IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF MARTIN ROSENCRANZ,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BERGEN	:	DECISION
COUNTY VOCATIONAL SCHOOL DISTRICT,	:
BERGEN COUNTY.	:

SYNOPSIS

The Board certified tenure charges of unbecoming conduct against respondent Culinary Arts teacher for allegedly exercising poor judgment during an overnight school-sponsored trip.

During the course of the hearing, respondent moved for dismissal of two of the five charges; the Board consented to their dismissal. As to the remaining charges, in light of the testimony of witnesses and the record, the ALJ found that although some photos showed respondent in a questionable position, the ALJ was convinced that respondent's action was inadvertent and, as such, did not rise to the level of unbecoming conduct constituting just cause for dismissal. As to the charge of consuming alcohol on the trip, although the testimony indicated that respondent, along with the other two chaperones, consumed wine at dinner, the District's policy on field trips does not forbid the consumption of alcohol by adult chaperones. The ALJ found that petitioner failed to sustain the burden of proof on the charges. The ALJ ordered respondent reinstated with compensation.

The Commissioner concurred with the ALJ's credibility determinations and adopted the findings and determination in the Initial Decision as his own.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF MARTIN ROSENCRANZ,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BERGEN	:	DECISION
COUNTY VOCATIONAL SCHOOL DISTRICT,	:
BERGEN COUNTY.	:

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. The Board's exceptions and respondent's reply thereto were submitted in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

The Board objects to the ALJ's findings and conclusions with respect to Counts 1 and 2 of the tenure charges.[1] In so doing, the Board maintains that "respondent did, in fact, 'stage' and 'pose' for photographs P1 and P9 ." (Board's Exceptions at 3) That "the scene may not have been staged and/or prepared in the immediate presence of student[s] should not be determinative of the issue of respondent's unbecoming conduct," according to the Board. Instead, respondent's intent to be seen by the students, the Board reasons, may be implied from Exhibits P1 and P9 and from the context in which the photographs were taken. (Id. at 4)

Moreover, the Board objects to the ALJ's characterization of the event as being brief in duration. Rather, it contends that "the scene was of sufficient duration" to permit 7 students to witness it and for two of those students to take photographs. (Id.) Quite simply, the Board finds incredible respondent's claim that he was unaware of how he looked when the towel was positioned between his legs. (Id. at 5) Instead, the Board maintains that although "no student suffered physical harm, touching or corruption of morals ," the photographs prove that respondent was making a sexually suggestive joke, which constituted unbecoming conduct and warrants his dismissal. (Id.)

[1] Notably, although Count 4 also survived respondent's motion to dismiss, the Board does not challenge the ALJ's determination that it failed to sustain this charge.

In reply, respondent counters that it is "desperate to try to have [him] found guilty of something [where the Board] asks the Commissioner to imply intent from the record," when, in reality, the record supports no such implication. (emphasis in text) (Respondent's Reply at 3) He argues that although the students were laughing about the incident, there is no evidence that he was involved in that joking and there is no basis to conclude that their joking encouraged him to continue the humor by posing for Exhibits P-1 and P-9. (Id at 4)

> Although there was ample evidence that Mr. Rosencranz liked to make exaggerated faces when his picture was taken in other instances , a review of P-1 and P-9 shows no Cheshire grin or clowning face such as might be expected in the "posed" picture the Board alleges. If Mr. Rosencranz was as immature as the Board asserts, and if he was allegedly posing, why would he be opening his mouth to eat chocolate?  Why wouldn't he be playing to his audience to enhance the joke?" (Id. at 5, 6)

Furthermore, the testimony of four of the seven student witnesses was that the duration of the incident was less than one minute. (Id. at 5) Respondent, therefore, views these pictures as "an unintended embarrassment, but not unbecoming conduct." (Id.)

Upon careful and independent review of the record, the Commissioner appreciates that this is a serious matter which turns on the credibility of the witnesses and, in particular, the credibility of respondent. In this regard, the Commissioner also recognizes that the ALJ's credibility determinations are entitled to his deference. "The reason for this rule is that the administrative law judge, as a finder of fact, has the greatest opportunity to observe the demeanor of the involved witnesses, and, consequently, is better qualified to judge their credibility. In the Matter of Tenure Hearing of Tyler, 236 N.J. Super. 478, 485 (App. Div.) certif. denied, 121 N.J. 615 (1989)." In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Frank Roberts, 96 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 549, 550. The Appellate Division has affirmed this principle, underscoring that "[u]nder existing law, the [reviewing agency] must recognize and give due weight to the ALJ's unique position and ability to make demeanor based judgments." Whasun Lee v. Board of

> may not reject or modify any findings of fact as to issues of credibility of lay witness testimony unless it is first determined from a review of the record that the findings are arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable or are not supported by sufficient, competent and credible evidence in the record. (emphasis added) N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(c).

Here, upon review of the full record, which included transcripts from four days of hearing, together with exhibits, post-hearing briefs, exception and reply arguments, the Commissioner determines that the ALJ's finding that respondent's conduct was inadvertent (Initial Decision at 10) is supported by sufficient, competent and credible evidence in the record and, therefore, he may not disturb this finding.

Accordingly, the Initial Decision is adopted for the reasons expressed therein.[2]

IT IS SO ORDERED.[3]

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

Date of Decision: January 8, 2004

Date of Mailing: January 9, 2004

[2] The Commissioner notes that, pursuant to a motion to seal the record, (Tr. August 26, 2003 at 50) the ALJ recommended that the record and Initial Decision be sealed pursuant to N.J.S.A. 9:6-8.10a and N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.1. (Initial Decision at 3) However, the record does not include any evidence of a DYFS investigation in this matter, as appears to be contemplated by N.J.S.A. 9:6-8.10a. Additionally, there is no articulated basis for sealing the Initial Decision. Therefore, although the Commissioner determines to seal the record in this matter pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.1, he declines to seal the Initial Decision.

[3] This decision may be appealed to the State Board of Education pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-27 et seq. and N.J.A.C. 6A:4-1.1 et seq.

SYNOPSIS

The District reduced petitioner from a $4/5^{th}$ position as a school social worker to a $1/5^{th}$ position beginning in the 2002-03 school year. Petitioner sought enforcement of her tenure and seniority rights and appointment to a $4/5^{th}$ position as a social worker or other position under her educational services certification.

The ALJ determined that the District's decision to adjust the Child Study Team's workload was made in good faith and promoted economy and efficiency. The ALJ concluded that petitioner's tenure rights were not infringed. Petition was dismissed.

The Commissioner adopted the Initial Decision as his own.

BAYONNE TEACHERS' ASSOCIATION,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF BAYONNE, HUDSON COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning Association sought a determination that the Board's Regulation #3218, which prescribes the procedures to be followed when an employee is suspected of being under the influence of a substance during working hours, violated N.J.S.A. 18A:16-2 et seq. and N.J.A.C. 6:3-4A.1 et seq., particularly as applied to the events of September 24, 2002 involving a staff member who was asked to submit to a breathalyzer test.

The ALJ upheld the Board's policy. The ALJ found that neither the statute nor regulation prohibited the Board either from adopting Regulation # 3218 or taking the action it did in this instance. In this case, two persons had observed the teacher and reasonably determined based upon the strong odor of alcohol that she was probably under the influence. Under the circumstances, prompt testing was appropriate. It would have been impractical to notify the employee, provide a statement of reasons, schedule and hold a meeting.

Citing Fair Lawn Ed. Assoc., the Commissioner adopted the Initial Decision, finding that N.J.S.A. 18A:16-2 et seq. and N.J.A.C. 6:3-4A.1 do not preempt the Board's authority to assure the safety of its students and faculty by adopting and applying regulations requiring an immediate medical examination of an employee who is reasonably suspected of being under the influence of drugs or alcohol at work.

BAYONNE TEACHERS' ASSOCIATION,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF BAYONNE, HUDSON COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record in this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions and the Board's reply thereto were submitted in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4, and were duly considered by the Commissioner in reaching his determination.

Petitioner's exceptions and the Board's reply essentially recast and reiterate their arguments advanced below which the Commissioner determines were considered and addressed by the Administrative Law Judge in his Initial Decision and, therefore, these will not be revisited herein.

Upon careful and independent review of the record, the Initial Decision, the exceptions and the reply, the Commissioner determines to adopt the Initial Decision for reasons set forth therein. The Commissioner finds that the Board's authority to adopt and administer its Regulation #3218 arises from a fair implication of the powers set out in N.J.S.A. 18A:11-1c, which authorizes the Board to make rules "for the employment, regulation of conduct and discharge of its employees." See Fair Lawn Ed. Assoc. v. Fair Lawn Bd. of Ed., 79 N.J. 574

(1979). In so determining, the Commissioner concludes that N.J.S.A. 18A:16-2 et seq. and N.J.A.C. 6:3-4A.1 et seq. do not preempt the Board's authority to assure the safety of its students and faculty by adopting regulations requiring an immediate medical examination[1] of a school employee who is reasonably suspected of being under the influence of drugs or alcohol at work.

Accordingly, the Commissioner adopts the Initial Decision for the reasons set forth therein and grants summary decision to the Board in this matter.

IT IS SO ORDERED.[2]

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

Date of Decision: January 8, 2004

Date of Mailing: January 9, 2004

[1] The Commissioner notes that Regulation #3218, C(2)b requires that an employee suspected of being under the influence of a substance during working hours is to be immediately examined by the school doctor or a doctor selected by the employee, or if such a doctor is not immediately available, then the employee is to be taken to the local hospital. In the instant matter, it is unclear whether the employee was examined by a physician and whether the breathalyzer test that was administered was ordered by and administered under the supervision of that physician. The certification by Carol Cruden, the District's Director of School Nurses, states that: "Two breathalyzer tests of the teacher were performed at a certified laboratory. Both breathalyzer tests read .042%, confirming the presence of alcohol in the teacher's system." (Certification of Carol Cruden at 2, #5) As the Commissioner found in In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Joseph Graceffo, School District of the Township of Wayne, Passaic County, Commissioner Decision, September 21, 2000, Slip Op. at 66, administration of a drug (or alcohol) test does not equate to a medical examination.

[2] This decision may be appealed to the State Board of Education pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-27 et seq. and N.J.A.C. 6A:4-1.1 et seq.

The Juvenile Justice Commission, Office of Education (JJC), with offices located at 840 Bear Tavern Road, West Trenton, New Jersey 08625, represented by Peter C. Harvey, Attorney General of New Jersey, John Franzini, Deputy Attorney General, appearing; and Sean Simon, a tenured employee of the JJC represented by Hoffman, DiMuzio and Hoffman, P.C., Christine DiMuzio, Esq., appearing; by way of this Stipulation of Settlement say:

WHEREAS, Sean Simon has been employed at the JJC's Pinelands Residential Group Center as a Teacher 2 - Physical Education since December 7, 1998; and

WHEREAS, Mr. Simon submitted an Application for Leave and Voluntary Furlough (PR-2) on or about November 15, 2002. Mr.

Simon's treating physician indicated on that application that, for medical reasons, Mr. Simon would be unable to work from October 22, 2002 through January 2, 2003; and

WHEREAS, Mr. Simon's request for a leave of absence was approved by the Department of Personnel through January 2, 2003; and

WHEREAS, Mr. Simon did not return to work following the expiration of his approved leave; and

WHEREAS, Mr. Simon did not submit the required documentation to extend his leave (PR-2) or to effect his separation from State service (PR-3). Consequently, he has been listed as on unauthorized leave since January 3, 2003; and

WHEREAS, the JJC initiated the filing of tenure charges against Mr. Simon having filed the charges with the Commissioner of Education on or about June 2, 2003; and

WHEREAS, Mr. Simon was charged with abandonment of his teaching position and excessive absenteeism constituting conduct unbecoming a public employee and other just cause under N.J.S.A. 18A:60-2 and N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10; and

WHEREAS, the JJC sought the removal of Mr. Simon on the above charges; and

WHEREAS, Mr. Simon disputed the charges, asserting that his physician had indicated that he had forwarded documentation to the JJC indicating that Mr. Simon's disability was continued through February 25, 2003; and

WHEREAS, Mr. Simon further asserted that he thereafter sought to return to work; and

WHEREAS, on or about June 20, 2003, the matter was referred to the Office of Administrative Law for a hearing; and

WHEREAS, the parties wish to enter into an amicable resolution of the tenure charges filed against Mr. Simon prior to a hearing; and

WHEREAS, this settlement is not a reflection on Mr. Simon's performance of his teaching duties nor is it an admission of guilt on the charges made herein; and

WHEREAS, it is in the best interest of the parties and the public to enter into this Stipulation of Settlement;

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of the mutual promises contained herein, the parties agree as follows:

1. Mr. Simon hereby resigns from employment with the Juvenile Justice Commission, to be effective on the date that the Commissioner of Education approves settlement of this matter.

2. Upon the effective date of his resignation, the Juvenile Justice Commission shall record Mr. Simon as having resigned in good standing.

3. The Commissioner's approval of this Settlement Agreement shall constitute a withdrawal of the tenure charges brought by the JJC against Mr. Simon.

4. As a member of the CWA Professional Unit, Mr. Simon's employment is governed in part by the provisions of the Collective Negotiations Agreement for the CWA Professional Unit (CNA). Art. VIII, paragraph F of the CNA is entitled: "Policy on Unexcused Absence." That provision states:

> Absence without notice and approval for five (5) days or failure to return from any leave of absence shall be considered a resignation.

Settlement of this matter is justified and in the public interest because it obtains Mr. Simon's resignation and implements the provisions of the CNA and JJC policy with regard to leaves of absence and sick leave without the need for the parties to devote substantial resources to a contested tenure hearing with an uncertain result. This settlement provides the relief that the JJC sought by bringing the charges.

5. This Agreement constitutes a final and complete resolution of the disciplinary action in this matter and fully disposes of all issues in controversy between the parties hereto. Mr. Simon agrees not to appeal the terms of this Agreement in any administrative, arbitral or judicial forum.

6. This Agreement shall not constitute a precedent in any other matter involving Mr. Simon or any other employee.

7. Should the Commissioner fail to approve this Agreement, the parties shall make every reasonable effort to reform their Agreement to meet his objections.

8. Mr. Simon has been advised of the Commissioner's duty to refer tenure determinations resulting in loss of position to the State Board of Examiners for possible suspension or revocation of certificate.

9. This Agreement shall only become effective when the Commissioner of Education approves it. Any disapproval by the Commissioner shall not interfere with the rights of either party to pursue this matter further.

This Agreement is made in good faith. The parties have read the Agreement and freely and voluntarily agree to its provisions.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE HOPEWELL REGIONAL SCHOOL DISTRICT, MERCER COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

Petitioning residents and taxpayers contended that, notwithstanding the defeat of a ballot question authorizing the expenditure of $53,500 for the establishment of a football program at the April 17, 2001 school election, the Board began the process of initiating a football program which will ultimately require District funding in contravention of the will of the public at the election. The Board accepted a grant of funds and entered into a related grant agreement with HIKE, Inc., a 501(c)(3) corporation, for the purpose of funding said football program.

The ALJ found that the HIKE grant agreement, by its very terms, did not implement an extracurricular program at Central High School consisting of a new freshman football team in the 2001-02 school year; that the administrative time, resources and overhead which may have been expended in the 2001-02 school year also did not implement an extracurricular program at the high school consisting of a new freshman football team in the 2001-02 school year; and that the legal services and fees, the administrative time, resources and overhead which were expended in the 2001-02 school year perfecting the HIKE grant agreement, were for the purpose of implementing an extracurricular program at the high school for the 2002-03 school year. The ALJ concluded that the Board's actions did not contravene the results of a public vote taken on April 17, 2001, on a proposal to fund football in the School District's 2001-02 budget since this proposal, by its own terms, was only applicable to the 2001-02 school year. The petition was dismissed.

The Commissioner adopted the findings and determination in the Initial Decision as his own.

This synopsis is not part of the Commissioner's decision. It has been prepared for the convenience of the reader. It has been neither reviewed nor approved by the Commissioner.

Petitioners,

v.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF HOPEWELL VALLEY REGIONAL SCHOOL DISTRICT, MERCER COUNTY,

Respondent.

David B. Rubin, Esq., for petitioners

Robert P. Martinez, Esq., for respondent

Record Closed: July 15, 2003 Decided: December 1, 2003

BEFORE JOSEPH F. MARTONE, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

By petition dated July 11, 2002, four residents and taxpayers of the Hopewell Valley Regional School District objected to and challenged the actions of the school district in accepting a grant of funds and entering into a related grant agreement with HIKE, Inc., a 501(c)(3) corporation, for the purpose of funding a football program. The petition stated three causes for complaint: (1) the school district's actions contravene the results of a public vote taken on April 17, 2001, on a proposal to fund football in the school district's 2001-2002 budget; (2) the school district's actions commit it to funding all or part of a football program during the 2004-2005 school year, in contravention of the public vote taken on April 17, 2001 and the law governing same; and (3) the school district's actions violate Title IX of the United States Code relating to required standards of equality of opportunity between genders.

The school district filed an answer to the petition on August 5, 2002, asserting that its actions conformed to the results of the April 17, 2001 vote in that no public funds were expended in the 2001-2002 school year to implement football in that year; that the disability created by the vote ended at the close of the 2001-2002 school year; and that the school district lawfully accepted a grant of private funds in the 2002-2003 school year to implement football in that year without the expenditure of public funds in the 2002-2003 school year and, contingent on future school board approval, during the 2003-2004 school year. The school district denied that it accepted any obligation to fund football, in whole or in part, thereafter. The school district further denied that it its actions violated Title IX.

An order was entered without objection on March 13, 2003, granting the request of petitioner Mary Ellen Curtin to withdraw from the pending litigation. During the hearing of this matter on May 27, 2003, the remaining petitioners withdrew the Title IX count. Following the hearing but prior to this decision petitioner Joseph J. Dutko passed away. At the conclusion of the hearing, provision was made for the submission of post-hearing memoranda.

Upon receipt of the post-hearing submissions of the parties, the record was closed on July 15, 2003. By two Orders of Extension, the time limit for filing the Initial Decision was extended until November 28, 2003. Because, November 28, 2003, was declared to be a public holiday, the Initial Decision is being filed on December 1, 2003.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

1. Introduction

Virtually all of the facts in this matter are undisputed. In his submission dated June 16, 2003, attorney for petitioners recited and summarized all of the essential facts in this matter with references to an item in the record. In his submission dated July 8, 2003, respondent's attorney took no exception to petitioners' proffered Statement of Fact insofar as each proposition is referenced to an item in the record. The only exception was that respondent objects to a statement on page 4 of petitioner's recitation of facts as not attributed to any element of the record and as not supported by the record, and seeks that it be stricken. That particular statement is the following:

> Nevertheless, over the course of the 2001-2002 school year, the school district proceeded with plans to implement a football program for the 2002-2003 school year in a manner corresponding to Alternative B outlined in the feasibility study.

While I, as the fact finder, may ultimately conclude that this statement is true, I will disregard this statement for the purpose of reciting the undisputed facts in this matter.

2. Findings of fact

I hereby ADOPT the following as my FINDINGS OF FACT in this matter:

Petitioners are citizens and taxpayers residing in the municipalities served by the Hopewell Valley Regional School District in Mercer County. The April 17, 2001 ballot for the school district's annual school election sought voter approval of a proposed $36,980,216 tax levy to support the school district's general fund for the 2001-2002 school year. In addition, two separate questions appeared on the ballot seeking approval of additional programs not contained in the school district's base budget. One of these questions, identified as "Public Question No. 3", read as follows:

> RESOLVED, That there should be raised an additional $74,027 for GENERAL FUNDS in the same school year (2001-2002). These taxes will be used exclusively for:

Extra - Curricular Programs
Timberlane: Lacrosse coach & equipment for new team $11, 971

Central High School: New Girls softball team $8,556

Central High School: New Freshman football team $53, 500
Introduction of football at Central High School in August, 2001. This allocation represents the first year's cost for the program. The feasibility study recommends that football be phased in over the next three years to a varsity level sport. Therefore, increases will occur until the program is fully implemented.

The "feasibility study" referred to in the ballot question was prepared by Raymond Geneske and Anthony Simonelli, athletic consultants engaged by the school district to explore the pros and cons of establishing a football program at the High School. (P-10.) The board Secretary/School Business Administrator John Nemeth, the author of the interpretive statement on the ballot, acknowledged that the reference to "feasibility study" would have been understood by the community to refer to this document.

The feasibility study outlined three alternative plans for building a varsity football program, identified as Alternatives A, B and C. Alternative A called for the initiation of the program in August 2001 (P-10 at p. 15). The first year would feature a freshman schedule in the fall 2001 season, with participation by the District's eighth and ninth graders. The anticipated cost for that year was $53,494 (P-10 at p. 19), which corresponded to the $53,500 figure stated on the ballot. The authors of the feasibility study then "calculated the cost of the program on a yearly basis for a period of three years. Recurring costs necessary to maintain the program into the future have also been included." (P-10 at pp. 15-16) In the second year, there would be two teams competing at the freshman and junior varsity levels. Varsity competition would begin in the third year of the program. (P-10 at p. 15) Costs were estimated at $44,930.50 for the second year, (P-10 at p. 22), and $78,126.00 for the third year (P-10 at p. 26).

Alternative B was described by the authors as follows:

> Another option for the Board to consider would be to delay the implementation of the program outlined [in Alternative A] for one year, until the Fall of 2002. This new scenario would permit additional time to organize and fund the program.
> The cost figures outlined in Alternative A would, for the most part, remain the same. This Alternative would extend from three to four years the development of a three level, full scale program.

Alternative C, which could be combined with Alternative A or B, was as follows:

> . . . In the first year of Varsity competition, this option calls for playing all games at our opponents' field, or at the local Pop Warner field if adequate seating and other facilities are available.
>
> If games were to be played at the opponents' site, an overall savings of approximately $5,200.00 could be realized for the year.
>
> If Alternative C were to be employed it would provide the Board with an additional year to budget for athletic field expenditures. From three to four years in the case of using this option with Alternative A and from four to five years when used with Alternative B.

Public Question No. 3 was defeated by a margin of approximately 2 to 1.

The minutes of the November 12, 2001 school board meeting (P-2A) reflect a comment from a member of the public, George Helmstetter, on "the interest of the public for starting a football program at Central High School[,]" and from Board member Michael Bruno "on the need for discussion regarding a football program for the high school." Dr. Robert Sopko, Superintendent of Schools, reported "on administrative issues that should be discussed by the Board Football Committee at a future meeting." Another member of the public, Mr. Myers, "commented that he would like to have a football program included in the high school program.

He stated that football would provide additional sports programs for kids who currently don't have enough opportunities for participation."

The minutes of the November 19, 2001, school board meeting reflect a comment by a Mrs. Kley "that she would like to have a football program included in the budget. She stated that students should have the right to participate in football like other students in New Jersey." (P-2B at 84.) Dr. Sopko then "reported that he committed to Mr. Clements to hold a meeting of the Board Football Committee (President of the Board, Board Chairpersons of Finance, Facilities, and Curriculum Committees) before the new year." (P-2b at p. 84).

At the November 27, 2001 school board meeting, Dr. Sopko reported that the Football Committee would meet on December 18, 2001 (P-2C). At the December 10, 2001 school board meeting, in response to an inquiry from Mr. Foster, a member of the public, "about the status of the football program[,]", Dr. Sopko "reported on a meeting of the Football Committee scheduled for December 18, 2001, to discuss the status [of] the football program[.]" (P-2D at p. 107.)

At the January 14, 2002 school board meeting, board member Kim Newport "inquired on the status of the Football Committee meeting held in December." Dr. Sopko reported that "due to budget constraints this year, the community's reaction to the ballot question last year, and the lack of fields, there was no support in the proposed budget for football. The committee agreed to continue to discuss the issue of a football program in the district." (P-2E at p. 113.) At the January 22, 2002 school board meeting, Mrs. Kley "commented on the positive discussion at a recent football committee meeting. She inquired about the results of a vote by a ten-member board which could wind up five to five." In response, Mr. Nemeth "reported that, in the case of a tie vote by the Board, the question would be defeated." Dr. Sopko then "reported that the lack of fields restricts and limits student opportunities for participation in sports." (P-2F at p. 128.) At the February 19, 2002 school board meeting, a Mrs. Morris from the public "read from her son's DARE graduation letter in which he wrote that he knew drugs could prevent him from being a football player and that was what he wanted to be. She requested that the Board provide an opportunity for high school students to play football by forming a team." (P-2H at pp. 146-47.)

By the April 23, 2002 school board meeting, the first meeting following the school election earlier that month, a local community group known as HIKE, Inc., had come forward with a proposal to partially underwrite a football program with private funds. The minutes of that meeting reflect the following public comments on the proposal:

> Mrs. Kley commented on the HIKE proposal to support a football team as a means of increasing student opportunities at Central High School.
> Mr. Foster reviewed the HIKE proposal funding plan. He stated that practice can be held at the Pop Warner field at the municipal complex.
>
> Mr. Clements distributed the HIKE proposal (copy attached) and requested that the Board fast track the question of offering a team in September, 2002.
>
> Mr. Helmstetter commented that the HIKE proposal addresses the funding and field problems and local high schools have volunteered their stadiums for games.
>
> Mr. Boyle commented on the budget process and the difficulty of initiating new sports programs and stated that the HIKE proposal addresses this matter.
>
> Mrs. Schetler, HVEA President, ... commented on the HIKE proposal and program control issues.
>
> Dr. Sopko reported on a May 1 meeting with Mr. Bach. Mr. Murphy, and HIKE representatives to review the proposal and issues related to the proposal.
>
> Mr. Meyers commented that HIKE funding could be provided in May.

At the May 13, 2002 school board meeting, Dr. Sopko gave a PowerPoint presentation, entitled "Game Plan", outlining a proposal to implement a football program for the fall of 2002 (P-2K at p. 208; P-7). The program would be fully funded in the first two years by a grant from HIKE. HIKE's financial responsibility in the third and fourth years would be 75% and 50% respectively. (P-7)

The football program was discussed extensively at the May 16, 2002 school board meeting. The minutes of the meeting reflect the following:

> Dr. Sopko distributed copies of the following documents (copies attached)
> - May 15, 2002, HIKE By-Laws
> - May 16, 2002, HIKE Funding Plan
>
> Mr. Martinez [Board Attorney] commented that the preceding documents are part of the Board review process.
>
> Dr. Sopko commented that in addition to HIKE funding, there will be no football program in September, 2002 without the proper coach in place and a CVC (Colonial Valley Conference) schedule. He requested Board direction to:
>
> a) Develop a contract with HIKE and receive the first year's funds.
> b) Advertise and conduct interviews for a football coach.
> c) Prepare a games schedule in the CVC.
> Dr. Sopko and Mr. Murphy, Athletic Director, reviewed the following documents (copies attached):
>
> a) Survey of area high school fields
> b) Central High School athletic participation
> c) May, 2002, sports participation survey
>
> Mrs. Turner summarized prior Board activities preceding the submission of a second question to the public:
>
> a) Feasibility study by outside consultants > b) Title IX compliance review of existing athletic programs
> c) Cost estimates
> d) Montgomery Township Board of Education report on football
> e) Central High School athletic program needs
> Dr. Sopko commented that July 15, 2002 would be the latest date to complete activities necessary to operate a football program in September, 2002.
>
> Board members commented as follows:
> • Based upon data presented, without football students are being denied opportunities to participate in athletic activities.

- The feasibility study and the data support the value of starting a football program

- With only two Fall sports for male athletes, football provides a good opportunity for more students to participate in sports, and the Board should take the next step.

- Although there is the conflict with field storages, football addresses student needs.

- There is the concern regarding the "football mentality" but based upon the data provided by the high school principal, football can be good for the school and the students.

Dr. Sopko reviewed the football program cost estimates and plans to evaluate the program in January, 2003, and January, 2004.

Mrs. Turner opened the meeting to the public for thirty minutes and requested that the pro and con speakers alternate.

Mr. Bickner [1]commented that the question was voted down and should not be started.

Dr. Boyle commented that HIKE addressed the funding and field issues and recommended that the Board address student needs and start a program.

Mrs. Ternoey commented on the ballot defeat, the tax impact of the schools and stated that a football program should not be started.

Mr. Bartlett commented on the HIKE commitment, the need of students, and his support for a program.

Dr. O'Boyle commented on the funding of programs by outside groups, the need for a photography course, and an unbiased student survey.

Mrs. Kley requested that Mr. Martinez review the legal matters concerning the vote.

- Mr. Martinez commented that the defeated ballot question specifically dealt with the full funding by the Board for football, > lacrosse and softball teams. He further stated that the Board is permitted to pursue alternate funding proposals to operate the football program.

> A CHS student commented on other needs in the high school such as a theatre class, newer textbooks and maps, additional science equipment, additional field trips, and repairs to leaky roofs.
>
> Mr. Bickner commented on injuries to students and insurance costs.
>
> Mr. Hart commented on his concern for increasing taxes and the need for different activities for high school students.
>
> Mrs. Curtin commented on concern for the defeated referendum, the need to improve communication with the public and to support programs and opportunities for male and female athletes.
>
> Mrs. Morris commented on her son's interest in playing football and the importance of additional student opportunities.
>
> Mr. Ramsey commented on his concern for the safety of the neighbors' water, flooding, and traffic.
>
> • Mrs. Turner commented that the neighbors' concerns were discussed in detail during the Hopewell Township Planning Board review and approval of the Back Timberlane Athletic Field project.
> Mrs. Solomon commented on concerns for future costs of the instructional program due to anticipated student increases.

The public comment portion of the meeting was then closed, and a motion was made "to authorize the Administration to develop a contract with HIKE, to pursue interviews for a football coach, and prepare a CVC schedule for the Fall." The motion passed with all eight of the ten board members who were present voting in the affirmative. (P-2L at pp. 214-216.)

At the June 24, 2002, school board meeting, the following discussion occurred in closed session:

> Dr. Sopko reported that HIKE has indicated that they have raised $50,000, not the $72,000 budget estimate for the cost of the first year of a football program at Central High School. The budget difference is due in part to the services of a trainer and a five percent contingency fee included in the budget. He stated that he is > not sure what the true meaning of this is. HIKE and Mr. Murphy will continue to develop the projected budget as part of the formal agreement.

> Dr. Sopko also reported that we have interviewed some excellent coaching candidates but have been hampered in hiring them by not having an appropriate teaching position available. He reported that we would continue to work towards resolution of this problem.

In mid-July, 2002, the petition in this matter was filed with the Commissioner of Education by petitioners Arnone, Dutko and Bittner, and Ms. Mary Ellen E. Curtin, acting pro se, challenging the school district's attempt to thwart the will of the voters by proceeding with the football program, and seeking the Commissioner's intervention. By the next school board meeting on July 22, 2002, the school district attorney and HIKE had concluded drafting a grant agreement, and it was anticipated that the school board would take action to approve it at that meeting. Over one hundred members of the public were in attendance to observe the proceedings and voice their concerns (P-2P at p. 2). The petition was discussed by the school board and Mr. Martinez in closed session during the meeting. Mr. Martinez also reviewed with the school board at that time the final version of a Grant Agreement with HIKE, which the school board agreed to consider approving during the public portion of the meeting, notwithstanding the pending petition before the Commissioner (P-2P at p. 17).

The Grant Agreement (attached to P-5) identified HIKE as a Section 501(c) charitable gift giving organization "dedicated to the purpose of providing financial and/or material support of a high school football program within the Hopewell Valley Regional School District". The Agreement obligated HIKE to provide $69,044 in school year 2002-2003 and $68,350 in school year 2003-2004, should the school board determine to continue the program for a second season. Attached to the Grant Agreement was a line item budget for each of the two school years, ostensibly representing the entirety of all costs associated with the football program as had been represented in Dr. Sopko's "Game Plan" presentation at the May meeting.

Immediately after the closed session, the school board entertained the following motion:

Motion by Mr. Bruno, seconded by Mr. Hills, to accept the Grant Agreement between HIKE, Inc. and the Hopewell Valley School District, including the Grant Budget.

• Dr. Sopko reported that the agreement addresses the following:

- transportation to offsite fields
- part-time trainer
- stipend for coach
- cost for security and officials
- insurance
- 5% contingency

He stated that the agreement meets the standards established by the Administration and the Board committee. He also reported on the establishment of an advisory committee to evaluate the implementation of the football program.

Board members commented on the following football related issues:

- Divisive issue between the community and the Board
- Provides opportunities for additional student participation
- Supports the district's Strategic Plan
- Political mistake to ignore the results of the vote
- Negative impact to gain support for the needs of athletic fields
- Extensive dialog regarding pros and cons of the program
- Right decision for students
- Hard decision to choose in favor of students
- Low percent of registered voters
- Other items defeated in elections must be provided without electoral support
- The Board is not perfect, but needs to make decisions to support students.

The motion passed 9-1, and "Mrs. Kley, a HIKE member, presented the school board with a check in the amount of $69,044 for the 2002-2003 program."

Hopewell Valley fielded a freshman football team for the fall 2002 season, underwritten by HIKE's $69,044 grant funds. The school board's budget records as of November 25, 2002 (P-8), showed $54,725.45 of that amount had already been expended, with the expectation that the balance would be necessary for remaining expenses. As it turned out, the grant was insufficient to cover the entire cost of the program, and it was necessary for the school district to solicit an additional $270.20 from HIKE in January, 2003, to cover an anticipated charge from game officials (P-9, P-12). Petitioners point out that HIKE was under no legal obligation to contribute these funds to the school district.

Following the 2002 football season, the school board's Football Advisory Committee issued a report analyzing the school district's first year's experience with the program in terms of athletic, budgetary, academic, social and safety concerns (P-13). The report acknowledged the "controversy that football has brought to Hopewell Valley[,]" (P-13 at p. 6), but recommended continuation of the program. In a section of the report entitled "Actual Cost of Operating the Program", the committee made the following observations:

> The athletic director and members of Hike have met on several occasions this past fall to review the 2002 budget. After careful calculations, the budget that was proposed for 2002 was accurate, even with the 4 additional participants. If and when approval is given by the Board of Education, Hike and the athletic director will meet again to evaluate the 2003 budget. The committee has discussed the future of the program and the budgetary concerns that develop with any additional school programs. The committee agrees that building a football program involves much more than just building a football team. The question remains, "Are we ready to take a closer look at the funds involved in building a football program?"
> Some future considerations to the budget include:
>
> - Coaching Positions
> - Home/Away Uniforms for 2004
> - Editing System
> - Professional Development (clinics)
> - Added Equipment
> - Scoreboard
> - Storage for player and team equipment
> - Field Development for Varsity Status
> - Athletic Training Supplies (P-13. at p. 5)

On May 9, 2003, HIKE issued a certification to the school board accepting an adjusted football budget amount of $67,760.40, and representing its intention to pay that amount in full by July 1, 2003. (P-15) At its May 12, 2003 meeting, the school board adopted a resolution authorizing continuation of the football program for the 2003-2004 school year, contingent on receipt of the funds from HIKE by the date stated. (P-14)

At the hearing of this matter scheduled for May 27, 2003, petitioners' and respondent's exhibits were entered into evidence by stipulation without the necessity of formal proof or authentication. In addition, it was stipulated by petitioners that there is no Title IX issue in this matter.

The sole witness to testify at the hearing was John Nemeth, Board Secretary/Clerk for respondent. He testified that he reviewed his deposition taken on November 25, 2002 (P-19) and it is accurate.

Mr. Nemeth identified the district budget expenditure report for fiscal year 2003 (P-16) and the encumbrance and expense ledger by account code for the period of July 1, 2002 (P-17). He identified special revenue funds consisting of a HIKE grant as Fund No. 20 (P-16). These documents (P-16 and P-17) are the final expenditure reports for fiscal year 2003. He admitted that there are other expenditures which are not reflected in these documents. For example, prior to the football season there is administrative time and other unallocated expenditures. There is also an expenditure of $2,100 in legal fees. Not included in these expenditure costs are energy costs, such as lighting costs and other costs such as supplies. He also identified vouchers from the school board attorney reflecting time spent by the attorney regarding the football program (P-3, P-4).

Mr. Nemeth identified the resolution and grant agreement with respect to the HIKE grant (P-14) and HIKE's acceptance of the grant agreement (P-15). His understanding as to years 3 and 4 is that the HIKE grant would not cover all expenditures for the football program. He indicated that each year is separate, but in year 3, HIKE would be responsible for 75% of the expenditures relating to the football program and the school district would be responsible for 25%. In year 4, the responsibility would be shared 50% each by HIKE and the school district. It is up to future boards, to determine the percentage of increase.

Mr. Nemeth identified Public Question No. 3 contained on the school election ballot of April 17, 2001 (P-6). He also identified the feasibility study that was referred to in this public question (P-10). H explained that there were a number of public sessions on the feasibility study and this was the plan presented to the public. He explained that this was a concept. There was also a game plan (P-7), but he is not sure if this was presented to the public before or after the referendum.

Mr. Nemeth testified that for the 2003 football season, there were extra expenses totaling $270 which exceeded the budget and the amount provided by HIKE. HIKE paid this additional amount and, for the next year, he feels that HIKE would be obligated for any overexpenditures. He admitted that in year 4 the plan is for the board to pay 25% of the cost of the football program.

On cross-examination, Mr. Nemeth testified that the ballot question (P-6) applied to fiscal year 2001-2002 only. This ballot question was defeated and the board did nothing to implement football in that school year. He admitted that there were indirect or unallocated expenditures for football in the 2001-2002 school year. During that year, there was consideration of inclusion of football for 2002-2003. The board did not include any funds for football in the 2001-2002 proposed budget because the issue was raised, but rejected. It was in 2002 that HIKE approached the board to fund football and Dr. Sopko presented a four-year plan on May 13, 2002. The board did not adopt this game plan and eventually the board held HIKE to a two-year commitment. The board reserved the right to evaluate the program every year and has conducted a program evaluation. He identified this evaluation (P-13) and indicated that there was an enthusiastic favorable recommendation.

Mr. Nemeth testified that as of the date of the hearing there is no board of education obligation to run a football program in the school year 2004-2005. There is nothing in the agreement between the board and HIKE, which covers the 2004-2005 school year.

On redirect examination, Mr. Nemeth indicated that in 2002 the high school football team played on a municipal field. There were no payments by the board of education to the municipality and no funds were expended for this purpose. For the 2003 school year, the same municipal field was used. He did indicate there was a cost for field maintenance of $700 (P-14, exhibit B). For the 2004 school year there were no plans for separate fields, and it is his understanding that the municipal field would be available.

LEGAL DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS

New Jersey school districts are permitted to place on the ballot at their annual school elections "separate proposals" for general fund tax levies over and above their adjusted spending growth limitations in order to fund specific programs not strictly necessary to meet their minimum legal mandate. See N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-5(d) (9). Any such proposal rejected by the voters is to be submitted to the governing body for a determination as to the amount, if any, that should be expended notwithstanding voter rejection, and the governing body's decision is final and unappealable. Id.

In the event that a separate proposal is defeated by the voters, the district is prohibited from using any of its funds for the purpose identified in the rejected proposal, except as provided by N.J.A.C. 6A:23-8.5(j). This provision states:

> Purposes for amounts not restored by the municipal governing body or bodies after rejection by the local voters may be implemented in the budget year through a donation or contribution from an external source, other than the district board of education, only if such implementation will not require funding by the district board of education in subsequent budget years.

The issue in this matter, as identified by attorney for petitioners, is whether the school board's actions contravened this regulation, or were otherwise arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable.

For purposes of identifying the precise legal issues in this matter, I will attempt to summarize the legal arguments of the parties.

Petitioners' legal position

Attorney for petitioner argues that in interpreting a statute, the Commissioner must look to the fundamental purpose for which it was enacted and its meaning is to be gathered from the mischief to be eliminated as well as the proposed remedy. Petitioners assert that it is clear that during the 2001-2002 school year, the Board expended funds to "implement" the "purposes of the defeated question." It acknowledges while a football team did not take to the practice field until the following school year, respondent has conceded that at least $2,100 in counsel fees were expended prior to the end of the 2001-2002 school year perfecting the HIKE grant agreement (P-1, at pp.1-2). Mr. Nemeth, the school district clerk/administrator also testified that in addition to the legal fees, an indeterminate amount of administrative time, resources and overhead were devoted to this question. Petitioners argue that these activities corresponded to one of the alternatives in the feasibility study (P-10 at p. 30).

Petitioners argue that if respondent takes the position that if school board expenditures were slight and that the Board remains free to discontinue the program in the future, that these are literalisms and technisms the Supreme Court had in mind in its decision in Jersey City Chapter of Property Owner's etc. Ass'n v. City Council, 55 N.J. 86, 101 (1969), and would serve to obscure the common sense of the situation.

Petitioner contends that the fact that respondent may have spent only a small amount of its funds in the 2001-2002 school year in furtherance of the football program is not dispositive and that it is a violation to take any steps to "implement" a "purpose" which has been disapproved at the polls. Petitioners contend that a good portion of the 2001-2002 school year was devoted to planning, discussing and otherwise laying the ground work in furtherance of the "purpose" which the voters voted against.

Petitioners also argue that HIKE's two-year funding commitment will "require funding by the district Board of Education in subsequent budget years." It argues that this is a violation of N.J.A.C. 6A:23-8.5(j) which prohibits implementing a rejected program through a donation or contribution from an external source if such implementation will require funding by the district board of education in subsequent budget years. It argues that the regulation should not be interpreted to interpret the word "require" to mean an enforceable legal duty, but that it should be accorded its everyday meaning in ordinary conversation. Petitioners point out that the Grant Agreement (P-5) only obligates HIKE to provide total funding in the first two years, and that in the third and fourth years, the school district is required to provide funding for the continuation of the program. In addition, even if these funding levels are minimal, increased funding will be necessary in the future for a proper football program.

Petitioners argue that the intent of N.J.A.C. 6A:23-8.5(j) is that when the voters disapprove a program by referendum, that program is off the table for a reasonable amount of time to the extent that any school district funds are involved, absent a compelling and material change in circumstances. Petitioners rely on Durgin v. Brown, 37 N.J. 189, 197-198 (1962). In that case, a referendum to fund a school construction project passed, but the school board determined not to move forward with the project. The Supreme Court ruled that the school board had no right to disobey the will of the voters absent extraordinary circumstances. Petitioners argue that in the present matter, the school district has embarked upon an obvious course of frustration of the will of the voters of the school district.

Petitioners contend that the appropriate remedy in this matter and one which balances the equities involved, is the suggestion that the school board be compelled to place the public question on the ballot in the April 2004 school election seeking the sentiments of the voters on whether to continue the football program with school district funds.

Respondent's legal position

Respondent denies petitioners' assertions that it took steps during the 2001-2002 to implement a football program. It points out that there is no mention of the football program until November 2001, and no activity relating to football until the school board meeting of April 23, 2002 when a new ad hoc football committee was formed to deal with a grant proposal from HIKE. Thus, respondent contends that it did absolutely nothing about implementing a football program until the possibility of a grant was raised. In May 2002, the new school board identified football as a critical issue but did not indicate that it would be implementing football as a goal for the year. At the May 13, 2002 school board meeting, the board received legal advice and at the May 16, 2002 special meeting, the board authorized a grant agreement to be developed. On July 22, 2002, the board approved the grant agreement.

Respondent refers to the Durgin case and contends that the Supreme Court established the general rule that a school board may not abandon a referendum project in its entirety unless extraordinary and unexpected circumstances nullified the premise upon which the vote was taken. Respondent relies upon a number of other court cases which establish that a board of education has an ongoing power and duty to consider changed circumstances justifying reconsideration. Respondent also points out and emphasizes that these cases have developed in disputes involving major capital projects previously approved by referendum and, specifically, the application and use or non-use of public funds authorized and raised by referendum. Respondent argues that none of these cases involve the question whether the same principles should apply to annual decisions to accept grants to fund a program that was, in one fiscal year, not funded by local taxation.

Respondent asserts that the negative vote on the referendum question did not bar the school board from discussing the possibility of implementing football in future years, or bar it from paying for legal advice, or even bar meetings to listen to public debate on the subject. Respondent contends that this prior restraint of public discussion is inappropriate.

Respondent also argues that N.J.A.C. 6A:23-8.5(j) likewise does not forever bar respondent from accepting private funds to run a sport program because at some future time such programs could become a tax burden. Respondent also points out that the grant agreement accepted by the school district contained unequivocal language that nothing in the agreement obligates the school district to continue the program, and that any such continuation is subject to approval of the future board according to law. The 2003-2004 school board continue the program for that year by accepting the second year of the grant on the same terms as the original grant. Respondent contends that nothing in these documents creates any legal, moral or other right or entitlement, nor any reasonable expectation that the program would be extended beyond the 2003-2004 school year. Respondent points out that the result of petitioners' argument is that any program established using grant funds would violate the regulation if such a program "could" become a candidate for future tax-based funding. Respondent contends that the language of the regulation means exactly what it says, that is, presently incurring a future obligation to fund something is not permissible.

Respondent argues that the regulation was not intended to extend the legal reach of failed proposals beyond the reasonable limits of its terms. In this case, the regulation deals with a simple budgetary issue.

Finally, the respondent argues that if Durgin applied, the sudden availability of private funds, a circumstance not known to the voters in the April referendum, is a material change of circumstance. Thus, under Durgin, supervening events may justify a policy change.

Analysis

The critical issue in this matter is the legal effect of the defeat of Public Question No. 3 on respondent's April 17, 2001 school district annual school election ballot. Public Question No. 3 asked the voters to decide whether there should be raised additional sums of money for general funds in the school year 2001-2002 to be used exclusively for a number of items, including a new freshman football team for Central High School. The amount allocated for this particular program and purpose was stated to be $53,500. This allocation was stated to be the first year's cost for the program. In the vote on this question, a majority voted against this resolution.

As with any public question on a referendum, the legal effect of the decision of the electorate is limited to the question on the ballot. In perusing Public Question No. 3, it is clear that the electorate of the school district decided against raising any additional funds, including $53,500 for a new freshman football team for Central High School, during school year 2001-2002.

Petitioners argue that the legal effect of this vote should extend beyond the specific terms of the public question. Their legal position is based on the provisions of N.J.A.C. 6A:23-8.5(j) and the holding in Durgin v. Brown, supra, 37 N.J. 189.

I disagree with petitioners' position. First of all, N.J.A.C. 6A:23-8.5(j) sets forth an exception to the general rule that proposed expenditures which are rejected by local voters may not be restored to the budget pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:23-8.9. The exception set forth in subparagraph (j) of this regulation permits the implementation of rejected purposes in that same budget year if the funding source is a donation or contribution from an external source. However, this section makes it clear that this may be done only if such implementation will not require funding by the district board of education in subsequent budget years. Thus, under the terms of this subsection, respondent could have implemented a football program at Central High School within the 2001-2002 school year through a donation from an external source provided that the school district was not required to fund the football program in subsequent budget years. Since that is clearly not the situation in the present matter, I FIND that the provisions of N.J.A.C. 6A:23-8.5(j) have no applicability in the present matter.

Even if the provisions of N.J.A.C. 6A:23-8.5(j) are deemed to be applicable to the present situation, it is also clear that by the terms of the Hike, Inc., grant agreement, respondent has no legal obligation to fund the football program in future years. Obviously, if a future board of education desires to continue the football program in the future, it may be required to fund it if no benefactor comes forward with the necessary funds. However, that future board is under no legal obligation which may be found in the record in this matter to include such funding in a future school district budget. Therefore, I FIND that petitioners have not established any violation of the provisions of N.J.A.C. 6A:23-8.5(j) so as to invalidate respondent's actions with respect to the Hike, Inc., grant agreement.

I also disagree with petitioners' reliance on the Durgin case. In Durgin, the school board adopted a proposal to build new schools, the cost of which was to be financed by a bond issue. Under the statutory provisions applicable to such a proposal, the school board exercised its power to deal with the problem of classroom space by adopting a specific plan. Necessary consents regarding debt limitations were then obtained from the State Commissioner of Education and Local Government Board. The specific plan was then placed on the school ballot and received the voters' stamp of approval. The Supreme Court held that under these circumstances, the Legislature committed the final judgment on this plan to the voters and ordered the school board to carry out the proposal approved by the referendum vote.

The facts in Durgin differ significantly from those in the present matter. In Durgin, the voters approved a plan which was to be implemented over a period of years. In the present matter, Public Question No. 3 called upon the voters to decide whether to spend a specific amount of money within a specific school year. By its very terms, the proposal in Durgin extended well beyond a specific school year. In the present matter, Public Question No. 3 was limited to a specific school year. Thus, the holding in Durgin is clearly distinguishable from that in the present matter.

Petitioners assert that it is clear that during the 2001-2002 school year, the school board expended funds to "implement" the "purposes of the defeated question." Petitioners acknowledge that while a football team did not take to the practice field until the following school year, at least $2,100 in counsel fees were expended prior to the end of the 2001-2002 school year perfecting the HIKE grant agreement (P-1, at pp. 1-2). In addition, an indeterminate amount of administrative time, resources and overhead were devoted to this question. Petitioner contends that it is a violation to take any steps to "implement" a "purpose" that has been disapproved at the polls.

It bears repeating that the defeated question resolved that there should be raised an additional $74,027 for general funds in the 2001-2002 school year, $53,500 of these [funds] to be used exclusively for an extra-curricular program at Central High School consisting of a new freshman football team. It is clear to me from the record in this matter that the $2,100 in counsel fees expended prior to the end of the 2001-2002 school year involved legal services perfecting the HIKE grant agreement (P-1, at pp. 1-2). I FIND that the Hike grant agreement, by its very terms, did not implement an extra-curricular program at Central High School consisting of a new freshman football team in the 2001-2002 school year. In addition, I FIND that the administrative time, resources and overhead which may have been expended in the 2001-2002 school year also did not implement an extra-curricular program at Central High School consisting of a new freshman football team in the 2001-2002 school year. I FIND that the aforesaid legal services and resulting legal fees, the administrative time, resources and overhead which were expended in the 2001-2002 school year perfecting the HIKE grant agreement, were for the purpose of implementing an extra-curricular program at Central High School consisting football team in the 2002-2003 school year. I CONCLUDE that this did not violate the defeated Public Question No. 3. since it was only applicable, by its terms, to the 2001-2002 school year.

DECISION AND ORDER

For the reasons stated above, I FIND that respondent's actions do not contravene the results of a public vote taken on April 17, 2001, on a proposal to fund football in the school district's 2001-2002 budget. Therefore, it is hereby ORDERED that petitioner's petition is hereby DENIED and DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Petitioners' exceptions and the Board's reply thereto were filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Petitioners' exceptions essentially recast and reiterate arguments advanced before the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) below. In that it is determined that such arguments were fully considered and addressed in the Initial Decision, they will not be revisited herein.

Upon his full and independent consideration of the record, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that the Board's actions herein were not violative of the results of the public vote taken on April 17, 2001 with respect to the proposal to fund a football program in the District's 2001-02 budget.

Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL is adopted for the reasons clearly articulated therein and the instant Petition of Appeal is hereby dismissed.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF ANTOINETTE CLIFTON, SCHOOL DISTRICT OF ORANGE TOWNSHIP, ESSEX COUNTY.

Marvin L. Comick, Esq., for the School District of Orange Township
(Love and Randall, attorneys)

Gail Oxfeld Kanef, Esq., for Antoinette Clifton
(Oxfeld, Cohen, attorneys)

Record Closed: November 14, 2003 Decided: December 2, 2003

BEFORE RICHARD McGILL, ALJ:

The School District of Orange Township filed charges of incapacity and excessive absenteeism against Antoinette Clifton (respondent), whom it employs as a tenured administrative secretary. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on June 27, 2003, for determination as a contested case.

On the hearing day, the parties agreed to an amicable resolution of the matter and subsequently submitted a written Stipulation of Settlement. The terms thereof satisfactorily address the standards set forth in N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6 concerning settlement of tenure charges. The main provision of the settlement is that respondent will resign in good standing from her tenured position of administrative secretary. In addition to signing the Stipulation of Settlement, respondent stated on the record that she understood the settlement agreement and that she entered into it voluntarily. The settlement is in the public interest in that it allows both parties to move forward with certainty regarding their status and relationship and avoid the cost and delay of protracted litigation and possible appeals.

Having reviewed the record and the settlement terms, I FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures or the signatures of their representatives.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. Accordingly, it is ORDERED that the parties comply with the settlement terms, and it is FURTHER ORDERED that the proceedings in this matter be concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

PETITIONER,	:

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BRIDGEWATER-RARITAN REGIONAL SCHOOL DISTRICT, SOMERSET COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Exceptions were submitted by petitioners in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 and were duly considered by the Commissioner in reaching his determination herein.

In their exceptions, petitioners object to the dismissal of their petition and request that the matter be remanded for a trial before another Administrative Law Judge (ALJ). (Exceptions at 1 and 4) Moreover, petitioners accuse the ALJ and the Board's counsel in this matter of numerous violations of alleged unethical conduct (Id. at 1-3), and request the Commissioner to investigate "the treacherous actions of how this decision was unlawfully malfeasance orchestrated (sic)" by the ALJ and the Board's counsel. (Id. at 4)

Initially, with respect to petitioners' request that the Commissioner investigate alleged unethical conduct by the ALJ and the Board's counsel, the Commissioner does not have jurisdiction to entertain this request. To the extent that petitioners seek an investigation of the conduct by the ALJ and the Board's counsel in this matter, such requests are appropriately directed to the Director of the OAL, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:31-3.1 et seq., and/or the Office of Attorney Ethics.

Turning next to the question of whether this matter should be remanded for hearing, as petitioners assert, it is noted that this matter was filed on February 7, 2003 as an emergent relief petition. Therein, petitioners sought to stay a five-day school bus suspension until the merits of their challenge to the Board's decision to impose a five-day suspension on their son could be heard. By letter of February 14, 2003, the Board notified the ALJ that the District "will agree to voluntarily stay the 5 day bus suspension, thereby obviating any hearing on the stay motion." (Board's letter, dated February 14, 2003) Subsequently, by letter of October 30, 2003, the Board notified the ALJ that the Board had: 1) nullified the five-day bus suspension, which is the subject of the petition in this matter; 2) removed all reports and other documentation underlying the five-day bus suspension from N.T.'s file; 3) withdrawn all unresolved disciplinary matters involving N.T. during the 2002-03 school year; and 4) removed all reports and other documentation underlying any and all unresolved disciplinary matters during the 2002-03 school year from N.T.'s file. (Board's Letter, dated October 30, 2003) By letter of November 25, 2003, the Board, referring to its October 30 letter summarized above, moved to dismiss the petition in this matter as moot.

Accordingly, upon careful and independent review of the record, the Commissioner finds that a hearing in this matter is not required and agrees with the conclusion of the ALJ that this matter is moot in that the Board has granted petitioners the relief requested in their petition, i.e., the Board voluntarily stayed the bus suspension imposed on N.T. and, subsequently, nullified the suspension and removed all documentation underlying the bus suspension from N.T.'s file. Therefore, the Initial Decision is adopted for the reasons expressed therein and the petition is dismissed with prejudice.

IT IS SO ORDERED.*

Dear Counsel:

I have reviewed the Application for Emergent Relief and underlying papers filed on January 21, 2004 in the matter entitled Board of Education of the Borough of Lincoln Park, Morris County, v. Borough of Lincoln Park, Morris County, Agency Dkt. No. 20-1/04, wherein the Board seeks an Order voiding the March 6, 1998 Lease Agreement between it and the Borough, so that Lanes Field will be returned to the Board to be used as the site for construction of a new school. In its papers, the Board argues that the lease must be found void ab initio because it was not properly approved pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:20-8.2(b), and that relief must be immediate because a new school will be needed to educate the children of Lincoln Park upon the impending severance of the district's current sending-receiving relationship with Boonton. I have further reviewed the responsive papers submitted by the Borough, wherein it is argued that I do not have jurisdiction over this matter, that the lease in question did not require approval pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:20-8.2(b), and that emergent relief is not warranted in any event.

Upon such review, I have first determined to deny the Board's request for emergent relief. Even assuming, arguendo, that I have jurisdiction to hear the underlying appeal, the Board's application clearly fails to meet the standard established pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6 and Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982), wherein an applicant for such relief must demonstrate irreparable harm, settled legal rights, a likelihood of prevailing on the merits, and a balancing of equities and interests in its favor. In this matter, the Board's application is premised in its entirety on the assumption that I will grant Boonton's request for severance, now pending before me as Board of Education of the Town of Boonton, Morris County, v. Board of Education of the Borough of Lincoln Park, Morris County, Agency Dkt. No. 251-8/02, and, further, that such grant will be conditioned on immediate construction of a new school. Neither of these assertions can be viewed as anything but speculative in light of the present posture of the severance request, which is still open for public comment pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-6.1 and must yet be reviewed by me under the standards of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-13. Additionally, as the Borough's submission makes clear, threshold legal issues arising from the Board's claim are far from settled.

As to the underlying appeal, I have determined that the Borough's Cross-Motion to Dismiss Petition and Application for Emergent Relief shall be deemed a motion to dismiss in lieu of answer, filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.5(g), and that this matter shall forthwith be transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for hearing and disposition of the Borough's motion and such further proceedings as may be appropriate thereafter.

Accordingly, the Board's request for emergent relief is DENIED and the petition on the merits shall proceed at the OAL as set forth above.

Sincerely,

William L. Librera, Ed.D.

Petitioner,

v.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BRIDGEWATER-RARITAN REGIONAL SCHOOL DISTRICT, SOMERSET COUNTY,

Respondent.

D.T. and M.T., petitioners, pro se
Daniel Soriano, Esq., for respondent

Record Closed: December 1, 2003 Decided: December 3, 2003

BEFORE STEVEN C. REBACK, ALJ:

This matter arose as a result of the petitioners' challenge of respondents' decision to uphold a five-day bus suspension for their son effective commencing February 10, 2003. The matter was essentially nullified by letter of October 30, 2003 submitted by counsel for the Board. He notes that the Board has "nullified the five-day suspension" and is also noted "any and all unresolved disciplinary matters involving N.T. which arose during the 2002-2003 school year ending June 30, 2003 have been withdrawn by the school district, and all reports and other documentation underlying these matters shall be removed from N.T.'s file." Letter from Daniel C. Soriano, Jr., October 30, 2003.

As a result of the foregoing, I met with the parties and counsel on September 26, 2003 and, as a result of in camera conferences and placing the matter on the record, irrespective of my clear explanation to D.T. that once the matter has been withdrawn there is nothing pending before OAL, the petitioner's father has failed to submit any letter of withdrawal. This was reaffirmed because on November 14, 2003, I wrote him another letter advising him that the appeal was over and OAL no longer retained jurisdiction.

In lieu of any withdrawal and contrary to what I advised him, D.T., rather than submitting any withdrawal, on or about December 1, 2003, submitted a number of motions (including among those was a motion seeking my disqualification based on bias and a "secretive ex parte communication with respondent." The above assertion is false. Irrespective of those motions and rather than pursue the matter any further, I am entertaining the motion submitted by Mr. Soriano to dismiss the matter as moot pursuant to his letter motion of November 25, 2003. There is nothing pending before me regarding any appeals of D.T. and M.T. on behalf of their minor child. All matters concerning disciplinary actions taken against N.T. for the 2002-2003 school year have been withdrawn. While D.T. asserts that there may be another appeal "coming to" the OAL concerning a disciplinary action taken for the school year 2003-2004, that matter to the best of my knowledge has not been transmitted to the OAL nor has it been transmitted to my office. Accordingly and based upon the foregoing, the above-entitled matter be and is hereby DISMISSED with prejudice as moot. In the event that the matter referred to by D.T. involving a subsequent disciplinary action in this school year (2003-2004) is transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law, and in the event that it is transmitted to my office, I shall entertain any motion instituted on his behalf in good faith which relates directly to that appeal.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Exceptions were submitted by petitioners in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 and were duly considered by the Commissioner in reaching his determination herein.

In their exceptions, petitioners object to the dismissal of their petition and request that the matter be remanded for a trial before another Administrative Law Judge (ALJ). (Exceptions at 1 and 4) Moreover, petitioners accuse the ALJ and the Board's counsel in this matter of numerous violations of alleged unethical conduct (Id. at 1-3), and request the Commissioner to investigate "the treacherous actions of how this decision was unlawfully malfeasance orchestrated (sic)" by the ALJ and the Board's counsel. (Id. at 4)

Initially, with respect to petitioners' request that the Commissioner investigate alleged unethical conduct by the ALJ and the Board's counsel, the Commissioner does not have jurisdiction to entertain this request. To the extent that petitioners seek an investigation of the conduct by the ALJ and the Board's counsel in this matter, such requests are appropriately directed to the Director of the OAL, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:31-3.1 et seq., and/or the Office of Attorney Ethics.

Turning next to the question of whether this matter should be remanded for hearing, as petitioners assert, it is noted that this matter was filed on February 7, 2003 as an emergent relief petition. Therein, petitioners sought to stay a five-day school bus suspension until the merits of their challenge to the Board's decision to impose a five-day suspension on their son could be heard. By letter of February 14, 2003, the Board notified the ALJ that the District "will agree to voluntarily stay the 5 day bus suspension, thereby obviating any hearing on the stay motion." (Board's letter, dated February 14, 2003) Subsequently, by letter of October 30, 2003, the Board notified the ALJ that the Board had: 1) nullified the five-day bus suspension, which is the subject of the petition in this matter; 2) removed all reports and other documentation underlying the five-day bus suspension from N.T.'s file; 3) withdrawn all unresolved disciplinary matters involving N.T. during the 2002-03 school year; and 4) removed all reports and other documentation underlying any and all unresolved disciplinary matters during the 2002-03 school year from N.T.'s file. (Board's Letter, dated October 30, 2003) By letter of November 25, 2003, the Board, referring to its October 30 letter summarized above, moved to dismiss the petition in this matter as moot.

Accordingly, upon careful and independent review of the record, the Commissioner finds that a hearing in this matter is not required and agrees with the conclusion of the ALJ that this matter is moot in that the Board has granted petitioners the relief requested in their petition, i.e., the Board voluntarily stayed the bus suspension imposed on N.T. and, subsequently, nullified the suspension and removed all documentation underlying the bus suspension from N.T.'s file. Therefore, the Initial Decision is adopted for the reasons expressed therein and the petition is dismissed with prejudice.

Martin M. Barger, Esq., for respondent

BEFORE JOSEPH F. MARTONE, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

In this matter, petitioner seeks emergent relief to stay the expulsion of her daughter from school for allegedly assaulting a teacher. Petitioner submitted a petition to the Commissioner of Education, dated January 9, 2004, seeking relief in this matter. The matter was transmitted without an answer to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for hearing as a contested case on January 12, 2004. The matter was scheduled oral argument on January 16, 2004. On that date, oral argument was held and some limited testimony was taken. At the conclusion of the hearing, the record closed with respect to the application for emergent relief.

For purposes of deciding the application for emergent relief, the following facts are determined to be undisputed.

O.N. is in her junior year at Monmouth Regional High School. Her parents indicated that they moved to the area in August 2003. O.N. has a twin sister who also attends Monmouth Regional High School.

It is undisputed that on December 18, 2003, O.N. was involved in an altercation with one or more other students. Once the altercation broke out, Mr. Teeple, who is the Principal, grabbed O.N.'s twin sister, A.N., and a gym teacher, Mr. Pingitore, who was facing O.N., grabbed her by the arms in an effort to restrain her. The parents contend that Mr. Pingitore used excessive force in holding O.N.'s arms, and was hurting her, thus compelling O.N. to flail her arms in an attempt to break free from his grip. As a result of this flailing action, O.N. struck Mr. Pingitore. The parents contend that this striking was inadvertent, and that Mr. Pingitore acknowledges that it was an accident and not intentional.

The parents contend that they met with Principal Teeple, Assistant Principal Nagle, and Mr. Pingitore, and that the Principal decided to impose a 10-day suspension for this incident. They also contend that O.N. apologized to the teacher and that the teacher and O.N. shook hands.

The parents contend that what occurred next was that the school district's Board of Education became aware of this matter, and became angry that only a 10-day suspension was imposed on O.N. for this incident. Thus, a notice was issued to the parents that a hearing before the Board of Education was scheduled for January 6, 2004, to consider the suspension or expulsion of O.N.

The parents contend that at the hearing before the Board, the teacher expressed that he did not believe that O.N. intentionally struck him. They also indicated that the Principal and Vice-Principal did not think it was intentional. They claim that the Board of Education heard that there was no intentional assault. However, the Board decided that if a student touches a teacher, it is an assault. The parents contend that there was no assault in this matter. They point out that after the incident, a police officer stationed in the high school took O.N. by the hand to calm her down. They contend that this incident was a mishap and O.N. was simply trying to get loose from the teacher's excessive force in gripping her and that she flailed her arms trying to get loose. They contend that based on the definition of an assault that there must be intent to harm. However, O.N. did not intend to harm the teacher.

Mr. Barger, attorney for respondent, asserts that the testimony before the Board of Education was to the effect that the teacher was struck by O.N. when she was being restrained from engaging in an altercation with other students, and that in resisting his efforts to hold her, she struck the teacher. He indicated that the policy of the Board of Education is zero tolerance for striking a teacher. He represented that at the hearing the testimony was to the effect that the two students repeatedly struck the teacher, and that they had both been expelled.

Mr. Barger indicated that the school district is aware of the Bergenfield decision and has offered to O.N. Monmouth Adult School where, if she completes the course of study, she will be given a diploma from Monmouth Regional High School.

The parents contend that adult school is not the same as a high school and it is a four-hour per week self-learning program. It is does not have a high school atmosphere. People attend it in order to get a GED degree. There is no high school atmosphere and O.N. will completely miss out on the high school experience.

N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.6(a) provides for the granting of emergency relief where authorized by law and where irreparable harm will result without an expedited decision granting or prohibiting some action or relief connected with a contested case. In such circumstances, emergency relief pending a final decision may be ordered upon the application of a party. Subparagraph (f) of this section provides that temporary relief may be granted if there is a finding that immediate and irreparable harm will probably result, if there is the likelihood that the moving party will prevail, and if the relief is as limited in scope and as temporary as possible.

The foregoing regulation embodies the principles of law announced by the court in Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126, 132- (1982). These legal principles may may be summarized as follows:

1. Emergency relief should not issue except when necessary to prevent irreparable harm. Harm is generally considered irreparable if it cannot be redressed adequately by monetary damages. In certain circumstances, severe personal inconvenience can constitute irreparable injury justifying issuance of injunctive relief. Pecuniary damages may be inadequate because of the nature of the injury or of the right affected.

2. Emergency relief should be withheld when the legal right underlying the claim of the requesting party is unsettled.

3. Emergency relief should not issue where all material facts are controverted. Thus, to prevail on an application for emergency relief, the party requesting the relief must make a preliminary showing of a reasonable probability of ultimate success on the merits. That requirement is tempered by the principle that mere doubt as to the validity of the claim is not an adequate basis for refusing to maintain the status quo. The point of emergency relief is to maintain the parties in substantially the same condition when the final decision is issued, as they were when the litigation began.

4. The final test in considering the granting of emergency relief is the relative hardship to the parties in granting or denying relief. The relief granted should be no broader than necessary to preserve the status quo pending a full hearing on the merits.

In the present matter, as to the first requirement for a showing of irreparable harm, as I stated at the hearing, the loss of educational opportunity consisting of a high school education, together with the social benefits of attending high school and the hands-on teaching of a student by high school teachers is irreparable, in my opinion. The loss of the high school experience cannot be redressed adequately by any monetary damages. It is clear to me that expulsion from the high school environment and the loss of the opportunity to experience a high school education satisfies the requirement for a showing of irreparable harm, if there is insufficient justification for such expulsion.

With respect to the requirement that the right underlying the claim of a requesting party must be settled, it is clear to me that it cannot be disputed that if expulsion is not justified and appropriate under the circumstances, petitioner's legal right underlying the claim is settled.

As was indicated at the hearing in this matter, the most difficult requirement for the moving party to establish is the third factor. In order to prevail on their application for emergency relief, the party requesting the relief, the parents in this matter, must make a preliminary showing of a reasonable probability of ultimate success on the merits. If the point of emergency relief is to maintain the parties in substantially the same condition of the final decision as when this matter began, it must be established by the moving parties that they will probably win on the merits. It is with respect to this that petitioners have the greatest difficulty.

N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.1 provides for the suspension or expulsion of a pupil for assault and provides:

> a. Any pupil who commits an assault, as defined pursuant to N.J.S. 2C:12-1, upon a teacher, administrator, board member or other employee of a board of education, acting in the performance of his duties and in a situation where his authority to so act is apparent, or as a result of the victim's relationship to an institution of public education of this State, not involving the use of a weapon or firearm, shall be immediately suspended from school consistent with procedural due process pending suspension or expulsion proceedings before the local board of education. Said proceedings shall take place no later than 30 calendar days following the day on which the pupil is suspended. The decision of the board shall be made within five days after the close of the hearing. Any appeal of the board's decision shall be made to the Commissioner of Education within 90 days of the board's decision. The provisions herein shall be construed in a manner consistent with 20 U.S.C. s.1400 et seq.

b. Whenever a teacher, administrator, board member, other employee of a board of education or a labor representative on behalf of an employee makes an allegation in writing that the board member or employee has been assaulted by a pupil, the principal shall file a written report of the alleged assault with the district's superintendent of schools. The superintendent to whom the alleged assault is reported or, if there is no superintendent in the district, the principal who received the allegation from the board member, employee, or labor representative shall report the alleged assault to the board of education of the district at its next regular meeting; provided that the name of the pupil who allegedly committed the assault, although it may be disclosed to the members of the board of education, shall be kept confidential at the public board of education meeting.

Any person who fails to file a report of an alleged assault as required pursuant to this subsection may be liable to disciplinary action by the board of education of the district.

N.J.S.A. 2C:12-1, which is referred to above, sets forth the definition of assault as follows:

A person is guilty of assault if he:

(1) Attempts to cause or purposely, knowingly or recklessly causes bodily injury to another; or

(2) Negligently causes bodily injury to another with a deadly weapon; or

(3) Attempts by physical menace to put another in fear of imminent serious bodily injury.

In the present matter, it is undisputed that O.N. was involved in an altercation with another student. This is acknowledged by the parents in the papers they submitted with their petition. It is also undisputed that a teacher, acting in the performance of his duties, and in a situation where his authority was apparent, stepped in and attempted to restrain O.N. during this altercation. The parents contend that the teacher's use of force was excessive and that in an attempt to get away from the excessive use of force by the teacher, O.N. flailed her arms and accidentally struck the teacher. N.J.S.A. 2C:12-1 provides that a person is guilty of assault if he (or she) attempts to cause or purposely, knowingly, or recklessly causes bodily injury to another.

In the present matter, there is no dispute that a teacher was struck by the flailing arms of O.N. There is also no dispute that O.N.'s flailing of her arms was for the purpose of escaping the actions of the teacher in restraining her from continuing to engage in an altercation with other students. Even if it is accepted that O.N.'s striking of the teacher was unintentional, O.N.'s actions in flailing her arms could be viewed as being reckless since she flailed about without considering that someone might be struck. Even accepting the parents' self-serving description of the incident, it is clear that the Board of Education could have made the finding that O.N. was guilty of assaulting the teacher. Since the actions of the Board are entitled to a presumption of validity, and since the Board could have made a finding that O.N. was guilty of assaulting the teacher, I FIND that the petitioners herein have failed to make a preliminary showing of a reasonable probability of ultimate success on the merits.

The final test in determining whether to grant or deny emergency relief is the relative hardship to the parties in doing so. Certainly, it is a greater hardship to petitioners to have O.N. miss a substantial period of her high school career than it is to the school district to have O.N. attend classes, and I so FIND.

Despite my positive findings with respect to three of the factors to be considered in determining whether to grant emergency relief, I FIND that the petitioners have failed to establish their entitlement to such emergency relief. I FIND that they have failed to establish that there is a reasonable probability of their ultimate success on the merits of this matter. Therefore, their request for emergency relief is hereby DENIED.

ORDER

Based upon the foregoing, it is hereby ORDERED that petitioner's request for emergency relief seeking to have her daughter O.N. reinstated at Monmouth Regional High School is hereby DENIED. It is further ORDERED that the matter is hereby scheduled for a full hearing to be held on March 30, 2004, commencing at 9:00 am at the OAL, 9 Quakerbridge Plaza, Trenton, New Jersey.

This order on application for emergency relief may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION who/which by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The final decision shall be issued without undue delay, but no later than forty-five (45) days following the entry of this order. If the COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION does not adopt, modify or reject this order within forty-five (45) days, this recommended order shall become a final decision on the issue of emergent relief in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

The record of this emergent matter, which included an audiotape of the hearing conducted at the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on January 16, 2004, and the Order of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) have been reviewed.

Upon such review, the Commissioner determines to adopt the ALJ's Order denying emergent relief in this matter as he concurs with the ALJ that petitioner has not satisfied the requisite standards for the granting of such relief pursuant to Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982).

Notwithstanding that the Commissioner is compelled to deny petitioner's emergent application requested relief, i.e., O.N.'s immediate return to Monmouth Regional High School, he, nonetheless, must be assured that O.N. receives an "appropriate" alternative education program during the pendency of this matter. It is unclear from the existing record whether the Monmouth Adult Education Commission Program offered by the Board and, presumably, currently attended by O.N., which, apparently, encompasses educational instruction for only two hours a day, two days per week, is one which meets O.N.'s alternative educational needs and satisfies New Jersey's Core Curriculum Content Standards as required by the State Board in P.H. and P.H., on behalf of minor child, M.C. v. Board of Education of the Borough of Bergenfield, Bergen County, Decision on Motion, September 5, 2001. As such, the Commissioner determines that this matter must be remanded to the OAL for supplementary testimony, on an emergent basis, as to whether the Monmouth Adult Education Commission Program satisfies the requisites dictated by P.H. and, if not, identification of a compliant program of instruction for O.N. pending the resolution of this matter on its merits.

Accordingly, the recommended decision on motion of the OAL is adopted. This matter is hereby remanded to the OAL for supplementation of the record, and a determination on an emergent basis, as detailed above.

BEFORE ISRAEL D. DUBIN, ALJ:

This matter arises under the Interdistrict Public School Choice Program, N.J.S.A. 18A:36B-1 et seq. and N.J.A.C. 6A:12-1 et seq. Petitioner, D.M., is the father of a tenth grade student, A.M. II, attending the Allentown High School through the Choice Program, and an eighth grade student, A.M., who is currently attending respondent's Pond Road Middle School. He seeks on order compelling respondent to allow A.M. to join her sister, A.M. II, at Allentown High School as a Choice Program student.

By resolution adopted September 23, 2003, and readopted November 24, 2003, respondent restricted the number of students who may attend a Choice district to 2% of the number of students per grade level per year. By November 3, 2003, respondent had received approximately ten applications from eighth grade students, including A.M., seeking to enroll in the Choice program offered at Allentown High School. Based on the 2% restriction, only three students in the class of 137 were going to be able to participate in the program. Therefore, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:12-3.1(a)4, respondent conducted a lottery to determine which students would be permitted to participate. Respondent did not give preference for enrollment to students such as A.M. who already had siblings attending the high school and A.M. was not one of the three students selected. In fact, her name was one of the last names selected, leaving several students ahead of her on the waiting list.

On December 29, 2003 D.M., on behalf of his daughter, filed a Petition for Emergent Relief seeking an expedited hearing to establish that respondent had "palpably abused its discretionary authority and [that] the action taken with respect to the School Choice Program was in all regards arbitrary, capricious, unreasonable and otherwise wrongful, specifically by refusing to waive the 2% cap and by refusing to give siblings preference." On December 30, 2003, the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) by the Commissioner of Education who requested that an Administrative Law Judge be assigned to hear oral argument and, if deemed necessary, conduct a hearing. The Director of the OAL in turn assigned the case to this ALJ. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-2(b) and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-15(o).

Oral argument was scheduled for Monday, January 5, 2004. Upon their arrival, counsel agreed to discuss this matter in chambers in an attempt to amicably resolve their differences or more narrowly define the issues. As a result of that conference, the parties agreed that since there were few, if any, contested facts, it would be better to dismiss the petition for emergent relief and proceed in the underlying matter by way of cross-motions for summary decision. Consequently, it is on this 7th day of January, 2004, ORDERED:

1. The petition for emergent relief is DISMISSED and the substantive matter shall proceed through the filing of cross-motions for summary decision, N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b).
2. The parties shall submit a joint Stipulation of Facts by January 26, 2004.

3. Petitioner shall submit his brief in support of his Motion for Summary Decision within thirty days of the filing of the Stipulation of Facts and certainly by no later than February 23, 2004.
4. Respondent shall submit its brief in support of its Cross-Motion for Summary Decision within thirty days of receipt of petitioner's brief and certainly by no later than March 22, 2004.

This order on application for emergency relief may be adopted, modified or rejected by the Commissioner of the Department of Education, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The final decision shall be issued without undue delay, but no later than forty-five (45) days following the entry of this order. If the Commissioner does not adopt, modify or reject this order within forty-five (45) days, this recommended order shall become a final decision on the issue of emergent relief in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF ENGLEWOOD, BERGEN COUNTY,

PETITIONER,

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning Board sought immediate return of pupil records in possession of former employee, who served as Athletic Director and Supervisor of Health and Physical Education, as well as identification of any persons/organizations to which the records may have been shown or provided. Respondent contended the records were not pupil records subject to confidentiality protections.

The ALJ concluded that the documents were pupil records and that respondent's retention and prior distribution of these records to NJSIAA technically constituted a violation of the regulations, which are intended to protect the confidentiality of pupil records. The ALJ determined that since the information was already provided the NJSIAA, it cannot be taken back. Further distribution or use of these records, however, would constitute a further violation of the regulations. Thus, the ALJ concluded that the Board's complaint for emergent relief met the requisite standards. (Crowe v. DeGioia) The ALJ granted the motion for emergent relief and ordered respondent to return all copies and originals of pupil records he has in his possession and further ordered him to identify all persons and organizations to which he has shown or provided any pupil records.

The Commissioner adopted the recommended order of the ALJ as his own. Moreover, since the parties agreed that there were no other issues remaining once the emergent application was determined, the Commissioner deemed this decision to be the final resolution of the matter.

Record Closed: December 12, 2003 Decided: December 15, 2003

BEFORE JESSE H. STRAUSS, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The petitioner, Englewood Board of Education (Board), has filed a complaint with the Commissioner of Education (Commissioner) contending that respondent, Matthew Swartz (Swartz), has refused to identify and return confidential pupil records he has in his possession which he has no right to retain and has refused to provide the Board with the identity of all people or organizations he provided with any student information, all in violation of the School Law including N.J.S.A. 18A:36-19 and N.J.A.C. 6:3-6.1 et seq., as well as the Board's policy on distribution of student records. The Board requests the return of all student records in Swartz's possession; the identity of all people or organizations to which he has shown or provided any student records; the suspension of Swartz's teaching certification; and the payment of its legal fees.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On November 18, 2003, the Board filed the instant Complaint with the Commissioner in care of the Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes (Director) requesting interim relief. The Director transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to –15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to –13, where, on November 24, 2003, it was filed for determination as a contested case. In transmitting the matter, the Director noted that, in light of the requests for relief set forth in the Petition and Application, the matter may well conclude upon entry of the Commissioner's final order granting or denying interim relief. The Director noted that the only relief requested on a non-emergent basis is suspension of Swartz's certificate which is in the sole discretion of the State Board of Examiners pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.4 et seq., and award of attorney fees and costs of suit, which it is well established the Commissioner of Education is not authorized to grant. Therefore, only the first two prayers for relief are before the undersigned. The matter was heard on December 2, 2003, at which time each party presented its respective position through oral argument to supplement certifications and briefs that had been submitted. Both parties waived the presentation of testimony. At the conclusion of the hearing, the parties agreed to leave the record open for the submission of additional briefs relative to questions raised by the undersigned at the oral argument. On December 8, 2003 Swartz submitted a supplemental brief. On December 12, 2003 the Board filed a supplemental brief and certification, at which time the record closed.

FINDINGS OF FACT

All of the essential and relevant facts are undisputed, and I FIND them to be the FACTS of this case. Swartz served as the Athletic Director and Supervisor of Health and Physical Education for the Board from July 30, 2002 through June 30, 2003. His contract was not renewed for the following year.

In October-November 2002 Swartz reported to the New Jersey State Interscholastic Athletic Association (NJSIAA) what he perceived to be a violation of its rules and regulations by the boys' basketball program at Dwight Morrow High School. The NJSIAA subsequently found a violation of its rules. In 2003 Swartz became aware of what he perceived to be additional violations of NJSIAA rules by the boys' basketball team and girls' softball team. Since his concerns were not resolved internally before the expiration of his contract on June 30, 2003, he filed a complaint (prepared on May 19, 2003) on August 19, 2003 with the NJSIAA to ensure, he asserts, that these violations were reported and also because of a concern that he would be blamed if they were not reported. His complaint to the NJSIAA alleged that three student athletes wrongfully participated in practices, games or scrimmages.

Attached to the August 19, 2003 complaint to the NJSIAA were three documents. There was a memorandum to Swartz from a registered nurse dated January 2, 2003, indicating that pupil J.D. had a physical examination in the high school's health office and was not cleared to play basketball because he had suffered a broken wrist. The memorandum indicated that J.D. had been told that he would not be able to participate in basketball until he was cleared by the orthopedist. The second document was an e-mail from Swartz dated April 8, 2003 protesting to the high school's principal that allowing J.F. to play (softball) in violation of NJSIAA rules would cause consequences. He requested that the principal contact a NJSIAA representative. The third attachment was a typewritten document, prepared by Swartz, entitled "Winter 2002-2003 Approved Athletes." It lists approximately 200 pupils by sport, name, grade, age and telephone number. Next to certain names are notations such as "complete," "practice only until 2/1/03," "must give permission slip and health questionnaire," "needs new physical," and "needs new medical clearance." The document also provides, "Questions Call Mr. Swartz ... " and includes several telephone numbers for him. In addition to providing this document to the NJSIAA, Swartz had previously shared it with coaches in the athletic department.

By letter dated September 18, 2003, counsel for the NJSIAA advised counsel for the Board, in response to the Board's concern over the privacy of the documents, in relevant part as follows:

> It is often times necessary for schools or administrators to provide confidential information about students so that the NJSIAA can do its job in enforcing the rules of the Association. None of those materials are shared with the public and the Association has always utilized initials for identifying minor students ... the student record information will not be sent to the Controversies Committee unless the identification of those students is placed in issue at the Controversies Committee hearing ....

By letter dated October 6, 2003 to Swartz, counsel for the Board ordered him to return all copies of any student records in his possession including student lists, telephone numbers, medical records, addresses, and grade. He was also ordered to provide the names and addresses of all people or organizations that he provided with any student information since the date of his separation from employment. By letter dated October 9, 2003, to counsel for the Board, counsel for the NJSIAA indicated that Swartz had assured the NJSIAA that he has destroyed all extra copies of information and would maintain the confidentiality of all originals in his possession and that the only information he released to anyone was that transmitted to the NJSIAA. The hearing before the NJSIAA regarding the complaint filed with it by Swartz was conducted.

Swartz did not obtain permission from the Board or any other school official to retain or release the documents in question. There has been no representation that Swartz received permission from any of the students, or their parents, mentioned in any of the documents to retain or release the information relative to that student contained in any of the documents.

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

In order to prevail on an application for interim relief before the Commissioner pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6, a petitioner must demonstrate that:

1. It will suffer irreparable harm if the requested relief is not granted.

2. The legal right underlying its claim is settled.

3. It has a likelihood of prevailing on the merits of the underlying claim.

4. When the equities and interests of the parties are balanced, it will suffer greater harm than respondent will suffer if the requested relief is not granted.

The State Board of Education is required to provide, by regulation, for the creation, maintenance and retention of pupil records with the requisite security to protect the privacy rights of pupils and parents. N.J.S.A. 18A:36-19. Such regulations have been duly promulgated. N.J.A.C. 6:3-6.1 et seq. The Board contends that Swartz has violated these regulations by removing, retaining and disseminating confidential pupil records without authorization and while no longer an employee of the Board in contravention of the privacy rights of the pupils. Swartz, in turn, argues that the documents in question are not pupil records within the meaning of the regulations and that, even if they were, he acted appropriately to disseminate them only to an end source (NJSIAA) authorized to receive such otherwise confidential records.

Obviously, an analysis of this issue must commence with a determination of whether the records were pupil records subject to confidentiality protections. If the documents are not pupil records, then the Board's arguments fall. N.J.A.C. 6:3-6.1 defines "pupil record" to mean

> Information related to an individual pupil gathered within or outside the school system and maintained within the school system, regardless of the physical form in which it is maintained. Essential in this definition is the idea that any information which is maintained for the purpose of second party review is considered a pupil record. Therefore, information recorded by any certified school personnel solely as a memory aid, not for the use of a second party, is excluded from this definition.

I CONCLUDE that the three documents are pupil records. Undisputedly, these documents contain information related to individual pupils. The school nurse's memorandum is regarding the physical condition of a named pupil and relates to a school activity. The e-mail refers to a named pupil and deals with her participation in a school activity. The list of names identifies specific students in the context of school sports activities and provides grade, age, telephone number and participation eligibility information. All three documents are maintained within the school system since one originated from the school nurse and the other two originated from the athletic director, and all relate to school activities. Additionally, all of the information was maintained for second party review. The school nurse's memorandum was directed to the athletic director as the second party. The e-mail was generated by the athletic director and transmitted to the school principal. The list of names with telephone numbers, although generated by Swartz, was admittedly not solely as a memory aid for him. At oral argument, Swartz's counsel acknowledged that it was disseminated to other members of the athletic department and therefore to second parties for review. This fact is most evident since the document, although prepared by Swartz, invites questions to be directed to him and provides several of his telephone numbers. Additionally, the NJSIAA became a second party when the documents were sent to it.

I reject Swartz's argument that the pupil list was a "student information directory" within the meaning of N.J.A.C. 6:3-6.1 rather than a "pupil record." It was not a publication. It was distributed only to members of the athletic department. Moreover, there is no showing that the document was published by the district board of education within the meaning of the definition. Principal Satterfield's certification of December 11, 2003, that the Board does not publish a student directory may be a contested fact. However, I need not make such a finding of fact in view of my analysis above.

Having concluded that the information in question constitutes pupil records, one must determine if Swartz's retention and use of them is violative of Department of Education regulations. The Department of Education requires a district board of education to regulate access, disclosure and communication of information from pupil records in a manner that assures the security of such records. N.J.A.C. 6:3-6.2. The chief school administrator shall be responsible for the security of pupil records and shall devise procedures for assuring that access to such records is limited to authorized persons. N.J.A.C. 6:3-6.4. Only authorized organizations, agencies or persons as defined in the regulations shall have access to pupil records. N.J.A.C. 6:3-6.5(a). These include certified school district personnel who have assigned educational responsibility for the pupil, N.J.A.C. 6:3-6.5(c)4, and accrediting organizations in order to carry out their accrediting functions, N.J.A.C. 6:3-6.5(c)8.

Upon Swartz's departure as an employee of the Board on June 30, 2003, he was no longer part of the certified school district personnel and therefore had no right or authority under the regulations to retain or use these pupil records without complying with the provisions of N.J.A.C. 6:3-6.6 regarding access to pupil records by a person outside the school who lacks independent authority of access. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that his retention and prior distribution of the pupil records technically constitutes a violation of the regulations, which are intended to protect the confidentiality of pupil records. He lacked the authority of certified school district personnel and was not otherwise granted such authority by a designee of the Board. However, this entire matter is really a tempest in a teapot since the end recipient of the information, the NJSIAA, is an accrediting organization entitled to receive such information, albeit from authorized sources, under N.J.A.C. 6:3-6.5(c)8. Despite the disputed authority of Swartz to forward this information to the NJSIAA, the NJSIAA assured the Board that it would protect the confidentiality of the information while carrying out its mandate to review athletic practices in school districts throughout New Jersey. Arguably, the NJSIAA could have exercised its authority to obtain these pupil records from the Board rather than from Swartz if it deemed them to be relevant to the complaint, which Swartz filed in August 2003. Swartz has certified, and the Board has not disputed, that he has not distributed any of the records to anyone outside the NJSIAA. Accordingly, although there has been a technical violation of the regulations, there has been no demonstration that the privacy expectations of the pupils and their parents have actually been compromised since Swartz, prior to June 30, legitimately had access to the records and knew of the information in them, and the NJSIAA has subsequently protected their confidentiality. The level of the Board's concern over the alleged confidentiality breach therefore appears to be overstated. Nevertheless, Swartz's argument, that he is blameless because the destination of the records was valid and his basis for submitting them to the NJSIAA was salutary, begs the question of whether he, as an ex-employee of the Board, had the authority to deliver the information to the NJSIAA or to thereafter retain the information. The regulations do not provide for an exception to the confidentiality rules, under such circumstances, for an ex-employee. Moreover, Swartz's contention that the instant action is in retaliation for his bringing a complaint before the NJSIAA and is intended for litigational advantage in the NJSIAA matter, even if true, is unsupported by any statutory or regulatory authority for relieving an ex-employee (a person from outside the school as referenced in N.J.A.C. 6:3-6.6(a)2) from the requirement to seek proper authorization to retain or use pupil records. Swartz identifies himself as a whistleblower and makes an emphatic argument in support of a potential claim under the Conscientious Employee Protection Act, N.J.S.A. 34:19-1 et seq. that he suffered retaliation for trying to address improper conduct in the athletic department. However, the regulatory scheme at issue here provides no relief from or relaxation of its requirements in the face of such a claim. Such a claim must be brought in a different forum.

As discussed above, Swartz's reliance on N.J.A.C. 6:3-6.2(j) to legitimize his actions is misplaced. That regulation provides that no liability shall be attached to any member, officer or employee of any district board of education permitting access or furnishing pupil records in accordance with the rules of the Department of Education. Again, Swartz was not a member, officer or employee of the Board when he attached pupil records to his complaint to the NJSIAA in August 2003.

Since this information has already been provided to the NJSIAA, the toothpaste cannot be put back into the tube. However, Swartz's retention of originals or copies of this information or any further distribution or use of these pupil records would constitute a further violation of the above regulations.[1]

[1] By letter dated December 4, 2003, to counsel for the Board, counsel for Swartz indicated that the documents, which were the subject of this complaint, were enclosed with said letter. Counsel also indicated that the documents, which were the subject of this application, were only submitted to NJSIAA and were not disclosed to any other person or entity. Swartz therefore contends that the entire action is moot. However, Principal Satterfield certifies that, at the NJSIAA hearing of November 18, 2003, Swartz tendered additional pupil records not attached to his NJSIAA complaint relating to student attendance and participation in athletic programs. Although I am not in a position to find this as a fact in this interim relief proceeding, it raises a sufficient basis to issue the instant determination rather than dismiss the complaint as moot. Moreover, I am nevertheless issuing the instant Order because I have determined that it may conclude the entire proceeding upon entry of the Commissioner's final order granting or denying interim relief as suggested by the Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes when the matter was transferred to the OAL.

I CONCLUDE that the Board's complaint for interim or emergent relief has met the requisite standards. Harm is irreparable if it cannot be addressed adequately by monetary damages. Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126, 133 (1982). Any further distribution of these pupil records contrary to the Board's obligation to its pupils and their parents to insure their confidentiality will cause irreparable harm. For the reasons set forth above, the legal right underlying the Board's claim is settled, and there is a likelihood of success on the merits. Finally, when the equities and interests of the parties are balanced, the Board will suffer greater harm than Swartz will suffer if the relief is not granted. As Swartz has no right to retain the pupil records, an order that he return the records and disclose the identity of persons or entities to which he has already disclosed the records causes him to suffer no harm. On the other hand, the Board faces greater harm if there is any subsequent distribution of the records because of the danger that such distribution might compromise the privacy rights of its pupils and their parents, which the Board is charged to protect. In view of the Director's determination, as indicated above, that the Commissioner will not entertain any request for counsel fees or the punitive remedy of license suspension, those factors need not be considered in balancing the equities in this application.

Accordingly, the complaint for emergent relief shall be granted.[2]

It is hereby ORDERED that Matthew Swartz return all copies and originals of pupil records he has in his possession; and it is further ORDERED that Matthew Swartz shall identify all people and organizations to which he has shown or provided any pupil records.

The parties have advised me that no other issues remain once the emergent relief matter is resolved.

[2] The Board's request, made in its brief, that Swartz be ordered not to have contact with any Englewood students is rejected. The Complaint sets forth neither a prayer nor basis for such relief.

This order on application for emergency relief may be adopted, modified or rejected by DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, which by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The final decision shall be issued without undue delay, but no later than forty-five (45) days following the entry of this order. If the DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION does not adopt, modify or reject this order within forty-five (45) days, this recommended order shall become a final decision on the issue of emergent relief in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

The recommended Order of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ), which included a summary of the evidence presented at the emergent hearing conducted at the Office of Administrative Law on December 2, 2003, has been reviewed. Upon such review, the Commissioner concurs that the Board has satisfied the four-pronged standard set forth in Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982) necessary to warrant emergent relief.

Accordingly, the recommended Order of the ALJ is adopted for the reasons expressed therein. Inasmuch as the parties have agreed that there are no other issues remaining once the emergent application is determined (Initial Decision at 9), this decision shall be deemed the final resolution of this matter.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING :

OF ELLEN KENNY, SCHOOL DISTRICT OF :

THE TOWN OF HACKETTSTOWN, WARREN :

COUNTY. :

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

The Board certified tenure charges of unbecoming conduct against respondent school nurse for allegedly releasing a student's confidential medical information, pressuring parents, making inappropriate comments, failing to notify the parents of students C.K and D.U. that the results of their scoliosis examinations revealed deviations, and failing to notify the parents of 19 students about the results of their scoliosis examinations, which also showed deviations. The Board sought her dismissal from employment.

In light of the whole record, the ALJ found that respondent's behavior did not rise to the level of conduct unbecoming such that it destroyed public respect for school employees and confidence in the operation of the Board. Her conduct did not justify the imposition of major discipline. Moreover, the Board failed to prove that respondent violated school procedures regarding the results of scoliosis screening of C.K. and D.U. and 19 other students. Respondent had been suspended prior to the time she usually sent the notices of the screening results. Charges were dismissed.

The Commissioner adopted the findings and determination in the Initial Decision as his own with modification. Upon review of the entire record, including transcripts from five days of hearing, and citing relevant statutes, regulations and Board policy, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ that respondent's behavior did not rise to the level of unbecoming conduct and did not warrant dismissal from her position. On each charge, the Commissioner was not convinced that the Board demonstrated its allegations by a preponderance of credible evidence.

Record Closed: July 26, 2003 Decided: December 8, 2003

BEFORE MUMTAZ BARI-BROWN, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner, Hackettstown School District, Warren County ("District" or "Board"), certified charges of conduct unbecoming against Ellen Kenny, a tenured school nurse. The District submits that Kenny's conduct warrants dismissal from employment. Respondent denies any charges of wrongdoing.

On January 15, and February 3, 2003, the Commissioner of Education transmitted the matters to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") for determination as contested cases pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. On January 24, 2003, I consolidated the petitions and denied the parties' cross-motions to dismiss the matters. On February 19, 2003, I conducted a prehearing conference. Hearings were held on April 7, 8 and 9, 2003, and on May 13 and 14, 2003. The parties filed post-hearing briefs and the record closed on July 26, 2003. The statutory period within which to file the initial decision with the Department of Education expired on September 9, 2003. 1996. Based on an administrative oversight, an expansive backlog, and a high volume of cases, the ALJ requested extensions of time, nunc pro tunc, to complete the initial decision by December 9, 2003. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(c) and N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.8.

CHARGES

In Docket EDU 1217-03, the Board contends that Ellen Kenny released a student's confidential medical information; pressured the parents to make a decision, which they believed were not in the best interest of their child; and, uttered comments intended to undermine the authority of the high school principal. (See Prehearing Order, March 14, 2003).

In Docket EDU 1825-03, the Board contends that Ellen Kenny failed to notify the parents of C.K. and D.U. that the results of their scoliosis examinations revealed deviations. Further, Kenny failed to notify the parents of 19 students about the results of their scoliosis examinations, which also showed deviations. (See Prehearing Order, March 14, 2003).

SUMMARY OF EVIDENCE

Based on a review of the relevant evidence, I FIND the following as FACT:

1. In September 1994, the Board employed Ellen Kenny as the school nurse.

2. J.S., a pupil enrolled in the District, is diagnosed with several medical disorders including spina bifida, incontinent bowel, congenital recital stenosis, anterior myleomengocele, and a latex allergy. Her routine care requires a daily enema, bladder catheterization every 3 to 4 hours, and irrigation every 12 hours.
3. J.S. is eligible for special education under the Individual With Disabilities Education Act, 20 U.S.C.A. §§ 1400 to 1487.
4. J.S. attended Great Meadows Middle School and received home schooling from mid-year seventh grade to eighth grade.
5. In Spring 2001, prior to entering high school, J.S.' mother, K.S., met with Ellen Kenny to discuss J.S.' medical care. J.S. required private toilet facilities to catheterize her bladder. Kenny prearranged a separate bathroom for J.S to use and store her medical supplies.
6. In response to J.S.' latex allergy, Kenny replaced all latex gloves with non-latex materials. J.S.' curriculum excluded art and physical education because those classes used latex products.
7. In September 2001, J.S. entered Hackettstown High School as a ninth grade student. K.S. met with the teachers and staff to discuss J.S.' medical regimen.
8. K.S. also spoke with Chris Steffner, school principal, concerning J.S.' medical condition and latex allergy. Steffner warned K.S. that the students decorated the building with balloons for school events such as homecoming and dances.
9. Steffner testified that K.S. "didn't have a problem" about the balloons; however, it was agreed that J.S. would avoid the areas where balloons where were exposed.
10. The parents agreed to accommodations that would minimize J.S.' exposure to latex items. Eleanor Henry, Director of Special Services drafted the list of accommodations.
11. IEPs, dated February 8, 2003 and January 16, 2003, stated in part that "[J.S.] has been diagnosed with a latex allergy and according to medical records she needs to avoid exposure to paints, rubber bands, latex balloons, etc." (R-15).

12. On October 18, 2002, J.S. suffered a latex reaction from a popped balloon in her classroom. Kenny immediately treated J.S. in the nurse's office: administering Benadryl, placing ice on her swollen eyes and monitoring her breathing. When Kenny determined that the symptoms had subsided, she informed J.S.' father of the incident. Thereafter, J.S. made her usual commute home by the school bus.

13. On October 21, 2002, Kenny sent a memorandum to Steffner, which stated in part:

> Chris,
> Attached are articles, which relate to latex allergy, people at risk (Spina Bifida) for latex allergies, and protecting oneself from a lawsuit. I can appreciate your feeling that the school should not be changed for one person, but I believe we are setting ourselves up for a lawsuit as well as endangering [J.S.]. This issue is strictly motivated by my medical belief that we are responsible to protect this student from a severe latex response. In lieu of the fact that she had a latex reaction on Friday, I believe we should revisit this issue. I realize the parents have signed off regarding their concerns about balloons, but I feel we need to remove them from the school and pursue solutions to decorating.

14. On October 22, 2003, Steffner responded to Kenny's letter, which stated in part:

> I am in receipt of your two correspondences...concerning student J.S.... Thank you for your literature you supplied regarding latex allergies. I have read the information and I am confused about your request that the removal of balloons will safeguard this child and fulfill our responsibility to her. It is clear through the literature...that prolonged, continuous exposure to latex is a serious concern...Therefore I question why you have not addressed the issues that I have highlighted. In addition, I think we should explore all precautions that we can take to protect this child. As we have discussed in the past, I have concern of co-curricular activities, which no medical help is immediately available. It is my recollection that the medical note regarding this situation is several years old and was not issued by an immunologist. Have you followed-up with the parent or the physician to have a new note sent as was discussed last year?
> I have expressed your concerns to the Director of Special Education and the Superintendent. Please provide me with a detailed list of all recommended accommodations to ensure the safety of this child. Please include the areas I have indicated above by the end of the week. We will then meet to discuss this matter further.

15. Kenny's reply stated in part:

> You inquired what I have done to address additional sources of latex with regard to J.S. As a school nurse, I am responsible to assure that the school environment is safe for all children and especially for those children who have severe allergies that could potentially lead to anaphylaxis. If an unsafe medical condition exists in the building it is my duty to report that condition to the principal, and make a recommendation. Since September of 2002, I have been making recommendations.
> In addressing your concern with regard to co-curricular activities, a letter drafted and sent to K.S. by Eleanore Henry, Director of Special Services, on May 14, 2002, indicates that the administration was to recruit staff to be trained in epi-pen use and then act as chaperones at school functions.
> In addressing outdated medical notes, J.S. has a current doctor's note in her file for the 2002 school year. There is no Dr.'s note from an immunologist. In her letter to the parent, Mrs. Henry strongly suggests that J.S. be seen by an immunologist. The parent felt that the school district should pay for the consult with an immunologist. While it is true the mother has "back pedaled" on the issue of latex balloons in the school, I believe this may, in part, be due to the mother's fear that J.S. might be placed out of district due to her allergy.

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

State law provides that no tenured teacher shall be dismissed or reduced in compensation except for inefficiency, incapacity, unbecoming conduct or other just cause. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10. Thus, tenured employees are protected "in their employment when they are subjected to unfair or improper attacks or when they are unable to perform effectively because of conditions not of their own making or beyond their control." In re Maratea, 1966 S.L.D. 77, 106. Additional procedural safeguards, including the right to a list of charges, a sworn statement of evidence and an impartial hearing, are required under the law to protect tenured teachers from arbitrary dismissal for unfounded or flimsy reasons. Spiewak v. Rutherford Bd. of Educ., 90 N.J. 63, 73 (1982). Moreover, charges against a tenured employee may not be examined in a vacuum, but must be considered in any events leading up to the allegations made against the employee that may help to explain the situation. In re Romanoli, 1975 S.L.D. 352.

The District has the burden of proof to establish the charges against Kenny by a preponderance of the credible evidence. In re Polk License Revocation, 90 N.J. 550, 560 (1982). Preponderance is the greater weight of credible evidence in the case, not necessarily dependent on the number of witnesses, but having the greater convincing power. State v. Lewis, 67 N.J. 47 (1975). The evidence must be such as to lead a reasonable cautious mind to a given conclusion. Bornstein v. Metropolitan Bottling Co., 26 N.J. 263 (1958). Where the standard is reasonable probability, that is, preponderance of the evidence, the evidence must be such as to "generate belief that the tendered hypothesis is in all human likelihood the fact." Loew v Union Beach, 56 N.J. Super. 93, 104 (App. Div 1959).

Proof of the charges against Kenny depends in part on the credibility of the witnesses. In an administrative proceeding, testimony may be disbelieved, but it may not be disregarded. Middletown Township v Murdoch, 73 N.J. Super. 511 (App. Div. 1962). Moreover, the trier of fact is not bound to believe the testimony of any witness and may accept or reject, in whole or in part, the testimony. Application of Howard Savings Bank, 143 N.J. Super. 1 (App. Div. 1976). One factor to consider in determining which party's version of the incident has the "reasonable probability of truth" is that the "interest, motive, biases or prejudice of a witness may affect his credibility and justify [the trier of fact], whose providence it is to pass upon the credibility of an interested witness, in disbelieving his testimony." State v Salimone, 19 N.J. Super. 600, 608 (App. Div. 1952). Further, "[a] trier of fact may reject testimony because it is inherently incredible, or because it is overborne by other testimony." Congleton v Pura-Tex Stone Corp., 53 N.J. Super. 282, 287 (App. Div. 1958). I have carefully considered the testimony and demeanor of the witnesses presented by the parties.

In September 1994, the Hackettstown School District employed Ellen Kenny, a Registered Nurse and a certified school nurse. Kenny holds credentials as a psychiatric nurse, public health nurse and psychological counseling. Kenny's duties include administering the immunization, anti-tobacco, and blood drive programs. She conducts scoliosis screening and health counseling. Kenny must work under the direction of a licensed physician. Hackettstown has charged Ellen Kenny with several acts of unbecoming conduct. The Board claims she released a student's confidential medical information; pressured the parents to make a decision, which they believed were not in the best interest of their child; and, uttered comments intended to undermine the authority of the high school principal. Additionally, the Board contends that Ellen Kenny failed to notify the parents of C.K. and D.U. of the results of their scoliosis examinations, which revealed deviations. Further, Kenny failed to notify the parents of 19 students about the results of their scoliosis examinations, which also showed deviations. I have considered carefully the evidence presented by the parties to determine whether the Board has provided a preponderance of the credible evidence to support the charges.

The Board's evidence that Kenny disclosed confidential information to Renay Gill about J.S. is unpersuasive. Here, Kenny and Gill are the only witnesses to the allegations that Kenny disclosed confidential information to Gill about J.S. The parents, A.S. and K.S. and Gill are the only witnesses to support the Board's claim that Gill repeated the information to A.S. and K.S. Steffner testified that K.S. told her that, "Gill approached her family" at a church bazaar, and that "Gill had spoken to Ellen and knew everything that was going on". Steffner further testified, "She shared with her knowledge of J.'s problems and her needs to use the bathroom facilities for specific medical needs, she understood about the latex allergy. Mrs. S. said she knew everything about my daughter, and she would have no reason to know those things." Steffner maintained that Gill uttered the statements in the presence of J.S., who was "shooed away with her other children." At the hearing, however, K.S. and A.S. testified that J.S. was not present when the discussion occurred.

Kenny denied disclosing information to Gill about J.S. Moreover, the Board presented the testimony of Gill, who denied having any discussion with K.S. and A.S. concerning Kenny's disclosure to Gill about J.S.' medical condition. In fact, Gill claimed that she did not attend the event at which the alleged incident occurred. The Board appeared to be surprised by Gill's denial.

"[T]estimony to be believed must not only proceed from the mouth of a credible witness but must be credible in itself. It must be such as the common experience and observation of mankind can approve as probable in the circumstances." Spagnuolo v. Bonnet, 16 N.J. 546, 554-55 (1954). Thus, I have carefully considered the presentation of the testimony including the testimony of Renay Gill. She maintained that no discussions occurred with the parents concerning J.S'. Further, Gill maintained that she did not discuss the student with Kenny. To the contrary, petitioner claimed it happened.

Gill was employed as the school's library assistant for 20 years. She has known the S. family for many years. Indeed, A.S. testified that Gill, his wife and he attended Hackettstown High School. "I knew her [Gill] formerly at the school as part of the library, but I also knew her when my wife and I starting dating because my wife would, like, hang out in the library, things like that she was friends with the family." The Board presented no evidence that Gill had cause to fabricate her testimony. Moreover, it appeared that an amicable relationship existed between Gill and the parents.

I have considered the inconsistencies in the parents' testimony whether their daughter was present when Gill made the alleged comments. As with any witness, testimony need not be flawless to be believable. Indeed, some inconsistencies in a witness's testimony do not warrant an automatic discounting of that testimony as incredible. United Stations of N.J. v. Getty Oil Co., 102 N.J. Super. 459 (Ch. Div. 1968). The testimony must be such that the trier of fact can reasonably conclude that the witness is wholly unworthy of belief. Accordingly, the trier of fact must carefully weigh the evidence before rejecting testimony, even if not directly contradicted, when it is contrary to the circumstances. Here, I am persuaded by respondent's argument that, "No parent would be confused as to whether their child was present when extremely personal medical information was revealed by a stranger to the child." Respondent's Brief at 20-21.

Additionally, I have carefully considered the demeanor of the witnesses over several days of the proceedings. The relationships among several witnesses appeared strained and unprofessional. For example, the parent, K.S. testified that she was pressured to sign a letter, which was prepared by Kathy Mahoney, CST case manager and social worker. (P-1). K.S. assumed the letter had been drafted by Kenny but acknowledged that the contents were essentially accurate. K.S. also believed that she and her daughter had been placed "in the middle" of a disagreement between Kenny and the administration. K.S. was uncomfortable with the situation. A.S., J.S.' father, testified that he never met with Kenny. However, during a telephone discussion about J.S.' latex reaction, Kenny told A.S. that the parents "could have a case against the high school". A.S. further testified that Kenny told him she filed a labor grievance against Steffner concerning a disciplinary matter.

Kenny's demeanor was assertive. She acknowledged having discussions with the parents about J.S.'s medical problems but denied pressuring the parents to make decisions concerning their daughter. Kenny divulged to the parents Steffner's anger with her over the latex issue and that she filed a grievance against Steffner. Kenny, however, denied telling the parents they could sue the school or that she hired two attorneys to file charges against the school. She did, however, refer the parents to agencies that might assist them in advocating for their daughter.

Kenny's comments to the parents about the principal were inappropriate. However, major discipline is not warranted, as the behavior does not constitute conduct unbecoming. More importantly, Kenny's concern over J.S.' medical condition was genuine. Indeed, she placed into action several accommodations to meet the child's medical needs. Her fervor, however, may have seemed overbearing and perhaps "pushy" to the administration and to the parents. Indeed, the tenor of the memorandum between Kenny and Steffner seemed confrontational. (R-3, R-4, R-5). At the hearing, the demeanors of Steffner and Kenny revealed two strong-minded persons. The parents sensed conflict between Kenny and Steffner. K.S. felt as if she had been placed in the middle of their conflict. Moreover, when asked to describe Kenny's "references to Chris Steffner", the parent, A.S. testified, "Just that she was having problems with Ms. Steffner, you know, with being in school." A.S. concluded that Kenny and Steffner were "butting heads." The circumstances underlying the labor grievance filed by Kenny evidences on-going conflict. The core of the grievance is Steffner's charge of insubordination and "disrespectful treatment of the office of the principal". (Award of the Arbitrator, dated June 16, 2003.). Thus, it is not unforeseeable that opinions might clash and spill over into tenure charges.

I have also considered the contents of the charges in light of Kenny's ten-year employment by the Board. Revealing confidential information about a student's medical condition appeared to be contrary to the manner in which Kenny has conducted herself as a professional school nurse during her employment by the Board. Charges that Kenny pressured the parents to make decisions, which they believed were not in the best interests of their child is contrary to Kenny's professional deeds as the school nurse. Kenny's overall performance since 1994 has been exemplary. (R-16 to R-44). Thus, the credible evidence does not support that Kenny "released confidential pupil records" about J.S. or that she pressured the parents to make decisions, which they believed were not in the best interests of their child.

Based on the whole of the record, I CONCLUDE that the Board failed to prove by a preponderance of the credible evidence that respondent Ellen Kenny released a student's confidential medical information. I further CONCLUDE that the Board failed to prove respondent Ellen Kenny pressured the parents to make a decision, which they believed were not in the best interest of their child.

I FIND and CONCLUDE that respondent Ellen Kenny discussed with the parents of a student personnel matters regarding her grievance against school administrators. Kenny's comments to the parents about the high school principal consitutued inappropriate behavior. I CONCLUDE however, that the behavior does not rise to the level of conduct unbecoming such that it had a tendency to destroy public respect for the school employees and confidence in the operation of the Board.

Nevertheless, Kenny's behavior should be addressed. In determining whether she should be sanctioned, I have considered Kenny's conduct in context with its relationship to the nature of her job, her past record and any mitigating circumstances. West New York v. Bock, 38 N.J. 500 (1962). Kenny's concern over the student's health is evident in her efforts to make the administrators aware of the dangers should J.S. be exposed to latex. Her professional manner and mind-set outweigh the feelings of those who might have been personally offended by her commitment. Based on the totality of the circumstance, I CONCLUDE that Ellen Kenny's conduct does not justify the imposition of major discipline.

Based on a review of the relevant evidence, I FIND the following as FACT:

On November 19, 2002, Hackettstown Board of Education suspended respondent Ellen Kenny. Prior to the suspension, she initiated the mandated scoliosis tests. Kenny further testified that she administers the tests bi-annually to the students in blocks. Generally, Kenny begins the screening in October and notifies the parents of the results after the screening is completed, usually at semester's end. Kenny would retest students whose tests showed mild, sight curves or if, in her professional opinion, she believed the result was a questionable. J-4. One of the student's, P-13, test results showed a "mild upper ® curve". Therefore, Kenny did not send a letter; instead, she twice called the parent and left messages. Kenny also called the mother of another student, P-14, whose test results showed a slight curve. Kenny further testified that she was suspended before she completed the screenings. Consequently, Brenda Lightcap, substitute nurse found Kenny's notes and mailed the notices in mid-December.

Although the Board recently revised its policy requiring the school administrator to formulate regulations for scoliosis screening and other physical examinations, Steffner and Calabro had no knowledge of specific policies regarding screening and notice to parents. (J-2). The evidence support's respondent's argument that during Kenny's employment, the Board accepted the practice to notify parents of screening results at the conclusion of the semester. "In her 10 years of employment with the district, [Kenny] had never been told to alter this procedure." Respondent's Brief at 25.

The practice was not altered. Kenny's suspension in November occurred prior to the time she usually sent the notices of the screening results. The substitute employee mailed the notices in December, during the time period Kenny would have sent them had she not been suspended. The circumstances presented do not support tenure charges against Kenny.

Based on the whole of the record, I CONCLUDE that the Board failed to prove respondent Ellen Kenny violated school procedures regarding the results of the scoliosis screening of C.K. and D.U., and 19 other students.

ORDER

It is ORDERED that tenure charges in Docket EDU 1217-03, that Ellen Kenny released a student's confidential medical information; pressured the parents to make a decision, which they believed were not in the best interest of their child; and, uttered comments intended to undermine the authority of the high school principal be DISMISSED.

It is ORDERED that tenure charges in Docket EDU 1825-03 that Ellen Kenny failed to notify the parents of C.K. and D.U. and 19 other students that the results of their scoliosis examinations revealed deviations be DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING :
OF ELLEN KENNY, SCHOOL DISTRICT OF :
THE TOWN OF HACKETTSTOWN, WARREN : COUNTY. :

DECISION

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. The Board's exceptions and respondent's reply thereto are duly noted as submitted in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4, and were considered by the Commissioner in reaching his decision.

Upon careful and independent review of the record, which included transcripts from five days of hearing,[1] together with exhibits, post-hearing briefs, exception and reply arguments, the Commissioner determines to adopt the Initial Decision, with modification, as set forth herein.

Initially, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that "[p]roof of the charges against Kenny depends in part on the credibility of the witnesses." (Initial Decision at 6) In this connection, the Commissioner acknowledges that the ALJ has "carefully considered the testimony and demeanor of the witnesses" (Initial Decision at 6) and her credibility determinations are entitled to his deference. See In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Frank Roberts, 96 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 549, 550 citing In the Matter of Tenure Hearing of Tyler, 236 N.J. Super. 478, 485 (App. Div.) certif. denied, 121 N.J. 615 (1989). The Appellate Division has affirmed this principle, underscoring that "[u]nder existing law, the [reviewing agency] must recognize and give due weight to the ALJ's unique position and ability to make demeanor based judgments." Whasun Lee v. Board of Education of the Township of Holmdel, Docket No. A-5978-98T2, decided by the New Jersey Superior Court, Appellate Division, August 7, 2000, slip op. at 14. Indeed, the Commissioner > may not reject or modify any findings of fact as to issues of credibility of lay witness testimony unless it is first determined from a review of the record that the findings are arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable or are not supported by sufficient, competent and credible evidence in the record. (emphasis added) N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(c).

The Board charged respondent with four counts of unbecoming conduct. Count I alleges, in pertinent part:

> 10. In derogation of her legal duty [to safeguard and ensure the confidentiality of medical records and information about a student's medical condition and health needs] Ms. Kenny disclosed the details of J.S.'s medical condition and medical needs to an individual not employed by the Hackettstown School District, Renee Gil, who had no legitimate reason for access to confidential medical information concerning J.S.
> 11. Ms. Kenny's disclosure of confidential medical information about J.S. was done without the required permission of J.S. or her parents.
> 12. The release of this information has caused significant distress to the student and her parents and has seriously undermined the integrity of the student health services provided by the Hackettstown School District.
> 13. The School District administration concluded Ms. Kenny had violated known procedural, legal and ethical requirements for the maintenance of confidential student medical records and information.
> 14. This improper disclosure of student medical records and information by Ms. Kenny constitutes conduct unbecoming a teaching staff member. (Tenure Charges, OAL EDU Dkt. No. 1217-03 at 2)

For the reasons fully explicated in her Initial Decision, the Commissioner agrees with the ALJ that "[t]he Board's evidence that Kenny disclosed confidential information to Renay [sic] Gil about J.S. is unpersuasive." (Initial Decision at 7)[2] In so doing, the Commissioner finds that the ALJ's conclusion is supported by sufficient, competent and credible evidence in the record and, therefore, he may not disturb it. Moreover, even setting aside the issue of the inconsistencies in the testimony of K.C.S. and A.S., as noted by the ALJ (Initial Decision at 8), the Commissioner finds that in light of a categorical denial from both respondent and Ms. Gil that the alleged conversation ever occurred, the Board simply has not proven its allegation by a preponderance of credible evidence. Charge I, therefore, cannot be sustained.

In Count II of the tenure charges, the Board alleges:

1. In her communications with the parents of the classified student[s], K.S. and A.S., Ms. Kenny has improperly pressured the parents to take actions that they feel are not in the best interests of their daughter.
2. These efforts on the part of Ms. Kenny were made after the parents advised Ms. Kenny that they felt that the program and services provided for their daughter at Hackettstown High School were appropriate to meet their daughter's needs.
3. Ms. Kenny's conduct resulted in J.S. being reluctant to report to the school nurse for necessary medical care for fear that Ms. Kenny would overact to the situation.
4. Ms. Kenny's repeated contacts and efforts to pressure the parents to obtain additional services for their daughter, which the parents did not feel were in the best interests of their daughter, forced K.S. to contact the School District Superintendent, Joanne Calabro, to intervene in this matter.
5. K.S. requested that the Superintendent take action to prevent Ms. Kenny from having any direct contact with the parents.
6. Such actions on the part of Ms. Kenny have placed the student in unnecessary distress over her own medical care, have forced the parents of a High School student to essentially give up their right to receive necessary medical information from the School Nurse; and have created the risk that a student who requires medical services will be reluctant to go to the school nurse to seek necessary medical care.

[2] To the extent the Board urges the Commissioner to consider testimony regarding the release of information to someone other than Ms. Gil, the Commissioner finds that he cannot properly do so since the charges herein are specific to Ms. Gil.

7. The School District administration concluded that Ms. Kenny had violated her duties and responsibilities as School Nurse by putting her own interests and needs above the interests of a student.
8. The above conduct on the part of Ms. Kenny constitutes conduct unbecoming a teaching staff member. (Tenure Charges, OAL EDU Dkt. No. 1217-03 at 3-4)

On this charge, the Commissioner is similarly not convinced that the Board has demonstrated its allegations by a preponderance of credible evidence. As its central piece of evidence, the Board offered Exhibit P-1, a letter sent by J.S.'s parents to the District in May 2002 requesting that the District revisit the issue of their daughter's latex allergy. Although signed by K.C.S. and A.S, apparently, the letter was drafted by someone else. (Exhibit P-3) The Board, however, failed to establish on this record that the letter was drafted by, or even at the behest of, respondent. (Tr. 1 at 45; Tr. 3 at 72; Tr. 4 at 22; Tr 5 at 24, 25) Indeed, any allegation that J.S.'s parents were pressured to take action against their will was undercut by the testimony of K.C.S., who indicated that, upon receipt of the draft letter, she found it to be "perfect," and she did not need to change anything before signing and sending it to the District. (Tr. 4 at 22) K.C.S. further admitted that she only assumed respondent was the writer (Tr. 4 at 88); respondent, however, persuasively testified that she did not draft the letter. (Tr. 5 at 24) Indeed, even Ms. Steffner admitted that, up until October 2002, when respondent wrote to Steffner revisiting the issue of the latex allergy (Initial Decision at 4), she did not have a problem with respondent's behavior. (Tr. 2 at 48) Neither has the Board shown that respondent's actions placed J.S. in "unnecessary distress over her own medical care."[3] (Count II) Consequently, Charge II cannot be sustained.

[3] It is not clear on this record whether J.S. still attends Hackettstown High School. K.C.S. testified that, as of January 2003, J.S. was placed under custody of the Division of Youth and Family Services and is still living in New Jersey, although she and her husband are not. (Tr. 4 at 111-112)

In Count III of the tenure charges, the Board alleges:

1. In communicating with the parents of J.S., Ms. Kenny has discussed matters that are unrelated to the provision of student health services and are inappropriate discussions with parents.
2. Ms. Kenny has discussed with the parents a personnel action taken against her by the High School administration for Ms. Kenny's own misconduct.
3. Ms. Kenny has discussed with the parents her own intention to legally challenge the personnel action taken against her and her intention to take legal action against the school district.
4. Ms. Kenny has been critical of the High School principal in her conversations with the parents, A.S. and K.S., and has revealed to the parents information about Ms. Kenny's own disagreements with the High School principal that the parents feel are not the proper subject of discussion between the School Nurse and parents.
5. Ms. Kenny's discussions with the parents were inappropriate and undermined the credibility of the High School Principal and the High School administration as a whole.
6. Ms. Kenny's criticism's of the High School Principal and of the personnel actions taken against her were not related to the health or well being of the student, J.S., nor intended to provide necessary medical information to her parents. Instead, Ms. Kenny's comments were intended to undermine the authority of the High School Principal and to further her own personal interests.
7. The above conduct on the part of Ms. Kenny constitutes conduct unbecoming a teaching staff member. (Tenure Charges, OAL EDU Dkt. No. 1217-03 at 4-5)

For the reasons set forth in her Initial Decision at pages 9 and 10, and accepting the testimony of respondent as summarized by the ALJ, the Commissioner concurs that although respondent's comments to J.S.'s parents about her principal were inappropriate, such comments do not rise to the level of unbecoming conduct.

In Count IV[4] of the tenure charges, the Board alleges, in pertinent part:

4. Pursuant to New Jersey statute, regulations, Department of Education Guidelines, and School District policies and procedures the High School Nurse performs scoliosis screenings for Hackettstown High School students each year.

[4] This charge was brought separately from the prior three counts. For the purposes of this decision, it shall be considered Count IV.

5. The results of such screenings must be documented and placed in the student's health file.
6. Where the results of the scoliosis screening deviate from the norm, the school nurse is required to notify the parents in writing of the results and advise them of the need for additional evaluation by the family health care provider.
7. During the 2001-2002 school year scoliosis screenings were conducted by Ms. Kenny beginning in October 2001.
8. A number of students screened by Ms. Kenny, including the students C.K. and D.U., showed deviations from the norm.
9. Ms. Kenny failed to notify the parents of C.K. and D.U. in writing of the results of the scoliosis examinations which demonstrated deviations.
10. The failure of Ms. Kenny to send out written notices to the parents of C.K. and D.U. was not discovered until January 2003 when a substitute nurse assigned to the High School discovered that the results of the scoliosis screenings of the two students had not been provided to the parents.
11. The parents of C.K. and D.U. were not notified of their child's scoliosis screening results and the need to follow up with their family physician until notices were sent out by the substitute nurse in January 2003.
12. During the 2002-2003 school year scoliosis screenings were conducted by Ms. Kenny beginning in October 2002.
13. Those screenings revealed nineteen (19) freshman students who showed deviations from the norm.
14. Ms. Kenny failed to send written notice to the parents of the results of the scoliosis screenings.
15. Written notices of the results of the scoliosis screenings for the nineteen freshman students were sent out by the substitute nurse in January 2003.
16. The actions of Ms. Kenny in failing to provide the required written notice to the parents of the scoliosis screening results and the recommendation for a follow-up examination has unnecessarily delayed the process for insuring proper detection of scoliosis at the earliest stage.
17. Ms. Kenny's failure to provide the required written notice of scoliosis screenings to parents in a timely manner constitutes conduct unbecoming a teaching staff member. (Tenure Charges, OAL EDU Dkt. No. 1825-03 at 1-3)

Respondent testified that in the absence of specific guidance from the District regarding when and how to notify parents pursuant to a scoliosis screening, she developed her own procedures and made it her practice to complete all screenings first, then notify parents, when she had detected a "positive screening". (Tr. 5 at 49, 50, 56) She further testified that she never received any directions to the contrary. (Tr. 5 at 56) Indeed, Principal Steffner testified that she never established any specific policies with respect to scoliosis screens and she had no involvement with the screening. (Tr. 1 at 84) Superintendent Calabro also testified that she was not familiar with the procedures for scoliosis screening in the high school. (Tr. 3 at 30-31) Neither was she aware whether there was a timetable for sending out the notices, if any, or what the high school's past practice had been in this regard. (Tr. 3 at 31-32)

There does not seem to be any dispute on this record that respondent initiated the scoliosis screenings for the 2002-03 school year in October 2002, and was suspended soon thereafter. Furthermore, as the ALJ noted, "The evidence support[s] respondent's argument that during Kenny's employment, the Board accepted the practice to notify parents of screening results at the conclusion of the semester. Kenny's suspension in November occurred prior to the time she usually sent the notices of the screening results." (Initial Decision at 11) The Commissioner finds, therefore, that, under these circumstances, respondent should not be held accountable for failing to notify the parents of the 19 students for whom deviations were detected in October 2002.

Respondent completed the scoliosis screenings for the 2001-02 school year in the Spring of 2002. With respect to the student C.K., respondent testified:

> [H]er curve was so mild, that it was probably negative. In fact, I have to say I over screen. This curve I felt it was negative, but because it was at the end of the year, I didn't have the opportunity to screen her again. So, rather than send this form [Exhibit P-13] home, I called the parent, and I got her answering machine. So, I waited a couple of days – it might have been a day or two days later, and I called again, and I got the answering machine again. So, what I said is I said, you know, "I screened your child for scoliosis. It looks fine to me, but you may want to have your > pediatrician look at it over the summer." And I didn't send the letter. (Tr. 5 at 53-54)

C.'s mother denied that she ever received a call or message from respondent. (Tr. 2 at 83-84)

Similarly, with respect to the second student, respondent testified that D.U. was a twin whose sister had already been screened and was found to have a mild curve; a letter indicating the same was sent home in December 2001. At that time, respondent spoke with the twins' mother, and, in response to her concern about a scoliosis screening for D.U., respondent explained that D.U. would not be screened until later in the 2001-02 school year. Respondent testified that the girls' mother told her that she would have both girls checked out by their doctor. Therefore, respondent testified, although D. had a mild curve, "I didn't send a letter, because the mother had told me she was going to take them both to the doctor." (Tr. 5 at 55) The next school year, the girls' mother confirmed with respondent that she had done so. (Id.)

Initially, the Commissioner notes that the relevant statute provides:

> Every board of education shall provide for the biennial examination of every pupil between the ages of 10 and 18 for the condition known as scoliosis in accordance with standards jointly established and promulgated by the Departments of Health and Senior Services and Education. Such examination shall be carried out by a school physician, school nurse, physical education instructor or other school personnel properly trained in the screening process for scoliosis. Every board of education shall further provide for the notification of the parents or guardian of any pupil suspected of having scoliosis. Such notification shall include an explanation of scoliosis, the significance of treating it at an early stage, and the public services available, after diagnosis, for such treatment. (emphasis added) N.J.S.A. 18A:40-4.3.

Additionally, the Board has a policy regarding health examinations and immunizations, revised February 13, 2002, which provides, in pertinent part:

> In order to protect the health of the children and staff in district schools, all regulations of the state department of education, the > state department of health and the local board of health shall be scrupulously observed, particularly those dealing with contagious/infectious diseases or conditions. ***

> The chief school administrator shall formulate regulations for this policy and for regular pupil health examinations at appropriate grade levels  for  scoliosis  and other physical examinations required by law. Any health defects revealed by any examination given by the school health services must be reported to the parent/guardian. The board shall review the regulations and adopt those required by law. (Policy 5141.3, Exhibit J-2)

Here, even assuming that there was sufficient cause to notify the parents of C.K. and D.U that their children may have scoliosis, it is undisputed that respondent did not do so in writing.[5] The ALJ, however, found that respondent did telephone C.K.'s mother on two occasions to provide her notification (initial decision at 11); that finding is supported by sufficient, competent and credible evidence in the record. Furthermore, the Board offered no evidence to dispute respondent's testimony with respect to the notification of D.U.'s mother.

Although the Board seeks to invoke guidelines promulgated by the New Jersey Department of Education to establish that parental notification regarding scoliosis screenings must be in writing, and, therefore, respondent was remiss in failing to send P-13 and P-15 to the parents of C.K. and D.U. (Board's Exceptions at 7-9), under these particular circumstances, where it has not been clearly established that notifications were warranted; where, if warranted, neither statute nor code requires that such notification be in writing; and where the record is devoid of evidence that the Board developed procedures consistent with direction provided by

[5] Respondent argues, in this connection, "that the two students for whom notes were found by the substitute nurse had mild curvatures and, given her tendency to over screen, she wanted to re-screen the students before notifying the parents. [She] was the only witness with any type of medical background, who testified with regard to the significance of the findings she made for the two students. The only other witness with any type of medical background, the substitute nurse, never checked to see if the results on the notices were accurate, or, if any documentation existed which showed the students had actually been screened." (emphasis in text) Respondent's reply at 34)

Accordingly, the Initial Decision is adopted for the reasons expressed therein, and amplified above.

Petitioner sought tenure as an elementary school teacher at Plainfield School District retroactive to 1996-97 school year and reinstatement to employment at Calla Charter School. She had been terminated from her principal position at the charter school for failure to obtain the necessary Supervisor's Certificate.

The ALJ determined that petitioner was eligible for the standard certificate following successful completion of the provisional teacher program in 1993-1994 and she would have attained tenure after the completion of the 1995-96 school year. The ALJ noted that it is the "primary responsibility" of the teacher to obtain appropriate certification, however, it was only due to the failure of the school district in processing her paperwork that petitioner did not receive her standard certificate. Thus, the ALJ concluded that petitioner did attain tenure. The ALJ further found that petitioner, though tenured, relinquished her tenure rights in June 2001 when she voluntarily resigned her position. Conversations that she had with school officials, which led her to believe that she could return to Plainfield if the charter school did not work out, could not overcome her voluntary resignation. Petition was dismissed.

The Commissioner agreed with the ALJ's conclusion that petitioner's voluntary, unequivocal resignation terminated any employment rights she may have had in the District. The Commissioner declined to reach to the ALJ's discussion as to whether petitioner acquired tenure status in the District, as resolution of this issue has no bearing on the compelled outcome in this matter. Petition was dismissed.

BEFORE JEFFREY A. GERSON, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF FACTS AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for hearing as a contested case. The matter was heard on October 10, 2003.

The following facts were stipulated to by the involved parties:

1. From September 1989-June 1993 Petitioner Greta Williams was employed by the Plainfield Board of Education as a school based substitute.

2. Commencing September 1993 Petitioner Greta Williams became employed by the Plainfield School District as a classroom teacher in Grade 4. Ms. Williams held a Certificate of Eligibility with Advanced Standing as an elementary school teacher. (Exhibit A)

3. At or around the time Ms. Williams was hired, she completed the required paperwork to allow her to be enrolled in the provisional teacher program. Ms. Williams paid the required fee and a mentor was assigned to her.

4. Ms. Williams was advised by Curtis Brown, Director of Human Resources at the time Ms. Williams was hired, that the district would take care of all the necessary paperwork. Ms. Williams completed her obligations under the provisional teacher program in a timely fashion. (Exhibit D)

5. Mrs. (sic) Williams's employment was continuously renewed each school year through June 2001.

6. Sometime after April 17, 1996, Ms. Williams received a "Notice to Tenured Employees" indicating Ms. Williams' salary for the 1996-1997 school year. The notice also explained that once an employee is tenured, it is unnecessary for the district to provide an employee with an annual employment contract. (Exhibit B)

7. Deleted by the parties.

8. Approximately June 30, 2001, Ms. Williams submitted her resignation from Plainfield to accept the position of school principal at the Calla Charter School for the 2001-2002 school year.

9. Ms. Williams applied for a Supervisor's Certification as required by The Calla Charter School.

10. Approximately July 2001, Ms. Williams learned she did not have a valid teaching certificate as Plainfield failed to submit the appropriate paperwork. Consequently she was not eligible for the Supervisor's Certificate. (Exhibit C)

11. On January 15, 2002, Ms. Williams was terminated from her position with Calla for failure to obtain the Supervisor's Certificate. (Exhibit E)

12. On November 29, 2002, the State Board of Examiners granted Ms. Williams both the teaching certificate and a Supervisory Certificate. (Exhibit F)

DISCUSSION AS TO WHETHER PETITIONER'S ELIGIBILITY FOR STANDARD CERTIFICATES IS SUFFICIENT TO OBTAIN TENURE

A. Tenure Law

The tenure of educational personnel is authorized by the Education Tenure Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:28-1 to –18. Tenure is a status in a particular position created by statute, not the agreement of the parties, therefore, it is a "statutory right imposed upon a teacher's contractual employment" ... that "may not be forfeited or waived." Spiewak v. Rutherford Bd. of Educ., 90 N.J. 63, 77 (1982) (citing, Zimmerman v. Newark Bd. of Educ., 38 N.J. 65, 72 (1962); Red Bank Educ. Ass'n v. Red Bank Bd. of Educ., 78 N.J. 122, 141 (1978)).

Educators who are employed in public schools must hold a valid certificate "to teach, administer, direct or supervise the teaching, instruction or educational guidance of ... pupils in such public schools." N.J.S.A. 18A:26-2. The State Board of Examiners has implemented the certification requirement by authorizing three certificates that an educator may hold: (1) Instructional; (2) Administrative; and (3) Educational Services. N.J.A.C. 6:11-2.3. In order to obtain tenure, an educator must hold the appropriate certificate for his or her position. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-4. An educator may hold more than one type of certificate.

In addition to the three types of certificates an educator may hold, the State Board of Examiners has designated special endorsements under each type of certificate. N.J.A.C. 6:11-2.3. An educator must hold the appropriate certificate and endorsement for his or her position. N.J.A.C. 6:11-6.1.

Therefore, in order to obtain tenure, an educator must hold the appropriate certificate issued by the State Board of Examiners and maintain employment in a position for:

> (a) Three consecutive calendar years, or any shorter period which may be fixed by the employing board for such purpose; or
> (b) Three consecutive academic years, together with employment at the beginning of the next succeeding academic year; or
> (c) The equivalent of more than three academic years within a period of any four consecutive academic years.
> [N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5.]

B. Underlying Arguments Of The Parties

1. Petitioner Williams' Arguments

Petitioner Williams argues she is entitled to statutory tenure as an elementary teacher retroactive to the 1996-1997 school year because she performed all the tasks required to receive her teaching certificate. She claims it is solely due to Plainfield Board of Education failing to properly register her in the provisional teacher program that prevented her from receiving her standard instructional certificate. As support, Petitioner quotes this language used by the State Board of Examiners when it issued Petitioner her teaching and supervisory certificates on November 29, 2002:

> If the school district had enrolled her in the provisional teacher program in 1993 when she was first hired, Ms. Williams would already hold the standard Elementary School teacher certificate. The only difference between the experience completed and the required experience is the > fact that the district did not enroll Ms. Williams in the provisional teacher program. This is not a substantive difference that should preclude certification at this time.

> [Respondent's Brief, Exhibit 3, New Jersey Department Of Education State Board Of Examiners' Decision.]

2. Respondent School District's Arguments

Concerning Petitioner's tenure status, Respondent, quoting Spiewak v. Rutherford Bd. of Educ., 90 N.J. 63, 74 (1982), argues that Petitioner is entitled to tenure if "(1) she works in a position for which a teaching certificate is required; (2) she holds the appropriate certificate; and (3) she has served the requisite period of time." Here, because Petitioner did not obtain the appropriate certifications from the State until November 2002, Respondent claims she cannot claim any rights under the tenure laws. As support, Respondent references N.J.S.A. 18A:28-4:

> No teaching staff member shall acquire tenure in any position in the public schools in any school district or under any board of education, who is not the holder of an appropriate certificate for such position, issued by the State Board of Examiners, in full force and effect.

Respondent cites several cases for support, such as Ahrensfield v. State Bd. of Educ., 126 N.J.L. 543, 544 (1941), which held "[i]t is axiomatic that the right of tenure does not come into being until the precise condition laid down in the statute has been met."

Next, Respondent argues that not only is proper and appropriate certification from the state a prerequisite to obtaining tenure, but Petitioner's years of service without such certification cannot count towards the tenure laws' length of service requirement. As support, Respondent references several cases, including Driscoll v. Bd. of Educ. Of City of Clifton, Passaic County, 165 N.J. Super. 241, 246 (App. Div. 1977), aff'd, 79 N.J. 126 (1979), which held that a board cannot convert substitute teacher's status to regular teacher for purposes of adding time served as substitute to be counted as time served as regular teacher in order to attain tenure status.

C. Actual Possession Of Standard Certificate Is Not Required For Petitioner To Attain Tenure Status

The regulations governing the Provisional Teacher Program to certification are N.J.A.C. 6:11-5.1 to –5.6. Under this program, candidates who have not taken required education courses in order to become certified teachers are permitted to receive a one-year probational certificate and a temporary appointment to the teaching staff in a school approved by the Commissioner of Education. These teachers receive intensive instruction, supervision, and evaluation from a Professional Support Team (PST) at the participating school.

At the end of the one-year period, the provisional certificate lapses. Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-5.5 (b), those who successfully complete the program are granted a standard teacher certificate by the State Board of Examiners. Those evaluated "insufficient" are permitted an additional year of training and supervision. Those evaluated "disapproved" may not continue in the program.

In this matter, it is undisputed that Petitioner completed the provisional teacher program. (See #3 and #4 of the Stipulated Facts). Also, Curtis Brown, who was the Director of Human Resources at the time Petitioner was hired, told Petitioner that the district would take care of all the necessary paperwork. (#4 of the Stipulated Facts). The State Board of Examiners, when issuing to Petitioner the standard instructional and supervisory certificates[1], said that were it not for the failure of the school district to properly enroll Petitioner in the provisional teacher program, she would have had the instructional certificate following her completion of the provisional teacher program in 1993-1994. Also, the school district's failure to properly enroll Petitioner in the program and handle the paperwork as promised is a violation of N.J.A.C. 6:11-5.5, which provides:

> (a) Sixty days after the conclusion of the State-approved district training program, the building principal or an appropriately certified school administrator shall prepare a final evaluation report on the provisional teacher's performance. This report shall be submitted by the building principal or an appropriately certified school administrator directly to the Office of Licensing and Credentials and shall > contain a recommendation as to whether or not a standard certificate should be issued to the provisional teacher.

It is the "primary responsibility" of the teacher to obtain appropriate certification. Ledwitz v. Manalapan-Englishtown Bd. of Educ., 1988 S.L.D. 2497 (St. Bd.), aff'd No. A-2861-87 (App. Div. Feb. 16, 1989). Therefore, even though school officials share some responsibility for checking that teachers are properly certified, it remains the teacher's obligation to obtain any necessary certificates. Sydnor v. Englewood Bd. of Educ., 1976 S.L.D. 113, 117. Nonetheless, it seems unfair to find that a teacher can be harmed for reasonably relying on the promises of the school district that it will properly do its job—a job set out in New Jersey's regulations.

Respondent argues that Jennings v. Highland Park Bd. Of Educ., 1989 S.L.D. 1097 (St. Bd.) overrules Saad v. Dumont Bd. Of Educ., 1976 S.L.D. 440,[2] and other cases that held eligibility for a certificate was sufficient for seniority and tenure. Respondent asserts that Jennings has ushered in a new line of thinking that has retreated from a "balancing of equities" in favor of a more objective analysis. However, Jennings involves a completely different situation. In Jennings, the Petitioner was an athletic trainer for a school—he did not hold a position recognized as an official teaching position. In this matter, Petitioner Williams held an officially recognized position—she was an English teacher. Furthermore, in Jennings, the Petitioner knew he did not have the proper certification and took no steps to remedy it. Here, Petitioner Williams took the necessary steps to remedy her lack of appropriate certification. The only reason Petitioner Williams did not receive her standard instructional certificate was because of the school district's inaction. Consequently, the line of reasoning espoused in Jennings is inapplicable to this case.

There is also case law to lend support to Petitioner's argument that she had tenure following the 1995-1996 school year even though she did not actually possess a standard instructional certificate.[3] For example, in Givens v. Bd. Of Educ. of Newark, 1974 S.L.D. 906, the Commissioner of Education held that Ms. Givens applied in a timely fashion for the required certification, that she possessed the necessary requirements for a permanent certificate, and her inability to obtain the certificate was not of her own doing. Because of these facts, the Commissioner made this determination:

[2] Saad held that retroactive seniority credit was based on eligibility for a certificate, rather than actual possession.

[3] The following are two decisions by the Commissioner of Education which announce the rule that eligibility for, not actual possession of, a certificate is sufficient for employment as a teaching staff member: Kane v. Bd. of Educ. of the City of Hoboken, 1975 S.L.D. 12; and Givens v. Bd. Of Educ. of Newark, 1974 S.L.D. 906.

