Edison, where the family has been deemed domiciled since May 2019. As stated above, petitioner concedes that as of May 2019, his family has been deemed domiciled in Edison and, therefore, Edison is financially responsible for his children's education. Response Br. of Pet'r, at 7. Milltown contends that in making this argument, petitioner has essentially admitted that "he and his family have established residence . . . in Edison [and] there is no need for further analysis in this matter[.]" Reply Br. of Resp't Milltown (February 10, 2020), at 3. The agreement of the parties that as of May 4, 2019, the G. family was deemed domiciled in Edison does not resolve the issue of whether the family resides permanently in Edison. However, I CONCLUDE that summary decision is appropriate to resolve the following issues:

1. Whether the undisputed facts support the conclusion that T.G. and C.G. are not homeless but reside in a "fixed, regular and adequate" home in Edison.

2. Whether Milltown, Edison, or J.G. is obligated to pay the tuition and transportation costs for T.G. and C.G. for the 2019-2020 school year.

New Jersey regulations provide that children are homeless when they stay in the home of relatives or friends temporarily because the family lacks a regular or permanent residence of its own. N.J.A.C. 6A:17-2.3(a)(3). Similarly, the McKinney-Vento Act describes homeless children as those "who lack a fixed, regular, and adequate nighttime residence . . ." including, "children and youths who are sharing the housing of other persons due to loss of housing, economic hardship, or a similar reason[.]" 42 U.S.C. 11434a(2)(A), (B)(i). "Thus, an evaluation of 'homelessness' cannot rest upon a simple calculation of the amount of time that children have spent in a particular location or municipality. The reasons for the children's homelessness, their living conditions, and the resources and intentions of the parents or custodians are relevant." M.O'K. and S.O'K. o/b/o K.O'K., A.O'K., and C.O'K. v. Bd. of Educ. of Borough of Cresskill, Bergen Cty. and Bd. of Educ. of Little Ferry, Bergen Cty., OAL Docket No. EDU 14830-13, Comm'r (Final Decision, Aug 12, 2014).

Here, it is clear that in May 2018, when the G. family was evicted from their Milltown home and moved into the Edison home of J.G., Sr. out of necessity, the children were homeless as defined by the regulations. See, N.J.A.C. 6A:17-2.2(a)(3). Accordingly, the district of residence of the children was Milltown, the district in which their parents resided prior to becoming homeless. N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12(c). This designation did not change until the G. family was "deemed domiciled in another jurisdiction, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1.d." N.J.A.C. 6A:17-2.3(c). The G. family was deemed domiciled in Edison when their "all-year-round dwelling place [was] within the [Edison District] for one year or longer." N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(d). There is no dispute that the G. family has lived continuously with petitioner's mother in Edison since May 2018, for close to two years.

Further, while the Commissioner has endorsed the conclusion that McKinney-Vento Act makes it clear that there is no maximum duration of homelessness, M.O'K. and S. O'K., Final Decision, at 5 citing L.R. v. Steelton-Highspire Sch. Dist. 54 IDELR 155 (M.D.Pa. 2010), petitioner errs in concluding that the McKinney-Vento Act permits his family to remain in their original school district indefinitely, as long as they do not move from his mother's home. M.O'K. and S. O'K., Initial Decision, at *13-14 citing L.C. v. Bd. of Educ. of the Twp. of Branchburg, 96 N.J.A.R 2d (EDU) 1002, 1006 ("[T]he living arrangement of a family that becomes homeless and then stays with relatives may become 'sufficiently fixed, regular, and adequate so as to preclude a finding of homelessness' after a period of time."). While J.G. (and J.G., Sr.) may have originally intended that the family's move to Edison would be temporary while they got a handle on their finances and were able to move back to Milltown, J.G., Sr.'s home is now, almost two years later, a "sufficiently fixed, regular and adequate" residence. The G. family occupies three bedrooms, which is the same number of bedrooms they had in their previous rental, and have access to the entire house with all the essentials, including heat, electricity, bathrooms and kitchen facilities. Being obligated to clean up after your children cannot be termed a hardship. Though J.G. states that his mother is anxious to sell the house and move out, she appears to have been accommodating to her son and his family, helping with the purchase of a bed for C.G. and removing soil-stained carpet from her office when C.G. moved in.

J.G. and A.G. are both employed and have been since before they moved to Edison; they have no current housing expenses and therefore, presumably would have been able to begin to address the financial situation that led to their eviction.[6] Although J.G. claims they have been unable to find affordable housing, there is no reliable evidence that they are looking to move, and good evidence (J.G.'s brief) that they have abandoned the search for housing in Milltown. The desire to move is not enough to "diminish that their current living arrangement is regular and fixed so as to be deemed permanent." M.O'K. and S. O'K., Initial Decision, at *19.[7] Significantly, the family took advantage of the benefits of their Edison residence for their youngest child while simultaneously denying such residency for the purpose of maintaining their other children's eligibility to attend school outside the Edison District.[8] I CONCLUDE that T.G. and C.G. are not homeless, but live in Edison.

Even if the G. family was still homeless, New Jersey "school law imposes a limit upon how long a former district of domicile is financially responsible for the education of homeless children." A.M. and M.S. on behalf of minor children A.S. and L.S. v. Bd. of Educ. of the Town of Dover, OAL Docket No. EDU 9780-10, Comm'r (Final Decision, June 14, 2011). The regulations specifically provide that a free public education must be made available to persons between the ages of five and twenty who are "domiciled within the school district," which includes "any person who has had or shall have his all-year-round dwelling place within the district for one year or longer[.]" N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(d). Edison became financially responsible for the education of T.G. and C.G. (and J.G., Jr.) as of May 4, 2019. I CONCLUDE that the free and appropriate public education of T.G. and C.G. became the financial responsibility of Edison in May 2019, after they had resided in Edison for one year.

Petitioner contends that the McKinney-Vento Act requires Edison, the district of residence, to continue to pay tuition and transportation costs to send T.G. and C.G. to SHS and JK Elementary in the current school year because it is in the children's best interests, and such determination of "best interest" relies primarily on the wishes of the parents and the children. Response Br. of Pet'r, at 4-5. If T.G. and C.G. were still homeless, this "reassignment of financial responsibility for the children's education" to Edison would not have also required T.G. and C.G. to leave the Milltown schools. A.M. and M.S., at 3. The McKinney-Vento Act and the relevant New Jersey regulations provide that a local school district shall determine a homeless child's district of enrollment in light of the child's best interest. 42 U.S.C. § 11432(g)(3)(E); N.J.A.C. 6A:17-2.5.

[7] It is worth noting that if the G. family moves to Spotswood, both C.G. and J.G., Jr. will have to change schools.

[8] The family also took advantage of their residency in Edison when sending C.G. to the Edison summer camp.

Edison contends that T.G. and C.G. are not homeless and, therefore, J.G. is responsible "to reimburse the [Milltown District] for all tuition and transportation costs incurred by Milltown for the education of C.G. and T.G. for the 2019-2020 school year." Ltr. Br. of Resp't Edison in Partial Support of Motion for Summary Decision (February 3, 2020), at 2. This position, however, is not consistent with the letter Benedict, the Edison Homeless Liaison, sent to J.G. and A.G. on July 31, 2019. In this letter, Benedict notes that the family has resided in Edison for one year and, therefore, Edison is responsible for the children's education. But, he fails to state that Edison has determined that the children are no longer homeless. Benedict instead provides a "best interests" analysis which by its terms assumes that the children are still homeless. See, Br. of Resp't Milltown, Ex. 5. Further, Benedict describes the parents' right to appeal the decision that the children must be enrolled in Edison and includes a copy of the Edison Policy which states that if a parent disputes the enrollment decision, the child(ren) shall be immediately enrolled in the district of the parent's choice pending final resolution of the dispute. Ibid. Nowhere in this letter are the parents put on notice that either district has taken the position that the children are no longer homeless, nor given notice that should Edison's decision be upheld, the parents will be responsible to pay the tuition and transportation costs. (In fact, the policy document provided to J.C. by Benedict refers to a regulation that apportions financial responsibility for homeless children between the State and local district.)

Though T.G. and C.G. were not homeless at the beginning of the 2019-2020 school year, their district of residence, Edison, continued to treat them as if they were homeless. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that Edison must reimburse Milltown for the costs of tuition and transportation incurred for T.G. and C.G. during the 2019-2020 school year.

It appears that the emails dated August 28 and 30, 2019, from Superintendent Anderson may have caused petitioner some confusion. J.G. describes Anderson's emails as directions to Milltown to permit J.G. to register his children in the Milltown District schools, as to do otherwise would be a violation of the McKinney-Vento Act. See, Pro se Pet. of Appeal, ¶ 28. Although

Anderson quoted N.J.A.C. 6A:17-2.3, in his first email, the action he took was authorized by the following regulation:

> The chief school administrator of the school district of residence or designee shall determine the child's school district enrollment immediately after consultation with the parent. The school district of residence shall adhere to the following procedures:
> 1. Enrollment decisions shall be made immediately upon notification of the need for enrollment. When the decision is made, the child shall be enrolled immediately. If a dispute arises regarding enrollment of a homeless child, the homeless child shall be immediately enrolled in the school district in which enrollment is sought by the parent or guardian, pending resolution of the dispute pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:17-2.7.

When Anderson spoke with J.G. on August 20, 2019, Anderson made clear that he agreed with Edison that the children had been residing in Edison for more than one year and were the educational responsibility of Edison, and that the best interests of the children would be served by enrolling in the Edison schools. See, Pro se Pet. of Appeal, ¶ 28; Br. of Resp't Milltown, Ex. 5. Further, Anderson stated that as long as J.G.'s appeal of that decision was pending, the children were to stay in the Milltown schools. Ibid. The "violation of McKinney-Vento" that Anderson referred to when speaking with J.G. was not the failure to keep the children in the Milltown schools indefinitely, but the failure to keep them in the Milltown schools during the pendency of J.G.'s appeal. T.G. and C.G. were therefore permitted to remain in the Milltown schools.

As of the date of this decision, J.G.'s appeal will no longer be pending, but the appropriate placement for T.G. and C.G. for the remainder of the current school year is not as clear. The Commissioner has stated that the regulations "disfavor disruptions in the continuity of a child's educational program." A.M. and M.S., at 4. At the beginning of the 2019-2020 school year, T.G. and C.G. both enrolled in new schools, SHS (the receiving school for Milltown students) and JK Elementary, respectively. In September 2019, the educational and social transition to the Edison schools would not have been much different for either child than to their new schools in the Milltown District, a fact brought to J.G.'s attention during the short-lived emergent proceedings in this matter. Making that transition now however, with just four months left in the school year, would be the type of disruption against which the Commissioner warned. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that T.G. and C.G. shall remain at SHS and JK Elementary, respectively, through the conclusion of the 2019-2020 school year and, as of the end of the 2019-2020 school year, T.G. and C.G. will no longer be entitled to enroll in the Milltown schools (or for T.G., in SHS) without the payment by J.G. of tuition and transportation costs.[9]

ORDER

For the reasons set forth above, it is hereby ORDERED that the motion of respondent/ cross-petitioner Board of Education of the Borough of Milltown for summary decision in its favor is GRANTED and the pro se appeal of petitioner J.G. is DISMISSED.

It is hereby ORDERED that the motion of respondent/cross-petitioner Board of Education of the Borough of Milltown for summary decision on its cross-petition for the costs of tuition and transportation for minor children T.G. and C.G. for the 2019-2020 school year is GRANTED against respondent Board of Education of the Township of Edison. Respondent Board of Education of the Township of Edison is hereby ORDERED to reimburse respondent/cross-petitioner Board of Education of the Borough of Milltown a total of $80,515.60, for the costs of tuition and transportation for minor children T.G. and C.G. for the 2019-2020 school year.

Finally, it is hereby ORDERED that minor children T.G. and C.G. shall remain in attendance at Spotswood High School, Spotswood, New Jersey, and Joyce Kilmer Elementary School, Milltown, New Jersey, respectively, through the conclusion of the 2019-2020 school year, not including any extended school year program during the summer of 2020. At the conclusion of the 2019-2020 school year, petitioner J.G. shall be responsible to pay all future tuition and transportation costs for T.G. and/or C.G. should they attend schools outside the Edison District.

[9] To be clear, any action by the G. family to relocate to a district other than Edison by the beginning of the 2020-2021 school year will have no impact on this decision and should the family so move, all three minor children will be eligible for a FAPE only in the district in which their new home is located.

This Initial Decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The final decision shall be issued without undue delay, but no later than forty-five days following the entry of this order. If the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION does not adopt, modify or reject this order within forty-five days, this recommended order shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

JAMES ZAZZALI, JR. ESQ. — COUNSEL FOR RESPONDENT
PRISCILLA UMEIZU — RESPONDENT

PROCEDURAL BACKGROUND

This proceeding takes place pursuant to P.L. 2012, Chapter 26 of the laws of the State of New Jersey. The Respondent, Priscilla Umeizu, hereinafter referred to as Ms. Umeizu/Respondent, was a tenured teaching staff member in the State-Operated School District of the City of Newark, hereinafter referred to as the District. The Respondent was an elementary school teacher assigned to the Dr. E. Alma Flagg School.

Ms. Umeizu was rated ineffective for the 2017-2018 school year. Ms. Umeizu was rated partially effective for the 2018-2019 school year. The Respondent has failed to effectively perform the duties of a teacher. Accordingly, on July 29, 2019, the District Superintendent, Roger Leon, filed tenure charges with thirty-one counts of inefficiency against the Respondent. A Statement of Evidence accompanied those tenure charges. The inefficiency charges were received by DOE, Controversies and Disputes on August 26, 2019.

On September 5, 2019, the Respondent filed answers to the tenure charges with the Commissioner of Education who reviewed them in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3c. Upon review, the Commissioner was unable to determine that the evaluation process had been followed. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16 the charges were referred to arbitration, and on September 13, 2019, the undersigned was appointed arbitrator.

On September 26, 2019, a conference call with Christina Abreu, counsel for the Claimant, James Zazzali, Jr., counsel for Respondent, and the arbitrator was held to discuss scheduling, witnesses and documents needed to present their respective cases-in-chief. On December 5, 2019, a hearing was held, and it was agreed that further discussions were needed by the principals to secure a resolution, if possible, of the charges of inefficiency.

A series of emails between both counsel and the arbitrator helped move this matter towards settlement. However, CIVID-19 prevented any face-to-face meetings but the parties did exchange proposals and counter proposals. On June 5, 2020, the parties executed a Settlement Agreement, which is incorporated by reference into my award.

I have reviewed the terms of the Settlement Agreement and find that it is in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6,: In re Cardonick, State Board Decision of April 6, 1983 (1990 School Law Decisions (SLD) 842,846.) The Settlement Agreement is consistent with the established standards set forth in the above cited SLD.

Attorneys for Newark Board of Education

In re PRISCILLA UMEIZU and the BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF NEWARK	SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT DKT. NO. 214-8/18

This Settlement Agreement ("Agreement") is made by and between the Newark Board of Education (the "Board"), with an address at 765 Broad Street, Newark, New Jersey 07102, predecessor State-Operated School District of Newark and its successors, assigns, officers, employees, agents and representatives ("Board"), and Priscilla Umeizu ("Umeizu"), residing at 112 Glenwood Court, Union, New Jersey (collectively, the "Parties").

WHEREAS, Umeizu is a tenured teaching staff member employed by the Board;

WHEREAS, on or about August 26, 2019, the Board certified a tenure charge of inefficiency against Umeizu;

WHEREAS, upon certification of such charge, Umeizu was suspended without pay from her employment with the Board for a period of 120 days;

WHEREAS, the Parties wish to resolve this matter in accordance with the terms set forth herein rather than proceed with arbitration;

WHEREAS, the settlement set forth herein is in the best interest of the Parties and the public because it avoids an uncertain conclusion after protracted and costly proceedings at the expense of the public;

NOW, THEREFORE, the Parties hereby agree as follows:

1. Umeizu hereby agrees to retire from her tenured position effective June 1, 2020. Attached is a copy of Umeizu's signed Letter of Retirement. (Exhibit A). Umeizu's separation from employment will be deemed a voluntary retirement in good standing. Other than as required by law, upon inquiry from any third parties, the Board will only confirm Umeizu's employment, position, title, salary and dates of employment.

2. Umeizu hereby waives and releases any and all claims and defenses that exist or may exist as of the date she signs this Agreement, and agrees not to pursue or assert any such claims or defenses in this or any future proceeding, except in opposition to any future action the Board may take against Umeizu. Umeizu represents that she has not filed any claims, complaints, charges, or suits that she may have previously filed against the Board, and that in the event Umeizu has filed any such action, this Agreement will serve as Umeizu's formal written notice of withdrawal thereof. This Agreement is intended to be the final resolution of all outstanding matters between the Board and Umeizu as of the date of this agreement, with the exception of workers compensation claims.

3. In exchange, Umeizu will be permitted to voluntarily utilize and draw down the accrued days that she has accumulated in her unused bank of days in order to receive salary commencing January 2, 2020 until her date of retirement on June 1, 2020. As of January 1, 2020, Umeizu had a total of 214 days of sick leave accumulated. If Umeizu exhausts all of the accrued unused days in her bank prior to her date of retirement, Umeizu will be placed on "administrative leave without pay" until her date of retirement. Other than the salary and benefits that Umeizu receives until the date of her retirement as well as the value of any remaining accrued unused sick days that she may cash out after retirement pursuant to the terms of the applicable Collective Bargaining Agreement, Umeizu will not receive any further monies from the Board in exchange for this Agreement.

4. The Board also agrees not to pursue any disciplinary action, including termination of Umeizu's employment, so long as this Agreement remains in effect and is not voided by any court or administrative agency of competent jurisdiction. However, if the Agreement is voided, the Board retains the right to pursue disciplinary action against Umeizu, including termination from the District.

5. Umeizu agrees that she will not apply for reemployment with the Board at any time. Specifically, Umeizu will be considered to have permanently resigned and retired from her tenured position as a result of this Agreement. If Umeizu does apply for reemployment with the Board and is approved for employment in any capacity, the terms of this Agreement shall control and be grounds for immediate termination of Umeizu's employment.

6. This Agreement shall not constitute a precedent in any matters involving other employees.

7. Except as noted above, Umeizu waives all claims of any nature against the Board with regard to her employment with and/or her separation from the District, including fees, or other monetary relief, with the exception of workers' compensation claims.

8. By entering into this Agreement, and in exchange for good consideration as set forth in Paragraph 3 and 4 above, the sufficiency of which is hereby acknowledged by the parties, Umeizu releases and discharges the Board, the Board Superintendent, its Board of Education and its Board members, and any and all other Board officers, employees, representatives, agents, successors and assigns (collectively, the "Released Parties") with respect to all claims or rights that she has or may have against the Board regarding her employment with the District. This includes without limitation, any and all actions, claims, and liabilities of whatsoever kind or character, in law or in equity, now known or unknown, suspected or unsuspected, directly or indirectly related to Umeizu's employment with the Board and separation from the Board except for workers compensation claims. It specifically includes, without limitation, all claims which Umeizu may have regarding tenure, withholding of increment, discrimination on any basis, any federal or state civil rights law, any alleged violation of the Age Discrimination in Employment Act, as amended; the Older Worker Benefits Protection Act; Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, as amended; Sections 1981 through 1988 of Title 42 of the United States Code; the Civil Rights Act of 1991; the Equal Pay Act; the Americans with Disabilities Act; the Rehabilitation Act; the Family and Medical Leave Act; the Fair Labor Standards Act; the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974, as amended; the Worker Adjustment and Retraining Notification Act; the National Labor Relations Act; the Fair Credit Reporting Act; the Occupational Safety and Health Act; the Uniformed Services Employment and Reemployment Act; the Employee Polygraph Protection Act; the Immigration Reform Control Act; the retaliation provisions of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002; the Federal False Claims Act; the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination; the New Jersey Conscientious Employee Protection Act; the New Jersey Family Leave Act; the New Jersey Wage and Hour Law; the New Jersey Equal Pay Law; the New Jersey Occupational Safety and Health Law; the New Jersey Smokers' Rights Law; the New Jersey Genetic Privacy Act; the New Jersey Fair Credit Reporting Act; New Jersey Wages and Hours Law, unemployment compensations laws, disability benefits laws, the retaliation provisions of the New Jersey Workers' Compensation Law (and including any and all amendments to the above), the United States Constitution, the New Jersey Constitution and/or any other alleged violation of any federal, state or local law, regulation or ordinance, common law and/or contract or implied contract or collective bargaining/ contractual claim or tort law or public policy or whistleblower claim, having any bearing whatsoever on her employment by and the termination of her employment with the District, including, but not limited to, any claim for wrongful discharge, back pay, front pay, vacation pay, sick pay, wage, commission or bonus payment, attorneys fees, costs, and/or future wage loss, except for workers compensation claims and for health insurance continuation coverage under and pursuant to COBRA. Umeizu agrees to save, hold harmless and indemnify the Released Parties for any legal costs and attorneys' fees associated with the enforcement of the terms of this Agreement should enforcement become necessary.

9. Notwithstanding Paragraph 8 of this Agreement, it is understood and agreed that the parties are not prohibited from communicating with or participating in any administrative proceeding before the United States Department of Labor, the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, or any other federal, state or local law agency. Should any entity, agency commission or person file a charge, action, complaint or lawsuit against the Board based upon any of the above-released claims in Paragraph 9, Umeizu agrees not to seek or accept any resulting relief whatsoever.

10. To comply with the Older Workers Benefit Protection Act of 1990, if applicable, this Agreement advises Umeizu of the legal requirements of the Act, and fully incorporates the legal requirements by reference into this Agreement. Accordingly, by executing this Agreement, Umeizu acknowledges that she: (i) fully understands the terms and conditions of this Agreement; (ii) has consulted with an attorney to review the Agreement; (iii) specifically waives her right to pursue any current claims she may have under the Age Discrimination in Employment Act; (iv) has been given twenty one days within which to consider this Agreement; and (v) has seven (7) days from the date of the execution of this Agreement to revoke it. Umeizu understands that she may rescind this Agreement within seven (7) calendar days of signing it, and such rescission must be in writing and delivered to counsel for the Board either by hand or by certified mail within the seven-day period.

11. As of the effective date of her retirement, all of Umeizu's employment rights, including but not limited to salary, insurance coverage, tenure and seniority, will permanently end, except for any benefits to which she may lawfully be entitled under the Workers' Compensation Act or the Consolidated Omnibus Budget reconciliation Act of 1986 ("COBRA") or N.J.S.A. 18A:66-39, 40 and 41 and/ or through her effective retirement date.

12. The parties respectively acknowledge that counsel has advised them regarding this Agreement and that each is signing this Agreement freely and voluntarily, without duress, coercion or pressure from the other party.

13. This Agreement constitutes the full agreement between the parties, and shall be construed and enforced in accordance with New Jersey law.

14. If any provision or portion of a provision of this Agreement is held by a court of competent jurisdiction, or determined under applicable federal or state law to be invalid, void, or unenforceable, the remaining provisions or remaining portions of a provision will continue and remain in full force and effect.

15. This Agreement is subject to final approval by the Board and will only become effective upon the approval of the Board. Any disapproval by the Board shall not interfere with the rights of either party to pursue the matter further.

Final Decision

In the Matter of Anthony Cassano, Board of Education of the City of Leonia, Bergen County.

The Commissioner has reviewed the record of this matter and the decision of the School Ethics Commission (Commission), finding that respondent violated the School Ethics Act for failure to timely complete school board member training in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33 and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1. The Commission's decision was forwarded to the Commissioner for final determination on the recommended penalty pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c). The Commission advises that respondent ultimately completed the training after the issuance of its April 21, 2020 Order to Show Cause. Respondent filed exceptions to the recommended penalty, providing a list of various circumstances that he alleges prevented him from completing the training in a timely manner.

Upon review, the Commissioner does not find respondent's exceptions persuasive and concurs with the penalty recommended by the Commission for respondent's failure to timely honor an obligation placed upon board members by law. Additionally, respondent is admonished for causing the unnecessary expenditure of administrative and adjudicative resources at both State and local levels.

Accordingly, respondent is hereby reprimanded as a school official found to have violated the School Ethics Act.

For the Respondent:

Hackensack, NJ -76-1

This matter comes before me on tenure charges brought under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 and N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10, et seq., by Petitioner Borough of Dumont School District, Board of Education, Bergen County (the "District) against Respondent John Podesta. The tenure charges at issue here were certified to the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes by the District on or about February 13, 2020. I was appointed the arbitrator to adjudicate this matter on March 2, 2020.

I conducted a hearing via video conferencing over nine days: May 18, 19, 20, 21, 26, 27, 28, June 1 and 2, 2020. Both sides were represented by counsel and were afforded the opportunity to call witnesses, present evidence, and cross-examine witnesses offered by the opposing party. All witnesses were sworn.

The District presented the testimony of five District employees: Luiz Lopez, District Affirmative Action Officer and a school principal, James Wichmann, Dumont High School Principal, Maria Poidomani, Director of Curriculum, Superintendent Emanuele Triggiano, and Vice Principal Jacqueline Bello. The District offered 35 documents as exhibits: 2 were withdrawn and 33 were entered in evidence. Respondent presented the testimony of three witnesses: Dr. Karen Bennett, Principal of Honiss School; Ruth Keenan, Selzer School Secretary; and Kathleen Podesta, Respondent's wife. Respondent also testified in his own behalf. Respondent offered 7 exhibits: some were withdrawn as duplicative; 3 were entered in evidence. Although no official record of the proceeding was made, I made audio recordings of the proceedings through the video platform, which I made available to the parties. I kept the record open for one week following the last day of hearing for the submission of (a) audio recordings of four conversations between Respondent and Jacqueline Bello; (b) Respondent's summative evaluations for the five years he has been a principal; and (c) for such additional text messages between Respondent and Ms. Bello as the parties jointly identify. The parties submitted post-hearing briefs simultaneously on June 12, 2020 and responsive briefs on June 19, 2020. No objection has been made to the fairness of this proceeding.

TENURE CHARGES

COUNT I

1. Mr. Podesta's inappropriate actions toward Ms. Bello, including physical contact, purchasing of gifts for Ms. Bello, and professions of love for Ms. Bello, constitute conduct unbecoming a tenured principal.

2. Mr. Podesta's inappropriate conduct constitutes conduct unbecoming a tenured employee and mandates the termination of his employment as a tenured employee in the Dumont School District.

COUNT II

1. Mr. Podesta's supervision of and interactions with Ms. Bello have frequently been inappropriate and inconsistent with the duties of a tenured Principal in the Dumont School District.

2. Mr. Podesta has acted in an irrational, mean-spirited, and inappropriate fashion in his conversations about Mr. Wichmann with Ms. Bello.

3. Mr. Podesta's irrational and counter-productive insistence that Ms. Bello have as little contact as possible with Mr. Wichmann was inappropriate, contrary to the best interests of the Dumont School District and constitutes conduct unbecoming a tenured employee in the Dumont School District.

4. Mr. Podesta's retaliation against Ms. Bello for his subjective and incorrect assumption that Ms. Bello was acting in an "insubordinate and disloyal" manner toward him constitutes conduct unbecoming a tenured employee in the Dumont School District. This retaliation included, without limitation, Mr. Podesta's threats to fire Ms. Bello.

5. Mr. Podesta, in his irrational, self-absorbed, and unfair treatment of Ms. Bello, has engaged in conduct unbecoming a tenured employee in the Dumont School District.

6. Mr. Podesta's conduct, as described above, mandates the termination of his employment as a tenured employee in the Dumont School District.

ISSUE PRESENTED

Whether the Board has demonstrated by a preponderance of the credible evidence that the Respondent has engaged in conduct unbecoming a tenured employee. If so, what shall be the penalty?

FACTUAL BACKGROUND

The District. The District is located in Bergen County, New Jersey. It operates four elementary schools: Lincoln and Grant, that serve grades K-5 and feed into the remaining two K-8 schools, Selzer and Honiss. There is one high school for the District, Dumont High School (Dumont High). The District is overseen by a Superintendent, Emanuele Triggiano, who reports to the nine-member, elected Board of Education (Board). Each of the District's schools is led by a Principal, assisted by a Vice Principal (VP), or, in the case of the High School, one or more Assistant Principals (AP).

In additional to the Superintendent, the District employs other District-wide supervisors, including Dr. Maria Poidomani, Director of Curriculum. In addition, each VP is assigned District-wide supervisory responsibilities over the four subject matter areas – Math, Science, Social Science, and English – as well as over programmatic areas, including Art and Music. The Superintendent meets with District leaders, including Principals, every two weeks in what are known as Administrative Council (A.C.) meetings. Typically, VPs do not attend unless they are substituting for their Principals.

The Origin of the Present Charges. These tenure charges arise out of conduct that Respondent, a tenured elementary school principal in the Dumont School District, directed toward his vice principal, Jacqueline Bello. The charges are based upon the findings of the District's Affirmative Action officer, Luis Lopez, who conducted an investigation after Respondent went to him on or about September 25, 2019 to complain about Ms. Bello. Respondent's initial complaints were two-fold: that Ms. Bello had made an inappropriate comment about Respondent's Italian heritage, and that she had an inappropriate relationship with the Principal of Dumont High School, James Wichmann. During the course of his investigation, Mr. Lopez heard additional complaints: from Ms. Bello about Respondent and from Respondent about Ms. Bello. To investigate all these complaints, Mr. Lopez spoke to nine District employees, as well as Respondent's wife. A number of these individuals testified before me in this proceeding. Mr. Lopez's findings were contained in a 73-page report he submitted to the District. Mr. Lopez testified in this proceeding and his report was entered into evidence as D. 2.[1]

Respondent. Respondent has been employed by the District for approximately 40 years. He attended Jersey City State College, where he received an undergraduate degree in music education and a master's degree in urban education, administration and supervision. His full-time employment as a music teacher began in 1981 at Grant School in the District. In 1996 he transferred to Lincoln School, where he taught music four days per week while he continued one day at Grant. Emanuele Triggiano, the current District Superintendent, was the principal of Lincoln School in 1996 when Respondent started working there. Up until the filing of the present charges, Mr. Triggiano and Respondent have been close, both as colleagues and outside of work; they and their wives have socialized together.

[1] In this Background section, I only address those facts that I deem relevant to the disposition of these charges. I make no reference to arguments the parties have made regarding other matters, such as Respondent's divorce years ago or statements by personnel who did not testify in this proceeding.

Respondent first took on District-wide music responsibilities in 1993 when he became the orchestra coordinator for the four elementary schools. In 2010 Respondent became Vice Principal of Selzer School. At that time, the Selzer VP's only District-wide responsibility was supervision of the summer enrichment program. However, that year the administration decided to create a position of Supervisor of Fine Arts. Respondent was given that title in addition to his title of Selzer VP and became responsible for oversight of music and art programs throughout the District. In 2015, Respondent became Principal of Selzer School.

The parties stipulated that during the 40 years Respondent has been employed by the District, there has never been any type of complaint against him, and he has never been reprimanded or disciplined in any way. He has always received positive evaluations. I reviewed the summative evaluations for the four years he was Principal at Selzer; are all positive.

Respondent's Involvement with Music. In addition to working as a School Principal, Respondent is also a performing musician. He plays the string bass, among other instruments, and has a band that performs in and around New Jersey. He has often invited work colleagues from the District to attend his performances. Some colleagues have attended, including Ruth Keenan, the Selzer secretary; Ms. Bello was invited but did not attend.

Respondent testified at length about his passion for teaching music and promoting music within the District. He spoke with pride about his efforts to build a stringed instrument and orchestra program. When he started as a music teacher at Grant School, the program had a small number of students, 24 or 25; when he transferred to Lincoln School, 15 years later, the program was up to 120 students, and almost every student was involved in either playing an instrument or singing in the chorus. By the time he became the VP at Selzer, there were over 100 string players in the district-wide orchestra.

Respondent testified that he also played an active role in supporting the marching band program. This included participating in the band summer camps each August, both in paid and unpaid capacities. He also chaperoned band trips, including one memorable trip in approximately 2013 when the band was invited to perform at West Point. Respondent arranged for two of his band-mates, who were on active duty in the army and played in the army band, to meet and greet the Dumont High students when they visited West Point.

While Respondent served as Music Supervisor for the District from approximately 2011 until 2015, his duties included participation in hiring music teachers and supporting and promoting music programs. When he became Principal at Selzer, he stepped back from his supervisory role over the District-wide music program. However, he continued to participate on some hiring committees for music teaching positions: Dr. Karen Bennett, Principal of Honiss School, usually asked him to sit on hiring committees for music positions at her school because she valued his experience and expertise; Superintendent Triggiano invited him to review resumes and sit in on interviews for other music positions, sometimes after Respondent asked to be involved. Both Respondent and Mr. Triggiano testified that they had many conversations about the music program: Mr. Triggiano recalled that Respondent was "never happy" about how the music program was being run. Over the years, Respondent had differences with Mr. Wichmann, now the Principal of Dumont High, but formerly a football coach. Respondent identified three areas of difference: (1) when Mr. Wichmann was a coach, he gave preference to the football team over the marching band in terms of access to practice time on the field; (2) Mr. Wichmann proposed that live music be eliminated at elementary school graduations in order to make more room for guests in the gym, where the commencement ceremonies were held; and (3) Mr. Wichmann allegedly told Respondent that a stringed program was "never going to happen" at Dumont High.

Jacqueline Bello. At the time of the incidents that gave rise to these tenure charges, Ms. Bello was the VP of Selzer School and the Director of Music and Art for the District. Ms. Bello grew up in Nutley, New Jersey and attended school with Mr. Triggiano's son Chris. She was educated at Fordham University and received a master's degree in counseling at Montclair State. She taught for 7 years, primarily middle school math, in Newark and Nutley public schools.

At some point Ms. Bello married and moved with her husband to Long Island. There she worked for SAT/ACT in test preparation and did some college advising. She has three children. Subsequently, Ms. Bello got divorced and moved back to New Jersey with her sons. She had obtained a Guidance Counselor Certificate, and in 2012 the District hired her as a Guidance Counselor at Dumont High; her principal at Dumont High was Mr. Wichmann. During the hiring process, she went through three rounds of interviews, the final interview being with Superintendent Triggiano and Dr. Poidomani. Ms. Bello had not kept in touch with Mr. Triggiano's son, and the subject of her going to school with him did not come up during the interviews, nor is there any evidence that it played a part in her hiring.

Ms. Bello earned a standard principal's certificate through an alternative route and completed a formal mentorship program run by the New Jersey Supervisors and Principals Association (NJPSA). She was assigned a mentor from outside the District, Dr. Dennis McDonald. In 2016 an Assistant Principal position became vacant at the Dumont High School and Ms. Bello applied, although she had not yet completed all of the steps to be certified. She was given a courtesy interview but was not offered the position.

A VP position at Selzer School also became vacant that year, and Ms. Bello applied for that. She was not selected for that position either. However, the individual who was selected in 2016 gave notice at the end of that year that he did not want to continue in the position, and so in the summer of 2017 there was another search. Ms. Bello again applied, and this time she was the successful candidate.

Ms. Bello began as the VP at Selzer on August 1, 2017. Her official duties included supervising summer enrichment as well as art and music programs for the District, at both the elementary and high school level. For the two years she held the position of VP at Selzer, Respondent, as her Principal, was her supervisor. He was responsible for her annual summative evaluations, and each year he gave her positive evaluations. Up until the end of the academic year in 2019, he had nothing but praise for Ms. Bello. Dr. Poidomani testified that Respondent called Ms. Bello "the best thing that had happened to Selzer," and frequently commented on the excellent working relationship he had with her, using the phrase "army of two" to refer to their partnership. Mr. Triggiano testified that for those two years, Respondent was "always very positive" about Ms. Bello. Respondent and Ms. Bello both testified to their positive working relationship through those two academic years, using the "army of two" and similar phrases to describe their collaboration.

Beginning in June 2019 and throughout the summer, as will be described below, the working relationship between Respondent and Ms. Bello deteriorated, and the events that form the basis of the present tenure charges took place.

Ms. Bello's application for a principal position in another District. In mid-May, 2019, Ms. Bello learned through a friend, that someone she knew had become the Superintendent of the West Essex School District, was conducting a search for the position of Principal at the West Essex Middle School, and had asked the friend to make sure that Ms. Bello was aware of the opening. West Essex is close to Ms. Bello's home and would involve a considerably shorter commute. Ms. Bello decided to apply. She called both Mr. Triggiano and Respondent before Memorial Day to let them know. Respondent told Ms. Bello that he would be disappointed if she left, but he wished her well. He understood that this would be a promotion and would be closer to home for her. Ms. Bello testified that Respondent asked her many personal questions, and she was "worried" at the end of the conversation. But she knew that they had worked well together, and she thought the questions, while intrusive, were not inappropriate. Ms. Bello found out in June that she did not get the job.

Respondent spoke to Dr. Poidomani about Ms. Bello's application for the West Essex Principalship. According to Dr. Poidomani, Respondent said he wanted to talk "off the record" and expressed dismay about her having applied. Respondent asked why the District would give tenure to someone who is thinking about leaving. Dr. Poidomani told him, this is what we do – we train vice principals to become principals; she pointed out that Ms. Bello wasn't seeking another job, but this opportunity presented itself, so she applied. At the end of the conversation, Respondent told Dr. Poidomani, "you're right. That's why I always talk to you." Dr. Poidomani thought the whole incident was over.

Mr. Triggiano testified that Respondent also broached the subject of Ms. Bello's application for the principalship with him At first, Respondent was upset and couldn't understand why Ms. Bello would want to move. Mr. Triggiano told Respondent that everyone has to do what's best for them. Mr. Triggiano got the impression that Respondent may not have wanted Ms. Bello back after she applied. Like Dr. Poidomani, Mr. Triggiano believed that Respondent realized from their conversation that what Ms. Bello had done made sense for her; Mr. Triggiano felt that "it was over," and Respondent had moved on.

Respondent acknowledged that he had conversations with both Dr. Poidomani and Mr. Triggiano about Ms. Bello applying for the West Essex job. Respondent testified that he told both of them he wished Ms. Bello good luck and was going to help her prepare for the interview. Respondent acknowledged that initially he was not happy about the prospect of having to replace Ms. Bello – she had been his third VP in three years: he told Dr. Poidomani, "Maria, you can't catch a break with these VPs." However, he figured he would just have to train another VP. When Ms. Bello told him that she did not get the job, he told her he was happy she wouldn't be leaving. Respondent testified that Ms. Bello told him she was not sorry that she didn't get the job, because she had "mixed feelings from the beginning." He says she told him, "I love working for you, I love Dumont. We make a great team. If you'll have me, I would like to continue to be your VP." He replied, "Absolutely;" that he wanted her to continue as his VP.

High School Music Vacancy 2019. At the very end of the 2018-2019 school year, on June 20 or thereabouts, the marching band teacher at Dumont High informed her principal, Mr. Wichmann, that she was going to be resigning her position. Mr. Wichmann testified that her resignation "caught us by surprise" and posed problems: the marching band season opened the first week in August at band camp; to get a new teacher in place for that required getting a candidate to the Board at its July 19 meeting, only a few weeks away. Ms. Bello testified that the music teacher's resignation was "stinging because of the timing." Mr. Wichmann and Ryanne Hutchinson, AP at Dumont High, informed Mr. Triggiano of the vacancy, put together a job posting, and got the job posted externally and internally to all Dumont faculty and staff. Mr. Wichmann also quickly put a hiring committee together, consisting of himself, Ms. Hutchinson, Ms. Bello, and Kyle Bennett, the Dumont High choir teacher. As resumes came in, Ms. Hutchinson began to schedule interviews. With very short notice to everyone on the committee, she scheduled the first interviews for July 9, the Tuesday after the July 4th weekend.

Ms. Bello testified, and Respondent confirmed in his direct testimony, that she told Respondent about the music teacher's resignation "right away" on the "same day" that she learned about it. Respondent also agreed that he knew when the job was posted. Ms. Bello recalled that Respondent asked her why the teacher was leaving, and stated that he liked her personally, but not professionally – she had wanted to make several changes that he thought were not in the best interests of the program, including changing the cadence for the marching band. Respondent told Ms. Bello this was an opportunity to get a new person into the position who would move the District toward the objectives he had for the District's music program.

Ms. Bello, Mr. Wichmann, Dr. Poidomani and Mr. Triggiano all testified that the process for filling any vacancy in the District is led by the principal of the school where the vacancy occurs. As Mr. Triggiano testified, the Principal has "total responsibility for his school." Respondent, however, testified that the hiring process was led by the District-wide supervisor of the content area: in the case of music vacancies, the process should be led by the music supervisor, who, in 2019, was Ms. Bello. He testified that when he was the music supervisor, from 2010 to 2015, he was in charge of hiring committees. However, he admitted on cross examination that when he was Selzer Principal he, rather than the subject matter supervisors, put together certain hiring committees that did not even include those supervisors. And he recalled hiring committees at other schools that did not include the supervisors.

On Tuesday, July 9, 2019, Respondent attended an A.C. meeting. Mr. Wichmann, Mr. Triggiano, and Dr. Poidomani also attended this meeting. Mr. Triggiano asked how the search for a new music teacher at Dumont High was progressing, and Mr. Wichmann reported that the search committee was already reviewing candidates and beginning interviews. Respondent was extremely upset when he heard about the interviews: he wanted to be on the committee. He testified that Mr. Triggiano that morning had handed him a number of resumes of candidates for the music position, and Respondent spoke to Mr. Wichmann to tell him he wanted to be on the committee. Mr. Wichmann replied that the committee had already started and was going to move fast. Several interviews were scheduled for the next day, July 10. Respondent asked to see resumes that Mr. Wichmann had with him; Mr. Wichmann complied. Respondent stated that he would make himself available, "I want to help you."

After Respondent returned to Selzer, he had two lengthy conversations with Ms. Bello that, according to him, "got a little heated." Respondent held Ms. Bello responsible for the fact that he had not been included on the committee and that he had learned about the interviews at the A.C. meeting. To him, this was particularly upsetting because it was a repeat of what he felt had happened in 2017.

In late July, 2017 shortly before Ms. Bello started as Selzer VP and Supervisor of Music and Art, the band teacher resigned, effective August 8. The job was posted, and Mr. Wichmann formed a hiring committee. Respondent testified that he thought Ms. Bello, although brand-new as VP and Music Director, would have known about the search and been in charge. On August 11, 2017, at an A.C. meeting, Respondent learned that the search was going forward, and interviews were being scheduled without his participation. He called Mr. Wichmann and Mr. Triggiano to express a desire to be a member of the committee. He was in fact added to the committee and participated in all or all but one of the interviews. Respondent considered Ms. Bello's failure to advise him about the formation of the hiring committee in 2017 to be a "breach of loyalty" and of the "chain of command" due a principal from his vice principal.

In 2019, when this issue arose, Respondent felt, as he confided to his fellow principal, Dr. Bennett, that he was being "blind-sided" once again. Ms. Bello explained that she was not leading the search process, Mr. Wichmann was, and she had only learned about the first interview that took place during the A.C. meeting, early that morning or the day before, while Respondent was on vacation.

Respondent called Mr. Triggiano that afternoon to complain about having been left off the committee. He was also upset because he would miss the interviews scheduled for July 10, since he had previously scheduled that as a vacation day. Mr. Triggiano assured Respondent that he could participate and that if he missed the first round of interviews, Mr. Triggiano would include him on the final round, with himself and Dr. Poidomani. Mr. Triggiano also promised to call Mr. Wichmann about the matter.

Mr. Wichmann called Respondent "within 3 minutes" of Respondent ending his conversation with Mr. Triggiano. Mr. Wichmann said, he understood that Respondent wanted to be on the committee, and he was welcome to participate, but the interviews scheduled for July 10 could not be changed.

The afternoon of July 9, 2019, Respondent called Ms. Bello on her cell phone, while she was driving home from work. According to Ms. Bello the conversation was "heated." She testified that Respondent "pretended" he had not known that the music interview was scheduled for that morning. Ms. Bello was shocked and confused by the call, finding it upsetting, because she knew she had spoken to him about the music interviews that morning when he returned from vacation. In his testimony Respondent agreed that he did have a conversation with Ms. Bello the morning of July 9 in which they discussed the music position; that Mr. Wichmann wanted to move quickly; and that there were going to be interviews. However, he claimed Ms. Bello did not tell him that there would be interviews that very morning.

That evening, at 7:01 p.m., Respondent sent an email to Mr. Wichmann, Mr. Triggiano, Ms. Bello and Ms. Hutchinson. He wrote that after "further consideration and after speaking with [Mr. Triggiano], I would like to AGAIN offer my assistance with the search to find a new music teacher for the high school." He explained that he had a vacation day scheduled for July 10 and could not participate in the interviews, urged Mr. Wichmann not to rush the process or "sacrifice quality for the sake of expedition," and asked that the interviews be rescheduled. (D. 25)

Mr. Wichmann understood that Respondent was upset; he and Ms. Bello both interpreted Respondent's email as "angry" because of his use of capital letters, which is often interpreted in emails as shouting. Mr. Wichmann called Mr. Triggiano to discuss the matter. He explained that it was difficult to schedule interviews in the summer, and one of the scheduled candidates was someone who had been highly recommended. Mr. Wichmann asked Mr. Triggiano if he was required to include Respondent on the committee, to which Mr. Triggiano replied, he was not: "if you want to, you can."

As he had planned, Respondent took July 10 as a vacation day. Respondent was so upset by the events of the prior day that he spoke to Dr. Poidomani on July 10 from the marina where he was spending the day with his cousin on his boat. The parties disagree on who initiated the conversation, but both Dr. Poidomani and Respondent agreed this was a very lengthy conversation – 45 minutes to an hour long. Dr. Poidomani testified that Respondent was highly emotional: she felt she was "talking someone off the ledge." He told her he felt that Ms. Bello had "betrayed him" and used that word "over and over again." Dr. Poidomani told him Ms. Bello had not done anything wrong, that Mr. Wichmann was running the committee, but he said, "You don't understand, it was a personal thing between us." He also "bad mouthed" Mr. Wichmann, calling him negative names. Respondent testified that Dr. Poidomani agreed with him during this call that Ms. Bello had messed ("f'd") up in that she should have called him. Dr. Poidomani denies this. Both sides agree that the conversation ended with Dr. Poidomani urging him to let go of the issue and move on.

July 11 conversation between Respondent and Ms. Bello. When Respondent returned to work on July 11, he learned that the interviews had indeed gone ahead as scheduled on July 10 without him. That afternoon, Respondent called Ms. Bello into his office, saying that he wanted to talk to her about the music interviews. According to Ms. Bello, the conversation lasted over an hour, starting around 1:30 or 2:00 p.m. and ending after the staff had left. Ms. Bello knew that Respondent was angry with her and knew from Dr. Poidomani and Mr. Triggiano that Respondent had conveyed to them how upset he was. Ms. Bello wrote a memo to herself that evening to memorialize the main points of the conversation. (D. 30) Some of the points she noted were:

- When she was called into Respondent's office, he had what he called her "file" open on his desk, told her he was writing her up and would be placing a letter in her file;
- He had highlighted areas of her evaluation where he had emphasized that she needed to "continue to communicate;" this was a directive that she had "ignored;" she had been "insubordinate;"
- He did not like her 'loyalty and relationship" with Mr. Wichmann and feared that it would "drive a wedge" in the relationship between the two of them; he instructed her going forward to tell him about all communications she had with Mr. Wichmann, especially regarding the music department;
- Respondent said that he was "most disappointed" because the two of them had a "close relationship;" he realized that "I love you" and asked if she loved him too; he said that their relationship over the past 2 years was "special" and that he "had a piece of me that [my ex-husband] never had" and that "I had a piece of him that [Respondent's wife] would never have."
- Respondent told her that he was going to recommend that she not get tenure and that she should look for a new job;
- After she apologized for inadequate communication with him, Respondent said he was "pleased that I was agreeable and contrite and therefore would not recommend my firing, but that I would need to earn his trust back and work to rebuild the relationship. He said he was the boss ... and I should never forget it."

- After she left his office, while she was packing up to leave for the day, Respondent came into her office and "hugged me tightly for several seconds "placing his head on the side of my face;" "his demeanor had changed, and he was smiling at me."

In addition to writing the email to herself, Ms. Bello wrote an email that night to an attorney friend whose firm handles workplace sexual harassment claims, asking for advice about "an upsetting incident" that occurred at work that day. That email, too, was entered into evidence. (D. 31)

Ms. Bello testified that she found the meeting particularly upsetting because of the threats to her tenure and her job, and she found Respondent's comments about love to be "humiliating" and "degrading." Toward the end of the meeting, Respondent started singing a Billy Joel song to her, "Shameless;" she was familiar with the song, a love song with lyrics that include "I'm thinking about you and you're thinking about me. I'm shameless, shameless for loving you."[2] Further, she found

"Shameless"

Well I'm shameless when it comes to loving you I'd do anything you want me to I'd do anything at all

And I'm standing here for all the world to see
There ain't that much left of me
That has very far to fall

You know I'm not a man who has ever been Insecure about the world I've been living in
I don't break easy, I have my pride
But if you need to be satisfied

I'm shameless, baby I don't have a prayer
Anytime I see you standing there
I go down upon my knees

And I'm changing, I swore I'd never compromise
I have never let anything have this much control over me
Cause I worked too hard to call me life my own
Yes I made myself a world and it worked so perfectly
But it's your world now, I can't refuse
I never had so much to lose
I'm shameless...shameless

You know it should be easy for a man who's strong
To say he's sorry or admit when he's wrong
I've never lost anything I ever missed
But I've never been in love like this...
It's out of my hands
I'm shameless, I don't have the power now
But I don't want it anyhow
So I've got to let it go

I'm shameless, shameless as a man can be
You can make a total fool of me
I just wanted you to know

I am shameless

the hug was more of an embrace than a casual hug, in that it lasted a long time and was unusually tight. Ms. Bello knew that Respondent was a "hugger," whereas she is not.

Respondent confirms that he had a long conversation with Ms. Bello on July 11, but specifically denied:

- that he told her he loved her;
- that he said he had a piece of her that her ex-husband had never had or that she had a piece of him his wife would never have;
- that he said he was the boss and she should never forget it;
- that she should inform him of all communications she would have with Mr. Wichmann going forward.

Respondent agreed that:

- he had his "Principal's file" on his desk that he uses to document staff issues; that he told her she had disregarded a "recommendation" rather than "directive" about communications; and that he would have to "memorialize" this, put "something in writing" because "it's pretty serious;"
- he talked about her "loyalty" and "insubordination;"

But you convinced me otherwise
I'll do anything you please

You see in all my life I've never found
What I couldn't resist, what I couldn't turn down
I could walk away from anyone I ever knew
But I can't walk away from you

Shameless...
Shameless...

Lyrics from Internet

- he engaged in a "salutary hug" – "we hugged each other" – similar to other hugs they had shared in the past;
- he sang part of "Shameless" to her; he did so because she had been apologizing and he didn't want her to "grovel," "you have to be shameless – like the Billy Joel song."

Respondent testified that he had been very upset with Ms. Bello because the same thing had happened in 2017; however, he never intended to put anything in her personnel file – he only wanted to memorialize their conversation. He felt the meeting ended on a positive note, because she apologized, he accepted her apology, and they were going to move on.

July 12 conversation. The morning of July 12, Respondent called Ms. Bello into his office, asked her to close the door and continued the conversation from the day before. He apologized for bringing up the "Shameless" song, saying, "Don't get the wrong idea; I didn't mean anything inappropriate about that song."

Ms. Bello told him that she didn't think he was being fair to her, that she did not understand how she had done anything wrong or was insubordinate, she felt he was "building a case" against her, and she did not want him to put anything in her file. Ms. Bello testified that Respondent continued to say that he had given her a directive and that she should have communicated with him over the July 4th weekend about the music interviews. Ms. Bello sent herself another email to memorialize the conversation. (D. 32)

Respondent confirmed much of the substance of the July 12 conversation, except he testified that Ms. Bello initiated the conversation. He agreed that she was upset that he would put anything in writing and try to get rid of her. Respondent testified he told her it was not his intention to get rid of her, and, anyway, only the Superintendent "can make that call." He urged her to put the matter out of her mind.

However, to him, July 12 "marked the beginning of this whole thing." The day before, on July 11, Ms. Bello had been apologetic, but on July 12, she was "a different person" – she had become "emboldened;" she told him she did not think she had done anything wrong. On or about July 16, Respondent drafted a memorandum to Ms. Bello about the meetings on July 11 and 12. (D. 33) He recapped what he thought Ms. Bello had done wrong, both in 2017 and 2019, in failing to keep him informed about music hiring committees and other matters. He did not, however, give this memo to her right away.

Latter part of July and early August. For the remainder of July, Respondent and Ms. Bello carried on the District's business with relatively little conflict. Respondent sat in on the remaining music interviews and the final interviews with Mr. Triggiano and Dr. Poidomani and agreed with the committee's recommendation of a finalist for the position. Respondent took Ms. Bello out for lunch on her birthday, July 15; they met about school business and discussed the new hire in the music department.

Respondent prepared another memorandum to Ms. Bello on July 24, memorializing a conversation they had the day before about the music department. (D. 34) In that memo, Respondent stated that he would be "involved in the operations of the music department," and that Ms. Bello valued his experience and expertise and welcomed his mentorship and partnership. According to Ms. Bello, Respondent gave her both memos, D. 33 and D. 34 on July 26. At that time, she asked Respondent why he was writing her up if they were trying to move past the music department issues. He told her these would go into his Principal's file, and he would just keep them "for his records."

Also, on July 26, Respondent heard Ms. Bello laughing on the phone with someone, while he was making copies on the office copier outside her door. He testified that when Ms. Bello finished her conversation, she told him she had been talking to Mr. Wichmann, and they had been laughing about a staff or faculty member who was driving them crazy.

Ms. Bello took vacation in late July and Respondent did as well, returning August 10 or 11, so they did not see one another for about two weeks, although Respondent texted Ms. Bello about school matters from Florida, where he was vacationing.

August 12 Conversation. On Respondent's first day back at Selzer School after his vacation in Florida, he had a conversation with Ms. Bello that lasted well over an hour. Ms. Bello testified that Respondent initiated the conversation; she recorded it on her cell phone, without Respondent's knowledge. The District provided me with an audio recording of the conversation and also had a certified court reporter transcribe it. The transcription runs to 69 pages. Respondent testified that the transcription is accurate, except for the few places where it was inaudible. The parties urged me to listen to the audio recording and I did so.

Early in the conversation, Respondent brought up the laughing conversation between Ms. Bello and Mr. Wichmann back on July 26. Ms. Bello told Respondent that she had now received an invitation to an annual summer barbecue that Mr. Wichmann was holding at house, where he would be celebrating his 50th birthday. Respondent then went on to talk, at length, about how much he dislikes Mr. Wichmann and why. Among other things, he said:

- "I don't want to hear [his] name" (T. at 15);
- "He was the one that caused this monumental – ruined our relationship;" "he caus[ed] this trouble between you and I" (T at 16, 17);
- I don't understand "why you're not even the slight bit angry with him or upset with him for causing this because he was the one who shut you down;" "I don't see how your relationship could be unchanged because of this when ours was turned into turmoil" (Tr. 21);
- "It's a slap in the face that this son of a bitch caused all of this trouble, turned our world upside down here and you still want to be the sister he never – wished he never had. That's not okay with me" (T. at 28);
- "If you don't realize what kind of trouble this guy caused and what kind of trouble he is and what kind of scum he is, then there's nothing I'm going to say" (T. at 28);
- "[Y]ou don't think he damaged our relationship, which to me is astounding" (T. at 29);

- "[H]e shouldn't feel like everything is all right between you, like that, you know, that there's like nothing happened. Let's not forget what happened" (T. at 30);
- "I'll tell you what changed, the fact that I became aware that you – your relationship with him was still like, you know, yuck it up with [J], like the way, you know. That shouldn't be. To me [JW] is the anti-Christ for the music program ... for the district in general. He's an asshole. I never liked him. He's an arrogant son of a bitch.  You seem to think this guy walks on water and I can't stand the sight of him. ... this asshole blew the top off of my school with this thing" (Tr. 33-4);
- "I don't want to hear you laughing and shit with [JW]. [W] is a piece of shit who doesn't care this much about you and that's how I feel. It's an insult. It's a slap in the face after everything that happened and after all the bullshit that was caused, everybody involved, that, that, that, that he should think that he has that kind of a frigging proximity after what he caused here. He almost caused you your job because I was this close to getting on the phone and telling [ET], look I can't work with Jackie" (Tr. 34-5);
- "I can't stand [JW], never could for a plethora of reasons. Arrogant son of a bitch. You ask anyone in this building. They think he's an arrogant son of a bitch, and he is an arrogant son of a bitch. I had to eat that and then this exploded and now I can't – I can't, and I won't. This is non-negotiable for me. I don't want to hear his name unless you're talking about what a piece of crap he is.... And this is not over between [J] and me. That I can tell you for sure...  ... that piece of shit...He is not welcome here" (Tr. at 40);

- "I'm on a mission now to expose this asshole for what he is, an asshole, and I will and I won't have to do anything.  I won't have to fire a shot. He'll do it to himself. He put the noose around his neck with that frigging we're not going to have live music" (Tr. at 42);
- "I made the mistake of allowing you so much into my head because you're in my head more than anybody because of the way we do things  I mean I think of you in good ways, but when that flip, that switch flips with that asshole, that was it" (Tr. at 51);
- "It's just infuriating that this happened, he's the cause of it, and I don't know how you can say he's not, but --- and to have that shit in your face. That I'm not good with. That I'm not [inaudible]" (Tr. at 57);
- "I'm not going to allow anyone to disrespect me further than I've already been in regards to this" (Tr. at 52);
- "[S]omeone like this [JW] I want to get" (Tr. at 55);
- "[T]here's going to come a point, and it may come to blows that [JW] and I are going to have that conversation;" Ms. Bello asks, "Why would it come to blows...that's not something you would have to do as a grown man and a professional. Why would it have to come to blows" Respondent: "Because that's the way he is. He's a bully and that's one way to deal with those" (Tr. at 59) ;
- "[E]very time he screws up, I'm going to be there" (Tr. at 62);

Respondent used certain other notable words and phrases repeatedly throughout this conversation. For example,

- Words to the effect that "to me, it's very insulting" appear on pages 24, 25, 26, 27, 35, 52, 64;
- Respondent told Ms. Bello that she would not be able to "earn my trust back by carrying the same type of relationship with [JW] and that's the way it is for me. That's non-negotiable for me." (Tr. at 27; see also Tr. at 40, 52);
- Respondent used variations of the words "fuck" in relation to the situation with Mr. Wichmann many times (Tr. at 38, 39,43, 50); He also used the equivalent word, "frigging": "He put the noose around his neck with that frigging we're not going to have live music."(Tr. at 42); "He's got the IQ of a frigging golf ball" (Tr. at 43);

When Respondent spoke about how he was "going to get" Mr. Wichmann, he referred to his upbringing: "I wouldn't have survived living on the street the way I did  boxing..." Ms. Bello explained that she did not "process things" in the "same exact Hoboken street fighter way that you do." (Tr. at 55) She went on to say, "You know, I think it's a little Italian, too. I think it's that Italian thing that I don't have. You, know, I think maybe it might be a little cultural. I don't know." To which Respondent answered, 'I don't know about that. I'm so far from the Italian culture ... it's not even funny." (Tr. at 56) Ms. Bello continued to talk about how she viewed things differently, saying "maybe it's a little too Pollyanna of me;" to which Respondent replied, you are "white toast." (Tr. at 58, and from audible recording)

Remainder of August 2019. On or about August 15, Ms. Bello went to the High School around 9:00 in the morning. That day, she and Mr. Wichmann were scheduled to visit a school in New Milford to look at their art studio: the District was refurbishing the art room at Dumont High, and the visit was planned to get ideas for that project. Mr. Wichmann testified that Ms. Bello showed up visibly upset. He asked why she was there – it was early, and they had planned that Mr. Wichmann would pick her up at Selzer. She explained that it was not a good day at Selzer, and Respondent was yelling at her about being away. Later that day, after the Milford visit, Mr. Wichmann and his AP, Ryanne Hutchinson, sat with Ms. Bello, who told them that Respondent was angry if she had anything to do with Dumont High; that Respondent had negative feelings about Mr. Wichmann; that he was getting inappropriate, giving her gifts that made her uncomfortable; and that he had given her a "creepy" hug that was long and hard. Mr. Wichmann left Ms. Bello alone to talk further with Ms. Hutchinson for an hour before returning. At some point, whether before or after he left the two women alone, Mr. Wichmann told Ms. Bello words to the effect that she was presenting like a battered woman. When she asked him what he meant, he said that she was stuck in a very inappropriate situation and didn't know how to get out of it. Mr. Wichmann also asked Ms. Bello if she felt sexually harassed; she nodded yes. He told her she was going to have to talk to Mr. Triggiano and offered that he or Ms. Hutchinson would go with her.

Ms. Bello surreptitiously recorded three additional conversations with Respondent before the end of August, on August 19, 21, and 26. I was provided with audio recordings of those conversations, and transcriptions of all three were entered into evidence as D. 20, 21 and 22. The conversations on August 19 and 21 were almost entirely about school matters. The conversation on August 26, however, was contentious.

Respondent started out asking why he had not been copied on an email to Mr. Triggiano pertaining to a music proposal. When Ms. Bello replied that Respondent had been aware of the proposal, and that no one else was copied on it, Respondent replied "that makes no difference." (D. 22, Tr. at 3-4) Respondent then asked why he hadn't been informed about a meeting Ms. Bello was having with the lunch ladies. She replied that he was aware of this; it was held each year. Ms. Bello said, Respondent had told her she did not need to inform him about "minutia" and asked how she was supposed to know when it was minutia and when it wasn't. Respondent replied, "That's your opinion," "don't leave anything to chance." When Ms. Bello replied that she did communicate with Respondent, he pushed back and said, several times, "you're saying that I don't hear stuff...  Well, what didn't I hear?  you don't think it's important that I know about the lunch ladies?" (Id. at 6-8) Ms. Bello ended the conversation by saying, "I'm not doing this. I'm done," to which Respondent replied, "Yeah, you are done.  You are done." (Id. at 8) Listening to the audio recording, I heard an edge to Respondent's questions and Ms. Bello's frustration.

At some point that day, Ms. Bello went to see Dr. Poidomani at the District offices. She told Dr. Poidomani that she was upset about how she was being treated by Respondent: that he was being verbally abusive and cursing, he had begun writing her up, was criticizing her for attending Mr. Wichmann's barbeque and for not communicating with him adequately about putting personnel on the BOE agenda. Dr. Poidomani immediately took Ms. Bello into Mr. Triggiano's office to make him aware of her concerns.

Mr. Triggiano testified that prior to August 26th, he had been aware from some of his frequent conversations with Respondent – they spoke on the phone maybe 10 times per week -- that Respondent was not happy with Ms. Bello's performance, and that he was "displeased with her friendship" with Mr. Wichmann. Before Dr. Poidomani brought Ms. Bello in to see him, Mr. Triggiano had spoken to Ms. Bello "very infrequently." She told him that day that Respondent was giving her a hard time, starting to write her up, yelling at her and trying to intimidate her.

The next day, August 27, after the A.C. meeting, Mr. Triggiano brought Respondent and Ms. Bello together for a "mediation" session. He asked Dr. Poidomani to be present. Respondent asked if Dr. Bennett could sit in. Mr. Triggiano asked Dr. Bennett if she had any personal knowledge about the issues between Respondent and Ms. Bello. Dr. Bennett said no; she was there simply to support her colleague and because she had had issues with her own VP at one point. Mr. Triggiano allowed her to remain. The session was "pretty lengthy," about an hour. Mr. Triggiano allowed both Ms. Bello and Respondent to speak – they went "back and forth." Respondent said that Ms. Bello was insubordinate, not trustworthy; that she was too friendly with Mr. Wichmann, and she should keep her distance from him. Ms. Bello apologized more than once: for making a reference to Respondent's Italian heritage, and for not communicating more effectively with him, but Respondent said it wasn't a sincere apology. Mr. Triggiano tried to resolve things: he wanted them to be able to work together professionally. The outcome of the meeting was that Ms. Bello said she was willing to resolve things and move on, while Respondent, somewhat reluctantly, said he would try. Mr. Triggiano made a few changes at the District level to reduce the tension between Respondent and Ms. Bello: first, he removed Ms. Bello from supervising the music department, giving that responsibility to Ms. Hutchinson; second, he assigned Dr. Poidomani to do a formal observation of every VP in the District.

Later that week, Ms. Bello went to Dumont High to meet with Mr. Wichmann, Mr. Triggiano and other high school staff about the opening of the newly renovated art room. Part way through that meeting, Respondent called, demanding that she come back to Selzer and help him with scheduling problems, although she was not usually involved in preparing the schedule. She complied, although she testified she found no problem with the schedule when they reviewed it.

Events in September 2019. The new school year began the next week, after Labor Day. Mr. Triggiano did not hear from Respondent or Ms. Bello for two weeks and was hopeful that "everything was resolved." However, on September 17, Respondent called and asked to see him. Respondent was very upset when he came into Mr. Triggiano's office. He said, he couldn't stand to be in the same room with Ms. Bello and that he can't work with her: "she's a liar, no matter what she says." He said, he had tried, but couldn't "get past this." Mr. Wichmann's name came up: Respondent said that Ms. Bello was "too close" and has to be on the phone all the time with him. Mr. Triggiano told Respondent something he had said before to both Respondent and Ms. Bello: if you have a complaint, if there's something inappropriate that happened, you need to file a complaint with Luis Lopez, the District's Affirmative Action Officer and we'll investigate it thoroughly.

On September 25, 2019, Respondent went to Mr. Lopez to complain about Ms. Bello. He asked if he could just talk "off the record" about the situation, but, after consulting Mr. Triggiano, Mr. Lopez said, no. If Respondent had concerns, he had to make a complaint, which Mr. Lopez would investigate thoroughly. Respondent never gave Mr. Lopez a written complaint, although he was asked several times to place his concerns in writing. Mr. Lopez nevertheless initiated the investigation that led to these charges.

Ms. Bello's Other Concerns. As noted above, in the course of Mr. Lopez's investigation, Ms. Bello raised concerns about other behaviors of Respondent that she had not shared with Dr. Poidomani or Mr. Triggiano, but which she had, to some extent, shared with Mr. Wichmann and Ms. Hutchinson. Ms. Bello testified that she found these behaviors to be intrusive and inappropriate; she felt they were motivated by romantic or sexual inclinations. They are summarized briefly here.

Intrusions into Ms. Bello's personal life, particularly when she was out on medical leave. Ms. Bello testified that Respondent called and texted her excessively, particularly when she was out on medical leave and recovering from major surgery in the spring of 2019. She testified that he asked her to have her mother call him and let him know how the surgery went; Respondent testified that he had not made that request. Of particular concern to Ms. Bello were Respondent's persistent requests to take her out to dinner. Eventually, she agreed to go, but cancelled that day, giving the excuse that she had to attend Shiva for a friend of the family. Respondent and his wife testified that the idea of taking her out to dinner originated with his wife, and that Respondent made that clear to Ms. Bello over the telephone.

Gifts and hugs. All of the Selzer employees who testified agreed that the school staff had a tradition of exchanging gifts for birthdays and holidays. There was also testimony from Respondent and the school secretary, Ruth Keenan, that Respondent and other staff were "huggers" and frequently exchanged hugs with their gifts. Ms. Bello testified that she is not a hugger, and she found Respondent's hugs to be "creepy," particularly the hug he gave her on August 12, after their long, contentious conversation. Ms. Keenan confirmed that Ms. Bello is not a "hugger," and she has only witnessed one time that Ms. Bello hugged Respondent – when his dog died.

There was evidence concerning four gifts in particular that Ms. Bello found inappropriate, because they appeared to be given "for no reason," were unduly personal, and were accompanied by hugs. Those were:

(1) a necklace with an inexpensive anchor charm: Respondent said he selected the anchor because Ms. Bello had mentioned that anchors were meaningful to her; he gave it to her in March 2019, right before her surgery;

(2) a bottle opener with an anchor on it: Respondent said he had extra bottle openers and put them on a table for faculty or staff to take; he handed one to Ms. Bello, because of the anchor symbol;

(3) scented soaps: Respondent had wrapped the soaps in red tissue paper and gave them to Ms. Bello on July 26; he told her that he liked the smell of the soap and she could use it at work; Respondent and his wife testified that they bought a bunch of scented soaps at Marshalls; Respondent testified he and Ms. Bello had discussed soaps that a colleague had at school, and so he thought to give some to her;

(4) T-shirts: Respondent and his wife bought a number of T-shirts while on their August vacation in Florida; Respondent thought to give one that was left over to Ms. Bello; the shirt had an anchor on it.

POSITIONS OF THE PARTIES

The District argues that it has met its burden to prove the tenure charges by a preponderance of the credible evidence. In particular, (1) Ms. Bello, Mr. Triggiano, Dr. Poidomani, Luis Lopez and Mr. Wichmann were all credible witnesses who testified in a manner that was consistent, supported by contemporaneous memoranda and the recordings Ms. Bello made of conversations with Respondent; (2) Respondent, on the other hand was not a credible witness; in fact, he lied both in the pleadings and in his testimony or was patently unbelievable on several key points, including: (a) not mentioning the song "Shameless" when he spoke to Mr. Lopez, and denying in his answer to the Tenure Charges that he brought the song up; whereas he admitted in this proceeding that he had sung the song to Ms. Bello on July 11 and apologized for doing so on July 12; (b) testifying in this proceeding that "Ms. Bello hugged me all the time," and stating in his answer to the Tenure Charges that Ms. Keenan "will testify that she witnessed Ms. Bello hugging Mr. Podesta and initiating the hug on several occasions;" whereas Ms. Keenan testified that she could at most recall a single instance when Ms. Bello hugged Respondent; (c) claiming that Ms. Bello first evidenced "disloyalty" to him and failed to keep him informed about interviews for a music position in August of 2017 so that he had to learn of the matter at an A.C. meeting on August 11; whereas the evidence showed that the music vacancy was not announced until August 8 and only posted thereafter, so it was impossible that interviews were scheduled by that A.C. meeting; (d) claiming in this proceeding that "I don't hate Mr. Wichmann," bears him no ill will and could work with him as a colleague if he is allowed to return to his position as Principal at Selzer; whereas Respondent's hostility to Mr. Wichmann is captured in own words, as recorded by Ms. Bello on August 12, and by Mr. Lopez during his interviews, as well as Dr. Bennett's testimony that Respondent wanted to rant and complain about Mr. Wichmann during the August 27 mediation, but the Superintendent stopped him; (d) trying to "soft-pedal" his earlier statements that Ms. Bello had engaged in a pattern of lying, disloyalty and betrayal toward him; whereas those were exactly his words to Mr. Lopez; (e) claiming that Mr. Triggiano had a pre-existing relationship and a "soft spot" for Ms. Bello; whereas he did not attempt to contradict or impeach the testimony of both Mr. Triggiano and Ms. Bello that no such relationship existed; (f) claiming that Ms. Bello did not apologize during the August 27, 2019 mediation session, whereas Ms. Bello, Mr. Triggiano and Dr. Poidomani, all were clear that she did; (g) claiming that Ms. Bello had not informed him about the music interviews on July 9, 2019; whereas he admitted that she did talk to him that morning about the process, and she always told him where she was going when she left the school building; (3) when balanced against the credible testimony of Ms. Bello and the other District witnesses, Respondent's hopelessly contradictory and even dishonest testimony falls far short and cannot overcome the preponderance of the District's evidence that proves his guilt as charged.

Given that the District has proven the tenure charges, the only appropriate penalty is discharge, in that (1) Respondent has demonstrated throughout the investigation of this matter and the hearing herein, that he has not learned a lesson and that the offending behavior will recur; (2) Respondent's attitude has been that of an aggrieved victim who lashes out against anyone who dares to oppose his subjectively perverse view of the world: he turned on his friend, colleague and mentor, Mr. Triggiano, and accused him of bias, inventing a family relationship with Ms. Bello; he turned on Ms. Bello, accusing her of having the temerity to apply for a principalship outside the District, suggesting that she should not receive tenure as a Vice Principal; he further accused her of being emboldened, and exhibiting a lack of loyalty; this is not someone who has or is able to learn from his past mistakes; (3) further Respondent has taken the position throughout this proceeding that his conduct toward Ms. Bello was never inappropriate; despite the evidence and his admission that he frequently acted in a manner that was entirely inappropriate for a senior supervisor toward his subordinate: he sang a love song to her, told her how much he thought about her; asked her out to dinner, gave her presents of a personal nature, such as scented soap, suggesting that she use it at work, hugged her, complained about her work relationship with another principal in the district, and turned on her when she did not agree to cut off all ties of friendship and collegiality with that principal; and obsessively required her "blind obedience" to him on all matters related to the District's music program; (4) he has so "poisoned the well" with his profane and vile diatribe against his professional colleague that it is impossible to expect that he and Mr. Wichmann would be able to work productively together in the future; (5) Respondent is a person with an utterly misplaced martyr complex who has refused to accept responsibility for any of his actions. For all of these reasons, the Tenure Charges herein should be sustained, and the Arbitrator should uphold the District's decision to remove Respondent's tenure and discharge him from employment.

Respondent, on the other hand, argues that the District has not met its burden to prove the tenure charges, in that (1) while there is certainly evidence of friction between Respondent and his Vice Principal, that friction only last two months, during the summer of 2019 when school was not in session; that friction did not affect the normal operation of Selzer School and both Respondent and Ms. Bello continued to conduct themselves in a professional manner throughout; not a single District employee ever witnessed or heard any dispute between the two of them; (2) whatever conflict there was between the two administrators seems to have been resolved by the end of July, and, although it became an issue again on August 23, 2019, after Respondent returned from vacation; that occurred because Ms. Bello "instigated" and secretly recorded a conversation between the two of them; any further conflict in August was due to Ms. Bello's failure to copy Respondent on emails pertaining to the lunch ladies; (3) there was no proof that Respondent had a romantic and/or sexual interest in Ms. Bello; Ms. Bello's allegations were not supported or borne out by the conversations she secretly recorded with Respondent; further, Ms. Bello never told Mr. Triggiano or Dr. Poidomani of any alleged professions of love, inappropriate sexual or romantic overtures, gifts or invitations; she only raised these allegations after Respondent filed a complaint against her; (4) the investigation conducted by the Affirmative Action officer for the District into Respondent's claims was fatally flawed because (a) Mr. Lopez did not initially interview two important witnesses, Dr. Bennett and Respondent's wife, only doing so after Respondent's counsel asked him to; (b) Mr. Lopez never gave Respondent an opportunity to reply specifically to things said by Ms. Bello, although he gave her that opportunity; (c) the District did not follow its own Healthy Workplace Environment policy which requires the Superintendent to meet with the offender(s) and victim(s) if "the investigation determines conduct prohibited by this policy has taken place" to review the investigation results and to implement remedial measures to ensure such conduct does not continue or recur; instead, at the conclusion of Mr. Lopez's investigation and report, the matter was brought directly to the Board, which adopted these charges; the mediation session conducted by the Superintendent prior to the investigation, does not satisfy the explicit terms of the District's policy; had this matter been properly presented to the parties and ultimatums given to each of them, this matter would have been resolved with a transfer or transfer and perhaps some type of training; (5) it is undisputed that Respondent did not formally attempt to get Ms. Bello terminated (which he lacks the authority to do) or to affect her tenure; (6) while Respondent concedes that he is passionate about the music program, having spent much of his 40 year career in the District building and nurturing the program, his anger toward Mr. Wichmann was attributable not only to Mr. Wichmann's management of the 2019 music interviews, but also to differences of opinion in the importance of live music in the school; in any event, Respondent is not charged with conduct unbecoming regarding Mr. Wichmann, but only regarding Ms. Bello; further, any anger or hurt feelings that Respondent had regarding the 2019 music interviews had no ill effect on the operation of the school.

