amount expended in 1992-93. The Commissioner orders the restoration of the $1,400 reduction.

11-000-230-5-530	Green Grove School Telephone	$1,500

The positions presented by the Committee and the Board are the same as for High School telephone as above. Again, the Committee certified an amount less than the amount expended in 1992-93. The Commissioner orders the restoration of the $1,500 reduction.

11-000-230-7-530	SRH School Telephone	$1,000

The positions presented by the Committee and the Board are the same as for High School telephone as above. Again, the Committee certified an amount less than the amount expended in 1992-93. The Commissioner orders the restoration of the $1,000 reduction.

11-000-230-9-530	Superintendent Telephone	$1,000

The positions presented by the Committee and the Board are the same as for High School telephone as above. Again, the Committee certified an amount less than the amount expended in 1992-93. The Commissioner orders the restoration of the $1,000 reduction.

11-000-260-1-610	High School Custodial Supply	$900

The Committee states that the amount certified reflects the actual amount spent over last year. The Board responds that the amount expended in 1992-93 was $14,995, which is more than the $12,100 certified by the Committee and more than $13,000 budgeted by the Board. The Board also notes the anticipation of equal or increased use of the schools by staff, pupils and community and the possible increase in the cost of custodial supplies. Based on the amount spent in 1992-93 the Committee's position is not valid. The Commissioner orders the restoration of the $900 reduction.

11-000-260-2-610	Middle School Custodial Supply	$1,000

The positions presented by the Committee and the Board are the same as for High School custodial supply as above. Once more, the amount certified by the Committee is less than the amount expended in 1992-93. The Commissioner orders the restoration of the $1,000 reduction. It should be noted that the Board's Position Statement incorrectly lists the Difference (Reduction) as $900. The correct figure is $1,000.

11-000-260-3-610	Ridge Ave. School Custodial Supply	$1,810

The positions presented by the Committee and the Board are the same as for High School custodial supply as above. Again, the amount certified by the Committee is less than the amount expended in 1992-93. The Commissioner orders the restoration of the $1,810 reduction.

11-000-260-4-610	Gables School Custodial Supply	$200

The positions presented by the Committee and the Board are the same as for High School custodial supply as above. The amount of $4,450 certified by the Committee provides an increase of more than 14% over the $3,898 expended in 1992-93. The reduction of $200 is therefore sustained.

Account		Reduction
11-000-260-5-610	Green Grove School Custodial Supply	$2,300

The positions presented by the Committee and the Board are the same as for High School custodial supply as above. The amount certified by the Committee is less than the amount expended in 1992-93. The Commissioner orders the restoration of the $2,300 reduction.

11-000-260-7-610	SRH Custodial Supply	$4,400

The positions presented by the Committee and the Board are the same as for High School custodial supply as above. The amount certified by the Committee is less than the amount expended in 1992-93. The Commissioner orders the restoration of the $4,400 reduction.

11-000-260-8-610	Summerfield Custodial Supply	$2,350

It should be noted that the Board's Position Statement incorrectly identifies this line item as SRH custodial supply. The account number and dollar figures clearly verify this line item as Summerfield Custodial Supply. The positions presented by the Committee and the Board are the same as for High School custodial supply as above. The amount certified by the Committee is less than the amount expended in 1992-93. The Commissioner orders the restoration of the $2,350 reduction.

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Board appealed General Fund tax levy reductions in the amount of $53,559 made by governing body following voter rejection of proposed budget on April 20, 1993.

Upon review of the appeal herein to determine whether Board demonstrated that restoration of specific line item reductions was necessary in order to provide a thorough and efficient system of education in the district, Commissioner determined to restore $51,059 for a total General Fund tax levy of $2,043,211 for 1993-94 school purposes.

David A. Wallace, Esq. (Stiles & Wallace), for Petitioner

Joseph R. Valentino, Esq. (Valentino, Dunne & Stein), for Respondent

This matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education by the filing of a Petition of Appeal on the part of the Board of Education of the Township of Mansfield (Board) on June 8, 1993 appealing the reduction in the 1993-94 budget imposed by the Township Committee of the Township of Mansfield (Township Committee) pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37 after the defeat of the budget by the electorate of the Township at the annual school election held on April 20, 1993. The aforesaid reduction in the amount of $53,559 in the 1993-94 General Fund tax levy was certified by way of a resolution of the Township Committee dated May 3, 1993. That resolution sets forth the following reductions and the rationale for same as follows:

Account 214 - Salaries Other Instructional Staff:

From: $229,202.00 To: $214,643.00

RATIONALE: ACCOUNT 214: With the student population as it exists and the projected enrollment as anticipated, the Township Committee contends that the current part-time Guidance Counselor can adequately support the school sufficiently.

Account 240 - Teaching Supplies:

From: $53,000.00 To: $20,000.00

RATIONALE: ACCOUNT 240: Based on the 1991-92 audited figure and the actual expenses for the 1992-93 year, the Township Committee sees no need for the additional $33,000.00 in that line item.

Account 250 - Other Expenses for Instruction:

From: $38,940.00 To: $34,940.00

RATIONALE: ACCOUNT 250: The Township Committee maintains that the expenditures for supplies which are not consumed in the actual teaching/learning process are adequate at an annual 8% increase.

Account 630 - Heat for Building:

From: $27,500.00 To: $25,500.00

RATIONALE: ACCOUNT 630: Based on the history of the school's fuel oil consumption, the Township Committee maintains that an 11% increase in the price of fuel to be sufficient to cover costs.

TOTAL REDUCTION OF: $53,559.00

As a result of these reductions, the amounts in dispute before the Commissioner are summarized below:

Proposed Tax Levy Adopted by Board	Amount of Tax Levy Certified by Governing Body
$2,045,711	$1,992,152
Amount of Reduction in the Budget by Governing Body	Amount of Reduction in Dispute before Commissioner
$53,559	$53,559

On June 21, 1993 the Township Committee filed its Answer to the Petition of Appeal pursuant to the provisions of N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.6 and 7.7. On July 12, 1993 the Board submitted its Position Statement in support of the Petition of Appeal and the Township Committee filed its Position Statement on July 13, 1993. A rebuttal statement and a final summation were filed by the Board on July 28 and August 17 respectively. No further papers were filed by the Township Committee and the record was closed.

STANDARD OF REVIEW

In rendering judgment relative to budgetary appeals, the Commissioner notes that the Constitution of the State of New Jersey requires the Legislature to provide for a thorough and efficient system of education. The Legislature by way of statutory scheme has delegated the responsibility for providing such thorough and efficient system to local boards of education. Additionally, the Legislature pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9, 22-14, 22-17 and 22-37 has authorized the Commissioner of Education to review and decide appeals by boards of education seeking restoration of budgetary reductions imposed by local governing bodies. (See also Board of Education of East Brunswick Township v. Township Council of East Brunswick, 48 N.J. 94 (1966) and Board of Education of Deptford Township v. Mayor and Council of Deptford Township, 116 N.J. 305 (1989).)

In reviewing such appeals, the Commissioner must determine whether a district board of education has demonstrated that the amount by which a specific line item reduction imposed by the governing body is necessary for the provision of a thorough and efficient system of education.

BOARD'S POSITION

11-000-219-104 - Salaries Other Instructional Staff	$14,559

The Board contends that the Township Committee failed to understand the reason given by the Board for its decision to create the position of a full-time guidance counselor. The Board points out that it does not presently have a part-time counselor, as perceived by the Township Committee, but employs a full-time social worker and a part-time social worker (2 days per week). It is the function of the social worker to work with and counsel classified students but this person is not appropriately certified to counsel regular education students. The full-time social worker does assist in crisis intervention involving non-classified students. The Board asserts that the part-time social worker does social case histories for the child study team referrals and re-evaluations.

It is the intention of the Board to eliminate the part-time social worker position and create a position of full-time guidance counselor in order to serve the needs of non-classified students while turning the full task of social case history development and case management over to its full-time social worker.

It is the Board's contention that increasing enrollment and increases in single parent families and families in crisis within that expanding student population makes it important to have a full-time guidance counselor to provide support for at-risk children.

The Board points out that the $14,559 reduction targeted in this account represents the salary of the part-time social worker and was not intended to represent the funding necessary to extend a part-time position to a full-time one.

11-190-100-616 - Teaching Supplies	$33,000

The Board contends that the rationale provided by the Township Committee in its resolution cutting the expenditures for teaching supplies is predicated upon the assumption that the Board can cover that reduction by utilizing surplus in the 1992-93 accounts to purchase supplies for 1993-94, as it did in 1991-92. The Board, however, explains that the action which it took in 1991-92, namely to expend approximately $19,000 in teaching supplies over and above what was budgeted for that year, was to enable it to expend its unappropriated free balance to bring that figure to a level that would avoid a withholding of state aid for any amount over 7.5% of the budget.

Although the amount expended as of December 2, 1992 was only $11,795 with further expenditures of $7,200 required for the balance of 1992-93, it is the Board's contention that the appropriated $34,000 surplus in the 1992-93 account cannot be used to purchase 1993-94 supplies since that surplus has been appropriated into the 1993-94 budget as free balance. (See Exhibit B, Board's Position Statement.)

It is therefore the Board's contention that reducing the teaching supplies account would prevent it from meeting its obligation to provide a thorough and efficient system of education.

Account 250	Reduction
11-000-218-600 - Other Expenses/Instruction	$4,000

The Board points out that there has been no increase in this account between 1992-93 and 1993-94 despite the Township Committee's contention in its rationale that an 8% increase is adequate.

The Board argues that in-service and workshops are necessary for teacher development and that the Visiting Author Program enhances the reading and language arts program. The Teacher Recognition Program expenditure, the Board argues, bolsters staff morale while the Walk, Jog and Run Program is closely tied to the Physical Education and Health Program.

Account 630	Reduction
11-000-260-620 - Heat for Building	$2,000

The Board argues that the 2% increase recommended by the Township Committee is unrealistic given the unpredictability of both weather and oil prices.

TOWNSHIP COMMITTEE'S POSITION

Initially, the Township Committee argues that a pattern of overbudgeting has predominated in the district citing a growing free balance over the years up to June 30, 1992 as well as increasing General Fund revenues. It points out that the amount derived from taxation in the district has increased by $200,000 since 1990 despite the fact that appropriations from free balance increased to an anticipated $334,646 for the 1993-94 year.

In reviewing the Township Committee's position, the Commissioner notes that its statement outlines nine areas about which it had initial concern. However, since the actual reductions and certification cite only four items, the Commissioner's review will be limited to those items actually reduced by the Township Committee.

11-000-219-104 - Salaries Other Instructional Staff	$14,559

The Township Committee initially contends that its review of existing staffing fails to reveal any part-time guidance counselor position despite the Board's announced intention to create a full-time position by increasing the part-time position to full time.

Despite the increase in enrollment which the Township Committee only accepts arguendo, it points out that the Board's own projections demonstrate that the majority of increases will take place in grades K-3. Based upon the age and grade level of the majority of the increases, the Township Committee does not find any need for guidance counseling services, particularly since the district already employs a school psychologist, a social worker, a full-time child study team director, a LDTC and a part-time guidance counselor.

11-190-100-616 - Teaching Supplies	$33,000

The Township Committee argues that the Board has in recent years been purchasing the upcoming year's teaching supplies out of surpluses from the previous fiscal year citing the Board's actions for the 1992-93 school year when it purchased supplies for that year out of surpluses from the 1991-92 school year. Since the Board budgeted $53,000 for supplies in 1992-93 and only expended approximately $19,000 in 1992-93, the Township Committee saw no need for an additional appropriation of $53,000 in teaching supplies for 1993-94. It therefore reduced the appropriation for 1993-94 by the $33,000 not expended in 1992-93 recommending that the Board continue its practice of purchasing the succeeding year's supplies out of the current year surpluses.

Account 250	Reduction
11-000-218-600 - Other Expenses/Instruction	$4,000

In light of the defeat of the budget by the voters, the Township Committee concluded that certain expenditures which it believed to be unnecessary could be eliminated or reduced in this account as follows:

	From	To
(1) In-service training	$2,000	$1,000
(2) Visiting Author Program	$1,000	0
(3) Class trips	$1,000	$ 500
(4) Teacher Recognition Program	$ 650	$ 150
(5) Professional Workshops	$2,600	$2,100
(6) Class trip (separate line item for 6th grade trip)	$ 500	$ 0

11-000-260-620 - Heat for Building	$2,000

The Township Committee argues that the increase in appropriation for fuel oil in 1993-94 to $27,500 cannot be justified based both upon previous year's actual expenditures and the history of overbudgeting in this area in the past. It points out that actual expenditures have been as follows:

1989-90	$24,327
1991-92	23,070

Appropriations for the above-cited years were:

1989-90	$5,673 over
1990-91	6,061 over
1991-92	5,730 over

In light of the foregoing, it effectuated the reduction of $2,000 in this account.

In summation, the Township Committee points out that it originally considered some $84,559 in reductions but scaled its amount down to the $53,559 contained in its resolution which constitutes approximately 2 1/2% of the overall budget.

COMMISSIONER'S DETERMINATION

The Commissioner has carefully reviewed the arguments as presented by the parties in this matter. Based upon her review and applying the standard prescribed by law and Constitution, the Commissioner renders the following determinations in the accounts indicated below:

11-000-219-104 Salaries Other Instructional Staff	$14,559

The Commissioner finds that the rationale for reduction in this account is entirely without merit. The necessity for guidance services cannot be argued away by merely citing the fact that the students to whom said guidance services are to be provided are too young to require them. In fact, it can be clearly stated without fear of contradiction that early intervention has a more beneficial effect upon children's ability to cope with their problems than attempting to do so when problems have been allowed to fester and grow to the point where they result in "acting out" behavior. Further, the Commissioner would note that the role of child study team members cannot be effectively carried out while bearing the additional burden of assuming the role of providing routine guidance services to the non-classified population.

Finally, it should be pointed out that N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-5(e) requires as one of its elements for the provision of thorough and efficient educational system "Programs and supportive services for all pupils especially those who are educationally disadvantaged or who have special educational needs." (Emphasis supplied)

In light of the foregoing, the Commissioner directs the restoration of the $14,559 by which this account was reduced by the Township Committee.

11-190-100-616 - Teaching Supplies	$33,000

After examining the Board's rationale and its pattern of actual expenditures over the past years with the exception of 1992-93, the Commissioner determines that the Board has met its obligation of demonstrating the necessity for the restoration of the $33,000 by which this account was reduced. The Township Committee has failed to demonstrate that a continuing practice exists for the purchase of the succeeding year's supplies out of current year surplus except for the single year 1992-93. In so determining the Commissioner notes the Board's contention that the $33,000 by which the 1992-93 account for teaching supplies was overbudgeted was used to increase the free balance appropriation for 1993-94. Under said circumstances limiting the Board's actual amount available for teaching supplies in 1993-94 to $20,000 would seriously inhibit the Board's ability to provide a thorough and efficient system of education.

Account 250	Reduction
11-000-218-600 - Other Expenses/Instruction	$ 4,000

In reviewing the Township Committee's argument that the specific items in this account were non-essential, the Commissioner cannot agree with such a conclusion in all instances cited.

Staff development through in-service training is an essential part of a district's role in ensuring that its staff has the necessary tools to provide a thorough and efficient education. Likewise, programs such as the Visiting Author Program and class trips enhance and enrich the learning experience of children and must be considered as necessary to a thorough and efficient education.

The Board's decision to utilize its own funds to uphold the spirit of N.J.S.A. 18A:29A-2 by providing a $500 grant to the district's "teacher of the year" is indeed praiseworthy and should be continued if possible. However, since the State bears ultimate responsibility for ensuring a thorough and efficient system of education and it has seen fit due to fiscal restraints to eliminate any monetary award as part of its teacher recognition program, the Commissioner must conclude that such an expenditure cannot be considered as necessary for the provision of a thorough and efficient system of education.

The class trip funds being mandated by law (N.J.S.A. 18A:36-21) to provide funds for students unable to afford such trips are deemed essential by the Commissioner.

In light of the foregoing, the Commissioner determines that $3,500 of the amount by which this account was reduced be restored: in-service $1,000, workshops $500, Visiting Author Program $1,000, Class trips $1,000).

The Commissioner likewise determines that the $500 reduction in the teacher recognition program be sustained.

11-000-260-620 - Heat for Building	$2,000

The Commissioner finds that the Board has failed to meet its burden of demonstrating that the $2,000 by which this account was reduced would impede its ability to heat the building. The figures presented by the Township Committee indicating past years' expenditures would indicate the Board's ability to live within the parameters established by the Township Committee. The $2,000 reduction is therefore sustained.

SUMMARY

Account	Reduction	Sustained	Restored
214 - Salaries/Other Instruct.	$14,559	-0-	$14,559
240 - Teaching Supplies	$33,000	-0-	$33,000

630 - Heat	$ 2,000	$2,000	-0-
Total	$53,559	$2,500	$51,059

The Commissioner directs the Warren County Board of Taxation to strike an additional tax levy of $51,059 in its General Fund so as to afford the Board of Education of Mansfield Township a total General Fund account of $2,043,211 for the operation of its schools for the 1993-94 school year.

SYNOPSIS

Board appealed General Fund tax levy reductions in the amount of $89,718 made by governing body following voter rejection of proposed budget on April 20, 1993.

Upon review of the appeal herein to determine whether Board demonstrated that restoration of specific line item reductions was necessary in order to provide a thorough and efficient system of education in the district, Commissioner determined to restore $79,718 for a total General Fund tax levy of $3,827,881 for 1993-94 school purposes.

DECISION

Frank M. McDonough, Esq. (Kenney, Gross & McDonough), for Petitioner

John G. Colannino, Esq., for Borough of Atlantic Highlands, Respondent

Gregory S. Baxter, Esq. (Caruso & Baxter, P.A.), for Borough of Highlands, Respondent

This matter was opened before the Commissioner on June 2, 1993 through the filing of a Petition of Appeal by the Board of Education of the Henry Hudson Regional School District (Board) seeking restoration, on the grounds of necessity for a thorough and efficient education, of reductions by the Mayor and Borough Council of the Borough of Atlantic Highlands (Atlantic Highlands) and the Mayor and Borough Council of the Borough of Highlands (Highlands) in the General Fund tax levy for the 1993-94 school year. These reductions were made pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37 and N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.2(b)2 following voter rejection of the Board's proposed budget on April 20, 1993 and after consultation with the Board as required by law.

The total proposed and certified budgets, as well as the amounts in dispute in this matter, are set forth below:

Proposed Tax Levy Adopted By Board of Education		Amount of Tax Levy Certified by Governing Bodies
General Fund	$3,837,881	General Fund	$3,748,163
Amount of Reduction By Governing Bodies		Amount of Reduction in Dispute
General Fund	$89,718	General Fund	$89,718

On June 23, 1993, Atlantic Highlands filed its Answer to the Petition of Appeal, and on June 25, 1993 Highlands filed its Answer to the Petition of Appeal, both pursuant to the provisions of N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.6. On July 13, 1993, the Board filed its Position Statement. On July 29, 1993, Atlantic Highlands filed its Position Statement. On August 16, 1993, Highlands filed its Position Statement. However, due to the fact that it was received more than three weeks past due it was deemed untimely filed and any replies generated from it were not considered. The Board filed its Response to the Atlantic Highlands Position Statement on August 6, 1993. No other responses or summations were received, and the record was closed on August 21, 1993.

The reductions to the General Fund tax levy and reasons for reductions as determined by Highlands are as follows:

Description		Reduction
1.	Wage freeze on all non-teaching positions (line #'s 230-100, 240-103, and 290-100)	$ 32,718
2.	Reduce employee benefits cost of $500 per employee by exiting the state [plan]	$ 25,000
3.	Consolidate clerical positions Administration, Telephone and Telegraph and fixed charges - Administration (100 series)	$ 22,000
4.	Remove from surplus	10,000
	Total	$ 89,718

The resolution submitted by Atlantic Highlands lists only the total reduction of $89,718 and does not specify line item or rationale. Attached to that resolution is a memo from the Finance Committee of the Atlantic Highlands Council to the Mayor and Council. That memo lists the following reductions:

Description	Reduction
* Eliminate and roll back Administrative raises (acct 100) $654,364 @ 5% = $32,718	$32,718
* Consolidate secretary position (acct 100)	22,000
* Insurance savings anticipated (acct 100) (new carrier)	25,000
* Additional surplus (current balance approx $220,000)	10,000
Total	$89,718

Concerns expressed in that letter regarding current financial constraints of taxpayers, while important, are not relevant in the determination of sufficient funds as required by statute to provide a thorough and efficient education. (See Board of Education of East Brunswick Township v. Township Council of East Brunswick, 48 N.J. 94 (1966).)

STANDARD OF REVIEW

In rendering judgment relative to budgetary appeals, the Commissioner notes that the Constitution of the State of New Jersey requires the Legislature to provide for a thorough and efficient system of education. The Legislature by way of statutory scheme has delegated the responsibility for providing such thorough and efficient system to local boards of education. Additionally, the Legislature pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9, 22-14, 22-17 and 22-37 has authorized the Commissioner of Education to review and decide appeals by boards of education seeking restoration of budgetary reductions imposed by local governing bodies. (See also East Brunswick, supra, and Board of Education of Deptford Township v. Mayor and Council of Deptford Township, 116 N.J. 305 (1989).)

In reviewing such appeals the Commissioner must determine whether a district board of education has demonstrated that the amount by which a specific line item reduction imposed by the governing body is necessary for the provision of a thorough and efficient system of education.

It is noted that respondents' failure to file documents within the time period established by code and the failure of one respondent to include the required rationale for reduction in the Council's resolution are critical errors in procedure. However, this does not relieve the Board of its obligation to demonstrate that the restorations it seeks are necessary for a thorough and efficient education.

Mindful, then, of the balance to be applied in this standard of review, the Commissioner makes the following determination with respect to the reduction in the General Fund tax levy effectuated by the Councils of Atlantic Highlands and Highlands.

	Reduction
Wage Freeze/Reduction of raises for all non-teaching/administrators	$32,718

It is not possible to identify specifically the positions to which the Councils were referring for this reduction. The line numbers cited by Highlands do not provide the detail to determine how the reduction was calculated. The memo attached to the Atlantic Highlands resolution provides a method of calculation, $654,364 @ 5% = $32,718, but it does not specify the source of the $654,364 figure. Again, the account listing, account 100, does not provide necessary detail for identification of positions.

The Board, in its Position Statement, cites the lack of specificity noted above and states that the positions included in the listed line items encompass employees whose terms and conditions of employment are secured by negotiated contracts. Additionally, Atlantic Highlands in its Position Statement lists reductions to equal the total tax levy reduction of $89,718, but these items and dollar amounts do not agree with the memo attached to its resolution. There is also no item or combination of items that equals the $32,718 listed as the reduction for administrative or non-teaching positions. The Statement lists the elimination of the Substance Abuse Specialist, the reduction to ten months for the Substance Abuse Coordinator, and hiring one aide rather than two. Atlantic Highlands states that the student population of the district does not support the need for these positions and that grant monies received for substance abuse services could be used for the one counselor and other programs. The Position Statement submitted by Highlands also does not agree with the reductions listed in its resolution, and, in fact, only proposes in the area of personnel the hiring of only one new aide for a reduction of $7,372.

Based on the Board's statement regarding contractual positions and the lack of specificity and consistency in submissions from Atlantic Highlands and Highlands, the Commissioner orders the restoration of the $32,718 reduction.

	Reduction
Reduce Employee Benefits Cost/ Insurance Savings Anticipated	$25,000

Atlantic Highlands, in the memo attached to its resolution, and Highlands, in its resolution, both list this $25,000 reduction as an insurance cost savings. Again, however, the Position Statements from the two respondents did not agree with the initial resolutions. In its Position Statement, Atlantic Highlands proposes a $10,000 reduction from savings in benefits. Highlands totally eliminates this reduction from its Position Statement.

The Board does agree that it negotiated for a change in medical insurance carriers and will achieve a savings in costs of $27,000 over the amount budgeted in 1993-94. The Board argues that these monies are needed to maintain and operate an aging fleet of school buses and that it has the authority to transfer funds from one account to another as needed.

The Board is correct that during the school year it has the right to transfer funds from one line item to another, but it is not a valid defense against a reduction to argue that the monies are not needed where reduced but are needed in another budget area. This issue is strongly impacted, however, by the inconsistency of Atlantic Highlands and the apparent total reversal in position by Highlands on this reduction.

Based on these facts, the Commissioner orders the restoration of the $25,000 reduction.

Consolidate clerical/secretary positions	$22,000

Again, the Position Statements submitted by Atlantic Highlands and Highlands do not agree with the initial resolutions/ memo. Atlantic Highlands in its Position Statement does not refer to any secretarial or clerical positions but rather recommends the elimination of the bookkeeper at a savings of $18,275. It argues that the business administrator is responsible for the books. In its Position Statement, Highlands does not include any secretarial or clerical reductions. The Board argues that there is a need for all secretarial positions and that some are already shared between offices.

Based on the material submitted, the Commissioner orders the restoration of the $22,000 reduction.

Surplus	$10,000

The Position Statements from both Atlantic Highlands and Highlands do not agree with the initial resolutions/memo submitted by the two governing bodies. Atlantic Highlands in its Position Statement increased the amount of reduction from surplus to $15,903. Highlands increased the amount of surplus reduction in its Position Statement to $34,000. The Board states in its Petition of Appeal that the district budget surplus is 4.1% and is necessary to ensure the district can address emergency situations. In the Board's Position Statement, it cites the surplus funds as only 2%. In the Board's Response, it again refers to the surplus as below 3%. It refers to a surplus figure of $84,164, but the basis for the calculation is incorrect. For that figure, it used the audited July 1, 1991 balance of $575,032. It should have used the audited June 30, 1992 figure of $546,679. Deducting from that amount the Balance Appropriated of $241,690 for 1992-93 and the proposed Balance Appropriated of $101,066 for 1993-94, the estimated surplus for Current Expense would be $203,923, or just over 4.2%. The calculation for the General Fund, including both Current Expense and Capital Outlay, results in an estimated surplus of $262,115, or just over 5.4%. It has been determined that a reasonable surplus is a necessary item for protection against unforeseen circumstances and emergencies. It has also been determined that a surplus of 3% is reasonable. Board of Education of the Township of Branchburg v. Township Committee of the Township of Branchburg, 187 N.J. Super. 540 (App. Div. 1983); Board of Education of the City of Perth Amboy v. Council of the City of Perth Amboy, Middlesex County, 1987 S.L.D. 2262. The Board's surplus is within that range. The Commissioner, therefore, sustains the $10,000 reduction.

Thus, for the reasons set forth above, the Commissioner determines to restore $79,718 of the $89,718 reduction appealed herein, as summarized below:

Item	Restoration
1. Wage freeze/reduction of raises for all non-teaching/administrators	$ 32,718
2. Reduce Employee Benefits/Insurance Savings Anticipated	25,000
3. Consolidate clerical/secretary positions	22,000
Total	$ 79,718

Accordingly, the Monmouth County Board of Taxation is directed to make the necessary adjustment as set forth below to reflect a total of $3,827,881 to be raised in tax levy for the General Fund for the Henry Hudson Regional School District for the 1993-94 school year:

	General Fund
Original Tax Levy	$3,837,881
Reduction	89,718
Tax Levy After Reduction	3,748,163
Restoration	79,718
Tax Levy After Restoration	$3,827,881

IT IS SO ORDERED.

DECISION

Barbara E. Riefberg, Esq. (Jeffrey I. Baron, P.A.), for Petitioner

Robert L. Messick, Esq., for Respondent

This matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education by way of a Petition of Appeal filed on May 27, 1993 by the Board of Education of the Borough of Lindenwold (Board) seeking restoration to its General Fund tax levy of $314,628 which was cut from its proposed 1993-94 school year budget by the Borough Council of Lindenwold (Council) upon defeat of same by the voters at the annual school election held on April 20, 1993. The aforesaid reduction was imposed by the Council after conferring with the Board in accordance with the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37. As a result of the reductions the amounts in dispute before the Commissioner are summarized below:

Proposed General Fund tax levy adopted by the district board of education	Amount of General Fund tax levy certified by governing body
Current Expense $4,564,228.00	Current Expense $4,249,600.00

Amount of reduction in the budget by governing body

Current Expense $314,628.00

Amount of reduction in dispute before the Commissioner

Current Expense $314,628.00

The aforesaid General Fund tax levy was established by the Council by imposing the following line item reductions:

LINE ITEM		AMOUNT REDUCED

Reason:	Two (2) new Assistant Principals are not needed, existing Principals at schools #4 and #5 can perform duties as they have been.
155, 156 & 157.	Salaries of Teachers	$85,491.00
Reason:	The following new positions are not needed: Two (2) full time teachers, one-half time computer teacher, one one-half time art teacher and one one-fifth time phys ed teacher. The present staff is adequate.
465.	Salaries, Secretarial and Clerical Assistants	$ 6,480.00
Reason:	Two (2) new positions not needed, present staff adequate.

472.	Salaries, Operation of Plant Services	$18,568.00
Reason:	New position not needed, present staff adequate.
427.	Total Special Ed.	$34,649.00
Reason:	The plan for a new psychologist not needed. Present person handling present needs. (Specific special education line item cannot be identified)
506.	Other Employee Benefits	$34,000.00
Reason:	Reduction of benefits required due to the elimination of the above positions.

LINE ITEM		AMOUNT REDUCED
405.	Total Tuition - Undistributed Expenditures	$ 50,000.00

On June 11, 1993 the Council filed its Answer to the Petition of Appeal. Position Statements of the parties were filed on June 28 and July 21, respectively, by the Board and the Council. No further filings were submitted and the record was formally closed.

STANDARD OF REVIEW

In rendering judgment relative to budget appeals, the Commissioner notes that the Constitution of the State of New Jersey requires the Legislature to provide for a thorough and efficient system of education. The Legislature by way of statutory scheme has delegated the responsibility for providing such thorough and efficient system to local boards of education. Additionally, the Legislature pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9, 22-14, 22-17 and 22-37 has authorized the Commissioner of Education to review and decide appeals by boards of education seeking restoration of budgetary reductions imposed by local governing bodies. (See also Board of Education of East Brunswick Township v. Township Council of East Brunswick, 48 N.J. 94 (1966) and Board of Education of Deptford Township v. Mayor and Council of Deptford Township, 116 N.J. 305 (1989).)

In reviewing such appeals, the Commissioner must determine whether a district board of education has demonstrated that the amount by which a specific line item reduction imposed by the governing body is necessary for the provision of a thorough and efficient system of education.

BOARD'S POSITION

Initially, the Board contends that the Statement of Reasons provided by the Council is inadequate in that it contains conclusional statements without analysis of educational factors. The Board offers the following responses to the Council's reductions:

Line Item	Reduction
463. Salaries Principals/Asst. Principals	$78,960

The Board argues that it requires two new assistant principals in schools #4 and #5, its two largest schools. Factors making such increase necessary include increasing enrollment and attendant disciplinary, supervisory, scheduling and transportation problems.

In addition to increased enrollment, the Board argues that increased staff has imposed great difficulty upon the principals of these two schools to meet their mandated evaluation requirements. It is the Board's intention to use the assistant principals to handle all problems of discipline, safety, transportation, attendance, scheduling and supervision of the lunch program in order to free the principals to carry out the primary task of staff evaluation and supervision. The Board points out in its Growth and Capacity Study that both of the schools involved have student enrollments of over 600 and are projected to increase in size. (See Exhibit C, Board's Position Statement.)

155, 156 & 157. Salaries of Teachers	$85,491

The reductions in these line items represent the salaries of 2 full-time classroom teachers, one half-time computer teacher, one half-time art teacher and a one-fifth time adaptive physical education teacher.

The Board points out that it will have at least 90 second graders at its School #4. With three second grade teachers at that school and without an additional teacher the Board projects second grade classes with 30 pupils or more should new pupils register. Since many of the pupils in these classes will be mainstreamed handicapped pupils requiring extra attention, the Board urges the restoration of this position.

The half-time computer teacher is required due to increasing enrollment and the need to conduct additional computer classes. The Board argues that its current computer teacher also coordinates the program and is thus unable to commence classes below the fourth grade. The Board contends that the addition of a half-time computer teacher will enable it to extend computer instruction to lower grades and to train other teachers in how to utilize computers for instruction.

The one-fifth adaptive physical education teacher is needed to lighten the load of the existing teacher who must provide services to 38 preschool handicapped students during one fifth of that person's time. The Board contends that the increase of one day of adaptive physical education time will save money currently spent on occupational therapy.

The Board argues that an additional Basic Skills teacher is needed due to increased enrollment and the special needs of students in kindergarten and pre-first grade. It is the Board's contention that its current staff cannot provide the time necessary to assist these pupils in the math, reading and developmental skills necessary to permit them to function in larger class settings.

Finally, the Board seeks an additional part-time art teacher position which was eliminated three years ago, based on increased enrollment and the fact that pupils receive art instruction from a certified art teacher only once every two weeks.

Line Item	Reduction
465. Salaries, Secretarial & Clerical Assistants	$ 6,480

The Board contends that two floating secretarial aides are necessitated at School #4 due to increased enrollment and the very high transient rate of pupils. The Board contends that the increased enrollment, staffing and rate of transciency create paperwork which cannot be presently handled by existing staff.

Line Item	Reduction
515. Salaries, Food Service	$ 6,480

The Board contends one new cafeteria aide position is needed at School #4 and School #5 due to increased enrollment and to provide supervision both in the cafeteria and the playground during 5 different lunch periods.

Line Item	Reduction
472. Salaries, Operation of Plant Services	$18,568

The Board argues that an additional person is needed to carry out repairs in a timely fashion. It also contends that the additional person will save money presently expended for outside contractors.

427. Total Special Education	$34,649

The Board avers that its present psychologist primarily counsels handicapped pupils and does not have time for providing counseling services to regular students. It is the Board's contention that there is a current waiting list of students to receive counseling services. At the time of the preparation of the 1993-94 budget, the Board offered the following statistics in support of its need for additional counseling and psychological services:

On-going Counseling - 46
Monitoring - 17
Waiting List - 15

Line Item	Reduction
506. Other Employee Benefits	$34,000

This reflects the amount by which employee benefits would be reduced if the staffing reductions imposed by the Council were approved. The Board having argued for the maintenance of the positions contends this amount must be restored.

Line Item	Reduction
405. Total Tuition-Undistributed Expenditures	$50,000

This line item involves monies budgeted for outside tuition. The Board argues that the amount budgeted for 1993-94 is necessary based upon the current number of students placed outside the district, the number being currently evaluated and the potential for student transfers into the district requiring special placement. The Board projects 47 pupils to be variously placed at a total cost of $824,047. (See Exhibit K, Board's Position Statement.) It contends that the reduction imposed by the Council would be devastating since it would leave the district with only $772,749 to meet the above projected cost.

COUNCIL'S POSITION

Line Item	Reduction
463. Salaries, Principals/Asst. Principals	$78,960

The Council argues that the Board's projected enrollment increase represents a 2.5% growth while the addition of two new vice principals boosts the non-teaching administrative staff from 6 to 8, a 25% increase.

The Council argues that no matter how busy the school day of its principals are, the nature of our times with layoffs and retrenchments requires concessions and longer hours on the part of these persons employed.

Line Item	Reduction
155, 156 & 157. Salaries of Teachers	$85,491

As in its argument related to the vice principals, the Council argues that the slight increase in enrollment does not justify an $85,491 increase in new teachers' salaries.

At present, the Board employs 97 teachers to serve 1,426 students, a ratio of 1 to 14.7. The 40-pupil increase projected by the Board, argues the Council, raises that ratio to 15.1 students per teacher. The Council argues that the increase can be absorbed without increasing class size more than one child per class or by restructuring existing classes.

Line Item	Reduction
465. Salaries, Secretarial and Clerical Assistants	$ 6,480

The Council claims its elimination of the two clerical aide positions is based upon a lack of evidence that the present workload justifies the new positions.

Line Item	Reduction
515. Salaries, Food Services	$ 6,480

As in the above account, the Council argues that the "modest" projected increase in enrollment does not justify the increased number of food service workers.

Line Item	Reduction
472. Salaries, Operation of Plant Services	$18,568

The Council argues that there has been no increase in the number of buildings or size of the plant which had been previously serviced with 13 staff members. The Council contends that the 2.5% increase in enrollment cannot justify the increase in custodial staff.

427. Total Special Education	$34,649

The Council simply contends that the present staffing in the psychologist area is sufficient and that an additional person is not needed.

Line Item	Reduction
506. Other Employee Benefits	$34,000

The elimination of new positions imposed by the Council make this amount for employee benefits unnecessary.

Line Item	Reduction
405. Total Tuition-Undistributed Expenditures	$50,000

The Council contends that this reduction is justified since the Board advised that the number of pupils for which tuition payment is required has decreased by the above amount.

COMMISSIONER'S DECISION

The following represents the Commissioner's determination line item by line item:

Line Item	Reduction
463. Salaries, Principals/Asst. Principals	$78,960

The Board has insufficiently documented its case for additional administrative assistance at the two schools in question. While the Commissioner is sympathetic to the importance of the principal's role in evaluation of staff and the manner in which other required tasks detract from that most important function, the Board has not sufficiently met its burden of proof of demonstrating the necessity of these two new positions to the detriment of being able to provide a thorough and efficient system of education. The reduction of $78,960 is sustained.

Line Items	Reduction

The Commissioner has carefully considered the arguments of the parties as they relate to this area. Based upon that review, the Commissioner determines that the Board has demonstrated the necessity for the additional teacher staffing requested. In so doing, the Commissioner notes that the arguments put forth by the Council lack an understanding of the educational implications of an increase of 40 pupils in enrollment. One cannot merely look at the overall ratio of pupils to teachers and obtain a true understanding of the impact since many persons classified as teachers do not instruct what might be classified as a full complement of pupils. Further, it should be clear that an increase in 40 pupils cannot necessarily be accommodated by assigning one to each classroom.

The Commissioner therefore finds and determines that the Board has met its burden of demonstrating the need for the additional personnel requested under the above-cited line items and directs that the $85,491 reduction in this area be restored.

Line Item	Reduction
465. Salaries, Secretarial and Clerical Assistants	$ 6,480

The Board has failed to demonstrate that the absence of the two secretarial aides are necessary for a thorough and efficient system of education. The Commissioner finds that no convincing justification is provided other than the mere fact that enrollment has increased and therefore directs that the $6,480 reduction be sustained.

Line Item	Reduction
515. Salaries, Food Service	$ 6,480

As in the line item above, the Commissioner finds insufficient basis upon which to determine that the two cafeteria aide positions are necessary for a thorough and efficient system of education. While the Board argues the desperation of its need, it provides no data as to why it cannot continue under its 1992-93, staffing, other than the fact that the two schools have enrollments of 600 students with 5 lunch periods. It offers no data as to the number of aides presently employed, whether it has an open or closed lunch program, nor the number of pupils per lunch period.

The reduction of $6,480 in this line item is sustained.

Line Item	Reduction
472. Salaries, Operation of Plant Services	$18,568

The Commissioner finds and determines that the Board has failed to present compelling evidence that would justify the restoration of funds in this line item. While it argues for this new position on the basis of presumed savings on contractors' services, it offers no evidence of such savings nor does it provide information as to why the existing staff is insufficient to meet its needs in providing a safe and healthful environment for its students. The reduction of $18,568 is sustained.

427. Total Special Education	$34,649

The Board has demonstrated its need for additional psychological counseling. The case load projected both for those receiving counseling and those being monitored, as well as the existence of a waiting list, are sufficient to demonstrate the need in this area. Therefore, the Commissioner directs the restoration of $34,649 in this line item.

Line Item	Reduction
506. Other Employee Benefits	$34,000

The Commissioner finds it difficult to estimate the amount of benefits which must be restored in this area based upon those employee salary reductions sustained and restored. However, assuming that only the full-time and half-time employees are eligible for such benefits, the Commissioner has calculated that 8 new positions would have been eligible for such benefits. Therefore, since the Commissioner restored 2 full-time teachers, one half-time computer teacher, one half-time art teacher and a school psychologist, the benefits line item must be increased by 5 positions. Based upon 8 positions eligible for benefits requested by the Board, the Commissioner has calculated the benefits for each position to be $4,250 per position. Thus, the Commissioner directs that $21,250 be restored and that $12,750 in reductions be sustained.

405. Total Tuition-Undistributed Expenditures	$50,000

While the Council contends that it has been informed that the number of pupils requiring tuition payments has decreased, the Board's projections presented as Exhibit K of its Position Statement indicate a need for tuition payments actually greater than the amount for which it originally budgeted. The Council, for its part, does not provide any basis for projecting a reduction of $50,000 in this line item. Therefore, in recognition of the great uncertainties which are part of the budgetary projections in the area of tuition requirements, the Commissioner directs the restoration of the $50,000 by which the Council reduced this line item.

SYNOPSIS

Board appealed General Fund tax levy reductions in the amount of $884,977 made by governing body following voter rejection of proposed budget on April 20, 1993.

Upon review of the appeal herein to determine whether Board demonstrated that restoration of specific line item reductions was necessary in order to provide a thorough and efficient system of education in the district, Commissioner determined to restore $794,977 for a total General Fund tax levy of $15,736,828 for 1993-94 school purposes.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

William R. Nunno, Esq., for Petitioner

Paul S. Barbire, Esq., for Respondent

This matter was opened before the Commissioner by way of a Petition of Appeal filed on June 1, 1993 by the Board of Education of the Borough of Lodi (Board) seeking restoration, on the grounds of necessity for a thorough and efficient system of education, of the reduction imposed by the Mayor and Council of the Borough of Lodi (Borough) after defeat of the 1993-94 budget by the citizens of Lodi at the annual school election held in April 20, 1993. These reductions were made pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37 and N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.2(b)2. The total proposed General Fund tax levy as well as the amount by which it was reduced and the amount in dispute are set forth below:

Proposed Tax Levy Adopted by Board	Amount of Tax Levy Certified by Governing Body
$15,826,828	$14,941,851
Amount of Reduction in the Tax Levy by Governing Body	Amount of Reduction in Dispute before Commissioner
$884,977	$884,977

On June 11, 1993 the Borough filed its Answer pursuant to the provisions of N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.6 and 7.7. The Board filed its Position Statement in support of its Petition of Appeal on June 29, 1993 and on July 13, 1993 the Borough filed its written submission in support of its enacted reductions. The Board filed a combined Final Summation and Reply Position on July 23, 1993 at which point the record was closed.

STANDARD OF REVIEW

In rendering judgment relative to budgetary appeals, the Commissioner notes that the Constitution of the State of New Jersey requires the Legislature to provide for a thorough and efficient system of education. The Legislature by way of statutory scheme has delegated the responsibility for providing such thorough and efficient system to local boards of education. Additionally, the Legislature pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9, 22-14, 22-17 and 22-37 has authorized the Commissioner of Education to review and decide appeals by boards of education seeking restoration of budgetary reductions imposed by local governing bodies. (See also Board of Education of East Brunswick Township v. Township Council of East Brunswick, 48 N.J. 94 (1966) and Board of Education of Deptford Township v. Mayor and Council of Deptford Township, 116 N.J. 305 (1989).)

In reviewing such appeals the Commissioner must determine whether a district board of education has demonstrated that the amount by which a specific line item reduction imposed by the governing body is necessary for the provision of a thorough and efficient system of education.

The documentation submitted by the parties identifies the line item reductions as follows:

In addition to the specific line item delineations presented by the Borough, the resolution reducing the Board's General Fund tax levy also provided the following rationale:

JUSTIFICATION FOR CUTS	PROPOSED CUT

#1. Teachers received over 30% in salary increases during the last 3 years. Average county increases over that period were between 7 and 8 percent. This freeze on teacher salary raises would provide an average increase to teachers of approximately 8+ percent per year for the 4 year period ending in the 1993-94 school year. Additionally, 42% of all Lodi teachers will still receive their step and stipend increment this year.

$ 30,000.00

#2. Based on prior years expenditure trend the Borough believes that the budget presented is overstated in the appropriations for degree changes and teacher sick leave.

$ 5,000.00

#3. Based on prior years expenditure trend the Borough believes that the budget presented is overstated in the appropriations for general supplies.

$103,388.00

#4. The Borough in its review of the proposed 7 new teachers believes that 4 new teachers would be more appropriate. This approach will not affect any programs existing in the district. Additionally, the Borough feels that these 4 new teachers should be utilized to enhance the music, media and gym programs.

#5. The Borough in its review believes that estimates in these appropriations should be reduced and the Board should allow the taxpayers to vote specifically on these capital improvements. Additionally architectural fees should be made part of that funded capital improvement.

$ 5,000.00

#6. The Borough in its review believes that estimates in these appropriations should be reduced and right to know should be handled by the Board's maintenance staff.

$ 28,000.00

#7. The Borough finds no basis to accept these anticipated deficit appropriations in cafeteria and athletics. Operating at a deficit does not comply with Department of Education regulation.

$ 40,000.00

#8. Based on prior years expenditure trend the Borough believes that the budget presented is overstated in the sub appropriation for the possibility of placement of additional classified students.

$ 4,000.00

#9. Based on prior years expenditure trend the Borough believes that the budget presented is overstated in the appropriation for expenses for superintendent's office.

$ 21,000.00

#10. The Borough in its review has determined that the sub appropriation for overtime and substitute custodians requires a cost saving plan to be developed by the Board.

$ 22,000.00

#11. Based on prior years expenditure trend the Borough believes that the budget presented is overstated in the appropriations for landscaper, water and heat.

$180,000.00

#12. In its review the Borough researched average Blue Cross increases in the market place and has determined that the more appropriate estimate for hospitalization is 18% and not 25% as presented by the Board.

#13. The Borough in its review has determined that teacher salary increases for extra curricular and athletics are not appropriate in this economic time. Appropriations have been brought to last year's levels.

TOTAL CUTS $884,977.00

BOARD'S POSITION

Initially, the Board objects to the failure of the Mayor and Council to meet with the Board for purposes of consultation in conformity with the provisions N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37. The Board points out that the Mayor and Council changed the meeting time for such conference from 7:30 p.m. May 3, 1993 to 4:00 p.m. May 3, 1993. When informed that Board members could not meet at 4:00 p.m., the Mayor and Council met without the required conference and adopted the tax levy which is the subject of the contested matter herein.

As a result of the foregoing, the Board contends the Borough's action in reducing the tax levy by $884,977 was arbitrary and capricious and prevents it from carrying out its obligations to provide a thorough and efficient system of education.

The Board contends that the arbitrary nature of the Borough's actions are further illustrated by the fact that the proposed reductions were prepared prior to the meeting by the chief financial officer of the Borough and presented to the members for vote without any members of the Board or district administration being present to explain the rationale behind specific expenditures.

The Board further points out that virtually no discussion transpired of why individual reductions were made at the meeting conducted by the Borough. In support of its position the Board offers as Exhibit B to its Position Statement a transcript of the Borough's meeting of May 3, 1993.

Further, by way of affidavits from two members of the Council presented as Exhibit A of its position statement, the Board seeks to demonstrate that no consultation took place between the Board and the Borough as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37 and that Council members were presented with the proposed cuts at the meeting of May 3, 1993 without opportunity to review or consider them individually as required by law. As a result of the above-cited alleged deficiencies, the Board points out that Councilman Masopust voted "no" on the resolution to reduce the tax levy and Councilman Paparozzi abstained.

The Board's position relative to the individual categories and line item reductions are set forth below:

Account	Reduction
Salaries - Teachers	$365,724

The Borough's recommended reductions in this area cover 17 separate line accounts as follows:

11-110-100-101	11-240-100-101
11-120-100-101	11-240-100-106
11-130-100-101	11-000-213-100
11-140-100-101	11-000-218-104
11-204-100-101	11-000-218-105
11-213-100-101	11-000-219-104
11-218-100-101	11-000-221-102
11-230-100-101	11-000-222-100
11-230-100-106

The amount of reduction indicated above constitutes the 4% salary increase for teachers negotiated by the Board with the teacher bargaining unit and which the Board contends was set forth in a Memorandum of Agreement signed by representatives of the teachers and the Board to be presented to the full membership of both bodies for ratification. (See Exhibit D, Board's Position Statement.)

The Board points out that the decision on the part of the Borough to reduce the entire 4 1/2% set aside to implement the negotiated agreement contained in the memorandum of agreement prevents it from bargaining in good faith as required by N.J.S.A. 34:13A-5.4a(5) and (6) and further prevents it from implementing its plan to increase the length of the school day which had been recommended by an ad hoc committee of the community to bring instructional time in the Lodi school district closer to the average of instructional time of other districts in Bergen County. The Board points out that its unilateral attempt to implement such a change at the high school was overturned by the Public Employment Relations Commission for failure to negotiate compensation for increases in instructional time in the matter of Lodi Board of Education, P.E.R.C. No. 92-120, 18 NJPER 9123151 (1992). (Position Statement, at p. 14)

The Board points out that the reduction imposed by the Borough in this account prevents it from ratifying the memorandum of agreement with the teachers and thus from implementing the increase in instructional time provided for in that agreement.

11-120-100-101 Degree Changes/Sick Leave	$30,000

This account funds increases in salary for teachers who move across the salary guide by virtue of courses taken toward advanced degrees which is part of the Board's negotiated agreement with the teachers bargaining unit. It further provides funds to replace teachers who are on extended sick leave.

The Board contends that its normal experience is that two to four teachers per year take extended sick leave and four to six teachers achieve degree changes. In 1992-93 three teachers took sick leave and were replaced at a cost of $71,851.15. Additionally four teachers achieved degree changes for a total cost of $5,755. Thus actual expenditures for 1992-93 were $77,606.15 thereby justifying the appropriation of $74,999 proposed by the Board.

11-190-100-610 General Supplies	$ 5,000

The Board contends it increased its spending in this account for 1993-94 in order to fund the purchase of calculators for students which use is mandated by the State Department of Education in statewide testing. The Board contends that the type of calculator required to be used by all middle and high school students must be purchased at a cost of $17,250. It therefore points out that despite the $10,000 requested increase in this account, it has already cut the account by $7,250.

11-213-100-101 Resource Room - Salaries 11-230-100-101 - Basic Skills - Salaries	$103,388

The reduction in these accounts represent the Borough's determination relative to new teaching positions in the area of resource rooms (213) and basic skills (230). The aforesaid reduction represents salaries of one basic skills teacher and two resource room teachers.

The Board argues that the new basic skills teacher is necessary in order to meet the needs of an increasing number of students requiring remediation in order to pass the HSPT high school graduation requirement mandated by the State. The Board contends that the combination of 90 new students transferred into Lodi High School and the greater difficulty of the 11th grade HSPT account for the increased number of students requiring remediation.

The Borough's reductions eliminate 2 of 3 new special education teachers. The Board contends that one is needed to replace a special education teacher in the elementary area who was moved to a position as an LDTC and the other two are necessary to meet an increase in the number of special education students at the high school from 86 to 100. Further, the Board points out that the current resource room concept must change to a resource center pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:28-4.3 which alters the number of pupils permitted in each section and which permits students to attend the center up to four periods per day as opposed to the previous two periods per day. Finally, the Board argues that Bergen Tech has tightened its acceptance policies for attendance at its special education satellite program and the Board anticipates that 30 to 40% of the Lodi students attending these programs will be discharged to the district to provide services.

Account	Reduction
11-000-230-339 Other Purchased Services	$ 5,000
11-000-260-420 Cleaning, Repair and Maintenance	55,000

The Board delineates that the amounts reduced were earmarked for repair of the roof of Lincoln School ($40,000), architectural fees for the repair ($5,000) and for unforeseen repairs which may occur during the school year ($15,000).

The Board declares that its expenditures in 1992-93 for unforeseen repairs was $58,492.57 thus demonstrating the clear need for the minimal $15,000 set aside for such repairs in 1993-94.

Account	Reduction
11-000-230-340 Purchased Teacher Services	$ 5,000

The money appropriated above is for the purchase of technical services pursuant to the New Jersey Right to Know Law. The Board argues that the district's maintenance personnel lack the technical training and knowledge to carry out the tasks necessary for compliance with the above statute.

11-000-310-930 Food Services Deficit $15,000

This appropriation is set aside to cover deficits which may arise in its food services program. The Board points out that it has a contract with the Canteen Corporation which administers the food services program to subsidize that program in the amount of $12,000 should expenses exceed revenues. (See Exhibit H, at pp. 12 and 13, Board's Position Statement.) Additionally, the Board is obligated to subsidize the value of government donated commodities estimated at $3,000.

11-402-100-930 Athletic Deficit $13,000

The Board argues that actual expenditures for the purpose of covering athletic deficits in previous years has been as follows:

1989-90	-	$17,824.05
1991-92	-	$16,303.50

Since gate receipts for athletic events vary from year to year, the Board contends an appropriation of $18,000 as contemplated in this account for 1993-94 is entirely reasonable.

11-000-100-566 Tuition to Private School for the Handicapped $40,000

The Board points out that its sub-appropriation in this line item for 1992-93 was $75,000 but expenditures were actually $132,426. In lieu of the above circumstances and the uncertainty which exists relative to how many students might need to be placed in private schools for the handicapped, the Board contends that its $100,000 estimated sub-appropriation is reasonable.

The Board contends that the Commissioner's granting of a cap waiver in the amount of $134,395 due to increased special education costs implicitly deemed the appropriation in this line item necessary.

Account	Reduction
11-000-230-600 Supplies and Materials	$ 4,000

The Board contends that the amount by which the appropriation in this account was increased over the previous year is due to $5,050.00 in new expenditures as follows:

Policy Book for Parents	-	$1,500
Report Cards (Revised)	-	$1,200
Newsletter	-	$1,600
Community Survey	-	$ 500
Senior Citizen Program	-	$ 250

11-000-260-100 Salaries-Custodians	$21,000

This sub-account involves monies appropriated for overtime pay and substitute custodians. The Board points out that each custodian is entitled to 3 personal days, 15 sick days and an average of 15 vacation days per year. When custodians are not present at work for the above reasons, they must be replaced by substitutes or through overtime on the part of those present. The Board contends that it has undertaken many steps over the years to reduce costs in the area, such as hiring substitutes at $8.00 per hour instead of paying $24.00 per hour for overtime work. Notwithstanding these efforts, the Board points out that its actual expenditures in this area have been $66,862.71 in 1990-91, $57,149.39 in 1991-92 and $43,947.66 as of May 31, 1993. In light of the foregoing the Board contends that its $45,000 proposed appropriation for 1993-94 is reasonable and necessary to provide for its needs in this area.

11-000-260-490 Purchased Property Services $12,000

The money appropriated in this account is for landscaping and maintenance of athletic fields. The need for this service is necessitated by the Board's action in reducing its custodial staff by one person whose responsibility was groundskeeping and landscaping. Since this individual's salary was $37,265 the Board contends its action resulted in a saving of $27,265.

Account	Reduction
11-000-260-620 Utilities	$10,000

The Board's original proposed appropriation for water was $13,000. The reduction of $2,000 in this area imposed by the Borough would bring the amount available for such utility to $11,000 when actual expenditures for water in 1992-93 were $12,918.13.

The Board points out its expenditures for heat during previous years were as follows:

1992093	-	$120,149

In light of past expenditures, the Board argues that its proposed appropriation of $130,000 for 1993-94 represents a reasonable increase in an area where actual costs cannot be predicted because of the vicissitudes of weather and possible price increases.

11-000-290-290 Other Employee Benefits $180,000

The Board argues that prudence dictates that it budget for a 25% increase in health coverage costs since it has been informed by Blue Cross/Blue Shield that its health coverage will increase between 15 and 25%. Such a prudent approach, the Board contends, is necessary since the Board's surplus at the end of 1992-93 was only $116,192.34, less than 1% of the total proposed budget.

11-401-100-100 Salaries - Cocurricular 11-402-100-100 Salaries - Athletics	$20,865

The salaries involved in these accounts were negotiated between the Board and the teachers bargaining unit and were part of the Memorandum of Understanding between the Board and the teacher's union which has not been ratified due to the reductions imposed by the Borough.

BOROUGH'S POSITION

It is the Borough's contention that it did confer with the Board in conformity with the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37. The Borough points out that the Mayor consulted with the Board, its Board Secretary as well as other school officials prior to the May 3, 1993 Council Resolution, as well as meeting with the Superintendent, Board President and Board Secretary on May 10, 1993 at the Lodi Board offices. It is the Borough's contention that during the course of these meetings it examined each applicable line item in order to determine the amount necessary for providing a thorough and efficient system of education.

The Borough points out that its action in reducing the budget by $884,997 resulted in shielding the teachers, administrators and other personnel from any reductions in force as well as to preserve existing programs.

The Borough's Position Statement repeats the reductions which it set forth in its Resolution of May 3, 1993 along with the rationale contained therein. Further it sets forth the following facts for the Commissioner's consideration:

> In addition to the justifications for the specific cuts presented the Borough maintains that the Board has not attempted to reduce costs to taxpayers. The Borough submits the following facts to demonstrate this position:
> i) Average income - Borough of Lodi - $29,887.00; Per capita income - Borough of Lodi - $13,415.
> ii) There are approximately 181 teachers in the Lodi School System - 58% of said Teachers have salaries over $51,000.00 per year.
>
> iii) The Lodi Teaching staff received a 31% increase in their contract for the prior three (3) year period; The average County increase over the same three (3) years was 24%.
>
> iv) Average length of teaching day County wide [is] seven (7) hours; Lodi teaching day is approximately 6.5 hours.
>
> v) Attached hereto is the Contract struck between the Board and the teaching staff. (See Exhibit "A1") > vi) Additionally, the Board has commenced and/or proposed certain capital improvements which could have been funded by Public School Loans. No Applications appear to have ever been filed. (See supporting Bergen Record article dated May 18, 1993, as Exhibit "A2".)
>
>
> vii) During the Budget Process for the 1993-1994 school year, repairs to the Lincoln School roof were anticipated. In June the Board approved funding for repairs to the Lincoln School and an additional school roof. Those funds came from surplus in the insurance appropriation line item account.
> viii) Finally the Board continues to estimate Fund balances which severely inflates their Tax Levy. An analysis is hereinbelow provided:

Year Ended	School Tax Levy	Estimated Budget Fund Balance	Fund Balance per Audit Report
1988	$10,340,231	$161,382.14	$896,428.61
1989	$11,206,541	$185,783.23	$359,730.18
1990	$12,608,841	$257,070.61	$574,090.54
1991	$14,044,968	$384,145.18	$633,509.66
1992	$14,892,031	$109,090.54	$541,054.59
1993	$14,840,650	$191,892.00	?

School taxes have increased 43+% since 1988. As noted hereinabove the Board had the ability to apply fund balances for tax stabilization but has failed to do so.

(Borough's Position Statement, Exhibit A)

In conclusion, the Borough cites the Appellate Division decision in Board of Education of the Township of East Brunswick v. Township Council of the Township of East Brunswick, 91 N.J. Super. 20 (App. Div. 1966) for the proposition that "[t]he Commissioner is theoretically bound to respect its [Mayor and Council] exercise of judgment and discretion in that regard. He may not supplant the council's budget merely because of any concept by him that the board's budget rather than the council's better serves the constitutional mandate for 'a thorough and efficient system of free public schools.' [cite omitted] Nor may he abrogate the council's budget for the mere reason alone that he would have fixed a larger one had the council failed to promulgate a budget within the ten-day period and the responsibility to do so had then fallen to the Commissioner under the statute." (at 26)

COMMISSIONER'S DECISION

Initially the Commissioner finds and determines that the actions of the Mayor and Council in adopting its tax levy resolution of May 3, 1993 without having formally met with the Board of Education did not comport with the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37 for consultation. Notwithstanding the protestations of the Borough's Municipal Manager Charles S. Cuccia in his certification as part of the Position Statement of the Borough, the informal meetings which he contends were held with school officials before the May 3 resolution and a subsequent meeting held after the passage of the resolution on May 10, 1993 with "pertinent members of the School Board family," such alleged meetings do not constitute compliance with the clear mandate of N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37 that is contemplated by that statute. Consultation as conceived under the statute requires participation and discussion between both bodies. Branchburg Bd. of Ed. v. Branchburg, 187 N.J. Super. 540 (App. Div. 1983)

Further, the transcript of the May 3, 1993 meeting of the Borough Council at which the budget cutting resolution was adopted and which was provided to the Commissioner as part of the Board's Position Statement raises serious questions as to the degree to which there was a conscientious review designed to determine an amount necessary for a thorough and efficient education. Such doubt arises from the fact that Mr. Cuccia by his own admission in his certification, as confirmed by the transcript, did not provide the Council members with copies of his recommended cuts until the time of the meeting. While, as Mr. Cuccia points out in his certification, it may not be inappropriate for a fiscal expert such as himself to review the Board's budget and to make recommendations to the Council for its consultation, such recommendations should provide adequate time and opportunity to be carefully considered by the Council, given the constitutional responsibility of the municipal governing body to provide sufficient funds to ensure the provision of thorough and efficient system of education. No matter how expert in fiscal affairs the Municipal Manager may be and no matter what the procedures of the municipality may be, when reviewing a school budget for determining sufficiency, the ultimate responsibility is that of the governing body itself and to satisfy the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37 there must be active consultation with the board of education and careful item by item review by the members of the municipal governing body.

Finally, the Commissioner must consider the contention of the Board that the Borough violated the Open Public Meeting Act (N.J.S.A. 10:4-6) in that the meeting announcement advertised by the Borough misstated the agenda of said meeting in that the notice as published indicated that the determination of the amount of tax levy appropriation would be adopted at a special meeting to be scheduled. (See Exhibit C, Board's Position Statement.)

As to the OPMA allegations advanced by the Board, the Commissioner finds and determines that she does not have jurisdiction over allegations of violation of the OPMA levied against a municipal governing body. What authority she does have would rest solely in terms of a board of education's actions and even under such matters, her authority is limited. See Michael Rovello et al. v. Michael Boyel et al., decided by the Commissioner March 15, 1993.

Further, even if the Commissioner had jurisdiction she would decline to consider this issue when raised as it is within the context of the Position Statement rather than as part of the Board's Petition of Appeal. Notwithstanding the above, the Commissioner finds Mr. Cuccia's attitude rather cavalier in dismissing the Board's OPMA contentions by virtue of his defense of "substantial compliance."

Notwithstanding whatever deficiencies may have existed relative to appropriate consultation and careful consideration, pursuant to Deptford, supra, the Commissioner is obliged to conduct an item-by-item review of the proposed reductions in order to bring her expertise to bear on whether such reductions can be sustained without doing injury to the responsibility to assure a thorough and efficient system of education. Consequently, the Commissioner shall set forth her findings in each area of reduction but as set forth by the court in Deptford and discussed by the State Board in Board of Education of the Township of Rochelle Park v. Mayor and Council of Rochelle Park, 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 425. As such, there shall be invoked a heavy presumption against the educational validity of the Borough's proposed budget cuts.

11-110-100-101/ 11-000-222-100 Salaries - Teachers	$365,724

Since the reason advanced for reduction in the teacher salary accounts was the same and the reduction in each account was the same 4 1/2% set aside for salary increases, the Commissioner's determination relative to these reductions will be dealt with collectively.

After examining the positions presented by the parties, the Commissioner determines that the Borough has acted in an arbitrary manner in removing all funds for a possible salary increase for teachers. While the Borough seeks to justify its actions by virtue of the fact that salary increases in the previous three years of the contract totalled 34% and were above the county average for that three year period, it failed to consider the fact that Lodi has one of the lowest salary schedules in Bergen County and that the above average increases were designed to remedy that situation. Further, the Borough, perhaps due to its failure to consult with the Board, did not consider that the reduction in the salary accounts would make it impossible for the Board to implement its Memorandum of Agreement and its plan to increase the length of the school day to conform to the average school day of the other schools in Bergen County and which bears directly upon the ability of the Board to maintain a thorough and efficient system of education.

Ultimately it would appear from a study of the transcript of the Borough's May 3 meeting that its primary concern as it related to the issue of salary increases was the tax rate and not the impact which its decision would have on the educational process.

In light of the foregoing, the Commissioner directs that the $365,724 reduction in the salary accounts be restored.

11-120-100-101 Degree Changes/Sick Leave	$30,000

The Board has clearly demonstrated that its actual appropriations in 1992-93 for salary guide movement and replacement of teachers on sick leave ($77,606.15) justify its appropriation of $74,999 in this account for 1993-94. Consequently, the Commissioner directs that $30,000 be restored to this account.

11-190-100-610 General Supplies	$ 5,000

While the Board offers a reasonable explanation for the need to expend the $5,000 by which the Borough reduced this account, it fails to meet its burden of proof to demonstrate that the remaining $115,093 would not be sufficient to meet the needs described by the Board through a re-ordering of priorities. The $5,000 reduction in this account is sustained.

11-213-100-101 - Resource Room - Salaries 11-230-100-101 - Basic Skills Salaries	$103,388

The Borough's determination that the district could get along with 4 new teachers rather than the 7 requested by the Board in its proposed appropriations in this account is arbitrary in that it offers no explanation as to what factors underlie its determination. Further, the Borough far oversteps its authority, responsibility and expertise in recommending in what disciplines the new teachers should be hired.

The Board on its part does provide a reasonable explanation for why the three additional positions should be restored. While the approval by the Commissioner of the cap waiver for the district did not explicitly identify the areas within special education where such additional funds should be allocated, it does acknowledge the fact that increased enrollment in special education was confirmed.

In light of the foregoing, the Commissioner directs that the $103,388 reduction in this account be restored.

11-000-230-339 Other Purchased Services	$ 5,000
11-000-260-420 Cleaning, Repair and Maintenance	$55,000

The Borough's position that the capital improvements contemplated in these accounts should be voted on separately is entirely without merit. By way of statute the Legislature has directed that there no longer be separate votes on Current Expense and Capital Outlay but that a single vote on the General Fund tax levy replace the former practice.

While the creation of a single General Fund tax levy does not preclude the governing body from reviewing and reducing capital projects on their merits, it must provide substantial reasons why such should not be undertaken while the Board bears the burden of proof for demonstrating that the project is necessary to ensure a thorough and efficient education.

In the instant matter, the Board has met both its burden of demonstrating the need for roof repairs in the amount of $40,000 and rebutting the Borough's contention that such project be voted on separately. However, the Board has failed to meet its burden of demonstrating why the architectural fee of $5,000 and the $15,000 for unforeseen repairs cannot be accommodated within the approximately $35,000 remaining in account 11-000-230-339 (Other Purchased Services) and the $84,012 remaining in 11-000-260-420 after utilization of the $40,000 for the roof repair.

Consequently, the Commissioner directs that the reduction of $5,000 in account 11-000-230-339 be sustained. The Commissioner further directs that the $15,000 reduction in account 11-000-260-420 be sustained while $40,000 in that account for roof repair be restored.

11-000-230-340 Purchased Teacher Services	$5,000

While the Commissioner agrees that the district's own personnel, as recommended by the Borough, lacks the expertise to carry out the requirements of the Right to Know Law, she does not believe that the Board has demonstrated that the funds remaining in this account could not be utilized to offset the $5,000 reduction imposed by the Borough. The $5,000 reduction in this account is sustained.

Account	Reduction
11-000-310-930 Food Services Deficit	$15,000

The Board has amply identified its need for the funds necessary to offset a deficit in its Food Services account by virtue of its contract with the private catering service. The argument of the Borough that deficits are not permitted by New Jersey Law is correct; however, the circumstances described herein do not constitute a year-end deficit but are in fact designed to appropriate funds so that a deficit does not occur. The $15,000 reduction in this account is restored.

11-402-100-930 Athletic Deficit	$13,000

While the Board has justified the fact that a deficit may occur between athletic program costs and gate receipts, it has not demonstrated that it would be unable to absorb that deficit by way of reductions in supplies or materials for athletics. Consequently, the Commissioner sustains the reduction of $13,000 in this account.

11-000-100-566 Tuition to Private Schools for the Handicapped	$40,000

Meeting the needs and requirements of educationally handicapped pupils is statutorily mandated as an essential element of a thorough and efficient system of education. Because students may be enrolled in such programs at any time during the school year at tuition rates that are not only extremely high but cannot accurately be predicted, districts must provide for contingencies in this regard. Given the precarious state of this district's unappropriated free balance, there is very little margin for error. Consequently, the Commissioner directs that the $40,000 reduction in this account's sub-appropriation be restored.

11-000-230-600 Supplies and Materials	$ 4,000

The Board, while demonstrating the need for the items to be purchased from the $4,000 reduction in this account, has failed to meet its burden of demonstrating that it cannot accommodate its need through re-ordering priorities within the $10,847 remaining in this account. The $4,000 reduction is sustained.

11-000-260-100 Salaries - Custodians $21,000

Once again, while the Board has succeeded in demonstrating its prior expenditures in the sub-account for substitutes and overtime pay, it has failed to provide sufficient data to demonstrate why the approximately $875,000 in the total salary account is insufficient to accommodate the needs for substitutes and overtime. The reduction of $21,000 is sustained.

11-000-260-490 Purchased Property Services $12,000

The Board has failed to meet its burden of demonstrating that the services provided by the landscaper cannot be performed by its existing staff or that these services are essential for the provision of a thorough and efficient system of education. The $12,000 reduction imposed by the Borough is sustained.

11-000-260-620 Utilities $10,000

The Board has failed to meet its burden of demonstrating that a $10,000 reduction in the total area of Utilities would prevent it from providing a comfortable and secure physical environment with the $338,000 remaining in this account. The $10,000 reduction in this account is sustained.

11-000-290-290 Other Employee Benefits	$180,000

In reaching a conclusion relative to this account, the Commissioner notes that the increase projected to the Board in health benefits by Blue Cross/Blue Shield covered a range between 15% and 25%. While the Board argues from the perspective of budgeting for the maximum in that range, the Borough strikes a much more conservative estimate of 18%.

Notwithstanding whether the appropriate percentage of increase for which to budget, the Board correctly points out that the difference between an 18% increase and a 25% increase is $93,397.68, not the $180,000 by which the Borough reduced this account. (See calculations provided by the Board as Exhibit J in its Statement of Position.) Given the precariously low surplus available to the Board the Commissioner orders restoration of the $180,000 for health insurance to assure adequate monies should the costs be at the higher range of the percentage increase Blue Cross projected.

The Commissioner directs the restoration of the $20,865 in salaries which represent the amounts negotiated between the Lodi Board of Education and the Lodi Education Association for the reasons found earlier in this decision.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF JAMESBURG, PETITIONER, V. MAYOR AND BOROUGH COUNCIL OF THE BOROUGH OF JAMESBURG, MIDDLESEX COUNTY, RESPONDENT.	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION DECISION

OCTOBER 15, 1993

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF JAMESBURG, PETITIONER, V. MAYOR AND BOROUGH COUNCIL OF THE BOROUGH OF JAMESBURG, MIDDLESEX COUNTY, RESPONDENT.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION DECISION

For Petitioner, Nathanya G. Simon, Esq. (Schwartz, Simon, Edelstein, Celso & Kessler)

For Respondent, Christopher D. Rafano, Esq. (Rafano and Wood)

The Board of Education of Jamesburg (Board) appeals to the Commissioner of Education from an action taken by the Mayor and Council of the Borough of Jamesburg (Council) pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37 certifying to the Middlesex County Board of Taxation a lesser amount for General Fund costs for the 1993-94 school year than the amount proposed by the Board in its budget which was rejected by the voters.

At the annual school election held on April 20, 1993, the Board submitted to the electorate a proposal to raise $3,292,604 by local taxation for General Fund costs of the school district. After the voters' rejection of the proposal, the Board submitted its budget to Council for its determination of the amount necessary for the operation of a thorough and efficient school system in the

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF JAMESBURG,

PETITIONER,

V.

MAYOR AND BOROUGH COUNCIL OF THE BOROUGH OF JAMESBURG, MIDDLESEX COUNTY,

RESPONDENT.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Board appealed General Fund tax levy reductions in the amount of $231,509 made by governing body following voter rejection of proposed budget on April 20, 1993.

Upon review of the appeal herein to determine whether Board demonstrated that restoration of specific line item reductions was necessary in order to provide a thorough and efficient system of education in the district, Commissioner determined to restore $199,509 for a total General Fund tax levy of $3,260,604 for 1993-94 school purposes.

Borough of Jamesburg for the 1993-94 school year pursuant to the mandatory obligation imposed on Council by N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37.

After consultation with the Board, Council made its determination and adopted a resolution on May 11, 1993 certifying to the Middlesex County Board of Taxation an amount of $3,061,095 for General Fund costs. The amounts in dispute are summarized below:

Proposed Tax Levy Adopted by Board	Amount of Tax Levy Certified by Governing Body
$3,292,604	$3,061,095
Amount of Reduction by Governing Body	Amount of Reduction in Dispute before Commissioner
$231,509	$231,509

On July 6, 1993 Council filed its Answer. The Board filed its Position Statement on July 30, 1993 and a Final Summation on August 17, 1993. No further papers were filed by Council and the record was closed.

STANDARD OF REVIEW

In rendering judgment relative to budgetary appeals, the Commissioner notes that the Constitution of the State of New Jersey requires the Legislature to provide for a thorough and efficient system of education. The Legislature by way of statutory scheme has delegated the responsibility for providing such thorough and efficient system to local boards of education. Additionally, the Legislature pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9, 22-14, 22-17 and 22-37 has authorized the Commissioner of Education to review and decide appeals by boards of education seeking restoration of budgetary reductions imposed by local governing bodies. (See also Board of Education of East Brunswick Township v. Township Council of East Brunswick, 48 N.J. 94 (1966) and Board of Education of the Deptford Township v. Mayor and Council of Deptford Township, 116 N.J. 305 (1989).)

In reviewing such appeals the Commissioner must determine whether a district board of education has demonstrated that the amount by which a specific line item reduction imposed by the governing body is necessary for the provision of a thorough and efficient system of education.

Mindful, then, of the balance to be applied in this standard of review, the Commissioner makes the following determination with respect to the reduction in the General Fund effectuated by the Council.

Council's resolution of May 11, 1993 set forth the following proposed line item reductions and the reasons for such reductions:

LINE ITEM REDUCTIONS

	Program Code	Function Code	Object Code	Reduction Amount
General Administration
Other Purchased Prof. Services	000	230	339	$ 5,000

The Mayor and Borough Council has been informed that the Monroe Township Board of Education has publicly stated that regionalization is no longer under consideration.

Supplies and Materials	000	230	600	$ 1,500

The budget line item detail contains no specific item purchases or expense requests, or service required.

Undistributed Expends. - Business and Other Support Services
Other Employee Benefits	000	290	290	$18,000

This reflects the savings of personnel eliminations and reductions, as computed, for the various positions detailed under the appropriate budget line item.

	Program Code	Function Code	Object Code	Reduction Amount
Purchased Prof. Services	000	290	330	$ 10,000

The Mayor and Borough Council has determined an excess amount of $10,000 budgeted for professional services in consideration of what appears to be required and in comparison of prior years.

Supplies and Materials	000	290	600	$ 2,450

The reduction eliminates the following specific Board of Education expenses as budgeted:

Board Members Travel	$ 450
Board Members Seminars, Lectures, etc.	900
Entertainment Fees of Other Boards	300
Travel and Subsistence Sec'y/Bookkeeper	800
	$ 2,450

Misc. Expenditures	000	290	890	$ 1,000

The reduction represents what the Mayor and Borough Council deems to be in excess or reasonable for certain board membership.

Instruction - Regular Programs

Regular Programs - Instr. Pre-School/Kind. - Salaries of Teacher	110	100	101	$35,000

The reduction is the elimination of a teaching position, thereby maintaining two teaching positions in the budget. This reduction requires two Kindergarten sections for the school year 1993/94, as compared to the original three as budgeted. The Kindergarten sections would be comprised of 15 students per class as opposed to the original 10 student/teacher ratio.

	Program Code	Function Code	Object Code	Reduction Amount
Grades 1-5 - Salaries of Teachers	120	100	101	$31,600

The reduction is the elimination of a Guidance Counselor position. The Guidance Counselor individual, as eliminated, is transferred to a gym teacher position. This allows for the reduction of one gym teacher.

Regular Programs - Undistrib.Instr. Oth. Sals. for Instr.	190	100	106	$14,400

The elimination of the proposed 1993/94 new positions, namely 3 half time aides in the JFK School, and the substitute positions for the aforementioned.

General Supplies	190	100	610	$ 9,150

The budget contains supply accounts for each individual school. This reduction eliminates the appropriation for "District wide supply account general supplies" in the amount of $9,150, as the Mayor and Borough Council maintain this to be duplication.

Textbooks	190	100	640	$ 5,500

This reduction postpones the acquisition of New District wide K-4 Health Program Textbooks for one year, and allows for the remaining items requested.

Other Objects	190	100	800	$10,000

The Mayor and Borough Council, due to the lack of adequate formal detail of this budget appropriation, have deemed it necessary to reduce such appropriation as the amount is considered in excess of what is required.

	Program Code	Function Code	Object Code	Reduction Amount
Undistrib. Expends. - Other Support Services - Students - Regular Supplies and Materials	000	218	600	$ 904

The Guidance Office supplies and materials as budgeted are no longer required pursuant to actions previously taken regarding the position.

Other Objects	000	218	800	$ 2,109

The Mayor and Borough Council eliminated or reduced this entire budget line item because the detail supporting documentation contained no specific item purchases, expense requests or services required.

Undistrib. Expends. - Other Support Services - Students - Special Other Objects	000	219	800	$ 3,923

The Mayor and Borough Council eliminated or reduced this entire budget line item because the detail supporting documentation contained no specific item purchases, expense requests or services required.

Undistrib. Expends. - Educa. Media Services/School Library Other Objects	000	222	800	$ 588

The Mayor and Borough Council eliminated or reduced this entire budget line item because the detail supporting documentation contained no specific item purchases, expense requests or services required.

	Program Code	Function Code	Object Code	Reduction Amount
Attendance and Health
Undistrib. Expends. - Health Services Other Objects	000	213	800	$ 1,500

The Mayor and Borough Council eliminated or reduced this entire budget line item because the detail supporting documentation contained no specific item purchases, expense requests or services required.

Undistrib. Expends. - Operation and Maintenance of Plant Services Salaries	000	260	100	$35,650

The reduction eliminates two budgeted positions, including a new 6 hour per day custodian at JFK School.

General Supplies	000	260	610	$ 5,000

The Mayor and Borough Council reduced this budget line item by $5,000 determining the appropriation to be excessive for such items listed.

Cleaning, Repair and Maint. Serv.	000	260	420	$18,000

The Mayor and Borough Council eliminate, reduce or delay the following items inasmuch as no capital project budget plan was submitted.

Eliminate Venetian Blind/Shade Replacement (All Purpose Room and Relocatables)	$ 2,000
Reduce Anticipated Glass Repairs	1,500
Eliminate Repairs of Blacktop of JFK	8,000
Eliminate Carpeting of JFK	1,500
Other Managed Savings	5,000
	$18,000

	Program Code	Function Code	Object Code	Reduction Amount
Food Services
Undistrib. Expends. - Food Services Salaries	000	310	100	$ 6,935

The number of positions, specifically, Lunch Room Aides/ Monitors are reduced by five, thereby maintaining the prior year level.

Student Body Activ. and Spec. Proj.

School Sponsored Cocurricular Activ. Salaries	401	100	100	$ 2,500

This appropriation reduction basically limits the amount that the Mayor and Borough Council believes is necessary and required, and not duplicated elsewhere.

Capital Outlay (1200 Series) and Other Capital Items (Fund 12)
Equipment
Regular Programs - Instr.
Grades 1-5	120	100	730	$ 2,000
Grades 6-8	130	100	730	1,000
Undistrib. Expend. - School Admin.	000	240	730	300
Undistrib. Expend. - Operation and Maintenance of Plant Services	000	260	730	7,500
				$ 10,800

The above listed Capital Outlay appropriations have been cut in the amounts as shown above. The Mayor and Borough Council have reviewed the specific budget requests and have reduced the appropriations by eliminating, delaying or reducing certain acquisitions for the school year 1993-94.

TOTAL $231,509

Regarding these reductions, the Board argues that the Resolution by Council reducing the school district budget by $231,509.00 is arbitrary, unreasonable and capricious, without consideration of the needs of the school system, based upon inaccurate interpretation of data and improper standards and fails to provide sufficient monies to the school district to meet the constitutional and statutory mandate to provide a thorough and efficient system of education to the students in Jamesburg for the 1993-94 school year.

Notwithstanding the Board's allegations above, Council's reasons and the Board's responses are set forth below in regard to the reduction in each line item.

GENERAL CURRENT EXPENSE
(FUND II)

1. Administration, Telephone and Telegraph and Fixed Charges. Undistributed Expenditures - Support Services, General Administration, Other Purchased Professional Services.

Program Code	Function Code	Object Code	Reduction Amount
000	230	339	$ 5,000

Council states that it has been informed that the Monroe Township Board of Education has publicly stated that regionalization (evidently with Jamesburg) is no longer under consideration. The Board does not deny that the regionalization study has been rejected at this time; however, it asserts that it had determined to commence planning for a building program at the John F. Kennedy School if the regionalization study was abandoned. This planning has become critical because of an increase in enrollment over the past three years with the resultant overcrowding in the school district. Additionally, the relocatable buildings utilized by the district are approximately 30 years old and in need of replacement. The funds designated in this line item would be used to employ an architect to commence preliminary planning for a building program.

Based on the above, the Board has adequately shown that it must begin planning to relieve the overcrowding in the district. However, the Commissioner is not convinced that the full budgeted amount is necessary for the preliminary planning being considered. Accordingly, a $2,500 reduction will be allowed and $2,500 will be restored to the budget.

	Program Code	Function Code	Object Code	Reduction Amount
2. Supplies and Materials
	000	230	600	$ 1,500

Council states that this line item contains no specific item purchases, expense requests, or services required. The Board did not respond to Council's reasons; rather, it argued for restoration of monies for the superintendent's membership in professional associations and set forth requirements for dues and attendance fees for various workshops which are part of his contractual obligation to the Board.

Based on the above, Council's reasons are sustained and $1,500 will be reduced from the budget.

3. Undistributed Expenditures - Business and Other Support Services
	000	290	290	$18,000

Council gave its reason as follows: "This reflects the savings of personnel eliminations and reductions, as computed, for the various positions detailed under the appropriate budget line item." The Board's response identified the line items referred to by Council, even though the governing body failed to show where the specific cuts were made. The cuts represent the elimination of health benefits for the employees Council eliminated later in this budget. Further, the Board asserts, without contradiction, that if the personnel eliminations were made, unemployment insurance benefits would accrue to at least three of these individuals in the next budget year, resulting in a financial liability to the Board of approximately $19,500. The Board concludes that the elimination of these positions would drastically affect the education provided to the children in the district.

Although the Board's reasoning is sound, a decision on restoration of this account must await the examination of items 7, 8, 9, and 18 below. It is here that Council recommends the elimination of the several positions mentioned above.

	Program Code	Function Code	Object Code	Reduction Amount
4. Purchased Professional Services
	000	290	330	$10,000

The governing body suggests that an excess amount of $10,000 has been budgeted in this account in comparison to the amounts budgeted in prior years. The Board argues that the amount is necessary for continuing litigation, including lawyers and negotiators' fees. It justifies the increase in this line item stating that transfers into this account have been necessary in prior years because appropriations were insufficient.

Although some increase has been adequately justified, a $5,000 increase should be sufficient. Therefore, $5,000 will be reduced and $5,000 is restored to the budget.

5. Undistributed Expenditures -- Business and Other Support Services: Board Members Travel; Board Members Lectures, etc.; Entertainment Fees of Other Boards; Travel and Subsistence, Secretary/Bookkeeper.

Program Code	Function Code	Object Code	Reduction Amount

Council eliminated $2,450 from the above-mentioned line items finding the amounts excessive or unreasonable for certain Board membership. However the Board asserts that the sum represents Board members' business expenses, contractual obligations to the Board Secretary, and other training expenses for the Board Secretary related to the GAAP system. Expenditures for travel and education of Board members relating to Board business are reimbursable. A nominal $300 is utilized for food service costs associated with meetings held with Monroe Township or other communities, when Jamesburg is the host district. The specific reduction of $800 for travel and subsistence for the Board Secretary contains $500 which is a contractual obligation to the Board Secretary.

The Commissioner has held in earlier decisions that reasonable business expenses are necessary when related to individual and group betterment. These expenses appear to be reasonable and necessary for the delivery of thorough and efficient educational services in the district. Accordingly, the $2,450 reduction will be restored to the budget.

Program Code	Function Code	Object Code	Reduction Amount
6. Miscellaneous Expenses
000	290	890	$1,000

Council argues again that the amount reduced represents what it deems to be in excess for certain Board membership. The Board asserts that this $1,000 reduction represents money necessary to cover dues for four organizations in which the Board or its Business Manager hold memberships. In one case the membership is statutorily mandated, and in another, the dues represent a contractual obligation to the Board Secretary.

The Commissioner does not find the amount budgeted for this account to be unreasonable. The conduct of ordinary business requires these necessary expenses so that the Board officials may participate in county-wide and state organizations. Therefore, the $1,000 reduction will be restored to the budget.

	Program Code	Function Code	Object Code	Reduction Amount
7. Preschool/Kindergarten Salaries of Teachers.
	110	100	101	$35,000
8. Grades 1-5 - Salaries of Teachers.
	120	100	101	$31,600

Items 7 and 8 will be considered together because they both represent recommendations by Council to eliminate positions that have been established by the Board.

Regarding item 7, Council states that its reduction requires the elimination of a teaching position. This reduction will allow two kindergarten sections for the school year 1993-94, rather than the three budgeted by the Board. Council also discusses a student/teacher ratio which it believes is not justifiable. Item 8 calls for the elimination of a guidance counselor position.

Both of these recommendations attack the organizational structure of the educational staff in the district. While Council certainly has the right to suggest changes in the educational structure, the Board alone has the responsibility to staff its schools in the manner it believes will provide the thorough and efficient education it must deliver. The Board has established an all day kindergarten program. A reduction of a teacher here would terminate this program and force the Board to go back to the half-day programs previously offered. The reduction of a guidance counselor as recommended in item 8 would also terminate a program the Board deems necessary for the delivery of essential pupil services. The Board points out that this position will also address other educational responsibilities including development of career education curriculum, coordination of district testing, development of discipline process and handling parent/teacher conferences related to children's discipline. These are worthy educational goals which should not be interrupted. Council's reasons indicate only the saving of money without regard to the effect its reductions would have on the delivery of more efficient services to the district's children. On the other hand, the Board has adequately defended its need for the positions it has established; consequently, the $35,000 and $31,600 salaries will be restored to the budget.

Program Code	Function Code	Object Code	Reduction Amount
9. Regular Education Grades 1-5; Undistributed Instruction; Other Salaries for Instruction.
190	100	106	$14,400

In this account, Council recommends the elimination of "3 half time aides in the JFK School, and the substitute positions for the aforementioned." The Board argues that the elimination of these positions will have a negative impact on a thorough and efficient education in the district. Enrollment has increased in grades 2 and 4 so that the district has classes with no less than 27 pupils. To reduce pupil/teacher ratio without hiring additional teachers, the Board determined to hire classroom aides. In this instance the Board has made a wise and conservative decision in its determination to lessen the pupil/teacher ratio without hiring additional staff, thus saving money while achieving its objective. Therefore, the $14,400 reduction will be restored to the budget.

	Program Code	Function Code	Object Code	Reduction Amount
10.	General Supplies
	190	100	610	$ 9,150

Council contends that the Board's budget contains supply accounts for each individual school. Its reduction eliminates the appropriation for "District wide supply account general supplies" in the amount of $9,150. Council maintains that this is a duplication. The Board asserts that this account is necessary to provide sufficient funds for consumable teaching supplies. Included are such items as computer software, duplicating paper for the instructional programs, workbooks, supplies for a new reading program and consumable general supplies (paper, pencils, crayons, etc.). In the Commissioner's judgment, such supplies must be made available to ensure proper programming for the district's pupils. The Board has adequately shown a need for these supplies; however, there is no showing that they are not needed because of an alleged duplication. Accordingly, the $9,150 reduction will be restored.

11.	Textbooks

The reduction in this account postpones the acquisition of new district-wide K-4 health program textbooks for one year. The Board maintains that these funds have been deferred for the past few years. The district's health curriculum has been updated to meet state mandates, which require the inclusion of information on sexually transmitted diseases and anabolic steroids. According to the Board, these required subjects, and other important topics, are not included in the current textbooks. Based on this rationale, the $5,500 reduction will be restored to the budget.

	Program Code	Function Code	Object Code	Reduction Amount
12. Other Expenses	190	100	800	$10,000

Because of the lack of formal detail of this budget item appropriation, Council deemed it excessive and reduced it by $10,000. According to the Board, the account includes a number of expenses for items such as graduation expenses, pupil awards, and projected raises for teachers. In the Commissioner's judgment, Council is correct. The Board's rationale does not contain the specific information that would show that it is a necessary expenditure required for a thorough and efficient education. Accordingly, the $10,000 reduction will stand.

13. Undistributed Expenditures; Other Support Services; Students - Regular Instruction - Supplies and Materials	000	218	600	$ 904
14. Undistributed Expenditures; Other Support Services; Students - Other Instructional Staff	000	218	800	$ 2,109

Items 13 and 14 will be considered together.

Council reduced item 13 which contains guidance office supplies, and item 14 because it had earlier eliminated the position of guidance counselor. The record above shows that the guidance counselor position was restored; therefore, there is the obvious need for guidance office supplies and the projected salary increase for the guidance counselor. Accordingly, the amounts of $904 and $2,109 will be restored to the budget.

	Program Code	Function Code	Object Code	Reduction Amount
15. Undistributed Expenditures; Other Support Services; Special; Other Objects
	000	219	800	$ 3,923
16. Undistributed Expenditures; Educational Media Services/School Library - Other Objects
	000	222	800	$ 588
17. Undistributed Expenditures; Health Services; Other Objects
	000	213	800	$ 1,500

Items 15, 16, and 17 will be considered together because each concerns the reduction of monies by Council for projected salary increases expected by the Board in its on-going contract negotiations with its teachers union. Item 15 for special education teachers was reduced $3,923. Item 16 for the media center specialist was reduced $588. Item 17 for two school nurses was reduced $1,500. These sums are reasonable estimates by the Board, which obviously expects the teachers union to negotiate a raise for its members. The Board asserts, without contradiction, that it is negotiating in good faith. When the negotiations are completed, the new agreement must be funded; therefore, the amounts proposed by the Board are reasonable and necessary and $3,923, $588 and $1,500 will be restored to the budget.

Program Code	Function Code	Object Code	Reduction Amount
18. Operation: Net of Telephone and Telegraph, Maintenance - Net of Equipment, Fixed Charges, and Transportation; Land and Buildings Rental. Undistributed Expenditures - Operation and Maintenance of Plant Services Salaries
000	260	100	$35,650

Council proposes the elimination of two custodian positions. One is a new six hour per day position and the other is the Head Custodian/Maintenance Worker position. No reason was given. The Board asserts that it has carefully considered the complaints of parents and teachers for over a year concerning the maintenance and cleanliness of the school buildings. It claims that the Head Custodian/Maintenance Worker is the only maintenance individual employed by the school district. This individual is the only district employee who holds a Black Seal License and is, therefore, able to operate the boilers for the heating of each of the schools. Without this employee, school could not open in the winter. If the Head Custodian/Maintenance Worker position were eliminated, the cost to the District to employ outside contractors for daily maintenance responsibilities would exceed the salary of this one individual.

Based on the rationale given by the Board, I am convinced that the two custodial positions are necessary for the maintenance and cleanliness of the district's school buildings; therefore, the $35,650 reduction will be restored to the budget.

Remaining is the disposition of item 3 which was held in abeyance until items 7, 8, 9 and 18 were decided. Item 3 budgeted $18,000 for health insurance for the employees eliminated by Council in items 7, 8, 9, and 18. Since all of these employee positions have been restored, there is need to restore the monies budgeted for health insurance for those individuals. Accordingly, $18,000 is restored to the budget for item 3.

Program Code	Function Code	Object Code	Reduction Amount
19. Undistributed Expenditures - General Supplies
000	260	610	$5,000

Council reduced this line item by $5,000 determining that the appropriation is excessive. The Board argues that the funds are necessary for cleaning and custodial supplies and that any reduction will have a significant impact on the cleanliness of the facilities. Finding no evidence that the budgeted amount is excessive, the $5,000 reduction will be restored to the budget.

Program Code	Function Code	Object Code	Reduction Amount
20. Undistributed Expenditures - Cleaning, Repair, and Maintenance Services
000	260	420	$18,000

Council recommends the following reductions in this line item:

Eliminate venetian blind/shade replacement (All purpose room and relocatables)	$ 2,000
Reduce anticipated glass repairs	1,500
Eliminate repairs to blacktop at JFK	8,000
Eliminate carpeting of JFK	1,500
Other managed savings	5,000
Total	$18,000

The Board asserts that this money is necessary for essential services; however, it appears that the specific items set forth by Council may be deferred without impeding the Board's ability to provide a thorough and efficient education to its pupils. The item labeled "Other managed savings" lacks specificity; therefore, $5,000 will be restored to the budget. A reduction of $13,000 will be sustained.

21. Undistributed Expenditures - Food Service Salaries

Council reasons that the "Lunch Room Aides/Monitors are reduced by five, thereby maintaining the prior year level." The Board states that the prior budget year did not provide for Breakfast Aides who are necessary for implementation of the district's new Breakfast Program. Additional expenditures are anticipated for Lunchroom Aides and Monitors to provide for supervision of pupils during lunch and recess periods.

Based on this rationale and finding no substantiation for the cut by Council, the $6,935 reduction will be restored to the budget.

Program Code	Function Code	Object Code	Reduction Amount

22. School Sponsored Co-Curricular Activities.

Council states that this appropriation reduction limits the amount that it believes is necessary and required, and not duplicated elsewhere. The Board contends that the funds are necessary as they support summer curriculum writing and revision. The district revises curriculum each year in order to provide necessary instructional and curricular improvement.

The Commissioner concurs with the Board's statement that a comprehensive and updated curriculum is essential to a thorough and efficient system of schools in the district. Consequently, the $2,500 reduction will be restored to the budget.

25. Equipment; Undistributed Expenditures; School Administration	000	240	730	$ 300
26. Equipment; Undistributed Expenditures; Operation and Maintenance of Plant Services	000	260	730	$7,500

The line items enumerated in 23, 24, 25, and 26 will be considered together as they were by Council when it made its reductions as follows:

Equipment
Regular Programs - Instruction
Grades 1-5	$ 2,000
Grades 6-8	1,000
Undistributed Expenditures - School Administration	300
Undistributed Expenditures - Operation and Maintenance of Plant Services	7,500
Total	$10,800

Council states that it has reviewed the specific budget requests and reduced the appropriations by eliminating, delaying or reducing certain acquisitions for the school year 1993-94.

Regarding item 23, the Board states that a portion of these funds will be utilized to purchase equipment such as desks and chairs, library tables and chairs, and reading tables which will be used by pupils in grades 1-5. The purchase of this equipment has been necessitated by the enrollment increases during the last two years. The only money received in this area has been provided by the PTA through a fundraising project.

Regarding item 24, similar expenditures will be made for pupils in grades 6-8. Additionally, computer equipment must be purchased to replace the computers in the middle school computer lab which are obsolete and barely operational.

The $300 allocated for item 25 is for the replacement of office chairs. The old furniture must be replaced as it is damaged and barely usable.

In item 26, Council cut $7,500. This appropriation covers the replacement of lunchroom tables at the elementary school. The current tables are damaged and causing splinters. A three-year plan for replacement commenced last year. Additionally, the funds are necessary to purchase a high speed waxer/buffer and a steam rug cleaner to assist the custodial and maintenance staff in their efforts to clean and maintain the buildings. The current buffing machines are barely operational.

Upon review of the Board's rationale in the four items reviewed above, it is concluded that the items discussed are necessary for the safe and efficient operation of the district's schools. There are no supporting reasons for the reductions made by Council; consequently, the $10,800 reduction will be restored to the budget.

Board appealed General Fund tax levy reductions in the amount of $76,305 made by governing body following voter rejection of proposed budget on April 20, 1993.

Upon review of the appeal herein to determine whether Board demonstrated that restoration of specific line item reductions was necessary in order to provide a thorough and efficient system of education in the district, Commissioner determined to restore $51,930 for a total General Fund tax levy of $2,509,588 for 1993-94 school purposes.

This matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education on June 14, 1993 by way of the filing of a Petition of Appeal by the Board of Education of the Borough of Riverdale (Board), appealing the reduction in the 1993-94 budget imposed by the Mayor and Council of the Borough of Riverdale (Council) after the budget was defeated by the voters of the district in the annual school election held on April 20, 1993. Upon such defeat, the Board met and conferred with the Mayor and Council as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37 whereupon the Council adopted a resolution on May 12, 1993 imposing a $40,505 reduction in current expense items and $35,800 in capital outlay resulting in a total General Fund tax levy reduction of $76,305. The total proposed tax levy and certified tax levy as well as the amounts in dispute are set forth below:

Proposed tax levy adopted by the Riverdale Board of Education:		Amount of tax levy certified by governing body:
Current expense:	$2,424,463	Current expense:	$2,383,958
Capital outlay:	109,500	Capital outlay:	73,700
Total General Fund Tax Levy	$2,533,963	Total General Fund Tax Levy Certified	$2,457,658

Amount of reduction in the budget by governing body:

Current expense:	$40,505
Capital outlay:	35,800
Total General Fund Tax Levy Reduction	$76,305

Amount of reduction in dispute before the Commissioner:

Current expense:	$40,505
Capital outlay:	35,800
Total General Fund Tax Levy in Dispute	$76,305

At the time of its resolution setting forth the above cited $2,457,658 General Fund tax levy which included the $76,305 reduction, the Council identified the following accounts and the amount of reductions in each account:

It is to be noted that the above-cited resolution contained no rationale for the reductions imposed. On June 28, 1993 the Commissioner received the Council's Answer to the Petition of Appeal which set forth the following rationale for the reductions imposed in the Council's adopted certification resolution of May 12, 1993:

LINE ITEMS REDUCED; SUPPORTIVE REASONS

1. 11-190-100-[580]. Travel expense-Regular Programs (Convention) $2,100 reduce by [$550]. Costs of workshops should be borne by taxpayers, but not hotel rooms, food and travel. Personal costs should be borne by attendees.

2. 11-401-100-600. Co-curricular activities - Supplies and Materials. $825 reduced by $400. Deleted costs of shirts for pupils participating in Olympics Day. Shirts not necessary.

3. 11-402-100-610. Athletics and Supplies. $1,450 reduced by $450. Delete provision for hats for 28 pupils. Hats not necessary.

4. 11-000-100-561. Contingency-Tuition Regular $450,625 reduce by $10,290. Eliminate contingency for students. New students and departing students balance out.

5. 11-000-100-562. Tuition Special Ed. (Pompton Lakes) 117,816 reduced by $14,000. Cut one contingency student.

6. 11-000-222-600. Education Media Service. $5,725 reduce by 1,625. Need only 1/2 of AV this year.

7. 11-[000]-230-590-01. Board Expenses. Supp. Services. $5,000 reduced by $3,850. Cut hotel, food and travel expenses. Personal costs should be borne by attendees.

8. 11-[000]-230-590-02. General Administration Expenses. $1,800 reduce by $1,100. Cut hotel, food and travel. Personal costs should be borne by attendees.

9. 11-000-230-590-06. Superintendents Office Misc. Expenses. $7,406 by $1,200. Cut hotel, food and travel. Personal costs should be borne by attendees.

10. 11-000-240-590. Support Services School Administration Misc. $3,000 reduce by [$2,100]. Cut dinner for graduates and caps and gowns.

11. 11-000-270-511. Student Trans. $108,233 reduced by $2,000. Contingency for ill student never used.

12-000-230-730. Capital Outlay - General Admin. Equipment. $2,500 reduce by $1,000. For Fax machine not needed.

12-000-400-450. Capital Outlay - Remodeling. $50,000 reduce by $28,100. Board received bid of $21,900 to do job.

12-000-400-710. Capital Outlay - Site and Site Addition. $50,000 reduce by $6,700. Bid of $43,400 already received.

On July 19, 1993 the Board filed its Statement of Position and the Borough filed its Statement of Position on July 27, 1993. The Board filed a rebuttal on August 3, 1993. On August 4, 1993 the Board submitted a Motion and Brief in Support of Request for Summary Judgment which was not considered because there exists no provision for same in the regulations regarding budget appeals. On August 18, 1993, the Board resubmitted the same brief as a final summation pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.8, which has been reviewed and considered in this case. The record was closed on August 18, 1993.

STANDARD OF REVIEW

In rendering judgment relative to budgetary appeals, the Commissioner notes that the Constitution of the State of New Jersey requires the Legislature to provide for a thorough and efficient system of education. The Legislature by way of statutory scheme has delegated the responsibility for providing such thorough and efficient system to local boards of education. Additionally, the Legislature pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9, 22-14, 22-17 and 22-37 has authorized the Commissioner of Education to review and decide appeals by boards of education seeking restoration of budgetary reductions imposed by local governing bodies. (See also Board of Education of East Brunswick Township v. Township Council of East Brunswick, 48 N.J. 94 (1966) and Board of Education of Deptford Township v. Mayor and Council of Deptford Township, 116 N.J. 305 (1989).)

In reviewing such appeals, the Commissioner must determine whether a district board of education has demonstrated that the amount by which a specific line item reduction imposed by the governing body is necessary for the provision of a thorough and efficient system of education.

BOARD'S POSITION

Initially, the Board argues that the Council in failing to provide reasons for its reductions at the time the reductions were made acted in an arbitrary and capricious manner and therefore the amounts by which the various accounts cited above have been reduced should be restored. In support of its argument, the Board cites East Brunswick, supra, for the proposition that reasons must be given for all reductions imposed and further cites Deptford, supra, for the proposition that such reasons must accompany the reductions in order to assure that the municipality has considered the educational factors implicit in such reductions. Further, the Board points out that in Deptford the Supreme Court concluded that "the Commissioner is entitled to invoke a heavy presumption against the educational validity of the proposed budget cuts" (at 320) if the reasons for such cuts are not provided at the time the reductions are made and the greater the length of the delay, the stronger the presumption of lack of validity of such cuts.

The Board argues that the reasons supplied by the Council at the time of the filing of its Answer are not adequate reasons and it further urges the Commissioner to apply the heavier burden of proof mandated by Deptford, supra, in such cases where the filing of reasons are late.

Finally, the Board points out that its projected surplus at the end of the 1992-93 school of $40,000 is inadequate to meet contingencies which may occur during the 1993-94 school year which is precisely the area of the budget which the Borough has seen fit to reduce.

The Board's item-by-item justification for restoration is set forth below:

Account		Reduction
11-000-100-562	Tuition Special Education	$14,000
11-000-100-562		2,940

There are two separate amounts which were originally set for contingency purposes. One contingency amount was $28,000 for purposes of providing tuition for two handicapped students who might enter the district by the start of the 1993-94 school year from which the Council cut $14,000. The other contingency amount consisted of $2,940 set aside for the possible necessity of classifying a Riverdale student at Pompton Lakes High School who was not classified as handicapped at the time of entry into the receiving district.

It is the Board's contention that the two special education students no longer remain a contingency but have actually enrolled in the district and must be provided for from the funds set aside for such purpose.

The Board points out that the $2,940 set aside for one contingency special education student entering or presently enrolled at Pompton Lakes High School is still a contingency amount but represents a small and reasonable amount to be set aside for that purpose.

11-000-100-561	Tuition Regular	$10,290

The amount reduced in this account represents tuition set aside for 3.5 students not enrolled at the time of budget preparation but who might be enrolled at the opening of school and need to have tuition of $2,940 per student to Pompton Lakes. It is the Board's contention that three such students have in fact enrolled and that the remaining amount is necessary to guard against the possibility of a student enrolling after the start of the school year. In fact, the Board points out, should such a student be a senior, the tuition rate at Kinnelon High School where Riverdale seniors still attend would be $11,000.

11-000-270-511	Student Transportation Services	$ 2,000

This money is for unexpected transportation expenses such as the need to temporarily transport an injured student or students who cannot attend school without such services. The Board Secretary/Business Administrator certifies that in 1990-91 $838 was spent for such services for two different students on crutches while in 1991-92 $4,785 was expended for a single student in a wheelchair and crutches. She further certified the 1992-93 costs for such services were $3,878.

Account	Reduction
11-190-100-580	$ 550
11-000-230-590-01	3,850
11-000-230-590-02	1,100
11-000-230-590-06	1,200
Total	$6,700

All of the reductions in the above-cited accounts represent monies budgeted for attendance at conferences, conventions and workshops for Board members and professional personnel. The Board argues that it is essential that both Board members and administrators keep abreast of the latest developments within the areas of their responsibilities.

The Board points out that expenses for food, travel and hotel for such attendance on the part of administrators is a contractual benefit which would have to be met by taking money from other accounts for such purposes. As for Board member expenses for such matters, the Board cites a November 17, 1983 decision of the Commissioner in support of its position, Barnegat Township Board of Education v. Township of Barnegat. In that decision both the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) and the Commissioner agreed as to the importance of restoring such funds although in the final analysis in the case the amounts were directed to be taken out of the Board's extensive surplus.

11-000-240-590	School Admin./Support Services	$2,100

The monies eliminated in this account are for caps and gowns for students ($600) and an awards dinner ($1,500). The Board argues that caps and gowns have been a traditional part of graduation exercises and to have parents pay for them would result in some being able to do so and some being unable to do so.

It further pointed out that having parents pay for themselves at the awards dinner would only save $500 to $750.

Account		Reduction
11-401-100-600	Student Body Co-Curricular Activit.	$400

The amount cut here represents shirts for pupils participating in Olympics Day. The Board argues for its retention because of the self-esteem and school pride engendered by this small expenditure.

Account		Reduction
11-402-100-610	Student Body Athletic Supplies	$450

The amount reduced in this account represents expenditures for caps worn by the boys and girls softball teams. The Board contends that the hats are a necessary and sanitary protection. It further argues that it had promised to maintain the same level of amenities that seventh and eighth graders enjoyed when they attended Kinnelon Public Schools on a sending-receiving relationship.

Account		Reduction
11-000-222-600	Educational Media Services	$1,625

The reduction in this account represents 1/2 of the amount budgeted for new AV materials and computer software. The Board asserts that such a reduction makes little sense since the district is purchasing 19 new computers for its computer classes.

Account		Reduction
12-000-230-730	Capital Outlay - Gen. Admin. Equipment	$1,000

The amount reduced in this account represents $1,000 for a new fax machine. The Board's Business Administrator in her certification points out that material from the current fax machine comes out on curled, thin fax paper and must be recopied thus wasting time of employees and incurring additional expense in supplies. She contends that the load of faxes received is heavy and that a newer, more efficient machine would save both time and money.

12-000-400-450	Capital Outlay - Remodeling	$28,100

The Board originally allocated $50,000 for the removal of underground storage tanks along with repaving of the affected area. While the Board acknowledges that bids came in at a lesser cost than anticipated, the Council's determination to cut the account to the amount of the lowest bid, argues the Board, ignores attendant costs and the possible need to clean up any contamination discovered. The Board does acknowledge the possibility of a reduction of $2,321. (See Certification of Joan Marotta, Exhibit #1, at p. 7, of Board's Position Statement.)

Account		Reduction
12-000-400-710	Capital Outlay - Sites and Additions	$6,700

The Board budgeted $50,000 to convert from oil to gas heat. Since the bids came in lower than anticipated, the Board agrees that, except for $1,000 of expenses overlooked by the Council this account can be reduced by $5,700.

In summation, the Board argues that the Council acted arbitrarily in reducing the budget by deliberately targeting contingency funds based upon what it believed other districts were doing and because it contended that the Council would bail the Board out if the contingencies actually arose and by ignoring the facts presented to it that many of the contingencies were actualities by the time the budget was defeated.

By taking the approach that it did, the Board contends the Council acted from a tax cutting perspective rather than an educational one as required by East Brunswick, supra, and Deptford, supra.

COUNCIL'S POSITION

12-000-400-450	Capital Outlay - Remodeling	$28,100

The Council argues that the actual amount of the bid for removal of the oil tanks was $17,679, even less than the Council had allotted ($21,900). The Council argues that it had been told by the contractor that no contamination had been found, therefore it contends that $31,311 should be cut.

Account		Reduction
12-000-400-710	Capital Outlay - Sites and Additions	$6,700

In this account the Council agrees to accept the Board's acknowledgment that a $5,700 cut is sufficient.

Account		Reduction
11-402-100-610	Athletic Supplies	$450

The Council contends that the Little League buys hats at $5 per hat rather than the $16 per hat estimated by the Board, thus justifying its $450 reduction.

Account		Reduction
11-401-100-600	Co-Curricular Supplies	$400

The Council rebuts the Board's position by contending that good teaching, not T-shirts, produces self-esteem.

Account		Reduction
11-190-100-580	Travel Expenses	$ 550
11-000-230-590-01	Board Expenses	3,850
11-000-230-590-02	Admin. Expenses	1,100
11-000-230-590-06	Super. Off. Expenses	1,200

The Council contends that Board members go to Atlantic City taking their wives which in the Council's view constitutes a vacation. It argues that professionals should pay for their own professional training.

Account	Reduction
11-000-100-562	$14,000
	2,940

The Council contends the contingency no longer existed since three pre-school handicapped had already entered the school system.

Account		Reduction
11-000-100-561	Tuition Regular Contingency	$10,290

The Council contends that there is no new student entering the system who would go to Kinnelon.

Account		Reduction
11-000-222-600	Educational Media Services	$1,625

The Council does not quarrel with the purchase of 19 new computers but contends that existing soft-ware is sufficient.

Account		Reduction
12-000-230-730	Capital Outlay - Gen. Admin. Equipment	$1,000

The Council argues that most fax machines do not provide flat copies and the Board's interest is only in getting a "fancier" machine.

The Council summarizes its position as follows:

> Our cuts did not go after [core] issues of teaching. We want to cut disguised vacations (Atlantic City conventions); emphasize bargain shopping (hats) and eliminate non-essential costs such as graduation dinners and caps and gowns.
> Our position on capital cuts, are clearly borne out by the facts. Again, there is no soil contamination from the oil tank, and both the oil tank and heating bids came in much lower than projected. (Certification of John McKeown)

COMMISSIONER'S DECISION

Initially, the Commissioner notes that the Board quite accurately points out the standard that may be applied pursuant to Deptford, supra, when the governing body fails to provide its reasons for its recommended reductions simultaneously with the reductions themselves, as set forth on pages 5-6 herein. Further, she finds that excerpts from the transcripts of the Council debate provided by the Board offer strong evidence of that body's bent toward arbitrariness in determining to cut all contingencies based upon what it perceived to be a practice in other districts. Nonetheless, this flaw does not automatically result in full restoration of the budget reductions so as to eliminate the necessity for reviewing the reasons advanced by both parties on an account-by-account basis and making individual determinations pursuant to the standard of review which prevails in budget determinations as set forth in Deptford, supra, East Brunswick, supra, and State Board decision on July 1, 1992 in Board of Education of the Township of Rochelle Park v. Mayor and Council of Rochelle Park, Bergen County, 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 425. The effect of the flaw is that the Commissioner can invoke a heavy presumption against the educational validity of the reductions.

Account		Reduction
11-190-100-580	Travel	$ 550
11-000-230-590-01	Board Expenses	3,850
11-000-230-590-02	General Admin. Expenses	1,100
11-000-230-590-06	Superintendent's Office	1,200

Initially the Commissioner notes that expenses for travel, room and registration fees at conventions and workshops for administrators are matters of contractual obligation for the Board and must be honored. Therefore $550 for travel and $2,300 for administrative convention expenses are restored. Further, the Commissioner finds in conformity with Barnegat, supra, that attendance by Board members at conventions are a vital means of providing the necessary training requisite for effective Board membership. She therefore likewise directs the restoration of the $3,850 in Board member expenses for in-service development and training. In short, the Commissioner believes that board members who devote so much of their personal time and energy in performing a public service at no compensation and who have no other means of obtaining the knowledge and skills required to perform effectively in an increasingly complex environment need the opportunity to obtain the latest information and interact with their peers in order to provide effective policy leadership directed toward the provision of a thorough and efficient system of education.

Account		Reduction
11-000-100-562	Tuition Special Education	$14,000
11-000-100-562	Tuition Special Education	2,940
11-000-100-561	Tuition Regular	$10,290

The Commissioner has carefully considered the arguments presented by the parties in regard to the above-cited amounts for contingencies which were budgeted by the Board and reduced by the Council. Based upon that review the Commissioner finds that the Board's estimates for contingency purposes were both conservative and prudent. Given the very small anticipated surplus of $40,000, to do less would be irresponsible. In reaching this conclusion the Commissioner notes that the contingency of $14,000 which the Board provided for in special education is no longer a contingency amount but a real need, a matter which it is noted the Council misinterprets to mean that the money is no longer needed.

Therefore, in light of the Board's convincing arguments and the Council's inability to demonstrate anything other than its willingness to allow the Board to take a risk with the nebulous promise of "bailing them out," the Commissioner directs the restoration of $16,940 in account 11-000-100-562 and $10,290 in account 11-000-100-561.

11-000-270-511	Student Transportation Services	$2,000

Upon examination of the past experiences in this area and the inherent unpredictability, the Commissioner finds that the Board has met its burden of demonstrating that a $2,000 contingency fund for transporting students who require special services due to injury is both prudent and necessary. The Commissioner directs the restoration of $2,000 in this account.

Account		Reduction
11-000-240-590	Admin./Support Services	$2,100

Regretfully, the Commissioner determines that neither caps and gowns for elementary school graduation nor an awards dinner are factors necessary for the provision of a thorough and efficient system of education. Therefore the $2,100 reduction in this account is sustained.

Account		Reduction
11-401-100-600	Co-Curricular Supplies	$400
11-402-100-610	Athletics and Supplies	$450

The Commissioner finds that the Board has failed to meet its burden of demonstrating that T-shirts, prizes and softball hats are a necessary component of a thorough and efficient system of education. Therefore, the $850 reduction in these two accounts are sustained.

Account		Reduction
11-401-222-600	Education Media Services	$1,625

The Commissioner finds the reasons advanced by the Council, namely a determination that the district needs only 1/2 the AV materials it budgeted for, to be arbitrary; she also notes that the Board's only argument in support of its appropriation is the fact that it has ordered 19 new computers for instructional purposes. It provides no information as to what percentage of its old software remains useful while acknowledging that some of it does remain so. Further, the Board offers no explanation of what its current state of AV materials is and what new materials are required.

In light of the scarcity of detail and the burden which must be borne by the Board, the Commissioner sustains the $1,625 reduction in this account.

Account		Reduction
12-000-230-730	General Admin. Equipment	$1,000

The Board has not demonstrated that the new fax machine which it seeks is necessary in order to provide a thorough and efficient system of education. The reduction of $1,000 is sustained.

Account		Reduction
12-000-400-450	Remodeling	$28,100

It is clear from the arguments and figures provided by the parties that the actual bids received for removal of the oil tanks was $17,679 and that the amount budgeted for such purpose was $50,000. While the Board argues that clean-up of possible contamination makes its estimate viable, the Council insists no contamination exists. Assessing the validity of the Council's contention is impossible since it offers no proof nor any indication of what expertise for making such a decision exists in the contractor to whom its members spoke.

The Business Administrator's Certification attached to the Position Statement contains a letter from David Gurgel, an engineer employed by the tank removal company. That letter estimates the cost for clean-up of contamination from $2,000 to $15,000 with a recommendation to provide for $30,000 in the district's budget.

In light of the foregoing and given the fact that the Board in question had suffered a budget defeat, it would seem excessive to continue to budget $30,000 for a possible clean-up when preliminary indications as admitted are that no contamination exists. Therefore, the Commissioner concludes that it would be prudent for the Board to estimate a potential clean-up of $15,000 which added to the $17,679 for the removal totals $32,679. Consequently, the Commissioner directs a restoration of $15,000 in this account and sustains a reduction of $13,100.

Account		Reduction
12-000-400-710	Sites and Site Additions	$6,700

The parties agree that a $5,700 reduction can be sustained in this account resulting in a restoration of $1,000 to the Board.

SYNOPSIS

Board appealed General Fund tax levy reductions in the amount of $395,000 made by governing body following voter rejection of proposed budget on April 20, 1993.

Upon review of the appeal herein to determine whether Board demonstrated that restoration of specific line item reductions was necessary in order to provide a thorough and efficient system of education in the district, Commissioner determined to restore $395,000 for a total General Fund tax levy of $18,871,914 for 1993-94 school purposes.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF MAHWAH, PETITIONER, V. THE MAYOR AND TOWNSHIP COUNCIL OF THE TOWNSHIP OF MAHWAH, BERGEN COUNTY, RESPONDENT.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION DECISION

Mark G. Sullivan, Esq. (Sullivan & Sullivan), for Petitioner

John J. D'Anton, Esq. (D'Anton & Hummel), for Respondent

This matter was opened before the Commissioner on June 3, 1993 through the filing of a Petition of Appeal by the Board of Education of the Township of Mahwah (Board) seeking restoration, on the grounds of necessity for a thorough and efficient education, of reductions by the Mayor and Township Council of the Township of Mahwah (Council) in the General Fund tax levy for the 1993-94 school year. These reductions were made pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37 and N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.2(b)2 following voter rejection of the Board's proposed budget on April 20, 1993 and after consultation with the Board as required by law.

The total proposed and certified budgets, as well as the amounts in dispute in this matter, are set forth below:

Proposed Tax Levy Adopted by Board	Amount of Tax Levy Certified by Governing Body
General Fund $18,871,914	General Fund $18,476,914
Amount of Reduction By Governing Body	Amount of Reduction In Dispute
General Fund $395,000	General Fund $395,000

On June 18, 1993, Council filed its Answer to the Petition of Appeal. A Position Statement was filed by the Board on July 13, 1993 and by Council on July 16, 1993. Responses were filed by the Board on July 26, 1993 and by Council on July 27, 1993. The Board filed a Summary Statement on August 2, 1993. No other documents were received, and the record was closed on August 2, 1993.

The reductions to the General Fund tax levy and reasons for reductions as determined by Council are as follows:

Line No./Account No.	Account Title	Reduction
085-11-000-230 086-11-000-240	Support Servs. - General Adm. Support Servs. - School Adm.	Combined Reduction $295,000
095-12-000-73X	Capital Outlay - Equipment	100,000
	Total	$395,000

It should be noted that the Council's resolution had three errors in the list of reductions, listing internal program numbers as account numbers, recording a "17" in place of the "12" in the Capital Outlay account number, and including the Curriculum Director as one of the reductions although that position is not included in the designated account codes. It must also be noted that the Board in its Position Statement notes that the Council did not designate a line item for the equipment reductions. The Council, however, does have a line item/account code listed for equipment in its resolution, but with one number in error as noted above.

The rationale presented for the reduction in Support Services, General Administration and School Administration is that the positions of Assistant Superintendent, two Assistant Principals, the Curriculum Director, and other support staff can be eliminated since there is adequate other administrative personnel to provide a thorough and efficient education. The reduction of equipment is based on the reason that there is no justification for the expenditure.

STANDARD OF REVIEW

In rendering judgment relative to budgetary appeals, the Commissioner notes that the Constitution of the State of New Jersey requires the Legislature to provide for a thorough and efficient system of education. The Legislature by way of Statutory scheme has delegated the responsibility for providing such thorough and efficient system to local boards of education. Additionally, the Legislature pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9, 22-14, 22-17 and 22-37 has authorized the Commissioner of Education to review and decide appeals by boards of education seeking restoration of budgetary reductions imposed by local governing bodies. (See also Board of Education of East Brunswick Township v. Township Council of East Brunswick, 48 N.J. 94 (1966) and Board of Education of Deptford Township v. Mayor and Council of Deptford Township, 116 N.J. 305 (1989).)

In reviewing such appeals, the Commissioner must determine whether a district board of education has demonstrated that the amount by which a specific line item reduction imposed by the governing body is necessary for the provision of a thorough and efficient system of education.

Mindful, then, of the balance to be applied in the standard of review, the Commissioner makes the following determination with respect to the reduction in the General Fund tax levy effectuated by Council.

Item	Reduction
Support Services - General Administration Support Services - School Administration	$295,000

The Board disputes Council's statement that the positions of Assistant Superintendent, two Assistant Principals, the Curriculum Director and other support staff can be eliminated without a negative effect on the educational program. In its Position Statement, the Board presents arguments citing the necessity for each position and the individual job description listing duties and responsibilities. The Board states in defense of all positions listed above that the district enrollment and enrollment in the two buildings with the Assistant Principals have been increasing each year since 1987-88. The Board states that the Assistant Superintendent has, among other duties, responsibility for personnel and records management, negotiations and administration of labor agreements, and federally funded programs. The Assistant Principal at Ramapo Ridge School teaches two classes a day, assists with observation of staff and extra curricular activities, and is responsible for discipline, attendance, and scheduling. The Assistant Principal at Joyce Kilmer School serves fifty percent (50%) of the time in a guidance capacity, is responsible for discipline and attendance, and assists in the observation of staff and extra curricular activities. The Director of Instruction supervises the regular instructional program and curriculum of the district and also coordinates, evaluates, develops and implements new programs.

The Board states that the Council's reduction of secretarial staff is unclear, but it would affect the secretary to the Assistant Superintendent. The Board argues that this administrative position is essential and requires the position of secretary.

Council states in its Response to the Board's Position Statement that the reductions will not have any impact on the actual instruction provided to the students.

The Commissioner has carefully reviewed the arguments of both parties in this critical area of the budget appeal. After such review, the Commissioner finds that Council's arguments that such reductions would have no negative impact on the educational process are without merit. A thorough and efficient educational program requires the completion of a multitude of tasks outside of the classroom. These tasks are critically relevant to the effectiveness of the educational program. It is determined that the Board has clearly justified the necessity for these positions. The Commissioner therefore orders the restoration of the $295,000 reduction.

Equipment	$100,000

Council's reduction in this area was a general one without specifics as to which pieces of equipment it felt were unnecessary. In its Position Statement, Council agrees that the reduction applies to unspecified equipment. It states that the information provided to it does not document any specific items included in this account. In its Response to the Board's Position Statement, Council states that the reduction allowed the Board to reprioritize its equipment needs. Council also states that the Board in its Appeal must do more than simply assert that each item is necessary for a thorough and efficient education.

The Board in its Position Statement argues that it cannot address the reduction in equipment since no specific items were identified. It also states that the equipment was thoughtfully considered prior to its inclusion in the proposed budget and it disputes Council's claim of not having a list of specific equipment items. The Board states that an itemized list of Capital Outlay equipment items was submitted to Council. Indeed, Council's Answer to the Board's Petition did include as an attachment the itemized list of Capital Outlay equipment items.

In reviewing the information presented, the Commissioner determines that Council's reduction in equipment was not based on a review of the items and determination that specific pieces were unnecessary to a thorough and efficient education. The Commissioner finds, therefore, that this reduction was arbitrary and orders the restoration of the $100,000.

Thus, for the reasons set forth above, the Commissioner determines to restore $395,000 of the General Fund tax levy reduction appealed herein as summarized below:

Line No./ Account No.	Account Title	Reduction	Restored
085-11-000-230 086-11-000-240	Support Servs. - Gen. Admin. Support Servs. - School Admin.	$295,000	$295,000
095-12-000-73X	Capital Outlay - Equipment	100,000	100,000
	TOTAL	$395,000	$395,000

Accordingly, the Bergen County Board of Taxation is directed to make the necessary adjustment as set forth below to reflect a total of $18,871,914 to be raised in tax levy for the General Fund by the Township of Mahwah for the 1993-94 school year:

	General Fund
Original Tax Levy	$18,871,914
Reduction	395,000
Tax Levy After Reduction	18,476,914
Restoration	395,000
Tax Levy After Restoration	$18,871,914

IT IS SO ORDERED.

SYNOPSIS

Board appealed General Fund tax levy reductions in the amount of $245,184 made by governing body following voter rejection of proposed budget on April 20, 1993.

Upon review of the appeal herein to determine whether Board demonstrated that restoration of specific line item reductions was necessary in order to provide a thorough and efficient system of education in the district, Commissioner determined to restore $245,184 for a total General Fund tax levy of $14,562,151 for 1993-94 school purposes.

David W. Carroll, Esq. (Carroll & Weiss), for Petitioner

Mark S. Anderson, Esq. (Woolson, Sutphen, Anderson & Nergaard), for Respondent

This matter was opened before the Commissioner on June 4, 1993 through the filing of a Petition of Appeal by the Board of Education of the Township Branchburg (Board) seeking restoration, on the grounds of necessity for a thorough and efficient education, of reductions by the Township Committee of the Township of Branchburg (Committee) in the General Fund tax levy for the 1993-94 school year. These reductions were made pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37 and N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.2(b)2 following voter rejection of the Board's proposed budget on April 20, 1993 and after consultation with the Board as required by law.

The total proposed and certified budgets, as well as the amounts in dispute in this matter, are set forth below:

Proposed Tax Levy Adopted by Board	Amount of Tax Levy Certified by Governing Body
General Fund $14,581,767	General Fund $14,316,967
Amount of Reduction by Governing Body	Amount of Reduction in Dispute
General Fund $264,800	*General Fund $245,184

* It should be noted that there was some confusion about the figures in the chart above due to mathematical errors, but final documents from both parties indicate agreement on these corrected numbers.

On July 9, 1993, the Committee filed its Answer to the Petition of Appeal. This Answer did not comply with N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.6 for timeliness of filing or with N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.7 for submission of specific documentation with the Answer. The Board filed a Position Statement on July 29, 1993 and the Committee filed a combined Position Statement and Response to the Board's Position on August 2, 1993. The Board filed a Response to the Committee's Position Statement on August 12, 1993. No further documents were received and the record on this matter was closed on August 17, 1993.

The reductions to the General Fund tax levy and reasons for reductions as determined by Committee are as follows:

Account No.	Title	Reduction	Rationale
11-000-222-105-01-255	Library Clerk Salary	$ 22,900	Position can be eliminated without detriment to quality of education

The account codes listed above comply with the requirements of the Department of Education, but the last five numbers in each account number were added by the Board for internal accounting.

STANDARD OF REVIEW

In rendering judgment relative to budgetary appeals, the Commissioner notes that the Constitution of the State of New Jersey requires the Legislature to provide for a thorough and efficient system of education. The Legislature by way of statutory scheme has delegated the responsibility for providing such thorough and efficient system to local boards of education. Additionally, the Legislature pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9, 22-14, 22-17 and 22-37 has authorized the Commissioner of Education to review and decide appeals by boards of education seeking restoration of budgetary reductions imposed by local governing bodies. (See also Board of Education of East Brunswick Township v. Township Council of East Brunswick, 48 N.J. 94 (1966) and Board of Education of Deptford Township v. Mayor and Council of Deptford Township, 116 N.J. 305 (1989).)

In reviewing such appeals, the Commissioner must determine whether a district board of education has demonstrated that the amount by which a specific line item reduction imposed by the governing body is necessary for the provision of a thorough and efficient system of education.

Mindful, then, of the balance to be applied in the standard of review, the Commissioner makes the following determination with respect to the reduction in the General Fund tax levy effectuated by Committee.

11-000-222-105-01-255 - Library Clerk Salary	$22,900

In its resolution, the Committee states that this position can be eliminated without detriment to the quality of education. The Committee adds in its Position Statement that all the recommended reductions in staff are not teaching positions and, although not suggesting that these staff members perform no useful service for the schools, the Committee set its educational sights slightly lower and placed a slightly higher priority on the costs of these services. The Committee continues that they do not agree with the Board that budget issues must be determined solely by educational considerations and not in reaction to the voters' rejection of the school budget because this would make the submission of the school budget to the voters a vain and cynical act.

The Committee's concern with economic issues is certainly understandable but reflects a misunderstanding of the purpose of procedures following a budget rejected by the voters. These procedures provide the voters with the assurance of a detailed review of the proposed budget by the governing body. The requirements for that review, in fact the primary intent of all parties must be to ensure the provision of a thorough and efficient education, as specified in N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.2. As set for by the New Jersey Supreme Court in East Brunswick, supra, a governing body, as well as the Commissioner, must have as the sole standard of review, the necessity of funds for the provision of thorough and efficient education. Of this the court stated:

> "The governing body may, of course, seek to effect savings which will not impair the educational process. But its determination must be independent ones properly related to educational considerations rather than voter reactions. In every step, it must act conscientiously, reasonably and with full regard for the State's educational standards and its own obligation to fix a sum sufficient to provide a system of local schools which may fairly be considered thorough and efficient in view of the makeup of the community."
> (emphasis supplied, at 105-106).

The Board in its Position Statement notes that the library-media specialist in each school also functions as an instructor with a regular teaching schedule in the library. They also have periods set aside for individual needs work. Based on these schedules, the board states that a library-media clerk is essential in each school to carry out the extensive clerical and equipment responsibilities involved in running a library-media center. The Board submits a job description for the library-media clerk to verify the many and varied duties.

Based on the justification for this position submitted by the Board, the Commissioner orders the restoration of the $22,900 reduction.

11-000-240-103-01-333 - Assistant Principal Salary	$39,000

The Committee's position is the same for this reduction as noted above. The Board in its Position Statement lists the duties of the Assistant Principal at the Central School, a middle school serving grades 6-8. The Board states that the Assistant Principal is responsible for discipline and behavior problems, scheduling, use of school facilities, substitutes for the entire district, facilities maintenance, and supervision/evaluation of staff with 15 formal teaching observations, conferences, and written reports each year.

Based on the information submitted, the Commissioner determines that the duties performed by the Assistant Principal are essential and could not be reasonably assumed as additional responsibilities by the Principal. The Commissioner orders the restoration of the $39,000 reduction.

11-000-240-103-01-334 - Supervisor of Basic Skills Salary	$39,000

The Committee's position is again the same for this reduction as noted above. The Board in its Position Statement notes that this position was created in 1992-93 as a consolidation of two previous part-time Assistant Principal positions. The job description for the Supervisor of Basic Skills as submitted by the Board lists a number of specific duties, including testing, pupil assessment and grouping, and placement decisions.

Since all the duties involved in an effective basic skills program are critically essential to the provision of a thorough and efficient education, the Commissioner orders the restoration of the $39,000 reduction.

Account	Reduction
11-000-290-340-01-582 - Printing/Publishing	$10,000

The Board accepts this reduction and thus it is not part of the appeal.

11-000-290-105-01-531 - Board Office Clerical Salaries	$50,000

The Committee's rationale for this reduction is the same as noted above. The Board in its Position Statement lists the Board Office/Central Office clerical staffing as follows: One secretary for the Superintendent, one secretary for the Business Administrator/ Board Secretary, a full-time accounts payable/accounts receivable secretary who also serves as receptionist, and a part-time payroll secretary. The Board also notes that two positions, a second secretary for the Superintendent and a bookkeeper, have been eliminated in the past six years.

The Commissioner finds impossible to determine how the Committee believed this clerical staff of three full-time and one part-time positions could be significantly reduced and still ensure the efficient completion of the many clerical tasks involved in the responsible operation of a school district of this size. The Commissioner orders the restoration of the $50,000 reduction.

11-000-240-105-01-336 - Secretary Salary - Central	$25,000

Again, the Committee's rationale for this reduction is the same as noted above. The Board in its Position Statement lists an extensive number of tasks completed by the three secretaries who serve the Principal, Assistant Principal, and Guidance Counselor. The duties include typing of a multitude of letters, reports, memos, certificates, requisitions, newsletters, and specific notices and forms, maintaining and monitoring various miscellaneous accounts and records within the school, and serving the main office reception area for students, teachers, parents and visitors.

The Commissioner determines that the Board has verified the need for these positions for the efficient operation of the school and orders the restoration of the $25,000 reduction.

11-000-290-290-01-555	Dental Insurance	9,360
11-000-290-290-01-558	Prescription Insurance	2,160
11-000-290-290-01-561	Vision Care Reimbursement	780
11-000-290-220-01-543	Social Security - Other	7,490
11-000-290-241-01-547	Pension Payments - PERS	6,210

The Committee reduced all the benefit areas listed above on the basis of the reductions in personnel that it had identified. Since it has been determined that these personnel positions are to be restored, the Commissioner orders the restoration of these reductions - $36,900, $9,360, $2,160, $780, $7,490, and $6,210.

12-000-270-733-07-621 - Reduced Cost of Two School Buses	$16,000

Both parties agree that the low bid for two new school buses is less than the amount in the proposed budget. The Committee in its Position Statement asserts that the reduction of $16,000 was agreed to by the Board. The Board, however, in its Position Statement cites a bid price which is $9,616 less than the budgeted amount and seeks restoration, as listed in the Petition of Appeal, of $6,384.

It is not possible to determine why the two parties have differing positions on the amount of possible reduction in this area. However, the Board has submitted an affidavit from the Board Secretary/ Business Administrator certifying the low bid for the two school buses as $96,384, which is $9,616 less than the budgeted amount of $106,000. Therefore, of the $16,000 reduction, the Commissioner orders the restoration of $6,384.

Thus, for the reasons set forth above, the Commissioner determines to restore $245,184 of the $245,184 in General Fund reductions appealed herein as summarized by the chart below:

Account No.	Title	Reduction	Restored	Sustained	Unappealed

Accordingly, the Somerset County Board of Taxation is directed to make the necessary adjustment as set forth below to reflect a total of $14,562,151 to be raised in General Funds tax levy by the Township of Branchburg for the 1993-94 school year:

	General Fund

SYNOPSIS

Board appealed General Fund tax levy reductions in the amount of $250,000 made by governing body following voter rejection of proposed budget on April 20, 1993.

Upon review of the appeal herein to determine whether Board demonstrated that restoration of specific line item reductions was necessary in order to provide a thorough and efficient system of education in the district, Commissioner determined to restore $250,000 for a total General Fund tax levy of $53,700,799 for 1993-94 school purposes.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF HAMILTON, PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
MAYOR AND COUNCIL OF THE TOWNSHIP OF HAMILTON, MERCER COUNTY, RESPONDENT.	:	DECISION

Michael R. Paglione, Esq. (Paglione & Massi), for Petitioner

Raymond A. Ash III, Esq., for Respondent

This matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education by way of a Petition of Appeal filed by the Board of Education of Hamilton Township School District (Board) on June 8, 1993 seeking restoration, on the grounds of necessity for a thorough and efficient education of the reduction of $250,000 in its General Current Expense tax levy proposal imposed by the Mayor and Township Council of Hamilton Township (Council) for the 1993-94 school year. This reduction was made pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37 and the applicable provisions of N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.2(b)2 following voter rejection of the Board's proposed General Current Expense budget on April 20, 1993, and after consultation with the Board as required by law. The total proposed and certified budgets as well as the amount in dispute in the instant matter are set forth below:

Proposed Tax Levy Adopted by Board		Amount of Tax Levy Certified by Council
Current Expense	$52,340,448	Current Expense	$52,090,448
Capital Outlay	1,360,351	Capital Outlay	1,360,351
Total General Fund	$53,700,799	Total General Fund	$53,450,799

Amount of Reduction in Board's Budget by Council		Amount of Reduction in Dispute before Commissioner
General Fund	$ 250,000	General Fund	$ 250,000

(Board's Petition, Exhibit A)

The reduction at issue which was imposed by Council at its meeting of May 10, 1993 reads in pertinent part as follows:

> BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED by the Council of the Township of Hamilton that reductions of the Hamilton Township Board of Education 1993 - 1994 budget are recommended in the area specified hereafter, which expenditure is not essential to the provision of a thorough and efficient system of schools in the Hamilton Township School District, for the stated reason:
> > $250,000 IN FREE APPROPRIATIONS BALANCE/SURPLUS TO APPROPRIATIONS
> > The Council of the Township of Hamilton finds that it is just and reasonable to utilize Free Appropriations Balance/Surplus to offset the level of General Current Expenses, Capital Outlay and Special Schools to be funded through the collection of local taxes. (Board's Petition, Exhibit B)

Initially the Commissioner observes from the foregoing recitation of facts that it is evident that Council's tax levy reduction of $250,000 was effectuated in the current expense portion of the Board's budget submission to the voters. It is further observed that Council did not specify those current expense line items or give its supporting reasons for such reduction of $250,000 to which this anticipated surplus revenue was to be applied. Council filed its Answer on June 23, 1993 which confirmed the amount in dispute listed above. Both parties submitted their respective written statements of position on July 23, 1993. Thereafter the record of this matter was closed.

STANDARD OF REVIEW

In rendering judgment relative to budgetary appeals, the Commissioner notes that the Constitution of the State of New Jersey requires the Legislature to provide for a thorough and efficient system of education. The Legislature by way of statutory scheme has delegated the responsibility for providing such thorough and efficient system to local boards of education. Additionally, the Legislature pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9, 22-14, 22-17 and 22-37 has authorized the Commissioner of Education to review and decide appeals by boards of education seeking restoration of budgetary reductions imposed by local governing bodies. (See also Board of Education of East Brunswick Township v. Township Council of East Brunswick, 48 N.J. 94 (1966) and Board of Education of Deptford Township v. Mayor and Council of Deptford Township, 116 N.J. 305 (1989).)

In reviewing such appeals, the Commissioner must determine whether a district board of education has demonstrated that the amount by which a specific line item reduction imposed by the governing body is necessary for the provision of a thorough and efficient system of education.

Mindful, then, of the balance to be applied in this standard of review, the Commissioner makes the following determination with respect to the reduction in the tax levy effectuated by Council.

Revenue Surplus Balance (Anticipated) from 1991-92 School Year

It is Council's position that the Board has historically underestimated its actual amounts of surplus balances on an annual basis which has resulted in such surplus balances being well in excess of those previously reported by the Board in the prior school year.

The Board contends that its surplus balance for the 1991-92 school year was originally anticipated at $450,127 and the reduction of $250,000 would bring the balance to $200,127 or approximately .2% of its total $98,766,844 budget for the 1993-94 school year. The Board maintains that the Commissioner has routinely permitted an appropriations balance/surplus of 3% of a total school budget as being reasonable and necessary to provide a thorough and efficient system of education.

The Board further maintains that since the time it reported its original anticipated surplus balance, unanticipated expenses have already arisen prior to the commencement of the 1993-94 academic school year:

> Such unanticipated expenses have already arisen. Over the course of the past eight weeks, $45,000 had to be appropriated to replace portions of the roof at the Yardville School, $45,000 was appropriated on an emergency basis to remove an underground fuel oil tank at Hamilton High School West and it was necessary to undertake emergency asbestos removal at the Sayen School, at a cost of $9,300, and at the Klockner School at a cost of $1,800. The total cost of these emergency repairs totalled $101,100 and such a cost already exceeds one-half of the available $200,127 remaining in surplus after Council's reduction.
> It is foreseeable that in a school district the size of Hamilton Township with 26 school buildings further emergency repairs will be necessary during the 1993/94 school year. It is essential, in order to provide a thorough and efficient education, that these repairs be made as soon as the emergency arises. Even without the $250,000 reduction by Council, the School District's budget surplus is still below a "comfortable" surplus amount and far below the [ideal] surplus amount required to address future emergency repairs to the school facilities.

(Board's Position Statement, at pp. 3-4)

Council rejects the Board's arguments in support of the restoration of the $250,000 reduction imposed on its General Current Expense tax levy request by the application of an equal amount of the Board's unanticipated surplus funds. It takes the position that the Commissioner has never approved any fixed parameters with respect to the amount or percentage of an unappropriated free balance to be maintained by a local board of education. To the contrary Council maintains that the Commissioner has expressed caution against the maintenance of a balance to fund all possible contingencies. Council relies on Board of Education of Lakewood v. Township Committee of the Township of Lakewood, Ocean County, 1976 S.L.D. 27 which holds that a determination of unappropriated free balances should be reasonable and the judgment to be employed must be objective, rather than subjective. In this regard Council contends that the Board lost its objectivity in merely attaching an arbitrary percentage of 2% of its total budget appropriations for the incorporation of a free surplus balance into its 1993-94 budget request.

The Commissioner has reviewed the respective written positions of the parties pertaining to the tax levy reduction of $250,000 controverted herein.

The Commissioner finds that the original unappropriated free balance of $450,127 reserved by the Board in its 1993-94 current expense budget request has been eroded by $101,100 prior to the commencement of the 1993-94 school year due to unforeseen unanticipated expenditures. The question which is now before the Commissioner to determine is whether or not Council's reduction of $250,000 in the General Current Expense tax levy would negatively impact upon the Board's ability to maintain a reasonable free balance for unforeseen expenditures which could possibly be incurred during the remaining months of the academic school year. In taking these unanticipated expenditures of $101,100 and Council's tax levy reduction of $250,000 into consideration, the Commissioner finds and determines that an amount of $99,027 which remains in free balance for the 1993-94 school year is insufficient for the Board to meet any further unanticipated contingencies for the remainder of the school year. This is especially true in view of the size and complexity of operations in the Hamilton Township school District which has projected a total budget of $98,766,844 for the 1993-94 school year. Thus for the reasons set forth above the Commissioner determines that Council's tax levy reduction of $250,000 in the Board's General Current Expense appropriations for the 1993-94 school year cannot be sustained and the $250,000 reduction is set aside.

Accordingly, the Commissioner hereby directs the Mercer County Board of Taxation to increase the General Fund tax levy for school purposes in the School District of Hamilton Township by $250,000 for the 1993-94 school year. This amount when added to the $53,450,799 previously certified in the General Fund tax levy will result in a total amount of $53,700,799.

Amount previously certified by Council	$53,450,799
Amount restored by Commissioner	250,000
Total General Fund Tax Levy	$53,700,799

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, October 15, 1993

For the Petitioner-Respondent, Gaccione, Pomaco & Beck (Frank Pomaco, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Appellant, Robert J. Giordano, Esq.

The decision of the Commissioner of Education is affirmed for the reasons expressed therein. We, however, set aside the Commissioner's finding that Commissioner's decision, at 4.

To the contrary, as a general matter, it is well settled that where the Commissioner of Education has jurisdiction over a dispute under the education laws, he also has incidental jurisdiction to determine issues arising under the Open Public Meetings Act as they relate to such controversy. Upon review of the appeal herein to determine whether Board demonstrated that restoration of specific line item reductions was necessary in order to provide a thorough and efficient system of education in the district, Commissioner determined to restore $99,999 for a total General Fund tax levy of $1,875,230 for 1993-94 school purposes.

A. Paul Kienzle, Jr., Esq. (Casarow, Casarow, & Kienzle), for Petitioner

Ross Levitsky, Esq., for Respondent

This matter was opened before the Commissioner on June 4, 1993 through the filing of a Petition of Appeal by the Board of Education of the Township of Lower Alloways Creek (Board) seeking restoration, on the grounds of necessity for a thorough and efficient education, of reductions by the Mayor and Township Committee of the Township of Lower Alloways Creek (Committee) in the General Fund tax levy for the 1993-94 school year. These reductions were made pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37 and N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.2(b)2 following voter rejection of the Board's proposed budget on April 20, 1993 and after consultation with the Board as required by law.

The total proposed and certified budgets, as well as the amounts in dispute in this matter, are set forth below:

Proposed Tax Levy Adopted by Board	Amount of Tax Levy Certified by Governing Body
General Fund $1,875,230	General Fund $1,775,231
General Fund $99,999	General Fund $99,999

On June 17, 1993, the Committee filed its Answer to the Petition of Appeal. A Position Statement was filed by the Board on June 28, 1993. A Position Statement was filed by the Committee on July 14, 1993. The Board filed a Final Summation on July 30, 1993, and Committee submitted a Summary on August 6, 1993. No further documents were received and the record was closed on August 6, 1993.

The reductions to the General Fund tax levy and reasons for reductions as determined by the Committee are as follows:

Line Item	Description	Reduction	Rationale
11-1XX-100-XXX	Regular Programs Instruction	$30,114	Eliminate second physical education teacher position
11-1XX-100-XXX	Regular Programs Instruction	$ 6,201	Eliminate teacher salary portion of Assistant Principal position

STANDARD OF REVIEW

In rendering judgment relative to budgetary appeals, the Commissioner notes that the Constitution of the State of New Jersey requires the Legislature to provide for a thorough and efficient system of education. The Legislature by way of statutory scheme has delegated the responsibility for providing such thorough and efficient system to local boards of education. Additionally, the Legislature pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9, 22-14, 22-17 and 22-37 has authorized the Commissioner of Education to review and decide appeals by boards of education seeking restoration of budgetary reductions imposed by local governing bodies. (See also Board of Education of East Brunswick Township v. Township Council of East Brunswick, 48 N.J. 94 (1966) and Board of Education of Deptford Township v. Mayor and Council of Deptford Township, 116 N.J. 305 (1989).)

In reviewing such appeals the Commissioner must determine whether a district board of education has demonstrated that the amount by which a specific line item reduction imposed by the governing body is necessary for the provision of a thorough and efficient system of education.

Mindful, then, of the balance to be applied in the standard of review, the Commissioner makes the following determination with respect to the reduction in the General Fund tax levy effectuated by the Committee.

Item	Reduction
Regular Programs - Instruction Physical Education Teacher	$30,114

The Committee states that a second physical education teacher in a K-8 school is a duplication and is not required for the thorough and efficient education for an elementary school of 266 students. The Board states that the physical education teachers have training in and responsibilities for instruction in Family Life Education, Drug and Alcohol Prevention Education, and HIV/AIDS Education, all mandated programs, in addition to the regular physical education program. The Board also states that the physical education teachers provide supervision while students are in the locker rooms and organization and supervision of lunchtime recess activities. It further states that the reduction would result in the termination of employment of a black, male teacher, who is the only minority teacher and one of only two males in the regular educational program. The Committee states in its Position Statement that, although this argument is certainly important to the district in terms of enriching the students' educational experience, it is irrelevant to the situation herein. The arguments regarding staff reductions involve only the positions, not the individuals in the positions. The Committee in its Position Statement cites a comparison of physical education staffing in nine other districts and noted that only two had two physical education teachers. The Committee also stated that classroom teachers and the school nurse could fill any gap caused by the reduction in physical education staffing. It further states that supervision in the locker room is unnecessary. The Committee in its comparison of physical education staffing in other districts did not include consideration of the total available staff in the other districts or how the mandated programs were being provided. Also, the suggestion that classroom teachers and the school nurse could handle additional duties presumes that this would be possible with their present schedules and contractual duties.

It is determined that the Board has defended the need for two physical education teachers to provide mandated programs to the students. The Commissioner orders the restoration of the $30,114 reduction.

Item	Reduction
Regular Programs - Instruction - Teacher Salary Portion of Assistant Principal Position	$ 6,201

The Board in its Position Statement argues that the elimination of the Assistant Principal's instructional duties would negatively impact the students in the reading program. The Committee in its Position Statement asserts that the reading class taught by the Assistant Principal is a separate issue and does not detract from the fact that this administrative post is not needed in the district. The Committee does not state that this instructional program should be eliminated.

It is determined, therefore, that this reduction is an arbitrary action by the Committee. The Commissioner orders the restoration of the $6,201 reduction.

Instruction - Reduction of Tuition	$10,000

The Board in its Position Statement notes that throughout the year additional tuition students are placed in educational programs, and that the Board already anticipates placements with two possible situations that currently exist. The Committee in its Position Statement maintains that these placements are not yet made and, if they do occur later, can be funded by monies within the budget or surplus. Planning ahead to budget responsibly is a serious and challenging task for every school district. The Commissioner is aware of the difficulties involved in precisely determining special educational needs since evaluations and placements are ongoing throughout any school year. In this matter, the Board has identified two very specific possible placements that may occur in 1993-94.

Therefore, based on the information presented, the Commissioner orders the restoration of the $10,000 reduction.

Item	Reduction
Business and Other Support Services - Savings from Policy Renewals	$ 5,785

The Committee asserts in its Position Statement that the reduction was based on annual rebates received by the Board on its renewal of insurance contracts and the surplus at the end of each year in the insurance accounts. The Board states that the Committee has not identified what policies are referred to or what insurance premiums are being reduced.

In reviewing the documents submitted, the Commissioner agrees that the Committee does not provide any specifics on how the savings can be accomplished or document what it claims to be prior savings. The Commissioner orders the restoration of the $5,785 reduction.

Support Services - School Administration Assistant Principal	$33,899

The Committee in its resolution states that the position of Assistant Principal can be eliminated in a district of this size without affecting the thorough and efficient education of the students. The Committee adds that the duties of the Assistant Principal can be assumed by the Chief School Administrator. The Board in its Position Statement lists the duties and responsibilities of the Assistant Principal, which include observations and evaluations of one-half of the certified, tenured teaching staff, observations and evaluations of one-third of the certified non-tenured teaching staff, completion of Annual Performance Reports and Professional Improvement Plans for one-half of the certified, tenured teaching staff, completion of the annual evaluation/observation forms for twenty-one support staff employees, and assistance with staff supervision, educational objectives and requirements, reporting necessities, preparation and work on curricula, and work on monitoring programs. The Committee acknowledges in its Position Statement that the Assistant Principal appears to carry a full work load, but claims that these duties can be reasonably delegated to other positions without impacting on the thorough and efficient educational program.

The Commissioner has carefully reviewed the arguments of both parties on this issue. A thorough and efficient educational program requires the completion of a multitude of tasks outside of the classroom. These tasks are critically relevant to the effectiveness of the educational program. In this matter, it does not seem reasonable that the Chief School Administrator can complete the duties already assigned to that position and mandated by statute and code and also effectively assume the administrative responsibilities now completed by the Assistant Principal. The Commissioner orders the restoration of the $33,899 reduction.

Item	Reduction
Business and Other Support Services - Fringe Benefits	$14,000

The Committee based this reduction in fringe benefits on the elimination of the Assistant Principal and one physical education teacher positions. Since the Commissioner has ordered the restoration of funds for those two positions, the restoration of this $14,000 reduction is also ordered.