> [P]etitioner's service as a teaching staff member ... during which she was eligible for and had applied but had not received her teaching certificate, shall be counted in determining whether her total service meets the precise conditions laid down in the statute, N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5, for the acquisition of a tenure status. Ahrensfield v. State Bd. of Education et al., 126 N.J.L. 543 (E. & A. 1941)

Also, it is undisputed that Petitioner completed the application and forwarded it to the school district so that they could "take care of all the necessary paperwork." (#3and #4 of the Stipulated Facts). In Phillips v. New Jersey State Dep't of Educ., State Bd. Of Examiners, 96 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 1006, 1996 WL 784596, ALJ Masin noted form should not prevail over substance in those situations where someone has taken the steps they needed to receive the certificate, are eligible to receive it, and have not received it. In ALJ Masin's denial of Ms. Phillips' application for a certificate he stated:

> While there have been cases where the Commissioner has recognized that form should not prevail over substance and that someone who was eligible for and/or initiated the process to obtain a certificate, but could not produce it in hand at a later date, should nevertheless be given credit for having it, Kane v. Hoboken Bd. of Educ., 1975 S.L.D. 12, 17; Givens v. Newark Bd. of Educ., 1974 S.L.D. 906, 908, these cases have involved situations where the proofs regarding the initiation of an actual application to the State have been more conclusive than the proof herein, which involves only the unsupported testimony at hearing of the teacher that she gave the district the initial paperwork.

In addition, in Hansen v. Runnemede Bd. Of Educ., 1993 S.L.D. 1240, adopted, Comm'r of Educ., Id. at 1256, ALJ McKeown rejected Mr. Hansen's request that the period of time he taught without proper certification—1977-78 through 1981-82—be counted toward his tenure status because Mr. Hansen was not eligible for the standard certificate during that period. In his decision, ALJ McKeown stated:

> Clearly, one of the precise conditions required to be met by those who claim a tenure status is the possession of an appropriate certificate ... I recognize that the Commissioner has held on prior occasions that eligibility for a certificate is the essential ingredient in respect of possessing an appropriate certificate, as opposed to the actual physical possession of such certificate. However, in this case, petitioner did not become eligible for a certificate until ... sometime during the summer 1982
> [Id. at 1253-54 (emphasis added).]

Therefore, because petitioner was eligible for the standard certificate following her successful completion of the provisional teacher program in 1993-1994, it follows that she would have attained tenure status after the completion of the 1995-1996 school year. As pointed out by the State Board of Examiners, it is only due to the failure of the school district in processing her paperwork that Petitioner did not receive her standard certificate.

The purpose of the provisional teaching program is to allow teachers to attain their standard certificate, yet it is also beneficial to the school districts because it eases their burden when searching for qualified teachers. In this matter, it is undisputed that Petitioner did what was required of her to earn a standard certificate. It is also undisputed that the school district failed to handle her paperwork properly, which constitutes a violation of state regulations. It seems unfair to find that a teacher did not attain tenure because of a mistake made by her employer. In addition, it is unfair to hold teachers responsible for making sure that the school districts follow the regulations imposed on them by the state.

DISCUSSION AS TO WHETHER PETITIONER'S RESIGNATION WAS A VOLUNTARY RELINQUISHMENT OF HER TENURE RIGHTS

A. Underlying Arguments Of The Parties

1. Petitioner Williams' Arguments

Petitioner Williams argues she should be reinstated to full-time employment as a teaching staff member at a salary commensurate with her retroactive tenure and seniority entitlement, with all retroactive back pay and employment benefits. In support of this, Petitioner asserts that she did not voluntarily relinquish her tenure because she was told she could "always come back" to the Plainfield school district. Therefore, Petitioner argues that based on that statement she believed she maintained her tenure in the Plainfield school district when she left to go to the charter school.

2. Respondent School District's Arguments

Respondent argues that even assuming Petitioner did acquire tenure with the school board, she cannot claim any tenure rights because she voluntarily resigned from her position in June 2001. Respondent cites several cases, including Cleffi-Miller v. Randolph Bd. of Educ., 97 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 213, 1996 WL 813849), in which the ALJ determined that "Ms. Cleffi-Miller voluntarily resigned from her employment and, thereby, relinquished whatever tenure rights she might possess."[4] For that reason, Respondent asserts that Petitioner's voluntary resignation terminates any tenure rights that might have otherwise accrued.

B. Petitioner's Resignation Is A Voluntary Relinquishment Of Her Tenure Rights

The Commissioner has held that "...resignation effectively terminate[s] ... previous tenured employment with the Board on th[e] date [accepted] and barred all service prior to such date from subsequently accruing to a new tenure entitlement." Solomon v. Princeton Regional School District, BOE, 1977 S.L.D. 650, 655-656, aff'd, St. Bd., Id. at 657. Furthermore, the voluntary resignation of a teacher equals an abandonment of their tenure rights. Kimless v. Township of Woodbridge BOE, 1978 S.L.D. 651, 656 (citations omitted)[5] ("...Such [a] holding is consistent with previous rulings of the Commissioner wherein it was held petitioners voluntarily resigned teaching positions which constituted abandonment of their rights to a tenure claim.").

In Solomon, the petitioner resigned on October 6, 1971 and was re-employed on October 3, 1972. Solomon, supra, 1977 S.L.D. at 651. In Kimless, the petitioner "voluntarily terminated" her employment on November 17, 1972, with the Woodbridge Board of Education and resumed working for it "shortly after the commencement" of the following school year. Kimless, supra, 1978 S.L.D. at 652. In yet another case, the Commissioner held that once a Board accepts a resignation, even if the teacher is rehired the very next day, her service stopped. Tomlin v. Township of Downe, Bd. Of [4] The initial decision was adopted by the Commissioner of Education.

[5] The appeal of this decision to the State Board was withdrawn on January 6, 1982.

Educ., OAL DKT. EDU 1994-84 (Aug. 3, 1984), adopted, Comm'r of Educ. (October 11, 1984), aff'd, St. Bd. (February 6, 1985). The Tomlin decision cited to David Misek v. Township of Willingboro, BOE, 1980 S.L.D. 98, as follows:

> Misek argued that the length of break of his service after his resignation was so short as to render the resignation voidable. The Commissioner adopted the initial decision filed by the administrative law judge in Misek where the judge stated as follows:
>
> ... A resignation, once tendered and accepted as herein, has the same paralyzing effect on prior service for tenure claim purposes on future employment with the same Board even if the period of resignation lasts for one day or for one year. [Id. at 100]
> [Tomlin, supra, EDU 1994-84 at 6.]

In this matter, it is undisputed that Petitioner resigned from the Plainfield school district. (#8 of the Stipulated Facts). Thus, the school district has no obligation to reinstate her to her previous position or any other position for that mater. Case law lends support to this proposition. For example, in Walsh v. Bd. Of Educ. of Middlesex Co. Vocational and Technical High Schools, 97 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 53, 1995 WL 912553, ALJ Thomas determined that upon the acceptance of Ms. Walsh's resignation letter, the school district was not obligated to reinstate her to any teaching position:

> [P]etitioner tendered an ordinary resignation letter. Therefore, when her resignation was accepted, the Board had no further obligation to re-employ her [because] ... there was no obligation to petitioner pursuant to terms set forth in a negotiated bargaining agreement ... and ... there was no duress or "extraordinary concatenation of events" which caused her termination.

Petitioner advances the argument that based on a conversation with Ms. Bryant-Tinley, the human resources director in 2001, she believed she maintained her tenure in the Plainfield school district and could return to the school district after working at the charter school. For this reason, Petitioner argues that she did not voluntarily relinquish her tenure and is entitled to reinstatement to her former position. This argument has no basis in law. Petitioner's resignation was not done impulsively, but was a conscious and deliberate choice on her part because she left to become vice-principal at a charter school. In other words, she voluntarily quit her job to take another one. It is not reasonable to argue that the voluntary leaving of one job for another does not equal the voluntary relinquishment of one's tenure rights. In fact, this seems to be a clear example of a voluntary relinquishment of one's tenure rights. Therefore, when Petitioner voluntarily resigned from her employment, she relinquished whatever tenure rights she might have possessed.

CONCLUSION

Petitioner, though tenured, relinquished her tenure rights in June 2001 when she voluntarily resigned her position. Conversations she had with school officials, which led her to believe she could return to Plainfield if the charter school did not work out cannot overcome her voluntary resignation. Petitioner's case is DISMISSED.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF PLAINFIELD, UNION COUNTY, NEW JERSEY STATE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION AND CALLA CHARTER SCHOOL,	:	DECISION

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions and the Plainfield Board's reply thereto were filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Petitioners exceptions essentially recast and reiterate arguments advanced before the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) below. In that it is determined that such arguments were fully considered and addressed in the Initial Decision, they will not be revisited herein.

Upon his full and independent consideration of the record,[1] the Commissioner agrees with the conclusion of the ALJ that petitioner's voluntary, unequivocal resignation (see letter dated June 15, 2001 from Greta Grace Williams to Dr. Larry Leverett, Superintendent of Schools, Exhibit 1, Board's Letter Memorandum, September 18, 2003), which was subsequently accepted by the Board, terminated any employment rights she may have had in the Plainfield School District. In so determining, the Commissioner declines to reach to the ALJ's discussion as to whether petitioner acquired tenure status in the District, as resolution of this issue has no bearing on the compelled outcome in this matter.

Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL is adopted, as modified above, and the instant Petition of Appeal is hereby dismissed.

Michael Gross, Esq., for respondents (Kenney, Gross, Kovats, Campbell & Pruchnik, attorneys)

Record Closed: December 3, 2003 Decided: December 12, 2003

BEFORE ISRAEL D. DUBIN, ALJ:

CONSOLIDATED PROCEDURAL HISTORY AND DISCUSSION OF FACTS

This matter arises out of a complaint petitioner filed with the Commissioner of Education on August 13, 2003. Among other things, she has alleged that respondents Matawan-Aberdeen Regional High School Board of Education, Superintendent Bruce Quinn, Principal George Hart, and teacher Franklin Wagner failed to provide her daughter, M.L., with an appropriate education and a safe environment in which she would be protected from "bullying" and exposure to inappropriate sexual material and topics during the prior school year. She has asked that the Board be ordered to provide an independent educational assessment of her daughter's needs and ultimately place her in an out-of-district school.

Respondents filed their answer on September 9, 2003, and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case on September 18, 2003. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. A prehearing telephone conference was scheduled for and conducted on October 14, 2003. At that time, petitioner demanded in-home instruction for her daughter, who was suffering from stress-induced asthma, and her niece, A.B., who was soon to be enrolled in the district and had a fractured "ankle/foot." The Board indicated that it would not and could not consider providing in-home instructional services until it received doctors' notes confirming the need for such services.

By letter dated November 20, 2003, the Board advised this court that Ms. C.-L. and her family had moved out of district and enrolled M.L. in the Pleasant Valley Intermediate School in Kunkletown, Pennsylvania. In fact, the Board had already received a request for M.L.'s records from the Intermediate School and was about to forward them. Consequently, the Board requested that this matter be dismissed as moot.[1]

On December 3, 2003, petitioner faxed her objection to the Board's request on personal letterhead with a Kresgeville, Pennsylvania address. While acknowledging that she had, in fact, enrolled her daughter in a new school district, she asked that the district be held in "contempt of court" for having failed to provide in-home instructional services despite having been provided with the necessary doctors' notes. She also asserted that if this matter were dismissed "without first considering the consequences to the next child/victim or family, Matawan-Aberdeen will literally hold a license in the State of New Jersey to run amuck with reckless disregard for the affects to children in it's (sic) district."

DISCUSSION OF THE LAW

An issue is moot when a decision that is being sought in a particular matter will, when rendered, have no practical effect on the existing controversy. In re Conroy, 109 N.J. Super. 453, 458 (App. Div. 1983). In such cases, the issues "that have become moot or academic prior to judicial scrutiny" are generally considered to be ... improper subject[s] for judicial review." Anderson v. Sills, 143 N.J. Super. 432, 437 (Ch. Div. 1976). Therefore, when there has been a change in circumstances that raises doubt concerning the immediacy of the controversy, courts will ordinarily dismiss cases as moot, regardless of the stage to which the litigation has progressed. Ibid.

Here, petitioner is no longer domiciled in Matawan and her daughter is no longer enrolled in its schools. Consequently, she has no basis upon which to demand, and respondent cannot possibly provide, in-home instructional services or any of the other relief she was seeking. There being no remedy or change in the relationship between petitioner and respondent that could possibly result from proceeding with this matter, a hearing would serve no practical purpose.

DECISION AND ORDER

Based upon the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that this matter has been rendered moot by the family's relocation to Pennsylvania and M.L.'s enrollment in a school district in that state. Accordingly, it is ORDERED that this petition be and is hereby DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." Record Closed: December 11, 2003 Decided: December 16, 2003

BEFORE MARGARET M. MONACO, ALJ:

On February 13, 2003, petitioners J.R. and J.R. on behalf of A.R. filed a Verified Petition of Appeal against Ridgewood High School and Ridgewood Board of Education (the Board) challenging certain disciplinary action against A.R. The Board filed an Answer and Affirmative Defenses on March 4, 2003 and the Department of Education transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) where, on March 19, 2003, it was filed for determination as a contested case. A hearing was scheduled for November 12, 2003. By letter dated November 6, 2003, counsel for petitioners advised that an amicable agreement had been reached. Subsequently, counsel for the Board submitted, under letters dated November 12 and December 9, 2003, respectively, the attached Settlement Agreement, along with an excerpt from the minutes of the Board's meeting on November 24, 2003 approving the aforesaid settlement which the undersigned received on December 11, 2003.

Having reviewed the record and the terms of the settlement, I FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures or the signatures of their representatives.
2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that the agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. Accordingly, I approve the settlement and ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

BEFORE ELINOR R. REINER, ALJ:

On or about February 24, 2003, petitioners, B.J. and C.J., filed a petition of appeal with the Commissioner of Education, alleging that respondent's determination that petitioners' children are not eligible for transportation services or payment of aid in lieu of transportation was arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable. On March 11, 2003, respondent filed its answer, contending that it has no obligation to provide petitioners with busing or aid in lieu thereof, since petitioners reside less than two miles from the school that their children attend. Respondent sought dismissal of the petition. On March 27, 2003, the Department of Education, Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, transmitted this matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) as a contested case for hearing pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to –15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to –13.

The matter was assigned to the undersigned judge on May 23, 2003, and a telephone prehearing conference held on June 23, 2003. During the conference, the issues were isolated, and a hearing scheduled for October 17, 2003 at the OAL. Prior to the hearing, the undersigned was informed that the matter had been settled, and thus the hearing was adjourned. A telephone conference was held with counsel, at which time the parties indicated that Board approval of the settlement would be requested at the Board meeting on November 17, 2003. As a result of settlement conferences held between the parties, a settlement was reached and approved by the Board of Education.

The parties have agreed to settle this matter and have prepared the attached Stipulation of Settlement, indicating the terms of settlement.

Petitioner, parent of high school pupil J.C., challenged J.C.'s former District's refusal to expunge certain items from J.C.'s pupil record pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:3-6.1 et seq. The District contended the items at issue were disciplinary records within the scope of applicable rules.

The ALJ concluded that there was no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged; J.C. was entitled to prevail as a matter of law; and the records should be expunged. The ALJ found that the Board failed to provide a reason for it to maintain the disciplinary records of a former student, particularly once it has fulfilled its statutory obligation to provide a thorough and efficient educational system for J.C. or to its other pupils because J.C. was no longer the Board's responsibility. The ALJ ordered the documents destroyed.

The Commissioner rejected the ALJ's analysis and conclusions. Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:3-6.8(c), the pupil record of a pupil who departs a school system may be destroyed only in accordance with the Destruction of Public Records Law, N.J.S.A. 47:3-15 et seq., which specifies that a student's Confidential Disciplinary File is to be retained for "two years after graduation or termination from school system or age 23, whichever is longer." The Commissioner granted summary decision to the Board. Petition was dismissed.

BEFORE JESSE H. STRAUSS, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner J.C. o/b/o J.C., a minor child (J.C.) has petitioned the Commissioner of Education (Commissioner), pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.1 et. seq., for an order that the Bergen County Vocational School District Board of Education (Board) expunge documents from J.C.'s pupil record, which it has retained. The sole issue is whether the Board has the right to retain or maintain the documents in question.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On August 6, 2003 J.C. filed a petition with the Commission to consider a controversy between him and the Board. On September 2, 2003 the Board filed an answer to the petition and affirmative defenses. On October 10, 2003 the Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes of the New Jersey Department of Education transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to –15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to –13, where, on October 10, 2003, it was filed for determination as a contested case.

On October 29, 2003 J.C. filed a motion for summary decision with a supporting letter memorandum and certifications. On November 20, 2003 the Board filed a cross motion for summary decision with certifications and a letter memorandum in support of the cross motion and in opposition to J.C.'s motion for summary decision. On December 4, 2003 J.C. filed a reply to the Board's opposition to summary decision and his opposition to the Board's motion for summary decision.

FACTS

The relevant facts are not in dispute and I FIND them to be the FACTS of this case.

During the 2002-03 school year, J.C., a minor child, was enrolled in tenth grade of the Bergen County Academies (Academies) in Hackensack, part of the Bergen County Vocational School District. In or about January 2003 five Academies students reported to the school administration their concerns about certain curious conduct and statements made by J.C. regarding his anticipated and planned violent conduct against two faculty members by stabbing them. His intentions were communicated to fellow students both orally and through e-mail. They also expressed a belief that J.C. had a weapon or sharp object in his bag. The fellow students also reported that J.C. was displaying signs of suicidal ideation including the preparation of a last will and testament and song lyrics expressing despondence and suicidal thoughts and verbal comments made to fellow students.

Associate Dean Linda Eickmeyer met with each of the five students on January 15, 2003 and had them write down the facts of J.C.'s conduct underlying their concerns. This information was thereafter transcribed by a member of the Dean's staff into statements on January 16. Upon learning of this information on January 15, Dean Eickmeyer and a security officer met with and spoke with J.C. at which time he appeared nervous. When she asked J.C. to empty his pockets, he produced what appeared to be a last will and testament as well as some song lyrics, which expressed suicidal ideation. The Dean contacted J.C.'s mother to come to school, and she also contacted a crisis intervention organization. A representative of the crisis intervention organization recommended an evaluation of J.C. at the Bergen Regional Medical Center (BRMC), and, with the consent of his parents, he was admitted for a psychiatric evaluation. J.C. was given a prescription for therapy at Hi Focus in Paramus. Since J.C. had been accused of making terroristic threats against faculty members, the police investigated and arrested him. He was returned to BRMC for further treatment and was released on or about January 29, 2003.

On February 5, 2003 Academies Principal Patricia Cosgrove met with J.C. and his mother. When J.C. was given the choice of withdrawing from Academies or facing suspension and probable expulsion, he chose to withdraw. On or about February 19, 2003, J.C. pled guilty to harassment and was placed on probation for one year. He thereafter enrolled in the Bogota public schools. On April 4, 2003 Principal Cosgrove forwarded to Bogota High School the entire disciplinary record of J.C. regarding the alleged terroristic threats in compliance with Bogota's request and pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:36-19a. This record consisted of the following: An April 4, 2003 letter from Principal Cosgrove to Bogota High School Interim Principal Tonnes Stave indicating the enclosure of J.C.'s entire disciplinary record; e-mail from J.C. to students dated January 11, 2003; five student interview statements memorializing statements and conduct by J.C. and observations of J.C.; song lyrics written by J.C. expressing suicidal ideation; a last will and testament written by J.C., and a series of letters from Principal Cosgrove to the parents of J.C. written between January 15, 2003 and February 6, 2003. By letter dated June 24, 2003 to the superintendents of the Bergen County Vocational School District and Bogota Public Schools, counsel for J.C. requested the expungement of these records. At a meeting of July 21, 2003, Academies confirmed that it maintained a pupil file for J.C., which contained the documents, which had been sent to Bogota High School and for which J.C. sought expungement. By letter dated July 28, 2003, the Board refused to expunge the documents except for one letter from Principal Cosgrove to J.C.'s parents. By letter dated August 27, 2003, counsel for the Bogota Board of Education advised counsel for J.C. that the documents sought to be expunged would be removed from the Bogota student file for J.C.

LEGAL ANALYSIS

Neither party contends that each other's respective applications for summary decision should be defeated because disputed facts exists except that the Board argues that the certification and purported opinion of Evelyn Wilson, a licensed psychotherapist and marriage and family therapist, should be stricken.

At issue is the right of the Board to maintain pupil records of a student who is no longer attached to its district. The Board contends that there is no basis for expungement of J.C.'s records because they constitute permitted pupil records gathered and maintained within the school system for the purpose of second party review under the purview of the regulations of the Department of Education. The applicability of the regulations upon which the Board relies (N.J.A.C. 6:3-6.1 et. seq.) flows from the statute upon which they are predicated.

N.J.S.A. 18A:36-19 entitled "Pupil records, creation, maintenance and retention, security and access ...." provides in relevant part as follows:

> The State Board of Education shall provide by regulation for the creation, maintenance and retention of pupil records and > for the security thereof and access thereto, to provide general protection for the right of the pupil to be supplied with necessary information about herself or himself, the right of the parent or guardian and the adult pupil to be supplied with full information about the pupil, except as may be inconsistent with reasonable protection of the persons involved, the right of both pupil and parent or guardian to reasonable privacy as against other persons and the opportunity for the public schools to have the data necessary to provide a thorough and efficient educational system for all pupils.

Since J.C. seeks the expungement of the documents in question and the Board has already provided a set of records to Bogota, the following statutory purposes for the creation, maintenance and retention of documents by the Board are not served. J.C., by this expungement petition by his parents on his behalf, is waiving his right to be supplied with necessary information about himself. Additionally, the right of both pupil and parent to reasonable privacy as against other persons is not served by the Board's retention of these records. Instead, the retention of these records could only potentially jeopardize their right of privacy. That leaves as the only possible germane purpose for the Board's retention of these documents "the opportunity for the public schools to have the data necessary to provide a thorough and efficient system for all pupils." [emphasis supplied]

The Board may make a compelling argument as to why the records and documents in question, in the abstract, are pupil records within the meaning of N.J.A.C. 6:3-6.1. They comprise information related to an individual pupil, J.C. They were gathered and maintained within the school system as part of the investigation and evaluation of J.C.'s school-related conduct relative to legitimate concerns over the protection of school personnel, to support J.C.'s well-being and to consider appropriate disciplinary action. Also, they were procured by the school district for the purpose of second party review by Principal Cosgrove in the course of handling the J.C. disciplinary matter.

However, N.J.A.C. 6:3-6.2(c) requires that pupil records shall contain only such information as is relevant to the education of the pupil and is objectively based on the personal observations or knowledge of the certified school personnel who originate the record. Pursuant to the requirement that a district board of education establish written policies and procedures for pupil records, the Board issued such a policy on December 12, 2001, which was revised on May 21, 2003. N.J.A.C. 6:3-6.2(g). Subsection 3 of this regulation requires the Board's policy statement to enumerate and describe the pupil records collected and maintained. Aside from mandated pupil records which are those required by statute, regulation or authorized administrative record, the only other records which may be compiled in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6:3-6.3 are "permitted pupil records." "Permitted pupil records" are those which a district board of education has authorized by resolution to be collected in order to promote the educational welfare of the pupil. Such permitted pupil records must also comply with the regulatory requirements as to relevance and objectivity. N.J.A.C. 6:3-6.3(a)2. The Board's published Student Records Regulation provides that "[t]he collection of the following permitted records is authorized to promote each student's educational welfare:"

1. Personally authenticated observations, assessments, ratings, and anecdotal reports recorded by teaching staff members in the regular course of performing their professional responsibilities and intended for review by another person;

4. Any correspondence with the adult student and/or the minor student's parent...;

8. Withdrawal or transfer form;

10. Records of disciplinary infractions, penalties, and disciplinary hearings; (petition, Exhibit F)

School districts are required to conduct an annual review of all permitted pupil records of currently enrolled pupils to determine the education [sic] relevance of the material and to delete material, which is no longer educational. N.J.A.C. 6:3-6.2(i). Section IX. A. of the Board's Student Records Regulation is consistent with this regulation in that it requires the removal and destruction of information for currently enrolled students which is no longer descriptive of the student's educational situation or necessary to provide educational services to the student. (petition, Ex. F) Even mandated pupil records of currently enrolled pupils may be destroyed after the information is no longer necessary to provide educational services to the pupil. N.J.A.C. 6:3-6.8(b). Finally, Section X of the Board's Student Records Regulation requires that, upon the permanent departure of a pupil from the school system, records other than those permanently retained, will be destroyed. Even the permanently retained records, which consist of just basic information, are not retained where records are transferred to another New Jersey school district. (petition, Ex. F)

N.J.S.A. 18A:36-19a provides that the administrator of any school district, which enrolls a new student shall request the student's records from the school district of last attendance. "The school district of last attendance shall provide to the receiving district all information in the student's record related to disciplinary actions taken against the student by the district." Id. This statute refers to the "transfer" of this information. The Board indeed duly provided such information to the Bogota district. However, the Board erroneously contends that this statute obligates it both to provide such disciplinary records to Bogota and also maintain them. The statute has no such maintenance of records requirement once they have been provided to the receiving district. In fact, Section VI of the Board's own Student Records Regulation requires its custodian of records to "transfer" and "forward" the records to the receiving district. It does not provide for the retention of records by it after transferring them. (petition, Ex. F)

Absent a requirement by this statute to maintain such records once they have been provided to the receiving district, an independent basis for retaining them must be established. The Board's arguments that these records must or may be maintained by it because they meet the criteria of the "pupil records" and "permitted records" regulatory definitions as well as the criteria established by Board policy might be persuasive if J.C. were still a student at the Academies. But, he is not, and, given his age and the circumstances of his departure, there is little likelihood that he might attempt to return. The Board has failed to provide a reason for it to maintain the disciplinary records of a former student, particularly once it has fulfilled its statutory obligation to provide the student's new district with the record. These records are no longer necessary to provide a thorough and efficient educational system for J.C. or other pupils because J.C. is no longer the Board's responsibility. N.J.S.A. 18A:36-19. The records in dispute no longer constitute such information as is relevant to the education of the pupil because the Board is no longer charged with educating former student J.C. N.J.A.C. 6:3-6.2(c) and (i). Since J.C. is not a student at Academies, these records serve no present purpose to promote the educational welfare of or provide educational services to J.C. N.J.A.C. 6:3-6.3(a)2; N.J.A.C. 6:3-6.8(b), and the Board's Student Records Regulation. Simply put, all of the Board's bases for maintaining these records, although arguably valid for a current or non-transferred student, fail with regard to a former student whose records have been provided to the receiving district, because these bases fail the "necessary," "relevance" and "promotional" tests under the applicable statutes and regulations as well as its own Student Records Regulation. If a school district is required annually to destroy pupil data which is no longer educationally relevant for currently enrolled pupils (N.J.A.C. 6:3-6.2(i)), it surely must be required to destroy records of a formerly enrolled pupil which no longer serve an educationally relevant purpose by virtue of the severance of the relationship between the district and that pupil.[1] Finally, the retention of these documents violates the Board's own Student Records Regulation which required the destruction of the documents in issue when J.C. permanently left the district and transferred to another district

I CONCLUDE that, in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b), there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged, and J.C. is entitled to prevail as a matter of Law. The Board's retention of the records in question is improper in that it violates the education statute as well as the regulations thereunder. I further CONCLUDE that the records should be expunged.[2]

[1] Although it has not so argued, the Board would not succeed on a claim that it is necessary to maintain these records in the event that J.C. were to revisit his former school district at some future date and engage in improper conduct. Such circumstances would constitute a criminal rather than educational matter.

[2] In view of my CONCLUSION and the basis for it, I need not address the issue of the admissibility of the Evelyn S. Wilson certification

ORDER

It is hereby ORDERED that summary decision is granted to J.C.; and it is further ORDERED that the Board shall immediately remove the documents at issue from J.C.'s pupil record and destroy them; and it is further ORDERED that the Petition and Exhibits P-2, P-3, R-1 and R-2 are hereby sealed; provided, however, that this order shall not prevent inspection or copying of these documents by the Office of Administrative Law, the Commissioner of Education, the State Board of Education or any reviewing court; and it is further ORDERED that any other person or entity shall have access to these sealed exhibits only by order of a court of competent jurisdiction.[3]

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

[3] It would be counterintuitive, on one hand, to order that the documents in issue be removed from J.C.'s pupil record and, on the other hand, permit those documents, copies of which have been attached to the instant Petition and referred to in the certifications, to become part of the public record in this case.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BERGEN COUNTY VOCATIONAL SCHOOL DISTRICT, BERGEN COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions and the Board's reply thereto were submitted in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 and were duly considered by the Commissioner in reaching his determination herein.

Upon careful and independent review of this matter, the Commissioner has determined to reject the Administrative Law Judge's analysis and conclusions for the reasons set forth below.

N.J.A.C. 6:3-6.8(c) provides that:

> (c) Upon graduation or permanent departure of a pupil from the school system:
>
> 1. The parent or adult pupil shall be notified in writing that a copy of the entire pupil record will be provided to them upon request.
>
> 2. Information in pupil records, other than that described in (e) below,[1] may be destroyed, but only in accordance with the Destruction of Public Records Law, N.J.S.A. 47:3-15 et seq.

[1] (e) provides that:

> The New Jersey public school district of last enrollment, graduation or permanent departure of the pupil from the school district shall keep in perpetuity a permanent record of a pupil's name, date of birth, sex, address, telephone number, grades, attendance record, classes attended, grade level completed, year completed, name of parent(s) and citizenship status.

> Such destruction shall be accomplished only after written parental or adult pupil notification and written parental or adult pupil permission has been granted, or after reasonable attempts at such notification and reasonable attempts to secure parental or adult pupil permission have been unsuccessful. (emphasis supplied)

In the instant matter, J.C. withdrew from the Bergen County Vocational School District to attend school at Bogata High School and, thus, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:3-6.8(c)2, the destruction of his pupil records are governed by the Destruction of Public Records Law, N.J.S.A. 47:3-15 et seq., which specifies that the destruction of public records are to be in accordance with the Records Retention and Disposition Schedules found at http://www.njarchives.org/links/recman.html.

With respect to a student's Confidential Disciplinary File, Record Series No. 0012-0001, the Records Retention and Disposition Schedule for school districts specifies that such file is be retained for "two years after graduation or termination from school system or age 23, whichever is longer." The Commissioner cannot, therefore, grant petitioner the relief he seeks as the Board is prohibited from removing the documents at issue from J.C.'s disciplinary file and destroying them until such time as two years have passed or until J.C. turns 23, whichever is longer.

Accordingly, summary decision is granted to the Board and the petition is hereby dismissed, with prejudice.[2]

IT IS SO ORDERED.[3]

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

Date of Decision: 2/05/04

Date of Mailing: 2/06/04

[2] The Commissioner observes that neither petitioner nor the Board moved to seal any part of the record during the proceedings in this matter. Although the ALJ sealed the petition and certain exhibits on his own volition as a result of his conclusion that the documents at issue were to be destroyed, given the Commissioner's rejection of the ALJ's analysis, there is no basis on which to seal any portion of the record in this matter.

INITIAL DECISION

AGENCY DKT. NO. 132-4/03

JOSEPH GRAZIOSI,
Petitioner,
v.
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF LAWRENCE, MERCER COUNTY,
Respondent.

Michael B. Berman, Esq., for petitioner

John E. Collins, Esq., for respondent (Parker, McCay & Criscuolo, attorneys)

Record Closed: October 9, 2003 Decided: January 8, 2004

BEFORE JOSEPH F. MARTONE, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

In this matter, petitioner, a custodian in respondent's school district, seeks restoration of his sick leave pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1 because his absences were due to a work-related injury. On July 25, 2003, the Commissioner transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for hearing as a contested case. The transmittal from the Commissioner indicates that the threshold issue of whether or not the Commissioner has jurisdiction over the matter absent a petition having been filed with the Division of Workers' Compensation, must be heard first in light of the decision in Schmidtke v. Board of Education of Woodbridge, decided by the Commissioner November 8, 2000 (#361-00). The transmittal further recommends bifurcation with partial initial decision on the threshold issue returned to the agency for review prior to any proceedings on the merits of the claim.

The matter was assigned to me on August 11, 2003, and a telephone conference was scheduled for September 11, 2003, to discuss the status of the matter. This was adjourned at the request of attorney for respondent for medical reasons and the telephone conference was rescheduled for September 23, 2003. This was adjourned because of a power failure and rescheduled for October 8, 2003. At the conclusion of the telephone conference on October 8, 2003, the record closed with respect to submissions on the threshold issue identified above. I requested additional time to complete the Initial Decision in the instant matter because of an extensive caseload and heavy hearing schedule, and a number of other complex, completed cases with earlier deadlines. By an Order of Extension entered on November 25, 2003, the time limit for filing the Initial Decision was extended until January 8, 2004.

A careful review of the pleadings and submissions of the parties in this matter reveals that the essential facts relating to the issues to be addressed herein are not in dispute. For the purpose of deciding the pending motion, the facts set forth as follows are determined to be the facts in this matter for the purpose of deciding the threshold issue.

It is undisputed that petitioner is a custodian employed by respondent. In his Petition of Appeal, petitioner asserts that on, or prior to April 2, 2003, he was so harassed, mistreated and/or maligned by the employer, its agent, servants or employees so as to produce psychological and physiological manifestations of stress. Petitioner asserts that his physician has recommended that he not return to work at this time. Petitioner asserts that respondent has taken the position that the Petitioner must either use his accumulated sick, vacation and personal days or take a leave of absence. Petitioner acknowledges that he has not filed an Employee Claim Petition with the Division of Workers' Compensation.[1] Petitioner further asserts that he has requested that

[1] By letter dated October 15, 2003, attorney for respondent requested that if it is decided that the filing of a workers' compensation claim is necessary, this matter be placed on the inactive list pending the filing and disposition of the respondent reconsider its position, but respondent has not agreed to this request at the time of the filing of the Petition of Appeal. As a result, petitioner is seeking an Order requiring the Lawrence Township Board of Education to restore to his sick day bank the days he was absent from school and to charge such days as absences arising out of and relating to his employment. Respondent either denies the foregoing assertions or neither admits or denies the assertions, but leaves plaintiffs to his proofs.

The transmittal from the Commissioner of Education states that the threshold issue of whether or not the Commissioner has jurisdiction over the matter absent a petition having been filed with the Division of Workers' Compensation, must be heard first in light of the decision in Schmidtke v. Board of Education of Woodbridge, decided by the Commissioner November 8, 2000 (#361-00). The transmittal further recommends bifurcation with a partial initial decision on the threshold issue returned to the agency for review prior to any proceedings on the merits of the claim.

Upon the Department's receipt of the Petition of Appeal in this matter, the petitioner was requested to submit a memorandum of law or letter brief setting forth his legal arguments as to why, in the absence of a claim having been filed with the Division of Workers' Compensation, the matter is properly before the Commissioner, given the determination of the Commissioner in Schmidtke v. Bd. of Ed. of Woodbridge. Respondent was also given an opportunity to submit a response. The legal arguments of the respective parties are summarized hereinafter.

Petitioner's argument

Petitioner relies on language in Schmidtke v. Bd. of Ed. of Woodbridge, decided November 8, 2000, Commissioner's Decision No. 361-00, wherein the Commissioner wrote at page 10 "except for the limited cases such as when the Division of Workers' Compensation has workers' compensation claim because any outright dismissal of the application before the Commissioner would result in a bar to further litigation before the Commissioner based on the statute of limitations.

no jurisdiction or when there is the settlement of a Workers' Compensation case" the matter must go before the Division of Workers' Compensation first for a determination whether or not there was a work related accident. Petitioner also relies on Hern v. Board of Education of Union City, an unreported decision of the Appellate Division, A-339-91T3, October 23, 1992. Petitioner asserts that in Hern, the Appellate Division stated that it could "perceive no valid reason to require Petitioner to engage in a futile gesture or to manufacture an unfounded workers' compensation claim". Hern, supra, slip op. at 4.

Petitioner asserts that this is true in the present matter. Petitioner argues that he is not alleging, nor is there any medical evidence of, any permanent significant injury which is the threshold criterion under Title 34, and that at this point in time there is no determination that petitioner would not be able to return to work without any permanent significant injury if the harassment were to end. Under Hern petitioner could not proceed to the Division of Workers' Compensation with a viable claim. Therefore, petitioner argues that the matter is ripe to be heard by the Commissioner and not by the Division of Workers' Compensation.

Petitioner relies on Dorfman v. Bd. of Educ. of the Township of Neptune, etc., 97 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 512, wherein the ALJ wrote, after reviewing both the Forgash and the Hern cases,

> In circumstances where a workers' compensation claim has not been filed, the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A: 30-2.1 are not suspended, but remain in full force and effect and gives certain rights to any employees of a school district. Where an employee has not filed a worker's compensation case but seeks certain rights under the statutory provision, and a dispute arises as to whether the employee's absence is the result of a personal injury caused by an accident arising out of and in the course of his or her employment, this issue clearly must be decided by the Commissioner of Education.
> [97 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) at 517.]

Based on the above, petitioner requests that this matter be decided by the OAL.

Respondent's argument

In response, respondent argues that a close reading of Schmidtke and the prior decision in Dorfman does not support petitioner's right to bring the instant action without filing a workers' compensation claim petition. Respondent argues that the Schmidtke decision identified only two scenarios where the Commissioner has jurisdiction to determine whether an employee has been absent as a result of a personal injury caused by an accident arising out of and in the course of his employment, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1. The first is when the Division of Workers' Compensation has no jurisdiction, since the employee's absence is less than the seven-day waiting period of N.J.S.A. 34:15-14. The second is when a settlement of the workers' compensation case has occurred, leaving open the issues of work-relatedness and causation.

Respondent argues that, contrary to the petitioner's assertion, the holding in Dorfman, adds nothing to the Schmidtke decision. Although the petitioner has quoted a broad statement by the ALJ in his initial decision, respondent points out that the final decision of the Commissioner in Dorfman, is much more restrictive. Respondent refers to the Commissioner's statement in the final decision in Dorfman as follows:

> The Commissioner finds it appropriate, in this circumstance, to be guided by the Appellate Division's reasoning in Hern, supra, which would not require petitioner to file a workers' compensation claim wherein that claim, on the basis of the length of sick leave involved, would clearly be dismissed. To do so, as noted in Hern, would force petitioner to engage in the futile gesture of pursuing a workers' compensation claim that would not satisfy the minimum seven-day waiting period required by N.J.S.A. 34:15-14. Consequently, the Commissioner agrees that, based on the circumstances herein, he has exclusive jurisdiction to decide the sick leave claim under N.J.S.A. 18:30-2.1. [Emphasis supplied by respondent.]

Respondent argues that it is clear that the Dorfman case fell into the seven-day waiting period exception, an exception which was later recognized by the Commissioner in Schmidtke. Respondent then contends that in the present case, the petitioner seeks to create another exception to the general rule that requires the filing of a workers' compensation petition as a prerequisite to receipt of benefits under N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1 by asserting that he is not seeking workers' compensation permanent disability benefits. Respondent points out that petitioner's argument ignores the fact that the Division of Workers' Compensation also has jurisdiction to award medical benefits and temporary disability benefits after finding the necessary work-relatedness and causation requirements, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 34:15-16, and that N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1 provides for a set-off against board of education salary payments for temporary disability benefits received by the employee. Respondent thus contends that the filing of a workers' compensation case by the petitioner herein would not be a "futile gesture" as that term was used in the Dorfman and Hern decisions.

Discussion

Petitioner herein is seeking the restoration of his sick leave pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1 alleging that his absences were due to a work-related injury. N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1a provides:

> Whenever any employee, entitled to sick leave under this chapter, is absent from his post of duty as a result of a personal injury caused by an accident arising out of and in the course of his employment, his employer shall pay to such employee the full salary or wages for the period of such absence for up to one calendar year without having such absence charged to the annual sick leave or the accumulated sick leave provided in *N.J.S.*18A:30-2 and 18A:30-3. Salary or wage payments provided in this section shall be made for absence during the waiting period and during the period the employee received or was eligible to receive a temporary disability benefit under chapter 15 of Title 34, Labor and Workmen's Compensation, of the Revised Statutes. Any amount of salary or wages paid or payable to the employee pursuant to this section shall be reduced by the amount of any workmen's compensation award made for temporary disability.

As may be seen from the foregoing, this legislation contemplates a relationship between its provisions and those of the Workers' Compensation Act. This relationship was defined and clarified by the State Board of Education in Verneret v. Bd. of Educ. of the City of Elizabeth, 95 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 134. In that case, the State Board stated:

> The question of whether an injury "arose out of and in the course of employment" within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1 is controlled by the standards established under the Workers' Compensation Act. See Theodore v. Dover Bd. of Ed., 183 N.J. Super. 407 (App. Div. 1982). In those instances where entitlement to relief under N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1 is dependent upon whether the injury arose out of and in the course of employment within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 34:15-7 of that Act, the State Board has held that the Commissioner of Education should refrain from exercising his jurisdiction pending a determination of that issue by the Division of Workers' Compensation. Amos v. Board of Education of the Borough of Red Bank, decided by the State Board, February, 3, 1988; Tomkins v. Board of Education of the Township of Hamilton, decided by the State Board, December 2, 1987. See City of Hackensack v.Winner, 82 N.J. 1 (1980); Forgash v. Lower Camden County School, 208 N.J. Super. 461 (App. Div. 1985). But see Hern v. Board of Education of the City of Union City, Docket #A-339-91T3 (App. Div. 1992).
> We reiterate that it is the Commissioner who must determine whether or not the particular facts underlying a claim filed with him for benefits pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1 are such that he should refrain from considering the matter until a determination has been made by the Division of Workers' Compensation. Hackensack v. Winner, supra.

The foregoing language from Verneret makes it clear that the State Board has held in those instances where entitlement to relief under N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1 is dependent upon whether the injury arose out of and in the course of employment within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 34:15-7, the Commissioner of Education should refrain from exercising jurisdiction pending a determination of that issue by the Division of Workers' Compensation.

Subsequent cases have also made it clear that, with certain exceptions, the Division of Worker's Compensation is the proper forum for the resolution of whether a work-related accident is the cause of an injury, and the failure to pursue such a claim is fatal to a request for restoration of sick leave pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1. See, Schmidtke v. Bd. of Educ. of the Twp. Of

Woodbridge, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 10756-98 (Sept. 25, 2000), Final Decision by the Commissioner (Nov. 8, 2000). In Schmidtke, the Commissioner relied on Russo v. Burlington Twp. Bd. of Educ., OAL Dkt. No. EDU 6470-96 (Aug. 8, 1997), Commissioner decision (Sept. 29, 1997), as authority. The Commissioner explained that the petitioner in Russo filed a Workers' Compensation claim but subsequently failed to prosecute it while, in Schmidtke, the petitioner simply chose not to file such a claim with the Division of Workers' Compensation. The Commissioner quoted with approval the language of the ALJ from Russo, supra, which held that:

> Both the statutory provisions and the decision in Verneret envision that a petitioner seeking an award pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1 will in fact present a Workers' Compensation claim and prosecute same. Petitioner cannot be awarded any damages under 18A:30-2.1 until the compensation claim has been determined because under the statute the Board is entitled to a reduction for the Workers' Compensation award made for temporary disability and because under Vernet [sic] the question of whether the injury arose out of and in the course of his employment is to be determined by a proceeding in the Division of Workers' Compensation. As petitioner has voluntarily chosen not to pursue his Workers' Compensation claim, his claim under the school law sick leave statute will be dismissed with prejudice. (Russo Initial Decision at 3)

It should be noted that in the Final Decision in Russo, the Commissioner stated in a footnote that:

> Awards under N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1 are not necessarily conditioned upon presentation of a Workers' Compensation claim, as, for example, when the duration of the absence is insufficiently long to be eligible for such presentation. See Steven B. Hern v. Board of Education of the City of Union City, Hudson County, decided by the Commissioner May 8, 1991, affd State Board of Education August 7, 1991, rev'd and remanded Appellate Division, A-339-91T3, October 23, 1992, remanded State Board of Education March 3, 1993.

As indicated in the foregoing footnote from Russo, one of the exceptions to the general rule is found in Hern v. Board of Education of the City of Union City, Hudson County, Superior Court, Appellate Division, Dkt. No. A-339-91T3, (decided Oct. 23, 1992). In Hern, the Appellate Division noted that if Hern had filed a workers' compensation claim it would have been dismissed for failure to satisfy the seven-day waiting period required by the Workers' Compensation Act. The Appellate Division stated that it could perceive no valid reason to require petitioner to engage in a futile gesture or to manufacture an unfounded workers' compensation claim, Hern, supra, slip op. at 4. In such circumstance, the Appellate Division concluded that the Commissioner of Education has jurisdiction to decide the teacher's request for benefits under N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1 including a determination as to whether the claim arose out of and in the course of employment.

The other exception to the rule is found in Marino v. Willingboro Bd. of Educ., State Board of Education (decided March 1, 2000). In the Marino case, the State Board of Education held that a settlement in Marino's workers' compensation case did not preclude Marino from pursuing his claim for benefits under N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1.

The Commissioner in Schmidtke held that the facts therein did not present circumstances, such as were found in the Hern and Marino cases, which would create an exception to the legal requirement that the Commissioner refrain from exercising jurisdiction in matters alleging entitlement/damages under N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1 due to an injury/illness arising out of and in the course of employment until the Division of Workers' Compensation makes a determination of a work-related injury/illness pursuant to N.J.S.A. 34:15-1.1 et seq.

Petitioner herein relies on language of the ALJ in a prior decision related to this issue in Dorfman v. Bd. of Educ. of the Township of Neptune, etc., 97 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 512. In Dorfman, the petitioner sought to have two days absence charged not against her sick leave, but as and in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1. In the Final Decision, the Commissioner, in reliance on the Hern case, specifically found it appropriate in the circumstance of that matter not to require petitioner to file a futile workers' compensation claim because petitioner failed to satisfy the minimum seven-day waiting period required by N.J.S.A. 34:15-14. The result in Dorfman is entirely consistent with Hern, and creates no other exception to the general rule enunciated in Schmidtke.

In the present matter, petitioner seeks an additional exception to the general rule. He asserts that he is not alleging, nor is there any medical evidence of, any permanent significant injury which is the threshold criterion under Title 34, and that at this point in time there is no determination that petitioner would not be able to return to work without any permanent significant injury if the harassment were to end. Therefore, he argues that, as in Hern he cannot proceed to the Division of Workers' Compensation with a viable claim. However, this scenario is not one of the exceptions to the general rule found in any prior cases. In addition, as pointed out by respondent, petitioner's argument ignores the fact that the Division of Workers' Compensation also has jurisdiction to award medical benefits and temporary disability benefits after finding the necessary work-relatedness and causation requirements, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 34:15-16. Also, N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1 provides for a set-off against board of education salary payments for temporary disability benefits received by the employee. Thus, the filing of a workers' compensation claim petition by the petitioner herein would not be a "futile gesture" as in Dorfman and Hern.

Based on the foregoing discussion, I FIND that both the statutory provisions and the decision in Verneret envision that a petitioner seeking an award pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1 will in fact present a Workers' Compensation claim and prosecute same. I FIND that a petitioner cannot obtain the restoration of sick leave under N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1 until the Workers' Compensation claim has been determined because under the statute the local board is entitled to a reduction for the Workers' Compensation award made for temporary disability and because under Verneret the question of whether the injury arose out of and in the course of employment is to be determined by a proceeding in the Division of Workers' Compensation. I FIND that the only exceptions to this requirement are when the Workers' Compensation claim would be futile because a petitioner fails to satisfy the minimum seven-day waiting period required by N.J.S.A. 34:15-14, and when there is a settlement in a workers' compensation case which does not preclude the pursuit of the claim for benefits under N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1. I FIND that petitioner herein does not fall under either of these exceptions.

For the reasons stated above, I FIND as to the threshold issue that the Commissioner lacks jurisdiction in this matter in the absence of a petition having been filed with the Division of Workers' Compensation. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that because petitioner herein has voluntarily chosen not to pursue his Workers' Compensation claim, his claim under the school law sick leave statute should be dismissed with prejudice. Because I have reached this conclusion, it is unnecessary to bifurcate this matter or issue a partial initial decision on the threshold issue and have it returned to the agency for review prior to any proceedings on the merits of the claim.

However, by letter dated October 15, 2003, attorney for respondent requested that if it is decided this matter merits the filing of a workers' compensation claim, that this matter be placed on the inactive list pending the filing and disposition of such claim. He pointed out that any outright dismissal of the application before the Commissioner would result in a bar to further litigation before the Commissioner because of the statute of limitations. This is not an unreasonable request and I recommend to the Commissioner that this request be granted in the interests of fairness and justice. It is based on this recommendation that I have crafted the language of the Decision and Order to afford to petitioner the opportunity to file a claim petition with the Division of Workers' Compensation.

DECISION AND ORDER

Based on the foregoing, it is hereby ORDERED that in the absence of the filing of a claim petition by or on behalf of the petitioner herein with the Division of Workers' Compensation prior to the issuance of a final decision herein, the petition is hereby DISMISSED based on a lack of jurisdiction.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." IN THE MATTER OF THE DISTRIBUTION :
OF LIQUID ASSETS UPON DISSOLUTION :
OF THE UNION COUNTY REGIONAL HIGH : SCHOOL DISTRICT NO. 1, UNION COUNTY :

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION ON REMAND

Mountainside sought distribution of the liquid assets of the Union County Regional High School District No. 1 upon its dissolution according to the feasibility report prepared by Dr. Fitts in 1995 rather than in accordance with the statutory plan. Under the Fitts report, the regional district's four school buildings and accompanying real estate would be deeded to the school districts in which they were located while the liquid assets would be shared exclusively by Mountainside and Garwood, which did not have any of the regional district's school buildings within their boundaries. The Commissioner dismissed Mountainside's petition citing the absence of that proposed distribution in the referendum; the State Board affirmed the dismissal with modification; the N.J. Appellate Division affirmed the State Board's decision; and the N.J. Supreme Court reversed the Appellate Division's decision and remanded the matter to the State Board. The Supreme Court stressed that the overriding goal of the statutory scheme is to distribute equitably the regional district's assets and liabilities and ordered that Mountainside and Garwood be awarded that sum of the liquid assets in the Fitts report.

The State Board on remand determined that the amount of liquid assets to be distributed to Mountainside and Garwood pursuant to the N.J. Supreme Court's remand includes the entire amount of those assets, not just the $3.3 million identified in Dr. Lobman's 1997 report as available for distribution at that time. The State Board noted $6.9 million of the $8.6 million already distributed needs to be redistributed and another $2 million is now available for distribution, subject to certain contingencies. The State Board remanded this matter to the Commissioner to establish the amount to be distributed, to effectuate the distribution so that 76% of the total liquid assets are received by Mountainside and 24% by Garwood and to establish a payment schedule within a 5-year period. The Commissioner transmitted the matter to OAL for determination in accordance with the State Board's directives.

The ALJ concluded that since the State Board's directives reflect the law of the case, there was no judicial function to be applied and there was no genuine issue of material fact, the matter could be resolved by summary decision. In light of the financial information proffered by the parties and the fiscal agent, the ALJ set up the amount and schedule of the distribution of assets in conjunction with the State Board's directives.

The Commissioner adopted the Initial Decision in its entirety, concurring with the ALJ's conclusions in determining the amounts of liquid assets to be distributed to Mountainside and Garwood and finding the plan for distribution consistent with the State Board's remand.

BEFORE ROBERT J. GIORDANO, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF FACTS AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The Union County Regional High School District No. 1 (District) was established in 1935 by the municipalities Berkeley Heights, Clark, Garwood, Kenilworth, Mountainside and Springfield (constituent districts). In 1993, the majority of the constituent districts applied to the Union County Superintendent of Schools pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18:13-51 et seq. (the Act) to "make an investigation into the advisability of the dissolution of the Regional District." Thereafter, Dr. Leonard Fitts, then the Union County Superintendent, issued a report recommending against dissolution. However, in the event of dissolution, Dr. Fitts recommended that Berkeley Heights, Clark, Springfield and Kenilworth Districts retain the buildings, grounds, furnishings and building equipment located in the respective municipalities. Those constituent districts would assume all remaining debt service and liabilities of the former regional high schools. Mountainside and Garwood alone would share all liquid assets of the regional school district as calculated for the school year of dissolution, such as free balances, excess transportation, equipment and other non-building equipment. If the calculation was to be made based on the October 1, 1994 equalized valuation of property, Mountainside would receive 76% and Garwood 24% of all liquid assets. The Fitts report indicated that the replacement cost of the four high school buildings was $110,608,444.[1]

[1] Although the Fitts report referred to the amount of $110,608,444 as the replacement cost of the four school buildings, this was technically incorrect. The replacement cost of the four school buildings was actually $98,108,444. The Fitts report included the value of the grounds as $12,500,000 (Fitts report, IX (B), p. 44), as well as the amount being attributed to the replacement costs for furnishings, equipment, or additions thereto, thus the amount of $110,608,444 was the total replacement cost for buildings, grounds, furnishings, equipment and additions thereto for the purpose of calculation of the amount of indebtedness to be assumed. N.J.S.A. 18A:13-53.

Despite Dr. Fitts' recommendation to the contrary, the municipalities that favored dissolution petitioned the Commissioner of Education for permission to submit to the voters of each constituent municipality the issue of whether the regional school district should be dissolved.

The Commissioner of Education submitted the dissolution petition to the Board of Review. In November 1995, the Board of Review issued an opinion granting the petition to dissolve on the condition that Kenilworth agreed to accept Garwood High School students in a sending-receiving relationship, if Garwood chose to enter that relationship. The Board of Review also determined that liquid assets would be distributed to each of the six municipalities in accordance with their proportionate property valuations pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:8-24.

On March 8, 1996, Acting Union County Superintendent of Schools, David Livingston, informed the municipalities that the liquid assets would be distributed proportionately to each municipality. However, if the constituent districts desired a different allocation of the liquid assets, it would be necessary for the constituent districts to agree to include this provision in the referendum question. On May 14, 1996, the referendum for dissolution, which included no mention of the distribution of liquid assets, was passed by a majority of the voters in the entire District.

In July 1996, Mountainside wrote to the Commissioner of Education to request that the liquid assets be distributed only to Mountainside and to Garwood, as recommended in Dr. Fitts report. This request was declined, citing the absence of that proposed distribution in the referendum. Assistant Commissioner Peter Contini further declined to follow Dr. Fitts recommendation because the Board of Review never specifically adopted authorized implementation of that recommendation. By decision dated May 5, 1997, the Commissioner of Education denied Mountainside's formal petition to distribute the liquid assets only to it and to Garwood, reaffirming the substance of Contini's letter ruling. Mountainside appealed to the State Board of Education.

The Union County Regional High School District No. 1 was dissolved, effective June 30, 1997. The real property assets, i.e., the four school buildings and grounds were distributed to the four districts in which the buildings are located: Berkeley Heights, Clark, Kenilworth and Springfield.

By decision dated July 1, 1998, the State Board of Education modified and affirmed the Commissioner's decision dismissing Mountainside's petition. Mountainside thereafter appealed the State Board's decision to the Appellate Division, which rejected Mountainside's claims in an unpublished opinion dated October 1, 1999. The Supreme Court granted certification.

In an opinion dated January 30, 2001, the Supreme Court reversed the judgment of the Appellate Division and remanded the matter to the State Board of Education with the direction that Mountainside and Garwood be awarded that sum of the District's liquid assets allotted to them in Dr. Fitts' report. The Court further directed that since the liquid assets of the District have been distributed to each of the municipalities, the State Board was instructed on remand to formulate appropriate payment schedules.

The matter was held in abeyance on February 16, 2001 to allow the parties to attempt to resolve the matter. With the parties being unable to reach an agreement as to the distribution of the liquid assets, the fiscal agent advised the State Board that there were differences among the parties as to the definition of liquid assets and the total amount to be paid to Mountainside and Garwood. The parties submitted supplemental briefs on the question of what constitutes the liquid assets that are to be distributed pursuant to the Supreme Court decision.

Mountainside and Garwood maintained that the liquid assets to be distributed include all assets held by the regional district as of June 30, 1997 other than those assets subject to N.J.S.A. 18A:13-62 and N.J.S.A. 18A:8-24 and which were distributed pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:13-61. The State Board indicated that the amount distributed to Mountainside and Garwood would total approximately $10.6 million.

Berkeley Heights, Clark, Kenilworth and Springfield maintained that the liquid assets at issue are limited to approximately $3.3 million,[2] which was the amount of assets included in the June 30, 1997 report submitted by Dr. Francis Lobman as Union County Superintendent of Schools, and the amount set forth in the tables referenced by the Court in its decision.

The State Board of Education determined that the threshold issue is what constitutes the liquid assets subject to distribution under the Supreme Court decision. The State Board found the position of Mountainside and Garwood to be correct, stating that the thrust of the Supreme Court opinion was the achievement of equity. Further, the Court stressed that the overriding goal of the statutory scheme is to distribute equitably the regional district's assets and liabilities and that the principal tool for achieving such equity is the shifting of debt. The Court held that when there is little or no debt, and the property is valuable, equalization among constituent municipalities cannot be achieved simply by shifting debt.

The State Board interpreted this to show that the Supreme Court's review was focused on the method by which the District's liquid assets should be distributed, not the amount of those assets. The State Board held that the amount of liquid assets to be distributed to Mountainside and Garwood pursuant to the Supreme Court remand includes the entire amount of those assets and not just the $3.3 million identified in the Lobman report as available for distribution at that time. The State Board indicated that the amount included approximately $8.6 million in liquid assets that had been distributed among the six municipalities, approximately $6.9 million of which would need to be redistributed, and that approximately another $2 million was now available for distribution subject to certain contingencies. The State Board was unable to ascertain on the record the exact amount to be distributed. The matter was remanded to the Commissioner of Education to establish that amount and to effectuate its distribution so that 76% of the total liquid assets are received by Mountainside and 24% by Garwood. The State Board directed that, upon verification by the fiscal agent of the amount of the liquid assets remaining and available for distribution, the Commissioner order the immediate distribution of those assets to Mountainside and Garwood. The State Board further directed that, once the Commissioner established the amount of the liquid assets already distributed, he establish a payment schedule whereby 76% of that amount is redistributed to Mountainside and 24% to Garwood within a five-year period.

The Commissioner of Education transferred the matter to the Office of Administrative Law for the purpose of making determinations in accordance with the decision of the State Board of Education. The Commissioner requested a determination of the amount of all liquid assets in accordance with the directives of the State Board decision, which includes all liquid assets of the former District as of June 30, 1997; a determination of the amount of such liquid assets in possession of the fiscal agent available for immediate distribution to Mountainside and Garwood, 76% to Mountainside and 24% to Garwood; to ascertain the total amount of all liquid assets already distributed to the constituent districts of the former District; and to establish a five-year plan for redistribution of all liquid assets from the districts that received them to Mountainside and Garwood, 76% to Mountainside and 24% to Garwood.

The matter was assigned to the undersigned Administrative Law Judge. In a conference held on June 1, 2002 a schedule was established for the submission of documentation addressing those issues. Thereafter, another conference was held on January 1, 2003 wherein it was determined that Mountainside and Garwood[3] would move for summary decision. A motion for summary decision was filed on behalf of the Borough of Garwood, on February 18, 2003. Garwood Board of Education filed a motion for summary decision on February 20, 2003. The Borough of Mountainside filed a motion for summary decision on February 24, 2003. The Mountainside Board of Education joined in that motion by letter dated February 27, 2003.

The Boards of Education of Berkeley Heights, Clark, Kenilworth and Springfield filed briefs in opposition by March 24, 2003. Thereafter, the undersigned received correspondence from the parties regarding an issue as to what comprised the motion record. The undersigned entered an order on May 27, 2003 directing the moving parties to file individual statements of material facts for the purpose of the motions. The parties opposing these motions were directed to file responding statements admitting or disputing each of the facts and the movants' statements. The opposing parties were directed to respond by affidavits setting forth specific facts showing that there is a genuine issue for hearing. The record was to close by June 23, 2003. After various requests to extend the time for submissions, the record closed on August 26, 2003. By Order of Extension, the time by which to file an initial decision was extended to November 24, 2003

JURISDICTION OF THE OAL

While the primary goal of the OAL is to "bring impartiality and objectivity to agency hearings and ultimately to achieve higher levels of fairness in administrative adjudication" by placing judges within a separate agency that is not functionally part of any other agency, see, Unemployed-Employed Council of New Jersey, Inc. v. Horn, 85 N.J. 646, 649-51 (1981), it has not been the Legislature's intent to alter the basic regulatory authority of various agencies. See, In re Uniform Admin. Procedure Rules, 90 N.J. 85, 91 (1982). The New Jersey Supreme Court explained that:

Administrative adjudication continues to be the agency's responsibility, although it is still usually effectuated through a bifurcated process in which the hearing and decisional phases are handled separately. Having replaced the former hearing examiners, administrative law judges now perform the functions previously assumed by such examiners in administrative adjudications. Hence, the ALJ primarily conducts hearings only in contested cases. The agency head retains the exclusive right to decide these cases. The Administrative Procedure Act gives the agency head the power to "adopt, reject or modify the recommended report and decision [of the Administrative Law Judge]." Id. at 91.

Agencies are empowered by the Legislature to administer laws in accordance with the statutory duties that have been selectively delegated to them. The adjudicative functions of administrative agencies are actually an aspect of their regulatory powers and, in essence, do not embrace or constitute an exercise of judicial authority." 90 N.J. supra at 93. In creating an independent Office of Administrative Law, the Legislature intended no alteration of the regulatory authority or basic decisional powers of administrative agencies. The reference to the "independence" of the OAL is directed to that agency's ability to conduct administrative hearings in order to make recommended factual findings and determinations in contested cases. In the Act that established the OAL, the Legislature expressly reserved to the agency heads the power to decide contested cases. In most matters, administrative law judges have no independent decisional authority and an attempt to exercise such authority would constitute a "serious encroachment upon an agency's ability to exercise its statutory jurisdiction and discharge its regulatory responsibilities." 90 N.J. supra. at 94.

The Supreme Court recognized the importance of agency review in holding that an agency's decisional authority over contested cases is "directly and integrally related to its regulatory function." In re Kallen, 92 N.J. 14, 20-22 (1983) (explaining that (1) the Legislature's intent to give agency heads final decision-making power is embodied in at least three statutory provisions and (2) the agency head must be given discretion in implementing the most efficient and effective use of public resources in carrying out an agency's responsibility). The Supreme Court also held that when an agency has taken timely final action, but it came to its decision imperfectly because of a non-substantive error, that matter should be remanded to the agency for correction, and the ALJ's initial decision should not become final because of the defect. King v. New Jersey Racing Comm'n 103 N.J. 412, 423 (1986). Furthermore, the Supreme Court ruled that the agency has the sole power to decide whether it will transmit a case to the OAL as a contested matter. See In re Carberry, 114 N.J. 574, 584-85 (1989).

The Supreme Court's jurisdictional mandate is embodied in both the New Jersey Statutes and the UAPR. While agencies are required to send all contested matters to the OAL, see N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(c), " jurisdiction," which is defined as "the legal power to hear or decide a case," N.J.A.C. 1:1-2.1, is acquired by the OAL only "after it has been determined to be a contested case by an agency head and has been filed with the [OAL], or as otherwise authorized by law, except as provided by N.J.A.C. 1:1-17." N.J.A.C. 1:1-3.2(a). But even before the OAL can obtain jurisdiction over a case, a case "shall be commenced in the State agency with appropriate subject matter jurisdiction." N.J.A.C. 1:1-3.1; see also Upper Freehold Reg'l Sch. Dist. Bd. of Ed. v.

State Health Benefits Comm'n, 314 N.J. Super. 486, 494-95 (App. Div. 1998) (explaining that the judiciary should not assert jurisdiction over a regulatory matter until there has been an exhaustion of remedies by the agency invested with subject matter jurisdiction). In fact, the agency must inform the OAL of the legal authority and jurisdiction upon which it sends each case to be contested. See, N.J.A.C. 1:1-8.2(a)5. Under these provisions, an ALJ is granted the same limited jurisdiction the transmitting agency had when it first acquired a contested matter.

In the instant matter, the State Board of Education remanded the matter to the Commissioner of Education for the limited purpose of establishing the entire amount of liquid assets to be distributed and to effectuate its distribution so that 76% of the total liquid assets are received by Mountainside and 24% by Garwood, that upon verification by the fiscal agent of the amount of the liquid assets remaining and available for distribution, ordering the immediate distribution of those assets to Mountainside and Garwood, and that once he determines the amount of the liquid assets already distributed, establishing a payment schedule whereby 76% of that amount is redistributed to Mountainside and 24% to Garwood within a five-year period.

The Commissioner in turn transmitted the matter to the OAL for determination in accordance with the directives of the State Board of Education. The transmittal identified the matter as a determination of the amount of liquid assets of the former Union County Regional High School District No. 1, and a plan for distribution of same 76% to Mountainside and 24% to Garwood. The transmittal matter further provided that the "remand proceedings" should be conducted in accordance with the letter from Deborah Antanaitis to Robert A. Goodsell, Esq., dated April 29, 2002.

REQUIREMENT OF A HEARING

The State Board of Education is reposed with the authority to promulgate rules and adopt policies, subject to the Administrative Procedure Act (N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq.), make all determinations and exercise such powers as are necessary for the proper administration of the school laws of the State of New Jersey, including those necessary to effectuate the provisions of the law regarding dissolution of a limited purpose regional school district. N.J.S.A. 18A:13-51; N.J.A.C. 6:3-7.1 et seq. The APA, originally enacted in 1968, *L.*1968, c. 410, provides in relevant part that "[i]n a contested case, all parties shall be afforded an opportunity for hearing after reasonable notice," N.J.S.A. 52:14B-9(a), and that "[o]pportunity shall be afforded all parties to respond, appear and present evidence and argument on all issues involved." N.J.S.A. 52:14B-9(c). The APA was amended and supplemented in 1978 by the enactment of legislation creating the OAL. *L.*1978, c. 67; see generally, In re Uniform Admin. Procedure Rules, 90 N.J. at 89-91, 447 A.2d 151. The 1978 amendments specifically authorized the Director of the OAL to "[d]evelop uniform standards, rules of evidence, and procedures, including but not limited to standards for determining whether a summary or plenary hearing should be held to regulate the conduct of contested cases and the rendering of administrative adjudications." N.J.S.A. 52:14F-5(e). The Director exercised this authority by adopting uniform administrative procedure rules, 12 N.J.R. 362(a) (1980), including a rule authorizing ALJs to make "summary decision[s]" in "contested case[s]" which do not involve disputed material issues of fact. N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5. Our Supreme Court has sustained the validity of this rule, noting that it is "related to and, indeed, essential to the proper conduct of administrative hearings in contested cases." Id at 106.

The Court further concluded in that case that the direction in N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-14(e) that a "plenary hearing" be conducted "pursuant to the [APA]" encompasses the summary decision procedures authorized by N.J.S.A. 52:14F-5(e) and N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5. In re Uniform Admin. Procedure Rules, supra, 90 N.J. at 107, 447 A. 2d 151.

It is clear that the right to an evidentiary hearing in the OAL provided by N.J.S.A. 18A:6-20 is subject to the APA and the regulations adopted there under. N.J.S.A. 52:14F-5(f). The State Board's regulations governing "controversies and disputes" expressly state that proceedings in contested cases transmitted to the OAL shall be governed by the Uniform Administrative Procedural Rules, N.J.A.C. 1:1 et seq., which include the summary decision rule. As such, the statutory right to a hearing in the OAL is subject to the summary decision procedures of the APA.

SUMMARY DECISION

The New Jersey Supreme Court has recently redefined the standard for determining motions for summary judgment in Brill v. The Guardian Life Insurance Company of America, 142 N.J. 520 (1995). In Brill, the Court elaborated upon the standards first established in Judson v. People's Bank and Trust Co. of Westfield, 17 N.J. 67, 74-75 (1954). Under the Brill standard, as before, a motion for summary decision [summary judgment] may only be granted where there are no "genuine disputes" of "material fact." The determination as to whether disputes of material fact exist is made after a "discriminating search" of the record, consisting as it may of affidavits, certifications, documentary exhibits and any other evidence filed by the movant and any such evidence filed in response to the motion, with all reasonable inferences arising from the evidence being accorded to the opponent of the motion.

In order to defeat the motion, the opposing party must establish the existence of "genuine" disputes of material fact. The facts upon which the party opposing the motion relies to defeat the motion must be something more than "facts which are immaterial or of an insubstantial nature, a mere scintilla, fanciful, frivolous, gauzy or merely suspicious... ." Judson, supra, at 75 (citations omitted). The Brill decision focuses upon the analytical procedure for determining whether a purported dispute of material fact is "genuine" or is simply of an "insubstantial nature." Brill, supra. at 530. The Court concluded that the same analytical process used to decide motions for a directed verdict is used to resolve summary decision [summary judgment] motions. "The essence of the inquiry in each is the same: 'whether the evidence presents a sufficient disagreement to require submission to a jury or whether it is so one-sided that a party must prevail as a matter of law.' " Id. at 536, quoting Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, Inc., 477 U.S. 242, 251-52, 106 S. Ct. 2505, 2512, 91 *L.Ed.*2d 202, 214.

In reviewing the proffered evidence to determine the motion, the judge must be guided by the applicable substantive evidentiary standard of proof, that is, the "burden of persuasion" which would apply at trial on the merits, whether that is the preponderance of the evidence or the clear and convincing evidence standard. If a careful review under this standard establishes that no reasonable fact finder could resolve the disputed facts in favor of the party opposing the motion, then the uncontradicted facts thus established can be examined in the light of the applicable substantive law to determine whether or not the movant is clearly entitled to judgment as a matter of law. However, where the proofs in the record are such that "reasonable minds could differ" as to the material facts, then the motion must be denied and a full evidentiary hearing held.

Mountainside and Garwood now move for summary decision, asserting that there is no genuine issue of material fact and that the movants are entitled to prevail as a matter of law. An examination of the motion record, as defined by the Order entered May 27, 2003, is essential.

REVIEW OF THE RECORD

For purposes of discussion of the salient facts of this matter, the entire motion record has been reviewed. Of particular significance to the determinations made herein, were the excerpts from the report of the Union County Superintendent of Schools, Dr. Leonard Fitts, dated April 7, 1995 (Exhibit F, Mountainside motion for summary decision), the report of Union County Superintendent of Schools Dr. Francis Lobman, dated June 30, 1997(Exhibit D, Mountainside motion for summary decision), the Fiscal Agents report, August 16 2002 (Exhibit B, Mountainside motion for summary decision), the Fiscal Agents supplemental report, November 5, 2002 (Exhibit C, Mountainside motion for summary decision), and the Comprehensive Annual Financial Report for the Fiscal Year ended June 30, 2002, prepared by the Berkeley Heights Board of Education in its capacity as Fiscal Agent.

The Fitts report identified the manner by which the replacement cost of buildings, grounds, furnishings and equipment was made. The David Brearly School was calculated to have a total replacement cost of $24,519,284. This reflected the construction cost of $17,749,200, cost for furniture and equipment in the amount of $1,419,936, fees in the amount of $1,150,148, and value of land appraised at $4,200,000. The Jonathan Dayton School was calculated to have a total replacement cost of $25,755,082. This reflected the construction cost of $20,968,800, the cost for furniture and equipment in the amount of $1,677,504, the cost of fees in the amount of $1,358,778 and the value of land appraised at $1,750,000. The Arthur L. Johnson School was calculated to have a total replacement cost of $30,119,535. This reflected the construction cost of $22,466,400, the cost for furniture and equipment in the amount of $1,797,312, the cost of fees in the amount of $1,455,823 and the value of land appraised at $4,400,000. The Governor Livingston School was calculated to have a total replacement cost of $30,214,543. This reflected the construction cost of $24,514,800, the cost for furniture equipment in the amount of $1,961,184, the cost of fees in the amount of $1,588,559 and the value of land appraised at $2,150,000. Although these were the figures submitted as of April 7, 1995 and the dissolution was not approved until June 30, 1997, these are the only figures available, and are those apparently relied on by the State Board of Education, as well as the Supreme Court.

The Lobman report dated June 30, 1997, identified the total physical assets located on the properties of the regional district to be valued at a total of $3,228,808.45. These "physical assets" included items such as fuel, supplies, foodservice inventories, pupil transportation vehicles, other vehicles, maintenance equipment, schoolbooks and personal property (Exhibit D, p. five). The "physical assets" remained in place at the property on which they were located. These various "physical assets" were thereafter identified for each of the properties of the regional schools (Exhibit D, pp. 6-8). The total value of the "physical assets" located at the Governor Livingston Regional High School in Berkeley Heights was $883,615.56. The total value of the "physical assets" located at the Arthur L. Johnson Regional High School in Clark was $823,136.37. The total value of the "physical assets" located at the David Brearly Regional High School in Kenilworth was $369,372.50. The total value of the "physical assets" at the Jonathan Dayton Regional High School and Clifton Manor, both in Springfield was $1,152,684.02. The Lobman report further identified shared or rotated equipment and furnishings in the total amount of $38,507.50. Of this amount, $5,999.90 was located at the David Brearly School and $32,507.60 was located at the Jonathan Dayton School.

The Fiscal Agent report dated August 16, 2002 identified distributions from the fund balance at June 30, 1998 in the total amount of $3,770,353. Of this amount, distributions were made to Berkeley Heights in the amount of $1,017,070.96, to Clark in the amount of $830,104.79, to Garwood in the amount of $175,702.52, to Kenilworth in the amount of $482,075.32, to Mountainside in the amount of $558,486.05, and to Springfield in the amount of $706,913.36.

That Fiscal Agent report further identified distributions from the fund balance and capital reserve at June 30, 2000 in the total amount of $1,566,330. Of this amount, distributions were made to Berkeley Heights in the amount of $422,525.09, to Clark in the amount of $344,853.13, to Garwood in the amount of $72,992.67, to Kenilworth in the amount of $200,270.12, to Mountainside in the amount of $232,013.67 and to Springfield in the amount of $293,675.32.

Total distributions from the fund balance and capital reserve to date have been made to Berkeley Heights in the amount of $2,323,211.61, to Clark in the amount of $1,998,094.29, to Garwood in the amount of $248,695.19, to Kenilworth in the amount of $1,057,717.84, to Mountainside in the amount of $790,499.72 and to Springfield in the amount of $2,185,780.30, for a total assets distribution to date in the amount of $8,603,998.95.

The Comprehensive Annual Financial Report for the Fiscal Year ended June 30, 2002, prepared by the Berkeley Heights Board of Education Fiscal Agent, reflected at page 10 a cash balance as of June 30, 2002 in the amount of $4,183,626. Of this amount, $93,247 was designated as special revenue. The special revenue line item identified in the Fiscal Agent report dated August 16, 2002, exhibit B, has attached thereto as exhibit F the combined balance sheet as of June 30, 2001 and 2000. The line item for special revenue reflects cash reserves due to the State of New Jersey in the amount of $94,415. This balance sheet also reflects a reserve for total refunds for tuition payable in the amount of $903,469. After deducting the tuition receivables in the amount of $51,331 the net reserve for tuition refunds payable amounts to $852,137.87. As of June 30, 2002 the cash in general account is $4,090,379. Additional liabilities and reserves are reflected as amounts due other districts for an unemployment reserve in the amount of $609,699 and a reserve for settlement pending lawsuits in the amount of $2,477,211. There also is a reserve for close out expenses in the amount of $100,000. The fiscal agent report dated August 16, 2002 identified the reserve for settlement to be $1,900,000. As reflected therein, the balance of the total reserve for settlement pending lawsuits exceeding that amount is available for immediate distribution.

The assets available, cash and cash equivalents total the amount of $4,090,379. Deducting from that amount the reserves for tuition refunds in the amount of $903,469, unemployment reserves due other districts, in the amount of $609,699, reserves for settlement of lawsuits in the amount of $1,900,000 and a reserve for closeout expenses in the amount of $100,000, leaves a total of $577,211 available for distribution.

Under cover of letter dated April 29, 2002, the Director of Controversies and Disputes, Department of Education, outlined the parameters of the proceeding to take place at the OAL. The proceedings were to determine the amount of the liquid assets in accordance with the directives of the State Board of Education, in its March 6, 2002 decision. This was to include all liquid assets of the former district as of June 30, 1997. Additionally, there was to be a determination of the current amount of such liquid assets in the possession of the fiscal agent available for immediate distribution to Mountainside and Garwood, 76% to Mountainside and 24% to Garwood. Further, the proceedings were to ascertain the total amount of all liquid assets already distributed to the constituent districts of the former district, and to establish a five-year plan for the redistribution of all liquid assets from the districts that have received them to Mountainside and Garwood, 76% to Mountainside and 24% to Garwood.

DISSOLUTION OF LIMITED PURPOSE REGIONAL SCHOOL DISTRICT

Statutory Authority

Notwithstanding the limited purpose for which the instant matter was transmitted to the OAL, an overview of the underlying statute is appropriate to place the matter in its proper context. It is noteworthy that this matter has progressed through a lengthy procedural history, having first been decided by the Commissioner of Education on May 5, 1997 and followed by no less than six subsequent determinations made by the State Board of Education, the Appellate Division of the Superior Court, and the Supreme Court of the State of New Jersey.

The dissolution of a regional school district is governed by the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:13-51, et seq. To that end, the Legislature provided in pertinent part that:

[4] There are tuition receivables in the amount of $51,331. The November 4, 2002 Fiscal Agent report indicates that these amounts have been netted against the payables for a net payment of $852,137.87. However, since the receivables have not been collected, it is prudent to reflect the total amount of the tuition refunds payable. The Fiscal Agent has stated that the amounts payable will be paid upon finalization of the Fiscal Agent's responsibilities. Likewise, receivables may be distributed upon collection, by the Fiscal Agent.

[5] The New Jersey Department of Labor advised the Union County Superintendent regarding the distribution among the constituent districts of the unemployment compensation insurance trust fund. As per the recommendation of Dr. Lobman, the employer contributions are to be distributed as all the other assets. The employee contributions shall be distributed on a pro rata basis considering the number of former regional employees employed at each of the former regional schools.

> The...constituent districts shall take title to and control of all school grounds and buildings, and the furnishings and equipment therein, other than those which had been rotated or shared among the regional schools, situated in their respective districts on the effective date of the ... dissolution as established by the Commissioner. The County Superintendent shall allot a fair proportion of the shared or rotated furnishings and equipment to ... each of the constituent districts in the event of dissolution.
> Upon the assumption of title, each board shall also assume such amount of the indebtedness of the original regional school district as shall have been determined by the board of review .... In the event of a dissolution, the county superintendent and board of review, in determining the amount of indebtedness to be assumed by each constituent district, shall give due regard to the value of school buildings and grounds being conveyed to the constituent district in which those buildings and grounds are located.

The County Superintendent of Schools is charged with dividing the assets and liabilities among the constituent districts pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:13-63, which provides in pertinent part as follows:

> If all of the local districts withdraw from the regional district, such regional district shall be dissolved upon the effective date of the last withdrawal, and its assets and liabilities shall devolve upon the respective withdrawing districts in accordance with the division made by the county superintendent as provided in ... [N.J.S.A. 18A:13-62].

The County Superintendent of Schools shall make a division of the assets and liabilities among the constituent districts in the same manner as provided in N.J.S.A. 18A:8-24, which provides in pertinent part that:

> The county superintendent in a written report filed by him at the end of the school year preceding that in which the new district is created shall make a division of the assets, except school buildings, grounds, furnishings and equipment, and of the liabilities, other than the bonded indebtedness of the original district, between the new district and the remaining district on the basis of the amount of the ratables in the respective districts on which the last school tax was levied, and in determining the amount of assets to be divided, he shall take into account the present value of the school books, supplies, fuel, motor vehicles and all personal property other than furnishings and equipment. In the case of any vehicle used for the transportation of school children, the original cost of the vehicle, less any state aid appropriated therefor, shall be deemed to be the present value.

Against this backdrop, Dr. Frances Lobman, the Union County Superintendent at the time of dissolution, prepared the report on the division of the assets among the constituent districts. The division of assets contemplated to be facilitated by Dr. Lobman specifically excepted school buildings, grounds, furnishings and equipment, other than the shared or rotated furnishings and equipment. The assets subject to distribution in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:8-24 would include all assets except school buildings, grounds, furnishings and equipment. This would include the proportionate distribution of the shared and rotated furnishings and equipment. See N.J.S.A. 18A:13-61. On its face, the Lobman plan for distribution of assets comported with the statutory scheme of the Act. Equally, each of the decisions initially addressing the issue of distribution of assets, from the Commissioner of Education, to the State Board of Education, to the Appellate Division, would seem to have supported this application of the Act.

The Act provides in simple terms that the real property and appurtenances are deeded to the constituent district in which the property is situated. Included in the distribution of the real property is the furnishings and equipment thereon. The legislature contemplated that in the event of a dissolution where a constituent district receives no real property, the indebtedness of that district may be reduced to adjust for the value of the real property received by the other constituent districts. However, the legislature also contemplated the situation where the district receiving no real property would actually be required to assume a share of the indebtedness. The shifting of debt, presumably the bonded indebtedness of the district related to the construction of the facilities, is a reasonable method of equalizing the burden placed on the constituent districts. In the event of a dissolution, the county superintendent and board of review, in determining the amount of indebtedness to be assumed by each constituent district, shall give due regard to the value of school buildings and grounds being conveyed to the constituent district in which those buildings and grounds are located. N.J.S.A. 18A:13-61. The county superintendent shall calculate the amount of indebtedness relating to buildings, grounds, furnishings, equipment and additions thereto so to be assumed on the basis of the proportion which the replacement cost of the buildings, grounds, furnishings, equipment, and additions thereto of the regional district situated in the withdrawing district, or in each of the constituent districts in the event of a dissolution, bears to the replacement cost of the buildings, grounds, furnishings, equipment and additions thereto situated in the entire regional district. N.J.S.A. 18A:13-53.

Inasmuch as school buildings do not fit into any of the typical structures generally valued for appraisal purposes, the traditional methods of valuation may not strictly apply. Since the special purpose and design characteristics of this kind of property make it difficult to identify clearly comparable market data, the use of the cost approach would generally be considered reasonable. Replacement cost is but one factor in the appraisal of properties when utilizing the cost approach. Other factors include land valuation, depreciation, and entrepreneurial profit. Best Foods v. Englewood Cliffs Borough, 19 N.J. Tax 266, 2001. Although there is no mention of depreciation in the Act, it is clear that the language of the Act includes the two distinct terms, "value" and "replacement cost". The shifting of debt would in some measure provide for the depreciation of a school building. Presumably, with the passage of time, the reduction in debt (increase in equity) would be in direct inverse proportion to the depreciation (decrease in value) of the property. In a situation involving the dissolution of a regional district with new buildings and greater debt, the shifting of debt to the constituent district wherein the buildings are located would have virtually the same effect. The withdrawing district with no buildings situated therein would still be left with no building. The debt assumed would bear a reasonable relationship to the value of the building.

Liquid Assets

The parties to the instant matter have raised the issue of what is the definition of liquid assets as such pertains to the dissolution of a regional school district. The provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:8-24 and N.J.S.A. 18A:13-61, previously noted herein, give guidance in examining that issue.

The Act provides, in part, that the constituent districts shall take title to and control of all school grounds and buildings, and all the furnishings and equipment therein, other than those which had been rotated or shared among the regional schools, situated in their respective districts on the effective date of dissolution. A fair proportion of the shared or rotated furnishings and equipment shall be allotted to each of the constituent districts. N.J.S.A. 18A:13-61.

Alternatively, the statutory scheme to be utilized in the distribution of assets is found at N.J.S.A. 18A:8-24. The County Superintendent is to make a division of the assets, "except school buildings, grounds, furnishings and equipment, ... on the basis of the amount of the ratables in the respective districts on which the last school tax was levied, and in determining the amount of assets to be divided, he shall take into account the present value of the school books, supplies, fuel, motor vehicles and all personal property other than furnishings and equipment." (Emphasis added.)

Additionally, the Lobman report as well as the Fitts report was reviewed in order to afford a broad perspective as to the definition of assets. It is noted that the Lobman report identified assets in categories. These included fuel, supplies, food service inventories, pupil transportation vehicles, other vehicles, maintenance equipment, school books and personal property (Lobman report, III(A), p. 5). In addressing the allotment of shared or rotated equipment and furnishings, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:13-61, the Lobman report explained that these "shared and rotated" furnishings and equipment will be distributed by the same methodology as the other assets (Lobman report, III(D), p. 9). The Fitts report referenced furniture and equipment in the section of that report addressing the replacement cost of buildings, grounds, furnishings and equipment (Fitts report, IX(A), pp. 43 and 44). Dr. Fitts alluded to the distinction between equipment in general and "building equipment" in the section regarding the distribution of assets. He recommended that in the event of dissolution, Berkeley Heights, Clark, Kenilworth and Springfield districts would assume the buildings, grounds, furnishings and building equipment.[6] The Garwood and Mountainside districts would receive all liquid assets of the regional school district such as free balances, excess transportation equipment and other non-building equipment (Fitts report, XI(B), p. 47).

[6] There has been no explanation found as to the rationale for including shared and rotated furnishings in the total of assets, when the other furnishings and equipment at the various sites were included in the replacement cost. N.J.S.A. 18A:8-24 distinguishes assets from furnishings and equipment.

Ultimately, the Supreme Court adopted the method for defining distributable assets from the Lobman report. The division of assets included the value attributed to the assets physically located on the properties of the District including the shared and rotated furnishings and equipment in arriving at the $3,267,315.95 figure.

REDISTRIBUTION PLAN

To the extent that monies are to be redistributed, the Commissioner has directed that a five-year plan for the redistribution of all liquid assets from the four constituent districts, 76% to Mountainside and 24% to Garwood. The various proposals submitted include plans for payouts of sums in excess of those identified in the Supreme Court decision; a payout over thirty years (Berkeley Heights); a payout over fifteen years (Clark); a payout over fifteen years (Springfield); and a payout over five years for the undisputed amounts only (Kenilworth). The responsive proposals all contained similar suggestions along the lines of two equal semi-fiscal year payments.

Since redistribution under the directive of the State Board of Education includes the value attributed to the "physical assets" distributed at the time of dissolution and the liquid cash assets distributed in 1998 and 2000, it is reasonable to conclude that those funds are not readily available in the respective budgets of the four constituent districts. A five-year repayment schedule that commences during the second half of the school budget year would extend over six school budget years.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Clearly, the Supreme Court has directed a divergence from the strict application of the statutory distribution scheme in N.J.S.A. 18A:8-24, finding that such strict application of the statute would leave Mountainside and Garwood with a shortfall and the other four districts with a windfall, of the District's assets based on the proportions of the District's operating budget that each municipality contributed. The Court directed the State Board to formulate payment schedules so that Mountainside and Garwood receive their fair share of the District's liquid assets from the other constituent districts in a timely manner.

In turn the State Board directed the Commissioner to carry out that directive. The matter was transmitted to the OAL for implementation of that directive, in establishing the amount of assets previously distributed, and to formulate a payment schedule for the redistribution of those previously distributed assets, 76% to Mountainside and 24% to Garwood over a five-year period. Additionally, there was to be a determination of the current amount of such liquid assets in the possession of the fiscal agent available for immediate distribution to Mountainside and Garwood, 76% to Mountainside and 24% to Garwood.

I CONCLUDE that I am constrained to follow the directive prescribed by the agency in transmitting the matter to the OAL. There is no independent basis to consider the matter. The procedural history of the case is such that the directive from the State Board of Education reflects the law of the case. There is no judicial function to be applied here. The task is simply to identify the assets distributed and available to be distributed, and to formulate a plan for redistribution of the assets. In that regard, I CONCLUDE that there is no genuine issue of material fact as it relates to the task at hand. The parties have proffered all the financial information available that would shed light on the issues of what constitutes those assets contemplated by the Supreme Court and thereafter the State Board of Education. The four constituent districts seek a hearing to relitigate the underlying issues of value, the definition of assets, and the applicability of the statutory scheme in fulfilling the legislative intent. That is not the function here. I CONCLUDE that the matter is one that can be properly resolved by way of summary decision.

From the documentary evidence reviewed and considered and in accordance with the law of the case, I CONCLUDE that the amount of assets previously distributed and now subject to redistribution, 76% to Mountainside and 24% to Garwood includes the value of the assets, including the shared and rotated furnishings and equipment, distributed upon dissolution in the amount of $3,267,315.95. Additionally, those assets distributed in 1998 and 2000, in the amount totaling $5,336,683 are also to be redistributed, 76% to Mountainside and 24% to Garwood. Of the assets still remaining in the possession of the Fiscal Agent, the amount of $577,221 is immediately available for distribution, 76% to Mountainside and 24% to Garwood. The amounts remaining in the possession of the Fiscal Agent, including the amount of $903,469 for tuition refunds payable, $100,000 for closing cost and $1,900,000 for pending litigation are not subject to release by the Fiscal Agent at this time. The Fiscal Agent is charged with the responsibility to distribute the surplus of any of those reserves, after all current liabilities and reserves for contingent liabilities have been taken into account, as it may become available for distribution, 76% to Mountainside and 24% to Garwood. The employee contribution for unemployment insurance is properly distributed to the constituent districts employing the respective employees, in accordance with the provisions of the New Jersey Department of Labor. The employer contribution is an asset subject to the distribution scheme outlined herein, 76% to Mountainside and 24% to Garwood.

I further CONCLUDE that there is no basis to deviate from the directive of the State Board of Education regarding the formulation of a redistribution plan for the previously distributed assets. The payments from the four constituent districts shall reflect the total of assets previously distributed at the time of dissolution and thereafter in 1998 and 2000, over a five-year period. To fulfill the requirements imposed by the State Board of Education regarding redistribution, I CONCLUDE there should be ten semi-yearly payments in accordance with the fiscal year. To accommodate the districts' budget cycles, the first payment shall be made April 15, 2004. Thereafter payments shall be made in equal amounts on October 15, 2004, April 15, 2005, October 15, 2005, April 15, 2006, October 15, 2006, April 15, 2007, October 15, 2007, April 15, 2008 and October 15, 2008. Each of the four constituent districts shall make ten equal payments from the total amount of assets previously distributed, 76% to Mountainside and 24% to Garwood.

ORDER

It is hereby ORDERED that the Fiscal Agent release immediately the sum of $577,211 to Mountainside and Garwood, $438,680.36 to Mountainside and $138,530.64 to Garwood.

It is further ORDERED that the four constituent districts, Berkeley Heights, Clark, Kenilworth and Springfield, hereby initiate the redistribution of assets over five years, commencing April 15, 2004 as follows:

A. Berkeley Heights to Mountainside: ten equal payments of $176,564.08 commencing April 15, 2004, every six months until the last payment due on October 15, 2008.

B. Berkeley Heights to Garwood: ten equal payments of $55,757.08 commencing April 15, 2004, every six months until the last payment due on October 15, 2008.

C. Clark to Mountainside: ten equal payments of $151,855.17 commencing April 15, 2004, every six months until the last payment due on October 15, 2008.

D. Clark to Garwood: ten equal payments of $47,954.26 commencing April 15, 2004, every six months until the last payment due on October 15, 2008.

E. Kenilworth to Mountainside: ten equal payments of $80,386.56 commencing April 15, 2004, every six months until the last payment due on October 15, 2008.

F. Kenilworth to Garwood: ten equal payments of $25,385.23 commencing April 15, 2004, every six months until the last payment due on October 15, 2008.

G. Springfield to Mountainside: ten equal payments of $166,119.30 commencing April 15, 2004, every six months until the last payment due on October 15, 2008.

H. Springfield to Garwood: ten equal payments of $52,458.73 commencing April 15, 2004, every six months until the last payment due on October 15, 2008.

It is further ORDERED that the Fiscal Agent shall continue to account for the current liabilities and reserves for contingent liabilities, and accumulate accounts receivable until those have been fully accounted for. Thereafter, upon completion and acceptance of the final audit, the Fiscal Agent shall disburse the remaining funds, 76% to Mountainside and 24% to Garwood.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

IN THE MATTER OF THE DISTRIBUTION : OF LIQUID ASSETS UPON DISSOLUTION :
OF THE UNION COUNTY REGIONAL HIGH :
SCHOOL DISTRICT NO. 1, UNION COUNTY. :

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION ON REMAND

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Exceptions by the Berkeley Heights, Clark, Kenilworth and Springfield Boards of Education and reply arguments by the Garwood and Mountainside Boards of Education and the Borough of Garwood were submitted in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 and were duly considered by the Commissioner in reaching his determination herein.

In its exceptions, the Berkeley Heights Board (Berkeley Heights) claims that the State Board of Education (State Board) misread the Supreme Court's Order; that the State Board's decision was inappropriate because it significantly altered the Supreme Court's Order; and that the Initial Decision restricted the Board's ability to demonstrate the inequities involved. (Berkeley Heights' Exceptions at 1) Berkeley Heights further claims that the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) erred "when he refused to hold that Mountainside and Garwood are judicially estopped from asserting that the res of this litigation is anything other than $3,267,316" (Ibid.), and when he foreclosed Berkeley Heights from proceeding in an evidentiary hearing to establish the inequities that have developed in light of the erroneous interpretation of the Supreme Court's decision by the State Board. (Id. at 2) Moreover, Berkeley Heights argues that the ALJ's determination is inequitable because it presumes Berkeley Heights' ability to make a substantial payment to Mountainside and to Garwood in the current budget year. (Ibid.) Finally, Berkeley Heights sets forth its position that no payments should be made until all appeals in this matter have been exhausted.[1] (Ibid.)

Like Berkeley Heights, the Clark Board (Clark) maintains that the Supreme Court's decision was based upon the value of liquid assets in the amount of $3,267,216, less prior disbursements, and excepts to the ALJ's consideration of values in excess of those considered by the Supreme Court without affording the parties the opportunity to present testimony. (Clark's Exceptions at 1) Clark also asserts that, in failing to provide the parties an opportunity to present equitable considerations through testimony, the ALJ failed to create an adequate record for appellate review. (Ibid.) Moreover, Clark claims, the arbitrary fixing of a five-year payout, slated to begin in the current budget year, jeopardizes its ability to provide a thorough and efficient education. (Id. at 2) Finally, Clark argues that the ALJ's failure to approve Clark's proposed 15-year payout, without considering the financial impact on the District and/or an opportunity to present testimony, is in error. (Ibid.)

The Kenilworth Board (Kenilworth) filed eight exceptions, summarized as follows:

> 1) Kenilworth argues that the ALJ's conclusion that he "had no independent basis to consider the issues raised by the respondents" (Kenilworth's Exceptions at 1) is incorrect because the State Board's decision entrusted any decision regarding conducting of a hearing to the Commissioner, and that, in the Commissioner's letter transmitting this matter to the ALJ, "was the recognition that the Respondents herein could 'present evidence/testimony to contest the figures presented.'" (Kenilworth's Exceptions at 1-2)

[1] Berkeley Heights states that, in support of its exceptions, it is relying on its Brief in Opposition to the Motions of the Garwood Board of Education and the Mountainside Borough for Summary Decision attached to its exceptions and filed during proceedings before the OAL. (Ibid.)

2) Kenilworth excepts to the ALJ's use of replacement costs as a way of measuring the value of the four school buildings, arguing, inter alia, that "[t]here is a significant difference between the replacement cost to rebuild the David Brearley High School of $17,749,200 which was reflected in the Fitts Report and the book value of the actual building transferred to the Kenilworth Board of Education in June, 1997." (Id. at 3-4) Kenilworth points to evidence presented to the ALJ documenting that the David Brearley High School was built in 1964 at a cost of $3,192,100 and, at the time of appraisal by the American Appraisal Associates, Inc. for the Lobman Report, the high school had an accumulated depreciation of $2,376,341.12 and, therefore, carried a book value of $815,759. (Id. at 3) Kenilworth further claims that the ALJ overlooked the Annual Financial Report from the fiscal year ending June 30, 1997, which found that only $21,351,026 in land, buildings, machinery and equipment were transferred as of June 30, 1997 to the constituent districts. (Id. at 4) Kenilworth also avers that the Lobman Report and the Annual Financial Report for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1997, which set forth the depreciated book value of the assets transferred, "are the figures which should be [used as the] actual value received by the four (4) constituent districts." (Id. at 5)

3) Contrary to the findings of the ALJ, Kenilworth argues, Garwood and Moutainside "were to receive all liquid assets of the regional school district as calculated for the school year of dissolution," and the only liquid asset which existed as of June 30, 1998, Kenilworth avers, was the undesignated free balance of $3,770,353, which was distributed to all six districts based on the tax ratable formula in the Lobman Report. (emphasis in text) (Id. at 5-6)

4) Kenilworth disputes the ALJ's failure to find that the physical assets in the Lobman Report did not constitute liquid assets, and, therefore, not subject to distribution. (Id. at 6) In support of this argument, Kenilworth avers that "[t]he Supreme Court was erroneously led to believe that the only 'liquid' assets at issue was the approximate $3.3 million in physical assets described in the Lobman Report." (emphasis in text) (Id. at 7) Kenilworth claims that the common understanding of liquid assets means cash and assets which can quickly be turned into cash and that the value of physical assets referred to in the Lobman Report are not readily ascertainable. (Id. at 8) As examples, Kenilworth points out that, although it was credited with receiving athletic supplies in the amount of $42,029.16, the athletic supplies transferred to Kenilworth were determined to be unusable. Kenilworth further claims that $65,340 worth of books transferred to Kenilworth were worthless. (Ibid.)

5. Kenilworth points out that the ALJ did not exclude the interest earned on the funds belonging to the Union County Regional High School District from the date of dissolution to present from the redistribution plan and claims that all six districts should share in the distribution of the interest earned as well as the principal which remained after June 30, 1997 held in reserve for liabilities or contingent liabilities, which is now no longer needed for that purpose. (Id. at 9)

6. Kenilworth asserts that all appeals in this matter should be exhausted before any payments are due, claiming that the ALJ did not take into consideration Kenilworth's need to preserve its current expense budget in order to maintain the schools' thorough and efficient education program and its need to enter into debt financing in order to meet its obligations under the five-year repayment plan.[2] (Ibid.) Kenilworth submits that "[m]inimally, the first payment needs to be extended into the 2004-2005 school year." (Id. at 11)

7. Kenilworth takes issue with the ALJ's finding that $577,211 is available for immediate distribution to Garwood and Mountainside, arguing that the fiscal agent's report, setting aside $1,900,000 for pending litigation predates the latest school audit report by one month and was not reviewed by the school auditor. (Id. at 11-12) The financial report (school audit report) for the year ending June 30, 2002, Kenilworth submits, is the only audited report issued by the fiscal agent and there are no free balance funds available for distribution at this time according to the latest audit report. (Id. at 12)

8. Kenilworth asserts that the Initial Decision does not achieve equity, repeating its argument that the use of replacement costs for an existing structure does not represent the true value of the structure/building in that no consideration was given to depreciation to determine current market value. (Ibid.) Moreover, Kenilworth reasserts, when the matter was before the Supreme Court, petitioners' claim was limited to the cash value of the physical assets set forth in the Lobman Report,

[2] The five-year payment plan submitted by Kenilworth at the ALJ's request provided that no payout schedule be implemented until all appeals were exhausted and the funds needed to satisfy Kenilworth's obligations had been identified and set aside by Kenilworth. (Ibid.)

> neither the annual financial reports nor the fiscal agents report were provided to the Court so that the cash funds available for distribution were not addressed, and because the appraisal by American Appraisal, an attachment to the Lobman Report, was not made a part of the record on appeal, the belief that the four constituent high school districts received $110,000,000 worth of land, building, equipment and machinery persuaded the Court to order the distribution of $3.3 million to Garwood and Moutainside only. (Id. at 13-14) Moreover, Kenilworth points out, it had the unique circumstance of reopening a high school building that had been closed for four years and, thus, required over $3.0 million for repair and maintenance and over $1.1 million in start-up costs. (Id. at 15) Kenilworth concludes by stating that "[t]he manner in which this OAL "hearing" was conducted precluded any ability to address the issues related to an equitable distribution of assets belonging to the Union County Regional High School District." (Ibid.)

The Springfield Board (Springfield) argues that the ALJ failed to conduct the required factual determinations, such as factfinding as to the nature of the assets at issue, and the various issues faced by each District which have had an impact on budgets necessitated by the consideration of funds not previously identified as distributable liquid assets, including the value of physical assets. (Springfield's Exceptions at 2) Moreover, Springfield claims, the assets received by Springfield were overvalued, noting that Springfield, as the central location where the vehicles of the regional district were registered and where inventory and computer equipment were listed were attributed as assets of Springfield and were overstated in value.[3] (Ibid.) Noting that the Supreme Court directed that Mountainside and Garwood receive the $3.2 million allotted by Dr. Fitts in his report, Springfield asserts that "[t]he ALJ's determination to broaden this decision without the development of an adequate factual record as to the equities affecting each of the constituent districts was inappropriate and outside the scope of the Court's remand." (Id.

[3] Springfield notes that it initiated an appeal of the overstatement of its asset valuation, but that Springfield settled its appeal in reliance upon the statutory formula being utilized for distribution at that time and with the understanding that the only remaining distribution issue was the $3,267,315.95. (Id. at 3) Springfield claims that it would not have entered into a resolution of its litigation to its own detriment if it had been aware that Mountainside and Garwood would be seeking to recoup the value of additional assets. (Ibid.)

at 3) Springfield also takes issue with the ALJ's use of replacement costs to determine the value of the school buildings in this matter, and asserts that the Annual Financial Report of June 30, 1997, which placed a lower value on the assets at issue and accounted for depreciation, was not given proper consideration. (Id. at 4) Additionally, Springfield claims that the expansion of the assets included in the reimbursement formula is contrary to the Supreme Court's directive, averring that the Supreme Court awarded specific sums to Mountainside and Garwood as allocated by Dr. Fitts in his April 1995 report and there was no discussion of additional assets at issue or that the liquid assets were not, in fact, liquid. (Id. at 4-5) Finally, noting that repayments are to begin during the existing budget year, Springfield claims that, since repayments are not a currently budgeted item, repayment would seriously and adversely impact Springfield's ability to maintain its current educational program and, thus, suggests that payments should commence in the next budget year. (Id. at 5) Since Springfield maintains that debt financing will be needed to fulfill the repayment obligations, it requests that the Commissioner determine that this financing would be outside the cap on current expense budgets. (Ibid.)

In reply to the Kenilworth arguments, the Borough of Garwood (Borough) avers that the State Board determined all the issues which Kenilworth now seeks to relitigate, identifying for distribution to Mountainside and Garwood the $3.3 million of liquid assets in the Lobman Reprt of June 1997, concluding that approximately $6.9 million of the $8.6 million in liquid assets already distributed were to be redistributed to Mountainside and Garwood, concluding that an additional approximately $2 million is available for immediate distribution to Mountainside and Garwood and directing the Commissioner to establish the exact amounts of the identified assets and to set a five-year payment schedule. (Borough of Garwood Reply at 1-

2) Thus, the Borough submits, the issues to be decided by the ALJ upon the matter being referred to the OAL by the Commissioner to implement the State Board's decision were very limited. (Id. at 2) Moreover, the Borough notes that the amounts previously distributed to the constituent districts by the Fiscal Agent and the amounts currently held were supplied to both the parties and the ALJ and were undisputed. (Ibid.)

With respect to Kenilworth's assertion that the ALJ should have rejected replacement costs as a way of measuring the value of the four buildings, the Borough claims that the ALJ did not value the school buildings but, rather, the Supreme Court considered the value of the buildings in reaching its decision regarding the distribution of liquid assets. (Ibid.) The Borough further avers that this was a decision made by the Supreme Court, not the ALJ. (Ibid.) Moreover, the Borough asserts that Kenilworth's exceptions, which criticize the ALJ for not rejecting the decisions of the Supreme Court and the State Board with respect to the distribution of assets set forth in the Lobman Report, suggests that the ALJ should have, in effect, reversed the Supreme Court, which is absurd. (Ibid.) With respect to the distribution of interest earned, the Borough notes that neither the Supreme Court, nor the State Board excluded interest earned subsequent to the year of dissolution and that the State Board directed the determination of funds held by the Fiscal Agent that were available for immediate distribution. (Ibid.)

Turning to Kenilworth's argument that the ALJ failed to take into consideration the current expense budget when setting the payment schedule, the Borough points out that Kenilworth has known since the State Board's decision of March 2, 2002 that it was required to complete payments within five years. (Id. at 3) The Borough also avers that, when Garwood and Mountainside opposed the initial distribution of assets, the district "claimed that repayment of monies in the future would not be a problem if so ordered." (Ibid.) Thus, the Borough argues, the "respondents'' are equitably estopped from claiming hardship at this time. (Ibid.) Moreover, the Borough asserts that Kenilworth's suggestion that the amount to be immediately distributed is not the correct amount should not be considered because the claim is erroneous and, additionally, this issue cannot be raised in its exceptions since Kenilworth did not raise the issue previously. (Ibid.)

In its reply to Kenilworth's exceptions, the Garwood Board (Garwood) avers that the ALJ correctly concluded that he could not consider arguments outside the Commissioner's directive, that "[a]ny plenary hearing could only deal with 'evidence/testimony to contest the figures presented' by the fiscal agent, not to relitigate issues that should have been or were settled years ago." (Garwood Board's Reply at 1-2) With respect to the use of the replacement costs set forth in the Fitts Report, Garwood submits that the time to have disputed that manner of valuation was in 1995, not after this matter made its way all the way to the Supreme Court and remanded to the Commissioner for a final accounting of the monies due Garwood and Mountainside. (Id. at 2) Turning to Kenilworth's allegations that the liquid assets to be distributed are to be limited to the amount calculated for the school year of dissolution, Garwood points out that this contention was rejected by the State Board; that the State Board made it clear that the distribution of assets was not limited to $3,770,353; and that the ALJ correctly did not allow for relitigation of this issue. (Ibid.) Likewise, Garwood asserts that the time to contest the value of the physical assets has long past and that the issue of what constitutes liquid assets was settled by the State Board. (Ibid.) Garwood further asserts that liquid assets are defined by examining N.J.S.A. 18A:13-61, 62 and N.J.S.A. 18A:8-24, not the terminology used in the business environment.

Garwood additionally argues that the ALJ correctly included the interest earned in the amounts to be distributed to Garwood and Mountainside, pointing out that the only reason there is interest accrued is because this matter has taken so long to be resolved. (Ibid.) With respect to the five-year payment plan, Garwood avers that it was not within the mandate of the ALJ to alter the directive of the State Board to establish a five-year payment plan and that Kenilworth was well-aware that this issue was on appeal in 1998 and 2000 when it received cash distributions, and was also aware of the January 2001 and March 2002 decisions of the Supreme Court and State Board, respectively. (Id. at 3) Moreover, Garwood asserts, Kenilworth and the other three districts opposed a stay of the monies which were distributed in 1998 and 2000 proposed by Mountainside, arguing that the money could always be repaid to Garwood and Mountainside should they prevail. (Ibid.)

Garwood further asserts that the ALJ correctly determined that $577,211 is immediately available for distribution based on the Fiscal Agent's 2002 Report. (Ibid.) Turning to Kenilworth's arguments of inequity in the valuation of assets, Garwood submits that this matter was transferred to the OAL "for the limited purpose of establishing the exact amount of monies due to Garwood and Mountainside, not to permit relitigation of stale issues" and that "[a]ny alleged 'inequities' in valuations should not be at issue more than six years after the dissolution of the Regional District." (Ibid.) Finally, responding to the arguments advanced by the Berkeley Heights, Clark and Springfield Boards of Education, Garwood reiterates its arguments set forth above in response to Kenilworth's exceptions and emphasizes that the OAL is not the appropriate place to challenge the State Board's decision, asserting that the Supreme Court and the State Board have already determined that the equities in this matter lie with Garwood and Mountainside. (Id. at 4-5)

In its reply, the Mountainside Board (Mountainside) avers that the exceptions filed by the dissatisfied parties in this matter are not truly exceptions to the ALJ's decision but, rather, are continued expressions of dissatisfaction with the State Board's decision of March 8, 2002. (Mountainside Board's Reply at 2) With respect to Kenilworth's exceptions, Mountainside agrees with the Borough and Garwood that the ALJ correctly concluded that he did not have the authority to address the issues raised by Kenilworth and claims that Kenilworth's dispute is not with the figures presented by the fiscal agent and the plenary hearing it sought would have been one on issues far removed from those incontrovertible figures. (Id. at 3) Mountainside avers that there was no basis for the ALJ even to entertain any consideration of the value of the school buildings and grounds, noting that the Supreme Court and the State Board were well aware when they made decisions that all liquid assets should be distributed to Mountainside and to Garwood and that the Fitts Report valuation of the buildings, grounds, furnishing and equipment at $110,000,000 was based on replacement costs. (Ibid.) Moreover, Mountainside contends, the ALJ properly rejected Kenilworth's position that the liquid assets should be much more limited because the State Board expressly adopted the position of Garwood and Mountainside as to what should be included as liquid assets for the purposes of distributing the value of those assets to Mountainside and Garwood. (Id. at 4)

With respect to the five-year repayment schedule and Kenilworth's claim that the ALJ failed to consider its need to preserve its current expense budget in order to maintain a thorough and efficient educational program, Mountainside points out that Kenilworth received $482,075.32 in 1998 and $200,270.12 in 2000, when it knew that Mountainside and Garwood were asserting that those were monies due to them. (Id. at 4-5) Moreover, Mountainside submits, Kenilworth was fully aware of the amounts that were to be redistributed, including the value of the physical assets it had received and the five-year payment schedule as a result of the March 2002 State Board decision, so that "Kenilworth has had plenty of time to figure out how to pay $80,386.56 to Mountainside and $25,385.23 to Garwood by April 15 of 2004." (Id. at 5)

Mountainside further asserts that there is absolutely no basis for taking exception to accepting the fiscal agent's express representation that he now only needs to hold $1,900,000 of the $2,477,211 in reserve for a pending piece of litigation, thus freeing up $577,211 for immediate distribution. (Id. at 6) Moreover, Mountainside claims that the ALJ did not err in refusing to accede to Kenilworth's efforts to expand the proceeding far beyond the limited issue transferred to the OAL. (Ibid.)

In responding to Springfield's exceptions, Mountainside repeats its assertions that: 1) the directive to the ALJ was not to reexamine the question as to what categories were to be included as liquid assets because the State Board made that determination in its March 2002 decision, in which it expressly adopted Mountainside's position with respect to that issue (ibid.); 2) the ALJ properly did not permit Springfield to expand the scope of this matter when he denied Springfield the opportunity to present evidence as to what it asserts was the true value of the physical liquid assets which it retained, and which were valued in the 1997 Lobman Report (ibid.); 3) the ALJ was correct in not allowing the four districts to reargue the valuation of the buildings and grounds set forth in Dr. Fitts' 1995 Report (id. at 7); 4) with respect to Springfield's assertion that the value of the physical assets should be excluded, Mountainside points out that the State Board's decision specifically directed that the liquid assets to be distributed to Mountainside and Garwood were to include the entire amount of assets, not just the $3.3 million identified in the Lobman Report (ibid.); and 5) given the history of the matter, Springfield has had ample time to ensure that it would be in a position to make repayments that it knew it would be required to make, so that the fault lies with Springfield, not the ALJ, if it failed to do so (ibid.).

Finally, in responding to exceptions submitted by Berkeley Heights and Clark, whose arguments parallel those made by Kenilworth and Springfield, i.e., that physical assets should not be included in the calculation of liquid assets, that the ALJ used replacement value to place a value on the physical assets rather than conducting a hearing to allow the presentation of testimony and evidence in determining the value of the physical assets, that the five-year payment schedule is unjust and affects the ability to deliver a thorough and efficient education, and so forth, Mountainside reiterates its replies set forth above in response to Kenilworth's and Springfield's exceptions, emphasizing that the issues raised are really an expression of dissatisfaction with the State Board's decision. (Id. at 8-9)

Upon a thorough and independent review of the record in this matter, the Initial Decision, the exceptions and the replies thereto, the Commissioner concurs that this matter is one that can be properly resolved by summary decision in that there are no genuine issues of material fact in dispute and the Commissioner is constrained to follow the directive of the State Board's limited purpose remand in this matter. Although Berkeley Heights, Clark, Kenilworth and Springfield object to this conclusion and seek to re-litigate the underlying issues of value, the definition of assets, and the applicability of the statutory scheme in fulfilling the legislative intent, the Commissioner finds that the State Board's remand provides no basis to re-litigate these issues. Notwithstanding the arguments advanced by the four Districts in which the school buildings were located (and retained by these Districts) that the replacement value of the buildings, grounds, furnishings and equipment of approximately $110 million, set forth in the 1995 Fitts Report, does not represent the true value of these assets in that no consideration was given to depreciation to determine current market value, the Commissioner points outs that the State Board's remand has nothing to do with the distribution or redistribution of the buildings and/or building-related assets,[4] nor does the State Board direct that the Commissioner disturb the established value[5] of the liquid assets that were set forth in the 1997 Lobman Report. In the Matter of the Distribution of Liquid Assets Upon Dissolution of the Union County Regional High School District No. 1, Union County, State Board Decision March 6, 2002, slip op. at 8. Rather, the State Board's remand directs the Commissioner solely to: 1) determine the exact amounts[6] of the liquid assets that were distributed among the six municipalities which comprised the regional district and need to be redistributed solely to Mountainside and Garwood; 2) establish a payment schedule whereby 76% of that amount is redistributed to Mountainside and 24% to Garwood within a five-year period; and 3) determine the exact amount of additional liquid assets which are now available for distribution upon verification by the Fiscal Agent, and order the immediate distribution of these additional liquid assets with 76% of that amount being distributed to Mountainside and 24% to Garwood. Union County, supra, at 8-9.

With respect to the arguments put forward by Berkeley Heights, Clark, Kenilworth and Springfield seeking to limit the distribution of liquid assets to the figure of the $3.3 million identified in Dr. Lobman's report of June 1997, the determination by the State

[4] In his Findings of Fact, the ALJ included a listing of all the assets and their previous distribution including the building and building-related assets retained by Berkeley Heights, Clark, Kenilworth and Springfield and the liquid assets that had been previously distributed among the six constituent Districts. (Initial Decision at 15-19)

[5] "Value" is defined as: 1. An amount considered to be a suitable equivalent for something else. 2. Monetary or material worth. (The American Heritage Dictionary of the English Language, New College Edition, 1979, p. 1414)

[6] "Amount" is defined as: 1. The total of two or more quantities; aggregate. 2. A number; sum. (The American Heritage Dictionary of the English Language, New College Edition, 1979, p. 44)

Board in its decision of March 6, 2002 reflects the law of the case.[7] The State Board specifically found that:

> the amount of the liquid assets to be distributed to Mountainside and Garwood pursuant to the New Jersey Supreme Court's remand includes the entire amount of those assets and not just the $3.3 million identified in Dr. Lobman's report of June 1997 as available for distribution at that time. It appears that this amount includes approximately $8.6 million in liquid assets that has been distributed among the six municipalities which comprised the regional district, approximately $6.9 million of which will need to be distributed, and that approximately another $2 million is now available for distribution subject to certain contingencies. (emphasis supplied) (State Board's Decision of March 6, 2002, slip opinion at 8)

Moreover, the Commissioner is compelled to comment on the protestations of Berkeley Heights, Clark, Kenilworth and Springfield that the five-year payment schedule set forth in the Initial Decision is unreasonable and will affect their ability to provide a thorough and efficient educational program.[8] Initially, the Commissioner points out that the State Board specifically directed the Commissioner to establish a payment schedule whereby the redistributions to Mountainside and Garwood would be completed within a five-year period. Given the history of this matter where these Districts received significant liquid asset distributions in 1998 and 2000, knowing that Mountainside and Garwood were challenging these distributions, and given that these Districts knew full well by March 2002, as a result of the State Board's decision, that the liquid assets were to be redistributed and that payments for the redistribution to Garwood and Mountainside were to be made in a five-year payment schedule, the Commissioner finds that the Districts have had ample opportunity to plan for the payments now due to Garwood and Mountainside. The Commissioner, therefore, finds that the payment plan set forth in the Initial Decision is reasonable and consistent with the State Board's directive.

[7] It is noted that the Districts did not file an appeal of the State Board's March 6, 2002 decision.

[8] The ALJ provided an opportunity for the Districts to submit proposals for repayment. The responses included a proposal from Berkeley Heights for a payout over 30 years, proposals from Clark and Springfield for payouts over 15 years, and a proposal from Kenilworth for payouts over five years for the undisputed amounts only.

In a thorough and independent review of the entire matter, therefore, the Commissioner agrees with the ALJ's well-reasoned conclusions in determining the amounts of liquid assets that are to be distributed to Mountainside and Garwood and finds that the plan for the distribution of such assets is consistent with the State Board's remand. Accordingly, the Commissioner has determined to adopt the Initial Decision, in its entirety, for the reasons expressed therein.

IT IS SO ORDERED.[9]

Martin M. Barger, Esq., for respondent (Reussile, Mausner, Carotenuto, Barger, & Steel, attorneys)

BEFORE JOSEPH F. MARTONE, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

In this matter, petitioner sought emergent relief to stay the expulsion of her daughter from school for allegedly assaulting a teacher. Petitioner submitted a petition to the Commissioner of Education, dated January 9, 2004, seeking O.N.'s reinstatement in the general education program. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for hearing as a contested case on January 12, 2004, and oral argument was heard and some limited testimony was taken on January 16, 2004. After the conclusion of the hearing, the ALJ entered an Order on January 20, 2004, concluding that petitioner did not satisfy the requirements for granting of emergent relief and denying petitioner's request.

By a Decision on Motion dated January 28, 2004, the Commissioner of Education concurred with the ALJ denying reinstatement, but indicated that he must be assured that O.N. receives an "appropriate" alternative education program during the pendency of this matter, and required the OAL to supplement the record and determine on an emergent basis that this requirement is complied with. Accordingly, the matter was rescheduled for a second emergent hearing which was held on February 2, 2004. Following this emergent hearing, the within Order was entered.

I will not reiterate the facts and discussion set forth in my prior Order Denying Emergent Relief dated January 20, 2004, or in the Commissioner's Decision on Motion. For purposes of deciding the application for emergent relief, the following additional facts are determined to be undisputed.

It is undisputed that after reviewing the Monmouth Adult Education Commission (MAECOM) Program offered by the Board of Education, the parent refused to accept that as an appropriate alternate program and requested that O.N. be provided with home instruction. By letter dated January 23, 2004, the school district agreed to provide home instruction as an alternate educational service pending the outcome of this matter.

At the hearing, Patrick R. Collum, Superintendent of respondent school district, testified that he is familiar with this matter and indicated that O.N. is now receiving home instruction. He indicated that she was offered MAECOM Program as an alternate placement, but the parent rejected this. O.N. was started on home instruction on Friday, January 30, 2004. He indicated that the home instruction includes instruction in compliance with the Core Curriculum Contents Standards in the subject areas of English, Chemistry, Social Studies, Mathematics, and assistance preparing for the High School Proficiency Assessment. He explained that the home instructor would coordinate this instructional program in its entirety with O.N.'s teachers. The instructor will bring the assignments from the individual subject matter teachers to O.N. and will return the completed assignments, tests, quizzes and other examinations performed by O.N. to the classroom teachers. O.N. will be tested and otherwise examined and she will follow the curriculum of Monmouth Regional High School in all respects. The subject matters will cover all subjects covered in the classroom with the exception of health and physical education, for which the school district is giving a waiver or excuse. It was represented to me that the home instruction program need only amount to five hours per week for non-classified students. The home instructor will also coordinate the teaching schedule with the mother.

On cross-examination by the parent, Mr. Collum indicated that one hour per day is sufficient for home instruction because it is intensive and it is one-on-one. He also indicated that O.N. would get the same credit as being in high school.

O.N. testified that she is age 16. She indicated that the home instructor, who she referred to as a tutor, came on Friday, January 30, 2004, and said to her that she would get all of the work from her teachers. However, the home instructor also stated that if the teachers did not give the work to her, she would not be able to pass the work on to O.N., and it would not be necessary for her to come and provide home instruction. The next scheduled home instruction date is February 3, 2004. The home instructor also indicated that she has not taught mathematics for quite a while, but will teach O.N. the best she could.

N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.1 provides for the suspension or expulsion of a pupil for assault on a district board of education member or employee. N.J.A.C. 6A:16-5.7 is the regulation adopted to specify the procedure to be used when there has been such a student assault on a district board of education member or employee. However, unlike other similar provisions, N.J.A.C. 6A:16-5.7 does not specify the requirements for the placement of students removed for assaulting a teacher. For example, an analogous provision found at N.J.A.C. 6A:16-5.6 deals with the removal of students for assaults with weapons offenses. N.J.A.C. 6A:16-5.6(d) of that section provides that any student that is removed from the general education program pursuant to the above shall be placed in an alternative education program, according to the requirements of N.J.A.C. 6A:16-8. N.J.A.C. 6A:16-5.6(d)1 goes on to provide that if placement in an alternative education program is not available, the student shall be provided home or other out-of-school instruction, according to N.J.A.C. 6A:16-9, until placement is available. Curiously, no similar provision is found in N.J.A.C. 6A:16-5.7.[1]

N.J.A.C. 6A:16-8.3 provides for mandatory student placements, but is also silent as to students removed for teacher assaults pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:16-5.7. N.J.A.C. 6A:16-8.3(a) states that the district shall provide placement for a student in an alternative education program for a student removed from general education for a firearms offense, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:16-5.5, and a student removed from general education for an assault with weapons offense, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:16-5.6. N.J.A.C. 6A:16-8.3(b) provides that if placement in an alternative education program is not available, the student shall be provided instruction at home or in another suitable facility until placement is available, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:16-9.

N.J.A.C. 6A:16-9.1(a) provides that the district is responsible for providing general education students with an appropriate program of home or other out-of-school instruction when placement in an alternative education program is not immediately available for violations of [1] Another curious difference is that N.J.A.C. 6A:16-5.6(g) provides that the chief school administrator shall make the final determination on when the student is prepared to return to the general education program or whether the student shall remain in an alternative education program or receive home or other out-of-school instruction based the nature and severity of the offense, the district board of education removal decision, the results of any relevant testing,

N.J.A.C. 6A:16-5.5 and 5.6, and when home or other out-of-school placements have been ordered by the courts.

N.J.A.C. 6A:16-8.3(b) provides that in all instances, the school district in which a student resides is responsible for the costs of providing the home or out-of-school instruction. N.J.A.C. 6A:16-8.3(c) states that in any instance in which a program of home or other out-of-school instruction is provided, the district shall initiate instructional services to the student no later than five working days after the student has left the general education program.

N.J.A.C. 6A:16-9.2 requires the compliance with the following requirements when providing a program of home or other out-of-school instruction:

> (a) The school district shall assure a multidisciplinary approach to planning the delivery of the following services, and ensure that professionals with appropriate instructional and educational services certificates are consulted. The functions of the multidisciplinary team shall be to:
> 1. Assess and evaluate student needs and establish an appropriate program of home or other out-of-school instruction;
> 2. Develop an Individualized Program Plan that addresses:
> i. The student's individual educational and behavioral needs; and > ii. placement in an appropriate educational program, including transition > back to the general education setting; and > 3. Conduct periodic assessment of the placement, instructional services and student progress and make appropriate revisions to the Individualized Program Plan every 60 days to determine progress and facilitate a transition to another appropriate educational program, if appropriate.
> (b) Each district board of education shall provide home or other out-of-school instruction according to the following minimum standards:
> 1. A record of the student's home or other out-of-school instruction shall be maintained;
> 2. The teacher providing the instruction shall be appropriately certified for the subject or level in which the instruction is given;
> 3. Instruction shall be provided for no fewer than 10 hours per week; assessments or evaluation of the student; and the recommendation of the principal or director of the alternative program in which the student has been placed.

> 4. Instruction may be provided by direct communication to a classroom program by distance learning devices;
> 5. Students shall receive a program that meets the Core Curriculum Content Standards in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:8 and that meets the requirements of the district board of education for promotion and graduation;
> 6. The instructional program shall be in accordance with the student's Individual Program Plan;
> 7. If instruction is delivered in the student's home, a parent or other adult 21 years of age or older who has been designated by the parent shall be present during all periods of home instruction; and
> 8. If instruction is provided in the home, refusal or failure by a parent to comply with the provisions of N.J.A.C. 6A:16-9 shall be deemed a violation of compulsory education laws, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 and 25, and child neglect laws, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 9:6-1 et seq.
> (c) The district shall provide the student with the home or out-of-school placement until the student is placed in another appropriate educational program.

I FIND that there is no basis for distinguishing between the treatment of a student who has been removed for firearms possession or assaults with weapons offenses and a student removed for an assault on a district board of education member or employee. Surely a student who is involved in a possession of firearms offense or an assault with a weapons offense is no less a danger to a teacher at an alternate program or a home instructor than a student involved in a teacher assault. If a school district perceives there to be such a danger, it certainly has the ability to take steps to protect the teacher or apply for emergent relief for modifications to its placement obligations. Therefore, I FIND that respondent is obligated to comply in all respects with the provisions and requirements of N.J.A.C. 6A:16-8.3 and N.J.A.C. 6A:16-9.2 as specified above. I FIND the school district must assess and evaluate the student's needs and establish an appropriate program, develop an individualized program plan to address these needs, conduct periodic assessments, and provide instruction of no less than ten hours per week.

ORDER

Based upon the foregoing, it is hereby ORDERED that emergency relief is hereby GRANTED to petitioner requiring that respondent comply in all respects with the provisions and requirements of N.J.A.C. 6A:16-8.3 and N.J.A.C. 6A:16-9.2 in providing a home instruction program to O.N. It is further ORDERED that this home instruction program shall continue until such time as a final administrative decision is rendered in this matter and an appropriate order is entered with respect to the permanent placement and program to be provided by respondent to O.N.

This order on application for emergency relief may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION who/which by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The final decision shall be issued without undue delay, but no later than forty-five (45) days following the entry of this order. If the COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION does not adopt, modify or reject this order within forty-five (45) days, this recommended order shall become a final decision on the issue of emergent relief in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this remanded emergent matter, which included an audiotape of the hearing conducted at the Office of Administrative Law on February 2, 2004, and the Order of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) have been reviewed.

Upon such review, the Commissioner adopts the recommended Order of the ALJ as he is persuaded, by the totality of the record and the particular circumstances of this case, that such Order affords O.N. an appropriate alternative education during the pendency of this matter.

Accordingly, the recommended decision on motion is adopted. This matter shall proceed to hearing on its merits on March 30, 2004 as contemplated by the ALJ.

VICTORIA CARRELLE,

PETITIONER,

V.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF BLOOMFIELD, ESSEX COUNTY,

RESPONDENT.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning nontenured teacher alleged the Board unilaterally changed the date of her resignation in violation of her contractual rights and school law.

The ALJ concluded that the Board, having adopted a resolution accepting petitioner's offer of resignation on the date chosen by her, failed to adopt a second resolution changing the dates of petitioner's employment as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1. Although petitioner's contract specified that termination may be accomplished by either party giving the other 60 days' notice in writing, the ALJ noted that the Commissioner lacks jurisdiction over subject matter concerning alleged breach of contract. The ALJ ordered the Board to pay petitioner her full salary for the month of December 2002 minus two days' pay.

The Commissioner agreed with and adopted the ALJ's determination that the Board impermissibly accelerated petitioner's resignation date thereby depriving petitioner of her full salary for the month of December 2002. The Commissioner, however, modified the Initial Decision, clarifying that N.J.S.A. 18A:28-8 governing the notice required of any tenured teaching staff member desiring to relinquish his or her position was inapplicable herein; N.J.S.A. 18A:26-10 governing notice requirements for nontenured individuals is the applicable statute. The Commissioner found that this statute, in conjunction with the parties' employment contract, which required the party wishing to terminate employment to give the other party 60 days' notice of such intent, required that petitioner be compensated for the full notice period. Although the Commissioner lacks jurisdiction over disputes that are solely contractual in nature, he does have jurisdiction over contractural claims which are incidental to his obligation to resolve education claims that are the subject of litigation. (B.P., on behalf of B.P. State Board decision) The Commissioner directed the Board to pay petitioner her full salary for the month of December 2002, less the two days' compensation she previously received.

BEFORE KEN R. SPRINGER, ALJ:

Statement of the Case

This is an appeal by a nontenured teacher who complains that respondent Bloomfield Board of Education ("Board") unilaterally changed the date of her resignation in violation of her contractual rights and school law. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-8, petitioner Victoria Carrelle ("Carrelle") tendered her resignation to the Board on sixty-days notice. It is undisputed that the Board adopted a resolution accepting petitioner's offer to resign effective January 1, 2003, but later sought to move up the effective date of her resignation to December 10, 2002. Carrelle contends that, having accepted her resignation effective on a specific date, the Board is "barred" from changing that date unilaterally.

While admitting that it had approved the original resignation date, the Board denies it is under any legal obligation to honor its commitment. Instead, the Board claims to have acted in the interest of its students when it accelerated Carrelle's resignation. Further, the Board maintains that nothing in the language of its collective bargaining agreement with the teachers supports Carrelle's breach-of-contract claim.

For the reasons that follow, Carrelle has no statutory entitlement to receive sixty-days notice of the resignation date. Where, however, the Board failed to adopt a regulation rescinding its earlier acceptance of the original resignation date and establishing a new date, the purported action taken by the district personnel director is invalid and Carrelle is entitled to relief.

Procedural History

On January 10, 2003, Carrelle filed her verified petition of appeal with the Commissioner. Respondent Board filed its answer on February 5, 2003, raising lack of jurisdiction as an affirmative defense. Subsequently, on March 5, 2003, the Commissioner transmitted this matter to the Office of Administrative Law for hearing as a contested case.

In lieu of hearing, the parties submitted a joint stipulation of facts. Both parties filed legal briefs on December 12, 2003. Upon receipt additional information, the record closed on December 23, 2003.

Findings of Fact

All of the facts necessary for disposition of this matter have been stipulated. I FIND the following facts:

Bloomfield Board of Education employed Victoria Carrelle as a nontenured teacher during the 2002-2003 school year. Carrelle's employment contract contained a provision authorizing either party to terminate their agreement "by giving the other party 60 days notice in writing." By letter dated November 1, 2002, Carrelle provided sixty days notice to the Board that she intended to resign and that "her last day of work would be January 1, 2003." At its meeting on November 12, 2002, the Board adopted a resolution accepting Carrelle's resignation effective as of January 1, 2003. On the very next day, Personnel Director Heather Carr wrote to Carrelle advising her of the Board's action.

Nearly a month later, on December 9, 2002, Carr sent a second letter to Carrelle informing her that the Board had found a replacement for her position who was willing to start work on December 11, 2002. Consequently, Carr advised Carrelle that her last day of work had been changed to December 10, 2002. The Board concedes that it failed to adopt a second resolution authorizing the change in retirement date. Carrelle received payment for only two days in December (December 3 and 4, 2002) and received no salary for the remainder of that month.

Conclusions of Law

Based on the foregoing facts and the applicable law, I CONCLUDE that the Board failed to adopt a resolution changing the dates of Carrelle's employment as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1.

Initially, Carrelle urges that the acceleration of her retirement date violates N.J.S.A. 18A:28-8, which mandates that any tenured teaching staff member desiring to relinquish his position,

> . . . shall give the employing board of education at least 60 days written notice of his intention, unless the board shall approve of a release on shorter notice and if he fails to give such notice he shall be deemed guilty of unprofessional conduct and the commissioner may suspend his certificate for not more than one year.

Although this statute on its face is applicable to tenured teachers, state regulations provide for similar disciplinary action against any "teacher" who leaves school employment before the expiration of his term without the consent of the district board of education. N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.8.

Because the school laws obligate a teacher to give at least sixty days notice of an intended resignation, however, it does not automatically follow that a school board has a mutual obligation to give an equivalent notice to the staff member. To the contrary, if the Legislature had wanted to impose a corresponding duty on school boards, it could easily have done so. Furthermore, the one-sided nature of the statute indicates that the underlying legislative purpose is to prevent disruption of the children's education. Allen v. Newark Bd. of Educ., 96 *N.J.A.R.*2d (EDU) 688 (Comm'r Nov. 30, 1994), 1994 W.L 912214 (N.J. Admin.).

Nevertheless, boards of education must comply with the procedural requirements enunciated in their enabling legislation. An administrative body is a creature of legislation, which must act within the bounds of authority delegated to it. Matter of Closing of Jamesburg High Sch., 83 N.J. 540, 549 (1980). N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1 authorizes a board of education to determine personnel matters, including removal of an employee, "only upon recommendation of the chief school administrator and by a recorded roll call majority vote of the full membership of the board." Significantly, the Board has not pointed to any other statute or contractual provision permitting unilateral change of a teacher's scheduled date of retirement.

Uncontradicted evidence establishes that the Board adopted a resolution accepting Carrelle's offer of resignation on the date chosen by her. It never adopted a second resolution rescinding its approval or changing the date of resignation. Therefore, Carrelle's resignation took effect on January 1, 2003, as approved by the Board. The personnel director exceeded her legitimate authority when she sought to shorten the resignation date specified in the Board resolution. Strict compliance with the statutory procedures is especially critical here, where another administrative law judge criticized the same district's unilateral change of a teacher's retirement date as "equitably wrong." Bloomfield Educ. Ass'n v. Board of Educ., 2003 WL 22805063

Collective bargaining agreements often spell out procedures for ending the employment relationship of tenured teachers during the course of a school year. Relying on a recent arbitration order and award, the Board maintains that the collective bargaining agreement does not contain any language prohibiting it from changing a teacher's retirement date. In re Arbitration Between Bloomfield Bd. of Educ. and Bloomfield Educ. Ass'n, PERS, Dkt. No. AR-2002-298 (June 6, 2002). Rights and remedies of nontenured teachers, however, are governed not only by the collective bargaining agreement, but also by an annual contract of employment. Allen, supra. The arbitrator's decision never had occasion to interpret the language of Carrelle's individual contract for 2002-2003. Carrelle's employment contract supports her contention by specifying that termination may be accomplished "by either party giving the other 60 days notice in writing of intention to terminate same." Here the Board attempted to circumvent this provision and failed to give Carrelle the full sixty-days notice of its intent to terminate her employment.

Insofar as Carrelle's theory for recovery is based on contract rather than statute, however, the Commissioner lacks jurisdiction over the subject matter. Fanego v. State-Operated Sch. Dist. of Jersey City, 1999 WL 430777 (N.J. Adm.). Where the controversy does not arise under the school law, it lies outside the Commissioner's jurisdiction even though it may pertain to school personnel. Board of Educ. of East Brunswick v. Twp. Council of East Brunswick, 48 N.J. 94, 102 (1966). It is well settled that the Commissioner's jurisdiction does not extend to claims for alleged breach of contract. Paladino v. Lacey Bd. of Educ., OAL Dkt. No. EDU 5589-87 (St. Bd. Feb. 1, 1989); Larsen v. Piscataway Bd. of Educ., OAL Dkt. No. EDU 1445-81 (St. Bd. Oct. 6, 1982).

Order

It is ORDERED that the Bloomfield Board of Education pay to Victoria Carrelle her full salary for the month of December 2002 minus two days pay.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." OAL DKT. NO. EDU. 1852-03

VICTORIA CARRELLE,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF BLOOMFIELD, ESSEX COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. The Board's exceptions and petitioner's reply thereto were filed in accordance with the provisions of N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

The Board's exceptions first concur with the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) that the Board's compelling interest of ensuring that no disruption in its students' education occurred was sufficient to allow him to conclude that the Board's actions here were not violative of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-8, "despite other decisions to the contrary." (Board's Exceptions at 1) However, it strenuously disagrees with the ALJ's conclusion that, because the Board's alteration of petitioner's resignation date was not ratified or adopted by the Board, such an action was violative of N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1, necessitating that petitioner be compensated for lost salary in December 2002. The Board charges that the ALJ's reliance on this statutory provision is misplaced as modification of petitioner's cessation of employment date is not an action contemplated by this statute which, by its very terms, deals only with the appointment, transfer or removal of a teacher. (Id. At 2) Moreover, even if the characterization of its actions as ones falling under the ambit of this provision were valid, this statute contains no penalty provision for noncompliance and, therefore, provides no authority for the monetary damages to petitioner ordered by the ALJ. As such, the Board urges the Commissioner to reverse the Initial Decision.

In reply, petitioner supports the correctness of the decision and advocates its adoption. She does, however, urge that the ALJ's dictum dealing with discussion of jurisdiction of the Commissioner over a contractual violation be ignored as she proposes that such discussion here is "clearly incorrect." Rather, she argues, "[t]he requirement that a non-tenured teacher give a certain period of notification of that teacher's desire to terminate his/her employment is authorized in Title 18A:27-4. Accordingly, the contract in Carrelle's case was authorized by the Education Laws and is enforceable before the Commissioner of Education." (Petitioner's Reply Exceptions at 1) Here, she argues, because the Board entered the contract and petitioner complied by providing the requisite notification of her intention to resign, as a matter of law, the Board was precluded from altering her termination date without her consent. (Ibid.)

Upon his full and independent review of the record, Initial Decision and the parties' exception arguments, while the Commissioner agrees with and adopts the ALJ's determination that the Board impermissibly accelerated petitioner's resignation date thereby improperly depriving petitioner of her full salary for the month of December 2002, he provides the following modification.

The Commissioner, initially, clarifies that N.J.S.A. 18A:28-8, governing the notice required of any tenured teaching staff member desiring to relinquish his or her position is wholly inapplicable in this matter. Rather, such notice requirements for nontenured individuals is contained in N.J.S.A. 18A:26-10, Suspension of certificate for wrongful cessation of performance of duties, which specifies:

> Any teaching staff member employed by a board of eduction, who shall, without the consent of the board, cease to perform his duties before the expiration of the term of his employment, shall be deemed guilty of unprofessional conduct, and the commissioner may, upon receiving notice thereof, suspend his certificate for a period not exceeding one year.

It is well-grounded in education law that determination of the sufficiency of a term of notice pursuant to this statute is dictated by the terms of the parties' employment contract and any resignation or termination must be in accordance with the terms of such agreement. See Ralph Boguszewski v. Board of Education of the Borough of Woodcliff Lake, Bergen County, 1979 S.L.D. 727, aff'd State Board 1980 S.L.D. 1477. Here, petitioner's contract contained a provision which permitted either party to terminate their agreement by providing the other party with 60 days written notice of such intention. By letter dated November 1, 2002, petitioner provided written notice to the Board of her intent to resign effective January 1, 2003, in full satisfaction of her statutory responsibility under N.J.S.A. 18A:26-10. Such notice was accepted by a resolution of the Board on November 12, 2002. Under the circumstances existing in this case, unilateral acceleration of petitioner's resignation date without payment of salary for the full 60-day notice period, whether accomplished by a district administrator, as was the case here, or even by formal board action, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1, as suggested by the ALJ, is impermissible and tantamount to an improper termination. That the 60-day notice provision prescribed by N.J.S.A. 18A:26-10 in conjunction with the parties' employment contract is equally applicable to both petitioner and the Board is clearly evidenced in Boguszewski, supra. which found:

> Termination, which is equally available to both employee and employer in the instant matter, must follow the precise language of petitioner's contract. The sixty-day notice provision is intended to protect both parties. Certainly the Board would not countenance a teacher who is perhaps offered a better paying position elsewhere > to give sixty days' notice on a prescribed date and then disappear for the next sixty days thereby rendering no service to the children of the district with resulting disruption and detriment to the educational process. The Board would certainly expect the teacher to be on duty for the sixty days to better enable the Board to find an adequate replacement for the teacher while protecting the educative process for the children. Similarly, the sixty-day notice provision is intended to protect the teacher, to enable him to seek gainful employment elsewhere. The option of a shorter period of time is one that can be exercised only by mutual agreement of a board of education and the employee involved. (at 729)

The Commissioner, however, emphasizes that the entitlement possessed by this nontenured petitioner was that of compensation for the contractual term of her notice. The Board could have chosen to pay her salary without requiring performance of services. Canfield v. Pine Hill Board of Education, 51 N.J. 400 (1968), rev'g 97 N.J. Super. 483 (App. Div. 1967). Also see N.J.S.A. 18A:27-9.