Discharge is not warranted in this case because (1) Respondent's conduct, even if he was unduly upset about the music interviews, does not constitute the type of conduct that either "adversely affects the morale or efficiency" of the District or "has a tendency to destroy public respect" for the District; the evidence is uncontroverted that neither the normal operations of Selzer school nor of the District were adversely impacted in any way; (2) Respondent has an unblemished record of 40 years of service in the District with no prior discipline of any type; this record must be taken into consideration when considering the appropriate penalty for misconduct, if there was any involved here; (3) removal of tenure is an extremely severe penalty, which can result not only in loss of employment, but loss of pension; Respondent's ability, record and length of service are all factors that must be considered to mitigate any penalty; (4) even if Respondent's conduct toward Ms. Bello and Mr. Wichmann could be considered "over the top," based upon case law in New Jersey and other decisions, this conduct clearly does not rise to the level of conduct unbecoming, let alone conduct unbecoming that should result in a removal of tenure; in many cases where the employee's conduct was arguably worse than that charged against Respondent, dismissal and removal of tenure were not upheld; (5)

Respondent maintained a dignified and professional demeanor throughout this proceeding, even when witnesses called him a liar; he did not assign any ill motive to other witnesses, even when he disagreed with them, nor did he exhibit anger or agitation. In sum, there are no facts from which it can be determined that there is "just cause" for removal of Respondent's tenure. In addition, his suspension without pay for 120 days was unjustified. Respondent should be immediately reinstated and receive back pay for all of the time that his salary has been withheld during the pendency of these proceedings.

DISCUSSION

Both parties were ably represented by counsel in this proceeding and had full opportunity to present evidence and make arguments in support of their respective positions. In the preparation of this Opinion and Award, I have given careful consideration to the testimonial and documentary evidence, the legal authorities cited, and the positions and arguments set forth by the parties. For the reasons set forth below, I find the District has proven both Charge I and Charge II, and that Respondent did engage in conduct unbecoming a tenured Principal. I further find that the conduct was egregious, and that removal from his position and loss of tenure is the appropriate penalty.

While each party has raised questions about the credibility of the other side, many of the most significant facts in this matter are undisputed. That Respondent used intemperate and ugly language about a fellow principal in the District to his Vice Principal, that he put pressure on her and chastised her for continuing to work with that Principal, as her job duties required, that he expressed to her his intense personal feelings, using words and song that were wholly unprofessional – all these facts have been established by uncontroverted evidence. Respondent's language regarding Mr. Wichmann, a fellow administrator in the District, and which Respondent admits was accurately recorded on August 12 by Ms. Bello, in and of itself was conduct unbecoming and warrants his discharge. That language included:

- profanities: he's an "asshole," a "piece of shit," "a piece of crap," the "antichrist;"
- insults: "he has the IQ of a frigging golf ball," he's an arrogant son of a bitch; he is "scum;"
- and threats: "this is not over;" "I'm on a mission to expose this asshole;" "he put the noose around his neck;" "someone like this I want to get and it may come to blows;" "he's a bully and that's one way to deal with those;" "every time he screws up, I'm going to be there."

Perhaps even more serious were Respondent's demands that Ms. Bello not speak Mr. Wichmann's name, "unless you're talking about what a piece of crap he is," and his telling her he did not want her to have a good working relationship with Mr. Wichmann: "I don't want to hear you laughing and shit" with him. These were unprofessional demands that, along with other conversations on other dates, represented pressure from her supervisor to behave toward another administrator in the District in a manner that was contrary to her professional obligations and her personal inclinations toward civility and comity. Wholly apart from whether these demands were motivated by romantic or sexual inclination, they were unprofessional, inappropriate and constitute conduct unbecoming a tenured principal.

Respondent adamantly denies that he ever told Ms. Bello that he loved her; points out that he never asked to have sex with her; and only touched her by giving her hugs in the office, in a manner that was friendly -- "salutary" in nature -- the same kinds of hugs he gives other Selzer employees. His denials are contradicted by Ms. Bello's testimony, which was very credible and was supported by her contemporaneous memoranda.

Respondent defended giving Ms. Bello gifts unconnected to her birthday or Christmas, by pointing out that his wife had helped him pick them out, and they were meant merely as gestures of friendship. Likewise, he defended his frequent calls to her and his invitation to dinner as examples of concern and friendship, all known to and promoted by his wife. Yet, the evidence is uncontroverted that he spoke at length to Ms. Bello about the "damage," "trouble," "turmoil," and "blowing up" of their relationship. He also told her he had "made the mistake of allowing you so much into my head, because you're in my head more than anybody." And he sang a love song to her, Billy Joel's song, "Shameless," in a context that even he realized was inappropriate, because he apologized the next day. Respondent's testimony that he only sang the song to Ms. Bello, because he didn't want her to "grovel," is not credible. As the District pointed out in its post-hearing brief, this explanation does not match his testimony about the conversation to Mr. Lopez, or in this hearing; indeed, after talking about "groveling," he then denied he had used the term. Whether he intended the song as a profession of love or not, it is in fact a love song. Particularly in light of Respondent's other declarations, Ms. Bello as the recipient of the song, and I as a fact finder, are justified in considering it as such.

Respondent obsessed for over two weeks while he was on vacation and away from the District over the fact that on July 26 Ms. Bello had laughed with Mr. Wichmann over the phone and then explained to him what they had been laughing about. This incident so bothered him that he raised the subject with her the morning of his first day back from vacation, August 12, and took off on an hour-long rant about Mr. Wichmann, her disloyalty, and what he viewed as irreparable damage to their working relationship at Selzer. Whether motivated by romantic or sexual inclinations, this was harassing behavior, prohibited by law and by District policy.

In sum, I find that by his conduct, Respondent crossed the physical and social boundaries that must exist between a supervising principal and his subordinate.

Further, Respondent repeatedly threatened Ms. Bello's job and her tenure. His accusations of disloyalty and insubordination were all the more inappropriate, since they were aimed at her for doing nothing more than applying for a principalship and performing her job as Supervisor of Music and Art. He spoke against her to District leadership – Dr. Poidomani and Mr. Triggiano, in June and again in August – and directly and repeatedly threatened Ms. Bello over the months in question.

All of these behaviors are grossly inappropriate for a supervising Principal to inflict upon his subordinate Vice Principal. When District leadership learned that Ms. Bello was unhappy with how Respondent was treating her, Mr. Triggiano and Dr. Poidomani convened a mediation session, during which they urged Respondent and Ms. Bello to put differences behind them and work together for the good of their school and the District. Ms. Bello readily agreed, but Respondent was unable to let go of his emotions: he continued to chastise Ms. Bello for interacting with Mr. Wichmann, and the very day he returned from vacation, he once again harangued her, and he then asked Mr. Triggiano to remove her from his school.

Respondent appears to believe that his passion for music and pride in developing a strings program for the District excuse his behavior toward Ms. Bello and Mr. Wichmann. However, once he became principal of Selzer, he had no responsibility for steering the program, and his passion certainly did not entitle him to harass Ms. Bello for performing her professional duties.

Interestingly, it was Respondent's own inability to let go of his feelings toward Ms. Bello that brought matters to a head. He was the one who initiated a formal District investigation by going to Mr. Lopez in September to lodge a complaint against Ms. Bello. That complaint led Ms. Bello to inform the District about Respondent's conduct and to share the memoranda and recordings she had made of their interactions. Had he been able to control his anger and keep his opinions to himself, Ms. Bello would probably not have come forward; she had kept the details of their interactions to herself, aside from confiding a part of the story to Mr. Wichmann and Ms. Hutchinson in August.

Respondent has argued that these tenure charges are not warranted because Respondent's conduct was limited to a two-month period of time, during which school was not in session. I note that it was Respondent who went to Mr. Lopez in September with complaints, when the new school year was underway. Furthermore, I reject Respondent's argument that the normal operations of Selzer were not affected, and no one observed any conflict between Respondent and Ms. Bello. The fact that Ms. Bello did not launch a formal complaint against his behavior does not mean that she was unaffected: she documented her response at the time, and she sought advice from an attorney whose firm specializes in sexual harassment. Certainly, based upon her own testimony and the testimony of Mr. Triggiano, Dr. Poidomani and Mr. Wichmann, all of whom witnessed her distress, she did, indeed suffer and was harmed by his conduct.

Not only District leadership, but also staff at Selzer knew something was wrong between Respondent and Ms. Bello. Respondent's own witness, Ruth Keenan, the school secretary, knew that there was some "strain" between Respondent and Ms. Bello, and knew that it was due to the music interviews in July, because Respondent told her so, mentioning Ms. Bello. Respondent also told Ms. Keenan he did not "care for" Mr. Wichmann; asked her about the frequency of Mr. Wichmann's calls to Ms. Bello; and expressed the opinion that Mr. Wichmann should have called him. Ms. Keenan knew that Respondent learned about those conversations because Ms. Bello told him about them. While Ms. Keenan testified that she did not observe any difference in the behavior of either Respondent or Ms. Bello to indicate they were upset during the summer months, she certainly was aware of tensions between them.

Respondent implies that he and Ms. Bello were equally to blame for the "conflict," describing the situation as one of "friction" between two District employees. I cannot accept this interpretation of the facts that were presented to me. What is abundantly clear is that Respondent alone was responsible for the "friction" between himself and his vice principal: he was the one who brought the subject up repeatedly; he was the one who made demands on her to perform her job as Supervisor of Music and Art in a uncivil and unprofessional manner. And he was the one who spoke of his inability to "get her out of his head" – to stop thinking about their close relationship and how he believed it had been destroyed by Mr. Wichmann. Respondent argues in his post-hearing brief that Ms. Bello was the one who "raised the issue again during the recorded conversation of August 12, 2019," thus resurrecting issues between the two of them that had died down after early July. However, that interpretation is belied by Ms. Bello's testimony and by the transcript itself. Respondent was the one who invited her to come into his office to talk on that day, and very early in the conversation Respondent was the one who raised the issue of Ms. Bello's conversation with Mr. Wichmann on July 26, which he had continued to worry about on his vacation. (See D. 2, Tr. at 13)

Further, this was not a conflict between two peers: Respondent was Ms. Bello's supervisor, in a position of power over her, and he had a professional obligation to behave in a non-threatening, supportive manner. In any event, the behavior of the two was not equivalent: his behavior toward his subordinate was way "over the top," personal and threatening, while her behavior was always polite, professional and restrained. Respondent argues that because he did not have the authority to actually prevent Ms. Bello from getting tenure or to fire her, his threats to "write her up" and to go to Mr. Triggiano to secure her removal from Selzer, were innocent. Again, I cannot agree. As her supervisor, talking to Dr. Poidomani and Mr. Triggiano about denying her tenure because she applied for a job out of the District, was inappropriate. And his threats to write her up, to put negative information in her file, and speaking to Mr. Triggiano about her employment and otherwise removing her from Selzer School were as substantive as they were improper. She did nothing to merit negative censure: the weight of credible evidence establishes that she did inform him of the music interviews on July 9, which, in any case, were not within his purview, but were properly under the direction of Mr. Wichmann as Dumont High Principal. His repeated threats nevertheless to penalize her were retaliatory and harassing and grew more inappropriate as the summer progressed into the fall.

Respondent also argues that the profane and hostile language he unleashed about Mr. Wichmann somehow doesn't count, because he has not been charged with conduct unbecoming toward Mr. Wichmann, only toward Ms. Bello. This is a specious argument. In Count II, the District has charged Respondent with acting in an "irrational, mean-spirited and inappropriate fashion in his conversation about Mr. Wichmann with Ms. Bello." (Par. 2) The District also charged that Respondent 's "irrational and counter-productive insistence that Ms. Bello have as little contact as possible with Mr. Wichmann, was inappropriate, contrary to the best interests of the [District] and constitutes conduct unbecoming...." (Par. 3) Thus, Respondent's language about Mr. Wichmann is certainly part of these tenure charges and is part of the evidence that he engaged in conduct unbecoming a District administrator. The fact that he made Ms. Bello listen to his diatribes and pressured her to buy into his view of Mr. Wichmann only exacerbates the inappropriateness of his conduct.

Finally, I find no merit to Respondent's contention that the charges against him are fatally flawed because the District did not hold a second mediation session with him and Ms. Bello after Mr. Lopez completed his investigative report. Respondent cites to the Board's Healthy Workplace Environment Policy. (D. 12) In particular he cites the following language:

> If the investigation determines conduct prohibited by this policy has taken place, the Superintendent or designee will meet with the offender(s) and the victim(s) to review the investigation results and to implement remedial measures to ensure such conduct does not continue or reoccur. Appropriate disciplinary action may be taken depending on the severity of the conduct.

First it must be noted that Respondent, himself, did not adhere to this policy. The policy states that an employee who believes inappropriate conduct has been directed at him, "shall submit a written report to the Superintendent of Schools." (Id., emphasis added.) Respondent was the person who initiated the investigation by Mr. Lopez, yet, despite repeated requests, he never submitted his complaints in writing. Further, while the policy states that the Superintendent or his designee will meet with the offender and victim, it does not state that it will meet with them together. More importantly, the policy makes it clear that where the misconduct uncovered in an investigation is "severe," disciplinary action may be taken. That is what the Board decided was appropriate after reviewing Mr. Lopez's report. The policy does not require a meeting with offender and victim before discipline is initiated. And, as the District has pointed out, Mr. Triggiano did bring Respondent and Ms. Bello together to try to resolve Respondent's complaints about her. When that proved futile, the Board was within its authority to proceed with disciplinary action after it received Mr. Lopez's report.

Respondent has cited several cases for the proposition that Respondent's behavior was less serious than the behavior of other tenured personnel where dismissal was not upheld. I find those cases to be so factually distinct from the present case as to be of no analytical value. First, all but two cases involved tenure charges against teaching personnel; one case involved a computer operator/secretary. As discussed below, principals play a very different role than teachers in a school district. Second, in four of the cases, the misconduct alleged was against students: leaving students unattended in a classroom (Irvington v. Roca-Rodi (2014)); swearing, being offensive and/or demeaning (Paterson v. Vincenti (2014)); kissing a student on the cheek, taking a student to a play without informing the school (Pittsgrove v. Boyle (2014)); yelling at students, making them line up by race (Jersey City v. Harris (2015)). The remaining cases included consuming alcohol on the job, which resulted in a last chance agreement (Greater Egg Harbor v. Zepralka (2015)); a union rep becoming abusive toward an administrator while raising a grievance (Paterson v. McEntee (2017)); and a technology instructor disconnecting the loudspeaker connected to the school alarm, thus endangering students (South Hackensack v. Masullo (2017)). In each case, a substantial penalty was imposed upon the tenured employee, although discharge was not upheld.

The one case cited by Respondent that is most similar factually to the present case is Monroe Township v. Becker (2020). There a tenured Vice Principal was brought up on charges because on one occasion he told a person, "If you call me 'amigo' again, I'll fucking kill you." The respondent underwent a psychiatric evaluation, which found he did not have a problem with anger management. Because this was a single isolated incident, his ten years of good evaluations mitigated against termination; instead he was ordered to serve a thirty-day unpaid suspension.

Respondent's position and conduct are in no way comparable to the cited cases. A school principal is in a position of great responsibility. He is not only the academic leader of the school community; he is also responsible for implementing all District policies and modeling behavior that is expected of employees and students. As a supervisor, he is particularly responsible for treating all students, faculty, and staff with respect, dignity and fairness. When, as here, the principal abuses his position to demean and harass others in the District and in his own school, over a period of months, and despite the District's intervention, that is misbehavior that undermines the essential requirements of his position. Further, unlike the Vice Principal who was threatening and intemperate on one occasion, here we have more egregious and repetitive conduct that went on for a period of at least two months and evidenced disrespect toward District officials and harassment of a subordinate.

Respondent argues that he should be returned to his position with no penalty at all, except, perhaps, some training. However, Respondent has expressed no recognition that his conduct was inappropriate and no regret or remorse. Thus, he cannot be expected to change. It is indeed unfortunate that after 40 years of unblemished service to the District, Respondent will end his career this way. But his conduct was totally unacceptable. His pursuit of emotional vendettas against Mr. Wichmann and Ms. Bello and his inappropriate expressions of love and pressure on Ms. Bello for a close personal relationship, all constitute conduct unbecoming a Principal and disqualify him from administrative leadership in the District.

With regard to the particular tenure charges, I make the following findings:

COUNT I

1. "Mr. Podesta's inappropriate actions toward Ms. Bello, including physical contact, purchasing of gifts for Ms. Bello, and professions of love for Ms. Bello, constitute conduct unbecoming a tenured principal." This charge is sustained.

2. "Mr. Podesta's inappropriate conduct constitutes conduct unbecoming a tenured employee and mandates the termination of his employment as a tenured employee in the Dumont School District." This charge is sustained.

COUNT II

frequently been inappropriate and inconsistent with the duties of a tenured Principal in the Dumont School District." This charge is sustained.

2. "Mr. Podesta has acted in an irrational, mean-spirited, and inappropriate fashion in his conversations about Mr. Wichmann with Ms. Bello." This charge is sustained."

3. 4. "Mr. Podesta's retaliation against Ms. Bello for his subjective and incorrect assumption that Ms. Bello was acting in an "insubordinate and disloyal" manner toward him constitutes conduct unbecoming a tenured employee in the Dumont School District. This retaliation included, without limitation, Mr. Podesta's threats to fire Ms. Bello." This charge is sustained.

5. "Mr. Podesta, in his irrational, self-absorbed, and unfair treatment of Ms. Bello, has engaged in conduct unbecoming a tenured employee in the Dumont School District." This charge is sustained.

AWARD

The District has established Counts I and II. The proven allegations are serious and constitute grounds for termination of tenure. Accordingly, Respondent's dismissal for conduct unbecoming is upheld.

Final Decision

J.A., on behalf of minor child, K.M.,

Petitioner,

v.

Board of Education of the Township of Middletown, Monmouth County,

Respondent.

Synopsis

Pro se petitioner challenged the determination of the respondent, the Board of Education of the Township of Middletown, that petitioner is not domiciled in Middletown Township and that K.M. is therefore not eligible to receive a free public education in the district. The Board asserted that petitioner has admitted she now lives in Keansburg but wanted to have K.M. continue his education in Middletown Township schools; the Board argued that the appeal is without merit and that petitioner's request for relief has no basis in law. The Board filed a motion to dismiss the petition.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a), public school is free to children domiciled within the school district, and the domicile of a child follows that of the parent; in this case, it is undisputed that petitioner no longer lives in Middletown; petitioner is cognizant of the fact that K.M. is not eligible to continue his education in the District; petitioner failed to respond to the Board's motion to dismiss, failed to appear on a scheduled conference call, and did not offer the OAL "an explanation for the nonappearance within one day" of the petitioner's non-appearance within the meaning of N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.4(a). The ALJ concluded that a plain reading of N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.4(a) required the matter to be returned to the transmitting agency for appropriate disposition. According, the ALJ granted the Board's motion to dismiss and ordered that the case be returned to the Department for appropriate disposition pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-3.3(b) and (c).

Upon review, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ's finding that petitioner admitted she was not a domiciliary of Middletown for the 2019-2020 school year, and further concurred that K.M. was not entitled to a free public education in the district's schools during that time. Accordingly, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b, the Commissioner directed petitioner to reimburse the Board in the amount of the district's annual per pupil cost for the 2019-2020 school year. In so doing, the Commissioner noted that it was not necessary for the OAL to administratively return the file to the agency since the ALJ's conclusions on the merits of the case were sufficient to grant the Board's motion to dismiss.

This synopsis is not part of the Commissioner's decision. It has been prepared for the convenience of the reader. It has been neither reviewed nor approved by the Commissioner.

Petitioner,

v.

Board of Education of the Township of Middletown, Monmouth County,

Respondent.

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. The parties did not file exceptions.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurs with the Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) finding that petitioner admitted that she was not a domiciliary of Middletown for the 2019-2020 school year. The Commissioner further concurs with the ALJ's conclusion that the minor child was, therefore, not entitled to a free public education in the school district during that time.[1]

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b, the Commissioner shall assess tuition against petitioner for the time-period during which the minor children were ineligible to attend school in Middletown. Therefore, the Board is entitled to tuition reimbursement equal to its annual per pupil cost for the 2019-2020 school year, during which time petitioner's minor child was ineligible to attend school in respondent's district.

[1] Despite reaching this conclusion, the ALJ did not render a decision on the Board's motion to dismiss. Instead the ALJ based his determination on petitioner's failure to participate in the hearing process, and administratively returned the file to the agency pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-3.3. However, it was not necessary for the OAL to administratively return the file to the agency since the ALJ's conclusions as to the merits of the case are sufficient to grant the Board's motion to dismiss.

Accordingly, the Board's motion to dismiss the petition of appeal is granted. Petitioner is directed to reimburse the Board in the amount of the district's annual per pupil cost for the 2019-2020 school year, the time-period in which K.M. was ineligible to attend school in Middletown.

Afshan Ajmiri Giner, Esquire, for respondent (Florio, Perrucci, Steinhardt and Cappelli, LLC, attorneys)

Record Closed: May 14, 2020 Decided: May 22, 2020

BEFORE DEAN J. BUONO, ALJ:

PROCEDURAL HISTORY AND STATEMENT OF CASE

Petitioner, J.A. on behalf of minor child, K.M., challenges respondent, Board of Education for the Township of Middletown's, (Board/District) finding that petitioner does not live within the District and is not domiciled in the District. As such, petitioner is required to reimburse the District for tuition.

On January 10, 2019, the Department of Education, Office of Controversies and Disputes transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), where it was filed as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13 and N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15. In lieu of filing an answer to the petition, the Board filed a motion to dismiss. The undersigned conducted a telephone conference with the parties and instructed the petitioner to file a response to the motion to dismiss by March 20, 2020. I also instructed her that the response need not be formal, a simple letter would suffice. On May 14, 2020, the undersigned conducted another telephone conference in an effort to ascertain petitioner's position on the motion. Petitioner failed to appear for the telephone conference. However, petitioner indicated to my assistant that she is "essential personnel" and could not participate in the conference. My assistant offered petitioner, through e-mail, a time change for the conference call to 12 noon or another time in the morning of May 14, 2020, to accommodate petitioner, but no response was received from petitioner.

Interestingly, this case does not present divergent facts. Respondent argues that the Board properly investigated and determined domicile. Petitioner argues that they "moved out of the District" but would "like my son to continue his education in Middletown because of his IEP and recommendations of his therapist and child study team. Changing schools would be a detriment to his education and mental health." (Pro Se Residency Appeal.)

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

Most of the salient facts surrounding this matter are not in dispute and represent the history of this case by their respective parties. Having reviewed the brief in support of the motion to dismiss, I FIND as FACTS:

Petitioner is a former resident of Middletown, New Jersey. On July 25, 2019, petitioner entered into a lease agreement for a term of three years for a property located in Keansburg, New Jersey. (Exhibit B.) Keansburg is a borough in New Jersey, wholly separate from the Middletown educational district. Keansburg has its own school district, and students living in Keansburg are not eligible to attend school in the Middletown District as they are not domiciled in Middletown, New Jersey. Petitioner was notified of K.M.'s ineligibility to attend school in the District in October 2019 and then again in November 2019, as petitioner admittedly moved to Keansburg, New Jersey. (Exhibit C.) Nevertheless, petitioner insisted that K.M. remain in the District's schools and receive special education and related services; notably, the same services are available to K.M. in Keansburg. (Exhibit D.)

On November 1, 2019, the District sent petitioner a Notice of Initial Determination of Ineligibility, stating that petitioner was not domiciled in the District as her permanent address was in Keansburg, New Jersey. (Exhibit E.) The District further advised petitioner of her right to appear before the Board for a residency hearing.

On November 20, 2019, petitioner appeared before the Board for a residency hearing, during which, petitioner was again apprised of the residency requirements. The Board also gave petitioner the opportunity to share her position and considered her circumstances; following which, the Board made a determination that K.M. was not eligible to remain in the District's schools. A Notice of Final Determination of Ineligibility was issued and sent to petitioner finding that K.M. was not domiciled in the District, and therefore, ineligible to attend the District's schools. (Exhibit F.)

On or about December 11, 2019, petitioner filed a residency appeal, wherein she admitted that she moved out of the District but would like to keep K.M. enrolled in the District. See Exhibit A.

LEGAL ARGUMENT AND CONCLUSION

"Specific pleading requirements are governed by the agency with subject matter jurisdiction over the case." N.J.A.C. 1:1-6.1(a). The rules require that a "petition shall include . . . a statement of the specific allegation(s) and essential facts supporting them which have given rise to a dispute under the school laws." N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.4(a). When deficient and inadequate petitions are presented to the Commissioner, at any time prior to transmittal of the pleadings to the OAL—in the Commissioner's discretion or upon motion to dismiss filed in lieu of answer—the Commissioner may dismiss the petition on the grounds that the petitioner has not advanced any cause of action, even if the petitioner's factual allegations are accepted as true. See N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.10.

In fulfilling their quasi-judicial responsibilities, state agencies look to judicial principles for guidance. Hackensack v. Winner, 82 N.J. 1, 28-30 (1980). "[C]ourt-fashioned doctrines for the handling of litigation do in fact have some genuine utility and relevance in administrative proceedings." Id. at 29. The New Jersey Supreme Court further held, > many principles and rules that govern judicial proceedings and determinations can be applied to an agency's quasi-judicial or adjudicative function. Judicial rules of procedure and practice are transferrable to administrative agencies when these are conducive to ensuring fairness, independence, integrity, and efficiency in administrative adjudications.

> [I/M/O Tenure Hearing of Onorevole, 103 N.J. 548, 554-55 (1986).]

Thus, the principles which govern a motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim under R. 4:6-2(e) apply equally to a motion to dismiss to advance a cause of action under N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.10.

In deciding a motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted under R. 4:6-2(e), "the inquiry is confined to a consideration of the legal sufficiency of the alleged facts apparent on the face of the challenged claim." Rieder v. State, Dep't of Transp., 221 N.J. Super. 547, 552 (App. Div. 1987) (emphasis added). The court may not consider anything beyond whether the complaint states a cognizable cause of action. Id. For purposes of determining the motion, the court must "assume the facts as asserted by [petitioners] are true and give [them] the benefit of all inferences that may be drawn in [their] favor." Velantzas v. Colgate-Palmolive Co., 109 N.J. 189, 192 (1988). If the complaint states no basis for relief and discovery would not supply one, dismissal is the appropriate remedy. Banco Popular N. Am. v. Gandi, 184

N.J. 161, 166 (2005). If the factual allegations are "palpably insufficient to support a claim upon which relief can be granted," the court must dismiss the complaint. Rieder. Moreover, it "runs against the grain of public policy to force a public entity to incur the cost of defending an action that ultimately and undoubtedly will be dismissed on the merits." Tryanowski v. Lodi Bd. of Educ., 274 N.J. Super. 265, 268-69 (Law Div. 1994) (emphasis added).

In New Jersey, a person between the ages of five and twenty years old is entitled to a free public education in the district in which they reside or is domiciled. See N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a); N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a). Domicile is defined as "the place where a person has his true, fixed, permanent home and principal establishment, and to which whenever he is absent, he has the intention of returning." R.O.G., on behalf of minor children, G.G.G. and G.O.G. v. Bd. of Educ. of the Twp. of Union, Union County, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 05034-18, Comm. Dec. No. 236-18 (Aug. 9, 2018) (internal citations and quotation marks omitted). It is uncontroverted that a unemancipated child's domicile is that of their parents. See Somerville Bd. of Educ. v. Manville Bd. of Educ., 332 N.J. Super. 6, 12 (App. Div. 2000), citing Mississippi Band of Choctaw Indians v. Holyfield, 490 U.S. 30, 48 (1989); Roxbury Twp. Bd. of Educ. v. West Milford Bd. of Educ., 283 N.J. Super. 505 (App. Div. 1995). Therefore, a child is deemed a resident of a school district if the child's parent or guardian has a permanent home in the district such that "the parent or guardian intends to return to it when absent and has no present intent of moving from it, notwithstanding the existence of homes or residences elsewhere." See S.F., on behalf of minor child, R.F. v. Bd. of Educ. of the City of Orange, Essex County, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 18797-17, Comm. Dec. No. 354-18 (Nov. 8, 2018) (internal citation omitted).

In an appeal of a residency determination by a local board of education, the burden of proof is on the petitioning parent or guardian, who must prove by a preponderance of the evidence that the child is eligible to attend school in the district. See N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b(2) ("The parent or guardian may contest the board's decision before the commissioner within 21 days of the date of the decision and . . . shall have the burden of proof by a preponderance of the evidence that the child is eligible for a free education. . . .") (emphasis added.) The Commissioner has found that in considering the merits of a residency appeal, the evidence must be reviewed "to determine whether it supports the claims of the parent or guardian." See R.E. and S.M., on behalf of minor child, N.E. v. Bd. of Educ. of the Twp. of Union, Union County, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 04252-18, Comm. Dec. No. 238-18 (Aug 8, 2018). The Commissioner further explained that "[o]nce a board has reasonably determined that the parents/guardians do not reside in the district, the burden to establish domicile in an appeal of that decision is on the parents/guardian[,]" and therefore, "the query and subsequent findings should be centered on whether petitioners have supported their claims by a preponderance of the evidence." Id. (emphasis added.)

Therefore, in order to prevail in this matter, petitioner must prove by a preponderance of the evidence that she is domiciled in the District and K.M. is eligible to attend school in the District. Petitioner is unable to establish that she is domiciled in the District. In fact, by her own admission, they no longer reside in the District. If one examines the three-year lease agreement from July 25, 2019, for a property located in Keansburg, New Jersey, it further corroborates that petitioner has been residing in a home in Keansburg, since the commencement of the 2019-2020 school year. Petitioner cannot prove by a preponderance of the evidence that she is domiciled in the District and that K.M. is eligible to attend the District's schools.

It bears noting that the educational programming and services offered in a school district, is not a consideration when determining a student's eligibility to attend school in said district. Furthermore, whether an ineligible student should be allowed to remain in a school district is not based upon the educational program/services available in that district. To find otherwise, would be contrary to law and would pose an undue burden on school districts to educate students who are not entitled to a free public education in those districts. The applicable statutes and regulations setting forth the requirements for school eligibility, and the exceptions thereof, do not take into account the specific programs and/or services in a school district as a factor in determining student residency. The query is clear and simple: whether you are domiciled or reside in the school district. Petitioner's sole basis for seeking K.M.'s continued enrollment in the District—the educational program/services offered by the District—despite clearly having moved out of the District, is not appropriate for consideration in this matter.

Notwithstanding the irrelevance of the educational programming and services in the ultimate consideration of this matter, the Board notes that the Keansburg school district can offer the same program and services to K.M. See Exhibit D.

It is undisputed that petitioner does not live in Middletown, New Jersey. Petitioner is also cognizant of the fact that K.M. is not eligible to continue his education in the District. Despite such, and even after having admitted that petitioner no longer resides in Middletown and that K.M. is not entitled to attend the District's schools. Respondent argues that the residency appeal is without merit and petitioner's request for relief has no basis in law. Allowing petitioner to pursue this matter any further duly burdens the Board and goes against the grain of public policy. However, we are not able to pursue that or any opposing facts because petitioner failed to participate in the process.

Moreover, the respondent's Notice of Motion in Lieu of an Answer was filed seeking dismissal of the petitioner's petition pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.4. Under N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.4:

> (a) If, after appropriate notice, neither a party nor a representative appears at any proceeding scheduled by the Clerk or judge, the judge shall hold the matter for one day before taking any action. If the judge does not receive an explanation for the nonappearance within one day, the judge shall, unless proceeding pursuant to (d) below, direct the Clerk to return the matter to the transmitting agency for appropriate disposition pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-3.3(b) and (c).
> (b) If the nonappearing party submits an explanation in writing, a copy must be served on all other parties and the other parties shall be given an opportunity to respond.
>
> (c) If the judge receives an explanation:
> 1. If the judge concludes that there was good cause for the failure to appear, the judge shall reschedule the matter for hearing; or

> 2. If the judge concludes that there was no good cause for the failure to appear, the judge may refuse to reschedule the matter and shall issue an initial decision explaining the basis for that conclusion, or may reschedule the matter and, at his or her discretion, order any of the following:
> i. The payment by the delinquent representative or party of costs in such amount as the judge shall fix, to the State of New Jersey or the aggrieved person;
>
> ii. The payment by the delinquent representative or party of reasonable expenses, including attorney's fees, to an aggrieved representative or party; or > iii. Such other case-related action as the judge deems appropriate.
> (d) If the appearing party requires an initial decision on the merits, the party shall ask the judge for permission to present ex parte proofs. If no explanation for the failure to appear is received, and the circumstances require a decision on the merits, the judge may enter an initial decision on the merits based on the ex parte proofs, provided the failure to appear is memorialized in the decision.

Based upon the facts as detailed, I CONCLUDE that the petitioner was provided with appropriate notice of the motion to dismiss and how to reply as well as a scheduled proceeding, namely a telephone conference call which was to be held on May 14, 2020, at 3:00 p.m. The petitioner was provided written notice of the motion to dismiss and the scheduled telephone conference. Also, petitioner concedes in her communications with the OAL that she was aware of the scheduled call and reported that she is essential personnel and her boss would not let her participate in the scheduled conference. Despite receiving appropriate notice, of the motion and telephone call, neither the petitioner responded to the motion to dismiss nor appeared on the scheduled conference call. The petitioner has further been unresponsive to subsequent efforts by OAL staff to communicate with her regarding a follow-up telephone conference and her pending hearing date on August 19, 2020.

Although the OAL received a communication from the petitioner regarding her failure to appear on the scheduled conference call, the OAL did not receive "an explanation for the nonappearance within one day" of the petitioner's non-appearance within the meaning of N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.4(a). Having not received an explanation from the petitioner to explain her non-appearance on the conference call, N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.4 directs that this tribunal "shall, unless proceeding pursuant to (d) below, direct the Clerk to return the matter to the transmitting agency for appropriate disposition pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-3.3(b) and (c)." As the respondent has not requested a decision on the merits of the matter be issued ex parte, no further proceedings pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.4(d) are necessary. This tribunal, therefore, is left only with the mandate that the matter "shall" be returned to the transmitting agency for appropriate disposition. N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.4(a).

The use of the term "shall" in N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.4(a) is generally construed as mandatory as opposed to the statutory use of the term "may" which is permissive or directory. Franklin Estates, Inc. v. Edison, 142 N.J. Super. 179, 184 (App. Div. 1976). I CONCLUDE that the petitioner has been dilatory in prosecuting her appeal, effectively abandoning the prosecution of her petition, has been unresponsive to communications from the OAL regarding her pending matter, and failed to present good cause in a timely manner as to why her failure to appear for a scheduled conference should be excused pursuant to the provisions of N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.4(c). She has also failed to reply to a motion to dismiss. A plain reading of N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.4(a), therefore, requires that the matter now be returned to the transmitting agency for appropriate disposition. See also N.J.A.C. 1:1-3.3(b).

ORDER

Based on the foregoing, the respondent's motion to dismiss the petition is GRANTED and I ORDER that the clerk return the case to the transmitting agency for appropriate disposition pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-3.3(b) and (c).

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

New Jersey Commissioner of Education

Final Decision

A.J., on behalf of minor child, J.J.,

Petitioner,

v.

Board of Education of the Town of Boonton, Morris County,

Respondent.

Synopsis

Petitioner appealed the respondent Board's determination that J.J. committed an act of harassment, intimidation and bullying (HIB) in violation of New Jersey's Anti-Bullying Bill of Rights Act (Act), N.J.S.A. 18A:37-13 et seq., when he said the "n" word to some classmates and was overheard by another student, who complained to one of the school guidance counselors; an HIB investigation subsequently ensued and concluded that an act of HIB had occurred; J.J. denied using the "n" word on the morning in question but noted a distinction between two forms of the word, one ending in "er" and the other with "a"; J.J. admitted that he sometimes used the "a" form of the word among close friends, as a term of familiarity or endearment. A hearing in the matter was held at the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on January 13, 2020.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: the Act defines HIB as any gesture, written, verbal or physical act, or electronic communication that is reasonably perceived as being motivated either by any actual or perceived characteristic, such as race, color, religion, ancestry, national origin, gender, sexual orientation, gender identity and expression, or a mental, physical or sensory disability, and must also substantially disrupt or interfere with the orderly operation of the school; while the Act does not limit "distinguishing characteristic" to those specified in the statute, it has consistently required such a perceived motivation; here, the Board acknowledged that the comment in question, regardless of who said it, was not directed at the complainant, and the complainant did not initially know the identity of the person who she claimed uttered the "n" word, until she identified him through photographs. The ALJ concluded that the Board failed to establish that J.J. said the "n" word on the morning in question; accordingly, any resulting HIB violation and/or code of conduct violation in this matter must be overturned.

Upon review, the Commissioner reversed the Initial Decision of the OAL and affirmed the Board's determination of HIB. In so doing, the Commissioner found, inter alia, that: the record contains sufficient credible evidence to support the Board's decision that J.J. said the "n" word; while the evidence may leave room for two opinions regarding whether J.J. made the statement, it is insufficient to overturn the Board's decision, which was not arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable; and the Commissioner is not permitted to substitute his judgment for that of the Board.

New Jersey Commissioner of Education

Decision

A.J., on behalf of minor child, J.J.,

Petitioner,

v.

Board of Education of the Town of Boonton, Morris County,

Respondent.

The record of this matter, the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), the exceptions filed by respondent pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4, and petitioner's reply thereto, have been reviewed.

This matter concerns an alleged act of harassment, intimidation, and bullying (HIB) by J.J. The Board found that J.J. had committed an act of HIB when he said the "n" word to some classmates and it was overheard by another student (complainant). The Administrative Law Judge found that J.J. did not say the word on the morning in question and overturned the Board's finding that J.J. had committed an act of HIB.

In its exceptions, the Board argues that the ALJ applied the incorrect legal standard when he concluded that the Board failed to establish that an act of HIB took place. The Board cites to case law establishing that its decision should not be overturned unless it is arbitrary or capricious. The Board also recounts its evidence demonstrating that the act did occur, such that it meets even the ALJ's improperly applied preponderance of the evidence standard. The Board further contends that the ALJ was factually incorrect when he found that J.J. denied making the statement during his initial interview with the district's HIB investigator, pointing to the investigation report which listed J.J.'s attempts to explain his behavior. Moreover, the Board argues that J.J. was not a credible witness when he denied making the statement during the OAL hearing, as that testimony conflicted with prior statements.

In reply, petitioner argues that J.J. did not say the "n" word and never admitted to saying it. Petitioner notes that the Investigation Report indicates that the statement was made without malicious intent. Petitioner takes issue with the investigator's techniques while interviewing J.J. and subsequent procedures of the district in addressing the complaint.

Upon review, the Commissioner disagrees with the ALJ's conclusion that J.J. did not say the "n" word. When a local board of education acts within its discretionary authority, its decision is entitled to a presumption of correctness and will not be disturbed unless there is an affirmative showing that the decision was "patently arbitrary, without rational basis or induced by improper motives." Kopera v. W. Orange Bd. of Educ., 60 N.J. Super. 288, 294 (App. Div. 1960). Furthermore, "where there is room for two opinions, action is not arbitrary or capricious when exercised honestly and upon due consideration[,]" and the Commissioner will not substitute his judgment for that of the board. Bayshore Sewerage Co. v. Dep't. of Envtl. Prot., 122 N.J. Super. 184, 199 (Ch. Div. 1973), aff'd, 131 N.J. Super. 37 (App. Div. 1974). Based on the evidence in the record, the Commissioner finds that petitioner did not meet his burden of demonstrating that the Board's decision was arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable. The record contains sufficient credible evidence to support the Board's decision that J.J. said the "n" word, including the complainant's statements and the staff's review of corroborating video evidence. While petitioner presented evidence showing that J.J. did not make the statement, including his denials and the denials of his friends who were interviewed, at best this evidence balances the evidence that he did make the statement.[1] While the evidence may leave room for two opinions regarding whether J.J. made the statement, it is insufficient to overturn the Board's decision, because it does not demonstrate that the decision was arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable. To overturn the Board's decision would require the Commissioner to substitute his judgment for the Board's, which is impermissible.

[1] The ALJ did not make specific credibility findings regarding the witnesses' testimony, which makes the precise weight of each party's evidence difficult to determine. For purposes of this decision, the Commissioner assumes that the ALJ found petitioner's witnesses credible, but nonetheless reaches the same legal conclusion regarding the standard of review.

The Anti-Bullying Bill of Rights Act (the Act) defines HIB as follows:

> [A]ny gesture, any written, verbal or physical act, or any electronic communication, whether it be a single incident or a series of incidents, that is reasonably perceived as being motivated either by any actual or perceived characteristic, such as race, color, religion, ancestry, national origin, gender, sexual orientation, gender identity and expression, or a mental, physical or sensory disability, or by any other distinguishing characteristic, that takes place on school property, at any school-sponsored function, on a school bus, or off school grounds as provided for in section 16 of P.L. 2010, c.122 (C.18A:37-15.3), that substantially disrupts or interferes with the orderly operation of the school or the rights of other students and that:
> a. a reasonable person should know, under the circumstances, will have the effect of physically or emotionally harming a student or damaging the student's property, or placing a student in reasonable fear of physical or emotional harm to his person or damage to his property;
>
> b. has the effect of insulting or demeaning any student or group of students; or
>
> c. creates a hostile educational environment for the student by interfering with a student's education or by severely or pervasively causing physical or emotional harm to the student.
> N.J.S.A. 18A:37-14.

Therefore, a finding of HIB requires three elements.[2] First, the conduct must be reasonably perceived as motivated by any actual or perceived enumerated characteristic or other distinguishing characteristic and, second, the conduct must substantially disrupt or interfere with the rights of other students or the orderly operation of the school. The third condition is that one of the three criteria enumerated in the Act regarding the effect of the conduct must also be satisfied. Wehbeh v. Bd. of Educ. of the Twp. of Verona, Essex County, Commissioner Decision No. 51-20 (decided February 4, 2020).

Regarding the first element, in defining HIB as an action "that is reasonably perceived as being motivated either by any actual or perceived characteristic . . .", N.J.S.A. 18A:37-14 (emphasis added), the statute requires an analysis of how the actor's motivation is perceived and whether that

[2] The statute also requires that the conduct take place on school property, at a school-sponsored function, on a school bus, or off school grounds as provided for in N.J.S.A. 18A:37-15.3. The parties do not contest that this requirement has been met.

perception is reasonable. It does not require an analysis of the actual motivation of the actor. Wehbeh, supra. Certainly, evidence that the actor was motivated by a distinguishing characteristic would meet the standard of this section of the Act, but evidence that the actor was not so motivated does not end the analysis. Here, it was not arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable for the Board to conclude that the complainant reasonably perceived J.J.'s use of a racial slur as being motivated by the distinguishing characteristic of race.[3]

Regarding the second element, the complainant told school staff that she did not want to come to school because the "school is racist.". (Initial Decision at 5) The school's anti-bullying specialist testified that the complainant's statement demonstrated a substantial disruption of the student's rights, and the district's superintendent agreed, testifying that the district does not want the children to come to a school "where they feel that they will be discriminated against on any level." (Initial Decision at 8) The Commissioner finds that it was not arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable for the Board to conclude that the use of a racial slur interferes with the rights of other students to attend school in a bias-free setting, and that J.J.'s comment substantially disrupted the complainant's rights.

Regarding the third element, an act of HIB is one that "a reasonable person should know, under the circumstances, will have the effect of physically or emotionally harming a student," "has the effect of insulting or demeaning a student," or "creates a hostile educational environment . . .". N.J.S.A. 18A:37-14(a) (emphasis added). None of these criteria require the actor to have actual knowledge of the effect that his actions will have, or to specifically intend to bring about that effect. The first requires only that a reasonable person should know there would be a harmful effect, not that the actor knows there would be such an effect. The second two criteria address only the actual effect of the act, without any reference to what either the actor or a reasonable person does or should know. Wehbeh, supra. As such, a board of education can find that an individual committed an act of HIB even if the individual did not intend to cause harm. Here, the Board found that J.J.'s use of the "n" word was insulting or demeaning, satisfying N.J.S.A. 18A:37-14 of the Act. The Commissioner finds that it was not arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable for the Board to conclude that J.J.'s use of a racial slur was insulting or demeaning.

[3] Petitioner has argued both that he did not say anything on the morning in question, and that if he did say anything, there is a distinction between two variations of the "n" word, one ending in "a" and one ending in "er." The Board has argued that the word is offensive in either form, and two of its witnesses testified that they have informed students that the district considers both forms to be inappropriate. J.J. himself indicated on cross-examination that some African-American students would object to either form of the word. The Commissioner agrees that either form of the word can be the basis for a finding of HIB.

Accordingly, the Initial Decision is reversed, and the Board's determination that J.J. committed an act of HIB is affirmed.

IT IS SO ORDERED. [4]

AGENCY DKT. NO. 158-7/19

A.J. ON BEHALF OF MINOR CHILD, J.J.,

Petitioner,

v.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWN OF BOONTON, MORRIS COUNTY,

Respondent.

A.J. o/b/o J.J., petitioner pro se

James L. Plosia, Jr., Esq., for respondent (Plosia Cohen, attorneys)

Record Closed: March 19, 2020 Decided: April 9, 2020

BEFORE JUDE-ANTHONY TISCORNIA, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner, A.J., disputes respondent Boonton Board of Education's harassment, intimidation, or bullying (HIB) investigation regarding his minor son, J.J., and the Board's subsequent finding that an HIB violation occurred. Petitioner also disputes any corresponding code-of-conduct violation. The child, J.J., is accused of uttering the "n" word to a group of two or three friends during a conversation. A third-party minor child ("target") who is African-American overheard the utterance, became incensed, and complained to the administration. The target did not see which one of the youths in the group uttered the "n" word, but she was subsequently able to identify J.J. as the bad actor after a school district employee provided her with a copy of the yearbook, which contained pictures of the target's schoolmates for her to select from.

ISSUE

Do the facts here constitute an HIB violation under the Anti-Bullying Bill of Rights Act (ABRA), N.J.S.A. 18A:37-13?

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner filed the instant petition with the New Jersey Commissioner of Education, where it was received on July 2, 2019, by the Office of Controversies and Disputes.

The matter was transmitted as a contested case to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), where it was received on July 31, 2019.

The matter was set down for a hearing on January 13, 2020. Final submissions were received on March 19, 2020, at which point the record was closed.

SUMMARY OF TESTIMONY

J.J.

J.J. is the minor child of petitioner A.J. On the morning of February 6, 2019, J.J. was dropped off at school by A.J. a few minutes before the bell rang. J.J. approached a small group of students he knew (two or three youths), greeted them, and waited with them for the bell to ring. J.J. testified that these youths were already in the middle of a conversation and that he had little verbal interaction with them that morning aside from the initial greeting.

Two days later, on Friday, February 8, 2019, J.J. was summoned into the school's main office, where he was met by Principal Nosal and Ms. Maier, the school anti-bullying specialist. J.J. testified that, at the time, he did not know what he had been called there for. Upon questioning, he denied having said the "n" word on the morning of February 6, 2019.

J.J. further testified that he has been an active Boy Scout for nine years, a member of the town drum core for five years, and has played in local soccer and baseball leagues for nine years. He has also performed over 260 lifetime hours of community service through his various activities.

On cross-examination, J.J. testified that there is a difference between the "n" word spoken and written as "nigger" and that spoken and written as "niggah." He further testified that he never uses the "nigger" form, because he knows it to be disrespectful. He does, sometimes, use the "niggah" form among close friends, but only as a term of familiarity or endearment. He further testified that he used neither term on the morning in question.

Mrs. J.

Mrs. J. is J.J.'s mother. Mrs. J. testified that J.J. has had an individualized education program since preschool for attention deficit disorder, attention deficit hyperactivity disorder, and sensory issues.

Mrs. J. testified that J.J. had been disciplined by the school once before for saying the "f" word. She testified that J.J. received a one-day out-of-school suspension and a fourteen-day in-school suspension. She testified that for each of the fourteen days of in-school suspension, J.J. would start the day reporting to the principal's office along with his mother, Mrs. J., and would be asked by the principal at the time, Dr. Caruso, if J.J. was ready to return to school. Each day J.J. would respond that he was ready, and each day Dr. Caruso would direct him to complete another day of in-school suspension until the total fifteen days was served. Mrs. J. then testified that based on her past experiences with the school, she believes her son is routinely targeted by the administration.

Mrs. J. testified that on Friday, February 8, 2019, she was contacted by Principal Nosal, and was informed that there had been an HIB complaint against her son, that it had been substantiated, and that J.J. would be receiving a suspension. She was given no further information. When she inquired about the basis for the HIB violation and corresponding code-of-conduct violation, she was informed by the principal that he could not provide her with any such information due to privacy concerns, and that for further detail she would have to ask her son, J.J. Mrs. J. requested that Principal Nosal stay the suspension until she and her husband could arrive at the school to review and discuss the incident with the administration, but Nosal declined the request and affirmed the immediate suspension of the child. No issue involving any racial slur was conveyed to Mrs. J. at the time.

Christine Maier

Christine Maier (Maier) testified on behalf of the school board. She is a guidance counselor at J.J.'s school and also the anti-bullying specialist (ABS). She has been employed for thirteen years as a guidance counselor and for more than two years as an ABS. She testified that there is no specific training to be an ABS.

Maier testified that the incident at issue was first reported by the complaining student (the target) to Mrs. Brady (Brady), who is another guidance counselor at the school, on February 6, 2019. Maier testified that she became aware of the incident the next morning, February 7, 2019, after Brady had reported the target's complaint to Principal Nosal. Maier did not initially interview the target, but based on her review of the incident report, she understood that the target, who is an African-American student, reported to Brady that she overheard someone say the "n" word earlier in the day, while the target was standing just outside the school, waiting for the bell to ring. Maier testified that the target did not know who the individual was that made the comment. Based on the report, Maier testified that Brady then showed a yearbook to the target and asked her to look at the pictures of the students in order to identify the individual who said the "n" word. The target identified J.J. as the individual who uttered the "n" word.

Maier then read into the record the following statement from the target as recorded by Brady from the incident report: "This school is racist; I don't want to come here." The report went on to say that the target overheard another student say the "n" word to some other students and the target was upset.

Maier then testified to the factors she uses to determine if an HIB complaint exists, and applied them to the facts at hand: 1) identifying characteristic—in this case, she found that there was one, race; 2) substantial interference—in this case she found that there was substantial interference because the target became very upset and went to her guidance counselor and stated that she felt that the climate of the school was racist; and 3) violation of rights. With regard to this last category, Maier testified that there had been much debate about this among her colleagues, but she felt that anyone who belonged to a protected category has a right to enter into the "school climate" free from harassment, intimidation, and bullying. Thus, due to the racial nature of the word the target overheard, Maier found that the target's rights in this case were violated. Maier testified that the target in this instance did not know J.J., even after identifying his picture in the yearbook to Brady. Maier testified that she felt that the target's rights were violated even though the statement in question was not directed at the target and the target did not know the alleged bully.

Maier then testified that she viewed the closed-circuit video surveillance from the schoolyard on the morning in question, and that the events appeared to play out as J.J. described them during his testimony. J.J. is standing in a small group of students and the target is standing a few feet away with her back to them. At some point, the target turns around, sees J.J., and then turns to her friend and says something. The recording did not include sound, and Maier testified that one could not ascertain who, if anyone, uttered the "n" word.

On February 7, 2019, Maier interviewed four student witnesses, including the target. None of the witnesses confirmed that J.J. made the statement in question. One of the witnesses interviewed, B., who was among the small group of friends J.J. was with on the morning in question, told Maier that nothing offensive at all was uttered by anyone in the group on the morning in question.

Maier then interviewed J.J., on February 8, 2019. Maier stated that J.J. said he didn't remember anything in particular happening on the morning in question. Maier stated that she believed him. She then testified that J.J. admitted after questioning that he had, from time to time, used the word "niggah" informally in private conversations, and never with the intent to insult anyone. He noted that that version of the word could be heard used by his schoolmates hundreds of times a day, and noted, "that's how people talk." J.J. added that if someone were to be offended by eavesdropping on a private conversation, then that would be "their problem." Maier then testified that she took this comment as a tacit admission that he did, in fact, use the "n" word on the morning in question, though, she noted, not with the intent to offend anyone. She noted that this usage was "not ok."

On cross-examination, Maier testified that she called J.J.'s mother after interviewing J.J. and informed her that there was an ongoing HIB investigation regarding her son and that there was an assumption that J.J. violated the code of conduct regarding foul language. Maier testified, "We determined that we thought he said that." She further testified that she provided no further details of the HIB investigation to Mrs. J. When Mrs. J. asked what her son was accused of, Maier told her only that "we are investigating it as an HIB but that the consequence was determined due to our assumption that he violated the code of conduct," and "the consequence was for offensive language because we determined that we thought he said that." Maier further testified that it is standard practice to have a student serve a period of suspension before the parents receive any information regarding the investigation, as long the district "believes there is a code-of-conduct violation." She noted that the punishment for the code-of-conduct violation (the fifteen-day suspension) is separate and apart from the HIB investigation.

When questioned with regard to the "substantial disruption" aspect of the HIB statute, Maier testified that she feels that any student that becomes incensed enough to lodge a complaint with the administration has experienced a substantial disruption. She added that the target here experienced a violation of her right to come to a school where she does not hear "that word."

Robert Presuto

Robert Presuto (Presuto) is the superintendent of schools for the Town of Boonton, a position he has held for five years.

Presuto first became involved in the current matter when his office received the HIB investigation report for review. He testified that the HIB statute is a law, and that as superintendent he is charged with making sure all appropriate laws and protocols, including those surrounding HIB, are followed. He testified that he ultimately affirmed the HIB-violation finding, and that the Board also affirmed this finding. Presuto explained that the Board is given the HIB investigation report after he reviews it, and that he gives the Board a brief synopsis of the report before it makes its determination. This synopsis is usually supplied by the bullying specialist. The Board then votes on whether to affirm, overturn, or ask for additional information. Presuto stated that these processes are statutorily prescribed.

Presuto testified that, in this case, the parents followed an appeal process, which occurs after the Board takes a second vote, this vote being at a public meeting, and the parents are notified.

Presuto testified that Boonton is extremely diverse and is surrounded by much less diverse communities. He stated that there are many languages spoken in the district, and that, after Spanish, the next three most common second languages are "Arabic in nature." Presuto testified that he takes the idea very seriously that the children "do not come to a school district where they feel discriminated against on any level."

Presuto then testified as to the distinction between a code-of-conduct violation and an HIB violation. He affirmed that in this case, the penalty, i.e., the fifteen-day suspension, was imposed for the code-of-conduct violation and not for the HIB violation. Presuto noted that he felt that this aspect was one of the most confusing aspects for parents to understand, that the code-of-conduct violation/penalty is not necessarily connected to the HIB investigation. He went on to say that the HIB statute specifically states that punishment for a code-of-conduct violation in the process of an HIB investigation can be put into effect immediately, even before there is a determination regarding the HIB investigation.

On cross-examination, Presuto testified that no information surrounding the HIB investigation was provided to J.J.'s parents early on. He noted that this was likely because the parents did not request any information, or they did not know that they could request such information. Presuto went on to testify that it is common practice for parents of a child accused of an HIB violation not to be provided with any information regarding the investigation while it is ongoing, because it taints the investigation. He explained that the parents of the accused HIB violator are provided with no details about the HIB investigation until after the investigation is concluded, a report is generated and reviewed by the superintendent, and a determination has been made by the superintendent and voted on by the Board. Presuto testified that he was not intimately involved in the HIB investigation, and that his purpose was to make sure the law was followed, and a proper determination was made.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

On the morning of February 6, 2019, J.J., a middle-school student within the district, was dropped off in front of his school by his parent. Before entering the school, he greeted a small group of classmates and waited with them for the school bell to ring. The group engaged in light conversation. Another student, the target, was standing with her back to the group and heard what she believed to be the "n" word uttered by someone behind her. Though she did not know the identity of the individual, she became upset and complained to her guidance consular, and an HIB investigation ensued.

The district acknowledges that the utterance, regardless of who said it, was not directed at the target. The district further admits that the target did not initially know the identity of the bad actor. Yet, armed with this knowledge, the district decided to conduct an HIB investigation anyway, and aided in this investigation by staging a line-up of sorts by having the target flip through photos of students until she fingered a bully.

Upon questioning, J.J. denied having said the "n" word on the morning in question, a position he reiterated under oath at the hearing. The district did not present the target as a witness, nor any other individual that heard the alleged utterance on the date in question. The only witness offered by the district that had any direct involvement in the HIB investigation, Christine Maier, testified that, aside from the target, all other students that were interviewed as part of the investigation deny that J.J. uttered any such word. Further, Maier testified that the target's back was to the group of students when the word was uttered, and affirmed that the target did not actually see any individual utter the word. Based on the foregoing, I FIND that J.J. did not utter the "n" word on the morning in question.

LEGAL DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSION

Under the ABRA, "harassment, intimidation or bullying" means any gesture, any written, verbal, or physical act, or any electronic communication that is reasonably perceived as being motivated by any actual or perceived distinguishing characteristic, such as race, color, religion, ancestry, national origin, gender, sexual orientation, gender identity and expression, or a mental, physical, or sensory disability, that takes place on school property. See N.J.S.A. 18A:37-14. It must also substantially disrupt or interfere with, among other things, the orderly operation of the school. Ibid. Although the ABRA does not limit "distinguishing characteristic" to those specified in the statute, it has consistently required such a perceived motivation. See K.L. v. Evesham Twp. Bd. of Educ., 423 N.J. Super. 337, 351 (App. Div. 2011). "Thus, harmful or demeaning conduct motivated only by another reason, for example, a dispute about relationships or personal belongings, or aggressive conduct without identifiable motivation, does not come within the statutory definition of bullying." Ibid.

The definition of "harassment, intimidation, or bullying" is reproduced below in full:

> "Harassment, intimidation or bullying" means any gesture, any written, verbal or physical act, or any electronic communication, whether it be a single incident or a series of incidents, that is reasonably perceived as being motivated either by any actual or perceived characteristic, such as race, color, religion, ancestry, national origin, gender, sexual orientation, gender identity and expression, or a mental, physical or sensory disability, or by any other distinguishing characteristic, that takes place on school property, at any school-sponsored function, on a school bus, or off school grounds as provided for in section 16 of P.L.2010, c.122 (C.18A:37-15.3), that substantially disrupts or interferes with the orderly operation of the school or the rights of other students and that:

> a. a reasonable person should know, under the circumstances, will have the effect of physically or emotionally harming a student or damaging the student's property, or placing a student in reasonable fear of physical or emotional harm to his person or damage to his property;
>
> c. creates a hostile educational environment for the student by interfering with a student's education or by severely or pervasively causing physical or emotional harm to the student.

[N.J.S.A. 18A:37-14.]

Here, the respondent Board has failed to establish that J.J. even uttered the "n" word on the morning in question. I, therefore, CONCLUDE that any resulting HIB violation and/or code-of-conduct violation must be overturned.

ORDER

Given my findings of fact and conclusions of law, I ORDER that any finding of an HIB violation and any corresponding code-of-conduct violation are hereby OVERTURNED, and any allegations of an HIB violation against J.J. are dismissed.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified, or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this case. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify, or reject this decision within fortyfive days, and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision under N.J.S.A. 52:14B10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

Final Decision

G.S. and C.S., on behalf of minor child, D.S.,

Petitioners,

v.

Board of Education of the Township of Holland, Hunterdon County,

Respondent.

Synopsis

Petitioners challenged the location of the school bus stop that the respondent Board established for D.S., located one-half mile from their home, and sought an order directing the Board to provide D.S. with a bus stop at their driveway. Petitioners asserted that the Board is bound by the doctrine of res judicata to provide a bus stop at their driveway as a result of a prior controversy between the parties. Further, the petitioners argued that the Board acted in an arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable manner when it assigned D.S. to a bus stop that requires her to walk one-half mile along a winding rural road with no sidewalks or shoulders. The Board contended that it did not act improperly in assigning D.S. to her current bus stop because the Board is only required to provide D.S. with a safe bus stop, and that the Board is not responsible for providing D.S. with a safe walking route to and from the bus stop. The Board also denied that res judicata applies in this case, as material circumstances have changed since the prior controversy was decided.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: the route that D.S. must walk to reach her bus stop remains hazardous; prior case law has determined that the safety of a child's route to the bus stop is a factor the Board must consider when establishing bus routes and stops, though other factors such as the safety of the children on the bus must be taken into consideration; the propriety of a school bus stop decision depends on the totality of circumstances in a given case; the Board in this case abused its discretion by providing non-remote, courtesy busing students with bus pick up at the closest point to their home where a hazard no longer exists, while refusing to extend the same consideration to remote students, who have to walk along a hazardous route to and from their bus stops; and the Board's failure to consider the safety of D.S.'s route to her bus stop was not consistent with precedent. Accordingly, the ALJ ordered the Board to provide a bus stop in front of petitioners' home.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ's findings and conclusions, and adopted the Initial Decision of the OAL as the final decision in this case. The Commissioner left the precise mechanism for complying with this decision to the Board's discretion, provided that D.S.'s bus stop is located at petitioners' driveway.

This synopsis is not part of the Commissioner's decision. It has been prepared for the convenience of the reader. It has been neither reviewed nor approved by the Commissioner.

Decision

G.S. and C.S., on behalf of minor child, D.S.

Petitioner,

v.

Board of Education of the Township of Holland, Hunterdon County,

Respondent.

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed, as have the exceptions filed by both parties pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 and both parties' replies thereto.

In this matter, petitioners challenge the Board's refusal to provide their minor child with a bus stop at their driveway. Petitioners' challenge is made on two grounds: 1) that the Board is bound by the doctrine of res judicata to provide a bus stop at their driveway as a result of a prior controversy between the parties; and 2) that the Board acted in an arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable manner by assigning D.S. to a bus stop that requires her to walk one-half mile along an allegedly hazardous route.

In the prior matter, petitioners sought to require the Board to provide a bus stop at their driveway for their minor children.[1] G.S. and C.S., J.G., and C.J. v. Board of Education of the Township of Holland, Hunterdon County, State Board of Education Decision No. 49-96 (April 2, 1997). The State Board of Education issued an order requiring the Board to provide a bus stop at petitioners' driveway.[2] After adopting D.S. in 2013, petitioners again sought a bus stop at the end of their driveway, and the Board refused. The parties agreed that there have been no material changes to the roads or their conditions in the twenty years since the prior decision, which the prior ALJ and the State Board of Education found to present significant safety issues.

In the current matter, the ALJ found that the doctrine of res judicata did not apply because there were material factual differences in the cases, namely that the current case did not involve evidence of another minibus stop close to petitioners' house, and that the Board's transportation policy has changed since the prior case.

The ALJ thoroughly reviewed the testimony and determined that the route D.S. must walk to reach her bus stop remains hazardous. The ALJ also detailed a long line of cases involving the location of school bus stops and determined: that the safety of the child's route to the bus stop is a factor that the Board must consider when establishing bus routes and stops, although other factors – including the safety of the children already on the bus – must also be taken into consideration in establishing bus stops; that a school board may not treat similarly situated children differently when establishing bus stops; and that the propriety of a school bus stop decision depends on the totality of the circumstances in a given case.

The ALJ found that the Board abused its discretion by providing hazardous busing to nonremote students at the closest point where the hazard no longer exists, without extending the same consideration to remote students who have to walk along a hazardous route to and from their bus stops. The ALJ also concluded that the Board's failure to consider the safety of D.S.'s route to the bus stop was not consistent with precedent. Accordingly, the ALJ ordered the Board to provide a bus stop in front of petitioners' home.

[2] At the time of the prior matter, the State Board of Education had the authority to hear appeals from decisions of the Commissioner of Education. In 2008, the Legislature removed that authority and conferred final decision making authority on the Commissioner. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9.1.

Petitioners filed exceptions regarding the ALJ's decision on the issue of res judicata. Petitioners argue that the circumstances in the current case are virtually identical to those in the prior case. According to petitioners, they are seeking the same relief – relocation of the bus stop – for the same reasons that led to the prior decision in their favor, and the mere fact that the Board updated its transportation policies in the intervening years is insufficient to support the ALJ's conclusion that res judicata does not apply.

In reply, the Board argues that there are factual differences between the two cases that support the ALJ's conclusion that res judicata does not apply. In the prior case, a minibus stopped near petitioners' home, and the State Board of Education found that it was arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable for the Board to refuse to extend the minibus service to petitioners' home even though petitioners offered to construct a turnaround in their driveway. In the current case, a full-size bus is used to transport the students at D.S.'s bus stop, and – according to the Board – a full-size bus cannot safely traverse the roadway where petitioners' home is located. The Board also notes that it would be unreasonable to apply a twenty-year-old decision, which required the Board to provide a bus stop in the driveway for petitioners' children, to a child who was not adopted by petitioners until sixteen years later.

The Board also filed exceptions, arguing that the ALJ erroneously found that it failed to consider D.S.'s safety and pointing to the testimony of its witnesses demonstrating that they did consider student safety in selecting the route and the bus stop. The Board contends that it also considered all of the surrounding circumstances, including: 1) the full-size buses it currently uses to pick up D.S. at her assigned bus stop, which could not safely travel to petitioners' driveway; 2) the fact that the Board does not currently use minibuses to extend stops closer to students' homes; 3) the additional cost to the Board of approximately $17,000 to have a minibus pick up D.S. at her driveway; and 4) the fact that other pupils living in the area have used D.S.'s assigned bus stop without incident. According to the Board, granting petitioners' request would not mean simply extending a bus stop, but rather would require the creation of an entirely new bus route. The Board argues that its decision was not arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable, and that the ALJ improperly substituted her opinion for that of the Board, contrary to case law establishing the standard of review for board of education decisions. Finally, the Board contends that the Initial Decision sets a "dangerous precedent" for a "never-ending series of requests for customized transportation routes. . ." .Respondent's Exceptions at 32.

The Board also argues that remote and nonremote students cannot be similarly situated and, even if they were, the Board treats all students in a fair and equitable manner. The Board contends that the only students who could be similarly situated to D.S. are the other students who are assigned to her bus stop. The Board notes that it is statutorily required to provide transportation to remote students, while it is authorized – but not required – to provide transportation to nonremote students. According to the Board, even putting aside the legal distinction between the two groups of students, there are sufficient factual differences between D.S.'s route and the courtesy busing routes along the town's main highway to overcome a conclusion that the groups could be similarly situated. Moreover, the Board contends that it considers the safety of all students, and thus has not treated D.S. differently. Finally, the Board takes exception to the ALJ's decision to allow petitioners to testify as expert witnesses in the area of school bus transportation because they are biased in favor of their own case and do not have sufficient expertise; further, the Board also takes exception to certain items admitted into evidence.

In reply, petitioners argue that the record contradicts the Board's assertion that it considers the safety of all students equally, pointing to testimony that the Board considered the safety of walking routes for courtesy busing students but that the only considerations for mandatory busing routes were whether the stops themselves were safe. Petitioners contend that the $17,000 cost cited by the Board is misleading, because it assumes D.S. will be the only student on the new route, when that route – and the cost – would cover multiple students at a per pupil rate lower than the district's current transportation cost. Moreover, petitioners argue that the district can extend an existing minibus route, which already operates on the road on which petitioners' home is located, rather than creating a new one. Finally, petitioners contend that the ALJ properly exercised her discretion to admit their expert testimony and evidence and to accord them whatever weight she deemed appropriate.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that res judicata does not apply here. The prior decision was based on the existence of an active minibus stop three-tenths of one mile from petitioners' home – a material fact – and the resulting conclusion that the Board had acted in an arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable manner by refusing to extend the minibus service to a stop at petitioner's driveway. Critically, that bus stop no longer exists, nor does a minibus currently serve D.S.'s route. Moreover, petitioners allege an additional wrong by the Board, claiming that the courtesy busing policy developed by the district since the conclusion of the prior matter results in discrimination against remote students who receive mandatory busing services. With these significant differences in both a material fact and the theory of recovery, the Commissioner cannot conclude that res judicata applies. See Culver v. Ins. Co. of N. America, 115 N.J. 451, 461-62 (1989) (citations omitted).

Turning to the location of the bus stop, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ's detailed analysis, as well as the analysis of the ALJ and the State Board in the prior matter, that

D.S.'s walking route is hazardous.[3] Furthermore, the Commissioner agrees with the ALJ that the Board abused its discretion by treating courtesy and mandatory busing students differently. A student who lives within two miles of school receives courtesy busing under the Board's hazardous busing policy if the route they would have to walk to get to school is unsafe, and their bus stop is located at the point closest to their home at which the hazard no longer exists.[4] "Although boards of education have wide discretion to promulgate pupil transportation policies, including school bus routes and stops, they may not discriminate or act in a manner that is arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable." R.D. and V.D., on behalf of C.D., a minor, and M.H and M.H., on behalf of M.H. and S.H., minors v. Board of Education of the Twp. of Bernards, 97 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 414 (citations omitted). While the Board is not required to provide courtesy busing for hazardous routes, when it chooses to do so, its policies must be applied equitably. It is discriminatory for the Board to require that a remote student must walk along a hazardous route, while a student who receives courtesy busing does not.[5]

The legal distinction between mandatory busing and courtesy busing does not preclude a conclusion that the two groups of students are similarly situated for purposes of this decision. D.S. is a Holland Township student who must walk along a hazardous road in order to get to school. This makes her similarly situated to all courtesy busing students who receive busing under the Board's hazardous busing policy. Moreover, while the facts underlying those hazards may be different, the fact that both the highway and petitioner's road are hazardous walking routes is the same. And although the Board contends that it considers all students' safety, it also argues that it is not responsible for the safety of D.S.'s route from her home to her bus stop, demonstrating that it applies disparate standards when considering student safety for each group. Therefore, the Commissioner concludes that the Board treats mandatory busing students differently than courtesy busing students because it does not locate the stops for mandatory busing students at the closest location to their home at which a walking hazard no longer exists.

[3] The Commissioner is not persuaded by the Board's arguments that other students have used D.S.'s bus stop without incident. The fact that students have successfully avoided the hazards of the route in the past does not mean that the route is not hazardous. The Commissioner further notes that the parties agreed that the conditions of the road have not materially changed since they were found to be hazardous in the prior matter.

[4] Despite the fact that the hazardous busing policy requires stops to be at the closest point where the hazard no longer exists – which would be at intersections of the highway that constitutes the hazardous route – the testimony demonstrated that several bus stops are situated within neighborhoods, closer to the homes of the students.

[5] The Board is not absolved of responsibility because D.S.'s parents could drive her from their home to the bus stop. Students who receive courtesy busing could also be driven to school; yet, by implementing a hazardous busing policy, the Board has chosen to assist those students in avoiding a hazardous walking route.

The Commissioner does not find the Board's exceptions, which substantially reiterate arguments made before the ALJ, to be persuasive. Initially, the Commissioner finds that the ALJ, who was in the best position to evaluate the testimony and exhibits, appropriately exercised her discretion in allowing petitioners to testify as expert witnesses and admit their evidence. The Commissioner disagrees with the Board's contention that the ALJ improperly substituted her judgment for that of the Board. The cases cited by the Board for this proposition pertain to the Board's weighing of safety concerns between the assigned bus stop and the requested bus stop, and do not address questions of discriminatory treatment between two groups of students. Nor is the Commissioner persuaded by the Board's "slippery slope" argument and agrees with the State Board of Education's express rejection of that argument in the prior matter. In both matters, the decision is limited to these particular facts for these particular petitioners, and the situations of any other students are immaterial to the decision. Furthermore, the Board's justifications related to cost are insufficient to overcome its discriminatory treatment of mandatory busing students. Finally, although the Commissioner recognizes that the Board considered the safety of the other students on the full-size bus that serves D.S.'s route, which cannot safely traverse the portion of the road leading to petitioners' home, extending the full-size bus service to petitioners' home is not the Board's only option for safely transporting D.S. to school. The Commissioner leaves the precise mechanism for complying with this decision to the Board's discretion, provided that D.S.'s bus stop is located at petitioners' driveway.

Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter.

IT IS SO ORDERED. [6]

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioners G.S. and C.S., on behalf of their adopted minor daughter, D.S., challenge the location of the school bus stop that respondent Holland Township Board of Education (Board) established for D.S. one-half mile from their home. Petitioners seek an order directing the Board to provide D.S. with a bus stop at their driveway.[7]

Under N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1, a school board is required to provide transportation for elementary school students who live more than two miles, or remote, from school. This is known as mandatory busing. Petitioners live remote from D.S.' assigned elementary school and, as such, the Board provides her with publicly-funded transportation to and from her school. However, petitioners argue that the Board acted in an arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable manner in assigning D.S. to a bus stop to which she must walk one-half mile along a winding rural road that has, among other hazards, no sidewalks or shoulders.

Petitioners also argue that the Board is required to provide D.S. with a bus stop at their house as a result of a prior bus stop controversy between the parties in G.S. v. Bd. of Educ. of Holland Twp., 96 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 795, 97 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 416, in which the State Board of Education issued a final decision ordering the Board to provide petitioners' children with minibus service to and from their home.[8] Thus, petitioners contend that, under the doctrine of res judicata, they should not have to relitigate a dispute over the location of D.S.' bus stop.[9]

In response, the Board argues that it did not act improperly in assigning D.S. her current bus stop because the Board is only required to provide D.S. with a safe bus stop, and that the Board is not responsible for providing D.S. with a safe walking route to and from the bus stop. The Board also denies that res judicata applies to this matter, because material circumstances have changed since the final decision in the prior controversy.