Thus, for the reasons set forth above the Commissioner determines to restore $99,999 of the General Fund tax levy reduction appealed herein as summarized below:

Line Item	Description	Reduction	Restored	Sustained
11-1XX-100-XXX	Regular Programs Instruction - Physical Education Teacher	$30,114	$30,114	-0-
11-1XX-100-XXX	Regular Programs Instruction - Assistant Principal Teaching Salary	$ 6,201	$ 6,201	-0-
11-000-100-XXX	Instruction - Tuition	$10,000	$10,000	-0-
11-000-290-XXX	Business and Other Support Services - Fringe Benefits	$14,000	$14,000	-0-
11-000-290-XXX	Business and Other Support Services - Policy Renewals	$ 5,785	$ 5,785	-0-
11-000-240-XXX	Support Services - School Administration Assistant Principal	$33,899	$33,899	-0-
	Totals	$99,999	$99,999	-0-

Accordingly, the Salem County Board of Taxation is directed to make the necessary adjustment as set forth below to reflect a total of $1,875,230 to be raised in tax levy for the General Fund by the Township of Lower Alloways Creek for the 1993-94 school year:

	General Fund
Original Tax Levy	$1,875,230
Reduction	99,999

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Board appealed General Fund tax levy reductions in the amount of $865,600 made by governing body following voter rejection of proposed budget on April 20, 1993.

Upon review of the appeal herein to determine whether Board demonstrated that restoration of specific line item reductions was necessary in order to provide a thorough and efficient system of education in the district, Commissioner determined to restore $639,835 for a total General Fund tax levy of $21,076,171 for 1993-94 school purposes.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF BELLEVILLE, PETITIONER, V. MAYOR AND COUNCIL OF THE TOWNSHIP OF BELLEVILLE, ESSEX COUNTY, RESPONDENT.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION DECISION

For Petitioner, Frank Pomaco, Esq. (Gaccione, Pomaco & Beck)

For Respondent, Robert J. Giordano, Esq.

The Board of Education of the Township of Belleville, (Board) appeals to the Commissioner of Education from an action taken by the Mayor and Council of the Township of Belleville (Council) pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37 certifying to the Essex County Board of Taxation a lesser amount for General Fund costs for the 1993-94 school year than the amount proposed by the Board in its budget which was rejected by the voters.

At the annual school election held on April 20, 1993, the Board submitted to the electorate a proposal to raise $21,301,936 by local taxation for General Fund costs of the school district. Following voter rejection of the proposal, the Board submitted its budget to Council for its determination of the amount necessary for the operation of a thorough and efficient school system in the Township of Belleville for the 1993-94 school year pursuant to the mandatory obligation imposed on Council by N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37.

After consultation with the Board, Council made its determination and certified to the Essex County Board of Taxation an amount of $20,436,336 for General Fund costs.

GENERAL FUND

Board's Proposal	$21,301,936
Council's Certification	20,436,336
Amount Reduced	$ 865,600

Council filed its Answer on June 24, 1993. The Board filed its Position Statement on July 26, 1993; Council also filed its written position on July 26, 1993. Council filed a response to the Board's statement on August 6, 1993 and the Board filed a Final Summation on August 23, 1993. Thereafter the record was closed.

STANDARD OF REVIEW

In rendering judgment relative to budgetary appeals, the Commissioner notes that the Constitution of the State of New Jersey requires the Legislature to provide for a thorough and efficient system of education. The Legislature by way of statutory scheme has delegated the responsibility for providing such thorough and efficient system to local boards of education. Additionally, the Legislature pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9, 22-14, 22-17 and 22-37 has authorized the Commissioner of Education to review and decide appeals by boards of education seeking restoration of budgetary reductions imposed by local governing bodies. (See also Board of Education of East Brunswick Township v. Township Council of East Brunswick, 48 N.J. 94 (1966) and Board of Education of Deptford Township v. Mayor and Council of Deptford Township, 116 N.J. 305 (1989).)

In reviewing such appeals, the Commissioner must determine whether a district board of education has demonstrated that the amount by which a specific line item reduction imposed by the governing body is necessary for the provision of a thorough and efficient system of education.

Mindful, then, of the balance to be applied in this standard of review, the Commissioner makes the following determination with respect to the reduction in the General Fund tax levy effectuated by Council.

OPEN PUBLIC MEETINGS ACT

Before discussing any of the line item reductions, it is necessary to examine the Board's allegation that Council violated the provisions of the Open Public Meetings Act, N.J.S.A. 10:4-8 and 10:4-9, by failing to give proper notice of its meeting on May 13, 1993, when it certified the tax levy. The Board seeks restoration of its full budget because of the alleged OPMA violation.

The record shows that Council gave proper notice of its meeting of May 13, 1993; however, when it realized that it would be unable to have a quorum for that meeting, after discussion the meeting was changed to a time six hours earlier than originally scheduled.

Council concedes that it was unable to give proper notice of this change in time; however, it asserts that the change of meeting time was necessary because of the urgency of adopting the resolution (certifying the tax levy) on time.

As to the OPMA allegations advanced by the Board, the Commissioner finds and determines that she does not have jurisdiction over allegations of violation of the OPMA levied against a municipal governing body. What authority she does have would rest solely in terms of a board of education's actions and even under such matters, her authority is limited. See Michael Rovello et al. v. Michael Boyel et al., decided by the Commissioner March 15, 1993.

BUDGET LINE ITEM ANALYSIS

11-000-230-520 - Insurance	$22,600

Council's reduction in this account is $22,600. It based its reduction on its contention that the account was overbudgeted last year to the degree that the Board transferred $30,000 to another account. Further, it asserts that the Board does not need an umbrella policy and that it did not have one last year.

The Board has budgeted $194,500 for property and liability insurance for the 1993-94 school year. Included in this amount is the premium for the umbrella insurance policy. The record shows that $170,316 in premiums was expended in the 1992-93 school year. The Commissioner finds Council's reduction of $14,500 for the umbrella policy is valid and it will be sustained. Even with this reduction, the Board will experience a modest increase in its insurance account. Therefore, $8,100 will be restored to the budget.

11-000-230-531 - Telephone	$5,000

The Board budgeted $55,000 for this line item. Council states that the Board merely restated the budgeted amount for the 1992-93 school year rather than calculating its expenditures on current telephone usage. Council asserts that an increase of $2,000 over the $48,000 spent last year is sufficient; therefore, $50,000 is adequate for this line item.

The Board Secretary's affidavit shows an expenditure in this account of $49,095 for the 1992-93 school year. The Board states that a $50,000 budget might be adequate for this item if usage remained the same; however, Council did not consider the Board's anticipated move to the high school building which would require additional telephone installations and hookups in the new facility.

Based on the Board's anticipated move, it seems reasonable that an increase in this fund is necessary; however, it appears that an increase of $2,500 would be sufficient at this time until the Board develops a record of expenditures in this account. Accordingly, a reduction of $2,500 will be allowed.

Account	Reduction
11-000-230-580 - Travel	$5,500

Council recognizes that Board and administrative attendance at professional conferences are both important elements in maintaining a thorough and efficient system of education; however, it deems the appropriation of $16,500 in travel and conference expenses excessive.

The Board has calculated that the cost to attend all conferences by Board members and the administration would be $30,700. Therefore, it reasons that it has already trimmed its budget by $14,200. The Board maintains that conferences are learning experiences and are integral to professional growth. It encourages its members to take advantage of the benefits they offer.

The Commissioner finds that Council's reduction in this account is excessive; however, it appears that the Board will still be able to achieve its objective with a reduction of $2,000. Sufficient funds will remain so that some of the Board members and the administration may attend all of the scheduled conferences and meetings. Therefore, the amount of $3,500 is restored.

11-000-290-220 - Social Security Contributions	$80,000

Council's analysis for social security contributions took into account all salaries for those employees not covered by the Teachers Pension and Annuity Fund. Council calculated the amount that would be necessary to fund this line item and determined that the Board exceeded this reasonable calculation by the amount reduced.

The Board produced an affidavit by its Board Secretary which shows that the amounts of $246,249 and $261,025 were expended for this line item in the 1991-92 and 1992-93 school years. It budgeted $270,000 for this account and concludes that the $190,000 allowed by Council is insufficient.

Based on the above, the record shows that the Board's budget in this account is reasonable considering its past expenses; therefore, the $80,000 reduction will be restored.

Account	Reduction
11-000-290-241 - Other Retirement Contributions	$ 23,000

Council maintains that its reduction allows for a ten percent increase over the amount budgeted last year and that the Board has failed to substantiate a need for more than $89,000 in this account.

The Board argues that the Public Employees Retirement System cost $60,000 in 1992-93 and that the invoice for 1993-94 is $78,577. The Essex County Pension Fund cost $20,361 in 1992-93; therefore, it needs a minimum of $100,000 to fund these two line items.

The record supports the Board's position. Consequently, the Commissioner determines that a reduction of $12,000 will be allowed and $11,000 will be restored to the budget.

11-000-290-290 - Other Employee Benefits	$100,000

This account is budgeted at $3,424,980. Council researched the percentage increase being charged in this account by other boards as compared to the increases requested by the Belleville Board and found the projections used for 1993-94 to be "slightly excessive." By contrast, the Board set forth a detailed listing of its expected costs in this account. Its last projection, as documented in its Position Statement, shows an expenditure in this account of $3,348,158. The Board budgeted $26,635 or .8% more than its projection.

Based on the foregoing, the Commissioner finds that the Board has demonstrated a need for the monies budgeted in this account, except its .8% increase; therefore, a reduction of $26,635 will be allowed, and $73,365 will be restored to the budget.

Account	Reduction
11-000-290-340 - Technical Services	$ 2,500

Council suggests that the travel budget, analyzed earlier, is sufficient for all administrative travel expenses of the Board. It contends that this account can be eliminated without affecting the thoroughness and efficiency of education within the district.

The Board argues that it cannot eliminate its contractual obligation to the business administrator for travel expenses. This money is not provided for elsewhere in the budget. Council failed to identify it properly and give any reason for a reduction in this account.

The Board has shown with sufficient explanation its need for the monies in this account. Conversely, Council did not supply any valid reason for a reduction. The Commissioner determines that $2,500 will be restored to the budget.

11-000-209-500 - General Supplies	$ 8,000

Council asserts that it was unable to make a direct comparison of prior year's expenditures. However, it has determined that the appropriations of $96,100 for the 1992-93 school year have been increased to $119,900 for 1993-94. Council's review of other accounts indicates that office supplies were provided for by way of an appropriation of $7,500 in Account 11-000-230-061 for the Board, School Election and Superintendent. Additionally, $12,000 was requested for office supplies, computer supplies and reference materials. This additional amount of approximately $20,000 for office supplies is considered excessive.

The Board argues that it budgeted $17,000 in this line item and that Council's reduction covers two line items, General Administration and Business Services. Council has failed to identify the sources of its numbers for its reduction based on problems in understanding the new accounting system.

It appears that Council has not properly identified the account from which its reduction was made, or it has combined two or more accounts in its review. Consequently, the reasons for its reduction do not comport with the facts concerning this line item; therefore, the $8,000 reduction will be restored.

Account	Reduction
11-000-290-890 - Miscellaneous Expenditures	$ 4,000

Council avers that overhead expenditures are up significantly over 1992-93, and it believes that sufficient funds exist elsewhere in the budget to cover the two expenditures within this account. In addition, Council does not agree that the provision for a Right-to-Know expenditure will be as much as the Board indicates.

The Board asserts that the breakdown of expenditures shown in its position statement demonstrate its necessary expenditures. These miscellaneous dues and assessments are not accounted for elsewhere in the budget.

The record shows that this account contains funds for professional association dues for the business administrator and computer services director as well as State of New Jersey assessments for Right-to-Know and fire registration fees. There is no showing that these expenditures are provided for elsewhere in the budget; therefore, the Commissioner determines that the $4,000 reduction will be restored.

11-1xx-100-101 - Teachers Salaries	$150,000

Council asserts that its does not seek to reduce the number of teachers within the district, but the appropriations of the Board for 1993-94 do not clearly indicate a recommendation for any additional personnel over the present level. Council's review of the audit reports for prior years shows savings averaging approximately $300,000 in each year because of teacher retirements. The overall salary level is reduced as a result of replacement teachers at the entry level. Based on the historical analysis of this account, Council recommends a reduction of $150,000. Since this does not reflect a reduction in teacher-staff levels, there should be no adverse impact on the Board's ability to provide a thorough and efficient system of education.

The Board asserts that it budgeted 2.8% for negotiation of teachers' salaries based on present personnel. According to the New Jersey School Boards Association, the average increase after negotiations is 6.11% in Essex County and 6.8% state-wide. This exceeds the provision made in the Belleville budget. Presently, all teaching staff members are anticipated to return. The budget does not provide for emergency positions in the event that increased enrollment necessitates the creation of additional classes. Recent enrollments show the need for an additional bilingual teacher for 1993-94. This position was not included in the 1993-94 budget.

Council's reduction based on attrition is reasoned, but speculative. There are too many unknowns to allow for its full reduction. However, the Board's projection, although well-reasoned, is also somewhat speculative, considering its changing enrollment and still to be resolved negotiations agreement with its teachers. Viewed as a whole, however, it appears that a $50,000 reduction can be sustained. Therefore, the Commissioner will restore $100,000 to the budget.

11-190-100-640 - Textbooks	$50,000

Council states that it is very sensitive to the budget reductions that directly impact on pupils, and textbooks is certainly one of these accounts. However, this account is nearly double the 1992-93 spending level. Council asserts that old textbooks are replaced every year with a new series, and the trend in textbook spending has been remarkably consistent. Moreover, there will be a material increase over current spending patterns irrespective of its reduction.

The Board acknowledges that its budget in this line item is nearly double that of the 1992-93 school year due to an allotment of $85,000 for a major replacement of a reading series, grades K-6. This new series is more aligned with the state tests and its acquisition should help increase pupil testing results.

Although the Board's goal is meritorious, the governing body was not persuaded to allow for the purchase of a completely new reading series in grades K-6. Further, the Board does not contend that it is unable to provide a thorough and efficient system of education for its pupils without the complete new series. There is still an increase in this budget item after Council's reduction; therefore, the Board will be able to begin the purchase of the texts it desires.

The Commissioner will sustain Council's reduction of $50,000.

11-000-240-600 - General Supplies	$45,000

Council argues again that the change in accounting principles applied makes the direct comparison of prior years very difficult. Nevertheless, a review of the figures provided leads Council to the conclusion that the appropriation for 1993-94 ($96,512) more than doubles the expenditure for 1992-93. Council recommends spreading this reduction over the several supply accounts it alleges are throughout the Board's budget. The resultant reductions would then be discretionary with the Board.

The Board contends that Council has combined several supply accounts to arrive at its budget figure of $96,512. Utilizing these same accounts,the Board made a comparison and demonstrated that the increase over the amount budgeted in 1992-93 is $13,130. To make the matter more confusing, the school district budget statement shows that $57,725 has been budgeted in this account.

Neither Council nor the Board was able to clarify the proposed budgeted expenditure. And assuming that the budget statement correctly expressed $57,725 as the budgeted amount, a $45,000 reduction in this account would be ludicrous. Therefore, Council's suggested reductions will be considered through the several accounts it identified (Guidance, Child Study, Library, and Principal's Office). Accordingly, the budget will be held at the same level projected for 1992-93.

The Commissioner determines that a reduction of $13,130 will be sustained and $31,870 will be restored to the budget.

Account	Reduction
11-000-240-105 - Secretaries' Substitutes' Salaries	$15,000

Council believes that a provision for secretarial substitutes is unnecessary. When secretaries are absent from work, others should cover their positions without the need to bring in substitutes. This is common practice within the Council and should be the policy of the Board. Careful planning and redistribution of work can eliminate the need for secretarial substitutes.

The Board argues that Council's practices should not dictate those of the Board. The Board's layout precludes distribution of work, unless it can be done from remote locations. Certainly telephone and reception duties cannot be redistributed to remote locations. When there is only one secretary in a building, there must be a substitute. The district employs twenty-one secretaries and they are divided among its nine schools in nine different locations. There are seven elementary schools; each has one secretary. The middle school has two secretaries and the high school has twelve. Their duties generally preclude their being reassigned in the event of an absence and, in the case of the elementary schools, an absence would leave the building unstaffed. The 1992-93 expenditure for substitute secretaries was $16,518.

An examination of the positions of the parties demonstrates that the Board has adequately supported its need for substitute secretaries. The record shows that its budget is less than its expenditure last year for the same item. Further, Council's practice regarding its secretarial absences is not transferable to the Board. Therefore, the $15,000 reduction will be restored to the budget.

11-000-270-600 - Supplies and Materials	$5,000

Council argues that there should be consistency within budget accounts such as transportation. It claims that the Board achieved savings in this account by revising its transportation policy. Accordingly, Council's reduction will be sufficient to cover 1993-94 spending.

The Board notes that only four in-town runs have been eliminated for the 1993-94 school year. This will result in savings equal to or less than any inflationary increases for gas or equipment. The 1992-93 expenditures totaled $32,113, according to its attached affidavit. While the district expects some savings associated with its revised transportation policy, it must allow for inflationary increases in gasoline, as well as maintenance for an aging fleet.

An examination of this line item shows that the Board budgeted $33,000, approximately the same amount it expended last year. It is reasonable to conclude that any savings from its revised transportation policy will be practically off-set by normal inflationary increases. The Board's budget in this line item is reasonable and $5,000 will be restored to the budget.

11-000-260-100 - Grounds and Maintenance Salaries	$10,000

Council asserts that the Board bases its 1993-94 budget request of $15,000 on the 1992-93 budget of $14,000, even though only $2,774 was expended and $4,000 transferred out in the sub-account for substitutes. Further, the Board budgeted for substitutes in the event of a long-term absence without noting that such an absence will likely result in savings in the regular salary account. The Board also added a provision for work/study students even though no such usage resulted in 1992-93.

The Board budgeted $15,000 for this program. $9,000 is set aside for the employment of three high school students enrolled in the work/study program, and $6,000 is allotted for the employment of substitutes in the event of a long-term absence of any of the maintenance personnel. The Board defends its budget by pointing out that it has twelve persons in the maintenance/grounds area and that they all accumulate sick leave. As of July 1, 1993, these individuals have amassed a total of 574 sick days which may be used during the school year. On average, an employee would have to be absent in excess of 47 days prior to the Board accruing any savings in the regular salary account.

It appears that the Board is unable to adequately justify its request for the substitute maintenance personnel in this account. According to Council, only $2,774 was expended in 1993 and no students were employed. The Board asserts that this in an aberration and that it will certainly attempt to employ students this year. In any event, the Board has failed to show that this expenditure is necessary for the maintenance of thorough and efficient school district. Therefore, the $10,000 reduction will be sustained by the Commissioner.

11-000-260-610 - General Supplies	$30,000

Council states that the Board provided figures which it was unable to trace to past audit reports or the 1992-93 budget reports. Nevertheless, Council made a five-year comparison of spending and an analysis of the details behind the 1992-93 spending which shows that a $30,000 reduction would not affect the quality of education in the district.

The Board submitted its figures of the five-year comparison addressed by Council and its comparison does not agree with Council's assessment. In fact, the amount budgeted this year is $10,000 less than the amount budgeted last year. Further a five-year comparison is not a valid reason, without other support, to reduce a budget item. Accordingly, the $30,000 reduction will be restored to the budget.

	Reduction
11-000-260-620 - Energy	$30,000

In Council's judgment, its analysis of this line item discloses that its reduction will still leave sufficient funds in the account for energy expenses even if this winter is more severe than the last.

A review of the Board's data discloses that its expenditure for 1991-92 was $427,589, and $419,125 for the 1992-93 school year. The average for the past two years is $422,842. A reduction of $15,000 will leave a balance in this account of $425,000 for the 1993-94 school year, which is slightly more than the average expenditure for the past two years; therefore, the Commissioner determines that $15,000 will be restored to the budget.

Account	Reduction
11-402-100-101 - Athletic Trainer	$30,000

Council asserts that the Board wants to add this position to its staff. While such a position may be desirable by the Board, Council questions whether such a position is necessary for a thorough and efficient system of education in the district.

The Board set forth a strong argument for establishing this new position; however, the Commissioner finds that the new position is desirable but not necessary for the establishment of a thorough and efficient system of schools. Accordingly, the $30,000 reduction by Council will be sustained.

11-303 - General Fund Unappropriated Balance	$250,000

Council provided an analysis of the Board's surplus using estimated or excess revenues, cancelable accounts payable and unexpended budget funds. Council believes that the true surplus will be in excess of 2.1% and states that additional revenues can be generated by pointing to the Board's own surplus maintenance strategies of recent years.

The Board states that its General Fund Unappropriated Balance as of June 30, 1993 is $766,433, and that $150,000 of this balance has already been earmarked for use in the 1993-94 budget. The remaining $616,433 is equivalent to 2.1% of the proposed general fund balance. The Board asserts that Council's reduction of an already modest surplus, given the negotiations considerations inherent in the budget, demonstrates Council's indifference to the district's continued fiscal integrity. Council has arbitrarily established $500,000 as a proper Fund Balance for the district without taking into account other financial considerations and the potential for unanticipated expenditures associated with increasing district enrollment.

The Commissioner has reviewed the documents submitted and has considered the arguments of the parties. The Commissioner has stated on many occasions that a reasonable surplus is a necessary item in the budget.

In Board of Education of the Township of Madison v. Mayor and Council of the Township of Madison, 1968 S.L.D. 139, the board of education faced substantial reductions by its governing body. The Commissioner determined that the Madison Board's "problem is one of total revenues available to meet the demands of a school system." (at 142) This conclusion is applicable to this Belleville budget dispute.

In Board of Education of Fair Lawn v. Mayor and Council of Fair Lawn, 143 N.J. Super. 259 (Law Div. 1976), aff'd 153 N.J. Super. 480 (App. Div. 1977), the Court held that "the board has the right, subject to ultimate review by the Commissioner of Education, to maintain a reasonable surplus in order to meet unforeseen contingencies." (at 273) See also: Board of Education of the Town of Dover v. Mayor and the Board of Aldermen of the Town of Dover, Morris County, 1991 S.L.D. 1330 wherein the Commissioner concluded that a surplus of 1.9% of the current expense budget was "insufficient to sustain the Board against unforeseen contingencies." (at 1343)

Both in prior case law and in regulation, the Commissioner has held 3% as the amount of surplus to be generally regarded as reasonable and necessary. N.J.A.C. 6:20-2.13

In Board of Education of Delaware Valley Regional High School District v. Township of Alexandria et al., 1989 S.L.D. 62, aff'd in part/rev'd in part by the State Board 81, the State Board of Education determined a free balance of approximately 4% of the current expense budget to be a slender reserve. See also: Board of Education of the Township of West Orange v. Township Council of West Orange, Essex County, 1991 S.L.D. 84.

In the instant matter, the Board has a General Fund Free Appropriations Balance of approximately 2.1%. Based on regulation and case law as set forth above, the Commissioner finds this surplus is insufficient. Accordingly, the $250,000 reduction will be restored to the budget.

A revised table of the reductions showing the amounts restored and sustained is set forth below:

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF BRADLEY BEACH, PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
MAYOR AND BOROUGH COUNCIL OF THE BOROUGH OF BRADLEY BEACH, MONMOUTH COUNTY, RESPONDENT.	:	DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Board appealed General Fund tax levy reductions in the amount of $444,800 made by governing body following voter rejection of proposed budget on April 20, 1993.

Upon review of the appeal herein to determine whether Board demonstrated that restoration of specific line item reductions was necessary in order to provide a thorough and efficient system of education in the district, Commissioner determined to restore $436,800 for a total General Fund tax levy of $3,698,352 for 1993-94 school purposes.

OCTOBER 15, 1993

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF BRADLEY BEACH, PETITIONER, V. MAYOR AND BOROUGH COUNCIL OF THE BOROUGH OF BRADLEY BEACH, MONMOUTH COUNTY, RESPONDENT.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION DECISION

Peter P. Kalac, Esq. (Kalac, Newman, Lavender, & Campbell), for Petitioner

Joseph P. Quinn, Esq. (Pringle & Quinn), for Respondent

This matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education on June 10, 1993 through the filing of a Petition of Appeal by the Board of Education of the Borough of Bradley Beach (Board) seeking restoration, on the grounds of necessity for a thorough and efficient education, of reductions by the Mayor and Borough Council of the Borough of Bradley Beach (Council) in the General Fund tax levy for the 1993-94 school year. These reductions were made pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37 and N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.2(b)2 following voter rejection of the Board's proposed budget on April 20, 1993 and after consultation with the Board as required by law.

The total proposed and certified budgets, as well as the amounts in dispute in this matter, are set forth below:

Amount of Tax Levy Proposed By Board of Education		Amount of Tax Levy Certified by Council
General Fund	$3,706,352	General Fund	$3,261,552
Amount of Reduction By Council		Amount of Reduction In Dispute
General Fund	$444,800	General Fund	$444,800

On July 2, 1993 the Council filed its Answer to the Petition of Appeal. Position Statements were filed by the Board on July 16, 1993 and by Council on August 2, 1993. A Response was filed by the Board of August 5, 1993, and a Summation was filed by the Board on August 19, 1993. No further documents were received and the record on this matter was closed on August 19, 1993.

The reduction to the General Fund tax levy and reasons for reductions as determined by Council are as follows:

Description	Reason	Reduction
Teachers' Salaries	Eliminate 4.5% salary increase	$ 76,400
Group Insurance		41,300
Legal Services		8,000
Misc. Other Expenses		22,800
Teachers' Salaries	Modify by 15% decrease with possible layoffs	296,300
	Total	$444,800

The Council resolution of May 11, 1993 was not filed with its Answer, which had no attached certification or documentation, but was filed with its Position Statement. The resolution included 40 itemized reductions which were then summarized into the five broad categories listed above. It must be noted that Council presented no rationale for some of the reductions in its resolution. The list of 40 itemized reductions had no rationale and was preceded in the resolution by two statements regarding the fact that the Mayor and Council felt and recognized that the voters wanted a reduction in the school budget and, further, felt that the taxpayers could not absorb a 13.9 cent increase to their taxes. After the list of reductions, the resolution combined the items into the five categories and listed the percentage reductions noted above as the rationale for the two salary items. No rationale was given for the other three items.

STANDARD OF REVIEW

In rendering judgment relative to budgetary appeals, the Commissioner notes that the Constitution of the State of New Jersey requires the Legislature to provide for a thorough and efficient system of education. The Legislature by way of statutory scheme has delegated the responsibility for providing such thorough and efficient system to local boards of education. Additionally, the Legislature pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9, 22-14, 22-17 and 22-37 has authorized the Commissioner of Education to review and decide appeals by boards of education seeking restoration of budgetary reductions imposed by local governing bodies. (See also Board of Education of East Brunswick Township v. Township Council of East Brunswick, 48 N.J. 94 (1966) and Board of Education of Deptford Township v. Mayor and Council of Deptford Township, 116 N.J. 305 (1989).)

In reviewing such appeals, the Commissioner must determine whether a district board of education has demonstrated that the amount by which a specific line item reduction imposed by the governing body is necessary for the provision of a thorough and efficient system of education.

Before reviewing the instant matter line item by line item, the Commissioner must point out for the record that the New Jersey

Supreme Court in East Brunswick, supra has addressed the proper standard of review by a governing body after defeat of a budget by the voters. In reads in pertinent part:

> "But its determinations must be independent ones properly related to educational considerations rather than voter reactions. In every step it must act conscientiously, reasonably and with full regard for the State's educational standards and its own obligation to fix a sum sufficient to provide a system of local schools which may fairly be considered thorough and efficient in view of the makeup of the community." [at pp. 105-106]

Moreover, it is clear that the New Jersey Supreme Court in Deptford, supra has unequivocably ruled that the statement of reasons for each reduction effectuated by a governing body must be done at the time the municipality make its certification of the reduced budget to the county board of taxation and that if there is a failure to do so there can be a heavy presumption against the educational validity of the proposed cuts. It determined that > "The board of education should be furnished with reasons in order to respond quickly and intelligently and to act constructively in preserving educational interests. The advantages of such a process would be dissipated if the reasons were not available until an appeal has been filed. Hence, we conclude that these regulations do not exempt the municipality from a duty to file a statement of reasons in a timely fashion in conjunction with any proposed budget cuts, which, we now determine, must be done at the time the municipality makes it (sic) certification of the reduced budget to the county board of taxation.

> We now hold that statements must be provided for any line-item reductions. This will not be unduly inconvenient or burdensome
>
> Further, a uniform rule that calls for the submission of explanatory reasons for all budget cuts will encourage municipalities to be specific and conscientious in their consideration of educational concerns, and will serve to make such considerations an integral part of their decisionmaking process." [at pp. 315-317]

and

> "...we want to stress that if the municipality fails to submit reasons contemporaneously with its certification of budget cuts, the Commissioner of Education in the course of an ensuing appeal is entitled to invoke a heavy presumption against the educational validity of the proposed budget cuts. Hence, the greater the dalay in the submission of detailed reasons in support of such cuts, the stronger will be the presumption against their validity and the heavier will be the municipality's burden on appeal to establish the validity of the reduced budget. In that posture, the Commissioner will be entitled initially to presume that such cuts have been made purely for extra-educational reasons or for political expediency without specific cognizance taken of their educational effects." [at pp. 320-321]

Mindful, then, of the balance to be applied in the standard of review, the Commissioner makes the following determination with respect to the reductions in the General Fund tax levy effectuated by Council.

Item	Reduction
Teachers' Salaries - Eliminate 4.5% Salary Increases	$76,400

In its Position Statement, the Board notes that it is presently in salary negotiations, now at the mediation stage, with its teachers and that it had budgeted $76,400, an average increase of 4.5%, to meet the obligation. The Board states that the 4.5% is well below the average salary increases for teachers in the State for 1993-94. The Council in its Position Statement asserts that no salary increases for teachers are warranted because the current salaries are adequate and far exceed the income level of most residents.

In reviewing the data presented, it is determined that the Board must adequately prepare for negotiated increases in teachers' salaries and that Council's position to provide no increases is unreasonable. The Commissioner orders the restoration of the $76,400 reduction.

Item	Reduction
Legal Services	$ 8,000

The Council provided no rationale for this reduction in its resolution but asserts in its Position Statement that a $2,000 reduction in legal fees, a $2,000 reduction in general administrative professional fees, and a $4,000 reduction in architectural fees can be achieved without substantial detriment to the educational system and will not jeopardize a thorough and efficient education. The Board notes in its Position Statement that the amounts budgeted for these services are based on past experience. The Board adds in the Board Secretary's affidavit attached to the Position Statement that this reduction is approximately one-third of the amount budgeted for these services.

This was a difficult issue to address since neither party presented specific reasons for the need or lack of need for these funds. However, a critical factor in this review is the need for the Commissioner to conclude that the amount reduced is necessary for the provision of a thorough and efficient system of education. It is determined that the Board did not provide sufficient documentation, to lead to this conclusion and therefore the Commissioner sustains this reduction of $8,000.

Again, the Council provided no rationale for this reduction in its resolution but claims in its Position Statement that the eight items included in this area can be reduced without any substantial impact on the operation of the school or on the thorough and efficient education. The Board in its Position Statement contends that the supplies and services included in the itemized list are essential to maintaining a thorough and efficient system of schools. The Board notes that the amounts budgeted were based on prior years' experience and that the reductions range from 9% of teaching supplies to 33.3% of maintenance supplies.

The Commissioner determines that the supplies and services included in this area are essential to the thorough and efficient operation of the schools and therefore orders the restoration of the $22,800 reduction.

Teachers' Salaries -
Modify by 15% decreases with possible layoffs $296,300

The Council in its resolution lists a lengthy number of salary reductions and states that these could be possible teacher layoffs. The list includes reductions not only for teachers but also for the Superintendent, Board Secretary/Business Manager, Treasurer of School Monies, various secretarial positions, custodians, and specialists, such as librarian, social worker, psychologist, learning disabilities teacher-consultant and speech teacher, and food service workers. In its Position Statement, the Council justifies the reductions to bring spending under control and in light of the salary cuts and staff reductions the Council is experiencing. Council agrees that there will be an effect from these reductions, but it claims the effect will not result in a failure to provide a thorough and efficient education.

The Board is its Position Statement argues that some reductions cannot be achieved because of contractual obligations, such as for the Superintendent and Board Secretary/Business Manager and because of statutorily mandated services. The Board points out that reductions of some specialized teachers would eliminate programs such as art, music, industrial arts, and gifted and talented/computer programs. The Board adds that reductions in the elementary teaching staff at the grade levels with the lowest enrollment would result in class sizes of 34, 35, 36, which it believes is neither thorough nor efficient.

In reviewing the data submitted on this reduction, the Commissioner finds that the Council's position, while admitting a possible effect from this reduction, blatantly ignores the extensive impact of the reduction, particularly in a district with increasing enrollment. It is determined that the Council's reduction is arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable. The Commissioner orders the restoration of the $296,300 reduction.

Group Insurance	$41,300

The Council provided no rationale for this reduction in its resolution, but asserts in its Position Statement that savings can be achieved by the Board by getting lower premiums in the open market, by anticipated staff reductions, and by elimination of benefits for part-time employees. The Board claims in its Position Statement that these funds are necessary to pay the premiums for the health and dental insurance policies which are contractual commitments under the collective bargaining agreement. The Board also states that savings by reductions in staff would result in a less than thorough and efficient education.

Based on the data presented and the decision to restore the reductions for salaries, the Commissioner orders the restoration of the $41,300 reduction.

Thus, for the reasons set forth above, the Commissioner determines to restore $436,800 and sustain $8,000 of the $444,800 in General Fund reductions appealed herein as summarized by the chart below:

Description	Reduction	Restored	Sustained
Teachers' Salaries (eliminate increase)	$ 76,400	$ 76,400	$ -0-
Group Insurance	41,300	41,300	-0-
Legal Services	8,000	-0-	8,000
Misc. Other Exps.	22,800	22,800	-0-
Teachers' Salaries (15% decrease)	296,300	296,300	-0-
Totals	$444,800	$436,800	$8,000

Accordingly, the Monmouth County Board of Taxation is directed to make the necessary adjustments as set forth below to reflect a total of $3,698,352 to be raised in General Fund tax levy by the Borough of Bradley Beach for the 1993-94 school year:

	General Fund
Original Tax Levy	$3,706,352
Reduction	444,800
Tax Levy After Reduction	3,261,552
Restoration	436,800
Tax Levy After Restoration	$3,698,352

IT IS SO ORDERED.

THOMAS J. KIRSCHLING, PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF PEMBERTON, BURLINGTON COUNTY, RESPONDENT.	:	DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, tenured Director of Personnel, alleged Board violated his rights by refusing to compensate him for unused vacation days and holidays subsequent to his resignation.

ALJ concluded under Board's existing employee benefits policy, vacation pay is deferred compensation and, once earned and not used, payment could not be denied. Therefore, Board was ordered to compensate petitioner for thirty-two and one-half unused vacation days at his per diem rate at the time of his resignation on January 2, 1991. It was also obligated to pay petitioner his per diem rate for the legal holiday January 1, 1991. Moreover, having reviewed record, ALJ dismissed Board's claim that petition was untimely filed.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision and ordered payment for unused vacation days and one holiday. Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.16(c)1, Commissioner rejected petitioner's claim for pre-judgment interest.

v.
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF PEMBERTON, BURLINGTON COUNTY,
Respondent.

Record Closed: June 18, 1993 Decided: August 30, 1993

BEFORE LILLARD E. LAW, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner, Thomas J. Kirschling, alleges that the Board of Education of the Township of Pemberton (Board) violated his tenure rights when it failed and refused to compensate him for unused vacation days and holidays subsequent to his resignation from the Board's employ, contrary to and in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5, and the Board's own policy with regard to payment for unused vacation days. The Board asserts that absent an employment contract provision for payment of accrued vacation leave, or provision for salary in lieu of vacation leave, or statutory authority for such payment, an employee has no claim for such payment.

This matter commenced with the filing of a Petition of Appeal by petitioner on or about November 8, 1991. The Board filed its Answer on or about November 18, 1991. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on January 13, 1992, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. A prehearing conference was held on April 16, 1992, at which, among other things, the jurisdiction of the Commissioner of Education (Commissioner) was placed in issue.

Thereafter, the Board propounded a Motion for Summary Decision, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5, requesting that this tribunal find and determine that jurisdiction of the instant matter lies with the Public Employment Relations Commission (PERC) rather than with the Commissioner. Petitioner opposed the motion. On July 10, 1992, the undersigned issued an Order Granting Partial Summary Decision in favor of petitioner, concluding that the Commissioner had jurisdiction to hear and determine the matter. On August 14, 1992, the Commissioner concurred and ordered that the matter proceed to a determination on the merits.

The hearing was held on January 26, 1993, at the OAL, Mercerville, New Jersey. The parties requested, and were granted, leave to submit posthearing briefs and memoranda. Subsequent to the submission of the last memorandum, the Board requested to reopen the record for the admission of a document inadvertently omitted at the hearing. The Board's request was granted, the record was reopened and the document was accepted. Petitioner objected by way of letter dated June 17, 1993, (received June 18, 1993) and the record was considered closed on June 18, 1993. An extension for the issuance of the initial decision was requested and granted.

UNCONTESTED FACTS

The following facts are neither disputed nor contested. Therefore, I adopt the following as my FINDINGS of FACT in this matter:

Petitioner was employed by the Board from November 6, 1987, until January 2, 1991, as its director of personnel. Petitioner, therefore, had acquired a tenure status with the Board.

Petitioner was, by the nature of his employment position, a "confidential" employee. Therefore, he was exempt from and not a member of a collective bargaining unit for contractual purposes. N.J.S.A. 34:13A-3 (g).

On May 9, 1989, the Board adopted a policy of benefits for its confidential employees, which included the assistant superintendent, business administrator/board secretary and director of personnel, among others (P-4). The adopted policy provided for, among other thing, Item 5, which states in part:

> Emergency leave at the discretion of the Superintendent
>
> Vacation Days - 22 per year - Prorated on the basis of 1.8 per month; Unused vacation days shall be compensated at the per diem rate.

It was the practice that the employee would earn vacation time over a period of a year. The employee was then free to take the vacation time in the year subsequent to the year in which it was earned.

On May 15, 1989, the assistant superintendent addressed a memorandum to the Board's business administrator/board secretary, which stated:

> In accordance with the unanimous Board approval of Superintendent's Recommendation VII, #6, Employee Benefits - Assistant Superintendent, on May 9, 1989, please process payment for seven (7) unused vacation days, earned during the 1987-88 school year and to have been used 1988-89. Please also process payment for 22 vacation days earned during 1988-89 school year and which will not be able to be used due to resignation from district.
> Total vacation days to be paid at per diem rate equals 29 days.

The assistant superintendent was paid a total of $9,236.64 by the Board for twenty-nine unused vacation days (P-6).

On August 14, 1990, the Board passed a resolution which stated as follows:

Be it resolved that the following administrators be authorized to use their unused vacation days for the 1989-90 school year:

Name	#of Unused Days
Robert Moore	9 days
Mark Cowell	10½ days
Thomas Kirschling	14 days
John Harrington	1 day

Petitioner earned the fourteen days in the 1988-89 school year. He used the vacation days prior to his resignation from the Board's employ effective January 2, 1991.

Petitioner claims he earned twenty-two vacation days in the 1989-90 school year which became available to him on July 1, 1990. In addition, during the period from July 1, 1990, to January 2, 1991, petitioner claims he earned an additional eleven vacation days, at the rate of 1.8 per month. He had used one-half day between July 1, 1989, and January 2, 1991. He further claims pay for the holiday, January 1, 1991. Thus, petitioner claims his unused vacation and holiday time amounts to thirty-two and one-half days.

SUMMARY OF THE TESTIMONIAL EVIDENCE

Ronald Chiste, former assistant superintendent of the Pemberton School District, testified on behalf of petitioner. He testified that the Board adopted a policy which incorporated "the leadership team" concept within the central office of school administrators, under the direction of the Board's superintendent of schools (P-1). The Board policy entitled The Leadership Team (P-1) was adopted by the Board on February 10, 1987, and provided for the superintendent to institute a leadership team management system for submitting recommendations to the Board on issues of educational policy, and to address the economic concerns and working conditions of the leadership team members, among other things. The central office staff (leadership team) of confidential employees did not directly address nor negotiate with the Board with respect to salaries, fringe benefits or other economic concerns. Rather, the superintendent presented their proposals to the Board.

Mr. Chiste testified that the Board adopted a policy on February 10, 1987, which provided for leaves for administrators not covered by negotiated agreements. The policy states as follows:

> Professional staff administrators whose terms of employment are not covered by a negotiated agreement or personal contract shall be entitled to the same leave benefits provided to members of the Professional Administrators Association.

Specifically, with respect to vacation benefits for confidential employees, Mr. Chiste testified that it was the practice that the employee earned vacation time over a period of a year. Subsequent to having earned the time, the employee could then use it for vacation. However, in the event the confidential employee left the employ of the Board and had not used the accrued vacation time to which she/he was entitled, the employee was reimbursed for those days of vacation time not used. Mr. Chiste applied the Board's policy (P-3) to his advantage where he was reimbursed for twenty-nine unused vacation days upon his resignation from the Board's employ, effective June 30, 1989 (P-5, P-6).

Petitioner testified on his own behalf, asserting, among other things, that he commenced his employment with the Board on November 9, 1987, in the position of director of personnel. Petitioner, thereafter, acquired early tenure with the Board in that position.

Petitioner testified that the personnel functions of the position required him to perform his duties in the summer months rather than take vacation time. There was a high priority to fill vacant teaching and non-teaching positions, particularly during the summer months. During the 1989-90 school year there was the threat of a strike by the school district employees. Consequently, petitioner devoted the months of June, July and August to securing replacement teachers in the event the teachers did strike. Consequently, petitioner was unable to use his full twenthy-two days of vacation time. Instead, petitioner was able to use eight of the vacation days earned, leaving him with fourteen accrued vacation days.

Pursuant to past practice, petitioner requested reimbursement for the fourteen unused vacation days. On the Board's agenda for its July 3, 1990, executive session, Superintendent Robert Moore sought authorization to pay central office administrators for unused vacation time for the 1989-90 school year (P-8). The Board rejected the superintendent's recommendation. At its regular monthly meeting held on August 14, 1990, the Board adopted a resolution authorizing petitioner and three other administrators to use their unused vacation days for the 1989-90 school year (P-9). Petitioner complied with the Board's resolution and used the fourteen vacation days prior to January 2, 1991.

On December 12, 1990, petitioner submitted his resignation to Superintendent Moore, effective January 2, 1991, "pursuant to all legal, contractual and past practices" (P-11). On December 21, 1990, Superintendent Moore advised petitioner that the Board accepted his resignation at its regular monthly meeting held on December 20, 1990 (P-12). On January 4, 1991, petitioner submitted a voucher for reimbursement of thirty-two and one-half unused vacation days (P-13). He broke that number down into twenty-two vacation days earned during the 1989-90 school year, to be used after July 1990, and eleven days' vacation earned from July 1990 through December 31, 1990, plus New Year's Day, a paid holiday. Petitioner's voucher to the Board was for a total amount of $7,765.50, which he claimed was due and owing to him.

On cross-examination, petitioner admitted it was his duty as director of personnel to attend all Board meetings. He further admitted he attended the July 3, 1990, Board meeting where it discussed payment for unused vacation time. It was petitioner's understanding that the Board would not pay him for the fourteen vacation days he had earned and accumulated for the 1989-90 school year. Petitioner testified that the Board's past practice was to pay for the accumulated vacation time not used the previous year after July 1, with the commencement of the new school year.

Petitioner testified there was no question in his mind in May 1990 that the Board was considering continuing the then existing policy concerning entitlement to accumulated unused vacation time. He based this belief upon the fact that the Board had just paid Mr. Chiste for unused vacation leave. As of August 14, 1990, the date of the Board's action (P-9), petitioner understood that the Board would not reimburse him for fourteen vacation days. He further understood that he either had to use the fourteen vacation days within the time prescribed by the Board, or lose them. Petitioner also understood that he had accumulated an additional twenty-two days of vacation, commencing July 1, 1990.

Petitioner recalled that his resignation from the Board's employ was effective January 2, 1991. January 1, 1991, was a legal holiday, for which he was not paid and other administrators were paid.

Petitioner testified that he was aware of the so called "ninety-day rule." N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c). He contended that his former attorney was communicating with representatives of the Board concerning its failure to pay petitioner for his thirty-two and one-half vacation days. Philip E. Stern, petitioner's former attorney, wrote a letter dated February 26, 1991, to Superintendent Moore which said, in part:

> As you are aware, I represent the legal interests of Dr. Thomas Kirschling concerning his employment with the Pemberton Township Board of Education.
> My client informs me that, upon his resignation from your district, he had earned 32½ (thirty-two and one-half) vacation days. Dr. Kirschling further informs me that the Board has yet to pay him for his accrued vacation days.
>
> Kindly inform me, at your earliest convenience, when Dr. Kirschling can expect payment of 32½ vacation days.
>
> Thank you in advance for your anticipated cooperation in this matter.

Petitioner testified that by the end of the 1990-91 school year, June 30, 1991, his attorney had not received a response to his February 25, 1991, letter. Petitioner did not know whether attorney Stern had discussed the issue with Superintendent Moore. Petitioner was aware that Mr. Stern had sent a letter to Mr. Hardt, the Board's attorney, dated September 12, 1991. Mr. Stern's letter to Mr. Hardt stated, in part, as follows:

> As you will recall, I represent the interests of Dr. Thomas J. Kirschling as they relate to his former employment as Director of Personnel for the Pemberton Township Board of Education.
> As we previously discussed, upon resignation from his position in Pemberton, Dr. Kirschling accrued 32½ (thirty-two and one-half) vacation days. My client informs me that Board policy dictates that he should have been paid the per diem amount of the 32 ½ days based upon his final annual salary. To date, Dr. Kirschling has not been paid for his vacation days.

> I have spoken with both the Pemberton Superintendent of Schools and yourself concerning payment of Dr. Kirschling's vacation days. Since there appears to be no impediment barring payment of said days, kindly inform me at your earliest convenience when Dr. Kirschling can expect payment for his accrued vacation days.
> Thank you again for your continued courtesies and cooperation in this matter.

Petitioner asserted that following his submission of the voucher for payment of his vacation days on January 4, 1991 (P-13), he heard nothing from the superintendent or the Board. He asserted he was never told he would not be paid for the earned vacation days and, therefore, assumed he would be paid. When petitioner heard nothing from the Board, he contacted the attorney to bring the matter to a final resolution.

On September 20, 1991, the Board advised petitioner it would not pay him the value of his accrued vacation days. Attorney Stern filed petitioner's Verified Petition of Appeal before the Commissioner on or about November 12, 1991.

Robert J. Moore testified on behalf of the Board, asserting, among other things, that he retired from the Board's employ on June 30, 1992. He had been associated with the Board for thirty-two years and was appointed as its superintendent in 1984.

Mr. Moore testified about the Board's policy concerning the payment for vacation days, saying:

> The only consistent policy that was followed was that when a person retired, let's say June 30th, then they would be paid that vacation that accumulated during the course of the previous year.
> [Transcript at 110]

Other than upon retirement, Mr. Moore asserted that payment for accrued vacation time was on a case-by-case basis or a Board-to-Board basis.

Mr. Moore testified that under the Board's policy found in Exhibit P-2 in evidence, the central office staff was afforded benefits identical to those negotiated between the Board and the Pemberton Township Administration Association (Association). Mr. Moore did not have a copy of the negotiated agreement between the Board and the Association when he testified. However, he asserted that during the period of time relevant to this proceeding, the agreement did not contain a firm policy by which administrators were paid for unused vacation days. He further asserted that neither Board policies P-1 nor P-2 mandated that employees be paid for unused vacation days.

Mr. Moore prepared the Board agenda items for its session held on July 3, 1990 (P-8). He recommended that the Board authorize payment for unused vacation time for the 1989-90 school year to its central office administrators. After the Board discussed the Superintendent's recommendation, it was tabled and the Board retired into caucus or executive session to discuss the matter further under the employment exception of the Open Public Meetings Act (OPMA), N.J.S.A. 10:4-12b(8). Subsequent to the caucus session, Mr. Moore withdrew the recommendation for lack of majority vote of the Board to approve it.

Mr. Moore asserted that the Board simply did not want to pay its central office administrators for the vacation days. As a compromise, the Board and Superintendent agreed that the vacation days would be used during that current school year; the employee would either use the vacation days or lose them.

On August 14, 1990, the Board adopted the resolution to authorize petitioner and three other employees to use their vacation days for the 1989-90 school year (P-9). Mr. Moore testified that by this action, the Board adopted a policy different from that which was in existence in 1989 and which provided for compensation at a per diem rate for unused vacation days (P-3). He explained that under the new policy, the employee either used the vacation days or lost the days; there was no compensation for unused vacation days.

Mr. Moore testified that he met with petitioner and two other administrators to explain that the Board required them to use their twenty-two vacation days during the course of the year. None of the administrators were please with the Board's decision.

On August 15, 1990, following the August 14, 1990, Board meeting, Mr. Moore addressed a memorandum to Mr. J. Harrington, petitioner and Mr. Cowell concerning vacations. Mr. Moore's memorandum stated, in part, as follows:

> The Board of Education made two decisions at the August 14 meeting concerning vacation days.
>
> Central Office Administrators receive 22 days per year.
> 1. Unused vacation days - these days must be used during the 1990-91 school year.
>
> 2. Vacation - 1990-91 - The Board has adopted a resolution requiring the use of the all vacation days during the current school year.
>
> Please submit a schedule of dates you plan to use these days.

Mr. Moore testified that he learned from petitioner that petitioner would be leaving the Board's employ to accept a position with the Evesham Township Board of Education. Mr. Moore and petitioner discussed petitioner's termination date, however Moore was not certain of the date until he received petitioner's letter of resignation, dated December 12, 1990. There, petitioner established January 2, 1991, as the effective date of his resignation. Mr. Moore asserted that petitioner could have used his accumulated vacation days prior to the effective date of his resignation.

Subsequent to petitioner's termination, Mr. Moore received a telephone call from petitioner's then attorney, Philip Stern, concerning petitioner's accumulated vacation time. Mr. Moore advised Mr. Stern that Moore was not authorized to make any payment for petitioner's unused vacation days.

On cross-examination, Mr. Moore admitted that, in addition to Mr. Chiste, other school administrators had left the Board's employ and received pay for unused vacation days. Mr. Joseph Poedubicky, a school principal, left the school district in February 1990 to take another position and was paid for his unused vacation days. Mr. Moore also testified that Ms. Ronnie Storch resigned from the Board's employ effective July 1988, and was paid for her unused vacation days. Mr. Moore could not testify as to how many vacation days each of the two administrators were reimbursed for because he did not have their records.

On examination by this tribunal, Mr. Moore testified that between August 14, 1990, and July 1992, the effective date of his retirement, four administrators resigned or retired from the Board's employ. Dr. DiNunzio, principal, retired effective July 1, 1992, and was paid for his twenty-two accumulated vacation days.

Mr. Edward Moore, principal, likewise retired effective July 1, 1992, and was paid for his accumulated vacation days. Mr. Robert Page, a central office administrator, was paid for his accumulated twenty-two days, effective upon his retirement, July 1, 1992. Similarly, George Young, principal, was paid for his twenty-two days of accumulated vacation.

Mr. Moore asserted, among other things, that these four individuals had accumulated their twenty-two vacation days as of July 1, 1992. The employees were not in the service of the Board thereafter and they had not been able to use their accumulated vacation days prior to July 1, 1992. Consequently, the Board paid the four administrators for their accumulated vacation days upon their retirements.

Mark Cowell, assistant superintendent for business/board secretary testified that he was affected by the Board's action of August 14, 1990, and lost twenty-two vacation days over the course of the last couple of years. He explained that the nature of his job prevented him from taking extended vacations, i.e., he is required to attend the Board's two monthly meetings, must certify the payroll, approve all bills to be paid, sign all purchase orders and vouchers, attend Board committee meetings, e.g., budget, negotiations, etc.

Assistant Superintendent Cowell testified that Mr. Poedubicky's last working day in the Board's employ was January 26, 1990. Mr. Poedubicky was paid for fifteen and one-half vacation days upon his leaving the school district. Twelve of the fifteen and one-half vacation days had accrued from July 1989 to January 1990. Therefore, three and one-half unused vacation days were carried forward from before July 1989.

Mr. Cowell testified that Ms. Ronnie Storch left the Board's employ on June 30, 1989, and was paid for twenty-two unused vacation days when she left. Ms. Storch had earned the vacation days during the 1987-88 school year.

Mr. Cowell said that it was true that when Mr. Chiste resigned he was paid for twenty-nine unused vacation days, seven of which were brought forward from the previous year.

Mr. Cowell testified that there was no doubt in his mind that the Board's action taken on August 14, 1990, altered its policy concerning payment to its administrators for unused vacation days. Cowell was certain that the policy was explained to him, as well as to petitioner, by the Board and then Superintendent Moore. Based upon his knowledge of the Board's policies, he contended that petitioner was not entitled to the number of days he was claiming. Cowell opined that petitioner may be entitled to a claim for per diem accumulation of unused vacation days from July 1, 1990, to January 1991, but not for days accumulated prior to July 1, 1990.

SUMMARY OF LEGAL ARGUMENTS

PETITIONER'S POSITION

At POINT I.A. of his brief, petitioner argues that the August 14, 1990, Board resolution did not nullify its obligation to pay him for earned vacation time. On its face, the August 14, 1990, action (P-9) affected only the days earned in the 1988-89 school year that had not been used in the 1989-90 school year. The language of the resolution is clear and unambiguous and New Jersey courts have long held that the function of the courts is to ascertain the intent of the lawmaker from the plain meaning of the statute (in this case, the resolution). In addition, when a statute is clear and unambiguous, it is not open to construction or interpretation and the court may not indulge in any interpretation other than what is called for by its express language. DeHart v. Bambrick, 177 N.J. Super. 541, 549 (App. Div. 1981).

The Board resolution of August 14, 1990, is clear and direct. Upon a request for payment for the vacation days earned in 1988-89, the Board authorized, instead of payment, that these employees could use the days earned in 1988-89. The resolution did not refer to vacation time earned in any other year. Indeed the resolution did not refer to this Board's benefits policy for confidential administrators (P-7) at all and did not express an intent to completely and permanently amend same (T-137, 138).

Further, the Board had an opportunity to revise the language prior to its adoption of the minutes of the August 14, 1990, meeting, had the Board believed that the language did not fully encompass its intent (T-168, 169). As it did not amend its resolution upon further review, the Board cannot now claim it intended far more than it expressed in the plain meaning of the resolution itself. As there is no ambiguity on the face of the resolution and its meaning is clear and direct, the words and phrases of the resolution must be given their ordinary meaning.

B. Petitioner used the fourteen days noted in the Board's resolution and, therefore, he conformed to the Board's requirement. The testimony showed that he was unable to take the vacation time available to him during the 1989-90 school year because of a number of problems in the district - notably an anticipated teachers' strike (T-36, 37). By its resolution of August 14, 1990, the parties agreed that the Board refused to pay for the fourteen unused days earned in 1988-89, as it would have under its previous policy (T-170, 142, 153, 137). Thus the Board was informing these administrators that it would not meet its obligations, pursuant to its prior practice as confirmed in its policy of May 9, 1989, to compensate them for vacation time they were unable to use in the previous school year. Rather, the Board directed these administrators to use this accumulated time.

The testimony shows that petitioner, in fact, used the fourteen days referred to in the resolution, prior to the effective date of his resignation, January 2, 1991 (T-170, 171). Thus, he conformed to the Board's refusal to pay (though there was, and is, a question as to whether this Board could decide to ignore its own policy and pass a resolution affecting the rights of these employees retroactively. See, Schlenker v. Board of Education of the School District of Morris, 1991 S.L.D. 1026, 1032 and 1042). The Board is now attempting to use its resolution of August 14, 1990, (which clearly affected only the days earned in 1988-89 and not used in 1989-90 for which employees were requesting payment while still employed) in a greatly expanded manner. It wishes to apply this very narrow resolution to vacation earned in 1989-90 and in 1990-91 and avoid paying an employee for earned vacation upon his resignation.

C. Petitioner contends that vacation pay is deferred compensation and, once earned, payment for it cannot be denied. Petitioner observes that the parties do not dispute that the Board policy provided that petitioner earned vacation at the rate of 1.8 days per month. Nor do they dispute that petitioner had accumulated 32.5 vacation days at the time of his resignation (T-140). Further, Mr. Moore (T-162, 163), Mr. Cowell (T-145 to 148) and Mr. Chiste (T-15, 16) all testified that every employee who had left the district had been paid for earned vacation time, with the exception of petitioner. Thus, payment for vacation upon resignation was a clearly established policy in the district.

Having taken the fourteen days earned in 1989-89, petitioner had accumulated, by the effective date of his resignation, twenty-two days earned in 1989-90 which became available to him on July 1, 1990. Further, between July 1, 1990, and January 2, 1991, he earned an additional eleven days. Thus, on the date of his resignation he had accumulated:

	22	days earned in 1989-90
	+ 11	days earned from July 1, 1990, to January 2, 1991
	- .5	days taken from July 1, 1990, to January 2, 1991
Total:	32.5	days earned at the time of resignation

The Supreme Court of New Jersey held that vacation pay is, in effect, additional wages. Once the employee furnishes the consideration under the contract by having worked the requisite time, the employer cannot deprive him of the benefits due. Owens v. Press Publishing Co., 20 N.J. 537, 547 (1956). In addition, the court in Botany Mills, Inc. v. Textile Workers Union, 50 N.J. Super. 18, 30 (App. Div. 1958), stated:

> Vacation pay . . . has often been said to be in the nature of deferred compensation, in lieu of wages, earned in part each week the employee works, and payable at some later time.

Since petitioner worked the requisite time, earning 1.8 days vacation per month, the Board may not unilaterally refuse to pay him for vacation time not used.

N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 states that a tenured employee may not be reduced in compensation, except for just cause. In refusing to pay for this vacation time the Board has not alleged any cause, just or otherwise. Thus, as vacation has been defined by New Jersey courts as additional wages and deferred compensation, and as the Board has admitted that petitioner had earned thirty-two and one-half vacation days at the time of his resignation (T-140), the Board may not refuse to pay for same without running afoul of the tenure statute noted above. Thus, both on the basis of elemental contract law and on the basis of the tenure statute, this Board is precluded from denying petitioner payment for his earned vacation time.

At POINT II of his argument, petitioner asserts that the Board is obligated by its policy and past practice to pay him for January 1, 1991.

The parties do not dispute that petitioner's resignation was effective January 2, 1991, and that the superintendent recommended that the Board accept his resignation as of that date (T-123 and P-12). Petitioner testified that he was not paid for the legal holiday, January 1, 1991 (T-96). In addition, he testified that he had always been paid for that day in the past and that all confidential employees had always been paid for that day (T-60). The Board presented no evidence to the contrary and no explanation as to why petitioner was not paid. Petitioner was a salaried professional employee, who was paid at an annual rate; he was not an hourly employee, paid only for the actual hours worked. There is no dispute that all of the other confidential administrators were paid for the day in question or that the Board practice was to pay salaried employees for legal holidays. Therefore, the Board was obliged to pay petitioner for January 1, 1991.

Indeed N.J.S.A. 18A:25-3 requires boards of education to pay salaried teaching staff members for legal holidays. This statute requires that teaching staff members be paid even if school is in session and the staff member chooses not to work. January 1, 1991, was a legal holiday on which the Pemberton schools were closed and petitioner was not required to report to work. As he was a salaried teaching staff member, the Board is obliged to pay him for the day.

Petitioner argues, at POINT III of his brief, that his Petition of Appeal was filed in a timely manner because the Board failed to give him a specific and definitive answer to his request for payment until September 20, 1991. Petitioner testified that it was his understanding that he would be paid for his accrued vacation and holidays upon his resignation and in his letter of resignation he said that his resignation was "pursuant to all legal, contractual and past practices that shall be due me" (P-11). The superintendent advised petitioner by letter dated December 21, 1990, that the Board accepted petitioner's resignation effective January 2, 1991 (P-12).

Thereafter, petitioner submitted his claim for payment of his vacation by way of voucher dated January 4, 1991. Petitioner heard nothing from the Board. Petitioner testified that he believed he would be paid and that the approval process would take some time.

Subsequently, petitioner contacted Mr. Stern, who commenced discussions with Superintendent Moore and later, with the Board's attorney regarding payment. There was no answer from the Board until September 20, 1991, when the Board informed petitioner it would not pay him for his accrued vacation time.

At the hearing, the Board did not provide any evidence that it had, in fact, provided petitioner with specific and definite notice that it would not pay him. See,

Parisi v. Board of Education of the City of Asbury Park, State Board of Education (October 24, 1984) at 3, which holds that:

> N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2 provides that petitions to the Commissioner . . . shall be filed within 90 days after receipt of notice of the school board's actual ruling.

The State Board went on to say that the notice, to be effective, must be specific and definite. Ibid. Similarly, in Meyer v. Board of Education of the Township of Wayne, 1986 S.L.D. 3094, at 3098, the State Board held:

> . . . the notice provided by the board of its action must be specific and definite so that a petitioner is informed both of the action taken by the board and the fact that he was affected by that action.

In the instant matter, the Board, through its attorney, continued to discuss the matter with petitioner's attorney, but provided no final answer until its September 20, 1991, letter noted above. It cannot now benefit from this behavior of stringing petitioner along by belatedly invoking the ninety-day rule. Upon receipt of the September 20, 1991, letter, petitioner then filed his Petition of Appeal on November 12, 1991, well within the ninety days required by N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2 (c).

As noted above, at the hearing, the Board presented no minutes of a meeting at which the Board made a decision to refuse the petitioner's demand for vacation pay and no evidence that petitioner's voucher or demand was even presented to the Board for action. In fact, Mr. Cowell stated that he never presented petitioner's voucher for payment to the Board (T-165). He stated that whenever there was a question regarding a voucher, he would bring it to the attention of the superintendent and, if necessary, the board attorney (T-155). In this case, he brought the voucher to the attention of the superintendent.

The superintendent testified that he spoke with petitioner's attorney and, allegedly, told Mr. Stern that he "was not authorized" to pay petitioner. This artfully phrased testimony is equivocal and ambiguous and could not be considered a specific and definitive refusal by the Board to pay. Note that he did not say that the Board refused to pay or that he had even sought authorization. Indeed, the Board presented no evidence that the superintendent had sought authorization from the Board or had even presented petitioner's voucher to the Board for payment. That Mr. Moore's alleged statement to Mr. Stern was not a specific and definitive refusal to pay is bolstered by:

- The Board's admission that there were several conversations between petitioner's representative and the Board's representatives between the time of petitioner's resignation and his September 12, 1991, demand letter and that it was on September 20, 1991, that the Board informed petitioner it would not pay him the value of his vacation days. See, Petition Count One, Paragraphs 5 and 6, and Answer to Count One, Paragraph 1.

- Mr. Stern's letter to Mr. Hardt (P-15) states that petitioner expected to be paid pursuant to Board policy; reiterates that Mr. Stern had had conversations with both the superintendent and the board attorney, and states further:

> Since there appears to be no impediment barring payment of said days, kindly inform me . . . when Dr. Kirschling can expect payment.

  This language on its face indicates that as of September 12, 1991, petitioner fully expected to be paid and had been given no specific, definitive statement from the Board that the Board had reviewed his claim and refused to pay him. See also petitioner's testimony at T-97, 98.

- The testimony of the business administrator, Mr. Cowell, that there was a question as to whether petitioner was to be paid and that he had brought the question to the attention of the superintendent, not the Board.

Thus, the only credible evidence on the record as to when a specific, definitive answer was provided petitioner was the September 20, 1991, letter from Mr. Hardt, in which the Board, through its attorney, unequivocally stated that it refused to pay. See, Board's Answer to Count One, Paragraph 5, of the Petition. In German v. Board of Education of Cape May Vocational-Technical Center, 1989 S.L.D. 3002, the State Board reversed the Commissioner's decision as to the application of the ninety-day rule. There, as here, the Board did not respond to the petitioner's request for payment and attempted to avoid its obligations by inaction and silence. The State Board found that the claim was not barred by the statute of limitations and, further, held that under like circumstances, relaxation of the rule was warranted in the interest of justice. German, 1989 S.L.D. 3006.

Petitioner does not appeal from the Board's action in passing its resolution of August 14, 1990, (as respondent states in its memorandum provided at the hearing in this matter). It is petitioner's position that he met the terms of that resolution and used the fourteen days referred to between July 1, 1990, and January 2, 1991. He sought payment for his thirty-two and one-half vacation days accrued in 1989-90 and 1990-91. Thus, the Board cannot rely upon the August 14, 1990, date as the time from which the statute of limitations must run. His request was for payment upon his resignation pursuant to the Board's policy of May 9, 1989, (authorizing payment for unused vacation) and its unwavering past practice of paying employees for accrued vacation upon resignation. Mr. Moore and Mr. Cowell both testified that every employee who had left the district had been paid for accrued vacation with the exception of petitioner (T-162, 163 and T-145 to 148). Note Mr. Moore's response regarding Dr. DiNunzio when asked by the administrative law judge (ALJ) what caused the Board to pay Dr. DiNunzio for vacation accrued in the previous year upon his resignation:

> Well, that had been the practice and the --- a longstanding practice, not just for these four gentlemen but for --- . . . . That's been the practice because they had actually earned those vacation days, so the Board paid them.

Petitioner further argues that the Board must be found to have waived the statute of limitations defense. He contends that in its Answer to his Petition, the Board admitted that:

> 5. On September 12, 1991, following several verbal inquiries, petitioner wrote to respondent, requesting payment of his accrued vacation days.
>
>
> 6. On September 20, 1991, respondent informed petitioner that it would not pay petitioner the value of his accrued vacation.
> [Petition Count One at Paragraphs 5 and 6]

Thus, it does not appear on the face of the Petition that the action pleaded is barred by the statute of limitations (Rappeport, infra). On the contrary, by its Answer respondent admits petitioner's allegations relative to when the significant events at issue occurred and, thus, from what date the statute of limitations began to run.

In addition, the issue of timeliness was not specifically raised as an affirmative defense, nor was it raised in the prehearing order dated April 21, 1992, as an issue to be addressed by the parties and the ALJ, or in the Board's motion for summary judgment (on ~~the~~ other threshold issue of jurisdiction) of May 15, 1992. At the hearing, the Board relied upon its first affirmative defense - failure to state a claim upon which relief may be granted - as encompassing a statute of limitations defense. This prejudiced petitioner as he was unable to arrange for the necessary witnesses and prepare an appropriate defense on the issue of timeliness.

At the hearing, the Board argued that, having raised the affirmative defense of "failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted," it was allowed to raise the "statute of limitations" defense "by motion or under the general rules" (T-64). However, R. 4:5-4 requires that the "statute of limitations" defense be specifically and separately pleaded.

Rappeport v. Flitcroft, 90 N.J. Super. 578, 580 (App. Div. 1966), held that,

> . . . where it affirmatively appears on the face of a complaint that the action pleaded is barred by the statute of limitations, the defense can be raised by motion to dismiss [cite omitted] for failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted. [Emphasis added]

As noted above, in the instant matter it cannot be said that it is clear on the face of the petition that the action is barred by the statute of limitations. On the contrary, the Board's admission to paragraphs 5 and 6 of the Petition is evidence that the ninety-day rule was not an issue in this matter.

Even if the Board were permitted to preserve the "statute of limitations" defense within the "failure to state a claim" defense, R. 4:6-2 and R. 4:6-3 state that the threshold defenses listed there, including "(e) failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted," must be made in pleadings or by motion before the trial, unless the court for cause orders that the hearing and determination thereof be deferred until the trial. Since the statute of limitations issue did not come before the ALJ until the day of the hearing, the ALJ did not have the opportunity to make the necessary "for cause" determination that would have permitted deferral until the hearing date. Thus, the Board, having failed to raise the specific "statute of limitations" defense in its pleadings, or at the prehearing conference or in its motion for summary judgment, should be deemed to have waived the defense.

The case law shows that the Board may not now rely on the defense, having failed to raise the issue before the hearing. See, Fees v. Trow, 105 N.J. 330, 335 (1987), in which the Court states that, though there was an obvious statute of limitations defense, > . . . because that affirmative defense was neither pleaded in defendant's answer nor raised in defendant's motion for summary judgment, and because it has not been adverted to by either party at any stage of these proceedings, we treat it as having been waived. See R. 4:6-7 Rappeport v. Flitcroft, 90 N.J. Super. 578, 581 (App. Div. 1966).

In addition, O'Connor v. Abraham Altus, 67 N.J. 107, 116 (1975), stated unequivocally that the defense of statute of limitations is preserved under the defense of "failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted" only for the purposes of a motion before trial. There the Court stated that the reason for the rule is notice to the plaintiff. It permitted the defendant in O'Connor to initially raise the issue at trial only because another defendant had raised the defense in his pleadings and in the pretrial order. Thus, "plaintiffs were aware that the issue of the statute was in the case." O'Connor, supra, 67 N.J. at 116. In the instant matter, petitioner did not receive notice that the statute of limitations was an issue in the case, as it was not raised in the pleadings, nor in the pretrial order, nor in respondent's motion for summary judgment on the threshold issue of jurisdiction. As a result of the lack of notice, petitioner was prejudiced at the hearing as he was unable to properly prepare a defense and have witnesses available to testify with respect to the issue of timeliness. Thus, in the instant matter, the issue was not preserved for the hearing and respondent must be found to have waived that defense.

Judge Pressler states, in her commentary with respect to R. 4:6-7, Waiver or Preservation of Defenses, that a statute of limitations defense may be preserved in the defense of "failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted" only where the bar of the statute of limitations appears on the face of the complaint. In addition, she notes that the Supreme Court in Fees, supra, 105 N.J. 330, treats a statute of limitations bar as a waivable affirmative defense. She further notes that ordinarily affirmative defenses required to be pleaded by R. 4:5-4 (including the statute of limitations defense) which are not timely raised are waived. Pressler, Current N.J. Court Rules, comment on R. 4:6-7 (1993).

The statutory scheme provided by these rules must be applied here, as their purpose is to avoid "trial by ambush." Otherwise, a respondent could, as here, avoid disclosing prior to the hearing date its "statute of limitations" defense by incorporating it under the catchall defense of "failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted." Petitioner cannot then be prepared to rebut that defense. Petitioner respectfully asserts that he was prejudiced by permitting testimony to be taken on the issue of timeliness. The Rules of the Court and the cases interpreting these are based in the fundamental notion that the right to due process encompasses the right to know, prior to a hearing, the nature of respondent's defenses.

THE BOARD'S POSITION

At POINT I of its brief, the Board asserts that by its resolution adopted on August 14, 1990, it adopted a use-or-lose policy for accrued vacation time. It argues, among other things, that the stated intent of the Board resolution on August 14, 1990, was to adopt a new policy as to accrued vacation time for administrative personnel.

It is undisputed that on May 9, 1989, the Board adopted a policy dealing with benefits of certain administrative personnel, including petitioner (P-3). Item 6 of that policy states:

> Vacation Days - 22 per year - Prorated on the basis of 1.8 per month; Unused vacation days shall be compensated at the per diem rate.

Unused vacation payments pursuant to this policy were made by the Board. On July 3, 1990, the superintendent presented a recommendation for similar payments. The recommendation was withdrawn when discussion during executive session revealed that there would not be enough votes to approve that agenda item (T-119). On August 14, 1990, the Board passed a resolution affecting vacation benefits for certain administrators (P-9). In the written minutes of August 14, 1990, the resolution states:

> 26. Be it resolved that the following administrators be authorized to use their unused vacation days for the 1988-90 school year:

Name	# of Unused Days
Robert Moore	9 days
Mark Cowell	10½ days
Thomas Kirschling	14 days
John Harrington	1 day

This action appears to have been in part a compromise for payment for the unused days of the 1988-89 school year (T-119).

As petitioner's brief argues (at 4), on its face the August 14, 1990, written minutes list only those unused vacation days for the 1989-90 school year. Admittedly, the Board has not amended those minutes. However, the portion of the minutes containing the resolution (P-9) is not a full transcript. It is just the resolution, who made the motion, who seconded it and whether it was approved or disapproved (T-165). The testimony revealed that discussions were held both during the course of and subsequent to approval of that resolution which would clearly reveal the Board's intent to adopt a use-or-lose policy as to accrued vacation days (T-80, 89-91).

Petitioner was present at the July 13, 1990, Board meeting during which the superintendent's recommendation as to payment for unused vacation days was withdrawn (T-65, 78). Petitioner was present at the August 14, 1990, meeting. He was present during discussion concerning the motion regarding unused vacation days (T-79, 80). He had conversations with the superintendent either before or after the motion was adopted concerning its content and implications (T-80, 83, 120, 121-22). He discussed the motion and what it meant with the business administrator (T-80).

The superintendent testified that he spoke with other administrators affected to convey to them that by the Board's resolution of August 14, 1990, the Board had adopted a different policy as to unused vacation days from the policy which had existed in 1989 (T-120, 138). The business administrator testified that he understood the Board's action to be an alteration of policy and that it appeared that the other affected administrators understood the same (T-164 to 166).

The superintendent's memorandum dated August 15, 1990, reflects an understanding that the Board had adopted a use-or-lose policy as to unused vacation days. Despite the above-noted conversations and the memorandum, petitioner maintains that he was firmly under the assumption that the Board action of August 14, 1990, affected only the fourteen days of vacation earned during the 1988-89 school year and that he would be paid for his accrued vacation days submitted at the time of his resignation (T-57, 75, 105-06). He claims he did not known what the Board meant (T-81).

It was possible that the Board could make a change in policy (T-26). Petitioner acknowledged in his testimony that the Board would have changed policies by adopting a policy at a public Board meeting (T-85). This was just what the Board did at its August 14, 1990, meeting. Therefore, when petitioner separated from service, there was no policy in the district to pay for unused accumulated vacation time from the prior school year (T-141, 158). That policy has been followed consistently as to those employees covered by it (T-160). Board policy did permit payment for unused vacation time which had accrued during the year of retirement (T-110, 145 et seq.).[1] The individuals paid had worked an entire year, but could not have put in for their vacation time because they were retiring on July 1st of that year. Unused vacation time which had accrued for any previous year was not paid for. These payments are consistent with the Board's policy with regard to using or losing accrued vacation time (T-149, 150).

In contrast, petitioner submitted a resignation to be effective January 2, 1991. Contrary to petitioner's characterization, his resignation does not state that his tender of resignation would be contingent upon receiving payment for his vacation time (P-11; petitioner's brief at 10). According to the superintendent's testimony, he and petitioner discussed when he would be leaving. However, the determination as to the date of effective termination was made by petitioner (T-122 to 124). Moreover, petitioner could have submitted a vacation plan and could have had his resignation become effective after he had used his vacation (T-123).

At POINT II of its brief, the Board argues that petitioner failed to file a timely petition to challenge its adoption of a new policy concerning accrued vacation time.

[1] It is pursuant to this policy that petitioner may be entitled to a claim for the per diem accumulation which occurred from July 1, 1990, to January 1, 1991, an accumulation which he could not have used because it would have vested in July of 1991.

On August 14, 1990, the Board decided that unused vacation days must be used during the 1990-91 school year. To this end and with the intent that a policy be adopted requiring the use of all vacation days during the current school year, the Board adopted resolution #26 on August 14, 1990.[2] Petitioner did not bring any petition challenging that Board action within the ninety-day time frame mandated by N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c). He testified that he has brought no challenge other than the one which is before this tribunal at this time (T-77). Having failed to file a timely petition challenging the Board's new policy, he should be precluded now from such action.

Petitioner asserts that he is not appealing "from the Board's action in passing its resolution of August 14, 1989 [sic]." He claims that he met the terms of the August 14, 1990, resolution by using the fourteen days referred to. He claims that his request for payment upon resignation was pursuant to the Board's policy of May 9, 1989, and "its unwavering past practice of paying employees for accrued vacation upon resignation" (Petitioner's brief at 14). However, as noted above, the Board's policy as of August 14, 1990, has been followed consistently subsequent to its adoption. Petitioner states that the Board cannot rely upon the August 14, 1990, date as the time from which the statute of limitations must run, but it is that very date which established the Board policy pursuant to which the Board must deny petitioner's request for payment.

The Board further contends it has not waived its statute of limitations defense. It asserts that at the hearing it was permitted by the ALJ to pursue questioning as to the time of filing of Dr. Kirschling's petition. Having raised the affirmative defense of "failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted," it was allowed to raise a "statute of limitations" defense (T-64). "[W]here the bar of the statute of limitations appears on the face of the complaint, it may be asserted as a 'failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted.' " Rappeport v. Flitcroft, supra, 90 N.J. Super. at 581. It may not be clear on the face of the petition that the action is barred by the statute of limitations. The Board does not dispute, as admitted in its Answer, that on September 12, 1991, petitioner wrote to it requesting payment for accrued vacation days or that on September 20, 1991, the Board informed petitioner that it would not pay the value of the accrued vacation claimed. However, by these admissions, the Board cannot be said to have admitted that these are the only significant events in the suit at hand. On the contrary, the date of the Board's adoption of its August 14, 1990, resolution is of great significance as it is upon the basis of this policy that payment for petitioner's claimed accrued vacation has been denied. Petitioner cannot be said to be unaware of the importance of the Board's action on that date. The fact that no one challenged the Board's decision was stated in both the "Factual Statement" of its motion for summary judgment (on the issue of jurisdiction) of May 15, 1992 and in its "Answers to Interrogatories" of January 1993.

[2] The Board does not contend that a second resolution concerning vacation days was adopted by the Board on August 14, 1990. Rather that by virtue of the resolution that was adopted, the Board intended to adopt a new policy requiring the use or loss of accrued vacation time. Other affected administrators have testified that they understood this to be the implication of the Board's resolution.

Cases which petitioner cites for the proposition that the Board may not now rely on the statute of limitations defense, having failed to raise the issue before the hearing, may be differentiated from the case at bar. In Fees v. Trow, supra, 105 N.J. 330, the Court "note[d] in passing" that, though there was an obvious statute of limitations defense, that defense would be treated as having been waived as it was neither pleaded in the defendant's answer, raised in its motion for summary judgment or adverted to by either party. It does not appear in Fees that the defendant had asserted a "failure to state a claim" defense by virtue of which she could raise a "statute of limitations" defense. Moreover, unlike Fees, where the defense was not adverted to at any state of the proceedings, the Board here has specifically raised such issue, at least as of the time of hearing.

Petitioner's characterization of O'Connor v. Abraham Altus, supra, 67 N.J. 107, is similarly erroneous. The Court in that case observed:

> Plaintiffs recognize, however, the rule of Rappeport v. Flitcroft, 90 N.J. Super. 578 (App. Div. 1966), which preserves the defense of statute of limitations, at least for purposes of a motion before the trial, where the answering pleading recites the complaint's "failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted," 90 N.J. Super. 580; see R. 4:6-2.
> [O'Connor, supra, 67 N.J. at 116]

The Court did not state "unequivocally that the defense of the statute of limitations is preserved under the defense of 'failure to state claim upon which relief can be granted' only for the purposes of a motion before trial" (Petitioner's brief at p. 17). In fact, while Rappeport dealt with a motion for judgment on the pleadings, R. 4:12-8 (precursor of present R. 4:6-7), upon which the Court's decision was based, stated, in part, that "the defense of failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted  may also be made by a later pleading, if one is permitted, or by motion for judgment on the pleadings or at the trial on the merits ." Rappeport, supra, 90 N.J. Super. at 580; bold face added. While in the instant matter there is no other defendant who had raised the defense in its pleadings as in O'Connor, petitioner can still be said to have been under notice that the statute of limitations would be an issue in the case given that the Board's refusal to pay was based upon its policy adopted in August 1990.

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

With regard to the Board's authority to adopt a vacation policy for its administrators, it is observed that N.J.S.A. 18A:11-1(c) requires boards of education to:

> c. Make, amend and repeal rules, not inconsistent with this title or with the rules of the state board, for its own government and the transaction of its business and for the government and management of the public schools and public school property of the district and for the employment, regulation of conduct and discharge of its employees. . . .

And, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:30-7, boards of education are granted authority to:

> fix either by rule or by individual consideration, the payment of salary in cases of absence not constituting sick leave. . . .

Thus, the legislative authority for the Board to incorporate policies "for its own government" and "for the . . . regulation of conduct . . . of its employees" and for "the payment of salary in cases of absence not constituting sick leave," and, in this instance, policies concerning vacation time, are embodied within the corpus of school law.

Here, within the scope of its authority, the Board adopted a series of policies which regulated the conduct of its central office administrators. Two such policies were adopted by the Board on February 10, 1987, namely The Leadership Team (P-1) and Leaves for Administrators Not Covered by Negotiated Agreement (P-2). Inasmuch as petitioner and other central office administrators (The Leadership Team) were considered confidential employees, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 34:13A-3 (g), the Board provided them with the identical leave benefits provided to members of the district's Professional Administrators Association, which was able to negotiate with it (P-2). In addition, the Board promulgated an employee benefits policy for its assistant superintendent, business administrator/board secretary and petitioner, who was the Board's director of personnel (P-3). The adopted policy provided petitioner and the others with twenty-two vacation days per year. In the event petitioner, or the others, were unable to use the vacation days, the Board's policy provided that petitioner would be compensated at a per diem rate for every vacation day not taken (P-3).

The Board contends that by its action on August 14, 1990, it intended to adopt a new policy as to accrued vacation time for its administrative personnel. The Board's resolution, however, does not reflect its intention. Rather, it is specific in its terms of requiring the four named administrators to use their unused vacation days from the 1989-90 school year. The resolution adopted on August 14, 1990, says nothing about repealing P-2 and/or P-3.

The Commissioner has discussed the guidelines to interpretation of board of education policies. In Romeo, Jr., v. Board of Education of the Township of Madison, 1973 S.L.D. 102, it was said, at 106, that:

> In ascertaining the meaning of a policy, just as of a statute, the intention is to be found within the four corners of the document itself. The language employed by the adoption should be given its ordinary and common significance. Lane v. Holderman, 23 N.J. 304 (1957). Where the wording is clear and explicit on its face, the policy must speak for itself and be construed according to its own terms. Duke Power Company, Inc. v. Edward J. Patten, Secretary of State, et al., 20 N.J. 42, 49 (1955); Zietko v. New Jersey Manufacturers Casualty Ins. Co., 132 N.J.L. 206, 211 (E. & A. 1944); Bass v. Allen Home Development Co., 8 N.J. 219, 226 (1951); Sperry and Hutchinson Co. v. Margetts,15 N.J. 203, 209 (1954); 2 Sutherland, Statutes and Statutory Construction, (3rd. ed. 1943), section 4502.

The Board contends that it was its intent to repeal the employee benefits policy (P-3) by its action on August 14, 1990. Yet, the language adopted by its resolution only refers to the use of vacation time for the 1989-90 school year. The "four corners of the document" express the Board's intention which, when "given its ordinary meaning," only speaks to a limited period of time and not to its adopted employee benefits policy.

Had the Board intended to repeal the employee benefits (P-3) policy which it afforded its central office administrators, it could have done so, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:11-1. As the Court held in Newark Publishers' Association v. Newark Typographical Union, 22 N.J. 419, 427 (1956):

> We are not at liberty to introduce and effectuate some supposed unrevealed intention. The actual intent of the parties is ineffective unless made known in some way in the writing. It is not the real intent but the intent expressed or apparent in the writing that controls. [emphasis supplied]

Thus, the writing of the adopted resolution of August 14, 1990, expresses the Board's intent to limit petitioner's use of fourteen days of vacation time from 1989-90 during the 1990-91 school year. Petitioner complied with the Board's resolution and used the fourteen days as intended.

I CONCLUDE, therefore, that by its action on August 14, 1990, the Board modified its employee benefits policy for the unused vacation days during the 1989-90 school year, under its statutory authority. N.J.S.A. 18A:11-1.

I CONCLUDE that the Board did not, however, repeal its employee benefits policy which provided payment for unused vacation days other than those unused in the 1989-90 school year.

I FIND that petitioner earned twenty-two vacation days during the 1989-90 school year which were available to him after July 1, 1990. I FIND that between July 1, 1990, and January 2, 1991, petitioner earned an additional eleven vacation days at 1.8 days per month. I FIND that petitioner used one-half vacation day between July 1, 1990, and January 2, 1991, leaving a total of thirty-two and one-half unused vacation days.

I CONCLUDE that under the Board's existing employee benefits policy, vacation pay is deferred compensation and, once earned and not used, payment for it cannot be denied. Botany Mills, Inc., supra, 50 N.J. Super. at 30.

I CONCLUDE, therefore, that pursuant to the Board's existing employee benefits policy, the Board must compensate petitioner for thirty-two and one-half unused vacation days at his per diem rate at the time of his resignation on January 2, 1991.

N.J.S.A. 18A:25-3 provides as follows:

> No teaching staff member shall be required to perform his duties on any day declared by law to be a public holiday and no deduction shall be made from such member's salary by reason of the fact that such a public holiday happens to be a school day and any term of any contract made with any such member which is in violation of this section shall be void.

Petitioner submitted his resignation effective January 2, 1991. January 1, 1991, known as New Year's Day, is a legal holiday pursuant to N.J.S.A. 36:1-1. The Board pays its salaried employees for legal holidays. In the matter of Moldovan v. Board of Education of the Township of Hamilton, Mercer County, 1971 S.L.D. 246, the Commissioner said, at 253, that:

> The clear intent of this long standing statute, N.J.S.A. 18A:25-3, supra, is that teaching staff members shall not be required to perform duties on any public holiday, that no salary deduction shall be made for absence because a public holiday happens to be a school day, and that no contract term may violate this statute. It is evident that this statute does not prohibit school sessions on public holidays, but instead protects the right of teaching staff members to be absent on public holidays without suffering financial loss. In the instant matter, petitioners' absence from the school session held on October 12, 1970, was within the rights bestowed upon teaching staff members by N.J.S.A. 18A:25-3, supra; therefore, their salaries were not subject to a deduction because of such absence.

In the instant matter, the Board accepted petitioner's resignation, effective January 2, 1991. Having done so, it is obligated to pay petitioner for the holiday which fell on January 1, 1991. N.J.S.A. 36:1-1; N.J.S.A. 18A:25-3; Moldovan, supra, 1971 S.L.D. 246.

I CONCLUDE, therefore, that the Board, by accepting petitioner's resignation effective January 2, 1991, is obligated to pay petitioner his per diem rate for the legal holiday, January 1, 1991.

As for the Board's argument that petitioner's Petition of Appeal was untimely filed, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2 (c), there is nothing in the record to demonstrate that the Board gave petitioner notice, by way of a "final order, ruling or other action," before September 20, 1991, that it would not reimburse him for his accrued vacation days. While there may have been some discussions between petitioner's attorney and agents of the Board, there is nothing in the record to show that the Board complied with the provisions of N.J.A.C. 6:24:1.2(c) to advise and alert petitioner of its action prior to September 20, 1991.

I FIND and CONCLUDE, therefore, that the Board's argument that petitioner's Petition of Appeal was untimely filed under the so-called ninety-day rule is without merit and must be dismissed.

ORDER

Accordingly, it is ORDERED that the Board of Education of the Township of Pemberton reimburse Dr. Thomas J. Kirschling his per diem rate of pay for thirty-two and one-half unused vacation days and one holiday.

It is FURTHER ORDERED that the Board's claim that petitioner's Petition of Appeal is barred by virtue of the ninety-day rule (N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2 (c)) is DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

THOMAS J. KIRSCHLING,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF PEMBERTON, BURLINGTON COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record and initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Petitioner filed timely exceptions in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Petitioner excepts to the initial decision only to the extent that the ALJ failed to award him pre-judgment interest. He avers that he is entitled to such interest since there was no basis in law, Board policy or Board practice which justified the Board's failure to pay him for his earned vacation and the New Year's Day holiday in a timely manner.

Upon review of the record, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusions of the Administrative Law Judge and adopts the initial decision as the final decision in the matter for the reasons well stated therein.

The Commissioner specifically rejects petitioner's claim of entitlement to pre-judgment interest in this matter as she determines that the record does not support the existence of the criteria necessary for her awarding of such interest under N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.16(c)1.

Accordingly, the Commissioner hereby orders the Board of Education of the Township of Pemberton to reimburse Thomas J. Kirschling his per diem rate of pay for thirty-two and one-half unused vacation days and one holiday, and dismisses the Board's claim that the within Petition of Appeal is barred by virtue of the ninety-day rule (N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c)).

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, unsuccessful candidate for membership on the Board, sought inquiry into alleged violations/irregularities in school election proceedings (improper instruction by election workers and overall ambiguity and confusion accompanying the execution of write-in votes).

Following review of record and evaluation of credibility of witnesses, ALJ upheld original election results. Although ALJ found some mistake on the part of eight workers, the record did not prove error in the process and there was no cause to invalidate the election.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision.

INITIAL DECISION

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 4000-93

AGENCY DKT. NO. 102-4/93

IN THE MATTER OF THE SCHOOL ELECTION HELD IN THE TOWNSHIP OF EAST AMWELL, HUNTERDON COUNTY

Gary P. Hall, Esq., for petitioner (Fogarty & Hara, attorneys)

Ed Pagan, Jr., Esq., for respondents

Record Closed: June 16, 1993 Decided: July 16, 1993

BEFORE JOSEPH LAVERY, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner, James M. Hall, is an unsuccessful write-in candidate for a one-year term on the East Amwell Board of Education (Board). After the election, petitioner brought a petition before the Commissioner of Education. He asked that certain write-in votes, declared invalid in the election, now be counted, and that he be declared the winner.

Named as respondents in the petition are the successful candidate for the one-year term, Claude Case, as well as the Board secretary, Dorothy Biggs.[1]

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This matter was declared a contested case by the Commissioner of Education pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-9 and -10. The Commissioner directed that there be an inquiry into alleged violations of statutorily prescribed procedures, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:14-63.12. She filed the dispute in the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on April 30, 1993.

The Director and Chief Administrative Law Judge thereafter assigned the case for hearing. After adjournment for cause, the hearing convened on June 16, 1993. On that date, the record closed.

ANALYSIS

Background:

Much of the material background is undisputed:

On April 20, 1993, an election was held for members of the School Board in the East Amwell School District. For three of the Board seats, eight candidates competed to obtain three-year terms. The candidates were listed vertically at Columns 1, 2 and 3. For the remaining seat, located at Column 5, the term was only one year. Five candidates, including respondent Case and petitioner (a write-in contestant), stood for that elective office (Exh. P-13). It is this one-year-term seat which is the subject of appeal.

The balloting went forward in East Amwell. The process was shared, in the same building, with the simultaneous balloting for election to the board of the Hunterdon County Regional High School

[1] The appropriate respondent in this contested case is the East Amwell Board of Education. Significantly, it is that body which has undertaken the defense.

District. At hearing, the parties agreed that a hand-drawn document, Exh. P-12, reflects the relative location of the voter registration table, the "sign-in" table, and three voting machines (two for East Amwell [one of which was on-line for less than the full voting day], and one for the Hunterdon County contest). The drawing also represents the paths taken by the voters.

Witnesses uniformly testified that first, they went to the voter registration table to verify their status. They proceeded next to the sign-in table, where they received a "voucher" or authorization slip which a worker took at each of the two East Amwell voting machines. The witness voters then went in the curtained voting booth, and cast a vote. The vote was recorded in one of two ways: (1) by the turn of a switch next to the names of declared candidates, printed in Columns 1, 2, 3, or 5, or, (2) if voting for a "write-in" candidate, by pencilling the name in a "slot" on the machine. The write-in slot was supposed to be located at the top of the relevant column, on a diagonal or slant. A write-in vote accommodated votes for persons whose names were not printed on the ballot, for one reason or another.

In this inquiry, the write-in slot for the one-year term in East Amwell is the focus. That slot was placed, on a diagonal, at the top of the framed ballot on the machine. It was near or above (the exact location is controverted) Column 5. The slot was separated from the column by an intervening band, which was the "question row" (Exh. R-1). The name of respondent Claude Case alone was printed below it, in Column 5. Only the turn of a switch next to Mr. Case's name was needed to vote in his favor.

On the other hand, a voter determined to elect petitioner, Jim Hall (or any other write-in candidate), had to reach beyond the top of Column 5, lift up the write-in-slot cover above the question row, and write in his name (Exh. R-1). If that voter had turned any voting switch next to a candidate whose name was printed below in the column, the cover could not be lifted. Conversely, lifting the cover locked the switches next to the declared candidates' names printed below the question band, in the column.

This design prevented votes for more than one candidate. Voters were held to this same write-in procedure above Columns 1, 2, and 3, as well. By way of instruction, Exh. R-1, entitled "How You Can Write In A Vote On An Automatic Voting Machine," was placed on the registration table for voters to see. It contained a picture of the machine, and a short narrative direction. No "mock-up" of the machine, or of the ballot sheet itself, was available.

Within this arrangement, the election ended with the following announced results for the one-year term here in issue:

CANDIDATES - 1-YEAR TERM	AT POLLS	ABSENTEE	TOTAL
Claude Case	177	5	182
Jim Hall	178	0	178
Darlys Maksymovich	3	0	3
Ilona English	1	0	1

[Exh P-13]

Once the results were in, the present controversy ignited. Candidate Jim Hall challenged the election. In his moving papers, which triggered this appeal before the Commissioner, petitioner argued that, in fact, he had received 231 votes. This was 53 more votes than the official tally. He maintained that the write-in slots over Columns 4, 6 and 7 contained these hand-penciled votes, in the following order:

Column 4	-	4 votes
Column 6	-	33 votes
Column 7	-	16 votes
Total	-	53 votes

In contrast, in a recount conducted by a representative of the Commissioner of the Department of Education, only 36 write-in votes were tabulated outside Column 5 (Exh. P-13).[2] Nevertheless, the new total, combining 36 votes with the unchallenged number of 178 votes, still brought petitioner Hall's total to 214. This exceeded the number of votes, 182, credited to the declared winner for the one-year-term seat: Claude Case.

Against this background, hearing went forward in the OAL.

Arguments of the Parties:

Petitioner Hall's Argument:

Petitioner Hall argues that the will of the people was thwarted in this election. The cause, he asserts, is twofold. This unlawful result arose from (1) improper instruction by the election workers, and (2) overall ambiguity and confusion accompanying the execution of write-in votes.

To create a factual record, petitioner offered the testimony of eight voters, in supplement to their affidavits (Exhs. P-1, P-2, P-4, P-5, P-6, P-7, P-9, and P-11). Frank DiGiandomenico testified that he intended to write in above the one-year-term candidates, and used slot six, though it was hard to gauge whether it was in line with the one-year-term column. Jean Earle used slot four, because, she stated, petitioner's name was written in plastic directly in line with that slot. Colleen Litwin testified that she used slot 6, despite having heard instructions to others by an election worker to use slot 5 for the one-year-term vote. She recalled that the slide for slot 5 wouldn't move, while slot 6 opened. Convinced then that this was the correct location, she wrote in slot 6. She recalled it was hard to line up either slot 5 or slot 6 with the candidate's name printed below. Judith DiGiandomenico thought that the candidate declared for the one-year term lined up with slot 6. When it opened, she too wrote petitioner's name there. Though she had seen Exh. R-1, she saw no other written instructions.

[2] The hearsay observations of the Commissioner's representative concerning the appearance of the voting machines cannot be accepted here. They are barred by the "residuum rule," N.J.A.C. 1:1-15.5(b). This rule demands that some competent evidence support all ultimate findings of fact. The representative was not subject to cross-examination through testimony at the instant hearing, and was not present during the election. Consequently, the ALJ cannot find facts from a review of Exh. P-13, the recount report.

Candace L. Higgins likewise thought slot 6 was aligned with the Case name, and wrote in petitioner's name there. She had been instructed by a worker to identify the proper slot by lining the two up. Richard G. Malsbury recalled that he had difficulty from the outset. Once in the booth, he was forced to lean out through the curtain, and ask an election worker for instruction. He was told to "Count over six, and go up six." He took this to mean write in at slot 6. Despite all, he continued to be confused, and was uncertain what slot he ultimately chose to write in his vote for petitioner.

Stephen M. Bielawski testified that he too was told by a worker, Carol Roth, to count from the left, perhaps five or six spaces, to the position to be voted on, then move upward to the write-in slot. Mr. Bielawski determined that to be slot 5. When he could not open it, he tried several others, then chose the nearest one. He stated that he was confused while in the booth. Jeannette F. Petrus conceded that she was so confused that she voted in a panic. She knew the slot she chose was incorrect. When she had previously asked for help, the worker only told her to write in her candidate's name, which would not appear on the ballot.

Not all of the witnesses could recall seeing write-in instructions at the voting site, and it was stipulated that none were at the machines themselves. Several remembered receiving Exh. R-1 in the mail, with election materials sent by petitioner.

Several other affidavits, without adoptive testimony, were admitted in evidence (Exhs. P-3, P-8, and P-10).[3]

In the face of these proven irregularities, petitioner argues, the outcome of the election was fatally influenced, and a new election should be promptly held, as a cure.

East Amwell Board of Education's Argument:

In response, the Board contends that the write-in votes misplaced in slots other than slot 5 were not mere technical irregularities or errors. Because the votes were inappropriately placed, they should not be counted. There is no precedent, the Board argues, for a contrary decision. In any event, even if the alleged process flaws could be so described, technical deficiencies per se would not justify invalidating an election, and thwarting the electorate.

The Board's witnesses, election workers at the site, differed somewhat from petitioners' witnesses in their recollection of the voting on April 20. Mildred Hall, trained in write-in voting for both general and school district elections, recalled a few questions on write-ins. No one specified what term-seat was involved. She was unaware of any misalignment of Column 5 with the corresponding write-in slot. However, she disclosed, she had served virtually all of her time at the Hunterdon Regional High School District machine.

Adele A. Purcell, who worked all evening at the first table, remembered that at least half the voters asked for write-in instructions. She answered by showing them Exh. R-1, with its pictured directions. As a further help, she told them to count from the left over to the right column, being careful, because the slot above was on a slant. Ms. Purcell recalled directing them to move up to the slot only from Columns 1, 2, 3, and 5, which contained the printed names. The voters were told to raise the lip, write the name, and open the curtain; the paper would then move and the slot cover would return by sliding down.

Margaret Case Bixby, daughter of the declared candidate, recalled working all night at the sign-in table. She too gave detailed instructions and cautions, similar to the other workers, in aid to about twenty-five questioners. No one asked specifically about petitioner, or the one-year-term slot. She heard from two Board members that two people had complained about write-in voting.

Carol Johnson had worked at both tables, as well as at both East Amwell voting machines (Exh. P-12). She recalled that the explanatory exhibit, Exh. R-1, had been placed at the entry/registration table. While she was working at that table, no one had asked how to write in a vote. One voter had inquired about it at the sign-in table, and asked Ms. Johnson whom she should vote for. In contrast, while working at the machines Ms. Johnson was asked frequently for assistance. She gave the same instructions as the other workers testifying, adding that write-ins at blank slots would be invalid votes. Ms. Johnson was certain that she never identified slot 6 as appropriate, and that she was not queried by anyone about petitioner specifically. She did recall some plastic curving upward in one machine, which did not block the slot.

Caroline Roth remembered between 50 and 75 percent of voters asking for assistance on write-in votes. No particular candidate was mentioned. She too directed voters to move from the left to the column for the seat involved, then go directly upward to the proper slot, raising the cover to write in the slot. Slot 6 was not mentioned, to her recollection. Though she heard complaints, they did not pertain to columns being out-of-line with the write-in slots.

FINDINGS OF FACT AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Findings of Fact:

Although most of the facts are not disputed, some critical few are controverted. To resolve them, I FIND:

1. No election worker instructed a voter to write in his or her ballot at a particular slot, especially slot 6.

2. All workers directed questioners to locate, and move upward, from the column for a particular term-seat, and to then open the slot corresponding, where they could write in their votes.

3. The votes cast by those witnesses testifying at hearing were placed in slots other than slot 5 because of confusion, mistake, or, in one instance, panic.

4. Slot 5 was adequately aligned with the one-year-term column, Column 5, for a voter to perceive a direct connection between the two.

5. Assistance concerning the write-in procedure was available to those voters seeking it. It took the form of guidance from election workers on duty, and from pictorial and written directions in Exh. R-1.

Conclusions of Law:

Burden of proof:

Petitioner must prove his case by a preponderance of the credible evidence, which is the standard in administrative proceedings, Atkinson v. Parsekian, 37 N.J. 143 (1962). Precisely what is needed to satisfy the standard must be decided on a case-by-case basis. The evidence must be such as to lead a reasonably cautious mind to a given conclusion, Bornstein v. Metropolitan Bottling Co., 26 N.J. 263 (1958). Preponderance may also be described as the greater weight of credible evidence in the case, not necessarily dependent on the number of witnesses, but having the greater convincing power, State v. Lewis, 67 N.J. 47 (1975). Credibility, or more specifically, credible testimony, in turn, must not only proceed from the mouth of a credible witness, but it must be credible in itself, as well, Spagnuolo v. Bonnet, 16 N.J. 546, 554-55 (1954).

The controlling law:

The enabling act and its implementing rule:

The statutory section under which this appeal is brought, N.J.S.A. 18A:14-63.12, bears repeating:

> Upon written request within 5 days of the announcement of the result of an election by any defeated candidate, or, in the case of a question, proposition or referendum, upon petition of 10 qualified voters at any school election, the Commissioner of Education or his authorized representative shall inquire into alleged violations of statutorily prescribed procedures for school elections, to determine if such violations occurred and if they affected the outcome of the election.

Implementation of that section is through the Commissioner of Education's rules, promulgated in the New Jersey Administrative Code, at N.J.A.C. 6:24-6.1 through N.J.A.C. 6:24-6.5. The latter rule interprets the legislative intent of N.J.S.A. 18A:14-63.12:

> Where the Commissioner finds as a result of a recount or an inquiry that an error has occurred which alters the result of the election or that irregularities have occurred sufficient to influence the outcome, he or she shall order such relief as is appropriate.

The undisputed background, weighed with the findings which resolve controverted facts, does betoken confusion in a portion of the electorate over write-in voting. Notwithstanding, they do not support a conclusion: (a) that this amounts to an "error" "which alters the result of the election," or (b) that "irregularities have occurred sufficient to influence the outcome."

Petitioner's comparative case law:

Petitioner's reliance on In The Matter of School Board Election, Hamilton Tp., Atlantic Co., 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (Vol. 4A) 476 (Education), does not alter this conclusion. In that case, a massive influx of voters in a two-district election caused a two-hour wait, in close-packed, slow-moving lines. It was found that at least one poll worker eventually directed voters to stop casting write-in votes, complaining that this held up the extraordinarily delayed line. Unlike here (only one Board seat is in issue), three Board seats were open in Hamilton, and three write-in candidates involved. The voting machines allowed votes for any combination of written and declared candidates. Election workers gave voters ambiguous or erroneous answers when questioned about multiple write-in votes. The machines' location and inspection also were challenged as statutorily improper.

Assessing that record, the ALJ characterized the confusion as "substantial." The Commissioner called it "massive." Both found the voters to have been actively misinformed by the election workers. The Commissioner observed that "widespread error and omission were proven in the area of instructing voters on casting of multiple write-in votes...." Hamilton, supra, 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (Vol. 4A) at 480). Emphasizing petitioner's four-vote margin of loss, the Commissioner understandably decided that the facts warranted a call for a new election.

Distinguishing the instant facts:

In contrast, the persuasive facts here under consideration are not parallel to those in Hamilton, supra, 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (Vol. 4A) 476. They disclose that 178 East Amwell voters managed to identify slot 5 as the appropriate write-in location for petitioner Hall's name. All cast their votes, and petitioner was duly credited. The election workers, trained and experienced, gave similar instructions, understandable to a reasonably attentive listener. These directions were not in error; neither were they candidate-specific, except from one worker, who used column candidates' names only as illustrative examples. A picture with a short, plain write-in explanation (Exh. R-1) had been mailed by petitioner, pre-election, to the electorate. It was clearly visible on the first table at the voting site.

Moreover, despite a large turnout, both the two East Amwell and one Hunterdon lines moved freely. No worker actively discouraged or forbade write-in votes to offset sluggish movement. None of the workers, all of whom were credible, saw misalignment between slot 5 and Column 5. Voters were cautioned that the write-in slot was on a slant, the reasonable purpose of which, one worker testified, was to ease the task of writing while standing.

Summary:

In sum, the hearing record does not prove error in the process; it does prove mistake on the part of eight voters. Nevertheless, unintentioned votes, per se, when judged by the legislative intent of the Act or its implementing rule, cannot be held a cause to invalidate this election. The cases cited by the Board support this view: In the Matter of School Election, Shamong Tp., Burlington Co., 1986 S.L.D. ___; In the Matter of School Election, Bordentown Tp., Burlington Co., 1991 S.L.D. 1226.

ORDER

Therefore, after review of the entire record, evaluation of the credibility of witnesses, and assessment of briefed legal argument:

I ORDER that the results from votes cast in the election to fill the one-year-term seat on the Board of Education, East Amwell School District, be UPHELD.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

IN THE MATTER OF THE ANNUAL	:
SCHOOL ELECTION HELD IN THE	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
SCHOOL DISTRICT OF EAST AMWELL	:	DECISION
TOWNSHIP, HUNTERDON COUNTY.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Timely exceptions were filed by petitioner pursuant to the provisions of N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4, as were replies thereto by the Board of Education. At petitioner's request, an extension of time was granted by the Commissioner in order to give petitioner an opportunity to procure transcripts in support of his exceptions. However, no transcripts were forthcoming by the stipulated date or subsequently, so that the Commissioner has decided this matter on the basis of the existing record.

In his exceptions, petitioner objects to the ALJ's findings of fact, averring that they are based on summations of witness testimony that are incomplete, inaccurate or both. In particular, he takes issue with the ALJ's characterization of election worker Carolyn W. Roth's testimony, claiming that such testimony actually supported witnesses who reported problems with alignment of columns for write-ins. Petitioner further excepts to the ALJ's use of the residuum rule to discount the report of the Commissioner's representative who conducted the recount of results in this election, stating that this report, which supports petitioner's position regarding alignment of write-in slots, should be acccorded weight in that it consists of observations made and recorded in the course of the representative's performance of his official duties.

In reply, the Board contests petitioner's claims of mischaracterized testimony based on its own recollection of such testimony, as well as on the absence of a transcript. The Board further contests petitioner's claims regarding the report of the Commissioner's representative on recount, both because petitioner, who bears the burden of proof in this matter, elected not to call the representative as a witness and because the observations at issue were beyond the scope of the representative's duty in conducting a recount pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:14-63.5, as opposed to an inquiry pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:14-63.12. Notwithstanding this, the Board contends that even if petitioner's claims were given every favorable inference, the result would still not meet the necessary standard for ordering a new election.

Upon review of this matter, the Commissioner affirms the initial decision of the ALJ for the reasons set forth below.

Initially, the Commissioner cannot, in the absence of a transcript of the hearing, assess the parties' arguments regarding the ALJ's characterization of witness testimony, nor can she find any basis in the existing record not to defer, as is customary, to the representations and weighing of testimony of the direct trier of fact. Moreover, the Commissioner concurs that the observations of her representative in the report submitted in conjunction with petitioner's separate request for recount have no official weight and effectively constitute hearsay for purposes of the within inquiry, as they were inappropriately made in the context of a recount, where the role of the Commissioner's representative is merely to retabulate or recheck vote tallies. See the Commissioner's May 14, 1993 final decision on recount (Exhibit P-13).

The Commissioner further finds that the ALJ applied the proper standard of law in this matter in her analysis at pp. 9-12 above, so that, given her acceptance of the ALJ's findings of fact, the Commissioner must fully concur with the ALJ's determination that a new election is not warranted under the circumstances presented herein.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law, upholding the results of the April 20, 1993 annual school election in East Amwell Township, is affirmed for the reasons expressed therein together with the further explication set forth above.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, tenured elementary teacher, contested Board's withholding of his 1992-93 employment and adjustment increments due to unsatisfactory performance.

In light of testimony, ALJ found Board's withholding was well justified and petitioner had ample notice of alleged deficiencies. ALJ determined petitioner did not carry his burden of proof. Petition was dismissed.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision.

BEFORE STEPHEN G. WEISS, ALJ:

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This contested matter was transmitted by the Department of Education to the Office of Administrative Law on October 1, 1992, as the result of the filing by Martin A. Brown of a petition of appeal challenging the withholding of his 1992-93 salary and adjustment increments A telephone prehearing conference was conducted on December 15, 1992, and the following issues were identified: (1) was the withholding of the increments arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable; and (2) was the petition filed in timely fashion Although the second issue subsequently was abandoned by respondent, a new issue arose at the hearing when Brown challenged the process used by respondent to withhold his increments. Briefs were filed in accordance with an agreed schedule and the record closed on August 13, 1993.

TESTIMONY

A. Stipulation of Facts

Prior to commencement of the testimony, counsel submitted a joint stipulation of facts to which pertinent documents were attached (Exhibit C-1). Those stipulated facts are as follows:

1. The petitioner, Martin A. Brown, is a tenured teaching staff member who was appointed on September 1, 1969.

2. The petitioner has been assigned to the 5th grade for the last three (3) school years.

3. During the 1991-1992 school year the petitioner's placement on the salary guide properly reflected his years of service in the Jersey City School District.

4. On March 31, 1992, the petitioner received a notice from Ms. Judi Granick, State Executive Assistant of the respondent, informing him that his salary increment would be withheld for the 1992-1993 school year because of unsatisfactory ratings.

5. The increment withheld from the petitioner for the 1992-1993 school year consisted of an employment increment and adjustment increment.

6. On December 11, 1991, the petitioner was observed and evaluated by Mary Ann Wallace. In the Instructional Observation Report [of her December 11, 1991 visit], Ms. Wallace stated that the petitioner performed unsatisfactorily in the performance area of "Employs effective organization and planning '

7. On February 19, 1992, the petitioner was observed and evaluated by Dr. Joan Kegelman. In the Instructional Observation Report dated February 19, 1992, Dr. Kegelman stated that the petitioner performed unsatisfactorily in the performance area of "Employs effective organization and planning."

8. On March 4, 1992, the petitioner was observed and evaluated by Ruth Vega. In the Instructional Observation Report dated March 4, 1992, Ms. Vega stated that the petitioner performed unsatisfactorily in the performance area of "Employs effective organization and planning."

9. In the Instructional Annual Written Performance Report dated May 15, 1991, the petitioner was informed that he needed improvement in the performance area of planning and employing effective organization.

10. In the Instructional Annual Written Performance Report dated May 16, 1990, the petitioner was informed that the needed improvement in the performance area of planning and time-on-task.

11. In the Instructional Observation/Evaluation Report dated March 30, 1990, the petitioner was informed that he needed improvement in planning performance area.

B. Testimony for Respondent

Although the burden of proof rests upon the petitioner to establish his case by a preponderance of the evidence, for purposes of convenience the respondent presented its proofs first. See, N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.6(l).

The first witness for the State-operated school district, Maryanne Wallace, is principal of the Conwell School which houses grades pre-K to 8. Prior to becoming principal, Wallace had been the assistant principal there for more than four years. Petitioner was a fifth grade teacher at Conwell during this period and it was Wallace's responsibility to evaluate him

On May 16, 1990, Wallace gave petitioner the annual instructional written performance report (PIP) required by N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.21 (Exhibit J-7). That document identified two particular areas in need of improvement for the upcoming 1990-91 school year--"planning" and "time-on-task." Although petitioner had demonstrated deficiencies in those areas in 1989-1990, Wallace determined not to recommend that his increment be withheld in 1990-91 since the former Conwell School principal had not, according to Wallace, effectively conducted evaluations and Wallace felt it would be unfair to Brown to withhold any increment under those circumstances. Nevertheless, she considered the May 1990 performance report to constitute "a serious warning" calculated to put petitioner on notice that real improvement was expected. Nevertheless, in Brown's annual evaluation of May 1991, continuing deficiencies in planning again were noted (Exhibit J-6).

Thus on December 11, 1991, Wallace visited Brown's classroom to conduct a formal observation of his performance. She explained that she waited three months before making that visit for petitioner's benefit; i.e., she wanted to give him ample time to deal effectively with the criticisms of his performance set forth in the 1990 and 1991 reports. Indeed, on December 10, 1991, the day before her visit, Wallace had a pre-observation conference with Brown at which time she told him that she would observe his class on the following day. However, when she asked to see his plan book for the next day's lesson, he was unable to produce it. Accordingly, he had to prepare a separate lesson plan which he indicated he would follow on the next day when she made the observation.

Wallace entered Brown's classroom on December 11, 1991, at approximately 8:45 a.m. expecting to observe a math lesson. Although his lesson plan anticipated instruction that day in multiplication, he did not even address that subject until the 45 minutes allocated to the entire period had expired. Wallace explained that the first 15 minutes of class time had been taken up by the teacher's review of homework and his using "flash cards." The next half-hour involved various other matters, including having to stop what he was doing on occasion in order to tell the pupils to be quiet. As Wallace put it, "he never taught the [planned] lesson." The following day, Wallace taught the class in order personally to demonstrate to Brown what he should have been doing and to offer him support in that regard.

Wallace prepared a formal report following her classroom observation in which she rated Brown as "unsatisfactory" with respect to his ability to employ effective organization planning. She wrote that he, "lacks evidence of good lesson preparation and use of materials," that his plan book was not available and that the subject matter of the proposed lesson for that day, an introduction to multiplication, should have been covered well before mid-December.

On January 22, 1992, Wallace and Brown had a post-observation conference during which she stressed that his class lagged substantially behind the timetable set forth in the established curriculum and expressed her serious concern that his students were not prepared for the mid-term examination. As it turned out, every one of his students failed that exam and Wallace later learned that all of Brown's students failed the final exam as well.

Wallace went on to relate that Brown displayed a variety of other deficiencies during her December 11, 1991 observation. For example, since he had a heterogeneous group of students in his fifth grade class, she was disappointed that he did not take steps to adjust his pedagogic technique to accommodate those intellectual differences. Moreover, Wallace observed that some pupils actually demonstrated hostility toward petitioner which she ascribed, in part, to the absence of meaningful instruction to keep both their attention and their respect.

As a result of the unsatisfactory nature of Brown's performance on December 11, 1991, Wallace, consistent with school district policy, asked a mathematics supervisor to make a second observation. To that end, on February 19, 1992, Dr. Joan Kegelman observed a math class taught by Brown. Later, a third administrator, assistant principal Ruth Vega, also was asked by Wallace to make an observation, which she did. Kegelman and Vega both testified at the hearing and their observation reports are attached to the joint stipulation of facts as well (Exhibits J-4 and J-5).

Wallace, Kegelman and Vega all rated Brown's performance to be unsatisfactory during 1991-92. Thus, Wallace recommended that his increments for 1992-93 be withheld. In fact, according to the principal, between December 1991 and the end of the school year in June 1992, to her regret Brown's performance became worse rather than better.

In connection with her recommendation that petitioner's 1992-93 increments be withheld, Wallace prepared a summary memorandum in which she noted that three separate observations and evaluations of Brown had been made during 1991-92 and on each occasion petitioner displayed an unsatisfactory level of performance in the area of organization and planning (Exhibit J-1). Although she believed that petitioner has the potential to be a good teacher, Wallace felt that he failed to make the necessary commitment to be successful, and did not adequately offer his students an opportunity to master their grade level material. Significantly, in that memorandum Wallace stated that some students who came to Mr. Brown's fifth grade class with achievement levels at or above grade level, "failed to make any progress and frequently regress. . . ."

On cross-examination, Wallace agreed that her visit on December 11, 1991 was the only "formal" observation she made of Brown during the 1991-92 school year. With respect to petitioner's alleged misuse of mathematics terms during that observation, Wallace explained that he should have been referring to "factors" rather than to "multiplicand" and "multiplier," and the students seemed confused by the terms he was using. More importantly however, Wallace stressed that during the entire time she was there the children were never even taught what the lesson plan called for Brown to teach--the meaning of "least common multiple." Much of the period was taken up by homework review and dealing with pupils who did not do their homework. Wallace reiterated that Brown not only was behind the necessary pace for preparing his class for the mid-term exam, but he was also behind with respect to the final exam as well.

The district's next witness, Dr. Joan Kegelman, has been a mathematics supervisor since 1990. In February 1992 at Wallace's request, she also observed Brown teach a math class and she prepared a written report of the same (Exhibit J-4). Kegelman, too, rated petitioner to be "unsatisfactory" in his use of effective organization and planning. In particular, she found he had a major problem in "pacing" since he was not keeping up with the time requirements of the core curriculum. Indeed, when she visited his class on February 19, 1992, Brown was working with the class on two-digit division, a subject which he should have covered in November 1991. She also testified that although Brown appeared to know his subject matter, he "tells students the information and does not give them a chance to discover it for themselves."

On cross-examination, the witness stressed that her post-observation conference with Brown on February 25, 1992, primarily was designed to focus attention on the fact that his students were expected to cover various subjects before the end of the school year. Her observation the previous week revealed that he was not proceeding at the expected rate called for in the curriculum. Moreover, Brown's method of presentation was not one which she believed was particularly designed to capture the interest of the students.

The third witness for respondent, Ruth Vega, is the assistant principal at Conwell and at the request of Wallace she observed Brown's class on March 4, 1992. Her report similarly rated him to be "unsatisfactory" in the area of effective organization and planning (Exhibit J-5). Vega had observed Brown teach a class in social studies and in her report she, too, criticized him for failing to control his class and to hold its attention. She noted as well that he failed to maintain appropriate pacing and to keep up with the time allotted in the curriculum guide. Although Brown was teaching "unit 2," by March he should have been up to "unit 4" and it appeared clear to Vega that petitioner would not have enough time to finish the curriculum by the end of the school year. Also, although the lesson should have been covered in 45 minutes, Vega said it took about one hour.

C. Testimony for Petitioner

Brown testified on his own behalf. He has been employed in the Jersey City school district for about 24 years and has always taught at the elementary level. He maintained that it was not until his post-observation conference with Wallace on January 22, 1992, that he was first told that he was not "on pace" with the curriculum. He explained that this was probably due to the fact that his students were having difficulty with the material. He also maintained that at no time did Wallace or anyone else ever tell him that his lesson plans were not following the pacing required.

Brown further noted that the first time he became aware that his increments for 1992-93 would be withheld was when he received a notification, dated March 31, 1992, from the executive assistant Ms. Granick (Exhibit J-2). At no time prior to his receipt of that notice did any administrator discuss this possibility with him nor did he ever have any opportunity to challenge the proposal to withhold his increments at the local level before the withholding was implemented.*

On cross-examination Brown repeated that it was not until January 22, 1992, when he met with Wallace that he was made aware that he was not keeping pace and again explained that if this was so, the primary cause was the inability of his students to go any faster. He agreed that he discussed pacing with Kegelman during the post-observation conference he had with her on February 25, 1992, and that they came up with a plan which he then followed. With respect to the social studies curriculum mentioned by Vega, he could not recall whether he completed all of the units by the end of the 1991-92 school year.

DISCUSSION

The first issue to be addressed is the procedural claim raised at the hearing by petitioner. In particular, he maintains that although N.J.S.A. 18:7A-35(d) and (e) appear to provide broad ranging authority in the state district superintendent to step into the role of the board in connection with increment withholdings in state-operated school districts, there is nothing either expressly or impliedly contained in those provisions which would provide a basis for usurpation of the longstanding procedure for withholding set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14. As counsel for petitioner sets forth in his brief, to permit the superintendent unilaterally to deny the increment without first submitting reasons for that action to the board for its consideration would effectively remove the protective entitlements contained in the withholding of increment statute and make the superintendent of schools, "the accuser, judge and jury." Since the Jersey City Board of Education was not abolished by the takeover legislation, and since the Legislature did not specifically provide that the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14 were superseded, petitioner maintains that the increment withholding authority continued to reside, at least in part, in the local board and there is no authority for the superintendent effectively to "rule by fiat."

*It was this testimony which gave rise to the procedural issue to be discussed infra.

Counsel for the respondent, in opposition to the procedural claim, points to the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-35 to support the proposition that the language and thrust of the takeover legislation clearly was and is designed to provide superintendents in state-operated school districts with the essential authority previously possessed by the local school board. Thus, counsel notes that the authority to certify tenure charges against a teacher employed by the state-operated School District of Jersey City has specifically been found to reside in the superintendent. See, In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Pellagatti, 93 N.J.A.R. 2d (Vol. 4A) 121 (Dept. of Education); In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Mantone, 93 N.J.A.R. 2d (Vol. 4A) 322 (Dept. of Education).

I believe that the position taken by the respondent is correct. The takeover legislation clearly was designed to repose substantial authority in the superintendent to implement the laws and the rules of the State Board which normally would be the province of the local board of education. As the Commissioner noted in the Mantone case, it is "without question that [N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-35(e)] empowers the Superintendent to engage in all necessary activities to allow the district to be fully functional. . . ." Id. at 326. I agree with counsel that the broad grant of powers to the superintendent in the school takeover legislation necessarily included the authority exercised here; namely, to act on a recommendation to withhold an increment. To hold that the withholding of increment function was retained by the local board would fly in the face not only of the statutory provisions relating to the powers of the state district superintendent, but would also vest much greater authority in the board of education itself than the takeover legislation ever anticipated. See, e.g., N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-47 and 7A-48. In short, the procedural issue raised by petitioner must be rejected.*

Having rejected the procedural claim raised by petitioner, the remaining issue is whether the action by the respondent in withholding Brown's 1992-93 salary and adjustment increments was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. In that respect, based upon the joint stipulation of facts and the testimony of all the witnesses, it is clear that in respect to that claim Brown palpably has failed to sustain the burden of proof placed upon him to demonstrate by a preponderance of the credible evidence that such action was so tainted. To the contrary, the testimony profferred by Wallace, Kegelman and Vega painted, in my judgment, a picture of a teacher whose performance was woefully inadequate. It is distressing, if not appalling, that every one of Brown's fifth grade students failed not only the mid-term math examination, but the final examination as well. There can be no excuse for such a result, and indeed, none was seriously offered. Brown's lame explanation that his students somehow were not up to the task is disturbing, to say the least. Each of the three evaluators observed that he was far behind the pace set forth in the curriculum and each brought that concern specifically to his attention in post-conference interviews. Since the performance evaluations for the previous two school years alerted Brown to this same problem, he clearly had ample advance notice of his alleged deficiencies and cannot possibly claim that the withholding came as any surprise. See, e.g., Sturn v. South Plainfield Board of Education, 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (Vol. 4A) 661 (Dept. of Education).

*Petitioner also raised in his brief a claim that the withholding action ran afoul of the provisions of the Open Public Meetings Act, N.J.S.A. 10:4-6 et seq. Since that issue was not raised in the pleadings nor was it ever mentioned prior to the filing of the posthearing brief, it will not be considered by me.

It is, of course, well settled that the burden of proving that an increment withholding was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable rests upon the person challenging the withholding. Kopera v. West Orange Board of Ed., 60 N.J. Super. 288 (App. Div. 1960); see also, Board of Ed. of Bernards Township v. Bernards Township Education Association, 79 N.J. 311 (1979). Given the overwhelming nature of the testimony profferred by the respondent, it is plain that the determination to withhold Brown's 1992-93 salary and adjustment increments was well justified and petitioner has not even come close to carrying the burden of proof placed upon him. Accordingly, his petition of appeal should be DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, 8th Floor West, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." For the Board, Fogarty and Hara (Rodney T. Hara, Esq., of Counsel)

This matter having come before the Commissioner by way of Petition of Appeal date June 24, 1993 seeking tuition pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b) from respondent for the attendance of two pupils, S.Y.J. and J.Y.J., in petitioner's district; and

Whereas said petition was followed by a motion and affidavit filed on August 11, 1993 by counsel for the Board seeking an order authorizing the immediate removal of S.Y.J. and J.Y.J. as students enrolled in petitioner's school district; and

Whereas said submissions averred that the students in question are not properly domiciled in the district and further challenged the affidavits submitted by that individual alleged to be keeping such children gratis for greater than the school year in question; and

Whereas no Answer or other submission has been filed by respondent in the matter, despite three notices to do so, the most recent of which was mailed on August 13, 1993 by certified mail, return receipt requested; and

Whereas said certified letter was return with a post office stamp stating "Attempted-Not known;" and

Whereas, the Commissioner has carefully reviewed the arguments of the Board in the matter; and

Whereas in the absence of any response by respondent, the Commissioner hereby deems the facts as pled by the Board as true pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.4(e); now therefore

The Commissioner finds and directs that the Board's prayer for tuition for S.Y.J. and J.Y.J. as students enrolled in petitioner's district is hereby granted for the 1992-93 school year through the date of this decision in the 1993-94 school year; and

The Commissioner further finds and determines that based upon the facts admitted as pled, S.Y.J. and J.Y.J. are not properly domiciled in petitioner's district, and thus may be excluded from receiving a free public education in said district; and

The Commissioner further finds and determines that having directed the assessment of tuition based upon facts admitted as pled, including that the children are not properly domiciled in the district as affidavit students, the motion brought for the removal of the students during the pendency of this appeal is hereby rendered moot.

Finally, the Commissioner rejects petitioner's prayer for attorney fees in this matter, there being no provision for the grant of attorney fees or costs within the Commissioner's authority. See Balsley v. North Hunterdon Board of Education, 117 N.J. 434 (1990).

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, part-time school psychologist who had served as Coordinator of Child Study Team prior to abolishment of that position, alleged he had greater entitlement to position of Director of Curriculum and Pupil Personnel Services than nontenured teacher and sought appointment to said position.

In light of Supreme Court decision in Dennery, ALJ concluded petitioner was not entitled to relief sought. At time of rif, he possessed neither a principal's endorsement nor a school administrator's endorsement necessary for director position. Moreover, although position of Director of Curriculum and Pupil Personnel Services included all of petitioner's former job duties, it also included numerous curriculum-related responsibilities and responsibility for staff evaluations making the two positions substantially dissimilar. Petition was dismissed.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision with clarification that even if petitioner held principal's endorsement, he could not bump into position of director due to duties being separably tenurable citing N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5, Schaefer, and Dennery.

INITIAL DECISION
SUMMARY DECISION
OAL DKT. NO. EDU 1426-92
AGENCY DKT. NO. 15-1/92

STANLEY HALPERN,
Petitioner,
v.
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF DELRAN, BURLINGTON COUNTY,
Respondent.

Robert M. Schwartz, Esq., for petitioner (Lake and Schwartz, attorneys)

John T. Barbour, Esq., for respondent

Record Closed: July 28, 1993 Decided: September 13, 1993

BEFORE M. KATHLEEN DUNCAN, ALJ:

This matter was commenced on January 21, 1992, when Stanley Halpern (hereinafter petitioner) filed a petition of appeal with the Commissioner of Education asserting that he had greater entitlement to be appointed to the position of Director of Curriculum and Pupil Personnel Services as against a non-tenured teaching staff member and seeking appointment to said position. An answer was filed on behalf of the Board of Education of the Township of Delran (hereinafter respondent) on February 19, 1992, and on February 25, 1992, the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to 13.

A prehearing conference was conducted by telephone conference call on May 21, 1992, at which time it was determined that the matter would be decided on cross-motions for summary decision. The parties agreed to file a joint stipulation of facts on or before June 8, 1992; briefs in support of the cross-motions were to be filed on or before July 8, 1992, and replies, if any, by July 20, 1992. A number of extensions of time were requested and granted. A brief in support of petitioner was filed on September 21, 1992, and thereafter on September 23, 1992, counsel for petitioner forwarded a proposed stipulation of facts, which had not been signed by the parties. Thereafter, the parties continued for a protracted period of time to attempt to agree on a stipulation of facts. By letter dated February 24, 1993, the undersigned advised the parties that the matter had been scheduled for preemptory hearing on May 7, 1993, and only if completed motion papers were filed before that date would the hearing be adjourned. On April 30, 1993, respondent filed a motion for a decision on the pleadings with supporting papers. By letter dated May 4, 1993, petitioner replied, acknowledging that for the most part the facts relevant to a determination of this matter are not in dispute but asserting that Director of Curriculum and Pupil Personnel Services was an unrecognized position title requiring approval by the county superintendent, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.3(b). Petitioner asserted that the procedure set forth in this regulation had not been followed and suggested that testimony was required with respect to the manner in which respondent concluded that a principal's endorsement was required for the position. Following a telephone conference call on May 5, 1993, it was determined that petitioner would file a motion for leave to amend the petition to include the assertions with respect to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.3(b) and would file a cross-motion for summary decision. On May 19, 1993, petitioner filed a motion for leave to amend the petition of appeal. Respondent replied by letter memorandum dated June 2, 1993. Oral argument on the motions was conducted by telephone conference call on July 20, 1993, following which the undersigned requested that copies of the job descriptions for the position titles Director of Curriculum and Pupil Personnel Services and also for Coordinator of Child Study Team be provided. One job description was received on July 23, 1993; the other job description was received on July 28, 1993, whereupon the record closed.

FINDINGS OF FACT

The facts relevant to a determination of these motions are not in dispute, and I therefore find the following as uncontested facts.

Petitioner is a tenured teaching staff member employed by respondent. For approximately twenty years he served in the position Coordinator of Child Study Team. The qualifications for this position required petitioner to hold an educational services certificate with a school psychologist endorsement and an administrative certificate with a supervisor's endorsement. In addition to performing the duties of Coordinator of the Child Study Team, petitioner also functioned as the school psychologist.

On or about October 21, 1991, respondent voted to abolish the position of Coordinator of the Child Study Team and to create the position of Director of Curriculum and Pupil Personnel Services. Petitioner challenged respondent's October 21, 1991, actions as a violation of the Open Public Meetings Act, N.J.S.A. 10:4-12(b)(8). On December 9, 1991, respondent again voted to abolish the position of Coordinator of Child Study Team thereby reducing petitioner to a part-time school psychologist. Again petitioner challenged respondent's actions as a violation of his Open Public Meetings Act rights and the challenge was successful. On or about May 18, 1992, respondent for the third time abolished petitioner's position of Coordinator of the Child Study Team. It also once again approved petitioner's appointment as a part-time psychologist retroactive to March 23, 1992. The current holder of the position of Director of Curriculum and Pupil Personnel Services, who was appointed effective March 23, 1992, is a non-tenured teaching staff member who holds an administrative certificate with endorsements of principal, supervisor, and school administrator. Although petitioner has been working toward obtaining a principal endorsement, he has not yet completed the requirements for receiving that endorsement. The job description for Director of Curriculum and Pupil Personnel Services approved by respondent on November 18, 1991, lists, under qualifications, "New Jersey Principal's Certification, School Administrator preferred." The responsibilities and duties include those of the former position Coordinator of the Child Study Team but also include numerous additional duties related to development of curriculum for kindergarten through grade twelve and evaluation of results of district-wide testing programs. The Director of Curriculum and Pupil Personnel Services is also responsible for evaluating child study team personnel.

Petitioner contends that Director of Curriculum and Pupil Personnel Services is an unrecognized position title, that respondent was required to submit the title to the County Superintendent of Schools for approval and determination of the appropriate endorsement, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.3(b), and that notwithstanding the fact that he does not possess a principal or school administrator endorsement he has greater entitlement to the position Director of Curriculum and Pupil Personnel Services than the non-tenured teaching staff member who holds the position.

Respondent contends that the position title "Director" is recognized at N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.3, which indicates that the holder of that position must possess either a school administrator or principal endorsement and that no action was therefore required by the county superintendent of schools, although respondent acknowledges that the county superintendent was consulted about this subject by telephone on September 16, 1991, and September 19, 1991. Respondent also asserts that petitioner is barred from raising the unrecognized position title issue by the provisions of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c), which requires that petitions of appeal be filed no later than the ninetieth day from the date of the receipt of notice by petitioner of the subject of requested review.

APPLICABLE LAW AND DISCUSSION

MOTION FOR LEAVE TO AMEND THE PETITION

N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c), the regulation which sets forth the limitations period for filing complaints with the Commissioner of Education, provides:

> The petitioner shall file a petition no later than the 90th day from the date of receipt of the notice of a final order, ruling or other action by the district board of education, individual party, or agency, which is the subject of the requested contested case hearing.

No challenge is made to the timeliness of the original petition of appeal in this matter which was filed on or about February 3, 1992. Unquestionably absent from that petition, however, is any allegation that the title "Director of Curriculum and Pupil Personnel Services" is an unrecognized position title requiring approval of the county superintendent of schools. N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.3 subsection b (which prior to October 1990, was N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6) requires a district board of education to submit a written request for permission to use an unrecognized position title to the county superintendent of schools prior to making any appointment. The county superintendent is then required to either approve or disapprove use of the title and if the title approved, the superintendent makes the determination of the appropriate certification and title for the position. Commencing with respondent's first attempt in October 1991 to abolish petitioner's position and to establish the position Director of Curriculum and Pupil Personnel Services, petitioner was aware of the proposed position title. The job description for the position was approved and posted in November 1991. Petitioner is also charged with knowledge of the regulatory provisions properly adopted and published in the administrative code.

Accordingly, his attempted amendment of his petition to raise these claims in 1993, is time-barred. The fact that petitioner's attorney and respondent's attorney commenced having discussions about the county superintendent's role in determining the appropriate certification for the position of Director of Curriculum and Pupil Personnel Services in or about May 1992, does not alter this determination since an attempted amendment, asserting additional claims, in May 1992 would also have been time-barred.

Furthermore, although the general rule is certainly that motions for leave to amend are required to be liberally granted without consideration of the ultimate merits of the amendment, where, as here, a motion for summary decision addresses the merits of the claim, the motion to amend may be properly denied because on the merits it is clear that the claim alleged in the proposed amendment must fail. City Check Cashing v. Nat. St. Bk., 244 N.J. Super. 304, 308-309 (App. Div. 1990). To permit amendment of the petition to allow the claim that Director of Curriculum and Pupil Personnel Services is an unrecognized position title would be a frivolous act, since it is clear from the provisions of N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.3(a) and (b) "Director" is a recognized position title. See infra.

MOTION FOR A DECISION ON THE PLEADINGS AND/OR FOR SUMMARY DECISION

Neither party challenges any facts material to a determination of these motions and both assert entitlement to a decision as a matter of law; accordingly, this case is ripe for summary decision. N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5; R. 4:46-2; Judson v. Peoples Bank and Trust Co. of Westfield, 17 N.J. 67, 73-75 (1954).

On April 8, 1993, our Supreme Court issued its opinion in Dennery v. Board of Educ., 131 N.J. 626 (1993), reversing the Appellate Division opinion which petitioner cited in his petition of appeal as authority for the relief he seeks. The Supreme Court held that an educator with tenure in any endorsement that he or she possesses can, in effect, extend or transfer that tenure to other endorsements that are subsumed under the same certificate, but cannot "transfer" tenure earned under one certificate to a position under a different certificate which he or she has acquired but under which she/he has not accrued any relevant work experience. Id. at 634-635. Even under the Appellate Division's opinion in Dennery, however, petitioner would not be entitled to the relief which he seeks because, by his own admission in the petition, at the time of the RIF he did not possess a principal endorsement or a school administrator endorsement, and as acknowledged during oral argument on the motions, he still does not possess either of these endorsements nor is he currently qualified to obtain either of them or to obtain the Director of Student Personnel Services endorsement on his educational services certificate. The Supreme Court opinion in Dennery reaffirmed the holding in Ellicott v. Board of Educ., 251 N.J. Super. 342 (App. Div. 1991) that "tenure under any one endorsement entitles an educator to tenure under all endorsements obtained under his or her certificate. (emphasis added)"* Thus, if, at the time of the RIF, petitioner had held the principal endorsement or the school administrator endorsement which very clearly entitle the holder to serve in the position "Director" (see N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.3(a) and (b), pursuant to Ellicott and Dennery he would have been entitled to extend his tenure rights obtained under his supervisor's endorsement on his administrative certificate to the newly created position Director of Curriculum and Pupil Personnel Services. It is very clear, however, that tenure extends only to State Board created positions for which the educator holds an appropriate endorsement. This is explicitly explained (and highlighted in footnote 6) in the State Board's opinion which the Appellate Division affirmed in Ellicott:

> Similarly, principal, assistant principal, vice principal, superintendent and assistant superintendent, although all within the purview of the administrative and supervisory certificate, are separately tenurable positions by virtue of the express language of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5.[5] Capodilupo, supra. See, e.g., Schienholz v. Board of Education of the Township of Ewing, decided by the State Board of Education, February 7, 1990, appeal pending (App. Div.). In Schienholz, we reiterated that tenure was achieved in the position of "principal," rather than in the specific assignments of elementary or high school principal, stressing that "principal" was a separately tenurable position under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. Since petitioners therein were authorized by virtue of their principal endorsements to serve at all grade levels, they were entitled to tenure protection in all assignments within that tenurable position for which that certification qualified them.

5 We note that such status as separately tenurable positions is not based upon the various endorsements on the administrative certificate. An endorsement as principal, for example, authorizes service in both the separately tenurable positions of principal and vice principal. N.J.A.C. 6:11-10.4(b). Thus, while the Commissioner stresses, as an analogy to the

* Except positions specifically tenurable under N.J.A.C. 18A:28-5. See Ellicott, 251 N.J. Super. 342, 345 fn. 1.

> With the exception of school nurse assignments within the purview of the educational services certificate are not enumerated in N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 as separately tenurable positions. Under regulations promulgated by the State Board, moreover, teaching staff members holding an educational services certificate are authorized and qualified for service in any assignment under that certificate for which they possess the appropriate endorsement. N.J.A.C. 6:11-12.1 et seq. Consequently, we conclude that, with the exception of school nurses, who are separately tenured by statute, staff members serving under educational services certificates achieve tenure in "educational services" and are entitled to tenure protection in all assignments within that tenurable position for which the endorsements on their certificates qualify them.[6] > instant case, the irrationality of a tenured vice principal displacing a non-tenured principal following a RIF, under regulations promulgated by the State Board, an individual serving as a vice principal is required to possess an endorsement as principal, and would, therefore, be authorized and qualified for service as a principal. Id. However, by virtue of the fact that principal and vice principal are, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5, separately tenurable positions, a tenured vice principal who has no tenure as a principal would have no statutory entitlement by virtue of tenure to assignment as a principal following a RIF.

6 We emphasize that, by virtue of the fact that the scope of the position to which tenure protection attaches is limited by the scope of the staff member's certification, individuals tenured in educational services would have no entitlement by virtue of tenure to assignments under that certificate for which they do not possess the appropriate endorsement. (1990 S.L.D. 1717-1718)

The proper endorsement for the position Director of Curriculum and Pupil Personnel Services is not an issue for the county superintendent because it is a title recognized at N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.3(a) and (b) in the administrative code. See N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.10(g), a seniority regulation which provides, "whenever the title of any employment shall not be found in the certification rules or in these rules, the holder of the employment shall be classified as nearly as may be according to the duties performed, pursuant to the provisions of N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6. (now N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.3(b)).

Furthermore, the following language from the Supreme Court's opinion in Dennery resolves any other possible remaining doubts that petitioner might be entitled to the newly created Director position:

> "When the duties of the position in which a teaching-staff member has acquired tenure are substantially identical to those of the position that the person seeks, a local school board may not sidestep an educator's tenure rights by simply renaming the position or tacking on additional meaningless requirements. The local board must extend the teaching-staff member's tenure rights to the newly-created position. . . .
> A mere overlap in duties, however, does not mean that two positions are equivalent for tenure purposes. If a newly-created position is similar to a tenure holder's abolished position but also requires additional duties or different responsibilities, then the newly-created position is not considered to be substantially similar to the former position. . . (Dennery, 131 N.J. at 639-640).

Although the position Director of Curriculum and Pupil Personnel Services includes all of petitioner's former job duties as Coordinator of the Child Study Team, it also includes numerous curriculum related responsibilies and responsibility for staff evaluations which were not part of petitioner's previous position. Therefore, the two positions are not so substantially similar as to require extension of tenure rights.

For all the foregoing reasons, I CONCLUDE that petitioner is not entitled to the relief which he seeks. It is hereby ORDERED that petitioner's motion for summary decision is denied; respondent's motions for decision on the pleadings and for summary decision are hereby granted, and the within matter is dismissed with prejudice.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 West State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

PETITIONER,	:

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF DELRAN, BURLINGTON COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record and initial decision rendered by the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Petitioner's hand-delivered exceptions were untimely filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Upon careful and independent review of the record of this matter, the Commissioner affirms the initial decision for the reasons expressed therein with the following qualification. It is observed that at page six of the initial decision the ALJ states in reviewing the New Jersey Supreme Court holding in Dennery, supra, that:

> if, at the time of the RIF, petitioner had held the principal endorsement or the school administrator endorsement which very clearly entitle the holder to serve in the position "Director" (see N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.3(a) and (b)), pursuant to Ellicott and Dennery he would have been entitled to extend his tenure rights obtained under his supervisor's endorsement on his administrative certificate to the newly created position of Director of Curriculum and Pupil Personnel Services.

While the Commissioner is in accord with the ALJ's disposition of the facts of this case, it bears noting, as a general matter, that the Supreme Court holding in Dennery, supra, has not displaced the concept of separably tenurable positions. See, for example, John Schaefer v. Board of Education of the Township of Lakewood, Ocean County, decided by the Commissioner September 8, 1993. Under the facts of this case, even if petitioner held a principal's endorsement at the time of the RIF, he would not have been able to claim a position as director because one who is tenured based upon service as a supervisor may not "bump" into a position requiring a principal's endorsement due to the duties being separably tenurable pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. Hence, service in a position which requires only a supervisor's endorsement precludes bumping rights based on tenure into a position requiring a principal's endorsement. Schaefer, supra

With this clarification made, the Commissioner otherwise concurs with the ALJ's dispositions of petitioner's claims, including those reiterated in his exceptions.

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed by the Office of Administrative Law, as limited herein, the Commissioner adopts the initial decision's findings of fact and conclusions of law which result in the dismissal of the instant Petition of Appeal.

Petitioning District sought payment of tuition and transportation costs for homeless child (A.P.) who last resided in respondent District. Respondent denied child was homeless and claimed district of residency could not be determined.

ALJ dismissed petition and cross-petition finding student was not homeless and neither Board had claim under laws governing education for homeless students. Merely living with friends or relatives even out of necessity does not render a person homeless especially when the child lives with the mother.

BEFORE EDGAR R. HOLMES, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on October 7, 1992, for determination as a contested case pursuant to the Administrative Procedures Act, N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15; and the act creating the OAL, N.J.S.A. 52:14-1 to -13.

The petitioner Maurice River Township Board of Education seeks reimbursement from the Wildwood Board of Education for the educational expense of A.P. Wildwood Board of Education has cross-claimed for A.P.'s tuition from Maurice River Township Board of Education. Both Boards assert that A.P.was a "homeless child" during some period of the school year 1991/92. They seek reimbursement pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:3-7.4 which designates the district of residence as the responsible party for a homeless child's education.

FACTUAL AND LEGAL DISCUSSION

The parties stipulate the following facts:

> B.P. the mother of A.P., resided with her mother in Maurice River Township until the time of her marriage to W.P. in early 1989. At that time, she moved to his place of residence, first in Wildwood Crest and then into Wildwood. They resided together as husband and wife until May of 1991, at which time a marital dispute arose, and B.P. left her husband in Wildwood and returned to her mother's home in Maurice River Township, taking with her, her three minor children, including A.P., subject of the within dispute.
>
> B.P. and A.P. continued to reside with her mother in Maurice River Township until approximately November 1, 1991. In August of 1991, she registered A.P. in the Pre First Program in the Wildwood Elementary School. She registered him there because she hoped she and her husband might effect a reconciliation. When school began in September of 1991, she transported A.P. to Wildwood and home again to Maurice River Township after the school day. The reconciliation B.P. hoped for never occurred, and she continued to reside in Maurice River Township.
> On October 18, 1991, B.P. withdrew A.P. from the Wildwood School system. On October 22, 1991, she registered A.P. for school in the Maurice River Township School system. At that time, she executed a typed registration form which contained the following language:

Confidential Date of Enrollment
Name of Parent/Guardian Present Address
Last Permanent Address
Last School District
Date at Last Permanent Address
Date at Last School District

Must check one of the categories below:

____1. We are a migrant family lacking adequate housing.
____2. We are out of necessity living with relatives or friends.
____3. We are living in a private place not designed for or ordinarily used as a regular sleeping accommodation for human beings.
____4. None of the above apply.

An "x" was typed next to the line reading as follows:

2. We are out of necessity living with relatives or friends.

This form reproduces some of the language from N.J.A.C. 6:3-7.3, which was designed to assist Board of Educations in determining when a child is homeless.

Petitioner Maurice River Township Board of Education then demanded payment of tuition from respondent, Wildwood Board of Education. Respondent denied that tuition was due.

> In the interim, on or about November 1, 1991, B.P. moved to a duplex on High Street in Maurice River Township. For the next year, the Cumberland County Welfare Agency paid a portion of her rent. Since November 1992, she has received no rental subsidy.

The Maurice River Township Board of Education based its decision that A.P. was homeless on two things. It had information from employees of the Cumberland County Welfare Board that B.P. was "homeless" and it had B.P.'s signature on a form provided by the Maurice River Township Board of Education indicating that she was "out of necessity living with relatives and friends." The complete sentence from which that phrase is taken is as follows:

Merely living with relatives or friends, even out of necessity does not render a person homeless. This paragraph covers a typical situation in which a family, already homeless, places one or more of its children with relations or friends. It is not intended to make all children who reside with relations and friends out of necessity, homeless. Especially when they are living with their mother.

The fact that B.P. received temporary rental assistance also does not indicate that she was homeless. Temporary rental assistance is often useful in preventing homelessness. The language of the regulation approving temporary rental assistance includes "imminent homelessness" as well as "actual homelessness." N.J.A.C. 10:82-5.10 (d). B.P. furnished the Cumberland County Welfare Agency with a letter from her mother saying she could not live there any longer. The Welfare Board reacted properly, because the letter was an indication that B.P. was in danger of becoming homeless. However, it was a mischaracterization by Welfare employees to describe A.P. as actually "homeless." In addition, A.P.'s father continued to reside in Wildwood to whom the child may have returned.

FINDINGS AND CONCLUSIONS

There is no indication that A.P. suffered a loss of shelter so that he lacked "a fixed, regular and adequate residence." N.J.A.C. 6:3-7.2.

I FIND that A.P. was not a homeless child during the 1991/92 school year.

I therefore CONCLUDE that neither the Maurice River Township Board of Education or the Wildwood Board of Education has a claim pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:3-7.4.

I DISMISS the complaints and cross complaints filed herein.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that the pupil at issue in this matter is not homeless, so that neither the petitioner nor the respondent Board of Education has a claim under the laws governing assignment of educational costs for homeless students.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law dismissing both the Petition of Appeal and respondent's cross-petition is affirmed for the reasons expressed therein.

Allen S. Zeller, Esq., for respondent, (Freeman, Zeller & Bryant, attorneys)

Record Closed: August 26, 1993 Decided: September 3, 1993

BEFORE EDGAR R. HOLMES, ALJ:

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on October 19, 1992, to be heard as a contested case pursuant to the Administrative Procedures Act, N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and the act creating the OAL, N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

In this matter the Board sought to remove the respondent because he is alleged to have made sexual advances, both physically and verbally, to a female student summer worker in his capacity as a custodian.

The female student summer worker has failed to cooperate with the Board during the investigation and the Board can no longer locate her in order to compel her attendance at a plenary hearing.

The Board asserts that it has no evidence upon which to proceed which can satisfy the residuum rule, N.J.A.C. 1:1-15.5.

Nevertheless, the respondent, who denies the allegation, will consent to a settlement which provides for his return to work on or about August 2, 1993, after a four month suspension without pay.

The parties have agreed to a settlement and have prepared a stipulation indicating the terms thereof, which is attached and fully incorporated herein.

I have reviewed the record and the terms of settlement and I FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures or their representatives' signatures.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and therefore ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. EDWIN JOHNSTON, JR., INTERVENOR.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, former assistant principal, alleged violation of his seniority rights and improper calculation of military service credits in district appointment of another candidate (intervenor) to acting assistant principal position.

ALJ concluded both petitioner and intervenor were equal in terms of seniority. Moreover, ALJ found absent a policy for selection in case of a tie, de facto recognition must be given to Board's choice of intervenor over petitioner in 1991. Board, however, was ordered to adopt a written policy to be applied in the future and was directed to use said policy to decide between petitioner or intervenor for middle school position no later than February 1, 1994, provided each remained eligible for said appointment. Otherwise, petition was dismissed.

Commissioner concurred with ALJ's analysis and conclusion and directed adoption of Board's policy and application to petitioner and intervenor by February 1994.

BEFORE STEPHEN G. WEISS, ALJ

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This contested case was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law by the Department of Education following the filing of a verified petition of appeal by Lawrence Chammings alleging that in August 1991 the position of "acting assistant principal" at respondent's Copeland Middle School was improperly awarded to Edwin Johnston, Jr., rather than to petitioner. In addition, Chammings claimed that a preferred eligibility list prepared for the position of "assistant principal-elementary school" improperly listed Johnston ahead of petitioner. Following the filing of the Board's answer and transmittal to the Office of Administrative Law, I signed a consent order permitting Johnston to intervene as a respondent.

A telephone prehearing conference conducted by the undersigned identified the following issues:

(1) Was petitioner entitled by virtue of seniority, including military service credit, to appointment as acting assistant principal at the Middle School; and

(2) Is the petition barred by virtue of the application of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2 (the 90-day rule), laches and/or estoppel.

Although a plenary hearing was scheduled, all counsel subsequently agreed that the matter could be submitted on a joint stipulation of facts and cross-motions for summary decision pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5. Those items were filed and the record closed on August 6, 1993.

JOINT STIPULATION OF FACTS

The joint stipulation of facts, marked "Court Exhibit 1," sets forth in detail the background circumstances which form the basis for the cross-motions for summary decision. Those stipulated facts are as follows:

1. The Rockaway Township School District is a K-8, Type II District having five elementary schools for instruction in grades kindergarten through five, and one middle school, named the Copeland Middle School, for grades six, seven and eight.