Finally, while concurring with the general proposition of the ALJ that the Commissioner lacks jurisdiction over matters which are purely contractual in nature, such is not the case in this matter. The issue before the Commissioner here is whether the Board acted improperly or illegally with respect to its alteration of petitioner's resignation date given pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-10. As noted by the State Board in B.P., on behalf of minor child, B. P. v. Board of Education of the Lenape Regional High School District, Burlington County, decided by the State Board December 3, 2003:

> [a]lthough the Commissioner does not have jurisdiction over disputes which are purely contractual in nature, he does have jurisdiction over contractual claims which are incidental to his obligation to resolve education claims that are the subject of litigation. (Slip opinion at 3-4, citations omitted)

Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL is adopted as modified above. The Bloomfield Board of Education is hereby directed to pay petitioner her full salary for the month of December 2002, less the two days compensation she previously received.

IT IS SO ORDERED.*

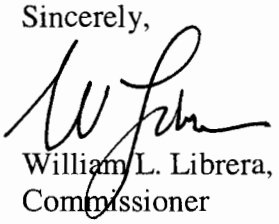
Dear Parties:



I have reviewed the papers filed by Petitioner D.T. in conjunction with his motions for stay and reconsideration of my January 20, 2004 decision in the matter entitled D.T. and M.T., on behalf of minor child, N.T. v. Board of Education of the Bridgewater-Raritan Regional School District, Somerset County, Agency Dkt. No. 51-2/03, Commissioner Decision #13-04, pending appeal to the State Board of Education. In support of his motion for stay, petitioner renews his arguments excepting to the decision of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ), which was affirmed by me, and contends that several petitions newly filed by him will change the outcome of this matter. In support of his motion for reconsideration, petitioner raises similar claims and additionally alludes to newly discovered evidence of continuing violation on the part of the respondent Board of Education.

Upon such review, I have determined to deny both motions. In proceedings before the ALJ in the above-captioned matter, the Board agreed to nullify and remove all records of both the five-day bus suspension that was the subject of the appeal, as well as "any and all unresolved disciplinary matters involving N.T. which arose during the 2002-2003 school year." (Initial Decision at 1) Therefore, notwithstanding petitioners' objections on exception, wherein they accused the ALJ and Board counsel of unethical conduct, treachery and malfeasance in allowing the Board to nullify disciplinary actions other than the one on appeal and sought a remand to the Office of Administrative Law for a hearing to give petitioners their day in court, I found that the relief sought by petitioners had been obtained and that there was no basis on which to order further proceedings. Nothing in the papers filed in conjunction with the motions herein alters that conclusion, and petitioner has certainly not met (indeed, he does not even address) the criteria for grant of extraordinary relief set forth in N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6 and 6A:3-1.15.*

Accordingly, the motions for stay and reconsideration are DENIED, and my prior decision dismissing the above-captioned matter as moot remains in full force and effect, unless and until it may be stayed or reversed on appeal by the State Board of Education.

Sincerely,

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning parents of student attending Category 1 schools in the 2002-03 school year sought an order citing the Board for violations of the public school choice option of the No Child Left Behind Act (NCLBA) and directing the Board to transfer their son from School #17 to School #19 under the provisions of that Act. The Board alleged petitioners had no right to challenge the law in a private lawsuit.

The Commissioner provided petitioners an extended opportunity to answer respondents' motions to dismiss. Petitioners, however, failed to respond. Accordingly, the Commissioner could have dismissed the appeal solely on petitioners' failure to prosecute their appeal, but the Commissioner determined that it was both in the public interest and a matter of judicial efficiency to address whether appeals of this nature with respect to enforcement of the provisions of NCLBA may be considered by the Commissioner.

Upon review, the Commissioner, citing the 2003 U.S. District Court decision in Association of Community Organizations for Reform Now et al. v. New York City Department of Education et al., concluded that since the NCLBA does not provide for a private right of action, there is no basis on which the Commissioner may consider this matter. The Commissioner granted the Motions to Dismiss and dismissed the Petition of Appeal.

AGENCY DKT. NO. 342-9/03

D.N. AND J.J., on behalf of minor child, J.J.,	:
PETITIONERS,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF ELIZABETH, UNION COUNTY AND KELLY A. WATERS, ESQ.,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENTS.	:

This matter comes to the Commissioner by way of a Petition of Appeal, filed September 15, 2003, wherein petitioners seek an order citing the Board for violations of the public school choice option of the No Child Left Behind Act (NCLBA), specifically 34 CFR 200.44 and 34 CFR 200.32, and directing the Board to transfer their son from School #17 to School #19 under the provisions of that Act. Petitioners claim that the Elizabeth School District did not provide the required public school choice option to parents of students attending Category 1 schools in the 2002-03 school year and claim that the Board continues to deny parents their rights to choices of eligible schools. (Petition of Appeal at 1) Petitioners aver that such options must be made available to parents prior to the first day of the school year and that, if more than one choice is available within the district, then the district must provide more than one choice to transfer students. (Ibid.) Petitioners further aver that the Board did not provide options to parents prior to the first day of the school year and did not provide more than one choice of schools for parents wishing to transfer their children and, thus, the Board violated 34

CFR 200.44 of the 2001 NCLBA by not providing public school choice for the 2002-2003 school year as dictated by 34 CFR 200.32. (Id. at 6)

On October 6, 2003, the Board filed its Answer and both the Board and respondent Waters filed Motions to Dismiss. The Board claims that, by the letters sent on August 29, 2003 and on September 12, 2003, it complied with the requirement to offer petitioners an option to transfer their son to another school. (Board's Answer and Motion to Dismiss at 4) Moreover, citing Association of Community Organizations for Reform Now et al. v. New York City Department of Education et al., 269 F. Supp. 2d 338 (SD NY 2003), the Board asserts that "the Court held that parental complaints about failures to provide appropriate notices and to follow other requirements of the law could not be challenged in a private lawsuit." (Id. at 2-3) Thus, the Board proffers, petitioners have no right to bring this action and no relief can be granted. (Id. at 4) Likewise, pointing to the same case, Respondent Waters claims in her Motion to Dismiss that this matter should be dismissed for failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted as "the law under which Petitioners are attempting to proceed does not provide for a private right of action." (Respondent Waters' Motion to Dismiss at 1-2) Additionally, Respondent Waters asserts that she is not a proper party to this action in that: 1) "her involvement in this matter consisted of nothing more than counsel to the Board by advising the Board on the dimensions of the NCLBA;" 2) her "interaction with one of the Petitioners on behalf of the Board does not create a cause of action upon which liability can be assessed;" and 3) "[p]roviding advice to the Board, particularly when a new law is involved, does not create liability." (Id. at 2) Finally, Respondent Waters argues that, even assuming the viability of petitioners' claim, the case should be dismissed as moot because, notwithstanding petitioners' dissatisfaction with the timing of the notice and of the Board's action, petitioners have now been provided with more than one option under the parental choice provision of the NCLBA.[1] (Id. at 4)

By letter of October 7, 2003, the Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes acknowledged receipt of the Motions to Dismiss and requested that petitioners submit memorandums of law or letter briefs in response to the respective motions setting forth their legal arguments as to why each of the motions should not be granted and why the petition in this matter should not be dismissed. Additionally, petitioners were requested to respond to the Board's and respondent Waters' contentions in their respective motions that the substance of petitioners' complaint had been satisfied. Petitioners were, therefore, provided 20 days from receipt of the letter to respond to the motions or to submit a letter withdrawing their appeal, if their complaint had been satisfied. (Letter from the Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes of October 7, 2003)

When no response was received from petitioners, by letter of November 21, 2003, sent via certified and regular mail, the Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes provided petitioners a final opportunity to respond to the pending Motions to Dismiss and advised petitioners that failure to respond to this request within the 10 days provided "may result in your petition being dismissed for failure to prosecute your appeal." (Letter from the Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes of November 21, 2003) By letter of December 15, 2003, petitioners claimed that they had not received the October 7, 2003 letter until November 29, the same day that they aver the November 21, 2003 letter was received.[2] Accordingly,

[1] By letter of October 20, 2003, the Board advised the Commissioner that the Elizabeth Board had offered petitioners another choice of school for transfer. (Board's Letter of October 20, 2003) petitioners requested, and were granted, an extension until January 5, 2004 to file their Answers to the pending motions. Notwithstanding two opportunities to file Answers to the motions and an extension of time within which to do so, petitioners have not submitted any response to the motions nor have they notified the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes that they wish to withdraw their appeal. Accordingly, the Commissioner could dismiss the within appeal solely on petitioners' failure to prosecute their appeal. However, in that there is a possibility of future appeals to the Commissioner requesting enforcement of the provisions of the NCLBA, 20 U.S.C. §6301 et seq., the Commissioner has determined that it is both in the public interest and a matter of judicial efficiency to address whether appeals of this nature with respect to enforcement of the provisions of the NCLBA may be considered by the Commissioner.

Upon a thorough review of this question, the Commissioner agrees with the Board and Respondent Waters that this question was answered in the 2003 U.S. District Court decision in Association of Community Organizations for Reform Now et al, supra, wherein plaintiffs, parents of school children residing in New York, claimed that respondent school districts had violated the NCLBA and sought to compel compliance with various provisions of that Act. Relying on the Supreme Court decision in Gonzaga Univ. v. Doe, 536 U.S. 273 (2002), the District Court found that:

> [T]he NCLBA does not reflect the clear and unambiguous intent of Congress to create individually enforceable rights. The statute lacks the necessary rights creating language, because it is focused on the regulation of states and local educational agencies, and focuses on improving the condition of children collectively, and therefore lacks the individual focus suggestive of Congressional intent to create personal rights. Finally, the enforcement scheme of the statute indicates a Congressional intent to centralize enforcement and thereby to avoid the possibility of individual lawsuits and multiple interpretations of the provisions of the Act. Association of Community Organizations for Reform Now et al. v.

New York City Department of Education et al., 269 F. Supp. 2d 338, 347.

In reaching the above conclusion, the District Court specifically pointed out that "[t]he 'Penalties' section of the NCLBA outlines the procedures available in the event of noncompliance by States with NCLBA provisions," but "contains no procedure for parents or students to seek judicial, administrative, or any other remedies for alleged noncompliance with the dictates of the Act." (Id. at 342) The District Court also pointed out that "[t]he NCLBA contains no provision for individuals to enforce the notice, transfer or SES provisions--there are no administrative or judicial procedures for any individual to use. Rather the statute contemplates that any enforcement actions for violations of the statute by states be taken by the Secretary of Education and vests such authority solely in the Secretary." (Id. at 345)

In that the NCLBA does not provide for a private right of action, therefore, the Commissioner concludes that there is no basis on which he may consider this matter. For the foregoing reasons, respondents' Motions to Dismiss are hereby granted, and the petition is hereby dismissed with prejudice. Given this result, it is unnecessary to address the other bases for respondents' motions.

Michael I. Inzelbuch, Esq., for the respondent

Record Closed: December 29, 2003 Decided: December 31, 2003

BEFORE JOHN SCHUSTER III, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

In this matter, J.G. (petitioner), on behalf of her grandson, Q.B., filed a petition for emergency relief with the New Jersey Department of Education. The relief sought is a stay of the remaining period of the ten-day out-of-school suspension imposed by the Lakewood Township Board of Education (respondent) upon Q.B. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on December 22, 2003 without answer as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. The issue to be decided in this case is whether or not the remaining portion of the ten-day suspension imposed upon the student should be stayed as being excessive.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION AND LEGAL ANALYSIS

On December 11, 2003, while in the class being taught by one Stephanie Reid, Q.B. stated "I'll cut you're a-- up and stuff you into a mattress like drug money." Q.B. says that this is a lyric to a rap song and while he does not deny making that statement he says it was in the context of discussing the lyrics with another student. The respondent's position is that Q.B. made that statement directly to Ms. Reid, his teacher. In addition, the respondent alleges he immediately stated thereafter "Oh wait you're too big to fit inside a mattress." Petitioner denies making that statement, but Ms. Reid claims it was made and clearly directed at her. She found this offensive because she is not of petite proportion. The following day she discussed the matter with her mentor and on December 15, the next school day, she reported the incident to the assistant principle of Lakewood High School. Ms. Francis, the assistant principle, investigated the matter and imposed a ten-day out-of-school suspension on Q.B. for making these statements which the respondent considers to be of a threatening and inappropriate nature. On that evening, J.G. attended a regularly scheduled board of education meeting objecting to the suspension and a superintendent's hearing on the matter was scheduled for Wednesday, December 17, 2003. The hearing was held before Superintendent of Schools, Dr. Ernest J. Cannava, who upheld the suspension.

The following are the terms of the discipline. Q.B. was to serve an out-of-school suspension for the dates December 16 through 19 and December 22 and 23, 2003 as well as January 5 through 8, 2004 for a total of ten days. He would be able to return to school on January 9, 2004 and he is being moved from Ms. Reid's English class to another class. The ten-day suspension would be considered excused absences and the reference of a threat would not be part of Q.B.'s permanent record. In addition, Q.B. was given work assignments to do during the period that he would not be in school.

N.J.A.C. 1:6A-12.1e provides that at the emergency relief hearing the judge may allow the affidavits to be supplemented by testimony and/or oral argument. The judge may order emergency relief if the judge determines from the proofs that:

1. The petitioner will suffer irreparable harm if the requested relief is not granted;

2. The legal right underlying the petition's claim is settled;

3. The petitioner has the likelihood of prevailing on the merits of the underlying claim; and

4. When the equities and interests of the parties are balanced the petitioner will suffer greater harm than the respondent will suffer if the requested relief is not granted.

Petitioner is alleging that Q.B.'s suspension was excessive for the conduct at issue and resulted from teacher bias. In addition, petitioner claims that the suspension was imposed without appropriate due process. As to the latter charge an investigation was conducted by Assistant Principle Francis, which included an interview with Q.B. and four students who witnessed the incident. Ms. Francis after that investigation made a finding that the threatening/inappropriate comments were made by Q.B. and they were directed at his teacher, Ms. Reid. Since Q.B. participated in that process and based on all the facts, Ms. Francis's conclusion was not arbitrary, capricious or without due process.

Petitioner has not submitted any evidence to support the allegation of teacher bias. She has, however, severely criticized Ms. Reid's teaching style and classroom activities.

Petitioner further alleges that Q.B.'s suspension is excessive because she does not believe Ms. Reid was truly threatened. To substantiate that position, J.G. stated that if Ms. Reid felt immediately threatened she would have removed Q.B. from her English class at the time of the incident and not waited a day or two to bring this matter to the attention of the assistant principle. However, a statement from Ms. Reid indicated that she felt under the circumstances that the best way to handle the situation was to let it go for the time being so that Q.B. would get away from her and not have an immediate escalation of the situation. Under these circumstances, both actions would have been appropriate and it was just a matter of choice as to which option Ms. Reid chose to implement.

In spite of Q.B.'s allegation that he did not direct the offensive comments to Ms. Reid, I FIND that they were directed at her and if not threatening were totally inappropriate and by making those comments he rightfully subjected himself to disciplinary action.

J.G.'s position is that Q.B. will suffer irreparable harm if the suspension is continued for the four days in January 2004. Specifically, she says that the suspension will be shown as part of his permanent record. The District responds by indicating the suspension is not a cause for irreparable harm because the suspension is being shown on Q.B.'s permanent record as "excused absences" as opposed to a suspension and there is no reason shown on the permanent record for those absences. In other words, there will be no indication on Q.B.'s permanent record that he threatened any member of the staff or made inappropriate comments. I also FIND that Q.B.'s education process will not be irreparably harmed because he has been given assignments to do during his suspension so that he will not miss any school work during that time.

For the reasons set forth above, I FIND that Q.B. will not suffer any irreparable harm as a result of his suspension and therefore the petitioner has not met her burden for me to order a stay of the out-of-school suspension imposed on Q.B. Since the first burden of proof for granting emergent relief has not been met, there is no reason to determine whether petitioner has met the other three requirements set forth in N.J.A.C. 1:6A-12.1(e) necessary for the granting of an emergent relief application.

CONCLUSION

Based on the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that petitioner has failed to show that she is entitled to emergency relief staying the remaining days of the ten-day suspension imposed upon Q.B. I further CONCLUDE since the only relief sought is a stay of the balance of the out-of-school suspension and as a result of me denying that relief, I FIND this decision concludes this matter.

ORDER

For the reasons stated above, it is hereby ORDERED that petitioner's request for emergent relief is hereby DENIED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning Board of Education sought reversal of the final decision of the NJSIAA, which declared student J.W. ineligible to play football because he transferred to the Board's district for athletic advantage, and further required the Board to forfeit its victory over Colonia High School as a result of J.W.'s participation in that game.

Mindful that the Commissioner's scope of review in NJSIAA matters is appellate in nature, the Commissioner was satisfied that the NJSIAA afforded both the Board and J.W. the full measure of due process to which they were entitled, and that the decision of the NJSIAA was supported by the record and was not not arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. Petition was dismissed.

DECISION

For Petitioner, Anthony B. Vignuolo, Esq. (Borrus, Goldin, Foley, Vignuolo, Hyman & Stahl, P.C.)

For Respondent, Michael J. Herbert, Esq. (Herbert, Van Ness, Cayci & Goodell)

This matter came before the Commissioner of Education on November 5, 2003, through the filing of a Petition of Appeal by the North Brunswick Board of Education ("North Brunswick" or "Board"). Therein, the Board sought reversal of the final decision of the New Jersey State Interscholastic Athletic Association ("NJSIAA") declaring J.W., a student newly registered in the District, ineligible to play football because he transferred from the Hillsborough School District ("Hillsborough') for athletic advantage and requiring North Brunswick to forfeit its victory over Colonia High School ("Colonia") in a September 26, 2003 game in which J.W. had participated. The petition was accompanied by an application for emergent relief seeking to stay the NJSIAA's decision pending determination on the merits, to which the NJSIAA responded with a submission including, for the sake of expediency, the entire record of the proceedings on appeal. (cf. N.J.A.C. 6A:3-7.2) Following denial of North Brunswick's emergent application by the Deputy Commissioner on November 13, 2003, the parties were directed to proceed with briefing on the merits in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:3-7.3, and, the parties' briefs being duly submitted, the record before the Commissioner closed on December 11, 2003 with North Brunswick's submission of a letter of clarification regarding certain terminology used in its brief.[1]

OPERATIVE FACTS

The following facts were found by the NJSIAA, as stated in its October 17, 2003 decision of the Eligibility Appeals Committee (EAC) at 7-10:

> 1. J.W. was an outstanding member of the varsity football team at Hillsborough High School for his first three years at that school. In fact, according to the Hillsborough [c]oach, he was the best player on that school's football team. He received All County and All Conference honors in 2002 in football.

The Hillsborough High School Athletic Department has [an] "athletic contract," which is signed by each student-athlete and his or her parent or guardian before each season, recognizing that it is a "privilege to participate in all athletic activities" at the school and agreeing further to obey certain regulations established by the school Athletic Department and the NJSIAA, including satisfactory "citizenship" and an agreement to "at all times...conduct myself in an orderly manner, both on and off the school grounds, in such a way as to bring credit to my team, school and family."

> 4. In the Spring of 2003, J.W. was suspended from the baseball team in Hillsborough because of out of school conduct involving the police. At that time, he was specifically warned by the Hillsborough football coach that any further infractions would lead to his removal from the football team.
> 5. In the late Spring of 2003, J.W. was accused of criminal conduct by a female student in the Hillsborough High School. From late June 2003 until August 25, 2003, J.W. participated in weight training at Hillsborough, followed by actual practice.
> 6. The Hillsborough football coach excused J.W. from practice on August 25 because his case was to be tried that day in juvenile court in Somerset County. In a discussion at that time, the Hillsborough coach advised if he were found guilty of the charges, that this would be the "last straw" and he would be removed from the team.

[1] The Board indicated, in response to NJSIAA's observation (Brief at 2, note 1) that a "Motion to Vacate" was not appropriate in the present context, that it had, by use of that term, merely intended to appeal the underlying NJSIAA determination as set forth in N.J.A.C. 6A:3-7.1 et seq.

7. On August 25, J.W. was found guilty of four counts in juvenile court. As part of that disposition, he was instructed by the court not to have any contact with the accusing female student.

8. On August 26, the Hillsborough coach advised J.W. that he was removed from the team because of the disposition in the court. The coach stated that he would assist the young man and write a letter on his behalf to the judge prior to sentencing, which was then pending.

9. Within a few days of advising J.W. he was removed from the team, the Hillsborough coach spoke separately to both the mother and father of J.W. and explained that he had been removed from the team because of the problems in court and again, offered assistance in writing a letter on the young man's behalf. In one of those conversations, the coach suggested to J.W.'s mother that she should consider putting her son in a "military school."

10. On August 29, 2003, the parents of J.W. withdrew him from Hillsborough High School and registered him in North Brunswick High School. They established a residence in North Brunswick at the home of J.W.'s sister.

11. Shortly after registering at North Brunswick High School, J.W. approached the school's football coach, Mark Zielinski, and asked if he could be a member of the football team.

12. After that first contact with J.W., Coach Zielinski then called the Hillsborough football coach since it appeared unusual that such a skilled player would be wanting to transfer prior to his senior year.

13. In a conversation prior to the first game for any school on September 12, Coach Mantz advised Coach Zielinski that J.W. was not a part of his program any more and that he had been convicted on four counts in court.

14. Coach Zielinski then sought out J.W., who informed him that he had in fact been convicted on four counts.

15. Coach Zielinski then conferred with his Athletic Director, Aaron Speller, and Assistant Principal Sal Mistretta and they concluded that J.W. was in fact eligible to participate on the North Brunswick High School football team. Mr. Speller testified that the only issue they were concerned about was the actual residence of the student, which they were satisfied had been verified.

16. Although transcripts and other information had been submitted by Hillsborough to North Brunswick, there was no written information transmitted concerning the disciplinary action taken by the athletic program at the former school.

17. J.W. was a starter for the entire football game on defense on September 12, 19 and 26. The September 12 and 19 contests were lost but North Brunswick defeated Colonia on September 26.

18. The Colonia Coach and Athletic Director heard about "rumors" relating to the ineligibility of J.W., which [were] supplemented by anonymous e-mails directed to the Colonia football coach prior to the September 26 football game. They did not do anything prior to the game because they believed they could not verify "rumors."

19. After North Brunswick defeated Colonia on September 26, the Colonia coach and athletic director received further information that J.W. might have been ineligible to participate in the game. The school principal then contacted the NJSIAA leading to a hearing before [the NJSIAA Eligibility Appeals] Committee.

Subsequently, as recounted in the Board's petition:

On or about October 8, 2003, the NJSIAA [Eligibility Appeals Committee] held a full hearing on the matter to determine whether J.W. was eligible to participate in school athletics and, if ineligible, whether North Brunswick's September 26, 2003 victory over Colonia should be forfeited because of his participation in the game.

The NJSIAA ruled[2] that J.W. was ineligible to participate in school athletics because he transferred for competitive advantage, finding it was J.W.'s intent to nullify the punitive actions taken by Hillsborough High School against him. The NJSIAA further ruled that the victory over Colonia should be forfeited because of J.W.'s participation in the game. (Petition of Appeal at 3-4)

On November 5, 2003, North Brunswick filed the instant appeal, which then proceeded as set forth above.

NORTH BRUNSWICK'S POSITION

North Brunswick argues that the NJSIAA applied the wrong standard in determining whether the District had appropriately investigated J.W.'s eligibility prior to permitting him to participate in interscholastic football. The Board contends:

The [NJSIAA] incorrectly applied a standard requiring "no doubt" in investigating a student-athlete's eligibility, which was cited from the NJSIAA Interpretive Guidelines §4 on "Observance of Eligibility Standards and

[2] NJSIAA issued its written decision on October 17, 2003, but the parties were given an oral decision within a day of the hearing. (Hearing Transcript at 132, NJSIAA Brief on Emergent Relief at 14)

> Appeals." As this section does not pertain to the enforcement of eligibility standards, §6, which interprets enforcement as stated in Bylaw Article X, §1 should have been applied. The NJSIAA should have applied the "make certain" standard set forth in Bylaw Article X, §1 and interpreted in §6 of the guidelines, which does pertain to the enforcement of eligibility standards. Under this standard a member school is expected to "make certain" by performing due diligence. (Board's Brief on the Merits at 2, citations omitted)

The District proffers that it did "make certain" J.W. was eligible to participate by "performing due diligence." It argues that it initiated contact with Hillsborough, the staff of which "never completely and clearly advised" that J.W. was removed from the team for disciplinary reasons;[3] that it questioned J.W. and his family, who gave a plausible explanation for J.W.'s transfer; and that it reviewed J.W.'s records from Hillsborough, which, in violation of law did not indicate the disciplinary action taken against J.W. with respect to the football team.[4] Thus, North Brunswick avers, it made all the appropriate inquiries and received responses that "relieved its concerns and at no time suggested a disciplinary removal." (Board's Brief on Emergent Relief at 4-5, quotation at 5; Board's Brief on the Merits at 5-10) The Board having been duly diligent, it argues, NJSIAA should not have imputed the EAC's own doubts to the Board and used this as a basis to require forfeiture. If the Board carried out its duty to make certain a student is eligible, the Board proffers, "then the member school has fulfilled its obligation and should not be penalized for undetectable information that is unknown to the member school when it found the student-athlete eligible or for suspicious

[3] The Board particularly objects to NJSIAA's failure to accord sufficient weight to the Hillsborough coach's statement to the North Brunswick coach to the effect that if J.W. wanted to play for North Brunswick, that was North Brunswick's call; it further objects to the lack of specificity in the Hillsborough coach's statements in response to the North Brunswick coach's questioning. (Board's Brief on the Merits at 5, 7) The Board also notes that it, unlike Hillsborough, does not discipline student-athletes for conduct unrelated to school behavior, and that Hillsborough's policy was never communicated to North Brunswick's coach. (Id. at 6)

[4] The Board complains that prior to J.W.'s transfer, the principal took no official action to suspend him from the team and that Hillsborough does not, as a matter of policy, include actions related to athletics in discipline records. (Board's Brief on the Merits at 6, 9)

information that is satisfied through investigation." (Board's Brief on the Merits at 3) The Board explains:

> North Brunswick was diligent in its pre-season determination finding J.W. eligible to participate in interscholastic competition. This determination should not be discarded and penalized by a contrary NJSIAA finding, occurring over a month later and supplemented with additional information that was unavailable to North Brunswick at the original time of determination. At the time J.W. participated in athletics, North Brunswick made certain he was eligible as required by NJSIAA Bylaw Article X, §1, and yet, in its decision, the NJSIAA found that there was "overwhelming circumstantial evidence" indicating eligibility was questionable regardless of North Brunswick['s] due diligence. This is not the standard as set forth in Bylaw Article X, §1, but rather the suggestion in the Interpretive Guidelines §4, which is unrelated to the enforcement of eligibility standard found in §6.
> Application of the Article X, §1 "make certain standard" relieved petitioner of any responsibility once its due diligence failed to reveal any suspicious circumstances.The burden of inquiry of "no doubt" as applied by NJSIAA improperly imposed a burden on the petitioner not required by law. The Commissioner must now act to correct this injustice. (Board's Brief on the Merits at 3-5, citations omitted)

The Board concludes by reiterating that it raised, acted on, and satisfied all appropriate concerns upon J.W.'s senior-year transfer into the District, and that NJSIAA's decision finding the Board culpable nonetheless places unreasonable demands on a district to "make certain by not only requiring it to investigate the suspicious circumstances but also to investigate their investigations." (Board's Brief on the Merits at 9-10)[5]

NJSIAA'S POSITION

The NJSIAA first stresses that member schools adopt NJSIAA regulations as their own, and that the NJSIAA has for over two decades had a policy, incorporated into its Handbook since the 1984-85 school year and into its Bylaws since 1987, that games won using an ineligible player must be forfeited. It further notes that since 1991-92, its [5] Although the Board sought reversal of the entirety of the NJSIAA's decision, which addressed both J.W.'s eligibility and the question of penalty against the Board for using an ineligible player, the Board's arguments on appeal are directed exclusively to the latter.

Interpretive Guidelines have clearly indicated that "if a school has any doubt whatsoever about the eligibility of a student, it should contact the NJSIAA Headquarters for an initial interpretation and, if necessary, submit a formal request to the NJSIAA for an eligibility ruling by the Eligibility Committee prior to the beginning of each of the sports seasons.A school should never allow a student to participate in interscholastic sports if it has any doubt whatsoever as to that student's eligibility and until an interpretive ruling has been issued by [the NJSIAA]. Otherwise, the school risks imposition of appropriate penalties for the use of an ineligible student, including the forfeiture of games won by that school utilizing such a student...." (emphasis in text) (NJSIAA Brief on the Merits at 3-4, quoting NJSIAA Handbook at 66-67; NJSIAA Brief on Emergent Relief at 2-4).

The NJSIAA next emphasizes, citing D.J.K. and H.J.K. v. NJSIAA, 1987 S.L.D. 259 and Board of Education of the City of Camden v. NJSIAA, 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU)182, 188, that the Commissioner's scope of review over its decisions is appellate in nature, so that where due process has been granted and the record provides an adequate basis for the NJSIAA's decision, the Commissioner may not overturn that decision even if he might have reached a different result in a de novo review. (NJSIAA Brief on the Merits at 7-8; NJSIAA Brief on Emergent Relief at 18-19) The NJSIAA notes that the EAC promptly held a hearing on J.W.'s eligibility, which was attended by representatives from North Brunswick, Hillsborough and Colonia, as well as by J.W.'s parents and their counsel,[6] and that the hearing took well over three hours and resulted in a 12-page decision setting forth with specificity the basis for the EAC's findings. (NJSIAA Brief on the Merits at 5, 8-9; NJSIAA Brief on Emergent Relief at 19-20) The NJSIAA further maintains that its decision was based on substantial credible evidence in the record. Specifically, it points to the extensive background information in the record regarding J.W.'s history and the athletic contract signed by both J.W. and his parents indicating that further trouble with the law would lead to removal from the team; to the North Brunswick coach's statements to the effect that he was suspicious of J.W.'s status prior to the beginning of the football season based on the timing of J.W.'s arrival in the District and how good a player he was; to the fact that the Hillsborough coach undisputedly informed the North Brunswick coach that J.W. was no longer part of Hillsborough's football program and had been in trouble with the law; that J.W.'s parents clearly indicated, as a consequence of the conversation between the Hillsborough and North Brunswick coaches, that J.W. had been convicted on four counts in a criminal matter; that J.W.'s father had expressed his son's interest in playing football to North Brunswick officials prior to J.W.'s transfer there; and that J.W. transferred to North Brunswick within days of his removal from the Hillsborough football team. (NJSIAA Brief on the Merits at 5-6, 11-16) In response to the Board's emphasis on the Hillsborough coach's statement that to the effect that the decision to permit J.W. to play rested with the North Brunswick coach, the NJSIAA points to its clear rules and to the North Brunswick coach's statement that he does not rely on other coaches to ascertain those rules. (Id at 10-11, 14) Thus, the NJSIAA concludes, the Board cannot possibly meet its burden of demonstrating that the NJSIAA's decision was arbitrary, capricious, unreasonable or unsupported by substantial credible evidence in the record as a whole. (Id at 10, 16)

[6] J.W. was invited to appear, but elected not to do so.

COMMISSIONER'S DETERMINATION

The NJSIAA is a voluntary association of public and nonpublic schools, organized pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:11-3, to oversee athletics for its member schools in accordance with its Constitution, Bylaws, rules and regulations, which are approved by the Commissioner of Education and adopted annually by the member schools. Upon adoption by the member schools, these rules and regulations are deemed school policy and are enforced by the internal procedures of the NJSIAA.

It is well-established that the Commissioner's scope of review in matters involving NJSIAA determinations is appellate in nature. N.J.S.A. 18A:11-3; N.J.A.C. 6A:3-7.4; Board of Education of the City of Camden v. NJSIAA, 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 182, 188. That is, the Commissioner may not overturn an action by the NJSIAA in applying its rules, absent a finding that the Association applied the rules in a patently arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable manner. B.C. v. Cumberland Regional School District, 220 N.J. Super. 214, 231-232 (App. Div. 1987). Nor may the Commissioner substitute his judgment for that of the NJSIAA, even if he were to decide differently in a de novo hearing, where due process has been provided and where there is adequate basis for the decision reached by the NJSIAA Committees. Dam Jin Koh and Hong Jun Kim v. NJSIAA, 1987 S.L.D. 259; see, also, N.J.A.C. 6A:3-7.4(a). The scope of the Commissioner's review in NJSIAA matters has also been codified to provide notice of this standard to the public and regulated parties:[7]

> 1. If the NJSIAA has granted a petitioner due process and its decision is supported by sufficient credible evidence in the record as a whole, the Commissioner shall not substitute his judgment for that of the NJSIAA, even if the Commissioner might judge otherwise in a de novo review.
> 2. The Commissioner shall not overturn NJSIAA's application of its own rules absent a demonstration by the petitioner that such rules were applied in an arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable manner. N.J.A.C. 6A:3-7.4(a).

The burden of proof that an action was thus improper rests with the person or entity challenging the decision. Kopera v. West Orange Board of Education, 60 N.J. Super.

[7] See 31 N.J.R. 4173(a) and 32 N.J.R. 1177(a).

288, 297 (App. Div. 1960). It must be remembered that the arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable standard of review is extremely narrow in its scope and, consequently, imposes a heavy burden on those who challenge determinations of the NJSIAA. The standard, as defined by the New Jersey Courts provides:

> In the law, "arbitrary" and "capricious" means having no rational basis.  Arbitrary and capricious action of administrative bodies means willful and unreasoning action, without consideration and in disregard of circumstances. Where there is room for two opinions, action is not arbitrary or capricious when exercised honestly and upon due consideration, even though it may be believed that an erroneous conclusion has been reached. (citations omitted) Bayshore Sew. Co. v. Dep't of Envt. Protection, 122 N.J. Super. 184, 199-200 (Ch. Div. 1973), aff'd 131 N.J. Super. 37 (App. Div. 1974).

Upon careful consideration of the record of this matter, and mindful of the applicable standard of review, the Commissioner is satisfied that the decision of the NJSIAA finding J.W. ineligible to play football and requiring North Brunswick to forfeit its victory over Colonia High School as a result of permitting him to participate in the game was not arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. The Commissioner is further satisfied that the EAC's findings of fact, credibility determinations and weighing of evidence, as well as the inferences and conclusions drawn from these, were substantially supported by the record and reached after affording both the Board and J.W. the full measure of due process to which they were entitled.

With regard to North Brunswick's arguments on appeal, the Commissioner finds entirely without merit the Board's claim that the requirement of the Interpretive Guidelines at § 6, to "make certain" of a player's eligibility, and the directive at § 4, to obtain an NJSIAA determination if there is "any doubt whatsoever" about such eligibility, refer to different situations and establish different standards, so that the NJSIAA erred in applying the § 4 standard rather than the § 6 standard in deciding the instant matter. To the contrary, the Commissioner finds the two sections to be both clear and consistent in their instructions to member districts, and he finds it entirely reasonable and in accordance with the Guidelines for the NJSIAA to have concluded, under all of the circumstances herein, that, although North Brunswick did, in fact, undertake inquiries with regard to J.W.'s eligibility (the "due diligence" referenced by the Board on appeal), those inquiries revealed information sufficient to preclude certainty as to the young man's status, thereby requiring further action by the District before permitting him to play.

The Commissioner further finds reasonable the NJSIAA's determination to reject any reliance by North Brunswick on Hillsborough's purported failure to comply with pupil record law, since nothing in the controlling statute, N.J.S.A. 18A:36-19a, requires on its face that actions relating to athletic programs be included in the disciplinary records forwarded to a new district upon transfer of a student, and it is undisputed that Hillsborough's policy is not to include such information in its pupil records. Moreover, to any extent that Hillsborough may have had information in its possession pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2A:4A-60 at the time J.W.'s records were transferred (and the record on appeal does not clearly establish that it did), had notice of that information been provided to North Brunswick, such notice would have revealed substantially what the North Brunswick coach had already learned through conversations with J.W. and his parents. The Commissioner observes in this regard that J.W.'s involvement with the law is not, in itself, the cause of his inability to participate in the North Brunswick football program, since that District's policy is generally not to penalize student-athletes for infractions occurring outside school; rather, J.W.'s ineligibility is based on his seeking to evade the consequences of his removal from Hillsborough's team by transferring to another district. [8]

Accordingly, the North Brunswick Board of Education having failed to sustain its burden of establishing that the NJSIAA's decision in this matter was arbitrary, capricious, unreasonable or contrary to law, the Commissioner upholds that decision and dismisses the Petition of Appeal.

IT IS SO ORDERED.[9]

[8] In addition to the arguments set forth above, the NJSIAA preliminarily urged that this matter be found moot upon the Deputy Commissioner's denial of emergent relief, since tournament rankings had already occurred at that point and, by the time briefing was concluded, the football season would effectively be over. (NJSIAA Brief on the Merits at 6-7) However, because the Board did not have an opportunity to argue this point, the Commissioner declines to reach it and instead addresses the merits of the appeal.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning parent challenged respondent Board's residency determination that her child R.L. was not domiciled in the District. The matter had been opened in 1999 and remanded to OAL for further proceedings.

On remand, the ALJ found that respondent's evidence did not demonstrate that it acted reasonably in finding that R.L. was domiciled with his father. The ALJ found that R.L. stayed with his father about three nights per week, yet was domiciled with petitioner. The ALJ reversed the Board's action assessing tuition.

The Commissioner concurred with the ALJ that R.L. was domiciled in the District and entitled to a free public education.

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The Petitioner, M.A.D. on behalf of her minor child R.L., is challenging the residency determination of the Respondent, the Board of Education of the Borough of Mount Ephraim. The Petitioner's appeal was filed with the Department of Education on August 24, 1999. On September 8, 1999, the Respondent filed an Answer to the petition. The matter was then transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law, where it was filed on October 4, 1999. The case was assigned docket number EDU 8415-99. Following a hearing in February 2000, Administrative Law Judge Kathryn Clark filed an Initial Decision, dated May 23, 2000.

Although the parties did not file exceptions to the Initial Decision, by letter dated June 13, 2000, counsel for the Petitioner notified the ALJ and the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes that the hearing was concluded prematurely by the ALJ. Petitioner's counsel thereafter requested that the ALJ withdraw her Initial Decision and allow the hearing to continue. By Decision dated July 10, 2000, the Commissioner of Education granted the motion to reopen the hearing and remanded the matter to the OAL for continued proceedings.

The case was then retransmitted back to the OAL, where it was filed on July 21, 2000. The remanded case was assigned docket number EDU 6054-00. The proceedings were continued and a hearing was held on February 13, 2001. A post-hearing memorandum was submitted by counsel for the Petitioner on March 27, 2001. Judge Clark did not render an Initial Decision based on the subsequent hearings. Judge Clark went on a leave of absence in the Spring of 2003 and the case was transferred to the undersigned. A conference call was held on August 7, 2003, to discuss the status of the matter. It was agreed by the parties that additional hearings were not necessary. The undersigned ordered and was supplied transcripts of the hearings held in February 2000 and 2001. The transcripts were supplied on December 15, 2003.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Based on reading the transcripts, reviewing the evidence in the record and listening to the audiotapes, I find the following facts:

1. Since 1985, Petitioner has lived at 812 Bell Road, Mt. Ephraim. Petitioner is the mother of student, R.L.Jr. Petitioner has a younger son that is a student and a daughter that is a recent graduate of the Mt. Ephraim School District.
2. Mt. Ephraim students of high school age attend the Audubon High School.
3. R.L.Sr. is the father of R.L.Jr. R.L.Sr. resides at 125 West Cottage Avenue, Haddonfield. He has resided there for over ten years.
4. Petitioner and R.L.Sr. received a divorce in 1987.
5. Petitioner's residence and R.L.Sr.'s residence are in close proximity to each other. R.L.Jr. has remained close to both parents since the divorce.

6. R.L.Jr. resided with the Petitioner until the beginning of his 9th grade year. His 9th grade year was the 1997-1998 school year. For that year, R.L.Jr. resided with his father and attended the Haddonfield School District. Petitioner and R.L.Sr. in August 1997 executed a consent order stating that R.L.Sr. was to have custody of R.L.Jr. This Consent Order was executed in order to establish proof of R.L.Jr.'s residency so he could attend the Haddonfield School District.

7. For 7th and 8th grade, R.L.Jr. was placed at schools by the Mt. Ephraim School District.

8. After the 9th grade year, R.L.Jr. met with his parents and asked that he return to the Mt. Ephraim School District (Audubon) to be with his friends. R.L.Jr. moved back with the Petitioner in the summer of 1998, just prior to the 1998-1999 school year.

9. Respondent hired an investigator to investigate the residency of W.V. During the course of this investigation, the investigator, William Bittner, advised the District that R.L.Jr. also was not residing in Mt. Ephraim. Bittner's first report notes that a white van that departed from W.V.'s house picked-up R.L.Jr. at R.L.Sr.'s residence on four occasions in February 1999 and transported him to school. This report notes that R.L.Jr. was not seen leaving the school in that van to return to Haddonfield.

10. Bittner observed R.L.Sr.'s residence on March 25, March 26 and March 29. No activity was observed at this location. R.L.Jr. was suspended from school on March 25. Bittner did observe R.L.Jr. leave R.L.Sr.'s house and get into W.V.'s van on March 31 and April 1 and proceed to school.

11. On May 27, May 28, June 1, June 2, June 3 and June 4, Bittner observed a car leave from W.V.'s house and pick-up R.L.Jr. at R.L.Sr.'s house and proceed to school.

12. Bittner observed the Petitioner's home one time and did not see R.L.Jr.

13. Bittner did not see R.L.Jr. leave school and, therefore, was unable to track where he went after school.

14. Bittner never checked to see where R.L.Jr.'s mail was sent, nor did he ask neighbors questions about R.L.Jr.'s residency.

15. Bittner concluded that R.L.Jr. was domiciled with R.L.Sr.

16. In August 1999, Petitioner and R.L.Sr. entered into a consent order designating the Petitioner as the resident parent for R.L.Jr. This was done to demonstrate that R.L.Jr. lived with his mother. R.L.Jr. attended Audubon High School for the 1999-2000 school year.

17. Despite Bittner's conclusion, I find as a fact that R.L.Jr. was domiciled with his mother during the 1998-1999 school year. The evidence shows that R.L.Jr. would stay a few nights per week with his father, typically on weekends but also sometimes during the week. Petitioner's residence was close to R.L.Sr.'s residence and since R.L.Jr. was close to both parents he would try and see both of them often. Nonetheless, it is clear that he was domiciled at Petitioner's residence. The testimony of the Petitioner and R.L.Sr. was that he had a room there, had most of his clothing, etc., there and intended that the Petitioner's residence be his home. The paperwork with the district indicates that the Petitioner's residence was his home and his driver's license (obtained in December 1999) states that the Mt. Ephraim address is his home.

18. Bittner's testimony and reports are persuasive, but do not establish domicile. Although there were 12 times that R.L.Jr. was observed going to school from the Haddonfield residence, there were also a few times that R.L.Jr. was not seen leaving that residence. Further, there is no evidence showing R.L.Jr. leaving school and going back to Haddonfield. Bittner's evidence is merely consistent with the situation where R.L.Jr. spent some time living with R.L.Sr.

CONCLUSION AND ORDER

The Respondent seeks to assess tuition from February 8, 1999 until the end of the 1998-1999 school year. The Respondent's evidence does not demonstrate that it acted reasonably in finding that R.L.Jr. was domiciled with R.L.Sr. On the contrary, the evidence indicates that R.L.Jr. merely stayed with R.L.Sr. about three nights per week, yet was domiciled with the Petitioner since that is the residence he considered home.

Based on the foregoing, I hereby ORDER the action of the Mt. Ephraim Board of Education removing R.L.Jr. and assessing tuition be REVERSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, nontenured Spanish teacher, challenged the Board's decision not to renew his contract. Petitioner alleged that this decision was based upon his disabling medical condition, violating his rights under the New Jersey Law against Discrimination (NJLAD). The Board acknowledged that it did not renew him because of his poor attendance record both before and after his medical leave of absence.

The ALJ noted that petitioner's claim of disability had no impact on the superintendent's decision and that the superintendent had no medical documentation as to the nature of petitioner's illness or disability. The ALJ found petitioner's supervisor also recommended nonrenewal because of his absences, his failure to report absences and his inability to manage disruptive students. The ALJ found that petitioner's poor attendance record during his entire three years of employment was sufficient factual basis to justify the Board's decision to nonrenew. Moreover, the ALJ found that decision did not constitute a violation of constitutional or legislatively conferred rights. Also, as stated in Dore, local boards are afforded considerable discretion in employing teaching staff members. The ALJ granted the Board's motion to dismiss. Petition was dismissed.

The Commissioner modified the Initial Decision and granted the Board's motion to dismiss as to petitioner's claim that the Board's nonrenewal decision was arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable. The Commissioner, however, denied the Board's motion to dismiss as to petitioner's claim that the Board's nonrenewal constituted a violation of his rights under the NJLAD. The Commissioner remanded the matter to the OAL for proceedings solely on the latter claim.

BEFORE JOSEPH F. MARTONE, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

In this matter, petitioner, a non-tenured teaching staff member, challenges the decision of the respondent Board of Education not to renew his contract. In challenging this action, petitioner initially filed a petition on July 1, 2003. Respondent filed a motion to dismiss in lieu of an answer on July 11, 2003. On August 4, 2003, the Commissioner transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for hearing as a contested case with respect to the Motion to Dismiss in Lieu of Answer, to be reviewed under the limited standard applicable to non-tenured staff as set forth in Dore v. Bedminster Twp. Bd. of Ed., 185 N.J. Super. 447 (App. Div. 1982), and other cited cases. Petitioner filed a brief in opposition to respondent's motion to dismiss and the Certification of the petitioner dated August 15, 2003. The matter was assigned to me on August 27, 2003.

N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.2(e) provides that all motions in writing shall be submitted for disposition on the papers unless oral argument is directed by the judge. Because of an extensive caseload with a heavy hearing schedule, and a number of other complex, completed cases requiring written decisions, I was unable to review the motion papers in this matter until December 1, 2003. After examining the motion papers, I determined that oral argument was not necessary in order to address the issues herein, and I closed the record on December 1, 2003.

I have made a careful review of the pleadings and certifications in this matter. In the first count of his petition, petitioner acknowledges that he is a non-tenured teaching staff member at the Manchester Township School District. He was employed as a Spanish teacher at the Manchester Township High School. He asserts that he commenced this employment in September 2000 at the Middle School for the first two years. He asserts that all evaluations received by him noted his superior performance.

Petitioner alleges that during his first two years of employment he was contacted by David Walling, the Principal of the High School, asking petitioner to transfer to the High School. He then submitted a request to transfer and by letter dated July 18, 2002, the Superintendent advised that the Board voted to approve his request for a transfer to the High School effective for September 1, 2002 through June 30, 2003.

Petitioner alleges that in September 2002, he became ill and he requested a medical leave of absence from September 30 through December 30, 2002. He was granted a medical leave of absence pursuant to the Family Medical Leave Act. Petitioner further alleges that he was diagnosed with a disabling medical condition, although the nature of that condition is not revealed in the pleadings or other submissions in this matter. He contends that Principal Walling contacted him and pressured him to return to employment, and that he resumed his teaching duties in early December 2002, approximately one month before the end of his medical leave of absence. After his return from medical leave, he continued to receive outstanding evaluations, except for one prepared by Principal Walling in February 2003, in which he indicated that petitioner needed improvement in the area of professional growth.

By letter dated April 14, 2003, the Superintendent advised petitioner that the Board intended to take formal action with regard to the non-renewal of petitioner's contract at its public meeting of April 30, 2003. Petitioner appeared at the meeting and requested renewal of his contract. According to petitioner, respondent's attorney verbally advised petitioner's attorney that respondent decided not to offer petitioner a contract for the 2003-2004 school year because of petitioner's excessive absenteeism and for medical reasons. Petitioner alleges that respondent's decision was arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable.

In the second count of the Petition, petitioner alleges that he suffers from a disabling medical condition and he is a handicapped individual as defined in N.J.S.A. 10:5-5 of the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination. He alleges upon information and belief that respondent's decision not to renew petitioner's contract of employment was based upon the fact that petitioner suffers from a disabling medical condition and that this constitutes a violation of petitioner's rights under the Law Against Discrimination.

Respondent acknowledges that petitioner has been employed by the respondent, as a non-tenured teacher for three school years, namely, 2000-2001, 2001-2002 and 2002-2003. It also acknowledges that renewal of petitioner's employment contract for the 2003-2004 school year would have granted petitioner tenure. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1(b), William E. DeFeo, Ed.D., Superintendent of Schools, determined not to recommend renewal of petitioner's employment contract for the 2003-2004 school year.

According to his Certification, Dr. DeFeo's recommendation was based on petitioner's poor attendance record. (Certification of Dr. DeFeo). During his first two years of employment with the respondent, petitioner was allotted 10 sick days and two personal days for each school year, and he used every allotted sick and personal day. Petitioner even took an additional day without pay during his second year. (Petitioner's attendance records attached to Certification of Dr. DeFeo, Exhibits "A" and "B" respectively). Petitioner does not allege that his poor attendance record during his first two years of employment was caused by any disability.

Dr. DeFeo stated in paragraph 4 of his Certification:

> It has been my experience that a non-tenured teacher with excessive absenteeism is prone to future chronic absenteeism. A non-tenured teacher who during his first two years of employment uses every allotted day, and even takes additional time without pay, is very unusual and a great cause of concern.

Dr. DeFeo additionally asserts that in petitioner's third year of employment, he was allotted 11 sick days and 3 personal days, and he used all of his allotted days by September 27, 2002. After petitioner's return to work on December 4, 2002, he was absent without pay for nine additional days.

Dr. DeFeo states that petitioner alleged he suffered some undetermined illness and/or disability in September 2002. After he exhausted all of his allotted sick and personal time in September 2002, petitioner applied for and was granted a medical leave from September 30, 2002, until December 30, 2002. The nature of petitioner's illness or disability is unknown to the respondent.

During the second half of the 2002-2003 school year, petitioner took 9 additional days off without pay. Respondent points out that petitioner does not allege that these additional absences have any relationship to his prior illness and/or disability. In fact, petitioner sought additional sick time from the Board for the flu and other ordinary illnesses. (Certification of Dr. DeFeo, paragraph 10).

Dr. DeFeo states that petitioner's poor attendance record greatly concerned him as the resultant lack of continuity negatively impacted student learning. Respondent asserts that petitioner's poor attendance record both before and after his leave provides sufficient evidence to justify the non-renewal of his contract as a teaching staff member. Dr. DeFeo stated in paragraph 7 of his Certification:

> In my opinion, Petitioner's attendance record is one of excessive absenteeism, which in and of itself justifies my recommendation for non-renewal. This poor attendance record is, however, compounded by a lack of professionalism and a negative recommendation by his supervisor. (See Certification of Principal, David Walling).

In paragraph 8 of his Certification, Dr. DeFeo emphasized that petitioner's claim of disability had no impact on his decision and, to date, he has no medical documentation as to the nature of petitioner's illness or disability. Petitioner's request for a medical leave afforded no details and the attached notice from a family physician, not a specialist, simply indicated that petitioner would not return to work until further notice. (See Petitioner's medical leave request dated September 30, 2002, Exhibit "E"). In paragraph 10 of his Certification, Dr. DeFeo states that he has no knowledge of the nature of petitioner's illness and/or disability and its impact, if any, on future attendance. In fact, petitioner's request for additional sick time after his return from leave was for ordinary illnesses.

Finally, Dr. DeFeo states in paragraph 11 of his Certification:

> Teacher attendance is extremely important for continuity of education and the furtherance of the educational goals of students. A non-tenured teacher who evidences excessive absenteeism, compounded by a lack of professionalism, cannot in good conscious be recommended for the privilege of tenure. Petitioner's attendance record before and after his medical leave, in and of itself, justifies the recommendation of non-renewal.

Petitioner's supervisor, Principal David Walling, also refused to recommend petitioner for renewal. Principal Walling noted petitioner's lack of professionalism in handling the circumstances of his leave and also his inability to properly manage disruptive students.

(Certification of Principal, David Walling).

In paragraphs 3 and 4 of his Certification, Principal Walling stated that petitioner worked a couple of days at the beginning of the school year and then just started to use sick and subsequently personal days. Petitioner never telephoned Principal Walling or any other school official to the best of his knowledge, to explain what was going on, and Principal Walling had no idea why petitioner was continually absent. Several teachers relayed to the Principal that students had seen him out in the area at stores and complained about his continual absences. Teachers within the World Language department were upset about constantly covering his classes. The teachers, including the Department Coordinator, Mrs. Abbe Clark, also had not received any phone calls from the Petitioner. Teachers are expected to contact their respective department coordinator when absent.

Principal Walling states that he called petitioner twice and left messages but received no response. He then contacted the central office administration and it could offer no explanation as to petitioner's continual absences. Finally, in September, petitioner applied for a medical leave. In the opinion of Principal Walling, petitioner handled this situation in a non-professional manner.

In his Certification, Principal Walling states that upon petitioner's return to work, he completed two evaluations of his teaching performance. The first dated February 6, 2003 notes a direct correlation between petitioner's attendance and student performance and also notes problems dealing with disruptive students. (See evaluation dated February 6, 2003, Walling Certification, Exhibit "A"). The petitioner did not submit an attachment to said evaluation as is his right to do, and Principal Walling assumes that he was not disputing the written evaluation. The second evaluation, dated June, 2003 notes poor attendance and disciplining problems.

In paragraph 6 of his Certification, Principal Walling states:

> It is important to note that Petitioner's attendance problems continued the second half of the school year. Petitioner's excessive absences resulted in a difficult classroom situation and a lack of continuity which negatively affected student learning.

This information provided additional justification for the Superintendent's decision not to recommend renewal of the petitioner.

On April 14, 2003, the Superintendent notified petitioner of his decision not to recommend renewal of his employment contract. The petitioner, on April 24, 2003 notified the Superintendent of his intention to attend the April 30, 2003 closed session of the Board with his attorney. The petitioner appeared before the Board, but failed to convince the Board to renew his employment contract. Petitioner's attendance record and lack of professionalism were discussed. The Board voted not to renew petitioner's contract of employment. Petitioner was notified of the nonrenewal of his employment by correspondence dated May 2, 2003.

LEGAL DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS

A board of education has broad discretionary authority in regard to the granting of tenure. Donaldson v. Bd. of Ed. of No. Wildwood, 65 N.J. 236, 240-241 (1974). A board's discretionary authority is not unlimited, and its action will be set aside if it was taken for arbitrary or capricious reasons. Id., at 247; N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1(b). A determination not to grant tenure need not be grounded on unsatisfactory classroom or professional performance, as there are many unrelated but equally valid reasons. Donaldson v. Bd. of Ed. of No. Wildwood, 65 N.J. at 241. Thus, evaluations of classroom performance are not necessarily the controlling factor. Dore v. Board of Educ., 185 N.J. Super. 447, 453-454 (App. Div. 1982).

A determination within a board's discretionary authority is arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable if it is without a rational basis or is induced by improper motives. Kopera v. West Orange Bd. of Education, 60 N.J. Super. 288, 294 (App. Div. 1960). A rational basis for a determination is lacking where the board's beliefs or assertions as to the underlying facts prove to be untrue or if the facts are true, they do not warrant the board's conclusion or action. Id., at 296-297. The party challenging the board's action has the burden of proving unreasonableness. Id., at 297.

The transmittal of this matter from the Commissioner of Education states that this matter is to be reviewed under the limited standard applicable to non-tenured staff as set forth in the cases cited hereinafter. The controlling case, and one of the cases referred to in the transmittal, is Dore v. Bedminister Tp. Bd. of Ed., supra, 185 N.J. Super. 447. In that matter, the local board voted not to renew the teaching contract of petitioner resulting in the denial of tenure. The petitioner requested a statement of the reasons for the non-renewal and the Board informed him of failings in his teaching effectiveness, poor teaching methods, poor grading procedures, lack of a structured classroom, and lack of assessment of student progress. Significantly, these criticisms were not contained in petitioner's formal evaluations, but were reasons articulated by Board members as their basis for dissatisfaction with the petitioner. They were based on personal observations of Board members and knowledge acquired through other parents. Petitioner received an informal appearance before the Board to rebut these assertions, but the Board did not change its decision.

The Commissioner reversed the non-renewal decision because the reasons were not supported by the evaluations and no other reasons were given to explain the Board's decision. However, the Comissioner rejected the argument that local boards are bound to predicate renewal decisions of non-tenured teaching staff members on evaluations conducted pursuant to the law and regulations.

The State Board reversed the Commissioner's decision and emphasized the considerable discretion afforded to local boards in employing teaching staff members. The State Board determined that the local board had sufficient information to support its decision not to reemploy petitioner and its statement of reasons for doing so. It concluded that the local board's action was not so arbitrary and capricious as to warrant the extraordinary remedy of overriding the managerial prerogative of a local board and requiring it to employ a teacher it does not want on its staff.

The Appellate Division concluded that the State Board's decision was correct. It stated:

> The decision of the Commissioner recognized a local board's right to base its decision not to re-employ on matters outside of a teacher's evaluations due to a board's virtually unlimited discretion in hiring or non-renewing non-tenured teachers.
> [185 N.J. Super. at 453.]

The Court then went on to say:

> The State Board's decision properly recognized the Board's right to reach its conclusion about its non-tenured teacher on a broad base of input received from a variety of people, including members of the public, parents of students and a board member's own knowledge of a teacher even if that knowledge is acquired through having a child in the teacher's class.
> [185 N.J. Super. at 453-454.]

Finally, the Court stated:

> We did not regard the lack of strict compliance with N.J.S.A. 18A:27-3.1 to be a sufficient reason to afford petitioner either reinstatement or financial reward.
> [186 N.J. Super. at 455.]

The Court then referred to the Donaldson case and indicated that in the language of that decision is a recognition by the Court that absent constitutional constraints or legislation affecting the tenure rights of teachers, local boards of education have an almost complete right to terminate the services of a teacher who has no tenure and is regarded as undesirable by the local board. Id., 186 N.J. Super. at 455.

The second case referred to in the transmittal to the OAL is Guerriero v. Bd. of Ed. of the Borough of Glen Rock, decided by the State Board of Education February 5, 1985, affirmed, Dkt. No. A-3316-85T6 (App. Div. 1986). In that matter, the reasons cited by the local board for not renewing petitioner's contract were that the parents of students expressed disillusionment with petitioner's methodology, frustration as to the manner in which the petitioner presented materials, and regret at not being more persistent in seeking the transfer of their children. The Court stated that under Dore, the only substantive ground available to petitioner to contest the local board decision would have been a claim of deprivation of a constitutional or statutory right. Since petitioner made no such claim, the Court agreed with the State Board that even accepting petitioner's allegations as true, the local board was entitled to summary decision.

The third case referred to by the Commissioner in the transmittal to the OAL is Cordell Wise v. Bd. of Ed. of the City of Trenton, State Board decision January 3, 2001. In that case, the Commissioner of Education dismissed the petition as untimely. On appeal, the State Board stressed that a district board has virtually unlimited discretion in hiring or non-renewing non-tenured teachers, citing the Dore case and quoting language therein. The Board, citing Guerriero, stated:

> Thus, where a non-tenured teacher challenges a district board's decision to terminate his employment on grounds that the reasons provided by the Board are not supported by the facts, he is entitled to litigate that question only if the facts he alleges, if true, would constitute a violation of constitutional or legislatively-conferred rights.

Respondent takes the position that petitioner's attendance record is undisputed and that this record standing alone provides sufficient evidence to justify the Board's discretionary decision not to renew the employment contract of the petitioner. Respondent further argues that the Board also properly considered the opinions of Superintendent DeFeo and Principal Walling as to petitioner's poor attendance and lack of professionalism in further support of the exercise of its discretion. For these reasons respondent argues that the Petition of Appeal fails as a matter of law and should be dismissed.

Petitioner asserts that during his medical leave of absence he was diagnosed with a disabling medical condition, and he asserts that Principal Walling had been apprised of his condition by a fellow employee. He also asserts that the Board received factually incorrect information as to the exact number of days he had been absent, and that he had never been advised that his absences were a problem, thus denying him the opportunity to remediate. He further asserts that the Board attorney verbally advised petitioner's attorney that the Board decided not to offer petitioner a contract for the 2003-2004 school year because of petitioner's excessive absenteeism "and for medical reasons". He also disputes the assertion that he acted unprofessionally during his September 2002 illness. Thus, petitioner contends that there are numerous significant factual issues present in this matter and that the motion to dismiss should be denied on the basis that he should be given the opportunity to engage in discovery in order to satisfy his burden of proving that the board's action was arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable and not supported by the facts.

Petitioner's contentions raise a number of factual issues. The first involves petitioner's assertion in the second count of the Petition, that he suffers from a disabling medical condition and is a handicapped individual as defined in N.J.S.A. 10:5-5 of the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination. He contends upon information and belief that respondent's decision not to renew his employment was based upon the fact that he suffers from a disabling medical condition and that this constitutes a violation of the Law Against Discrimination. He further asserts that the Board attorney verbally advised petitioner's attorney that the Board decided not to offer petitioner a contract for the 2003-2004 school year because of petitioner's excessive absenteeism "and for medical reasons". In his Certification, petitioner alleges that Principal Walling had been apprised of his condition by a fellow employee. He further disputes the assertion that he acted unprofessionally during his September 2002 illness.

In his certification, Principal Walling set forth the factual circumstances giving rise to the claim of unprofessional behavior during petitioner's September 2002 illness. However, Principal Walling did not dispute petitioner's allegation that he was apprised of petitioner's disabling condition by a third party, nor was there any denial of the assertion that the Board Attorney stated that the Board's nonrenewal was for petitioner's excessive absenteeism "and for medical reasons". However, in paragraph 8 of his Certification, Dr. DeFeo emphasized that petitioner's claim of disability had no impact on his decision to recommend against petitioner's renewal and that petitioner has provided no medical documentation as to the nature of his illness or disability. Dr. DeFeo states that petitioner's request for a medical leave afforded no details and the note from a family physician simply indicated that petitioner would not return to work until further notice. In paragraph 10 of his Certification, Dr. DeFeo states that he has no knowledge of the nature of petitioner's illness and/or disability and its impact, if any, on future attendance. He points out that, in fact, petitioner's request for additional sick time after his return from leave was for ordinary illnesses. It is also noted that petitioner does not allege in any submission herein that he ever pursued his claim of a disability during his employment or sought any accommodation from respondent based on the disability.

In the present matter there can be no dispute that petitioner had a very poor attendance record during the entire three years of his employment by respondent, and I so FIND. During his first two years of employment with the respondent, petitioner was allotted 10 sick days and two personal days for each school year, and he used every allotted sick and personal day, and took an additional day without pay during his second year. Petitioner does not allege that his poor attendance record during his first two years of employment was caused by any disability. In petitioner's third year of employment, he was allotted 11 sick days and three personal days. Petitioner apparently suffered from an illness or disability in September 2002, and he used all of his allotted days by September 27, 2002. After petitioner's return to work from a leave of absence on December 4, 2002, he was absent without pay for nine additional days. He likewise does not allege that any of these absences were caused by any disability. I FIND that petitioner's poor attendance record during his probationary period of employment, standing alone, is a sufficient factual basis to justify the exercise of the board's discretion to refuse to renew petitioner's employment. In addition, I FIND that the Board's decision, based on excessive absences does not constitute a violation of constitutional or legislatively-conferred rights.

In his argument, petitioner misconstrues the nature of the motion to dismiss in this matter. This motion is not one for summary decision, which may be defeated by showing the existence of undisputed facts. The fact that there may be other factual issues present in this matter does not require a denial of the motion to dismiss. As stated in Dore, local boards are afforded considerable discretion in employing teaching staff members. If it is determined that the local board had sufficient information to support its decision not to reemploy petitioner and its statement of reasons for doing so, its action should be affirmed. It is clear in this matter that petitioner's poor attendance record during his employment by respondent is a sufficient factual basis to justify the board's refusal to renew petitioner's employment. Overriding the managerial prerogative of a local board and requiring it to employ a teacher it does not want on its staff is an extraordinary remedy, and should not be granted herein if the local board's action was not so arbitrary and capricious as to warrant it. In addition, even if petitioner's additional factual allegations are found to be true, I FIND that they would have no impact on the finding that petitioner's poor attendance record during his employment by respondent is a sufficient factual basis to justify the board's refusal to renew petitioner's employment. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that respondent is entitled to have its motion to dismiss granted.

DECISION AND ORDER

For the reasons set forth above, it is hereby ORDERED that petitioner's petition is hereby DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

MICHAEL GRANDE,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF MANCHESTER, OCEAN COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions and the Board's reply thereto were duly noted as submitted in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Petitioner's exceptions initially contend that the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) misapplied the standard of review in this matter. That is, although the ALJ cites to Dore, Guerriero and Wise, supra, and acknowledges that these cases allow a nontenured teaching staff member to challenge a board's decision to terminate him based upon a claim that he was deprived of his constitutional or legislatively conferred rights, petitioner contends that the ALJ erroneously ignores his viable claim. In this regard, petitioner argues,

> The Petition filed in this matter alleges that the Board's decision not to renew Petitioner's contract of employment was arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable and that it was in violation of the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination, N.J.S.A. 10:5-1 et seq. (hereinafter "NJLAD"), because the decision was based upon Petitioner's medical condition. As such, it is beyond dispute that, if Petitioner's allegations are proved to be true, the Board's termination of his employment would indeed constitute a violation of his rights under the NJLAD. Therefore, Judge Martone's > decision to grant Respondent's Motion to Dismiss is in direct contravention of well-settled case law allowing a nontenured teacher to challenge a board of education's decision to terminate his employment based upon a violation of his legislatively-conferred rights. (Petitioner's Exceptions at 2)

Petitioner affirms that respondent's Motion to Dismiss is, in effect, comparable to a motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim upon which relief may be granted, pursuant to New Jersey Court Rule 4:6-2(e). "As stated by the Court in Printing Mart v. Sharp Electronics, 116 N.J. 739, 746 (1989), in ruling on such a motion, the complaint must be searched in depth and with liberality to determine if a cause of action can be gleaned even from an obscure statement, particularly if further discovery is taken. Every reasonable inference is therefore accorded to the plaintiff and the motion is granted only in rare instances and ordinarily without prejudice. " (emphasis in text) (Id. at 3)

Further, petitioner asserts that the ALJ improperly rejected his argument that Respondent's Motion to Dismiss should be characterized as a Motion for Summary Judgment. In the absence of specific agency rules on point, petitioner contends that the ALJ could properly proceed in accordance with R. 4:6-2 which permits a motion to dismiss to be treated as a motion for summary judgment where "matters outside the pleading are presented to and not excluded by the court." (Id. at 4, citing to R. 4:6-2) Here, as petitioner notes, respondent presented to the OAL two certifications with attachments, which were "clearly outside the pleading," and, therefore, the motion should have been treated as one for summary judgment. (Id. at 4) Petitioner insists that he has demonstrated the existence of material facts that are in dispute and, therefore, as a matter of law, the motion should not have been granted.

In reply, the Board argues that the ALJ correctly distinguished its Motion to Dismiss from a summary judgment motion and properly applied the standard of review.

Petitioner's attempts, the Board contends, to "cloud the issue" by alleging that there is a dispute as to the number of days that he was absent must fail. The Board avers that the ALJ's determination was based on attendance figures that are not disputed and were not related to any alleged disability. (Board's Reply at 2) In this connection, the Board underscores that teacher absenteeism adversely impacts the education of its students and has been held to be sufficient grounds for nonrenewal of a teacher. (Ibid.) Finally, the Board notes that "Petitioner does not allege he ever pursued a claim of disability during his employment with the Respondent, nor does Petitioner allege he sought any accommodation based upon a disability." (Id. at 3) The Board urges, therefore, that petitioner failed, as a matter of law, to meet his burden under Dore, supra, since "the undisputed attendance record, absent Petitioner's medical leave, alleges no constitutional constraint and provides ample evidence of the Board's decision." (Ibid.)

Upon careful and independent review of the record, the Commissioner determines to modify the Initial Decision, for the reasons set forth herein. Initially, the Commissioner underscores that this matter is before him pursuant to the Board's Motion to Dismiss the Petition of Appeal, which was filed in lieu of the Board's Answer. As such, the Commissioner recognizes that it is within his authority > to treat a motion to dismiss on the ground that "no sufficient cause for determination has been advanced" as encompassing not only a claim that the petition on its face fails to set forth a basis for relief, but also that petitioners have failed to provide any factual support for the general allegations of their petition. Sloan ex rel. Sloan v. Klagholtz, 342 N.J.Super. 385, 394 (App. Div. 2001).

The issue before the Commissioner, then, is the adequacy of petitioner's pleadings.

Petitioner's substantive grounds to contest the Board's nonrenewal are limited. In this regard, the State Board of Education has affirmed that:

> [W]here, , a non-tenured teacher challenges a board's decision not to reemploy him on the grounds that the reasons provided by the board are not supported by the facts, he is entitled to litigate that question only if the facts he alleges, if true, would constitute a violation of constitutional or legislatively conferred rights.* (emphasis added).Guerriero v. Board of Education of the Borough of Glen Rock, decided by the State Board of Education, February 5, 1986, Slip Opinion at 5 aff'd, Docket #A-3316-85T6 (App. Div. 1986)

Therefore, even accepting as true petitioner's factual allegations for the purpose of this motion, to the extent he contends, as set forth in Count I, that the Board's decision not to renew his contract of employment was arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable, the Commissioner finds that, pursuant to Dore, Guerriero and Wise, supra, he is not entitled to litigate such a claim. However, to the extent petitioner alleges facts which, if true, would constitute a violation of the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination, N.J.S.A. 10:5-1 et seq., as set forth in Count II of the Petition of Appeal, pursuant to the aforementioned case law, petitioner may contest his nonrenewal.[1] The Commissioner so finds, notwithstanding that the factual allegations brought by petitioner to support his disability claim are scant, since he is mindful of the Court's liberal approach to determining the adequacy of a pleading. See, Printing Mart, supra at 746.[2]

[1] In this connection, although the Superintendent certifies that he has "no medical documentation as to the nature of Petitioner's illness and/or disability," and that petitioner's current claim of disability had no impact on the Superintendent's nonrenewal decision, (Board's Brief in Support of Motion to Dismiss; Certification of William E. DeFeo, Ed.D., Superintendent of Schools at 3), petitioner specifically disputes the Superintendent's contentions. (Petitioner's Counterstatement of Facts and Procedural History at 6; Certification of Michael W. Grande at 2-3) Additionally, as the ALJ noted, "Principal Walling did not dispute petitioner's allegation that he was apprised of petitioner's disabling condition by a third party." (Initial Decision at 11) Neither does the Board deny petitioner's assertion that, "[a]t the April 30, 2003 Board Meeting, the Board's attorney verbally advised [his] attorney  that the Board decided not to offer [him] a contract for the 2003-2004 school year because of [petitioner's] 'excessive absenteeism and for medical reasons.'" (Certification of Michael W. Grande at 2; Initial Decision at 11)

[2] The Commissioner notes that even if the within motion were considered as one for summary decision, the result would be the same. That is, assuming all facts alleged by petitioner to be true for the purpose of such a motion, petitioner, in his certification, set forth facts sufficient to show that there is a genuine issue as to whether the Board's nonrenewal decision was unlawfully based on his alleged disability. See, N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5.

Accordingly, the Initial Decision is modified, as set forth herein. The Board's Motion to Dismiss is granted as to petitioner's claim that the Board's nonrenewal decision was arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable; however, the Board's Motion to Dismiss is denied as to petitioner's claim that the Board's nonrenewal constituted a violation of his rights under the NJLAD. This matter is remanded to the OAL for proceedings solely on the latter claim.

IT IS SO ORDERED.[3]

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, mother of D.B., challenged the Board's determination that during the entire period that D.B. attended school in the District (since September 1999) he was not a legal resident there.

In light of the testimony of the witnesses, including the school's residency investigators, the ALJ determined that D.B. did not reside in Union. The ALJ noted that not even on one occasion did the investigators observe D.B. going to school in Union without having been taken there from Newark. The ALJ concluded there was no reasonable question concerning D.B.'s residence -- he and petitioner were not living in Union. The ALJ ordered petitioner to reimburse the Board for tuition owed for the period of D.B.'s unauthorized attendance in the District.

The Commissioner adopted the Initial Decision as his own and ordered petitioner to pay the Board tuition in the amount of $31,847.16 for the ineligible attendance of D.B. in the District.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This school residency case was transmitted by the Department of Education to the Office of Administrative Law on August 9, 2002 as the result of a challenge by E.C., the mother of D.B., to a determination by the respondent Board of Education of Union Township (Board) that during the entire period D.B. has attended school in Union Township (since September 1999) he was not a legal resident there. The Board filed both an answer denying the allegations of the petition, as well as a counterclaim for tuition reimbursement amounting as of November 10, 2003, to nearly $32,000. A plenary hearing was held before the undersigned administrative law judge on November 10, 2003. Post hearing proposed findings of fact and conclusions of law have now been filed in accordance with an agreed schedule and my initial decision follows.

TESTIMONY

A. For the Board

Although E.C. on behalf of D.B., her nine-year-old son, is titled the petitioner, I determined that the respondent Board should present its case first, which it did.

The first witness, Maria Schmidtberg, has been a "residency investigator" in the employ of the Board for about ten years and conducts approximately 75 to 100 investigations per school year. In March 2002 she began an investigation as the result of information that D.B., then a seven-year-old second grader at Connecticut Farms School, was attending school in Union although he did not live in the school district (Ex. R-1). As a result, Schmidtberg first visited the school so she could personally identify him. Thereafter, she conducted surveillances both at a house at 375 Carnegie Place in Union which was claimed by E.C. to be where D.B. lived with her, and at a house on Smith Street in Newark where E.C.'s mother, D.B.'s grandmother, lived.

In her report, Schmidtberg related that between March 19, 2002 and March 27, 2002 she surveilled the 375 Carnegie Place home on four separate occasions and not once did she see the boy leave from there for school even though he did attend school in Union on those days. During the period, from March 28, 2002 to May 8, 2002, she surveilled his grandmother's residence in Newark twelve times. On each occasion she observed the boy driven each morning from Newark by his mother to a house at 149

Laurel Avenue in Union. From there, D.B. soon left to walk to a bus stop to be transported to school by bus. Thus, on no occasion did she ever see D.B. leave the residence on Carnegie Place in Union to go to school; whereas, when she surveilled the site in Newark she saw him leave each day when his mother drove him to Union in her car (Ex. R-7).

On cross-examination, Schmidtberg revealed that in addition to the 16 surveillances mentioned in her report, she also went "on her own" to the Newark site about once a week, and occasionally on weekends, where she observed E.C.'s car parked nearby. She explained she often does this as part of her job.

The second Board witness, Anthony R. Martino, is also a "residency investigator" who has been employed by the Board for about eight years. Like Schmidtberg, he conducts 75 to 100 residency investigations each school year.

In March 2003 Martino was asked to reinvestigate the residency issue involving E.C. and D.B. because a hearing was scheduled to take place before the Board in May. Thus, like Schmidtberg, Martino first visited the elementary school which D.B. attended in order to identify him so that he would know him if he saw him again. Thereafter, on several occasions during March 2003, Martino went either to the Smith Street location in Newark where D.B.'s grandmother lived, or to 149 Laurel Avenue. Like Schmidtberg, on each such occasion in Newark he saw the boy leave shortly after 7:00 a.m. each morning to be driven by his mother to the house at 149 Laurel Avenue in Union. Soon thereafter, D.B. would leave to go to a nearby school bus stop to be transported to school (Ex. R-3).

B. For the Petitioner:

Testimony of behalf of petitioner then was offered by Regine Rene, E.C.'s niece and by E.C. herself. According to Rene, her aunt E.C., and cousin D.B. live on Carnegie Place in Union and that her grandmother, E.C.'s mother, lives separately on Smith Street in Newark. Rene has visited the 375 Carnegie Place home many times where, she insisted, E.C. lives with D.B., another aunt (P.C. who owns the house) and P.C.'s son who attends high school. She believes that property has three bedrooms and D.B. and his older cousin each have their own room. The house at 149 Laurel Avenue where both investigators saw D.B. dropped off in the morning is owned by another of E.C.'s sisters.

E.C. then testified on her own behalf. She too, insisted that since August 1999 she and her son have lived continuously at 375 Carnegie Place in Union. Before then they lived in Newark. Although the house on Carnegie Place is owned by her sister, P.C., E.C. said she shares in the payment of bills. The house has five bedrooms and she has a room in the basement.

E.C. next identified a variety of documents from local hospitals, the Internal Revenue Service, the Division of Motor Vehicles, local banks, etc., all of which were mailed to her in her name at the Carnegie Place address (Exs. P-1 to P-15). Also, it was stipulated that E.C.'s current and previous driver's licenses reflect her address as 375 Carnegie Place. So too, her paychecks have been and continue to be sent there. E.C. said she visited her mother in Newark often,[1] and sometimes took her son with her where he stayed overnight from time to time. However, she vehemently insisted that she and D.B. live with her sister in Union and have done so since 1999.

On cross-examination, E.C. continued to maintain that neither she nor her son has lived in Newark since 1999 and that they have resided at all times at 375 Carnegie Place in Union. She identified in answers to interrogatories the names of other adults living in the Carnegie Place house, but said none of them were able to come to testify on her behalf because they were otherwise occupied.[2] She agreed she owns a tan 1994 Honda which was described in the reports of both investigators on the vehicle which she used to drive D.B. from Newark to Union.

[1] E.C.'s mother recently moved, as will be discussed infra.

[2] Nor did E.C.'s mother testify.

As the result of E.C.'s continued insistence on cross-examination that she lives at 375 Carnegie Place in Union, the Board then recalled Schmidtberg in rebuttal. She related that very recently she discovered that a telephone number listed in E.C.'s name at her mother's house on Smith Street in Newark had been changed to a new listing on Manor Drive in Union. The purpose of this testimony was to attempt to demonstrate that E.C. now has moved to Manor Drive and thus was lacking in credibility when she insisted she and D.B. still live on Carnegie Place.

As a result of Schmidtberg's "rebuttal" testimony, E.C. was recalled and explained that the person who now lives on Manor Drive in Union is her mother who just moved there from Newark and the phone number is still in E.C.'s name, as it was at the Newark apartment where her mother previously lived, since E.C. paid the bills for its use.. She reiterated that neither she nor her son had lived anywhere else in Union other than at 375 Carnegie Place since 1999, and the lease on the Manor Drive apartment is not in her name and she pays no rent there.

DISCUSSION

Although there were a substantial number of documents admitted into evidence reflecting that E.C. uses the 375 Carnegie Place address as the location for receiving her mail, etc. (Exs. P-1 to P-15), neither singly nor in combination do they prove she lived there or intended to do so. Indeed, even though several other persons apparently also reside there, not one of them, including her own sister and nephew, was called to testify on her behalf to corroborate the fact of her residence. Thus, her case rises or falls on her and Rene's credibility in the face of the Board's testimony.

In my view, it defies logic for there to have been over twenty random surveillances of the residences either on Carnegie Place in Union, or on Smith Street in Newark on regular school days, and on not even one of those occasions was D.B. ever observed leaving Carnegie Place to go to school without having been taken there from Newark. To the contrary, on every single occasion when the Newark premises was observed, D.B.

was seen leaving at about 7:00 a.m. and then driven by his mother to his aunt's house on Laurel Avenue in Union, from which he then went to a nearby bus stop to be transported to school. The numbers of such incidents simply cannot reasonably be ascribed to accident or coincidence. Plainly, D.B. and E.C. were living in Newark at the grandmother's house and D.B. daily was taken by E.C. to Union to board a school bus to go to school in Union. The contrary testimony from E.C., uncorroborated by either her mother or by persons who resided on Carnegie Place, was substantially lacking in credibility. It does not matter that bills, notices, etc. had 375 Carnegie Place as E.C.'s address. Mail can be sent wherever the addressee directs. Indeed, until recently, the only phone number listed under E.C.'s name was at her mother's residence in Newark. While E.C. attempted to explain that situation by indicating it was because she paid the phone bill for her mother, that fact also was evidential of her actual residency and thus that of her son as well. Not once in all the surveillances was D.B. observed leaving 375 Carnegie Place to go to school. Yet, every time the Smith Street address in Newark was surveilled, he was seen being driven to Union by E.C. in time to get on the bus to go to school there. In light of the overwhelming nature of those circumstances, where E.C.'s bills, paychecks, etc. are sent pales in comparison.

E.C.'s testimony was rife with contradictions. As pointed out by counsel for the Board, she obtained a driver's license reflecting her residence at 375 Carnegie Place months before she purportedly moved there and at a time that even she agreed she was residing in Newark. So too, although on direct examination she testified her mother lived at the 225 Smith Street address in Newark and she visits her there often, it turns out as a result of the Board's rebuttal testimony that her mother had in fact moved from Newark to Union in September 2003, two months before the hearing. In light of the contradictions and inconsistencies in her own testimony, not to mention the overwhelming evidence stemming from the observations made by two separate investigators, there is no reasonable question concerning D.B.'s residence during the period in question. Obviously, he resided with his grandmother at her house in Newark and was brought to Union by his mother in order to board a bus to be transported to school each day.

In a reply memorandum, counsel for E.C. maintains that the determination of D.B.'s domicile depends upon where E.C. intended her place of domicile was to be. While that may be so, it does not change the result. E.C. was not living at 375 Carnegie Place in Union, nor was her son, and all of the extrinsic evidence points to the fact that her intention, if it existed at all, to move to Union only came about after the Board questioned the propriety of D.B.'s continued attendance without payment of tuition in the Union public schools.

Accordingly, for the reasons set forth herein, the challenge by E.C. on behalf of D.B. to the Board's determination to collect tuition for D.B.'s unauthorized attendance at school in Union for the period in question must be rejected and a determination entered in favor of the Board on its tuition reimbursement counterclaim in the amount of approximately $32,000.[3]

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

[3] The affidavit of Karen Dunn, the Board's School Business Administrator, dated December 13, 2003, was submitted at my request and is marked as Exhibit R-7.

PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF UNION, UNION COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions were untimely filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4(a), in that the Initial Decision was mailed to the parties on January 12, 2004 and the exceptions were filed on February 2, 2004, well outside the 13-day period prescribed by regulation. Consequently, this submission was not considered in the Commissioner's determination of this matter.

Upon careful and independent review of the record in this matter, and based on the ALJ's credibility assessments, N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(c), the Commissioner finds no cause to disturb the factual findings and legal conclusions of the ALJ.

Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the ALJ is adopted for the reasons expressed therein, and the within Petition of Appeal is dismissed. Consistent with the affidavit submitted by the Board's School Business Administrator, the tuition rate for D.B.'s attendance at the Connecticut Farms School is as follows:

- $6,773 for the 1999-2000 school year;
- $7,108 for the 2000-2001 school year;
- $7,814 for the 2001-2002 school year;
- $8,169 for the 2002-2003 school year; and
- $8,301 for the 2003-2004 school year, prorated at $46.12 per day for each of the 43 days D.B.'s attended school this year, as of November 10, 2003. (Affidavit of Karen Dunn Regarding Tuition Counterclaim, Exhibit R-7)

The Commissioner, therefore, directs that petitioner reimburse the Board for tuition in the amount of $31,847.16 for the ineligible attendance of D.B. in the district.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, parent of high school student J.H., challenged the Board's residency determination that J.H. was not a legal resident in the District. The Board filed a counterclaim for tuition for the period of ineligible attendance.

The ALJ dismissed the petition for failure of petitioner to appear at hearing or answer correspondence. The ALJ upheld the Board's counterclaim for $13,438.34 in tuition.

The Commissioner concurred with the ALJ's decision and granted the Board's counterclaim for $13,438.34 for the period of J.H.'s ineligible attendance at its school during the 2001-2002 and 2002-2003 school years.

BEFORE STEPHEN G. WEISS, ALJ:

This is a school residence case which was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law by the Department of Education on March 4, 2003 as a result of a challenge by the petitioner, J.H. on behalf of minor child J.H., to a determination by the Board the minor was not a legal resident in Belleville and therefore tuition for the period of time he attended school in that district was due and owing to the Board. See, N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1.

A plenary hearing was scheduled before the undersigned Administrative Law Judge on December 16, 2003. On that date no appearance was made by or on behalf of the petitioner. Board counsel did appear and I directed that he submit proof of any tuition reimbursement sought so that a final determination on the counter-claim could be made.

Thereafter counsel submitted the affidavit of Dr. Joseph Ciccone, Superintendent of Schools (Exhibit R-1), in which Dr. Ciccone related that J.H., the minor, attended Belleville High School for the entire 2001-2002 school year and for 97 days during the 2002-2003 school year. The tuition expended by Belleville for that attendance amounted to $8,780.40 for the 2001-2002 school year (180 days x $48.78 per day) and $4,657.94 for the 2002-2003 school year (97 days x $48.02 per day). The total amount of tuition sought to be recouped by the Board's counterclaim therefore is $13,438.34.

Dr. Ciccone also related in his affidavit that the minor no longer is a student at Belleville High School and the tuition amount set forth in his affidavit is accurate up to the last day of attendance.

Since petitioner failed to appear for the hearing and did not respond to letters inquiring about his intent, his petition will therefore be dismissed.

With respect to the Board's counterclaim, in light of the affidavit of Dr. Ciccone, which was served on J.H. by mail and to which there has been no response, the Board is entitled to recover the total sum of $13,438.34.

Accordingly, for the reasons set forth above, the petition of appeal is dismissed and the Board's counterclaim in the amount of $13,438.34 is upheld.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon careful and independent review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner concurs with the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) that petitioner, who did not appear for the hearing in this matter, has failed to carry his burden of proof that his son was entitled to a free education in the District. The Commissioner further agrees with the grant of the Board's counterclaim for tuition in the amount of $13,438.34 for the period of J.H.'s ineligible attendance at its school during the 2001-2002 and 2002-2003 school years.

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, former principal, alleged the Board violated his tenure rights when it assigned him to a vice principal position.

The ALJ concluded that petitioner did not attain tenure as principal pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6(a). The ALJ found that petitioner was appointed to the position on August 22, 2000 and served until August 12, 2002, a period that plainly falls short of the two calendar years required by statute. Moreover, the ALJ concluded that petitioner failed to serve the required length of time mandated by N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6(b) as defined in academic years and, thus, he was not entitled to tenure under this statutory provision. Petition was dismissed.

The Commissioner adopted the Initial Decision as his own.

Record Closed: December 4, 2003 Decided: January 16, 2004

BEFORE MARGARET M. MONACO, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The petitioner, Adamu S. Braimah, Sr. (petitioner), challenges action by the respondent, the State-Operated School District of the City of Newark (the District), reassigning petitioner from the position of principal to vice principal effective August 12, 2002. Petitioner alleges that he achieved tenure in the position of principal pursuant to the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6. The District controverts petitioner's tenure claim.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On September 19, 2002, petitioner filed a Verified Petition with the Commissioner of Education (Commissioner) alleging violation of his tenure rights and seeking reinstatement to the position of principal. The District filed an Answer to Verified Petition on November 26, 2002. Subsequently, the Commissioner transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law where, on January 31, 2003, it was filed for determination as a contested case. The matter was scheduled to be heard on August 19 and 20, 2003. Prior to the hearing, counsel for the respective parties agreed that the dispute involved questions of law that should be decided on cross-motions for summary decision. Toward this end, the parties submitted briefs and an Amended Joint Stipulation of Facts. The undersigned heard oral argument on December 4, 2003, on which date the record was closed.

ISSUE PRESENTED

The critical issue presented is whether petitioner met the statutory qualifications embodied in N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6 necessary to acquire tenure as principal.

FINDINGS OF FACT

The parties stipulated to the material facts, which are not in dispute. Based upon the parties' Amended Joint Stipulation of Facts and attached exhibits, I FIND the following FACTS:

1. Petitioner was hired in 1987 as a security guard at the District.

2. In 1989, petitioner was appointed to the position of teacher with the District.

3. On or about February 27, 1997, petitioner was appointed to the position of vice principal.

4. Petitioner continued his employment as a vice principal until June 30, 2000, acquiring tenure in that position.

5. Effective August 22, 2000, petitioner was appointed to the position of interim principal at Dr. E. Alma Flagg School. The State District Assistant Superintendent informed petitioner of this appointment in a letter dated August 21, 2000. See Exhibit A attached to the Amended Joint Stipulation of Facts.

6. Petitioner worked the contracted work year for principals from August 22, 2000 through June 30, 2001.

7. Effective November 1, 2000, the District changed petitioner's status from interim principal to principal at Dr. E. Alma Flagg School. Petitioner was informed of this status change via letter dated November 20, 2000. See Exhibit B attached to the Amended Joint Stipulation of Facts.

8. The work year for principals changed to a twelve month work year on July 1, 2001.

9. Petitioner then worked as a principal from July 1, 2001 to June 30, 2002, the contracted work year for principals.

10. Continuing July 1, 2002, principals worked on a twelve month calendar.

11. On July 1, 2002, petitioner began his third contracted work year as principal.

12. Effective August 12, 2002, petitioner was reclassified from the position of principal and assigned to the position of vice principal.

13. By letter dated July 24, 2002, the District informed petitioner that he had been reclassified from the position of principal at Dr. E. Alma Flagg School to vice principal at Luis Munoz Marin School, effective August 12, 2002, along with the resulting decrease in his salary. See Exhibit C attached to the Amended Joint Stipulation of Facts.

14. Petitioner's relevant service may be summarized as follows:

* August 22, 2000 to October 31, 2000 – interim principal
* November 1, 2000 to August 12, 2002 – principal
* From August 22, 2000 to June 30, 2001, petitioner was employed on an academic year basis
* Beginning July 1, 2001 to August 12, 2002, petitioner was employed on a calendar year basis

LEGAL DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The tenure provisions in the school laws, N.J.S.A. 18A:28-1 to –18, define the conditions under which teaching staff members are entitled to the security of tenure. Tenure has been described as a "statutory right imposed upon a teacher's contractual employment status." Zimmerman v. Bd. of Educ. of the City of Newark, 38 N.J. 65, 72 (1962), cert. den., 371 U.S. 956, 83 S. Ct. 508, 9 L. Ed. 2d 502 (1963). The objective of the tenure statutes is to protect competent and qualified teaching staff members, after a probationary period, from removal for "unfounded, flimsy, or political reasons." Id. at 71. In other words, the provisions are "designed to aid in the establishment of a competent and efficient school system by affording to principals and teachers a measure of security in the ranks they hold after years of service." Viemeister v. Bd. of Educ. of the Borough of Prospect Park, 5 N.J. Super. 215, 218 (App. Div. 1949).

To acquire the security of tenure, the precise conditions articulated in the statute must be met. Picogna v. Bd. of Educ. of the Twp. of Cherry Hill, 143 N.J. 391, 400 (1996); Kletzkin v. Bd. of Educ. of the Borough of Spotswood, 136 N.J. 275, 278 (1993); Spiewak v. Bd. of Educ. of Rutherford, 90 N.J. 63, 72 (1982); Zimmerman, supra, 38 N.J. at 72; Ahrensfield v. State Bd. of Educ., 126 N.J.L. 543, 544 (E & A 1941). The statute supercedes contractual terms. Spiewak, supra, 90 N.J. at 72. Tenure "arises only by passage of time fixed by the statute. . . ." Canfield v. Bd. of Educ. of the Borough of Pine Hill, 51 N.J. 400 (1968), rev'g on dissent, 97 N.J. Super. 483, 490 (App. Div. 1967). The burden of proving an entitlement to tenure is upon the teaching staff member and ordinarily must be clearly proven. Id. at 493.

This matter concerns N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6, the section of the tenure laws governing the acquisition of tenure following a transfer or promotion. Pursuant to its terms, petitioner "shall not obtain tenure in the new position until after" one of the following proscribed periods:

> (a) the expiration of a period of employment of two consecutive calendar years in the new position . . .; or
> (b) employment for two academic years in the new position together with employment in the new position at the beginning of the next succeeding academic year; or
>
> (c) employment in the new position within a period of any three consecutive academic years, for the equivalent of more than two academic years....

The parties' paths diverge regarding whether petitioner achieved tenure within the intendment of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6.

Certain cardinal principles of statutory interpretation lend guidance concerning the statutory language in issue. Our precedents counsel that "[t]he first step in any statutory analysis is to examine the statute's plain language as the clearest indication of its meaning." Bergen Commercial Bank v. Sisler, 157 N.J. 188, 202 (1999). It is fundamental that "'[i]f the [statutory] language is plain, unambiguous and uncontrolled by other parts of the act or other acts upon the same subject the court cannot give it a different meaning.'" In the Matter of the Closing of Jamesburg High School, 83 N.J. 540, 547 (1980) (citation omitted). Stated differently, when "statutory language is clear and unambiguous, and susceptible to only one interpretation, courts should apply the statute as written. . . ." In the Matter of Passaic County Utilities Authority Petition, 164 N.J. 270, 299 (2000). Similarly, "[a]bsent a legislative intent to the contrary, such language should be given its ordinary meaning." Lammers v. Bd. of Educ. of the Borough of Point Pleasant, 134 N.J. 264, 268 (1993). Our courts have further embraced the concept that "a construction that would render 'any word in the statute to be inoperative, superfluous or meaningless, or to mean something other than its ordinary meaning'" should be avoided. Bergen Commercial Bank, supra, 157 N.J. at 204 (citation omitted).

Equally settled is the liberal construction to be afforded to the tenure laws toward achieving their beneficent purpose. Kletzkin, supra, 136 N.J. at 278; Lammers, supra, 134 N.J. at 272; Spiewak, supra, 90 N.J. at 74. However, this "liberal construction must be reasonable in light of the plain language of the controlling statutes." Ibid. In reviewing a different provision of the tenure laws, the New Jersey Supreme Court recognized that the "salutary objective cannot be secured by extending the law to situations in which it was not intended to apply." Closing of Jamesburg High School, supra, 83 N.J. at 548. Rather, the Court held:

> Our duty is to construe and apply the statute as enacted. We are not at liberty to presume the legislature intended something other than what it expressed by its plain language. This Court will not engage in conjecture or surmise which will circumvent the plain meaning of the act.

It is against this backdrop that the parties' positions are considered.

Petitioner maintains that he attained tenure as principal, having worked for two academic years and the beginning of a third calendar year. More particularly, petitioner argues that, by beginning his third year as a principal, he satisfied the legislative intent of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6(b) as articulated by the State Board of Education in Donnelly v. Bd. of Educ. of the Borough of Hasbrouck Heights, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 7770-99, State Board Dkt. No. 2-02 (November 6, 2002). Petitioner avers that the tenure statute, as written, did not contemplate a change in an employee's work year and should be liberally construed in favor of the employee due to the novel facts. In short, the District contends that, inasmuch as petitioner served in the capacity of principal for less than two calendar years and for no more than two academic years, he failed to satisfy any of the three criteria required by the statute.

It is beyond debate that the triggering date for tenure purposes is the date of performance of service, not the date of the employee's contract or hiring. See, Kletzkin, supra, 136 N.J. 279. Zimmerman, supra, 38 N.J. at 73-75; Carroll v. State Bd. of Educ., teaching staff member must be employed in the new position "for the equivalent of more than two academic years," "within a period of any three consecutive academic years." Since petitioner's employment as principal did not extend to a third academic year, N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6(c) provides no solace to petitioner. I CONCLUDE that, inasmuch as the precise terms of the statute were not met, petitioner did not attain tenure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6(c).

The undersigned is unpersuaded that the State Board's decision in Donnelly supports petitioner's tenure claim. As noted, in Donnelly the State Board held that N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6(c) is not limited to staff employed on an academic year basis. It further concluded that the petitioner had achieved tenure under its provisions. The evidence in Donnelly disclosed that the petitioner had served as acting principal for the full 1996-97 academic year, as acting and then principal for eight months during the 1997-98 academic year and as principal for the entire 1998-99 year. The State Board agreed with the Commissioner and the Administrative Law Judge that the petitioner's employment as acting principal was creditable toward the acquisition of tenure as principal. Id. at 6. Consequently, the length of petitioner's service met the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6(c), i.e., the petitioner served the equivalent of more than two academic years during portions of three academic years. In contrast, the undisputed facts in the instant case do not support a similar conclusion.

Finally, that petitioner's contracted work year changed during his service does not warrant an extension of the law to teaching staff members not contemplated by N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6. To grant petitioner tenure predicated on a change in his contracted work year is contrary to the plain and unambiguous language of the statute, as well as the teachings of Spiewak and Donnelly. It also would produce an anomalous result by granting petitioner a benefit he otherwise would not have obtained had no change in his work year occurred effective July 1, 2001. Specifically, had petitioner continued as an academic year employee, it is clear that petitioner's tenured status would not have arisen until the beginning of his third academic year in September 2002. Conversely, had petitioner been employed continuously on a calendar year basis, he would not be entitled to tenure until after two calendar years in the position, i.e., after August 22, 2002.

In sum, based upon the foregoing facts and cited authorities, I CONCLUDE that petitioner did not achieve tenure as principal pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6.

ORDER

I ORDER that respondent's motion for summary decision be and hereby is GRANTED and petitioner's motion for summary decision be and hereby is DENIED. I further ORDER that the Verified Petition filed on petitioner's behalf be and hereby is DISMISSED WITH PREJUDICE.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

This matter having been opened before the Commissioner of Education by way of a Petition of Appeal, filed on October 16, 2003, claiming that petitioners are domiciled in the Township of West Orange and are legal guardians of minor child, F.C., thereby entitling him to attend school in the West Orange School District free of charge pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, and seeking an order requiring the Board of Education of the Township of West Orange to admit F.C. to the District's schools; and

The Commissioner having directed the Board by notices dated October 16, 2003, via facsimile and regular mail, and November 13, 2003, via certified and regular mail, to file an Answer to the petition; and

Mary Anne Rourke having acknowledged receipt of service of the November 13, 2003 notice, on November 18, 2003, by signing the certified delivery receipt on behalf of the Board; and

As of this date, neither the Board nor any attorney on its behalf has filed an Answer to the petition; and

The Board's failure to Answer the petition is deemed to be a removal of its opposition to F.C.'s claim of entitlement to attend its schools; now therefore

IT IS ORDERED on this 5th day of March 2004 that summary decision shall be granted to petitioners. Minor child, F.C., is deemed to be domiciled in the Township of West Orange and, therefore, entitled to attend school free of charge in that District pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 as long as circumstances remain unchanged.*

AGENCY DKT NO. 425-11/03

IN THE MATTER OF THE SUSPENSION	:
OF THE TEACHING CERTIFICATE OF	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
ERIC D. KALET, SCHOOL DISTRICT	:	DECISION
OF THE CITY OF BURLINGTON,	:
BURLINGTON COUNTY.	:

For the Petitioning Board, Thomas J. Scattergood, Esq.

This matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education by way of a request for an Order to Show Cause filed by the Board of Education of the City of Burlington, seeking suspension of the instructional certificate of Eric D. Kalet ("respondent") for resigning from employment with the Burlington City School District on inadequate notice.

After reviewing the Board's papers, the Commissioner issued, on December 3, 2003, an Order directing respondent to show cause why a further order should not be entered suspending his teaching certificate for unprofessional conduct pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:26-10; that Order and the accompanying Affidavit of Edward F. Gola, Jr., Superintendent of the Burlington City School District, were served on the respondent via certified mail.

Respondent has failed to answer the allegations against him, notwithstanding two notices of his entitlement to do so, the second sent via regular and certified mail[1] with the caution that failure to answer would be deemed an admission of each count of the Order and would result in the matter being decided by the Commissioner on a summary basis pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.5(e).

Consequently, respondent having failed to answer the Commissioner's Order, each allegation against him is deemed admitted, and the Commissioner finds that, by ceasing to perform his duties as a Teacher of Social Studies in the Burlington City School District without the Board's consent and before the expiration of his term of employment, respondent has engaged in unprofessional conduct pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:26-10.

Accordingly, Respondent Eric D. Kalet's instructional certificate shall be suspended for a period of one year, to commence upon the filing date of this decision. A copy of this decision shall be forwarded to the State Board of Examiners for the purpose of effectuating the order herein.[2]

For the Petitioning Board, Marie-Laurence Fabian, Esq.

This matter having been opened by way of Motion for an Order to Show Cause before the Commissioner of Education by the Board of Education of the Township of Parsippany-Troy Hills, seeking suspension of the instructional certificate of Amy Ferrell for resigning from employment on inadequate notice; and

The Commissioner having issued, on January 13, 2004, an Order directing Ms. Ferrell to show cause why further order should not be entered suspending her teaching certificate for unprofessional conduct pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:26-10; and

The Order and accompanying Affidavits of Eugene Vasile, Superintendent of Schools, and Matthew McGrath, Director of Personnel, having been sent by the Board, via certified mail, to Amy Ferrell; and

The Commissioner having directed respondent, by notice dated January 26, 2004, to submit an answer within 20 days of receipt of the Order; and

Respondent, through her counsel, having filed a Response to the Order to Show Cause on February 10, 2004 which stated, in pertinent part, "I do not wish to contest the application of the Board of Education in this matter" (Respondent's Response at 1); and

Respondent having ceased to perform her duties as a high school social studies teacher in the Parsippany-Troy Hills School District before the expiration of the term of her employment, without the Board's consent, and under the circumstances set forth in the Affidavits of Eugene Vasile, Superintendent of Schools, and Matthew McGrath, Director of Personnel and, thereby engaging in unprofessional conduct, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:26-10; now therefore

The record of this matter and advisement of failure to appear transmitted to the Commissioner by the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.4, along with copies of notifications sent to the parties by OAL dated on November 13, 2003 providing them an opportunity to submit an explanation for such nonappearance, have been reviewed. By letter dated November 25, 2003, petitioner submitted correspondence to the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes explaining that he had neither transportation nor an available translator available for the scheduled proceeding on November 13, 2003. He further states,

> Please note that I am a 73-year-old man with mobile and language limitations, however, by no means do I wish to give the impression that I am apathetic about the situation on hand. Record Closed: January 8, 2003 Decided: January 20, 2004

BEFORE LESLIE Z. CELENTANO, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on August 11, 2003, for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F1 to -13.

Hearing dates were scheduled for October 2, 2003, October 3, 2003, October 16, 2003 and October 17, 2003. However on August 27, 2003 respondent was served with amended tenure charges. Accordingly the hearing dates were adjourned to December 3, 2003, December 4, 2003, December 9, 2003 and December 10, 2003 to provide the parties with a reasonable time to complete discovery. Thereafter, on November 21, 2003 the parties agreed to settle this matter. The attached Settlement Agreement was submitted on January 8, 2004, indicating the terms of agreement which are incorporated herein by reference.

Having reviewed the record and the settlement terms, I FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures.

2. The settlement complies with the standards set forth in Cardonick v. Brookline BOE, dec'd by the Comm'r, April 7, 1992, aff'd. St. Bd. of Ed., April 6, 1983, 1990 SLD 842, 846.

3. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and therefore ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

WHEREAS, on or about July 10, 2003, the Charges were filed by petition with the Commissioner of Education; and

WHEREAS, on or about August 4, 2003, Carroll filed an Answer to the Charges, denying the Charges filed against her, as well as an Affidavit establishing good cause to allow the untimely filing of same; and

WHEREAS, on or about August 7, 2003, the Commissioner of Education deemed the Charges sufficient, if true, to warrant Carroll's dismissal or the reduction in her salary, and forwarded the Charges to the Office of Administrative Law pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16; and

WHEREAS, the parties agree that a settlement would benefit all witnesses and be in the best interests of the North Arlington School District and, therefore, the public; and

WHEREAS, further litigation of these charges would necessitate the disruption of the Board's educational program due to the necessary absence of administrators, teachers and office personnel who would be called to testify at the hearing, said hearing expected to require at least five (5) days to conclude; and

WHEREAS, the Board would incur substantial financial costs by continuing this litigation that would significantly exceed the cost of this settlement; and

WHEREAS, Carroll has been advised of the Commissioner of Education's duty to refer tenure determinations resulting in a loss of position to the State Board of Examiners for possible suspension or revocation of her certificate; and

WHEREAS, the parties wish to amicably resolve their differences without the need to resort to any further litigation;

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of the aforementioned mutual premises and the mutual promises and covenants of the parties set forth below, the parties hereby agree as follows:

1. Carroll shall resign from her position of employment with the Board, together with all tenure and seniority rights, effective June 30, 2006 subject only to approval of this Settlement Agreement by the Board, the Office of Administrative Law and the Commissioner of Education. Carroll submits her resignation, effective June 30, 2006, knowingly, voluntarily and irrevocably, free of coercion or duress, after consulting with counsel and receiving advice as to its ramifications. Carroll will sign an irrevocable letter to resignation from all employment with the Board in the form attached hereto as Exhibit A.

2. Carroll shall receive a thirty (30) day suspension from employment with the Board, from September 1, 2003 through October 1, 2003, resulting in a financial penalty of $7,520.00.

3. The Board shall issue Carroll a formal letter of reprimand to be placed in her personnel file, memorializing her involvement in the two (2) separate incidents which had precipitated the Board's decision to certify the Charges and the Amended Charges against her.

4. The Board agrees to withdraw, with prejudice, its Charges and Amended Charges in the above-captioned matter bearing O.A.L. Docket No. EDU 07494-03 and Agency Ref. No. 232-7/03, subject to the approval of this Settlement Agreement by the Office of Administrative Law and the Commissioner of Education.

5. In consideration for Carroll's resignation, effective June 30, 2006 and the financial penalty set forth in Paragraphs 1 and 2 of this Settlement Agreement, the Board has agreed to restore that portion of Carroll's 2003-2004 salary, inclusive of increment, which had been withheld due to her one hundred twenty (120) day suspension without pay beginning on or about July 9, 2003 and ending on or about October 6, 2003, for which she is entitled to receive payment in the following amount: $9,024.00, less usual and customary deductions for withholding taxes and charges, which represents the thirty seven (37) days for which she was entitled to her normal rate of pay from October 1, 2003 to November 6, 2003, following the period of her suspension as set forth in Paragraph 2 of this Settlement Agreement.

All monies due Carroll under this Settlement Agreement shall be paid, after normal payroll deductions, upon final approval of this Settlement Agreement by the Office of Administrative Law and the Commissioner of Education.

6. The Board agrees to retroactively restore Carroll to its payroll at her current annual salary rate of $75,200, inclusive of increment on October 1, 2003, upon the completion of her thirty (30) day suspension without pay, as set forth in Paragraph 2 of this Settlement Agreement.

7. The amounts specified in Paragraphs 5 and 6 of this Settlement Agreement are to be provided in consideration for Carroll waiving any and all claims she has, or could have, against the Board, its agents, employees and representatives, including but not limited to, claims for discrimination, contract, tort or constitutional violations, or attorney's fees arising up until the date of this Settlement Agreement. Carroll shall execute a General Release in favor of the Board releasing the Board from all claims, liabilities and expenses to which it may be subject, arising from any claims or rights of Carroll arising up until the date of this Settlement Agreement. The form of this General Release is attached hereto as Exhibit B. Nothing in this Settlement Agreement or the documents referenced herein shall preclude either party from bringing an action to enforce performance of any term of this Settlement Agreement should there be a default in performance, or preclude Carroll from exercising any right or claim that she may have to indemnification from the Board under N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6 and N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1.

8. The parties acknowledge that this Settlement Agreement shall be submitted to the Office of Administrative Law and the Commissioner of Education for review and approval, and that the terms of this Settlement Agreement are expressly made subject to and contingent upon such review and approval. In the event that either agency disapproves and/or rejects any of the terms contained herein, this Settlement Agreement shall be null and void and the parties shall return to the same positions which they held prior to this Settlement Agreement.

9. The parties recognize that each has been represented by legal counsel or a representative of her or its own choosing and that they sign freely with the full understanding of the duties and obligations enumerated herein.

10. This Settlement Agreement shall be subject to the laws of the State of New Jersey.

11. The undersigned representatives of the Board hereby acknowledge that they have been duly authorized by the Board to sign this Settlement Agreement and bind the Board to its terms.

12. Carroll hereby declares that she is of sufficient physical, mental and emotional capacities to understand and agree to all of the terms and conditions of this Settlement Agreement and agrees that she is and will continue to be bound by these terms and conditions in the future.

13. All terms of this Settlement Agreement, are deemed material. This document may not be altered, amended, modified or revoked except by an instrument executed in writing by the parties.

IN WITNESS, WHEREOF, the parties have hereunto set their hands and seals the date and year aforesaid.

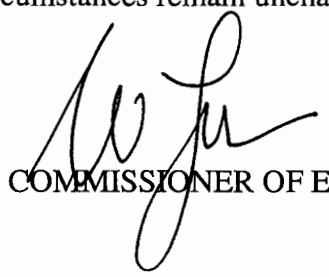
This matter having been opened before the Commissioner of Education by way of a Petition of Appeal, filed on September 4, 2003, claiming that petitioner and her child are domiciled in the Borough of Fair Lawn so as to entitle her child to attend school in the Fair Lawn School District free of charge pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, and seeking an Order requiring the Board of Education of the Borough of Fair Lawn to admit petitioner's child to the District's schools; and



The Commissioner having directed the Board by notices dated September 4, 2003, via facsimile and regular mail, and September 29, 2003, via certified and regular mail, to file an Answer to the petition; and

M. Bombardier having acknowledged receipt of service of the September 29, 2003 notice, on October 3, 2003, by signing the certified delivery receipt on behalf of the Board; and

As of this date, neither the Board nor any attorney on its behalf has filed an Answer to the petition and, therefore, each count of the petition is deemed to be admitted; and

On May 12, 2003, the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes of the Department of Education referred the present matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14-b-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. The Commissioner requested that an administrative law judge be assigned to conduct a hearing. The Director of the Office of Administrative Law assigned the matter to me to hear. N.J.S.A. 52:14F-5(o).

Prior to a hearing being scheduled, the parties arrived at a settlement agreement, and the terms were reduced to writing in the attached stipulation of settlement. The settlement was rejected by the Commissioner for technical reasons.

On November 17, 2003, this matter was remanded to the OAL so the Stipulation of Settlement incorporated a Resolution or Minutes authorizing the School Board President to execute the settlement. Respondent has complied with the remand conditions by submitting the Board Minutes authorizing the President to execute the settlement, as well as including the typed name under the President's signature.

I have reviewed the record and the terms of settlement and I FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signature or their representatives' signatures on the attached stipulation of settlement (signed by petitioner on July 20, 2003, and respondent on August 5, 2003, and thereafter filed with this ALJ on September 8, 2003). The original stipulation of stipulation has been amended to include the typed name of the Pennsville Board of Education President beneath the signature line, a separate signature page with the signature of Judith A. Karr, Esquire, Solicitor for respondent, Pennsville Township Board of Education and attaching a copy of the July 21, 2003 Pennsville Board of Education Meeting Minutes authorizing the settlement..

2. The settlement fully disposes of all the issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

Therefore, I ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms.

BEFORE BARRY N. FRANK, ALJ

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

In this case, the petitioner challenges the Board of Education's residency determination pertaining to the minor child living with petitioner to the effect that the Board of Education ("Board") has determined that the child is not entitled to a free public education as the individual living with his sister who is not that child's parent or guardian. The Board of Education further determined that since the application made by the sister of this minor child did not meet the statutory requirement of family or economic hardship, the said child's attendance at the school was denied by the district, effective August 5, 2003.

Petitioner, after receiving this determination, appealed the decision rendered by the school district by means of an appropriate application dated August 6, 2003.

After this letter was filed by the petitioner, the matter was then forwarded to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") as a contested matter on September 9, 2003. After being assigned this case, the undersigned forwarded a letter to petitioner on October 17, 2003 requesting petitioner to contact the undersigned's chambers so that a telephone conference could be scheduled to discuss this matter further prior to the trial.

No response was forthcoming from petitioner and no telephone communication was possible because petitioner's telephone had been disconnected. However, the letter was not returned and as a result, this matter was placed on the schedule for a full hearing on November 26, 2003.

Timely notice was forwarded by OAL to petitioner with regard to the date of the hearing.

Respondent advised that a representative from the Board of Education had visited petitioner the night before the hearing, and had advised her of the date, time and place of hearing, and had received assurances from petitioner that she would be present at the hearing. Nonetheless, petitioner failed to appear. As a result, respondent made a motion on the record to dismiss petitioner's appeal, and said motion was granted.

Respondent then requested and the court agreed to hold the record open until an Affidavit could be submitted to the court verifying that indeed petitioner had been personally contacted regarding the hearing date and also an Affidavit could be submitted in regard to the counterclaim itself, namely the cost and tuition reimbursement being sought by respondent.

These Affidavits were received by the court on January 21, 2004 on which date the record was closed.

FINDINGS OF FACT AND DISCUSSION

N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b) provides that:

> Any person who is kept in the home of another person domiciled within the school district and is supported by such other person gratis as if he was such other person's own child, upon filing by such other person with the Secretary of the Board of Education of the district, if so required by the Board a sworn statement that he is domiciled within the district and is supporting the child gratis and will assume all personal obligations for the child relative to school requirements and that he intends so to keep and support the child gratuitously for a longer time then merely through the school term, and a copy of his lease if a tenant, or a sworn statement by his landlord acknowledging his tenancy if residing as a tenant without a written lease, and upon filing by the child's parent or guardian with the Secretary of the Board of Education a sworn statement that he is not capable of supporting or providing care for the child due to a family or economic hardship and that the child is not residing with the resident in the district solely for the purpose of receiving a free public education within the district. The statement shall be accompanied by documentation to support the validity of the sworn statements, information from or about shall be supplied only through the Board and only to the extent that it directly pertains to the support or nonsupport of the child. If in the judgment of the Board of Education the evidence does not support the validity of the claim by the resident, the Board may deny admission to the child.

The statute further provides that:

> If in the judgment of the Commissioner, the evidence does not support the claim of the resident, he shall assess the resident > tuition for the student prorated to the time of the student's ineligible attendance in the school district. Tuition shall be computed on the basis of 1/180th of the total annual per pupil costs to the local district multiplied by the number of days of ineligible attendance and shall be collected in the manner in which orders of the Commissioner are enforced.

The burden of demonstrating the above in meeting the criteria for the minor child to receive a free public education in the school district itself rests upon the shoulders of the individual appealing the determination of residency made by the school district. Petitioner, filed an appeal of the unfavorable residency determination made by the school district and failed to appear at the hearing itself.

Appropriate notice was forwarded to and apparently received by petitioner as no return notice was received by the court. In addition, respondent has submitted an Affidavit of Vincent Constantino, School Board Domicile Investigator, dated January 14, 2004, to the effect that Mr. Constantino met with the petitioner on the evening of November 25, 2003 and identified her by means of her driver's license and through her daughter acting as a translator advised her of the hearing that was to take place the next day and the significance of said hearing. Mr. Constantino in his Affidavit at paragraph 4 states clearly that:

> She expressly stated to me that she knew she needed to be in court the next day, November 26, 2003, and provided further information regarding her living arrangements in Clifton.
> An original of this Affidavit is annexed hereto

Predicated upon this Affidavit, I FIND that petitioner was well aware of the time and place of the hearing itself, was fully informed that her presence required, was fully informed of the significance of the hearing and apparently consciously failed to appear at said hearing. Therefore, I have no choice but to CONCLUDE that petitioner has predicated upon her failure to appear at the hearing, abandoned any appeal to which she is entitled and further FIND that respondent's motion to dismiss petitioner's appeal at the time of the hearing was appropriately made and appropriately granted.

Respondent, in addition, has a counterclaim for tuition dating back to the year 2001, setting forth specific dates on which the minor child living with petitioner attended the school in question and was not under the residency statute entitled to attend said school. Respondent set forth the appropriate numbers corresponding to tuition reimbursement for the days in question.

This Affidavit, dated January 14, 2004 and signed by Karen Perkins, Business Administrator for the Clifton Board of Education, states quite clearly that for 2001 through 2002, the minor child living with petitioner attended inappropriately the Clifton Board of Education School for 169 days and said school requested tuition reimbursement of $7,819.63 for that year; for 2002-2003, the minor child living with petitioner attended the Clifton Board of Education School for 164 days, said minor child not being entitled to attend said school and tuition reimbursement was sought in the amount of $6,842.08; and finally for school year 2003-2004, the minor child living with petitioner inappropriately attended the Clifton Board of Education School for a total of 66 days, tuition reimbursement being sought for that time frame totaling $2,785.86.

The Affidavit annexed hereto and submitted by respondent's representative requests total tuition reimbursement of $17,447.57 for all the days in which minor child lived with petitioner and inappropriately attended the Clifton Board of Education school and was not entitled to attend said school.

I FIND the Affidavit to be proper and appropriate in all respects, and I further FIND that the figures submitted in said Affidavit are uncontroverted. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the respondent Board of Education is entitled to tuition reimbursement for the years 2001-2004 totaling $17,447.57 and GRANT respondent's counterclaim for tuition reimbursement for said amount.

ORDER

Based upon the foregoing, it is hereby ORDERED that petitioner's appeal be and hereby is DISMISSED, and it is further ORDERED that respondent's counterclaim seeking tuition reimbursement for the years 2001-2004 is GRANTED in the amounts totaling $17,447.57 as set forth in the Affidavit submitted by the business administrator for the respondent dated January 14, 2004.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within the time allowed under the existing orders of the New Jersey Supreme Court and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Notwithstanding the provisions of any rule to the contrary, exceptions to Initial Decisions of the Office of Administrative Law in Abbott District budget appeal matters shall be filed within five (5) days of the date of mailing of the Initial Decision, and reply exceptions shall be filed within two (2) days of receipt of exceptions. File written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. The parties filed no exceptions to the Initial Decision.

Accordingly, the recommended decision of the OAL is adopted for the reasons clearly articulated therein. Petitioner is hereby directed to compensate the Board in the amount of $17,447.57 for the period of J.D.'s ineligible attendance in the Board's schools and the instant Petition of Appeal is hereby dismissed.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF JUNE NICHOLSON,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
NEW JERSEY DEPARTMENT OF HUMAN	:	DECISION
SERVICES, OFFICE OF EDUCATION.	:

SYNOPSIS

The New Jersey State Department of Human Services, Office of Education certified tenure charges of unbecoming conduct against respondent teacher for possession of controlled dangerous substances and drug paraphernalia.

The ALJ approved the Settlement Agreement submitted by the parties.

The Commissioner rejected the proposed settlement and remanded the matter to the OAL for further expansion of the record and revision of the documents, consistent with the Cardonick standards. There was no indication that respondent was advised of the Commissioner's duty to refer tenure determinations to the State Board of Examiners for possible revocation of her certificate, where the teacher has resigned subsequent to the filing of the tenure charges. Moreover, the Commissioner cannot sanction terms in a settlement that would require the agency to misrepresent the circumstances of respondent's resignation from employment with the Department of Human Services. The Commissioner noted that if the parties are unwilling or unable to reach accord on a modified agreement for submission to the Commissioner, the matter shall proceed to a hearing on the merits.

SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1-18 and N.J.S.A. 52:14B-14F -1 to -15 upon petitioner's request for a hearing on board certified charges against a tenured teacher for conduct unbecoming a teacher on July 16, 2003.

The parties agree to settle this matter in accordance with the following terms:

1. The petitioner will withdraw her request for a hearing on certified charges against a tenured teacher and the respondent-appointing authority agrees to withdraw the disciplinary action contained therein.

2. The petitioner will resign effective December 12, 2003 and agrees not to seek or accept employment with the Department of Human Services in any capacity in the future.

3. Respondent agrees it will respond to any inquiry by any outside person or entity, either prospective employer or other, by stating only that petitioner "resigned". Her record will reflect a resignation from the unclassified position of teacher. Also, the respondent will indicate the petitioner had no disciplinary action on her record nor was any pending at the time of her resignation.

4. The parties hereto stipulate that this agreement shall fully dispose of all issues in controversy between them with regard to this matter.

5. The petitioner shall not receive any back pay for the period of suspension without pay which ended on October 18, 2003, counsel fees, costs, or any other monetary relief as a result of this settlement.

5.A Petitioner is entitled to pay for that period between Oct. 19, 2003 and her date of resignation and any accumulated vacation; ~~and I, etc.~~

7. This stipulation of settlement shall not constitute a precedent in any other matter involving another employee.

8. Nothing in this agreement shall be deemed to be an admission of liability on behalf of either party.

9. This agreement will only become effective when it is approved by the Commissioner of Education. Any disapproval by the Commissioner shall operate to return the parties to the status quo pre-agreement.

10. The parties waive the right to file exceptions and cross-exceptions.

Authorization has been given by the Department of Human Services to agree to this settlement; the parties have read this settlement agreement and freely and voluntarily agree to its provisions.

AGENCY DKT. NO. 217-6/03

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF JUNE NICHOLSON,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
NEW JERSEY DEPARTMENT OF HUMAN	:	DECISION
SERVICES, OFFICE OF EDUCATION.	:

The record of this matter, Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) and the Settlement Agreement and Release have been reviewed.[1] Initially, the Commissioner notes that, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6(a), once tenure charges are certified to him, such charges may be settled only with his approval; any proposed settlement, whether submitted to the Commissioner or to the Administrative Law Judge, must address the standards established by the State Board of Education in the matter entitled, In re Cardonick, 1990 S.L.D. 842, 846. Specifically, the proposed settlement must: 1) Be accompanied by documentation as to the nature of the charges; 2) Include an explanation of the circumstances justifying the settlement or withdrawal; 3) Evidence the consent of both the charged and the charging parties; 4) Indicate that the charged party entered into the agreement with a full understanding of his or her rights; 5) Demonstrate that the agreement is in the public interest; and 6) Where the charged party is a teaching staff member, indicate that he or she has been advised of the Commissioner's duty to refer tenure determinations resulting in loss of position to the State Board of Examiners for possible loss of certificate. N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6. Because the proposed agreement does not comport with these and other standards, the Commissioner is compelled to reject it and remand this manner, as specified below.

[1] Throughout the proposed Agreement, the parties misapply the terms "petitioner" and "respondent," in that the petitioner herein is the charging party, the Department of Human Services, and the respondent is Ms. Nicholson.

First, the parties fail to set forth the nature of the charges and the circumstances justifying the proposed settlement. It is well-established that, having once taken up the burden of tenure charges, the agency may not lay it down without spreading forth on the record a reasonably specific explanation of why such charges can no longer be pursued or why it is now in the public interest not to pursue them. (In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Kenneth Smith, School District of the City of Orange, Essex County, decided by the Commissioner March 22, 1982, decision on remand June 16, 1983, 1983 S.L.D. 420; affirmed with modification by the State Board of Education November 2, 1983, 1983 S.L.D. 489; affirmed N.J. Superior Court, Appellate Division, January 30, 1986.) The Commissioner's determination in this regard is highly influenced by the serious nature of the charges, i.e., allegations that respondent possessed controlled dangerous substances and drug paraphernalia, in violation of N.J.S. 2C:35-10(a)(4), N.J.S. 2C:36-2 and N.J.S. 2C:35-10.5, for which respondent was arrested on April 30, 2003.

Next, in accordance with Cardonick, supra, there is no indication in the proposed agreement that the within teaching staff member was advised of the Commissioner's duty to refer tenure determinations to the State Board of Examiners for possible revocation of her certificate, where the teaching staff member has resigned subsequent to the filing of tenure charges. N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.6(a)1[2]

The Commissioner additionally notes that settlement term number 3 provides that:

> Respondent [sic] agrees it [sic] will respond to any inquiry by any outside person or entity, either prospective employer or other, by stating that petitioner [sic] "resigned". Her record will reflect a resignation from the unclassified position of a teacher. Also, the respondent [sic] will indicate the petitioner [sic] had no disciplinary action on her record nor was any pending at the time of resignation. (Proposed Settlement Agreement at 2)

Notably, the proposed agreement reflects a resignation date of December 12, 2003. On that date and continuing thereafter, until the present, the within tenure charges remain pending. In fact, as the parties appear to recognize in paragraph 9 of their proposed agreement, settlement agreements of controverted matters are of no force and effect and may not be implemented absent the Commissioner's approval pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1. Therefore, the disciplinary action will remain pending until this case is concluded. The Commissioner cannot sanction terms in a settlement that would require the agency to misrepresent the circumstances of respondent's resignation from employment with the Department of Human Services.

While the Commissioner does not preclude the possibility of settlement in this matter, he stresses that in order for him to meet his own obligation to the schools and children of this state, he must be assured that any settlement is consistent with appropriate standards for setting aside tenure matters as expressed in Cardonick, supra.

Accordingly, the proposed settlement is rejected for the reasons expressed herein. The Commissioner hereby remands this matter to the OAL for further expansion of the record and revision of the documents, consistent with the concerns set forth above. If the parties are unwilling or unable to reach accord on a modified agreement for submission to the Commissioner, the matter shall proceed to a hearing on the merits.

IT IS SO ORDERED.[3]

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF DUMONT, BERGEN COUNTY,	:	DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner challenged the Board's residency determination that M.P.-Y.C. was not eligible for a free education in the Dumont Schools.

The ALJ found that petitioner is domiciled in the District and that she took M.P.-Y.C. into her home solely for the purpose of providing M.P.-Y.C. a free public education in the District. Moreover, the ALJ found that petitioner did not demonstrate that the parents, who reside in Hong Kong, were unable to support M.P.-Y.C. due to financial or family hardship. Thus, the ALJ concluded that petitioner did not satisfy the residency requirements pursuant to N.J.A.C. 18A:38-1(b)1. The ALJ concluded that petitioner was liable for tuition and directed the Board to submit to the Commissioner an updated accounting of the tuition due.

The Commissioner adopted the Initial Decision with modification. The Commissioner established that petitioner owed the Board tuition payments in the amount of $11,479.32 based on the updated calculation of tuition due provided by the Board. The Commissioner also found that the Board was not entitled to pre-judgment interest or post-judgment interest and concluded that in the absence of express statutory authority, the Commissioner may not direct compensation for legal fees in this matter. The Commissioner directed payment of the tuition owed.

Record Closed: January 22, 2004 Decided: February 5, 2004

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioners appeal the residency determination of respondent, Board of Education of the Borough of Dumont (District), which denied petitioner's request to enroll to M.P.-Y.C. in the public school. The District denied the application because petitioner did not demonstrate a family or economic hardship.

On November 1, 2002, the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. A hearing was held on September 16, 2004. The parties submitted posthearing briefs and the record closed on January 22, 2004.

ISSUE

The issue is whether W.C.K. is eligible to attend the Dumont Public School District free of charge in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b).

SUMMARY OF EVIDENCE

W.C.K. is a resident and domiciliary of Dumont, New Jersey. W.C.K. testified that the parents of M.P. reside in Hong Kong. They are not able to care for M.P. financially because they must support their parents and M.P.'s sibling, age 12. M.P.'s sworn statement provided additional information about M.P. The Affidavit of Application/Guardian states in relevant part:

> [M.P.] is already a permanent U.S. legal resident with valid social security number and legal U.S. alien card. His parents would prefer him to receive U.S. education as early as possible. Since his parents are occupied with their career responsibilities at the moment in Hong Kong, they would like uncle [H.K.] and aunt [C.K.] to be his guardians for at least the future 3 years.

James Montesano, Assistant Superintendent of Dumont, reviewed the application to enroll M.P. in the district. The documents support his determination that M.P.'s parents sent him to New Jersey without a showing of economic hardship. Rather, it is the desire of the parents that M.P. receive an education in the United States, for at least three years. Additionally, the attorney who represents the parents in Hong Kong submitted documents to enroll M.P. in the New Jersey public school district.

Montesano further testified that the annual tuition for school year 2002-2003 was $9,878.00. For school year 2003-2004, the tuition is $10,523.00, which includes the per diem rate of $58.46.

LEGAL DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSION

The State of New Jersey provides that "public schools shall be free to . . . any child who is domiciled within the school district." N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a). The domicile of a minor child follows that of his parents. See V.R. on behalf of A.R. v. Bd. of Ed. of Hamburg, 2 N.J.A.R. 283, 286.

Additionally, N.J.S.A. 18A-38-1(b)1 states in part:

> Any person who is kept in the home of another person domiciled within the school district and is supported by such other person gratis as if he were such other person's own child, upon filing by such other person with the secretary of the board of education of the District, if so required by the board, a sworn statement that he is domiciled in the District and is supporting the child gratis and will assume all personal obligation for the child relative to school requirements and that he intends so to keep and support the child gratuitously for a longer time than merely through the school term, and a copy of his lease if a tenant, or a sworn statement by his landlord acknowledging his tenancy if residing as a tenant without a written lease, and upon filing by the child's parents or guardian with the secretary of the board of education a sworn statement that he is not capable of supporting or providing care for the child due to a family or economical hardship and that the child is not residing with the resident of the District solely for the purposes of receiving a free public education in the District. The statement shall be accompanied by documentation to support the validity of the sworn statement, information from or about which shall be supplied only to the board and only to the extent that it directly pertains to the support > or nonsupport of the child. If in the judgment of the board of education the evidence does not support the validity of the claim by the resident, the board may deny admission to the child.

Therefore, the evidence must show that: (1) petitioner is domiciled within the District; (2) petitioner is supporting M.P. gratis; (3) M.P.'s parents are not capable of supporting or caring for him due to family or economic hardship; and (4) M.P. is not residing with petitioner solely for the purpose of receiving a free public education in the District.

Petitioner has the burden of proof to demonstrate economic hardship. Petitioner did not dispute the statements made in the Affidavit of Application/Guardian. (R-1) Essentially, petitioner allowed M.P. to reside in her home and attend the Dumont School system because the families are "very close."

Respondent argue the parents' domicle in Hong Kong establishes M.P.'s domicle. I.P. v. Board of Education of the Bororugh of Leonia, 93 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 128, 132 (1993). Further, petitioner failed to demonstrate that M.P.'s parents are financially incapable of supporting him due to economic or family hardship. I agree.

Based on the whole of the evidence, I FIND petitioner W.C.K. is domiciled in the Township of Dumont. I FIND that petitioner took M.P. into her home to live for an extended period of time because his parents reside in Hong Kong and desire that M.P. receive an education in the United States. I FIND that petitioner has not demonstrated M.P.'s parents are unable to support him due to financial or family hardship.

Based on the whole of the record, I CONCLUDE that petitioner has not satisfied the residency requirements pursuant to N.J.A.C. 18A:38-1(b)1. I CONCLUDE that M.P. is residing with petitioner solely for the purpose of receiving a free public education in the District. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that petitioner is liable for tuition to the Dumont during the period that M.P. attends its schools. Therefore, I direct Dumont to submit to the Commissioner an updated balance of tuition due, consistent with the testimony provided in this matter.

ORDER

I ORDER petitioner's appeal be DISMISSED.

I ORDER that the Dumont's claim for payment of tuition is hereby GRANTED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF DUMONT, BERGEN COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. The Board's exceptions, a letter confirming its counterclaim for tuition for the 2002-03 school year as $9,878.00 as set forth in the Initial Decision and calculating the tuition due for the 28 days of M.P.-Y.C.'s attendance in the district schools at $57.19 a day for a total of $1,601.32 for the 2003-04 school year, were timely filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4(a) and were considered in the Commissioner's determination of this matter.[1] Petitioner did not file exceptions nor did she reply to the tuition calculations set forth in the Board's exceptions.

Upon careful and independent review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusions of the Administrative Law Judge that M.P.-Y.C. is not entitled to attend school free of charge as an affidavit student in the District pursuant to N.J.A.C. 18A:38-1(b)1 in that: 1) petitioner has failed in her burden of proving that

[1] The Initial Decision includes a directive to the Board to submit to the Commissioner an updated balance of tuition due. (Initial Decision at 5)

M.P.-Y.C. is not residing with her solely for the purpose of receiving an education in the United States; and 2) petitioner has failed to demonstrated that M.P.-Y.C.'s parents are unable to support him due to financial or family hardship.

With respect to the Board's counterclaim for tuition, the Commissioner agrees with the grant of the Board's counterclaim for tuition in the amount of $9,878.00 for the 2002-03 school year and for tuition in the amount of $1,601.32 for the 28 days of M.P.-Y.C.'s school attendance in the 2003-04 school year, for a total of tuition payments due of $11,479.32.[2]

With respect to the other remedies sought in the Board's counterclaim, the Commissioner finds that the record does not support a finding that petitioner's actions were taken in bad faith or in deliberate violation of the law so as to entitle the Board to an award of pre-judgment interest. N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.17(c)1. The Commissioner further notes that the Board's claim for post-judgment interest is not properly before him at this time, since the requisite time period has not passed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.17(c)2.

Finally, turning to the Board's claim for counsel fees, in the absence of express statutory authority to award counsel fees, the Commissioner may not direct that the Board be compensated for legal fees in this matter. See Hinfey v. Matawan Regional Board of Education, 77 N.J. 514, 525 (1978); B.B., on behalf of her son, L.C. v. Board of Education of the Union County Regional High School District No.1. and Donald Merachnik, Superintendent of Schools, Union County, 1987 S.L.D. 323; Balsley v. North Hunterdon Bd. of Educ,. 117 N.J. 434 (1990); and State, Dept. of Environ. Protect. v. Ventron Corp., 94 N.J. 473 (1983).

[2] The Board notes in its exceptions that W.C.K. was granted legal guardianship of M.P.-Y.C. by the Bergen County Surrogate Court on October 15, 2003.

Accordingly, the Commissioner adopts the Initial Decision, as modified above, as the final decision in this matter for the reasons stated therein.

IT IS SO ORDERED.[3]

PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF RIVERSIDE, BURLINGTON COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, Director of Special Education, alleged the Board improperly reduced his salary by refusing to compensate him for a total of two sick days, even though he had a sufficient number of days to cover such absences. The Board reinstated petitioner's half-day salary for January 3 and 4, 2001 after he provided verification for those absences but the salary for January 2 was still withheld as petitioner did not provide the requested verification for that day's absence, namely, a physician's note indicating he had been ill.

The ALJ found that pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:30-4 the Board may require a physician's certificate before accepting a tenured employee's claim of sick time and excusing the employee's absence. The ALJ determined that even though petitioner was asked about the one-day absence, he chose not to respond and left the absence unexcused. The ALJ found that the Board acted appropriately in withholding one day's salary as it was authorized to do under N.J.S.A. 18A:30-1 et seq. and Article X, Section 10.3 of the negotiated Agreement between the Board and its Administrative Association. Moreover, the ALJ found that the issue of payment or non-payment of salary for occasional absences due to illness is not subject to the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 and 18A:6-10. Petition was dismissed.

The Commissioner concurred with the ALJ's conclusion that petitioner failed to demonstrate that the Board's action in docking him a day's pay pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:30-1 et seq. was prohibited by the tenure statutes. The Commissioner did not reach to the ALJ's discussion with respect to whether the Board's action was authorized pursuant to the negotiated Agreement. In addition, the Commissioner noted the sole issue was whether the Board 's action in docking petitioner for one day reduced his salary in violation of his tenure rights; timeliness of the petition was not an issue.

SUMMARY DECISION

AGENCY REF. NO. 158-6/01

CHARLES WEISBERG,
Petitioner,

v.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF RIVERSIDE, BURLINGTON COUNTY
Respondent.

Robert M. Schwartz, Esq., appearing for Petitioner

John T. Barbour, Esq., appearing for Respondent (Barbour & Barbour, P.A., attorneys)

Record Closed: July 31, 2003 Decided: February 3, 2004[1]

BEFORE ISRAEL D. DUBIN, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This matter concerns petitioner's claim that respondent violated his rights of tenure by unilaterally reducing his compensation for an "unaccounted absence" on January 2, 2001, based upon his failure to submit a doctor's note, as requested, after calling out sick on that day.

[1] By Orders of Extension, the time limit within which to file this Initial Decision with the Department of Education was extended until March 14, 2004.

By memorandum dated March 7, 2001, respondent's superintendent of schools advised petitioner that he was docking him a total of two days' pay for "unaccounted absences" on January 2, 2001, and one half-day each on January 3 and 4, 2001. Petitioner filed his appeal on June 6, 2001, and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for hearing as a contested case on June 28, 2001. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to –15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to –13.

Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-13.1 et seq., a telephone prehearing conference was conducted by the Hon. Beatrice S. Tylutki, A.L.A.J., on September 24, 2001. At that time, the parties agreed that a hearing was unnecessary because the facts were uncontested and asked that the matter be summarily decided on the briefs. In her Prehearing Order dated September 25, 2001, Judge Tylutki granted their request and directed petitioner to submit a proposed stipulation of facts within thirty days and respondent to review and agree upon a final version within thirty days of his receipt of the proposed stipulation. The Order also directed the parties to submit concurrent briefs within thirty days of the filing of the stipulation, and reply briefs within fifteen days of the initial briefs.

For reasons undisclosed in the record, the Prehearing Order was not honored and the matter remained dormant for a full year until September 26, 2002, when the matter was reassigned to this Administrative Law Judge in anticipation of Judge Tylutki's impending retirement. Several telephone conferences followed and, on December 24, 2002, the matter was placed on the inactive list pending developments in the parties' civil case. The matter was reactivated on March 24, 2003, and by Letter Order dated May 6, 2003, the parties were directed to submit a Stipulation of Facts by no later than May 23, 2003, file contemporaneous Cross-Motions for Summary Decision by June 15, 2003, and file reply briefs by no later than July 7, 2003. The record finally closed on July 31, 2003, upon receipt of the final reply brief.

FINDINGS OF FACT

All of the material facts have been agreed upon and the following Stipulation of Facts, copied verbatim from Exhibit J-1, has been accepted as comprising the Findings of Fact in this matter:

1. Petitioner is a tenured employee of the Riverside School District currently serving as Director of Special Education.
2. Petitioner is tenured in his position as Director of Special Education.
3. Petitioner is a member of the Riverside Administrators Association.
4. Petitioner was absent from school on January 2, 2001, and was absent for half a day on both January 3 and 4, 2001.
5. In a memo dated March 7, 2001, Riverside's Superintendent, Jay Allen Ferner, stated to the Petitioner that he was "docking" him "two days['] pay" for what the Superintendent labeled as "unaccounted absences," for a full day on January 2, 2001, and for two half days on January 3 and 4, 2001.
6. In Petitioner's paycheck for the period ending March 17, 2001, having check number 10181, a sum of $788.07 was "docked" from his base salary of $3,637.23 for the preceding two week pay period leaving him with total earnings before any deductions [were] taken of $2,849.16.
7. Subsequently, per a memorandum dated March 20, 2001 to Jodi Lennon, School Business Administrator, Superintendent Ferner requested the reinstatement of Petitioner's half-day salary for January 4, 2001.
8. Also, per a memorandum dated March 22, 2001, to the Petitioner, Superintendent Ferner advised Petitioner that he would reinstate his half-day salary for January 3, 2001.
9. The reinstatement for Petitioner's half-day salary for January 3 and 4 was made after Petitioner provided verification of his absence for both days.
10. Petitioner's salary for January 2, 2001 was not reinstated as Petitioner did not provide [the requested verification] for that day's absence; notably, a physician's note indicating that he had been ill.
11. The Respondent's attendance policy is set forth in Policy 32.12.
12. Petitioner was a member of the Riverside Administrators Association. Attached [to the Stipulation of Facts] is the collective bargaining agreement, which applied through June 30, 2001.
13. The action to withhold one day[']s salary from the Petitioner was never done by formal resolution of the Respondent.

DISCUSSION OF THE LAW

Under the Uniform Administrative Procedure Rules, a party may move for summary decision if > the papers and discovery which have been filed, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law. When a motion for summary decision is made and supported, an adverse party in order to prevail must by responding affidavit set forth specific facts showing that there is a genuine issue which can only be determined in an evidentiary proceeding. If the adverse party does not so respond, a summary decision, if appropriate, shall be entered.

> [N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b)]

Prior to the establishment of the OAL, the New Jersey Supreme Court stated that "court-fashioned doctrines for the handling of litigation do in fact have some genuine utility and relevance in administrative proceedings." Hackensack v. Winner, 82 N.J. 1, 29 (1980). The Court further opined that:

> many principles and rules that govern judicial proceedings and determinations can be applied to an agency's quasi-judicial or adjudicative function. Judicial rules of procedure and practice are transferable to administrative agencies when these are conducive to ensuring fairness, independence, integrity, and efficiency in administrative adjudications.
> [Matter of Tenure Hearing of Onorevole, 103 N.J. 548, 554-55 (1986) (citation omitted)]

N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b) is similar to, and may therefore be interpreted and applied as is the summary judgment rule under the New Jersey Rules of Court, which permits a party to move for summary judgment if > the pleadings, depositions, answers to interrogatories and admissions on file, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that > the moving party is entitled to judgment or order as a matter of law. An issue of fact is genuine only if, considering the burden of persuasion at trial, the evidence submitted by the parties on the motion, together with all legitimate inferences therefrom favoring the non-moving party, would require submission of the issue to the trier of fact.

> [R. 4:46-2(c)]

In Brill v. Guardian Life Insurance Co., 142 N.J. 520 (1995), the New Jersey Supreme Court summarized the court rule and stated that the issue is "whether the evidence presents a sufficient disagreement to require a [hearing] or whether it is so one-sided that the party must prevail as a matter of law. Id. at 536, citing Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, Inc., 477 U.S. 242, 251-252 (1986).