[8] For many years, the State Board of Education, and not the Commissioner of Education, had final administrative decision authority in controversies and disputes arising under the school laws. However, in 2008 the Legislature removed the State Board's authority to hear appeals from Commissioner of Education decisions and instead conferred final decision authority on the Commissioner. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9.1; N.J.A.C. 6A:4-1.1. Petitioners have two natural sons, and D.S. is the natural daughter of one of the sons. D.S. was not yet born at the time of the State Board's decision in the prior case.

[9] Typically, it is a defendant, and not a plaintiff, who raises the issue of res judicata. Also, res judicata serves to bar re-litigation of a case. Here, a hearing took place after petitioners' motion to apply res judicata was denied. Nonetheless, the parties have argued the issue in their post-hearing briefs.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On June 24, 2015, G.S. and C.S. filed an appeal of respondent's action citing their daughter's school bus stop at a distance from their home. Their petition was filed with the Department of Education's Bureau of Disputes and Controversies and on July 15, 2015, the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for hearing as a contested case. On December 7, 2015, petitioners' motion for the application of res judicata was denied and respondent's cross-motion for summary decision was denied. Petitioners' requests for emergent relief were denied on August 24, 2016, and April 26, 2019. After telephone conferences, motion practice and a period for discovery, testimony was taken on December 16, 2015, March 3, May 26, and October 20, 2016. Additional testimony was taken on January 25, May 1, May 15, July 25, and September 28, 2017, as well as April 11, and June 7, 2018. A site visit occurred on July 2, 2018, and the parties appeared on February 7, 2019, after unsuccessful attempts at settlement. The record remained open for the submission of post-hearing memoranda and exhibits, closing on September 9, 2019. Extensions of time for the filing of the Initial Decision were granted.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

Many of the material facts in this matter are not in dispute. G.S. and C.S., along with their adopted granddaughter D.S., reside on Shire Road in Holland Township, Hunterdon County, within a mandatory busing zone. Their home has a turnaround drive in the front of the property. D.S. is currently attending fifth grade at Holland Township School in respondent's K-8 district. Over twenty years ago, petitioners filed a similar petition on behalf of their minor children at that time, seeking a bus stop at their home. In that matter Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) Metzger ruled on behalf of petitioners and made findings regarding safety and the road conditions at issue, a decision upheld by the then State Board of Education. (See Exhibit C-1, the Metzger Decision.) When petitioners requested a bus stop at their home and the application of Metzger's ruling to D.S., respondent declined and this appeal ensued.

In this matter respondent does not challenge ALJ Metzger's findings regarding road conditions and the parties were advised that where relevant ALJ Metzger's factual findings regarding the roads at issue would be cited in this matter. The parties agreed there were no material changes to those roads and their condition.

In a factual change from the prior litigation respondent now contracts its bus service to the regional high school district to which it sends its students, Delaware Valley Regional (Delaware Valley). The Board works with Delaware Valley staff to determine the routes for its students and Delaware Valley is capable of providing whatever size bus a given route requires. The current bus stop for D.S. is at the intersection of Shire Road and Anderson Road and a large fifty-four-person-bus is used for the route. Petitioners' home is approximately a half-mile from that stop, along a stretch of road with no sidewalks or shoulder. The bus stop also serves a number of children from the area who also are provided mandatory bus service. As set forth in Metzger's decision, as well as in numerous days of testimony, Shire Road presents significant safety issues for a child walking along it. The District currently runs routes traveled by large school buses on other roads with dangerous driving conditions as described in Metzger's decision.

The record further shows that in addition to mandatory busing the Board has chosen to provide courtesy busing to students within the District. Holland Township is in a scenic, rural part of Hunterdon County with hilly topography and roads which are at times winding and narrow. The only school in the District sits on the main road through the Township, Route 519 and several neighborhoods near the school are served by courtesy busing. The justification for the courtesy busing by the Board has been the hazardous nature of travel on Route 519 to reach the school. Further, the Board has provided bus stops for courtesy busing on roads other than Route 519.

For much of the hearing petitioners represented themselves on a pro se basis. In support of their petition they presented a series of witnesses who testified to the hazardous nature of Shire and other roads traveled by the District's buses, the manner in which the Board devises its routes and the allocation of Board resources between its courtesy and mandatory bus programs.

G.S. and C.S., along with Mahlon Stuckley (Stuckley) and Beverly Early (Early) testified credibly regarding their experience driving vehicles along Shire Road, as well other roads in the area used in the District's bus routes. Stuckley has operated a large garbage truck along Shire Road, and other roads referenced in ALJ Metzger's opinion. He described Shire Road and other roads such as Alfalfa Hill and Bellis Road, which were discussed in that opinion, and agreed they were "harrowing" to drive but that they were traversed by large school buses. Early is a mail carrier who has serviced Shire Road for over seventeen years. In her testimony she corroborated Stuckley regarding the hazardous nature of Shire and other roads in the area. Similarly, G.S. and C.S, who operated a small bus company, and regularly drive school buses, testified as to the hazardous walking and driving conditions of Shire Road, including its lack of shoulders, blind spots, and curves. Additionally, G.S. and C.S. were qualified as experts in the area of school transportation and each opined credibly as to the hazardous nature of Shire Road. Further they opined that a large school bus could navigate Shire Road.

Additional testimony was taken from M.S., D.S.'s biological father, who was one of the children in Metzger's decision. He too testified credibly as to the hazardous nature of Shire Road and described the turnaround constructed in front of his parents' property. He stated there had been no changes to the road since the prior decision. In his testimony he identified photos of bears crossing Shire Road (P-28-29). Petitioners' neighbor on Shire Road, Nicole Yard (Yard) also testified. She is the mother of children attending the District's school and she credibly echoed other witnesses as to the winding, hilly nature of Shire Road and its lack of shoulders. She has observed cars driving at a fast speed around the curves and up the hills and would not walk on the road. She found the current bus stop which her children share with D.S. to be inconvenient and unsafe. She also stated that she does not allow her child on the morning bus as it goes down Alfalfa Hill, along a route she finds too dangerous.

Petitioners also presented a series of witnesses who testified to the Board's transportation policy, decision making process and its development of bus routes. Emil Suarez (Suarez), a former Acting Superintendent of the District testified regarding petitioners' notice that D.S. would be starting school, but stated that he retired before he felt petitioners had "formally" requested the relocation of D.S.' bus stop. He opined that he was in agreement with the Board's decision not to relocate the stop. Dr. Nancy Yard (Dr. Yard), who succeeded Suarez as Acting Superintendent, was questioned regarding how petitioners' request for a relocation of the bus stop and their request to apply the Metzger were handled by the District.

Lorraine Scheibener (Scheibener), Laurie Hance (Hance), Casey Bickhardt (Bickhardt), Joseph Somers (Somers) and William Soucie, (Soucie) , past and present Board members, also testified. Scheibener explained that the Board votes on policies and procedures developed by its various committees, as well as the budget. The budget is developed by staff and the overall transportation costs are voted upon by the Board. Board members do not develop the bus routes, nor vote on them individually. She admitted that her children had the benefit of the District's courtesy busing, but that within her development there could be several children at a given bus stop. Scheibener stated that the Board relied upon its staff to develop the routes and that decisions on routes were made on an "equal and fair" standard as set forth in the Board's policy. She said the Board's decisions on courtesy busing were based on safety concerns, particularly the traffic on Route 519. With regard to mandatory bus routes, she stated that the only safety considerations were whether the bus stops themselves were safe.

When questioned concerning the safety of the bus stop assigned to D.S. and a number of other students, she acknowledged that she was aware of a Holland Township Police Department letter (P-1) which expressed concerns over the safety of that stop. Yet she stated that the stop's safety was not the Board's responsibility, as any traffic issues at the stop were the police's problem. With regard to D.S.' walking route to the stop, she would not allow her child to walk it alone, agreeing it was a dangerous route at points. While she emphasized that she relied on staff to develop and advise on routes, any issue regarding a route would require a cost analysis.

Hance is a Board member and Chair of the Board's Finance Committee. She testified that the committee approves bus routes presented to it by the superintendent, and its members do not micromanage the process of developing the routes. She said she is not familiar with individual routes and the factors which go into developing each route. The routes are discussed in a report they receive from staff in August. She emphasized that she relies on the superintendent's recommendations and that the courtesy bus program is driven by safety issues on Route 519.

Further testimony was provided by Bickhardt, another Board member. She too is a member of the Finance Committee and she described the process for developing the transportation budget and bus routes. The Business Administrator and the Delaware Valley representative develop the routes based on the student populace and provide them to the superintendent. The routes and their cost are then presented to the committee and upon their approval are sent to the Board for a vote as part of the transportation budget process. When questioned regarding D.S.' walking route on Shire Road she admitted that she would not allow her child to walk it. She also was questioned regarding the Board's decision to approve a new bus route for a special needs child. The Board allowed the child's sibling to ride that route but denied D.S.' request to be included in it. While she acknowledged that permitting the sibling to ride on a special education bus was against policy, the Board was not willing to extend that exemption to D.S. Bickhardt was queried extensively on various bus routes and whether they fit within the Board's criteria for economy and efficiency. Citing the lack of sidewalks as a factor in the Route 519 approach to school, she admitted that buses go into neighborhoods such as Gridley Circle and pick up children within the development.

Another Board member testifying was Soucie who also served on the Finance Committee. He too insisted that the Board follows recommendations on bus routes provided by its staff and consultants. Soucie was a contentious and evasive witness who had to be directed to answer at times. He echoed the testimony of the other Board members that bus routes were formulated by staff and approved as part of the transportation costs by the Board. He did not find Shire Road to be a hazardous road and differed from all other witnesses on whether a child would be safer in a school bus or walking along the road. He found Shire Road to be a good place to walk and perfectly safe when shown pictures of the child's route. He also denied that the reason for the District's courtesy busing was to keep the children from having to walk and traverse Route 519. He acknowledged that his development had requested and received approval regarding a bus stop.

As with other Board members, Somers testified that the District's only obligation regarding bus stops is that they are safe. He noted not every parent can have a stop outside their home and that providing one would be too time consuming and expensive for the District.

The final witnesses in this matter were David Bailey (Bailey), Superintendent, Abby Postma (Postma), Business Administrator and Jeremiah Ford (Ford), Transportation Supervisor for Delaware Valley. Bailey initially testified regarding petitioners' letter request of March 2014, that D.S. be provided a bus stop at their home as set forth in Metzger's decision. As he had only begun as superintendent in April 2014, he did not respond immediately to the letter. In developing a response however, he consulted with Ford as the person who initially develops the bus routes and advises the District on transportation matters. Ford advised him that for safety reasons he would not run a large fifty-four-person-bus down that portion of Shire Road, but a smaller bus for a route along that road could be provided for approximately $17,000 a year. Ford left the decision on such a route to the District and Bailey advised petitioners in August their request was denied. Bailey testified that cost was one of the factors taken into account. He also cited the domino effect on other remotely bussed students if such an accommodation was provided to D.S. As for any hazardous conditions on the walk to the bus stop, Bailey stated that children were not required to walk. Their parents could drive them.

Much of Bailey's testimony revolved around the manner in which the District handles courtesy busing versus its mandatory busing. He emphasized the traffic on Route 519, the major artery through the Township and the fact that courtesy busing had been a long standing practice in the District. Under questioning he acknowledged that the courtesy busing does take place on roads other than 519, and that many courtesy bussed children have bus stops in front of their homes. He differentiated the hazards on Shire Road from those on Route 519, stating that while narrower and without shoulders, Shire Road had less traffic and a lower speed limit.

Postma, the District's Business Administrator provided testimony regarding the development of bus routes for the district. She stated that enrollment had declined in the District and that it generally employed six to eight buses in what she described as "looping routes." The transportation process begins in May or June when enrollment data is sent to Delaware Valley and routes are developed by Ford. In D.S.' case, she was assigned to the route for her area and petitioners' request for a different bus stop was turned down after review by Bailey. As with other witnesses she cited the hazardous nature of Route 519 as the basis for courtesy busing and distinguished it from Shire Road due to its traffic volume and higher speed limit. She also discussed the manner in which efficiency ratings for a district's transportation program were handled by the Department of Education and how the designation of a courtesy bus route as "hazardous" by the superintendent plays positively into those efficiency ratings.

According to Postma while safety is a consideration in bus routes, the only consideration for safety in a bus stop is visibility and that it is the parents' responsibility to get their children to and from the stop. Any complaints or issues regarding bus stops come to her office and are sent to Ford for review.

The final witness in this matter was Delaware Valley's Ford who testified regarding the bus routes and stops for Holland Township. He was qualified as an expert in school transportation and stated that the bus routes for the District were devised in a fair manner in line with its transportation policy. In his opinion only a smaller, sixteen passenger bus could safely run a route on D.S.' section of Shire Road and that such a bus could be provided at a cost of approximately $17,000 a year if the District so wished. When questioned regarding the large buses used on routes traversing Belllis Road or Alfalfa Hill, he said Shire Road presented more of a challenge. Under continued questioning, he admitted that a large bus traversed portions of those other hazardous roads. However he justified those routes as part of an "overall route plan" despite the danger presented to large school buses.

Ford also was questioned regarding the courtesy busing program in the District. As with other witnesses, he pointed to the hazardous nature of Route 519 as a basis for the program. He admitted that courtesy busing took place in neighborhoods off Route 519, with bus stops in the neighborhoods. He too cited the Department of Education's efficiency ratings for districts and noted that "hazardous" was only a designation for courtesy busing purposes. Ford also testified in response to questions regarding individual routes and whether such routes were efficient and cost effective, admitting that depending on the route, buses could service small numbers of students despite the bus size.

A review of the record as a whole here, including the Metzger decision, supports a finding that the route D.S. must walk to her bus stop is hazardous. Shire Road is a narrow, winding rural road without shoulders in an area in which wildlife such as bears are present. Further, the bus stop to which she is assigned has raised the concern of the local police department. The record further shows that respondent has determined that it has no responsibility for the safety of the route a child must take to reach its bus stop and that its only duty is to provide a safe bus stop.

Undisputed testimony further shows that the District has the ability to use either a small or large bus on a given bus route, although at present it generally uses large buses for the "looping routes" it has chosen to implement. However the District also uses smaller buses in situations such as the transport of special education students. While the District takes the position that for safety reasons it cannot use a large bus on the portion of Shire Road in question, the testimony of its expert witness Ford was equivocal on that point. Ford pointed out the hazardous nature of Shire Road, but failed to differentiate it from the equally, if not more hazardous nature of roads such as Alfalfa Hill, Bellis Road and the Narrows. When confronted with the dangerous portions of those roads he simply fell back on "overall route consideration" as a reason for using those roads. Those roads are regularly traversed by district buses and their dangerous nature was credibly testified to by a number of witnesses in this matter. It is noteworthy that the findings in Metzger's decision regarding those roads were not disputed by respondent. As Metzger wrote:

> The Board authorizes other trips and maneuvers that are patently more risky then a ride down Shire Road. The K turn on Bellis Road is scary. For most of that operation the driver cannot see oncoming traffic or be seen. The Board allows a full-size bus to travel the Narrows along

> River Road, which appears to be a harrowing ride. Alfalfa Hill Road is at least as steep, narrow and winding as Shire Road, and is probably worse. So long as the Board uses these routes, it cannot convincingly argue that it will not travel Shire out of an abundance of caution. (C-1)

The record further shows that respondent has a robust courtesy busing program for its students based on routes which it deems "hazardous." That program primarily services neighborhoods closer to the District's only school which are adjacent to Route 519. The bus routes for those children do not require that they all meet at stops nearest an intersection with Route 519, but includes stops within the neighborhoods. Further, the District does not have a similar designation for hazardous routes within its mandatory busing program.

LEGAL ANALYSIS

The first issue to be addressed in this matter is petitioners' position that Metzger's decision should be applied here pursuant to res judicata. Although petitioner's motion to apply the doctrine was denied at the outset of the hearing, the parties again addressed the issue in their post hearing memoranda. As held previously, the doctrine of res judicata does not apply here as there are material differences in the facts underlying the prior and current litigation. Therefore, the final decision in the parties' prior dispute does not preclude litigation of the parties' current bus stop dispute.

As the Supreme Court has explained, "[t]he term 'res judicata' refers broadly to the common-law doctrine barring relitigation of claims or issues that have already been adjudicated" and "provides that a cause of action between parties that has been finally determined on the merits by a tribunal having jurisdiction cannot be relitigated by those parties or their privies in a new proceeding." Velazquez v. Frank, 123 N.J. 498, 505 (1991) (citing In re Coruzzi, 95 N.J. 557, 568; Roberts v. Goldner, 79 N.J. 82, 85 (1979)).

The "[a]pplication of res judicata 'requires substantially similar or identical causes of action and issues, parties, and relief sought,' as well as a final judgment." Wadeer v. New Jersey Mfrs. Ins. Co., 220 N.J. 591, 606 (2015) (quoting Culver v. Ins. Co. of N.

Am., 115 N.J. 451, 460 (1989)). While "[t]he test for identity of a cause of action is the most difficult to determine," ibid., the following factors offer guidance:

> (1) whether the acts complained of and the demand for relief are the same (that is, whether the wrong for which redress is sought is the same in both actions); (2) whether the theory of recovery is the same; (3) whether the witnesses and documents necessary at trial are the same (that is, whether the same evidence necessary to maintain the second action would have been sufficient to support the first); and (4) whether the material facts alleged are the same.
> [Culver, 115 N.J. at 461-62 (quoting United States v. Athlone Indus. Inc., 746 F.2d 977, 984 (3d Cir.1984)).]

In G.S. v. Bd. of Educ. of Holland Twp., 96 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 795, 97 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 416, G.S. and C.S. challenged the Board's refusal to relocate their children's bus stop to their driveway as arbitrary and capricious and, as a result of that litigation, the State Board of Education issued a final decision finding that "[a] minibus currently stops approximately three-tenths of a mile" from petitioners' home, concluding that "the Board's action in refusing to extend its minibus service to [petitioners'] home was arbitrary and capricious," and ordering the Board to provide petitioners' children with minibus service at or near their home.[10] G.S., 97 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) at 417. In that matter, the parties did not dispute that the walking route from petitioners' home to the children's assigned bus stop was dangerous.

Importantly, in reaching its conclusion, the State Board of Education specifically stated that:

> [T]he Board's action in this instance was arbitrary and capricious, particularly in view of [petitioners'] offer to construct a minibus turnaround on their property at their expense. As previously noted, our review herein is not limited to the safety of the existing bus stop or the Board's jurisdiction over safety conditions on the Township's roads. Rather the standard is whether the Board abused its > discretion in refusing to extend minibus service to petitioners' home.

> [Ibid.]

Thus, the State Board's conclusion that the Board acted arbitrarily was based on the material facts that "[a] minibus currently stops approximately three-tenths of a mile" from petitioners' home and that petitioners offered to build a minibus turnaround in their driveway.

Here, res judicata does not act as a bar to the current litigation because, although the issue (location of a bus stop), the parties (G.S. and C.S. and the Board), and the relief sought (bus stop at petitioners' home) are the same in both matters, the two causes of action are not the same as the material facts are different to the extent that there initially was no evidence of existing minibus service near petitioners' home as was when petitioners filed the first cause of action. Additionally, the Board's transportation policy has since changed.[11]

First, while the Board acted arbitrarily in refusing to extend existing minibus service three-tenths of a mile to petitioners' home under the facts of the prior matter, the question becomes whether under the facts of this case, the Board acted arbitrarily, capriciously, or unreasonably in denying petitioners' request to relocate D.S.' bus stop.

There is another material fact that precludes application of res judicata to this matter. In 1999—after the State Board issued its final decision in the prior dispute—the Legislature enacted L. 1999, c. 310 (effective January 4, 2000), which is codified as N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1.5 and provides that "[a] school district that provides courtesy busing services shall adopt a policy regarding the transportation of students who must walk to and from school along hazardous routes." N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1.5(a).

[11] Contrarily, the fact that this matter involves petitioners' granddaughter, and not their natural children, and the fact that the Board no longer provides transportation with its own buses, do not necessarily represent material changes from the prior matter.
In their post-hearing submission petitioners assert that as a result of schedule changes there is no impediment to D.S. being assigned to a current bus route used by a smaller bus.

The Board currently has a transportation policy under which "[t]he Board of Education directs the Superintendent to supervise development of bus routes to provide safe, economical, and reasonably expeditious transportation for . . . 4. For students whose route to the school is deemed hazardous by the Superintendent, the closest point to their home for pick-up and drop-off where the hazardous condition no longer exists." Holland Twp. Bd. of Educ., District Policy, 8600 – Transportation (March 31, 2010).

This policy represents a material fact that did not exist at the time of the prior dispute and could affect the outcome of this case, such that the Board may be abusing its discretion in establishing bus stops if the Board provides busing to nonremote students who would otherwise have to walk to and from school along a hazardous route at "the closest point to their home for pick-up and drop-off where the hazardous condition no longer exists," but does not do the same for D.S., who is a remote student who has to walk along a hazardous route to get to and from her bus stop. For these reasons, the doctrine of res judicata does not apply to this matter.

The main issue in this matter, therefore, is whether the Board acted in an arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable manner in refusing to relocate D.S.' bus stop. A leitmotif in school bus stop disputes between parents and school boards is child safety. This case is no different. And like other bus stop disputes, the parties in this matter disagree whether and to what extent a school board must consider child safety in establishing bus stops. Petitioners argue that the Board should move D.S.' bus stop because her walking route to the stop is unsafe, while the Board maintains that its statutory transportation responsibility for remote students includes providing D.S. with a safe bus stop, and not a safe walking route to the bus stop.

A review of previous administrative decisions shows that a child's safety is certainly a factor in determining whether a school board acted in an arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable manner in setting bus routes and stops for children who live remote from school. While "unsafe conditions such as the absence of safe walkways is the responsibility of the municipality, not the school district," a school board may not "turn a blind eye to such situations when establishing school bus stops." R.D. & V.D. ex

rel. C.D. v. Bernards Twp. Bd. of Educ., 96 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 481, 486; 97 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 414. Instead, a school board "may evaluate conditions involving the safety of school pupils in their journey to and from school" and "must make reasonable classifications with respect thereto and all children must be treated in an equitable manner." Walters v. Bd. of Educ. of the Twp. of Mendham, 1977 S.L.D. 854, 857. Importantly, the scope of an inquiry into the propriety of a school board's refusal to relocate a bus stop "is not limited to the relative safety of the school bus stop" or a school board's lack of "jurisdiction over safety conditions of sidewalks and roadways" in a municipality; "[r]ather, the broader issue is whether the Board abused its discretion in denying petitioner's request [in a] particular case." Peary v. Bd. of Educ. of the Twp. of Barnegat, 93 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 798. Thus, although school boards "have wide discretion to promulgate pupil transportation policies, including school bus routes and stops, they may not discriminate or act in a manner that is arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable." Ibid.

In several administrative decisions, a school board's choice of bus stops has been upheld despite safety concerns regarding a particular child. For example, in Lemma v. Bd. of Educ. of the Twp. of Branchburg, EDU 8953-97, Initial Decision (June 8, 1998), adopted, Comm'r (July 22, 1998) <https://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal>, the school board reasonably rejected petitioner's request to move his children's bus stop because, even though his children had to walk "through a half-mile uninhabited area with no sidewalks or street lighting and along an often foggy 50 MPH road with blind curves" to get to their assigned stop, the board's decision was based on "its expert's analysis of traffic and hazardous driving conditions," "the safety of the children already on the bus," and "information leading them to believe that the bus stop met the requirements for [petitioner's] children's safety." Moreover, the school board "reasonably concluded that [the narrow, dead end street on which the requested stop was located] was different from the other roads on the bus route because the shoulders were soft and thus hazardous, and the bus must execute a K-turn to exit," and petitioner failed to show that his "children were treated differently from children similarly situated."

Similarly, in Mandaglio v. Bd. of Educ. of the Twp. of Mendham, 1990 S.L.D. 1380, the petitioning parents failed to show that the school board abused its discretion in relocating their children's bus stop from a cul-de-sac to a spot that required the children to walk three-quarters of a mile along a fifty-mile-per-hour road without sidewalks because the board's "policy prohibiting a school bus from turning around in a cul-de-sac" due "to the inherent dangers of backing up a school bus on a cul-de-sac" was not unreasonable and because "the policy was applied in a nondiscriminatory and consistent manner." Id. at 1386.

In those cases, the dangers that would have been posed to the school bus (and the children on it) while driving to a requested bus stop outweighed the potential risks for the petitioners' children while walking to their assigned bus stop. In another case, R.M. & K.M. ex rel. Bd. of Educ. of the Twp. of Franklin, EDU 14237-16, Initial Decision (September 26, 2017) <https://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal>, adopted, Comm'r (November 3, 2017) <https://nj.gov/education/legal/commissioner/>, the petitioners failed to show that their children's walking route to their bus stop on a rural road put their safety at risk, and thus the school board reasonably relocated the children's bus stop nine-tenths of a mile from their home because the old stop required the school bus to cross a bridge for which it exceeded the weight limit and make a K-turn in petitioners' driveway, which contravened the board's policy against such turns in private driveways.

However, the safety concerns arising from a particular child's assigned bus stop may be so great as to render arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable a school board's decision not to relocate the child's bus stop. For example, in Nielsen v. Bd. of Educ. of the Morris Hills Reg'l Sch. Dist., EDU 3936-98, Initial Decision (December 21, 1999), adopted, Comm'r (May 19, 2000) <http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal>, the school board acted unreasonably in putting a student's bus stop at an abandoned landfill that was frequented by hunters and bears and that required the student to walk on a road with "blind curves, lack of sidewalks or shoulders, no lighting, and isolation from neighbors" in order to get to and from the stop. The arbitrariness of the school board's decision was underscored by the availability of a school van that already traveled near the child's home and "would require no more than fifteen extra minutes to pick [her] up" and drop her off at her house.

Finally, a school board may be found to have acted arbitrarily if the evidence does not support the purported reasons for the school board's bus stop action or if the school board treated a particular child differently from other similarly situated children.

For example, in Peary, 93 N.J.A.R.2d. (EDU) 798, the Barnegat school board abused its discretion in rejecting petitioner's request to move his son's bus stop from an unsafe county road to the front of their home on Old Brookville Road in Barnegat because its decision was unsupported by the facts and discriminatory. As the State Board explained, the school board "predicated its denial of petitioner's request upon its contention that a local ordinance prohibited buses from using Old Brookville Road, that the condition and width of Old Brookville Road precluded buses from operating thereon, and that time constraints prevented the bus from using Old Brookville Road," but the evidence contradicted the school board's justifications, such that the ordinance "expressly exclude[d] school buses from its prohibition" and "school buses routinely have picked up and discharged students on Old Brookville Road." Id. at 799. The State Board also noted that the school board "had granted [another family's] request every year to relocate their children's bus stop from [the unsafe county road] to a location in front of their home," and thus the school board had discriminated against petitioner's child in declining to do the same for him. Ibid.

And in R.D., 96 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU); 97 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 414, a school board arbitrarily and discriminately provided minibus service to nonremote public students on their street due to safety concerns, but not to private school students who lived on the same street and were required to walk along an unsafe road to get to their bus stop. In so ruling, the State Board of Education stated:

> The record reveals that the Bernards Township Board does not allow public school children to enter or exit minibuses on Hardscrabble Road due to safety concerns and yet, citing the $675 cap in N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1, exposes nonprofit private school students to the dangers of walking on Hardscrabble Road to a bus stop. Given the history and purpose of the statute, the $675 cap in N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1 cannot reasonably be viewed as permitting district boards to treat nonprofit private school students in a manner which denies > them the same basic safety considerations afforded similarly-situated public school students.[12]

The takeaway from all of these cases is that a child's safety when walking to and from her bus stop is a factor that school boards need to consider when establishing bus routes and stops for remote children, but that other factors, including the safety of the children already on the bus, may outweigh the safety concerns for the child seeking to have her bus stop relocated; that a school board may not treat similarly situated students differently when establishing bus stops; and that, in the end, the propriety of a school board's bus stop decision depends on the totality of circumstances in a particular case.

The cases discussed above involved safety concerns in the context of mandatory busing of remote children under N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1. School boards may also, but are not required to, provide transportation for nonremote students, or students who live less than two miles from school. N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1.1 to -1.3. This is known as "courtesy busing." There is also a subset of courtesy busing known as "hazardous busing," which is addressed by N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1.5. Under that provision, "[a] school district that provides courtesy busing services shall adopt a policy regarding the transportation of students who must walk to and from school along hazardous routes." N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1.5(a). Hazardous busing is not required, but "[w]henever a district board of education agrees to provide nonmandated transportation to and from school for reasons of hazard, the board shall adopt a hazardous busing policy[.]" N.J.A.C. 6A:27-1.5(c).

[12] N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1 set a limit for transportation costs per private school pupil at $675 for the 1992-1993 school year. Under N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1a, "[f]or the 2002-2003 school year, the maximum amount of nonpublic school transportation costs per pupil provided for in N.J.S.18A:39-1 shall equal $735 and this amount shall be increased in each subsequent year in direct proportion to the increase in the State transportation aid per pupil in the year prior to the prebudget year compared to the amount for the prebudget year or by the CPI, whichever is greater."

In R.D., a former superintendent had testified that "if petitioners' children were public school children, he would have put them on one of the minibuses or gotten another minibus, if necessary," but "claimed that his hands were tied since the estimated cost of transportation for use of the minibuses was approximately $1,000 per pupil." Id. at 415.

One issue that has yet to be addressed in any reported decision is whether the prohibition against differential treatment of similarly situated children in establishing bus stops is implicated when a school board agrees to provide hazardous busing to nonremote students who would otherwise have to "walk to and from school along hazardous routes," N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1.5(a), but requires remote students to walk along hazardous routes in order to get to and from their bus stops.

This issue is particularly important in this matter because, under the Board's transportation policy, "[t]he Board of Education directs the Superintendent to supervise development of bus routes to provide safe, economical, and reasonably expeditious transportation for . . . 4. For students whose route to the school is deemed hazardous by the Superintendent, the closest point to their home for pick-up and drop-off where the hazardous condition no longer exists." Holland Twp. Bd. of Educ., District Policy, 8600 – Transportation (March 31, 2010).

If the Board provides hazardous busing to nonremote students who would otherwise have to walk to and from school at "the closest point to their home for pick-up and drop-off where the hazardous condition no longer exists," but does not extend the same consideration to remote students who have to walk along a hazardous route to get to and from their bus stops, then it would follow that the Board is abusing its discretion by giving preferential treatment to nonremote children who must travel along hazardous routes over similarly situated remote children who must travel along hazardous routes.

CONCLUSION AND ORDER

In this matter D.S. must walk a half-mile along a hazardous section of Shire Road to reach her bus stop. The Board's position that it has no responsibility to take safety issues into consideration in determining her route is at odds with the precedent discussed above. The Board's failure to consider safety in D.S.' route to her bus stop was arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable.

It also is at odds with the manner in which it conducts its courtesy busing program. While respondent ostensibly has structured its busing program to be as cost efficient as possible, it has chosen to expend significant resources on a courtesy busing program in which hazardous conditions are not only taken into consideration, but are the primary factor. The disparity in its treatment of remotely bussed students with students in its courtesy busing program is an additional reason for determining the Board's actions were arbitrary capricious and unreasonable when it refused to provide D.S. with a different bus stop.

Based on the record as a whole, respondent acted in an arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable manner by failing to address hazardous conditions for D.S., when it sited her bus stop.

It is hereby ORDERED that petitioners' request for a bus stop in front of their home is GRANTED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. Record Closed: September 9, 2019 Decided: April 17, 2020

BEFORE PATRICIA M. KERINS, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioners G.S. and C.S., on behalf of their adopted minor daughter, D.S., challenge the location of the school bus stop that respondent Holland Township Board of Education (Board) established for D.S. one-half mile from their home. Petitioners seek an order directing the Board to provide D.S. with a bus stop at their driveway.[1]

Under N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1, a school board is required to provide transportation for elementary school students who live more than two miles, or remote, from school. This is known as mandatory busing. Petitioners live remote from D.S.' assigned elementary school and, as such, the Board provides her with publicly-funded transportation to and from her school. However, petitioners argue that the Board acted in an arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable manner in assigning D.S. to a bus stop to which she must walk one-half mile along a winding rural road that has, among other hazards, no sidewalks or shoulders.

Petitioners also argue that the Board is required to provide D.S. with a bus stop at their house as a result of a prior bus stop controversy between the parties in G.S. v. Bd. of Educ. of Holland Twp., 96 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 795, 97 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 416, in which the State Board of Education issued a final decision ordering the Board to provide petitioners' children with minibus service to and from their home.[2] Thus, petitioners contend that, under the doctrine of res judicata, they should not have to relitigate a dispute over the location of D.S.' bus stop.[3]

In response, the Board argues that it did not act improperly in assigning D.S. her current bus stop because the Board is only required to provide D.S. with a safe bus stop, and that the Board is not responsible for providing D.S. with a safe walking route to and from the bus stop. The Board also denies that res judicata applies to this matter, because material circumstances have changed since the final decision in the prior controversy.

[2] For many years, the State Board of Education, and not the Commissioner of Education, had final administrative decision authority in controversies and disputes arising under the school laws. However, in 2008 the Legislature removed the State Board's authority to hear appeals from Commissioner of Education decisions and instead conferred final decision authority on the Commissioner. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9.1; N.J.A.C. 6A:4-1.1. Petitioners have two natural sons, and D.S. is the natural daughter of one of the sons. D.S. was not yet born at the time of the State Board's decision in the prior case.

[3] Typically, it is a defendant, and not a plaintiff, who raises the issue of res judicata. Also, res judicata serves to bar re-litigation of a case. Here, a hearing took place after petitioners' motion to apply res judicata was denied. Nonetheless, the parties have argued the issue in their post-hearing briefs.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On June 24, 2015, G.S. and C.S. filed an appeal of respondent's action citing their daughter's school bus stop at a distance from their home. Their petition was filed with the Department of Education's Bureau of Disputes and Controversies and on July 15, 2015, the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for hearing as a contested case. On December 7, 2015, petitioners' motion for the application of res judicata was denied and respondent's cross-motion for summary decision was denied. Petitioners' requests for emergent relief were denied on August 24, 2016, and April 26, 2019. After telephone conferences, motion practice and a period for discovery, testimony was taken on December 16, 2015, March 3, May 26, and October 20, 2016. Additional testimony was taken on January 25, May 1, May 15, July 25, and September 28, 2017, as well as April 11, and June 7, 2018. A site visit occurred on July 2, 2018, and the parties appeared on February 7, 2019, after unsuccessful attempts at settlement. The record remained open for the submission of post-hearing memoranda and exhibits, closing on September 9, 2019. Extensions of time for the filing of the Initial Decision were granted.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

Many of the material facts in this matter are not in dispute. G.S. and C.S., along with their adopted granddaughter D.S., reside on Shire Road in Holland Township, Hunterdon County, within a mandatory busing zone. Their home has a turnaround drive in the front of the property. D.S. is currently attending fifth grade at Holland Township School in respondent's K-8 district. Over twenty years ago, petitioners filed a similar petition on behalf of their minor children at that time, seeking a bus stop at their home. In that matter Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) Metzger ruled on behalf of petitioners and made findings regarding safety and the road conditions at issue, a decision upheld by the then State Board of Education. (See Exhibit C-1, the Metzger Decision.) When petitioners requested a bus stop at their home and the application of Metzger's ruling to D.S., respondent declined and this appeal ensued.

In this matter respondent does not challenge ALJ Metzger's findings regarding road conditions and the parties were advised that where relevant ALJ Metzger's factual findings regarding the roads at issue would be cited in this matter. The parties agreed there were no material changes to those roads and their condition.

In a factual change from the prior litigation respondent now contracts its bus service to the regional high school district to which it sends its students, Delaware Valley Regional (Delaware Valley). The Board works with Delaware Valley staff to determine the routes for its students and Delaware Valley is capable of providing whatever size bus a given route requires. The current bus stop for D.S. is at the intersection of Shire Road and Anderson Road and a large fifty-four-person-bus is used for the route. Petitioners' home is approximately a half-mile from that stop, along a stretch of road with no sidewalks or shoulder. The bus stop also serves a number of children from the area who also are provided mandatory bus service. As set forth in Metzger's decision, as well as in numerous days of testimony, Shire Road presents significant safety issues for a child walking along it. The District currently runs routes traveled by large school buses on other roads with dangerous driving conditions as described in Metzger's decision.

The record further shows that in addition to mandatory busing the Board has chosen to provide courtesy busing to students within the District. Holland Township is in a scenic, rural part of Hunterdon County with hilly topography and roads which are at times winding and narrow. The only school in the District sits on the main road through the Township, Route 519 and several neighborhoods near the school are served by courtesy busing. The justification for the courtesy busing by the Board has been the hazardous nature of travel on Route 519 to reach the school. Further, the Board has provided bus stops for courtesy busing on roads other than Route 519.

For much of the hearing petitioners represented themselves on a pro se basis. In support of their petition they presented a series of witnesses who testified to the hazardous nature of Shire and other roads traveled by the District's buses, the manner in which the Board devises its routes and the allocation of Board resources between its courtesy and mandatory bus programs.

G.S. and C.S., along with Mahlon Stuckley (Stuckley) and Beverly Early (Early) testified credibly regarding their experience driving vehicles along Shire Road, as well other roads in the area used in the District's bus routes. Stuckley has operated a large garbage truck along Shire Road, and other roads referenced in ALJ Metzger's opinion. He described Shire Road and other roads such as Alfalfa Hill and Bellis Road, which were discussed in that opinion, and agreed they were "harrowing" to drive but that they were traversed by large school buses. Early is a mail carrier who has serviced Shire Road for over seventeen years. In her testimony she corroborated Stuckley regarding the hazardous nature of Shire and other roads in the area. Similarly, G.S. and C.S, who operated a small bus company, and regularly drive school buses, testified as to the hazardous walking and driving conditions of Shire Road, including its lack of shoulders, blind spots, and curves. Additionally, G.S. and C.S. were qualified as experts in the area of school transportation and each opined credibly as to the hazardous nature of Shire Road. Further they opined that a large school bus could navigate Shire Road.

Additional testimony was taken from M.S., D.S.'s biological father, who was one of the children in Metzger's decision. He too testified credibly as to the hazardous nature of Shire Road and described the turnaround constructed in front of his parents' property. He stated there had been no changes to the road since the prior decision. In his testimony he identified photos of bears crossing Shire Road (P-28-29). Petitioners' neighbor on Shire Road, Nicole Yard (Yard) also testified. She is the mother of children attending the District's school and she credibly echoed other witnesses as to the winding, hilly nature of Shire Road and its lack of shoulders. She has observed cars driving at a fast speed around the curves and up the hills and would not walk on the road. She found the current bus stop which her children share with D.S. to be inconvenient and unsafe. She also stated that she does not allow her child on the morning bus as it goes down Alfalfa Hill, along a route she finds too dangerous.

Petitioners also presented a series of witnesses who testified to the Board's transportation policy, decision making process and its development of bus routes. Emil Suarez (Suarez), a former Acting Superintendent of the District testified regarding petitioners' notice that D.S. would be starting school, but stated that he retired before he felt petitioners had "formally" requested the relocation of D.S.' bus stop. He opined that he was in agreement with the Board's decision not to relocate the stop. Dr. Nancy Yard (Dr. Yard), who succeeded Suarez as Acting Superintendent, was questioned regarding how petitioners' request for a relocation of the bus stop and their request to apply the Metzger were handled by the District.

Lorraine Scheibener (Scheibener), Laurie Hance (Hance), Casey Bickhardt (Bickhardt), Joseph Somers (Somers) and William Soucie, (Soucie) , past and present Board members, also testified. Scheibener explained that the Board votes on policies and procedures developed by its various committees, as well as the budget. The budget is developed by staff and the overall transportation costs are voted upon by the Board. Board members do not develop the bus routes, nor vote on them individually. She admitted that her children had the benefit of the District's courtesy busing, but that within her development there could be several children at a given bus stop. Scheibener stated that the Board relied upon its staff to develop the routes and that decisions on routes were made on an "equal and fair" standard as set forth in the Board's policy. She said the Board's decisions on courtesy busing were based on safety concerns, particularly the traffic on Route 519. With regard to mandatory bus routes, she stated that the only safety considerations were whether the bus stops themselves were safe.

When questioned concerning the safety of the bus stop assigned to D.S. and a number of other students, she acknowledged that she was aware of a Holland Township Police Department letter (P-1) which expressed concerns over the safety of that stop. Yet she stated that the stop's safety was not the Board's responsibility, as any traffic issues at the stop were the police's problem. With regard to D.S.' walking route to the stop, she would not allow her child to walk it alone, agreeing it was a dangerous route at points. While she emphasized that she relied on staff to develop and advise on routes, any issue regarding a route would require a cost analysis.

Hance is a Board member and Chair of the Board's Finance Committee. She testified that the committee approves bus routes presented to it by the superintendent, and its members do not micromanage the process of developing the routes. She said she is not familiar with individual routes and the factors which go into developing each route. The routes are discussed in a report they receive from staff in August. She emphasized that she relies on the superintendent's recommendations and that the courtesy bus program is driven by safety issues on Route 519.

Further testimony was provided by Bickhardt, another Board member. She too is a member of the Finance Committee and she described the process for developing the transportation budget and bus routes. The Business Administrator and the Delaware Valley representative develop the routes based on the student populace and provide them to the superintendent. The routes and their cost are then presented to the committee and upon their approval are sent to the Board for a vote as part of the transportation budget process. When questioned regarding D.S.' walking route on Shire Road she admitted that she would not allow her child to walk it. She also was questioned regarding the Board's decision to approve a new bus route for a special needs child. The Board allowed the child's sibling to ride that route but denied D.S.' request to be included in it. While she acknowledged that permitting the sibling to ride on a special education bus was against policy, the Board was not willing to extend that exemption to D.S. Bickhardt was queried extensively on various bus routes and whether they fit within the Board's criteria for economy and efficiency. Citing the lack of sidewalks as a factor in the Route 519 approach to school, she admitted that buses go into neighborhoods such as Gridley Circle and pick up children within the development.

Another Board member testifying was Soucie who also served on the Finance Committee. He too insisted that the Board follows recommendations on bus routes provided by its staff and consultants. Soucie was a contentious and evasive witness who had to be directed to answer at times. He echoed the testimony of the other Board members that bus routes were formulated by staff and approved as part of the transportation costs by the Board. He did not find Shire Road to be a hazardous road and differed from all other witnesses on whether a child would be safer in a school bus or walking along the road. He found Shire Road to be a good place to walk and perfectly safe when shown pictures of the child's route. He also denied that the reason for the District's courtesy busing was to keep the children from having to walk and traverse Route 519. He acknowledged that his development had requested and received approval regarding a bus stop.

As with other Board members, Somers testified that the District's only obligation regarding bus stops is that they are safe. He noted not every parent can have a stop outside their home and that providing one would be too time consuming and expensive for the District.

The final witnesses in this matter were David Bailey (Bailey), Superintendent, Abby Postma (Postma), Business Administrator and Jeremiah Ford (Ford), Transportation Supervisor for Delaware Valley. Bailey initially testified regarding petitioners' letter request of March 2014, that D.S. be provided a bus stop at their home as set forth in Metzger's decision. As he had only begun as superintendent in April 2014, he did not respond immediately to the letter. In developing a response however, he consulted with Ford as the person who initially develops the bus routes and advises the District on transportation matters. Ford advised him that for safety reasons he would not run a large fifty-four-person-bus down that portion of Shire Road, but a smaller bus for a route along that road could be provided for approximately $17,000 a year. Ford left the decision on such a route to the District and Bailey advised petitioners in August their request was denied. Bailey testified that cost was one of the factors taken into account. He also cited the domino effect on other remotely bussed students if such an accommodation was provided to D.S. As for any hazardous conditions on the walk to the bus stop, Bailey stated that children were not required to walk. Their parents could drive them.

Much of Bailey's testimony revolved around the manner in which the District handles courtesy busing versus its mandatory busing. He emphasized the traffic on Route 519, the major artery through the Township and the fact that courtesy busing had been a long standing practice in the District. Under questioning he acknowledged that the courtesy busing does take place on roads other than 519, and that many courtesy bussed children have bus stops in front of their homes. He differentiated the hazards on Shire Road from those on Route 519, stating that while narrower and without shoulders, Shire Road had less traffic and a lower speed limit.

Postma, the District's Business Administrator provided testimony regarding the development of bus routes for the district. She stated that enrollment had declined in the District and that it generally employed six to eight buses in what she described as "looping routes." The transportation process begins in May or June when enrollment data is sent to Delaware Valley and routes are developed by Ford. In D.S.' case, she was assigned to the route for her area and petitioners' request for a different bus stop was turned down after review by Bailey. As with other witnesses she cited the hazardous nature of Route 519 as the basis for courtesy busing and distinguished it from Shire Road due to its traffic volume and higher speed limit. She also discussed the manner in which efficiency ratings for a district's transportation program were handled by the Department of Education and how the designation of a courtesy bus route as "hazardous" by the superintendent plays positively into those efficiency ratings.

According to Postma while safety is a consideration in bus routes, the only consideration for safety in a bus stop is visibility and that it is the parents' responsibility to get their children to and from the stop. Any complaints or issues regarding bus stops come to her office and are sent to Ford for review.

The final witness in this matter was Delaware Valley's Ford who testified regarding the bus routes and stops for Holland Township. He was qualified as an expert in school transportation and stated that the bus routes for the District were devised in a fair manner in line with its transportation policy. In his opinion only a smaller, sixteen passenger bus could safely run a route on D.S.' section of Shire Road and that such a bus could be provided at a cost of approximately $17,000 a year if the District so wished. When questioned regarding the large buses used on routes traversing Belllis Road or Alfalfa Hill, he said Shire Road presented more of a challenge. Under continued questioning, he admitted that a large bus traversed portions of those other hazardous roads. However he justified those routes as part of an "overall route plan" despite the danger presented to large school buses.

Ford also was questioned regarding the courtesy busing program in the District. As with other witnesses, he pointed to the hazardous nature of Route 519 as a basis for the program. He admitted that courtesy busing took place in neighborhoods off Route

519, with bus stops in the neighborhoods. He too cited the Department of Education's efficiency ratings for districts and noted that "hazardous" was only a designation for courtesy busing purposes. Ford also testified in response to questions regarding individual routes and whether such routes were efficient and cost effective, admitting that depending on the route, buses could service small numbers of students despite the bus size.

A review of the record as a whole here, including the Metzger decision, supports a finding that the route D.S. must walk to her bus stop is hazardous. Shire Road is a narrow, winding rural road without shoulders in an area in which wildlife such as bears are present. Further, the bus stop to which she is assigned has raised the concern of the local police department. The record further shows that respondent has determined that it has no responsibility for the safety of the route a child must take to reach its bus stop and that its only duty is to provide a safe bus stop.

Undisputed testimony further shows that the District has the ability to use either a small or large bus on a given bus route, although at present it generally uses large buses for the "looping routes" it has chosen to implement. However the District also uses smaller buses in situations such as the transport of special education students. While the District takes the position that for safety reasons it cannot use a large bus on the portion of Shire Road in question, the testimony of its expert witness Ford was equivocal on that point. Ford pointed out the hazardous nature of Shire Road, but failed to differentiate it from the equally, if not more hazardous nature of roads such as Alfalfa Hill, Bellis Road and the Narrows. When confronted with the dangerous portions of those roads he simply fell back on "overall route consideration" as a reason for using those roads. Those roads are regularly traversed by district buses and their dangerous nature was credibly testified to by a number of witnesses in this matter. It is noteworthy that the findings in Metzger's decision regarding those roads were not disputed by respondent. As Metzger wrote:

> The Board authorizes other trips and maneuvers that are patently more risky then a ride down Shire Road. The K turn on Bellis Road is scary. For most of that operation the driver cannot see oncoming traffic or be seen. The Board allows a full-size bus to travel the Narrows along

> River Road, which appears to be a harrowing ride. Alfalfa Hill Road is at least as steep, narrow and winding as Shire Road, and is probably worse. So long as the Board uses these routes, it cannot convincingly argue that it will not travel Shire out of an abundance of caution. (C-1)

The record further shows that respondent has a robust courtesy busing program for its students based on routes which it deems "hazardous." That program primarily services neighborhoods closer to the District's only school which are adjacent to Route 519. The bus routes for those children do not require that they all meet at stops nearest an intersection with Route 519, but includes stops within the neighborhoods. Further, the District does not have a similar designation for hazardous routes within its mandatory busing program.

LEGAL ANALYSIS

The first issue to be addressed in this matter is petitioners' position that Metzger's decision should be applied here pursuant to res judicata. Although petitioner's motion to apply the doctrine was denied at the outset of the hearing, the parties again addressed the issue in their post hearing memoranda. As held previously, the doctrine of res judicata does not apply here as there are material differences in the facts underlying the prior and current litigation. Therefore, the final decision in the parties' prior dispute does not preclude litigation of the parties' current bus stop dispute.

As the Supreme Court has explained, "[t]he term 'res judicata' refers broadly to the common-law doctrine barring relitigation of claims or issues that have already been adjudicated" and "provides that a cause of action between parties that has been finally determined on the merits by a tribunal having jurisdiction cannot be relitigated by those parties or their privies in a new proceeding." Velazquez v. Frank, 123 N.J. 498, 505 (1991) (citing In re Coruzzi, 95 N.J. 557, 568; Roberts v. Goldner, 79 N.J. 82, 85 (1979)).

The "[a]pplication of res judicata 'requires substantially similar or identical causes of action and issues, parties, and relief sought,' as well as a final judgment." Wadeer v. New Jersey Mfrs. Ins. Co., 220 N.J. 591, 606 (2015) (quoting Culver v. Ins. Co. of N.

Am., 115 N.J. 451, 460 (1989)). While "[t]he test for identity of a cause of action is the most difficult to determine," ibid., the following factors offer guidance:

> (1) whether the acts complained of and the demand for relief are the same (that is, whether the wrong for which redress is sought is the same in both actions); (2) whether the theory of recovery is the same; (3) whether the witnesses and documents necessary at trial are the same (that is, whether the same evidence necessary to maintain the second action would have been sufficient to support the first); and (4) whether the material facts alleged are the same.

> [Culver, 115 N.J. at 461-62 (quoting United States v. Athlone Indus. Inc., 746 F.2d 977, 984 (3d Cir.1984)).]

In G.S. v. Bd. of Educ. of Holland Twp., 96 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 795, 97 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 416, G.S. and C.S. challenged the Board's refusal to relocate their children's bus stop to their driveway as arbitrary and capricious and, as a result of that litigation, the State Board of Education issued a final decision finding that "[a] minibus currently stops approximately three-tenths of a mile" from petitioners' home, concluding that "the Board's action in refusing to extend its minibus service to [petitioners'] home was arbitrary and capricious," and ordering the Board to provide petitioners' children with minibus service at or near their home.[4] G.S., 97 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) at 417. In that matter, the parties did not dispute that the walking route from petitioners' home to the children's assigned bus stop was dangerous.

Importantly, in reaching its conclusion, the State Board of Education specifically stated that:

> [T]he Board's action in this instance was arbitrary and capricious, particularly in view of [petitioners'] offer to construct a minibus turnaround on their property at their expense. As previously noted, our review herein is not limited to the safety of the existing bus stop or the Board's jurisdiction over safety conditions on the Township's roads. Rather the standard is whether the Board abused its > discretion in refusing to extend minibus service to petitioners' home.

> [Ibid.]

Thus, the State Board's conclusion that the Board acted arbitrarily was based on the material facts that "[a] minibus currently stops approximately three-tenths of a mile" from petitioners' home and that petitioners offered to build a minibus turnaround in their driveway.

Here, res judicata does not act as a bar to the current litigation because, although the issue (location of a bus stop), the parties (G.S. and C.S. and the Board), and the relief sought (bus stop at petitioners' home) are the same in both matters, the two causes of action are not the same as the material facts are different to the extent that there initially was no evidence of existing minibus service near petitioners' home as was when petitioners filed the first cause of action. Additionally, the Board's transportation policy has since changed.[5]

First, while the Board acted arbitrarily in refusing to extend existing minibus service three-tenths of a mile to petitioners' home under the facts of the prior matter, the question becomes whether under the facts of this case, the Board acted arbitrarily, capriciously, or unreasonably in denying petitioners' request to relocate D.S.' bus stop.

There is another material fact that precludes application of res judicata to this matter. In 1999—after the State Board issued its final decision in the prior dispute—the Legislature enacted L. 1999, c. 310 (effective January 4, 2000), which is codified as N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1.5 and provides that "[a] school district that provides courtesy busing services shall adopt a policy regarding the transportation of students who must walk to and from school along hazardous routes." N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1.5(a).

[5] Contrarily, the fact that this matter involves petitioners' granddaughter, and not their natural children, and the fact that the Board no longer provides transportation with its own buses, do not necessarily represent material changes from the prior matter.
In their post-hearing submission petitioners assert that as a result of schedule changes there is no impediment to D S. being assigned to a current bus route used by a smaller bus.

The Board currently has a transportation policy under which "[t]he Board of Education directs the Superintendent to supervise development of bus routes to provide safe, economical, and reasonably expeditious transportation for . . . 4. For students whose route to the school is deemed hazardous by the Superintendent, the closest point to their home for pick-up and drop-off where the hazardous condition no longer exists." Holland Twp. Bd. of Educ., District Policy, 8600 – Transportation (March 31, 2010).

This policy represents a material fact that did not exist at the time of the prior dispute and could affect the outcome of this case, such that the Board may be abusing its discretion in establishing bus stops if the Board provides busing to nonremote students who would otherwise have to walk to and from school along a hazardous route at "the closest point to their home for pick-up and drop-off where the hazardous condition no longer exists," but does not do the same for D.S., who is a remote student who has to walk along a hazardous route to get to and from her bus stop. For these reasons, the doctrine of res judicata does not apply to this matter.

The main issue in this matter, therefore, is whether the Board acted in an arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable manner in refusing to relocate D.S.' bus stop. A leitmotif in school bus stop disputes between parents and school boards is child safety. This case is no different. And like other bus stop disputes, the parties in this matter disagree whether and to what extent a school board must consider child safety in establishing bus stops. Petitioners argue that the Board should move D.S.' bus stop because her walking route to the stop is unsafe, while the Board maintains that its statutory transportation responsibility for remote students includes providing D.S. with a safe bus stop, and not a safe walking route to the bus stop.

A review of previous administrative decisions shows that a child's safety is certainly a factor in determining whether a school board acted in an arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable manner in setting bus routes and stops for children who live remote from school. While "unsafe conditions such as the absence of safe walkways is the responsibility of the municipality, not the school district," a school board may not "turn a blind eye to such situations when establishing school bus stops." R.D. & V.D. ex

rel. C.D. v. Bernards Twp. Bd. of Educ., 96 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 481, 486; 97 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 414. Instead, a school board "may evaluate conditions involving the safety of school pupils in their journey to and from school" and "must make reasonable classifications with respect thereto and all children must be treated in an equitable manner." Walters v. Bd. of Educ. of the Twp. of Mendham, 1977 S.L.D. 854, 857. Importantly, the scope of an inquiry into the propriety of a school board's refusal to relocate a bus stop "is not limited to the relative safety of the school bus stop" or a school board's lack of "jurisdiction over safety conditions of sidewalks and roadways" in a municipality; "[r]ather, the broader issue is whether the Board abused its discretion in denying petitioner's request [in a] particular case." Peary v. Bd. of Educ. of the Twp. of Barnegat, 93 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 798. Thus, although school boards "have wide discretion to promulgate pupil transportation policies, including school bus routes and stops, they may not discriminate or act in a manner that is arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable." Ibid.

In several administrative decisions, a school board's choice of bus stops has been upheld despite safety concerns regarding a particular child. For example, in Lemma v. Bd. of Educ. of the Twp. of Branchburg, EDU 8953-97, Initial Decision (June 8, 1998), adopted, Comm'r (July 22, 1998) <https://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal>, the school board reasonably rejected petitioner's request to move his children's bus stop because, even though his children had to walk "through a half-mile uninhabited area with no sidewalks or street lighting and along an often foggy 50 MPH road with blind curves" to get to their assigned stop, the board's decision was based on "its expert's analysis of traffic and hazardous driving conditions," "the safety of the children already on the bus," and "information leading them to believe that the bus stop met the requirements for [petitioner's] children's safety." Moreover, the school board "reasonably concluded that [the narrow, dead end street on which the requested stop was located] was different from the other roads on the bus route because the shoulders were soft and thus hazardous, and the bus must execute a K-turn to exit," and petitioner failed to show that his "children were treated differently from children similarly situated."

Similarly, in Mandaglio v. Bd. of Educ. of the Twp. of Mendham, 1990 S.L.D. 1380, the petitioning parents failed to show that the school board abused its discretion charges and suspended Respondent Bruce Bassetti (Bassetti) for 120 days without pay in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14. After the expiration of the 120 suspension without pay, Mr. Bassetti has and continues to be on a suspension with pay.

2. True and correct copies of the complete arbitral record (transcripts, exhibits, and post-hearing briefs) are included with this stipulation as Exhibit A. The parties specifically agree that the arbitral record for the present arbitration is the arbitral record as it existed before Arbitrator Peter Adomeit as of August 22, 2019, that the arbitral record including the charges, the statement of position and the answer (including all exhibits to the pleadings), the transcripts, the exhibits and the parties' post-hearing briefs.

3. On August 19, 2019, the Board voted to withhold Bassetti's employment and adjustment increments for the 2019-2020 school year. See Exhibit B.

4. At all times the Board has taken the position that termination is the only appropriate penalty in this case; however, the Board maintains that its decision to withhold Bassetti's employment and adjustment increments is a matter of procedure taken to preserve the arbitrator's ability to award an increment withholding prior to any contractual increases. The Board contends that this is the practice and procedure in any tenure case regardless of the facts of the case and is not in any way meant to imply that the Board believes that the withholding of Bassetti's increment is an appropriate penalty.

5. Bassetti disagrees with the Board's position and maintains that if you find that the Board has proven that he engaged in conduct unbecoming, that lesser discipline in the form of a suspension and/or an increment withholding is appropriate.

6. On or about September 3, 2019, the parties first became aware of Arbitrator Peter Adomeit's Opinion and Award, which was dated August 23, 2019. See Exhibit C. The parties specifically agree that Arbitrator Adomeit's opinion and award dated August 23, 2019 is not part of the present arbitral record.

7. On September 4, 2019, Keith Waldman, Esq., Bassetti's attorney, informed Arbitrator Adomeit of the Board's vote to withhold Bassetti's increments. On September 5, 2019, Arbitrator Adomeit responded that he has no jurisdiction to hear appeals from increments disputes. See Exhibit D.

8. On November 7, 2019, Bassetti filed a Verified Petition of Appeal, Docket No. 292-11/19, with the Commissioner of Education contesting the increment withholding. See Exhibit E.

9. On November 27, 2019, the Board filed a Verified Complaint with the Superior Court of New Jersey, Chancery Division, Salem, Cumberland, and Gloucester Counties, seeking to vacate Arbitrator Adomeit's Award under the New Jersey Arbitration and Award Act, N.J.S.A. 2A:24-8. See Exhibit F.

10. On January 2, 2020, Bassetti filed an Answer and Counterclaim with the Court. See Exhibit G.

11. On January 9, 2020, Bassetti withdrew his Petition of Appeal with the Commissioner. See Exhibit H.

12. On the same day, January 9, 2020, Bassetti withdrew Count II of his Counterclaim. See Exhibit I.

13. Following briefing, the parties appeared for oral argument before the Hon. Robert P. Becker, Jr., P.J.Ch., on February 27, 2020. After oral argument, Judge Becker issued a Order vacating Arbitrator Adomeit's award and referring the matter to the Commissioner for the selection of a new arbitrator. The Order also excludes from evidence all statements made by Bassetti without union representation during the Board's investigation of the allegations. The parties specifically agree that Judge Becker's Order was not the subject of any appeal and is binding. See Exhibit J. A transcript of Judge Becker's decision is also included as Exhibit K.

The tenure charges certified to the Commissioner by the Board on April 16, 2019, allege that Bassetti engaged in Unbecoming Conduct in violation of district policies when he used a racial slur in front of students.[2] The Board further charges Bassetti with Incapacity, alleging that the use of the slur makes it impossible for him to return to his teaching duties in the District, because such a return would cause "acrimony with students, staff and community", thereby rendering him incapable of performing his duties. Finally, the Board charges Other Just Cause for termination of Bassetti's employment with the District exists because returning him to the classroom would violate the public trust, and fail to ensure the well-being of students in a safe environment where they are not subjected to racial slurs.

An arbitration hearing was conducted on May 30-31, 2019, before Arbitrator Peter Adomeit, at which time thirteen witnesses testified under oath. Witnesses were sequestered during the hearing. The parties also presented documentary evidence. The parties filed post-hearing briefs. Arbitrator Adomeit issued an Opinion and Award dated August 23, 2019. The parties became aware of Arbitrator Adomeit's Opinion and Award on or about September 3, 2019 (Exhibit J-2 Para.6).

[2] Portions of the tenure charges filed by the Board refer to and are dependent upon statements alleged to have been made by Bassetti during the Board's investigation while he was not accompanied by an Association representative. Judge Becker's Order excluded these statements from evidence, and I have therefore not referred to this material in the recital of charges made by the Board (Exhibit J).

N.J.A.C. 6A:6.3 provides that the decision in this matter shall be issued within 45 days of the beginning of the hearing, and that the decision shall be final and binding. On June 11, 2020, I requested an extension of time to submit my award. The Department of Education granted my extension request to July 17, 2020.

ISSUE IN DISPUTE

The record contains no information with respect to a stipulation by the parties or a formulation of the issue by the parties. In view of this, I have determined that the issue in dispute is as follows:

RELEVANT BOARD POLICIES

Board Policy 4111.1,"Nondiscrimination/Affirmative Action/Sexual Harassment" provides in relevant part as follows:

The Board of Education guarantees to all persons equal access to all categories of employment, retention and advancement in this district, regardless of any and all conditions or any of the protected classes as proscribed in NJSA 10:5-1, et.seq or any other federal or state law(s) and/or statutes.

Harassment and Favoritism

The Board of Education is an affirmative action employer and holds all its employees responsible for maintaining a working environment that is free from all discriminatory practices. Harassment or favoritism on any basis included in the Board's statement of equal access to employment, retention and advancement is prohibited. Board Policy 4119., "Duties/Responsibilities" provides in relevant part as follows:

Teaching staff members, because of their proximity to students, are frequently confronted with situations that, if handled incorrectly, could result in liability to the district and personal liability to the staff member. It is the purpose of this policy to direct the preparation of guidelines that would minimize that possibility. Major duties of each professional employee are delineated below:

A. To carry out duties and responsibilities set forth by New Jersey statutes, Title 18A, and New Jersey Administrative Code.
B. To abide by rules and regulations as established by the Board of Education.
C. To carry out specific job responsibilities as established by the Board of Education.
D. To uphold rules and regulations as established by the Superintendent of Schools and other school administrators.
E. To properly channel all negative criticism about the district or its employees.
F. To adhere to prescribed curricula and courses of study.
G. To adhere to the specific job description for the contracted position.

It is the responsibility of the Superintendent of Schools to prepare regulations to ensure the maintenance of the following standards:

A. Each teacher must maintain a standard of care for supervision, control and protection of students commensurate with assigned duties and responsibilities.

Board Policy 4119.25 "Unbecoming Conduct" provides in relevant part as follows:

The personal life of an employee is not an appropriate concern of the Board except as it may directly prevent the employee from performing his/her properly assigned functions during the workday or affect his/her professional relationship with the pupils.

Unbecoming Conduct

When an employee, either within the school or outside normal duties, creates conditions under which the proper operation of the school is affected, the Board, upon recommendation of the Superintendent of Schools, and in accordance with statute, shall determine whether such acts or lack of actions constitute conduct unbecoming a school employee, and if so, will proceed against the employee in accordance with law. Unbecoming conduct sufficient to warrant Board review may result from a single flagrant incident or from a series of incidents.

Board Policy 6121 "Nondiscrimination/Affirmative Action" provides in relevant part as follows:

No pupil enrolled in the district schools shall be excluded from participation in, denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination in any educational program or activity of this district on the basis of any and all conditions or any of the protected classes as proscribed in NJSA 10:5-1 et. seq or any other federal or state law(s) and/or statutes. The affirmative action officer shall be responsible for planning, implementing and monitoring the district's affirmative action program with respect to school and classroom practices.

B. Staff Training

He/she shall suggest a program of in-service training for school personnel designed to identify and solve problems of bias in all aspects of the school program. An affirmative action/equity in-service program shall be held for teaching staff annually; for each support staff member at least once every three years; and for parents and community members, as needed to facilitate participation and support.

POSITIONS OF THE PARTIES

The Board maintains that it had just cause to terminate Bassetti due to his use of a racial epithet during a class, and his refusal to accept responsibility for making the remark. The Board argues that he cannot return to a teaching position in the district due to the egregious nature of his conduct.

The Union urges that the Board has not met its burden of proving just cause for any discipline of Bassetti. The Union asserts that the Board conducted a procedurally defective investigation of the alleged incident, and that even if the allegation were proven, the penalty of removal is disproportionate to the conduct. Bassetti should be returned to the classroom.

FINDINGS OF FACT

In reaching these findings of fact, I have reviewed the stipulated record (Exhibit J-2), the transcripts of testimony given over two days of hearing on May 30 and 31, 2019, and the exhibits entered into evidence. I have not read or considered any testimony which refers to statements made by Bassetti during investigatory proceedings where a union representative was not present. I have not considered any part of an exhibit in evidence which refers to such statements.

Bruce Bassetti testified that he had been employed by the Penns Grove-Carneys Point Regional school district for fifteen years during the 2018-2019 academic year (2T-294). He stated that he is certified as a teacher of "secondary biological sciences", and that he had been employed in education for seventeen years (2T-294).[3] He testified that, other than a verbal warning for missing an afternoon duty station during the 2018-2019 school year, he had no prior disciplines (2T-295). Bassetti stated that his evaluations had been "Proficient" (2T-294 to 295).

Bassetti testified that on February 27, 2019, he was teaching a seventh grade science class at the District middle school (2T-298). The class was using Chromebooks, which were distributed to students for use during class, and returned to Bassetti at the end of class (2T-308). During class, Bassetti noticed JS[4], who was seated in the back of the classroom. Bassetti noticed that JS's computer was "teetering" on top of materials on JS's work area. Bassetti asked that all the computers be placed flat on the desk. JS looked up at Bassetti, but did not alter the position of his Chromebook. After giving JS time to comply, Bassetti stated that he got up, walked to where JS was seated, and reached out to take the computer (2T-300 to 301). As he did so, JS slid the Chromebook across the table

[3] IT refers to the transcript of the hearing on May 30, 2019; 2T refers to the transcript of the hearing on May 31, 2019.

[4] The names of the students are contained in the transcripts of the hearing, however due to their age and privacy concerns, they will be identified only by their initials in this decision.

to CO, who was seated next to him, keeping the computer out of Bassetti's reach (2T-300 to 301; 1T113).

The students in Bassetti's classroom are seated with up to four students at a table, rather than at individual desks. Bassetti's desk was at the front of the room, near the door to the classroom (2T-302; Exhibit Bassetti-11).

Bassetti stated that, rather than cause a disruption in the classroom, or engage JS, he went back to his desk and continued reviewing test papers (2T-301).

During class, Bassetti testified that he told the students that the science fair project which had been assigned would count for 50% of their grade, and would be posted on the interim reports for the marking period, with a comment if the project had not been turned in. Bassetti testified that about half the students had a look of "fear and panic"(2T-298 to 299).

Bassetti stated that at the end of the class period, students brought their Chromebooks to him so that he could check them back in(2T-301). He noted that JS had gotten up, leaving the computer behind. Bassetti testified that he asked JS to please bring the computer to him, and JS responded "are you lazy, come get it yourself" (2T-301). Bassetti stated that this occurred as the bell rang for the end of class, so he smiled at JS, who did a "double take"; Bassetti said he wanted JS to reflect on whether there would be some disciplinary action in response to his comment (2T-301).

I credit Bassetti's testimony as to the incident with JS and CO involving the Chromebook, as well as to the comment which Bassetti testified was made by JS about Bassetti being "lazy". I also credit Bassetti's testimony that he spoke to the class about the interim grade reports and the impact of the Science Fair project grade on those reports.

Students Report Bassetti

Students CT, NB, GM and BO were all seated together at a table in Bassetti's classroom on February 27, 2019. CT and NB were seated closest to the aisle (1T-18). All four are seventh grade students at Penns Grove Middle School who were 13 years old at the time of the hearing in this matter (1T-15; 1T-50; 1T 71 to 72; 1T-90). All four testified at the hearing.

CT testified that approximately 15 minutes before the end of class, Bassetti said "I'm not dealing with you niggers". CT stated he and the others at the table "froze", and that they decided they would go to the principal's office after class (1T-18 to 19; 1T-25; 1T-41). CT recalled that Bassetti was standing about halfway between the table where JS was seated and the location of CT's table, at an approximate distance of 8 to 10 feet from CT when Bassetti made the statement in a low voice (1T-19 to 24).

After class ended, CT stated that he proceeded to the principal's office together with NB, GM and BO (1T-25).[5] The students met with Vice Principal Roy S. Wright (1T-25).

Roy Steven Wright, Jr.

Wright testified that he became a vice principal at Penns Grove Middle School in September 2017, having previously spent 22 years as a special education teacher in another district, and 3 years as an assistant principal and athletic director at Burlington City High School (1T-180 to 181). He testified that he holds a graduate degree in Education Administration (1T-180). Wright testified that his graduate degree in Education Administration did not include any training in Equal Employment Opportunity/ Affirmative Action, and that his training in that area was confined to an estimated three-hour workshop which took place while he was working for a previous employer (1T-196 to 197).

Wright stated that he was in his office on February 27, 2019 when 3 students appeared on their way to lunch, stating that they needed to speak with him about an incident which had occurred in Bassetti's fifth period class(1T-181; Exhibit Board-9). Wright did not recall the names of the students, but stated that he asked them what was going on, and they responded that Bassetti had used a racial epithet during class, directed toward another student (1T-183). Prior to their appearance in his office, Wright stated that he did not know the 3 students (1T-184). Wright testified that he told them he was going to have each of them write a statement; he then directed them to leave his office, and began calling them in one by one to take statements from the three students who had presented themselves to him (1T-183).

Wright stated that the first student he spoke with was GM (1T-183). He testified GM told him that the N-word was the epithet that the students attributed to Bassetti (1T-184). After he obtained statements from CT, NB and GM, Wright said that he sent the students back to either lunch or recess, depending on what period they had for lunch(1T-184).

Wright then contacted his direct supervisor, Principal Luis Amberths, to advise him about the situation, as well as his intention to get statements from the other students in the class. Wright's announced plan was to get a statement from Bassetti once the students had all given statements (1T-184 to 185).

CT Statement and Testimony

CT recalled giving a statement, and I will not repeat his testimony which is recounted above concerning the events of February 27, 2019 in Bassetti's classroom. CT stated that he and GM explained to Wright what had happened, then Wright gave them a form to write down what they heard. CT recalled that all 4 students, himself, GM, NB and BO were seated in chairs in the hallway when they wrote the statements (1T-26 to 27). CT stated that they did not discuss anything other than the spelling of each other's names (1T-27). CT recalled that Wright interviewed him for about 10 minutes after CT did the written statement, and that Wright asked only about what was said, not about anything else that might have happened in class (1T-38 to 39).

CT's statement recited that Bassetti said "I am not trying to deal with you niggers" (Exhibit Board-1 at 1T16). CT also recalled that NB and BO went to lunch prior to being interviewed by Wright (1T-39 to 40).

At arbitration, CT also identified a drawing he had made of Bassetti's classroom, but after reviewing it and another depiction done by Bassetti, CT agreed that Bassetti's was more accurate (Exhibit Board 2, 1T-19 to 20; 1T-31 to 32;Exhibit Bassetti-1). When asked to review an exhibit with the layout of the classroom, and place where Bassetti was when he first had the conversation with JS and CO, CT placed a "B1" near the desk occupied by JS and CO nearest to CO. He stated that when he heard Bassetti's remark, Bassetti was returning from the back of the room, facing toward the front of the room, and facing but behind the table where CT, BO, NB and GM were seated. CT marked Bassetti's location when CT heard the remark with a "B2". CT marked Bassetti's route of travel with a dotted line showing Bassetti proceeding down an aisle nearest to the door, and finally ending near Bassetti's desk at a point CT marked as "B3" (1T-33 to 34; Exhibit Bassetti-1).

CT testified that as of February 27, 2019 he thought his grade in Bassetti's class was a C, and that it was now a B (1T-35 to 36). He stated that he turned in his science project late, after Bassetti followed up with CT and his mother (1T-36 to 37).

CT also stated that, in addition to discussing the need to report Bassetti's comment to the principal with his tablemates NB, GM and BO, he also spoke with JS and CO, the two students who were involved in the Chromebook incident (1T-43). CT also spoke with Board counsel in the presence of Superintendent Cobain in preparation for the hearing (1T-45 to 48)[6].

NB Statement and Testimony

NB testified that on February 27, 2019 two students were not doing work, being "irritating" to everyone, and Bassetti started looking "aggravated", walked away and "said the n-word" (1T-52). NB stated that he heard Bassetti say the word, but kept doing his work, then discussed it with GM and CT who were sitting with him at the same table(1T-53to 54). He discussed going to the administration, but nothing else with his tablemates (1T-55 to 56).

[6] Each student except KR was asked a series of questions about whether they had met with Board Counsel in the presence of Superintendent Cobian prior to the hearing, and all provided essentially the same responses, including that they had been directed to tell the truth. The students met individually with Counsel and Cobian. KR merely confirmed that a meeting with Board Counsel occurred in response to a single question.

After class ended NB stated that he went to see Wright along with CT and GM (1T-56). NB testified that Wright did not ask him questions but told him to write down his statement, which said in part that "Mrs." (sic) Bassetti "very quietly" said "nigger" and I thought he did not really say it but my classmates heard him say it" (1T-63;Exhibit Board-3, 1T-22 to 23; Exhibit F to Board Statement of Evidence/Tenure Charges). NB testified that Wright did not tell him what to write, and that he did not discuss what happened with anyone other than his parents, CT and GM (1T-53;1T-57 to 58).