2. At its December 17, 1985 meeting, respondent adopted a resolution classifying grades seven and eight in the district as junior high school level, pursuant to what was then N.J.A.C. 6:27-1.2(b). A copy of the pertinent portion of the Board minutes of December 17, 1985, is submitted herewith as Exhibit J-1. At all times relevant herein, grades seven and eight in the district have been organized on a departmental basis.

3. Until the 1990-91 school year, all grade six classes were housed in the district's elementary schools. Effective September 1, 1990, all District grade six classes were relocated to the Copeland Middle School.

4. Petitioner, Lawrence Chammings, has been employed by the respondent as follows:

September 1966 - June 1971:	Elementary School Teacher
September 1971 - June 1972:	Helping Teacher
July 1972 - June 1975:	Assistant to the Principal
July 1975 - June 1982:	Assistant Principal
July 1982 - June 1987:	Assistant Principal/Supervisor (Social Studies, Language/Arts, and Kindergarten)
July 1987 - June 1988:	Supervisor of Language Arts
July 1988 - August 1988:	Summer program supervisor, Reading/Language Arts
September 1988 - June 1990:	Teacher, grades 5 (1988-89) and 6 (1989-90), K.D. Malone Elementary School
September 1990 - Present:	Teacher, grade 6, Copeland Middle School

5. Lawrence Chammings has been issued the following certificates by the New Jersey Department of Education:

Elementary School Teacher - issued July 1968[1]

---

[1]Chammings' service in Rockaway prior to July 1968 was under a provisional certificate.

Principal/Supervisor - issued May 1975

6. Petitioner Chammings has attained tenure in the respondent School District as a teacher and as an assistant principal.

7. The intervenor, Edwin Johnston, Jr., has been employed by the respondent as follows:

September 1963 - June 1971:	Elementary School Teacher
September 1971 - June 1972:	Helping Teacher
July 1972 - June 1975:	Assistant to the Principal
July 1975 - June 1982:	Assistant Principal
July 1982 - June 1987:	Assistant Principal/Supervisor (Science, Research (Microcomputer), Music, Art, Physical Education, Library)
September 1987 - June 1989:	Head Teacher, Copeland Middle School
September 1989 - June 1990:	Acting Assistant Principal, O'Brien Elementary School
September 1990 - June 1991:	Head Teacher, Copeland Middle School
August 21, 1991 - Present:	Acting Assistant Principal, Copeland Middle School

8. Edwin Johnston also served as the Director of the district's summer school for the 1988-89 school year. A copy of the pertinent portion of respondent's March 23, 1988 meeting, at which Johnston was appointed to such position, is annexed hereto as Exhibit J-2.

9. Edwin Johnston has been issued the following certificates by the New Jersey Department of Education:

Elementary school teacher - issued December 1965[2]
Principal/Supervisor - issued June 1975

---

[2]Johnston's service in Rockaway prior to December 1965 was under a provisional certificate.

10. Intervenor Edwin Johnston, Jr., has attained tenured in the respondent school district as a teacher and as an assistant principal.

11. At a special meeting held on June 10, 1987, respondent voted to approve an administrative reorganization plan and to abolish, effective June 30, 1987, five Assistant Principal/Supervisor positions, including the positions of Lawrence Chammings and Edwin Johnston. A copy of the pertinent portion of the minutes of respondent's June 10, 1987 meeting is submitted herewith as Exhibit J-3. Except for Chammings and Johnston, no employees affected by the 1987 reduction in force ("RIF") remain in the district's employ or have any preferred eligibility recall rights.

12. As a result of the RIF the respondent Board, at a special meeting held on August 10, 1987, voted to appoint Lawrence Chammings to the position of Supervisor Reading/Language Arts and Edwin Johnston to the position of Copeland Middle School Head Teacher, an extra stipend position. A copy of the pertinent portion of the minutes of respondent's August 10, 1987 meeting is submitted herewith as Exhibit J-4.

13. The position of Assistant Principal at the Copeland Middle School was not eliminated in the administrative reorganization. Felicia Jamison was appointed to that position effective July 1, 1987, pursuant to an order of the Director of the Division on Civil Rights, who had determined that the respondent violated New Jersey's Law Against Discrimination in denying Dr. Jamison a promotion to assistant principal in 1978.

14. By letter from Anthony Vinciguerra dated November 4, 1987, Mr. Johnston was notified that the Board had approved the stipend for his appointment as head teacher. A copy of that letter is annexed hereto as Exhibit J-5.

15. Use of the nonstandard title of middle school head teacher was approved by the Morris County Superintendent of Schools by letter dated November 4, 1988. A copy of that letter is submitted herewith as Exhibit J-6.

16. At its April 27, 1988 regular meeting, respondent voted to abolish the position of Supervisor of Reading/Language Arts effective June 30, 1988. A copy of the pertinent portion of the minutes of the Board's April 27, 1988 meeting is annexed hereto as Exhibit J-7. As a result of this RIF, Lawrence Chammings was assigned to the position of elementary school teacher for the 1988-89 school year and thereafter.

17. By letter dated April 28, 1988, from Assistant Superintendent Anthony Vinciguerra, petitioner Chammings was formally notified of the Board's action to abolish his supervisor position. The letter also raised the possibility of summer employment and a stipend position during the school year to mitigate Lawrence Chammings' salary loss. A copy of that letter is submitted herewith as Exhibit J-8.

18. By letter dated May 13, 1988, petitioner Chammings replied to Mr. Vinciguerra's April 28 letter. Mr. Chammings requested a vacant fifth grade teacher position at the K. D. Malone School, accepted an offer of summer employment, and declined a stipend position during the 1988-89 school year. A copy of petitioner Chammings' May 13, 1988 letter is submitted herewith as Exhibit J-9. Mr. Chammings served as a supervisor of language arts/reading in the district's summer program for the months of July and August, 1988.

19. In September, 1988, Lawrence Chammings filed a petition with the Commissioner of Education (OAL DKT. No. EDU 7364-88, Agency DKT. No. 287-9/88), asserting entitlement by virtue of his tenure status to the Copeland School Assistant Principal position held by Felicia Jamison, who was then nontenured in the position. Edwin Johnston, Jr., thereafter filed a similar petition (OAL DKT. No. EDU 9366-88, Agency DKT. No. 361-11/88). In a decision dated August 22, 1989, affirmed by the State Board of Education January 3, 1990, the Commissioner dismissed both petitions for failure to file within the ninety-day time limitation of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(b).

20. The principal of the district's Dwyer Elementary School was absent due to personal illness for the entire 1989-90 school year. In order to provide administrative coverage of the school, the Board directed the principal of the O'Brien Elementary School to also serve as acting principal of the Dwyer School, and transferred Edwin Johnston, Jr., to the position of Acting Assistant Principal at the Dwyer Elementary School. A copy of the pertinent portion of the minutes of the Board's September 27, 1989 meeting, approving Mr. Johnston's stipend for the acting assistant principal position, is annexed hereto as Exhibit J-10. Edwin Johnston served full-time at the Dwyer School as acting assistant principal for the period August, 1989 through June 30, 1990. For the 1991-92 school year, he returned to the position of head teacher at the Copeland Middle School.

21. Effective August 8, 1991, Felicia Jamison was promoted to the position of Assistant Superintendent for Curriculum and Instruction, creating a vacancy in the position of Copeland Middle School Assistant Principal. On August 21, 1991, respondent voted to appoint Edwin Johnston, Jr. to the position of Acting Assistant Principal of the Copeland Middle School. A copy of the pertinent portion of that meeting's minutes is annexed hereto as Exhibit J-11. Mr. Johnston continues to serve in the position of Acting Assistant Principal of the Copeland School at the present time.

22. Lawrence Chammings served in the United States Navy from September 16, 1953 until his honorable discharge on or about September 6, 1957, thus rendering him eligible for four years' military service seniority credit pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:29-11. Edwin Johnston, Jr. did not serve in the military.

23. At the time Lawrence Chammings attained tenure as an elementary school teacher, he received four years' military service credit towards his seniority in said category. A copy of the pertinent portion of the most recent seniority list available for the position of elementary school teacher, prepared in 1987, is annexed hereto as Exhibit J-12.

24. The same four years of military service was also credited to Mr. Chammings' seniority in the category of elementary school assistant principal, at the time Mr. Chammings attained tenure in that position. A seniority list for the category of assistant principal - elementary school dated June 30, 1981, is annexed hereto as Exhibit J-13. (This is the seniority list referred to in Paragraphs 11 and 12 of the First Count of the Petition in the within controversy.)

25. The district has prepared at least three preferred eligibility lists covering administrative positions formerly held by Lawrence Chammings and Edwin Johnston, Jr. A copy of a preferred eligibility list prepared for the position of assistant principal - elementary school, dated June 30, 1987, is annexed hereto as Exhibit J-14.[3] (This is the "seniority list" referred to in Paragraphs 2 and 3 of the Second Count of the Petition in the within matter.) Another list, covering all relevant positions and specifying respective seniority for the 1987-88 and 1988-89 school years, is annexed hereto as Exhibit J-15. This list was prepared in connection with the litigation brought against the District by Mr. Chammings and Mr. Johnston in 1988 and was submitted as a Joint Exhibit in that controversy pursuant to a Stipulation of Facts. A third preferred eligibility list prepared thereafter for the elementary school assistant principal category is submitted herewith as Exhibit J-16. (This is the preferred eligibility list referred to in Paragraph 4 of the Second Count of the Petition in the instant controversy.)

26. The reason for the discrepancy in Mr. Chammings' seniority as listed in Exhibits J-13 and J-14 (aside from the intervening years of service) is that in preparing Exhibit J-14 and subsequent preferred eligibility lists, the District did not include four years of military service credit in calculating Mr. Chammings' seniority in the category of assistant principal - elementary school. The district performed the seniority calculation in this manner as a result of the decision of the State Board of Education in Meyer v. Bd. of Educ. of Tp. of Wayne decided State Board (March 6, 1986), Docket Nos. 129-83 and 1-85), aff'd, [per curiam] No. A-3175-85T-6, (App. Div. Sept. 24, 1987), cert. den. 110 N.J. 162 (1988). The District continues to apply Mr. Chammings' military service credit towards his seniority in the category elementary school teacher.

27. Board Policy No. 3112 (R) specifies the standards to be applied when a determination must be made as to who among two or more tenured staff members with the same seniority status shall be dismissed in a RIF. A copy of this policy is annexed hereto as Exhibit J-17.

DISCUSSION

A. The "90-Day Rule" Claim (N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2)

The first issue which I should address is the separate defense raised by the Board and supported by intervenor claiming that Chammings' petition must be dismissed for his failure to comply with N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2, the "90-day rule." According to both the Board and Johnston, since the essence of Chammings' claim relates to the middle school position in which Johnston has been serving since 1987, the critical date is in late April 1988 when petitioner formally learned that his supervisory position as Supervisor of Language Arts was to be eliminated and that he, not Johnston, would be reassigned to an elementary school teaching position. Thus, Johnston's appointment more than three years later as acting assistant principal at the Copeland Middle School did not, according to Johnston and the Board, give Chammings a "new" cause of action. Rather, it essentially was tantamount to a "transfer" from one administrative position to another.

Disposition of the "90-day rule" issue is relatively easy.* As petitioner accurately observes in his supplemental brief, the joint stipulation of facts establishes that Johnston was appointed to the acting assistant principal position at *Both laches and estoppel defenses also were raised, but were not advanced in the briefs. Thus, I will consider them withdrawn.

Copeland Middle School on August 21, 1991, said appointment to be effective as of September 1, 1991. During 1990-91 he was "Head Teacher" at the same school. Chammings' petition of appeal was filed on November 4, 1991, well within 90 days of August 21, 1991, no less September 1, 1991. Whether or not Chammings was informed in late April 1988 that his supervisory position was to be eliminated and he was to be reassigned to an elementary teaching position is not, in my view, relevant to the gravamen of the instant petition which plainly targets Johnston's August 1991 appointment. Clearly, that was the critical event which triggered Chammings' instant cause of action and the matter may therefore proceed on the merits.

B. The Seniority Claim

For the following reasons, I believe that application of the relevant statutes and regulations to the stipulated facts lead to the conclusion that Chammings and Johnston are and have been equal to one another in terms of their seniority. Thus, the Board erred in 1991 when it determined to appoint Johnston to the middle school position without also considering Chammings' equal entitlement to it. While the Board argues that in the event of a tie it was appropriate for it to resort to its Policy No. 3112(R), and petitioner has the burden of proving that the process it used was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable, as far as this record reveals Johnston's appointment was made without reference to the contents of that policy. Further, it is highly doubtful that the particular policy is even applicable to the instant facts.

The argument profferred by petitioner that his seniority is greater than that of Johnston is based upon his having received his principal/supervisor certificate in May 1975, whereas Johnston received his certificate in June 1975, one month later. Thus, Chammings claims he has been certified for one month longer and therefore he should always have been placed ahead of Johnston on any preferred eligibility list. I reject this assertion since I agree with the Board that seniority, which is earned within a specific category, is dependent upon actual service in that category. It is the date one commences his or her duties, not the date one receives certification which constitutes the critical point. See, e.g., Compton v. Board of Education of Hanover, 1972 S.L.D. 274.

On the other hand, I reject the Board's claim that the school law decision relied upon by Chammings to count his time served as an elementary teacher, Choplick v.

Board of Ed. of Piscataway, adopted by the Commissioner of Education, (October 11, 1990), affirmed by the State Board, 1991 S.L.D. 2530, should be disregarded. While it is true that administrative law judge in Choplick apparently was "troubled" by the conclusion he reached, the result of Judge Campbell's initial decision was then adopted by silence under N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(e) without written comment by the Commissioner. Since Judge Campbell's decision thereafter was affirmed by the State Board of Education it clearly has precedential effect and its holding will be applied here. Choplick held, of course, that the provisions of N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.10(h) protect persons who move from or revert to a category, whether upward or downward in the hierarchy. Thus, in that case an intervenor prevailed over Choplick since she continued to accrue seniority in a vice principal category even during that school year when she had reverted to an elementary teacher category. Thus, Chammings, too, continued to accrue seniority while an elementary teacher.

Although the parties also discussed Chammings' military service and the crediting of such service toward his seniority, it appears there is no issue to be resolved on that subject, as petitioner accurately points out, the Board has properly credited him with his military service.

Johnston argues that he has greater seniority than petitioner since his service as head teacher at the Copeland Middle School for three years gives rise to seniority credit either as an elementary assistant principal or in a junior high school category. See, N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.10(l)16 and 17. No case authority is provided to support this proposition. Moreover, a review of the stipulated facts reveals that both petitioner and Johnston have a total time in service, for seniority purposes, of 19 years as of the end of the 1990-91 school year. All of that time is to be credited to the category of assistant principal, the position petitioner held when he was riffed in 1987 and the position which Johnston now holds.

Thus, Chammings and Johnston have equal seniority in the assistant principal category and the determination now boils down to the question of how the Board should have chosen between Chammings and Johnston in 1991 given their equal status. As noted, both the Board and Johnston rely on the provisions of the Board Policy No. 3112 (R) which prescribes the procedure to be followed in determining who between two or more tenured teaching staff members with the same seniority status shall be dismissed in a reduction in force. In that case preference is given to that teaching staff member, "who has demonstrated the greater degree of teaching competence and promise of success in the district." The Board contends that if I determine that the seniority calculation in this case results in a tie, although the policy does not literally cover the instant situation; nevertheless, it may be "inferred" that the Board may look to the same factors when choosing which of two or more staff members with equal seniority will be recalled to fill a vacancy. Thus, the Board also maintains that petitioner had the burden of demonstrating that its decision was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable and since petitioner failed even to raise that issue, no less pursue it on the merits, his petition must fail.

As I indicated earlier, I reject the Board's argument that its decision to prefer Johnston over Chammings finds support in any policy. First, by its very terms Policy No. 3112 (R) does not apply to the particular circumstances since it deals with a reduction in force and a determination of which teaching staff member shall retain a position. It has no application to the context of this case. Second, there is no indication that the Board considered the criteria set forth in the policy when it appointed Johnston rather than Chammings in 1991. The only stipulated fact vis-a-vis that appointment is the bare reference to it in the Board minutes (Joint Exhibit 11). If pursuant to section (D)(3) of that policy the Board did, in fact, compare qualifications, there is no proof in the record to that effect.

Thus, Chammings and Johnston are now and in August 1991 were equal in terms of their seniority. Since only one of them was entitled to the assistant principal position at the Copeland Middle School the selection should have been made pursuant to a duly promulgated process articulated in written Board policy. Unfortunately, at the time of Johnston's appointment in 1991 there was no such policy. The question, then, is what remedy now is appropriate in light of the absence of any policy and the fact that Johnston actually has served in the contested position for two years.

I believe that under the particular circumstances, absent a policy for selection in case of a tie, de facto recognition must be given to the Board's choice of Johnston rather than Chammings in 1991. While it was not appropriate for the Board to have given preference to Johnston in light of the tie, it would have been equally improper if preference was given to Chammings. I believe the parties, therefore, should be left where they find themselves as of this point. Even though under a properly adopted policy Chammings might have prevailed over Johnston, the absence of such a policy means that Chammings has no superior claim and the practicalities of the situation dictate that de facto recognition be given to Johnston. Cf., Adams v. Goldner, 79 N.J. 78 (1979); Monsees v. Bd. of Educ. of Bloomingdale, 1982 S.L.D. 1409.

However, in view of the tie, the status quo should not continue indefinitely. Although Johnston may remain in the assistant principal position, it is incumbent upon the Board to promptly consider and promulgate a policy designed to deal with this type of situation. In light of the requirements of due process, public notice and the like, a reasonable period of time should be given to the Board to accomplish this result. To that end I will order that no later than November 15, 1993, the Board must adopt a written policy to be applied to situations of this sort, consider the qualifications of eligible candidates and make an appointment to be effective no later than February 1, 1994.

CONCLUSION AND ORDER

Accordingly, for the reasons set forth above, I CONCLUDE that the verified petition of appeal should be DISMISSED. However, I further ORDER that unless modified by the Commissioner, no later than November 15, 1993, the Board must duly promulgate and formally adopt a specific written policy designed to deal with situations wherein a vacancy must be filled from a pool of two or more persons whose seniority entitlement to that position is equal to each other. I further ORDER that no later than February 1, 1994, the Board must appoint either Chammings or Johnston to the Copeland Middle School position, assuming each remains eligible for said appointment and no other person presents superior credentials in terms of seniority.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, 8th Floor West, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurs with both the ALJ's analysis of the parties' respective seniority entitlements and his conclusion regarding the absence of any specific identifiable procedure for having chosen intervenor over petitioner for the position at issue. The Commissioner further concurs, in view of the parties' equal entitlement to this position, with the ALJ's recommended directives regarding adoption of a Board policy to be applied in such matters and application by February 1994 of that policy to petitioner and intervenor so as to choose between them provided that they both remain eligible and no more senior person claims the position at issue.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law is affirmed for the reasons expressed therein.

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Board appealed General Fund tax levy reductions in the amount of $15,891 made by governing body following voter rejection of proposed budget on April 20, 1993.

Upon review of the appeal herein to determine whether Board demonstrated that restoration of specific line item reductions was necessary in order to provide a thorough and efficient system of education in the district, Commissioner determined to restore $10,831 for a total General Fund tax levy of $593,164 for 1993-94 school purposes.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF WOODBINE,

PETITIONER,

V.

MAYOR AND COUNCIL OF THE BOROUGH OF WOODBINE, CAPE MAY COUNTY,

RESPONDENT.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

For Petitioner, Richard T. Goodkin, Esq.

For Respondent, Michael E. Benson, Esq. (Buonadonna, Benson & Parenti, P.C.)

The Board of Education of the Borough of Woodbine (Board) appeals to the Commissioner of Education from an action taken by the Mayor and Council of the Borough of Woodbine (Council) pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37, certifying to the Cape May County Board of Taxation a lesser amount for General Fund costs for the 1993-94 school year than the amount proposed by the Board in its budget which was rejected by the voters. This appeal was filed on June 10, 1993.

At the annual election held on April 20, 1993, the Board submitted to the electorate a proposal to raise $598,224 by local taxation for General Fund costs of the school district. After the voters' rejection of the proposal, the Board submitted its budget to Council for its determination of the amount necessary for the operation of a thorough and efficient school system in the Borough of Woodbine for the 1993-94 school year pursuant to the mandatory obligation imposed on Council by N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37.

After consultation with the Board, Council made its determination and certified to the Cape May County Board of Taxation an amount of $582,333 for General fund costs.

Amount of Tax Levy Proposed by Board	Amount of Tax Levy Certified by Council
General Fund $598,224	General Fund $582,333
Amount of Reduction By Council	Amount of Reduction In Dispute
$15,891	$15,891

On June 18, 1993 Council filed its Answer. The Board filed its Position Statement on July 30, 1993 and Council filed two Certifications on July 7 and August 18, 1993. Thereafter the case record was closed.

STANDARD OF REVIEW

In rendering judgment relative to budgetary appeals, the Commissioner notes that the Constitution of the State of New Jersey requires the Legislature to provide for a thorough and efficient system of education. The Legislature by way of statutory scheme has delegated the responsibility for providing such thorough and efficient system to local boards of education. Additionally, the Legislature pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9, 22-14, 22-17 and 22-37 has authorized the Commissioner of Education to review and decide appeals by boards of education seeking restoration of budgetary reductions imposed by local governing bodies. (See also Board of Education of East Brunswick Township v. Township Council of East Brunswick, 48 N.J. 94 (1966) and Board of Education of Deptford Township v. Mayor and Council of Deptford Township, 116 N.J. 305 (1989).)

In reviewing such appeals, the Commissioner must determine whether a district board of education has demonstrated that the amount by which a specific line item reduction imposed by the governing body is necessary for the provision of a thorough and efficient system of education.

Mindful, then, of the balance to be applied in this standard of review, the Commissioner makes the following determination with respect to the reduction in the General Fund tax levy effectuated by the Council.

Line Items	Description	Reduction
163	Teaching Supplies	$ 2,000
453	Principal & Payroll Clerk	2,892
463	Vice Principal Salary	1,833
480	Heat	2,560
498	School Board Administrator	4,106
500	Social Security, Other	2,500
	Total	$15,891

The Board asserts that Council's cuts are arbitrary, unreasonable, and if not restored will deprive the Board of the ability to provide a thorough and efficient education to the pupils in its district. Council asserts that its reductions are not arbitrary nor unreasonable, and that most of its cuts were agreed to by the Board.

The Board avers that its auditor is also the auditor for the Borough of Woodbine. Prior to its meeting with Council, the auditor was asked to review the budget and advise Council where excess funds might be located. According to the Board, the auditor advised Council that it was a "bare bones" budget and that there were no excess funds. Acting as a negotiator between the Board and Council, the auditor suggested that if the Board could make a "modest" reduction in the budget, he was certain an agreement could be reached with Council. Based on this representation, the School Board Administrator authored a letter dated May 10, 1993, in which he proposed cuts in three line items totalling $7,060. This correspondence with the proposed reduction was offered in the spirit of compromise, based on the auditor's representation that the dispute might be amicably settled without costly litigation.

This is the scenario that leads to Council's assertion that the Board had "agreed" to certain reductions. The Commissioner does not find that the Board agreed to any of the proposed reductions. Since Council refused to accept the Board's offer as a compromise settlement, the budget will be examined in its entirety as if there were no efforts to settle the matter. The line items will be decided based on the relative arguments applicable to each.

163 - Teaching Supplies	$2,000

Council states that its budget reduction is a modest one and that no facts have been related by the Board to show that its reduction would prevent the Board from providing a thorough and efficient education for its pupils. Based on the history of the Board's expenditures, Council's allocation for this line item is $16,000, the amount acknowledged by the Board in its certification. Consequently, there is no showing of need for further expenditures in this account.

The Board disagrees asserting that it budgeted only $18,000 for this line item when the expenditure for the 1992-93 school year was $19,204. The account was under-budgeted for 1993-94. So far, this account shows actual invoices and expenditures for teaching supplies and workbooks for the 1993-94 school year of $16,556.56, exclusive of all other office supplies required for the entire school year.

In the Commissioner's judgment, the Board has detailed its requirements for expenditures in this line item with sufficient itemization. Council's reliance on the historical perspective of expenditures in this line item is not persuasive. On the other hand, the Board's educational criteria supports its position. Accordingly, the $2,000 reduction will be restored to the budget.

Line Item	Reduction
453 - Principal and Payroll Clerk	$2,892
463 - Vice Principal Salary	$1,833
498 - School Board Administrator	$4,106

The three accounts listed above will be discussed together because each involves a reduction in a negotiated contract.

Council asserts that the Board has arbitrarily increased administrative salaries to track the percentage increases provided to the teaching staff through their union contract. Council's reduction in these line items is an effort to keep administrative salary increases within a realistic and responsible framework. Council contends that the Board cannot lock in these salaries by contract and then say that the governing body is powerless to make any adjustment. Acceptance of this position could result in salary increases of up to 30% in the future.

The Board defends the salary increases it negotiated with each of the persons designated in the above line items. Regarding the Chief School Administrator (principal), the Board introduced a document showing that its principal has 27 years in education with 21 of those years in administration and he is the lowest paid administrator in Cape May County. Both the principal and the payroll clerk have been tendered contracts. The same situation exists for the Vice Principal and the School Business Administrator. The School Business Administrator is also one of the lowest paid individuals in that position in the county. The Board asserts that any reduction in this line item will impair its ability to honor a legally existing contract.

The Commissioner has reviewed these line items and the arguments of the parties. Council's assertion that the Board's position is identical to its position on the reduction of staff salaries during its 1991 budget appeal when the Commissioner upheld the reductions by Council is not supported by the record. In the 1991 budget appeal, the Board admittedly budgeted a set percentage over its current expenditures for salaries, anticipating a 9% increase for staff and a 7% increase for administrators as a result of ongoing negotiations. In that instance, the Commissioner held that a sufficient pool of funds remained in several other accounts to collectively allow for raises the Board anticipated as a result of the negotiations process. Consequently, the Commissioner upheld the reductions made by council. (See 1991 S.L.D. 2324.)

The matter at hand is different. Each of the persons discussed has been awarded a legally binding contract and according to the certification of the Board president, which has not been refuted, each contract appears to be reasonable and consistent with the salaries paid in the area. The Board clearly has the discretionary authority to do all things consistent with state law in carrying out its obligatory function to operate a thorough and efficient school system. There is no evidence that the Board has abused its discretion. The only reason suggested by Council for its reductions appears to be its determination that the salaries tendered are too high. Having found the salaries reasonable and consistent with those in the county, the Commissioner restores the reductions in line items 453, 463, and 498 to the budget.

480 - Heat	$2,560

Council asserts that this reduction is clearly justified by virtue of the Board's expenditure history and that its cut will not impair the Board's ability to provide a thorough and efficient education for its pupils.

The Board does not dispute its actual past expenditures as set forth by Council; however, it maintains that the past two winters have been very mild and that a cold winter and an increase in utility rates and/or an increase in oil rates would exhaust this line item.

In this line item, Council has given a valid reason for its reduction, whereas the Board's position is merely speculative. Consequently, Council's reduction of $2,560 will be sustained.

500 - Social Security, Other	$2,500

Council asserts that the Board overstated the amount necessary for funding the Board's share in paying Social Security taxes and that its reduction will not impair the Board's ability to provide a thorough and efficient system of education for its pupils.

The Board did not respond to Council's reduction in this line item and there is no finding that this reduction will affect the thorough and efficient operation of the district. Therefore, the Commissioner determines that Council's cut will be sustained.

The following table shows the amounts restored and not restored to the budget.

Line Item	Description	Amount Restored	Amount Not Restored
163	Teaching Supplies	$ 2,000
453	Principal & Payroll Clerk	2,892
463	Vice Principal Salary	1,833
480	Heat	-0-	$2,560
498	School Board Administrator	4,106
500	Social Security, Other	-0-	2,500
	TOTAL	$10,831	$5,060

This tabulation shows that $10,831 must be restored to the budget. Accordingly, the Cape May County Board of Taxation is directed to add to the local tax levy for the Borough of Woodbine School District $10,831 for General Fund expense purposes for the 1993-94 school year which when added to the amount of $582,333 previously certified by the governing body will result in a total General Fund tax levy of $593,164.

Amount of Tax Levy Certified by the Governing Body	$582,333
Amount Restored by the Commissioner	10,831
Total Tax Levy After Restoration	$593,164

BEFORE ARNOLD SAMUELS, ALJ:

On October 5, 1992, the petitioner filed a verified petition with the Commissioner of Education seeking a determination that he had not resigned his position, that he was still a tenured teacher, and that he was entitled to back pay and punitive damages for retaliatory action allegedly taken against him by respondents.

On October 30, 1992, the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for hearing and determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. A prehearing conference was held by the OAL on April 5, 1993, and a prehearing order was entered, defining and limiting the issues to be decided, fixing hearing dates, providing for discovery and regulating other procedural aspects of the forthcoming hearing.

A settlement was reached by the parties prior to the hearing, and a written settlement agreement was subsequently drafted and executed by the petitioner and by representatives of the parties' respondent. A copy of the agreement, which was filed in the OAL on September 17, 1993, is attached hereto and made a part hereof.

Having reviewed and considered the issues involved in this dispute, it is CONCLUDED that the parties have voluntarily and knowingly agreed to the settlement, as set forth in the attached document. It is further CONCLUDED that the settlement is fair and fully dispositive of all issues in controversy between the parties.

It is therefore ORDERED that the settlement be approved and this matter dismissed.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. Whereas, this matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education by the Englewood Board of Education on December 1, 1993 through the filing of a Notice of Motion for a stay of the Commissioner's decision of October 25, 1993 in the above-referenced matter which is currently pending on appeal before the State Board of Education; and

Whereas, the Board seeks a stay of the Commissioner's decision which ordered the reinstatement of the increments of Petitioners Pruitt and Segall for the 1992-93 school year and directing the Board to remit salary differentials to petitioners for this period of time; and

Whereas, the Board avers that it meets the requirements necessary for such relief because:

2. Petitioners would incur no irreparable harm if the stay were granted since if they were to prevail, the Board could readily pay salary differentials owed. On the other hand, if the stay is not granted and the Board is ultimately successful, it would have to seek reimbursement of approximately $6,000 paid to each of the petitioners which might require legal action if either or both were no longer employed by the Board.

   Status quo pending the outcome of appeal would not harm either party, while immediate payment of the increments would harm the Board;

3. The Board's appeal asserts both legal and equitable grounds for not establishing June 30 as the deadline for withholding a 12-month employee's increment. Since an administrator's responsibilities are not completed until June 30 or after, this deadline does not permit a board of education to properly carry out its responsibilities under N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14; and

Whereas, petitioners oppose the granting of a stay on the grounds that:

1. Board merely reiterates arguments made to the Commissioner with respect to the matter being one of first impression and presents no compelling argument that it is likely to prevail on the merits of this matter;

2. There are clear and unmistakable legal remedies available to restore the status quo, if necessary, should the Board ultimately prevail in this matter. Therefore, the Board has not demonstrated that it would incur irreparable harm necessary to justify the extraordinary relief requested;

3. Public interest would be harmed if the stay is granted. The Board is effectively arguing that it should not be bound to existing timelines in evaluating the performance of the 12-month employees. Public interest requires that employees be subject to ongoing evaluations which are sufficiently definite in the criteria used and the conclusions reached in sufficient time so that reward or penalty action can be taken before the beginning of the next school year. The Board is apparently advocating that allowances be made for its own inefficiency; and

Whereas, the Commissioner has reviewed the positions of the parties and finds no basis for granting a stay because the Board has not met the standards for granting injunctive relief set forth by the New Jersey Supreme Court in Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982) since it has failed to demonstrate that:

1. It would suffer irreparable harm if the stay were denied;

2. It has a likelihood of prevailing on the merits of its appeal to the State Board;

3. Greater harm would inure to it than petitioners if the stay were denied; and

4. The public interest compels the grant of a stay; now therefore

IT IS ORDERED that the Board reinstate the increments of Petitioners Pruitt and Segall for the 1992-93 school year and remit to them the difference between the salaries they should have received and the salaries they actually received during this period as directed in the Commissioner's October 25, 1993 decision.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF ENGLEWOOD, BERGEN COUNTY,

RESPONDENT-APPELLANT.

STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION

DECISION

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, October 25, 1993

For the Petitioners-Respondents, Lake & Schwartz
(Robert M. Schwartz, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Appellant, Gutfleish & Davis
(Allan S. Gutfleish, Esq., of Counsel)

On July 9, 1992, the Board of Education of the City of Englewood (hereinafter "Board") voted to withhold the salary increments of Henry Pruitt, William Chaleff and Richard Segall (hereinafter "petitioners"), tenured teaching staff members, for the 1992-93 school year, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14.[1] The petitioners were 12-month employees with contractual terms commencing on

[1] N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14 provides, in pertinent part:
> Any board of education may withhold, for inefficiency or other good cause, the employment increment, or the adjustment increment, or both, of any member in any year by a recorded roll call majority vote of the full membership of the board of education. It shall be the duty of the board of education, within 10 days, to give written notice of such action, together with the reasons therefor, to the member concerned....

August 2, 1995

July 1. As a result of such action, petitioners filed a petition of appeal with the Commissioner of Education, contending that the Board had violated their tenure rights in withholding their increments and that such withholding was arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable.[2]

Petitioners subsequently filed a motion for summary decision, alleging that the Board had failed to act in a timely manner in withholding their increments. They maintained that such action was taken after commencement of the 1992-93 school year, thereby effectively causing them to suffer an unlawful reduction in their salaries in violation of their tenure rights. An Administrative Law Judge ("ALJ") recommended denying petitioners' motion, concluding that the performance of such employees could not be fully evaluated for purposes of withholding their increments until after completion of their duties on June 30.[3]

The Board thereupon filed a motion for summary decision, contending that petitioners' deficiencies as demonstrated in the record constituted a sufficient basis for the withholdings. Petitioners did not contest the substantive basis for the Board's action, but preserved their contention that such action had been untimely. The ALJ recommended granting the Board's motion for summary decision and dismissing the petition.

On October 25, 1993, the Commissioner rejected the ALJ's recommendation to deny petitioners' motion for summary decision.

[2] We note that petitioner Chaleff withdrew from this matter during the proceedings in the Office of Administrative Law and is not a party to the instant appeal.

[3] Petitioners' request to the Commissioner for interlocutory review of such determination was rejected as untimely pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.10(b).

The Commissioner stressed that a district board was required to take action to withhold salary increments prior to the beginning of the school year involved. Citing Newark Teachers' Union, Local 481, AFT/AFL-CIO, and Edna Smith v. Board of Education of the City of Newark, decided by the Commissioner, 1984 S.L.D. 1045, the Commissioner noted that the "beginning of the school year" for purposes of withholding the increments of 10-month employees had been defined as September 1, which, while not necessarily the date of commencement of actual service, was the date on which such employees' salary entitlements commenced. Accordingly, the Commissioner concluded that July 1 was the date the yearly period of service and concomitant salary entitlement began for the petitioners herein, 12-month employees under contract from July 1 to June 30, and that the Board could not have acted to withhold their increments for 1992-93 after June 30, 1992.

In so doing, the Commissioner rejected the Board's argument that a June 30 cutoff unfairly compromised its ability to evaluate employees, pointing out that staff evaluation was an activity which, of necessity, extended over a number of months. She found it entirely reasonable to expect that all required evaluations could be concluded in sufficient time to permit a district board to take any necessary action by June 30. Consequently, the Commissioner concluded that the Board's action on July 9, 1992 withholding petitioners' increments was untimely and, as a result, constituted a reduction in their compensation in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. In light of such determination, the Commissioner found it unnecessary to address the Board's motion for summary decision regarding the substantive basis for the withholdings.

The Board filed the instant appeal to the State Board of Education, alleging that there was no legal basis for the Commissioner's determination to impose a June 30 deadline for withholding the salary increments of 12-month employees and that such a cutoff did not constitute sound educational policy.

On March 15, 1995, the Legal Committee issued a Report in this matter in which it found no basis for concluding that N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14 imposed different time frames for withholding the increments of 10- and 12-month employees. Petitioners filed exceptions to that Report, in which they indicated that July 1 was the commencement of the fiscal year and that, contractually, any increments to which 12-month employees were entitled took effect at that time.

We have carefully reviewed the record, including the stipulation of facts submitted by the parties, and, after further consideration in light of petitioner's exceptions, we affirm the decision of the Commissioner, as clarified herein. It is undisputed that petitioners Pruitt and Segall[4] were employed under the terms of a collective bargaining agreement between the Board and the Englewood Public School Administrators. The parties further stipulated that "[a]s of July 1, 1992, all three Petitioners were twelve-month employees with their contractual term commencing on July 1 of the school year." Stipulation of Facts, at 3 (emphasis added). It is also undisputed that there was a salary schedule in effect in the district on July 1, 1992 which provided for increases in salary for the petitioners' positions. Id.

[4] See, supra, n.2.

N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 prohibits a district board from reducing a tenured teaching staff member in compensation, except for inefficiency, incapacity, unbecoming conduct or other just cause, and then only in the manner prescribed in the Tenure Employees Hearing Law, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 et seq. While a district board may withhold a staff member's salary increments, N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14, we find, under the particular facts in the record before us, that the action taken by the Board in this case to withhold the increments of petitioners Pruitt and Segall subsequent to the commencement of their 12-month terms at compensation fixed by the district's salary guide constituted an improper reduction in their compensation in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5.

We therefore affirm the decision of the Commissioner with regard to petitioners Pruitt and Segall on the appeal before us, as clarified herein.

Attorney exceptions are noted.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioners, three tenured 12-month teaching staff members, alleged procedural and substantive challenges to Board's withholding of their increments. Petitioner Chaleff withdrew from matter. Prior to hearing, ALJ denied petitioners' motion for summary decision on procedural issue of timeliness of Board's withholding action.

Initial decision granted Board's motion for summary decision on substantive reasons for increment withholdings, finding Board was entitled to prevail as a matter of law based on deficiencies in petitioners' performance. ALJ dismissed petitioners' petition but allowed them to reserve right to file a challenge of her Decision on Motion on procedural issue.

Commissioner reversed ALJ's motion decision regarding procedural issue of timeliness of the Board's action in denying petitioners' increments and granted summary decision to petitioners finding it unnecessary to reach to remainder of initial decision dealing with substantive reasons for denial of increments. Commissioner noted that the law is clear that a local board must pass its resolution to withhold prior to beginning of school year in which increment withholding is to take effect (which in the case of these 12-month employees was July 1, 1992). Northern Highlands Regional v. Martin; Smith v. Hamilton Township; Newark Teachers' Union; and Charles Gersie. Commissioner found Board's action untimely and ultra vires and ordered reinstatement of increments for Petitioners Pruitt and Segall for 1992-93 school year with compensation.

Record Closed: August 13, 1993 Decided: September 8, 1993

BEFORE ELINOR R. REINER, ALJ:

On September 8, 1992, petitioners, Henry Pruitt, William Chaleff and Richard Segall, filed a petition of appeal with the Commissioner of Education alleging that by reducing petitioners' compensation for the 1992-93 school year (withholding their increments), the Englewood Board of Education (board or respondent) had violated their tenure rights. Respondent filed an answer on September 14, 1992, alleging that it had acted in a proper and reasonable manner. On October 7, 1992, the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. The matter was assigned to the undersigned judge on October 30, 1992, and a telephone prehearing conference scheduled for December 1, 1992. On that date, the issues were isolated and it was determined that petitioners could move to amend the petition to include substantive issues at to the reasons for the withholding of petitioners' salary and employment increments. In addition, dates were established to allow petitioners to move for summary decision.

On or about December 16, 1992, petitioners moved to amend the petition to include substantive issues as to the reasons for the withholding of the increments. Petitioners sought to add a second count alleging that the withholding of their increments by the board was arbitrary, capricious, unreasonable and in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14. On or about December 24, 1992, respondent filed an answer to petitioners' amended petition of appeal alleging that it acted reasonably and in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14 in withholding petitioners' increments. The amended petition and answer were deemed filed. On or about January 15, 1993, the parties filed a stipulation of facts in this matter.

On February 3, 1993, petitioners moved for summary decision alleging that respondent did not act in a timely manner in withholding petitioners' employment and adjustment increments. On February 22, 1993, respondent filed a brief in support of summary judgment on behalf of respondent alleging that the issue before the Commissioner of Education is a determination of the cutoff date of the withholding of a twelve-month employee's increment.

On or about March 8, 1993, petitioners moved for an order permitting the petition of appeal to be amended to include another petitioner, Harold Jones, an employee of the Englewood Board of Education. On or about March 19, 1993, respondent filed a brief and certification in opposition to the motion. Oral argument on both motions was scheduled for April 15, 1993 at the Office of Administrative Law, 185 Washington Street, Newark, New Jersey 07102.

On April 15, 1993, oral argument was held in regard to the motions and an oral decision was rendered. Petitioners' request to amend the petition of appeal to include Harold Jones as a party petitioner in this action was denied. Petitioners' motion for summary decision was also denied. The orders were signed on April 27, 1993, incorporating these determinations. On May 10, 1993, petitioners requested interlocutory review of the undersigned's April 15, 1993 oral decision incorporated in the order signed April 27, 1993. On May 13, 1993, the Commissioner of Education advised petitioners that their request for interlocutory review was untimely pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.10(b) and would not be entertained. A hearing in this matter was scheduled for October 19, 20 and 21, 1993.

On June 25, 1993, respondent filed a motion for summary decision as to each petitioner alleging that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the board is entitled to prevail as a matter of law. Essentially, the board contended, based on three certifications of superintendent of schools, Dr. Henry Oliver, that the deficiencies of petitioners constitute a sufficient basis for the withholdings and that petitioners, Henry Pruitt and Richard Segall, admitted deficiencies in their performance. The board opined that its decision to withhold the increments should be upheld unless petitioners can prove that the board's actions were arbitrary or without reasonable basis. The board contended that summary decision is appropriate based on the deficiencies, the admissions of deficiencies and the legal principle governing increment withholding.

By letter dated August 2, 1993, counsel for petitioners indicated that petitioners, Pruitt and Segall, without necessarily admitting to the allegations raised by respondent, had decided not to contest the substantive basis of the increment withholding, scheduled to be heard on October 19, 20 and 21, 1993. By letter dated August 12, 1993, counsel for petitioners indicated that Pruitt and Segall did not wish to contest the merits of the increment withholding action taken on or about July 9, 1992, and that he would not be filing any papers in opposition to the motion for summary judgment as to Pruitt or Segall. He indicated, however, that Pruitt and Segall wished to preserve their contention that the action of July 9, 1992, violated their tenure rights as it was taken after the commencement of the 1992-93 school year effectively causing both of them to suffer a salary reduction. (He noted he would do so by filing exceptions to the undersigned's Initial Decision). He further indicated that petitioner Chaleff wished to withdraw entirely from this matter; he did not wish to contest the increment withholding either on its merits or on a procedural basis.

Based upon the above, I CONCLUDE that respondent's motion for summary decision as to the substantive basis of the increment withholding is granted as to petitioners, Pruitt and Segall. Chaleff's appeal is withdrawn. I Further CONCLUDE that petitioners may file exceptions to my April 27, 1993 order incorporating the April 15, 1993 bench decision on the issue as to whether the board's action to withhold the increment was timely.

Based on the above, it is hereby ORDERED that respondent's request for summary decision is granted and petitioners' appeal is DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, 8th Floor West, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

PETITIONERS,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF ENGLEWOOD, BERGEN COUNTY,	:	DECISION

The record and initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions and the Board's reply thereto were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Petitioners' exceptions relate solely to the ALJ's denial, during the course of these proceedings, of their summary decision motion.[1] Such motion contended that the Board's July 9, 1992 vote to withhold their increments was procedurally defective and, therefore, void because the effective date for their salaries pursuant to their collective bargaining agreement was the beginning of the school year, July 1, and consequently they had a contractual entitlement to salary on that date. Therefore, any Board action taken after July 1 constituted an impermissible reduction in salary in contravention of their tenure rights.

[1] Subsequent to the ALJ's April 15, 1993 decision and order signed April 27, 1993 in this regard, petitioners on May 10, 1993 requested interlocutory review of such decision by the Commissioner. The Commissioner declined to entertain petitioners' request at that time as it was untimely pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.10(b).

Petitioners except to a rationale for the rejection of their motion posited by the ALJ in her decision, i.e., that the petitioners were not "entitled" to a salary increase. They maintain that they do not assert that an entitlement exists as to increments, fully recognizing that such must be earned. Further, they assert that they do not contest the right of a Board to withhold increments pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14. Petitioners do, however, contend that the tenure protection accorded them under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 precludes the Board from unilaterally reducing their salary which they aver has occurred in this case.

Petitioners assert that case law is consistent on the proposition that once teaching staff members receive a salary increase, they have an entitlement not to have it decreased except for the reasons and under the procedures set forth in law and cite the Commissioner's decisions in Charles Gersie v. Board of Education of the City of Clifton, 1972 S.L.D. 462; Anson et al. v. Bridgeton Board of Education, 1972 S.L.D. 638; Stockton v. Trenton City Board of Education, 210 N.J. Super. 150 (App. Div. 1986); Newark Teachers' Union Local 481 AFT/AFL-CIO and Edna Smith v. Board of Education of the City of Newark, 1984 S.L.D. 1045; and Magliozzi v. East Brunswick Township Board of Education, 1989 S.L.D. 2854, as support for their contention and assert that the only exception to this principle is in cases of mutual mistake with respect to salary which they aver is not a factor in the instant matter. Petitioners next contend > it is undisputed that the Petitioners' salary was controlled by an agreement between the > Englewood Board of Education and the Englewood Public School Administrators. (Exhibit J-14). The Agreement contained a salary guide. Under the salary guide Petitioner Pruitt, who was paid $78,192 for the 1991-92 school term, received the salary of $84,159 effective July 1, 1992. Petitioner Segall, who was paid $81,166 for the 1991-92 school term received a salary of $87,360 for the 1992-93 school term, also effective July 1, 1992. As a result of the action taken by the Englewood Board of Education on July 9, 1992 both Petitioners had their 1992-93 salaries reduced to the salaries which they received in 1991-92. Petitioner Pruitt was reduced from a salary of $84,159 to $78,192. Petitioner Segall was reduced from a salary of $87,360 to $81,166. (emphasis in text)

Lastly, petitioners object to the Board's attempt to distinguish the facts in this matter from Newark Teachers Union Local 481 et al., supra, by asserting that a cut-off date of July 1 is incongruous because for 12-month employees a board needs additional time after July 1 to determine whether increment withholding is appropriate. Petitioners assert that there is no basis for such additional time in either statute or case law.

Petitioners urge that the Commissioner reverse the ALJ's decision with respect to the timeliness of the Board's action and reinstate their increments for the 1992-93 school term.

The Board contests petitioners' assertion that the appropriate cut-off date for its withholding of their increments was June 30, 1992, contending that there were numerous reasons justifying the ALJ's finding that this date was inappropriate under the circumstances existing in this matter. These are summarized below:

1) Initially, the Board argues that petitioners received notice on June 29, 1992 that the Board intended to discuss the withholding of their increments at its July 9, 1992 meeting and, thus, were aware at that time that there was a real possibility that their increments would be withheld during the school year.

2) The Board additionally contends that petitioners' were also advised at this time that their salaries would remain at the status quo until after this meeting. It argues that, therefore, petitioners had neither received nor had a realistic expectation of receiving any salary increment prior to the Board's action on July 9, 1992 and, consequently, did not suffer any salary reduction in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5.

3) The Board further asserts that the ALJ recognized the strong public policy rationale for not utilizing June 30 as a cut-off date for withholding the increment of a 12-month administrative employee.

> Logic and educational soundness require that the Board be afforded an opportunity to react to an employee's egregious or negligent actions during the last week in June. Since an essential aspect of a principal and assistant principal's job duties include the timely end of year evaluations of tenured and non-tenured staff, the failure in this case to complete evaluations in a timely and satisfactory manner could not be ascertained by the Superintendent and acted upon by the Board by June 30th. Thus, the Administrative Law Judge is correct in her finding that a June 30th deadline for withholding Petitioners' increments would not permit a Board of Education to properly carry out its responsibilities under N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14. (Board's Objection to Interlocutory Review, dated May 13, 1993, at p. 2)

4) Finally, the Board asserts that the cases cited by petitioners are irrelevant and of no precedential value in this matter as the issue here, i.e., the determination of a cut-off date for the withholding of a 12-month employee's increment is a matter of first impression. The Board urges that a cut-off date of August 1 be established for Board action with respect to 12-month administrative employees, arguing that such would provide sufficient time for a superintendent to evaluate end-of-year performance and for a board to act without prejudicing the employees' rights.

The Board requests that the ALJ's decision granting it summary decision be affirmed and that the Commissioner dismiss the within petition and find the Board's July 9, 1992 action proper and not in violation of petitioners' rights.

Upon a careful and independent review of this matter, which included a review of the tape of the ALJ's decision on the summary decision motion at issue herein, the Commissioner reverses the ALJ's motion decision regarding the timeliness of the Board's action in denying petitioners' increments and hereby grants summary decision to petitioners on this issue. She, therefore, finds it unnecessary to reach the remaining portion of the initial decision which grants summary decision to the Board with respect to the substantive basis for the increment withholdings.

In reaching her determination in this regard the Commissioner, although recognizing the merit of the Board's contention that the establishment of a cut-off date for board action in this particular instance is a matter of first impression, disagrees with its assertion that previous education law decisions have no precedential value in this matter. The Commissioner is compelled to initially note that the law is clear that a local school board must pass its resolution to withhold an employee's increment prior to the beginning of the school year in which it is to take effect. (See Northern Highlands Regional School District Board of Education v. Martin, App. Div., 1979 S.L.D. 852; Smith v. Hamilton Township Board of Education, 1988 S.L.D. 740; Newark Teachers' Union, supra; and Charles Gersie, supra.)

She further notes that definition of "the beginning of the school year" for the purpose of increment withholding of 10-month teaching staff members who are employed September to June, resulting in a date-certain for board action, was accomplished by the Commissioner in Newark Teachers' Union et al., supra.

> It is the belief of the Commissioner that as a matter of fundamental fairness, board action to withhold an increment must be prior to the date the ten-month period of service commences. Therefore, this would require board action prior to September 1 of the school year involved. Although actual service may not commence until the first day of school, September 1, nonetheless, is the date upon which a staff member's salary entitlement commences for the ten-month period of service September to June. (at 1056)

With this established law firmly in mind, and after fully considering the implications of the matter herein at issue, the Commissioner concludes that July 1, 1992 is the date the yearly period of service and concomitant salary entitlement began for the instant 12-month teaching staff members employed July 1 to June 30. Consequently, she finds that unless the Board acted to withhold the increments prior to June 30 where, as here, a binding salary schedule was to take effect on July 1, it could not after July 1 take such action. The Commissioner believes that the establishment of a cut-off date other than June 30 for Board action to withhold the increments of these individuals would be inconsistent with existing law in this area, as well as in violation of fundamental principles of fairness and equity.

In so concluding, the Commissioner was unpersuaded by the Board's argument that utilizing June 30 as a cut-off date unfairly compromises a board's ability to sufficiently evaluate employee completion of year-end duties such as evaluation of staff. Evaluation of teaching staff is an activity which, of necessity, extends over a number of months (Note: the majority of nontenured staff evaluations must be completed by May 15 in order to meet the notice requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10) and she finds it entirely reasonable to expect that all required evaluations can be concluded in sufficient time to permit a board to take all necessary action by June 30. Therefore, a board which allows this activity to extend to the last week of June does so at its own peril.

In the matter at hand, even though the Board determined that petitioners' performance was not satisfactory and informed them of the possibility of action which could affect their increments, lack of timely official action by the Board permitted petitioners' salary for 1992-93 to become established as specified in their collective bargaining agreement.

The Commissioner finds and determines that when the Board of Education of the City of Englewood acted on July 9, 1992 to deny the increments of the petitioners in this matter, its action took place after petitioners had undertaken performance of their contract for the school year in question and, therefore, such action constituted a reduction in petitioners' compensation in contravention of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. Consequently, she determines that such Board action was untimely and ultra vires and must be set aside.

Accordingly, the Commissioner orders reinstatement of the increments of Petitioners Pruitt and Segall for the 1992-93 school year and directs the Board to remit to the petitioners the difference between the salaries they should have received and the salaries actually received during the period in dispute.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning parent, whose child (T.C.) was refused admission to kindergarten for 1993-94 school year, alleged Board arbitrarily changed kindergarten cut-off date to November 30. Petitioner contended she had been assured that cut-off date was December 1.

ALJ found the Board's Registration Policy, which required a child entering kindergarten to be five years old before December 1, had been in effect since 1981. Thus, the Board, which consistently applied the policy and did not make any exceptions to it, properly exercised its discretion in refusing to permit T.C., whose birth date was December 1, to register for 1993-94 school year.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision.

BEFORE MARIE P. SIMONELLI, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner N.A.C., on behalf of her son, T.C., appeals respondents' denial of her request to register T.C. for kindergarten for the 1993-94 school year.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

N.A.C. filed a Petition on about June 9, 1993. On July 9, 1993, this matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for a hearing. The hearing was held on September 3, 1993. N.A.C. and N.C., T.C.'s parents, testified on T.C.'s behalf. Sam Peshkopia (Mr. Peshkopia), the principal of South End School, Maria Krause (Ms. Krause) and Roberta Dow (Ms. Dow), secretaries in the Superintendent's Office, Elaine Lucas (Ms. Lucas), a secretary at North End School, Barbara Hadaway (Ms. Hadaway), a secretary at South End School and John DeCesare (Mr. DeCesare), the Superintendent, testified on respondents' behalf.

FACTS

Having heard the witnesses and reviewed the Exhibits, I FIND the following FACTS:

In January 1993, N.A.C. telephoned Mr. DeCesare's office to obtain documents to register T.C. for kindergarten for the 1993-94 school year. N.A.C. spoke to Ms. Dow and gave Ms. Dow certain information, including T.C.'s birthdate of December 1, 1988. Ms. Dow placed that information into a file.

Two weeks later, Ms. Krause reviewed that information and determined that T.C. was not eligible to register for kindergarten because he did not meet the registration requirements set forth in the Policy Registration Requirements (the Registration Policy) of respondent Cedar Grove Board of Education (the Board).

The Registration Policy requires a child entering kindergarten to be five years old before December 1 (P-4: Registration Policy). This requirement has been in effect since at least March 24, 1981 (See: P-5). The Registration Policy has no provision for determining exceptions to this requirement.

Ms. Dow telephoned N.A.C. and advised her that she could not register T.C. for kindergarten because he was not born before December 1. N.C. then called Mr. DeCesare's office and requested to meet with Mr. DeCesare. Mr. DeCesare advised N.C. to attend a meeting of the Board on February 9, 1993. Mr. DeCesare also advised N.C. that the Registration Policy could only be waived for T.C. by a majority vote of the Board.

N.A.C. and N.C. attended the February 9, 1993 meeting and requested that they be permitted to register T.C. for kindergarten for the 1993-94 school year. N.A.C. and N.C. alleged that Mr. Peshkopia, Ms. Lucas and Ms. Hadaway had advised them that T.C. could register for kindergarten because the cut-off date was December 1. Despite this allegation, the Board determined that T.C. was not eligible to register for kindergarten because he was not born before December 1.

There was some discussion at the February 9, 1993 meeting about having T.C. tested by a Child Study Team (CST) to determine his fitness to enter kindergarten. T.C. was never evaluated.

N.A.C. and N.C. again appeared before the Board on April 6, 1993 and again presented their case. The Board determined, by consensus, that it would not waive the Registration Policy for T.C. (R-1 Minutes of Closed Conference Meeting of April 6, 1993).

N.A.C. and N.C. attended a third meeting of the Board on August 31, 1993. Although a presentation was made on T.C.'s behalf, the Board would not change its position.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:10-1 and N.J.S.A. 18A:11-1, the Board has the discretionary authority to govern and manage the schools in Cedar Grove. N.J.S.A. 18A:10-1 provides, in pertinent part:

> The schools of each school district shall be conducted, by and under the supervision of a board of education . . .

N.J.S.A. 18A:11-1 provides, in pertinent part:

> The board shall

> c. Make, amend and repeal rules, . . . for its own government and the transaction of its business and for the government and management of the public schools . . .
> d. Perform all acts and do all things, consistent with law and the rules of the state board, necessary for the lawful and proper conduct, equipment and maintenance of the public schools of the district.

In addition, under N.J.S.A. 18A:38-5, the Board is not required to admit a child under five years of age into kindergarten. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-5 provides, in pertinent part:

> No child under the age of five years shall be admitted to any public school, except such as may be provided pursuant to law for children of his age.

N.J.S.A. 18A:44-2 gives the Board the discretionary authority to admit a child under the age of five into kindergarten.

With respect to the establishment of a cut-off date for admission into kindergarten, N.J.S.A. 18A:38-6 gives the Board the discretionary authority, by a majority vote of all members of the Board, to establish a date other than October 1.

In order to determine whether or not the Board abused its discretionary authority under the above-mentioned statutes, it must be shown that the Board's refusal to waive the Registration Policy for T.C. was arbitrary, capricious, unreasonable or unlawful. N.A.C. claims that the Board's action was arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable because:

1.) The Board had made an exception in 1973 and permitted a child born on December 1 to register for kindergarten;

2.) The Board refused to have had T.C. tested by a CST to determine his fitness to enter kindergarten; and

3.) Mr. Peshkopia, Ms. Lucas, Ms. Hadaway and some teachers misinformed N.A.C. that the cut-off date was December 1.

In this case, the Board exercised its statutory discretionary authority and adopted a kindergarten registration policy consistent with N.J.S.A. 18A:38-6. The Registration Policy, which was in effect since at least March 24, 1981, provides clearly that a child entering kindergarten must be five years old before December 1.

Mr. DeCesare testified that, during his eight years as Superintendent, the Board consistently applied the Registration Policy and did not make any exceptions to it. Although N.A.C. alleged that the Board had made an exception in 1973, this was hearsay evidence. There also was no evidence of what the cut-off date was in 1973.

In addition, despite the discussion about having T.C. tested by a CST, the Board is not required to provide such testing. Shenkler v. Board of Education of the Borough of Hohokus, 1974 S.L.D. 772, 777-778.

Finally, there was conflicting testimony as to whether or not N.A.C. had been misinformed by Mr. Peshkopia, Ms. Hadaway, Ms. Lucas and some teachers that the cut-off date was December 1. Even if N.A.C. and N.C. did receive such misinformation, the Registration Policy, not the beliefs or opinions of staff members and teachers, governs the admission of children into kindergarten in Cedar Grove.

Although the Board had the discretionary authority to waive the Registration Policy for T.C. (who unfortunately was born a few hours too late), it choose not to do so. The Board's action, albeit obdurate, was not arbitrary, capricious, unreasonable or unlawful and it was supported by statutory authority.

Based upon the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that the Board properly exercised its discretion in refusing to permit T.C. to register for kindergarten for the 1993-94 school year.

ORDER

I, therefore, ORDER that N.A.C.'s Petition be and hereby is DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, 8th Floor West, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." PETITIONER,
V.	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF CEDAR GROVE, ESSEX COUNTY, AND THE SUPERINTENDENT OF SCHOOLS OF CEDAR GROVE,	DECISION
RESPONDENTS.

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Timely exceptions were filed by petitioner pursuant to the provisions of N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4, as were replies thereto by the Board.

In her exceptions, petitioner objects to the ALJ's rejection as hearsay of Exhibit P-14, a parent letter confirming that a child born on December 1, 1968 had been admitted to school in 1973, since she had been apprised at hearing that hearsay would be admissible. She further objects to the ALJ's having expected her to demonstrate what the Board's policy was at that time in view of the fact that the Board destroys prior policies upon their being superseded by new or revised policies. Finally, she urges that review of the videotape of pertinent Board meetings will show the superintendent to have stated that the district's December 1 cut-off date extends back to the early part of the century.

In reply, the Board notes that while hearsay may be admissible, it must be supported by some legally competent evidence pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-15.5, so that the ALJ was correct to assign P-14 no significant weight. Moreover, the Board contends, even if P-14 were to be accepted arguendo, the fact that a prior exception may once have been made is not in itself sufficient to demonstrate that the Board acted arbitrarily in exercising the discretion granted it by law and thus was entitled to a presumption of correctness. Finally, the Board objects to the ALJ's characterization of its action as "obdurate," because such a characterization is both unwarranted and legally irrelevant, and asks the Commissioner to affirm the ALJ without accepting this characterization.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that the Board's decision in this matter was fully within its discretionary authority and not arbitrary, unreasonable or otherwise improper so as to render it susceptible to overturning by the Commissioner.

As noted by the ALJ, it is a board's prerogative not to grant exceptions to the district's cut-off date for entry into kindergarten; indeed, many boards elect not to do so for the very reasons given by the Board herein. Nor was petitioner's son subjected to disparate treatment; the superintendent testified that no exceptions to the relevant district policy had been made within his memory, and the only evidence proffered of any possible prior exception was Exhibit P-14, which, even taken arguendo at full weight, demonstrates only that one child, who was born on December 1, 1968 and therefore did not meet the cut-off date, attended school in 1973, not that he did so with the Board's specific knowledge or consent. Finally, while it is unfortunate that verbal identification of the district's cut-off date as

"December 1" did not convey to petitioner the actual effect of the relevant policy on her child, the fact remains that the formal written policy, which must control herein, clearly states that to enter kindergarten a child must be five years old before December 1.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law dismissing the Petition of Appeal is affirmed for the reasons expressed therein as further explicated above.*

* In response to the Board's reply exceptions, the Commissioner notes that, to the extent that the ALJ's characterization of the Board's position as "obdurate" infers anything more than maintenance of its considered determination not to deviate from policy in the face of continuing challenges by petitioner and her supporters, that characterization appears unwarranted by the record herein.

Petitioner, cafeteria manager whose position as director of food services was abolished, challenged said abolition and her demotion as arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable.

In light of the record and testimony of witnesses, ALJ found petitioner failed to carry her burden of proof. BEFORE STEPHEN G. WEISS, ALJ:

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This contested matter was transmitted by the Department of Education to the Office of Administrative Law in August 1990 following the filing of a verified petition of appeal by Lucille Nuber alleging that the respondent State-operated School District of Jersey City had acted in an arbitrary and capricious manner in May 1990 when it abolished her position as the director of food service and appointed her to a cafeteria manager position at a substantially reduced salary.*

Following the transmittal of the case file, I conducted a telephone prehearing conference at which counsel agreed that the following issue was to be resolved: "Was the respondent's decision not to hire petitioner for the reorganized central administrative and supervisory staff arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable and, if so, what shall the remedy be?" A hearing originally scheduled for May 1991 was twice adjourned as the result either of illness or the unavailability of witnesses. The case ultimately was heard on June 14, 1993, posthearing briefs were filed and the record was closed on August 30, 1993.

TESTIMONY

A. Stipulation of Facts

At the outset of the hearing, counsel entered into a joint stipulation of facts to which three separate documents were attached (Exhibit J-1). These stipulated facts are as follows:

1. Petitioner was initially hired by the Jersey City Board of Education on January 5, 1966, when she was appointed to the position of food service worker on a provisional basis, pending examination by Civil Service.

2. Petitioner was appointed to the position of food service worker as a permanent appointment, following certification by Civil Service, on August 1, 1969.

3. Thereafter, petitioner received permanent appointment to the position of senior food service worker on October 16, 1971, followed by permanent appointment to the position of cafeteria manager on November 1, 1977.

4. Petitioner was appointed on a permanent Civil Service basis to the position of director of food service on February 18, 1980. This position was abolished by the Jersey City Board of Education on August 27, 1981, and petitioner was placed, through demotional rights to her previous permanent position of cafeteria manager as of October 11, 1981.

5. On September 1, 1985, the Jersey City Board of Education again appointed petitioner on a permanent Civil Service basis to the position of director of food service.

6. On October 4, 1989, the Jersey City Board of Education was removed and a State-operated school district was established by Administrative Order issued by the New Jersey State Board of Education. The State Board's Decision and Order are published at 13 N.J.A.R. 1, 89 (1989).

7. By memorandum dated December 13, 1989, the State District Superintendent of Schools notified the noninstructional supervisory and administrative staff in the central office that their positions would be abolished pursuant to statute upon the reorganization of central office and that evaluation of their performance would be conducted over the next few months. A copy of the memorandum is appended as Exhibit "A."

8. The evaluation of petitioner was issued on March 27, 1990. A copy of the evaluation is appended as Exhibit "B."

9. Petitioner was advised, in the cover letter of March 27, 1990 transmitting her evaluation, that she could submit written comments and could also contact the office of Victor Demming, State Business Administrator, for an appointment to discuss the evaluation. No written comments were submitted.

10. By letter dated April 4, 1990, petitioner was advised that her current position was abolished by operation of N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-44. The letter further advised petitioner that she was entitled to claim the position of cafeteria manager. Petitioner was appointed to the position of cafeteria manager, effective June 4, 1990.

11. The New Jersey Department of Personnel has advised, by letter dated June 7, 1990, that petitioner's appointment as cafeteria manager is a permanent appointment with no loss in Civil Service status or tenure. A copy of the letter of June 7, 1990 is appended as Exhibit "C."

12. Petitioner retired from employment on August 1, 1990.

B. Testimony for Petitioner

Pursuant to the prehearing order Nuber has the burden of proof and proceeded first. She testified to her employment history in the school district and related the activities that she carried out as director of food service under the supervision of Jay Roggenstein, the administrative assistant/business operations. Nuber's primary duties included preparation of menus and review of applications for either free or reduced priced meals. She was also involved in interviewing and hiring cafeteria workers and was responsible for shifting cafeteria workers between schools to assure that all sites were covered adequately on a daily basis.

Nuber then identified a written performance evaluation which had been prepared by Dr. Emery J. Konick, Jr., a State consultant, in connection with an evaluation of noninstructional central staff which he conducted in 1989-90 pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-44 (Exhibit B to Exhibit J-1). Although Nuber agreed with Konick's observation in the "leadership" section of that evaluation that she spent a good deal of time in her office rather than at the various school cafeteria sites, she observed that in Roggenstein's evaluation of her performance for the 1988-89 school year, her superior concluded that she was a "satisfactory" employee and in none of the several evaluation areas was she rated as "needing improvement" (Exhibit P-1).

On cross-examination, Nuber agreed that menus she prepared were "faxed" on a regular basis to Trenton for State approval. However, she denied this procedure was necessitated by any concern about lack of nutrition in the menus developed by her or under her supervision.

C. Testimony for Respondent

The respondent's sole witness, Dr. Konick, holds a master's degree from Seton Hall and a doctorate from Rutgers University and for several years was the assistant superintendent for business for the Woodbridge Township Board of Education. He was hired by the Department of Education in 1989 to review the job performance of persons employed in Jersey City's food service department, including Nuber (Exhibit A to Exhibit J-1).* To that end he reviewed various documents, conducted several interviews and authored the March 1990 evaluation report which, in part, criticized Nuber and concluded that her performance in the area of management and supervision was unsatisfactory (Exhibit B to Exhibit J-1).

As part of his evaluation Konick took into account a portion of the "Level III Report" of the Jersey City School District issued by the Department of Education preparatory to the State takeover. An excerpt from that Report contained generally negative comments regarding the operation of the food service department and commented that the program lacked direction and was fragmented (Exhibit R-1) According to the Report, the school district, "did not understand that the duties of the position [of director of food service] were not the focus of the concern, but rather that [Nuber's] qualifications to handle the responsibilities of a large, multi-site child nutrition program were in question."

Konick went on to note in his own evaluation report that Nuber did not maintain proper contact with her managers since she did not go to the cafeterias often enough to "sit on top of" various situations there. Konick observed that even though Roggenstein had no prior food service experience, it had become necessary to appoint him to oversee Nuber's activities. This appointment, according to Konick, should not have been needed had Nuber properly exercised the leadership role expected of her as director. Konick also was disturbed by the information that menus had to be faxed to Trenton for approval. He considered the need for this procedure to be unusual and a further indication of a problem in supervision.

*The background circumstances leading up to the takeover and the dire need for such remedial action is described in detail by Judge Springer in his initial decision in McCarroll v. Bd.of Ed. of Jersey City, decided July 26, 1989, aff'd by the Assistant Commissioner of Educ., August 31, 1989, aff'd State Board of Educ., October 4, 1989, 13 N.J.A.R. 1 (1989).

Konick made reference in his evaluation to the fact that only recently cafeteria workers had begun to communicate directly with their managers rather than continue to take their problems to the union shop steward. According to Konick, this new development, which was encouraging, was in contrast to what had been going on previously. His clear implication was that Nuber had let a poor situation develop, and only recently was it undergoing a change for the better.

The witness also concluded from his review, including speaking with Nuber, that she did not have sufficient involvement with the delivery of food services at the elementary schools. Even though Nuber's job description required her to do so, she apparently did not prepare the elementary school menus, leaving that task to outside vendors from whom the food was purchased (Exhibit R-2). Accordingly, based upon his overall review, Konick found Nuber's performance as director of food service to be unsatisfactory and he recommended that the department be reorganized. As a result, Nuber's position was abolished and effectively she was "demoted" to the position of cafeteria manager (Exhibit C to Exhibit J-1).

On cross-examination, Konick readily agreed that his interview with Nuber was amicable and he did not express any of his criticisms to her directly. He also agreed that various comments in the Level III Report had to do with activities that took place when Nuber was not in charge of the food services area. In particular, on direct examination Konick made reference to an audit which found an overclaim of more than $700,000. This, however, occurred at a time when Nuber was not in any responsible position. Konick also conceded that although the food service department's budget was often in deficit, he could not say whether the deficit had increased or decreased during Nuber's tenure or in comparison to previous years.

Finally, with respect to his criticism that in one of the high schools for which Nuber had responsibility the number of lunches sold was remarkably low (50 to 100 in a school with 1,200 pupils), Konick conceded he did not know how many students were receiving free meals. However, he insisted that substantially more "marketing" activities could have taken place in order to interest students and/or their families in purchasing lunch, such as meeting with PTA groups, establishing a salad bar and/or sending flyers home.

DISCUSSION

Based upon my review and consideration of the stipulated facts and the testimony, I believe that petitioner has failed to satisfy her burden to prove by a preponderance of the credible evidence that the abolition of her position as director of food service and her consequent demotion to cafeteria manager was arbitrary, capricious, unreasonable or otherwise unfair. To the contrary, N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-44(c) vested broad discretion in the State to review the performance of noninstructional staff members such as Nuber and to make reasoned judgments concerning that performance as part of an overall evaluation of the staffing needs of the reorganized district. It is not within my province to substitute my own judgment for that of the State even where I might disagree, provided the determination, as here, was free of any taint.

A review of the evaluation report submitted by Konick, as supplemented by his testimony, contains ample support for his conclusion that the food service department should be reorganized which led, of course, to petitioner's demotion. Nuber, as director, was the person responsible for the overall performance and she therefore must bear responsibility for the major problems found by Konick. While one might disagree with Konick's perceptions linking Nuber to the several problems he found, I cannot say that his ultimate conclusion in light of the situation was so arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable as to justify recommending that it be rejected. As noted above, it was Nuber's burden to demonstrate by a preponderance of the credible evidence that the decision not to offer her a position on the reorganized central supervisory and administrative staff was arbitrary, capricious and/or unreasonable. She failed to carry that burden and her verified petition of appeal must therefore be DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, 8th Floor West, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Board appealed General Fund tax levy reductions in the amount of $200,000 made by governing body following voter rejection of proposed budget on April 20, 1993.

Upon review of the appeal herein to determine whether Board demonstrated that restoration of specific line item reductions was necessary in order to provide a thorough and efficient system of education in the district, Commissioner determined to restore $153,500 for a total General Fund tax levy of $6,925,794 for 1993-94 school purposes.

MAYOR AND COUNCIL OF THE BOROUGH OF BUTLER, BERGEN COUNTY,

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

This matter was opened before the Commissioner by the filing of a Petition of Appeal on June 15, 1993 from the Board of Education of the Borough of Butler (Board) appealing the reduction in the 1993-94 budget imposed by the Mayor and Council of the Borough of Butler (Borough) pursuant to the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37. The aforesaid reduction consisted of a $200,000 reduction in the General Fund tax levy. As a result of such reduction, the amount in dispute before the Commissioner is summarized below:

Proposed Tax Levy Adopted By Board of Education		Amount of Tax Levy Certified by Governing Bodies
General Fund	$6,972,294	General Fund	$6,772,294
Amount of Reduction By Governing Bodies		Amount of Reduction in Dispute
General Fund	$200,000	General Fund	$200,000

On July 1, 1993 the Borough filed its Answer to the Petition of Appeal pursuant to the provisions of N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.6 and 7.7. On July 23, 1993 the Board filed its written submission in support of the Petition of Appeal and the Borough filed its Position Statement on July 27, 1993. The Board filed a Response on August 6, 1993 and no other pages were filed thus closing the official record.

STANDARD OF REVIEW

In rendering judgment relative to budgetary appeals, the Commissioner notes that the Constitution of the State of New Jersey requires the Legislature to provide for a thorough and efficient system of education. The Legislature by way of statutory scheme has delegated the responsibility for providing such thorough and efficient system to local boards of education. Additionally, the Legislature pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9, 22-14, 22-17 and 22-37 has authorized the Commissioner of Education to review and decide appeals by boards of education seeking restoration of budgetary reductions imposed by local governing bodies. (See also Board of Education of East Brunswick Township v. Township Council of East Brunswick, 48 N.J. 94 (1966) and Board of Education of Deptford Township v. Mayor and Council of Deptford Township, 116 N.J. 305 (1989).)

In reviewing such appeals the Commissioner must determine whether a district board of education has demonstrated that the amount by which a specific line item reduction imposed by the governing body is necessary for the provision of a thorough and efficient system of education.

In the instant matter, the Borough, upon defeat of the 1993-94 school budget by the voters of the district, did confer with the Board as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37 and established a tax levy to be used for school purposes. The aforesaid tax levy was established by the passage of Resolution R93-47 on May 12, 1993 setting forth the following reductions:

$ 14,000	Difference on salary for Aaron Decker Principal
14,500	Agreed upon by Dr. Stranzl
64,000	Science and Language Teachers' Salaries
32,000	Guidance Counselor
32,000	Psychological Personnel
9,500	Social Security for New Personnel
34,000	Health Benefits for New Personnel
$200,000

Subsequently, on July 13, 1993, the Borough, by way of Resolution 1993-67, amended the resolution of May 12, 1993 to include the following statement of reasons to accompany the reductions imposed by its earlier resolution:

> 1. $14,000.00 reduction in salary of principal of Aaron Decker School. The principal of the Aaron Decker School will retire on September 1, 1993. This is only three months into the new budget year. During the budget hearings Dr. Stranzl, upon questioning by the council, testified that approximately $14,000.00 could be reduced as a result of the salary decrease which would be paid to a new incoming principal with less seniority.
>
> 2. $14,500.00. During the budget hearings, Dr. Stranzl testified that an amount of $14,500.00 could be reduced from the budget in various places not including the various reductions otherwise made by the Mayor and Council.
> 3. $64,000.00 for new science and language teachers' salaries. School Board budget included an additional science teacher and an additional foreign language teacher. Testimony at the budget hearings established that there is no anticipated increase in the overall student body at the Butler High School. Since there is no anticipated increase in the overall student body, additional needs for science and foreign language classes should be offset by decreased demand in other subject areas. During the hearing the Mayor and Council requested statistics on predicted class sizes in these various areas. They were informed that these figures were not available. Additional demands in these subject areas should be met through a restructuring of existing positions.

4. $34,000.00 reduction due to health benefits for the eliminated positions. Testimony given during the budget hearings established that $34,000.00 in health benefits would be saved by eliminating the new positions. It is believed that an additional $9,500.00 will be saved by the elimination of the need to pay Social Security Tax for these positions.

5. $22,855.00 reduction by continuing to have the middle school guidance counselor serve in a part-time capacity. The budget adopted by the Board of Education provided for increasing the Guidance position in the middle school from a part-time position to a full time position. The Council resolution incorrectly reduced the budget by $32,000.00, but it was the intent to reduce it by $22,855.00. It was noted that the middle school has an unusually high number of special education teachers which should be able to handle special needs of children without an increase in guidance counseling staff.

6. $40,000 reduction by elimination of a full-time psychologist position for the child study team. The budget adopted by the Butler Board of Education provided for $40,000.00 for the additional of a full time psychologist for the child study team. The resolution adopted by the Mayor and Council stated a $32,000.00 reduction for this budgeted item, this item should have been reduced by $40,000.00. Testimony given during the budget hearing was that this position was necessary because it had become more cost effective to hire a full time psychologist than it had been to use consulting psychologists. Were this the case there should have been a corresponding reduction in the amount budgeted for professional services. This was apparently not the case. Testimony during the budget hearing was that there would be the need for approximately ten additional reports from the number of reports required in the previous budget year. It was also stated that consulting reports cost between $300.00 and $500.00. If, in fact, it was more cost effective to hire a full time psychologist for the child study team, there should have been a reduction in the professional services area of the budget.

Positions of the Parties

In setting forth the respective positions of the parties, it should be noted that neither the Borough nor the Board identify the reductions by specific line item number but only by the position or general category from which the reduction is to come.

Initially, it is to be noted that the Board argues that the entire amount of reduction should be restored in that it alleges that the Borough has failed to meet the requirements of N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.2(b)(4) and the findings of the New Jersey Supreme Court in Deptford, supra, to set forth its reasons for the reductions imposed at the time such reductions are made. The Board contends that by virtue of such failure the Borough demonstrated that its actions were not consistent with the legal responsibility to review the defeated budget for its sufficiency in providing a thorough and efficient system of education but were, in fact, arbitrary and capricious. The Board points out as proof of its contention that the original resolution of the Borough merely identified areas of reduction without written reasons and only added such written reasons with its amended resolution.

In response to the Board's general contention of arbitrary action, the Borough indicates that the specific reasons for the reductions were clearly articulated by its members at the three hearings between the two bodies and that its July 13, 1993 amending resolution provided the written statement of reasons required by law. It contends that the written reasons are merely a memorialization of the verbal reasons provided at the meetings between the bodies.

Principal's Salary	$14,000

It is the Board's contention that the Principal's Salary account identified by the Borough cannot be reduced even though one of its principals was retiring and would be replaced at a lower salary. The Board contends that the saving of $13,793 on the new principal's annual salary will be offset by the fact that the retiring principal will still be paid for July and August due to a September retirement and that the contractual obligation to pay $6,879.16 in unused vacation days and unused sick time will more than offset any possible savings in the difference between the salary of the new and old principals.

The Borough offers no reason for its reduction in this area other than its perception that savings can be realized by virtue of the difference in salary of the new principal as opposed to the retiring principal.

Unspecified	$14,500

The Board by way of affidavit of its superintendent, Dr. Frank J. Stranzl, points out that the $14,500 figure to which the Borough includes in its reduction is an overall amount offered by him as a possible compromise by which the Board could possibly reduce its overall budget in order to reach a compromise settlement. Dr. Stranzl alleges that said offer was never an agreement between the parties.

Teachers' Salaries	$64,000

The amount of reduction here represents two new positions, one in science and one in foreign language. These two positions are justified by the Board by virtue of the fact that there is increased interest in both foreign language and science. The Board argues that 102 additional students have requested foreign language in their schedules for 1993-94 and that it intends to introduce foreign language study in grades 7 and 8 so that it may offer a fifth year of foreign language in the future.

Further, the Board argues the necessity for the additional science, teacher due to state mandated additional requirements in science, as well as increased interest on the part of parents and students in advanced science programs.

The Borough contends that the two new positions are unjustified due to the absence of increased enrollment. It further concluded, based upon its review of the 1992-93 school year schedule attached to its Position Statement as Exhibit D, that the district's business education and industrial arts classes were under utilized and therefore it recommended that the Board reconfigure its staff to accommodate the changes in student interest.

Health Benefits New Personnel	$34,000

The Board argues that it has no idea as to how the Borough arrived at its figure of $34,000 in health benefits. It points out that it pays a maximum of $9,000 per year for current personnel. Assuming that the figure cited by the Borough includes both requested new science teachers and a proposed increase in guidance, such amount would only be $27,000, not the $34,000 reduction by the Borough.

The Borough rests its position based upon a determination that four new positions would be eliminated by its reduction and each such position would require $8,400 per employee.

Account	Reduction
Guidance Counselor	$32,000

This amount represents increasing the guidance position at the district's middle school from part time to full time. The Board argues that it has no idea how the Borough arrived at its $32,000 figure since the additional cost represents only an increase of $22,855.

It is the Board's contention that the need for guidance services has increased tremendously over the years and that its middle school is the only one in the area which does not have a full-time guidance counselor. The Board contends that 34% of its students are transient and often arrive without necessary records and test scores which have to be upgraded and are beyond the capacity of a part-time counselor. Further, the Board argues that its policy of bringing back special needs students to the district for mainstreaming and the increasing number of dysfunctional families have placed a further strain on guidance services.

The Borough argues that the additional burden of mainstreaming can be handled by the 2.5 social workers currently employed by the Board. It further seeks to buttress its position in this regard by citing an alleged Department of Education figure indicating a state-wide average of 1 social worker for every 1,046 students, thus indicating that Butler has more than twice the number of the state-wide average.

Psychological Position	$32,000

The amount of reduction here represents an additional psychologist's position requested by the Board. The Board agrues that 20% of its pupils are classified and that it is justified in increasing its child study team by this position.

It is the Board's contention that in the past the additional burdens placed upon its psychological services have been met through the hiring of consultants and thus it is more cost effective to increase its psychological services through an additional position.

In addition, the Board contends that a county-wide survey indicates the need for the additional position in order to permit the implementation of a corrective action plan for handicapped pupils which includes psychological counseling.

The Borough agrues that statistics of the Department of Education indicates that the 20% classification rate of Butler pupils is the highest of any district in its district factor group, with the average being 11.7%. The Borough points out that this disparity may indicate over utilization of classification. Even conceding the necessity for so many classified pupils, the Borough contends that current staffing of the district's special education staffing already exceeds the state-wide averages for staffing without the new position.

Further, the Borough points out that although the district argues for this position as a means of reducing consultant services, it is unable to point out any savings that have been achieved through the creation of this position.

Account	Reduction
Social Security for New Personnel	$9,500

The Board points out and the Borough concedes that no Social Security payments are made by the Board since said costs are assumed by the State.

COMMISSIONER'S DECISION

Initially, the Commissioner concludes that the Board has raised a strong argument relative to the deficiencies in the Borough's failure to provide a written statement of reasons at the time the reductions were originally made and its subsequent attempt to rectify said deficiency by adoption of an amendatory resolution two months later. Unquestionably such actions, in addition to the Borough's seemingly haphazard delineation of reasons without identifying specific line items, arriving at incorrect figures and recommending reductions in such areas as social security benefits when such benefits are not the responsibility of the Board, permit the Commissioner pursuant to Deptford, supra, to invoke a heavy presumption against the educational validity of the Borough's actions. The Commissioner's determinations in that regard are set forth below:

Principal's Salary	$14,000

The Board has met its burden of demonstrating that its obligations under its contract with its administrators to pay for unused vacation and sick days more than offset the savings to be realized by hiring a new principal at a lower salary than the retiring principal. Therefore, the Commissioner directs that $14,000 be restored.

Teacher's Salaries	$64,000

The need for the two new positions requested by the Board, one each in science and foreign language, has been demonstrated to the Commissioner's satisfaction. While the Borough concedes the need for these positions, its recommended solution that the new positions be financed by virtue of the elimination of positions in the area of industrial arts and business education is not, as the Board points out, automatically feasible in a comprehensive high school which requires the meeting of the needs of a diverse student body. The Board, however, should be reviewing the totality of its program for purposes of eliminating programs and courses no longer serving student needs. In light of the foregoing, the Commissioner directs the restoration of $64,000 to finance additional teachers in science and foreign language.

Guidance Counselor	$32,000

Initially, it should be pointed out that the Borough concedes that the amount of reduction in this item should be $22,855 since the increase requested by the Board was for an increase in guidance services at its middle school from part time to full time.

After carefully weighing the arguments presented by both parties in this matter, the Commissioner concludes that the presence of full-time guidance services in a middle school are a necessary concomitant of a thorough and efficient system of education. This conclusion is buttressed by the arguments presented by the Board as to the increasing need in our society to provide early assistance to children coming from dysfunctional families. The $32,000 reduced by the Borough is restored.

Psychologist's Position	$32,000

The Commissioner has carefully considered the arguments presented by the Board particularly those which set forth a contention of providing services at a lesser cost through the establishment of this position and thus the reduction of the need for as much in the way of consultant services.

Based upon such consideration, the Commissioner finds merit in the Borough's argument that the Board has failed to demonstrate the savings which its contends this position would afford and likewise finds little merit in the Board's argument that these savings are reflected in the fact that the appropriation for consultant services has not risen based upon the 1992-93 figure. Even allowing for a natural increase for inflation, the creation of a $40,000 position should have been reflected in some reduction in the consultant services account.

In light of the foregoing, the Commissioner sustains the reduction of $32,000 for the position of an additional psychologist with the caveat that the Board should be able to fund such a position with the difference of the $8,000 remaining in this account and the effectuation of true savings in the area of consultant services.

Health Benefits	$34,000

The $34,000 reduction for health benefits imposed by the Borough are directed to be restored. The Commissioner reaches such determination based upon the restoration of the two additional teachers, the increase in the middle school guidance counselor from part time to full time and the right of the Board to fund the psychologist's position by other means.

Social Security Benefits	$9,500

Since the Board correctly points out that it does not pay social security for the new personnel and the Borough acknowledges its error, the $9,500 reduction is restored.

Account	Reduction
Unspecified	$14,500

While Dr. Stranzl points out that no agreement was reached on his proposed compromise settlement with the Borough, the Commissioner is obligated to take into consideration the interests of the taxpayers of the district once she has become assured of the sufficiency of funds to provide a thorough and efficient system of education. It must be presumed, therefore, given the equal responsibility of the superintendent and the Board to likewise assure a sufficient amount to provide a thorough and efficient education that the offer of a $14,500 across-the-board reduction could be absorbed without injury to the constitutional mandate.

In light of the foregoing, the Commissioner directs that the $14,500 across-the-board reduction as tentatively offered by the superintendent be sustained.

SUMMARY

Account	Sustained	Restored
Principal's Salary	$ 0	$ 14,000
Unspecified	14,500	0
Teachers Salaries	0	64,000
Guidance Counselor	0	32,000
Psychologist	32,000	0
Health Benefits	0	34,000
Social Security	0	$ 9,500
TOTALS	$46,500	$153,500

In light of the foregoing, the Commissioner directs the Morris County Board of Taxation to strike an additional General Fund tax levy of $153,500 for the Butler Public Schools to be used for school purposes in the 1993-94 school year so that the total 1993-94 General Fund tax levy shall be $6,925,794.

SYNOPSIS

Board appealed General Fund tax levy reductions in the amount of $183,832 made by governing body following voter rejection of proposed budget on April 20, 1993.

Upon review of the appeal herein to determine whether Board demonstrated that restoration of specific line item reductions was necessary in order to provide a thorough and efficient system of education in the district, Commissioner determined to restore $183,832 for a total General Fund tax levy of $7,026,436 for 1993-94 school purposes.

For Respondent, Annemarie Williams, Esq. (Gilmore & Monahan)

This matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education on May 26, 1993 when the Board of Education of Stafford Township (Board) filed a Petition of Appeal against the Mayor and Council of Stafford Township (Council) seeking restoration of $183,832 reduced from the 1993-94 general fund tax levy appropriation on the grounds of necessity for a thorough and efficient education. Council filed its Answer on July 12, 1993. Council filed its written position statement on August 3, 1993 and the Board's written position and reply were filed on August 5 and August 18, 1993 respectively. Thereafter the record of this matter was closed on August 25, 1993 after expiration of the time for submission of summations. The relevant facts not deemed to be in dispute are as follows:

- The Board adopted a school budget for the 1993-94 school year to be raised by local taxation including $7,026,436 in current expense and $99,528 in capital outlay.

- The voters rejected the total budget at the annual school election held on April 20, 1993.

- On May 3, 1993 Board and Council met to determine what reduction, if any, in the school budget.

- At the commencement of the meeting, the Superintendent of Schools caused the following memorandum to be distributed to the Council and the Board members present:

> The purpose of this meeting tonight is to discuss the Stafford Township School District budget which was defeated by the electorate on April 20, 1993 by 28 votes, 575 to 547. Although the budget presented to the public reflected a $200,000 decrease from the previous school year's budget it did reflect a 3¢ tax increase from 69¢ to 72¢.
>
> As a matter of review, I would like to point out the following:

Budget	Board of Education Appropriation	Tax Rate
1990 - $10.4 million	$ 420,000	56¢
1991 - $12.1 million	$ 993,000	61¢
1992 - $11.9 million	$ 670,000	69¢
1993 - $11.7 million	-	72¢
Total	$2,083,000

> Over the past three years the Board of Education has used more than $2 million from surplus to help relieve the burden on the taxpayer and that money is no longer there due to the QEA laws which prohibit school districts from having more than 3% surplus (that figure has recently changed to 7.5%.) Our defeated budget reflected a figure that equaled our newly established state budget cap. Every budget that is submitted under the QEA cap will lose some of the state aid next year; for every dollar we reduce, the state will cut $1.43 in state aid next year.

In order to arrive at $11.7 million budget figure the Stafford Township Board of Education recommended the following reductions:

- Four less teachers (speech, auditorily handicapped, 3rd grade at Oxycoccus, and 1st grade at McKinley.)

- Four less district-wide custodial positions.

- The elimination of summer school and summer curriculum work for teachers.

The Mayor and I had a preliminary meeting last week to review the defeated budget and discuss modifications. The School Board has been requested to cut an additional $180,000.00 which will make the tax rate 70¢ or an increase of one cent.

As the educational leader of this community, I must make very difficult recommendations to the Board of Education which will reduce the budget by $180,000.00 but in turn will not devastate the educational programs that we have worked so hard and so long to maintain. Irrespective of the cuts mentioned a short while ago I can only say that I, along with Mr. Mento and the members of the Board of Education, have studied this budget from top to bottom, line item by line item, and we now must focus our attention on some of the areas that are unique to our school system which will decrease additional personnel and increase class size. Areas of potential cuts include:

Transportation - Revise the bus routes for 1993-94 adding more time between current runs and eliminate some existing bus runs which will decrease personnel and also the need to purchase one or two new buses which was budgeted at $123,000. In order to accommodate this, the current starting and ending times of all schools will be affected.

Personnel - The Board of Education will be prepared to discuss the need of a district-wide nurse's assistant, a district-wide science teacher, and an adaptive physical education teacher.

Class Size - It will be recommended that the sixth grade and fifth grade reduce the number of sections by one, thus increasing size in the fifth grade from 20.7 to 24.1 per and in sixth grade from 22.8 to 26.6 per.

These additional cuts may affect four teachers and three support staff members.

- At the same meeting, Council adopted a resolution reducing the Board's current expense appropriation from $7,026,436 to $6,842,604 which resulted in a general fund local tax levy reduction of $183,832 for the 1993-94 school year.

- The reduced tax levy was certified by Council to the Ocean County Board of Taxation on May 4, 1993.

- Attached to Council's Answer and made part of its tax levy certification as revised Schedule "A," are the following recommended current expense line item reductions:

Line Item	From	To	Amount of Reduction
156 Grade 1-5 Teachers	$2,227,723	$2,139,723	$ 88,000
506 Other Employee Benefits	$1,819,240	$1,806,240	13,000
560 School Buses - Regional	$ 123,000	$ 40,168	82,832
		Total Reduction	$183,832

The Commissioner observes that Council has presented no statement of specific reasons for each of the recommended current expense line item economies listed above, but rather, as indicated in its written position statement of August 3, 1993, Council adopted as its own statements made in the Superintendent's memorandum of May 3, 1993, ante, as its reasons for making such reductions.

The Board in its response to Council's position statement rejects Council's effort to incorporate such statements made by the Superintendent as being valid or in compliance with the provisions of N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.2(b)4 and N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.7(a)2. More specifically, the Board in its reply argues that:

> The reason for the omission is clear, the governing body had no supporting reasons as it merely established a number and left it to the Board of Education to implement the reduction. Such a procedure is contrary to the statutory scheme for a defeated budget in a Type II District. the fact that Dr. Buyarski attempted, on behalf of the Petitioner, to determine whether the budget could absorb the predetermined reduction is nothing more than a good faith effort to resolve the budget dilemma and can certainly not be adopted by the municipality as its position. (Board's Reply, at p. 2)

STANDARD OF REVIEW

In rendering judgment relative to budgetary appeals, the Commissioner notes that the Constitution of the State of New Jersey requires the Legislature to provide for a thorough and efficient system of education. The Legislature by way of statutory scheme has delegated the responsibility for providing such thorough and efficient system to local boards of education. Additionally, the Legislature pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9, 22-14, 22-17 and 22-37 has authorized the Commissioner of Education to review and decide appeals by boards of education seeking restoration of budgetary reductions imposed by local governing bodies. (See also Board of Education of East Brunswick Township v. Township Council of East Brunswick, 48 N.J. 94 (1966) and Board of Education of Deptford Township v. Mayor and Council of Deptford Township, 116 N.J. 305 (1989).)

In reviewing such appeals the Commissioner must determine whether a district board of education has demonstrated that the amount by which a specific line item reduction imposed by the governing body is necessary for the provision of a thorough and efficient system of education.

Mindful, then, of the balance to be applied in her standard of review, the Commissioner makes the following determination with respect to the reduction in the current expense tax levy effectuated by the Council.

Initially, the Commissioner will review those respective positions of the parties regarding whether or not the Council may rely on the Superintendent's memorandum of May 3, 1993 as satisfying the mandatory requirements of N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.2(b)4 and N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.7(a)2. In this regard, the Commissioner finds the language laid down by the Court in East Brunswick, supra, as being dispositive wherein the Court stated in pertinent part:

> The governing body may, of course, seek to effect savings which will not impair the educational process. But its determinations must be independent ones properly related to educational considerations rather than voter reactions. In every step, it must act conscientiously, reasonably and with full regard for the State's educational standards and its own obligation to fix a sum sufficient to provide a system of local schools which may fairly be considered thorough and efficient in view of the makeup of the community. [East Brunswick, at 105-106.]

The Commissioner, upon review of the Superintendent's memorandum of May 3, 1993, supra, cannot agree that such statements contained therein, which, as a matter of fact, were never formally adopted by the Board, can, by any stretch of imagination, be construed as being appropriate to be considered as independent reasons upon which Council arrived in making its current expense tax levy reduction of $183,832. The Commissioner so holds.

Council's failure to independently arrive at specific reasons for its line reductions, however, does not automatically result in a full restoration of the current expense line item reductions controverted herein. Such remedy is too extreme and shall not prevent the Commissioner from complying with the constitutional and statutory responsibilities of her office as laid down by the Court in Board of Education of the Township of Deptford v. Mayor and Council of the Township of Deptford, 116 N.J. 305 (1989)

In addressing this issue the Court held in pertinent part > if the municipality fails to submit reasons contemporaneously with its certification of budget cuts, the Commissioner of Education in the course of an ensuing appeal is entitled to invoke a heavy presumption against the educational validity of the proposed budget cuts. Hence, the greater the delay in the submission of detailed reasons in support of such cuts, the stronger will be the presumption against their validity and the heavier will be the municipality's burden on appeal to establish the validity of the reduced budget. In that posture, the Commissioner will be entitled initially to presume that such cuts have been made purely for extra-educational reasons or for political expediency without specific cognizance taken of their educational effects.

Line Items	Reduction
156 - Teachers (Grades 1-5)	$88,000
506 - Other Employee Benefits	$13,000

The Board argues that the recommended reductions imposed by Council in the above-referenced line items would further exacerbate those reductions in teaching staff and custodial personnel it had previously made prior to the adoption of its 1993-94 budget request. At that time, the Board budgeted for three less teachers and eliminated four custodial positions. The Board maintains that Council's reductions herein would require the abolishment of three more teaching positions which could not be accomplished without compromising its mandate to provide a thorough and efficient program of education for its pupils. Similarly, the Board points out that the employee benefits which attach to these positions are mandated by law and cannot be eliminated. (See Superintendent's Memorandum of May 3, 1992, supra, and Board's Position Statement, at pp. 2-3)

The Commissioner finds and determines that the $88,000 budgeted for teachers' salaries (#156) and the $13,000 for other employee benefits (#506) must be restored to the current expense tax levy in order to provide stability in its education program for the 1993-94 school year and further curtailment of its educational programs. Therefore, the respective reductions of $88,000 and $13,000 made by Council in line items #156 and #506 are directed to be restored.

560 - School Buses	$82,832

The Board argues that three of its school buses were scheduled to go off line by virtue of age for the 1993-94 school year. These buses were to be replaced by three new school buses. The line item reduction of $82,832 will be necessary for the replacement of one of the three school buses in question. Without restoration of this amount the Board maintains that it will be unable to provide the minimum number of school buses required to transport its pupils to and from school. The Board points out that it provides busing for more than 95% of its pupils for safety reasons because of a lack of sidewalks within the geographical area of the three public schools it operates in Stafford Township. Moreover, the need for pupil transportation had been required by Board policy by virtue of the fact that all three schools are in close proximity to the heavily traveled highways of Routes #9 and #72 in Ocean Township.

The Commissioner finds and determines that the Board has met its burden of proof with regard to the restoration of $82,832 for the replacement of one of its school buses during the 1993-94 school year. It is therefore directed that Council's reduction in this line item be set aside.

Thus, for the reasons set forth above, the Commissioner finds and determines that Council's reduction of $183,832 in the general fund tax levy for the 1993-94 school year be set aside.

The general fund tax levy of $6,842,604 originally certified by Council to the Ocean County Board of Taxation for the 1993-94 school year will be increased by $183,832.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Board appealed General Fund tax levy reductions in the amount of $1,275,439 made by governing body following voter rejection of proposed budget on April 20, 1993.

Upon review of the appeal herein to determine whether Board demonstrated that restoration of specific line item reductions was necessary in order to provide a thorough and efficient system of education in the district, Commissioner determined to restore $576,671 for a total General Fund tax levy of $15,069,350 for 1993-94 school purposes.

V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
TOWNSHIP COUNCIL OF THE TOWNSHIP OF JEFFERSON, MORRIS COUNTY, RESPONDENT.	:	DECISION

This matter was opened before the Commissioner by way of a Petition of Appeal on June 3, 1993 from the Board of Education of the Township of Jefferson (Board) appealing the reduction in the 1993-94 budget imposed by the Council of the Township of Jefferson (Township) pursuant to the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37. The aforesaid constituted a $1,275,439 reduction in the General Fund tax levy for the 1993-94 school year. As a result of this reduction, the amount in dispute before the Commissioner is set forth below as required pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-5.3(c):

Proposed Tax Levy Adopted by the Board		Amount of Tax Levy Set by Governing Body
Current Expense:	$15,118,132	$13,842,693
Capital Outlay:	$ 649,986	$ 649,986
Amount of Reduction in the Budget of Governing Body		Amount of Reduction in Dispute Before the Commissioner
Current Expense:	$1,275,439	$1,275,439
Capital Outlay:	-0-	-0-

On June 10, 1993 the Township filed its Answer to the Petition of Appeal which included within such Answer the list of specific line item reductions along with the reasons for their imposition contained in the Township's original resolution establishing the reductions and setting forth the General Fund Tax Levy.

In August the Board filed its Statement of Position in the form of affidavits from Richard D. Reilly, Business Administrator/ Board Secretary and Sheldon F. Rubin, Superintendent of Schools. By way of a letter of August 3, 1993, the Township waived its Position Statement relying upon its summary of line item reductions and the reasons therefore as submitted in its Answer. On August 6, 1993 by way of a letter of that date, the Board waived its response to the Township's Position Statement relying upon the affidavits of Mr. Reilly and Mr. Cohen as representing its response to the Township's position. The Township filed a response by way of letter brief dated August 16, 1993 and the Board filed a Summary Statement on September 1, 1993 whereupon the record was officially closed.

STANDARD OF REVIEW

In rendering judgment relative to budgetary appeals, the Commissioner notes that the Constitution of the State of New Jersey requires the Legislature to provide for a thorough and efficient system of education. The Legislature by way of statutory scheme has delegated the responsibility for providing such thorough and efficient system to local boards of education. Additionally, the Legislature pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9, 22-14, 22-17 and 22-37 has authorized the Commissioner of Education to review and decide appeals by boards of education seeking restoration of budgetary reductions imposed by local governing bodies. (See also Board of Education of East Brunswick Township v. Township Council of East Brunswick, 48 N.J. 94 (1966) and Board of Education of Deptford Township v. Mayor and Council of Deptford Township, 116 N.J. 305 (1989).)

In reviewing such appeals the Commissioner must determine whether a district board of education has demonstrated that the amount by which a specific line item reduction imposed by the governing body is necessary for the provision of a thorough and efficient system of education.

In the instant matter, the Township, upon defeat of the 1993-94 budget by the electorate, did confer with the Board as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37 and established a tax levy to be used for school purposes. The aforesaid tax levy was established by imposing the following line item reductions:

TOWNSHIP'S POSITION

Initially, the Commissioner notes that the Township sets forth a long list of items and information which it alleges it requested from the Board and which it contends it never received. The specifics of such allegations are set forth in detail as Exhibit A attached to its resolution setting forth the reduced tax levy, which is the subject of the controversy herein. The following represents the Township's reductions and its reasons for said reductions:

Account	Reduction
120b - Legal Fees	$15,000

The Township contends that prior to 1992-93 the Board's expenditures for legal fees amounted to $18,901, $22,289 and $20,089 for the years 1989-90 to 1991-92. The amount budgeted for 1992-93 was $25,000. For 1993-94, the Board budgeted $50,000 which represents a 100% increase which the Township believes is unjustified. The Township argues that even with the reduction imposed the Board is permitted a $10,000 increase over the 1992-93 appropriation.

130a - Board Member Expenses $ 3,600

The Township argues that the Board should hold the line on expenses in this area due to the existing economic climate. The above reduction of $3,600 would maintain expenditures for Board attendance at conferences and seminars at the $24,000 appropriated for 1992-93.

Account	Reduction
130m - Printing	$ 2,300

The Township argues that the amount budgeted in 1992-93 was $7,282 from which monies were transferred out leaving an amount of $4,672, most of which was expended. The Township argues that the 1993-94 budgeted amount should not be compared to the 1992-93 budgeted amount but to the 1992-93 actual expenditure. The Township therefore argues that this account should be frozen at its current spending level, thus the $2,300 recommended reduction which still lowers the increase for 1993-94 at 7% above 1992-93 expenditures.

213 - Instructional Salaries $150,000

The Township points out that every year the Board projects its salary needs based upon the salaries of current staff; however, each year teachers at the top of the salary schedule retire and are replaced by teachers at the lower end resulting in significant savings each year. In 1992, the Township contends this difference amounted to $245,930. The Township contemplates similar savings for the 1993-94 school year and thus believes itself justified in reducing this account by $150,000.

240 - Teaching Supplies $45,000

The Township, while contending a sensitivity to reductions in accounts directly impacting on students, nevertheless argues for consistency over the years when student enrollment and staffing remain relatively constant. The Township contends that as of the filing of its position, expenditures in this account represented $109,956 for 1992-93 with two months to go and that the annual average audited expenditure over a four-year period including 1992-93 is $164,350. It therefore questions the need for a 50% increase in this account over 1992-93 to a proposed expenditure level of $242,882 without any increase in enrollment or teaching positions. It argues that even with the $45,000 reduction in this account there is a sufficient built-in increase to account for inflation.

Account	Reduction
420c - Miscellaneous Health Expenses	$2,500

The Township argues that a 40% increase in this account is unwarranted.

545 - Curricular Activities $7,000

Normal expenditures in this account between 1989-90 and 1991-92 have ranged from $19,294 to $24,366 with $10,911 expended so far in 1992-93. While the Board budgeted $39,549 in 1992-93, it transferred $19,549 from this account during the year. The Township therefore argues that a budgeted amount of $30,355 for 1993-94 is unwarranted.

550 - Other Transportation Expenses $55,000

The Township contends that the Board's decision to contract out certain bus routes should have produced reductions in expenditures for gasoline, oil and tires, however, proposed spending for 1993-94 exceed current spending levels in each of the areas indicated above. (See Township's Statement of Reasons for exact figures.)

630 - Heat $60,000

The Township argues that the Board's projections of expenditures in this area have historically been poor yet actual expenditures has been consistent, i.e., expenditures of $139,906, $146,908 and $142,156 over the past three years with $123,400 expended for 1992-93 with three spring months remaining. The Township also points out that the Board has routinely transferred money from this account, i.e., $48,538 in 1991-92 and $60,000 in 1992-93, yet it has budgeted the same amount for 1993-94 as the 1992-93 year.

650a - Custodial Supplies	$10,000

As in the previous account, the Township argues for consistency in expenditures for custodial supplies. It points out that a proposed expenditure for 1993-94 of $55,551 is nearly 50% higher than the average of the actual expenditures of $39,555 and $35,984 over the previous two years.

660d - Miscellaneous Operating Expenses	$ 7,000

The Township argues that the Board budgeted $11,000 in this account for 1992-93 but reduced it to $5,000 during the year and expended only $887.50 as of the filing of this appeal. In 1991-92 actual expenditures in this account amounted to $2,269. Given the expenditures in this area in the past, the Township argues that no rationale exists for budgeting $10,000 in this account for 1993-94.

720 - Contracted Services	$60,000

The Township contends that the Board has historically overbudgeted in this account pointing out that $85,258 was transferred out in 1990-91, $106,500 in 1991-92 and $104,000 in the current year leaving a budgeted amount of $315,953. Given this history, the Township argues that a budget of $315,703 for 1993-94 is unwarranted.

Account	Reduction
810a - State and County Retirement Fund	$ 68,266

The Township argues that this account is overbudgeted. It contends that the 1991-92 bills amounted to $88,820. The 1992-93 budget was overbudgeted by $50,000 as that amount was transferred out. The 1993-94 budgeted amount of $165,968 is the same as the allegedly overbudgeted 1992-93 budget. The $68,266 reduction in this account, the Township contends, still allows for a 10% increase over the previous year's expenditures.

810c - Social Security Other	$101,573

This represents social security payments for persons not covered by the State. In this account, the Township contends that the amount budgeted for 1993-94 was based upon the 1992-93 budgeted amount of $384,973. The Council contends that actual spending in this area will amount to $260,000 for 1992-93. While acknowledging an increase for 1993-94, the Township contends that a 9% increase over 1992-93 actual spending is sufficient to meet Board needs which would permit the $101,573 amount by which this account was reduced.

820a - Property Insurance	$ 5,700

The Township finds that 17.3% increase in insurance in this account to be excessive compared to what it believes to be a reasonable increase of 7.2% budgeted for between 1991-92 and 1992-93. Even with the reduction provided for in this account, the Township argues that the Board will still have a sufficient amount to provide for a 10% increase in premiums.

820b - Employee Insurance	$230,000

The Township acknowledges that insurance expenditures, especially for health benefits are difficult to predict, however, by the time of this filing more concrete figures are available to the Board. The Township recognizes that State Health Benefits are increasing over 1992-93 but for less than the 27% budgeted by the Board. It contends the same is true for dental and workers compensation insurances. The Township therefore argues that the $230,000 reduction in this account still leaves a 17.5% increase over 1992-93, an amount which it deems adequate based upon its analysis of the insurance market.

Account	Reduction
820c - Liability Insurance	$ 2,500

The Township questions the Board's decision to budget a 19% increase factor despite the fact that the 1992-93 premium cost only 84% of the amount budgeted for that year. With the reduction imposed here, the Township contends a 10% increase factor is left in the amount budgeted.

870 - Tuition	$100,000

The Township acknowledges the difficulty faced by the Board in budgeting for tuition costs due to the uncertainty of how many students may be classified during the school year. Notwithstanding such recognition, the Township argues that there is a 46% increase between 1992-93 and 1993-94 based upon a $798,233 budget in 1992-93 and a proposed amount of $1,163,900 in 1993-94. The Township argues that past experience in this area in no way justifies the increase requested by the Board. It contends that even with the reduction imposed herein, it still permits a 20% increase over 1992-93 expenditures.

Account	Reduction
660 - Budgeted Fund Balance	$350,000

The Township believes that the Board should utilize additional surplus in 1993-94 to reduce the tax burden. The Township argues that the Board has finished the school year with the following surplus balance over the last three years:

1990	$ 600,828
1991	$ 127,460
1992	$ 604,184
1993	$1,500,000 (Township estimate)

The Township contends that the Board has a history of finishing each year with a surplus. It argues that it wishes to provide the Board with more than a 2.5% budget surplus. The Township contends that its proposed reduction of $350,000 in surplus will still leave the Board with more than $1,008,650.

BOARD'S POSITION

The Board generally argues that the actions of the Township in reducing the budget were arbitrary and capricious. It further contends that the Township used budget years out of context to create a distorted picture and invalid comparisons. The Board's line item justifications are set forth below:

Account	Reduction
120b - Legal Fees	$15,000

The Board disputes the arguments of the Township that the $50,000 1993-94 budget represents a doubling of the $25,000 expenditure in the 1992-93 budget. The Board points out that its actual expenditures for 1992-93 was approximately $150,000 and that its budget of $50,000 for 1993-94 represents less than half its actual expenditure in 1992-93. The Board points out that the Township in averaging expenditure based upon past years ignored the $105,000 spent in 1992-93 which would have yielded an average of $49,333 almost exactly the amount budgeted for 1993-94.

Account	Reduction
130 - Board Members Expenses	$ 3,600

The Board contests the idea that 1993-94 expenditures be held at 1992-93 levels. Of the $27,600 budgeted for 1993-94, $23,400 is required by law (N.J.S.A. 18A:6-50) to be paid as dues to the New Jersey School Boards Association leaving only $2,300 to cover expenses to conferences and new Board members' orientations.

130m - Printing	$2,300

The Board points out that printing of the calendar at $3,500, the budget newsletter at $1,800 and postage of $2,000 to distribute them consumes the entire printing budget.

213 - Instructional Salaries	$150,000

The Board disputes the Township's assumption that retirements of high salaried people and hiring of new teachers at lower salary levels will reduce this account sufficiently to permit the $150,000 reduction imposed. The Board contends that it anticipates only one retirement with a replacement of that $50,000 salary by a $28,609 salary, a saving of only $21,651. Despite this saving, the Board argues that the Township did not consider into its calculations the factor of teacher movement on the guide due to changed educational status which it alleges could amount to $50,000.

240 - Teaching Supplies	$ 45,000

The Board challenges the Township's tactic of using prior year spending averages to arrive at its reduction. The Board contends that its budgeting in this area is based on set figures per student which have not changed over the years of $60.50 per elementary student, $64.13 per middle school student and $65.34 per high school student. Further, the Board points out that its per pupil expenditures in this area ranks 27th out of 29 districts in Morris and Sussex Counties.

Finally, the Board contends that the Township uses inaccurate figures for 1992-93 based upon April expenditures of $109,956 when total 1992-93 expenditures were $208,000 out of a budgeted amount for that year of $210,285, which was itself a reduction from $221,992 in 1991-92. Thus, the Board contends that the reduction imposed by the Township would result in an amount less than $200,000 for instructional supplies when actual expenditures for the past three years were in excess of $200,000.

Account	Reduction
420c - Miscellaneous Health Expenses	$2,500

This account contains funds for independent evaluations of handicapped children by outside professionals and not supplies as indicated by the Township. In 1992-93 the Board contends it budgeted $9,000 and expended $11,200. The Board contends that prudence dictates increasing this account by a small amount to $12,400.

545 - Curricular Activities	$7,000

The Board argues that while the Township makes much of the fact that $19,549 was transferred from this account in 1992-93, it fails to consider the fact that this account interacts with the 520c account utilized when outside buses are required. Taken together, these two accounts are consistent in their spending patterns.

The Board further points out that much of the spending in this account occurs during the spring and that actual expenditures as of May 20, 1993 were $21,000.

Since this account is influenced by playoffs in sports, it argues that a $30,355 budget in this area is appropriate and a reduction of $7,000 cannot be sustained.

Account	Reduction
550 - Other Transportation Expenses	$55,000

The Board agrees that it can sustain a cut of $33,500 in this budgetary item.

630 - Heat	$60,000

The Board concedes that it could sustain a reduction of $45,000 in this account.

650a - Custodial Supplies	$10,000

The Board concedes this reduction.

660d - Miscellaneous Operating Expenses	$ 7,000

The Board concedes the reduction in this area.

720a - Contracted Services	$60,000

The Board contends that there has been a history of deferred maintenance in the district where monies have been transferred from this account to fund other emergencies. The Board cites a $45,000 parking lot repair cancelled to provide for increased legal fees, as well as other circumstances.

810a - State and County Retirement Fund	$68,266

The Board points out that its statement of accounts from PERS amounted to $118,000 out of $165,968 budgeted leaving a potential excess in this account of $47,968. With a contingency of $5,000, the Board accedes to a reduction of $42,968.

810c - Social Security Other	$101,573

The Board budgeted $384,973 and it anticipates expenditures of $320,000. The Board contends that prudent budgeting requires it consider that new hires may increase this amount in addition to possible tax increases. Using the Council's own figure of an allowable 9% increase, the Board argues that this account should be held at $350,000, permitting the Board to agree to a $34,973 reduction.

820a - Property Insurance $ 5,700

The Board contends that it has been informed of significant property insurance increases due to classroom expansion projects and therefore argues that it cannot agree to reduction of the $92,310 it budgeted in 1993-94.

820c - Liability Insurance $ 2,500

The Board agrees that it can absorb the above reduction.

820b - Employee Insurance $230,000

The Board sets forth the following figures as actual amounts for 1993-94:

Medical Insurance	$2,422,073
Dental Insurance	241,083
Workers Compensation	247,143
	$2,910,299

Based upon an amount budgeted of $3,002,504, this leaves a cushion of $92,205.* The Board argues that its remaining cushion is

---

* The Commissioner notes that the Board due to arithmetical error cites this figure as $62,504.

reasonable in that each additional family coverage costs the district $10,000 and that it anticipates further increases in workers compensation rates due to a pending case.

Account	Reduction
870 - Out of District Tuition	$100,000

The Board argues that its known expenditures in this account also include payments based on extended school year and tuition adjustments from a prior year. The Board indicates that it requested a 10% increase for special education tuition over the $925,000 expended in 1992-93 yielding a preliminary amount of $1,017,500. Two new students added an additional $50,000 bringing the total to $1,067,500. When Vo-Tech tuition is added, the total amount equaled the budgeted amount of $1,163,900.

660- Budgeted Fund Surplus	$350,000

The Board offers no argument other than to contend that the State recommends a 3-5% surplus to meet emergency needs. The Board, it is noted offers no figures to its anticipated surplus of June 30, 1993.

COMMISSIONER'S DETERMINATION

Initially, in addressing the Township's contention that the Board failed to provide all the information requested of it, the Commissioner notes the detailed response provided by the Board in its final summation. Based upon that response and upon the consideration by the Commissioner of what requirement is imposed on a board of education by law, she cannot conclude that the Board failed in its legal responsibilities. Therefore the item-by-item determination of the Commissioner is set forth below:

Account

120b - Legal Fees

The Township concedes that the $15,000 reduction should be restored based upon the Board's explanation.

113a - Board Member Expenses

The Township concedes that the $3,600 reduction in this account should be restored.

130m - Printing

The Commissioner finds and determines that the Board has failed to justify why the amount expended in 1992-93 would be insufficient to meet its printing needs in 1993-94. The $2,300 reduction is sustained.

213 - Instructional Salaries

The Commissioner finds the Board's figures as they relate to the savings to be realized from retirements at the top of the salary guide to be persuasive. Under the circumstances, however, an amount of $21,651 to be held in reserve for guide movement would appear to be unnecessary. The Commissioner finds persuasive the Township's argument that such amount should have been projected in the original budget figures. Therefore, the Commissioner directs that a $22,000 reduction be sustained and that $128,000 be restored.

240 - Teaching Supplies

Based upon the Board's own figures as to student enrollment and the per pupil amount budgeted at the three levels, the Commissioner notes that even utilizing the budget figure per pupil at the high school level ($65.34) for all approximately 3,000 students, the amount to be expended would be $196,020, thus permitting the absorption by the Board of the $45,000 reduction imposed by the Township. While extremely sensitive to reductions in teaching supplies, the Board's total reliance upon per pupil expenditure levels without explanation of further factors leads the Commissioner to sustain the $45,000 reduction imposed by the Township.

Account

420c - Miscellaneous Health Expenses

The Commissioner finds that the Board has met its burden in demonstrating that $11,200 has been expended in this account as of June 30, 1993. She finds no merit in the Township's argument that the Commissioner rely solely upon expenditures encumbered as of the date of the appeal. Consultation services may occur at any time during a school year and thus a slight cushion over 1992-93 expenditures is justified. The Commissioner directs the restoration of $2,500 in this account.

545 - Curricular Activities

The Commissioner finds that the Board has failed to provide sufficient specific dates to demonstrate its inability to sustain a reduction in this account. The $7,000 reduction is sustained.

550 - Other Transportation Expenses

The Commissioner notes that the Board agrees to a $35,000 reduction in this account. She also notes that the Township argues that the Board fails to provide specific figures as to why only a $3,500 reduction should be imposed rather than the $55,000 reduction recommended by the Township. The Commissioner finds merit in the Township's position since the burden rests clearly with the Board. Consequently, the Commissioner sustains the $55,000 reduction imposed by the Township.

Account

630 - Heat

Once again, the Board concedes its willingness to absorb a reduction of $45,000, some $15,000 less than that imposed by the Township. The Township, however, argues that the Board has failed to defend its position with specific data. The Commissioner agrees. The $60,000 reduction is sustained.

650a - Custodial Supplies

The Board accepts the $10,000 reduction in this account.

660d - Miscellaneous Operating Expenses

The Board accepts the $7,000 reduction in this account.

720 - Contracted Services

While the Board argues that the transfers from this account in past years here resulted in unmet repair needs, it does not provide a list of such needs which would justify its budgeted amount in 1993-94. Since the burden of demonstrating need rests with the Board, the Commissioner finds that the reduction of $60,000 be sustained.

810a - State and County Retirement Fund

The Board agrees that a reduction of $42,968 can be accepted and the Commissioner agrees that a $5,000 cushion above actual costs is defensible. Therefore a $42,968 reduction is sustained and $25,298 is restored.

810c - Social Security Other

Based upon the figures provided by the Board in its sworn affidavit of Mr. Reilly, the Commissioner determines that a $35,000 reduction be sustained and that $66,573 be restored.

Account

820a - Property Insurance

The Township agrees with the restoration of $5,700 in this account based upon information provided by the Board.

820b - Employee Insurance

Based upon the 1993-94 figures provided by the Board for Health and Dental Benefits and Workers Compensation, the Commissioner determines that the entire amount of $230,000 by which the Township reduced this account be restored. The Commissioner finds merit in the Board's argument of maintaining a cushion of approximately $62,000 when each new person added to district employment costs $10,000.

820c - Liability Insurance

The Board agrees that it can absorb the $2,500 reduction in this account.

870 - Tuition

Based upon the information provided by the Board and the Township's acquiescence in a $57,500 restoration, the Commissioner determines that the Board has met its burden of demonstrating its need for the full amount of $1,163,900 as provided in its original budget, particularly in light of the unpredictability of ultimate costs in this account. Therefore, the Commissioner directs that the $100,000 reduction be restored.

660 - Budgeted Fund Balance

The Commissioner notes that the Board's audited surplus as of June 30, 1992 was $604,183.73. Such a surplus figure applied against the $15,768,118 of the Board's projected budget for 1993-94 yields a 3.8% surplus. The Commissioner notes that the Council projects a June 30, 1993 surplus significantly greater than the audited figure for 1992 and that the Board offers no argument in refutation of that figure. In light of the burden imposed by the courts in East Brunswick, supra, and Deptford, supra, the Commissioner finds that the Board has failed to demonstrate that it cannot absorb the $350,000 reduction in surplus directed by the Township. The reduction of $350,000 is sustained.

The following represents a summary of all accounts restored and sustained.

Account	Sustained	Restored
120b	$ 0	$ 15,000
113a	0	3,600

TOTAL	$698,768	$576,671

In light of the foregoing, the Commissioner directs the Morris County Board of Taxation to strike an additional tax levy for school purposes of $576,671 for the Board of Education of the Township of Jefferson so that the total General Fund tax levy for the 1993-94 school year shall be $15,069,350.

DATE OF MAILING - NOVEMBER 1, 1993

268-93

UNION CITY EDUCATION ASSOCIATION AND ROBERT DORSETT, PETITIONERS,	:
V. BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF UNION CITY, HUDSON COUNTY, RESPONDENT.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, unsuccessful candidate for various coaching positions, alleged violation of law in Board's selection of other individuals for positions for which he qualified.

ALJ determined Board's decision to hire other individuals including three county certified substitutes rather than petitioner to coaching positions was not arbitrary and capricious. Moreover, ALJ found there was no automatic preference under N.J.A.C. 6:29-3.3 for full-time employees over part-time employees in the same district. N.J.A.C. 6:29-3.3(c) was inapplicable to this case since no out-of-district personnel holding county certificates were involved. Petition was dismissed.

Commissioner affirmed dismissal of petition but rejected ALJ's conclusions of law. Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:29-3.3, a preference exists for coaches who hold standard certification and who are teaching staff members in the district. (Norcross; Chambers) Further, when two board employees with standard teaching certificates apply, since no general entitlement to any coaching position exists, Board's failure to appoint petitioner over another standard-certified teacher who applied later was not arbitrary. Moreover, because Board felt petitioner's class play advisorship duties would conflict with coaching duties, neither was petitioner entitled to position offered substitutes, although absent his appointment as class play advisor, he would otherwise have been entitled to those coaching positions offered to county-certified substitutes, under the prescriptions of N.J.A.C. 6:29-3.3.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF UNION, HUDSON COUNTY,
Respondent.

Louis C. Rosen, Esq., for respondent
(Patino-Treat & Rosen, attorneys)

Record Closed: June 16, 1993 Decided: September 14, 1993

BEFORE MARYLOUISE LUCCHI-McCLOUD, ALJ:

This matter arises out of a petition filed on behalf of the petitioner alleging that the respondent Board of Education improperly failed to appoint him to several coaching positions in the school district.

The petition was filed on September 24, 1991 and an answer was filled in this case on November 4, 1991. The matter was then transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on November 13, 1991 for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to 15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

This case was set down for a hearing on July 16, 1992 however that date was adjourned at the request of respondent's attorney. The matter was then rescheduled for December 30, 1992 which date was adjourned at the request of petitioners' attorney. It was then given a date of April 26, 1993 and a hearing was held on that date as well as on May 11, 1993. The hearing record was left open until June 6, 1993 for posthearing submissions by the parties. The time for them to file those documents was extended until June 16, 1993 at the request of respondents' attorney with the consent of his adversary. Upon receipt of those submissions on June 16, 1993, the record closed. The time in which to render an initial decision would ordinarily have expired on July 31, 1993 however, an Order of Extension was signed granting an extension until September 14, 1993 in which to file the initial decision.

The original caption and filing was on behalf of the Union City Education Association and Robert Dorsett. At the time of the hearing it was agreed that the Union County Education Association is not a party to this matter and that Robert Dorsett is in fact the party in interest.

STIPULATED FACTS

At the time of the hearing, both sides entered into a written stipulation of facts which are uncontroverted:

1. Petitioner is a full-time, tenured teacher in the employ of the Board who has held numerous appointments as a coach.

2. Petitioner applied to be head coach for cross country and indoor and outdoor head coach track at Emerson High School pursuant to a posting of April 8, 1991.

3. Petitioner did not respond to a posting on or about April 8, 1991 for the position of head coach for indoor and outdoor track at Union Hills School.

4. The only applicant for the positions of head coach for indoor and outdoor track at Union Hills High School, Michael McGinley, a certified substitute teacher in the employ of the Board, was appointed to the two positions on June 6, 1991, and petitioner was appointed to the head coach cross country position at Emerson High School on the same date.

5. On June 11, 1991, the Board posted head coaching positions for indoor and outdoor track at Union Hills and Emerson High Schools. Petitioner applied for the positions at Union Hills High School and reapplied for the positions at Emerson High School.

6. Petitioner also applied for assistant basketball coaching positions at both high schools.

7. On June 25 and 27, Alvaro Tirado, a full time certified teacher, applied for the head coaching positions at both high schools for indoor and outdoor track, respectively.

8. On July 25, 1991, petitioner was appointed to the position of head coach for cross country track at Emerson High School. McGinley's appointment as head coach for indoor and outdoor track at Union Hills High School was affirmed as well.

9. On July 25, 1991, the Board appointed three certified substitute teachers then in its employ and one full-time teacher to assistant basketball coaching positions.

10. On August 29, 1991, the Board appointed Tirado to the head coaching position for indoor and outdoor track at Emerson High School.

11. The Board could not have appointed petitioner to a coaching position for indoor track and basketball, as the seasons for those two sports overlap.

12. Respondent Board has not adopted written guidelines or policies regarding qualifications for athletic coaching positions. The Board's stipulation to this fact may not be construed as an implied admission of relevance to any legal issue

13. Respondent Board submitted applications for approval to hire substitute teachers to the County Superintendent for Michael McGinley, Joseph Blake and Dale Brooks dated September 16, 1991, August 29, 1991 and September 17, 1991, respectively. The applications were subsequently approved by the County Superintendent. The Board's stipulation to this fact may not be construed as an implied admission of relevance to any legal issue.

As these facts have been stipulated to by the parties, I FIND them to be operational facts in this case.

TESTIMONY

Testimony was taken from Robert Dorsett during the hearing. He had been employed by Union City for 18 years as a physical education teacher at Edison and was certified for K through 12 in health and physical education. He also holds a certification in administration and supervision. In the past he had held head cross country coaching positions for 17 years, held indoor track coach positions for 17 years, and head outdoor track coach position for 17 years. Mr. Dorsett is also the president of the Union City Education Association and it is that association that has the contract with Union City Board of Education.

Mr. Dorsett explained during his testimony the positions that he applied for which included head track coach for boys at Union Hills and Emerson, track coach for indoor and outdoor track boys at Union Hills and Emerson as well as assistant coach for basketbill at Union Hills and Emerson. He stated that he may have applied for other positions. He was not appointed as assistant basketball coach. He did state that he was willing to perform in any of these coaching positions, but did confirm that indoor track and basketball overlapped. He stated however, that there was no conflict between outdoor track and basketball.

Mr. Dorsett described that he had previously held track coaching positions at Emerson but had not held basketball coaching positions at either Union Hills or Emerson.

The petitioner conceded that on January 7, 1991 the Board of Education appointed Michael McGinley as head indoor and outdoor track coach at Union Hills. At that time he did not complain to anyone about the appointment. He reapplied for head coach indoor and outdoor track at Emerson because that position had not been filled. He also applied for indoor and outdoor track coach at Union Hills even though he knew that position had already been filled. He was not aware of any action by the Board rescinding that appointment.

The petitioner was appointed cross country coach on June 6, 1991.

He has been coaching in Union City for 17 years and he described the seasonal nature of coaching. It begins in the fall with cross country and then moves on to indoor track and then later to outdoor track. Some students overlap from each activity into the next. He stated that sometimes individuals get indoor and outdoor coaching positions together but sometimes they did not. According to petitioner normally both were given to the same individual. Indoor track was from after Thanksgiving until approximately the end of February, outdoor track would follow that.

The petitioner stated that one does not prepare before the season other than perhaps making phone calls regarding whether or not students have had physicals.

Outdoor track begins approximately March 8 each year, although it varies slightly from year to year. He stated that there is a small gap between the indoor and outdoor track season which could be up to as much as three weeks. Outdoor track usually ends in early June.

The petitioner stated that he had been appointed as class play advisor during the 1991-92 school year. This is an activity in which the class puts a show on once a year. He stated this has minimal time demands. He generated a form regarding a lip synching show. The students came to sign up briefly and met three or four times to practice in the late afternoon. The show was on a Friday evening in April or May. He was awarded this position in August 1991. At that time he had already received the cross country position for September to November. Practice for cross country met after school for the students to run approximately one hour each day, three or four days per week. The petitioner stated that during this particular coaching season he could have but did not organize the school play. He stated that the play is usually done during the school day, and when it occurs during the school year is up to the discretion of the advisor. He stated that if he had gotten indoor or outdoor coach he could still have been the class play advisor since they only met three or four times. According to him he would have been able to do coaching in the afternoon and then follow it with a meeting for the class play or have had meetings on rainy days. He stated that indoor and outdoor coaching and class play did not conflict even though they overlap by season. He did state that basketball possibly might overlap although he saw no conflict in this.

The petitioner stated that he feels he should be given the salary for indoor and outdoor track or outdoor track and basketball. he did confirm that indoor track and basketball overlay and also do conflict. During the 1991-92 school year the extracurricular activities in which he was involved were cross country and school play advisor. He stated that he should have been awarded either positions at Union Hills or Emerson. He stated that he had coached at Emerson at the high school level in indoor and outdoor track as well as cross country. He had not coached at Union Hills. He stated that he has also coached basketball below the high school level in Union City.

The petitioner stated that he did not apply for any extracurricular activities outside of the school district. He felt that he had sufficient time to devote to indoor and outdoor track coach. He stated that he was never told that his appointment as school play advisor would bar him from indoor and outdoor track coach.

Joseph R. Marini also testified during the hearing. He is employed by the Union City Board of Education and has been assistant superintendent of schools since September 1980. He posts positions in the spring for the next year's extracurricular spots. Along with the help of the secretary he prepares the lists and distributes them to the schools and to the union as well as board members pursuant to the contract. After the board of education has taken action they post the selectee list. He stated that extracurricular positions include coaching, advisors, cheerleaders, majorettes and debating team as well as several others. There are 30 to 40 positions in extracurricular spots in each high school.

The witness stated that with respect to coaching positions he was aware that Mr. Dorsett had positions in prior years including indoor and outdoor track and cross country. In previous years he had been appointed simultaneously to these positions. He also had been appointed to indoor and outdoor track at the same time. The policy has been to try and give these to one individual because they know the children and what those children are capable of in the particular sport.

During the 1991-92 school year the petitioner applied for indoor and outdoor track coach for both Emerson and Union Hills as well as cross country coach at Emerson. He was appointed as head coach for cross country in Emerson. He was also appointed school play advisor.

In Union Mr. McGinley was originally appointed as indoor and outdoor head track coach. There were no other applicants. After he had been appointed the position was posted again erroneously.

The witness stated that he felt there would be a conflict with class play advisor and indoor and outdoor track coach in either school. He stated that there are time requirements of the school play advisor. Rehearsals were necessary one or two times per month over a six to eight month period. This would make approximately 15 or 20 rehearsals over the year. As a result he felt there would be a conflict with the seasons and the time with indoor and outdoor track coach at Emerson or Union Hills.

In July or August, Alvaro Tirado applied to Union Hills. He is a math teacher with the Board. The witness did not know if he had coaching experience.

The petitioner had applied for the position at Emerson and was not selected. He also applied in Emerson for assistant basketball coach. This would have created a conflict.

The witness stated that when Mr. McGinley was appointed as head track coach indoor and outdoor at Union Hills he was the only applicant. It was only by error that the matter was reposted and once again Mr. McGinley was appointed.

The witness acknowledged that there is no written policy to prohibit the teacher from holding more than one extracurricular position. There have been teachers who had been selected for more than one such position in the past. The witness stated that he did not supervise the petitioner regarding his work as school play advisor. He did not know specifically how many times the petitioner had held rehearsals. The witness also acknowledged that he never told Mr. Dorsett that acting as school play advisor precluded him from any coaching positions.

FINDINGS OF FACTS

Having heard the testimony of the witnesses and having assessed their credibility, as well as having reviewed the evidence in this case, in addition to those fact stipulated to by the parties, I FIND the following to be fact:

1. Coaching is seasonal in nature and the sports run as follows:

   a. cross country beginning in the fall;

   b. indoor track which concludes in the latter part of February; and

   c. outdoor track coach which begins approximately March 8 each year and runs to about June.

2. The positions of indoor track coach and basketball coach overlap and conflict making it impossible for an individual to hold both positions.

3. The Union Hills indoor and outdoor track coach position was originally given to the only applicant, Michael McGinley. After this appointment the Board erroneously reposted the position. That position was once again given to Michael McGinley.

4. The time required of a school play advisor would be one to two meetings per month for a six to eight month period, making a total of 8 to 16 meetings not taking into account the actual show.

5. Those substitute teachers hired by the board of education as coaches were certified to teach and were also in the employ of this board of education as teachers prior to their applications for coaching positions.

LEGAL DISCUSSION

The question presented in this case is whether or not petitioner, who was a full time teacher employed by the respondent board of education should have been appointed to any of the coaching positions discussed rather than those individuals who were substitute teachers already in the employ of the board of education and who received the position.

With respect to the indoor and outdoor head coaching positions at Union Hills High School for the 1991-92 school year the original posting netted only one applicant, Michael McGinley. A subsequent erroneous posting occurred and it was after that posting that the petitioner applied. Subsequent to this Michael McGinley once again received that position. There was no rescission of the original appointment and as a result the subsequent applicants to the erroneous posting should not affect Mr. McGinley's appointment to those positions.

Under N.J.S.A. 6:29-3.3 the critera for hiring athletics personnel is listed. It reads as follows:

> (a) Any person not certified as a teacher and not in the employ of a district board of education shall not be permitted to organize public school pupils during school time or during any recess in the school day for purposes of instruction or coaching or for conducting games, events or contests in physical education or athletics.
>
> (b) School districts shall be permitted to employ any holder of a New Jersey teaching certificate to work in the interscholastic athletic program provided that the position has been advertised.
>
> (c) In the event there is no qualified and certified applicant, the holder of a county substitute certificate is authorized to serve as an athletic coach in the district in which he or she is employed for a designated sports season, provided that:
>
> 1. The district chief school administrator demonstrates to the county superintendent that:
>
> i. The vacant coaching position has been advertised; and

ii. There was no qualified applicant based on the written standards of the district board of education;

In this case the individuals who received the coaching positions were certified as teachers and were also in the employ of this particular district board of education. The question presented in this case is whether or not reference to subsection (c) is appropriate. That provision deals with out-of-district holders of a county substitute certificate and indicates that they may act as a coach under certain conditions. This provision seems intended to prevent school districts from bringing individuals with substitute certificates from outside primarily for the purpose of coaching certain sports. In this case all applicants were within the district.

Petitioner cites Norcross v. Board of Education of the North Hunterdon Regional High School District, 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 176, aff'd App. Div. (Docket No. A-3533-91T1, March 30, 1993) for the proposition that a full time teaching staff member within the district is given a preference over a part-time teacher from within the same district. That decision ndicates that absent written policy regarding qualifications for the positions the additional requirement of a preference for a full time over part-time certified teachers within the district occurred.

It is clear that tenure does not attach to the posting positions and that the employment of coaches and staff in a school district is a board prerogative. The question that we are faced with is whether or not that added provision which is not specifically stated in N.J.S.A. 6:29-3.3 establishing a preference for full time over part-time certified teachers employed by a particular board of education exists.

In John Chambers, Jr. v. Board of Education of the Township of Neptune, 1985 S.L.D. 1379 there is a discussion of the amendments to the rule requiring in-district personnel be hired over out-of-district personnel. Now, boards of education may initially advertise coaching vacancies as far and as wide as it deems reasonable. Such advertising, however, does not change the basic principle that coaches must be first sought from the board's own teaching staff. Id. at 1374. The basic requirements of N.J.S.A. 6:29-3.3 are that the individual must be a certified teacher and must be employed by the district board of education. The petitioner as well as those individuals who received the coaching positions fit this description. To add a provision to the regulation requiring a preference for full time over part-time employees of the same district is to take on a legislative role rather than merely interpreting the regulations as they exist.

In this case the district board of education has shown sufficient reasons for the choice of the part-time employees of that district to the coaching position, so that it cannot be found that their actions were arbitrary and/or capricious. The idea that an added preference exists for full time teachers without taking into account any other factors that would require adding a provision to N.J.S.A. 6:29-3.3. That provision does not presently exist and as a result, Norcross is specifically disagreed with in this decision.

If the purpose of this regulation is to prevent district boards of education from bringing in athletics personnel from the outside in order to "bulk up" athletic programs then this policy is not in any way advanced by crafting an additional clause which does not appear in the regulations to make full time employees automatically chosen over part-time employees of that board.

CONCLUSION

Based upon the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that the decision of the Board of Education of the City of Union in hiring other individuals rather than the petitioner to the coaching positions discussed above, was not arbitrary and capricious. I further CONCLUDE that the no automatic preference exists under N.J.S.A. 6:29-3.3 for full time employees over part-time employees in the same district. I further CONCLUDE that because no out-of-district personnel holding county certificates are involved N.J.A.C. 6:29-3.3(c) is inapplicable in this case.

ORDER

It is hereby ORDERED that the decision of Union City Board of Education be and hereby is AFFIRMED. It is hereby ORDERED that the petition filed by the Union City Education Association and Robert Dorsett by and hereby is DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, 8th Floor West, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

UNION CITY EDUCATION ASSOCIATION AND ROBERT DORSETT,	:
PETITIONERS,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF UNION CITY, HUDSON COUNTY,	:	DECISION

The record and initial decision rendered by the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Petitioners filed timely exceptions pursuant to the applicable provisions of N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4. The Board filed timely reply exceptions.

It is petitioners' contention that Dorsett was the only qualified applicant for the position of Indoor and Outdoor Head Track Coach for Boys at Union Hill and Emerson High Schools, and he should have been appointed to the positions at one of the schools. Petitioners argue that although Mr. Tirado was appointed to said positions at Emerson, that appointment was made after the Board passed over Dorsett, who was the only applicant as a result of the April posting. Further, petitioners claim the ALJ erred in finding that the Board could appoint Mr. McGinley to the track positions at Union Hill since he was the only applicant, because if that were so, then the ALJ failed to address why the Board did not appoint Dorsett to the track positions at Emerson High, as he was the only applicant in April 1991. Alternatively, petitioners argue that the Board should have appointed Dorsett to one of the assistant basketball coaching positions in place of the substitutes who were appointed.

More specifically, petitioners argue that the Commissioner should reject the initial decision since Dorsett was the only qualified applicant pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:29-3.3 because the Board did not follow proper procedures for hiring substitutes, and because the ALJ's findings of fact are incomplete. Petitioners aver the issue in this case is whether a full-time certified teacher employed by a board must be given preference over the holder of a county substitute certificate. Thus, they believe the ALJ erred in casting the issue of this matter as being "whether or not reference to subsection (c) [of N.J.A.C. 6:29-3.3] is appropriate. That provision deals with out-of-district holders of county substitute certificates and indicates that they may act as a coach under certain conditions." (Initial decision, at p. 10) Petitioners believe this is a misstatement of the issue herein because nothing in N.J.A.C. 6:29-3.3(c) concerns out-of-district holders of county substitute certificates. Instead, petitioners claim that the section at issue herein concerns under what circumstances a holder of a county substitute certificate can serve as a coach, whether the individual is from within the district or from outside the district. Thus, they submit, the ALJ erred to the extent that she interpreted the regulation to apply only to holders of county substitute certificates from out of the district.

In this regard, petitioners aver they did not argue before the ALJ that anything in Norcross, supra, or any other decision, concerned the preference of full-time teachers over part-time teachers. They further submit that Dorsett could not be rejected for the positions in question in favor of a substitute, even one who was previously employed by the district.

Petitioners summarize their position by stating that this matter is virtually indistinguishable from Chambers, supra, and Norcross, supra. Petitioners aver the ALJ erred in reaching a conclusion different from that of Norcross, which they say held invalid a local board's selection of a county superintendent certificate substitute because the petitioner met the qualification of N.J.A.C. 6:29-3.3 in the absence of written qualification standards.

Upon careful and independent review of the record of this matter, the Commissioner affirms the dismissal of the Petition of Appeal in this matter but for reasons different from those expressed by the ALJ.

At the outset of this discussion, the Commissioner would emphasize that overarching statement of law established by the ALJ in this case at page 10:

> It is clear that tenure does not attach to the [coaching] positions and that the employment of coaches and staff in a school district is a board prerogative.

Regarding the position of Head Coach, Indoor and Outdoor Track, Emerson High School, inquiry stops before reaching section (c) of N.J.A.C. 6:29-3.3, which provides:

> In the event there is no qualified and certified applicant, the holder of a county substitute certificate is authorized to serve as an athletic coach in the district in which he or she is employed for a designated sports season, provided that:
>
> 1. The district chief school administrator demonstrates to the county superintendent that:

i. The vacant coaching position has been advertised; and

ii. There was no qualified applicant based on the written standards of the district board of education.

The record establishes that Petitioner Dorsett was the only applicant in April 1991 for the position as Indoor and Outdoor Head Track Coach at Emerson High School. It is also undisputed that upon reposting the position in June 1991, Alvaro Tirado, applied for said coaching slot. Regardless of the timing of the applications, no obligation existed for the Board to select Dorsett for any coaching position at any time. Its only obligation was to select a candidate based upon the prescriptions of N.J.A.C. 6:29-3.3.

It is undisputed that Mr. Tirado holds a standard teaching certificate and is a teaching staff member in the Board's employ who responded to the reposting of said positions at Emerson. See Stipulation of Facts Nos. 7 and 10. These two characteristics are the sole provisions envisioned by N.J.A.C. 6:29-3.3. See Chambers, supra, and Norcross, supra, unless the Board, through its own discretion, enhances such requirements by adopting policy regarding qualifications for employment as a coach in a given sport. In the absence of prescribed qualifications for the kind of coaching position in question as described in Chambers and Norcross, Mr. Tirado's appointment conformed with N.J.A.C. 6:29-3.3(a) and (b) and therefore cannot be deemed a patent abuse of the Board's discretion. Thus, petitioners' argument that Dorsett was entitled to such position merely because he was passed over in favor of a later applicant fails. The Commissioner so finds.

On the other hand, review of the coaching positions of 1991 granted Messrs. McGinley, Blake and Brooks does involve consideration of N.J.A.C. 6:29-3.3(c) insofar as their appointments could not be accomplished without exhaustion of candidates within the district who were holders of standard certification as teaching staff members and who were employees within the district. N.J.A.C. 6:29-3.3(c); Chambers, supra; and Norcross, supra The record indicates that these three employees held only substandard county superintendent's substitute certificates, applied for belatedly in mid-September, approximately two months after appointing them to coaching positions. This action clearly falls outside the prescriptions of regulation and case law as described above.

In this regard, while the ALJ correctly recites the holding of Chambers, supra, as standing for the proposition that coaches must be first sought from the Board's own teaching staff and that the individual must be a certified teacher (see Initial Decision, at p. 10), the Commissioner specifically rejects her reading of Norcross, supra, for the principle that "an added preference exists for full time teachers without taking into account any other factors that would require adding a provision to N.J.S.A. 6:29-3.3." (Initial Decision, at p. 11) Rather, Norcross reinforces the principles articulated in Chambers, including the proposition that a preference exists for coaches who hold standard certification and who are teaching staff members in the district. In Norcross, as in this case, a board of education may not select for a coach an individual who holds only a substandard county substitute's certificate over a teaching staff member from within the district who holds standard certification. For a discussion of what constitutes a teaching staff member, see, for example, Rumson-Fair Haven Education Association and Brad Wilbur v. Board of Education of the Rumson-Fair Haven Regional School District, 1986 S.L.D. 2284, rev'd State Board, 1987 S.L.D. 2682, Super.Ct. aff'd June 24, 1988.

However, the facts of this case make review of such argument unnecessary because the Board offered a reasonable explanation for failing to hire Dorsett for the other head coaching position in indoor and outdoor track at Union Hills, that is, that appointment to such position would conflict with Petitioner Dorsett's appointment as class play advisor. While petitioners may dispute the extent to which such appointment would conflict with the duties of a head coaching position, nothing in the record before the Commissioner suggests patent arbitrariness in the Board's determination to direct petitioner's services to the class play advisorship instead of as an indoor and outdoor track coach as a result of time conflicts established by the ALJ in being a play advisor.

Moreover, of his own admission, indoor tract and basketball, the assistant's position for which Petitioner Dorsett also sought compensation, conflict. Hence, it may not be argued that such failure to assign him to either of these extracurricular positions constitutes arbitrary action by the Board. Similarly, the Commissioner finds without merit petitioners' claim that Petitioner Dorsett was owed notice that his appointment as school play advisor would bar him from indoor and outdoor track coaching positions, for the reason stated at the outset of this discussion, that is, no entitlement to any coaching position exists, as a general proposition.

Accordingly, for the reasons stated herein and having specifically rejected the ALJ's conclusions of law, the instant Petition of Appeal is dismissed, with prejudice.

UNION CITY EDUCATION ASSOCIATION AND ROBERT DORSETT,	:
PETITIONERS-APPELLANTS,	:	STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION
V.	:	DECISION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF UNION CITY, HUDSON COUNTY,	:
RESPONDENT-CROSS/APPELLANT.	:

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, November 1, 1993

For the Petitioner-Appellant, Zazzali, Zazzali, Fagella and Nowak (Paul L. Kleinbaum, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Cross/Appellant, Patino-Treat & Rosen (Louis C. Rosen, Esq., of Counsel)

Robert Dorsett (hereinafter "petitioner"), a tenured teacher in the employ of the Board of Education of the City of Union (hereinafter "Board"), filed a petition with the Commissioner of Education alleging that the Board had improperly denied him appointment to several coaching assignments in the district for the 1991-92 school year. Petitioner alleged that a number of those assignments for which he had applied had been given to individuals holding only county substitute certificates, in violation of N.J.A.C. 6:29-3.3.

On September 14, 1993, an Administrative Law Judge ("ALJ") recommended dismissing the petition, concluding that the Board's actions had not been arbitrary or capricious. The ALJ found that all of the individuals assigned to the controverted coaching positions, including those holding only county substitute certificates, were certified as teachers and were in the employ of the Board, as required by N.J.A.C. 6:29-3.3. The ALJ asserted that no preference existed under N.J.A.C. 6:29-3.3 for full-time employees over part-time employees in the same district.

On November 1, 1993, the Commissioner adopted the recommendation of the ALJ to dismiss the petition, but for reasons different than those expressed by the ALJ. The Commissioner, citing Norcross v. Board of Education of the North Hunterdon Regional High School District, decided by the Commissioner of Education, August 8, 1991, aff'd by the State Board of Education, February 5, 1992, aff'd, Docket #A-3533-91T1 (App. Div. 1993) and Chambers v. Board of Education of the Township of Neptune, decided by the Commissioner of Education, 1985 S.L.D. 1379, stressed that "a preference exists for coaches who hold standard certification and who are teaching staff members in the district....[A] board of education may not select for a coach an individual who holds only a substandard county substitute's certificate over a teaching staff member from within the district who holds standard certification." Commissioner's Decision, slip op. at 18. The Commissioner concluded that the appointments of the three individuals holding only substandard county substitute certificates "could not be accomplished without exhaustion of candidates within the district who were holders of standard certification as teaching staff members and who were employed within the district. N.J.A.C. 6:29-3.3(c)." Id.[1]

[1] We note that, contrary to the Commissioner's assertion that the three substitute teachers who were employed by the Board as coaches did not apply for their county substitute certificates until several months after they had been appointed to the coaching assignments, the record indicates that Joseph Blake and Michael McGinley held county substitute certificates at the time of their coaching appointments on July 25, 1991 and that Dale Brooks' certificate, which had been issued in January 1988, expired on July 1, 1991 and was renewed for an additional three-year period in September 1991.

The Commissioner, however, found that the Board had offered a reasonable explanation for failing to hire petitioner for the head coaching position in indoor and outdoor track at Union Hills High School--such appointment would conflict with his appointment as class play advisor. The Commissioner further found that since indoor track and basketball conflicted, "it may not be argued that such failure to assign him to either of these extracurricular positions constitutes arbitrary action by the Board." Id. at 19. Similarly, the Commissioner found no merit to petitioner's claim that he was owed notice that his appointment as school play advisor would bar him from indoor and outdoor track coaching positions.

The Commissioner also determined that the Board's failure to appoint petitioner as indoor and outdoor track coach at Emerson High School was not improper in that the Board had appointed another applicant who held a standard teaching certificate and was a teaching staff member in the Board's employ.

The petitioner filed the instant appeal to the State Board, limited to the argument that he had been improperly denied the indoor and outdoor track coaching assignments at Union Hills High School. Petitioner requested that he be compensated for the coaching stipends he would have received in those two assignments in 1991-92.

The Board has filed a cross-appeal from the decision of the Commissioner. While the Board agrees with the Commissioner's determination to dismiss the petition, it disagrees with the reasoning of that decision. The Board argues that the Commissioner erred in construing N.J.A.C. 6:29-3.3 as giving a preference to coaching applicants who were "teaching staff members." The Board contends that since the substitutes who were appointed by the Board held valid county substitute certificates and had been actively employed as substitutes by the Board, they were qualified and certificated applicants who met the requirements of the above regulation for appointment to the controverted coaching assignments.

After a thorough review of the record, we reverse the decision of the Commissioner rejecting petitioner's claim to the indoor and outdoor track coaching assignments at Union Hills High School in 1991-92.

N.J.A.C. 6:29-3.3 provides:

> (a) Any person not certified as a teacher and not in the employ of a district board of education shall not be permitted to organize public school pupils during school time or during any recess in the school day for purposes of instruction, or coaching or for conducting games, events or contests in physical education or athletics.
>
> (b) School districts shall be permitted to employ any holder of a New Jersey teaching certificate to work in the interscholastic athletic program provided that the position has been advertised.
>
> (c) In the event there is no qualified and certified applicant, the holder of a county substitute certificate is authorized to serve as an athletic coach in the district in which he or she is employed for a designated sports season, provided that:
>
> 1. The district chief school administrator demonstrates to the county superintendent that:
>
> i. The vacant coaching position had been advertised; and
>
> ii. There was no qualified applicant based on the written standards of the district board of education;
>
> 2. The district chief school administrator will provide a letter to the county superintendent attesting to the prospective employee's knowledge and experience in the sport in which he or she will coach; and

3. Approval of the county superintendent shall be obtained prior to such employment by the district board of education. The 20-day limitation noted in N.J.A.C. 6:11-4.4(i) shall not apply to such coaching situations.