Using this analysis, a contested case clearly can be summarily disposed of before an Administrative Law Judge without a plenary hearing in instances where the undisputed material facts, as developed on motion or otherwise, indicate that a particular disposition is required as a matter of law. In the Matter of Robros Recycling Corp., 226 N.J. Super. 343, 350 (App. Div. 1988). Should the motion be granted, summary decision must be based on an examination of the totality of circumstances, mitigating and aggravating factors, adequate factual findings and conclusions of law. Id. Based upon the Stipulation of Facts and the documentation appended thereto, as well as the parties' respective briefs, I FIND that there are no genuine issues of material fact and that the matter is appropriate for disposition by Summary Decision.

Petitioner argues that the tenure statutes preclude respondent from summarily reducing a tenured employee's salary. In support of this argument, petitioner cites N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 which, in pertinent part, provides that teaching staff members and administrators "under tenure during good behavior and efficiency . . . shall not be dismissed or reduced in compensation except for inefficiency, incapacity, conduct unbecoming such a teaching staff member or other just cause and then only in the manner prescribed by [N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9 et seq.]." He then makes reference to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 which, in addition to reiterating that no tenured employee shall be dismissed or reduced in compensation, except for inefficiency, incapacity, unbecoming conduct, or other just cause, expressly requires that written charges be preferred against the tenured employee, and that a hearing to determine the validity of the charges be held, before the employee can be dismissed or reduced in compensation. "That [the 'docking' of petitioner's salary] was undertaken by the Riverside Board of Education outside of the permitted statutory parameters constituted a violation of petitioner's tenure rights as protected by N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5." Petitioner's Brief, June 18, 2003, pp. 3-4.

Respondent disagrees, arguing that the statutory authorization for its reduction of petitioner's salary may be found in the sick leave provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:30-1 et seq. Sick leave is defined as "the absence from his or her post of duty, of any person because of personal disability due to illness or injury . . .." N.J.S.A. 18A:30-1. Such leave shall be available "with full pay for a minimum of 10 school days in any school year" to all tenured employees. N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2. However, certain conditions may attach, and "[i]n case of sick leave claimed, a board of education may require a physician's certificate to be filed with the secretary of the board of education in order to obtain sick leave." N.J.S.A. 18A:30-4.

Respondent also notes that a board of education may, in the exercise of its discretion, elect to continue paying a daily salary to an employee who has exhausted his or her annual and accumulated sick leave, less the pay or estimated pay of a substitute. N.J.S.A. 18A:30-6. Similarly, it may also "fix either by rule or by individual consideration, the payment of salary in cases of absence not constituting sick leave, or . . . grant sick leave over and above the minimum sick leave as defined in this chapter or [allow] days to accumulate over and above those provided for in section 18A:30-2 . . . ." N.J.S.A. 18A:30-7.

Respondent concludes his argument as follows:

> It is clear from the combination of these statutory provisions that the issue of payment or non-payment of salary to even a tenured employee for absence form (sic) his or her position of employment is not subject to the provisions of the Tenured Employees Hearing Law, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 et seq. Payment for services requires that the individual either be present and perform such services, or be on any excused, legitimate leave, in accordance with the applicable statutory provisions.

By way of reply, petitioner asserts that respondent's reliance on N.J.S.A. 18A:30-1 et seq. in general, and N.J.S.A. 18A:30-4 in particular, is misplaced. As he asserted in a January 25, 2001 letter from his attorney to counsel for the Board,

> In response to [petitioner's January 18, 2001 memo], Mr. Ferner stated that it was New Jersey law that allowed him to request a physician's note. The appropriate statute is N.J.S.A. 18A:30-4. However, this falls under the heading of sick leaves and leaves of absences. What we are dealing with here is a one-day absence, not a sick leave. Consequently, I don't believe that N.J.S.A. 18A:30-4 is pertinent.
> [Respondent's Brief, Exhibit 3]

It is axiomatic that a tenured teacher or administrator must be available on a consistent basis if that individual is to provide the quality of services that the school board and students have come to expect. Even the occasional absence, particularly when it occurs with some frequency, can have an adverse impact on the learning process; so much so that the benefits of regular instruction may not be completely regained, even upon that individual's return. This is particularly true in the case of special needs children, who must overcome extremely difficult obstacles to obtain a meaningful education. Therefore, the board of education, teachers, parents and students must be assured that an individual such as petitioner, who holds the position of Director of Special Education, will be present to perform the duties of that position.

In this matter, petitioner was ill and absent from school for a full day on January 2, 2001, and one half-day each on January 3 and 4, 2001. In accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:30-4, the superintendent of schools directed petitioner to provide a doctor's note verifying that he had, in fact, been sick. Petitioner ultimately submitted notes covering his absences on January 3 and 4, and these absences were excused. However, despite several requests, he did not submit a doctor's note concerning his sick day on January 2. Consequently, the absence was considered unexcused and one day's salary was withheld from his check.

Petitioner argues that the board did not have the statutory right to take this action because "[w]hat we are dealing with here is a one-day absence, not a sick leave." He urges that this purported distinction be made because it would render N.J.S.A. 18A:30-4 irrelevant and thereby eliminate whatever authority the board had to demand a physician's note and then withhold one day's salary when it was not produced.[2]

Careful review of the case law has revealed that the terms "sick time," "sick days" and "sick leave" have been used interchangeably in any number of tenure-related education cases including, but certainly not limited to Gillespie v. State-Operated School District of the City of Newark, OAL Docket No. EDU 9448-01; Fedor v. Elmwood Park Board of Education, OAL Docket No. EDU 7669-01; Bruno-Schwartz v. Board of Education of South Hunterdon Regional High School District, OAL Docket No. EDU 4198-01; Nadasky, Waldvogel and Dougherty v. Board of Education of Township of Clark, OAL Docket No. EDU 7375-99; Schmidtke v. Board of Education of the Township of Woodbridge, OAL Docket No. EDU 10756-98, Wellins v. Board of Education of the City of Atlantic City, et als, OAL Docket No. EDU 8903-98 and Springer v. Board of Education of the Township of Mount Holly, OAL Docket No. 8421-97. Consequently, if there is a distinction is to be made between a sick day and sick leave, it is a distinction without a difference.

Moreover, N.J.S.A. 18A:30-1 et seq., is the only chapter in Title 18A that expressly entitles or authorizes tenured employees to take time off with full pay when sick. N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2 entitles such employees to take "sick leave with full pay for a minimum of 10 school days in any school year." If that section applied only to extended "sick leaves" or "leaves of absence" of ten days or more, it would have the unintended result of depriving countless tenured teachers, administrators, secretaries and custodians of a day's salary for each individual day they were out of work due to illness. Consequently, sick leave must have been intended to serve as an omnibus term for all absences due to illness, be they occasional or extended.

This still leaves the issue of whether the board must comply with the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 each time it docks an employee for the occasional unaccounted or unauthorized absence.[3] In construing statutes or regulations relating to the same subject matter,

[2] Petitioner's argument is somewhat disingenuous given the fact that he accepted the legitimacy of and complied with the demand by submitting physicians' notes for his half-day absences on January 3 and 4, 2001.

[3] Although he alleged in his Petition of Appeal that he "had a sufficient number of sick days to cover the January 2, 2001 absence," Petition of Appeal, page 2, numbered paragraph 9, petitioner did not raise this issue in either of his

"we must first strive to harmonize them." In the Matter of J.W.D., 149 N.J. 108, 115 (1997). Hence, statutes should be construed in their entireties "to clear up any obscurities and ambiguities in the law and to make the whole of the law and every part of it harmonious and effective." In re N., 96 N.J. Super. 415, 421-22 (App. Div. 1967) quoting McCaffrey, Statutory Construction, §44, at 86 (1953). A sensible application of the law "is to be gathered from its object and the nature of the subject matter, the contextual setting, and the statutes in pari materia." Id. at 422, quoting State v. Brown, 22 N.J. 405, 415 (1956).

Not only are N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 and N.J.S.A. 18A:30-1 et seq. part of the same overall statutory scheme set forth in Title 18A, Education, they are also part of the same subtitle, Subtitle 6, Conduct of Schools. Therefore, in considering any perceived inconsistencies, such as whether a deduction of one day's salary for an unauthorized absence constitutes a reduction in compensation within the ambit of Chapter 28, Tenure, "we must first strive to harmonize them." In the Matter of J.W.D., supra, 149 N.J. 108, 115. And in doing so, it must be presumed, if not understood, that the Legislature knew what it was doing when it enacted these statutes, Medical Society v. Dept. of Law & Public Safety, 120 N.J. 18, 26 (1990), and sought to achieve a reasonable result. Cf. Wene v. Meyner, 13 N.J. 185, 192 (1953) ("Legislature may invoke measures reasonably appropriate to secure the integrity of the nominating process in the service of the community welfare.").

N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 provides that tenured employees "shall not be dismissed or reduced in compensation except for inefficiency, incapacity, conduct unbecoming such a teaching staff member or other just cause and then only in the manner prescribed by [N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9 et seq.]." N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 in turn provides the mechanism that must be employed in attempting to dismiss or reduce the compensation of these employees and expressly requires that written charges be preferred against the tenured employee and that a hearing to determine the validity of the charges be held.

briefs. Nor did he include in the Stipulation of Facts any information supporting his contention. By the same token, although attendance records were attached to the first of its two briefs, respondent did not allege that petitioner had exhausted his paid sick leave in either brief, or include any facts supporting such a position in the Stipulation of Facts. Even so, for reasons to be discussed later in this decision, this issue need not be addressed.

A review of the relevant case law discloses that when N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 has been invoked in cases involving compensation, it has generally been to protect tenured employees from board action affecting the employee's annual salary ab initio. See e.g. Fedor v. Elmwood Park Board of Education, OAL Docket No. 7669-01 (change in employment from a twelve-month position to a ten-month position with concomitant reduction in annual salary); Iraggi v. Board of Education of the Borough of Bradley, OAL Docket No. EDU 584-01 (assignment of Learning Disabled Teaching Consultant to regular teaching position at lower salary and employment of less senior non-tenured individual); Tomassini v. Board of Education of the City of Trenton, OAL Docket No. EDU 6585-00 (reassignment of teacher/facilitator to regular teaching position with attendant reduction in annual salary); and Reinertsen v. East Brunswick Board of Education, OAL Docket No. 4554-99 (reassignment of head custodian to regular custodial position with simultaneous reduction in annual salary). Cf. Cerato v. Board of Education of the City of Newark, 94 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 248 (freeze in tenured employee's annual salary due to inadvertent ministerial overpayment not considered reduction in compensation).

On the other hand, there have been no reported cases where the occasional illness, without more, has been considered the type of "conduct unbecoming such a teaching staff member or other just cause" the Legislature contemplated as warranting a reduction in compensation. For the most part, it has only been when the employee's absenteeism was excessive or habitual that it called for the filing of tenure charges. See e.g. In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Patricia Marsden, School District of Toms River, OAL Docket No. EDU 1188-84 (Commissioner will not hesitate to dismiss a tenured employee for chronic, persistent absenteeism even when there is no charge of illegitimate use of sick leave).

Based upon the foregoing, it would not be unreasonable to assume that the Legislature intended that the issue of payment or non-payment of salary for occasional absences due to illness should be governed by N.J.S.A. 18A:30-1 et seq., and not be subject to the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 and N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10. Written in a much more positive, compassionate vein, the sick leave provisions affirmatively entitle employees to a minimum of ten paid absences due to illness each school year. N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2. They also provide that a board of education may, in the exercise of its discretion, elect to continue paying a daily salary to an employee who has exhausted his or her annual and accumulated sick leave, less the pay or estimated pay of a substitute. N.J.S.A. 18A:30-6. Similarly, a board may "fix either by rule or by individual consideration, the payment of salary in cases of absence not constituting sick leave, or . . . grant sick leave over and above the minimum sick leave as defined in this chapter or [allow] days to accumulate over and above those provided for in section 18A:30-2 . . . ." N.J.S.A. 18A:30-7.

Conspicuous by their absences from N.J.S.A. 18A:30-1 et seq. are any references to "reductions in compensation" or the need to proceed "in the manner prescribed by [N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9 et seq.]" before docking employees a day's salary for an unexcused absence. This, coupled with the foregoing discussion of the case law concerning reductions in compensation, and the level of discretion the Legislature has given boards of education in granting sick leave over and above the minimum allotment of ten days, can only mean that matters involving sick leave are sui generis and are to be handled outside the scope of the tenure laws.

Moreover, Article X, Section 10.3 of the negotiated agreement between the Riverside Board of Education and the Riverside Administrative Association expressly provides that > Any employee being absent for other than legitimate use of sick and personal leave as contained in this agreement, or without direct approval of the Superintendent and the Board of Education, shall not be paid in proportion to the amount of time said absence occurred. (Emphasis added)

Therefore, the inescapable conclusion is that boards of education may elect not to pay a day's salary to an employee who has taken an unaccounted for or unexcused absence and need not follow N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 in withholding that salary. To hold otherwise would result in the waste of valuable time, money, and resources each time a tenured employee takes an unauthorized day off from work.

The only remaining issue would appear to be whether or not the board had the right to demand a doctor's note when it did. The board contends that it did pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:30-4, which authorizes a board of education to request a physician's certificate any time sick leave is claimed. Petitioner, however, argues that Article X, Section 10.2 of the negotiated agreement between the Riverside Board of Education and the Riverside Administrative Association precludes the board from demanding a physician's note until an employee has called out sick for three consecutive days.

The New Jersey Supreme Court has held that "the mere existence of a statute or regulation relating to a given term or condition of employment does not automatically preclude negotiate[ed alternatives]", Wright v. Board of Educ. of the City of East Orange, Essex County, 99 N.J. 112, 119 (1985) (citing In the Matter of Local 195, IFPTE, AFL-CIO v. State, 88 N.J. 393, 403 (1982), but rather "'[n]egotiation is preempted only if the statutory or regulatory provisions . . . speak in the imperative and leave nothing to the discretion of the public employer.'" Ibid, quoting State v. State Supervisory Employees Ass'n, 78 N.J. 54, 80 (1978). Stated another way, it is only "[i]f the Legislature establishes a specific term or condition of employment that leaves no room for discretionary action, [that] negotiation on that term is fully preempted." In the Matter of Local 195, IFPTE, AFL-CIO v. State, supra, 88 N.J. at 403.

Mandatory or imperative statutes are those establishing a specific scheme that must be handled as directed. State v. State Supervisory Employees Ass'n, 77 N.J. 55, 82, n. 7 (1978). Obvious examples of mandatory statutes are N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 and N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10, the very statutes upon which petitioner relies. They are very explicit and leave absolutely no room for discretionary action. Simply put, they expressly require that written charges be preferred against the tenured employee and that a hearing to determine the validity of the charges be held before that employee may be dismissed or have his compensation reduced.

N.J.S.A. 18A:30-4, however, is quite the opposite and provides that a board of education may require a physician's certificate before accepting a tenured employee's claim of sick time and excusing the employee's absence. It is under no obligation to do so in each and every case. Rather, it may examine each claim for sick time individually and decide from which employees it will demand doctors' notes. Since N.J.S.A. 18A:30-1 et seq. provides a board with virtually unlimited discretion in handling sick leave, N.J.S.A. 18A:30-4 cannot be considered a mandatory or imperative statute. Therefore, a board of education is free to waive its right to require a physician's certificate any time sick leave is claimed and agree instead to a negotiated alternative. Here, the alternative is Article X, Section 10.2 of the negotiated agreement, under which employees "taking three (3) consecutive sick days will present, upon request, a physician's certificate attesting to capability to perform job duties and signifying freedom from any communicable disease."

Superintendent Ferner's memo of January 2, 2001 advised petitioner that upon returning from his absence on January 2, 2001, he was to attach a doctor's note to the staff absentee slip verifying his illness. Since the memo was dated the same day as his illness, it is obvious that unless he had been absent the last two school days before winter break,[4] petitioner had not been out sick for three consecutive days. Having negotiated away its right to insist upon a doctor's note whenever sick leave is claimed, neither the board nor its superintendent had the authority to demand a note the date the sick day was taken.

That being the case, we must now determine whether or not petitioner claimed three consecutive days of sick leave and, if so, whether the superintendent renewed his request for a doctor's note or sought advice as to how petitioner wished the day to be charged. Once again, petitioner claimed sick leave for a full day on January 2, 2001, and one-half day each on January 3 and 4, 2001. Although he actually worked for part of the day on both the 2nd and 3rd, the fact remains that he formally claimed sick leave, albeit for half a day, on those two days. Therefore, he claimed sick leave for all or part of three consecutive days. Any other finding would lead to an absurd result where an employee repeatedly calling out sick for half a day could not be asked for a doctor's note until he or she had been out for six consecutive half-days.

On February 14, 2001, approximately six weeks after these three consecutive sick days, Superintendent Ferner sent petitioner a memorandum acknowledging receipt of Mr. Schwartz's letter of January 25, 2001. Apparently taking Mr. Schawartz's comment that "[w]hat we are dealing with here is a one-day absence, not a sick leave" out of context, Mr. Ferner asked, "Since it is not sick time according to your attorney, how should this day be charged?" Knowing full well that he had claimed sick leave on January 2,[5] petitioner should have, at the very least, disabused the superintendent of this misconception and echoed his attorney's position that he did not believe he was required to provide a physician's note for a one-day absence. Although this [4] There is nothing in the record before me, including the attendance records appended to respondent's brief, indicating that petitioner claimed sick leave the two days immediately preceding the break.

[5] Having pled that he "had a sufficient number of sick days to cover the January 2, 2001 absence," Petition of Appeal, Count One, ¶9, petitioner cannot now claim that the absence was for anything other than illness.

memorandum was tantamount to another request for a physician's certificate, petitioner chose not to respond and left the absence unaccounted for.

As of March 7, 2001, Mr. Ferner had still not received a physician's certificate. Therefore, by memorandum issued the same date, he recounted the procedural history of this matter and closed with the following passage: "You have not responded in writing, although you told me in conversation on Friday, March 2, 2001, that you had no intention of supplying me with the requested notes. I am, therefore, docking you two days' pay for these unaccounted absences."[6]

Given respondent's failure to provide a physician's certificate or otherwise indicate how he wished to be charged for his absence as requested, I FIND that petitioner's absence on January 2, 2001 was unexcused and further FIND that the board of education acted appropriately in withholding one day's salary as it was authorized to do under N.J.S.A. 18A:30-1 et seq. and Article X, Section 10.3 of the negotiated Agreement between the Riverside Board of Education and the Riverside Administrative Association.

DECISION AND ORDER

Based upon the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that respondent's withholding of one day's salary for an unexcused absence did not violate petitioner's rights of tenure under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 and should be AFFIRMED. Therefore, I further CONCLUDE that respondent's Motion for Summary Decision should be GRANTED and that petitioner's Motion for Summary Decision should be DENIED and his Petition of Appeal be DISMISSED. It is so ORDERED.

[6] In or about March 20-22, 2001, upon receipt of separate doctor's notes for the half-day absences claimed on January 3 and 4, Mr. Ferner caused the salary for the two half days to be restored.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

CHARLES WEISBERG,	:

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF RIVERSIDE, BURLINGTON COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions and the Board's reply thereto are duly noted as submitted in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4, and were considered by the Commissioner in reaching his decision.

Upon careful and independent review of the record in this matter, and assuming, arguendo, that this matter was timely filed,[1] the Commissioner concurs with the Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) conclusion that petitioner has failed to demonstrate that the Board's action in docking him a day's pay on January 2, 2001 pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:30-1 et seq. was prohibited by the tenure statutes.

In so doing, the Commissioner does not reach to the ALJ's discussion with respect to whether the Board's action was authorized pursuant to the negotiated agreement between it and the Riverside Administrative Association. Notwithstanding petitioner's attempts in his exception arguments to expand the scope of the issues before him, the Commissioner notes that the sole issue raised in the Petition of Appeal was whether the Board's action in docking petitioner for one day reduced his salary in violation of his tenure rights. (Petition of Appeal at 2) As a result, the Prehearing Order issued on September 25, 2001 identifies the issues in this matter as

[1] Although the Prehearing Order issued on September 25, 2001 by ALJ Tylutki identifies timeliness of the petition as one of the issues herein, (Prehearing Order at 1), it does not appear to have been addressed in subsequent proceedings.

1. Whether the docking of the one day salary is in violation of the tenure statute.
2. Whether the petition was filed timely. (Prehearing Order at 1).[2]

Indeed, subsequent to the issuance of the Prehearing Order, petitioner informed ALJ Tylutki by letter dated October 10, 2001 that he had filed "several grievances" against the Board, scheduled to be heard on October 17, 2001. One of the grievances alleged that the action taken by the Board in docking his single day's pay was a violation of his collective bargaining agreement. (Schwartz Letter, October 10, 2001 at 2) Petitioner therein recognized that "the contract issue being presented to the Arbitration is separate and distinct from those issues before the Commissioner, and because of the different jurisdictional consideration, no choice of remedy is necessary." (Ibid.)

Accordingly, the Initial Decision is adopted as set forth above. The Petition of Appeal is dismissed.

IT IS SO ORDERED.[3]

[2] There is nothing in the record to indicate that the Prehearing Order was later modified. Indeed, by letter order dated May 6, 2003, ALJ Dubin addresses the parties and states, in pertinent part, "This matter concerns petitioner's allegation that respondent unilaterally reduced his compensation by $788.07 on the grounds that he had not provided the superintendent with a physician's note for a day he had been absent from work. Petitioner contends that the reduction in compensation was violative of N.J.A.C. [sic] 18A:28-5 in that he had a sufficient number of sick days to cover the absence in question." (ALJ Dubin's Letter Order of May 6, 2003 at 1)

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner challenged the Board's filling of supervisor positions. Petitioner sought appointment to the position of Supervisor of Instruction in the 2002-03 school year.

Upon review of the job descriptions for the old Supervisor of Instruction and new District-wide Supervisor of Instruction, the ALJ concluded that the new requirements did not create a position sufficiently different to give rise to a separately tenurable position. The ALJ concluded that petitioner, previously tenured in the position of Supervisor of Instruction, was entitled to the position of District-wide Supervisor of Instruction over the nontenured teaching staff member assigned by the Board to that position.

The Commissioner adopted the Initial Decision as his own.

This synopsis is not part of the Commissioner's decision. It has been prepared for the convenience of the reader. It has been neither reviewed nor approved by the Commissioner.

BEFORE ROBERT J. GIORDANO, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner, Thomas Matarazzo, was employed by the respondent Cliffside Park Board of Education as a teacher of social studies from 1974-75 through 1979-80. He was then assigned the duties of a Supervisor of Social Studies from 1980-81 through 1992-93. From 1993-94 through 1998-99, he was assigned as supervisor of both social studies and business.

As of June 30, 1999, the Board abolished the position of Supervisor of Instruction. During the 2001-2002 school year, respondent posted supervisory positions to commence as of the 2002-2003 school year. Respondent interviewed petitioner and five other candidates for the three, posted supervisory positions. Respondent hired three other candidates, Fabian, Merrill and Rudolph, as Supervisors of Instruction.

On July 2, 2002, petitioner filed a petition of appeal with the Commissioner of Education contending that these individuals are either not tenured as supervisor or they have less seniority as supervisor than petitioner. On July 23, 2002, respondent filed an answer to the petition of appeal. On August 9, 2002, the Department of Education transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F1 to -13. The matter was assigned to the undersigned and a prehearing conference was held on May 6, 2003. Thereafter, a conference was conducted on October 9, 2003, and the parties agreed that the matter could be resolved by way of cross-motions for summary decision on stipulated facts. Stipulations of fact along with documents J-1 through J-21, stipulated as to authenticity, were received on October 21, 2003. Thereafter, cross-motions and supporting briefs were filed by November 18, 2003. The parties submitted reply briefs by December 8, 2003. A telephone conference was conducted on February 6, 2004 to address issues regarding the stipulated facts submitted. No modifications or additions to the stipulated facts being made, the record closed on February 6, 2004.

LEGAL DISCUSSION

The matter is now before this tribunal on cross-motions for summary decision. When considering a motion for summary decision, the administrative law judge (ALJ) must determine whether, based on the proceedings, discovery and affidavits submitted, a genuine issue of material fact exists which must be decided by a full evidentiary hearing. A contested matter can be summarily disposed of before an ALJ without plenary hearing in instances where undisputed material facts, as developed on motion or otherwise, indicate that a particular disposition is required as a matter of law. In the Matter of Robros Recycling Corp. 226 N.J. Super. 343 (App. Div. 1988). In this matter, the parties have stipulated to the material facts extant. The resolution of the issue raised by these cross-motions rests on analysis of legal principles. Thus, the matter is ripe for summary disposition.

The Tenure Act provides for the tenure of educational personnel in the State of New Jersey. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-1 et seq. No teaching staff member shall acquire tenure in any position in the public schools in any school district or under any board of education who is not the holder of an appropriate certificate for such position, issued by the State Board of Examiners. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-4. Under the authority of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-38, the State Board of Examiners is authorized to issue appropriate certificates to teaching staff members. "Certificate" means one of three types of credentials, instructional, educational services and administrative, that the Board of Examiners issues that permits an individual to serve as a teaching staff member. "Teaching staff member" means a member of the professional staff of any district or regional board of education, or any board of education of a county vocational school, holding office, position or employment of such character that the qualifications for such office, position or employment require him or her to hold a valid and effective standard, provisional or emergency certificate, appropriate to his or her office, position or employment issued by the State Board of Examiners. N.J.S.A. 18A:1-1; N.J.A.C. 6A:9-2.1.

The Board of Examiners will issue a separate endorsement for each subject area that falls under a specific type of certificate. The endorsement shall be considered part of that certificate. Under the administrative certification, the supervisor endorsement is required for supervisors of instruction who do not hold a standard principal's endorsement. The supervisor shall be defined as any school officer who is charged with authority and responsibility for the continuing direction and guidance of the work of instructional personnel. This endorsement also authorizes appointment as an assistant superintendent in charge of curriculum and/or instruction. N.J.A.C. 6A:9-12.3(c). In addition to possessing an appropriate certification, an educator must serve a probationary period in a given position under a designated certificate to achieve tenure. Nelson v. Board of Educ. of Tp. Of Old Bridge, 148 N.J. 358 (1997).

N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 outlines the conditions under which teaching staff members are entitled to the security of tenure. The statute provides that the services of > all teaching staff members employed in the positions of teachers ... and such other employees as are in positions which require them to hold > appropriate certificates issued by the board of examiners ... shall be under tenure... after employment in the district or by such board...

upon satisfying the requisite statutory probationary terms set forth in the statute.

A teaching staff member achieves tenure by serving the probationary period either in a specifically designated "position," such as a teacher, or in a position that requires the teaching staff member to hold appropriate certificates. Our courts have held that tenure should be liberally construed to further its beneficial purpose of affording security to teaching staff who meet its standard of length of service. Spiewak v. Rutherford Bd. of Ed., 90 N.J. 63 (1982). The Supreme Court has held that, > tenure is achieved in a specific "position", and the scope of the tenured position is initially limited by the "certificate" the teaching staff member must hold to satisfy the prerequisite of qualifications for his or her employment. The statute does not require service of the probationary term under a specific "endorsement." Because the legislative will is expressed by the plain language of the statute, we will "not engage in conjecture or surmise which will circumvent the plain meaning of the act."

> [In re Closing of Jamesburg High School, 83 N.J. 540 (1980).]

However, the Supreme Court later held that the State Board of Education properly determined that the school district had a legitimate basis for restructuring the guidance department so as to eliminate the position of guidance counselor, which position required an education services certification, and for creating a new position of class supervisor, which required certification in both educational services and administration. Dennery v. Board of Educ. of Passaic County Regional High School Dist. No. 1, Passaic County, 131 N.J. 626 (1993). The Dennery Court held that:

> When the duties of the position in which a teaching-staff member has acquired tenure are substantially identical to those of the position that the person seeks, a local school board may not sidestep an educator's tenure rights by simply renaming the position or tacking on additional meaningless requirements. The local board must extend the teaching-staff member's tenure rights to the newly-created position. See, e.g., Viemeister v. Board of Educ., 5 N.J. Super. 215, 218, 68 A.2d 768 (App. Div. 1949) (holding that tenured principal should be reinstated because his position had not in fact been abolished when local school board created the position of "teaching" principal); Vogel v. Board of Educ.,

> (State Bd. of Educ., June 5, 1985), slip op. at 5-6. (explaining that a "[b]oard's decision to abolish a position is not sacrosanct and will be disturbed if it is found that the duties of the abolished position essentially have been transferred to another position so as to defeat the rights of the tenured employee to the abolished position"); Luppino v. Board of Educ., 1980 S.L.D. 1028, 1035-36 (ruling that duties of administrator of home instruction and principal of home instruction "were substantially the same" and change of title "did not involve the meaningful addition of extra duties").
> A mere overlap in duties, however, does not mean that two positions are equivalent for tenure purposes. If a newly-created position is similar to a tenure holder's abolished position but also requires additional duties or different responsibilities, then the newly-created position is not considered to be substantially similar to the former position. Santasiero v. Parsippany-Troy Hills Bd. of Educ., 1984 S.L.D. 854, 879; see also Sandri v. Board of Educ., 1986 S.L.D. 1501 (ruling that duties of abolished position of supervisor of guidance/shop were similar but of greater nature and scope than newly-created position of director of special needs and student services); Rufalo v. Board of Educ., 1986 S.L.D. 1699 (ruling that despite overlap of duties between post of vice-principal and newly-created supervisor position, positions were "substantially different"). Despite petitioner's belief that the new position of class supervisor is only a thinly-disguised effort to repackage the job of guidance counselor by creating a new job title and requiring minor additional supervisory duties, the record indicates that the Commissioner and State Board could reasonably conclude that the positions were in fact different.

The Tenure Act authorizes the creation of seniority regulations to rank the job rights of tenured teaching staff in a reduction in force (RIF). One of the provisions of the Tenure Act is N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9, which states in essence that tenure does not limit the right of a school district to reduce staff. The next section, N.J.S.A. 18A:28-10, states that, in a RIF, dismissals shall be made on the basis of seniority according to standards adopted by the State. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-13 instructs the Commissioner how to create those standards. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12 gives staff members, who are dismissed in a RIF, preference in reemployment. The statute does not create or authorize the Commissioner to create competing rights for non-tenured teachers. Under current regulations, seniority is measured by years of employment in specific job categories, which are normally narrower than the subject fields that are endorsed on teachers' certificates. See N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5; N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.10(b). Bednar v. Westwood Bd. of Educ., 221 NJ Super. 239, 241-42 (App. Div. 1987). N.J.A.C. 6:3-5.1 provides in part that for seniority purposes, there shall be deemed to be specific categories including supervisor. Each supervisory title shall be a separate category, and district boards of education shall adopt a job description for each supervisory position which sets forth the qualifications and specific endorsements required for such position. N.J.A.C. 6:3-5.1(l)10(l) and (ii).

The State Board has noted that seniority provides a mechanism for ranking all tenured teaching staff members so that reductions among the tenured force can be effected in an equitable fashion and in accord with sound educational policies. A tenured teacher is entitled to retention as against a non-tenured teacher under the tenure law. To hold otherwise would be to defeat the purpose of tenure which was to give a measure of security to teachers after the prescribed number of years of service. Capodilupo v. West Orange Tp. Bd. of Ed. 218 N.J. Super. 510 (App. Div. 1987). Seniority is a statutory concept created by Chapter 28 of Title 18A, a chapter which deals only with the various aspects of tenure. Old Bridge Tp. Bd. of Educ. v. Old Bridge Educ. Ass'n, 98 N.J. 523 (1985). It does not purport to create employment rights for non-tenured employees. The Court has held that non-tenured teachers whose contracts are not renewed by reason of a RIF are not entitled to the reemployment rights conferred by Chapter 28. Union Cty. Bd. of Ed. v. Union Cty. Teach. Ass'n, 145 N.J. Super. 435 (App. Div. 1976), certif. den. 74 N.J. 248 (1977). "Chapter 28 surely does not contemplate use of the concept of seniority to justify retaining a non-tenured teacher in a position within the certificate of a dismissed tenured teacher." Capodilupo v. West Orange Tp. Ed. Bd., supra.

> The law is well-settled that a supervisor endorsement is generic and authorizes the holder to supervise any subject matter and any grade level (citations omitted). Moreover, while there is nothing to prevent a local board from establishing additional instructional certification requirements, absent a showing that instructional certification is necessary to perform the duties of the position at issue, such requirements cannot sidestep the educator's tenure rights on a preferred eligibility list of supervisors.
> [Galbraith v. Board of Educ. of Lenape Valley Regional High School District, 96 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 396 (1996).]

CONCLUSIONS

While the foregoing cases may serve as instructive for the instant matter, there are several distinctions that bear comment. In the instant case, respondent maintains that the newly created supervisory positions are substantially different from the prior positions in that there is now district wide responsibility (J-5, J-7). Clearly, there are differences between the job descriptions for the old supervisor of instruction and new district wide supervisor of instruction. Such differences might arguably defeat a claim based on seniority. Such district wide responsibility, even if sufficiently different in scope, still does not give rise to the imposition of additional certification requirements. See Galbraith, supra. And while both the old requirements and the new requirements for supervisor of instruction require that the holder of the position may be assigned teaching assignments, unlike in Galbraith, there are no instructional certification requirements imposed by the Board under either the old or new supervisor of instruction requirements in this case. There has been no showing that any certification or endorsement is necessary or required for the performance of the district wide supervisor position other than certification as a supervisor in order to be authorized by statute and regulation to perform such functions. Upon review of the respective job descriptions, I CONCLUDE that the new requirements do not create a position sufficiently different to give rise to a separately tenurable position. I thus CONCLUDE that petitioner, previously tenured in the position of supervisor of instruction, is entitled to the position of district wide supervisor of instruction over the non-tenured supervisor assigned by respondent to that position.

ORDER

Based on the foregoing, I hereby ORDER that petitioner's motion for summary decision is and shall be granted. Respondent's motion for summary decision is DENIED.

It is further ORDERED that respondent assign petitioner to one of the three positions of district wide supervisor of instruction, replacing the untenured supervisor currently assigned, along with back pay and other emoluments of employment, as appropriate.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

PETITIONER,	:

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF CLIFFSIDE PARK, BERGEN COUNTY.	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. The Board's exceptions and petitioner's reply thereto are duly noted as submitted in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

In its exceptions, the Board continues to argue that there are "substantial differences between the two supervisory positions at issue" so as to require that they be considered as "separate for purposes of determining tenure rights." (Board's Exceptions at 2) In so doing, the Board renews its contention that the additional responsibilities in the job description for the new positions (Exhibit J-7) render these new positions "district wide" and, therefore, the tenure rights earned by petitioner during his prior service as a supervisor do not transfer to them. (Id. at 6-8) Additionally, the Board now contends that implicit within its posting and job description for the new supervisor positions was the requirement for an instructional endorsement in the level or area to which the successful candidate was assigned; consequently, petitioner, who is not endorsed as a K-8 instructor, cannot properly be appointed to the position held by Ms. Merrill. (Id. at 3, 10-11, 20-21)

To this, petitioner counters that the job description for each of the three supervisory positions is identical and does not indicate that a teaching assignment will be, or must be, within the individual's area of certification. (Petitioner's Reply at 3) Neither does it require any additional certificate or endorsement. (Id. at 7) Petitioner further contends, as argued before the ALJ, that his "tenure as a Supervisor extends to any other position requiring Supervisor certification since the position of District-Wide Supervisor of Instruction (J-7) is not among those [separately tenurable positions] enumerated in N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5." (Id. at 6) Since Ms. Merrill has not achieved tenure as a supervisor, petitioner maintains that he is entitled to be appointed to the position she holds. Petitioner urges the Commissioner, therefore, to adopt the Initial Decision as it was correctly decided on both the facts and the law.

Upon careful and independent review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that petitioner has demonstrated he is entitled to the supervisor position now held by Ms. Merrill, a nontenured teaching staff member. In so doing, the Commissioner is not persuaded by the Board's characterization of the new supervisor positions as "substantially different" so as to thwart petitioner's tenure entitlement.

Accordingly, the Initial Decision is adopted for the reasons expressed therein.

IT IS SO ORDERED.*

(Broscious & Fischer, PC)

Record Closed: January 30, 2004 Decided: February 5, 2004

BEFORE ELINOR R. REINER, ALJ:

On or about September 24, 2003, the School District of the Town of Phillipsburg certified charges of conduct unbecoming a teacher and corporal punishment against respondent, Dale Mancuso, a tenured kindergarten teacher. On October 16, 2003, respondent filed an answer denying the charges. On November 5, 2003, the Department of Education, Bureau of Controversies and Disputes transmitted this matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for hearing as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52L14B-1 to –15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to –13.

The matter was assigned to the undersigned judge on November 7, 2003, and a telephone prehearing conference scheduled for December 3, 2003. During the prehearing conference held on that date, the issues were isolated, and a hearing scheduled for January 13, 14 and 29, 2004 at the OAL, 33 Washington Street, Newark, New Jersey. As a result of settlement conferences held between the parties on January 13, 2004, a settlement was reached, and the hearing was adjourned. The settlement was contingent on approval by the Board of Education of the Town of Phillipsburg. On January 26, 2004, the Board of Education approved the Settlement Agreement and General Release.

The parties have agreed to settle this matter and have prepared the attached Settlement Agreement and General Release and Resolution and Extract of the Board's January 26, 2004 meeting. These documents indicate the terms of settlement.

I have reviewed the record and the settlement terms and FIND:

1. The settlement agreement complies with the requirements of Cardonic v. Bd. of Ed. of the Borough of Brooklawn, 1990 S.L.D. 842 (Commissioner of Ed. April 7, 1982), aff'd State Bd. of Ed., April 6, 1983.

2. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement, as evidenced by their signatures or their representatives' signatures.

3. The settlement agreement is in the public interest.

4. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and, therefore, ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT AND GENERAL RELEASE

THIS SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT AND GENERAL RELEASE (hereinafter "Agreement") is made and entered into this _____ day of January, 2004, by and between the BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWN OF PHILLIPSBURG, WARREN COUNTY, with its administrative offices located at 445 Marshall Street, Phillipsburg, New Jersey 08865 (hereinafter referred to as the "Board" or "District") and DALE MANCUSO, whose address is 36 Stonehenge Drive, Phillipsburg, New Jersey 08865 (hereinafter referred to as the "Employee").

WITNESSETH:

WHEREAS, the Employee is an employee of the District and presently is employed as a teaching staff member by the Board; and

WHEREAS, the Phillipsburg Education Association (hereinafter, the "Association") is the exclusive majority representative of all non-supervisory teaching staff members employed in the District, including Employee: and

WHEREAS, the Employee's current terms and conditions of employment are set forth in a collective negotiations agreement between the Board and the Phillipsburg Education Association covering the period of July 1, 2003 through June 30, 2006 (hereinafter "PEA Agreement"); and

WHEREAS, during the 2002-2003 school year certain allegations of inappropriate conduct toward a student were made in connection with the Employee during the course of teaching her kindergarten class; and

WHEREAS, the Employee was suspended with pay pursuant to said allegations on or about March 21, 2003, pending further investigation; and

WHEREAS, the Board reported the allegations to the Division of Youth and Family Services ("DYFS"); and

WHEREAS, following such report, DYFS indicated to the Board that it would not intervene in this matter and that the Board could handle the matter internally; and

WHEREAS, the District conducted an internal investigation of said allegations; and

WHEREAS, as a result of the District's internal investigation, the Superintendent recommended to the Board that the filing of tenure charges against the Employee for conduct unbecoming a teacher was justifiable and warranted; and

WHEREAS, the Superintendent did, in fact, file with the Board Secretary a Statement of Charges Under the Tenure Employee Hearing Act charging the Employee with Conduct Unbecoming a Public Employee ("Charges"); and

WHEREAS, the Employee responded to the Charges, denying that she had committed any acts constituting conduct unbecoming a public employee; and

WHEREAS, on September 23, 2003, the Board certified the tenure charges to the Commissioner of Education and suspended Employee without pay; and

WHEREAS, case was transferred by the Commissioner of Education to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") and assigned for hearing before the Honorable Elinor R. Reiner, A.L.J.; and

WHEREAS, so that they might avoid the uncertainties of litigation and the time, expense and trauma that would be incurred by a protracted hearing, Judge Reiner urged the parties to consider potential settlement of this matter; and

WHEREAS, due to the age of the children who allegedly witnessed the series of events leading up the filing of tenure charges in this matter, their memories are insufficient to permit accurate testimony upon which the court could rely; and

WHEREAS, prior statements given by several adult witnesses to the District contained inconsistencies which would have subjected the witnesses to rigorous cross-examination, possibly undermining the Board's case against Employee; and

WHEREAS, in view of its sincere concerns that inconsistencies in witness statements and testimony could undermine the Board's case, its determination that any settlement must include a complete and permanent separation between the Employee and the District, a result that might not be achieved if the litigation proceeding to a plenary hearing, and its concern that litigation expenses could cause the expenditure of monies that otherwise could be used to support education within the District, the Board determined that it would be in the public interest to enter into settlement negotiations with Employee; and

WHEREAS, after negotiating in good faith, with the assistance of Judge Reiner, the parties, through their respective counsel, have reached an agreement on January 13, 2004, providing for a complete a resolution of their dispute within the parameters of the law regarding the settlement of tenure charges, and for the Employee's complete separation from employment in the District; and

WHEREAS, the parties hereto wish to memorialize their promises and covenants more formally in this Agreement; and

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING	:
OF DALE MANCUSO, SCHOOL DISTRICT	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
OF THE TOWN OF PHILLIPSBURG, WARREN	:	DECISION
COUNTY.	:

The record, Settlement Agreement* and Initial Decision issued by the Office of Administrative Law, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:19.1, have been reviewed.

Upon review, the Commissioner approves the settlement terms since they comport with the Cardonick standards for review of settlements in tenure matters and adopts the settlement as the final decision in this matter. In re Cardonick, decided by the Commissioner April 7, 1982, aff'd State Board April 6, 1983, 1990 S.L.D. 842, 846. The matter is hereby dismissed subject to compliance with the terms of the settlement.

Notwithstanding this determination, a review of the tenure charges against Ms. Mancuso reveals, inter alia, allegations of grabbing a kindergarten student and dragging him from one table to another in front of a classroom full of students, squeezing a kindergarten student's wrists until they turned white, thus causing red marks to appear, and slapping a student on the back of the head. Ms. Mancuso has denied all charges. The serious nature of these charges, however, compels that this matter be referred to the State Board of Examiners for action

Record Closed: February 9, 2004 Decided: February 10, 2004

BEFORE ELINOR R. REINER, ALJ:

On or about February 28, 2000, petitioner, Laurie E. Tumin, filed a verified petition of appeal with the Commissioner of Education, alleging that respondent improperly charged her sick days for time lost due to a work-related injury in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1. On or about March 29, 2000, respondent filed its answer requesting dismissal of the petition and a stay of the matter pending the filing and disposition of a claim before the Division of Workers Compensation. On April 14, 2000, the Department of Education, Bureau of Controversies and Disputes transmitted this matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for hearing as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52L14B-1 to –15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to –13.

The matter was assigned to the undersigned judge on May 26, 2000, and a telephone prehearing conference scheduled for September 11, 2000. After conference with counsel, it became clear that this matter should be placed on the inactive list pending the outcome of the workers' compensation proceeding brought by petitioner against respondent. As a result, the matter was placed on the inactive list by Order dated September 18, 2000 for a period of six months from that date until March 19, 2001. Further orders of inactivity dated March 21, 2001, October 2, 2001, April 12, 2002, October 10, 2002 and March 12, 2003 were entered and continued this matter on the inactive list until September 19, 2003.

By letter dated September 26, 2003, petitioner's attorney advised the undersigned that the workers' compensation case filed by petitioner had been settled and this matter should be returned to the active list. During the telephone prehearing conference with counsel on November 5, 2003, resolution of this matter was discussed, and counsel agreed to advise the undersigned whether a settlement had been reached. Further discussions were held with counsel, and a settlement was reached. The signed Settlement Agreement was received on February 9, 2004.

The parties have agreed to settle this matter and have prepared the attached Settlement Agreement, indicating the terms of settlement.

I have reviewed the record and the settlement terms and FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement, as evidenced by their signatures or their representatives' signatures.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and, therefore, ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On February 23, 2004, petitioner filed an application for emergent relief with the New Jersey Department of Education. The application, supplemented by letter brief filed on March 11, 2004, requested her immediate "Reinstatement to the position of Principal with the Willingboro School District, Reinstatement of Time-in-Position as Principal From December 11, 2003 to the present, Back pay from December 11, 2003, my last day of work, through the present, [and] The internet site on the Willingboro Server using my name removed."

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on March 17, 2004 for a hearing on the requested emergent relief. The hearing, which consisted solely of oral argument, was conducted on March 29, 2004 at the OAL, Quakerbridge Plaza, Building 9, Quakerbridge Road, Mercerville, New Jersey.

SUMMARY OF THE RECORD

Petitioner was initially employed by the Willingboro Board of Education as an Assistant Principal at Willingboro High School, a position in which she obtained tenure, from July 1997 through November 2001. On or about November 28, 2001, she was promoted to the position of Vice Principal at the High School and held that position until in or about July 2002, when she was assigned to the Stuart School as Program Administrator, a position described as comparable to that of Principal. Describing the Stuart School as a "hostile work environment," petitioner requested a transfer and, on August 12, 2003, she was employed as a Principal at the district's Adult Education School.

Referring to the Adult Education School as "hostile" and "an even more uncomfortable work environment," on or about September 12, 2003 petitioner requested another transfer. It was not immediately forthcoming and, on October 3, 2003, petitioner took a thirty-day medical leave of absence for treatment of "Depression – Situational Stress." Throughout this period of medical leave she continued to complain that the Adult School was a hostile work environment and met with Harry Rocco, Assistant to the Superintendent of Operations, and Marvin Hopkins, Executive Director of Human Resources, to discuss these allegations on several occasions. On October 31, 2003, as her thirty-day leave was about to expire, Superintendent Alonzo Kittrels advised her by letter that the district's internal investigation had failed to uncover any evidence substantiating her complaint. He also advised her that given her continuing complaints, it was imperative she meet with Messrs. Rocco and Hopkins on November 3 at 9:30 a.m.

As directed, petitioner returned to work on November 3, 2003 and met with Messrs. Rocco and Hopkins, and the Superintendent, who was also in attendance. At that time she was advised that she was being reassigned to her tenured position as an Assistant Principal at the Memorial Middle School, at the salary set forth in the Collective Bargaining Agreement between the Board and the Willingboro Education Administrator's Association. She was also given a day or two to consult an attorney and decide whether to accept the new assignment.

According to petitioner, she met with Superintendent Kittrels on September 7, 2003 and expressed her reservations about what she termed "a double demotion." The superintendent is alleged to have responded by offering to arrange for her to obtain a position with the Department of Education in Trenton through his friendship with Commissioner William L. Librera. However, he would do so only if she agreed to resign. Then, without giving her sufficient time to think about the offer, she was ushered into a conference room and "coerced" into writing a letter of resignation effective April 2, 2004.[2] In the meantime, she would serve as Special Projects Director at the Country Club Elementary School.

Petitioner states that on or about December 7, 2003, she noticed that the New Jersey State Department of Education had published an advertisement for five budget examiner positions in The Star Ledger. Two days later she met with Superintendent Kittrels, showed him the advertisement, and took him up on his offer to call Commissioner Librera. She further states that he assured her that getting her one of those positions "would not be a problem at all." However, she would first have to submit a new letter of resignation moving her termination date up from April 4, 2004, to December 11, 2003. He then allowed her to take off December 10 to decide what she wanted to do.

On December 11, 2003, petitioner sent an interoffice memorandum to the Superintendent informing him the she "would like to change my last day of work from April 2 to Thursday, December 11, 2003," and thanking him "in advance for [his] kind consideration."

[2] The letter of resignation was accepted and ratified by the Board at its regularly scheduled business meeting on November 24, 2003.

DISCUSSION OF THE LAW

Pursuant to Crowe v. DiGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982), N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6(b) and N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.6, emergency relief may be granted if the judge determines that:

1. the petitioner will suffer irreparable harm if the relief is not granted;
2. the legal right underlying the petitioner's claim is settled;
3. the petitioner has a likelihood of prevailing on the merits of the underlying claim; and
4. when the equities and interests of the parties are balanced, the petitioner will suffer greater harm than the respondent will suffer if the requested relief is not granted.

It is important to note that the rule, which sets forth a four-pronged test, is written in the conjunctive and not the disjunctive. Therefore, petitioner must satisfy and prevail on each of the four prongs in order to obtain the requested emergent relief.

Having carefully considered the parties' respective arguments, I am not convinced that petitioner will suffer irreparable harm if the emergent relief is not granted. First and foremost, petitioner's reassignment to her tenured position of Assistant Principal, with a $23,000 reduction in annual salary, became effective November 4, 2003. Yet, she did not file a petition of appeal from the Board's action, much less a request for emergent relief, until approximately five full months had passed. Nor did she take any action when she was allegedly coerced into moving up her effective date of resignation from April 2, 2004 to December 11, 2003. Instead, she waited approximately three-and-one-half months to file the petition.

Petitioner alleges that she is now suffering and will continue to suffer "egregious financial hardship" because of her forced resignation. She is currently without income and has diligently, albeit unsuccessfully, sought employment. She has attributed her difficulties in finding employment to "the sudden and unexpected nature" of respondent's actions, as well as the "emotional and psychological distress" these actions have caused her to suffer. While all of this may be true, it still begs the question of why she did not seek redress sooner. It only stands to reason that her economic situation would worsen over time. However, her continuing financial hardship does not change the fact that the time to have sought emergent relief was on or about November 4 or December 11, 2003, and not at this late date.

Of course, petitioner will still have an opportunity to make her case during a plenary hearing on the merits. Should she prevail, she may be entitled to reinstatement, back pay, and credit for time she would have been accruing in her principal's position. However, at this point in time, the record simply does not compel the granting of such relief on an emergent basis. I therefore CONCLUDE that petitioner has failed to demonstrate that she will suffer irreparable harm if the relief is not granted.

Nor has petitioner persuaded me that the legal right underlying her claim is settled. If anything, my preliminary research has failed to disclose any case law supporting her position that she was unlawfully demoted and reduced in compensation. Simply stated, when promoted to a different position with its own tenure track, the employee does not enjoy the protections of the Tenure Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:28-1 et seq., in the new position until he or she obtains tenure in that new position. That being the case, I CONCLUDE that the Board was well within its rights when it returned petitioner to her prior tenured position with a commensurate reduction in salary.

However, this does not mean that petitioner is not likely to prevail on her contention that she was forced to resign and therefore constructively discharged. She may be able to prove that Superintendent Kittrels made illusory promises of helping her secure a position with the Department of Education in order to get her to resign. However, the facts are so hotly disputed that I cannot make such a determination at this time. Therefore, based on the record before me, I simply CANNOT CONCLUDE that she will prevail on the merits.

Finally, when the equities and interests of the parties are balanced, it is not crystal clear that petitioner will suffer greater harm than the Board will suffer if the requested relief is not granted. As stated above, any harm that petitioner has suffered and may continue to suffer as a result of the Board's actions may be offset by reinstatement, an award of back pay and credit for time in position. On the other hand, the Board has stated that it does not currently have any open assistant principal positions and a "reshuffling" of positions to accommodate her rehiring so

This order on application for emergency relief may be adopted, modified or rejected by Commissioner of Education, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The final decision shall be issued without undue delay, but no later than forty-five (45) days following the entry of this order. If the Commissioner does not adopt, modify or reject this order within forty-five (45) days, this recommended order shall become a final decision on the issue of emergent relief in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

The audiocassette tape of the emergent hearing conducted at the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on March 29, 2004, and the recommended Order of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) have been reviewed.

Upon such review, the Assistant Commissioner, to whom this responsibility has been delegated pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:4-34c, concurs that petitioner has failed to satisfy the four-pronged standard set forth in Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982) for obtaining emergent relief. In accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6, a grant of emergent relief is considered an extraordinary remedy which may only be issued where petitioner has demonstrated that the relief is necessary to prevent irreparable harm, where the legal right underlying petitioner's claim is settled, where there is a likelihood of success on the merits and where the relative hardship to the moving party favors granting such relief. Crowe at 132-34.

Accordingly, the recommended Order of the ALJ is adopted for the reasons expressed therein.[1] Petitioner's request for emergent relief is, therefore, denied and this matter shall continue at the OAL for further proceedings on the merits of petitioner's claim as may be deemed necessary.

[1]The Assistant Commissioner notes that the ALJ incorrectly advised at hearing that the non-prevailing party in this motion could file an interlocutory appeal of his Order to the Commissioner. As correctly stated on page 7 of the ALJ's recommended Order, it is the Commissioner of Education, or his designee, who, by law, is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. (Order Denying Emergent Relief at 7) The Office of Administrative Law was created by the Legislature to conduct hearings and make recommended factual findings and determinations in contested cases to the agency heads, who are empowered by the Legislature to decide contested cases in accordance with the statutory duties that have been selectively delegated to them. In re Uniform Adm'v Procedure Rules, 90 N.J. 85, 91-94 (1982). Subsequent to the conduct of a hearing on emergent relief, therefore, the ALJ is required to forward a written order and any papers in support of or in opposition to the emergent relief application which were not previously filed with the agency and a sound recording of the oral argument of the application to the Commissioner for his review. See N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.6(i). SYNOPSIS

Petitioning custodian alleged the Board failed to pay his full salary without loss of sick time for work-related injury, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1.

The ALJ found that petitioner failed to file his petition within the 90-day period prescribed by N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(d)(1). The ALJ found that petitioner filed his petition approximately four and a half months after the Board's letter advising him that he had exhausted all his allotted sick days as of March 15 and would be on "non-pay status" until he returned to work. Petition was dismissed.

The Commissioner adopted the Initial Decision as his own.

[1] By Orders of Extension, the time limit within which to file this Initial Decision with the Department of Education was extended until February 15, 2004. Since February 15 fell on a Sunday, and State offices were closed February 16 in observance of Washington's Birthday, this Initial Decision is being issued on February 17, 2004.

CONSOLIDATED PROCEDURAL HISTORY AND DISCUSSION OF THE FACTS

On June 20, 2001, petitioner Raymond C. Huhn was employed as a custodian by respondent Board of Education of the Borough of Manville. A few months later, on November 7, 2001, he was injured in the course of his employment and remained out of work almost continuously through April 2002.

By letter dated April 8, 2002, respondent's School Business Administrator, Richard Reilly, advised petitioner that he had exhausted all of his allotted sick days as of March 15 and would be on "non-pay status" until he returned to work. Mr. Reilly went on to explain that according to respondent's workers' compensation carrier, petitioner had been cleared to return to work on a full time basis without further treatment on March 4, 2002. However, instead of returning to work, he had submitted another doctor's note[2] indicating that he would not be able to return until April 4, 2002. It was during this additional thirty-day leave of absence that petitioner exhausted his remaining sick leave.

Petitioner did not report for work as scheduled on April 5, 2002. Nor did he submit a new doctor's note indicating a need for additional sick leave or otherwise advise respondent that he would not be coming to work. Consequently, respondent invoked the fourteen-day termination clause in his contract, thereby ending his employment on April 22, 2002. By letter dated May 22, 2002, Superintendent of Schools Francis X. Heelan advised petitioner that the board of education had voted to confirm the termination of his employment effective April 22.

It was not until July 17, 2002, that petitioner filed his workers' compensation claim petition. Approximately one month later, petitioner's counsel filed with the Commissioner of Education a Petition of Appeal dated August 23, 2002 contending that respondent's action in withholding petitioner's salary effective March 15, 2002 violated N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1, which entitles an employee injured in the course of his employment to his full salary for up to one year.

[2] Mr. Reilly's letter states that petitioner "submitted another doctor's note (not related to workers' compensation)" indicating he was under the doctor's care and would be "unable to participate in work through Thursday, April 4, 2002." The record is devoid of any other information concerning the nature of petitioner's malady.

Respondent has now moved to dismiss the petition, arguing that petitioner failed to file the petition of appeal within the ninety-day-period prescribed by N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(d)(1). Petitioner, who does not dispute the factual time line set forth in respondent's letter brief, has responded that it would have been frivolous to file the petition any sooner because the Commissioner did not have the jurisdiction to hear it until the Workers' Compensation claim had been filed.

DISCUSSION OF THE LAW

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1, whenever one of its employees entitled to sick leave is out of work due to a work-related injury, a district board of education must pay the employee his full salary for the period of such absence for up to one calendar year without charging the absence to the employee's annual or accumulated sick leave. Should the board nevertheless charge these absences to the employee's annual or accumulated sick leave, the employee "must file a petition within 90 days of receipt of notice of the district board's action or of the action of the district board's agent, which has the effect of denying such benefits, notwithstanding that the Commissioner may hold the petition in abeyance pending determination by the Division of Workers' Compensation as to whether the underlying injury is work-related." N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(d)(1).

It is well settled that the proper forum for the question of whether a work-related accident is the cause of an injury is the Division of Workers' Compensation. Theodore v. Dover Bd. of Educ., 183 N.J. Super. 407, 416 (App. Div. 1982). Nevertheless, it is the Commissioner of Education who has "jurisdiction . . . [over] all controversies and disputes arising under the school laws." N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9. Therefore, "[w]hile the Commissioner will defer to a judge of compensation's temporary disability determination, it is the Commissioner of Education who usually decides whether and how the sick leave section, N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1, applies." Magaw v. Middletown Bd. of Educ., 323 N.J. Super. 1, 17 (App. Div. 1999).

The primary case in this area of the law is Verneret v. Board of Education of the City of Elizabeth, 95 *N.J.A.R.*2d (EDU) 134, in which the State Board of Education held that in those instances where claims for relief filed under N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1 are dependent upon a determination of whether an injury arose out of and in the course of employment within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 34:15-7, the Commissioner of Education should refrain from exercising his jurisdiction pending a determination of that issue by the Division of Workers' Compensation. Of course, a decision to refrain from considering a claim presupposes the existence of an underlying claim requiring a decision, and N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(d)(1) sets forth certain filing requirements that must be met by petitioners seeking to bring a claim for benefits under N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1 before the Commissioner. Specifically, it requires the employee to file a petition within ninety days of an adverse determination by the local board, even though the Commissioner may well hold the petition in abeyance pending a final determination by a judge of compensation.

Since N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(d)(1) expressly applies to claims filed pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1, "[t]he fact that the Commissioner has the discretion to defer exercising his jurisdiction in order to permit the Division of Workers' Compensation to determine whether an injury was work-related does not . . . excuse a petitioner's failure to comply with the filing requirements . . . when seeking benefits under the education law." Verneret v. Board of Education of the City of Elizabeth, supra, 95 *N.J.A.R.*2d at 135 (emphasis added). Therefore, "any petitioner claiming benefits under N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1 must file a petition with the Commissioner of Education within 90 days of the district board's action which has the effect of denying such benefits to petitioner." Ibid.

Nevertheless, petitioner argues that "the Commissioner of Education does not even have jurisdiction to entertain an application for sick days/one year's salary unless and until a compensation claim petition is filed. In the present matter, Mr. Huhn filed his claim petition with the Workers' Compensation Court on July 17, 2002. Consequently, the Commissioner of Education would not even have had jurisdiction prior to that date to entertain Mr. Huhn's application for a full year's salary and restoration of sick days." Petitioner's Brief, page 3. In other words, petitioner asserts that he was under no obligation to file his petition for relief under N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1 until his workers' compensation claim had been filed with, if not decided by the Division of Workers' Compensation.

In support of his position, petitioner cites the Commissioner's Final Decision in Schmidtke v. Board of Education of the Township of Woodbridge, No. 361-00 (November 8, 2000). In Schmidtke, the petitioner alleged that she had been out of work from April 22, 1998 to August 12, 1998, because of an illness suffered after a student placed a drug in her coffee mug. Respondent reported the petitioner's absences to its workers' compensation insurance carrier and would not let her return to work until the carrier's doctor had cleared her. For whatever reason, petitioner did not file a workers' compensation claim and respondent charged petitioner's absences to her annual and accumulated sick leave.

In affirming the Administrative Law Judge's dismissal of Schmidtke's petition based upon her failure to file a workers' compensation claim,[3] the Commissioner relied on Russo v. Burlington Twp. Bd. of Ed. (Commission decision September 29, 1997), in which a district board moved to dismiss a Petition of Appeal after petitioner's workers' compensation case had been dismissed for lack of prosecution. Noting that the factual circumstances in both cases were similar, in that Russo and Schmidtke had each voluntarily chosen not to pursue a claim with the Division of Workers' Compensation, the Commissioner adopted the holding in Russo that:

> Both the statutory provisions and the decision in Verneret envision that a petitioner seeking an award pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1 will in fact present a Workers' Compensation claim and prosecute same. Petitioner cannot be awarded any damages under 18A:30-2.1 until the compensation claim has been determined because under the statute the Board is entitled to a reduction for the Workers' Compensation award made for temporary disability and because under Vernet [sic] the question of whether the injury arose out of and in the course of his employment is to be determined by a proceeding in the Division of Workers' Compensation. As petitioner has voluntarily chosen not to pursue his Workers' Compensation claim, his claim under the school law sick leave statute will be dismissed with prejudice. (Russo Initial Decision at 3).
> [Schmidtke v. Board of Education of the Township of Woodbridge, supra, Final Decision at 11.]

Given its repeated references to Verneret, which expressly holds that "any petitioner claiming benefits under N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1 must file a petition with the Commissioner of Education within 90 days of the district board's action which has the effect of denying such benefits to petitioner," Verneret v. Board of Education of the City of Elizabeth, supra, 95 *N.J.A.R.*2d at 135, petitioner's reliance on Schmidtke would appear to be misplaced. Rather, a more convincing argument would have been that N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1 and N.J.S.A. 34:15-1 et seq. must be read in pari materia, thereby granting the Division of Workers' Compensation the predominant interest in considering the matter.

Statutes may be considered to pertain to the same subject matter if they:

> . . . relate to the same person or thing, or to the same class of persons or things or have the same purpose or object. As between characterization of the subject matter with which a statute deals and characterization of its object or purpose, the latter appears to be the most important factor in determining whether different statutes are closely enough related to justify interpreting one in light of the other.

This rule of statutory construction is most applicable to statutes that relate to the same subject matter and were passed during the same session of the Legislature, or where the later of the two statutes refers to the earlier.

N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1 states that "[s]alary or wage payments provided in this section shall be made for absence during the waiting period and during the period the employee received or was eligible to receive a temporary disability benefit under chapter 15 of Title 34, Labor and Workmen's Compensation, of the Revised Statutes. Any amount of salary or wages paid or payable to the employee pursuant to this section shall be reduced by the amount of any workmen's compensation award made for temporary disability." Although this statute makes specific reference to the Workers' Compensation Act, "it is identity or similarity of purpose or object that most convincingly justifies resort to the rule of in pari materia as an aid in statutory construction. State v. DiCarlo, 67 N.J. 321, 325 (1975).

N.J.S.A. 34:15-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1 are not part of the same overall statutory scheme, much less part of the same subtitle, and their purposes are different. The purpose of the Workers' Compensation Act, N.J.S.A. 34:15-1 et seq., has generally been held to provide for the security of employees who are injured in the course of their employment. DeMonaco v. Benton, 18 N.J. 352 (1955). The purpose of N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1, on the other hand, has been seen as providing for and assisting with the administration of public elementary and secondary education. Williams v. Deptford Bd. of Ed., 6 N.J.A.R. 40 (1982). Given the differences in their identities and purposes, a court should "interpret and enforce the legislative will as written and not according to some supposed unexpressed intention." In re Bergwall, 173 N.J. Super. 431 (App. Div. 1980) (Lora, J.A.D., dissenting), rev'd substantially for the reasons set forth in Judge Lora's dissenting opinion, 85 N.J. 382 (1981). Therefore, the statutes should not be construed in pari materia.

As part of his oversight authority over the administration of public elementary and secondary education, the Commissioner of Education has jurisdiction over all controversies and disputes that may arise under the school laws. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9. Included within this jurisdiction is the authority to decide how, if at all, the sick leave section, N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1, is applied. Magaw v. Middletown Bd. of Educ., supra, 323 N.J. Super. at 17. The fact that the Commissioner has the discretion to defer exercising his jurisdiction in a matter such as this in order to permit the Division of Workers' Compensation to determine whether an injury was work-related, does not mean that he lacks the jurisdiction to consider it ab initio. Therefore, any petitioner claiming benefits under N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1 must still file a petition with the Commissioner of Education within 90 days of the district board's action which has the effect of denying such benefits to petitioner. Verneret v. Board of Education of the City of Elizabeth, supra, 95 *N.J.A.R.*2d at 135.

It is undisputed that the Petition of Appeal was dated August 23, 2002, approximately four and a half months after Mr. Reilly's April 8, 2002 letter advising petitioner that he had exhausted all of his allotted sick days as of March 15 and would be on "non-pay status" until he returned to work. Mr. Reilly's letter clearly advised petitioner that his sick leave had been applied to his post-injury absences and constituted notice that his request for benefits under N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1 had been denied. Upon receipt of that letter, he had ninety days – or until on or about July 8, 2002 – to file his petition, but failed to do so within that allotted period of time. Petitioner has therefore lost his right to pursue this action against the board.

DECISION AND ORDER

Based upon the foregoing, I FIND that petitioner failed to file his Petition of Appeal for benefits under N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1 within the ninety-day period prescribed by N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(d)(1) and therefore CONCLUDE that respondent's Motion to Dismiss the petition should be GRANTED. Accordingly, it is ORDERED that the Petition of Appeal be and is hereby DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning "Abbott" Board of Education appealed the Department of Education's determination with respect to funding for the district's 2004-05 preschool program.

Initially, the ALJ determined that this proceeding should encompass issues arising from Board determinations on the budget requests of its contracted private preschool providers, since those determinations were made in conformance with Department directives and it is in the best interest of all involved to resolve the district's preschool budget in a single proceeding. Of the issues in dispute, only three remained following settlement negotiations between the parties. On the remaining issues, the ALJ rejected one private provider's request for a second custodian and two private providers' requests for additional compensation for office staff, but granted, based on the particular circumstances of this matter, that full rather than prorated salary amounts should be funded for teaching staff members assigned to smaller-than-permitted class sizes.

The Commissioner adopted the ALJ's decision as his own.

This synopsis is not part of the Commissioner's decision. It has been prepared for the convenience of the reader. It has been neither reviewed nor approved by the Commissioner.

BEFORE JOHN SCHUSTER III, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

This is an appeal by the City of Vineland Board of Education (District), an Abbott school district, from the adequacy of state aid granted by the State Department of Education (Department), to fund its early childhood plan for the 2004-2005 school year. The general issue to be resolved in this matter is whether the Department has met its obligation to adequately fund the District's preschool program.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The District filed a Verified Petition of Appeal with the Department on January 23, 2004, alleging insufficient funding of its preschool program mandated by the Abbott v. Burke line of decisions. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on January 30, 2004 as a contested case. The parties, through their counsel, submitted comprehensive prehearing submissions outlining their respective positions. The hearing was held on February 23, 25 and 27, 2004 and at the conclusion of the hearing, the record was closed.

At the commencement of the hearing, an application was made to the Court to incorporate in this hearing the requests by certain providers (private preschool facilities who contract with the District to satisfy its Early Childhood Program requirements), to amend their approved budgets to more accurately reflect the costs incurred in educating the preschool children in their program. The Department objected to this request because the requests were not set forth in the pleadings and since providers only deal with Districts and not the Department, it was alleged they have no standing to appear before this Court, at least not in this proceeding. The Department also argues the providers have a procedure which is set forth in the Administrative Code for appeals to the Commissioner of Education and that is the route that should have or should be followed.

I found the providers grievances should be resolved in this hearing. For these purposes, the providers are aggrieved parties since their budget requests were, in certain cases, lowered by the District during the initial review process and in other cases modified by the Department. I found they have standing because in that process, the District stood in the place of the Department and, in effect, implemented the position of the Department as published in its guidelines for the provider budgetary process. I also recognized the short deadline for the District to bring this action, which did not allow it to incorporate the claims or potential claims of the providers. In addition, I believe the providers could suffer an economic injustice if their financial issues were not resolved early on in the process, as they could not adequately plan their programs in advance. This could have the dire result of them running out of money before the end of the contract school year. If a separate action were to be filed by each provider, it would take additional time, even with consolidation, to review and would not foster judicial economy. I FIND it a better course to resolve the entire controversy having to do with Vineland's Early Childhood Program in one hearing for those reasons and since I found no prejudice to the Department in doing so.

RESOLVED ISSUES

The District, in its specifications, sought relief in eight areas in addition to percentage increases for salaries and benefits. As a result of the diligent effort of the professionals and counsel for the District and the Department, all of the issues have been resolved. The parties asked that I memorialize those resolutions in this Decision. They are as follows:

1. The District's request for an additional $76,085 allocation for playground resurfacing has been reduced to $11,356 and the Department has agreed to increase its approved amount by that much.

2. The District sought an additional $100,000 over the $9,331 previously approved for office materials and supplies. The parties agreed that an additional $5,669 would be an appropriate increase for this anticipated expenditure.

3. The District requested an additional $33,312 for preschool intervention and referral team salaries. After reviewing the supporting documents associated with this request, the Department agreed it was reasonable and necessary. Therefore, the Department agreed to provide this additional amount of funding.

4. The District sought a total of $37,643 in salaries and benefits for an additional member of its clerical staff. The Department determined that pursuant to regulations, the District was of the size that the District's request for an additional clerical person was correct. Therefore, the Department approved this request, as it was permitted and reasonable.

5. The District sought an increase in its rent allocation for four additional classrooms in the amount of $27,600. Recognizing that growth is almost a certainty, but the full extent of the student population increase is unknown and the fact the District cannot by law secure space without having the funds to do so, the parties agreed to an increase in this line item allocation equivalent to two classrooms or $13,800 in funding. As part of the resolution of this issue, it is now acknowledged by the District that in future requests for additional funding for space, the Department will require an identification of a facility, best available information on student enrollment and details on associated costs and other reasonable and relevant information for the Department to make a meaningful decision.

6. The District in its specifications sought a special request for salary and benefits for a food service worker. The Department denied this request and same was withdrawn by the District.

7. The District sought $12,960 to fund summer curriculum work by way of a special request. The Department, by way of compromise and recognizing its current need, agreed to supplement its funding in that amount but on the caveat that it would no longer provide this funding beyond the 2004-2005 school year.

8. The District sought the substantial amount of $417,332 as direct education costs of its special needs children in the preschool program. This is not a usual expense of the Department under its Early Childhood Program. However, the District made the request because the usual source of this special education funding had not released its figures as of the filing of the petition and the District had to protect from being under funded in this crucial area. During the course of the hearing, funding was confirmed from its usual source and the District's request was withdrawn.

The Department and the providers also reached resolution on a number of contested issues. Those resolutions were reached in a large part because Department personnel took steps to immediately review and analyze new information supplied by the providers during the course of the hearing. The Court wishes to extend its sincere appreciation for the extra effort shown by those employees. They are a credit to the Department of Education.

1. A settlement was reached with the All Kids First School, which culminates in a budget revision indicating food service workers will be funded at 100%. Therefore, the funding previously authorized in the amount of $19,356 will be increased to $36,394 because there is no other funding source available for this required program. The parties also agreed the Budget Worksheet would be amended so under the Support Costs section one clerical person, one assistant director and one facilities person will be added provided the addition of the costs associated with these positions will not result in allowed administrative costs to exceed 27.25% of the Abbott Educational Program costs.

2. Provider Little Lamb Preschool requested additional funding for office materials and supplies. The Department agreed to additional funding for this line item in the budget worksheet, so that the total non-adjusted amount would be $3,796. There was also a request to increase the maintenance cost line item for necessary cleaning supplies and the parties agreed the budget worksheet would be adjusted to reflect the total non-adjusted amount to be $10,750.

3. DiBiase Preschool sought additional funding for needed office materials and supplies. The parties agreed the total approved non-adjusted budgeted amount for this category would be amended to $5,968. In addition, the parties agreed to amend the budget worksheet to show an increase in the food service worker's salary and benefits from $5,815 to $13,192.

4. The Courtyard School, another Vineland provider, and the Department agreed to amend the budget worksheet to reflect an increase in office materials and supplies to $5,514 as the non-adjusted worksheet total.

FINDINGS OF FACT AND LEGAL ANALYSIS

The Department has the obligation to oversee and support the preschool program for all Abbott districts in the State. This includes providing adequate funding for developing and administering an effective pre-kindergarten educational program. Vineland is a municipality that has been given an Abbott classification and thus it is required to have a preschool program approved by the Department. Because of a shortage of space to educate its over 1,100 preschoolers, it must rely on private preschools to assist in this educational process. The providers of that service contract with the District and their individual budgets are developed with the Districts and ultimately approved by the Department. From the testimony presented at hearing, I FIND the District applied Department guidelines and, in essence, required the providers to submit budgets under protest as to certain line items and/or categories. As previously stated, many of those issues have been resolved and what follows are those that were not.

The DiBiase Preschool has requested additional funds for a full-time daytime custodian. Kathleen DiBiase, its Owner-Director, testified the school has 90 students in six classrooms, as well as lavatories and offices. There is a nighttime custodian that performs heavy-duty cleaning. She stated that someone is needed during the day for outside maintenance and dealing with everyday cleaning of accidents and spills that are common in preschools. Ms. DiBiase testified the students are in the school until 5:00 p.m., so the main building cleaning cannot be accomplished before that time. Eric Rodney, Ph.D., an Education Program Development Specialist for the Department, testified this request was not approved because it was initially denied by the District and a salary for a full-time custodian is already provided. He stated it is the Department's belief this requested position would be duplicative in task to the existing custodial position. I FIND that with proper organizational management, one full-time custodian should be sufficient to provide the necessary cleaning functions of a six classroom school. Options are available such as split shift employment or revisions in working hours, which I FIND would meet the needs of the school without the necessity of an additional hire.

A number of providers have sought an increase in budget funding for their office support staff for the 2004-2005 school year. This results from the Department, for the first time, capping the salary at $24,350. Dr. Rodney testified this was not an arbitrary decision by the Department and is based on sound reasoning. First, the salary chosen ($24,350) was derived from State labor statistics (R-3) as the mean wage for general office clerks. Second, this amount exceeded the salary paid by the District to one holding a comparable position. He stated that as the Department sees it, the position is that of a general clerk and should require no additional skills or perform additional duties, as those are covered on other budgeted line items. The Courtyard School was represented by its Director, Mr. Lewis D'Ippolito. He stated he is seeking $8,126 additional funding on this issue, which includes withholding taxes. His reasons are that there is a substantial difference between a general office clerk and an administrative support person with substantial experience. He testified his office support person is not only a clerk/typist, but also is the parent liaison, oversees functional security, performs accounting functions, maintains all the files, works alone and is the first line of interaction in the facility of 24 employees. Mr. D'Ippolito stated she works from 9:00 to 5:00 everyday. He stated he needs these additional funds in order for her to earn the reasonable salary of $31,856, which is 2.8% higher than the current year. The Courtyard School educates 90 students. Ms. Ruth Piatt, the Owner/Director of Little Lamb Preschool, is also looking for additional funding on this issue. She is requesting $7,039 over cap, as her clerical staff person is now earning $30,534 with a 2.8% increase will earn $31,389. She testified she examined statistics on Office and Administrative Support Occupations, as published by the New Jersey Department of Labor (P-5), and she found that persons performing the closest functions to her office employee earn in the $29,400 to $30,600 range. These are for the Bookkeeping/Payroll Clerk job titles. Ms. Piatt stated her office support person has 12 years of experience with Little Lamb and she does many functions in order to prepare the records for the accountants and payroll service. She stated Little Lamb has 75 students. I FIND the Department was not arbitrary in capping its budget line item for office clerk at $24,350. I recognize the importance to any organization of good office support personnel and both Courtyard and Little Lamb have indicated they have exceptional and experienced people filling that position. I also understand their dedication in pursuing this matter because they each seem to have come to depend heavily upon them in making their daily operations run smoothly. I also FIND the Department's position to be reasonable in that it looked at the position from a strictly business viewpoint, absent of emotion or loyalty, and determined the cap of $24,350 was a reasonable amount of salary for the function which should be performed. I have examined the Department of Labor (DOL) definitions and I FIND secretaries are to "perform routine clerical and administrative functions, such as drafting correspondence, scheduling appointments, organizing files, or providing information to callers. . ." (R-4). DOL lists the secretary mean salary at $32,275. The DOL states the duties of a general office clerk as one which is "too varied and diverse to be classified in any specific office clerical occupation, requiring limited knowledge of office management systems and procedures . . . and may include a combination of answering telephones, bookkeeping, typing or word processing, stenography, office machine operation and filing" (R-4). I FIND the Department's position to be reasonable under all the circumstances. That is not to say the persons employed are not worth their entire salary, but is not a question of what they do but what they should be doing. The Department sees the duties of the office support staff as strictly clerical in nature and not secretarial or as an administrative assistant. I FIND $24,350 to be a reasonable salary for the office clerk position, especially recognizing the number of students in each facility. I expect that I would have made a different finding if there were 150 students being educated because I believe the position in that instance would require more skills of an administrative nature.

The next issue for adjudication deals with the Department's decision to prorate salary and benefits of teachers and classroom assistants in provider classrooms where less than 15 students are taught. In those instances, the Department would only approve a fraction of the full salary and benefits with the formula being the number of students in the class as the numerator and 15 being the denominator. So if a class had 13 students, the Department would only approve thirteen fifteenths of the full salary. Dan Smith, the District's Abbott fiscal manager, testified the affected providers are Tiny Tots Preschool, which has one class of 14 students and is requesting $7,751 (P-9), the Vineland YMCA, which has one class of 14 students and is requesting $8,037 (P-10), the Vineland Nazarene Learning Center, which has one class of 13 students and is requesting $10,505 (P-11) and Granny's Child Care/Preschool, which has 2 classes with 15 students and 2 classes with 12 students. This request is for an additional $42,325 (P-12). Mr. Smith stated he was aware of the Department's concerns and policy of encouraging maximum class size, but he was not aware the Department decided not to fully fund staff costs in all approved classrooms in the 2004-2005 school year. Kimberly Friddell, the executive director of Vineland's Early Child Program (ECP) also testified. Prior to assuming her current position, she was employed by the Department as a manger in the ECP division. She stated the District and the providers are currently at full capacity; in other words, there is no additional space to house any additional children or use larger classrooms. Ms. Friddell testified the smaller enrollment in some classes is because the regulations have changed over the years and now larger classrooms are required to house the same amount of students as what was previously permitted. Pursuant to the regulations, some of those smaller classrooms are permitted for use by a "grandfather" clause, but they can now only contain a smaller number of students. She testified the District is in the process of planning for a new school which will provide additional classrooms and the District is always looking to convert vacant rental space to classrooms in order to conform to current regulations, but as of yet it has been unsuccessful in formalizing an arrangement for new space. Ms. Friddell further testified that pursuant to Department policy, undersized classrooms that were grandfathered could be used in the 2004-2005 year upon securing a waiver, but after next year they would not be permitted. She also stated waivers were routinely given on a showing of no conforming space being available. She stated the ECP requires certified teachers and assistants who must work full-time. The program is designed so these teachers are paid comparable salaries with District teachers because if this was not the case, private school teachers would flee to the public education system leaving providers without teachers to run their program. She also stated whether a class has 15 students or a lesser amount, the instructors must be paid for the full day at full salary and unless these line items are fully funded by the Department, there is no other source of funds to pay the teachers.

Ms. Friddell testified she was aware of the Department's policy of removing undersized classrooms from the ECP. This became clear in its October 25, 2002 memo (Ra138), which called for a phase out of these classrooms over three years. She stated her understanding is the 2004-2005 school year falls within the phase out period. She also said there is no mandate or code requirement that undersigned classrooms could not be used in the 2004-2005 year nor is there authority to prorate salaries for the teachers in those classrooms. The first indication the Department intended to prorate salaries came in a review letter from the Department to the District, dated January 15, 2004 (Ra649). That letter states in applicable part: "Budgets with classrooms under the 15 student capacity have been prorated accordingly." The only logical reason Ms. Friddell could envision for this policy change (from phase-out to prorate funding) was set forth in Ms. Eck's prehearing submission statement to the Court, in which she writes on page 13: "The pro-ration of teacher's salaries should provide an incentive for the district and provider to find classroom space that will accommodate 15 students per class and therefore serve a greater percentage of Vineland's eligible preschool population."

Dr. Eric Rodney testified on behalf of the Department on the salary proration issue. He stated this is a new policy of the Department starting in the 2004-2005 school year. He testified this is being done so the program would be more cost effective. Dr. Rodney stated he has requested a plan from the District indicating how they are going to accomplish the phasing out of undersized classrooms, but as yet he has not received same. He acknowledged he wrote to the District on December 15, 2003 (Ra186) and in that letter to Ms. Friddell he stated: "The 2004-2005 school year will be the last year where Abbott funding is approved for classrooms unable to accommodate 15 children." I FIND there is no indication in that letter that salaries were going to be prorated. Dr. Rodney also admitted he did not know how the affected teachers would be paid if proration is implemented. He also confirmed the Districts were never alerted to proration as a possibility. In addition, he testified, the provider, All Kids First Preschool did not have its teacher salaries prorated, even though they have less than 15 students in one or more classes; the District has until the end of the 2004-2005 school year to correct the undersized classroom issue; he expects Vineland will comply by the deadline; he knows Vineland currently has no other space to educate these children; he acknowledges Vineland lost a 3 classroom provider this year, which housed 15 students in each classroom. He also acknowledged that incentive to eliminate undersized classrooms is the reason of salary proration; he does not think it applies in the case of Vineland because they have no other space and therefore no other choices at this point; there is no regulation that authorizes this policy and the Department is not following its own regulations or guidance manual on this issue since they are silent on proration.

Preschool programs are described in N.J.A.C. 6A:10A-2.2 and subparagraph (a)3 states: "The district board of education shall provide one teacher and one aide for every 15 children. Class size shall not exceed 15 children." There is no legal authority which directs how funding should be handled in classrooms with less than 15 students. It is more likely than not this situation will arise either because of undersized approved space, as is in this case, or because when pupil enrollment occurs, it is most unlikely the total number of students will be an amount divisible by fifteen. Without legal authority as a guide, I FIND the issue to be whether the Department's policy on proration for the 2004-2005 year is a reasonable attempt at improving the ECP. As applied to the Vineland District, I FIND it is not. The undersized classrooms have been approved by the Department for use in the 2004-2005 school year knowing they cannot legally accommodate 15 students. The Department has made it clear it will not permit future use of those facilities. The stated purpose of instituting this eleventh hour policy is to provide an incentive to discontinue the providers with undersized classrooms beyond this year, but I FIND this to be ineffective as applied to Vineland for two reasons: First, there are no options available to Vineland for next year except to use those undersized classrooms, and second, after next year those classrooms, according to previous Department edict, will no longer be available under any circumstances. Since there is no immediate action the District can take, an incentive to do something it cannot do is of no value. Therefore, I FIND applying the proration of salary policy to the Vineland District does not serve its intended purpose and should not be enforced.

CONCLUSION AND ORDER

I CONCLUDE the settlements reached between the Department and the District and the various providers as set forth in this decision satisfy the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and I ORDER the parties to comply with the settlement terms.

I further CONCLUDE the DiBiase Preschool's request for funding to secure a second custodian is not necessary to provide a thorough and efficient ECP and I ORDER this request be DENIED.

I further CONCLUDE the requests by the Countyard School and Little Lamb Preschool for additional funding to compensate their respective office support staff is not necessary to provide a thorough and efficient ECP and I ORDER these requests be DENIED.

I further CONCLUDE the requests by Tiny Tots Preschool, the Vineland YMCA, the Vineland Nazarene Learning Center and the Granny's Child Care/Preschool for full funding of its teaching staff in undersized classrooms in the respective amounts set forth in this decision is reasonable and a necessary expense in order for them to meet their contractual obligations with their teachers and the District. I therefore ORDER the Department to fund all teachers in those provider schools at 100% full teachers and assistants salaries, benefits and taxes as requested in the exhibits enumerated in this decision.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within the time allowed under the existing orders of the New Jersey Supreme Court and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Notwithstanding the provisions of any rule to the contrary, exceptions to Initial Decisions of the Office of Administrative Law in Abbott District budget appeal matters shall be filed within five (5) days of the date of mailing of the Initial Decision, and reply exceptions shall be filed within two (2) days of receipt of exceptions. File written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

Due to his son's unsuccessful tryout for the 2000-01 Delran Middle School basketball team, petitioning parent claimed ethics violations and alleged the Board violated its Pupil Records Policy through inadequate maintenance of his son's file and alleged altering of the file. The Board contended petitioner's claims were time-barred.

The ALJ concluded that the petition was not timely filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(d). In that there were no genuine issues of material fact regarding the 90-day limitation period, the ALJ determined that the matter was amenable to summary decision The ALJ found that even though pupil record violations were raised by petitioner in letters dated July 26 and September 3, 2002, he did not file with the Commissioner until April 4, 2003, well out of time. The ALJ determined that respondents were entitled to prevail as a matter of law, N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b).

The Commissioner adopted the Initial Decision granting summary decision to respondents with modification. In his exceptions, petitioner conceded that violations raised in his letters of July 25 and September 3, 2002 were untimely, but asserted that violations of the Pupil Records Policy newly discovered in January 2003 were timely. Upon examination of the newly discovered documents, the Commissioner determined that these documents were not violations of the Pupil Records Policy. The Commissioner also noted that the record closed on January 12, 2004; thus, petitioner's submissions on February 20, 2004 were outside the record and the Commissioner declined to consider these submissions. Moreover, with respect to petitioner's claim that respondents did not provide his requests for discovery, the Commissioner found that there was nothing in the record to indicate that petitioner exercised his rights under N.J.A.C. 1:1-10.4(d) within the timeframe provided to compel discovery when this matter was at the OAL.

BEFORE JOSEPH F. FIDLER, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner R.P.'s primary assertion in his verified Petition of Appeal is that respondents violated the Board's Pupil Records Policy. The genesis for this assertion is student N.A.'s unsuccessful tryout for the 2000-2001 Delran Middle School basketball team. R.P. filed his Petition of Appeal with the New Jersey Commissioner of Education on April 4, 2003, and respondents filed an Answer on May 2, 2003. On May 15, 2003, the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case, and a prehearing conference was held on October 21, 2003.

Respondents have moved for summary decision on the ground that the Petition of Appeal was not timely filed, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(d), and must be dismissed. Petitioner responded in opposition to the motion, and respondent Board thereafter filed a reply to petitioner's papers. The last papers on the motion were received on January 12, 2004, and the record closed on that date.

DISCUSSION

From my review of the parties' submissions, I FIND that there is no genuine dispute concerning the facts material to resolution of the motion for summary decision. Student N.A.'s unsuccessful tryout for the 2000-2001 Delran Middle School basketball team prompted a complaint by L.E.A. in April 2001 to the Office for Civil Rights, United States Department of Education. He alleged in part that the school district discriminated against N.A. on the basis of perceived disability. After investigation, the Office of Civil Rights closed its file effective March 20, 2002. The OCR determined that there was insufficient evidence to find a violation of Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 or the Americans With Disabilities Act of 1990.

By letter to Superintendent Sharp dated July 26, 2002, petitioner L.E.A. advised that he had reviewed the district's policies and regulations regarding pupil records. L.E.A. alleged that, based upon his review, it was apparent N.A.'s file had been inadequately maintained. He also asserted that, in the context of the earlier complaint to the Office of Civil Rights, N.A.'s file had been altered to suit the needs of the school district. By letter to Superintendent Sharp dated September 3, 2002, L.E.A. alleged that there had been conduct in obstruction of the OCR investigation, ethical transgressions, and violations regarding N.A.'s pupil records.

On October 11, 2002, L.E.A. filed a complaint with the New Jersey School Ethics Commission, alleging that respondents violated the School Ethics Act in connection with their handling of the USDOE civil rights complaint. L.E.A. asserted in that complaint that respondents' ethics violations occurred during the investigation period from the end of October 2001 through July 8, 2002, and central among the claimed violations was the alleged improper use of N.A.'s pupil records. On November 14, 2002, respondents submitted their response to the complaint, denying the alleged ethics violations and noting that access to student files is not a School Ethics Act issue. At its meeting of January 28, 2003, the Ethics Commission found no probable cause to credit the allegations and voted to dismiss the complaint. The Commission adopted this decision by resolution at its meeting of May 1, 2003.

In the present Petition of Appeal, filed April 4, 2003, L.E.A. alleges that N.A. did not receive a complete and unbiased investigation of the 2000-2001 basketball tryouts and claimed ADA violations. He further alleges that the district's business agent and the Board's attorney committed numerous violations of the pupil record policy during the course of the Office of Civil Rights investigation. L.E.A. also alleges that Principal Duda, who was custodian of records, helped the business agent and the Board's attorney violate the pupil record policy during the federal investigation. L.E.A. included among the attachments to the Petition his letters to the Superintendent of July 26 and September 3, 2002, describing alleged violations of the district's pupil record policy in connection with the OCR investigation that was closed March 20, 2002.

Respondents contend that petitioner's claims are time-barred, and therefore must be dismissed. I agree. Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(d), a petition of appeal must be filed "no later than the 90th day from the date of receipt of the notice of a final order, ruling or other action by the district board of education, individual party, or agency, which is the subject of the requested contested case hearing." The actions by respondents which are the subject of the present contested case are those alleged pupil records violations that were raised by petitioner in his letters to Superintendent Sharp dated July 26 and September 3, 2002, and described in his complaint filed with the School Ethics Commission on October 11, 2002. Since L.E.A.'s Petition of Appeal was not filed with the Commissioner until April 4, 2003, it was well out of time and must be dismissed.

Petitioner's arguments in opposition to the motion are not persuasive. He cites no authority for the propositions that respondents or the School Ethics Commission had an affirmative obligation to advise him as to the proper forum for his claims or as to the existence or running of the 90-day limitation on filing. Strict application of the 90-day rule is well settled and there are no exceptional circumstances present in this matter that might justify its relaxation. See, for example, Kaprow v. Board of Educ. of Berkeley Tp., 131 N.J. 572 (1993). It is clear that petitioner had notice adequate to trigger the 90-day limitation period by July 26, 2002, because in his letter to the Superintendent of that date, he described his awareness of the existence of facts that would enable him to claim pupil records violations. He further evidenced that he had adequate notice by his letter of September 3, 2002, and by his complaint to the School Ethics Commission filed October 11, 2002. Nor does that prior litigation serve as a basis for relaxation of the 90-day limitation. See, Riely v. Hunterdon Central Bd. of Educ., 173 N.J. Super. 109 (App. Div. 1980).

There are no genuine issues of material fact regarding application of the 90-day limitation period. For the reasons set forth above, I CONCLUDE that respondents have demonstrated that the Petition of Appeal was not timely filed, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(d). Accordingly, I further CONCLUDE that respondents are entitled to prevail as a matter of law, N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b). Therefore, respondents' Motion for Summary Decision is GRANTED and the Petition of Appeal is DISMISSED. I so ORDER.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Exceptions were submitted by petitioner in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 and were duly considered by the Commissioner in reaching his determination herein.[1]

In his exceptions, petitioner acknowledges that the triggering of the 90-day limitation is valid, but asserts that "each violation of Pupil Records stands as a single [offense] and the 90-day limitation criterion must be applied to each incident." (Petitioner's Exceptions at 1) In this regard, petitioner claims that, in response to his request to the Superintendent in a letter dated July 26, 2002 to review all files (with respect to his son), the Superintendent notified him by letter of February 3, 2003 that he had been permitted access to all the files on January 17, 2003.[2] (Ibid.) Petitioner points out that he does not control access to a student's file and the 90-day limitation applied to these circumstances allows respondents to withhold access to the student's file and then claim immunity under the 90-day rule. (Ibid.)

[1]Petitioner's exceptions were filed on March 4, 2004. On March 15, 2004, respondents filed a reply, claiming that petitioner's exceptions had not been received in the Board's offices until March 5, 2004. (Respondents' Reply at 1) Given respondents' claim that the petitioner's exceptions were not received until March 5, 2004, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4(d), N.J.A.C. 1:1-1.4 and N..J.A.C. 6A:3 1.2, respondents' reply was due on March 12, 2004. In that respondents' reply was not filed until March 15, 2004, it was not timely filed; thus, it was not considered by the Commissioner.

Noting that he filed his appeal on April 4, 2003, petitioner avers that pupil record violations he discovered within the files not previously viewed cannot be considered with the violations found in the central file in July 2002. (Ibid.) Petitioner claims that a letter he found in the Superintendent's file in January 2003, Exhibit J in the petition, is an example of a newly discovered violation. (Id. at 2) That letter, petitioner contends, shows the Board Secretary's receipt of a third-party disclosure which the Board Secretary then disclosed to respondents' attorney and other individuals in violation of the District's Pupil Records Policy. (Ibid.) Petitioner further points to a letter sent in conjunction with the transmission of his son's file on October 17, 2001 to the U.S. Department of Education, which he alleges constitutes another violation because "this letter was not submitted." (Ibid.)

Petitioner also contends that he is entitled to a copy of the student's file upon request, and implies that several discovery requests, including a request for a copy of the student's complete file, made to respondents' attorney from April 4, 2003 through February 19, 2004 were not provided. (Ibid.) Petitioner suggests this failure to provide the student's file during discovery could be considered "an obstruction." [3] (Ibid.) Additionally, petitioner avers that a letter from the U.S. Department of Education to respondent's attorney, dated June 25, 2001, was never placed in the student's file, and, thus is another violation of pupil

[2] A review of the Superintendent's letter of February 3, 2003 to which petitioner refers (Petition, Exhibit O) indicates that it is a response to petitioner's letter of January 17, 2003, and that it confirms that petitioner had reviewed the files in question on January 24, 2003, not on January 17, 2003 as it appears from petitioner's exceptions.

[3] Petitioner claims he brought this to the attention of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) by letters of November 12, 2003 and December 14, 2003. (Petitioner's Exceptions at 2)

records, asserting that "a violation that occurs during discovery is admissible at the hearing." (Ibid.)

Finally, petitioner states that he submitted evidence to the ALJ on February 20, 2004, 30 days prior to the scheduled hearing, to prove that respondents violated the District's Pupil Records Policy, and that such evidence clearly delineates violations which were discovered within 90 days prior to filing his petition. (Ibid.) Petitioner notes that he is not asking for relaxation of the 90-day filing requirement, but only that it be applied equitably to the evidence submitted. In conclusion, petitioner concedes that respondents are entitled to a partial summary decision, but contends that respondents are not entitled to a complete summary decision. (Ibid.)

Initially, upon a careful and independent review of the record, the Initial Decision and petitioner's exceptions in this matter, the Commissioner concurs with the conclusion by the ALJ that: 1) the Petition of Appeal in this matter was not timely filed, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(d); and 2) respondents are entitled to summary judgment in this matter in that a) there are no general issues of material fact regarding application of the 90-day limitation for the filing of an appeal, and b) respondents are entitled to prevail as a matter of law. See N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b).

With respect to petitioner's exceptions, the Commissioner observes that petitioner does not dispute the ALJ's conclusion that alleged pupil records violations that appear in his petition, which were previously raised by him in his letters to the Superintendent, dated July 26, 2002 and September 3, 2002, and described in his complaint with the School Ethics Commission on October 11, 2002, are out-of time pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(d). Instead, petitioner raises an argument in his exceptions that does not appear in his petition or in his brief in opposition to respondents' motion for summary decision, i.e., that he discovered pupil record violations on January 2003 that were previously unknown to him and that these violations constitute violations such that each stands as a single offense subject to the 90-day limitation.

In support thereof, petitioner points to two letters discovered as the result of his review of District files in January 2003 as examples of documents that were not placed in his son's student file, which he alleges is a violation of the District's Pupil Records Policy. A review of the petition, however, reveals that only one of these letters is mentioned in the petition, a May 15, 2001 memo from the Board Secretary to the Board's counsel, identified as petitioner's Exhibit J. In point of fact, there is no record that petitioner ever asserted that the District violated the District's Pupil Records Policy with respect to its handling of the other document, an October 17, 2001 letter from the District to the Department of Education, accompanying a copy of the student's file being forwarded to that agency,[4] prior to filing his exceptions. Thus, even accepting, arguendo, petitioner's claim that he first discovered the October 17, 2001 letter in January 2003, petitioner was well aware of its existence when he filed his petition on April 4, 2003. The Commissioner, therefore, finds that petitioner is precluded from now asserting a claim with respect to the October 17 letter at issue as the 90-day limitation for asserting a claim concerning that document has passed.

The May 15, 2001 memo from the Board Secretary to the Board's counsel appears in the petition as Item No. 5, wherein petitioner claims that the memo violates school policy because the "business agent" (Board Secretary) "should not be handling matters concerning the welfare of children" and that "[n]o school official should disclose any file information to him, as per school policy." (Petition, Item No. 5) Petitioner further avers that "[t]his information should not have been released to Mr. Barbour (the Board attorney) and Mr. Irons.[5] This is third party disclosure without parental permission." (Ibid.) A review of the May 15, 2001 memo from the Board Secretary to the Board's attorney reveals that this memo is an internal, confidential communication from the Board Secretary to the Board's attorney transmitting a copy of petitioner's complaint filed with U.S. Office of Education and providing background information to the Board's attorney for his requested response to the complaint on behalf of the Board and its employees named therein.[6] (Petition, Exhibit J) The other document, a June 25, 2001 letter, which petitioner claims to have noticed during the discovery process, is a letter to respondents' attorney from the U.S. Department of Education providing information on the District's responsibilities related to petitioner's complaint filed with that agency.

N.J.S.A. 18A:36-19, N.J.S.A. 6:3-6.1 et seq. and the District's Pupil Records Policy establish that a pupil's record may include only the specified mandated and permitted records set forth in code and policy as relevant to the education of the pupil. Since the May 15 memo[7] and the June 25 letter at issue do not fall within the mandated and permitted documents to be placed into a student's file as specified in State code and District policy, and in that these documents deal solely with litigation issues related to the complaint filed by petitioner at the U.S. Office of Education, the Commissioner finds that respondents' failure to place copies of these documents in petitioner's son's student file do not constitute violations of N.J.S.A. 18A:36-19, N.J.S.A. 6:3-6.1 et seq. or the District's Pupil Records Policy.

[5] The copy notation at the bottom of the May 15, 2001 memo lists Mr. Irons as T. Irons, Utica Representative. This is the only mention of Mr. Irons in the record and petitioner does not clarify what his role is in the District.

[6] This letter was copied to the Superintendent and the Principal, who were named in the complaint, as well as T. Irons, identified as Utica Representative.

[7] Respondents assert that this memo is subject to attorney-client privilege, which has not been waived. (Answer, No. 5 at 2-3)

Turning to petitioner's assertion that respondents' counsel did not provide his requests for discovery, including the request for a copy of his son's complete file, when this matter was before the OAL, the Commissioner finds that petitioner's request for his son's pupil records within the context of discovery is a litigation issue, not a pupil records request under N.J.S.A. 18A:36-19, N.J.S.A. 6:3-6.1 et seq. or the District's Pupil Records Policy. Moreover, notwithstanding petitioner's assertion that he notified the ALJ of his inability to obtain the documents he requested from respondents, there is nothing in the record to indicate that petitioner exercised his rights under N.J.A.C. 1:1-10.4(d), within the timeframe provided, to compel discovery when this matter was at the OAL. In this instance, therefore, petitioner asserts a claim that is not within the Commissioner's jurisdiction and for which relief cannot be granted.

Finally, with respect to petitioner's assertion that on February 20, 2004 he submitted all the evidence required to prove that respondents violated the District's Pupil Records Policy and that such evidence clearly delineates violations which were discovered 90 days prior to filing his petition (Petitioner's Exceptions at 2), the Commissioner observes that the record in this matter closed on January 12, 2004, and the Initial Decision was issued on February 19, 2004. In that petitioner's submissions on February 20, 2004, are, therefore, outside the record, the Commissioner declines to consider these submissions in deciding the within matter.[8]

Accordingly, as set forth above, the Commissioner rejects petitioner's argument that the alleged newly discovered and additional violations of the District's Pupil Records Policy delineated in his exceptions undermine respondents' entitlement to summary decision in this matter. The Commissioner, therefore, adopts the Initial Decision granting summary decision to respondents for the reasons articulated therein, as modified above.

INTERLOCUTORY ORDER
DENYING EMERGENT RELIEF
OAL DKT. NO. EDU 02228-04S
AGENCY DKT. 109-3/04

G.W., ON BEHALF OF MINOR CHILD, T.W, Petitioner,
v.
SUPERINTENDENT, BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE RUMSON-FAIR HAVEN REGIONAL HIGH SCHOOL DISTRICT, MONMOUTH COUNTY,
Respondent.

BEFORE JEFF S. MASIN, ALJ:

This petition for emergent relief was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law by the Commissioner of Education. A hearing on the application was held on Monday, March 29, 2004. At that time counsel for the parties argued their positions, and the written record was supplemented by unsworn representations by the petitioning parent and the athletic director for the district. Following oral argument and consideration of the record, I orally advised the parties that I would deny emergent relief.

The Board of Education of the Rumson-Fair Haven School District suspended T.W., a 12th grade student, for ten school days as the result of his involvement in an assault. In essence, the matter involved an exchange between this student and another that resulted in an orange peel or other parts of an orange being thrown by T.W. at E.K., a subsequent dumping of milk by E.K. upon T.W.'s head and finally, a dumping of a cup of regurgitated milk and a cookie onto E.K.'s head. As of the day upon which this matter was argued before this judge, T.W. was just completing the full ten-day suspension.

The focus of the emergent relief application is not upon the propriety of the ten-day out-of-school suspension. [The Student Handbook issued by the District indicates that a first offense of assault may be punished by a suspension of from five to ten days]. The focus instead is upon the Board's intention to prevent T.W., a pitcher on the school's varsity baseball team, from participating in any games during his first ten days in school following service of the now completed suspension, during which suspension he was not permitted to practice with the team. [He claims to have participating in extensive private training during this period]. Apparently T.W. is a pitcher of some promise and, according to the representations made by his father in the Petition for Emergent and Interim Relief filed, the W.s have been advised that several colleges or universities are interested in considering T. for a full athletic scholarship. [Indeed, at the end of the oral argument, it was related that several scholarship offers have already been received.] They fear that the prohibition from competition may interfere with the ability of T. to perform in front of such college scouts as may attend games scheduled during this ten-day period.

Counsel for the parties agree that the prohibition upon participation in games, as opposed to practices in which T. may participate during the ten days, has not been reduced to writing, either as a part of any general statement in the student handbook provided to students and their parents, or, more specifically, in any written notice to T. and/or his parents. Instead, the family and their attorney have been informally told that T. will be prevented from playing in these games. Counsel for the Board advised that while he understood that the prohibition is a standard procedure, it is not part of any written Board policy or directive. The Handbook does specifically and prominently (in bold) notify that students that they must be in school for at least four hours in any given day or, if for example, they leave school due to illness prior to such minimum time, they may not participate that day in any extracurricular activities.

Emergency relief is an extraordinary remedy that is sparingly granted. The standards for determining whether to grant this relief are established in the seminal case of Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982). In order to merit emergent relief, the petitioner must establish that (1) there is a likelihood that irreparable harm will result if the injunction requested is not granted; (2) the legal right underlying the plaintiff's claim is settled, such that there is a reasonable probability of ultimate success on the merits; and (3) the relative hardship to the moving party if the relief is not granted outweighs the hardship to the other side if the relief is granted.

The allegation that irreparable harm will occur if the prohibition stands prior to a hearing on the merits is questionable. The speculative possibility that a scout might attend one of the few games scheduled during the suspension, which is unsupported by any actual evidence at this time, the uncertainty of when the student might pitch in any given game, the indefinable significance that his absence from a game or games may have upon his chances for a scholarship, where several have already been offered and the judgment as to such was made without reference to these early season games and where by counsel's own statement these judgments are made upon a broader view than one game or a few innings, and where the student's track record already shows promise, make the suggestion of irreparable harm arising during this ten day period nothing more than a speculative guess. While the usual measure of irreparable harm is whether the harm can be addressed by monetary compensation, here the proof of any harm is based upon supposition and speculation. As such, the petitioner does not meet the standards for injunctive relief.

This case involves a challenge to the determination of a local school board as to the imposition of disciplinary measures, or, perhaps more accurately, as to the consequences that flow from a Board's application of such measures. In general, the Commissioner is loathe to interfere in such matters, but will do so and will overturn a local school board's decision if it was arbitrary and capricious. Thus, in determining the likelihood of ultimate success on the merits of this challenge, it must be recognized that the arbitrary and capricious standard presents a significantly high burden for the petitioner to meet. While the lack of a written policy that spells out as a consequence of missing practices during a period of suspension a prohibition on participation in competition, although not practice, does raise some question about the propriety of the Board's action, it is not all that clear that such detail must be written into Board policy or Student Handbooks that already address the underlying punishment that may be meted out for a violation of school rules and other misconduct. Here, while one might quibble as to the number of days of suspension imposed, the student was, no doubt, properly disciplined for his misconduct. As such, it may not be unfair to expect that his misconduct, which kept him out of school and away from the practices the other team members attended, might have consequences. Whether each of these needs be spelled out in writing is an issue to be determined, as is the question of whether notice of the policy was provided to athletes by other means [which I take it may well be an issue in dispute]. I cannot say at this time that the petitioner has demonstrated a reasonable likelihood of ultimate success on the merits.

Given the petitioner's failure to meet the Crowe standards, the application for emergent relief is DENIED. A plenary hearing shall be held on Friday, April 2, 2004, at 9 a.m. at the OAL in Mercerville.

This order on application for emergency relief may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The final decision shall be issued without undue delay, but no later than forty-five (45) days following the entry of this order. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this order within forty-five (45) days, this recommended order shall become a final decision on the issue of emergent relief in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

The recommended Order of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ), together with the audio tape of the emergent hearing conducted at the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on March 29, 2004 have been reviewed.

Upon such review, the Commissioner concurs that petitioner has failed to satisfy the four-pronged standard set forth in Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982) necessary to warrant the extraordinary remedy of emergent relief. Accordingly, the recommended Order of the ALJ is adopted for the reasons expressed therein. This matter shall continue at the OAL with a plenary hearing scheduled for April 2, 2004.

IN THE MATTER OF :

CHARLES FISCHER, : COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

EATONTOWN BOARD OF EDUCATION,: DECISION

MONMOUTH COUNTY. :

SYNOPSIS

The School Ethics Commission determined that respondent Board member violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e) and (i) of the School Ethics Act for calling an employee at home and becoming angry when she said she did not send him the reports that he requested.

After considering the nature of the charge and respondent's submission, the Commission recommended a penalty of reprimand.

Upon review of the record, the Commissioner, whose decision was restricted solely to a review of the Commission's recommended penalty, concurred with the Commission's recommendation and, thus, ordered respondent reprimanded as a school official found to have violated the School Ethics Act.

IN THE MATTER OF	:	BEFORE THE SCHOOL ETHICS COMMISSION
CHARLES FISCHER,	:	Docket No.: C30-03
EATONTOWN BOARD OF EDUCATION MONMOUTH COUNTY	:	DECISION

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This matter arises from a complaint alleging that Mr. Fischer called an employee at home and when she returned the call, threatened her, told her that she was breaking the law and demanded that she return to work at 8:45 p.m. on a Friday night in order to obtain reports that Mr. Fischer had requested earlier in the day. She alleged that his conduct violated Code of Ethics sections N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(a), (b), (c), (d), (e) and (i) of the School Ethics Act.

In his answer, Mr. Fischer stated that he asked for financial information from complainant early on Friday morning because she was the most senior full time member of the financial staff at the Board Office. He said that she agreed to provide the information. He did not receive a call from the complainant all day so he obtained her home number from the board secretary and left a message. When she called back and said that she did not send him the requested information, they got into an argument. He said that she started yelling at him first and he admits that he was "most likely yelling himself" in response. He denied ever demanding anything of her or threatening her and denied having violated the School Ethics Act.

The parties were invited to attend the Commission's October 28, 2003 meeting to testify and present witnesses. Both parties appeared on their own behalf. At its special public meeting on October 31, 2003, that was called to complete the Commission's October 28, 2003 agenda, the Commission found probable cause to credit the allegations that Mr. Fischer violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(d), (e) and (i) of the Code of Ethics, but found no probable cause to credit the allegation that he violated sections N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(a), (b) and (c).

In his response to the Commission's probable cause decision, Mr. Fischer argued that he did not administer the schools in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(d) since he called Mrs. Miller as a result of her invitation and she returned his call when he was unsuccessful in contacting her. Although Mr. Fischer admits that he did raise his voice during his conversation with Mrs. Miller, he argues that he was responding to Mrs. Miller yelling at him and that he was not acting out of anger or in a manner that would compromise the board in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e). Mr. Fischer further argues that by requesting the information he did not fail to support or protect Mrs. Miller in the performance of her duties in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(i). After consideration of Mr. Fischer's response to its probable cause decision, the Commission found, at its meeting of February 3, 2004, that Mr. Fischer violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e) and (i), but that he did not violate N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(d) and dismissed this charge against him. The Commission recommended a penalty of reprimand.

FACTS

The Commission was able to discern the following facts based on the pleadings, documents submitted, testimony and its investigation.

At all time relevant to this complaint, Mr. Fischer was a member of the Eatontown Board of Education. Complainant was at all times relevant to this complaint, an employee of the Eatontown Board of Education who worked in the business office.

On Thursday, June 26, 2003, Mr. Fischer had a conversation with the incoming superintendent who was scheduled to begin working on July 1, 2003. During that conversation, the incoming superintendent mentioned that she had met with the complainant regarding the 2003-04 budget. Mr. Fischer had some concerns as a result of his meeting with the incoming superintendent. Considering complainant to be the most senior full-time member of the financial staff, next to the business administrator, and the one whom board members frequently contacted for information, Mr. Fischer spoke to complainant on the morning of Friday, June 27, 2003 about the budget and the proposed cut of 11 unidentified teachers. Based on the conversation, Mr. Fischer asked her for 1) the payroll by person for the 2002-03 year; 2) the payroll by person for the 2003-04 budget; 3) a report of the preliminary close of the year showing the 2002-03 expense details compared to the revised 2003-04 budget and if the comparison could not be done in one report, then two separate reports. Complainant said she would send the information to his house and offered to include her phone number and cell phone number with the package so he could call her with questions.

Mr. Fischer did not receive a call from the complainant or any employees of the Board that day, although they all have his various phone numbers. He tried to call complainant at the board office from his cell phone as he drove home in his car. There was no answer; so he called the board secretary who gave him complainant's home phone number. He called the number and left a message.

Complainant returned his call at approximately 8:30 p.m. and told him that she did not send him the schedules that he requested. She told him that she did not want to get in the middle of this. When he asked what she meant, she did not give an exact answer, but said that she had spoken to the superintendent who told her to talk to the incoming superintendent who told her to speak to the board president. Mr. Fischer told her that a board member should not be refused information to which she replied that the information

IN THE MATTER OF	:
CHARLES FISCHER,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
EATONTOWN BOARD OF EDUCATION,	:	DECISION
MONMOUTH COUNTY.	:

The record of this matter and the decision of the School Ethics Commission ("Commission") finding Eatontown Board of Education member Charles Fischer violated Code of Ethics section N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e) and (i) of the School Ethics Act, and recommending a penalty of reprimand have been reviewed. Upon issuance of the decision of the Commission, Mr. Fischer was provided 13 days from the mailing date of the decision to file written comments on the recommended penalty for the Commissioner's consideration.

No comments were filed by Mr. Fischer.

Initially, it must be emphasized that, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c) and N.J.A.C. 6A:3-9.1, the determination of the Commission as to violation of the School Ethics Act is not reviewable by the Commissioner herein. Only the Commission may determine whether a violation of the School Ethics Act occurred. The Commissioner's jurisdiction is limited to reviewing the sanction to be imposed based upon a finding of a violation by the Commission. Therefore, this decision is restricted solely to a review of the Commission's recommended penalty.

Upon a thorough review of the record, the Commissioner determines to accept the Commission's recommendation that reprimand is the appropriate penalty in this matter for the reasons expressed in the Commission's decision. In so ruling, the Commissioner is satisfied that in recommending a penalty for the violations it found, the Commission fully considered the nature of the offense and weighed the effects of aggravating and mitigating circumstances. Therefore, the Commission's recommended penalty in this matter will not be disturbed.

Accordingly, IT IS hereby ORDERED that Charles Fischer be reprimanded as a school official found to have violated the School Ethics Act.

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner alleged that the Board's failure to reemploy her for the 2003-04 school year as a full-time teacher was a violation of her tenure and seniority rights pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. Petitioner contended that her time spent as a long-term substitute teacher from March through June 2000 in place of third grade teacher, Ms. Lituchy, should have been counted toward the acquisition of tenure.

The ALJ found that Ms. Lituchy's position did not become vacant until the end of the 1999-2000 academic year and petitioner remained a long-term substitute during the period from March 6, 2000 through June 30, 2000, the date when Ms. Lituchy's resignation became effective. Thus, the ALJ concluded that petitioner's service as a long-term substitute could not be counted toward her tenure since the position she filled did not become vacant until June 30, 2000. The ALJ, therefore concluded that the Board could release petitioner following three years of service because she had not acquired tenure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5(c). (Spiewak; Lammers; Sayerville; and Driscoll)

The Commissioner concurred with the ALJ, noting that petitioner was not entitled to accrue time toward tenure acquisition while serving in an "acting" position in that Ms. Lituchy's resignation did not become effective until June 30, 2000. Since petitioner's service during the 1999-2000 school year could not be counted toward tenure, the Commissioner found that petitioner did not achieve tenure by the end of the 2002-03 school year. The Commissioner also found that the Board did not act in bad faith toward petitioner in that it did appoint petitioner to teaching positions for the next three consecutive school years. Therefore, it was within the Board's discretion to inform petitioner, a nontenured teacher, that her contract would not be renewed for the 2003-04 school year.

Record Closed: February 10, 2004 Decided: February 27, 2004

BEFORE EDITH KLINGER, ALJ:

On May 22, 2003, petitioner, Sylvia Lustberg, filed a Petition with the Commissioner of Education seeking to compel the Board of Education of the Township of Tenafly (Board) to grant her tenure as a teacher in the school district (District) with tenure and seniority rights, salary, benefits and emoluments retroactive to March 7, 2003.

On June 19, 2003, the Board filed its answer and on July 16, 2003, the Commissioner of Education transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law for hearing pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

During a pre-hearing telephone conference with the parties, it was determined that the facts in this matter could be stipulated and the appeal proceed to hearing on cross-motions for summary decision. The record closed on February 10, 2003, when the final submission was received from the parties.

THE STIPULATED FACTS

The facts in this matter are not in dispute. They are as follows:

1. On or about June 14, 1999, the Board approved an extension of child-rearing leave for third grade teacher, Anne Lituchy, for the 1999-2000 school year.

2. Lituchy performed no duties for the Board and received no salary during the 1999-2000 school year. This is confirmed by the Board's payroll records for the designated year.

3. On or about June 28, 1999, the Board approved the hiring of Lustberg as a third grade long-term substitute teacher for the 1999-2000 school year to replace Lituchy during her child-rearing leave.

4. Lustberg holds an instructional certificate with an endorsement for elementary school teacher issued in July 1999.

5. At the Board's instruction, upon hiring, Lustberg was enrolled in the Public Employees Retirement System (PERS) from September 1, 1999 through August 2000. She was not enrolled in the Teachers'

Pension and Annuity Fund (TPAF) because she was hired as a temporary employee, replacing an individual on a leave of absence.

6. Throughout the course of the 1999-2000 school year, Lustberg performed all of the duties of a classroom teacher in respondent's Mackay Elementary School. Lustberg was observed by the Board's administrative staff on at least three occasions during the 1999-2000 school year.

7. Lustberg was employed for the 1999-2000 school year pursuant to a written employment contract. Her salary was set at M.A. Step 2 of the teachers' salary guide.

8. In order to assess staffing needs for the 2000-2001 school year, the Board sent a letter to Lituchy on or about February 4, 2000, inquiring whether she would be returning to her position for the next school year,

9. On or about February 23, 2000, the Board received a response from Lituchy stating that she would not return in September 2000 and enclosing her resignation.

10. On or about March 6, 2000, the Board accepted the resignation of Lituchy, effective June 30, 2000.

11. On or about April 4, 2000, Lustberg was notified that the Board had resolved to terminate her employment as a long-term substitute teacher as of June 30, 2000.

12. A letter dated, May 1, 2000 from Superintendent A. Glen Everhart to Lustberg offered her an elementary teaching position at a salary of $41, 833 at M.A. Step 3 for the 2000-2001 school year which was approved by the Board on or about May 8, 2000.

13. On or about June 6, 2000, Lustberg submitted an application to transfer her PERS account to the TPAF.

14. Lustberg was employed as a third grade teacher at the Mackay Elementary School for the 2000-2001 school year at an adjusted salary of $42,133 (M.A. +8 Step 3).

15. Lustberg was employed as a third grade teacher at the Mackay Elementary School for the 2001-2002 school year at an adjusted salary of $44,735 (M.A. +8 Step 4).

16. Lustberg was employed as a third grade teacher at the Mackay Elementary School for the 2002-2003 school year at an adjusted salary of $46,849 (M.A. +8 Step 5). This was adjusted to $47,149 for M.A. +16 Step 5.

17. By letter dated March 17, 2003 from Superintendent Darrell R. Lund, Lustberg was informed that her employment contract would not be renewed for the 2003-2003 school year.

18. If Lustberg had been employed by the Board for the 2003-2004 school year, her salary would have been $49,422 for M.A. +16 Step 6.

19. For the 2003-2004 school year, the Board employs thirty-two non-tenured teachers in positions requiring instructional certification with an elementary school teacher endorsement.

20. For the 2003-2004 school year, Lustberg is employed as a teacher in a private school, The Solomon Schechter Day School of Bergen County, at an annual salary of $45,868.

21. If Lustberg had been employed by the Board for the 2003-2004 school year, the Board would have provided her with family coverage health and dental insurance at no cost to her.

22. For the 2003-2004 school year, Lustberg is enrolled in her husband's health and dental insurance plan with family coverage at her cost. The parties agree to defer calculation of that cost pending the outcome of the liability phase of this appeal.

DISCUSSION, FINDINGS OF FACT AND CONCLUSIONS

The acquisition and effect of tenure are statutorily defined by N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5, which states that teaching staff members acquire tenure by completing:

>
> (b) Three consecutive academic years, together with employment at the beginning of the next succeeding academic year; or
> (c) The equivalent of more then three academic years within a period of any four consecutive academic years.

"Academic year" is defined in N.J.S.A. 18A:1-1 as "the period between the time school opens in any school district or under any board of education after the general summer vacation until the next summer vacation."

The facts show that Lustberg was employed as a teaching staff member for three consecutive academic years: 2000-2001, 2001-2002, and 2002-2003. If she had been rehired for the 2003-2004 academic year, she would clearly have acquired tenure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5(b). Consequently, the only way that Lustberg can now be deemed to have acquired tenure is pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5(c), but only if her teaching time during the 1999-2000 school year can be counted toward tenure.

The New Jersey Supreme Court has held that "all teaching staff members who work in positions for which a certificate is required, who hold valid certificates, and who have worked the requisite number of years, are eligible for tenure unless they come within the explicit exceptions in N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 or related statutes such as N.J.S.A. 18A:16-1.1." Spiewak v. Bd. of Educ. of Rutherford, 90 N.J. 63, 81-82 (1982).

In the present matter, it is undisputed that Lustberg worked in a position requiring a certificate, and that she possessed the necessary certificate when she was holding that position. Additionally, it is undisputed that she was employed as a full-time teacher for the requisite number of academic years. The only remaining issue is whether Lustberg falls within one of the explicit statutory exceptions.

N.J.S.A. 18A:16-1.1, provides the following exception to the tenure statute:

> In each district the board of education may designate some person to act in place of any officer or employee during the absence, disability or disqualification of any such officer or employee subject to the provisions of section 18A:17-13.
> The act of any person so designated shall in all cases be legal and binding as if done and performed by the officer or employee for whom such designated person is acting but no person acting shall acquire tenure in the office or employment in which he acts pursuant to this section when so acting.

This exception applies "when the services of a substitute teacher are required because of the temporary absence, even if protracted, of a regular teacher whose return to duty is contemplated." Sayreville Educ. Ass'n v. Bd. of Educ. of the Borough of Sayreville, 193 N.J. Super. 424, 428 (App. Div. 1984). It helps to prevent a school board from incurring the expense of providing duplicative benefits if both the substitute and the absent teacher were to be regarded as simultaneously entitled to all of the statutory and contractually mandated benefits of regular staff membership. Id., at 430.

This holding applies only where the position to be filled is not a vacant one. If it is, then a long-term substitute teacher filling the vacant position is entitled to have this period credited toward tenure. Id., at 428-9.

In Lammers v. Bd. of Educ. of the Borough of Point Pleasant, 134 N.J. 264, 267 (1993), the Court stated, "an entitlement to a position arises only when a vacancy exists." In that case, a tenured teacher, who had lost her position as a result of a reduction in force, petitioned to require the board of education to rehire her to fill in for a tenured teacher on a one year maternity leave. Id. at 266. The court held that "a one-year leave of absence does not create a vacancy or temporary vacancy under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12." Id. at 267.

However, if the employee on leave terminates his or her employment at the time the substitute is appointed, then the position which the substitute is filling is vacant and N.J.S.A. 18A:16-1.1 does not apply. Sayreville Educ. Ass'n, supra, at 430.

Therefore, according to the case law as stated above, the first issue to be resolved In the present matter is whether a vacancy occurred at the time the Board approved the resignation of Lituchy or at the time her resignation became effective.

The undisputed facts, based upon the documentary evidence as well as the stipulations, are these. On June 17, 1999, the Board granted Lituchy a leave of absence for "the 1999-2000 school year." That is, this leave, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:1-1, extended from the time school opened in September 1999 until June 30, 2000, the beginning of the next summer vacation.

Lituchy was told in the letter of notification, dated February 4, 2000, that she would have to notify the District by March 1, 2000 of her intent to return for the following academic year so that the District could plan for its staffing needs. Lituchy's resignation was tendered directly in response to the Board's specific inquiry about the next year and she stated that she would "not return in September 2000." Her response does not offer her immediate resignation.

The Board accepted her resignation on March 6, 2000 for purposes of planning but it did not rescind the one year child-rearing leave previously granted since she did not ask that it be done. In accord with its prior commitment to Lituchy, it made her resignation effective at the end of her approved leave, June 30, 2000. I FIND that, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5, the Board could not terminate Lituchy, a tenured teacher, at an earlier time since it had no just cause to do so. I FIND nothing in the record to suggest that the Board's approval of Lituchy's resignation at the end of the academic year was intended to circumvent Lustberg's tenure rights.

Lustberg was hired as a long-term substitute to fill Lituchy's position until her return. Petitioner's contract specifically designates her status and her term of employment as September 1, 1999 to June 30, 2000. She neither attempted to change her status when Lituchy's resignation was accepted by the Board on March 3, 2000 nor when it became effective on June 30, 2000. Petitioner continued to serve as a long-term substitute until the end of the academic year and accepted the Board's termination of that status. On May 9, 2000, the Board approved her hiring as a regular third grade teacher for the following academic year. She applied to TPAF on June 7, 2000 stating that she resigned from her long-term substitute position as of June 30, 2000.

Lustberg was given a good evaluation for her service as a substitute. This is reflected in the Board's offer of a contract for the following year. I FIND that the Board acted in good faith toward Lustberg. It hired her for the following year and the two subsequent years as a regular teacher and refused to rehire her only after determining that her performance was not up to the District's standards. The issue of her performance was not contested and is not before this forum.

Where a Board does not act in bad faith and has no real control over the actions of an absent teacher, it > can not be compelled to convert the status of a substitute to that of a regular teacher for the purpose of adding the time served as a substitute to the time served as a regular teacher in order to provide her with the time necessary to effect tenure. This is so notwithstanding the fact that she did the work of a regular teacher.

> [Driscoll v. Bd. of Ed. of the City of Clifton, 165 N.J. Super. 241,246 (App. Div. 1977, aff'd 79 N.J. 126 (1979).]

Based upon the above, I FIND that Lituchy's position did not become vacant until the end of the 1999-2000 academic year and Lustberg remained a long-term substitute during the period from March 6, 2000 through June 30, 2000.

I, therefore, CONCLUDE that Lustberg's service as a long-term substitute during the 1999-2000 academic year cannot be counted toward her tenure since the position she filled did not become vacant until June 30, 2000. For this reason, I CONCLUDE that the Board could release Lustberg following her three years of service because she had not acquired tenure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5(c).

ORDER

Accordingly, it is ORDERED that respondent is entitled to summary decision in this matter and the petition of Sylvia Lustberg is hereby DISMISSED WITH PREJUDICE.

SYLVIA LUSTBERG,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF TENAFLY, BERGEN COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions and respondent's reply thereto were submitted in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 and were considered by the Commissioner in reaching his decision.

Initially, petitioner takes exception to the statement in the Initial Decision that "[t]he issue of her performance was not contested," asserting that no finding can be made on that topic because there was no evidence submitted, and moreover, whether or not petitioner contested her nonrenewal is irrelevant to the determination of her tenure rights.[1] (Petitioner's Exceptions at 2, quoting Initial Decision at 8) Petitioner also takes issue, inter alia, with the conclusion in the Initial Decision that Driscoll, supra, is analogous to this matter, arguing that, in the instant matter the Board had complete control over Ms. Lituchy's employment, wherein the Board in Driscoll did not have control over the actions of Voss, the teacher being replaced in that matter. (Id. at 3) In support thereof, petitioner avers that Voes "engaged in a series of contradictory decisions about returning to work and not doing so" and did not submit a resignation until "after the service time Driscoll sought to include for tenure." (emphasis in text) (Ibid.) Thus, petitioner submits, the Board in Driscoll could not deem Voss as having abandoned her position because it had no knowledge as to whether or not she would return. (Ibid.) Petitioner concludes, therefore, that whether the Board had control over the employment of the teacher being replaced is a critical difference that was ignored in the Initial Decision. (Ibid.)

[1] Petitioner claims that she "did dispute the reasons for her nonrenewal but did not litigate them because in the absence of tenure, she could not successfully dispute reasons which do not qualify as arbitrary or capricious." (Petitioner's Exceptions at 2)

Moreover, petitioner points out that Ms. Lituchy's resignation letter does not specify the effective date of her resignation, but simply states that she is resigning. (Id. at 4) Petitioner submits that it is clear that the Board's vote to accept Ms. Lituchy's resignation on March 6, 2000 made such resignation binding and non-rescindable. (Ibid.) Petitioner, therefore, contends that, on March 6, 2000, the Board thus had the certainty that did not exist in Driscoll, supra, and that payroll records listing Ms. Lituchy as terminated as early as May 15, 2000 prove this contention. (Ibid.) In pointing out that she only needs one day of service in 1999-2000 to achieve tenure, petitioner claims that the wording of the Board's March 6, 2000 resolution accepting Ms. Lituchy's resignation effective June 30, 2000 was simply the Board's choice and is the only basis for denying her tenure in that the wording of that resolution was not necessitated by Ms. Lituchy's resignation letter or required by any payroll obligation to her. (Id. at 4-5)

Additionally, petitioner argues that on May 8, 2000 she was appointed to teach the next year, which shows that even before June 30, 2000 the Board had hired her to continue in her position because it knew that Ms. Lituchy was not returning. (Id. at 5) Pointing to Spiewak, supra, and citing Lammers, supra, at 272, petitioner contends that "the demarcation between true substitute service (excluded from tenure accrual by N.J.S.A. 18A:16-1.1) and tenure-eligible replacement service must be the knowledge on the part of the board as to the status of the absent person." (emphasis in text) (Id. at 5-6) The time served by a replacement person must therefore, petitioner concludes, count towards tenure once a board knows with certainty that the individual being replaced is not returning. (Id. at 6) Accordingly, petitioner contends that her service from February 23, 2000 onward was in a vacant position and should be counted as time toward tenure because the Board in the instant matter knew precisely at that point that the incumbent did not intend to return.[2] (Ibid.) In further support thereof, petitioner points to Jannarone v. Bd. of Ed. of Asbury Park et al., 1976 S.L.D. 526 and Puryear v. Bd. of Ed. of East Orange, 1987 S.L.D. 2412, averring that "these cases stand for the proposition that a board cannot unilaterally turn a vacant job into one which is temporarily unoccupied by labeling the job as an 'acting' position." (Id. at 7)

Moreover, petitioner submits that Ward v. Westfield Bd. of Ed., 1988 S.L.D. 386, aff'd with modification 1988 S.L.D. 395 (Comm. of Ed.), aff'd 1988 S.L.D. 400 (St. Bd. of Ed.) lends further support for her position. (Ibid.) In Ward, a teacher who had suffered a heart attack did not resign, but, instead, by letter of May 15, 1985 advised the board that he was permanently disabled and requested a one-year leave so he could qualify for a veteran's retirement rather than a disability pension. (Id. at 8) Notwithstanding that the teacher did not submit a binding resignation, nor did the board act to approve a resignation, retirement or vacancy, petitioner contends, the State Board found that the May 15 letter created a vacant position so that Ms. Ward's service after that point was tenure eligible. (Id. at 9) Thus, petitioner concludes, in that the Board knew with certainty on February 23, 2000 that Ms. Lituchy was not returning, petitioner's service from that date must count toward tenure. (Ibid.)

In reply, the Board takes issue with petitioner's assertion that Ms. Lituchy's position became vacant when the Board knew that she would not be returning for the next school year, averring that, from the Joint Stipulation of Facts "it is clear that Ms. Lituchy was on a leave of absence until June 30, 2000 and that her resignation effective June 30, 2000 was directed towards her desire not to return for the 2000-2001 school year." (Board's Reply Exceptions at 1) With respect to petitioner's contention that the Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) decision might have turned on her statement that the issue of petitioner's performance was not contested, the Board states that it is difficult to understand how petitioner could have reached this conclusion in that the finding merely reflected the Board's action and evaluative comment and that the matter was not at issue in this litigation. (Id. at 2)

[2] According to the Joint Stipulation of Facts, the Board received Ms. Lituchy's resignation letter on or about February 23, 2000, stating that she would not return in September 2000. (Stipulation of Facts, No. 9 at 3)

Turning to whether Driscoll, supra, applies, the Board argues that it does apply, because on the one important issue raised, the cases are analogous; that is, the Board in Driscoll did not have control over a teacher who did not return to work and the Board herein did not have control over Ms. Lituchy's resignation. (Ibid.) In support thereof, the Board submits that: 1) Ms. Lituchy was granted a leave of absence for the entire 1999-2000 school year and was expected to return; 2) the Board requested Ms. Lituchy to indicate whether she would be returning to teach in 2000-2001 in order to prepare for the next school year; and 3) Ms. Lituchy advised the Board she would not be returning the next year and submitted her letter of resignation. (Ibid.) The Board claims that Ms. Lituchy's letter, clearly stating that her resignation was to be effective the next school year, was in direct response to its specific inquiry regarding the next school year, and in that her letter does not offer her immediate resignation, the Board had no choice but to accept her resignation effective at the conclusion of her leave. (Id. at 2-3) The Board concludes, therefore, that it had no more control over petitioner's resignation than the board in Driscoll did. (Id. at 3)

Moreover, the Board claims that petitioner is correct that Ms. Lituchy could not rescind her resignation once it was approved by the Board, but asserts that what she could not rescind was that she would not have an employment relationship after June 30, 2000. (Ibid.) The Board reiterates its position that Ms. Lituchy's resignation was not an immediate severance of her employment relationship and that the position was, therefore, not vacant on March 7, 2000 after the Board accepted her resignation, but, instead, was vacant after the effective date of the resignation on June 30, 2000. (Id. at 3-4) Petitioner further claims that "[t]he payroll record (J-23-24), relied on by Petitioner, does not reflect the Board action and can only be considered a payroll clerk's mistake." (Id. at 4)

The Board acknowledges that Jannarone, supra, stands for the proposition that if you do all the duties of a position, you are entitled to accrue tenure in that position even if it is an "acting" position, but reasons that the Jannarone decision defies logic when examining the clear language in the statute, N.J.S.A. 18A:16-1.1, which states:

> In each district the board of education may designate some person to act in place of any officer or employee during the absence, disability or disqualification of any such officer or employee...The act of any person shall in all cases be legal and binding as if done and performed by the officer or employee for whom such designated person is acting, but no person so acting shall acquire tenure in the office or employment in which he acts pursuant to this section when so acting. (emphasis in text) (Ibid.)

It is thus clear from the statute, the Board argues, that the substitute will act exactly as a teacher, but that such time served does not accrue towards tenure acquisition. (Ibid.)

With respect to Ward, supra, the Board contends that Ward is distinguishable form the instant matter because, in Ward, the teacher's letter stating that she was permanently disabled and not able to return to work was the only notice received from the teacher and provided the only certainty on which the board could rely; whereas, in this matter, Ms. Lituchy's letter provided a certainty that she was resigning effective June 30, 2000. (Id. at 5) The Board avers that Williams v. Board of Educ. of the City of Orange, 1987 S.L.D. 997, 1000, aff'd State Board of Educ. 1988 S.L.D. 2534 is the only case that it has identified that deals with the issue of a letter of resignation with a future effective resignation date. (Ibid.) In Williams, the Board received a letter on or about March 28, 1983 from an ill teacher, resigning/retiring effective May 15, 1983. (Ibid.) The Commissioner in Williams found that "the teacher on leave maintained an employment relationship with the District until the effective date of his resignation and retirement, not when the letter of resignation was provided to the District." (emphasis in text) (Ibid.) The Board avers that the same principle applies herein and that petitioner accrued time towards tenure by working three school years for the Board, but did not work the one day in the fourth school year that would entitle her to tenure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5(b), nor did she attain tenure under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5(a) or (c). The Board concludes, therefore, that it was within its rights not to renew petitioner's contract for the 2003-04 school year since petitioner had not achieved tenure. (Id. at 6)

Upon careful and independent review of the record, the Initial Decision, petitioner's exceptions and the Board's reply thereto, the Commissioner determines to adopt the findings and conclusions expressed in the Initial Decision, finding that petitioner's service as a long-term substitute for the 1999-00 school year cannot be counted toward tenure. Accordingly, the Board could release petitioner following her three years of service because she had not achieved tenure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5(c). In so determining, the Commissioner emphasizes in response to the concern expressed in petitioner's exceptions that this ultimate conclusion does not rest on whether or not petitioner contested her nonrenewal as that issue is not before him and is irrelevant to the determination of petitioner's tenure rights.

The Commissioner reiterates that it is undisputed that Ms. Lituchy was granted a one-year leave of absence for the 1999-00 school year. (Exhibit J-1, in evidence) In Lammers, supra at 267, the Court found that "an entitlement to a position arises only when a vacancy exists" and that "a one-year leave of absence does not create a vacancy or temporary vacancy under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12." Ms. Lituchy's position was, therefore, not vacant during her one-year leave of absence that ended June 30, 2000. In response to a February 4, 2000 letter from the Board inquiring as to whether she would return to her position the next school year, 2000-2001, Ms. Lituchy responded:

> It is with mixed feelings that I write this letter to inform you of my resignation from my teaching position in the Tenafly School District. While I have greatly enjoyed my teaching position at Mackay School, I wish to spend the next several years as a full-time, stay-at-home mother to my two sons.
>
> Taking care of young children is a full-time, demanding job, and I do not feel I could be a fine teacher while fulfilling the responsibilities I have at home. I am enclosing the letter I recently received from Terry Collins stating that I will not return in September 2000.
>
> Thank you.
> (emphasis supplied) (Exhibit J-8, in evidence)

Thus, Ms. Lituchy's response, provided in answer to the Board's specific inquiry as to whether she planned to return for the 2000-01 school year, does not offer her immediate resignation or specify an effective date of her resignation that revokes her leave of absence, but instead, informs the Board that she will not be returning in September 2000. The Commissioner notes that, in accepting Ms. Lituchy's resignation on March 6, 2000, the Board did not rescind the one-year leave of absence granted her in accord with its prior commitment, but made Ms. Lituchy's resignation effective June 30, 2000, the end of her approved leave. As observed by the ALJ, "pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5, the Board could not terminate Lituchy, a tenured teacher, at an earlier time since it had no just cause to do so." (Initial Decision at 7) Notwithstanding petitioner's arguments that the ALJ misapplied Driscoll, supra, Spiewak, supra and Lammers, supra, in this matter and that petitioner's service from February 23, 2000 onward should be counted towards her tenure service because the Board knew with certainty on that date that Ms. Lituchy was not returning, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that Ms. Lituchy's resignation was not effective until June 30, 2000 and, thus, her position was not vacant until that date. For the reasons fully explicated in the Initial Decision, the Commissioner finds this conclusion entirely consistent with Spiewak, supra; Lammers, supra; Sayreville, supra; and Driscoll, supra.

Additionally, the Commissioner rejects petitioner's reliance on Ward, supra. Unlike Ward, wherein the retiring teacher notified the board that his health status prohibited his return to teaching and requested that "the Board consider granting him retirement 'one year hence as a veteran at half-pay rather than as a disabled teacher this year at a significantly lower rate,'" Ward, supra at 397,[3] Ms. Lituchy was on an approved one-year leave of absence that expired June 30, 2000, and she submitted a letter that specifically stated that she was not returning in September. Absent Ms. Lituchy's request to terminate her leave of absence prior to June 30 or the provision of an effective date for her resignation that differed from June 30, 2000, there was no basis for the Board in this matter to adjust her resignation date.

With respect to Jannarone, supra, the Commissioner notes that this decision was not reviewed by the State Board or the Courts. Since the 1976 Jannarone decision, however, by decisions in Spiewak, supra, Sayreville, supra, and Lammers, supra, the courts have interpreted and clarified the exception to the Tenure Act relating to the tenure accrual exception set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:16-1.1 as a statute that denies tenure accrual during the time served to temporary employees who act in place of another employee who is absent, disabled or disqualified and who is ultimately expected to return to the position. Thus, the Commissioner concludes that petitioner, while acting as a teacher for Ms. Lituchy during her leave of absence, is not entitled to accrue time toward tenure acquisition while serving in such "acting" position.

[3] It is unclear whether the Board in this matter granted this request.

Moreover, the Commissioner cannot find that the Board acted in bad faith toward petitioner in that it appointed petitioner to teaching positions for the next three consecutive school years. However, since petitioner's service as a long-term substitute for Ms. Lituchy for the 1999-00 school year cannot be counted toward tenure, the Commissioner finds petitioner had not achieved tenure at the end of the 2002-03 school year. It was, therefore, within the Board's discretion to inform petitioner, a nontenured teacher, that her contract would not be renewed for the 2003-04 school year.

Accordingly, the Commissioner adopts the Initial Decision in this matter for the reasons expressed therein.

PETITIONER,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
V.	:	DECISION
NEW JERSEY STATE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION,	:
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning "Abbott" Board of Education appealed the Department of Education's determination with respect to funding for the district's 2004-05 preschool program.

Of the issues in dispute, only two remained following settlement negotiations between the parties. On the remaining issues, the ALJ, in light of testimony provided and the record, determined in favor of the respondent Department. The ALJ found no legal requirement to provide computers exclusively for teachers nor does the State's Technology Plan require a five to one ratio for computers for students. As to the appropriate method for funding preschool disabled children, the ALJ found they are already included in enrollment figures which drive the amount of CEIFA aid and the State is not mandated to exclusively fund preschool in the Abbott districts.

The Commissioner adopted the ALJ's decision as his own.

Record Closed: March 12, 2004 Decided: March 23, 2004

BEFORE STEPHEN G. WEISS, ALJ:

NATURE OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

In mid-August 2003, the New Jersey Department of Education, Office of Early Childhood Education, provided the "Abbott" school districts with an "Instruction and Guidance" document respecting the development by each such district, including the Board of Education of Elizabeth (hereafter "Board"), of a programmatic budget reflecting the actual cost of delivering a preschool program in 2004-2005 (J-3). In mid-November 2003, the Board, in accordance with those instructions, submitted a budget which described its needs in a variety of preschool areas (J-1). The Board pointed out that its plan was designed to provide its three and four year old preschool children with the tools necessary to prepare them to move on to kindergarten and thereby to facilitate their ability to achieve those objectives described in the "Abbott V" (Abbott v. Burke, 153 N.J. 480 (1998)), and Abbott VI, (163 N.J. 95 (2000)) decisions. See also, N.J.A.C. 6A:10A-1.1, et seq. These are accomplished, in part, by providing one teacher and one aide for every 15 preschool pupils, and prohibiting any class to exceed that number. N.J.A.C. 6A:10A-2.2(a)(3). The districts must also provide programs that meet the Department's Preschool Teaching and Learning Expectations: Standards of Quality, 2002 ("Expectations"), participate in self assessment and validations systems and provide master teachers at a ratio of no more than 20 preschool classrooms for each master teacher. N.J.A.C. 6A:10A-2.2(a)(4)(6)(7).