NB stated that the incident with JS and CO and the Chromebooks occurred about the middle of class, with approximately 10 minutes left in the class (1T-59 to 60). He testified that as of February 27, 2019 he was doing "pretty good" in Bassetti's science class with a C or D; he currently has a C in the class (1T-62). NB did not recall a science fair project (1T-62). NB testified that Bassetti had moved NB's seat "a couple times" for excessive talking, and was "pretty sure" that he had been seated near the sink at one point (1T-70 to 71). He was moved to the table he was seated at on February 27, 2019 after assuring Bassetti that he would continue working (1T-71).

When shown an exhibit which depicted the layout of Bassetti's classroom, NB placed himself, CT, GM and BO at the table where they were seated, and also indicated where JS and CO were seated. He placed a "B2" at the location where Bassetti was when NB heard him make the remark, which was on the side of the room near the door, almost adjacent to the table where NB was seated. NB placed an arrow to show Bassetti's direction of travel, which shows Bassetti moving from the back of the room toward the front, where Bassetti's desk is located (1T-58 to 61; Exhibit Bassetti-2).

GM Statement and Testimony

GM testified that Bassetti walked over to JS and CO and told them to turn their Chromebooks off because class was ending and the computers were being collected. GM said that the Chromebooks were placed in a cart at the end of class (1T-88). When Bassetti walked away, GM stated that he heard him say "I can't deal with these n-word"(1T-74). After hearing this, GM testified that he stopped and looked at NB, CT and BO, but did not say anything (1T-75).

After class, GM went to the main office, and he, NB and CT went into Wright's office. He was unsure if anyone else was with them (1T-76). GM stated that all of them spoke with Wright, and he filled out a statement in the hallway outside Wright's office (1T-85; Exhibit Board-4 1T-73 to74). GM's statement said in part that Bassetti "said the N- word softly", and he testified that it was said softly enough that the whole class could not hear it (1T-77 to 78). Specifically, the N-word he heard ended in "er" (1T-84). GM said that no one, including Wright, told him what to write (1T-78). He did not discuss what happened with anyone other than his parents (1T-78).

When directed to place a "B1" on a diagram of the classroom at the location where Bassetti was when he made the remark, GM placed Bassetti as standing in the front of the classroom in front of the table where GM was seated, along with BO. NB, GM and CT. GM then placed a dotted line indicating that after Bassetti made the remark he continued across the front of the classroom toward his desk, where GM placed a "B2" (1T-79 to 81; Exhibit Bassetti-3).

At the time of the incident, GM stated that he had a D or an F in Bassetti's class, and that he currently has a B in science (1T-85). GM did not turn in a science project to Bassetti (1T-86).

After obtaining the statements of CT, NB and GM, and touching base with Amberths, Wright started calling the other students from Bassetti's fifth period to his office. He directed each student to sit outside his waiting room to do their statements. He did not recall that students were waiting together in the hallway at any time (1T-201). When the statement was done, Wright read it over, and asked if there were any additions or deletions. Wright testified that he told each student not to discuss his or her interview with other students (1T-203). Wright believed that it took him until 9:00 a.m. on February 28, 2019 to finish all 22 students who were in Bassetti's class (1T-185). Wright testified that he did not tell any of the students what Bassetti was alleged to have said prior to reading their statements (1T-186).

Wright testified that overall, he found the students' to be credible, however there were some he did not find credible. Specifically, he stated that he believed CS made the whole thing up, and did not see or hear anything. SH had told him that he wasn't in the room, and then made a statement that he heard it. JS provided a statement that he heard the comment after previously telling Wright that he did not hear himself being called the alleged word (1T-186 to 187).

With respect to the three students who initially came to his office, CT, NB and GM, Wright stated that they appeared to have been concerned or upset about something. Wright found all three to be credible (1T-187).

Among the students who were summoned after Wright received the information from CT, NB and GM, were the following:

Statement and Testimony of BO

BO also provided a statement about the events of February 27, 2019 (Exhibit Board-5; 1T-91 to 92). BO testified that February 27 was a normal day, until he saw his friend CO "playing around" and refusing to give a computer to Bassetti. BO stated that Bassetti "got mad" and said, "I'm done with you niggers"( 1T-93). BO's statement reflects that he "heard Mr. Bassetti say "I'm done with you niggers", and further that "Everyone in my table looked at each other and we were talking on how we heard the same word (1T-93; Exhibit Board -5).[7] BO recalled that Bassetti spoke "pretty softly" when he made the statement, but BO could not remember at what point during the class the statement was made (1T-99 to 100). BO stated that when Bassetti made the remark, he and his friends "just looked at each other in shock and just were like, oh, did you hear that?" (1T-93). BO clarified that the friends he was referring to were NB, GM and CT, and that the only further discussion was about reporting the comment to the office (1T-94; 1T-103 to 104).

When asked to place a "B1" on a diagram of the classroom where Bassetti was standing when he went to speak with JS and CO, BO placed Bassetti in the back of the room, nearest to the wall where the door is located, next to the table where he indicated JS and CO were seated. BO placed a "B2" where Bassetti was when BO heard the remark; BO placed it alongside the table where he was seated, on the right side of the room near the door, indicating that Bassetti had walked in a straight line from his "B1" position near JS and CO, toward the front of the room (1T-96 to 99; Exhibit Bassetti-4).

BO stated that after Bassetti's class ended, he proceeded to the rest of his classes until he was called to the office later in the day and asked to write the incident report (1T-94). BO later clarified that he actually was called to Wright's office to make a statement on February 28, not the day when the incident occurred. When BO went to the office, he encountered two other students, SA and J (no last name or initial in transcript)(1T-105). He met with Wright, who told him to write down what happened and make sure to put down the word that Bassetti used; Wright did not tell BO what word had allegedly been used (1T-95; 1T-105 to 106).

BO also stated that prior to the incident, he did not have any problems with Bassetti, who was "pretty nice" to him (1T-96). He first stated that he believed that he had a C in Bassetti's class in February 2019, but later said the grade was maybe a B or an A (1T 101; 1T109). He stated that he did not turn in a science fair project (1T-101). His current grade in science is an A (1T-108).

Statement and Testimony of CO

CO was seated next to JS, and stated that he and JS were "messing around" passing the Chromebook back and forth because Bassetti wanted it " 'cause it was on a book"(1T-113). CO testified that Bassetti was getting upset and then walked away and said he was tired of all these niggers (1T-113).

When shown a diagram of the classroom and asked to place a "B1" where Bassetti was standing when he was trying to retrieve the Chromebook, CO placed Bassetti in the aisle leading from the right of Bassetti's desk to the back of the room, at the front corner of the table where CO and JS were seated. CO placed a "B2" at the right side of Bassetti's desk in the front of the classroom when asked to show where Bassetti was standing when CO maintained he heard the remark (1T-118 to 119; Exhibit Bassetti-5). CO also place a "B3" near the doorway marking where Bassetti was at the end of class (1T-120; Exhibit Bassetti-5).

After class, while CO was at lunch, CO stated that CT came up to him and said he had heard the comment and had gone to Wright(1T-114; 1T-117). In addition to speaking with CT, CO also said that he spoke with JS, who had been seated next to him in class (1T-114). CO stated that JS told him that he also heard the comment (1T-114 to 115).

CO said that he was summoned to the office, and when he arrived several students were there, including CS, JH, J (no last name in transcript) and CT; CO stated that he did not have a discussion about what happened with any of them (1T-155 to 116). Wright directed CO to write a statement, but did not tell him what to write other than telling him to write the words he heard Bassetti say (1T-116; 1T-121). CO's statement said that Bassetti "mumbled under his breath..I'm done with these n*" (1T-111 to 112;Exhibit Board 6; Exhibit H to Board Statement of Evidence/Tenure Charges). CO could not remember how much time was left in class when the statement was made (1T-119).

CO could not remember if he turned in a science fair project or how much of his grade it would count for (1T-125).

Statement and Testimony of JH

JH is 12 years old and was in Bassetti's seventh grade science class (1T-129 to 130). She provided a statement, which erroneously indicated that the incident occurred on 3/27/29; JH was unsure when the events happened but stated she was "pretty sure" in March ; however she later stated that she made the statement on the day after Bassetti made the remark(1T-130 to 132; Exhibit Board-7; Exhibit I to Board Statement of Evidence/ Tenure Charges; 1T-139 to 140).[8]

JH testified that two boys in the back of the room were on their Chromebooks and when Bassetti tried to take it they refused, and Bassetti got "mad" (1T-132). She stated that Bassetti walked away "mumbling" that he was "tired of putting up with us niggers"(1T-132 to 133; 1T-139). When Bassetti said it JH stated she was sitting in the middle row of the classroom (1T-133). She placed [8] JH noted that there was some writing on the statement which was not hers in the portion of the statement for person's name and persons in conflict (1T-141 to 142).

AS, L (no last name or initial in transcript), and GM at a table to her right and CT, J (no last name or middle initial in transcript) and BO at a table to her left (1T-134).

When asked to mark "B1" at the place on a diagram of the classroom where Bassetti was during the Chromebook incident, JH placed Bassetti in the aisle closest to the right side of his desk, at the corner of the table where she placed CO, JS and S (no last name in transcript). JH placed a "B2" at the spot where Bassetti was when she heard him use the racial epithet, which was in the same aisle where he had been standing when he went to get the Chromebook, closer to the front of the room between the table where she was seated and the table across the aisle, where she placed BO and CT (1T-137 to 139; Exhibit Bassetti-6).

JH stated that she did not react when Bassetti made the statement, and did not speak with anyone about it after class (1T-134 to 135).

When JH was called to the office, she stated that she met with Wright, gave him an account of what happened, and then wrote her statement (1T-147 to 149). The statement recited that Bassetti said "I am tired of putting up with these niggas" (1T-141; Exhibit Board ; Exhibit I to Board Statement of Evidence/Tenure Charges; 1t-). However, JH maintained that the actual word Bassetti used was "niggers" not "nigga"(1T-141).

JH testified that other than her mother and counsel, she did not speak to anyone after she wrote her statement about what happened (1T-135 to 137). However, JH then stated in response to a question that she had given an interview to a television station about the incident (1T-146; 1T-160 to 162).

JH stated that she had been "doing fine" in Bassetti's class before the incident and that she had handed in her science project. She denied that her grades were lower than they had been in the past or that there had been a discussion about her science project having been poorly completed (1T-144).

Statement and Testimony of KR

KR is a 12-year-old seventh grade student at the Penns Grove Middle School (1T-164). She stated that when she was leaving Bassetti's classroom on February 27, 2019 Bassetti was walking to his desk and she heard him "say something under his breath". KR testified that she did not recall the "first part" but thought she heard him say "the N-word" (1T-166). She stated that Bassetti made the remark quietly, "like he was talking under his breath" (1T-167).

When she was asked to indicate on a diagram of the classroom where she was sitting on February 27, 2019, KR placed herself at the aisle side of a table at the back of the room, in the same row where JS and CO were seated, but at the opposite side of the classroom. She placed herself at the door of the classroom when she heard Bassetti make the remark by adding "K2" to the diagram, and Bassetti at the right side of his desk when he made the remark, but adding "B2" to the diagram. She also placed her route of travel from her seat to the door by adding a dotted line connecting "K1" and "K2." She also placed Bassetti near the corner of JS and CO's table during the Chromebook incident by adding "B1" to the diagram, and indicated that he moved from there to the front of the room by his desk at the position she had previously designated "B2" (1T-174 to 175; Exhibit Bassseti-8).

She was called to Wright's office on February 28. KR testified that from the time that Bassetti's class ended until she was called to Wright's office, she did not speak with anyone about the incident, and did not talk to her parents about it until she went home after being called to Wright's office (1T-168). When KR arrived in Wright's office, she stated that BO, S (no last name in transcript) and SA were already there. She testified that she did not speak to the other students about what happened in Bassetti's class (1T-168).

KR testified that when she met with Wright, he said that it had been reported that Bassetti had said something and that it might have been a bad word (1T-169). Wright did not tell her what the word was. KR stated that she told Wright that she heard Bassetti say a bad word, but did not repeat the word because she didn't want to say it (1T-169).

KR wrote a statement which stated in part that while leaving the classroom "it sounded like he said a bad word but I don't know if he was talking to a student cause I was leaving the classroom" (1T-165; Exhibit Board 8; Exhibit K Board Statement of Evidence/Tenure Charges). After she gave her written statement, KR testified that she spoke with some other students asking if they had been called to the office (1T-171).

KR stated that during Bassetti's class, a student did not put a Chromebook away. She did not recall who the student was, and did not hear what Bassetti said other than to put the Chromebook away (1T-172). She stated that she guessed that about 5 minutes passed between the time of the Chromebook incident and the comment she heard Bassetti make while she was leaving the classroom (1T-172 to 173; 1T-178).

After carefully reviewing the testimony and statements of the students, I find their testimony about Bassetti's use of the word "nigger" to be credible. In reaching this conclusion, I am mindful of the inconsistencies in their testimonies, including differences among them about where Bassetti was standing when he muttered the word, the time in class when he made the statement, and the exact sentence that he formulated. Despite these inconsistencies, I find that the immediacy of the students' response to Bassetti's use of the word "nigger" and the manner in which they expressed their reactions persuasive; for example, BO said that when Bassetti said the word, he and the students at his table "just looked at each other in shock"(1T-93). Three of the students immediately went to the office to report what happened, which seems courageous, since middle school students were reporting serious misconduct by a teacher to high level administrators and could not know if they would be believed.

I also note that the testimony from the students is absolutely consistent that the racial slur was used, and that it was made in a soft voice, which may partially account for the differences in what was heard by students in the rest of the sentence. The word which riveted their attention was "nigger." The lack of absolute consistency in what they report about the other muttered words tends to support their credibility rather than undermine it. Identical testimony in this situation would more likely be the product of rehearsal than recollection.

While there are differences in where the students say that Bassetti was located when he used the racial slur, with the exception of GM, KR and CO, the students place Bassetti toward the rear or middle of the classroom, proceeding toward the front of the classroom (Exhibits Bassetti -1 through 6; Bassetti-8).

I also am not persuaded that some of the students were motivated to lie about Bassetti due to their failure to produce a Science Fair project. While their grades would clearly be negatively impacted on their interim reports by virtue of a failure to hand in the project, the remainder of the marking period would provide time to counteract that failure and raise a low grade. In addition, in order to carry out such a plan, the students would have had to conceive of a story about Bassetti using a racial slur, persuade other students to join the plan, and then carry it out through a process which included questioning by Vice Principal Wright, and testifying under oath. That is simply implausible in view of the age of the students, and the number of co-conspirators which would be required in order to carry out the plan.

Wright concluded the interviews with the students in Bassetti's class about 9:17 a.m. on February 28, 2019 (1T-179; Exhibit Board 9).

Wright testified that he did not request or assist the student who came to him with the initial complaint about Bassetti-whom he believed to be GM-in making a written claim of discrimination (1T-200). Wright acknowledged that the students he interviewed were not completely consistent about the words Bassetti spoke before or after the racial epithet, but stated that it was attributable to the circumstance that the students were 11, 12, and 13 years old (1T-206 to 207; 1T-212 to 213). He did not attempt to resolve the inconsistencies in the statements (1T-207). Wright testified that he encouraged the students to write the actual words that Bassetti uttered, but did not tell them what Bassetti was alleged to have said (1T-207).

Wright and Amberths Meet With Bassetti

On February 28, after obtaining statements from the students in Bassetti's class, Wright testified that he spoke with Principal Luis Amberths, and went over the statements with him (1T-188). Wright testified that he believed Amberths spoke with Superintendent Cobain, but he was not a party to that conversation.

Wright stated that Bassetti was called to come to Wright's office sometime in the afternoon on February 28th. Amberths was also present at the meeting (1T-188 to 189). Wright conducted the meeting, and Amberths acted as a witness (1T-189). Wright testified that the purpose of the meeting was to get a verbal statement from Bassetti about what transpired and to follow up with a written statement from Bassetti (1T-189). Wright stated that when Bassetti arrived, he explained the reason for the meeting, told him what the alleged remark was, and advised him of the need for a verbal statement followed up by a written statement. Wright testified that he told Bassetti that "if it will go any further...you will be called back and at that point you can have union representation" (1T-189 to 190; 1T-210). Wright also shared the name of the alleged victim with Bassetti (1T-190). He did not provide Bassetti with a written complaint, including a District Affirmative Action Form (1T-208). Wright stated that the meeting lasted approximately 10 minutes (1T-191).

Due to the judicial Order with respect to statements made by Bassetti without union representation, as stipulated by the parties, I make no findings with respect to Bassetti's participation in the meeting other than to note that he cooperated by providing an oral and written statement. I have not considered the content of either the transcript or any exhibits which concern Bassetti' s verbal or written statements arising from this meeting (Exhibit J-2, Paragraph 13).

Wright testified that a few days after the meeting with Bassetti, he became aware of a rumor that there may have been a video of the incident. Wright stated that he brought the students in, and no one was able to corroborate that there was a camera or a phone taking pictures or video. After completing this follow up, Wright stated that he compiled everything and gave it to Amberths. Wright testified that he was interviewed by Michael Ostroff, the District's Affirmative Action Officer about the meeting with Bassetti (1T-192 to 193).

Wright stated that although he was unsure about whether he could make a determination about whether Bassetti should go back to the classroom, he believed that it would be impossible for Bassetti to return to a classroom in the Middle School due to community outrage about the incident (1T-193 to 194). Wright also stated that he felt that it would not be a "good situation" for Bassetti's "personal safety" since threats had been made against him (1T-194). He stated that he was familiar with the Board's policy concerning allegations of harassment, but had not memorized Board Policy 4118.1, Title IX (IT-197 to 198; that the manner in which Bassetti addressed the students and failed to care for them also violated Board Policy 4119.25 "Unbecoming Conduct" (1T-258 to 259; Exhibit Board-14). Finally, Cobian stated that Bassetti violated the first sentence of Board Policy 4111.1 "Nondiscrimination/Affirmative Action/Sexual Harrassment", which provides in part that the Board guarantees "equal access to all categories of employment, retention and advancement" in the district without regard to whether an individual belongs to a protected class (1T-258 to 261; Exhibit Board 15).[10]

Cobian testified that she did not file tenure charges due to community pressure to do so (1T-262 to 263). She stated that Walter Hudson, a former Board member, is a community activist (1T-263). Cobian testified Hudson is permitted on school property only when he has a child in a school due to claims he had an incident with a teacher (1T-263 to 264). She stated that there was an incident between Hudson and a police officer which she thought resulted in criminal charges; there was a civil judgment against Hudson arising from the incident (1T-264).

Cobian could not recall if Hudson appeared at a Board meeting to call for immediate action to fire Bassetti , but stated that he has publicly called for [10] I note that Cobain testified that her determination about a violation of Board Policy 4111.1 was based in part on a statement alleged to have been made by Bassetti which are excluded from evidence. I have not considered this aspect of her testimony.

Bassetti to be fired (1T-264-265). She testified that she was aware of numerous posts by Hudson calling for Bassetti to resign (1T-265). Cobian reviewed a packet containing 14 documents including Hudson's internet posts, and selected those which which she had previously seen (1T-265 to 272; Exhibit Bassetti-10).

Cobian identified the following documents from Exhibit Bassetti-10 which she had previously seen: Hudson post with biblical quotation and an attached video of a Board meeting with subtitle referring to Board's response to Bassetti incident (page 3 of Bassetti-10); Hudson post with picture of Bassetti with "Bruce Bassetti Resign Now" printed across the picture (page 5 of Bassetti-10); Hudson post with Bassetti picture as described above and post purporting to be from a student in the class (page 6 of Bassetti-10); Hudson post with pictures of Bassetti and "school district tries to fire tenured teacher over alleged racial slur" (page 11 of Bassetti-10); Hudson post commenting that if Association president Lehr fights for Bassetti, Hudson will have media and activists in front of Lehr's house and the middle school and "WE WILL SHUT IT DOWN !" (page 13 of Bassetti-10; capitalization in original).

Cobian testified that she did not consider the posts in deciding whether to file tenure charges because she had already made her decision to do so before she saw the posts (1T-272 to 273). Cobian maintained that Hudson calls for the termination or resignation of teachers in the district "all the time" (1T-285). She stated that she was repeatedly contacted by the media about the Bassetti incident, including NJ.Com, Courier-Post, and Channel 6, but testified that she was not influenced by these contacts in making her decision to file tenure charges (1T-273 to 274). Cobian also stated that she gave no statements to the press because it was a personnel matter (1T-274).

With respect to Board Policy 4111.1, Cobian testified that this policy is for staff, but applies to "all", and that students may file a grievance under this Policy (1T-275; Exhibit Board 15). She maintained that the first paragraph of Board Policy 4111.1 is a general statement, and while it does not mention students, the word "student" is "implied" (1T-278 to 279).

She stated that when students make claims against staff members, the complaint goes to the principal, because principals are part of the Affirmative Action subcommittees in the schools (1T-276). She maintained that although Wright had testified that he had approximately 2 hours of EEO training, she was not concerned that he might be able to reconcile inconsistencies in statements, because he consulted with the principal, who had training (1T-276).

With respect to the steps she followed in crafting tenure charges, Cobian stated that she worked with counsel to draft the charges, which are then presented to the Board along with all the evidence, and the Board then decides whether to file the charges (1T-282). A statement of position from Bassetti is requested by counsel for the Board, and that statement is part of the material considered while the Board deliberates about proceeding with tenure charges (1T-282 to 283).

Cobian stated on cross-examination that she made the decision about whether to file tenure charges against Bassetti on February 28, 2019 when she had all the statements in hand, not on the previous evening following negotiations (1T-284).

Affirmative Action Investigation

Michael Ostroff is the Director of Curriculum and Instruction in the Penns Grove-Carneys Point Regional district, a position he had held since August 2018. He is also the Affirmative Action Officer for the district (1T-223). Prior to his employment with the Board was employed by the Mount Holly school district, where among other duties he was the Affirmative Action Officer (1T-223).

Ostroff testified that his training in being an Affirmative Action Officer is limited to guidance from the superintendent in Mount Holly and Cobian, both of whom had served in that capacity prior to Ostroff assuming the role (1T-223 to 224). He stated that he also read policy, regulations, and handbooks. (1T-232).

Ostroff prepared an Affirmative Action Report, dated March 22, 2019, on the Bassetti incident (1T-224; Exhibit Board-10). At the portion of the Report captioned "Allegations" the phrase "per attached sheets" appears, which he testified were student, administrator and teacher written statements (1T-225). The Report states that Bassetti violated the "affirmative action policy" by uttering a racial slur, but does not specifically refer to any Board Policy by number or title (Exhibit Board-10), Ostroff stated that he was not present for any of the student interviews conducted by Wright, nor did he interview Bassetti (1T-227). He testified that he made a judgment call not to re-interview the students, because he felt their statements, together with Bassetti's,[11] were a "complete picture" of the claims (1T-229). He testified that he did not interview Bassetti because Bassetti was suspended (1T-231).

Ostroff stated that if someone made a complaint about an offensive comment which would fall under the affirmative action policies of the district, the complaint would go directly to him if the victim or the person claiming the offense reported it directly to him (1T-234). He testified that if that sort of allegation were reported to someone else, the allegation should be reported to him, but he maintained that in some circumstances, the building administrators had the right to investigate a claim made by a student(s) about a teacher (1T-235).

Bruce Bassetti

Bassetti testified that he did not use the word "nigger" during his fifth period class on February 27, 2019 (2T-288; 2T-309[12]. He stated that the accusation has caused him to become upset, angry and worried (2T-288 to 289; 2T-324).

Bassetti testified that on February 27th he mentioned to his fifth period science class that the science fair grade was to be posted on the interim reports for the marking period, and that the project counted for 50% of the grade. That year there was a school directive sent to parents advising that the projects were mandatory. He estimated that science fair projects take 3 to 4 months to complete, and noted that in 2019 he had 10 student who had done projects which were good enough to be considered to go to the Salem County Science Fair (2T-298). Bassetti testified that the deadline for submission of the project had passed, and noted that he had extended the deadline for his students (2T-298 to 300).

On the 27th, Bassetti stated that he had just passed back the tests he had graded, and gave the students an opportunity to correct the test grade so that they could perhaps raise their grade for the interim report (2T-299).

[12] In fact, he denied that he made any comment about students.

Bassetti reviewed a diagram, not to scale, that he had prepared showing the tables and where students in his classroom were sitting on the day in question (2T-302 to 304; Exhibit Bassetti-11).

The diagram shows Bassetti's desk at the end of the room near the door, and three rows of tables with up to four students seated at the tables. There are aisles from the front to the back of the room (Exhibit Bassetti-11). Bassetti testified that when the incident with the Chromebook and JS and CO, he was at first seated at his desk, then walked up the aisle between the tables occupied by CT, NB, BO and GM, which would have been to his right as he walked toward the back of the room; the table across from them was where JH was seated as well as two other students (2T-305; 2T-325). NB and GM were seated directly across from CT and BO, with their backs to where JS was seated. CT and BO were seated facing toward JS (2T-327). Bassetti stated he stopped at the back of the room and stood in the aisle beside JS, then turned around to face the front of the room while attempting to see what JS was working on (2T-305 to 306).

After Bassetti attempted to grab the Chromebook, but was thwarted when JS passed it to CO, Bassetti testified that he retraced his steps down the aisle and back to his desk (2T-306; Exhibit Bassetti-11). He stated that the incident occurred about halfway through the fifth period class (2T-307).

Bassetti testified that CT was seated facing the back of the room where JS was seated, and GM faced the front of the room where Bassetti's desk was located (2T-306 to 307).

Bassetti testified that he was summoned by security to a meeting with Wright on February 28th, and that Amberths joined the meeting. He stated that Wright informed him that Amberths was there as a witness. Wright informed him that a student had accused him of using the N-word (2T-310). Bassetti's responses are not in evidence; however he stated that Wright and Amberths directed him to fill out a written statement, and I find that Bassetti complied with their direction. I also find that no union representative was present at the meeting, since the testimony of both Wright and Bassetti establishes that only Wright, Bassetti and Amberths were present (1T-188 to 189; 2T-310 to 312).

Bassetti stated that he is involved in community activities, and that he volunteers his time at programs for at-risk youth in the community. He testified that he is also a merit badge counselor for the Boy Scouts of America (2T-313). Bassetti maintained that his involvement in supporting at risk students bolsters his assertion that he is not a racist (2T-313).

On February 28th, Bassetti testified that he was escorted off the middle school property and told to go to the district office. He was met there by NJEA Representative Jennifer Lehr who told him they were going to see the Superintendent. Bassetti stated that Lehr informed him the Cobain would read a letter to him, and give him a copy. He testified that Lehr told him that all he should say is that he understood what Cobian read to him (2T-314).

Bassetti stated he and Lehr then went to the meeting with Cobian, who read him a letter, which he confirmed that he understood. He stated that he sensed that the meeting was a formality rather than an investigatory session (2T-315).

With respect to GM, Bassetti testified that GM might be motivated to lie because Bassetti was in "constant contact" with GM's mother about whether GM was on task in class. Bassetti stated that due to his repeated contacts with GM's mother, GM was "a little afraid" of Bassetti. Bassetti stated that GM had not turned in a science fair project (2T-315).

Bassetti reviewed a gradebook spreadsheet of the students in his 5th period science class as of May 29, 2019 and testified that the grades were not an accurate depiction of the grades of the students as they existed on February 27, 2019 (2T-316 to 317; Exhibit Bassetti-13). He stated that the science fair project grade that he entered had been removed(2T-317). Bassetti explained that if a student turned in a satisfactory project, he gave a grade of 90 or 100. If the project was less than satisfactory, the grade was 80. If no project was turned in, the lowest grade he gave was 50 (2T-317). He stated that in the gradebook the numeric grades he entered had been replaced with Es (2T-317; 2T-343). Bassetti clarified that the area which was altered was on the last page, under the column that says SF final project test (2T-318).

Bassetti stated that CO did not do any work in class, and that he had been in email contact with CO's mother about his work; he maintained that CO's mother was unable to motivate him (2T-319). Bassetti testified that CO had not turned in a science fair project (2T-319 to 320). He also described an incident when CO took the pencil sharpener cover which was full of filings and shook them out over the head of a female student. Bassetti stated that from his vantage point, it appeared that the female student had been hit in the head with the sharpener cover, so he reported it to the office. Security then took both CO and the other student to the office, however Bassetti was later advised that the female student said she had not been hit in the head with anything other than the pencil shavings (2T-320).

Bassetti maintained that CT had a "long history" of mishearing things in class, to the point that Bassetti had to contact his mother. He stated that he had a long string of email history with CT's mother(2T-322). According to Bassetti, CT refuses to write directions down and then mixes them up. When Bassetti contacts CT's mother and provides directions, Bassetti testified that CT convinces his mother that the directions are wrong, and then does "what he wants to do" (2T-322). He stated that CT was "more apt to misconstrue directions" than other 12-13 year old students (2T-341; 2T-348).

JH talks constantly in class, Bassetti stated, and gets nothing done due to her continual conversation. (2T-323).

Bassetti testified that during the 2018-2019 school year, there was no computer cart in his classroom. During the 2017-2018 school year, he had a computer cart in his classroom (2T-321).He also stated that of the students who had testified, CT, GM, BO and KR had been in his class for more than one year (2T-321).

Bassetti stated that the students were mistaken about hearing him say "nigger", but agreed that if he had walked between the desks where CT, NB, BO,GM and JH were seated, the students would be able to hear something that he said "if the room was quiet enough" (2T-328).

Bassetti stated that it was inappropriate to use the word "nigger" in class, and that someone who did so should be disciplined and probably should not be a teacher (2T-342). He also stated that he made the statement from the perspective of a teacher that would be suffering from burnout, and did not consider whether the teacher had an otherwise blemish free career or the body of relevant case law (2T-349 to 350).

I credit Bassetti's testimony, with the exception of his denial that he made a statement in the 5th period science class on February 27, 2019 which included the word "nigger" or "niggers."

Jennifer Lehr

Jennifer Lehr, then president of the Association, testified that when she arrived for the meeting with Cobian and Bassetti, she went into Cobian's office and was briefed by the Superintendent, and advised that Bassetti would be receiving a letter of suspension (2T-362). She stated that she left Cobian's office, spoke with Bassetti, and then they returned to her office and began the meeting. Lehr testified she had told Cobian that she had advised Bassetti to just listen to what Cobian said, answer only direct questions, and not to give a statement at that time (2T-362).

Lehr recalled that when Cobian spoke with them, she explained the allegations, and then said that Bassetti would be suspended with pay. She stated that Cobian gave Bassetti a copy of the letter of suspension, and advised him that he would be able to get his personal items. Lehr did not think that Cobian read the letter out loud, but stated that she read it while sitting in the meeting (2T-365).

Lehr testified that to the best of her recollection, Cobian did say that she would like to know what happened, but understood that the advice of the Association was not to make a statement at that time (2T-363). Lehr stated that she was unsure about the exact words Cobian used, and specifically whether Cobian said that she was aware that the Association had advised Bassetti not to give a statement. Lehr testified that it was the understanding at the time of the meeting among the three participants that Bassetti would not give a statement (2T-363 to 365).

Luis F. Amberths

I note that Luis F. Amberths, principal of the Penns Grove Middle School, testified briefly. The primary purpose of his testimony was to authenticate a document he prepared to summarize the meeting he and Wright had with Bassetti on February 28, 2019 (2T-358 to 359; Exhibit Board-16). I find that Amberths testified that he was at the meeting.

Tenure Charges

On April 16, 2019 the Board certified tenure charges against Bassetti and suspended him for 120 days without pay pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14 (Exhibit J-2, Para. 1).[13] The tenure charges are as follows:

[13] After the expiration of the 120 day suspension without pay, Bassetti has been and continues to be on a paid suspension (Exhibit J-2, Par.1).

Charge One (Unbecoming Conduct): Bassetti used the word "nigger" in front of a class of 7th grade science students, which is intolerable conduct requiring the termination of his employment.

Charge Two (Incapacity): Bassetti's use of a racial slur in the presence of students makes it impossible for him to effectively teach in the District. His return would cause acrimony with students, staff and the community; therefore, he is incapable of continuing his employment with the Board.

Charge Three (Other Sufficient Cause): Bassetti's use of a racial slur mandates that his employment with the Board must be terminated because his return to teaching would violate the public trust to ensure the care and well-being of the students and maintain a safe environment where they are not subjected to racial slurs by their teachers.

ANALYSIS

On February 27, 2019 Bruce Bassetti was teaching a science class at Penns Grove Middle School. During class, two students, JS and CO, frustrated Bassetti's efforts to retrieve a Chromebook, which was placed in a precarious position on top of a pile of materials in front of JS, by passing the computer out of his reach. As Bassetti returned from his fruitless errand, he muttered under his breath words to the effect that he "was done dealing with these niggers", a remark which was heard by students. Bassetti denies having made any remark at all, and I have already found that the seven students who testified that they heard the racial slur are credible. I will not repeat the reasons which were outlined as part of that finding of fact here, but simply restate that despite inconsistencies as to where Bassetti was when he made the remark, the time during class when it was made, and the exact sentence he uttered, I find the testimony of the students and their written statements more credible than Bassetti's assertion that he said nothing at all.

The use of the racial epithet, the Board maintains, and Bassetti's deceitful refusal to acknowledge or accept accountability for his actions, make it impossible for the Board to trust that he will use good professional judgment in the future. In addition, the Board urges, Bassetti's comment is widely known in the community as well as by staff and students, rendering him incapable of functioning as a teacher in the District. The Board maintains that despite Bassetti's lack of a disciplinary history, the only appropriate penalty for his actions is removal, since his continued employment in the District has the potential to compromise the safety and well-being of students.

The Union maintains that the Board has failed to meet its burden of proving just cause for the termination of Bassetti's employment with competent credible evidence. The Union asserts that the students' testimony lacks credibility, due to the multiple inconsistencies present in the testimony of the students, together with the motivation of some of the students to remove Bassetti from the classroom and thus improve their grades.

Additionally, the Union urges that the Board's investigation was flawed because it was not conducted by the Affirmative Action Officer, but instead by Wright, who lacked both training and objectivity.[14] The Union points out that when Ostroff learned of the allegations made by the students, he failed to interview the students or Bassetti, but merely relied on the students' written statements. The Union urges that the Board's investigation was procedurally and substantively deficient, and inherently unfair to Bassetti. The tenure charges should be dismissed.

The Union also argues that even if the Board proved the allegation against Bassetti, the penalty of termination would be unwarranted. Consistent with case law, the Union maintains, factors including the impact of termination on Bassetti's teaching career, his 14 year record of good evaluations and no discipline, as well as the provocation of JS and CO's classroom misbehaviors should weigh in [14] The Union also makes an argument concerning violation of Bassetti's Weingarten rights during the course of the investigation. However, in view of the Order which excludes from evidence any statements made by Bassetti during the investigatory process when he was without union representation, I will not discuss this issue, since the Court's remedy essentially renders the issue moot.

Bassetti's favor and preclude his removal. The Board failed to follow progressive discipline, the Union argues, in seeking Bassetti's termination, and the penalty is both disproportionate to the alleged conduct, and inconsistent with penalties imposed for similar conduct in recent tenure cases. If the Board sustained its burden of proof, which the Union does not concede, it asserts that a lesser penalty of suspension would be reasonable based on recent precedent.

Investigation

The Union argues that the Board's investigation was not impartial, and that the manner in which it was conducted was procedurally deficient. The Association maintains that due to the deficiencies in the investigation, it did not produce facts which support just cause for the tenure charges against Bassetti. To be sure, the investigation was flawed in some respects.

The investigation effectively began on February 27, when NB, GM and CT arrived in the main office and were directed to Wright. Faced with their unannounced arrival, Wright met with each of them, and directed that they reduce their complaints to writing.

It does not appear that NB, GM and CT were sequestered from each other during the period that they were in the vicinity of Wright's office, although it is clear that Wright spoke with each student individually outside the presence of the other students. In retrospect, Wright should have assured that the students were not in a position to discuss their recollections of what had occurred while they waiting to see him, however as a practical matter, once students left Bassetti's classroom and continued with their schedules, they were free to discuss what had happened as circumstances permitted. However, Wright could not have known in advance the nature of the students' complaints, and took the course of getting their recollections reduced to writing quickly, while still fresh in their minds.

Wright shared what had happened with Amberths, who approved Wright's proposed plan of action, to get the statements of the other students in Bassetti's class; Amberths then discussed the situation with Cobian, who directed that statements be taken promptly. There is nothing in the record which indicates that either Amberths or Cobian thought to reach out to the Affirmative Action Officer to assume responsibility for the investigation. I note that Cobian testified that she had been the District's Affirmative Action Officer prior to Ostroff assuming the job, and that Amberths had received training in affirmative action (1T-276).

Wright completed meeting with and procuring statements from the other students in Bassetti's class by the morning of February 28. Wright and Amberths met with Bassetti later in the day on the 28th.

Ostroff did not learn about the complaint against Bassetti until the weekend after the incident (1T-228). Although he was out of the office at training, there is nothing in the record which indicates that an attempt was made to reach out for him or to seek his assistance prior to that time. Ostroff himself had no specific training in conducting affirmative action investigations, other than some advice and mentoring from a superintendent for whom he had previously worked, as well as Cobian (1T-223 to 224). Ostroff's report indicates that he did not speak with any of the students, or with Bassetti. The only interview he conducted was with Wright (Exhibit Board-10).

Although the Report concluded that Bassetti had violated the District's affirmative action policies, it did not specify those policies by name or policy number. Neither Board Policy 4111.1 "Nondiscrimination/Affirmative Action/Sexual Harassment" or Board Policy 6121 "Nondiscrimination/Affirmative Action", which Cobian maintained had been violated by Bassetti's comment, contain any procedures concerning the processing of complaints, or the conduct of investigations (Exhibits Board 15 and 12). The only reference to student complaints in Board Policy 4111.1 pertains to the filing of sexual harassment complaints by students (Exhibit Board-15, Section B, paragraph 5, page 3).

The testimony from Ostroff and Wright concerning the proper procedure for reporting complaints of affirmative action violations was contradictory, with Ostroff testifying that he would conduct investigations when complaints were made directly to him, but that building administrators were also empowered to conduct investigations of complaints made by students against teachers(1T-234 to 235). Wright testified that when a complaint came to him from a student, he would investigate it before referring it to the Affirmative Action Officer (1T-215; 1T 216 to 218). Based upon the record before me, it does not appear that the District has clear procedures in place for the processing of affirmative action complaints. The investigation was essentially completed once Wright had obtained statements from the students, and met with Bassetti.

However, the Association's argument that the investigation was so flawed and lacking in objectivity that the Board failed to meet the just cause standard in preferring tenure charges against Bassetti misses the mark. The Board had credible evidence from multiple students which supported the conclusion that Bassetti had used a racial epithet in the classroom. The Board's investigation, which was primarily conducted by Wright, proceeded quickly to get the statements of students while the incident was fresh in their minds. The students who testified all stated that Wright directed them to write down what had happened, and did not tell them what word Bassetti was alleged to have said. Wright testified that he did make some credibility assessments, and did not merely take each student's statements as factual (1T-186 to 187). The record reflects that Wright conducted himself in an objective fashion while interviewing and collecting statements from the student witnesses. Wright testified that when rumors of a video which pertained to the Bassetti incident may have existed, he followed up by checking with students, and determining that he could not corroborate that a video existed (1T-191 to 192). Whatever his personal feelings may have been with respect to what Bassetti may have said, he clearly gathered information in a thorough manner.

I also note that the investigation of the Bassetti matter was not complex, since it involved a single statement, at a known place and time, with a defined universe of potential witnesses. In a more complex situation, the kind of procedural missteps which were present here might be fatal to the integrity of an investigation.

Unbecoming Conduct

Count 1 of the tenure charges alleges that Bassetti's use of a racial epithet during a class is intolerable, and caused a loss of credibility with students and staff.

I have already made credibility findings which substantiate that Bassetti used the word "nigger" during a 5th period science class on February 27, 2019. In reaching this determination, I considered the arguments about the students' credibility which were raised by the Association, but did not find them persuasive. I have articulated my reasoning in the factual findings section of this decision, and will not repeat them here.

The charge of "Unbecoming Conduct" is an elastic term which includes conduct which "adversely affects the morale or efficiency of [a school district or that] has a tendency to destroy public respect for [public] employees and confidence in the operation of [public] services," Appeal of Emmons, 63 N.J. Super. 136, 140 (App. Div. 1960) (quoting Zeber Appeal, 398 Pa. 35, 43 (Sup. Ct. 1959). Behavior which constitutes unbecoming conduct does not have to violate a specific rule or regulation, but can be based on "the implicit standard of good behavior which develops upon one who stands in the public eye as an upholder of that which is morally and legally correct." Hartmann v. Police Dep't. of Ridgewood, 258 N.J. Super. 32, 40 (App. Div. 1992)(citations omitted).

Bassetti is a tenured teacher; the tenure statute is designed to protect educators from dismissal for "unfounded, flimsy or political reasons." Wright v. Bd. of Educ. Of E. Orange, 99 N. J. 112, 118 (1985) (quoting Zimmerman v. Newark Bd. of Educ., 38 N.J. 65, 71 (1962) cert. denied 371 U.S. 956, 83 S. Ct. 508 (1963). Tenured teachers must act in a professional manner and serve the welfare of the students in their care. Tenure charges may be sustained based upon a pattern of unprofessional conduct, or a single incident which is found to be "sufficiently flagrant." In re Fulcomer, 93 N.J. Super. 404, 421 (App. Div. 1967).

Board Policy 4119.25 "Unbecoming Conduct" (Exhibit Board 14) provides that when an employee "creates conditions under which the proper operation of the school is affected", the Board, with the recommendation of the Superintendent, will determine whether the conduct constitutes conduct unbecoming a school employee. The Policy further provides that a "single flagrant incident" may be sufficient to warrant Board review of an employee's conduct.

It is apparent that when Bassetti used a racial slur while conducting a class with students present, his conduct violated norms of professional behavior and common decency. Teachers not only communicate information; they are role models for the students in their care. Teachers are expected to maintain appropriate and professional conduct as a legitimate requirement for employment due to their position as both role models for students and public employees. In re Sammons, 1972 S.L.D. 302; Saunders v. N.J. Dep't. of Educ., 91 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU)12.

Bassetti's use of the term "nigger" had no legitimate pedagogical purpose, and was evidently an expression of his annoyance at the misbehavior of JS and CO. NB, BO, CO and JH all testified that Bassetti appeared to be "aggravated" (NB; 1T-52), "got mad" (BO;1T-93; JH; 1T-32) or "upset"(CO; 1T-113) after the Chromebook incident. I infer that Bassetti was annoyed by the disrespectful behavior of JS and CO, annoyance which was justified. However, when he chose to express that annoyance by muttering words to the effect that he was done with those "niggers" he crossed a line. The students' behaviors were objectionable, and deserved to the admonished. Behaviors can be corrected, but immutable characteristics, such as race or sex, cannot. By using a racial epithet to admonish behavior, Bassetti communicated to the class that individual behavior was the result of belonging to a particular race, rather than to choices about conduct. Simply put, he modeled racism.

As the Commissioner observed in Sammons,

> By virtue of the unique position they occupy, educators must be held to enhanced standards of behavior. [Teachers] are professional employees to whom people have entrusted the care and custody of tens of thousands of school children with the hope that this trust will result in the maximum educational growth and development of each individual child. This heavy duty requires a degree of self-restraint and controlled behavior rarely requisite to other types of employment. In re Sammons, 1972 S.L.D. 302, 321

I have used the word that Bassetti uttered-"nigger"- throughout this decision to underscore the brutality and potency of the term. Words have power, and I note that this particular word is so reviled that even adults who testified in this proceeding often elected to use the term "N-word" instead of what Bassetti actually said. Bassetti himself conceded that use of the slur in a classroom by a teacher was inappropriate (2T-342).

The Board also alleges that Bassetti's conduct violated Board Policy 4119.3 "Duties/Responsibilities." Cobian testified that Bassetti's comments violated his duty to maintain an appropriate standard of care for supervision, control and protection of students (1T-256 to 257; Exhibit Board 13, Paragraph 3 A). I find that Bassetti's conduct violated his duty to protect the students under his care by subjecting them to racially discriminatory language directed toward members of the science class.

Ostroff's Affirmative Action Report stated that Bassetti had violated the District's Affirmative Action policies by uttering the racial slur, but did not specify which policies were implicated. Cobian testified that she concluded that Bassetti's comment violated both Board Policy 4111.1 "Nondiscrimination/Affirmative Action/Sexual Harassment" and Board Policy 6121 Nondiscrimination/Affirmative Action" (Exhibits Board 15 and 12).

With respect to Board Policy 4111.1, Cobian stated that although the Policy is intended for staff, the inclusion of students is "implied"(1T-278 to 279). The first paragraph of the Policy is a general statement which states that the Board guarantees equal access to employment, retention and advancement in the district without regard to any condition or membership in protected classes as defined by state and federal law. It also covers Harassment and Favoritism, Sexual Harassment and Whistleblower Protection. The only mention of students occurs in the Sexual Harassment portion of the Policy, which provides that students, as well as employees, may file formal sexual harassment grievances. The Policy is clearly directed toward employees of the district, rather than toward students. I decline to include them by inference, as proposed by Superintendent Cobian. The Policy is clear and unambiguous in its language. While Bassetti's comment was discriminatory in impact, I do not believe that it violated the provisions of Board Policy 4111.1.

I conclude that the Board has met its burden of proof that Bassetti's use of a racial epithet in the classroom on February 27, 2019 violated Board Policies 4119.25 "Unbecoming Conduct", 4119.3 "Duties/Responsibilities", and 6121 "Nondiscrimination/Affirmative Action." The Board did not meet its burden of proof that Bassetti's statement violated Board Policy 4111.1"Nondiscrimination/Affirmative Action/Sexual Harassment.

The Board also maintains that Bassetti violated the provision of Board Policy 6121 "Nondiscrimination/Affirmative Action" which states that "[n]o pupil enrolled in the district schools shall be...subjected to discrimination in any educational program or activity of this district on the basis of any and all conditions or any of the protected classes" defined by state or federal law (Exhibit Board Policy 12). Cobian testified that Bassetti's use of a racial slur subjected the students in his science class to a discriminatory statement which violated the Policy (1T-255 to 256). There can be no doubt that the use of a racial epithet in the circumstances here is an act of discrimination which violates the Policy.

Incapacity

Charge Two alleges that Bassetti's use of a racial slur in the classroom makes it impossible for him to effectively return as a teacher because it would cause acrimony with students, staff and the community. In view of this concern, the Board maintains, Bassetti is incapable of continuing his employment with the District.

The Board argues that the focus of the term "incapacity" in the statute is broad, and considers not only classroom proficiency, but also a teacher's impact and effect upon the students. In re Grossman, 127 N.J. Super. 13 (App. Div. 1974). In the Board's view, once Bassetti uttered a racial epithet in the classroom, he compromised the integrity of the District. In addition, the Board maintains, his refusal to acknowledge his conduct removed any chance at remediation. Bassetti's return to teaching, in the Board's view, had the potential to compromise the safety and well-being of students.

The record reflects that Bassetti had been employed by the Board for 15 years when the incident occurred, and that he received "Proficient" evaluations during that time (2T-294 to 295). He has no disciplinary record, but testified that he was verbally counseled on one occasion for missing an afternoon duty station (2T-295). The record also reflects that Bassetti was an engaged teacher who maintained contact with the parents of GM and CO in an effort to increase their motivation in class, and with CT's mother to clarify confusion about directions and assignments (2T-315; 2T-319; 2T-320). Bassetti also testified that he volunteers in community programs providing support to at risk children (2T-313).

Incapacity generally connotes a lack of ability. On the facts before me, there is no evidence that Bassetti cannot competently teach. The Board's position that he is incapacitated rests on a concern that Bassetti would make another similar comment to future students, and that there is thus the potential for harm to future students of his. This is purely speculative. Based on the entirety of Bassetti's otherwise unblemished record of conduct, it is at least equally likely that he would not repeat the conduct which has been substantiated here.

I note that the facts in Grossman, which is the sole case cited by the Board in support of its legal position, are distinguishable from the instant matter in one important aspect. Grossman was a teacher who transitioned from male to female and sought to continue teaching in the same district after the transition was completed. The Court determined that Grossman's mere presence in the classroom as a woman posed a continuing danger to students unrelated to her academic proficiency. Grossman, supra at 32. I note that the case was decided in 1974, at a time when issues of gender fluidity were less openly discussed or accepted. I infer that the Court agreed that students would have difficulty being in the presence of a transgender teacher, supporting the Board's position that Grossman was incapacitated from teaching.

The Board's justifications for deeming Bassetti incapable of teaching are more supportive of their proposed penalty-termination-than of a charge of incapacity. The Board's arguments in support of Bassetti's incapacity are essentially circular; Bassetti's comment requires that his employment be terminated, and because he must be fired he cannot teach.

The Board has not met its burden of proving that Bassetti is incapacitated from teaching. Charge Two is dismissed.

Other Just Cause

The Board maintains that Bassetti's use of a racial slur in the presence of students violated the public trust, which requires that the District ensure that students learn in a safe environment, where they are not subjected to racial epithets.

The record reflects that the allegation that Bassetti used a racial slur in the classroom was the subject of one televised news story as well as a newspaper article (1T-145 to 146; Exhibit Bassetti-7). A community activist and former Board member also urged that Bassetti be fired in multiple Facebook posts which were seen by the Superintendent (1T-266 to 273; Exhibit Bassetti 10). In her capacity as the public face of the District, Cobian testified that she was contacted repeatedly by various media outlets about the Bassetti incident (1T-273 to 274).

Wright testified that he could not support Bassetti's return to teaching in the middle school due to community outrage about the incident. Wright also stated that "some threats" had been made against Bassetti, which caused Wright to feel concerned about Bassetti's physical safety if he returned to the building (1T-193 to 194). Cobian testified that Bassetti's comment had not only damaged students and staff, but had created a "bad perception" which permeated "into the entire community." (1T-262). She also expressed concern that Bassetti's presence in the district would be detrimental to him. I note that the perceptions of both Wright and Cobian are based in part on information which has been excluded from the record.

I am persuaded by the evidence before me that Bassett's conduct has become well known to the school community, and the community at large. That information would be of concern to parents and students alike, as well as to the staff and school administrators. I conclude therefore that Bassetti has created a circumstance where public trust and confidence in the Board's ability to provide an educational environment which is free from racial slurs has been impaired. The Board has met its burden of proving that Other Just Cause to discipline Bassetti has been met.

Penalty

The parties have strongly held positions with respect to the appropriate penalty for the substantiated conduct which are reflected in the stipulated record. The Board stipulates that it has always taken the position that termination is the only appropriate penalty, and that the Board's decision to withhold Bassett's employment and adjustment increments was merely procedural (Exhibit J-2, Par.4). The Association disagrees with the Board's position and maintains that even if the Board's tenure charges are proven, the appropriate penalty is a suspension and/or increment withholding.

The Association points out that the Board failed to follow progressive discipline in seeking to terminate Bassetti's employment. The Board does not dispute that it did not utilize progressive discipline with respect to the penalty it seeks to impose for Bassetti's conduct.

Progressive discipline is a foundational principle of public sector discipline in New Jersey. West New York v. Bock, 38 N.J. 500, 522 (1962). Underlying the concept of progressive discipline is the idea that discipline is designed to correct behavior, rather than to punish. The incremental disciplinary steps are designed to permit time for the employee to correct the problematic behavior before increasing the sanction for failing to do so. However, tenure charges can be sustained if a single incident of unbecoming conduct is "sufficiently flagrant." In re Fulcomer, 93 N.J. Super. 404, 421 (App. Div. 1967).

Superintendent Cobain testified that the decision she made to recommend termination of Bassetti's employment rather than to follow progressive discipline was based on her assessment that his conduct was "so pervasive that progressive discipline will not suffice" (1T2-61 to 1T-262). She stated that as she read the students' statements, she "was just completely taken away." (1T-252 to IT-253). Cobian was so concerned with the content of the students' statements that she discussed the situation with the Board president and labor counsel, and received approval from the Board president to suspend Bassetti on the evening of the 27th, prior to the meeting Bassetti had with Wright and Amberths (1T-245; 1T-246 to 248). I credit her testimony that she effectively decided to suspend Bassetti on the evening of the 27th (1T-248). On her way home, Cobian reached out for the Association's president to provide her with notice that it was likely she would be suspending Bassetti on the 28th (1T-249). I infer from Cobian's testimony that her reaction to the student statements she read on the 27th was both immediate and visceral. As she testified, Cobian found Bassetti's use of a racial slur in the presence of students both denigrated and belittled them (1T-252 to 253).

Based upon Cobian's assessment of the seriousness of Bassetti's conduct and its impact upon the students, as well as on the community, I conclude that Bassetti's use of "nigger" in the classroom is an instance of conduct which is sufficiently flagrant to warrant a sanction which is inconsistent with progressive discipline.

The Association also urges that the Board's recommended penalty of termination is grossly disproportionate and unwarranted under both the Fulcomer standards, and when compared with other recent tenure cases which involve the use of a racial slur.

Under the Teacher Effectiveness and Accountability for the Children of New Jersey Act, (TEACHNJ Act)), L. 2012, c. 26 (N.J.S.A. 18A:6-117 to 129), as well as its predecessor, the Tenure Employees Hearing Law (TEHL), L. 1967, c. 271 (N.J.S.A. 18A:6-1- to 18.1), a fact finder in a tenure hearing should consider when determining the appropriate penalty "the nature and gravity of the offenses under all the circumstances involved, any evidence as to provocation, extenuation or aggravation, and ...any harm or injurious effect which the teacher's conduct may have had on the maintenance of discipline and the proper administration of the school system." Fulcomer, 93 N.J. Super. at 422. In addition, Fulcomer also establishes additional criteria, including "the impact of the penalty on [the teacher's]...career" as well as the teacher's record and teaching ability, together with any prior discipline. Id.

With respect to Bassetti, the record establishes that he is a teacher with no prior discipline, good evaluations, and a lengthy career with the Board. The racial epithet he used was in response to disrespectful behavior by two students, JS and CO, and doubtless provoked by their conduct. Although I have found that a single incident of unbecoming conduct occurred, the incident is serious and had a significant impact on the students in his class, as well as on the larger community, including at the very least the families of the students who heard the remark. The termination of his employment by the Board for unbecoming conduct would have a deleterious impact on Bassetti's teaching career.

The Association and the Board have provided decisions by fact finders which involve allegations similar in nature to Bassetti's comment in support of their respective positions. I have reviewed and considered all of them. The Association urges that recent tenure cases involving allegations that a teacher used the word "nigger" or a related term resulted in lesser discipline than termination, or involved more serious repeated conduct than Bassetti's single instance of inappropriate conduct.

Some of the cases cited by the parties are distinguishable based on their facts. There is no suggestion that the use of the racial epithet by Bassetti occurred as part of a relevant discussion of curricular material, or any credible evidence that the students who testified in this mater were motivated by Bassetti's demanding academic standards or strict classroom management. (See In re Tenrue Hearing of Regina Dzwonar, Agency Docket No. 246-10/13 (Feb 20, 2014) (Brent, Arb). The racial epithet used by Bassetti was not directed toward another staff member, but in front of students. (See In re Tenure Hearing of Lauren Cooke, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 74-09, Agency Dkt. No. 357-12/08, 2010 WL 2947135, initial decision (July 22, 2010); 2010 WL 8020415, Comm'r. Decision (Nov. 22, 2010). While racist comments made to peers are objectionable, they do not have the same impact as when made by a teacher to students; teachers are role models for impressionable students, a consideration which is not necessarily present among colleagues.

Other cases involved teachers who had committed multiple acts of inappropriate conduct, some related to racial epithets, but received lesser penalties than termination (See In re Tenure Hearing of Barbara Emri, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 4579-00, Agency Dkt. No. 18-6/00, 2002 WL 31042788, initial decision (Aug. 30, 2002); 2002 WL 32590922, Comm'r. decision (Oct. 21, 2002 discipline final decision (Dec. 5, 2003);)(racially inappropriate comments and multiple acts of inappropriate behavior involving students, colleagues and parents, insubordination, failure to follow progressive discipline); In re Tenure Hearing of Adelphia Poston, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 03876-05, Agency Dkt. No. 78-3/05, WL 2645094, initial decision (Aug. 15, 2006) (use of homophobic slur); In re Geiger,

No. A-1409-13T2, 2015 WL 7261458 (N. J. Super. Ct. App. Div Nov. 18, 2015)(Appellate Court noted past decisions in Emri, Cooke, Poston, supra established lesser sanctions than dismissal for comments the Court deemed to be less pejorative and also noting that the teachers did not address their comments to students who overheard them).

In contrast, other cases where terminations were upheld involved teachers who had made multiple comments which were derogatory or demeaning, and had been the subject of progressive discipline (In re Tenure Hearing of Demetrio Surace, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 04400-12, Agency Dkt. No. 82-3/12, 2013 WL 8170523, initial decision (Sept. 16, 2013), made Facebook comments characterizing her first graders as "future criminals" and maintained that her conduct was not inappropriate (In re O'Brien, No. A-2452-11T4, 2013 WL 132508 (N.J. Super. Ct. App. Div. Jan. 11, 2013).

While the determinations of other finders of fact may be instructive, facts in the record before me are the most relevant and persuasive in reaching a determination not only as to whether the charges alleged have been proven, but also in assessing an appropriate remedy. I am persuaded that in this case the Board's proposed disciplinary sanction of termination is warranted.

In reaching this conclusion I have considered all of the Fulcomer criteria, including Bassetti's lack of any disciplinary record, the fact that the conduct

Synopsis

Petitioner – a tenured mathematics teacher in the respondent Board's school district – contended that his tenure rights were violated when the Board suspended him without pay in August 2019 without the filing of tenure charges and prior to his indictment in November 2019 on charges of stalking and harassing a female student. The Board filed a motion to dismiss in lieu of an answer. Petitioner opposed the motion to dismiss and filed a cross motion for summary decision.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: there are no material facts at issue here, and the matter is ripe for summary decision; pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10, no tenured employee shall be dismissed or reduced in compensation except for inefficiency, incapacity, unbecoming conduct, or other just cause, and then only after a hearing; N.J.S.A. 18A:6-8.3 provides that a tenured employee may be suspended without pay only if the employee was indicted or if tenure charges were certified against him; in this matter, the Board did not file tenure charges and petitioner was not indicted until November 6, 2019; and the Board's argument that the discipline imposed on petitioner prior to November 6, 2019 was "minor discipline" under the New Jersey Employer-Employee Relations Act, N.J.S.A. 34:13A-1 to -43, is without merit. The ALJ concluded that petitioner's suspension without pay prior to November 6, 2019 was improper. Accordingly, the Board's motion to dismiss was denied; petitioner's motion for summary decision was granted; and the Board was ordered to reimburse petitioner for all compensation withheld between August 26, 2019 and November 6, 2019.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ's findings and conclusion, and adopted the Initial Decision as the final decision is this matter. The Board was directed to reimburse petitioner for compensation withheld between August 26, 2019 and the date of petitioner's indictment on November 6, 2019.

This synopsis is not part of the Commissioner's decision. It has been prepared for the convenience of the reader. It has been neither reviewed nor approved by the Commissioner.

New Jersey Commissioner of Education

Decision

Tajinder Tung,

Petitioner,

v.

Board of Education of the Township of Mount Olive, Morris County,

Respondent.

In August 2019, petitioner, a mathematics teacher, was charged with the fourth-degree crime of stalking a female student and the petty disorderly persons offense of harassing her. On August 26, 2019, the Board suspended petitioner without pay. Thereafter, on November 6, 2019, petitioner was indicted on charges of fourth-degree stalking and two counts of second-degree official misconduct. The Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) found that under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-8.3, a tenured employee may be suspended without pay only if the employee was indicted or if tenure charges were certified against him. The Board did not file tenure charges and petitioner was not indicted until November 6, 2019; accordingly, the ALJ found that the suspension without pay prior to that date was improper. The ALJ also explained that while N.J.S.A. 34:13A-24 permits boards to impose minor discipline – including fines and suspensions without pay – if collectively bargained, petitioner's 72-day suspension cannot be considered minor discipline.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ's conclusion that, in the absence of tenure charges or an indictment, the Board was not permitted to suspend petitioner without pay. Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter for the reasons expressed therein. The Board is directed to reimburse petitioner for compensation withheld between August 26, 2019 and his indictment on November 6, 2019.

BEFORE BARRY E. MOSCOWITZ, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

On August 26, 2019, respondent, Mount Olive School District Board of Education, suspended petitioner, Tajinder Tung, a tenured teacher, without pay because Tung had been arrested. Did the Board violate his tenure rights when no indictment had been issued, no tenure charges had been filed, and no authorization existed under the collective bargaining agreement? Yes. Caselaw holds that a school board may not suspend a tenured teacher without pay unless the teacher is indicted, subject to tenure charges, or a collective bargaining agreement authorizes it.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY AND FINDINGS OF FACT

Tung has been continuously employed by the Mount Olive School District Board of Education as a mathematics teacher for approximately fourteen years and holds tenure as the term is defined by State law.

On or about August 20, 2019, Tung was arrested for allegedly stalking and harassing a female student. He was charged with violating N.J.S.A. 2C:12-10(b), a fourth-degree crime, and N.J.S.A. 2C:33-4(c), a petty disorderly persons offense. As a result, on August 26, 2019, the Board suspended Tung without pay.

No tenure charges had been served, and no hearing had been held.

On September 9, 2019, Tung requested reinstatement to the payroll and reimbursement for all wages withheld from him since the unpaid suspension.

On September 16, 2019, the Board denied the request.

On November 6, 2019, the Morris County Prosecutor's Office returned an indictment against Tung, State of New Jersey v. Tajinder Tung, Indictment No. 19-10-00882, charging him with two counts of official misconduct and one count of stalking.

Tung pled "not guilty" to all charges and maintains his innocence.

On November 26, 2019, Tung filed this appeal with the Commissioner of Education requesting reimbursement for "all compensation lost" from August 26, 2019, the date of his suspension), to November 6, 2019 (the date of his indictment).

On January 17, 2020, the Board filed a motion to dismiss this case instead of an answer under N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.10, arguing that the Board's action was authorized by the collective bargaining agreement, and that the Public Employment Relations Commission (not the Commissioner of Education) has jurisdiction over this case.

On January 29, 2020, the Department of Education, Office of Controversies and Disputes, transmitted this case to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), as a contested case under the Administrative Procedure Act, N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15, and the act establishing the OAL, N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13, for a hearing under the Uniform Administrative Procedure Rules, N.J.A.C. 1:1-1.1 to -21.6.

On February 20, 2020, Tung opposed the motion to dismiss and cross-moved for summary decision, arguing that no genuine issue of material fact exists and that he is entitled to prevail as a matter of law because the Board violated his tenure rights under the school laws, over which the Commissioner has jurisdiction, by taking such action before an indictment had been issued or tenure charges had been served, and because the collective bargaining agreement does not authorize the Board to suspend him without pay in the absence of an indictment or tenure charges.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

I.

Before transmittal of a case to the OAL, the Commissioner of Education, in his or her discretion, or upon motion to dismiss instead of an answer, may dismiss a petition because the petitioner has advanced no cause of action, even if the factual allegations are accepted as true, or because the Commissioner lacks jurisdiction, or for failure to prosecute or other good reason. N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.10.

Similarly, after transmittal of a case to the OAL, a party may move for summary decision upon all or any of the substantive issues. N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(a). Any such motion shall be served with briefs and with or without supporting affidavits. N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b). Ultimately, summary decision may be granted if the papers and discovery which have been filed, together with any affidavits, show that no genuine issue of material fact exists and the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law. Ibid.

Accordingly, for an adverse party to prevail, that party must set forth specific facts in a responding affidavit showing that genuine issues of material fact exist which can only be determined in an evidentiary proceeding. Ibid.

In this case, I CONCLUDE that no genuine issue of material fact exists, and that petitioner is entitled to prevail as a matter of law, for the reasons set forth below.

II.

"[A] tenured teacher . . . is protected by the tenure provisions in the school laws, N.J.S.A. 18A:28-1 to -18 (Tenure laws), the purpose of which is to aid in the establishment of a competent and efficient school system by affording teaching staff members 'a measure of security in the ranks they hold after years of service.'" Carpenito v. Rumson Bd. of Educ., 322 N.J. Super. 522, 528–29 (App. Div. 1999) (citing Viemeister v. Prospect Park, Passaic County, Bd. of Educ., 5 N.J. Super. 215, 218 (App. Div. 1949)).

Toward this end, no tenured employee shall be dismissed or reduced in compensation except for inefficiency, incapacity, unbecoming conduct, or other just cause, and then only after a hearing. See N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5; see also N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10.

Indeed, the statutory provision N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10, "Dismissal and reduction in compensation of persons under tenure in public school system," is explicit:

> No person shall be dismissed or reduced in compensation,
>
> > (a) if he is or shall be under tenure of office, position or employment during good behavior and efficiency in the public school system of the state, or
> > (b) if he is or shall be under tenure of office, position or employment during good behavior and efficiency as a supervisor, teacher or in any other teaching capacity in the Marie H. Katzenbach school for the deaf, or in > any other educational institution conducted under the supervision of the commissioner;

> except for inefficiency, incapacity, unbecoming conduct, or other just cause, and then only after a hearing held pursuant to this subarticle, by the commissioner, or a person appointed by him to act in his behalf, after a written charge or charges, of the cause or causes of complaint, shall have been preferred against such person, signed by the person or persons making the same, who may or may not be a member or members of a board of education, and filed and proceeded upon as in this subarticle provided.
>
> Nothing in this section shall prevent the reduction of the number of any such persons holding such offices, positions or employments under the conditions and with the effect provided by law.

The statutory provision N.J.S.A. 18A:6-8.3, "Suspended employee or officer of board of education; compensation; exceptions," is also explicit. That provision provides that a teacher "who is suspended from his employment, office or position, other than by reason of indictment, pending any investigation, hearing or trial or any appeal therefrom, shall receive his full pay or salary during such period of suspension, except that in the event of [tenure] charges against such employee or officer brought before the board of education or the Commissioner of Education pursuant to law, such suspension may be with or without pay or salary[.]" Emphasis added.

For example, in Slater v. Board of Education of Ramapo-Indian Hills, 237 N.J. Super. 424, 426 (App. Div. 1989), the Appellate Division, citing N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14 and N.J.S.A. 18A:6-8.3, wrote, "a tenured employee may be suspended without pay only if indicted or if tenure charges have been preferred and certified to the Commissioner of Education," but "[i]n all other circumstances, a suspension must be with pay."

As a result, the Appellate Division held that "[the] school board passe[d] a resolution validly suspending a tenured employee upon arrest, but the accompanying suspension of salary [was] invalid because defendant [had] not been indicted or had tenure charges certified[.]" Slater, 237 N.J. Super. at 427–28.

In this case, no tenure charges had been certified and Tung was not indicted until November 6, 2019; therefore, I CONCLUDE that Tung should not have been suspended without pay before that date.

III.

To overcome this statutory prohibition, the Board argues that the Commissioner does not have the authority to address this issue because the discipline the Board imposed before November 6, 2019, was "minor discipline" under the New Jersey Employer-Employee Relations Act, N.J.S.A. 34:13A-1 to -43.

Under the Act, school boards may impose "minor discipline," including fines and suspensions without pay, if collectively bargained:

> a. Notwithstanding any other law to the contrary, and if negotiated with the majority representative of the employees in the appropriate collective bargaining unit, an employer shall have the authority to impose minor discipline on employees. Nothing contained herein shall limit the authority of the employer to impose, in the absence of a negotiated agreement regarding minor discipline, any disciplinary sanction which is authorized and not prohibited by law.
> b. The scope of such negotiations shall include a schedule setting forth the acts and omissions for which minor discipline may be imposed, and also the penalty to be imposed for any act or omission warranting imposition of minor discipline.
>
> c. Fines and suspensions for minor discipline shall not constitute a reduction in compensation pursuant to the provisions of N.J.S. 18A:6-10.

While the Act does define "minor discipline" as "various forms of fines and suspensions," see N.J.S.A. 34:13A-22, it specifically excludes tenure charges, increment withholdings, letters of reprimand, and suspensions with pay under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-8.3

and N.J.S.A. 18A:25-6, which really means the suspension without pay in this case because N.J.S.A. 18A:6-8.3, as discussed above, requires that suspensions be with pay before an indictment, unless a collective bargaining agreement permits it without pay.

In this case, the collective bargaining agreement does not permit it:

> B: The Board shall have the right to take disciplinary action for good and just cause. Disciplinary action may include but is not limited to:
> 1. verbal
> 2. reprimand
> 3. suspension
> 4. fine
> 5. demotion
> 6. termination
> 7. withholding of increment where taken for disciplinary reasons rather than educational proficiency reasons.
> [Collective Negotiating Agreement, Art. 19(B).]

Nonetheless, the Board relies on two administrative cases, Tave v. Board of Education of the Manalapan-Englishtown Regional School District, Agency Dkt. No. 112-4/00, Comm'r (July 13, 2000), aff'd, State Board No. 44-00 (November 1, 2000), https://www.nj.gov/education/legal/, and Ferreiro v. Board of Education of Elizabeth, EDU 3865-19, Initial Decision (June 11, 2019), adopted, Comm'r (July 22, 2019), http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/, to argue that the Commissioner does not have the authority to determine whether the discipline in this case is major or minor discipline in the first instance. Those two cases, however, are distinguishable. In short, the Board cannot mischaracterize major discipline as minor discipline to circumvent the school laws.

More pointedly, in Tave, the suspension without pay was only for eleven days, the collective bargaining agreement authorized the school board to suspend a tenured teacher without pay for such minor discipline, and as a result, the Commissioner dismissed the petition without prejudice:

> Upon a thorough review of this matter, I note that N.J.S.A. 34:13A-24 carves out a clear and unambiguous exception to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10, authorizing a board to suspend teaching staff members without pay for minor discipline if negotiated with the majority representative of the employees in the appropriate bargaining unit. Since that appears to be the case in this instance, there is no basis on which I may order relief on the present appeal in the absence of a determination by a court or agency of appropriate jurisdiction [the Public Employment Relations Commission] that the Board's action against petitioner did not constitute "minor discipline" within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 34:13A-24.
> [Tave, Agency Dkt. No. 112-4/00, Comm'r (July 13, 2000), https://www.nj.gov/education/legal/.]

In this case, Tung was suspended for seventy-two days, which is tantamount to a fine of $17,000. Although the collective bargaining agreement permits fines or suspensions for minor discipline, it cannot be said that a suspension for seventy-two days without pay, or a fine of $17,000, constitutes minor discipline. Thus, Tave does not apply.

In Ferreiro, a school board fined the tenured teacher $1,033.83 for tardiness. The collective bargaining agreement, however, permitted such discipline. As such, the Commissioner held that the discipline was not a violation of tenure.

More important, the Commissioner reasoned that this kind of discipline is the very kind of discipline N.J.S.A. 34:13A-24 contemplates:

> [T]he docking of the petitioner's pay is the type of minor discipline contemplated by N.J.S.A. 34:13A-24, and in this circumstance, the minor discipline was negotiated and agreed upon by the Board and the Association, which represents the majority of teaching staff members in the district. As such, the docking of the petitioner's pay for excessive tardiness is not a violation of her tenure rights under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10.
> [Ferreiro, EDU 3865-19, Comm'r (July 22, 2019), http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/.]

Again, this case is different in both degree and kind. Tung was indicted for having allegedly committed a crime, which is more severe than merely coming to school late, and was effectively fined $17,000, which is more severe than merely being fined $1,033.83. Thus, Ferreiro does not apply.

Given this discussion, I CONCLUDE that the Commissioner is authorized to determine whether Tung should have been suspended without pay before he was indicted.

CONCLUSION

Based upon my findings of fact and conclusions of law, I ORDER that the Board's motion to dismiss is DENIED, that Tung's motion for summary decision is GRANTED, and that Tung be reimbursed for all the compensation the Board withheld from August 26, 2019, to November 6, 2019.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified, or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify, or reject this decision within forty-five days, and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision under N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

New Jersey Commissioner of Education

Decision

Antoine Gayles,

Petitioner,

v.

Board of Education of the Township of Hillside, Union County,

Respondent.

Synopsis

Petitioner began working as Superintendent of Schools in July 2016 under a four-year contract expiring in June 2020. Following an election in 2018, which significantly altered the composition of the Board of Education, the "lame duck" board rescinded petitioner's original contract and approved a successor contract that increased petitioner's salary and expired in June 2023. When the newly-elected Board took office in January 2019, petitioner was suspended with pay pending the resolution of questions regarding the validity of the successor contract. Petitioner sought reinstatement under the terms of the successor contract, while the Board sought to have the successor contract declared void.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: petitioner still had 18 months left in his term as Superintendent when the "lame duck" board voted on the successor contract; there was no compelling reason to modify the original contract other than what amounted to unilateral action by the outgoing board president; the "lame duck" board failed to comply with the public notice and comment requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:11-11 and N.J.A.C. 6A23A-3.1; the Board's suspension of petitioner was invalid; the petitioner's suspension was, in essence, a termination; and the Board failed to comply with any of the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:17-20 and N.J.A.C. 6A23A-3.2. The ALJ ordered that petitioner be reinstated to his position as superintendent from the date of the suspension through the expiration of the original contract on June 30, 2020, together with all salary, benefits, and seniority credit for that period of time.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ that both the successor contract and the rescission of the original contract are void. In so deciding, the Commissioner found, inter alia, that the rescission of an existing contract well in advance of its expiration in order to increase the salary and extend the term is exactly the type of situation contemplated in N.J.S.A. 18A:11-11. Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter. Petitioner is entitled to his salary and benefits under the terms of the original contract, through its expiration on June 30, 2020.

Final Decision

Antoine Gayles,

Petitioner,

v.

Board of Education of the Township of Hillside, Union County,

Respondent.

Board of Education of the Township of Hillside, Union County,

Petitioner,

v.

Antoine Gayles,

Respondent.

The record of this matter, the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), the exceptions filed by Antoine Gayles (Gayles) pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4, and the reply thereto by the Hillside Board of Education (Board) have been reviewed.

This matter concerns the validity of two contracts between Gayles and the Board. Gayles began working as the superintendent in Hillside on July 1, 2016, under a four-year contract expiring June 30, 2020 (original contract). In late 2018, following an election that significantly changed the membership of the district's board of education, the "lame duck" board rescinded the original contract and approved a new contract (successor contract) that increased Gayles' salary and expired in June 2023. In January 2019, the newly-elected board of education (Board) suspended Gayles until questions regarding the validity of the successor contract were resolved. The Board stipulated that the suspension was not based on performance, impropriety, or any allegations of wrongdoing.