Following the Board's reposting of the indoor and outdoor track coaching assignments at Union Hills High School, the only applicants therefor were petitioner and Michael McGinley, who held a substandard county substitute certificate.[2] Such certificate is issued to individuals "who do not hold a standard instructional certificate" and is granted only when the supply of "properly certificated teachers" is inadequate. N.J.A.C. 6:11-4.5. The holder of a county substitute certificate is authorized to serve as an athletic coach only in the event "there is no qualified and certified applicant." N.J.A.C. 6:29-3.3(c). Petitioner, on the other hand, was employed by the district and "certified as a teacher," N.J.A.C. 6:29-3.3(a), and there is no contention that he was not "qualified" for the assignments at issue based on written standards of the district.[3] N.J.A.C. 6:29-3.3(c)(1)(ii).

2 The Board contends in its exceptions to our Legal Committee's report that the reposting of these assignments on June 11, 1991 "could have no effect on the valid, previous appointment of McGinley" on June 6 when he had been the sole applicant. We note that, notwithstanding the Board's earlier action to appoint McGinley, and regardless of whether the reposting was in error, the Board took formal action at its meeting of July 25, 1991 to make appointments to the coaching assignments at issue. In so doing, the Board appointed McGinley, despite the fact that petitioner had also applied. It is this action which forms the basis for the instant petition.

3 We note that the parties stipulated that the Board "has not adopted written guidelines or policies regarding qualifications for athletic coaching positions." Stipulation of Facts, at 2.

While there is no right to employment as a coach, Koslick v. Board of Education of the Township of Edison, decided by the State Board of Education, April 1, 1987, aff'd, Docket #4358-86T1 (App. Div. 1987), a district board must adhere to the prescriptions of N.J.A.C. 6:29-3.3 in selecting coaches. Consequently, we conclude that the Board abused its discretion in failing to appoint petitioner, the only qualified and certified applicant, to the indoor and outdoor track coaching assignments at Union Hills High School while appointing instead the holder of a substandard county substitute certificate.[4] See Norcross, supra.

The appointment of petitioner as class play advisor does not alter our determination. Inasmuch as petitioner met the criteria of N.J.A.C. 6:29-3.3, the Board could not circumvent the provisions thereof so as to employ a substitute as coach simply by appointing petitioner to a concurrent extracurricular assignment outside the realm of that regulation. Moreover, contrary to the Commissioner's finding, we cannot conclude on this record that the Board's failure to appoint petitioner to the indoor and outdoor track coaching assignments at Union Hills High was due to a conflict with his assignment as class play advisor, which appointment occurred at the same Board meeting in which McGinley was appointed to the controverted coaching assignments. P-9, in evidence. Nor is it evident on this record that there was in fact a conflict such as to preclude petitioner from effectively fulfilling the responsibilities of those assignments.

[4] Despite the fact that petitioner had applied for the indoor and outdoor track coaching assignments at Union Hills High School, we note that the request from the District Superintendent to the County Superintendent for approval to employ a coach holding a county substitute certificate related that the district "has not received applications from any certified teachers." Exhibit J-3, in evidence.

We also correct the Commissioner's reading of N.J.A.C. 6:29-3.3 as providing a preference to coaching applicants who are teaching staff members in the district. A "teaching staff member" is defined by N.J.S.A. 18A:1-1 as a member of the professional staff of a district board "holding office, position or employment of such character that the qualifications, for such office, position or employment, require him to hold a valid and effective standard, provisional or emergency certificate, appropriate to his office, position or employment...." N.J.A.C. 6:29-3.3(a), however, includes no such requirement, expressly providing only that "any person not certified as a teacher and not in the employ of a district board" may not serve in a coaching capacity. (Emphasis added.) That regulation does not impose upon such certified applicants the requirement that their employment in the district be as a "teaching staff member" as defined by N.J.S.A. 18A:1-1, and we have never determined that regulation to include such a condition. Pursuant to the express language of N.J.A.C. 6:29-3.3(a), it is sufficient that the applicant is "in the employ of a district board" and is "certified as a teacher."

Finally, we find puzzling the Commissioner's statement that since the indoor track and basketball coaching assignments sought by petitioner conflicted, "it may not be argued that such failure to assign him to either of these extracurricular positions constitutes arbitrary action by the Board." Commissioner's Decision, slip op. at 19 (emphasis added). While failure by a district board to appoint an eligible applicant to both of two concurrent coaching assignments may not constitute arbitrary action, it is certainly arguable that a district board's failure to appoint such applicant to either of those two assignments purely on the basis of a conflict between them is arbitrary and capricious.

Thus, for the reasons stated herein, we reverse the decision of the Commissioner on the point of appeal before us and direct the Board to pay petitioner the stipends he would have received as indoor and outdoor track coach at Union Hills High School during the 1991-92 school year.

Attorney exceptions are noted.

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Board appealed General Fund tax levy reduction in the amount of $300,000 made by governing body following voter rejection of proposed budget on April 20, 1993.

Upon review of the appeal herein to determine whether Board demonstrated that restoration of reduction was necessary in order to provide a thorough and efficient system of education in the district, Commissioner determined to restore $300,000 for a total General Fund tax levy of $13,869,630 for 1993-94 school purposes.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

Laura J. Bogaards, Esq. (Wilentz, Goldman & Spitzer), for Petitioner

Joseph J. Triarsi, Esq. (Pisano & Triarsi), for Respondent

This matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education by way of a Petition of Appeal filed by the Board of Education of the Borough of Carteret (Board) on June 18, 1993, seeking restoration of a $300,000 cut to the 1993-94 General Fund tax levy made by the Mayor and Council (Borough) pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37 following voter defeat of the Board's proposed budget at the annual school election held on April 20, 1993. The amounts underlying the instant dispute are summarized as follows:

Proposed Tax Levy Adopted by Board	Amount of Tax Levy Certified by Governing Body
$13,869,630	$13,569,630
Amount of Reduction By Governing Body	Amount of Reduction in Dispute Before the Commissioner
$ 300,000	$ 300,000

On July 27, 1993 the Borough filed an Answer to the petition, and pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.8, position statements were filed by the Board on August 12, 1993 and the Borough on August 6, 1993. Due to a delay in service of the Borough's position statement, the Board's timely response was filed on September 12, 1993. No other papers were filed by the parties, and upon expiration of pertinent regulatory submission times, the record of this matter was duly closed.

STANDARD OF REVIEW

In rendering judgment relative to budget appeals, the Commissioner notes that the Constitution of the State of New Jersey requires the Legislature to provide for a thorough and efficient system of education. The Legislature by way of statutory scheme has in turn delegated the responsibility for providing such system to local boards of education. Additionally, the Legislature pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9, 22-14, 22-17 and 22-37 has authorized the Commissioner of Education to review and decide appeals by boards of education seeking restoration of budgetary reductions imposed by local governing bodies upon voter defeat of proposed school budgets. See also Board of Education of East Brunswick Township v. Township Council of East Brunswick, 48 N.J. 94 (1966) and Board of Education of Deptford Township v. Mayor and Council of Deptford Township, 116 N.J. 305 (1989).

In reviewing such appeals, the Commissioner must determine whether a board of education has demonstrated that the amount by which a specific line item has been reduced by the governing body is necessary for provision of a thorough and efficient system of education in the district.

BOARD'S POSITION

The Board states that the only reduction at issue in this matter is an across-the-board cut of $300,000 to the 1993-94 school budget, with a recommendation that the Board offset such reduction by utilizing free balance (surplus). The Board contends that the Borough's action was arbitrary, capricious, erroneous and contrary to the requirements of prior decisional law.

As a matter of law, the Board likens the situation at issue herein to that considered by the Commissioner in Board of Education of the Borough of Ramsey v. Mayor and Council of the Borough of Ramsey, Bergen County, 1991 S.L.D. 2125. Therein, the governing body cut $250,000 from the current expense tax levy for 1991-92 and recommended that the Board compensate for this reduction by utilization of the same amount in surplus. The Commissioner held, however, that over and above the necessity to demonstrate that the budgeted amount of surplus was in fact excessive, a governing body may direct utilization of surplus to offset current expenses only if specific line item reductions were concomitantly identified for offset based on valid educational reasons. Accordingly, the entire amount of the governing body's reduction was restored in that no such identification had been made and the only reason given for reduction was municipal tax relief.

With respect to the actual calculations made by the Borough, the Board argues that these were based on incorrect figures and erroneous assumptions, due at least in part to the Borough's insistence on conducting its review of Board records on the one day when neither the Board Secretary/Business Administrator nor the Board Accountant would be available for consultation. In support of its position, the Board submits letters from its auditing firm dated August 10, 1993 and September 9, 1993, the latter verifying that upon completion of field work for the district's annual audit, subject only to standard office review procedures before issuance of a final report, the district's General Fund free balance as of June 30, 1993 is $450,912, from which $300,000 has been budgeted as anticipated revenue for 1993-94, leaving an actual surplus of $150,912. Thus, even if the Borough meant to argue that the Board's surplus was excessive--although in fact it failed to express such position in explicit terms--that argument cannot stand in light of the figures set forth above, which represent a surplus well below the 3% consistently found to be reasonable by the Commissioner.

BOROUGH'S POSITION

The Borough argues that its action was neither arbitrary nor unreasonable, and indeed, that it was undertaken carefully and methodically with due regard for educational and fiscal considerations, requiring the Board to anticipate and apply additional surplus rather than reducing any line items in the Board's proposed budget. The Borough relates that the Board had advertised its estimated available fund balance as of June 30, 1993 as $636,121 in current expense and $30,029 in capital outlay, anticipating that $0.00 would remain from 1992-93 unencumbered appropriations on that date. Upon defeat of the budget by the voters, Borough representatives visited Board offices and reviewed the Board's available appropriations report (as of April 1993) so as to project 10-month actual expenditures into 12-month figures and determine if any line items could be expected to be unexpended or unencumbered on June 30, 1993. This review identified 15 such line items in current expense yielding a total of $198,900 and one in capital outlay yielding $75,000, whereupon the Borough concluded that the Board could reasonably anticipate an addition to its advertised fund balance in the amount of about $275,000 so as to be able to apply an additional $300,000 to its 1993-94 budget and reduce the tax levy by this same amount.

COMMISSIONER'S DETERMINATION

Initially, the Commissioner notes that the case relied upon by the Board for its primary legal argument, Ramsey, supra, is inconsistent with other cases wherein the Commissioner ruled, notwithstanding the holding of Ramsey, that a governing body need not specifically identify line item reductions in arriving at a determination relative to a reduction in surplus provided that due consideration has been given to the obligation to ensure a thorough and efficient education. Board of Education of the Borough of Oakland v. Mayor and Borough Council of the Borough of Oakland, Bergen County, 1991 S.L.D. 1657; Board of Education of the Township of Berkeley v. Mayor and Township Council of the Township of Berkeley, Ocean County, decided October 13, 1993. Thus, to the extent that Ramsey, supra, stands for a proposition contrary to the principle stated in Oakland and Berkeley, that decision is held herein to have been erroneously decided and not controlling in the present matter.

This holding, however, does not end the inquiry with regard to the within dispute. It is well established that a municipal governing body has the right to consider the total budget, including surplus, in making its determination as to what figure need be arrived at in order to ensure a thorough and efficient system of education in the district. Branchburg Board of Education v. Branchburg Township Committee, 187 N.J. Super. 540 (1983) It is equally certain that a board of education is empowered to maintain a reasonable surplus to meet unforeseen contingencies. Fair Lawn Board of Education v. Mayor and Council of Fair Lawn, 143 N.J. Super. 259 (Law Div. 1976) Further, the Commissioner has consistently held that a 3% surplus is reasonable. Board of Education of the City of Perth Amboy v. Council of the City of Perth Amboy, Middlesex County, 1987 S.L.D. 2262

In the present matter, the record is clear that the methodology employed by the Borough was reasonable on its face, but that the outcome was nonetheless flawed because it was based on figures and assumptions that the Board has proven through the results of an annual audit to have been premature, incomplete or erroneous. The Board did, indeed, as claimed by the Borough, advertise estimated free balances totaling $666,150, and the Borough identified yet another $273,900 in "surplus" through unexpended and/or unencumbered accounts as it purportedly found them in the papers it reviewed, leaving, in the Borough's reckoning, a surplus of $940,050 from which to make appropriations to current expense. (It is unclear whether the Borough realized that the Board had also advertised from this amount an appropriation to current expense of $300,000. If so, by the Borough's own reckoning a further reduction of $300,000 would have left the Board with a surplus of $340,050, or less than 2%; if not, the remaining balance after the Borough's directed appropriation would have been $640,050 or about 3% of the total General Fund budget of about $21 million.)

However, the fact remains that the annual audit--the Board's representation of which, the Commissioner notes, was neither disputed nor replied to by the Borough--revealed instead that the actual surplus available after review of all accounts was $450,912, even less than the amount anticipated by the Board in its advertised budget. From this, as had been advertised, $300,000 was applied to current expense, leaving the district with an actual audited free balance of $150,912, or less than 1% of its General Fund budget. Under these circumstances, the Commissioner cannot find, notwithstanding the Borough's attempt to carefully and systematically identify funds with which to offset tax levies, that what in reality would amount to a reduction of $300,000 in the district's General Fund budget can be sustained. To the contrary, the Commissioner notes that even the amount of surplus following restoration herein, a total of $450,912, is just over 2% of the district's budget.

Accordingly, the Commissioner finds that the amount in dispute in this matter is in fact necessary for provision of a thorough and efficient education and therefore directs the Middlesex County Board of Taxation to adjust the General Fund tax levy of the Borough of Carteret for the 1993-94 school year to reflect an increase of $300,000, for a total levy of $13,869,630.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

SYNOPSIS

Board appealed General Fund tax levy reductions in the amount of $1,467,652 and reduction in cap waiver in the amount of $687,890 made by governing body following voter rejection of proposed budget on April 20, 1993.

Upon review of the appeal herein to determine whether Board demonstrated that restoration of specific line item reductions was necessary in order to provide a thorough and efficient system of education in the district, Commissioner determined to restore reductions for a total General Fund tax levy of $59,713,145 for 1993-94 school purposes.

For Respondent, William F. Dowd, Esq. (Dowd & Reilly)

This consolidated matter was opened before the Commissioner on June 1, 1993 through the filing of a Petition of Appeal of a defeated budget by the Middletown Township Board of Education (Board) pursuant to the provisions of N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.1 et seq. The Board also filed on June 1, 1993 a Petition of Appeal of its defeated cap waiver. The Board sought restoration, on the grounds of necessity for a thorough and efficient education, of reductions by the Township Committee (Township) following voter rejection on April 20, 1993 of the Board's proposed budget and cap waiver. Subsequent to the defeat, the Board and Township, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37 and N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.2(b)2, consulted on the defeated budget and the Township reduced the General Fund tax levy by $1,467,652. The Township also reduced the cap waiver tax levy by $687,890. The cap waiver had been approved by the Monmouth County Superintendent of Schools as necessary for a thorough and efficient education of the students of Middletown Township, and the district's 1993-94 budget had consequently been granted only a conditional approval. Consequently, the monies in contention in this consolidated matter are as set forth below:

Proposed Tax Levy Adopted by Board of Education		Amount of Amended Tax Levy Certified by Governing Body
General Fund	$57,090,945	General Fund	$55,623,293
Cap Waiver	$2,622,200	Cap Waiver	$ 1,934,310
Amount of Reduction by Governing Body		Amount of Reduction in Dispute Before the Commissioner
General Fund	$ 1,467,652	General Fund	$ 1,467,652
Cap Waiver	$ 687,890	Cap Waiver	$ 687,890

On June 21, 1993, the Township submitted its Answer to both Petitions. Because the original Township resolution had a mathematical error in the calculation of the tax levy certified by the Township, an amended resolution was submitted on June 30, 1993. Amended petitions were filed by the Board on both issues on July 6, 1993. Answers to the amended petitions were submitted by the Township on July 21, 1993. Position Statements covering both matters were filed by the Township on August 12, 1993 and by the Board on August 16, 1993. The Board filed a Response to the Township's Position Statement on August 19, 1993. An affidavit was filed by the Monmouth County Superintendent of Schools and Monmouth County School Business Administrator on September 13, 1993 certifying the decision process employed during the budget and cap waiver review to provide sufficient funds for a thorough and efficien' educational system. On September 22, 1993, letters were submitted by both parties advising that they would not file any further replies. Upon receipt of these statements, the record of this consolidated matter was closed on September 22, 1993.

It must be noted that there were some errors in the documents submitted by both parties, including an incorrect total tax figure in the amended Answer submitted by the Township, incorrect Current Expense reduction figures in the Township Position Statement, and an error in identifying the Debt Service tax levy as a Capital Outlay tax levy in the charts in the Board's Petitions. These erros did not, however, effect the identification of the disputed reductions which were correctly specified in the resolutions submitted by both parties.

The specific reductions under appeal in the Current Expense tax levy are as follows:

Account		Reduction
J-110	Salaries - Administration	$ 7,850
J-120	Purchased Prof./Technical Services	25,000
J-213	Salaries - Teachers	267,867

J-740	Other Expenses for Repair of Buildings	25,300
	Additional Surplus Appropriation	750,000
	Total	$1,467,652

The proposed amounts and specific reductions in the T&E cap waiver are as follows:

I. Defeated Budget

In rendering judgment relative to budgetary appeals, the Commissioner notes that the Constitution of the State of New Jersey requires the Legislature to provide for a thorough and efficient system of education. The Legislature by way of statutory scheme has delegated the responsibility for providing such thorough and efficient system to local boards of education. Additionally, the Legislature pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9, 22-14, 22-17 and 22-37 has authorized the Commissioner of Education to review and decide appeals by boards of education seeking restoration of budgetary reductions imposed by local governing bodies. (See also Board of Education of East Brunswick Township v. Township Council of East Brunswick, 48 N.J. 94 (1966) and Board of Education of Deptford Township v. Mayor and Council of Deptford Township, 116 N.J. 305 (1989).)

In reviewing such appeals the Commissioner must determine whether a district board of education has demonstrated that the amount by which a specific line item reduction imposed by the governing body is necessary for the provision of a thorough and efficient system of education.

Mindful, then, of the balance to be applied in the standard of review, the Commissioner makes the following determination with respect to the reductions in the General Fund tax levy effectuated by the Township.

J-110 Salaries - Administration $7,850

The Township states that a retiring Records Specialist can be replaced at a lower salary to generate a savings of $7,850. The Board argues that, since 1993-94 negotiations are not yet completed, they estimated the salary needs based on average settlements of approximately 6% in Monmouth County. The Board states that this percentage would result in a first step salary guide figure of $21,200, which is greater than the amount certified by the Township. Provision of a thorough and efficient educational system requires a variety of related clerical tasks, definitely including the compilation of records. It is determined that districts must reasonably and realistically estimate to budget for salaries when negotiations are incomplete. The Commissioner, therefore, orders the restoration of the $7,850 reduction.

J-120 Purchased Professional/Technical Services $25,000

The Township states that the 1992-93 school budget analysis contains an unencumbered balance of $44,964.50 as of March 31, 1993. The Township adds that legal fees should be reduced in the 1993-94 budget since most negotiations have been completed. The Board states that the Township's rationale is incorrect because the negotiations services provided by the attorney are included in an annual retainer and that services outside of the retainer have for several years been under-budgeted. The Board states that the average expenditure for the past three years on legal fees has been $161,138, which is $61,138 more than the amount certified by the Township. Since legal services are very often essential to the operation of a school district, and since the Township's reduction appears to be based on an erroneous assumption, the Commissioner orders the restoration of the $25,000 reduction.

J-213 Salaries - Teachers $267,867

The Township's reduction is again based on savings it estimates can be achieved by replacing nine retiring staff members with teachers at a lower salary. The Board asserts in its Position Statement that the total figure used by the Township for the salaries of the retirees is incorrect and too high. The Board submits a list of the retiring teachers and salaries to verify this position. The Board also states that 1993-94 negotiations are not yet completed and that it is estimating the salary needs based on average settlements of approximately 6% in Monmouth County. The Board adds that, when replacement teachers for retirees are hired, the Board attempts to obtain the services of teachers with some experience. The Board also states that funds in this account are required for recurring expenses for long-term substitutes and the possibility of increased class size requiring the splitting of one class into two. The Board notes that it currently has 16 elementary classes of 27 or more students and that an unexpected increase of only a few students in any one of those classes may require splitting the class and hiring another teacher. There is no question that provision for sufficient qualified teachers is an essential component of a thorough and efficient educational system. The Commissioner cannot permit the Township to effectively restrict the Board to selecting only inexperienced candidates upon retirement of senior teachers. These must be a reasonable balance in this area in the recruitment and employment of teachers. The Commissioner orders the restoration of the $267,867 reduction.

J-215 Salaries - Clerical $11,400

The position of the Township is, as in the salary issues above, that a retiring secretary can be replaced at a lower salary. The Board argues as it did above that the budget includes estimated dollars based on average settlements since negotiations are not yet completed. The Board also states that the amount certified by the Township would be less than the estimated first step salary guide figure. It is determined, as stated above, that sufficient clerical staff members are necessary for the efficient operation of the school district and that reasonable and realistic dollars must be estimated for budgetary purposes. The Commissioner orders the restoration of the $11,400 reduction.

J-710 Salaries - Maintenance of Plant $300,000

The Township states that the staff of custodians and groundskeepers can be reduced by 10 positions since additional supervisors are included in the 1993-94 budget. The Board states that the Township's rationale is incorrect. The Board notes that the four supervisors hired for 1993-94 are replacements for positions which were terminated in the spring of 1992 when an outside maintenance management firm was hired. The contracted firm was not satisfactory to the Board, and the Board is returning to an in-house operation. The Board further maintains that the number of custodians and groundskeepers employed by the District may be too few, based on the size of the District which includes 18 major buildings and 395 acres of land. Since the maintenance of school buildings and grounds is required by code and is essential to the operation of the school district, it is determined that the Board has justified the proposed staffing of custodians and groundskeepers. The Commissioner orders the restoration of the $300,00 reduction.

J-640 Utilities $65,815

The Township states that the Board's increase of 4.98% for utilities is without justification. The Township further states that the Board should consider a "green light program" to generate electrical savings. The Township set the appropriation in this area at the 1992-93 level. The Board argues that a "green light program" would require a capital investment which has not been budgeted in 1993-94. The Board also submits a letter from Jersey Central Power & Light Company which recommends a budgeted increase of 8-9% for 1993-94 based on the rate increase approved for the company in February 1993. Based on the data presented, the Commissioner orders the restoration of the $65,815 reduction.

J-650 Supplies for Operating of Plant $14,420

The Township reduced this line item to provide a 10% increase. The Board argues that the Township has erred in its calculations. The Board states that the amount of $85,000 certified by the Township is less than the $91,567 spent in 1991-92. Again, the efficient operation of the plant is an essential component of a thorough and efficient educational system. Based on the data submitted, the Commissioner orders the restoration of the $14,420 reduction.

J-740 Other Expenses for Repair of Buildings $25,300

The Township also reduced this line item to provide a 10% increase. The Board again states that the Township's rationale is erroneous. The Board states that the amount of $377,950 budgeted for the item in 1992-94 is less than the $415,000 spent in 1992-93. Again, it is determined that the proper maintenance and repair of buildings is a critical requirement in the operation of a school district. The Commissioner determines that the data submitted verifies the necessity for these funds and orders the restoration of the $25,300 reduction.

Additional Surplus Appropriation $750,000

The Township states that an additional appropriation of $750,000 from surplus is reasonable and would provide an anticipated free balance of $884,245 as of June 30, 1994. The Board states that this amount would represent only 1.3% of the budget, and it asserts this would be irresponsible financial management. The Board also states that the free balance including the $750,000 would represent 2.3% of the budget. It notes that this is less than the 3 - 7.5% free balance allowances cited in statute and code. The Board further states that because of overexpenditures in 1988-89, its use of surplus funds is being monitored by the County Superintendent of Schools. It is definitely fiscally necessary and responsible for a board to maintain a reasonable free balance for financial protection in the event of unexpected and/or emergency situations. As the Board states, N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28 allows a free balance of 3% of the general fund budget when a cap waiver is requested, and N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-4 and N.J.A.C. 6:20-5.8(a) allow a free balance up to 7.5% of the net budget without penalty. Based on the data presented and statutory provisions, it is determined that the free balance which would result from the Township's action could jeopardize the financial security of the Board and thus potentially effect the thorough and efficient educational program in the District. The Commissioner orders the restoration of the $750,000 reduction.

Thus, for the reasons set forth above, the Commissioner determines to restore the entire $1,467,652 in the Current Expense tax levy reduction appealed herein, as summarized by the chart below:

Account		Restored
J-110	Salaries - Administration	$ 7,850
J-120	Purchased Professional/Technical Services	25,000
J-213	Salaries - Teachers	267,867
J-215	Salaries - Clerical	11,400
J-710	Salaries - Maintenance of Plant	300,000
J-640	Utilities	65,815
J-650	Supplies for Operating of Plant	14,420
J-740	Other Expenses for Repair of Buildings	25,300
	Additional Surplus Appropriation	750,000
	Total	$1,467,652

II. Cap Waiver

The Township reviewed the cap waiver appropriations and certified taxes for $1,934,310 as essential for a thorough and efficient education of the $2,622,200 requested in the waiver by the Board. There is a question as to the Township's legal authority to review this area. In any event, however, its review does not eliminate the Board's responsibility to substantiate and verify the need for funds to provide a thorough and efficient educational system.

This issue of cap waiver funds for the District and the verification of their necessity for the educational program is a complex one. The Board initially submitted a request for a cap waiver significantly greater than the amount proposed to the voters. After an intense review by the Commissioner's staff, this initial request was approved as essential to a thorough and efficient educational system. The approved amount was subsequently reduced two times by the Board in an effort to reduce the tax levy from the 1993-94 budget. These actions resulted in a letter of reprimand to the Board from Assistant Commissioner Elena Scambio advising that the Board would be monitored by the County Superintendent regarding how all items in the initial cap waiver request would be addressed. The cap waiver of $2,622,200 as submitted for voter approval was approved by the County Superintendent of Schools as essential for a thorough and efficient education and thus only conditional approval was given for the proposed 1993-94 budget.

The Board states that the District has budgeted below cap for four years and did not appeal Township reductions after defeated budgets. The Board asserts that this history has resulted in the need for the cap waiver items to provide a thorough and efficient educational system. In the documents submitted, the Board addressed the need for the items included in the cap waiver proposal.

K-12 Math/Science Initiative $450,000

The Board states that these funds are for textbooks, supplies and materials for the grades K-12 math/science initiative. The Board also states that these funds, to a large extent, are the same as those budgeted for 1992-93. Textbooks, supplies and materials are unquestionably essential to the provision of each specific curriculum area in a thorough and efficient educational system. The Commissioner grants the waiver request of $450,000.

Professional Service Equipment Contracts $400,000

The Board states that these monies are for contracts to service educational equipment. The Board adds that the Township's reduction was based on an incorrect assumption that these funds were for an outside maintenance firm contract which had been terminated. The Board states that no funds were budgeted for a maintenance service contract and that the $400,000 included in the cap waiver was for professional servicing for educational equipment. The Commissioner finds that appropriate servicing of educational equipment is an obviously necessary expenditure for a thorough and efficient educational system. It is also apparent that the Township's proposed reduction in this area was based on an erroneous position. The Commissioner grants the cap waiver request of $400,000.

Employee Medical Insurance $195,000

The Board states that the funds for employee medical insurance/workers' compensation insurance were budgeted in line with the notification of a 14% increase from the insurance carriers. The Board also states that the Township's reduction in this area was again in error with its claim that the Board has a self-insured medical insurance plan. The Commissioner determines that sufficient funds must be budgeted to provide statutory and contractual employee benefits and grants the cap waiver of $195,000.

Resource Centers - Mandated Programs $477,200

The Board states that the monies in this request are for resource centers to meet the requirements for newly mandated special education programs. The Board states that it has employed in 1993-94 seven new teachers of the handicapped and seven new aides in order to provide the resource centers programs. The Board also states that it will continue to maintain its existing special education classes for over 1400 in-district students with various disabilities. Both federal and state statutes require comprehensive educational services and programs to special education students to ensure the provision of a complete and appropriate education for each child. The Commissioner grants the cap waiver of $477,200.

	Interest $428,723
Capital Lease Program	Principal $671,277

The Board states that it utilized a capital lease program to provide the equipment necessary for a thorough and efficient educational system. The Board states that the monies budgeted for principal and interest on this lease are obligatory under the lease agreement and must be paid. The Board adds that the lease program was selected to purchase the equipment because the Board could not budget $3,200,000 in a single year to purchase all the equipment needed. The Board contends that the Township's reduction of $750,000 in leased equipment to achieve its proposed reduction in the 1993-94 cap waiver would negatively affect the provision of a thorough and efficient educational system. The Board adds that the purchase of educational equipment and supplies have been significantly impacted by underspending the District budget caps for a prolonged period of time. The Commissioner finds that the Board has developed a legitimate and reasonable fiscal plan to provide the equipment necessary for a thorough and efficient educational system. The cap waiver of $428,723 for capital lease program interest and $671,277 for capital lease program principal is granted.

In summary, upon review of the Board's position and supporting documentation, the Commissioner finds and determines that the $2,622,200 in General Fund cap waiver monies sought by the Board are necessary for mandated services and contractual obligations which are essential to the provision of a thorough and efficient educational program and that reallocation within the maximum permissible budget is not possible. Board of Education of the Borough of Rutherford v. Mayor and Council of the Borough of Rutherford, Bergen County, decided by the State Board of Education July 7, 1993.

Accordingly, the Monmouth County Board of Taxation is directed to make the necessary adjustment as set forth below to reflect a total of $59,713,145 to be raised in tax levy for General Fund purposes by the Township of Middletown for the 1993-94 school year.

	General Fund Budget	Cap Waiver
Original Tax Levy	$57,090,945	$2,622,200
Reduction	1,467,652	687,890
Tax Levy After Reduction	55,623,293	1,934,310
Restoration	1,467,652	687,890
Tax Levy After Restoration	57,090,945	2,622,200

Total General Fund $59,713,145

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF MIDDLETOWN, PETITIONER-RESPONDENT, V. TOWNSHIP COMMITTEE OF THE TOWNSHIP OF MIDDLETOWN, MONMOUTH COUNTY, RESPONDENT-APPELLANT, AND IN THE MATTER OF THE CAP WAIVER APPEAL OF THE MIDDLETOWN TOWNSHIP SCHOOL DISTRICT, MONMOUTH COUNTY.	:	STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION DECISION

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, November 4, 1993

For the Petitioner-Respondent, Kalac, Newman, Lavender & Campbell (Peter P. Kalac, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Appellant, Dowd & Reilly (William F. Dowd, Esq., of Counsel)

The Board of Education of the Township of Middletown (hereinafter "Board") sought restoration of reductions made by the Township Committee of the Township of Middletown (hereinafter "Township"), pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37, following voter rejection of the Board's proposed 1993-94 budget and cap waiver. The Township had reduced the Board's proposed General Fund tax levy by $1,467,652 and its proposed cap waiver by $687,890. On November 4, 1993, the Commissioner of Education directed restoration of all such amounts reduced by the Township.

MARCH 2, 1994

The Township thereupon filed the instant appeal to the State Board. The Township has also filed a motion to supplement the record pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.9 with a portion of the final audit report of the Board for the 1992-93 school year, the payment schedule for debt service and interest owed by the Board to the Monmouth County Improvement Authority, and the Board's salary audit for 1993-94. The Board opposes such motion as involving materials and information not yet in existence during the proceedings before the Commissioner. The Board maintains that, if the Township's motion is granted, then it should be permitted to supplement the record on appeal with an affidavit of the Superintendent of Schools relating that subsequent events revealed that the district had underbudgeted for transportation costs in 1993-94.

The nature of the budget process is such as to require that a determination on disputed school budgets be made on the basis of information which was available for review by the Commissioner, rather than predicated on continually evolving financial circumstances which were not known to or considered by the governing body at the time it acted to reduce the budget which is the subject of the appeal. Bd. of Ed., E. Brunswick Tp. v Tp. Council, E. Brunswick, 48 N.J. 94, 105-106 (1966). In this instance, the exhibits proposed by the Township and Board and the information contained therein were not considered by the Township in effectuating the reductions at issue herein or available for review by the Commissioner. Consequently, we conclude that the record before us should not be supplemented with such materials, and we deny the parties' motions.

We recognize our limitations in reviewing Commissioner's decisions with respect to budgets established by municipal governing bodies pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37. Bd. of Ed., E. Brunswick Tp. v. Tp. Council, supra. See N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.5 through N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.8. However, we can not ignore our obligation to assure that the education budget is sufficient to enable the Board to provide a thorough and efficient education to the district's students. Board of Education of Deptford Township v. Mayor and Council of Deptford Township, 116 N.J. 305 (1989); Bd. of Ed., E. Brunswick Tp. v. Tp. Council, supra. Accordingly, in this context, we affirm the decision of the Commissioner to restore the reductions made to the budget and cap waiver. In so doing, we reiterate that the appeal by the Township in this case is based in large part on those documents forming the basis of its motion to supplement, which we have denied.[1] Disregarding those materials, which are not part of the record in this matter, see N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.14, we find that the Township has proffered no valid reason for disturbing the Commissioner's decision.

March 2, 1994

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Board appealed General Fund tax levy reductions in the amount of $224,600 made by governing body following voter rejection of proposed budget on April 20, 1993.

Upon review of the appeal herein to determine whether Board demonstrated that restoration of specific line item reductions was necessary in order to provide a thorough and efficient system of education in the district, Commissioner determined to restore $183,500 for a total General Fund tax levy of $5,062,526 for 1993-94 school purposes.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF FLORENCE, PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
TOWNSHIP COUNCIL OF THE TOWNSHIP OF FLORENCE, BURLINGTON COUNTY, RESPONDENT.	:	DECISION

For Petitioner, Stephen J. Mushinski, Esq.

For Respondent, William T. Wilkins, Esq. (Wilkins & Vallone)

The Board of Education of the Township of Florence (Board) appeals to the Commissioner of Education from an action taken by Township Council of the Township of Florence (Council) pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37, certifying to the Burlington County Board of Taxation a lesser amount for General Fund costs for the 1993-94 school year than the amount proposed by the Board in its budget which was rejected by the voters.

At the annual school election held on April 20, 1993, the Board submitted to the electorate a proposal to raise $5,103,626 by local taxation for General Fund costs of the school district. After the voters' rejection of the proposal, the Board submitted its budget to Council for its determination of the amount necessary for the operation of a thorough and efficient school system in Florence Township for the 1993-94 school year pursuant to the mandatory obligation imposed on Council by N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37.

After consultation with the Board, Council made its determination and certified to the Burlington County Board of Taxation an amount of $4,879,026 for General Fund costs.

STANDARD OF REVIEW

In rendering judgment relative to budgetary appeals, the Commissioner notes that the Constitution of the State of New Jersey requires the Legislature to provide for a thorough and efficient system of education. The Legislature by way of statutory scheme has delegated the responsibility for providing such thorough and efficient system to local boards of education. Additionally, the Legislature pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9, 22-14, 22-17 and 22-37 has authorized the Commissioner of Education to review and decide appeals by boards of education seeking restoration of budgetary reductions imposed by local governing bodies. (See also Board of Education of East Brunswick Township v. Township Council of East Brunswick, 48 N.J. 94 (1966) and Board of Education of Deptford Township v. Mayor and Council of Deptford Township, 116 N.J. 305 (1989).)

In reviewing such appeals the Commissioner must determine whether a district board of education has demonstrated that the amount by which a specific line item reduction imposed by the governing body is necessary for the provision of a thorough and efficient system of education.

Mindful, then, of the balance to be applied in this standard of review, the Commissioner makes the following determination with respect to the reduction in the General Fund tax levy effectuated by the Council.

GENERAL FUND LINE

11-402-100-600-FHS-000-S	Supplies Athletic/Exp.	6,000
	Total	$124,600

Further, Council directed the Board to add to its budget an additional $100,000 from the General Fund Free Appropriations Balance, for a total reduction of $224,600.

The Board contends that the budget reductions by Council are without proper foundation; therefore, they are arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable. Further, the amount certified by Council will not provide sufficient funds to the Board to conduct a thorough and efficient system of schools. Council denies that its determinations are arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable, and asserts that the school budget it adopted meets the criteria established by N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37.

In the Commissioner's judgment, Council has supplied reasons for its ultimate determination regarding each of the line items reduced; therefore, the budget will be considered according to Council's specific reductions.

Line Item	Reduction
11-140-100-610-000-176-H, Instrumental Music	$5,000

Council avers that the Board should maintain the status quo in this item by utilizing the instruments that were in its inventory during the prior school year. Council also recommends the practice it noticed in other school districts of requiring pupils, who participate in the musical instrument program and do not own an instrument, to lease the specific instrument which they utilize at a relatively minimal cost.

The Board asserts that its philosophy is that every pupil should have the right to participate in any aspect of this extracurricular program which includes the opportunity to learn to play a musical instrument and to participate in the band program. In order to facilitate this philosophy, the Board has approximately 22 wind instruments for its music program for grades four through twelve, and at present there are approximately 150 pupils participating. The proposed budget reduction would severely limit the number of instruments the music program could purchase, even through the most frugal leasing programs currently available. Further, the reduction would necessitate that only children whose parents have the financial ability to supply instruments would be able to participate in the instrumental music program.

The Commissioner notes with approval the Board's effort to improve and build its music program. Extracurricular activities are important to a child's schooling just as other components in the educational process are. With the ability to procure more instruments, a larger percentage of pupils will be able to participate. As the Board points out, its program would go from being inclusive to exclusive and severely limited in scope if participation is limited to pupils who have the financial ability, rather than otherwise talented pupils whose families are without the financial ability to support their participation in the instrumental music program. The Board's position is reasonable, justified, and its rationale is adequately supported. Accordingly, the $5,000 reduction will be restored to the budget.

Line Item		Reduction
Teachers' Salaries
11-110-100-101-000-00-A	Preschool-K	$12,500
11-120-100-101-000-00-A	Grades 1-5	each
11-130-100-101-000-00-A	Grades 6-8	($50,000)
11-140-100-101-000-00-A	Grades 9-12

Council simply states that each of the above areas is "Overstaffed." Using tables showing class sizes and the current staff, the Board argued at great length that any reduction in staff would cause severe overcrowding at every grade level in every school in the district. A review of those tables supports the Board's argument; however, Council does not seek to reduce a staff member for every class at every grade level in the district. Rather, Council merely suggests that $12,500 can be cut from each of the four accounts listed above with the resultant reduction of no more than one or two teachers.

In the Commissioner's judgment, it is not enough to say that a school or a grade level is overstaffed without showing specifically where. Although the organization and staffing of schools is the province of the Board, the single word "Overstaffed," without more, suggests an arbitrary reduction. Further, this is a money reduction, not a staff reduction, indicating that Council did not know how its reduction could affect staff or class size at any level. Although it appears to Council that a $50,000 overall reduction in these salary accounts would not prevent the Board from operating a thorough and efficient system of education, its suggestion lacks the specificity required for affirmation of its determination. Accordingly, the $50,000 reduction will be restored to the budget.

Line Item	Reduction
11-000-260-100-CUS-A, Maintenance Services	$20,000

Council eliminated two additional custodians included in the Board's budget suggesting that they are not needed. Council states that the new middle school, scheduled for completion in February 1994, will eliminate the need for custodians at the six trailers now housing the middle school pupils. Those trailers will no longer need custodial services.

The Board argues that its new middle school will add more than 45,000 square feet which must be cleaned and maintained. Also, there will be additional areas which will be opened for special school events and other extracurricular activities. Those events must be monitored by a custodian. Further, if these positions are eliminated, the Board asserts that it will have an insufficient number of custodians to clean and maintain its schools. The result might be the curtailing of some events and some extracurricular activities; therefore, the pupils' school life and learning experiences will suffer and the Board will be unable to provide its state-mandated thorough and efficient education.

The Commissioner has reviewed the positions of the litigants and considers the additional 45,000 square feet that will need to be cleaned and maintained a major factor in the Board's budget for more custodial help upon the completion of the new middle school. It appears that the elimination of the six trailers will not negate the need for additional custodians because there will be greater areas of responsibility with the new building. The Board's position in this regard is reasonable; therefore, the $20,000 reduction of the two custodial positions will be restored to the budget.

Line Item	Reduction
11-000-260-610-000, Maintenance, Building and Grounds	$1,000

The Board states that the $1,000 eliminated by Council was to be used for reimbursement to the buildings and grounds supervisor, as well as the support staff, for licensing fees and tuition reimbursement. Specifically, the buildings and grounds supervisor is required to take courses within the New Jersey Public School Facility Supervisors Program at Rutgers University for recertification of pesticide applicator licenses, as well as the boiler license. Additionally, the support staff is required to complete and pass the black seal boiler school for which they are to receive a reimbursement of the cost of attending, as well as a reimbursement for the fee of obtaining their black seal boiler license.

Council rejects the Board's justification for this line item and maintains that the line item is overbudgeted. Council asserts that as a cost-saving measure, the Board should hire personnel who have already obtained the necessary licenses to operate the various machinary and equipment involved.

The Board states that the support staff cannot personally afford to pay for the licensing fees which are required by the district under the present negotiating contract. Further, if this money is not restored, it may be necessary to retain outside contractors to perform this work at a greater cost than the $1,000 it seeks to be restored to its budget.

Having considered the positions of both parties, the Commissioner does not find any support for the proposition that the line item is overbudgeted. The Commissioner does find, however, that the Board's statement is reasonable, rational and compelling. Consequently, the $1,000 reduction will be restored to the budget.

Line Item	Reduction
Expenses 11-230-89-SBA-000-A, Board Office Expenses; 11-000-230-890-000-00-A, Board Member Expenses; 11-00-230-890-SUP-00-A, Superintendent's Office	$8,500

These line items were reduced by Council in the aggregate sum of $8,500 based on its determination that in each of the three line items, there are sums appropriated to reimburse expenses incurred at the annual School Board Convention held in Atlantic City. The line item designated "Board Office Expenses" appropriated the sum of $8,525 for supplies for the Board office, other valid office expenses, and convention expenses, dues and subscriptions. Council reduced this line item by $2,000, eliminating convention expenses, dues and subscriptions.

The line item designated "Board Member Expenses" provides for convention expenses of $3,500. All other expenses are $2,000 for a total line item expense of $5,500. Council suggests that the Board should pay only registration fees and that its members should pay for their own food and lodging.

Under "Superintendent's Office Expenses" Council deducted $1,000 for convention expenses, dues and subscriptions from the original budget of $3,860. The balance of the account includes all the supplies and materials needed to run the Superintendent's office. Council states that these three reductions will not detrimentally affect the quality of education in the school district.

The Board defends these line items in great detail and explains the benefits its members derive from attending the annual School Board Convention. During the convention, Board members attend meetings, co-mingle with Board members from all over the state and learn vital information provided in workshops presented by the New Jersey School Boards Association.

The Commissioner considers the annual School Board Convention in Atlantic City to be a worthwhile and beneficial experience for Board members. The convention has the reputation of providing a great deal of information which can be useful to Board members. Further, the ideas Board members share with others is immeasurable. However, the Commissioner finds and determines that the Board has failed to demonstrate that its obligation to educate itself necessitates the full Board's attendance at inservice events, including the annual workshop. See Board of Education of the Borough of Bergenfield v. Mayor and Council of Bergenfield, Bergen County, 1991 S.L.D. 2225. Nor has the Board demonstrated that greater economics cannot be exercised in attendant discretionary expenditures without impairing the provision of a thorough and efficient education. Therefore, the following reductions will be sustained: Board Office Expenses - $2,000; Board Member Expenses - $3,500 ($2,000 for all other expenses will be restored to the budget); Superintendent's Office Expenses - $1,000, for an aggregate reduction in these accounts of $6,500 with $2,000 restored to the budget.

Line Item	Reduction
11-000-260-620-ELE-000-A, Electricity	$10,000

Council avers that the Board increased this line item by 30% over its prior year's budget based on the opening of the new middle school during the first part of next year. And although Council concedes that there will be a necessary increase for electricity, it states that the Board did not consider that there will be no further need to provide electricity to the temporary class rooms located in trailers which currently house the middle school which will be eliminated.

The Board argues that its electricity costs have gone up an average of 5% for each of the past three years. Considering these increases and an estimate of the cost of electricity for the new building which was provided by Public Service Gas and Electric, it placed an additional $21,000 in the item to cover the cost of electricity for the middle school after it is opened.

In the Commissioner's judgment, Council has allowed for an increase in this account, and it is noted that the Board did not comment about an estimated savings generated by the elimination of the middle school trailers. Council has made a reasonable determination; therefore, the $10,000 reduction will be sustained.

11-000-260-620-HTG-000-A, Heat (Gas)	$5,000

The arguments of the litigants for and against this line item are identical to those set forth in the Electricity account above. Here, the Board increased this line item by $24,000 which Council considers to be overestimated; therefore, it was cut by $5,000. The Board, arguing as it did above, considers its protection reasonable based on past years' increases and an estimate by Public Service.

Having considered the arguments, the Commissioner finds Council's position to be reasonable. It has made a modest reduction while providing for an increase in this account; therefore, the $5,000 reduction will be sustained.

Line Item	Reduction
11-401-100-100-000-00-A, Extracurricular Salaries	$4,000

The Board asserts that the amount appropriated for the 1993-94 school year represents nearly a $2,000 reduction from the amount which was appropriated in the 1992-93 school year for this line item. Further, a decrease in the extracurricular salaries will result in the elimination of a particular extracurricular activity. The Board believes that these activities are necessary for a well-rounded education for its pupils and seeks restoration of the full reduction.

Council believes that the extracurricular activities can be maintained, despite its reduction, without detrimentally affecting the programs that are offered. Council does not intend to eliminate any extracurricular activities; however, it states that it "was solely motivated in an effort to effect cost savings, given today's poor economic conditions."

In the Commissioner's judgment, Council's reasoning is deficient. Guidelines have been established for municipal governing bodies considering reductions in a budget proposed by a local board of education when that budget has been rejected by the voters. In that regard, the Court stated in part as follows:

> The governing body may, of course, seek to effect savings which will not impair the educational process. But its determinations must be independent ones properly related to educational considerations rather than voter reactions.

Board of Education of East Brunswick Township v. Township Council, East Brunswick, 48 N.J. 105 (1966)

In the present matter, Council failed to make any educational considerations concerning this reduction; whereas, the Board adequately set forth its rationale detailing the need for these monies. Consequently, the $4,000 reduction will be restored to the budget.

Line Item	Reduction
11-402-100-100-000-000-A, Athletic Salaries	$13,600

Council reduced this line item by 10% to effect a cost savings by reducing athletic programs that will not affect the school district's ability to provide a thorough and efficient education, while maintaining an adequate sports program.

The Board contends that this cut will force the school district to discontinue all middle school and freshman sports. The Board explains in great detail the educational and social values pupils experience in athletic programs and states that its pupils will be denied these benefits if it is forced to eliminate certain athletic programs.

In the Commissioner's judgment, 10% cut in this budgeted item should not cause the elimination of all middle school and freshman sports. There are other options including an across-the-board reduction of the entire athletic program. Further, it has not been shown that the Board will be unable to provide a thorough and efficient educational program irrespective of this reduction by Council; therefore, the $13,600 reduction will be sustained.

Line Item	Reduction
11-000-270-600-GAS-000, Gasoline, Oil	$1,500

Council states that this account has increased over the amount appropriated by the Board in its prior school year budget. Council determined that its reduction was attainable without detrimentally affecting the transportation operations of the school district.

The Board argues that it has increased its transportation responsibilities because of an increase in the number of its special education pupils and the changing of its attendance areas because of classroom availability. This has resulted in the need to purchase two additional buses.

Under these circumstances, the Commissioner finds it entirely reasonable to budget this modest increase for fuel and oil. Accordingly, the $1,500 reduction will be restored to the budget.

11-402-100-600-FHS-000-S, Athletic Supplies	$6,000

Council considers this line item overbudgeted and too large an expenditure for athletic supplies. While concerned for the safety of school pupils, Council believes that this savings can be attained by postponing replacement of supplies and equipment where they are still serviceable and can be utilized without placing in jeopardy the safety and well-being of the school pupils.

The Board states that the amount budgeted does not represent any increase over the amount appropriated and actually expended in 1992-93. The Board maintains that the proposed cut would eliminate many items which are essential to the care and maintenance of the current athletic equipment, as well as eliminate supplies designed for the protection of the student athletes.

In the Commissioner's judgment, such an expenditure is desirable but not necessary for the maintenance of a thorough and efficient educational program. The record shows that sufficient funds remain in this account despite Council's reduction; therefore, the $6,000 reduction in this line item will be sustained.

Line Item	Reduction
Free Balance	$100,000

The General Fund Free Appropriations Balance was reduced by Council in the amount of $100,000. Council states that the remaining balance of $308,043 is more than adequate to protect the school district from any emergency contingencies.

The Board argues that its current free balance represents approximately 3.7% of its proposed 1993-94 budget and that it has outstanding a number of issues which could seriously deplete its free balance. Specifically, there is the matter of a potential residential placement of a pupil at a cost of over $80,000. Another matter concerns a possible back pay judgment against the Board in excess of $100,000. And the school district is in the midst of an $11,000,000 renovation/construction project which could demand further funding from its free balance.

In the Commissioner's judgment, the Board's free balance is marginal considering the contingencies outstanding for which the Board could become liable.

In Board of Education of Fair Lawn v. Mayor and Council of Fair Lawn, 143 N.J. Super. 259 (Law Div. 1976), aff'd 153 N.J.

Super. 480 (App. Div. 1977), the court held that "the board has the right, subject to ultimate review by the Commissioner of Education, to maintain a reasonable surplus in order to meet unforeseen contingencies." (at 273) See also: Board of Education of the Town of Dover v. Mayor and Aldermen of the Town of Dover, Morris County, 1991 S.L.D. 1330 wherein the Commissioner concluded that a surplus of 1.9% of the current expense budget was "insufficient to sustain the Board against unforeseen contingencies." (at 1343) Both in prior case law and in regulation, the Commissioner has held 3% as the amount of surplus to be generally regarded as reasonable and necessary. (N.J.A.C. 6:20-2.13)

In Board of Education of Delaware Valley Regional High School District v. Township of Alexandria et al., decided by the Commissioner, February 6, 1989, aff'd in part/rev'd in part by the State Board, August 2, 1989, the State Board of Education determined a free balance of approximately 4% of the current expense budget to be a slender reserve. See Board of Education of the Township of West Orange v. Township Council of West Orange, Essex County, decided by the Commissioner January 28, 1991.

In the present matter, the Board's free balance is insufficient when measured against the above guidelines. Based on the rationale articulated in the several decisions above, the $100,000 reduction in the General Fund free balance will be restored to the budget.

A revised table of the reductions showing the amounts restored and sustained is set forth below:

Description	Restored	Not Restored
Instrumental Music	$ 5,000	$ -0-
Sals. Tchr's Presch-K	12,500	-0-

GRAND TOTAL	$183,500	$41,100

This tabulation shows that $183,500 must be restored to the budget. Accordingly, the Burlington County Board of Taxation is directed to add to the local tax levy for the Township of Florence School District $183,500 for General Fund current expense purposes for the 1993-94 school year which when added to the amount of $4,879,026 previously certified by the governing body will result in a total General Fund current expense tax levy of $5,062,526.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning parent sought determination that Board had wrongfully dismissed her daughter (A.I.) from summer school, thus causing A.I. to be ineligible for eleventh grade due to lack of ten credits.

Initial decision found that summer school participants had received memo stating: "DISORDERLY STUDENTS WILL IMMEDIATELY BE DROPPED FROM ALL COURSES WITH NO TUITION REFUND." ALJ found A.I.'s due process rights were not violated. Since summer school is a privilege, not a right, A.I.'s misbehavior in getting involved in fighting incident gave Board rational basis to dismiss her from program. Petition was dismissed.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision.

Terri Ivory, petitioner, pro se

Peter Shebell, Jr., Esq., for respondent (Shebell & Schibell, attorneys)

Record Closed: October 6, 1993 Decided: October 21, 1993

BEFORE M. KATHLEEN DUNCAN, ALJ:

This matter was commenced on August 20, 1993, when Terri Ivory on behalf of her daughter A.I. (hereinafter petitioner) filed an Amended Petition of Appeal with the Commissioner of Education seeking a determination that the Board of Education of the Township of Ocean (hereinafter respondent) had wrongfully dismissed her daughter from the summer school program and requesting an order requiring respondent to permit A.I. to make up two weeks of summer school work and take the exams in order to receive the ten credits necessary to move to eleventh grade. Petitioner's request for emergent relief was denied by the Commissioner of Education, and on September 13, 1993 the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. A prehearing conference was conducted on September 21, 1993, at which time the issues for determination at hearing were identified as follows:

1. Was A.I. improperly expelled from summer school?

2. If the answer to the previous question is yes, what are the appropriate remedies?

The plenary hearing was scheduled pursuant to the procedures for accelerated proceedings under N.J.A.C. 1:1-9.4 for October 6, and 12, 1993, at the Trenton Office of the Office of Administrative Law. The hearing commenced as scheduled on October 6, 1993 and concluded on the same date whereupon the record closed.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Most of the facts relevant to a determination of this matter are not in dispute and I therefore find the following as uncontested facts.

A.I., a student enrolled at Neptune High School for 1992-93 school year, failed to satisfactorily complete the course requirements for Applied Biology and English II and accordingly determined to take the courses in summer school to obtain the ten credits necessary to commence the 1993-94 school year as a junior. She spoke with the Guidance Department in Neptune High School and was advised that Ocean Township High School offered both courses and was the least expensive summer school option. On June 30, 1993, A.I. registered for both courses and paid the required $150 per course fee. The registration materials which were provided to A.I. at this time included a brochure describing the five-week (July 2 through August 6, 1993) summer school session. That brochure provided in pertinent part:

> DISCIPLINE - An atmosphere conducive to learning is essential for a successful summer school. Students are expected to exercise self-control, act respectfully, and arrive daily ready to learn. Misbehavior will result in dismissal with no tuition refund. Proper attire must be worn at all time (shirts & shoes). Smoking is not allowed at any time in the building or on the grounds. Food and beverages are not allowed in the classrooms. Students who are enrolled in both sessions are not permitted to assemble in the parking lot or leave the school grounds between classes. (R-1 in evidence)

A.I.'s signature and the signature of her father on the June 30, 1993 application for admission appear directly below the statement, "I agree to meet all requirements and abide by all the rules and regulations of Ocean Township Summer School 1993." (R-2 in evidence) A separate memorandum distributed to all summer school participants reiterates, "DISORDERLY STUDENTS WILL IMMEDIATELY BE DROPPED FROM ALL COURSES WITH NO TUITION REFUND." (R-5 in evidence).

A.I. attended classes between July 2, and July 20, 1993, without incident. On July 20, 1993, however, a series of incidents occurred which resulted in a determination by Annette Caccamise, Director of the Summer School, that A.I. would not be permitted to return to the summer school thereafter and would not receive a refund of her tuition monies.

The series of events which resulted in A.I.'s dismissal from summer school commenced at approximately 12:15 p.m. on Tuesday, July 20, 1993, while A.I. was attending her English II course. At that time the door to the classroom opened and some female teenagers announced that they were there to fight with D.F. When Ms. Caccamise noticed these girls in the hallway shortly thereafter, they advised her that they were waiting for their cousin; Ms. Caccamise advised them that they could not wait inside the building and asked them to leave. She escorted them to the door. As she was returning to her office, Mr. Costa, A.I.'s English teacher, approached her and informed her that he had been advised by A.I. that those girls were there to fight D.F., her "sister." Ms. Caccamise returned to the building doorway where she observed the girls sitting on a wall outside of the school. She approached them and asked them whether they were there to fight D.F. While she was talking with the girls, D.F. walked out the front door of the school and passed them on her way to her mother's car. Ms. Caccamise then approached D.F., and her mother. Ms. F. provided Ms. Caccamise with the history of the longstanding conflict between the girls and D.F., following which Ms. Caccamise advised D. F. and her mother to leave immediately. When D. protested that she had to go back into the school to get her keys and her books, Ms. Caccamise instructed her to go promptly to lock herself in her mother's car, and Ms. F. walked backed into the building with Ms. Caccamise to retrieve the books and keys. On the way Ms. F. and Ms. Caccamise stopped to talk with the girls who were still sitting on the wall outside the front door. Ms. Caccamise advised them that the school had a social worker and asked whether they would be interested in having him mediate this dispute. When they seemed interested, she advised them she would contact Dr. McGroogan, the social worker, and she asked them to leave.

By the time Ms. Caccamise and Ms. F. had returned to the classroom, it was 12:25 p.m. and summer school had been dismissed. A.I. was still in the classroom, however, and she spoke to Ms. Caccamise, saying words to the effect, "If they fight my sister I'm going to fight them. If anybody messes with my sister, I will fight them." As Ms. Caccamise, Ms. F. and A.I. walked toward the front door, Ms. Caccamise advised A.I. that she should refrain from becoming involved in any altercation because it was cause for immediate dismissal. A.I. repeated her intention to fight if the girls were fighting with D., at which point, as the three approached the doorway Ms. Caccamise noticed students standing on the wall looking toward the parking area. She went right back into the building and told her secretary to call the police.

Outside the building D.F., instead of locking herself in her own car as instructed, had crossed the parking lot to the driveway where petitioner had parked her car and was waiting for her daughter. D.F. said, "Mom," (which is how she addressed petitioner because A.I. and she were good friends, "those girls are here to beat me up." Pursuant to petitioner's instructions, D.F. got into the back seat of petitioner's car and locked the door. Almost immediately the girls who had been sitting on the wall outside the school building front door came over to petitioner's car and began pounding on the car and shouting words to the effect, "Bitch, we going to beat your ass today." Petitioner, who was in her car behind the driver's wheel, shouted to the girls to get away from her car and to stop pounding it. When they did not listen, petitioner got out of the car and was attempting to move them away from it when one of the girls reached inside the open door, unlocked the back door and dragged D.F. out. D.F. and one of the girls, J. O., began fighting. Petitioner intervened between the two of them and was attempting to break up the fight and in the process she herself was hit on the side of the head either by J. or by D. Petitioner then heard her daughter A.I. shouting loudly several times, "You hit my mother. You bitch, you hit my mother." By the time Ms. Caccamise, Ms. F. and A.I. arrived on the scene of the fight, the fight had been broken up by some other teachers who were in the area. A.I., however, kept shouting, "You hit my mother", to which petitioner responded, "No, get in the car." A.I., however, did not follow her mother's instructions and kept yelling. At this point one of the other girls, S.H., yelled at A.I., "I did not," and ran over and began hitting A.I. Petitioner intervened between S.H. and her daughter and attempted to push her daughter into the car. In the process she was again hit on the side of her head, this time by S.H. The police arrived and the fight was stopped. Petitioner and A.I. went to the police station and filed charges against the girls who had been involved in the fight.

Later that same day, after petitioner had reported to her nursing job at Monmouth Medical Center, she received a telephone call from Ms. Caccamise who advised her that she was glad that charges had been filed against the girls and that she was sorry about what had happened, but that A.I. could not come back to summer school. The next morning petitioner went to school and spoke with Ms. Caccamise about what had happened. Ms. Caccamise advised petitioner that A.I. had been involved in a fight because she had not been quiet and had not gotten into the car immediately as she had been instructed to do. Petitioner advised Ms. Caccamise that A.I. had not been fighting because she, petitioner, had prevented it. Ms. Caccamise advised petitioner of her determination to dismiss all of the girls who were involved from summer school, as it was her judgment that they were all engaged in misbehavior warranting dismissal. Petitioner then contacted the Guidance Department at Neptune High School to ascertain whether there was any way she could arrange for A.I. to obtain the credits necessary for her to move to eleventh grade. The Guidance Department advised her that there was not. She then contacted the Commissioner's office, Division of Controversies and Disputes, and spoke with Mrs. Kim about filing a petition of appeal with the Commissioner for emergency relief. Unfortunately, by the time petitioner received the materials sent to her by the Commissioner's office concerning how to file a petition of appeal, summer school was over. Petitioner's original petition was prepared on August 13, 1993; an amended petition seeking emergent relief was filed on August 20, 1993. Mrs. Kim advised petitioner that the request for emergent relief was denied, but the matter would be transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law and processed on an accelerated basis.

The few areas of factual dispute in this matter are not truly relevant to a determination of the matter, nor do they reflect adversely upon the credibility of any of the witnesses. Ms. Caccamise testified that she did not see petitioner being hit by any of the girls prior to the altercation between S.H. and A.I.; upon examination by the undersigned, however, she acknowledged that she did not know what had happened before she arrived upon the scene and that A.I. had been a few steps ahead of her in arriving at the scene. Ms. Caccamise also testified that she heard A.I. shout only the word "mother" before S.H. attacked her. Then she further testified that she had yelled at A.I. repeatedly, "Shut-up and get in the car". Petitioner testified that she did not hear Ms. Caccamise yelling at A.I. at that time, but with all the excitement and confusion of the fight, however, this is not surprising. Finally, petitioner testified that Ms. Caccamise had advised her the day after the incident that A.I. had been doing all right in both of her courses and would probably have gotten the ten credits. Ms. Caccamise testified that at the time A.I. was dismissed from summer school she was passing the English course but failing the Biology course. A.I. acknowledged that she had not been passing the Biology course, and accordingly, petitioner's recollection was simply inaccurate. The outcome of this matter is not dependent upon the resolution of any factual disputes; it requires, rather, a legal determination concerning whether A.I.'s due process rights were violated by respondent's failure to provide her a hearing prior to dismissal and whether respondent's determination to terminate A.I.'s summer school enrollment was arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable.

APPLICABLE LAW AND DISCUSSION

The rule is well settled that actions of local boards of education which lie within the area of their discretionary powers may not be upset unless patently arbitrary, without rational basis or induced by improper motives. Kopera v. West Orange Bd. of Education, 60 N.J. Super. 288 (App. Div. 1960). Which courses of study to offer and when to offer them have been held to be discretionary decisions left to local boards of education. Parsippany-Troy Hills Ed. Ass'n v. Bd. of Ed., 188 N.J. Super. 161 (App. Div. 1983). School districts are not required to conduct summer schools; whether to do so and what rules and regulations to impose for participants therein are areas for the board's discretionary judgment. R-1 in evidence, the brochure prepared by the Ocean Township High School Summer School Director setting forth rules and regulations for the operation of the summer program, emphasizes in plain language that "(s)tudents are expected to exercise self-control, act respectfully and arrive daily ready to learn." "Misbehavior will result in dismissal with no tuition refund,"the brochure states.

Petitioner argues that A.I.'s conduct on July 20, 1992, wherein she disregarded the instructions of Ms. Caccamise, the Summer School Director and her mother to remain silent and to get in the car to avoid any altercation, was not unreasonable under the circumstances. It is petitioner's position that A.I. was not involved in fighting because she, petitioner, prevented it by physically restraining her daughter. The underlying facts, which are not in dispute, reveal, however, that at the time A.I. repeatedly shouted, "You hit my mother. You hit my mother", all fighting had temporarily ceased. No one was hitting petitioner at that time. It was only after A.I. continued to shout that S.H. began attacking her, hitting petitioner in the process. While it is certainly understandable that A.I. would be upset when she witnessed her mother being hit during attempts to break up the original fight between D.F. and J.O., by the time A.I. actually reached the scene that fighting had been stopped by teachers in the area. If A.I. had exercised the self-control specifically required by the summer school rules and had obeyed her mother and Ms. Caccamise, the additional fight involving S.H. would not have occurred.

Certainly there were various degrees of culpability for the several teenage girls involved in this incident. For respondent to conclude, based upon all the facts, that A.I.'s lack of self-control constituted "misbehavior" within the rules requiring dismissal with no tuition refund was not an arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable decision, however.

The remaining issue relates to how respondent's decision was made. Petitioner asserts that A.I.'s due process rights were violated because respondent did not conduct a plenary hearing prior to issuing its determination to dismiss A.I. Petitioner points to P-1 in evidence, respondent's board policy concerning expulsion from school of students in the district. P-1 defines "expulsion" to mean the permanent exclusion of a student from the schools of the district. Respondent argues that the policy articulated in P-1 does not apply to summer session, the offering of which is optional with the school district and enrollment in which is optional for the student. Respondent argues that attendance at summer school is a privilege, not a right, and because the course offerings are five weeks of intensified study for material which would otherwise take a full year to cover, that no misbehavior of any kind can be tolerated. The full-blown plenary hearing provided for in P-1 in evidence is clearly appropriate when the proposed action is the termination of a student's right to attend the public schools in his/her district. For the termination of such a significant right, the principles of due process would require no less than such a full-blown hearing. Due process is flexible and calls for such procedural protections as the particular situation demands, however. Consideration of what procedures due process may require under any given set of circumstances must begin with a determination of the precise nature of the government function involved as well as of the private interest that has been affected by governmental action. New Jersey Parole Bd. v. Byrne, 93 N.J. 192 (1983). Since the summer school program is of such limited duration, a full plenary hearing before the Board of Education would not be a practical way for making determinations concerning misbehavior, nor does termination of a privilege require such an elaborate procedure. Fundamental fairness in a situation such as this requires notice and an opportunity to be heard. Under the facts of the present matter, the decision maker, Ms. Caccamise, observed first-hand most of the actions involved. On July 21, 1993, the day after the incident, petitioner did have an opportunity to discuss and explain and argue her cause with Ms. Caccamise. Under all of the circumstances present in this matter, I CONCLUDE that petitioner's and A.I.'s due process rights were not violated by the manner in which the determination was made.

Accordingly, for all of the foregoing reasons, the determination of the Ocean Township Board of Education dismissing A.I. from the 1993 summer session is HEREBY AFFIRMED and the within matter is dismissed with prejudice.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-9.4(c)8 and the agreement of the parties and the DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, THE COMMISSIONER shall issue a final decision within fifteen (15) days.

BEFORE STEPHEN G. WEISS, ALJ:

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law by the Department of Education on August 27, 1992, as a contested case as the result of the filing of a petition of appeal by Judy L. Graef wherein she challenged the Board's failure to reassign her for 1992-93 as the result of a rif to positions to which she believed she was entitled, including director of personnel. A prehearing conference was conducted by the undersigned administrative law judge by telephone on December 9, 1992, and hearings were scheduled for May 1993.

In the interim, a petition was filed by another Bloomfield Board employee, Frank James White, wherein he challenged the Board's failure to appoint him to one of the positions to which Graef claimed entitlement. That matter, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 8236-92, thereafter was consolidated with the instant matter.

As a result of the consolidation, the hearing dates were adjourned, and the matter was scheduled to commence before me on September 30, 1993.

On the date scheduled for hearings in the consolidated matters I was advised that a settlement had been reached between petitioner Judy L. Graef and the Board in connection with her case. To that end a release and settlement agreement was submitted to me, signed by petitioner and by the superintendent of schools on behalf of the Board. That document sets forth the terms and conditions of an agreement reached by the parties with respect to salary payments, vacation entitlements and other matters.

I have reviewed the file and the terms of the settlement, and I FIND as follows:

1. The parties voluntarily have agreed to the settlement as evidenced by the signatures appearing on the settlement agreement; and

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with law.

I therefore CONCLUDE that the agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and, accordingly, I approve the settlement and order that the parties comply with its terms and that these proceedings be CONCLUDED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, unsuccessful bidder on electrical contract, challenged award to lowest bidder claiming the bid was improperly based on hourly rate for journeymen which was below prevailing wage rate for Union County and in violation of N.J.S.A. 34:11-56.25 et seq.

ALJ found Board properly awarded contract to "lowest responsible bidder." Even if hourly rate was below prevailing wage rate, remedy for that situation would involve the contractor and the Department of Labor. Petition was dismissed.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Pending before me in this matter is a motion for summary decision filed by respondent, Board of Education of the City of Elizabeth, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 1:1-12.5. In support of that motion, the certification of Angelo Paternoster, purchasing agent for respondent, has been submitted, together with a memorandum of law.

The Board's moving papers were filed at the Office of Administrative Law on August 27, 1993 and counsel certified that a copy had been sent by certified mail, return receipt requested, to petitioner. On August 30, 1993, during a telephone conference call with respect to the motion, I advised Ms. List of the time requirements contained in OAL's summary decision rule. I also indicated to her that the prehearing conference would be adjourned pending disposition of the motion. No response has been filed by petitioner to the Board's motion, nor has any extension of time for filing a response been requested. Accordingly, the matter is ready for determination. See, N.J.S.A. 1:1-12.2(a), 1:1-12.5(c).

The file in this matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on June 17, 1993, and concerns a petition by Krantz & List Electric, Inc. protesting the Board's award of a contract for electrical installation and maintenance services to another bidder, Electrical Applications, Inc. According to Krantz & List, the bid by Electrical Applications, although ostensibly the lowest, was based on an hourly rate for journeymen which was below the prevailing wage rate for Union County and therefore in violation of N.J.S.A. 34:11-56.25 et seq. Thus, petitioner sought rescission of the award to Electrical Applications and the award, instead, to petitioner. The Board filed an answer denying the allegations of the petition and set forth certain separate defenses. Although a telephone prehearing conference was scheduled to be conducted by me on August 30, 1993, in light of the pending motion for summary decision that prehearing conference was adjourned.

FACTS

The Paternoster certification, which is not opposed, contains the following facts. In March 1993 respondent advertised for the receipt of bids for an electrical installation and maintenance services contract for the 1993-94 school year. In response to the advertisement a bid was received from Electrical Applications, Inc., which was the lowest bid submitted. In its submission Electrical Applications set forth that the hourly rate to be paid by it to a journeyman electrician would be $34.27. According to Paternoster, the president of Electrical Applications informed him that the company had determined to assume the cost of paying employee benefits directly, rather than passing on that additional cost to the Board. Since, with that understanding, its bid was the lowest one, the Board determined to award the contract to Electrical Applications. Thus, on April 15, 1993 a contract to furnish labor and necessary equipment for the furnishing of electrical and maintenance services to the Board for the 1993-94 school year was duly awarded to Electrical Applications in the amount of $34.27 per hour for an electrician journeyman, and $21.13 per hour for an electrician apprentice. The Krantz & List bid set forth that the amount to be paid to a journeyman would be $37.79 per hour and $16.38 to an apprentice. The New Jersey Department of Labor prevailing wage rate determination for Union County with respect to electricians requires that the hourly rate to be paid to a journeyman electrician should be $27.20, plus an additional $4.06 per hour to electricians engaged in the performance of certain applicable contracts.

DISCUSSION

For the reasons which follow, the motion for summary decision will be granted. As the Board memorandum in support of the motion notes, the school law statutes require that where bids are solicited for public expenditures in connection with services, materials or supplies exceeding $10,700, the contract must be awarded to the "lowest responsible bidder." N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-18, -37. In this case there is no dispute that the lowest bid submitted was that of Electrical Applications. Nor is there any dispute that Electrical Applications is a "responsible bidder," other than the implication from the petition that since the winning bid allegedly sets forth an hourly rate for a journeyman electrician below the prevailing wage rate for Union County, there is a lack of "responsibility."

As Board counsel points out in his memorandum, the prevailing wage schedule requires payment to journeyman electricians in Union County for regular work to be $31.26 per hour where, as here, applicable contracts are being performed. The bid by Electrical Applications did not set forth, nor was it required to set forth, that the cost of employee benefits would not be passed on to the Board. Thus, in the first instance, the bid, on its face, was in compliance with the prevailing wage act since the hourly rate proposed to be paid ($34.27) is in excess of the prevailing wage rate established for Union County.

Furthermore, even if the hourly rate quoted by Electrical Applications was below the prevailing wage rate, the remedy for that situation arguably would involve the contractor and the Department of Labor. Once a violation is reported and proved, payments are imposed on the contractor itself and the public body is not directly involved.

Finally, as Board counsel further observes, there is a serious question whether petitioner even has standing to challenge an alleged violation of the Prevailing Wage Act. See, Ruehl Co. v. Board of Trustees, 85 N.J. Super. 4, 10 (Law Div. 1964). In any event, it is clear that in an action of this sort an unsuccessful bidder certainly cannot compel the award to itself even if the award is set aside. In that case, the Board would have to readvertise.

Accordingly, for all of the reasons set forth herein, there being no genuine issue of material fact in dispute, the Board's motion for summary decision will be granted and the petition of appeal dismissed.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

William S. Jeremiah, Esq. (Buttermore, Mullen, Jeremiah and Phillips) for Petitioner

Robert F. Renaud, Esq. (Palumbo & Renaud) for Respondent

This consolidated matter was opened before the Commissioner on June 11, 1993 through the filing of a Petition of Appeal of a defeated budget by the Borough of Garwood Board of Education (Board) pursuant to the provisions of N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.4. The Board also filed on June 11, 1993 a Petition of Appeal of its defeated cap waiver. The Board sought restoration, on the grounds of necessity for a thorough and efficient education, of reductions by the Borough of Garwood Mayor and Council (Council) following voter rejection on April 20, 1993 of the Board's proposed budget and cap waiver. Subsequent to the defeat, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37 and N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.2(b)2, the Board and Council consulted on the defeated budget and the Council reduced the General Fund tax levy by $54,000. Consequently, the monies in contention in this consolidated matter are as set forth below.

Proposed Tax Levy Adopted by Board of Education	Amount of Tax Levy Certified by Governing Body
General Fund $2,597,955	General Fund $2,543,955
Cap Waiver $ 58,727
Amount of Reduction By Governing Body	Amount of Reduction In Dispute Before the Commissioner
General Fund $54,000	General Fund $54,000
Cap Waiver $58,727	Cap Waiver $58,727

On June 24, 1993, the Council submitted its Answers to both Petitions. In its Answer, the Council stated that there had been a transposition of numbers in the tax levy listed in its resolution and certified the corrections of that tax levy to $2,543,955 as listed above. The Council filed Position Statements on both matters on July 2, 1993. The Board filed Position Statements on both matters on July 9, 1993.

As a result of the State Board of Education's July 7, 1993 decision in Board of Education of the Borough of Rutherford v. Mayor and Council of Rutherford wherein the State Board ruled that decisions in defeated voter cap waiver appeals must determine whether or not reallocation within the district's maximum permissible budget is possible and whether and to what extent the specific programs at issue are essential in order to enable the Board to meet its constitutional obligation to provide a thorough and efficient system of education, a letter was sent to the parties by the Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes informing them of the need to supplement the record to document the reallocation and cap waiver review conducted by the county superintendent pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-27. The county superintendent was accorded thirty (30) days from receipt of the letter to submit a sworn affidavit setting forth an explanation and documentation of that review, including the bases for concluding that (1) reallocation within the district's maximum permissible budget for the 1993-1994 school year was not possible and (2) the specific programs at issue were essential for the Board to provide a thorough and efficient system of education to its students.

The governing body and Board were provided twenty (20) days from receipt of the county superintendent's submission to file a response thereto.

The county superintendent's affidavit and supportive documentation were received on September 17, 1993.

No additional documents were filed by either party and the record of this consolidated matter was closed on October 7, 1993.

The specific reductions in the General Fund tax levy are as follows:

Account	Title	Rationale	Reduction
11-000-290-XXX	Business & Other Support Services	Reduction in cost of insurance	$20,000
11-000-100-XXX	Tuition	Reduction in tuition for out-of-district placement	18,000
11-102-100-XXX	Athletics/ Instructional	Reduction in purchase of new playground equipment	6,000
11-000-270-XXX	Transportation	Reduction in out-of-district transportation costs	4,000
11-000-260-XXX	Operation/Maintenance of Plant Services	Reduction in custodial staff	6,000
		Total	$54,000

The cap waiver amounts under appeal are as follows:

Kindergarten teacher for new class	$35,460
Kindergarten aide for new class	11,592
Benefits for teacher and aide	11,675
Total	$58,727

I. Defeated Budget

In rendering judgment relative to budgetary appeals, the Commissioner notes that the Constitution of the State of New Jersey requires the Legislature to provide for a thorough and efficient system of education. The Legislature by way of statutory scheme has delegated the responsibility for providing such thorough and efficient system to local boards of education. Additionally, the Legislature pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9, 22-14, 22-17 and 22-37 has authorized the Commissioner of Education to review and decide appeals by boards of education seeking restoration of budgetary reductions imposed by local governing bodies. (See also Board of Education of East Brunswick Township v. Township Council of East Brunswick, 48 N.J. 94 (1966) and Board of Education of Deptford Township v. Mayor and Council of Deptford Township, 116 N.J. 305 (1989).)

In reviewing such appeals the Commissioner must determine whether a district board of education has demonstrated that the amount by which a specific line item reduction imposed by the governing body is necessary for the provision of a thorough and efficient system of education.

Mindful, then, of the balance to be applied in the standard of review, the Commissioner makes the following determination with respect to the reduction in the General Fund tax levy effectuated by Council.

Line Item	Reduction
11-000-100-XXX - Tuition	$18,000

The Council states that this reduction in tuition is based on its understanding that a student currently in an out-of- district placement would be returned to and mainstreamed in the local district schools. The Board agrees that the Council's understanding regarding one student's placement is correct. The Board states that the one change does not mean that there will not still be eight or more out-of-district placements in 1993-94. The Board notes that it has historically had an average of eight special education pupils placed in out-of-district schools each year. It states that it had nine such placements in 1991-92 and eight in 1992-93. The Board continues that it anticipates and budgeted for eight placements in 1993-94. The Board also notes that the projected enrollment for 1993-94 will be 9% higher than in 1992-93.

In weighing the arguments presented by the parties on this issue, the Commissioner is mindful of the difficulties involved in precisely determining special educational needs since evaluations and placements are ongoing throughout any given school year. The responsibility is this area can certainly be impacted by increasing enrollment. The Commissioner therefore determines that the Board's budgetary proposal for these mandated services is reasonable and realistic and orders the restoration of the $18,000 reduction.

11-102-100-XXX - Athletics/Instructional	$6,000

The Council states that these funds are not necessary to purchase playground equipment since the funds for this purpose were donated. It also states that the funds are not necessary to the installation of the equipment since this work could be completed by the school custodial staff. The Board states that the funds are for the removal of the old equipment, installation of the new equipment, and the replacement of the existing surface in the playground areas with a new and safe material. The Board asserts that the custodial staff has been reduced in recent years and that the current limited staff is required to maintain the buildings. The Board adds that the custodial staff does not have the equipment, skill or time to do this work. The provision of properly installed equipment is unquestionably essential to ensure safety. Similarly, playground services must consist of safe materials to avoid injury to pupils. The Board has stated that the existing playground areas are unsafe. The proposed expenditure is therefore determined justified and the Commissioner orders the restoration of the $6,000 reduction.

Line Item	Reduction
11-000-270-XXX - Transportation	$4,000

The Council states that this reduction represents the cost of transportation for the one student to be returned to the district as noted above. The Board again states that the Council has failed to acknowledge the needs of the district for out-of-district placements and the transportation needs associated with them. As determined above on the question of special education tuition, it is difficult to precisely determine the needs that will occur throughout an entire school year. The Board's budgetary proposal in this area is deemed reasonable to meet thorough and efficient educational requirements. The Commissioner orders the restoration of the $4,000 reduction.

Line Item	Reduction
11-000-260-XXX - Operation/Maintenance of Plant Services	$6,000

The Council states that this reduction is possible because it believes the district has at least ten part-time custodial employees plus a full-time maintenance supervisor who should be performing custodial work. It also states that, although there are three Borough schools, two are at the same location and are joined. The Board states that it has one full-time and six part-time employees to maintain the three buildings. The Board states that the Council incorrectly cited ten part-time custodial employees. It explains that four college students are hired in the summer to do painting and other miscellaneous maintenance work. The Board also states that the position of Supervisor of Buildings and Grounds has always existed in the district and is critical to the proper supervision of the maintenance and cleaning of the school property. The Board again notes the reduction of the custodial staff in 1990-91 and 1991-92. The proper maintenance of facilities, mandated by code, is an essential component of a thorough and efficient educational system. The Commissioner determines that the Board has supported the necessity for the existing custodial staff and orders the restoration of the $6,000 reduction.

11-000-290-XXX - Business and Other Support Services	$20,000

The Council determined that this reduction in medical/ health insurance and workers' compensation insurance was possible with the reduction it had recommended of custodial staff, as discussed above, and a teacher and aide. The Board argues that, as noted above, it cannot provide the required maintenance and custodial services without the current staffing level. The Board also states that a reduction of a teacher and an aide would not be possible because of projected enrollment increase. The custodial issue has already been addressed in this decision. It has been determined that the enrollment in the district did increase from 1991 to 1992 and is projected to increase again in 1993. It is indisputable that sufficient teaching staff is required for a thorough and efficient system. The Commissioner orders the restoration of the $20,000 reduction.

Thus, for the reasons set forth above, the Commissioner determines to restore the entire $54,000 in the General Fund reduction appealed herein, as summarized by the chart below:

Account	Title	Reduction	Restored
11-000-100-XXX	Tuition	$18,000	$18,000
11-102-100-XXX	Athletics/Instructional	6,000	6,000
11-000-270-XXX	Transportation	4,000	4,000
11-000-260-XXX	Operation/Maintenance of Plant Services	6,000	6,000
11-000-290-XXX	Business and Other Support Services	20,000	20,000
	Total	$54,000	$54,000

II. Cap Waiver

The Board had presented to the voters a cap waiver in the amount of $58,727 to provide staffing for an additional full-day kindergarten class. The Board has operated a full-day kindergarten program for many years and had two classes for 55 students in 1992-93. The Board states that the kindergarten population for 1993-94 is 59 students and that, therefore, a third class is required. The cap waiver amount includes $35,460 for a new teacher, $11,592 for a new aide, and $11,675 for benefits for the teacher and aide. In his letter of March 23, 1993, the county superintendent informed the Board that, as a result of the budget review, the 1993-94 budget received only conditional approval subject to the cap waiver proposal of $58,727, and that, if the cap waiver is rejected by the voters, the Board must file an appeal. The Council in its Position Statement on the cap waiver notes that it does not oppose the granting of the cap waiver if a third kindergarten class is created.

In summary, upon review of the documentation submitted on this matter, the Commissioner finds and determines that the record amply establishes that the $58,727 in cap waiver monies sought by the Board are necessary for the district to provide sufficient classes for the increasing kindergarten enrollment and are thus essential for a thorough and efficient educational system. The Commissioner also finds and determines, based on documentation submitted, that reallocation of funds within the district's maximum permissible budget is not possible. Rutherford, supra Accordingly, the Union County Board of Taxation is directed to make the necessary adjustment as set forth below to reflect a total of $2,656,682 to be raised in tax levy for General Fund purposes by the Borough of Garwood for the 1993-94 school year.

	General Fund
Tax Levy Certified by Council	$2,543,955
Restored by Commissioner (Defeated Budget)	54,000
Cap Waiver Order of the Commissioner	58,727
Total	$2,656,682

For the Petitioner, Thomas A. Scattergood, Esq.

For the Respondent, David M. Serlin, Esq.

This is a consolidated matter submitted on June 14, 1993 for decision by the Commissioner of Education. The Board of Education of the City of Burlington (Board) appeals to the Commissioner from an action taken by the Common Council of the City of Burlington (Council) pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37, certifying to the Burlington County Board of Taxation a lesser amount for General Fund costs for the 1993-94 school year than the amount proposed by the Board in its budget which was rejected by the voters.

On March 23, 1993, the Board's request for a cap waiver was given conditional approval by the Burlington County Superintendent of Schools and was thereafter placed on the ballot seeking approval by the electorate.

At the annual school election held on April 20, 1993, the Board submitted to the electorate a proposal to raise $5,883,833 by local taxation for General Fund costs of the school district in addition to the approval of a cap waiver in the amount of $184,572. After voter rejection of both matters, the Board submitted its proposals to Council for its determination of the amounts it deemed necessary for the operation of a thorough and efficient system of schools in the City of Burlington in the 1993-94 school year pursuant to the mandatory obligation imposed on Council by N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37.

Council's Answer was filed on June 24, 1993. The Board's Position Statement was filed on July 16, 1993 and a supplement to the Statement on August 9, 1993. Council's Position Statement on the budget appeal was filed September 8, 1993 and the Board's response was filed on October 6, 1993. An affidavit and supportive documentation to supplement the record in the cap waiver appeal was filed by the county superintendent on September 14, 1993. No replies to this document were received from the parties and the record was closed on October 20, 1993 upon receipt of a complete line item budget from the district.

BUDGET DISPUTE

STANDARD OF REVIEW

In rendering judgment relative to budgetary appeals, the Commissioner notes that the Constitution of the State of New Jersey requires the Legislature to provide for a thorough and efficient system of education. The Legislature by way of statutory scheme has delegated the responsibility for providing such thorough and efficient system to local boards of education. Additionally, the Legislature pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9, 22-14, 22-17 and 22-37 has authorized the Commissioner of Education to review and decide appeals by boards of education seeking restoration of budgetary reductions imposed by local governing bodies. (See also Board of Education of East Brunswick Township v. Township Council of East Brunswick, 48 N.J. 94 (1966) and Board of Education of Deptford Township v. Mayor and Council of Deptford Township, 116 N.J. 305 (1989).)

In reviewing such appeals, the Commissioner must determine whether a district board of education has demonstrated that the amount by which a specific line item reduction imposed by the governing body is necessary for the provision of a thorough and efficient system of education.

Mindful, then, of the balance to be applied in this standard of review, the Commissioner makes the following determination with respect to the reduction in the General Fund tax levy effectuated by the Council.

The Commissioner has read the respective position statements filed by the parties which are incorporated herein by reference unless specifically relied upon for the purpose of further clarification of any particular item as examined in the body of this decision.

In the instant matter, Council established the aforesaid tax levy by imposing the following line item reductions:

Account	Description	Reduction
33 (various)	Salary Accounts	$ 64,000
12-000-400-450	Construction Services	95,000
11-000-290-290	Other Employee Benefits	14,000
	TOTAL	$173,000

The Board concedes that a reduction of $15,000 from the 12-000-400-450 account is acceptable. Additionally, the Board accepts $14,000 of the proposed reduction in the 11-000-290-290 account. Accordingly, the actual amount in the budget dispute before the Commissioner is $144,000.

		$64,000.00

As shown in the schedule above, Council's reductions total $64,000. Council suggested that a 6% increase in spending is reasonable in today's economic climate. Council suggests that given the declining enrollment in the district and the economic circumstances facing residents of New Jersey, even this increase is difficult, if not impossible, to justify. Council maintains that the reductions which were made could have been greater without impacting the educational process.

The Board states that it is in negotiations with the teachers union for the 1993-94 school year. Further, contract negotiations will also begin for the 1993-94 school year for both the custodial/maintenance force and the cafeteria staff. Additionally, the Board asserts that it has not yet begun negotiations with its administrative association for 1993-94.

The Board states that it budgeted 6% increases in its salary accounts when preparing the 1993-94 budget. Council examined the district's contractual obligations in all of its salary accounts as of April 1993 and compared those numbers with the budgeted amounts for 1993-94. The difference calculated by the Council was 6.77%. Based on that difference, Council determined that 6% was adequate to settle all upcoming negotiations; therefore, $64,000 (or .77%) should be cut across the board. Council then applied this .77% reduction to all of the General Fund-Current Expense Fund 11 accounts. The Board asserts that these calculations are flawed for the following reasons:

1. The Board recently concluded negotiations with its administrators association for the 1992-93 school year. Therefore those increased dollars could not be included in Council's calculation. The Board is obligated for an additional commitment of $24,180.

2. The Board approved a basic skills summer program on May 24, 1993 that will require a commitment of an additional $16,322 in salaries not included in Council's calculation.

3. The guidance department has been recommended to work an additional week at the conclusion of the regular school calendar, as they have done in the past. Accordingly, an additional commitment and expenditure of $5,290 was made for this purpose.

4. The Board's child study team has requested additional evaluations be made in an on-going attempt to address the needs of urban youngsters. An additional salary commitment of $16,000 will be made to address these evaluations. Total commitment for these items is $61,792.

The Board further argues:

> The result of these additional commitments to the City's original calculation would have the net effect of changing the total reduction of $64,000.00 to one of $0.00. The specific calculation is as follows:
>
> Original Calculation by Governing Body
>
> Contractual Obligations as of 4/30/93, Salaries $8,332,493.00

Budgeted Salaries-City of Burlington BOE 93/94	$8,896,181.00

Actual Dollar amount represented by .76%	$ 64,000.00

Revised Calculation Reflecting Additional Commitments

Contractual Obligations as of 4/30/93, Salaries	$8,332,493.00
Total additional Salary obligations	$ 61,792.00

> The City of Burlington Board of Education rejects the premise that the Common Council can, by the cut imposed on the salary accounts, limit the Board's ability to negotiate with all of its bargaining units. It further contends that an across the board cut does not present evidence specific to any one account, that would indicate any justification for a cut. Nonetheless, the Board of Education made a determination during the budget preparation process that a 6% increase gave them the latitude to successfully conclude negotiations with the various bargaining units, which is a legitimate response to the position of the Common Council. Our position is that all $64,000.00 in cuts proposed by the governing body must be restored for these valid reasons.
> (Board's Position Statement, at p. 8)

In carefully weighing the position of the parties in this matter, the Commissioner finds reasonable the approach taken by the governing body in arriving at its reduction, notwithstanding the fact that numerous prior budget decisions support the Board's position that (1) a governing body cannot dictate the negotiated increase for salaries as that authority rightfully rests with the Board and (2) that across-the-board percentage reductions are not permissible. However, what has been heavily weighed and is deemed the deciding factor in reaching a determination concerning this reduction is the fact that the Board herein has demonstrated that it is using the monies budgeted in excess of a 6% negotiated increase to provide to its students the additional educational programs and services set forth above which in the Commissioner's judgment are particularly important to a special needs school district such as Burlington City. Therefore, it is determined that the $64,000 reduction shall be restored.

Reduction No. 2

Construction Services - 12-000-400-450 $95,000

Council contends that this roof repair can be delayed for another year, stating that the Board has not supplied to Council any engineering documentation as to the necessity of the roof replacement at this time, nor has it submitted any specifications. Further, it would be unusual to commence a roof replacement project while school is in session. Without providing engineering information to support the need for immediate roof replacement, the Board has failed to fulfill its responsibility to Council.

The Board argues that it has been more than proactive in supplying sufficient and thorough information to Council long before any specifics were actually requested. It asserts it supplied a memo on April 21, 1993, with attached documents, concerning the gym roof project. (See: Facilities Study, attached to Board's Response to Council's Position Statement.) The Board also provided a detailed statement setting forth its determination and supporting reasons for the replacement of the gym roof, which followed the recommendations of its engineer. The engineering study was conducted and served as the basis for the Five-Year Facility Plan and for this budgeted item. This allocation for the roof repair for the 1993-94 school year is a continuation of the Board's commitment to insure that it maintains its facilities and does not permit them to deteriorate.

The Board concludes that the need for the gymnasium roof replacement is not only in compliance with a long-term engineering plan and recommendations but also necessary to maintain facilities so that a thorough and efficient education can be provided to the pupils of the district.

Based on the record and the documentary evidence submitted, the Commissioner concurs with the Board. There is adequate representation by the Board that this replacement should not be delayed. A leaking roof will demand immediate emergency patchwork to prevent further damage to the structure as a whole. Here, the evidence supports replacement of the roof so that emergency repairs will not be necessary; therefore, the Commissioner determines that $80,000 will be restored to the budget. It is noted that the Board previously agreed to a reduction of $15,000 because of a favorable bid on the project.

Reduction No. 3

Employee Benefits - 11-000-290-290 $14,000

Council made a judgment that 1% of the Board's budgeted increase could be cut without inhibiting its ability to meet its contractual obligations. The Board conceded this reduction after joining an insurance pool which enabled it to realize a savings of $14,000. The county superintendent of schools agreed to the reduction in this account by letter to the Commissioner dated June 17, 1993; consequently, there being no disagreement concerning this line item, the $14,000 reduction will be sustained.

CAP WAIVER

The defeated cap waiver request of $184,572 included the continuation of important educational programs, including one-half day kindergarten 4 and full-time kindergarten 5. This amount reflects the salaries of five teachers, other salaries for two educational assistants and other employee benefits.

As a result of the State Board of Education's July 7, 1993 decision in Board of Education of the Borough of Rutherford v. Mayor and Council of Rutherford wherein the State Board ruled that decisions in defeated voter cap waiver appeals must determine whether or not reallocation within the district's maximum permissible budget is possible and whether and to what extent the specific programs at issue are essential in order to enable the Board to meet its constitutional obligation to provide a thorough and efficient system of education, on August 10, 1993 a letter was sent to the parties by the Director of Bureau of Controversies and Disputes informing them of the need to supplement the record to document the reallocation and cap waiver review conducted by the county superintendent pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-27. The county superintendent was accorded thirty (30) days from receipt of the letter to submit a sworn affidavit setting forth an explanation and documentation of that review, including the bases for concluding that (1) reallocation within the district's maximum permissible budget for the 1993-94 school year was not possible and (2) the specific programs at issue were essential for the Board to provide a thorough and efficient system of education to its students.

The governing body and the Board were then provided twenty (20) days from receipt of the county superintendent's submission to file a response thereto.

The county superintendent's affidavit and supportive documentation were received on September 14, 1993. There were no replies from the litigants. The record closed on October 20, 1993 upon receipt of a complete line item budget from the district.

By letter dated March 23, 1993, the Burlington County Superintendent of Schools conditionally approved the 1993-94 school district budget subject to the advertisement of the budget cap waiver proposal in the amount of $184,572. As a special needs district, the Board's budget request required a joint review by, and approval from, the Assistant Commissioners for the Division of Urban and Field Services and the Division of Financial Services. The Assistant Commissioners gave the authorization for the conditionally approved cap waiver. The line items requested are set forth below.

CAP WAIVER REQUEST

ACCOUNT TITLE	ACCOUNT NUMBER	AMOUNT
K/4 Kindergarten Salaries of Teachers	11-110-100-101	$ 60,000
K/5 Kindergarten Salaries of Teachers	11-110-100-101	90,000
Other Salaries for Educational Assistants	11-230-100-106	13,610
Other Employee Benefits	11-000-290-290	20,962
	TOTAL	$184,572

The Board and the community are firmly committed to preschool and full-day kindergarten for their pupils. The Board, the administrators, teachers and parents in the district consider the programs developed for K/4 and full-day K/5 as necessary and essential to a thorough and efficient education in the City of Burlington.

The Commissioner has reviewed the cap waiver request and the conditionally approved budget which was submitted to the voters. It is also noted that the Burlington County Superintendent of Schools filed an affidavit with the Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes and with the litigants. No replies to the affidavit were filed.

In the Commissioner's judgment, the record is sufficiently developed to establish, through the review conducted by the Burlington County Superintendent of Schools and those Department of Education officials who participated in the review and conditional approval of the Board's budget and cap waiver request, that the reallocation of funds within the permissible budget could not be accomplished without a cap waiver approval.

Based on the above, the record is convincing that approval of the cap waiver must be granted so that the Board will be able to conduct a thorough and efficient system of schools in the City of Burlington. Accordingly, the cap waiver in the requested amount of $184,572 is granted.

Having reached this determination, the Commissioner directs the Burlington County Board of Taxation to increase the 1993-94

General Fund current expense tax levy for the City of Burlington to reflect a restoration of $144,000 from the reductions effectuated by Council and an additional $184,572 in cap waiver appropriations which sums reflect a total General Fund current expense tax levy increase of $328,572.

Accordingly, the total 1993-94 General Fund current expense tax levy for the City of Burlington School District shall be $6,039,405.

PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF JERSEY CITY, HUDSON COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, school psychologist terminated pursuant to the terms of his employment contract, claimed to have acquired tenure and sought summary decision. Respondent also sought summary decision, agreeing that there was no genuine issue as to any material fact but denying that petitioner acquired tenure. In order to have acquired tenure, petitioner's employment must be deemed to have continued through the 60-day period subsequent to his termination.

Citing Canfield Supreme Court decision, ALJ determined petitioner had not acquired tenure. Petitioner's employment ended as of date of his dismissal and the accumulation of time to achieve tenure also stopped running at that point. Petitioner's motion for summary decision was denied. Respondent's motion for summary decision was granted and petition was dismissed.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision, noting that to the extent a prior ruling (Buff, decided March 1981) appeared to reject Canfield, that ruling was set aside.

BEFORE RICHARD McGILL, ALJ:

Robert T. Winston (petitioner) seeks by way of motion for summary decision a determination that he had tenure in the position of school psychologist with the State-Operated School District of the City of Jersey City (respondent) and that his termination effective January 13, 1992 violated his tenure rights. Respondent denies that petitioner received tenure in the position of school psychologist and, like petitioner, moves for summary decision.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner filed his petition with the Commissioner of Education on April 10, 1992, pursuant to the Commissioner's authority to hear and determine controversies concerning the school laws under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9. Respondent filed an answer on December 1, 1992, and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on December 10, 1992 for determination as a contested case.

On July 28, 1993, respondent filed a motion for summary decision. On August 16, 1993, respondent filed a letter brief in opposition to petitioner's motion along with a cross-motion for summary decision.

MOTIONS FOR SUMMARY DECISION

A motion for summary decision should be granted where there is no genuine issue as to any material fact and the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law. N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b). The same standard is applied in the courts of this State pursuant to R. 4:46-2. Summary judgment "is designed to provide a prompt, businesslike and inexpensive method" to dispose of actions which do not present any genuine issue of material fact. Judson v. Peoples Bank & Trust Co. of Westfield, 17 N.J. 67, 74 (1954). The movant must show that there is no genuine issue of material fact, and all inferences of doubt are drawn against the movant. Id. at 74-75. However, excessive caution which would undercut the purposes of a motion for summary judgment should be avoided. Pierce v. Ortho Pharmaceutical Corp., 84 N.J. 58, 65 (1980). Thus, if the opposing party offers only facts which are immaterial or insubstantial in nature, this circumstance should not defeat a motion for summary judgment. Judson v. Peoples Bank & Trust Co. of Westfield, 17 N.J. at 75. Although the pleadings may raise a factual issue, summary judgment procedure pierces the allegations in the pleadings, where the other papers show the absence of any genuine issue of material fact. Ibid.

a. Facts

In this proceeding, there is no genuine issue of material fact. Petitioner was hired by respondent as a school psychologist effective February 27, 1989. Petitioner and respondent entered into an employment contract for the period from February 27, 1989 to August 31, 1989, and thereafter, petitioner and respondent entered into employment contracts for the periods from September 1, 1989 to August 31, 1990 and from September 1, 1990 to August 31, 1991. Respondent again hired petitioner with a contract as a school psychologist for the 1991-1992 school year.

The contractual agreements between petitioner and respondent state that the ". . . contract may at any time be terminated by either party giving to the other sixty days notice in writing of intention to terminate the same . . . ." By letter dated January 10, 1992 from respondent's Executive Director of Human Resources, Robert Y. Schaefer, petitioner was advised of the decision of the State District Superintendent to terminate his employment effective at the conclusion of January 13, 1992. Petitioner received sixty days termination pay. Within the sixty-day period following the notification that he was to be terminated effective January 13, 1992, petitioner would have gained tenure.

In his motion for summary decision, petitioner states that he knows of no action taken by the district at a public meeting or even at a private meeting, and based thereon, petitioner asserts that respondent did not comply with the Open Public Meetings Act, N.J.S.A. 10:4-6 to 21. In response, respondent submitted an affidavit of Judi Granick, who is the Executive Assistant to the State District Superintendent for the State-Operated School District for the City of Jersey City. The affidavit contains the following statement:

> The action of the State District Superintendent terminating Mr. Winston's employment with the School District was made known to the Jersey [City] Board of Education at its meeting of February 20, 1992 which meeting complied with the provisions of the Open Public Meetings Act.

Petitioner did not respond to this statement, while his motion indicates a general lack of knowledge whether respondent complied with the Open Public Meetings Act. Under the circumstances, I accept respondent's assertion as true.

b. Law and Analysis

In accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5, teaching staff members gain tenure after employment with any school district or under any board of education for:

> (a) Three consecutive calendar years, or any shorter period which may be fixed by the employing board for such purpose; or

> (b) Three consecutive academic years, together with employment at the beginning of the next succeeding academic year; or > (c) The equivalent of more than three academic years within a period of any four consecutive academic years.

Here, petitioner would have gained tenure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5(c), if his employment continued through the sixty-day period subsequent to his termination.

Respondent maintains that petitioner did not achieve tenure because by notifying petitioner by letter dated January 10, 1992 that his employment would be terminated effective January 13, 1992, respondent immediately stopped the running of the time for tenure. In support of its position, respondent cites Canfield v. Board of Ed. of Pine Hill Borough, 51 N.J. 400 (1968), rev'g on dissent 97 N.J. Super. 483 (App. Div. 1967), wherein teacher Gladys Canfield was originally employed by the Board of Education on November 19, 1962. Her contract was renewed annually for three ensuing school years from September 1, 1963 to June 30, 1964, from September 1, 1964 to June 30, 1965, and from September 1, 1965 to June 30, 1966. Her contract of employment provided that it could be terminated by either party upon giving sixty days notice in writing of intention to terminate. By November 19, 1965, Canfield would have actually served three full academic years, which would have satisfied the requirements of the statute, N.J.S.A. 18:13-16, in effect at the time, allowing for tenure "after employment, within a period of any four consecutive academic years, for the equivalent of more than three academic years." The Board of Education notified Canfield on November 15, 1965, that it was terminating her teaching contract to take effect immediately and giving her two months pay. Canfield contended that because the sixty days pay was to run beyond the date when she would otherwise have achieved tenure, she is entitled to tenure.

The majority in the Appellate Division determined that the Board of Education had the power to prevent Canfield from continuing to render services even if doing so breached the contract, but that without sixty days notice the action did not terminate Canfield's employment. The majority concluded that Canfield's employment continues for the sixty-day notice period and that therefore Canfield achieved tenure.

The New Jersey Supreme Court reversed for reasons expressed in the dissenting opinion of Judge Gaulkin, who stated in part as follows:

> It seems to me that tenure and contract are two different concepts; tenure is statutory and arises only by passage of the time fixed by the statute, and the discharge of an employee before the passage of the required time bars tenure, even if the discharge is in breach of an employment contract which, if not breached, would have extended to a date which would have given tenure.
>
> I find nothing in the contract which justifies the conclusion reached by my Brothers that the dismissal was not effective on the date the notice of dismissal was given. If this was a dispute arising out of the breach of the contract itself in which the question of the date of termination of the contract became important, it might be held that the termination was not effective until 60 days after the notice of dismissal was given . . . But here we are concerned not with the contract or its breach, but with the status of the plaintiff -- i.e., tenure. It seems to me that the dismissal immediately stopped the running of the time to tenure. The burden of proving the right of tenure is upon plaintiff and ordinarily that right must be clearly proved. I do not think a municipality should be trapped into tenure by the construction of words which neither party expected to have that meaning. Canfield v. Bd. Edu. of Pine Hill, 97 N.J. Super. at 490-493.

Thus, even where a contract requires the employee to be retained beyond the tenure date, a timely prior notice of dismissal precludes tenure.

Petitioner relies upon Doris V. Buff v. Board of Education of North Bergen, Hudson County, 81 S.L.D. 340 (1981). The facts in Buff are similar to Canfield in that Buff was employed as a teacher pursuant to a contract which provided for termination by either party on sixty days notice. The Board of Education terminated Buff without giving sixty days notice but paid her salary for two months. Absent the termination, Buff would have gained tenure within the sixty-day period.

The Commissioner of Education adopted an Initial Decision in which the administrative law judge did not follow Canfield, based upon the view that that decision cannot be considered viable precedent in light of subsequent opinions of the United States Supreme Court in Board of Regents v. Roth, 408 U.S. 564, 92 S. Ct. 2701, 33 L.Ed. 2d 548 (1972) and Perry v. Sindermann, 408 U.S. 593, 92 S. Ct. 2694, 33 L.Ed. 570 (1972). Both Roth and Sindermann concerned situations where college professors had employment contracts for fixed one-year terms and were not rehired for the next academic year. Roth was hired for one academic year and was not rehired for the subsequent academic year. The United States Supreme Court held that Roth did not have a constitutional right to a statement of reasons or a hearing in regard to the decision not to rehire him for another year. The Supreme Court observed that the requirements of procedural due process apply only to the deprivation of interests encompassed by the Fourteenth Amendment's protection of liberty and property. Where these protected interests are implicated, there is a right to some kind of prior hearing. However, before due process requirements apply, a determination must be made that the interest is within the Fourteenth Amendment's protection of liberty and property. Thus, the issue in the case was whether Roth was deprived of liberty or property. The Court determined that the decision not to rehire Roth did not deprive him of liberty and that he did not have a property interest in being rehired.

In Sindermann, a professor was employed as a college teacher in a state college system for ten years at three different institutions. He was employed at the last institution for four successive year under a series of one-year contracts. After becoming involved in a dispute with the college administration, Sindermann's one-year contract terminated, and the Board of Regents voted not to offer him a new contract for the next academic year. The college did not have a formal tenure system, but Sindermann alleged that the college had a de facto tenure system based upon a provision that had been in the college's Faculty Guide for many years and that he had relied thereon. After discussing the meaning of "property," the Court concluded that Sindermann had more than a mere subjective expectancy of re-employment and that he should be given a hearing to prove the legitimacy of his claim.

The point of this discusson is that the issues in Roth and Sindermann were whether college professors whose one-year contracts had run their course had a property interest in continued employment protected by the Fourteenth Amendment. As is readily apparent, the facts and issues in Roth and Sindermann were dissimilar from Buff, where the teacher was employed pursuant to a contract at the time that she was terminated. Thus, it is not at all clear that Roth and Sindermann would change the result in Canfield.

This is not to say that Buff's interest in continued employent did not constitute property protected by the Fourteenth Amendment's requirement of due process. Rather, the point was well established prior to Roth and Sindermann. In Connell v. Higginbotham, 403 U.S. 207, 91 S. Ct. 1772, 29 L.Ed. 2d 418 (1971), the Supreme Court specifically stated that a teacher, who evidently did not have a contract or tenure, could not be summarily dismissed from public employment without hearing or inquiry required by due process. The Court cited Slochower v. Board of Education, 350 U.S. 551, 76 S.Ct. 637, 100 L.Ed. 692 (1956), wherein the summary dismissal of a college teacher for invoking the privilege against self-incrimination to avoid answering a question in regard to his official conduct violates due process of law. Thus, it was established well prior to Canfield that public employment is an interest protected by the Fourteenth Amendment's prohibition against deprivation of property without due process of law. These circumstances further indicate that Roth and Sindermann had no impact on Canfield.

The most pertinent portion of Sindermann is the concurring opinion of Chief Justice Burger, who underscored a point made in the Court's opinion to the effect that the relationship between a state institution and one of its teachers is essentially a matter of state law. Perry v. Sindermann, 408 U.S. at 603, 33 L.Ed. 2d at 581. Chief Justice Burger quoted from Board of Regents v. Roth, 408 U.S. at 577, 33 L.Ed. at 561, as follows: "Property interests . . . are created and their dimensions are defined by existing rules or understandings that stem from an independent source such as state law . . . ." If state law is unclear, the federal court should abstain, and the teacher should be left to resort to state courts on questions arising under state law. Perry v. Sindermann, 408 U.S. at 604, 33 L.Ed. 2d at 581.

Thus, Roth and Sindermann do not change state law as to property interests but rather look to state law as a source thereof. Canfield is an interpretation of a state statute in regard to tenure and is unaffected by Roth and Sindermann. Under the circumstances, it is not accurate to say that Canfield does not survive as a viable precedent. Any lingering doubt is removed by the fact that Canfield was recently cited as law in an opinion of the Appellate Division of Superior Court in Kletzkin v. Board of Educ., 261 N.J.Super. 549, 552 (App. Div. 1993).

Under Canfield, the teacher's employment ended as of the date of her dismissal, and the accumulation of time to achieve tenure also stops running. Since Canfield had not accumulated sufficient time, she did not receive tenure, irrespective of the fact that she would have received tenure within the sixty-day period provided in her contract for notice of termination.

Similarly here, petitioner was dismissed effective January 13, 1992, and as of that date, he had not accumulated sufficient time to gain tenure. The fact that he would have accumulated sufficient time to receive tenure during the sixty-day period for notice of termination under the contract is immaterial in view of Canfield. Under the circumstances, I CONCLUDE that petitioner did not achieve tenure in the position of school psychologist.

Petitioner's claim that respondent violated the Open Public Meetings Act was not raised in the petition and was mentioned for the first time in the motion for summary decision. As noted above, petitioner's claim is without factual support. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that this claim is without merit.

Accordingly, it is ORDERED that:

1. Petitioner's motion for summary decision is denied.

2. Respondent's motion for summary decision is granted.

3. The petition in this matter be dismissed.

I hereby FILE my Initial Decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, 8th Floor West, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

ROBERT T. WINSTON,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF JERSEY CITY, HUDSON COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Timely exceptions were filed by petitioner pursuant to the provisions of N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4, as were replies thereto by respondent State-Operated School District ("District").

In his exceptions, petitioner first contends that, notwithstanding his own motion for summary judgment, the ALJ erred in granting summary judgment to the District. This is so, petitioner avers, because a fact which was not material to the argument of his own motion, i.e., his claim of return to duty at the District's behest on March 1, 1992, is material to the District's stance and is clearly in dispute between the parties; thus, the District is not in a position to be granted summary judgment. (Petitioner's Exception No. 1)

Petitioner next argues that the ALJ erred in accepting the affidavit of the District's Executive Assistant stating that petitioner's termination was covered at a February 20, 1992 meeting which was in compliance with the Open Public Meetings Act (OPMA), as petitioner knows of no such occurrence and the Executive Assistant's statement represents an unsupported conclusion of law which she is not competent to make. (Petitioner's Exception No. 2)

Finally, petitioner contends that in rejecting the Commissioner's decision in Buff, supra, on grounds that it wrongly applied Roth, supra, and Sindermann, supra, the ALJ is in effect acting as an appellate tribunal with the authority to overrule the clear prior holding of the Commissioner. As the ALJ was both in error in his analysis of these cases and without authority to overturn the Commissioner in any event, his decision herein must be reversed. (Petitioner's Exception No. 3)

In reply, the District argues that, in moving for summary judgment, petitioner cannot have it both ways. In his moving papers, petitioner claimed there were no material issues of fact and that he was terminated on January 13, 1992; he cannot now claim that he was returned to duty on March 1, 1992. To the contrary, petitioner, having been neither reemployed nor newly contracted, was never an employee of the District subsequent to January 13, 1992. (Reply Exceptions, at pp. 2-3) The District further notes that the ALJ was correct in finding that petitioner first raised OPMA allegations in his motion for summary judgment without having previously raised these in his petition and that petitioner chose not to respond to the Executive Assistant's affidavit although there was opportunity for such response; the District moreover asserts that petitioner's purported lack of knowledge of an event does not constitute a dispute that the event occurred, merely a statement that he was unaware of it. (Reply Exceptions, at pp. 4-5) Finally, the District urges the Commissioner to accept as correct and well-founded the ALJ's application of Roth and Sindermann, as well as his concomitant conclusion that Canfield remains valid law in matters, such as the present one, which specifically hinge on interpretation of State statutes. (Reply Exceptions, at pp. 6-7)

Upon careful and independent review of the record, the Commissioner concurs with both the ALJ's determination to render decision on a summary basis and his finding that petitioner did not acquire tenure in the district.

With respect to petitioner's claim that a dispute of material fact precludes summary decision in this matter, it is noted that petitioner himself moved for summary judgment, specifically arguing that:

> In the matter sub judice there are no material issues of fact. Within the period between his notification that he was to be terminated, January 13, 1992 and the date that he received his final pay, 60 days following January 13, 1992, Dr. Winston would have gained tenure.
> That is the only meaningful issue in this matter. (Letter Brief in Support of Motion for Summary Judgment, at pp. 1-2)

It is further noted that petitioner made no reference to his purported March 1, 1992 return to work in his moving papers, and, more significantly in view of his arguments on exception, that he filed neither response nor objection to the District's Cross-Motion for Summary Decision, which included a recitation of facts that made no mention of such return and expressly claimed that this recitation represented the undisputed facts of the case. (Letter Brief in Opposition to Petitioner's Motion and in Support of District's Cross-Motion for Summary Judgment, at pp. 1-2) Thus, notwithstanding that a purported return to work was alleged in petitioner's initial pleading and denied by the District in its Answer (Paragraph Nos. 9 and 10), petitioner abandoned any argument based thereon by his conduct before the ALJ and cannot now be heard to claim that there exists a factual dispute which must act as a bar to summary decision.

Similarly, as petitioner made no allegations of OPMA violations in his initial petition, nor did he respond or object to the affidavit of the Executive Assistant presented with the District's Cross-Motion as was his obligation under N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b) had he believed facts related to OPMA issues were in dispute, the ALJ was correct to assume for purposes of decision herein that the District Board was in fact advised of petitioner's termination at a meeting duly conducted in accordance with OPMA requirements.

Finally, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ's analysis and application of Roth, supra, and Sindermann, supra, and herein holds that, to the extent that it stands for the proposition that the New Jersey Supreme Court's 1968 decision in Canfield, supra, is no longer valid law, Buff, supra, is rejected as erroneously decided.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law dismissing the Petition of Appeal is affirmed for the reasons expressed therein together with the additional explication set forth above.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

ROBERT T. WINSTON,	:
PETITIONER-APPELLANT,	:
V.	:	STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION
STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF JERSEY CITY, HUDSON COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT-RESPONDENT.	:

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, November 15, 1993

For the Petitioner-Appellant, Feintuch, Porwich & Feintuch
(Philip Feintuch, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Respondent, Murray, Murray & Corrigan
(Regina Waynes Joseph, Esq., of Counsel)

On December 1, 1993, counsel for the appellant Robert T. Winston filed a notice of appeal to the State Board of Education from a decision of the Commissioner of Education dated November 15, 1993. The Commissioner had rejected the claim of appellant, a school psychologist, that his tenure rights had been violated when he had been dismissed from such employment in the district, finding that appellant had been dismissed prior to his acquisition of tenure. The Commissioner granted the State-operated School District's motion for summary decision and dismissed the petition. Along with his notice of appeal to the State Board, appellant's counsel requested that the briefing schedule be held in abeyance pending his receipt of the transcripts in this matter.

April 13, 1994

By letter dated December 22, 1993, appellant's counsel was notified of his failure to file a brief in support of this appeal. In a telephone call to the Counsel to the State Board on December 27, appellant's counsel reiterated that he had requested holding the briefing schedule in abeyance. He also, however, advised that he had subsequently learned that there were no transcripts in this matter and that he was, therefore, dropping such request. Under the circumstances, he was given until January 18, 1994 to file his brief. In a letter dated December 27, appellant's counsel expressly confirmed the new filing deadline of January 18.

No appeal brief, however, was filed by that date. Nor did counsel for appellant request further extension for such filing. By letter dated January 24, 1994, appellant's counsel was notified of his failure to file a brief in support of the appeal. Counsel was advised that this matter was being referred to the Legal Committee of the State Board for consideration of his failure to perfect the appeal, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.12, which authorizes dismissal of an appeal on motion of the State Board for failure to meet the filing deadline for an appeal brief.

On March 10, 1994, more than seven weeks after the extended due date for the brief and 6-1/2 weeks after he was notified of his failure to file, appellant's counsel filed a brief in support of this appeal. Counsel provided no explanation for the late filing or at any time requested a further extension for filing.

Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.11(a), a brief in support of an appeal must be filed "within 20 days after the appeal has been filed." In this case, appellant was granted an extension until January 18, 1994 to file his brief, a fact expressly acknowledged by counsel for the appellant in his letter of December 27, 1993. As noted, no appeal brief was filed by that date and counsel for the appellant did not request a further extension for such filing. He finally filed an appeal brief on March 10.

Under the circumstances, we dismiss the appeal in this matter for failure to perfect. N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.12(a). While N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.19 allows the State Board to relax its rules in its discretion to avoid injustice, we find relaxation in this case unwarranted.

A review of Appellate Division decisions on the subject is informative. As pointed out by the Court:

> The rules relating to briefs and appendices on appeal have as their prime purpose the orderly and considered presentation of the matter on appeal so that the court may have before it such parts of the record and such legal authorities as will be of help in arriving at a proper determination.

Abel v. Elizabeth Bd. of Works, 63 N.J. Super. 500, 509 (App. Div. 1960).

Asserting that violation of the rules dealing with appellate briefs "cannot and will not be tolerated," Still v. Ohio Cas. Ins. Co., 189 N.J. Super. 231, 236 (App. Div. 1983), the Court has stressed that an appeal is ordinarily subject to dismissal when an appeal brief is filed out of time, without an application having been made for an extension. Elmora Savings and Loan Association v. D'Augustino, 103 N.J. Super. 301, 304 (App. Div. 1968); Abel, supra at 509. Accordingly, the Court has dismissed appeals for late filings and other violations of the rules regarding appeal briefs and appendices. See, e.g., Cherry Hill Dodge, Inc. v. Chrysler Credit Corp., 194 N.J. Super. 282 (App. Div. 1984) (appeal dismissed where appeal brief and appendix were "replete with procedural deficiencies"); Mestice v. Bd. of Adjustment of Neptune City, 35 N.J. Super. 313 (App. Div. 1955) (appeal dismissed where appeal brief was due, following an extension, on January 17, but was not placed on the opposing attorney's desk until 9:00 p.m. on January 18).

The Court has, however, been willing to relax its general rule when asked to decide a matter of public importance, see, e.g. Abel, supra (Court proceeded to a determination on the merits, despite service on July 20 of appeal brief due on June 25, in case involving challenge to validity of amendment to municipal zoning ordinance. The Court stressed that but for the fact that the case involved a matter of public importance to the City of Elizabeth and its residents, it would "not hesitate" to dismiss the appeal); and in cases presenting substantive issues of transcendent importance. See, e.g., In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of M. William Cowan, 224 N.J. Super. 737 (App. Div. 1988) (Court proceeded to the merits in tenure proceeding against teacher charged with verbal and physical abuse of students, despite overlength appeal brief that "blatantly violates the Rules of Court." The Court noted that the appeal would have been dismissed "were it not for the transcendent importance of the substantive issues raised in the appeal."); Elmora Savings and Loan Association, supra (Court proceeded to the merits, despite out-of-time filing of appeal brief, "in view of the defense raised" where appellant, wife of career serviceman, claimed benefit of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Relief Act of 1940 in a mortgage foreclosure action in which her husband did not wish to oppose the action).

In Wilson v. New Jersey State Department of Education, Docket #A-536-89T5 (App. Div. 1990), the Appellate Division reversed the State Board's decision to dismiss an appeal in which the brief in support of the appeal had been "filed either twelve days late or four days late, depending on what the Board considers as the filing date of the notice of appeal." Id., slip op. at 3. Appellant's counsel therein alleged disparate treatment in that he had not received a notice from the State Board advising him of his failure to file. The Court found that the record disclosed "inconsistent treatment of overdue briefs by the State Board. Some tardy litigants receive written notice advising them that their appeal brief has not been filed and that unless the brief is received the appeal will be dismissed. Others receive no such notice." Id. Under the circumstances, the Court directed that the appeal brief be accepted as filed.

Thereafter, however, in Paszamant v. Highland Park Board of Education, decided by the State Board of Education, April 1, 1992, aff'd, Docket #A-4812-91-3 (App. Div. 1993), the Appellate Division affirmed a determination by the State Board to dismiss an appeal for failure to perfect where the brief in support of the appeal had been filed one month late and counsel for the appellant therein had received written notification from the State Board of his failure to file. The Court concluded:

> Even accepting the certification of petitioners' counsel that the failure to file the brief was due to clerical inadvertence within his office, we cannot close our eyes to the fact that on February 19, 1992, one day after the brief was due, the State Board informed petitioners' counsel that no brief had been filed. The response of petitioners' counsel to that notice was silence. He neither communicated with the Board nor with his adversary to explain his apparent dilemma or to request an extension.

> An entity such as the State Board of Education has to be free to enforce its own procedural rules, providing that it does not do so in a manner which is arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. We are satisfied that its actions in this matter cannot be so classified and we thus affirm.

Paszamant, supra, slip op. at 2-3.

In this case, appellant's brief was due by January 18, 1994 and he was notified of his failure to file on January 24. Yet his brief was not filed until March 10, more than seven weeks after the filing deadline and 6-1/2 weeks after he was notified of his failure to so file. Appellant's counsel did not request further extension for filing. Nor has he offered an explanation for the late filing. Ultimately, it was his obligation and responsibility to assure compliance with the regulations, and we find no basis for relaxation of the rules in this instance.

Our regulations concerning the time for filing of appeal briefs are clear and unambiguous, and the great majority of the members of the Bar act in full compliance therewith. It is highly unusual for a situation to arise which we find to be sufficiently flagrant to warrant dismissal of an appeal for failure to file an appeal brief within the time limit imposed by regulation. However, our rules are not to be taken lightly, and disregard of or indifference thereto cannot and will not be tolerated.

Inasmuch as we find that this case does not present us with a matter of public importance or substantive issues of transcendent importance warranting a determination on the merits, we dismiss the appeal pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.12(a) for failure to perfect.

SYNOPSIS

On Motion for Interlocutory Review of ALJ's Order vacating his earlier Order on Motion for Emergent Relief, Commissioner denied emergent relief finding that Petitioner, a taxpayer in Kinnelon, failed to meet the standards set forth in Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982) for such an extraordinary remedy. Petitioner's Motion for Emergent Relief sought to establish an escrow account for $112,000 purportedly required to be disbursed on or about October 1, 1993 by the Board to Intervenor, a tenured principal in the district, whom the Board sought to remove by a buy-out agreement. The agreement's validity is the basis of the appeal before the Commissioner.

Decision on Motion also discussed Department of Education regulation, N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.5 and OAL's regulation, N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.6. Commissioner determined that a Motion for Emergent Relief must be filed before the Agency Head, not OAl, as Petitioner had done. Commissioner recognized also, that while a drafting error in N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.5 would seem to require that once a Motion for Emergent Relief is filed before her, if the matter in toto is already before OAL, it must be determined by the ALJ, she has the authority to decide the matter on Motion for Emergent Relief or to transmit it to OAL for determination.

For the Petitioner, Joseph DiFalco, Pro Se

For the Board, Philip E. Stern, Esq. (Rand, Algeier, Tosti & Woodruff)

For the Intervenor, Robert M. Schwartz, Esq. (Lake and Schwartz)

This matter has come before the Commissioner of Education by way of a request for interlocutory review pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-14-10 filed on October 25, 1993 by Petitioner in the above-captioned matter. Petitioner seeks a determination reversing the order of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) of October 22, 1993, which vacated its September 29, 1993 Order on Emergent Relief directing an escrow account be set up should respondent Board make any payments to Intervenor pursuant to a Separation Agreement (hereinafter the buy-out agreement) that is the basis of the instant Petition of Appeal.

By correspondence dated October 27, 1993, the Commissioner advised the parties that she would entertain the Motion for Interlocutory Review. Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.10(d), the Board and Intervenor were also directed to submit, within three days of receipt of such correspondence, arguments in favor of the order or ruling of October 22, 1993. In the same letter, the Board and Respondent were invited to address arguments in response to Petitioner's request for interim relief pursuant to N.J.A.C 1:1-12.6. On October 29, 1993 Intervenor submitted a timely reply letter, which was followed by a similar submission by the Board which was also timely received.

Petitioner's current motion argues that N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.5(d) states that the Commissioner may decide applications for emergent relief prior to any transmittal of the matter to OAL for hearing and that, after transmittal to the OAL, any motion for emergent relief shall be determined by the OAL. (Petitioner's Motion, filed October 25, 1993 at p. 1) (Emphasis in original) Petitioner contends that such regulation places the sole responsibility for hearing this matter before OAL. In the alternative, Petitioner submits that if it is found that the Motion for Emergent Relief must be made before the agency head, then he renews his argument that an escrow account be established for all funds paid to Intervenor pursuant to the controverted buy-out agreement during the pendency of the appeal challenging its legality.

In support of the latter contention, Petitioner claims that according to the buy-out agreement, as of October 1, 1993, the position of the parties changed, because the agreement states that the Board may make payments of the separation monies after that date. Because it has not yet been determined if the buy-out is legal, Petitioner avers, it would be "precipitous and imprudent"

(Petitioner's Request for Emergent Relief filed October 25, 1993, at p. 1) to create a situation where large sums of taxpayer monies were to be disbursed to Intervenor who may be required to surrender those funds in the future, assuming the buy-out agreement is found to be contrary to law. Citing "the Westfield case", (Id.) [no citation provided -- ed.], for the proposition that the funds to be repaid in that matter were unrecoverable because the individual has dissipated all of the money, Petitioner contends the taxpayers of Kinnelon should not be burdened with the loss in this case, stating the "'loss of the many [versus] the benefit of an individual'"(Id.) is at stake in this matter. Petitioner argues that Intervenor has nothing to lose by having the funds escrowed pending the outcome of this case because if the agreement is deemed to be legal, all of the funds due him will be made available with interest. On the other hand, Petitioner submits, if the accord is found to be unenforceable, another term of the accord, at paragraph 6 page 6, will take effect, that which requires Intervenor to be returned to his employment in accordance with his tenure and seniority, and to repay all monies paid out to him. Petitioner adds that the agreement sets forth no Board obligation to pay any money to Mr. Schott until June 30, 1993, thus arguing further against harm to Intervenor were an escrow account established.

Citing N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.15 which allows that rules may be relaxed or dispensed with by the Commissioner in his or her discretion in any case where strict adherence thereto would result in injustice, Petitioner submits that if the taxpayers were to lose the unprecedented sums of money contemplated in the matter at issue, it would be a grave injustice. On the other hand, Petitioner suggests that no burden is borne by anyone by creation of the escrow account. Petitioner thus avers he has met the standards for the grant of pendente lite restraints as set forth in Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982).

In response thereto, Intervenor notes that the ALJ's October 22, 1993 disposition of the motion for reconsideration agreed with Intervenor that OAL does not have jurisdiction over the motion for emergent relief Petitioner herein filed there. In response to Petitioner's allegation that the motion for emergent relief filed before the Commissioner should be heard by the Office of Administrative Law, Intervenor submits that the only logical conclusion to be drawn from comparing N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.6 with N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.5 is that the Commissioner may transmit an emergent relief application to OAL after it is filed with the Commissioner. Any other interpretation, Intervenor contends, would put the drafters of Title 6 at odds with the more general and overriding procedural rules governing administrative agencies such as the Department of Education and the Office of Administrative Law.

Regarding the substantive aspects of Petitioner's application for emergent relief, Intervenor notes that OAL still has before it the Board's motion for summary judgment to dismiss Petitioner's appeal. Intervenor contends Petitioner has not only not shown that he is likely to prevail on the merits of this case, but the procedural history shows that OAL is, at the very least, having difficulty allowing it to even proceed to a hearing based on the arguments advanced by the Board. Consequently, Intervenor argues, it would appear that Petitioner's application for interim relief must be denied because he has not met the first test in the Crowe standard by which the application must be decided, that is, that he can demonstrate a likelihood of prevailing on the merits of his claim. The Board's reply brief joins Intervenor in this argument.

In response to Petitioner's assertion that the relief Petitioner now seeks would not alter the agreement which is at the center of this dispute as the agreement does not require the Respondent to pay any monies to Intervenor before June 30, 1994, Intervenor submits this is not the case. He claims instead that the agreement does obligate the Board to make payments under certain restrictions, that is, when Intervenor requests payments. Hence, Intervenor contends, requiring that payments be held in escrow by the Board until June 30, 1994 or until the merits of this case are resolved abrogates the agreement as it was negotiated, written and understood.

Intervenor further asserts that Petitioner has not demonstrated evidence of irreparable harm that would result if interim relief were not granted. Intervenor claims there are clear legal remedies available to restore the status quo should monies paid by the Board to him be ordered repaid, specifically, through a court-directed enforcement order. The Board joins in Intervenor's contention in this regard as well.

As for the public interest factor, Intervenor contends that the public interest would only be harmed if the Commissioner rules against the Board and the status quo could not be restored. Intervenor reiterates that there are legal remedies available to the Board in the event that Petitioner is successful. Moreover, he claims, the agreement itself provides that if a court should render as void the monetary obligation contained within it, Intervenor would be required to return any monies paid after October 1, 1993 before the Board may return him to its employ. Thus, no basis exists to claim the public interest compels emergent relief, Intervenor submits.

Hence, Intervenor seeks denial of Petitioner's request for interim relief.

Having carefully considered the arguments of the parties in this matter on interlocutory appeal, including the Order of the Office of Administrative Law dated September 29, 1993, vacated by Order dated October 22, 1993, the Commissioner adopts as her own the Order of the Office of Administrative Law dated October 22, 1993, vacating the earlier Recommended Order of September 29, 1993. The Commissioner affirms that she, not the OAL must receive, in the first instance, all requests for emergent relief pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.5. However, while Petitioner erred in seeking reversal of the ALJ's October 22, 1993 Order before OAL, because N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.5 and N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.6 compel filing of any Request for Emergent Relief before the Agency Head, there is merit in suggesting that N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.5(d) by its wording would appear to require that once a motion for emergent relief has been filed with the Commissioner it must be determined by OAL, if the case in toto has already been transmitted to OAL. This, however, is deemed a technical flaw in the drafting of the regulation since the Commissioner clearly has the option to determine an emergent relief motion herself if she so chooses.

Having thus decided that the Request for Emergent Relief need be filed with the Agency Head, the Commissioner now moves to disposition of such request because judicial economy dictates her consideration of Petitioner's Request for Emergent Relief rather than yet again having the ALJ rule. This determination is reached given that she has the benefit of the ALJ's Recommendation regarding the motion dated September 29, 1993 and she has had the opportunity to review the audio tape of the October 12, 1993 hearing.

Upon careful review of the arguments of the parties, Petitioner's motion is denied for failure to meet the standards for such extraordinary relief as articulated in Crowe v. DeGioia, supra. Hence, the motion for emergent relief is denied.

Initially, the Commissioner finds Petitioner has made no showing of irreparable harm because "monetary damage does not, in itself, constitute irreparable harm." See, Harmon Jeff Garvin v. State Operated School District of the City of Paterson, Passaic County, decided by the Commissioner July 23, 1993, aff'd State Board October 2, 1993. Moreover, no clause of the controverted buy-out agreement alters the conclusion that no irreparable harm exists in this matter insofar as the Commissioner has the authority to reject any or all of the terms of such accord upon her consideration of the underlying merits of Petitioner's claim and order repayment of any monies paid out already by the Board to Intervenor, should it be determined that the matter lies within her purview pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9. Further, although Petitioner claims that an escrow account would save harmless all parties to this action, claiming that the Board of Education is not bound by the buy-out agreement to make payments to Intervenor until June of 1994, the clause in question actually states:

3. Between the period October 1, 1993, and June 30, 1996, Mr. Schott shall be entitled to receive the sum of $337,848.00 ("Settlement Amount") in further settlement of all claims and obligations which he may have or hold against the Board. Such Settlement Amount shall be paid by the Board to Mr. Schott as he may request subject to the following restrictions:

(a) Between October 1, 1993 and June 30, 1994, the Board shall not be obligated to pay more than $112,616.00 of the Settlement Amount;

(b) Between July 1, 1994, and June 30, 1995, the Board shall not be obligated to pay more than one-half (1/2) of the balance of the Settlement Amount remaining as of June 30, 1994;

(c) Between July 1, 1995, and June 30, 1996, the Board shall pay, upon the request of Mr. Schott the remaining balance of the Settlement Amount. (Agreement, para. 3)
(Emphasis Supplied)

In this regard the Commissioner cannot accept the ALJ's finding in his September 29, 1993 recommended order stating "Significantly, the terms of the settlement [buy-out] agreement do not obligate respondent to pay any money to Mr. Schott until June 30, 1994" (at p. 2), insofar as Paragraph three states that Board payments during that period shall be made upon Intervenor's request.

Neither has Petitioner advanced a likelihood of succeeding on the merits of his claim insofar as the law in this matter is unsettled. The Commissioner so finds by observing that it is not clear that she has jurisdiction over the underlying claim at issue herein. See, Dr. Columbus Salley v. Board of Education of the City of Newark, et al., 1984 S.L.D. 1714.

Next, in reviewing the third prong of the Crowe, supra, standards, that is balancing the equities, the Commissioner deems the positions of the parties in this regard to be in equipoise insofar as neither the Board, Petitioner nor Intervenor has presented compelling arguments as to why the harm to it or him outweighs the interests of the opposing parties.

Finally, in considering the public interest, the Commissioner quite clearly understands and shares the concerns expressed by the ALJ at hearing on October 12, 1993 regarding the issue of recoupment, should Petitioner ultimately prevail in challenging the buy-out agreement, given the large amount of money (approximately $112,000) that could be paid out by June 30, 1994 if requested by Intervenor. Nonetheless, the Commissioner cannot grant the extraordinary relief requested herein because taken as a whole the record simply does not present a strong enough showing under the four prongs of Crowe, supra, to warrant disturbing the status quo.

Accordingly, the order of the Office of Administrative Law entered October 22, 1993 vacating its earlier Order of September 29, 1993 finding the Office of Administrative Law lacks jurisdiction to decide the emergent relief matter because the motion was improperly filed before it instead of the Commissioner is affirmed. Further, upon review of the instant Motion for Emergent Relief filed before the Commissioner on October 25, 1993, the extraordinary relief sought therein is hereby DENIED.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

Decision on motion by the Commissioner of Education, November 15, 1993

For the Petitioner-Appellant, Joseph DiFalco, pro se

For the Respondent-Respondent, Rand, Algeier, Tosti & Woodruff (Philip E. Stern, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Intervenor, Lake & Schwartz (Robert M. Schwartz, Esq., of Counsel)

On September 24, 1992, Joseph DiFalco (hereinafter "petitioner") filed a petition with the Commissioner of Education challenging a Separation of Employment Agreement between the Board of Education of the Township of Kinnelon (hereinafter "Board") and Robert Schott (hereinafter "intervenor"), the principal of Kinnelon High School. That agreement, dated August 24, 1992, provides, inter alia, that intervenor would resign from his employment with the Board effective October 1, 1993 and that the Board would pay intervenor the sum of $337,848 as he may request between October 1, 1996, subject to certain restrictions on the 1993 and June could be paid during the first two years. The amounts transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Com") for hearing.

FEB. 2, 1994

On September 20, 1993, the petitioner filed a letter with the Administrative Law Judge ("ALJ") hearing the case, advising that the effective date of intervenor's resignation was approaching and requesting that the ALJ preserve the status quo by establishing an escrow account pending determination of this matter. On September 29, the ALJ entered an order on petitioner's "application for emergency relief" in which he directed the Board to place the sums becoming due to intervenor under the separation agreement into an interest-bearing escrow account. However, on October 22, the ALJ vacated that order on motion of the intervenor, concluding that he did not have the jurisdiction to issue the order. Petitioner thereupon filed an application for interlocutory review and a request for interim relief with the Commissioner, seeking reversal of the ALJ's order of October 22.

On November 15, 1993, the Commissioner adopted the ALJ's October 22 order. The Commissioner agreed that the ALJ lacked the jurisdiction to order the requested interim relief, stressing that it was the Commissioner, and not the Office of Administrative Law, who, in the first instance, must receive all requests for emergent relief under N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.5. The Commissioner added, however, that:

> there is merit in suggesting that N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.5(d) by its wording would appear to require that once a motion for emergent relief has been filed with the Commissioner it must be determined by OAL, if the case in toto has already been transmitted to OAL. This, however, is deemed a technical flaw in the drafting of the > regulation since the Commissioner clearly has the option to determine an emergent relief motion herself if she so chooses.

Commissioner's Decision on Motion, slip op. at 6.

Finding that, in this case, judicial economy dictated that she consider petitioner's request for emergent relief, rather than transmit it to OAL, the Commissioner denied that request for failure to meet the standards articulated in Crowe v. De Gioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982). In so doing, the Commissioner found that petitioner had failed to demonstrate irreparable harm, stressing that monetary damage did not, in itself, constitute such harm, that petitioner had failed to show the likelihood of succeeding on the merits of his claim, and that he had not shown the harm alleged to outweigh the interests of the opposing parties. While acknowledging petitioner's concerns regarding the difficulties the Board might have in recouping any moneys it paid to intervenor if petitioner ultimately prevailed on the merits, the Commissioner concluded that she could not grant the extraordinary relief sought since the record as a whole did not present a strong enough showing under the standards enunciated in Crowe to warrant disturbing the status quo.

On November 24, 1993, the petitioner filed a notice of appeal to the State Board from the Commissioner's decision on motion. By letter dated December 1, the petitioner was notified that since he was seeking to appeal an interlocutory decision, his appeal was governed by the requirements of N.J.A.C. 6:2-2.3, which requires the filing of a motion for leave to appeal in such instances. Petitioner was afforded the opportunity to amend his appeal so as to conform with the regulatory requirements. In compliance therewith, the petitioner filed a motion for leave to appeal, along with supporting documents.

We grant petitioner's motion for leave to appeal an interlocutory decision. However, after a thorough review of the record, we deny his request for emergent relief. Substantially for the reasons expressed by the Commissioner, we find that petitioner has failed to satisfy the requirements for such relief delineated in Crowe, supra.

Furthermore, we concur that petitioner was required to file his request for emergent relief with the Commissioner. Although petitioner's request to the ALJ was not formally expressed as a motion or application for emergent relief, the relief sought, establishment of an escrow account in order to maintain the status quo pending final determination, was emergent in nature and required compliance with the applicable regulations. As acknowledged by the petitioner, he sought the ALJ to "exercis[e] a temporary judicial injunction." Letter brief in support of motion for leave to appeal, at 1. Consequently, as determined by the ALJ in his October 22 decision, he did not have the jurisdiction in this instance to direct the relief sought.

For the reasons that follow, however, we reject the Commissioner's view that N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.5 is "technically flawed," and, as a result, we are compelled to correct her analysis of the regulations governing determination of motions for emergent relief.

N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.5(c) provides that the Commissioner of Education, upon receipt of an application for interim relief, may either act upon the application or transmit it to OAL for immediate hearing. Section (d) provides that the Commissioner:

> may decide such application prior to any transmittal of the matter to the OAL for hearing. After transmittal to OAL, any motion for emergent relief shall be determined by the OAL. (See N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.6.)

N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.6(b), in turn, providing for emergency relief pending a final decision on the whole contested case, requires that "[a]pplications for emergency relief shall be made directly to the agency head and may not be made to the Office of Administrative Law." N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.6(c) permits the agency head to either hear the application or transmit it to OAL for hearing. Once the application is transmitted, the regulation provides for determination by OAL.

It is evident from the language of our regulation that, contrary to the Commissioner's assertion, N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.5(d) does not require transmittal of an emergent relief matter to the Office of Administrative Law, even if the case in toto has already been transmitted. To the contrary, N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.5 expressly gives the Commissioner the option of deciding the motion himself. Once, however, the motion has been transmitted to OAL for hearing, it must then be decided initially by that agency.

Therefore, as modified herein, we affirm the Commissioner's decision denying petitioner's request for emergent relief.[1]

[1] We emphasize that our decision herein is limited to petitioner's request for emergent relief pending final determination, and we do not in any way determine the merits of petitioner's challenge to the separation agreement, which is currently proceeding before OAL.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning wrestling coach sought reversal of NJSIAA decision that he violated Article IX of bylaws requiring coaches to conduct themselves in a sportsmanlike manner. Association contended coach unilaterally terminated an interscholastic contest (Sectional Semi-Final Wrestling Team Championship) making a "travesty of the forfeiture procedures." Petitioner claimed his decision to cancel the match was based on the team physician's failure to examine three of his key varsity players and the unavailability of his alternate wrestlers due to the questionable status of his wrestlers and alternate wrestlers due to injury, inexperience, or failure to practice.

Following review of testimony and record, Commissioner was convinced that petitioner was provided due process by hearings of NJSIAA Controversies Committee and the Executive Committee. Commissioner concluded petitioner failed to prove that Association's determination was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. Commissioner affirmed decision of NJSIAA and the penalties levied by Association. Petition was dismissed.

RESPONDENT.	:

For the Petitioner, Stephen B. Hunter, Esq. (Klausner, Hunter, Cige and Seid)

For the Respondent, Michael J. Herbert, Esq. (Picco, Mack, Herbert, Kennedy, Jaffe & Yoskin)

This matter has come before the Commissioner by way of a Petition of Appeal filed on December 4, 1992 by counsel for Douglas Bower seeking a reversal of the decision of the New Jersey State Interscholastic Athletic Association (NJSIAA) Executive Committee dated September 23, 1992, which affirmed the determination of the Controversies Committee dated June 2, 1992 holding that the conduct of Coach Douglas Bower, a wrestling coach at Howell High School, Freehold Regional High School District, in forfeiting the February 19, 1992 Sectional Semi-Final Wrestling Championship to Manalapan High School constituted a violation of Article IX of the NJSIAA Bylaws requiring coaches to conduct themselves in a sportsmanlike manner and specifying that they had no unilateral right to terminate an interscholastic contest, and that Coach Bower's conduct constituted an egregious violation of the wrestling regulations by making a "travesty of the forfeiture procedures." Petitioner seeks reversal of such decision as being arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable and further seeks a prohibition against the NJSIAA's assessing him a fine in the amount of $500, as well as reversal of the Committee's placing him on a two-year probation during which time the member school employing his services will be required to submit monitoring forms to the NJSIAA for each match during the wrestling season with each official being asked to submit evaluation forms after each match, and his ineligibility during this two-year probation to serve the NJSIAA as a tournament representative or to serve on any of the Association's Committees.

On December 11, 1992 Respondent NJSIAA filed its Answer to the Petition of Appeal along with a copy of the record below including transcripts of the two hearings, as well as the written decisions of the two Committees.

By letter dated January 29, 1993, the Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes directed petitioner to submit a brief on the merits of his claim and provided a ten-day period after this submission for the NJSIAA to file a reply brief. The briefs were filed by the parties on March 11, 1993 and March 25. 1993, respectively.

It is noted that in making its determination in this matter, the Controversies Committee made the following Findings of Fact:

> 1. In November, 1991, Howell High School received wrestling regulations for the 1992 Team Championship, which was scheduled to begin on Wednesday, February 19, 1992, with Sectional Semi-Finals, followed up by Sectional Finals on Thursday, February 20, and State Team Championships on February 22, 1992.

2. In addition to the Team Championships, the NJSIAA scheduled Individual District Championships, to start on February 28, 199[2], the week after the conclusion of the Team Championships.

3. The regulations for the Team Championships specifically warned that once entered and scheduled, schools should not withdraw or make a "TRAVESTY OF THE FORFEITURE PROCEDURES," or run the risk of suffering punitive action by the NJSIAA Controversies Committee.

4. Pursuant to the regulations, Howell Wrestling Coach Douglas Bower completed the requisite NJSIAA weigh-in forms on Monday, February 17, 1992,[1] listing Varsity wrestlers for each one of the thirteen weight classes, with thirteen separate alternates from the Junior Varsity squad.

5. Three of the Varsity wrestlers were diagnosed as having contagious skin diseases (the 135, 145 and 189 [lb.] wrestlers). Each one of these wrestlers received a clearance from [his] personal doctor[s], but did not receive clearance from the school physician, Dr. Joseph Schauer.

6. On the evening of February 19, 1992, the Manalapan team arrived at the Howell gym to participate in the 7:00 p.m. Sectional Semi-Final Team Championship against Howell. In addition, security and staff personnel were retained, along with Wrestling Official Ron Guarnieri.

7. At approximately by 5:00 p.m. or shortly before the arrival of the Manalapan Team and the Official, Coach Bower ascertained that the 135, 135 and 189 lb. wrestlers could not wrestle, because they had not received an approval from Dr. Schauer. He immediately went to Dr. Schauer's office, and the school physician would not approve the participation of the wrestlers, because of the contagious nature of their skin condition.

8. Coach Bower contended that six of his Varsity wrestlers (125, 130, 152, 160, 171 and Heavy Weight) had a variety of injuries preventing their participation. This assertion is contradicted by the Official trainer records, and the testimony of Dr. Herman and Athletic Director Frank Petrulla, that only the 130 lb. wrestler was, in fact, incapable of participating, because of an injury. In addition, Coach Bower admitted that several of the "injured" wrestlers would have competed had there been a chance to win the contest. He acknowledged that these "marginal" wrestlers were not placed on the mat after he determined that the three wrestlers with skin diseases (135, 145 and 189 [lb.]) could not wrestle on that evening. Finally, several of the "injured" wrestlers did participate in the Individual District Championships a week later, and practiced throughout this entire period of time.

[1] The record indicates that the forms were actualy completed on Wednesday, February 19.

9. When Coach Bower completed the official weigh-in form on February 17, stating that there were 26 wrestlers available (thirteen Varsity and thirteen alternates), the NJSIAA must assume that the document was accurate. The completed form meant that on the evening of February 19, 1992, there were 26 qualified and physically able wrestlers available to participate in the tournament.

10. Even assuming that several of the wrestlers were not physically able to participate on February 19, provisions should have been made to wrestle one or more of the thirteen JV wrestlers identified on the weigh-in form.

11. The Committee finds as a fact that, when a school lists wrestlers as alternates, that those individuals will be utilized, if the Varsity or first listed wrestlers in each weight class are not available for any reason. In this case, all of the alternates were members of an outstanding JV team, who were fully capable of participating on the evening of February 19.

12. The Committee finds the excuse given by Coach Bower that many of the JV wrestlers could not participate because they stopped practicing, to be unavailing. As Athletic Director Petrulla accurately noted he could have made sure that these students continued to practice and were available. Many of the injuries recounted by the Coach occurred months earlier, and when the Coach listed these JV members on the weigh-in form, he should have made provisions for the students to practice in anticipation of the Sectional Semi-Final Team Championships.

> 13. The Committee finds as a fact that when Coach Bower could not wrestle three of his top Varsity athletes, because of the lack of medical clearances, he determined that he would have difficulty winning the Sectional Semi-Final Team contest against Manalapan High School. Instead of utilizing Varsity wrestlers who had some lingering ailments, or JV alternatives, he, instead, chose to forfeit the match to save both he and his team from an "embarrassment."
>
> 14. The conduct of Coach Bower deprived many of his own wrestlers [of] the opportunity to participate in the Sectional Semi-Final Team contest, and required Howell, Manalapan and the NJSIAA to incur considerable expense. The expense, disruption and unfairness to students, fans and athletes at both schools [were] caused only because this Coach wanted to avoid some type of strategic setback.
> (Controversies Committee Decision, Exhibit B, at pp. 12-15)

Petitioner contends that the blame for the decision to forfeit the February 19 match cannot be placed solely on his shoulders. He avers that the 11th hour decision of the Howell Township school physician not to examine the three wrestlers to clear them for participation heavily influenced his decision to cancel the match. Likewise, he avers that Mr. Petrulla, who should have been the ultimate decision maker in the matter, was absent that evening, which necessitated several telephone calls to him attempting to get his input on the problems petitioner was facing and resulted in no viable solutions being offered. Petitioner maintains that

> The decision was made with the wrestlers' health and safety as the primary concerns. Coach Bower asserts that to penalize him, without penalizing Mr. Petrulla for his participation, or lack thereof, in the decision to forfeit the match, is completely unjustifiable under the circumstances. It is the Site Manager who has the ultimate decision on such matters and absent any clear decision by the Site Manager, Coach Bower was compelled to make the decision.
> (Brief in Support of Petitioner's Petition of Appeal, at p. 14)

Petitioner asserts that in making its determination the Controversies Committee misinterpreted or ignored evidence and testimony he presented while giving substantial credence to Mr. Petrulla's testimony even though such testimony conflicted with earlier statements or evidence. Specifically, petitioner avers that the Committee accepted Mr. Petrulla's assertion that wrestlers who petitioner claimed were injured did not appear in the Trainer's Log in the week prior to the February 19 match. Petitioner asserts that the Trainer's Log, which was in evidence, lists eight wrestlers who received treatment one day prior to the match. He contends that of these eight, one wrestler is listed as not being able to practice at all and the others were strictly limited in their practice participation.

Petitioner next avers that the Committee ignored his explanations that the weigh-in form should not be regarded as an accurate representation of the wrestlers available for the February 19 match, but rather covered the entire four-day tournament schedule. Petitioner contends that when he filled out this form, he did so to provide the maximum flexibility over the entire period. As such, this form should have been viewed as a roster of wrestlers who, although not necessarily available or eligible for the February 19 match, could become available at some point during the tournament. Petitioner avers that this was a strategy that nearly every coach in the tournament was probably using.

Petitioner further contends that it would not have been prudent to send the inexperienced Junior Varsity alternates who were available on February 19 to the mat against the agressive, highly skilled Manalapan team. He avers that exposing these inexperienced young wrestlers to clear overmatches would have invited not only the prospect of humiliation for them but, more importantly, a great possibility that these inexperienced wrestlers would have sustained serious physical injury.

Lastly, petitioner contends that the penalty assessed against him in this matter is excessive. He avers that two other teams, Brick Memorial and Rancocas Valley, also withdrew from this same tournament without an investigation being conducted or penalties being assessed. He further contends that the Committee has imposed less severe penalties on others who have committed more flagrant violations of NJSIAA regulations. He cites as examples nine Controversies Committee decisions over the past five years which involved team withdrawals from interscholastic events where he avers that none of the penalties assessed for the same violation approach the severity of the penalty imposed on him. In particular, petitioner points to a case involving the Belleville wrestling team where the coach pulled his team off the mat while the match was in progress because he felt the referee had made calls favoring his opponent. Petitioner contends that in this regard the Committee only assessed the coach a $300 fine and a one-year probation which did not include ineligibility to serve as a tournament representative or on any of the Association's Committees, clearly, he avers, a less severe penalty for a more egregious violation of the same regulation he is charged with violating.