To assist Abbott districts in providing high quality preschool programs, as well as meeting applicable regulatory requirements, the Department had provided certain guidelines. Thus, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:10A-2.3, Abbott districts were required to provide three-year operational plans to the Department, with annual revisions for the appropriate school years by November 15 of each year. After approval of the 2003-2006 Plan, the districts then were required to submit annual one-year programmatic budgets for each of the school years contained in the three-year plan and also to report on their progress toward achieving the objectives outlined in their approved plans. N.J.A.C. 6A:10A-2.3(i)(j).

As noted, in November 2003, Elizabeth submitted its one-year operational budget for the 2004-2005 school year, one-year operational budget for its early childhood providers for the 2004-2005 school year, and revisions to its three-year plan (J-1). On January 15, 2004, the Department responded to (and largely approved) the Board's proposal (J-2). However, some "Special Requests," which were part of the proposal were disapproved including, inter alia, funding for five computers (four for the students and one per teacher) in each of 40 classrooms under construction (designated as Schools No. 44 and 45). According to the Department, the Board already had received adequate funding for "start up" classroom materials, supplies and technology sufficient to meet its needs and these funds provided for enough computers (J-2, p. 6). That determination is one of two items which are the subject of the instant appeal.

Although nine (9) separate areas initially were identified in the Board's Verified Petition of Appeal with respect to the denial of its funding requests, seven were settled prior to the start of the hearing on March 1, 2004, leaving only the computer issue mentioned above and another issue to be described below.

In its Instruction and Guidance document the Department specifically noted that preschool disabled students are already supported by funding through regular State School Aid, N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-1, et seq.; thus, no such child, either in a self-contained classroom or included in a regular education preschool classroom, would be separately funded through preschool program aid. To make its point, the Department instructed the Board that classified preschool students must not be included in any line item within the preschool program support areas because funding for those students was covered pursuant to the Comprehensive Educational Improvement and Financing Act (CEIFA). Those students are required to be included in the district's pupil enrollment data and each is supported by a minimum of $11,569 per pupil with no related services (Tier I), up to a maximum of $22,586 for students classified as "Tier 4" who also may receive up to four related services, based on the 2002 level of aid. "Tier 4" are the more severely disabled category of classified preschool disabled pupils. See, N.J.A.C. 18:7F-19.

The Board's Verified Petition was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case on February 19, 2004 and plenary hearings were scheduled for Monday, March 1, 2004 and Tuesday, March 2, 2004. However, the first hearing date, March 1, was used by the parties to discuss resolution of some of the issues. As a result, all but two of the issues were resolved and those two were the subject of the testimony at the hearing conducted on March 2, 2004.

At the conclusion of the hearing, I directed counsel to submit Proposed Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law no later than March 12, 2004. However, in a March 15, 2004, letter I also asked counsel to comment upon the impact, if any, of the March 12, 2004, Appellate Division decisions in the consolidated Millville, Pemberton, Phillipsburg and Neptune cases. See, Millville Bd. of Educ. v. New Jersey Dept. of Educ., ___ N.J. Super. ____, decided March 12, 2004. The following constitutes my Initial Decision rejecting the Board's arguments and approving the position taken by the Department with respect both to the "technology" issue (funding for computers for Schools No. 44 and 45), and with respect to the appropriate method for funding preschool disabled children.

TESTIMONY

A. Board of Education of Elizabeth

Testimony on behalf of the Board was offered by four witnesses: Valerie Anne Dunn, Supervisor of Early Childhood Education; Richard Esperon, Supervisor of Technology; Alice Chiarello, Director of Special Services and Harold Kennedy, Controller.

Dunn, the person primarily responsible for development of the Board's 2004-2005 Early Childhood Education programmatic budget, pointed out that in accordance with the Instructions and Guidance received from the Department it reluctantly was determined that funding for special education could not be included in that budget. Although preschool disabled students who are "included" in regular classrooms (as opposed to attendance in self-contained classrooms) initially are included, they had to be removed (J-2, p. 2 of 2). In the case of Elizabeth, current enrollment figures as of Fall 2003 indicated 14 such students at a cost of $12,410 each and Dunn stressed the substantial need in a district like Elizabeth with regard to providing adequately for its entire preschool disabled population. The Board's submission to the Department in mid-November 2003 (J-1), also noted that to the greatest extent possible consistent with their IEPs, children with special needs would receive services in the regular classroom setting. Thus, as of February 26, 2004, Elizabeth anticipated a total of 42 preschool "inclusion" children, or 1.6 percent of the total projected 2004-05 pupil population (P-5).

With respect to the request for technology funding (five computers) for Schools No. 44 and 45, Dunn identified the Special Request forms pertinent thereto. For School No. 44 (Special Request 45) the total amount requested was $518,067; for School No. 45 (Special Request 44) the total amount requested was $520,147. Each Special Request anticipated five computers per preschool classroom – four to service the students and one for each teacher. Dunn observed those needs were determined by comparing them to existing preschool programs, such as in School No. 50, where there are five computers per classroom. Thus, the Board's proposal to provide the same number of computers for the two centers under construction sought nothing more than "parity" with existing classrooms.

Although the Department turned down the two Special Requests for additional computers (it approved funding for only two per classroom) on the basis that the Board received adequate funding for such technology items, she disagreed. The other monies provided for those schools simply was not adequate to fund, as well, the purchase of the total numbers of computers actually needed. For example, each teacher needs his or her own computer for access to the internet, e-mail, District curriculum guides, confidential evaluative data and the like. Also, providing less than four computers for 15 students creates delays resulting in situations where, at times, some pupils do not have computer time at all.

The Board's second witness, Richard Esperon, is its Supervisor of Technology who helped develop and integrate technology into the preschool curriculum. Like Dunn, he also commented that the request to fund five computers per classroom was designed, in part, to stay consistent with what already existed in preschool programs in other schools.

Esperon also identified an extract from the State Board of Education's Three-Year Technology Plan (P-2) which, he noted, specifically encouraged a student to multimedia computer ratio of 5:1 or less in order to provide necessary access for students and staff and to enhance achievement of one of the State's own technology goals. Thus, the Board's Technology Plan (P-3), consistent with the State's Plan, calls for a computer for about every four students and one for each teacher, and has been approved both by the Department's regional office – the Union County ETTC – and by the Division of Technology.

The third Board witness, Alice Chiarello, has been Director of Special Services for the last seven years. Her responsibilities include oversight of services for preschool disabled, both "included" and "self-contained." She identified the numbers of preschool instructional staff (P-4) and the number of included and self-contained preschool disabled children which, as of February 26, 2004, numbered 55 "included" and 40 in "self-contained" settings (P-5). She also identified a class profile of preschool disabled children (P-6) which described in further detail the objectives sought to be obtained in accordance with State requirements. The thrust of Chiarello's testimony was to attempt to further demonstrate that the Department's determination no longer to separately fund preschool disabled programmatic needs through the early childhood budget was inimical to the carrying out of the State and local missions to provide a structured and supportive learning environment for preschool special needs pupils.

The last witness for the Board was Harold Kennedy, the Controller, whose responsibilities include oversight of the accounting and budget operations of the district. According to Kennedy, the determination to eliminate funding in the early childhood budget for preschool disabled children, and to now require districts to provide services for them out of the general school aid budget (CEIFA), deprives the District of the ability to carry out its mission in a meaningful way. According to Kennedy (and Chiarello), for the past few years the Board has not even had adequate funds to provide for all of the special education services called for in its budget, and to add to that regrettable situation by shifting nearly the entire cost of preschool disabled services to the general budget for 2004-2005 would be devastating. To that end, for example, he observed that the total tuition cost in 2003-04 for 21 out-of-district placements for preschool disabled was in excess of $874,000, and the tuition often exceeded $40,000 per pupil (P-7). Indeed, with respect to three students at the Crossroads School, their tuition was $44,775 each, and with respect to another placement at the Jardine School, the tuition was in excess of $50,000.

B. Department of Education

Two persons testified on behalf of the DOE, Allen Dupree, Manager, Office of School Funding and Tonia Davis, an Educational Program Specialist who is the Department's liaison to the Board.

The first witness, Dupree, described the Office of School funding as primarily devoted to research and fiscal policy analysis. Prior to becoming its Manager he was a research analyst and, before then, worked for a public policy research concern in Washington, D.C. Dupree holds a Bachelor's Degree in Political Science from Swarthmore College and a Master's Degree in Public Affairs from Princeton University. He is quite familiar with the concept of Early Childhood Education aid in New Jersey and in preparation for the proceeding prepared a data sheet describing how it is calculated (R-1). Primarily, pursuant to statute (N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-3), preschool disabled students specifically are included in the determination of a school district's enrollment with respect to CEIFA (the Comprehensive Education Improvement and Financing Act of 1997) under which state education aid for districts is calculated. According to Dupree, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-3; 7F-12, and 7F-19, disabled preschool students already are included in the enrollment figures which drives the amount of CEIFA aid and to continue separately to fund them, as well, in the Early Childhood funding would "double count" these students.

Specifically referring to the analysis he prepared for the hearing (R-1), Dupree noted that per pupil funding under CEIFA for fiscal year 2002 included, on average, over $16,000 for each disabled student. This consisted of approximately $8,300 for T&E, $3,260 for Tier II classification (the "default" classification) and approximately $5,400 for other categories. He also noted that a student classified in Tier III would receive nearly $6,000 in special education aid, as opposed to $3,260 for the Tier II student, and a Tier IV student would receive an additional $13,037, thereby increasing total aid for such a student to over $26,000. Dupree also observed that his enrollment trend analysis reveals that over the past few school years the number of Tier II elementary students actually has declined, which suggests that assuming no formula change the funding provided for preschool disabled pupils through CEIFA was and should continue to be sufficient to provide necessary services. He further noted that since in his calculation he used Tier II, the "default" classification, the funding figures were "conservative" and students classified in higher tiers and/or receiving related services would generate even more funding.

Accordingly, using the budget figures provided by the Board in November 2003, and the number of inclusion students (14), he calculated that the available funding actually provided a surplus of $60,000 over and above the total cost (R-1). In short, the Abbott mandated needs of preschool disabled students in this school district are being met through CEIFA funding and there is no need to provide separate, additional funds for them. Indeed, if a need could be demonstrated by the Board for such additional funding there are mechanisms available for it to apply to the State for "Preschool Expansion Aid" or "Extraordinary Special Education Aid." See, N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-19(b). He agreed, of course, this would require an additional appropriation and the Department could only request the funds, it could not guarantee they would be offered.

During his cross-examination by Board counsel, Dupree described the approach the Department was taking vis a vis the preschool disabled population as follows:

"THE WITNESS: I believe if I'm understanding it correctly that's not the case. You have [hypothetically] a million dollars in needs we'll call it for the preschool population, and say another 10 million for the K through 12 population, for a total of 11 million dollars. The district received, for example, and we'll just assume everything is fully funded for this example. The district received 11 million dollars per the CEIFA formula for special education purposes, and then in the early childhood program in previous years, I'm not quite sure of the exact timing, they received an additional one million dollars.

"What the Department is saying is in this 11 million dollars we gave you, a million of that should have been spent on the preschool population, because they generated that revenue, so therefore we're not going to give you a total of 12 million dollars anymore to support 11 million dollars worth of needs. We're going to give you 11 million dollars to support.

"Q [Mr. Shapiro] Do you know that as a fact? Did you look into Elizabeth's budget to find out whether in fact the district was given sufficient money to fund the preschool special education program in the past in the district wide budget?

"A I'm not positive, but I actually do not believe that's the case, but I'm not positive.

"Q Okay.

"A However, I want to clarify the Department is not saying take money out of the district budget and spend it on preschool. The Department is saying take the revenue that the preschool disabled children generated, and spend it on the preschool disabled population." Transcript, pp. 124-20 to 126-8.

And further:

"Q Is it your claim that the shift in preschool education cost for special education to the district wide budget was designed to avoid double funding, or was it as Mr. Kennedy testified to require the district to absorb additional costs for supplemental funding out of – special education out of the district wide budget without getting – with the same flat funding that its received in prior years?

"A Well –

"Q Do you follow my question?

"A I followed your question. First I would not characterize the Department's position as a shift of these preschool disabled costs to the district wide budget. I characterize it as the Department's position being that the preschool disabled population should first be funded with the revenue they generate, and to the extent that that has not happened in the past the Department wants to correct that, so to the extent that a preschool disabled student generates X number of dollars, you use that X number of dollars to support the students needs.

"If additional needs are there and that funding is not sufficient to support that students full needs, then there would be some need for some additional allocation revenue to the district, but you would not count that – you would not start off with fully funding the preschool disabled population in a preschool budget while they're simultaneously generating other State revenues.

"Q What you theoretically believe has happened, but you don't have any evidence of it actually has happened?

"A What we definitely know is not theoretical, it's actual that they generated X amount of revenue in the preschool budget, and that was simultaneously the revenue generated from CEIFA. Now, whether or not the money that was generated by CEIFA was spent in early childhood or elsewhere I don't know. But we definitely know that they generated revenue in two different places." Transcript, pp. 146-11 to 148-1.

And, finally, in colloquy with the undersigned:

"Q [Judge Weiss] In a nutshell is the Department saying, you know, you're getting more than you need, you're getting it in two places and you shouldn't get it in two places. The one place under CEIFA, that should do it, because you're including the disabled?

"A Well, the Department is saying you're getting it in CEIFA. If that's not sufficient then we can talk further about what additional revenue you would need, however, you would not for example – take for example of their budget that where the Department deducts the $173,000 for the inclusion students. That represents – that includes the full cost of that inclusion student, so if we fully funded the preschool budget with those students in there, and they also generated this additional revenue through CEIFA, you would give them more revenue than they need. Now, it's possible that may be some of the self-contained students, or students were educated out of district, some additional revenue would be needed, but that should be revenue on top of the CEIFA revenue, as opposed to that full cost paid for it here, and then the CEIFA revenue is still out there unused.

"Q Okay. But it's true also that – may be you're not the right person to ask, but you don't know the actual on the ground experience with regard to how the money was used for example last year, the year before, whether or not there was a short fall and they had to take funds out of CEIFA to supplement?

"A That's correct. I do not know – I do not know that for certain, and if that was in fact the situation, then I presume what would happen under what the Department says we should do now is that the District would just say the preschool money generated by these students is not sufficient to cover the full cost, we need some additional funding.

"Q So the Department is saying if you do it the way we say you're supposed to do it that should be enough, and if you need more come and tell us and we'll talk about it.

"A Correct." Transcript, pp. 150-8 to 151-22

The last witness, Tonia Davis, is liaison to the Board in the area of early childhood education and in that capacity helped in the development of its preschool budget. She is certified in special education and holds both Bachelor's and Master's Degrees in Social Work. Davis confirmed that for 2004-05, special education preschool funding was taken out of the early childhood budget and left to be funded through CEIFA.

With regard to the technology issue (funds for only two computers per class as opposed to the five requested) she felt the total amount of funding per each of 40 new classrooms (over $19,000) gave the Board the discretion to work within that amount to purchase more than two computers if it felt such additional items were necessary. She did not believe a teacher needs his or her own personal computer since the first use should be for the student and teachers could use another available computer in the school.

On cross-examination, Davis conceded she was not that familiar with the State Technology Plan's recommendation of a five students to one computer ratio as a benchmark (P-1), nor had she seen the Board's own technology plan (P-3). She agreed that a limit of two computers per classroom was not to be found in any guideline or regulation with which she was familiar, although neither did she see any requirement that each teacher must have a computer either.

Finally, in rebuttal, the Board recalled both Dunn and Kennedy to repeat their views that the denials with regard to the proposed early childhood education budget left the school district with inadequate funds to deliver the necessary services demanded by the Abbott cases.

DISCUSSION

The first issue is the Board's claim that it is entitled to funding adequate to purchase five (5) computers for each of 40 new classrooms, 20 in School No. 44 and 20 in School No. 45. As noted, the respondent's position with regard to the two Special Requests is multiple. First, that the budget for early childhood programming already takes into account new classroom "start-up" costs and to that end over $12,000 was added to each classroom amount, totaling $19,250. According to the Department, this funding is sufficient to provide discretion to the Board to allocate its purchases so that it could acquire more than two computers per classroom if it so desired. If the Board chooses to permit one computer to be devoted exclusively to teacher use, that is its choice. The funding provides for enough to purchase two computers for students and the teacher can use a student's computer as necessary.

With regard to the Board's contention that the extra computers are needed in order to meet curriculum needs, the Department noted there was no competent educationally based proof in that regard since Esperon is technology, not curriculum oriented – particular in early childhood education matters.

With respect to the Board's claim that the State's Technology Plan (P-2) justifies, if not requires, a student ratio of five to one, at least, the Department responds that since there is a maximum of 15 students per classroom, even if this was a requirement it would mean only three computers (15 ÷ 5), not five. Moreover, there is no requirement in any rule, regulation or statute that every teacher also must have a computer, and in any case the five to one ratio is simply a suggested "benchmark" for goal achievement and is not specified nor intended to be a mandate. Thus, the District has adequate funding for two computers per new classroom and can, if it wishes, purchase one or more within its discretion out of the additional funds it will receive.

For its part, the Board maintains that it simply seeks "parity" with other early childhood programs at School No. 50 and neighborhood schools and there is no reason to "shortchange" the new classrooms by providing only a meager amount of computers and none for the teacher. It points, in this regard, to the State Plan guideline which, while admittedly not a mandate, recommends that in order to help achieve the early childhood education goals set out by the New Jersey Supreme Court, proper technologic support is needed. The Board also points to the fact that its own plan calling for five computers per classroom was reviewed and approved by the regional authorities, as well as the Department's own Office of Technology, and limiting access by 15 students and a teacher to only two computers could cause students either to be delayed or to lose time on the computer.

In respect to this issue, I believe that the Department's position must be sustained essentially for the reasons it has articulated. First, while it might be preferable to provide a computer exclusively for a teacher's use, there is no legal requirement this be done and, as respondent has observed, there likely is at least one computer that teachers can use in the building. While I agree with the Board that ensuring equity and equality in educational programs is certainly a goal which hopefully will be obtained, that cannot mean that every classroom in every school must have exactly the same materials and supplies. Even if I adopt the suggested guideline of five students to each computer, this would only mean one, not two or three more, per preschool classroom. The fact that both regional and state technology offices approved the Board's plan does not convert that approval into a requirement that funding be provided separate and apart from that already made available. Their approval can be read equally to support the proposition that if the Board wants to provide that number of computers per classroom, they are free to do so.

The second and larger issue has to do with the methodology by which the Department determined to provide early childhood education funding for disabled students in 2004-05. The obligation to pay special attention to these special needs three and four year old children cannot be argued – it is a requirement of huge dimension. Whether it is also of State constitutional dimension has not been resolved and was specifically left open in Abbott V. Such an extension, of course, to preschool students, could have monumental financial implications.

Nevertheless, according to the Board, there are three reasons why the Department's position excluding preschool disabled from the early childhood budget is improper: (a) it violates the spirit, at least, of the Abbott cases; (b) it conflicts with the Department's own regulations; and (c) it is arbitrary and capricious.

As to the first point, the very recent Appellate Division decision in Millville, et al., supra, provides guidance:

> "We conclude, as did the Commissioner, that the adoption of whole-school reform, with its inclusion of preschool education in the Abbott districts, was designed by the Court as a remedy for the past constitutional deprivation of a thorough and efficient education for children between the ages of five and eighteen in the Abbott districts. In so recognizing the nature of Abbott V's mandate, and in comparing that mandate with others rendered by the Court in this context, we also conclude that the Court did not intend to require exclusive state funding of preschool in the Abbott districts."

"Here, in requiring preschool programs in the Abbott districts to remediate the prior deprivation of the constitutional right to a thorough and efficient education for children between the ages of five and eighteen, the Court's directives take on a less mandatory tone. Instead of compelling State funding of the implementation of all preschool programs included within whole-school reform, the Court simply imposed an obligation on the Commissioner to "ensure" that such funding is provided:

> 'In directing the implementation of preschool programs in the Abbott schools, the Commissioner must ensure that such programs are adequately funded and assist the schools in meeting the need for transportation and other services, support, and resources related to such programs. The Commissioner may authorize cooperation with or the use of existing early childhood and day-care programs in the community.'
> [Abbot V., supra, 153 N.J. at 508 (emphasis added)].

"It is the Court's direction in Abbott V that the Commissioner "ensure" and "assist" which has informed the Commissioner's decision, and our affirmance of that decision, that other resources, including funds existing at the district level, may be allocated for these purposes." Millville, supra, Slip Opinion at pp. 10, 11, 12.

Thus, as the Appellate Division then concluded:

> "Since the Supreme Court has not mandated exclusive State funding for all aspects of preschool education in the Abbott districts and since the Legislature has not provided for the funding of preschool beyond the funding components of PSEA and ECPA, we agree with the Commissioner's determination that the State is not mandated to exclusively fund preschool in the Abbott districts and that local resources, if available, may be allocated for such purposes." Millville, etc., supra at p. 15.

Accordingly, there is no mandate in the Abbott cases, or in any statute, rule or regulation requiring the Department to fund preschool disabled education other than how it proposes to do so in this case. As described by Dupree, if there is a deficit the local district must share in shoring up any shortfall.

The Board's second reason for challenging the Department's methodology is equally unavailing - a self-imposed requirement that a high quality preschool education for all eligible three and four year olds presupposes that all the funds necessary to implement the same will be provided. N.J.A.C. 6A:10A-2.4(a)(18). The methodology used by the Department, as described by Dupree, does not contradict that salutary objective for a "high quality preschool program" is capable of achievement with the funds provided through CIEFA and other categorical special education program funds. These would include Consolidated Aid, Education Opportunity Aid and Early Childhood Program Aid ("ECPA"), not to mention federal IDEA aid. Indeed, this being the case, the Board's "arbitrary and capricious" argument also must fail.

CONCLUSION AND ORDER

Accordingly, for the reasons set forth above, I CONCLUDE that the two issues heard in this case should be determined in favor of the respondent and I ORDER that the Board's Verified Petition of Appeal be DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1(d), the Initial Decision is the final decision in this matter with respect to those issues resolved between the parties. SYNOPSIS

Petitioning "Abbott" Board of Education appealed the Department of Education's determination with respect to funding for the district's 2004-05 preschool program.

As to the appropriate method for funding preschool disabled children, the ALJ concluded that the State is not mandated to exclusively fund preschool in the Abbott districts and that it had not been shown that the Department's calculations would not presumptively generate sufficient funding within the district-wide budget in order to assist the Board relative to its preschool disabled programs. The ALJ found that the Department's decision to include the special education preschool disabled population within the scope of the district-wide budget and not within the preschool budget was consistent with the Administrative Code and Statutes. The Board's appeal was denied.

The Commissioner adopted the ALJ's decision as his own with modification making note of revisions made to the Department's exhibit R-1.

NEW JERSEY DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION,

Respondent.

Carolyn Grace Labin, Deputy Attorney General, for respondent (Peter C. Harvey, Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney)

Record Closed: March 17, 2004 Decided: March 23, 2004

BEFORE JOHN R. FUTEY, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

In this matter the Board of Education of the City of Gloucester, Camden, County (hereinafter "Gloucester"), which is a petitioning "Abbott" district, appeals the determination by respondent, the New Jersey Department of Education (hereinafter "DOE") regarding funding of it's Early Childhood Plan (hereinafter "ECP") for the 2004-2005 school year pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:24-1.1 et. seq.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner Gloucester filed a Verified Petition of Appeal with the DOE on February 17, 2004, in which it alleged insufficient funding of it's pre-school program mandated by the Abbott v. Burke line of decisions. The matter was thereafter transmitted by the DOE to the Office of Administrative Law (hereinafter "OAL") and received by the OAL on February 18, 2004 at 4:08 pm. Thereafter, on February 19, 2004, the case file was received by this administrative law judge at 7:30 am, immediately after which counsel for the parties were contacted and a telephone prehearing conference was conducted early on the morning of the same date. At that time, the hearing dates of March 10, and 17, 2004, were peremptorily set. Thereafter, on February 24, 2004, a Letter Order was issued which recited and reconfirmed that the matter would be held on those dates at the OAL in Mercerville, New Jersey. In addition, the Letter Order stated: "I herewith direct that I receive a written opening statement from each of you on or before March 3, 2004. That statement should identify all the issues to be resolved at hearing and each party's position, vis-`a-vis facts as they understand them to be, regarding those issues, including relevant case/statutory law." In addition, specialized instructions regarding the pre-submission of all pre-marked exhibits were set forth. Thereafter, on February 27, 2004, a telephone conference was conducted with both counsel at 2:15 pm at which time the DOE's Ms. Labin advised that her only witness, who was scheduled to testify on the first hearing date, was scheduled to be in Salt Lake City, Utah, with another DOE representative at a conference at that time. The parties were ordered to reverse their presentations accordingly. In addition, at the parties' joint request the date to submit their exhibits and statements/positions was extended to Friday, March 5, 2004. Additional documents were submitted by the parties, by agreement and with this ALJ's consent on Monday March 8, as well as immediately prior to the commencement of the first day of hearing on March 10, 2004.

As the hearing commenced on that date, this administrative law judge advised the parties regarding his understanding of the issues, as framed by the parties in their written submissions. Each side has submitted one issue for consideration. At that time, counsel for the petitioner objected there were two other issues which should also be considered by me, notwithstanding his failure to have articulated them in his response to the letter order. After careful reconsideration, and, notwithstanding the parameters of the letter order as aforesaid, it was ordered that the parties would be permitted to submit and supplement all of their issues no later than Friday, March 12, 2004, with the opportunity to reply to same by both sides on March 15, 2004. The testimony of several of the witnesses proceeded on that basis on March 10, 2004. The hearing continued to completion on March 17, 2004, at which time the hearing record closed. Pursuant to my pre-announced order, written summations were submitted by both counsel by the end of the court day.

FACTS

Based upon the totality of the evidence presented, both testimonial as well as documentary, the following constitute the relevant facts adduced from the five witnesses who testified in this matter.

Nina Longer

Nina Longer is the Director of Special Services for Gloucester, in which capacity she has been employed for 11 years. As part of her responsibilities, she insures compliance regarding Special Education in the Gloucester District, including all eligible pre-school disabled children between the ages of three and five years of age. Those special education program participants are based upon referrals generated for children in those age categories. In the process, each child gets psychological, educational, social and speech/language assessments, as well as in appropriate cases, neurological assessments among others. Once eligibility is determined, an Individualized Education Program (hereinafter "IEP") is created in accordance with the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act, 20 U.S.C.A., 1400, et. seq. as well as N.J.A.C. 6A:14-1 et. seq. She noted that Gloucester is required to provide a continuum of services in the least restrictive environment for each child, which continuum ranges from in-class placement to self-contained classrooms, and may even include out-of-district –placement.

She reviewed the pre-school population in Gloucester which was contained in Exhibit P-3, which and represents pre-school children with disabilities who were counted in Gloucester's Application for State School Aide (hereinafter "ASSA") for the school years encompassing the years 2000 to 2004. Three "tiers" of disabilities were denoted in that chart prepared by her staff. Tier 2 represents preschoolers with disabilities who are without intensive needs. This population may include "inclusive" students, who are to be included in the mainstream population of the school for educational purposes. Tier 4 students require more intensive services such as an extended school year (hereinafter "ESY"). Tier 1 students represent a duplicated count for those students who received up to four related services. The ASSA chart (P-3) revealed that the projected enrollment at Gloucester for 2004 includes 10 Tier 2 students, 6 in-district Tier 4 students and 28 Tier 1 students. She did not project any out-of-district students for next year since one child has moved on to a higher class level. She noted that for the one child who attended the Lark School in Westville, Gloucester County, New Jersey, the tuition for that one child is $33,000.00 per year and $17,000.00 for transportation.

She also reviewed the staff allocation for all pre-school children in Gloucester (P-1). She indicated that there are three pre-school disabled teachers on that list. She also noted that in the self-contained classroom there are six pre-school disabled children. In the two inclusive classes, there are 14 pre-schoolers out of which six in each class receive special education services along with 9 regular education pre-school participants. Each of the two inclusive classes have a full time special education teacher, who directs the needs of them regarding individual IEPs in order to have their needs addressed. The effort is meant to have the six be part of the regular population in the inclusive setting.

Regarding the funding of pre-school disabled students, she helped develop the budget with James Devereaux, the district's business administrator. She also "developed the numbers" and hired the teachers. She noted that they are funded by State aid but that the local budget picks up the balance since the bulk of State funding does not provide for all the services. She also noted that it has not been increased since 2000. In fact she noted that the funding goes back to the year 2000 when there was only one Tier 4 student, whereas in the year 2003 there are 8 Tier 4 students. They received no additional funding for the excess students since the year 2000.

On cross-examination she was asked regarding the projected Tier 2 level of 10 students for the year 2004. She indicated that out of that batch 6 are being currently assessed regarding eligibility. She acknowledged that there had been a decrease in the Tier 2 population prior to the projected year of 2004, which reflects the fact that in the year 2000 there were 9 Tier 2 students as opposed to 6 in the year 2003.

When asked about the single Tier 4 child who has received out-of-district placement at the Lark School, she had no idea how much of either the tuition or the transportation costs were actually provided for by State aid.

She was also asked regarding the use of dually certified teachers in the inclusive setting, which pre-supposed that a single dually certified general education and special education teacher could assume the role of the two teachers who presently exist in each inclusive class, thereby reducing those costs significantly. She noted that there is only one such teacher in the district and she has served as only a regular education teacher in the three year old class. She maintained that a dually certified teacher concept would not work out in Gloucester. Everything is IEP driven. She also noted on redirect examination that they only place six inclusive children in each regular education class of 15 in order to provide for an appropriate mix, as opposed to putting all 12 in one class out of a class of possible 15. She indicated that inclusiveness would not be accomplished in such a setting. She also indicated that any dually certified teacher could not give the services on a close order basis and provide appropriate multi-tasking for all the students in that setting. She acknowledged that the New Jersey Administrative Code requires a teacher of the handicapped in the classroom along with a regular education teacher or a dually certified teacher (which subject had been broached by counsel for DOE on cross-examination.) Yet, Ms. Longer indicated that she did not believe that such a teacher could be charged with all such responsibility. It was just not feasible since Gloucester had tried it, as she understood it, for one year. But that "experiment", as she described it, was done approximately three years ago and has not been revisited since that time. At the same time, she offered no specific proofs to support her contention that the "experiment" had failed. And, even though she maintained that Gloucester had exhausted all of the avenues in that regard, she failed to provide any substantiated proofs to corroborate that assertion. She closed her testimonial presentation at that juncture by indicating that dually certified teachers are extremely hard to get in the marketplace. Once again, however, she failed to provide any documentary evidence in support of that assertion. It is noted that she was later recalled a couple of times in order to either augment other district witnesses' testimonies and/or to testify as a rebuttal witness. Her relevant additional testimonies are summarized hereinafter, as appropriate.

James J. Lavender

James J. Lavender is in his second year as the director of the Early Childhood Program at Gloucester. He participated in the preparation of the Gloucester budget for only the 2004-2005 school year. In the process of his work in that regard, he recalled that the district received the budget guidelines from DOE. It was at that time that they were advised that they were not to budget the preschool disabled children in the Early Childhood budget even though it was his understanding that it had been done so in previous years. He noted that they did provide for the disabled population and budget them for inclusion in the budget prepared by the district (J-2) for the 2004/2005 school year. However, they were removed by DOE in its January 2004, letter regarding that budget at which time the DOE deducted the 12 pre-school inclusive students. He prepared a spreadsheet of all preschool children in the district for the 2004-05 projected Early Childhood costs (P-2). The unit cost of educating each inclusion education student will be $10,144.00 for a total of $121,728.00 for all 12 inclusion students. In addition, the per-pupil cost of teacher's salaries ($85,850.00) and teacher benefits ($26,880.00) adds up to $112,730.00 for those students. The total cost for all 12 inclusion students over and above regular education adds up to $234,458.00.

He further indicated that the total district budget would have been $3,109,161.00, but he then acknowledged that $50,000.00 should have been deducted for one of the two out-of-district children, who had moved out of the district after he had made his calculation. At the same time, however, the DOE has only funded $2,617,152.00 for the district. Based upon the disparity between those two budget figures, he computer that the per-pupil cost for each inclusion student is actually $19,538.17 and $19,694.00 for the self contained students. He also noted that they did not even include the extended school year (ESY) costs and acknowledged that he was not even aware of the actual figure for it and, further, did not even know how many extended school year students there were in any event.

total number of students from the year 2000 to 2004. Now there are 8 self contained and 12 inclusion students in the district. Yet, the funding amounts for all of the four first categories in Table One have not increased since 2000. State aid has remained "flat" during that time, and yet the cost for special education students has increased. At the same time, the revenues have not increased.

Further, regarding entry number 5 on Table 1, to wit, the Consolidated Aid (FY-04), he indicated that it was based upon the school year for 03-04 as well as the fiscal year 02 school year of ASSA figures. He noted that from October 2002 through October 2004 the total number of pre-school students increased but that the total amount of Consolidated Aid has not increased. In that case there is less funding for each student.

Regarding the entry regarding Education Opportunity Aid (Line entry number 6 on Table 1), he acknowledged that that funding source is new for this year and is based upon the ASSA for fiscal year 03. Yet, the number of Tier 2 students in that timeframe has increased, even though he conceded there was a drop in Tier 2 enrollment in at least two of the prior years.

He further indicated that, assuming that the funds set for in Table 1 are correct, they will nonetheless remain flat despite there being more students in Gloucester. And, he also "assumed" that if DOE does give all of the aid as promised therein, there would still be a shortfall over and about the $16,447.72 projected by DOE in that funding table.

At the same time, he stated that based upon the ECP approved plan by the DOE, there is not enough to cover the costs of the district, although he volunteered that he even is not yet still sure regarding the recent calculations derived in Table 1. At the same time, however, he noted that even assuming that, the figure of $16,447.00 is correct, the actual costs generated for the self-contained classroom of 8 students was actually $19,696.00. This represented a shortfall of approximately $3,400.00 for each of those students. In the process, he noted that the district also provides extra costs such as one to one aides, equipment for the children including such things as hearing devices, and ESYS, among others, which are above the costs allowed for by the DOE at this time.

He conceded on cross-examination that those extra costs were not specifically delineated by him. Instead, the district has "accepted" the guidance from the State despite the fact that it subsequently got cuts in the approved budget from their requested expenditures. He acknowledged that there is an understanding that Education Opportunity Aid will be adjusted to reflect the real or actual number of students in the district, although he is still skeptical that the true funding amounts will change has a result in any event. In addition, he is not convinced that the Supplemental Aid will be guaranteed to address any addition shortfalls either.

He also admitted that the ASSA figures which the DOE employed were generated from the district and were properly included in the State figure, which reflected the October 2000 elementary enrollment of 91 students as a base. At the same time, he acknowledged that there had been a drop in enrollment in the two subsequent years of 75 students FY 2003 and 62 students for FY 2004. Further, in projecting for FY 2005, there are 80 students projected in the elementary enrollment trend spreadsheet. Although he was asked what happened to the monies in those years when there was lesser actual enrollment than the 91 students who formed the baseline in October 2000, he generally noted only that the district spread around those monies in order to fill in gaps in other programs. He failed to produce any proofs to demonstrate what happened to those excess funds.

In addition, regarding the Supplemental Aid, he conceded that Gloucester could potentially apply for any gaps from that program although he is not aware of any such mechanism in place in order to facilitate that at this time. Finally, he indicated, that, in past years, Gloucester has received additional Abbott v. Burke aid "in cash." Part of it came in the form of a receivable which they never even thought they would get.

Nina Longer was recalled as a witness to supplement James Devereaux's testimony regarding the status of those "excess monies or funds." She indicated that those monies were used during those enrollment declining years in order to reflect shifts in the Tier needs of the children. That is to say, as children generated more severe disabling conditions which warranted additional services, they were up-graded to Tier 4, which compelled additional funding to be plugged in to assist those specialized needs. Generally, she noted that Gloucester "never" has had enough money for funding special education in anyway. She further noted, upon questioning receiving an enhanced entitlement based upon that level of funding. Ms. Longer noted, however, that even though there are Tier 4 children in the district, they do not get funding for all of them. In fact, only one of them was utilized in the count for purposes of the level funds for the year 2000. Yet, the remaining 7 children, who are now projected into the current enrollment for Tier 4, are only receiving Tier 2 funding which is what they received from the 2000 funding level. In fact, of that group of 7, some are not even getting Tier 2 funding in any event. And that results in an additional shortfall overall in the program. In fact, since October 2000, they have generated an increase of 23 children in the program, despite the flatline budgeting assessed by DOE.

LEGAL ANALYSIS

In this matter petitioner's counsel has, by way of supplementing its sole identified issue (#2) after the hearing commenced, raised three issues for purposes of appeal: (1) Whether the DOE's failure to provide adequate funding for disabled children violates the Abbott mandates: (2) Whether the DOE's exclusion of the preschool disabled population from the Early Childhood Program budget conflicts with the DOE's own regulations; and (3) Whether the DOE's exclusion of preschool disabled children from the Early Childhood budget is arbitrary and capricious. In response, the DOE has identified the sole issue as being whether or not DOE's decision to exclude special education preschool children from the pre-school budget is reasonable and should be upheld.

In order to address all four of the issues, cited hereinabove, the parties relied upon the testimony of five witnesses who testified at length and whose presentations are summarized hereinabove. After having considered the testimonies and after having given due deference to the respective positions of the parties in this matter, I FIND that Gloucester has failed to demonstrate any sufficient proofs or any appropriate law in order to grant relief under any of the three issues identified by it therein. The key component relative to all three issues framed by petitioner involves whether or not DOE has complied with the mandates set forth under the Abbott line of decisions. Although, under Abbott v. Burke 153 N.J. 480,518 for (1998) ("Abbott II") the Supreme Court held that the DOE Commissioner "Must insure that such programs are accurately funded and assist the schools in meeting the needs of transportations and other services, support and other resources related to such program," Id. at 508, the Appellate Division held In the matter of Millville Board of Education v. New Jersey Department of Education (A-0886-03T3), et als. decided on March 12, 2004, that":...we follow the Court's prior holdings and conclude that the Court has only directed the Commissioner to "ensure" and "assist" in the "adequate funding" of pre-school programs in the Abbott districts. We are satisfied that the Court's wording of this obligation -- particularly when viewed against the Court's determination not to declare that a preschool education is constitutionally mandated -- fall significantly short of requiring exclusive State funding for preschool programs in the Abbott districts." (Id at page 13)

Further, at page 15, in the same decision, the Appellate Division held: "Since the Supreme Court has not mandated exclusive State funding of all aspects of pre-school education in the Abbott districts and since the Legislature has not provided for the funding of pre-school beyond the funding components of PSEA (i.e., mine, Abbott Preschool Expansion Aid) and ECPA (i.e., mine, Early Childhood Program Aid), we agree with the Commissioner's determination that the State is not mandated to exclusively fund the pre-school in the Abbott districts and that local resources, if available, may be allocated for such purposes."

Taken in total context with that decision, I FIND that, after having considered the testimony of all the witnesses hereinabove, the DOE has in fact provided a satisfactory mechanism in order to address the needs of Gloucester in preparing its pre-school disabled budget at this time. At the same time, it is noted that there is no provision in N.J.A.C. 6A:10A(10A-2.4) which even requires the DOE to account for special education children specifically within the pre-school budget. Similarly, nothing within N.J.S.A. 18A:7F et.seq. requires that the DOE allocates specific funding for special education pre-school students. In fact, there is no provision which even mandates the way in which DOE should distribute special education funds to the school districts. As a result, I FIND that the DOE is in compliance with the Abbott regulations. Further, the fact that Gloucester wants all of its monies delineated up front does not compel DOE to accede to it's demand at this time. Rather, the mechanism which DOE has devised allows for presumptive adequate funding and, should there be any shortfall therein, it allows for Gloucester to seek additional funding as the actual figures become clarified. Further, the new addition of the Education Opportunity Aid for FY 2005 reflects another part of the formula by which DOE is attempting to address, assure, and assist Gloucester's needs under the circumstances. In addition, I am concerned about the lack of clarity regarding the other sources of funding, to wit, the Individuals with disabilities Education Act funding, which can further add to the funding sources on behalf of the district. None of that was presented either graphically or specifically before me to give any indication that there actually is a bonafide shortfall being generated by Gloucester at this time. Rather, I FIND that Gloucester's appeal centers upon its preference to have its funding level locked in at the inception of the approved budget process rather than requiring it to go through various budget reviews with DOE thereafter. I FIND that its preference in that regard to be less plausible than the approach taken by DOE, which agrees that it remains available to assist in the various reassessments which are necessary thereafter. Thus, presumptively the DOE's delineation of the per pupil costs appears reasonable under the circumstances and reflects its ongoing obligation to assist the district in that regard. And I so FIND.

Additionally, the district is required to garner other resources, including funds which exist at the district level, in order to meet those commitments. DOE has also established a mechanism for the district to seek supplemental aid to further assist in that process. Gloucester has provided no actual evidence to support its claim that there have been shortfalls generated as a result of having made such applications in the past, other than to rely upon some vague and unsupported conclusions presented at hearing. Thus, I am not convinced with Gloucester's preferences and nor do I FIND that DOE is mandated to meet Gloucester's ECP pre-school disabled needs in the approved budget in the manner which it prefers.

At the same time, I do not FIND that DOE's issuance of the pre-school disabled Guidelines in August 2003 alters or diminishes its commitment or requirement to ensure and assist the district. Since there is no constitutional mandate upon the DOE to fund pre-school education, any reasonable efforts by it to meet its court-ordered obligations are to be viewed as being sustainable. In the process, I FIND that DOE's apparent failure to affirmatively pursue regulatory rule-making relative to those guidelines does not fatally or materially detract from its acknowledged requirement to assist Gloucester, and those efforts are not contrary to its obligations under the Abbott line of decisions. Thus, to the extent that DOE continues to explore ways to help the district meet its funding goals, I FIND those efforts to be commendable. At the same time, although I am extraordinarily sympathetic with the frustrations and plight of the district as it attempts to meet its business-related obligations regarding the education of its constituency, I am nonetheless constrained to afford significant deference to DOE in the efforts which it has made to presumptively project and reasonably anticipate the costs of educating the children in Gloucester at this time.

At the same time, it is noted that some considerable time was spent at hearing in order to demonstrate how, despite the flatline funding which has been in place since 2000, Gloucester has nonetheless witnessed a decline in its pre-school disabled population and yet, it apparently did not receive a reduction in funding from that baseline level despite those reductions. This is not to suggest that Gloucester has acted inappropriately regarding its apparent excess funds. Rather, it merely points up the fact that there is a certain amount of fluidity in the process which must be periodically scrutinized and reviewed by both Gloucester and the DOE in order to assure that all available funds are reasonably applied and, as appropriate, mandatorally assigned to only those programs for which those funds may be otherwise designated. This is particularly acute in the area of special education where the funding formulas, as identified by Allen Dupree herein, must "holistically" consider all available sources of funding. This is totally consistent with the requirements set forth in the Appellate Division ruling in Millville, et als., cited hereinabove.

CONCLUSION AND ORDER

Based upon all the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that the DOE has demonstrated that it has created and has at its command a plethora of options to assist the district in meeting its required pre-school funding goals. I also CONCLUDE that DOE's policy decision does not violate the Administrative Code under the circumstances. It's decision to include the special education pre-school disabled population within the scope of the district-wide budget and not within the pre-school (ECP) budget is consistent with the statutory provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:7F. I also CONCLUDE that Gloucester has not presented any proofs to demonstrate that the presumptive funding provided to it by DOE, as well as its supplemental funding mechanisms, will not allow Gloucester to implement a "high quality pre-school program," as required by the DOE under N.J.A.C 6A:10-2.4(a)(8)a. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that it has not been shown that DOE's calculations will not presumptively generate sufficient funding within the district-wide budget in order to assist Gloucester relative to its pre-school disabled programs. I make all of the above findings and form all of these conclusions by a preponderance of the credible evidence.

It is therefore ORDERED that the appeal by Gloucester, which challenged the DOE's determination on the funding of its Early Childhood Plan, is herewith DENIED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within the time allowed under the existing orders of the New Jersey Supreme Court and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Notwithstanding the provisions of any rule to the contrary, exceptions to Initial Decisions of the Office of Administrative Law in Abbott District budget appeal matters shall be filed within five (5) days of the date of mailing of the Initial Decision, and reply exceptions shall be filed within two (2) days of receipt of exceptions. File written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF GLOUCESTER, CAMDEN COUNTY, PETITIONER, V. NEW JERSEY STATE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, OFFICE OF EARLY CHILDHOOD, RESPONDENT.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION DECISION

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Respondent's exceptions were filed in accordance with the accelerated timelines for Abbott budget appeal matters.

Respondent's exceptions make the following clarifications to the Initial Decision:

> In the list of exhibits attached to the initial decision, one exhibit is misidentified. On the list, J-3 is identified as the Department of Education's decision regarding Gloucester City's approved preschool budget, dated January 15, 2003. The document is dated January 15, 2004, not January 15, 2003.
> Further, in Judge Futey's findings of fact he refers to the Department's exhibit, R-1. As noted by the opinion, a revision of the exhibit was submitted to the court on March 8, 2004. Judge Futey, on page 13 of his initial decision refers to the unrevised version of R-1 in discussing its Table 3. On line 3 of the initial decision, Judge Futey states that Gloucester City's total approved budget without the inclusion students is $2,629,313; however, on the revised R-1, the total approved budget without the inclusion students equals $2,617,414. (See J-4 and revised R-1, Table 3). Further, on line 4 of Judge Futey's initial decision, he states that the total cost of the inclusion students is set at $109,554. Given the aforementioned change regarding the approved budget total, the total cost of the inclusion students equals $121,454, not $109,554. (See revised R-1). Additionally, the surplus listed on the revised R-1 equals $75,922, rather than the $87,821 listed on line 8 of page 13 of Judge Futey's decision. (See revised R-1). (Respondent's Exceptions at 1-2)

Upon his full and independent review, the Commissioner determines to adopt the Initial Decision of the OAL, as modified by respondent's exceptions, for the reasons stated therein.

Accordingly, the recommended Initial Decision is adopted as the final decision in this matter, with the modifications described in respondent's exceptions quoted hereinabove, and the instant Petition of Appeal is hereby dismissed.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING	:
OF CONSTANCE GERESY, SCHOOL	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
DISTRICT OF THE TOWNSHIP OF	:	DECISION
PISCATAWAY, MIDDLESEX COUNTY.	:

On February 26, 2004, the Office of Administrative Law returned the case file in this matter for review by the Commissioner as a "withdrawal" of the tenure charges against respondent, a tenured bookkeeper, accused of incapacity and/or unbecoming conduct in connection with a late payment of Federal Income Tax Withholding and Social Security payments to the Internal Revenue Service.

In reviewing the file, the Commissioner observes that the Acting Director and Chief Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) advised the parties by letter of February 5, 2004 that, in reviewing the files of an ALJ who had recently retired, "it appears that there has been no activity on this case for a significant period of time." (Letter from Acting Director and Chief ALJ, dated February 5, 2004) The Acting Director and Chief ALJ thus instructed the parties to contact him within 30 days if there was an interest in pursuing the matter, and further advised the parties that failure to respond within that time frame would result in the matter being dismissed for failure to prosecute. (Ibid.)

By letter of February 11, 2004, respondent's attorney replied, stating, in pertinent part:

> It is my understanding that the above captioned matter was withdrawn, Ms. Geresy is now retired and the matter is moot. (Letter from respondent's attorney, dated February 11, 2004)

The Board did not respond to either the letter by the Acting Director and Chief ALJ or the February 11 letter of respondent's attorney.

Accordingly, the Commissioner determines that, in light of respondent's retirement from the District, there is no basis upon which this matter can be ordered to proceed and it is, therefore, dismissed as moot.

Record Closed: July 7, 2004 Decided: July 14, 2004

BEFORE SOLOMON A. METZGER, ALJ:

This matter arises out of tenure charges filed by petitioner with the Department of Education pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case in 1998[1], pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to –15. A hearing was conducted over the course of twelve days and the record closed on July 7, 2004, with the receipt of briefs.

[1] The proceeding was considerably delayed by criminal indictments in Mercer County and by a State Grand Jury. Both indictments were eventually dismissed. Scheduling was further complicated when the Attorney General refused to release evidence gathered during his investigation, requiring separate litigation. Finally, progress was encumbered to a degree by a pending civil suit initiated by L.K. against both parties here.

Certain facts are undisputed. Respondent was born in May 1955 and was employed as a social studies teacher at Nottingham High School. During the 1996/97 school year he also served as the yearbook advisor and stage crew manager for production of the annual play. At the time L.K. was a sixteen-year-old eleventh grader, who volunteered as a stage crew assistant. She was a student in respondent's advanced placement European History class. The tenure charges assert that respondent engaged in a sexual relationship with L.K. from approximately February 28, 1997 to May 1, 1997. Respondent was escorted from the school on May 5, 1997, and suspended indefinitely pending a resolution of these allegations.

L.K. testified that she and respondent developed a sexual relationship while she served as a stage crew assistant for the annual school play. The affair began on the evening of February 28, 1997, while L.K. and other students were in the school auditorium helping respondent set up lights and microphones. Sometime between 6:00 and 7:00 p.m. respondent asked her to accompany him to the audio-visual room to search for extension cords. L.K. complied and testified that after locating the extension cords respondent turned out the lights in the room and moved toward her. He began touching her over and under her clothing and she started to squirm. Respondent released her and as they prepared to leave the room he grabbed her wrist and asked her to tell no one of the incident. L.K. testified that later that evening, between 7:00 and 8:00 p.m., respondent asked her to go with him to the music room to find a lamp and she went along willingly. He sat on a chair and pulled her down so that she was sitting on his lap with her back towards him. He rubbed her back and after a few minutes they left.

L.K. testified that after a few more meetings she and respondent began to engage in sexual intercourse. These liaisons occurred in a number of locations throughout the school, including the girls locker room, respondent's classroom, the yearbook room, the audio-visual room and in the loft above the janitor's closet. Additionally, on or about April 8, 1998, they went to respondent's home during the school day and had intercourse in a guest bedroom. L.K. testified that during one of a few encounters in the loft above the janitor's closet, she and respondent leaned against a wooden ladder while engaged in sexual activity. L.K. began a diary in which she reflected on these events (P-55).

L.K. testified that she told a few friends about the relationship and the information leaked out more widely during a school trip to Europe when she left her journal out and then saw classmates reading it. The trip to Europe began on March 27, 1997 and the group returned on April 6, 1997. Respondent and his wife were chaperones for the trip and L.K. had no sexual contact with him during this time frame. The relationship resumed upon their return from Europe.

On April 10, 1997, L.K. was called to the office of the Principal, Michael Zapicchi, who confronted her about the relationship, in the presence of the school nurse; she denied the allegation. L.K. sought out respondent to inform him and he inquired whether she had disclosed the relationship to anyone. She denied any disclosures and he suggested they "lay low" for a while.

L.K. testified that she and respondent next had sexual relations on or about April 17, 1997. Respondent called her fourth-period teacher, Ms. Sokol, and said that L.K. was wanted in the guidance office. Ms. Sokol released her, but at the guidance office L.K. was told that no one there had summoned her. On leaving the area L.K. saw respondent standing near the auditorium door. He told her that he had placed the call to Ms. Sokol and they went into the booth at the rear of the auditorium and had intercourse there. L.K. testified that she and respondent next had sexual relations in the same location on April 22, 1997. Their next and last encounter took place on or about May 1, 1997, the day before a class trip to New York City. L.K. testified that at this point her mother had gotten wind of the relationship and when confronted by her mother she confessed.

L.K. acknowledged initially telling the police that her relationship with respondent was non-consensual primarily because she had not intended for any of this to happen. Subsequently she learned that consent merely meant that her involvement was voluntary and she then conceded that the relationship had been consensual. L.K. also told the police that she was fearful to end the relationship, but actually she was just uncomfortable with her role and thought this slant would cast her in a better light. L.K. conceded that some of the notes she wrote to friends during this period about the relationship were fanciful and exaggerated. She was attempting to persuade her peers that this was not a tawdry affair with an older married man, but a romance more akin to the relationships they were reporting on. She also said that respondent wore a condom, but actually that was not true.

Leonard Santa Maria is currently an assistant principal in the South Brunswick School District. During the period in question he was a teacher at Nottingham High School, was chairperson of the social studies department and producer of the school play. He and respondent were friends and colleagues. Mr. Santa Maria knew L.K. through the school play as respondent's assistant.

Mr. Santa Maria testified that he visited respondent at his home on the evening of May 6, 1997, the day after he was summarily suspended and escorted from school. As the social studies chairperson he had to arrange for substitutes to assume respondent's teaching duties for the remainder of the year and needed certain information from him. Respondent and his wife, also a teacher at the school, generally discussed the allegations and they were both visibly upset. At one point during the conversation respondent asked Mr. Santa Maria to step out onto the patio, outside of his wife's presence. Respondent was distraught and said that he needed a favor. Mr. Santa Maria testified that respondent asked him to collect some cleaning supplies and go to the loft area above the janitor's closet at the high school where he was to wipe away any telltale ejaculate that might be present. Respondent said that he had sexual relations there the year before with A.K., another student who had since graduated, and did not want the authorities to come upon this and mistake it for evidence in relation to the current allegations.

Mr. Santa Maria testified that he just nodded as respondent made this request. They reentered the house and respondent's wife asked what they had been talking about. Respondent made some noncommittal response and Mr. Santa Maria left as soon as he could. As he was leaving respondent said "I would do this for you and we never had this conversation." Mr. Santa Maria testified that he then telephoned another teacher and they met to discuss the incident. They decided not to get involved and Mr. Santa Maria did not volunteer this information when he was interviewed by the police and the District's investigator, Mary Jane Cooper, Esq. He was told by lawyers for the New Jersey Education Association to answer only those questions put to him and that is what he did.

Some month's later Mr. Santa Maria was speaking with Mr. Zapicchi, the Principal, about a laptop computer that was missing. Mr. Santa Maria indicated that he thought respondent may have lent this computer to A.K., the female student respondent said he had sex with during the prior school year, and this led him to disclose the conversation he had with respondent on May 6, 1997. Mr. Santa Maria testified that he cried during this conversation and during subsequent conversations he had with various investigators, as this disclosure was quite uncomfortable for him.

Detective James Molinaro and investigator Nancy Beiger, of the New Jersey State Police and Division of Criminal Justice, respectively, testified that they went to Nottingham High School on August 26, 1998 to collect samples in locations to which they were directed. This included the girl's locker room, library, audio-visual room, and janitor's closet. The area is darkened and substances of interest are revealed using a specialized light source that creates a luminescence. Among these were stains in a drip pattern on the two bottom steps of the wooden ladder in the loft above the janitor's closet. These steps were removed, packaged and sent to the laboratory with the other samples.

Dr. Charlotte Word is the director of Cellmark Diagnostics Inc., a Maryland laboratory that performs DNA testing. Dr. Word was admitted as an expert in molecular biology and DNA testing. She explained some of the science supporting DNA testing and the procedures and protocols used at Cellmark for this purpose. These methods are now widely accepted in the field. Dr. Word related that although 99.9% of human DNA is exactly the same, there are loci on the DNA molecule that reflect variability and thirteen of these are now examined for forensic purposes. The sample taken from the wood pieces delivered to the lab contained sperm cells and this DNA was compared with a blood sample from respondent. Dr. Word concluded that the DNA from the wood samples matched the DNA from the blood sample. The chances that the sperm sample came from anyone other than respondent were 1 in 3.1 quadrillion (P-99).

Cross-examination inquired into two earlier DNA tests performed in 1997 and 1998 that were inconclusive (R-5, R-6). Dr. Word explained, however, that advances in the field using the thirteen loci approach were developed since those tests were performed. The prior reports were inconclusive because fewer loci were being used, but nothing in those earlier reports is inconsistent with her current findings. In fact, when those loci are added to the most recent evaluation, they simply increase the likelihood that the sperm molecules on the wood pieces tested come from respondent. Dr. Word conceded that other samples of hair and fiber received by Cellmark proved inconclusive.

Donna Ireland is a custodian at Nottingham High School who works the 3:00-p.m.-to-11:00-p.m. shift. Ms. Ireland testified that one evening in 1997 she saw respondent walking with a blonde-haired girl who was wearing a baseball cap. She was cleaning inside the nurse's office and heard the yearbook room door, a few offices away, open and close. When she finished cleaning in the nurse's office Ms. Ireland went to the yearbook room to clean, but the lights were out and the door was locked. She moved on to clean elsewhere and saw Carl McRae, the supervisor of custodians. Ms. Ireland testified that she recounted her observations to him and as they stood and talked respondent and the girl came out of the yearbook room and walked toward them before turning in the direction of the cafeteria (P-5). Ms. Ireland noticed that some part of respondent's undershirt was hanging out from under his shirt.

Carl McRae has been on the janitorial staff at Nottingham High School for some twenty-three years and is currently the supervisor of the custodial staff. He knew respondent and that he was the yearbook advisor and play manager. It is part of his job to know which teachers and students are authorized to be in the building after hours. Ms. Ireland stopped him one evening and told him that respondent had gone into the yearbook room with a girl, and as they were talking respondent and a girl departed that room. Respondent would typically say hello, but on this occasion his head was down and he made no eye contact. Respondent's undershirt was half out and the belt he was wearing was hanging down loosely. The girl was blonde and had on jeans, a shirt and a cap. Mr. McRae recognized her as a student in the school, but didn't know her name. He reported the incident to Harvey Highland, an administrator, who said he would inform Mr. Zapicchi.

Michael Zapicchi was the principal at Nottingham High School during the period in question. On or about April 10, 1997, he learned through a parent that respondent and L.K. may have been involved and he began to look into the matter. Respondent and L.K. both denied any wrongdoing. He spoke with L.K.'s mother about these rumors and also came into possession of a spiral notebook, which L.K. and a few other girls used to communicate back and forth during classes. Among other things, these notes discussed the relationship between respondent and L.K. (P-72).

Respondent also presented a series of witnesses. Respondent's father, Mr. Lewis Shinkle, Sr., his father-in-law Mr. Bob Callahan, and his sister-in-law Ms. Deborah Gottlick, all testified briefly that they were in and out of respondent's house at different times of the day on most days of the year, to see to the dog, or otherwise care for the property. Raymond Gibbs, the chief custodian for the Board of Education during the period in question, testified that he went up into the janitor's loft a few times a week and that a swim team, the Hamilton Aquatics, used the pool every night from 6:00 p.m. to about 11:00 p.m. He was not there at this time, but his night custodian would report this.[2] Ralph Petty, a retired Hamilton Township detective currently employed by the Mercer County Prosecutor's Office, testified that he was in the loft area above the janitor's closet and it is fairly cramped, dirty and dangerous, and is an unlikely meeting place for sex. Alicia Orlowski was a senior student at Nottingham High School during the period in question. She was an editor of the yearbook and the publication deadline was approaching as the school play was in rehearsal. She and other staff were in the yearbook office constantly in the evening. Additionally, she and other students regularly used the sound booth area to eat lunch, or do homework.

Robert Hamilton was a Hamilton Township police officer for twenty-five years and has been involved in many crime scene investigations. He was sent to Nottingham High School to investigate L.K.'s allegations. He took photographs and, using appropriate light sources, checked for body fluids in the areas where these alleged liaisons occurred. He used his light source in the loft area, but did not focus on the ladder, as no specific report of sex there had been made at the time. No sperm samples were found elsewhere in the loft. In the audio-visual room he viewed a suspect area on a desk where a sexual encounter had been reported and he took a swab, which proved negative. Pursuant to protocol officer Hamilton also took a control swab in an adjacent area of the desk some six inches away, which as it happens, proved positive for sperm. This wasn't too surprising as material can smear from one spot to another. These fluids were inconclusive regarding respondent or L.K.

[2] The parties stipulated that the leader of the Hamilton aquatics would have testified that the group was authorized to use the facility every night from about 6:00 p.m. to about 11:00 p.m., but that they may or may not have fully used all of that time on any given night.

Darwin Keefer was a Hamilton Township detective in 1998 who was assigned to investigate the possible theft of a computer at Nottingham High School. He interviewed Mr. Santa Maria on this subject and after the formal interview was done he confronted Santa Maria concerning his initial failure to mention any conversation with respondent about tidying up after him in the loft area above the janitor's closet. Mr. Santa Maria became upset and Detective Keefer attributed this to a guilty mind.

Respondent testified briefly and flatly denied that he and L.K. had a sexual relationship of any kind. He thought she was a troubled young girl. He further denied ever asking Mr. Santa Maria to clean up his ejaculate. He did not know how his sperm found passage onto the ladder in the loft area above the janitor's closet, but he speculated that it may have been on his shoes and somehow transferred that way. This is the substance of the record.

Petitioner must show by a preponderance of the credible evidence that respondent engaged in a sexual relationship with L.K. while she was a student at Nottingham High School. This has been done. L.K. credibly related that she and respondent commenced a sexual relationship on February 28, 1997, that ended on or about May 1, 1997. She provided descriptions of these encounters in some detail, though with the passage of time a few dates and particulars were blurred in her mind. L.K. acknowledged that she was not fully truthful with the police initially, or with her friends as she sought to explain this affair to herself and to others. She also has pending a civil suit in which she stands to recover substantial sums if her version of events is endorsed.

The effort to undermine L.K. also included a body of testimony meant to show that the locations she described were unlikely venues for an assignation. All of the individuals who testified in this regard – Lewis Shinkle Sr., Mr. Callahan, Ms. Gottlick, Mr. Gibbs, Officer Petty, Ms. Orlowski - were fine witnesses, but none of this makes sex in these locations unachievable.[3] Risky behavior in pursuit of coital pleasure is exposed too often to give much credence to the idea that the conduct was improbable because it would have been incautious.

Importantly, this is not a case of "he said she said," where subtle facts must be carefully sifted to reach an answer that narrowly preponderates in one or another direction. The evidence is fairly one-sided. Dr. Word, a highly qualified expert, testified that the sperm specimen found on the wood pieces she tested came from respondent. The level of statistical likelihood, 1 in 3.1 quadrillion, creates a fact bordering on certainty. Respondent called no DNA expert to disagree with Dr. Word's methods or conclusions. The wood pieces tested are actually two rungs from the ladder in the loft above the janitor's closet, a location identified by L.K. as a place where she and respondent engaged in sexual relations. She recalled that during one encounter in the loft they leaned against the ladder. No better explanation suggests itself for the presence of respondent's issue in this location. His apparent befuddlement concerning the presence of his sperm on the ladder was feigned and his surmise concerning his shoes reached for a benign account. The testimony of Officer Hamilton concerning the possibility that samples can smear from one spot on a desk to another was supposed to underpin this suggestion.

Mr. Santa Maria also supplied relevant corroboration. As a friend and colleague he was reluctant to come forward and did not do so for some months after the matter came to light. In an excited and desperate moment respondent effectively admitted to the illicit relationship by asking Mr. Santa Maria to dispose of any telltale ejaculate in the loft above the janitor's closet. We are not here to discern whether respondent had sex with A.K., a student who graduated a year before the incident at bar, and a matter about which there are no charges. Rather, it is likely that the story was an effort to enlist Mr. Santa Maria's aid without appearing to suggest that he destroy evidence in a pending case.

[3] The parties suggested a site visit to the loft after Officer Petty testified. Three attorneys, an assistant principal and I climbed into the area and stood there together with adequate elbowroom. The only inhibition to intimate relations in this location is ambiance.

Respondent sought to weaken Mr. Santa Maria by attacking his initial failure to come forward and his explanation for that omission. At hearing Mr. Santa Maria clung to the notion that he truthfully answered the questions put to him by various investigators and that he followed the advice of NJEA lawyers not to volunteer information. Mr. Santa Maria exhibited a narrow understanding of his obligation to be forthcoming with investigators, and he could not concede even now, some years after the fact that he behaved improperly. While this made him vulnerable to attack, on balance I accept his recitation. No evidence was developed that points to any animus, or other motive that might have stirred Mr. Santa Maria to fabricate so strange and ruinous a story. From every indication respondent and Mr. Santa Maria had a cordial relationship. Moreover, Mr. Santa Maria made his disclosure to Mr. Zappicchi in the latter part of 1997, long before respondent's semen was identified in the loft area. The subsequently developed DNA evidence is significant confirmation that Mr. Santa Maria accurately relayed the essence of his May 6, 1997 conversation with respondent.

Given the nature of the offense little need be said regarding the merits of the proposed penalty. Respondent grievously exploited his position of trust and disgraced himself, the district, and his profession. Dismissal is the only appropriate penalty. See generally, Frugis v. Bracigliano, 177 N.J. 250, 268 (2003), regarding the high obligation of school officials toward the students in their care.

Based on the foregoing, I conclude that petitioner has established good cause for the removal of a tenured professional under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10, and it is ORDERED that respondent be dismissed.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. Record Closed: April 13, 2004 Decided: April 28, 2004

BEFORE EDGAR R. HOLMES, ALJ:

The petitioner, Deborah M. Trionfo, was employed by the Glassboro Board of Education until February 14, 2003, at which time she was terminated in a reduction in force for financial reasons. Petitioner claimed continued employment in view of seniority rights over non-tenured personnel. At the time, there were three music teachers employed in the school district who were non-tenured. Petitioner was certified as a music teacher, kindergarten - 12th grade. The Board of Education denied petitioner's claim of tenure. The petitioner requested a fair hearing and the matter was transmitted to the OAL on May 5, 2003, to be heard as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to 15 and 14F-1 to 13. The parties filed a joint stipulation of facts and exhibits and cross motions for summary judgment. Petitioner's exhibits also contained an Affidavit of the petitioner which was not a part of the stipulation and which I did not read. The record closed on April 13, 2004.

A SUMMARY OF THE RELEVANT FACTS

Petitioner was employed by the Glassboro Board of Education in 1989. She was employed as a substitute teacher until February 1, 1992, when she became a Special Population Coordinator, part time. In that position she was employed until June 30, 1992, and again in the next school year, from September 17, 1992, until June 30, 1993.

Meanwhile, on March 9, 1993, the New Jersey State Department of Education invited proposals for a Program for Displaced Homemakers in order to teach survival skills. This proposal included staffing requirements. The educational attainment of the coordinator of the program proposed was, in pertinent part, as follows: "A designated person responsible for coordination for each project paid in full or part time who shall be a qualified counselor or teacher..."

The petitioner was named to the position. She is a certified teacher of music, kindergarten to 12th grade. Her teaching certificate was issued February 1982.

The program began in the 1993-1994 school year and continued through 1994-1995 and 1995-1996. The program was again approved for the school year 1996-1997 by the Glassboro Board of Education. For a fourth continuous year the petitioner was employed as the coordinator according to the Board minutes of the meeting of August 21, 1996. Petitioner remained in this and similar positions involved in adult education until her termination in February 2003.

These facts alone establish that petitioner obtained tenure on the first day following the third anniversary of the program in the 1996-1997 school year. N.J.S.A. 18A-28-5. The statute is quite clear. There are three ways to obtain tenure if you are a certified teacher or other employee in a position which requires certification, with certain exceptions which are inapplicable to the petitioner. The three methods are:

> (b) Three consecutive academic years, together with employment at the beginning of the next succeeding academic year; or
> (c) The equivalent of more than three academic years within a period of any four consecutive academic years.

Petitioner also meets the three requirements of Spiewak v. Rutherford Board of Education, 90 N.J. 63, 73, 74 (1982), which interpreted the statute. She was required to possess a teaching certificate, she held a teaching certificate, and she served the requisite period of time.

In addition, the petitioner was endowed by the Board of Education with all of the emoluments of tenure. She was referred to in all subsequent contracts as a tenured teacher and treated accordingly in salary, benefits and responsibilities. These facts are not necessary to show tenure, but indicate that the Board of Education recognized that petitioner achieved tenure long ago.

The Board of Education, in denying petitioner's tenure claim relies on Brown v. Board of Education of Warren Township, Somerset County, EDU 7432-01 (2001), aff'd October 24, 2002, from which the instant case may be distinguished. In Brown, the employees were certified, although not required to be so. In this matter, the petitioner was certified and the Commissioner's proposal required certification.

In their briefs, the parties underline the words of the tenure statute most favorable to their case. The Board of Education underlines the words ...all teaching staff members...; the petitioner underlines the words and such other employees as are in positions which require them to hold appropriate certificates... These phrases appear in the same sentence, which is the opening paragraph of the tenure statute defining who is eligible. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. The latter phrase describes the petitioner.

CONCLUSION

I therefore CONCLUDE that the Glassboro Board of Education violated the petitioner's tenure rights when it failed to honor her tenure claim in 2003.

REDUCTION IN FORCE

Reductions in force are approved by the legislature. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9. The legislature also has derived a method by which tenured teachers and others may sort out their status and respective rights, duties, and obligations. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-11, 12.

Petitioner is entitled to reinstatement.

ORDER

I ORDER the Board to reinstate petitioner in the position of music teacher, together with all back pay and emoluments, subject to mitigation. In the absence of such a position, I ORDER that she be placed on a preferred eligibility list.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

M.N. and E.Y., o/b/o minor child K.N.,

STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT OF JERSEY CITY, HUDSON COUNTY, DR. CHARLES EPPS, FRANKLIN WALKER, ANNE BUTLER AND LAURA BUCCINNA, Respondents.

Mark S. Tabenkin, Esq., for respondents (Scarinci & Hollenbeck, attorneys)

Record Closed: May 12, 2004 Decided: June 17, 2004

BEFORE ELINOR R. REINER, ALJ:

Procedural History

On or about October 30, 2003, petitioners M.N. and E.Y. on behalf of K.N. appealed to the Commissioner of Education, alleging that respondents' determination to retain K.N. in the fifth grade for school year 2003-2004 was arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable. Petitioners also asserted that respondents' actions constituted intentional infliction of emotional distress on K.N. and his parents; constituted racial and/or religious discrimination based on national origin; and violated K.N.'s civil and constitutional rights. Respondents filed an answer on November 14, 2003, denying certain of the allegations and asserting that petitioners' claim was barred for failure to file within applicable time limitations and mootness. On November 24, 2003, the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

The case was assigned to the undersigned on December 1, 2003, and a telephone prehearing conference was held on December 12, 2003. During the prehearing conference, the issues were isolated, a settlement conference was scheduled for March 12, 2004, and a hearing was scheduled for April 26, 27 and 30, 2004, at the OAL.

On or about February 20, 2004, prior to the scheduled settlement conference, counsel for petitioners moved to be relieved. On or about March 1, 2004, respondents moved for summary decision, alleging that the petition was barred by the 90-day limitation of N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(d).

An in-person settlement conference was held on March 12, 2004, at the OAL. At that time, since petitioners agreed that their attorney would no longer be representing them, I signed an order relieving petitioners' then attorney as counsel of record. Although another attorney appeared at the conference, he indicated that he would not be representing petitioners. Thus, at petitioners' request, I gave them an extension until April 5, 2004, to retain another attorney to represent them and to respond to the pending motion for summary decision. Respondents were to reply by April 15, 2004.

As a result, the hearing dates of April 26 and 27, 2004, were adjourned. On or about April 12, 2004, the undersigned was advised by Benjamin D. Light, Esq., that he now was representing petitioners and requested a three-week extension to respond to respondents' motion for summary decision. During a telephone conference held on that date, counsel agreed that the time for petitioners' response to the motion would be extended to April 29, 2004, and the reply filed by May 10, 2004. As a result, the hearing scheduled for April 30, 2004, was adjourned to June 18, 2004.

Issues

At issue is whether respondents' decision to retain K.N. in the fifth grade for school year 2003-2004 was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable and, if so, what would constitute the appropriate remedy. Respondents asserted that also at issue was whether petitioners are barred from pursuing this appeal pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(d), and whether the 90-day limitation period should be relaxed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.16.

Facts

It is clear from a review of the certification of counsel for respondents, and the attachments thereto, as well as the petition, that the facts necessary for determination are essentially undisputed. They may be summarized as follows:

1. K.N. was in the fifth grade during the 2002-2003 school year.

2. Petitioners received K.N.'s final report card in June 2003.

3. The report card stated that K.N. would be retained in the fifth grade, Room 305, for the school year beginning September 4, 2003.

4. When petitioners received the report card they were aware that K.N. was being retained.

5. Petitioners consulted with a medical professional to determine whether there might be a medical basis for K.N.'s poor performance. Paragraph 11 of the petition of appeal states:

> Upon learning that K.N. was to repeat the fifth grade, K.N.'s parents, the petitioners herein, were astonished and devastated. On June 30, 2003, they took K.N. to a neurologist for examination. The neurologist's report, prepared on or about July 18, 2003 is attached as Exhibit F.

6. During the summer of 2003, petitioners, through a lay representative, sought to persuade the respondents not to retain K.N. in the fifth grade.

7. Petitioners have provided no certification or any specifics in support of their assertion that K.N.'s retention in fifth grade remained under review and could be reversed.

8. On September 3, 2003, petitioners were again informed that K.N. would be retained.

Arguments of Counsel

Petitioners contend that respondents' motion for summary decision should be denied since material facts are in dispute in regard to the date that a "final decision" was communicated to them. Petitioners also allege that even if the petition was filed untimely, the limitations period should be relaxed because K.N. was the victim of discrimination based on his race, religion and/or ethnic background. Thus, since a matter of significant public interest is involved, strict adherence to the 90-day limitation is inappropriate.

Respondents contend that the petition is barred by the 90-day limitations period of N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(d), since the period began to run in June 2003, when petitioners received notice that K.N. would be retained in the fifth grade for the 2003-2004 school year, and the petition was not filed until October 30, 2003. Respondents assert that petitioners' self-serving efforts during the summer of 2003 to persuade the district to reverse its decision to retain K.N. in the fifth grade did not toll the running of the 90-day limitations period. Further, respondents contend that there is no basis in the record for relaxing the strict 90-day limitations period since there is no compelling or exceptional circumstance to warrant relaxation or waiver of the 90-day rule. To the contrary, this case presents the narrow issue of K.N.'s alleged right to be promoted to the sixth grade, which is not a fundamental public interest. In fact, respondents contend that failure to dismiss the petition of appeal at this late date will only result in a hearing on an issue which is essentially moot, since K.N. will already have repeated the fifth grade at the time of the hearing.

Discussion

Summary Decision

N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b) provides that summary decision should be granted "if the papers and discovery which have been filed, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law." This language is substantially similar to the guidelines for summary judgment under New Jersey Court Rule 4:46-2(c).[1] The OAL's standard for summary decision is as set forth by the New Jersey Supreme Court.

Summary decision is granted if, after considering the evidence presented in the light most favorable to the non-moving party, there exists no genuine issue of material fact. Brill v. Guardian Life Ins. Co. of America, 142 N.J. 520, 523 (1995). The essential

[1] R. 4:46-2(c) provides, in part:

> The judgment or order sought shall be rendered forthwith if the pleadings, depositions, answers to interrogatories and admissions on file, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to a judgment or order as a matter of law.

question is "whether the evidence presents a sufficient disagreement to require [a hearing] or whether it is so one-sided that one party must prevail as a matter of law." Id. at 533 (quoting Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, Inc., 477 U.S. 242, 250, 106 S. Ct. 2505, 2511, 91 L. Ed. 2d 202, 213 (1986)). The Court recognized that this necessarily involves the judge in the process of weighing the evidence presented. When determining whether a genuine issue of material fact exists, "the court [should] be guided by the same evidentiary standard of proof . . . that would apply" at a hearing. Ibid. This weighing differs from the weighing the judge would perform after a hearing in that "[o]n a motion for summary [decision] the court must grant all the favorable inferences to the non-movant." Id. at 536.

It is clear that the standard for summary decision has been met in the instant matter. As stated in N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b), the requirement imposed on a party opposing the motion is to submit an affidavit setting forth specific facts showing that there is a genuine issue that can only be determined in an evidentiary proceeding. Thus, one must not only show that there is a genuine factual issue, but also that such issue can only be determined in an evidentiary proceeding.

In the instant matter, petitioners did not submit such an affidavit and provided no specifics as to representations made, either express or implied, that the retention of K.N. remained under review. They failed to set forth specific facts that indicated that they were in some sense lulled into a false sense of security that the determination to retain K.N. in the fifth grade would be reconsidered. In sum, the motion for summary decision has not been adequately opposed. Even granting petitioners all favorable inferences, there is no support for their allegation that the 90-day limitations period did not begin to run in June 2003, when petitioners received notice that K.N. was being retained in the fifth grade, instead of promoted to the sixth grade. The facts, undisputed in any meaningful manner, support respondents' assertion that petitioners' right to challenge the retention decision commenced at that time.

The 90-Day Rule

The threshold issue in this matter deals with whether petitioners' claim was timely filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(d), which provides in pertinent part as follows:

> The petitioner shall file a petition no later than the 90th day from the date of receipt of the notice of a final order, ruling or other action by the district board of education, individual party, or agency, which is the subject of the requested contested case hearing.[2]

In Kaprow v. Board of Education of Berkeley Township, 131 N.J. 572, 582 (1993), the New Jersey Supreme Court held that the Commissioner and the State Board of Education have the authority to establish a time limitation for the resolution of disputes arising under the school laws and addressed the public policy reasons behind the 90-day rule:

> The limitations period provides a measure of repose, an essential element in the proper and efficient administration of the school laws. It stabilizes the relationship between the teachers and the administration. . . . The limitation period gives school districts the security of knowing that administrative decisions regarding the operation of the school cannot be challenged after ninety days. . . . N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c) represents a fair and reasonably-necessary requirement for the proper and efficient resolution of disputes under the school laws.

The public policy, which favors providing school districts with "a measure of repose," must be weighed against the right of the petitioners to be notified that the school district has taken a position adverse to them. Thus:

> Adequate notice must be sufficient to inform an individual of some fact that he or she has a right to know > and that the communicating party has a duty to communicate. Moreover, adequate notice under the regulation must be sufficient to further the purpose of the ninety-day limitations period. . . .

[2] Formerly N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c), recodified as N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(d) effective April 3, 2000. The language of N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(d), except for an addition not relevant here, is identical to that of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c). Therefore, cases interpreting N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c) will apply to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(d) and the regulations will be used interchangeably here.

> . . . [T]he notice requirement should effectuate concerns for individual justice by not triggering the limitations period until [the petitioner has been alerted to the existence of facts that would be adverse to it]. At the same time, it should further considerations of repose by establishing an objective event to trigger the limitations period in order "to enable the proper and efficient administration of the affairs of government."
> [Kaprow, supra, 131 N.J. at 587 (citations omitted).]

Adequate notice under N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(d) should accommodate the dual purposes of the limitations period:

> The first is to stimulate litigants to pursue a right of action within a reasonable time so that the opposing party may have a fair opportunity to defend, thus preventing the litigation of stale claims. The second purpose is "'to penalize dilatoriness and serve as a measure of repose'" by giving security and stability to human affairs.
> [Ibid. (citations omitted).]

In Kaprow, the petitioner was notified by a secretary of the respondent board that someone else was given her job. The Court held that such informal notice satisfied the notice of a "final order, ruling or other action" required by N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c). Id. at 588.

In North Plainfield Education Association v. Board of Education of North Plainfield Borough, 96 N.J. 587 (1984), the New Jersey Supreme Court found that the petitioners were on notice that they had not advanced on the salary scale when they received their first paycheck for the subsequent school year. The Court held that the petitioners were required to file their petition for salary scale credit within the 90 days following the receipt of their first paychecks.

The 90-day requirement has been strictly followed and applied almost without exception. Specifically, in Dreher v. Jersey City Board of Education, EDU 2777-87, (December 18, 1987*), adopted*, Comm'r (February 2, 1988), aff'd, State Bd. (July 8, 1988), a petition filed just two days after the 90-day period expired was dismissed. Other cases have also strictly applied the 90-day rule.

In this case, K.N.'s final report card was issued in June 2003 and it notified his parents that he was being retained in the fifth grade for the 2003-2004 school year. Unlike the situation in Kaprow, in which the Court determined that informal notice satisfied the notice requirement, this notice was neither unofficial nor informal. Thus, the 90-day limitations period began in June 2003 when petitioners received notice that K.N. was being retained in the fifth grade instead of being promoted to the sixth grade. Since petitioners did not file their petition of appeal until October 30, 2003, more than four months later, it is untimely pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(d).

Although petitioners would have the undersigned determine that attempts through their representative to persuade the district to reverse its decision to retain K.N. in the fifth grade tolled the running of the 90-day limitations period, the applicable case law clearly establishes that such attempts to resolve a dispute by means other than filing a petition of appeal do not toll the limitations period. As pointed out by respondents, even attempts to secure redress by filing for arbitration do not toll the 90-day limitations period. See, e.g., Riely v. Hunterdon Central High School Bd. of Educ., 173 N.J. Super. 109 (App. Div. 1980); Bd. of Educ. of the Township of Bernards v. Bernards Township Education Ass'n, 79 N.J. 311 (1979).

In Pacio v. Board of Education of Lakeland Regional High School District, 1989 S.L.D. 2060, 2069, the Commissioner stated:

> Further, the Commissioner would clarify for the record that requests to a board (of education) for reconsideration of its final decision do not toll the running of the 90-day rule.

Similarly, in J.M. v. Board of Education of City of Summit, Union County, EDU 3937-98 (April 14, 1999), aff'd, Comm'r (June 1, 1999), rev'd, State Board (November 3, 1999)[3] <http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html>, the Commissioner stated:

> As stated by the New Jersey Supreme Court in Kaprow, supra, attempts to resolve a claim through negotiation with the local board of education are irrelevant. Such efforts do not negate the fact of receipt of adequate notice nor do they toll the running of the time limits for filing a petition of appeal.

In fact, as pointed out above, there is no competent proof in the instant case that the retention was ever actually under review or would be reversed through negotiation.

The next issue, then, is whether the circumstances warrant relaxation of the rule and allow the petition to be filed after the 90 days has lapsed. The governing regulation provides as follows:

> The rules in this chapter shall be considered general rules of practice to govern, expedite and effectuate the procedure before, and the actions of the Commissioner in connection with, the determination of controversies and disputes under the school laws. Where such rules do not reflect a specific statutory requirement or an underlying rule of the OAL, they may be relaxed or dispensed with by the Commissioner, in his or her discretion, in any case where a strict adherence thereto may be deemed inappropriate or unnecessary or may result in injustice.
> [N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.16.[4]]

The 90-day rule may only be relaxed under exceptional circumstances or if there is a "compelling" reason to do so. Kaprow, supra, 131 N.J. at 590. Certain cases are [3] The State Board reversed the Commissioner's decision on the grounds that a letter written by the pro se petitioners within the 90-day limitations period constituted a petition of appeal. Since petitioners were not advised that they had filed their papers in the wrong office until after the 90-day period had expired, the State Board found it inequitable to hold the petitioners had failed to file a petition in a timely manner. The State Board's decision did not, however, reverse the legal principle stated above.

[4] N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.16, effective April 3, 2000, is the recodification of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.15. However, the language in both regulations is substantially the same.

excepted from the rule, which include "cases involving (1) important and novel constitutional questions; (2) informal or ex parte determinations of legal questions by administrative officials; and (3) important public rather than private interests which require adjudication or clarification." Brunetti v. Borough of New Milford, 68 N.J. 576, 586 (1975). The expenditure of public funds is not a sufficient public interest to justify a waiver or relaxation of the 90-day rule. Elmwood Park Bd. of Educ. v. Farrell, 95 *N.J.A.R.*2d (EDU) 375, 378. Moreover, the authority to relax or waive the 90-day rule is rarely invoked and is generally unsuccessful unless strict adherence would be inappropriate, unnecessary or where injustice would occur. DeMaio v. New Providence Bd. of Educ., 96 *N.J.A.R.*2d (EDU) 449, 453 (citing Gordon v. Passaic Bd. of Educ., 1985 S.L.D. 1929, 1931, aff'd, A-3294-84 (App. Div. May 27, 1986), certif. denied, 105 N.J. 534 (1986)). On the other hand, the Appellate Division has held there is justification for relaxation of the 90-day rule where "the Commissioner's findings that [a] petitioner was reasonably led to believe that he could continue to informally seek relief and not be concerned about the time limitations for filing his formal petition are adequately supported by the record and that strict adherence to the 90-day time limitation . . . would result in individual justice not being served." Brown v. Bd. of Educ. of the Vocational School in the County of Sussex, A-4854-83T7 (App. Div. April 4, 1985).

Petitioners here assert that the limitations period should be relaxed since this case concerns issues of public importance that petitioners have consistently pursued. They allege that K.N.'s teacher harbored and acted upon a personal animus towards K.N. and that K.N. was the victim of discrimination based on his race, religion and/or ethnic background. They claim that his teacher's animus towards him affected the grades she gave him and that having such a teacher is a matter of public concern.

Having considered these arguments, I CONCLUDE that no compelling or exceptional circumstances exist to warrant relaxation or waiver of the 90-day rule. As pointed out by respondents, factually, there is nothing in the record that supports the existence of a viable discrimination claim. Although petitioners alleged discrimination in their petition of appeal, they have submitted no certifications by anyone possessing personal knowledge of such discrimination. Moreover, as pointed out by respondents, petitioners may have another remedy, even if the petition of appeal is dismissed on timeliness grounds, under the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination, N.J.S.A. 10:5-1 et seq.

In sum, petitioners have failed to appropriately identify any substantial constitutional issue or one of fundamental public interest beyond that of concern to petitioners themselves regarding which grade K.N. would enter in the 2003-2004 school year. Further, petitioners have failed to demonstrate that strict adherence to the 90-day rule would be inappropriate, unnecessary and result in injustice.

As pointed out in Bogart v. Board of Education of City of East Orange, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 6245-82 (January 26, 1983), aff'd, Comm'r (March 14, 1983), by Administrative Law Judge Stephen G. Weiss:

> Obviously, every time an otherwise meritorious claim is time barred, for whatever reason, there is, in a general sense, an "injustice." . . . [T]he point to be made is that there will always be an arguably harsh result when the 90-day rule is applied. But the cases which have interpreted and applied the rule teach that this is no reason not to use it. Indeed, if the rule was relaxed simply because the result would be harsh if applied, then the rule might as well be ignored in its entirety on nearly every occasion.

Further, as pointed out above, there is no evidence here to support the fact that petitioners were reasonably led to believe that they could continue to informally seek relief and not be concerned about the time limitation for filing their petition. They have failed to demonstrate that they were lulled into a false sense of security that continuing to argue their position would in some way extend the 90-day time limitation.

Finally, as pointed out by respondents, in Le Mee v. Board of Education of Village of Ridgewood, 1990 S.L.D. 663, 671, 673, where the petitioner argued before the Commissioner that the 90-day limitations period should be relaxed because "the possibility of age discrimination and improper evaluations in a public school system is of sufficient public importance to override strict adherence to the letter of the law," the Commissioner stated that:

> In this case . . . the alleged violations were individual ones committed against petitioner alone, and were not embodied in any policy or procedure of the district that might result in harm to others if her individual claim were to remain unexamined. Indeed, they were the actions of one man who was not alleged to have discriminated against others in petitioner's circumstances or to have acted at anyone's behest other than his own. In this type of situation, if actions of the sort alleged by petitioner were taken against other staff members, these would be appealable to the Commissioner, who could then address them on their merits and order appropriate remedies as necessary. By the Commissioner's declining to reach the merits in this instance, only petitioner is affected and only to the extent that her deliberate delay in filing has forfeited her right to relief in this forum.
> Such being the case, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ's assessment that the greater public interest in this matter lies with enforcement of the 90-day rule and dismissal of petitioner's appeal as untimely.

As pointed out by respondents, here too, the alleged discrimination claimed by petitioners was an individual one committed against K.N. alone and not embodied in any policy or practice of the district that might result in harm to another if petitioners' claims remain unexamined.

Finally, I am compelled to point out that in essence the claim asserted by petitioners entails whether K.N. should have been promoted to the sixth grade for the 2003-2004 school year. Practically, failure to dismiss the petition of appeal at this late date will result only in a hearing on an issue that at this point is moot. The 2003-2004 school year is over. This is not a situation in which the "equities" call for relaxation of the rule. Strict adherence to the rule will not result in the requisite injustice warranting that it be relaxed.

Conclusion

Based upon the above, I CONCLUDE that summary decision on the timeliness of the appeal is appropriate. Petitioners have failed to set forth specific facts showing that there is a genuine issue of material fact necessitating a hearing on that issue. I CONCLUDE that petitioners' claim was not timely filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(d) and that the circumstances present here do not warrant relaxation of the 90-day rule pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.16.

PETITIONER,

V.

NEW JERSEY STATE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION,

RESPONDENT.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning "Abbott" Board of Education appealed the Department of Education's determination with respect to funding for the district's 2004-05 preschool program.

Of the nine issues in dispute, only two remained following settlement negotiations between the parties -- additional funding for special education teachers and additional funds for an extra half hour of preschool teachers' salaries so that children will receive the full six hours of daily instructional time required by existing regulation. On these remaining issues, noting that the State is not mandated to exclusively fund preschool in the Abbott districts, the ALJ concluded the Department used the basic funding formula and petitioner was not entitled to more favorable treatment. Petitioner must utilize other potential funding and exhaust municipal revenues before applying for supplemental aid. As to the funding of the extra half hour of instructional time, the ALJ found that the Department is only responsible for assuring funding for a six-hour "educational component." If petitioner wants to expand its preschool program beyond six hours, it must look elsewhere for funding.

The Commissioner adopted the ALJ's decision as his own.

This synopsis is not part of the Commissioner's decision. It has been prepared for the convenience of the reader. It has been neither reviewed nor approved by the Commissioner.

BEFORE KEN R. SPRINGER, ALJ:

Statement of the Case

This is an appeal by the Phillipsburg Board of Education ("Phillipsburg" or "Board") from the denial of its request for state funding of certain items contained in its preschool budget for the 2004-2005 fiscal year ("FY '05"). Pursuant to the mandate of the New Jersey Supreme Court, Abbott school districts must provide high-quality preschool programs to their three- and four-year old children and the Commissioner of Education ("Commissioner") must "ensure" that such programs are adequately funded and "assist" local districts in implementing them.[1] Originally, the Board had challenged the amount of funding in nine separate categories.[2] Although the majority of these issues have been satisfactorily resolved, there remain two issues still in dispute.

First, the parties disagree on whether the costs for special education teachers serving disabled children in regular preschool classrooms should be funded through the preschool budget or through the district's K-12 budget. Phillipsburg contends that the New Jersey Department of Education ("Department") has failed to provide adequate funding for its preschool-disabled inclusion population as part of its preschool budget. The Department, on the other hand, maintains that Phillipsburg already receives sufficient funding for this purpose through district-wide state aid and that to include it again as part of the preschool budget would result in counting the same costs twice.

Second, Phillipsburg claims that the Department must pay for an additional half hour of preschool teachers' salaries so that children will receive the full six hours of daily instructional time required by existing regulation.[3] Board witnesses contend that the extra half-hour is necessary so that teachers may monitor the arrival and departure of school buses without reducing actual instructional time. Since the Department has approved funding for six hours of instructional time, it insists that Phillipsburg has sufficient money in its budget to provide the service.

[2] Specifically, these areas were (1) transportation; (2) special education positions, services, resources and programs; (3) salaries and benefits for teachers; (4) salaries and benefits for relief teachers; (5) salaries and benefits for janitors; (6) lunchroom aides; (7) laundry service; (8) technology coordinator; and (9) television coordinator.

[3] In Abbott V, the Supreme Court directed the Commissioner to exercise his power to require all Abbott districts to provide half-day preschool for three- and four-year olds. 153 N.J. at 508. Current regulations have increased the amount of time to a full-day program, including "a six-hour educational component." N.J.A.C. 6A:10A-1.2.; N.J.A.C. 6A:10A-2.2(a).

expenses in its district-wide budget. Instructions for filling out the budget forms for FY'05 clearly say that preschool children with IEPs served in either self-contained or regular classrooms "are NOT funded per pupil by preschool program aid." Instead, the Department would reduce the district's preschool budget by "an amount equal to the total number of students with IEPs in regular classrooms . . . multiplied by the [Department]-approved district average per-pupil cost."

Allen Dupree, manager for policy research in the Department's Office of School Funding, explained that preschool disabled children are included in the annual enrollment count, which number is used to determine the categorical state aid granted to districts under the Comprehensive Education Improvement & Financing Act ("CEIFA").[9] Dupree, who holds a master's degree in public policy from Princeton University, testified that the total amount of aid to Phillipsburg for preschool handicapped children amounts to $15,888.72 per pupil.[10] Further, Dupree noted that this figure is conservative, since preschool disabled children are automatically classified as Tier II, although more severely disabled children may qualify for higher funding as Tier III or IV.[11] Moreover, the figure does not take into account federal funding available under the Individuals With Disabilities Education Act.[12] Thus, according to Dupree, removal of special education costs from preschool funding is necessary to avoid duplicate payments for the same expenses.

Even accepting Dupree's state aid numbers, Phillipsburg predicts a shortfall of $172,505 in its FY'05 preschool budget. In addition, Phillipsburg complains that much of the state aid considered by Dupree was "frozen" at October 15, 2000 enrollment

[9] "Resident enrollment" under CEIFA includes "handicapped children between three and five years of age who are receiving [special education] services," but excludes preschool children who are not handicapped. N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-3. Early Childhood Program Aid is based on "modified district enrollment," which also includes preschool disabled students. Id.

[10] Dupree gave a breakdown of the various components of this sum: T&E Amount of $7,913.00; Special Education (Tier II) of $3,260.00; Supplemental Core Curriculum Standard Aid of $123.00; Early Childhood Program Aid of $506.00; Consolidated Aid of $109.72; and Educational Opportunity Aid of $3,977.00.

figures and does not consider increases in enrollment.[13] As of October 15, 2000, Phillipsburg had an enrollment of 10 preschool disabled children, whereas Phillipsburg projects 12 preschool disabled children for 2004-05. Dupree pointed out, however, that overall Tier II elementary enrollment had actually declined between FY'02 and FY'05 (although funding has remained steady), so that there should be a sufficient cushion in the budget to accommodate any extra handicapped students.

Much of the apparent disagreement between the parties results from a different understanding of their respective legal obligations. Phillipsburg urges that the State should pay for whatever special education services are written into the IEPs of preschool handicapped children by the local child study team. John Consentino, director of special services in the district, said that the IEP "drives" special-education services, which must be adequately funded.

In contrast, Susan Bruder, a project development specialist in the Office of Early Childhood Education, described the Department's goal of improving the quality of preschool education and thereby reducing excessive reliance on special education services. Toward that end, the Department's recommended model emphasizes use of experienced "master teachers" to provide training and support for preschool classroom teachers.[14] At first glance, it appears unlikely that every preschool handicapped child enrolled in an inclusion classes would happen to require additional in-class support. Nonetheless, Bruder acknowledged that she has no reason to believe Phillipsburg is over-classifying children or prescribing in-class support for children who do not need it.

[12] 20 U.S.C.A. §1411, -1433. District witness William Poch quantified IDEA preschool to be approximately $21,100.

[13] Aid for the first four items enumerated in footnote 10 are derived from October 15, 2000 enrollment data, while the last two items are derived from more recent enrollment data.

[14] Districts must furnish "master teachers at a ratio of no more than 20 preschool classrooms for each master teacher." Their duties include modeling, coaching, observing and providing feedback to teachers in preschool programs. N.J.A.C. 6A:10A-2.2(a)(7).

I FIND that the Department properly applied its written guidelines to exclude special education costs from the preschool program budget and include such costs in the K-12 budget. Because preschool disabled children are included in the annual enrollment count leading to other sources of state aid, this procedure serves the reasonable function of preventing double counting of the same costs. Proofs establish that Phillipsburg will receive aid of $15,888.72 per child. If Phillipsburg still has unmet needs, it has other avenues of relief, including applying for additional Abbott v. Burke aid.

(2) Extra Half-Hour of Preschool Instruction

In the course of its review, the Department discovered that Phillipsburg was providing only five and-a-half hours per day of preschool instruction. Consequently, the Department approved an additional half-hour of preschool teachers' salaries to bring Phillipsburg into compliance with the state standard of six hours per day.

Judy Leh, a school social worker employed by the Board as an administrator, felt that it would be "a good idea" to add another half-hour to the preschool day (bringing the total to six and-a-half hours) so that the instructional time would not be devoted to the daily routine of loading students on and off school buses. It takes about fifteen minutes for the children to exit the bus in the morning and fifteen minutes for them to board the bus in the afternoon. Leh has observed this arrival and departure process, which she describes as "very helter-skelter" and of "lesser quality" instructional time. She is not a teacher, however, and admits that Phillipsburg's past practice has been to treat this activity as instructional time. Phillipsburg also counts lunchtime as part of the instructional day.

Department specialist Susan Bruder holds a master's degree in early childhood education and is certified as a nursery school teacher. Familiar with the programmatic aspects of a preschool program, Bruder explained that they "simulate the life rhythms of a three- or four-year old" and are geared to imparting adaptive skills such as self-regulation and orderly transitioning. Although Leh had not yet received training in Phillipsburg's new preschool curriculum, Bruder is fully acquainted with its content. Bruder confirmed that the district's new curriculum regards arrival and departure time as "an integral part of the [school] day."

I FIND that Phillipsburg has received sufficient state funding to provide six hours of quality preschool instruction and is not entitled to more money from the Department to extend teacher coverage for an additional half hour. Curricula designed for younger children, including the version chosen by Phillipsburg, treat arrival and departure from class as a teaching opportunity and, therefore, as valuable "instructional time." Early childhood experts consider this period as part of the learning experience.

Conclusions of Law

Based on the foregoing facts and the applicable law, I CONCLUDE that Phillipsburg's appeal from its preschool budget must be denied, without prejudice to Phillipsburg's ability to apply later for supplemental aid to defray special education costs if there are insufficient resources in its K-12 budget.

In Abbott V, the New Jersey Supreme Court recognized that a strong preschool program "will have a significant and substantial positive impact on academic achievement in both early and later school years." 153 N.J. at 506. Ever since then, New Jersey has been a leader in providing quality preschool education to disadvantaged children. A timely national survey ranked New Jersey as spending "more money per child enrolled and more money per 3 year-old statewide than any other state" and "second in the nation for spending per 4-year old." The State of Preschool: 2003 State Preschool Yearbook published by The National Institute for Early Education Research, at 42.

Earlier this month, the Appellate Division clarified the role of the Commissioner in ensuring quality preschool programming in every Abbott district. In light of the fact that the guaranty of a through and efficient education in the state constitution applies to children "between the ages of five and eighteen," the appellate panel refrained from deciding whether the right to a preschool education for three- and four-year olds is a matter of constitutional compulsion. Millville Bd. of Educ. v. New Jersey Dep't of Educ., 2004 WL 444025 (N.J.Super. A.D.) Rather, the requirement that preschool be made available in the Abbott districts was deemed to be a court-fashioned remedy "necessarily imposed to redress the prior constitutional deprivation for children in the Abbott districts upon reaching the age of five." Millville, at 4.

That being so, the Appellate Division concluded that the New Jersey Supreme Court "did not intend to require exclusive state funding of preschool in the Abbott districts." Id. Quoting language from Abbott V, the Appellate Division construed the Commissioner's responsibility in terms of a duty to "ensure" and "assist" in the adequate funding of preschool programs in Abbott districts. Id. Thus, the Appellate Division upheld the Commissioner's position that full funding of Abbott preschool programs "cannot be viewed as promises or expectations of dollar-for-dollar State funding regardless of resources available in the local district budget." Millville, at 2.

Here the Commissioner is simply requiring Phillipsburg to utilize other potential funding and to exhaust municipal revenues, including local tax levies, before applying for supplemental aid. Certainly the Commissioner did not act arbitrarily or unreasonably when he imposed internal controls to prohibit districts from collecting money twice for the same purpose. Likewise, the Department's regulations, embodying its commitment to assure that the district has funds necessary to implement a high quality preschool program, N.J.A.C. 6A:10-2.4(a)(8), does not imply a complete state assumption of all special education costs.

Special education is basically a distinct concern, with separate sources of funding, from preschool programming. Federal law encourages districts to educate disabled students in the "least restrictive environment." See Oberti v. Board of Educ. of Clementon Sch. Dist., 995 *F.*2d 1204 (3rd Cir. 1993). Guidelines promulgated by the Department reflect this approach and promote inclusion of children with disabilities in general education preschool programs "to the maximum extent appropriate." Abbott Preschool Program Implementation Guidelines (Feb. 2003), at 39. Phillipsburg is to be commended for insuring that all or nearly all of its disabled preschoolers are enrolled in general education classes. Adherence to these standards, however, does not alter the basic funding formula or entitle Phillipsburg to more favorable treatment.

Understandably, Phillipsburg may be disappointed with the lack of any assurance that additional funding for special education will be provided as supplemental aid. No reason exists, however, to doubt the sincerity of the Commissioner's commitment to assist Abbott districts in procuring funds genuinely necessary to provide quality preschool programming. Indeed, last year the Commissioner restored enough money to fund these same teaching positions as a result of Phillipsburg's 2003-2004 budget appeal. Phillipsburg Sch. Dist. v. N.J. Dep't of Educ., OAL Dkt. No. EDU 5501-03 (Sept. 26, 2003), adopted (Comm'r Oct. 20, 2003), modified on other grounds, Dkt. No. A-1253-03T2 (N.J. App. Div. March 10, 2004) (unreported).

With respect to the extra half hour of instructional time, the Department is only responsible for assuring funding for a six-hour "educational component." Funding is available through the Department of Human Services for an additional four hours of "wraparound" preschool programming offering childcare services for working parents. N.J.A.C. 6A:10A-1.2. Having ensured that Phillipsburg has adequate funding for a daily six-hour educational component, the Department has fulfilled its legal obligation. If Phillipsburg wants to expand its preschool program beyond six hour, it must look elsewhere for such funding.

Order

It is ORDERED that Phillipsburg's request for additional preschool funding is denied.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within the time allowed under the existing orders of the New Jersey Supreme Court and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Notwithstanding the provisions of any rule to the contrary, exceptions to Initial Decisions of the Office of Administrative Law in Abbott District budget appeal matters shall be filed within five (5) days of the date of mailing of the Initial Decision, and reply exceptions shall be filed within two (2) days of receipt of exceptions. File written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." NEW JERSEY STATE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION,	:
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. The Department filed "exceptions" to the Initial Decision, noting only that it sought to correct the record of exhibits listed on page 13 of the Initial Decision. Specifically, the Department clarifies that the exhibit identified as "R151-R191" is properly titled the "Three-Year Operational Plan Instructions and Forms, School Years 2003-2004 through 2005-2006." Additionally, the exhibit identified as "R270-R282" is an approval letter dated January 6, 2003, rather than 2004.

Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1(d), the Initial Decision is the final decision in this matter with respect to those issues resolved between the parties. (Initial Decision at 2) With respect to the two issues remaining in dispute, how costs for special education teachers serving preschool disabled children should be funded and whether the Board's request for funds to pay for an additional one-half hour of teachers' salaries was properly denied, the Commissioner is satisfied upon a full and independent review of this record, that the findings and conclusions of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) are amply supported and should not be disturbed.

EMERGENCY RELIEF

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 3038-04

AGENCY DKT. NO. 87-3/04

M.A. ON BEHALF OF MINOR CHILD, S.A.,

Petitioner,

v.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF SCOTCH PLAINS-FANWOOD SCHOOL DISTRICT, UNION COUNTY,

Respondent.

M.A., pro se, petitioner

Casper P. Boehm, Jr., Esq., for respondent

BEFORE ROBERT J. GIORDANO, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner, M.A., filed a request for emergent relief by way of letter to the Commissioner of Education dated February 10, 2004, seeking credit for her son, S.A., for courses taken through home instruction, by certified district teachers, provided at her own expense. The matter was transmitted by the Commissioner of Education to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on March 8, 2004. The matter was scheduled for oral argument on the request for emergent relief on March 15, 2004.

On March 15, 2004, petitioner appeared before the undersigned. Appearing for respondent, Board of Education of Scotch Plains/Fanwood School District, was Casper P. Boehm, Jr., Esq., counsel to the Board. The matter was converted into a conference, and lengthy discussions took place at that time. At the conclusion of the conference, the petitioner indicated she would likely withdraw the request for emergent relief. She was directed to advise the undersigned within the next several days whether she intended to proceed with the matter further. If so, a hearing on the request for emergent relief would be rescheduled as soon as possible.

On March 16, 2004, petitioner faxed a letter to the undersigned advising that she was withdrawing the request, "due to the fact that I am financially unable to secure legal counsel to pursue my son's rights for an education." I rejected that request and conferenced the matter by telephone with the parties on March 17, 2004. Petitioner was advised that she did not need an attorney to proceed. The matter was rescheduled for oral argument on March 22, 2004.

Respondent submitted an answer to the emergent relief application with supporting certification of Thomas J. Beese, Jr., Director of Special Services. The undersigned heard arguments of the parties and the record was thereafter closed.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

M.A. is the mother of the minor child, S.A., who is seventeen years of age. Together, they reside in the Borough of Scotch Plains, New Jersey. As of the 2001-2002 school year, S.A. was a student enrolled in the ninth grade at the Scotch Plains/Fanwood High School. There were apparently incidents involving S.A. and other students in the high school, commencing in or about November 2001. The District conducted an investigation of the incidents and determined that S.A. was the instigator of the incidents. He was the subject of disciplinary procedures by the school. As of April 2002, S.A. no longer attended the school, allegedly because of anxiety related to the incidents with other students. The mother has refused to return the child to the school and requests rather an alternative to the attendance at the high school.

Petitioner herein has on two separate occasions filed petitions for relief but has withdrawn those petitions. She has previously requested a placement in another school district. By letter dated February 25, 2004, Beese advised petitioner that there were several options available to her and her son. She could home school S.A. with private tutors at her own expense. There would be no transcript of those academic courses provided by the District. According to Beese, this option was declined by petitioner.

Another option was that the District would provide home instruction if there were documentation of a psychiatric evaluation and recommendation that indicates S.A. is unable to attend school. According to Beese, petitioner also declined this option.

According to the letter from Beese, the District offered S.A. the opportunity to attend the high school where he would be provided a "tailor-made schedule" in highly competitive academic courses. The District offered to provide a shadow to help relieve S.A. of any anxiety. This offer was declined, according to Beese.

S.A. was evaluated by the child study team (CST), with a recommendation of classification as emotionally disturbed. The evaluation was completed and a CST meeting was held in October 2002. Petitioner was offered a placement in New Providence High School as a classified student. This offer was declined.

In light of the time of year, S.A. was also afforded the option of returning to the Scotch Plains/Fanwood High School, to be enrolled in half-year electives, so that some credits could be obtained. Petitioner declined this offer.

LEGAL DISCUSSION

Consistent with the N.J. Const. (1947), Art. VIII, § IV, par. 1, every parent having custody and control of a child between the ages of 6 and 16 years shall cause such child regularly to attend the public schools of the district or a day school in which there is given instruction equivalent to that provided in the public schools for children of similar grades and attainments or to receive equivalent instruction elsewhere than at school. See, N.J.S.A. 18A:38-25. See also, N.J.S.A. 18A:38-26. Cf. Everson v. Bd. of Ed. of Ewing Twp., 133 N.J.L. 350, 355 (E. & A. 1945), aff'd, 330 U.S. 1 (1946), where three exceptions to the compulsory education statutes are described: physical disability of the child, mental disability of the child and adequate private teaching.

However, the board of education has an equally compelling responsibility to provide an appropriate environment at the school. Venezia v. Board of Education of Township of Ocean, 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 370. School authorities are obligated to take reasonable precautions for the safety and well-being of the students. Jackson v. Hankinson, 51 N.J. 230 (1968).

The New Jersey Administrative Code regulations provide in pertinent part that where a motion for a stay or emergent relief is filed, it shall be accompanied by a letter memorandum or brief which shall address the following standards to be met for granting such relief:

> 1. The petitioner will suffer irreparable harm if the requested relief is not granted;
>
> 2. The legal right underlying the petition's claim is settled;
>
> 3. The petitioner has the likelihood of prevailing on the merits of the underlying claim;
>
> 4. When the equities and interests of the parties are balanced the petitioner will suffer greater harm than the respondent will suffer if the requested relief is not granted.
>
> [N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6(b).]

CONCLUSIONS

It is clear that the petitioner has concerns regarding the safety and welfare of her child, S.A. It is equally clear that the District has an obligation to provide an appropriate environment at school. From the evidence adduced at the oral arguments, and the papers submitted in support of the respective positions, it is clear that the Board has made efforts to address the concerns of petitioner. There was an investigation that led to the imposition of discipline against S.A. Petitioner did not appeal that determination.

Now petitioner seeks, by way of a request for emergent relief, to have credits transcribed to the District transcript for the student, S.A., for instruction to be provided at the expense of the petitioner. The District has advised petitioner that the Board would not accept home instruction in lieu of attendance in the classroom setting, absent either a physical or mental disability.

The District has also advised petitioner that home schooling may be an option, and that readmittance thereafter would be accepted upon a District assessment test to determine the appropriate level for placement.

From a review of the factual backdrop, I CONCLUDE that petitioner has failed to meet the four-prong standard for the granting of relief. The child is currently seventeen years old and may not be compelled in any event to attend the public schools. It is further not clear that there is any settled legal right underlying petitioner's claim for credits for private instruction. In fact, it is more likely than not that petitioner has no likelihood of prevailing on the merits of the underlying claim.

Finally, in balancing the equities and interests of the parties, it is clear that the respondent District will suffer greater harm than the petitioner if such relief is granted. The District is ready, willing and able to provide an appropriate public education to S.A., if he will avail himself of such education. Petitioner has utterly failed to establish, by even a scintilla of the evidence, the entitlement to the relief sought here. The directive to afford District credits for private instruction would be contrary to the education laws of the State, and would set an untenable precedent.

The District is ready to accept the student back and will make all reasonable accommodations to address the concerns of the parent. Respondent has even conducted CST evaluations that would ultimately provide for a special education placement under the IDEA. However, there is no legal authority for the District to compel the acceptance of the CST recommendation.

The petitioner has advised that there is no private instruction currently, and that she will be moving prior to the next school year. She will enroll her son in the new school district at that time. For this and all of the foregoing reasons, I CONCLUDE that petitioner's request for emergent relief is unfounded.

ORDER

It is hereby ORDERED that the petition for emergent relief is and shall be DISMISSED. The parties acknowledge that no other issues remain upon the resolution of the within emergent relief matter.

This order on application for emergency relief may be adopted, modified or rejected by the DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, which by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The final decision shall be issued without undue delay, but no later than forty-five (45) days following the entry of this order. If the DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION does not adopt, modify or reject this order within forty-five (45) days, this recommended order shall become a final decision on the issue of emergent relief in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

The record of this matter and the recommended Order of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed.

V.	:	DECISION
NEW JERSEY STATE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION,	:
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning "Abbott" Board of Education appealed the Department of Education's determination with respect to funding for the District's 2004-05 preschool program. Two issues remained to be decided: whether the Department's decision arbitrarily excluded adequate funding for the education of preschool disabled students for the 2004-05 school year and whether the Department's decision arbitrarily limited salary increases for all early childhood staff for the 2004-05 school year to amounts below prior or existing collective bargaining agreements.

The ALJ concluded that the Board did not demonstrate that its preschool program would be inadequately funded; that the Department's methodology for funding the District's preschool program was consistent with the laws and regulations governing the process; and that the Department's method was a reasonable means of preparing the preschool budget and should be sustained. As to the staff salaries, the ALJ concluded that the Department did not arbitrarily limit salary increases in the preschool budget because they were in line with what the Board requested; they did not prejudice the negotiations; and they are subject to increase when the actual contractual increases are negotiated. Petition was dismissed with prejudice.

The Commissioner adopted the Initial Decision as his own.

April 22, 2004

Yut'se Thomas has been the Director of the Office of School Funding at the Department for the last four years. She explained that the FY 2002 level was chosen because that was the last year the Comprehensive Education Improvement and Financing Act (CEIFA) formula was applied before level funding was instituted. The CEIFA formula is based upon resident enrollment in the District in October 2000. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-3, the definition of "resident enrollment" includes handicapped children between three and five years of age who are receiving services under N.J.S.A. 18A-46.6. Non-disabled preschool students are not included in the resident enrollment. N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-3.

In accord with this definition, the Department had the Districts include handicapped preschool children when calculating the "T & E amount" in the regular District budget rather than in the preschool budget. This amount is defined as:

> the cost per elementary pupil of delivering the core curriculum content standards and extracurricular and cocurricular activities necessary for a thorough regular education under the assumptions of reasonableness and efficiency contained in the Report on the Cost of Providing a Thorough and Efficient Education;
> [N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-3]

Thus far, it appears that the Department's method is not inconsistent with the statutory and regulatory requirements. Using them as its basis, the Department calculated the per-pupil funding for Tier II preschool students in the regular District budget in the following manner. This includes all of the available sources of funding for these students. (At no time did the District dispute the figures below for purposes of this hearing, although they may be subject to dispute in the context of the District's FY 05 K-12 budget.)

Table 1

Funding Generated by Preschool Special Education Student

Funding Category	Per-Pupil Funding
T & E Revenue (FY 2002)	$8,309.00

Special Education – Tier II (FY 2002)	$3,260.00
Supplemental Core Curriculum Standards Aid (FY 2002)	$684.00
Early Childhood Program Aid (FY 2002)	$817.00
Consolidated Aid (FY 2004)	$109.72
Education Opportunity Aid (FY 2005)	$3,766.00
Total	$16,945.72

The total of items in this table is exclusive of federal I.D.E.A. funds to be received.

Thomas testified that the $3,260 in Tier II revenue is aid for special education. Therefore, the preschool handicapped children will receive it. The Supplemental Core Curriculum Standards Aid is given to assist Districts with high property tax rates. The Early Childhood Program Aid is given to Districts on a sliding scale based upon the concentration of low income population in the District. If the projected number of Tier II students for the 2004-2005 school year is not more that the number enrolled in the 2001-2002 school year, the funding should be sufficient.

Parenthetically, based upon data submitted by the District, the whole Tier II elementary enrollment has in fact been falling from the actual October 2000 enrollment used by the District in its calculations. Dr. Frank D'Ambra, Supervisor of Special Services for the District, testified that referrals for the preschool program have recently increased dramatically but he did not specify what proportion of these were inclusion students. The District estimated the number of these student to be 48 in FY 05.

In addition, the District receives Consolidated Aid and Educational Opportunity Aid for these students. Educational Opportunity Aid is given for the first time in FY 2005. It is meant to bridge the gap between the Abbott districts and the others.

Once the Department calculated the per-pupil amount, $16,945.72, for the preschool Tier II students, it looked at the number of these children projected by the District to be in the preschool program in FY 2005. It accepted the District's estimate of 48. The Department rounded off the per-pupil amount to $16,946 and multiplied it by 48, giving an amount of $813,408 for all 48 students. Therefore, since the costs for these children, including the costs of teachers and aides, were already accounted for in the regular District budget, there is no reason to duplicate them in the preschool budget.

Using the District One-Year Abbott Preschool Program budget worksheet, as modified on March 4, 2004, the requested funding for the preschool program, including seven special education teachers, aides, materials and related services for Tier II students in the program, was $23,766,855.

Funding for related services for inclusion students is also part of the $813,408 in the regular K-12 budget for the preschool program. As a result, the Department excluded all expenses relating to the inclusion students thereby reducing the budget to $23,160,687, a decrease of $606,192.

As of the date of hearing, the District was unable to reasonably estimate the necessary funding for related services that the inclusion students will receive in preschool since that will be based upon their individual IEPs which had not as yet been completed for the 2004-2005 school year.

The amount the Department excluded from the preschool budget for inclusion students was calculated as follows. The District estimated the per-pupil cost of all preschool students, including the Tier II students, to be $12,629. The Department deducted funding at this rate for the 48 inclusion students in the amount of $606,192 (48 x $12,629) as a duplication of revenues.

There is, however, available funding of $813,408 in the regular District budget for the purpose of educating the 48 Tier II inclusion students in the preschool program. As a result, the Department demonstrated that, with the information now available, there will be a surplus of $207,216 ($813,408 - $606,192) of funding for the preschool rather than a shortfall as alleged by petitioner. The $213,441 surplus calculated in the Department's exhibit in evidence is based upon a worksheet last modified on January 14, 2004. In either case, both calculations show a surplus rather than a deficit.

Petitioner argues that local funding should not be used to calculate preschool aid and therefore the Tier II preschool students should not have been included in the K-12 budget. It relies upon the FY 04 Appropriations Act and Governor McGreevey's budget message for this assertion. According to the limited portion of the FY 04 Appropriations Act provided by petitioner, it appears that preschool students and one-half of the full-day kindergarten enrollments are excluded from calculating the per-pupil costs solely for the purpose of calculating parity aid, such as Educational Opportunity Aid, not for purposes of calculating the per-pupil component of T&E revenue or other aid to special needs students. The FY 04 Appropriations Act does not demonstrate an intent to repeal N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-3 and must be read in pari materia with that legislation.

The District presented no evidence that parity aid was not calculated in the correct manner according to statute. It only argued that T&E per-pupil funding and other aid should have been calculated in the same way, which, as seen above, is not the law.

Finally, if petitioner's argument is pushed to its logical conclusion, then half of the District's full-day kindergarten students should be excluded by law in calculating per-pupil funding in the District's K-12 budget, surely an unintended result for the District.

It was the burden of the District to show that the Department's method is arbitrary, capricious, and/or contrary to law. I CONCLUDE that the District has not demonstrated that its preschool program will be inadequately funded. I CONCLUDE that the Department's methodology for funding the Passaic preschool program is consistent with the laws and regulations governing the process. I further CONCLUDE that the Department's method is not arbitrary or capricious but is a reasonable means of preparing the District's preschool budget and should be sustained. The District's desire to have certainty of funding at a given level and at an earlier time does not make the Department process arbitrary and capricious. See, City of Passaic Board of Education v. New Jersey Department of Education, A-1484-03T3, (App. Div. March 12, 2004).

The next issue on appeal is whether the January 15 decision arbitrarily limited salary increases for all early childhood staff for the 2004-2005 school year to amounts below prior or existing negotiated collective bargaining agreements.

The salary increases in issue here are those relating to two collective bargaining agreements expiring on August 31, 2004. The first is for teachers, social workers, aides, and other certificated and non-certificated staff. It expires on August 31, 2004 with a 5% increase for the 2003-2004 school year. The second contract is for custodians which expires on August 31, 2004 with a 5% contractual increase for the 2003-2004 school year.

The remaining two collective bargaining agreements, for administrators and secretaries, are in effect until August 31, 2005. These were not capped and are in the preschool budget at the contractual rates for the 2004-2005 school year.

Although the District argues that the Department artificially capped salary increases at 2.64%, the CPI, for the two unions with contracts to be negotiated as of August 31, 2004, the record does not support this.

James Turek, Abbott Program Services Budget Manager and Coordinator of all northern major Abbott Districts, testified as a witness for the Department. He is now also Acting Director of State Operated School Districts. Turek stated that the Department capped increases for preschool providers at 2.88% but he appeared puzzled when asked if the State capped negotiated contract salaries at 2.64%.

He explained that the District only asked for a 2.88% increase for salaries in its proposed preschool budget and the Department conditionally granted a 2.64% increase, the rate of inflation, pending the outcome of the collective bargaining negotiations in August 2004. These negotiations have not commenced at this time. Turek said that, in its preschool budget request, the District used the 2.88% figure "for everything" but he had no explanation for this. He pointed out that the difference between 2.64% and 2.88% is minimal.

Dr. Henry Lee, the Business Manager of the District, believed that the August 2004 negotiations would lead to an increase of about 5%. He based this upon the contractual increases for other school districts in the area as compiled by the New Jersey School Boards Association in a document entitled "Salary Rates in Perspective." After a cursory review of this document, Turek opined that none of the increases in this document were for contracts beginning in the 2004-2005 school year, most were in about the 4% range, and that Newark and East Orange, the districts most heavily relied upon by Passaic, were not really comparable due to their greater size among other things. Lee explained that, even so, Passaic had to remain competitive with these districts in order to attract good employees.

Turek said that the 2.64% only provided a floor on the prospective rate of salary increases. After the District negotiates increases that are both reasonable and fair to the employees covered, it can apply to the Department for additional funding to cover these increases and the Department will consider the requests.

This position does not appear arbitrary. The Department should not place itself in a position that effectively authorizes unreasonable contractual increases by pre-approving rates higher than the CPI.

In response to testimony by the Department's witnesses that Passaic voluntarily requested salary increases of 2.88%, the District recalled its witness, Angela Gomez, Fiscal Specialist for Early Childhood Programs, in rebuttal. The intended effect of her testimony was to show that the 2.88% increase requested was not a choice but was forced upon the District by the Department. Gomez, however, testified that she had attended meetings with Department in 2003 where the budget guidelines were distributed. She heard the 2.88% figure mentioned and assumed that it was also related to the guidelines for salary increases.

In this context, she asked Kathleen Priestley, Education Program Development Specialist for the Department, whether, if the District used the 2.88% figure, it could later apply for an increase in funding to meet the budget after the collective bargaining agreements were negotiated. When Priestley assured her that this could be done, the Passaic budget was submitted with a request of 2.88% for salary increases. Based upon the testimony of this witness, I FIND that the Department did not force the District to request salary increases at the 2.88% level. If there were a misunderstanding with respect to this request, there is no evidence that Priestley was aware of it. From the testimony of Gomez, it appears that Priestley simply answered her question as asked.

I FIND that the Department did not arbitrarily limit salary increases as alleged. I FIND that it approved an increase in salaries close to that which the District requested. I FIND this increase is subject to increase when fair and reasonable contractual increases are negotiated. I, therefore, CONCLUDE that the Department did not arbitrarily limit salary increases in the Passaic preschool budget because they are in line with what the District requested, they do not prejudice the negotiations, and they are subject to increase when the actual contractual increases are negotiated.

Based upon all of the above, I CONCLUDE that the appeal of the District should be dismissed because there is no relief to which the District is entitled.

It is, therefore, ORDERED that the Board's Verified Petition of Appeal is hereby DISMISSED WITH PREJUDICE.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within the time allowed under the existing orders of the New Jersey Supreme Court and unless such time limit is

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF PASSAIC, PASSAIC COUNTY,	:
PETITIONER,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
V.	:	DECISION
NEW JERSEY STATE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION,	:
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. The Board's exceptions and the Department's reply thereto were submitted in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 and were considered by the Commissioner in reaching his decision.

In its exceptions the Board claims that, given the Board's understanding that it has the ability to seek supplemental funding for special education needs in the Board's district-wide budget, and given its understanding of the Initial Decision that salary increases in its preschool budget are subject to increases when the actual contractual increases are negotiated, the final decision in this matter should state that the petition in this matter "is dismissed 'without prejudice' to the Board's ability to pursue funding for special education and salary increases from the Department at a later date." (Board's Exceptions at 1)

Moreover, the Board contends that the District's local share or local tax levy that is included in the calculation of Parity Aid (Education Opportunity Aid In the Governor's FY 2005 budget) is limited to K-12 enrollment in that "both the FY04 Appropriations Act and the Governor's budget message state that 'enrollments shall be calculated at their full-time equivalent and reduced by preschool....'" (Id. at 2) Thus, the Board asserts, local revenues are already included in the Parity Aid calculations for K-12 students and are, therefore, not available to fund special education costs, such as inclusion teachers and related services, for preschool disabled students. (Ibid.) The Board, therefore, urges the Commissioner to clarify that "the Parity (or Education Opportunity) Aid calculation cannot be double-counted as revenue for purposes of funding any gaps in preschool funding between State aids and the needed special education funding for preschool disabled inclusion students." (Id. at 3)

The Department sets forth its position that the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) properly dismissed the within petition with prejudice. (Department's Reply at 1) In support thereof, the Department avers that any appeal regarding supplemental funds the District may seek from the district-wide budget for increases in funding for preschool inclusion students and salaries would not be based on the January 15, 2004 letter, which concerns the District's 2004-05 preschool program budget but, rather, it would be an appeal of the supplemental funding provided by the Department for the District's 2004-05 district-wide budget. (Id. at 2) In that the subject of this appeal is the Department's preschool budget funding as set forth in the January 15, 2004 letter, not its 2004-05 district-wide budget, the issue of supplemental funding for preschool inclusion students and salaries was not an issue before the ALJ and is not an issue before the Commissioner. (Id. at 2-3)

With respect to the issue of the availability of local revenue for preschool education funding, the Department asserts that "the Department did not include local tax levy as part of its calculation of state education aid generated by preschool disabled students." (Id. at 3) The Department, therefore, concludes that the District's "local tax levy is irrelevant to the methodology applied by the Department." (Id. at 4) Moreover, the Department maintains that the Board erroneously assumes that preschool inclusion students are not counted for purposes of determining how much Parity Aid it will receive for the 2004-05 school year. (Ibid.) The Department contends that "[t]he exclusion of preschool students from the enrollments used in calculating the per pupil regular education expenditure of each Abbott district in the Appropriations Act and the Governor's Budget Address does not include preschool inclusion students," noting that the Core Curriculum Standards Aid, Special Education Aid, Supplemental Core Curriculum Standards Aid, Consolidation Aid and Educational Opportunity Aid a district receives is based on the resident enrollment of a school district. (Id. at 5) In that N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-3 states that "'[h]andicapped children between the ages of three and five years of age and receiving programs and services pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:46-6' are included in the school district's resident enrollment," the Department argues, preschool inclusion students are thus counted in the district's resident enrollment and are included in determining the amount of Core Curriculum Standards Aid and Supplemental Core Curriculum Standards Aid. (Id. at 5-6)

In further support of its argument, the Department points to Table 1 (Exhibit R-1, page 1) entitled "Funding Generated by Preschool Special Education Student," pointing out that a preschool inclusion student would generate $8,309 in Core Curriculum Standards Aid and $684 in Supplemental Core Curriculum Aid for the District. (Ibid.) Additionally, the Department asserts that the ALJ correctly reasoned that the "'FY04 Appropriations Act does not demonstrate an intent to repeal N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-3'" and thus "'must be read in pari materia' with the Appropriations Act." (Id. at 7) Accordingly, the Department asserts, in that preschool inclusion students are included in a district's enrollments to determine its regular education expenditures and the per pupil regular education expenditures are part of the calculation to determine Parity

Aid, preschool inclusion students must be included in determining the amount of Parity Aid the district will receive. (Ibid.) The Department further asserts that there is nothing to prevent the District from utilizing parity aid to educate its preschool inclusion students. (Ibid.)

Upon a thorough and independent review of the record, the Initial Decision, the Board's exceptions and the Department's reply thereto, the Commissioner is satisfied that the findings and conclusions of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) are amply supported and should not be disturbed. In so determining, the Commissioner rejects the Board's assertion that the final decision in this matter should be modified to reflect that the within petition is dismissed "without prejudice," to the Board's ability to pursue funding for special education and salary increases from the Department at a later date. The Commissioner finds that there is no basis to reserve the Board's rights in this case as the matter has been fully and fairly litigated and there are no remaining issues to be resolved with respect to the Board's appeal of the Department's January 15, 2004 letter regarding the District's 2004-05 preschool program budget. Moreover, nothing precludes the Board from seeking any additional funds it believes it is eligible to receive under applicable law.

With respect to the Board's claim that "the initial decision incorrectly decided the issue of the availability of local revenue for preschool special education funding" (Board's Exceptions at 2), the record demonstrates that the local tax levy was not included by the Department in calculating State Education Aid generated by preschool disabled students. Accordingly, the local tax levy is not relevant to the methodology applied by the Department in calculating the District's State Education Aid. Turning to the Board's claim that the District's local tax levy included in the calculation of Parity Aid is limited to K-12 enrollment and, thus, is not available to fund special education costs for preschool disabled students, the Commissioner finds that, although the FY04 Appropriations Act and the Governor's message state that "enrollments shall be calculated at their full-time equivalent and reduced by preschool...," the ALJ correctly concluded that the FY04 Appropriations Act and the Governor's message must be read in concert with N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-3, which states that handicapped students between the ages of three and five are to be included in a district's resident enrollment. (Initial Decision at 8) Moreover, the figures set forth in Table I support the Department's contention that it included preschool children in the District's enrollments in determining the District's regular budget rather than in the preschool budget. (Id. at 5-6) Since per pupil regular education expenditures are part of the calculation to determine Parity Aid, therefore, the Commissioner agrees with the ALJ that the Department's inclusion of preschool disabled inclusion students in determining the amount of Parity Aid the District will receive is consistent with the laws and regulations governing the process. (Id. at 8)

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed therein, the Initial Decision is adopted, as clarified above, as the final decision in this matter.

RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning "Abbott" Board of Education appealed the Department of Education's determination with respect to funding for the district's 2004-05 preschool program.

Of the two issues in dispute – funding for certain special education costs and funding for transportation, only one remained following settlement negotiations between the parties. On the remaining issue of special education costs, the ALJ concluded that petitioner failed to meet its burden of demonstrating that the Department's calculation of funding for preschool inclusion students was arbitrary, capricious or violative of the Abbott mandates.

The Commissioner adopted the ALJ's decision as his own.

Record Closed: March 25, 2004 Decided: March 29, 2004

BEFORE DOUGLAS H. HURD, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On February 13, 2004, Petitioner, the Board of Education of Perth Amboy Public Schools, filed a Verified Petition appealing the Department of Education's determination of funding for its early childhood plan. The Verified Petition seeks review by the Commissioner of Education of the January 15, 2004 decision denying certain funding for the pre-school program. Specifically, the issues raised by the District include the Department's denial of (1) funding for certain special education costs and (2) funding for transportation.

The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law, where it was filed on February 18, 2004. On February 19, 2004, the Department filed its Answer to the Verified Petition. Thereafter, the parties settled the transportation issue. The only issue in dispute concerned the funding of certain special education costs. A hearing on this issue was held on March 24, 2004. The record closed on March 25, 2004, with the submission of post-hearing briefs.

On or about November 13, 2003, the District submitted to the Department its one-year operational budget for the 2004-2005 school year, one-year operational budget for its early childhood providers for the 2004-2005 school year, and revisions and updates to its three-year operational plan. (J-2). Pursuant to the District's submitted preschool budget, the District is projecting to serve 30 inclusion students and 24 self-contained students in 2004-2005.

By letter dated January 15, 2004, the Department notified the District that it had reviewed the District's Preschool Operational Plan for 2004-2005. In that letter, the Department approved a total budget in the amount of $11,413,627. By letter dated March 3, 2004, the Department amended the funding based on more information regarding transportation. The Department approved a new total budget in the amount of $11,758,085.

The District contends that the Department's proposed funding results in a deficit to the District in the amount of $484,550 between the actual costs to the District and the Department's funding for the costs of educating preschool disabled inclusion students. Pursuant to the District's submitted preschool budget, the District is projecting to serve 30 inclusion students in 2004-2005. The district seeks funding for 4 inclusion teachers and 8 paraprofessionals to serve these 30 inclusion students. The 4 inclusion teachers and 8 paraprofessionals could serve up to 48 inclusion students in the event the enrollment of inclusion students increases during the school year. The District also challenges the Department's funding of the preschool inclusion students in the State aid generated in the district-wide K-12 budget, and not in the preschool budget.

The Department takes the position that the preschool inclusion students are included in the District's general K-12 budget, which more then covers the per pupil costs of the child's participation in the preschool class. I find and conclude that the Department's method of funding preschool inclusion students is valid and consistent with N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-3. With respect to the funding of the 4 inclusion teachers and 8 paraprofessionals, the Department contends that there is nothing in the law that mandates the State provide aid to the District for these costs. In addition, the Department highlights that preschool disabled students generate State aid differently than non-disabled preschool students. This means that preschool disabled students receive additional funding, including Core Curriculum Standards Aid, Supplemental Core Curriculum Standards Aid, Special Education Categorical Aid, Consolidated Aid, Education Opportunity Aid and ECPA – calculated using the "modified district enrollment." R-1 sets forth the amount of aid that such a preschool disabled student would receive through all of these funding sources. Not included are federal funds that may be available under IDEA.

I agree with the Department's position set forth above regarding the additional funding provided to preschool disabled students. The Department makes another important point with respect to the funding provided to the District. As R-1 demonstrates, there has been a steady decline in the number of Tier II elementary students in the District. The analysis and funding provided to the District is based primarily on the number of such students in the District in FY2002. Since that number has gone down from 230 to 128 Tier II elementary students and since that funding provided is similar to the funding provided in FY2002, then the District has funding sufficient to cover the needs of the projected preschool disabled students for 2004-2005.

CONCLUSION AND ORDER

For the foregoing reasons, the District failed to meet its burden to demonstrate that the Department's calculation of funding for preschool inclusion students was arbitrary, capricious or violative of the Abbott mandates. Accordingly, I hereby ORDER the District's Verified Petition be DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within the time allowed under the existing orders of the New Jersey Supreme Court and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Notwithstanding the provisions of any rule to the contrary, exceptions to Initial Decisions of the Office of Administrative Law in Abbott District budget appeal matters shall be filed within five (5) days of the date of mailing of the Initial Decision, and reply exceptions shall be filed within two (2) days of receipt of exceptions. File written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and the other parties.

NEW JERSEY STATE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION,	:
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. In its exceptions, to which petitioner did not reply, the Department requested that the Initial Decision be corrected to reflect that Core Curriculum Standards Aid, Supplemental Core Curriculum Standards Aid, Special Education Categorical Aid, Consolidated Aid and Education Opportunity Aid are calculated using a district's "resident enrollment," rather than its "modified district enrollment" as stated by the ALJ at page 3 of the Initial Decision.

Upon careful and independent review, the Commissioner fully concurs with the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) that the Department's method of funding district preschool inclusion students is neither arbitrary and capricious nor contrary to law.

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed by the ALJ as corrected herein, the Initial Decision of the OAL, dismissing the Petition of Appeal, is adopted as the final decision in this matter.

The record, Stipulation of Settlement and Release, and Initial Decision issued by the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1, have been reviewed.

Upon review, the Commissioner observes that the proposed settlement agreement does not identify the title of Jacqueline A. Record Closed: April 7, 2004 Decided: April 8, 2004

BEFORE ANA C. VISCOMI, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioners appeal from respondent's removal of G.A. from the school for remainder of the school year after he brought two knives to the school and was charged with making terroristic threats to another student while in a computer "chat" room. Petitioners also contest the adequacy of the educational program being provided at their home during the period of suspension and seek emergent relief in the form of an immediate return to the school as a full time student. Petitioners filed their request for emergent relief on or about March 31, 2004, and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on April 5, 2004 for a hearing as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to –13 and N.J.S.A. 52:B-1 to –15. The matter was scheduled for an emergent relief hearing on April 7, 2004. At the request of counsel, oral argument was conducted by telephone as no testimony would be presented in support or opposition to the pending emergent relief application. The record was closed on the same date.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

The following facts are not contested and therefore shall constitute the Findings of Fact.

G.A. is a 17-year-old senior student at the Middle Township High School in Cape May County. On the evening of February 18, 2004 he was engaged in a computer "chat room" discussion with another student, M.P., who has been classified as a special education student. During the course of the chat room discussion with M.P., G.A. indicated on several occasions that he would cut M.P.'s penis with his knife. In addition, he also indicated "tomrrow u r dead (sic)." During the chat room exchange, M.P. asked G.A. if was "serious" with regard to these threats. G.A. responded, "i am goin to get u! (emphasis in original)." On the following day, based upon a search of G.A.'s locker, two knives were retrieved and taken by the Middle Township Police Department. Those knives measured 3¼-inch blade and 4-inch blade respectively.

Middle School Principal David Salvo immediately suspended G.A. for a period of ten days pending review by Middle Township Superintendent of School, Michael Kopakowski. Based upon the review, school administration recommended G.A. be suspended throughout the remainder of the school year. The Board of Education convened a hearing on March 9, 2004. Petitioners appeared and participated in that hearing. They were represented by counsel. The recommendation of G.A.'s psychologist, John McInerney, PhD., dated March 19, 2004 was considered. McInerney indicated in his affidavit that "there is no indication that G.A. is a danger to himself or others." It is his opinion that "a degree of relative immaturity in social problem solving is the most likely explanation of his involvement in alleged threats toward another young man." As a result of the hearing, the Board voted to impose suspension through the end of the school year as had been recommended by the school administrators.

Instruction in the home began on the last week of February 2004. Respondent school district concedes that from March 1 through March 12, G.A. received five hours of instruction per week instead of the requisite minimum of ten hours. Respondent school district concedes that G.A. is entitled to some compensatory education. Petitioner also contends that the home bound education is also deficient in that the school district is utilizing a Physics teacher in order to provide G.A. with all of his instruction in the areas of Physics, Engineering Design, Algebra, Art, English and physical education. Respondent asserts that utilization of the Physics teacher is appropriate in the highly technical subject areas; however, is prepared to supplement that instruction with a teacher more qualified to provide language arts and literacy instruction.

LEGAL ANALYSIS

The standards for emergent relief are set forth in Crow v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982), N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6. In order to prevail, the petitioner must demonstrate the following:

> (1) The petitioner will suffer irreparable harm if the requested relief is not granted; (2) the legal right underlying petitioner's claim is settled; (3) the petitioner has a likelihood of prevailing on the merits of the underlying claim; and (4) when the equities and interest of the parties are balanced, the petitioner will suffer greater harm then the respondent will suffer if the requested relief is not granted.

The four-prong test must be read in the conjunctive and not the disjunctive. Thus, if the petitioner fails to show as part of the emergent relief application that he or she cannot meet one of these requirements, then emergent relief must be denied.

Petitioner asserts that the suspension of G.A. for the rest of the school year is tantamount to an expulsion as he is scheduled to graduate high school. Petitioner further asserts that the school district did not consider an alternative in consideration that G.A.'s four-year disciplinary record shows no infraction involving any sort of violent or threatening behavior. The suspension should have been a "temporary exclusion" as suspension is defined at N.J.A.C. 6A:16-1.3. Petitioner asserts that G.A. was not afforded proper due process in that no evaluation of G.A. by respondent was conducted. As such, the only evaluation is that which was requested by the parents as performed by Dr. McInerney, who has opined that "there is no indication that G.A. is a danger to himself or others." G.A. has voluntarily submitted to drug testing on a weekly basis and will continue to do so at least through the end of the school year. In addition, G.A. has attended counseling sessions with a licensed psychologist and participates in a peer behavior group. Petitioners contend that in consideration of how they have responded to this matter as well as the lack of disciplinary problems in the past, that the suspension served by G.A. to date is sufficient to impress upon him the seriousness of his offense. By continued suspension which petitioners contend is tantamount to expulsion, they assert that G.A. is suffering irreparable harm by not be able to finish his senior year after 11½ years in the Middle Township School system with his peers. They also assert that in balancing the rights of the respondent to keep their school safe, with the rights of G.A. to attend school, they lean in the favor of G.A.

Respondent asserts that in consideration of school policy and N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.3 G.A. could have been expelled. The School District recommended the suspension through the end of the year and the Board agreed. Due process was satisfied as petitioner was informed of the charges and afforded a full hearing. G.A. was represented by counsel, and testified on his own behalf. In addition, his psychologist's opinion and recommendation was considered.

Respondent asserts that although petitioner is correct that in the first few weeks ten hours of in-home instruction were not provided by the school district, petitioners have failed to establish that he will suffer irreparable harm if the requested relief is not granted. Respondent is prepared to provide compensatory education.

With regard to the last prong of the Crowe test, balancing of the equities demonstrates that if the requested relief is granted and G.A. is permitted to return to school, this negates the Board's obligation and responsibility to its students and sends an inappropriate message to the victim, M.B., as well as the other students that conduct as that of G.A. would be tolerated.

Based on the foregoing, I FIND and CONCLUDE that petitioner has not demonstrated that he is entitled to the emergent relief requested. I FIND and CONCLUDE that petitioner will not suffer greater harm then the respondent will suffer if the requested relief is not granted. The school district has a policy that permits a student to be suspended for up to one-year for the possession of a weapon. Respondent school district has not only an interest but an obligation in securing the safety of its student body. The incident forming the basis for this petition occurred on February 18 and 19, 2004. G.A. is expected to graduate and has been accepted at the Philadelphia College of the Sciences for September 2004. He can complete his studies with in-home instruction with some slight modifications. Petitioners have not asserted that G.A.'s performance has suffered and indeed, on certain days of scheduled instructions, the documentation reflects G.A. was unavailable as he was working. G.A. will not suffer irreparable harm if he is not permitted to participate in commencement exercises.