The ALJ concluded that the successor contract was void and, consequently, the rescission of the original contract – done solely to allow for the parties to enter into the successor contract – was also void. The ALJ reasoned that Gayles still had 18 months left in his term at the time the "lame duck" board voted on the successor contract, and there was no compelling reason to modify it other than what amounted to unilateral action by the outgoing board president. Moreover, the "lame duck" board failed to comply with the public notice and comment requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:11-11 and N.J.A.C. 6A:23A-3.1. The ALJ also concluded that the Board's suspension of Gayles was invalid. The resolution regarding the suspension was not part of the agenda for the meeting in which it occurred, again circumventing the public notice and comment requirements, and Gayles did not receive a Rice notice sufficiently in advance of the meeting. The ALJ found that the suspension was, in essence, a termination, and that the Board failed to comply with any of the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:17-20 and N.J.A.C. 6A:23A-3.2. The ALJ ordered that Gayles be reinstated to his position as superintendent from the date of the suspension through the expiration of the original contract on June 30, 2020, together with all salary, benefits, and seniority credit for that time.

In his exceptions, Gayles argues that the successor contract was valid and binding because it was reviewed by the "lame duck" board's attorney, approved by the Executive County Superintendent (ECS), and voted on by the "lame duck" board during a meeting in which it was placed on the agenda and discussed during the public comment period. Gayles notes that the ECS testified that he was aware that the successor contract was entered into by the "lame duck" board and contends that if the ECS had required a resolution of this issue, he could have requested more information. According to Gayles, N.J.S.A. 18A:11-11 gives the "lame duck" board the authority to perform all acts and do all things necessary for the lawful and proper conduct of the schools, including modifying the terms of his contract by entering into the successor contract. Gayles argues that the Board's reliance on Wall Twp. Educ. Ass'n v. Bd. of Educ. of Wall Township, 2019 N.J. Super. Unpub. LEXIS 575 (App. Div. Mar. 14, 2019) is misplaced because the decision postdates the acts at issue in this case and does not specifically state that its requirements are retroactive.

In reply, the Board argues that the ALJ appropriately found that the "lame duck" board's decision to bind the Board to the successor contract violated well-established principles regarding board authority. Moreover, the Board argues that the record demonstrates that the outgoing president acted unilaterally and without the knowledge of the full "lame duck" board. The Board notes that the ECS was not aware of the procedural shortcomings related to the successor contract and that his approval cannot, therefore, render the successor contract enforceable. The Board also argues that the Wall Twp. decision does not create new requirements, but rather confirmed existing requirements, and that the holding in that matter should be applied to this case.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that both the successor contract and the rescission of the original contract are void. Initially, the Commissioner notes that the Board did not take exception to the ALJ's conclusion that the rescission of the original contract was void, and the Commissioner finds no reason to disturb that conclusion. Accordingly, Gayles is entitled to his salary and benefits under the terms of the original contract, through its expiration on June 30, 2020.

As to the successor contract, the Commissioner does not find Gayles' exceptions, which largely reiterate arguments made before the ALJ, to be persuasive. First, the Commissioner agrees with the ALJ that extending Gayles' contract term by two years and increasing his salary exceeds the authority of the "lame duck" board. The position of superintendent was not vacant at the time the "lame duck" board took action, and it would not be vacant for more than 18 months. The "lame duck" board "had no statutory authority to bind its successor Board by issuing individual contracts to [its continuing employees]." Nowak v. Bd. of Educ. of the Borough of Manville, Somerset Cty., 1976 S.L.D. 43. See also Gonzalez v. Bd. of Educ. of Elizabeth School Dist., Union Cty., 325 N.J. Super. 244 (App. Div. 1999) (concluding that "[s]uch an appointment usurps the will and power of a future board to fill a vacancy based on the future board's consideration of prevailing policy, personnel and general welfare concerns.")

Furthermore, the "lame duck" board failed to provide the required public notice prior to voting on the successor contract. "The Legislature's clear mandate in [N.J.S.A. 18A:11-11] was the dual purpose of public notice and a public hearing when a board of education renegotiates, extends, amends, or alters an existing contract with its superintendent." Wall Twp. Educ. Ass'n v. Bd. Of Educ. of Wall Township, supra, at 12. The rescission of an existing contract well in advance of its expiration in order to increase the salary and extend the term is "exactly" the type of situation contemplated by the statute that requires public notice. Ibid. The Appellate Division made clear in the Wall Twp. decision that it was an interpretation of the statute as written – the same version of the statute that was in effect at the time of the events at issue in this case. Therefore, that decision represents a confirmation of existing statutory requirements, rather than a new requirement being applied retroactively, as Gayles argues, and it is appropriate to apply the Wall Twp. holding here. The "lame duck" board's failure to comply with the notice requirements renders the successor contract void.

Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter. Petitioner shall be reinstated to his position as superintendent from the date of the suspension through the expiration of the original contract on June 30, 2020, together with all salary and benefits owed for that time.

IT IS SO ORDERED.[1]

BEFORE ANDREW M. BARON, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner, Antoine Gayles, currently suspended/placed on leave from his position as superintendent of schools in Hillside, New Jersey, with pay, brings an action before this tribunal as a result of a unilateral action by respondent Hillside Board of Education suspending him from his position effective January 24, 2019. Also pending is an application for declaratory relief brought by the Board, seeking to have the new contract which was approved by the "lame duck" Board on November 29, 2018, declared void ab initio, with no further obligation to Dr. Gayles. The dispute between these parties was the subject of two prior emergent applications set forth below in the procedural history. With decisions rendered on both emergent applications, what is left to determine is the Board's position that with the old contract rescinded, Dr. Gayles' new contract is void ab initio. Dr. Gayles seeks reinstatement as superintendent under the terms of the new contract, which would allow him to serve through June 2023.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner filed a second motion for emergent relief directly with the undersigned due to its connection to a pending related case, seeking reinstatement of salary and benefits. The matter had been the subject of a prior application for emergent relief before the Hon. Thomas Betancourt on March 6, 2019. Based on certain representations that were made on the record at the time by the Board counsel, and the respective position of the Board itself, Judge Betancourt denied the application by petitioner on the basis that, among other things, the Board was still paying petitioner and continuing to provide benefits, and his determination that he did not believe petitioner could succeed on the merits and meet the other criteria required for this type of application.

Although Judge Betancourt ruled at the time that the rest of petitioner's case was moot, the Commissioner disagreed and remanded the matter for additional proceedings. Subsequently, Judge Betancourt recused himself from handling the rest of the case, as well as the related declaratory action filed by the Board.

On May 9, 2019, the Board changed its position on the continued payments to petitioner based in part on the recently decided case of Wall Township Education Association v. Wall Township Board of Education, No. A-4885-17 (App. Div. March 14, 2019), http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/courts/. The decision to do so, while the case on the merits was still pending before the Office of Administrative Law, was made with only three days' notice to petitioner, with the notice omitting what action was going to be taken against Dr. Gayles.

Having learned that the salary and benefits would now be terminated, petitioner brought a second emergent application on May 23, 2019, to compel the Board to return him to the status quo and continue the payments, at least until both cases on the merits could be heard.

Each party filed briefs, and oral argument was held on June 17, 2019 on the second emergent application. The current superintendent, Dr. Sheard, was notified of her right to file to intervene in this proceeding and be heard but declined to do so.

An Order was issued compelling the District to continue Dr. Gayles' salary and benefits pending the outcome of the full proceeding. The plenary hearing went forward on July 8, 9, and 31, August 12, and October 8, 2019. Briefs were submitted and oral argument was held on December 19, 2019. An extension was granted for the issuance of the Initial Decision, and, shortly thereafter, State offices were closed due to Covid-19. The Governor subsequently issued an Executive Order allowing for additional time for the filing of decisions in pending matters.

TESTIMONY AND DISCUSSION

The Hillside Public School District is located in Union County. The first witness who testified was Darryl Palmieri, the acting Union County superintendent of schools. Mr. Palmieri, a former teacher, had only held the position for a few months when he was presented with a new contract to review between Dr. Gayles and the Hillside Board of Education.

Mr. Palmieri explained that his role is to serve as an extension of the New Jersey Department of Education, essentially to oversee all of the school districts in Union County. His office conducts evaluations of districts every three years, to review and approve administrator contracts and transportation contracts, and do budget reviews.

By law, county superintendents are required to review all superintendent contracts. In late October 2018, during his mid-year budget review of the district, Mr. Palmieri learned that there were discussions concerning changes to Dr. Gayles' contract. In early November 2018, the outcome of the local school Board election drastically changed the makeup of the majority of the Board which would take office on January 3, 2019, thus rendering the current Board into "lame duck" status. The Board president at the time, Ms. Thompson-Epps, was defeated, although she would later be appointed by the County superintendent to serve a one-year vacancy on the incoming Board.

On November 21, 2019, Mr. Palmieri received correspondence from the Board counsel at the time, Ms. Gonzalez, concerning a proposed new contract for Dr. Gayles, which included increased salary and benefits, and instead of his term expiring in eighteen months, under his existing contract, the proposed contract would expire in June 2023. He did not know at the time that the full Board was unaware that this proposed contract had been sent to him for review, nor did it go through the usual channels of being considered by the Board's labor or negotiations committees. According to Mr. Palmieri, he received it from the assistant business administrator, Annette Giordano.

Although Mr. Palmieri did not question the substance or term of the new contract, or how a decision was made to offer it, there were some salary credits and other miscellaneous items that needed revisions. Not having dealt with this situation before, Mr. Palmieri consulted with his predecessor, Roger Jenks, who had assumed a position in another part of the state. It was recommended to Mr. Palmieri that he tell the district that in order to implement a new contract, the old one would have to be rescinded first. He said normally a contract termination requires notice and a hearing.

The district inquired if the position had to be posted, and he responded that if the initial contract were rescinded, there was no requirement to post the job. A public hearing on a new contract was required, and the public should have the ability, according to Mr. Palmieri, to review it and comment on it before it was voted upon. When asked whether the original contract was enforceable after it was rescinded, he responded no, but he also viewed the rescission as a predicate to the passing of a successor contract, and that you couldn't have one without the other.

Mr. Palmieri did not question the timing of the new contract, and/or the implications for the incoming Board. He was a steady, credible witness.

The next witness called by the district was assistant business administrator Annette Giordano. Mrs. Giordano has served in this position for seventeen years. She confirmed that she was asked to convey the new contract to Mr. Palmieri by Dr. Gayles and was involved in a meeting with him, as was the Board's interim administrator and Board secretary, Dr. David Eichenholz. She did not recall any discussion about the propriety of entering into such a contract and its potential impact on the incoming Board.

Angela Menza was the next witness who appeared. Mrs. Menza had served on the Board for fourteen years. She explained her understanding of Board policy as it relates to negotiations and new contracts. As a member of the prior and new Board of Education, she indicated that the normal process would be to have such a document reviewed by the negotiations committee. In fact, she knew nothing about a new contract until she received it three days before the meeting to be held on November 29, 2018. Prior to the vote, there were no questions she recalled from the public, but the minutes of the meeting seem to suggest that there were about fifteen comments, some favorable, some unfavorable.

Mrs. Menza objected to the contract, as, in her view, it would be a burden on the new Board. She further stated that at no time did the old Board authorize the submission of the new contract to Mr. Palmieri.

Mrs. Menza, who continued to serve on the Board, then went on to discuss the decision to suspend Dr. Gayles in order to determine the validity of the new contract. She confirmed that the resolution to suspend was not on the agenda for the meeting on January 24, and for some reason it came as a "walk-on" resolution, with little discussion.

She confirmed there was no discussion by the former Board as to whether to offer a new contract and send it for review to the County superintendent. The only discussion she recalled was during the executive session prior to the vote on November 29.

When a question was asked by a fellow Board member of the former president, Ms. Thompson-Epps, for the reasons why Dr Gayles was being offered a new contract, she responded "why not?" At least one member of the public questioned why the "lame duck" Board was taking such an action. Two other members of the public, Althea Mitchell and Arthur Kobitz, asked the same question. When asked if one Board member can instruct the superintendent to take action, Mrs. Menza indicated that the president can make such a request if the rest of the Board knows about it, and if it's discussed either in committee or with the Board as a whole.

Mrs. Menza also stated that prior to the vote, she warned the Board, which would be leaving office in a month, that they couldn't do a new contract in this manner. Towards the end of her testimony, Mrs. Menza indicated that she voted no because she believed it was an illegal contract. She also emphasized that at no time did the Board authorize sending the new contract to Mr. Palmieri, and she did not believe Board policy was properly followed.

Continuing her service with the swearing in of the new Board she confirmed that Dr. Gayles had no prior notice of the pending vote to suspend, and, again, as far as she knew, none of the Board committees were asked to review the action prior to the vote.

At the end of her testimony, the district put a stipulation on the record that the suspension was not performance or discipline related, nor were there any allegations of impropriety on the part of Dr. Gayles. Although she voted for the resolution to suspend, which was consistent with her vote on the former Board against the contract, she did not vote to approve the appointment of an acting superintendent.

The next witness was Board member Joel Chapman. Mr. Chapman said that at the time of the events surrounding the new contract, he had been a Board member for about a year and a half. More importantly, Mr. Chapman had been the chair of the Board's labor committee in November 2018.

Mr. Chapman first learned about the new contract three days before the November 29 meeting in an email from staff member Marlena Batts. When he reviewed the email, he was surprised to learn that the subject was not about Dr. Gayles' existing contract, but about a new contract. As chair of the labor committee, he indicated that the usual protocol was to have something of this nature be reviewed first. Neither Dr. Gayles nor any other members of the Board discussed this item with Mr. Chapman prior to its introduction on November 29. Even the draft agenda did not include this item, according to Mr. Chapman.

Other Board members he reached out to prior to the meeting had no knowledge of the new contract, so the next day, November 27, he sent an email to Mr. Palmieri to inquire further. In response, Mr. Palmieri simply told Mr. Chapman that the concerns he expressed are up to Board counsel. In a further attempt to find out what was going on, Mr. Chapman wrote to Ms. Betts and asked "how could this be going on with a lame duck Board?"

Mr. Chapman further indicated that he was never asked as a member of the Board for permission to send the contract for review to Mr. Palmieri, and that he learned that the new contract process was initiated by Board president Thompson-Epps.

The method of enacting the new contract, as directed by Mr. Palmieri in conjunction with the former Board counsel, was to rescind the existing contract, and then vote on a new contract. This presumes that the entire Board knew about it and authorized it.

Mr. Chapman also continued his service on the Board into the next year. He confirmed that the resolution to suspend Dr. Gayles was not listed on the agenda for the first full public meeting on January 24. A motion to move the public portion of the meeting to earlier in the evening was approved. As a result, there would be only one part of the agenda for the public to speak, even if other resolutions, such as the motion to suspend Dr. Gayles, would be voted on later in the meeting.

Mr. Chapman further expressed that he voted for the suspension of Dr. Gayles due to a lack of trust, even though the Board was seeking a decision concerning the validity of the contract.

It was again noted during Mr. Chapman's testimony that the Board stipulated that the suspension of Dr. Gayles was not related to performance, impropriety, and there were no allegations of wrongdoing. He indicated that he was satisfied with the decision to suspend, since Dr. Gayles was being asked to "step away" with full pay until the matter was resolved.

When asked why the motion to suspend Dr. Gayles was not reflected on the agenda for January 24, he had no explanation. He also confirmed that prior to the vote to suspend, the meeting was not re-opened to the public for comments on what was being done.

Prior to the meeting, there was also no communication about who would become the acting superintendent, though eventually the Board approved the appointment of the director of curriculum, Debra Sheard, to serve in this capacity. I FIND the testimony of Mr. Chapman to be credible.

Juan Allende, who took over as Board president in January 2019, and who also served on both Boards, also testified. He too expressed surprise upon learning shortly before the November 29 meeting about the new contract. He confirmed that neither he, nor Mrs. Menza, nor Mr. Chapman knew about it, and were not consulted on the submission to Mr. Palmieri.

Upon going into executive session prior to the vote, Board president Thompson-Epps confirmed only she had spoken about it with two other members. When questioned about the new contract, Ms. Thompson-Epps simply stated, "well, why not?"

As the new Board president, Mr. Allende indicated that the Board has an ethical responsibility to work as a whole, and that one person, in this case, Ms. Thompson-Epps, can't speak on behalf of the Board without consensus. He said the Board president does not have the unilateral right to contact the County superintendent about this or any other type of significant matter.

Mr. Allende then confirmed the "walk-on" nature of the resolution to send the Rice notice to Dr. Gayles after the new Board was sworn in. He also confirmed that neither he as the new president nor any other new Board members spoke with Dr. Gayles about their concerns regarding the new contract prior to the adoption of the resolution to suspend him with pay to investigate the validity of the contract. That too was done as a non-agenda "walk-on" resolution, which was not really explained. He too confirmed that Dr. Gayles was not removed for performance reasons. The purpose of the Rice notice, which is required under law, was to inform Dr. Gayles that his contract would be discussed at the next public Board meeting. Despite the law that requires a consensus to send a Rice notice to an employee there was testimony that the minutes of the reorganization meeting are not clear as to whether the Board as a whole discussed it first in executive session, or even what prompted the sending of such a notice. Even more unclear is why, having voted to send the notice to Dr. Gayles on January 3, 2019, the Board took almost three weeks to send the notice out, and it was not received via email until January 22, 2019. Certainly, the possibility exists that had it gone out earlier, the parties could have at least started meaningful communication about why the new Board had concerns about the new contract. For reasons unknown, the Rice notice itself was not turned over in the discovery process before the hearing commenced, although Dr. Gayles did acknowledge that he eventually received it.

Mr. Allende stated that in his new capacity as Board president, he believed there was consensus, and the notice preparation was done in conjunction with Mr. Roth, who had just been appointed as new counsel to the Board. He was later replaced, although he remained as counsel of record to litigate this case.

Mr. Allende confirmed that after the reorganization meeting, Dr. Gayles asked him what was going on. His response, which seems somewhat incredible, was that he didn't know.

Mr. Allende's testimony then turned to the events surrounding the suspension of Dr. Gayles at the first full public meeting on January 24, 2019. He confirmed that prior to the meeting, Dr. Gayles was not informed by him as Board president that the Board was considering the possibility of a suspension. (Dr. Gayles, in his testimony, said that Mr. Allende told him it was only a rumor.) Again here, the credibility of the testimony of Mr. Allende, who was the presiding officer of the Board, is somewhat suspect.

Ultimately, the motion to suspend, which was not on the agenda for the January 24 meeting, came before the Board as a "walk-on" resolution. Mr. Allende confirmed that the possibility of suspension was not brought before the Board's labor, personnel, or negotiations committees between January 3 and January 24, and also unexplained is why since a Rice notice had been authorized, a resolution was not prepared in advance for review by other Board members and the public prior to the meeting.

Mr. Allende confirmed that midway through the executive session on January 24, Dr. Gayles, who did not even receive the formal Rice notice three days in advance of the meeting, was asked to leave the executive session. Thus, even if he wanted to exercise his rights under Rice to address the Board in public or private, he was apparently denied the opportunity to do so. At best, the transparency of how the Board went about this process of suspending Dr. Gayles is questionable.

In addition to the prior stipulation that the suspension was unrelated to performance or impropriety by Dr. Gayles, the Board also stipulated during Mr. Allende's testimony that there was no discussion about Dr. Sheard's ability or willingness to serve in the position on an interim basis. When asked if the Board could have determined the validity of Dr. Gayles' contract while he was still serving in the position, he simply said he did not know. Mr. Allende also confirmed that since the Board had moved up the public portion of the meeting, and the resolution to suspend was not on the agenda, the public would not have known about the suspension, nor would it have been possible to comment or ask questions of the Board. Mr. Allende testified that he did not ask for a resolution to re-open the public portion of the meeting before the vote to suspend Dr. Gayles.

Former Board president Hawaiian Thompson-Epps was the next witness who testified. Prior to her taking the stand, there was some back-and-forth colloquy about whether she could testify due to cross ethics complaints between herself and Mr. Allende. After consulting with personal counsel, who accompanied her to the hearing, her testimony went forward.

Ms. Thompson-Epps indicated that she had been elected to an initial three-year term, starting January 2015. In 2018 she became the Board president, which was the year in which the contract that is the subject of the within case was enacted. Although she was defeated in the November 2018 election, she was appointed in January 2019 by the County superintendent to serve a one-year vacancy on the new Board.

During her testimony, she acknowledged that Board presidents cannot act unilaterally, and that in order for a Board to take action, a majority is needed. Usually, according to Ms. Thompson-Epps, matters are discussed in committee before they get to the full Board. However, as Board president, she said she has the right to set the agenda, and she was responsible for Dr. Gayles' evaluations.

Ms. Thompson-Epps said that her motivation, with a year and a half left on Dr. Gayles' contract, was she wanted to lock him in for an extended period, as she felt that under his leadership the district was moving forward. While the testimony of Ms. Thompson-Epps was for the most part credible, just as there were some aspects of Mr. Allende's testimony that were not credible, the same applies to her testimony about the reasons and motivations for moving a matter of such magnitude, specifically, a longer contract on an expedited basis. It was never admitted or stated during the testimony, but it seems clear that at least part of her motivation was that she knew that the composition and majority of the Board was about to change in early January. At the time Ms. Thompson-Epps moved the new contract, she also knew she was leaving the Board, having been defeated in the recent election.

In fact, other than Board counsel, the only other person Ms. Thompson-Epps consulted with was her liaison with the New Jersey School Boards Association, Ms. Thornton. Both the liaison and the Board attorney at the time, as well as the assistant business administrator, gave her approval in her capacity as Board president to move on the new contract. However, none of these officials were aware that Ms. Thompson-Epps had not consulted with the entire Board. She further testified that she wanted to make the process easier, so she left it to Dr. Gayles, the Board attorney, and the assistant business administrator to prepare the document. Again here, while she may have believed this to be true, her credibility on this issue raises more questions than answers. She also says she was advised by the Board counsel at the time, who was replaced in one of the first acts by the new Board, to have the document sent to the County superintendent. That statement is believable. Also credible and consistent with Mr. Palmieri's testimony is that the district was told by the County superintendent, whether it was correct or not, to rescind the old contract before a new contract could be acted upon.

Responding to questions from Mr. Roth, Ms. Thompson-Epps indicated that the contract wasn't rescinded due to Dr. Gayles' failure to obtain certificates. She said the normal 120-day notice requirement involving a superintendent's contract was waived by the old Board, also on the advice of former counsel. But Ms. Thompson-Epps did admit that she was told by the School Boards Association liaison that all of the members of the Board needed to be informed of her intentions so there were no surprises, which, according to the testimony of others, did not occur. She did say she spoke with two or three other members, even though this was not consistent with the advice she had received.

Turning to the circumstances of the suspension, Ms. Thompson-Epps said she believed such an action was detrimental to the school system. She cited several achievements the district enjoyed under Dr. Gayles' leadership, including but not limited to the installation of a new football field, a new lab at the high school, a rebuilt gym, the addition of six computer classrooms, more parent involvement, and the development of partnerships with the New Jersey Institute of Technology and Kean University.

In essence, according to Ms. Thompson-Epps, Dr. Gayles exceeded expectations. Rather than risk losing him to another district that might offer Dr. Gayles more money and benefits, she decided that a new contract should be offered, although, as discussed earlier, the timing seemed questionable after the outcome of the election.

Dr. David Eichenholtz, who served as interim business administrator and Board secretary, was the next witness who testified. He confirmed that prior to having a draft contract sent to the County superintendent, the Board as a whole was not informed or asked for approval. His involvement in the new contract process occurred during November 2018 when he was asked by Dr. Gayles to work with Ms. Giordano, the assistant administrator, on answering questions raised by the County superintendent about certain financial terms.

The only other involvement by Dr. Eichenholtz was keeping minutes of public meetings and executive sessions; he said that for both the November 29, 2018, meeting, and the January 24, 2019, meeting, the minutes of the executive sessions were limited. He also confirmed that the procedure involving rescinding the existing contract before enacting the new contract was the advice that was received from Mr. Palmieri.

Dr. Antoine Gayles was the last witness to take the stand. He indicated that he started his position as superintendent of the Hillside Public Schools on July 1, 2016. The initial contract was for a four-year term, ending June 30, 2020. Prior to coming to Hillside, he served as a principal in two districts, worked for the State Department of Education, and received his superintendent certificate in 2000.

At the beginning of Dr. Gayles' testimony, his counsel attempted to elicit testimony that suggested that a local political leader was involved in interfering with Dr. Gayles. That line of questioning was not allowed, as his counsel did not offer any discovery on this issue to the counsel for the district before the hearing started, and no foundation was laid with other witnesses concerning this subject.

On direct examination, Dr. Gayles stated that the idea about a new contract was initiated by Ms. Thompson-Epps. She texted him that she had allegedly spoken with two other members before asking if he was interested in pursuing an extension.

Dr. Gayles confirmed that without his own counsel, he negotiated the terms of the new contract with the individual who was serving as Board counsel at the time. He also communicated on this issue with Ms. Giordano. Dr. Gayles acknowledged that he didn't believe that any of the Board committees had reviewed the proposed contract before it was sent to the County superintendent, or before it went to a vote by the full Board. On cross-examination, it was not clear why there were some minutes of a meeting by the labor committee on November 14, which turned out to be an evening of heavy snow, and other minutes of a meeting of November 19, prior to the full Board meeting on November 29. Regardless, it did not seem from these documents that the new contract was fully vetted by this committee prior to the meeting of the full Board.

Dr. Gayles expressed surprise that virtually the first development at the Board's reorganization meeting on January 3, 2019, was to fire the Board attorney, as it was not an agenda item. Also, not on the agenda was a resolution to send a Rice notice to Dr. Gayles advising him that his status with the district would be discussed at the Board's first full public meeting on January 24, 2019. Also unexplained is why it took almost three weeks for the new Board counsel to send the formal notice to him. Dr. Gayles testified that in that period, he asked the new Board president, Mr. Allende, about rumors he had heard, and Mr. Allende's response was, "it's just a rumor."

Just as the vote on just suspension was not on the agenda for January 24, he learned of the Board's action after being asked to leave the executive session and the public meeting that night. He was informed of the action by Board counsel and the local newspaper. He felt that the actions of the new Board were of a harassing nature, damaging to his reputation and career, and were not transparent, as neither he nor the public was given a fair opportunity to speak before or after the vote on the "walk-on" resolution at the meeting on January 24.

Two months into his suspension, which the Board stipulated throughout the proceeding was not performance related, the Board demanded his resignation on short notice. That month, he filed an emergent application seeking reinstatement, which was denied since the Board was still paying him. The Board's Declaratory Judgment action, filed the same month, was not acted on by the Commissioner, and was transmitted to the OAL for the proceedings addressed herein. The Board sought relief declaring the new contract void ab initio, while also seeking to uphold the rescission of the first contract.

Dr. Gayles said that in early May 2019 he received a second Rice notice without explanation. Were it not for a text message he said he received from a member of the public, he would not have known that the Board decided to renege on its commitment to continue paying him during the suspension. That resulted in a second emergent application, the outcome of which was to order the district to resume full payments and benefits until the underlying matter could be heard.

Dr. Gayles also stated that he felt dehumanized when called to Board headquarters in early May to pick up the rest of his belongings, where he was met by three police officers and denied entry to his office.

Towards the end of his testimony, Dr. Gayles confirmed that the rescission of the old contract and the enactment of the new contract were part of the same resolution on November 29, 2018. He expressed no concern at the time of the vote on the old and new contracts whether, if for some reason the new contract were set aside, his employment status would be jeopardized.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Antoine Gayles began his position as superintendent of the Hillside Public Schools under a contract with a term from July 1, 2016, through June 30, 2020.

2. On November 6, 2018, an election for five seats on the District Board of Education was held. Four new members were elected, together with one remaining incumbent member, which significantly changed the majority composition of the Board.

3. On her own initiative, the Board president at the time, Hawaiian Thompson-Epps, started a conversation with Dr. Gayles to determine if he would like to consider a contract extension.

4. Without consulting with the full Board, the Board counsel at the time was enlisted to draft a new contract, which was forwarded to the County superintendent by the assistant business administrator. The Board secretary also was involved to the extent that figures and numbers in the new contract had to be revised.

5. Three days prior to the former Board's next-to-last meeting, on November 26, 2018, the full Board, for the first time, received the proposed new contract for its review.

6. At one of its last public meetings prior to the new Board assuming office, on November 29, 2018, the prior Board took action to rescind petitioner's existing contract and replace it with the new contract, which, among other things, extended petitioner's term for three additional years through June 2023 and raised his salary. This was done after review and direction from the County superintendent, who was not aware that the entire Board was not informed of the existence of a new proposed contract. The parties involved were limited to the former Board counsel, the Board secretary, the assistant business administrator, the Board president at the time who was not re-elected, and Dr. Gayles.

7. By a vote of 5-3 with one abstention, the old contract, which was supposed to end June 30, 2020, was rescinded and was replaced with a new contract with a higher salary and a term ending in June 2023.

8. At its first meeting, which took place on January 3, 2019, the new Board, after it was sworn in and a new counsel was hired, authorized sending a Rice Notice to petitioner. No explanation was offered as to why it was only sent to

Dr. Gayles via email within thirty-six hours of the next meeting when the Board might act.

9. Three weeks elapsed with no one, including the new Board president, Juan Allende, communicating with Dr. Gayles that his employment status might be in jeopardy. When Dr. Gayles asked Mr. Allende about rumors he had heard, Mr. Allende declined any knowledge about what was being said.

10. At its next meeting on January 24, 2019, the Board suspended petitioner with pay and benefits continuing. No date was memorialized for this change of status to end, and no facts were presented that the superintendent was suspended for cause or any allegations of improper acts. In fact, the Board stipulated during the proceeding that the suspension was not performance related. The Board contended that the suspension was to allow them to "investigate" the legality or illegality of the new contract. Having heard all of the testimony, I FIND that whether or not the suspension was the appropriate method for the Board's inquiry, the suspension was not in any way related to Dr. Gayles' performance as superintendent of schools.

11. The resolution that the Board voted on to suspend Dr. Gayles did not appear on the agenda for the January 24 meeting. For reasons unknown, it was done as a "walk-on" resolution that night, with no ability for the public to comment, since the Board had previously voted to move the public portion of the meeting to an earlier spot on the agenda. At the time the suspension resolution was considered, the public portion of the meeting was not re-opened.

12. The parties, with counsel, appeared before Judge Betancourt on March 6, 2019, at which time the district, through counsel, represented that the relief requested should be denied because petitioner would still be paid. In fact, it was represented to Judge Betancourt that would continue to pay Dr. Gayles while it was researching the issues involving the new contract.

13. Two days before the hearing before Judge Betancourt, on March 4, 2019, the district filed its request for a declaratory ruling seeking to have the new contract deemed void ab initio.

14. Both matters were remanded to the OAL, and with Judge Betancourt's recusal, the matters were assigned to the undersigned ALJ.

15. Following a status phone conference, the parties were directed to appear for settlement conferences, one of which was held on April 29, 2019, and the second on May 14, 2019.

16. Five days prior to the second settlement conference, and with Dr. Gayles' request for reinstatement and the declaratory-relief application still pending, the Board on less than three days' notice to petitioner unilaterally took action to stop the payments it had previously agreed to make, resulting in no further payments to petitioner as of May 15, 2019. A second emergent application was then instituted by Dr. Gayles, seeking immediate reinstatement of his salary and benefits while he remained suspended.

17. On the return date of the second request for emergent relief, no testimony was taken, and the parties relied on their submissions and oral argument. Hearing dates were scheduled on the merits of both matters for July 8 and July 9, 2019. Further hearings were conducted on July 31, August 12, and October 8, 2019. The district also filed a motion to strike petitioner's answer and disqualify petitioner's counsel, which was denied. Prior to the start of testimony, counsel for Dr. Gayles withdrew the affidavits, which cured the unintentional impropriety the district complained about.

18. The Board does not dispute, and in fact stipulates, that the suspension was in no way related to Dr. Gayles' performance in the position. I FIND that the suspension was not performance related, nor was it based on any improprieties or acts committed by Dr. Gayles. For reasons unknown, the Board elected to remove Dr. Gayles from his position while it investigated the legality of the new contract.

No other options were explored, nor does it appear that the new Board president or members of any of the Board committees attempted to engage in a dialogue with Dr. Gayles prior to suspending him.

LEGAL DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

The parties agree on most of the applicable law that governs this dispute. Not surprisingly, they disagree on the application and interpretation of the legal principles that determine the outcome.

N.J.S.A. 18A:6-8.3 states: "any employee or officer of a Board of education in this State who is suspended from his employment, office or position, other than by reason of indictment, pending any investigation, hearing or trial or any appeal therefrom, shall receive his full pay or salary during such period of suspension except that in the event of charges against such employee or officer brought before the board of education or the Commissioner of Education pursuant to law, such suspension may be with or without pay or salary as provided in chapter 6 of which this section is a supplement." Emphasis added.

N.J.A.C. 6A:23A-3.1 governs the review of employment contracts for superintendents, and N.J.A.C. 6A:23A-3.2 addresses the required actions for early terminations of such contracts. Among other things, notice is required, and at least thirty days' notice of a hearing is required before any such action is taken. Simply put, both sides ignored these provisions and circumvented the appropriate legal process for changing a superintendent's contract.

The following sequence of events lead to the conclusion that the rescission of the first contract is void, as is the rescission of the second contract. The suspension of Dr. Gayles without an acceptable basis such as performance related, or the existence of improprieties was really intended to be a termination, without following any of the recognized statutory, regulatory or policy procedures for notice, discussion and public input.

It is undisputed that the question of which contract or either contract had not been decided, yet the Board on May 9, 2019, unilaterally voted to stop the payments it had been making to petitioner, which it represented it would do to the ALJ previously assigned to this case. During argument, the district advocated that the provisions of N.J.A.C. 6A:23A do not apply since there was a prior mutual rescission, yet at the same time they also argue that the actions of the prior Board in providing a new and extended-term contract to petitioner were invalid. This argument is not convincing, since if the new contract is void, the act of rescission of the old contract is also void, regardless of whether it was part of the same resolution, or if it had been reflected in a separate resolution. I CONCLUDE, that the rescission of the old contract is also void. Based on that conclusion and the applicable law, Dr. Gayles is entitled to reinstatement to the position of superintendent of Hillside Public Schools under the terms of the old contract through June 30, 2020.

Dr. Gayles argues that the former Board had the authority to modify the existing contract under N.J S.A. 18A:11-1, which allows a Board to do all things necessary for the lawful and proper conduct of its schools. He further cites N.J.S.A. 18A:17-20.1, which is the renewal statute for superintendents providing that at the conclusion of the initial contract or any subsequent contract the superintendent holding the position shall be deemed reappointed for another contract of the same duration, unless the board reappoints him for a different term.

One of the problems with advancing this argument is that under the underlying facts indicate that Dr. Gayles still had more than eighteen months left at the time the new contract was proposed, so this was not a renewal at the end of an expiring term.

Further, there is nothing in the record to suggest that under the lawful-and-proper-conduct standard, there was a compelling reason to essentially tear up his old contract and replace it with a new one that had a longer term with higher salary and benefits. The Board president's justification for what amounted to unilateral actions, while perhaps well-intentioned, was misguided, and did not follow well-established law.

Dr. Gayles also argues that the enactment of the new contract also had the blessing of the County superintendent and was properly presented to Mr. Palmieri under N.J.S.A. 18A:7-8 and N.J.A.C. 6A:23A et seq., which establish the duties and responsibilities of this official as an agent of the Department of Education, including but not limited to review of superintendents' contracts.

But that presumes that Mr. Palmieri was aware that the Board was asked for a consensus to send the new contract for review, and that Mr. Palmieri knew or should have known that a new Board would be seated in a few short weeks which might not want to be bound by the new agreement. The unilateral actions taken by Ms. Thompson-Epps had the potential to compromise both Boards under the ruling in Cheng v. Rodas, West New York Board of Education, Dkt. No. C58-14, Comm'r (January 20, 2017), https://www.nj.gov/education/legal/, a school ethics case wherein the board president initiated private action to negotiate a new employment agreement for a business administrator without including all the other board members.

Once Mr. Palmieri returned the contract after some revisions, the full Board only had forty-eight hours to review the entire contract, and the members of the public had even less time to review it and comment upon it. What seems clear, although it was not specifically stated by the witnesses, is that the Board president at the time, Ms. Thompson-Epps, recognized that the outcome of the election would not be favorable for Dr. Gayles, and so she acted in an expedited and somewhat surreptitious manner to make sure he would have some additional protection with a longer contract term. It is certainly understandable that most individuals offered the same opportunity would agree to accept a new contract. Dr. Gayles, negotiating directly with the Board counsel at the time, may have unintentionally caused himself harm instead of waiting to see if the new Board would concur with the actions of the Board that was about to leave office. See Nowak v. Bd. of Educ. of Manville, 1976 S.L.D. 47, wherein a lame-duck board is not allowed to bind a future board in non-administrative matters; see also Gonzalez v. Bd. of Educ. of Elizabeth Sch. Dist., 325 N.J. Super. 244, 252 (App. Div. 1999), cited by both sides and setting forth the principle that "[a] board of education is a noncontinuous body whose authority is limited to its own official life and whose actions can bind its successors only in those ways and to the extent expressly provided by statute." Thus, the rescission of Dr. Gayles' existing contract and replacement with a new contract when there was no vacancy in the position and no compelling reason to make such a change was significantly more than a ministerial act as described in Nowak.

Moreover, when a board of education is contemplating a significant action such as a superintendent's contract, reasonable notice to the public is required under N.J.S.A. 18A:11-11 and N.J.A.C. 6A:23A-3.1, which requires thirty days' notice to the public in advance of taking action, and at least ten days for the public to comment. The forty-eight hours provided here in late November 2018 is woefully short of both requirements.

The pattern of failing to follow well-established statutes, rules, and protocol was exacerbated once the new Board took office. Barely sworn in at its reorganization meeting, the new Board, under leadership from a new president, voted on a "walk-on" resolution pursuant to Rice v. Union County Regional High School Board of Education, 155 N.J. Super. 64 (App. Div. 1977), certif. denied, 76 N.J. 238 (1978), which requires that a formal written notice be sent to school employees at least seventy-two hours in advance of the time a board may take action involving the person's employment with the district. The rationale behind this provision was to give that individual an opportunity to appear before the board in public or private before any decisions are made. In this case, for reasons unknown, almost three weeks went by after the initial vote before the notice was sent, thereby allowing little or no time for Dr. Gayles to act or respond prior to the suspension.

Even more curious are the circumstances surrounding the ultimate action the new Board took regarding the suspension of Dr. Gayles. Both sides agree that the rules and provisions for public comment at school-board meetings, as well as for other public entities, are governed by the Open Public Meetings Act, which can be found at N.J.S.A. 10:4-6 et seq. This statute, also commonly known as "the Sunshine Law," encourages boards to conduct most of their business before the public, and to allow a reasonable period of time for the public to comment, and participate in question-and-answer sessions before the board takes action on matters that will impact the public, the students, and individuals employed by the board. In this case, the new Board took at least two actions that contravene this important standard in a manner that was detrimental to Dr. Gayles and the public.

Prior to its first full public meeting, no resolution appeared on the agenda regarding the suspension of Dr. Gayles. Surely, having previously authorized a Rice notice three weeks earlier, the Board knew or should have known that it might be considering some sort of action against Dr. Gayles that would impact his employment with the district. Not only was Dr. Gayles deprived of the ability to have a meaningful opportunity to address the Board's concerns, but the Board failed to give the public, the taxpayers, and parents whose children were about to be impacted an opportunity to address the Board.

This denial of public comment was further compounded by the Board's decision to confine public comment to a one-time period much earlier in the meeting, prior to the vote on the suspension. Presented in the form of a "walk-on" resolution, there was no thirty-day period for the public or members of the Board to review the resolution, nor was there a ten-day period for public comment.

At least three times during this proceeding, the Board stipulated that the suspension was not performance related, nor was any impropriety involved. The new president Mr. Allende, and Mr. Chapman identified the sole reason for the suspension as an opportunity for the Board to investigate its rights under the new contract. No other justification was offered.

Compounding the deleterious nature of the new Board's actions, after initially agreeing on the record before another administrative law judge to continue Dr. Gayles' salary and benefits, not more than two months later, and while the matter was still active before the Office of Administrative Law, the Board approved a new resolution, brought as a "walk-on" without proper notice to Dr. Gayles and the public, which immediately stripped Dr. Gayles of his salary and benefits. As justification for this arbitrary and capricious action, the Board cited the recently decided case of Wall Township Education Association v. Wall Township Board of Education, No. A-4885-17 (App. Div. March 14, 2019), http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/courts/, wherein the Appellate Division ruled that the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:11-11 are still necessary in order for a successor contract to be valid. Thus, the new Board advances the argument that if a board wants to change a superintendent's contract, public notice and a hearing are mandated in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:23A-3.1 (thirty and ten days, respectively), and, as such, the new agreement is void.

Conveniently though, Hillside does not argue that the same ruling applies to the rescission of the contract, which occurred at the time the new contract was enacted. They further disingenuously suggest that the undersigned does not have the authority to overturn the rescission, unless a finding is made that the Board actions violated a statute.

Given the actions of both sides, I CONCLUDE that each side violated the spirit and intent of the relevant statutes, regulations, and caselaw regarding superintendents' contracts, and I further CONCLUDE that the initial "walk-on" resolution suspending Dr. Gayles in January 2019, followed by another "walk-on" resolution to stop his salary and benefits wherein he was directed to pick up his boxed belongings and barred from his office, amounted to a termination, disguised as a suspension, without the right to be properly heard under the involuntary-termination section of N.J.S.A. 18A:17-20 and N.J.A.C. 6A:23A-3.2, which involves notice of charges and evidence to a superintendent, with a right to reply. Thus, the same argument Hillside advances, that the new contract was the result of improper and illegal procedures, also applies to its action of suspending Dr. Gayles, and ultimately in early May 2019 of stripping him of salary and benefits and the use of his office, without formally saying he had been terminated.

In support of its actions and position, the district relies on the recently decided Wall case, as well as its belief that this is a contract case only and argues that since the first contract was mutually rescinded, the Board has the authority to cease payments. For the reasons set forth herein, I CONCLUDE that the acts leading to second contract were inappropriate, making the contract itself void, the same CONCLUSION applies as well to the rescission of the contract in existence at the time, as the County superintendent was not aware that the new contract was sent for his review without the consensus of the Board. Moreover, the action could be detrimental to the new Board that would take office within a few weeks that there was no compelling reason to offer Dr. Gayles a new contract with eighteen months left on the contract in effect at the time.

I further CONCLUDE that starting with the Rice notice, together with the "walk-on" resolution to suspend, the lack of public input constitutes bad faith on the part of the new Board, which in essence masked an intent to terminate Dr. Gayles under a suspension that had no legitimate basis or rationale.

While I HAVE CONCLUDED that the circumstances surrounding the suspension were suspect, the same CONCLUSION applies to the circumstances surrounding the preparation of a new contract sent without full Board authority to the County superintendent. The vote on the new contract by a "lame duck" Board seems as if it was done to circumvent the normal process of a full public hearing. The former Board president, Ms. Thompson-Epps, without the knowledge of the full Board, took unilateral actions to expedite the process of enacting a new contract that a new Board was about to take over. There was no consensus to send the proposed contract to the County superintendent. The members of the "lame duck" Board only had forty-eight hours to review the proposed contract. There was insufficient time for members of the public to review the document. I therefore CONCLUDE that it was appropriate for Dr. Gayles to receive his full salary and benefits due to the questionable circumstances surrounding his suspension while this matter was pending. The application for declaratory relief is granted in part as to the new contract being deemed void ab initio. I further CONCLUDE that the rescission of the contract ending June 30, 2020, is also deemed void ab initio, as it was part of the same act and resolution approving the new contract. I further CONCLUDE that the Board's argument that the new contract should be deemed void, but the rescission of the old contract should be upheld, is misguided, and fails as a matter of fact and law. Therefore, I CONCLUDE, under a totality of the facts and circumstances, Dr. Gayles is entitled to all the salary and benefits he collected during the pendency of the litigation and retroactive to January 1, 2019 through June 30, 2020.

The parties are left to their remedies in other forums concerning any remaining disputes about payments, should they try to pursue them.

Final Decision

In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Kenia Penalva, School District of the Town of West New York, Hudson County.

For the Petitioner, Nashali A. Rose, Esq.

No appearance by or on behalf of Respondent, Kenia Penalva

This matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education on June 22, 2020, through tenure charges of incapacity, unbecoming conduct and other just cause certified by Clara Brito Herrera, Superintendent of the West New York School District ("District"), together with supporting evidence against respondent, Kenia Penalva, a tenured custodian in the District's employ. The District provided respondent with written notice of such certification at the respondent's last known address on June 22, 2020.

On June 24, 2020, the Commissioner directed the respondent, via regular mail to file an answer to the charges. This communication clearly provided notice to respondent that, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.3 and 6A:3-5.4, an individual against whom tenure charges are certified "shall have 15 days from the day such charges are filed with the Commissioner to file a written response to the charges with the Commissioner." The notice also states that the failure to answer within the prescribed period, absent granting of an extension for good cause shown, would result in the charges being deemed admitted. No reply to the tenure charges was received from or on behalf of the respondent.

The certified tenure charges and statement of supporting evidence filed by the District in this matter indicate that throughout 2019 and up until February 27, 2020 the respondent has been out on medical leave because she has been unable to perform her custodial duties. The respondent is no longer on approved leave and she has not returned to work. Deeming the allegations to be admitted and noting that the respondent has failed to respond to the charges certified against her, the Commissioner finds that the District's charges of incapacity and other just cause have been proven and warrants the respondent's dismissal. Accordingly, summary decision is hereby granted to the District, and the respondent is dismissed from her tenured position with the District.

Final Decision

In the Matter of Zakaria Kandiel, Board of Education of the Carlstadt-East Rutherford Regional School District, Bergen County.

The Commissioner has reviewed the record of this matter and the decision of the School Ethics Commission (SEC), finding that respondent violated the School Ethics Act for failure to timely complete board member training in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33 and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1. The SEC's decision was forwarded to the Commissioner for final determination on the recommended penalty pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c). The SEC recommended a sanction of removal effective upon the adoption of the decision by the Commissioner. Alternatively, if the respondent completed the required training before the issuance of the Commissioner's final decision, the SEC recommended that respondent be suspended for 30 days. Ultimately, respondent completed the training after the SEC's May 19, 2020 decision. Respondent has neither filed exceptions to the recommended penalty nor instituted an appeal of the SEC's underlying finding of violation, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:4-1 et seq.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurs with the penalty recommended by the SEC for respondent's failure to timely honor an obligation placed upon board members by law.

Accordingly, respondent is suspended, as of the date of this decision, from his position as a school official for violating the School Ethics Act.

Respondent.

The record of this emergent matter and the recommended Order of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) have been reviewed.[1] Upon such review, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ – for the reasons thoroughly set forth in the recommended Order – that petitioners have failed to demonstrate entitlement to emergent relief pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6 and *Crowe v. Accordingly, the recommended Order of the OAL denying petitioners' application for emergent relief is adopted for the reasons expressed therein. This matter shall continue at the OAL with such proceedings as the parties and ALJ deem necessary to bring it to closure.

New Jersey Commissioner of Education

Final Decision

J.C. and C.C. on behalf of minor child, J.C.,

Petitioners,

v.

Board of Education of the Ramapo Indian Hills Regional High School District, Bergen County,

Respondent.

Synopsis

Petitioners appealed the respondent Board's determination that J.C. committed an act of harassment, intimidation and bullying (HIB) in violation of New Jersey's Anti-Bullying Bill of Rights Act (Act), N.J.S.A. 18A:37-13 et seq., when he removed the pants and exposed the buttocks of another boy, J.K., while G.E. held him down. The parties filed cross motions for summary decision.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: the core facts in this case are not in dispute, and the matter is ripe for summary decision; the Act defines HIB as any gesture, written, verbal or physical act, or electronic communication that is reasonably perceived as being motivated either by any actual or perceived characteristic, such as race, color, religion, ancestry, national origin, gender, sexual orientation, gender identity and expression, or a mental, physical or sensory disability, and must also substantially disrupt or interfere with the orderly operation of the school; an action by a board of education is entitled to a presumption of correctness and will not be overturned unless it can be shown that the Board's action was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable; here, there is no dispute that J.C. pulled down the pants of J.K., exposing him, while G.E. held J.K. down; the Board further determined that J.C. also exposed himself during the incident and that J.K. suffered emotional harm that required him to undergo counseling; moreover, the Board determined that the episode disrupted the orderly operation of the school because a photograph of the incident circulated among students, leading to harassment of both J.C. and J.K. by others; and the Board's determination that J.C.'s conduct was motivated by J.K.'s gender was reasonable given that the act of removing another person's pants while that person is restrained, then removing your own pants, is inherently sexual and based on the gender of the victim. The ALJ concluded that the petitioners failed to sustain their burden of proving that the Board acted in an arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable manner in finding that HIB occurred in this matter. Accordingly, the petition was dismissed.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurred that, based on the evidence in the record, petitioners did not establish that the Board acted in an arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable manner in finding that J.C. committed an act of HIB. Accordingly, the Commissioner adopted the Initial Decision of the OAL as the final decision in this matter. In so doing, the Commissioner noted, inter alia, that while N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.5(a) requires a nexus to a student's physical or emotional safety, security, and well-being and a material and substantial interference with the operation of the school in order to impose a consequence for student conduct away from school, the Commissioner does not need to decide whether J.C.'s conduct met this definition as the Board did not impose discipline on J.C. since he is no longer a student in the district.

New Jersey Commissioner of Education

Final Decision

J.C. and C.C., on behalf of minor child, J.C.,

Petitioners,

v.

Board of Education of the Ramapo Indian Hills Regional High School District, Bergen County,

Respondent.

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed, as have the exceptions filed by the petitioners pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4, and the Board's reply thereto.[1]

In this matter, petitioners challenge the Board's determination that their son committed an act of harassment, intimidation and bullying (HIB). This case stems from an incident that occurred at a student's home in December 2017 or January 2018, in which the Board found J.C. removed the pants and exposed the buttocks of another boy, J.K., while G.E. held him down. The Board also found that J.C. removed his own pants while on top of J.K. A photograph of the incident spread to other students at school in September 2018, when the students were beginning their freshman year.[2] As a result, the victim's parents filed a HIB complaint against J.C. Following an investigation, the Board found that J.C. committed an act of HIB, specifically finding: (1) the events substantially interfered with the victim's rights and the operation of the school given the number of students involved and the effect on the victim, who subsequently required therapy; (2) a reasonable person would perceive that J.C.'s actions in removing the pants of a person who is held down and exposing his buttocks is motivated by gender; and (3) a reasonable person would know that the actions would have the effect of causing the victim emotional or physical harm. Following motions for summary decision, the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) found that the Board's HIB determination was not arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable.

[1] The Board argues that petitioners' exceptions should not be considered because they were filed electronically eight minutes after the Department's close of business at 4:15 p.m. The Commissioner will exercise his discretion pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.16 and N.J.A.C. 1:1-1.3 to consider petitioners' exceptions, especially given the closure of the Department's offices during the COVID-19 pandemic.

[2] Petitioners alerted school officials that J.C. was being threatened and called names after the photograph was distributed; they subsequently filed a HIB complaint against several students. Although a finding of HIB was substantiated against two students, petitioners transferred J.C. to an out-of-state school because of the harassment.

In their exceptions, petitioners argue that the ALJ improperly applied the summary decision standard by failing to recognize numerous disputed issues of material fact. Specifically, petitioners deny that a sexual assault took place. Additionally, petitioners point out that it was J.K. – and not J.C. – who spread the rumors about the incident around the school and set any harassment in motion. Furthermore, according to petitioners, the Board was arbitrary, capricious, and unreasonable in ignoring that G.E. submitted conflicting statements during the HIB investigation. G.E. first said that J.C. "never did anything inappropriate that I saw or remember," but several days later changed his story and said that he saw J.C. "half-naked with his thing out." (Petitioner's certification, Exhibits L and M). Petitioner's maintain that these material facts cannot be reconciled on a motion for summary decision.

Petitioners dispute the Board's conclusion that the incident was motivated by gender. Petitioners assert that since the two other students who participated in the same incident were not deemed to be motivated by a distinguishing characteristic, the Board's determination that J.C.'s actions were motivated by gender must be based on the unfounded assumption that J.C. is gay without any evidence of such. While petitioners acknowledge that the conduct may have been inappropriate, the HIB investigation materials do not provide a basis for the conclusion that his actions were motivated by gender.

Petitioners also argue that J.K.'s statement in his interview that he had suffered no emotional distress undermines the Board's finding of HIB. Specifically, J.K. was asked how much the incident bothered him "in terms of distraction, emotional stress, etc. (10 being extremely, 1 being not at all)" and J.K. answered "1." (Petitioner's certification, Exhibit J). Petitioners maintain that J.K.'s statement contradicts his parents' assertion that he was in therapy, and an essential element of HIB cannot be met.

Finally, petitioners claim that the Board did not have the authority to regulate conduct that occurred in a private home. According to petitioners, in order to regulate off campus conduct, the Board would have to show that there is a nexus to student health or safety and that the behavior materially and substantially interferes with the orderly operation of school. Here, petitioners maintain that the Board exceeded its authority because the conduct did not threaten J.K.'s physical or emotional safety or well-being, as the two remained friends and J.K. filed his HIB complaint nine months later, after J.C. initiated his own complaint. Petitioners further argue that the ALJ erred in finding a substantial disruption to the school because any disruption was the harassment that J.C. suffered – not J.K. – and he should not be blamed for coming forward about being harassed. Accordingly, petitioners urge the Commissioner to reject the Initial Decision.

In reply, the Board contends that there are no genuine disputes of material fact because the only facts necessary to decide this matter are the HIB record and the conclusions the Board drew from it. The Board argues that petitioners cannot relitigate the facts of the incident; instead, the only issue here is whether the Board was arbitrary, capricious, and unreasonable in determining that J.C. committed an act of HIB based on the record before it at the time. Specifically, in response to petitioners' disputed material facts, the Board maintains that: it did not determine that a sexual assault occurred; regardless of who started the rumor around school, it was J.C.'s conduct that started the chain of events; and the Board was not arbitrary in crediting G.E.'s second statement, which was consistent with J.K.'s statement.

The Board argues that J.C.'s conduct was inherently of a sexual nature, and a reasonable person could conclude that it was motivated by gender. Additionally, the Board reasonably relied on J.K.'s need for therapy for its conclusion that he suffered emotional harm. Finally, the Board maintains that pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:15-7.5(b), it is required to investigate HIB complaints regardless of whether they occurred off school grounds. The Board explains that N.J.A.C. 6A:15-7.5(a) does not apply because it did not impose any discipline in this matter, so it does not need to demonstrate a nexus to student health or safety. Accordingly, the Board requests that the Commissioner adopt the Initial Decision.

Upon review, the Commissioner agrees with the ALJ that, based on the evidence in the record, petitioners did not establish that the Board acted in an arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable manner in finding that J.C. committed an act of HIB. When a local board of education acts within its discretionary authority, its decision is entitled to a presumption of correctness and will not be disturbed unless there is an affirmative showing that the decision was "patently arbitrary, without rational basis or induced by improper motives." Kopera v. W. Orange Bd. of Educ., 60 N.J. Super. 288, 294 (App. Div. 1960). Furthermore, "where there is room for two opinions, action is not arbitrary or capricious when exercised honestly and upon due consideration[,]" and the Commissioner will not substitute his judgment for that of the board. Bayshore Sewerage Co. v. Dep't. of Envtl. Prot., 122 N.J. Super. 184, 199 (Ch. Div. 1973), aff'd, 131 N.J. Super. 37 (App. Div. 1974). The record contains sufficient credible evidence to support the Board's determination that J.C. removed the pants and exposed the buttocks of J.K. while he was held down, and that J.C. removed his own pants while on top of J.K. – specifically, the victim's statement recounting the incident and G.E.'s statement that he saw J.C. "half-naked with his thing out." While petitioners deny that J.C. removed his own pants and point to G.E.'s first statement, where he said that J.C. "never did anything inappropriate," this does not erase the evidence in the record that the Board relied upon which indicated the opposite. While the evidence may leave room for two opinions, it is not sufficient to overturn the Board's decision, as it does not demonstrate that the decision was arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable. To overturn the Board's decision would require the Commissioner to substitute his judgment for the Board's, which is impermissible.

> origin, gender, sexual orientation, gender identity and expression, or a mental, physical or sensory disability, or by any other distinguishing characteristic, that takes place on school property, at any school-sponsored function, on a school bus, or off school grounds as provided for in section 16 of P.L. 2010, c.122 (C.18A:37-15.3), that substantially disrupts or interferes with the orderly operation of the school or the rights of other students and that:
> a. a reasonable person should know, under the circumstances, will have the effect of physically or emotionally harming a student or damaging the student's property, or placing a student in reasonable fear of physical or emotional harm to his person or damage to his property;
>
>
> c. creates a hostile educational environment for the student by interfering with a student's education or by severely or pervasively causing physical or emotional harm to the student.
> N.J.S.A. 18A:37-14.

Therefore, a finding of HIB requires three elements. First, the conduct must be reasonably perceived as motivated by any actual or perceived enumerated characteristic or other distinguishing characteristic and, second, the conduct must substantially disrupt or interfere with the rights of other students or the orderly operation of the school. The third condition is that one of the three criteria enumerated in the Act regarding the effect of the conduct must also be satisfied. Wehbeh v. Bd. of Educ. of the Twp. of Verona, Essex County, Commissioner Decision No. 51-20 (decided February 4, 2020). The statute also requires that the conduct take place on school property, at any school-sponsored function, on a school bus, or off school grounds as provided for in N.J.S.A. 18A:37-15.3.

Regarding the first element, in defining HIB as an action "that is reasonably perceived as being motivated either by any actual or perceived characteristic . . .", N.J.S.A. 18A:37-14 (emphasis added), the statute requires an analysis of how the actor's motivation is perceived and whether that perception is reasonable. It does not require an analysis of the actual motivation of the actor. Wehbeh, supra. Here, it was not arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable for the Board to conclude that a reasonable person would consider J.C.'s actions to be of an inherently sexual nature and thus motivated by the gender of the victim.

Regarding the second element, the Board relied upon the number of students involved in the incident and the disturbance that resulted when the photograph was shared among students. The Commissioner finds that – given the incident set in motion a string of events that led to a photograph being circulated around school – the Board was certainly not arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable in finding a substantial interruption of the ordinary operation of the school.

Regarding the third element, an act of HIB is one that "a reasonable person should know, under the circumstances, will have the effect of physically or emotionally harming a student," "has the effect of insulting or demeaning a student," or "creates a hostile educational environment . . .". N.J.S.A. 18A:37-14(a) (emphasis added). None of these criteria require the actor to have actual knowledge of the effect that his actions will have, or to specifically intend to bring about that effect. The first requires only that a reasonable person should know there would be a harmful effect, not that the actor knows there would be such an effect. The second two criteria address only the actual effect of the act, without any reference to what either the actor or a reasonable person does or should know. Wehbeh, supra. As such, a board of education can find that an individual committed an act of HIB even if the individual did not intend to cause harm. Here, the Board found that J.C.'s actions in removing his own pants and J.K.'s pants while J.K. was held down resulted in emotional harm to the victim, as demonstrated by his need to undergo school-sponsored and private therapy. While petitioners point to the victim's statement that he was not bothered by the events, evidence in the record supports the Board's determination. There is no doubt that a reasonable person would know that J.C.'s actions would result in emotional harm, satisfying N.J.S.A. 18A:37-14 of the Act, so the Board was not arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable in reaching that conclusion.

Finally, regarding where the conduct occurred, the Act sets forth that conduct may be considered HIB when it takes place on school property, at any school-sponsored function, on a school bus, or off school grounds as provided for in N.J.S.A. 18A:37-15.3, and otherwise satisfies the remaining elements of HIB. N.J.S.A. 18A:37-15.3 indicates that HIB policies adopted by boards of education shall include provisions for responses to HIB that occurs off school grounds when a school employee is made aware of such actions. Additionally, N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.5(b) requires that school authorities respond to HIB that occurs off school grounds. Accordingly, the Board is required to investigate HIB complaints even if they occur outside of school. Here, the Board received a HIB complaint involving conduct that occurred at a private residence, and the Board investigated the allegations as it is required to do. Although N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.5(a) requires a nexus to a student's physical or emotional safety, security, and well-being and a material and substantial interference with the operation of the school in order to impose a consequence to student conduct away from school, the Commissioner does not need to decide whether J.C.'s conduct met this definition because the Board did not impose discipline on J.C., as he is no longer a student in the district. As such, the Board was not arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable in investigating conduct that occurred off school grounds and finding that it met the definition of HIB.

Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter and the petition of appeal is hereby dismissed.

BEFORE THOMAS R. BETANCOURT, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner parents challenges the respondent District's HIB determination.

The matter was transferred to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), where it was filed on August 29, 2019, as a contested case. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15; N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

A prehearing conference was held on September 17, 2019, and a prehearing Order was entered on September 18, 2019.

Respondent filed a motion for summary decision on December 23, 2019. Petitioners filed a cross motion for summary decision, and their response to respondent's motion, on February 10, 2019. Respondent filed its reply brief on March 6, 2020. Petitioner, with permission from the undersigned, submitted a sur-reply brief on May 15, 2020.

ISSUE

Did Respondent err in determining that J.C. committed an act of HIB within the meaning of the Anti-Bullying Bill of Rights Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:37-13.2 et seq.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

I find the following FACTS:

1. In or around September 2018, J.C. was a high school freshman in the District.

2. In or around September 2018, Petitioner's met with Assistant Principal L. Michael Mancino to discuss an incident involving their son, J.C., and other boys, that occurred sometime in December 2017 or January 2018.

3. During that incident J.C. removed the pants of J.K. while another boy, G.E., held down J.K.

4. Petitioners advised Mr. Mancino that due to this incident other students at the High School were threatening J.C. and calling him names.

5. J.C. supplied a written statement regarding the incident.

6. G.E. and J.K. also supplied written statements. G.E. supplied a second written statement as well.

7. A photograph purportedly showing J.C. removing J.K.'s pants was taken during the incident and was distributed to some members of the student body.

8. During the incident J.C. also removed his own pants.

9. The parents of J.K. filed a HIB complaint against J.C. and his sister on or about October 4, 2018.

10. A HIB investigation ensued, conducted by Anti Bullying Specialist Rachel Calabrese.

11. The conclusion of the HIB investigation was that J.C.'s action during the incident constitute HIB because he committed a physical act that was reasonably perceived to be motivated by J.K.'s gender that substantially disrupted or interfered with the orderly operation of the school and a reasonable person should have known, under the circumstances, would have the effect of physically or emotionally harming a student.

12. As a result of the incident J.K. underwent counselling.

13. The incident substantially disrupted and interfered with J.K.'s rights based upon his need to attend counseling, and the harassment he faced from other students.

14. The orderly operation of the school was substantially disrupted due to the incident in that it caused J.C. and J.K. to receive significant harassment from other students, which included substantiated allegations of HIB by other students against J.C.

LEGAL ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSION

Standard for Summary Decision

A motion for summary decision may be granted if the papers and discovery presented, as well as any affidavits which may have been filed with the application, show that there is no genuine issue of material fact and the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law. N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b). If the motion is sufficiently supported, the non-moving party must demonstrate by affidavit that there is a genuine issue of fact which can only be determined in an evidentiary proceeding, in order to prevail in such an application. Ibid. These provisions mirror the summary judgment language of R. 4:46-2(c) of the New Jersey Court Rules.

The motion judge must "consider whether the competent evidential materials presented, when viewed in the light most favorable to the non-moving party . . . , are sufficient to permit a rational fact finder to resolve the alleged disputed issue in favor of the non-moving party." Brill v. Guardian Life Ins. Co. of Am., 142 N.J. 520, 523 (1995). And even if the non-moving party comes forward with some evidence, this forum must grant summary decision if the evidence is "so one-sided that [the moving party] must prevail as a matter of law." Id. at 536 (citation omitted).

In the instant matter both parties are requesting relief via summary decision. Petitioners contend that the Board lacked jurisdiction to conduct an HIB investigation as the act occurred off school property. Petitioners further contend that if there is jurisdiction that there are sufficient facts in dispute to deny Respondent's motion for summary decision.

In support of their position Petitioners submitted Petitioners' Response to Respondent's Statement of Undisputed Material Facts and Counter Statement of Material Facts. A careful review of the same reveals much of what is set forth as fact is merely the opinion of the Petitioners. Much of what is fact is not material to the HIB investigation. By way of example, Petitioners focus on a C.P., who they maintain "de-pantsed" J.C. while in 6th grade. Petitioners further maintain that C.P. spread rumors about the incident. While the above may be facts, they are not material to the finding of HIB. What is material to the finding of HIB are the facts pertaing to the incident itself.

Respondent submitted their Response to petitioners' Counter Statement of Undisputed Material Facts. I found the same extremely persuasive and concur with the same.

Respondent contends that the "core" facts are not in dispute and that those facts lead to a finding of HIB, and that such a finding is not arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable.

I concur with Respondent in this regard. The facts alleged to be disputed by Petitioners are not material to the Board's determination that J.C. committed an act of HIB.

Accordingly, I find that the matter is ripe for summary decision.

The Anti-Bullying Bill of Rights Act ("Act"), N.J.S.A. 18A:37-13 et seq., is designed "to strengthen the standards and procedures for preventing, reporting, investigating, and responding to incidents of harassment, intimidation, and bullying of students that occur in school and off school premises."[3] N.J.S.A. 18A:37-13.1.(f). Under the Act, "harassment, intimidation or bullying" (HIB) is defined as:

> [A]ny gesture, any written, verbal or physical act, or any electronic communication, whether it be a single incident or a series of incidents, that is reasonably perceived as being motivated either by any actual or perceived characteristic, such as race, color, religion, ancestry, national origin, gender, sexual orientation, gender identity and expression, or a mental, physical or sensory disability, or by any other distinguishing characteristic, that takes place on school property, at any school-sponsored function, on a school bus, or off school grounds as provided for in section 16 ofP.L.2010, c.122 (C.18A:37-15.3), that substantially disrupts or interferes with the orderly operation of the school or the rights of other students and that:
> a. a reasonable person should know, under the circumstances, will have the effect of physically or emotionally harming a student or damaging the student's property, or placing a student in reasonable fear of physical or emotional harm to his person or damage to his property;
>
> c. creates a hostile educational environment for the student by interfering with a student's education or by severely or > pervasively causing physical or emotional harm to the student.

Each school district must adopt a policy that prohibits HIB and provides for a prompt response to any alleged HIB incident. N.J.S.A 18A:37-15. Once an alleged HIB incident is reported to the school principal, the principal must initiate an investigation within one school day of the report. N.J.S.A 18A:37-15(b)(6). The investigation shall be conducted by a school anti-bullying specialist, and shall take no longer than ten school days to be completed. The results of the investigation shall then be quickly reported to the superintendent of schools, who may take certain remedial actions. The results shall also be reported to the board of education "no later than the date of the board of education meeting next following the completion of the investigation, along with information on any services provided, training established, discipline imposed, or other action taken or recommended by the superintendent." Ibid.

Pursuant to the Act, the parents of the students involved in any alleged HIB incident are entitled to receive information about the nature of the investigation and the result of the investigation. The parents may request a hearing before the board, and the hearing must be held within ten days of the request. Any hearing shall be held in executive session to protect the identity of any students involved. The board may hear from the anti-bullying specialist about the incident, recommendations for discipline or services, and any programs instituted to reduce such incidents. The board must issue a decision at the first meeting after its receipt of the investigation report. The board may affirm, reject, or modify the superintendent's decision. The board's decision may be appealed to the Commissioner of Education.

Petitioners raise two issues which need be addressed.

The first issue is regarding a HIB investigation regarding C.P. In their reply brief Petitioners challenge Respondent's failure to conduct a proper HIB investigation against C.P. As Petitioners did not address the HIB findings regarding C.P. in their Petition, I shall not consider this issue as it is not before me.

The second issue is that the Board did not have jurisdiction to investigate the HIB allegation against J.C. as the incident occurred off campus.

N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.5 states:

> (a) School authorities have the right to impose a consequence on a student for conduct away from school grounds that is consistent with the district board of education's code of student conduct, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.1.
>
> 1. This authority shall be exercised only when it is reasonably necessary for the student's physical or emotional safety, security and well-being or for reasons relating to the safety, security and well-being of other students, staff or school grounds, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:25-2 and 18A:37-2.
>
> 2. This authority shall be exercised only when the conduct that is the subject of the proposed consequence materially and substantially interferes with the requirements of appropriate discipline in the operation of the school.
> 3. The consequence pursuant to (a) above shall be handled in accordance with the district board of education's approved code of student conduct, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.1, and as appropriate, in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.2, 7.3, or 7.4.
> (b) School authorities shall respond to harassment, intimidation, or bullying that occurs off school grounds, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:37-14 and 15.3 and N.J.A.C. 6A:16-1.3, 7.1, and 7.7.

Clearly the Board had jurisdiction to conduct the HIB investigation in this matter. See W.D. ex rel. G.D. v. Board of Education of Jefferson, 2018 WL 3609529 (initial decision Jul 13, 2018), adopted, No. 375-18 (Comm'r Nov. 26, 2018) where the undersigned determined that a HIB investigation regarding an off campus incident, which was adopted by the Commissioner, was not arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable.

An action by a board of education "is entitled to a presumption of correctness and will not be upset unless there is an affirmative showing that such decision was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable." Thomas v. Morris Twp. Bd. of Educ., 89 N.J. Super. 327, 332 (App. Div. 1965). Thus, in order to prevail, those challenging an HIB decision made by a board of education "must demonstrate that the Board acted in bad faith, or in utter disregard of the circumstances before it." G.H. & E.H. ex rel. K.H. v. Bd. of Educ. of the Bor. of Franklin Lakes, EDU 13204-13, Initial Decision (February 24, 2014) (citation omitted) <http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/>, adopted, Comm'r (April 10, 2014). Also, a board's decision may be overturned if its determination violates the legislative policies expressed or implied in the governing act. J.A.H. ex rel. C.H. v. Twp. of Pittsgrove Bd. of Educ., EDU 10826-12, Initial Decision (March 11, 2013) (citing Campbell v. Dep't of Civil Serv., 39 N.J. 556 (1963), 562 (1963)), adopted, Comm'r (April 25, 2013) <http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/>.

There are reported cases in which HIB determinations by boards of education have been both affirmed and overturned. In R.G.B. v. Vill. of Ridgewood Bd. of Educ., EDU 14213-12, Initial Decision (May 15, 2013) <http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/>, adopted, Comm'r (June 24, 2013), the ALJ found that the Board did not act in an arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable manner in determining that a student engaged in HIB when he repeatedly called a female student "fat," "fat ass," and "horse." According to the ALJ, such verbal statements satisfied all of the necessary elements under N.J.S.A. 18A:37-14. And, in G.H., supra, the ALJ also upheld a Board's finding that a white student who repeatedly called a black student "Kool-Aid" engaged in HIB. The ALJ found that the "use of the word 'kool-aid' was directed at [the other student] because of his race; insulted and demeaned [the other student]; and . . . interfered with [the other student's] education" because "[u]pset and embarrassed children are not fully available for learning." However, in J.A.H., supra, the Board's finding that an incident in which one student stuffed a crumbled piece of paper down the shirt of another student constituted an act of bullying was overturned as arbitrary, capricious, and unreasonable because the incident was merely a prank that was part of an ongoing, mutual conflict between the two boys and did not "contain the more serious and aggravating elements either 'expressed or implied' under [N.J.S.A. 18A:37-14.]" The ALJ found that the incident was not improperly motivated by a distinguishing characteristic and that the facts "only support[ed] a finding of ordinary student conflicts rather than the more serious behavior of bullying."

Given the facts in the instant matter, I cannot conclude that the Board acted in an arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable manner in determining that an HIB incident did occur. It is not disputed that J.C. pulled down the pants of J.K. exposing him. It is not disputed that this was done while G.E. held down J.K. The Board further determined that J.C. also exposed himself during this incident based upon the statement of J.K. and the second statement of G.E. The Board then determined that J.K. suffered emotional harm as he was required to undergo counseling due to the incident. The Board further determined that the incident disrupted the orderly operation of the school due to the harassment of J.C. and J.K., and that substantiated acts of HIB occurred against J.C. To argue to the contrary does not ring true.

Lastly, the Board determined in its HIB determination that J.C.'s conduct was motivated by J.K.'s gender. Petitioners argue there is no basis for this determination. It is certainly a reasonable conclusion that the act removing another person's pants while that person is restrained, then removing your pants, is inherently sexual and based upon the gender of the victim. It certainly is not an arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable determination.

While clearly Petitioners disagree with the Board's HIB decision in this matter, nothing the Board did, either while conducting the HIB investigation or the conclusions reached during that investigation to conclude J.C. committed an act of HIB, were arbitrary, capricious or unreasonably.

Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that petitioner has failed to sustain the burden of establishing that the Board acted arbitrarily, capriciously, or unreasonably in finding that HIB did occur.

Based upon the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that the Petition must be DISMISSED.

ORDER

It is hereby ORDERED that Petitioner's Petition be DISMISSED with prejudice.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

Pursuant to the Teacher Effectiveness and Accountability for the Children of New Jersey Act ("TEACHNJ"), P. L. 2012, c. 26, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-115 et seq. and regulations adopted thereunder by the New Jersey Department of Education ("DOE"), this Arbitrator was appointed by letter dated June 11, 2020 from Jennifer Killough-Herrera, Director, Office of Controversies and Disputes, to hear and determine arguments regarding Tenure Charges ("the Charges") filed by the Watchung Borough Board of Education ("the Board) against Christopher Riley ("Respondent").

On May 26, 2020, by letter to Lamont Repollet, the DOE's Commissioner of Education, the Board filed Tenure Charges against Respondent requesting his termination for unbecoming conduct, along with supporting documentation. On June 9, 2020, in lieu of filing an Answer, Respondent filed a Motion to Dismiss the Charges along with supporting documentation (the "Respondent's Initial Brief). On June 26, 2020, the Board filed a letter brief (the "Board's Brief") in opposition to the Motion, along with a Certification from the School District's Superintendent, George P. Alexis. On July 7, 2020, Respondent filed a letter Reply Brief (the "Respondent's Reply Brief"). At that point, briefing was closed.