Respondent NJSIAA contends that the decision of its Controversies Committee and its Executive Committee was not arbitrary but rather based upon substantial credible evidence in the record following a hearing before the former Committee which provided the petitioner, who was represented by counsel, with the opportunity to present evidence, examine and cross examine witnesses and to argue his case. Further, it maintains that the hearing was transcribed and a seventeen-page decision rendered. NJSIAA states that petitioner was thus able to present his arguments before two deliberative bodies of the NJSIAA, both of which fully considered the case and the applicable NJSIAA rules, thereby affording him complete and appropriate due process.

Respondent argues that in cases where the NJSIAA has afforded a petitioner due process, the Commissioner will not overturn the decision of the Association unless that decision was arbitrary or capricious, even when she would judge otherwise in a de novo review. It states that Article IX of the NJSIAA Bylaws requires interscholastic coaches to conduct themselves in a sportsmanlike manner. It avers that the evidence adduced below clearly shows that the coach's actions were contrary to Article IX in that no coach has a unilateral right to terminate an interscholastic contest. NJSIAA maintains that Coach Bower's conduct deprived many of his own team and his opponents of the opportunity to participate in the Semi-Final Championship.

NJSIAA further argues that petitioner does not here contend that his due process rights were violated, nor does he challenge Section 1 of the Tournament Regulations which condemns the misuse of forfeiture procedures. Likewise, he does not dispute that this particular tournament provision is consistent with assuring good sportsmanship based on Article IX of the NJSIAA Bylaws.

It maintains that petitioner, instead, focuses his entire argument on the contention that the two NJSIAA Committees should have believed his version of the events of February 1992 rather than the version related by the wrestling official, the Howell principal and Howell's athletic director.

NJSIAA asserts that petitioner's attempt to place blame for the improper termination of the match on the school physician for his failure to examine three of the wrestlers on February 19 is ludicrous. It contends that even assuming that the physician should have re-examined the wrestlers, the fact that he did not, cannot be the basis for a coach unilaterally deciding to forfeit a match, notwithstanding the availability of replacements. NJSIAA avers that the coach knew of the questionable status of the three Varsity players days before the match and should have made adequate preparation to substitute the three Junior Varsity wrestlers listed on the weigh-in form if it became necessary. It argues that this is precisely why the NJSIAA requires a listing of alternative wrestlers to be a part of the tournament regulations.

NJSIAA next disputes petitioner's contention that it would have been irresponsible of him to jeopardize the health and safety of the eight wrestlers who received treatment for injuries the day before the match by allowing them to wrestle. It asserts that testimony of Mr. Petrulla, which the Committee found to be entirely credible, stated that of these eight players, only one was listed as being unable to practice. Of the remaining wrestlers, > nowhere did the trainer state those youngsters were not capable of taking the mat for practice or for wrestling. We all get bumps and bruises. I don't know any wrestling team that progresses on February 19th without having their share of nicks and cuts. (Exhibit C, 96:2 to 23).

> (Reply Brief of Respondent, at p. 20)

Additionally, NJSIAA avers that that the coach, himself, testified that he would have wrestled all of the Varsity wrestlers in the Trainer's Log if he could have been assured that the three Varsity players were cleared by the school physician. (Exhibit C, 112)

Respondent NJSIAA additionally alleges that petitioner's contention that his primary concern in forfeiting the match was the health and safety of the wrestlers is further belied in the brief he submitted to the Commissioner where it is obvious that his main concern was winning:

> There was, however, some advantage to be gained by individual wrestlers on the Howell Team. The forfeit afforded certain wrestlers additional time to heal their injuries before beginning the District Championships the following week. The loss to Manalapan on February 19, 1992 marked the end of Howell's dual meet, team vs. team, competition. The following week would begin the post-season tournament schedule, which shifts the focus to individuals, rather than teams. The ultimate purpose of the post-season tournaments, beginning with the District Championship, is to crown a State Champion in each weight class. Coach Bower's decision was motivated by his desire to protect the health and safety of his team. There was nothing to be gained on February 19, 1992 by wrestling six matches, facing certain defeat and risking injury to his wrestlers.
>
> The Committee's assertion that he was "making a travesty of forfeiture procedures" is without support. Coach Bower was handed a set of difficult circumstances only hours before the February [19], 1992 wrestling match. Dr. Schauer's inexplicable behavior greatly reduced Howell's chances of winning that evening, in fact, made it next to impossible (Pb 19). (emphasis in text)
>
> (Reply Brief of Respondent, at p. 21)

With respect to the penalties imposed by the NJSIAA in this matter, respondent argues that such penalties are not excessive under the circumstances. It states that there are significant differences between this matter and the situation involving the Belleville coach cited by the petitioner. It avers:

> [T]he Belleville coach withdrew his team toward the end of a meet, after there had been fights occurring in the spectators' stands. Second, in that case, the Committees found that the coach acted improperly, but impulsively. In this case, the Petitioner deliberately manipulated the forfeiture procedures to prevent a contest from occurring in the first place. The Belleville Coach assumed responsibility. In contrast, the Petitioner blamed first the school physician, and then the school Athletic Director, accusing the latter of making "misleading and false statements" (Pb 13). More importantly, he completed a "Weigh-in Form," stating that 13 Junior Varsity wrestlers were available to participate in a tournament at the very time that, according to him, virtually none of these alternates could wrestle because of a self-imposed "team rule." The School Principal properly found that conduct to be deceptive, and a clear violation of the procedures of the NJSIAA. This is a coach who asserted that he had six injured wrestlers who could not wrestle, but then acknowledged that they could have wrestled after all, if there was a chance to win. In contrast with the impulsive conduct of the Belleville coach, the Petitioner intentionally deceived the Wrestling Officials and the NJSIAA. His conduct was grossly unsportsmanlike.
> (Respondent's Reply Brief, at pp. 23-24)

With respect to petitioner's argument regarding two other schools who withdrew from this same tournament without penalty, the NJSIAA submits an affidavit of the Associate Director of the NJSIAA which explains that the withdrawal of these two teams was permitted as a result of their providing fully documented medical proof that an outbreak of herpes or impetigo had clearly created a medical risk for their players.

Upon a careful and independent review of this matter, the Commissioner is convinced that the hearings of the NJSIAA Controversies Committee and the Executive Committee fully provided petitioner with the due process to which he is entitled. As correctly noted by the NJSIAA, the standard of review in this matter prevents the Commissioner from substituting her judgment for that of the Association's absent a showing by petitioner that such body acted in an arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable manner. After a thorough consideration of the record, which includes the transcripts of the two hearings below, as well as the written decisions of these bodies, the Commissioner concludes that petitioner has failed to meet this burden, and the NJSIAA's decision is, therefore, affirmed as are the penalties levied by said Association against petitioner.

In making her determination in this regard, the Commissioner was not unmindful that the record certainly conveys that petitioner has had a long and significant record as a coach in interscholastic sports. This does not, however, serve to nullify the reasonableness of and rational basis for the Committee's determination. Rather, the Commissioner finds it inconceivable that a coach with his extensive experience when faced, two days before a major tournament, with even a remote possibility that three of his key varsity wrestlers might not be able to compete in the match, did not recognize the importance of assuring that alternates were practiced and available just in case his worst fears were realized.

Accordingly, the Commissioner adopts as her own the findings and conclusions of the Controversies Committee and the Executive Committee in this matter and hereby dismisses the Petition of Appeal with prejudice.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE DELAWARE VALLEY REGIONAL HIGH SCHOOL DISTRICT, HUNTERDON COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, tenured teaching staff member riffed in May 1991, claimed Board violated his tenure and seniority rights when it abolished his 10-month position of Teacher of Industrial Technology but retained less senior teacher. Petitioner sought reinstatement with compensation.

Initial decision determined petitioner failed to timely submit supporting documentation of his military service that would have shown him to have more seniority than person retained. In light of such proof, ALJ determined petitioner would have been retained for 1991-92 but such proof of military service rested with petitioner. (Nealy) Thus, petition was dismissed.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision.

BEFORE STEPHEN G. WEISS, ALJ:

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This contested matter was transmitted by the Department of Education to the Office of Administrative Law on August 19, 1991, following the filing of a petition by Thomas Jabour alleging that in June 1991 the respondent violated his tenure and seniority rights when it abolished his 10-month position as teacher of industrial technology, but retained another teacher whose seniority actually was less than his own. Petitioner demanded reinstatement to his teaching position and reimbursement for salary he claims he lost during the 1991-92 school year when he was forced to find employment by another school district in a 12-month position for less remuneration.

Following a series of adjournments, a plenary hearing was held on May 14, 1993, and the record closed on August 26, 1993 when petitioner's reply brief was received. The following constitutes my initial decision.

TESTIMONY

A. Stipulation of Facts

At the outset of the hearing, counsel agreed to a joint stipulation of facts (Exhibit C-1) which set forth the following:

1. The Delaware Valley Regional High School Board of Education is the governing body for a regional district serving grades 9 through 12. The Board operates one school - Delaware Valley Regional High School (hereinafter "DVRHS").

2. During the 1990-91 school year, respondent employed four full-time (six duty periods) certified teachers of industrial technology--petitioner, Vincent C. Specht, William Petty and Boyden D. Stretch. In addition, the Board employed Louis J. DiLullo as assistant principal. In addition to his administrative duties, DiLullo also taught two periods of industrial technology. Attached hereto as Exhibit J-1 is the job description for the assistant principal position held by DiLullo. DiLullo is certified as a teacher and principal.

3. Specht and DiLullo began their employment with DVRHS the same day as petitioner, September 1, 1970. Stretch began his employment in 1959. Petty began in 1964. Petitioner had two years' prior teaching experience in another New Jersey public school district. Specht had six years prior teaching experience in a New Jersey public school district.

4. Specht, Petty, Stretch and petitioner taught industrial arts/technology course, and only industrial arts courses, throughout their tenure at DVRHS. DiLullo taught industrial arts/technology exclusively through the 1988-89 school year. Beginning 1989-90, he has served as assistant principal, albeit with some teaching responsibilities as described above.

5. As a result of declining enrollments, it became apparent to administration and the Board during the 1990-91 school year that one full-time industrial technology position would have to be abolished as of the 1991-92 school year.

6. The Board at its May 28, 1991 meeting abolished one industrial technology position, effective for the 1991-92 school year, and further voted not to offer employment to petitioner for the 1991-92 school year. Attached hereto as Exhibit J-4 is a true copy of relevant excerpts from the official minutes of that meeting.

7. By letter dated May 29, 1991 (attached hereto as Exhibit J-5) petitioner was notified of the Board's action and of his right to be reemployed in the first available position for which he was certified.

8. (a) Attached hereto as Exhibit J-6 is a true copy of petitioner's employment application.

   (b) Attached hereto as Exhibit J-7 is a true copy of Specht's employment application.

   (c) Attached hereto as Exhibit J-8 is a true copy of DiLullo's employment application.

9. Petitioner also has a total of five plus years in the National Guard and Naval Reserves, official documentation of which has also been provided to the Board subsequent to the commencement of this litigation. The parties stipulation that National Guard and Reserve duty is not creditable towards seniority under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-11.1.

10. The ISS aide position was established with the written approval of the county superintendent in August 1979. Attached hereto as Exhibit J-11 [is the] cover letter and original application and signed approval form dated August 21, 1979.

11. The ISS aide position has continued in existence every year since. Attached hereto as Exhibit J-12 is the district's 1990-91 Annual Report of Persons employed on School Aide Positions. No form was printed or required by the Department of Education for 1991-92.

12. The ISS aide position is a covered position with the bargaining unit represented by the Delaware Valley Education Association. Attached hereto as Exhibit J-12 is "Appendix D"--the negotiated salary guide for school aides for school years 1989-90 and 1990-91. Pending negotiations on a new contract for 1991-92 and 1992-93, the salary guide for ISS aides during those years has remained the same. Although not required by job description, the Board has always hired persons with either a substitute's certificate or a regular teaching certificate for the ISS aide position.

13. Boyden Stretch, the most senior of all the industrial technology teachers, retired from the district effective June 30, 1992. The Board offered, and petitioner accepted full-time reemployment as an industrial technology teacher for the 1992-93 school year.

14. Petitioner's salary, had he been employed at DVRHS during 1991-92 would have been $51,234.

15. Petitioner's certifications and the date each was acquired, are as follows:

Certification	Date Acquired
Teacher of Industrial Arts	6-8-66
Supervisor	7-75
Principal	5-76

During the 1991-92 school year Jabour was employed as the supervisor in charge of the physical plant and facilities by the Somerville Board of Education, a 12-month position, at a salary of $42,000. It was stipulated that had petitioner been retained in his 10-month teaching position at DVRHS that school year he would have earned $51,234, a dollar differential of $9,234. Beyond that, Jabour's 12-month position in Somerville also required him to work an extra one hour per day, thereby effectively reducing his salary by another one-seventh. Thus, petitioner calculated that the total differential between what he was paid by Somerville in 1991-92 and what he would have received had he been retained in his employment by respondent was approximately $21,000, taking into account: (1) a 20 percent differential for working 12 months instead of 10 months; and (2) an additional differential of one seventh, or 14%, for the extra one hour per day.

Finally, Jabour identified a certificate which confirmed that he was honorably discharged as a member of the Army National Guard on January 28, 1972 (Exhibit P-7).

On cross-examination, Jabour agreed that at no time prior to being rehired at DVRHS in September 1992 did he provide Matula or the Board with official documentation corroborating his military service. He insisted, however, that when he first applied for the position in 1970 he did produce his DD-214 form for Phillips. He also explained that the credit given to him for active duty military service from July 1969 to December 1969 was appropriate even though that time period partly overlapped his employment in Bridgewater. He pointed out that he was in the "technical employ" of the Bridgewater Board during all of 1969-70, except that he was on military leave from July 1969 to December 1969.

Finally, Jabour conceded that when he appeared before Matula and the personnel committee in May 1991 and read his statement, no reference was made in it to his military service. Nor did he contend at that meeting that he should receive credit for military service in order to avoid being "riffed." Thus, after reading his statement, the discussion which ensued had to do only with other positions in the district which might be available to him.

C. Testimony for Respondent

The Board's first witness, William F. Muhs, has been a board member for about three years and was a member of the three-person committee with whom petitioner met in 1991. Muhs recalled that Jabour requested the meeting in order to discuss his future employment since petitioner knew he was the teacher who would be "riffed." Prior to meeting with petitioner the Board members were told by Matula that even though Jabour had been asked for proof of his military service, none was provided. According to Muhs, Jabour was asked that day for proof of prior military service, and his response was "evasive." Thus, the discussion centered on other possible positions in the district and no further attention was paid to the military service issue.

On cross-examination, Muhs conceded that he did not personally review Jabour's file, but believed Matula might have mentioned that the file did reflect a claim of military service. Muhs specifically recalled that Matula told the committee that Jabour was advised of the consequences if no documentary proof of military service was provided.

The second Board witness was Matula. He explained that during the 1990-91 school year the Board determined that a position in the industrial arts department would have to be abolished because of a general decline in enrollment. In December 1990 Matula began to review the seniority status of the potentially affected employees and in late March or early April 1991 he mentioned to Jabour that there was some question regarding petitioner's military service. Specifically, Matula expressed concern that the time period Jabour said he was on active duty (July 1969 to December 1969) overlapped the time (September 1969 through December 1969) that he said he was employed by Bridgewater. When Matula asked Jabour to provide verification that could be resorted to if needed, Jabour replied that he was not sure he could find any documentation but would look for it.

Sometime during April 1991, Matula again spoke to Jabour, at which time petitioner told the superintendent he could not find any documentation. Thus, in light of the fact that there continued to be, in Matula's mind, some inconsistency regarding Jabour's claimed military service from July to December 1969 and his employment that same year in Bridgewater, Matula concluded that Jabour perhaps had misinterpreted or misconstrued the nature and/or time of his active duty service and it was up to him to clear up that confusion. When no such verification was produced, Matula and the Board members concluded that Jabour could not be given credit for military service in respect to seniority. Therefore, Specht was retained.

Matula also recalled that the meeting among Jabour, the personnel committee and the superintendent took place at the request of petitioner and when the meeting started Jabour read a prepared statement and the parties then discussed other possible positions for 1991-92. Matula, like Jabour, had no recollection of any discussion of petitioner's military service. Matula also explained that unlike the Board's expectation of documentary proof to support a military service claim, no independent verification of Jabour's claim of prior out-of-district teaching service was sought because he assumed this had been done at the commencement of petitioner's employment. Matula agreed that had Jabour timely documented his military service he, rather than Specht, would have been retained for 1991-92.

DISCUSSION

Respondent conceded that based upon the documentation it finally received from Jabour in September 1992, there is no doubt that petitioner did have the prior military service he alleges he had, and if such official documentation had been provided by Jabour during the decision-making process from March to May 1991, Specht, not Jabour, would have been "riffed." Thus, the issue for determination is whether the consequences of Jabour's failure to timely submit supporting documentation should fall on him (salary differential for 1991-92 and loss of one-year's seniority), or whether the Board, in light of the information it already had at its disposal vis-a-vis his military service, i.e., the military service information set forth on Jabour's employment application, that he was granted an annual leave during the early 1970s for active duty training for two weeks during the school year and that no independent verification of any claim of prior teaching experience was required, had the obligation to justify its rejection of his military service credit, or is now equitably estopped from doing so.* For the reasons which follow I believe that in the particular circumstances of this case it was the petitioner, not the Board, who had the burden of confirming the military service claim and Jabour's failure to do so in 1991 is fatal to his claim.

*Following the close of the hearing Matula submitted a certification to the effect that although he assumed that Superintendent Phillips independently verified out-of-district employment claims by job applicants, no third party verification was to be found in the Jabour, Specht or DiLullo personnel files. That certification will be marked Court Exhibit 2.

First, I agree with the observation made by the Board in its post hearing brief that it was not required to accept without question an employee's undocumented claim of prior military service and reasonably could require that employee to independently provide appropriate documentation of the same where, as in this case, the issue was highly pertinent to a seniority determination. I further agree with the Board that the obligation or burden to come forward and produce the pertinent documentation in situations of this sort rests upon the employee and not the employer.

A case which I believe is analogous to the instant situation (although it did not involve a military service-seniority claim) is the case of Nealy v. Board of Education of Roselle, 1987 S.L.D. 1598. As the administrative law judge who heard and decided that matter I am particularly familiar with it. In Nealy, the petitioner had taken additional courses in order to obtain a regular teaching certificate and upon completion of those courses was eligible for the same. However, before she submitted official transcripts for those courses in order to obtain the certificate, the certification laws were changed and a testing requirement was added. Nealy took and failed the test, was denied her regular certificate and subsequently was terminated. On appeal from that termination she claimed, inter alia, that she became tenured when she was eligible for the certificate upon passing the additional courses and that possession of the certificate was not required. I determined that it is the obligation of the employee, not the board, to act with appropriate dispatch and to provide official documentation when asked to do so. I noted that although Nealy actually had completed her courses in 1984, and had been reminded twice to follow up and obtain necessary transcripts, she inexplicably and inexcusably neglected to do so. Thus, the adverse consequences which flowed from the untimely production of the necessary information was a result of her own inaction. See also, Sydnor v. Board of Education of Englewood, 1976 S.L.D. 113.

The cases cited by Jabour in support of his contention that he had performed all that was required of him do not support his claim. Certainly, no one disputes that pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-11.1, N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12 and N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.10(c), full recognition is to be given for seniority purposes to appropriate military service time. However, that principle simply is not pertinent in this case since the dispute centers not upon applying the credit, but upon the particular circumstances of trying to turn back the clock and attach culpability for the absence of the information. None of the cases cited by Jabour have any bearing on that issue. While courts should avoid exalting form over substance, see, e.g., Kane v. Board of Education of Hoboken, 1975 S.L.D. 12, and eligibility for certification is provable by means other than actual production or physical possession of a piece of paper, in this case there was an uncorroborated claim but no documentation to support Jabour's military service assertion. Access to the necessary information clearly was more easily available to Jabour than to the Board and he was asked about the matter once, and then reminded again by Matula, and then perhaps reminded for even a third time at his meeting with the personnel committee. There simply is no excuse for the inexplicable and incredible laxity which Jabour demonstrated. The fault was his, not that of the respondent, and the adverse outcome insofar as his seniority is concerned should not under those circumstances be ameliorated at substantial public expense.

With respect to the equitable estoppel argument raised by Jabour, I reject that contention as well. The case cited in support of the argument, Miller v. Board of Trustees, TPAF, 179 N.J. Super. 473 (App. Div. 1980), certif. denied 88 N.J. 502 (1981), is not apposite. The court in Miller noted that estoppel may be invoked where conduct, either express or implied, reasonably misleads another to his prejudice so that a repudiation of the conduct would be unjust. Nothing that the Board did in this case was calculated to or did in fact "mislead" Jabour. Furthermore, application of an estoppel defense against a public body, such as a board of education, particularly where public funds are involved, rarely is granted and normally is reserved for those remarkably few situations which clearly warrant such equitable relief at public expense in order to prevent a manifest injustice.

Accordingly, for the reasons set forth herein, petitioner's claim of seniority for 1991-92 based upon his military service, and his demand for back pay is REJECTED and his petition of appeal is DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, 8th Floor West, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

The record and initial decision rendered by the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions and the Board's reply thereto were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner finds petitioner's exceptions unpersuasive. She agrees with findings and conclusion of the ALJ that, under the particular circumstances existing in this case, the petitioner rather than the Board had the responsibility of substantiating the claimed military service and his failure to do so in 1991 is fatal to his claim.

Accordingly, the Commissioner adopts the recommended decision of the Office of Administrative Law and dismisses the instant Petition of Appeal.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, former Director of Project Climb who served as principal for 1991-92 school year and was subsequently transferred back to position of Director of Project Climb, sought determination that she was tenured in position of principal and entitled to retroactive compensation.

ALJ granted partial summary judgment finding that mere possession of requisite certificate does not entitle holder to a separately tenurable position enumerated in N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 when the criteria expressly specified in statute have not been met. (Dennery; Ellicott) ALJ found petitioner had no tenure rights to position of principal.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision and ordered remaining issues to proceed to hearing.

Record Closed: July 21, 1993 Decided: September 7, 1993

BEFORE M. KATHLEEN DUNCAN, ALJ:

These matters were commenced on July 14, 1992, when Barbara Brenner (hereinafter petitioner) filed a petition of appeal with the Commissioner of Education seeking a determination that she was tenured in the position of principal in the District, assigning her to the position of principal of Hazelwood School for the 1992-1993 school year and retroactively compensating her for the Board's failure to assign her to said position pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10. An answer was filed on behalf of the Board of Education of the Township of Middlesex (hereinafter respondent) on August 4, 1992, and on August 10, 1992, the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to 13.

A prehearing conference was conducted on November 10, 1992, at which time the following were identified as issues for determination at hearing:

1. Is petitioner tenured in the position principal?
2. If the answer to the previous question is yes, when did she obtain tenure in the position?
3. Did respondent violate N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 when it fixed petitioner's salary for 1992-1993?
4. Did respondent enter into a settlement agreement with petitioner on or about July 9, 1991?
5. If the answer to the previous question is yes, what were the terms of the agreement?
6. If the answer to question number 4 hereinabove is yes, did respondent breach the agreement?
7. Was respondent's statement of reasons for non-renewal willfully false and in bad faith?
8. Was respondent's action in failing to renew petitioner's contract as principal arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable?
9. If the answer to any of the previous questions is yes, what are the appropriate remedies?

In addition, petitioner filed a petition for a contested transfer determination with the Public Employment Relations Commission wherein she alleges that she was transferred from principal at Hazelwood to Director of Project Climb in violation of N.J.S.A. 34:13A-25. The parties jointly moved to consolidate the petitions and for designation of the Commissioner of Education as having the predominant interest. On January 22, 1993, the undersigned issued an order consolidating the cases and determining predominant interest. On March 1, 1993, the Commissioner of Education and the Chairman of the Public Employment Relations Commission issued a joint order consolidating the cases for hearing, determining that the predominant interest rested with the Commissioner of Education, who would issue a final decision on all the issues raised in the prehearing order, dated December 2, 1992, and further providing that if resolution of the issues over which the Commissioner has predominant interest does not moot the issues raised by the petition for contested transfer determination, the matter would, thereafter, be transmitted to the Public Employment Relations Commission for a final determination, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 34:13A-27. Trial dates, which had been scheduled for April 26, May 11, May 12, May 14 and May 18, 1993, were adjourned when petitioner filed a petition for declaratory judgment with the Commissioner of Education and requested that if the Commissioner determined to forward the matter to the Office of Administrative Law that it be consolidated with the above-captioned matters. By letter dated May 7, 1993, the Commissioner advised the parties that she declined to entertain the petition. New trial dates were scheduled for July 20, 23, 27, and 28, 1993. On June 21, 1993, respondent filed a motion for partial summary decision together with supporting papers. In response, petitioner filed a notice of cross-motion for partial summary decision and papers in opposition to respondent's motion, and petitioner filed responding papers on July 6, 1993. Oral argument was heard by telephone conference call on July 20, 1993, and the hearing was adjourned for that date. By letter order entered the same day, the undersigned advised the parties that petitioner's motion was denied and respondent's motion was granted. On July 21, 1993, petitioner advised of her intention to seek interlocutory review of the July 20, 1993 order, and during a conference call on the same date, the parties and the undersigned determined that an initial decision should be issued pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(e) to replace the letter order issued on July 20, 1993, because the present determination involves interpretation of new case law, and if the Commissioner should reverse the decision of the undersigned administrative law judge, the remaining issues in both cases would become moot.

FINDINGS OF FACT

The facts relevant to a determination of the cross-motions for partial summary decision are not in dispute, and I therefore FIND the following as uncontested facts.

Petitioner commenced employment with the Respondent on September 1, 1974, in the position of teacher. She was appointed to the position of Director, Project CLIMB, effective July 1, 1979. At that time "Director" was an unrecognized position title and pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6 respondent submitted a request to the county superintendent of schools for approval of the title and designation of the appropriate certification endorsement. Virginia L. Brinson, Middlesex County Superintendent of Schools, advised respondent that based upon her review of the responsibilities listed in the job description provided for Director of Project CLIMB, the holder of that position should possess an administrative certification with a supervisor endorsement and upon the attainment of tenure in the position would accrue seniority under the legal title, supervisor. In October 1981, the State Board of Examiners issued petitioner an administrative certificate with both principal and supervisor endorsements.* Petitioner continued to perform the duties of Director of Project CLIMB through November 30, 1990.

Project CLIMB is a federally funded project dealing with basic skills instruction. Respondent serves as a host district for the project. The project director is responsible for monitoring, supervising and evaluating a district-wide basic skills program. The director is also required to interface with educators nationwide regarding approaches to and programmatic philosophies of basic skills instruction and to work toward installing the Project CLIMB program in other local school districts. Petitioner worked with teachers in respondent's district in coordinating and implementing her program goals, however, she did not formally evaluate staff, nor was she involved in the hiring or termination process for staff members. Her personnel-related responsibilities were limited to directing a small staff who assisted her in her duties. Petitioner's job duties as director did not require her to communicate regularly with either children, parents or other members of the community. Her job duties did involve extensive travel and for many days at a time she would be away from the district.

In September 1990, respondent posted an advertised vacancy which had occurred in the principal-ship at Hazelwood Elementary School. Petitioner applied for this position by letter dated September 14, 1990. She became the successful candidate and was appointed principal of the Hazelwood School, effective December 1, 1990. A building principal in respondent's district has full responsibility for administering a school and its programs. The building principal is responsible for the day-to-day operation of the building, including staff evaluation, assignment, and making recommendations for the hiring and/or discharge of professional personnel. In addiiton, the building principal supervises all clerical, custodial and other non-professional members of the building staff and is responsible fo ensuring that the school plant is properly cared for and maintained. The building principal interacts on a daily basis with students and parents and other members of the school community. A salary increase accompanied petitioner's appointment to the position principal. Her compensation for the 1991-92 school year was $68,800. By resolution, * Accordingly, when N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.3 became effective on October 15, 1990, requiring the holder of the position director to possess either a principal or school administrator endorsement, petitioner had the proper endorsement.

dated April 15, 1992, respondent determined to return petitioner to her position as Director of Project CLIMB, effective July 1, 1992. Her salary for the 1992-93 school year as Director, Project CLIMB, was $66,655. Petitioner then filed a petition of appeal with the Commissioner of Education challenging respondent's April 15, 1992, actions, inter alia, as a violation of her tenure rights, commencing the within action.

APPLICABLE LAW AND DISCUSSION

Neither party challenges any fact material to the tenure issue and each party claims entitlement to a decision on this issue as a matter of law. Accordingly, this issue, which encompasses issues one, two and three in the Prehearing Order, is ripe for summary decision. N.J.A.C. 1:12-1, New Jersey Court Rules, R. 4:46-2, Judson v. Peoples Bank and Trust Company of Westfield, 17 N.J. 67, 73-75 (1954). Determination of the parties' motions depends upon interpretation of the most recent in a series of cases which refine the definition of tenure rights. Specifically at issue is the language used by the Supreme Court in the preliminary paragraphs of its opinion in Dennery v. Board of Educ., 131 N.J. 626, 634 (1993), wherein, prior to addressing the specific issues in the case, they described the legislative scheme and current case law:

> An educator who has attained tenure by virtue of the requisite service in a specific position will have tenure with respect to all positions under the particular certificate. Ellicott v. Board of Educ., 251 N.J. Super. 342, 349, 598 A.2d 237 (App. Div. 1991). Tenure under any one endorsement entitles an educator to tenure under all endorsements obtained under his or her certificate. Id. at 350, 598 A.2d 237; Bednar v. Westwood Bd. of Ed., 221 N.J. Super. 239, 534 A.2d 93 (App. Div. 1987) (holding that tenured teacher with instructional certificate and endorsement in art also entitled to tenured post requiring secondary art endorsement), certif. denied, 110 N.J. 512, 541 A.2d 1371 (1988); Capodilupo v. West Orange Township Bd. of Ed., 218 N.J. Super. 510, 528 A.2d 73 (App. Div.) (holding that teacher teacher with both elementary and secondary physical education endorsements was tenured under both endorsements), certif. denied, 109 N.J. 514, 537 A.2d 1300 (1987); Grosso v. Board of Educ., 1990 S.L.D. 1750.
> Thus, an educator with tenure in any endorsement that he or she possesses can, in effect, extend or transfer that tenure to other endorsements that are subsumed under the same certificate. . . .

The Court went on to hold that Ms. Dennery could not "transfer" her tenure earned in a position under one certificate to a position under a different certificate, a certificate that she had acquired but under which she had not accrued any relevant work experience. It is not the holding of Dennery upon which petitioner relies in claiming tenure to the position principal, however, but rather the Court's description of the holding in Ellicott v. Board of Educ., supra. Although in general, Ellicott stands for the proposition that a teaching staff member who has obtained tenure in any position under a particular certificate may extend his or her tenure rights to all other positions under that certificate for which they hold the appropriate endorsement, the Dennery Court's abbreviated description of the holding omits the crucial exception described in footnote one of the Appellate Division opinion (251 N.J. Super. 345) and in greater detail at pages 1717 through 1718 of the State Board Opinion:

> Similarly, principal, assistant principal, vice principal, superintendent and assistant superintendent, although all within the purview of the administrative and supervisory certificate, are separately tenurable positions by virtue of the express language of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5.[5] Capodilupo, supra. See, e.g., Schienholz v. Board of Education of the Township of Ewing, decided by the State Board of Education, February 7, 1990, appeal pending (App. Div.). In Schienholz, we reiterated that tenure was achieved in the position of "principal," rather than in the specific assignments of elementary or high school principal, stressing that "principal" was a separately tenurable position under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. Since petitioners therein were authorized by virtue of their principal endorsements to serve at all grade levels, they were entitled to tenure protection in all assignments within that tenurable position for which that certification qualified them.

5 We note that such status as separately tenurable positions is not based upon the various endorsements on the administrative certificate. An endorsement as principal, for example, authorizes service in both the separately tenurable positions of principal and vice principal. N.J.A.C. 6:11-10.4(b). Thus, while the Commissioner stresses, as an analogy to the instant case, the irrationality of a tenured vice principal displacing a non-tenured principal following a RIF, under regulations promulgated by the State Board, an individual serving as a vice principal is required to possess an endorsement as principal, and would, therefore, be authorized and qualified for service as a principal. Id. However, by virtue of the fact that principal and vice principal are, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5, separately tenurable positions, a tenured vice principal who has no tenure as a principal would have no statutory entitlement by virtue of tenure to assignment as a principal following a RIF.

> With the exception of school nurse, assignments within the purview of the educational services certificate are not enumerated in N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 as separately tenurable positions. Under regulations promulgated by the State Board, moreover, teaching staff members holding an educational services certificate are authorized and qualified for service in any assignment under that certificate for which they possess the appropriate endorsement. N.J.A.C. 6:11-12.1 et seq. Consequently, we conclude that, with the exception of school nurses, who are separately tenured by statute, staff members serving under educational services certificates achieve tenure in "educational services" and are entitled to tenure protection in all assignments within that tenurable position for which the endorsements on their certificates qualify them.[6]

6 We emphasize that, by virtue of the fact that the scope of the position to which tenure protection attaches is limited by the scope of the staff member's certification, individuals tenured in educational services would have no entitlement by virtue of tenure to assignments under that certificate for which they do not possess the appropriate endorsement.

Accordingly, I interpret Dennery and Ellicott to mean that teaching staff members who have obtained tenure in any position under a particular certificate, may extend their tenure rights to all other State Board-created positions under the certificate for which they hold the appropriate endorsement. The only way to obtain tenure in a position specifically enumerated in N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5, however, is by fulfilling the criteria specified in that statute or in N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6. Because respondent returned petitioner to her position Director, Project CLIMB, before the expiration of the two-year period specified in N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6, I CONCLUDE that she has no tenure rights to the position principal. Her acknowledged tenure as a Director in respondent's district does not make her a tenured principal simply because she holds the principal endorsement anymore than it makes her a tenured assistant superintendent for curriculum and instruction simply because she holds an endorsement appropriate for that position. Petitioner's assertion that "director" equals "principal" for tenure entitlement purposes, is simply not borne out by the undisputed facts in this matter; the job duties are separate and distinct, those of principal requiring the additional tasks of formal staff evaluation and interaction with parents and students. The endorsement "principal" also permits the holder to serve in the positions "assistant superintendent for curriculum and instruction,"

"assistant principal," and "vice principal;" to say that "director" equals "principal" is no more supportable than to say "director" equals "assistant superintendent for curriculum and instruction" or any of the other designated position titles.

The within conclusion is supported by the Dennery Court's explanatory language at 637, cited by petitioner herself:

> Endorsements under a single certificate represent a related combination of qualifications, reflecting the common or related skills that are required for the satisfactory performance of educational responsibilities under that certificate. Certificates, by contrast, represent distinct and separate areas spanning the entire field of public education, and the different certificates relate to discrete and distinctive categories of functions, duties, and responsibilities of educators.
> The Legislature clearly and pointedly has vested responsibility in the State Board to fashion standards and promulgate guidelines concerning the qualification and certification of public educators within the State. Ellicott, supra, 251 N.J. Super. at 350, 598 A.2d 237. The Legislature intended that the State Board "promulgate specifications concerning the categories of 'certification'" and that courts not intervene "unless the State Board's decision is palpably arbitrary." Id. at 350, 598 A.2d 237. Agency regulations are accorded substantial deference based on the recognition that "certain subjects are within the peculiar competence of the agency." In re Amendment of N.J.A.C. 8:31B-3.31, 119 N.J. 531, 575 A.2d 481 (1990). The delegation of regulatory and administrative responsibility over tenure to the State Board is based on the complexity and specialize nature of the subject of teacher tenure. Ellicott, supra. 251 N.J. Super. at 350, 598 A.2d 237. Our courts have long recognized the importance of allowing the State Board to devise requirements governing both students and teaching staff. See, e.g., Shelton College v. State Bd. of Educ., 48 N.J. 501, 517-18, 226 A.2d 612 (1967).

Clearly, the Legislature has delegated the responsibility for the regulation and administration of public education tenure to the State Board. The Legislature itself created a finite number of separately tenurable positions, which are enumerated in N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. All other positions are created by the State Board of Education, which has grouped those positions according to qualifications reflecting common or related skills under either the Educational Services Certificate or the Administrative Certificate. In doing so, the State Board of Education has identified those positions to which a tenured staff member may extend his or her tenure rights. The State Board has also clearly stated that tenure rights obtained in a State Board created position may not be extended to those specifically enumerated tenurable positions described by the Legislature. For the foregoing reasons, petitioner's motion for partial summary decision is HEREBY DENIED and respondent's motion for partial summary decision is HEREBY GRANTED. I CONCLUDE that petitioner has no tenure rights to the position principal.

Although this determination resolves only issues one, two and three in the Prehearing Order, if the Commissioner of Education should disagree with this determination, the remaining issues will be moot, and accordingly, this decision is being transmitted at the request of the parties pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(e) for a final decision on this issue prior to proceeding to hearing on the remaining issues.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 West State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

The record of these consolidated matters and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Following grant of an extension of time at the parties' request pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(c), exceptions were filed by petitioner and replies by the Board of Education ("Board").

In her exceptions, petitioner contends that the ALJ erred in finding "director" to be a separately tenurable position, distinct from "principal" under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5, as "director" is listed neither in tenure statutes nor seniority regulations prior to 1993 and is not the subject of its own specific certificate or endorsement. To the contrary, the only place "director" is mentioned prior to the 1993 seniority regulations is as an illustrative example of the positions for which the principal endorsement on the administrative certificate qualifies its holder. Moreover, given the manner in which districts have employed the previously unrecognized "director" title over the years, to hold that "director" is separately tenurable from "principal" is to abandon the longstanding holding that tenure rights are based on the substance of positions rather than their local nomenclature. (Petitioner's Exception No. 1)

Petitioner also excepts to the ALJ's having ruled on a summary basis, contending that there is a dispute of material fact with respect to petitioner's supervisory duties and that the ALJ wrongfully relied on facts as related by the Board in its motion for summary judgment. Factual allegations set forth in a verified complaint cannot be summarily dismissed, Winston v. South Plainfield Board of Education, 64 N.J. 582 (1973), and the facts cited by the ALJ cannot be viewed as immaterial to her determination in that the fundamental issue in this case requires a careful examination of the similarities and differences between the positions of director and principal. (Petitioner's Exception No. 2)

Finally, petitioner argues that failure to fully litigate the question of petitioner's tenured status could leave her "bumping" rights uncertain in the event the Director of Project CLIMB position is abolished, as petitioner believes is likely to occur in the foreseeable future. (Petitioner's Exception No. 3)

In reply, the Board references its submissions before the ALJ and urges support of the initial decision. The Board further notes in specific response to petitioner's exceptions that the central question of this matter is petitioner's entitlement to tenure as a principal, not the tenurability of the director position; that petitioner's claim of disputed facts is belied by her own motion for summary decision and her failure to file any opposition to the facts stated in the Board's cross-motion; and that petitioner has not been riffed from her position as director, nor did she raise the issue of potential "bumping" rights in her initial pleadings. (Board's Reply Exceptions, at pp. 1-5)

Upon review, the Commissioner finds petitioner's exceptions to be without merit and affirms the opinion of the ALJ.

Initially, the Commissioner rejects petitioner's exception to the decision having been rendered on a summary basis, both because petitioner herself moved for summary judgment on grounds that no material facts were in dispute and because the matter herein was decided by the ALJ on facts which were uncontested either in the initial pleadings or on the Board's motion for summary judgment, to which petitioner was obliged to respond pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5 if she believed that material issues of fact precluded such disposition. The Commissioner further rejects petitioner's notion that her "bumping" status must be determined herein, as she has not been subjected to a reduction in force and any determination of her seniority rights in a RIF situation must await the event and face challenge, if she believes her rights to have been violated, as a new cause of action.

As to petitioner's substantive claim, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ's careful analysis of Dennery, supra, and Ellicott, supra, and specifically with her holding that mere possession of the requisite certificate does not entitle the holder to a separately tenurable position enumerated in N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 when the criteria expressly specified in that statute have not been met. As aptly stated by the ALJ at page 7 above, "[petitioner's] acknowledged tenure as Director in respondent's district does not make her a tenured principal simply because she holds the principal endorsement any more than it makes her a tenured assistant superintendent for curriculum and instruction simply because she holds an endorsement appropriate for that position."

Accordingly, the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law granting partial summary judgment to the Board and ordering the remaining issues to proceed to hearing is affirmed for the reasons expressed therein.*

IT IS SO ORDERED.

* In order to avoid potential confusion, the Commissioner notes that the ALJ's statement at the beginning of the first full paragraph at page 7 above must be read consistent with the Commissioner's holding in Stanley Halpern v. Board of Education of the Township of Delran, Burlington County, decided October 20, 1993, i.e., that service under the supervisory endorsement on the administrative certificate would not entitle the holder to claim a position, even State Board created, that requires a principal's endorsement unless the holder has also obtained tenure in a position requiring the principal endorsement.

V.	:	STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF MIDDLESEX, MIDDLESEX COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT-RESPONDENT.	:

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, November 18, 1993

For the Petitioner-Appellant, Kenney, Gross & McDonough (Carol Scott Stevens, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Respondent, Rand, Algeier, Tosti & Woodruff (Ellen S. Bass, Esq., of Counsel)

On December 17, 1993, the appellant, a tenured teaching staff member, filed a notice of appeal to the State Board of Education from a determination of the Commissioner of Education granting partial summary decision to the Board and dismissing appellant's claim that she had achieved tenure as a principal. On January 12, 1994, the appellant requested the State Board to hold this matter in abeyance pending the completion of a hearing scheduled in the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") on the remaining issues in the case. By letter dated January 13, 1994 from the Counsel to the State Board, appellant was notified that her request had been granted and that the briefing schedule was being stayed pending the proceedings in

Oct. 5, 1995

OAL. She was further advised that it was her responsibility to notify the State Board immediately upon conclusion of those proceedings so that the briefing schedule could be reestablished.

On August 19, 1994, appellant, in response to a status request from the Counsel to the State Board, requested that this matter remain in abeyance, indicating that a decision from the Commissioner was expected by December.

By letter to appellant dated February 17, 1995, the Counsel for the State Board, observing that the Commissioner had forwarded a copy of a decision he had rendered in this matter on December 12, 1994, requested the status of the case. Appellant did not respond to that request. Nor were responses received to telephone messages left with appellant's counsel on July 18 and 20, 1995. As a result, appellant was notified by letter dated July 27, 1995 that this matter was being referred to our Legal Committee for review of her failure to perfect the appeal. By letter dated August 17, appellant was advised that in view of her failure to respond to the written status requests of February 17 and July 27 or to the telephone inquiries of July 18 and 20, the Legal Committee had determined to re-establish the briefing schedule in this matter. Appellant was advised that her appeal brief was due on September 5 and that failure to file in a timely manner would result in dismissal of the appeal.

Appellant has still failed to file a brief. Nor has she requested an extension for such filing or provided any explanation for the delay.

The State Board of Education therefore dismisses the appeal in this matter for failure to perfect. N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.12(a).[1]

October 5, 1995

Date of mailing OCT 10 1995

[1] On September 19, 1995, the Board provided us with a copy of a stipulation of dismissal which was submitted to the Office of Administrative Law by the appellant on September 18 with regard to proceedings therein. We note that that the appellant has not provided a stipulation to the State Board with regard to the instant appeal.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Board appealed General Fund tax levy reductions in the amount of $104,210 made by governing body following voter rejection of proposed budget on April 20, 1993.

Upon review of the appeal herein to determine whether Board demonstrated that restoration of specific line item reductions was necessary in order to provide a thorough and efficient system of education in the district, Commissioner determined to restore $50,660.

Board also appealed General Fund cap waiver in the amount of $124,814 rejected by voters.

Upon review of the record, Commissioner determined to order the increase of $124,814 in cap waiver monies for a total General Fund tax levy of $6,182,330 for 1993-94 school year.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWN OF HACKETTSTOWN, PETITIONER, V. MAYOR AND COUNCIL OF THE TOWN OF HACKETTSTOWN, WARREN COUNTY, RESPONDENT. - - - - - - - - - - - - - - - - - - IN THE MATTER OF THE CAP WAIVER APPEAL OF THE BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWN OF HACKETTSTOWN, WARREN COUNTY.	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION DECISION

Thomas K. Thorp, Esq. (Thorp & Thorp), for Respondent

This consolidated matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education on June 14, 1993 through the filing of a Petition of Appeal of a defeated school budget by the Board of Education of the Town of Hackettstown (Board) pursuant to the provisions of N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.1 et seq. and a Petition of Appeal of its defeated cap waiver. On June 23 the respondent Hackettstown Town Council (Council) filed its Answer to the petitioner regarding the budget appeal. On July 16, 1993 the Board submitted a combined Position Paper dealing with both the cap waiver appeal and the regular budget appeal. By way of a letter dated August 9, 1993 from Dr. Maureen Keller, Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, the Council was informed that it had not filed either its position statement relative to the budget appeal nor its response to the cap waiver appeal. The Council was informed that failure to respond within 10 days would result in the Commissioner considering the record closed in both matters as to submissions prescribed by N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.8 and that the Commissioner would deem that the Council would be relying on papers already filed. No response was forthcoming and the Commissioner has so determined.

Further, as a result of the State Board of Education's July 7, 1993 decision in the Board of Education of the Borough of Rutherford v. Mayor and Council of Rutherford wherein the State Board ruled that decisions in defeated voter cap waiver appeals must determine whether or not reallocation within the district's maximum permissible budget is possible and whether and to what extent the specific programs at issue are essential in order to enable the Board to meet its constitutional obligation to provide a thorough and efficient system of education, a letter was sent to the parties by the Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes informing them of the need to supplement the record to document the reallocation and cap waiver review conducted by the county superintendent pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-27. The county superintendent was accorded thirty (30) days from receipt of the letter to submit a sworn affidavit setting forth an explanation and documentation of that review, including the bases for concluding that (1) reallocation within the district's maximum permissible budget for the 1993-94 school year was not possible and (2) the specific programs at issue were essential for the Board to provide a thorough and efficient system of education to its students.

The governing body and Board were provided twenty (20) days from receipt of the county superintendent's submission to file a response thereto. Neither party filed any additional papers.

The county superintendent's affidavit with supportive documentation was received on September 10, 1993 and the record was formally closed on October 4, 1993.

On April 20, 1993 the voters of the Town of Hackettstown defeated the Board's 1993-94 proposed General Fund tax levy of $6,111,066. The voters also defeated a proposed cap waiver of $124,814 which was approved on March 23, 1993 by the Warren County Superintendent of Schools as being necessary for the provision of a thorough and efficient system of education.

The specific line item accounts of the T&E cap waiver were as follows:

Account No.	Description	Amount
11-130-100-101	Grades 6-8 - Salaries of Teachers	$ 6,000
11-190-100-610	General Supplies	3,434
11-000-218-320	Purch. Prof. - Educational Services	800
11-000-222-600	Supplies and Materials	380
11-000-230-339	Other Purch. Prof. Services	60,000
11-000-260-420	Cleaning, Repair and Maintenance	200
	Subtotal Current Expenses	$ 70,814
12-140-100-730	Grades 9-12	$ 12,000
12-000-230-730	Undistributed Exp. - Gen. Admin.	37,000
12-000-400-450	Construction Services	5,000
	Subtotal Capital Outlay	$ 54,000
	Total Cap Waiver	$124,814

Subsequent to the defeat of the budget by the voters, the Board and Council pursuant to the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37 consulted on the defeated budget whereupon the Council reduced the General Fund tax levy by $104,210. Therefore the funds in dispute between the parties set forth below:

Proposed Tax Levy Adopted by Board		Amount of Tax Levy Certified by Governing Body
General Fund	$6,111,066	General Fund	$6,006,856
Amount of Reduction By Governing Body		Amount in Dispute Before Commissioner
General Fund	$104,210	General Fund	$104,210
		Cap Waiver	124,814
		Total	$229,024

The specific line item reductions and the reasons for such reductions as contained within the Council's Answer are set forth below:

Account	Description	Amount of Reduction	Reason for Reduction
11-401-100-100	Drama Advisor	$1,000	This is a new position. A drama program has existed previously without these positions.
11-401-100-100	Drama Assistant	800
11-140-100-10	CIE	4,000	This is a new position that can be filled at a lower starting salary.
11-140-100-10	CIE Coordinator	2,000	This new part time summer position can be cut back and still allow the new CIE program to be ready for full use in September.
11-000-218	Testing Guidance	4,000	This is a stipend for instructions for a function they are already performing.
11-000-21	Summer help Sec'y/Guidance	500	This is a minor reduction of wages that will allow for guidance to catch up on paperwork. Someone can be hired at a lower starting salary of reduced hours.

Account	Description	Amount of Reduction	Reason for Reduction

11-000-290-100	Overtime (other support services)	200	Employees already receiving $168,013 in salaries must be supervised, so that they complete their work without the need for overtime.

11-401-100-500 (373)	Cocurricular services	2,000	A very minor cut in an area that although important not necessary for a thorough and efficient educational system.

Account	Description	Amount of Reduction	Reason for Reduction
11-402-100-500 (379)	School sponsored athletics purchased services	$ 1,500	The cost of services such as referees, umpires, etc. should be renegotiated.
11-402-100-600 (380)	Athletic supplies	2,500	The reductions can be made without reducing programs by reusing uniforms and equipment.
11-000-221-320 (441)	Purchased Prof.	6,000	The number of paid workshops can be reduced and internal self guided workshops encouraged.
11-000-230-890 (461)	Miscellaneous Expenditures Administrator	750	Dues, conferences and other expenses can be closely monitored to absorb these reductions.
11-000-240-600 (469)	Supplies & Materials	5,000	The cost of office supplies, copies can be reduced by closely monitoring spending.
11-000-260-420 (475)	Cleaning, repair and maintenance	$ 2,000*	The annual cost of copiers, typewriters, computers, boilers and service contracts can easily be reduced by $2,000.
	TOTAL	$48,100

* This line item reduction is listed at $5,000 in Council's original resolution causing a discrepancy of $3,000 between this version and the original. Further, it is to be noted that this version of the reductions also omits $53,110 in reductions in teachers' salaries found in Council's original resolution of reduction. No explanation is provided by Council.

DEFEATED BUDGET

STANDARD OF REVIEW

In rendering judgment relative to budgetary appeals, the Commissioner notes that the Constitution of the State of New Jersey requires the Legislature to provide for a thorough and efficient system of education. The Legislature by way of statutory scheme has delegated the responsibility for providing such thorough and efficient system to local boards of education. Additionally, the Legislature pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9, 22-14, 22-17 and 22-37 has authorized the Commissioner of Education to review and decide appeals by boards of education seeking restoration of budgetary reductions imposed by local governing bodies. (See also Board of Education of East Brunswick Township v. Township Council of East Brunswick, 48 N.J. 94 (1966) and Board of Education of Deptford Township v. Mayor and Council of Deptford Township, 116 N.J. 305 (1989).)

In reviewing such appeals, the Commissioner must determine whether a district board of education has demonstrated that the amount by which a specific line item reduction imposed by the governing body is necessary for the provision of a thorough and efficient system of education.

Before reviewing the instant matter line item-by-line item, the Commissioner must point out for the record that the New Jersey Supreme Court in East Brunswick, supra, has addressed the proper standard of review by a governing body after defeat of a budget by the voters. It reads in pertinent part:

> But its determinations must be independent ones properly related to educational considerations rather than voter reactions. In every step it must act conscientiously, > reasonably and with full regard for the State's educational standards and its own obligation to fix a sum sufficient to provide a system of local schools which may fairly be considered thorough and efficient in view of the makeup of the community. (at 105-106)

Moreover, it is clear that the New Jersey Supreme Court in Deptford, supra, has unequivocally ruled that the statement of reasons for each reduction effectuated by a governing body must be done at the time the municipality make its certification of the reduced budget to the county board of taxation and that if there is a failure to do so, there can be a heavy presumption against the educational validity of the proposed cuts.

> The board of education should be furnished with reasons in order to respond quickly and intelligently and to act constructively in preserving educational interests. The advantages of such a process would be dissipated if the reasons were not available until an appeal has been filed. Hence, we conclude that these regulations do not exempt the municipality from a duty to file a statement of reasons in a timely fashion in conjunction with any proposed budget cuts, which, we now determine, must be done at the time the municipality makes it (sic) certification of the reduced budget to the county board of taxation.
>
> We now hold that statements must be provided for any line-item reductions. This will not be unduly inconvenient or burdensome. Further, a uniform rule that calls for the submission of explanatory reasons for all budget cuts will encourage municipalities to be specific and conscientious in their consideration of educational concerns, and will serve to make such considerations an integral part of their decision-making process. (at 315-317)

And,

> [W]e want to stress that if the municipality fails to submit reasons contemporaneously with its certification of budget cuts, the Commissioner of Education in the course of an ensuing appeal is entitled to invoke a heavy presumption against the educational validity of the proposed budget cuts. Hence, the greater the > delay in the submission of detailed reasons in support of such cuts, the stronger will be the presumption against their validity and the heavier will be the municipality's burden on appeal to establish the validity of the reduced budget. In that posture, the Commissioner will be entitled initially to presume that such cuts have been made purely for extra-educational reasons or for political expediency without specific cognizance taken of their educational effects. (at 320-321)

Mindful, then, of the balance to be applied in the standard of review, the Commissioner makes the following determination with respect to the reductions in the General Fund tax levy effectuated by Council.

Initially it should be noted that the Board argues persuasively relative to the standard established in Deptford, supra, that the requirement that the reasons for the reductions proposed by a governing body be provided at the time the reductions are made have not been met in the instant matter. (See Exhibit B, Board's Position Statement.) Not only did the Council wait until it filed its Answer to the budget appeal, it further omitted $53,110 of reductions for teachers' salaries contained within its original reduction effectuated by its resolution of May 10, 1993. Consequently, pursuant to the standard of review in budget matters as propounded in Deptford, supra, "the Commissioner of Educationis entitled to invoke a heavy presumption against the educational validity of the proposed budget cuts." (ante)

Notwithstanding the above, Deptford likewise requires that the Commissioner review the budget reductions and consider the positions of the parties. Those positions and the Commissioner's determination relative to those arguments are set forth below.

Account		Reduction
11-120-100-101	Teacher's Salary Grades 1-5	$ 2,000
11-130-100-101	Teacher's Salary M.S.	2,000
11-140-100-10	Teacher's Salary H.S.	34,070
11-000-21	Salaries/Clerical	15,040
	TOTAL	$53,110

As noted above, the Council provided no reason as to why the above salary accounts should be reduced in its original reduction resolution, other than that two positions should be eliminated and the salaries of two other reduced. Its purported statement of reasons for the reductions imposed omits these line items entirely. Given the circumstances described above, the Commissioner concludes that the actions of the Council in this area were arbitrary and without any concrete basis and that the $53,110 reduction was unwarranted. Notwithstanding the determination above, the Commissioner notes that the Hackettstown Board of Education by way of letter to John C. Ericson, Warren County Superintendent of Schools, dated May 18, 1993 conceded $38,000 in teachers' salaries due to the unexpected retirement of several experienced teachers to be replaced by less experienced teachers at lower salary levels. Accordingly, the Commissioner directs that only $15,110 be restored to the appropriate teacher salary accounts. (See Exhibit H of the County Superintendent's September 10, 1993 submission.)

11-401-100-100 - Drama Advisor and Assistant $1,800

The Council argues that the drama program had existed in the past without the additional positions. The Board contends that in previous years the above positions were filled by unpaid volunteers. The person who in the past had volunteered has left the district and without these positions the drama program would have to be abandoned.

Based upon the aforesaid, the Commissioner finds that the Board has met its burden and that the reduction imposed by the Council was arbitrary. The Commissioner directs the restoration of the $1,800 reduction.

Account	Reduction
11-140-100-10 - CIE Coordinator	$4,000

The Council argues that this new position can be filled at a lower salary. The Board contends that its minimum salary is $26,000 and that an experienced CIE coordinator would require at least the $35,000 originally projected considering benefits and the fact that negotiations were still pending.

The Commissioner finds the Council's position to be arbitrary and inflexible leading to the possible result of denying the Board the ability to hire an appropriately certified individual. The Board presents a rational basis for filling a position which adds to the comprehensiveness of its program. The $4,000 reduction is restored.

11-140-100-10 - CIE Coordinator/Summer Employment	$2,000

The Council contends that the summer employment of the CIE coordinator can be reduced without injury to the program.

The Board contends that summer employment on a part-time basis is required in order to contact employers and evaluate pupils. It is during the summer period, contends the Board, when most of the work to prepare for the school year is done.

The Commissioner finds that the Council offers no firm basis for its conclusion that the new program can be installed with the reduction imposed. The Board's position is consistent with accepted practice in the area of work program coordination. the $2,000 for summer work is restored.

Account	Reduction
11-000-218 - Testing Guidance	$4,000

The Council argues that this is a stipend for a function already being performed. The Board's position is set forth in Exhibit C of its Position Statement in an excerpt from its Guidance Director's year-end report in which he reports the existence of an increasing workload in dealing with crisis intervention involving students with personal and family problems. The director indicates that the guidance counselors regularly work several hours of overtime per day and that the demands on their time reduces their time spent on counseling students.

Upon review of the respective positions, the Commissioner finds that the Board has met its burden of demonstrating its need to provide additional assistance to the guidance staff in order to permit them to effectively contribute to a thorough and efficient system of education. The reduction of $4,000 is restored.

11-000-21 - Secretarial/Guidance	$ 500

The Council argues that someone could be hired at a lower salary to provide summer secretarial help. The Board contends that salaries are not dictated by the Board's desires but by negotiated agreement.

The Commissioner finds that the argument of the Council fails to consider the fact that negotiated agreements, and not the employer's whim, dictate salaries. The $500 reduction is restored.

11-000-21 - Secretarial Overtime	$3,245

The Council argues that since a new full-time secretary is included within the budget, overtime can be reduced. The Board argues that the additional secretary was approved as part of a cap waiver request and that the overtime requirement here is for a contingency fund to provide overtime for the Child Study Team.

The Commissioner determines that the Board has not responded directly as to the need for overtime. The Board argues that the overtime is necessary to supplement an understaffed area of services. The Board further argues that its administration is in a better position of determining the needs in this area than the Council.

The Commissioner finds that the Council's argument of better supervision to be facile. The Board, however, offers no firm basis for determining what its needs in this area have been in the past. Consequently, due to the burden imposed by the law, the Commissioner finds that the Board has failed to meet this burden and the $3,245 reduction is sustained.

Account	Reduction
11-000-230-10 - Treasurer	$ 605

The Council suggests that, since a new treasurer is being hired, a lower salary figure can be negotiated for what it contends is a ceremonial position. The Board contends that it has hired the new Town Treasurer and that it will need the additional funds to train her.

The Commissioner is not convinced that the Board has adequately explained the need for additional funds for training nor the nature of such training. The $605 reduction is sustained.

11-000-240-105 - Summer Help H.S. Secretarial	$1,000

The Council contends that since this is a new position the hours and salaries can be adjusted. The Board responds with the same rationale as provided above relating to the treasurer. The Commissioner, as she did above, finds the Board's position unresponsive and therefore directs the sustaining of the $1,000 reduction in this account.

Account	Reduction
11-000-290-100 - Overtime Support Services	$ 200

The Council argues that improved supervision would eliminate the need for overtime pay for a group of employees earning $168,013 in the aggregate. The Board argues that the funds are necessary to supplement an understaffed area which it is in a better position to monitor and control than the Council.

The Commissioner, upon review of the Board's argument and in consideration of the standard required to meet in budget appeals, determines that the Board has failed to meet the burden of providing sufficient substantiation to support its need. The $200 reduction is sustained.

11-190-100-610 - General Supplies	$5,000

The Council contends that a 1.8% cut will have no effect upon the district. The Board argues that the Council's actions are arbitrary and unsubstantiated.

The Commissioner determines that utilization of fixed rate reductions without accompanying rationale are arbitrary by nature and therefore impermissible. The $5,000 by which this account was reduced is restored.

11-190-100-640 - Textbooks	$5,000

The Council argues that its review of the publication dates of the textbooks revealed that the older books were in subjects like Latin that do not become outdated. The Board contends that the Council's argument is arbitrary and that it is its policy to maintain a five-year revision cycle. Even with such policy many of its books are more than five years old.

The Commissioner's review of the foregoing arguments leads her to conclude that the Council's arguments are overly simplistic. Even if one were to conclude that some books do not become outdated, which is to be doubted even in subjects like Latin, books deteriorate with use and a five-year replacement cycle is clearly reasonable. The $5,000 reduction in this account is restored.

Account	Reduction
11-401-100-600 (374) - Cocurricular Supplies	$1,000

The Council contends that a minor cut in this area is not necessary for a thorough and efficient educational system. The Board merely refers to its argument in the previous account.

The Commissioner finds the argument of the Council to be without any supporting basis; however, the Board offers no rebuttal which would satisfy the standard of meeting the burden of proof required for restoration. The Commissioner therefore sustains the reduction of $1,000.

11-401-100-500 (373) - Cocurricular Services	$2,000

Both parties repeat the arguments described in the account immediately above. The Commissioner finds no basis for determining that the Board has met its burden. The $2,000 reduction is sustained based upon the burden of proof required to be placed upon the Board to demonstrate necessity.

11-402-100-500 (379) - Purchased Athletic Services	$1,500

The Council urges renegotiating the cost of referees and umpires, while the Board points out that the cost of such services are negotiated and determined by the league in which the district is a member.

The Commissioner finds the Board's argument convincing and consistent with existing practice in obtaining athletic services. The $1,500 reduction is restored.

Account	Reduction
11-402-100-600 (380) - Athletic Supplies	$2,500

The Council argues for reusing of uniforms to meet the reduction. The Board reiterates its position stated earlier that the Council's position is arbitrary and that it already utilizes its equipment to the fullest extent possible.

The Commissioner finds that the Council's position is simplistic yet the Board offers no documentary basis upon which to make a determination as to the necessity for the equipment and supplies. The reduction of $2,500 is sustained. Once again the Commissioner reiterates that the Board must bear the burden of demonstrating its need.

11-000-221-320 (441) - Purchased Professional Services	$6,000

The Council argues that the number of paid workshops can be reduced and replaced by internal self-guided workshops. The Board argues for the essential nature of staff development and points out that the reduction represents a significant portion of its staff development budget. The Board likewise points out the essential nature of staff development.

The Commissioner in considering the arguments of the parties concludes that the logic of the Board relative to the importance of staff development far outweighs the argument of the Council. While undoubtedly some staff members may well be able to serve as mentors to the rest of the staff, that fact does not obscure the necessity for an adequately funded program of staff development. The $6,000 in this account is to be restored.

Account	Reduction
11-000-230-890 (461) - Miscellaneous Adm./Expenditures	$ 750

The Council argues that the funds in this account for administrative dues and conferences can be more closely monitored. The Board's argument that these amounts are determined by negotiations is compelling. The $750 is restored.

11-000-240-600 (469) - Supplies and Materials	$5,000
11-000-260-420 (475) - Cleaning, Repair and Maintenance	$2,000

The Council argues that supplies and material costs can be reduced by closer monitoring and that the annual maintenance/service cost of copiers, typewriters, etc. can easily be reduced by the $2,000 indicated. The Board responds by indicating its supplies and maintenance budget has been slashed to the bone and that its service contracts had already been cut. Further, the Board argues that elimination of service contracts will result in greater future costs.

The Commissioner finds that the Board offers little in the way of specific data regarding its need for supplies and materials, other than its contention that its budget has been severely cut. However, the Commissioner finds merit in the Board's argument relative to its service and repair contracts. Accordingly, the Commissioner directs that the $5,000 reduction in the materials and supplies account be sustained. Additionally, the Commissioner directs that the $2,000 in the repair and maintenance account be restored, as well as the $3,000 discrepancy in this account in the itemized reductions contained within Council's Answer for which Council provided no explanation.

			$50,660

In summary, the Commissioner finds and determines that of the $104,210 tax reduction imposed by the Council on the Board's 1993-94 budget appropriation a sum of $15,550 has been sustained. The Commissioner further finds that $50,660 be restored as essential to the provision of a thorough and efficient system of education, the difference between that amount and the full total proposed reduction of $104,210 being $38,000 conceded by the Board as a result of the retirement of several experienced teachers and their replacement by lower salaried teachers.

CAP WAIVER

In considering the appeal of the Board on its cap waiver request of $124,814, the Commissioner notes that neither the Board nor the Council have chosen to submit additional position statements relative to the waiver. The Commissioner's determination, therefore, shall be based solely upon the documentation submitted by the Board to the Warren County Superintendent and the County Superintendent's submissions to the Commissioner at the direction of Director Keller.

The submission of September 10, 1993 by the Warren County Superintendent to the Commissioner which is incorporated herein by reference indicates that the cap waiver request was thoroughly scrutinized by him as well as by a panel from the Department of Education including three member of the Division of County and Regional Services as well as two members from the Division of Finance.

Both the County Superintendent and the other panel members after a line item-by-line item scrutiny of the budget to determine whether further reallocations could be effectuated agreed that the cap waiver submitted to the voters was required for the provision of a thorough and efficient system of education.

Upon the filing of the affidavit of September 30, 1993 from the Warren County Superintendent, the Commissioner carefully scrutinized the County Superintendent's Budget Review and Reallocation Analysis. Based upon the aforesaid analysis which indicated that the County Superintendent had conducted a line-by-line review of the budget to determine the need for the increases in the specific areas set forth, ante, and whether reallocation could be effectuated to meet those needs, the Commissioner finds and determines that the $124,814 cap waiver request is necessary in order to ensure a thorough and efficient system of education for the pupils of the Hackettstown Public Schools. The Commissioner therefore directs the Warren County Board of Taxation to increase the 1993-94 General Fund tax levy for the Hackettstown School District to reflect a restoration of $50,660 in reductions effectuated by the Council and an additional $124,814 in cap waiver appropriations which sums reflect a total General Fund tax levy of $6,182,330 for the 1993-94 school year.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION DECISION

Upon review of the appeal herein to determine whether Board demonstrated that restoration of specific line item reductions was necessary in order to provide a thorough and efficient system of education in the district, Commissioner determined to restore $319,650.

Board also appealed General Fund cap waiver in the amount of $218,941 rejected by voters.

Upon review of the record, Commissioner determined to order the increase of $218,941 in cap waiver monies for a total General Fund tax levy of $3,898,623 for 1993-94 school year.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF EDGEWATER, PETITIONER, V. MAYOR AND COUNCIL OF THE BOROUGH OF EDGEWATER, BERGEN COUNTY, RESPONDENT.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION DECISION
IN THE MATTER OF THE CAP WAIVER APPEAL OF THE BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF EDGEWATER, BERGEN COUNTY.	:

For the Petitioner, Steven J. Zaben, Esq.

For the Respondent, Robert T. Regan, Esq.

This is a consolidated matter submitted for adjudication before the Commissioner of Education. On June 10, 1993, the Board of Education of the Borough of Edgewater (Board) appealed from an action taken by the Mayor and Council of the Borough of Edgewater (Council) pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37, certifying to the Bergen County Board of Taxation a lesser amount for General Fund costs for the 1993-94 school year than the amount proposed by the Board in its budget which was rejected by the voters. On June 18, 1993, the Board filed its cap waiver appeal. Answers to the petitions were filed on June 28, 1993 and July 2, 1993, respectively.

At the annual school election held on April 20, 1993, the Board submitted to the electorate a proposal to raise $3,747,159 by local taxation for General Fund costs of the school district in addition to the approval of a cap waiver in the amount of $218,941. After voter rejection of both matters, the Board submitted its proposal to Council for its determination of the amounts it deemed necessary for the operation of a thorough and efficient school system in the Borough of Edgewater for the 1993-94 school year pursuant to the mandatory obligation imposed on Council by N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37.

After consultation with the Board, Council made its determination and certified to the Bergen County Board of Taxation an amount of $3,360,032 for General Fund costs as shown below:

	Proposed Tax Levy Adopted by Board	Original Certification	Amended Certification
General Fund	$3,747,159	$3,170,032	$3,360,032
Cap Waiver	218,941	-0-	-0-
TOTAL	$3,966,100	$3,170,032*	$3,360,032*

* It is noted that Council subsequently amended its original certification to reflect elimination of the amount of $190,000, Debt Service Fund, from the list of itemized reductions. The amount certified was therefore changed to $3,360,032 and the itemized reductions to $273,748. (See June 21, 1993 Certification of Borough Clerk, Exhibit B.)

In addition to the itemized reductions of $273,748 and the cap waiver reduction of $218,941, Council reduced an additional $113,379 by declaring Adjustments to Revenue a revenue and not an expenditure. This transfer effected the additional reduction.

Itemized Reductions	$273,748

Therefore $606,068 is the amount of reduction in dispute before the Commissioner.

DEFEATED BUDGET

STANDARD OF REVIEW

In rendering judgment relative to budgetary appeals, the Commissioner notes that the Constitution of the State of New Jersey requires the Legislature to provide for a thorough and efficient system of education. The Legislature by way of statutory scheme has delegated the responsibility for providing such thorough and efficient system to local boards of education. Additionally, the Legislature pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9, 22-14, 22-17 and 22-37 has authorized the Commissioner of Education to review and decide appeals by boards of education seeking restoration of budgetary reductions imposed by local governing bodies. (See also Board of Education of East Brunswick Township v. Township Council of East Brunswick, 48 N.J. 94 (1966) and Board of Education of Deptford Township v. Mayor and Council of Deptford Township, 116 N.J. 305 (1989).)

In reviewing such appeals the Commissioner must determine whether a district board of education has demonstrated that the amount by which a specific line item reduction imposed by the governing body is necessary for the provision of a thorough and efficient system of education.

Mindful, then, of the balance to be applied in the standard of review, the Commissioner makes the following determination with respect to the reductions in the General Fund tax levy effectuated by Council.

The Commissioner has reviewed the respective Position Statements and written summations filed by the parties which are incorporated herein by reference unless specifically relied upon for the purpose of further clarification of any particular item as examined in the body of this decision.

In the instant matter, Council established the aforesaid tax levy by imposing the following line item reductions:

Account	Reduction
11-000-230-890 (line 461) Miscellaneous Expenditures	$6,500

Council asserts that this account includes expenses for travel, conferences and workshops for Board members and central administration and since the monies are not for classroom instruction, the reduction will not adversely affect the education of pupils. Additionally, Council is critical of overexpenditures in this account in prior years, which it maintains the Board had to cover with transfers from other accounts.

The Board argues correctly that activities undertaken in this account, including the district's newsletters to the community, have a direct effect on the education of the pupils in the district. It is necessary to spend money on the training of Board members, notwithstanding the fact that there are no new members on the Board. Board members need training in the basics of finance, curriculum development and personnel management. They should also have a thorough understanding of education law as embodied in Title 18A and the New Jersey Administrative Code. Further, the amount budgeted is less than the amount expended in 1992-93.

Based on the Board's rationale, the Commissioner determines that the $6,500 reduction will be restored to the budget.

Account	Reduction
11-190-100-610 (line 163) General Supplies	$14,492

According to Council, the amount budgeted in this line item for 1993-94 represents a 17% increase over the 1992-93 budget. It contends that the cost per pupil ($103.48) for supplies is relatively high for a K-6 school district with an enrollment projection of 285 pupils. The average cost per pupil has remained at this high level for several years and this could lead to unnecessary or wasteful purchases; the district should have built up some supply inventory over the years which it could draw upon now. However, should some situation arise which results in the need for some greater purchase not within the budget because of reductions, then reserve funds held in contingency areas generated from free balance can easily be appropriated by the Board.

According to the Board, the 1990-91 Cost of Education Index, Level I Report prepared for Edgewater, by the N.J. School Boards Association, 1989-90 Expenditure Data shows that the expenditure for school districts within the same enrollment group and region to be $131.00. The Board's 1993-94 budgeted per pupil expenditure is $103.48. This figure is within the same range when compared to the state, county, socioeconomic status and enrollment group factors for 1989-90. The Board maintains that the Edgewater School District has a significantly higher percentage of pupils from homes where parents cannot afford the every day support supplies (paper, pencils, learning aids) that children in neighboring communities acquire more easily.

The Commissioner finds that the record does not support the Board's position. However, a reduction of approximately 50% in this line item is too severe. Therefore, a reduction of $5,000 will be allowed and $9,492 will be restored to the budget.

Account	Reduction
11-190-100-640 (line 164) Textbooks	$7,977

The 1993-94 budget represents a 96% increase over the amount expended in 1992-93 and an expenditure of $124.50 per pupil for new textbooks. Council considers this an extremely high expenditure for a K-6 school district with a projected enrollment of 285 pupils. Council suggests the phasing in of new textbooks. Notwithstanding its reduction, there is still an increase in this line item over the expenditure in 1992-93 which will permit the acquisition of some of the new textbooks.

The Board asserts that it is in the process of phasing in a "whole language" program. Since the language arts program utilizes inter-grade grouping, all grades need to begin the program at the same time.

The Commissioner finds that the reduction in this line item will still allow for a significant increase. Further, the Board did not show that it would be unable to provide a thorough and efficient system of education for its pupils despite this modest reduction. Therefore, the $7,977 reduction will be sustained.

11-000-218-104 (line 418) Salaries, Other Prof. Staff	$45,000

This line item is designated for the hiring of a new guidance counselor, part time. The purpose of this position is to provide vocational guidance services for Edgewater pupils attending Leonia Middle and High Schools. The Board and administration consider it necessary to supplement the vocational guidance services provided for their pupils by the Leonia guidance staff since they believe the staff's services are concentrated on college bound pupils. Since a smaller percentage of Edgewater's pupils attend college than do pupils from Leonia, it is felt that their need for vocational counseling is being neglected. The proposed solution is for Edgewater to hire a counselor to work with Edgewater pupils attending school in Leonia.

Council rejects the Board's position, particularly its statement that the new counselor would be housed in the Edgewater district and would be present after hours when office space is available. Council states that if this were implemented, the new counselor would be working in a different school district from the one the prospective counselees attend, would be remote from the teachers and counselors in Leonia and would work at a time when neither Leonia's teachers nor Edgewater's 7-12 pupils were in school and when pupil records would be unavailable.

While the Commissioner understands the Board's position on this expenditure, the solution to any perceived or actual problem in the quality of vocational guidance should be resolved with the Leonia Board of Education. Leonia, as the receiving district for Edgewater pupils, is responsible for providing them with a thorough and efficient education. Therefore, the $45,000 reduction by Council will be sustained.

Account	Reduction
11-110-100-101 (line 155) 11-120-100-101 (line 156) 11-130-100-102 (line 157) Salaries of Teachers	$40,365

The Board states that the amount reduced was budgeted for 1.5 potential new teachers. Based on its survey and enrollment patterns of past years, it concluded that there may be a need for an additional English as a Second Language (ESL) teacher. The Board contends that it has made a written commitment to the Bureau of Bilingual Education to provide the extra instructor if the number of Asian or Latino pupils increases in number to twenty. Presently, the district has 19 Latinos and 16 Korean pupils in the ESL program. The Board asserts that the need for this extra teacher is almost a certainty; therefore, the line item must remain budgeted as presented.

Council disagrees with the Board's rationale although it concedes that there may be a need for an additional aide at the kindergarten level; nevertheless, it argues that any additional pupils can be accommodated by the present staff. As far as a need for an ESL teacher is concerned, the Board's own records show that no additional ESL teacher is needed at present. Should such an additional ESL teacher be necessary, there remains $13,926 for a part-time teacher, with any additional need being available from free balance.

The Commissioner finds that the Board's position is prudent. It is entirely proper to plan ahead of anticipated enrollment. The current data supports that there has been a steady increase in ESL enrollment over the last three years. (See Exhibit C of Board's Supplemented Position Statement and Reply of August 30, 1993, at pp. 3-4.) Based on the above, Council's reduction of $40,365 is therefore restored.

Account	Reduction
11-000-100-561 (line 396) Tuition - Regular Program	$100,736

Council based its reduction on what it considers to be a pattern of overbudgeting this line item in prior years and the statement made by the superintendent concerning the maximum number of Edgewater pupils expected to attend Leonia schools in 1993-94.

The Board asserts that Council failed to take into account a projected increase in tuition rates as well as its contractual obligation to Leonia. In this regard, the Board presented a document from the Superintendent of the Leonia schools estimating tuition payments due from Edgewater at $1,450,000. The Board budgeted $1,440,000.

The Commissioner finds that the evidence supports the Board's position. The amount budgeted by the Board is reasonable; therefore, the $100,736 reduction will be restored to the budget.

11-205-100-106 (line 204) Other Salaries, Instruct.	$ 8,078

Council contends that this proposed aide position budgeted by the Board is not mandated by statute or code and, therefore, is not needed. Further, the Board should fill this position by appropriate deployment of existing personnel.

The Board asserts that the position is for an instructional aide in the primary, perceptually impaired class, which program was approved with the requirement of an aide. The program was established to keep pupils in Edgewater so that the district could provide these educational services locally at lower costs than the same services could be provided on a tuition basis.

The Commissioner finds that the Board's rationale is valid. The educational services offered must be provided either locally or in another school district. The Board has determined that it is more efficient to provide these services in Edgewater. This is a decision reached within the statutory authority granted to the Board to do all things not inconsistent with the school laws to provide for the education of its pupils and to provide special education programs in the least restrictive environment. Accordingly, the $8,078 reduction will be restored to the budget.

Account	Reduction
"Special" Supply Accounts	$30,100

The following twelve listed accounts were grouped and recognized by Council as "General Supplies" or "Other Objects." Their aggregate reduction is $30,100. Except for the last item (Plant Services), they will be considered together because the rationale for and against each of the items is similar.

Account #	1993-94 Budget Amount	Reduction
11-205-100-610 P.I. (line 208)	$ 3,637	$ 1,000

11-000-260-610 Plant Servs. (line 479)	65,433	11,000

Council asserts that each line item represents a very high level of expense when compared to the number of pupils in each program. In addition, these pupils also have access to regular classroom supplies. Council further maintains that when budgeting for Bilingual and Basic Skills, the administrators should consider the fact that these areas receive a significant amount of State Compensatory Education, Chapter I, Chapter II and ESL funding. These state and federal monies are provided directly to these programs and pupils. Therefore, the reduction, spread over twelve budget line items, is moderate and prudent; consequently, the quality of the programs should not be affected.

The Commissioner has examined these budgeted items individually and finds that Council's reductions in many of the line items are modest. Nevertheless, the Board vigorously defended each of the line item reductions asserting its need for the funds as budgeted. Based on the Commissioner's analysis the Board has demonstrated the necessity for these funds to provide a thorough and efficient system of schools to its special needs student population, i.e. special education, bilingual, gifted and talented. Therefore, the $19,100 cut by Council is restored.

Regarding line item 11-000-260-610 (line 479) Plant Services, Council's reduction is $11,000. The Board submitted a list of its Comprehensive Maintenance Plan, pursuant to N.J.A.C.

6:8-4.9(a)7, itemizing its planned maintenance for the coming school year. However, in addition to this repair schedule, the Board asserts that it must address an unanticipated roof repair to prevent any structural damage. Any work not completed this year will add an additional cost to the taxpayer in the following year. In other words, if the roof repair is not attended to on a timely basis, it will adversely affect the maintenance of the building. The Board contends that Council has not analyzed the work that needs to be done, but rather has made a general reduction without any consideration of the impact this reduction will have on the schedule for maintenance and repair.

Council avers that the extent of any roof repair and the cost thereof is purely speculative since the Board is relying on a single proposal from a contractor, not an engineering report. Further, since the district is required to have a long-range plan for building maintenance, this need should not have been unanticipated. Council concludes that sufficient funds will remain in the budget despite its reduction; therefore, the reduction should be sustained.

The Commissioner cannot agree. Unanticipated or unusual occurrences are a fact of life and, despite the best efforts in preparation, from time to time emergencies occur which must be handled prudently and immediately. In the Board's judgment this is such a case. While the Board may not have provided Council with an engineering report Council believes is necessary before any work is done, the Board has presented a preliminary estimate. A repair to a roof is certainly not the kind of maintenance to delay until the following year. Accordingly, the $11,000 reduction for roof repairs will be restored to the budget.

Account	Reduction
11-000-270-290 (line 506) Employee Benefits	$13,500

The Commissioner observes that this reduction is for the fixed benefits required for three positions proposed in the Board's budget. Each position required an expenditure of $4,500. The Commissioner has sustained the reductions in Account 11-000-218-104 (line 418) but restored the reductions to Account 11-110-100-101 (lines 155, 156 and 157). Consequently, $9,000 in fixed costs for these items is necessary and a reduction of $4,500 will be sustained.

11-000-290-220 (line 570) Social Security Contributions	$ 2,000

This reduction represents the fixed cost for the instructional aide approved above; consequently, the $2,000 reduction will be restored to the budget.

100 Series - Administration Salaries	$ 5,000

The Board states that the proposed increase of $10,243 in this account represents a 6% increase for administrative salaries. The three-year contract for faculty includes a 5.5% increase in the 1993-94 school year and the Board feels that it needs the flexibility to increase administrators' salaries at the same level as teachers, if earned as demonstrated by job performance.

Council contends that salaries for administrators are very competitive considering the district's size and comparable Bergen County districts. Council asserts that the percentage increase remaining in the line item is not inconsistent with increases for administrators in other districts.

The Commissioner concurs with Council's observations. The Board offered no comparisons with salaries in similar districts in the area or the county, whereas Council offered one comparison which was not favorable for the Board. Further, there is no showing by the Board that this reduction would impair its ability to provide a thorough and efficient system of schools in Edgewater; therefore, the $5,000 reduction will stand.

Account	Reduction
11-4xx-100-100 (line 384) and 11-4xx-100-600 (line 386) 1993-94 Adjustments to Revenues	$113,379

The Board asserts that it has been the Local Education Agency (LEA) for the Region VI Life Skills Program for the past 13 years. The program has been housed in the Leonia School District for all but the last two years. Most tuition payments from member districts arrive in the spring after the Board has expended its revenues for personnel and instructional materials. Revenues are put back into surplus and applied to the following year's budget to reduce the tax levy accordingly. The Board's auditors have recommended that this procedure remain in place since the revenue from sending districts arrives late and, once received, goes back into the following year's budget.

Council contends that this $113,379 is in fact an anticipated revenue; therefore, it should be included as Revenue in the 1993-94 budget thereby reducing local taxes by this identical amount. Council questioned the auditor's recommendation since the Board did not submit any affidavit or other supporting documentation in that regard.

Council is correct in stating that this item represents a revenue and should be carried on the revenue side of the budget and that operating costs for the Life Skills Program should be funded by tuition payments from participating districts; however, the Board has explained that the tuition received from member districts of Region VI in the late spring is put back into surplus and applied to the following year's budget to reduce the tax levy accordingly. To include the $113,379 as revenue results in a $113,379 reduction to the Board's General Fund budget. This, in the Commissioner's judgment, would be detrimental to the Board's ability to provide a thorough and efficient education to its pupils, given the low surplus level maintained by the Board.

Based on the above, the reduction of $113,379 will be restored.

The following table shows the amounts restored and not restored to the budget.

As shown above, the Commissioner determines that $206,271 must be restored to the budget; therefore, this amount is ordered restored to the local tax levy for school purposes in the 1993-94 school year. It is also ordered that the amount of $113,379 be restored, as explained previously.

CAP WAIVER

By letter dated April 6, 1993, the Bergen County Superintendent of Schools conditionally approved the 1993-94 school district budget subject to the advertisement of the budget cap waiver proposal in the amount of $218,941.

As a result of the State Board of Education's July 7, 1993 decision in Board of Education of the Borough of Rutherford v. Mayor and Council of Rutherford wherein the State Board ruled that decisions in defeated voter cap waiver appeals must determine whether or not reallocation within the district's maximum permissible budget is possible and whether and to what extent the specific programs at issue are essential in order to enable the Board to meet its constitutional obligation to provide a thorough and efficient system of education, a letter was sent to the parties by the Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes informing them of the need to supplement the record to document the reallocation and cap waiver review conducted by the county superintendent pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-27. The county superintendent was accorded thirty (30) days from receipt of the letter to submit a sworn affidavit setting forth an explanation and documentation of that review, including the bases for concluding that (1) reallocation within the district's maximum permissible budget for the 1993-94 school year was not possible and (2) the specific programs at issue were essential for the Board to provide a thorough and efficient system of education to its students.

The governing body and Board were provided twenty (20) days from receipt of the county superintendent's submission to file a response thereto.

The county superintendent's affidavit and supportive documentation was received on September 1, 1993. Written replies to the petition and the cap waiver, position papers and summations were filed by the respective parties. On September 10, 1993, Council's Reply Statement to Petitioner's Supplemented Position Statement was filed. The record closed on September 24, 1993 following expiration of the period for receipt of the parties' response to the county superintendent's submission.

The Board's request for a cap waiver and its conditional approval by the Bergen County Superintendent of Schools is set forth in the County Superintendent's affidavit, filed September 1, 1993, as follows:

> The following information and material are being submitted to represent our compliance with the decision of the New Jersey State Board of Education dated July 7, 1993.
>
> Furthermore, this information and material shall also serve as my affidavit that establishes the reallocation of resources process used by my County School Business Administrator and me to arrive at a decision during the cap waiver review of the 1993-94 Edgewater District budget.
> This district filed a Commissioner's Cap Waiver request in the amount of $435,467 for increased enrollment and a Commissioner's Cap Waiver request for Special Education in the amount of $117,122. The Cap Waiver request for increased enrollment was reduced by $11,000 because the PERS budget appropriation was over budgeted. Final Cap approvals were $424,467 and $117,122 for a total of $[5]41,589.

Also a Voter Cap Waiver request in the amount of $218,941 was filed in this office. In order to determine if any reallocation of resources could be made, the County School Business Administrator utilized the reallocation document developed by a committee of County Superintendents. A series of questions were raised by the County School Business Administrator, of the local Superintendent and the local Business Administrator.

In addition, at a scheduled conference, the County Superintendent questioned the local Superintendent about the need for a voter cap waiver. The local superintendent's explanation was as follows:

Account Title	Account Number	Amount
Salaries for Teachers Grades 1-5	11-120-100-101	$180,000
Salaries for Teachers Grade 6	11-130-100-101	$ 38,941

The local Superintendent explained that the Board of Education was able to fund the salaries of the five teachers mentioned above in previous years by a transfer of free balance monies to the budgets. For the year 1993-94, however, he stated that there would not be sufficient funds in free balance to effect such a transfer and therefore put this amount in his Voter Cap Waiver.

The County Superintendent endorsed the voter cap waiver and issued a letter to the district granting a conditional approval for the voter cap waiver.

Enclosed please find copies of the reallocation document and the letter of conditional approval.

The Board asserts that the failure of the voters of the district to approve the cap waiver in the amount of $218,941 will interfere with its ability to provide a thorough and efficient education to its pupils in Edgewater, wherein the Board will be unable to provide tuition for the district's middle and high school pupils in its sending/receiving relationship with the Leonia Board of Education as well as being unable to provide for teachers' salaries to enable pupil instruction. The Board states, further, that the deprivation of school services by virtue of the lack of monies to pay tuition would deprive its pupils of a thorough and efficient education.

Council states that no evidence has been presented to show that the rejection of the cap waiver will deny pupils in the Edgewater school district a thorough and efficient education. Further, citing N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(f), Council avers that once a cap waiver has been rejected by voters, it may not be subject to further review or appeal.

The Commissioner cannot agree. An opinion by the Attorney General dated July 8, 1991, set forth the Commissioner's responsibility concerning cap waivers which have been defeated by the voters. That opinion is reproduced in pertinent part as follows:

> The QEA and subsequent amendments have not relieved the Commissioner of this constitutional responsibility. Thus, based on this delegation and the court's expansive interpretation of the Commissioner's authority and obligation to meet the constitutional mandate, it is reasonable to conclude that the Legislature did not intend to restrict the Commissioner's ability to fulfill his constitutional responsibilities. The recently enacted provision, therefore, does not preclude the Commissioner from entertaining a petition from a local school district whose budget -- without the cap waiver -- is determined to be inadequate to provide a thorough and efficient education to the child in that district. Those districts should be readily identifiable since the county superintendent should approve their budgets conditioned on the district receiving approval of a cap waiver.

The Commissioner has made a thorough review of the Board's line items, together with its reasons for requesting a cap waiver in the amount of $218,941. The Commissioner adopts as his own those reasons advanced by the Board with ample supporting documentation in its cap waiver position statement and for each of the line item appropriations previously approved.

The Commissioner finds the record is sufficiently developed to establish, through the review conducted by the Bergen County Superintendent of Schools and those Department of Education officials who participated in the review and approval of the Board's conditionally approved budget and cap waiver, that the reallocation of funds within the permissible budget could not be accomplished without a cap waiver approval.

Accordingly, the Commissioner finds and determines that Council's arguments against her review and determination with respect to the Board's cap waiver appeal are totally without merit.

Having reached this determination, the Commissioner concludes that the $218,941 in current expense cap waiver funds requested by the Board are necessary for the district to provide a thorough and efficient system of schools in the Borough of Edgewater for the 1993-94 school year.

Therefore, the Commissioner directs the Bergen County Board of Taxation to increase the 1993-94 General Fund tax levy for the Borough of Edgewater School District to reflect a restoration of $206,271 in the itemized reductions effectuated by Council, as well as $113,379 restored by the Commissioner, and an additional $218,941 in Cap Waiver Appropriations which sums reflect a total General Fund tax levy increase of $538,591. Accordingly, the total 1993-94 General Fund tax levy shall be $3,898,623.

IN THE MATTER OF THE CAP WAIVER APPEAL OF THE BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF EDGEWATER, BERGEN COUNTY.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION ON MOTION

For Movant-Respondent, Robert T. Regan, Esq.

For Respondent-Petitioner, Steven J. Zaben, Esq.

This matter came before the Commissioner of Education on January 13, 1994 by way of a Motion for Stay, filed by the respondent Mayor and Council ("Borough"), of the Commissioner's decision of November 18, 1993 under the same caption. In that decision, the Commissioner had ordered restoration of $319,650 in line-item reductions made by the Borough to the petitioning Board of Education's budget pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37, and in addition had directed that the school tax levy for 1993-94 be increased by $218,941 in cap waiver monies. The Board filed a response on January 24, 1994 in opposition to grant of a stay.

In its moving papers, the Borough argues that the decision in question is on appeal to the State Board, where the Borough is likely to prevail on the merits of its arguments that the Commissioner employed the wrong standard of review in making line-item budget restorations and acted beyond the scope of her authority in directing inclusion in the tax levy of cap waiver monies rejected by the voters pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(f). The Borough further argues that the Board would incur no harm by grant of a stay, in that the State Board's decision is likely to be rendered within the next two months and temporary withholding of the disputed amounts would not impair the district's ability to provide a thorough and efficient education ("T & E") given a total budget exceeding $4.6 million.

In response, the Board states that notwithstanding the Commissioner's having issued the decision in question well over two months ago, the Borough has steadfastly refused to comply with the Commissioner's directive. The Board further argues that, contrary to the Borough's contentions, the Borough does not have a likelihood of success on the merits of its appeal, and that continued failure to provide the monies due the Board will result in the district's inability to provide T & E, indeed, even to continue daily operations, absent borrowing of money at unnecessary added expense to taxpayers. Moreover, the Board avers, the Borough will suffer no irreparable harm by the Commissioner's refusal to grant a stay, as any increase in tax levy would be offset by a concomitant decrease should the Borough prevail on appeal. Finally, the Board notes that financial problems over and above the need for monies owed it by the Borough, relating to an unanticipated increase of $149,775 in tuition payments due its receiving district of Leonia, will compound the problem caused by the Borough's actions and result in staff layoffs and early closure of schools if relief is not provided by enforcement of the Commissioner's decision.

Upon consideration of the arguments of the parties, and mindful of the standards to be applied in deciding requests for stay as established in Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982), the Commissioner determines to deny the Borough's request.

Initially, the Commissioner notes that the monies in question, that is, the amounts ordered by the Commissioner over and above the tax levy certified by the Borough pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37, are adjustments to the tax levy already struck for 1993-94 and as such will not appear in tax bills until the following tax cycle; therefore, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 54:4-75 and 54:4-76, the Borough is obliged neither to pay over these amounts nor to borrow so as to permit their payment prior to the tax cycle in which they are to be raised through the local levy. Thus, there is no immediate harm to the Borough by holding the Commissioner's decision in force, particularly in view of its claim that a prompt State Board ruling on appeal is anticipated. For the Board, on the other hand, staying of the Commissioner's decision would negatively impact on its ability to borrow the funds the Commissioner found necessary for T & E pending the raising of those funds through tax levy.*

*The Commissioner notes that the Board herein appears to presume that it should not be the one to borrow money and that the Borough should be obliged to pay adjusted amounts upon issuance of the Commissioner's decision. That presumption, however, is contrary to N.J.S.A. 54:4-75 and 54:4-76. By analogy with regard to governing body payment of, and board of education borrowing against, taxes to be raised in a subsequent cycle, see also N.J.S.A. 18A:22-42 et seq.

With respect to any harm to the Borough being irreparable, the Commissioner notes that, should the appeal before the State Board not be resolved prior to striking of the tax levy for the 1994-95 school year, any downward adjustment to the 1993-94 tax levy directed by the Commissioner would be reflected in a concomitantly lower levy in the following tax cycle. In contrast, students adversely affected by insufficient funding for programs or services comprising T & E cannot recover their loss even if monies to fund such programs should later be restored. Thus, the balance of interests in this matter, as well as the primary obligation of the Commissioner, clearly lies with the Board. Under these circumstances, although the Borough's arguments on likelihood of success on the merits of appeal have been reviewed and considered, the Commissioner passes no express judgment on such arguments herein, as anything less than an unequivocal showing of error in the prior decision would not be sufficient to overcome the Commissioner's concerns about the negative impact on students of any stay granted while appeal is pending.

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed herein, the Motion for Stay is DENIED and, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-25, the Commissioner's decision remains in full force and effect unless and until reversed on appeal.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF EDGEWATER,

PETITIONER-RESPONDENT,

MAYOR AND COUNCIL OF THE BOROUGH OF EDGEWATER, BERGEN COUNTY,

RESPONDENT-APPELLANT,

AND

IN THE MATTER OF THE CAP WAIVER APPEAL OF THE BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF EDGEWATER, BERGEN COUNTY.

STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION

DECISION

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, November 18, 1993

Order of the Appellate Division, December 23, 1993

Decision on motion by the Commissioner of Education, February 7, 1994

Order of the Appellate Division, February 14, 1994

For the Petitioner-Respondent, Steven J. Zaben, Esq.

For the Respondent-Appellant, Robert T. Regan, Esq.

This is an appeal by the Mayor and Council of the Borough of Edgewater (hereinafter "Borough") from a decision of the Commissioner of Education which: 1) directed restoration of certain line item reductions made by the municipal governing body pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37 after the voters had defeated the education budget proposed by the Board of Education of the Borough of Edgewater (hereinafter "Board") and 2) directed an additional increase in the District's net current expense budget in the amount sought by the Board in a cap waiver proposal that had been placed before and defeated by the voters as provided by N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(f).

In the course of reviewing this matter, we have identified fundamental flaws in the budget review process as it is currently implemented. In view of our responsibilities in this area, we must assure that these flaws are eliminated from the process. To accomplish this, we must clarify the standard which a district board of education must meet before the Commissioner may direct amounts reduced by a municipal governing body pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37 be restored to the local education budget. We must also insure that district boards of education and all officials of the State Department of Education involved in the budget review process understand that the conditions under which the Commissioner of Education may direct an increase in a district's education budget after the voters have defeated a cap waiver proposal made pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:70-28(f) are very limited. We are therefore compelled to once again delineate them.

I

Before submitting its proposed current expense budget for the 1993-94 school year to the voters at the annual school election on April 20, 1993, the Board of Education of the Borough of Edgewater sought and obtained the approval of the Bergen County Superintendent as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-27.[1]

---

1 N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-27 provides that:
Annually, on or before February 1, local boards of education shall submit to the commissioner a copy of their proposed budgets for the next school year. The commissioner shall review each item of appropriation within the current expense and capital outlay budgets and shall determine the adequacy of the budgets with regard to the annual reports submitted pursuant to section 11 of P.L. 1975, c 212 (C. 18A:7A-11) and such other criteria as may be established by the state board.

The District's CAP REVIEW SUMMARY (hereinafter "Summary") signed by the Bergen County Superintendent on April 5, 1993, indicates that the District's proposed net budget totalled $4,667,712 and that this amount was $760,530 above the District's maximum permitted budget (hereinafter "base budget") for 1993-94.[2] The summary shows that the District requested a cap waiver from the Commissioner, specifically requesting $424,467 because of an annual increase in the district's enrollment greater than 2% and $117,122 due to an increase of more than 5% in the cost for special education students.[3] Its TAX LEVY SUMMARY SHEET indicates that the District also planned to make a cap waiver request to the voters for $218,941.[4]

---

2 N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28 provides the method by which a district's maximum permissible budget is calculated.

3 N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(e) provides that:

> A board of education of a school district which: (1) for the two years prior to the prebudget year, has had an annual average increase in the district's resident enrollment which is greater than two percent; or (2) between the prebudget year and the year prior to the prebudget year, has had an increase in the district's local cost for special education pupils which is greater than five percent; or (3) during the 1990-91 school year but prior to April 1, 1991, has entered into a lease purchase agreement, may apply to the Commissioner of Education for waiver of the expenditure limitation established pursuant to this section. A board of education of a school district that sends pupils and pays tuition to a special needs district may apply to the Commissioner of Education for a waiver of the expenditure limitation established pursuant to this section. Any waiver granted by the commissioner pursuant to this subsection shall not be included in the question on excess expenditures which is to be submitted to the voters of the district pursuant to subsection f. of this section.

4 In contrast to N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(e), N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(f) provides:

> Any school district may submit a proposal to raise the amount of tax levy necessary to exceed the maximum permissible net budget

The District's revised Budget Statement dated April 5, 1993 reflects that, as authorized by N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(e), the Commissioner had approved a cap waiver (hereinafter "Commissioner's cap waiver") for $541,589. The revised Budget Statement indicates that this increased the District's base budget to $4,448,771.

By letter dated April 6, 1993, the County Superintendent "conditionally approved" the District's 1993-94 budget. In so doing, he instructed that the District present the additional $218,941 to the voters pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(f) as a separate proposal to raise the amount of tax levy necessary to exceed the District's permissible budget (hereinafter "voter requested cap waiver").

At the annual school election, the voters defeated both the proposed current expense budget, which included the Commissioner's cap waiver, and the separate proposal for a voter requested cap waiver.

permitted by this section to the legal voters of the district for type II school districts without a Board of School Estimate and to the Board of School Estimate for those school districts with a Board of School Estimate as required during the school budget approval process pursuant to chapters 22 and 54 of Title 18A of the New Jersey Statutes and section 13 of P.L. 1971, c.271 (C. 18A:46-41). The proposal to raise additional tax levy to exceed the maximum permissible net budget shall be in addition to the amounts required to be approved for each school district in accordance with chapters 22 and 54 of Title 18A of the New Jersey Statutes and section 13 of P.L. 1971, c.271 (C. 18A:46-41). In the event that a school district's proposal to raise the tax levy to exceed the maximum permissible net budget is not approved in accordance with the budget approval process set forth in chapter 22 and Title 18A of the New Jersey Statutes to type II districts and for type I districts, chapter 54 of Title 18A of the New Jersey Statutes for county vocational school districts and section 13 of P.L. 1971, c.271 (C. 18A:46-41) for county special services school districts, that disapproval shall be deemed final and shall not be subject to further review of appeal.

The Borough's governing body then acted pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37[5] and reduced the current expense budget by making $273,748 in line item reductions, incorporating an increase in revenue of $113,379, and eliminating $190,000 for debt service. By the Borough's action, the Board's base budget was reduced by $577,127. Because the items that were to have been funded by the voter requested cap waiver proposal for $218,941 were not before it, the Borough did not consider any of those items.

By two separate petitions filed with the Commissioner, one on June 10, 1993, and the other on June 18, the Board appealed both the Borough's reduction of its current expense budget and the voters' defeat of the cap waiver amounts.[6]

5 N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37 provides in pertinent part that:

> If the voters reject any of the items submitted at the annual school election, the board of education shall deliver the proposed school budget to the governing body of the municipality, or of each of the municipalities included in the district within 2 days thereafter. The governing body of the municipality, or of each of the municipalities, included in the district shall, after consultation with the board, and by April 28, determine the amount which, in the judgment of said body or bodies, is necessary to be appropriated, for each item appearing in such budget, to provide a thorough and efficient system of schools in the district, and certify to the county board of taxation the totals of the amount so determined to be necessary for each of the following:
>
> a. Current expenses of schools;
> b. Vocational evening schools or classes;
> c. Evening schools or classes for foreign-born residents;
> d. Appropriations to capital reserve fund; or > e. Any capital project...
> The statute further provides for appeal from that determination to the Commissioner of Education.

6 We note that there are no procedural regulations with respect to such appeals and that the Board apparently proceeded pursuant to a memorandum issued on April 14, 1992, by Charles P. Mitchel, then Assistant Commissioner for the Division of County and Regional Services, to all County Superintendents.

The Department of Education consolidated the two appeals.

The Commissioner directed restoration of $206,271 of the line item reductions effectuated by the Borough and eliminated the $113,379 which the Borough had added as revenue. The Commissioner also directed an increase in the tax levy to include "an additional $218,941 in Cap Waiver Appropriations." The resulting general fund tax levy was $3,898,623.

The Borough appealed both of the Commissioner's determinations to the State Board of Education.

II

The responsibility for reviewing and acting on the budget of a local school district following its defeat by the voters and reduction by the municipal governing body is not a new one for our agency. E.g., Bd. of Ed., E. Brunswick Tp. v. Tp. Council, E. Brunswick, 48 N.J. 94 (1966). Consequently, the standard which the Commissioner must apply in reviewing the line item reductions made by a governing body pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37 is one that is well established.

In East Brunswick, the New Jersey Supreme Court carefully delineated that standard, stressing that when the Commissioner is reviewing such reductions,

> ...his function is not to sit as an original budget-making body, as he would had the governing body failed to make any certification...his function is admittedly to sit as a reviewing body which, however, is charged with the overriding responsibility of seeing to it that the mandate for a thorough efficient system of free public schools is being carried out. [citations omitted.]
>
> ...if he finds that the budget fixed by the governing body is insufficient to enable compliance with mandatory legislative and administrative educational requirements or is > insufficient to meet minimum educational standards for the mandated "thorough and efficient" East Brunswick school system, he will direct appropriate corrective action by the governing body or fix the budget on his own within the limits originally proposed by the board of education. On the other hand, if he finds that the governing body's budget is not so inadequate, even though significantly below what the Board of Education had fixed or what he would fix if he were acting as the original budget-making body under R.S. 18:7-83, then he will sustain it, absent any independent showing of procedural or substantive arbitrariness.

East Brunswick, supra, at 106-107.

The Court has repeatedly adhered to and reiterated this standard. In Board of Education of Deptford Township v. Mayor and Council of Deptford Township, 116 N.J. 305 (1989), the Court not only reaffirmed the standard, but also eliminated any doubt that the Commissioner had a responsibility to the taxpayers as well as to the school district when he reviewed budgets on appeal. As expressed by the Court, when reviewing the reductions made by the municipal governing body

> ...the Commissioner cannot ignore completely the municipality's political concerns and indeed may not override them without some necessity strictly related to the constitutional mandate to provide for a thorough and efficient school system.

Deptford, supra, at 314 (emphasis added).

In this case, the Commissioner recognized that it was her responsibility to apply this standard when she articulated it in the introductory comments to her decision. At that point, the Commissioner acknowledged that her task was to determine > ... whether a district board of education has demonstrated that the amount by which a specific line item reduction imposed by a governing body is necessary for the provision of a thorough and efficient education.

Commissioner's decision, at 4.

However, when the Commissioner directed that the reductions which the Borough had made be restored to the budget, she failed to explicitly apply that standard of review. Instead, the Commissioner decided the case without any evident consideration of whether either the items at issue or the level of funding she was directing to support those items was necessary in order for the Edgewater School District to provide a thorough and efficient education to its students.

For example, the Commissioner directed restoration of a $6,500 reduction to Account 11-000-230-890 (line 461) Miscellaneous Expenditures for travel, conferences and workshops for Board members and central administration. The rationale she offered for restoring this amount was that

> ... activities undertaken in this account, including the District's newsletters to the community, have a direct effect on the education of the pupils in the district. It is necessary to spend money on the training of Board members on the Board. Board members need training in the basics of finance, curriculum development and personnel management. They should also have a thorough understanding of education law as embodied in Title 18A and the New Jersey Administrative Code. Further, the amount budgeted is less than the amount expended in 1992-93.

While providing specific training to board members may well be related to a district's ability to provide a thorough and efficient education in a particular case, the rationale offered by the Commissioner does no more than indicate that there is a general need to train board members. The Commissioner did not indicate any specific training programs which the members of this Board needed, and the documents submitted by the Board in support of its appeal to the Commissioner did not specify even one training session for which this money had been budgeted. Rather, the Commissioner supported restoration on the basis that the amount proposed was less than that expended in the prior year. Consequently, there is no factual support for the Commissioner's determination that the Board needed $6,500 for training, let alone that such training was essential in order for the district to provide a thorough and efficient education.

The Commissioner's determinations with respect to the other amounts she restored are similarly deficient. She directed that $9,492 be restored to General Supplies (Account 11-190-100-610: line 163) solely because "a reduction in this line item is too severe." Commissioner's decision, at 6-7. She restored $100,736 to Tuition-Regular Program (Account 11-000-100-561: line 396) because "the amount budgeted by the Board is reasonable." Commissioner's decision, at 10.

She directed that $8,078 be restored to fund an aid position in a new program by which the Board planned to provide services to its perceptually impaired students. The Commissioner directed this restoration because the statutes "grant the Board the authority to do all things not inconsistent with the school laws to provide for the education of its pupils" and this was the way the Board had determined to provide the services. Commissioner's decision, at 11.

The Commissioner directed restoration of $19,100 for general supplies, acknowledging that the reductions in these items were moderate, but finding under her analysis that: "the Board has demonstrated the necessity of these funds...." Commissioner's decision, at 11-12. The record, however, does not include the documentation needed to support this conclusion. For example, the only support provided by the Board to establish the need for the amounts budgeted for library materials were general statements that the district was committed to upgrading its library, Edgewater School District, 1993-1994 Budget Appeal, May 26, 1993, Verified Petition, Exhibit D, and that its curriculum emphasizes research skills at the 4, 5 and 6 grade levels. Verified Supplemented Position Statement and Reply, August 24, 1993.

Similarly, the record does not include the documentation to support the Commissioner's determination to restore $11,000 to plant services. The Borough had reduced this account from $65,433 to $54,433. The Commissioner directed restoration of $11,000 for roof repairs, reasoning that "a repair to a roof is certainly not the kind of maintenance to delay until the following year." Commissioner's decision, at 13. Again, the fact that it may need to repair a roof and general nature of the repair does not establish that the Board needed $65,433 in order to fulfill its maintenance plan and to make any repairs, including roof repairs, that might be required during 1993-94. Nor does the Board's documentation establish that it needs $65,433 to accomplish this. Id. at Exhibit H.

Despite the fact that the Commissioner agreed with the Borough that $113,379 "should be carried on the revenue side of the budget," the Commissioner restored this amount solely because > ...the Board has explained that the tuition received from member districts of Region VI in the late spring is put back into surplus and applied to the following year's budget ... To include the $113,379 as revenue results in a $113,379 reduction to the Board's General Fund budget. This, in the Commissioner's judgment would be detrimental to the Board's ability to provide a thorough and efficient education to its pupils, given the low surplus level maintained by the Board.

Commissioner's decision, at 15-16.

Such cursory reasoning can not support a conclusion that these moneys are needed to provide a thorough and efficient education. Hence, the Commissioner's determination to restore the moneys reduced by the Borough cannot be sustained. Nor, upon our independent review, is the record a sufficient one upon which we could sustain her decision. The lack of factual support for the restoration of budget items sought by the Board and directed by the Commissioner is highlighted by the Borough's documentation which supports each of its reductions with extensive analysis relating the amount of each such reduction to the District's ability to educate its students. Mayor and Council Borough of Edgewater Resolution, May 11, 1993.

In view of our responsibility to assure that the District's students are provided with a thorough and efficient education, we remand this matter to the Commissioner for further proceedings to determine whether the amounts at issue are necessary in order for the Board to provide its students with a constitutionally adequate education. In the event that there is a dispute as to any fact which is material to this determination, it will be necessary to conduct a hearing to resolve it. We stress that it is the Board's burden to demonstrate that the particular items for which the moneys are sought are specifically related to the provision of a thorough and efficient education and that the level of funding it seeks is the minimal level required to support each of those items.

III

In addition to the amounts which she directed be restored to the Board's base budget, the Commissioner directed that the District's budget be increased by another $218,941. This was the amount which the District had sought through the proposal it had submitted to the voters pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(f) (voter requested cap waiver). As previously stated, the voters had rejected this proposal.

This is not the first time we have reviewed a proposal by a local school district to exceed its maximum permissible budget. Under the Public School Education Act of 1975, which was the statutory scheme in place prior to 1990, such appeals were not uncommon. E.g., Bd. of Ed. of East Windsor Regional School Dist. v. State Bd. of Ed., 172 N.J. Super. 547 (App. Div. 1980).

In 1990, the Legislature made significant changes in our State's system of financing its public schools by enacting the Quality Education Act of 1990 (QEA I). Further changes were made in 1991 when QEA I was amended (QEA II).

None of those changes altered the standard under which the Commissioner was required to measure the adequacy of a local education budget. They did, however, have a major impact on the process by which our agency must assure such adequacy.

The change most relevant to this case was a basic change in the method by which a local district could exceed its maximum permissible budget ("cap waiver"). Under the previous law, the Commissioner was authorized to approve a request for a cap waiver whenever he judged that it was necessary in order for the district to provide a thorough and efficient education. Board of Ed. of East Windsor Regional School Dist., supra. See N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-25 (repealed by L. 1990, c.52).

The entire cap waiver approval process took place before the district's budget was advertised. If approval was granted, the additional amount was incorporated into the district's net current expense budget which was then submitted to the voters. Thus, in cases where the budget was defeated, the entire amount that the school district had proposed to spend for current expenses, including the amount in excess of its cap, was automatically reviewed by the municipality and, if necessary, subject to appeal to the Commissioner pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37.

Under the Quality Education Act as now in effect, the Commissioner's statutory authority to approve cap waivers is limited to three specific circumstances. N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(e). See supra note 3. This change theoretically makes it more difficult for a school district to exceed its maximum permitted budget without submitting the proposed increase to the voters.

At the same time, the statutory scheme makes it far easier for a school district to exceed its maximum permissible budget if the voters want to do so. Quite simply, all that is required in order for a local school district to exceed its budget cap is that the district's voters approve a proposal to do so made to them pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(f). See supra note 4.

The effect of the current statutory structure is to divide the budget proposal submitted to the voters at the annual school election into two separate questions: one encompassing the budget developed pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:22-7 et seq., and a second question presented under authority of N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-28(f), which includes any amounts over that budget proposal.

Careful examination of the terms of the current statutes reflects the Legislature's intent that the portion of the proposed education budget placed before the voters pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:22-7 et seq. include all of the amounts that are essential for a given school district to provide a thorough and efficient education and that none of these amounts should be included in proposals made under authority of N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(f).

In point of fact, the terms of N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(f) expressly require that proposals to raise the amount of tax levy necessary to exceed the maximum permissible budget (voter requested cap waiver) be in addition to the amounts required to be approved for each district in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:22-7 et seq. N.J.S.A. 18A:22-8 enumerates the specific items which must be included in a district's current expense budget. It is this budget proposal which the County Superintendent reviews for adequacy on behalf of the Commissioner of Education pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-27.[7]

The Legislature's intent is further demonstrated by the fact that N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(f) provides that voter defeat of a proposal for additional amounts "shall be deemed final and shall not be subject to further review or appeal." Such appeal is not necessary if the amounts included in the proposal for a voter cap waiver are not essential to providing a constitutionally adequate education.

These limitations in no way alter the Commissioner's ultimate constitutional obligation, and that of this Board, to insure that the budget of a local school district is sufficient to provide a thorough and efficient education. As the State Board emphasized in Board of Education of the Borough of Rutherford v. Mayor and Council of Rutherford, decided by the State Board, July 7, 1993:

[7] Again, the statutory provision places on the Commissioner the affirmative responsibility to assure that the budget of each district is adequate.

> The starting point for resolving this matter is arriving at a proper appreciation of the Commissioner's obligation to assure that each school district has sufficient fiscal resources to provide a thorough and efficient education to its students. Robinson v. Cahill, 69 N.J. 2[illegible] (1981). Given the nature of the responsibility entrusted to the Commissioner we have no doubt that the authority to fulfill it must embrace the power to direct an increase in a district's education budget in any case where such increase is necessary to satisfy the constitutional mandate, including a case where voters have defeated a proposal to exceed its statutory budget limitation. See Administrative Agency Advice (AAA) 91-0036 (July 8, 1991).

Rutherford, supra, slip op. at 4-5, quoting Lincoln Board of Education of the Borough of Lincoln Park v. Borough Council of the Borough of Lincoln Park (hereinafter "Lincoln Park"), decided by the State Board, December 2, 1992, slip op. at 5.

However, as we further emphasized:

> the power to direct such increase may properly be exercised only where an increase is necessary to enable the district to provide a thorough and efficient education. Upper Freehold, [86 N.J. 265 (1981).] Further, any increase must be limited to those amounts the district needs in order to provide a thorough and efficient education. Id. Consequently, it is necessary to assess the adequacy of the budget as advertised and to determine whether it is possible to reallocate amounts within that budget before directing any increase. See AAA 91-0036, supra, at 6.

Id. at 5-6 (emphasis added).

The circumstances that would warrant directing an increase in a district's education budget beyond its statutory limitation where the voters have defeated a proposal to do so are extremely limited. In In re Upper Freehold Reg'l School Dist., 86 N.J. 265 (1981), which presented an analagous situation, the New Jersey Supreme Court affirmed an order of the Commissioner and State Board to direct a local school district to issue bonds for a capital project after voters had rejected referenda to finance the project. In that case, the roof of the district's high school had deteriorated to the point where dripping water had to be collected in 55 gallon drums placed throughout the school and students had to navigate puddles stretching for hundreds of feet. Sagging roof planks created the danger that tiles or pieces of concrete would fall from the ceiling. Despite the obvious safety hazards, the district's voters twice rejected bond issues to repair the roof. The board therein then sought emergency funding from the Commissioner to fund the repairs. The Commissioner did not provide the funds. Instead he referred the matter to the Office of Administrative Law for evidentiary hearings. The facts established by these hearings provided the basis for the order to issue bonds which was ultimately affirmed by the Court.

Upper Freehold affirms the vast power granted the Commissioner to meet the mandate of the New Jersey Constitution. It also shows the kind of circumstances that must be present to justify exercising that power by compelling a district's taxpayers to raise additional monies. Those circumstances are rarely presented. Moreover, even in the extreme circumstances in Upper Freehold, the Court endorsed the remedial action taken by the Commissioner only after the due process provided by an evidentiary hearing.

As we stressed in Rutherford, supra, the power to direct an increase such as involved here must be exercised only where it is necessary to enable the district to provide a thorough and efficient education. We conclude that this limitation requires that such increases be directed only in circumstances where it has been established that the district's base budget does not include the minimal amount needed to provide a constitutionally adequate education.

We recognize that the current budget review process is not required to and is not aimed at establishing the minimal amount necessary in order for a given school district to provide a thorough and efficient education. Nor does the statutory framework require this kind of review in all cases. However, the current statutory framework does require that a determination be made as to the minimal amount necessary to provide a constitutionally adequate education where a district is seeking to exceed its maximum permissible budget. Quite simply, such a determination is a necessary prerequisite to a conclusion that reallocation within the district's permissible budget is not possible. Rutherford, supra.

In this case, the Commissioner indicated that, as a result of our decision in Rutherford, supra, the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes had required the Bergen County Superintendent of Schools to submit an affidavit and documentation for his conclusions that reallocation of the district's maximum permissible budget had not been possible and that the specific programs "at issue" were essential to a thorough and efficient education. Commissioner's decision at 17-18. Then, relying on her understanding of an Attorney General's opinion issued on July 8, 1991, see AAA 91-0036, supra, and indicating that she had reviewed both the line items and documentation in support of the Board's "cap waiver" proposal, the Commissioner > [found that] the record is sufficiently developed to establish, through the review conducted by the Bergen County Superintendent of Schools and those Department of Education officials who participated in the review and approval of the Board's conditionally approved budg[illegible] and cap waiver, that the reallocation of funds within the permissible budget could not be accomplished without a cap waiver approval....

We disagree.

Review of the documents submitted by the Bergen County Superintendent do no more than show that the County Superintendent reviewed the Board's budget proposal including its cap waiver request for adequacy. CAP WAIVER REQUEST: COUNTY SUPERINTENDENT'S BUDGET REVIEW AND REALLOCATION ANALYSIS, appended to notarized letter dated August 24, 1993, from Anthony C. Scalzo, Bergen County Superintendent of Schools. While the cap waiver review sheet asks a series of questions relating to reallocation, the County Superintendent's responses are cast solely in terms of the adequacy of funding for items in the Board's base budget. Id.

Nothing in the record indicates that the County Superintendent attempted to make reallocations in the Board's budget by identifying those amounts included in the base budget that were not absolutely essential to a thorough and efficient education. Had this been accomplished prior to approving the budget for advertising, the voters would have been presented with two proposals: one which was a proposal for a base budget within permissible limits at least minimally sufficient to provide a thorough and efficient education and another under N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(f) for the additional amounts. In this case, however, as reflected by the Commissioner's decision that some of the line item reductions the Borough made should be sustained, amounts that were not necessary to provide a thorough and efficient education were, in fact, included in the Board's base budget when it was presented to the voters.

Given this fact and upon review of the record, we can not avoid the conclusion that, as was the case in Rutherford, the County Superintendent did not review the Board's base budget either before or after it was defeated for the purpose of reallocating amounts within that budget so as to incorporate into it the cap waiver moneys the Board sought from the voters. Nor, in deciding this case, did the Commissioner extend her review beyond the reductions made by the Borough so as to ascertain whether any additional reallocation was possible. Rutherford, supra, slip op. at 6.

We recognize that review of the voter requested cap waiver moneys was not within the scope of the review with which the Borough was charged by N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37. In this appeal, however, the Borough has questioned whether those amounts were necessary in their entirety to the provision of a through and efficient education. As delineated in our decision in Lincoln Park, decided by the State Board, December 2, 1992, the fact that the County Superintendent had designated the moneys as necessary for a thorough and efficient education when he "conditionally" approved the District's budget and directed that a cap waiver question be presented to the voters does not insulate those amounts from review by the Commissioner.

In short, the Commissioner's decision established a budget which, despite voter defeat of the proposal made pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(f), exceeds the "maximum permissible budget" allowed by the statutes. The Commissioner directed that the additional amounts be added to the District's budget without a determination either of whether it was possible to make reallocations within the Board's base budget or whether the voter requested cap waiver amounts were needed in their entirety in order for the District to provide a thorough and efficient education. To permit this result, given defeat of the proposal made to the voters pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(f), would be to contravene the express terms of that statutory provision without the assurance that the Commissioner needed to do so in order to fulfill her constitutional obligations.

The record is not sufficiently developed to permit us to determine whether reallocation within the District's permissible budget is possible so as to provide support for those programs which the District originally proposed to fund by the voter requested cap waiver monies. Consequently, we have no recourse but to remand this matter for such determination. In so doing, we also direct that the Commissioner determine whether, or to what extent, the specific items which the Board sought to fund with the voter requested cap waiver amounts are in fact essential in order to enable the Board to meet its constitutional obligations.

IV

The decision resulting from our remand should resolve this particular case. This, however, does not eliminate the flaws in the budget review process that are, at least, partially responsible for the situation which is confronting us. Those flaws must be addressed through the regulatory process.

This is not the first time that we have directed the Commissioner to propose such rules to us. As expressed in our decision in Abbott v. Burke,

> ... in that it is the State's responsibility to assure that each district raises the funds required to provide a thorough and efficient education and given that it is the responsibility of this agency to ensure that every district properly fulfills the fiscal responsibility that has been delegated to it, we conclude that it is critical that a budget review process expressly designed to implement the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-28 be adopted through the regulatory process. We therefore direct that the Commissioner propose to us rules that provide for "review of each item of appropriation within the current expense and budgeted capital outlay budgets," and for determination of "the adequacy of the budgets with regard to the annual reports submitted pursuant to [N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-11]," as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-28.

Abbott v. Burke, decided by the State Board, April 13, 1989, slip op. at 40 (prior and subsequent history omitted).[8]

In Abbott, we also recognized that our rules had to provide for situations where it might be necessary to compel a municipality to raise additional amounts:

> Given our responsibility to assure that local districts allocate sufficient funds to provide a thorough and efficient education, we direct that the rules proposed by the Commissioner for review of annual budgets also include procedures to provide for review for adequacy of the budget in any case where a municipality reduced the budget, regardless of whether the local board appeals.

---

[8] In its decision in Abbott v. Burke, 119 N.J. 287 (1990), the New Jersey Supreme Court reversed the State Board's determination that the State's system for financing public education was not unconstitutional as it had been applied to poorer urban school districts. The Court did not disturb any of the State Board's administrative directives aimed at correcting identified weaknesses in the system. Id. at 300.

> We further direct that the proposed rules specify the standards that the Commissioner will apply in the event that it is necessary to compel a municipality to raise any additional amounts required.

Abbott, supra, slip op. at 42.

Our focus in Abbott was to ensure that the budgets developed by district boards of education and approved by the Commissioner were adequate to provide a thorough and efficient education. Our obligations to the taxpayers, now expressly embodied in the current statutory scheme, do not negate the need we identified in Abbott. To the contrary, our responsibility to the taxpayers makes it all the more essential that we act now to formalize the budget review process.

Because the process now being used has not been formalized, unequivocally it is not possible for us to review it in any detail. This case has however demonstrated unequivocally that the process is convoluted, inefficient, and that it fails to satisfy the requirements of the statutory framework now in place.

We therefore direct that the Commissioner propose to us a new system that would correct the deficiencies of the process now in place. Such a system should provide district boards with clear notice of exactly what is required of them. It should insure that all items necessary for a thorough and efficient education are included in each district's current expense budget proposal developed pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:22-7 et seq. It should provide assurance that the level of funding proposed by the district board for each item is sufficient. It should guarantee that no amounts included in a cap waiver proposal made pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(f) are essential to the provision of a thorough and efficient education. It should require that before an increase beyond a district's maximum permissible budget is directed, the district board must demonstrate that every item in its proposed budget and the amount it has budgeted to support each of those items is essential to providing a thorough and efficient education and that the additional amounts are necessary in order for the board to provide a constitutionally adequate education.

In this respect, we emphasize that while the Commissioner is entitled to rely on his county superintendents when fulfilling his responsibilities to review the education budgets proposed by district boards, such reliance may not be absolute. Where a district board seeks administrative review to increase its budget beyond the amount established by the governing body following voter defeat, the record must provide sufficient factual support for the level of funding sought before the Commissioner can direct such increase.

Finally, we are not insensitive to the limitations on the Commissioner's resources or the constraints such limitations place on him. However, "such constraints can excuse neither the Commissioner nor the State Board from fulfilling the responsibilities with which we have been charged by the Legislature." Abbott, supra, slip op. at 41.

We are convinced that the effects of such limitations would best be ameliorated by developing and formalizing an effective budget review process. This has been repeatedly demonstrated by the amount of resources that our agency has increasingly been required to commit in order to decide budget appeals. Fewer resources would be required to resolve such cases if the deficiencies in the current review process were corrected and the process formalized by the adoption of administrative rules.

We therefore direct that the Commissioner present a proposal for a budget review process within a time frame which will permit the State Board to consider the proposal and adopt regulations before February 1, 1995, by which date all district boards must submit their proposed budgets for 1995-96 for approval pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-27.

Finally we deny the Borough's request of June 29 that we defer action on this matter because the parties are in the process of attempting to settle the case. In the event that the parties ultimately do reach an agreement which is consistent with this decision, they may submit it to the Commissioner of Education for his review and approval.

IN THE MATTER OF THE CAP WAIVER :

APPEAL OF THE SCHOOL DISTRICT OF : COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

THE BOROUGH OF STONE HARBOR, : DECISION

CAPE MAY COUNTY. :

SYNOPSIS

Board appealed General Fund cap waiver in the amount of $59,264 rejected by voters.

Upon review of the record, Commissioner determined to order the increase of $50,217 in cap waiver monies for a total General Fund tax levy of $1,144,147 for 1993-94 school year.

NOVEMBER 18, 1993

IN THE MATTER OF THE CAP WAIVER	:
APPEAL OF THE SCHOOL DISTRICT OF	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
THE BOROUGH OF STONE HARBOR,	:	DECISION
CAPE MAY COUNTY.	:

Paul W. Dare, Esq., for Petitioner

William M. Balliette, Jr., Esq. (Cafiero & Balliette and Balliette), for Respondent

This matter was opened before the Commissioner on June 11, 1993 through the filing of a Petition of Appeal of a defeated cap waiver proposal of $59,264 by the Stone Harbor Borough Board of Education (Board). The Board sought restoration of the cap waiver, on the basis of necessity to provide a thorough and efficient educational system, after its defeat by the voters on April 20, 1993. The budget presented to the voters was also defeated and, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37 and N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.2(b)2, the Board and the Borough Council of the Borough of Stone Harbor (Council) consulted on the defeated budget. The Council reduced the General Fund tax levy by $6,782, but this reduction has been accepted by the Board and is not under appeal. On May 25, 1993, prior to the filing of the cap waiver appeal, the Cape May County Superintendent submitted a letter to the Commissioner stating that she had reviewed the reduction of $6,782 made to the budget by the Council and determined that this reduction would not have a negative impact on the district's ability to provide a thorough and efficient education. She states that the reductions, which are in the area of administrative salaries, were not considered at the time of the budget review and possible reallocation since they were not known to exist as an alternative at that time.

Consequently, the monies in contention in this matter are as follows:

Proposed Tax Levy Adopted By Board of Education		Amount of Tax Levy Certified By Governing Body
General Fund	$1,100,712	General Fund	$1,093,930
Cap Waiver	59,264	Cap Waiver	-0-
Amount of Reduction By Governing Body		Amount of Reduction In Dispute Before Commissioner
General Fund	$ 6,782	General Fund	-0-
Cap Waiver	59,264	Cap Waiver	$59,264

It must be noted that the Petition of Appeal submitted by the Board did not include the tax levy chart recorded above as required by N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.5(c). The amounts listed above were verified, however, by the documents submitted.

On June 21, 1993, Council submitted its Answer to the Petition, denying the allegation of the Board regarding the necessity of the cap waiver for a thorough and efficient educational system and requesting that the Commissioner not restore the cap waiver of $59,264. On July 19, 1993, Council submitted a letter stating that it had determined not to participate in the cap waiver appeal except "as a conduit in order to forward to [the Commissioner of Education] for [her] consideration, writings from the members of the general public together with any documentary evidence they wish to submit." Council was advised by the Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes in a letter dated July 21, 1993 that the Commissioner can consider only documents submitted to the record by the parties in this case and, given Council's decision not to participate, the letters attached to the correspondence of July 16, 1993 cannot be considered in the disposition of the case. Council responded on July 30, 1993 with a request to ignore the letter of July 16, 1993 and to ask for an extension for the filing of its position statement. These requests were granted in a letter dated August 2, 1993 from the Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes. On August 4, 1993 the Board filed its Position Statement. On August 20, 1993, Council filed its Position Statement which recommended reductions in five of the cap waiver line items for a total reduction of $15,547. Council did not challenge the cap waiver requests in the twelve other areas.

As a result of the State Board of Education's July 7, 1993 decision in the Board of Education of the Borough of Rutherford v. Mayor and Council of Rutherford wherein the State Board ruled that decisions in defeated voter cap waiver appeals must determine whether or not reallocation within the district's maximum permissible budget is possible and whether and to what extent the specific programs at issue are essential in order to enable the Board to meet its constitutional obligation to provide a thorough and efficient system of education, a letter was sent to the parties by the Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes informing them of the need to supplement the record to document the reallocation and cap waiver review conducted by the county superintendent pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-27. The county superintendent was accorded thirty (30) days from receipt of the letter to submit a sworn affidavit setting forth an explanation and documentation of that review, including the bases for concluding that (1) reallocation within the district's maximum permissible budget for the 1993-94 school year was not possible and (2) the specific programs at issue were essential for the Board to provide a thorough and efficient system of education to its students.

The governing body and Board were provided twenty (20) days from receipt of the county superintendent's submission to file a response thereto.

The county superintendent's affidavit with supportive documentation was received on September 10, 1993.

No additional documents were filed by either party and the record of this matter was closed on October 4, 1993.

The cap waiver amounts under appeal are as follows:

Account No.	Description	Amount	Recommended Reduction by Council
11-110-100-101	Kindergarten Aide Salary	$ 7,380
11-120-100-101	Grades 1-5 Salaries	3,500
11-130-100-101	Grades 6-8 Salaries	3,500
11-190-100-601	Teaching Supplies	1,500	$ 500
11-219-100-101	Homebound Instruction	1,000
11-401-100-100	Student Activities Salaries	2,253
11-000-222-104	School Librarian Salary	7,547	7,547
11-000-222-610	Library Books	584
11-000-230-331	Legal Fees	2,000
11-000-230-530	Telephone	1,000
11-000-230-590	Liability Insurance	1,000
11-000-260-300	Servicemaster	1,500	1,500
11-000-260-420	Building/Equipment Repair	16,000	5,000
11-000-260-620	Electric/Gas	2,000	1,000
11-000-270-593	Transportation Insurance	1,000
11-000-290-241	Employee Retirement	1,000
11-000-290-290	Hospitalization	6,500
	Total	$59,264	$15,547

Account No.		Amount
11-110-100-101	Kindergarten Aide Salary	$7,380

The Board states that the budget for this line item in 1992-93 was $11,880 and that only $4,500 will be available in 1993-94 without the cap waiver. The Board continues that there were 29 kindergarten students in 1992-93 and 24 anticipated in 1993-94 at the time of the petition filing. It is a State mandate that there must be an aide assigned to a kindergarten class with an enrollment greater than 25 students. This district also has had increased enrollment from 1991-92 to 1992-93 and projects continued increase in 1993-94.

Based on those facts and the necessity for a district to realistically and reasonably estimate budgetary expenditures, the Commissioner determines that funds of $7,380 for the kindergarten aide salary are essential for a thorough and efficient educational system.

11-120-100-101	Grade 1-5 Salaries	$3,500
11-130-100-101	Grade 6-8 Salaries	$3,500

The Board states that these funds were proposed to introduce an instrumental music program to the district. The Board continues that its district students are at a disadvantage when they enter the receiving high school because other students attending the high school have had the benefit of an elementary school music program. It is recognized that one of the difficulties in sending-receiving relationships between school districts is to ensure that all students are similarly prepared with equal educational opportunities.

Based on that fact, the absence of protest on this item by Council, and a review of the data submitted, the Commissioner approves the cap waiver totaling $7,000.

Account No.		Amount
11-190-100-610	Teaching Supplies	$1,500

The Board states that the cap waiver in this area is essential to provide funds which are close to the 1992-93 budgeted level. The Council recommended a reduction of $500 for this item and stated that the amount budgeted of $14,250 plus the cap waiver of $1,500 would exceed the 1991-92 expenditure of $10,319 by 49.6%. Although that percentage of increase is significant, it must be recognized in this issue that the period of comparison covers two years and that the student enrollment in the district has increased almost 10% in that period.

It is indisputable that provision of sufficient teaching supplies such as paper, pencils, workbooks, etc. is essential to a thorough and efficient educational system. Therefore, the Commissioner determines that these funds of $1,500 are approved for 1993-94.

Account No.		Amount
11-219-100-101	Homebound Instruction	$1,000

The Board states that $1,500 was budgeted for this item in 1992-93 and that only $500 would be budgeted in 1993-94 without the cap waiver. The Board adds that, although there were no students needing this service in 1992-93, it must budget because of the possibility of such need in 1993-94.

Again, as stated above, there is a necessity for a district to realistically and reasonably estimate budgetary expenditures for services that are required, if the situation arises, for a thorough and efficient education. The Commissioner determines that these funds of $1,000 are approved for 1993-94.

Account No.		Amount
11-401-100-100	Student Activities Salaries	$2,253

The Board states that this cap waiver would provide the same amount of funding for extracurricular activities for students as was available in 1992-93. The Board adds that these activities are an integral part of the total education of the pupils in the district.

As the Commissioner finds that these supervised activities are an integral part of the educational program, as stated by the Board, the $2,253 cap waiver is approved for 1993-94.

11-000-222-104	School Librarian Salary	$7,547

The Board states that the services of the school librarian would have to be reduced from four days to three days if the cap waiver funds are not approved. The Board agrees that the library could function with a librarian only three days a week, but states that having the librarian for four days a week as in the past provides better library opportunities for the students. The Board also states that the amount needed for four days in 1993-94 would be less than in 1992-93 because of the employment of a new librarian at a lower level on the salary guide.

The Council recommends disapproval of the $7,547 cap waiver on the basis that the amount budgeted is sufficient for three days of librarian service. The Council also states that library science can be taught by regular teachers and that monitoring in the library for the two days without a librarian can be handled by regular teachers and/or parent volunteers.

In reaching a decision on this issue, the Commissioner must note the very low projected enrollment for 1993-94 in this district of 85 pupils. Based on that fact and the arguments presented, including the Board's statement that the library can function with a librarian for only three days a week, the Commissioner determines that these cap waiver funds of $7,547 are not approved.

Account No.		Amount
11-000-222-610	Library Books	$ 584

The Board states that the budgeted amount of $916 for library/reference books would be, without the cap waiver, less than the $1,500 budgeted in 1992-93 and would be insufficient to maintain the library with books and reference materials.

The Commissioner agrees that the provision of current and appropriate library books and reference materials is an annual necessity for school districts and is essential for a thorough and efficient educational program. The cap waiver of $584 is therefore approved.

11-000-230-331	Legal Fees	$2,000

The Board states that the budgeted amount of $1,000 will be inadequate in 1993-94 because the Board will have legal fees specifically for the current contract negotiations, as well as for this cap waiver appeal. Since legal fees are very often essential to the efficient operation of a school district, and since the Board has cited two specific issues which will require such fees, the Commissioner approves the cap waiver of $2,000 for this item.

11-000-230-530	Telephone	$1,000

The Board again states that the amount of $5,000 budgeted in 1993-94 would be, without the cap waiver, less than the amount budgeted in 1992-93 and will not be sufficient to fund this item. In reviewing the data presented, the Commissioner determines that these funds are essential and therefore approves the cap waiver of $1,000.

Account No.		Amount
11-000-230-590	Liability Insurance	$1,000

The Board states that the amount of $7,000 budgeted in 1993-94 would be, without the cap waiver, less than the amount budgeted in 1992-93 and may be insufficient to pay for the district's liability insurance. Since sufficient insurance coverage is an essential responsibility of a school district, the Commissioner approves this cap waiver amount of $1,000.

11-000-260-300	Servicemaster	$ 1,500

The Board states that the budgeted amount is sufficient to pay the contracted amount for this service, but the cap waiver of $1,500 is necessary for any contingencies or additional services which might be required in 1993-94. The Council, on the other hand, recommends disapproval of this cap waiver on the basis that the budgeted amount is sufficient to pay the contracted amount. Since this line item only includes the contractual payment for Service-master and is sufficient to meet the obligation, the Commissioner determines that the need for additional funds in this line item has not been documented. The cap waiver of $1,500 is not approved.

11-000-260-420	Building/Equipment Repair	$16,000

The Board states that these funds are necessary to perform deferred maintenance on the school building and cites specifically the necessity for roof repair. The Council recommends disapproval of this cap waiver on the basis of its comparison of 1991-92 expenditures with 1993-94 budgeted amounts and its belief that no "substantial" repair is anticipated for 1993-94.

The Council's comparison is somewhat flawed, however, because the 1991-92 expenditure of $33,366 which is cited is only a sub-item in this account which had total expenditures of $39,966 in 1991-92. It is this figure that can be compared to the $18,900 Council cites as approved in the budget for 1993-94. In any case, the 1993-94 budgeted figure without the cap waiver is significantly less than prior expenditures. Based on the obvious need and mandate for continued repair of school buildings and equipment and the documentation presented, the Commissioner approves the cap waiver of $16,000.

Account No.		Amount
11-000-260-620	Electric/Gas	$2,000

The Board states that the cap waiver would provide the same funding as in the 1992-93 budget and that the requested funding is an estimate since the intensity of the 1993-94 winter is unknown. The Council recommends a reduction in the cap waiver of $1,000 based on 1991-92 expenditures of $18,230 and an approved budget for 1993-94 of $22,000. This is again an area where a Board must reasonably and realistically estimate budget appropriations since the cost can vary significantly with the intensity of the weather and the extent of building use. Based on these facts, the Commissioner approves the cap waiver in this area of $2,000.

11-000-270-593	Transportation Insurance	$1,000

The Board states that the cap waiver funds are necessary to provide the same budgeted amount for 1993-94 as in 1992-93. Since the expenditures in this area in 1991-92 were $2,675, it is reasonable to estimate that the premiums for transportation insurance in 1993-94 could exceed the budgeted amount of $3,000. The Commissioner approves the cap waiver in this area of $1,000.

Account No.		Amount
11-000-290-241	Employee Retirement	$1,000

The Board states that the cap waiver funds are essential to provide for potential contingencies with rising costs in the area of employee benefits. Since the expenditures in this line item are primarily mandated or contractual obligations, the Commissioner approves the cap waiver of $1,000.

11-000-290-290	Hospitalization	$6,500

The Board states that spiraling hospitalization insurance costs necessitated an increase in the approved budget amount for this obligation and the request for the cap waiver. Since this is an obligation which must be estimated by the Board and since the current hospitalization insurance climate is in flux, the Commissioner approves the cap waiver of $6,500.

In summary, upon review of the documentation submitted on this matter, the Commissioner finds and determines that the record amply establishes that $50,217 in cap waiver monies are necessary for the district to provide a thorough and efficient educational system. Of the total $59,264 cap waiver monies sought by the Board, the $7,547 for School Librarian Salary and $1,500 for Servicemaster are not approved for the reasons stated above. The Commissioner also finds and determines, based on documentation submitted, that reallocation of funds within the district's maximum permissible budget is not possible. (Board of Education of the Borough of Rutherford v. Mayor and Council of Rutherford, Bergen County, decided by State Board of Education, July 7, 1993)

Accordingly, the Cape May County Board of Taxation is directed to make the necessary adjustments as set forth below to reflect a total of $1,144,147 to be raised in tax levy for General Fund purposes by the Borough of Stone Harbor for the 1993-94 school year.

	General Fund
Tax Levy Certified By Council	$1,093,930
Cap Waiver Ordered by Commissioner	50,217
Total	$1,144,147

IT IS SO ORDERED.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Board appealed General Fund tax levy reductions in the amount of $142,500 made by governing body following voter rejection of proposed budget on April 20, 1993.

Upon review of the appeal herein to determine whether Board demonstrated that restoration of specific line item reductions was necessary in order to provide a thorough and efficient system of education in the district, Commissioner determined to restore $142,500 for a total General Fund tax levy of $6,311,450 for 1993-94 school purposes.

NOVEMBER 22, 1993

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWN OF PHILLIPSBURG, PETITIONER, V. TOWN COUNCIL OF THE TOWN OF PHILLIPSBURG, WARREN COUNTY, RESPONDENT.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION DECISION

Donald W. Morrow, Esq. (Morrow and Curzi), for Petitioner

Anita B. Kartalopoulos, Esq. (Novak and Kartalopoulos), for Respondent.

This matter was opened before the Commissioner on June 4, 1993 through the filing of a Petition of Appeal of a defeated budget by the Town of Phillipsburg Board of Education (Board) pursuant to the provisions of N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.4. The Board sought restoration, on the grounds of necessity for a thorough and efficient education, of reduction by the Town Council of the Town of Phillipsburg (Council) following voter rejection on April 20, 1993 of the Board's proposed budget. Subsequent to the defeat, the Board and Council pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37 and N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.2(b)2, consulted on the defeated budget and the Council reduced the General Fund tax levy by $142,500. Consequently, the monies in contention in this matter are as set forth below:

Proposed Tax Levy Adopted by Board of Education	Amount of Tax Levy Certified by Governing Body
General Fund $6,311,450	General Fund $6,168,950
Amount of Reduction by Governing Body	Amount of Reduction in Dispute Before Commissioner
General Fund $142,500	General Fund $142,500

The Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes sent a letter on July 15, 1993 to the Council advising it that an Answer to the Petition of Appeal had not been filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.4. On July 27, 1993 Council filed a copy of the resolution approved by it on the budget reduction with rationale. The Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes sent another letter to Council on August 18, 1993 advising it that an Answer to the Petition was still required, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.4, admitting or denying the specific allegations of the Petition and including the documentation necessary pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.7. Council was asked to file the required material within five days of the telefaxed letter. Council requested and was granted an extension of the filing date to September 3, 1993. The Answer, although dated September 3, 1993, was received on September 7, 1993 and did not include the certification and budget copy required by N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.7. The Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes again wrote to Council on September 9, 1993 advising it of the lack of required documentation. The letter also notified both parties that Position Statements must be filed by September 27, 1993. The Board filed its Position Statement on September 27, 1993, but it did not follow the format of reductions in the Council resolution. The Director wrote to the Board on October 4, 1993 informing it that it must submit a Position Statement related to the Council resolution to enable the Commissioner to undertake a proper review of each line item reduced by Council. The Council submitted its Position Statement on October 8, 1993 and it must be noted that it was dated October 1, 1993, but even that date was past the filing deadline of September 27, 1993. It must also be noted that Council did not include with its Position Statement the certification and budget copy which were missing from Council's Answer and about which it had been notified on September 9, 1993. The Board filed its amended Position Statement on October 19, 1993. On October 20, 1993, Council submitted a letter confirming a telephone conversation on the receipt of the Position Statement and stating that the required certification and budget copy would be submitted under separate cover. The certification was received on October 21, 1993. The Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes advised both parties on October 21, 1993 that Responses to the Position Statements must be submitted within ten days of the receipt thereof and final Summations within five working days of the receipt of Responses. The Director also stated that no extension for these filings would be granted in view of the length of time already passed and the status of Phillipsburg as a special needs district. The Director requested that the parties notify her office as soon as possible if they did not intend to submit Responses or Summations. The Director also again requested the required submission of the budget copy. The budget copy was submitted by the Board on November 3, 1993. No additional documents were filed by either party and the record of this matter was closed on November 3, 1993.

The specific reductions in the General Fund tax levy include 28 individuals line items which were allocated to four specific areas by both parties. These reductions with the allocated headings and rationale by heading are as follows:

Early Childhood Education

Rationale: $397,096 budgeted, which is a $95,000 increase, for a non-mandated program, so reduction of $7,795 is recommended.

Line Item #	Description	Reduction
11-000-240-103-110	Principal Salaries	$ 526
11-000-290-290-110	Principal Benefits	216
11-000-221-102-110	Curriculum Coordinator's Salary	525
11-000-290-290-110	Curriculum Coordinator's Benefits	217
11-110-100-101-110	Teacher Salaries - Foundation	1,174

11-190-100-610-110	Instructional Supplies - Foundation	526
11-190-100-340-110	Consultant	526
		($8,133)
		$7,795

It must be noted that the total for this area of reductions is $8,133, not $7,795 as listed in Council's resolution. However, $7,795 was the amount included in the total tax levy reduction.

It is also noted that the item identified as Teacher Benefits - Chapter 1 is not correct because the line item/account number is not the one used for benefits. The Board believes this item should be Aide Salaries - Chapter 1, but this description would still require a one-digit change in the line item/account number.

Attitudes, Disposition, Etc.

Rationale: $319,105 budgeted for a new program, so reduction of $19,105 is recommended since $300,000 should be sufficient for first year.

Line Item #4	Description	Reduction
11-000-240-103-415	Principal Salaries - Foundation	$ 1,915
11-120-100-101-415	Teacher Salaries - Foundation	1,910

		$19,105

School-Team (Site-Based) Planning Allocation

Rationale: $215,600 is budgeted which is a $55,600 increase which is excessive, so reduction of $15,600 is recommended.

11-190-100-800-506	School Site-Team Allocation	$15,600

Capital Outlay

Rationale: Recommend reduction of $100,000 for purchase of computers for use by administrative personnel and general business use by the Board.

12-XXX-XXX-73X	Computers	$100,000
	TOTAL REDUCTIONS	$142,500

Again, it must be noted that the individual reduction total $142,838 because of Council's error in the first category of reductions, but the amount listed here of $142,500 is the total amount by which Council reduced the tax levy and under appeal in this matter.

STANDARD OF REVIEW

In rendering judgment relative to budgetary appeals, the Commissioner notes that the Constitution of the State of New Jersey requires the Legislature to provide for a thorough and efficient system of education. The Legislature by way of statutory scheme has delegated the responsibility for providing such thorough and efficient system to local boards of education. Additionally, the Legislature pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9, 22-14, 22-17 and 22-37 has authorized the Commissioner of Education to review and decide appeals by boards of education seeking restoration of budgetary reductions imposed by local governing bodies. (See also Board of Education of East Brunswick Township v. Township Council of East Brunswick, 48 N.J. 94 (1966) and Board of Education of Deptford Township v. Mayor and Council of Deptford Township, 116 N.J. 305 (1989).)

In reviewing such appeals, the Commissioner must determine whether a district board of education has demonstrated that the amount by which a specific line item reduction imposed by the governing body is necessary for the provision of a thorough and efficient system of education.

In this instant matter, the record on documentation submitted indisputably reflects the failure of Council to submit correctly and timely the required materials pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.6 et seq. This neglect by Council, however, does not eliminate the burden on the Board to justify the necessity for the funds under appeal to provide a thorough and efficient system of education.

Mindful, then, of the balance to be applied in the standard of review, the Commissioner makes the following determination with respect to the reduction in the General Fund tax levy effectuated by Council.

Program	Reduction
Early Childhood Education	$7,795

The Council cites this as a non-mandated program and recommends a reduction of $7,795 to the budgeted amount for this program. As noted above, the individual line item reductions listed by the Council total $8,133, not $7,795. The Board argues that, as a designed "Special Needs District," it is required by N.J.A.C. 6:8-9.1 et seq. to develop annually an Educational Improvement Plan (EIP) which must, among other requirements, be adequately funded. The Board submits a notice which indicates that "a minimum of $1,481,369" must be budgeted to implement the district's EIP. (See October 19, 1993 Position Statement, Schedule C.) The Board also submits the approved plan which includes eight objectives for a total budgeted cost of $1,880,141. Objective 1 provides for the Early Childhood Program with a budgeted cost of $397,096. In addressing the individual line item reductions, the Board states that the salaries and benefits listed for reduction are prorated amounts of total salaries and benefits and are necessary to meet the contractual obligations of the Board. The Board questions the reductions relative to Chapter 1 funds since these federal entitlement moneys do not impact the local tax levy. The Board states that the equipment and instructional supplies included in this program are essential to meet the priorities of the program and to provide key materials. The Board also states that the consultant fees included in this program are essential for staff development and are in response to the recommendations of the External Review Team. Council did not address the individual line items but stated the rationale for reduction in the program as in the above.

In reviewing the data presented, the Commissioner determines that the Council's basis for reductions is faulty since this program has been identified as an essential component of the district's EIP which is required by code. The Commissioner therefore orders the restoration of the $7,795 reduction.

Program	Reduction
Attitudes, Disposition, Etc.	$19,105

The Council states that this is a new program and that the reduction will provide sufficient funds for the first year. The Board again states this program area in part of the district's EIP as Objective 4 and is designed to provide an array of student support services to decrease the number of out-of-school suspensions and truancies. In addressing the individual line item reductions, the Board again states that the salaries and benefits listed for this program are prorated amounts of total salaries and benefits and are necessary to meet the contractual obligations of the Board. The Board also again questions the reduction of federal entitlement funds, DFSCA. The Board cites statistics on child abuse cases and juvenile court cases in Phillipsburg which, it asserts, verify the need for an expansion of student support services and programs. The Council again did not address individual line item reductions but stated, as noted above, that the overall reduction in this area was warranted because it is a new program.

The Commissioner finds it difficult to understand how the implementation of a new program is sufficient basis for reduction without consideration of the necessity and potential value of that program. A critical factor in this issue is again that the program is an objective in the district's EIP which has been developed and approved because of district needs. The Commissioner finds that these funds are essential to the provision of a thorough and efficient educational system and orders the restoration of the reduction of $19,105.

Description	Reduction
School-Team Planning Allocation	$15,600

Council recommended a reduction in this area based on the rationale that the amount budgeted reflected an increase of $55,600 which it felt was excessive. The Board states that the original budgeted amount of $161,450 was mandated for building level improvement plans based on $50 per student and that the reduction would put the Board in violation of N.J.A.C. 6:8-9.4. The Board also states that the development of school-team planning is part of the district's EIP and therefore must be completed. It must be noted that the Board incorrectly identified this item as Objective 8 when it appears to be part of Objective 5.

The Commissioner determines that the funds for this item have been budgeted to address a need identified by the district as an objective in its EIP and approved upon review by the Warren County Superintendent and staff of the Division of Urban Education and Field Services. The Commissioner orders the restoration of the reduction of $15,600.