DECISION AND ORDER

Based upon the foregoing, emergent relief is hereby DENIED, and this matter is hereby scheduled for a plenary hearing before the Honorable Bruce Gorman.[1] In addition, I hereby ORDER respondent School District to immediately initiate an in-home instruction program that consist of no less than ten-hour per week instruction. In addition, the English course shall be taught by the appropriate certified instructor. A minimum of 15 hours of compensatory instruction shall also be provided to G.A.

This order on application for emergent relief shall remain in effect until issuance of the decision in the matter. The plenary hearing has been scheduled before the Honorable Bruce Gorman on April 13, 2004, at 9:00 a.m., at the Office of Administrative Law, Atlantic City, New Jersey.

[1] So as not to inconvenience the parties and the witnesses as they are from Cape May County, this matter is being transferred to the OAL Atlantic City office to be heard before ALJ Gorman who hears cases in that office.

This order on application for emergency relief may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The final decision shall be issued without undue delay, but no later than forty-five (45) days following the entry of this order. If the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION does not adopt, modify or reject this order within forty-five (45) days, this recommended order shall become a final decision on the issue of emergent relief in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

The record of this interim matter and the recommended Order Denying Emergent Relief issued by the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurs, for the reasons fully set forth in the OAL Order, that petitioners herein have not met the standard for grant of emergent relief. He further concurs that, notwithstanding denial of petitioners' motion, a directive ensuring adequate home and compensatory instruction for G.A. during the pendency of his suspension is appropriate under the circumstances of this matter.

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed therein, the Commissioner adopts the recommended Order of the OAL as his final decision on petitioners' motion for emergent relief and directs that this matter duly proceed to its scheduled plenary hearing.*

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner challenged the Board's residency determination that her sister, E.O., was not entitled to a free public education in the District.

The ALJ concluded that petitioner met her burden of proof under N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b(1) that E.O. was domiciled in the District; that petitioner was supporting her gratis; and that E.O.'s parents living in Peru were incapable of supporting her. The ALJ concluded that E.O. was entitled to a free public education in the District.

The Commissioner adopted the Initial Decision as his own and ordered the Board to continue to admit E.O. into its public school system free of charge.

Record Closed: March 17, 2004 Decided: March 19, 2004

BEFORE CAROL I. COHEN, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE FACTS AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The petitioner, F.A. appeals from the denial by the Board of Education of the City of Clifton, Passaic County (respondent) of her application to allow her sister (E.O.) to be educated in the Clifton School System. Clifton denied the petitioner's application on August 29, 2003, based on the fact that the application did not meet the statute's requirements of family or economic hardship. The petitioner filed her appeal on September 12, 2003. The respondent filed its answer on September 17, 2003. The matter was filed with the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on October 16, 2003. On November 21, 2003, I sent a letter to the parties scheduling a hearing date for March 2, 2004. On January 6, 2004 the clerk's office sent a notice to the petitioner. However, the numbers on the address were transposed. According to the petitioner, she did not receive this notice. Therefore, she did not appear at the hearing scheduled for March 2, 2004. I contacted the petitioner and through an interpreter rescheduled the matter for March 17, 2004. The matter was heard on that date.

ISSUES

1. Whether the petitioner is supporting the child gratis for longer than the school year as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b(1).

2. Whether the child's parents are incapable of supporting or providing care for the child due to a family or economic hardship.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Based on the testimony presented and the documentary evidence submitted, and having had an opportunity to observe the witness and to assess her credibility, I make the following FINDINGS OF FACT:

1. F.A. began living in Clifton two years ago. At first she lived at 523 Lexington Avenue, Clifton, but she moved last year to her present location at 576 Clifton Avenue, 1st Floor. F.A., her sister E.O., her grandmother, her aunt, her aunt's husband and family all lived together at this address.

2. E.O. is the sister of the petitioner F.A. Their parents live in Peru. The parents are separated. F.A.'s parents do not have a telephone. Her father comes and goes. Sometimes he lives with the mother, sometimes on his own or with others. Their mother lives in a home with three other families. The mother does not work. She has a drinking problem and she has not taken care of her children for many years.

3. E. O. moved in with her grandmother, when she was three years old. Her grandmother took care of E.O. from that time, until she arrived in United States in May 2001. The grandmother, who had cared for E.O. in Peru, is now also living in Clifton with F.A.

4. E.O. originally, when she came to United States, lived with her aunt in Passaic. However, her aunt got married and her new husband did not want the responsibility for E.O. In addition, the apartment was too small for them all to live in. Therefore, E.O. came to live with her sister F.A.

5. Neither E.O.'s father nor mother send any support to F.A. to care for E.O. In fact, when F.A. is able to contact her parents, both of them ask for the money from her. Any money she sends to her mother is spent on alcohol.

6. The petitioner attempted to get custody of E.O. and filed papers in court. However, at the time of the filing, she was informed by the clerk that she needed to get a letter from E.O.'s parents saying that they wanted to turn over custody to F.A.. F.A. understood that without this letter she really could not prevail.

7. F.A. contacted her parents, but her mother refused to sign such a document, saying that E.O. was old enough to sign any papers by herself. Her father said that E.O. should be out working and sending money to him.

8. F.A. did not pursue getting custody of E.O. after filing the initial papers, because it was her belief that without her parents' consent she would not be able to obtain custody.

9. F.A. expects E.O. to stay with her permanently. E.O. does not go back to Peru to visit. E.O. is presently in the 11th grade and is doing well in school.

LEGAL DISCUSSION

Public education must be provided free to persons over six and up to twenty years of age, who are domiciled within the School District - N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a). Under section b(1) of this statute, there are certain requirements for any person who is kept in the home of another person domiciled within school district. These requirements state that:

> The petitioner must show that they are supporting the child gratis and will assume all personal obligations for the child relative to school requirements; that he intends so to keep supporting the child gratuitously for a longer time than merely through the school term ...that the child's parents or guardian are not capable of supporting or providing care for the child due to a family or economic hardship and that the child is not residing with the resident of the district solely for the purpose of receiving a free public education within the district. The petitioner shall have the burden of proof by a preponderance of the evidence that the child is eligible for a free education under the criteria.

It is clear from the testimony that F.A. is caring for her sister, E.O., because there is no one else to care for her. She is not receiving money from E.O.'s parents, nor other members of the family. It is also clear that E.O.'s parents are unable to support her. Her mother and father are both unemployed and her mother is an alcoholic. Her father is absent from the home a good portion of the time. E.O. is living with her sister and will remain with her for the foreseeable future. It is clear that E.O.'s motive for moving in with her sister was not solely to attend school in the district, but rather she needed a place to live. Her sister was willing to take her in and be responsible for her care and her economic needs.

CONCLUSION

Thus, I CONCLUDE that the petitioner has met her burden of proof under N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b(1), that E.O. is domiciled within the district and that F.A. is supporting her gratis and assumes all personal obligations for her. E.O.'s parents are incapable of supporting her. I therefore CONCLUDE that F.A. is providing care for E.O. due to family and economic hardships.

ORDER

Based on the foregoing, I hereby ORDER that the relief sought by F.A. be granted and that E.O. is entitled to a free education in the Clifton Public Schools.

I further ORDER that the District's application for tuition reimbursement is hereby DENIED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning aunt challenged the Board's residency determination that her nephew, V.M.M., was not entitled to a free education in respondent's school district.

In light of the testimony of the witnesses and the record, the ALJ found that V.M.M.'s father's support was de minimus; that petitioner proved by a preponderance of credible evidence that she supported V.M.M. gratis; and that a family hardship did exist to allow V.M.M. to move in with his aunt. The ALJ concluded that V.M.M. was entitled to a free public education in respondent's district.

The Commissioner adopted the Initial Decision as his own, concurring with the ALJ that V.M.M. was entitled to a free education unless and until his circumstances change.

Record Closed: February 10, 2004 Decided: March 18, 2004

BEFORE LESLIE Z. CELENTANO, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner appeals the residency determination made by respondent Board of Education of the Borough of Fort Lee ("District" or "Board"). The Board has counterclaimed for tuition.

The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on June 3, 2003, for resolution as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. A hearing was commenced on August 11, 2003, however the proceedings were terminated when petitioner, who was pro se at the time, requested an opportunity to seek counsel to represent her. The hearing was rescheduled for October 1, 2003, and was adjourned on September 30, 2003, at the request of petitioner, who had not yet obtained counsel. The matter was then set down for hearing on January 6, 2004, and the hearing was held on that date. Witnesses who testified and documents marked into evidence at the time of hearing are listed in the attached appendix. The record closed with receipt of the parties' post-hearing briefs.

ISSUE

At issue is whether V.M.M. is entitled to a free public education in respondent's school district because he is domiciled in the district. More particularly at issue is whether petitioner is supporting V.M.M. gratis, as if he were her own child, and whether V.M.M. is residing with petitioner due to a family or economic hardship.[1] Further, if V.M.M. is not entitled to a free public education in the district, the amount of tuition owed by petitioner must be determined.

TESTIMONY

V.M.

V.M., petitioner's brother and V.M.M.'s father, currently resides in New York City with his wife and one of his four children. V.M. is the oldest of eleven siblings, ten of whom are still alive and nine of whom live in the United States. Over the course of several years, the nine siblings moved to the United States from Peru. When residing in Peru all of the siblings lived together in a house with their parents and all of their children. When residing in Peru, the family had a financial arrangement whereby everyone contributed to the support of the entire family unit. The house in which V.M. and his siblings, their families and his parents resided was owned entirely by the parents and was built by the family. V.M. came to the United States in 1989 at the age of thirty-eight, and left his wife and children behind in Peru. He lived with his sisters who had come to the United States before him. V.M. secured a job as a maintenance man, originally working for his brother-in-law and his brother, who had immigrated before him. V.M. regularly sent money home to his wife and children, and also to his parents. After moving here it was his practice to collect money from all of his brothers and sisters who were living in the United States, and send it, along with his funds, home to his parents. V.M. testified that his sister M.O.M., the petitioner, came to the United States in 1991 without her children, who remained in Peru with their grandparents. In 1992 V.M.'s parents came to the United States along with M.O.M.'s children. All of the siblings in the United States helped to pay for the parents' passage to this country. V.M.'s parents, M.O.M. and M.O.M.'s children lived with V.M.'s two sisters for approximately one year, and eventually located their own apartment, also in New York City. In 1993, V.M.'s wife and four children moved to the United States. One of V.M.'s daughters went to live with one of his sisters and his oldest son went to live with V.M.'s brother; the two younger children stayed with V.M. and his wife in a one-bedroom apartment in New York. The family funds, which continued to be pooled, paid V.M.'s rent.

In 2002 three of V.M.'s brothers, S.M., W.M. and O.M., purchased a two-family house in Fort Lee. At the time of this purchase, family meetings were held and it was determined that each family member needed to increase the amount he or she contributed to the pooled funds each month, because the mortgage was more than they had been paying collectively as rent in New York. V.M.'s father is eighty years old and his mother is seventy-nine.

When V.M.'s parents moved to Fort Lee, his contribution to the family fund was $60 per week for food, which he gave to his mother each week, and $150 per month towards the mortgage to help pay for his parents' housing. The mortgage money was paid to his brother S.M., one of the owners of the property. V.M. gave his brother these funds during the day when they worked together for a real estate company in New York. V.M. and S.M. were in charge of maintenance for thirty buildings owned by the company.

[1] The Notice of Final Ineligibility dated April 14, 2003, sets forth only one reason for the denial, i.e., that petitioner was not supporting V.M.M. gratis. However, considerable testimony was received regarding the issue of family hardship and, accordingly, that issue will be addressed.

V.M. described the apartment in which he lives in New York as small and containing a bedroom, kitchen, living room, closet and bathroom. When his family moved to the United States to join him, his son V.M.M. and one daughter lived in the apartment with V.M. and his wife. His other two children each lived with one of V.M.'s other siblings. At the time, he shared a bedroom with his wife and their daughter and V.M.M. slept in the living room. The overcrowding and the sleeping arrangements became problematic and aggravated V.M.'s diabetes, because of his inability to rest between the two jobs he holds. V.M. works at a maintenance job cleaning and maintaining buildings from 7:30 a.m. until 2:30 p.m., and then works as a doorman and porter in a building across the street from his own building from 4:00 p.m. until midnight.

V.M. testified that after his three brothers bought the house in Fort Lee, which their parents and his sister M.O.M. had planned to move into, it was also determined that V.M.M. would move to Fort Lee and live with petitioner and her children. After V.M.M. moved in with petitioner, V.M.'s monthly contribution to the family fund for food for his parents and the mortgage costs did not increase. Also following V.M.M.'s move to Fort Lee, V.M. and his wife no longer claimed V.M.M. as a dependent on their tax return; rather, petitioner claimed V.M. as a dependent.

In response to correspondence received from Dr. Vincent J. Taffaro, the assistant superintendent of the District, V.M. telephoned Mr. Taffaro and spoke to him briefly. V.M. testified that he was advised by Taffaro to confirm in writing what he had said in the conversation. Accordingly, V.M. asked petitioner's son J.P.M. to draft a letter for him indicating that he supports the family in the manner he does. V.M. told J.P.M. that a letter should also be drafted for petitioner's signature. J.P.M. prepared an undated letter (P-4), which V.M. testified he signed and gave to petitioner to return to the District.[2] Petitioner's son J.P.M. is sixteen years old. V.M. testified that in the last sentence of his letter (P-4), which states, "I am still providing financial support," he meant to convey that he continues to contribute to the family fund, as do all of his siblings, in order to assist in the support of their parents.

V.M. testified that he has had diabetes for more than twenty years, and he is under the care of a physician. He asked his physician, Maria Tulpan, M.D., to write a letter confirming his medical condition, and in response to a request from respondent, on October 18, 2002, Dr. Tulpan prepared a letter which was forwarded to the District (P-5).

V.M. testified that he had some English instruction in high school in Peru, but didn't pay much attention to it, never knowing that he would emigrate to the United States. He never used the English language in Peru and started attending English classes upon arriving in the United States. He stopped going to these classes when he procured his second job. V.M. reads some English, and can understand English words that are similar to their Spanish counterparts. He testified that his conversation with Dr. Taffaro was in English and that he understood some of the words and was able to capture what was being discussed.

On cross-examination, V.M. confirmed that he filed a Schedule C with his 2002 1040 Federal Income Tax Return (P-1), indicating a profit or loss from business. He said he takes the garbage out for the building he is in and is paid $150 a month for the minimum amount of time involved. He indicated that he filed a Schedule C because he knew of no other way to declare the income and knew he had to declare it somehow. V.M.'s second job is as a doorman in a ten-story building across the street from where he lives. He is a member of a union. He has been employed as a doorman for twelve years. V.M. testified that some tenants of the building do speak Spanish. He is able to converse in English with the others where the conversation is related to his work.

V.M. testified that he prepared his own tax return and was able to do so after working as an accountant and auditor in Peru for eleven years. When he came to New York a Spanish-speaking individual taught him to do his own tax return and he translated every line from Form 1040 into Spanish so that he could learn to prepare it.

V.M. stated that he knows of a joint bank account between petitioner and V.M.M., however he does not know the balance in the account nor the source of the funds. V.M. has never asked about the account because petitioner handles all of V.M.M.'s affairs. V.M.M. does not stay with V.M. at all but he does visit, for example, on Christmas day, however there is not room for him to stay over. Prior to moving to Fort Lee to live with petitioner, V.M.M. attended Catholic schools in New York City and V.M. paid tuition of $430.00 per month for that schooling. V.M.M. moved to Fort Lee at the start of his second year in high school.

V.M. testified that he provides no support for V.M.M. other than his contribution to the family fund.

S.M.

S.M., brother of V.M. and of petitioner, is one of the owners, together with W.M. and O.M., of the property purchased in Fort Lee. He testified that the house was purchased primarily for their parents and is a two-family house. W.M. lives on the first floor with his wife and two daughters, and residing on the second floor are S.M.'s parents, petitioner, petitioner's son and V.M.M.[3] All of the siblings contributed to the rental expenses of the others when residing in Manhattan and now all of the siblings contribute to the cost of the mortgage in Fort Lee, and also contribute funds for food. Each sibling gives his or her share of food money directly to their mother, and S.M. collects all of the mortgage monies, adds his in, and remits everything to W.M., who pays the mortgage.

On cross-examination S.M. testified that he learned in early August 2002 that V.M.'s son V.M.M. was moving in with petitioner and her children. S.M. testified that the house in Fort Lee was purchased for $645,000 and that a mortgage was obtained in the amount of $430,000. The current monthly payment is approximately $4,400 including real estate taxes. All of the siblings contribute to the mortgage and food costs of the family in varying amounts. For example, W.M. pays more than anyone towards the mortgage because he and his family live in part of the house. Petitioner also pays more than the other siblings because she too lives in part of the house with her son and V.M.M.

[3] Petitioner's daughter also resided with her until moving to New York in May 2003.

The determination as to how much each sibling would pay was made before V.M.M. moved to Fort Lee and remained the same after he moved in with petitioner.

W.M. pays the utility bills for charges incurred in his portion of the house, and the utility bills for charges incurred in the portion of the house occupied by petitioner, her parents, her son and V.M.M. are paid out of the family fund.

M.O.M.

Petitioner has two children of her own, a daughter, M.M.S., born in 1985 and a son, J.P.M., born in 1987. When petitioner came to the United States in March 1991 without her children, she was thirty-two years old. In August 1992 her children came to the United States with her parents. Petitioner had no English instruction in Peru and did not speak English at any time in Peru. She studied English here in a course offered at church for two weeks and can read a few words that are familiar to her. However, she cannot read an English newspaper. When she resided in Peru all of the older siblings who worked contributed to the household and those who had already emigrated to the United States also sent money home to Peru. When petitioner arrived in New York she lived with her two sisters, and remained with her sisters when her parents and children came to the United States. She eventually moved out of her sisters' apartment and into another apartment in the same building with her children and parents. All of her siblings gave her money for food and rent during that time.

Petitioner moved to Fort Lee on July 29, 2002, into a house owned by three of her brothers. The house was bought primarily for her parents, and she moved there with her parents. Petitioner testified that in July 2002 the siblings had three meetings regarding the purchase of the house. At the first meeting the determination to buy the house was made. At the second meeting the amount each sibling was to contribute was determined, and at the third meeting those amounts were raised. Each agreed to pay more than they had paid when the family resided in New York because the arrangements were more expensive now. V.M.M. moved in with petitioner in early August 2002, however V.M.'s contribution to the family fund was not increased. When V.M.M. moved in with petitioner, no time limit was set, as it was contemplated that V.M.M. would always live with her. V.M.M. has expressed a desire to attend college in New Jersey.

Petitioner works as a housekeeper in a hotel and also in a daycare center in the hotel. She claims V.M.M. as a dependent on her tax return because he lives with her and she provides for his needs. Soon after V.M.M. moved in with her petitioner sought to register her son and V.M.M. for school in Fort Lee. She spoke to the secretary at the Board and was provided with a package of application papers to complete and return. The papers sought the children's birth dates, prior school records, address verification, and copies of utility and phone bills. Petitioner returned the application to the secretary, who accepted her son's application and provided her with an affidavit to complete for V.M.M. (P-7). Petitioner testified that her son J.P.M. read her the application and told her what to fill in. She indicated in the affidavit that V.M.M. was residing with her because his parents' apartment was not large enough to accommodate him and she has room in her home for V.M.M. Her son J.P.M. instructed her how to write the answer to question #5 (P-7 at 9). After completing the affidavit and having V.M. sign it and his signature notarized, petitioner returned the affidavit to the Board.

When petitioner received Dr. Taffaro's letter of September 23, 2002 (P-3) she asked her son to read it and explain it to her, and thereafter showed it to V.M. so that he could obtain a letter from his doctor, which the Board was seeking. V.M. obtained the letter from his physician (P-5) and petitioner provided it to the Board. Petitioner also testified that V.M. instructed J.P.M., petitioner's son, to prepare a letter indicating that he (V.M.) supports the family, which was what he understood Dr. Taffaro's instructions to be. Accordingly, J.P.M. was instructed to draft a letter indicating that V.M. contributes to the support of the whole family, as had been the custom for years. This is not what J.P.M. actually wrote in the letter of October 20, 2002 (P-8).

Petitioner testified that her son J.P.M. also prepared the undated letter that V.M. testified he signed and sent back to petitioner for forwarding to the District (P-4). Petitioner testified that she sent this letter in a separate envelope, but on the same day, as the letter of October 20, 2002 (P-8).

Petitioner recalled receiving the November 18, 2002, letter from the District indicating that V.M.M. is not eligible to attend District schools because V.M. provides full financial support for V.M.M. After she had her son J.P.M. explain the letter to her she went to speak with Dr. Taffaro to ask why the letter states that V.M. is supporting V.M.M., when in fact it is the entire family that contributes to his support. Dr. Taffaro asked her to provide proof that she supports V.M.M. and petitioner produced her tax return, which Dr. Taffaro looked at and returned to her. Petitioner thereafter provided a copy of the tax return to the Board, together with records of the bank account she maintains with V.M.M. These documents were provided after January 31, 2003, the date of petitioner's tax return.

Petitioner's portion of the house in Fort Lee has three bedrooms: one for her parents, one that is shared by her son and V.M.M., and one that is hers. Petitioner supports V.M.M. exactly as she supports her own son.

Attached to a letter written on November 24, 2002, on petitioner's behalf to the Board is a list of the contributions to the family fund made by each of the siblings each month. That list reflects the following payments:

Name	Weekly Food	Mortgage
V.M.	$60.00	$150.00
*W.M.	$50.00	$1,500.00
N.M.	$30.00	$300.00
G.M.	$30.00	$300.00
M.O.M.	$100.00	$680.00
W.M.	$50.00	$300.00
*S.M.	$50.00	$385.00
*O.M.	$40.00	$385.00
A.M.M.	$30.00	$300.00

*owners of the Fort Lee property

Petitioner testified that V.M. has lived in his apartment for approximately six or seven years and that prior to that time, she lived in the apartment with her parents and her two children. When she moved to Fort Lee, V.M. took over the apartment. Petitioner's tax return reflects an income of $22,845, which partially supports petitioner, her son and her nephew (and her daughter until May of last year, when her daughter moved to New York). Petitioner also relies upon the family fund to assist with her living expenses. Petitioner testified that although her October 20, 2002, letter indicates that V.M. provides "full financial support" for V.M.M., this was not what she had instructed her son to write. She testified that the letter was intended to convey that V.M. continues paying financial support for the benefit of everyone in the house, as he had done before V.M.M. moved into the house, and she signed that letter believing that was what J.P.M. had written. Her son J.P.M. prepared the undated letter (P-4) on his computer and faxed it to V.M.'s computer. V.M. signed it and returned it to petitioner, who then sent it to the Board. She said that the sentence reading "I am still providing financial support" was intended to convey that V.M. continued to contribute to the family fund to defray the expenses of all of those residing in the house in Fort Lee. Petitioner has, on her own, paid for driving lessons for V.M.M. at a cost of $210, some miscellaneous school fees, school lunches, incidentals, clothing, movies, etc. The only help V.M. provides is the monthly contribution he makes to the family pool. Petitioner maintains a joint bank account with V.M.M. which has approximately $800 in it. She stated that she opened the account in both of their names because V.M.M. was a minor and the bank would not permit the account to be in his name alone. V.M.M. deposited $500 to open the account, which he had received as gifts from aunts, uncles, grandparents, etc. Petitioner's parents' only income is what they receive from the family fund.

Vincent J. Taffaro

Vincent Taffaro testified that he is the assistant superintendent for the District and oversees the registration office, including admission of affidavit students. Carol Frate is the registration officer. Taffaro became aware of an application received on behalf of V.M.M. in August 2002. The process of reviewing affidavit applications includes review for completeness, review by the Board attorney and, ultimately, review by the affidavit committee, which makes its determinations based upon the law. Applications are accepted or rejected, or more information is sought. The initial review of V.M.M.'s application resulted in a request for further clarification. The Board sought more information regarding V.M.'s illness and the financial status of V.M.M. Taffaro testified that after receiving the October 20, 2002, letter (P-8), which indicated that V.M. supports V.M.M., the Board replied on November 18, 2002, stating that based upon the October 20, 2002, letter V.M.M. was not eligible to attend District schools. Taffaro had a vague recollection of briefly speaking with and thereafter briefly meeting with petitioner, at which time she showed him her tax returns. Taffaro told petitioner to file the documents with the Central Registration Office. Taffaro also acknowledged receipt of the November 24, 2002, letter written on behalf of petitioner by a friend of hers, but determined to reject V.M.M.'s application based upon the statutory criteria. The final ineligibility letter, dated April 14, 2003, states that V.M.M. is not permitted to attend District schools because petitioner is "not supporting him gratis."

Carol Frate

Carol Frate is the central registration officer for Fort Lee and responsible for affidavit applications. She processes approximately twenty to forty such applications each year. After receiving the application in question she met with petitioner, who had her son and V.M.M. with her, and explained to her the various forms that needed to be completed. The documents completed by petitioner included an affidavit stating that there was no need for an interpreter (R-2), and this was signed by both petitioner and V.M. Ms. Frate also had a conversation with a friend of petitioner and V.M. who had prepared the November 24, 2002, letter on their behalf.

FACTS

Based upon the evidence presented at the hearing and having had the opportunity to observe the witnesses and assess their credibility, I FIND the following FACTS:

1. Petitioner M.O.M. is the paternal aunt of V.M.M. V.M. is the father of V.M.M. V.M.M. moved in with M.O.M. in early August 2002 and was enrolled by M.O.M. in Fort Lee High School, where he remains a student.

2. Petitioner resides and is domiciled in Fort Lee, New Jersey, in a two-family home purchased by three of her brothers, S.M., W.M. and O.M. W.M. resides on the first floor of the home with his wife and two daughters and M.O.M. resides on the second floor with her parents, her son and V.M.M.

3. V.M. resides in New York City in a one-bedroom apartment with his wife and one of his four children. V.M. is one of eleven siblings, ten of whom are still alive and nine of whom reside in the United States. V.M. and his siblings moved to the United States from Peru over the course of several years. When residing in Peru all of the siblings lived together in one house, along with their parents and all of their children. V.M. moved to the United States in 1989, leaving behind his wife and children. When V.M.'s family joined him in 1993, V.M., his wife, one of his daughters, and V.M.M. all lived in a one-bedroom apartment. V.M. and his wife and daughter shared the bedroom, and V.M.M. slept on the couch. The overcrowding and sleeping arrangements became problematic and aggravated V.M.'s diabetes because of his inability to rest between the two full-time jobs he holds. V.M. works as a maintenance man from 7:30 a.m. until 2:30 p.m. and then as a doorman from 4:00 p.m. to midnight. His income for calendar year 2002 was $51,986.

4. V.M. and his siblings have a financial arrangement whereby each of the siblings contributes to the support of the entire family unit. V.M.'s elderly parents have no other means of support.

5. In 2002, three of the siblings, S.M., W.M. and O.M., purchased a two-family home in Fort Lee, New Jersey. At the time of the purchase it was determined that each sibling's contribution to the family fund needed to be increased from what it had been because living expenses were greater in New Jersey than they had been in New York.

6. The home in Fort lee was purchased with the intent that M.O.M. would reside in one unit with the siblings' parents and her children, and W.M. would reside in the other unit with his family. It was thereafter determined that V.M.M.

would also move into M.O.M.'s unit. Prior to V.M.M. residing with M.O.M., V.M.'s weekly contribution to food on behalf of his parents was $60 and his contribution to the mortgage was $150. These amounts remained the same following V.M.M.'s move to the house in Fort Lee.

7. Also following V.M.M.'s move to Fort Lee, V.M. and his wife no longer claimed V.M.M. as a dependent on their tax return; rather, M.O.M. claimed V.M. as a dependent. V.M. provides no support for V.M.M. other than his contribution to the family fund.

8. The nine siblings contribute to the mortgage and food costs of the family in varying amounts as follows:

Name	Weekly Food	Mortgage
V.M.	$60.00	$150.00
*W.M.	$50.00	$1,500.00
N.M.	$30.00	$300.00
G.M.	$30.00	$300.00
M.O.M.	$100.00	$680.00
W.M.	$50.00	$300.00
*S.M.	$50.00	$385.00
*O.M.	$40.00	$385.00
A.M.M.	$30.00	$300.00

*owners of the Fort Lee property

9. W.M.,[4] who resides with his family in one half of the two-family home, pays the largest share of the mortgage costs. The contribution of V.M. to the mortgage, at $150 per month, which is the least of all the siblings' contributions, is 50 percent of the next lowest monthly mortgage contribution made by one of the siblings.

[4] There are two siblings with the initials W.M., one male and one female. It is V.M.'s brother who is referenced herein.

10. M.O.M. is employed as a housekeeper and as a daycare center worker. She earned $22,845.00 last year. At the time of the purchase of the home in Fort Lee by three of the siblings, a meeting was held among all of the siblings to determine the amount each would contribute to the greater expenses of the Fort Lee residence. V.M.'s contribution to the family fund was not increased. Also, when V.M.M. moved in with M.O.M. in early August 2002, V.M.'s contribution was not increased.

11. Based upon affidavits executed by V.M. and M.O.M. indicating that V.M. was not supporting V.M.M., the Board permitted V.M.M. to enroll in school in the District starting with the first day of the 2002-2003 school year. V.M.M. has remained in Fort Lee High School since that time. However, on November 25, 2002, the Board determined that V.M.M. did not meet the qualifications for enrollment as an affidavit student based upon M.O.M.'s letter of October 20, 2002 (P-8) indicating that V.M. provides full financial support.

12. Neither V.M. nor M.O.M. speaks English, and each has relied on M.O.M.'s son, J.P.M., age sixteen, to translate correspondence for them and draft correspondence on their behalf.[5] J.P.M. read the package of documents provided by the Board to M.O.M. and V.M. J.P.M. instructed M.O.M. as to how to complete the application. V.M. also signed the affidavits following J.P.M.'s instructions and the documents were returned to the Board. V.M. then had a telephone conversation with Dr. Taffaro, the assistant superintendent of the District, and understood that Taffaro wanted a letter stating that V.M. continues to support his family. Accordingly, J.P.M. was instructed by V.M. to draft a letter indicating that V.M. contributes to the support of the whole family, as had been the custom for many years (P-8). J.P.M. also prepared the undated letter that V.M. signed and returned to the District relative to his diabetes and the fact that his apartment was too small to accommodate V.M.M. (P-4). The letters were intended to convey that V.M. continues paying financial support for the benefit of all of the residents of the Fort Lee home. V.M. and M.O.M. each signed the respective letters believing that this was what J.P.M. had written.

[5] Their testimony was presented with the aid of an interpreter.

13. In addition to drawing on the family fund, M.O.M. has paid many expenses on behalf of V.M.M. out of her own pocket, including $210 for driving lessons, any school fees, the cost of V.M.M.'s lunches at school, and money for incidentals, clothing, and recreational activities. M.O.M. supports her nephew in the same manner as she supports her own son, from the family fund and from her own earnings.

LEGAL DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSION

The statute governing this matter, N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, provides in pertinent part as follows:

> Public schools shall be free to the following persons over five and under 20 years of age:
>
> a. Any person who is domiciled within the school district;
>
> b. (1) Any person who is kept in the home of another person domiciled within the school district and is supported by such other person gratis as if he were such other person's own child, upon filing by such other person with the secretary of the board of education of the district, if so required by the board, a sworn statement that he is domiciled within the district and is supporting the child gratis and will assume all personal obligations for the child relative to school requirements and that he intends so to keep and support the child gratuitously for a longer time than merely through the school term, and a copy of his lease if a tenant, or a sworn statement by his landlord acknowledging his tenancy if residing as a tenant without a written lease, and upon filing by the child's parent or guardian with the secretary of the board of education a sworn statement that he is not capable of supporting or providing care for the child due to a family or economic hardship and that the child is not residing with the resident of the district solely for the purpose of receiving a free public education within the district. The statement shall be accompanied by documentation to support the validity of the sworn statements, information from or about which shall be supplied only to the board and only to the extent that it directly pertains to the support or nonsupport of the child. If > in the judgment of the board of education the evidence does not support the validity of the claim by the resident, the board may deny admission to the child.

Accordingly, the "affidavit student" provision authorizes boards of education to challenge the validity of affidavits submitted by parents and relatives or friends to determine if the pupil is entitled to a free education in the particular district. The statute was amended in 1977 to prevent the following situation:

> Parents sometimes attempt to send their children to schools in districts other than their own without actually changing their residences. It is a very simple matter for a parent to request a relative or friend who resides within the district to provide the child with an official address within the district for purposes of school attendance.
>
> Further, if the friend or relative agrees to sign an affidavit, the school district must accept the child as a student within the system.
> [Statement to Senate Bill No. 1464–L. 1977, c. 373.]

The current dispute, however, does not present a situation analogous to that which the Legislature intended to prevent by enacting the "affidavit student" law.

Based upon the "affidavit student" law, petitioner is required to satisfy a four-prong test by demonstrating that (1) petitioner is domiciled within respondent's school district; (2) petitioner is supporting V.M.M. gratis; (3) V.M. is not capable of supporting or providing care for V.M.M. due to family or economic hardship; and (4) V.M.M. is not residing with petitioner solely for the purpose of receiving a free public education in respondent's school district. The burden of proof is on the petitioner to demonstrate each and every element. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b).

The first prong is not at issue in this dispute, as the record is clear that M.O.M. resides within the respondent's school district. Moreover, there is no evidence in the record even suggesting that V.M.M. is residing with M.O.M. solely for the purpose of receiving a free public education in respondent's school district. Accordingly the first and fourth prongs of the statutory requirements have been satisfied and I so FIND.

With regard to the second prong, the term "gratis" is not defined within the statute. Black's Law Dictionary 708 (7th ed. 1999) defines "gratis" to mean "free; without compensation." In the context of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(1) the term means that a person undertakes the support of a child without charging or seeking reward.

Respondent claims that it strains credulity to suggest that M.O.M., with earnings of less than $23,000 per year, supports herself, V.M.M. and her son, the one child remaining in her home, while V.M., with annual earnings of nearly $52,000, does not contribute to the support of V.M.M. Respondent also alleges that the letters submitted by V.M. and M.O.M. clearly indicate that V.M. is supporting V.M.M.

Petitioner argues that V.M. contributes only to the family fund, and in the same amount each month as before his son V.M.M. moved in with M.O.M. He asserts that M.O.M. provides for all of V.M.M.'s needs. Moreover, M.O.M. declares V.M.M. as a dependent on her income tax returns and V.M. does not, because he is not supporting V.M.M.

In the matter of E.L. v. Board of Education of Morris Hills Regional School District, EDU 3172-97, Initial Decision (January 3, 2000), aff'd and modified, Comm'r (February 15, 2000) <http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html>, the administrative law judge held that although the mother had ample means to support her daughter and contributed $200 per month to the grandparents for the child's living expenses, the petitioner nevertheless met the "gratis test," finding that the motivation of the grandparents "arose solely out of love and concern for their grandchild and was not dependent on making money." In the within matter the motivation of M.O.M. and her eight siblings appears to be the same, as each of them contributes to V.M.M.'s support by virtue of the family fund.

In the matter of Board of Education of East Brunswick v. J.R., 96 *N.J.A.R.*2d (EDU) 285, 287, the Commissioner upheld a ruling that if the grandparents provide "a substantial portion of the financial support" for their grandchild, that was sufficient to satisfy the gratis test. In that matter, the parents were divorced, the mother and step-father had busy schedules, and the child's natural father made support payments which the grandmother deposited into a bank account for the child, who lived with her. Additionally, the mother paid for the child's clothing, diapers, medical, dental and drug expenses. The Commissioner nevertheless agreed with the recommendation that the grandparents had assumed all obligations relative to the child's school requirements and concluded that the criteria set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(1) had been met.

In other matters, the fact that a child was covered under his parent's medical insurance did not undermine the "gratis" nature of the caretaker's support. See R.A. v. Board of Educ. of Ewing Township, 95 *N.J.A.R.*2d (EDU) 49, 50; J.B. v. Board of Educ. of Ocean Township, 96 *N.J.A.R.*2d (EDU) 628. Occasional small gifts are not enough to alter the fundamental relationship among the parties. J.B., supra, 96 *N.J.A.R.*2d (EDU) at 630 (winter coat, some jeans and shirts and some dress clothes). The receipt of Social Security survivor benefits "does not, in itself, disqualify [the child] from school attendance within the intendment of the law's gratis support requirement." Gunderson v. Board of Educ. of Brigantine, 95 *N.J.A.R.*2d (EDU) 39, 42. Payment of child support by a biological father does not undermine grandparents' status as supporting their grandchild "gratis" where the grandparents contributed more than half of their grandchild's living expenses, a substantial portion of her support, and enough to claim the child as a dependent on their income tax return. E.L., supra, EDU 3172-97, Initial Decision (January 3, 2000), aff'd and modified, Comm'r (February 15, 2000) <http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html>.

CREDIBILITY FINDINGS

It is the obligation and responsibility of the undersigned to weigh the credibility of the witnesses in this matter in order to make a determination. Credibility is the value that a fact finder gives to a witness's testimony. The word contemplates an overall assessment of a witness's story in light of its rationality or internal consistency, and the "manner in which it hangs together" with other evidence. Carbo v. United States, 314 *F.*2d 718, 749 (9th Cir. 1963). Credible testimony is testimony that must not only proceed from the mouth of a credible witness but must be credible in itself. It must be such as common experience, knowledge, and common observation can accept as probable under the circumstances. State v. Taylor, 38 N.J. Super. 6, 24 (App. Div.

1955). A fact finder is expected to base decisions of credibility on his or her common sense, intuition or experience. Barnes v. United States, 412 U.S. 837, 93 S. Ct. 2357, 37 L. Ed. 2d 380 (1973).

There is no mechanical formula for determining the truth. One factor to determine which party's version of the incident has the "reasonable probability of truth" is that the "interest, motive, bias, or prejudice of a witness may affect his credibility and justify the [trier of fact], whose province it is to pass upon the credibility of an interested witness, in disbelieving his testimony." State v. Salimone, 19 N.J. Super. 600, 608 (App. Div. 1952). Further, "[a] trier of fact may reject testimony because it is inherently incredible, or because it is inconsistent with other testimony or with common experience, or because it is overborne by other testimony." Congleton v. Pura-Tex Stone Corp., 53 N.J. Super. 282, 287 (App. Div. 1958). Also, it is the function of the trier of fact to determine credibility based on the internal consistency or improbability of the witnesses' testimonies using experience and everyday affairs to give additional guidance. Whether petitioner has met the burden of proving each element of the statute depends on the credibility of the evidence. Thus, I have also considered factors such as the witnesses' demeanor, as well as external measures of credibility.

Resolution of the contradictions and incongruities in testimony can only be accomplished by assessing the credibility of the witnesses. Accordingly, in determining credibility I considered the following customary criteria:

- The appearance and demeanor of each witness;
- The manner in which the witness testified;
- The interest of the witness in the outcome of the proceeding, if any;
- The means of the witness to obtain knowledge of the facts;
- The power of discernment of the witness;
- The ability of the witness to reason, observe, recollect and relate;
- The possible bias, if any, in favor the side for whom the witness testified;
- The extent to which, if at all, each witness was either corroborated or contradicted, supported or discredited by other evidence;

- Whether the witness testified with an intent to deceive this administrative tribunal;
- The reasonableness or unreasonableness of the testimony the witness has given; and
- Any and all other matters in the evidence that serve to support or discredit the testimony of the witness.

In the within matter the Board's determination was based on M.O.M.'s letter to the Board (P-8) and on V.M.'s letter (P-4), each of which state that V.M. is providing financial support for V.M.M. M.O.M. and V.M. testified that in each instance they intended to convey that V.M. was continuing to contribute as he had done for years to the family fund, and that neither letter written by M.O.M.'s son J.P.M., and not translated literally to either M.O.M. or V.M. before submission, was intended to convey that V.M. was providing all of the support for V.M.M. I FIND the testimony of M.O.M. and V.M. to be believable, credible and persuasive. The statutory requirement of gratis support by a person domiciled in the district does not contain any language prohibiting any contribution whatsoever by a parent, nor does the case law construe gratis as prohibiting some money being received on the child's behalf from the parent. Based upon all of the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that the support contributed by V.M. for V.M.M. is de minimis, and that petitioner has proven by a preponderance of the credible evidence that she supports V.M.M. gratis, thereby satisfying the second prong of the statute.

The remaining requirement is that a family or economic hardship exist that prevents V.M. from supporting or providing care for V.M.M. The Board contends that petitioner has not proven that a family hardship exists. In the matter of K.M. v. Board of Education of Ocean Township, 96 *N.J.A.R.*2d (EDU) 632, a fourteen-year-old student had been living with her mother and brother in a two-bedroom apartment in Neptune, N.J. The student and her brother shared a bedroom, which was deemed inappropriate by the family as the student reached her teenage years. The student's mother could not afford a three-bedroom apartment, so the student moved into the grandmother's home in Ocean Township. The Commissioner, in these circumstances, found that a sufficient economic hardship existed to justify the student's enrollment in the Ocean Township district schools. In the matter of McClean v. Board of Education of Township of Ocean, 96 *N.J.A.R.*2d

(EDU) 632, it was found to be inappropriate for a child entering adolescence to share a bedroom with her brother when their parents could not afford a larger apartment. Under the circumstances a hardship was found to exist. In the matter of Y.I.S. v. Northern Valley Regional High School District, EDU 10964-97, Initial Decision (December 6, 2001), adopted, Comm'r (January 8, 2002), aff'd, State Board (May 1, 2002) <http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html>, the travel schedule and working hours of a single parent were found to constitute a hardship.

In the case at bar, V.M.M. moved in with M.O.M. because there was no suitable living arrangement alternative. His parents and sister lived in a one-bedroom apartment in New York City, and other members of his family, who had contributed to his support all of his life, including his grandparents with whom he had been raised, were moving into a two-family home in Fort Lee, New Jersey. The decision was made that it was best for V.M.M. to move in with his grandparents, his aunt M.O.M. and his cousin, with other family members residing in the remainder of house, all of whom he was very close with and had lived with all of his life.

V.M. works two full-time jobs and, as corroborated by information provided by his treating physician, suffers from type II diabetes, hyperlipidemia and hypertension, and needs to be able to rest at home. It was difficult for V.M. to rest at home between his two full-time jobs because V.M.M. had returned from school by that time, often with friends, and sometimes practiced his piano. The overcrowding and the lack of suitable sleeping arrangements, combined with the medical condition of V.M., clearly rise to the level of family hardship. Under these circumstances there can be no doubt that V.M.M.'s move to M.O.M.'s home in August 2002 was because a legitimate family hardship existed, and I so FIND.

Based upon all of the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that petitioner has met the burden of proving that these circumstances constitute a family hardship, thereby satisfying the third prong of the test.

In the matter of Gunderson, supra, 95 *N.J.A.R.*2d (EDU) 39, 42, the Commissioner articulated the purpose of the statute and the January 1994 amendment as follows:

> In interpreting a statute, the Commissioner must look to the fundamental purpose for which the legislation was enacted, and where a literal reading will not accord with that purpose, the spirit of the law will control over its letter. N.J. Builders, Owners & Managers Association v. Blair, 60 N.J. 330, 333 (1972). Moreover, the meaning of a statute is to be gathered from the mischief sought to be eliminated as well as the proposed remedy. Brewer v. Porch, 53 N.J. 167, 174 (1969); San-Lan Builders, Inc. v. Baxendale, 28 N.J. 148, 155 (1958).
>
> The amendments to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 effectuated by P.L. 1993, c. 380 were intended to ease the burden on local boards of education attempting to remove illegally enrolled students, specifically those living with a parent or guardian who claims to be, but is not, domiciled within the district, and those living with a person other than the parent or guardian in order to obtain the benefit of a free public education in a district other than that of their entitlement by parental domicile. (See Sponsor's Statement, Senate Education Committee Statement and Governor's Conditional Veto Message to Senate Bill No. 1447 of 1993, enacted as c. 380)
> The intent of the "affidavit student" law is not now, and never has been, to deny an education to a child whose living arrangements may not be as contemplated by the statutory scheme . . . . To hold otherwise harms a party the Legislature never meant to penalize, unreasonably places form over substance and overlooks the substantial State interest in ensuring the education of all its children.

All of the surrounding circumstances conclusively support a finding that the second and third prongs of the four-part test have been met. Since V.M.M. moved in with M.O.M., his father has not claimed him as a dependent on his tax return, but M.O.M. has. V.M. contributes partially to V.M.M.'s support via the family fund, which he has contributed to all of his adult life and which is primarily for the support of his aging parents. V.M.'s siblings contribute far more to the family fund and therefore far more to V.M.M.'s support than V.M. does.

Based upon all of the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that V.M.M. is entitled to a free public education in the District.

ORDER

It is ORDERED that V.M.M. is eligible to receive a free public education in the Fort Lee School District.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning Board alleged that the Comprehensive Educational Improvement and Financing Act of 1996 (CEIFA) was being misapplied to the District and that the Department was violating applicable statutes and regulations regarding the amount of aid to be disbursed.

The ALJ found that there was no genuine issue of material fact and the matter could be decided by summary decision. Respondent argued, and, subsequent to filing of the petition, the District conceded based on the Hammonton Appellate Division decision, that it properly calculated the District's state aid pursuant to the Fiscal Year '04 Appropriations Act, under which each school district in New Jersey was entitled to receive the same amount of state aid it received during the 2002-03 school year. Petition was dismissed.

The Commissioner adopted the Initial Decision as his own.

Record Closed: March 4, 2004 Decided: March 15, 2004

BEFORE W. TODD MILLER, ALJ

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

On September 15, 2003, petitioner, Woodbury Board of Education ("District"), filed an action with the Commissioner of Education ("Commissioner") alleging that the Comprehensive Educational Improvement and Financing Act of 1996 ("CEIFA") was being misapplied to the district and that the Department of Education was violating the applicable statutes and regulations regarding the amount of aid to be disbursed. On October 21, 2003, the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. On December 16, 2003, a telephone prehearing conference was held wherein the parties agreed to submit cross-motions for summary judgment regarding the contested issues. On January 30, 2004, respondent, Commissioner of Education, filed its initial Motion for Summary Judgment. On March 2, 2004, petitioner submitted a letter indicating that it was not opposing the Commissioner's Motion for Summary Judgment. Therein, the letter provides:

> In light of the budgetary language in both the 2002-03 and 2003-04 Appropriations Bill and the State Board of Education and Appellate Division Decisions in the Hammonton case, the Woodbury Board of Education will not oppose the Attorney General's Motion for Summary Judgment. (Letter of Frederick A. Jacob, Esquire, counsel for the Woodbury Board of Education, March 2, 2004)

Accordingly, upon receipt of the district's March 4, 2004, letter, the record closed.

SUMMARY OF RELEVANT FACTS

The district alleges that its CEIFA aid for the 2003-2004 year is being misapplied, in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-1, et seq. More particularly, the district asserts that its 2003-2004 aid calculation, pursuant to CEIFA, should, in effect, be increased over its 2002-2003 aid calculation.

The Commissioner contends that the appropriation for 2003-2004 is confined or limited to the aid provided in the prior fiscal year (2002-2003). Respondent cites the Fiscal Year 04 Appropriation Act, L. 2003, c.122, which provides, as follows:

> Notwithstanding any other law or regulation to the contrary, each district shall receive no less of a total state aid amount payable for the 2003-2004 school year than the sum of the district's total state aid amount payable for the 2002-2003 school year for the following eight categories: Core Curriculum Standards Aid, Supplemental Core Curriculum Standards Aid, Early Childhood Program Aid,

> Instructional Supplemental Aid, Demonstrably Effective Program Aid Rewards and Recognition, Stabilization Aid, Stabilization Aid II, Stabilization Aid III, Large Efficient District Aid, Aid for Districts with High Senior Citizen Populations, Regionalization Incentive Aid, District Learning Network Aid, Adult and Postsecondary Education Grants, Bilingual Education Aid, Special Education Aid, County Vocational Program Aid, Transportation Aid, School Choice and Aid for Enrollment Adjustments, taking into consideration the June 2003 payment in July 2003.

The Commissioner further contends that, during the 2003-2003 school year, the district received a total of $8,522,279.00 in state aid. Accordingly, the Commissioner contends that the fiscal year 2003-2004 aid calculation was appropriate and petitioner'sreceipt of $8,612,548.00 was appropriately and lawfully calculated.[1]

LEGAL DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS

The rules governing practice in the OAL provide that a Motion for Summary Decision may be granted if there is no genuine issue of material fact and the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law. This provision mirrors the language of Rule 4:46-2 and the Supreme Court's decision in Judson v. Peoples Bank and Trust Co. of Westfield, 17 N.J. 67 (1954). Under N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b), the determination to grant Summary Judgment should be based on the papers presented as well as any affidavits, which may have been filed with the application. In order for the adverse, i.e., the non-moving party to prevail in such an application, responding affidavits must be submitted showing that there is indeed a genuine issue of fact, which can only be determined in an evidentiary proceeding. The Court in Brill v. Guardian Life Insurance Co. of America, 142 N.J. 520, 523 (1995), set the standard to be applied when deciding a Motion for Summary Judgment. Therein, the Court stated:

> The determination whether there exists a genuine issue with respect to a material fact challenged requires the Motion Judge to consider whether the competent evidential materials presented, when viewed in the light most favorable to the non-moving party...are sufficient to permit a rational fact finder to resolve the alleged disputed disputed issue in favor of the non-moving party.

[1] The District's consolidated aid was $159,204.00, together with an additional $6,990.00 in other aid, causing a slight increase over the fiscal year 2002-2003 calculations.

If the non-moving party's evidence is merely colorable, or is not significantly probative, summary judgment should not be denied. See Bowles v. City of Camden, 993 F.Supp. 255, 261 (D.N.J. 1998).

Based on the Briefs and Affidavits presented by the parties, I FIND that there is no genuine issue of material fact and the matter can be decided on Summary Decision. In fact, petitioner does not oppose the Commissioner's Motion to dismiss its petition.

The Commissioner asserts that it properly calculated the district's state school aid pursuant to the Fiscal Year 04 Appropriations Act and CEIFA. The Commissioner contents that each school district in New Jersey is only entitled to receive the same amount of state aid it received during the 2002-2003 school year. In other words, the Commissioner contends that the Fiscal Year 04 Appropriations Act trumps CEIFA for the 2003-2004 school year. In support for its contention, the Commissioner relies upon Hammonton Board of Education v. New Jersey Department of Education, et al, unreported, (slip op. at 15) (App. Div. 2003) (A-3836-01T5). The Commissioner argues that where the legislature has mandated funding for a particular program, the program may be implicitly suspended where the legislature fails to fund that program in a subsequent year. Hammonton, supra, (slip. op. at 16). The Appellate Division, in Hammonton, squarely addresses this issue. Therein, the Appellate Division stated that:

> The current appropriations act at issue in this case, the FY03 Appropriation, L. 2002, c.38 (FY03) has the full effect of law and expresses a "definite legislative intent." Citing City of Camden, 82 N.J. at 142. To the extent that the two enactments - CEIFA and FY03 - are irreconcilable, they cannot co-exist. Our courts, consistent with federal statutory interpretation, have declined to apply the Doctrine of "Implied Repeal." Id. See also Friends of Earth v. Armstrong, 485 F.2d 1, 16 (10th Cir. 1973) (holding "The Supreme Court has consistently stated that judicial construction is disfavored as a means of establishing a repeal of legislation.") Because appropriations acts have "a life limited to its fiscal year," our courts have been sensitive to the impact of appropriations laws upon existing laws, choosing to characterize the effect appropriations on standing legislation as an implied "suspension rather than an implied repeal."

The import of the Commissioner's position, as well as the language contained in Hammonton, supra, is that the legislature's failure to provide additional funding for the fiscal year 2003-2004 results in an implied suspension of CEIFA. This issue was addressed by the Appellate Division in Hammonton, and the same rationale is applicable to the present facts and circumstances. Accordingly, for the balance of reasons set forth in the Commissioner's Motion for Summary Judgment, together with the rationale provided by the Appellate Division in Hammonton, I FIND and CONCLUDE that the Commissioner's Motion for Summary Judgment, that is dismissing the petition filed by the District must be GRANTED. The Motion is granted based upon the existing law, together with the fact that the Motion was unopposed by the District.

ORDER

For the reasons set forth above, it is hereby ORDERED that the petition filed by the Board of Education of the City of Woodbury, Gloucester County, disputing or contesting the Commissioner of Education's CEIFA calculations for fiscal year 2003-2004 as being inappropriate or in violation of the applicable statute is hereby DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF CLARK, UNION COUNTY

SYNOPSIS

In consolidated matters, petitioners, tenured teachers formerly employed by the Union County Regional High School District No. 1, alleged respondent Clark School Board, their new employer when the Regional District was dissolved effective June 30, 1997, violated their rights under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-31.5 and 13-64 when it improperly calculated their compensation for sick leave upon retirement. Petitioners contended they were entitled to compensation for sick leave accumulated while employed by the Regional School District, at the rate provided in the collective bargaining agreement in effect at the time.

The ALJ concluded that payment for accumulated sick leave, like salary is compensation for services rendered during periods that were covered by the most recent collective negotiations agreement with the Regional District. Once that level of compensation was established, the protections of the tenure law were implicated. Thus, the ALJ concluded that affected staff members must be retained at the accumulated sick leave benefit level established through the last most recent contract with the Regional District, until such time as that level would be reached through subsequent contract negotiations, whereupon the staff members would be placed on the level of the other employees and accorded equal treatment thereafter. The ALJ ordered the Clark Board to recalculate the payment of accumulated sick leave for petitioners.

The Commissioner rejected the Initial Decision. The Commissioner determined that payment for accumulated sick leave was not protected pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64 either as a tenure right or an "other similar benefit" under that provision. Upon full consideration of the language of N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64, its legislative intendment, and applicable case law, the Commissioner held that payment for accumulated sick leave is not preserved and protected by this statute but, rather, is a contractual benefit subject to collective bargaining negotiations. Summary decision was granted to the Board; consolidated petitions were dismissed.

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioners, Arlene C. Allen, Bernie Buettner, Richard Esandrio, John A. Maikos, Barbara Oberding, Carmine N. Vitolo and Sharon Weiskopf, hereinafter referred to as Allen, et als., were employed as tenured teachers by the Union County Regional High School District No. 1. until the Regional School District was dissolved effective June 30, 1997. Allen, et als. selected the Clark School District as their new employer pursuant to the staff selection process approved by the Commissioner of Education and the State Board of Education. Each of these petitioners retired from employment with the Clark Board of Education effective June 30, 2001. In or about September 2001, the Clark Board of Education authorized the payment to these petitioners for unused accumulated sick leave as calculated by the Board. These petitioners dispute the calculation, asserting that they are entitled to compensation for sick leave accumulated while employed by the Regional School District, at the rate provided in the collective bargaining agreement in effect at the time.

Petitioners, Dorothy Barranger, Denis Borai, Allan Czaya, Arlene Della Cerra, Susan Dougherty, Leonard Ferrara, Thomas Galiszewski, Harvey Goldberg, Pamela Hartkopf, Thomas Kaptor, Betty Melchior, Lorraine Olszewski, Judith Z. Rothwell, Edward SanFillipo, Lois Savage, Karen Vinacour, and Ilene Zelkin, hereinafter referred to as Barranger, et als., were employed as tenured teachers by the Union County Regional High School District No. 1. until the Regional School District was dissolved

3. While they were employed by the Regional District, petitioners Allen, et als., and Barranger, et als., were members of a negotiations unit represented by the Union County Regional Federation of Teachers, Local 3417, AFT, AFL-CIO (the UCRFT).

4. Article 17 of the 1995-97 Collective Negotiations Agreement between the Regional District and the UCRFT provided in relevant part as follows (Joint Exhibit A):

> O. Commencing with the 1988-1989 school year, any teacher who has served in the district for twenty-five (25) years or longer, who has reached age fifty (50) and has not reached age fifty-five (55), or any teacher who has served in the district for fifteen (15) years or longer at age fifty-five or older, shall be entitled to be paid for accumulated sick days within twelve (12) months from the date of leaving the district on the following basis:
> 1995-96 school year: $60 per day for up to 250 days
> 1996-97 school year: $65 per day for up to 250 days

5. On May 14, 1996, voters in the six municipalities which comprised the Regional District approved the dissolution of the Regional District in a referendum. Thereafter, the Commissioner of Education determined that the dissolution of the Regional District would be effective July 1, 1997.

6. In approximately December 1996, petitioners Allen, et als., and Barranger, et als., selected the Clark School District as their employer pursuant to the staff selection process which the Commissioner of Education, and subsequently, the State Board of Education, approved in Stagaard v. Contini, 97 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 217, aff'd in relevant part State Board, S.B. #88-96 (State Board decision, Oct. 1, 1997).

7. Petitioners Allen, et als., were employed by the Clark Board as tenured teachers in 1997-1998, 1998-1999, 1999-2000 and 2000-2001 school years.

8. Petitioners Barranger, et als., were employed by the Clark Board as tenured teachers in 1997-1998, 1998-1999, 1999-2000, 2000-2001 and 2001-2002 school years.

9. During the 1996-97 school year, the Clark Education Association (CEA) was the exclusive negotiations representative for all certified employees of the Clark Board of Education, prior to the effective date of deregionalization.

10. Article XI of the Collective Negotiations Agreement between the Board and the Clark Education Association for the 1996-97 school year, provided in relevant part as follows (Joint Exhibit B):

> C. 1. Any employee who retires according to the Teacher Pension and Annuity Fund of the Public Employment Retirement System, in order to receive immediate benefits and not merely deferred retirement by submitting a letter of retirement after July 1, 1996 through June 30, 1997, shall receive twenty-five ($25) dollars per day for each unused accumulated sick day for up to and not to exceed 150 days and not to exceed $3750. Said payment shall be made in one (1) lump sum payment.

11. In June 1997, the CEA was decertified and the Clark Federation of School Employees was certified as the collective negotiations representative for the 1997-98 school year. The provisions of Article XI remained in full force and effect until a new agreement was reached between the Board and the successor Federation (CFSE) for the 1998-2001 school years. In the 1998-2001 contract, the provisions of Article XI remained the same, except for effective dates.

12. While they were employed by the Clark Board of Education during the 1997-98 school year and beyond, petitioners Allen, et als., and Barranger, et als., were members of a negotiations unit represented by the successor Federation, the Clark Federation of School Employees, Local 3417, AFT, AFL-CIO (CFSE).

LEGAL DISCUSSION

The matter is now before this tribunal on cross-motions for summary decision. When considering a motion for summary decision, the administrative law judge (ALJ) must determine whether, based on the proceedings, discovery and affidavits submitted, a genuine issue of material fact exists which must be decided by a full evidentiary hearing. A contested matter can be summarily disposed of before an ALJ without plenary hearing in instances where undisputed material facts, as developed on motion or otherwise, indicate that a particular disposition is required as a matter of law. In the Matter of Robros Recycling Corp. 226 N.J. Super. 343 (App. Div. 1988). In this matter, the parties have stipulated to the material facts extant. The resolution of the issue raised by these cross-motions rests on analysis of legal principles. Thus, the matter is ripe for summary disposition.

Respondent asserts that the issue in the within matter has already been litigated in Nadasky, et al. v. Board of Education of the Township of Clark, OAL Dkt. EDU 7375-99, and the doctrine of res judicata and collateral estoppel apply. That assertion is without merit. Collateral estoppel as applied in New Jersey is "that branch of the broader law of res judicata which bars relitigation of any issue which was actually determined in a prior action, generally between the same parties, involving a different claim or cause of action." State v. Gonzalez, 75 N.J. 181, 186 (1977); Plainfield v. Public Service Electric and Gas Company, 82 N.J. 245, 257 (1980). "It is well settled that where a judgment of a court of competent jurisdiction directly determines a right, question or fact directly put in issue, such judgment estops the parties or their privies from thereafter relitigating the same issue in a subsequent proceedings between them, regardless of its nature or form." Washington Township v. Gould, 39 N.J. 527, 533 (1963). The issue to be addressed herein has not been fully adjudicated in Nadasky. The Commissioner in Nadasky found that the factual circumstances presented did not constitute grounds for relaxation of the 90-day rule. There was no determination of the right, question or fact put in issue beyond the application of the 90-day rule. The parties are entitled to a disposition on the merits of the claims.

Petitioners are seeking payment from the Clark School District for accumulated and unused sick days that were accrued while they were employed as tenured teachers in the Union County Regional High School District, which was dissolved effective June 30, 1997. Petitioners assert they have a statutory right to be paid at the contractual rate established by the collective negotiations agreement in effect at the time the days were accumulated, i.e., when the Regional District employed them. Petitioners maintain that several statutory provisions, when read in pari materia, either protect or preserve all rights of petitioners herein to leave of absence, tenure, seniority, pension and accumulated sick leave. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10; N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64; N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. The tenure statutes prohibit the reduction of compensation of a tenured employee without just cause, as defined therein. Petitioners argue that the word "compensation" as used in the tenure statutes includes the payment for accumulated, unused sick leave upon retirement.

Clearly, respondent recognizes the right of these employees to leave of absence including time accumulated while employed by the Regional District. Petitioners were all given credit for the accumulated sick time accrued during tenure with the Regional District. Further, respondent does not contest the entitlement of these tenured teachers to be paid for unused accumulated sick time, since payment has been tendered to each of them. Respondent asserts, however, that petitioners fail to recognize the distinction between the statutory right to accumulate (and carry over to a new employing district in a situation such as this) sick days, and the contractual benefits addressing the payment upon retirement for those days remaining unused.

The legislature has provided a statutory scheme by which constituent districts may obtain the dissolution of a limited purpose regional school district. N.J.S.A. 18A:13-51 et seq. The statutory scheme contemplates that the constituent districts shall assume the indebtedness of the dissolved Regional District, as calculated in accordance with the statute. N.J.S.A. 18A:13-52. There is no dispute that the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64, pertaining to the dissolution of a limited purpose regional school district, are generally applicable to the petitioners herein. As tenured employees of the dissolving Regional District, they became employees of the constituent district, respondent Clark Board of Education. Pursuant to this statute, > all of their rights of tenure, seniority, pension, leave of absence and other similar benefits shall be recognized and preserved and any periods of prior employment in the regional district shall count toward the acquisition of tenure to the same extent as if all such employment had been under the withdrawing district or in any of the constituent districts in the event of a dissolution.

It is beyond contention that the statute and relevant decisions addressing the application of the statute require that the constituent district may not reduce the salary of tenured employees of a dissolving regional district.

> Rather, in those instances where the appropriate step and placement would result in a reduction in salary, the affected staff member must be retained at the current salary level until such time as that level would be reached through ordinary guide movement, whereupon the staff member would be placed 'on guide' and accorded normal movement thereafter.
> [Stagaard v. Contini, 97 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 217.]

In making that determination, the Commissioner of Education stated that N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64 "must be applied in a manner which preserves the continued employment and accrued rights of such staff, but does not result in the wholesale disruption of existing districts." Id. at 218.

The petitioners in Stagaard sought a declaration, in part, that

> N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64 will ensure retention of prior benefits such as carry over of accumulated sick days and payment on retirement for unused sick days, and in > either case, that the law will not permit tenured teachers to be reduced in compensation (Count IV)....

The Commissioner in Stagaard held that:

> ... determination will turn on N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64, which requires that pension, leave and other benefits are to be preserved, and on the protections of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5, which will not permit a reduction in salary for tenured staff members. The Commissioner has previously addressed this issue in the matter of Board of Education of the Central Regional High School District v. Board of Education of Lacey Township et al., Ocean County, 1980 S.L.D. 553. Therein, the Commissioner specifically directed that staff transferring to a withdrawing constituent district from a regional district were to be placed on the salary guide of the constituent district at the step and level appropriate for their years of service in the regional district, that their rights of leave and other similar benefits were to be preserved, and that they were to be accorded all other benefits held by employees of the constituent district.

While the Stagaard decision clearly established the guidelines for treatment of the salary, among other rights of the staff members of the dissolved Regional District, it left unresolved the very issues addressed herein. These two significant issues are whether N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 contemplated compensation other than salary, and whether in any event, the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64 contemplated the preservation of the right to payment for sick leave days accumulated while at the Regional District.

Essential to the resolution of the first issue is the analysis of various statutes and the case law interpreting those statutes in addressing the components of a teacher's compensation. Salary is indisputably a primary component of compensation of a teacher. So, too, may be other employment benefits. The courts have held that > absent allegations of bad faith or unlawful purpose, a tenured teacher's seniority rights are not triggered when a school board abolishes the teacher's position and assigns the teacher to teach different subjects within his or her certification without reducing the teacher's salary or other employment benefit.

> [Carpenito v. Rumson Board of Education, 322 N.J. Super. 522 (App. Div. 1999) (emphasis added).]

The employment benefit of longevity is one component that has been recognized as compensation. While there are considerations made as to the creditability of longevity pay to the calculable income for pension purposes, longevity payments are considered compensation. Wilson v. Bd. of Trustees of PFRS, 322 N.J. Super. 477 (App. Div. 1998). Several cases have held that sick leave payments are a form of compensation as well. The Appellate Division recognized as much when that court stated, " ... our concern is that sick leave pay and other forms of deferred compensation have long been considered 'additional compensation upon retirement' subject to mandatory negotiation." Matter of School Board of Morris, 310 N.J. Super. 332 (App. Div. 1998). The court in Morris discussed facts of another case strikingly similar to those in that case, where the Illinois Appellate Court held that a union could not bargain away the right of an employee to accumulated sick leave compensation granted in prior collective bargaining agreements. The Appellate Division cited Lawrence v. Board of Education of School District 189, 152 Ill. App. 3d 187, 105 Ill. Dec. 195, 197, 503 N.E. 2d 1201, 1203 (1987), where it observed:

> ... the plaintiff, a school attendance officer, brought suit against the Board of Education claiming that he was wrongfully denied payment of sick leave compensation at the time of his retirement. During most of plaintiff's employment, the applicable collective bargaining agreements allowed employees to accumulate sick leave time and receive severance pay upon retirement consisting of a percentage of the accrued compensation. Prior to plaintiff's retirement, however, the union and the Board entered into a collective bargaining agreement that eliminated the right to receive accumulated sick leave time upon retirement. Id. at 198, 503 N.E. 2d at 1204. At the time of plaintiff's retirement, he was informed that he would not be receiving his severance pay because it was not permitted under the collective bargaining agreement then in effect. Ibid. Plaintiff was successful at trial, and the Board appealed. As phrased by the court, the question presented was "whether the plaintiff should be entitled to receive compensation for such accumulated sick leave days when at the time of the retirement there were no contractual provisions in the collective bargaining agreement allowing for such payment." Id. at 201, 503 N.E. 2d at 1207. In affirming the judgment, the court reasoned:
> "We conclude that the retirement benefit sought by plaintiff can be characterized as a form of deferred compensation in that plaintiff worked days when he was ill in order to accumulate the sick leave days as a retirement benefit.... [We] find that the 'merit pay' for accumulated sick leave days under the previous terms of the collective bargaining agreements vested upon the date that plaintiff fulfilled the service condition. Once that service condition was fulfilled, the benefit derived from plaintiff's term of service was vested and could only be divested by failure to satisfy the eligibility requirements."

Additional guidance related to the resolution of this issue is found in the matter of Greenway v. Board of Ed. Of the City of Camden, 129 N.J.L. 461 (1943). In Greenway, the court addressed the issue of salary increments not yet accrued under a salary schedule that was enacted as "a rule of the board" in the exercise of managerial function, and it contained an express reservation of the power of amendment and repeal. The Greenway Court, in considering the prior Tenure Law, N.J.S.A. 18:13-17, held:

> ... the right of revision and repeal is subject to the injunction against 'a reduction of salary' except for just cause, embodied in sec. 1 of the act of 1909, supra, now *R.S.*1937, 18:13-17, N.J.S.A. 18:13- 17. But unaccrued increments under a salary schedule adopted pursuant to sec. 106 of the General School Law of 1903, supra, do not take the classification of 'salary' within the intendment of sec. 18:13-17, supra. In the local legislative usage the terms are mutually exclusive. Increments, as used here, are the periodic, consecutive additions or increases which do not become a part of the salary of the teacher until they accrue under the rule making such provision; and, until the accrual, the modification or repeal of the rule so providing does not constitute a reduction of the current salary.

Next is the issue of whether N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64 contemplates that the payment for accumulated sick leave is a "similar benefit" to be recognized and preserved. In the instant case, the petitioners contend that the right to deferred compensation for accumulated sick leave cannot be withheld. It is argued that the teachers' right to receive deferred compensation is "vested" and cannot be taken away absent express consent. Respondent contends that the teachers had no guaranty that their right to such benefits would extend beyond the period governed by the previous collective negotiations agreement with the Regional District. It argues among other considerations that, under the prior agreement with the Regional District, leaving the district was the condition that triggered the right to obtain payment for accumulated sick leave. Respondent thus asserts that absent leaving the district during the period governed by the previous collective negotiations agreement while having met the conditions for obtaining an accrued interest, the teachers had only a mere expectancy that was subject to negotiation. Any leave accumulated by petitioners while employed by the Regional District must be treated as if it had been accumulated in Clark.

A factor considered by the courts in addressing the treatment of accumulated sick leave is whether teachers' accumulated sick leave constitutes a vested right. In this context, the Appellate Division has held that accumulated sick leave compensation could not be divested through collective negotiations absent knowing and intentional waiver by the individuals who were adversely affected. In that case neither party had proposed retroactive caps. Matter of School Board of Morris, supra, at 347. The Court in Morris declared:

> We think there is no profit in dealing in labels such as "vested right," "accrued interest" or "mere expectancy." None fits precisely, and it would be a mistake to choose one and be driven by the choice to an inevitable consequence. See Spina v. Consolidated Police and Firemen's Pension Fund Comm'n, 41 N.J. 391, 401, 197 A.2d 169 (1964). However the teachers' right to sick leave compensation is phrased, we are satisfied that the Commission's policy barring divestment absent a knowing waiver was reasonable and within its statutory powers.
> [Supra at 343].

The Appellate Court in Morris noted that the Supreme Court has protected similar rights against invasion. The Morris Court cited Gauer v. Essex County Div. of Welfare, 108 N.J. 140, 144, (1987), where Essex County attempted to discontinue certain health insurance benefits that had been granted to retired welfare workers because other classes of retired employees were not entitled to such benefits and N.J.S.A. 40A:10-23 purported to require uniform distribution. It was noted in Morris that the Supreme Court prohibited the County from rescinding its policy. In reaching this conclusion, the Supreme Court stressed that the retired workers had "served out their employment and retired" relying upon the compensation scheme granting continued health benefits. Id. at 147-48.

The Morris Court also cited Owens v. Press Publishing Co., 20 N.J. 537 (1956), where the Supreme Court considered whether the right to severance pay survived the expiration of a collective bargaining agreement. The plaintiffs had been discharged after the collective bargaining agreement had terminated, but claimed that they had earned the right to severance pay as a form of deferred compensation. Id. at 542-43. The defendant contended that the plaintiffs' interest in severance pay was not a "vested right" because the plaintiffs had not been discharged during the period covered by the collective bargaining agreement. Id. at 543. Characterizing severance pay as "terminal compensation measured by the service given during the subsistence of the contract," the Supreme Court held that the deferred compensation "was not conditioned upon the employee's discharge from service within the term of the collective bargaining agreement." Id at 548. The Court reasoned that "once the right [came] into being it ... survive[d] the termination of the agreement." Ibid.

Additionally, in State Troopers Fraternal Assoc. of New Jersey, Inc. v. New Jersey, 149 N.J. 38 (1997), a group of former state troopers sought to recover a retroactive pay adjustment under a collective negotiations agreement that was reached with the State after the troopers had resigned in good standing. The troopers claimed that, because of an unwritten retroactive past practice of the State Police, the agreement provided for the retroactive pay adjustment. During the course of the collective negotiations, the State had adopted a regulation that prohibited retroactive pay increases to all state employees who resigned from state employment before the execution of a collective negotiations agreement. The Supreme Court held that the former troopers were entitled to the retroactive pay increase up to the date the regulation was promulgated. Id. at 55-56. This result was said to be mandated because the former troopers had relied on the continuation of the past practice when they decided to resign before the new agreement was signed. However, as to the question of whether the retroactive pay increase was a vested right, the Supreme Court held that, in that context, it was not. Recognizing that certain contractual rights may qualify as vested rights, the Court declined to so characterize the pay increase there as a vested right. The State's important interest in safeguarding revenues was sufficient to satisfy the Court that the private interest of the troopers was not vested in the constitutional sense, thus the State could impair it retroactively.

Respondent raises the issue of the enforceability of the contractual provision as an illegal "early retirement incentive". Fair Lawn Education Association v. Fair Lawn Board of Education, 161 N.J. Super. 67 (App. Div. 1978), aff'd, 79 N.J. 574 (1979). That case involved the contractual provision in the collective negotiations agreement that provided for an additional lump sum payment of $6,000 to any teacher who met certain age requirements if he notified the board in writing before April 1, 1977 of his intention to retire prior to September 1, 1977. The Fair Lawn court observed that:

> This payment was in addition to the benefits provided under the Teachers' Pension Law. For the following year there is a graduated payment schedule based on age, which, in effect, penalizes a teacher who delays retirement by decreasing the amount of the retirement benefit. It is apparent that the plan was designed to induce the early retirement of older, more highly compensated teachers, to make way for younger teachers, who would be paid less commensurate with their education, experience and length of service. The rationale for the payment of such supplemental retirement benefits is that the older teachers would be rewarded for lengthy service and the board would effect a saving by a reduction in salaries.

The Appellate Division held that the early retirement remuneration plan included in the collective negotiations agreement between the Fair Lawn Education Association and the Fair Lawn Board of Education is ultra vires, void and unenforceable. Fair Lawn, supra, at 74-75. The court determined that this provision would impair the actuarial integrity of the Teachers' Pension Fund and will impose an unfair and improper burden on its other members.

Respondent also asserts that payment for accumulated sick leave is subject to collective negotiations and that, by defining such payment as compensation, the court would undermine the PERC Act. N.J.S.A. 34:13A-1 et seq. In this regard, the courts have construed the various statutes in pari materia, in an effort to reconcile conflicts between Title 18A and the Employer-Employee Relations Act. The Supreme Court considered the obligation of a board of education under an expired contract in Board of Educ. of Tp. of Neptune in County of Monmouth v. Neptune Tp. Educ. Ass'n, 144 N.J. 16 (1996). The Court, declaring that the payment of fourth year of salary increments following expiration of three-year contract violated the state education law, held:

> ... courts have continued to hold that specific education statutes preempt labor law. Thus, in Galloway Township Bd. of Educ. v. Galloway Township Educ. Ass'n, 78 N.J. 25, 51, 393 A. 2d 218 (1978), we decided a labor issue by reference to an education statute that "applies to command that conclusion." Similarly, in Board of Educ. v. Piscataway Maintenance & Custodial Ass'n, 152 N.J. Super. 235, 245, 247-48, 377 A.2d 938 (App. Div. 1977), the court rejected a claim that the 1974 amendment should change the result in Dunellen and > decided that "the general provisions of the Employer-Employee Relations Act ... should yield to specific sections of the Education Law dealing with the subject." See also Rockaway Tp. Educ. Ass'n, supra, 120 N.J. Super. at 569, 295 A.2d 380 ("It cannot be argued, therefore, that Title 18A, 'Education,' ... has been superseded."); Orlando v. Board of Sch. Estimate, OAL Dkt. EDU 4550-83 (Comm'r of Educ., Sept. 6, 1984) ("The salary schedules ... while they may have been negotiated in good faith [and are valid under labor law], fall outside the clear provisions of [Title 18A] and are of no effect").

The Supreme Court, in State v. State Supervisory Emp. Ass'n, 78 N.J. 54, (1978), also addressed the issue of negotiability of terms and conditions of employment in light of specific statutes or regulations setting or controlling a particular term or condition of public employment. The Court there held that:

> ... where a statute or regulation mandates minimum level of rights or benefits for public employees but does not bar public employer from choosing to afford them greater protection, proposals by employees to obtain that greater protection in a negotiated agreement are mandatorily negotiable and a contractual provision affording employees rights or benefits in excess of that required statute or regulation is valid and enforceable. However, where statute or regulation sets maximum level of rights or benefits for employees on particular term or condition of employment, no proposal to affect that maximum is negotiable nor would any contractual provision purporting to do so be enforceable. Where a statute sets both a maximum and a minimum level of employee rights or benefits, mandatory negotiation is required concerning any proposal for a level of protection fitting between and including such maximum and minimum.
> [Id. at 81-82.]

Clearly, the New Jersey statutes grant teachers in the state the right to tenure. The Tenure Act defines the conditions under which teachers are afforded that right to tenure. The Act makes tenure a mandatory term and condition of employment. It therefore supersedes contractual terms. Spiewak v. Board of Educ. of Rutherford, 90 N.J. 63, 72, (1982). In the instant case, the Tenure Act effectively establishes minimum levels of compensation, but does not bar the negotiation of higher levels of such compensation. The statute simply requires that once the level of compensation is set, that compensation may not be reduced except for just cause.

CONCLUSIONS

There are many examples of "extra compensation" not includable in the income creditable for retirement and death benefits in the pension system. N.J.A.C. 17:4-4.1. This non-exhaustive list includes overtime pay; bonuses; and lump-sum payments for longevity, holiday pay, vacation, compensatory time, accumulated sick leave, or any other purpose. The regulation points out clearly that such payments, while "compensation", are simply not creditable for pension purposes. So while a contract provision may run afoul of the pension statutes for creating an early retirement incentive, in order to find a contract provision to be ultra vires and unenforceable there must be a showing that the provision was an inducement to premature retirement. Fair Lawn, supra, at 73. Nothing presented in the instant case compels the conclusion that the provision contained in Article 17 of the 1995-97 Collective Negotiations Agreement is designed to encourage or induce early retirement.

At issue, then, in the instant case is the threshold question of whether payment for accumulated sick leave is compensation. It is apparent that the courts have expressed an underlying concern for the protection of an employee's right to deferred compensation. A collective negotiations agreement is the result of the mutual agreement of the parties. However, the courts have made it clear that deferred compensation generally survives the expiration of the term of the agreement. By enacting N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5, the legislature has provided to tenured teachers protection from reduction in compensation. If the legislature intended to limit that protection to the interest in salary, the language in that statute could have easily referenced "salary" rather than "compensation". The wording of the Tenure Act is to be applied as written in the absence of a contrary legislative intent. Spiewak v. Board of Educ. of Rutherford, 90 N.J. at 74. I CONCLUDE that payment for accumulated sick leave, like salary, is in fact compensation for services rendered during periods that were covered by the most recent collective negotiations agreement with the Regional District.

Respondent nevertheless argues that the union had the right to negotiate away the teachers' interest in deferred payment for accumulated sick leave and that the provision does not create a vested right. And although the petitioners' request for relief would seem to concur that subsequent negotiations may reduce the level of benefit on a prospective basis, that view is inconsistent with the conclusion that payment for accumulated sick leave is compensation. Viewing the contract provision regarding payment for accumulated sick time as compensation, it is unnecessary to characterize the interest as a vested right, accrued interest, or mere expectancy. Once the parties established the level of compensation, the protections of the tenure law were implicated. I CONCLUDE that such contract provision creates an interest tantamount to salary, which, by statute, cannot be reduced during tenure except for just cause under the tenure statute. See Stagaard v. Contini. Applying the rationale provided by the Commissioner of Education in Stagaard to payment for accumulated sick leave, I further CONCLUDE that affected staff members must be retained at the accumulated sick leave benefit level established through the last most recent contract with the Regional District, until such time as that level would be reached through subsequent contract negotiations, whereupon the staff member would be placed on the level of the other employees and accorded equal treatment thereafter. The impact of this rationale on the local school board is limited and calculable. This calculable interest is one assumed by the constituent districts in connection with the dissolution sought by them.

ORDER

Based on the foregoing, I hereby ORDER that the respondent, Clark Township Board of Education, recalculate the payment of accumulated sick leave for petitioners Allen, et als., and Barranger, et als., in accordance with Article 17(O) of the 1995-97 Collective Negotiations Agreement between the Regional District and the UCRFT. Petitioners Allen, et als., and Barranger, et als., are entitled to be paid for accumulated sick days at the rate of $65 per day for up to 250 days of accumulated sick leave accrued during employment at both the Regional District and the Clark School District.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

The record of this consolidated matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. The Board's exceptions were timely filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4. Petitioners filed reply and cross-exceptions. Reply to petitioners' cross-exceptions filed by the Board was not considered herein as N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 makes no provision for replies to cross exceptions.

The Board's exceptions charge that the Initial Decision is undeniably wrong and urge that, because this matter was decided on stipulated facts, without benefit of testimony, the Commissioner conduct a de novo review of the purely legal issues involved which, without question, will lead to a rejection of the grossly erroneous Initial Decision. (Board's Exceptions at 5) In this regard the Board advances the following three arguments:

I. THE ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGE (ALJ) ERRED BY REJECTING THE BOARD'S ARGUMENT THAT PREVIOUS LITIGATION ON THIS ISSUE HAS A BINDING EFFECT HEREIN.

The Board argues that the ALJ mistakenly concluded that the instant matter was not res judicata as a result of the Commissioner's decision in Nadasky et al. v. Board of Education of the Township of Clark, Union County, decided by the Commissioner July 9, 2001, dismissed for failure to prosecute State Board, October 5, 2001, because Nadasky was ultimately decided on procedural rather than substantive grounds. Such a suggestion, the Board proffers, wholly "ignores the jurisdictional and historical setting of Nadasky and these consolidated matters." (Board's Exceptions at 7) To the contrary, it posits, Nadasky, as here, involved petitioners challenging the Clark School District's refusal to pay them for accumulated, unused sick time pursuant to the terms of the Union County Regional School District contract at the time of their subsequent retirement from the Clark School District; was litigated on cross-applications for summary decision, based on stipulated facts identical to the ones in this matter except as to the identity of the petitioners; and was decided without hearing. Notwithstanding that the ALJ ultimately dismissed the Nadasky petition as a consequence of the petitioners' failure to pursue their claim in a timely manner pursuant to the 90-day rule, the Board alleges, her initial decision addressed the substantive issue and she made the following legal holding with regard to petitioners' claim:

> The Appellate Division has pointed out, as recently as 1998, that reimbursement for unused sick time is a matter which is not preempted by statute and may be negotiated as a term and condition of employment. Alford v. Board of Education of Buena Regional School District, 310 N.J. Super. 147, 155 (App. Div. 1998) Furthermore, as Respondent points out, the Commissioner has held that in N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64, providing that the rights of tenure, seniority and pension, for example, are transferable, there is no indication in the statute that its intent was to require the establishment of two levels of compensation and benefits for comparable levels of training and experience. Board of Education of Central Regional High School District v. Board of Education of Lacey Township, et al, 1980 S.L.D. 553 (Commissioner Decision, June 6, 1980). Clearly, to pay these three tenured employees at a more generous rate than other tenured employees at the time of retirement would result in two levels of compensation for similarly situate[ed] employees. Finally, the very fact that there is a choice between provisions in two contracts is a clear indication that the nature of the issue to be determined is contractual.
> Nadasky, Initial Decision at 9.
> (Board's Exceptions at 8-9)

The Board points out that petitioners' exceptions to this decision addressed both the procedural and substantive determinations of the ALJ. Upon review of the decision and exceptions, the Commissioner > expressly rejected Petitioners' argument that relaxation of the 90-day Rule was appropriate by reason of "substantial constitutional or other issue of fundamental public interest." Commissioner's Decision at 19. So noting, the Commissioner ultimately held, "for the reasons stated in the Initial Decision and herein, the Petition of Appeal is hereby dismissed." (Id. at 9)

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(c), the Board argues, the Commissioner has the authority and obligation to adopt, reject or modify each and every finding of fact, conclusion of law or policy interpretation contained in the Initial Decision. His wholesale adoption of the Nadasky decision, without rejection or dismissive comment on any of its content, necessarily signifies his agreement with each factual finding and legal conclusion, including the above-detailed excerpt. (Ibid.) Consequently, the Board proffers, as the determination of the very issue involved in this case was previously made in Nadasky, the instant litigation is res judicata and collateral estoppel prevents the ALJ from reopening this matter.

II. THE ALJ ERRED IN DETERMINING THAT PAYMENT FOR ACCUMULATED, UNUSED SICK LEAVE UPON RETIREMENT IS "COMPENSATION" AS DEFINED FOR PURPOSES OF STATUTORY TENURE PROTECTION.

The gravamen of the ALJ's decision here, the Board argues, is that the negotiated amount of payment for unused sick leave upon retirement is "compensation" within the intendment of the Tenure Laws and, therefore, like salary, can never be reduced from its maximum level. Such a determination, it avers, is unquestionably wrong as it operates to eviscerate the PERC Act and the underlying principles of public employee negotiations, is unsupported by statutory, regulatory or case law and fully fails to recognize the nature of this benefit and the serious pragmatic consequences which would result upon acceptance of this premise. (Board's Exceptions at 13)

Collective Bargaining Under the PERC Act: Consideration of the ALJ's decision vis-à-vis collective negotiations pursuant to the PERC Act evidences an overreaching interpretation which contradicts the very laws it seeks to enforce. The ALJ's reliance on his conclusion that payment for unused sick leave at retirement is "compensation" falling within the protections of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5, and, consequently, rejection of the Board's argument that such payment is a negotiable issue and that limitations on negotiations are contrary to public policy, endangers the fundamental principles of collective bargaining negotiations. (Board's Exceptions at 14-15) The Board cites Bd. of Edu. of Neptune v. Twp. Education Assoc., 144 N.J. 16, 23-24 (1996) (citing Red Bank Bd. of Educ. v. Warrington, 138 N.J. Super. 564, 569 (App. Div. 1976), for the proposition "that the New Jersey School Laws and the PERC Act must be read in pari materia, in a manner mindful of the legislative intent and that they be 'unitary and part of a harmonious whole.'" It avers that neither the courts nor quasi-judicial agencies can ascribe meaning to any statute or regulation "which would render another statute or regulation moot or unenforceable." (Board's Exceptions at 14) Here, the Board posits, utilizing the ALJ's overly broad definition of "compensation" would operate to eviscerate the express provisions of the PERC Act and lead to dramatically more far-reaching consequences than the instant controversy between these parties, notably

> [i]f benefits such as the payment for sick leave at retirement are "locked in" at their maximum level, the necessary result is that the issue can no longer be negotiated between the parties, or, at a minimum, cannot be applied equally to its employees. For example, if a contract provision grants 100% per diem payment for 100% of unused sick time at retirement, the Association's reading of "compensation" would forever bar the parties to such an agreement from negotiating a cap or reduction of that benefit. However, while sick leave itself is statutory, clearly the payment for such leave at retirement is negotiable. To define such payments as tenurable "compensation" would undermine the PERC Act, and the effects upon Collective Bargaining Agreements, particularly those in post-dissolution districts, would range from confusing to truly convoluted. (Ibid.)

The Board submits that PERC case law holds that all fringe benefits are mandatorily negotiable. Montville Board of Education, P.E.R.C. No. 76-51, 2 NJPER ¶230. Fringe benefits, it proffers, include such things as health insurance coverage, timing and amount of bereavement leave, number of personal days, tuition reimbursement and a wide variety of other issues. Because all fringe benefits undeniably have value to employees, acceptance of the ALJ's expansive definition of "compensation" protected by tenure, would prevent any of them from being negotiable but, rather, would operate to afford employees the maximum value of each of these benefits, effectively freezing negotiations at the maximum level for each of them, an outcome which is diametrically opposite to the express provisions and underlying intent of the PERC Act. The Board further argues, citing City of Somers Point, P.E.R.C. No. 77-48, 3 NJPER ¶99; Union City Board of Education, P.E.R.C. No. 84-79, 10 NJPER 46 (¶15026 1983); Alford v. Buena Board of Education, 310 N.J. Super. 147, 155 (App. Div. 1998); Township of Edison, P.E.R.C. No. 84-89, 10 NJPER ¶15063 (1984); that it is well-established under PERC case law that payment for sick leave at retirement is a negotiable issue. Moreover, it submits, neither the Appellate Division nor the Supreme Court has ever held that payment for sick leave upon retirement is beyond the scope of collective negotiations, preempted by School Law or cannot be reduced through parties' bargaining negotiations. Although the ALJ correctly recognized that the PERC Act and the School Laws must be read in pari materia, he proceeded to conclude that N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 provides protection which precludes bargaining negotiation on benefits which PERC and the Appellate Division and Supreme Court in interpreting the Act have specifically found are mandatory subjects of negotiation. The obvious consequence of the acceptance of the ALJ's decision here, the Board argues, would be to "effectively invalidate the PERC Act, and make negotiations mandatory only to the extent that negotiations increase the value of a benefit," an outcome which cannot be tolerated. (emphasis in text) (Board's Exceptions at 15)

Statutes and Regulations: The Board next argues that the major difficulty in this matter arises from the lack of a definition of "compensation" either in the Tenure Laws, N.J.S.A. 18A:28 et seq. or in the "General Definitions" section of Title 18A. Notwithstanding, it submits, the pension provisions, also contained in Title 18A, read in pari materia with the tenure laws, supply guidance with respect to the legislative intent in this regard. The Definitions provision of this section, N.J.S.A. 18A:66-2, defines "compensation" thusly:

> d. "Compensation" means the contracted salary, for services as a teacher as defined in this article, which is in accordance with established salary policies of the member's employer for all employees in the same position but shall not include individual salary adjustments which are granted primarily in anticipation of the member's retirement or additional remuneration for performing temporary or extracurricular duties beyond the regular school day or the regular school year. (Board's Exceptions at 17)

Recognizing that the Tenure Laws contain no definition of "compensation," the ALJ, without explanation, ignored the definition contained in N.J.S.A. 18A:66-2, despite the fact that it is the only such definition contained in the Education Laws which must be read in pari materia with other provisions in that Title. Rather, he chose to rely on the Police and Fireman's Retirement System pension regulations, N.J.A.C. 17:4-4.1, wholly inapplicable to the instant matter, to support his "determination that payment for sick leave at retirement is 'extra compensation,' subject to the tenure laws but not includable in pension." However, a review of the parallel regulation contained in the Teachers' Pension and Annuity Fund Regulations, N.J.A.C. 17:3-4.1(a) belies the ALJ's conclusion in this regard. This provision, the Board advances, "sets a distinction between "compensation" and "extra compensation" – the former is, like salary and rolled-in longevity, creditable for all purposes; the latter, such as lump-sum payments and bonuses, is not. Thus, it argues, payments for longevity, accumulated educational credits and salary would be included in "compensation," but other emoluments of a teacher's employment which are not part of the "regular, periodic installments in accordance with the payroll cycle," such as negotiated lump-sum payments for accumulated sick leave at retirement, would be excluded. (Board's Exceptions at 18)

Case Law: The Board proposes that a review of applicable case law fully "belies the ALJ's determination that Petitioners are entitled to a permanent 'lock-in' of their 1995 level of payment for sick leave at retirement under the Tenure Laws." (Board's Exceptions at 19) Unquestionably, it proposes, a tenured teaching staff member's contractual salary is the primary component of his or her "compensation," which, absent a RIF or tenure charges, cannot be reduced under any circumstances. However, in addition to salary, the Board recognizes that other payments have been found to constitute compensation, i.e., longevity increments – an increase in a teacher's salary in consideration of long-term service to the Board (Middletown Board of Education, P.E.R.C. No. 99-72, 25 NJPER 122 (¶30053 1999) and payments for additional education (Green Township Board of Education, P.E.R.C. No. 99-73, 25 NJPER 124 (¶30054 1999). This remuneration, like salary, is made as a part of payroll and, once awarded, becomes a component of the teacher's tenure-protected salary. (Board's Exceptions at 19-20) In contrast, it advances, remaining "customary and incidental," negotiable benefits paid to teachers are excluded from the scope of "compensation" for purposes of tenure protection, i.e., early retirement inducement payments (Fair Lawn Education Association v. Fair Lawn Board of Education, 161 N.J. Super. 67 (App. Div. 1978, aff'd 79 N.J. 574 (1979)); "customary" overtime (McLean v. Glen Ridge Board of Education, 1977 S.L.D. 311); lump sum payment to department chair at the end of the school year, notwithstanding that it was contractually defined as "extra compensation." (Bishop v. Bd. of Trustees, TPAF, 4 N.J.A.R. 179 (1980). The Board argues that these and other benefits such as health insurance, personal days, and payment for sick leave at retirement are rightfully excluded as "compensation" because "these benefits are not part of the employee's regular compensation, but are, rather, lump-sum or sporadic payments incident to employment [which] are not protected by the tenure laws." (Board's Exceptions at 20)

Furthermore, the Board claims that in Hyman v. Teaneck Board of Education, 1983 S.L.D. 699, rev'd on other grounds State Board at 1985 S.L.D. 1940, aff'd App. Div. A-3508-84T7 (App. Div. 1986), certif. den. 104 N.J. 469 (1986), the Commissioner examined the intended scope of tenure protection in the context of a tenure challenge by three auxiliary teachers, and held:

> [t]here are only a few statutorily mandated benefits: sick leave, accumulation of sick days, disability, and military service credit. All other benefits are a matter of contract. I FIND that all petitioners herein receive not only statutory sick leave benefits, but in addition receive...child rearing leave, bereavement leave, family illness leave, personal days, health and dental insurance, tuition payments and pension...any benefits other than those mandated by statute are within the discretion of the Board to grant in a negotiated contract and cannot be required as a matter of law.
> 1983 S.L.D. at 719-720 (emphasis added).
> (Board's Exceptions at 21)

Also particularly instructive in this regard, the Board submits, is the Appellate Division's decision in Alford, supra, a case which, it avers, stands for the proposition that "sick leave accumulated by a teacher in a defunct or former district is to be treated as if it had been accumulated in the new district." (Board's Exceptions at 21) This holding, standing alone, it claims, evidences the necessity of rejection of the ALJ's decision in this matter. Additionally, it professes, the Alford court's decision connotes an "understanding that the 'bundle of rights' involved in sick leave reimbursement are distinct from the 'bundle' making up salary. Id. At 157." (Id. at 22) Of significant import in this regard, it proffers, is the language utilized by the court in its decision with respect to its discussion of payment for accumulated sick time:

> [t]he court began with the premise, arising out of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6.1, that all transferred teachers were to "receive compensation and benefits based on the Receiving District's contractual agreements." Id. at 150 (emphasis added). Clearly, the Appellate Division intended for the receiving district, here Clark, to dictate, via its existing Collective Bargaining Agreement, the benefits to which transferring teachers are entitled.

> Ultimately, the Alford court concluded that the transferred teachers have a right to share in the negotiated benefit of sick leave reimbursement, Id. at 150, in the identical manner as all other employees of the Receiving District. (emphasis in text)
> (Board's Exceptions at 22)

The Board tenders that this language clearly evidences the Appellate Division's understanding that sick leave payments at retirement are a) a negotiable issue; and b) governed by the receiving district's bargaining agreements, in direct opposition to the conclusion of the ALJ in this matter that benefits of a sending district "travel" with transferring teachers. (Ibid.)

The Board charges that, in reaching his conclusion that sick leave payment upon retirement is "compensation" protected by tenure, the ALJ wholly ignores these "developed tenets of New Jersey law" and, instead, purports to ground his conclusion in the Commissioner's decision Stagaard v. Contini, 97 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 217 and Matter of School Board of Morris, 310 N.J. Super. 332 (App. Div. 1998). (Id. at 23) His reliance on Stagaard in this regard is curious as he clearly recognized that "[w]hile the Stagaard decision clearly established the guidelines for treatment of the salary, among the other rights of the staff members of the dissolved Regional District, it left unresolved the very issues addressed herein." Initial Decision at 16 (Ibid.) Moreover, on appeal to the State Board the Stagaard petitioners sought guidance on the definition of "similar benefits" referenced in N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64. The State Board expressly refused to define such benefits, holding:

> Constituent districts are required to maintain the salary of tenured teaching staff members when establishing their levels of compensation under the salary guides of those districts. In so doing, however, we decline in this context to delineate what, if any, additional benefits former employees of the regional district may be entitled to under the education laws beyond those expressly enumerated in N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64.
> Stagaard, State Board Docket No. SB #88-96, October 1, 1997, at 15. (Board's Exceptions at 24)

Therefore, the Board argues, contrary to the apparent belief of the ALJ, Stagaard is extremely limited in its precedential impact on the instant matter. (Id. at 25) With regard to the ALJ's reliance on Morris, supra, the Board urges that this is similarly misguided as it wholly ignores the fact that the Morris court refers to payment for sick leave at retirement as "additional" payment upon retirement, as do the pension statutes previously cited. Moreover, the ALJ's equating such payments, like salary, to tenurable compensation fails to consider the end of the very sentence he cited, i.e., "these payments are 'additional compensation upon retirement subject to mandatory negotiation' Initial Decision at 17, citing Morris, supra." (Ibid.) Acknowledgement of the negotiability of this issue, the Board professes, cannot logically be reconciled with the ALJ's conclusion that these monies are protected by N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. (Ibid) Finally, in this regard, the Board points out that the ALJ noted the Morris court's reliance on Lawrence v. Board of Education of School District 198, an Illinois decision. Inasmuch as this case, along with the others outside New Jersey jurisdiction cited by the Morris court, were admittedly "not directly on point," (Morris, supra, at 347), they provide minimal assistive value in this matter. (Ibid.)

III. THE ALJ ERRED IN REJECTING THE ARGUMENT THAT ARTICLE 17.0 OF THE 1995-1997 COLLECTIVE BARGAINING AGREEMENT BETWEEN PETITIONERS AND UNION COUNTY REGIONAL HIGH SCHOOL DISTRICT NO. 1 IS INAPPLICABLE TO THIS MATTER AND/OR UNENFORCEABLE.

The Board charges that petitioners cannot reasonably claim a right to payment for sick leave at retirement pursuant to Article 17.0 of the 1995-1997 Collective Bargaining agreement between petitioners and the Union County Regional District because they never did and never will satisfy the triggering mechanism giving rise to a payment obligation pursuant to that provision. (Board's Exceptions at 29) The clear language of Article 17.0, it argues, evidences that operation of this provision is triggered "when, and only when, a member of the Union County Federation left that District during the 1995-1996 or 1996-1997 school year." (Id. at 30) The Board maintains that all parties agree that, pursuant to education law, none of the within petitioners ever legally "left" the Regional District. Additionally, it is now impossible for them to leave that District which no longer exists. (Ibid.) Consequently, the Board argues, it is obvious that petitioners' right to compensation pursuant to Article 17.0 was dependent upon his or her chosen time of retirement. In this regard, it advances, a petitioner choosing to retire during the period of the 1995-1997 Agreement would have been entitled to payment pursuant to this Article, as would a petitioner retiring upon the dissolution of the Regional District. After dissolution, however, the 1995-1997 Bargaining Agreement no longer governed the terms of petitioners' employment, "and it became legally and pragmatically impossible for any Petitioner to leave that District." (Ibid.) Irrespective of this "logical conundrum" with regard to the Regional District Bargaining Agreement, it avers that petitioners' claim is also barred by the controlling Clark Collective Bargaining Agreement. Sick time accumulated by petitioners, it professes, must be treated as if it were accumulated in Clark. The Clark Bargaining Agreement provides that retiring employees are entitled to payments, pursuant to Clark Article XI, when they retire pursuant to the TPAF or PERS systems. (Id. at 31) The Board proffers, petitioners can claim no entitlement to payment under the defunct Regional's 1995-1997 contract for their 2001-2002 retirement from the employ of the Clark Board of Education. (Ibid.)

In their reply and cross-exceptions, petitioners propound three points:

I. JUDGE GIORDANO PROPERLY CONCLUDED THAT PAY FOR UNUSED SICK LEAVE IS "COMPENSATION" THAT CANNOT BE REDUCED.

Petitioners first urge that the ALJ correctly concluded that payment for unused sick time is properly categorized as "compensation," pointing out that this categorization is one which has been recognized by New Jersey courts. In support of this assertion, they cite to Maywood Education Association v. Maywood Board of Education, 131 N.J. Super. 551 (1974) and Matter of School Board of Morris, 310 N.J. Super. 332 (App. Div. 1998), cert. den. 156 N.J. 407 (1998), wherein they allege these courts repeatedly and explicitly refer to pay for accumulated sick days as "compensation." (Petitioners' Reply and Cross-Exceptions at 2-4) Furthermore, in a matter specifically involving education law, Caponegro v. State Oper. Sch. Dist., 330 N.J.Super. 148 (App. Div. 2000), where, among other things, at issue was the question of whether former employees of the takeover district could be denied payment for accumulated sick leave, the court, citing Morris, supra, stated:

> ...a contractual right to compensable accumulated leave is typically characterized as deferred compensation since it constitutes remuneration for services already rendered, and, to the extent already earned, is not subject to unilateral divestment by the employer. (at 156) (emphasis supplied) (Petitioners' Reply and Cross-Exceptions at 5)

Petitioners emphasize that the Caponegro court went even further, recognizing that Federal and State constitutions prohibit impairment of the obligation of contract, this court opined:

> we have no doubt that the vested-rights portion of the package – the accumulated vacation days and sick leave – could not, in any case, have been constitutionally withheld. (at 154) (Ibid.)

Petitioners, therefore, conclude that "the withholding of the deferred compensation earned by Petitioners raises constitutional issues." In this regard, petitioners advance that the constitutional infirmity of the retraction of a vested contractual benefit was addressed in State Troopers Fraternal Ass'n v. New Jersey, 149 N.J. 38 (1997), wherein the Court examined a contractual commitment to pay retroactive salary increases to troopers who resigned and the effect of a regulation enacted subsequent to their resignations which purported to deny them retroactivity. Because these individuals justifiably relied on the commitment which had existed at the time of their retirement, the Court found that depriving them of this vested contractual benefit would work a "manifest injustice," which this Court defined as a "nonconstitutional equitable doctrine designed to prevent unfair results that do not necessarily violate a constitutional provision." State Troopers, supra, at 54 (Petitioners Reply and Cross-Exceptions at 6) Petitioners urge that the "manifest injustice doctrine" is appropriately applicable in the instant matter in that > [t]he deferred compensation Petitioners earned is a present fixed interest that was vested pursuant to a valid contract. The Board promised to compensate petitioners if they performed as requested. Petitioner's [sic] performed the conditions bargained for by their employer. When they performed the conditions precedent to entitlement their right became vested. That vested right is constitutionally protected from impairment. To paraphrase the rationale of Caponegro, the financial obligation of the Board and Petitioner's [sic] concomitant right to compensation for unused sick days were fixed prior to dissolution.

> (Id. at 7)

II. N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64 MANDATES THAT "ALL ...RIGHTS OF TENURE...LEAVE OF ABSENCE AND OTHER SIMILAR RIGHTS SHALL BE RECOGNIZED AND PRESERVED" IN A WITHDRAWING DISTRICT. PAY FOR UNUSED SICK DAYS IS ONE OF THE RIGHTS RECOGNIZED AND PRESERVED BY N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64.

Petitioners argue that the intent of N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64 is to ensure that all employees are "held harmless" upon dissolution of a school district "and all tenure, seniority, pension and similar rights and benefits are recognized and preserved." (emphasis supplied) (Petitioners' Reply and Cross-Exceptions at 8) They maintain that because tenure rights, such as protection from reduction of compensation, are expressly preserved by this statutory provision, and given that payment for unused sick days is "compensation," "pay for unused sick leave is among the enumerated rights listed in the statute." (Id. at 10) In the alternative, petitioners advance that in addition to the enumerated rights protected by N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64, it also preserves "other similar rights." "It cannot," they posit, "be seriously denied that pay for unused sick days [is] 'similar' salary." (Ibid.)

In response to respondent's contention that because payment for unused sick days is a contractually negotiable issue it is, therefore, not preserved by N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64, petitioners submit:

> Pay for unused sick days is negotiable, but that does not remove the protection afforded by N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64. It is a form of deferred compensation for which concessions are traded in the collective negotiating process. But negotiability has no bearing on whether sick leave pay is protected by N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64. Salaries too are negotiable, yet salaries are protected by N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64. So, too, "leaves of absence" and "seniority" are negotiable, and they are protected. Moreover, negotiability is constrained when deferred compensation is involved.
>
> The fact that pay for unused sick days is negotiable does not remove that benefit from the protection of N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64. Neither does the fact that the benefit derives from contract rather than a specific statute.
>
> > Stating the problem in terms of incorporation in the labor contract or as a statutory benefit begs the question. Rather, attention should be directed to the purpose of the statute and its relevance and materiality to the employment. Lavin v. Hackensack Board of Ed., 90 N.J. 145 (1984, at p. 150.
> > (Id. at 12)

III. THE CLARK CONTRACT DOES NOT ENTITLE CLARK TO IGNORE THE BENEFITS ACCRUED BY PETITIONERS UNDER THE REGIONAL CONTRACT.

Petitioners cite to Board of Education v. Buena Regional, 300 N.J. Super. 415 (App. Div. 1997), certif. den. 151 N.J. 406 (1997) where the court considered the rights of transferred teachers to longevity pay and the impact of a negotiated collective bargaining agreement and determined that the agreement was of no effect, finding:

> [t]he Buena Educational Association had no authority to enter into a collective negotiating agreement which relinquished the transferred–teachers' right guaranteed by N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6.1 to receive full credit for their prior service in the Newfield district. at 424.
> (Petitioners' Reply and Cross-Exceptions at 13)

Consequently, petitioners argue, subsequent collective bargaining agreements in Clark cannot operate to divest petitioners of benefits accrued by them at the regional district preserved by N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64. Moreover, petitioners contend, > Clark has assumed the role previously performed by Regional to educate high school pupils in the Clark district. Clark has assumed valuable assets formerly owned by the Regional District. Clark has, for all practical purposes, become a successor, pro tanto of the Regional District. As such, it is responsible for the obligation to Petitioners incurred by the Regional District.

> (Id. at 15)

Upon his independent and comprehensive review of the record and after full consideration of the parties' exceptions, the Commissioner determines, for the reasons detailed below, to reject the ALJ's determination that the within petitioners have a right, protected by N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64, to be paid for unused sick leave at the contractual rate established by the collective bargaining agreement in effect at the time they were employed by the Regional District.

Initially, however, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that this matter is not res judicata as a consequence of the Nadasky, supra, decision. The Board's exception argument in this regard is found to be without merit. Because Nadasky was decided and dismissed by the Commissioner solely on procedural grounds, it was unnecessary for him to reach to or discuss the ALJ's dicta on the merits of that case.

Turning to the adjudication of this matter, N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64, which establishes the rights of employees of a regional district in the event of a withdrawal from or a dissolution of a regional district, in pertinent part, specifies:

> [a]ll employees of the regional district shall continue in their respective positions in the withdrawing district, or in each of the constituent districts in the event of a dissolution, and all of their rights of tenure, seniority, pension, leave of absence and other similar benefits shall be recognized and preserved and any periods of prior employment in the regional district shall count toward the acquisition of tenure to the same extent as if all such employment had been under the withdrawing district or in any of the constituent districts in the event of a dissolution.

The underlying purpose of this provision was considered and addressed in Board of Education of the Central Regional High School District v. Board of Education of Lacey Township and the Central Regional Education Association and Ronald Villano, individually, Ocean County, 1980 S.L.D. 553, 565, wherein it was recognized "that the Legislative intent [of this provision] was to protect the employment rights of those employees [of the regional district affected by the withdrawal] who have provided good and faithful service to the school district." Full consideration of this statute and its legislative intendment demonstrate that it was designed to operate, upon the dissolution of a regional district, as a "save harmless" provision to preserve and protect benefits earned by affected individuals by virtue of their service in such regional district. Balwierczak et al v. Board of Education of Berkeley Heights, Union County, decided by the Commissioner December 8, 1999, aff'd State Board May 3, 2000. However, it is, likewise, clear that N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64 "must be applied in a manner which preserves the continued employment and accrued rights of such staff, but does not result in the wholesale disruption of existing districts [or] confer extraordinary rights upon regional staff and effectively usurp the managerial prerogative of the constituent boards of education." Stagaard v. Contini, 97 *N.J.A.R.*2d (EDU) 217, 219.

With this background in mind, the Commissioner finds and concludes that the ALJ has apparently misperceived the issue in this case. At issue here is not whether payment for unused sick leave is nomenclaturally identified as some kind of "compensation" by courts, cited by the ALJ and petitioners, which were reviewing other wholly distinguishable questions, situations or statutes, by courts outside our jurisdiction, or by Police and Fireman Retirement System regulations but, rather, whether such payment is "protected" by the tenure laws and N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64. The Commissioner fully concurs with the Board's comprehensive exception arguments in this regard, finding these entirely consistent with prior education case law which addressed and resolved, either explicitly or implicitly, this very issue.

First, in Central Regional,[1] supra, the petitioners argued that N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64 protected all of their regional fringe benefits not specifically enumerated in that statute. They supported this argument, as do the instant petitioners, by contending that a reduction of salary or fringe benefits would be in contravention of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 which specifically prohibits any reduction of a tenured employee's compensation. Upon consideration of such a contention, the Commissioner held:

> The Commissioner agrees that those rights of tenure, seniority, pension, leave of absence, and other such benefits addressed in 18A:13-64 are in fact transferrable, however, the Commissioner does not conclude that the intent of 18A:13-64 was to require the withdrawing district to establish, in effect, two levels of compensation and benefits for comparable levels of training and experience, one for its long time employees and one for its newly acquired employees.

[1] Notwithstanding that this case involved withdrawal from a regional district rather than a dissolution, as here, the statute at issue, N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64 and its legislative intent, i.e., to ensure that all employees are held harmless upon a withdrawal or dissolution, are the same in either situation.

> The Commissioner therefore directs the Lacey Township Board of Education to place those employees transferred from the Central Regional School District at the step and level of the Lacey Township salary schedule appropriate for their years of service in the regional district and to fully recognize and preserve "all of their rights of tenure, seniority, pension, leave of absence and other similar benefits" and to provide them with all other benefits which are accorded employees of the Lacey Township School District. (emphasis supplied) Central Regional 1980 S.L.D. at 571.

Thus, more than 24 years ago, the Commissioner found that payment for accumulated sick leave, along with other contractual benefits enjoyed by petitioners in their regional district employment, was not entitled to protection under the governing statute but, rather, these employees were to be accorded all benefits provided to employees in their new constituent district.[2]

More recently, the State Board was confronted with this issue in Stagaard v. Contini, decided by State Board October 1, 1997. In its application of N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64 as required in Stagaard, the State Board, initially, observed:

> Our duty in construing the statute involved here is to determine and effectuate the intent of the Legislature. The principal source of such intent is the legislation itself. However, the policy behind the statute, concepts of reasonableness and the legislative history are also among the sources to be used to determine legislative intent.
> We have therefore reviewed the statute at issue with close and careful consideration of its language, structure, purpose and history, as well as prior decisional law. (citations omitted) Staagard slip opinion at 11.

In the State Board's decision, the Commissioner concludes, contrary to the position espoused by the parties, it was implicitly determined that payment for accumulated sick leave was not entitled to protection or preservation pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64 either as a tenure right or under the "other benefits" provision of that statute. First, the decision in Stagaard evidences that the State Board accepted that the tenure entitlement of the petitioners in that matter was satisfied by the preservation of their salary. Had the State Board found any other claimed right of petitioners in that matter to be one which was protected by tenure, they would have identified and included it. Therefore, the Commissioner concludes that "compensation" for purposes of the protections provided by N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 and N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64 has implicitly been defined as "salary."

Next, citing Hyman v. Board of Education of the Township of Teaneck, decided by the State Board, March 6, 1985, aff'd Docket No. A-3508-84T7 (App. Div. 1986), cert. denied, 104 N.J. 469 (1986), the State Board declined "to delineate what, if any, additional benefits former employees of the regional district may be entitled to under the education laws beyond those expressly enumerated in N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64." (emphasis supplied) Stagaard slip opinion at 15. It must be noted that in Hyman, when faced with the question of benefits which may be owed to the supplemental teachers in that case, the State Board, after reviewing language from the Supreme Court's decision in Spiewak v. Rutherford Bd. of Ed., 90 N.J. 63 (1982), found:

> the decision in Spiewak is based on an analysis of the tenure statutes. Although the court acknowledged that supplemental teachers may be entitled to additional benefits, it clearly stated that such benefits, unlike tenure rights, are primarily a matter of contract. Thus, we conclude that the decision in Spiewak does not grant to supplemental teachers any statutory entitlement to benefits beyond that which may be conferred on them by existing statutes. (emphasis in text) (Hyman, 1985 S.L.D. at 1942-1943)

Again, because the Stagaard petitioners were specifically seeking payment for unused sick leave as an entitlement pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64, if the State Board had accepted this as an "other similar benefit," necessitating preservation within the intendment of that statute, they would not have declined to so find. The Commissioner, therefore, concludes that the instant petitioners are protected with respect to the preservation of all of their statutorily mandated benefits. However, there is no reasonable interpretation of N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64 or Central Regional and Stagaard which could establish that the Legislature additionally intended to preserve and protect their contractual benefits. Therefore, the Commissioner determines that payment for accumulated sick leave is not protected pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64 either as a tenure right or as an "other similar benefit" under that provision.

As persuasively argued by the Board, to find otherwise would lead to preposterous consequences:

> [i]f benefits such as the payment for sick leave at retirement are "locked in" at their maximum level, the necessary result is that the issue can no longer be negotiated between the parties, or, at a minimum, cannot be applied equally to its employees. For example, if a contract provision grants 100% per diem payment for 100% of unused sick time at retirement, the Associations reading of "compensation" would forever bar the parties to such an agreement from negotiating a cap or reduction of that benefit. However, while sick leave itself is statutory, clearly the payment for such leave at retirement is negotiable. To define such payments as tenurable "compensation" would undermine the PERC Act, and the effects upon Collective Bargaining Agreements, particularly those in post dissolution districts, would range from confusing to truly convoluted.
> (Board's Exceptions at 14)

Moreover, acceptance of the ALJ's premise would operate to eviscerate the underlying legislative intent of the governing statute. As found by the Appellate Division in Alford v. Board of Education of Buena, 310 N.J. Super. 147 (App. Div. 1998),[3] it must be remembered > that the polestar is equality of treatment of transferred teachers from the sending district to the receiving district. Fundamental fairness and common sense demand that two teachers of equal seniority and service teaching side-by-side in a school district should be treated equally unless there is a clear and unequivocal demonstration of intent to treat such teachers differently. (at 157)

[3] This case dealt with the question of whether, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6.1, another "save harmless" provision which governs the protected rights of teaching staff members upon the discontinuance of a school, teachers "received" by a new school district as a result of the discontinuance of school activities by a "sending" district are entitled to reimbursement for unused sick time consistent with the same benefit received by the teachers in the "receiving" district.

The Commissioner, upon full consideration of the language of N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64, its legislative intendment, and applicable case law, holds that payment for accumulated sick leave is not preserved and protected by this statute but, rather, is a contractual benefit subject to collective bargaining negotiations.[4]

Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL is rejected. Summary decision is hereby granted to the Board and the within consolidated Petitions of Appeal are dismissed.

IT IS SO ORDERED.[5]

Record closed: February 17, 2004 Decided: March 1, 2004

BEFORE ROBERT J. GIORDANO, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This matter was scheduled for hearing on November 18, 2003 at the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), 33 Washington St., Newark New Jersey.[1] At that time,

[1] The matter was subject to a previous Order entered on January 10, 2003, by the Honorable William Jeremiah, ALJ, dismissing Dr. William Librera and the State Board of Education as parties to the action.

Jennifer A. Klear, Esq., advised the undersigned that her client contacted her the afternoon of November 17 to advise that he did not want to go to trial. Ms. Klear was reluctant to withdraw the petition on behalf of her client, since he might not fully appreciate the ramifications.

Robert F. Varady, Esq., moved for dismissal of the matter. In that regard, he outlined a chronology of the proceedings. A prehearing conference was conducted in the matter on March 10, 2003. Thereafter, the matter was scheduled for hearing on May 16, 2003. At the request of both counsel, the matter was adjourned to June 26, 2003. On June 26, 2003, the parties reached a tentative settlement of the matter. Petitioner, now 18 years of age, was to be evaluated for the purpose of determining the appropriate alternative educational program.

Petitioner would be tested, and the appropriate educational program would be developed. The parties agreed that placement in a vocational technical school might be appropriate. Petitioner had an appointment for July 23, 2003, including an initial conference with the child study team to determine whether or not to conduct an evaluation (R.-1). Petitioner failed to appear for this scheduled appointment, and the school representatives contacted him at his home telephone number. He explained that he thought the appointment was 9:00 p.m., but he was unable to make the appointment in any event. The appointment was rescheduled for July 30, 2003 at 9:00 a.m. at Hillside High School (R-2). Once again, petitioner failed to appear for this scheduled appointment. A school representative contacted petitioner and advised him that he could come in at 11:00 a.m. that morning. The members of the child study team waited until 12:00 p.m., but petitioner failed to appear.

As such, the parties advised that the matter should be rescheduled for hearing. After several adjournments, the matter was finally rescheduled for hearing on November 18, 2003. At that time, Ms. Klear advised that her client had notified her that he did not want to pursue the matter. Petitioner was not present at the hearing.

The matter was adjourned to permit counsel for petitioner to make an application for recovery of costs for an expert witness. On February 17, 2004, the undersigned received a letter from Ms. Klear advising that she decided to forego the motion to recover expert witness fees in the case. Thereafter, the record closed.

CONCLUSIONS

SYNOPSIS

Petitioners challenged the Board's residency determination that their son, A.S., was a nonresident of the District and was not entitled to a free public education.

The ALJ found that the matter was ripe for summary decision since petitioners met the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-2.4. Citing P.B.K., the ALJ found that A.S. had a relative domiciled in the United States who had legal guardianship over A.S. and who was willing to support him gratis while petitioners were in India and would be unable to care for A.S. The ALJ granted petitioners' motion for summary decision. A.S. was entitled to a free education in the District.

The Commissioner adopted the findings and determination in the Initial Decision as his own.

This synopsis is not part of the Commissioner's decision. It has been prepared for the convenience of the reader. It has been neither reviewed nor approved by the Commissioner.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF NORTH BRUNSWICK, MIDDLESEX COUNTY

Respondent.

Record Closed: March 17, 2004 Decided: March 23, 2004

BEFORE STEVEN C. REBACK, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On or about September 22, 2003, the petitioners, N.S. and J.S. on behalf of J.S., filed a petition of appeal before the Commissioner of Education in New Jersey challenging a determination arrived at by respondent, the North Brunswick Township Board of Education (hereinafter "North Brunswick") determining that J.S. was a nonresident of the school district, as required under N.J.A.C. 6:28-2.4(a)(2).

By answer filed on September 22, 2003 before the Commissioner of Education, the petitioners essentially deny the underlying assertions giving rise to the decision by North Brunswick, which concluded that A.S. did not reside within the school district.

Following the filings of the pleadings, the Commissioner of Education transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52: 14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to –13, on October 2, 2003.

After conferences were conducted in the matter, it was agreed that the case would proceed on motion for summary decision filed on behalf of the petitioners on or about January 23, 2004. On February 9, 2004, counsel for New Brunswick responded by letter brief, and by March 17, 2004, no reply having been submitted by Mr. Rubin, the record in these proceedings closed.

As part of his assertions in opposition to the motion for summary judgment, counsel for New Brunswick initially argues that the absence of discovery makes the petitioner's application premature. That consideration will be addressed in respect to determining whether there are or are not genuine issues of material fact.

ISSUES AND BURDEN OF PROOF

The fundamental issue to be addressed in this motion for summary decision is whether the petitioners can establish the criteria for granting a motion for summary decision, pursuant to court rule, R. 4:46-2, and the New Jersey Uniform Administrative Procedure Rules, N.J.A.C. 1:1-1.1 to –21,6, which are essentially the same.

THE FACTS

Unless otherwise noted, the following is a substantially uncontradicted narrative of the facts in these proceedings. It should be noted that in his responsive brief submitted on February 9, counsel for New Brunswick has acknowledged that irrespective of the issue of discovery, the general facts as outlined by Mr. Rubin in his letter brief are not in dispute and are accepted.

Accordingly, I FIND:

Petitioners, N.S. and J.S., on behalf of their son, A.S., a minor, brought this summary decision motion against respondent, North Brunswick Township Board of Education, in order to allow A.S. to attend North Brunswick Public School.

On or about August 14, 2003, petitioners, residents of the State of Florida, requested by letter that the respondent accept A.S. as a student at the North Brunswick High School. As stated in the letter from the petitioners, the purpose of relocating A.S. was that the petitioners would be in India on business for eight (8) months, and A.S. would reside with his cousin, N.S. The petitioners further stated that relocation was in the best interest of A.S's education.

On or about August 25, 2003, the respondent denied the request of the petitioners citing to New Jersey Department of Education/School Attendance Residency/Domicile; Chapter 28/6A:28-2.4. The respondent alleged that the petitioners did not state any hardships for the relocation.

On or about September 15, 2003, petitioners submitted a Petition of Appeal from the Determination of Non-Residency and affidavits stating that N.S., a resident of North Brunswick, was assuming responsibility for the support of A.S. and that N.S. would not be reimbursed for the support expenses. The affidavits further stated that A.S. has no one else who can care for A.S. while the petitioners are in India.

A Petition of N.S., for legal guardianship of A.S., was thereafter filed with the Surrogate of Middlesex County resulting in letters of guardianship being issued on October 16, 2003.

The respondent alleges that the guardianship was an attempt to circumvent the hardship criteria of the "affidavit pupil" exception, and filed a complaint in Superior Court seeking a determination that the guardianship order should be revoked. On or about January 9, 2004, Middlesex County Assignment Judge Robert A. Longhi upheld the guardianship order as valid and appropriate under the relevant provisions of Title 3B. Despite this holding, the Superior Court judge made no determination of the effect guardianship would have on the residency issue, for school law purposes, and reserved to the respondent its right to present argument to the Commissioner on that point.

Petitioners argue that summary decision should be granted because guardianship was established in Superior Court, and because A.S. is now a resident and domiciled with his cousin in North Brunswick, A.S. should be entitled to enrollment in the North Brunswick public school.

Respondent argues that since no discovery has occurred, material issues of fact remain, precluding the grant of Summary Decision. Specifically, the respondent feels that discovery is necessary to establish (1) why A.S., a resident of the State of Florida, came to New Jersey to complete his high school education, (2) what relatives, if any, were available in Florida to allow A.S. to complete his education, presumably at the high school which he had attended the previous year, and (3) what resources were available for A.S. in Florida in order to meet education costs in that state as opposed to relocating him to the State of New Jersey solely for the completion of his senior year in high school.

DISCUSSION

Where Petitioners challenge the board's residency determination, is the matter ripe for summary decision and, if so, should Petitioners' motion be granted?

A. Is the matter ripe for summary decision

In accordance with the New Jersey Uniform Administrative Procedure Rules, N.J.A.C. 1:1-1.1 to –21.6, any party may move for summary decision upon all or any of the substantive issues in a case at any time after a case is deemed contested. N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b). To grant a motion for summary decision, it must be examined whether "the papers and discovery... together with the affidavits... show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law." Ibid.

A motion for summary decision is similar to the standard for summary judgment found at R. 4:46-2. The motion for summary judgment shall be served with briefs, a statement of material facts, with or without supporting affidavits. R. 4:46-2(a). The statement of material facts shall set forth in separately numbered paragraphs a concise statement of each material fact as to which the moving party contends there is no genuine issue, together with a citation to the portion of the motion record establishing the fact or demonstrating that it is uncontroverted. Ibid.

The New Jersey Supreme Court has held that when deciding a motion for summary judgment,

> [a] determination whether there exists a 'genuine issue' of material fact that precludes summary judgment requires the motion judge to consider whether the competent evidential materials presented, when viewed in the light most favorable to the non-moving party, are sufficient to permit a rational fact finder to resolve the alleged disputed issue in favor of the non-moving party.
> [Brill v. Guardian Life Ins. Co. of America, 142 N.J. 520, 540 (1995).]

The burden is on the moving party to exclude all reasonable doubt as to the existence of any genuine issue of material fact, and all inferences of doubt are drawn against the moving party and in favor of the non-moving party. Saldana v. DiMedio, 275 N.J. Super. 488, 494 (App. Div. 1994). Thus, the critical question is "whether the evidence presents a sufficient disagreement to require [a hearing] or whether it is so one sided that one party must prevail as a matter of law." Brill, supra, 142 N.J. at 533. Citation omitted.

In the instant case, if it is determined that the petitioners have met the criteria set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-2.4, then all other facts would be immaterial and summary decision should be granted.

B. Whether further discovery is necessary?

Under the Uniform Administrative Procedures Rules ("UAPR") discovery is designed to provide litigants with access to facts that support or undermine their position or the position of their adversary. 37 New Jersey Practice, Administrative Law and Practice Second Edition, §4.39 (Steven L. Lefelt) (2000). The New Jersey Court Rules favor an expansive approach to discovery rooted in the belief that justice is more likely to be achieved when there has been full disclosure and all parties are conversant with all available facts. Payton v. New Jersey Turnpike Auth., 148 N.J. 524, 535 (1997) (citing Catalpa Inv. Group, Inc. v. Franklin Tp. Zoning Bd. of Adjustment, 254 N.J. Super. 270, 273 (Law Div. 1991)). For example, R. 4:10-2(a) provides that "parties may obtain discovery regarding any matter, not privileged, which is relevant to the subject matter involved in the pending action." Pressler, Current N.J. Court Rules, R. 4:10-2 (2002). Any information that is relevant to the controversy and is not protected by a privilege is generally discoverable. See State v. Cusick, 219 N.J. Super. 452, 530 (App. Div. 1987). Therefore, when faced with a discovery request, the initial determination should be whether the documents and/or information sought through discovery are relevant.

The relevancy standard applicable in determining whether to permit discovery is broader in scope than the evidentiary standard. With respect to discovery, the test of relevancy is whether the subject matter to be discovered is useful. Gureghian v. Hackensack Hospital, 109 N.J. Super. 143 (Law Div. 1970)(citing Myers v. St. Francis Hospital, 91 N.J. Super. 377 (App. Div. 1966)). The term "relevant" encompasses any matter "that bears on or that reasonably could lead to other matter[s] that could bear on any issue that is or may be in the case." Oppenheimer Fund, Inc. v. Sanders, 437 U.S. 340, 351, 98 S. Ct. 2380, 57 L. Ed. 2d 253 (1978). It encompasses not only matters that would necessarily be admissible in evidence but also information reasonably calculated to lead to admissible evidence. Berrie v. Berrie, 188 N.J. Super. 274, 278 (Ch. Div. 1983). Therefore, if the information requested by the respondent is admissible or reasonably calculated to lead to admissible evidence, then it is relevant and discoverable.

In the instant case, the questions posed by the respondent would be relevant if they could be useful and could lead to admissible evidence. Even if the respondent's questions are deemed relevant, if they are not material and can not be used to support or undermine their position or the position of their adversary, then summary decision would be appropriate.

C. Should Petitioners' motion for summary decision be granted?

The New Jersey statute, N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, provides criteria a public school is required to follow in providing a student, over (5) five and under twenty (20) years of age, free education. Specifically, N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(1) provides that:

> Any person who is kept in the home of another person domiciled within the school district and is supported by such other person gratis as if he were such other person's own child, upon filing by such other person with the secretary of the board of education of the district, if so required by the board, a sworn statement that he is domiciled within the district and is supporting the child gratis and will assume all personal obligations for a longer time than merely through the school term, ..., and upon filing by the child's parents or guardian with the secretary of the board of education a sworn statement that his is not capable of supporting or providing care for the child due to a family or economic hardship and that the child is not residing with the resident of the district solely for the purpose of receiving a free public education within the district.

Additionally, the New Jersey Administrative Code, N.J.A.C. 6A:28-2.4, states that:

> (a) A district board of education shall admit to its schools, free of charge, the following persons over five and under 20 years of age:
>
> 1. Any student domiciled within the district;
>
> i. A student is domiciled in the district when he or she is living with a parent or legal guardian[i] whose permanent home is located within the district. A home is permanent when the parent or guardian intends to return to it when absent and has no present intent of moving from it, notwithstanding the existence of homes or

[i] "A guardian of the person of a minor has the powers and responsibilities of a parent who has not been deprived of custody of his minor and unemancipated child, except that a guardian is not legally obligated to provide for the ward from his own funds." N.J.S.A. 3B:12-51 residences elsewhere.

ii. ...

[Emphasis added.]

If the language of a statute is plain, unambiguous, and uncontrolled by other parts of the regulation, the words of the statute are to be given their ordinary and well-understood meaning. Fahey v. Jersey City, 52 N.J. 103, 106-07 (1968); Safeway Trails, Inc. v. Furman, 41 N.J. 467, 478 (1964); Lane v. Holderman, 23 N.J. 304, 313 (1957). A regulation is subject to the same rules of construction as a statute and should be construed according to the plain meaning of the language. Medford Convalescent and Nurs. Ctr. v. Div. of Med. Assist. and Health Servs., 218 N.J. Super. 1, 5 (App. Div. 1985).

In the instant case, the petitioners' have met the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-2.4, by supplying a letter and an affidavit to the respondent stating that they are presently in India for a minimum of eight (8) months and would be unable to care for A.S. Additionally, the petitioners set forth in their affidavits that there is no one, other then N.S., the petitioners' nephew, who can care for A.S. The petitioners' and N.S.'s affidavits further state that A.S. will be kept in the home of N.S., a domiciled resident of North Brunswick and legal guardian of A.S., and that N.S. will not be receiving payment from the petitioners' for the cost of A.S.'s care.

Despite the plain meaning of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-2.4, there is limited precedent available to assist in the determination of this matter. In P.B.K. v. Bd. of Educ. of the Borough of Tenafly, 343 N.J. Super. 419 (App. Div. 2001), a U.S. citizen, E.Y., lived with his parents and attended a private school in South Korea until his father lost his job. E.Y. was sent to live with his aunt and uncle who were domiciled in Tenafly, New Jersey and who agreed to cover all of E.Y.'s expenses. Id. at 421. E.Y., who was fifteen years of age at the time of arrival in Tenafly, sought enrollment in the ninth grade of the Tenafly School District. Ibid. The Tenafly Board of Education rejected E.Y.'s enrollment stating, "'the desire to be educated in the United States is not a 'personal or financial hardship' under N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a).'" Id. at 422. After the Tenafly Board of Education rejected E.Y.'s enrollment, E.Y.'s aunt and uncle obtained legal guardianship over E.Y. Id. at 424. The State Board of Education then found that E.Y. was domiciled in Tenafly, and was therefore entitled to a free education in Tenafly. Id. at 424, 425. The Board of Education appealed the State Board's decision arguing that, "The letter of guardianship is not determinative of the student's right to a free education in Tenafly public schools." Id. at 425. The appellate court stated that, "with E.Y.'s parents over half a world away, ample reason existed for a formal guardianship aside from satisfying the conditions of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a)." Id. at 428. Additionally, the court held that E.Y. was entitled to a free education in the Tenafly School District. Ibid.

In the instant case, similar to P.B.K., A.S. has a relative domiciled in the United States who has legal guardianship over A.S., and who is willing to support A.S. gratis. Furthermore, like P.B.K., if A.S.'s cousin resided in any other district in the United States; it would be that district that A.S. would be attempting to enroll in. Since N.S. is domiciled in North Brunswick, and has obtained legal guardianship over A.S., A.S. should be granted a free education in North Brunswick.

CONCLUSION

The matter is ripe for summary decision. Since petitioners' have met the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-2.4, the petitioners' summary decision motion should be granted.

Accordingly, it is ORDERED that the determination of respondent's school district that A.S. is not a resident as required under regulation be and is hereby REVERSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

AGENCY DKT. NO. 318-9/03

N.S. AND J.S., on behalf of minor child, A.S.,	:
PETITIONERS,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF NORTH BRUNSWICK, MIDDLESEX COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. The Board's exceptions and petitioners' reply thereto were submitted in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 and were duly considered by the Commissioner in reaching his determination herein.

The Board reiterates its objection to this matter being decided on summary judgment, an issue raised in proceedings before the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ), contending that the matter is not ripe for summary judgment because discovery is incomplete. (Board's Exceptions at 1) In support thereof, the Board cites J. Josephson, Inc. v. Crum & Forster, 293 N.J. Super. 170, 203 (App. Div. 1996), claiming that "[o]ur Appellate Division has specifically stated 'our case law has made plain, as a matter is not "ripe" for summary judgment where discovery is incomplete.'" (Ibid.) The Board claims that no discovery whatsoever has occurred in this matter, and that the facts sought by the Board are relevant and material with respect to whether a legitimate financial and/or family hardship exists as alleged by petitioners. (Id. at 2)

Moreover, the Board avers that the ALJ overlooked the inconsistencies in petitioners' statements and that "[c]ontradictory factual statements by the Petitioners cannot be used to create or avoid a material question of fact." (Ibid.) In this regard, the Board points out that, by letter of August 14, 2003, A.S.'s parents indicated that A.S. would be moving in with his cousin the week of August 21, 2003 and requested that their son be accepted at North Brunswick High School "in the best interest of his education." (Ibid.) After the Board denied the parents' request on September 15, 2003 for A.S. to attend school free of charge in the District, A.S.'s father submitted an affidavit stating that he and A.S.'s mother lived in Orlando, Florida, and that A.S. had lived with them until June 2003, at which time A.S. went to live with his cousin and his wife, petitioners in this matter.[1] (Ibid.) The Board claims that A.S.'s father never explained the discrepancy of when his son actually began living with petitioners or when he and A.S.'s mother left for India for their business venture. (Ibid.) Additionally, the Board contends that it was only after A.S. was denied admission to the District that N.S. petitioned for guardianship, and that, absent further discovery, there will be no way to determine whether guardianship was done solely to circumvent the applicable residency statutes. (Ibid.)

Additionally, the Board argues that petitioners have not met the affidavit requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-2.4 in that: 1) N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)1 mandates that the child's parents file a sworn statement stating that they are not capable of supporting or providing care for the child due to a family or economic hardship, and the affidavit provided is "filed solely by the child's father, not both parents" (Ibid.);[2] and 2) "the record reveals no evidence of any economic hardship or family hardship which would warrant A.S.'s attendance at North Brunswick High School free of charge." (Id. at 2-3) The Board also takes issue with the ALJ's reliance on P.B.K., supra, arguing that, in P.B.K., the Appellate Division relied on substantial credible evidence in making its determination that the student in that matter was entitled to attend school in the Tenafly School District free of charge, as opposed to the instant matter where the Board has been barred from engaging in even minimal discovery to determine if such facts exist. (Ibid.)

[1] There is some confusion in the Initial Decision caused by references to petitioners as A.S.'s parents. Petitioners in this matter are A.S.'s cousin, N.S., and his wife, J.S. A.S.'s father is H.S. and his mother is V.S.

In response, petitioners argue that, "once legal guardianship was granted to N.S., any fact-sensitive issues that may have required a plenary hearing under the hardship standard of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b) became moot" in that, "at that point, A.S. became entitled to attend the North Brunswick schools as a matter of law by virtue of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a), since his 'legal guardian' was domiciled there." (Petitioners' Reply at 1-2) Moreover, citing R.C.P. v. Board of Education of the Ramapo-Indian Hills Regional High School District, Bergen County, decided by the Commissioner August 18, 2000, aff'd State Board January 3, 2001, petitioners submit that, as the ALJ concluded in R.C.P., under N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a) motivation for obtaining guardianship is not an issue. (Id. at 2) Petitioners further argue that the law recognizes a number of ways, including guardianship under Title 3B, in which adults other than natural parents assume the rights and responsibilities of parenthood, and that, once guardianship is established in this fashion, "it is none of the school district's business what the motivation might be." (Ibid.)

[2] The Commissioner observes that all references to filing a sworn statement with respect to the inability of supporting or providing care for the child due to a family or economic hardship in N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-2.4 specify that such affidavit must be filed by the student's parent or legal guardian.

Upon a thorough and independent review of the record, the Initial Decision, the Board's exceptions and petitioners' reply thereto, the Commissioner has determined to adopt the Initial Decision in this matter for the reasons expressed therein. In so determining, the Commissioner notes his concurrence that summary decision is appropriate in this instance in that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact and petitioners are entitled to prevail as a matter of law. With respect to the discovery sought by the Board, the Commissioner points out that the relevancy standard applicable to a determination as to whether to permit discovery is whether the subject matter to be discovered is admissible or reasonably calculated to lead to admissible and useful evidence. (Initial Decision at 6) See, also, Gureghian, supra; Oppenheimer Fund, Inc., supra; and Berrie, supra. Even assuming, arguendo, that the Board's questions are relevant, the Commissioner does not find the answers to the Board's questions raise any genuine issue as to any material fact, nor would the answers to the Board's questions, considered in the light most favorable to the Board, support its position or undermine petitioners' position so as to alter the decision herein. See Brill, supra, at 540.

Moreover, the Commissioner finds the inconsistency raised by the Board concerning conflicting statements made by A.S.'s parents in their letter of August 14, 2003 and A.S.'s father's affidavit with respect to whether A.S. moved into his cousin's home in June 2003 or August 2003 de minimus in that the Board does not dispute that, at the time A.S. began attending school in the District in September 2003, A.S. was residing in the North Brunswick School District with his cousin.

As in P.B.K., supra, A.S., an American citizen, has a relative domiciled in the United States who has legal guardianship over him and who is willing to support A.S. while his parents are away on business in India. The Commissioner points out that, under N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a) and N.J.S.A. 6A:28-2.4(a)1, a district is required to provide a free public education to any person under the age of 20 who is domiciled within the school district. N.J.S.A. 6A:28-2.4(a)(1)(i) clarifies that:

> A student is domiciled in the district when he or she is living with a parent or legal guardian whose permanent home is located within the district. (emphasis supplied)

Notwithstanding the Board's assertion that petitioners became legal guardians of A.S. solely to circumvent the residency statutes, N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a) and N.J.S.A. 6A:28-2.4(a)1 do not provide for an assessment of the motivations for obtaining legal guardianship. Moreover, the Commissioner points out that the Appellate Court in P.B.K., supra, a case strikingly similar to the matter herein, rejected this same argument by the Tenafly Board in P.B.K,, supra, finding that, "with E.Y.'s parents over a half a world away, ample reasons existed for a formal guardianship aside from satisfying the conditions of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a)." P.B.K, supra, at 428. In that A.S. is domiciled in North Brunswick with his legal guardian, therefore, the Commissioner finds that he is entitled to a free public education in the North Brunswick School District, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a) and N.J.S.A. 6A:28-2.4(a)1.

Moreover, for the period of A.S.'s attendance in the District's schools from the beginning of classes in September 2003[3] until October 16, 2003, the date Petitioner N.S. obtained guardianship of A.S., the Commissioner concludes that A.S. was entitled to free public education in the District's schools, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b), in that petitioners have established that A.S.'s parents are not capable of supporting him or providing care for him due to a family hardship and that A.S. is not residing with petitioners solely for the purpose of receiving a free public education in the District. In so determining, the Commissioner points out that the affidavits filed by petitioners and A.S.'s father establish that petitioners are supporting A.S. gratis and intend to do so for at least as long as A.S.'s parents are traveling in India, that A.S.'s parents are unable to care for him because they will be in India for a minimum of eight months on business and that it would be disruptive to their son academically, emotionally and socially to require him to leave the United States and travel in India during his senior year. (Petitioners' Motion for Summary Decision, Exhibit 5a at 3 and Exhibit 6a at 4-5) In this matter, as in P.B.K, supra:

[3] The record is silent on the actual date A.S. began attending school in the District. However, when the petition in this matter was filed on September 5, 2004, an acknowledgement letter was faxed to the Board that same date notifying the Board of the filing of the within petition and reminding the Board that, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, "no child shall be denied admission to the district during the pendency of proceedings." The Board's Answer, dated September 16, 2003, states that "upon receipt of the Petition, A.S. has been temporarily admitted as a student at the North Brunswick Township High School." (Answer at 1, No. 1) Accordingly, it appears that A.S. began attending school in the District at the beginning of the school year in September 2003.

> This is not an instance when a child and the parents or guardian establish a convenient residence in another school district to take advantage of academic or athletic programs. No other school in the United States existed for E.Y. other than the school district of his uncle and guardian. P.B.K. supra, at 427.

Accordingly, as amplified above, the Initial Decision in this matter is adopted for the reasons expressed therein.

BEFORE MARGARET M. MONACO, ALJ:

This matter involves an appeal by petitioner J.S. on behalf of C.S. from a residency determination by respondent Board of Education of the Township of Caldwell-West Caldwell (the "Board"). Petitioner filed a Petition of Appeal on October 16, 2002 and the Board filed an Answer and Counterclaim on November 15, 2002,. The Department of Education subsequently transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) where, on January 9, 2003, it was filed for a hearing and determination as a contested case.