Facts

The Charges allege the following:

(1) Respondent was a tenured teacher at the Valley View Middle School. On March 8, 2019, Linda MacLeod, a school guidance counselor, came upon Respondent in the school's hallway. Respondent told her he "just want[ed] to kill these sixth graders", that the students were "driving him crazy"[1], and he "just want[ed] to kill these kids". (Charges at paragraphs 5 and 6). He mentioned two students by name. Neither student was identified in the Charges (although both appear to be identified in the Investigation Notes attached to the Charges). During that conversation, Respondent banged his head against the wall and put his head in his classroom door and closed the door on his head. A hallway security camera recorded the conversation, without audio.

(2) Respondent then entered his classroom and "appeared visibly sad". (Charges at paragraph 9) The Charges did not identify who made that observation. An unidentified student subsequently reported to the paraprofessional in the room that Respondent said he "wanted to kill himself". (Charges at paragraph 10) The Charges did not identify who reported that the student talked to the paraprofessional or who reported what the student said. Other unidentified students went to the school Nurse "because they were deeply upset by what they heard and witnessed". (Charges at paragraph 11) The Charges did not identify who reported that students went to the Nurse or who provided the explanation for why they went to the Nurse.

(3) MacLeod reported Respondent's behavior to the Principal, Mary Nunn. The Nurse also reported to Principal Nunn that unidentified students came to her because they were upset by Respondent's behavior. The Charges did not identify who reported the Nurse's conversation with Principal Nunn. Principal Nunn went to Respondent's classroom where she observed him "'clenching his hand' in front of the students". (Charges at paragraph 14) She told Respondent he needed to leave his classroom, which he did.

(4) Immediately after the incident, Respondent was placed on paid Administrative leave, and directed to undergo a psychiatric evaluation by a doctor selected by the Board. In the Doctor's March 8, 2019 report, he found that, Respondent engaged in "aggressive acting out", and "fear inducing self-destructive behavior". (Charges at paragraph 19) The Doctor also concluded that the behavior was not likely to repeat itself but recommended that Respondent remain out on leave until a follow up examination was administered. In the Doctor's September 19, 2020 report of that follow up examination, he concluded that Respondent was not suffering from severe affection disorder or severe depression.

(5) On April 20, 2020, Superintendent Alexis filed tenure charges with the Board against Respondent, including supporting documentation. The Charges alleged conduct unbecoming a teaching staff member. On May 7, 2020, Respondent filed his statement of position in opposition to the Charges. On May 11, 2020, the Board held a virtual meeting and voted to uphold the Charges. The Board concluded that, based on the Charges and supporting evidence, Respondent had engaged in conduct unbecoming a teaching staff member in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10, and he failed to create a classroom environment that was conducive to learning as required under his job description.

In support of the Charges, the School District presented 21 pieces of evidence. These included, unsigned, handwritten notes that were identified in the Superintendent's Exhibit List as "Written Investigation Notes", a typed statement with MacLeod's name typed at the end, various correspondence related to Respondent's administrative leave, the examining Psychiatrist's two examination reports, School policies covering "inappropriate Staff Conduct" and the "Code of Ethics", and the video of the hallway meeting between Respondent and MacLeod, without sound.

The exhibits did not include any signed or unsigned statements or certifications from the individual(s) who investigated the incident or from any witness, including the Paraprofessional, Nurse, or Principal, all of whom are referenced in the Charges as having been involved in a portion of Respondent's alleged unbecoming behavior. The typed MacLeod notes includes only one of the specific statements the Charges allege Respondent made to her in the hallway, and it is not signed or certified. The handwritten Investigation Notes are difficult to read, do not identify who wrote them and do not identify who was reporting what the note taker was writing. Finally, the Charges and exhibits do not identify how Superintendent Alexis determined the facts set forth in the Charges.

The Respondent's Initial Position

Respondent argues that the evidence filed by the Board in support of its claim that he engaged in conduct unbecoming in fact supports his position that he did not engage in conduct unbecoming. He maintains that the evidence shows that his actions were the result of his diagnosed disability as defined under the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination. He concludes that the Board failed to make any showing that his conduct harmed the school's morale, efficiency or public perception.

Respondent asserts that the Board's Psychiatrist, in two separate examinations, found that Respondent's recovery was satisfactory, and that he was fit to return to work. Based on the Psychiatrist's findings, Respondent concludes that the Board was required to return him to work. Instead, the Board improperly substituted its unfounded fears and prejudices for the evidence-based conclusions of its chosen Psychiatrist and failed to meet its obligation to return him to his position.

Respondent maintains that the Charges are also procedurally defective, as they contain no competent, credible documentary evidence to support the allegation that Respondent engaged in conduct unbecoming. Respondent rejects the Investigation Notes, arguing they are hearsay, and points out that the Board did not identify who took the notes, any circumstance surrounding their taking, or any information regarding whether or how an investigation was conducted. Respondent also maintains that there are inconsistencies between the notes and MacLeod's typed statement.

Respondent also raises a procedural defect regarding Superintendent Alexis' presentation of the Charges, arguing that he had no firsthand knowledge regarding the facts set forth in the Charges. Respondent notes that Superintendent Alexis was the Principal at a neighboring district's High School at the time of the incident and did not fill his Superintendent roll until October 2019. As a result, he had no basis to certify that any of the facts in the charges were true.

Respondent cites and quotes two cases in support of his position that the procedural deficiencies support dismissal of the Charges:

> Matter of Bd. of Educ. of Tp. of Barnegat, Ocean Cty. and Kevin Karp , Agency Dkt. No. 102-4/16 (May 26, 2016) (Gerber, Edmund, Arb.) (dismissing tenure > charges in relevant part because "[t]he Superintendent...swore to a statement of evidence and signed under oath the tenure charges but nothing in the record indicated she directly participated in the investigation of the student's complaints or talked to any of the students and/or their parents...[N]o signed written statement by someone with direct knowledge of the alleged events was ever presented to the Board. The tenure charges were certified on the basis of double hearsay"); Matter of Tara Trongone, Bd. of Educ. of the City of Gloucester City, Camden Cty., Agency Dkt. No. 173-6/16 (Sept. 12, 2016) (De Treux, Walt, Arb.) (dismissing tenure charges in relevant part because "the sworn Statement of Evidence by [the] Superintendent...is inadequate as he had no direct knowledge [of] or participation in the investigation").

(Respondent's Initial Brief at 9, emphasis in Brief)

Finally, Respondent argues that the Charges omit and mischaracterize many key facts, documents, and other information. In particular, he asserts that the Charges fail to state that he denies threatening to kill, injure or harm any students, and omits the portions of the Psychiatrist's report that support his ability to safely return to work. He also argues that given his disability, even if he had made the alleged statements, they should not have been taken seriously as threats to act, but rather as venting frustration.

The Board's Position

The Board argues that the Charges are sufficient and should not be dismissed. It maintains that the Commissioner of Education resolved this issue in the June 11, 2020 transmittal of the matter to this Arbitrator. That transmittal stated in part:

> [F]ollowing receipt of respondent's motion to dismiss on June 9, 2020, the above captioned tenure charges have been reviewed and deemed sufficient, if true, to warrant dismissal or reduction of salary, subject to the arbitrator's decision on the motion.

(Board's Brief at 2, emphasis in Brief)

It concludes that, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.5, the Commissioner's conclusion and transmittal resolves any question regarding the sufficiency of the Charges.

The Board rejects the argument that the Charges should be dismissed because the Superintendent had no direct knowledge of the facts underlying them. In support, it offers into evidence Superintendent Alexis' June 26, 2020 Certification, which outlined the steps he took to investigate the incident after he became Superintendent. These included talking to witnesses with first-hand knowledge and reviewing the hallway video.

The Board distinguishes this case from the Karp and Trongone cases cited by Respondent. It argues that in Karp, the Charges provided no information regarding when the alleged conduct occurred, while the Charges and supporting documentation in this case, including the video, provide the specific information necessary to put Respondent on notice of the incidents that gave rise to the Charges. The Board distinguishes Trongone, arguing that, unlike the Superintendent in Trongone, Superintendent Alexis interviewed the witnesses and reviewed the exhibits prior to sending the Charges to the Board. It further asserts that the New Jersey Code does not require that the administrator who conducted the investigation sign the Certification or that the Superintendent signing the Certification have firsthand knowledge of the facts.

The Board also rejects Respondent's argument that because the Investigation notes are alleged to contain hearsay, the Charges must be dismissed. It argues that hearsay is admissible, and that it is up to the fact finder to determine the weight it should be given. It also maintains that Respondent's hearsay objection applies only to the Investigation Notes, and that the proper forum to contest the value of those notes is the hearing.

In support, the Board quotes I/M/O Tenure Hearing of Michelle Gates, Agency Dkt. No. 144-5/16 (Gerber, 2016) (quoting N.J.A.C. 1:1-15.5(b)):

> Hearsay evidence shall be admissible in a trial of contested cases. Hearsay evidence which is admitted shall be accorded whatever weight the judge deems appropriate, taking into account the nature, character and scope of the evidence, the circumstances of its creation and production and generally its reliability. While generally, in order to accord hearsay evidence its full weight, there must be a residuum of legally competent evidence to support each ultimate finding of fact, known as residuum rule.

The Board challenges Respondents numerous examples of alleged contrary facts that were not included in the Charges. It argues that Respondent's factual allegations should not be considered in deciding this Motion. Rather, they are arguments that Respondent must make at a hearing. Moreover, it points out that Respondent had the opportunity to provide his version of the facts to the Board before it made the decision, and that he exercised that right.

Finally, the Board maintains that the Charges clearly state a cause of action against Respondent for conduct unbecoming. It asserts that:

> Numerous arbitrators and the Commissioner of Education have previously held that indirectly making inflammatory remarks about students to a colleague does not insulate a teacher from discipline for "completely unprofessional" behavior. For example in Geiger, the Arbitrator held that:
> Notwithstanding [the teachers'] assertion that there was no deliberate exposure to the students or the public at large, the reality is that students did in fact hear [them] using the inflammatory term. As a result there was a direct impact to the school environment ... [and] the Commissioner finds that the [teachers] are unfit to discharge the duties and functions of their positions as teachers.I/M/O Tenure Hearing of Geiger, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 5974-12, Comm'r (Oct. 7, 2013), affirmed in part, reversed and remanded on degree of penalty, 2015 N.J. Super. Unpub. LEXIS 2649 (App.Div. Nov. 18, 2015).

(Board's Brief at 8, emphasis in Brief)

The Board cites numerous additional arbitration decisions in support of its position that the Charges state a cause of action. Finally, the Board argues and cites cases in support of its position that, while there is no explicit legal standard for what constitutes a "sufficiently flagrant" incident, tenure charges have been upheld for a single event.

The Respondent's Reply

Respondent rejects the Board's argument that, because of the Commissioner's language transmitting the Charges, the question of the Charges' sufficiency has already been resolved. In support of his position, Respondent notes that the transmittal language states that sufficiency is "subject to the arbitrator's decision on the motion".

Respondent also disputes the Board's arguments that the Charges are not procedurally defective. He asserts that Superintendent Alexis' July 26, 2020 Certification, describing the steps he took to review the evidence in this case, does not cure the procedural defect, as the Board was obligated to submit all of its supporting evidence with the Charges, and the July 26 Certification was submitted after the fact. In support, Respondent cites and quotes:

> Matter of the Tenure Arbitration Between Sch. Dist. of Camden Cty. Tech. Schs. and Brett Fetty, Agency Dkt. 173- 7 /19 at 11-12 (Sept. 3, 2019) (Zudick, Arnold H., Arb.) ("[A] board's obligation to submit all evidence it intends to rely upon when filing tenure charges is a statutory requirement... There is no provision I am aware of in the TEACHNJ statutory scheme that provides that a board can amend or supplement its original statement of evidence after filing charges in order to subsequently comply with N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11 and N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.l(b)(3) after having originally failed to comply with those statutes").

Respondent also maintains that even if the Superintendent's Certification is considered in deciding this Motion, his lack of firsthand knowledge of the facts and the investigation nonetheless renders the Charges procedurally flawed and insufficient under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11.

Respondent asserts that while his hearsay objections are focused on the Investigation Notes, those notes are central to the Boards' case, and that the video and the other submitted evidence either fails to support those notes or refutes them. He concludes that since the Investigation Notes are critical to the Charges, their abundant hearsay renders the Charges procedurally defective.

Finally, Respondent challenges the Board's claim that it was inappropriate for him to include facts in his briefs that conflict with and were not addressed by the Charges. He maintains that the inclusion of those facts illustrates the procedural defects in the Charges, as the Board was obligated to consider all of the facts relating to this incident, and its failure to do so was itself a procedural defect. Moreover, Respondent claims that the additional facts provided in his Initial Brief forcefully illustrate that the Board did not have probable cause to pursue the tenure charges against him.

Opinion

The Board initially argues that the Commissioner of Education resolved any issue regarding the Charges' sufficiency in the June 11, 2020 transmittal of the matter to this Arbitrator.[2] That transmittal stated in part:

> [F]ollowing receipt of respondent's motion to dismiss on June 9, 2020, the above captioned tenure charges have been reviewed and deemed sufficient, if true, to warrant dismissal or reduction of salary, subject to the arbitrator's decision on the motion.

However, as Respondent points out, the transmittal specifically states that the determination regarding the Charges' sufficiency is "subject to the arbitrator's decision on the motion." That final phrase clearly specifies that final determination on the Motion is left to this Arbitrator. The transmittal letter does not resolve the Motion to Dismiss.

Arbitrators have repeatedly recognized that the New Jersey statute and code set forth the minimum requirements that must be included in tenure charges and supporting evidence, and arbitrators have repeatedly granted motions to dismiss charges that failed to meet those requirements. See, Karp, Trongone, and Fetty, cited above. See also, Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Nikki Vogel, Sch. Dist. of the Tp. of Deptford, Gloucester Cty., Agency Dkt. No. 14-1/19 (May 13, 2019) (Denenberg, Tia Schneider, Arb.); Matter of the Tenure Charges Against Dawn

[2] The letter was not from the Commissioner of Education, it was from Jennifer Killough-Herrera, Director, Office of Controversies and Disputes.

Karpinski by Sch. Dist. City of Pleasantville, Atl. Cty., Agency Dkt. No. 185-8/18 (Sept. 25, 2018) (Colflesh, Ralph H., Jr., Arb.)

Those requirements are:

> N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11 - Any charge made against any employee of a board of education under tenure during good behavior and efficiency shall be filed with the secretary of the board in writing, and a written statement of evidence under oath to support such charge shall be presented to the board.
> N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.1(b)(3) - Upon referral of the case for arbitration, the employing board of education shall provide all evidence including, but not limited to, documents, electronic evidence, statements of witnesses, and a list of witnesses with a complete summary of their testimony, to the employee or the employee's representative. The employing board of education shall be precluded from presenting any additional evidence at the hearing, except for purposes of impeachment of witnesses.
> 6A:3-5.1(b) In all instances of the filing and certification of tenure charges, except charges filed against a teacher, principal, assistant principal, or vice principal for reasons of inefficiency pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3, the following procedures and timelines shall be observed:
> > 1. Charges shall be stated with specificity as to the action or behavior underlying the charges and shall be filed in writing with the secretary of the district board of education or with the State district superintendent, accompanied by a supporting statement of evidence, both of which shall be executed under oath by the person(s) instituting such charges. Complete copies of all documents referenced in the statement of evidence shall be attached as part of the statement.

Those three provisions help ensure that due process is provided to an employee subject to tenure charges. The provisions require, at a minimum, that the tenure charges are (1) stated with specificity as to the action or behavior underlying the charges and are accompanied by a supporting statement of evidence, both of which shall be executed under oath by the person(s) instituting such charges, and (2) include all evidence including, but not limited to, documents, electronic evidence, statements of witnesses, and a list of witnesses with a complete summary of their testimony. The requirement placed on the necessary detail and completeness of a tenure charge submission is emphasized by the prohibition in N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.1(b)(3), which states "[t]he employing board of education shall be precluded from presenting any additional evidence at the hearing, except for purposes of impeachment of witnesses."

To meet those requirements, it is incumbent on a school district to conduct a thorough investigation, provide a signed statement by the individual or individuals conducting the investigation detailing the investigation steps taken, provide signed witness statements from individuals who may be called to testify in support of the tenure charges, provide copies of all evidence in support of the charges, and provide a statement signed under oath by the person(s) instituting such charges detailing the action or behavior underlying the charges and the supporting statement of evidence.

The Board argues that the Charges against Respondent meet those procedural requirements. For the reasons set forth below, this Arbitrator concludes that the Charges do not meet those requirements.

The Charges and supporting evidence suffer from multiple shortcomings. First, the conclusion that Respondent's behavior constituted conduct unbecoming relies in part on the negative impact Respondent's behavior had on the students who witnessed it. However, the Charges fail to identify the person or persons who reported that Respondent's statements and conduct were heard and observed by students and had a negative impact on those students. The Charges do not identify:

> (1) who reported that when Respondent returned to the classroom, Respondent "appeared visibly sad" in front of the students,
> (2) who reported that an unidentified student[3] told the paraprofessional that Respondent said he "wanted to kill himself", and

[3] The fact that the students' identity and privacy was protected in the Charges is not fatal to the Charges. See, Karp.

(3) who reported that unidentified students went to the school Nurse "because they were deeply upset by what they heard and witnessed"?[4]

Because the Charges do not identify the source of those allegations, the Respondent is left to guess about who may be testifying regarding them.

Those shortcomings are exacerbated by the inadequate support provided by the evidence attached to the Charges. There are only three pieces of substantive evidence covering Respondent's conduct on March 8, 2019. The first is the unsigned Investigation Notes. The notes do not identify who wrote them, the writer's role in the investigation, or the source of the statements being recorded.[5] While the notes appear to contain one or more layers of hearsay, calling into question any evidentiary value they might arguably have, the inability to identify who took the notes or made the statements recorded in the notes are fatal flaws. Similarly, the lack of signed statements from any witnesses is also a fatal flaw. See, Karp and Trongone.

This leaves only MacLeod's typed statement and the video in support of what allegedly occurred on March 8, 2019. While the video speaks for itself regarding what physically occurred in the hallway, it has no audio. MacLeod's statement is unsigned with her name typed at the bottom. However, even if the typed notes were signed, they only corroborate a single statement that Respondent is alleged to have made to MacLeod – that he "just wanted to kill these kids". The typed notes do not address any of the other statements Respondent is alleged to have made to her.[6] Taken together those three pieces of evidence fail to provide sufficient support for the allegations made in the Charges and do not meet the due process requirements set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.1(b)(3), and 6A:3-5.1(b).

[4] While the Charges can be read as implying that the Nurse reported that the students were visibly upset by what they heard and witnessed, that attribution is unclear. The Charges leave open the possibility that the Nurse, Principal Nunn or some other individual was the source and support for that allegation.

[5] The notes can be interpreted as being statements MacLeod and the paraprofessional gave directly to the note taker. However, it is also possible that the notes are an account by some other person to the note taker of what MacLeod and the paraprofessional told that other person.

[6] While MacLeod's notes say that "some students witnessed some or all of what was happening" in the hallway, the notes do not address any of the Charges' specific allegations regarding what students allegedly saw or heard, or how the students reacted.

Finally, the fact that Superintendent Alexis did not have firsthand knowledge of the investigation is not in itself fatal to the Charges. However, in this case, the fact that he presented the Charges nonetheless created a procedural deficiency for two reasons. First, while the Superintendent did not necessarily need firsthand knowledge of the facts and evidence to submit the Charges, he needed to state the basis for his knowledge of the facts and evidence. The Charges are silent on that point. Superintendent Alexis' June 26, 2020 Certification cannot correct that deficiency, due to the prohibition in N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.1(b)(3) against presenting additional evidence after the submission of the Charges. See, Fetty.

Second, even if the June 26 Certification corrected that deficiency, Superintendent Alexis, had no direct knowledge, and therefore could not properly certify the Charges without basing his certification on the certified statements of the investigator(s) and witnesses who had direct knowledge. The Charges lack certified statement from anyone, and for that reason as well, Superintendent Alexis' presentation of the Charges is procedurally defective. See, Karp and Trongone.

For all the reasons set forth above, this Arbitrator finds that the Charges filed with the Board of Education and the Commissioner of Education are procedurally deficient and must be dismissed without prejudice. Respondent must be returned to his former position.

In deciding that Respondent must be returned to his former position, this Arbitrator is aware that Respondent's alleged statements and behaviors on March 8, 2019, if true, raise potential concerns regarding Respondent's future actions. However, the Board's selected Psychiatrist addressed those concerns in his second examination report dated September 19, 2019, stating:

> As of this writing, Mr. Riley, to my knowledge has had a calm and stable time since the incident in question on March [8], 2019; has remained in treatment with Mr. Woods and Dr. Park, and told me that he intends to continue indefinitely; has arranged for those two providers to comply with my recommendations for written records and feedback about Mr. Riley's treatment; and has taken two internet courses (above) to address some of his prior problems with his teaching: He has complied with my recommendations, and in my view, used his time away from teaching to good advantage.
> Putting all of these points together, (1) I reiterate a point made in my June 18, 2019 report that Mr. Christopher Riley is not likely -- for the reasons expressed in pages 11 and 12 of that report -- to repeat the March [8], 2019 episode, or one like it, in at least the reasonably foreseeable future; (2) I note that Mr. Riley has complied with my previous recommendations and continues to engage in the protective benefits of counseling/psychotherapy and psychiatric treatment....

(Statement of Evidence #14)

In reliance on the Doctor's reports, returning Respondent to his former position is the appropriate remedy in this case.

Award

> Respondent's Motion to Dismiss Tenure Charges is granted. The tenure charges are dismissed without prejudice. As the remedy, the School District is ordered to immediately reinstate Respondent Christopher Riley to his former position with full backpay, benefits, and all emoluments associated therewith, as required by law and consistent with the operative collective bargaining agreement.

STATE OF NEW JERSEY DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION

In the Matter of the TENURE Arbitration between

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF NEWARK, ESSEX COUNTY, NEW JERSEY, Petitioner,

and

GUSTAVO RIOS,
Respondent.

Docket No.: 218-8/19

OPINION AND AWARD

Before MELISSA H. BIREN, Impartial Arbitrator

OPINION

Petitioner Board of Education of the City of Newark, Essex County, New Jersey (the "District") brought tenure charges against the Respondent Gustavo Rios ("Rios") pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3 of the Teacher Effectiveness and Accountability for the Children of New Jersey Act ("TEACHNJ") alleging inefficiency and seeking Rios' termination of employment. Respondent was served with the Notice of Tenure Charges signed by Superintendent Roger Leon on July 29, 2019. The District, by its counsel Christina M. Abreu, Esq. (Weber Gallagher Simpson Stapleton Fires & Newby LLP) then filed the tenure charges with the New Jersey Department of Education ("Department") Commissioner of Education on August 26, 2019. Respondent, by his counsel Raymond M. Baldino, Esq. (Zazzali, Fagella, Nowak, Kleinbaum & Friedman PC), filed an Answer to the tenure charges on September 6, 2020. On September 13, 2019, the Department, Office of Controversies and Disputes, appointed me to serve as arbitrator pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16 to hear and decide this tenure matter.

Hearings were held at the New Jersey State Board of Mediation office hearing rooms in Newark, New Jersey on December 10, 2019, January 16, 2020, February 12, 2020, February 20, 2020 and February 21, 2020. Both parties were represented by their attorneys at the hearing. At the start of the hearing, the parties stipulated that the issue before me in this proceeding is whether the Petitioner Board of Education of the City of Newark has proven the charges of inefficiency against the Respondent, Gustavo Rios, consistent with TEACHNJ.

Both parties had full opportunity to adduce evidence, to call and cross-examine witnesses and to make argument in support of their respective positions. Over the course of the five hearing dates, the District presented six witnesses and Respondent presented three witnesses. In addition, 66 exhibits were admitted into evidence. Post hearing briefs were filed on May 18, 2020. Both parties requested, and were granted, permission to file limited responses to the other party's post-hearing brief; the responses were filed on May 26, 2020.[1] Neither party has raised any objection to the fairness of this proceeding. Whether or not expressly referred to herein, all of the evidence adduced, arguments set forth and authorities cited by the parties have been fully considered in the preparation and issuance of this Opinion and Award.

Background:

Respondent, Gustavo Rios, is a tenured teacher for the Newark Public Schools. He began his employment with the District in 2003. He received a standard certificate to teach mathematics in 2002 and a standard certificate as a teacher of bilingual bicultural education in 2007. (Respondent Exhibit 3.) His first assignment for the Newark Schools was as a bilingual math teacher at Barringtion High School from 2003 to 2013, at which time Rios became an Educator Without Placement Site ("EWPS").

As the name implies, an EWPS is a tenured teacher without a permanent position. As an EWPS, the District assigns the teacher to schools at the start of each school year to provide additional support or assistance, often co-teaching with two licensed teachers in the classroom. The teacher remains on the District's budget rather than the school budget. After becoming an EWPS, Rios was assigned to several different schools and grades. He taught sixth and eighth grade bilingual math classes and health at Park Elementary School for the 2013-2014 school year. In the following school year, 2014-2015, Rios was assigned to William Horton Elementary School, teaching seventh and eighth grade mathematics and science.[2] In the 2016-2017 school year Rios was assigned to George Washington Carver Elementary School as a bilingual math teacher in the first grade, working with another first grade teacher. In 2017-2018, still working as an EWPS, Rios was assigned to the Abington Avenue Elementary School ("Abington School") and in 2018-2019, Rios was assigned to the Oliver II School ("Oliver II"). These tenure charges arise from Rios' ratings of partially effective and ineffective in his annual summative evaluations for the 2017-2018 school year at Abington School and the 2018-2019 school year at Oliver H, respectively.[1] Details regarding Rios' assignment at each of these schools are set forth in the discussion of each school year below.

Evaluation Framework:

The goal of TEACHNJ is to "raise student achievement by improving instruction through the adoption of evaluations that provide specific feedback to educators, inform the provision of aligned professional development, and inform personnel decisions." N.J.S.A. 18A:6-118. Teachers in the District are evaluated based on the Framework for Effective Teaching (the "Framework"). Dr. Yolanda Mendez ("Mendez"), Executive Director for Human Resources for the District, testified that the Framework was approved by the Department pursuant to the requirements of TEACHNJ to be used by the District for evaluating teacher performance.

The Framework sets forth five categories of teacher performance, called Competencies. These include the following: a) Competency 1 – Lesson Design and Focus; b) Competency 2 – Rigor and Inclusiveness; c) Competency 3 – Culture of Achievement; d) Competency 4 – Student Progress towards Mastery; and e) Competency 5 – Commitment to Personal and Collective Excellence. Each competency then includes several indicators related to the evaluation of the competency.

As set forth in the Guidebook for Teachers and Administrators for both 2016-2017 and 2018-2019 (the "Guide"), the Framework allows administrators "to assess a wide variety of evidence in determining whether or not a teacher is meeting expectations and if his or her students have met the student learning goals SGOs." (District Exhibits 70 and 71 at page 15.) The Guide provides that observations are not the only mechanism to collect evidence of teacher performance as related to each of the indicators. Other evidence can include such items as "student learning data, student work, and other artifacts of the teacher's practice" to allow for "a more complete picture of the teacher's effectiveness across all five

[1] The instant tenure charges initially included the 2016-2017 school year, at the start of the hearing, the District withdrew those charges, except to the extent that the rating for that year established the basis for the CAP in 2017-2018.

Competencies." Id. The evidence for the teacher evaluation is informed by four basic components, including:

- Goal-Setting Conference to develop student learning goals SGOs and professional development goals which are captured on the Individual Professional Development Plan (IPDP) or Corrective Action Plan (CAP);
- Classroom observations, including pre-observations (as appropriate) and post observation conferences;
- Mid-year conferences to examine evidence and data to assess progress towards student learning and professional development goals; and
- Annual conferences to examine all evidence and assign final ratings.

The Guide provides that observers are "encouraged to observe teachers in the classroom as often as they think is helpful for the purposes of both providing feedback for the teacher's development and collecting evidence to assign ratings at the mid-year review and annual evaluation." (District Exhibits 70 and 71 at p. 17.) Administrators make observations through informal observations of the teacher and his/her classroom, or walk-throughs conducted "over time", i.e., throughout the school year, as well as through formal observations. Tenured teachers must receive at least two formal classroom observations, i.e., observations of at least 20 minutes in length, up to the entire duration of the lesson. Tenured teachers on a CAP[3] must receive three formal observations. Observations can be announced or unannounced. An announced observation is scheduled in advance and includes a pre-observation conference with the teacher where the lesson elements can be discussed with the teacher. An unannounced observation is not scheduled in advance and does not include a pre-observation conference. Teachers are required to have at least one announced and one unannounced observation each year. A post observation conference is required for all formal observations, whether or not announced. Teachers on a CAP must be observed by at least two different observers over the course of the school year.

Depending on the length of the observation, it is considered a "short" or a "long" formal observation. During a short formal observation, the evaluator is not required to rate all of the competencies and indicators; rather, the teacher is rated on the indicators for which evidence was observed during the lesson. For a long formal observation, Competencies 1 to 4 are generally rated.[1] The indicators are rated as either highly effective, effective, partially effective or ineffective. If an indicator is rated, the corresponding competency must also be rated. Points are assessed based on the ratings provided for each competency. Formal observation ratings are entered into EdReflect and are shared and discussed with the teacher at the post observation conference. Teachers may submit rebuttals to the observation ratings.

The mid-year evaluation, required for a teacher on a CAP, provides an opportunity to discuss the teacher's progress towards meeting student and professional goals set at the start of the year, and to modify those goals if appropriate. In completing the mid-year evaluation the administrator considers all evidence gathered for the school year prior to the evaluation, including formal observations as well as over time indicators, providing a rating on all competencies including all indicators of Competency 4 as well as Competency 5. Competency 5 is rated differently than the other four competencies. The ratings for Competency 5 are: Exceeds Expectations; Meeting Expectations; Slightly Below Expectations; and Significantly Below Expectations.

The annual summative evaluation, required for all teachers, is a "final assessment of progress towards both the teacher's professional goals and the student learning goals SGOs that were set at the start of the year." (District Exhibits 70 and 71 at p. 21.) The annual summative evaluation also rates the teacher on all competencies based on all evidence gathered throughout the year, including formal observations and over time indicators. The District received approval from the Department to include the required assessment relative to SGOs (Student Growth Outcomes) as part of Competency 4 in the annual summative evaluation. The overall rating is based on the total number of points received for all of the competencies as follows: Highly Effective (17-19 points); Effective (13-16 points); Partially Effective (8-12 points); or Ineffective (0-7 points).

Mendez testified that administrators are trained each August on the Framework. Teachers are also provided information on the Framework's rubric at the start of each year and through the Professional Learning Committees ("PLC") and the School Improvement Panel ("SIP") at each school. Both administrators and teachers are provided a copy of the Guide, which is also on the District website. Administrator training includes "norming" sessions to be sure that all administrators in all District schools evaluate teachers in a consistent manner. As Mendez testified, the goal is to assure that throughout the District, regardless of school, grade, subject matter, individual administrator or teacher, "our lens of effective or partially effective or ineffective, the definition in the rubric is consistent, normed, and calibrated." (2.12.20 Tr. at 15.) The training regarding the Framework continues throughout the school year. Indeed, each of the administrators testifying on the District's behalf confirmed that he/she received training on the Framework each year and that he/she is familiar with the Framework used to evaluate teachers in the District.

2017-2018 School Year – The Abington Avenue School:

Rios was assigned to Abington School in September 2017. Nelson Ruiz ("Ruiz"), the principal of Abington School, testified that when Rios arrived, he assigned Rios to a seventh and eighth grade bilingual classroom. He was assigned to teach math; another teacher in the classroom, Vidian Velez ("Velez"), taught the students English Language Arts ("ELA") as well as System 44, a program designed to support students in vocabulary and reading. Rios' direct supervisor was Alex Echevarria ("Echevarria"), a Vice-Principal.

At the start of the year, there were 19 students; the roster grew to approximately 23 students during the course of the school year. Rios and Velez taught the same students and shared a classroom. Accordingly, when Rios was teaching math to the seventh graders, Velez was teaching ELA to the eighth grade students in the same room. A classroom schedule introduced into evidence for this class was the student schedule, not the teacher schedule (District Exhibit 27.) Ruiz explained that Rios was not responsible for Homeroom or the "special" classes (art, gym, Spanish, Music); when students attended these classes, Rios had a preparation period or a PLC meeting. He was also not responsible for ELA or System 44. Rios testified, however, that he was not told he could leave the classroom when ELA was taught (but not math) and that he assisted Velez in teaching the System 44 class, working with small groups. Rios and Velez shared the display space in the classroom, with half of it devoted to math and the other half to ELA.

Because Rios received an overall rating of ineffective in the annual summative evaluation for the 2016-2017 school year, he was required to have a corrective action plan or CAP for the 2017-2018 school year. Ruiz and Echevarria both explained that completion of the CAP is a collaborative process, although it is controlled by the teacher. The teacher completes the CAP, identifying his/her professional goals and goals for student achievement. The teacher selects indicators to work on during the school year and the goals for student growth outcomes or SGOs. When the teacher is ready to share the CAP with the administrator, the administrator reviews the CAP with the teacher, discusses it and, if appropriate, makes recommendations for modification. The administrator does not, however, make any modifications or additions to the CAP. When the teacher finalizes the CAP, it is sent to the administrator for final sign-off. The CAP can be modified at mid-year to adjust for any changes that may be deemed appropriate.

Rios was already on a CAP prior to arriving at Abington School. That CAP had to be modified for the new assignment. Rios made the changes to the CAP that he deemed appropriate. He selected two indicators to work on during the year, these included indicator (d) under Competency 1, Clarity, and indicator (e) under Competency 2, Responsiveness. With respect to the SGO, Rios indicated that "[b]y June 2018, 15 over 19 students will prove mastery in Standard 7NSA1C" and that "[b]y June 2018, 15 over 19 students will prove mastery in Standard 7NSA1B." (District Exhibit 9.) In setting the SGOs, Rios indicated that based on testing done early in the school year in these areas, at the start of the school year:

> 2/19 are well prepared to perform well in this level. 10/19 need to work harder than the first two in order to understand and meet the requires for this level. Finally 7/19 are not ready and need to work more harder than the others but if they came to class every day, participate, do the HWS, and ask for tutoring they will improve the percentage to pass this class significantly.

(District Exhibit 9.) Echevarria reviewed the data with Rios and approved the CAP, testifying that the SGO would be reviewed again at the mid-year evaluation to determine whether students were making progress towards the goal and if necessary, adjust the goal at that time. This was the CAP that Rios signed in the EdReflect system. The CAP was not modified at the mid-year evaluation.

Echevarria testified that Rios received professional development and support during the course of the school year. Professional development was provided at the District and the school level. There are Staff Development Days for professional development. In addition, the School Improvement Panel met with teachers. PLCs were held once a week at the school level. Some involved more general training, such as use of rich tasks, silent signals and other best practices. Others were directly connected to content areas, including literacy, math, science and bilingual education. (District Exhibit 28.)

Several other training opportunities were offered to Rios, as well as other teachers in the school, including a webinar on rich tasks that the math coach provided to the teachers, including Rios, and that Echevarria separately provided by email to Rios. (District Exhibits 21 and 22.) The math coach in the school facilitated training and was available to meet with teachers, including Rios, during the course of the year. Echevarria did not know if Rios took advantage of all of the learning opportunities that were offered to him. Other professional development, however, was provided to Rios individually. Arrangements were made for Rios to observe another math teacher on multiple occasions and to meet with Echevarria to discuss the lesson modeling he observed. In addition, an instructional specialist from the District math department and Echevarria met with Rios to provide coaching on at least one occasion. Echevarria met with Rios to discuss the coaching session and provide guidance based on his observations. (District Exhibit 23, 24 and 25.)

Rios' Evaluations - 2017-2018 School Year:

In the 2017-2018 school year, Rios received three formal observations, all unannounced. In addition, Ruiz and Echevarria conducted informal observations, or over time indicators. Rios also received a mid-year evaluation and an annual summative evaluation reflecting all of the evidence gathered in the course of the school year.

a. Informal Observations:

Ruiz testified that while he did not perform any of the formal observations of Rios' teaching, he conducted informal rounds, once per quarter. The rounds were done in collaboration with a cohort administrator for Rios. Echevarria accompanied Ruiz during these informal observations. The informal rounds look at "classroom instruction, classroom environment, classroom organization, student work, and student data, performance data; how they're doing throughout the year." (12/10/19 Tr. at 40.) Feedback was provided to Rios verbally.

Ruiz testified that Rios generally had a small group of students, teaching one-half of the 7th 8th grade class at a time. He made the following observations during his informal rounds: (a) Rios knew the math content well; (b) Rios' instruction was not always aligned to the yearlong pacing guide; (c) the lesson objective was not always met; (d) Rios called on students who raised their hands, but other students did not participate; (e) for students who were not participating, Rios did not check for understanding; (f) Rios did not use silent signals, notwithstanding that teachers received training on use of silent signals; and (g) Rios did not properly implement the use of rich tasks, a central core piece of a lesson intended to allow the students to think independently and to use their prior knowledge. (12-10-19 Tr. at 40-42, 107.)

In addition, Ruiz testified that in the bilingual class, students were at different levels of English proficiency, as determined by the ACCESS assessment taken annually. Students were placed in tiers, ranging from those with little or no English proficiency to those who had greater proficiency; the goal of bilingual education is to prepare students to learn in English, particularly as these students would soon be attending high school where they would be immersed in the English language. Accordingly, the expectation in teaching a bilingual class is not to teach primarily in one language, but rather, to balance the use of English and Spanish based on these groupings. Ruiz noted that there are times a bilingual teacher would teach mainly in English and less in Spanish, particularly because these students would be moving to high school. Ruiz observed that "Rios was more comfortable teaching in Spanish. He did know the content, and he taught in Spanish, and he did answer or translate when asked or if needed be, but it was not to the standard." (12-10-19 Tr. at 44.) The standard, with a group at this grade level, is generally teaching approximately "70% in English and 30% in Spanish, translations into Spanish would be made as appropriate. Rios taught 80-90% in Spanish. According to Ruiz, Rios was advised to achieve more balance, but his performance in this regard did not change." Rios testified that no one ever discussed differentiating instruction based on English proficiency and noted that it was not set forth in his CAP. Ruiz testified, however, that it was not in his CAP because it was not one of his goals.

Echevarria testified that he usually stopped into the classrooms two to three times per week for just a minute or two. During those brief interactions, he made observations as to what was happening in the classroom, such as whether students were doing their work and were following instructions. He jotted down notes from these informal observations over time which were then part of the evidence used in completing the mid-year and annual summative evaluations.

[7] Ruiz testified on cross-examination that the instructional goal of teaching 70% in English and 30% in Spanish was not one of the goals Rios set for his professional growth. Nonetheless, it could impact his evaluations because it impacted such items as clarity under Competency 1(c), and tailored (or differentiated) instruction under Competency 2(a). Ruiz could not speak to whether this issue was raised in the formal observations but reiterated that it was discussed verbally with Rios.

b. Formal Observation – November 8, 2017:

Echevarria conducted an unannounced formal observation on November 8, 2017. He observed Rios teach a seventh grade bilingual math lesson for 25 minutes and rated Rios on Competency 2, indicators 2(b) (Questions and Tasks) and 2(c) (Responsiveness), as well as Competency 4, indicators 4(a) (Checks for Understanding), 4(b) (Feedback) and 4(c) Demonstration of Learning. Each of these indicators was rated effective, with an overall effective rating for the observation. He also noted that students were completing a Do Now when Echevarria entered the room and that they were all engaged in the tasks planned for them. (District Exhibit 10.) Echevarria met with Rios for a post observation conference. Rios signed the evaluation form.

c. Formal Observation – February 6, 2018:

Echevarria conducted an unannounced formal observation on February 6, 2018. Rios was teaching an eighth grade bilingual math class with 12 students. Because he observed for a full period, he was able to rate Rios on four competencies. The overall rating was partially effective. Detailed comments were provided as to each indicator rated based on the evidence observed in the lesson.

Echevarria testified that he rated Rios effective for Competency 1(d), Clarity, which was one of his CAP goals. This rating, therefore, was directly aligned to his CAP. His instructions were clear, given largely in English with Spanish translation. Rios did not perform as well in the other indicators for Competency 1, spending too much time on one component of the lesson, and not allowing students opportunities to elaborate or explain their thinking. He received a partially effective rating for 1(a) (Lesson Sequence), 1(b) (Lesson Components) and 1(c) (Pacing and Momentum). He testified that he did not see students given an opportunity to really struggle and to explain their thinking. Unlike the first time he was formally observed, students were not engaged in a Do Now. Nor did Rios use a rich task. The lesson did not allow all students to move closer to mastery.

For Competency 2, Echevarria rated Rios effective for indicator 2(b), Questions and Tasks. He received a partially effective rating on indicators 2(a) (Tailored Instruction), 2(c) (Responsiveness) and 2(d) (Precision & Evidence). Responsiveness was the second area connected to Rios' CAP. Echevarria noted that Rios should cold call students that were not raising their hands to respond to non-participating students and hold them accountable for the learning. Echevarria also noted that Rios did not group students in a strategic manner; even though he was teaching math, he should group students based on English language proficiency as a way to better respond to them. He also noted that Rios should post the objective in Spanish and English so that students could master math content easier. This would also allow students who are more proficient in English to move on and continuing progressing through the tasks without having to stop instruction for one group to start instruction for another. As to tailored instruction, he noted that some students did not participate when the teacher asked for student responses and that Rios goes from Spanish to English when addressing the whole class when he could group students according to language proficiency.

For Competency 3, Rios was rated as effective for indicators 3(a) (Enthusiasm for Learning), 3(c) (Community) and 3(d) (Attention). Echevarria testified that the students were happy to be there and felt satisfied at completing tasks. He received a partially effective rating for indicator 3(b) (Persistence) because students did not all show persistence in confronting the tasks and did not all meet the objective. Rios did not allow the students to struggle through the tasks to hold them accountable to work through difficult skills and concepts and to be able to accurately assess where they were and how to move them forward.

For Competency 4, no strengths were noted. He received a partially effective rating for indicator 4(a) (Checks for Understanding) and 4(b) (Feedback). Echevarria noted that Rios only sometimes checked for understanding. His checks for understanding were incomplete, asking if there were questions and when none were raised, he moved on even though there were students observed who did not understand. In providing assistance, he restated what he said previously, a little slower and louder, but did not provide the student the opportunity to restate the explanation. As to feedback, Echevarria indicated that feedback is "academically focused and appropriate" but was not tailored to the needs of individual students and was teacher directed. Echevarria testified that it is the expectation that teachers will check for understanding for the majority of students in the class and that use of exit tickets or a simple clipboard as the teacher walks around are methods to assess and check for understanding. (District Exhibit 11.)

Rios received an overall rating of partially effective for this observation. A post observation conference was held where Echevarria reviewed his findings with Rios. Rios refused to sign the observation; another vice-principal was called in to provide a witness signature.

d. Mid-Year Evaluation:

Echevarria prepared Rios' mid-year evaluation and met with Rios on February 15, 2018 to discuss the evaluation. The mid-year evaluation incorporated the two formal observations as well as informal observations over time. Using this evidence, he created an average rating for each indicator in the framework, including those rated only in the mid-year and annual summative evaluations. Based on the evidence over the first five months of school, Rios received a partially effective rating for a total of 10 points. The evaluation contained detailed observations as to the strengths and areas of growth in the five competencies. (District Exhibit 12.)

Echevarria testified that Competency 1(d) (Clarity) was noted as a strength, which was directly tied to Rios' CAP. He wanted to see growth through the remainder of the year on lesson sequence, lesson components and pacing and momentum. In Competency 2, his strength was in Questions and Tasks; growth was needed on Tailoring Instruction, Responsiveness and Depth of Knowledge. For Competency 3, Echevarria noted that Rios' strengths were in Enthusiasm for Learning, Community and Attention; Persistence remained a growth area. In Competency 4, no strengths were noted; growth areas included Checks for Understanding and Feedback.

The mid-year evaluation also addressed student progress on the SGO set forth in the CAP in Competency 4(f). According to Echevarria, there were now 21 students in the class. Rios provided the information to update student progress. As set forth in the evaluation, that data indicated that at this point in the year: "7 21 are well prepared to perform well in this level. 8 21 need to work harder than the first two in order to understand and meet the requires for this level. Finally, 6 21 are not ready and need to work more harder than the others but if they came to class every day, participate, do the HW and ask for tutoring they will improve the percentage to pass this class significantly." (District Exhibit 12.) The evaluation concluded that per these three results, the teacher and the class were making progress and on track to meeting the year end goal set in the CAP in September.

For Competency 5, which is also rated only in the mid-year and annual summative evaluation, Echevarria noted as follows:

> Commitment to continuous improvement: The teacher is struggling to implement the recommendations that were made in his CAP at the end of last year. This year he has struggled implementing some of the recommendations that have been provided by me at our post observation conferences. The teacher should be aware of different resources he can utilize for his professional growth as well as incorporate feedback given and use resources available to him here at the school. (Partially Effective.)

(District Exhibit 12.) Echevarria testified that he wanted to see Rios get better and that he told Rios to continue to work on improving the areas where he was rated partially effective.

Echevarria met with Rios regarding the mid-year evaluation on February 15, 2018. They reviewed the evaluation and again discussed Rios' CAP; no changes were made to his CAP as a result of the mid-year evaluation. Rios expressed concern about the ratings but did not express disagreement. He did not sign the evaluation.

e. Formal Observation – March 23, 2018:

On March 23, 2018, Rios was observed by another administrator at Abington School, Sandra Heintz ("Heintz"), a Vice-Principal. She undertook this observation as a second observer; she was not Rios' supervisor. She did not review his records in advance nor did Echevarria share his prior findings with Heintz because he did not want to influence her views in any way. She assumed, however, that Rios was on a CAP due to the need for a second observer. The observation was a formal one, but again unannounced. Heintz observed the eighth grade bilingual math class for 30 minutes and provided ratings in Competencies 1 and 3. Rios was rated partially effective in this observation. (District Exhibit 13.)

Heintz testified, and the observation report reflected, that Rios used both English and Spanish in this lesson; while most of the lesson was in English, he translated into Spanish throughout the lesson. Heintz, who in not fluent in Spanish, testified that having grown up in south Texas in a Spanish speaking area, she understands "enough Spanish to usually get the gist of what's being said." (1/16/20 Tr. at 80.) Indeed, in listing Rios' strengths for Competency 1(d), Clarity, she wrote, in part, that "[t]he teacher explained everything well to student in both English and Spanish ensuring that all the students had access to the information and that they understood it clearly." (District Exhibit 13.) His rating for Clarity, as well as for Lesson Sequence was effective.

Nonetheless, other indicators for Competency 1, along with the rating for Competency 3 were rated partially effective. According to Heintz, Rios' biggest issue was student engagement. He did not use student engagement strategies for academic discourse. He did not use silent signals, something that the entire school had been trained to use. Most of the lesson involved Rios speaking. There was one student who was actively involved, and Rios spoke mostly with that student; other students were not engaged, were not paying attention and appeared disinterested or bored. The climate in the classroom, the way the lesson was actually designed and facilitated, prohibited the children from accessing the learning objective. Classroom norms were inconsistently enforced and students were not redirected to pay attention. In addition, opportunities were not provided for students to turn and talk or otherwise grapple with the math problems on their own.

A post observation conference was held where Heintz reviewed her findings and asked if Rios had any questions. He responded that he did not have questions. He did not sign the observation; Echevarria signed as a witness. At no time did Rios tell Heintz that he did not use Spanish because she was observing and that this caused his students not to understand and be engaged. Heintz also testified that she did not tell Rios to change his teaching approach – to use only English – when she arrived in the classroom to observe.

Rios submitted a rebuttal to the evaluation on May 1, 2018. (Respondent Exhibit 16.) In the rebuttal, Rios expressed disagreement with the conclusions Heintz reached and the ratings he received. In particular, he did not understand why his rating for Community was partially effective, when it was rated effective in a prior observation. He also disagreed that he provided only minimal explanation of the lesson objectives and that he did not include rich tasks. While claiming he received no training on rich tasks, he stated that he routinely included rich tasks from the District's website. Rios' rebuttal did not state that he did not use Spanish in the lesson.

f. Annual Summative Evaluation:

Echevarria provided Rios' annual summative evaluation on April 6, 2018, meeting with him on April 20, 2018. Echevarria explained that it is District policy for the evaluation to be completed in April rather than in June for tenured teachers on a CAP in order to be able to make early determinations for the following year. Echevarria testified that the rating is based on all of the evaluations, including formal and informal observations and the teacher's progress over the course of the year. In completing the evaluation, Echevarria testified that he considers the trajectory of the teacher's ratings over the year and whether there was an upward or downward slope.

Echevarria testified that in Rios' case, it was not an upward trajectory. Indeed, even in areas where he was rated effective at the start of the year, the rating went down as the year progressed. For example, his rating for Community was effective at the start of the school year, but was only partially effective at the end because the community started to break down; by the mid-year evaluation, Rios was becoming concerned about his ratings because he was on a CAP and there was a shift in attitude impacting community in the classroom.

The annual summative evaluation rated all competencies. Rios was rated effective for Clarity, Coherent Planning and Progression of Instruction under Competency 1, but only partially effective for Lesson Sequence, Lesson Components and Pacing and Momentum. No strengths (or effective ratings) were given for Competency 2; Rios received a partially effective rating for all indicators under Competency 2. He received an effective rating for Enthusiasm for Learning under Competency 3, but all other indicators were rated partially effective. All indicators for Competency 4 were rated partially effective. The evaluation included a rating for all indicators in that competency, including 4(f) which addresses the SGOs that Rios set for the year; he received a partially effective. While students were making progress, only 8 of the original 19 student in the class had mastered the concepts.[1] For Competency 5, Rios was rated effective for Collaboration and Attendance and Promptness, but only partially effective for Commitment to Continuous Improvement and Communication of Student Progress. Details were provided to support the ratings.

[1] Greater detail regarding the calculation of mastery under the SGO will be addressed in the Discussion section below.

Rios' overall rating was partially effective, with a total of eight points. Rios disagreed with the rating and did not sign the evaluation.

Rios' Testimony – Abington School:

Rios testified that as an EWPS, he was not treated well at Abington School (or at the other schools where he worked as an EWPS). He had many complaints about his assignment and treatment. At Abington School (as well as at Washington Carver and Oliver II), Rios claimed that he was not provided a desk or a chair and, therefore, that he was unable to sit the entire day or have a place to put his personal belongings. On cross-examination, however, he admitted that he was never told that he could not sit during the day nor was he prohibited from putting his personal belongings in the closet. He also did not request a locker in the teachers' room. Rios further testified that in his position as a teacher, he did not believe it appropriate to sit. Rios testified that he was not provided a computer. He acknowledged, however, that he was permitted to use the computer in the room for things other than using PowerTeacher. With respect to PowerTeacher, a District computer system for tracking attendance and grading, Rios testified that he was not given his own access code; he had to use Velez's code to input grades. According to Rios, Velez would allow him to enter grades while she was with him in the classroom. Echevarria explained, and Rios confirmed in his testimony, that access to PowerTeacher is only provided to the homeroom teacher. Because Velez, not Rios, was the homeroom teacher, she was the teacher with the access code for that class.[7]

Rios testified that he taught three math classes each day and stayed in the classroom when Velez taught a combined 7/8/11A class; he was not told it was a prep period. He also assisted with small groups in the System 44 class, a computer program designed to improve English language skills. During System 44, the students were working individually at stations; he and Velez would monitor and assist students as needed. Rios testified, however, that he was not provided with the System 44 materials to review in order to prepare. He acknowledged, however, that he never asked to be able to take the materials home. According to Rios, assisting in System 44 was stressful because he did not feel prepared and was embarrassed if a student asked a question he could not answer.

[7] As will be discussed, Rios was provided with the access code for PowerTeacher when he taught middle school grades at Oliver II because he was the homeroom teacher for that semester.

Rios also testified that he was required to cover other classes repeatedly in several circumstances. First, Rios testified that he, rather than Velez, would escort the class to specials, including art, gym, music and Spanish, and that frequently, the specials teacher would be absent when he arrived and he had to take the class back and remain with the class the entire time; he was not qualified to teach any of these classes. As a result, he missed numerous prep periods. Rios confirmed that this also happened to the other teachers at the school and he admitted that at no time was he told that he was required to teach the class that the students were missing. He did not file any grievance regarding the missed preparation periods.

Second, Rios testified that he was repeatedly asked to cover classes for teachers who were absent, either for a whole day or a partial day. According to Rios, he covered other classes three to four days per week, missing teaching math on 20 to 25 occasions as a result. In fact, he testified that there were times that he was called out to cover a class while in the middle of teaching a lesson and while Velez was teaching the other group ELA. He kept track of the coverages for the period of October 4, 2017 through February 13, 2018. During that over four-month period, Rios' records show that he was called to cover a class on 18 occasions. Only three were full days; most of the remainder were for one period, with a few for two periods. Rios testified that he stopped keeping track because after complaining to Echevarria and telling him that his students were worried that he was not there to teach them math, Echevarria told him that he appreciated Rios' willingness to cover and that Rios was doing good for the school. He testified, however, that once he stopped keeping track in February, he covered even more classes. Both Ruiz and Echevarria acknowledged that on occasion, Rios was asked to cover for absent teachers when they needed coverage; a licensed teacher had to be with students at all times and there were two teachers in his classroom. Both denied that this occurred regularly or often.

Third, Rios claimed that he missed many classes because he was required to assist with testing. He was required to proctor PARCC tests and ACCESS tests over a month or so. Echevarria testified that Rios was required to assist with testing; all teachers are required to do so. It would not have been for a full month. Heintz, who is responsible for coordinating testing at Abington School, testified that many teachers are selected to proctor the PARCC exams which went on for three weeks. She stated that it is the reality of testing in New Jersey. The school must use all licensed teachers who can be made available, including the ESL teacher, the teachers of special classes (art, music, etc.) and teachers like Rios who was the second licensed teacher in the classroom. During the two weeks that his class was not testing, Velez would have been responsible for covering his math, notwithstanding that he was the primary math teacher for the class. With respect to the Access tests, they were done mostly by ESL teachers, not by Rios.

Rios also testified that he was not provided with bilingual materials to use in the classroom. Indeed, other than at Barrington High School, the District did not provide bilingual materials for his use. Such materials were only available at the high school level. Accordingly, he testified that he spent hours and hours and weekends translating materials to prepare for class.[7] He testified that he had to translate all materials into Spanish and print the materials for his students and that the time involved was extensive.

As to the CAP, as will be discussed more fully in the Discussion section, Rios claimed that "mastery" as set forth in the CAP meant achieving a passing grade of 65 or higher. He acknowledged that he met with Echevarria to discuss the CAP, including growth areas and the SGOs. Rios testified that the CAP did not mention rich tasks nor did the CAP mention differentiated instruction based on English proficiency.

With respect to his formal observations, Rios testified that rich tasks were not mentioned to him until after the February 6, 2018 observation by Echevarria. He implemented the two recommendations that were made in that evaluation. As to the March 23, 2018 observation by Heintz, Rios claimed that because he knew Heintz did not understand Spanish, he spoke to his students only in English. Because no Spanish was used in the lesson, the students did not understand and for that reason, they were not engaged. As to his annual summative evaluation, he disputed that the SGOs were not met based on using a grade of 65 percent or higher as the measure for mastery. He also testified that Echevarria was not as friendly to him after he refused to grade Spanish papers, believing that this could be the reason for Echevarria's lower ratings in the annual summative evaluation.

Towards the end of the school year, Rios wrote a letter to Ruiz in response to Ruiz's request that he advise as to what he would like to do in the following school year. He indicated that he should be given the same training and support given to other math teachers in the building and would want to work with a math coach; he stated that he did not work with a math coach during the 2017-2018 school year. He also claimed he did not receive any training on rich tasks and would need such training to know how to do it in the same way that the other teachers were trained. He asked for guidance in other areas as well, including teaching in a multi-grade classroom and differentiating instruction based on English proficiency claiming that he received no guidance on these issues. He also took issue with the lower rating for community in the annual summative evaluation, noting that he needed to understand why the sudden shift in the rating from effective at the start of the year to partially effective. (Respondent Exhibit 9.)

2018-2019 School Year – Oliver II School:

Rios was assigned to the Oliver II for the 2018-2019 school year. He did not receive this assignment until a few days after the school year started for teaching staff. Oliver II is an elementary school that opened in September 2018 with grades pre-kindergarten, 1, 6, 7 and 8; the students in the middle school grades were newcomers. Oliver II was part of Oliver I Elementary School, although it was located in a separate building; the two buildings were about four doors away from each other. The principal of Oliver I and Oliver II was Dr. Douglas Petty ("Petty"). His office was at Oliver I but he was at Oliver II at least once per day. Day-to-day supervision at Oliver II was the responsibility of Viviana Rodriguez ("Rodriguez") who was the Vice Principal.[1] Rodriguez was Rios' direct supervisor.

When Rios arrived at the school, he advised that his focus was teaching math. He was assigned to teach math and science to the sixth, seventh and eighth grade bilingual class. While the initial plan for the middle school students was to split the students by grade, Petty decided to split the class by content area in order to allow Rios to work where his strengths were; therefore, he was assigned math and science, rather than ELA and social studies. Another teacher was assigned to teach ELA and social studies, although for a short time at the start of the year, they did not have a teacher for the ELA social studies content. Rodriguez testified that for that short time, Rios had the students all day, but was not required to teach

[1] At the time of the hearing, Rodriguez was the Vice Principal of the Peshine Avenue School. Petty is no longer with the District

ELA or social studies; he could teach in the content areas assigned. After two weeks, another teacher was assigned to teach the students ELA and social studies. At that point, Rios taught two periods of math, two of science and one small group math instruction.[1]

At the start of the winter holiday break in December, the decision was made to dismantle the newcomers' program and to transfer all of the middle school students from Oliver II to other schools throughout the District, leaving only pre-kindergarten and first grade at Oliver II. While Rios testified that he was advised he would likely be transferred when this change occurred, he was not transferred. Rather, at the start of January, he was assigned as a co-teacher in Maria Kadus' ("Kadus") first grade classroom. Petty checked with Human Resources at the District to confirm that Rios could teach in first grade and was advised that Rios held a standard license in math and bilingual bicultural education and that "he is able to teach grades P-12." (District Exhibit 65.)

Although this first grade class was not formally designated a bilingual class, many of the students spoke Portuguese or Spanish. Kadus, who spoke both languages, was able to translate into Portuguese as necessary and Rios was able to translate into Spanish as needed. Rios indicated that it was not clear to either Kadus or to him what his assignment was in the classroom, but upon learning that Rios' strength was math, the two decided that Rios would teach the students math, with Kadus assisting. When Kadus taught the other subjects, Rios assisted. Kadus, as the homeroom teacher, continued to do all the planning for all of the subjects. Kadus testified that Rios could modify the math lesson plans or deliver the lessons differently if he felt it appropriate; he had access to the materials, chapter tests and artifacts.

Rodriguez testified that in addition to her meetings with Rios throughout the year (see Informal Observations below), Rios received professional development and coaching from various sources, including a teacher coach, grade level colleagues, PLCs, SIP meetings and from the administration. Isel Stavrou ("Stavrou") was the coach at Oliver II for ELA and math; there was also a math coach at Oliver I who met with Rios when he was teaching math to the middle school students in the fall. Stavrou provided coaching and guidance to Rios regarding assessment tests for the middle school students. (District Exhibit 30.) She visited Rios' class and provided recommendations for teaching math and for the classroom environment. (District Exhibits 31, 32, 33, 35, 37, 44, 45, 54.) Rodriguez also took steps to assure that Rios received support from the Oliver I math coach, Sheila Bruce ("Bruce"), including assuring that Rios had access to various relevant on-line resources. (See, e.g., District Exhibits 34 and 41.) Rodriguez provided resources to Rios for the science curriculum. (District Exhibit 33.) Rodriguez also provided information on a math online resource in Spanish. (District Exhibit 41.) Arrangements were made to provide Rios opportunities to visit another math class (at Oliver I) that was similar to the class he was teaching. (District Exhibit 46.) Guidance was provided regarding bulletin boards, including Rodriguez reviewing other teachers' bulletin boards with Rios and having another teacher speak to him about bulletin boards. (District Exhibit 42.) Rodriguez also communicated with the SIP to obtain additional support for Rios. (District Exhibit 60.) Rodriguez testified that Rios received training on the PowerTeacher system to support him in this area and the opportunity to attend all of the PLC meetings. (District Exhibit 59.) Kadus testified that she also provided coaching to Rios as to how to better deliver instruction to the first grade students. She would intercect to assist and she modeled lessons over and over again. According to Kadus, Rios understood that she was modeling lessons when in the class.

[1] Cheryl Avraamides, Vice Principal of Oliver II, testified that teachers in the District are assigned to teach math and science or ELA and social studies, that is how the content areas are paired off. None of these teachers has a special science certification. If they do, it is a different type of class that is strictly science. (2/12/20 Tr. at 170.)

Rios' CAP:

Rodriguez testified that Rios had a CAP when he arrived at the school. The CAP continued because he was still not rated effective in the prior school year. As Echevarria had indicated, Rodriguez testified that the teacher is responsible for creating the CAP in the first instance; the teacher selects the indicators that he wants to work on during the school year based on the Framework, as well as his goals for student achievement. After creating the CAP, the teacher shares it with the administrator. Rios prepared and signed the CAP when he initially shared it with Rodriguez. One indicator was missing so Rodriguez directed Rios to add an indicator. The CAP was then finalized in October, after all of the revisions they discussed were included. The final CAP included Competency 1c(d) (Clarity), Competency 2c(c) (Responsiveness), Competency 3c(d) (Attention), Competency 4c(d)(Using Data) and Competency 5c(d) (Attendance and Promptness). Student goals were set for grade 6 students in two math content areas and grade 7 in one math content area. The student goals were as follows:

6th grade:

2-6 are well prepared to perform well in this level. 2-6 need to work harder than the first two in order to understand and meet the requires for this level. Finally 2-6 are not ready and need to work more harder than the others but if they came to class every day, participate, do the HWS and ask for tutoring they will improve the percentage to pass this class significantly.

By June 2019, at least 75% of students will score 75% or higher or growth at least a percentage point (sic).

7th grade:

3-4 are well prepared to perform well in this level. 1-4 need to work harder than the first two in order to understand and meet the requires for this level.

By June 2019, all students will have at least 75% as a grade or growth at least a percentage point (sic).

(District Exhibit 15.)

Rodriguez testified that because Rios' teaching assignment was changed at the beginning of January, the CAP was modified at the mid-year evaluation to adjust for the change in assignment. The indicators that Rios selected for professional growth remained the same. As Rodriguez testified, regardless of the grade or class a teacher is assigned to teach, the teacher is still being rated under the same indicators. The student goals, however, were changed. Rodriguez gave Rios time to confer with Kadus regarding the student goals. The revised goal provided for three content math areas was: "By June 2019, at least 65 percent of the students will score 65 percent or grow 20 points." (District Exhibit 18.)

Rios' Evaluations – 2018-2019 School Year:

In the 2018-2019 school year, Rios received three formal observations. Two were announced and one was unannounced. In addition, Rodriguez conducted informal observations, or over time indicators. Rios also received a mid-year evaluation and an annual summative evaluation reflecting all of the evidence gathered in the course of the school year.

a. Informal Observations:

Rodriguez testified that the mid-year and annual summative evaluations were based on Rios' entire performance based on her walk throughs on a day-to-day basis, formal observations and attendance. Rodriguez stated that she met with Rios throughout the school year to discuss what she found during her informal observations and to make recommendations. Some of the guidance provided was set forth in emails she wrote directly to Rios and, in some cases, to all of the teachers at Oliver II.

The record includes evidence that Rodriguez discussed the Diagnostic District Math testing with Rios, confirming her directives and noting that "I met with you on October 9, 2018 and asked you to continue to take your classes to the computer lab to see if they can log on. You must be proactive on this matter." (District Exhibit 30.) Additional support was provided to Rios in connection with this matter. Id. She provided guidance on use of the AMOR Tracker during his lessons and the MIF Data Tracker to track student growth; this information was provided both verbally and by email. (District Exhibit 40.) Based on her walk-throughs, she made recommendations for updating his bulletin board, after looking at other teachers' bulletin boards with him. (District Exhibit 42.) Rodriguez testified that even after providing recommendations regarding updating his bulletin boards, verbally and in writing, and after getting others to make recommendations, Rios still did not update his bulletin boards.

On several occasions, Rodriguez had to write to Rios to request that he comply with prior requests made to all teachers or to him individually. For example, an email was sent to Rios regarding inputting student council rep information in the Google sheet provided (District Exhibit 36), providing grades in writing for the middle school students (District Exhibit 51), submitting his mid-year reflection form (District Exhibit 53) and annual reflection (District Exhibit 57). In addition, Rodriguez sent email reminders to Rios noting that he had provided lesson plans for math but not science, and asking that he provide his lesson plans for science (for his middle school class) (District Exhibit 43) and to provide a winter break math packet for the middle school students (District Exhibit 48).[4]

b. Formal Evaluation – October 10, 2018

Rodriguez conducted an announced formal observation of Rios teaching math to his sixth grade class on October 10, 2018. A pre-observation conference was held on October 5, 2018. Rodriguez observed the class of six students for 57 minutes. The observation was rated partially effective. Evidence based observations and recommendations were made for each of the indicators. (District Exhibit 16.)

No strengths were noted for Competency 1. Competencies 1(a) (Lesson Sequence) and 1(d) (Clarity) were rated ineffective and Competencies 1(b) (Lesson Components) and 1(c) (Pacing and Momentum) were rated partially effective. For Clarity, which was also one of his CAP goals, Rodriguez testified, and the observation evaluation reflected, that the content and instructions were unclear; "students were unable to complete the task on their own or with a partner during guided practice and independent practice." (District Exhibit 16.) Rodriguez recommended use of anchor charts.

For Competency 2, Rodriguez testified she was looking to see how Rios worked with students independently, tailored his instruction and used small group instruction after he presented the lesson. She did not see him do this; all students remained together and although one or two students needed extra help, he did not pull them aside to provide that assistance. While it was already a small group, smaller groups would have been beneficial. Competencies 2(a) (Tailored Instruction) was rated ineffective; Competencies 2 (b) (Questions and Tasks), and 2(d) (Precision & Evidence) were rated partially effective.

Rios was rated effective in Competencies 3(a) (Enthusiasm for Learning) and 3(c) (Community); he had good students and they worked well together. Competencies 3(b) (Persistence) and 3(d) (Attention) were rated as partially effective. Rodriguez testified, and the evaluation reflected, that students could not do the problems on their own, always seeking Rios' approval and assistance. Some students were not paying attention when he was teaching.

Rios did not receive any effective ratings for the indicators in Competency 4. He received an ineffective rating for Competency 4(a) (Checks for Understanding) and 4(c) (Demonstration of Learning), and a partially effective rating for Competency 4(b) (Feedback). Rodriguez testified she was looking for, but did not see, the monitoring sheet that they had discussed at the pre-observation conference; as she explained to Rios, this was part of "getting a full understanding of where your kids are so you can adjust your lesson the next day or know how to pull your small group in and know what to work with the kids and tailor that instruction for them based on that data that you collect when you're tracking." (T. 16-19 Tr. at 118.) She also did not see him provide feedback to allow them to reflect on what they were doing and correct mistakes. There was also no independent work going on.

The evaluation also noted that in connection with the indicators he provided for growth in his CAP, he was rated ineffective on Clarity and partially effective on Responsiveness. There was no evidence during the observation of Using Data. Action steps were recommended.

A post observation conference was held on October 17, 2018. Rios did not sign the observation; a witness signature was obtained.

c. Formal Observation – January 16, 2019:

Cheryl Avraamides ("Avraamides"), Vice Principal, conducted a formal announced observation on January 16, 2019. She observed Rios teaching math to his first grade students. A pre-observation conference was held. Avraamides testified that during the pre-observation conference, they discussed the lesson that Rios planned to teach. Although after the observation rating was received Rios raised concerns about being observed so soon after he was assigned to the first grade class, Avraamides testified that Rios did not raise any such concern during the pre-observation conference; rather, he discussed the lesson he planned to teach that day and filled in the form. Indeed, Avraamides stated that while it was not necessary for this observation to be announced, as he already had an announced observation, she chose to make it an announced observation so that Rios could be better prepared, taking into account that this was a recent assignment.

Avraamides observed Rios' math lesson for 30 minutes. She testified that while the lesson was primarily taught in English, Rios translated into Spanish and the other teacher in the room translated to Portuguese to the extent that translations were needed for the students. According to Avraamides, the lesson appeared to be understood in the language Rios was using. She also testified that in providing the evaluation, she took into account that he had been in that class for a short time, as noted above, that was the reason she made it an announced observation. Rios received an overall rating of partially effective. (District Exhibit 17.)

Rios was rated partially effective for Competency 1(d) (Clarity), noting that "content and instruction was somewhat unclear as evidenced by students working independently; introduction was rushed." (District Exhibit 17.) Competency 2(b) (Questions and Tasks) and 2(e) (Responsiveness) were rated partially effective. Competency 3(a) (Enthusiasm for Learning) and 3(e) (Community) were rated effective. Competency 4(a) (Checks for Understanding) was rated partially effective. Details were provided in connection with each of these ratings. The evaluation also referenced the growth indicators from Rios' CAP noting that none were rated effective in this observation.

d. Mid-Year Evaluation:

Rodriguez testified that for the mid-year evaluation, she looked at the formal observations, her walk-throughs on a day-to-day basis and attendance. She noted that Rios was the only teacher who needed a second reminder to provide his reflection for the mid-year evaluation. (District Exhibit 53.) The mid-year evaluation took his changed assignment into account, including providing for a modification of the student goals in his CAP. Rodriguez noted, however, that notwithstanding that his assignment changed from sixth, seventh and eighth grade to first, it is still teaching; the ratings in the system align to whatever grade a teacher is assigned to teach. For example, clarity is clarity, regardless of the grade level. As to the different curriculum, she testified that both grades used Math in Focus, although geared to the different levels.

The mid-year evaluation conference was held on January 29, 2019. The overall rating was ineffective (or 7 total points). Rios was rated partially effective for Competency 1. Rodriguez noted that Rios did not meet expectations set forth in the Framework for Lesson Design and Focus. While he had implemented the math curriculum, he lacked in the implementation of the science curriculum notwithstanding that he was provided support for teaching the science curriculum. He generally did not use District materials and resources in teaching science. He received a partially effective for Competency 2 as he did not meet expectations in the Framework for Rigor and Inclusiveness and did not provide students with tailored instruction to move all students towards mastery.

Rios received a partially effective for Competency 3 as well as he did not meet the Framework expectations for Culture of Achievement. While students seemed to be engaged in learning and paying attention, students had difficulty completing tasks on their own. Competency 4 was rated ineffective. Notwithstanding receiving support on use of Active Monitoring of Record or AMOR sheets, he did not use them in the manner in which he was trained. Similarly, although the math coach provided support on implementing math centers, neither use of centers nor small group instruction were evident in the middle school classes. He also did not complete the MH tracker.

Competency 5, which is rated only in the mid-year and annual evaluations, was rated slightly below expectations. Rodriguez testified that he exceeded expectations for attendance and promptness (Competency 5(d)), but lost points for leaving parent teacher conferences before 7:00 PM (the scheduled end time) and, therefore, missed meeting with four families. There was also no evidence of parent communication notwithstanding that teachers were encouraged to use ClassDojo for parent teacher communication. The evaluation also noted that Rios did not meet expectations in the Framework for Commitment to Personal and Collective Excellence. It was noted, however, that he did attend two Science HETI meetings.

As to the SGOs at mid-year, Rodriguez reviewed the progress made by his sixth and seventh grade students. She testified that she did not expect his students to have met the goals that were set for June, while the goals for June had not yet been met by the time the students were transferred. Rios was on track to meet the goals by June. As noted above, new student goals were set for his new teaching assignment in the first grade.

e. Formal Observation – April 3, 2019:

Petty conducted a formal observation of Rios teaching a math lesson in his first grade class on April 3, 2019. The observation was unannounced. Because Petty is no longer with the District[1] and was unavailable to testify, the evaluation was entered into evidence, but no testimony was provided by the District as to the details. As noted in the evaluation, Petty observed the math lesson for 25 minutes. Students were sitting in three groups of approximately five students each; one was working independently and Rios worked with one group while Kadus worked with another. The overall rating for the observation was ineffective. (District Exhibit 39.)

Rios was rated ineffective for Competency 1(a) (Lesson Sequence), 1(b) (Lesson Components) and 1(d) (Clarity), Competency 2(b) (Questions & Tasks), 2(c) (Responsiveness) and 2(d) (Precision and Evidence), Competency 3(b) (Persistence), 3(c) (Community), Competency 4(a) (Checks for Understanding), 4(b) (Feedback) and 4(c) (Demonstration of Learning). He received a partially effective rating for 3(a) (Enthusiasm for Learning). A post observation conference was held on April 9, 2019. It does not appear that Rios signed the observation, a witness signature appears. (District Exhibit 19.)

e. Annual Summative Evaluation – May 9, 2019:

Rodriguez prepared Rios' annual summative evaluation on May 9, 2019.[14] Rodriguez testified that in preparing the evaluation, she considered all of the data collected from the start of the school year, including formal observations, the walk throughs, attendance, trackers and other information on student progress.[15] Based on the evidence collected, Rios was rated partially effective for Competency 1, 2 and 3 and ineffective for Competency 4. In Competency 3, the evaluation noted strengths in two indicators, 3(a) (Enthusiasm for Learning), 3(c) (Community) and 3(e) (High Expectations). Nonetheless, based on the overall ratings for each of these competencies, Rios did not meet the expectations set forth in the Framework. For the indicators in Competency 5, Rios received two effective ratings and two partially effective ratings.

SGO scores for the second part of the school year for his first grade students are set forth in Competency 4(f). The rating was partially effective. The evaluation provided that:

> As of April 2019, 66% [of students scored a 65% or higher on the MIF chapter assessments from February to April 2019. Mr. Rios is a co-teacher teaching alongside with the general education teacher in the classroom. Students did not obtain proficiency scoring at this level. Therefore, goals were not met.

(District Exhibit 20.)

Based on these ratings, Rios had a total score of 5 points, an overall ineffective rating in the annual summative evaluation.