Capital Outlay	$100,000

Council states in its resolution that this reduction is for the purchase of computers for use by administrative personnel and general business use by the Board. The Council adds in its Position Statement that there was no reduction for computers to be used by students. The Board states that the funds are necessary for two specific areas: (1) the administrative computer system for the mandated conversion to the GAAP accounting system and (2) student data software and equipment to provide a wide variety of student-related data. The Board notes that these proposed expenditures are in response to two specific recommendations of the External Review Team.

The Commissioner, in making a determination in this area, notes that it is recognized that the conversion to the GAAP accounting format was mandated for every school district with the realization that there would be some associated conversion expenses. The Commissioner also finds that other critical factors in this matter are the increasing enrollment in the district and the many district objectives regarding student behavior and academic performance. Based on these facts, the Commissioner determines that these funds are essential for the provision of a thorough and efficient educational system and orders the restoration of the reduction of $100,000.

Thus, for the reasons set forth above, the Commissioner determines to restore the entire $142,500 in the General Fund appealed herein, as summarized by program area in the chart below and to be applied to the 28 specific line items as reduced by Council:

Program	Reduction	Restored
Early Childhood Education	$ 7,795	$ 7,795
Attitudes, Disposition, Etc.	19,105	19,105
School-Team Planning Allocation	15,600	15,600
Capital Outlay - Computers	100,000	100,000
Total	$142,500	$142,500

Accordingly, the Warren County Board of Taxation is directed to make the necessary adjustments as set forth below to reflect a total of $6,311,450 to be raised in tax levy for General Fund purposes by the Town of Phillipsburg for the 1993-94 school year.

	General Fund
Tax Levy Certified by Council	$6,168,950
Restored by Commissioner - Defeated Budget	142,500
Total	$6,311,450

IT IS SO ORDERED.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

NOVEMBER 22, 1993

DATE OF MAILING - NOVEMBER 22, 1993

288-93

CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF PATERSON, PETITIONER, V. STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF PATERSON, PASSAIC COUNTY, RESPONDENT.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION DECISION

SYNOPSIS

City appealed General Fund tax levy certified by State District Superintendent and sought a reduction of $5,912,287 for 1993-94 school purposes.

Upon review of the appeal herein, Commissioner determined that City failed to demonstrate that entire amount budgeted was not necessary in order to provide a thorough and efficient system of education in the District. Commissioner found that the District needed full amount of $38,784,796 as originally projected and previously certified by the State District Superintendent.

NOVEMBER 22, 1993

CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF PATERSON, PETITIONER, V. STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF PATERSON, PASSAIC COUNTY, RESPONDENT.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION DECISION

Susan E. Champion, Esq., for Petitioner

Russell J. Schumacher, Esq., for Respondent

This matter was opened before the Commissioner by way of a Petition of Appeal filed on April 23, 1993 by the City of Paterson (City) seeking a reduction of the General Fund tax levy for school purposes in the City of Paterson of $5,912,287. On May 13, 1993 the State-Operated School District of the City of Paterson (District) filed its Answer to the Petition of Appeal. By way of joint request from the parties, two extensions were granted for the filing of position statements. Position statements were filed by the City and the District on August 31 and September 1, 1993, respectively. Replies to such statements were filed by the parties on September 10, 1993.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-52(a) the State district superintendent of a State-operated district is required to "fix and determine the amount of money necessary to be appropriated for the ensuing school year and  certify the amounts to be raised by special district tax for school purposes  to the county board of taxation and the amount or amounts so certified shall be included in the taxes assessed, levied and collected in the municipality or municipalities comprising the district."

Unlike other budget appeal processes in the State of New Jersey, it is the municipality which must appeal the determination of the amount necessary to be raised for school purposes setting forth those specific line items which it believes can be reduced without obstructing the district's ability to provide a thorough and efficient system of education. Based upon the statutory language summarized above, the City proposed the following tax levy reduction:

Tax Levy Certified By State District Superintendent		Amount of Tax Levy Proposed By Governing Body
Current Expense:	$38,784,796	Current Expense:	$32,872,509
Capital Outlay:	-0-	Capital Outlay:	-0-

Amount of Proposed Reduction In Dispute before Commissioner

Current Expense: $5,912,287

In rendering judgment relative to budget appeals, the Commissioner notes that the Constitution of the State of New Jersey requires the Legislature to provide for a thorough and efficient system of education. The Legislature by way of statutory scheme has delegated the responsibility for providing such thorough and efficient system to local boards of education.

However, by way of the statutory scheme established for State-operated school districts, the Legislature has authorized the State district superintendent to fix and determine the amount of tax levy necessary for the provision of a thorough and efficient system of education.

Additionally, the Legislature pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9, 22-14, 22-17, 22-37 and N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-52(a) has authorized the Commissioner of Education to review and decide appeals by boards of education seeking restoration of budgetary reductions imposed by local governing bodies or, as in the instant matter, an appeal from a municiaplity seeking a reduction in the tax levy certified by a State district superintendent of a State-operated school district. (See also Board of Education of East Brunswick Township v. Township Council of East Brunswick, 48 N.J. 94 (1966) and Board of Education of Deptford Township v. Mayor and Council of Deptford Township, 116 N.J. 305 (1989).)

In reviewing such appeals the Commissioner must determine whether a district board of education, or in this case a municipality, has demonstrated that the amount by which a specific line item has been reduced is necessary for the provision of a thorough and efficient system of education.

In the instant matter, the City petitioned the Commissioner seeking reduction of the following specific line items, the reasons for which were included with the Petition of Appeal but which shall be delineated in detail elsewhere in this decision:

Account	Title	Budget	Recommended Reduction
110N	Other Administrative Expenses	$ 1,097,920	$ 66,936

CITY'S POSITION

Initially, the City argues that its actions in proposing reductions in the 1993-94 budget of the Paterson School District are in full conformity with Deptford, supra. The City acknowledges its cognizance of past deficiencies in the District and of the previous admonitions of the Commissioner against making expenditure comparisons with previous budgets of the local board of education. In this regard, the City contends that it has therefore limited its comparisons of previous expenditures to the 1992-93 budget prepared by the Superintendent under State operation.

The City submits that its decisions relative to the budget have been taken in full recognition of the District's status as a "special needs" district. However, its concern for the need to provide other citizen services should not be regarded as being politically motivated or inappropriate.

The City's line item-by-line item reasoning is set forth below:

Account	Reduction
110N - Other Administrative Salaries	$66,936

The salary involved here is that of the District ombudsman which position the City contends was budgeted for in 1992-93 but never filled. The City claims that to budget for it in 1993-94 is duplicative since it was already included in the previous year's budget.

Additionally, the City argues $15,000 in this account is allocated for overtime payments to an Assistant State Superintendent whom the City claims should not be paid overtime for it is a management position.

Account	Reduction
120B - Legal Fees	$ 50,000

The City contends that of the $312,400 for legal fees budgeted in 1992-93 only $266,281 was expended with the remaining $46,118 being transferred to other line items.

130I - Expenses for Business Administrator	$173,625

The City points out that $61,539 was budgeted in this account for 1992-93 with only $29,342 actually expended. The City contends that an expenditure of $100,000 as it proposes would cover expenses and permit $75,000 for the purchase of the software which the Business Administrator contends is necessary.

130M - Expenses for Printing and Publication	$ 67,690

Once again the City contends that the District expended only $45,684 out of the amount of $116,838 budgeted for 1992-93. The City argues that no explanation is given by the District as to why it budgeted over 50% more than the 1992-93 budget which was not fully expended. The City argues that the District's history of overbudgeting in this account justifies its decision to request the reduction and will not adversely affect students.

Account	Reduction
212 - Supervisory Salaries	$422,970

The City contends that this account was overbudgeted by $400,000 in 1992-93. In reaching its proposed reduction, the City contends that it used the actual 1992-93 expenditure figure of $2,029,654 multiplied by a 7% raise. Allowing an additional $74,202 for the District's providing incentives brings the revised suggested appropriation to $2,245,931, over $400,000 less than budgeted by the District. The City claims that these calculations were based upon the District's own figures.

213 - Teachers' Salaries	$2,006,810

As in the previous account, the City contends it utilized the actual figures or expenditures in this account for 1992-93 ($53,158,309) x 7%. Additionally, the City contends it allowed $1,072,275 for incentives and additional compensation as well as $280,000 for 7 new teachers arriving at a total of $58,231,665, thus justifying the $2,006,810 reduction recommended in this account.

214 - Other Instructional Staff	$ 299,430

Once again, the City based its recommended reduction upon the actual expenditure of $8,357,349, which in this case was larger than the 1992-93 budgeted amount. Utilizing the same formula as above, the City multiplied the District's actual expenditure times a 7% raise plus $160,614 for incentives and $308,400 for new hires to reach a total proposed appropriation of $9,411,377.

220 - Textbooks	$ 257,500

The City contends that the actual expenditures in this account as of June 30, 1993 were $767,032 out of a revised budgeted amount of $1,761,024, approximately $1,000,000 less than appropriated. Notwithstanding having overbudgeted by $1,000,000 the City points out that the District increased its 1993-94 appropriations to $2,207,956.

Upon inquiry the City contends it learned that $835,000 of the budgeted amount was for new math textbooks for grades 1-12. The City points out that utilizing the enrollment figures of 21,000 pupils in these grades the amount budgeted is $39.76 per book, an amount which it deems to be incredible for the lower grades. Upon further inquiry it learned that the actual range was from $20 to $35. Utilizing the above figures and a $27.50 average cost per book, the City concluded that the actual cost of the math textbooks for 21,000 students would be $577,500, thus justifying the $257,500 reduction proposed by the City.

The City urges the Commissioner to consider the $1,000,000 overbudgeting in 1992-93 and the inflated costs for the 1993-94 purchases of math textbooks.

Account	Reduction
240 - Supplies	$650,000

Once again the City compares the budgeted amounts for 1992-93 to the actual expenditures for that year even including what it claims to be a questionable encumbrance of $68,501 for testing materials. Even giving the District the benefit of the doubt concerning its 1992-93 expenditures, this account was overbudgeted by $600,000.

Despite such overbudgeting, the City contends no explanation has been provided by the District to explain the $500,000 increase in the 1993-94 budget.

Account	Reduction
250 - Other Expenses, Instruction	$250,000

The City argues that a review of 1991-92 and 1992-93 shows expenditures of $154,723 and $365,118, respectively, both significantly less than the amount appropriated.

Despite what it contends to be overbudgeting of almost $200,000 in 1992-93, the City points out that the District proposed an increase in its appropriations in this account of an additional $700,000 without any justification as to why such an amount was necessary.

650 - Supplies for Operation of Plant	$ 26,705

While the City acknowledges that the amount expended in 1992-93 was greater than the amount budgeted, the City contends that no explanation is provided as to why $113,000 was expended in April, May and June.

720 - Contracted Services/Maintenance	$1,000,000

As in the previous account, the City points out that expenditures in the months of April, May and June resulted in this account being underbudgeted for 1992-93 by almost $700,000. Such miscalculation by the District raises question as to the validity of budgeting in this account in the view of the City.

740 - Maintenance of Plant	$ 102,000

The City cites the following information:

Budget Year	Budgeted Amount	Expenditures
1991-92	$278,000	$223,879
1992-93	$390,700	$354,916
1993-94	$377,000

Based upon the above-cited figures the City points out the tendency of the District to underexpend the amount budgeted. The City once again questions the District's practice of making large expenditures in the last three months of the fiscal year thereby casting doubt on the validity of the budgeting process.

Account	Reduction
810 - Employee Retirement Contributions	$5,064

The reduction proposed here represents the social security and pension allocation for the Ombudsman's position which the city claims is duplicative.

820 - Employee Insurance	$ 8,000

The reduction represents insurance coverage for the Ombudsman position which the City claims is duplicative.

830 - Lease Purchase - Principal	$ 8,057

The City contends that the actual Lease Purchase Agreement payment of principal is $1,085,000 as reflected by the District's audit, thus it proposes reducing the amount appropriated in this account by the $8,057 difference.

900 - Food Services	$135,000

The City contends that this account was overbudgeted by $140,000 in 1992-93, yet the 1993-94 budgeted amount shows an additional increase of $135,000 over last year's budgeted amount. The City contends no explanation is provided for this increase.

904 - Basic Skills - Other Expenses	$382,500

The City contends that the District has disclosed that it has reduced its basic skills program by 67 teachers, thus the City has proposed reducing expenditures accordingly.

The amount budgeted in this account for 1992-93 was $483,225, yet only $124,096 was expended as of April 15, 1993. By the end of the year the actual expenditures in this account were $368,206 with over $95,000 of the expenditures in the last 3 months being for teaching supplies and $97,000 for technical services. The City questions the expenditures of an such large amounts for services and supplies which would normally be purchased during the school year as needed.

DISTRICT'S POSITION

Initially, the District points out that the current expense budget for 1993-94 is $14 million under the amount permitted under the cap ban. It also argues that the City in reaching its conclusion as to the $5,912,287 proposed reduction in the 1993-94 budget relied solely upon the recommendations of its hired consultant, Dr. Frank Marlow, and did not discuss the itemized reductions at the special Council meeting at which it voted to appeal.

The District contends that the 1993-94 budget was developed under a zero-based budget approach which required justification for each individual line item. The District points out that the 1992-93 budget which was the first budget formulated under the District's State operation was the subject of an appeal by the City. The District notes that the Commissioner of Education by decision dated January 7, 1993 directed that 1992-93 budget not be reduced.

The District argues that the 1993-94 budget contains many appropriations in furtherance of objectives contained in its Corrective Action Plan (CAP), its Educational Improvement Plan (EIP), and the initiatives of Community task forces.

The District's general arguments conclude by pointing out that the Commissioner in her decision on the 1992-93 budget took note of the fact that in reviewing Paterson's budget, consideration must be given to the District's special needs status and to the legislative mandate that special needs districts are required to annually increase expenditures so as to reach a point within five years equal to the average expenditures of the most affluent districts. Both the Commissioner and the State Board of Education, the District argues, have concluded that it is improper to rely solely upon previous year's expenditures in determining the amount necessary for a thorough and efficient system when dealing with special needs districts. The District argues that the City has the right to seek tax relief from the Department of Community Affairs pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-52(b) if it believes that the school tax needs place an undue burden on the city.

The District's line item-by-line item position on the recommended reductions is set forth below:

Account	Reduction
110N - Other Administrative Salaries	$66,936

The District argues that the City is mistaken in its argument that no Ombudsman was hired in 1992-93 and therefore the amount for such position in 1993-94 is duplicative. The District points out that the position in question did exist for 1992-93 and will continue in 1993-94.

Further, the District contends that the overtime pay which the City mistakenly believed to be for the Assistant Superintendent is in fact for overtime for secretaries in that office.

120B - Legal Fees	$50,000

The District contends that the proposed reduction would leave it without sufficient funds to meet its legal obligations. The District argues that it employs only one attorney on its staff and therefore requires outside legal counsel to meet all of its labor, personnel and other needs.

The District points out that it has been unsuccessful in obtaining renewal of it errors and omissions policies, thus necessitating providing its own outside counsel in defending itself against pending claims.

Account	Reduction
130I - Expenses for Business Administrator	$173,625

The District points out that it has been required to reorganize and correct many deficiencies in its business services. This reorganization has required additional expenditures to support the implementation of efficient business processes in finance, facilities, transportation and field services.

The District estimates the cost of the upgraded computer software and training to implement these new systems at $202,000 and points out that the remedial steps taken in this area are a major objective of the State-operated District.

130M - Expenses for Printing and Publishing	$ 67,690

The District contends that the sole basis for the recommended reduction in this account is the expenditures for 1992-93 without concern for the its needs in 1993-94.

The District points out that additional needs for 1993-94 include expenditures for the following:

1. $7,000 for a new procedures manual required under the CAP.

2. Increased opportunities for the Office of Public Information to meet a district objective of providing increased communications with parents, community and staff.

3. Printing and publication of the collective bargaining agreements with the District's five bargaining units.

4. Increased printing costs for bid specifications and public advertisements.

Account	Reduction
212 - Supervisory Salaries	$ 422,970

The District points out that based upon the actual number of positions in this category and the salaries for such positions as contained on page 18 of Exhibit D of the District's Position Statement, the total of such salary needs is $3,010,846.78.

213 - Teachers' Salaries	$2,006,810

Based upon its figures of the actual number of teachers as contained in Exhibit E, the District contends that its entire appropriation is justified and that it is unable to accept the reduction recommended by the City without the necessity of reducing staff.

214 - Other Instructional Staff	$ 299,430

As in the above salary accounts, the District relies upon the actual salaries listed in Exhibit F of its position statement.

220 - Textbooks	$ 257,500

The District contends that Dr. Marlow's speculation as to the cost of textbooks, workbooks and teachers' materials is without merit in that it has already expended the $835,000 appropriated for the purchase of the new mathematics materials.

240 - Supplies	$ 650,000

The District contends that the sole basis for the City's recommended reductions in this account is its analysis of expenditures in 1992-93 without reference to the needs of the District for 1993-94. This account, contends the District, includes expenditures for items such as $275,000 for new school desks and chairs, $240,000 for small instructional equipment which costs less than $500 per unit. The District points out that new GAAP accounting procedures require equipment under $500 per unit to be included as supplies.

Further, the District argues that this account includes allocation for supplies for reading and math of $100,000 in furtherance of the CAP; task force needs in the amount of $5,100 and $240,000 for at-risk programs. These expenditures are detailed in Exhibit C of the District's Position Statement on pages 51-54.

Account	Reduction
250 - Other Instructional Expenses	$250,000

The District contends that it must budget for the various initiatives recommended by the task forces. Included within the 1993-94 budget in this account are over $600,00 for such initiatives.

650 - Supplies for Operation of Plant	$ 26,705

The District points out that the only justification presented by the City is the history of previous years' expenditures. The District points out that this account includes small equipment under $500 as required by GAAP principles as well as additional supplies for custodians to upgrade the school facilities in terms of health and appearance.

720 - Contracted Services	$1,000,000

Once again, the District points out that the City's recommendations are based exclusively upon past expenditures without consideration of future needs. The District contends that this account will be overexpended by year's end due to its need to spend in excess of $2,000,000 to replace decertified boilers. Further, the District contends that this account contains $500,000 to eliminate substandard rooms and $500,000 for health and safety remediation. (See Exhibit C, at pp. 42 - 43)

Account	Reduction
740 - Other Expenses for Maintenance of Plant	$102,000

Again, the District points out that the sole basis for the City's position is past history. The District contends that the reduction recommended by the City would impede the progress made in maintaining its schools which are deteriorating and antiquated structures.

810 - Employee Retirement Contributions	$ 5,064

Since the reduction here is the result of the City's erroneous assumption that the District failed to hire an Ombudsman in 1992-93, the District argues no reduction is justified.

820 - Employee Insurance	$ 8,000

The same argument is presented by the District in regard to this account since the reduction here is also based upon the erroneous assumption by the City in regard to the Ombudsman position.

830 - Lease Purchase - Principal	$ 8,057

The District points out that this account not only includes the payment of principal on the Lease Purchase Agreement but the repayment of a loan in the amount of $8,057 to the United States Environmental Protection Agency. Thus the reduction in this account is based upon error on the City's part.

900 - Food Services	$135,000

This account provides for anticipated deficits in the food services operation. While the District contends that the exact amount of the deficit is difficult to calculate it argues that the $600,000 appropriation for this contingency is reasonable based upon increased expenditures incurred by the District in enhancing its food services program and expanding of the offering of breakfast.

Account	Reduction
904 - Basic Skills, Other Expenses	$382,500

The District admits that it underexpended this account in 1992-93; however, it submits that such underexpenditure in 1992-93 does not justify a reduction in 1993-94. This includes an affidavit from Dr. Hoover, Assistant Superintendent for Curriculum, which alleges the underexpenditure was due to accounting error. This account, contends the District, is for materials and supplies; training and professional development of teachers; upgrading of the Basic Skills Instructional program computer lab and the purchase of software as learning tools; and purchase of equipment, materials and training for parents so that they may assist their children.

COMMISSIONER'S DECISION

The Commissioner has carefully reviewed the arguments of the parties in reference to the reductions recommended by the City in this appeal. As previously recited, appeals from the educational budget established under N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-52(a) relating to State-operated districts differ from budgetary appeals established under law for districts governed by elected or appointed boards of education. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-52(a) it is the governing body rather than the board of education which must initiate the appeal. Further, it is the burden of the governing body to demonstrate that the appropriations established by the State District Superintendent in a State-operated school district are in excess of what is necessary for the provision of a thorough and efficient system of education. In meeting that difficult burden, the Commissioner is mindful of the finding of the State Board of Education in Mayor and Council of the City of Jersey City v. State-Operated School District of the City of Jersey, 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 474, wherein the Board stated:

> [G]iven this district's history of educational inadequacy and fiscal mismanagement which resulted in our decision to order the creation of a State-operated school district [cite omitted], we find that the historical spending patterns of this particular district cannot be used to conclude that amounts in its 1991-92 budget have been over-budgeted. Rather, in reviewing this district's budget, we must be particularly attentive to whether the District's financial resources will be sufficient to enable it to meet the educational needs of its students. (at 475)

While the Commissioner notes that the City in this matter seeks to distinguish its reasoning in this appeal from that of Jersey City, supra, and from its own unsuccessful budgetary appeal of the 1992-93 budget, City of Paterson v. State-Operated School District of the City of Paterson, decided January 7, 1993, on the grounds that the 1992-93 budgetary appropriations represented the first budget adopted by the State District Superintendent and thus represent a base point from which prior year appropriations can be used as a comparison, the Commissioner finds such reasoning without merit. To adopt such rationale presumes that the initial year's budget is capable of addressing both the myriad problems and deficiencies which prompted the State takeover and the fiscal underfunding which the New Jersey Supreme Court's decision in Abbott v. Burke, 119 N.J. 287 (1990) found to exist in the 30 special needs districts. As the District correctly points out in its position statement, the Quality Education Act of 1990 (N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-1 et seq.) seeks to provide a funding mechanism for special needs districts, such as Paterson, sufficient to enable those districts to achieve an expenditure level which shall reach a point within five years equal to the average expenditures of the most affluent districts. Clearly, recommending reductions in the Paterson School District budget based solely on a comparison of the expenditure levels of the 1992-93 budget year with the 1993-94 appropriations without thorough examination of what those appropriations are for violates the admonitions of the Commissioner and the State Board of Education and the intent of both the QEA and the Supreme Court in Abbott, supra.

Consequently, the Commissicner finds and determines that the City has failed to meet its burden of demonstrating that the reductions recommended by it based solely upon prior year expenditure levels can be effectuated without impairing the District's ability to provide a thorough and efficient system of education. The line item accounts in which such reasoning is rejected are as follows:

Account	Title	Reduction
120B	Legal Fees	$ 50,000
130I	Expenses/Business Administrator	173,625
130M	Printing and Publication	67,690
240	Supplies	650,000
250	Other Expenses, Instruction	250,000
650	Supplies for Operation Plant	26,705
720	Contracted Services Maintenance	1,000,000
740	Maintenance of Plant	102,000
900	Food Services	135,000
904	Basic Skills, Other Expenses	382,500
	Total	$2,837,520

Account	Reduction
110N - Other Administrative Expenses	$ 66,936

The City concluded that the increase in this account was a result of the District's having duplicated the salary of an Ombudsman which it did not hire in 1992-93 but which position had been budgeted for in that year. Further, it concluded some $15,000 was allocated for overtime pay for an Assistant State Superintendent. The District has argued that both assumptions are in error and that the Ombudsman was hired and did serve in 1992-93 and that no duplication in salary existed. Further, the District points out that the overtime pay is for secretaries, not an assistant superintendent. In the absence of further demonstration by the City of a reason for reducing this line item account, the Commissioner rejects the recommended reduction of $66,936 in this account.

Account	Reduction
212 - Supervisory Salaries	$ 422,970

The District's figures as set forth in Exhibit D of its Position Statement by name and actual salary clearly demonstrate the need for the entire appropriation. The City's calculation based solely upon the previous year's appropriation multiplied by a 7% increase factor cannot refute the actual payroll. The recommended reduction of $422,970 is rejected.

213 - Teachers' Salaries	$2,006,810

The formula utilized by the City in recommending its reduction in this area is the same as that utilized above. The District's actual salary needs set down by teacher name and grade level is $64,271,849, over $2,000,000 more than that calculated by the City. The reduction of $2,006,810 recommended by the City is rejected.

214 - Other Instructional Staff	$ 299,430

As in the other salary accounts reduced by the City, the figures set forth by the District in Exhibit F demonstrate the need for the entire amount appropriated. The City's recommended reduction of $299,430 is rejected.

Account	Reduction
220 - Textbooks	$257,500

Based upon a review of the arguments presented by the City the Commissioner concludes that the City's position fails to consider the cost of related instructional materials such as workbooks, manuals and audiovisuals. Consequently, the City has failed to meet its burden and its recommended reduction of $257,500 is denied.

810 - Employee Retirement Contributions	$ 5,064

Inasmuch as the Ombudsman's position has been demonstrated to actually exist, a reduction of $5,064 as recommended by the City is not warranted and is therefore denied.

820 - Employee Insurance	$ 8,000

Since the recommended reduction in this account is based upon the City's erroneous assumption relative to duplication of the Ombudsman's salary, the recommended reduction of $8,000 in this account for that individual's insurance coverage is denied.

830 - Lease Purchase - Principal	$ 8,057

While the City questions the budgeting for repayment of a loan to the Environmental Protection Agency in this account, it does not question or rebut the existence of such a loan. The City's recommended reduction of $8,057 is rejected.

In conclusion, the Commissioner finds and determines that the City of Paterson has failed in its burden to demonstrate that the entire amount budgeted by the State-operated School District of the City of Paterson was not necessary to provide a thorough and efficient system of education to the pupils of Paterson. The Commissioner further finds and determines that for the 1993-94 school year the School District of the City of Paterson is in need of the full $38,784,796 as originally projected and previously certified by the State District Superintendent.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF BLOOMSBURY,

PETITIONER,

V.

MAYOR AND COUNCIL OF THE BOROUGH OF BLOOMSBURY, HUNTERDON COUNTY,

RESPONDENT.

IN THE MATTER OF THE CAP WAIVER APPEAL OF THE BOROUGH OF BLOOMSBURY SCHOOL DISTRICT, HUNTERDON COUNTY.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Board appealed General Fund tax levy reductions in the amount of $32,092 made by governing body following voter rejection of proposed budget on April 20, 1993.

Upon review of the appeal herein to determine whether Board demonstrated that restoration of specific line item reductions was necessary in order to provide a thorough and efficient system of education in the district, Commissioner determined to restore $8,039.

Board also appealed General Fund cap waiver in the amount of $22,354 rejected by voters.

Upon review of the record, Commissioner determined to order the increase of $22,354 in cap waiver monies for a total General Fund tax levy of $783,244 for 1993-94 school year.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF BLOOMSBURY, PETITIONER, V. MAYOR AND COUNCIL OF THE BOROUGH OF BLOOMSBURY, HUNTERDON COUNTY, RESPONDENT.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION DECISION
IN THE MATTER OF THE CAP WAIVER APPEAL OF THE BOROUGH OF BLOOMSBURY SCHOOL DISTRICT, HUNTERDON COUNTY.	:

Richard Dieterly, Esq. (Gebhardt & Kiefer, for Petitioner

William J. Caldwell, Esq. (Carter, Van Rensselaer & Caldwell), for Respondent

This consolidated matter was opened before the Commissioner on June 14, 1993 through the filing of a Petition of Appeal of a defeated budget by the Bloomsbury Borough Board of Education (Board) pursuant to the provisions of N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.4. The Board also included its defeated cap waiver in the Petition of Appeal. The Board sought restoration, on the grounds of necessity for a thorough and efficient education, of reductions by the Mayor and Council of Bloomsbury Borough (Council) following voter rejection on April 20, 1993 of the Board's proposed budget and cap waiver. Subsequent to the defeat, the Board and Council, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37 and N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.2(b)2, consulted on the defeated budget and the Council reduced the General Fund tax levy by $32,092. Consequently, the monies in contention in this consolidated matter are as set forth below:

Proposed Tax Levy Adopted By Board of Education		Amount of Tax Levy Certified by Governing Body
General Fund	$784,943	General Fund	$752,851
Cap Waiver	$ 22,354	Cap Waiver	$ -0-

Amount of Reduction By Governing Body		Amount of Reduction in Dispute Before the Commissioner
General Fund	$32,092	General Fund	$32,092
Cap Waiver	$22,354	Cap Waiver	$22,354

On June 18, 1993, a letter was received from the Hunterdon County Superintendent of Schools stating that a compromise had been reached between the Board and Council regarding the budget reduction of $32,092, with both parties accepting the reduction of $24,053 and restoration of $8,039. The Hunterdon County Superintendent stated that he objected to the reductions and believes that the restoration of the entire $32,092 and $22,354 cap waiver monies are essential for the district to provide a thorough and efficient educational system. The Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes wrote on June 22, 1993 to Board counsel stating that an appropriately amended petition must be filed if such an agreement with partial restoration of prior reductions had been certified by Council. A response from Board counsel was received on June 28, 1993 stating that no formal restoration of prior reductions had been made and that taxes were struck based on the total reduction. The Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes in a letter of July 7, 1993 confirmed to Board counsel that, based on the representations proffered by him as an officer of the court, an amended petition was not required. On July 29, 1993, Council submitted a letter advising that it would not participate in the appeal process.

As a result of the State Board of Education's July 7, 1993 decision in the Board of Education of the Borough of Rutherford v. Mayor and Council of Rutherford wherein the State Board ruled that decisions in defeated voter cap waiver appeals must determine whether or not reallocation within the district's maximum permissible budget is possible and whether and to what extent the specific programs at issue are essential in order to enable the Board to meet its constitutional obligation to provide a thorough and efficient system of education, a letter was sent to the parties by the Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes informing them of the need to supplement the record to document the reallocation and cap waiver review conducted by the county superintendent pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-27. The county superintendent was accorded thirty (30) days from receipt of the letter to submit a sworn affidavit setting forth an explanation and documentation of that review, including the bases for concluding that (1) reallocation within the district's maximum permissible budget for the 1993-94 school year was not possible and (2) the specific programs at issue were essential for the Board to provide a thorough and efficient system of education to its students.

The governing body and Board were provided twenty (20) days from receipt of the county superintendent's submission to file a response thereto.

The county superintendent's affidavit and supportive documentation was received on September 3, 1993.

A Position Statement was filed by the Board on September 8, 1993. In this Statement, the Board notes that an agreement was reached with Council to accept reductions for Health Services and Benefits and seek restoration, with no objection by Council, for $8,039 for the preschool program. No additional documents were filed by either party, and the record of this consolidated matter was closed on September 27, 1993.

The specific reductions in the General Fund tax levy are as follows:

Account	Title	Rationale	Reduction
11-000-213-100	Salaries - School Nurse	Full-time nurse not required	$16,539
11-110-100-101	Preschool Kinder. Salaries of Teachers	Preschool program not warranted	8,039
11-000-290-290	Benefits	Achieve savings through competitive market	7,514
		TOTAL	$32,092

The cap waiver amounts under appeal are as follows:

Account	Title	Amount
11-110-100-101	Teacher Salaries - Pre K-K	$ 3,492
11-120-100-101	Teacher Salaries - Grade 1-5	9,221
11-130-100-101	Teacher Salaries - Grade 6-8	5,868
11-218-100-101	Teacher Salaries - Speech Instr.	3,773
	TOTAL	$22,354

DEFEATED BUDGET

In rendering judgment relative to budgetary appeals, the Commissioner notes that the Constitution of the State of New Jersey requires the Legislature to provide for a thorough and efficient system of education. The Legislature by way of statutory scheme has delegated the responsibility for providing such thorough and efficient system to local boards of education. Additionally, the Legislature pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9, 22-14, 22-17 and 22-37 has authorized the Commissioner of Education to review and decide appeals by boards of education seeking restoration of budgetary reductions imposed by local governing bodies. (See also Board of Education of East Brunswick Township v. Township Council of East Brunswick, 48 N.J. 94 (1966) and Board of Education of Deptford Township v. Mayor and Council of Deptford Township, 116 N.J. 305 (1989).)

In reviewing such appeals the Commissioner must determine whether a district board of education has demonstrated that the amount by which a specific line item reduction imposed by the governing body is necessary for the provision of a thorough and efficient system of education.

In this particular matter, the budget review by and recommendations of the Hunterdon County Superintendent must also be carefully weighed since there is an objection to the position filed by the Board.

Mindful, then, of the balance to be applied in the standard of review, the Commissioner makes the following determination with respect to the reduction in the General Fund tax levy effectuated by Council.

Account	Reduction
11-000-213-100 - Salaries - School Nurse	$16,539

The proposed budget included funds to increase nursing services from part-time to full-time. Council states that the part-time services provided prior to this proposed budget are sufficient. The Board in its Position Statement does not appeal this item because of the compromise agreement with the Council. The Hunterdon County Superintendent in his affidavit stated that increased services of the school nurse were approved in the budget based on the district superintendent's concern regarding the increase in life-threatening student conditions such as asthma and various allergic reactions. He also noted that regulations require that all medicines be administered by a certified school nurse and, in the absence of the nurse in Bloomsbury, this duty is assumed by the superintendent and/or school secretary.

This issue was a difficult one to resolve, since statute and code mandate very specific health and safety services for students but do not require a full-time nurse in each building. Moreover, the advantages of full-time nursing services, as approved by the Hunterdon County Superintendent, are indisputable. However, it is clear that the Board has chosen to retreat from its previously proffered position espousing the necessity for increasing the nurse's time. When coupling this with the fact that the projected on-roll population is only 125 pupils and given the Board's about-face on the need for the monies, the Commissioner cannot make an independent finding to restore the monies. It is thus determined that the reduction of $16,539 will be sustained.

Account	Reduction
11-110-100-101 - Preschool/Kindergarten Salaries of Teachers	$8,039

Council in its resolution stated that this reduction was based on its determination that a taxpayer supported preschool program is not warranted or required by law and that ample facilities exist within the community to meet this need. As noted above, Council apparently agreed informally at a later date to the

In summary, upon review of the documentation submitted on this matter, the Commissioner finds and determines that the $22,354 in cap waiver monies sought by the Board are essential for the district to provide a thorough and efficient educational system and that reallocation of funds within the district's maximum permissible budget is not possible. (Board of Education of the Borough of Rutherford v. Mayor and Council of Rutherford, Bergen County, decided by State Board of Education, July 7, 1993.)

Accordingly, the Hunterdon County Board of Taxation is directed to make the necessary adjustments as set forth below to reflect a total of $783,244 to be raised in tax levy for General Fund purposes by the Borough of Bloomsbury for the 1993-94 school year.

	General Fund
Tax Levy Certified by Council	$752,851
Restored by Commissioner (Defeated Budget)	8,039
Cap Waiver Ordered by Commissioner	22,354

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Board appealed General Fund tax levy reductions in the amount of $172,490 made by governing body following voter rejection of proposed budget on April 20, 1993.

Upon review of the appeal herein to determine whether Board demonstrated that restoration of specific line item reductions was necessary in order to provide a thorough and efficient system of education in the district, Commissioner determined to restore $172,490.

Board also appealed General Fund cap waiver in the amount of $593,956 rejected by voters.

Upon review of the record, Commissioner determined to order the increase of $593,956 in cap waiver monies for a total General Fund tax levy of $7,347,199 for 1993-94 school year.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

William R. Mayer, Esq. (Cohen, Shapiro, Polisher, Shiekman & Cohen), for Petitioner

James E. Madden, Esq. (Lomurro, Davison, Eastman & Munoz, P.A.) for Respondent

This consolidated matter was opened before the Commissioner on June 11, 1993 through the filing of a Petition of Appeal of a defeated budget by the Millstone Township Board of Education (Board) pursuant to the provisions of N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.4. The Board also filed on June 11, 1993 a Petition of Appeal of its defeated cap waiver. The Board sought restoration, on the grounds of necessity for a thorough and efficient education, of reduction by the Millstone Township Committee (Township) following voter rejection on April 20, 1993 of the Board's proposed budget and cap waiver.

Subsequent to the defeat, the Board and Township, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37 and N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.2(b)2, consulted on the defeated budget and the Township reduced the General Fund tax levy by $172,490. Consequently, the monies in contention in this consolidated matter are as set forth below:

Proposed Tax Levy Adopted by Board		Amount of Tax Levy Certified by Governing Body
General Fund	$6,753,243	General Fund	$6,580,753
Cap Waiver	593,956	Cap Waiver	-0-
Amount of Reduction By Governing Body		Amount of Reduction In Dispute Before Commissioner
General Fund	$172,490	General Fund	$172,490
Cap Waiver	593,956	Cap Waiver	593,956

On June 21, 1993, the Township submitted its Answer to both Petitions. Position Statements on both matters were filed by the Board on July 9, 1993 and by the Township on July 16, 1993. A summation was filed by the Board on July 30, 1993.

As a result of the State Board of Education's July 7, 1993 decision in Board of Education of the Borough of Rutherford v. Mayor and Council of Rutherford wherein the State Board ruled that decisions in defeated voter cap waiver appeals must determine whether or not reallocation within the district's maximum permissible budget is possible and whether and to what extent the specific programs at issue are essential in order to enable the Board to meet its constitutional obligation to provide a thorough and efficient system of education, on August 10, 1993 a letter was sent to the parties by the Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes informing them of the need to supplement the record to document the reallocation and cap waiver review conducted by the county superintendent pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-27. The county superintendent was accorded thirty (30) days from receipt of the letter to submit a sworn affidavit setting forth an explanation and documentation of that review, including the bases for concluding that (1) reallocation within the district's maximum permissible budget for the 1993-94 school year was not possible and (2) the specific programs at issue were essential for the Board to provide a thorough and efficient system of education to its students.

The governing body and Board were provided twenty (20) days from receipt of the county superintendent's submission to file a response thereto.

The county superintendent's affidavit with supportive documentation was received on September 13, 1993. No additional documents were filed by either party and the record of this consolidated matter was closed on October 4, 1993.

The specific reductions in the General Fund tax levy are as follows:

Account No.	Title	Rationale	Reduction
11-000-230-331	Legal Services	Based on 1992-93 expenditures and no referendum	$ 25,000

DEFEATED BUDGET

STANDARD OF REVIEW

In rendering judgment relative to budgetary appeals, the Commissioner notes that the Constitution of the State of New Jersey requires the Legislature to provide for a thorough and efficient system of education. The Legislature by way of statutory scheme has delegated the responsibility for providing such thorough and efficient system to local boards of education. Additionally, the Legislature pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9, 22-14, 22-17 and 22-37 has authorized the Commissioner of Education to review and decide appeals by boards of education seeking restoration of budgetary reductions imposed by local governing bodies. (See also Board of Education of East Brunswick Township v. Township Council of East Brunswick, 48 N.J. 94 (1966) and Board of Education of Deptford Township v. Mayor and Council of Deptford Township, 116 N.J. 305 (1989).)

In reviewing such appeals, the Commissioner must determine whether a district board of education has demonstrated that the amount by which a specific line item reduction imposed by the governing body is necessary for the provision of a thorough and efficient system of education.

Mindful, then, of the balance to be applied in the standard of review, the Commissioner makes the following determination with respect to the reduction in the General Fund tax levy effectuated by the Township.

Account	Reduction
11-000-230-331 - Legal Services	$25,000

The Township based this reduction on its determination that 1992-93 expenditures in this area were only $13,210 and its belief that there was no referendum scheduled in 1993-94 and thus there was no need for budgeted legal fees for that item. The Board states that the actual amount spent in 1992-93 for legal fees was $44,923 and that $40,000 was budgeted for 1993-94.

Since legal fees are very often essential to the operation of a school district and since the Board has certified that the amount budgeted in 1993-94 is less than the 1992-93 expenditures, the Commissioner orders the restoration of the $25,000 reduction.

11-000-270 - Salaries for Pupil Transportation $13,300

The Township states that two additional bus drivers included in the 1993-94 budget are not necessary because the Board's enrollment projections are faulty. The Township's position that the Board increased the enrollment projection for 1993-94 over the 828 students estimated by the Board's consultant is accurate. However, this increase is warranted, since the Board certifies that the enrollment as of July 30, 1993 was 868, with additional enrollment anticipated prior to the opening of school. Even without any additional enrollment, the certified enrollment of 868 represents an increase of more than 11% over the prior year.

The Commissioner determines that the Board has justified the need for two additional bus drivers based on increased enrollment and orders the restoration of the $13,300 reduction.

Account	Reduction
11-000-270-600 - Supplies and Materials	$21,000

The Township based this reduction on 1992-93 expenditures which it states for gasoline and replacement parts totalled $57,271. It reduced what it states is the budgeted figure of $90,000 by $21,000 to $69,000. The Board states that the Township did not consider the last three months of the school year expenses for fuel consumption and vehicle use which are traditionally higher toward the end of the school year due to field and athletic trips. The Board states that $90,104 was spent in 1991-92 for this account, and $89,294 was spent in 1992-93. There is some discrepancy over the amount budgeted for this account, since the amounts listed by the Township total $90,000. The Board's Position Statement has a figure of $81,000, and the 1993-94 budget has $102,000 for this line item. However, a reduction of $21,000 from even the greater number of $102,000 would leave a balance less than the amount spent in the two prior years. Based on this fact, the Commissioner orders the restoration of the $21,000 reduction.

Account	Reduction
11-000-270-511 - Contracted Services	$21,000

The Township reduced this line item because of its belief that the Board had faulty student enrollment projections. The Board states that these funds are necessary for private bus contractors to cover routes unable to be maintained by the in-house operation and are essential based on projected student enrollment.

Since it has been determined previously that the district's student enrollment has increased significantly and is greater than that assumed by the Township, the Commissioner orders the restoration of the $21,000 reduction.

11-000-260-100 - Salaries for Custodians	$11,000

The Township states that the additional half-time custodian proposed in the 1993-94 budget is unnecessary because the very little increase in the areas to be maintained can be accomplished with the current personnel. The Board argues that the position is necessary because of the addition of four portable classrooms.

It is indisputable that the proper care and maintenance of school facilities are essential to the health and safety of students and the provision of a thorough and efficient educational system. It is determined that the additional classes do warrant the addition of a part-time custodian. The Commissioner orders the restoration of the $11,000 reduction.

12-000-270-733/734 - Purchase of Vehicles	$31,190

The Township states that the purchase of additional vehicles is based on faulty enrollment projections and is therefore unnecessary. The Board states these funds were budgeted for a lease on a van for special education students and the purchase of two new buses and that these vehicles are needed to accommodate the projected student enrollment.

Again, since it has been determined previously that the district's student enrollment has increased significantly, the Commissioner orders the restoration of the $31,190 reduction.

Account	Reduction
11-000-230-590 - Other Purchased Services	$40,000

The Township based its reduction in this area on faulty enrollment projections. The Board states that the increase in this account is not due to enrollment projections but is necessary because of the transition in accounting principles from the single - entry accounting style to the GAAP accounting format.

The conversion to the GAAP accounting format was mandated for every school district with the realization that there would be some associated conversion expenses. Based on this fact and the Township's erroneous basis for the reduction, the Commissioner orders the restoration of the $40,000 reduction.

11-000-290-290 - Other Employee Benefits	$10,000

This reduction by the Township was based on the savings in benefits that would result from its proposed reduction in staff. Since it has been determined above that the proposed reduction in staff is not reasonable based on the data presented, the Commissioner orders the restoration of the $10,000 reduction.

Thus, for the reasons set forth above, the Commissioner determines to restore the entire $172,490 in the General Fund appealed herein, as summarized by the chart below:

Account No.	Title	Reduction	Restored
11-000-230-331	Legal Services	$ 25,000	$ 25,000
11-000-270	Salaries for Pupil Trans.	13,300	13,300
11-000-270-600	Supplies and Materials	21,000	21,000
11-000-270-511	Contracted Services	21,000	21,000
11-000-260-100	Salaries for Custodians	11,000	11,000
12-000-270-733/ 734	Purchase of Vehicles	31,190	31,190
11-000-230-590	Other Purchased Services	40,000	40,000
11-000-290-290	Other Employee Benefits	10,000	10,000
	TOTAL	$172,490	$172,490

CAP WAIVER

The Board had presented to the voters a cap waiver in the amount of $593,956 for additional teachers in the district and tuition and resource room expenses to be paid to the receiving high school. In his letter of March 23, 1993, the county superintendent informed the Board that, as a result of the budget review, the 1993-94 budget received only conditional approval subject to the cap waiver proposal of $593,956, and that, if the cap waiver were rejected by the voters, the Board must file an appeal.

The Board had received a Commissioner's cap waiver pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7D of $546,440, based on $436,256 for enrollment increases and $110,184 for special education increases. At the time the Commissioner's cap waiver was approved, the Board stated that the approved amount would not be sufficient to provide for the district's enrollment increase and that a voter cap waiver would be sought. This voter cap waiver was reviewed by the county superintendent and, as noted above, determined to be necessary for the provision of a thorough and efficient education. (See also September 10, 1993 Affidavit of County Superintendent and Requests, County Superintendent's Budget Review and Reallocation Analysis for Cap Waiver, March 9, 1993.)

The Board states that the projected enrollment increase in 1993-94 for grades 1-8 is 129 students. The Board also states that the transition from resource room to resource center will require increased periods to service special education students, and that it anticipates an increase of ten additional students in the resource center in 1993-94. The Board asserts that these factors necessitate additional teaching staff for grades 1-5, grades 6-8 and the resource center. Monies were included in the voter cap waiver for this additional teaching staff.

The Board further explains that 21 additional students are expected at the high school level which will increase the tuition obligation for the district. The Board also has a tuition payback charge for 1990-91 which is due in 1993-94. The Board states that monies were also necessary for resource room charges which will be billed per hour for an anticipated 25 students. Monies were included in the voter cap waiver for these high school tuition and resource room charges.

In summary, upon review of the documentation submitted on this matter, the Commissioner finds and determines that the record amply establishes that the $593,956 cap waiver monies sought by the Board are necessary because of significantly increased enrollment and essential for the district to provide a thorough and efficient educational system. The Commissioner also finds and determines, based on documentation submitted, that reallocation of funds within the district's maximum permissible budget is not possible. (Board of Education of the Borough of Rutherford v. Mayor and Council of Rutherford, Bergen County, decided by State Board of Education, July 7, 1993)

Accordingly, the Monmouth County Board of Taxation is directed to make the necessary adjustments as set forth below to reflect a total of $7,347,199 to be raised in tax levy for General Fund purposes by the Township of Millstone for the 1993-94 school year.

	General Fund
Tax Levy Certified by Council	$6,580,753
Restored by Commissioner (Defeated Budget)	172,490
Cap Waiver Ordered by Commissioner	593,956

INITIAL DECISION
OAL DKT. NO. EDU 9752-92
AGENCY DKT. NO. 503-11/92

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF JEFFRON CROCKETT, SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF PASSAIC, PASSAIC COUNTY.

Matthew J. Michaelis, Esq., for petitioner

Louis P. Bucceri, Esq., for respondent
(Bucceri & Pincus, attorneys)

Record Closed: September 21, 1993 Decided: October 12, 1993

BEFORE MARYLOUISE LUCCHI-McCLOUD, ALJ:

This matter concerns tenure charges brought against the respondent, Jeffron Crockett, which were certified by Dr. Henry J. Lee, Secretary of the Passaic Board of Education, on November 18, 1992. An answer was filed by the respondent on December 10, 1992. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13 on December 15, 1992. On March 2, 1993 the matter was transmitted to Mumtaz Bari-Brown, ALJ, and was set down for a prehearing on March 9, 1993. After the prehearing the matter was set down for hearing on September 21 and 22, 1993. Prior to the time of the hearing the matter was transferred to Marylouise Lucchi-McCloud, ALJ for disposition on the hearing date. On September 21, 1993 a hearing took place at the OAL, 185 Washington Street, Newark, New Jersey. At this time, the respondent, Jeffron Crockett did not appear to contest the tenure charges against him although counsel for respondent did appear. As a result the school board put in its proofs and the record closed.

ISSUE

The question in this case is whether or not the charges against Jeffron Crockett, a tenured custodian in the Passaic Board of Education's employ, can be sustained. The charges as outlined are for excessive absenteeism and the Board requests the discharge of respondent. This request is made pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3 and N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10.

UNCONTESTED FACTS

At the time of the hearing respondent did not appear to contest the charges. Notice had been sent by the Office of Administrative Law as well as certified mail by his attorney (R-1). During the hearing the school board presented documents which show the period of time for which the respondent was absent. Those documents (P-1 through 4) were admitted into evidence without objection. Those documents reveal the following:

Year	Personal Illness Days	Leave of Absence Days	Total
1979-80	16		16
1980-81	16		16
1981-82	18-1/2		18-1/2

For that period of time ending June 22, 1993 the respondent had a total of 390-1/2 personal illness days and 202 leave of absence days, making a total of 592-1/2 days absent for the period from 1979 until June 1993.

From the time period of June 22, 1993 on the respondent has been on leaves of absence continuously, making an additional 41 days of absence through the date of the hearing. This brings the current total as of the date of the hearing to 633-1/2 days of absence during 14 school years of employment.

At the time of the hearing, due to the fact that respondent did not appear, no evidence was presented contrary to the number of absences which the school board has indicated. In addition to the respondent having received notice it should also be noted that attorney for respondent indicated on the record, as well as through his letter to respondent (R-1), that his client also failed to appear in his office for a meeting prior to the hearing on September 14, 1993. Counsel's letter indicated that a failure to appear at the hearing would result in the respondent's abandoning his rights to defend against the tenure charges which could result in his dismissal as a school custodian.

DISCUSSION

The Commissioner of the Department of Education has jurisdiction to hear and determine controversies and disputes arisIng under the school laws. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9. Every public school janitor of a school district shall, unless appointed for a six-year term, hold his office, position or employment under tenure under good behavior and efficiency and shall not be dismissed or suspended or reduced in compensation, except as a result of a reduction of the number of janitors in the district or except for neglect, misbehavior or other offense, pursuant to the manner prescribed in N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10. N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3.

No person shall be dismissed if he is under tenure of office, position or employment in a public school system except for inefficiency, incapacity, unbecoming conduct, "or other just cause." Such action can only be taken after a hearing pursuant to applicable statutory provision, after written charges of the cause of complaint. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10.

In this case, the respondent has chosen not to defend against the charges against him of excessive absenteeism. At the time of the hearing the petitioning school board provided proofs that in a 14-year period of employment the respondent has been absent a total of 633-1/2 days. The question in this case whether or not that constitutes excessive absenteeism and if so, is dismissal appropriate. While there is no specific and clear cut delineation of when absenteeism becomes excessive, it is clear in this case when looking at a totality of the circumstances that 633-1/2 days absent in a 14-year period is extraordinarily high. Another important factor to be looked at is the pattern of these absences. In this case in the initial years the absence rate was lower than it is in the most recent years. In the 1992-93 school year, as of the date of the hearing, the respondent had amassed 130 days absent. The rate of absence over the years has gradually increased to an unmanagable level.

The question here is not whether or not the absences were excused or by way of granted leaves of absence, but instead, whether or not excused, the question turns upon whether or not the school district is adversely affected by these absences. In previous cases high absenteeism has been deemed sufficient grounds for disciplinary action even with the existence of legitimate medical excuse. Montville Township Education Association v. Board of Education of the Township of Montville, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 8247-83, Commissioner's Decision at 10 (April 16, 1984); Angelucci v. West Orange Board of Education, 180 S.L.D. 1066. In this case the respondent has had a significant period of time in which to improve his attendance. Apparently he has been unable to do so and his absence pattern has increased year by year. It is now at the point when respondent is not present at work for extraordinarily high amounts of time. During these periods of time it is necessary for the board of education to obtain other individuals to take on the respondent's job responsibilities. Although this is not a case of a teacher, where absence causes an interruption of teaching continuity, custodians are necessary to the efficient running of any school. To have to obtain other individuals to do Mr. Crockett's job on an almost ongoing basis does not contribute to the efficient running of a school system.

CONCLUSION

Based upon the foregoing, I CONCLUDE, that respondent has waived his right to defend against the tenure charges of excessive absenteeism posed in this case. I further CONCLUDE that both the number of absences as well as the pattern of absences in this case clearly and convincingly establishes the charge of excessive absenteeism. I further CONCLUDE that just cause exists as delineated in N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 for the dismissal of Jeffron Crockett, a tenured custodian with the Passaic public schools.

ORDER

It is hereby ORDERED that Jeffron Crockett, a tenured custodian with the Passaic schools, be and hereby is dismissed from his position as a custodian pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10.

I hereby FILE my Initial Decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSISON OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 West State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

HEARING OF JEFFRON CROCKETT,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF	:	DECISION
PASSAIC, PASSAIC COUNTY.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that just cause exists for respondent's dismissal pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 and N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3, in that the Board has demonstrated a clear pattern of excessive absenteeism and respondent has waived, by his conduct during the instant proceedings, his right to defend against the Board's charge.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law is affirmed for the reasons expressed therein and respondent is dismissed from his tenured employment as of the date of this decision.*

NEW JERSEY STATE INTERSCHOLASTIC ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION,

RESPONDENT.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning Board contested New Jersey State Interscholastic Athletic Association's decision (NJSIAA) to exclude Elmwood Park football team from State Football Play-offs. Board sought Emergent Relief declaring that NJSIAA's power point penalty due to an opponent's forfeiture of football games because of use of ineligible player was void, declaring that exclusion of petitioner from State Play-offs was void and ordering NJSIAA to schedule a semi-final play-off game between Elmwood Park and Ridgefield Park. At oral argument, petitioner sought alternative relief of cancelling the Thanksgiving Day football games of three schools, Elmwood Park, Ridgefield Park and Pascack Hills to allow for a runoff game between Elmwood Park and Pascack Hills.

Commissioner denied emergent relief finding Petitioner failed to meet the standards for such extraordinary remedy as established by Crowe v. DeGioia. On the merits of the matter, Commissioner upheld application of NJSIAA rules noting she will not upset Association's determination in the absence of patent arbitrariness. Commissioner also observed that Petitioner failed to make a showing of irreparable harm in that participation in extracurricular sports is a privilege not a right. (Burnside)

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF ELMWOOD PARK, BERGEN COUNTY,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
NEW JERSEY STATE INTERSCHOLASTIC ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

For Petitioner, Matthew P. DeMaria, Esq.
(James L. Plosia, Esq., Special Counsel)

For Respondent, Picco, Mack, Herbert, Kennedy, Jaffe & Yoskin (Michael J. Herbert, Esq., of Counsel)

For Intervenor, Fogarty & Hara (Rodney T. Hara, Esq., of Counsel)

This matter has come before the Commissioner of Education by way of Petition of Appeal with Motion for Emergent Relief filed by Petitioner on November 19, 1993 seeking a declaration that the New Jersey State Interscholastic Athletic Association's (NJSIAA or Association) imposition of a power point penalty due to an opponent's forfeiture of games is void; a declaration that NJSIAA's November 17, 1993 decision to exclude it from the State Football Play-offs is void, and an order compelling NJSIAA to schedule, as soon as practicable, a semi-final play-off game between it and Ridgefield Park. In the alternative, Petitioner seeks a runoff game between it and Pascack Hills to be played on Saturday, November 27, 1993, which game would necessitate cancellation of the scheduled Thanksgiving games.

By oral notice provided Respondent, oral argument on the Emergent Relief Motion was scheduled for November 22, 1993. Respondent was directed to submit its Answer and Reply Brief by the close of business on the same date, with a decision to be rendered on November 23, 1993. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:4-34, the Commissioner designated her authority to hear and decide this matter to Elena J. Scambio, Assistant Commissioner.

By faxed transmission received after the close of business on November 22, 1993, Pascack Valley Regional High School District sought and was granted Intervenor status in this matter. It had no previous knowledge of the oral arguments held earlier that day.

Citing Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982) for the standard applicable in a request for emergent relief, Petitioner's moving papers acknowledge in its filing that decisions of the Association, as a voluntary organization, are normally entitled to deference by the Commissioner, and will not be overturned absent arbitrariness or capriciousness. Petitioner contends it has met the standard. It claims, first, the harm to the students and community at large of Elmwood Park is a given, in that, without such relief, the football team will be denied an opportunity to participate in the State Football Play-offs, in that, the play-offs will be concluded by the middle of December.

It further submits it has a strong probability of ultimate success on the merits because NJSIAA's interpretation of the power ranking system is without support in the Association's own rules, because the decision to exclude Elmwood Park from the play-offs is arbitrary and capricious and because it was made after the cutoff date for determination of eligibility in the State Play-offs, which was November 15, 1993.

Petitioner further argues that consistent with Crowe, supra, injunctive relief is appropriate because the material facts of this matter are not disputed: the Association has agreed through its counsel's letter of November 17, 1993 that it belatedly decided to exclude it from the play-offs based upon Paterson Catholic's forfeiture of previously played football games.

Petitioner adds that the public interest is served if it is permitted to participate in the State Play-offs in that such a determination would require the Association, which is voluntary, to administer its own regulations in a fair and reasonable manner, which Petitioner claims it has not done in this matter.

Finally, Petitioner argues that a weighing of the relative hardships favors Elmwood Park because no hardship will inure to the Association if it is directed to rescind its decision to exclude Elmwood Park from the State Football Play-offs. By contrast, Petitioner claims its plight is a "classic example of hardship" if relief is not granted. (Petitioner's Brief on Motion for Emergent Relief, at p. 11)

At oral argument, Petitioner recited its understanding of the chronology of events in this matter. First, it notes that NJSIAA widely circulated among its membership that the cutoff date for the announcement of teams in play-off football competition was November 15, 1993. It submits that on November 13, 1993 Pascack Hills and Elmwood Park both lost their football games. On Sunday, November 14, 1993 Elmwood Park was on notice of power points sufficient for it to practice for and participate in play-off competition. On November 16, 1993 Elmwood Park became aware that Paterson Catholic, one of its rival teams, forfeited three games due to participation of an ineligible player in violation of NJSIAA rules. Petitioner advances that such forfeitures reduced Paterson Catholic's record from 5-3 to 4-4, but that it maintained its understanding from NJSIAA that Elmwood Park would remain in the play-off competition due to its power points and win-loss record. Thereafter, on November 16, 1993 Petitioner contends it was apprised that NJSIAA had recalculated the standings following discovery that Paterson Catholic's ineligible player had participated in a fourth game under a different shirt number, which resulted in a reduction of that school's standing to 3-5. Said recalculation eliminated both Paterson Catholic from play-off competition, because it's win-loss record was thus reduced to 3-5, as well as Elmwood Park because it lost an additional power point due to such forfeiture.

Based upon such factual recitation, Petitioner advanced two arguments on the merits of its case. First, Petitioner argued that no rule or regulation issued by NJSIAA exists that forfeiture of games by a team shall be calculated as losses for schools that played against the forfeiting in assessing power points. To do so, Petitioner submits, unfairly disadvantages the school playing against the forfeiting school. Petitioner suggests that the purpose of the play-off and eligibility rules is to punish those members of the Association who violate the rules, not innocent parties like Petitioner. Hence, it claims, the laudable purpose of establishing rules for the purpose of deterrence is not advanced by the play-off rule in contest herein, because a disincentive is created for schools such as Petitioner, which was penalized as an innocent party through the subtraction of power points, merely for having played a football game against a team that forfeited due to the opposing team's having played an ineligible player. Petitioner submits that the power points subtracted from its record as a result of having played against a forfeiting team thus constitute arbitrary action on the Association's part.

Second, even assuming arguendo that the rules of the Association make plain that power points will be deducted from teams playing against a forfeiting team, and also assuming arguendo that such rule is not arbitrary and capricious, Petitioner submits that any such calculation could not have been done after the widely advertised cutoff date of November 15, 1993. Petitioner submits that the purpose of the cutoff date is to provide repose to the membership and also to provide for exchange of game tapes and practice time for teams selected for the play-offs. Petitioner submits that if the Association seeks to bend its own rules by extending the cutoff to take into account the discovery of violations by teams thereafter, it should accommodate Elmwood Park by permitting it to participate in the play-offs because it did no wrong and therefore should not be penalized by the violations of another team.

As a final thought at oral argument, Petitioner contended that to uphold Respondent's elimination of Elmwood Park from the football play-offs is unfair to the pupils not only because it did no wrong, but also because it sends the message to students that "snitching" on another team (as it claims Pascack Hills is guilty of in reporting to the Association that the ineligible player from Paterson Catholic played in a fourth game, which discovery resulted in its rival, Elmwood Park, being eliminated from play-off competition) is appropriate sportsmanship.

Based upon such arguments, Petitioner adds an alternative remedy to that advanced in its Petition. Petitioner seeks cancellation of its Thanksgiving football game and instead substitution of a runoff game between it and Pascack Hills on November 27, 1993.

Respondent rebuts Petitioner's claims that it has met the standards for the granting of Emergent Relief. It urges that there is an absence of irreparable injury, contending that the cases in New Jersey are legion which establish the principle that participation in interscholastic sports is a privilege, rather than a right. Burnside et al. v. N.J.S.I.A.A., 1984 S.L.D. 1677, aff'd N.J. Superior Court 1695, cert. den. 101 N.J. 236 (1985) Participation in such sports is subject to the requirements and other pre-conditions established by the Association. In the instant matter, participation in the play-off is totally voluntary and there is no protectable expectation for any school that it would be allowed to participate in championship competition.

Respondent further argues that until the week of November 15, 1993, there could be no expectancy on the part of Petitioner that it would be assured placement in the football championship. As to this, it stresses that participation in the championships is subject to the promulgated rules of the Association and that even if the most liberal interpretation is given to the term "irreparable harm," it would be impossible to conclude that the replacement of Petitioner by Intervenor constituted that requisite condition for Emergent Relief. It is Respondent's position that the sum total of any "harm" visited on Petitioner was the disclosure of an ineligible player by an opponent two days after the announcement of NJSIAA on November 15, 1993 that it had qualified for the play-offs.

Respondent also avers that Petitioner has no substantial likelihood of success on the merits, emphasizing that the Commissioner and the courts have uniformly held that they will not interfere with decisions by the NJSIAA, unless there is a violation of its controlling bylaws or rules and regulations. It contends that the case law stands for the proposition that the Commissioner will not substitute her judgment for the Association's "unless compelling reasons are provided in the record for her to do so." Board of Education of the Township of Verona v. N.J.S.I.A.A., 1990 S.L.D. 287

Respondent cites numerous case law which have upheld the application of its rules relative to forfeitures for the playing of ineligible players with resultant changes to the power rankings. Board of Education of Northern Highlands Regional High School District v. N.J.S.I.A.A. et al., decided by Commissioner November 18, 1982, aff'd N.J. Superior Court October 17, 1984; Board of Education of North Arlington et al.. v. N.J.S.I.A.A., 1983 S.L.D. 1221; Board of Education of Greater Egg Harbor Regional High School District v. N.J.S.I.A.A., 1983 S.L.D. 649; Board of Education of Hunterdon Central Regional High School District v. N.J.S.I.A.A. et al., decided by the Commissioner November 22, 1985. It also points to Board of Education of the South Orange-Maplewood School District v. N.J.S.I.A.A., 1986 S.L.D. 2765, wherein the Commissioner's ruling that exclusion of a soccer team from championship competition for violation of rules by an assistant coach was stayed by the Appellate Division and the Supreme Court.

Respondent deems as most controlling the decision in Cliffside Park Public High School District v. N.J.S.I.A.A., decided by the Commissioner November 16, 1984, which contested the interpretation of the football regulations by NJSIAA. In reaching his decision sustaining NJSIAA, the Commissioner took note of the fact that the challenging school had signed a Verification Card, accepting the very regulations and interpretations which it challenged. The Verification Card referred to in Cliffside Park contains the identical language as that signed by Elmwood Park High School.

It is Respondent's further contention that Petitioner would have the Commissioner provide an entirely different interpretation to page 1 of the football regulations which reads:

> Games forfeited for any reason will count as wins or losses for the respective schools.

As to this, Respondent contends that to accept Petitioner's interpretation of the application of forfeitures would lead to an absurd result of according Paterson Catholic a 5-3 win/loss record for purposes of power ranking, but only a 3-5 record for purposes of Paterson Catholic's own qualification for championship play. It avers that Petitioner's argument that its power ranking should be unaffected by Paterson Catholic's forfeitures is both contradictory and illogical.

As to the argument that "innocent third parties" should not be affected by forfeitures uncovered after the cutoff date, Respondent urges that such date is only intended to establish the calendar framework by which time at least eight regular season games must be played to qualify for championship play. As set forth in the Affidavit of Executive Director Sands, the date is also intended to allow at least one week for schools competing in the semi-finals to prepare to play each other by exchanging game films, etc. Respondent further urges that to argue that the announced contestants on November 15 cannot be in any way affected by uncovering even egregious violations of the rules is likewise absurd.

Respondent emphasizes that it acted promptly in enforcing the football regulations and its eligibility rules. Of this, it states:

> In this case, the NJSIAA acted promptly in enforcing both the Football Championship Regulations and its own eligibility rules. When it was advised as of November 15 that Paterson Catholic had used an ineligible player in its win on October 16 against Saddle Brook, it adjusted Paterson Catholic's win/loss record from 5-3 to 4-4. When the use of an ineligible player for Paterson Catholic's October 23 win against Waldwick was uncovered two days later, it properly adjusted Paterson Catholic's record win/loss record from 4-4 to 3-5. On the very day that Sister Gloria Perez was writing the NJSIAA about this latest development (Exhibit D and E), the NJSIAA was providing a detailed explanation by telefax to Elmwood Park (Exhibit G and H). Because of the belated change in the contestants for the North Jersey, Section One, Group II championship, the NJSIAA postponed the contests between the number one seed (Ridgefield Park) and the number four seed (Pascack Hills, replacing Elmwood Park) until December 4, 1993, with a championship contest for the Group to be conducted on December 11.
> (Respondent's Brief, at p. 21)

Respondent avers that to grant Petitioner's request to expand the number of qualifying teams would be both unprecedented and in violation of the championship regulations. It points out that the regulations allow for such an expansion only in the event there is a team with an untied and undefeated record which has a power ranking that places it in a fifth position or below.

Respondent further urges that if preliminary relief is granted, it will harm Pascack Hills and other NJSIAA member schools. It vehemently rejects any suggestion of ill motivation on the part of Intervenor and argues that to remove Pascack from the play-offs would be unjust and in violation of the football regulations, which require that the four schools with the highest power ranking qualify within each section and group.

Finally, Respondent urges that the extraordinary relief sought by Petitioner would disserve the public interest. It points to the strong policy for the Commissioner not to interfere with the conduct of NJSIAA championships in the absence of an express violation of a statute or rules and avers that to alter that strong policy would be to open the flood gates to similar challenges as herein. It believes that this would destabilize a voluntary system of sports regulation for parochial and public schools which has been functioning effectively for decades.

During the conference call of November 23, 1993, Pascack Hills' counsel indicated its accord with the arguments advanced by Respondent. It also stressed, among other things, that in no way can improper motivation be impuned to it as a result of reporting the fourth violation to NJSIAA.

COMMISSIONER'S DETERMINATION

Upon careful review of the record of this matter, the Assistant Commissioner denies emergent relief finding Petitioner has failed to meet the standards for such extraordinary remedy as established by Crowe v. DeGioia, supra. At the outset, she stresses that it is well-established that participation in extracurricular sports is a privilege, not a right, which is subject to requirements and other pre-conditions established by NJSIAA. Burnside, supra As noted in Respondent's brief, participation in football play-offs is totally voluntary, with no protectable expectation for any school to participate in championship competition. Thus, the Assistant Commissioner finds Petitioner has advanced no showing of irreparable harm in this matter warranting the extraordinary relief sought.

Moreover, Petitioner has demonstrated no likelihood of prevailing on the merits of this case. The regulations are clear that forfeitures count as losses. To suggest that the losses are not counted in calculating power points is ludicrous. The fact that there is no explicit language in the regulations to this effect is of no moment because no other interpretation of the regulation is possible other than that advanced by NJSIAA.

Moreover, the Assistant Commissioner fully concurs that the Commissioner and the courts have long held that she cannot substitute her judgment for that of NJSIAA with respect to its rules and regulations unless there is a clear violation of the bylaws, rules or regulations or NJSIAA has acted in a patently arbitrary manner in interpreting or enforcing its regulations, factors which are not present in this matter.

As to the issue of being informed after November 15, 1993, the Assistant Commissioner is in full agreement with Respondent that to do as Petitioner suggests, i.e., no altering of power ranking if violations are ascertained after the cutoff date, would permit the Association to turn a blind eye to violation of the very rules which member districts have agreed to abide by and uphold. Moreover, in terms of championship play-off participation, member districts -- including Petitioner -- also signed the Verification Card which further attests to schools' agreement to abide by the football regulations. If Petitioner feels aggrieved with the rules as interpreted by NJSIAA with respect to forfeitures on calculating power ranking, its recourse is to seek change to those regulations through the appropriate procedures agreed to by the membership. Cliffside Park, supra

Also, the Assistant Commissioner agrees that ill motivation by Pascack Hills has not been shown. All member districts have an obligation by their voluntary participation in NJSIAA to report alleged violations of the Association's bylaws, rules and regulations whenever learning of such allegations.

Finally, as to the alternative relief sought by Petitioner, i.e., a runoff game, such relief is denied, given Petitioner's failure to meet the standards for the grant of the extraordinary relief Petitioner seeks herein.

Accordingly, the Motion for Emergent Relief is denied. Further, there being no outstanding issues remaining to be resolved, the motion and petition are hereby dismissed, with prejudice.

For Petitioner, Barbara Burghardt, pro se

For Respondent Segall and the Board, Mark G. Sullivan (Sullivan & Sullivan)

This matter was opened before the Commissioner by way of a Petition of Appeal and request for Emergent Relief filed by petitioner on November 12, 1993.

Petitioner seeks a formal reprimand from the Commissioner to the Mahway Board of Education and Principal Segall for activities they have undertaken in connection with the upcoming December 1, 1993 $25 million referendum involving construction of public school space and additionally seeks an immediate stay of any further activities in this regard. Specifically, petitioner objects to a series of four published Referendum Advisorys, a letter from the high school principal which contained an absentee ballot application and voter registration form along with an excerpt from the first Referendum Advisory, and materials of a parents' organization, BEST (Building an Educationally Sound Tomorrow), which has been utilizing school children to deliver flyers home which inform parents of its meetings. Petitioner contends these activities/materials have constituted an impermissible use of public funds for the purpose of promoting the passage of the referendum in contravention of the law, public policy, and the public trust.

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on November 12, 1993 and heard by the ALJ on November 17, 1993. Board's response papers were received at OAL and included an Answer, Brief in opposition to Motion for Emergent Relief and an affidavit of Stuart D. Salkin, Assistant Superintendent of Schools in Mahwah Township. Such documents denied the allegations of petitioner and maintained that the four issues of the Referendum Advisory which were published are overwhelmingly factual in nature and because of the large amount of money actually involved in the capital school project referendum, $24,950,610, the Board has an obligation to expend reasonable time, effort and money to provide taxpayers with the relevant facts concerning the proposed referendum question. Further, the Board avers that petitioner has not met the burden imposed by Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982) as she has not established irreparable harm.

On November 18, 1993 the initial decision was faxed to the Commissioner and on November 22, 1993 the record, including the audiotapes, was received from OAL. Petitioner filed no exceptions. The Board's exceptions were timely filed by midday Wednesday, November 24, 1993. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:4-34, Assistant Commissioner Elena Scambio was designated by the Commissioner to decide the matter.

The Board's exceptions argued that it believed that at the hearing the ALJ indicated that three of the four Referendum Advisorys issued by the Board, Issues 1, 2, and 3, really did not cross the line between advocacy and informational literature as established by Citizens & c., Public Funds v. Board of Education of Parsippany-Troy Hills, 13 N.J. 172 (1953). The Board additionally recalls that the ALJ's decision on Advisory Issue 4 was a "close call." It argues that this Advisory which contained certain statements dealing with real estate values and schools does nothing more than tell the taxpayer that the quality of the school system affects more than just those taxpayers whose students are being educated therein. Consequently, the Board urges that the ALJ erred when he issued a restraining order.

Upon independent review of the record in this matter of injunctive relief, including the audiotapes of the proceedings before the Administrative Law Judge, the Assistant Commissioner concurs with the finding of the ALJ in his initial decision that this is a very close call and that only by erring on the side of preserving the integrity of the system can one come to the conclusion that the Board acted improperly. She, therefore, finds and determines as did the ALJ that the Board's four Referendum Advisorys, although not of the egregious nature of Fenton et al. v. Sullivan et al., 1991 S.L.D. 677, they do, taken in totality, go beyond a mere factual presentation and create the impression that voters should vote for the school budget.

Accordingly, the recommended initial decision granting emergent relief in this matter is adopted. The Board is hereby enjoined from using public money to publish or distribute any materials which have the appearance of advocating a particular position on the upcoming bond referendum.

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Board appealed General Fund tax levy reductions in the amount of $494,110 made by governing body following voter rejection of proposed budget on April 20, 1993.

Upon review of the appeal herein to determine whether Board demonstrated that restoration of specific line item reductions was necessary in order to provide a thorough and efficient system of education in the district, Commissioner determined to restore $371,500.

Board also appealed General Fund cap waiver in the amount of $1,072,749 rejected by voters, $79,410 of which was reduced by the governing body.

Upon review of the record, Commissioner determined to order the increase of $52,000 in cap waiver monies for a total General Fund tax levy of $10,519,210 for 1993-94 school year.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF SOUTH RIVER, PETITIONER, V. MAYOR AND COUNCIL OF THE BOROUGH OF SOUTH RIVER, MIDDLESEX COUNTY, RESPONDENT, - - - - - - - - - - - - - - - - - - IN THE MATTER OF THE CAP WAIVER APPEAL OF THE BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF SOUTH RIVER, MIDDLESEX COUNTY.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION DECISION

Robert A. Blanda, Esq., for Petitioner

Frank J. Paprota, Jr., Esq., for Respondent

This consolidated matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education on June 3, 1993 through the filing of a Petition of Appeal of a defeated school budget by the South River Board of Education (Board) pursuant to the provisions of N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.1 et seq. and a Petition of Appeal of its defeated cap waiver. An Answer to the petitions was filed on June 23 by the Mayor and Council (Council). An amendment to the Petition of Appeal setting forth the amounts in dispute both as to the General Fund tax levy and the cap waiver was filed by the Board on June 15, 1993 with an Answer to same being received by the Commissioner on July 28, 1993.

Position papers were filed by the respective parties and the Board filed a response to the aforesaid position statement by the Council. Further, as a result of the State Board of Education's July 7, 1993 decision in Board of Education of the Borough of Rutherford v. Mayor and Council of Rutherford wherein the State Board ruled that decisions in defeated voter cap waiver appeals must determine whether or not reallocation within the district's maximum permissible budget is possible and whether and to what extent the specific programs at issue are essential in order to enable the Board to meet its constitutional obligation to provide a thorough and efficient system of education, a letter was sent to the parties by the Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes informing them of the need to supplement the record to document the reallocation and cap waiver review conducted by the county superintendent pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-27. The county superintendent was accorded thirty (30) days from receipt of the letter to submit a sworn affidavit setting forth an explanation and documentation of that review, including the bases for concluding that (1) reallocation within the district's maximum permissible budget for the 1993-94 school year was not possible and (2) the specific programs at issue were essential for the Board to provide a thorough and efficient system of education to its students.

The governing body and Board were provided twenty (20) days from receipt of the county superintendent's submission to file a response thereto.

The county superintendent's affidavit and supportive documentation was received on September 14, 1993 and the Council filed a response to the county superintendent's affidavit on October 15, 1993, which also responded to the Board's filing of September 13. On October 18, 1993 an addendum to the October 15, 1993 response was filed by Council. These latter two filings were received well beyond the designated submission date so that they are consequently deemed untimely and barred from consideration herein. On October 22, 1993 a copy of the complete line item budget was received at which time the record closed. Subsequent to the close of the record a letter from the Board objecting to any consideration being given to the October 15 and October 18 filings, which were both out of time and not properly served on the Board, was received on November 17, 1993.

On April 20, 1993 the voters of the Borough of South River defeated the Board's General Fund tax levy and a proposed cap waiver which had been approved by the Middlesex County Superintendent as being necessary for the provision of a thorough and efficient system of education.

The specific line item accounts for the T&E cap waiver were as follows:

	TOTAL VOTER'S T&E CAP WAIVER	$1,072,749

Subsequent to the defeat of the budget by the voters, the Board and Council pursuant to the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37 consulted on the defeated budget whereupon the Council reduced the basic budget General Fund tax levy by $494,110. In addition to the aforesaid reduction in the basic budget tax levy, the Council also reduced the $1,072,749 proposed cap waiver by $79,410, an action which is outside the scope of the authority of the Council to consider and carry out since the authority to authorize appropriations above and beyond the maximum permitted budget lies exclusively with the Commissioner of Education. The net effect of the Council's unauthorized action was to certify an amount for the General Fund tax levy which was actually in excess of the General Fund tax levy proposed by the voters as set forth below:

General Fund Tax Levy Proposed to Voters:	$ 9,596,481
T&E Cap Waiver Question:	$ 1,072,749
Total Proposed Tax Levy:	$10,669,230
Tax Levy Certified by Governing Body:	$10,095,710
Less Reductions to Budget	$ 494,110
Less Reductions to Cap	79,410
Total	$ 573,520

As a result of the unauthorized actions by the Council in this matter, the Commissioner shall only consider the Council's $494,110 reduction in the basic budget as part of the budget appeal in this consolidated matter. The total $1,072,749 cap waiver proposal also defeated by the voters will be reviewed by the Commissioner along with the basic budget to determine whether all items as recommended by the County Superintendent in authorizing the cap waiver proposal are required for the provision of a thorough and efficient education and whether reductions in the cap waiver proposals can be accomplished through reallocations in the basic budget as required by the standards established by the State Board of Education in Rutherford, supra. The reductions in the cap waiver proposal recommended by the Council shall be considered as that body's input into the Commissioner's cap waiver review.

DEFEATED BUDGET

STANDARD OF REVIEW

In rendering judgment relative to budgetary appeals, the Commissioner notes that the Constitution of the State of New Jersey requires the Legislature to provide for a thorough and efficient system of education. The Legislature by way of statutory scheme has delegated the responsibility for providing such thorough and efficient system to local boards of education. Additionally, the Legislature pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9, 22-14, 22-17 and 22-37 has authorized the Commissioner of Education to review and decide appeals by boards of education seeking restoration of budgetary reductions imposed by local governing bodies. (See also Board of Education of East Brunswick Township v. Township Council of East Brunswick, 48 N.J. 94 (1966) and Board of Education of Deptford Township v. Mayor and Council of Deptford Township, 116 N.J. 305 (1989).)

In reviewing such appeals, the Commissioner must determine whether a district board of education has demonstrated that the amount by which a specific line item reduction imposed by the governing body is necessary for the provision of a thorough and efficient system of education.

The specific line item reductions and the reasons for such reductions as contained in the Council's Answer are set forth below:

Account Number	Item	Board's Proposal	Governing Body's Recommendation
11-000-230-331	Legal Services	$60,000.00	Reduce $13,800.00

This budget item is based upon the Board Attorney being paid at an hourly rate of $130.00. Based upon a review of available legal services and the prevailing hourly rate, this amount appears excessive and unjustified. The governing body believes that more than adequate legal [counsel] can be obtained at an hourly rate not in excess of $100.00. The above reduction will allow for the provision of the same number of hours of legal services at this hourly rate. This reduction would not deprive the students within the district from a thorough and efficient education.

11-190-100-640 Textbooks $188,610.00 Reduce $118,610.00

The amount budgeted in this line item is not justified based upon the data submitted to the governing body by the school board or by the Board's previous expenditures. Although the Board has made reference to a 5 year replacement program, prior budgets do not support a commitment by the Board to such a program. Additionally, the amount appropriated in this budget would allow every student to receive a new textbook. Accordingly, the governing body recommends that this item be increased over 10% of the 1992-93 expenditures, which amount would adequately account for present inflation, and which would not deprive the students within the district from a thorough and efficient education.

11-000-310-600 Food Services: Supplies & Materials $10,000.00 Reduce $4,000.00

The Board has consistently appropriated more than it has expended in this line item. Based upon the data supplied to the governing body by the Board, it appears that the Board has again significantly over-budgeted for this item. In light of the history of expenditures in this line item and the Board's current data as to anticipated expenditures, the current appropriation is unjustified. Therefore, the governing body recommends a 5% increase in this item over the 1992-93 expenditures. This reduction would not deprive the students within the district from a thorough and efficient education.

11-000-290-242 Other Retirement Contributions $138,000.00 Reduce $89,000.00

The Board has budgeted the sum of $89,000.00 for funding an Early Retirement Incentive Program. The Board has indicated that such a program is not currently in effect in the district, nor does the Board anticipate instituting such a program in the future. Accordingly, the budgeting of this sum is unjustified. This reduction would not deprive the students within the district from a thorough and efficient education

11-000-290-250 Unemployment Comp. $35,000.00 Reduce $35,000.00

The Board has not appropriated any sums for this item in previous years. The Board had also indicated that in the 1993-94 school year there are no plans for layoffs. In addition, the Board has indicated that there are sufficient funds in its Trust Fund to cover any unanticipated expenditures in this area. Accordingly, an appropriation in this category is unjustified. This reduction would not deprive the students within the district from a thorough and efficient education.

Account Number	Item	Board's Proposal	Governing Body's Recommendation
11-000-260-520	Insurance	$416,668.00	Reduce $36,000.00

The Board has provided the governing body with data concerning all of the Board's lines of coverage, together with its estimates of premium costs. Based upon this data, $36,000.00 of the budgeted amount is unaccounted for, and therefore, appears unjustified. Therefore, the governing body recommends that this item be reduced accordingly. This reduction would not deprive the students within the district from a thorough and efficient education.

11-000-100-566 11-000-100-568	Tuition Payments	$825,000.00	Reduce $33,500.00

Based upon the data provided by the Board, the current tuition rate per student is a maximum of $21,161.00. Assuming a 10% increase in tuition rates for the 1993-94 school year, and given the Board's projection of the number of students to be sent out of district, the appropriate sum to be budgeted for this item is $791,421.00. Therefore, a reduction of $33,500.00 is recommended. This reduction would not deprive the students within the district from a thorough and efficient education.

11-140-100-101	Instruction-Regular Program	$1,814,150.00	Reduce $48,000.00
11-000-290-290	Other Employee Benefits	$1,504,800.00	Reduce $15,000.00

This item includes appropriation for two (2) new teachers at the South River High School. Based upon the enrollment and class size projections given the governing body by the board, it appears that the existing faculty can provide all students with a thorough and efficient education. Therefore, it is recommended that the High School faculty not be expanded. This reduction would not deprive the students within the district from a thorough and efficient education.

11-120-100-101	Instruction-	$1,461,456.00	Reduce $27,600.00
11-130-100-101	Regular Program	$1,062,034.00	Reduce $73,600.00

The governing body's recommendation is based upon a review of the Board's existing rosters of personnel, for which the Board indicated that are no planned changes. Factoring in raises at each step grade, a reasonable contract rate increase, and a liberal allowance for absenteeism, the amounts budgeted in the above two items should be reduced by the amount recommended. This reduction will allow for all reasonable and anticipated salary increases and an absentee rate of six (6) teachers per day throughout the school year. This reduction would not deprive the students within the district from a thorough and efficient education.

Total Reductions to Basic Budget	$494,110

COMMISSIONER'S DETERMINATION

The Commissioner has carefully reviewed all the evidence and arguments submitted by the parties in support of their respective positions. The Commissioner's review of the arguments relative to line item reductions and her conclusions on each are set forth below:

Account	Reduction
11-000-230-331 - Legal Services	$13,800

The Council argues that the reduction imposed in this account is based upon a proposed savings of $30 per hour for legal services which the Council believes can be effectuated by hiring legal counsel at a rate of $100 per hour as opposed to the current rate of $130 per hour. The Council contends that the $60,000 budgeted for legal services in 1993-94 exceeds the amount appropriated in 1992-93 ($24,000) by 150%, nor could the 1993-94 proposed appropriation be justified by the Board through a listing of projected litigation.

The Board argues that it has expended $52,000 in legal fees in 1992-93 with $16,000 still outstanding representing $68,000 already encumbered for 1992-93 with two months remaining in the school year. In response to the Council's argument relating to previous appropriations, the Board points out that the amount appropriated in 1991-92 was $24,000 but actual audited expenditures were $62,565.

In light of the actual expenditure experience of the Board, the Commissioner finds that the amount appropriated for legal services in 1993-94 is consistent with past expenditures. The $13,800 reduction in this account is restored.

Account	Reduction
11-190-100-640 - Textbooks	$118,610

The Council contends that it has urged the Board to expend its full appropriations for textbooks after defeat of the 1992-93 budget. The Council sets forth the following expenditures for textbooks by the South River Board:

1990-91	$44,382
1991-92	$62,776
1992-93	$46,903

Given the figures cited above, the Council contends that the $118,610 proposed expenditure in 1993-94 constitutes a 267% increase over the three year coverage.

Council contends that previous budget deliberations with the Board revealed an alleged five year replacement cycle yet the Board's submission in its Statement of Position would seem to indicate that no such practice was in place.

The Council further argues that the need to budget for such a large increase indicates past mismanagement of this account for which the taxpayers should not be required to bear the burden. The Council also points out that the value of a textbook, not its copyright date, should be the determination in a replacement decision.

The Council also disputes the Board's contention that the textbook account increase is justified by the increased enrollment acknowledged by the Commissioner in granting a Commissioner's Cap Waiver. Using such logic, contends the Council, would attribute a 302% increase in textbook expenditures to a 4% increase in student population resulting in a $141,707 per pupil expenditure for the 64 student increase.

The Board contends that the textbook account was cut by almost $16,000 in 1992-93 from the 1991-92 actual audited amount purchased. It further contends it had imposed spending moratoriums in each of the past two years disrupting the district's five year replacement cycle. It believes that any further extension of the revision cycle would negatively impact on the elementary and middle school programs. The Board also offers a list of textbooks with copyright dates as evidence that 57% of its textbooks exceed the five year replacement cycle policy. (See Exhibit 3C of Board's Reply to Council's position.)

The Commissioner after carefully reviewing the arguments of the parties directs the restoration of $50,000 of the $118,610 by which the Council has reduced this account. While the Council's argument as to the value of a book as a learning tool being the most significant measure of whether it should be replaced is not without merit, said argument ignores the fact that books wear out and must be replaced regardless of their copyright date. It is a well established practice in school administration to replace books on a five year cycle since such period of time represents the average life of a textbook before it totally disintegrates from use and abuse. Therefore, while books may have continued value beyond five years, they do not physically last for longer periods of time. However, the Commissioner also concludes that to do the entire revision in the 1993-94 school year is not required, especially in light of the fact that to do so means nearly tripling the appropriation in this account.

Account	Reduction
11-000-310-600 - Food Services: Supplies and Materials	$4,000

The Council sets forth the following Board expenditure figures as justification for the reduction in this account:

	Budget	Expended
1990-91	$ 5,000	$4,635.34
1991-92	10,000	3,552.00
1992-93	10,000	Unknown

The Council contends it is unaware of any new supplies or materials contemplated for 1993-94. The Council argues that, in the absence of justification for the increase in proposed appropriations by the Board, the $6,000 appropriation remaining after the reduction imposed is more than sufficient based upon past expenditures.

The Board argues that it has operated its Food Service program on a "band aid" basis putting off needed repairs. The $10,000 proposed appropriation for 1993-94 is designed to meet existing supply and repair needs neglected in the past.

The Board further argues that since neither its elementary schools nor its middle school have cafeteria facilities, food has to be transported from the high school requiring equipment to maintain proper temperature. Since there has been no money in the past to meet replacement requirements of heating and food storage equipment, repairs have been the only alternative. The Board offers as evidence of the tightness of its budgetary situation a series of letters under Exhibit X of its Reply Statement which indicate moritoria on all purchase orders without specific authorization from the School Business Administrator and the Superintendent.

After careful consideration of the arguments of the parties, the Commissioner concludes that the Board has failed to meet its burden of demonstrating that it is unable to appropriately meet its needs to provide for food services for its student population with the $6,000 appropriation remaining. The $4,000 reduction in this account is sustained.

Account	Reduction
11-000-290-242 - Other Retirement Contributions	$89,000

The Council argues that, since the Board has not adopted the early retirement incentive, nothing should have been budgeted in this account except contributions to the retirement funds for persons not under TPAF. The Council contends that the only justification provided by the Board was a $49,000 expenditure for retirement, vacation and sick pay to the superintendent and to pay accumulated vacation and sick pay to any other retiring personnel. No list was provided to the Council.

The Council contends that its cut of the balance of $89,000 in this account was predicated on its belief that the payments to other retiring staff members could be accommodated through the general salary accounts since all staff were accorded raises called for in the 1993-94 salary guide at existing staffing levels. The Council contends that the Board provides no indications of savings due to retirement nor does it identify specific costs for sick or vacation pay. Further, the Council contends that earlier representations by the Board make no mention of suits pending which could result in retroactive salary payments.

The Board concedes that it did not adopt an early retirement plan. The Board identifies the superintendent, the superintendent's executive secretary, three teachers and a field person as those to whom sick and vacation pay would be allocated from this account. Additionally, the Board asserts that per diem payments owed to the superintendent and his executive secretary are to be paid from this account. The Board additionally contends that this account also contains money set aside for retroactive pay which may result from two law suits with which it is involved.

After careful consideration of the arguments of the parties the Commissioner, while finding merit in the Council's argument as to what should appropriately be budgeted in this account, directs the restoration of the $89,000 reduction in this account with admonishment to the Board for its failure to appropriately designate the specific amounts which are owed to each of the persons involved and the nature of the law suits pending. Despite such admonishment, the Commissioner recognizes that the Board must provide for pension contributions for all of its non-professional staff not included under TPAF even if the Board has done a poor job in delineating the specific amounts of such contributions, as well as the specific amounts of its other obligations. Given those circumstances and the tight nature of the surplus available, it would be irresponsible to reduce this account by $89,000.

11-000-290-250 - Unemployment Compensation $35,000

The Council contends that the Board's arguments in this area miss the mark and contends that the quarterly payments which accompany form UC-27 are not the Board's money but the money withheld from employees. It further argues that the decision of the Board as to the necessity of including appropriations in the 1993-94 budget should have been based upon a review of the sufficiency of the Trust Fund balance to cover reimbursements through June 30, 1991. The Trust Fund Balance as of 1990-91 was $225,610.14 which the Council contends is sufficient to pay 17.28 years of benefits at maximum rates without any appropriations for 1993-94.

The Board argues that Unemployment Compensation was not a previous budget item because the district was on the reimbursement method but recent changes in the unemployment laws include coverage for job retraining and health care funding. The Board contends it has been remitting money to unemployment on a quarterly basis. The laying off of 19 lunchroom aides, two special education teachers and three aides negatively impacts the district's unemployment compensation rate. The Board offers a memo from Assistant Commissioner for Finance Davis as its justification for providing an increase in the employer appropriations in the operating budget to replace the depletion of the balances in its Trust Fund.

Notwithstanding the arguments raised by the Council, the Commissioner directs the restoration of the $35,000 appropriation in this account based upon the advice provided to local districts by Assistant Commissioner Davis and the Commissioner's recognition that the layoffs delineated above would seriously deplete the unemployment reserve fund.

Account	Reduction
11-000-260-520 - Insurance	$36,000

The Council sets forth a listing on page 11 of its Position Statement of the composition of this line item. It points out that $36,000 of the approximate $416,000 proposed as an appropriation in this account was for creating a surplus to add to its purported slim surplus of $19,000. The Council expresses astonishment that a governmental body would deliberately budget to build a surplus.

The Board acknowledges its budgeting of $36,000 specifically for the purpose of building a surplus to guard against contingencies.

Upon review of the arguments of the parties and the special circumstances which prevail in this matter, the Commissioner has determined to restore the $36,000 by which this account has been reduced by the Council. While the Commissioner would normally view the practice of specifically budgeting for the creation of surplus as being unfair to the taxpayers of the community, she must recognize in this case that the position in which the Board finds itself at present is an outgrowth, as admitted by the Council, of having been so solicitous of taxpayer sentiment as to have unwisely appropriated virtually all its surplus, save $19,000, in order to keep down the tax rate. In good conscience, the Commissioner cannot leave the district in such dire circumstances.

Account	Reduction
11-000-100-566 - Tuition Payments 11-000-100-568	$33,500

The Council based its proposed reduction in this account by using the 1992-93 tuition expenditures estimated by the School Business Administrator at $656,000 and currently enrolled out-of-district placements of 31 students. This calculation yielded an average tuition rate of $21,161 per student which the Council increased by 10%.

The Board contends that it has, as of April 30, 1993, transferred into this account an additional $70,000. The Board further points out that the amount budgeted on line 11-000-100-568 is for students in state facilities, tuition for which is set by the State and deducted from state aid. The Board points out the difficulty of projecting the number of students who might be placed during the 1993-94 school year beyond the 34 already projected.

Given the unpredictability of special education placements and tuition, this account is one fraught with potential danger if underbudgeted. In light of this factor and the Board's past experience of having to transfer money into this account in the past, the Commissioner directs the restoration of the $33,500 in this account.

Account	Reduction
11-140-100-101 - Salaries of Teachers 9-12	$48,000
11-000-290-290 - Other Employee Benefits	$15,000

The Council contends that its review of class size indicates that English class sizes ranged from 9-27 and math class between 6-26. The Council argues that, given the wide range existing between class sizes, more effective scheduling coverage could be achieved without increasing staff.

The Board contends that increasing enrollment necessitates the hiring of two additional teachers. Its enrollment for 1993-94 based upon what it claims to be actual schedules for grades 9-12 is 494, some 33 more than projected by the Council. The Board contends that enrollment in English and mathematics classes has increased by 61 and 52 students respectively between 1991-92 and 1992-93. Without the two projected teachers the Board contends that these programs would have to accommodate 37 students in each set of classes.

After review of the respective arguments presented by the parties the Commissioner directs the restoration of $48,000 for two additional teachers and $15,000 in benefits attendant thereto. The Commissioner finds the argument as to the range of class size as presented by the Council to be based upon lack of understanding that certain extremely small class sizes may be either the result of classes such as advanced placement or remedial classes mandated by law. Given the need for the Board to meet the needs of all of its students, mere rescheduling cannot relieve the problems created by classes of such nature.

Account	Reduction
11-120-100-101 - Instruction	$27,600
11-130-100-101 - Regular Program	73,600

The Council contends that the Board has provided for an amount in excess of the 3% found in the salary account for teacher raises. The Council justifies its salary reductions by virtue of the following projections:

	1-5	6-8	Total
1993-94 Sal. Before Neg. Adj.	$1,336,072 103%	$919,620 103%	$2,255,363
1992-94 Sal. With 3% Provision for Substitutes	1,376,154 57,700	947,209 41,225	2,323,363 98,925
Total Deemed Necessary	$1,433,854	$988,434	$2,422,288
Amount Budgeted	1,461,456	1,062,034	2,523,490
Cuts	$ 27,602	$ 73,600	$ 101,202

It points out that the Board provided for raise amounts in addition to the 3% in its insurance account.

The Council further projects that the district has 57 teaching slots in its elementary and middle schools. Using a rate for substitutes of $90 per day and a 180 day school year, the provision for substitutes comes out to six substitutes per day or an absentee rate of 10%.

The Board argues that its substitute rate is actually 12.5 substitutes per day and presents as Schedule 12A and 12B of its position statement records of two days purportedly selected at random to support its contentions.

The Commissioner upon review of the arguments of the parties finds that the Board has failed to adequately document what its actual experience relative to substitutes has been. The two dates which it uses are not really randomly selected but are two consecutive dates. Further, had the Board attempted to do so, it could have provided data from previous years as to its average daily teacher absentee rate. Failure to do so calls into question the validity of its contentions as to the average rate which it purports to be almost twice that projected by the Council. Notwithstanding the above, the Commissioner is deeply aware of the precarious nature of this district's surplus, therefore she directs that a reduction of $50,000 be sustained and $51,200 be restored.

	Total	$122,610	$371,500

In summary the Commissioner finds and determines that of the $494,110 General Fund tax levy reduction imposed by the Council on the 1993-94 budget appropriation, a sum of $122,610 has been sustained. The Commissioner further finds and determines that the remaining amount of $371,500 is essential to enable the Board to provide a thorough and efficient system of education.

It is therefore ordered that the Middlesex County Board of Taxation increase the local school tax levy for the 1993-94 school year in South River by $371,500.

CAP WAIVER

In setting forth its position with respect to the cap waiver monies in the amount of $1,072,749, the Board relies on the fact that its cap waiver was thoroughly scrutinized by the county superintendent and the existing cap waiver review process of the Department of Education. Further the Board relies on the fact that the March 26, 1993 letter from Mary Jean Guidette, Middlesex County Superintendent of Schools, granted conditional approval of the 1993-94 budget as being sufficient to provide a thorough and efficient system of education contingent upon inclusion of the amount contained within the voter cap waiver and mandating that any defeat of such cap waiver by the voters be appealed to the Commissioner.

The Council by virtue of its certification of a General Fund tax levy amount greater than that which was requested by the Board, as explained elsewhere in this decision, and by its reduction of only three line items in the cap waiver for a total of $79,410 has actually acceded to the need for the remaining $993,339 cap waiver request.

While the Commissioner notes that final determination as to the adequacy of the cap waiver review process pursuant to Rutherford, supra, rests with her notwithstanding the input of the parties in this matter, she has, as is pointed out earlier in this decision, afforded both parties and the county superintendent opportunity to provide further input. In this regard, the reductions recommended by the Council in its Answer in the cap waiver portion of the budget are set forth below:

Account Number	Item	Board's Proposal	Governing Body's Recommendation
11-402-100-100	Student Body Activities: Salaries	$213,150	Reduce $27,410

The amount proposed by the Board in this line item includes salaries for assistants in various school sponsored athletic programs. Several such programs provide for two (2) or more assistants per program. The governing body has reviewed all such programs having two (2) or more assistants and believes that given the number of students participating in each program, a reduction in one assistant in each such program would not deprive the students within the district from a thorough and efficient education.

11-000-230-890	Administration Misc. Expenditures	$60,000	Reduce $5,000

The amount appropriated by the Board includes the sum of $5,000.00 for Board member attendance at out-of-state conventions and seminars. Although the governing body recognizes the value of attendance at conventions and seminars, it appears to the governing body that those conventions and seminars offered within State are more than sufficient to keep Board members abreast of current events in the field of education, and are sufficient to enable the Board to meet its mandate of providing the students within the district with a thorough and efficient education.

Accordingly, the governing body recommends that the amount budgeted for attendance of out-of-state conventions and seminars should be omitted from the budget.

12-120-730 12-130-730 12-140-730	Equipment 1-5 Equipment 6-8 Equipment 9-12	$99,000	Reduce $47,000

The amount budgeted for equipment purchases in the 1993-94 school year represents a substantial increase in the amount budgeted in this category in previous years. Although the governing body does not question the desirability of having the equipment which the Board contemplates purchasing, the Board has not demonstrated that the purchase of this equipment in the 1993-94 school year is necessary to a thorough and efficient education. Therefore, the governing body recommends that the Board establish a program whereby the desired equipment may be purchased over a period of several years, thereby evenly distributing the cost of same. This reduction would not deprive the students within the district from a thorough and efficient education.

Further, the Commissioner notes that both parties have addressed these line items in their submissions. The positions of the parties and the Commissioner's determination by line item are set forth below:

Account	Reduction
11-402-100-100 - Salaries Student Body Activities	$27,410

The Council concedes that student body activities are an integral part of the learning experience and disapproves of the Board's decision to place the entire account in the cap waiver portion of its budget.

The Council notes that there are 69 positions in the area of student activities, 21 of which it contends have nothing to do with athletics. The Council contends that the total salaries for such 69 positions amounts to $142,155 leaving a balance of $70,995 still remaining from the total appropriation of $213,150. After deducting the salary of the Athletic Director, the Council claims an unexplained balance of $23,666.

The Board argues for restoration on the basis of the need to guarantee safety of those students engaged in athletics claiming that previous years' budgets had reduced the number of assistant coaches.

After review of the arguments presented by the parties, the Commissioner determines that the Council has presented a persuasive argument for reduction of this account by $27,410. While the Board addresses only the issue of assistant coaches, the Council presented superior statistical support for its position.

11-000-230-890 - Administration Misc. Expenditures	$5,000

The Council predicates its recommendation that the reduction is justified on the argument that the Board of Education can obtain the needed orientation and education by attendance at in-state conferences.

The Board counters by contending that the monies are needed for payment to have new Board members attend orientations required by law and presented by the New Jersey School Boards Association. It further contends the $5,000 involved in this account is for attendance by Board members at the New Jersey School Boards Association annual workshops.

Based upon the positions presented and the Commissioner's recognition of both the mandate for orienting new board members and the value of educating all board members in their duties and responsibilities, the arguments of the Council are rejected.

Accounts	Reduction
12-120-730 - Equipment Grades 1-5 12-130-730 - Equipment Grades 6-8 12-140-730 - Equipment Grades 9-12	$47,000

While the Council acknowledges the need for equipment in the educational process, the Council contends that the Board failed to provide adequate detail to assure that the equipment purchased was truly designed to meet the district's needs.

Further, the Council expressed concern that the Board has not pursued a phased policy of purchasing equipment rather than presenting a large request in a single year.

The Board argues that in 1992-93 only $3,000 was spent on new equipment for one school. It contends that its computer lab in its middle school has computers which are so old that parts can only be obtained by cannibalizing other computers. The Board also argues that its computers are so old that they cannot use modern instructional software.

Based upon the specifics forwarded by the Board and the fact that the county superintendent examined this requested expenditure, the Commissioner finds that the Council's position is unpersuasive. The Board cannot be faulted on the one hand for raising the tax rate too high for the 1993-94 year and at the same time be faulted for failure to buy equipment in earlier years because it wished to keep the tax rate within bounds.

As to the balance of the line item accounts within the Board's request, the Commissioner has thoroughly reviewed the specific line items and the amounts which are set forth, ante, in conformity with the standards advanced by the State Board of Education in Rutherford, supra. Based upon that review and the recommendations of the Middlesex County Superintendent which are set forth in the budget review documents submitted in response to the request of Director Keller, as well as the Department of Education's review process, the Commissioner is convinced of the necessity for the cap waiver requested herein, save for the $27,410 referred to earlier, and is likewise convinced that reallocation to achieve the funding of the items that are part of the cap waiver request is not possible within the context of the basic budget. Consequently, the Commissioner finds and determines that a cap waiver in the amount of $1,045,339 for the South River Public Schools be approved as necessary to provide a thorough and efficient system of education.

The Commissioner therefore directs the Middlesex County Board of Taxation to increase the 1993-94 General Fund tax levy from the $10,095,710 originally certified by the Mayor and Council of the Borough of South River to reflect an increase of $423,500 resulting in a total General Fund tax levy for the 1993-94 school year of $10,519,210.*

Tax Levy Certified by Council	$10,095,710
Restored by Commissioner (Defeated Budget)	371,500
Cap Waiver Ordered by Commissioner	52,000
TOTAL	$10,519,210

IT IS SO ORDERED.

DIVISION OF COMPLIANCE, NEW JERSEY STATE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning District appealed audit exception of $2.97 million based on audit of Transportation Program by Department of Education Division of Compliance. Department sought to recover monies by reduction of state aid. Audit exception was taken because bus contracts were not bid in accord with regulations.

ALJ found District failed to comply with the requirements for the proper award of transportation contracts for the 1988-89 school year and should be subject to sanctions. (N.J.A.C. 6:21-19.1(b)) However, since there was no evidence of an improper or dishonest motive for noncompliance, services were provided and District did attempt to remedy its past noncompliance, ALJ found aid should be adjusted rather than withheld. District should not be punished 5 years later by withholding reimbursement in its entirety. ALJ ordered reimbursement of $1.8 million of the $2.97 million withheld.

Commissioner set aside initial decision. Commissioner determined that District admitted its noncompliance which persisted from 1983 through 1991. Noting that the total amount owing for the year in question, 1988-89, was $2,968,953, which represented only slightly more than one half of one percent of the District's budget of nearly a half billion dollars for school year 1993-94, approximately $400,000,000 of which was state aid, Commissioner ordered withholding of the overpayment in state aid for 1994-95. Commissioner further ordered Board to immediately conform its policy concerning busing of special education pupils and its bidding specifications to dictates of law.

BEFORE EDITH KLINGER, ALJ:

On February 14, 1992, the Board of Education of the City of Newark (Board) filed a petition with the Commissioner of the New Jersey Department of Education (Department) seeking reimbursement for pupil transportation provided by the Board during the 1988-89 school year. A Department audit of the Board's pupil transportation program for the 1988-89 school year resulted in an audit exception of $2,968,953 which the Department sought to recover by the reduction of state aid to the Newark school district for the 1992-93 school year. In its answer filed on March 10, 1992, the Department responded that the bidding procedures which the Board used to purchase busing services were in violation of the law and, therefore, the Board is not entitled to reimbursement.

On March 16, 1992, the Department of Education transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

A hearing was held on June 21, 22, and 23, 1993. The record was held open to permit the parties to submit briefs. The record closed when the last submission was received from the parties on August 31, 1993.

BACKGROUND INFORMATION

Under the Education for All Handicapped Children Act of 1975 (EAHCA), 20 U.S.C.A. Sections 1400 to 1485 (P.L. 94-142), now known as the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), handicapped children are entitled to a free and appropriate public education, Federal case law interprets that statutory right as the guarantee of a basic floor of opportunity.

20 U.S.C.A. 1400(c) states that the purpose of the statue is to see that all handicapped students are provided with special education and related services designed to meet their unique needs. 34 C.F.R. 300.13 defines a "related service" as a supportive service as required to assist a child with disabilities to benefit from special education. Transportation is included as a related service.

New Jersey is a recipient of federal funds, available pursuant to the EAHCA, to assist it to fulfill its obligation to provide for the education of its handicapped children. In order to receive the federal grant, a state must adopt "a policy that assures all handicapped children the right to a free and appropriate public education." 20 U.S.C.A. Section 1412(i); Hendrick Hudson Dist. Bd. of Educ. v. Rowley, 458 U.S. 176, 181 (1982). Receipt of funds is conditioned upon the State's compliance with EAHCA requirements. Lascari v. Bd. of Educ. Ramapo Indian Hills Reg. Sch. Dist., 116 *N.J.*30, 33 (1989). Under the federal regulations, the state educational agency, that is, the Department, is responsible for insuring that the right to education for all handicapped children is carried out.

New Jersey codified its obligations under the EAHCA by amending N.J.S.A. 18A, Chapter 46, Classes and Facilities for Handicapped Children. Many of the state's obligations, including the provision of related services, were delegated by statute to the local school districts for implementation. Regulations were promulgated in N.J.A.C. 6, Chapter 28, to clarify the statutory requirements and responsibilities.

Through the statutory and regulatory scheme, the local school districts became, at least in part, subgrantees of the state with respect to federal funds available pursuant to the EAHCA.

STATEMENT OF FACTS

Most of the material facts in this matter are not in dispute. The parties disagree mainly as to the consequences that should follow from the undisputed facts.

N.J.S.A. 18A:58-7, repealed effective July 1, 1990, required the state to pay 90% of the cost of pupil transportation to a district "when the necessity for such transportation and the cost and method thereof have been approved by the county superintendent" of the county in which the district is located.

In 1990, the Department conducted an audit of the Board's Pupil Transportation District-Wide Program Cost Report for the 1988-89 school year. This report determines how much state transportation aid the district will receive. The auditors, in their report dated January 9, 1991, took exception to $2,968,953 in expenditures. The audit determined that this would result in a downward adjustment in the same amount to state aid to the Newark school district for the fiscal year 1992-93.

A school district must award contracts for pupil transportation by advertising for bids. The policy of the state, which has not changed since 1988, is that there be "open, free and competitive bidding" for contracts. N.J.A.C. 6:21-13.1(b). N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-37 states that "contracts which require public advertisement for bids shall be awarded to the lowest responsible bidder." In order to insure that the lowest bid is received, the district is supposed to attract the maximum number of bidders possible for each contract. In the area of pupil transportation, this is achieved by advertising for bids on a "route" rather than on a "bus" basis. If there are a large number of routes to be covered, fewer carriers will have a sufficient number of buses to service all of them. If the routes are advertised individually for bidding, smaller bus companies will be able to compete for the contracts. The competition produced by the increased number of bidders should insure the lowest possible cost of pupil transportation to the district. The Department's requirement that transportation specifications for bidding be prepared to include separate route specifications was first embodied in N.J.A.C. 6:21- 19.1 as amended, effective November 22, 1989.

In the present case, the audit exception was taken because, in 1988, the Newark school district renewed two contracts for busing, which were originally advertised for bidding and awarded in 1983 on a "bus" rather than a "route" basis. With respect to the relevant routes, only two contracts were advertised for bids. The first contained specifications for 82 separate routes; the second contained 30 separate routes. This precluded any bus contractor, who was unable to provide at least 82 or 30 buses respectively, from bidding on the two contracts. The district was, therefore, unable to determine that it had received the most advantageous price because of the limited number of vendors who could submit bids.

All of the bus routes in question were for the transportation of the district's special education students. There is no dispute that the district actually furnished the services for which it seeks reimbursement. There has been no allegation that the transportation services were not required to assist these children with disabilities to benefit from special education.

The Board does not deny that the bids were advertised incorrectly. It does, however, deny that anything improper took place. It explains that the procedure that was used in 1988 had been in use continuously through the years and had not been disapproved by any county or state employee who reviewed it. The District had always been reimbursed by the state for the cost of transporting special education students.

Thomas King, Manager of Internal Audits for the Department, discovered no evidence of fraud, no unjust enrichment of any Board member, and no willful disregard of the statutes or regulations relating to pupil transportation. He testified that he found nothing egregious. The audit exception was taken because the contracts were not bid in accord with the regulations and were, for this reason, illegal.

Linda Welles, Manager of the Bureau of Pupil Transportation since 1988, testified that the district transports no less that 2500 special education students, more than twice as many as any other district in the state.

Paul O'Donohue, Executive Director of Purchasing and Warehousing for the Board since September 1987, testified that there is a major problem in developing the specifications for bus routes for the children receiving special education in the district. He tries to prepare the routes in June or July, however, the district may not even know which children will need transportation services until late in September of the school year. Changes occur on a frequent basis throughout the school year. There are problems in organizing the bus routes for this particular student population: children are newly classified as being in need of special services on a continuous basis, classified students have their programs or placements changed and many of the classified students change their addresses frequently (due to homelessness, etc.).

Students who are not in need of special education may be provided with transportation by the district, however, under the regulations they may be picked up at various stops along a bus route to school. It is not a problem for the district to develop routes for these children.

O'Donohue testified that he thought the special education regulations required that special education children be picked up and returned portal-to-portal from home to school. Changes in the children's origins and destinations make it extremely difficult to design bus routes which are not subject to continual modification. Since bidders estimate their costs, and base their bids, upon the number of stops and the distance a bus will be traveling, the situation makes it difficult to advertise specifications for routes which are not subject to change and which provide bidders with reliable information. In order to avoid this problem, the district advertised for bids based upon the number of buses needed rather than on the routes traversed.

The version of N.J.A.C. 6:21-13.2 in effect at the time prescribed that the transportation specifications contain the following notice to prospective bidders: "If any change of route results in increased or decreased mileage, adjustment in the contract price will be made accordingly. The basis for any adjustment will be the separate and distinct per mile cost in the bid." This type of provision would have probably have resolved some of the district's problem, but nothing in the record shows that the original contracts contained the prescribed language. Only the 1988 renewal of the 82-bus contract is in evidence. There is nothing in the record to show that those who prepared the specifications were aware that the regulations allowed for some flexibility. It appears that few of the employees who were responsible for preparing the specifications in 1983 are still employed by the district. The contracts were automatically extended annually with an increase as allowed by N.J.S.A. 18A:39-3(a)(2).

Welles testified that a district may provide transportation services to its students and decide which students to transport but, in effect, Newark had created its own problems by electing to transport its special education students from portal to portal. She said that nothing in the regulations requires such transport.

This is not an accurate statement of the special education regulations. Every district board of education must provide educational programs and related services "for pupils with educational disabilities required by the individualized education programs of those pupils for whom the district board of education is responsible." N.J.A.C. 6:28-4.1(a). A "related service" is one which is required to assist a child with disabilities to benefit from special education. Transportation is a related service pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:28-3.8(a)5. Under this regulation:

> i. The district board of education shall provide transportation as required in the individualized education program or as prescribed by the school physician. Such services shall include special transportation equipment, transportation aides and special arrangements for other assistance to and from and in and around the school.

From the regulations, I CONCLUDE that the district did not elect to provide portal-to-portal transportation for its special education students but was required to do so as a "related service" to its special education program in accord with the children's individualized education programs.

Witnesses for the Board testified that the same contracts had been in effect since 1983 and had been reviewed annually by the Bureau of Pupil Transportation, the Auditor General, the County Superintendent of Schools, the Bureau of Auditing and the Division of Compliance. One might suspect that a even a casual review of the original 1983 contracts for form could have revealed that there were two contracts for transportation for 82 and 30 buses respectively, that is, the contracts were not for individual routes, as required. This state of affairs might also be obvious from the subsequent extension contracts.

Welles testified that her reviews were for form only and did not constitute approval of the contracts. George Butman, the state Assistant Auditor General, had an office at the Newark Board of Education. He saw the original contracts and knew that the bids were advertised improperly but stated that he had no responsibility to inform the district of the problem; his only duty was to report his observations to the Auditor General or the Department and follow instructions.

The transportation contracts and their renewals had to be submitted to the County Superintendent annually for review. N.J.S.A. 18A:58-7 required the County Superintendent to check them for necessity, cost and method. A review of the contracts for compliance with the provisions of N.J.A.C. 6:21-13 through 17 (which includes the route requirement provision) has been one of the duties of the County Superintendent, at least since N.J.A.C. 6:21-19.2(a) became effective on September 3, 1991. Actually, the County Superintendent apparently checked the contracts yearly only for compliance with respect to insurance and bonding.

At least since 1986, the contracts, whether original or renewal, were supposed to be accompanied by the bid specifications when submitted to the County Superintendent for review. There were probably no separate route specifications to attach to the contracts in question, since the bids were awarded by bus. The contract in evidence shows 74 bus routes at the same per diem amount. If bid correctly, the per diem amount for each route should have been related to the route mileage and it is highly unlikely that 74 out of 82 routes would have the same mileage. These things might have caused a reviewer to speculate.

The District passed both Level 1 and Level 2 monitoring with respect to transportation. No recommendations were made in regard to transportation by the Level 3 analysis teams. There was no testimony as to what aspects of pupil transportation were monitored.

The Department had never denied reimbursement for special education transportation in prior years, even though it was provided under extensions of the same contracts since 1983.

Before the district received the audit report in 1991, it was not aware that there was a problem. After it received the audit, it attempted to bring itself into compliance with the requirements, although it was too late to do so for the 1991-92 school year. At first it tried to get some relief from the monumental task of developing the specifications for bus routes for its special education students by seeking a waiver of the bidding requirements in the regulations. Several unproductive meetings and conversations were held with various members of the state education staff, who expressed their desire to help but assured the district they were powerless to do so. Those that testified asserted that they had no responsibility to offer help or insisted that they had never been asked. The county superintendent did not consider the district's request for a waiver to be a request for help. He referred the request to the state and, ultimately, the district never received a final response.

The district also tried to comply with the requirements by attaching route descriptions to all existing contracts which did not have them. An attempt was made to attach route descriptions to contracts for which bids were then being solicited. O'Donohue said that this was difficult because of the number of students involved and because he had only one part time employee in his section to work on transportation contracts. For 112 contracts, he had to obtain a copy of the contract, modify it, write an agenda item for the Board to consider the modification, write a resolution for the Board and obtain Board approval. Andrew Swain, who became the district's Director of Transportation in June 1991, ultimately requested and received a computer program that could handle the task of preparing the bus routes and the district expects to be in full compliance for the 1993-94 school year.

The district is also struggling with other problems involving the quality of education which it is providing to its students. The state monitors have recommended, among other things, that the district increase the number of kindergarten and prekindergarten classes and increase the amount it spends for staff development. Bessie White, Executive Director of Management and Budget for eight years, testified that, if approximately $3,000,000 is cut from the 1993-94 budget, it will mean the loss of about 60 teachers and staff members. "Chapter 1" funds have already been cut for this school year. There is no excess in the line item budget which will make up for the loss of the aid. She also pointed out that Newark has problems not seen in suburban districts. It has a large student population requiring special education, basic skills, and bilingual education. It spends more to provide food for its children than comparable districts.

The Department argues that the requirement that transportation contracts be bid by route had been in existence since the 1960's and the district was advised of this requirement in the regulations, in the transportation manual and in workshops held by the Bureau of Transportation to acquaint transportation personnel with regulatory requirements. No evidence with respect to the manuals or workshops was submitted by either party.

N.J.A.C. 6:21-15.2(a), effective November 22, 1989, directs the district boards to request bids for pupil transportation on a per route basis. N.J.A.C. 6:21-13.2(b), effective November 22, 1989, specifically requires that a separate route description be prepared for each individual bus route. The prior regulations, in effect at the time the bids were advertised, are not this clear. The prior N.J.A.C. 6:21-12.1 contains a "recommended form for advertising for bids" by routes. The requirement upon which the Department relies, that "separate specifications should be prepared for each route requiring a separate bus," appears only in a footnote to the heading of the prior N.J.A.C. 6:21-13.2.

N.J.A.C. 1:30-1.7 governs the use of headings in the interpretation of regulations. They are "not part of the rule, but are intrinsic parts of the publication. As such, these headings may be used in interpreting the rule." Since this is the case, the footnote to the heading can have no greater effect than the heading itself and may be considered for informational purposes only. The body of the regulation contains a form for prescribed transportation specifications, whose content, including a route description, is mandated by N.J.A.C. 6:21-13.2(b). The footnote in question might be conceivably read to advise, not direct, that separate specifications should be prepared for each route requiring a separate bus.

Both parties have referred to the statute N.J.S.A. 18A:58-16 as the one governing the ability of the commissioner to withhold all or part of "such apportionment [of state aid] for failure to comply with any rule or standard." This statute, repealed effective July 1, 1990, has no bearing upon the remedy which the commissioner may impose for failure to comply with bidding requirements. The rules and standards it refers to are those governing "equalization of opportunity." The statute was designed to promote equality of educational opportunity by providing the commissioner of education with the power to sanction the continued existence of de facto segregation in school districts by withholding state funds. See Antidiscrimination Laws in Action in New Jersey: A Law-Sociology Study, Alfred W. Blumrosen (1965), 19 Rutgers L. Rev. 189. (It had also been cited as the only statutory reference to the requirement that New Jersey schools remain open for not less than 180 days in the school year. See Atty. Gen., F.O. 1975, No. 19.)

The commissioner's authority to impose sanctions for improper awards of transportation contracts is contained in N.J.A.C. 6:21-19.1(b), effective September 3, 1991, which provides:

> The Commissioner may withhold or adjust transportation aid for district boards of education which are noncompliant with the provisions set forth in this chapter [Pupil Transportation]. For example, transportation aid may be adjusted or withheld for the improper award of contracts...

This is the regulation which will be applied in the present matter.

FINDINGS OF FACT AND CONCLUSIONS

Based upon the evidence presented, I FIND that the district failed to comply with the requirements for the proper award of transportation contracts for the 1988-89 school year. For this reason, I CONCLUDE that it should be subject to the sanctions which the Commissioner may impose pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:21- 19.1(b).

Under this regulation, the Commissioner may withhold or adjust transportation aid for the improper award of contracts. It is the argument of the Department that the aid should be withheld entirely for this noncompliance.

I CONCLUDE that circumstances dictate that the aid should be adjusted, rather than withheld, for the following reasons:

I FIND the evidence shows that, in 1988, the district was guilty of a lack of knowledge of the regulations relating to transportation contracts and/or a lack of interest in their content.

I FIND that there was no evidence of an improper or dishonest motive for this noncompliance.

I FIND that the district was permitted to extend this improperly bid contract and receive reimbursement for five years without intervention, although, at the very least, the County Superintendent should have been aware that there was a problem.

I FIND that when the district discovered its noncompliance, it made a good faith attempt to rectify the situation, although it suffered from a lack of experienced personnel and little interest on the part of state and county staff.

I FIND that a total withholding of reimbursement will adversely affect the district's ability to improve the quality of education which it is able to provide to its students; and this will happen at a time when it is already severely stressed by the necessity for improvement.

I FIND that the total withholding of reimbursement because of the errors and omissions of the prior administration of the district will adversely affect the children of the district; the present administration, which is trying to cure the problem, will be hampered if an attempt is made to punish its predecessors.

I FIND that the district actually provided and paid for the services for which the reimbursement is sought. (There has been no allegation that the services were not provided or were provided improperly.)

I CONCLUDE that under the federal and state regulatory and statutory schemes governing the education of handicapped students, the responsibility for providing this "related service" ultimately belongs to the Department. This responsibility has been delegated to the local school districts for implementation. I FIND that the Newark school district fulfilled this delegated responsibility for the 1988-89 school year: the Board provided and paid for the transportation of special education students within the district as it was required to do under the applicable regulations.

The Department argues that it should not be required to reimburse the district in any amount for providing this transportation since it received no benefit from the transportation contracts. This is not strictly accurate because the district, as subgrantee, performed services which were ultimately the responsibility of the state education agency, as grantee of funds under the FAHCA.

I CONCLUDE that it is inequitable, given the district's attempts to remedy its past noncompliance, its present plight, and the fact that it expended the funds to fulfill a delegated state responsibility, to punish the district five years later by withholding the reimbursement in its entirety.

THE ADJUSTMENT

I CONCLUDE that, if the district may not be reimbursed for the full amount of the transportation services it provided because those services were not purchased at the lowest available cost, it should at least be reimbursed for the reasonable value of these services.

The problem with this remedy is that there is no accurate measure of what the reasonable value might be. The contracts were originally bid in 1983. They were extended each year with a percentage increase in the per diem rate per bus in accord with the appropriate statutory and regulatory provisions. If the contracts had been advertised for bids for the 1988-89 school year, even incorrectly, there might be some parameters to use for guidance toward a reasonable value. It also appears that no relevant data can be obtained from state sources or from vendors providing bus transportation to other schools districts for the 1988-89 school year.

The 1983 cost of the two transportation contracts, although not obtained by the use of the appropriate bidding method, provides a starting point for consideration. The original 1983 dollar amount of the two contracts, before the annual increases, is not in the record but should be readily ascertainable. (If the contracts were extended through 1988 and were increased 22 percent each year, the original reimbursement on the two contracts must have been in the neighborhood of $1,340,000. Only the contract rate of increase from 1987 to 1988 is in evidence. The assumption is made that the same increase was applied during the other extension years.)

O'Donohue testified that 20 firms bid on the original contracts and their prices were relatively comparable. This being the case, the 1983 contract amounts may not be too far out of line with what the cost per route might have been if bid properly. If the Board were to be reimbursed at the 1983 rate with a nominal annual increase, say eight percent, for the five extension years it might be a reasonable adjustment. This would lead to a reimbursement amount of about $1,800,000 for the two contracts for the 1988-89 school year.

If it is assumed that the Board could have gotten a more favorable price had the contracts been bid in 1988 in compliance with the regulations, that price, in all likelihood, would not be less than two thirds to one half of what they actually paid for the transportation. If it is arbitrarily decided that the cost would be about 40 percent less, this would also lead to a reimbursement of about $1,800,000.

I, therefore, CONCLUDE that the Board should be reimbursed $1,800,000 based upon an estimate of the reasonable value of the transportation contracts for the 1988-89 school year.

ORDER

It is hereby ORDERED that the Department restore $1,800,000 of the $2,968,953 withheld from the Board because of its failure to comply with the bidding regulations when it awarded contracts to provide bus transportation for special education students for the 1988-89 school year.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 West State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF NEWARK, ESSEX COUNTY,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
DIVISION OF COMPLIANCE, NEW JERSEY STATE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record and initial decision rendered by the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Respondent filed timely exceptions pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Respondent urges the Commissioner to reverse the findings of the ALJ and determine that because the Board admits it was in violation of the regulation regarding bidding for school transportation for the years in question, it has no entitlement to reimbursement for the contracts at issue. Respondent claims an illegality in the bidding process is a fatal error which precludes state aid. It suggests there was no evidence that the State at any time was aware that the District was bidding improperly and that it acquiesced in the noncompliance, as found by the ALJ.

Moreover, respondent submits the District's attempts to ameliorate the problem after the District learned of the noncompliance is irrelevant, but it adds that "its halfhearted measures to come into compliance are instructive because they show the district was unable to correct its problems." (Exceptions, at p. 15)

Respondent contends the initial decision is factually and legally flawed, noting in particular the ALJ's order to the Department to pay the Board $1,800,000. Respondent contends the testimony and brief demonstrates that the District has retained the $2,968,953 claimed by the Department. Thus, respondent notes, if the ALJ's determination is adopted, the District must refund $1,168,953 to the Department, although it submits that the District should be compelled to refund the entire amount with interest. On the issue of interest the State argues additionally that the ALJ failed to address its motion regarding interest.

Further, respondent contends that while it may be understandable that the ALJ did not wish the District to lose $3,000,000 out of its more than half billion dollar budget, she failed to realize that her relief rewards, by use of taxpayer monies, a District for incompetence, ineptitude, negligence and carelessness. It claims the ALJ erred in allowing testimony regarding the effect on the District of the loss of the state aid.

Second, respondent avers the ALJ erred in permitting evidence of what the District did in its attempts to cure the problems. In this regard, respondent contends the testimony proved it should not be reimbursed for invalid contracts because although it was advised several months before January 1991 that it had bid its contracts improperly, the District continued to bid them improperly for two more years. Respondent claims that when it did ask for assistance from the State in March 1992, approximately a year and a half after it was advised that its transportation contracts were in noncompliance, it asked for a waiver of the regulation in question, which the Department has no legal authority to do. The State submits the ALJ wrongly viewed the Department's failure to waive the regulation as an example of disinterest by the State and county staff. Respondent concludes that with so much state aid at stake, it was incumbent upon the District to employ sufficient experienced staff and to obtain the assistance of the Department in order to come into compliance, regardless of its size.

Respondent also excepts to the ALJ's conclusion that the State was obligated to reimburse the District for these contracts because they involved special education students. Suggesting that N.J.A.C. 6:28-3.8(a)5 mandates transportation services only as required in a pupil's Individualized Education Program (IEP), respondent submits that the Board's policy of transporting all special education students portal-to-portal violates special education law, first, because the law requires that related services, such as transportation, must be embodied as part of the pupil's IEP, and second, because it violates the requirement that special education children have the least restrictive environment. Respondent suggests that the District's blanket policy of transporting all special education pupils, regardless of individualized need, removes from many pupils their right to be mainstreamed.

Arguing that this is not a special education case but rather one questioning whether transportation contracts have been bid improperly, respondent says the ALJ's attempt to hold the State responsible because special education pupils were being transported is an attempt to find ways to rationalize payment for noncompliant contracts.

As factual exceptions, respondent contends that contrary to the ALJ's findings of fact, the Bureau of Pupil Transportation does not review and approve contracts, the Auditor General never audited the transportation contracts, the Bureau of Auditing and the Division of Compliance in the Department of Education never audited transportation contracts until 1990, when it audited the contracts at issue herein, and Mr. Butman, Assistant Auditor General, at no time reviewed transportation contracts. Conceding that the county superintendent does review the contracts, respondent refers to the testimony of the Essex County Superintendent of Schools for the fact that his review was for form only. Respondent thus concludes that until the 1990 audit of the contracts, no one from the State was aware that the District was in violation of a long-standing regulation, and it excepts to the ALJ's implicit and erroneous belief that the State was aware of the problem and failed to take action. Instead, respondent contends the ALJ cannot fault the Department for its alleged failure to catch the error or its alleged refusal to assist the District.

Moreover, respondent submits that the ALJ erred when she stated that N.J.A.C. 6:21-16.1 requires that the bid specification be submitted when a contract is renewed, and that she erred in implying that the county superintendent should have observed that the specifications were improper. Rather, respondent submits that N.J.A.C. 6:21-16.1 was amended effective November 16, 1989, after the bidding at issue, to include the requirement that the specification be forwarded to the county superintendent. (Exceptions, at p. 8) Until the amendment, the District was required to submit only a copy of the certified minutes, the State avers. Respondent notes that the District did not place into this record exhibits proving that it submitted the specifications to the county superintendent in 1983 for his review. Since the specifications were not submitted when the contract was bid initially or when it was renewed, there was no way for the county superintendent to have known they were bid improperly. With the above factual errors corrected, respondent claims the District has no entitlement to the funds at issue.

Noting that the original contracts were not brought into evidence in this case, respondent contends the ALJ may not speculate whether the county superintendent should have been alerted to any alleged bidding irregularities. Neither could she speculate as to the subsequent extension contracts in order to calculate for the adjustment she orders, because no evidence is in the record regarding the cost of the contracts had they been bid properly. Respondent further excepts to the ALJ's reliance on Mr. O'Donohue's testimony that 20 firms bid on the original contract and that their prices were relatively comparable in assessing the worth of such contracts because Mr. O'Donohue was not employed by the District at the time of the original bid, and his testimony is "self-serving." Neither, respondent claims, were there any documents brought to the record showing what the bids were. Respondent strongly contends that the fundamental flaw with the ALJ's adjustment, notwithstanding that all is based on assumptions, is that when the firms bid on the original contract, they were bidding on contracts that were improperly established. Thus, it claims, only companies that were bidding on the entire package, either the 82 routes or the 30 routes, could bid. The record does not reflect what the bids would have been if the contracts had been correctly bid, so that all potential contractors could bid on the number of routes that they had vehicles for, respondent argues. Thus, respondent submits, the ALJ's calculations are faulty in that they are improperly predicated on how much the bids were when the contracts were improperly bid, and not on how much they would have been worth if they had been bid properly.

Finally, respondent contends the regulation at issue, N.J.A.C. 6:21-13.2, has been in effect since at least 1974, the transportation manual given to all districts reiterated the requirement to bid by route and the procedure was further discussed in workshops given to transportation coordinators, as testified to by Linda Wells, Manager, Pupil Transportation, New Jersey State Department of Education. The District's defense of ignorance of the law, therefore, must fail, as must its contention that it had problems in making changes to the contract as children either left or were added to the route. Under the initial contract in 1983, and therefore in each renewal thereof, including the year in question, the District was not required to do an addendum each time the route changed, respondent submits. Thus, the District's rationalization for its failure to abide by the regulations is without merit.

Accordingly, respondent seeks reversal of the initial decision and interest on the $2,968,953 it claims is due and owing the State Department of Education.

Upon careful and independent review of the record of this matter, the Commissioner rejects the initial decision for the reasons which follow.

As noted by the ALJ, the Board of Education of the City of Newark concedes that it failed to comply with the requirements for the proper award of transportation contracts for the 1988-89 school year. As such, the Commissioner agrees that it is subject to the sanctions which the Commissioner is empowered to impose pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:21-19.1(b). However, the Commissioner parts from the ALJ's determination in adjudging the appropriate penalty for the District's noncompliance.

The Commissioner agrees with the ALJ's finding that in 1988, when the District first bid the contracts in question, it was guilty of a lack of knowledge of the regulations relating to transportation contracts and/or a lack of interest in their content. She also concurs with the Office of Administrative Law that there was no evidence brought to the record of any improper or dishonest motive for this noncompliance. However, the record suggests that both the District and the ALJ herself misconstrue the regulation which is the linchpin of this controversy, N.J.A.C. 6:28-3.8(a)(5), which states:

> i. The district board of education shall provide transportation as required in the individualized education program or as prescribed by the school physician. Such services shall include special transportation equipment, transportation aides and special arrangements for other assistance to and from and in and around the school. (emphasis supplied)

Contrary to both the ALJ's interpretation of this regulation and the Board's policy, which state that the District was required to transport all of its special education students portal-to-portal, the Commissioner finds that the above regulation mandates transportation only to those special education students whose IEPs require it or as prescribed by the school physician.

Nevertheless, the District's rationale for choosing to bid these contracts by numbers of buses it deemed were required to serve the student need instead of based on routes, as required by N.J.A.C. 6:21-13.2, is that it bused all of its special education students, which, it claims, involved too many routes and too many variations in routes based on pupil mobility to be practical. Because she has determined that the District's policy of busing all of its special education students is not a requirement of law, the Commissioner cannot sustain a determination by the ALJ to compel the State to adjust the monies owing due to a policy that is not supported by N.J.A.C. 6:28-3.8(a)5, and which thereby led the District to wrongly bid its contracts for transportation.

As to the ALJ's factual determinations concerning whether the State was accountable for reviewing the instant contracts and the bidding procedures that resulted in those contracts, the Commissioner notes that she is without the benefit of the transcript of the proceedings below. However, while the Commissioner has the authority pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:21-19.1(b) to either withhold or adjust transportation aid for the improper award of contracts, she deems it unnecessary to delve into testimony regarding the effects on the District of the loss of the state aid due under the facts of this matter, that is, $2,968,953. Similarly, she finds no basis for the ALJ's having expanded the scope of the hearing to include testimony on the District's failed attempts to cure its noncompliance in the face of the undisputed evidence of a systemic failure by the District to assure that its bidding procedures and transportation contracts were in accord with law. She so finds noting the bidding violation is an admitted one, and was based on a special education transportation policy within the District that is insupportable. The Commissioner thus finds such contracts to have been fatally flawed from the time they were put out for bid, and in violation of public policy requiring bidding specifications and procedures that encourage varied and competitive bidding.

Rather, in assessing the appropriate sanction in this matter, the Commissioner need only observe that the District admits its noncompliance, which persisted from 1983 through 1991, and that the total amount owing for the year in question, 1988-89, that is, $2,968,953, represents only slightly more than one half of one percent of the Distict's budget of nearly a half billion dollars for school year 1993-94, approximately $400,000,000 of which is state aid. As such, it is the Commissioner's view that the children of the District will not suffer in exacting from the District the overpayment in aid it received. Hence, the Commissioner finds and determines that no adjustment is appropriate under the circumstances of this matter.

Finally, the Commissioner denies respondent's request for pre-judgment interest on the amount due because the record does not support a finding of bad faith on the District's part, pursuant to the requirements of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.16(c).

Accordingly, the initial decision is rejected. The Board of Education is hereby directed to immediately conform its policy regarding busing of special education pupils to the dictates of law, and to likewise conform its bidding specifications on bus transportation by routes, not by numbers of buses required to perform the service. The Commissioner further directs the withholding of transportation aid in the amount of $2,968,953 from the 1994-95 state aid.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF NEWARK, ESSEX COUNTY,	:
PETITIONER-APPELLANT,	:
V.	:	STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION
DIVISION OF COMPLIANCE, NEW JERSEY STATE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION,	:	DECISION ON MOTION
RESPONDENT-RESPONDENT.	:

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, November 29, 1993

For the Petitioner-Appellant, Brown & Brown (Raymond A. Brown, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Respondent, Arlene G. Lutz, Deputy Attorney General (Deborah T. Poritz, Attorney General of New Jersey)

An audit by the Department of Education of the pupil transportation program of the Board of Education of the City of Newark (hereinafter "Board") for the 1988-89 school year resulted in an audit exception in the amount of $2,968,953 which the Department sought to recover by the reduction of State aid to the Board in 1992-93. The Board filed a petition with the Commissioner of Education challenging such action. On November 29, 1993, the Commissioner of Education, finding that the Board had failed to comply with requirements for the proper award of transportation contracts for the 1988-89 school year, directed the withholding of $2,968,953 in State aid for 1994-95.

On February 17, 1994, the Board filed a notice of appeal to the State Board of Education, along with a motion to file the appeal nunc pro tunc. In a certification filed therewith, the counsel for the Board related that he had filed an appeal from the Commissioner's decision directly to the Appellate Division of the Superior Court. Counsel stated therein: "It is respectfully submitted that the State Department of Education is a party Defendant in this matter. Accordingly, it is our view that the State Board should recuse itself and permit this matter to proceed directly to the Superior Court." He related that the Department of Education had filed a motion in the Appellate Division to dismiss the appeal filed therein by the Board on the ground of failure to exhaust administrative remedies. Counsel requested that if such motion were granted, the Board be permitted to file its appeal to the State Board nunc pro tunc.

On March 1, 1994, counsel for the Board was advised that his motion was deficient in that it did not include a brief in support of the motion as required by N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.18(a). He was given until March 14 to correct such deficiency. He was also advised to file a substitution of attorney by that date since he was not the attorney of record in this matter.

Counsel for the Board filed a substitution of attorney on March 14. However, he did not file a brief in support of the motion until April 7. He provided no explanation for the late filing. Nor did he request further extension for such filing.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-28, appeals to the State Board must be taken "within 30 days after the decision appealed from is filed." The State Board may not grant extensions. N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.5(a). In contrast to the period for filing petitions to the Commissioner of Education, see N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2; N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.15, the time limit within which an appeal must be taken to the State Board is statutory, and, given the jurisdictional nature of the statutory time limit, the State Board lacks the authority to extend it. Mount Pleasant-Blythedale Union Free School District v. New Jersey Department of Education, Docket #A-2180-89T1, slip op. at 5 (App. Div. 1990).

We conclude that the statutory filing requirement with which the Board failed to comply is of such significance that we deny the instant motion and dismiss the appeal. In Yorke v. Board of Education of the Township of Piscataway, decided by the State Board of Education, July 6, 1988, aff'd, Docket #A-5912-87T1 (App. Div. 1989), the Court upheld the dismissal of an appeal by the State Board where it found that the notice of appeal had been filed one day late by appellant's counsel who alleged that he had misread or misunderstood the applicable regulations. The Court added that even if the statute could be construed to permit enlargement of the time for filing an appeal, the appellant therein had failed to establish good cause.

In this case, the Commissioner's decision was rendered on November 29, 1993 and mailed to the parties on November 30. Accordingly, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.4, the decision appealed from was deemed filed on December 3. Therefore, as mandated by N.J.S.A. 18A:6-28, see N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.3(a); N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.4(a), as computed under N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.4(b), the Board was required to file its notice of appeal to the State Board on or before January 3, 1994.[1] The Board's instant notice of appeal and motion to file nunc pro tunc were dated February 17, 1994 and filed on that date.

[1] We note that the Board's appeal to the Appellate Division from the decision of the Commissioner was apparently filed on January 14, 1994.

Even if N.J.S.A. 18A:6-28 can be construed to provide us with the authority to enlarge the time limit for filing an appeal, we find no substantive basis to warrant doing so in this particular instance. The contention by counsel for the Board that "the State Board should recuse itself and permit this matter to proceed directly to the Superior Court" does not excuse his failure to comply with the statutory filing requirement. The law is clear and unambiguous that "[a]ny party aggrieved by any determination of the Commissioner may appeal from his determination to the state board." N.J.S.A. 18A:6-27. Moreover, counsel for the Board was expressly advised in a cover letter accompanying the Commissioner's decision in this matter that "[a]ppeals of decisions rendered by the Commissioner must be filed with the State Board of Education pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.1 et seq. except for matters relative to the New Jersey State Interscholastic Athletic Association and State Department of Education employee contractual matters." Nor does the misdirection of the notice of appeal to a court with a 45-day period to appeal alter the result. Vogel Bus Company, Inc. v. Union County Regional Bd. of Ed., Docket #A-4645-87T1, slip op. at 2 (App. Div. 1989).

Accordingly, we deny the Board's motion to file its appeal in this matter nunc pro tunc and dismiss the appeal for failure to file notice thereof within the statutory time limit as computed under the applicable regulations.

SYNOPSIS

Board certified tenure charges of unbecoming conduct and other just cause against respondent, tenured custodian who tested positive for cocaine. Respondent contended drug testing was flawed.

Initial decision determined urine sample was collected in accordance with reasonable medical office and laboratory practice and thus could serve as basis for respondent's dismissal.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision noting that results of testing established Board's tenure charges particularly in light of respondent's existing agreement with district as an outgrowth of prior charges of drug abuse. Respondent was ordered dismissed from his position as lead custodian.

INITIAL DECISION
OAL DKT. NO. EDU 8920-92
AGENCY DKT. NO. 416-9/92

IN THE MATTER OF
HARRY CARAVELLO

Robert J. Cirafesi, Esq., on behalf of petitioner, South Plainfield Board of Education (Wilentz, Goldman & Spitzer, attorneys)

Stephen E. Klausner, Esq., on behalf of respondent, Harry Caravello (Klausner, Hunter, Cige & Seid, attorneys)

Record Closed: July 19, 1993 Decided: October 14, 1993

BEFORE SOLOMON A. METZGER, ALJ:

This matter arises out of tenure charges filed by petitioner, the South Plainfield Board of Education, against respondent Harry Caravello seeking his dismissal pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9. The Commissioner of Education transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. A hearing was conducted on May 18, 1993, and certain testimony was repeated on June 16, 1993.[1] The last brief was received on July 19, 1993, after which the record closed. An order of extension was issued pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(c).

Certain basic facts are undisputed. Respondent was arrested in May 1990, and charged with conspiracy to possess and distribute cocaine. These charges were dismissed following his completion of pretrial intervention (PTI). As a condition of reinstatement to his former position with petitioner as lead custodian, respondent consented to random urine testing for a period of one year, commencing on November 4, 1991. A sample taken on June 29, 1992, proved positive for cocaine. Respondent was provided with a copy of the test results on July 2, 1992 (P-13).

The question presented is whether the protocols used to collect and test this sample were sufficiently trustworthy to allow the result to form the exclusive basis for respondent's dismissal.

Petitioner presented the testimony of Ms. Deborah Bender, a laboratory technician employed at the South Plainfield Primary Care Center by Dr. Yogi Bakshi, respondent's medical examiner. Ms. Bender testified that she administers urine tests regularly and that she followed her usual procedure with respondent on the morning of June 29, 1992. Ms. Bender was familiar with respondent because she had collected urine samples from him on three or four prior occasions.

Ms. Bender testified that she escorted respondent to the bathroom, which contains plastic cups with the "MetPath" logo for collection of urine specimens (P-1). While respondent urinated into a cup, the door remained ajar; Ms. Bender stood no more than three or four feet away. When respondent had finished he handed the cup to her. She asked whether he had been on medication in the last two weeks and he responded in the negative. Ms. Bender testified that she then took the cup into the office laboratory a few feet away, and transferred the contents into a more secure specimen container (P-2). She screwed the cap shut and wrote respondent's name on the cap with indelible marker. Ms. Bender then placed a temperature strip onto the cup, which registered urine temperature in an appropriate range (P-3). She prepared a MetPath requisition form for a drug screen with confirmation (P-4). The form and sample were placed into a MetPath plastic pouch (P-5) and sealed. Ms. Bender testified that she then set the pouch on a counter in the laboratory where it was out of the sight of patients. She recalled that respondent was the only person in the office that day for urine drug screening. At 4:30 p.m., the end of the work day, the pouch was placed in the MetPath pick-up box outside the office door, from which it was to be retrieved by a courier. The box is not locked, and MetPath generally makes its pick-up between 6:30 and 7:00 p.m.

Ms. Bender acknowledged that she did not ask respondent whether he had undergone recent medical or dental treatment, and she had no documentation to show that she asked him whether he was taking medication. She did not wear surgical gloves while handling the specimen, nor was respondent asked to wash his hands before providing the specimen. Respondent was not asked to observe the transfer to a secure cup. Ms. Bender's office does not receive a receipt from the courier documenting that a pouch has been picked up.

Dr. John E. Heveran is the director of clinical chemistry and toxicology at MetPath, the laboratory which tested the sample in question. He is certified by the American Board of Clinical Chemistry, and is licensed in New Jersey as a laboratory director. MetPath itself is also certified by the National Institute on Drug Abuse (NIDA), a federal agency, and it is licensed by the State of New Jersey. Dr. Heveran manages the laboratory and develops its testing procedures. Dr. Heveran testified that MetPath tests biological specimens for the medical profession. Once the courier delivers a specimen to his facility, it is deposited into the building through a door opening and is placed onto a sorting table. An "accessioner" opens the MetPath pouch, examines the paperwork and enters the information into a computer. A number is assigned to the specimen and that number is then placed on the specimen bottle, on the paperwork and into the computer. The specimen is then brought into the laboratory and tested. In this instance, the specimen was received on June 29, 1992, and tested within twelve hours. Instructions called for a ten-drug panel using the Enzyme Multiplied Immunoassay Technique (EMIT), and then if there were any positives, for a separate immunoassay confirmation. MetPath uses a test called Florescence Polarization Immunoassay (FPIA) for this purpose. The first test resulted in a positive for cocaine and the second test detected a high level of benzoylecgonine, the major metabolite of cocaine, thus confirming the first test result. Dr. Heveran testified that EMIT is 95 percent accurate and, in combination with FPIA, approaches an accuracy rate of 99 percent; the two tests together are highly reliable. A gas chromatography/mass spectrometry (GC/MS) test was not used for confirmation; the accuracy of confirmation with this test exceeds 99 percent. Dr. Heveran testified that this sample was not handled as a "chain of custody" case, because it was not requested. Based on his review, the integrity of the specimen was maintained while at MetPath.

Dr. Heveran testified also that he is certified as an inspector by NIDA, and is familiar with federal workplace drug testing standards. These do contain requirements which were not followed in this case. He testified, however, that these standards have not been adopted in New Jersey and that the methods used by MetPath are commonly relied upon by the medical community.

Cynthia L. Schaffer, is a doctor of osteopathy, and she is also a medical review officer certified to do drug testing for federal government agencies. Dr. Schaffer testified that she regularly conducts drug screens; she has never operated a drug-testing laboratory and her criticisms focused on the collection process used here. Dr. Schaffer testified that federal guidelines (R-3 through R-8) impose a strict regime for urine testing and that although she had no evidence that the sample here was switched, tampered with or tainted, the collection procedure was unreliable. She testified initially that persons using cocaine often exhibit behaviors that give evidence of addiction, such as irritability, faulty decision-making, and the like and there are no such indications here. Dr. Schaffer testified that respondent was not asked to wash his hands before donating a specimen and that she requires this routinely in her practice to avoid any residue contaminating the sample. The lab technician should wear gloves for this same reason. The cup should be sterile, and sealed in plastic before it is used. Donors must present identification and should be asked to remove outer garments to limit the possibility of tampering once they are in the bathroom. Donors should witness the entire collection process and sign a receipt to that effect. The sample must be placed in a tamperproof bottle. Most importantly, the specimen must be secured until it is transported to the laboratory. Dr. Schaffer testified that respondent's sample was destroyed after thirty days, which is improper under federal guidelines. A sample should be kept for at least a year and, where there is litigation, longer.

Dr. Schaffer testified that she has rarely been involved in a non-chain-of-custody urinalysis. She acknowledged that the procedures followed here are used routinely by doctors to collect specimens from their patients for analysis of disease.

Respondent testified in his own behalf. He has been a custodian for petitioner for twelve years. After being arrested in May of 1990, he entered PTI because his legal fees were becoming excessive. He denied any involvement in the distribution or consumption of cocaine. Nevertheless, respondent agreed to petitioner's random-drug-testing demands and, until the test in question, had no problem. He testified that on June 29, 1992, he was not asked to identify himself at the South Plainfield Primary Care Center, he simply went down the hall, filled the cup and told Ms. Bender when he was finished. He was not required to wash his hands and he did not see Ms. Bender take the sample out of the bathroom. When he learned the results of the June 29 test, he contacted counsel within a few days. This is the substance of the record.

Respondent has not attempted to show that the sample in question was tainted. Nor does he cite any authority which imposes federal workplace drug testing standards in the case at bar. Respondent's counsel did suggest at hearing, in response to an objection to any discussion of these standards, that his posthearing brief would support a legal conclusion that petitioner had an obligation to apply federal workplace drug testing standards as a recipient of federal funds. This argument was never made. Nevertheless, the suggestion created an opening through which the federal standards entered the record. Respondent now holds these out as a model by comparison with which, the procedures used here suffer. He buttresses this with Dr. Schaffer's testimony that she uses the federal standards in her practice, and that they more carefully protect samples. There is no question that federal workplace drug testing standards are careful to protect samples, in everything from requiring a bluing agent in toilet water to mandating GC/MS as the confirming laboratory test. It should be clear, however, that any debate about the costs and benefits of the federal standards is more appropriate to a policy-making forum. Here respondent must show more than that further precautions are possible; he must show that the methods used were insufficiently cautious.

The procedures used by MetPath were not seriously attacked at hearing and Dr. Heveran's testimony was persuasive to the effect that MetPath's protocols are relied upon widely by the medical community in the State and reflect the industry standard. The two tests conducted by MetPath have a combined accuracy approaching 99 percent, and if this is something less than is available through GC/MS confirmation, then the risk differential is small. Apparently there is no uniform State practice or standard governing the way medical offices are to conduct urine testing for drug screening, and herein lies some difficulty. There is little against which to measure the steps Ms. Bender took to collect the specimen on June 29, 1992. We are left to the standards of due process and to general notions of fairness.

Ms. Bender was a credible witness and I adopt her testimony as factual. The procedures which she used appear, on the whole, reasonably calculated to protect specimens. Respondent was asked to donate a sample while Ms. Bender stood nearby. After taking the sample from him, she transferred the urine to a more secure specimen cup, screwed the cap shut, and wrote respondent's name on the cap with indelible marker. She completed a MetPath requisition form and inserted it and the specimen cup into a plastic pouch, which was in turn sealed and stored in the laboratory away from patient traffic. The pouch was then placed in a MetPath box outside the office door. A courier retrieved it and delivered it to MetPath, which undertook its testing. There is no indication that there was anything awry when the specimen arrived at MetPath.