Following prior adjournments of the hearing scheduled for May 12, 2003 and June 27, 2003 at respondent's request, and the hearing scheduled for October 27, 2003 at petitioner's request, the matter was scheduled to be heard on December 8, 2003.

Counsel for the parties appeared at the OAL on December 8, 2003 and engaged in discussions toward an amicable resolution of the matter. Under letter dated January 20, 2004, counsel for the Board submitted a Stipulation of Settlement setting forth the terms of agreement and subsequently submitted a certified copy of the minutes of the executive session of the Board on January 5, 2004 relating to this matter, which the undersigned received on March 18, 2004. The aforesaid Stipulation and minutes are attached hereto and incorporated herein by reference.

Having reviewed the record and the terms of the settlement, I FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures or the signatures of their representatives.
2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. Accordingly, I approve the settlement and ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

The record, Stipulation of Settlement and Initial Decision issued by the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1, have been reviewed.

Upon review, the Commissioner observes that the Board President of the Caldwell-West Caldwell Board of Education signed the agreement on behalf of the Board. In that neither the file nor the settlement agreement contains a copy of the Board's resolution approving the settlement[1] and designating the Board President to sign the agreement on its behalf, and the agreement is not signed by the Board attorney, who is the Board's duly authorized representative in litigation, the Commissioner cannot approve the within settlement agreement.

Accordingly, the Commissioner hereby remands this matter to the OAL for revision of the Stipulation of Settlement consistent with the concerns set forth above.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning teaching staff member alleged the Board's decision to withhold her increment for the 2003-04 school year was arbitrary and capricious.

The ALJ determined that the Board notified petitioner of its action to withhold her increment on May 8, 2003. Petitioner filed a deficient petition of appeal on August 15, 2003, beyond the 90-day requirement. The ALJ concluded that petitioner filed her appeal out of time pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(d). Moreover, the ALJ found no basis to relax the time limitations. Petition was dismissed.

The Commissioner adopted the Initial Decision as his own.

Record Closed: March 12, 2004 Decided: March 16, 2004

BEFORE W. TODD MILLER, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This is an appeal by petitioner, Sarah Dickerson, a teaching staff member, wherein she asserts that respondent, Board of Education of the Township of Pittsgrove, (District) unfairly and arbitrarily withheld her salary increment for the 2003-2004 school year. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on November 26, 2003. The Director of the OAL assigned the undersigned to hear this matter pursuant to pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. A prehearing telephone conference was held on February 2, 2004. The District asserted during the conference, and in its answer, that the action filed by petitioner was untimely pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(d) (90-day rule). The District also asserts in its answer that it denied petitioner a salary increase for reasons of merit, performance and discipline. A plenary hearing was scheduled for September 16 and 17, 2004. By motion filed February 17, 2004, the District moved to dismiss the petition as untimely pursuant to the 90-day rule. The motion to dismiss was unopposed by petitioner.

Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.2(c) opposition to a motion shall be filed no later than 10-days after receiving the moving papers. No action may be taken on the motion until 20-days after service of moving papers. The moving papers were mailed first class to all concerned on February 12, 2004. (See proof of service attached to moving papers). Petitioner has been afforded ample opportunity to respond. The motion must be decided within 45-days of submission. N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(c)

FACTS AND ARGUMENTS ASSERTED BY PETITIONER

In its supporting certification with exhibits, counsel for the District sets forth the following:

2. For good cause, respondent resolved to withhold petitioner's increment for the 2004-2005 school year on May 8, 2003, under authority granted them by N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14.

3. This resolution was the final action of respondent in connection with this matter and was communicated to petitioner by letter dated May 9, 2003.

4. Petitioner has admitted that she learned of the withholding on May 8, 2003. [Exhibit A]

5. N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(d) requires a petitioner to file his or her petition no later than the 90th day from the date of receipt of the notice of a final order, ruling or any other action by the district board of education which is the subject of the requested contested case hearing.

6. Ninety days from May 8, 2003, is August 6, 2003.

7. On August 15, 2003, petitioner filed a deficient petition of appeal with the Department of Education, Bureau of Controversies and Disputes (the "Bureau"). [Exhibit B]

8. On October 15, 2003, the Bureau acknowledged that respondent received Proof of Service correcting petitioner's deficiency, and proof of service on respondent on September 18, 2003 (130 days after final action). [Exhibit C]

9. Respondent filed its answer which was received by the Bureau on November 7, 2003, and by the petitioner on November 6, 2003.

10. The First Separate Defense of respondent's Answer stated that petitioner was time-barred for failing to timely comply with N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(d).

11. Petitioner filed her response to respondent's Answer on January 8, 2004.

12. Her response to the First Separate Defense was as follows:

> My defense here is that I was so beaten down by the proliferation of advisements and their delivery at times which added to the stress which was being exerted on my [sic] by Dr. First that it took me some time to be able to reflect on my school year and to decide that I needed to file and appeal to the State. [Exhibit E]

13. The Commissioner of education has consistently held that the 90 day filing requirement is to be strictly construed and that "a showing of emotional stress alone, without the showing of circumstances amounting to genuine incapacity, is not enough to toll the time limit for appeal." [1] (Not to belittle the natural grief and stress induced by the passing of a loved one, it is also noted that petitioner attended the first day of the school year despite the fact that her sister had recently died and she had not yet attended the funeral. [Exhibit F].

14. The New Jersey Supreme Court has held that this 90 day "...limitations period provides a measure of repose, an essential element in the proper and efficient administration of the school laws." [2]

15. In its Second Separate Defense, respondent argues that petitioner has not met any of the extraordinary circumstances for relaxing the rules governing controversies and disputes, N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.1.6 and expand the time for filing her petition.

16. "The Commissioner has not only relaxed the ninety-day rule for substantial constitutional issues, but has also relaxed the bar in maters [sic] of significant public interest. The Commissioner has consistently determined, however, that to qualify as a matter of significant public interest, warranting waiver of the time bar the issue must be of 'fundamental public interest beyond that of concern only to the parties themselves." [internal citations omitted.][3]

17. Respondent argues that petitioner's appeal of the withholding of her increment is not constitutional and is of concern only to petitioner, and therefore does not warrant relaxing the 90-day rule for filing.

18. Since there was no valid reason for the delay in filing and no extraordinary circumstance or significant public interest to allow waiver, respondent respectfully requests that petitioner's petition be dismissed because it was procedurally defective and untimely filed.

See Certification of Gary D. Wodlinger, Esq. attached to District's motion.

LEGAL ANALYSIS AND DISCUSSION

N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(d) prescribes that an appeal to the Commissioner must be filed "no later than the 90th day from the date of receipt of the notice of a final order, ruling or other action by the district board of education which is the subject of the requested contested hearing." The 90-day rule "provides a measure of repose, an essential element in the proper and efficient administration of the school laws." Kaprow v. Board of Educ. of Berkeley Twp., 131 N.J. 572, 582 (1993). "The limitation period gives school districts the security of knowing that administrative decisions regarding the operation of the cannot be challenged after ninety days." Ibid. Prompt filing of actions before the Commissioner serves to preserve the immediacy of the record and to stabilize existing relationships, thereby avoiding disruption of the educational process. Le Mee v. Bd. of Educ. of Village of Ridgewood, OAL Dkt. No. 6889-89 (Comm'r. May 3, 1990).

The Commissioner may exercise his authority under N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.1.6 to relax application of the 90-day rule "where strict adherence thereto may be deemed inappropriate or unnecessary or may result in injustice." Exceptions to the 90-day rule should be granted sparingly, and only where there exist compelling circumstances to justify enlargement or relaxation of the time limit. See *Riely v. Equitable considerations which might allow relaxation of the rule include good faith discussions between parties to resolve the dispute, Polaha v. Buena Reg. Sch. Dist., 212 N.J. Super. 628 (App. Div. 1986). The statute of limitations of N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(d) is to be strictly applied. Gordon v. Passaic Bd. of Educ., 1 875 S.L.D. 1929, aff'd A-3294-84T7 (App. Div. May 27, 1986) (unreported), certif.. denied, 105 N.J. 534 (1986); Elmwood Park Bd. of Educ. V. Farrell, 95 *N.J.A.R.*2d (EDU) 375, 377. The ninety day rule may only be relaxed under exceptional circumstances or if there is a compelling reason to do so. See Kaprow, supra, 131 N.J. at 590; DeMaio v. New Providence Bd. of Educ., 96 *N.J.A.R.*2d (EDU) 449, 453. The authority to relax or waive the ninety day rule is rarely invoked and such relaxation is generally unsuccessful unless strict adherence would be in appropriate, unnecessary or where injustice would occur. DeMaio, supra, 96 *N.J.A.R.*2d (EDU) at 453.

In Bogart, supra, it was held that the ninety-day rule will be relaxed "only where there is come compelling reason for the same, such as the presence of a substantial constitutional or other issue of fundamental public interest beyond that of concern only to the parties themselves." Id., at 4.

Here, petitioner accrued knowledge of her claim on May 8, 2003, filed a deficient appeal with the Commissioner on August 15, 2003, (99-days) and served the District on October 15, 2003, (130-days) the petition. These facts are unopposed. They are derived from petitioners written submissions to the District or the Commissioner and are appended to the Districts motions papers as exhibits A, B, C and E. Since the motion is unopposed, exceptions to the 90-days rule have not been directly raised. However, after reviewing the appeal and having participated in the prehearing conference, the case does not raise constitutional issues or significant public interest matters that would justify relaxation of the 90-rule. (See prehearing Order dated February 2, 2004). Respondent raised that untimely appeal in its answer and during the prehearing conference. Respondent stated that it was going to file a dispositive motion. (See paragraph 13, prehearing Order). Petitioner was provided sufficient notice and an opportunity to oppose this motion.

I FIND and CONCLUDE that the facts as set forth by the District are credible and reliable. The facts are derived and supported by written communications from petitioner. They demonstrate that petitioner filed her appeal out of time pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(d) (90-day rule). Since the motion was unopposed there in no basis to relax the time limitations.

ORDER

For the reasons set forth above, it is ORDERED that the District's motion to dismiss the appeal is GRANTED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions were untimely filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4(a), in that the Initial Decision was mailed to the parties on March 31, 2004 and the exceptions were filed on April 14, 2004, outside the 13-day period prescribed by regulation. Accordingly, neither the exceptions nor the reply thereto is considered in the Commissioner's determination of this matter.

Upon careful and independent review of the record, the Commissioner concurs with the Administrative Law Judge that this matter is untimely, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(d), and there is nothing herein which warrants relaxation of the filing requirement. N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.16.

Accordingly, the Initial Decision is adopted for the reasons expressed therein and amplified above. The Petition of Appeal is dismissed.

The record, Settlement Agreement, and Initial Decision issued by the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1, have been reviewed.

Upon review, the Commissioner observes that the President of the West Windsor Plainsboro Board of Education signed the Settlement Agreement on behalf of the Board. In that neither the file nor the settlement agreement contains a copy of the Board's resolution approving the settlement and designating the Board President to sign the agreement on its behalf, and the agreement is not signed by the Board attorney, who is the Board's duly authorized representative in litigation, the Commissioner cannot approve the within settlement agreement.

Moreover, the Commissioner observes that the settlement included with the Initial Decision sets forth terms that were to be effectuated prior to approval of the settlement terms by the Commissioner pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1. The ALJ and the parties are cautioned against effectuating terms of a settlement agreement in controverted matters that have been duly transmitted to the OAL prior to its submission to, and approval by, the Commissioner.

Accordingly, the Commissioner hereby remands this matter to the OAL for revision of the Settlement Agreement consistent with the concerns set forth above. If the parties are unwilling or unable to reach accord on a modified agreement for submission to the Commissioner, the matter shall proceed to hearing.

The record, Settlement Agreement and Mutual Release, and Initial Decision issued by the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1, have been reviewed.

Upon review, the Commissioner observes that an unidentified individual, Cassandra Brown, signed the Settlement Agreement and Mutual Release on behalf of the Board. The record, Settlement Agreement and Mutual Release, and Initial Decision issued by the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1, have been reviewed.

Upon review, the Commissioner observes that an unidentified individual, Cassandra Brown, signed the Settlement Agreement and Mutual Release on behalf of the Board. In that neither the file nor the settlement agreement contains a copy of the Board's resolution approving the settlement and designating Cassandra Brown to sign the agreement on its behalf, and the agreement is not signed by the Board attorney,[1] who is the Board's duly authorized representative in litigation, the Commissioner cannot approve the within settlement agreement.

Moreover, Item Number iii refers to a reference letter to be used in connection with any third party request for employment information. Although Item Number iii states that the draft copy of this letter is attached to the agreement, there is no such letter attached to the Settlement Agreement and Mutual Release.

Accordingly, the Commissioner hereby remands this matter to the OAL for revision of the Settlement Agreement and Mutual Release consistent with the concerns set forth above. If the parties are unwilling or unable to reach accord on a modified agreement for submission to the Commissioner, the matter shall proceed to hearing.

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning parent challenged the Board's residency determination that her children, B.M. and B.H., were not entitled to a free public education in the District for the 2002-03 and 2003-04 school years.

The ALJ concluded that petitioner, who claimed to be homeless, failed to sustain her burden of proof that B.M. and B.H. were domiciled in the District or that the District was the district of residence. The ALJ dismissed the petition and ordered petitioner to reimburse respondent the tuition owed.

The Commissioner adopted the Initial Decision as his own and directed payment for the period of B.M. and B.H.'s ineligible attendance in the District.

SUMMARY JUDGMENT

OAL DKT.NO. EDU 09659-03

AGENCY DKT. NO. 317-9/03

D.H., ON BEHALF OF MINOR CHILDREN, B.M., AND B.H.,

Petitioners,

v.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF SOUTH ORANGE-MAPLEWOOD, ESSEX COUNTY,

Respondents.

D.H., pro se

Rita F. Barone, Esq., (Purcell, Ries, Shannon, Mulcahy & O'Neill, attorneys) for respondent

Record Closed: March 17, 2004 Decided: April 1, 2004

BEFORE CAROL I. COHEN, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE FACTS AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The petitioner (D.H.) appealed from a decision on June 25, 2003, by the Board of Education of South Orange-Maplewood, Essex County, (respondent) that B.H. and B.M. were not entitled to be educated in the District, because they had not provided proof of residency. The petitioner did not appear at the Board hearing scheduled for June 25, 2003. The petitioner filed an appeal with the Commissioner of Education on September 8, 2003 alleging that she was homeless, she was staying with family and friends and she planned to move back into the District. The matter was forwarded to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on October 17, 2003. It was set down for a hearing on March 16, 2004. On February 26, 2004 the respondent filed a Motion for Summary Decision. The District asked that the petitioner's Residency Appeal be dismissed with prejudice and that the petitioner reimburse the respondent for tuition for the 2002-2003 and 2003-2004 school year.

The attorney for the respondent appeared on the date of the hearing. The petitioner failed to appear. The attorney for the District stated that the Motion for Summary Decision had been sent both certified and regular mail to the petitioner. The regular mail was not returned. The certified mail was returned "Unclaimed". The court sent a letter to the petitioner on November 21, 2003, stating that a hearing would be held on March 16, 2004. The letter also stated that if either party wished to have a conference prior to the hearing, then they should contact my office. The letter was not returned and no response was forthcoming. In addition, the clerk's office sent out a hearing notice on January 6, 2004. At the hearing, the respondent requested that the petitioner's appeal be dismissed and that the relief sought by the respondent be granted. The court stated that it would hold the file for twenty-four hours, and if the petitioner failed to make contact, then it would entertain the respondent's application. At 2:30 p.m., on the day of the hearing, the petitioner called my chambers. She stated that her father had died a few days before and that the funeral had been that morning. I asked her, why she had not notified the court and her adversary before the court date to explain why she could not attend the hearing. She said that she was too distraught to do so. I pointed out that she had a history of not responding to hearing notices. She said that she had not appeared at the Board's hearing, because she had a disabled infant. I asked her if she had gotten the Motion for Summary Decision from the District. She said that it was sent to her brother's house and she had just gotten it a week ago. She did not believe that she had to respond to the papers prior to the hearing. I stated that, since she did not have an attorney, I had not considered the motion prior to the hearing. However, she had not appeared at the hearing or notified the court that she would not attend. I informed D.H. that, prior to my considering whether I would reschedule the matter, I would need a notarized letter from the Funeral Home, stating that her father had died and the date of the funeral. It has been two weeks since the hearing date and the telephone call and I have not received a statement from the funeral home or D.H.

ISSUES AND LEGAL DISCUSSION

1. Whether the petitioner has sustained her burden of proof that B.M. and B.H. were domiciled in the South Orange-Maplewood School District, kept in a home and supported by another domiciled in the District or homeless and the District is the "district of residence"?

2. Whether the District is entitled to tuition reimbursement for the years 2002-2003 and 2003-2004?

The petitioner has the burden to produce documentation that her children were residents of the District, during the time in question. See N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(2). In most cases the domicile of the student is the same as the parent. I.P. v. Board of Education of the Borough of Leonia, 93 *N.J.A.R.*2d(EDU) 128, 132(1993); B.W. v. Board of Education of the School District of South Orange-Maplewood, OAL Docket No. (EDU) 01837-03. Since the District determined that B.M. and B.H. were not domiciled in the District, the petitioner had the burden, by a preponderance of the evidence, to show that the students were domiciled within the District. The petitioner failed to produce any proof, either in response to the Summary Decision Motion, or at the hearing that the children were either domiciled in the District or that they were homeless and South Orange-Maplewood was the District of residence prior to their homelessness.

Therefore, the court must find that the petitioner failed to sustain her burden of proof that the children are entitled to a free public education within the District.

Having found that the petitioner was not a resident of the District, the issue of the District's application for tuition reimbursement must be addressed. The respondent produced an Affidavit of Peter Horoschak, Superintendent of the South Orange-Maplewood School District. According to the Affidavit, the tuition for students attending Columbia High School was $10,001.00 per child for the 2002-2003 school year. The per diem cost for the 2003-2004 is $53.96 per child. In addition, each child attended a summer school program for the period of July 1 through August 7, 2003 for a total cost of $2,106.40 (See Supplemental Affidavit of Tiffani Barnes). Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(2), a District is entitled to reimbursement of tuition, if the student is attending school in the District and not domiciled there.

The rules governing practice in the OAL provide that a Motion for Summary Decision may be granted, if there is no genuine issue of material fact and the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law. This provision mirrors the language of Rule 4:46-2 and the Supreme Court's decision in Judson v. Peoples Bank and Trust Co. of Westfield, 17 N.J. 67 (1954). Under N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b), the determination to grant Summary Decision should be based on the papers presented as well as any Affidavits, which may have been filed with the application. In order for the adverse, i.e., the non-moving party to prevail in such an application, responding affidavits must be submitted showing that there is indeed a genuine issue of fact, which can only be determined in an evidentiary proceeding. See Brill v. Guardian Life Insurance Co. of America, 142 N.J. 520, 523 (1995). The petitioner has failed either by submitting a reply certification or through testimony at the hearing to provide any proof that B.M. and B.H. were domiciled in the District or had been domiciled there prior to their homelessness. Therefore, the petitioner has failed to raise a genuine issue of fact.

CONCLUSION

For the reasons previously stated, I therefore, CONCLUDE, that the petitioner has failed to sustain her burden of proof that B.M. and B.H. are domiciled in the District or that the District is the District of residence. I further CONCLUDE that respondent is entitled to be reimbursed for the tuition costs for B.M. and B.H. for the 2002-2003 school year at the rate of $10,001.00 per child. Further, they are entitled to reimbursement of the Summer Program tuition in the amount of $2,106.40. Finally, the District is entitled to reimbursement at the rate of $53.96 per day, per student for the 2003-2004 school year.

ORDER

It is hereby ORDERED that the petitioner's Residency appeal be dismissed with prejudice.

It is further ORDERED that the petitioner reimburse the respondent for tuition for the 2002-2003 school year in the amount of $20,002.00.

It is further ORDERED that the petitioner reimburse the respondent for the tuition for the 2003 Summer Program in the amount of $2,106.04.

It is further ORDERED that the petitioner reimburse the respondent for the tuition for the 2003-2004 school year at the rate of $53.96 from the first day of the school year until March 16, 2004, which totals 118 days. Based on this rate, the total due per child is $6,367.28 or $12,734.56 for the two children.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

DECISION

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed by the Deputy Commissioner to whom this matter has been delegated pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:4-33. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed therein, the Initial Decision is adopted as the final decision in this matter. The Petition of Appeal is dismissed, and petitioner is directed to pay to the respondent Board of Education, for the period of B.M. and B.H.'s ineligible attendance in the District, tuition in the amounts set forth by the Administrative Law Judge.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning uncle challenged the Board's residency determination that his nephew, F.R.A., was not entitled to a free public education in the District.

The ALJ concluded that petitioner had met his burden of proof under N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b(1) that F.R.A., whose parents reside in Peru, was domiciled in the District and that petitioner was supporting him gratis due to family and economic hardships. The ALJ denied the Board's application for tuition reimbursement and ordered that F.R.A. was entitled to a free education in the Clifton Public Schools.

The Commissioner adopted the Initial Decision as his own.

INITIAL DECISION

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 11399-03

AGENCY DKT. NO. 86-3/03

M.R.A., ON BEHALF OF MINOR CHILD, F.R.A.,

Petitioners,

v.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF CLIFTON, PASSAIC COUNTY,

Respondents.

M.R.A., Pro se

Georgea Shikar, Esq., (Chasan, Leyner, Bariso & Lamparello, P.C.) for respondents

Record Closed: March 29, 2004 Decided: March 30, 2004

BEFORE CAROL I. COHEN, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE FACTS AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The petitioner, M.R.A. appeals from the denial by the Board of Education of the City of Clifton, Passaic County (respondent) of his application to allow his nephew (F.R.A.) to be educated in the Clifton School System. F.R.A. came to the United States from Peru in February 2003. On March 7, 2003, the petitioner filed an application on behalf of his nephew for him to attend the Clifton High School. On March 12, 2003, the Board of Education sent a denial letter to the petitioner. The letter stated that the sworn statement submitted by the petitioner did not establish economic and family hardship. On March 13, 2003, the petitioner appealed the decision of the board. On May 21, 2003, the Commissioner granted Summary Judgment to the petitioner. He deemed that, since the board of education had not filed an answer, they had admitted the statements made in the petition. On May 23, 2003, the respondent filed an answer to the original petition. On June 12, 2003, the respondent filed an appeal explaining that, through certain miscommunication, the petition was not forwarded to the Law Firm and that the board staff had been confused as to which employee should forward the document. The appeal asked that the decision of the Commissioner be vacated and the matter be remanded for a hearing. On November 7, 2003, the decision of the Commissioner was vacated and the matter was remanded for a hearing. The matter was filed with the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on November 26, 2003. A conference call was held on December 26, 2003. At that time the petitioner asked that the original hearing date of January 9, 2004 be adjourned, because he was going to be out of the country. The respondent agreed to the adjournment. The matter was re-listed for March 24, 2004. However, on that day, the court received a phone call. The petitioner stated that he was sick and could not be present at the hearing. The matter was rescheduled for March 29, 2004 and was heard on that date.

ISSUES

1. Whether the petitioner is supporting the child gratis for longer than the school year as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b(1).

2. Whether the child's parents are incapable of supporting or providing care for the child due to a family or economic hardship.

3. Whether or not the District is entitled to tuition reimbursement.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Based on the testimony presented and the documentary evidence submitted, and having had an opportunity to observe the witness and to assess his credibility, I make the following FINDINGS OF FACT:

1. M.R.A. came to live in Clifton in 1986. He has owned a home at 114 Clifton Avenue, Clifton, New Jersey for sixteen years.

2. M.R.A. has a nephew, F.R.A., who is presently sixteen years of age and is in the eleventh grade at Clifton High School. F.R.A. has two brothers and two sisters, who live with his parents in Peru.

3. F.R.A.'s father is an engineer by trade, but he has been out of work for six years. From time to time he works as a farmhand. He occasionally comes to the United States illegally in order to earn money. F.R.A.'s mother does not work.

4. Since M.R.A. came to United States, he has sent money back to his family in Peru to help support them, as has his mother. However, two years ago he became unemployed and is no longer able to send money back to Peru to help his family. His brother's family (consisting of seven people) live in a two bedroom, one bathroom home, which is owned by M.R.A.'s mother in Peru.

5. M.R.A. brought two of his nephews to the United States, because his brother could not support his children. F.R.A. began attending the Clifton School System, in March 2003. F.R.A.'s brother, Jose, is handicapped. While Jose originally came to the United States with his brother, his uncle was unable to care for him and sent him back to Peru.

6. M.R.A. and his wife filed separate tax returns this year. M.R.A.'s wife claimed F.R.A. on her tax return as a dependent.

7. The sworn Affidavit signed by F.R.A.'s mother states, under reason for not capable of supporting or providing care for the child due to the following family or economic hardship, "my kid is living with my brother-in-law".

8. In answer to the question in J-1, "How long will the student be residing with the applicant in Clifton?", it states: "Until the parents come from Peru". The petitioner has stated that he intends to file to adopt F.R.A., though he has not done so to date. He expects F.R.A. to remain with him, until he completes college or until he gets married.

9. F.R.A. has not gone back to Peru, since he arrived in the United States. He has no intention to return there.

10. M.R.A.'s mother has made application for her son (F.R.A.'s father) and his family to come from Peru and live in the United States. However, there is no time frame as to when they would come and it could be many years. Even if the parents do come to the United States, M.R.A. expects that F.R.A. will continue to live with him.

11. According to the Affidavit submitted by Karen Perkins, the Business Administrator and Board Secretary, the amount spent in tuition payments for F.R.A. for the 2003 school year was 53 days at $7,509.00 per year for a total of $2,210.63; and for the 2004 school year 113 days at $7,597.00 per year for a total of $4,768.60.

LEGAL DISCUSSION

Public education must be provided free to persons over six and up to twenty years of age, who are domiciled within the School District - N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a). Under section b(1) of this statute, there are certain requirements for any person who is kept in the home of another person domiciled within school district. These requirements state that:

> The petitioner must show that they are supporting the child gratis and will assume all personal obligations for the child relative to school requirements; that he intends so to keep supporting the child gratuitously for a longer time than merely through the school term ...that the child's parents or guardian are not capable of supporting or providing care for the child due to a family or economic hardship and that the child is not residing with the resident of the district solely for the purpose of receiving a free public education within the district. The petitioner shall have the burden of proof by a preponderance of the evidence that the child is eligible for a free education under the criteria.

It is correct, as pointed out by the District, that the sworn statement by F.R.A.'s mother does not clearly delineate any economic or family hardship, that would make F.R.A. eligible for a free education within the Clifton School System. However, the testimony given by M.R.A., which I FIND to be credible, paints a different picture. According to that testimony, M.R.A.'s brother, the father of F.R.A., has been unemployed for six years and has not been able to find any steady employment. In addition, his wife does not work. All seven members of the household are living together in a two-bedroom home, which is owned by M.R.A.'s mother. The family in United States had been chipping in to give money to F.R.A.'s parents in order to support the family. However, M.R.A. was unable to continue to do that because of his own loss of employment. What money does now go to the family in Peru is used by the rest of the family unit. In addition, while J-1 speaks in terms of F.R.A. staying with M.R.A. until his parents come from Peru, it is clear from the testimony, that this may be a long drawn out process taking over ten years, before they would come to the United States. In the meantime, F.R.A. would be with M.R.A. and live at his home for many years to come. It is clear from the testimony presented that M.R.A. is supporting F.R.A. gratis and that F.R.A.'s parents do not have the economic ability to support their son and to provide for his needs. Further, it is apparent that F.R.A. did not just come to the United States in order to be educated in the Clifton School System. He also came here because his parents were not able to take care of him, because of their economic situation.

CONCLUSION

Thus, I CONCLUDE that the petitioner has met his burden of proof under N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b(1), that F.R.A. is domiciled within the district and that M.R.A. is supporting him gratis and assumes all personal obligations for him. F.R.A.'s parents are incapable of supporting him. I therefore CONCLUDE that M.R.A. is providing care for F.R.A. due to family and economic hardships.

ORDER

Based on the foregoing, I hereby ORDER that the relief sought by M.R.A. be granted and that F.R.A. is entitled to a free education in the Clifton Public Schools.

I further ORDER that the District's application for tuition reimbursement is hereby DENIED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

OF WILLIAM BLUST, SCHOOL DISTRICT : COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

OF WATCHUNG BOROUGH, SOMERSET : DECISION

COUNTY. :

_____:

SYNOPSIS

The Board certified tenure charges of unbecoming conduct and insubordination against respondent middle school teacher for alleged inappropriate comments and touching.

The ALJ found that students, especially female students, felt uncomfortable in respondent's classroom that had an atmosphere of sexually discriminatory conduct. Respondent himself admitted his habit of making comments regarding students' appearance and bodily characteristics and touching their shoulders, but he considered such habits innocent. The ALJ concluded that respondent did make inappropriate remarks and he was warned by his supervisor in June 2000 to be careful as to his actions and comments. The ALJ also concluded that he inappropriately touched female students, but not in an overtly sexual manner since the warning. The ALJ determined to follow the concept of progressive discipline. The ALJ ordered forfeiture of 120 days' pay withheld from him and the forfeiture of any increments due him for the 2001-02 and 2002-03 school years. Any further misconduct could lead to dismissal.

The Commissioner adopted the Initial Decision as his own and directed forfeiture of the 120 days' pay, as well as any increments due him for the 2001-02 and 2002-03 school years.

INITIAL DECISION
OAL DKT. NO. EDU 00386-03S
AGENCY DKT. NO. 31-1/03

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF WILLIAM BLUST, SCHOOL DISTRICT OF WATCHUNG BOROUGH, SOMERSET COUNTY.

Victor E. D. King, Esq., for petitioner School District of Watchung Borough

Nancy I. Oxfeld, Esq., for respondent William Blust (Oxfeld Cohen, attorneys)

Record Closed: March 1, 2004 Decided: April 5, 2004

BEFORE JEFF S. MASIN, ALJ:

The Watchung Borough Board of Education ("Board") filed tenure charges with the Commissioner of Education on January 23, 2003, seeking the removal of tenure status held by William Blust, a teacher employed by the District. The Commissioner transferred the charges for hearing to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") on February 6, 2003, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 52:14B-1 to –15 and N.J.A.C. 52:14F-1 to -13. A prehearing conference was held before this judge on February 20, 2003, and a prehearing order was issued on February 24, 2003. An amended prehearing order was issued on March 5, 2003. Following discovery and after a delay in the hearings due to an illness affecting one of the attorneys, hearings were held on September 22 and 24, 2003. The attorneys then ordered transcripts of the hearings. The submission of briefs was delayed due to illnesses and the move of one of the attorney's offices. The final reply brief was received on March 1, 2004, and the record closed on that date.

Charges

In its Statement of Charges dated January 3, 2003, the Board alleged that Mr. Blust had violated his professional responsibilities as a tenured teacher because, he was insubordinate; to wit,

> Mr. Blust has continued to make comments found objectionable by the young women in his classes thereby creating an inappropriate and hostile educational environment in his classes;

he engaged in conduct unbecoming a tenured teacher; to wit,

> Mr. Blust has touched young women in his class in a fashion found unacceptable to them in violation of Board Policy and Federal law. Mr. Blust makes comments in class about clothing and physical appearance; and he violated Board policy and law; to wit,

> Blust's verbal and physical behavior violates Board policy and law.

Dr. Catherine Rock, the Superintendent of the Watchung School District, testified that during the 1993-94 school year when she was the principal at the district's one elementary school, she spoke to Mr. Blust about jokes that he had told that had been deemed inappropriate by staff members who expressed their discomfort with his statements. He was advised on one or more occasions that he was not to tell jokes in the lunchroom as they were offensive to other members of the staff, chiefly to female members.[i] He also was cautioned about his use of sarcasm in his classes. Such comments could be hurtful to children. In 1999-2000, by which date Rock was the District's Superintendent, she transferred Blust to teach 7th and 8th grade social studies. She told him that he had to be careful about his demeanor and his comments to these older children.

[i] Dr. Patrick Parenty, Superintendent of the Warren Township School District, was formerly superintendent in Watchung from 1982-1998. Dr. Rock served as one of his principals. Dr. Parenty testified that he received complaints about Mr. Blust regarding off color jokes made in the presence of other staff members and spoke to Dr. Rock, who as he understood it spoke in turn to Blust and advised him about the inappropriateness of such remarks.

On June 22, 2000, Dr. Rock met with Blust. She prepared a summary of the conference on June 27, 2000. In the Statement of Charges this document is quoted in part and is also included as evidence supporting the charges. The document was admitted in evidence as P-1. The conference was held as the result of another conference held on June 21 with a mother and a 7th grade student, the latter a member of Blust's social studies class. While this student is not identified in the memorandum summarizing the conference, nevertheless, during this hearing the student, E.N.H., now in 11th grade, testified on behalf of the Board. The June 27, 2000, document sets forth concerns expressed by E.N.H. In summary, she advised that she was uncomfortable in Blust's class because he made comments to pupils and also acted in ways that made her nervous and discomforted because she was concerned that he might act similarly towards her. More specifically, she asserted that he would tell the class or individual students that, "If you don't smile, I'm going to come over and hug you." In addition, after a school performance of the play Guys and Dolls he commented to one of the girls in his class who had been one of "Hot Box" dancers in the show that he "liked her part in the play when the "Hot Box" dancers took off some of their costume." (P-1). According to the student's account, this remark caused three of the girls to go to the guidance counselor to report that the remark was inappropriate. However, according to the summary, although they had been told by the counselor to put their concerns in writing, these students never did so.

The summary states that in response to these allegations, Mr. Blust told Dr. Rock and the other participants in the meeting that he did make a comment about the "Hot Box" scene and that his remark was then followed by an inappropriate remark by a male student, whom he reprimanded for the comment.

In addition to the complaints already noted, the summary report also includes reference to the student (E.N.H.) advising that Blust put his hand on her shoulder at times, which made her uncomfortable. He also would come up behind a student and kick the desk to get their attention. While Blust recalled that he did touch males (although certainly not in an inappropriate fashion), he denied any recollection that he touched females, and advised that his kicking of desks was only to get a student "back on task."

Dr. Rock's written summary then contains her response to the above allegations and replies. She advised that

> In our discussion, I suggested you think more carefully before you make any public comments to the class that might be considered hurtful or offensive or may make an individual feel uncomfortable. It was, in fact, your comment about the "Hot Box" dancers, which led to the male student's offensive retort. Although you reprimanded him, the damage was already done. A teacher at the middle school level must understand that the students are at an extremely sensitive age and any "public comments" about an individual child should be avoided. Any reference to hugging or touching must be avoided. There is a "fine line" in the area of sexual harassment and you must be extremely aware of it. The perception of the child is the child's reality. . . . In summary you agreed to be more conscious of public comments. There was no other intention than humor in your comments. You will discontinue any touching (hand on shoulder) or off-handed remarks about hugs. I suggest you discontinue the kicking of desks. There are other means of focusing students that are less offensive to them . . . Please sign and return. This will be part of your personnel file. You may attach a response.

Blust replied in a letter dated September 18, 2000. Mr. Blust advised that as to the "Hot Box" dancers, he "never said anything more than something like 'I like you in the play'- a remark I repeated to each individual involved in the performance. It was a child who made the offensive remark, and I soundly rebuked him for it." He also "wanted to restate that I take great care to never touch any of the girls at any time." The desk kicking was something that has "always been seen as a joke and never as any sort of threat. It's just a bit of comic relief to break up the tedium of daily class work." Blust continued, "I strive to be fully aware of the sensitivities of the children with whom I work, and clearly I have established a close rapport with the vast majority, and will continue to develop positive relations with them. I hope this resolves the matter."

This recitation serves as background for the circumstances that ultimately led to the filing of tenure charges in January 2003. Dr. Rock testified to complaints received from a parent, Mr. F.B., during the spring of 2002. He complained in part about Blust's behavior during a so-called "lock-down," which is a procedure to be utilized in the event of such possible events as a terrorist or school violence situation. In such a case, a coded message is sent over the school's public address system and students are to gather inside the classroom, which is locked. The students are to gather in a corner out of sight of the window in the door, and are to remain quiet.

A note is to be placed on the outside window recording the number of students in the room. Mr. B., who testified at this hearing, reported to the school authorities that his chief concern was that Blust had initiated conversation during the lockdown by speaking to his daughter. He had also made "accusatory comments" to her, yelling about looking or not looking at the clock.

In addition to these concerns, Mr. B. reported to Dr. Rock that he had learned that there was a "hostile environment" for female students in Blust's class. His daughter and other young females in the class were uncomfortable and frightened. Mr. B. testified here that his daughter advised him that Blust yelled a lot and said things that were not appropriate. When he first learned that his daughter was upset about something regarding school and then heard her complaints about what occurred in Mr. Blust's class, he asked her if other students would confirm these claims and she said that they would. He then contacted other parents to see if what he was hearing from his daughter was accurate. Several students then told him of specific comments and he began to see that there was a "bad operating environment." He wanted to have a "sit down" with Blust and a meeting was arranged. This meeting confirmed nearly everything that had been reported to Mr. B. Although Blust reported that he knew where to draw the line in his comments to students, and he denied that he had referred to any student as "luscious legs" or to "sexy pants" (as had been reported to Mr. B.), nevertheless, he did agree that on Fridays he would tell students that "I'm grumpy and you can expect me to be yelling at you," and that he was trying to "prepare them for life that way because, you know, people aren't always kind and they get yelled at, so that's my way of preparing them." He also acknowledged that he did refer to female students as "beautiful" and as "gorgeous," among other things. "He said that he thought it was good to comment on how they looked, it made them feel better and he did not see anything wrong with it. If somebody got their hair cut he told them how well they looked; he thought it was conducive to creating a better classroom . . . ." B. concluded from this meeting that there was a hostile environment in Blust's classroom. B. acknowledged that neither his daughter nor any of the female students that he spoke to complained about Blust having touched them inappropriately.

Following his meeting with Mr. Blust, Mr. B. met with Mary Nunn, who served as the affirmative action officer for the district. He reported to her on the information he had gathered from his daughter and other parents and students, and about his conversations with Blust and with the school's principal, Dr. Plain. Nunn reported about her meeting with B. in a "Conference Report" dated May 7, 2002. Following this meeting and her receipt of the report, Dr. Rock began interviews with students on May 10. These students were twelve or thirteen years old. Dr. Rock took notes of these meetings, which were produced at the hearing and admitted into evidence. She testified that her questioning of the students began with the question, "what is it like in your class." Some of these interviews were held during the summer. The evidential significance of this hearsay evidence will be assessed later in this opinion.

In addition to the information obtained from Mr. B.'s daughter, M., E.G., a female, reported that when girls came into class they were greeted with "hello, beautiful." K.B., a female student, reported that he commented, "I like those pants," to a female, and also said "hello, gorgeous" and "good bye, beautiful." He was moody and inconsistent, and when he got mad at a student he would not let the student explain him or herself. Girls and boys were treated in a disparate fashion. A.K., an eighth grade female student, reported that while she was in the seventh grade, Blust referred to her as "luscious legs" on more than one occasion. Dr. Rock could not recall from reviewing her notes whether this occurred in the first three months of the seventh grade or whether the student reported that the reference occurred over a period of three months in seventh grade. The student did report this comment to guidance counselor Ms. MacLeod, and after this complaint Blust did stop this reference, although Dr. Rock was not certain if MacLeod had spoken to Blust about the issue. Another female student, C.T., confirmed to Dr. Rock that the "luscious legs" comment was voiced about A.K.. Ms. K. also stated that Mr. Blust was moody and the students could never be certain from day to day what mood he would be in. He had nicknames for everyone. Girls were treated differently in his class. He "ruled" in the boys' favor more than he did the girls.

Mr. Blust's moodiness was confirmed by J.D., a male student. He recalled that Blust commented that a female, I.B., was "looking pretty today." He also would read words that appeared on girl's clothing. He recalled that several females had been embarrassed by the way in which Blust would on a regular basis sit on a stool, at eye level, and spread his legs apart. Dr. Rock did not write down in her notes the full explanation of this comment, only recording "embarrassed," but she related, "it has been mentioned before, about the spread legs apart with the genitalia." However, Dr. Rock also related that she was not certain if his reference to the exposure of his genitalia (that is, outlined through his pants) was mentioned during her first meeting with J.D. or at a subsequent interview with Board counsel at which she was in attendance. Her notes for the first meeting did not mention the details of the "embarrassment." In her many observations of Blust as his principal over the years, Rock had never herself seen any evidence that Blust was deliberately exposing his genitals to anyone, even when she saw him sitting on a stool. However, she would "come in the classroom sideways. . . I do not recall finding his behavior objectionable any time I came in over the years that I've known him."

A female student, K.N., reported that Blust made comments that upset female students, such as referring to clothing, "nice shirt," and references to them as "beautiful" and "darling." Another female friend of hers had told Ms. N. that she was afraid to be alone with Blust for a makeup test. He was moody, joking and then all of a sudden changing his mood. The girls "are tense" and the boys joke around more with him. The notes also reflected that the student told her of an incident where Blust had yelled at a male student. C.S., another female student, told Rock that Blust made fun of her handwriting, saying that it was too large for a female, and mimicked it across the board with huge handwriting. She was "uncomfortable, afraid of him." C.S. also said that her older sister, M.S., who had Blust as a teacher of social studies when she was in seventh and eighth grade and was in high school at the time of the investigation, told her that she did not like Blust, that he read the writing on girl's shirts and that he had told a female, S.H., to stand up and turn around "I want to look at you."

A.B., a female, reported that although, students "got used to" Blust saying "hello beautiful," they, or she, still did not like it. Blust "makes you feel nervous" and yells a lot. He exhibited mood swings, first laughing then cranky. A male, T.G., also related that Blust would say "hello beautiful" to girls and he did not enjoy such remarks. B.C., a female, also reported comments made such as "beautiful" and "darling" to females, and stated that Blust would "look you up and down which made me feel very uncomfortable." This was "worse in the beginning and middle of the year." He also would comment "inappropriately" about clothing, as for instance, he commented that he liked jeans with ruffles.

K.T., a female, told Rock that Blust commented that she found it objectionable when Blust said to her, "would a kiss make it better," and when he blew kisses at her. She also recalled his sitting in a strange position that she said either "she" or "we've" gotten used to. She said that boys and girls were "definitely" subject to different treatment, and stated something that Rock recorded in her notes about either she, or another student, having said to another student (if she was the one who commented) or to her (if another made the comment) about being afraid to be alone with Blust during a makeup test.

E.N.H., now an 11th grade student formerly taught by Blust while in 7th and 8th grade in school years 1998-99 and 1999-2000, testified that while she was his student she heard or observed actions such as Blust remarking to students if they were not smiling when they walked into his classroom that "I will kiss you if you don't smile." He would read the writing printed on girl's shirts, such as the name of a store. He would kick desks, as he did to her once during a test. "Everyday," he would state, "hello darling," as girls walked into the classroom, but not as boys entered and this made her feel uncomfortable. He would rest his arm on her shoulder if she brought a worksheet up to the desk for him to check. This went on "all year long" for two years. He would sit on a high stool with his legs wide open, which made her uncomfortable, as it did other girls. If a girl bent over to pick something up, "you could tell that he moved his head to look at her rear." As a result of these actions, she did not want to spend time in his classroom. However, she did "fine" in his class. As the result of a meeting that her mother requested with Dr. Rock, she advised Rock of these matters in May 2000. (P-8).

M.B., daughter of Mr. B, who is fourteen years old, testified that Mr. Blust was her teacher in both the second and the seventh grade. She confirmed the "hello, beautiful" remarks, made throughout the year in seventh grade and his reading of wording on female students' outfits, such as one student's that read, "you're cute" on the front. When Blust read the front, he responded, " I know I'm cute." When the student turned around, the back of the top read, "just kidding" on the back. She felt uncomfortable with these actions and did not think that Blust should have said this. She also confirmed that he was talking throughout the lockdown, when he was not supposed to be talking. She admitted that she had not complained about his comments until after the lockdown incident when she cried in response to his yelling at her about looking at the clock. Someone else told her parents what had happened.

William Blust testified that he has been a teacher in the Watchung District since 1972. Prior thereto he taught in East Orange for seven years. In Watchung he taught fourth through sixth grade for the most part and has also taught third and second. He was moved to the seventh and eighth grades to teach social studies in 1998. This was his first middle school experience. He recalled that in the early 1990's there was a discussion with Dr. Rock about comments made by a teacher named Orso, but he did not recall the details. He did recall that an incident involving E.H. had occurred "toward the end of the seventh grade" when he kicked chairs. As he recalled the incident, he and a group of students whom he had previously taught in the second or third grade were reminiscing about "how we used to do this kind of fun activity and they remembered that and they were all singing out, 'kick my chair, Mr. Blust, kick my chair.'" This was something that "used to be done like during snack time when I had them in third grade, although I can't exactly remember why we did that, but it was a game to them and they were reminiscing. . . And so I obliged them. It was not, you know, it was certainly not any punitive or harmful or forceful thing."

Blust recalled having received P-1, the conference report prepared by Dr. Rock regarding the June 22, 2000, conference. He acknowledged that he may well have placed his hand on a female student's shoulder, as having "spent all those years in the lower grades, but more if they had been upset than anything else. Not as, you know, a common occurrence." He did not touch students after receiving this report, which he characterized as more of a "warning" than a discussion. Blust acknowledged that he had on occasion read the words contained on a student's shirt or top, such as shirts detailing rock concert tours with places listed where he had been. He denied reading brand names. He did sit on a stool nearly every day and either crossed his leg onto his knee or had both legs on the rungs of the stool. He was "absolutely not" trying to expose his private parts. He only heard of the suggestion of exposure after his suspension.

The respondent agreed that he did refer to girls as "beautiful"and also as "kiddo," "Hey there, you," and possibly "gorgeous." These words were used "just as greetings," and were not used with "consistency." He did not use these references toward any "particular" girls; "it was general to everyone, you know, by way of greeting." He "absolutely" denied using the term "luscious legs," explaining that there was a girl who had a nickname or name with the syllable "leg" in it "and who carried a gym bag embroidered, "Legs." He asked her if that was her nickname and she said that it was and "I asked her if I could call her that and she hesitated and so I sensed that I shouldn't and didn't. But certainly not 'luscious legs,' it's too long to say for a nickname."

Blust recalled that another girl was wearing a shirt that said, "you're cute." She was almost directly in front of him and he said, "Thank you." She turned around and the shirt then read, "just kidding." He acknowledged that he was "sure" that he had said that he liked "those pants." He commented on students' clothing and "they felt free, also, to comment on mine," such as his lack of "cool shirts." He was never told that such talk was inappropriate.

Blust denied that he ever used the words, "I'll kiss it and make it go away," in his classroom, and if a female student said that he did, she may have been "wrong." However, he "may have" used the words, "I'll kiss it and make it better." As he recalled, "I think what I said was when you were a little kid I would've said, but now I can't, I just say, Go to the nurse," which is what she did.

The witness did recall that he had yelled at M.B. after the lockdown, because she was "drifting" and might have been distracting other students. He told her to "stay with us, be focused, don't be looking at the clock."

The respondent did attend annual sexual harassment meetings. He "understood them." Asked again on cross-examination about putting his hands on children, he replied, "As the policy became more clear and, you know, became longer term, yes, I mean, but old dogs die hard and it was difficult to change as the times have changed. So I guess I would say I slowly came into compliance."

Discussion

A tenured teacher may lose tenured status if he is found guilty of misconduct, that is, if he is shown to have failed to adhere to the standards of professional conduct reasonably expected of one licensed to educate students in the school systems of this state. A school board may proffer tenure charges to the Commissioner of Education, but the loss of tenure can only result from a decision of the Commissioner after the presentation of charges and supporting evidence.

It is patently clear that sexual harassment of students by a teacher, whether it is the result of quid pro quo conduct or the creation of a sexually hostile learning environment, is entirely inappropriate and may in some instances be actionable under the Law Against Discrimination, N.J.S.A. 10:5-1 et seq., and the federal Civil Rights statutes. Students are, in a certain sense, engaged in their "employment" when in attendance at school, for it is here where society demands that these young persons spend much of their days for most of the year, learning the lessons that will assist them in later life. Similar to the standards that apply in the workplace, the general test for determining whether conduct violates the prohibitions against unlawful discrimination based upon gender can be whether a reasonable female student would see the conduct complained of as occurring because of her gender, being severe or pervasive and altering her "work" (here learning) environment in such a manner as to make that environment hostile or abusive. Yet, given the possibility that conduct may involve students at ages when their perception of events and conduct may not be mature enough to understand the implications of what occurs, it seems probable that the "reasonable female" aspect of the standard Lehmann test for workplace gender discrimination cannot be fully transplanted into the educational setting. Lehmann v. Toys 'R' Us, 132 N.J. 587 (1993). The "reasonable" societal understandings of proper conduct towards students of a given gender may need to be utilized where the student cannot fully understand that the conduct is not "reasonable" or proper. In the present case, given that the students involved are, or were, seventh and eighth graders when the conduct complained of occurred, the age/maturity factor is not as much of a problem as it might be if much younger students were involved.

A teacher proven to have sexually harassed students has engaged in conduct that is without doubt entirely outside the limits of professional propriety. However, while the Board's charges in this case do sound very much like those common to gender discrimination complaints and the Board's counsel has made extensive reference to the LAD context in his brief, it is also true that given the unique environment of an educational institution, conduct may be inappropriate for a teacher and thus subject that educator to professional sanction even if the evidence of proven misconduct may be insufficient under the applicable legal test to permit a finding of discriminatory conduct under the LAD and similar statutes. For instance, an action that might not be so severe or pervasive as to allow for a finding of a sexually hostile environment under the Lehmann test may nevertheless be sufficiently inappropriate to support a finding of unprofessional conduct that will subject a teacher to discipline. In the present matter, only the standards applicable for tenure cases apply; the case does not involve any claim for relief under the existing civil rights statutes.

The Board charges that Mr. Blust was insubordinate, made objectionable comments toward female students, inappropriately touched female students, violated Board policy and law and created a hostile environment for female students. In his response to these allegations, Mr. Blust has not denied that he did some of the things that the Board asserts support its legal contentions. Based upon his admissions, I FIND that he did have a habit and custom of referring to female students as "beautiful." While he only acknowledged that he may possibly have used "gorgeous" when referring to female students, I FIND that he did use this term, which was indeed a term that Mr. B. reported Blust admitted using toward female students when B. and Blust had their conference in 2002. He also acknowledged that at times he would read the words contained on a female student's clothing and that he also commented from time to time on the clothing worn by female students. He acknowledged the possibility that he did tell female students, "I'll kiss it and make it better," although not "I'll kiss it and make it go away," a distinction as to the exact words employed that hardly seems to make a difference as to whether the comment was or was not an acceptable one for a teacher to make toward a student, especially students who were out of their early childhood. Again, I FIND that he did each of these things.

In his testimony Blust, who in June and September 2000 had been confronted by the June 27, 2000, memorandum which referred to the complaining female student's (E.N.H.) comment that Blust "put your hand on her shoulder at times," very specifically denied that he touched female students. However, he seemingly admitted that he in fact had occasionally touched children, which he had come to learn was not proper conduct through his attendance at annual sexual harassment classes. Without clearly specifying the details during an examination on the subject that was less than specific, he acknowledged that although he knew this to be improper, "it was difficult to change as the times have changed." He attributed this conduct to the years he spent in the lower grades, where apparently he would touch children as a means of attempting to comfort them if they were upset. Indeed, Dr. Rock's testimony about L.Z., a student of Blust's at least ten years ago, affirms that he did touch students at that time, although the touching was certainly not objectively "sexual" in nature [which does not mean that it may not have been perceived that way by some students, especially later on when he might have touched older students]. While from all this I am convinced that Ms. H. was truthful when she claimed that he touched her shoulder regularly prior to her complaint in May 2000, I FIND that there is no evidence that he continued to do so once he received the perceived "warning" contained in Dr. Rock's June 27 memorandum.

The evidence presented by the Board of the statements obtained from students, as well as the testimony of students, described conduct that largely concurs with Mr. Blust's admissions about the use of statements such as "hello, beautiful," "hello, gorgeous," and comments about clothing such as tops and pants. However, some of this evidence goes further than the conduct that Mr. Blust acknowledged in his testimony. For instance, they refer to his use of "darling," when addressing females. More significantly, A.K. reported that on more than one occasion during seventh grade he referred to her as "luscious legs," a comment confirmed by another female student, C.T.. Other reported behavior including his alleged obvious manner of looking at the rear of females who bent down to pick something up and his alleged "exhibitionist" manner of sitting on a stool with his legs spread apart. The respondent specifically denied this latter claim, responding that he never consciously sat in a manner calculated to expose or highlight his clothed genitalia to his students. He also denied using the term, "luscious legs," explaining that he instead asked if he could call a female student, "legs," because that word was embroidered on her gym bag.

While the Board presented some testimony from live student witnesses, such as female students E.N.H. and M.B., much of the Board's presentation about what Blust purportedly said to his students came from Dr. Rock, who testified as to the comments received by her when she interviewed students and recorded notes as to their statements about "what was it like in your class." As counsel for Mr. Blust noted, these out-of-court statements are hearsay, as they are clearly offered to prove the truth of the matters stated therein. Additionally, the witness testifying about these statements was not the declarant of those statements, but only the person to whom the out-of-court remarks were purportedly addressed. The use of such otherwise inadmissible hearsay in administrative hearings is permitted subject to the residuum rule. Weston v. State, 60 N.J. 36 (1972); N.J.A.C. 1:1-15.5 (b). That rule provides that while such evidence may be admitted, in order for ultimate findings of fact that are based upon that evidence to be legally supportable, there must be a residuum of competent evidence to support those findings in addition to the incompetent hearsay. However, significantly, "there need not be a residuum of competent evidence to prove each act considered by the Commissioner so long as 'the combined probative force of the relevant hearsay and the relevant competent evidence' sustains the Commissioner's ultimate finding of unbecoming conduct." Matter of Tenure Hearing of Cowan, 224 N.J. Super. 737, 751 (App. Div. 1988), quoting Weston, supra., at 52.

In the present matter, Mr. Blust's own admissions serve as a base of competent evidence that both establishes those matters that he admits and also serves to support, and indeed to validate, much of the material reported by Dr. Rock as having been stated by the students she interviewed. Additionally, given the enhanced credibility of the out-of-court statements, as they mirror in significant part what Blust acknowledges to be true, the allegations therein that are not directly admitted by Blust, such as his reference to A.K. as "luscious legs," may have some enhanced degree of reliability. This particular reference was reported to Rock not only by A.K., who was the student allegedly so referred to, but also by another student. Blust attempted to explain away the charge, but frankly his story about the word "legs" on the gym bag and his asking the student if he could call her "Legs" does not convince me that the students were wrong, either through poor memory or malicious intent to harm Blust, when they stated that the term he used to refer to A.K. was not simply "legs," but "luscious legs." The two-word reference fits well with the other remarks that he himself admits, such as references to females as "beautiful" and "gorgeous." While Blust said that he used these terms as "greetings," they are in fact terms that at least superficially address bodily characteristics and appearances, and given his bent for such remarks, it is entirely believable that he would use the "luscious legs" reference to a student whose physical characteristic apparently impressed him. Blust's admission that he did in fact engage a student about "legs" supports the hearsay references to him doing just that, and when the credibility of his explanation is addressed and his version is compared with that of students whose hearsay remarks have now been shown to be reliable, I am convinced that he said what A.K and C.T. reported. As for his characterization of terms as "greetings," even if one concedes that he did use these in that fashion, and even if the "luscious legs" reference was simply another "greeting," the use of such "greetings" to seventh and eighth grade female students by a teacher is grossly inappropriate. Even if Blust had no malicious or prurient intent towards or interest in these students, the use of terms such as these by a teacher to refer to teenage females in a classroom setting cannot be anything but inappropriate.

The evidence regarding the remark about the reference to the "Hot Box" dancers routine in Guys and Dolls is limited to Dr. Rock's comments about it in her memorandum to Blust. She seems to have accepted his position that while he did express some appreciation for the performance, it was a male student who then followed up with an inappropriate remark. I cannot say that it was inappropriate for a teacher to remark favorably to students about their performance in a school play, and as E.N.H. was not questioned about this incident when she testified, I am not convinced by a preponderance of the credible evidence that Mr., Blust's remark went so far as to include the removal of clothing as something that he specifically commented upon.

Student after student reported to Dr. Rock, or testified, that they were made to feel uncomfortable by Blust, and while he is not charged with "moodiness," or with inconsistencies as a teacher that may have bothered his students, and his abilities as a teacher are not challenged other than in connection with his alleged creation of a gender hostile atmosphere, nevertheless, it is clear from the evidence that a significant part of the reason for the concern and discomfort that I FIND was in fact felt by both female, and even some male students, was the result of an atmosphere that was charged with sexually discriminatory conduct. Females were made to feel objectified, uncomfortable and concerned as to whether they were safe if alone with this teacher, who had a predilection for referring to their appearance, their clothing and even in some instances, their anatomy. While it must be clearly stated that there is no absolutely no evidence that Blust ever touched a student in an overtly sexual manner, or that he ever verbalized any overtly sexual thoughts or intentions, nevertheless I FIND that reasonable early teenage female students were made to feel uncomfortable because he zeroed in on them and addressed them in a manner that was directed to them, as females, regarding their appearance and bodily characteristics. By his own admission many of these actions were regular in occurrence, not one-time events, but perhaps "habits" and "customs" of his that in some cases preexisted his assignment to seventh and eighth grade social studies classes. In this sense these were pervasive conduct. Additionally, even viewed most favorably, they were inappropriate means of communication between a mature teacher and minor female students.

The record is replete with evidence that over the years Mr. Blust has received very positive evaluations and observation reports. No evidence exists that these ever contained any reference to any of the matters identified by the students, yet it must also be said that they also do not reflect the several comments and means of address that Mr. Blust himself acknowledges using, nor the touching of students during past years, no matter how innocent that may have been. This is especially important in light of the comment in Blust's brief that while E.N.H. alleged daily touchings, "there is no reference in any of the observations or year end evaluations done by the Respondent's principals which makes any reference to such a touching." Obviously, as he admits that he touched students, these observations and evaluations do not reflect all that he has done over the years, and given the limited slice of time covered by observations and even by daily walks through the halls that may allow a very short look into a classroom, the lack of any such reference is not very significant. It is not so surprising that a teacher can engage in conduct that is less than appropriate and yet be viewed by his supervisors as a fine instructor, and indeed, but for certain limited periods and modes of conduct occurring therein, Mr. Blust may well be just that. While the evidence of his positive performance certainly must be considered when weighing the consequences that arise from any misconduct, when this evidence is considered against the credible evidence of inappropriate actions and the admissions made by Blust, this evidence simply does not serve to defeat the charges.

Based upon the evidence, I CONCLUDE that after being specifically notified, or even, as he seems to have perceived, "warned," in June 2000 to be careful as to his actions and "public comments" about individual students that might make students feel uncomfortable or be considered hurtful or offensive, Mr. Blust continued to address early teenage female students in inappropriate, personalized language that was directed only to those of the female gender, such as "beautiful," gorgeous," "darling" and "luscious legs" and thereby made female students (and incidentally some male students) uncomfortable and even fearful. While his intentions may have been motivated by innocent considerations, nevertheless by his conduct he created an inappropriate and hostile educational environment for these students. Thus, as he failed to comply with the direction and counseling provided by Dr. Rock, and coincidently with his own agreement to be more sensitive and careful, and failed to refrain from inappropriate gender-based harassment even after receiving sexual harassment training, he acted in an insubordinate manner. Charge 1 has been proven.

I CONCLUDE that the evidence supports the finding that prior to June 2000, Mr. Blust did inappropriately touch young female students. As noted, the only evidence about such touching clearly limits it to touching on the shoulder or other similar areas and there is absolutely no evidence of any touching, or any attempted touching, of females in an overtly sexual manner. As written, the second tenure charge does not specifically identify the timing of such inappropriate touchings, but by reference incorporates the description for Charge 1. This description itself contains detailed reference to the June 2000 Conference Report and the mention therein of touching (hand on shoulder). However, in this two-page description there is no reference to any evidence of post-June 2000 touching and no evidence of such has been produced during the hearing. As such, while the historical record does require a finding that Blust did in the past improperly touch female students, as will be discussed below in connection with the penalty phase, the memorandum and meeting with Dr. Rock in June 2000 appears to have effectively ended this inappropriate conduct. Charge 2, Specification 1, has therefore been proven as true only for the period prior to late June 2000.

As for Charge 2, Specification 2, as described above, the evidence supports a finding that Mr. Blust did make comments about individual students' clothing and physical appearance, and he continued to do so even after June 2000. This charge has been proven.

Finally, the conduct proven demonstrates that Blust violated the Board's anti-discrimination policies designed to eliminate sexual harassment. Thus, Charge 3 has been proven.

Penalty

The penalty to be imposed upon the respondent for the several violations of professional standards and for the creation of a sexually hostile atmosphere in his classroom must be determined by weighing the nature and character of his offenses with the record of his prior performance. In addition, it must be clear that the message sent by the penalty to this respondent and to other professionals is a clear one, that such conduct cannot be tolerated. Sexual harassment of students at any age is intolerable; the teacher must serve as a role model for students who learn in the classroom not only what they are taught from books, but also what they see and hear from persons to whom they naturally look for guidance as to the correct manner of behavior. Demonstrating to students that it is okay to make comments to females about their appearance, clothing and physical attributes in public settings or in the course of everyday interaction with persons with whom one is not in a truly personal relationship sets a tone and delivers an impression that this conduct is acceptable to society, and male students may thus believe that such conduct can be carried on later in school and then in the business world, a lesson that can result in bitter consequences for both the victim and, indeed, the perpetrator of sexual harassment in later life. A teacher who cannot control his mouth and avoid such comments merits discipline.

While loss of tenure is the ultimate penalty that the commissioner can visit upon a teacher, and such loss of tenure can then lead to a loss of teaching credentials through action of the State Board of Examiners, after careful consideration of this case and the facts established herein, as well as other decisions of administrative law judges and of the Commissioner, I am convinced that the ultimate penalty is not necessary in this case. Despite the respondent's violations, and the fact that he was provided with a memorandum in June 2000 that he deemed a warning, even if it was not presented to him as a disciplinary step, the nature of the conduct since June, 2000 has been, while unacceptable, nevertheless free of any hint of overt sexuality in either word or deed and free from the touching that occurred before June 2000. It seems that Mr. Blust, while conceding that old habits were not easily shed, has learned not to touch students, and he now must learn once and for all to stop any references to female students that are even slightly related to their appearance, their physical attributes, and their clothing. In this case, I am convinced that the best course is to follow the concept of progressive discipline.

The Commissioner has previously found that punishment less than loss of tenure was appropriate in cases where teachers have been found to act similarly to this respondent. Indeed, in some instances the conduct has been somewhat more egregious than that in which Mr. Blust engaged. In In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Henry Allegretti, School District of the City of Trenton, Mercer County, EDU 6408-99, Initial Decision, (February 4, 2000), affirmed with modification, Comm'r. (March 22, 2000), affirmed, State Bd. of Ed. (August 4, 2000), <http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html>, the teacher was found to have displayed a condom and commented that it was too small for him, to have tapped or hit a female student on the buttocks with a book, to have translated several inappropriate words into French at the request of his students, to have commented upon the dress of females, to have referred inappropriately to an incident involving himself and a female cousin from his youth. These events occurred over a two-day period. The Commissioner imposed a loss of six months salary and ordered the withholding of increments for two years, while also requiring a fitness review before reinstatement. In In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Christopher Wannamacher, Manchester Regional School District, Passaic County, EDU 9126-99 (Remanded), EDU 7096-00, & EDU 1340-00, Initial Decision, (November 30, 2000), affirmed with modification, Comm'r. (February 26, 2001) <http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html>, the teacher commented upon personal appearance and clothing, including referring to one female as wearing a "nice bra," told a student that he would change her seat if she kissed the boy next to her with whom she was having a dispute, told a student that another student could use the bathroom because she was cute and he was not, and told students that if their mother was pretty they would not have a problem. The Commissioner did not revoke tenure. Instead he withheld from Wannamacher an increment for one school year, which he deemed, "the appropriate sanction to impress upon Wannamacher that his conduct fell short of the 'self-restraint and controlled behavior' required of a teaching staff member, In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Jacque L. Sammons, 1972 S.L.D. 302, 321, and that, therefore, he must act with greater prudence in his comments to, and interactions with, students in his charge." Wannamacher, supra., Commissioner's Decision on Remand, February 26, 2001.

Cases in which tenure has been removed tend to be those in which the teacher's comments have been more overtly sexual than the inappropriate "greetings" or "nicknames" or references used by Mr. Blust. Thus, in a case cited by the Board as evidence both of the propriety of tenure removal and the concern that a teacher previously cited for inappropriate actions can continue to act in a like manner if not stopped, In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Wayne Slaughter, School District of Bridgeton, Cumberland County, EDU 6140- 01, Initial Decision, (May 21, 2002), affirmed, Comm'r (July 8 2002), the Commissioner removed the tenure of a teacher who was found to have commented upon females' clothing and "what was inside it," who had asked a female student to have dinner with him during the summer as if they did so during the school year, other students might think something was going on; commented to a female that she had "beautiful eyes" and that he wanted to take her to dinner, and told another that she had big breasts and that he wanted to see her in her bathing suit at a summer camp he ran. He had previously been suspended by the Board due to allegations about some of these matters and reinstated after a psychiatric consultation. See also In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Frank Roberts, 94 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 284, aff'd State Board 95 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 349, aff'd App. Div. 96 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 549; In the Matter of The Tenure Hearing of Sheridan, 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 257, aff'd State Board 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 393.

In deciding that Mr. Blust should not lose his tenure, I have taken into account the fact that he was previously told to stop telling offensive jokes in the presence of staff members and that he was told about the concerns that prompted E.N.H.'s complaint in May/June 2000. There is no evidence that he continued to make offending remarks to faculty after the early 90's, and as noted, the record is devoid of any evidence that he touched students after June 2000. Thereafter his offenses have been limited to inappropriate personal remarks that have not exhibited the content or character of overt sexuality, overt intentions toward or interests in individual students, or that suggest or imply any malicious or prurient intent. While it is entirely understandable that his comments to young adolescent females made them uncomfortable about and less than trusting of him, given his long tenure, strong history of evaluations and his willingness to both admit most of his comments and apparent ability to refrain from inappropriate actions as demonstrated with regard to the touching issue, I am satisfied that this teacher does not need to lose his tenure. Nevertheless, given the need to assure that once and for all he learns the need for self-restraint, prudence and controlled behavior, he shall forfeit the 120 days of pay withheld from him and shall forfeit any increments due to him for the 2001-2002 and 2002-2003 school years. It is SO ORDERED.

Needless to say, Mr. Blust has exhausted his chances. Any further proven misconduct can only lead to one logical conclusion. It is trusted that, having shown some ability to mend his ways, this teacher will now fully comply with the Board's policies and will provide the utmost respect toward all of his students.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

OF WATCHUNG BOROUGH, SOMERSET	:	DECISION
COUNTY.	:

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Respondent's exceptions and the Board's reply thereto[1] are duly noted as submitted in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4, and were considered by the Commissioner in reaching his decision.

Upon careful and independent review of the record, which included transcripts from the hearing conducted on September 22 and September 24, 2003 at the OAL, together with exhibits, post-hearing briefs, exception and reply arguments, and based upon the credibility assessments of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ), N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(c), the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusions of the ALJ.[2] In so doing, the Commissioner notes that

[1] Although the Board refers to its submission as "Petitioner's Exceptions," such submission was not filed within the 13-day period required by regulation, N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4, and the Board did not receive an extension of time in which to submit exception arguments. Rather, it is presumed that because the Board's filing was submitted within five business days of the filing of respondent's exceptions, that such filing is, in fact, a reply to respondent's exceptions.

[2] The Commissioner acknowledges that the ALJ's credibility determinations are entitled to his deference. See In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Frank Roberts, 96 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 549, 550, citing In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Tyler, 236 *N.J. The Appellate Division has affirmed this principle, underscoring that "[u]nder existing law, the [reviewing agency] must recognize and give due weight to the ALJ's unique position and ability to make demeanor based judgments." Whasun Lee v. Board of Education of the Township of Holmdel, Docket No. A-5978-98T2, decided by the New Jersey Superior Court, Appellate Division, August 7, 2000, slip op. at 14. Indeed, the Commissioner the ALJ has thoroughly summarized the testimony and evidence on both sides, fully explaining how he weighed the proofs before him and why he credited, or discredited certain testimony.

Accordingly, the Initial Decision is adopted for the reasons expressed therein. Respondent shall forfeit the 120 days of pay already withheld, as well as any increments due him for the 2001-2002 and 2002-2003 school years. Further, pursuant to the ALJ's discussion at pages 15 and 16 of the Initial Decision, the Board is reminded of its responsibility "to assure that teaching staff members are provided with professional improvement plans in which actions are developed to correct deficiencies in the staff member's performance, in accordance with the requirements of N.J.A.C. 6:3-4.3." In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Barbara Emri, School District of the Township of Evesham, Burlington County, State Board Decision December 3, 2003, slip. op. at 8.

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning aunt challenged the Board's residency determination that her nephew, L.M.M., was not entitled to a free public education in the District during the 2002-03 school year.

The ALJ concluded that petitioner, who failed to appear at hearing and failed to send anyone on her behalf, did not sustain her burden of proof that L.M.M. was a legal resident in the District. The ALJ dismissed the petition and ordered petitioner to reimburse the Board the tuition owed.

The Commissioner adopted the Initial Decision as his own and directed payment for the period of L.M.M.'s ineligible attendance in the District.

BEFORE STEPHEN G. WEISS, ALJ:

This is a school residence case which was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law by the Department of Education as a contested case on January 31, 2003 as a result of a challenge by N.C.R. on behalf of a minor child, L.M.M. (N.C.R.'s nephew) to a determination by the respondent Board of Education of the City of Clifton that L.M.M. was not a legal resident in that municipality during his attendance at school in the 2002-2003 school year and, therefore, tuition for the period of time he improperly attended school was due and owing to the Board. See N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1.

A plenary hearing was scheduled before the undersigned Administrative Law Judge on February 2, 2004 to provide the Board an opportunity to present evidence in support of its tuition reimbursement counterclaim. An earlier scheduled date in October 2003 was adjourned following the non-appearance of anyone by or on petitioner's behalf. Thus, the case was rescheduled.

On the rescheduled date, although notice to all had been provided, there was a failure of anyone to appear for petitioner. Board counsel then advised that he would submit an affidavit from the school business office attesting to the basis for the tuition refund counterclaim.

Subsequently, the affidavit of Karen Perkins, respondent's Business Administrator and Board Secretary, was submitted. In her affidavit, Ms. Perkins relates that she reviewed the business records in her office with respect to L.M.M.'s attendance and determined he had been enrolled in the school district at Clifton High School between September 8, 2002 and June 20, 2003. She further relates that the per pupil cost for L.M.M.'s attendance during that period was $41.71 per day. Accordingly, she then multiplied that daily rate by 180 school days, which resulted in a calculation that the total tuition due and owing was $7,507.80. That is the amount sought to be recouped by the Board in its counterclaim.

First, since no one appeared by or on behalf of petitioner, the petition of appeal is ORDERED DISMISSED.

Second, with respect to the Board's counterclaim, given the contents of Perkin's affidavit, a copy of which was sent both to L.M.M.'s mother and his aunt by certified mail, return receipt requested, the Board is entitled to recover the full amount of tuition sought - $7,507.80. Accordingly, for the reasons set forth, the petition of appeal is ORDERED to be DISMISSED and recovery by the Board on its counterclaim in the amount set forth above is upheld, said amount to be collected through an appropriate forum.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning Board challenged respondent Department's determination regarding additional state aid for special education extraordinary costs.

Pursuant to a formula established in a July 31, 2002 memorandum, the Department reduced the aid by 50% because the District's actual surplus was greater than its projected surplus. The Department made a second reduction of 42.72% pursuant to language in the FY2002 Appropriations Act. The reductions resulted in a total of $211,947 in eligible extraordinary costs. The ALJ concluded that the 50% reduction based on the memorandum was a violation of the Administrative Procedure Act (APA), noting that the memo constituted rulemaking, and ordered the Department to provide the District with additional state aid for its 2001-2002 extraordinary special education costs without regard to any comparison of projected and actual budget surplus.

The Commissioner set aside the Initial Decision. The Commissioner determined that, notwithstanding that some of the Metromedia factors that need to be present to characterize agency action as rulemaking were present, the Department's action to reduce school districts' extraordinary special education aid based on projected surplus in relation to actual surplus for the 2001-02 school year simply "does not bear the characteristics" of administrative rulemaking. As to the issue of the surplus comparison formula being arbitrary and ultra vires, the Commissioner remanded the matter to OAL for further proceedings and expansion of the record as may be needed to resolve fully petitioner's claims and an appropriate remedy.

This synopsis is not part of the Commissioner's decision. It has been prepared for the convenience of the reader. It has been neither reviewed nor approved by the Commissioner.

Record Closed: April 2, 2004 Decided: April 6, 2004

BEFORE DOUGLAS H. HURD, ALJ:

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner challenges Respondent's determination regarding additional State aid for special education extraordinary costs. The petition, dated November 4, 2002, was received by the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes on November 8, 2002. Respondent's answer was filed with the Bureau on November 19, 2002. The matter was deemed a contested case and transferred to the Office of Administrative Law, where it was filed on January 9, 2003.

On February 3, 2004, the District filed a motion for summary decision. On March 3, 2004, Respondent filed a response and a cross-motion for summary decision. On March 8, 2004, the District filed a reply brief. On April 2, 2004, a certification was provided by the Respondent to clarify the calculation of extraordinary special education aid.

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

For 2001-2002, the District requested $992,182 in reimbursed extraordinary special education aid. Pursuant to a formula established in a July 31, 2002, memorandum, the Department reduced this amount by 50% because the District's actual surplus was greater then its projected surplus. Then, the Department made a second reduction, this time of 42.72% pursuant to language in the FY2002 Appropriations Act.[1] These reductions resulted in a total of $211,947 in eligible extraordinary costs.

The District contends that the 50% reduction must be set aside for failure to comply with the rulemaking requirements of the APA. In addition, the District contends that the 50% reduction is arbitrary and capricious. The Department contends it did not engage in rulemaking in this case, but rather acted under the authority of CEIFA and the Appropriations Act. The Department also contends that it did not act in an arbitrary and capricious manner.

For the reasons set forth below, I conclude that the 50% reduction based on the July 31, 2002, memorandum is a violation of the APA.[2] Thus, the Department must provide the District with the additional aid that it would have received but for application of the 50% reduction.

[1] The District does not contest the 42.72% reduction.

[2] The arbitrary and capricious issue is not reached in this Initial Decision since my conclusion regarding the APA violation is dispositive of this matter.

ANALYSIS

CEIFA is essentially a funding mechanism for districts' special education costs. Under CEIFA districts can request the Commissioner to grant additional State aid to reimburse the district's "extraordinary special education costs" -- those are the costs in excess of $40,000 that a district spends to educate an individual classified pupil, excluding transportation expenses. This aid was authorized by N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-19(b), which at the time of the contested action provided in relevant part as follows:

> In those instances in which the cost of providing education for an individual pupil exceeds $40,000, after an assessment by the review panel of placements and placement costs for the applicable school year, ... the district may apply to the commissioner for additional aid. A review panel established by the commissioner ... shall review the district's application and determine whether to grant the district's request based on factors including, but not limited to, an assessment of whether the district was spending appropriate amounts of regular and special education funds on special education pupils; the facts of the particular case or cases at issue; the district's level of compliance with regulatory requirements; and the impact of the extraordinary costs on the district's budget. N.J.S.A. 18A:17F-19(b).

On July 31, 2002, the Department sent a memorandum to all County Superintendents from Richard Rosenberg, Assistant Commissioner for the Department, confirming that the fiscal 2001-2002 extraordinary aid had been processed. The memorandum explained that reimbursements would be reduced for two reasons. First, the reimbursable eligible amount would be either 100% or 50%. Districts that had a projected budge surplus greater than its actual surplus received 100% of their requested amount. Districts with actual surplus greater than its projected surplus received 50% of their requested amount. East Brunswick's actual surplus was larger than its projected surplus. Second, these initial awards were then further prorated by 42.72% due to the large amount of reimbursements requested. This second reduction was made in accordance with language in the FY2002 Appropriations Act. As noted above, East Brunswick does not contest the 42.72% reduction.

Based on the formula set forth in the July 31, 2002, memorandum, the Department on August 12, 2002, notified the District that it received a total of $211,947 in eligible extraordinary costs. The District initially requested $992,182. This amount was first reduced by 50% based on the actual surplus being larger then the projected surplus, and then was reduced again by 42.72% based on the large amount of reimbursements requested.

The issue in this matter is whether the Department engaged in improper rulemaking in violation of the APA when determining the method by which it would disburse extraordinary special education aid. More specifically, the issue is whether the formula in the July 31, 2002, memorandum regarding budget surplus is a rule as defined by the APA. If the formula for budget surplus is a rule then the Department violated the APA by not adhering to specific rulemaking procedures.

In Metromedia Inc. v. Director, Division of Taxation, 97 N.J. 313 (1984); the Supreme Court set forth six factors for determining when an agency action is the equivalent of a rule under the APA. The six factors "can, either singly or in combination, determine whether agency action must be executed through rule-making or adjudication." Id. at 332. Not all six factors need be present for the action to be considered rulemaking, and the factors should be weighed. Matter of Request for Solid Waste Utility Customer Lists, 106 N.J. 508, 518 (1987).

Applying the Metromedia factors to the instant matter, it is overwhelmingly clear that the surplus budget formula constitutes a de facto rule under Metromedia. Indeed, it is an "agency statement of general applicability and continuing effect that implements or interprets law or policy . . . ." N.J.S.A. 52:14B-2(e). The District's analysis of each factor is well reasoned and adopted herein. The Department's analysis, on the other hand, inexplicably focuses on the FY2002 Appropriations Act language that allowed for the 42.72% reduction. The District, however, does not contest the 42.72% reduction, but rather focuses on the surplus budget formula that resulted in a 50% reduction. It is unclear why the Department focused on the wrong target – the 42.72% reduction; nonetheless, applying the Metromedia factors to the surplus budget formula leads to the inescapable conclusion that the Department violated the APA.

ORDER

Based on the foregoing, the following is hereby ORDERED:

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF EAST BRUNSWICK, MIDDLESEX COUNTY,	:
PETITIONER,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
V.	:	DECISION
NEW JERSEY STATE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION,	:
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Respondent's exceptions and petitioner's reply thereto were submitted in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Respondent's exceptions contend that: (1) the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) erroneously held that its July 31, 2002 memorandum constituted rulemaking and, therefore, was violative of the Administrative Procedure Act (APA) and (2) even if such memorandum was considered rulemaking, the prospective relief awarded by the ALJ is inappropriate in this instance, since the 2001-02 school year ended on June 30, 2002 and there is no evidence on this record that the Board was harmed in future years as a result of the 2001-02 calculation. (Respondent's Exceptions at 6, 9)[1]

[1] That is, respondent argues that because petitioner does not claim that its subsequent years' funding was adversely affected by its 2001-2002 award, a retroactive monetary reward would be contrary to the holding in Sloan v. Klagholtz, 342 N.J. Super. 385, 396 (App. Div. 2001). There, the Appellate Division recognized that, in challenges brought pursuant to school funding statutes, the "courts are reluctant to grant retroactive monetary relief when a

In reply, petitioner counters that respondent's latter argument was not raised below and must be rejected because: (1) there is no record to support respondent's "fiscal stability" claim that "complying with the Initial Decision would require it to 'transfer funds or request an appropriation in order to fund the monetary remedy,'" (Petitioner's Reply at 2, citing Respondent's Exceptions at 9) and (2) there is no legal underpinning for such a position, where "the Department has not established the requisite grounds for departing from the 'traditional rule' that decisions are retrospective in nature." (Id. at 3, citing Rutherford Educ. Assoc. v. Board of Educ., 99 N.J. 8, 21 (1985)) Moreover, with respect to the Metromedia factors, petitioner asserts that the Department addresses only the third factor, i.e., whether the Department's statement was designed to operate prospectively. Metromedia, Inc. v. Director, Division of Taxation, 97 N.J. 313 (1984). Petitioner argues that respondent's prospective design was evident in its extraordinary aid application and related memoranda and such design cannot be nullified by the "happenstance" of a statutory amendment. (Petitioner's Reply at 9-10) Finally, petitioner raises in its reply alternative grounds for adopting the ALJ's recommended order, contending therein that the Department's use of a comparison surplus formula was arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable.[2]

Upon careful and independent review of the record herein, the Commissioner determines to set aside the Initial Decision of the ALJ for the reasons set forth below.

Initially, the Commissioner notes, as set forth in the Initial Decision, that the operative statute during the year in question authorized the reimbursement of extraordinary statute relating to government revenues or appropriations is held to be unconstitutional, because of the potential adverse impact of such relief upon public fiscal stability." (Id. at 396)

[2] Relevant rules permit reply arguments to include cross-exceptions or submissions in support of the Initial Decision. N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4(d)

special education costs based on facts including, but not limited to: "an assessment of whether the district is spending appropriate amounts of regular and special education funds on special education pupils; the facts of the particular case or cases at issue; the district's level of compliance with regulatory requirements; and the impact of the extraordinary costs on the district's budget." N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-19(b). In this connection, respondent issued a memorandum directed to all Chief School Administrators dated December 7, 2001 offering school districts the opportunity to apply for extraordinary aid for the 2001-2002 school year, provided through the Comprehensive Educational Improvement and Financing Act (CEIFA). The memorandum stated, in pertinent part,

> The [application] review is based on analysis of the following factors: the program and placement costs for the 2001-2002 school year; amounts expended from regular and special education funds for eligible students; the facts of the particular case; the level of current compliance with regulations; the impact of the extraordinary costs on the district's budget; and other factors considered relevant to the individual application. A previous denial or approval of an extraordinary aid application is not a consideration in the determination. (Petitioner's Brief in Support of Motion For Summary Decision at Exhibit G)

The memorandum additionally referenced the extraordinary aid application and instructions which were available online. The instructions included the following provision:

> In determining a district's eligibility for extraordinary aid, the Department will review the district's projected budget surplus and actual budget surplus in relation to the request. Districts will be funded for extraordinary costs as follows:
>
> 1. Districts having an actual budget surplus less than or equal to their projected budget surplus will receive 100% of their extraordinary costs (costs in excess of $40,000).
>
> 2. Districts having an actual budget surplus greater than their projected budget surplus will receive 50%-100% of their extraordinary costs (costs in excess of $40,000). The percentage will be determined by the actual amount of funding available.

> Districts having an actual budget surplus greater than their projected budget surplus and an actual budget surplus greater than 6% will receive 50% of their extraordinary costs (costs in excess of $40,000). (emphasis in text) (Ibid.)

A completed application and required documentation were to be submitted to the County Superintendent of Schools no later than January 31, 2002.

Later, a memorandum was issued on July 31, 2002 from Assistant Commissioner Rosenberg to the County Superintendents, which stated, in relevant part:

> Please remember to tell districts that later this week they will receive official notification letters explaining the details of how their reimbursement amounts were derived, including reasons for any denials. In the meantime, please convey to districts that low reimbursement amounts can be attributed to an increase by almost $20 million in the requested amounts, while the appropriation remained at the prior year's level of $15 million. This resulted in a prorated amount of less than 50%. In addition, the reimbursable eligible amount was either 100% or 50% according to the following rule:
>
> | | |
> |---|---|
> | A. If Projected Surplus > Actual Surplus | 100% |
> | B. If Actual Surplus > Projected Surplus & < 6% | 50% |
> | C. If Actual Surplus > Projected Surplus & > 6% | 50% |
> (Id. at Exhibit H)

Petitioner maintains that the Department's determination to reduce school districts' extraordinary special education aid based on projected surplus in relation to actual surplus constitutes de facto rulemaking and is, therefore, invalid for failure to comply with the APA, which governs rulemaking activities in State agencies.

According to the APA, a "rule," > when not otherwise modified, means each agency statement of general applicability and continuing effect that implements or interprets law or policy, or describes the organization, procedure or practice requirements of any agency. The term includes the amendment or repeal of any rule, but does not include: (1) statements concerning the internal management or discipline of > any agency; (2) intraagency and interagency statements; [3] and (3) agency decisions and findings in contested cases. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-2(e)

As noted in the Initial Decision, the Supreme Court established six factors for determining when agency action is tantamount to rulemaking under the APA. "The Metromedia criteria  essentially provide a test of when rulemaking procedures are necessary in order to validate agency actions or determinations." Woodland, supra, at 68. In this regard, one would consider whether the action:

> (1) is intended to have wide coverage encompassing a large segment of the regulated or general public, rather than an individual or a narrow select group;
> (2) is intended to be applied generally and uniformly to all similarly situated persons;
> (3) is designed to operate only in future cases, that is prospectively;
> (4) prescribes a legal standard or directive that is not otherwise expressly provided by or clearly and obviously inferable from the enabling statutory authorization;
> (5) reflects an administrative policy that (i) was not previously expressed in any official and explicit agency determination, adjudication or rule, or (ii) constitutes a material and significant change from a clear, past agency position on the identical subject matter; and
> (6) reflects a decision on administrative regulatory policy in the nature of the interpretation of law or general policy. Metromedia, Inc. v. Director, Div. of Taxation, 97 N.J. at 331-332.

Applying these factors to respondent's decision to reduce CEIFA aid in accordance with actual surplus figures, the Commissioner initially finds that, even assuming, [3] An intraagency statement has been defined as "(1) a communication between agency members that (2) does not have a substantial impact on (3) the rights or legitimate interests of the regulated public." Woodland Private Study Group v. State, 109 N.J. 62, 75 (1987). Here, assuming that the local boards who actually applied for such extraordinary aid for the 2001-02 school year would constitute "the regulated public," the content of the memorandum issued by the Assistant Commissioner on July 31, 2002 reflected a clear intent to convey specific information to local boards of education which could reasonably concern legitimate economic interests, and, therefore, is unlikely to be considered an intraagency statement, within the intendment of the law.

arguendo, the number of districts meeting the statutory threshold to apply for extraordinary aid constitutes "a large segment of the regulated or general public,"[4] and notwithstanding that the approach taken by respondent was applied uniformly, this action, along with the memorandum of July 31, was clearly not intended to be "continuing effect," as required to meet the APA's definition of a rule. Rather, such action challenged by petitioner was designed to be effective solely for the 2001-02 school year. Indeed, the Assistant Commissioner assured in his July 31 memorandum, which is the statement petitioner challenges herein, "With the new statutory requirements we intend to make the fiscal 2002-03 reimbursement process an easier one for everyone involved." (Petitioner's Brief in Support of Motion For Summary Decision at Exhibit H) As noted by respondent, the statutory amendments, effective January 6, 2002, removed the factors, listed supra, for the Department to consider when awarding extraordinary special education aid. (Respondent's Exceptions at 9)

Further, the Commissioner finds that respondent's applied method for reimbursing districts for extraordinary special education costs in the 2001-02 school year does not "prescribe a legal standard or directive," as contemplated by Metromedia. That is, the methodology used by respondent neither prescribed nor proscribed specific conduct, did not, as noted above, direct future actions or proceedings to be taken by the agency, did not have the purpose of describing or implementing substantive agency policy,[5] and did not establish a [4] It is noted, however, that the record does not include data on the number of districts that applied for, and received, reimbursement for extraordinary special education costs in the 2001-02 school year.

[5] Contrast, for example, rules adopted by the State Board of Education at N.J.A.C. 6A:24 "pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:4-15 and P.L. 1999, c.142 and P.L. 1996, c.138 in order to implement educational programs necessary to provide urban education reform initiatives that ensure that public school children  from the poorer urban districts receive the educational entitlements guaranteed them by the Constitution and to meet the requirements of the decision of the New Jersey Supreme Court in Abbott v. Burke, decided May 21, 1998." N.J.A.C. 6A:24-1.1.

detailed set of procedures or eligibility requirements.[6] Bullet Hole, Inc. v. Dunbar, 335 N.J. Super. 562, 583-584 (App. Div. 2000). As such, the Commissioner finds that respondent's statement, although not formally expressed in "any official and explicit agency determination, adjudication or rule," Metromedia, supra, at 331, is more reasonably viewed as a method to calculate reimbursements for the 2001-02 school year, rather than an administrative agency's "interpretation of law or general policy." (Id. at 332)

The Commissioner recognizes that "[a]ll six of the Metromedia factors need not be present to characterize agency action as rulemaking, and the factors should not be merely tabulated, but weighed." (emphasis added) In re Solid Waste Util. Cust. Lists, 106 N.J. 508, 518 (1987). Thus, notwithstanding that some of the Metromedia factors are present, upon weighing those factors, the Commissioner finds that respondent's action to reduce school districts' extraordinary special education aid based on projected surplus in relation to actual surplus for the 2001-02 school year simply "does not bear the characteristics" of administrative rulemaking, See, Bullet Hole, Inc., supra, at 586, the hallmark of which is "the widespread, continuing, and prospective effect of an agency pronouncement." (emphasis added) (Metromedia, supra, at 329. In so determining, the Commissioner is mindful that agencies may act informally, and the courts ordinarily defer to the procedure chosen by the agency in discharging its statutory duty. In re Solid Waste, supra, at 519.

The inquiry does not end here, however, since petitioner also contends that the Department's use of a surplus comparison formula was arbitrary and ultra vires. Because this issue was not considered by the ALJ in his Initial Decision, however, this matter is remanded to the OAL for further proceedings and expansion of the record as may be necessary to resolve fully petitioner's claims and, if necessary, consider the appropriateness of a remedy, in accordance with the parties' exception and reply arguments.

[6] Having so found, it is not necessary to reach the remaining condition that the legal standard or directive be "expressly provided by or clearly and obviously inferable from the enabling statutory authorization." Metromedia at 331.

Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the ALJ is set aside for the reasons set forth herein and the instant matter is remanded to the OAL for resolution of petitioner's remaining claims.

IT IS SO ORDERED.[7]

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning father, V.L., and now-adult daughter, S.L., challenged the Board's residency determination, contending that S.L. is entitled to attend school in Keyport.

The ALJ found that petitioners failed to demonstrate that they are domiciled or resident in the district and ordered that the Board's decision to disenroll S.L. be affirmed. However, the ALJ declined to assess tuition for the time of S.L.'s ineligible attendance because the Board had not sought back tuition from other disenrolled students.

The Assistant Commissioner, to whom the matter was delegated pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:4-34, adopted in part and rejected in part the ALJ's decision. The Assistant Commissioner concurred that petitioners had not demonstrated S.L.'s entitlement to attend school in the district, but assessed tuition from the date of petitioners' appeal to the Commissioner on the basis that petitioners, unlike prior students who were promptly withdrawn from the district upon being confronted with evidence of ineligibility, availed themselves of the benefit of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 to obtain S.L.'s continued attendance in Keyport schools and cannot now disavow the statute's concomitant obligation for payment of tuition. The Petition was dismissed and petitioners were ordered to remit tuition to the Board for the period from January 5, 2004 through the filing date of the decision.

BEFORE BEATRICE S. TYLUTKI, ALJ t/a:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

This matter concerns the petition filed by the petitioners, Victor Lee and his daughter, Sophia Lee (hereinafter jointly referred to as "petitioners"), with the

[1] At the time the matter was initiated, Sophia Lee was a minor and, therefore, initials were used in the caption of the case. It is also noted that in a number of the exhibits in this matter, Victor Lee is identified as Shanquan Li.

Commissioner of Education (hereinafter referred to as "Commissioner") seeking to reverse the determination made by the Board of Education of the Borough of Keyport, Monmouth County (hereinafter referred to as "Board"), that Ms. Lee be removed from the Keyport High School. In response, the Board contends that the petitioners are not domiciled within Keyport Borough (hereinafter referred to as "Keyport"), and demand tuition for the period of time that Ms. Lee attends Keyport High School. In the petition, Mr. Lee opposed the payment of tuition on the basis that he was paying taxes in Keyport.

The Commissioner, on January 26, 2004, transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law to be heard as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to –15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to –13. The matter was initially scheduled to be heard by another Administrative Law Judge and then was transferred to the undersigned. The hearing was adjourned on one occasion since Mr. Lee was out of the country. The hearing was also delayed since both parties had problems with the responses to their interrogatories, and I had telephone conferences to resolve the issues regarding the interrogatories on March 5 and 23, 2004.

The hearing took place on March 25 and 26, 2004, and the record in the matter closed on March 26, 2004.

The issue in this matter is whether the petitioners have been domiciled in Keyport from January 8, 2003 (date on which Ms. Lee was enrolled at the Keyport High School) to the end of the 2003-2004 school year. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b(1), the burden of proof is on the petitioners to show, by a preponderance of the evidence, that they are domiciled in Keyport for the period stated above.

Prior to the hearing, I informed the parties that, although usually the party with the burden of proof precedes first, in this matter, I was ordering the Board to present its case first. On the first day of the hearing, the Board presented the testimony of five witnesses and indicated that it was doubtful that the testimony of its sixth witness would be completed on that day. For the remainder of that day, I had the petitioners present their exhibits. Prior to the hearing, the petitioners had indicated that they would have no witnesses. I completed making rulings as to the admissibility of the petitioners' exhibits at the beginning of the second day of the hearing.

At that juncture, the Board presented an oral motion for summary decision. Oral arguments as to the motion were placed on the record, and I indicated that I would render a decision based on the record before me.

FACTUAL FINDINGS

The Board presented the testimony of Colleen Rafter, the principal of the Raritan High School. Ms. Rafter testified that Ms. Lee enrolled as a sophomore at the Raritan High School on September 4, 2001. Ms. Rafter had been told by Mr. Lee that the family had lived in Holmsdale but were downsizing as a result of the September 11 tragedy, and had purchased a more affordable home in Hazlet Township. Mr. Lee provided the Raritan High School with a copy of a deed for a residency in Hazlet at 36 Village Green Way, dated August 28, 2001 (R-7).

Ms. Lee completed the 2001-2002 school year at the Raritan High School, and sometime in December 2002 or early January 2003, the father of a student who was having a dispute with Ms. Lee told Ms. Rafter that Ms. Lee was not living in Hazlet and that he had followed her after school to a house in Holmdel Township. Ms. Rafter called Mr. Lee regarding the allegation and Mr. Lee stated that they lived in Hazlet. Ms. Rafter told Mr. Lee that she would have to investigate the allegation and, on the next day, January 10, 2003, Ms. Lee withdrew from the Raritan High School and transferred to the Keyport High School (R-10).

When his daughter transferred to the Keyport High School, Mr. Lee told the school that he and his daughter were living in Keyport and provided the school with a copy of the lease, dated January 8, 2003, for an apartment, Number 33A, at the Green Grove Apartment complex in Keyport (hereinafter referred to as the "Keyport apartment") (R-2, P-62). Recently, the petitioners have terminated the Keyport apartment lease and Mr. Lee has purchased a dwelling in Keyport (P-2, P-3).

Sandi Siegle, the Board's Attendance and Truant Officer, testified that she got a telephone message on September 24, 2003, stating that Ms. Lee did not live in Keyport. Ms. Siegle stated that she gets approximately six or seven such tips a year and that she investigates all the tips. On September 29 and September 30, 2003, Ms. Siegle was at the petitioners' Keyport apartment between approximately 6:45 a.m. and 8:10 a.m., and she did not see Ms. Lee leave the apartment. She was again at the petitioners' apartment three times the following week and she did not see Ms. Lee leave for school. On each of these days, Ms. Siegle checked and was told that Ms. Lee was at school.

At this point, Ms. Siegle reported her observations to the Keyport High School Principal Miguel Hernandez, who requested that she continue her investigation. Thereafter, she spoke to a young girl, approximately six years old, who lived in the apartment below the petitioners' Keyport apartment and to two adult neighbors, all of whom stated that no one lived in the petitioners' apartment. On about 20 occasions, Ms. Siegle went to the petitioners' apartment either early in the morning or in the evening. She would ring the doorbell and no one responded. Thereafter, she reported her findings to the principal.

Ms. Siegle conducted seven investigations regarding high school students during the 2003-2004 school year. Three of these students left the Keyport High School because they did not live in Keyport.

On behalf of the Board, Miguel Hernandez testified that it is the school's normal procedure to have Ms. Siegle initially check out tips stating that a student does not reside within Keyport. Ms. Siegel does not talk to him about the matter unless she believes that the student might not live in Keyport. Mr. Hernandez stated that Ms. Siegle spoke to him about her initial investigation and he asked her to further investigate the matter regarding Ms. Lee's domicile. Also, Mr. Hernandez called the local police and asked them to check the address for their home telephone number which is listed on Ms. Lee's Keyport High School Personal Data Questionnaire, dated January 18, 2003 (R-1). Thereafter, he was advised that the telephone was at a Hazlet location. Mr. Hernandez received a letter, with photographs of the Keyport apartment, which had been sent to David Winter, the Board Secretary, from Anthony Vecchio, the Keyport Fire Marshal and Code Enforcement Officer which states that in Mr. Vecchio's opinion, no one is residing at the petitioners' Keyport apartment (R-3).

Based on all the information he received, Mr. Hernandez felt that Ms. Lee did not reside in Keyport and he discussed the matter with Gail Vovna, the Board's Director of Curriculum and the Assistant Superintendent of Education and with John Dumford, the Board's Superintendent of Education. Thereafter, he and Ms. Wovna spoke to Ms. Lee and Mr. Hernandez asked her whether she was living in Keyport. According to Mr. Hernandez, Ms. Lee stated that she didn't know and that he should speak to her father. Mr. Hernandez denied the allegation in the petitioners' petition that he told Ms. Lee to get out of school. Mr. Hernandez stated that he did give her a blank transfer form and he suggested that Mr. Lee talk to him about the matter. At the time of this conversation, Mr. Hernandez was aware that Ms. Lee was upset about her discussions with Ms. Vovna regarding some of Ms. Lee's courses.

Mr. Hernandez stated that during the 2001-2002 school year, one student left the high school after there was a question regarding residency and that this student was not of a minority race. He also stated that during the 2002-2003 school year, there were six residency investigations, and that three of these students left the high school and that none of them were of a minority race. Mr. Hernandez stated that none of these students were charged tuition. In response to an interrogatory, the Board stated that it did not change tuition since these students and their parents did not dispute the Board's investigation as to domicile and promptly transferred to another school (J-6, response to question #10).

The day after he met with Ms. Lee, Mr. Hernandez stated he and Mr. Wovna met with Mr. Lee. Mr. Hernandez stated that Mr. Lee did not say specifically that he lived in Keyport and that he mentioned that he and his wife were separated.

In response to the Board's subpoena, Diane Royle, the on-site apartment manager for the Green Grove Apartment complex, testified that she initially received an application from Mr. Lee's wife for an apartment on behalf of herself and her daughter. This application was denied for insufficient income. Mrs. Lee accused Ms. Royle of racial discrimination and was angry when her application was denied. Several days later, Mr. Lee submitted an application for himself and his daughter which was approved

Ms. Royle stated that her apartment's door is across the court from the door to the petitioners' apartment and that she never saw Mr. Lee nor Ms. Lee enter or leave their apartment. She stated that she saw Ms. Lee for the first time at this hearing. Ms. Royle stated that she did see Mrs. Lee on several occasions when she came to the apartment complex to pick up mail for the petitioners' apartment. Also, she had a discussion with Mrs. Lee about a rental late fee. Mrs. Lee was upset about the last fee and Ms. Royle told Mrs. Lee that she would have to talk to Mr. Lee about the matter since he was the renter. Ms. Royle stated that Mrs. Lee again accused her of racial discrimination when they discussed the late fee.

On or about October 1, 2003, Ms. Royle received a report from the apartment superintendent, Alvin Peterson, that he had entered the petitioners' apartment since the person living in the apartment below the petitioners' apartment had complained about a ceiling leak. Mr. Peterson told her that there was an overflowing toilet in the petitioners' apartment and that the apartment was completely empty. Also, the electric meter reader spoke to her since he thought the petitioners' apartment was empty because of the low electric meter readings.

On or about November 13, 2003, Mr. Vecchio came to her office and told Ms. Royle that he had received a report of an activated smoke detector in one of the apartments. She, Mr. Vecchio and Mr. Peterson identified the alarm as coming from the petitioners' apartment and, after receiving no response when they rang the bell, they entered the apartment. She stated that they found that the smoke detector needed a new battery and that they checked to make sure there wasn't a fire or smoke in the petitioners' apartment. Ms. Royle stated she they saw a mattress with a lamp on the floor in the bedroom, no linen or clothes in the bedroom, and no food or dishes in the kitchen except for a gallon of milk and cereal in the refrigerator.

Ms. Royle stated that no one used the assigned parking space for the petitioners' apartment, and that when Mr. Lee gave up the apartment, it was in rentable condition and it looked like it had never been lived in. It was Ms. Royle's opinion that nobody lived in the petitioners' apartment.

Mr. Vecchio testified for the Board and he stated that he got a call that a smoke detector had been activated at the Green Grove Apartment complex and he radioed the fire chief to tell him that he was going to the apartment complex. He, Ms. Royle and Mr. Paterson determined that the activated smoke detector was in the petitioners' apartment. They rang the doorbell. After there was no response, they entered the apartment and Mr. Vecchio went into all the rooms looking for any indication of a smoke-related problem. He determined that the only problem was that the smoke detector needed a new battery. Mr. Paterson replaced the battery.

Mr. Vecchio stated that he saw in the bedroom a twin bed mattress on a frame but no clothes or linens, that there were no dishes or appliances in the kitchen, and no food except for a gallon of milk and a box of cereal in the refrigerator. The kitchen also had a disconnected smoke alarm. In the living room, he saw two chairs, several paper boxes, a laundry basket and some bedding rolled in a corner. Based on what he saw, he considered the apartment to be unoccupied.

Mr. Vecchio stated that he was concerned about the fact that the apartment was empty since previously another empty apartment was determined to be a safe house for alleged terrorists. Mr. Vecchio took photographs to document what he saw in the apartment even though he did not think the petitioners' apartment was being used by terrorists. However, since he was aware that Ms. Lee was attending high school in Keyport and he was aware that the high school was concerned about residency issues, he sent a letter along with the photographs he took at the apartment to the Board (R-3). Mr. Vecchio denied that he had rearranged the furniture before taking the photographs or that he had edited the photographs.

Thereafter, Mr. Lee called him and stated that he did live in the Keyport apartment. Mr. Lee again called and asked Mr. Vecchio to come to the apartment. Mr. Vecchio did so on January 6, 2004, and found that the apartment was fully furnished and looked as if somebody lived there (P-51).

The Board hired Paul Smith, a licensed private detective, to look into the question of the petitioners' domicile. Mr. Smith subcontracted the assignment on February 9, 2004, and John Coamano, a licensed private investigator, conducted the investigation (R-11. Mr. Coamano testified that he was given three addresses to check, the one-bedroom second floor Keyport apartment, a condo in Hazlet and a large private home in Holmdel. He determined that Mr. Lee leased the Keyport apartment but that he owns the condo in Hazlet and the house in Holmdel, and that neither the condo or the house are listed for sale. Mr. Coamano stated that the Holmdel house has five bedrooms with a large backyard containing a tennis/basketball court, and he estimated that it is worth more than one million dollars. He stated that the Hazlet condo has two bedrooms and is worth $150,000.

Using the Internet, Mr. Coamano found Mr. Lee's photograph and that he works as a vice-president and portfolio manager for the Oppenheimer Funds. He also determined that Mr. Lee has two daughters, Ms. Lee who is 18 years old and a younger daughter. He saw Ms. Lee's photograph in a high school book.

Mr. Coamano determined that Mr. Lee owns three vehicles, a 2001 BMW 740, a 2001 Toyota Siena and a 1998 Mitibishi Mirage. He also found out that Mr. Lee had a driver's license in the name of Shanquan Li and the listed address is the house in Holmdel; and that he had changed his name and address several months before the investigation. Mr. Lee's current driver's license is in the name of Victor Lee and the listed address is the Keyport apartment.

On February 15, 2004, at approximately 7:00 p.m., Mr. Coamano went to the Holmdel address and saw some activity in the house. He decided to use the pretext of looking for a lost dog and to go and knock at the door to see who responded. As he was walking to the door, he saw Mr. Lee and a young girl who he believed to be Ms. Lee near the garage door, and he asked about a missing dog. After seeing Ms. Lee at the hearing, Mr. Coamano testified that he is sure the young girl he saw was Ms. Lee.

After speaking with Mr. Lee, Mr. Coamano returned to his car and saw Mr. Lee and the young girl leave in the BMW vehicle. Mr. Coamano followed, saw Mr. Lee drop off the young girl at another residency in Holmdel and return to the Holmdel house. Mr. Coamano was later stopped by the Holmdel Police who told him that they received a call about a suspicious person in the vicinity (R-12). He assumed that Mr. Lee had called the police.

On February 18, 2004, at approximately 6:00 a.m., Mr. Coamano again went to the Holmdel address and, after awhile, he saw Mr. Lee drive up and put his Mitsubishi Mirage into the garage at the Holmdel house. About 20 minutes later, Mr. Lee left driving the Toyota Siena. Mr. Coamano followed Mr. Lee who later returned to the Holmdel house.

Later on February 18, 2004, Mr. Coamano spoke to Barbara, a stay-at-home mother, who lives across the street from Mr. Lee's Holmdel home. She told Mr.

Coamano that she did not personally know the Lee family but has seen Mr. Lee, his wife and his two daughters from time to time.

Mr. Coamano spoke to both Ms. Royle and Mr. Peterson at the Green Grove Apartment complex. He also spoke to a mailman who delivers mail to the apartments on Wednesday and who stated that the petitioners' mailbox is frequently full of non-collected mail.

Also on February 18, 2004, Mr. Coamano spoke to the tenant who lives in the apartment below the petitioners' Keyport apartment who he described as a Hispanic woman. This woman told him that she did not know anyone was renting the apartment above her until she had a leak in the ceiling in her apartment. Thereafter, she stated that she saw Mr. Lee and his daughter on a couple of occasions. Mr. Coamano stated that while he was talking to the Hispanic lady, Mr. Lee and his daughter came down and would not leave. The Hispanic lady became flustered and closed her door.

Mr. Coamano went to the Hazlet condo on February 18, 2004, and spoke to a neighbor who stated that an older oriental woman comes daily to pick up the mail and that an older oriental male stays overnight at the condo about once a week. The neighbor told Mr. Coamano that she uses the Lee's parking space since it is not used.

After the investigation, Mr. Coamano concluded that the petitioners live in Holmdel and that one or both of them sometimes stay at the Keyport apartment.

As stated, the petitioners did not testify at the hearing nor did they present any witnesses. They had admitted into evidence the following exhibits to support their argument that they are domiciled in Keyport:

- Deed for a home purchased by Mr. Lee at 231 Atlantic Street in Keyport, dated February 23, 2004 (P-2), and a postal change of address (P-3)
- Bills sent to Mr. Lee at the 231 Atlantic Street address (P-5, P-7, P-8, P-9)

- Letters and bills sent to Mr. Lee at the Keyport apartment (P-4, P-6, P-10, P-11, P-18, P-23 through P-29)
- School-related letters sent to Ms. Lee at the Keyport apartment (P-30 through P-39)
- Lease and other documents relating to the rental of the Keyport apartment by Mr. Lee (P-13, P-21, P-53, P-55, P-56, P-61, P-62, P-63)
- Ms. Lee's voter registration (P-54) and bank statements (P-12, P-16, P-17) using the Keyport apartment address
- Mr. Lee's voter registration (P-14) and his driver's license (P-15) using the Keyport apartment address

ARGUMENTS OF THE PARTIES

Joan M. Damora, Esq., on behalf of the Board, argued that it is entitled to prevail as to its motion for summary decision since the petitioners have not met their burden of proof and have not shown that they are domiciled in Keyport. Ms. Damora noted that domicile is defined as "the place where [a person] has his [or her] true, fixed, permanent home and principle establishment, and to which whenever he is absent, he has an intent of returning." T.B.W. ex rel. A.W. v. Board of Education of the Township of Belleville, Essex County, Agency Docket No. 1159-5/96, 1998 W.L. 66 8678 (N.J. Adm. June 18, 1998); N.J.A.C. 6A:28-2.4(a)(l)(i).

Ms. Joan Damora argued that pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:28-2.5(c), the decision as to domicile is to be based on the totality of the information and proofs presented and that, in this matter, the Board has presented credible testimony and documents which question the petitioners' representation that they are domiciled in Keyport. Also, the Board introduced evidence as to Mr. Lee's employment, the residences he owns in Hazlet and Holmdel and the three cars he owns in order to raise a question as to the likelihood that the petitioners would permanently live in a small apartment in Keyport which for a time had little or no furniture, appliances, clothes or food.

Ms. Damora argued that the petitioners have shown only that they rented the Keyport apartment and thereafter purchased a residency in Keyport but that they did not show that they are living in Keyport. Ms. Damora noted that a person can own a number of residences but can have only one domicile; a permanent address where the person resides. Collins v. Yancy, 55 N.J. Super. 514, 520-21 (Law Div. 1959); N.J.A.C. 6A:28-2.4(a)(1)(i).

Ms. Lee argued that the Board has not shown that she and her father are not living in Keyport. She noted that the Board had not called as witnesses Mr. Paterson or any of the neighbors who spoke to Ms. Siegle or Mr. Coamano. She argued that of the six witnesses presented by the Board; three of them are biased against the petitioners – two because of prior disagreements with one of the petitioners and Mr. Coamano because he was paid by the Board and, therefore, inclined to support the Board's position. She noted that Mr. Coamano's report made an incorrect statement as to one of Mr. Lee's cars and referred to an exhibit which the Board had pre-marked but which was not admitted into evidence. She stated that on the Certificate of Occupancy prepared by Mr. Vecchio for the Keyport apartment, he lists the wrong address (P-13). Comparing the address on the Certificate of Occupancy (R-13) to the address on the lease (P-62); I cannot see any errors. Also, Ms. Lee argued that the references to the petitioners' income and living style are inappropriate.

Ms. Lee argued that she is legally entitled to attend the Keyport High School pursuant to:

(1) N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1D which provides:

> Any person whose parent or guardian, even though not domiciled within the district, is residing temporarily therein, but any person who has had or shall have his all-year round dwelling place within the district for one year or > longer shall be deemed to be domiciled within the district for the purposes of this section;

(2) N.J.A.C. 6A:28-2.4(a)1v which provides that:

> A student is domiciled in the district when his or her parent or legal guardian resides within the district on an all-year-round basis for one year or one year or more, notwithstanding, the existence of a domicile elsewhere; and

(3) N.J.A.C. 6A:28-2.4(a)1ii which provides that:

> Where a student's parents are domiciled within different districts, and where there is no court order or written agreement between the parties designating the district for school attendance, the student's domicile is in the district of the parent with whom the student lives for a majority of the school year, regardless of which parent has legal custody.

In addition, Ms. Lee stated that N.J.A.C. 6A:28-2.5(a) lists the types of documents that must be presented to show eligibility for school enrollment and argued that the petitioners have complied with this section and have presented sufficient documents to show that she and her father are domiciled within Keyport. Ms. Lee argued that the petitioners should not be required to present anything else.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Having reviewed the testimony and exhibits introduced into evidence, I agree with Ms. Damora's argument that the Board has presented sufficient evidence to support the Board's conclusion that the petitioners were not domiciled in Keyport since they did not reside in Keyport. Through the exchange of interrogatories, the petitioners were aware of the witnesses and documents the Board relied on in this matter to support its conclusion that the petitioners did not live in Keyport. On several occasions, I informed the petitioners that the burden of proof was on them to show that they were living in Keyport and that they probably could not prove their case solely on the introduction of documents. Prior to the hearing, I also advised the petitioners that they could not place into evidence documents which list the names of persons who would state that the petitioners live in Keyport or written statements of persons who state that the petitioners live in Keyport. I informed them that they would have to call these people as witnesses and give the Board the opportunity to cross-examine the witnesses.

I recognize that the petitioners used the suggested list of documents listed in N.J.A.C. 28-2.5(a), and have presented documents showing that Mr. Lee rented the Keyport apartment and thereafter purchased a residency in Keyport, and that the petitioners used the Keyport addresses for certain purposes. These documents alone are not sufficient and there was no convincing proof presented by the petitioners that they actually reside in Keyport. The facts in this matter are similar to those in L.P. v. Leonia Borough Board of Education, 93 N.J.A.R. 2nd (Edu.) 129. In that case, the administrative law judge and the Commissioner concluded that the petitioner rented an apartment for school purposes but did not live there. The facts in this matter show that Mr. Lee rented the Keyport apartment solely to show proof of residency. Although, normally I do not allow evidence in cases of this nature regarding the family's income, I did so in this matter and I agree with Ms. Damora's argument that it is highly unlikely that Mr. Lee and his daughter would live in an almost empty small Keyport apartment when they have other residencies available to them. In addition, the investigations of both Ms. Siegle and Mr. Coamano presented credible testimony that neither Mr. Lee nor Ms. Lee lived in Keyport.

I CONCLUDE that the petitioners have not proved that they are domiciled in Keyport. The statute and regulations cited by the petitioners clearly state that they must prove they live in Keyport. Therefore, I ORDER that the decision of the Board to terminate Ms. Lee's education at the Keyport High School be AFFIRMED.

As to the Board's request for tuition, Mr. Hernandez testified that the Board had not charged tuition when other Keyport High School students were found not to be domiciled in Keyport. Therefore, I CONCLUDE and ORDER that the Board is not entitled to charge tuition in this matter.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

V.L. and S.L.,	:
PETITIONERS,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF KEYPORT, MONMOUTH COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed by the Assistant Commissioner to whom this matter has been delegated pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:4-34. Timely exceptions were filed both by the Keyport Board of Education (Board) and by petitioners,[1] with petitioners' April 27, 2004 submission also incorporating replies to the Board's April 26, 2004 exceptions. The Board additionally filed, on May 3, 2004, a timely reply to petitioners' exceptions, to which petitioners attempted to reply in turn through a May 5, 2004 submission not considered herein because applicable procedural rules make no provision for response to reply exceptions. N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

In their exceptions, petitioners urge the Commissioner to adopt that portion of the Initial Decision finding that they should not be assessed tuition, but to reject the portion finding that S.L. is not entitled to attend school in the Keyport school district (Keyport). Petitioners reiterate the statutory and regulatory citations on which they rely, N.J.S.A. 18A:38-

[1] Although this matter was filed and initially proceeded as though S.L. were a minor (Initial Decision at 1), documents on record show that, in fact, she had reached the age of majority prior to the beginning of the 2003-04 school year.

1(d), N.J.A.C. 6A:28-2.4(a)1ii and (a)1v, and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-2.5(a), again contending that they have been living in Keyport for over a year and are thus entitled to be found domiciled there, as proven by "over fifty (50) concrete evidences" they have provided from among the acceptable forms of documentation listed in rule. (Petitioners' Exceptions at 1-3) Petitioners also contend that they were unable to call key witnesses who are employees or students in the district, since these witnesses had been threatened with reprisal and consequently declined to appear (Id. at 3); that the attempt to remove S.L. from school is really about S.L.'s number-one student ranking and the district's desire to further the status of a competing non-minority student (documents on record, e.g., Exhibit P-4, indicate that petitioners are Chinese-American) with ties to district officials (Id. at 4, 9); that petitioners are not "free riders," since they own a home and pay taxes in the district (Id. at 4); that the district acts in a biased manner, treating students differently based on their racial, ethnic and economic status (Id. at 5,7-8, 9); that the district bases its residency investigations on "gossips and rumors" (Id. at 5); that the district has no procedures for dealing with residency disputes and wastes taxpayer money by hiring attorneys who cause delays and persist in fighting meritorious claims (Id. at 5-6, 8-9); that the Board attorney led witnesses and twisted facts (Id. At 7, 8); and that school officials did not handle petitioners' case in a confidential manner, so that numerous students have acted "to intimidate and violate S.L.'s privacy and safety in school," with the second-ranked student devising "several plans with some students to poison and stab S.L. and other severe misconducts" and other students "even [writing] curse words on S.L.'s name on the Senior Wall." (Id. at 9)

In reply, the Board counters that, while petitioners have made any number of vague, outrageous and even slanderous allegations, all in an unsupported attempt to deflect attention from the central issue in this matter, they have utterly failed to meet their burden of establishing that they are domiciled in Keyport so as to entitle S.L. to attend school there. (Board's Reply at 4) Rather, the Board posits, the record amply supports its contention that, while petitioners may have rented and eventually purchased a residence in Keyport, they did not actually live there (Id. at 1-2), and there is no basis whatsoever for the suggestion that the Board's witnesses, all of whom were found to be consistent and credible by the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ), were dishonest, biased or tainted by improper motives. (Id. at 3) The Board further points to petitioners' failure to understand that merely producing documents from the regulatory list of acceptable residency proofs does not entitle them to a finding of domicile without regard to the relevancy, credibility or reliability of the documents themselves and the existence of contrary evidence. (Id. at 2-3) Finally, the Board contends that petitioners' refusal to testify despite several admonitions by the ALJ entitles the Board to an adverse inference, since petitioners nowhere offer an explanation as to why they are (purportedly) living in Keyport rather than in one of the other residences owned by them, most notably the large family home in Holmdel where S.L.'s mother and siblings undisputedly reside. (Id. at 4)

In its own exceptions, the Board urges adoption of that portion of the Initial Decision finding that petitioners are not entitled to attend school in Keyport, but rejection of that portion declining to assess tuition for the period of S.L.'s ineligible attendance because the Board has not previously sought tuition when removing ineligible students from its schools. The Board initially urges the Commissioner to distinguish the instant matter from the past matters referenced by the ALJ, since, in those instances, the students in question left Keyport schools immediately upon being confronted with the district's evidence of their ineligibility; while petitioners, in contrast, persisted in fighting the district despite compelling evidence against them, seeking to delay resolution of the dispute in the interest of keeping S.L. enrolled in the district as long as possible and eventually compelling the Board to conduct a full hearing, contract for an outside investigator, litigate an administrative proceeding before the Commissioner, and continue to educate S.L. during the pendency of this appeal by operation of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1.

The Board further contends that assessment of tuition is mandatory under the language of the statute, but that, even if it were not, failure to assess tuition in the present instance would be particularly unjust, not only because petitioners have availed themselves of the benefit of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 and now seek to avoid its concomitant obligation, but also because the record clearly shows petitioners to have "engaged in a course of conduct intended to deceive school authoritiessince [S.L.'s initial enrollment] on January 8, 2003" through "an elaborate scam to disguise their true domicile." (Board's Exceptions at 2-6, quotations at 2 and 6) To permit petitioners to escape without consequence, the Board argues, is counter to public policy in that it "would send the wrong message to parents who may be considering enrolling their children in schools which they are not legally entitled to attend" and encourage "frivolous and meritless challenges [to Board residency determinations] without any potential risk." (Id. at 6)

In reply, petitioners counter that the Board's exceptions represent "the district's reluctance to resolve the issue and their malicious tendency to prolong and worsen the conflict." (Petitioners' Exceptions at 10) Petitioners urge that they should not be penalized for exercising their Constitutional right to contest an erroneous decision, and that doing so would additionally constitute racial discrimination since the other students who have been disenrolled because of residency/domicile ineligibility were all non-minority students and they were not assessed tuition; therefore, to assess petitioners discriminates against them as members of a minority race. (Id. at 5) Petitioners further contend that the Board and its attorney are responsible for prolonging the case by refusing to settle with them, taking excess time to prepare and respond to interrogatories, causing delays in the hearing itself, and ignoring their warnings that the Board would "incur a large amount of expenses" by continuing to fight their claims. (Id. at 6, 8-9) In fact, petitioners reiterate, the Board owes them money for classes that were wrongfully withheld from S.L. and because the Board refused to pay for out-of-district advanced education for S.L. as it did for other students; petitioners state that if they are assessed tuition, they will "assess the district for all of the extra expenses incurred by S.L.'s education and the taxes [they] paid to Keyport." (Id. at 7)

Upon careful and independent review of the record of this matter, the Assistant Commissioner determines to adopt in part and reject in part the decision of the ALJ.

Initially, the Assistant Commissioner fully concurs with the ALJ that petitioners have not met their burden of demonstrating that S.L. is entitled to attend school in Keyport pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1. Preliminarily, it is noted that petitioners do not even attempt to claim that they are domiciled in the district under the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a); clearly, the family's domicile under that provision has been, and continues to be, in Holmdel. However, notwithstanding petitioners' protestations to the contrary, the record is equally clear that petitioners are not domiciled in Keyport under the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(d) and its implementing rules. Indeed, what the record of this matter instead demonstrates is that petitioners were not living in Keyport at all until their residency was questioned by the district, whereupon they took up varying degrees of occupancy (or the semblance thereof) in properties owned or rented by them, to whatever extent they deemed necessary to counter the district's evolving inquiry.

Documentation on record, and testimony and evidence found credible by the ALJ, establish the following: Petitioners have, since 1999, owned a large family home in Holmdel, where V.L.'s wife and another daughter undisputedly reside. (Exhibit R-11 at 6) On September 4, 2001, S.L. was enrolled as a sophomore at Raritan High School in Hazlet Township, where V.L. subsequently represented to school officials that the family had been living in Holmdel, but was now buying a more affordable home in Hazlet as a result of "downsizing" following the tragic events of September 11, 2001 (Initial Decision at 3); however, the deed for the home in question shows it to have been purchased on August 28, 2001. (Exhibit R-7) Around December 2002-January 2003, an allegation was made to Hazlet school officials that S.L. was not living in the district, but rather in Holmdel, and the district determined to undertake an investigation. (Initial Decision at 3) During this same period, S.L. was suspended for three days and denied membership in the National Honor Society for stealing a fellow student's notebook (Board's Answer, Preliminary Notice of Ineligibility, Appendix G-1: Letter from Principal of Raritan High School, and Appendix G-2: Raritan High School Student Discipline Log); due to the intervening holiday, the final day of her suspension was January 3, 2003.

On or about January 6, 2003, V.L.'s wife tried to rent an apartment in Keyport for herself and S.L., but was denied because of insufficient credit information; she accused the site manager of racial discrimination. (Initial Decision at 6; Exhibits R-2 and R-11 at 8) Thereafter, V.L. returned to rent the apartment for himself and his daughter, apparently also inquiring about S.L. residing there alone, receiving a negative response because of S.L.'s age

(17) at the time. (Ibid.) V.L. obtained a lease dated January 8, 2003 (Exhibits R-2, P-62), and on the same date, S.L. was enrolled in the Keyport School District (Exhibit R-1). On January 10, 2003, S.L. was withdrawn from Raritan High School because the family was "moving." (Exhibit R-10) S.L. completed the 2002-03 school year (her junior year) in Keyport, returning for her senior year in 2003-04.

Toward the end of September 2003, allegations were made to Keyport school officials that S.L. did not reside in the district, but in Holmdel, and preliminary investigations conducted in late September through mid-October (Board's Answer, Preliminary Notice of Ineligibility, Appendix D: Curriculum Office Memo) raised sufficiently serious concern for district officials to continue and intensify their investigation. (Initial Decision at 4-5) On October 3, 2003, petitioners' Keyport apartment was entered by the apartment superintendent because of an overflowing toilet (the downstairs tenant had reported water coming through her ceiling, Exhibit R-11 at 9-10) and was found empty and with a meter reading indicating virtually no electricity usage (Initial Decision at 6). After the water leak incident, the site manager received "very angry visits and phone calls" from V.L., who accused her of racism and angrily rebuffed her inquiries as to why the apartment was empty; even after the water emergency was explained to him, V.L. contended that apartment officials had no right to enter his apartment and adamantly insisted that he be called at his office, at home and on his cell phone before anyone was allowed to enter his apartment under any circumstances. (Exhibit R-11 at 10) Mail at the apartment was picked up by V.L.'s wife, who engaged on one occasion in a dispute with the site manager and again accused her of racial discrimination. (Initial Decision at 6) The tenant living below petitioners' apartment never saw petitioners before the water leak incident, and only a few times after that, usually very late at night.

(Exhibit R-11 at 10-11; Initial Decision at 10) Petitioners' mail remained uncollected for long periods of time, and their parking space was always empty. (Exhibit R-11 at 9; Initial Decision at 10)

On October 28, 2003, S.L. was verbally notified that the school administrative staff had concluded she did not reside in the district (Petition of Appeal at 7); when petitioners persisted in their claim of entitlement, a formal written notice of preliminary ineligibility was issued on November 17, 2003 (Preliminary Notice of Ineligibility, submitted as an attachment to the Board's Answer), setting a Board hearing date of December 3, 2003 and indicating that while V.L.'s request to defer hearing for an entire month could not be granted, the Board would consider a brief delay for good cause.

On November 13, 2003, the local fire marshal entered the apartment because a smoke detector had been activated and no one answered the door; upon inspection, the alarm was found to have been set off by a dead battery, and the resulting inspection of the premises led him to conclude that the apartment was unoccupied, and had been since the time of its rental 10 months earlier. (Initial Decision at 7-8; Exhibit R-3) The marshal notified the school district of his findings (Exhibit R-3), whereupon he was called by V.L. who insisted that he did, in fact, live there.

At around this time, V.L. had the address on his driver's license changed from Holmdel to Keyport (Exhibit R-11 at 3; P-15); he also called the fire marshal again to invite him to return and re-inspect the apartment. (Initial Decision at 8) The marshal did so on January 6, 2004, this time finding the premises fully furnished and stocked with food and clothing consistent with occupation. (Exhibit P-51)

On December 17, 2003, petitioners' residency hearing was conducted before the Board, which voted unanimously to authorize S.L.'s disenrollment because her parents had not met their burden of proving domicile or residency in the district; the results of this hearing were memorialized in a formal written notice dated December 19, 2003. (Board's Answer, Notice of Disenrollment) The notice provided information about petitioners' rights of appeal to the Commissioner and continued attendance for S.L. during the pendency of such appeal, as well as advising that Board policy did not provide for attendance at school by non-residents and that tuition at the rate of $45.00 per day for S.L.'s period of ineligible attendance would be sought by the Board and could be assessed by the Commissioner through an order enforceable in court in accordance with referenced statutes and rules.

Petitioners elected to pursue the instant appeal, which was filed on January 5, 2004, served on the Board on January 12, 2004, and perfected with proof of service on January 15, 2004. In their pleadings and subsequent communications to both the Commissioner and the OAL, petitioners continued to claim they were residing in Keyport, attributing the Board's actions to racial prejudice, attempts to balance the school budget by extorting money from targeted families through improper investigations, bad faith on the part of ambitious, prejudiced administrators with animus toward petitioners, a discriminatory desire to see a Caucasian student named Valedictorian instead of S.L., and other similar motivations. The Board filed its Answer, Affirmative Defenses and Counterclaim for Tuition on January 16, 2004, and the matter was transmitted to OAL on January 20, 2004, where it was docketed on January 26, 2004 and assigned as set forth in the Initial Decision at 2. Disputes regarding interrogatories, which are reflected both in the interrogatories themselves (Exhibits J-3 through J-6) and various underlying communications, as well as a request for adjournment by petitioners (the validity of which was challenged by the Board), delayed the scheduled hearing; ultimately, the matter was heard on March 25 and March 26, when the record also closed.

Prior to the hearing, in February 2004, V.L. terminated the lease on his Keyport apartment, which he had recently requested to be converted to a month-by-month basis (Exhibits P-53, P-55); upon inspection following petitioners' vacation of the premises, the site manager found the apartment to be in rentable condition, looking as if it had never been lived in. (Initial Decision at 7) On February 23, 2004, V.L. purchased a house in the district (Exhibit P-2), where he and S.L. now claim to reside. Petitioners' Holmdel house was never put up for sale (Exhibit R-11 at 6); V.L.'s wife and another daughter undisputedly continued to reside there; and petitioners and their vehicles were regularly seen at the locale by a neighbor and during investigative observations. (Exhibit R-11 at 6-7, 13; Initial Decision at 9-10)

In conjunction with the instant appeal, in February 2004, the Board arranged for a licensed private investigator to look into petitioners' domicile. His final report dated March 16, 2004, concludes as follows:

> As of 3-16-04 the findings in this matter indicate that the permanent residence of [V.L. and S.L.] is [address redacted] Holmdel, NJ but that they have attempted to maintain an appearance of residency at both [address redacted] Hazlet and [address redacted] Green Grove Apartments, Keyport. More recently (since December) they have been staying in the Keyport apartment on an irregular basis.
> It appears [V.L. and his wife] have a pattern of bullying people and using threats of racial discrimination against people in order to pressure and persuade people to do what they want them to do as indicated by Mrs. Royle, the building manager of Green Grove and also the reaction of the Hispanic female after [V.L. and S.L.] interrupted our conversation on 3-18-04 at approximately 10:30pm. [See Initial Decision at 10 and Exhibit R-11 at 10-11.]

> It appears other than the months of December and January, [V.L. and S.L.] did not stay at the Keyport address. Shortly after the water leak incident in October of 2003, when it was discovered they were not staying in the apartment, [they] initially moved some limited pieces of furniture.
>
> The only witness I could find that stated they have seen and know of [V.L. and S.L.] residing at any of the "3" residences consistently during the past year is a neighbor, Barbara, who lives across the street from [V.L.'s] [address redacted] Holmdel address. Barbara stated she sees [V.L. and his wife] and the two daughters at the [address redacted] Holmdel residence on a steady basis but can not be more specific than that because she never bothered to take notice.
>
> It appears that no other neighbors, mailman, worker or maintenance personnel of the Hazlet or Keyport locations knows [V.L. or S.L.] or have seen them on a regular basis or even have seen or know of them at all.
>
> The only exception to this is the Hispanic female at [address redacted] Keyport who has only seen them irregularly and heard movement late at night in the apartment above her in the last 3-4 months since the water leak incident in October 2003.
> I have spoken to Mr. Royle on 2-25-03 (sic), who stated that [V.L.] has come to her office since my investigation and been very angry and threatening in his manner trying to find out what I was doing at Green Grove and what she stated to me. She also stated [V.L.] has questioned Mr. Petersen, the superintendent, and she also believes he has been trying to talk to the Hispanic female tenant about [my] investigation. Mrs. Royle states [V.L.] has made her very uncomfortable and concerned for her safety.

Against all of the above testimony, documentation and evidence, petitioners, who bear the burden of proof in this matter, offer nothing more in support of their claim than an array of documents which, while certainly of the type contemplated by N.J.A.C. 6A:28-2.5(a), have virtually no bearing on petitioners' residency status prior to mid-December 2003 at the earliest. Specifically, Exhibits P-2 (deed), P-3 (change of address card), and P-5 through P-9 (bills) all pertain to the home purchased by petitioners on February 24, 2004. Exhibits P-6 (phone bill), P-11 (credit card statement) and P-12 (bank statement) all date from January-February and apply to activity dating from December 2003 at the earliest; P-17 is a bank inquiry printout dating from December 12, 2003, but also indicating that as of that date the account reflected no prior activity, deposits or interest accrued. Exhibits P-10 and P-16 (letters) are undated. Exhibits P-13, P-21, P-53, P-55, P-56, P-61, P-62, and P-63 all pertain to rental of petitioners' Keyport apartment, not to whether they are actually living there. Exhibit P-18 is an electric bill for the Keyport apartment dated 12/18/03, showing the prior month's bill to have been $6.67, while the cost of usage from 11/18/03 to 12/17/03 totaled $11.96. Exhibits P-23 through P-46 are school-generated or school-related communications, on which use of V.L.'s Keyport address has no import given that this was the address provided to the school for contact with S.L. or her parent/guardian. Exhibit P-54's first part (S.L.'s voter registration) is dated 2/24/04, and its second part (V.L.'s voter registration) is dated 1/04/02, which even petitioners concede is an error since S.L. has never claimed residency in Keyport prior to January 8, 2003. (Exhibit J-5, Response to Interrogatory No. 8) The only other documents provided by petitioners are cancelled checks for a donation to the Keyport first aid squad dated 7/10/03 (Exhibit P-19) and a donation to the police benevolent fund dated 12/15/03 (Exhibit P-20); standing alone, however, these are of no probative value whatsoever.

While petitioners repeatedly argue that they have fully complied with the law, what the record actually demonstrates is a sustained, carefully contrived attempt to create the appearance of compliance; as found by the ALJ, "[t]he facts in this matter show that [V.L.] rented the Keyport apartment solely to show proof of residency," (Initial Decision at 14) and that any living in Keyport by petitioners prior to February 2004 was both sporadic and specifically in response to the Board's challenge to their claim of S.L.'s entitlement to attend school in the district.

Moreover, although there is some evidence that could be used to support a contention that petitioners have taken up occupancy of the Keyport home purchased on February 23, 2004, petitioners still cannot prevail in their claim. Even assuming, arguendo, that petitioners were staying with increased regularity at the Keyport apartment during and after December 2003-January 2004, and are now residing at the Keyport home, so as to raise the possibility of school attendance as a temporary resident under N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(d), it is by now well established that this provision may not be used to establish residency or domicile for the purpose of creating an entitlement to attend the schools of a district. Whasun Lee v. Board of Education of the Township of Holmdel, App. Div. A-653-95T5, decided October 9, 1996, slip opinion at 10-15. As set forth above, the record of this matter, together with the absence of any counterbalancing evidence due to petitioners' refusal to offer testimony on their own behalf despite repeated admonitions by the ALJ as to their burden of proof and the potentially deleterious impact of such refusal (Initial Decision at 14), leaves little room for doubt that this is precisely what petitioners herein have attempted to do.

Noting petitioners' arguments on exception, the Assistant Commissioner finds no basis whatsoever to reject the ALJ's credibility determinations, which must therefore be accepted pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(c). Further, the Assistant Commissioner is likewise satisfied that the ALJ appropriately weighed the testimony and evidence presented in light of the applicable burden of proof, which has clearly been misunderstood by petitioners who repeatedly attempt to shift it to the Board. (Initial Decision at 12) Additionally, the Assistant Commissioner finds that it was not inappropriate for the ALJ to have allowed testimony and evidence regarding petitioners' income and lifestyle under the circumstances (Initial Decision at 14); however, the Assistant Commissioner does not rely on such information in reaching his determination herein, in light of the overwhelming weight of other evidence demonstrating that petitioners are not entitled to have S.L. attend school in Keyport.

Moreover, in reviewing the Board's actions, the Assistant Commissioner finds nothing in the record to suggest that petitioners were treated unfairly or inappropriately; while it is clear that there is no love lost between certain school officials and petitioners, it is also clear that the Board did not single out petitioners for investigation (Initial Decision at 4-5) and that, once an administrative determination of ineligibility was made, the Board provided full due process at the local level and properly effectuated the provisions of N.J.A.C. 6A:28-2 et seq. Certainly, there is nothing that would even remotely suggest that the Board or its agents acted in a racially discriminatory manner, and the Board's concern about student ranking cannot be viewed as anything more than an entirely understandable desire to see that honors are awarded correctly and that the rights of lawfully entitled students are not compromised by persons conniving to attend school in the district on an illegal basis. (Exhibit J-6, Response to Interrogatory No. 10) With respect to petitioners' claims that the Board's "last minute actions" in S.L.'s senior year were "irresponsible, unreasonable, and unjust" (Petition of Appeal at 10), the Assistant Commissioner notes that the Board acted promptly to investigate and attempt to resolve this matter, and that such delay as may have occurred is primarily attributable to petitioners themselves, who understood the situation at least as early as October 28, 2003 (Petition of Appeal at 7), but persisted in the deliberately calculated and resistive course of conduct set forth above.

With respect to assessment of tuition, however, the Assistant Commissioner cannot concur with the ALJ that the Board is entitled to no payment at all because it has not previously sought back tuition from disenrolled students. Rather, the Assistant Commissioner concurs with the Board that petitioners' situation is distinguishable from that of students who withdraw immediately upon the school administration's notice of ineligibility, and in particular that it would be contrary to both public policy and legislative intent to permit a petitioner to invoke the protections of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 without being held responsible for its concomitant fiscal obligation if the petitioner does not prevail on appeal. Although the Board errs in arguing that the statutory language requiring assessment of tuition is mandatory in nature, so that the Commissioner has no discretion in this regard—an argument previously rejected by the State Board and the courts, as set forth in M.R.N. and K.H., on behalf of minor children, D.J.N. and J.M.N., v. Board of Education of the Flemington-Raritan Regional School District, Hunterdon County, decided by the Commissioner February 24, 2003, Slip Opinion at 13-14, as well as in N.J.A.C. 6A:28-2.10(d)—the Board is correct in concluding that no equitable basis exists herein for forgiveness of all tuition that would otherwise be due.

In this instance, it appears that the Board has both a history of past practice and an absence of written policy with respect to disenrollment issues resolved at the local level; therefore, notwithstanding petitioners' demonstrated contrivance in effectuating and maintaining S.L.'s illegal enrollment in Keyport, this fact militates against assessing tuition for the entire period of S.L.'s ineligible attendance in the district. However, tuition in this instance is appropriately assessed, for the reasons set forth above, at the stated rate of $45.00 a day ($8,100 ÷ 180 days in session) for the period beginning with the filing date of petitioners' appeal to the Commissioner (January 5, 2004) through the filing date of this decision.[2]

[2] The Assistant Commissioner finds no basis for consideration of petitioners' claims that they are entitled to tuition adjustment to compensate them for taxes, rental expenses, donations to local charities and the cost of community college classes allegedly necessitated by the district's purported inferior quality and inability or unwillingness to meet S.L.'s needs as a gifted student.

Finally, the Assistant Commissioner observes that while S.L. is clearly ineligible to attend school in Keyport pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 and petitioners must be held responsible for back tuition to the extent set forth above, ultimate resolution of this matter does pose something of a dilemma. S.L. is not now, and never has been, lawfully entitled to attend school in the district; but through a combination of circumstance, petitioners' machinations and the operation of statute, she has, as of the date of this decision, in fact attended school there for most of her senior year with the result that an unfortunate situation has arisen with respect to class rank and graduation ceremonies. Ordinarily, issuance of a Commissioner determination on student residency at this late point in the school year might result in a directive that a student be permitted to remain in the district on a tuition basis for the balance of the year, notwithstanding that the student is ineligible for attendance in the current district and immediately entitled to a free public education in his or her actual district of domicile. However, the particular circumstances of this matter are such that the Assistant Commissioner cannot in good conscience direct the Board to permit S.L. to remain in Keyport High School, thereby rewarding petitioners for their calculated deception and thwarting the Board's efforts to ensure fairness to its lawfully enrolled students. Instead, the Assistant Commissioner authorizes the Board, in its sole discretion, to make an exception to its established policy of not admitting non-resident students by permitting S.L. to remain in Keyport High School if she so chooses, subject to payment of tuition and such additional terms and conditions as may be set by the Board. In this regard, the Assistant Commissioner stresses that, by allowing the Board to permit S.L.'s continued attendance, he does not intend to create, and his decision herein should not be construed as compelling the Board to recognize, a concomitant entitlement on S.L.'s part to any rank, honor or privilege accorded to students lawfully attending school in the district.[3]

Accordingly, for the reasons set forth above, the Initial Decision of the OAL is adopted with respect to its determination that S.L. is not entitled to attend school in the respondent Board's district, but rejected with respect to its determination that no tuition may be assessed for any of the period of S.L.'s ineligible attendance. The Petition of Appeal is dismissed and petitioners are directed to remit tuition to the Board at the rate of $45.00 per day for the period extending from January 5, 2004 through the filing date of this decision.[4]

IT IS SO ORDERED.[5]

Isaac R. Bryant
ASSISTANT COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

Date of Decision: May 24, 2004
Date of Mailing: May 24, 2004

[3] The record of this matter is silent on the question of S.L.'s school attendance prior to entering Raritan High School in September 2001, and thus does not indicate if S.L. has ever attended school in her actual district of domicile (Holmdel). However, any difficulty for petitioners occasioned by that situation has been entirely created by their own determined efforts to fraudulently secure S.L.'s enrollment elsewhere, first in Hazlet Township and then in Keyport. Although certain aspects of this matter invite speculation as to the reasons for petitioners' subterfuge, findings in this regard are neither possible on the present record nor appropriate within the present context.

[4] Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:4-1.4(a), Commissioner decisions are deemed filed three days after the date of mailing to the parties.

[5] This decision may be appealed to the State Board of Education pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-27 et seq. and N.J.A.C. 6A:4-1.1 et seq.