Rios' Testimony – Oliver H School:

Rios' testified that he did not arrive at the school until September 4 or 5, 2018 and that upon his arrival, Rodriguez told him that he would be teaching math to the sixth, seventh and eighth grade bilingual class. He testified that he initially taught all subjects and that he spent a lot of time preparing for all the classes, including working weekends. Rios' acknowledged, [14] Rios was absent from work on an FMLA leave beginning approximately April 10, 2019 and returning in May 2019 before the end of the school year.

[15] Rodriguez testified that in completing the annual summative evaluation on EdReflect, prior ratings from the formal observations are already in the system providing guidance for the rating to be given in the annual summative evaluation. If the rating on a particular indicator in prior observations was ineffective or partially ineffective, the rating for that indicator must be informed by those prior ratings. (T. 16-20 to at 141.)

however, that by mid-September, another teacher was assigned to teach LLA and social studies. He testified that he did not know that he was required to teach the students science until Rodriguez asked him for lesson plans for science at the end of September. He was provided the science curriculum but nevertheless spent many hours preparing his lessons. Rios also testified that when teaching the sixth, seventh and eighth grade students, he had access to PowerTeacher because he was the homeroom teacher. He was not called to cover other classes during this time-frame.

When the middle school students were transferred from the school at the end of December, Rios was told that he would be transferred as well; he was waiting for the transfer letter when he began his assignment in Kadus' first grade class. Rios testified that he was not given a title when he was sent to Kadus' class and did not know what role he had in her classroom. In addition, Rios testified that he was not given a desk, chair or computer and did not have access to PowerTeacher, he did not ask that any of these items be provided to him. Further, he acknowledged that he was not prohibited from sitting or from using the closet in the classroom. He further testified that based on his many years working in Newark, teachers do not sit; "the teacher is always standing." (2/21/20 Tr. at 64.)

As with his experience at Abington School, Rios claimed that he was constantly called to cover other classes, either for a full day or for portions of a day. He did not keep any records but testified that it occurred frequently. Without specific dates, Rios testified that he provided coverage as follows: at least six full and four part days in January; at least fifteen full days and 1 part day in February, three full weeks of full day coverage in March and, in the first 10 days of April, "maybe" four full days. (2/20/20 Tr. at 191-198.) When asked if he wrote an email to Petty or Rodriguez to express concerns about the number of times he was called upon to cover or filed a grievance, Rios indicated that he did not; he testified that he understood that as an EWPS, it was his duty to cover classes. Rodriguez testified that Rios could have done coverage, "just like we had other teachers in the building also covering whenever we needed them." According to Rodriguez, however, it was not often that he was called upon to cover; while she could not recall an exact number, she estimated it was likely "two, three times" but noted that he was in his class most of the time. (2/16/20 Tr. at 213-214.)

Rios testified that his first observation in the new class was only 11 days after he was assigned to the class; he had only taught the students for approximately eight days prior to the observation, having been called to cover other classes during that period. According to Rios, he was pulled to cover other classes for three full days and at least twice to cover meetings. In addition, he testified that Avraamides did not show up on the day planned but came a couple days later when he was unprepared to be observed. Contrary to Avraamides testimony, Rios testified that he told Avraamides prior to the observation that it was unfair to observe him at that time. After receiving his evaluation, he wrote to Avraamides to request a new evaluation because he had eight days or less teaching the students prior to the observation and was not familiar with their prior learning other than by reference to the anchor charts. Avraamides responded noting that while it was not necessary to do so, she opted to conduct an announced observation because she "wanted to help prepare [him] and provide that extra support." She also noted that at no time during the pre-observation conference did Rios express these concerns about being observed at that time. (District Exhibit 55.)

Rios also testified that he did not receive any formal assistance or individual modeling from the teacher coach. Indeed, Rios maintained that he was not provided access to any coach at the school. He then indicated that he did have access to the math coach at Oliver I but that he never asked to meet with her.

Rios did meet with Rodriguez regarding his annual summative evaluation upon his return from leave. The Union representative and another first grade teacher, Sheila Coleman ("Coleman"), attended the meeting with him. According to Rios, Rodriguez listened to his concerns. Rios wrote a rebuttal to his annual summative evaluation raising many of the same issues raised in his testimony. He also maintained that contrary to the rating provided regarding the SGOs, the students in his and Kadus' first grade class had met the goals that were set; he provided data that Kadus gave to him as evidence in the rebuttal. (Respondent Exhibit 6.)

Relevant Statutory Provisions – TEACHNJ:

N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.2, Considerations for Arbitrator in Rendering Decision," provides as follows:

> a. In the event that the matter before the arbitrator pursuant to section 22 of this act is employee inefficiency pursuant to section 25 of this act, in rendering a decision the arbitrator shall only consider whether or not:
> (1) the employee's evaluation failed to adhere substantially to the evaluation process, including, but not limited to providing a corrective action plan;
>
> (2) there is a mistake of fact in the evaluation;
>
> (3) the charges would not have been brought but for the considerations of political affiliation, nepotism, union activity, discrimination as prohibited by State or federal law, or other conduct prohibited by State or federal law; or
> (4) the district's actions were arbitrary and capricious.
>
> b. In the event that the employee is able to demonstrate that any of the provisions of paragraphs (1) through (4) of subsection a. of this section are applicable the arbitrator shall then determine if that fact materially affected the outcome of the evaluation. If the arbitrator determines that it did not materially affect the outcome of the evaluation, the arbitrator shall render a decision in favor of the board and the employee shall be dismissed.
>
> c. The evaluator's determination as to the quality of an employee's classroom performance shall not be subject to an arbitrator's review.
> d. The board of education shall have the ultimate burden of demonstrating to the arbitrator that the statutory criteria for tenure charges have been met.

N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3, Evaluation Process, Determination of Charges, provides, in pertinent part, as follows:

> a. Notwithstanding the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11 or any other section of law to the contrary, in the case of a teacher, principal, assistant principal and vice-principal:
> (1) the Superintendent shall promptly file with the secretary of the board of education a charge of inefficiency whenever the employee is rated ineffective or partially ineffective in an annual summative evaluation and the following year is rated ineffective in the annual summative evaluation.

Position of the Parties:

The parties' positions are summarized below. More detail is addressed in the discussion section of the Opinion

On this record, the District argues: (a) that under TEACHNJ, ineffieiency charges are required when a teacher receives an overall partially effective and ineffective in his annual summative evaluation, (b) that Rios' 2017-2018 overall rating was partially effective and his 2018-2019 overall rating was ineffective warranting ineffieiency charges in this case; (c) that the arbitrator's authority is limited under TEACHNJ; (d) that the District has proven that it has substantially adhered to the evaluation process; (e) that in each of the two school years, Rios was provided a CAP, at least three observations by at least two different administrators, a mid-year evaluation and an annual summative evaluation; (f) that Rios was provided professional support to improve his pedagogy; (g) that five different administrators observed Rios during this two year period and all expressed similar concerns regarding his teaching; (h) that the evaluations were all based on evidence obtained during the lessons observed or over time, as appropriate, and were based on the Framework; (i) that even if some deficiency is found to exist in the process, such as the failure to have one announced observation during 2017-2018, this failure did not materially affect the outcome.

Addressing the challenges to the tenure charges that Respondent raised, the District maintains: (a) that Rios' teaching assignments each year were appropriate given his certifications in math and bilingual education; (b) that Rios was observed only when teaching math; (c) that the evidence does not demonstrate that the District acted in an arbitrary and capricious manner towards Rios; (d) that the credible evidence does not support that Rios was set up to fail; (e) that the credible evidence does not support that Rios was required to provide coverage on a frequent basis as Rios claimed; (f) that Rios was not treated any differently than other bilingual teachers in the District with respect to materials; (g) that all teachers are required to be prepared for their classes; (h) that contrary to the Respondent's arguments, the SGOs were rated in each of the annual summative evaluations as part of Competency 4(f); (i) that even if the SGO rating had been effective, it would not have rendered his annual summative evaluations effective; and (j) that there is no evidence of any factual mistakes.

The Respondent, on the other hand, contends: (a) that the District did not substantially adhere to the evaluation process because it failed to provide a rating for the SGOs in the annual summative evaluations; (b) that the District did not engage in a collaborative process to establish Rios' CAP; (c) that the District did not prove that Rios should have been on a CAP in the 2017-2018 school year having withdrawn the charges relating to the prior year; (d) that Rios did not receive any professional support; (e) that Rios did not receive an announced formal observation at Abington School; (f) that the evaluations fail to identify that his class was a bilingual class and that he served as a co-teacher; (g) that the District incorrectly claimed that the first grade class at Oliver II was a bilingual class; (h) that Rios was criticized in his ratings for items, such as not using Rich Tasks, that were not part of his CAP; (h) that he was rated partially effective and ineffective in areas where he had previously been rated effective; and (i) that the District failed to consider positive indicators from observations earlier in the year.

In addition, Respondent argues that the District's actions towards Rios were arbitrary and capricious. He maintains: (a) that as an EWPS, the District set Rios up to fail; (b) that he was subjected to degrading treatment; (c) that Rios was treated as just another body, without giving him any real assignment; (d) that Rios was not provided a desk or chair, requiring that he stand all day causing him to be exhausted; (e) that he was not provided with a computer or access to PowerTeacher and could not, therefore review student progress; (f) that the District failed to support bilingual education; (g) that the District failed to have bilingual materials for students as required; (h) that the District administrators who rated Rios were not bilingual educators; (i) that one administrator who observed Rios had no proficiency in Spanish; (j) that Rios was improperly observed shortly after being assigned to teach first grade at Oliver II; (k) that Rios was required to teach in areas outside of his certification, including science, LLA, music, gym, art and more; (l) that he was repeatedly required to cover other classes taking him away from teaching his students; (m) that he was required to teach other subjects when his co-teachers were absent; (n) that Rios' refusal to grade Spanish papers on one occasion at Abington resulted in Echevarria providing negative ratings; and (o) that Rios was required to teach multiple grades in the same classroom.

Respondent maintains that for all of these reasons, the tenure charges should be dismissed and Rios should be reinstated to employment with full back pay, benefits and seniority.

Discussion:

On the entire record before me, including my assessment of witnesses' credibility and the probative value of the evidence, the District has proven the tenure charges of inefficiency against Rios. I reach this conclusion for the reasons set forth below.

A couple of preliminary comments are appropriate before addressing the specifics of the tenure charges brought against Rios in this case. First, it is important to note that the arbitrator's authority in an inefficiency case under TEACHNJ is limited. An arbitrator is not permitted to second-guess the pedagogical conclusions reached by the administrators in the evaluation process. TEACHNJ expressly provides that the "evaluator's determination as to the quality of an employee's classroom performance shall not be subject to an arbitrator's review." N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3 (23.d). The statute sets forth four limited bases upon which an arbitrator may find that the inefficiency charges have not been proven. If the facts support any of the defenses set forth in the statute, the arbitrator must then determine if those facts materially affected the outcome of the evaluation, if it did not, then the arbitrator "shall" render a decision in favor of the District, upholding discharge. The District has the ultimate burden of demonstrating that the statutory criteria for tenure charges have been met.

In this case, the Respondent makes a host of arguments in an effort to establish that the evaluations did not substantially adhere to the evaluation process, that there were mistakes of fact and that the District acted in an arbitrary and capricious manner. In making several of his arguments, however, Respondent indirectly asks that the arbitrator review the evaluator's determination of the quality of Rios' teaching. This I cannot do. Accordingly, while all of the Respondent's arguments have been carefully considered, this decision will only discuss those arguments and facts that address the statutory criteria for challenging inefficiency charges but will not review whether particular ratings given by the administrator observing Rios were appropriate.

Second, Respondent relies, in part, on his experience as a bilingual math teacher and on his satisfactory performance Barringer High School as evidence that the ratings he received at Abington School and Oliver II and the inefficiency charges cannot be supported. This reliance is misplaced for several reasons. The framework for evaluating teachers during the ten-year period he was teaching at Barringer High School was not the same as the framework used during the relevant time periods. Further, while Rios was generally determined to be "Proficient" under a rating system that included four ratings, i.e., Unsatisfactory, Basic, Proficient and Distinguished, based on the rubric in effect at that time. Respondent did not produce all evaluations during that time period. (See, Respondent Exhibit 7.) For example, his 2009 evaluation, providing a rating of "Basic" was not produced by Respondent. (District Exhibit 72.) More importantly, Rios has not worked at Barrington High School since June 2013 and he has not enjoyed the same success since leaving Barrington. Indeed, the District previously filed tenure charges against Rios based on inefficiency but withdrew the charges. Further, while the District withdrew the inefficiency charges in this matter relating to the 2016-2017 school year, the record reflects that he received an ineffective rating for that school year.[7] If prior evaluations are relevant at all, then his entire record is properly considered.

Significantly, however, the tenure charges in this case relate to a specific time period, i.e., the 2017-2018 and 2018-2019 school years. These two school years, therefore, are the relevant time period in this case. In this case, five separate administrators evaluated Rios' performance while teaching within his certification areas, i.e., mathematics and bilingual education. Rios' experience teaching at Abington School and Oliver II and his evaluations while at these two schools are what is at issue in this case and must, therefore, be the focus of this decision.

Finally, as will be discussed in more detail in connection with Respondent's arguments that the District acted in an arbitrary and capricious manner, Respondent's suggestion that he cannot be fairly rated because he is an EWPS (and, therefore, was set up to fail) must be rejected. Whether Rios had a permanent position or was assigned each year to work in schools needing the additional support, he is a teacher in the District. In each assignment, he had responsibilities to teach Newark students. The District has a right to expect that all of its teachers, even those working as an EWPS, meet basic standards of performance based on the Department approved evaluation system in effect during the relevant time. Indeed, the goal of TEACHNJ is to "raise student achievement by improving instruction through the adoption of evaluations that provide specific feedback to educators, inform the provisions of aligned professional development, and inform personnel decision." N.J.S.A. 18A:6-118(a). Although the position of an LWPS may be a difficult one as the teacher does not have a permanent placement and may be reassigned each year,[17] Rios' status as an LWPS cannot excuse ineffective performance. To find otherwise would be inconsistent with the goals and provisions of TEACHNJ and would do a disservice to the District's students.

[7] Although the charges relating to that year were withdrawn, there is no evidence to indicate that the annual summative evaluation for that year was changed. Respondent admitted in his Answer to these charges that he received an ineffective rating for that year, although he disagreed with the rating. While withdrawing the tenure charges as they related to that year, the District nonetheless indicated that "[t]he only mention of that school year will be for the fact that he did receive an ineffective during the annual evaluation which then required him to have a CAP the following school year." (12-10-19 Tr. at 8-9.)

On the entirety of this record, the District met its ultimate burden of establishing that the statutory criteria for the tenure charges of inefficiency were met. To the extent that there were any deviations from the evaluation process, those deviations are not deemed material to the outcome of the evaluation. Each of the factors to be considered in an inefficiency case under TEACHNJ is discussed below, to the extent relevant to this case.[18]

A. Substantial Adherence to the Evaluation Process:

The District must establish that it substantially complied with the elements of the evaluation process. Those elements for each school year at issue include: (a) providing for a CAP; (b) three formal observations per school year by two separate administrators, with at least one announced observation with a pre-observation conference; (c) a mid-year evaluation; and (d) an annual summative evaluation. In addition, the District must establish that it provided professional support to the teacher.

Rios had a CAP in each of the two school years. The Respondent argues that there is no evidence that a CAP was appropriate for the 2017-2018 school year as the District withdrew the tenure charges relating to the 2016-2017 school year and, therefore, that he did not need three observations. I do not find this argument persuasive. The record, including the [17] Teachers whose status is LWPS have the right to apply for permanent positions in the District. Mendez testified that some LWPS teachers remain in a particular school if a vacancy in that school opens whereas other LWPS teachers may be in a different school each year. All LWPS teachers have the opportunity to enter the pool to be considered for transfer to a permanent position in the District. It is the LWPS teacher's choice whether or not to enter the pool. According to Mendez, 70 to 75 percent of LWPS teachers choose not to even enter the pool, preferring to remain in LWPS status. Rios testified that he has entered the pool and applied for numerous permanent positions but has not been selected for the open positions.

[18] Respondent does not claim that "the charges would not have been brought but for the considerations of political affiliation, nepotism, union activity, discrimination as prohibited by State or federal law, or other conduct prohibited by State or federal law." N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.2a(a)(3). This section, therefore, will not be addressed in this decision.

tenure charges, establish that in the 2016-2017 school year Rios was rated ineffective in his annual summative evaluation; an ineffective rating in this school year required a CAP in the following school year. It is true that the District opted to rely only on the 2017-2018 and 2018-2019 school years to prove the inefficiency charges. That it chose to withdraw the charges as related to 2016-2017, however, does not change the rating for that year. Indeed, Respondent's Answer to the charges admitted that this was the rating for 2016-2017, although indicating that he did not agree with the rating. Further, when the District withdrew the charges, counsel expressly stated that the charges are withdrawn except to the extent reference to the charges are needed to establish that Rios was required to have a CAP in place during 2017-2018.

In addition, as the District noted in its Reply Brief, even assuming that no CAP was needed, it does not follow that Rios would not have been observed on three occasions. While only two observations would have been required, the District was free to observe Rios on more than one occasion. Further, it is purely speculative to conclude that if he had only two observations, he would have rated effective on one of them. It is just as possible that the two times he would have been observed would have been the lessons rated as partially effective and ineffective.

As to the CAPs themselves, Rios argued that they were not part of a collaborative process. The record does not support this conclusion. Indeed, Echevarria (for Abington School) and Rodriguez (for Oliver II) credibly testified as to the process followed each year to establish Rios' CAP. It is the teacher who initiates the process. The teacher selects the professional goals he wishes to work on during the year, selecting from indicators in the Framework. The teacher also identifies the student learning outcomes that he wishes to include in the CAP. After the teacher prepares this information, he submits it to his supervisor for review. This was done in both school years. After Rios's submitted the CAP to his supervisors, a discussion took place between Rios and Echavarria (for 2017-2018) and between Rios and Rodriguez (for 2018-2019) before the CAP was finalized. Indeed, Rodriguez testified that although Rios had signed the CAP before she had a chance to review it, she made suggestions for modification. Only Rios could accept those modifications by making changes to the CAP. He did so. The weight of the credible evidence does not rebut that the CAP was initially prepared by Rios, that he then discussed it with his supervisors, and that Rios then finalized the CAP that was in effect for each year.

Respondent also suggests that if a particular issue is not addressed in the CAP, it is improper to rate him with respect to that issue. For example, Rios argues that he was criticized for not using rich tasks in his second observation at Abington School but that rich tasks were not included in his CAP. He also claims that the CAP did not provide that he should group students by English proficiency to differentiate instruction on this basis and yet he was criticized for not doing so. The fact that these items were not referenced in his CAP does not preclude the District from holding him accountable to implement best practices and to rate him on all competencies. Indeed, a CAP is not required to include all indicators; that does not mean that the teacher cannot be evaluated on all of the Competencies' indicators set forth in the Framework, whether or not it is one of the growth goals for the teacher.[7] The District is not limited to addressing the indicators the teacher selected for growth in assessing the quality of the teacher's performance. For all of the above reasons, Respondent's arguments that the CAP was not subject to any collaboration or that it was otherwise improper is rejected.

Rios received three formal observations in each school year. At least two evaluators observed his lessons in each year. At Abington School, Echevarria and Heintz conducted the observations. At Oliver H. Rodriguez, Petty and Avramides conducted the observations. Rios was only observed teaching math, which he is certified to teach. Except for the first observation by Echavarria, all other formal observations were rated either partially effective or ineffective. Rios' suggestion that he should have only been observed by evaluators who were bilingual educators is not supported by the record. While bilingual teachers must be observed by teachers qualified to conduct an observation, there is no evidence that any of these administrators were not qualified to observe him teaching a bilingual class. Each had received extensive training on an annual basis as to ratings under the Framework, including norming sessions to assure consistency throughout the District. Indeed, to find otherwise would require that at least two administrators in each school with a bilingual education class be certified in bilingual education. This is not practical nor is it required.

[7] Rios also claimed he was not trained regarding rich tasks. The record does not support this claim. Rich tasks were introduced at Abington School through professional development given to all teachers, including Rios, and was a subject of PLC meetings which he was expected to attend.

In particular, Rios complains that Heintz should not have been permitted to evaluate his lesson at Abington School because she is not Spanish speaking. He claims that he taught exclusively in English during that lesson because Heintz did not know Spanish and then concludes that the reason the students were not engaged was that he spoke English and that they did not understand, not because the lesson or his teaching was in any way lacking. There are several factual issues that require rejection of this argument. The most significant is that contrary to Rios' claim that he spoke only in English which resulted in the students not understanding and engaging in the lesson, Heintz expressly noted in her observation evaluation that Rios used both Spanish and English during the lesson. Indeed, she rated him effective with respect to Clarity, noting in relevant part as follows: "The teacher explained everything well to students in both English and Spanish ensuring that all the students had access to the information and that they understood it clearly." (District Exhibit 13.) In addition, the record establishes that no one suggested to Rios that he alter his teaching that day to use exclusively in English (and, as set forth above, the evidence makes clear he did not do so). Further, Heintz testified that while she is not fluent in Spanish, she does have some basic understanding of the language. Finally, not only is Rios' claim that the students were not engaged because he spoke only in English not supported by the detailed information set forth in the observation evaluation or by Heintz's testimony but is entirely speculative and self-serving.

Rios also raised several arguments regarding specific ratings and the conclusions the evaluators reached. For example, Rios argues that having been found effective as to a particular component and indicator earlier in the year, it was inappropriate to rate him partially effective or ineffective for a later lesson, suggesting that having demonstrated his competence in one lesson, it could not be rated lower at a later time. This is simply not the case. Each lesson must be observed and rated based on the evidence presented during that lesson. That a teacher may effectively address a particular indicator on one day does not mean that the same indicator is addressed effectively on another day during another lesson. Further, as Echevarria testified, he noticed a downward trajectory of Rios' teaching in areas such as community, for example, after his mid-year evaluation having not received an effective rating at that time. This, too, would explain differences in ratings on the same competencies as the year progressed.

Finally, as noted above, I am not authorized to second-guess the findings of the evaluators as to the quality of Rios' teaching. Suffice it to say, however, that each of the evaluators conducting the formal observations provided detailed descriptions of what they observed relevant to a particular indicator that was being rated, articulating the evidence upon which the conclusion was based and the reason for the rating provided. There is nothing in the ratings or in the testimony of any of the administrators who testified regarding their observation of Rios[5] to suggest that they were not acting in good faith and consistent with the Framework and the Guide in conducting their observations and in reaching the conclusions as to the ratings for each competency and indicator rated.

The above notwithstanding, it is undisputed that Rios did not receive an announced observation in the 2017-2018 school year. All three of the observations that year were unannounced. (The next year, two were announced and only one was unannounced.) The standards do require one announced observation. The question is whether the failure to provide the announced observation materially impacted the outcome of the evaluation. On this record, there is nothing to indicate that there would have been a different conclusion if one of the observations had been announced that year. Indeed, the following year, two of the three observations were announced, this fact did not materially impact the ratings for the particular observations or the overall ratings in the mid-year or annual summative evaluations.

The next requirement is a mid-year evaluation. Echevarria and Rodriguez credibly testified that the mid-year evaluations are based not only on formal observations, but also on informal observations walk throughs and other evidence obtained during the period prior to the mid-year evaluation. Both evaluations rated Rios on all of the competencies. They also addressed progress towards SGOs. While no modification was made to Rios' CAP in the 2017-2018 school year, a modification was made in 2018-2019 to reflect that he was assigned to teach math in the first grade class beginning in January. The SGO, therefore, was modified to reflect this change. No change in professional goals was made at that time. Rodriguez testified that indicators selected for professional growth remained applicable, whether teaching a middle school grade or first grade class.

[5] All of the evaluators testified at the hearing except for Petty. As indicated previously, Petty is no longer with the District. My assessment of that observation is, therefore, based solely on the written observation evaluation.

An annual summative evaluation is also required each year, rating the teacher in all of the competencies based not only upon the formal observations but the informal observations walk throughs and other evidence obtained throughout the school year. Once again, Rios received an annual summative evaluation from both Echevarria (for Abington School) and Rodriguez (for Oliver H). Rodriguez testified that when preparing the annual evaluation in the system, the prior ratings are all referenced in the system for all competencies and indicators providing guidance as to the appropriate rating, although the administrator may adjust based on other evidence. Rios makes several arguments in connection with the annual summative evaluations in an effort to establish that the District did not substantially adhere to the evaluation process.

With respect to the annual summative evaluation at Abington School, Rios asserts that Echevarria failed to consider the effective ratings in Competencies 2 and 4 from the first observation. Significantly, Echevarria only rated two competencies during the first observation when Rios received an overall effective rating; it was a short observation and it was not necessary to rate all competencies. Contrary to Rios' claim, Echevarria credibly testified that he did, in fact, consider the formal observations, as well as informal walk throughs and other evidence obtained during the course of the school year. Echevarria also credibly testified that in preparing the evaluation, he looked for the teacher's trajectory through the year. In Rios' situation, it was his opinion that Rios' trajectory was downward, particularly after the mid-year evaluation when Rios was dissatisfied with his rating and concerned about the impact of the rating given his prior ineffective rating.[7] Accordingly, while he rated Rios effective in certain indicators under Competency 4 in the first formal observation, Echevarria did not make a similar determination in the second formal observation. Instead he indicated that there were no strengths noted in this competency and in the two indicators that were rated in Competency 4, both were only partially effective. Similarly, Echevarria rated Rios effective for the Competency 2(c) (Responsiveness) in the first observation but only partially effective in the same indicator in the second observation.

[7] Rios asserted that Echevarria's attitude towards him became more negative after he refused to grade Spanish papers as requested. Velez then agreed to grade all the papers. Rios presented no evidence to support this belief, other than the fact that his ratings were not as good as in the first formal observation. I am not persuaded by Rios' testimony. Rather, Echevarria credibly testified as to the basis for his ratings and did not demonstrate any animus towards Rios. Further, he explained his view that Rios' attitude and his performance was in a downward trajectory after he received his mid year evaluation given his dissatisfaction with the rating.

Heintz did not rate Rios in either Competency 2 or 4.[3] Under these circumstances, that Echevarria concluded after reviewing all of the evidence that a partially effective rating was appropriate for Competency 4 is not subject to review.

A review of the ratings for Competency 2(b) (Questions and Tasks) does suggest that Echevarria may not have taken into account that Rios was rated effective in this indicator in the first two formal observations and was not rated on this indicator in the third formal observations. Echevarria's basis for rating this indicator partially effective in the annual summative evaluation is not evident on this record. Having received two effective ratings, and no partially effective or ineffective rating for this indicator, it would appear that this rating is a mistake. This mistake in the annual summative evaluation, however, is insufficient to find that the District failed to substantially adhere to the evaluation process. Even assuming that the evaluation should have reflected an effective rating in this indicator, the change would add only one point to his final score, moving it from an eight (for Competencies 1 to 4) to a nine. This score is still within the range of partially effective for an overall rating. Thus, this issue did not materially impact his annual summative evaluation.

Rios also maintains that the District ignored the requirement to provide SGO scores, a fatal defect in the evaluation process, citing cases finding that the failure to provide an SGO rating provided grounds to find that the tenure charges cannot be sustained. N.J.A.C. 6A:10-4.1(c). See also, IMO Tenure Charges of Joel Dawkins (State-Operated School District of the City of Newark, County of Essex), Agency Docket No. 277-9/15 at p. 39 (Arbitrator Stephen M. Bluth, October 21, 2016) ("[F]ailure to compute a separate score for Respondent based on student growth" constituted a material error.); IMO Tenure Charges of Donielle Carroll (State-Operated School District of the City of Newark), Agency Docket No. 261-9/15 at p. 46 (Arbitrator Robert T. Simmelkjaer, December 30, 2016) ("Annual Summative Evaluations devoid of data-based SGOs in either school year preclude the District from establishing the two consecutive years of 'ineffective' or 'partially effective' performance evaluations necessary to pursue charges under Section 25 of the Act.")

[3] Echevarria also noted that Rios was effective in Pacing and Momentum in the first formal observation in the comment section, although he did not put a rating into the system for that indicator. He did not make any comment regarding Responsiveness in the narrative section but did rate Rios effective for Responsiveness in the system. This confusion would not have impacted the overall rating for that observation which was effective. In his second formal observation, Echevarria rated Rios partially effective for Pacing and Momentum, once again Heintz did not rate that indicator. Accordingly, with respect to Pacing and Momentum the same rationale set forth above applies. Echevarria's determination that the final rating should be partially effective has a rational basis and is not subject to review.

Respondent's argument fails to recognize that, as Mendez testified, the District received Department approval to address SGOs as part of Competency 4 in the annual summative evaluation. See, e.g., IMO Tenure Charges of Ursula Whitehurst (State-Operated School District of the City of Newark, Essex County), Agency Docket No.: 263-9/16 at p. 51 (Arbitrator Ruth Moscovitch, March 30, 2017). Indeed, in the annual summative evaluations from Abington School and Oliver H. Rios did in fact receive an SGO rating under Competency 4(f) (Progress Towards Goals). Contrary to Rios' arguments, therefore, the District did not fail to provide a separate rating for SGO scores as required nor did it ignore this issue in the evaluations; both expressly addressed the issue in providing the rating. In both school years, he received a partially effective rating. Accordingly, Respondent's argument that the District failed to properly provide an SGO rating must be rejected.

Respondent also argues that the partially effective ratings for Competency 4 in both years are improper as the SGOs were not based on specific objective criteria. The record does not support this conclusion. In his CAP at Abington School, Rios included two goals for student growth, one for CCSS Math Content 7NSA1C and CCSS Math Content 7NSA1B. The goals for both were the same, i.e., for 15 of the 19 students to prove mastery in the standard by June. At the time of the annual summative evaluation in April, Echevarria concluded that he had only partially met this objective. The assessments were to include the "Math in Focus pre and post tests, the interim assessments and other assessments." (District Exhibit 14.) He further noted that the data tracker was showing students making progress since first being assessed in September. Rios claims, however, that he understood the term mastery to mean that 15 of 19 students had achieved a passing grade of 65 or more and that his students did, in fact, achieve this goal. He argues that SGOs must be "specific and measurable" (N.J.A.C. 6A:10-4.2) and that mastery would be a subjective criterion based on Echavarria's testimony that mastery would require a grade of at least 75, if not higher.

Echevarria disagreed that a student who has received a barely passing grade has mastered the content. He credibly testified that "[m]astery is understood in the educational setting as being able to do a skill and to be able to do it well." (1/16/20 Tr at p. 23.). Moreover, Echevarria pointed out that Rios' own analysis when he prepared his CAP and set the goals reflect that he understood that just passing was not considered mastery. In his CAP, Rios noted that 2 of 19 students were well prepared, 10 of 19 students needed to work harder and 7 of 19 students were not ready based on the results of the pre-test assessment in September. (The 19 was based on the number of students initially in the class; the class grew to approximately 23.) A review of the grades obtained by the students in the pre-test shows that two of students had grades of 75 and 80, respectively, which would correlate to Rios' assessment that 2 of 19 were well prepared. Of the remaining students, two obtained a grade of 60, five obtained a grade of 65 and two obtained a grade of 70; the remaining students received grades below 60. Having concluded that only two of the students had grades that rendered them well prepared, Rios' own analysis indicates that he interpreted mastery to mean a grade of 75 or higher, a specific and measurable standard; that is the standard that Echevarria applied (while testifying that some would find that mastery was a grade of 80 or 90). Indeed, if Rios understood that mastery was obtaining a grade of 65 or better, then his own analysis would have provided that nine, not two, students had already attained mastery or were "well prepared." The post tests in these content areas indicated that although 21 of 23 students passed with a grade of 65 or more, only eight students obtained a grade of 75 or higher, thereby reaching mastery. Given these facts, Rios' testimony that he understood mastery to be a grade of 65 or more is not credible. Indeed, the SGO rating of partially effective is consistent with Rios' own analysis and conclusions of what constituted mastery when preparing his CAP and the goals he set for his students.

Rios also maintains that the SGO score at Oliver II was subjective and incorrect. During the mid-year evaluation, Rodriguez noted that Rios was on track to meet the goals set for his sixth and seventh grade math class; i.e., that 75% of the sixth grade students and all of the seventh grade students will score 75% or higher in the math content areas identified. Because those students were all transferred at the end of December and he was assigned to the first grade class, his student learning goals were changed in the mid-year evaluation. His mid-year evaluation modified the goal to provide that "[b]y June 2019, at least 65% of students will score 65% or grow 20% points" in identified math content areas. (District Exhibit 18.) While Rios claims that this revised goal was not then approved or inserted into the CAP, the mid-year evaluation sets forth the revised goals for student learning outcomes.

In addressing the SGO scores in the annual summative evaluation, Rodriguez testified that she did not consider the goals set for the first half of the year; she only considered the goals set for the first grade class. She reiterated in the annual summative evaluation that the student learning goals, as revised, provided that "[b]y June 2019, at least 65% of students will score 65% or grow 20 points." (District Exhibit 20.) In rating Rios in connection with the SGO, however, Rodriguez provided as follows:

> As of April 2019, 66% of students scored a 65% or higher on the MII chapter assessments from February to April 2019. Mr. Rios is a co-teacher teaching alongside with the general education teacher in the classroom. Students did not obtain proficiency scoring at this level. Therefore, goals were not met.

(District Exhibit 20.) Rios was rated partially effective on the SGO score. Rios argues that the term proficiency is not used in the goal set and is subjective.[24]

Rodriguez testified that in setting student learning outcomes, "we always want 75 percent or higher, ...or 20 points of growth" from the students' beginning results. (1T 16-20 1T; at 201-202.) That said, she indicated that it is "up to the teacher what they want to do" but that a goal of 50% passing would not be acceptable; a goal of 65% passing would be a minimum.[25] (1T 16-20 1T; at 202.) Rodriguez indicated that this goal is indeed quantifiable. When asked what goal Rios had selected, Rodriguez testified that he included the 75% in his CAP and that there was nothing in writing about a 65%. In this testimony, she was mistaken. While Rios' original goal for his sixth and seventh grade math students had been 75% of sixth grade students achieving 75% and all seventh grade students achieving 75%,[26] it was changed in the mid-year evaluation to reflect that 65% of students in his first grade class would achieve 65% or grow 20 point in the math content areas identified. This was confirmed in the annual summative evaluation. Thus, her conclusion that Rios' only partially met this objective when 66% of the students scored 65% or higher is indeed a mistake.

[24] Counsel did not question Rodriguez as to the use of the term proficiency. Use of that term in the evaluation did not, however, determine Rios' rating. Rodriguez' testimony made clear that the goals set were quantifiable, using a percentage passing or a number achieving 20 points or more. Thus, Rios' arguments regarding the use of the term "proficient" is not material to the rating.

[25] Consistent with this testimony, the Student Growth Objectives, NJ Department of Education (updated 10-17) provides that SGOs should be driven by high expectations for students. Given this provision, it would appear that a goal to have 65% of students just pass the class, i.e., a 65% or higher, would be a minimum. A score of 75% or higher would be more consistent with the requirement that SGOs be driven by high expectations for students.

[26] Rios received a partially effective rating in Competency 4(f) in his mid-year evaluation based on the performance of his 6th and 7th grade students at that time.

This mistake, however, is not fatal to the evaluation process. Contrary to the Respondent's claims, the District did not fail to provide an SGO score or otherwise ignore student achievement. Rather the issue is the impact of the mistake on Rios' overall rating in his annual summative evaluation, i.e., whether this mistake – incorrectly identifying the applicable SGO standard -- was material to the overall evaluation.[26] On this record, I conclude it was not. Indeed, this mistake directly impacted only one of the indicators in Competency 4, i.e., Competency 4(f) (Progress Towards Goals); there is no basis to find that this mistake of fact impacted any of the other ratings in Competency 4. Significantly, the Guide expressly provides that in assessing Competency 4, the administrator is to consider not only the SGO score but also the other evidence gathered over time. While "there should be general alignment between the over-time Indicators in Competency 4 and whether a teacher did not meet, partially met, met or exceeded their student goals," all evidence is properly considered in rating the various indicators. (District Exhibit 71 at p. 21.)

That Rios just barely exceeded the minimal expectations he set for student progress, with 66% of students achieving a passing grade of 65%, does not demonstrate that the ratings in the other indicators are the result of a mistake of fact. These other indicators rate different, albeit related, skills under Competency 4 which were properly evaluated based on all of the evidence over time. On this record, I cannot conclude that the other indicators are not in general alignment with the minimal success achieved in the SGO. Under these circumstances, there is no basis to review the administrator's determination on the ratings in these other indicators. Given the ratings in all of the indicators in Competency 4, i.e., three ineffective and three partially effective, even if indicator 4(f) had been rated effective (to reflect that he minimally met the revised SGO), the increase from partially effective to effective in that one indicator would have added only one point to the overall score. The annual summative evaluation indicates that Rios' overall score was a 5. Even with one more point added,

[26] See, Dodson v. State-Operated Dist. Of Newark, Dkt. No. A-2506-16T4 2018 N.J. Super. Unpub. LEXIS 2230 (App. Div. October 11, 2018) (The arbitrator's determination that the District failed to include an SGO score was not the end of the process; under TEACHNJ, the arbitrator is then required to determine whether this failure was material. The arbitrator determined that the teacher's scores were so low that even if the SGO score was included in the analysis, his total score remained too low for an "effective" rating and would still have been subject to tenure charges. Therefore, the arbitrator concluded that that the failure to substantially comply with the evaluative process did not materially affect the outcome, requiring a decision in favor of the district. The arbitrator's decision was upheld.)

therefore, the overall rating, at a 6, would remain ineffective. Accordingly, any mistake of fact in the SGO score for Competency 4(D) was not material to the outcome of the evaluation.

Finally, Rios argues that the District failed to provide professional development and support to Rios as required given his CAP. The facts do not support this conclusion. As set forth in the Background section, both Echevarria and Rodriguez described the support that was provided to Rios over each school year. In addition to significant professional development offered to all teachers, including PLC and SIP and District and other school based programs, other support was provided to Rios. In both schools, administrators met with Rios informally, as part of their informal observations, to discuss their observations and provide individual guidance. Rios was afforded opportunities to observe others modeling lessons. The record also demonstrates that Rios did meet with coaches; while meetings with coaches may not have been frequent or regular, opportunities to have such meetings were provided. Further, arrangements were made for an instructional special assistant from the math department to visit Rios class with Echevarria and to provide guidance. On-line resources to support Rios in various areas were given to Rios.

Rios claims that he received no professional development. I do not credit this testimony given the documentary evidence and the credible testimony of administrators. Indeed, Rios testified that he was never provided training on topics such as rich tasks or silent signals when the record demonstrates that training programs in these areas were offered to all teachers. His blanket denial in the face of the evidence produced impacts the credibility of Rios' testimony overall. Although is true that administrators were unable to confirm in their testimony how often Rios met with the resources provided or attended certain professional development meetings, the record supports that these resources were provided to Rios. To the extent that Rios did not take the initiative to take advantage of the opportunities that were provided to him, that failure cannot be attributed to the District.

On the entirety of the record, therefore, the District has proven that it substantially adhered to each aspect of the evaluation process during the 2017-2018 and 2018-2019 school years. For the reasons set forth above, any deviation from the process did not materially impact the overall ratings Rios received for each of these school years.

B. Mistake of Fact:

Rios next challenges the evaluations claiming that there were mistakes of fact impacting the validity of the evaluation. In particular, Respondent argues that the evaluations incorrectly identified his first grade class as a bilingual class and that both evaluations failed to note that he was a co-teacher.[57]

As to the first issue, any mistaken belief that his first grade class was a bilingual class was not material to Rios' ratings. The only reference in the evaluations to the class being bilingual was in the summary of performance in the annual summative evaluation at Oliver II: Rodriguez wrote that "Mr. Rios began the year by teaching 6-8 bilingual students in the areas of Math & Science. By January 2019, he was the co-teacher for the bilingual first grade classroom." (District Exhibit 20.) While true that the class was not formally designated a bilingual class, it is undisputed that the class had a large number of students who spoke either Spanish or Portuguese and that the teachers translated as needed to assist the students; this may explain the confusion. Nonetheless, there is nothing in the evaluation to suggest that his ratings in any competency would have been any different had the evaluation not incorrectly referenced the first grade class as bilingual in the summary. That the class was not bilingual was not relevant to whether Rios was certified to teach the class. Rios led and was observed only in math instruction, which was within his certifications even in a non-bilingual class setting. All other classes were properly identified as bilingual.

Respondent also maintains that the failure to indicate that he was a co-teacher is a mistake of fact and, further, that as a co-teacher he should not have been rated on certain competencies, citing Mendez' testimony. As a preliminary matter, I note that his annual summative evaluation at Oliver II expressly stated that he was a co-teacher in the first-grade class where his role, other than in teaching math, was largely supporting Kadus. As to his other assignments at Abington School and Oliver II, although Rios was a co-teacher, he was responsible for teaching math to the students while the co-teacher taught ELA and social studies.[58] He planned and delivered the lessons. That he was a co-teacher did not lessen his responsibilities to his students, as measured by the Framework, in any competency. That the [57] Other mistakes of fact were addressed in the prior section; as indicated, to the extent there were any mistakes of fact, they were not material to the outcome of the evaluations in this case. Other alleged "mistakes" would require that I second guess the evaluators' pedagogical determinations which I have no authority to do.

evaluations at Abingdon School did not mention that he was a co-teacher was not material as he was responsible for his area of specialization and Velez was responsible for her area of specialization. He was not observed in areas he simply supported while Velez taught, but rather in his area of specialization, i.e., math. The same is true at Oliver II for the first half of the school year. Even when teaching in first grade at Oliver II, Rios led the math instruction while supporting Kadus in the other areas. He was not evaluated, however, while acting in a supporting role in the classroom, rather, he was evaluated teaching math lessons to the students. In that capacity, it was Kadus who was in the supporting role. While Kadus prepared the lesson plans, she credibly testified that Rios had access to the lesson plans, as well as all of the materials and that Rios was free to modify the lesson or deliver it in a different manner if he chose to do so.

More importantly, contrary to Respondent's claims, Mendez did not testify that as a co-teacher, the teacher has any less responsibility for performance in each of the competencies in the Framework. While Mendez testified that not all competencies must be rated in all observations, a review of her testimony does not persuade me that Rios could not be rated in Competency 1 or any other competency as a result of being a co-teacher. Rather, Mendez testified that > a co-teacher would be an individual that would be literally working in conjunction with another teacher. A co-teacher is not less than, is not more than another teacher, but literally would be another licensed individual that is responsible for the students in the class but would specialize in whatever area they possess a license for, but is just literally another individual that is in the class and would enhance the learning the idea being that there would be an opportunity for two individuals that are licensed, and in this case, have a license or specialization in different areas that can only enhance the learning environment.

(2.12.20 Tr. at 22.) Even in those instances where another teacher prepares the lesson, Mendez testified that a teacher still has an important role to play in each of the competencies; she did not testify that the District was precluded from rating a co-teacher in certain competencies.

For all of these reasons, neither the incorrect designation of the first grade class as a bilingual class nor the failure to identify that he was in a co-teaching situation in certain evaluations were mistakes of fact that had any impact on the ratings at issue in this case; these mistakes, if they can be deemed mistakes at all, were not material to the overall ratings in this case.

C. Arbitrary and Capricious Action by the District:

Respondent maintains that the District treated him in an arbitrary and capricious manner and for that reason, the tenure charges cannot stand. According to Respondent, the District's actions did not make it possible for Rios to succeed. In so arguing, Respondent presents a multitude of grievances, from his treatment as an EWPS to the failure of the District to properly implement bilingual education and provide appropriate materials. His complaints include, but are not limited to, the failure to provide a chair in his classrooms rendering him exhausted from standing all day, to excessive coverages, to requiring that he spend a substantial amount of time preparing for his classes. While I will try to address each one of the claimed offenses, the failure to address them all should not be considered a failure to consider them all. Having carefully reviewed the record, I do not find that any of the arguments that Respondent raised, viewed individually or in totality, support the conclusion that the District's treatment of Rios was arbitrary and capricious.

Rios status as an EWPS was not unique to him, there are many other teachers in that status throughout the District.[29] While it is clear that Rios would prefer a permanent placement and does not want to be an EWPS with a new assignment each year, not every teacher in this position feel as he does. Indeed, Mendez testified that although all teachers with this status are able to enter the pool to apply for transfer to permanent positions – and Rios, while not successful, did so – 70-75 percent of EWPS teachers choose not to enter the pool to be considered for a transfer to a permanent position. This evidence is inconsistent with Rios' claim that the District treats EWPS teachers poorly and without respect.

Further, having had the opportunity to hear from the administrators and two of his colleagues at Oliver H, there was no evidence at all of a lack of respect for Rios. I am persuaded that in each school, Rios was treated as other teachers on staff, whether or not he was listed under the heading of bilingual teacher on the Abington School organization chart.

[29] In IMO Tenure Hearing of Yesenia Gonzalez (State Operated School District of the City of Newark, Essex County), Agency Docket No. 264-9/15 (Arbitrator Timothy Brown, March 3, 2016), Respondent made similar arguments, claiming that being designated an EWPS and reassigning him to an elementary school rather than the high school where he successfully taught for years, set him up for failure and constituted arbitrary and capricious conduct by the District; the arbitrator rejected these arguments.

Indeed, while Echavarria testified that he was aware that Rios was an EWPS as his compensation was not on the school's budget, Rodriguez testified that she was not aware of Rios' status as an EWPS while he was at Oliver II. In addition, Coleman, who was called as a witness on Rios' behalf, also testified that she did not know that Rios was an EWPS during the time he was teaching at Oliver II.

Rios complains that he was not provided a chair or desk or space for his personal belongings in either Abington School or Oliver II (only in the first grade classroom). In fact, he had a similar complaint about his prior assignment at Washington Carver Elementary School. He conceded, however, that he was not prohibited from sitting and that there was indeed space where he could have stored his personal belongings. Rios also testified that it was not proper for a teacher to sit in the classroom; teachers are expected to stand. Thus, having to stand while teaching did not make his status as an EWPS any different than other teachers in the school. Nor do I find that the fact that he was not provided a chair caused him to be unable to competently perform his teaching duties. Rather, this is one more complaint that Rios asserts in an effort to dismiss the tenure charges.

Rios complains that when he was not the homeroom teacher, he did not have his own access to PowerTeacher. Rios admitted, however, that the fact that he did not have his own access code was because he was not the homeroom teacher; it had nothing to do with his status as an EWPS. Indeed, when he was the homeroom teacher for the first half of the school year at Oliver II, it was he and not the co-teacher who had access. There is no indication that his performance was improved during that time as a result of having access to PowerTeacher. Further, PowerTeacher is a tool used for keeping attendance and grades. That he had to input his grades when Velez was in the classroom at Abington School, while inconvenient, did not materially impact his ability to teach his classes. Further, neither the fact that he may have had to track student grades and progress on paper or in some other manner for his own reference, nor that he had to note attendance on paper when the homeroom teacher was absent, can be deemed to have created an obstacle to Rios providing effective teaching to his students. (Indeed, before computers, all teachers kept these records in grade books or other non-electronic means.) Significantly, Rios had access to a computer and to on-line materials, including curriculum, separate and apart from the PowerTeacher program. I am not persuaded that failure to have his own access code to PowerTeacher when working with another teacher who was designated the homeroom teacher can be deemed arbitrary and capricious treatment or was otherwise set up to make him unsuccessful as a teacher.[30]

Rios also argues that he was constantly being called out of his classroom to provide coverage for absent teachers or for meetings and that he was required to proctor certain state mandated exams. Addressing the coverage issue first, the administrators who testified did not deny that Rios was asked to cover classes on occasion, either for a full day or for a period or two. All of the administrators, however, testified that this was not a frequent occurrence. Rios, on the other hand, suggests that he was out of his classroom performing coverage – and unable to teach his students – for a significant period every month. While he only kept track of coverages for a short time while at Abington School – and during that time, most of the coverages were for short periods during the day – he claims without any backup that the coverages were far more significant during subsequent periods. As is not unusual in such cases, the truth likely lies somewhere between the administrators' claim that he covered classes on only a handful of occasions and Rios' claim that it was constant.

The District's witnesses acknowledged that in any class with two licensed teachers, one of the teachers may be asked to cover for another teacher on a short-term basis – either to cover a particular class or for a full day if the school cannot find a substitute for the day. Mendez testified that any teacher with more than four prep periods a week can be asked to cover other classes during a prep period without additional compensation. If asked to cover a class during one of the four prep periods, the teacher is paid for the extra time.[31] There is no evidence that Rios ever sought payment for covering classes notwithstanding his claim that he was constantly asked to cover classes, including during prep periods. Moreover, while Rios complains about excessive requests for coverage, at no time did he file a grievance at either Abington School or Oliver II regarding these requests. Further, Rios had a certain number of periods where he was supporting the co-teacher, but not leading the math lesson, asking that he provide coverage during those periods would not impact his teaching math. While Rios claimed that he was often asked to cover classes even when he was supposed to be teaching math – and, in fact, was pulled out for coverage in the middle of teaching a math lesson -- this testimony is not credited. Indeed, while teaching with Velez at Abington School, Velez was teaching ELA when Rios taught math and could not simply take over his math class.[33]

[30] See, IMO Jones, Camden v. Tonya DeLaire, Board of Education of the City of Newark, Essex County, Agency Docket No. 210-8/18 (Arbitrator Earl Pfeffer, August 29, 2019) (Respondent argued that her inability to access the GOLD system used for data collection and student assessment became a negative factor in her observations and evaluations. The arbitrator stated that notwithstanding these difficulties, "it remains that it was a requirement she maintain data on her students, track their development and differentiate her instruction, independent of her ability to utilize the GOLD system. Her obligation to record data and assess her student's progress was not tied to her ability to access GOLD. Those obligations existed apart from and even pre-dated the GOLD system, which was merely the tool she was expected to use in aid of that process." Id. at 75-76.)

[31] Rodriguez testified that when teaching the 6th and 7th graders at Oliver II, he had five prep periods.

In Oliver II, Rios does not claim that he was called upon to cover classes when he was teaching the sixth, seventh and eighth graders. Instead he claims that he was constantly called upon to cover classes when assigned as a co-teacher with Kadus. Once again, however, his testimony as to the number of days is not credited. Indeed, according to Rios, between January 2 and April 10, 2019, he was called upon to cover classes on 40 separate full school days and five times for meetings or preps; if this were true, it would represent well over 50 percent of school days during that time. This testimony was not supported by notes of any kind or the testimony of any of the other witnesses. Moreover, as with his testimony overall, this claim appears to be exaggerated. Indeed, his testimony regarding coverage appeared off-the-cuff, often qualified by "maybe," e.g. "maybe" five days, "maybe" more.

Kadus, his co-teacher, testified that he was asked to cover at least three times during the first couple of weeks he was in her classroom and then intermittently thereafter during a prep period; she could not recall how often he was called to cover other classes. She testified that he would still teach the math class, but if the coverage did impact the math period, she was always prepared to teach the math lesson to the students. Similarly, Coleman testified that Rios was asked to cover classes but she, too, did not know how often that occurred. She testified that Rios covered for her on three occasions for 30 minutes to an hour, and once for a full day (which was inconsistent with Rios' testimony as to his coverage for Coleman). I am persuaded that if Rios was called upon to cover classes with the frequency he claimed during that short time period, Kadus would have recalled that it was excessive, even if she did not recall the precise number of days. The same is true for Coleman, who was also serving as the Union representative for the school and whose classroom was near Rios' and Kadus' classroom.

[33] Rios did not call Velez as a witness to confirm his claim that he was constantly asked to cover classes while teaching with Velez requiring that Velez take over for his math lesson while she was teaching ELA.

As to time proctoring, it is undisputed that all teachers are called upon to proctor exams. The resources needed to be able to meet the requirements for state testing mandated that all licensed teachers who could be available for testing served as proctors. Mendez testified that depending on the school size, testing could take several weeks and that extensive planning is required for coverage based on the mandates for testifying. Those who teach ESL, co-teachers, resource teachers and others who have extra prep periods or are not attached to a classroom are often called upon to proctor exams; it is widely understood throughout the District and by the Union that this would occur. Heintz, who was responsible for testing at Abington School, testified consistently: any licensed teacher who could be available to proctor was called upon to do so. According to Heintz, this is the reality of testing in New Jersey. (1T 16-20 to 1T at 77.) Rios was not treated differently than other teachers as relates to proctoring. It is a difficult situation that all schools must address. That he was required to proctor exams cannot be deemed arbitrary and capricious treatment of Rios, as an LWPS or otherwise.

Rios also maintains that the District's actions were arbitrary and capricious because he was observed at Oliver II just 11 days after his reassignment to the first grade class. He claims that he was called to cover other classes on five of those dates and, therefore, had only a few days with the students before the observation.[1] Each of the cases Respondent cites in support of this claim are distinguishable. See, e.g., IMO Tenure Charges of Jodi Thompson (State-Operated School District of the City of Newark), Agency Docket No.: 240-8/14 and 16-1/15 (Arbitrator Daniel Brent, June 19, 2015) (Held that tenure charges were improper, in part, where one of the observations occurred on the teacher's first day teaching a new subject to a new group of students upon returning from leave, undermining the validity of the 2013-2014 annual summative evaluation.); IMO Tenure Charges of Rinita Williams (State-Operated School District of the City of Newark), Agency Docket No.: 241-8/14 (Arbitrator Tia Schneider Denenberg, January 31, 2015) (Finding that observation conducted on the day after a teacher returned from an extended leave was arbitrary.); IMO Tenure Charges of Patsy Contrera (Passaic County Vocational School District), Agency Docket No. 223-8/15 (Arbitrator Martyce Gandel, November 27, 2015) (Finding observation arbitrary when conducted on the day after a teacher's return from an extended leave and when observations were conducted on back to back days.)

In this case, Rios was not observed on his first day back from a medical or other leave, nor on his first day of a new assignment. The observation took place 11 days after he arrived in Kadus' first grade class. Although in an email to Avraamides after the post observation conference he claimed that he was called to do coverages on three full days and two other days to cover meetings or preps, providing him eight days in the classroom with the students prior to the observation, when asked how many days he had with students prior to the observation, Rios testified "[i]t was maybe five days, but maybe I was calling to cover." (2/20/20 Tr. at 190.) Indeed, he provided this testimony after discussing the email, written closer in time, wherein he stated that he had eight days with the students prior to the observation, once again raising questions as to the overall credibility of Rios' testimony. Further, teaching first grade was not new to Rios; he taught first grade while at one of his prior assignments. He was also observed teaching in his area of specialization, i.e., math.

More importantly, however, while it was not necessary to conduct another announced formal observation as his prior observation was announced, Avraamides testified that she decided to conduct an announced observation precisely because of the recent move to first grade. By making it another announced observation, including a pre-observation conference, Rios would have time to prepare for the lesson. While Rios claims that he was not present to determine prior learning other than anchor charts in the room, by making it an announced lesson, he had the opportunity to review prior learning, either by review of student work, review of lesson plans and or conversations with Kadus, to be fully prepared for the lesson, that he did not do so cannot be grounds to invalidate the observation.

Significantly, although Rios claims he raised his concern that it was too soon to observe him in this assignment during the pre-observation conference, Avraamides testified that no such concern was raised. Rather, he completed the form and they discussed the lesson. I credit Avraamides' testimony. Indeed, in his January 25, 2019 email to Avraamides complaining about the observation (after he received his rating), Rios does not claim that he had raised this concern with Avraamides at the pre-observation conference. I am persuaded that if this concern had been raised before the observation, Rios would have referenced it in this email. Further, Rios claimed that although this was an announced observation, Avraamides did not show up when planned; she observed a few days later (on an unknown date) when he was not prepared to be observed. Once again, I do not credit this testimony. If this had been the case, it is not credible that Rios would not have raised this issue in his email to Avraamides following the observation. Further, although Respondent had the opportunity to ask Avraamides whether she observed the lesson on the planned date, she was not asked this question. Indeed, nothing in her testimony or the evaluation suggested that the announced observation did not occur on the date planned or that it was not the lesson discussed during the pre-observation conference. To the contrary, the observation evaluation indicates that the lesson taught was the same as the lesson discussed at the pre-observation conference.

Rios also claims that the District treated him in an arbitrary and capricious manner as he was required to teach outside of his areas of certification and, citing Pugliese v. State Operated School District of Newark, 2018 N.J. Super. Unpub. LEXIS 1999, *22-23 (App. Div. 2018) asserts that this fact alone renders the tenure charges void on its face. The facts in Pugliese, however, are distinguishable. In that case, the teacher held an elementary school teacher certificate which did not authorize her to teach departmentalized social studies to middle school students. Nonetheless, she was evaluated and terminated for inefficiency in teaching social studies. The Court found that evaluating and terminating the teacher for inefficiency based on teaching in a subject matter that was outside her certification was improper.[4] In this case, however, contrary to Rios' claim that he had extensive assignments to teach outside his certification, Rios' primary assignment during these two school years was teaching math, in most cases in a bilingual education classroom. Moreover, he was observed only in his content area. The assertion that "it caused untold stress to Rios, who knew he could not teach so many different subjects, and was forced to spend inordinate time educating himself, to no avail" and taking time needed to be a successful math teacher, is not supported by the facts.

Significantly, Rios primary assignment in Abington was teaching math to a bilingual class; this was precisely in his area of certification. The administrators testified that Rios was not assigned to teach other subjects. While he may have assisted Velez in the classroom during ELA and System 44, he was not required to prepare for these subjects. Nor was he observed while in this role. That he may have covered for Velez when she was absent, teaching all subjects on those days, such short-term assignment was not his primary responsibility and was not unusual in a co-teaching situation. There is no evidence that Velez was absent on a substantial number of days. Nor is it clear that he was required to prepare the lesson plans for the other subjects on those dates. Rios did not establish that the time spent teaching the class when Velez was absent was so substantial that it could reasonably cause him to be unsuccessful in teaching his primary subject, math.

Similarly, in his first assignment at Oliver H, he taught a bilingual class both math and science. Avraamides testified that every math teacher in the District, except at the high school level, teaches either math and science or ELA and social studies. That is how the subjects are paired off. "No one has a special science cert. If you do, then you are in a different type of school with a different type of class that's strictly science." (2-12-20 Tr. at 107.) There was no evidence introduced to rebut this testimony. Indeed, this testimony is consistent with his prior assignment at William Horton School where he was assigned to teach math and science to seventh and eighth grade students.

While teaching science was an additional responsibility that was outside his certification, it is significant that he was not observed teaching science; he was always observed while teaching in his strength area, math. Further, the record is clear that he was provided with resources to facilitate teaching science. (See, e.g., District Exhibit 33.) In asking that Rios teach science to sixth, seventh and eighth grade students, Rios was not treated differently than other teachers in the District. The fact that it required additional preparation time is not a basis to find that the District acted in an arbitrary and capricious manner."

As to his assignment in the first grade classroom, once again Rios led math instruction for which he was certified and had prior experience. He was not required to prepare for any other subject. That he found it difficult to assist Kadus in small groups in System 44 or other ELA related subjects for first graders – areas for which he did not lead instruction or prepare the lessons and was not observed – cannot be cause to invalidate his evaluations which were based on his math instruction, not his abilities in assisting Kadus with other subjects that she was responsible for teaching.

[1] Rios also claimed that for the first two weeks of his assignment at Oliver H, he was required to teach all subjects. A long term substitute was then located to teach ELA and social studies, with a permanent teacher hired thereafter. Rios was not required to teach all subjects for a substantial amount of time and was not evaluated during those first two weeks.

Rios also claims that he was not qualified to teach the subject matter in the various classes that he was asked to cover. He was not an art, music or gym teacher. He claims that often when he took his class to such special class, the teacher was absent and he was required to return to the classroom and remain with the class; he testified that he was unable to teach in the subject area planned for that period. This complaint does not establish that the District required that he teach in an area outside his certification or that he was treated any differently than other teachers. Indeed, Rios admitted that this happened to all teachers in the school; it was not just him. Moreover, Rios admitted that no one ever told him that he was required to teach music, art, gym or any other subject during these times. Finally, while I am persuaded that this situation did occur on occasion, I am not persuaded that it was a frequent occurrence. Indeed, Rios did not complain to anyone about this situation or seek compensation for covering a class during his prep period or otherwise file a grievance.

Rios also asserts that the District failed to understand and properly implement bilingual education, to have bilingual education administrators to evaluate bilingual education teachers and to provide the necessary resources which further contributed to the District's arbitrary and capricious conduct. As a preliminary matter, I note that this is not the appropriate forum to decide whether the District is in compliance with all statutory and regulatory requirements for bilingual education. To the extent, however, that the arguments raised apply to Rios' claims of arbitrary and capricious treatment, I will address them. As Respondent notes, a bilingual education program refers to instruction in two languages, English and the native language of the student. "According to the New Jersey legislature, 'experience has shown that public school classes in which instruction is given only in English are often inadequate for the education of children whose native tongue is another language' and therefore bilingual programs were established 'pursuant to the policy of the State to insure equal educational opportunity to every child.' N.J.S.A. 18A:35-15." (Respondent's Closing Brief at p. 6.) As Ruiz testified, while a teacher in a bilingual program uses both English and the native language (for Rios, Spanish) to teach, the goal is to provide a transition to learning in the English language.

Rios testified that while the District provided appropriate bilingual materials when he taught at the high school level, the District did not provide materials in both languages at the other grade levels requiring that he spend an inordinate amount of time translating materials for use in the classroom. Respondent claims that the District's failure to provide Rios with materials necessary to carry on instruction in two languages requiring this additional preparation time, as well as the distress caused by this failure, "perpetuated educational disadvantages that Rios is tasked with ameliorating as a bilingual instructor, but could not due to the failings of the District." (Respondent's Closing Brief at p. 81.) To support his claims, Rios cites an Office of Civil Rights and Department of Justice "Dear Colleagues" letter dated January 7, 2015 (the "Letter"), which is recognized as authoritative by the Department in its "Fall Checklist for New Bilingual ESL ELS Supervisors and Coordinators." (Respondent's Closing Brief at 6.) Although Rios selectively quoted part of a sentence in the Letter, under Staffing and Supporting EL Programs, the Letter provides, in part, as follows:

> School districts have an obligation to provide the personnel and resources necessary to effectively implement their chosen EL programs. This obligation includes having highly qualified teachers to provide language assistance services, trained administrators who can evaluate these teachers, and adequate and appropriate materials for the EL programs.
> At a minimum, every school district is responsible for ensuring that there is an adequate number of teachers to instruct EL students and that these teachers have mastered the skills necessary to effectively teach in the district's program for EL students.

(Letter at p. 14.) No testimony, case law or other authority was provided to provide guidance as to these provisions.

The District has followed the guidance provided in this Letter by establishing a bilingual education program and hiring bilingual educators to teach those programs. While the Letter indicates that appropriate materials must be provided for use in bilingual education classes, it does not provide that all materials used must be in both English and the native language in order to meet the requirements. Further, the Letter's language that Respondent relies upon does not indicate that a district fails to have appropriate materials for the program when it has a bilingual teacher, fluent in the native language, able to translate the instruction and materials, as appropriate, into the native language for the students.

Rios was not creating materials out of whole cloth; curricula materials were provided by the District and, in some instances, materials were provided in Spanish. (See e.g., District Exhibit 41, an email to Rios from Rodriguez regarding Math Online Resource in Spanish and District Exhibit 44, an email from Stavrou, the Oliver II math coach, to Rios providing a link to examples of Spanish math anchor charts for Rios' use.) In addition, this was not the first time Rios was teaching math and science to middle school grades. Neither the fact that his preparation as a bilingual teacher included translating some or all of the math (and at Oliver II sixth, seventh and eighth grade science) materials into Spanish to assure that the students were able to understand the materials and ultimately transition to more English instruction, nor that he spent significant time preparing his materials for class can be considered arbitrary and capricious treatment. Rather, as the District argues, "[c]reating lesson plans and preparing materials to teach his students is part of his job as a teacher." (District's Reply Brief at p. 11.) It is also worth noting that Rios was not the only bilingual education teacher at the lower grade levels. No evidence was presented to indicate that the alleged lack of bilingual materials was a problem for any other bilingual education teacher in the District or that Rios, or any other employee, filed a grievance or otherwise complained about the lack of material translated into the native language of their particular students.

With respect to Rios' argument that the District's actions were arbitrary and capricious because it did not have bilingual education administrators evaluate his performance, the language Rios relies upon in the Letter does not contain such requirement and no other authority has been cited that imposes such requirement. The Letter requires that districts have "trained administrators evaluate these teachers." All of the administrators who observed Rios teach in a bilingual class were fully trained to evaluate teachers in the District. Further, all of the administrators who observed Rios, with the exception of Heintz, were fluent Spanish speakers. While Heintz was not fluent, she testified that she grew up in a Spanish speaking area, her children are fluent Spanish speakers and that she understands enough Spanish to get the gist of what was being said. She is able to meet with parents who speak only Spanish, understanding what they say, although responding in English. As to the class she observed Rios teach, she testified that "[h]e was saying it in English and then saying it in Spanish" and that she was able to understand the bulk of what Rios said in class that day. Her observation evaluation of his teaching that day expressly noted that he spoke in both languages. On this record, and without authority to support that only administrators certified in bilingual education and only administrators fluent in the native language can evaluate teachers in a bilingual classroom. I do not conclude that the observation by Heintz, must be disregarded as inconsistent with the requirements for bilingual education.

Finally, while relying on a particular sentence in the Letter, Respondent eliminated the reference to the obligation to have "highly qualified teachers" to provide language assistance services for bilingual education. In this case, the District, through the evaluation process, is endeavoring to assure that it does, in fact, have highly qualified teachers provide bilingual education. Having determined, over the course of two school years, that Rios is not an effective teacher under the Framework criteria, and having brought these inefficiency charges, the District endeavors to assure that its teachers, whether in bilingual education instruction or otherwise, are effective teachers throughout the District, consistent with TEACHNJ as well as the requirement set forth in the Letter for bilingual education.

For all of the foregoing reasons, Respondent's claim that the tenure charges should be dismissed because the District acted in an arbitrary and capricious manner is rejected.

In conclusion, the District has met its burden of establishing that the statutory criteria for tenure charges have been met. For the reasons set forth above, to the extent that there was any deviation in the evaluation process as outlined in paragraphs 61 to 64 of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.2, I do not find that the deviation materially affected the outcome of the evaluations. Accordingly, pursuant to TEACHNJ, I am required to render a decision in favor of the District and to dismiss the employee.

By reason of the foregoing, I issue the following:

AWARD

The Tenure Charges brought against the Respondent, Gustavo Rios, based on inefficiency as a tenured teacher are sustained. Rios shall be dismissed as a teacher for the District.

New Jersey Commissioner of Education

Final Decision

R.P. on behalf of minor children, V.P.,

Petitioner,

v.

Board of Education of the Hunterdon Central Regional High School District, Hunterdon, County,

Respondent.

Synopsis

Petitioner appealed the respondent Board's determination that his daughter, V.P., was not legally entitled to a free public education in the Hunterdon Central Regional High School District (District) during the 2018-19 and 2019-20 school years. Petitioner argued that he had made good faith efforts to establish a domicile within the District's resident area, but that several attempts to buy or lease a house in the school district had all fallen through. The Board sought tuition reimbursement for the period of V.P's ineligible attendance. The parties filed cross motions for summary decision.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: there are no material facts at issue here, and the matter is ripe for summary decision; pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a), public schools are free to any person over five and under twenty years of age who is domiciled within the school district; petitioner has the burden of proof by a preponderance of the evidence to prove that he is domiciled in the school district. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(2); the record reflects petitioner's intent to reside within the District's area of attendance, yet it is clear that – to date – the family has never actually lived there; instead, at all relevant times, the family has resided in an extended stay hotel in Branchburg, outside of the District's area of attendance. The ALJ concluded that petitioner failed to sustain his burden of proof to show that V.P. was entitled to a free public education in the District during the 2018-19 and 2019-20 school years. Accordingly, the ALJ ordered tuition reimbursement in the amount of $26,699.85, plus $112.49 for each day beyond December 16, 2019 that V.P. remained enrolled in the District.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurred with the findings and conclusions of the ALJ, and – finding petitioner's exceptions to be unpersuasive – adopted the Initial Decision of the OAL as the final decision in this matter. The petitioner was ordered to reimburse the District for tuition costs in the amount of $26,688.85, plus $112.49 per day for each day beyond December 16, 2019 that V.P. remained enrolled in the District. The petition was dismissed.

New Jersey Commissioner of Education

Final Decision

R.P., on behalf of minor child, V.P.,

Petitioner,

v.

Board of Education of the Hunterdon Central Regional High School District, Hunterdon, County,

Respondent.

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed, as have the exceptions filed by petitioner pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4, and the Board's reply thereto.

In this matter, petitioner is challenging the Board's determination that his minor child was ineligible to attend school in the Hunterdon Central Regional High School District (District). The Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) found that petitioner did not meet his burden of demonstrating that he was a resident of the District's attendance area during the 2018-19 and 2019-20 school years. Despite several attempts by petitioner to move into the District, his family has never lived within the District's attendance area. Accordingly, the ALJ ordered tuition reimbursement in the amount of $26,699.85, plus $112.49 for each day beyond December 16, 2019 that the minor child remained enrolled in the District.

In his exceptions, petitioner argues that N.J.A.C. 6A:22-6.3(b) permits the Board or Commissioner to make an equitable determination with respect to tuition and the ALJ failed to address why equity does not apply to petitioner's circumstances. According to petitioner, he was in "constant contact" with the school about setbacks regarding his intended move into the attendance area – specifically, that agreements to lease or buy three homes fell through – and he should therefore not have to pay tuition. (Petitioner's Exceptions at 5). Petitioner also contends that the ALJ overlooked the fact that the Board failed to inform him that the District was a choice school. Petitioner maintains that the Board has an affirmative duty to guide students with respect to applying to the choice program, and if it had done so, V.P. could have been enrolled in the District as a choice student. Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 18A:36B-21b and N.J.A.C. 6A:12-1.2(c), districts who participate in the choice program cannot also enroll students on a tuition basis. As such, petitioner argues that the Board is legally prohibited from requesting tuition in this case. Petitioner distinguishes this matter from T.F., on behalf of minor child, T.N. v. Board of Education of the City of Ocean City, Cape May County, EDU 10336-16, Initial Decision (March 16, 2017), adopted, Commissioner's Decision No. 122-17, decided April 28, 2017, which was cited by the ALJ. Petitioner explains that the facts here are different from T.F., in which the petitioner was assessed tuition after being rejected from the choice program, only to then enroll her daughter in the district using a false address. Finally, petitioner claims that the ALJ erred in refusing to permit oral argument in this matter. Accordingly, petitioner requests that the Initial Decision and any assessment of tuition be rejected.

In reply, the Board argues that petitioner's unfortunate trouble securing housing within the District is not an equitable consideration. Additionally, the Board contends that petitioner is not entitled to automatically be enrolled as a choice student; there is an established application and selection process with a fixed number of seats, and petitioner has not submitted an application. Finally, contrary to petitioner's arguments, the Board maintains that it is not operating a tuition program in violation of N.J.A.C. 18A:36B-21b and N.J.A.C. 6A:12-1.2(c), but rather is asserting its right to seek an assessment of tuition under N.J.A.C. 18A:38-1b based on V.P.'s ineligible attendance. Accordingly, the Board urges the Commissioner to adopt the Initial Decision, including the assessment of tuition.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ's finding that petitioner failed to sustain his burden of establishing that he was domiciled in the District's attendance area during the 2018-19 and 2019-20 school years as it is established that he never resided within the District. The Commissioner further concurs with the ALJ's conclusion that the minor child was, therefore, not entitled to a free public education in the District's schools during that time.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b, the Commissioner shall assess tuition against petitioner for the period during which the minor child was ineligible to attend school in the District. Therefore, the Board is entitled to tuition reimbursement in the amount of $26,688.85 ($19,377 for the entire 2018-19 school year and $7,311.85 for the first 65 days of the 2019-20 school year) plus $112.49 per day for each day beyond December 16, 2019 that the minor child remains enrolled in the District.

The Commissioner does not find petitioner's exceptions to be persuasive. While it seems that petitioner intended to move into the District's attendance area and suffered several frustrating setbacks in his attempts to purchase or rent a home, he never lived within the District. The fact that petitioner kept the Board informed of his efforts does not entitle him to a free public education in the District's schools. Additionally, the Board was not required to enroll V.P. in the choice program, as there is an application and selection process. Furthermore, while a district's participation in the choice program prohibits it from simultaneously running a tuition program, it is not prohibited from seeking tuition reimbursement from students who are ineligibly enrolled in the district. There is no evidence here that the Board was admitting students on a tuition basis; it simply assessed tuition for the period of V.P.'s ineligible attendance, in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b. Petitioner's attempt to distinguish the facts of T.F., supra, falls flat. The ALJ cited the case to demonstrate that the Commissioner has previously assessed tuition in a choice district, so the specific facts of the case are irrelevant. Finally, according to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.2(d), written motions – as the parties filed here – shall be decided on the papers unless oral argument is directed by the judge. As such, it was within the ALJ's discretion to decide the written motion without oral argument.

Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter. Petitioner is directed to reimburse the Board in the amount of $26,688.85, plus $112.49 per day for each day beyond December 16, 2019 that the minor child remains enrolled in the District, for tuition costs incurred during the period in which V.P. was ineligible to attend school in the Hunterdon Central Regional High School District. The petition of appeal is hereby dismissed.

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner, R.P., challenges the residency determination made by the Hunterdon Central Regional High School District Board of Education ("Board") about his minor daughter, V.P. On April 15, 2019, respondent submitted an Answer, which was filed with the Commissioner of Education on the same day. Respondent's demand included a request that the Commissioner find V.P. ineligible to attend Hunterdon Central Regional High School District ("District" or "HCRHS") and that the petitioner be assessed a tuition charge for each day of V.P.'s ineligible attendance in the Board's schools for the 2018-2019 school year and for any future school years pending the completion or withdrawal of the appeal. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law where it was filed as a contested case on April 17, 2019. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to 15; N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. An undiscovered error delayed docketing of the matter until September 9, 2019.

Respondent filed a Motion for Summary Decision on December 16, 2019. Petitioner filed Opposition to the Motion and a Cross-Motion for Summary Decision on January 3, 2020. Respondent filed a Brief in Support of its Motion for Summary Decision and in Opposition to Petitioner's Motion for Summary Decision on January 13, 2020.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

Petitioner, R.P., is the father of V.P. Prior to the 2018-2019 school year, V.P. attended public school in Metuchen, New Jersey. Petitioner and his family determined to relocate to Raritan Township with the intention of having V.P. attend HCRHS.