Respondent seeks further support for his theory that the collection process here was flawed from a line of federal cases involving urinalysis to detect drug use. In Capua v. City of Plainfield, 643 F. Supp. 1507 (D.N.J., 1986), the district court struck down a program of surprise mass drug testing for firefighters as offensive to Fourth Amendment protections against illegal searches and seizures, as well as Fifth Amendment due process protections. As part of this analysis the court expressed concern with the city's refusal to afford plaintiffs access to their samples for independent testing. In this connection it commented that urinalysis may not be all that reliable. Our circumstances do not involve surprise mass testing and, thus, in the main, Capua is off point here. To the extent that the court was concerned with access to samples for independent testing, respondent here was tested on June 29, 1992, and informed of the results on July 2, 1992. He saw counsel within a few days. Thus, he had close to a month to request an independent test before the sample was destroyed, and did not do so. He was not refused access to his sample. It should also be noted that EMIT with confirmation has won general approval in the federal courts, see, e.g., Spence v. Farrier, 807 F. 2d. 753, 756 (8th Cir. 1986); Wykoff v. Resig, 613 F. Supp. 1504 (D.C. Ind. 1985). It is not clear from the opinion in Capua whether confirmation was part of the procedure. In any case, it is undisputed that the combined tests conducted here have an accuracy rate approaching 99 percent. Respondent simply suggested that the GC/MS confirmation is even more accurate.

Other federal courts have commented on standardless urine testing. In Lovvorn v. City of Chattanooga, Tenn., 647 F. Supp. 875 (E.D. Tenn. 1986), a district court again rejected mass drug testing for firefighters without an individualized suspicion on Fourth and Fifth Amendment grounds. The court found inter alia that testing procedures varied from one employee to the next. Some firefighters were "patted down," others were not, some were observed while urinating and others not, sometimes EMIT was followed by confirmation and sometimes not. Lovvorn, supra, 647 F. Supp. at 881. This, again, is not our situation; there is no indication that procedure at Dr. Bakshi's office varies.

In Egloff v. New Jersey Air National Guard, 684 F. Supp. 1275 (D.N.J. 1988), the district court had before it defendant's motion for summary judgment. A factual dispute developed concerning the procedure that would have been used to administer the test - plaintiffs had refused to submit - and as is required, all facts and reasonable inferences were found for plaintiffs. In that context the court wrote:

> Applying these principles to the case at hand renders this court unable to sanction the manner in which the proposed urinalysis was to be performed on the plaintiffs. Taking (as we must) all of plaintiffs' allegations as true, it appears that the testing was marked by a conspicuous absence of the most rudimentary non-procedural safeguards and guidelines. Plaintiff James Egloff was simply given an opened, unlabelled bottle and told to fill it; there were no apparent provisions for insuring nonadulteration of the sample or protecting its chain of custody. It is utterly unclear as to which method of testing would be performed, or whether a confirmatory test would be conducted. We are equally troubled by plaintiffs averment that they were never informed of the purpose of the testing; indeed James Egloff contends that he was actively misled as to the reason for the testing. At least one court has demanded that urine testing which is performed on the basis of "reasonable suspicion, based on specific, objective facts and reasonable inferences drawn from those facts" may be ordered only if the "specific, objective facts [are] disclosed to the employee at the time the demand is made." McDonell v. Hunter, 809 F.2d at 1309. Also disturbing is plaintiff James Egloff's claim that there existed no provision for retesting his sample at a civilian lab. In Von Raab, the Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit approved a testing procedure, in large measure because it provided that an employee could "resubmit a specimen pronounced positive to a laboratory of his own choosing for retesting." 816 F.2d at 181. We do not imply that Federal Courts are uniquely qualified to set out specific technical guidelines as to proper methods for urinalysis testing. But see, McDonell v. Hunter, 809 F.2d at 1309 (Court prescribing equipment and procedure to be employed in urine screenings). However, we think it beyond doubt that our duty to scrutinize urinalysis testing methods under the Fourth Amendment requires satisfaction that the methods contain at least some modicum of reliability to pass the threshold of reasonableness.
> [Egloff, supra, 684 F. Supp. at 1281]

It is plain that the court was looking at the totality of protocol errors alleged by plaintiffs when it made its comments. The court directed that a trial go forward on these points of difference.

In Wykoff the District court questioned some of the procedures utilized by prison authorities to collect specimens. Most relevant to our case were the court's criticisms of sealing the sample outside the presence of the inmate, failing to maintain a written chain of custody, and storage of samples in unlocked refrigerators. Wykoff, supra., 613 F. Supp. at 1514. Nevertheless, the court approved the test result, and denied the relief sought by the inmate.

While these federal authorities make clear that collection and testing must be scrutinized, none map a step-by-step procedure and, indeed, the court in Egloff, supra. 684 F. Supp. at 1282, acknowledged that such technical guidelines should probably come from other sources. In struggling to find minimum standards of acceptability, these courts have looked to the totality of the procedures used. While some have suggested additional precautions in one or another detail, no overall rule of procedural due process emerges against which to measure our facts. It would be easy to criticize the placement of samples outside the door in an unlocked box, where they remain for at least a few hours, and the failure to utilize a written-chain-of-custody procedure. Yet, there is no evidence that anyone had an interest or motive with respect to respondent's urine other than respondent, and no inquiry was made of Ms. Bender whether to her knowledge her practice had ever caused a problem. Thus, the most that we can suggest from these federal cases is that additional precautions might be prudent and should be considered. This is not enough, however, to void respondent's sample.

Respondent also relies on two state cases, which, in my view, offer him little support. He quotes first from State v. Brown, 99 N.J. Super. 22 (App. Div. 1968), a case involving the use of certain physical evidence at trial which the police failed to seal and properly identify. The court wrote:

> [W]here the incriminating object has passed out of the possession of the original receiver and into the possession of others, the "chain of possession" must be established to avoid any inference that there has been substitution or tampering. [Brown, supra, 99 N.J. Super. at 27]

Respondent fails to note, however, that the court went on to say that it is not necessary for the party introducing such evidence to negate every possibility of substitution or error and that the question is one of reasonable probability that no tampering has occurred. The court found no irregularities in the record and, while suggesting that improvements in procedure were warranted, held that gaps in the chain of custody did not warrant overturning the conviction. I would note only that Brown was a criminal case, which if anything suggests a higher standard than would be applicable here.

State v. Matulewicz, 101 N.J. 27 (1985), is generally cited in connection with the business-entries exception to the rule against hearsay. The Court set out certain factors by which to measure the admissability of a state police chemist's report, i.e., the relative degree of objectivity and subjectivity in the analysis, the routine quality of the analysis, the regularity with which it is done, and the presence of any motive to single out a specific analysis for purposes of rendering an untrustworthy report. The laboratory reports here were entered in evidence without objection on any of these points. It is not entirely clear how respondent uses this case, although he appears to argue that the failure to utilize a chain-of-custody procedure makes the test sample and thus the reports inherently unreliable. The test results, of course, are only as good as the sample that arrived at MetPath, but I have found no reason to seriously question the collection process, and thus do not view this as a basis for undermining the MetPath results.

Respondent argues also that Dr. Bakshi, the courier who picked up this sample, and any MetPath employee who did actual testing, should have been called by petitioner to testify and that the failure to do so raises an adverse inference. State v. Clawans, 38 N.J. 162 (1962); Wild v. Roman, 91 N.J. Super. 410 (App. Div. 19676). I do not agree. While it may have been useful to have Dr. Bakshi's testimony about the origins of the procedure used in his office, Ms. Bender supervised this sampling and explained the procedure. Couriers pick up numerous pouches and would have no cause to remember this one. So too, the specific technician who performed the drug tests at MetPath would have nothing but an identification number to distinguish this sample, and it is unlikely that he or she would have much to add. This is not to say that these individuals could not have been called, or that they had nothing to contribute, rather that the failure to elicit their testimony does not make evident that petitioner feared calling them. It is only under such circumstances that an adverse inference can be drawn about what they might have been expected to say.

Based on the foregoing, it is my conclusion that petitioner has established that the urine sample collected from respondent on June 29, 1992, was collected in accordance with reasonable medical office and laboratory practice. It is ORDERED that respondent be dismissed from his position as lead custodian.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, 8th Floor West, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF HARRY CARAVELLO, SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE BOROUGH OF SOUTH PLAINFIELD, MIDDLESEX COUNTY.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION DECISION

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Respondent's exceptions were timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Respondent's exceptions essentially recast and reiterate arguments presented to the ALJ which the Commissioner determines were fully and fairly considered and addressed by the ALJ in his initial decision.

Upon a full review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusion of the initial decision that the protocols utilized to collect and test respondent's June 29, 1992 urine sample were in accord with reasonable medical office and laboratory practice. As such, although not specifically stated by the ALJ in his decision, the results of such testing, i.e., positive for cocaine -- particularly in light of respondent's existing agreement with the district as an outgrowth of prior charges of drug abuse -- establishes the Board's tenure charges of unbecoming conduct and other just cause in this matter, warranting respondent's dismissal from his position as lead custodian.

Accordingly, the Commissioner adopts the decision of the Office of Administrative Law as modified herein as the final decision in this matter. Respondent is hereby dismissed from his tenured position with the School District of the Borough of South Plainfield.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE :
HEARING OF HARRY CARAVELLO, :
SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE BOROUGH : STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION OF SOUTH PLAINFIELD, MIDDLESEX : DECISION COUNTY. :

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, December 1, 1993

For the Petitioner-Respondent, Wilentz, Goldman & Spitzer
(Robert J. Cirafesi, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Appellant, Klausner, Hunter, Cige & Seid
(Stephen E. Klausner, Esq., of Counsel)

The decision of the Commissioner of Education dismissing respondent from his tenured employment is affirmed, as modified herein. The tenure charges certified by the Board in this case for unbecoming conduct and other just cause were based exclusively on the results of a urine analysis test indicating the presence of cocaine in respondent's system. The sole issue was whether the protocols used in collecting and testing the sample were sufficiently trustworthy in this particular case to allow the results thereof to form the exclusive basis for respondent's dismissal. The Commissioner, concurring with the findings and conclusions of the Administrative Law Judge ("ALJ") that the protocols used were in accord with reasonable medical office and laboratory practice, added that:

March 2, 1994

> although not specifically stated by the ALJ in his decision, the results of such testing, i.e., positive for cocaine -- particularly in light of respondent's existing agreement with the district as an outgrowth of prior charges of drug abuse -- establishes the Board's tenure charges of unbecoming conduct and other just cause in this matter, warranting respondent's dismissal from his position as lead custodian.

Commissioner's Decision, slip op. at 12.

Although respondent had been indicted on charges of conspiracy to possess and distribute controlled dangerous substances, such charges had been dismissed following his completion of a pretrial intervention program ("PTI"). However, "an agreement to enter PTI does not conclusively establish the truth of the underlying charges...because...a plea of guilty is not a condition to entering the program....Indeed, [the] completion of PTI signifies nothing concerning the truth of the charges...." In the Matter of the Revocation of the Teaching Certificate of Thadeus Pawlak, Docket #A-3298-87T7, slip op. at 8-9 (App. Div. 1989). In this case, the respondent completed PTI, resulting in dismissal of the criminal charges, and those charges were not a basis for the instant tenure charges. As a result, it was improper for the Commissioner to consider the criminal charges in determining whether the instant tenure charges had been established.

However, after a thorough review of the record, we agree that respondent has failed to demonstrate that the collection and testing procedures followed in this instance were such that the results of such testing could not be relied upon. Given these results, we concur with the ALJ that the appropriate penalty is the dismissal of respondent from his tenured employment. See In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of David Fulcomer, 93 N.J. Super. 404 (App. Div. 1967).

BEFORE BRUCE R. CAMPBELL, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF CASE

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on January 29, 1993 for a hearing pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 through -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 through -13.

Counsel informed me that they believed the matter could be resolved without plenary hearing. Accordingly, counsel were provided time and, with notable diligence, produced an agreement that is equitable and embraces all issues in the matter but reaches no farther than it must.

The parties prepared the attached stipulation indicating the terms of settlement.

I have reviewed the record and the terms of settlement and FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law and public policy.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and therefore ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the COMMISSIONER does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

WHEREAS, the Petitioner filed three Petitions of Appeal with the Commissioner of Education alleging a superior claim to the positions abolished by Respondent, including a claim that the Respondent has improperly abolished the Tools for Life course following the Commissioner's decision ordering reinstatement; and

WHEREAS, the Commissioner of Education did adopt the recommended decision of the Administrative Law Judge that Respondent be reinstated to a position as teacher of Tools for Life; and

WHEREAS, Respondent filed an Appeal of the decision of the Commissioner of Education; and

WHEREAS, Petitioner filed a Notice of Cross Appeal of the decision of the Commissioner; and

WHEREAS, both Petitioner and Respondent have agreed as to what they believe to be a settlement which is in the best interest of all concerned;

IT IS HEREBY AGREED that the entire controversy and dispute is to be settled and resolved in the following manner:

1. Respondent shall pay to Petitioner the sum of $45,000.00 as back pay and back emoluments due to Petitioner. This figure represents the amount of monies Petitioner would have earned had her employment not been reduced and terminated by Respondent, including the cost of those fringe benefits Respondent did not receive as a result of the reduction and termination and was, therefore, required to purchase herself. This sum also includes deductions for other earnings and unemployment benefits received by Petitioner (mitigation). The parties acknowledge and agree that this sum represents salary (and fringe benefits) which would have been paid had Petitioner been employed as a full time teacher for the school year 1989-1990, 5/6ths teacher for the school year 1990-1991, a 2/3rds teacher for the school year 1991-1992, and a 2/3rds teacher for the school year 1992-1993, minus mitigation.

Petitioner will be responsible for the payment of all employee contributions for federal withholding tax, New Jersey income tax, social security, and pension contributions. Respondent will be responsible for all employer contributions for social security and for providing that the appropriate contribution is paid for Petitioner's New Jersey pension.

2. The parties agree that the monies to be paid, pursuant to paragraph 1 above, represents compensation for back pay, back emoluments and interest pursuant to the decision of the Commissioner of Education, which was appealed by Respondent, and for the purpose of resolving this long-standing litigation which will result in an amicable resolution of long-standing dispute and be in the best interests of both Respondent and Petitioner.

3. Respondent shall re-employ Petitioner for the school year beginning September 1, 1993 as a full time, teaching staff member, with assignments to be made as permitted under Petitioner's Certification and allowed by regulation, by the Superintendent of Schools or his designee. Respondent shall employ Petitioner for a two year period through June 30, 1995 provided in all events that Petitioner complies with all the rules and regulations governing teaching staff members under the laws of the State of New Jersey.

4. Respondent, as of June 30, 1995, shall have no further obligation to continue the employment of Petitioner and as of and after that date, Petitioner shall have no further entitlement to that position, nor to any other position in the Metuchen school district by virtue of tenure, seniority or otherwise, upon completion of the two year period of employment (June 30, 1995).

5. Petitioner, upon executing this Agreement, releases ar and all claims of any nature whatsoever that Petitioner has, had, or may have to and including the date of the settlement with regard to health benefits, pension benefits, wages, counsel fees, and other emoluments of her employment, which claims arose out of or are relating to three separate Petitions which were filed with the Commissioner of Education, except as provided in this Agreement.

6. Those individuals executing this agreement on behalf of the Respondent have been formally authorized by the Board of Education of said school district to enter into this agreement.

7. Petitioner and Respondent believe that this agreement is consistent with the public interest and public policy and is in their and the public's best interest because:

A. Petitioner made good faith efforts to mitigate the loss caused by the reduction and termination of her employment and this agreement compensates her for the differences between those monies and fringe benefits she would have earned had she been employed by Respondent on the date of reduction through June 30, 1993.

B. Respondent has a need for a full time teaching staff member to provide services as permitted under her certificate and as allowed by regulations.

C. This agreement will terminate a long period of litigation between the parties, thereby saving both parties expense and effort and resulting in an amicable resolution of a long-standing dispute.

8. For the reasons as set forth above, Petitioner and Respondent believe that an amicable and expeditious settlement of the dispute based upon the foregoing terms is in the interest of themselves and the public. In consideration of these terms and subject to the approval of the Commissioner of Education, Petitioner and Respondent hereby agree that the dispute between them shall be resolved based upon the terms and conditions as set forth herein. SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, tenured high school English teacher, contested her reassignment by Board to Elementary School Librarian/Media Specialist position. Claiming retaliation for union activities, petitioner sought reinstatement to her position which was filled by a nontenured teacher when petitioner was involuntarily transferred.

ALJ concluded matter was within Commissioner's jurisdiction provided hearing was restricted to issues of whether transfer violated tenure and seniority rights of petitioner and what relief was warranted. ALJ concluded involuntary transfer was violation of petitioner's statutory tenure rights. (Kratt, Childs) Petitioner was involuntarily transferred from a tenured position within the scope of one certificate to a separately tenurable position within the scope of another. Although Board asserts that involuntary transfer is recognized under the collective bargaining contract between the parties, Board cannot claim that the contract authorizes an unlawful act. If there is truly a real dispute with respect to the contract provision such must be determined before PERC rather than the Commissioner. ALJ ordered petitioner reinstated as high school English teacher with compensation.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision emphasizing that N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 and 28-6, when read together, prohibit transfer or reassignment between separately tenurable positions without consent of affected individual. Commissioner ordered reinstatement of petitioner with compensation.

Record Closed: October 14, 1993 Decided: October 20, 1993

BEFORE EDITH KLINGER, ALJ:

On March 22, 1993, petitioners filed a verified petition with the Commissioner of Education alleging that the North Bergen Board of Education (Board) violated the tenure rights of Elizabeth Mustillo when it transferred her involuntarily from a position of classroom teacher of English at the high school level to the position of librarian/media specialist at the Horace Mann Elementary School. They further allege that the transfer was not in the best interests of the district and was made because of Mustillo's actions as a union representative and as a teacher. Petitioners seek to have Mustillo restored to her classroom position, which is presently occupied by a nontenured teacher. They also seek to have a letter, dated December 21, 1992, from Peter J. Fischbach, assistant superintendent of the district, notifying her of the pending reassignment, removed from her file. Allegedly the letter was placed in her file illegally and contains information which is not true.

Respondent filed its answer on April 15, 1993, denying the allegations of the petition. The Board also challenged the jurisdiction of the Commissioner of Education (Commissioner) to decide the issues raised in the petition. On April 22, 1993, the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for hearing as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

The case was assigned to the undersigned on May 20, 1993. A telephone conference was held with the parties on June 17, 1993, at which time the Board was directed to make a motion for summary decision based upon the threshold issue of its challenge to the jurisdiction of the Commissioner.

The Board's motion was filed on July 16, 1993. Based upon the allegation in the petition that the Board's transfer of Mustillo was "motivated and precipitated by the fact that (a) Mustillo is a union representative, (b) action and conduct on her part as a union representative and a teacher," the Board argued that the petition actually alleges an unfair labor practice and not a controversy arising under the school laws. The Public Employment Relations Commission (PERC) and not the Commissioner has the exclusive jurisdiction to resolve unfair labor practices.

On August 5, 1993, petitioners responded that irrespective of the Board's motivation Mustillo's tenure and seniority rights were violated when she was involuntarily transferred. Petitioners filed a separate motion for summary decision based upon the wrongful transfer. The Board responded on September 9, 1993. It asserted its right to transfer a teacher from one tenured position to another in the best interests of the students.

Following a review of the papers submitted by the parties, it became apparent that the matter could be decided without the need for hearing. However, if relief were granted to Mustillo, it would affect the employment of the teacher who was filling her former position.

For this reason, a telephone conference was held with the parties on September 13, 1993. The attorney for petitioners was directed to send notice to any teacher whose employment might be affected by the outcome of this proceeding and give him or her the opportunity to intervene.

On September 24, 1993, the attorney for petitioners served all eight persons who might be affected with a notice to intervene in the proceeding. They were informed that, if they wished to be heard, they were to notify the administrative law judge within ten days of receipt of the notice. The record was closed on October 14, 1993, when no one requested to intervene.

THE JURISDICTION MOTION

Mustillo's complaint, that she was transferred involuntarily in violation of her tenure and seniority rights, arises under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 and the regulations promulgated thereunder. These issues are squarely within the jurisdiction of the Commissioner. The Board has correctly stated that any issue of anti-union animus must be brought before PERC, not the Commissioner, and therefore, may not be heard in this forum. Consequently, I CONCLUDE that the present matter is within the jurisdiction of the Commissioner provided that the hearing is restricted to the issues of whether the transfer violated the tenure and seniority rights of Mustillo and the relief, if any, to which she may be entitled.

I further CONCLUDE that there is no reason why the North Bergen Federation of Teachers, Local 1060, AFL-CIO (union), may not remain as a party to this appeal. The union has been involved in this dispute from the outset. Both Mustillo and the union have been represented throughout by the same attorney and the union has agreed to restrict its participation only to the issues available to Mustillo. See Winston v. Bd. of Ed. of So. Plainfield, 64 N.J. 582, 587 (1974).

STATEMENT OF FACTS

Elizabeth Mustillo has been employed by the Board for twenty- five years. According to petitioners and not disputed by respondent, Mustillo has a Secondary School Teacher of English certificate since June 1968 and an Educational Media Specialist certificate since July 1990. Between September 1968 and February 1974, she was employed as a classroom teacher of language arts at the seventh and eighth grade level. From March 1974 to the date of her transfer in February 1993, she was a teacher in the English department at the North Bergen High School.

On December 21, 1992, Mustillo received a letter from Assistant Superintendent of Personnel Peter Fischbach informing her that "as a result of [a review by Robert Peirano, District Supervisor of Media,] of all eligible applicants, he has recommended you for the position of Elementary Media Specialist at Horace Mann School. Therefore, I am pleased to inform you that you will be reassigned to the Media Specialist position at Horace Mann School effective January 11, 1993." The Board passed a resolution adopting the reassignment at its January 1993 meeting.

The Board did not contest petitioners' assertion that Mustillo never applied for this position. There is no dispute that Mustillo's second certificate is the proper one for the new position.

According to Fischbach, the position of elementary media specialist at the Horace Mann School had been vacant for about a year. Attempts to fill the position with a qualified individual had proved unsuccessful. The district searched through its own personnel and found that Mustillo possessed the required certification to fill the position. In what the Board characterizes as an act of managerial discretion, it transferred her into the position on December 21, 1992, effective January 11, 1993.

Mustillo grieved Fischbach's letter of December 21, 1992, through the union. A letter from Ralph Fedele, Grievance Director, NBFT Local 1060, dated January 8, 1993, to Leo Gattoni, Jr., Superintendent of Schools, states that the transfer of Mustillo was involuntary and insists that Fischbach's letter, which describes Mustillo as an "applicant" for the position, be removed from her personnel file.

Mustillo also requested that the effective date of transfer to the new position be postponed to February 1, 1993, the beginning of the new term. Fischbach notified her by letter, dated January 8, 1993, that the effective date of her transfer was changed to February 1, 1993, subject to Board approval.

On January 26, 1993, Mustillo wrote a letter to Fischbach stating in relevant part:

> At the Board of Education meeting on Wednesday, January 20, 1993, the members of the Board of Education approved an involuntary transfer concerning me into a position in which I hold my Master's degree. However, no resolution was read to approve the $1350 annual stipend (prorated) I should receive based upon the current contract agreement, Paragraph 35, Schedule A, Differential.

The increase in compensation was approved.

She was replaced in her classroom by a nontenured teacher.

Mustillo signed her petition appealing the transfer on March 19, 1993, and filed it with the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes of the Department of Education, on March 22, 1993.

The Board opposes Mustillo's motion for summary decision by claiming that the communications between the Board and Mustillo show that her transfer was not involuntary because she allegedly accepted the position, subject only to a change in the starting date and the compensation. These communications, it argues, create a question of material fact which requires a hearing. Consequently, summary decision should not be granted. The Board's argument is based solely upon these communications which were attached to their responses.

I FIND this assertion to be totally without merit. At all times, Mustillo and the union have referred to her transfer as "involuntary." Just because Mustillo requested that she, at least, be allowed to complete the last few weeks of the marking period in her classroom and insisted that she be paid at the rate to which she was entitled in the new position, does not in any way signify her consent to the transfer. She was not required to accept a severe disruption and inadequate pay in order to avoid the appearance of consent. I FIND that the Board's argument, that the communications raise the question of Mustillo's consent, is not supported by the documents themselves, and therefore, there is no genuine issue of material fact which requires a hearing. Judson v. Peoples Bank & Trust Co. of Westfield, 17 N.J. 67, 74-5 (1954).

DISCUSSION OF LAW AND CONCLUSIONS

Based upon the above, I CONCLUDE that summary decision is appropriate in this matter, pursuant to Judson v. Peoples Bank & Trust Co. of Westfield, supra, since there are no genuine issues of material fact.

The issue is whether the Board lawfully transferred Mustillo to an equivalent position. A lateral transfer to an equivalent position is within the managerial discretion of the Board. It does not require the petitioner's consent because the status quo is not interrupted and the public policy underlying the tenure laws is not violated. See, Viemeister v. Prospect Park Bd. of Ed., 5 N.J. Super. 215, 218 (App. Div. 1949); Childs v. Union Tp. Bd. of Ed.., 3 N.J.A.R. 163 (Comm'r of Ed. 1980); 1982 S.L.D. 1456 (App. Div. July 19, 1982); see, R. 2:2-3(a)(2).

However, when a tenured teaching staff member is transferred into a different position or promoted, consent is required and the applicable time period for tenure may begin to run anew. In the present case, Mustillo did not consent to being transferred and alleges that the transfer violates her tenure rights because her new assignment is a separately tenurable position.

In support of her argument, Mustillo cites Kratt v. Bd. of Ed. of the Tp. of Randolph, 1985 S.L.D. 1567, aff'd, State Board, 1986 S.L.D. 3075, for the proposition that N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 and N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6, when read together, prohibit the transfer of an individual without consent between separately tenurable positions. Kratt held both an instructional certificate with an endorsement in social studies (N.J.A.C. 6:11-6.2(a)22) and an educational services certification with an endorsement as an educational media specialist (N.J.A.C. 6:11-12.21). Both the Commissioner and the State Board held that since the two positions required different certifications, they were clearly separately tenurable positions. As such, Kratt could not be moved between them without his consent. 1986 S.L.D. at 3075 (State Board agreeing with the Commissioner that Childs v. Union Tp. Bd. of Ed., 1982 S.L.D. 1456, is controlling). See also, 3 N.J.A.R. 163 (Comm'r of Ed. 1980). Mustillo also holds both an instructional certificate and an educational services certificate. She was involuntarily transferred from a tenured position within the scope of one certificate to a separately tenurable position within the scope of the other. I CONCLUDE that, pursuant to Kratt, supra, and Childs, supra, this involuntary transfer was in violation of her statutory tenure rights.

The Board cannot claim that an unlawful act is within its managerial prerogative. Paragraph 15(e) of the Contractual Agreement in effect between the Board and the union provides for involuntary transfers of a member of the teachers' collective bargaining unit "in the best interests of the individual or the system." However, this provision can only refer to the involuntary lateral transfer of a unit member to an equivalent position. It will not be read here to confer upon the Board the right to freely violate the tenure rights of the unit members. If there is any real dispute between the union and the Board as to the meaning of this contract provision, it must be determined before PERC and not the Commissioner.

Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that Mustillo must be reinstated immediately to her former position as a teacher of English at the high school level. She may be expected to replace a nontenured teacher. I further CONCLUDE that, because she was improperly placed in a position for which a higher salary was appropriate, upon reinstatement her salary should be restored immediately to the level it would have been for the 1993-94 school year but for the unlawful transfer. No other relief is appropriate.

ORDER

It is hereby ORDERED that Elizabeth Mustillo be immediately reinstated in a position of English teacher at the North Bergen High School. It is further ORDERED that, upon reinstatement, her salary be restored to the level it would have been for this position, if the improper transfer had not taken place.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

NORTH BERGEN FEDERATION OF TEACHERS, LOCAL 1060, AMERICAN FEDERATION OF TEACHERS, AFL-CIO, AN UNINCORPORATED LABOR ASSOCIATION, AND ELIZABETH MUSTILLO,	:
PETITIONERS,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF NORTH BERGEN, HUDSON COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record and initial decision rendered by the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Respondent filed timely exceptions in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

The crux of the Board's exceptions is the recasting and reiteration, albeit in a variety of ways, of one of its arguments presented to the ALJ. Essentially, it contends that summary decision in this matter is inappropriate since whether petitioner's transfer constitutes a dismissal remains a matter of factual controversy. The Board argues that such transfer was in the best interest of the educational system and, therefore, recognized as a legitimate act by virtue of the contract agreement between the Board and the North Bergen Federation of Teachers.

The Board lastly urges that in the event the Commissioner upholds the ALJ's initial decision, immediate reinstatement not be the remedy accorded. It requests, instead, that petitioner continue in her current position as Media Specialist/Librarian until the vacancy created by her transfer back to the classroom is filled.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner agrees with the findings and conclusion of the ALJ that under Childs, supra, and Kratt, supra, petitioner's involuntary transfer in the instant matter was a violation of her statutory tenure rights.

The Commissioner finds and determines that the law, under the circumstances in this matter, is clear. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 and 28-6, when read together, prohibit transfer or reassignment between separately tenurable positions without the consent of the affected individual. Such transfer is effectively a "dismissal" from the former position which requires compliance with the tenure laws regarding transfer.

The Commissioner is also in full accord with the ALJ's determination with respect to the impact of the Board's contract with the Teachers Association in this matter.

> The Board cannot claim that an unlawful act is within its managerial prerogative. Paragraph 15(e) of the Contractual Agreement in effect between the Board and the union provides for involuntary transfers of a member of the teachers' collective bargaining unit "in the best interests of the individual or the system." However, this provision can only refer to the involuntary lateral transfer of a unit member to an equivalent position. It will not be read here to confer upon the Board the right to freely violate the tenure rights of the unit members. If there is any real dispute between the union and the Board as to the meaning of this contract provision, it must be determined before PERC and not the Commissioner.
> (Initial Decision, at pp. 6-7)

Accordingly, the recommended decision of the Office of Administrative Law is adopted as the final decision in this matter.

The Commissioner hereby orders that petitioner be immediately reinstated in a position of English teacher at the North Bergen High School and, upon such reinstatement, her salary be restored to the level it would have been for this position if the improper transfer had not taken place.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning District sought return of $818,486 of Level III state aid monies which were recalled by State as surplus, alleging that surplus situation arose as a result of delays in disbursement of state funds and an expenditure freeze undertaken in consequence thereof. Monies had been given for 1989-90 school year.

ALJ concluded no genuine issues of material fact existed and that it was clear that District did not need the funds in the first place since it had a substantial surplus which according to statute (N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-14) should have been applied to reallocate funds in order to support corrective action plan. Moreover, District was advised of condition that would govern the grant -- if money was not needed, it would be recovered by the State. Respondent's application for summary judgment was granted and petition was dismissed.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision.

OF EDUCATION, DIVISION OF FINANCE,

Ronald C. Hunt, Esq., for petitioner (Ashley & Charles, attorneys)

(Frederick P. DeVesa, Acting Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney)

Record Closed: September 10, 1993 Decided: October 22, 1993

BEFORE ARNOLD SAMUELS, ALJ:

The petitioner, Board of Education of the City of Orange (Board), appeals from a determination by the respondent, Division of Finance in the New Jersey State Department of Education (Department), seeking return of $818,486 in Level III State-aid money, which was paid to the petitioner to fund a Level III corrective action plan for the 1989-90 school year.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

In June 1991, the Department reduced the 1990-91 State aid due to the Board by $818,486, in order recover or recoup an alleged overpayment of Level III aid given to the Board for the previous school year, 1989-90. The Board filed a petition of appeal on September 3, 1991, claiming that the State's action, taking back Level III monies which were properly expended, was unfair and unjustified.

The Commissioner of Education transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on October 16, 1991, for hearing and determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

Several unsuccessful settlement conferences were held thereafter, and on October 27, 1992, the respondent filed a motion for summary decision. Papers in opposition were filed by the petitioner on January 4, 1993, and the Department filed a reply brief on February 10, 1993. Oral argument on the motion was heard for several days between October 27, 1992 and August 4, 1993. The record closed on September 13, 1993, when the parties advised that no further papers would be filed.

DISCUSSION

A summary decision may be rendered if the papers and discovery which have been filed, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law. N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b).

This rule is substantially similar to the summary judgment rule in the New Jersey Court Rules, R. 4:46-2.

A summary judgment proceeding is designed to allow the judge quickly and inexpensively to dispose of any case which does not present any genuine issue of material fact requiring disposition at a hearing. Judson v. Peoples Bank & Trust Co. of Westfield, 17 N.J. 67, 74 (1954). The role of the judge in such a motion is to determine whether there is a genuine issue of material fact, but not to decide the issue if such an issue exists. Judson at 73.

The standards governing the grant or denial of a summary decision emphasize that a party opposing a motion is not to be denied an evidential hearing unless the moving party sustains his or her burden of clearly showing the absence of a genuine issue of material fact. Thus, it is the movant's burden to exclude any reasonable doubt as to the existence of any material fact. All inferences of doubt are to be drawn against the movant and in favor of the party against whom the motion is directed. The papers supporting the motion are closely scrutinized and the opposing papers are indulgently treated. Judson at 75.

This dispute involves the respondent's recovery of $818,486 in Level III State aid that was given to the petitioner in the 1989-90 school year for implementation of a corrective action plan. The respondent claims that the additional funds were not needed by the district because the final audit for the year, once completed, revealed the existence of a 1989-90 current expense-free balance (surplus), which was not known to exist when the additional funds were granted.

The procedures involved in funding a corrective action plan, formulated after failure by a school district to correct deficiencies, are set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-14. Subsection (d) of this statute authorizes the Commissioner of Education to identify aspects of the corrective action plan already contained in the district's current expense budget, and where appropriate, to reallocate funds within the district's budget to support the plan. The Commissioner is then further empowered to determine the amount of additional revenue, if any, needed to implement the corrective action plan.

The statute authorizes the State to then provide the needed additional aid to the district at the district's State support level. In the 1989-90 school year, the State support level for the petitioner's district was 70.41 percent.

This procedure was followed in the City of Orange Township School District for the 1989-90 school year. However, the district did not complete its application for additional funds early in the school year, and the financial information available in the Spring of 1990, indicated that a deficit might result. This was concurred in by the Essex County Superintendent of Schools, who had been assisting the district and the Commissioner's office in evaluating the situation.

Fearing the possibility of a deficit before being assured that additional State aid was forthcoming, the district instituted a budgetary freeze.

At that time, in March and April 1990, no definitive budgetary information was available in the district relating to its actual financial condition at the time, with any degree of reliability; nor was any such information available to the County Superintendent or the Commissioner of Education.

Based on the foregoing, the Essex County Superintendent of Schools certified that, following the reallocation of the district's known funds, the budget contained $1,454,555 in new expenditures for implementation of the Level III corrective action plan.

On April 30, 1990, Robert J. Swissler, Assistant Commissioner in the Department of Education, wrote a letter to the Board secretary of the City of Orange Board of Education stating that the County Superintendent's certification had been approved, and it was recommended that the district be provided with State aid, at its 1989-90 State support ratio (70.41 percent), in the amount of $1,024,152. The letter further indicated that the funds would be included in the district's June aid payment.

Since the above action had been based on preliminary estimates of financial condition only, a caveat was included in Mr. Swissler's letter, as follows:

> In the event that the additional funds certified to implement the Level corrective action plan were overestimated and result in a current expense (J-1) free balance at June 30, 1990, the district's 1990-91 State aid payments will be reduced by the product of said free balance multiplied by the district's 1989-90 State support ratio, and the district will be required to reduce the amount of free balance accordingly in order to fully fund the 1990-91 budget.

In effect, this meant that, if it were subsequently discovered that the district in fact had a surplus, rather than a deficit, for the 1989-90 year, the Department of Education would recoup the additional State aid that had been paid by reducing the following year's aid accordingly. Such an action would have the effect of retroactively requiring the district to appropriate and use its surplus in the same manner as would have been the case if the surplus was known at the time of the initial reallocation of funds.

Sometime in May of 1990, Edward D. Kent, Chief of Auditing in the Bureau of Compliance of the Department of Education, reviewed the district's financial records to determine if the concerns relating to a possible deficit were correct. According to Mr. Kent's certification in lieu of affidavit, he did not do a comprehensive audit of the district's finances. He stated that, "Rather, I did a quick budget projection to see if the district would conclude the year with a deficit. I determined that it would not." However, he also said that there was no way at that time, based on records available to him as of May 4, 1990, how much year-end surplus the district would have as of June 30, approximately two months later. He stated that "Until the fiscal year is concluded and all expenditures and revenues are accounted for, there is no way to project how much the district will have as a free balance on June 30."

The required final audit was more than seven months overdue. It was filed in June 1991. Only then did the Department of Education first become aware of the amount of the district's surplus for the previous school year. The district itself did not know the extent of its surplus or the fact that any surplus existed at all, until the final audit was completed.

At that point, the Department of Education moved to take back or recoup the 1989-90 additional State aid that had been paid to the district in June 1990.

The recoupment does not attempt to recover the entire amount paid, $1,024,152. Instead, the amount to be recovered applies the same formula that was used when the funds were given: the amount of the free balance (surplus) multiplied by 70.41 percent, the district's 1989-90 State support ratio. The district's 1990-91 State aid was therefore reduced by $818,486. This method nevertheless permitted the district to retain $205,666 of the money that had been previously paid, notwithstanding the fact that the final audit disclosed a surplus in the amount of $1,162,456.

All of the foregoing facts have been established without contradiction, and none of the factual material recited above was challenged or controverted by the petitioner. In its brief, and in oral argument, the petitioner has stated that there are numerous issues of material fact still in dispute. However, when asked for a more specific showing of such disputed facts, the petitioner identified only two areas of concern.

First, the district contends that the statutory responsibility attributed to the Commissioner is a factual dispute, based on the language of N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-14(d). It is concluded that this concern is a legal question, not an issue of material fact. Moreover, the petitioner did not follow this contention with any argument calculated to demonstrate that the Commissioner of Education is not empowered by statute to control the operation of Level III monitoring and financing in the manner that was done in this case.

Secondly, the petitioner argues that the State should be estopped from recovering the funds sought because of Mr. Kent's audit, which did not show the amount of the surplus, but predicted that no deficit would result. This contention again is not evidence of a disputed fact. Nothing was produced to rebut Mr. Kent's certification, which was attached to the respondent's moving papers. It is clear that Mr. Kent performed a preliminary projection, without benefit of final figures or knowledge of what the district would spend in its operations during the last two months of the year. (The preliminary audit used figures supplied as of May 4, 1990.) The grant was committed, in Mr. Swissler's letter, even before the results of Mr. Kent's audit were filed. The Orange Board of Education was undoubtedly given the benefit of the doubt, with a clear condition attached. Therefore, responsibility for the district's unknown financial condition cannot be shifted to the respondent based on Mr. Kent's audit. The district itself was not aware of its own physical condition, because of its failure to file reports on time, its failure to perform timely audits and failure to keep its own financial house in order. There is no justification for the district to have expected the State to do that for them.

Clearly, the condition under which the Department forwarded the additional aid was reasonable. Mr. Swissler's letter clearly points out that if later audits indicate that the money was not needed, it would be recovered.

It is therefore clearly CONCLUDED that no genuine issues of material fact exist. The respondent has successfully excluded any reasonable doubt as to the existence of any material fact, even after all reasonable inferences of doubt have been drawn against the Department.

It is clear that the district did not need the funds in the first place, since it had a substantial surplus, which, according to the statute, should have been applied to reallocate funds in order to support the corrective action plan. The fact that the district was unaware of this does not change the situation. Additionally, the district was clearly advised of the condition that would govern the grant. This condition was met when a surplus was shown, and the excess State aid, in accordance with the appropriate formula, was taken back pursuant to the terms contained in Mr. Swissler's letter. No facts have been shown to justify the district's attempt to retain the funds that should not have been given. The money was paid because the petitioner was given the benefit of the doubt, in the absence of definitive financial information, and to enable the district to complete the corrective action plan for the year if a deficit was forthcoming.

ORDER

It is therefore ORDERED that the respondent's application for summary judgment be GRANTED, and the petition DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

PETITIONER-APPELLANT,	:
V.	:	STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION
NEW JERSEY STATE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, DIVISION OF FINANCE,	:	DECISION ON MOTION
RESPONDENT-RESPONDENT.	:

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, December 2, 1993

For the Petitioner-Appellant, Ashley & Charles (Ronald C. Hunt, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Respondent, Arlene G. Lutz, Deputy Attorney General (Deborah T. Poritz, Attorney General of New Jersey)

On December 2, 1993, the Commissioner of Education rendered a decision in this matter dismissing the petition filed by the Board of Education of the City of Orange (hereinafter "Board") challenging action by the Division of Finance of the State Department of Education to recoup $818,486 which had been paid to the Board to fund implementation of a Level III corrective action plan for the 1989-90 school year. The Commissioner adopted the findings and conclusions of an Administrative Law Judge ("ALJ") that a final audit completed subsequent to the grant revealed a substantial surplus in the district which, according to statute, should have been applied to reallocate funds in order to support the corrective action plan. The Commissioner agreed with the ALJ that no facts had been shown to justify the Board's attempt to retain funds it had been given, in the absence of definitive financial information, to enable it to complete the corrective action plan.

On March 10, 1994, the Board moved to file a notice of appeal to the State Board of Education nunc pro tunc. In a certification filed therewith, the counsel for the Board averred that on December 23, 1993, the Board, "operating under the mistaken belief that all administrative remedies had been exhausted, filed a Notice of Appeal to the Superior Court Appellate Division....The [Board] thereafter withdrew the appeal and now seeks to have their exceptions to the Commissioner of Education's decision considered by the State Board of Education."

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-28, appeals to the State Board must be taken "within 30 days after the decision appealed from is filed." The State Board may not grant extensions. N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.5(a). In contrast to the period for filing petitions to the Commissioner of Education, see N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2; N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.15, the time limit within which an appeal must be taken to the State Board is statutory, and, given the jurisdictional nature of the statutory time limit, the State Board lacks the authority to extend it. Mount Pleasant-Blythedale Union Free School District v. New Jersey Department of Education, Docket #A-2180-89T1, slip op. at 5 (App. Div. 1990).

We conclude that the statutory filing requirement with which the Board failed to comply is of such significance that we deny the instant motion. In Yorke v. Board of Education of the Township of Piscataway, decided by the State Board of Education, July 6, 1988, aff'd, Docket #A-5912-87T1 (App. Div. 1989), the Court upheld the dismissal of an appeal by the State Board where it found that the notice of appeal had been filed one day late by appellant's counsel who alleged that he had misread or misunderstood the applicable regulations. The Court added that even if the statute could be construed to permit enlargement of the time for filing an appeal, the appellant therein had failed to establish good cause.

In this case, the Commissioner's decision was rendered on December 2, 1993 and mailed to the parties on that date. Accordingly, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.4, the decision appealed from was deemed filed on December 5. Therefore, as mandated by N.J.S.A. 18A:6-28, see N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.3(a); N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.4(a), as computed under N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.4(b), the Board was required to file its notice of appeal to the State Board on or before January 4, 1994. The Board's motion to file nunc pro tunc was dated March 8, 1994 and filed on March 10.

Even if N.J.S.A. 18A:6-28 can be construed to provide us with the authority to enlarge the time limit for filing an appeal, we find no substantive basis to warrant doing so in this particular instance. Notwithstanding counsel for the Board's "mistaken belief" that administrative remedies had been exhausted, the law is clear and unambiguous that "[a]ny party aggrieved by any determination of the Commissioner may appeal from his determination to the state board." N.J.S.A. 18A:6-27. Such appeal process is reiterated in our regulations: "Final decisions of the Commissioner...are appealable to the State Board of Education." N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.1(a). Moreover, counsel for the Board was expressly advised in a cover letter accompanying the Commissioner's decision in this matter that "[a]ppeals of decisions rendered by the Commissioner must be filed with the State Board of Education pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.1 et seq. except for matters relative to the New Jersey State Interscholastic Athletic Association and State Department of Education employee contractual matters." Thus, even if counsel for the Board had not been aware of his statutory obligation, he was expressly notified that his appeal from the Commissioner's decision was required to be filed with the State Board.

Accordingly, we deny the Board's motion to file its appeal in this matter nunc pro tunc.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, 35 custodial employees and their bargaining representative (Teachers Association), alleged Board's decision to subcontract custodial services violated their tenure rights, Open Public Meetings Act (OPMA) and pertinent bidding laws.

ALJ concluded that petitioners demonstrated a sufficient stake in the outcome and substantial likelihood of financial harm from the Board's decision to subcontract custodial services and, therefore, had standing to challenge the Board's award of the bid to Control Building Services, Inc. She further concluded that Board's decision to subcontract was a legitimate exercise of managerial prerogative done in good faith based on economic reasons and its dissatisfaction with the work performance of custodians and that petitioners' tenure rights were not violated by the Board's decision to subcontract custodial services and terminate their employment. (Hunterdon State Board decision and N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3) Moreover, ALJ concluded Board committed no violations of OPMA and bidding process was open to Association. ALJ affirmed Board's decision to subcontract custodial services and to terminate its custodial employees. Petition was dismissed.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision.

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioners, Gary Angel and Ronald Payne, et als.,[1] custodial maintenance employees and their collective bargaining representative, the Englewood Teachers' Association (Association), challenge the validity of the action by the respondent, Englewood Board of Education (Board), terminating their employment and awarding a contract to Control Building Services, Inc. (Control Services) to provide custodial services. Petitioners allege that the Board's decision to subcontract the custodial services was not done in good faith or for reasons of economy. Petitioners also allege that the Board's decision to subcontract the custodial services violated their tenure rights.

[1]There are thirty-five custodial petitioners.

Respondent argues that petitioners/custodians were terminated based on reasons of economy and the Board's dissatisfaction with their performance. Respondent also argues that petitioners do not have standing, either as taxpayers or potential bidders, to challenge the Control Services' bid. It is also argued that only five custodians out of thirty-five may have acquired tenure, and their tenure rights were not violated.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On August 19, 1992, the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for hearing as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. A prehearing conference was held on October 27, 1992. On October 26, 1992, the Board filed a Motion To Dismiss, contending that there was no genuine issue of any material fact. Thus, it was entitled to a summary decision as a matter of law. On February 22, 1993, I issued an order granting the Board partial summary decision. I concluded that the Board committed no violations of the Open Public Meetings Act, and therefore, granted the Board's motion on these issues. However, I also concluded that there existed genuine issues of fact on whether Control Services met the bid specifications; whether the Board's decision to subcontract the custodial services was undertaken in good faith; and whether petitioners' tenure rights were violated. Therefore, summary decision was denied on these issues.

On March 2, 1993, the Board filed a Motion for Interlocutory Review before the Commissioner of Education on that portion of the administrative law judge's (ALJ's) order denying summary decision. On March 19, 1993, the Commission affirmed the ALJ's order with one modification: "that the question of petitioners' standing to raise a claim under school bidding laws be determined as a threshold matter before their allegation regarding Control Services' meeting the Boards' specification shall proceed to hearing on the merits, if appropriate" (Decision on Motion at 20).

A second prehearing conference was held on April 14, 1993, incorporating the Commissioner's Decision on Motion. Also, on April 13, 1993, petitioners withdrew their Motion for Predominate Interest Determination filed on January 4, 1993.

Hearings were held on June 15, 16, 17, and August 2, 1993. Petitioners presented four witnesses and respondent presented seven witnesses. The parties submitted posthearing briefs, and the record closed on September 21, 1993.

ISSUES

1. Whether petitioners have standing to claim that the Board's acceptance of Control Services' bid violated the school bidding laws?

2. Whether the Board acted in good faith when it decided to subcontract the custodial services and terminate petitioners; and if so, whether the bid submitted by Control Services conformed to bid specifications?

3. Whether petitioners have tenure, and if so, were their tenure rights violated by the Board's decision to terminate their employment?

JOINT STIPULATION OF FACTS

The following stipulated facts are adopted as Findings of Fact:

1. The Collective Bargaining Agreement covering the period from July 1, 1989 to June 30, 1992, contains the terms and conditions of petitioners' employment and covers the period when this cause of action arose.

2. During the 1991-92 school year and for several years proceeding, the Board had subcontracted for custodial management services with Service Master.

3. There was a reduction of $387,545 in state aid to the Board for transportation, special education, at-risk pupils, bilingual education, and county vocational program for the 1992-93 school year.

4. On March 6, 1992, the Board published a Notice to Bidder in The Record newspaper inviting public bidding for the subcontracting of services for plant operation, custodial and maintenance, which bids were to be opened on March 19, 1992.

5. At its March 19, 1992 official public meeting, the Board adopted a resolution rejecting all bids and directing a rebid at the recommendation of the Board attorney.

6. Because the Association was the exclusive representative for collective negotiations concerning the custodial maintenance employees, the Board notified the Association by letter of March 24, 1992, as set forth below:

> This is to advise you that the Board is exploring contracting either the managerial services or the total services for the custodial and building emergency services for the school district.
>
> We have sent out bid notices for these two areas of work. We have not determined, at the present time, which of the possibilities we will contract. However, we will keep you informed as to our intent in this matter.
>
> If you have any questions, please do not hesitate to call.

7. On March 25, 1992, another Notice to Bidder was published in The Record inviting rebidding for the subcontracting of custodial and maintenance services. The revised bids for management and staff were designated separately as "M-2, Contracted Services for Plant Management and Personnel for Custodian and Maintenance & Pickup Mail Services" and as "M-3, Contracted Services for Plant Management."

8. The bids received pursuant to the March 25, 1992 Notice to Bidder were opened. At its April 16, 1993 meeting, the bid submitted by Control Services was the lowest responsive bid for the M-2 bid.

9. The bid specifications state in relevant part that the bidder

> 4. Must presently be providing Maintenance and Custodial Operations in the State of New Jersey for an educational institution(s).
>
> 5. Must provide a reference list of six (6) currently served clients.

10. Neither petitioners nor its agents ever contacted the Solomon Schecter Day School to investigate the employment history and qualifications of Control Services at that institution.

11. During 1992, the parties met to negotiate a successor collective bargaining agreement for teachers, secretaries, professional assistants, and custodians and maintenance staff on March 25, April 15, May 5, and July 2, 1992. At the May 5, 1992 meeting, petitioners presented their proposals for a severance package for the custodial employees. The only contractual proposal proposed by petitioners at the May 5th meeting with respect to custodial and maintenance employees was the above-referenced written severance package. On or about April 14, 1992, the Board negotiator, John Miraglia, met with the Association's negotiator, Evan Goldman, and advised him of the Board's intent to subcontract management and custodial and maintenance services.

12. At the April 16, 1992 official public Board meeting, there was discussion by the public with respect to the M-2 and M-3 bids prior to the introduction of the resolutions. Subsequent to the public discussion, the Board adopted Resolution "25a" awarding the M-2 bid to Control Services for management and personnel services and adopted Resolution "25b" rejecting all of the M-3 bids for management services only.

13. On April 16, 1992, the Board individually notified all custodial and maintenance personnel by certified letters that the termination of their employment would be discussed at the April 21, 1992 special public meeting.

14. At the April 21, 1992 special public meeting, Carol Feinstein, president of the Association, read a statement asking the Board to reconsider the bid awarded to Control Services and the termination of all custodians. No other person spoke on behalf of the custodians although many custodians were in the audience. After public discussion, the Board adopted Resolution No. 44 which abolished all custodial and building emergency service positions and terminated the employees holding those positions as of June 30, 1992.

15. By letters of April 22, 1992, the Board notified all of the affected individuals that their employment would be terminated as of June 30, 1992, which was the last day of the Collective Bargaining Agreement.

16. At the May 7, 1992 Board special public meeting, there was a lengthy discussion by the public regarding the dismissal of the custodial staff and the approval of the contract with Control Services with approximately 36 members of the public making statements. After the special public meeting ended, the Board reconvened for its closed executive session meeting at approximately 11:00 p.m. that evening.

17. At the May 21, 1992 Board public meeting, there was another lengthy public discussion regarding the dismissal of custodians as well as teachers whose contracts had not been renewed. Teachers, custodians and representatives of the Association spoke in support of the teachers and custodians.

18. At the June 1, 1992 special public meeting, the business manager/Board secretary, Ronald Piliere, presented to the Board various items involving the bid and contract with Control Services, including the economic savings to the district and a history of the budget problems involved. Thereafter, many members of the public, including representatives of the Association, the custodians and Englewood residents, engaged in lengthy discussion. Following the public discussion, the Board adopted a resolution approving the contract with Control Services by a vote of 5 to 2.

I

Standing

Petitioners contend that they have standing to challenge the bid award to Control Services. The individual petitioners, Angel and Payne, were residents, citizens, property owners, and taxpayers of the City of Englewood when the cause of action arose, and thus, have standing to bring this action. Also, it is contended that petitioner, Englewood Teachers Association, stands in the same position as a bidder. Thus, it was directly affected by the award of the bid to Control Services when it resulted in the termination of an entire member unit. Therefore, the Association has standing to bring this action.

Respondent argues that individual petitioners do not have standing to challenge whether the Control Services' bid met the specifications. Petitioners cannot assert taxpayer status because they are not alleging public misdoing or compelling the Board to perform its public duty. Instead, petitioners are contesting the bid for personal gain--they want their jobs back. Respondent submits that taxpayers may seek to force the Board to accept the lowest qualified bid, but the remedy of reinstatement or monetary damages are not available to taxpayers. Thus, petitioners are "mere intermeddlers or merely interlopers" and do not have standing as taxpayers (repondent's brief at 10).

Respondent also argues that petitioners do not qualify as potential bidders. It is asserted that petitioners never claimed this status nor did they submit any evidence that they could have qualified as bidders under the bid specifications. Although petitioners could have presented their economic proposal to the Board, they did not. Moreover, petitioners never challenged the bidding procedure, but instead, claimed that the Control Services' bid did not meet the specifications.

Respondent further argues that petitioners, through their collective bargaining agreement, stood in the shoes of a bidder whose bid was not successful. It is asserted that while the Board was investigating subcontracting, petitioners were contemporaneously negotiating a new contract with the district. The Board, however, decided to accept Control Services' bid over the other bids including the "bid" of the collective bargaining unit. Thus, it is submitted that unsuccessful bidders have no standing to contest the specifications of a bid.

Finally, respondent argues that a challenge to a bid award by a public body must be made promptly or review of the bid will be denied. It is submitted that petitioners did not timely complain.

Discussion

Standing requires, at a minimum, a detrimental impact on a right or interest of the complaining party. The New Jersey Supreme Court, in Crescent Park Tenants Ass'n v. Realty Equities Corp. of N.Y., 58 N.J. 98 (1971), set forth the threshold requirements allowing a person to institute an action:

> [W]e will not render advisory opinions or function in the abstract [citation omitted] nor will we entertain proceedings by plaintiffs who are "mere intermeddlers" [citations omitted] or are merely interlopers or strangers to the dispute [citation omitted]. Without ever becoming enmeshed in the federal complexities and technicalities, we have appropriately confined litigation to those situations where the litigants' concern with the subject matter evidenced a sufficient stake and real adverseness.
> [Id. at 107.]

Thus, two requisites must be shown to sustain a finding of standing to bring an action: (1) petitioner must demonstrate a sufficient stake in the outcome of the proceedings; and (2) his or her position must be truly adverse to that of respondent. The Court's holding is consistent with the Administrative Procedure Act which defines who may be considered an interested person to initiate administrative proceedings before the Commissioner of Education. N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.1.

The individual petitioners assert standing as taxpayers. Taxpayer standing has been recognized as a basis for standing where the public interest is involved. In Silverman v. Bd. of Ed. of the Tp. of Millburn, 134 N.J. Super. 253 (Law Div. 1975), aff'd, 136 N.J. Super. 435 (App. Div. 1975). Replacing public employees with private employees solely to save money is a matter of great public interest. In IFPTE Local 195 v. State, 88 N.J. 393, 410 (1982). However, in the absence of showing that the matter impacts the public interest, the courts will look to some measurable amount of detrimental impact on the complaining party's personal rights but will not permit a litigant standing to assert the rights of a third party. Jersey Shore Med. Center v. Estate of Baum, 84 N.J. 137, 144 (1980).

Although taxpayer status has been recognized to confer standing upon plaintiffs in some cases, it has been routinely rejected by the Commissioner of Education as a basis for standing in cases involving challenges to personnel decisions made by school boards. See, e.g., Huetteman v. Bd. of Ed. of the Boro. of East Rutherford, OAL DKT. EDU 4100-86 (July 25, 1986), adopted, Comm'r of Ed. (Sept. 3, 1986) (where taxpayers/parents held not to have standing because they were not "interested persons" under N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.1 for purpose of challenging the transfer of principals); and Kenwood v. Montclair Bd. of Ed., OAL DKT. EDU 8858-81 (April 23, 1982), adopted, Comm'r of Ed. (June 14, 1982) (where petitioner failed to demonstrate sufficient stake in outcome or substantial likelihood of harm). In cases involving substantial public interest, petitioner must have additional private interest, i.e., some measurable detrimental impact. Salorio v. Glaser, 82 N.J. 482, 491 (1980). See also Ricciardelli v. Bd. of Ed. of the City of Newark, OAL DKT. EDU 1894-79 (Sept. 26, 1979), adopted, Comm'r of Ed. (Nov. 16, 1979) (petitioner must be affected in a direct and meaningful way; taxpayer status insufficient to confer standing to challenge transfer of personnel).

Here, petitioners are taxpayers and were performing custodial services to the Board until the Board subcontracted the custodial services of someone else. These issues would concern petitioners as taxpayers because increased costs of operating a school are often reflected in increased taxes. Also, petitioners have an interest in the Board's decision to subcontract custodial services from a private organization. Indeed, the Board recognized that petitioners stood in the shoes of a bidder through their collective bargaining unit and thus became competitors with other bidders.

The New Jersey Supreme Court has held that the competitors have sufficient interest to afford them standing in a cause of action. In Elizabeth Federal Savings & Loan Ass'n v. Howell, 24 N.J. 488 (1957), the Commission of Banking and Insurance granted Roselle Park Savings and Loan permission to buy out an operation in Elizabeth and move that operation to another Elizabeth location. The competitors of the outside savings and loan, who were already established in Elizabeth, challenged the action. The court stated that standing inheres to "all persons who are directly affected by and aggrieved as a result of the particular action sought to be brought before the courts for review." Id. at 500. Therefore, petitioners had standing due to their status as competitor financial institutions, rather than as taxpayers.

Based on the above, I CONCLUDE that petitioners, Angel and Payne, have demonstrated a sufficient stake in the outcome and substantial likelihood of financial harm from the Board's decision to subcontract custodial services. Thus, I also CONCLUDE that petitioners have standing to challenge the Board's award of the bid to Control Services.

Teachers' associations have standing to challenge board actions when those actions intimately and directly affect the associations' members. Winston v. Bd. of Ed. of So. Plainfield, 125 N.J. Super. 131, 142 (App. Div. 1973), aff'd, 64 N.J. 582 (1974); Wyckoff Ed. Ass'n v. Wyckoff Bd. of Ed., OAL DKT. EDU 5174-80 (Aug. 21, 1981), adopted, Comm'r of Ed. (Oct. 5, 1981), aff'd, St. Bd. of Ed. (Sept. 5, 1982). Moreover, an association may have standing in its own right to seek judicial relief from injury to itself. Warth v. Seldin, 422 U.S.

490, 95 S. Ct. 2197, 45 L. Ed. 2d 343 (1975). In the absence of injury to itself, an association may have standing solely as representative of its members if it is alleged that its members or any one of them "are suffering immediate or threatened injury as a result of the challenged action of the sort that would make out a justiciable case had the members themselves brought suit." Id. at 511, 45 L. Ed. 2d at 362.

The individual petitioners in this matter are members of the association who were affected by the Board's action--their employment was terminated when the Board awarded the bid to Control Services. Consequently, the issue of the association's standing that has been routinely applied in Winston is applicable here. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that Englewood Teachers Association has standing to challenge the Board's decision to award the bid to Control Services.

I further CONCLUDE that petitioners' challenge to the bid award by the Board to Control Services was timely. The record reflects that on April 15, 1992, the Board awarded a bid to Control Services to provide custodial and managerial services and on April 21, 1992, the Board adopted a resolution abolishing all custodial and building emergency service positions as of June 30, 1992. Thereafter, petitioners were sent notices dated April 22, 1992, that their employment had been terminated. On June 11, 1992, the Board adopted a resolution approving the contract with Control Services. On May 28, 1992, petitioners filed an Action in Lieu of Prerogative Writ before the Superior Court, Bergen County, challenging the validity of the Board's termination of their employment as school custodians and the Board's award of a contract to Control Services to provide custodial services. The record also reflects that respondent's answer to petitioners' Complaint in Lieu of Prerogative Writ, dated June 10, 1992, failed to assert that petitioners "sat on its rights and should not be permitted to complain" (respondent's brief at 12). On or about August 12, 1992, the Honorable James T. Murphy, J.S.C., transferred the matter to the Commissioner of Education.

II

Whether the Board Acted in Good Faith in Subcontracting the Custodial Services

Payne conceded that the custodians had problems keeping the buildings and grounds clean. But he believed that Service Master, the custodial management company, was the root of the problem. Service Master, contracted by the Board to supervise the custodians, also supplied the cleaning and repair equipment to the custodial staff. Often Service

Master failed to provide the cleaning supplies to the custodians or did so in an untimely manner. Payne also stated that there was friction between Service Master employees and the custodians. One incident resulted in the suspension of two custodial workers.

Evan Goldman, a contract negotiator for the Association for 23 years, testified that contract renewal negotiations for July 1, 1992, began on February 25, 1992. During the two and one-half hour meeting, the subject matter of subcontracting custodial workers was not raised by the Board. At the March 25, 1992 negotiation meeting, Goldman saw the letter dated March 24 about the Board's intent to consider subcontracting custodial services. Although other members of the custodial association were present, there was no discussion on the subject. During another contract negotiation meeting on April 15, 1992, there were no discussions between the Board and the Association on the subcontracting issue. On April 21, 1992, the Board acted to accept the bid of Control Services and thereby to terminate the custodial staff. On May 5, 1992, at a regularly scheduled negotiation meeting, the Association, on behalf of the custodians, submitted a severance package to the Board; this was the only proposal offered by the Association. The proposals contained in the severance package were not discussed.

Regarding the bid specifications, Goldman testified that the bids had two major specifications: (1) that the company must presently service an educational institution and (2) that the company submit a list of six current references. Goldman believed that Control Services did not meet the requirements. Specifically, he contended that the Solomon Schecter Hebrew Day School, a Yeshiva, was not an educational institution under the bid specifications. Also, Control Services had listed a school, Fairleigh Dickson University, which it no longer serviced.

Regarding the Board's bad faith conduct, Goldman believed that true reason the Board decided to subcontract the custodial services and terminate petitioners was the unsuccessful attempt to fire two custodians. Goldman did not believe that the Board's decision was based on reasons of economy.

Carol Feinstein, Association president in 1992, was part of the negotiation team for the custodians. In February 1992, the Board informed the Association that there would be no staff cuts. Then, at the April 14 meeting, John Miraglia stated that the Board had made up its mind to subcontract all custodial services.

John Miraglia, labor consultant, represented the Englewood district at the contract negotiations. Prior to March 24, he discussed the subcontracting issue with Angel. At the April 14 meeting, he also discussed the subcontracting issue with those present. Although he did not believe that it was his obligation to make the "first move," he did ask the custodians if they had any proposals for the Board to consider. Then he told the custodians about the Board's options to either privatize the total custodial services or the management services.

Mary Ann Jandoli, the Associate Director of Research and Economic Services for the New Jersey Education Association (NJEA), testified for petitioners. Jandoli provides services to the NJEA in the areas of fiscal analysis, financial services regarding school district budgets, school funding changes, and statistical data used in collective bargaining.

Jandoli performed an analysis of the Board's financial condition for 1992-93. Based on a comparative analysis, she found a pattern of surplus in the unappropriated free balance. The 1992-93 advertised budget was underestimated by $632,228. While the audited surplus of $1,752,564 is 6.7 percent of the budget, the "rule of thumb" common in school districts is to retain 3 percent (P-5). She stated that

> The district opted to award a contract to Control Services for $946,443 which, when compared to current custodial cost including a management contract with Service Master, realized a cost savings of $1,124,640. This choice, it is important to note, was made in March 1992, three months before $1,752,564 was certified as free balance.
> [Exhibit P-5.]

Jandoli also believed that the Board had alternative choices to subcontracting the custodial services. For example, specific budgeted items could have been tapped for revenues: terminating the Service Master contract; appropriating the surplus to within 3 percent margin; budget at the cap limit; declaring the desegregation aid revenue; challenging the cut in transportation aid, or expending the additional current expense increase. Additionally, the Board's decision to elect a premium delay of their aggregate State Health Benefits bill resulted in a cost savings of $148,170 to the 1992-93 budget. Jandoli concluded that the Board had access to revenues of $2,952,614 (P-5). Thus, she believed that the Board had no economic need to terminate the custodial employees.

Ronald Piliere, Board secretary/business administrator, testified that when the Board prepared its tentative budget in March 1991, it realized that the district was in poor financial condition. Also, because it believed that it was facing a shortfall, the Board issued a freeze on purchases and considered privatizing the custodial services.

In April 1991, Piliere submitted a report to Dr. Henry Oliver, the superintendent of schools, showing a cost analysis of the facility management plans (J-1). Piliere proposed three alternatives to save money in the custodial/maintenance area: (1) in-house management team; (2) retain Service Master (or the Service Master concept) and contract labor force; and (3) and establish in-house supervision and contract labor force. Ibid. Piliere believed that the second proposal--using a private company for all cleaning and maintenance--reflected the trend favored by school districts, e.g., privatizing cafeteria and transportation operations. Consequently, he favored privatizing the full custodial services. However, he also noted that other alternatives existed and that the district might want to look into this matter in greater depth. Ibid.

In March 1992, the Board advised the custodians and the Association that it was exploring contracting either the managerial services or the total services for the custodial and building emergency services for the district (J-7). Piliere's prior position was with the Clifton school district in Passaic County. Control Services also provided custodial and maintenance services to Clifton. Thus, when Piliere recommended privatizing custodial services for Englewood, he had some familiarity with the work performance of Control Services.

Regarding the bidding process, the Board looked at bidders who offered the lowest price, quality performance/qualifications, and a performance bond. With regard to the bid specifications, Exhibit J-6, required that the bidder must presently be providing maintenance and custodial services for a New Jersey educational institution(s). Thus, Piliere believed that for bid purposes, there was no distinction between a private and a public school. It would suffice that the institution need only be a school which taught children.

Arthur Rawl, a former Board member (1983-1993), testified about the Board's budget process. Generally, the Board focuses on the district's educational goals, receives recommendations from the administrators, and then develops the budget. During the past four or five years, the Board faced several problems including local tax issues and reduced funding. Nevertheless, the Board's primary goal is to educate children and when making decisions, it must act prudently. Thus, when it needed to economize and focus on savings, it considered the business administrator's recommendation to privatize the custodial operations. Rawl also testified that the Board would have considered a reasonable proposal from the Association had one been submitted; but no proposals were submitted.

Russell Major, also a former Board Member (1975-1993), testified about the budget process and the Board's experience with Service Master. Some of the custodian employees held tenured positions and over the years the Board had developed a "paternal" feeling towards them. Despite poor job performance, the Board took no action to terminate the custodians. Instead, in 1985-86, the Board, dissatisfied with the unkempt condition of the buildings and grounds, subcontracted Service Master to supervise the custodian employees. Initially, conditions improved but then, during the last two or three years, the Board began to receive complaints from the parents and staff; the buildings were again dirty. Moreover, the attendance problems with the custodial employees resulted in a substantial amount of overtime. For example, in 1988-89, maintenance costs reached more than $600,000. The Board determined that although it was paying high maintenance costs, they were getting poor performance. Thus, in April 1991, the Board reviewed Piliere's report, Exhibit J-1, and considered the available alternatives.

During the bidding process in 1992, the Board was undecided about privatizing the custodial work. Although the Board's primary goal was to educate children, not to "employ grown-ups," it was also obligated to reduce costs and improve services. Thus, the "bottom line" would be a determinative factor in deciding which way to go. Further, the bidding process was open to the Association.

William Trepicchio, assistant superintendent, testified that on April 14, 1992, he called a meeting with the Association and the custodians to inform them about the subcontract issues being considered by the Board. Also, when he asked the Association if it had any offers to present to the Board, there was no response. Thereafter, the Board, in public session, voted on a resolution to subcontract the custodial work from Control Services.

Dr. Henry Oliver, superintendent of the Englewood School District, testified about the budget cuts and the Board's decision to subcontract the custodial services. In 1990-91, he was concerned about overall expenditures. Faced with expanding classes and reduced funding, the Board looked for alternative cost savings in support areas such as food services and transportation. However, in 1991-92, the Board cut 27 staff positions which included 15 teachers and 12 professional assistants.

Regarding the custodial costs, Oliver was concerned about the poor quality of management services provided by Service Master, high custodial absenteeism, and the high level of overtime salaries for custodial employees. Consequently, the memorandum on Facility Management Plans, Exhibit J-1, was used to address the budget issues on the custodial costs. Oliver believed that subcontracting the custodial services was cost effective and feasible. Thus, he recommended to the Board that it subcontract the custodial services.

Based on a careful review of the whole of the record, including the opportunity to observe the demeanor of the witnesses, I FIND:

1. In 1990-91, the Board began looking at ways to reduce costs in its overall expenditures. It considered alternative cost savings in support areas such as food services, transportation and custodial costs.

2. Prior to 1991, the Board seeking to improve the cleanliness of the schools and grounds and the job performance of its employees, subcontracted Service Master to manage and supervise the custodial employees.

3. The custodial services performed by Board employees under the supervision of Service Master had not improved significantly by 1991. However, the expenditures and related costs for custodial services, e.g., overtime, increased.

4. In April 1991, the Board investigated the cost savings of subcontracting total and partial custodial services.

5. In a letter dated March 24, 1992, the Board informed the custodians that it was investigating options to subcontract custodial services.

6. Prior to the March 24 letter, respondent's labor representative, John Miraglia, and petitioner, Gary Angel, discussed the subcontracting issue and that the custodians may lose their jobs.

7. During meetings on March 25 and April 14, 1992, between the Board and the Association, the Association had an opportunity to initiate discussions and propose alternatives to privatizing the custodial services but it did not.

8. Prior to to the Board's resolution adopting the bid of Control Services on April 16, the Association did not initiate discussions or make alternative proposals to the subcontracting issue.

9. Prior to the Board's special meeting on April 21, the Association did not initiate discussions or submit a proposal on the subcontracting issue; however, at the meeting, it did ask the Board to reconsider the bid awarded to Control Services.

Discussion

Petitioners contend that the Board's duty to save taxpayers money is a legitimate goal. However, in pursuing this goal, the Board cannot be motivated by bad faith or the desire to substitute private workers for public employees. Petitioners rely on IFPTE Local 195 and Hunterdon Central H.S Ed. Ass'n v. Hunterdon Regional H.S. Bd. of Ed., OAL Dkts. 4555-85 and 1447-86 (Nov. 17, 1986), Comm'r of Ed. (Dec.26,1986), State Board (May 6,1988) aff'd, A-5036-87T2 (App Div, June 28, 1989), certif. den., 118 N.J. 212 (1989).

It is asserted that Board did not justify the economic reasons for terminating the custodians and subcontract those services. Thus, the Board's act is invalid. But assuming, arguendo, that it did have legitimate reasons to consider subcontracting, petitioners assert that the Board failed to carry out its legal obligation to communicate its intentions to the Association and to give the Association adequate notice so that an alternative proposal could be presented. Had it done so, the Association would have proposed a competitive economic alternative. Thus, it is submitted that the Board acted in bad faith to defeat the tenure and seniority rights of the custodial employees.

Respondent argues that petitioners failed to meet the burden that the Board subcontracted in bad faith. It is asserted that petitioners had ample advance notice of the Board's intent to investigate subcontracting. The Board's letter, Exhibit J-7, provided petitioners notice that the custodians could lose their jobs. Moreover, it is argued that the Board had no legal or moral obligation to provide such notice but did so as a matter of courtesy. Further, absent an existing contractual requirement, the Board had no legal obligations to initiate negotiations on the subcontracting issue. The Collective Bargaining Agreement between petitioners and the Board does not contain any provision requiring the Board to negotiate or discuss subcontracting with the petitioners. Indeed, there is a provision permitting the parties to discuss subcontracting, but not a clause requiring the parties to negotiate subcontracting, as recognized under In IFPTE Local 195 at 408-9. Thus, respondent submits that petitioners have the burden to demand negotiations over severance, recall rights and related matters. Notwithstanding the Board's notice dated March 24, 1992, and the meeting called by Miraglia on April 14, to discuss the issue, it was petitioners who failed to carry out their legal obligation to initiate negotiations or discussions over the subcontracting issue.

Respondent also argues that petitioners assertions that the Board had money in its budget to retain the custodians are erroneous and merely cloud the issues. Respondent asserts that the manner in which the Board expends monies is not an issue in this case nor can it be questioned by the petitioners. Moreover, respondent argues that the Board's decision to subcontract is a nonnegotiable matter of managerial prerogative. Further, it is argued that decisions to reduce the work force based on reasons of economy or efficiency are nonnegotiable subjects.

Respondent also denies any allegations that the Board considered subcontracting as a pretense to discharge employees who could not be removed through the arbitration process. Indeed, in April 1991, the Board began to look into subcontracting as an alternative and a potential economic savings (J-1). However, the arbitrations did not occur until January and March 1992. Thus, it is submitted that there is no connection between the arbitrations and the subcontracting.

For the reasons discussed herein, I CONCLUDE that petitioners failed to establish by a preponderance of the evidence that the Board's decision to subcontract the custodial services and terminate the employees constituted bad faith.

The Board is not required to perform all of its necessary functions in-house, but may contract or subcontract those functions with private companies or individuals. In IFPTE Local 195, the court considered the negotiability of proposed provisions of public employee collective bargaining agreements, including requirements of negotiation or discussion of contracting out or subcontracting where layoffs or displacement might result. The court held that the decision to contract out work or to subcontract is a nonnegotiable matter of managerial prerogative. Id. at 408. The court then noted, however, that discussions between public employers and employees were valuable and should be encouraged because they may promote labor, peace, and harmony. Moreover, they may even result in greater efficiency or economy. Id. at 409. "If a public employer is considering subcontracting as a means to achieve these goals, employees may be motivated to suggest changes in working conditions that could accomplish the same or better results." Ibid. However, the court also stated that:

> For these reasons, we fully expect that discussion between public employers and employees will be undertaken by the State. It is clearly in the interest of State to do so. . . We do not mean to stifle discussion. We encourage it. State officials would be derelict in their public responsibilities if they did not pursue such discussions.
>
> While the public employees have no right to negotiate on the ultimate decision to subcontract, they may have a procedural right to present their position on the economic issue.
>
> [Id. at 409.]

The court further noted that:

> the contract provision would be acceptable if it limited discussion to occasions of subcontracting or contracting likely to result in job layoffs only when the subcontracting is done solely for fiscal or economic reasons. . . .[But], [p]lacing a legal duty on the State to discuss subcontracting when proposed for broader policy purposes would place too great a burden on the determination of governmental policy. Only when the contracting out is proposed for purely economic reasons does the employee interest in the discussion of alternative solutions become dominate.
>
> [Id. at 410.]

The court also cautioned that:

> our holding today does not grant the public employer limitless freedom to subcontract for any reason. The State could not subcontract in bad faith for the sole purpose of laying off public employees or substituting private workers for public workers. State action must be rationally related to a legitimate governmental purpose. Our decision today does not leave public employees vulnerable to arbitrary or capricious substitutions of private workers for public employees.
> [Id. at 411.]

I have considered the parties' dispute over whether petitioners or respondent had a legal duty to initiate discussions on alternative options, subcontracting. Petitioners do not refute the Board's assertion that there was no provision in the contract to discuss the Board's decision to subcontract. Further, it was not disputed that there were problems with the custodians work performance before and after Service Master was hired to supervise the custodians. Consequently, I CONCLUDE that the Board decided to subcontract the custodial services based on economic reasons and because it was dissatisfied with the custodians work performance. I further CONCLUDE that it had no legal duty to initiate discussions with the Association about alternatives to subcontracting. However, I am also mindful that whenever it is reasonably possible, it is appropriate and perhaps expected that the Board in good faith encourage open discussions about any matter which could lead to layoffs. Although the Board did not extend a verbal invitation to the Association to discuss the issue, I FIND and CONCLUDE that the Association had several opportunities to submit or to inform the Board that it intended to submit alternative proposals. However, the record reflects that the Association did not avail itself of these opportunities. Instead, it only submitted a severance package to the Board and thereafter it requested that the Board reconsider its decision to award the custodial contract to Control Services and terminate the custodians.

I also CONCLUDE that the Board's testimony about its fiscal management and its projected savings from privatizing the custodial services was straightforward and credible. The evidence also supports that when the Board hired a management company to supervise the custodians, it showed a good faith attempt to retain the custodians despite their poor performance.

Based on the whole of the record, I CONCLUDE that the Board reasonably determined that it would be irresponsible to taxpayers to continue to expend monies on public custodial employees when privatizing those services would result in a more efficient operation of the school system.

I also CONCLUDE that petitioners allegations that Control Services failed to meet the bid specification are not supported by the evidence. The specifications required that the bidder "[m]ust presently be providing maintenance and Custodial Operations in the State of New Jersey for an educational institution(s)" (J-6 at 4). Solomon Schecter Hebrew Day School is an educational institution located in New Jersey.

III

Were Petitioners' Tenure Rights Violated?

The parties have stipulated that five of the Association members may have acquired tenure. The Board asserts that the balance of the thirty custodians have annual employment contracts for each year of employment and thus, could not have acquired tenure.

The applicable tenure statue for janitorial employees provide that:

> Every public school janitor of the school district shall, unless he is appointed for a fixed term, hold his office, position or employment under tenure during good behavior and efficiency and shall not be dismissed or suspended or reduced in compensation, except as a result of the reduction in the number of janitors in the district made in accordance with the provisions of this title or except for neglect, misbehavior or other offense and only in the manner prescribed by subarticle 2 of article 2 of chapter 6 of this title.
> [N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3.]

Thus, in order to be considered a tenured employee, petitioners must demonstrate that they are janitors in the general sense and were appointed for an indefinite term. Respondent asserts that thirty custodians have annual employment contracts for each year of employment, and thus could not have acquired tenure.

Assuming, arguendo, that they are all tenured custodians, N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3 and N.J.S.A. 18A:17-4 permit the reduction in work force of janitors except "by reason of residence, age, sex, race, religion, or political affiliation." N.J.S.A. 18A:17-4.

Further, the Board's subcontracting decision must be based on a legitimate governmental purpose and done in good faith; not for the purpose of replacing public employees with private ones. In Hunterdon, the State Board explicitly stated that:

> In the absence of statutory or regulatory prohibition of subcontracting for such services, we conclude that a reduction resulting from subcontracting does not in itself violate custodial tenure rights.
>
> [Hunterdon, State Board of Education, May 4, 1988, at 13.]

However, noting IFPTE Local 195's holding that the state could not subcontract in bad faith, the State Board also stated that:

> In light of the tenure protection afforded custodians by N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3, we conclude that where subcontracting results in termination of tenured custodians, the propriety of a board's actions must be carefully examined so as to assure that the decision to subcontract was made in good faith and not for the sole purpose of laying off tenured employees.
> [Hunterdon, State Board of Education, May 4, 1988, at 14.]

The State Board then found that the Hunterdon Board's ultimate subcontracting decision, a choice from among several options, had been made in good faith as a result of long-standing dissatisfaction with the level of cleanliness and maintenance throughout the school, and that the termination of petitioners' employment was not in contravention of their tenure rights under the education laws, but was a legitimate exercise of managerial prerogative. Id. at 17, 18.

Based on the whole of the record and consistent with the above conclusions that the Board acted in good faith, I CONCLUDE that petitioners' tenure rights have not been violated by the Board's decision to subcontract custodial services and terminate their employment.

ORDER

Based on the above, it is hereby ORDERED that the Board's decision to subcontract the custodial services to Control Services and to terminate its custodial employees be AFFIRMED. Also, it is ORDERED that the petition of appeal be and is hereby DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION who, by law, is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, 8th Floor West, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF ENGLEWOOD, BERGEN COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT-RESPONDENT.	:

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, December 10, 1993

For the Petitioners-Appellants, Springstead & Maurice (Harold N. Springstead, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Cross/Appellant, Siff & Rozen
(George L. Vitureira, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent, Gutfleish & Davis
(Suzanne E. Raymond, Esq., of Counsel)

The petitioners in this case are two individual custodians and the collective negotiations representative for all of the custodians (hereinafter "Association"). They challenged the validity of actions taken by the Board of Education of the City of Englewood (hereinafter "Board") to subcontract for the provision of custodial services and to terminate the custodians. Petitioners alleged that the decision to subcontract was not made in good faith and that it violated the custodians' tenure rights. They also alleged that the bidder who had been awarded the contract to provide the custodial services had not met the bid specifications so that the Board's decision to award the contract to that bidder was invalid.

The Board contested the petitioners' allegations and also asserted that petitioners lacked the standing to challenge its award of the contract to the successful bidder.

The Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) determined that the individual petitioners had the standing to challenge the bid award because the issue would concern them as taxpayers and because they were likely to suffer financial harm as a result of the Board's decision to subcontract custodial services. She also found that the Association had the standing to challenge the Board's action in awarding the bid because the action affected its members.

The ALJ then concluded that the petitioners had failed to establish that the Board's actions in subcontracting custodial services were in bad faith, finding instead that those actions were taken for economic reasons and because of dissatisfaction with the custodians' work performance. She also concluded that the Board had no legal duty to initiate discussions with the Association with respect to alternatives to subcontracting, but that it had provided the Association with several opportunities to submit alternatives. She found that the Board's evidence relating to the fiscal aspects of its decision was credible and determined that the Board's decision to privatize was a reasonable one. She further found that the evidence did not support petitioners' allegations that the successful bidder had failed to meet the bid specifications and that the Board had not violated the tenure rights of any of the individual custodians when it terminated their employment as a result of subcontracting for custodial services. The ALJ therefore recommended that the Commissioner dismiss the petition.

The Commissioner adopted the ALJ's recommended decision as her final decision and dismissed the petition.

Petitioners appealed to the State Board. The Board cross-appealed the ALJ's determination that petitioners had standing to challenge the bid.

We reject the ALJ's determination that petitioners had standing to challenge whether the bidder who was awarded the contract met the bid specifications. As the Board argues, the interest of the individual petitioners involved here was clearly in saving their jobs rather than in correcting public misdoing or compelling performance of a public duty. Garrou v. Teanick Tryon Co., 11 N.J. 294 (1953). Consequently, they can not be considered as taxpayers for purposes of this litigation.

Furthermore, neither the individual petitioners nor the Association were potential bidders on the contract and their challenge to the qualification of the successful bidder could not provide them with any remedy. Hence, under the bidding laws, they did not have standing to make this challenge. Capasso v. Pucillo 132 N.J. Super. 542 (Law Div. 1974). In essence, it was the Board's decision to subcontract, not its determination of which bidder would be awarded the contract, that had affected petitioners.

On examination of the record and for the reasons expressed by the ALJ, we reject petitioners' claims that the Board acted in bad faith in determining to subcontract for custodial services or that the resulting termination of their employment violated the tenure laws. Therefore, as modified herein, we affirm the decision of the Commissioner.

Orlando Edreira opposed.

NORTH BERGEN FEDERATION OF TEACHERS, LOCAL 1060, AMERICAN FEDERATION OF TEACHERS, AFL-CIO, an Unincorporated Labor Organization, and EILEEN WENDE, Petitioners, vs. BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF NORTH BERGEN, a Body Corporate and Politic, Respondent.	SETTLEMENT OAL DOCKET NO. EDU 08922-92N AGENCY REF. NO. 470-10/92

The Petitioners, North Bergen Federation of Teachers, Local 1060, American Federation of Teachers, AFL-CIO and Eilee Wende, and the Respondent, the Board of Education of the Township of North Bergen, have voluntarily resolved all disputed matters and enter into the following settlement which fully disposes of all issues in controversy between the petitioners and the respondent.

1. The petitioner withdraws her verified petition filed on or about October 13, 1992 with the Commissioner of Education.

2. The petitioner further agrees to release and give up any and all claims and rights which she may have against the North Bergen Board of Education, the Township of North Bergen and each of their respective Board members, officers and employees with respect to the abolishment of the position of Supervisor of data control operators and with respect to her discharge from the position of data control operator, it being specifically understood and agreed that the petitioner retains any and all tenure, seniority and other rights and entitlements she may have arising from her employment with the North Bergen Board of Education commencing with September, 1985, and this agreement does not effect any rights that she may have concerning duties performed by her as a Type "A" Clerk, which may arise from future actions and conduct taken by the North Bergen Board of Education, which may have occasions to take into consideration her employment commencing with September, 1985.

3. The Petitioner further releases any and all claims including those of which she may not be aware and those not specifically mentioned in this settlement with respect to the allegations contained in her Petition filed on or about October 13, 1992. The Petitioner releases the North Bergen Board of Education, the Township of North Bergen and each of their respective Board members, officers and employees from any and all claims resulting from anything which has happened up to this date, specifically with respect to the abolishment of the position of Supervisor of data control operators and with respect to her discharge from the position of data control operator, save as outlined in the preceding paragraph.

4. The Petitioner will be paid a total of $17,500.00 as full payment for releasing her claims and entering into this settlement. The Petitioner shall not seek any further relief including other payments from the North Bergen Board of Education, the Township of North Bergen and each of their respective Board members, officers and employees.

5. The Petitioner shall remain in her tenured position as a Type A Clerk in the North Bergen School System. Petitioner shall continue to receive and be entitled to all benefits and rights attached to her position as set forth in the Collective Bargaining Agreement and as may be provided by law. The said rights, benefits and entitlements are to in no way be decreased or affected by her temporary separation from employment covering the period from July 1, 1992 to September 8, 1992, but rather to continue uninterrupted as if said separation had never occurred.

6. The Petitioner agrees that in consideration of the foregoing settlement, she knowingly and voluntarily releases forever whatever claims she may have against the North Bergen Board of Education, the Township of North Bergen and each of the respective Board members, officers and employees based upon the allegations contained in Petitioner's Petition filed on or about October 13, 1992 or any other manner relating to her employment by the North Bergen Board of Education prior to the date of this settlement agreement.

This release and waiver includes, but is not limited to any rights or claims under Federal, State or local law, statutory or decisional, for wrongful or abusive discharge, for breach of any contract, or for discrimination based upon political affiliation, race, color, ethnicity, sexual orientation, age, national origin, religion, disability, or any other unlawful criterion or circumstances, including rights or claims under the Age Discrimination in Employment Act of 1967 ("ADEA") that m have accrued up to the signing of the settlement. The signatures of the Respondents' representatives and the Petitioner's signature to this agreement constitute confirmation that the Respondent and the Petitioner had the opportunity to consider this agreement and its consequences, and that they have been advised prior to the signing of this agreement to consult with an attorney, or personal or financial advisor of their choosing. The parties further acknowledge that this release and waiver does not in any way or at any time ever release the Respondent from defending any indemnifying Petitioner should Petitioner be made a defendant in an action based upon any matter, cause or thing relating to her employment by the North Bergen Board of Education.

7. The Respondent, its members, officers and employees, agree that, in consideration of the foregoing settlement, it knowingly and voluntarily waives and releases forever whatever claims that may have accrued against Petitioner prior to executing this Agreement based upon any matter, cause or thing relating to her employment by the North Bergen Board of Education as outlined in the within litigation.

8. This Agreement has been approved by the North Bergen Board of Education on October 20, 1993.

9. Nothing herein should be construed as preventing or precluding Petitioner from in futuro applying for any position to which her experience and qualifications do entitle her; such positions to include, but not be limited to, those of data control operator and Supervisor of data control operators, the latter should the same, or its substantial equivalent, be revived or created pursuant to Board action or resolution.

10. This Agreement will become effective when it is approved by the Office of Administrative Law and the Commissioner of Education. Any disapproval shall not interfere with the rights of the Petitioner or Respondent to pursue this matter further.

Allan C. Roth, Esq. (Scarinci & Hollenbeck), for the Board

George O. Savino, Esq., for the Township of Lyndhurst

This consolidated matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education by the Board of Education of the Township of Lyndhurst (Board) on June 3, 1993 by way of a Petition of Appeal of a defeated school budget pursuant to the provisions of N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.1 et seq. and a Petition of Appeal of its defeated cap waiver. On August 9, 1993 the Board of Commissioners of the Township of Lyndhurst (Commission) filed its Answer to the Board's budget appeal. In response to a letter from Dr. Maureen Keller, Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes in the Department of Education, the Commission through its counsel notified the Commissioner by way of a letter dated September 21, 1993 that it would play no active role in the cap waiver appeal save "to point out that $1,500,000 of the $2,973,296 cap waiver represents the transfer back to the Township of Lyndhurst ordered by the State Board of Education on April 7, 1993." (See In the Matter of the Rescinding of Supplemental State Aid Awarded to the Lyndhurst School District, Bergen County, April 7, 1993.)

Subsequent to the filing of the original Petition of Appeal of the defeat of the cap waiver requested by the Board, on July 6, 1993 the Board, after having conferred with the Bergen County Superintendent of Schools and Assistant Commissioner Scambio regarding the need to promptly commence the implementation of the program components of the original cap waiver request, requested that a transfer be made of $867,793 from the General Fund budget to the cap waiver request pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:20-2.13(e) and that a similar amount be transferred from the cap waiver to General Fund budget. The aforesaid transfer was accomplished by way of a amended cap waiver Petition of Appeal.

Position statements on the budget appeal were filed on September 13, 1993 and October 13, 1993 by the Board and the Commission, respectively. The Board filed a Position Statement on the cap waiver appeal on September 29, 1993. As indicated above, the Commission declined to participate in the cap waiver appeal review. On October 29, 1993, the Board filed a reply to the Commission's Position Statement. The record closed on November 8 after expiration of the period for submission of summations.

On August 10, 1993, Dr. Maureen Keller dispatched the following letter to the parties:

> In light of the July 7, 1993 decision of the State Board of Education in Board of Education of > the Borough of Rutherford v. Mayor and Council of Rutherford, Commissioner's Decision #297-92, wherein the State Board ruled that decisions in defeated voter cap waiver appeals must determine whether or not reallocation within the district's maximum permissible budget is possible and whether and to what extent the specific programs at issue are essential in order to enable the Board of Education to meet its constitutional obligation to provide a thorough and efficient system of education, it is necessary to supplement the record in the above-captioned cap waiver appeal. Accordingly, the county superintendent is to submit to this office, the Board and the governing body within thirty (30) days of receipt of this letter a sworn affidavit setting forth an explanation and documentation of the budget review conducted by him or her pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-27, including the bases for concluding that (1) reallocation within the district's maximum permissible budget for the 1993-94 school year was not possible and (2) the specific programs at issue were essential for the Board to meet its constitutional obligation.

> The Board and governing body shall each have twenty (20) days from receipt of the county superintendent's affidavit and supportive documentation to submit a reply thereto. These submissions shall be in addition to the position statement, reply and summation provided for in N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.8.

On September 7, 1993 the Bergen County Superintendent filed a response to the above request. The Board included a response to this filing with its September 29, 1993 position statement.

On April 20, 1993 the voters of the Township of Lyndhurst defeated the Board's 1993-94 General Fund tax levy proposal amounting to $12,173,061. The voters also defeated a proposed cap waiver of $2,973,296 which had been approved for presentation to the voters by the Bergen County Superintendent as being necessary for the provision of a thorough and efficient system of education. The specific line item accounts for the T&E cap waiver were as follows after the transfer of items described above:

Subsequent to the defeat of the budget by the voters of Lyndhurst, the Board and Commission consulted pursuant to the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37 whereupon the Commission reduced the General Fund tax levy by $700,000. Therefore, the General Fund tax levy funds in contention between the parties in this consolidated matter are as follows:

Proposed Tax Levy Adopted by Board of Education		Amount of Tax Levy Certified By Governing Body
General Fund	$12,173,061	General Fund	$11,473,061
Amount of Reduction in the Budget by Governing Body		Amount of Reduction in Dispute Before Commissioner
General Fund	$700,000	General Fund	$700,000

In the instant matter, the Commission upon defeat of the 1993-94 budget established the aforesaid tax levy by resolution dated May 14, 1993 setting forth the following reductions:

The resolution concluded as follows:

> Whereas the above mentioned reductions in the 1993-94 School Budget are in excess and equal the amount which the Budget is over the State Mandated CAP Limitations, and based upon the expenditures of this year's budget, these reductions could be realized by utilizing a more efficient Cost Control System and in no way [affect] a thorough and efficient system of schools for the Lyndhurst School District for the School Year 1993-94, and
>
> Now, therefore be it resolved that the governing body of the Township of Lyndhurst does hereby certify to the Bergen County Board of Taxation that the amount necessary to be appropriated for the Current Expense Budget to provide a thorough and efficient system of schools for the Lyndhurst School District for the School year 1993-94 is $11,473,061.00 . . . . (Emphasis supplied)

STANDARD OF REVIEW

In rendering judgment relative to budgetary appeals, the Commissioner notes that the Constitution of the State of New Jersey requires the Legislature to provide for a thorough and efficient system of education. The Legislature by way of statutory scheme has delegated the responsibility for providing such thorough and efficient system to local boards of education. Additionally, the Legislature pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9, 22-14, 22-17 and 22-37 has authorized the Commissioner of Education to review and decide appeals by boards of education seeking restoration of budgetary reductions imposed by local governing bodies. (See also Board of Education of East Brunswick Township v. Township Council of East Brunswick, 48 N.J. 94 (1966) and Board of Education of Deptford Township v. Mayor and Council of Deptford Township, 116 N.J. 305 (1989).)

In reviewing such appeals, the Commissioner must determine whether a district board of education has demonstrated that the amount by which a specific line item reduction imposed by the governing body is necessary for the provision of a thorough and efficient system of education.

Before reviewing the instant matter line item by line item, the Commissioner must point out for the record that the New Jersey Supreme Court in East Brunswick, supra, has addressed the proper standard of review by a governing body after defeat of a budget by the voters. In reads in pertinent part:

> But its determinations must be independent ones properly related to educational considerations rather than voter reactions. In every step it must act conscientiously, reasonably and with full regard for the State's educational standards and its own obligation to fix a sum sufficient to provide a system of local schools which may fairly be considered thorough and efficient in view of the makeup of the community.
> (at 105-106)

Moreover, it is clear that the New Jersey Supreme Court in Deptford, supra, has unequivocally ruled that the statement of reasons for each reduction effectuated by a governing body must be done at the time the municipality make its certification of the reduced budget to the county board of taxation and that if there is a failure to do so there can be a heavy presumption against the educational validity of the proposed cuts. It determined that

> The board of education should be furnished with reasons in order to respond quickly and intelligently and to act constructively in preserving educational interests. The advantages of such a process would be dissipated if the reasons were not available until an appeal has been filed. Hence, we conclude that these regulations do not exempt the municipality from a duty to file a statement of reasons in a timely fashion in conjunction with any proposed budget cuts, which, we now determine, must be done at the time the municipality makes it (sic) certification of the reduced budget to the county board of taxation.

> We now hold that statements must be provided for any line-item reductions. This will not be unduly inconvenient or burdensome. Further, a uniform rule that calls for the submission of explanatory reasons for all budget cuts will encourage municipalities to be specific and conscientious in their consideration of educational concerns, and will serve to make such considerations an integral part of their decisionmaking process. (at 315-317)

And,

> [We] want to stress that if the municipality fails to submit reasons contemporaneously with its certification of budget cuts, the Commissioner of Education in the course of an ensuing appeal is entitled to invoke a heavy presumption against the educational validity of the proposed budget cuts. Hence, the greater the delay in the submission of detailed reasons in support of such cuts, the stronger will be the presumption against their validity and the heavier will be the municipality's burden on appeal to establish the validity of the reduced budget. In that posture, the Commissioner will be entitled initially to presume that such cuts have been made purely for extra-educational reasons or for political expediency without specific cognizance taken of their educational effects. (at 320-321)

Mindful, then, of the balance to be applied in the standard of review, the Commissioner makes the following determinations with respect to the reductions in the General Fund tax levy effectuated by the Commission.

DEFEATED BUDGET

Initially, the Commissioner takes note of the Board's argument that the Commission's actions in imposing the aforesaid reductions were arbitrary and capricious in that that body failed to provide specific reasons for each line item reduction imposed at the time such reductions were made. The Commission in its Answer to the Petition of Appeal states that it "carefully reviewed the Board of Education's Budget and did in fact give specific reasons for each and every proposed reduction of petitioner's budget" (See Commission's Answer.)

In response to the initial issue raised by the Board, the Commissioner notes that the Commission has failed to satisfy the initial requirement of the standard of review laid down by the New Jersey Supreme Court in Deptford, supra, in that the general reason of better cost control does not meet the test of providing specific reasons by line item as to why the reductions were made at the time such reductions are imposed. While such omission on the part of the Commission, pursuant to Deptford, supra, is not irreparable, it does create a strong presumption against the educational validity of the cuts.

In the instant matter, such presumption is further enhanced by virtue of the failure of the Commission to address each and every line item reduced in favor of a general position illustrated by examples selected from among those reductions. For the sake of clarity and illustration, the entire position of the Commission is set forth below:

> Respondent, the Board of Commissioners of the Township of Lyndhurst, by way of response to the Statement of Position of the Lyndhurst Board of Education wishes to go on record as objecting strongly to the characterization of its actions as capricious and arbitrary as stated in the Position Statement of the Lyndhurst Board of Education.
> With regard to the $700,000 in cuts made in the Board of Education budget, the Lyndhurst Governing Body acted only after a careful review of the Board of Education budget while always bearing in mind an overriding concern not to hurt the children of Lyndhurst.

By way of example of the Governing Body's thorough thought processes please refer to Line Item 164, Textbooks, of the Board of Education's budget. The Governing Body had learned that at the end of the 1992-1993 year, the Board of Education purchased a large number of textbooks for the 1993-1994 school year. The Board of Education, in effect, prepurchased the textbooks for the upcoming year which had the effect of creating an artificially high expense in that line item in the 1992-1993 budget. And while they noted the listed retail prices of the books in their budget, they neglected to point out that they get a discount when they buy in volume. This example shows the detailed type of study made by the Governing Body before making reductions.

The primary reason the Governing Body reduced the legal expense Line Item (454) was because the Board of Education took a public position that their then attorney was billing too much and, in fact, changed attorneys. The new attorney [publicly] stated he would charge a lower hourly rate. The Board of Education has told the new attorney that he does not have to appear at many of the meetings and work sessions that the prior attorney did. Therefore, the estimate of a significant reduction in legal expenses is a fairly safe and conservative one.

Another example is Line Item 453 salaries, the Board of Education says in its Position Statement that it has a contractual obligation to pay the Treasurer of the School Monies an extra $500. That person is the Township Tax Collector and had advised the Board of Commissioners that she had no formal contract with the Board of Education.

As to the Unanticipated Free Balance, which the Governing Body reduced by $300,000, the Governing Body obviously did not have the 1992 statutory audit at the time it made its reduction but did review prior audits which show that the Board of Education has repeatedly returned about $700,000 over the years.

As to the elimination of the public relations budget Line Item (392) no response is needed from the Board of Commissioners other than to say, "how dare they?" This is a Board of Education that is arguing before the State in this matter and in its Cap waiver appeal that it desperately needs money to save programs while at the same time is creating a new position. The Board of Education's priorities are becoming unfathomable.

> It is clear from a reading of the Board of Education's Position Statement that they are not justifying the needs for the money they requested with any explanation as to the use the funds will be put to. There seems to be no attempt, as there is in Zero Base Budgeting, to create a priority ranking of all their programs and activities in successfully increasing levels of performance and funding. There seems to be no attempt to justify the dollars that were spent in prior years. The Board of Education is merely saying, "we spent this much last year so we need that amount plus more for this year." They criticize the Governing Body for reducing line items below what was spent the year before. If this is in fact the position of the Board of Education, [then] rather than call each other names it would seem that it would be appropriate to merely wait for the completion of the 1992-1993 statutory audit which will tell us all exactly what was in fact spent and what exactly the Unanticipated Free Balance is.
> (Statement of Position, at pp. 1-2)

The Board seeks in general to justify its allegedly shaky fiscal circumstances by pointing out the fact that it has many capital improvements which it must undertake to keep its schools serviceable. While such improvements are not included in the general budget but are part of the cap waiver request, their existence, contends the Board, magnifies the effect of the budget reductions imposed by the Commission.

The Board contends that the need to commence the implementation of these and other projects which are part of the cap waiver required a transfer of $867,793 from the cap waiver to the general budget with a commensurate transfer of a like amount from the general budget to the cap waiver budget which funds, it contends, are needed to continue to provide a thorough and efficient system of education.

The second argument by the Board to justify its precarious budgeting circumstance involves the rescission of $1,500,000 in discretionary aid received in 1991 directed by the State Board of Education. Although the $1,500,000 rescission was accomplished through a reduction in State aid in 1992-93, the Board was further ordered by the State Board on April 7, 1993 to repay the Lyndhurst Board of Commissioners, by September 1, 1993, the $1,500,000 which that body had advanced to the Board to replace the $1,500,000 loss in State aid in 1992-93. (By April 7, 1993 letter from Robert H. Davis, Assistant Commissioner of Financial Services to Bergen County Superintendent Anthony C. Scalzo Exhibit D of County Superintendent's September 7, 1993 Submission, the Board was directed to include this amount in its 1993-94 General Fund budget. Thus, the Board contends, this required repayment further exacerbates its budgetary crisis.

Before proceeding with a line item-by-line item analysis and determination as required by Deptford, supra, the Commissioner observes that the Commission in this matter must be considered as having acted in an arbitrary and capricious manner in imposing at least the bulk of the reductions which are the subject of this controverted matter in that it failed to provide specific reasons for each reduction imposed at the time of certification and further compounded that shortcoming by selectively providing reasons for only a handful of those reductions in its Position Statement.

The following represents the Commissioner's item-by-item determination as it relates to the reductions imposed:

Account	Reduction
000-260-520 - Insurance	$6,399

The Board contends that its actual costs for 1992-93 were $107,356. The reduction imposed by the Commission would result in an appropriation of $103,601 for 1993-94 which is actually less than the amount expended in 1992-93. The Commission offers no specific reason for this reduction. In light of the foregoing, the Commissioner directs the restoration of the $6,399 in this account.

Account	Reduction
000-260-620 - Heat and Electricity	$21,460

The Board contends that the reduction in this account would result in an amount remaining which is less than the $180,550 actually expended in 1992-93. The Commission offers no specific reason for reductions in this account beyond its general contention of cost control. In light of the Commission's failure to specifically address the item, the Commissioner directs a restoration of $21,460.

000-290-290 - Other Employee Benefits	$161,504

This account consists of payments for workers' compensation, hospitalization, and dental and prescription coverages. The Board contends these are expenses which it must meet for its employees but the Commission has not indicated how these costs can be reduced. The Commission offers no explanation of its reasoning. The $161,504 is therefore restored.

000-290-220 - Social Security Contributions	$10,984

The Board contends it increased this account by $10,984 necessitated by an increase in social security rates. The Commission offers no explanation as to its reasoning. The Commissioner directs the restoration of the $10,984 in this account.

000-230-100 - Salaries	$500

The salary in this account is for the salary of the school treasurer. The Board concedes that its contract with this individual calls for a $250, not a $500 increase, as budgeted by the Board. The Commission contends that no contractual obligation exists for the individual in question, who is also the Township Tax Collector. Upon review of the arguments of the parties, the Commissioner determines to sustain the reduction, given that such minimal amount ($250) should be able to be absorbed by the Board.

Account	Reduction
000-230-339 - Other Purchased Professional Services	$14,000

The Board contends that its capital improvement projects which must be undertaken cannot be accomplished with the reduction imposed herein since those reductions freeze the amounts available at 1992-93 amounts. The Commission does not address this item. The Commissioner directs the restoration of $14,000.

000-230-331 - Legal Services	$25,000

The Board contends that the action of the Commission reduces the amount available for legal services by one-third, despite the need for additional services necessitated by the appeal in this matter and its capital projects expenses which it did not have in 1992-93.

The Commission contends that the Board has hired a new attorney whose rates are less and whose duties have been reduced which should produce a significant decrease in legal expenses.

After careful consideration of the arguments of both parties, including the Board's unrebutted reply that its attorney rate dropped only from $75.00 an hour to $65.00 an hour, a reduction of about 13%, the Commissioner agrees that the Board should see some cost reduction in this area, but that it cannot absorb a cut of 33%. Accordingly, $10,000, or 13%, of this reduction is sustained and $15,000 restored.

Account	Reduction
190-100-640 - Textbooks	$12,500

The Board argues that the reduction imposed in this account reduced the money available for textbook purchases to the $84,251 budgeted for 1992-93 despite its actual expenditure of $93,285 in that year.

The Commission contends that the Board purchased a large number of textbooks at the end of the 1992-93 school year for use in 1993-94.

After considering the arguments by the parties, including the Board's reply argument regarding its year-end textbook expenditures, the Commissioner determines that the Board has failed to identify the specific textbooks which this reduction would deny it and thus has not met the standard of demonstrating the necessity for the full amount in order to provide a thorough and efficient system of education. The $12,500 reduction is sustained.

190-100-610 - General Supplies	$12,500

The Board contends that the 1992-93 expenditure was $165,885 for teaching supplies and that the reduction of $12,500 in this account would reduce the amount available for 1993-94 to $152,334, an amount less than actually expended in 1992-93. The Commission does not address this line item at all. Consequently, the Commissioner directs the restoration of the $12,500 by which this account was reduced.

220-100-320 - Purchased Professional Ed. Services	$ 2,070

The reduction here would reduce the amount available for health and therapy services to the 1992-93 amount which the Board contends would not account for the increasing cost of such services. The Commission does not address this account.

The Commissioner directs the restoration of the $2,070 in this account.

Account	Reduction
800-330-600 - Supplies and Materials	$ 8,000

This account provides for district public relations activities. The reduction would eliminate all such activity which the Board contends is badly needed. The Commission contends that this amount is to fund a new position which is inappropriate in its view considering the Board's alleged fiscal constraints.

Notwithstanding the Board's unrebutted reply observation that the Commission erroneously equated this money with a new position, the Commissioner, in the absence of more information as to the specific projects requiring the instant support materials, determines that the $8,000 reduction be sustained.

000-219-390 - Other Purchased Professional Services	$ 5,400

This reduction would eliminate the Board's ability to have a part-time learning disabilities teacher. The Commission offers no specific reason for its recommended reduction.

In light of the foregoing, the Commissioner directs the restoration of the $5,400.

000-221-800 - Other Objects	$10,000

This account contains funds for teacher in-service training. This reduction decreases the amount for such purposes 25% below the amount budgeted in the previous year. The Commission offered no specific reason for its reduction. The $10,000 reduction is, therefore, restored.

Account	Reduction
000-230-530 - Communications/Telephone	$ 2,500

The Board argues that the amount for legal advertisement which is contained in this account was already cut to 1/2 of its previous year's appropriation. The Board contends that it cannot operate on an amount which is 1/4 of the prior year's budgeted amount. The Commission does not address this account at all. The Commissioner, therefore, restores the $2,500 by which it was reduced.

000-230-590 - Other Purchased Services $14,600

The Board contends that the reduction in this account totally eliminates student liability insurance. The Commission provides no reason for its action. The Commissioner, therefore, restores the $14,600 reduction imposed.

000-230-890 - Misc. Expenditures $16,841

The amount reduced in this account removes the entire amount of the dues payment to the New Jersey School Boards Association mandated by law. The Commission offers no reason for its reduction. The Commissioner directs the restoration of $16,841.

000-260-100 - Salaries $10,000

The Board contends it has already cut the budget for custodial salaries below that of 1992-93. A further reduction of 25% as directed by the Commission would eliminate funds for custodial overtime and substitutes. The Commission does not address this issue.

The Commissioner directs the restoration of the $10,000 in this account.

Account	Reduction
000-260-420 - Cleaning, Repair & Maintenance Services	$ 3,000

The funds eliminated in this account would remove appropriations for payment of County Utility Authority tipping fees, licenses and uniforms for custodians. The Commission offers no reason for the reduction.

The Commissioner directs the restoration of the $3,000 in this account.

000-270-512 - Contracted Serv. Other than Between Home & School	$10,000

The amount budgeted in this account for transportation other than to and from school represents the same amount budgeted in the previous year. The reduction imposed would cut these services by 1/3. The Commission offers no specific reason.

In light of the Commission's failure to meet the minimal standard of providing a specific reason for its reduction, the Commissioner directs the restoration of the $10,000 in this account.

000-270-515 - Contracted Services (Spec. Ed. Students)	$ 6,027

The Board contends that the reduction imposed by the Commission freezes this account at the 1992-93 level even though the special education year has been extended. The Commission offers no reason for its action. Therefore, the Commissioner directs the restoration of the $6,027.

000-290-340 - Purchased Technical Services	$46,715

The Board contends that the amount of reduction in this account would result in providing an amount for technical services less than the previous year. The Commission offers no specific reason for its recommendation. In light of the Commission's failure to provide any cognizable reason for its reduction, the Commissioner directs the restoration of the $46,715 in this account.

Account	Reduction
Free Balance	$300,000

The Board argues that the reduction imposed in the free balance would leave it with less than the 3% of the total budget which is recommended by the State as a contingency for unanticipated emergencies, a factor which the Commissioner notes is borne out by the 1992-93 audit which is now available.

The Commission acknowledges the absence of any audited figures for 1992-93 on which to base its projection but argues that past audits indicate that the Board usually returns about $700,000 unanticipated free balance.

In light of both the 1992-93 audit and the thorough review by the county superintendent to determine potential reallocation, as well as the requirement imposed by Assistant Commissioner Davis that the Board include within its 1993-94 budget the $1,500,000 for return to the governing body which that body improperly provided to the Board to cover the $1,500,000 deducted from the district's 1992-93 state aid allocation (see p. 12, ante), the Commissioner directs that the $300,000 reduction in surplus be set aside.

In summary, the Commissioner finds and determines that of the $700,000 reduction imposed by the Board of Commissioners of the Township of Lyndhurst $669,000 be restored to the 1993-94 General Fund tax levy and $31,000 be sustained.

It is therefore ordered that the local school tax levy for the 1993-94 school year be increased by the above amount of $669,000 over the amount of $11,473,061 previously certified.

CAP WAIVER

In setting forth its position with respect to the $2,973,296 cap waiver request, the Board further relies upon its contended fragile fiscal circumstances covered by the necessity of carrying out a significant number of capital projects and the consequences of having to repay the $1,500,000 advanced to it by the governing body after the State Board rescinded the $1,500,000 in discretionary aid improperly awarded to the district in 1991-92 and recouped by the Department of Education through a reduction in state aid in 1992-93.

The result of these factors, contends the Board, was the necessity to transfer monies from the General Fund budget into the cap waiver request creating a circumstance whereby the General Fund budget would become insufficient to provide a thorough and efficient system of education unless the cap waiver is granted by the Commissioner.

In further support of its request, the Board points out that the county superintendent's review of the cap waiver request concluded that reallocation of funds within the General Fund budget could not be accomplished without causing injury to the district's ability to provide a thorough and efficient system of education.

The Board argues that without the cap waiver amount included within its general budget the district will not have the funds necessary to provide a thorough and efficient system of education for the entire 1993-94 school year. The Board posits the following effects of the failure to approve the cap waiver request:

> Petitioner estimates, on a best case scenario, that it will have depleted its budget by April 1, 1994 (more than two months short of end of the school year) if it continues with the current school configuration of the district. However, even before then the Petitioner will encounter negative cash flow because it receives its funds on a monthly basis from the Township. It is expected that the negative cash flow will begin by October 1993, and that the cash flow would remain negative until the budget is depleted in April. The negative cash flow expected to commence by October will necessitate the taking out of loans to cover the anticipated tax revenues, which loans will cause the Petitioner to incur additional legal and financial expenses which were not anticipated in the 1993-94 budget. However, even with such financing, all budget funds would be gone by April and the Petitioner would be forced to close the schools at that time.
> The only other option would be for the Petitioner to reconfigure the school district, which would need to be accomplished on or about December 1, 1993. To do this, prior notice would necessarily have to be given to the employees and students. Such a reconfiguration is expected to have a drastically negative impact on the education which could be provided. To reconfigure the district within the constraints of the reduced budget, the following changes are expected to be necessary:

1. The six presently operating elementary schools will have to be consolidated into three elementary schools.

2. The three elementary schools will be administered by only two principals.

3. All district supervisors and the director of curriculum positions would be eliminated.

4. The pre-kindergarten program will be eliminated as of December 1, 1993.

5. Kindergarten class size will increase to approximately 39 students per class.

6. Grades 1-5 class size will increase to approximately 41 students per class.

7. Grades 6-8 class size will increase to approximately 49 students per class.

8. Elementary school guidance will be eliminated.

9. The elementary art, physical education, and music pull-out programs will be eliminated.

10. Elementary nursing services will be reduced.

11. All high school co-curricular activities will be eliminated by November 1, 1993.

12. All high school winter and spring extra-curricular activities will be eliminated.

13. High school language, math, science, social studies, physical education, and music programs will be reduced, and related class enrollment will increase accordingly.

The above mentioned changes would have to implemented by approximately December 1, 1993 to enable the Petitioner to provide education through the end of the school year. The increase in the class sizes and the elimination of programs and student support services will prevent the Petitioner from achieving the mandate of providing a thorough and efficient education for the students in Lyndhurst.
(Board's Statement of Position, at pp. 7-8)

The county superintendent in his submission of August 30, 1993 sets forth the following in reference to the fiscal circumstances faced by the Lyndhurst district:

The following information and material regarding the 1993-94 Lyndhurst school budget are being submitted in compliance with the decision of the New Jersey State Board of Education dated July 7, 1993. [Rutherford, supra]

Furthermore, this information and material shall also serve as my affidavit to affirm the reallocation of resources process used by my County School Business Administrator and me to arrive at a decision on the request of the Lyndhurst School District for a conditional approval of the voter cap waiver.

The original voter cap waiver filed by the school district requested a total amount of $1,665,565. (Exhibit A)

This cap waiver was amended to include a reduction of $310,360 for salaries and employee benefits and also included an increase of $118,000 for masonry restoration and new roofing in the Columbus and Jefferson Schools. The new total for the voter cap waiver was $1,473,296. (Exhibit B) The County Superintendent conditionally approved the original voter cap waiver. (Exhibit C)

By letter of April 7, 1993, Mr. Robert Davis, Assistant Commissioner of Education, explained that the district would have to amend its cap waiver in an amount of $1.5 million higher to offset the new liability in the base budget for a new appropriation in the amount of $1.5 million enabling the Board of Education to return the amount of $1.5 million to its municipality. (Exhibit D)

The district complied with the above letter and submitted an amended cap waiver in the amount of $2,973,296 which was conditionally approved by the county superintendent. (Exhibits E&F)

After both the regular base budget and the voter cap waiver were defeated at the annual school election of April 20, 1993, the local governing body reduced the base budget by $700,000. This amount plus the defeated voter cap waiver of $2,973,296 caused a total shortage of anticipated funds of $3,673,296. The district filed separate Petitions of Appeal on the two defeated items. (See Exhibit G)

The local superintendent realizing that the decisions of the Commissioner of Education may be rendered in the fall of 1993, requested that the County Superintendent approve a hardship appeal.

> The County Superintendent convened a conference with the administrative staff of the Lyndhurst School District and with [him] and his staff to discuss the hardship concerns and if possible arrive at a remedial plan. A resolution of the district's concerns was effected.
>
> By letter of June 15, 1993, the Lyndhurst School district formally submitted the details of its hardship appeal. (See Exhibit H)
>
> The County Superintendent approved the Lyndhurst hardship appeal, in writing, with his letter of June 15, 1993. (See Exhibit I)
>
> Also enclosed please find a copy of the reallocation document used by the County School Business Administrator when reviewing the original voter cap waiver.
> (Letter of August 30, 1993, pp. 1-2)

In addition to the above-cited summary of the Board's fiscal condition, the county superintendent sets forth his own budget review and reallocation analysis in which he indicates an item-by-item review and his conclusion that reallocations were not possible. The aforesaid analyses are incorporated herein by reference.

Additionally, the Commissioner has made an independent review of the Board's line items together with its reasons for requesting a cap waiver in the amount of $2,973,296, the specific line items and amounts which are set forth, ante. The Commissioner adopts as her own those reasons advanced by the Board and the county superintendent.

In the Commissioner's judgment the record is sufficiently developed to establish by the review conducted by the Bergen County Superintendent and her own independent review that the reallocation of funds within the permissible budget could not be accomplished without cap waiver approval. The Commissioner so holds.

Accordingly, the Commissioner finds and determines that the $2,973,296 in cap waiver funds sought by the Board are necessary for the provision of a thorough and efficient system of education to the pupils of the Township of Lyndhurst.

The Commissioner therefore directs the Bergen County Board of Taxation to increase the 1993-94 General Fund Tax Levy for the Lyndhurst School District to reflect a restoration of $669,000 in reductions effectuated by the Board of Commissioners of the Township of Lyndhurst and an additional $2,973,296 in cap waiver which sums reflect a total General Fund Tax Levy increase of $3,642,296.

Accordingly, the 1993-94 General Fund Tax Levy for the Lyndhurst School District shall be $15,115,357.

Tax Levy Certified by Commission	$11,473,061
Restored by Commissioner (Defeated Budget)	669,000
Cap Waiver Ordered by Commissioner	2,973,296
	$15,115,357

IT IS SO ORDERED.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF LYNDHURST, PETITIONER-RESPONDENT, V. BOARD OF COMMISSIONERS OF THE TOWNSHIP OF LYNDHURST, BERGEN COUNTY, RESPONDENT-APPELLANT, AND IN THE MATTER OF THE CAP WAIVER APPEAL OF THE BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF LYNDHURST, BERGEN COUNTY.	:	STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION DECISION

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, December 15, 1993

For the Petitioner-Respondent, Carella, Byrne, Gilfillan, Cecchi, Stewart & Olstein (John M. Agnello, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Appellant, Scarinci & Hollenbeck (Allan C. Roth, Esq., of Counsel)

The Board of Education of the Township of Lyndhurst (hereinafter "Board") filed a petition of appeal with the Commissioner of Education challenging reductions in the amount of $700,000 made by the Board of Commissioners of the Township of Lyndhurst (hereinafter "Township"), pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37, to the Board's proposed budget for the 1993-94 school year following voter rejection of that budget. The Board also filed a petition requesting a General Fund cap waiver in the amount of $2,973,296. On December 15, 1993, the Commissioner determined to restore $669,000 of the reductions effectuated by the Township to the Board's budget. The Commissioner also directed restoration of the cap waiver funds sought by the Board. Accordingly, she directed a total General Fund Tax Levy increase in the amount of $3,642,296.

By notice of appeal dated January 19, 1994, the Township appealed to the State Board of Education from the decision of the Commissioner. Such notice included proof of service signed by counsel for the Township certifying that it was mailed by overnight mail on January 19. By letter dated January 24, 1994, counsel for the Township was notified that the notice of appeal had been due on or before January 17[1] and that this matter was being referred to our Legal Committee for consideration of the effect of the Township's failure to file timely notice. Counsel for the Township was given until February 7 to file an affidavit setting forth the circumstances of his filing.

On February 5, 1994, counsel for the Township filed his affidavit. Therein, he attests that his office had in fact received the Commissioner's decision and that on or about December 27, 1993, the Township had authorized him to proceed with an appeal from that decision. He further avers that on or about Friday, January 14, 1994, his grandfather was hospitalized and subsequently passed away. He acknowledges that he "calculated the deadline on which to file the appeal of this matter to be January 17, 1994," but states his belief that by mailing it by overnight mail on January 19 and having the State Board receive it on January 20, a "three-day

1 We note that since Monday, January 17, 1994 was a legal holiday, the Township's notice of appeal was actually due on January 18. See N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.4(b).

mailing rule" would operate to provide a filing date of January 17. He adds, however, that, but for the illness and sudden death of his grandfather, the notice would have been filed prior to January 17.

By letter dated February 7, 1994, the Board urged dismissal of the Township's appeal for failure to file in a timely manner.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-28, appeals to the State Board must be taken "within 30 days after the decision appealed from is filed." The State Board may not grant extensions. N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.5(a). In contrast to the period for filing petitions to the Commissioner of Education, see N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2; N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.15, the time limit within which an appeal must be taken to the State Board is statutory, and, given the jurisdictional nature of the statutory time limit, the State Board lacks the authority to extend it. E.g., B.W., a minor child by his parents, J.W. and B.W. v. Board of Education of the City of Brigantine and Safety Bus Service, decided by the State Board of Education, November 4, 1987.

We conclude that the statutory filing requirement with which the Township failed to comply is of such significance that we dismiss the appeal in this matter. In Yorke v. Board of Education of the Township of Piscataway, decided by the State Board of Education, July 6, 1988, aff'd, Docket #A-5912-87T1 (App. Div. 1989), the Court upheld the dismissal of an appeal by the State Board where it found that the notice of appeal had been filed one day late by appellant's counsel who alleged that he had misread or misunderstand the applicable regulations. The Court added that even if the statute could be construed to permit enlargement of the time for filing an appeal, the appellant therein had failed to establish good cause.

In this case, the Commissioner's decision was rendered on December 15, 1993 and mailed to the parties on that date. Accordingly, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.4, the decision appealed from was filed on December 18. Therefore, as mandated by N.J.S.A. 18A:6-28, see N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.3(a); N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.4(a), as computed under N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.4(b), the Township was required to file its notice of appeal on or before January 18, 1994. The Township mailed its notice of appeal dated January 19, 1994 to the State Board on that date. In that the appeal was filed late, the matter was referred to the Legal Committee for consideration of the effect of the Township's failure to file timely notice.

Even if N.J.S.A. 18A:6-28 can be construed to provide us with the authority to enlarge the time limit for filing an appeal, we find no substantive basis to warrant doing so in this particular instance. Counsel for the Township had three full weeks after the Township authorized him to proceed with this appeal in which to file the notice thereof. By allowing almost that entire period to pass without filing, counsel for the Township placed himself in the position from which he now seeks extrication. Moreover, there is no indication that the circumstances of the situation confronting him just prior to the filing deadline precluded him from making the appropriate arrangements to assure that his obligations to his client were fulfilled.

Nor may we, as counsel contends, apply our regulations so as to deem his notice of appeal to have been filed as of January 18 on the basis of the State Board's actual receipt thereof on January 20. N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.6 provides, in pertinent part:

(b) An appeal or cross appeal shall be considered filed upon receipt of notice of appeal by the Legal Committee if hand delivered or upon mailing if appended thereto is a proof of mailing including either:

1. An affidavit of the person mailing the appeal; or

2. A certificate of mailing signed by the attorney for the party filing the appeal.

(c) Where there is no accompanying affidavit or certificate of mailing, the appeal shall be deemed to have been mailed three days before receipt of the appeal by the State Board.

In this case, the notice of appeal included proof of mailing signed by counsel for the Township certifying that the notice was mailed on January 19. Consequently, pursuant to the clear and unambiguous language of N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.6(b), the appeal was considered filed upon its mailing on January 19. We reject as entirely without merit counsel for the Township's contention that his notice of appeal, which was dated and mailed on January 19, could be deemed to have been filed prior to that date.

Accordingly, we dismiss the appeal in this matter for failure to file notice thereof within the statutory time limit as computed under the applicable regulations.

RESPONDENT.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, tenured employee whose position as a library clerk was abolished, averred Board's action in reassigning her to another position as office clerk at a reduced monthly salary constituted a violation of her tenure rights.

ALJ found reduction in salary did not violate tenure laws. Since respondent's position was abolished in good faith, she thus properly bumped into a vacant clerk position at middle school -- her annual salary went up but she had to work 12 months instead of 10 months, resulting in a reduced monthly salary rate. Petition was dismissed.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision with clarification. Commissioner relied on Kigerl not Bassett as position in question was that of a clerk, not one requiring certification as teaching staff member. When a person's position is lawfully abolished and that person is reassigned or transferred to another position with a lower salary structure, reduction in salary does not occur for purposes of N.J.S.A. 18A:17-2. (Kigerl) Commissioner found reduction in petitioner's monthly salary following her transfer to a 12-month position was permissible as she moved onto a different salary scale, that for 12-month employees.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF CINNAMINSON,

Stephen J. Mushinski, Esq., for respondent

Record Closed: September 15, 1993 Decided: November 1, 1993

BEFORE BRUCE R. CAMPBELL, ALJ:

Patricia Casey, petitioner, alleges and the Cinnaminson Board of Education, respondent, denies that the Board's action reassigning her to another position as clerk at a reduced salary after her clerk position was abolished constitutes a violation of her tenure rights.

This matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education by filing of a verified petition of appeal. The Department of Education transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 through -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 through -13. The parties submitted a joint stipulation of facts in June and following a July 29, 1993 telephone conference agreed the matter would proceed on motions for summary decision. Moving and supporting papers were timely filed and the record closed on September 15, 1993.

STIPULATED FACTS

1. Petitioner, Patricia Casey, resides at 107 Maryland Avenue, Palmyra, New Jersey 08065.

2. Respondent, Board of Education of the Township of Cinnaminson, Burlington County, is a public school district with administrative offices located at Eleanor Rush School, P.O. Box 224, Cinnaminson, New Jersey 08077.

3. Petitioner, Patricia Casey, commenced employment with respondent on or about September 1, 1981, as a teacher's aide in the library.

4. Petitioner was assigned to the position of library clerk on or about January 2, 1984.

5. Petitioner held the position of library clerk until June 30, 1992.

6. Petitioner obtained tenure in her respective employment position with the respondent.

7. In April of 1992 there was a reduction in force within the respondent school district, which was effective June 30, 1992.

8. As a result of the reduction in force, petitioner, Patricia Casey's position as a library clerk was abolished.

9. Petitioner's position as a library clerk was a ten (10) month position.

10. There were two other library clerks in the respondent school district, one at each of the elementary schools within the school district. Both of the individuals holding the title of library clerk in the elementary schools are tenured and had more seniority than the petitioner, under the Collective Bargaining Agreement between Respondent and it's Teacher Association.

11. Petitioner, by virtue of her tenure, was entitled to bump into a vacant position or one held by a nontenured employee. The position of twelve (12) month clerk at the middle school was vacant due to transfers of other personnel and the petitioner was given that position.

12. For the 1991-92 school year petitioner was paid a salary of $1,378.20 per month. On July 1, 1992 petitioner was appointed to the position of a twelve (12) month office clerk at the middle school.

13. The petitioner was up-graded from Step 6 to Step 7 on the salary guide for twelve (12) month office clerks effective July 1, 1992 which represented an 11.1% pay increase or $1,530.00 per year.

14. The position of twelve (12) month office clerk entitled petitioner to two weeks paid vacation as well as two additional sick leave days per year, which she w as not entitled to as a ten (10) month library clerk.

15. Petitioner's salary as a twelve (12) month office clerk was $1,276.50 per month.

ARGUMENT

Petitioner's Argument

The petitioner alleges the Board violated her tenure rights when it reduced her monthly salary. N.J.S.A. 18A:17-5 sets forth the service required for an individual employed by a board in a secretarial or clerical position to obtain tenure in the position. The statute also provides that persons who have obtained tenure "shall not be dismissed or suspended or reduced in compensation except for neglect, misbehavior or other offense" and only in the manner set forth under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9 et seq.

It is agreed that the petitioner gained tenure in her position under N.J.S.A. 18A:17-2. Therefore, when her ten-month position as a library clerk was abolished in a reduction in force (RIF) in the school district, effective June 30, 1992, she was placed in a vacant clerical position at a middle school. However, this position is a twelve-month position for which the petitioner receives $1,276.50 per month. She worked in this position through the entire 1992-93 school year. She has received $101.70 per month less than the salary she received in her prior, ten-month position.

Reduction of the petitioner's monthly salary contravenes the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:17-2 inasmuch as the reduction occurred without proceedings under the school employees tenure act.

What constitutes a reduction in compensation has been thoroughly discussed in Bassett v. Board of Education of Oaklyn, OAL DKT. EDU 8061-83 (Jan. 31, 1984), adopted in part, rev'd in part, Comm'r of Ed (Mar. 19, 1984), aff'd in part, St. Bd. (Feb. 4, 1987), aff'd 223 N.J. Super. 136 (App. Div. 1988). In Bassett, a tenured teacher returned from leave to find her full-time position eliminated pursuant to a RIF. She was assigned to a part-time position as a supplemental reading teacher. She was paid $10.80 per hour as established under the labor contract for supplemental teachers. Her compensation was considerably less than she was entitled to receive had she returned to a full-time teaching position. Although the Appellate Division acknowledged a board's authority through collective bargaining to adopt different salary schedules for different categories of employees, the court held that where the statutory mandate prevails over an inconsistent contractual position, the contractual position is unenforceable. 223 N.J. Super at 142. Bassett obtained tenure under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. She had statutory protection against the reduction in salary.

The facts are similar in the present case. Petitioner is tenured and she found herself reassigned within the same tenurable position but at a lesser salary. It is irrelevant that the position's compensation was established in the collective bargaining agreement. The law holds that a contract term may not contravene or supersede a specific term or condition established by statute. The Appellate Division has said that a negotiated salary position that results in the reduction of a tenured employee's salary even if it does not violate the public employment relations statutes, would violate the Tenure Act. N.J.S.A. 18A:17-2 provides that the petitioner may not suffer a reduction in compensation in her tenured clerical position. The Board, therefore, is legally obligated to pay her at least the same monthly salary she was receiving during the previous school year. The petitioner also makes arguments concerning benefits that need not be developed here.

Board's Argument

The Board argues that, as a result of a RIF, the petitioner's ten-month library position was abolished. There were two other library clerks in the district and both were more senior than the petitioner.

Because the petitioner was tenured, she was entitled to bump a less senior employee (of whom there were none), to bump into a vacant position or to take a position held by a nontenured employee. The twelve-month office clerk position at the middle school was vacant. The petitioner applied for and was given that position. She was appointed to the position and her salary was adjusted upward. As a ten-month clerk she received $13,782.00 per annum. As a twelve-month clerk, she received $15,318.00. The petitioner claims she is entitled to be paid at the same monthly salary that she received as a ten-month clerk despite the fact that she now is in a different position.

The Board asserts that if the petitioner's position in this case were upheld, she would be unjustly enriched and, in effect, would be at a higher salary level than twelve-month clerks who have been employed by the Board longer than she.

When an employee's position is eliminated, and the employee is rehired in a different position, the employee is not entitled to receive the same salary he/she formerly enjoyed. Rather, the employee is entitled to receive the salary assigned to the position the employee fills. A reduction in salary for purposes of the Tenure Act did not occur in this matter.

The Board properly exercised its rights under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9 and 18A:6-10. Specifically, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10, which prohibits the dismissal and reduction in compensation of tenured employees, also upholds the right of a board of education to implement a RIF. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 sates

> No person shall be dismissed or reduced in compensation . . . .
> Nothing in this section shall prevent the reduction of the number of any such persons holding such offices, positions or employments under the conditions and with the effect provided by law.

The petitioner was a tenured library clerk pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:17-2. Her position was abolished. She applied for and was hired for the position of twelve-month office clerk. The Board employed its statutory rights under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9 and N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 to implement a RIF.

Further, the Board's action abolishing the position of ten-month library clerk is presumed valid and will not be overturned unless the petitioner can establish that the Board acted in bad faith or in an arbitrary and capricious manner. That cannot be demonstrated here. In fact, the opposite is true. The Board asserts it acted in good faith and in a reasonable and prudent manner.

A reduction in compensation under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 does not occur when, as a result of a RIF, a tenured employee is rehired in another position at a lower monthly salary. "When a person, whose position is lawfully abolished, is reassigned or is transferred to another position with a lower salary structure, a reduction in salary does not occur for purposes of N.J.S.A. 18A:17-2." Booth v. Board of Education of Salem, OAL DKT. EDU 1897-79 (Feb. 5, 1980), adopted, Comm'r of Ed. (Aug. 18, 1981), aff'd St. Bd. of Ed. (Dec. 2, 1981).

The provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:17-2 and 18A:6-10 are similar. N.J.S.A. 18A:17-2 is designed to protect secretarial and clerical employees while the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 are designed to protect other tenured employees. However, the law is clear that the petitioner in this case was not reduced in compensation pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:17-2. Therefore, she is not entitled to receive the salary that she enjoyed prior to abolition of her former position.

DETERMINATION

The parties have well outlined the controversy. I adopt the jointly stipulated facts, above, as facts in this matter.

On the consideration of applicable law, I FIND and CONCLUDE that a reduction in salary does not violate tenure laws if based upon a transfer resulting from a good faith abolition of position. Schwarzkopf v. Board of Education of Camden, 1985 S.L.D. 130; Okin v. Board of Education of Oradell, Comm'r of Ed. (Apr. 21, 1980) (unpublished); Wilson v. Board of Education of New Brunswick, 1977 S.L.D. 555; Wilson v. Board of Education of Florham Park, 1977 S.L.D. 823.

The respondent abolished one or more positions. The petitioner's position was abolished. There were other library clerks in the district, but they, too, were tenured and had more seniority than the petitioner. There were no library clerks less senior than the petitioner. Therefore, she could bump into a vacant position or one held by a nontenured employee. There was a twelve-month clerk position vacant at the middle School. The petitioner was appointed to the position. Her annual salary went up, but her monthly salary went down. Other benefits and emoluments are not relevant to this discussion. Under the clear instruction of a long line of cases, a reduction in salary violates no tenure law if it is based upon a transfer resulting from a good faith abolition of position. There is no challenge to the bona fides of the abolition in this case. Accordingly, as a matter of law, judgment must be entered for the Board and is not necessary to consider the salary per month versus salary per year argument -- for which no authority was cited.

For the reasons stated above, the petition of appeal is DISMISSED. It is so ORDERED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, 8th Floor West, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

PATRICIA CASEY,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF CINNAMINSON, BURLINGTON COUNTY,	:	DECISION

The record and initial decision rendered by the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Petitioner filed timely exceptions pursuant to the applicable provisions of N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4. The Board filed timely reply exceptions as well.

Petitioner asserts that the ALJ erred in concluding that her salary was not reduced in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:17-2, relying on recent tenure case law such as Linda Bassett v. Board of Education of the Borough of Oakland, Bergen County, decided by the Commissioner March 19, 1984, State Board aff'd in part/rev'd in part February 4, 1987, aff'd 223 N.J. Super. 136 (App. Div. 1988) for the proposition that when a tenured school employee is transferred or placed in another position which falls within the employee's same tenured position, the employee's salary cannot be reduced, even if the new position encompasses different duties or is compensated at a different contractual rate. She claims that her transfer to a 12-month clerk position from a 10-month clerk position involved neither a change in her tenured position nor a change in the type or volume of her duties, but rather was a transfer from one clerk position to another with a greater annual salary but an increase in the number of months worked, thereby causing an effective decrease in her monthly salary.

Consequently, petitioner seeks reversal of the initial decision and an order for the Board to compensate her at the same monthly salary rate retroactively that she enjoyed in her prior tenured clerk position.

Upon careful and independent review of the record of this matter, the Commissioner affirms the initial decision with the following clarification.

As petitioner is a tenured clerk, this situation is governed by N.J.S.A. 18A:17-2 and the case law construing that statute, which affords clerks protection against unreasonable discharge or reduction in salary absent the filing of tenure charges. Despite what appears to be conflicting case law on the issue of salary upon transfer or reassignment, in the Commissioner's judgment, Ann Kigerl v. Board of Education of the Borough of South Plainfield, Middlesex County, 1981 S.L.D. 889, aff'd State Board 896, is germane to this matter because it interprets the tenure law for clerks, stating that: "when a person, whose position is lawfully abolished, is reassigned or is transferred to another position with a lower salary structure, a reduction in salary does not occur for purposes of N.J.S.A. 18A:17-2." (emphasis supplied) (Kigerl, at 892) By contrast, Bassett, supra, the case petitioner relies on, deals with transfers pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5, the tenure law for teaching staff members.

Moreover, while the Commissioner recognizes that petitioner herein suffered a monthly reduction in salary as a result of her moving from a 10-month library clerk position to a 12-month office clerk position, such reduction was not an impermissible one pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:17-2 because she was moved onto a different salary guide, that for 12-month office clerks. See, Stipulation of Facts No. 13. As such, petitioner's proper salary must be determined by the guide for the class of employees to which she was newly placed. In this case, such class is that of 12-month employees. See Jeannette A. Williams v. Board of Education of the City of Plainfield, Union County, 1979 S.L.D. 220, aff'd in part/rev'd in part State Board 1980 S.L.D. 1552, aff'd N.J. Superior Court Appellate Division 1558. (Tenure rights do not include future salary expectations.)

Additionally, the Commissioner notes that Kigerl renders without merit the distinction between a transfer and a reassignment because the decision expressly accounts for both transfers and reassignments within the same position. Hence, in reliance on Kigerl, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that no violation of N.J.S.A. 18A: 17-2 occurred in the Board's action in placing petitioner in the 12-month position of office clerk, notwithstanding that her monthly, but not her annual, salary was reduced thereby.

However, it bears observing that the holding in Bassett, supra, reconciled a nearly 50% cut in pay sustained by Petitioner Bassett upon her being reassigned to a position as an hourly wage earner instead of a salaried employee of the district. Although the Commissioner recognizes that the facts of this case plainly suggest petitioner will sustain a reduction in pay rate monthly, neither N.J.S.A. 18A:17-2 nor analogy to Bassett, supra, supports her claim to receive monthly salary equal to that which she received as a 10-month employee under circumstances where she remains salaried and at a yearly salary greater than that she received as a library clerk.

Accordingly for the reasons expressed in the initial decision as clarified herein, the initial decision is adopted as the Commissioner's own. The Petition of Appeal is therefore dismissed, with prejudice.

PATRICIA CASEY,	:
PETITIONER-APPELLANT,	:
V.	:	STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF CINNAMINSON, BURLINGTON COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT-RESPONDENT.	:

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, December 17, 1993

For the Petitioner-Appellant, Zazzali, Zazzali, Fagella & Nowak (Richard A. Friedman, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Respondent, Stephen J. Mushinski, Esq.

As stipulated by the parties, Patricia Casey (hereinafter "petitioner") commenced her employment with the Board of Education of the Township of Cinnaminson (hereinafter "Board") on September 1, 1981 as a teacher's aide in the library. In January 1984, she was reassigned as a library clerk, a 10-month position which was abolished by the Board in April 1992, effective June 30, 1992, as the result of a reduction in force ("RIF"). The Board then reassigned her to a vacant 12-month office clerk position, effective July 1, 1992. As a result of her extended work year, petitioner's annual salary increased, but the rate at which she was compensated decreased, causing her monthly salary to drop by $101.70. Petitioner alleged that the

OCT. 5, 1995

Board's action constituted an improper reduction in her compensation in violation of her tenure rights.

On November 1, 1993, an Administrative Law Judge ("ALJ") recommended dismissing the petition, asserting that "a reduction in salary violates no tenure law if it is based upon a transfer resulting from a good faith abolition of position." Initial Decision, slip op. at 7.

On December 17, 1993, the Commissioner of Education adopted, with clarification, the findings and conclusions of the ALJ and dismissed the petition. The Commissioner indicated that "when a person, whose position is lawfully abolished, is reassigned or is transferred to another position with a lower salary structure, a reduction in salary does not occur for purposes of N.J.S.A. 18A:17-2."[1] Commissioner's Decision, slip op. at 10, quoting Kigerl v. Board of Education of the Borough of South Plainfield, decided by the Commissioner, 1981 S.L.D. 889, 892, aff'd by the State Board, 1981 S.L.D. 896. The Commissioner rejected petitioner's reliance upon Bassett v. Board of Educ., 223 N.J. Super. 136 (App. Div. 1988), stressing that the facts of that particular case had dealt only with transfers pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 involving teaching staff members. Moreover, the Commissioner found nothing impermissible in the reduction of petitioner's monthly salary since it resulted from her being moved onto a different salary guide, that for 12-month office clerks. Consequently, the Commissioner concluded that

[1] N.J.S.A. 18A:17-2 provides, in pertinent part:

> c. Any person, who has acquired, or shall hereafter acquire, tenure in any secretarial or clerical office, position or employment under the board of education of a school district ... shall hold his office, position or employment under tenure during good behavior and efficiency and shall not be dismissed or suspended or reduced in compensation, except for neglect, misbehavior or other offense and only in the manner prescribed by subarticle B of article 2 of chapter 6 of this title.

the Board had not violated N.J.S.A. 18A:17-2 when it placed petitioner in the 12-month position, notwithstanding that her monthly salary was thereby reduced.

Petitioner filed the instant appeal to the State Board of Education.

After a thorough review of the record, we reverse the decision of the Commissioner. We agree with petitioner that the rate at which she was paid subsequent to her reassignment in 1992 constituted a reduction in her compensation in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:17-2.

It is undisputed herein that, as a result of her service in the district, petitioner satisfied the precise statutory conditions for the achievement of tenure. N.J.S.A. 18A:17-2. Such tenure was achieved as a clerical employee. Id.; Cf. Given v. Bd. of Ed. of Windsor Regional School District, decided by the Commissioner, 1978 S.L.D. 43, aff'd by the State Board, 1978 S.L.D. 46, aff'd by the Appellate Division, 1979 S.L.D. 832. In Bassett, supra, the Appellate Division settled that a tenured teaching staff member who was reassigned within the same tenured position could not be reduced in compensation, notwithstanding that the reassignment resulted from a reduction in force. That determination was predicated on the express language of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5, which prohibits the reduction in compensation of tenured teaching staff members for inefficiency, incapacity or unbecoming conduct. Like N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5, N.J.S.A. 18A:17-2, which grants the protection of tenure to clerical and secretarial employees who meet the precise statutory conditions, expressly provides that any employee achieving tenure thereunder may not be reduced in compensation "except for neglect, misbehavior or other offense," and then only in the manner prescribed by the Tenure Employees Hearing Law, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 et seq.

While the Commissioner correctly observed that the holding in Bassett, supra, "reconciled a nearly 50% cut in pay" sustained by the petitioner therein, Commissioner's decision, slip op. at 11, it is important to note that the petitioner in that case had been reduced from a full-time to a part-time position as the result of a RIF. Despite such reduction, however, the Court held that in order to preserve petitioner's salary level, the district board was required to compensate her proportionally, based on the number of periods she taught, at the full-time salary designated for her appropriate step on the salary guide, rather than at the lesser hourly rate provided for in the collective bargaining agreement. Thus, while petitioner's total compensation in that case was reduced as the result of her decreased hours, her rate of compensation was maintained.

As in Bassett, supra, the petitioner herein was not transferred from one tenurable position to another. Rather, she was reassigned within the same tenurable position, i.e., "clerk." Moreover in contrast to the instant matter, the facts in Kigerl, were such that, as stressed by the Commissioner therein, petitioner's reduction in compensation resulted from her "own choice of a [lesser paying] position rather than available higher paid assignments...." Kigerl, supra, at 895. No such circumstances exist in this case. Petitioner herein was not given a choice of positions, but rather was reassigned by the Board from a 10-month to a 12-month assignment within her tenured clerical position. As a consequence, while petitioner's annual salary increased as a result of her extended work year, the rate at which she was compensated decreased.

Such a reduction, in the absence of tenure proceedings, is expressly prohibited by N.J.S.A. 18A:17-2. Cf. Stockton v. Bd. of Educ. of City of Trenton, 210 N.J. Super. 150, 157 (App. Div. 1986) (district board's one-step reduction of staff member on salary guide after commencement of school year in order to correct an earlier overpayment appeared to be improper reduction in compensation notwithstanding that the adoption of a new contract resulted in a small increase in staff member's actual salary).

We therefore reverse the decision of the Commissioner and direct the Board to pay petitioner according to the rate of compensation to which she would have been entitled but for her reassignment in 1992, along with back pay.

SETTLEMENT

The above matter having been amicably resolved between the parties, it is hereby agreed as follows:

1. Petitioner, Julie Nealon, a tenured teacher of Business Education with the Respondent, filed the within petition claiming seniority rights to teach all courses offered in the Business Department of the Respondent in Marketing.

2. Respondent has produced for the Petitioner a copy of the existing class schedule of the Business Department. A review of that schedule confirms that were the Petitioner to prevail in this matter, she would not obtain full time employment from the Respondent. Rather,

Petitioner would obtain half time employment, in the middle of the day, teaching th Respondent's course offerings in Marketing, which are currently being offered to students in periods 4, 7 and 8.

3. Petitioner, as a result of her petition, is seeking full time employment with the Respondent, not the part time employment which would be available to her were she to prevail in the instant matter.

4. In reliance on Respondent's representations as to the schedule of marketing courses, Petitioner hereby withdraws her petition in this matter.

5. Petitioner and Respondent agree that the Petitioner's withdrawal of the within petition is without prejudice to her right to raise in the future claims to any full time teaching positions which become available with the Respondent in Business Education and without prejudice to Respondent's right to raise all available defenses.

STATEMENT OF CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -13 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -15. The matter was scheduled for a prehearing telephone conference on November 3, 1993. On October 4, 1993, the undersigned was notified by letter that the matter had been resolved and that a consent order was forthcoming. On November 3, 1993, a consent order was provided which indicates that the petitioner has been assigned to a full-time position, effective September 1, 1993.

Petitioner, Diane Dalton, has an instructional certificate issued by the State Board of Examiners, qualifying her as a teacher of ESL, K-12, and English, K-12. She has been employed since September 1, 1987 by the respondent, Board of Education, Borough of Kinnelon, as a tenured teacher. Her teaching position was subjected to a reduction in force, effective June 30, 1993, thereby reducing her full time employment to a part-time position. Petitioner sought reinstatement to a position commensurate with her endorsement, alleging that her tenure and seniority rights under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5, N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12, and N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 et seq. were violated.

I have reviewed the consent order and FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the terms contained therein as evidenced by their signatures.

2. The agreement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this consent order meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the terms therein should be approved. Petitioner has now been reassigned to a permanent position from her prior part-time job and therefore the matter is moot. I approve the consent order and therefore ORDER that the parties comply with its terms and ORDER that these proceedings be DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. BEFORE RICHARD McGILL, ALJ:

The Board of Education of the Borough of Rutherford filed a petition seeking payment of tuition for respondents' children who were enrolled in a school in Rutherford but allegedly were not residents of the Borough. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on March 18, 1993 for determination as a contested case.

Prior to hearing, the parties agreed to an amicable resolution of the matter and submitted the attached Stipulation of Settlement. Having reviewed the record and the settlement terms, I FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures or the signatures of their representatives.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. Accordingly, it is ORDERED that the parties comply with the settlement terms, and it is FURTHER ORDERED that the proceedings in this matter be concluded.

I hereby FILE my Initial Decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 West State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." WHEREAS, the Rutherford Board of Education filed a verified petition of appeal with the Commissioner of Education which sought an order compelling Hermes Galliani and Doris Galliani to pay tuition in the amount of $4,683.60 for their children, M.G. and E.G.; for the 1991-1992 school,

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF RUTHERFORD, BERGEN COUNTY,	:
PETITIONER,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
V.	:	DECISION
HERMES AND DORIS GALLIANI,	:
RESPONDENTS.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law in the form of a joint stipulation of settlement have been reviewed.

Upon review, it is noted that on November 15, 1993, by telefaxed letter to the Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, respondents claimed to have only received the initial decision on that date and sought permission to submit exceptions on grounds that the initial decision of the ALJ and the appended settlement document did not accurately reflect their understanding of what transpired at hearing and settlement proceedings. This request was granted, and respondents were advised by telephone and by letter dated November 16, 1993 that their exceptions were required to be submitted to the Commissioner, and served upon the Board of Education, no later than November 26, 1993. In view of respondents' request, an extension of time for the Commissioner to render her own decision in this matter was also obtained.

However, respondents failed to submit any exceptions, a circumstance which was noted by the Board by letter of December 2, 1993, and accordingly, the Commissioner has reviewed the initial decision and duly executed settlement agreement pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1. Upon such review, the Commissioner approves the settlement terms and adopts the settlement agreement as the final decision in this matter, but admonishes the parties for drafting a term (No. 2) to be effectuated prior to the Commissioner's review and approval of the settlement.

Notwithstanding this qualification, the Commissioner accepts the within settlement as indicated above and this matter is accordingly dismissed, subject to compliance with the settlement terms.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF RUTHERFORD, BERGEN COUNTY,	:
PETITIONER-RESPONDENT,	:
V.	:	STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION
HERMES AND DORIS GALLIANI,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENTS-APPELLANTS.	:

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, December 23, 1993

For the Petitioner-Respondent, Fogarty & Hara
(Rodney T. Hara, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Appellant, Hermes & Doris Galliani, pro se

This matter was initiated by the Board of Education of the Borough of Rutherford (hereinafter "Board") by the filing of a peititon with the Commissioner of Education seeking tuition payments from Hermes and Doris Galliani (hereinafter "appellants") whose children were enrolled in the Rutherford public schools, but who were allegedly domiciled outside the district.

On December 23, 1993, the Commissioner approved a proposed settlement of this matter. Appellants thereafter filed a pro se notice of appeal from the decision of the Commissioner to the State Board. The notice was dated January 15, 1994 and mailed by certified mail on January 26. Said notice was directed and sent to the Commissioner, along with another copy of appellants' exceptions to the Commissioner dated December 14.

August 3, 1994

On February 7, the Commissioner acknowledged the notice and advised appellants that the original exceptions had been received on December 23, "well out of time and would not have been considered in any event absent a compelling explanation warranting relaxation of rules." The Commissioner forwarded the notice of appeal to the State Board Appeals Office.