INITIAL DECISION

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 8420-03

AGENCY DKT. NO. 99-3/03

(On Remand of OAL DKT. NO. EDU 2566-03)

M.F., ON BEHALF OF MINOR CHILDREN, K.F. AND K.F.,

v.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF ATLANTIC HIGHLANDS, MONMOUTH COUNTY,

Respondent.

M.F., petitioner, pro se

R. Armen McOmber, Esq., for respondent (McOmber & McOmber, attorneys)

Record Closed: February 23, 2004 Decided: April 8, 2004

BEFORE JOSEPH F. MARTONE, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

In this matter, petitioner challenges respondent Board of Education's determination as to residency. The original matter having OAL Dkt. No. EDU 2566-03 was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on May 5, 2003, for hearing as a contested case. The hearing took place on July 1, 2003, and by an Initial Decision issued on August 7, 2003, I concluded that respondent's determination that petitioner and her children are residents and domiciliaries of Sea Bright, New Jersey, and not of Atlantic Highlands, New Jersey, was affirmed and petitioner's appeal was dismissed.

By Decision dated September 22, 2003, the Commissioner of Education adopted the Initial Decision with modification. The Commissioner rejected the conclusion that in the absence of the filing of a counterclaim for tuition the school district was not entitled to collect such compensation for the period of the children's ineligible attendance in its schools. Thus, the Commissioner remanded the matter solely to determine the amount of tuition due the school district for the period of ineligible attendance.

The matter on remand was then transmitted to the OAL on November 13, 2004, and a hearing was scheduled for January 7, 2004.

On December 15, 2003, prior to the scheduled hearing, attorney for respondent school district filed a motion for summary decision, a copy of which was sent to James J. McGuire, Jr., Esq., as the attorney for M.F. On January 6, 2004, James J. McGuire, Jr., Esq., entered an appearance in this matter and requested an adjournment of the hearing to permit preparation for the hearing and settlement discussions. The adjournment request was granted on the condition that petitioner respond to the summary decision motion within 30 days. When no response to the summary decision motion was received by February 23, 2004, I closed the record. By letter dated February 27, 2004, Mr. McGuire stated that he was no longer representing M.F. in this matter.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

In my Initial Decision in this matter dated August 7, 2003, I affirmed the determination of the respondent Board of Education that petitioner and her children are residents and domiciliaries of Sea Bright, New Jersey, and not of Atlantic Highlands, New Jersey, from and after January 12, 2003. That portion of the Initial Decision was affirmed by the Commissioner of Education by Decision dated September 22, 2003.

In support of its motion for summary decision in this matter, respondent relies on the Certification of Denise C. Friedman, Board Secretary/School Business Administrator employed by the Board of Education of the Borough of Atlantic Highlands. In her Certification, Ms. Friedman states:

> 3. Specifically, I have been requested to provide the total annual per pupil cost to the Board of Education for both students for a period commencing January 12, 2003 and ending June 24, 2003, a period which included 105 school days.
>
> 4. The first student, K.F., attended Atlantic Highlands Elementary School in a learning disabled class. The estimated calculation rate contained in the State budget for said class is $11,232.00 per year; $62.40 per diem. This rate will be certified by the State later this year. Therefore, the amount of tuition owed to the Board of Education for this student is $6,552.00, which represents 105 days multiplied by the per diem rate.
>
> 5. The second student, also with the initials of K.F., attended the Atlantic Highlands Elementary School in a regular education class. The estimated calculation rate contained in the State budget for said class is $9,491.00 per year; $52.73 per diem. This rate will also be certified by the State later this year. Therefore, the amount of tuition owed to the Board of Education for this student is $5,536.65, which represents 105 school days multiplied by the per diem rate.
>
> 6. Accordingly, the total tuition amount owed by M.F. to the Board of Education is $12,088.65.

LEGAL DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS

A motion for summary decision is governed by N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b) which provides as follows:

> (b) . . . The decision sought may be rendered if the papers and discovery which have been filed, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law. When a motion for summary decision is made and supported, an adverse party in order to prevail must by responding affidavit set forth specific facts showing that there is a genuine issue which can only be determined in an evidentiary proceeding.

This standard is substantially similar to the standard governing a motion for summary judgment in civil litigation under Rule 4:46-2. See, Brill v. Guardian Life Ins. Co., 142 N.J. 520, (1995); Contini v. Bd. of Educ. of Newark, 286 N.J. Super. 106, 121 (App. Div. 1995). Applying this standard, the ALJ must determine whether the competent evidential materials presented, when viewed in the light most favorable to the non-moving party in consideration of the applicable evidentiary standard, are sufficient to permit a rational fact finder to resolve the alleged disputed issue in favor of the non-moving party. Contini at 122 (citing Brill, supra, 142 N.J. at 523).

As can be seen from the language of N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b), the petitioner, as the adverse party, is obligated to submit a responding affidavit to set forth specific facts showing that there is a genuine issue which can only be determined in an evidentiary proceeding when a motion for summary decision is made and supported. Even though petitioner was given an extended period of time to do so, no such responding affidavit was ever submitted. Therefore, if the respondent's motion is properly supported by the undisputed facts and is consistent with the law, it should be granted.

The authority for the imposition of the obligation to pay tuition is found in N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1a(2) which provides in relevant part:

> If in the judgment of the commissioner the evidence does not support the claim of the parent or guardian, the commissioner shall assess the parent or guardian tuition for the student prorated to the time of the student's ineligible attendance in the schools of the district. Tuition shall be computed on the basis of 1/180 of the total annual per pupil cost to the local district multiplied by the number of days of ineligible attendance and shall be collected in the manner in which orders of the commissioner are enforced.

The implementing regulation of the Department of Education dealing with the assessment and calculation of tuition when an appeal is filed is found at N.J.A.C. 6A:28-2.10(b) and (c), and provides as follows:

> (b) If an appeal to the Commissioner is filed, where the appellant does not sustain the burden of demonstrating entitlement to attend the schools of the district, or abandons the appeal through withdrawal, failure to prosecute or any means other than settlement agreeing to waive or reduce tuition, the Commissioner may assess tuition for any period of a student's ineligible attendance in a district, including the 21-day period for filing of an appeal and the period during which the hearing and decision on appeal were pending.
> (c) Tuition assessed pursuant to the provisions of this section shall be calculated on a per student basis for the period of a student's ineligible enrollment, by applicable grade/program category and consistent with the provisions of N.J.A.C. 6:20-3.1(e). The individual student's record of daily attendance shall not impact on such calculation.

It is undisputed that M.F.'s two children, K.F. attended school at respondent's school district for a period commencing January 12, 2003 and ending June 24, 2003, a period which included 105 school days. It is also undisputed that the first student, K.F., attended Atlantic Highlands Elementary School in a learning disabled class, and that the estimated calculation rate contained in the State budget for said class is $11,232.00 per year; $62.40 per diem. This rate is to be certified by the State later in the year. Therefore, I FIND that the amount of tuition owed to the Board of Education for this student is $6,552.00, which represents 105 days multiplied by the per diem rate.

It is undisputed that the second student, also with the initials of K.F., attended the Atlantic Highlands Elementary School in a regular education class. It is also undisputed that the estimated calculation rate contained in the State budget for said class is $9,491.00 per year; $52.73 per diem. This rate will also be certified by the State later this year. Therefore, I FIND that the amount of tuition owed to the Board of Education for this student is $5,536.65, which represents 105 school days multiplied by the per diem rate.

Based upon the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that the total tuition amount owed by M.F. to the respondent Board of Education pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1a(2) and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-2.10(b) and (c), is $12,088.65.

DECISION AND ORDER

Based on the determination that petitioner and her two children were residents and domiciliaries of Sea Bright, New Jersey, and not of Atlantic Highlands, New Jersey, during the children's attendance at Atlantic Highlands Elementary School, it is ORDERED that M.F. is obligated to pay tuition to respondent Board of Education in the amount of $12,088.65.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

CONFIDENTIAL
SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT AND MUTUAL RELEASE

This Settlement Agreement and Mutual Release (hereinafter "Agreement"), dated March 23, 2004, is by and between the Union City Board of Education, which is located at 3912 Bergen Turnpike, Union City, New Jersey 07087, ("Board" or "Petitioner"), and Charles Trelease, whose address is 1514 Bergenline Avenue, Union City, New Jersey 07087 ("Trelease" or "Respondent").

1. Background and Purposes of Agreement.

1.1 Trelease is a carpenter employed by the Board.

1.2 Issues arose regarding Trelease's employment that gave rise to an action before the Commissioner of Education, which was transferred to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case. The case is assigned to the Honorable Diana C. Sukovich, A.L.J., and it is captioned Trelease, Charles, Union City School District, Hudson County, OAL Docket No. EDU 11337-03, Agency Docket No. 398-11/03 (hereinafter the "Action").

1.3 Both the Board and Trelease have determined that it is in their mutual best interest to enter into this Agreement and thereby a) amicably resolve all issues in dispute asserted in the Action, or which could have been asserted in the Action, either by way of claim or defense, without any admission of liability or wrongdoing, and b) dismiss the Action with prejudice and without costs.

1.4 The justifications for settlement of this matter include:

1.4.1 The uncertainty of litigation.

1.4.2 The unavailability of witnesses the Board will require to prove its case against Trelease.

1.4.3 Trelease has asserted various medical conditions as a defense to certain of the charges at issue.

1.4.4 The settlement of this Action is in the public interest for all of the above reasons, and settlement will avoid costly, protracted litigation, the outcome of which is uncertain, during which time the Board will be required to pay salary and provide benefits to Trelease. The expeditious settlement of this matter will eliminate or reduce a significant expense to the taxpayers.

2. Settlement.

The Action is settled in its entirety, subject to the following terms:

2.1 Respondent hereby irrevocably resigns as a Board employee effective June 30, 2004. Trelease shall provide the Board with a resignation letter consistent with this paragraph upon his execution of this agreement.

2.2 Respondent will be paid his salary due for March 2004.

2.3 Respondent will be paid $10,000 in three equal installment payments for April, May, and June 2004.

2.4 Respondent will be paid health insurance through June 30, 2004 at midnight.

2.5 Respondent will be paid for any remaining unpaid time for October 2003.

2.6 Respondent is free to work at any employment although he is on terminal leave.

2.7 The Board shall maintain Trelease's medical benefits through June 30, 2004.

2.8 If the Board receives any inquires regarding Trelease's employment with the Board, it will provide only such information which is consistent with the Board's standard policy, which is date of hire, and date of resignation.

2.9 Upon approval of this Agreement by the Commissioner of Education, the Board will remove all disciplinary materials from Trelease's personnel file. This settlement agreement will be maintained in Trelease's personnel file.

2.10 Trelease will not re-apply for employment by the Board.

2.11 The Board shall dismiss the Action with prejudice.

3. No Representations as To Tax Consequences.

3.1 The settlement payment referenced above will be reflected on Internal Revenue forms to be issued to Trelease, and filed with the IRS indicating that the sum set forth above has been paid to Trelease as other income. The Board makes no representation as to the tax consequences of any payment hereunder.

3.2 Trelease acknowledges and agrees that he will be responsible for the payment of all applicable state, federal and local taxes with respect to payments under this Agreement, and that he assumes full responsibility and liability with respect to same. Trelease further agrees that if the IRS, or other taxing authority, deems any tax, interest, penalties, or other amounts to be due from the Board with respect to the above referenced settlement payments, Trelease will fully indemnify and hold the Board harmless for any sums the Board may be required to pay.

4. Complete Release.

4.1 Trelease releases and gives up any and all claims and rights that he has or may have against the Board, or any of its officials, officers, representatives or employees, including, but not limited to, any claim of liability, damages or attorneys' fees. This release includes all claims, including those of which Trelease is not aware and those not mentioned in this Release. This Release applies to all claims resulting from anything that has happened up to now.

4.2.1 Any and all claims which were brought or could have been brought or arising:

i) under the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination, N.J.S.A. 10:5-1, et seq. xi) under any federal or state statute, rule or regulation or common law.

4.3 The Board releases and gives up any and all claims and rights that it may have against Trelease, including, but not limited to, any claim of liability, damages or attorneys' fees arising out of the Action. This release includes all claims, including those of which the Board is not aware and those not mentioned in this Release. This Release applies to all claims resulting from anything that has happened up to now.

5. Who is Bound.

Trelease is bound by this Release. Anyone who succeeds to Trelease's rights and responsibilities, such as heirs or the executors of Trelease's respective individual estates, are also bound. This Release is made for the benefit of the Board and all who succeed to its rights and responsibilities.

6. No Disparaging Statements.

Trelease agrees that he will not make any statement(s) that has, have, or can be expected to have the effect of disparaging the Board and/or its employees or agents. The Board, as an entity, will not make or adopt any statement(s) that has, have, or can be expected to have the effect of disparaging Trelease.

7. Fair Representation.

Trelease represents and warrants that Alfred F. Maurice, Esq. has represented him fully, fairly, and without bias in connection with the Action.

8. Consultation with an Attorney.

Trelease has consulted with his attorney with respect to this Agreement, and reviewed with his attorney all the terms and conditions of this Agreement before signing this Agreement.

9. Complete Agreement.

This Agreement contains the entire agreement between the Board and Trelease with respect to the subject matter, and supersedes all prior agreements or understandings dealing with the same subject matter. There is no agreement on the part of the Board or Trelease to do anything other than as is expressly stated in this Agreement.

10. Choice of Law.

This Agreement shall in all respects be interpreted, enforced and governed by the laws of the State of New Jersey.

11. Modification.

No modification or amendment of this Agreement will be enforceable unless it is in writing and signed by the party to be charged.

12. Approval by Commissioner of Education and OAL.

The enforceability of this Agreement, except as set forth in the remainder of this paragraph, is conditioned upon approval by the Administrative Law Judge assigned to the Action, and, if required by law, including N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6, the Commissioner of Education. If the Commissioner of Education does not approve this Agreement, Trelease shall return the payment made under paragraph 2.2 to the Board. If Trelease fails to do so, Trelease hereby agrees that the Board may deduct the payment made pursuant to paragraph 2.2 from any compensation the Board is obligated to pay Trelease upon the expiration of the 120 day period set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14.

13. Attestation of Trelease.

Trelease represents and warrants that he has carefully read each and every provision of this Agreement, and that he fully understands all of the terms and conditions contained in each provision of this Agreement. Trelease represents and warrants that he enters into this Agreement voluntarily, of his own free will, without any pressure or coercion from any person or entity whatsoever.

14. Negotiated Agreement; No Construction Against Any Party.

This Agreement was not drafted by any of the parties, but rather is the result of negotiations among the parties with the benefit of their attorneys. Each party to this Agreement read this Agreement and has freely and voluntarily executed it. No ambiguity that may arise in this Agreement shall be resolved by construing the Agreement against either of the parties as drafter of same.

15. Confidentiality and Non-Disclosure.

Unless consent is granted by the other party to this Agreement, neither Trelease nor the Board, nor their attorneys shall disclose this Agreement or discuss the terms hereof with any third party. However, the information in this Agreement may be communicated to the parties' attorneys, tax advisors, and financial advisers. If either party or their attorney receives an inquiry from any third party about the Action or this Agreement, he shall respond by saying only that "the matter has been settled." The parties agree and understand the confidentiality requirements of this paragraph are a material inducement to their consent to this Agreement, and that a violation of these confidentiality requirements will be deemed a material breach of this Agreement.

16. Formal Approval.

The Board shall not be bound by this Agreement until it has been formally approved by Resolution of the Board, and duly executed by all parties.

17. Execution in Counterparts. This Agreement may be signed in separate counterparts, each of which shall be deemed a duplicate original, but all of which together shall constitute one and the same instrument.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the parties hereto have caused this Agreement to be duly executed compensation pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1. The petition consisted of two separate counts, one pertaining to the above referenced statute and the second respecting a suspension imposed upon petitioner.

In November 2002 Assignment Judge Thomas E. Clancy, to whom the matter originally was assigned, placed the case on the inactive list in light of a pending worker's compensation action between the parties. However, since the second count did not concern that element it was assigned to me for plenary hearing. Thereafter, various hearing dates were adjourned as the parties seriously were exploring the possibility of settlement. New hearing dates of September 20, 2004 and September 21, 2004 ultimately were established.

However, counsel now have submitted a Settlement Agreement in which they have agreed that the petitioner would withdraw, with prejudice, his petition to the Commissioner contingent upon compliance by the Board with certain conditions set forth in the agreement respecting payment of salary between June and October 2002, together with accumulated sick leave and vacation pay, if any. The Settlement Agreement also makes reference to a case pending before the Public Employment Relations Commission (Dkt. No. TI-H-2002-05).

I have reviewed the Settlement Agreement and the terms thereof and FIND as follows.

1. The parties voluntarily have agreed to the settlement as evidenced by the signatures contained thereon.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy between the parties and is consistent with law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and, therefore,

ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be CONCLUDED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF ANTONIO LEWIS,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
SCHOOL DISTRICT OF ASBURY PARK,	:	DECISION
MONMOUTH COUNTY.	:

SYNOPSIS

The Board brought "Disciplinary Charges" of unbecoming conduct, incapacity and conduct detrimental to a thorough and efficient education against respondent superintendent.

The ALJ determined that the Board's Count One was a charge of "inefficiency" as the Legislature uses the word in N.J.S.A. 18A:17-20.2. The ALJ found, however, that there was no record that the Board complied with legislatively required procedures requiring notice and an opportunity for improvement before a board may prosecute a charge of inefficiency. The ALJ dismissed Count One.

The Commissioner concurred with the ALJ that the charges comprising Count One were properly categorized as ones of inefficiency and had to be dismissed for the Board's failure to comply with the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11. With respect to Count Two, the Commissioner determined that the charge, even if true, standing alone was insufficient to warrant respondent's dismissal or reduction in salary. The Commissioner, therefore, dismissed Count Two. The Commissioner directed that the Board immediately reinstate respondent to his position of superintendent with full pay from the first day of his suspension.

This synopsis is not part of the Commissioner's decision. It has been prepared for the convenience of the reader. It has been neither reviewed nor approved by the Commissioner.

INITIAL DECISION

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 921-04

AGENCY DKT. NO. 42-2/04

IN THE MATTER OF TENURE CHARGES BROUGHT AGAINST ANTONIO LEWIS, SUPERINTENDENT OF THE ASBURY PARK SCHOOL DISTRICT

Raymond L. Hamlin, Esq., for petitioner Asbury Park Board of Education (Hunt, Hamlin & Ridley, attorneys)

Salvatore Perillo, Esq., for respondent Antonio Lewis, Ed.D. (Perskie, Nehmad & Perillo, attorneys)

Record closed: April 1, 2004 Decided: April 6, 2004

BEFORE JOHN R. TASSINI, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The Asbury Park Board of Education (BOE) brings "Disciplinary Charges" against respondent Antonio Lewis, Ed.D., its superintendent of schools, whom it has suspended without pay. In "Count One," the BOE alleges that the respondent failed to properly and effectively lead, supervise, and manage the Asbury Park school system. On this basis, the BOE claims that he should be dismissed from its employment. In "Count Two," the BOE alleges that the respondent participated "in a decision to circumvent N.J.S.A. 18A:17-20.1" (which governs contracts with and appointments of superintendents), resulting in an "invalid" contract that increased his salary and extended his term of employment, and the BOE alleges that he failed to "inform" the BOE that it should "rescind" that contract. P-1; P-4; see also N.J.S.A. 18A:17-20, -20.2; N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.1. The BOE characterizes its charges as "conduct unbecoming an employee, incapacity and conduct which has been detrimental to a thorough and efficient education of the students of the Asbury Park school district." P-1. The BOE does not characterize its charges as "inefficiency," for which education laws require extensive procedures and timelines, to allow the employee an opportunity to improve and eliminate deficiency, before prosecution. N.J.S.A. 18A:17-20.2; see N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11; N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.1(c).

Respondent denies that he is guilty of the charges. He also alleges that the BOE wrongfully usurped his statutory power as superintendent; interfered with and prevented his proper and effective management of the school system; held him accountable for conditions beyond his control; and, by bringing the above-described charges, damaged his reputation. He also contends that the BOE, in its evaluation of his performance and in charging and suspending him, violated education laws and the Open Public Meetings Act, by failing to give him notice of the meeting when it acted on the charges. See N.J.S.A. 10:4-9; N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11, -13; N.J.S.A. 18A:17-20, -20.3; N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.1(c). In a petition for emergent relief, (A) citing N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6, respondent moved for an order staying the BOE's order of suspension; (B) citing N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16, he demanded a decision dismissing the charges as not sufficient to warrant his dismissal; and (C) citing N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14, he demanded an order requiring the BOE to pay his salary from the time it suspended him. R-1.

The Commissioner of the Department of Education (Department) decided that respondent failed to satisfy standards for emergent relief. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9. However, the Commissioner also determined that, notwithstanding the BOE's characterization of its charges, the charges may constitute charges of inefficiency. Further, the Commissioner determined that respondent's petition should be treated as a motion for an order dismissing the charges because of the BOE's alleged failure to comply with requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11 and N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.1(c) for prosecution of charges of inefficiency. The Commissioner directed the BOE to respond to that motion, and the Commissioner transmitted the case here for a decision on (1) whether the BOE's charges constitute charges of inefficiency, and (2) whether the charges should be dismissed because of failure to comply with the statutory and regulatory requirements. R-2. The BOE opposes the motion.

THE RECORD AND
PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The record and procedural history are intertwined and are set forth together.

(1) Pursuant to a contract dated April 10, 2000, the BOE, which operates an "Abbott district," began to employ respondent as the superintendent of its district for a term of three years at an annual salary of $125,000, plus increases on the base salary, a merit bonus for meeting goals established by the BOE, or a greater merit bonus for exceeding goals established by the BOE. P-2C; N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-3, "Abbott district"; see also N.J.S.A. 18A:17-20.

(2) The BOE alleges that, although adequate Open Public Meetings Act notice had not been provided, the preceding BOE held a Special Meeting during which it purported to approve a contract with the respondent, increasing his salary and extending his term, but without rescinding their existing contract. See N.J.S.A. 10:4-8(d), -9, -10, -12(b)(8), -14; see also N.J.S.A. 18A:17-16. (The BOE has not specified the date of the alleged meeting and has not submitted any record, e.g., minutes, from which the date of the alleged meeting can be identified. The BOE also has not filed a Superior Court complaint in lieu of prerogative writ to void the action taken during such a meeting, and it has not represented whether and when the preceding BOE took corrective or remedial action by acting de novo at a public meeting held in conformity with the Act and other applicable law regarding the purported approval of another contract with respondent. See N.J.S.A. 10:4-15.)

(3) In a memorandum to respondent dated November 23, 2001, Nicholas Celso III, the BOE's previous attorney, wrote the following:

> Tony, after we spoke, it occurred to me that the [BOE] cannot take action at a Special Meeting unless the specific item to be acted on > was advertised with the meeting notice. Therefore, if your contract was not advertised as an item to be considered and acted upon, any action by the [BOE] would be null and void. This should be done at a Regular Meeting.

>
> > Resolved, that the Employment Contract dated April 10, 2000, between [respondent] and the [BOE] is rescinded and the [BOE] hereby approves a new Employment Contract with [respondent] for the period, July 1, 2001 through June 30, 2006, at the annual base salary of $135,000, subject to the remaining terms and conditions set forth therein. Be it further resolved, that the [BOE] President and Secretary are hereby authorized to execute said Contract on behalf of the [BOE].
>
> [P-2D, emphasis added.]

The BOE has not filed a complaint in Superior Court to void any act as violative of the Open Public Meetings Act.

(4) The minutes for the BOE's December 20, 2001, meeting show the following: Adequate Open Public Meetings Act notice had been given. The BOE adjourned to Closed Session to discuss matters exempted from public discussion by the Act and as announced prior to entering Closed Session. On a motion to approve based on the recommendations of the Personnel Committee, the BOE approved, "Aye: 8, Nay: 0, Abstain: 0," "a new contract for the Superintendent effective July 1, 2001 through June 30, 2006," and on a motion to approve based on the recommendations of the Personnel Committee, it approved, "Aye: 7, Nay: 0, Abstain: 1," "the new terms and conditions of the Superintendent's contract as outlined by [the BOE's] counsel." P-2E.

(5) On March 26, 2002, Adrienne Sanders, then the BOE's president, and respondent executed the "Superintendent's Contract," which stated the following: The contract was "entered into on the 20th of December, 2001." P-2F. The term of employment of the superintendent would be July 1, 2001, to June 30, 2006. The superintendent's salary would be $150,000, plus salary increases of 5% for each year of the contract, plus merit pay bonuses, plus other benefits. The BOE would evaluate the superintendent's performance at least once a year as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:17-20.3(a). The evaluation would be based on the district's goals and objectives, the superintendent's responsibilities as set forth in the superintendent's job description, and criteria established by State regulations. The evaluation would be written and include areas of commendation and recommendations and direction as to any area in which improvement is expected. A copy of the evaluation would be provided to the superintendent and the BOE would meet to discuss findings before the BOE takes final action. In the event the BOE determined that the superintendent's performance was unsatisfactory, it would describe specific instances of unsatisfactory performance in writing and in detail and provide recommendations for improvement. The superintendent shall have the right to respond in writing to evaluations. The contract could be terminated (a) by the parties' mutual agreement, (b) by the superintendent's 90 days' written notification to the BOE, (c) by "Notification in writing by the [BOE] to the Superintendent at least one year prior to the expiration of this Contract of the [BOE's] intent not to renew this employment Contract, as required by law," and (d) during the term of the agreement, the BOE may terminate the superintendent's employment only for good cause as defined by N.J.S.A. 18A:17-20.2 in accordance with the procedures of the tenure hearing laws, N.J.S.A. 17A:6-9. P-2F.

(6) On April 14, 2003, Donald Warner, Ed.D., prepared an Evaluation Summary Report relative to respondent's performance for the BOE. See N.J.S.A. 18A:17-20.3.

(7) Respondent's responses to the Evaluation Summary Report included the following: Contrary to law, including N.J.S.A. 10:4-12(b), he was not given notice that the BOE would consider his employment and evaluation of his performance and he was not afforded notice, information and a reasonable opportunity to choose whether the BOE's discussion of his employment should be public. Consequently, the BOE's evaluation was invalid. BOE policy 1240 states that the annual summary conference between the BOE and the superintendent shall be held in private unless the superintendent requests that it be public, and he did not consent to Dr. Warner's viewing his evaluation or Dr. Warner's presence during the BOE's evaluation. Only five of the nine BOE members participated in the evaluation process and, although a majority, that showed a "serious split" in the BOE. Relative to "Progress Toward District Goals and Objectives," he responded extensively. R-1B. He wrote, for example, that since the BOE had failed to set "goals and objectives," he shared his goals with the BOE, but the BOE failed to engage in meaningful discussion with him at the end of the 2001-02 school year or the beginning of the 2002-03 school year. See N.J.S.A. 18A:17-20.3(a). He wrote also, for example, that to address low test scores he instituted research-based Whole School Reform models (Pre-K through 12), readily accepted by experts, and ensured that instructors had all that was needed to implement curriculum. R-1B. To address the comment that there was no professional development plan in the district, he attached the current plan. He wrote that the process used in hiring staff had been explained to the BOE members at length and on several occasions and highlighted certain aspects of it. With his response he submitted the following documents: "1. Goals and Objectives, 2. Grants, 3. Technology, 4. Instructional Leadership, 5. News Releases, 6. Curriculum, 7. Conditional Certification, 8. Parental Involvement, 9. Teaching Supplies, 10. Community, 11. Professional Development 2002-02," and noted that it was "partial documentation." R-1B.

(8) In a letter to the BOE and others dated April 23, 2003, Dwight R. Pfennig, Ed.D., Deputy Commissioner of the Department, wrote that there may have been "procedural and/or legal irregularities in preparing and distributing the evaluation" (of the respondent's performance) at the BOE's April 14, 2003, meeting, and of particular concern were:

> 1. The proper (Rice) notice being provided for the Superintendent, indicating the Board's desire to discuss his evaluation in executive session and his option to have that discussion conducted in public.
>
> 2. The Board of Education's instructions directing Dr. Lewis to forward his response/rebuttal to the homes of Board of Education members.
>
> 3. The rejection of New Jersey School Board Association assistance in the evaluative process, and the securing of an independent consultant, Dr. Donald Warner, to assist the Board in the evaluative process.
>
> 4. The absence of the evaluative opinions of four Board of Education members in the construction of the evaluation that clearly "cuts across" support and non-support lines of the Superintendent.
>
> 5. The unprofessional presentation of the written evaluation.

> 6. The potential for litigation concerning the Superintendent's evaluation that may have a serious negative impact on the budget of the Asbury Park School District.

Deputy Commissioner Pfennig also wrote that on December 23, 2002, he had provided summary notes from the December 16, 2002, executive session of the BOE, in which he stated: "The conduct of [BOE] members in approving the administrative recommendations of the Superintendent and the appropriate conduct of [BOE] members in public and non-public meetings indicate the need for training in boardsmanship." Nonetheless, recent events relating to the BOE's evaluation of the respondent showed that the BOE had not heeded the Department's concerns and suggestions. He and other Department officials expected to meet with the BOE on May 15, 2003, to solve the BOE's "serious governance issues." R-1A.

(9) The respondent alleges the following: In 2003 the Department completed an evaluation of the Asbury Park school district to determine if it was meeting standards required by education laws, and in June 2003 the Department conducted a reevaluation of the school district's conditional certification, which the Department reported in a "Status Review of the Conditional Certification of the Asbury Park School District." In the Status Review the Department criticized the BOE's "improper and illegal interference in personnel decisions and [criticized] other actions by [BOE] members which were ill advised and in violation of [BOE] Policy." In the Status Review the Department recommended that the Asbury Park school district be directed to enter the "Level II" evaluation process, which is based on a district's failure to show sufficient progress toward achieving the thoroughness and efficiency standards established pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-4. R-1; see also N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-14; N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-4; N.J.A.C. 6A:30-1.1 to -3.5.

(10) In response to the Status Review, the respondent proposed and the BOE adopted a "Corrective Action Plan." R-1.

(11) On December 10, 2003, the BOE held a Special Meeting during which it decided to bring the "Disciplinary Charges": "conduct unbecoming an employee, incapacity and conduct which has been detrimental to a thorough and efficient education for the students of the Asbury Park School District." P-1; see N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.1. The respondent contends that, because the BOE had not given prior notice of what action it could take, it violated the Open Public Meetings Act. N.J.S.A. 10:4-15.

(12) On December 15, 2003, Raymond Palmer, the BOE's current president, signed a "Statement of Evidence in Support of Charges" (with exhibits attached) relative to the following (numbered) "Disciplinary Charges" and allegations charges against petitioner. P-1; P-2. 1. The BOE alleges that respondent failed to ensure that the district maintained certification. 2. The BOE alleges that respondent failed to ensure that the district developed and implemented curriculum consistent with the Department's requirements. 3. The BOE alleges that the respondent failed to ensure that the curriculum was provided to its staff. 4. The BOE alleges that the respondent failed to ensure that the curriculum was fully implemented in all areas. 5. The BOE alleges that the respondent failed to ensure that the curriculum was fully articulated across all grades consistent with the Department's standards. 6. The BOE alleges that the respondent failed to ensure that ESPA standards in Language Arts Literacy and Math have been met consistent with the Department's standards. 7. The BOE alleges that the respondent failed to ensure that GEPA standards in Language Arts Literacy, Math and Science have been met consistent with the Department's standards. 8. The BOE alleges that the respondent failed to ensure that HSPA standards in Language Arts Literacy and Math have been met consistent with the Department's standards. 9. The BOE alleges that the respondent failed to ensure that all teaching staff members employed or recommended for employment within the BOE were appropriately certified consistent with the Department's standards. 10. The BOE alleges that the respondent failed to ensure that all monthly fiscal reports created, drafted, approved and/or provided for review were certified as accurate consistent with the Department's standards. 11. The BOE alleges that the respondent failed to communicate with BOE members about the Commissioner's recommendation that the conditional certification granted to the school district be rescinded and that Level II Monitoring be implemented. 12. The BOE alleges that respondent participated in the decision to circumvent N.J.S.A. 18A:17-20.1 (which governs reappointment of superintendents). 13. The BOE alleges that the respondent failed to set or achieve goals as the chief school administrator. 14. The BOE alleges that the respondent failed to lead the district in a manner reasonably expected. 15. The BOE alleges that the respondent failed to correct deficiencies identified in the May 13, 2002, Level II evaluation. 16. The BOE alleges that the respondent failed to ensure that the district's students have a safe learning environment. 17. The BOE alleges that the respondent's action and inaction violated its policy, expectations and standards, and alleges that the respondent's action and inaction caused the district's performance in standardized tests to be the worst in the state of New Jersey. 18. The BOE alleges that respondent's "failure to effectively direct, discipline and manage the Asbury Park School District" caused the district's above-described poor performance. P-1; P-4. That is, numbers 1 to 11 and 13 to 18 relate to the above-described "Count One," and number 12 relates to "Count Two," in the charges filed with the Commissioner on February 4, 2004. P-4.

(13) On December 17, 2003, the BOE served the disciplinary charges, etc., upon respondent and notified him that, within fifteen days of receipt, he could submit to the BOE written responses to the charges which the BOE would consider in determining whether there was probable cause to credit the evidence in support of the charges and whether the charges, if credited, warranted his dismissal. P-3.

(14) In a letter to the BOE's attorneys dated December 19, 2003, Deputy Commissioner Pfennig wrote that the BOE's meetings in the previous two weeks, public comment, and the BOE president's and BOE attorney's directives to the school district's administrative staff had caused the Department concern about possible violation of the Open Public Meetings Act, State education statutes, and State education regulations relative to the following matters:

> 1. The Asbury Park Board of Education Meeting Notice for Wednesday, December 10, 2003, did not indicate any action to be taken by the Board of Education and action was taken.
>
> 2. Following the approval (by public vote of the Board) of personnel items at the December 17, 2003, meeting (including a Disaffected Youth Counselor), the Board President informed the person approved that "she did not have the job."
>
> 3. Personnel Committee actions forwarding personnel recommendations to the Board are in violation of Title 18A:27-4.1(a) which clearly states, "A board of education shall appoint, transfer or remove a certificated or non-certificated officer or > employee only upon the recommendation of the chief school administrator and by recorded roll call majority vote of the full membership of the board. The board shall not withhold its vote for arbitrary and capricious reasons."

>
> 4. The letter from Board counsel to Acting Superintendent, Kathy McDavid asserting "nullity" on the personnel action, taken at the December 17, 2003 meeting may also be in violation of the Open Public Meetings Act and Title 18A:27-4.1(a).
>

Deputy Commissioner Pfennig also wrote that, given the above-described circumstances, the Department would investigate and engage in "corrective work with the district." R-1C.

(15) On February 3, 2004, the BOE held a Special Meeting, during which, in closed session, it adopted a resolution certifying the charges to the Commissioner and suspended respondent without pay, effective February 4, 2004. The respondent alleges that the BOE failed to provide adequate Open Public Meetings notice of that action and charges that it, thereby, violated the Act.

(16) On February 4, 2004, the BOE's "Disciplinary Charges" and the BOE interim business administrator/board secretary's "Certification of Determination" were filed with the Department. P-4; see N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9. The "Disciplinary Charges" are set as "Count One" and "Count Two," described above. The BOE attached to its charges exhibits, including the above-quoted November 28, 2001, memorandum from its former attorney. P-2D. The BOE's "Count Two" charges violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:17-20.1, an education statute. The exhibit raises the question of the adequacy of notice under the Open Public Meetings Act, but in "Count Two" or elsewhere, the BOE does not charge violation of the Open Public Meetings Act. N.J.S.A. 10:4-6 to -21.

(17) On February 5, 2004, the BOE served on the respondent the charges and a letter dated February 4, 2004, notifying him that the BOE had voted to suspend him without pay, effective February 2, 2004. P-5.

(18) The respondent filed a Superior Court complaint in lieu of prerogative writ, alleging that the BOE's actions taken during its December 2003 and February 2004 meetings violated the Open Public Meetings Act and demanding that they be declared void. See N.J.S.A. 10:4-15.

(19) On February 11, 2004, respondent filed his petition for emergent relief with exhibits and brief. R-1; R-1A; R-1B; R-1C; N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.3.

(20) In a letter dated February 17, 2004, the Commissioner, citing N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6 and Crowe v. De Gioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982), wrote that respondent failed to satisfy standards for emergent relief and he denied respondent's petition for that relief. However, the Commissioner wrote that, notwithstanding the BOE's characterizing its charges as charges of "conduct unbecoming," they may constitute charges of inefficiency. Therefore, the Commissioner wrote, the petition should be treated as a motion for an order dismissing the charges for failure to comply with the procedural requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11 and N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.1(c) and he directed the BOE to respond, explaining why the charges should not be so dismissed. R-2.

(21) On February 18, 2004, respondent's answers and defenses were filed with the Department. The respondent denied any wrongdoing, and his allegations and contentions include the following: In the decades before his employment as superintendent, the Asbury Park district failed to receive any certification from the Department. As a result of the programs he implemented, in the spring of 2002 the Department issued a conditional certification to the district. BOE governance issues were the primary cause of the Department's returning the district to Level II status. See N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-14; N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-4; N.J.A.C. 6A:30-1.1 to -3.5. The BOE interfered with his performance of his duties and improperly interfered with personnel issues, including the hiring, firing and transfer of employees. The district had a curriculum in place that, as a result of changes in DOE standards, needed to be revised. Numerous meetings at all staff levels were conducted and he (respondent), through the district staff, despite interference by the BOE, was implementing a curriculum that would have complied with all applicable standards. The curriculum was provided to all staff. All required steps were taken to prepare the student body and teachers relative to GEPA and HSPA standards. The BOE failed to set goals and objectives required by N.J.S.A. 18A:17-20.3 and BOE policy, but he set his own goals. He was in the process of revising a corrective action plan the BOE had approved when he was improperly suspended. The BOE's Special Meetings of December 10, 2003, and February 3, 2004, violated the Open Public Meetings Act and were void. The BOE failed to state its charges with specificity as required by N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.1(b)(1) and it failed to submit a supporting statement of evidence as required by N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.1(b)(1). The BOE failed to make a determination within 45 days of the respondent's receipt of the charges as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:6-13. The charges do not state a claim of conduct unbecoming as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 and the BOE cannot establish "just cause" for his dismissal.

(22) By letter dated February 28, 2004, the BOE's attorney filed a letter brief in response to the Commissioner's letter of February 17, 2004, and in opposition to the motion for an order dismissing the charges. The respondent submitted a letter dated March 2, 2004.

(23) The Department transmitted the contested case to the OAL, where it was filed on March 8, 2004. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-2(b).

(24) On March 16, 2004, the parties' attorneys and I conferred and on March 24, 2004, the BOE filed its letter brief in opposition to the respondent's motion.

(25) On April 1, 2004 (by telephone), I requested that the attorneys address whether "Count One" constitutes a charge of "inefficiency," as the Legislature uses that word in N.J.S.A. 18A:17-20.2; whether "Count One" should be dismissed; and whether "Count Two" states a claim upon which relief can be granted, and the attorneys argued for and against the motion for an order dismissing the charges.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The Legislature has provided standards for qualifications, appointment, salaries, duties, powers, evaluations, terms, and dismissal or reduction in compensation of school districts' superintendents. See N.J.S.A. 18A:17-15 to -20.4.

N.J.S.A. 18A:17-20 provides for superintendents' general powers and duties:

> a. Any superintendent of schools, who has acquired tenure in the position of superintendent as of the effective date of [N.J.S.A. 18A:17-20.1 et seq.] shall have general supervision over the schools of the district or districts under rules and regulations prescribed by the State board and shall keep himself informed as to their condition and progress and shall report thereon, from time to time, to, and as directed by, the board and he shall have such other powers and perform such other duties as may be prescribed by the board or boards employing him.
>
> He shall have a seat on the board or boards of education employing him and the right to speak on all educational matters at meetings of the board or boards but shall have no vote.
>
> b. Any superintendent of schools who has not acquired tenure in the position of superintendent as of the effective date of [N.J.S.A. 18A:17-20.1 et seq.] but who holds tenure during the term of his employment contract pursuant to [N.J.S.A. 18A:17-20.2], shall be the chief executive and administrative officer of the board or boards of education employing him and shall have general supervision over all aspects, including the fiscal operations and instructional programs, of the schools of the district or districts under rules and regulations prescribed by the State board and shall keep himself informed as to their condition and progress and shall report thereon, from time to time, to, and as directed by, the board and he shall have such other powers and perform such other duties as may be prescribed by the board or boards employing him.
>
> He shall have a seat on the board or boards of education employing him and the right to speak on all matters at meetings of the board or boards but shall have no vote.

N.J.S.A. 18A:17-20.1 provides for reappointment of superintendents and provides for boards' declining to reappoint superintendents:

> At the conclusion of the term of the initial contract or of any subsequent contract as hereinafter provided, the superintendent shall be deemed reappointed for another contracted term of the same duration as the previous contract unless either: a. the board by contract reappoints him for a different term which term shall be not less than three nor more than five years, in which event reappointments thereafter shall be deemed for the new term unless a different term is again specified; or b. at least one year prior to the expiration of the first or any subsequent contract the board shall notify the superintendent in writing that he will not be reappointed at the end of the current term, in which event his employment shall cease at the expiration of that term.

N.J.S.A. 18A:17-20.3 provides for the process for evaluation of superintendents:

> a. Every local board of education having a superintendent shall evaluate the performance of the superintendent at least once a year. Each evaluation shall be in writing, a copy shall be provided to the superintendent and the superintendent and the board shall meet to discuss the findings. The evaluations shall be based upon the goals and objectives of the district, the responsibilities of the superintendent and such other criteria as the State Board of Education shall by regulation prescribe. Any contract entered into pursuant to N.J.S. 18A:17-15 shall provide for an evaluation pursuant to this section and may provide for additional evaluation criteria or procedures which shall not be inconsistent with the regulations of the State board.
> b. The New Jersey School Boards Association shall establish a training program for local school board members on the evaluation of superintendents pursuant to subsection a. of this section. Every newly appointed or elected school board member shall complete the training program within 6 months of commencement of his term of office.

Instead of "career tenure" for superintendents, present statutes provide "tenure for the duration of the contract between the local board of education and the superintendent," i.e., "a superintendent shall hold tenure during the term of the contract with the board and during the contract period shall not be dismissed or reduced in compensation except for inefficiency, incapacity, unbecoming conduct, or other just cause." Assembly Education Statement,

Assembly, No. 1131 – L.1991, c. 267. Consistent with this statement, N.J.S.A. 18A:17-20.2 states:

> During the term of any employment contract with the board, a superintendent shall not be dismissed or reduced in compensation except for inefficiency, incapacity, or conduct unbecoming a superintendent or other just cause and then only in the manner prescribed [N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9 et seq.].

That is, the Legislature, distinguished "inefficiency" as a basis for removal from "conduct unbecoming" and "other just cause" as bases for dismissal, and, as shown below, the Legislature requires a board of education to comply with distinct procedures before the board may prosecute a charge of inefficiency. N.J.S.A. 18A:17-20.2. These procedures include those provided in N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11:

> Any charge made against any employee of a board of education under tenure during good behavior and efficiency shall be filed with the secretary of the board in writing, and a written statement of evidence under oath to support such charge shall be presented to the board. The board of education shall forthwith provide such employee with a copy of the charge, a copy of the statement of the evidence and an opportunity to submit a written statement of position and a written statement of evidence under oath with respect thereto. After consideration of the charge, statement of position and statements of evidence presented to it, the board shall determine by majority vote of its full membership whether there is probable cause to credit the evidence in support of the charge and whether such charge, if credited, is sufficient to warrant a dismissal or reduction of salary. The board of education shall forthwith notify the employee against whom the charge has been made of its determination, personally or by certified mail directed to his last known address. In the event the board finds that such probable cause exists and that the charge, if credited, is sufficient to warrant a dismissal or reduction of salary, then it shall forward such written charge to the commissioner for a hearing pursuant to N.J.S. 18A:6-16, together with a certificate of such determination. Provided, however, that if the charge is inefficiency, prior to making its determination as to certification, the board shall provide the employee with written notice of the alleged inefficiency, specifying the nature thereto, and allow at least 90 days in which to correct and overcome the inefficiency.

> The consideration and actions of the board as to any charge shall not take place at a public meeting.
>
> [Emphasis added.]

Count One

Consistent with the Legislature's requirements, if "Count One" constitutes a charge of inefficiency, prosecution of the charge is conditioned on the BOE's compliance with the above-cited procedure allowing for correction of the alleged inefficiency.

In construing New Jersey's laws and statutes, words and phrases shall be given their generally accepted meanings. N.J.S.A. 1:1-1. The "plain language" of a statute is the starting point for its construction. Stevenson v. Keene Corp., 254 N.J. Super. 310, 317 (App. Div. 1992), aff'd o.b., 131 N.J. 393 (1993). And, in Laba v. Newark Board of Education, 23 N.J. 364, 384 (1957), the Court wrote that the statutory standard addressing "inefficiency, incapacity, conduct unbecoming . . . or other just cause" is "general in terms but measured by common understanding it fairly and adequately conveys its meaning to all concerned."

The plain meaning of "inefficiency" is "the quality or condition of being inefficient; lack of efficiency," and "inefficient" means "not efficient; unable to effect or achieve the desired result with reasonable economy." The Random House College Dictionary 680 (Revised Edition 1982). Therefore, the essence of inefficiency as a charge against an employee is that he or she has failed to reasonably effectively perform duties required of his or her title.

The plain meaning of "unbecoming" is "unsuitable . . . detracting from one's appearance, character, or reputation; creating an unfavorable impression." Id. at 1427. "Conduct unbecoming" is an "elastic" term broadly defined to include any conduct that has a tendency to destroy public respect for government employees and confidence in the operation of public services. In re Emmons, 63 N.J. Super. 136 (App. Div. 1960), quoted in Karins v. City of Atlantic City, 152 N.J. 532, 554 (1998). Therefore, the elements of conduct unbecoming a public employee include that the employee's position is in the public eye, that the position is subject to a promulgated or implicit standard of good behavior, that the position requires the employee to uphold that which is morally and legally correct, and that the subject conduct, while on duty or off duty, demonstrates that the employee is unsuitable for his or her duties as a public servant. Karins, supra, 152 N.J. at 554-55 (1998), citing State v. Bullock, 136 N.J. 149, 153-55 (1994); State v. Johnson, 127 N.J. 458, 462-63 (1992); Ward v. Keenan, 3 N.J. 298, 309-11 (1949); Hartmann v. Police Dep't of Ridgewood, 258 N.J. Super. 32, 40 (App. Div. 1992), citing Asbury Park v. Department of Civil Serv., 17 N.J. 419, 429 (1955).

The BOE has cited no decision wherein a school's failure to meet standards constituted conduct unbecoming on the part of the school's administrator, or students' failure to learn basic skills constituted conduct unbecoming on the part of their teacher. Karins, supra, 152 N.J. at 555-56, involved an off-duty firefighter who directed a racial epithet against a private citizen and a police officer in the course of the officer's duties and the Court cited the following as cases of conduct unbecoming public employees: Tress v. Burlington Dep't of Health, 93 N.J.A.R.2d 698 (CSV), involved a Burlington County Department of Health employee who directed a religious slur at a fellow employee; City of Newark v. Massey, 93 N.J. Super. 317 (App. Div. 1967), involved a police officer who exhibited a disrespectful and contemptuous attitude to a superior officer; Hartmann, supra, 258 N.J. Super. 32, involved off-duty police officers who became inebriated and engaged in a fight; Rinnier v. Department of Transp. 94 N.J.A.R.2d 440 (CSV), involved Department of Transportation employees who howled at a woman being transported in a police vehicle and who refused the police officer's request for their identification.

The respondent has cited Smith v. Carty, 120 N.J.L. 335 (E. & A. 1938), wherein it was found that a teacher's obtaining a loan through fraud and misrepresentation constituted personal misconduct so unbecoming that she was unfit to continue as a school employee.

Consistent with the above, the BOE's "Count One," alleging that the respondent failed to properly and effectively lead, supervise and/or manage the Asbury Park school system, constitutes a charge of "inefficiency" as the Legislature uses that word in N.J.S.A. 18A:17-20.2.

The BOE argues that its allegation in "Count One" that the respondent failed to communicate with it about the Commissioner's recommendation that the conditional certification granted to its school district be rescinded and that Level II Monitoring be implemented constitutes a charge of conduct unbecoming (or other good cause for dismissal) and not inefficiency. However, the subject matter of the certification and monitoring relates to the efficient operation of the school system and, therefore, the allegation relates to the charge of "inefficiency" as the Legislature uses that word in N.J.S.A. 18A:17-20.2.

Department regulations further specify the process for charges brought against a tenured board of education employee. N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.1 to -5.6.

"In all instances of the filing and certification of tenure charges, other than for reasons of inefficiency," N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.1(b) governs the process. N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.1(b), emphasis added.

"In the event that the tenure charges are charges of inefficiency, except in the case of building principals in State-operated school districts, where procedures are governed by the provisions of N.J.A.C. 6:7," N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.1(c) governs the process. N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.1(c), emphasis added.

N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.1(c) provides extensive procedures and timelines for tenure charges of inefficiency. 1. Initial charges of inefficiency and written statement of evidence shall be stated with specificity and filed with the district board of education or the State district superintendent. 2. The district board of education or the State district superintendent shall serve the charge and statement of evidence on the employee and his or her representative, if known. 3. The district board of education or the State district superintendent shall notify the employee that, unless the inefficiency is corrected within minimally 90 days, the board or the State district superintendent intends to certify the charge of inefficiency to the Commissioner pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11. 4. The district board of education or the State district superintendent shall direct that there be a modification of the "individual professional improvement plan mandated by N.J.A.C. 6:3-4.3(f) to assure that such plan addresses the specific charges of inefficiency and comports with the timelines established for correction." N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.1(c)(4). 5. "Upon completion of the minimal 90-day period for improvement, . . . the administrator or administrators responsible for bringing such charges to the attention of the board or the State district superintendent shall notify the board or the State district superintendent in writing of what charges, if any, have not been corrected." N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.1(c)(5). 6. Upon receipt of the written notification, the district board of education or the State district superintendent shall notify the employee in writing of what deficiency has or has not been corrected. The time from the expiration of the minimal 90-day period to the time that the board or the State district superintendent notifies the employee shall not exceed 30 days. 7. In the event it is alleged that the board or the State district superintendent notifies the employee that the inefficiency charged has not been corrected, the employee shall have 15 days from the date of notice to respond by filing a statement of evidence under oath in opposition to the charges. 8. Upon receipt of the employee's statement of evidence, the district board of education shall determine by a majority vote of its full membership, or the State superintendent shall determine, within 45 days, whether there is probable cause to credit the evidence in support of the charges and that such charges, if credited, are sufficient to warrant a dismissal or reduction in salary. 9. In the event the district board of education or the State district superintendent finds that probable cause exists and that the charges, if credited, are sufficient to warrant a dismissal or reduction in salary, the board or the State superintendent shall, within 15 days, file written charges, stating with specificity the nature of the inefficiency alleged, together with the certificate of determination, with the Commissioner, together with a proof of service upon the employee and the employee's representative, if known. See Rowley v. Board of Educ. of Manalapan-Englishtown Reg'l Sch. Dist., 205 N.J. Super. 65 (App. Div. 1985), for an example of the extensive process involved in bringing inefficiency charges.

The BOE argues that, since as a superintendent the respondent does not have an "individual professional improvement plan," N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.1(c)(4)'s procedure required for an inefficiency charge is inapplicable to the respondent (or to any superintendent). However, a regulation does not trump a statute and, even if the BOE cannot comply with part of N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.1(c)'s procedure, the BOE is not excused from compliance with the Legislature's requirement that it provide written notice of the alleged inefficiency and "allow [respondent] at least 90 days in which to correct and overcome the inefficiency." N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11.

The BOE also argues that, since no administrator is "responsible for bringing [the subject] charges," N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.1(c)(5)'s procedure required for an inefficiency charge is inapplicable to the respondent (or to any superintendent). Again, a regulation does not trump a statute and, even if the BOE cannot comply with part of N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.1(c)'s procedure, the BOE is not excused from compliance with the Legislature's requirement that a board provide written notice to the superintendent of the alleged inefficiency and "allow [respondent] at least 90 days in which to correct and overcome the inefficiency." N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11. The board should be capable of determining whether a superintendent has corrected the conditions and eliminated the inefficiencies charged.

To summarize, consistent with the above-cited laws, the BOE's "Count One" is a charge of "inefficiency" as the Legislature uses that word in N.J.S.A. 18A:17-20.2. However, there is no record that the BOE complied with legislatively required procedures requiring notice and an opportunity for improvement before a board may prosecute a charge of inefficiency.

Count Two

In "Count Two," the BOE alleges that respondent participated in a "decision to circumvent N.J.S.A. 18A:17-20.1." This allegation relates to the above-described contract that increased the respondent's salary and his period of employment. The BOE also alleges that the respondent failed to "inform" the BOE that it should "rescind" the contract. P-4.

A public official's circumvention of a statutory requirement of his or her office may well constitute conduct unbecoming (and would not appear to be inefficiency subject to the above-described procedures).

However, the BOE's "Count Two" does not appear to state a claim on which relief may be granted. N.J.S.A. 18A:17-20.1 establishes timelines for deeming that superintendents are reappointed under the same terms as their previous contracts unless the board reappoints the superintendent pursuant to a contract with different terms than the previous contract. N.J.S.A. 18A:17-20.1 also provides that a board may timely notify the superintendent that it will not reappoint. However, I do not see that N.J.S.A. 18A:17-20.1 prohibits a board from contracting with and reappointing a superintendent before the conclusion of his earlier term for a term that overlaps and/or supersedes the earlier term. (Note, however, that in Gonzalez v. Board of Education of Elizabeth School District, 325 N.J. Super. 244 (App. Div. 1999), certif. denied, 163 N.J. 77 (2000), the court concluded that N.J.S.A. 18A:17-20.1 does not authorize a board to appoint a superintendent to a term to begin during the term of the succeeding board.)

Among the exhibits that the BOE attached to its charges is the above-quoted November 23, 2001, memorandum from its former attorney, raising the question of the adequacy of notice under the Open Public Meetings Act. P-2D. However, the BOE's "Count Two" charges violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:17-20.1 (an education statute) and does not charge violation of the Open Public Meetings Act. N.J.S.A. 10:4-6 to -21.

Consistent with the above and N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.1(b)(1), N.J.A.C. 1:1-1.3(a), and R. 4:6-2(e), "Count Two" appears to fail to state a claim upon which relief may be granted and may be dismissible on that basis.

Conclusion

Despite the BOE's characterization of its "Count One," it charges inefficiency and, since the BOE failed to comply with the above-described procedures required for prosecution of such a charge, "Count One" must be dismissed.

The BOE's "Count Two" does not appear to state a claim upon which relief may be granted, so "Count Two" may be dismissed. However, since the Commissioner has not requested a decision on whether the charge should be dismissed on that basis, these comments are informational only.

Asbury Park, an Abbott district, suffers from profound economic, social and other disadvantages that challenge its people and school system and, despite substantial State funding, its students have not performed well in tests measuring academic achievement. N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-3, "Abbott district." I have encouraged the parties to settle their differences so that, instead of burning up the district's resources in litigating this matter, those resources can be appropriately used to educate Asbury Park's children.

ORDER

Consistent with the above, I ORDER "Count One" DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF ANTONIO LEWIS,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
SCHOOL DISTRICT OF ASBURY PARK,	:	DECISION
MONMOUTH COUNTY.	:

The record and Initial Decision issued by the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Exceptions of the Board were submitted in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 and fully considered by the Commissioner in his determination herein.

The Board's exceptions charge that the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) erroneously concluded that the charges against respondent contained in Count One were ones of inefficiency within the intendment of N.J.S.A. 18A:17-20.2. In so finding, it avers, he relied solely on the dictionary definitions of the terms "inefficiency" and "unbecoming," wholly failing to take into consideration any other factors in interpreting the meaning of these terms. The Board professes that a statute should be accorded such "plain meaning" only when it is clear and unambiguous which, it contends, is not the case here. In situations such as this, where terms can be subject to more than one interpretation, recourse must be made to the statute's "purpose, legislative intent, and prior precedent" to resolve interpretation differences. (Board's Exceptions at 1-2) In this regard, the Board proposes that the overall purpose of N.J.S.A. 18A:17-20.2, which the ALJ failed to recognize or take into account, > is to prevent the arbitrary dismissal of superintendents without cause. [T]here is no dispute that the Board filed the present charges against the respondent for cause and has therefore not > violated the legislative intent and purpose of the statute. (emphasis in text) (Id. at 3)

The Board next contends that by confining the parameters of unbecoming conduct to its dictionary definition the ALJ failed to consider prior case law. Referencing In re Howard, decided by the Commissioner April 1, 2002, aff'd with modification by the State Board March 3, 2004, it claims that unbecoming conduct has been defined as "a lack of fitness to discharge the duties and functions of one's office or position," which, it contends, exemplifies the behavior at issue here. (Id. at 4) Citing In re Vitacco, 347 N.J.Super. 337 (App. Div. 2002); In re Howard; and In re Romanoli, decided by the Commissioner 93 N.J.A.R. 2d. (EDU) 82, aff'd State Board 87, aff'd Appellate Division April 13, 1994, No. A-2346-92T3, the Board professes that the ALJ additionally "failed to take into account past practices which demonstrates (sic) that tenure charges filed against superintendents are commonly based on 'unbecoming conduct' while tenure charges for 'inefficiency' are reserved for cases involving teaching staff members." (emphasis in text) (Ibid.) More particularly, it charges, "[i]n the present case, the Board has provided a long line of cases upholding tenure charges against superintendents based on unbecoming conduct while [the ALJ] and the respondent have both failed to cite to any case in which tenure charges were filed against a superintendent based on inefficiency." (emphasis in text) (Ibid.)

Next, the Board continues to argue, as it did below, that N.J.S.A 18A:17-20.2 does not contain a procedural process for bringing charges of inefficiency against a superintendent and compliance with all sections of the regulatory provisions which provide such a process is technically impossible when the charged individual is a superintendent. Therefore, it postulates:

> [d]ue to the fact that there is no statute or regulation which sets forth the procedure for a board of education to follow to file tenure charges based upon inefficiency against a superintendent and since there is (sic) has not been a single case in New Jersey in which tenure charges have been initiated or sustained against a > superintendent based upon inefficiency, it is more than evident that the present tenure charges against Dr. Lewis were properly based on unbecoming conduct. The petitioner should not be burdened with defending an issue of first impression, especially since the respondent himself did not raise the issue. The result of having to respond to something that heretofore has been omitted from consideration by our courts is unfair and contrary to the legislative intent of the statute. (emphasis in text) (Board's Exceptions at 6)

Finally, the Board objects to the ALJ's "informational" analysis of Count Two of its tenure charges against respondent, as the Commissioner's transmittal of this matter to the OAL requested nothing more than a determination of whether the Board's charges were, in fact, ones of inefficiency. As such, it contends that the ALJ's analysis was "offered as a means to assist the Commissioner of Education in rendering a decision which would completely dismiss the charges against this petitioner without any discovery or an opportunity for the petitioner to be heard." (Id. at 3)

Upon his independent and comprehensive review of the record, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ, that the charges comprising Count One are properly categorized as ones of inefficiency and must, therefore, be dismissed for the Board's failure to comply with the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11. In so determining, the Commissioner finds the Board's exception arguments, both with respect to the nature of its charges and the propriety of bringing inefficiency charges against a superintendent, antithetic to both the governing statutes, N.J.S.A. 18A:17-20.2, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11, and applicable case law. See In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Richard P. Adams, School District of the Borough of Ocean Gate, Ocean County, decided by the Commissioner September 19, 1997, a case virtually identical to the instant matter.[1] (See also In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Dr. Frank J. Napoli, School District of the City of Salem, Salem County, 1988 S.L.D. 261, aff'd with modification by the State Board, 1988 S.L.D. 284.) Notwithstanding the categorization the Board attempts to ascribe to its charges, the Commissioner is in full agreement with the ALJ that charges of inefficiency are qualitatively different from charges of unbecoming conduct. (Initial Decision at 16-17) More particularly, as was found in Adams, supra:

[1] Charges against District superintendent were found to be ones of inefficiency as they related to the Board's dissatisfaction with the performance of its superintendent. Because the Board had not accorded the respondent the requisite 90-day period to improve his performance as mandated by N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11, the charges were dismissed.

> Inefficiency amounts to the teaching staff member failing to effectively perform his or her duties. Rowley v. Manalapan-Englishtown Board of Education, 205 N.J. Super. 65, 70 (App. Div. 1985). In sustaining charges of inefficiency, the Commissioner noted conduct must amount to "inefficiencies and inadequacies" in a respondent's performance of his duties. In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Slovney, 84 S.L.D. 1764, 1794. The charges which allege failure to perform duties are, by definition, another phrase for the term of "inefficiency." (Adams Slip Opinion at 7)

Here, the Commissioner is in full accord with the ALJ that "the BOE's 'Count One,' alleging that the respondent failed to properly and effectively lead, supervise and/or manage the Asbury Park school system constitutes a charge of 'inefficiency'". (Initial Decision at 17) Consequently, inasmuch as the Board did not fulfill its obligation, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11, of providing respondent written notice of the inefficiency and according him 90 days to improve his performance, Count One of the Board's charges must be dismissed.

With respect to Count Two of the Board's charges, charging respondent with unbecoming conduct for knowingly entering into an invalid contract, the Commissioner, in fulfillment of his responsibility pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16 and N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.5, has reviewed this charge and upon such review, has determined that the charge, even if true, is, standing alone, deemed insufficient to warrant respondent's dismissal or reduction in salary and, therefore, Charge Two must be dismissed.[2]

Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter for the reasons stated therein. Therefore, tenure charges against respondent are dismissed and, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14, the Commissioner directs that the Asbury Park Board of Education immediately reinstate Antonio Lewis to his position of superintendent with full pay from the first day of his suspension. In so holding, the Commissioner notes that the above result is compelled by law and that nothing herein precludes the Board, in its discretion, from filing new tenure charges in compliance with the Tenure Employees Hearing Law.

IT IS SO ORDERED.[3]

Date of Decision: 6/7/04

Date of Mailing: 6/7/04

[2] Because the Commissioner's transmittal of this matter to the OAL requested that, subsequent to a determination on respondent's Motion to Dismiss for failure to comply with the procedural requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11 and N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.1(c), alleging charges were ones of inefficiency rather than unbecoming conduct, the matter be returned to the Commissioner for a sufficiency determination pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16, the Commissioner does not reach to the ALJ's informational comments with regard to Charge Two.

[3] This decision may be appealed to the State Board of Education pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-27 et seq. and N.J.A.C. 6A:4-1.1 et seq.

RESPONDENT. :

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning parents challenged the Board's charges against high school senior, G.A., and contested the severity of the suspension penalty imposed.

In light of testimony of witnesses and the record, the ALJ found that the Board had good cause to discipline G.A. since he brought two knives to school and he threatened student M.P. The ALJ determined, however, that G.A. did not commit an assault on M.P. on school property. N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.2 did not apply since G.A. violated a lesser statute, N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2c. The ALJ agreed that the Board's penalty of suspension from school and G.A.'s placement on the restricted activities list was not arbitrary and capricious because it would be difficult to supervise G.A. at activities involving crowds. The ALJ found, however, that commencement is a tightly controlled event so barring G.A. from that event was arbitrary, capricious and without rational basis. The ALJ ordered G.A. be permitted to participate in commencement, that remaining sanctions be affirmed and home instruction continue.

The Commissioner modified the Initial Decision. The Commissioner determined that, as a result of G.A.'s serious transgressions, the Board did not abuse its discretion in restricting G.A.'s participation in, or attendance at, any school-sponsored extracurricular activities and, contrary to the ALJ, determined that such extracurricular restriction may reasonably extend to commencement exercises.

This synopsis is not part of the Commissioner's decision. It has been prepared for the convenience of the reader. It has been neither reviewed nor approved by the Commissioner.

OF EDUCATION,

Respondent.

James B. Arsenault, Jr., Esq., for respondent (Cooper, Levenson, April, Niedelman & Wagenheim, attorneys)

Record Closed: April 26, 2004 Decided: May 6, 2003

BEFORE BRUCE M. GORMAN, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner G.A. is a student at Middle Township High School. On February 19, 2004, David J. Salvo, High School Principal, suspended G.A. from school for possession of a weapon on school property and terroristic threats (R-3). The charges were amended on March 1, 2004 by Superintendent Michael J. Kopakowski to the following:

1. That on February 19, 2004, G. did have in his possession two knives, specifically a green handled folding knife with an approximate 3.25 inch blade and a black handled folding knife with an approximate 4 inch blade with the purpose to use them unlawfully again student M.P., and for the purpose of causing M.P. fear of bodily harm.

2. That on February 9, 2004, G. did assault student M.P. by brandishing one or both of the said knives at student M.P. and after having made threats to M.P. the previous evening (February 18, 2004) via Internet chat that he would cut off M.P.'s penis and slice his face.

On March 9, 2004, respondent Board of Education passed a resolution, R-4, wherein respondent imposed the following penalties on petitioner:

1. That the Student be suspended from school from Thursday, March 4, 2004 through the conclusion of the school year on June 15, 2004; ad
2. That the Student be provided with adequate home instruction of no less than 10 hours per week for this period of suspension;
3. That the Student be placed on the restricted activities list until the completion of the 2003-2004 school yea, and shall not be entitled to participate in or attend any extracurricular or school-sponsored activities including but no limited to Commencement Exercise; and
4. That the Student be enjoined from any contract with Student M.P., or from causing any other person to threaten, harass or intimidate Student M.P. on his behalf.

Petitioner G.A. denies the charges as preferred and contests the severity of the penalty.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner filed a Petition and Request for Emergent Relief dated March 29, 2004 with the Department of Education, Bureau of Controversies and Disputes on March 31, 2004. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on April 5, 2004. Respondent filed its Answer with OAL on April 8, 2004. On April 7, 2004, petitioner's application for emergent relief was argued telephonically before the Honorable Ana Viscomi, ALJ. On April 8, 2004, Judge Viscomi issued a decision denying petitioner's application and directing that the matter be set down for plenary hearing. I conducted the hearing on April 13, 2004 at the Office of Administrative Law, 1601 Atlantic Avenue, Atlantic City, New Jersey. Petitioner introduced Exhibits P-1, P-2 and P-3. Respondent introduced Exhibits R-1, R-2, R-3, and R-4. Testimony was recorded on tape. In addition, the parties jointly offered a transcript of the hearing below of March 9, 2004, J-1. Petitioner G.A. testified himself and presented John McInerney, Ph.D., as an expert witness. Respondent relied upon the testimony contained in J-1. The hearing concluded on April 13, 2004, but the record remained open for the submission of briefs. Briefs were submitted by April 23, 2004, and the record was closed on that date.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Petitioner G.A. ("Petitioner") is age 17 and a high school senior in respondent's school system. He is scheduled to graduate in June of 2004. Petitioner is 6'1" tall and weighs approximately 170 pounds. He is not classified.

During the school day on February 18, 2004 petitioner became involved in a shoving match with a senior male named M.P. M.P. is 5'9" tall and weighs 140 pounds, according to petitioner's best approximation. M.P. is classified as a result of a severe hearing impairment.

A teacher interceded between petitioner and M.P. Petitioner was sent to the principal's office, while M.P. was sent back to class.

That evening, petitioner and M.P. continued the dispute through use of an Internet chat line. Respondent introduced into evidence a transcript of the exchange, R-1. The transcript reveals what on one level could be considered a typical example of teen-age male bravado, with petitioner threatening M.P. and M.P. responding with the proverbial "Oh yeah? You and who else?" type of response.

What renders the exchange atypical are petitioner's repeated references to his possession of a knife and his intent to utilize the knife to sever various portions of M.P.'s anatomy from his body. Notable are petitioner's statements that he was going to "chop off his pee pee", "chop off ur dick and feed it to u", and "slice ur face off". Petitioner concluded with the warning, "u keep sayin stupid shit and I will kill u."

It should be noted that, simultaneous with this exchange, both petitioner and M.P. were engaged in separate Internet conversations with a female student at respondent's high school named V.M. In some fashion, V.M. was either monitoring the conversation between petitioner and MP or was being informed by each of them of what was being said. Petitioner indicated in his testimony that, at least in part, he was trying to impress V.M.

M.P.'s reaction to the conversation is less certain, colored no doubt by the usual reluctance of the teen-age male to admit fear. He testified (J-1, 35:22-36:4):

> Q. Do you believe that the conversation you had on AOL was a threat?
>
> A. No. Well, G. didn't say that he was joking, so I kind of thought that it was serious, and I started to feel nervous, like maybe I was going to get hurt the next day. So that's why I printed it out and brought it to school because I wanted to keep myself from getting hurt.

Taken by itself, this example of excessive teen-age testosterone would not involve this Court or the Department of Education. But what happened the following day brings the matter before me.

The following morning petitioner went to school. He wore a jacket which he customarily wears when working with his father clearing land. Inside the jacket pocket was a folding knife with a 3" blade. In addition, the previous evening petitioner had found in his room another knife, a folding knife with a 4" blade, belonging to a friend. He likewise brought that knife to school in his jacket. According to petitioner, he intended to give the second knife back to his friend.

According to petitioner, he arrived at school on February 19, he found M.P. waiting for him at the front door with a transcript of the chat line conversation (R-1). Also present was V.M. Petitioner asked for the copy, and M.P. gave it to him. Petitioner and V.M. proceeded into the school. V.M. asked if he had really brought a knife. Petitioner stated that he had. V.M. asked to see the knife. Petitioner took V.M. to his locker where he had placed the jacket containing the knives. (How the jacket got into the locker was not explained by petitioner, who averred that he met V.M. as he entered school.) Petitioner opened his locker, took out one of the knives, showed it to V.M., placed the knife back into the jacket, and locked the jacket in his locker. Petitioner stated that at some point while he was at the locker he was conscious of M.P. walking by, but he contended that he did not know M.P. was present when he brought out the knife. Petitioner then proceeded to homeroom.

M.P.'s recollection of the event at the locker is similar, but with noteworthy differences. He testified (J-1, 31:20-33:9):

A. That particular day V. asked me if I would come to G.'s locker. I was like alright, I'll go. And so we went to G.'s locker, and I was standing there, and I kind of knew what was going to happen, I kind of knew what he was going to do, and I tried to walk away because I had a feeling that he had a gun, I mean a knife – sorry – my interpretation – and then V., she pulled me by my shirt and she pulled me back to the locker even though I was trying to walk away, and when I stood there he showed me the knife that was in the coat, and it was in his locker but I did see it, I did see the knife.
Q. Who was V.?
A. Well, her name is V.A. She's a junior.
Q. And you know her from school?
A. Yeah. She's in my school. I – (unclear – too low-voiced).
Q. And on the morning of the 19th she brought you by Mr. A.'s locker, is that correct?
A. Yeah. But I'm not sure exactly what she said. I just followed – I just came with her when she said come with me.
Q. V. doesn't sign, does she?
A. Could you clarify?
Q. She doesn't speak sign language?
A. Oh, no.
Q. So you are not really sure why she was asking you to come with you, you just knew that she was asking you to follow?
A. I didn't know what she was going to do but I knew that she wanted to come to G.'s locker. She said, "Let's go with me to G.'s locker."
Q. You said you had a feeling or you kind of knew what was going to happen when you went to G.'s locker, that you suspected he had a weapon?
A. Well, I didn't know that but I – I thought, maybe they were like playing around or something happened, but then when I got to the locker, then I knew what was happening, and that's when I decided that I had to turn in the paper that had our AOL conversation on it.

M.P. then testified as to exactly what he saw (J-1, 33:10-16)

Q. First about what you saw at the locker, you're sure you saw a knife?
A. Yes.
Q. Was the blade extended?
A. No. It happened really fast. I really don't know when – I know I saw a knife. I know it was a knife – (unclear – voice trails).

We have a difference in perception. According to G.A., he was showing the knife to V.M. According to M.P., he thought G.A. was showing him the knife. The witnesses do agree on the following: 1) V.M. instigated the incident; 2) G.A. did not extend the blade or otherwise "brandish" the knife at M.P. (P-3); 3) G.A. exhibited one knife and not two (P-3).

An uninvolved third party, A.M., also testified. A.M. testified that she was not personally familiar with either G.A. or M.P. (J-1, 42:14-22). She stated that M.P. had followed G.A. and V.M. to G.A.'s locker without apparent invitation (J-1, 43:25-44:2), and that M.P. was the "instigator" of any contact between M.P. and G.A. at G.A.'s locker (J-1, 44:18-21).

M.P. reported the knife to the vice principal, and she caused petitioner to be sent to her office. A police officer assigned to Middle Township High School, Sergeant Jeffrey Saduk, frisked petitioner and found no weapon. Petitioner's locker was then searched, and the knives were discovered. Petitioner was placed under arrest and charged with Terroristic Threats (N.J.S.A. 2C:12-3a), Possession of a Weapon in School (N.J.S.A. 2C:39-5e), and Possession of a Weapon for Unlawful Purpose (N.J.S.A. 2C:39-4d). Those charges remain pending in the Superior Court. In addition, petitioner was suspended from school.

On March 9, 2004, respondent conducted a hearing to determine the penalty to be imposed upon petitioner. On that date, respondent passed a resolution, R-4, suspending petitioner from school commencing Thursday, March 4, 2004 "through the conclusion of the school year on June 15, 2004..." Respondent ordered not less than ten hours of home instruction per week, enjoined petitioner from any further contact with M.P., and ruled that petitioner "shall not be entitled to participate in or attend any extracurricular or school-sponsored activities including but not limited to Commencement Exercises..." (Emphasis added).

Respondent concurs that prior to February of 2004, petitioner's disciplinary record was limited to what would be characterized as minor infractions, offenses common to many students. In February of 2004, a drug screen found petitioner to be under the influence of marijuana. On February 19, respondent was about to suspend petitioner for ten days for this infraction.

Petitioner testified that he was not aware of M.P.'s presence when he showed his knife to V.M. He stated he had no intention of harming M.P. He stated that he always carried a knife in his work jacket, and that the presence of the knives on February 19 was coincidental and had nothing to do with his dispute with M.P.

Petitioner testified that since the incident his parents have closely monitored his activities. He has undergone drug testing on a weekly basis and has been found to be drug free. In addition, he has volunteered his time at a charitable organization known as Cape Assist.

Petitioner presented as frightened and remorseful. He did not attempt to avoid responsibility for his actions. Whatever his intentions on February 19, I am satisfied that he now regrets the incident, and I so FIND.

By contrast, M.P. expressed ambivalence over the incident. He state (J-1, 36:15-22):

Q. Based upon that incident, are you fearful for your safety?
A. Not really. Maybe a little. But the first day that it happened, I was really stressed out and worried.
Q. Are you concerned that anything may happen in the future if Mr. A. Returns to the high school?
A. Yeah. Yeah. I am worried. Mm-mmm.

And again on cross-examination, M.P. stated (J-1, 38:16-17):

Q. Well, how do you feel now about your safety?
A. I don't know.

I note that respondent has chosen not to produce M.P. to offer direct testimony in my presence. As a result, I have had no opportunity to gauge his demeanor. I am forced to reach a conclusion as to the true level of fear which this incident induced in him solely on the basis of his transcript testimony (J-1).

Petitioner called Dr. John McInerney to testify. Dr. McInerney was stipulated by both parties to be an expert in child psychology.

Dr. McInerney testified that he conducted a Comprehensive Psychological Evaluation of petitioner on February 23 and March 1, 2004. Since that time petitioner has been under the care of another therapist in Dr. McInerney's office who specializes in drug and alcohol counseling.

Dr. McInerney testified that petitioner had above average cognitive ability, and was free of all significant signs of major psychiatric illness. He suffers from no mood, behavior, or thought disorder. The doctor opined that many teen-agers fail to understand the consequences of his conduct. Dr. McInerney stated petitioner had made progress in reaching that understanding. It was the doctor's opinion that petitioner could be returned to school without constituting a danger to other students.

Dr. McInerney stated he had not read the transcript of the Internet chat, R-1. I read the transcript to him and asked him to comment. The doctor opined that teenagers often make lurid threats they do not intend to act on. He characterized petitioner's statements as angry, childlike threats intended to intimidate M.P., but devoid of any intent to turn the threats into action.

David Salvo, High School Principal, testified at the March 9, 2004 hearing. It was Mr. Salvo who recommended the penalties contained in R-4 (J-1, 17:6-16). When asked the rationale behind his recommendation, Mr. Salvo testified (J-1, 18:20-23):

> Q. The recommendation to the Board is based upon your investigation of this incident?
> A. My investigation and obviously the confrontation with G. and people that handled the particular . . .

Mr. Salvo offered no other basis for the recommendation. In consequence, I do not know whether his concern was for the safety of the student population, deterrence of similar conduct, or some other unspecified purpose.

Gladys Lauriello, vice principal, and Sgt. Jeffrey Saduk of the Middle Township Police Department also offered testimony at the March 9, 2004 hearing.

LEGAL ANALYSIS

It is well settled that petitioner must establish by a preponderance of the credible evidence that respondent's imposition of a long-term suspension through the end of the school year is "improper, that is, patently arbitrary, without rational basis or induced by improper motives." J.D. & E.D o/b/o B.D. v Toms River Regional School District Board of Education, OAL Docket No. EDU6009-97, 1991. In general, the action of a local school board "which lies within the area of its discretional powers may not be upset unless patently arbitrary..." Kopera v. Bd. of Ed of West Orange, 60, N.J. Super. 288, 294 (App. Div., 1960).

Therefore, in order to prevail, petitioner must show that respondent acted in an arbitrary and capricious fashion in imposing the discipline set forth in R-4.

In order to determine whether respondent acted arbitrarily and capriciously, we must first examine its legal position. Respondent premises its determinations on the theory that this incident falls within the parameters of N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.2 (see respondent's brief, page 3). N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.2 states in pertinent part:

> Any pupil who commits an assault upon a teacher, administrator, board member, other employee of a school board or another student, with a weapon, on any school property, on a school bus, or at a school-sponsored function shall be immediately removed from the school's regular education program pending a hearing before the local board of education.
>
> For purposes of this section "assault" means those actions defined under subsection a.(1) of N.J.S.A. 2C:12-1.
>
> For purposes of this section "weapon" includes but is not limited to those items enumerated in subsection r. of N.J.S.A. 2C:39-1, except a firearm as defined by N.J.S.A. 2C:39-1f and 18 U.S.C. § 921.

Accordingly, three elements are necessary to fall within the parameters of this statute. The perpetrator must: 1) commit an assault; 2) upon, inter alia, a student; 3) on school property.

Respondent argues that petitioner committed an assault as defined in N.J.S.A. 2C:12-1(a)(3), which states:

a. Simple assault. A person is guilty of assault if he:

3) Attempts by physical menace to put another in fear of imminent serious bodily injury.

There can be no doubt that respondent could reasonably find the chat room discussion, R-1, was an attempt to put MP in fear of imminent serious bodily injury. The problems with relying on R-1 are twofold. First, the colloquy took place in cyberspace, which cannot be said to place MP in "physical menace", because he was not within physical reach of G.A. But more importantly, the chat room discussion in cyberspace did not take place "on school property". Wherever cyberspace may be, there is no evidence that it is "on school property".

Consequently, the chat room discussion itself does not bring this matter within the four corners of N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.2. Respondent must rely upon the incident at the locker in support of its position.

As noted in the factual findings, certain aspects of the locker incident are undisputed. M.P. followed G.A. to his locker. G.A. took out the knife and displayed it to V.M. G.A. states he did not know M.P. was in the area. Nothing in M.P.'s testimony contradicts that assertion. G.A. did not open the knife, nor did he "brandish" it at M.P. as suggested by the charges, P-3. At most, in M.P.'s words, G.A. "showed" the knife (J-1, 32:3-5). Nothing in any of the testimony suggests that G.A.'s actions amounted to "physical menace" which placed M.P. "in fear of imminent serious bodily injury" (emphasis added). Had G.A. opened the knife, there might be a stronger basis for respondent's action, but it is uncontroverted that the knife remained closed.

Accordingly, I FIND and CONCLUDE that G.A. did not commit an assault on M.P. on school property. N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.2 does not apply, and insofar as respondent acted in reliance upon that statute, such reliance was misplaced.

The inapplicability of N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.2 is crucial. The Legislature has determined that assault with a weapon on school property is a particularly egregious offense, and has delineated special remedies for a board of education confronted with such a situation. See NJS 18A:37-2.1 et seq. For example, a student who violates N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.2 must immediately be suspended. The school administration has no latitude. N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.1. The police must be notified. N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.3. The student cannot return to school without an express determination by the administration that he should be permitted to do so. N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.5. No such requirements exist for lesser disciplinary violations.

The draconian nature of the penalties imposed upon G.A. must be viewed in light of respondent's stated position that it posited its decision on the assumption that N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.2 applied. Since that statute does not apply, the question becomes, did petitioner violate a lesser statute, and if so, are the penalties applied appropriate, or do they rise to the level of arbitrary and capricious?

The general causes for suspension and expulsion of pupils are found at N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2. In this case it is undisputed that G.A. brought not one, but two knives to school. In my opinion, bringing a knife to school constitutes a danger to everyone and is a clear violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2c, which states:

> Conduct which shall constitute good cause for suspension or expulsion of a pupil guilty of such conduct shall include, but not be limited to, any of the following:
> * * *
> c. Conduct of such character as to constitute a continuing danger to the physical well-being of other pupils;

Accordingly, respondent had good cause to discipline petitioner. The remaining question is, given that petitioner violated N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2c and not the more egregious N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.2, is the discipline imposed excessive to the point that it must be deemed arbitrary and capricious?

To reach a conclusion, we must analyze each of the sanctions imposed upon petitioner in light the respondent's purpose in imposing the discipline. R-4 gives no specific rationale for the discipline, but respondent's brief makes it clear that the safety of other students, especially M.P., lay at the heart of its actions. Respondent's brief is rife with references to the potential danger G.A. represents to the student population of its high school. Therefore, in light of that perceived purpose, the question becomes, are any of the sanctions imposed so unreasonable as to be "patently arbitrary" or "without rational basis"? J.D. & E.D. o/b/o B.D., supra.

1. G.A. is suspended from school from March 4, 2004 through the conclusion of the school year on June 15, 2004.

Petitioner argues that respondent has "effectively expelled G.A. from school". I cannot honestly disagree. The June 15, 2004 date appears to have been specifically chosen because it coincides with "the conclusion of the school year". R-4. Given that petitioner violated N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2c rather than the more serious N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.2, his de facto expulsion borders on arbitrary and capricious. Were petitioner in a lower grade, I might be inclined to curtail the suspension. Petitioner cannot be barred forever from the school without formal expulsion.

But petitioner is not in a lower grade. He is a second semester senior. He has already been accepted into college. Respondent must balance petitioner's rights against the safety of MP and the rest of the student body.

Dr. McInerney stated that GA is not a threat and can safely be returned to school. His testimony is compelling, and were the standard of proof different, I would likely return GA to school at some point sooner than the end of the school year.

But the standard here is "arbitrary and capricious". Respondent must be concerned with its limited ability to monitor petitioner if he is returned to the student population. A modern high school is a crowded place. Students move about from class to class in a continuous maelstrom of activity. Petitioner could easily access MP, VM, AM, or any other student. If petitioner is allowed to return to school, respondent will have little control over his movements or activities.

Faced with the safety issue, respondent appears to have determined removal of the problem (G.A.) for the small amount of time left to him at Middle Township High School outweighed any minimal educational value which G.A. would derive from his final months of high school. In balance, I cannot find respondent's action to be "without rational basis". J.D. & E.D., supra.

2. G.A. is enjoined from any contact with MP, or from causing any other person to threaten, harass or intimidate MP on his behalf.

I see nothing to be gained from affording G.A. access to M.P.. And any further threat or intimidation would constitute further violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2. Respondent's determination on this issue is clearly not arbitrary and capricious.

3. G.A. is placed on the restricted activities list until the completion of the 2003-2004 school year and is not permitted to participate or attend any extracurricular or school-sponsored activities.

This restriction is harsh. It deprives G.A. of the pleasure of attending his prom, possibly his senior trip, and the other senior activities. But most of these activities involve crowds, crowds wherein supervision of G.A. will be difficult. Further, there is no rationale for suspending G.A. from school but permitting him to attend ancillary functions. In one sense, such a holding would appear to reward G.A. for his misconduct. Most students would revel in a scenario wherein they could avoid attending school but participate in the social activities the school generates.

Accordingly, with the exception set forth below, I cannot hold that respondent's determination on this issue is arbitrary and capricious.

4. G.A. is not permitted to participate in school-sponsored activities, including but not limited to Commencement Exercises.

Respondent's determination on this issue crosses the line. Respondent offers no reason for this prohibition. If respondent's concern is the safety of M.P., or of the student body as a whole, it is misplaced. Commencement differs from the prom, the class trip, and other senior activities because it is a tightly controlled event. The students march into the auditorium or stadium in a prearranged order. They sit in assigned seats at center stage, in clear view of all on-lookers. They proceed to the podium to receive their diplomas under the eyes of hundreds of watchers. They recede in orderly lines. The notion of G.A. extracting a knife from beneath his robes, charging across the stage, and chopping off some portion of M.P.'s anatomy in front of an audience of hundreds is so far-fetched as to reach the level of "without rational basis".

Although not plead anywhere, it is possible respondent attempts here to enforce some sort of unwritten "zero tolerance" policy, serving as a deterrent to others against future misconduct. If so, respondent's action is unduly punitive. Commencement is a seminal right of passage in our society, not only for the graduate, but also for his family. The ceremony marks the end of childhood for the graduate, and the end of the child-rearing years for his parents. It is a day of celebration for siblings, grandparents, and family friends. When respondent punishes petitioner in this way, it also punishes his entire family.

Such egregious overkill cannot be justified.

Respondent cites R.L. & K.L. o/b/o B.L. v. Kingsway Reg. Bd. Of Ed., 95 NJAR (EDU) 296 (May 5, 2995) in support of its position. In that case, the Commissioner upheld the Board's determination barring petitioner's attendance at Commencement. That case is easily distinguishable. It involved a high school senior who fondled seventh and eighth grade girls. G.A.'s offense in no way rises to such a level.

Based upon the above, I FIND and CONCLUDE that respondent's action barring petitioner's participation in Commencement Exercises is arbitrary, capricious, and without rational basis.

ORDER

I ORDER that respondent's determination barring petitioner from participation in Commencement Exercises be REVERSED.

I further ORDER that petitioner's suspension from school be lifted twenty-four hours prior to the date and time Commencement Exercises begin.

I further ORDER that petitioner be permitted to participate in Commencement Exercises.

I further ORDER that the remaining sanctions imposed upon petitioner by respondent's resolution of March 9, 2004, R-4, be AFFIRMED.

I further ORDER respondent to continue to provide petitioner with home instruction in accordance with the terms of the prior Order of April 8, 2004.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 2384-04
AGENCY DKT. NO. 111-3/04

C.A. AND B.A., on behalf of G.A.,	:
PETITIONERS,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF MIDDLE TOWNSHIP, CAPE MAY COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. The Board's exceptions and the petitioners' reply thereto were submitted in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

In its exceptions, the Board contends that the ALJ erred in concluding that G.A. had not committed an assault on M.P. as contemplated by N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.2. (Board's Exceptions at 3) In this regard, the Board argues that "the ALJ improperly divorced G.A.'s conduct in bringing two knives to school on February 19, 2004 from the specific threats recorded in the Internet chat on February 18, 2004." (Id. at 4) The Board continues:

> The ALJ found that the Board could reasonably conclude on these facts that G.A.'s threats during the Internet chat – to bring a knife to school and to cut various parts of M.P.'s body – were intended to put M.P. in fear of imminent bodily harm.  If that finding is reasonable, it supports the Board's decision that G.A. committed an assault as that offense is defined at N.J.S.A. 2C:12-1(a)(1).  More troubling, the morning after making his very specific threats, G.A. came to school with a knife which was seen by M.P. While the factual testimony of M.P. and G.A. at the March 9, 2004 hearing before the Board was in some measure divergent, G.A. testified clearly that he had a knife on February 19, 2004 and M.P.

> testified clearly that he saw the knife in G.A.'s hand that same day. The threat from the evening of February 18, 2004 coupled with G.A.'s possession of a knife on February 19, 2004 and his decision to take the knife out of his pocket in a manner that would have allowed M.P. to see the knife rises to the level of an assault with a weapon on school grounds that warrants disciplinary action against G.A. (Id. at 4-5)

In reply, petitioners counter that the ALJ correctly determined that G.A. had not committed an assault on M.P. so as not to be subject to discipline pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.2. (Petitioners' Reply at 1) Petitioners review the ALJ's factual findings in this regard and argue, in pertinent part:

> Nothing in any of the testimony suggest[s] that G.A.'s actions amounted to "physical menace" which placed M.P. "[i]n fear of imminent serious bodily injury" (emphasis added). Had G.A. opened the knife, there might be a stronger basis for respondent's action, but it is uncontroverted that the knife remained closed. ***
>
> The fact that G.A. briefly showed the closed knife to V.A. and in no way "brandished" it at M.P., or threatened M.P. with the knife in any way, makes it abundantly clear that G.A. did not attempt physical menace to put M.P. in fear of imminent serious bodily injury, and makes it clear there was no assault. (Id. at 2)

The Board next contends that the ALJ's decision to vacate G.A.'s restriction from commencement exercises impermissibly intrudes upon its authority to impose reasonable discipline, and impermissibly substitutes the ALJ's judgment for that of the Board. (Board's Exceptions at 6) Underscoring that it is petitioners' burden to demonstrate that the Board's action is improper, arbitrary or capricious, the Board stresses that the ALJ found that it did have good cause to discipline G.A. Furthermore, the Board imposed this restriction after a full hearing. Therefore, while the Board acknowledges that "[commencement is a seminal right of passage in our society, not only for the graduate, but also for his family," (id. at 7, citing Initial Decision at 14) it charges that "the ALJ is not ordinarily, and on these facts cannot be, permitted to elevate the interests of G.A.'s family above the reasonable determinations made by the Board of Education." (Id. at 7)

To this, petitioners reply that because the ALJ has the authority to determine whether discipline imposed upon a student is arbitrary and capricious, he may also modify or set aside such discipline. (Petitioners' Reply at 2) Although petitioners are cognizant that the school year is nearing an end, they nevertheless maintain their position that G.A. should have been returned to the regular school setting, and that the Board's failure to conduct any professional evaluations of him so as to inform its conclusion "that G.A. constituted 'a continuing danger to the physical well-being of the  students' (P-3)" (id.) renders its removal decision arbitrary and capricious. In support of this contention, petitioners cite to the State Board of Education's decision in P.H. and P.H., on behalf of minor child, M.C. v. Board of Education of the Borough of Bergenfield, Bergen County, David Hespe, Commissioner, and New Jersey State Board of Education, State Board decision, October 3, 2001. Thus, petitioners reason, there is no rational basis to exclude G.A. from his graduation ceremony, since there is no finding that he is a danger to anyone and the Board's disciplinary decision, based on "an assault that never occurred" was arbitrary and capricious.

Upon careful and independent review of the record herein, the Commissioner determines to modify the Initial Decision, as set forth below.

As the Initial Decision indicates, subsequent to a "shoving match" which took place between G.A. and M.P. on February 18, 2004, the boys engaged in a "conversation" on the internet the same night. Although the ALJ remarks that "[t]he transcript [of the conversation] reveals what on one level could be considered a typical example of teen-age male bravado ***"

(Initial Decision at 3), the Commissioner does not so lightly characterize the exchange, as it follows below.[1]

M.P.: you know, i didnt do anything to u but i was not say fag first, u were started w/it to pushed me
M.P.: then i called u a fag then u look like u were gonna 2 beat me up
G.A.: tell him i have a knife and im gonna chop off his pee pee[2]
M.P.: but u got w/secuirty
G.A.: so what
G.A.: he didn't do anything when i pushed
G.A.: so next time I will take out my knife and slice u
M.P.: oh really
M.P.: i bet u wouldnt do ever in ur life
G.A.: wanna bet
G.A.: start shit with me tomorrow and see what happens
M.P.: oh okay

G.A.: i'm gonna chop off ur dick and feed it to u
M.P.: oh okay
***
G.A.: then shove ur nuts up ur poop shooter
***
M.P.: your so damn nasty
G.A.: ur never ever gonna get any p_____
G.A.: ur mos homosexual
G.A.: ur mos scared too
M.P.: shut up and leave me alone
M.P.: you really cant do anything to me DUH
G.A. : yea why cant i?

M.P.: oh go ahead
G.A.: alrite
G.A.: tomorrow ur dead
M.P.: oh haha NO

[1] The students' initials are used, rather than their respective internet screen names.
[2] Apparently, segments of the Internet conversation took place between G.A. and V.M., and the messages were then forwarded to M.P. (Exhibit J-1 at 52)

G.A.: i will show u my knife before i slice ur face off
G.A.: u keep sayin stupid shit and i will kill u
G.A.: ur dead u f_____ faggot
(Exhibit R-1)

Although the ALJ observes that "Taken by itself, this example of excessive teen-age testosterone would not involve this Court or the Department of Education," (Initial Decision at 4) the Commissioner disagrees. G.A.'s statements alone can well be considered expressive behavior which hints at future violence, such that school officials may be concerned. Notwithstanding that G.A.'s declarations were from his home and projected into cyberspace, to the extent school officials reasonably believed that such speech could "substantially interfere with the work of the school or impinge upon the rights of other students," it is not likely to be protected by the First Amendment, Tinker v. Des Moines School Dist., 393 U.S. 503, 510 (1969); it may fairly be considered grounds for imposing serious sanctions, R.R. v. Bd. of Ed., Shore Reg. H.S., 109 N.J. Super. 337, 344 (Chan. Div. 1970); and it could not, from any responsible perspective, given the numerous, and even catastrophic, acts of violence that have occurred at schools in recent years, be dismissed as merely an example of "excessive teen-age testosterone." Indeed, a reasonable person may well interpret the words, which were specifically directed and delivered to M.P., as a serious expression of the intent to cause either present or future harm, so as to constitute a "true threat." Doe v. Pulaski County Special School Dist., 306 F.3d 616 (8th Cir. 2002) (en banc).

That G.A. chose to exacerbate this behavior by bringing two knives to school the next day only serves to render his misconduct more flagrant, giving the appearance, for all those charged with evaluating and responding to the situation, that G.A. was signaling an intent to act on the threats made the night before to M.P. Given the ALJ's factual findings with respect to the events that took place at G.A.'s locker, however, which are supported by the record herein, the Commissioner is constrained to agree that G.A.'s behavior, although sufficiently flagrant to warrant severe penalty, falls short of constituting an "assault" on M.P. on school property, on a school bus, or at a school sponsored function, in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.2.[3]

Notwithstanding, as noted by the ALJ, respondent had good cause to discipline G.A. pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2c. Significantly, although there is no requirement for mandatory removal under N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2c, the general statute which provides authority for the Board's disciplinary action, (Initial Decision at 11), the Commissioner finds that the Board's decision to immediately remove G.A. was not, under these circumstances, arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable. The nature of G.A.'s offense was quite serious. G.A. threatened to "chop" and "slice" various body parts of M.P., as well as to kill him, and it was prudent for the Board to view these threats as lending a serious and urgent context to G.A.'s subsequent decision to actually bring knives to school. Indeed, notwithstanding the phrasing of its "charges" to include an assault, the Board's letter to petitioners affirms that G.A.'s "external suspension is based on charges that [G.] possessed weapons (to wit two knives) on school property and made terroristic threats against student M.P. on February 19, 2004 (sic)." (Exhibit P-3) Therefore, the Commissioner finds that although the Board's initial removal decision was driven by an incorrect application of the law, G.A.'s removal from the regular education program, was not unwarranted.

[3] To the extent the Board argues that its initial removal of G.A. from school was pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2.2, it was bound by that statute, and its implementing regulations, to place G.A. in an alternative education program meeting the requirements of N.J.A.C. 6A:16-8. N.J.A.C. 6A:16-5.6(d). If such an alternative education program was not available, G.A. was to be placed on home instruction, according to N.J.A.C. 6A:16-9, until an alternative education placement became available. N.J.A.C. 6A:16-5.6(d)1. In this connection, the Commissioner notes that there is nothing in the Board's papers which acknowledges the mandates set forth in N.J.A.C. 6A:16-5.6 et seq., which must now be read in light of the State Board's decision in P.H. and P.H., on behalf of minor child, M.C. v. Board of Education of the Borough of Bergenfield, Bergen County, David Hespe, Commissioner, and New Jersey State Board of Education, State Board decision, July 2, 2002.

As for G.A.'s continued suspension from school, the Commissioner is not persuaded on this record that petitioners have demonstrated by a preponderance of credible evidence that placing him on a program of home instruction for the balance of the school year was an abuse of the Board's discretion, particularly where petitioners acknowledge that the Board "has a policy that permits a student to be suspended up to one year for the possession of a weapon." (Petitioners' Motion for Emergent Relief at 4)[4] Moreover, although until recently his disciplinary infractions may have been characterized as "minor," G.A.'s record is not unblemished and, in fact, the Board was about to suspend him for being under the influence of marijuana in school in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:40A-12 at the time this incident took place. While choosing to focus primarily on the question of whether an assault took place in school, petitioners appear to lose sight of the compelling facts that G.A. (1) threatened M.P. in a manner sufficient to warrant criminal charges and (2) brought two knives to school the next day.

Further, it is important to consider the Board's decision to restrict G.A.'s participation in extracurricular activities separate from its decision to remove him from the regular education program, since a student's entitlement to a through and efficient education does not, as a general principle, extend to extracurricular activities. More specifically, exclusion from attendance at graduation exercises, because it is a privilege and not a right, has long been upheld in discipline cases. See, e.g., C.B., on behalf of minor child, L.B. v. Board of Education of the Eastern Camden County Regional School District, Camden County, Commissioner decision No. 191-01L, June 15, 2001 (Student prohibited from attending extracurricular activities, including graduation ceremony, for shoplifting in Disney World on class trip); Nicholas Dentino v. Board of Education of the Borough of Haddonfield, Camden County, Commissioner Decision No. 161-00E, May 19, 2000 (Student suspended for remainder of the school year for vandalizing the school was properly excluded from graduation exercises); C.S., on behalf of minor child, C.O. v. Board of Education of the Lower Camden County Regional High School District Number One, Camden County, Commissioner Decision No. 299-98, July 8, 1998 (Board's suspension of senior for one year for possession of marijuana on school grounds, including denial of participation in activities such as graduation exercises, upheld as reasonable and appropriate); D.D., on behalf of minor L.D. v. Board of Education of the City of Ocean City, Cape May County, Commissioner decision No. 262-96EL, June 19, 1996 (Student denied participation in graduation ceremonies for violation of substance abuse policy); and B.G., B.B. and Deborah Van Pelt v. Board of Education of the Borough of Elmwood Park, 1974 S.L.D. 611 (Petitioners, all suspended five times during the school year for "cutting" classes, were properly barred from attending graduation ceremonies).

Based upon the facts on this record, the Commissioner determines that the Board did not abuse its discretion in restricting G.A.'s participation in, or attendance at, any school-sponsored extracurricular activities and, contrary to the ALJ's finding, determines that such extracurricular restriction may reasonably extend to commencement exercises.[5] Notwithstanding that graduation may be "a seminal right of passage" both for G.A. and his family (Initial Decision at 14), the honor of participating in his graduation ceremony is one that G.A. must justifiably forfeit as a result of his serious transgressions; his remorse, at this stage, is simply insufficient to overcome the Board's presumption of correctness.

[5] The Commissioner also concurs with the ALJ that there is nothing arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable about the Board's decision to enjoin G.A. from any contact with M.P., or from causing any person to threaten, harass or intimidate M.P. on his behalf.

Accordingly, the Initial Decision is modified as set forth herein. The sanctions imposed by the Board on March 9, 2004 are affirmed and home instruction is to continue in accordance with the order of the ALJ.

IT IS SO ORDERED.[6]

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF ELSIE GRAHAM, STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF NEWARK, ESSEX COUNTY.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION DECISION

For Petitioner: Arsen Zartarian, Esq., State-operated School District of the City of Newark

This matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education on March 12, 2004 through the certification of tenure charges alleging inefficiency and incompetence against a tenured teacher employed by the State-operated School District of the City of Newark (hereinafter, "District").

By notice dated March 16, 2004, the Commissioner directed respondent, via both certified and regular mail, to file an Answer to the tenure charges against her.[1] A copy of the notice was also provided to respondent's union counsel. This communication from the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes clearly provided respondent notice that, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.3 and 6A:3-5.4, an individual against whom tenure charges are certified shall have 15 days from the date such charges are filed with the Commissioner to file a written response to the charges, and that failure to answer within the prescribed period, where no extension has been applied for and granted, or where there has been a submission by the charged employee of a responsive filing indicating that she does not contest the charges, will result in the charges being deemed admitted by the charged employee. N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5(c). Because no reply has been received in response to the District's charges from respondent, or on her behalf, each count of the charges against respondent is deemed to be admitted.

The Commissioner's review of the tenure charges certified against respondent by the District and the statement of evidence in support of those charges indicate that since September 1999, respondent has demonstrated an inability to competently and responsibly execute her duties as a teacher, despite the provision of a 90-day improvement period, as required by N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.1(c), from October 13, 2003 until January 27, 2004. The record shows that respondent has failed to:

- Effectively implement lesson plans and achieve educational goals;
- Satisfactorily establish learning objectives, or plan and prepare instruction consistent with appraisal of individual student needs and requirements;
- Exhibit satisfactory teaching techniques and satisfactorily use effective instructional methods and resources;
- Implement skills which include a variety of instructional strategies and meet the varied ability levels and learning styles of all students;
- Improve the effectiveness and delivery of her instruction despite significant assistance from administrative staff;
- Improve her absenteeism rates; and
- Meet acceptable standards of professional behavior. (Tenure Charges at 1-2)

The Commissioner recognizes that the enabling statute provides that tenured staff shall not be dismissed or reduced in compensation "except for inefficiency, incapacity, unbecoming conduct, or other just cause." N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10. The Commissioner further notes that "[w]hether the charges fall under any of the categories is a determination for [him] to make." In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Walter Driscoll, School District of Woodstown-Pilesgrove Regional High School, Salem County, decided October 25, 1983, Docket No. A-748-82T2. Deeming the above charges to be admitted, and noting that respondent does not deny the specific allegations contained therein, the Commissioner finds that the District has demonstrated that respondent's inefficiencies, as noted herein, are sufficient to warrant her dismissal.

IT IS ORDERED this 15th day of June 2004 that summary decision shall be granted to the District, and respondent shall be dismissed from her tenured position as a teacher in the District's employ as of the date of this order. This matter shall be referred to the State Board of Examiners pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.6(a)1 for action against respondent's certificate as it deems appropriate.[2]

HEARING OF ELMER FERRER	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

LONG BRANCH, MONMOUTH COUNTY:

For the Board, McOmber & McOmber, P.C.

Elmer Ferrer, Pro Se

This matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education on April 19, 2004, through the certification of tenure charges against a tenured custodian alleging abandonment of his position with the Long Branch School District.

By notice dated April 20, 2004, the Commissioner directed respondent, via both certified and regular mail, the certified copy having been signed for on April 26, 2004, to file an Answer to the tenure charges against him. This communication from the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes clearly provided respondent notice that, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.3 and 6A:3-5.4, an individual against whom tenure charges are certified shall have 15 days from the date such charges are filed with the Commissioner to file a written response to the charges, and that failure to answer within the prescribed period, where no extension has been applied for and granted, will result in the charges being deemed admitted by the charged employee. Because no reply has been received from respondent, or any attorney on his behalf, in response to the District's charges, each count of the charges against respondent is deemed to be admitted. N.J.A.C. 6A:5-3(c).

The Commissioner's review of the tenure charges certified against respondent by the Board and the statement of evidence in support of those charges indicates that respondent has been employed with the Board since November of 1992. In 1996, respondent claimed an injury at work and was involved in subsequent workers' compensation claims and litigation. Based on information provided by the workers compensation carrier, respondent should have returned to work on or about December 2002; repeated efforts to reach him at his last known address have not led to any contact. Respondent is not receiving a salary, has not attempted to contact the Board office or any of his direct supervisors, and has not responded to any of the Board's inquiries. Because of his lack of communication and his failure to attend to his custodial duties, the Board concludes that Mr. Ferrer has abandoned his position as a tenured custodian with the Long Branch Board of Education. (Sworn Affidavit of Evidence of Archie Greenwood, Assistant Superintendent at 1-2)

Deeming the within charges to be admitted, and noting that respondent has chosen not to deny the allegations against him, the Commissioner concludes that the Board has demonstrated that respondent has abandoned his position with the District.[1]

IT IS ORDERED this 17th day of June 2004 that that summary decision shall be granted to the District, and Elmer Ferrer shall be dismissed from his tenured position as a custodian in the Board's employ as of the date of this order.[2]

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning teacher alleged the Board's action in charging her sick days for work-related injury violated N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1.

In January 2004, the Workers' Compensation Court approved a settlement with dismissal but did not determine whether petitioner was in the course of her employment when the accident occurred. Neither was the "going and coming issue" decided (petitioner had signed in and then left the school to find parking when she was hit by a vehicle). The ALJ noted that recent cases seem to stand for the proposition that employees who travel to a regular fixed location are not covered by the workers' compensation statute until they are on the premises working. The ALJ determined that petitioner was not injured in an accident arising out of her employment; petitioner had signed in but was not at work, she was looking for a place to park her vehicle and complete her journey to her place of employment. The ALJ concluded that the Board correctly charged petitioner's sick leave account for the 21 days she was absent while recovering from the accident. Petition was dismissed.

The Commissioner adopted the Initial Decision as his own.

This synopsis is not part of the Commissioner's decision. It has been prepared for the convenience of the reader. It has been neither reviewed nor approved by the Commissioner.

BEFORE EDGAR R. HOLMES, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

When an employee is injured in an accident arising out of her employment, she may receive full salary while absent for up to one year without having such absence charged to her annual sick leave. N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1. Petitioner appeals from the Board of Education's determination that the accident petitioner suffered did not occur in the course of her employment. Accordingly, the Board of Education charged petitioner's sick leave account for the 21 working days during which she recovered from her accident. The petitioner requested a fair hearing and the matter was transmitted to the OAL on September 3, 2003, to be heard as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to 15 and 14F-1 to 13. The matter was heard on stipulated facts and cross-motions for summary judgment.

A SUMMARY OF THE RELEVANT FACTS

The parties agreed as follows:

1. Petitioner, on February 24, 2003, was an employee, teacher of eighth grade Social Studies at a school named the Ohio Avenue School (hereinafter referred to as "the school") located in the Atlantic City School District.

2. Petitioner has been an employee, full-time teacher since on or about 1989 in the Atlantic City School District which district is the respondent employer.

3. The school is located on the northwest corner of Ohio and Pacific Avenues in Atlantic City, New Jersey.

4. There is no designated parking lot for teacher employees.

5. There is an adjacent parking lot which is designated for use by individuals working in the central administrative offices only. A second parking lot, that is not owned and/or operated by the school district, is utilized by the maintenance personnel of the school district only.

6. Teacher employees such as petitioner were instructed verbally and by memo from agents of the respondent not to park in the adjacent parking areas since those were reserved for other employees.

7. Each teacher employee in the school year 2002-2003 and specifically on February 24, 2003, were required to sign a "sign-in sheet" which records the teacher employees' check-in time, which "sign-in sheet" is also signed by the employee at the close of the work day.

8. On Tuesday, the 24th of February, 2003, petitioner drove her privately-owned vehicle from her home and parked it facing east on the northern curb of Ohio Avenue and turned the blinkers on. The petitioner exited the vehicle from the driver's side, entered the school, signed the "sign-in sheet," and deposited her papers, teacher's manual and tote bag at the security desk at the front entrance, and then exited the building and re-entered her car, as was often her custom.

9. Since there is no designated parking area for teacher employees, she proceeded to scout the surrounding areas for a parking space and in fact, parked her car on Ohio Avenue facing east on the north curb line between Arctic and Fairmount, approximately two and a half blocks west of the school.

10. The petitioner employee, after parking and securing her vehicle on the north curb line of Ohio Avenue, began walking east toward the school, and as she crossed the bisecting street of Arctic Avenue, when a vehicle traveling east on Ohio Avenue which had just approached Arctic Avenue, took a left-hand turn to proceed north on Arctic, the vehicle came in contact with the petitioner who was then a pedestrian crossing the roadway at the intersection of Arctic and Ohio Avenues while she was walking toward the school.

11. The accident report attached filed by the Atlantic City Police Department shows the time to be approximately 7:15 a.m.

12. The petitioner was transported to the Atlantic City Medical Center where she received 18 stitches in the rear of her head, as well as receiving other soft tissue injuries to her neck, right shoulder and right leg.

13. Petitioner's doctors did not release her to return to work until March 25, 2003, which caused her to be absent from work for 21 days.

14. Respondent does not question petitioner's inability to work for 21 days as a result of the injury.

15. Respondent employer paid the petitioner for the 21 days from February 24, 2003, through March 25, 2003, but the payment was charged against petitioner's accumulated sick leave.

16. Petitioner filed with the Commissioner of Education on the 12th of May, 2003, requesting a reinstatement of the teacher's 21 docked sick days pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1.

17. Subsequently, on July 18, 2003, petitioner filed a Workers' Compensation Claim against the respondent in the Workers' Compensation Court and the Commissioner stayed the action until the Workers' Compensation Court disposed of the matter.

18. On January 18, 2004, the Workers' Compensation Court approved a settlement with dismissal under Section N.J.S.A. 34:15-20, and the Court specifically did not determine whether the petitioner was in the course of her employment, or the "going and coming issue" was not decided, and specifically, on the record it was stated that it was reserved for decision in the appropriate jurisdiction.

LEGAL DISCUSSION

The parties identify a single phrase in the statute as the issue to be determined in this matter.

> Whenever any employee, entitled to sick leave under this chapter, is absent from his post of duty as a result of a personal injury caused by an accident arising out of and in the course of his employment, his employer shall pay to such employee the full salary or wages for the period of such absence > for up to one calendar year without having such absence charged to the annual sick leave or the accumulated sick leave provided in N.J.S. 18A:30-2 and 18A:30-3.

Legal and judicial discussion of the question of when an employee is acting within the scope of her employment has a long history in the field of workers' compensation law. Employer liability attaches only when a person is within that scope. The parties' briefs indicate that it is to this body of law we must look in order to resolve the issue.

Particular attention has been paid to the issue of travel from one's home to one's workplace and the return trip. When and under what circumstances does travel to and from the workplace to home implicate employer liability for the purpose of allocating workers' compensation benefits. This concept is known as the "going and coming rule."

A graphic illustration of the rule over time would resemble an accordion or concertina. The concept expanded until 1979 at which time it was severely curtailed by the legislature. Since then it has expanded again. 38 N.J. Pract. (Gelman) 8.4.

The recent cases seem to stand for the proposition that employees who travel to a regular fixed location are not covered by the workers' compensation statute until they are on the premises, doing what they are supposed to be doing. Jumpp v. City of Ventnor, 203 WL 21921277 N.J. 2003.

The exceptions to this rule arise when there is a palpable nexus to the employer while the travel is accomplished, such as when the employee is paid to travel; Brown v. American Red Cross, 272 N.J. Super. 173 (App. Div. 1994); or when the employee is required to park in the employer's parking lot. Livingston v. Abraham & Straus, Inc., 111 N.J. 89.

In the instant case, petitioner relies on the Livingston case, supra, but she puts some back spin on it.

Instead of liability attaching because petitioner parked in a company (school) parking lot, she argues that liability attaches because she was forbidden to park in the company (school) parking lot.

However, the reason for the exception in Livingston, supra, is that the employer exercised control over its parking lot. That is the nexus. Here petitioner could park only where the employer exercised no control and, therefore, the nexus is simply not there.

The fact that petitioner clocked in while on her way to find a parking place does not entitle her to the benefits of the statute. This was a benefit only to her, not to her employer. This was a deviation from what the employer would expect of employees. Once a person signs in, they are assumed to be at work. Petitioner was not at work. She was looking for a place to park her vehicle and complete her journey to her place of employment.

I FIND that petitioner was not injured in an accident arising out of her employment.

CONCLUSION

I CONCLUDE that the board of Education correctly charged petitioner's sick leave account for the 21 days she was absent while recovering from the accident.

ORDER

I AFFIRM the action of the Atlantic City Board of Education. I ORDER that petitioner's complaint be DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF BUTLER, MORRIS COUNTY,	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning sending Board of Education (Bloomingdale) contended respondent receiving district Board of Education (Butler) was prohibiting its representative from voting on certain matters in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.1 and applicable case law. Each Board submitted a cross-motion for summary decision.

The ALJ denied both Boards' motions and directed that the matter proceed to plenary hearing, reasoning that operative law requires subtle distinctions among agenda items that cannot be made in the absence of a fully developed factual record. The Boards contended that the ALJ's Order created an unworkable standard and jointly requested interlocutory review for purposes of establishing a "bright line test."

The Commissioner granted the requested review and rejected the ALJ's Order. Reiterating the standard set forth in prior case law (Lincoln Park, Little Ferry and Green), the Commissioner granted Butler's motion for summary decision, holding that the agenda items on which the Bloomingdale Board member had been prohibited from voting were neither procedural/organizational nor expressly enumerated in N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.1, and were, therefore, beyond the scope of authority conferred upon sending district board members by applicable statute and case law.

RE: Bloomingdale BOE v. Butler BOE - OAL Dkt. No. EDU 9367-03

Dear Counsel:

I have completed my review and consideration of the cross-motions for summary decision in this matter and the following constitutes my letter opinion denying both motions.

This matter involves a challenge by the petitioner, Bloomingdale Board of Education (Bloomingdale), to certain restrictions which the respondent, Butler Board of Education (Butler), has determined to place on the Bloomingdale Board's single representative to the Butler Board. That representative sits as a result of a Sending-Receiving Agreement for grades 9-12 between the two school districts. In its Verified Petition of Appeal filed in July 2003, Bloomingdale, a K-8 school district, alleged in respect to its one representative that Butler has prevented him from exercising his rights as a full member in violation of law. In particular, that he was prevented from voting upon the following items: a memorandum of agreement with the District Medical Inspector for the 2002-2003 school year, use of Butler High School facilities for Butler Booster Club meetings, approval of an agreement with the Butler Custodian and Maintenance Association, approval of an employment contract with the District Supervisor of Building and Grounds, approval of the monthly reports of the Butler Board Secretary and Treasurer, approval of the appointment or reappointment of Butler High School employees including but not limited to substitute teachers, substitute cafeteria workers, Resource Center/Library teachers' aides and maintenance and custodial personnel and the approval of the appointment of a Secretary for Special Services.

Moreover, it was alleged that at the organizational meeting of the Butler Board held in April 2003 the Bloomingdale member was prevented from voting on the appointments of the Treasurer of School Monies and Alternate Treasurer of School Monies. In addition, that the Bloomingdale appointee was prevented from voting with respect to the approval of a wide range of other professional appointments including, inter alia, Architect, Attorney, Broker, Auditor, Insurance Agent, Negotiations Consultant, Medical Inspector, Public Agency Compliance Officer, Asbestos Program Manager, Health and Safety Designee, Chemical Hygiene Officer, Affirmative Action Officer/Title IX Coordinator and a representative to the Pooled Insurance Program of New Jersey.

The Verified Petition also alleged that the Bloomingdale member was prohibited from voting with respect to the following business items: (a) the designation of Board of Education accounts; (b) the respective required signatures on checks; and (c) the Business Administrator/Board Secretary's authority to invest school district funds.

Accordingly, Bloomingdale sought a declaratory judgment permitting its representative to: (a) participate in debate regarding resolutions of district-wide importance; (b) directing the respondent to count the vote of the Bloomingdale Board member on all resolutions of district-wide importance, and (c) for such other relief as the Commissioner shall deem appropriate.

In its Answer to the Verified Petition, Butler essentially denied it was prohibiting the Bloomingdale's representative from voting on any matter which by law he could properly vote upon and that its actions were entirely consistent with, and conformed to, all of the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.2(a)(2).

In October 2003 the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case and assigned to the undersigned Administrative Law Judge. Soon thereafter, counsel advised that the case appeared to them to be an appropriate one for the filing of cross-motions for summary decision and a schedule was established for the same. Subsequently, those cross-motions were filed, together with a Joint Stipulation of Facts.

JOINT STIPULATION OF FACTS

Pursuant to the agreed upon schedule, a Joint Stipulation of Facts has been submitted and it is set forth verbatim below with exhibit references omitted:

"1. At all times relevant herein, the Bloomingdale Board has been in a sending-receiving agreement pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8 with the Butler Board, whereby the Bloomingdale Board sends its high school students, grades 9 through 12, to the Butler High School, in exchange for per-student remuneration.

2. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 entitles the Bloomingdale Board to have one representative sit on the Butler Board and to vote on certain enumerated matters.

3. At the Butler Board meeting held on September 23, 2002, the Bloomingdale Board member was prohibited from voting on the following matters:

a. A memorandum of agreement with the District Medical Inspector for the 2002-2003 school year; and
b. The use of the Butler High School facilities for Butler Booster Club Meetings.

4. At the Butler Board meeting held on November 21, 2002, the Bloomingdale Board member was prohibited from voting on the following matters:

a. Approval of an agreement with the Butler Custodial and Maintenance Association; and
b. Approval of an employment contract with the District Supervisor of Buildings and Grounds.

5. At the Butler Board meetings held regularly throughout the 2002-2003 school year, the Bloomingdale Board member was prohibited from voting on the following matters:

a. The approval of the monthly reports of the Butler Board Secretary and Treasurer;
b. The approval of the appointment or reappointment of Butler High School employees including, but not limited to, substitute teachers, substitute cafeteria workers, Resource Center/Library teachers' aides, and maintenance and custodial personnel; and

c. The approval of the appointment of the secretary for Special Services.

6. At the Butler Board Organization Meeting held on April 28-29, 2003, the Bloomingdale Board member was prohibited from voting on the following matters:

a. Approval of the appointment of the Treasurer of School Monies;

b. Approval of the appointment of the Alternate Treasurer of School Monies;

c. Approval of the professional appointments of the 2003-2004 school year, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-2 et seq., as follows:

   a. Architect of Record;

   b. Attorney;

   c. Broker of Record, Employee Benefit Programs;

   d. Auditor;

   e. Insurance Agent;

   f. Negotiations Consultant; and

   g. Medical Inspector.

d. Approval of the designation of Board of Education Accounts and the respective required signatures;

e. Approval of the following appointments for the 2003-2004 school year:

   a. Public Agency Compliance Officer;

   b. Asbestos Program Manager;

   c. Health and Safety Designee;

   d. Chemical Hygiene Officer;

   e. Affirmative Action Officer/Title IX Coordinator; and

   f. Representative to the Pooled Insurance Program of New Jersey.

f. Approval to authorize the Butler Business Administrator/Board Secretary to invest Butler funds in such instruments as she is legally empowered.

7. While voting rights of the Bloomingdale Board member were curtailed at all relevant times herein, the Butler Board did not limit the Bloomingdale Board member's right to participate in discussions.

8. During this time period, by way of a letter from counsel, the Bloomingdale Board expressed its concerns that its representative to the Butler Board was having his voting rights unlawfully curtailed. While the parties' respective counsel continued to correspond, and narrow some differences, ultimately the parties have determined that they were unable to agree upon the voting rights of the Bloomingdale Board member sitting on the Butler Board under N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.1.

9. On or about July 23, 2003, the Bloomingdale Board filed a Verified Petition of Appeal in this matter setting forth instances wherein the Bloomingdale Board member sitting on the Butler Board was prohibited from voting on issues before the Butler Board."

DISCUSSION

Bloomingdale maintains that all of the items which its representative was prohibited from voting upon were "procedural matters" and therefore in contravention of the decision in Little Ferry BOE v. Ridgefield Park BOE, Final Decision (July 24, 1997), hdtp://www.nj.gov/njded/legal, which held that a sending district's representative could vote not only on the election of Board officers, but also upon "other procedural matters" attendant to the orderly conduct of Board operations. Butler, in reply, maintains that none of the matters in respect to which the Bloomingdale representative was prohibited from voting upon fell within the scope of either the statute or any Commissioner's decision since they affected only the conduct, operations and activities of the Butler Board.

Since this case involves cross-motions for summary decision, a brief reference to the decisional authority in that area is appropriate. Under N.J.A.C. 1:-12.5(a), any party may move for summary decision (the OAL equivalent of *R.*4:46-2(c)) upon all or any of the substantive issues in a case. In considering the motion an ALJ may rule in favor of the movant where the papers filed, together with any supporting affidavits or certifications, establish that no genuine issue of material fact exists and that the moving party is entitled to summary decision as a matter of law. Thus, as the New Jersey Supreme Court observed in Brill v. Guardian Life Insurance Co., 142 N.J. 520 (1995), in determining whether summary disposition is appropriate the judge must analyze, " . . . whether the evidence presents a sufficient disagreement to require [a hearing] or whether it is so one-sided that one party must prevail as a matter of law". Id. at 536. (citations omitted). Thus, the motion should be denied where the party opposing it has come forward with evidence that minimally creates a genuine issue of material fact challenged. See also, In the Matter of Robros Recycling Corp. 226 N.J. Super. 343 (App. Div. 1988), certif. denied. 113 N.J. 368 (1988).

The statute applicable to the instant matter is N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.1 which, as amended in 1996, provides as follows:

> "In addition to the members of the board of education of a Type I and Type II school district provided by law, in a school district which is receiving pupils from another district or districts pursuant to N.J.S. 18A:38-8, there shall be an additional member as provided pursuant to Section 2 of this Act to represent the board of education of each sending district. Any additional member shall be a member of the board of education of a sending district designated annually by the board of that district and shall be eligible to vote on the following matters before the receiving district board of education:
>
> a. Tuition to be charged the sending district by the receiving district and the bill lists or contracts for purchase, operation or maintenance of facilities, equipment and instructional materials to be used in the education of the pupils of the sending district;
>
> b. New capital construction to be utilized by sending district pupils;
>
> c. Appointment, transfer or removal of teaching staff members providing services to pupils of the sending district, including any teaching staff member who is a member of the receiving district's central administrative staff; and
> d. Addition or deletion of curricular and extracurricular programs involving pupils of the sending district." (emphasis added).

In Lincoln Park BOE v. Boonton BOE, 97 N.J.R. 2d (EDU) 592, the first case decided under the statute, its legislative history was discussed. As originally proposed, it expansively authorized the sending district's representative to, "vote on all matters before the receiving district board of education, except those matters pertaining exclusively to the grades of the receiving district in which no students from the sending district are enrolled including, but not limited to matters of facilities, personnel and programs". Id. at 596. The bill was vetoed by former Governor Whitman. Nevertheless, in her veto message, the Governor pointed out that the goal of the bill was a laudable one since it was designed to foster an atmosphere of trust and cooperation between the respective boards.

Governor Whitman expressed two major concerns; (a) that the bill could provide disproportionate representation to the sending district; and (b) that it authorized the sending district representative to vote on all matters even those which might not affect the sending district. See, Governor Whitman's Veto Message with Recommendations for Reconsideration, S.151 (October 20, 1994). Thus, changes she then recommended had to do with the formula for determining the percentage of representation by the sending district and limiting the voting rights of the sending district representative to certain areas.

By virtue of the Governor's veto message, the statute was conformed and became effective in January 1995. Thereafter, in August 1996, it was amended in order to clarify further the voting rights of the sending district's appointee. The Senate Education Committee statement to the amendment (S.1031), Laws 1996, Chapter 103, observed that language had been added to permit the sending district's representative to vote on the appointment, transfer or removal of professional staff who provide services to pupils of the sending district.

Since N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.1 addresses only two subjects, the sending district's entitlement to membership on a receiving district's board of education and the designation of those matters he or she is eligible to vote upon, interpretation of the statute must begin with a consideration of its plain language. According to Lincoln Park, supra, there was no language expressing an intention to limit either the sending district appointee's access to documents/information or his or her level of participation outside of voting eligibility. Thus, the position taken by Boonton, the respondent in that case, was described as a "leap" which would severely circumscribe the Lincoln Park member's rights and had no basis, express or implied, in the statute or the legislative history. Id. at 596. Also, Boonton regrettably had been found to have alienated and hindered the collaboration anticipated by the sending-receiving relationship. Id. at 597. Indeed, even though the Governor, in her veto message had recommended more limited voting eligibility, which the Legislature then adopted, she accurately pointed out, as noted, that the underlying intent of the legislation was to promote cooperation between the two school districts in order to foster an atmosphere of trust and interpretations of disputes arising under the statute have to bear that fundamental principle in mind. See, e.g., Callowhill v. Atlantic City BOE, 96 N.J.R. 2d (EDU) 693 where the Commissioner noted that since the sending district's appointee could vote on the contracts of the Superintendent of Schools and the School Business Administrator, it made no sense to preclude the member from participating, as well, in discussion of the evaluative comments regarding those positions. However, with respect to the Board Solicitor position involved in Callowhill, since there was no demonstration of an entitlement to vote on that individual's contract, there was no basis to compel participation in evaluative discussions.

Thereafter, in the Little Ferry case, supra, decided a few months after Lincoln Park, the specific question was whether a sending district representative could vote on matters that were considered procedural or organizational. The sending district (Little Ferry) argued that excluding its member from such determinations clearly contravened its statutory rights and that although N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.1 limited specific voting rights with respect to "issues confronting the Board", neither the language of the statute nor the position taken by the Commissioner in Lincoln Park dictated that the representative was not entitled to essential attributes of "full board membership" including, in particular, meaningful involvement in the procedural and organizational matters of the Board such as election of officers.

The respondent in that case, Ridgefield Park, had maintained that the statute clearly limited the scope of voting rights conferred upon the sending district representative and since voting for the election of officers was not delineated specifically in the statute, which otherwise was narrowly prescribed, the Commissioner should not extend the voting rights.

In his decision, as noted, the Commissioner determined, based upon his reading of the statute and the earlier Lincoln Park decision, that the sending district's representative was entitled not only to vote on the election of board officers, but also on "other procedural matters" attendant to the orderly conduct of board operations. As he recognized in Lincoln Park, the statute had a dual purpose: (1) granting the sending district's representative entitlement to membership; and (2) designating those matters before the board upon which the representative was entitled to vote. Consistent with that duality the Commissioner observed that notwithstanding the limitation on voting rights respecting substantive matters arising before the board, in all other respects the sending district's representative, by virtue of the statutory entitlement to a seat on the receiving district board, is empowered to function as a full member of the board. Accordingly, the Commissioner determined that eligibility for full participation, including voting rights, in those procedural and organizational matters necessary to insure the effective operation of the board, did inure to the sending district representative by virtue of his or her board membership. Moreover, he explained that statutory restrictions governing voting rights on substantive matters cannot be superimposed on a separately granted membership right, thereby depriving the sending district's representation of full and effective participation as a board member. Thus, the Commissioner rejected Ridgefield Park's position that voting rights were limited to those specifically articulated in N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.1 since such a reading would be unduly restrictive, inapposite to the legislative history and contrary to the underlying intent of the statute itself.

Based upon my review and consideration of the Joint Stipulation of Facts, the statute and the case law in this area, it appears to me the items in dispute simply are not capable of resolution in a summary fashion. Whether or not an item is "procedural" as opposed to "substantive", whether or not a matter is "of district-wide importance" and whether or not in any particular case the receiving district Board's position is "unduly restrictive" within the context of the case law are not matters which are easily resolved. In order properly to determine whether a sending district's representative is eligible for full participation, including voting rights, in those procedural and organizational matters necessary to insure the effective operation of the Board itself, primarily fact sensitive issues, a fully developed record is required.

For example, among the items at issue in this case is the question of the appointment of an architect. Is that procedural or substantive? Do the duties and responsibilities of the architect touch in any meaningful way on the interests of the students from Bloomingdale who attend Butler High School? Without exploring in greater detail the duties and responsibilities of that position, as well as several others in issue, one can only offer conclusionary statements that may or may not have a solid grounding in the actual facts. This case is deserving of a more deliberative approach.

Other than the two decisions in Lincoln Park, supra, and Little Ferry, supra, there is little real guidance in terms of the application of the statute. A full and complete record which comprehensibly explores what many of these people do, and how, if at all, the activities impact in the pertinent areas identified by the Commissioner must be fleshed out and explored. The decision in Little Ferry (voting on Board organization) was a rather straightforward one in terms of procedural versus substantive. This is not the case with many of the issues before me.

Accordingly, given the rather sparse record in this case and the absence of detailed descriptions of what the people whose appointments are in issue actually do in terms of the activities of the Board and how it impacts on the Bloomingdale students I would be remiss if I moved forward in a summary fashion. For example, while the district medical inspector is not a teaching staff member; nevertheless, that person very well may be involved in the physical health and welfare of Bloomingdale's students who attend Butler High School. Does the statute preclude Bloomingdale's representative from having a voice in his or her selection? These and other such questions as to the appointments issue and the business issues abound in this case and for the reasons expressed, not to mention the language of the OAL rule, summary disposition is not appropriate. Thus, the cross-motions therefore are denied.

Counsel kindly will prepare an appropriate form of order which embodies this determination concerning the cross-motions and to which the instant letter opinion should be attached and incorporated by reference.

Either or both counsel may, of course, wish to pursue an interlocutory appeal which is their prerogative. In the meantime, this will serve as a reminder that the case remains scheduled for plenary hearing on September 24, 2004.

Very truly yours,

Stephen G. Weiss

This matter comes before the Commissioner by way of a joint request for interlocutory review of the Letter Order of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) denying the parties' cross-motions for summary decision. The request was submitted, granted and briefed in accordance with the provisions of N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.10.

In the Order under review, the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) concluded that the agenda items in dispute were not amenable to analysis in the absence of a fully developed record, since the operative statutes and case law require fact-sensitive distinctions between "procedural" and "substantive" items, as well as a determination of the extent to which any particular item is "of district-wide importance" or any particular sending-district-member voting prohibition is "unduly restrictive." (Letter Order at 9) The parties contend that this standard is unworkable, effectively contemplating factual analysis of every vote taken by the Butler Board of Education; they therefore ask that the Commissioner reject the ALJ's recommendation, decide the case as a matter of law and create a "bright line test" to be relied upon by the parties without the need to debate each time a matter comes up for vote before the Butler Board. (Request for Interlocutory Review at 5-6)

The Bloomingdale Board claims that N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.1 provides "inherent rights to [its] representative by virtue of his membership on the receiving district's board," and that the Commissioner's decisions in Little Ferry, supra, and Lincoln Park, supra, confer upon sending district board members the full spectrum of rights attendant to membership on receiving boards. According to Bloomingdale, such rights "undoubtedly include voting on procedural and organizational matters" which "clearly are of district-wide importance and affect the Butler High School"; these include but are not limited to: "the professional appointments of non-teaching staff employees at the high school level; teaching staff members; the designation of Board of Education accounts and required signatures; the approval of financial depositories; and the approval of outside organizations' use of school facilities." Therefore, Bloomingdale contends, as a matter of law, its representative on the Butler Board is entitled to vote, in addition to those matters specified in N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.1, on all "procedural matters, high school issues, and matters of district-wide importance." (Bloomingdale's Brief at 3-8). In response to Butler's arguments in opposition, Bloomingdale denies that it is attempting to expand the substantive voting rights of its representative and counters that it is merely attempting to compel Butler to honor the procedural and organizational voting rights conferred by law, particularly the Commissioner's decision in Little Ferry, supra. (Bloomingdale's Reply Brief at 1-5)

Upon review of the ALJ's Order, the briefs of the parties and the Stipulation of Facts which together constitute the substantive record of this matter, the Commissioner determines to reject the recommended Order and grant summary decision to the Butler Board of Education.

The Commissioner is unpersuaded by Bloomingdale's attempt to characterize the matters on which it contends its representative is entitled to vote as "procedural and organizational" within the meaning of the Commissioner's decision in Little Ferry, supra. Indeed, the Commissioner finds that Bloomingdale's claims are premised on an erroneous reading of Little Ferry, and that, to a great extent, the ALJ has accepted that reading in reaching his conclusion on the appropriateness of summary decision. Both Bloomingdale, in its briefs, and the ALJ, in his recommended Order at 8-10, have properly recognized—as has the Butler Board—that statute and case law accord membership to a sending district member on the receiving board, and that such membership entails rights over and above the substantive voting rights expressly specified in statute. All have understood that these rights are not unlimited, however, and that the parameters for them have been established by prior decisional law.

Where Bloomingdale and the ALJ have erred is in fixing upon individual phrases within the text of Little Ferry—such as "organizational and procedural matters of district-wide import," "procedural matters attendant to the orderly conduct of Board operations," "full and effective participation as a board member," and cautions against "unduly restrictive" interpretation of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.1—to conclude, contrary to the clear general thrust of the decision itself, prior related case law and the statute and its legislative history, that the voting rights conferred on a sending district board member by virtue of his or her membership on the receiving board are, or may potentially be, depending upon factual circumstances, sufficiently expansive in scope to encompass the wide range of issues set forth in Bloomingdale's complaint. (Bloomingdale Brief at 4-8; Bloomingdale Reply at 2-6; Initial Decision at 8-10)[1]

Instead, the Commissioner finds Little Ferry to stand for the clear proposition that, as the Butler Board has correctly set forth in its briefs and correspondence with the Bloomingdale Board (Stipulation of Facts, Exhibits E and G), the rights afforded to sending district members on receiving boards of education in effectuation of their status as board members, over and above the substantive voting rights expressly enumerated in statute, extend only to participation in deliberation, discussion and access to materials and information, and to voting on organization of the board pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:10-3 and 18A:15-1 and other "procedural and organizational matters necessary to ensure the effective operation of the board itself." (Little Ferry, supra, Slip Opinion at 7-8 (emphasis supplied); see also, Board of Education of the Township of Green, Sussex County, v. Board of Education of the Township of Newton, Sussex County, decided by the Commissioner August 5, 1997.)

In other words, under controlling statute and case law, the sending district board member's right to vote on non-enumerated matters encompasses internal procedural and organizational items only, such as election of officers, parliamentary matters, approval of board minutes and officer reports, and the like, and does not

[1] The Commissioner further notes that the more extended language relied upon by the ALJ in the Order at 9, when read in context, pertains in the first instance solely to participatory and deliberative rights, not to voting rights, and in the second means no more than that statutory limitations on the sending district representative's substantive voting rights cannot act to limit the procedural voting rights arising from his status as a board member so as to prevent him from voting on the board's organization pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:10-3 and 18A:15-1. Little Ferry, supra, Slip Opinion at 7-8.

encompass matters arising from the operation of the school district, as opposed to the operation of the board itself, such as voting on staff appointments or employment matters other than those enumerated in N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.1c,[2] designation of board accounts and required signatures, approval of financial depositories, or use by outside organizations of high school facilities, notwithstanding that such matters may impact on the district as a whole and consequently on the sending district and its students. Indeed, to take the position espoused by Bloomingdale and the ALJ would permit the sending district representative, actually or potentially, to vote on virtually every item before the receiving board, excluding only those few items shown to pertain solely to grades or schools having no impact on the sending district or its students—in clear contravention of a statute that would then be effectively returned to the pre-enactment form expressly rejected by the Governor and the Legislature. (Initial Decision at 6-8; however, see Lincoln Park, supra, at 595-96, for a more thorough recitation of the legislative history of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-8.1.)

Therefore, apart from two items previously conceded by the Butler Board with respect to appointment of substitute teachers at the high school and approval of Board Officer reports (Butler's Brief at 13; Butler's Reply Brief at 2-3), the present record reveals no instance where the Butler Board prevented the Bloomingdale Board member from voting on a matter falling within the scope of applicable statute or

[2] The Commissioner here notes that Callowhill, supra, was not repudiated or superseded by Little Ferry, supra, contrary to Bloomingdale's contention (Stipulation of Facts, Exhibit F at 2; Brief at 7), but rather is entirely consistent with it in regard to the sending board member's entitlement to vote.

decisional law; to the contrary, the Butler Board has at all times interpreted and applied the law correctly.[3]

Accordingly, for the reasons set forth above, the recommended Order of the ALJ is rejected and summary decision is granted to the Butler Board of Education. The Petition of Appeal is dismissed, and this matter shall be returned to the agency by the OAL pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-3.3(a).

SYNOPSIS

In consolidated matters, Carmella Mucci, tenured teaching staff member, challenged the withholding of her 2000-01 increments; the Board certified tenure charges of unbecoming conduct and incapacity against Ms. Mucci; and Ms. Mucci sought rescission of her letter of resignation, monies due her under the terms of an alleged Employment Separation Agreement, interest and counsel fees.

The ALJ found that, beginning in September 1999, Ms. Mucci was not capable of performing as a tenured teaching staff member. The ALJ found that although Ms. Mucci wanted to effect her retirement through a negotiated agreement with the Board, that agreement never resulted because it was never fully executed and never adopted by the Board. When Ms. Mucci rescinded her resignation, the Board certified tenure charges, then Ms. Mucci retired. Thus, the ALJ concluded that, having withdrawn her opposition to the tenure charges and having retired, Ms. Mucci had waived any claims for relief. Petitions were dismissed.

The Commissioner concluded that the Employment Separation Agreement at issue was never finalized and approved by both parties so as to constitute an enforceable agreement. In that Ms. Mucci retired from the District as of January 1, 2001, the other issues raised in these consolidated matters, including the tenure charges filed against Ms. Mucci and her challenge to her increment withholding, were moot. The Commissioner granted Summary Decision to the Board and dismissed the petitions with prejudice.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

These three consolidated matters were transmitted separately to the Office of Administrative Law by the Department of Education in 2001. The second filed case, In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Carmella Mucci, OAL DKT. NO. EDU 1901-01, concerns the certification of tenure charges by the Board of Education of Moonachie alleging that Mucci had engaged in unbecoming conduct and was incapacitated to such an extent that she should be removed from her employment. The first case, Mucci v. Board of Education of Moonachie, OAL DKT. NO. EDU 1820-01 involved a challenge by Mucci to the withholding of her 2000-2001 increments. The third case, OAL DKT. NO. EDU 5286-01 concerned Mucci's claim that since a letter of resignation she had submitted in late 1999 had been rescinded, she therefore was due back pay, together with interest and counsel fees.

Moving these cases forward was delayed substantially due to a variety of reasons, including an inability to schedule hearing dates accommodating to all concerned, consideration of a Board motion for summary decision and ongoing efforts to settle all three cases. Since settlement no longer is a possibility, the Board asked that its motion for summary decision, first withdrawn, then reinstated, and which has been held in a reserved status pending settlement discussions, should be determined. In particular, the motion, which related to the "Tenure Case" (EDU 1901-01) maintains that since Mucci has been absent from work since the third school day of September 1999 through and including the 2000-2001 school year (and since then as well), there was and is no reasonable basis to conclude that any factual issue existed concerning her chronic and excessive absenteeism and her obvious incapacity for further employment.

However, various superceding events arguably have mooted both the tenure and the withholding of increment cases; namely, Mucci's retirement as of January 1, 2001 and her entry into the Teacher's Pension and Annuity Fund. When that event occurred, I suggested to counsel that perhaps the entire matter should be considered moot. However, counsel for Mucci maintained that while she did not dispute that the tenure and withholding of increment cases need no longer be considered,[1] the third case, involving a "Separation From Employment Agreement" which called for certain entitlements had to be determined.

In her petition respecting the Employment Separation Agreement, (EDU 5286-02, Mucci alleged that she was first employed by the Board in 1964 but, as of September 1999, had taken a paid leave of absence due to an "occupational illness". Thus, during the latter part of 1999 and into early 2000, she negotiated through counsel an agreement with the Board concerning her separation from its employment on terms. One of the requirements set forth in the proposed agreement was that she sign an irrevocable letter of resignation, which was submitted by Mucci. Thereafter, according to petitioner, her attorney was notified that her letter of resignation had been accepted by the Board and the Employment Separation Agreement which she submitted with her resignation letter had been executed. However, according to petitioner, the Board then refused to accept all of the terms of the separation agreement that she desired and soon voted to certify tenure charges of unbecoming conduct and incapacity. Later in 2001, while the three cases were pending, Mucci submitted an early retirement application to the TPAF, to be effective January 1, 2001, which did occur.

[1] In her letter of March 19, 2004, Ms. Riefberg, counsel for Mucci, represented that her client, . . . still wishes to pursue enforcement of the "Employment Separation Agreement".

Mucci maintains that in accepting her resignation, but then failing to accept the terms and conditions set forth in the separation agreement, the Board had acted in an unlawful manner therefore permitting her to: (a) rescind her resignation or, in the alternative, obtain an order compelling the Board to abide by the terms of the agreement and (b) secure interest on moneys due to her under the Employment Separation Agreement.