By letter dated February 14, 1994, the Counsel to the State Board advised appellants that their notice of appeal had been due on or before January 25, 1994 and that this matter was being referred to our Legal Committee for consideration of the effect of the appellants' failure to file timely notice. Appellants were given until February 24 to file an affidavit setting forth the circumstances of their filing. Appellants were also advised that there was no indication that opposing counsel had been served with a copy of their appeal. They were directed to correct such deficiency by February 24.

By letter dated February 17, the Board of Education of the Borough of Rutherford (hereinafter "Board") urged dismissal of appellant's appeal for failure to file in a timely manner.

Appellants thereafter filed a letter with the State Board dated February 24 and written in Spanish. On March 9, appellants requested that the Department of Education provide them with a Spanish speaking employee to assist them with their appeal. By letter dated March 10, appellants were informed that the staff of the State Board Appeals Office was not capable of providing them with assistance in Spanish and that the Department of Education was unable to provide Spanish translating services to litigants.

On March 21, appellants' February 24 letter was acknowledged and they were advised that all papers filed in appeals to the State Board must be in English. They were reminded of the referral of this matter to the Legal Committee and, under the circumstances, were provided with the opportunity to submit an affidavit in English setting forth the circumstances of their filing. Appellants were given until April 4 to submit such an affidavit.

By letter dated April 1, appellants advised that they had been accepted by Bergen County Legal Services and would be meeting with an attorney in this matter on April 11. By letter dated April 6, appellants were advised that this case would be placed in abeyance until April 15 so as to permit them to meet with their attorney. They were also informed that it was their responsibility to ensure that Bergen County Legal Services notified the State Board by April 15 if it would be providing them with legal representation in this case. There have been no further communications from appellants or from any legal representative.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-28, appeals to the State Board must be taken "within 30 days after the decision appealed from is filed." The State Board may not grant extensions. N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.5(a). In contrast to the period for filing petitions to the Commissioner of Education, see N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2; N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.15, the time limit within which an appeal must be taken to the State Board is statutory, and, given the jurisdictional nature of the statutory time limit, the State Board lacks the authority to extend it. Mount Pleasant-Blythedale Union Free School District v. New Jersey Department of Education, Docket #A-2180-89T1, slip op. at 5 (App. Div. 1990).

We conclude that the statutory filing requirement with which the appellants failed to comply is of such significance that we have no choice but to dismiss the appeal in this matter. In Yorke v. Board of Education of the Township of Piscataway, decided by the State Board of Education, July 6, 1988, aff'd, Docket #A-5912-87T1 (App. Div. 1989), the Court upheld the dismissal of an appeal by the State Board where it found that the notice of appeal had been filed one day late by appellant's counsel who alleged that he had misread or misunderstood the applicable regulations. The Court added that even if the statute could be construed to permit enlargement of the time for filing an appeal, the appellant therein had failed to establish good cause.

In this case, the Commissioner's decision was rendered on December 23, 1993 and mailed to the parties on that date. Accordingly, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.4, the decision appealed from was filed on December 26. Therefore, as mandated by N.J.S.A. 18A:6-28, see N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.3(a); N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.4(a), as computed under N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.4(b), the appellants were required to file their notice of appeal on or before January 25, 1994. Although appellants' notice of appeal to the State Board was dated January 15, 1994, it was not mailed until January 26. As previously noted, their notice was received by the Commissioner on January 31 and forwarded to the State Board.

Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.6(b), an appeal is deemed filed upon receipt of the notice of appeal if hand-delivered or upon mailing if it includes a proof of mailing. If no such proof is attached, the appeal is deemed to have been mailed three days before receipt by the State Board. Id. In this case, the notice sent by certified mail indicated a mailing date of January 26 and was received on January 31. In that the appeal was filed late, the matter was referred to the Legal Committee for consideration of the effect of the Township's failure to file timely notice.

Appellants were notified of such referral and provided with considerable opportunity to respond thereto. They have failed to provide an affidavit setting forth the circumstances of the filing. Nor have they alleged at any time that the notice of appeal was filed in a timely fashion.

Even if N.J.S.A. 18A:6-28 can be construed to provide us with the authority to enlarge the time limit for filing an appeal, appellants have failed to offer a substantive basis to warrant such enlargement in this particular instance. Despite being provided with repeated opportunities to do so, appellants have failed to provide any indication of the circumstances surrounding their filing or justification of any kind for filing beyond the statutory time limit. Nor do we find this case to present us with a matter of public importance or with substantive issues of transcendent importance warranting a determination on the merits.

Consequently, we dismiss the appeal in this matter for failure to file notice thereof within the statutory time limit as computed under the applicable regulations.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF
ANTHONY EARL CAMPBELL

BEFORE KEN R. SPRINGER, ALJ:

On February 8, 1993, the Hoboken Board of Education certified a tenure charge of unbecoming conduct against respondent Anthony Earl Campbell. The certification alleged facts constituting a violation of the New Jersey Criminal Code, specifically burglary under N.J.S.A. 2C:18-2. Respondent filed a timely answer denying the charge. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on February 18, 1993 for a contested case hearing pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. Meanwhile, on December 10 1992, a Hudson County Grand Jury indicted respondent on one count of burglary and a second count of theft.

On April 22, 1993, upon application of the respondent, the matter was placed upon the inactive list until October 22, 1993 or resolution of the underlying criminal matter, whichever occurred first.

On April 22, 1993, the respondent pled guilty to one count of burglary. Judgment was entered sentencing respondent to two years probation and 50 hours of community services. A copy of the indictment and the judgment of conviction is attached.

N.J.S.A. 2C:51-2 provides that any person holding public employment who is convicted of an offense of the third degree or above or of an offense touching or involving his employment shall forfeit his position; such forfeiture shall take effect either upon a finding of guilt, if the court so orders, or upon sentencing, unless the court orders its stay of such forfeiture. In the instant matter, respondent was sentenced on June 11, 1993 and the court did not stay the forfeiture. As of that date, Mr. Campbell no longer had any rights to his position as a school custodian with the Hoboken Board of Education.

There are no facts in dispute. The crime of burglary constitutes an offense of the third degree. Moreover, it is undisputed that the circumstances of this offense arose in a context involving or touching his position as school custodian. Therefore, I FIND there are no issues remaining to be decided in this contested matter at this time. Respondent has forfeited his position by operation of law.

Therefore, I ORDER the return of this file to the Commissioner of Education and that the tenure charges be dismissed without prejudice, as moot. In the event the criminal conviction is reversed on appeal, this matter may be retransmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for hearing.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, tenured teaching staff member, appealed Board's refusal to permit her to return to her classroom teaching position following transfer to Learning Disabilities Teacher-Consultant (LDTC) position. Petitioner stipulated that transfer was voluntary, but argued that circumstances were such that it was more analogous to an involuntary transfer in terms of her employment rights.

ALJ found petitioner's transfer to LDTC position for the 1990-91 school year was in fact voluntary and that her reappointment to that position for 1991-92 was without objection. Therefore, there was no implication that the transfer was contemplated as temporary or that the Board agreed or intended to return petitioner to the classroom. Therefore, petitioner had no basis to claim violation of tenure rights by the Board's determination to keep her in the LDTC position after she requested a return to classroom teaching.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination of initial decision.

7. Petitioner received her educational services certificate with an endorsement as a learning disabilities teacher-consultant in October of 1976.

8. Petitioner returned to classroom teaching with the Wildwood Crest School District in September 1976 following her sabbatical leave, and served as a teacher under her elementary endorsement, from September 1976 through June 30, 1990.

9. On or about June of 1980, petitioner was approached by Keith Harper, then Superintendent of Schools to replace Rebecca Kona, who tendered her resignation as LDTC for the Wildwood Crest School District. After extensive conversations with Mr. Harper and the principal, petitioner advised them that her interest was in teaching and declined the position.

10. On or about June or July 1986, petitioner was advised by Mr. Eugene Whelan, the Superintendent of Schools, that Sharon Stubbs resigned as the LDTC and was asked to accept that position. Petitioner declined the position, indicating that her interest was in teaching and not in the LDTC position.

11. On August 30, 1990, petitioner was informed by phone conversation with Eugene Whelan, Superintendent of Schools, that the Learning Disabilities Teacher-Consultant had tendered her resignation; Mr. Whelan asked petitioner to consider accepting the position. Petitioner requested time to consider it and contacted Mr. Whelan requesting to meet with him the following day.

12. On August 31, 1990, petitioner met with Mr. Whelan at his office to again discuss the Learning Disabilities Teacher-Consultant position.

13. Petitioner voluntarily transferred to the position of Learning Disabilities Teacher-Consultant for the 1990-91 school year.

14. Petitioner asked and was encouraged by Mr. Whelan to visit Glassboro College to update on the trends in the fields, although she did not take any courses and to meet with the Director of Special Education from the State Department of Education located in Cape May County and to meet with neighboring LDTC persons. She was encouraged to reach out for support with colleagues in the area.

15. Petitioner was reappointed to the position of Learning Disabilities Teacher-Consultant for the 1991-92 school year.

16. On or about May 22, 1992, petitioner made her first formal written request for a transfer from the position of Learning Disabilities Teacher-Consultant to a classroom teaching position. This followed a meeting on or about May 15, 1992 between the petitioner and Dennis Anderson, the Superintendent of Schools since August 8, 1991.

17. By letter dated May 28, 1992, Mr. Anderson on behalf of the Wildwood crest Board of Education denied petitioner's request for a transfer to a teaching position.

18. On July 7, 1992, petitioner filed an appeal of the Board's denial with the Commissioner of Education.

19. At the time petitioner made demand to return to the tenured teaching position, she was not tenured under the educational services certificate. Likewise, at the time of filing the appeal, she was not tenured under the educational services certificate. Petitioner obtained tenure under the educational services certificate on the first day of school of the 1992-93 school year, after being offered a tenure contract in April 1992.

20. On or about August 20, 1992, the Commissioner of Education approved petitioner's request for a hearing and the matter was referred to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested matter.

LAW AND DISCUSSION

The Board of Education characterizes the transfer as "voluntary" and within its discretion. The teacher claims that failure to return her to a tenured position from an nontenured one is a violation of her tenure rights.

A statute confers tenure upon certified teachers and other enumerated school board employees after three years (variously defined), during good behavior and efficiency, and prevents dismissal or reduction of compensation of tenured teachers except for certain enumerated causes and in a prescribed manner. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. Tenure has been described as a "legislative status." Greenway v. Board of Education, 29 A 2d. 890 (1943). The status of tenure "protects teachers from dismissal for unfounded, flimsy or political reasons." Spiewak v. Board of Education of Rutherford, 90 N.J. 63 (1982).

The statute has been interpreted by the Commissioner, reading it in pari materia with N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6, as preventing the transfer from one separately tenurable position to another without the individuals consent even though the individual happens to have the requisite certificate in the second position. The Commissioner held that such a transfer without consent is a "dismissal" and a violation of tenure rights. Stephen Knott v. Board of Education of the Township of Randolph, 1985 S.L.D. 1567, aff'd State Board 1986, S.L.D. 3075. The Commissioner based the Knott decision on the Appellate Division opinion in Madeline Childs v. Board of Education of the Township of Union, 1980 S.L.D. 1134, aff'd State Board 1981 S.L.D. 1404, aff'd N.J. Superior Court, App. Div. 1982 S.L.D. 1456. The Childs court said that it was "pure sophistry to assert (Child's) 'transfer' is anything less than a dismissal from her clearly tenured position." p. 1460. The Child's case is factually similar to the instant case except for the issue of voluntariness.

The cases relied upon by the petitioner to support her assertion that she has an indefeasible and unilateral right to move back to her classroom teaching position from LDTC, all arose after an involuntary transfer was made by the Board, of a tenured teacher to another position. Childs, supra; Kratt, supra.; Peter Melillo v. Board of Education of the Essex County Vocational School District, 1987 S.L.D. 1493, aff'd State Board 1987 S.L.D. 1496; Rosemary Gerdes v. Board of Education of the Borough of Spotswood, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 386-91 (December 23, 1991), Commr's Decision (February 6, 1992), aff'd State Board of Education (July 1, 1992). This case, however, is not about an involuntary transfer since no involuntary transfer ever occurred. In this case, petitioner seeks an expansion of the tenure concept to include a right not contemplated by the legislature. The legislature sought to protect teachers from arbitrary or malicious dismissal. It did not seek to protect teachers from the consequences of their own acts. It is stipulated that this transfer was voluntary.

A motion for summary judgment was earlier denied in this matter. A basis of the denial was the assertion in briefs and the implication in affidavits that the petitioner only agreed to the transfer from classroom teacher to LDTC in 1990 to ease an emergency situation created at the last minute by the abrupt resignation of the prior LDTC. In that case, it would have been unconscionable to penalize her for stepping into the breach by refusing to allow the petitioner to return to her classroom when the emergency was abated.

The stipulation filed in this matter does not characterize the transfer in a manner consistent with the idea that this teacher was making only a temporary change. The stipulation clearly asserts that the original transfer in 1990 was voluntary and that her reappointment to the position in 1991 was without objection. There is no implication that the Board agreed to return the petitioner to the classroom or took any advantage whatsoever of petitioner in this period. Because the petitioner voluntarily accepted the position of LDTC, the Board has the authority under the general provisions and duties granted to it by the legislature to reassign qualified persons to their positions. N.J.S.A. 18A:11-1.

Petitioner's reappointment was consistent with the tenure law and did not violate it.

I DISMISS the petition filed herein.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." MARGARET DE FREHN,	:
PETITIONER,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
V.	:	DECISION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF WILDWOOD CREST, CAPE MAY COUNTY,	:
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Timely exceptions were filed by petitioner pursuant to the provisions of N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4, as were replies by the Board of Education.

In her exceptions, petitioner essentially reiterates the arguments of her post-hearing filings, incorporating her primary brief by reference and contending that the ALJ, in accepting the arguments of the Board, erred in construing the facts of this matter in terms of applicable law. Specifically, petitioner argues that, in agreeing to be transferred to the separately tenurable position of Learning Disabilities Teacher-Consultant (LDTC) in response to a district emergency and in a spirit of cooperation, she in no way waived her statutory right to her tenured teaching position. These tenure rights, petitioner avers, take precedence over the managerial prerogatives enjoyed by the Board to assign personnel within the scope of their certification, as it is preposterous to hold that, while a Board cannot forcibly transfer a tenured teacher from one separately tenurable position to another, it can refuse her request to return to her first tenured position following transfer to a second, thereby denying an entitlement which is hers by law.

In reply, the Board reiterates its earlier arguments and further objects to petitioner's attempt, in violation of N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4(c), to introduce by way of exception a factual aspect altogether lacking in the stipulated facts on which the parties agreed this matter would be decided. This effort, the Board contends, is an attempt to mischaracterize petitioner's voluntary action as an involuntary one, so as to trigger application of laws governing involuntary transfer in what is actually a case about the consequences of voluntary transfer. Those consequences, the Board avers, were correctly understood and set forth by the ALJ and should not be disturbed herein.

Upon review of the record and consideration of this matter, the Commissioner determines to affirm the analysis and conclusion of the ALJ.

Specifically, the Commissioner concurs that, even accepting arguendo petitioner's contention that she decided to take the LDTC position only in response to the district's then-pressing need, the Board's action in refusing a request to return her to a teaching position did not violate petitioner's tenure rights. These rights, as properly found by the ALJ, contemplate protection against loss of employment and salary (indeed, petitioner herein retains her entitlement to a teaching position should she be riffed from the position of LDTC), but are not intended to insulate an employee against the consequences of a transfer decision which is both voluntary in essence and lacking in any indication of temporary intent, notwithstanding that it may have arisen out of circumstances then at hand.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law dismissing the Petition of Appeal is affirmed for the reasons expressed therein.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE :

HEARING OF FLORENCE TURNER : COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

RUCKER, SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE : DECISION

CITY OF CAMDEN, CAMDEN COUNTY. :

SYNOPSIS

Board certified charges of unbecoming conduct and other just cause (excessive absenteeism) against respondent, tenured elementary teacher.

ALJ concluded that charges of chronic and excessive absenteeism were sustained. ALJ did not consider other six charges certified by Board. ALJ determined that although most of the absences were the result of legitimate medical problems, the magnitude of the numbers and the extensive time period encompassed negatively impacted the continuity of instruction. ALJ ordered respondent's removal from her tenured position and matter forwarded to State Board of Examiners for further appropriate action.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision and concurred with ALJ that it was unnecessary to require further litigation of the six remaining charges certified by Board. Commissioner dismissed those charges without prejudice to preserve Board's right to move forward if adjudicated charge is reversed on appeal. Commissioner dismissed respondent from her tenured teaching staff position and forwarded matter to State Board of Examiners for review of only the one adjudicated charge.

Arnold Mellk, Esq., for respondent (Wills, O'Neill & Mellk, attorneys)

Record Closed: October 4, 1993 Decided: November 18, 1993

BEFORE M. KATHLEEN DUNCAN, ALJ:

These matters were commenced on April 29, 1992 (EDU 4327-92) and July 27, 1992 (EDU 6204-92) pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11 when the Board of Education of the School District of the City of Camden (hereinafter petitioner) certified tenure charges against Florence Turner Rucker (hereinafter respondent) alleging conduct unbecoming a teacher and chronic and excessive absenteeism. Answers to both sets of charges were filed on behalf of respondent and on June 11, 1992 and August 12, 1992, respectively, the matters were transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as contested cases, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

A prehearing conference was conducted on October 13, 1992, at which time the charges were consolidated for hearing and trial dates were set for February 25, March 2, 3, April 1, and 5, 1993. Because respondent failed to answer petitioner's interrogatores, an order permitting the deposition of respondent to be taken was entered, and at the request of both parties the trial dates of February 25, March 2, and 3, 1993, were adjourned for the purpose of permitting time for the deposition to take place. On March 17, 1993, current counsel for respondent was substituted for her previous attorney, Richard A. Friedman. The April 1, 1993 trial date was adjourned because petitioner's attorney, Ms. Murray, was ill. On Wednesday, April 7, 1993, the parties appeared and were ready to proceed to hearing; as the result of a settlement conference conducted prior to the commencement of the hearing, however, respondent agreed to pursue the possibility of filing an application for ordinary disability retirement with the Board of Trustees of the Teachers' Pension and Annuity Fund.

The parties agreed that respondent would be examined by physicans not employed by petitioner for the purpose of determining whether she is permanently and totally disabled from the performance of her regular and assigned duties. It was also agreed between the parties that if the examinations resulted in medical opinion(s) that respondent is permanently and totally disabled, respondent would file an application for disability retirement, and if her application were to be granted by the Board of Trustees, these matters would be settled, subject to approval by the Commissioner of Education. If the application for disability were to be denied, a hearing would be requested and the pension case would be consolidated with these matters for hearing. Additional hearing dates, which had been scheduled for June 3, June 10 and June 16, 1993, were adjourned at the request of both parties to permit time for the medical examinations to take place. Respondent thereafter was examined by John P. Motley, M.D., a physican who specializes in psychiatry. She declined to be examined by any of the other doctors recommended by petitioner and petitioner declined to allow respondent to select physicans of her own choice to perform the examinations. At a settlement conference conducted on August 24, 1993, respondent stated that she would not file a disability retirement application with the Board of Trustees of the Teachers'

Pension and Annuity Fund because she does not feel that she is disabled and she expressed displeasure that the hearing had not taken place as originally scheduled. She did not acknowledge that she had previously agreed to pursue a disability retirement and had subsequently changed her mind, although it is clear that this is what has happened. As a result of the psychiatric examination performed by Dr. Motley, he issued an opinion to petitioner that respondent is permanently and totally disabled from the performance of her duties on a psychiatric basis. The undersigned suggested that petitioner should file an application for disability retirement on respondent's behalf, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:66-39, and simultaneously file a Motion for Partial Summary Decision on the chronic and excessive absenteeism charge. Petitioner's Motion for Partial Summary Decision and supporting papers were received on September 17, 1993. Respondent's reply was received on September 21, 1993. The application for disability retirement was filed by petitioner on respondent's behalf on September 24, 1993. Oral argument on the motion was conducted by telephone conference call on October 4, 1993, whereupon the record closed.

FINDINGS OF FACT

The following facts appear from the certification of Florence Gavin, who is employed by petitioner as the Principal of Davis Elementary School, and from the other papers submitted in support of the Motion for Partial Summary Decision by petitioner. Respondent has been employed by petitioner since 1977. During the time periods relevant to a determination of the within motion, respondent was assigned to teach fourth grade at Davis Elementary School. Respondent's attendance records for this time period, specifically between school years 1988-89 through March 11, 1992,* reveal that respondent was absent a total of 263 school days out of a possible 655 school days. In the 1988-89 school year respondent was absent on sixty-two of the 180 school days, or thirty-four percent of the time. In the 1989-90 school year respondent was absent on seventy-seven of the 180 school days, or forty-three percent of the time. In the 1990-91 school year respondent was absent on 92.5 of the 180 school days or fifty-one percent of the time. In the 1991-92 school year, between September 1991 and March 11, 1992, there were 115 school days; respondent was absent on 31.5 of those days or twenty-seven percent of the time. Attendance charts show that these absences were intermittent throughout each year.

* Respondent's suspension pursuant to the filed tenure charges was effective April 30, 1992; however, the calculations provided by petitioner in connection with this motion end with March 11, 1992.

The collective bargaining agreement between petitioner and its teachers permits teachers to use thirteen sick days and two personal days each school year. At the commencement of each of the years in question, respondent began the year with only those days allocated for that year and with no accummulation. Accordingly, in each year her absences vastly exceeded her paid leave days. Although the memorandum of law submitted by petitioner asserts that respondent was repeatedly counseled and admonished that her attendance had to improve and that it was having a serious, detrimental impact on her students, no such certification appears from Ms. Gavin. There is also no certification concerning petitioner's implication that respondent's increment was withheld for school years 1985-86 and 1986-87 as a result of excessive absenteeism.

In her certification in opposition to petitioner's motion, respondent states that she was absent 249 days, not 263 days, during the relevant time period. She further certifies that each of the 249 absences was either medically justified or was for personal days which were granted by the collective bargaining agreement, and petitioner does not dispute these allegations. Respondent denies that she was ever counseled by petitioner's administrators concerning her attendance record; "Any discussions concerning my absences with Dr. Webster, the Superintendant, and the three principals at Davis School were with regard to their hoping that my health would improve and not as a matter of absenteeism;"she certifies. She notes that her increments for 1985 through 1987 were restored, and that they had not been withheld for absenteeism. And finally, she certifies that she is ready, willing and able to return to her teaching duties because her medical problems have improved and have been brought under control.

Although it is apparent from the foregoing recitation that some factual disputes exist between the parties, as explained hereinafter, those factual disputes do not need to be resolved for purposes of deciding the within motion.

APPLICABLE LAW AND DISCUSSION

N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5, the rule governing motions for summary decision, provides:

> (b) The motion for summary decision shall be served with briefs and with or without supporting affidavits. The decision sought may be rendered if the papers and discovery which have been filed, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there > is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law. When a motion for summary decision is made and supported, an adverse party in order to prevail must by responding affidavit set forth specific facts showing that there is a genuine issue which can only be determined in an evidentiary proceeding. If the adverse party does not so respond, a summary decision, if appropriate, shall be entered.

The now classic statement of the standards for granting or denying summary judgment set forth in Judson v. Peoples Bank and Trust Co. of Westfield, 17 N.J. 67 (1954), explains that the procedure is designed to provide a prompt businesslike and inexpensive method of disposing of any cause which a discriminating search of the merits in the pleadings, depositions and admissions on file, together with the affidavits submitted on the motion, clearly shows not to present any genuine issue of material fact requiring disposition at a trial. Although as previously noted, factual disputes exist herein, I CONCLUDE that those facts are not material facts requiring resolution following a full hearing. A material fact is any fact of consequence to the determination of the action. See New Jersey Rules of Evidence, Rule 401, and State v. Hutchins, 241 N.J. Super. 353, 359 (App. Div. 1990). Although respondent does not identify which of the fourteen days petitioner asserts she was absent with which she disagrees, whether the total number is 263 or 249 is inconsequential. If petitioner's numbers are correct, respondent was absent forty percent of the school days during the relevant time period; if respondent's numbers are correct, she was absent thirty-eight percent of the total school days.

While it is true, as respondent argues in her papers in opposition to this motion, that mere numbers standing alone may not support a determination of chronic and excessive absenteeism, it is clear that at some point the sheer magnitude of the absences can support a Board of Education's conclusion that continuity of instruction has been negatively impacted, regardless of the particular circumstances of the absences. In Meli v. Board of Ed. of the Burlington County Vocational-Technical Schools, Superior Court of New Jersey, Appellate Division (A-5820-85T7, May 21, 1987) (unreported), cited by respondent, the petitioner's salary adjustment and increment for the 1985-86 school year had been withheld because of absenteeism. She had been absent thirteen and one-half days (nine days sick leave, two and one-half personal days and two days because of death in her family) all within the statutory and contractual limits. The court found the Board of Education's stated reason of "Attendance" without more to be arbitrary and unreasonable under the circumstances, particularly since petitioner's attendance had improved over the previous year (fourteen days) and her increment had been restored for that year. Meli v. Board of Ed. of the Burlington County Vocational-Technical Schools, Superior Court of New Jersey, Appellate Division (A-2237-85T7, March 4, 1987) (unreported). In Kuehn v. Board of Ed. of Teaneck, OAL DKT. NO. EDU 1077-81 (October 9, 1981), reversed New Jersey Commissioner of Education (November 25, 1981), reversed New Jersey State Board (February 1, 1983), the State Board was dealing with a broad policy of evaluation which it found to be arbitrary in its application. In that case the Teaneck Board of Education had in effect an unwritten personnel practice which required the withholding of a teacher's increment any time absence of more than ninety school days occurred during a school year. Because of serious illness petitioner Kuehn was absent more than ninety school days during the 1979-80 school year. The State Board concluded that to simply state that a teacher who exceeds the ninety-day maximum allowance for absence forfeits an increment, without considering the particular circumstances for absence, is not good cause for the withholding of an increment as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14.

In the present matter, petitioner did consider the nature of the absences. It does not dispute that most of them were the result of legitimate medical problems and that the remaining days were personal days taken pursuant to contractual entitlement. Petitioner has, nevertheless, concluded that because of the magnitude of the numbers and the extensive time period encompassed, the students assigned to respondent's classroom could not have received the thorough and efficient education to which they were entitled. The Commissioner of Education came to the same conclusion in School District of the City of Jersey City, Hudson County v. Catherine Reilly, 1977 S.L.D. 403, wherein in spite of the Superintendent's testimony that he had no knowledge from personal observation of any adverse or detrimental effect respondent's absences (982.5 days over a twenty-year period, most as the result of legitimate medical problems) had upon the classes to which she had been assigned, concluded:

> Frequent absences of teachers from regular classroom learning experiences disrupt the continuity of the instruction process. The benefit of regular classroom instruction is lost and cannot be entirely regained, even by extra effort, when the regular teacher returns to the classroom. Consequently, many pupils who do not have the benefit of their regular classroom teacher frequently experience great difficulty in achieving the maximum benefit of schooling. Indeed, many pupils in these circumstances are able to achieve only mediocre success in their academic program. The entire process of > education requires a regular continuity of instruction with the teacher directing the classroom activities and learning experiences in order to reach the goal of maximum educational benefit for each individual pupil. The regular contact of the pupils with their assigned teacher is vital to this process.

>
> In view of respondent's record of chronic absence, the Commissioner is constrained to observe that the Board waited for an excessive period of time to resolve this matter. The Board's delay and inaction demonstrated an abrogation of its mandated responsibility to insure a thorough and efficient educational program for a segment of its pupil population. Redcay v. State Board of Education, 130 N.J.L. 369 (Sup. Ct. 1943), aff'd 131 N.J.L. 326 (E.&A. 1944). (Reilly, at 414-415)

The Commissioner upheld dismissal of the tenured teacher and ordered the School Board to file an involuntary application for disability retirement with the Teachers' Pension and Annuity Fund. In School District of the Township of Washington, Warren County, v. Elizabeth Merkooloff, 1980 S.L.D. 1370, the Commissioner noted that respondent had twice been absent for a year's leave of absence for health reasons and had been absent over 240 sick days. He upheld her removal from her tenured position, concluding:

> The Commissioner views with regret the personal problems and health difficulties that respondent has endured; they have truly been unfortunate. The Commissioner notes that her requested leaves were for reasons relating to her health and observes that these health problems were compounded by her own family problems which impacted severely on her function as a first or second grade teacher. The Commissioner believes that these young pupils in their formative years surely deserve the best education possible with as complete continuity as can be accorded them, recognizing that excessive teacher absenteeism has a deleterious effect on their education. Trautwein, supra; In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Catherine Reilly, School District of the City of Jersey City, 1977 S.L.D. 403.
>
> The Commissioner, while sensitive to the problems of teachers, must stress again that which he previously said in Clinton F. Smith et al. v. Board of Education of the Borough of Paramus, 1968 S.L.D. 62:
>
> > "The principle enunciated by the Court in Bates v. Board of Education, 72 P. 907 (Calif. Sup. Ct. 1903), and quoted with approval in > McGrath v. Burkhard, 280 P.2d 864 (Calif. App. 1955), bears repeating here:

> 'The public schools were not created, nor are they supported, for the benefit of the teachers therein,  but for the benefit of the pupils and the resulting benefit to their parents and the Community at large.'" (Merkooloff, at 1371)

I CONCLUDE that when absences are as numerous as respondent's herein, the principle of res ipsa loquitur applies. It is unnecessary to provide testimony of an administrator that the absences have adversely impacted the students. The conclusion is obvious; the situation speaks for itself.

Respondent also argues that petitioner may not prevail on tenure charges of chronic and excessive absenteeism because she was never given adequate warning concerning the seriousness of the continuing conduct, along with an opportunity to improve her attendance. Although the Commissioner has said on numerous occasions that a tenured employee should have some warning that his or her supervisors are dissatisfied with the attendance record, I CONCLUDE that in a case such as the present, an increment withholding or a formal warning is unnecessary as a prerequisite sanction because it is undisputed that the reasons for the absences were medically legitimate and therefore a sanction or a warning could not be expected to produce improvement in attendance. The law should not require frivolous acts. Furthermore, it would be absurd to conclude that respondent was unaware of petitioner's concerns with respect to the effect her absences had upon her students. As a trained professional, respondent must be aware that when a substitute teacher is in charge of her class intermittently more than one-third of the time, the continuity and quality of instruction is adversely affected.

For all the foregoing reasons, I CONCLUDE that the charges of chronic and excessive absenteeism certified by petitioner on April 30, 1992, have been sustained and I CONCLUDE that they warrant respondent's removal from her tenured position. Although this decision resolves only one of the seven charges certified by petitioner, because of the conclusion that removal is warranted and because an application for ordinary disability retirement benefits is currently pending before the Board of Trustees of the Teachers' Pension and Annuity Fund, this decision granting petitioner's Motion for Partial Summary Decision is being transmitted to the Commissioner of Education for immediate review as an initial decision, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(e), for the purpose of avoiding the necessity for extended testimony from parents and students and the associated expense by the parties of unnecessary litigation. The remaining undecided charges should be forwarded to the Board of Examiners, who can make an independent determination concerning whether, if true, the allegations would warrant revocation of respondent's teaching certificate and whether under all the circumstances it wishes to proceed against respondent's certificate.

Accordingly, for all the foregoing reasons, it is HEREBY ORDERED that respondent is removed from her tenured position and the remaining tenure charges are HEREBY DISMISSED without an adjudication on the merits.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 West State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF FLORENCE TURNER	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
RUCKER, SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE	:	DECISION
CITY OF CAMDEN, CAMDEN COUNTY.	:

The record and initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Respondent's exceptions were filed beyond the 13-day period permitted by N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4, having been received on December 8, 1993 in response to an initial decision mailed on November 23, 1993. Consequently, these, and the Board's reply thereto, which was timely filed, are not considered herein.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record of this matter, the Commissioner agrees with the findings and conclusion of the Administrative Law Judge that the charge of chronic and excessive absenteeism certified by the Board on April 30, 1992 has been sustained and that such charge warrants respondent's removal from her tenured teaching position.

Further, in light of the determination that termination is the appropriate penalty with respect to this charge and also recognizing that there is currently an application for disability retirement benefits for respondent before the Board of Trustees of the Teachers' Pension and Annuity Fund, the Commissioner accepts the ALJ's recommended procedural decision that it is unnecessary to require further litigation of the six remaining charges certified by the Board at this time. She does, however, dismiss these six charges without prejudice in order to preserve the Board's right to move forward in the event that her determination on the one adjudicated charge is reversed on appeal. The Commissioner finds this of particular import since this matter will be transmitted to the State Board of Examiners for its consideration under N.J.A.C. 6:11-.6(a)1 and, as such, this body's review will be limited solely to the one adjudicated charge.

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed by the ALJ, as modified herein, the Commissioner adopts the recommendation of the Office of Administrative Law and directs that respondent be dismissed from her tenured teaching position with the School District of the City of Camden. The remaining six tenure charges are hereby dismissed, without prejudice. The Commissioner further directs that this matter be forwarded to the State Board of Examiners in accordance with the above-referenced regulatory provision for any action it deems appropriate.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF JACKSON, OCEAN COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, riffed supervisor, alleged Board retained nontenured or less senior supervisors in violation of his rights. Petitioner also laid claim to the newly created position of assistant principal.

ALJ concluded that Board acted within its discretionary authority relative to the RIF and administrative reorganization. Because the RIF was effectuated on September 1, 1992, those who were granted supervisory positions were tenured on that date. Thus, petitioner's tenure rights were not violated by abolition of his position as a supervisor. Moreover, ALJ found petitioner had no tenure entitlement to position as assistant principal insofar as he had not served any period of time in the position of assistant principal and also because the riffed position and the new position were not equivalent for tenure purposes.

Commissioner affirmed in part/reversed in part the initial decision. Commissioner concurred with ALJ that petitioner had no tenure entitlement to a position as assistant principal insofar as he had not served any period of time in position of assistant principal which is separately tenurable pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 and Dennery. Commissioner reversed ALJ's finding that RIF was effectuated on September 1, 1992, instead Commissioner concluded that RIF was effective on date Board acted to abolish, in this case March 17, 1992. Commissioner found therefore that Supervisors Wetzel and Pollock were not tenured at time of RIF but that a remand was necessary to determine if additional certification was required by Board before determination could be made regarding whether petitioner was entitled to either of these supervisory positions. BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF JACKSON, OCEAN COUNTY,
Respondent.

Record Closed: September 7, 1993 Decided: November 12, 1993

BEFORE LILLARD E. LAW, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner, who was subject to a reduction in force (RIF), alleges that the Jackson Township Board of Education (Board) maintained nontenured and/or less senior supervisors in its employ in violation of petitioner's tenure and seniority rights. Petitioner also alleges that the newly created position of assistant principal performs the same duties and responsibilities as petitioner performed in his supervisor position and, therefore, lays claim to the position.

The matter was transmitted to the Office of the Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. On or about March 26, 1993, the Board propounded a Notice of Motion for Summary Decision, with supporting brief and the Certification of Dominic Cotugno, Superintendent of Schools. In response, petitioner filed a brief in opposition to the Board's motion and argued that the matter was not ripe for summary decision inasmuch as petitioner had not received answers to interrogatories he had served upon the Board. The Board, in reply, argued that the only issue remaining to be resolved were legal issues.

On July 6, 1993, this tribunal determined that since the interrogatories were outstanding, the matter would not be decided in a summary fashion. This tribunal held, however, that in the event the Board provided answers to petitioner's interrogatories, it had leave to reinstate its Motion for Summary Decision.

Ms. Jeanne Pollock and Mr. Richard Wetzel were granted leave to intervene in the instant matter as individuals who will be substantially, specifically and directly affected by the outcome the case in the event petitioner prevails. N.J.A.C. 1:1-16.1 to 16.5.

All interrogatories from both sides have been answered and the Board now renews its Motion for Summary Decision, in which Intervenors join.

LEGAL ARGUMENTS OF THE PARTIES

THE BOARD'S POSITION

STATEMENT OF FACTS

This matter arises out of the actions of the Board in reorganizing its administrative and supervisory staff. At a meeting on March 17, 1992, the Board voted to abolish eight supervisory positions including the position held by petitioner. The effective date of the elimination of these positions was September 1, 1992.

At the meeting on March 17, 1992 the Board also voted to created four new assistant principal positions with an effective date of hire of July 1, 1992. The four assistant principal positions were filled at a meeting on April 14, 1992. At the meeting on April 14, 1992 the effective date of the new positions was changed to September 1, 1992. All persons appointed as assistant principal had held one of the abolished supervisory positions.

As set forth in the certification of Dr. Dominic Cotugno, Superintendent of Schools, the organization and elimination of supervisory position was necessitated by budgetary constraints and increased student enrollment. Because of a significant loss of state aid for the 1992-93 school year, the district eliminated 24 teaching positions and reorganized its supervisory staff by eliminating eight supervisor titles and creating four assistant principal positions. This arrangement allowed the district to save money through a net elimination of four supervisory positions, while enhancing the district's ability to deal with the needs of its increasing student population by having additional assistant principals.

In accordance with his seniority rights petitioner was offered a teaching position. However, in a letter dated July 1, 1992, petitioner gave noticed that he declined the teaching position.

In his petition, petitioner alleges that at the time the Board acted to reorganize its supervisory staff and abolish petitioner's position the Board retained nontenured supervisors in the supervisor positions. Petitioner further alleges that the Board retained Supervisors of Instruction with less seniority than petitioner. Finally, petitioner alleges that the newly created positions of assistant principal have substantially the same duties as the Supervisor of Instruction position and the appointment of nontenured persons to the position of assistant principal was in violation of his tenure rights.

All persons retained in supervisor positions after September 1, 1992, were tenured as teachers and supervisors prior to that date; with two persons acquiring supervisory tenure after the Board meeting of March 17, 1992. These individuals are Richard Wetzel, Supervisor of Educational and Business Technology and Jeanne Pollock, Supervisor of Instruction - Basic Skills (K-12). Mr. Wetzel was appointed to his current position on September 1, 1990, and obtained tenure as a supervisor on August 31, 1992, while Ms. Pollock was appointed to her current position on June 1, 1992, and obtained tenure as a supervisor on May 31, 1992.

The duties of the assistant principal and the duties of the Supervisor of Instruction - Math/Science are set forth in the attached job description of both positions.

POINT I

PETITIONER MAY NOT ASSERT A TENURE RIGHT TO A SUPERVISORY POSITION BECAUSE ALL OF THE SUPERVISORS WHO REMAINED IN POSITIONS AFTER THE REDUCTION IN FORCE ARE TENURED.

Petitioner alleges, in paragraph 5 of Count I of his petition, that at the time of the Board's action to abolish his position, the Board retained nontenured supervisors in a supervisor position. While it may be true that on the date the Board voted to abolish some of the supervisory positions, March 17, 1992, two of the supervisors who were eventually retained were not tenured, that fact has no legal significance. Tenure and seniority rights must be determined as of the effective date on which the positions were abolished. In the instant matter that date was September 1, 1992. On that date all of the supervisors retained were tenured.

Richard Wetzel (Supervisor of Education Business Technology) and Jeanne Pollock (Supervisor of Basic Skills, Grades K-5) had not yet earned tenure on the date of the Board's action but both had acquired tenure prior to the effective date of the RIF, September 1, 1992. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6 (a), any tenured teaching staff member who is transferred or promoted to a calendar year position shall obtain tenure in the new position after the expiration of a period of two consecutive calendar years. Mr. Wetzel has been employed by the district since 1970 and has held his supervisor position since September 1, 1990. Ms. Pollock has been employed by the Board since 1970 and has held her supervisor position since June 1, 1990. Therefore, by the time the Board's action took effect on September 1, 1992, both Mr. Wetzel and Ms. Pollock did in fact have tenure in their supervisor positions since they had both served in those positions for two consecutive calendar years.

In Hill v. Board of Education of West Orange, 1985 S.L.D. _____, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 4113-84 (December 5, 1984), aff'd Comm. of Education (January 21, 1985), aff'd State Board of Education (May 1, 1985), aff'd App. Div. A-4355-84TI (February 10, 1986), the Commissioner addressed a claim that the then recently enacted regulations should not be applied to determine seniority rights. The petitioner argued that her seniority rights "accrued" prior to the enactment of the regulations. In rejecting this argument the Commissioner accepted the conclusion of the Administrative Law Judge that "[t]eachers possess inchoate seniority rights until such time as a dismissal actually occurs."

The reasoning of the Commissioner in Hill is applicable to the instant matter. Until the time when petitioner's position was actually abolished, any tenure or seniority rights were merely speculative. Up until that point, the Board was free to rescind its action and retain some or all of the supervisor positions which had been eliminated. The effective date of the abolishment would be the only logical point for determining employment rights. The Board must act in advance of the effective date in order to give notice to the affected employees and to give the administration the opportunity to make the necessary scheduling changes.

Respondent is aware of two recent decisions which addressed a similar issue. In Francey v. Board of Education of the City of Salem, 92 N.J.A.R. 2*d.* (EDU) 449 (July 22, 1992), (appeal pending), and Johnstone v. Board of Education of the Township of Cinnaminson, 92 N.J.A.R. 2*d.* (EDU) 506 (August 12, 1992) (appeal pending), the Commissioner addressed the issue of whether teachers who obtained additional endorsements after a RIF are entitled to positions that became available as a consequence of the RIF. The Commissioner concluded that an individual's tenure rights to recall are frozen on the date of the action of the Board to RIF. The effect of this holding was that the petitioners were not entitled to new positions for which they became certified after the date of the RIF.

These cases, however, are clearly distinguishable from the instant matter. In fixing the date for determining tenure rights, the Commissioner in Francey and Johnstone was concerned with the uncertainty and administrative burden on the school district inherent in permitting individuals to obtain new certification which would require a redetermination of tenure and seniority rights. In the instant matter there was no uncertainty as to the tenure rights of each supervisor. It was known on March 17, 1992, what the tenure rights of each supervisor would be as of the effective date of the RIF and no one is claiming additional rights based upon new certification.

It must also be recognized that both Mr. Wetzel and Ms. Pollock have clearly obtained tenure in their respective supervisor positions. "When service of a teaching staff member has been rendered for the complete period required by statute a tenure status is accrued at the precise moment when the requisite period has expired." McGlynn v. Board of Education of the Township of Lumberton, 1972 S.L.D. 28, 33 (February 3, 1972). As long as an individual serves in the position for the requisite time period, tenure status can be obtained even where the individual was not officially appointed to the teaching staff position, Givens v. Board of Education of the City of Newark, 1974 S.L.D. 906 (0ctober 7, 1974), or where the individual served for a time period after not being renewed in the position Makoski v. Board of Education of the Township of Woodbridge, 1980 S.L.D. 374 (March 7, 1980). Therefore, there is no question that as of September 1, 1992, all the supervisors had obtained tenure status. No action can now be taken without circumventing the tenure rights of one or more of the supervisors.

Therefore, there is no merit to petitioner's claim that nontenured supervisors were retained after his position was abolished and Count I should be dismissed in its entirety.

POINT II

PETITIONER HAS NO SENIORITY RIGHTS TO THE OTHER SUPERVISOR POSITIONS SINCE THEY WERE IN SEPARATE CATEGORIES FROM HIS POSITION

In Count Two, petitioner claims a seniority entitlement to positions held by tenure supervisors who have shorter periods of service in supervisor positions.

Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.10(b) (now, N.J.A.C. 6:3-5.1(b)) seniority is determined by the number of years spent in "specific categories." The specific categories are set forth in N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.10 (1) (N.J.A.C. 6:3-5.1 (1)). Under that section, the twelfth (now, tenth) category is Supervisor. However, in that category it is stated that:

> each approved supervisory title shall be a specific category. District boards of education shall adopt job descriptions for each supervisor position which set forth the qualifications and specific endorsements required for such position.[1]

It is clear from the language of this section that an individual will only obtain seniority in the specific supervisor title he or she holds. As set forth in the regulation, the specific titles and the requirements for each supervisory position are to be set by the board of education. In the instant matter petitioner would only obtain seniority in the specific supervisor position he held, Supervisor of Instruction - Math/Science.

Such a result has been reached in other seniority cases. In Frissell vs. Board of Education of the Township of West Orange, 1985 S.L.D. _____, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 20-85 (July 8, 1985), the petitioner, who held the supervisor title of Director of Art, claimed seniority rights in a newly created position of Director of Fine Arts which encompassed the duties of the Director of Art and Director of Music. In concluding that the petitioner had no seniority rights to the new position, the Commissioner held that petitioner's seniority accrued only in his old position. Since the new position was a separate category under N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.10 (1) (10), petitioner had no seniority entitlement to the position.

Similarly, in Weinstein vs. Board of Education of the Township of Old Bridge, 91 N.J.A.R. 2d. (EDU) 102 (November 1, 1991), the petitioner claimed that her seniority rights were violated when she was not appointed to a new supervisory position, Basic Skills Supervisor, after her position as Coordinator of the Gifted and Talented

[1] Section N.J.A.C. 6:3-5.1(1)10.1 provides that: "Each supervisory title shall be a specific category; and ii District boards of education shall adopt a job description for each supervisory position which sets forth the qualifications and specific endorsements required for each position.

Program was eliminated. The petitioner claimed that she had more seniority as a supervisor than the tenured supervisor who was appointed to the new position. The Commissioner rejected this argument, holding that neither individual had obtained seniority in the position, since neither had served in that specific category.

In a more recent decision, Notaro vs. Board of Education of the Township of Old Bridge, 92 N.J.A.R. 2*d.* (EDU) 568 (September 17, 1992), the Commissioner concluded that the board did not violate the petitioner's seniority rights when it appointed individuals less senior to department chairmanships. The petitioner, who had held the position of chair of the Driver Education Department, claimed entitlement by reason of his seniority to the position of chair of five other departments after his position was abolished. Id. at 569. It was held that the positions in issue were essentially supervisor positions and that for purposes of seniority each supervisor title shall be a separate category. Since the petitioner did not serve in any of the other chair positions, he had no seniority to any of those positions. Id. at 571.

In the instant matter petitioner has no seniority rights in any of the other supervisory positions. Petitioner has not served in any other categories and, therefore, has no seniority right to any other supervisory title.

POINT III

PETITIONER HAS NO TENURE RIGHT TO A POSITION AS ASSISTANT PRINCIPAL

Petitioner was tenured in the position of Supervisor of Science/Math. His duties, as described in the job description for the position, primarily involved supervision of staff and curriculum in the areas of mathematics and science. The newly created position of assistant principal, while containing some staff supervision duties, also includes responsibilities for student supervision and discipline as well as responsibility for staff and curriculum on a school wide basis.

Petitioner claims that his tenure rights were violated when nontenured persons were appointed to the new assistant principal positions instead of him. It is asserted that the duties of the assistant principal position are substantially the same as his duties as supervisor.

The argument presented by petitioner has been considered and rejected by the Commissioner in other cases. In Miller v. New Providence Board of Education, 1987 S.L.D. 23 (January 8, 1987), the petitioner, who was tenured as Supervisor of Physical Education, claimed that his tenure rights were violated when his position was eliminated and he was not assigned to the new position of Vice Principal/Supervisor of Physical Education. In denying that claim, the Commissioner concluded that while the duties of the two positions overlap, the new position contained duties not included in the Supervisor position. The Commissioner concluded that the petitioner had no tenure rights to the new position as he had never performed any of the major duties of Vice Principal, nor had he previously acquired tenure in the position of Vice Principal. (Id. at p.43).

In DeCarlo v. Board of Education of the Borough of South Plainfield, 1988 S.L.D. 1796 (August 20, 1988), the petitioner made essentially the same argument made by petitioner in the instant matter. In DeCarlo the petitioner claimed seniority to a newly created assistant principal position, arguing that there was effectively no difference between his supervisor position and the assistant principal position. The Commissioner concluded that "[b]ecause supervisors and assistant or vice principals are separately tenurable positions pursuant to statute, N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5, petitioner acquired tenure as a supervisor, not as a vice principal, notwithstanding the fact that he may have also held a principal's endorsement." Id. at 1810. Second, the Commissioner found that although the descriptions of the two positions demonstrated some overlap duties, there were "significantly distinguishing duties" between the two positions. Id.

In DiSimoni v. Board of Education of the Passaic Reg. High School Dist. 1990 S.L.D. 1249 (July 2, 1990), aff'd State Board, 1991 S.L.D. 2540 (April 2, 1991), the State Board of Education affirmed the holding of the Commissioner that a tenure supervisor, with a principal certificate, had no tenure rights to a newly created position of associate principal, which fell under the title of assistant/vice principal. The State Board concluded that the position of assistant principal is among those specifically enumerated in N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 and, therefore, is separately tenurable from supervisory positions.

Most recently in Kish v. Board of Education of the Borough of Elmwood Park, 92 N.J.A.R. 2*d.* (EDU) 367, the Commissioner rejected the claim of a tenured supervisor, whose position had been eliminated, of tenure rights to the newly created position of Administrative Assistant to the Superintendent of Curriculum and Instruction and/or to a principal position. The petitioner had argued that the duties of the new position were similar to the duties she had performed as supervisor. It was held that the petitioner was tenured solely as a supervisor, which is a position separately tenurable from that of assistant superintendent. In addition, despite the fact that the petitioner had served as an elementary school principal for four months, she had no tenure rights to this position since any tenure petitioner obtained was solely as a supervisor. (Id. at 140) In affirming the Commissioner, the State Board noted that "tenure is achieved with in a 'position', and tenure protection as against nontenured individuals following a reduction in force extends only to assignments within that tenured position ..." 92 N.J.A.R. at 367.

The foregoing cases clearly demonstrate that petitioner's claim is without merit. A comparison of the job descriptions of Supervisor of Science/Math and assistant principal will show that there are "significantly distinguishing duties" between the two positions. As Supervisor, petitioner was not responsible for supervising the placement of students. Nor was he responsible for supervising student activities. While petitioner did have a duty to "assist in the maintenance and development of student control procedures and policies" he was not "responsible for student discipline." The descriptions of the two positions indicate that as Supervisor of Science/Math, petitioner was primarily responsible for the development and implementation of curriculum in his specific area of assignment. An assistant principal, on the other hand, is responsible for supervision of curriculum and personnel for the entire school as well as supervising student placement and activities. In addition, the assistant principal is expected to assume the duties of principal in the principal's absence. It is clear, therefore, that the duties of the assistant principal are much broader and significantly different from those of a supervisor position.

The positions in the instant matter are not only "substantially different," but also require different endorsements. While petitioner may in fact hold a principal endorsement, he has never served under this endorsement. In fact, the supervisor position in which petitioner served does not even require a principal endorsement.

In the instant matter any tenure rights accrued by petitioner were in his supervisor position. Since the position of assistant principal is a separately tenurable position, and is one which requires a certificate under which petitioner has never served, he had no tenure rights to the position. The assignment of nontenured individuals to the newly created positions of assistant principal did not violate petitioner's tenure or seniority rights. Each of the individuals appointed as assistant principal had the appropriate certificate and endorsements and had served as a supervisor in the school district. If the choice is between a group of qualified nontenured individuals, the Board can select the candidate it determines to be the most qualified for the position. Weinstein, 91 N.J.A.R. 2*d.* at 104.

PETITIONER'S POSITION

POINT I

PETITIONER IS ENTITLED TO THE NEWLY CREATED POSITION OF ASSISTANT PRINCIPAL

It is uncontroverted that respondent employed petitioner as a supervisor of instruction. For the purposes of this point only, it is not relevant as to whether this position was a position of general supervisor or supervisor Math/Science.

N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 sets forth the requirements for attaining tenure and the positions in which tenure may be attained. In the list of positions in the statute in which tenure is attainable, the position of supervisor is not one of those enumerated. A person employed in said position attains tenure pursuant to the language in N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 which states "in positions which require them to hold appropriate certificates issued by the board of examiners." The board of examiners issues three type of certificates: instructional, educational services and administrative (N.J.A.C. 6:11-2.3). In the instant matter, petitioner was required to have an administrative certificate with a supervisor endorsement (N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.3 (c)) and therefore has attained tenure under the administrative certificate.

The Supreme Court recently addressed the issued of tenure rights as they relate to the statutory language "in positions which require them to hold appropriate certificates issued by the board of examiners" in Dennery v. Passaic Co. Reg. Board of Education, Docket No. A-23/24-92, decided April 8, 1993. The Court found:

> Those endorsements coincide with the educational subjects or positions that share common attributes and thus are grouped under a particular certificate.
>
> An educator who has attained tenure by virtue of the requisite service in a specific position will have tenure with respect to all positions under the particular certificate. Ellicott v. Board of Education, 251 N.J. Super. 342, 349 (App. Div. 1991). Tenure under any one endorsement entitles an educator to tenure under all endorsements obtained under his or her certificate. Id. at 350; Bednar v. Westwood Board. of Education, 221 N.J. Super. 239 (App. Div. 1987) (holding that tenured teacher with instructional certificate and endorsement in art also entitled to tenured post requiring secondary art endorsement), certif. denied, 110 N.J. 512 (1988); Capidolupo v. West Orange Township Board. of Education, 218 N.J. Super. 510 (App. Div.) (holding that teacher with both elementary and secondary physical education endorsements was tenured under both endorsements), certif. denied, 109 N.J. 514 (1987); Grosso v. Board of Education, 1990 S.L.D. 1750.
> Thus, an educator with tenure in any endorsement that he or she possesses can, in effect, extend or transfer that tenure to other endorsements that are subsumed under the same certificate. (emphasis supplied) slip opinion at pp.7-9.

In the matter of sub judice, it is uncontroverted that petitioner has tenure in the endorsement of supervisor on the administrative certificate. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 does not list supervisor as a position in which to attain tenure. Rather tenure in the position of supervisor is attained in accordance with the language, "in positions which require them to hold certificates issued by the board of examiners." The board of examiners does not issue a supervisor certificate. The board of examiners issues an administrative certificate with a supervisor endorsement. The Supreme Court in Dennery, supra. has determined that:

> Thus, an educator with tenure in any endorsement that he or she possesses can, in effect, extend or transfer that tenure to other endorsements that are subsumed under the same certificate. slip opinion at p. 9.

The administrative certificate with an endorsement of principal is required for the position of assistant principal. (N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.3 (b)) It is uncontroverted that respondent has employed nontenured persons in the position of assistant principal. According to the Supreme Court in Dennery, petitioner can transfer his tenure under the supervisor endorsement of the administrative certificate to the principal endorsement of the administrative certificate because both endorsements are subsumed under the same certificate, the administrative certificate. Furthermore, in accordance with Bednar, supra. and Capidolupo, supra., petitioner is entitled by virtue of his tenure to the position of assistant principal rather than the nontenured persons currently employed as assistant principal.

POINT II

THE EFFECTIVE DATE OF SEPTEMBER 2, 1992 FOR THE REORGANIZATION OF ADMINISTRATIVE AND SUPERVISORY STAFF WAS INTENDED TO CIRCUMVENT PETITIONER'S TENURE AND SENIORITY RIGHTS

The Board acted on March 17, 1992 to eliminate certain supervisory positions, while retaining nontenured supervisors on that date, effective at the end of the workday on September 1, 1992, which in actuality and reality meant that the supervisor reorganization became effective September 2,1992. The creation of the new assistant principals positions, also at issue in this matter, became effective on July 1, 1992. July 1 is the commencement date of the school year and would be the logical starting date for the reorganization except that the supervisors work the 12 month calendar year and not the 10 month academic year.

The commencement date of September 2, 1992 was intended to circumvent petitioner's tenure rights. Between March 17, 1992 and September 2, 1992, nontenured supervisors attained tenure. One of the supervisors retained, attained tenure on September 1, 1992. He would not have attained tenure if the reorganization became effective on September 1, 1992. Hence the reorganization became effective September 2, 1992. The board wished to retain a nontenured supervisor to the detriment of petitioner. In order to circumvent petitioner's tenure right, the board artificially created September 2, 1992 as the commencement date of the reorganization making its action arbitrary, unreasonable and/or capricious. Of further note, the teachers in the Jackson school district commenced work for the 1992-93 school year on September 1, 1992. On that date, petitioner was still employed as a supervisor. The reorganization became effective on September 2, 1992 after all the retained supervisors had attained tenure. Petitioner was reassigned as a teacher effective September 2, 1992, the day after all the other teachers commenced employment. It is clear that the effective date of September 2, 1992 for the reorganization was arbitrary, unreasonable and/or capricious and intended to circumvent petitioner's tenure rights.

In Francey v. Salem Board of Education, 92 N.J.A.R. 2*d.* (EDU) 449 (July 22, 1992) (appeal pending), the Commissioner determined that a teaching staff member's seniority rights commence at the time of a RIF:

> In applying the protections of the tenure statutes, which concededly confer a preferred status upon tenured employees who lose their employment through no fault of their own, the Commissioner must also balance the Board's legitimate need to be able to rely upon the determinations of individual employee entitlement made at the time of a RIF. Within the statutory scheme, it is clear that the act of reducing a tenured staff member's employment is the distinct and self-limited event that triggers the affected party's entitlement, the evaluation of his or her individual entitlement status and the consequent assignment to either another position in the district or the preferred eligibility list; nor is it of any importance that the latter is strictly speaking a creature of seniority entitlement, as the concept of a fixed list from which subsequent vacancies are to be filled is applicable to tenure entitlement as well.
> In this context, the date of any employee's RIF can be the only reasonable date certain on which the employee's rights can be reckoned for future entitlement purposes. (emphasis supplied) Id. at 453.

unpublished, March 10, 1987; Patrick Fitzpatrick et al. v. Board of Education of the Township of Weehawken, 1982 S.L.D. 1500 (App. Div.); Dorothy Godwin Davis v. Board of Education of the Township of Ewing, Mercer County, decided by the Commissioner April 29,1 985, aff'd State Board September 4, 1985.

It is uncontroverted that the action to reorganize was on March 17, 1992. If this is the date of the RIF as set forth in Board minutes, then respondent clearly violated petitioner's tenure rights as a supervisor since it admits that there were nontenured supervisors on this date. As the State Board indicated in Marshall v. Neptune Board of Education, supra. 1986 S.L.D. 3087, 3089 (State Board) January 8, 1986):

> We emphasize that the reduction in force in this case occurred in April, 1984. Upon that reduction, the seniority rights of the affected teachers were triggered.

Even assuming arguendo that the reorganization was to be effective for the 1992-93 school year, the 1992-93 school year commenced July 1, 1992 and respondent has admitted that it had retained at least one nontenured supervisor on that date. Accordingly, the retention of a nontenured supervisor violated petitioner's tenure rights. See *Herbert v. Middletown Board of Education, (*Comm. dec. July 25, 1989), Rogers v. Highland Park Board of Education, (Comm. dec. May 10, 1990), Brusky v. Neptune Board of Education, (Comm. dec. February 1, 1990), *Schaeffer v. THE BOARD'S REPLY

PETITIONER HAS NO TENURE RIGHT TO THE POSITION OF ASSISTANT PRINCIPAL

Petitioner argues in his brief that the dictum in the Dennery case controls the outcome of the instant matter and entitles petitioner to the position of assistant principal. Dennery v. Board of Education, 131 N.J. 626 (1993)

The basic difference between the arguments made by petitioner and the Board, hinges on the contrasting approaches to the use of precedent found in the briefs in this matter. Petitioner quotes dictum from the Supreme Court in the Dennery case (which addressed a different issue) and contends that the principles of that dictum are controlling of the instant matter, while completely ignoring the directly applicable decisions of the Commissioner and State Board cited in the Board's brief. The Board, on the other hand, relies on the clear precedent of the decisions of the Commissioner and State Board which specifically hold that tenure as a supervisor does not confer a tenure right to a position as assistant principal, while treating the dictum in the Dennery case as just that - dictum. The Board contends that its approach is clearly the more reliable of the two, particularly since the dispute in this case involves the problematic area of tenure rights.

As this Court is aware, the issue of the scope of tenure rights in the event of a RIF has been the source of great confusion and considerable litigation ever since the 1986 decision of the State Board in the Capidolupo case. One clear lesson that can be learned from this confusion is that the outcome in a particular case cannot be determined by simply looking to broad principles which appear to emerge from prior decisions, as witnessed by the numerous remands and reversals appearing in this line of cases.

Indeed, the Dennery case itself is a good example of how difficult it is to extend a principle from one case to another. The petitioner in Dennery obviously felt that the then existing case law would permit her tenure as a guidance counselor to give her an entitlement to a supervisory position. The Commissioner and State Board, of course, held that she had no such entitlement, and that determination was ultimately upheld by the Supreme Court. But the petitioner in Dennery cannot be faulted for having instituted that litigation. The precise issue in that matter had never been addressed and there were some general principles in the earlier decisions which, out of context, appeared to support her argument. But now that the Dennery issue has been decided, there is no need for additional litigation on broad principles where that issue is concerned, and it is easy to predict the outcome of the next case to raise the identical issue.

In the instant matter, the issue to be decided is not a new one and we need not resort to broad principles to reach a decision. The Commissioner and State Board of Education have already held that tenure in a supervisory position does not afford a person tenure rights to a position as assistant principal. DiSimoni v. Passaic Regional High School District, 1990 S.L.D. 1249 aff'd St. Bd. 1991 S.L.D. 2540; DeCarlo v. South Plainfield Board of Education, 1988 S.L.D. 1796; Miller v. New Providence Board of Education, 1987 S.L.D. 23. See also, Kish v. Elmwood Park Board of Education, 92 N.J.A.R. 2*d.* (EDU) 134 (1/16/92) aff'd St. Bd. 92 N.J.A.R. 2*d.* (EDU) 367. As a result of these decisions the rule has now been established that a person with tenure in a supervisory position may not lay claim to a position as assistant principal. Thus, the outcome of a case such as the instant matter is easily predictable.

Wishing to avoid the certain dismissal which would result from these cases, petitioner ignores each of these cases and instead relies on an expansive interpretation of the broad policy discussion contained in the Supreme Court's dictum in Dennery. While dicta of the Supreme Court can have considerable, if not controlling weight in the area of the law which is undecided, we are not dealing here with an undecided issue. The Commissioner and State Board have determined that the type of tenure right claimed by petitioner does not exist, and there is not a shred of evidence in the Dennery decision to indicate that the Supreme Court intended to reverse that type of holding. To the contrary, the Supreme Court strongly asserts the deference which the courts should afford to decisions of the Commissioner and State Board.

> Although the Appellate Division has here concluded that the distinction between multiple endorsements under one certificate and multiple certificates is not "meaningful" for purposes of tenure, that judicial assessment cannot in this context displace the contrary administrative view.
> The Legislature intended that the State Board "promulgate specifications concerning the categories of certification" and that courts not intervene "unless the State Board's decision is palpably arbitrary." ... The delegation of regulatory and administrative responsibility over tenure to the State Board is based on the complexity and specialized nature of the subject of teacher tenure ... Our courts have long recognized the importance of allowing the State Board to devise the requirements governing both students and teaching staff. Dennery, supra. 131 N.J. at 636-37.

It is evident from the above passage that a key aspect of the holding in Dennery was the deference paid to the decisions of the Commissioner and State Board. There is no reason to conclude anything other than that the Supreme Court would also pay equal deference to the decisions of the Commissioner and State Board in DiSimoni, DeCarlo, Miller and Kish.

POINT II

SEPTEMBER 1, 1992 IS THE PROPER DATE ON WHICH TO DETERMINE TENURE AND SENIORITY RIGHTS

Petitioner argues in his brief that the Board somehow circumvented his tenure rights by adopting a resolution in April 1992 to have a reorganization take affect on September 1, 1992. Petitioner asserts that since two of the Supervisors did not attain tenure until after the Board acted, but before the reorganization took effect, the tenure right he would have been able to assert in March 1992 should apply on September 1, 1992, when the reorganization took effect. Petitioner further maintains that the reorganization should have been effective either on the date of the Board action (March 17, 1992) or at the commencement of the following school year (July 1, 1992), a date which he declares to be the logical starting date for such a reorganization.

Petitioner's arguments are off the mark in several ways. First, a board of education clearly has the authority to eliminate positions and reorganize its administrative staff. In this instance, the Board decided that such a reorganization would take effect on September 1, 1992. Apparently, petitioner would have preferred the Board to have adopted its resolution to reorganize on September 1, 1992, with a simultaneous effective date. Had the Board done that, it would seem that petitioner would have no basis upon which to make a claim of circumvention of tenure rights. The problem, of course, with such a methodology is that none of the individuals involved would receive advance notice of the plan and no preparation for the transition could take place. While petitioner may feel that July 1 is a more logical date, his logic overlooks the fact that such a reorganization scenario would leave virtually no time after the close of the academic year for a transition, and would leave no opportunity for supervisors to take vacation time during the summer months. Can there be any logic to an interpretation of the tenure laws which would preclude a board of education from providing advance notice and time for planning and transition when effecting a reorganization?

Petitioner's arguments also fail to recognize the tenure rights of the other two supervisors involved, Jeanne Pollock and Richard Wetzel. Petitioner would have the determination of tenure rights be made based on facts in existence on March 17, 1992. The problem with such an approach is that it ignores the fact that by the time the reorganization took effect (September 1, 1992) both Ms. Pollock and Mr. Wetzel earned tenure by serving two consecutive calendar years in the positions to which they were promoted from their prior tenured teaching positions. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6 (a). Both Pollock and Wetzel served the requisite statutory time period for tenure, and it would be their rights that would be circumvented if the Board were to arbitrarily determine tenure rights based on the facts in existence on March 17, 1992. It should also be noted, that there is no significance to the fact that the Board's resolution indicated that the resolution was to take effect at the end of the work day on September 1, 1992, rather than at the beginning of the work day. That timing issue is truly of no significance, since Mr. Wetzel earned tenure at the end of the work day on August 31, 1992, by operation of statute, and already enjoyed tenure at the beginning of the work day on September 1, 1992. Hence, even without the language referring to the end of the work day, the result in this case would be no different.

Finally, the cases relied on by petitioner to support a claim that the March 17, 1992, date is the date for determining tenure rights are not applicable to the issue in this matter. The cases of Francey and Johnstone are fully discussed in the Board's original brief in support of the motion for summary decision. Those cases were decided in favor of the board of education in each instance, and simply stand for the proposition that an employee who is the subject of a RIF may not increase his or her seniority rights by acquiring additional certifications/endorsements after a board has adopted a resolution to bring about a RIF. In the instant matter, it is the tenure rights of Pollock and Wetzel which were acquired after the date of the Board's action and those are rights which may not be circumvented. Similarly, the Marshall case cited by petitioner is also inapplicable. Marshall v. Neptune Board of Education, 1986 S.L.D. 3087 (St. Bd.), dealt with the question of whether the new seniority regulations which took effect a few months after the board adopted a resolution riffing certain staff members, should be made retroactive in application. That case held that the regulations would not be made retroactive. Again, the issue in the instant matter is far different, since there was no question of statutory tenure acquisition at issue present in that matter.

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

I

The Board seeks to dismiss the instant petition by way of summary decision, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5. Petitioner opposes the Board's motion and cross-moves for summary decision in his favor.

The administrative rule N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5, is substantially similar to New Jersey Court Rules, *R.*4:46-2, which has been subject to judicial interpretation and provides that upon motion duly filed, summary judgment "shall be rendered forthwith if the pleadings, depositions, answers to interrogatories and admissions on file, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to a judgment or order as a matter of law."

In Judson vs. Peoples Bank & Trust Company of Westfield, 17 N.J. 67 (1954), the Supreme Court set forth the purpose of the Summary Judgment Rule and established the standards a court should follow in applying the rule. The Court emphasized that the movant has a very heavy burden to clearly establish that no genuine issue of material fact exist. Justice William J. Brennan, writing for the Court observed, among other things, that the role of the judge on a motion for summary disposition is first to determine whether there is a genuine issue of material fact, but not to decide the issue if he/she finds it to exist. Judson at 73.

Justice Brenner continues in Judson to observe that summary judgment procedure is designed to provide for the prompt, businesslike and inexpensive method of disposing of any cause which clearly shows no genuine issues of material fact requiring disposition at a trial, after a discriminating search of the merits of the pleadings, depositions and admissions on file, together with affidavits submitted. Id. at 74. The Court also held, among other things, that where the party opposing a motion for summary disposition offers only facts which are immaterial or of an insubstantial nature, the court may grant summary judgment, "... taking as true the statement of uncontradicted facts in papers relied upon by the moving party, such papers themselves not otherwise showing the existence of any issue of material fact." Id. at 75.

More recently, the Supreme Court noted that "excessive caution would undercut the purposes of a motion for summary judgment, which provides a means for piercing the allegations in the pleadings to determine whether there are issues requiring disposition at trial." Pierce v. Ortho Pharmaceutical Corp. 84 N.J. 58, 65, (1980).

Having carefully examined the whole record before me, I CONCLUDE there are no genuine issues of material fact extant in the instant matter.

Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the herein matter, pursuant to the Board's motion, meets the Judson criteria for summary disposition.

II

Under the provisions of Executive Order No. 66 (1978), the rules at N.J.A.C. 6:3 expired on July 8, 1993. The State Board of Education, therefore, considered the recommendations of the Department of Education, (25 N.J.R. 1095 to 1107). After Public comment, it repealed N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.7 and 1.16; and readopted and recodified the remainder of the chapter, with amendments (25 N.J.R. 2249 to 2260). The former N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.10 is now N.J.A.C. 6:3-5.1, Standards for determining seniority.

Pursuant to the regulations,"Each supervisory title shall be a separate category;" N.J.A.C. 6:3-5.1 (1) 10 i. In addition, "District boards of education shall adopt a job description for each supervisory position which sets forth the qualifications and specific endorsements required for such position." N.J.A.C. 6:3-5.1 (1) 10 ii. This recodified rule is substantially the same as the former N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.10.

The Board, on July 31, 1984, adopted a job description for Supervisor of Instruction -Science/Math for grades 9 through 12. Among the qualifications for the position is the requirement that the individual holding the position be in possession of a valid New Jersey Supervisor's Certificate. Under N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.3 (c) Supervisor, the regulation provides that:

> This endorsement is required for supervisors of instruction who do not hold a school administrator's or principal's endorsement. The supervisor shall be defined as any school officer who is charge with authority and responsibility for the continuing > direction and guidance of the work of instructional personnel. This endorsement also authorizes appointment as an assistant superintendent in charge of curriculum and/or instruction.

Thus, the Board's Job Description for Supervisor of Instruction-Science/Math, met the former and current regulatory provisions as to qualifications for the position. The record demonstrates, therefore, that petitioner acquired a tenure status as a teaching staff member under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 with seniority as a Supervisor of Science/Math, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:3-5.1 (1) 10. Petitioner has been issued an Administrative Certificate by the State Board of Examiners. N.J.A.C. 6:11-2.3; N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.1 to 9.7.

III

Petitioner lays claim to the Board's newly created position of assistant principal grounded, in part, upon the New Jersey Supreme Court's opinion regarding tenure rights in Dennery, 131 N.J. at 634-635. The Denney Court observed, however, that:

> The Legislature clearly and pointed has vested responsibility in the State Board to fashion standards and promulgate guidelines concerning the qualification and certification of public educators within the State. Ellicott, supra, 251 N.J. Super. at 350, 598, A. 2*d.* 237. The Legislature intended that the State Board "promulgate specifications concerning the categories of 'certification'" and that courts not intervene "unless the State Board's decision is palpably arbitrary." Id. at 350, 598, *A.*2*d.* 237. Agency regulations are accorded substantial deference based on the recognition that "certain subjects are within the peculiar competence of the agency." In re Amendment of N.J.A.C. 8:31B-3.31, 119 N.J. 531 543, 575, A. 2*d.* 481 (1990). The delegation of regulatory and administrative responsibility over tenure to the State Board is based on the complexity and specialized nature of the subject of teacher tenure. Ellicott, supra, 251 N.J. Super. at 350, 598 A. 2*d.* 237. Our courts have long recognized the importance of allowing the State Board to devise requirements governing both students and teaching staff. See, e.g. Shelton College v. State Board of Education, 48 N.J. 501, 517-18, 226 A. 2*d. 612* (1967). Id. at 637.

The Dennery Court further recognized the State Board's contention that an individual must serve the requisite period of time in a position to meet the statutory and regulatory scheme governing tenure. In addressing this issue, the Court said:

> Pursuant to the current scheme, tenure accrues to a teaching staff member under a certificate only if he or she has also served in a position under that same certificate for a requisite period of time. In Spiewak v. Board of Education of Rutherford, 90 N.J. 63, 447 A. 2*d.* 140 (1982), we concluded that teachers who provided remedial instruction to educationally handicapped children qualified for tenure when they met all statutory qualifications governing tenure. We stated that the language of the statute concerning tenure requirements, N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5, was "clear and unambiguous." Id. at 74, 447 A. 2*d.* 140. We further concluded that by the express terms of the statute, an employee of a board of education would be entitled to tenure if "(1) she works in a position for which a teaching certificate is required; (2) she holds the appropriate certificate; and (3) she has served the requisite period of time. Ibid. The language of Spiewak points to a definitive requirement that a teacher actually perform duties under the relevant certificate in order to obtain tenure under that certificate. Id. at 638- 639.

Petitioner has not served any period of time in the position of assistant principal.

Petitioner contends that the duties performed by the assistant principal are similar to those petitioner performed as supervisor. The record demonstrates, however, that the job descriptions for the two positions are distinctly different and that petitioner has never performed all of those duties required of an assistant principal. The Dennery Court also addressed this issue when it said:

> When the duties of the position in which a teaching-staff member has acquired tenure are substantially identical to those of the position that the person seeks, a local school board may not sidestep an educator's tenure rights by simply renaming the position or tacking on additional meaningless requirements. The local board must extend the teaching-staff member's tenure rights to the newly-created position. (citations omitted). Id. at 639.

However, the Court further observed that:

> A mere overlap in duties, however, does not mean that two positions are equivalent for tenure purposes. If a newly created position is similar to a tenure holder's abolished position but also requires > additional duties or different responsibilities, then the newly-created position is not considered to be substantially similar to the former position. (citations omitted) Id. at 640.

Thus, the Court recognizes that where additional duties or different responsibilities are extant in a newly-created position for which an individual claims tenure, the riffed position and the new position are not equivalent for tenure purposes. That is the precise condition in the instant matter.

Having considered the arguments of the parties, together with the decisional and case law with respect to petitioner's claim of tenure to the assistant principal position, I CONCLUDE that there is no basis in fact or law for petitioner's position.

Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that petitioner's claim is DISMISSED AND SUMMARY DECISION is entered on behalf of the Board with regard to this issue. DiSimoni, supra.; DeCarlo, supra.; Miller, supra.; Kish, supra.

IV

Petitioner contends that the Board's commencement date of September 1, 1992, as the effective date of the RIF and the Board's administrative reorganization was enacted to circumvent his tenure rights. The record demonstrates that on March 17, 1992, the date the Board voted to eliminate petitioner's supervisor position, Intervenors Ms. Pollock and Mr. Wetzel had neither acquired a tenure status in the position of supervisor. Both had, however, attained tenure status in the position on or before September 1, 1992.

Petitioner argues that the Board's 1992-93 school year commenced on July 1, 1992 and at least one of the supervisors retained by the Board had not achieved tenure by that date. Thus, he contends,the Board violated his tenure rights when it failed to retain him over the supervisor who had not yet acquired tenure.

The Board argues, among other things, that it has the authority to eliminate positions and reorganize its administrative staff. In this instance, the Board determined that such reorganization would take effect on September 1, 1992. It further asserts that both Intervenors had acquired tenure under the classification of supervisor on or before September 1, 1992.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:11-1 the Board shall:

>
> b. Enforce the rules of the State Board:
>
> c. Make, amend and repeal rules, not inconsistent with this title or with the rules of the State Board, for its own government and the transaction of its business and for the government and management of the public schools ... regulation of conduct and discharge of its employees ...
> d. Perform all acts and do all things, consistent with law and the rules of the State Board, necessary for the lawful and proper conduct ... of the public schools of the district.

Under the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9 to -13, the Board is authorized to abolish petitioner's tenured position and cause a RIF. The RIF may not be arbitrary or capricious but, rather, for reasons of economy or because of a reduction in the number of pupils or of a change in the administrative or supervisory organization of the school district or for other good cause. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9. The Board's action to effectuate a RIF with respect to petitioner's tenured supervisory was in compliance with the statute. The law is silent as to when the Board is to effectuate the RIF. Pursuant to such silence, the Board is, therefore, authorized to use its discretion as to when to impose the RIF "for its own government." N.J.S.A. 18A:11-1 c.

I CONCLUDE that the Board acted within is discretionary authority and the authority of law when it adopted its resolution to commence the RIF and its administrative reorganization on September 1, 1992.

I CONCLUDE, therefore, that petitioner's claim that the Board commenced its RIF and administrative reorganization on September 1, 1992 in order to circumvent petitioner's tenure rights is without merit and is hereby DISMISSED.

Having considered the totality of the legal issues set forth hereinbefore, and having given fair weight thereto; I CONCLUDE that the Board has prevailed with respect to its Motion for Summary Decision.

Accordingly, Summary Decision is hereby ENTERED on behalf of the Board of Education of the Township of Jackson and Petitioner's Cross-Motion for Summary Decision is DENIED and DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

WILLIAM J. SKOWRONSKI,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF JACKSON, OCEAN COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record and initial decision rendered by the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Petitioner filed timely exceptions pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4. The Board filed timely reply exceptions as well.

Petitioner first excepts to the ALJ's conclusion that he may not lay claim to a position as an assistant principal arguing that in accord with the Supreme Court decision in Dennery, supra, petitioner can transfer his tenure under his supervisor's endorsement on his administrative certificate to the principal's endorsement because both endorsements are subsumed under the administrative certificate.

Second, petitioner submits that the ALJ erred in concluding that the reorganization date of September 1 was not intended to circumvent petitioner's tenure rights. He notes that the Board acted on March 17, 1992 to eliminate certain supervisory positions, while retaining nontenured supervisors on that date. Petitioner suggests that September 2, 1992 as the effective date of the RIF, as found by the ALJ, was meant to circumvent his tenure rights in favor of retaining a nontenured supervisor. Petitioner submits that the artificially created September 2, 1992 effective date for the reorganization was therefore arbitrary, and he relies on Francey, supra; Marshall, supra; Fitzpatrick, supra; and Godwin Davis, supra, in support of this contention. Similarly, Petitioner claims that even if July 1, 1992 were the effective date of the RIF, his tenure rights would have been violated because the Board admits it retained a supervisor on that date who acquired tenure after that date.

For such reasons, petitioner seeks reversal of the initial decision and a finding that the Board violated his tenure rights.

Upon careful and independent review of the record of this matter, the Commissioner adopts in part and rejects in part the initial decision rendered by the Office of Administrative Law.

Contrary to the finding of the ALJ, the Commissioner concurs with petitioner that a RIF becomes effective on the date that the Board votes to abolish positions within the district. See, Francey, supra; Marshall, supra; and Fitzpatrick, supra. As such, the tenure and seniority rights of the employees affected by such a reduction, in this case, vested on March 17, 1992. At such time, it is is clear from the record that the Board retained certain nontenured employees in supervisory positions to the detriment of petitioner who was tenured as a supervisor. The Commissioner therefore finds and determines that the Board erred in appointing Richard Wetzel Supervisor of Educational and Business Technology and Jeanne Pollock Supervisor of Instruction - Basic Skills to positions as supervisors insofar as they had not yet acquired tenure as supervisors by March 17, 1992. In so finding, the Commissioner notes what appears to be a typographical error on page 3 of the initial decision regarding Ms. Pollock's date of appointment, which reads June 1, 1992. In deciding that she was not tenured on March 17 1992, the Commissioner accepts as accurate her tenure date as a supervisor as May 31, 1992, given that her effective date of appointment as a supervisor was June 1, 1990. See Exhibit E, Respondent's Brief.

However, to conclude that the Board erred in appointing Mr. Wetzel and Ms. Pollock to supervisory positions before they acquired tenure does not end the inquiry as to whether petitioner is entitled by virtue of his tenure status as a supervisor to "bump" into either of the positions held by Mr. Wetzel and Ms. Pollock. Such a determination requires fact finding regarding the appropriate certification required for service in the positions of Supervisor of Educational and Business Technology and Supervisor of Instruction-Basic Skills and also "whether the duties attending these positions are of such nature as to require possession of instructional certification in addition to certification as a supervisor in order to be authorized by statute and regulation to perform such functions, and for a resultant determination of the Petitioners' entitlement under the school laws to such positions." (Timko State Board, slip opinion, at pp. 9-10) (Michael Timko and John J. Mikush v. Board of Education of the Bridgewater-Raritan Regional School District, Somerset County, 1991 S.L.D. 967, aff'd in part/rev'd in part/rem'd State Board July 1, 1992) Hence, the Commissioner must remand this matter to the Office of Administrative Law for further fact finding and conclusions of law on the question of petitioner's entitlement to the herein noted supervisory positions.

Concerning the positions of assistant principal, the Commissioner concurs, however, with the findings and conclusions of the ALJ, supporting the Board's position, that petitioner has no tenure or seniority entitlement to the positions of assistant principal insofar as he has not served any period of time in the position of assistant principal which is separately tenurable pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. He, therefore, has no entitlement to such positions. See Initial Decision at pp. 22-24. See, also, Dennery, supra.

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed herein, the initial decision is affirmed in part and reversed in part. The Commissioner directs that the matter be remanded for further findings consistent with this decision on the question of petitioner's entitlement to the supervisory positions currently held by Mr. Wetzel and Ms. Pollock.

WILLIAM J. SKOWRONSKI,

PETITIONER-CROSS/APPELLANT,

V.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF JACKSON, OCEAN COUNTY,

RESPONDENT-APPELLANT.

STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION

DECISION

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, December 30, 1993

For the Petitioner-Cross/Appellant, Wayne J. Oppito, Esq.

For the Respondent-Appellant, Carroll & Weiss (Robert J. Merryman, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Intervenors-Cross/Appellants, Lake & Schwartz (Robert M. Schwartz, Esq., of Counsel)

On March 17, 1992, the Board of Education of the Township of Jackson (hereinafter "Board") voted to abolish eight supervisory positions in the district, including the position held by petitioner, a tenured teaching staff member, effective September 1, 1992. The Board also voted to create four additional assistant principal positions, effective July 1, 1992. Those positions were filled by the Board at its meeting of April 14, 1992, at which time the effective date of the new positions was changed to September 1. All individuals appointed as assistant principals had held one of the abolished supervisory positions.

Intervenors Richard Wetzel and Jeanne Pollock, who were retained in their respective positions as supervisor of educational and business technology and supervisor of instruction-basic skills, had not yet achieved tenure as supervisors at the time the Board acted to reduce its staff on March 17, 1992.[1] See N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5; N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6.

Petitioner filed a petition with the Commissioner alleging that the Board had violated his tenure and seniority rights in effectuating the reduction in force ("RIF"). Petitioner contended that the Board had retained non-tenured individuals in supervisory positions, retained supervisors with less seniority than he, and that the duties and responsibilities of the newly-created assistant principal positions were substantially similar to those petitioner had performed in his supervisory position.

On November 12, 1993, an Administrative Law Judge ("ALJ"), finding no genuine issues of material fact, recommended granting the Board's motion for summary decision. The ALJ rejected petitioner's tenure claim to the newly-created assistant principal positions, finding that petitioner had never served in such a position and that such positions were not substantially similar to his abolished supervisory position. The ALJ also rejected petitioner's assertion that the Board had commenced its reorganization on September 1, 1992 in order to circumvent his tenure rights.

On December 30, 1993, the Commissioner adopted in part and rejected in part the ALJ's recommended decision. The Commissioner agreed with the ALJ that petitioner had no entitlement to the assistant principal positions, stressing that assistant principal was a separately tenurable position pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. However, the Commissioner agreed with the petitioner that the rights of those individuals affected by the RIF were to be determined as of March 17, 1992, when the Board voted to abolish the supervisory positions. Consequently, she concluded that petitioner's tenure and seniority rights vested on that date and that the Board had improperly retained certain non-tenured employees in supervisory positions to the detriment of petitioner, who was tenured as a supervisor.

[1] We note that Wetzel was appointed supervisor on September 1, 1990 and that Pollock commenced such employment on June 1, 1990.

The Commissioner, however, found that she was unable to determine whether petitioner was entitled to either of the supervisory positions held by intervenors Wetzel and Pollock, neither of whom had achieved tenure as supervisors by the date of the RIF. Citing Timko and Mikush v. Board of Education of the Bridgewater-Raritan Regional School District, decided by the State Board, July 1, 1992, the Commissioner concluded that such a determination required:

> fact finding regarding the appropriate certification required for service in the positions of Supervisor of Educational and Business Technology and Supervisor of Instruction-Basic Skills and also "...whether the duties attending these positions are of such nature as to require possession of instructional certification in addition to certification as a supervisor in order to be authorized by statute and regulation to perform such functions, and for a resultant determination of the Petitioners' entitlement under the school laws to such positions."

Commissioner's Decision, slip op. at 29.

Accordingly, she remanded this matter to the Office of Administrative Law for further proceedings on the issue of petitioner's entitlement to the positions held by Wetzel and Pollock.

The Board filed the instant appeal to the State Board of Education. Petitioner and the intervenors filed cross-appeals.

After a thorough review of the record, we affirm in part and reverse in part the decision of the Commissioner.

We fully concur with the Commissioner that petitioner had no entitlement to the newly-created assistant principal positions. Since he had not achieved tenure in the position of "assistant principal," petitioner's tenure rights achieved as the result of his employment as a supervisor did not encompass those new positions. Nor does Dennery v. Board of Educ., 131 N.J. 626 (1993) confer such a right, as petitioner urges. Notwithstanding the fact that the principal and supervisor endorsements are both issued under the administrative certificate, the tenure laws expressly designate "assistant principal" as a separately tenurable position. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. Capodilupo v. West Orange Bd. of Ed., 218 N.J. Super. 510 (App. Div. 1987), certif. den., 109 N.J. 514 (1987). Having achieved no tenure rights in such "position," petitioner had no entitlement by virtue of tenure to any assignments within that tenured position.

Moreover, we agree with the Commissioner's determination that the duties and responsibilities of the newly-created positions differ substantially from those of petitioner's former position. "A mere overlap in duties...does not mean that two positions are equivalent for tenure purposes. If a newly-created position is similar to a tenure holder's abolished position but also requires additional duties or different responsibilities, then the newly-created position is not considered to be substantially similar to the former position." Dennery, supra, at 640.

We also concur with the Commissioner that the rights of the staff members affected by the reduction in force were to be determined as of March 17, 1992, when the Board acted to abolish the supervisory positions. The rights emanating from the achievement of tenure are triggered at the time a district board determines to reduce its teaching force pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9, rather than on the effective date of the RIF. Francey v. Board of Education of the City of Salem, decided by the State Board, August 3, 1994, appeal pending (App. Div.).[2] Consequently, district boards are required to recognize the tenure rights of affected parties as they existed at the time of such action. Id.

However, we conclude that the Commissioner erred in remanding this matter for further proceedings on the question of petitioner's entitlement to the supervisory assignments held by intervenors Wetzel and Pollock. By virtue of his possession of an administrative certificate with an endorsement as a supervisor, petitioner was authorized and qualified by the regulations promulgated by the State Board for assignment to any supervisory assignment within the scope of his certification. See Herbert v. Board of Education of the Township of Middletown, decided by the State Board, August 1, 1990, aff'd, Docket #A-318-90T1 (App. Div. 1991); N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.3.

[2] In response to exceptions filed by the Board to the Report of our Legal Committee in this matter, contending that our decision in Francey, supra, established new law, we stress that Francey was expressly predicated upon decisions dating back to 1984 in which we determined that the rights emanating from the achievement of tenure are triggered at the time of a RIF, Edison Township Education Association v. Board of Education of the Township of Edison, decided by the Commissioner of Education, 1984 S.L.D. 1073, 1083, aff'd by the State Board of Education, 1984 S.L.D. 1085, aff'd, Docket #A-2030-84T7 (App. Div. 1986), and that district boards are required to recognize the tenure rights of affected parties as they existed at the time of its action, Parker and Pellegrino v. Board of Education of the Matawan-Aberdeen Regional School District, decided by the State Board of Education, May 2, 1990.

Contrary to the Commissioner's belief, our decision in Timko, supra, does not require a remand in this instance. It is now well established that a tenured teaching staff member subject to a reduction in force pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9 has entitlement by virtue of tenure to an assignment within the scope of his or her certification as against non-tenured individuals. Bednar v. Westwood Bd. of Ed., 221 N.J. Super. 239 (App. Div. 1987), certif. den., 110 N.J. 512 (1988); Capodilupo, supra. In Timko, the job descriptions adopted by the district board for the supervisory assignments at issue therein expressly required dual certification, i.e., possession of instructional certification in addition to certification as a supervisor. There was no indication that the county superintendent had approved such unrecognized titles or determined the appropriate certification therefor. N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.3(b). Under those particular circumstances, we found a remand necessary in order to determine the appropriate certification, and, in particular, whether the specific duties attending those assignments were indeed of such nature as to require possession of a particular instructional endorsement in order to be authorized by statute and regulation to fulfill the duties thereof.

No such circumstances exist in this case. The record indicates that petitioner had achieved tenure as a supervisor by March 17, 1992, the date of the RIF, and that intervenors Wetzel and Pollock had not. The job descriptions adopted by the Board for the supervisory titles in which Wetzel and Pollock were retained did not include a requirement for an instructional certificate in addition to possession of an administrative certificate qualifying the individual to serve as a supervisor. Nor does the Board contend that the duties are such as to require possession of a particular instructional endorsement. Consequently, inasmuch as petitioner was tenured as a supervisor and possessed the appropriate certification qualifying him for the supervisory assignments at issue herein, he had an entitlement based on his tenure status to be retained in those assignments following a RIF as against non-tenured individuals.

We therefore direct the Board to reinstate petitioner to one of the supervisory assignments held by intervenors Wetzel and Pollock, with back pay and other emoluments, less mitigation. Since neither Wetzel nor Pollock were tenured at the time of the RIF, the Board may reinstate petitioner to either of their assignments at its discretion. Cf. Schienholz v. Board of Education of the Township of Ewing, decided by the State Board, 1990 S.L.D. 1809, 1815, aff'd, Docket #A-2905-89T3 (App. Div. 1990).

Attorney exceptions are noted.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF JACKSON, OCEAN COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT-APPELLANT.	:

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, December 30, 1993

Decided by the State Board of Education, June 7, 1995

For the Petitioner-Cross/Appellant, Wayne J. Oppito, Esq.

For the Respondent-Appellant, Carroll & Weiss (Robert J. Merryman, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Intervenors-Cross/Appellants, Lake & Schwartz (Robert M. Schwartz, Esq., of Counsel)

The Board of Education of the Township of Jackson (hereinafter "Board") seeks a stay, pending determination of its appeal to the Appellate Division, of the State Board of Education's decision dated June 7, 1995 in this matter. In that decision, we concluded that the petitioner, William J. Skowronski, a tenured teaching staff member whose position as a supervisor in the district was abolished in a reduction in force ("RIF"), was entitled by virtue of tenure to reinstatement in either of two supervisory assignments held by individuals who had not been tenured as supervisors at the time of the RIF.

OCT. 5, 1995

In support of its motion, the Board has submitted affidavits from its counsel and superintendent averring that the positions at issue are currently held by tenured supervisors,[1] and that replacing one of them with petitioner at this time would cause significant disruption to the school system. The Board contends that the number of personnel changes would be minimized by staying the State Board's decision pending appeal, and that petitioner's only loss would be monetary.[2] Petitioner does not oppose the motion.

Inasmuch as we find that the Board's application fails to meet the standards that would entitle it to relief under Crowe v. De Gioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982), we deny its motion for a stay.

In our decision of June 7, we concluded that petitioner, by virtue of his tenure status, was entitled to be retained in a supervisory position as against non-tenured individuals when the Board acted to reduce its staff pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9. We also determined that the staff members who were retained by the Board in the controverted assignments had not yet achieved tenure at the time of the RIF. The materials presented by the Board do not demonstrate that petitioner had not been entitled to those assignments or show a clear likelihood that the Board will prevail on the merits of its appeal. The fact that the assignments at issue are currently held by

[1] We note that Barbara Smith, who, according to the moving papers, has held one of the supervisory positions at issue herein since July 1, 1994, did not hold that assignment at the time of the RIF, and was not a party to the earlier proceedings in this matter.

[2] The Board indicates that petitioner is currently employed as a principal in another school district.

tenured staff members does not alter petitioner's entitlement thereto as against non-tenured individuals at the time of the RIF, when his rights were triggered. Nor does the Board's contention regarding personnel changes necessitated by our decision demonstrate irreparable harm justifying a stay. Thus, notwithstanding the fact that petitioner may currently be employed in another district and does not oppose the Board's motion, we find no basis for granting that application.

Accordingly, for the reasons stated, we deny the Board's motion for a stay of our decision dated June 7, 1995.

SYNOPSIS

Board sought disqualification of Board member pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-2 (conflict of interest).

ALJ found there was a disqualifying interest so as to warrant respondent's immediate removal from the Board, as his wife had civil rights and tort claims against the Board and sought monetary compensation for such. ALJ declared respondent's seat forfeit and vacant and ordered the vacancy to be filled consistent with law.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision, ordering respondent removed from Board and vacancy filled by County Superintendent pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-15(a).

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon review of this decision and the accompanying record, the Commissioner fully concurs with the ALJ's analysis of the issues presented, as well as with his conclusion that the facts of this matter do indeed constitute a disqualifying conflict of interest pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-2 so as to warrant respondent's immediate removal from the Board of Education.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law is affirmed for the reasons expressed therein, so that respondent is deemed removed from the Board of Education as of the date of this decision and the resultant vacancy is to be duly filled by the County Superintendent pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-15(a).

This is a transcript of the administrative law judge's oral initial decision rendered pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.2.

Record Closed: November 24, 1993 Decided: November 24, 1993

BEFORE STEPHEN G. WEISS, ALJ:

The case was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested matter by the Department of Education on May 19, 1993 as a result of the filing with the Department by the Hawthorne Board of Education of a petition for declaratory judgment seeking a determination from the Commissioner with respect to the qualifications of the respondent Albert W. Taliaferro, newly elected to the Board the previous April, to continue to serve as a Board member. The declaratory judgment provisions for reference purposes are N.J.S.A. 52:14B-8 and N.J.A.C. 6:24-2.1. Those provisions establish the authority of the Commissioner to render a declaratory judgment. After the petition was filed an answer was then filed by Mr. Taliaferro and the case was transmitted, as I noted, to the Office of Administrative Law for processing. A telephone prehearing conference was conducted by me on July 7, 1993. It was agreed at that time that the following issue should be resolved: "Does respondent have an interest in his wife's civil rights and tort claims against the Board of Education sufficient to require his disqualification as a Board member pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-2?" The prehearing order established November 8, 1993 as the date for a plenary hearing.

Thereafter, motions for summary decision were made by both sides. Following my review of the briefs and the supporting documents I determined to deny both and entered an order to that effect on October 19, 1993. The plenary hearing was held as scheduled on November 8, 1993 and the record closed on November 19, 1993, the date for final submission of post-hearing memoranda.

The following therefore constitutes my oral initial decision. I have attempted to expedite this decision in light of the fact that the decision is only an initial decision and the Commissioner has 45 days following its receipt to accept, modify or reject it, and pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:14-9, there is a deadline for the filing of nominating petitions for boards of education elections which I believe will be in early March 1994. So, regardless of what way I decide and/or the Commissioner decides, potentially there's an impact on the upcoming Board election and that's why I attempted to expedite it.

Although the Hawthorne Board of Education, having filed for a declaratory judgment, is the petitioner in this case, both counsel agreed that the respondent would put on its case first. However, as I noted on the record, the order of the presentation of proofs did not change the normal burden and the Board as the petitioner continues to be required to have to prove its case by a preponderance of the credible evidence. See, N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.6(l), which is the OAL rule with respect to presentation of proofs.

Two witnesses testified on behalf of the respondent, Patricia Taliaferro, the respondent's wife, and respondent himself. However, prior to the taking of the oral testimony counsel agreed to the introduction in evidence as Exhibit J-1 a joint stipulation of facts. At this juncture, rather than read the joint stipulation into the record, I'm making reference to it and the transcript of my oral decision will at this point set forth the stipulated facts, as slightly modified by counsel on the day of the hearing.

1. Al Taliaferro was elected to the Hawthorne Board of Education on April 20, 1993, and was sworn and seated as a member of the Hawthorne Board of Education on April 27, 1993.

2. Al Taliaferro and Patricia Taliaferro are husband and wife.

3. On November 27, 1991 and on June 16, 1993, Patricia Taliaferro instituted formal complaints against the Hawthorne Board of Education for her non-reappointment to certain coaching positions seeking reinstatement, as well as monetary damages against the Hawthorne Board of Education for alleged economic loss, humiliation and mental pain and suffering.

4. The aforesaid complaints are pending before the New Jersey Division on Civil Rights ("DCR") and the federal Equal Employment Opportunity Commission ("EEOC") and are separately annexed hereto as Exhibits "A" and "B" (the DCR and EEOC Notices and correspondence are annexed hereto as Exhibit "C").

5. On August 25, 1992, Patricia Taliaferro served a Notice of Tort Claim upon the Hawthorne Board of Education asserting a claim against the Hawthorne Board of Education and its members, both in their representative capacity and as individuals, for compensatory and punitive damages alleged to have resulted from her non-reappointment as girls' soccer coach at the Hawthorne Middle School for the Fall 1992 season. A copy of said Notice is annexed hereto as Exhibit "D."

6. Al Taliaferro and Patricia Taliaferro reside and cohabitate at 225 Bamford Avenue, Hawthorne, New Jersey 07506.

7. Al Taliaferro and Patricia Taliaferro jointly own their home at 225 Bamford Avenue, Hawthorne, New Jersey 07506, as tenants by the entirety.

8. Al Taliaferro and Patricia Taliaferro file joint federal and state income tax returns.

9. Al Taliaferro and Patricia Taliaferro own one or more joint banking accounts and revolving charge cards. See answers to interrogatories # 21 and # 22 (annexed as Exhibit E).

10. Al Taliaferro and Patricia Taliaferro share title and ownership of all marital assets as husband and wife.

Five separate exhibits were attached to that joint stipulation. Exhibit A is the verified complaint filed by Patricia Taliaferro against the Hawthorne Board of Education in the New Jersey Division on Civil Rights on November 27, 1991 wherein she alleged that she had been discriminated against in her employment by the respondent; namely, a failure to reappoint her to position of coach of girls' softball because of her sex, her age and as a reprisal. Mrs. Taliaferro requested whatever relief was provided by law including, but not limited to, compensatory damages for economic loss, humiliation, mental pain and suffering. Exhibit B attached to the joint stipulation was a second verified complaint filed by Patricia Taliaferro against the Board of Education in the New Jersey Division on Civil Rights on June 16, 1992 wherein she alleged that she had been discriminated against in her employment; namely, a failure to be reappointed to the position as head coach of girls' soccer, by virtue of her sex and as a reprisal. Again, the complainant sought whatever relief was provided by law including, but not limited to, compensatory damages for economic loss, and damages for humiliation, mental pain and suffering. Exhibit C attached to the joint stipulation included two notices of charge of discrimination filed by the New Jersey Division on Civil Rights with the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission wherein the Hawthorne Board was notified that the Division had sent to the EEOC for dual filing purposes the discrimination complaints lodged by Mrs. Taliaferro against the Board since they alleged employment discrimination in violation of Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, as well as the Age Discrimination in Employment Act of 1967. Exhibit C also included an April 9, 1993 letter from the enforcement manager of the Philadelphia District Office of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission addressed to Mrs. Taliaferro advising her that the agency's jurisdiction did not extend to a charge of age discrimination under federal law since her complaint alleged she was 39 years old, and one must be at least 40 in order to have an actionable discrimination claim under the federal statute. However, the EEOC did advise Ms. Taliaferro that it continued to have jurisdiction over those charges alleging a violation of Title VII involving sex discrimination. In that same letter the enforcement manager also advised Mrs. Taliaferro that the dismissal of the age discrimination portion of the charges by the EEOC did not interfere with the state agency's jurisdiction to investigate that same charge since there is no similar minimum age or jurisdiction requirement under New Jersey law.

Exhibit D attached to the joint stipulation was a letter dated August 25, 1992 from Ralph E. Faasse, Esq., an attorney in Ridgewood, to the then president of the Hawthorne Board, Mr. Garret Sinning, wherein the attorney advised Mr. Sinning that his firm represented Patricia Taliaferro and that pursuant to N.J.S.A. 59:8-1 et seq., the letter constituted a notice of tort claim wherein she announces her intent to pursue a claim against the Board by virtue of its refusal in June 1992 to appoint her to the girls' soccer head coach position. In that letter the attorney also put the Board on notice that as a result of the alleged unlawful action exhibited toward his client by the Board, she had suffered damages for the following: (1) present and future economic loss, (2) humiliation, (3) embarrassment, (4) defamation, (5) mental pain and suffering, as well as damage to her professional reputation and her career. In addition to seeking compensatory damages for those alleged acts of misconduct, the attorney, Mr. Faasse, also alerted the Board that his client intended to pursue a claim for punitive damages as well. I will note at this point that on November 9, 1993, which was the day after the plenary hearing in this case, Ms. Taliaferro, acting pro se, filed a nine-count complaint in the New Jersey Superior Court, Law Division, Passaic County, against the Hawthorne Board of Education, its superintendent, four former members and four present members seeking unspecified compensatory and punitive damages stemming from her failure to be appointed to the coaching positions. That complaint was forwarded to me by counsel in this case and I have marked it as Court Exhibit 1.

Finally, Exhibit E to the joint stipulation was an excerpt from answers by the respondent to interrogatories served by the petitioner during the course of discovery in this matter.

With respect to the testimony Mrs. Taliaferro, as I noted, was the first witness called by the respondent. She testified she presently is 41 years of age and has resided for several years in Hawthorne with her husband of 19 years, the respondent, and their two children, a daughter age 15 and a son age 12. Presently she holds part-time employment as a physical education teacher in a local parochial school where her gross annual salary is approximately $8,000 per year. Previously, in addition to that employment at the parochial school, she had served as head coach in Hawthorne High School and at the Hawthorne Middle School for girls' softball and girls' soccer. With respect to the girls' softball position, she had been made head coach in 1988 and served in that capacity until 1991 when the Board determined not to renew her employment in that respect. During her last year as the head coach of girls' softball, her stipend was $4,500. The Board's failure to reappoint her in 1991 gave rise, of course, to the civil rights complaint which she filed in November 1991.

Mrs. Taliaferro went on to testify that she coached Middle School girls' soccer for three years between 1988 and 1991 and was not renewed for 1992. Her stipend during her last year of coaching soccer was $3,400, and her nonrenewal to that head coach position led, of course, to the filing of the second civil rights complaint in June 1992. Mrs. Taliaferro confirmed that both nonrenewals were the subject of the claims that she was pursuing before the Division on Civil Rights and the EEOC and she emphasized that her husband is not a party to any of the proceedings. She also confirmed that Mr. Faasse had filed the notice of tort claim on her behalf and that the formal filing of the complaint would soon take place, and as I noted, it took place the following day. She again stressed that she would be the only plaintiff in that lawsuit, and she is the only one, and that her husband would not be a party to it. Again, I'll refer to Court Exhibit 1, which is the complaint and jury demand which she filed on November 9.

With respect to how the family's finances were managed, Mrs. Taliaferro characterized her husband as the major breadwinner since his income represented by far the substantial portion of the family unit's total annual income. Although she agreed that the couple have two home equity lines of credit, as well as other joint financial accounts, she stressed that payments are made solely and have always been made solely from her husband's salary contributions and she has never contributed any funds of her own that she earned toward those obligations. Also, although the couple maintains two joint checking accounts, she pointed out that the vast majority of the deposits made into them come from her husband's earnings, and the only time she deposits money into those accounts is from money she earns and only for reimbursement of expenses that she has incurred drawing against those accounts either for personal items for her children or for vacations that she took with her children unaccompanied by her husband. Mrs. Taliaferro pointed out, as well, that she maintains two custodial savings accounts in the names of her children, which she contributes to strictly out of money she earns and essentially the purpose of those accounts is for the future education of the children. Again, she stressed that no money is deposited into those accounts from any earnings of her husband. It comes strictly from her earnings.

According to the witness, all or nearly all of the household expenses are paid out of her husband's salary alone. These would include such things as property taxes, insurance, maintenance on their home and their automobiles, repairs, food, medical bills, and the like. She maintained that if any monies were recovered by her in any of her lawsuits, it was her intention to deposit the entire proceeds into the custodial accounts maintained for her children and to be used strictly for the education of her children.

On cross-examination, Mrs. Taliaferro confirmed her direct testimony in essence. She did agree, however, that if a large amount was recovered as a result of the lawsuits, conceivably some of the proceeds would be contributed for general family use if needed.

Respondent then testified on his own behalf. He, too, is 41 years of age and is employed as a full-time science teacher in the Pascack Valley Regional High School District. His annual salary as a teacher is $72,000 per year. In addition, he receives a $4,500 stipend as coach of the Pascack Hills varsity girls' soccer team and a $4,500 stipend as coach of the girls' softball team. He also is employed during the summers as chief lifeguard at the municipal swimming pool, where he earns an additional $5,500. Finally, he noted that he sometimes serves as a referee at different interscholastic sporting events and estimated he earns about $1,500 per year in that capacity. Thus his total gross income is approximately $88,000 per year, which is about 11 times more than his wife's annual earnings.

According to Mr. Taliaferro, all of the household expenses and bills are, as his wife testified, paid for out of his salary alone and at no time are his wife's earnings used for those purposes except on very rare occasions, following which she would reimburse the account for any expenses she incurred for such items as clothing for the children or for vacations that she had separately taken with them. The Taliaferro's as previously noted by Mrs. Taliaferro maintain two checking accounts, and although respondent noted that each have equal access to them, all of the household's normal expenses are paid out of his salary deposited into those accounts and no reliance is placed upon his wife's income to help pay any of the bills. Basically, according to Mr. Taliaferro, the money his wife earns is used for the children and for expenses which she incurs when she takes them on vacation. In that regard both testified that in 1989, 1990 and 1991 Mrs. Taliaferro and the children went to Disney World in Florida, and although the expenses of those vacations were charged by credit card, she reimbursed the charge accounts for them.

In April 1993 Mr. Taliaferro was elected as a member of the Hawthorne Board of Education and he noted that he serves on several committees. He has represented to his fellow Board members that he would take pains not to take part in any discussion concerning any of the claims that his wife may have against the Board. He stressed that he has abstained and will continue to abstain if and when any formal action has to be taken by the Board respecting those claims. He observed that when the Board unanimously adopted the resolution to authorize the filing of the instant declaratory judgment action, he, of course, abstained from participating in the vote on that resolution as well.

On cross-examination, Mr. Taliaferro reiterated that his salary pays for the family unit's expenses. However, he, too, agreed that the obligation to educate his children is the joint responsibility of his wife and he, and he did indicate that if the occasion should arise that he were unable to pay for the expenses himself and funds were not otherwise available, he would expect that his wife would do so, that is to say, pay for the education of the children. He also agreed that any money that his wife receives either actually or potentially from the litigation that she is pursuing could be used for the benefit of the family unit rather than be allocated exclusively for his wife or their children alone.

With respect to his activities as a Board member, although he does abstain from discussions on any subject which would impact upon his wife's pending cases, he agreed that he was involved in a discussion this past school year concerning renewal of the girls' softball coach position for 1993, one of the positions involved in one of his wife's discrimination complaints. He explained, however, that he had asked that the resolution concerning the hiring and the stipend of all coaches be tabled, which it was. He did so because he had a question with respect to the girls' softball coach who had succeeded his wife in that position. However, he noted that the resolution under discussion in private session that I just mentioned had to do with salary which was not involved in his wife's case and which had been started two years earlier. Thus, he agreed that he did discuss that person with the Board and in private sessions but only in relation to the best interest of the Board as a board rather than any private interest that he might have in that matter. When it came time to vote in public on the hiring and salary of other coaches, he abstained with respect to both of the positions involved in his wife's cases. He may have even abstained from voting at all on the entire coaching salary structure. I'm not sure. But he certainly did abstain on those two.

On cross-examination, Mr. Taliaferro was questioned closely about an incident which took place at a June 8, 1993 Board meeting designated as student counterpart night. On that evening, it's my understanding, students act as the Board members and they vote on various items as if they were the individual Board member him or herself. On the night in question three resolutions came before the Board honoring three previous Board members, Mr. Sinning, the former Board president, a Mrs. Dykes and a Mr. Bosco. When it came time to vote on each resolution honoring those former Board members, and I believe providing them with a free pass to attend all future student events, the respondent instructed the student who was serving in his role to vote "yes" with respect to Mr. Bosco's resolution, but to vote "no" on the two resolutions pertaining to Mrs. Dykes and to Mr. Sinning. According to Mr. Taliaferro, he did this because he did not believe that Mrs. Dykes and Mr. Sinning had while Board members represented at all times the best interests of the children of Hawthorne. He said he felt differently about Mr. Bosco who, as he put it, was always doing his job. Although in the civil rights complaint, particularly in the first civil rights complaint, Mrs. Taliaferro specifically mentioned Ms. Dykes as having been instrumental in the alleged discrimination and reprisal, respondent in the hearing before me insisted that is not the reason he directed the student to vote no with respect to the resolution honoring her or Mr. Sinning.

Also, when questioned about an alleged incident whereby his wife was said to have stood up and turned her back to the podium at the June 8 meeting when the resolutions honoring Mr. Sinning and Ms. Dykes were acted upon, Mr. Taliaferro testified that he did not see that incident but he had been told about it later.

On cross-examination, the respondent insisted that he feels no hostility toward any present or former Board member who voted not to renew his wife in her coaching employments. He did concede, however, that he felt "hurt" and "disappointed" by the people who voted against her and noted that some of those same persons still are Board members. I would note here, by the way, that the recent Superior Court filing, Court Exhibit 1, names Sinning, Dykes and Bosco as individual defendants, and I believe a fourth former Board member, and also, I think I said, I may be wrong, three or four of the present Board members. So, in addition to the Board itself, there is the superintendent named individually and eight or so individual Board members, past and present.

The foregoing essentially represents the testimony offered at the hearing. Obviously, I couldn't cover everything. I tried to hit all of the substantial parts that were offered at the hearing as I indicated. When I denied the cross-motions for summary decision, I did so essentially on the basis that I felt it was important to make a record of the specifics of the management of the family finances and so forth since my decision is only an initial decision and it will be reviewed by the Commissioner and potentially beyond that. Therefore, it was important to give both sides an opportunity to lay their case out on direct- and cross-examination.

Following the conclusion of the presentation of the two witnesses by Mr. Taliaferro, the Board chose to present no oral testimony. However, counsel for the Board stated that he relied upon the contents of the stipulation of facts, the matters brought out on cross-examination of the Taliaferro's, and on the arguments made in the briefs previously submitted in connection with the motion for summary decision, as well as the post-hearing brief, which I directed ultimately that counsel would file. As I indicated at the conclusion of the testimony, I did provide counsel with the opportunity to file supplemental memoranda addressing whatever additional matters they felt might have arisen and which required comment as a result of the hearing we had. Those supplemental memoranda and replies were filed by last Friday, and the record therefore closed on that date.

At issue, then, is the question of whether the facts, largely undisputed, constitute a situation wherein pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-2 the respondent can be said to have a disqualifying direct or indirect interest in any claim or claims against the Board filed by his wife. If his wife's litigation against the Board constitutes claims in which the respondent has such an interest, then by operation of law he should be disqualified from Board membership.

In the case of S & L Associates, Inc. v. Washington Township, 61 N.J. Super. 312 (App. Div. 1960), the court made the following salutary observation at page 329 which I believe is apropos here:

> A public officer has the duty of serving the public with undivided loyalty, uninfluenced in his official actions by any private interest or motive whatsoever. Driscoll v. Burlington-Bristol Bridge Co., 8 N.J. 433. As we said in Aldom v. Roseland, 42 N.J. Super. 495, at pages 502, 503 and 507 (1956), the interest which disqualifies need not be a direct, pecuniary one: it may be indirect. Basically, the question is whether the public official, by reason of a personal interest in the matter, is placed in a situation of temptation to serve his own purposes, to the prejudice of those for whom the law authorizes him to act. The validity of his action does not rest upon proof of fraud, dishonesty, loss to the municipality, or whether he was in fact influenced by his personal interest.

So, too, I would refer counsel to the decision in Cullum v. Board of Education of North Bergen, 27 N.J. Super. 243, 248 (App. Div. 1953), where the court observed:

> The members of the board of education of a municipality are public officers holding positions of public trust. They stand in a fiduciary relationship to the people whom they have been elected or appointed to serve [and continuing on with a quote from the Driscoll case]
> As fiduciaries and trustees of the public weal they are under an inescapable obligation to serve the public with the highest fidelity. In discharging the duties of their office they are required to display such intelligence and skill as they are capable of, to be diligent and conscientious, to exercise their discretion not arbitrarily but reasonably, and above all to display good faith, honesty and integrity.

Those set forth some general propositions with respect to the duty of loyalty to be held by public officials. There have, of course, been several cases specifically dealing in the education context with the application of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-2 to a variety of different fact situations. No case exactly identical to the instant matter appears to have been decided in this state. None of these have been called to my attention by counsel, and I was unable to find any. Perhaps the closest and most recent set of circumstances was the situation involved in Board of Education of the Township of Jackson v. Acevedo in which a declaratory judgment action was filed by the Board to determine whether a Board member had a disqualifying conflict of interest in light of the pendency of a lawsuit he had filed on behalf of his infant son for damages for injuries suffered by his son against the Board. The Acevedo case is reported at 92 N.J.A.R. 2d 163 (February 6, 1992). The administrative law judge in his initial decision in that case determined that a disqualifying conflict of interest under the statute did exist since the board member, his son and his wife were all plaintiffs in a civil action against the board for compensatory damages arising out of the injury as a result of a fall that the son had suffered on Board property. A settlement of $30,000 had been entered into about two months before the initial decision was rendered. In that case, of course, the board member was an actual party to the civil suit, whereas in the instant case respondent has not joined in any of his wife's lawsuits seeking either a derivative per quod recovery, assuming he has a per quod claim in the discrimination case, or for loss of services or any direct claim.

However, in analyzing the fact situation in Acevedo, it seems to me the administrative law judge did not place any particular stress on the fact that the board member himself was actually the litigant. Rather, he concentrated on what he characterized as the "pivotal issue"; whether the claim was intended to vindicate a public interest or, on the other hand, was one which was designed to accrue to the personal benefit of the board member and through the board member his family. In analyzing the facts in that context the administrative law judge immediately, of course, made reference to the decision in In Re Bayless, 1974 S.L.D. 595, reversed State Board of Education, 1974 S.L.D. 603. In that case, which involved a Board member whose husband was a Board employee, and in subsequent cases, both the State Board in Bayless and the Commissioner in the other cases focused on whether the claim giving rise to a personal-type interest was "substantial and material." In Bayless the State Board held that the interest involved there was not of that nature but cautioned that the holding was limited to the specific facts of that case. Thus, the law judge in the Acevedo case determined it was inevitable that where a board member was a party to a suit against the board seeking monetary damages, whether compensatory or punitive, the potential of a substantial and material benefit accruing to the Board member was clear. Even if the claim was a derivative per quod claim based on physical injury to the son, that would not erase the potential personal financial benefit the board member would enjoy if the underlying suit were successful. It's not clear to me whether the administrative law judge in that case knew there had been a $30,000 settlement. That might have been referenced in the Commissioner's decision.

I would also direct counsel's attention to the decision in Township of Holmdel v. O'Connell, 1990 S.L.D. 674, decided May 10, 1990, which also involved a suit by a board member against the board for injuries to a family member; and the decision in Woodstown-Pilesgrove Regional Board of Education v. Ketas, 1979 S.L.D., reversed by the State Board 1980 S.L.D. 1563, affirmed per curium by the Appellate Division 1980 S.L.D. 1507. The decision in those and other cases, as noted by the administrative law judge in Acevedo, focused upon the actual or potential financial benefit which would flow to a board member were he or she successful in a suit for damages against the board. In such circumstances the specter of a conflict of interest which could interfere with the duty of loyalty owed by the member to the board was readily apparent.

Thus, in Acevedo the administrative law judge concluded that the Board member did under N.J.S.A. 18A:12-2 have an interest which required automatic forfeiture of his or her seat since substantial material and personal benefit in the form of money would accrue if the suit were successful or settled successfully, which it was. Thus, the administrative law judge found that there was a conflict and ordered the seat forfeited. In his review the Commissioner affirmed the administrative law judge's initial decision in Acevedo in part and reversed it in part. While the Commissioner agreed with the legal analysis articulated by the administrative law judge with respect to the case law under the statute, the fact that the lawsuit had been settled meant that the member no longer had a conflict with the board since there were no allegations that Acevedo exercised any influence over the board regarding the litigation which had been settled, or that he would exercise any such influence in the future, or that he would be enriched in the future as a result of the settlement. Thus, the disqualification ordered by Judge Law, the administrative law judge, was set aside as moot.

In the 1990 decision in O'Connell cited by both the administrative law judge and the Commissioner in Acevedo, the Commissioner took pains to observe that the lack of a conflicting or inconsistent interest is a fundamental qualification for board membership, citing the decision in the Aldom case which had been mentioned earlier. The Aldom case noted that the rule is intended to be prophylactic in nature and applies not only to a pecuniary interest, but to a psychological or a personal interest as well. Of course, Aldom involved, I think, a Planning Board, so we didn't have an education statute, but there was a conflict-of-interest issue which was similar to the kind of issue which N.J.S.A. 18A:12-2 was designed to address. In fact, in O'Connell the Commissioner quoted from the Aldom case to the effect that it is essential in order to maintain confidence in the actions of public bodies that the public be assured that their elected representatives judgments not only be correct, but that such judgments be rendered in such a manner as will beget no suspicion of the pureness and integrity of the action. Thus, in O'Connell the board member was disqualified since his participation as a litigant against the board arising out of a tort claim involving an alleged assault on his son represented a clear interest in a claim against the board which the statute prohibits.

The testimony in the instant case before me revealed that although the respondent is not himself a party to any of the claims filed against the Board and against both past and present Board members in the recent tort claim filed by his wife, he certainly has a future potential pecuniary benefit should she recover damages by virtue of the alleged acts of discrimination which she is pursuing in both the administrative and the judicial forums. As respondent himself noted during the course of his testimony, a major monetary recovery certainly would or could be used so as to benefit the entire family unit. Both respondent and his wife indicated that any such recovery would, in fact, be earmarked for the education and/or for other benefits to their two children, obligations which they bear as the parents in any event. Clearly, if respondent's income was substantially curtailed or even totally disrupted, the recovery of a judgment by his wife would represent potentially at least, if not actually, a major pecuniary benefit to the entire family unit, including Mr. Taliaferro. So, too, while we certainly hope this doesn't happen, if Mrs. Taliaferro predeceases the respondent in a context where the disposition of her estate would flow to him and thereby relieve him of financial obligations, such as home equity lines and so forth, a clear potential pecuniary benefit exists in that situation as well.

As I noted, in the O'Connell case the Commissioner touched upon the psychological aspect of claims against the Board in which a Board member had a direct or indirect interest. To that end the testimony in this case concerning the events that took place at the Board meeting of June 8, 1993, while of no tremendous consequence insofar as Board policy is concerned, are in my judgment pertinent to the issue before me. While the respondent explained the "no" votes which he directed his student counterpart cast in connection with the resolution intending to honor two of the three Board members who had left the Board as of its reorganization the previous April, and stressed that he did vote "yes" with respect to one of those members, despite his protestations to the contrary I find that Mr. Taliaferro's admission that he does feel "hurt" and "disappointed" is essentially tantamount to a lingering hostility or resentment toward those two members. I don't think it can be avoided. Although they are no longer members of the Board, I believe the actions he took that night as a Board member on resolutions before a Board of which he is a member are indicative of the problem that we have here. Respondent did not dispute that although he claims not to have seen the incident, he did learn that his wife stood up in the audience with her back to the podium when the resolutions pertaining to the Board members were offered and acted upon. There is no escaping the conclusion that the pending lawsuits by Mrs. Taliaferro against the Board, against its present superintendent and against past and present Board members has given rise to a context which, at the very least, is unwholesome and demonstrably harmful I believe to the best interests of the Board and to the public which it represents. The specter which now has surfaced at least twice, that is to say at the student counterpart night and also with respect to whatever discussion took place on the person who succeeded his wife as coach, seems to me to involve precisely the sort of consequence which N.J.S.A. 18A:12-2 is designed to prevent. While Mr. Taliaferro is not a party to any of his wife's lawsuits, nonetheless I believe he certainly does have an indirect interest, at least, in the outcome sufficient in my view to come within the proscription of the statute.

None of the cases cited dictate a contrary result. In those decisions where the Commissioner found no conflict of interest to exist, even where the Board member patently had a direct claim against the Board, the absence of a substantial and material personal benefit to the member was of paramount concern. In this case there is no such absence of a personal benefit. In fact, there is just such a potential possibility. Moreover, in several of those cases, the interest sought to be vindicated was the interest of the public at large and again not, as here, potentially personal to the Board member.

Again, I return to the Aldom case, whose language I think is particularly noteworthy, and I quote from the case at page 502:

> The interest which disqualifies is not necessarily a direct pecuniary one, nor is the amount of such an interest of paramount importance. It may be indirect; it is such an interest as is covered by the moral rule: no man can serve two masters whose interests conflict. Basically the question is whether the officer, by reason of a personal interest in the matter, is placed in a situation of temptation to serve his own purposes to the prejudice of those for whom the law authorizes him to act as a public official. And in the determination of the issue, too much refinement should not be engaged in by the courts in an effort to uphold the municipal action on the ground that his interest is so little or so indirect. Such an approach gives recognition to the moral philosophy that next in importance to the duty of the officer to render a righteous judgment is that of doing it in such a manner as will beget no suspicion of the pureness and integrity of his action.

I do not charge or accuse Mr. Taliaferro of any overt direct action designed to benefit himself at the expense of the public. But I don't think that has to be proven in order to come within the confines of the statute for the reasons that I have indicated here. And as I did note, there have been two occasions where he has participated in a way which I think impacts adversely on the ability of the public to maintain confidence that he will retain and maintain strict impartiality at all times. And I do not believe that a recusal from participating in any matter which might even potentially involve his wife is adequate enough. I think the legislative intent in the statute was to introduce the strictest of barriers against even the potential of one's personal interest getting in the way of the interest of the public who one is elected to serve. It's one of the few areas where Board members are automatically disqualified, and I think there's a reason for that.

Accordingly, I herewith determine that pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-2, and for the reasons I have set forth in this oral initial decision, the respondent Albert W. Taliaferro has, at the very least, an indirect interest in his wife's damage claims against the Hawthorne Board of Education which I have found and conclude are sufficient to disqualify him by virtue of that interest from any further Board membership. I therefore ORDER that his seat forthwith be declared forfeit and vacant. Such vacancy should be filled in a manner consistent with law.

Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.3, within 15 days this initial decision, orally rendered, will be transcribed, filed with the Commissioner of Education for her consideration, and will be mailed to the parties. This recommended decision is only an initial decision and is not final. It may be adopted, modified or rejected by the Commissioner who, by law, is authorized to make the final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within 45 days, and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within 13 days from the date on which this recommended decision is mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the Commissioner at 225 East State Street, 8th Floor West, CN 500, Trenton 08652, marked: "Attention, Exceptions," and a copy of any exceptions filed must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF RIVER EDGE, BERGEN COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, riffed lead custodian, alleged Board reduced him in rank without cause in violation of his tenure rights. Board contended that reduction was due to reorganization and, moreover, that petitioner failed to comply with 90-day filing requirement of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2.

Initial decision determined petition was untimely filed. ALJ concluded because petitioner proceeded to arbitration, he was not relieved from compliance with 90-day requirement. Decision of Public Employment Relations Commission did not have the effect of tolling the 90-day filing requirement. Petition was dismissed as untimely.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision.

BEFORE ELINOR R. REINER, ALJ:

On March 29, 1993, petitioner, Nicholas Raymond, filed a petition of appeal with the Commissioner of Education (Commissioner) alleging that he had been reduced in rank without cause in violation of his tenure rights. He requested that the Commissioner award him the position of lead custodian and grant him back pay and any other benefits and emoluments denied as a result of the improper reduction in his employment status. On April 16, 1993, respondent filed an answer requesting that the Commissioner dismiss the petition with prejudice for failure to state a claim upon which relief could be granted, for failure to present a case or controversy arising under the school laws and for failure to file a petition no later than ninety days from receipt of respondent's notice that petitioner would not be employed as the lead custodian for the 1991-92 school year.

In addition, on April 12, 1993, respondent filed a motion for summary decision based on petitioner's failure to comply with the ninety-day filing requirement of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2. By letter dated April 22, 1993, the Commissioner of Education advised counsel that she had received respondent's answer and motion for summary decision in this matter and was forwarding the matter to the Office of Administrative Law for disposition. On May 5, 1993, this matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

A telephone prehearing conference was held on June 29, 1993. At that time the issues were isolated, and a hearing was scheduled for January 3 and 4, 1994, at the Office of Administrative Law. In addition, a schedule was established for petitioner's response to respondent's motion for summary decision and respondent's reply thereto. Briefs were filed by both parties in regard to this issue, and upon request of the undersigned judge, counsel filed a joint stipulation of facts. The record closed on October 6, 1993, upon receipt of the executed stipulation of facts.

UNDISPUTED FACTS

At issue in regard to respondent's motion is whether petitioner is barred from bringing this action for failure to comply with the requirements of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2 (the 90-day rule). The parties have stipulated to the pertinent facts in regard to this issue. The stipulated facts are as follows:

1. Petitioner, Nicholas Raymond (hereinafter "Raymond") is a custodian who has been employed by the respondent, Board of Education of the Borough of River Edge (hereinafter "Board"), since on or about June 1, 1983.

2. Raymond, having commenced employment as a custodian with the Board in June 1983, is protected by tenure through N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3 and the collective negotiations agreement in effect between the Board and the River Edge Education Association (hereinafter "Association") which confers tenure under Article 17.10 upon the issuance of a fifth year contract.

3. On or about September 1, 1989, the Board implemented a change in the organizational structure of the custodial department. Prior to that time, the department consisted of one head custodian, one day custodian and one night custodian in each of two schools. The reorganization of the department resulted in a structure consisting of a supervisor of buildings and grounds responsible for both schools, one chief of maintenance who reported to the supervisor and was assigned to both schools, one day custodian in each school and one night custodian in each school.

4. Raymond applied for and was selected to fill the position of chief of maintenance.

5. On or about July 1, 1991, the positions of supervisor of buildings and grounds and chief of maintenance were eliminated and in their place the Board created two new positions called lead custodian.

6. Following the customary posting of vacancy notices for these positions, five members of the custodial staff, including Raymond, applied for and were interviewed for the two positions of lead custodian.

7. On or about July 22, 1991, the Board selected the individuals it believed to be most qualified for the two new positions of lead custodian. Raymond was not selected, and consequently, reverted to the position of day custodian.

8. On or about July 22, 1991, the Association grieved the Board's decision not to appoint Raymond to the position of lead custodian through the various stages of the grievance procedure contained in the parties' collective negotiations agreement.

9. The Board denied the grievance on January 7, 1992, on the basis that Raymond was not best qualified to be the lead custodian.

10. Since Raymond's then current salary as the chief of maintenance exceeded the appropriate salary on the day custodian guide, the Association requested that the grievant's salary not be reduced but rather "frozen" until such time as the salary established for his proper placement on the day custodian guide exceeded his salary.

11. On or about January 16, 1992, the Board and the Association entered into an agreement guaranteeing that Raymond's salary would not be reduced as a consequence of his reassignment to the position of day custodian following the abolishment of his position as chief of maintenance.

12. Notwithstanding the terms of the parties' agreement, the Association filed a demand for arbitration on January 29, 1992, challenging the Board's decision not to appoint the grievant to one of the two newly created lead custodian positions.

13. On or about August 25, 1992, the Board petitioned the Public Employment Relations Commission (hereinafter "PERC") for a scope of negotiations determination seeking a restraint of binding arbitration of the grievance filed by the Association. The Board contended that it had the prerogative to appoint the most qualified person to the new position, and therefore, the grievance was not legally arbitrable.

14. The arbitration was adjourned by mutual agreement pending an adjudication of the Board's petition by PERC.

15. On or about January 29, 1993, PERC issued a restraint of binding arbitration. River Edge Bd. of Ed. and River Edge Educ. Ass'n., PERC No. 93-63, _____ N.J.P.E.R. _____ (¶ 1993), decided January 29, 1993.

16. On or about March 10, 1993, the Association filed a notice of appeal from PERC's decision to the Superior Court, Appellate Division, which appeal is now pending.

17. The instant petition was filed on or about March 30, 1993.

ARGUMENTS OF COUNSEL

Respondent argues that petitioner must be barred from bringing this action for failure to comply with the requirements of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2. Respondent points out that the instant petition was filed on or about March 30, 1993, more than one year and eight months after the Board acted on July 1, 1991, to appoint someone other than Raymond to the position of lead custodian. Raymond does not deny he had notice of the Board's action and the fact that he was affected by that action. As such, petitioner has plainly failed to comply with N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2. Respondent asserts that petitioner's appeal to the Commissioner should have been filed within ninety days of July 22, 1991. Instead, petitioner gambled on a favorable arbitration award and failed to anticipate that his action would be enjoined by PERC because it involved a dispute which was not mandatorily negotiable or legally arbitrable. Having lost, petitioner is now trying to pursue a stale petition before the Commissioner.

In addition, respondent asserts that PERC's scope of negotiations determination did not relieve Raymond from complying with the ninety-day requirement of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2 nor did PERC's decision have the effect of tolling the ninety-day filing requirement. Since the instant dispute involves neither a teaching staff member nor the withholding of an increment, petitioner cannot rely upon the tolling provision contained in N.J.S.A. 34:13A-27(d).

In response, petitioner asserts that the circumstances of this case warrant the filing of the petition of appeal within ninety days of PERC's decision. Petitioner suggests that the same principle should be applied to his case as are codified in N.J.S.A. 34:13A-27(d) which permit teaching staff members ninety days to file a petition of appeal after an adverse scope determination. According to petitioner, the purpose of the ninety-day rule is to require parties to promptly raise their claims, so that there is no unfair disadvantage to the party defending the petition and so that the matter will be resolved expeditiously. Petitioner contends that these elements are not present here. Respondent was put on notice of petitioner's claim within ninety days of its occurrence when he filed his grievance on July 22, 1991. The Board disputed arbitrability for the first time on January 7, 1992, well beyond the 90-day time limit which would have alerted petitioner to seek an alternative remedy. Based on its action, the Board should not be able to raise the ninety- day rule and thwart a hearing on the merits of petitioner's claim.

Citing N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.15 which provides for the relaxing of the rules "in any case where a strict adherence thereto may be deemed inappropriate or unnecessary or may result in injustice," petitioner asserts that an apparent injustice will occur unless the Commissioner allows this action to be pursued on the merits. Petitioner points out that PERC deferred jurisdiction over this dispute to the Commissioner. Implicit in PERC's holding is PERC's understanding that an alternate remedy before the Commissioner was still available. According to petitioner, the delay in this matter was occasioned by the Board's failure to promptly raise the arbitrability defense to the grievance and the protracted nature of the proceeding before PERC. If the rule is not relaxed, the Board will be rewarded for delaying its answer to petitioner's grievance, enabling it to foreclose petitioner's remedy both contractually and before the Commissioner.

In response, respondent contends summary decision on its motion to dismiss the petition as untimely is appropriate since there is no genuine issue of fact. More particularly, respondent argues that PERC's scope of negotiations determination did not relieve Raymond from compliance with the ninety-day requirement of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c) for filing a petition of appeal with the Commissioner. Raymond should have filed his appeal with the Commissioner simultaneous with the filing of his grievance and demand for arbitration. In further argument, respondent contends that N.J.S.A. 34:13A-27(d) has no application to the facts of this case. Respondent points out that a tolling provision is expressly authorized by the Legislature in N.J.S.A. 34:13A-27(d); N.J.S.A. 34:13A-5.4(d) contains no such provision. If the Legislature had intended to toll the ninety-day filing requirement where a litigant incorrectly chooses to pursue arbitration, it would have done so. In fact, respondent asserts that the New Jersey Supreme Court and Appellate Division have addressed this issue stating that an employee who proceeds to arbitration is not relieved from compliance with the ninety-day filing requirements contained in N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c) Noting that the Commissioner and the courts read N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2 strictly and apply it almost without exception, respondent asserts that there are no circumstances surrounding petitioner's claim to warrant relaxation of the ninety-day filing requirement under N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.15. More to the point, respondent asserts that the instant petition was filed on or about March 30, 1993, one year and eight months after the Board acted on July 22, 1991, not to reappoint Raymond to the position of lead custodian. Raymond does not deny he had notice of the Board's action and the fact that he was affected by that action. Indeed, petitioner even acknowledges that he was aware of the Board's arbitrability defense on January 7, 1992, and still he waited more than fourteen months after that to file his petition with the Commissioner. According to respondent, petitioner's suggestion that the Board should be blamed for his delay because it waited until January 7, 1992, well beyond the ninety-day time limit to raise its arbitrability defense is entirely specious. It was not the Board's responsibility to alert petitioner to seek an alternative remedy, but rather petitioner's responsibility to consider his alternatives. A cursory review of the facts should have revealed the Board's likely arbitration defense.

The Board notes that its position is buttressed by the Supreme Court's admonition in Bernards Township Board of Education v. Bernards Township Education Association, 79 N.J. 311, (1979), and the Appellate Division's determination in Riely v. Hunterdon Central High Board of Ed., 173 N.J. Super. 109 (App. Div. 1980), where they cautioned that while arbitration was an appropriate intermediate procedural step for handling a dispute over the withholding of a teacher's salary increment, a matter otherwise within the managerial discretion of the Board of Education, a teacher who proceeds to arbitration is not thereby relieved from compliance with the ninety-day requirement of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2 for filing a petition of appeal with the Commissioner.

In summary, respondent asserts that the facts of this case do not present the exceptional circumstances that compel the Commissioner to waive the ninety-day limitation. The record fails to reveal any reasons, compelling or otherwise, warranting such relief under N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.15.

DISCUSSION

It is clear and undisputed that the instant petition was filed on or about March 30, 1993, more than one year and eight months after the Board acted on July 22, 1991, to select the individuals it believed to be most qualified for the two new positions of lead custodian. Raymond was not selected and consequently reverted to the position of day custodian. On or about July 22, 1991, the association grieved the Board's decision not to appoint Raymond to the position of lead custodian through the various stages of the grievance procedure contained in the parties' collective negotiations agreement. As such, Raymond does not deny he had notice of the Board's action and the fact that he was affected by that action.

N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2 provides in relevant part:

> (a)To initiate a contested case for the Commissioner's determination of a controversy or dispute arising under the school laws, . . .
>
> (c) The petitioner shall file a petition no later that the 90th day from the date of receipt of notice . . . or other action by the district board of education, . . . which is the subject of the requested contested case hearing..

It is clear that petitioner has failed to comply with this regulation.

Recently, the Commissioner of Education and the Courts have held that a petitioner's failure to comply with N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2 will result in a dismissal of the appeal. See Riely v. Board of Ed of Hunterdon Central High School, 173 N.J. Super. 109 (App. Div. 1980); Baley v. Board of Ed. of Mansfield, OAL DKT. EDU 4997-79 (Feb. 6, 1980), rejected by Commissioner of Ed. (June 19, 1980), aff'd State Bd. of Ed. (Feb. 4, 1981); Kallimanis v. Board of Ed. of Carlstadt, OAL Dkt. EDU 868-80 (August 8, 1980), adopted Commissioner of Ed. (September 26, 1980), aff'd State Bd. of Ed. (March 4, 1981); Stolte v. Board of Ed. of Willingboro, OAL Dkt. EDU 2261-79 (Jan. 30, 1980), rejected by Commissioner of Ed. (March 17, 1980), aff'd State Bd. of Ed. (July 2, 1980). Moreover, this time limit has been strictly construed to mean that the ninety-day period runs from the time the initial cause of action accrued. See Watchung Hills Regional Ed. Association v. Board of Ed. of Watchung Hills, 1980 S.L.D. 356. More to the point, it seems clear that the proper time for filing a petition with the Commissioner is immediately after notification of board action, and not the completion of some other process such as arbitration. See State Board of Ed. of Bernards Township v. Bernards Township Education Association, 79 N.J. 311 (1979); Riely v. Central High Board of Ed., supra., Wright and Sobanko v. Board of Ed. of Belleville, OAL DKT. EDU 5299-80 (Dec. 5, 1980), aff'd by Commissioner of Ed. (Jan. 23, 1981).

As stated by respondent, Raymond chose to proceed to binding arbitration on his asserted grievance concerning the Board's alleged violation of his contractual rights when it refused to appoint him to the position of lead custodian. As it turned out, PERC determined that the issues raised in the grievance were not properly within the scope of mandatory arbitration. River Edge Board of Ed. and River Edge Educ. Ass'n., PERC No. 93-63, -- (N.J.P.E.R. - January 28, 1993)). Although PERC concluded that Raymond was an employee with undisputed tenure rights, whose claims may be cognizable by the Commissioner of Education, its decision cannot be read to toll the ninety-day requirement of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2, for filing a petition of appeal with the Commissioner. Clearly, petitioner should have filed his appeal with the Commissioner simultaneously with the filing of his grievance and demand for arbitration. See Bernards Township Board of Ed. v. Bernards Township Education Association, supra, at 326-327, n.4, in which the Supreme Court cautioned that while advisory arbitration was an appropriate intermediate procedural step for handling a dispute over the withholding of a teacher's salary increment, a matter otherwise within the managerial discretion of the Board of Education, a teacher who proceeds to arbitration is not thereby relieved from compliance with the ninety-day requirement of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2. Clearly, Raymond's appeal to the Commissioner should have been filed within 90 days of July 22, 1991, when he knew that the Board had decided not to appoint him to either of the lead custodian positions.

Petitioner contends that since respondent did not challenge the arbitrability of petitioner's grievance until six-months past the date of filing, the ninety-day limitation period of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c) is not applicable. Respondent points to Kaprow v. Board of Educ. of Berkeley Twp., 131 N.J. 572 (1993) as dispositive of this issue.

In Kaprow the plaintiff attempted to resolve his claim of tenure violation through unofficial and informal negotiations with the local board. As a consequence of the nature of the communications between the parties involved, a question arose as to whether the plaintiff had adequate notice of action by the board so as to trigger the ninety-day limitations period. N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c). The Court concluded that adequate notice was received and explained that the limitations period begins to run when a teacher learns of "the existence . . . of facts that would enable him [her] to file a timely claim. To insist . . . that there be additional or more - specific notice will not further the objectives of the regulatory scheme, and would only defeat the considerations of repose and interfere with the efficient administration of the school laws." Kaprow, supra, 131 N.J. at 588-89.

In essence, the facts and circumstances that trigger the running of the limitation period need not be such that require a petitioner to file with the Commissioner of Education but need only be such "that would enable him [her] to file a timely claim." Ibid. This particular analysis is applicable to the instant matter in that the crux of petitioner's argument is that respondent's delay in contesting the arbitrability of the grievance led petitioner to believe that filing a petition with the Commissioner was not required under the circumstances. Nevertheless, the facts and circumstance relating to the reorganization of custodial positions and alleged demotion of petitioner, which took place on July 1, 1991, clearly evidenced a nexus of conduct that would enable petitioner to file a petition with the Commissioner of Education for adjudication of his tenure rights. Petitioner, however, delayed filing the petition until one year and eight months after the date of the triggering conduct.

Petitioner cannot claim that he was unaware of the necessity to file even in light of the potential arbitration of his grievance. It was well established, even previous to the New Jersey Supreme Court's decision of April 8, 1993, Kaprow, supra, that a teacher who proceeds to advisory arbitration is not relieved from compliance with the ninety-day rule of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c). Board of Educ. Bernards Tp. v. Bernards Tp. Educ. Ass'n., 79 N.J. 311, 326-27, n.4 (1979); Riely v. Hunterdon Central High, 173 N.J. Super. 109, 1993 (App. Div. 1980).

Petitioner argues that "the same principles should be applied [in the instant matter] as are codified in N.J.S.A. 34:13A-27(d), which permit teaching staff members ninety days to file a petition of appeal [with the Commissioner of Education]" if PERC determines that the reason for a pay increment withholding relates predominately to a negative evaluation of a teaching staff member. The relevant portion of N.J.S.A. 34:13A-27(d) reads as follows:

> d. If a dispute involving the reason for the withholding of a teaching staff member's increment is submitted to the commission pursuant to subsection a. of this section, and the commission determines that the reason for the > increment withholding relates predominately to the evaluation of a teaching staff member's teaching performance, the teaching staff member may file a petition of appeal pursuant to N.J.S. 18A:6-9 and N.J.S. 18A:29-14, and the petition shall be deemed to be timely if filed within 90 days of notice of the commission's decision, or of the final judicial decision in any appeal from the decision of the commission, whichever date is later.

Clearly, section (d) of the above act is applicable only to teaching staff members when PERC determines that the pay increment was withheld predominately as a result of their "teaching performance." Petitioner is not a teaching staff member as defined by N.J.S.A. 34:13A-22. Nor is petitioner's argument of diminution in his pay, as a consequence of inflation, a withholding of pay increment predominately related to an evaluation of his teaching performance. Accordingly his argument of applicability of N.J.S.A. 13:13A-27(d) to the instant matter is without merit.

Petitioner next argues that pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.15, the Commissioner may relax the ninety-day rule when "in his discretion, a strict adherence thereto may be deemed inappropriate or unnecessary, or may result in injustice." Petitioner apparently believes that he has presented a showing of sufficient reason for failure to timely file and that since there is no substantial prejudice to the public entity, the rule should be relaxed.

Clearly, the Commissioner can relax N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2 if a strict application of the rule is inappropriate, unnecessary, or causes injustice, and has done so in the past. However, as was stated in Davenport v. Butler Board of Ed. 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (Vol. 4) 614 (EDU 1992); Hall v. Board of Ed. City of Englewood, OAL DKT. EDU 6899-80 (Dec. 11, 1981), aff'd Commissioner of Ed. (Jan. 26, 1982), aff'd State Bd. of Ed. (Oct. 6, 1982)) and Wright and Sobanko, supra., the Commissioner and the Courts now read N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2 very strictly and apply it almost without exception. See Baley supra., Riely, supra., Kallimanis, supra. See also, Gordon v. Passaic Township Board of Ed., 1985 S.L.D. 1929, affirmed No. A-3294-84 (App. Div. May 27, 1986), certif. denied 105 N.J. 534 (1986). In fact, as pointed out by respondent, the Commissioner has found such "unusual and compelling circumstances to warrant such relief" in only a limited number of cases. See, Polaha v. Board of Ed. of the Buena Regional School District., 212 N.J. Super. 628 (App. Div. 1986) in which relaxation of the rule was warranted because although petitioner was clearly notified concerning the abolishment of his position, he was unaware until two months later that a part-time position relating to his abolishment had been established by the Board.

Petitioner posits two arguments in support of his request for relaxation of the ninety-day rule. First, petitioner points out that the purpose of the ninety-day rule is to require litigants to raise their claims promptly so that their adversary will not be disadvantaged, and the matter can be resolved expeditiously. Petitioner goes on to explain that respondent was put on notice about petitioner's claim by the filing of the grievance on July 22, 1991; therefore, the purposes for which the ninety-day rule was adopted were met. As such, strict adherence to the strictures of the rule would preclude review of the merits of the instant matter, but not for the purposes of furthering the interests for which the rule is meant to serve.

Petitioner's assertion that respondent had constructive notice of the pendency of a filing with the Commissioner of Education and that the fundamental purposes for which the rule was adopted were met by such constructive notice is noteworthy. See Kaprow, supra, 131 N.J. at 582 in which the Court explains that the limitations period provides a measure of repose, an essential element in the proper and efficient administration of the school laws. Because education disputes frequently involve conflicting claims to one position, the remedy is to award the prevailing party the position with back pay. The limitation period gives school districts the security of knowing that administrative decisions regarding the operation of the school cannot be challenged after ninety days. Moreover, because local school boards operate on a cash basis, claims must be filed promptly so that the local board can anticipate any back pay requirements. However, petitioner's argument fails to address the fact that a limitations period also serves as a punitive purpose, which " is to penalize dilatoriness . . . " Kaprow, supra, 131 N.J .at 587 [citing, Ochs v. Federal Ins., 90 N.J. 108, 112 (1982) citing, Farrell v. Violator Div., 62 N.J. 111, 115 (1973)]. In essence, the penalty consequences of the limitations period actualizes the notice, efficiency, and budgetary considerations of the ninety-day rule by deterring dilatoriness where claims that are not timely filed are precluded from review. Thus, by strict adherence to the ninety-day rule, petitioners have an incentive to timely file their claims, and once timely filed, there is no doubt about the actualization of the interests and purposes which the limitations period is meant to further.

If constructive notice were to suffice for the purpose of meeting the requirement of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c), the dilatoriness-deterrence/penalty aspect of a limitations rule would be seriously undermined. Litigants who were not diligent and failed to file in a timely manner would nevertheless have an opportunity to argue that certain facts and circumstances constitute constructive notice, thus eroding the unequivocal precision of official timely notice which is not subject to dispute. In light of these considerations, petitioner's argument for relaxation of the ninety-day rule is without merit.

Second, petitioner argues that respondent's supposed failure to assert its contention that petitioner's grievance is not arbitrable, in effect, duped petitioner into not filing his petition with the Commissioner of Education. As stated above, petitioner had a duty to timely file his petition notwithstanding his pursuance of a grievance with the local board. Kaprow v. Board of Educ. of Berkeley Tp., 131 N.J. 572 (1993); Board of Educ. Bernards Tp. v. Bernards Tp. Educ. Assoc., 79 N.J. 311, 326-27, n.4 (1979); Riely v. Hunterdon Central High Sch. 173 N.J. Super. 109, 113 (App. Div. 1979).

Respondent was under no statutory or regulatory duty to enunciate its position on receipt of petitioner's claim. Nor did respondent engage in conduct calculated to mislead petitioner into believing that it was unnecessary to file a petition with the Commissioner of Education. Petitioner fails to point to any representations made by respondent calculated to lull petitioner into a false sense of security with respect to him not needing to file his petition. At best, petitioner establishes that respondent was slow in formulating its position on petitioner's grievance.

In fact, as pointed out by respondent the instant petition was filed on or about March 30, 1993, one year and eight months after the Board acted on July 22, 1991, not to appoint Raymond to the position of lead custodian. Raymond acknowledged that he was aware of the Board's arbitrability defense on January 7, 1992, and yet he waited more than fourteen months after that to file his petition with the Commissioner.

The instant matter is clearly distinguishable from Friedman v. Friendly Ice Cream, 133 N.J. Super. 333, 337-8 (App. Div. 1975), in which plaintiff was injured while dining at the defendant's place of business. The defendant's insurer made a settlement offer to plaintiff, which he declined. Negotiations continued but were not productive and eventually broke down. As a consequence, the plaintiff filed his claim, and the defendant answered with a statute of limitations defense. The Appellate Division ruled in favor of the plaintiff, finding that the defendant's conduct in making the settlement offer led the plaintiff to believe that there was no immediate need to file his claim because the defendant's insurer was admitting liability, and the only issue in dispute was the quantum of damages, which was the subject of ongoing negotiations. In the instant matter there were no negotiations and/or admissions of fault that petitioner relied on in filing his petition with the Commissioner of Education.

Polaha v. Buena Regional High, 212 N.J. Super. 628, 635 (App. Div. 1986) is instructive. In Polaha the Appellate Division agreed with the administrative law judge's decision that because of ongoing negotiations between an educator and a local board, relaxation of the ninety-day rule " may be . . . appropriate." Id. at 635. Although, there was no indicia of conduct on the part of the board that was calculated to mislead or persuade the educator not to file a petition and miss the ninety-day limitation date, it appears that negotiations were really taking place and the board was making a good faith effort to find the educator a position.

It appears from a review Polaha that one test for relaxation of the ninety-day rule may be an inquiry into the nature of the parties dealings. In short, even if a board did not engage in conduct calculated to mislead, it may nevertheless be proper to grant a relaxation of the rule if the party seeking relaxation was led to believe, by the board's good faith efforts to solve the problem, it was not necessary and possibly imprudent to file a petition with the Commissioner of Education. Such is not the case here.

Having considered the above, I CONCLUDE that this tribunal has been presented with no good cause for petitioner's failure to timely file. Petitioner did not explain in any meaningful way why he did not file within the ninety days nor did he demonstrate in support of his legal position that there would be no substantial prejudice to respondent by the relaxation of the rule. Petitioner's suggestion that the Board should be blamed for his delay is of no help to him. It is clear that simply because petitioner proceeded to arbitration, he was not relieved from compliance with the ninety-day requirement of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2 for filing a petition of appeal with the Commissioner.

Further, it does not appear that there was an absence of adversity and the presence of good faith negotiations between petitioner and respondent. In fact, by petitioner's own admission he filed a grievance with respondent on July 22, 1991, and did not hear from respondent until January 7, 1992. There were no meaningful negotiations taking place. By virtue of the fact that negotiations were not ongoing, and respondent made no good faith effort to ameliorate the dispute, petitioner cannot be said to have reason to believe there was no reason for him to file a petition with the Commissioner of Education. In fact, the absence of effort on the part of the respondent is sufficient indicia of adversity and lack of cooperation that warrants a timely and zealous filing of a petition.

CONCLUSION

I have considered the stipulated facts and the arguments of counsel and for the foregoing reasons, I CONCLUDE that petitioner's petition should be dismissed for failure to comply with the ninety-day limitation period of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c). I Further CONCLUDE that the circumstances do not warrant relaxation of the ninety-day rule pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.15.