On or about June 4, 2018, Petitioner signed a lease agreement for a property located on Altamont Drive in Flemington, New Jersey, which is within District's attendance area. Thereafter, on or about July 24, 2018, Petitioner submitted to District an enrollment application on behalf of V.P. In support of V.P.'s application for enrollment, R.P. submitted a copy of the lease agreement for the Altamont property. At that time, District issued to R.P. a written "Notice of Defect in Application – Potential Ineligibility." The document notified R.P. that, although V.P. was being accepted for enrollment on a preliminary basis, he was required to submit additional proofs of his residency at the Altamont property by August 24, 2018.

Petitioner never moved into the Altamont property, as the lease fell through when the property owner apparently signed two contracts for the same property. Over a period of months, Petitioner made various other attempts to obtain housing within the District's attendance area, but these attempts were similarly unsuccessful.

No additional proofs of residency within the District's attendance area were submitted and, on this basis, respondent determined V.P. was ineligible to attend school in the District. Respondent asserts that on February 5, 2019, Petitioner was hand-delivered a letter notifying him of the determination of ineligibility and Petitioner's opportunity to appear before the Board of Education on February 25, 2019. Petitioner failed to appear before the Board of Education on February 25 and an email was sent to Petitioner on February 26 advising that V.P. was deemed ineligible to attend Hunterdon Central Regional High School because V.P. did not live in-district. Petitioner alleges that he did not receive the email until March 21, 2019. Petitioner filed an appeal on March 22, 2019.

At all relevant times, Petitioner has lived at an extended-stay hotel located in Branchburg, which is outside of the District's attendance area. As of the close of the record on this motion, Petitioner has yet to relocate to a home within the District's attendance area.[1]

The District's daily tuition rate for the 2018-2019 school year was $107.65 per day. The District's daily tuition rate for the 2019-2020 school year is $112.49 per day. The District participates in the Interdistrict Public School Choice Program.

LEGAL DISCUSSION

[1] Petitioner certifies that the family has entered into a contract to build a new home that is within the District's attendance area. However, it is undisputed that closing has not yet occurred and the family has not yet moved into the property.

A motion for summary decision may be granted if the papers and discovery presented, as well as any affidavits which may have been filed with the application, show that there is no genuine issue of material fact and the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law. N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b). If the motion is sufficiently supported, the non-moving party must demonstrate by affidavit that there is a genuine issue of fact which can only be determined in an evidentiary proceeding, in order to prevail in such an application. Ibid. These provisions mirror the summary judgment language of R. 4:46-2(c) of the New Jersey Court Rules.

The motion judge must "consider whether the competent evidential materials presented, when viewed in the light most favorable to the non-moving party . . . , are sufficient to permit a rational fact finder to resolve the alleged disputed issue in favor of the non-moving party." Brill v. Guardian Life Ins. Co. of Am., 142 N.J. 520, 523 (1995). And even if the non-moving party comes forward with some evidence, this forum must grant summary decision if the evidence is "so one-sided that [the moving party] must prevail as a matter of law." Id. at 536 (citation omitted).

Whether V.P. is entitled to attend the District schools as a domiciliary

In the present matter, R.P. does not dispute that, to date, his family has never lived within District's attendance area. Thus, there are no genuine issues of material fact. The question is whether the Board is entitled to summary decision as a matter of law.

Public schools shall be free to students over five and under 20 years of age if they are domiciled within the school district. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a). However, a district board of education may order the transfer or removal of a child from school if the board of education has determined that the parent or guardian of a child who is attending the schools of the district is not domiciled within the district. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(2). To that end, "[i]f the superintendent or administrative principal of a school district finds that the parent or guardian of a child who is attending the schools of the district is not domiciled within the district . . . , the superintendent or administrative principal may apply to the board of education for the removal of the child." N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(2). The parents may contest a local school board's decision regarding the student's right to attend school in the district to the Commissioner of Education and "shall have the burden of proof by a preponderance of the evidence" to prove domicile in the school district. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(2).

If an appeal is filed, and the petitioner fails to sustain the burden of demonstrating the student's right to attend the school district, the Commissioner may assess tuition for the period during which the hearing and decision on appeal were pending, and for up to one year of a student's ineligible attendance prior to the appeal's filing and including the 21-day period to file an appeal. N.J.A.C. 6A:22-6.2(a). Such tuition assessment "shall be calculated on a per student basis for the period of a student's ineligible enrollment, by applicable grade/program category and consistent with the provisions of N.J.A.C. 6A:23-3.1. The individual student's record of daily attendance shall not impact on such calculation." N.J.A.C. 6A:22-6.3(a). However, "[n]othing in this chapter shall preclude an equitable determination, by the district board of education or the Commissioner, that, when the circumstances of a matter so warrant, tuition shall not be assessed for all or part of any period of a student's ineligible attendance in the school district." N.J.A.C.6A:22-6.3(b).

A child's domicile is normally that of his or her parents. Somerville Bd. of Educ. v. Manville Bd. of Educ., 332 N.J. Super. 6, 12 (App. Div. 2000), aff'd, 167 N.J. 55 (2001). The domicile of a person is the place where he has his true, fixed permanent home and principal establishment, and to which whenever he is absent, he has the intention of returning, and from which he has no present intention of moving. In re Unanue, 255 N.J. Super. 362, 374 (Law Div. 1991), aff'd, 311 N.J. Super. 589 (App. Div.), certif. denied, 157 N.J. 541 (1998), cert. denied, 526 U.S. 1051 (1999). A person's domicile continues until superseded by a new domicile. Id. at 377.

In considering whether a change of domicile has occurred, three elements must be considered: 1) whether there had been an actual and physical taking up of an abode; 2) whether the subject had an intention to make his home there permanently or at least indefinitely; and 3) whether the subject had an intention to abandon his old domicile. Unanue, 255 N.J. Super at 376 (citations omitted). Thus, although a person's intent with respect to domicile is very important, it is not alone sufficient. Rather, a concurrence of physical presence and an intention to make that place one's home is required. Ibid.

Here, the record reflects a strong intention to reside within District's area of attendance. Petitioner certifies that he has made three earnest (albeit unsuccessful) attempts to establish such residency and that he is scheduled to close on a newly constructed home imminently. However, the record is equally clear that, to date, the family has never actually lived in District's area of attendance. As such, Petitioner's intention to do so is irrelevant. The family has never established an actual and physical abode in the District's attendance area. Thus, they lacked the necessary concurrence of physical presence and intention to establish domicile there.

Petitioner has failed to sustain the burden of demonstrating that V.P. was entitled to a free public education in Hunterdon Central Regional High School District as a domiciliary for the 2018-2019 and 2019-2020 school years. Thus, the Board is entitled to summary decision in its favor on this issue.

Whether HCRHSD's counterclaim for tuition is incompatible with its participation in the Interdistrict Public School Choice Program

Petitioner argues that, by virtue of its participation in the Interdistrict Public School Choice Program ("Choice Program"), HCRHSD is precluded from seeking tuition for the period of V.P.'s ineligible attendance. For support, Petitioner relies on N.J.S.A. 18A:36B-21b and N.J.A.C. 6A:12-1.2(c), which prohibit choice districts from utilizing a tuition program pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-3. Petitioner's reliance is misplaced.

Generally, local boards of education may admit otherwise eligible non-resident students on a tuition basis. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-3. However, districts that have applied and been accepted into the Choice Program are statutorily precluded from doing so. N.J.S.A. 18A:36B-21b. The applicable regulations make clear that a choice district "may not maintain at the same time both a tuition program pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-3 and a choice program..."

Here, there is nothing in the record to suggest that HCRHSD admitted V.P. as a non-resident student on a tuition basis. Rather, HCRHSD enrolled V.P. as a presumed domiciliary based upon the information that petitioner provided on the enrollment application, which indicated that he resided at an address within the HCRHSD attendance area. The instant request for tuition arises out of the later determination that petitioner was never in fact a domiciliary and V.P. was, therefore, ineligible to attend HCRHSD's schools. Recovery of tuition under these circumstances is specifically permitted under N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(1) and N.J.A.C. 6A:22-6.2. And, there is nothing in the statutory or regulatory framework to support Petitioner's contention that HCRHSD is prohibited from recovering tuition in accordance with those provisions because of its participation in the Choice Program. Moreover, the Commissioner has previously assessed tuition for ineligible attendance in choice districts. See e.g., T.F. o/b/o minor child, T.N. v. Bd. of Educ. of the City of Ocean City, EDU 10336-16, Initial Decision, (March 16, 2017), adopted, Comm'r (April 28, 2017) <http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html >

Calculation of Tuition

When the evidence does not support the claim of domicile, N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(1) provides that tuition shall be assessed "for the student prorated to the time of the student's ineligible attendance in the school district. Tuition shall be computed on the basis of 1/180 of the total annual per-pupil cost to the local district multiplied by the number of days of ineligible attendance and shall be collected in the manner in which orders of the commissioner are enforced." The regulations clarify that the tuition assessed covers the period during which the hearing and decision on appeal were pending, and for up to one year of a student's ineligible attendance prior to the appeal's filing and including the 21-day period to file an appeal. N.J.A.C. 6A:22-6.2(a).

Here, the record supports a finding that V.P. has never been eligible to attend the schools of HCRHSD. Thus, tuition should be assessed for the entire period of V.P.'s attendance. It is undisputed that V.P. has been enrolled and attending Hunterdon Central Regional High School since the 2018-2019 school year commenced. The District's daily tuition rate for the 2018-2019 school year was $107.65 per day, for a total of $19,377. The District's daily tuition rate for the 2019-2020 school year is $112.49 per day. As of the filing of the instant motion, 65 school days had elapsed, for a total of $7,311.85.

Tuition is assessed in the amount of $26,688.85, subject to increase at the rate of $112.49 per school day of V.P.'s continued attendance.

CONCLUSION

I CONCLUDE that there is no genuine issue of material fact and that the Board is entitled to summary decision as a matter of law.

I CONCLUDE that the Board properly found V.P. ineligible to attend the schools of the district and that the Board is entitled to tuition reimbursement at the applicable rate for the period of V.P.'s ineligible attendance during the 2018–2019 and 2019–2020 school years.

Finally, I CONCLUDE that, given the imminent closing on a home within the District's attendance area and the fact that there is no other cause for removal, V.P. should be allowed to finish out the 2019-2020 school year in District, with payment of tuition as indicated above.

DECISION AND ORDER

Based upon the conclusions stated above that V.P. was not a domiciliary of the District, I hereby ORDER that respondent's motion for summary decision is GRANTED, and petitioner's appeal is DISMISSED.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED, the District is due from petitioner the amount of $26,688.85 for tuition for the 2018/2019 school year and the 2019/2020 school year through December 16, 2019; and the per diem sum of $112.49 from December 16, 2019, to the date domicile in the district is established.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." Synopsis

Petitioner appealed the determination of the respondent, New Jersey Department of Education, Office of Student Protection (OSP), that he is permanently disqualified from employment in New Jersey public schools. Petitioner was disqualified as the result of information revealed during a criminal history background check pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A-6.7.1. Respondent filed a motion to dismiss the petition.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: there are no material facts at issue here, and the matter is ripe for summary decision; petitioner's criminal history background check revealed that in 2008, in connection with his work as a contractor, petitioner was convicted of several separate acts of Federal crimes, including five counts of mail fraud, one count of making a corrupt payment, Theft or Bribery Concerning Programs Receiving Federal Funds and obtaining property by fraud involving Federal Funds; petitioner was sentenced to thirty-nine months and ordered to pay $82,705 in restitution; petitioner did not dispute any of his federal convictions, but argued that those crimes were not "substantially equivalent" to any New Jersey crime of the second degree, which would be disqualifying. The ALJ concluded, inter alia, that: USC Section 666 (a) (2) (A) and N.J.S.A. 2C:27-2 are statutes seeking to punish the bribing of public officials and obtaining rewards in return for payments or other consideration and are substantially equivalent to each other; the controlling statute here, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1, mandates permanent disqualification and does not provide any leniency or discretion in regard to its application. Accordingly, the ALJ granted the OSP's motion for summary decision and dismissed the petition.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurred with the findings of the ALJ and adopted the Initial Decision of the OAL as the final decision in this matter. The petition was dismissed.

BEFORE ERNEST M. BONGIOVANNI, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Raymond Vella (Vella or petitioner) challenges an administrative determination, by letter dated November 18, 2019, by the New Jersey Department of Education Office of Student Protection (respondent) which disqualified him from "serving in any position, paid or unpaid, with an educational institution under the supervision of the Department of Education or with a contracted service provided under contract with said school or educational facility." On February 1, 2020, Vella filed an appeal with the Commissioner of Education. The appeal was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) by the respondent, where it was filed on March 2, 2020, for hearing as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

Respondent filed a motion for Summary Decision seeking a dismissal, with a brief and Exhibits, in lieu of filing an Answer. Petitioner filed a brief and exhibits in opposition to the motion on March 13, 2020.

I convened a pre-hearing conference of May 4, 2020, at which time counsel for petitioner and respondent both agreed that no further briefing or oral argument was requested or necessary and that the motion was ripe for decision.

MOTION UNDER CONSIDERATION

Respondent moves for summary disposition from the appeal of the respondent's determination to disqualify petitioner from holding any position, paid or unpaid, or to contract with the Department of Education on the basis of the disqualifying criminal convictions on his record that was revealed in a background check.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

Based upon the papers submitted, by both sides all of the relevant facts are uncontested, and accordingly I FIND the following to be undisputed facts.

1. Petitioner was a contractor in and around Elizabeth, New Jersey. He performed contract work with the Linden Neighborhood Preservation Program (LNPP/ Program), which received federal funds through the United States Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

2. As a contractor for the LNPP, petitioner made bids for certain work and if selected, he was contracted to rehabilitate work on homes for individuals who qualified for the LNPP.

3. During the time he was a contractor for the LNPP, the petitioner, to induce procurement of contracts with him, made illegal payments to the head of the Program.

4. In 2008, as a result of these illegal payments, the petitioner was convicted of several Federal crimes, including five counts of mail fraud, one count of making a corrupt payment, Theft or Bribery Concerning Programs Receiving Federal Funds and obtaining property by fraud involving Federal Funds. He was sentenced to thirty-nine months. As a part of the petitioner's online application he was required to proceed through a series of questions and screens that each required imprisonment and ordered to pay $82,705 in restitution. After prison, the petitioner was put on supervisory release.

5. In 2019, the petitioner underwent a criminal background check as part of seeking employment with the Elizabeth, NJ school district. On November 18, 2019, the Office of Student Protection (OSP) for the NJ Department of Education (DOE) wrote the Petitioner a letter advising him that, as a result of his criminal convictions, he was "permanently disqualified" from serving in any position paid or unpaid "with any educational institution under the DOE's supervision," or "with a contracted service provider under contract" of such educational facilities." Petitioner completed the online application without the acknowledgment that he had been convicted of the aforesaid robbery offense.

ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

If there is no genuine issue as to any material fact, a moving party is entitled to prevail on a motion for summary disposition as a matter of law. Brill v. The Guardian Life Insurance Co. of America, 142 N.J. 520, 540 (1995). The purpose of summary decision is to avoid unnecessary hearings and their concomitant burden on public resources. Under the Brill standard, a fact-finding hearing should be avoided "when the evidence is so one-sided that one party must prevail as a matter of law." Id.

In the present matter, the respondent seeks a Summary Dismissal of petitioner's case because the criminal background check revealed "disqualifying offenses." N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 (d). A disqualifying offense is any conviction under the laws of the State of NJ or "under any similar statutes of the United States or any other state for a substantially equivalent crime or other offense." The person who has been convicted of any crime of the first or second degree is "permanently disqualified form employment or service under the act." Respondent argues that Petitioner's convictions for the eight separate acts of federal crimes are substantially similar to two different second-degree crimes in the State of NJ. Specifically, Respondent believes petitioner's conviction for offering a corrupt payment (a violation of 18 U.S.C. Section 666 (a) (2) (a)), is substantially similar to N.J.S.A. 2C:27-2, Bribery in Official and Political Matters, a crime of the second degree. Further, petitioner pled guilty to two counts of obtaining property by fraud involving federal funds, in violation of 18 U.S.C. Section 666 (a) (1) (A). Respondent argues that crime is substantially equivalent to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-9 which grades a certain type of theft as a crime of the second degree. Under the New Jersey statute, the person who commits an act of purposefully obtaining or retaining property upon agreement or subject to a known legal obligation to make a specified payment or disposition is "guilty of theft if he deals with the property obtained as his own and fails to make the required payment or disposition."

Petitioner does not dispute any of the aforesaid facts. He does not argue that there were procedural defects or inaccuracy in the criminal background check. He does not dispute the DOE's authority to require such background checks nor even their authority to bar employment pursuant to the authorizing legislation, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.2, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-4.13 of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-1.2. Nor, as mentioned, does he dispute any of the convictions for federal crimes. He argues that those crimes, however, were not "substantially equivalent" to any New Jersey crime of the second degree.

Respondent finds a distinction between the conviction for offering a corrupt payment, the federal offense, and Bribery in Official and Political matters, the New Jersey offense. He argues that under the New Jersey offense he would have to have been found guilty of acting "purposefully.". He cites the Jury Charge for N.J.S.A. 27-2, page 2. Under the Federal Crime the language of the statute does not characterize the guilty person's actions as requiring them to be purposeful. He further argues the respondent would have no basis for characterizing the Petitioner's actions as purposeful. Thus, he argues, the two offenses can't be substantially equivalent. Further, he argues that he was "forced" to make the illegal payments to the public official who was running the Program as he "demanded" the corrupt payment in return for rewarding a contract.

I cannot agree with this creative analysis. Under the New Jersey crime the "person is guilty of bribery if he directly or indirectly offers confers or agrees to confer on another or solicits, accepts or agrees to accept from another any benefit as consideration for the performance of official duties." N.J.S.A. 2C:27-2 (d). The federal conviction to which respondent pled guilty characterizes one as guilty of theft or bribery concerning receiving federal funds when they "corruptly give , offer or agree to give anything of value to any person with intent to influence or reward an agent of an organization of a state local or individual tribal government or any agency thereof, in connection with any business..." Both offenses make illegal bribing or offering to bribe officials or agreeing to make corrupt payments in order to obtain a reward or benefit from the performance of official duties to whom the payment is offered or made.

Other than the fact that the offenses facially appear the same and to have the same intent, to wit, punishing those who make or offer corrupt payments or to induce a corrupt act by public officials and thus are substantially equivalent, there are other fatal flaws in petitioner's arguments. One, he cites the NJ Jury charge as the basis for distinction of the two crimes, but does not cite the Federal jury charge, which indeed may use the term "purposeful" or a substantially similar term. If one is going to argue the Jury charge trumps the actual wording of the statute when weighing whether the State crime is not substantially equivalent to the federal crime, it would seem incumbent to analyze and cite the Federal Jury Charge to distinguish the crimes. The New Jersey Statute does not use the word purposeful, and neither does the Federal statute, so it is incumbent to compare apples to apples to analyze anything beyond the precise wording of the applicable two statutes. Two, as stated by petitioner, the applicable NJ crime, under the jury charge, would require a "jury would have to find" that the defendant acted purposefully. However, here the defendant pled guilty to the offense. Under the applicable statute, the offenses themselves have to be substantially equivalent. If one upholds petitioner's arguments, one could never accept, where conviction was by pleas of guilty, two statutes as being substantially equivalent without going into on unintended, unnecessary, time consuming and torturous process of determining what a jury could have found under the evidence that was never actually proffered, because the defendant pled guilty. In essence, it would negate the ability to find acts as being substantially equivalent if the conviction was obtained, as the vast majority of all of them are by guilty pleas. Finally, it is not necessary under the federal statute to use the word purposeful in order for the two offenses to be substantially equivalent. If we focus, as we should on the elements of the crime, the respondent would have us believe that you can be guilty of the offense of providing corrupt payments and bribing public officials without having the purpose to do so, i.e. he bribed a public official by mistake or accident! In fact, respondent actually argues he was "required" to pay the corrupt official his bribe money in order to get the contract. That is the essence, it would seem, or bribing public officials. It doesn't matter whose idea it was, the official demanding it, or the one who agrees to give the bribe. In fact, to pose such an argument gives one pause to believe the respondent has learned anything, so far, from his punishment.

I mention without much elaboration, that respondent's claim that one has to compare the sentencing under the respondent's federal crimes to the sentencing he would have received under the applicable New Jersey offenses is without merit. Such a comparison would require imprecise speculation. He argues that his actual sentence was the result of the "relatively minor nature" of his offense which led the sentencing judge to issue a sentence "akin" to one being sentenced for third degree offenses is also highly speculative and without merit. In fact, 39 months' imprisonment would appear to be a harsh penalty for a New Jersey third-degree offense which permits as little as no imprisonment and a maximum of five years. And in this instance, imprisonment of thirty-nine months would in any event, be a lawful sentence under many NJ second degree crimes as in some cases, defendants plead guilty to 2nd degree crimes, but by plea bargain get sentenced as if convicted of a third-degree offense. It is common knowledge that the State does not admit that a crime is any less heinous because one pled guilty to it rather than was found guilty of it. It simply gives in appropriate cases lesser sentences to those who plead guilty by sparing the State the trouble of ensuring a conviction by trial or by cooperating on other matters (such as insuring the conviction of codefendants).

There is no question that the USC Section 666 (a) (2) (A) and N.J.S.A. 2C:27-2 are statutes seeking to punish bribing public officials and obtaining rewards in return for payments or other consideration are substantially equivalent to each other. No evidence has been presented to the contrary and I must find as a matter of law that the lifetime prohibition on employment and contracting with DOE's institutions as the substantially equivalent New Jersey offense is a crime of the 2nd degree is therefore justified. I make no determination on Respondent's additional argument that the other two federal offenses cited pertaining to obtaining federal funds by fraud are substantially similar to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-9. The lifetime prohibition imposed by the DOE requires the conviction of only one commission of a New Jersey second degree crime or a substantially equivalent United States or other state offense to sustain the prohibition, Accordingly, I CONCLUDE as a matter of undisputed fact and law that the decision of the agency must be upheld.

Re: M.M., on behalf of minor child v. Board of Education of the Township of Lafayette, Sussex County, Agency Dkt. No. 94-5/20.

Dear Parties:

I have reviewed the materials filed in connection with petitioner's Motion to Reopen pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.5. Petitioner argues that she was not afforded a hearing or oral argument to present evidence in response to the Motion to Dismiss filed by the Lafayette Board of Education. Petitioner further argues that the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) disregarded the arguments in her written opposition to the Motion to Dismiss.

Petitioner points to no statute or regulation requiring an ALJ to hold a hearing or oral argument prior to ruling on a Motion to Dismiss. To the contrary, N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.3, setting forth procedures when oral argument is directed, clearly contemplates that oral argument may not be directed for every motion. Furthermore, the ALJ has wide latitude to determine the proceedings of a case, including declaring hearing dates unnecessary, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.6.

Regarding petitioner's argument that the ALJ disregarded her written opposition to the Motion to Dismiss, disagreement with the outcome of the Initial Decision does not warrant reopening the matter. The appropriate mechanism to argue that the Initial Decision was incorrectly decided is in exceptions to the Initial Decision.

Accordingly, the Motion to Reopen is DENIED.

Sincerely,

Kevin Dehmer

Order on Emergent Relief

Ralph Johnson,

Petitioner,

v.

Board of Education of the Township of Piscataway, Middlesex County,

Respondent.

The record of this emergent matter, the sound recording of the proceedings at the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), and the recommended Order of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) have been reviewed. In this case, petitioner, a former member of the respondent Board, seeks emergent relief to challenge his removal from his position on the Board of Education. N.J.S.A. 18A:12-3 provides that "any member who fails to attend three consecutive meetings of the board without good cause may be removed by it." It is undisputed that petitioner failed to attend meetings on March 12, April 30, and May 14, 2020. Petitioner alleges that he attended the meeting on April 9, 2020 in part, thereby not missing three consecutive meetings, while the Board contends that the law is unsettled regarding partial attendance.[1] Petitioner also contends that the technological issues he experienced connecting to the remote April 9, 2020 Board meeting constituted good cause for his partial attendance, and his essential employment during the COVID-19 pandemic was good cause for his remaining absences. The ALJ granted emergent relief to petitioner and ordered that petitioner be reinstated to his position on the Board.

[1] The April 9, 2020 Board meeting was conducted virtually due to the COVID-19 pandemic. Petitioner contends that due to poor cellular service at the correctional facility where he works as an essential employee, he was unable to connect to the meeting via Zoom. He called the Director of Administrative Services, who placed him on speaker phone, but the connection was lost after 13 minutes.

Upon such review, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that petitioner has demonstrated entitlement to emergent relief pursuant to the standards enunciated in Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982), and codified at N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6.

Accordingly, the recommended Order of the OAL, granting petitioner's application for emergent relief, is adopted for the reasons expressed by the ALJ. This case shall continue at the OAL with such proceedings as the parties and the ALJ deem necessary to bring it to closure. During the pendency of this matter, petitioner shall be reinstated to his position on the Board.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

RALPH JOHNSON,
Petitioner,
v.
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF TOWNSHIP OF PISCATAWAY, MIDDLESEX COUNTY,
Respondent.

Brett M. Pugach, Esq., for petitioner (Bromberg Law LLC, attorneys)

Howard B. Mankoff, Esq., for respondent (Marshall, Dennehey, Warner, Coleman & Goggin, LLP, attorneys)

BEFORE KIM C. BELIN, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner Ralph Johnson (petitioner or Johnson), a former member of the Piscataway Township Board of Education (Board or respondent), challenges his removal from the Board and seeks an order pending a final decision from the Commissioner of Education (Commissioner): (1) staying the enforcement of respondent's resolution passed on July 9, 2020, which removed petitioner from the Board for allegedly missing three consecutive Board meetings without good cause; (2) granting emergent relief enjoining and restraining the Board from taking any steps to fill the vacancy caused by petitioner's removal and from proceeding with an election to fill the remainder of the unexpired term at the November 3, 2020, election; and/or (3) determining this matter in an expedited manner and issuing a scheduling order to ensure that the Commissioner's final decision can be issued prior to September 14, 2020, which is the deadline for preparation of official general election ballots for printing.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On August 3, 2020, Johnson filed with the Commissioner, New Jersey State Department of Education, Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, a petition of appeal and notice of motion for stay and emergent relief and for expedited review, alleging that the Board's action of July 9, 2020, to remove him as a member of the Board was void ab initio and its determination that Johnson's absences were without good cause was arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable and induced by improper motive. Johnson seeks an order nullifying the Board's action of July 9, 2020, and restoring him to membership on the Board, awarding him reasonable attorney fees and costs and such other relief as the Commissioner deems appropriate.

On August 5, 2020, the Commissioner transmitted the petition and motion for emergent relief to the Office of Administrative Law. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15; N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13; N.J.A.C. 1:1-8.2. Argument on the matter was held on August 11, 2020.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION AND FINDINGS

Based upon a review of the documents from the parties, the facts in this case are not disputed. Johnson was first elected to the Board on November 5, 2013, for a three-year term and was re-elected for two additional terms serving a total of seven years until 2020. (Petition of Appeal, ¶ 2-4.) During his tenure, Johnson has attended 85% of all Board meetings. (Id. at ¶ 6.) Johnson is employed as a Lieutenant by the Essex County Department of Correctional Police where he is assigned as a Shift Commander. (Id. at ¶ 7.) Prior to March, 2020, when assigned to work shifts that coincided with Board meetings, which are typically held on Thursday evenings, Johnson has used personal time, vacation days, compensatory time and swapped shifts with his partner through a reciprocal program in order to attend the Board meetings. (Id. at ¶ 9.)

On March 9, 2020, the Governor of New Jersey, through Executive Order 103, declared a public health emergency and state of emergency in New Jersey. (Id. at Exh. B.) On March 16, 2020, Governor Murphy issued Executive Order 104 which ordered all public, private and parochial elementary and secondary schools closed. (Id. at Exh. D.) As a result, the Board transitioned to its first video teleconference meeting on April 9, 2020. (Id. at ¶ 16.) Johnson was assigned to work on April 9, 2020, but he used his break time to participate in the Board meeting. (Id. at ¶ 16.) He had to use his personal cell phone because the correctional facility does not have wifi and the cellular service is unreliable. (Id.) After several unsuccessful attempts to dial into the meeting using the Zoom dial-in number on his cell phone, he was able to connect into the meeting by contacting the Director of Administrative Services who used her cell phone to place Johnson on speaker phone which enabled him to participate in the meeting. (Id.) However, after thirteen minutes, the connection was lost, and Johnson was unable to subsequently reconnect into the meeting despite repeated attempts. (Id.)

The minutes from the April 9, 2020, Board meeting reflect that Johnson was present at the meeting, arriving at 5:55 p.m., exiting at 6:08 p.m. and the meeting adjourned at 7:02 p.m. (Id. at ¶ 17; Exh. E.) The April 9, 2020, minutes of the Business Meeting and Executive Session showing Johnson's attendance were unanimously approved by the Board without revision on April 30, 2020. (Id. at Exh. F.) At the following Board meeting held on April 30, 2020, three Board members also experienced connection challenges calling into the meeting and were marked present. (Id. at ¶ 21; Exh. F.)

It is undisputed that Johnson missed the March 12, 2020, in-person Board meeting, and video conference meetings via Zoom on April 30, 2020, and May 14, 2020, due to his work schedule. (Id. at ¶ 15-22.) Johnson's absences were attributable to the changes in his work schedule which was altered by the COVID-19 pandemic and state of emergency requiring him to work additional hours to cover for employees who tested positive for the virus and had to be quarantined. (Id. at 15-22; 34.) As a correctional police lieutenant, Johnson was on call as an essential worker who had to report to work. (Respondent's letter brief; Transcript of July 9, 2020 meeting, p. 50a, lines 5-8.) Johnson notified the Superintendent and Board President of his absences for the April 30 and May 14, 2020, meetings. (Id. at ¶ 21,22; Respondent's Letter Brief, Exh. 5a, 6a, 7a.)

Johnson's request for a shift change was granted, effective May 16, 2020, and he has attended all Board meetings until his removal on July 9, 2020. (Id. at ¶ 23-25.)

The Board voted six in favor and three opposed to remove Johnson on July 9, 2020. (Id. at ¶ 30.) Johnson's removal creates a vacancy of over two years left on his term of office. (Id. at ¶ 37.)

Board meetings start with a one-hour executive session which is private and allows the Board to discuss confidential matters followed by the public portion of the meetings which includes presentations by staff and students, public discussion of issues as appropriate under the Open Public Meetings Act, N.J.S.A. 10:4-8 et seq., and formal voting on the Board agenda. (Certification of Shelia Hobson, p. 2.) Accordingly, at the April 9, 2020, meeting, Johnson was present for only a portion of the executive session and did not vote on any public matters. (Id. at 3.)

LEGAL ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSION

Emergent Relief

The regulations governing controversies and disputes before the Commissioner of Education provide that "[w]here the subject matter of the controversy is a particular course of action by a district board of education . . . the petitioner may include with the petition of appeal, a separate motion for emergent relief or a stay of that action pending the Commissioner's final decision in the contested case." N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6(a). The regulations further provide that the Commissioner may "[t]ransmit the motion to the OAL for immediate hearing on the motion." N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6(c)(3).

At such a hearing, a petitioner must show that he/she satisfies each of the following four standards:

> 1. The petitioner will suffer irreparable harm if the requested relief is not granted;
>
> 2. The legal right underlying petitioner's claim is settled;
> 3. The petitioner has a likelihood of prevailing on the merits of the underlying claim; and
> 4. When the equities and interests of the parties are balanced, the petitioner will suffer greater harm than the respondent will suffer if the requested relief is not granted.
> [N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6(b) (citing Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982)).]

Thus, the purpose of emergent relief is "to 'prevent some threatening, irreparable mischief, which should be averted until opportunity is afforded for a full and deliberate investigation of the case.'" Crowe, 90 N.J. at 132 (citing Thompson ex rel. Bd. of Chosen Freeholders v. Paterson, 9 N.J. Eq. 624, 625 (Sup. Ct. 1854)).

Irreparable Harm

Johnson has demonstrated that he will suffer irreparable harm if the requested relief is not granted, because "harm is generally considered irreparable in equity if it cannot be redressed adequately by monetary damages," Crowe, 90 N.J. at 132–33. In addition, the irreparable harm standard contemplates that the harm be substantial and immediate. Subcarrier Communications v. Day, 229 N.J. Super. 634, 638 (App. Div. 1977). Here, Johnson persuasively argues, and the Board does not dispute, "[n]o monetary award can adequately address [his] rights in this matter or protect the public interest and as such temporary restraints should issue." (Petitioner's Memorandum of Law in Support of Motion for Emergent Relief, at 8.) "If the vacancy remains in place, candidates who have already submitted petitions for nomination for the unexpired term will be included in a ballot draw (on August 10, 2020) to determine the order that candidate names will appear on a ballot for an election that should not even take place." Id.

Moreover, "the subsequent election of another candidate to replace [Johnson] could potentially moot the ability of the Commissioner or a Court to grant reinstatement. See, Esteves v. Bd. of Ed. of the Town of Kearny, OAL Docket No. EDU 13424-15, 2016 N.J. AGEN LEXIS 101, *11-13 (March 7, 2016)." Id. at 9.

Right to Claim is Settled

Next, emergent relief "should be withheld when the legal right underlying plaintiff's claim is unsettled." Crowe, 90 N.J. at 133 (citing Citizens Coach Co. v. Camden H. R. Co., 29 N.J. Eq. 299, 304–05 (E & A 1878)). Here, however, the law regarding removal from membership on a board of education is settled by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-3, which provides in relevant part:

> . . . any member who fails to attend three consecutive meetings of the board without good cause may be removed by it.

The Board asserts that Johnson's thirteen-minute presence at the April 9, 2020, Board meeting did not constitute attendance and thus he failed to attend three consecutive meetings having missed the March 12, April 9, April 30, and May 14, 2020, meetings which violates the above-referenced statute. Petitioner counters that the interruption of his attendance at the April 9 meeting was the result of technical difficulties beyond his control; difficulties that three fellow Board members similarly experienced at a subsequent meeting. He did not choose to leave the meeting early. (Petitioner's post-hearing reply letter brief, at 3.)

A review of the Board minutes for the April 9, 2020, meeting show that Johnson was marked present and these minutes were approved unanimously at the following meeting. The minutes do not reveal that any Board member challenged Johnson's attendance at the prior meeting. Petitioner persuasively states: "That Johnson was unable to remain for the entire duration of the meeting due to a connectivity issue, in light of April 9, 2020, being the first meeting where the new teleconferencing format of the Board was adopted in the wake of the COVID pandemic . . . does not in any way negate the fact that he attended the meeting." Id. at 11. Neither statute, case law nor Board policy dictate that attendance for thirteen minutes is insufficient to qualify as attendance at a Board meeting. Importantly, an "action of the local board which lies within the area of its discretionary powers may not be upset unless patently arbitrary, without rational basis or induced by improper motives." Kopera v. Bd. of Educ. of W. Orange, 60 N.J. Super. 288, 294 (App. Div. 1960) (citations omitted).

The Board offers no rational basis for its determination that thirteen minutes does not qualify as attendance at a Board meeting, especially under the circumstances presented here where absent the technical difficulties, Johnson would have remained on the call. Indeed, following the Board's logic would render the statute as a "gotcha" law wherein a Board member can be removed for committing a violation without being advised of the conditions which will warrant their removal (i.e. that attending a Board meeting for thirteen minutes constitutes a violation of the attendance statute). This "fits the very definition of arbitrary and capricious action" and is an untenable position. (Petitioner's post-hearing reply letter brief, at 3.)

Moreover, Johnson contends that even if he missed three consecutive meetings, there was "good cause." Johnson relies upon Commissioner's and court decisions that address this issue. First, in Golaine v. Cardinale, 142 N.J. Super. 385 (Law Division, 1976), aff'd 163 N.J. Super. 453 (App. Div. 1978), the plaintiff, a member of the planning board, was removed because he had to take an eleven-month leave of absence because of a job reassignment overseas. He notified the board of his absence and offered to resign or take a leave of absence with the intent to return. The planning board granted him a six-month leave of absence. Plaintiff requested an extension; however, the newly elected mayor advised plaintiff that he would be removed for neglect of duty unless he resigned. Plaintiff refused to resign and was removed by the planning board.

The court entered judgment for the plaintiff ordering him reinstated to the planning board finding that his absences did not constitute actionable neglect of duty.[1] The court was persuaded that the notice provided by plaintiff was sufficient and adequately conveyed his intention to return to his duties. He also had more than a year and a half of his term remaining. In addition, the court reasoned that unpaid voluntary service by members of the community "is a burden whose undertaking should be encouraged, at least by the insistence upon fair dealing by the community to those who have undertaken that burden. In that light, the circumstances hardly warrant the stigma and opprobrium of a removal for neglect of duty." Id. at 400. However, the court cautioned that "prolonged, continuous absence for whatever reason" could constitute grounds for removal. Id.

The statute in question in Golaine, 142 N.J. Super. 385 (Law Division, 1976), aff'd 163 N.J. Super. 453 (App. Div. 1978) applied to the removal of planning board members, however, the court addressed the "good cause" standard required under N.J.S.A. 18A:12-3 which is instructive. The court stated: "'[g]ood cause' in that as yet unconstrued legislation clearly means, in the particular circumstances obtaining, without a 'reasonable excuse' as that term is generally understood as a matter of plain common sense." Id. at 398.

Petitioner also relies upon the Commissioner's decision in Daniel Esteves v. Bd. of Ed. of Town of Kearny, (citation omitted) wherein petitioner was removed from the board of education for failure to attend three consecutive meetings without good cause. Esteves was a police officer assigned to work the night shift which conflicted with the board meetings. He missed approximately sixteen meetings in 2014 and 2015. He argued that his work schedule was good cause for missing the meetings. The board defended on grounds that it had the discretion to determine good cause. The commissioner relied upon the general definition of "cause" as stated in Golaine, (citation omitted) which requires "substantial cause touching qualifications appropriate to the office or employment or to its administration." Id. at 396 quoting Berardi v. Rutter, 42 N.J. Super. 39, 27 (App. Div. 1956), aff'd sub nom. In re Berardi, 23 N.J. 485 (1957). In addition, [i]t also necessarily implies such degree of misconduct or culpability on the part of the office holder as clearly implicates the public interest in precluding his continuance in that particular office." Esteves, 2016 N.J. AGEN LEXIS at *9-10, quoting Golaine, 142 N.J. Super. at 396. The commissioner concluded there must be an act of "misfeasance or nonfeasance," and must be, "an element of fault." Id. at *11. However, the commissioner conceded that based upon the holding in Golaine, (citation omitted) "'the misfeasance or nonfeasance' of not attending the [b]oard meetings cannot be based on behavior that he can be faulted with – he was on-duty when the meetings were held." Id. at *12.

Applying this standard to the facts, the commissioner ruled that the petitioner did not sustain its burden of proof that the board's decision was improper. The commissioner distinguished the facts in Golaine (citation omitted) finding that Esteves' term was due to expire at the end of the year, "a replacement [b]oard member was elected in November 2015, and it is not clear whether the petitioner will be able to return to office given his work schedule." Id. at *12. The commissioner also stated . . . "the [b]oard could have concluded that his numerous absences were inimical to its interests." Id.

The Board conversely asserts that there is no decisional law that defines whether "good cause" applies to each absence or the series of absences and thus, the law in this regard is unsettled and emergent relief cannot succeed. (Respondent's post-hearing reply letter brief, at 2.) The Board relies upon the commissioner's decision in Wesley Smith v. Bd. of Ed. of the Twp of Hazlet, EDU 53-99; 1999 N.J. AGEN LEXIS 1370 (March 8, 1999) in which the commissioner reversed the administrative law judge's order granting emergent relief. The commissioner was not persuaded that the law underlying the petitioner's legal claim was settled but instead determined that there was no case law which "resolves the question of whether 'good cause' is required for each individual board member absence or for the period of absence." Id. at *7.

However, the decision in Golaine, 142 N.J. Super. 385 (Law Division, 1976), aff'd 163 N.J. Super. 453 (App. Div. 1978) does specifically articulate a definition of "good cause" that is applicable to the relevant statute in this case, namely N.J.S.A. 18A:12-3. As stated above, this definition provides:

> 'Good cause' in that as yet unconstrued legislation clearly means, in the particular circumstances obtaining, without a 'reasonable excuse' as that term is generally understood as a matter of plain common sense.

Id. at 398.

Applying this definition to the present controversy requires a finding that based upon the particular circumstances, Johnson had a "'reasonable excuse' as that term is generally understood as a matter of plain common sense" for not being present for the entire Board meeting on July 9, 2020. And the "circumstances here hardly warrant the stigma and opprobrium of a removal" for failure to attend a meeting where the failure was due to technical difficulties experienced at the Board's first Zoom meeting during a global pandemic. Id. at 400.

Moreover, the commissioner's decision to sustain the board's removal of Esteves is distinguishable to the facts herein in that the commissioner underscores the uncertainty of Esteves' ability to return to office in light of his work schedule and the expiration of his term by 2015 and an elected replacement board member. Esteves, 2016 N.J. AGEN LEXIS at *12. The petitioner herein has changed his schedule to accommodate the Board meetings and has attended every Board meeting until his removal. In addition, Johnson has more than two years left on his term and currently his seat remains vacant. Thus, the Board's decision to remove him appears arbitrary, without rational basis or induced by improper motive.

Likelihood of Success on the Merits

Under the third emergent relief standard, "a plaintiff must make a preliminary showing of a reasonable probability of ultimate success on the merits." Crowe, 90 N.J. at 133 (citing Ideal Laundry Co. v. Gugliemone, 107 N.J. Eq. 108, 115–16 (E. & A. 1930)). This typically "'involves a prediction of the probable outcome of the case' based on each party's initial proofs, usually limited to documents." Brown v. City of Paterson, 424 N.J. Super. 176, 182–83 (App. Div. 2012) (quoting Rinaldo v. RLR Inv., LLC, 387 N.J. Super. 387, 397 (App. Div. 2006)). However, emergent relief "should not issue where all material facts are controverted." Crowe, 90 N.J. at 133 (citing Citizens Coach, supra, 29 N.J. Eq. at 305–06). Here, the material facts are not controverted. Johnson failed to attend the March 12, April 30 and May 14 meetings because of his work schedule which was altered by the Governor's state of emergency declaration that required Johnson to work more hours because of the impact of COVID-19 on his unit. However, he did attend the April 9 meeting but was cut off after thirteen minutes because of technical challenges. He made numerous attempts to reconnect but to no avail. At the following Board meeting, three other Board members had similar technical difficulties. The decision in Golaine, and Esteves support Johnson's likelihood to prevail on the merits.

Balancing of the Equities

The fourth and final emergent relief standard involves "the relative hardship to the parties in granting or denying relief." Crowe, 90 N.J. at 134 (citing Isolantite Inc. v. United Elect. Radio & Mach. Workers, 130 N.J. Eq. 506, 515 (Ch. 1941), mod. on other grounds, 132 N.J. Eq. 613 (E. & A. 1942)). It is a balancing of the equities and the interests of the parties. Here, the Board asserts that it will suffer greater harm because it will be prohibited from voting on important issues concerning District governance if all Board members are not present. (Respondent's Post-hearing letter brief, at 9.) The Board also submits that Johnson's failure to attend meetings constitutes a failure to fulfill his duties as a Board member. Id. The Board also takes issue with Johnson calling into the Board meetings from a prison stating there are "serious, legitimate concerns surrounding privacy and distraction." Id. at 10.

The evidence, however, reveals that Johnson has attended 85% of the Board meetings during his tenure. He had trouble attending several meetings during an unprecedented global pandemic and state of emergency which required that he work longer hours without breaks. He communicated his inability to attend the meetings with the Superintendent and copied the Board President.[2] In addition, he requested a shift change which was granted and since the change, has attended all Board meetings until his removal in July. The Board failed to demonstrate that it was unable to conduct its business as a result of Johnson's truncated attendance on July 9, 2020, or that there was any confidentiality breach.

Johnson has more than two years left on his term and thus his removal undermines the will of the public who elected him and unduly smears his reputation. In addition, Johnson points out if his unexpired term is filled at the upcoming November election, it is unlikely any remedy can be afforded to him. (Petitioner's Memorandum of Law at 9, citing Esteves, 2016 N.J. AGEN LEXIS 101, *13.) All these factors support that Johnson will suffer greater harm than the Board if relief is not granted.

[2] During oral argument, counsel for the Board conceded there was no Board policy mandating a Board member contact the Board President to report an absence.

Conclusion

Based on the foregoing, the motion for emergent relief is granted.

ORDER

I ORDER that the motion for emergent relief is GRANTED. Petitioner is ordered reinstated as a member of the Board.

The parties have advised me that no other issues remain once the emergent relief matter is resolved.

This order on application for emergency relief may be adopted, modified or rejected by COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who/which by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The final decision shall be issued without undue delay, but no later than forty-five days following the entry of this order. If COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION does not adopt, modify or reject this order within forty-five days, this recommended order shall become a final decision on the issue of emergent relief in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Re: A.J., on behalf of minor child, J.J. v. Board of Education of the Town of Boonton, Morris County, Agency Dkt. No. 158-7/19.

Dear Parties:

I have reviewed the materials filed in connection with petitioner's Motion for Reconsideration of the Commissioner's July 10, 2020 decision, affirming the decision of the Boonton Board of Education that petitioner's minor child committed an act of harassment, intimidation, and bullying (HIB).

Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.15(b)(2), a motion for reconsideration shall be determined based upon the following:

i. claim(s) of mistake, provided, however, that disagreement with the outcome of a decision, or with the analysis upon which it is based, shall not constitute "mistake" for purposes of this section;
ii. newly discovered evidence likely to alter the outcome of a matter, where such evidence could not have been previously discovered by due diligence;
iii. newly ascertained misrepresentation or other misconduct of an adverse party, where such misrepresentation could not have been previously known; or
iv. reversal of a prior judgment on which the present matter is based.

Upon review and consideration of the submissions, I find that petitioner has failed to satisfy the factors set forth in N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.15(b)(2). Petitioner's motion is based on arguments already made by petitioner during the proceedings before the Office of Administrative Law and in his exceptions, which were duly considered by the Commissioner. It is clear that petitioner's disagreement is with the outcome of the decision, which is not a sufficient basis for the decision to be reconsidered. Petitioner also argues that counsel for the Board engaged in misconduct by providing information from an unrelated case. This information was not considered in issuing the decision and, therefore, is not a sufficient basis for reconsideration of the decision. Accordingly, the Motion for Reconsideration is hereby DENIED.[1]

Petitioner also asks the Commissioner to clarify whether "third-party bullying" can be supported by the statute. The Commissioner's July 10, 2020 decision in this matter is based on the facts at issue in this particular case, which demonstrate that the Board was not arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable in determining that petitioner's minor child committed an act of HIB under the statute. The Commissioner notes that HIB cases are fact-sensitive and the Commissioner evaluates these issues on a case-by-case basis.

Accordingly, the petitioner's Motion for Consideration is hereby denied.

Sincerely,

Kevin Dehmer
Interim Commissioner

BEFORE CARL V. BUCK III, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner D.W. filed this petition on behalf of her minor child S.D., a student who attended schools within the within the purview of Respondent, the Bridgewater-Raritan School District Board of Education (Board), in April 2019. The petition was filed challenging the suspension of S.D. imposed by the Board for a ten day period on April 3, 2019.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner appealed the decision of the Board and the matter was transmitted by the New Jersey Department of Education, Office of Controversies and Disputes as a contested case on August 8, 2019.

During prehearing conferences held with the parties, a hearing was scheduled for April 27, 2020 and April 28, 2020. These dates were subsequently adjourned due to COVID-19 issues. On June 11, 2020 respondent filed a Notice of Motion to Dismiss with Prejudice, averring that the subject matter of the appeal (that being the ten day suspension of S.D. of April 3, 2019) was expunged by action of the Board on June 9, 2020.

Respondent Bridgewater-Raritan School District Board of Education filed a Motion for Dismissal of the petition on June 11, 2020.[1]

Subsequent to this action by the Board, a telephone conference in this matter was held on June 22, 2020. Counsel for the Board provided to the Court a copy of a of the resolution expunging the suspension made at the Board's meeting of June 9, 2020. Counsel for petitioner was queried on why the petition had not been withdrawn, considering the subject of the appeal no longer existed. Petitioner's counsel stated that his client did not wish to withdraw her appeal, notwithstanding that she understood that the underlying issue on which the appeal was based was now moot.

Counsel for respondent stated to the Court that as his filing was made on June 11, 2020, and that no response was received by petitioner's counsel, that petitioner's counsel was foreclosed from any filing due to time bar of N.J.A.C. §1:1-12.2. The Court provided petitioner's counsel with an additional ten day period should he wish to make a filing.

No filing from petitioner's counsel was received.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION AND FINDINGS

On April 1, 2019 S.D. was alleged to be under the influence of drugs while in school. On April 3, 2019 the school suspended S.D. for ten days. A manifestation hearing was held and the District upheld the suspension.

On June 9, 2020 the Board expunged the suspension of S.D. as evidenced by the Board Resolution signed on June 10, 2020.

[1] Due to technical issues, this filing was not received by the Court until June 23, 2020.

LEGAL ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSIONS

Respondent's counsel lists as a cause of action for their motion the fact that the Board expunged the suspension at its meeting of June 9, 2020. That fact was not challenged by petitioner's counsel. Nor did petitioner's counsel challenge that fact that the issue is now moot.

The Court will not entertain a case where a controversy no longer exists and the issues in dispute have become moot. DeVesa v. Dorsey, 134 N.J. 420, 428 (1993). The case is moot where the original issue presented has been resolved. Ibid. Likewise, an issue is moot when the decision sought and the matter can have no practical effect on the existing controversy. Greenfield v. N.J. Dep't of Corr., 382 and. J. Super. 254, 257 – 58; Commissioner of Education, E. G., Price v. Bd. of Educ. of Washington Twp., OAL Dkt. No. EDU 6121-07, Initial Decision (December 7, 2007), adopted Comm'r, (January 23, 2008, https://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/html/initial/edu06121-07_1.html).

In light of this information I FIND that any claims petitioner might have against the Bridgewater-Raritan School District that are subject to the jurisdiction of the Commissioner of Education are moot as the suspension of student S.D. has been expunged. Further, any other decision that the Court might render following a plenary hearing would have no practical effect on the outcome. I CONCLUDE therefore that petitioner's appeal must and should be DISMISSED.

Therefore, I CONCLUDE that petitioner's claim against the Bridgewater-Raritan School District should be DISMISSED.

The petition warrants dismissal on the count that the underlying issue on which the appeal is based has been expunged by Respondent Board. The claim must be dismissed considering this fact.

For the reasons stated herein, I FIND that the petition filed by petitioner does not comply with the appropriate rules and administrative guidelines as the underlying suspension no longer exists in the record of student S.D. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that petitioner's claim should be DISMISSED.

ORDER

Based upon all of the foregoing, it is hereby ORDERED that the petition in this matter be and hereby is DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), where it was filed on January 14, 2020. The parties were advised that a prehearing telephone conference was scheduled for February 12, 2020. Petitioner did not participate in the scheduled prehearing telephone conference and did not call the OAL to explain why she was unable to do so. A hearing was subsequently scheduled for July 17, 2020.

On or around May 20, 2020, respondent filed a Motion to Compel Discovery, or in the Alternative to Dismiss the Appeal. By letter dated May 28, 2020, I informed petitioner that she had until June 10, 2020 to file an opposition to the Motion to Compel. Petitioner never filed an opposition to the Motion, and on June 16, 2020, I granted the respondent's Motion to Compel Discovery, and ordered that petitioner respond to interrogatories and respond to the Request for Admissions by June 26, 2020. The Order also authorized respondent to file a Motion to Dismiss should petitioner not provide the requested discovery by June 26, 2020. On June 29, 2020, respondent filed a Notice of Motion to Dismiss the Petition of Appeal on the basis that petitioner had not complied with the June 16, 2020 Order compelling discovery. Counsel for respondent certified that neither interrogatory answers nor responses to Requests for Admissions were provided to respondent, and no prior correspondence had been returned to respondent's counsel as undelivered/undeliverable. Finally, petitioner did not present for the July 17, 2020 hearing.

Petitioner never called or forwarded a letter to the OAL explaining her failure to appear for the prehearing conference or the hearing, nor her failure to respond to the Motion to Compel or the Motion to Dismiss the Petition. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that petitioner has abandoned her appeal, and that dismissal is therefore appropriate.

The Claimants waive

the right to pursue an award of attorney's fees and costs under any of these fee-shifting statutes for all claims settled by this Agreement.

12. The Parties agree that, in any communications with the press, other media or any other individual, they shall not criticize, ridicule or make any statement which disparages or is derogatory of each other, which includes the Board or its employees, elected officials, directors, senior officers, agents, representatives and insurers, including Glatfelter Claims Management,

Inc. and American Alternative Insurance Corporation. In the event of any inquiries into this matter, the parties shall respond that the matter has been resolved.

SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT AND GENERAL RELEASE
BETWEEN THE PATERSON BOARD OF EDUCATION AND TREVOR SANDERS

Trevor Sanders v. State-Operated School District of the City of Paterson, Passaic County
OAL Dkt. No. EDU 04413-2018N; Agency Ref. No. 51-3/18

This SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT and GENERAL RELEASE ("Agreement") is entered into this 10 day of July, 2019, by and between Petitioner, Trevor Sanders ("Petitioner" and "Sanders") and Respondent, Paterson Board of Education (the "Board"), referred to collectively herein as the "Parties."

RECITALS

WHEREAS, on or about March 6, 2018, Petitioner filed a petition with the Commissioner of Education, captioned: Trevor Sanders v. State-Operated School District of the City of Paterson, Passaic County, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 04413-2018N, Agency Ref. No. 51-3/18 ("Petition"), seeking reinstatement to his teaching position in the Paterson School District (the "District"), back pay, and attorney's fees; and;

WHEREAS, the Parties have reached a settlement relating to the requested relief in the Petition; and

WHEREAS, the Parties intend by this Agreement to fully and finally resolve all outstanding matters:

TERMS AND CONDITIONS

NOW THEREFORE, intending to be legally bound hereby and in consideration of the mutual covenants, conditions, obligations, and promises contained herein, the parties agree as follows:

1. On or before July 28, 2019, the Board will pay Sanders a gross amount of $337,816.00, minus usual and customary withholdings, including FICA, State and Federal taxes, union membership fee contributions, pensions contributions, credit for unemployment benefits, and other legally required deductions, for the time period between the date of Petitioner's indictment/suspension without through to the conclusion of the 2018-2019 school year.

2. On or before July 28, 2019, the Board will pay $169,000.00 for Petitioner's legal costs and fees to Ricci and Fava, LLC, 16 Furler Street, 2nd Floor, Totowa, New Jersey 07512.

3. The Board is not liable for any payments owed by Sanders to the New Jersey Division of Pensions and Benefits (the "Division") for any pension loan and/or purchased credit from the Teachers' Pension and Annuity Fund ("TPAF"), including the outstanding balance of $48,219.29 Petitioner owes to the Division as a member of TPAF. It is mutually agreed upon and understood that Petitioner will make the $48,219.29 payment to the Division and/or TPAF from the net proceeds of the Board's $337,816.00 gross payment to Sanders. It is further understood and agreed that upon receipt of payment set forth in Paragraph 1, Petitioner relinquishes and relieves the Board of any and all liability relating to the $48,219.29 owed to the Division. This provision is contingent upon the Board's payment to Sanders, as set forth in Paragraph 1. If the Board fails to make such payment by July 28, 2019, both Parties reserve the right to bring/defend any and all claims relating to Petitioner's payment of $48,219.29 to the Division and/or TPAF.

4. Immediately upon receipt of the payment set forth in Paragraphs 1 and 2, and as an express condition of this Agreement, Sanders will submit an irrevocable letter of resignation from his position in the District to the Board and seek retirement from TPAF.

5. Petitioner agrees to withdraw the above-captioned matter with prejudice, and it is understood by the parties that Petitioner's withdrawal of the Petition does not constitute an admission of liability or wrongdoing by Sanders in connection with the above-captioned matter.

6. Petitioner further agrees to not oppose the dismissal of the criminal charges he filed against the Board members and/or District administrators bearing Docket Nos. S-2019 002289, S-2019 002909, S-2019 002910, S-2019 002911, S-2019 002912, S-2019 002913, S-2019 002914, and S-2019 002915.

7. Upon the fulfillment by the Board of the terms and conditions of the Agreement, Sanders, his heirs and assigns hereby irrevocably and unconditionally waive, release and forever discharge any and all claims or rights, whether known or unknown, which they have or may have against the Board, personally and officially, individually and collectively, its past and present Board members, all officers and administrators, its attorneys, agents and employees, as well as their successors, and assigns, including, but not limited to any and all claims for attorneys' fees, back pay or front pay, any claims for emotional distress or pain and suffering, any and all claims involving tax liability stemming from this Agreement, and any and all claims arising under any federal, state or local ordinance, regulation or law including, but not limited to, the New Jersey and Federal Constitutions; Title VII of the Civil Rights Acts of 1871 and 1991; the Americans with Disabilities Act; the Age Discrimination in Employment Act; the Older Workers Benefit Protection Act of 1990; the Federal Family and Medical Leave Act; the Fair Labor Standards Act; the Equal Pay Act; the Workers' Adjustment and Retraining Notification Act; the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination; the New Jersey Family Leave Act; the New Jersey Conscientious Employee Protection Act; the New Jersey Wage and Hour Law; the Employer-Employee Relations Act; any collective negotiations agreement; any common law claim and any and all other claims, that could be initiated in any venue, for harassment, discrimination or retaliation of any kind, breach of promise, misrepresentation, negligence, fraud, estoppel, defamation, violation of public policy, wrongful or constructive discharge, or any other tort, contractual or quasi-contractual claim.

8. In consideration of Petitioner's release of the Board, and the other good, valuable and sufficient consideration recited herein, upon the effective date of Sanders' resignation, the Board releases and gives up any and all claims known and unknown and rights including disciplinary charges and other agency referrals which it may presently have and be aware of against Sanders. This General Release applies to claims resulting from anything which has happened up to the effective date of the agreement arising from or related to the Sanders' employment with the Board. Subject to the fulfillment of the terms of this Agreement, the Board will take no further action with respect to Sanders' separation from employment.

9. It is expressly understood that the arrangement herein is predicated exclusively upon the special circumstances of this matter and shall not be construed to represent any policy or procedure of the Board

10. This Agreement does not in any way constitute an admission of liability or wrongdoing by the Board concerning the allegations raised in the above-captioned litigation.

11. This Agreement shall bind the parties and their respective heirs, successors, assigns, officers, employees, officials, and agents.

12. Both Parties represent that this Agreement has been voluntarily executed by the persons with the legal authority to do so. This Agreement must be formally approved by the Board as this Agreement will be deemed null and void without said approval. All reasonable efforts will be made to timely obtain approval from the Board.

13. Should any part of this Agreement be invalidated by a court of competent jurisdiction, that part shall be severed and the balance of the Agreement shall remain in full force and effect.

14. This Agreement may be signed in counterparts and shall be binding as if all Parties executed the original thereof. A facsimile or electronically-transmitted signature shall have the same effect as an original signature.

15. The Parties hereto acknowledge that this Agreement constitutes a full, final, and complete settlement of their differences and supersedes and replaces any and all other written or oral exchanges, agreements, understandings, arrangements, or negotiations between or among them relating to the subject matter hereof, and affirmatively state that there are no other prior or contemporaneous agreements, exchanges, representations, arrangements, or understandings, written or oral, between or among them relating to the subject matter hereof other than that as set forth herein, and that this Agreement contains the sole and entire Agreement between them with respect to the subject matter hereof.

WHEREAS, on November 9, 2016, Petitioners filed a timely appeal of the Commissioner's decision with the New Jersey Appellate Division, which on February 13, 2018 reversed and remanded the case; and

WHEREAS, on April 30, 2019, the New Jersey Supreme Court issued a decision revising and altering the Appellate

Division's decision and remanding the matter back to the OAL for further proceedings; and

WHEREAS, the parties have now reached an agreement to fully and finally settle any and all of Petitioner's claims against Respondent, as memorialized herein, including those not asserted in the Petition, arising out of Petitioner's employment by Respondent, as well as all other actions and claims which Petitioner has, had, or otherwise may have against Respondent from the beginning of time, through the date on which this Agreement is executed by Petitioner; and

WHEREAS, it is understood and agreed by Petitioner and Respondent, and their respective heirs, executors, administrators, officers, employees, successors, and assigns, by reason of the payment, consideration, and any other terms made on behalf of Respondent, do not admit any liability nor have they made any agreement to make any payment or to take any action not reflected in this Agreement.

NOW, IN CONSIDERATION of the payment to Petitioner, as provided for herein, and other good and valuable consideration, and the promises and covenants contained herein, the receipt and sufficiency of which is acknowledged, the parties do hereby agree as follows:

1. Non-Admission. This Agreement is not, and shall not in any way be considered or construed as an admission of liability by Respondent of discrimination, retaliation, tortious conduct, or of any violation of any law, including all laws related to Petitioner's tenure rights; common law, or federal, state or local statute or regulation, or of any education policy, practice, contract or agreement, or of any alleged duty owed by Respondent, or of any unlawful or wrongful acts whatsoever by Respondent. Respondent specifically denies any wrongdoing of any kind.

2. Consideration. the Parties agree to the following good and valuable consideration:

   (a) Respondent will pay Petitioner a lump sum amount of Thirteen thousand dollars ($13,000); and

   (b) Said lump sum payment is specifically being paid to Petitioner as consideration for Petitioner waiving all claims which she raised or could have raised in her Petition, including her claims of violation of Petitioner's tenure rights. The payment herein is a business decision by Respondent, and not an admission whatsoever of any violation of Petitioner's tenure rights, which Respondent denies. The consideration paid herein is specifically not payment for any alleged lost wages, which Petitioner is hereby waiving by entering this agreement, and is specifically not for payment of Petitioner's attorney's fees, which likewise is waived by Petitioner.

3. Dismissal of Lawsuit, and Covenant Not to Sue. In exchange for the consideration set forth in paragraph 2, Petitioner agrees to dismiss the petition of appeal with prejudice, and agrees not to appeal from the dismissal of, re-file, revive or reopen the petition of appeal in any way.

Petitioner further agrees that neither she, nor any person, organization, agency, or other entity acting on her behalf, will file, charge, claim or sue, or cause to be filed, charged, claimed or sued, any other lawsuit, legal proceeding, action, grievance, or claim of any nature with any court, agency, or tribunal (including any action for damages, attorneys' fees, injunction, declaratory, monetary, equitable or other relief) against the Respondent, or any of its administrators or employees, based on any matter, fact or event occurring prior to the effective date of this Agreement, whether now known or unknown, or involving any continuing effects of any acts or practices which may have arisen or occurred prior to the effective date of this Agreement, whether now known or unknown.

4. Waiver of Tenure Rights/Right to Employment. In exchange for the consideration set forth in paragraph 2, Petitioner agrees to forfeit any and all tenure and/or seniority rights she has accrued while working under Respondent's employ, and specifically waives her right to any future employment with Respondent. Should Petitioner apply for any employment position with Respondent, by entering this Agreement, Petitioner agrees that Respondent will not re-hire her, and that she waives all rights to assert any claim against Respondent for refusing or failing to rehire her for any position.

5. General Release and Waiver of all of Petitioner's Claims. In exchange for the consideration set forth in paragraph 2, Petitioner fully releases and forever discharges Respondant of and from any and all claims, actions, causes of action, back pay, front pay, contracts, agreements, promises, charges, judgments, grievances, obligations, rights, demands, debts, physical injury, pain, suffering, emotional distress, compensatory damages, punitive damages, attorneys' fees, expenses, costs, losses, liabilities, damages, or accountings of whatever nature, whether known or unknown, disclosed or undisclosed, asserted or unasserted, in law or equity, contract or tort or otherwise (herein collectively designated "Claims"), through the effective date of this Agreement, including, but not limited to, any and all Claims of harassment, discrimination, retaliation, and any and all tort Claims or contract Claims for general damages, and any and all Claims arising under, made, regarding, or involving: any federal, state, or local laws or under the common law; violations of any federal, state, or educational practices or civil rights laws or ordinances; Claims for personal injury, failure to reinstate, wrongful conduct, or discrimination; New Jersey Department of Education regulations and related statutes; the Civil Rights Acts of 1866 and 1871, as amended, 42 U.S.C. §1981; the Civil Rights Act of 1964, as amended, including Title VII; the Age Discrimination in Employment Act, as amended; the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination; the Employee Retirement Income Security Act; the Fair Labor Standards Act; the National Labor Relations Act, as amended; the American's with Disabilities Act; Fair

Housing Act; Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act; any and all state wage payment and collection laws; the Respondent's policies, practices, collective bargaining agreements, contracts, benefits, or understandings; any Claims arising out of any relationship, including employer/employee relationship, between or among Petitioner and Respondent predating the effective date of this Agreement; and any and all grievances or demands for mediation or arbitration, or Claims or demands under Respondent's policies and procedures; and any and all Claims asserted, or which could have been asserted, in the petition of appeal referenced above, including any Claims against any current or former agents or employees of Respondent.

Petitioner hereby specifically waives, releases, and gives up all claims and rights, as described in the preceding paragraph, whether now known or unknown, which she has or may have against Respondent, based on any fact, act, event, or omission, whether now known or unknown, occurring before the Effective Date of this Agreement. Petitioner understands that she is waiving, releasing, and giving up all Claims and rights that she knows about and all Claims and rights that she may not know about.

6. Liens and Indemnification by Petitioner. It is further understood that as a condition of this settlement, all claims, and/or liens, past, current, and/or future arising out of this settlement or asserted against the proceeds of this settlement are to be satisfied by Petitioner, including but not limited to any Medicare or Medicaid claims and/or liens, Child Support claims and/or liens; Worker's Compensation claims and/or liens, Social Security claims and/or liens, hospital/healthcare insurer claims and/or liens, physician or attorney claims and/or liens, or any of the statutory, equitable, common law or judgment claims and/or liens, including but not limited to claim based on subrogation or any other legal or equitable theory.

7. Prevailing Party Status. Petitioner understands and agrees that she will not be considered a prevailing party under any statute, common law, or otherwise as a result of this Agreement.

8. Non-Disparagement: The parties, including but not limited to their officers and employees, agree that they will not to disparage the other party to this Agreement. To the extent allowed by law the parties shall keep the terms of this agreement confidential. The confidentially agreement shall not apply to disclosers or conversations with Petitioner's attorneys, union employees and representatives, immediate family, and tax and financial advisors.

9. Payment. Payment to Petitioner is subject to Respondent's receipt of Petitioner's signed and notarized Agreement, as well as a child support search report.

Petitioners represents and warrants that neither Respondent nor its attorneys provided any advice regarding the taxability of the settlement amounts paid pursuant to this paragraph. Petitioner acknowledges and agrees that Petitioner is solely responsible for payment of any and all federal, state, and local taxes which may be due from the settlement sum in the event that it is determined that any taxes are owed based on the taxation laws in effect on the date of execution of this Agreement or become due at any time in the future because of a change to the laws governing the taxation of such settlement proceeds. Should the Respondent suffer any damages as a result of the actions of Petitioner, Petitioner agrees to make Respondent whole for said damages.

10. Attorney's Fees. Each party shall be fully responsible for the payment of its own attorneys' fees and related costs in this matter through the date of each party's execution of this Agreement.

11. Effective Date. The effective date of this Agreement shall be the day following the date upon which the signed Agreement is received by Respondent's attorneys, Methfessel & Werbel, P.C, and ratified by Respondent's Board of Education.

12. Applicable Law. This Agreement shall be governed by and construed in accordance with the laws of New Jersey, except where federal law controls. Should any provision of this Agreement be declared or determined by any Court to be illegal or invalid, the validity of the remaining parts, terms or provisions shall not be affected thereby and said illegal or invalid part, term, or provision shall be deemed not to be a part of this Agreement or may be modified as necessary.

13. Child Support Search. Petitioner represents that prior to the execution of this Agreement she will have, through counsel, provided Respondents, through their counsel, with a certification and child support judgment search compliant with N.J.S.A. 2A:17-56.23b and agrees that the settlement proceeds described in this Agreement shall be paid in accordance with N.J.S.A. 2A:17-56.23b and/or other applicable law.

14. Entire Agreement. This Agreement sets forth the entire agreement between the parties and fully supersedes any and all prior agreements or understandings between the parties.

15. Signatures. This Agreement may be signed in counterparts. However, this Agreement will not be binding among the parties until it has been executed by and among the Parties, ratified by Respondent's Board of Education, and subject to Respondent's receipt of Petitioner's signed and notarized Agreement, and a completed child support search report.

16. Headings. The headings contained in this Agreement are for convenience and reference purposes only and shall not be deemed to be a part of the Agreement or to offer the meaning or interpretation of this Agreement.

17. Counterparts. This Agreement may be executed in counterparts, including by fax, each of which shall be deemed an original and all of which shall constitute one and the same instrument.

18. Drafting: The drafting and negotiation of this Agreement have been participated in by each of the parties and their respective counsel and, for all purposes this Agreement shall be deemed to have been drafted jointly by each of the parties. WHEREAS, Petitioner Judy Comment ("Petitioner") was employed by Respondent Sussex county Educational Services Commission, Sussex County ("Respondent") as a part-time, non-public teaching staff member since November 1997, and in that capacity acquired certain tenure and seniority rights pursuant to state law; and

WHEREAS, Petitioner's hours fluctuated throughout her employment with Respondent; and

WHEREAS, Petitioner alleges that her tenure and seniority rights were violated by the reduction in her weekly hours assigned at the outset of the 2014-2015 school year, and that Petitioner sought to have her hours reinstated to the level of hours worked during the 2013-2014 school year; and

WHEREAS, the Petitioner and Respondent (collectively referred to herein as "Parties") dispute as to whether working fewer hours triggers tenure and seniority protections; and

WHEREAS, Petitioner filed a Petitioner of Appeal on November 11, 2014, alleging violation of her tenure rights, which was subsequently transmitted to the New Jersey Office of Administrative Law ("OAL"); and

WHEREAS, on May 19, 2015, Petitioner's case was consolidated with the Petition of Appeal filed by Beryl Zimmerman, another employee of Respondent; and

WHEREAS, on or about July 11, 2016, the Administrative Law Judge ("ALJ") issued an initial decision, granting summary decision to Respondents, which was transmitted to the Commission of Education, who, on October4, 2016 adopted the findings and conclusions of the ALJ; and

WHEREAS, on November 9, 2016, Petitioners filed a timely appeal of the Commissioner's decision with the New Jersey Appellate Division, which on February 13, 2018 reversed and remanded the case; and

WHEREAS, on April 30, 2019, the New Jersey Supreme Court issued a decision revising and altering the Appellate Division's decision and remanding the matter back to the OAL for further proceedings; and

WHEREAS, the parties have now reached an agreement to fully and finally settle any and all of Petitioner's claims against Respondent, as memorialized herein, including those not asserted in the Petition, arising out of Petitioner's employment by Respondent, as well as all other actions and claims which Petitioner has, had, or otherwise may have against Respondent from the beginning of time, through the date on which this Agreement is executed by Petitioner; and

STATE OF NEW JERSEY
OFFICE OF ADMINISTRATIVE LAW

OAL Docket No. EDU 09883-10
Agency No. 393-8/10

JOINT MOTION AND STIPULATION FOR APPROVAL OF SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT PURSUANT TO N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that Petitioners Monmouth-Ocean Educational Services Association and 13 individually-named petitioners (collectively, Petitioners), by and through their attorneys, Schkolf & Cohen, P.A., and Zazzali, Fagella, Nowak, Kleinbaum & Friedman, P.C., and Respondent Monmouth-Ocean Educational Services Commission (MOESC), by and through its attorneys, Wilentz, Goldman & Spitzer, P.A., jointly hereby do move for an Initial Decision and Order approving settlement of the above-captioned matter pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1.

The basis for this Joint Motion and Stipulation is that the parties have reached and fully executed a Settlement Agreement to fully and finally resolve Petitioners' Petition of Appeal (OAL Docket No. EDU 9884-10, Agency Ref. No. 293-8/10), which has been pending before the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) since 2010. A true and correct copy of the fully-executed Settlement Agreement is attached hereto, including a payment schedule (Exhibit A) along with a certified resolution from MOESC's Board of Directors approving the settlement and authorizing execution thereof (Exhibit B).

The parties reached the Settlement Agreement after prior unsuccessful settlement discussions; the production and exchange of approximately 37,500 documents in discovery; the issuance and exchange of experts' reports; the scheduling, continuance and cancellation of multiple hearing dates; and approximately six months of good faith negotiations between the parties that included a December 16, 2019 settlement conference before the Hon. Joseph F. Martone, A.L.J. (Retired, on recall) upon referral by the Hon. Patricia M. Kerins, A.L.J.

The parties respectfully request that the Office of Administrative Law approve the attached Settlement Agreement because it fully and finally resolves Petitioners' Petition of Appeal to the mutual benefit of the parties and promotes the public interest by avoiding the cost of protracted litigation. In order to expedite approval of the settlement, the parties further agree to waive all exceptions pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4(e). As part of Petitioners' release of claims against MOESC, upon the issuance of a final agency decision approving the settlement, Petitioners will additionally withdraw a related unfair practice charge pending before the New Jersey Public Employment Relations Commission (PERC Docket No. CO-2011-117).

By and through their counsel, the parties stipulate that they have knowingly, freely, and voluntarily consented to the attached Settlement Agreement, that the Settlement Agreement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law, and that the Settlement Agreement fulfills all of the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 accordingly.

WHEREFORE, the parties request that the Office of Administrative Law issue an Initial Decision and Order (Settlement):

(a) Finding that the parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement, as evidenced by the attached Settlement Agreement, and that the parties' settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law;

(b) Approving the settlement pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1; and

(c) Ordering that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

A proposed form of Order is attached.

RECITALS:

WHEREAS, Petitioners have made claims against MOESC in a Petition of Appeal (Petition) in the matter entitled Monmouth-Ocean Educational Services Association et al. v. Monmouth-Ocean Educational Services Commission, New Jersey Department of Education, Agency Reference No. 293-8/10, New Jersey Office of Administrative Law Docket No. EDU 09884-10, dated August 4, 2010 (Litigation); and

WHEREAS, MOESC filed an Answer, denied Petitioners' allegations and asserted affirmative defenses to the Petition;

WHEREAS, MOESC and Petitioners, without conceding liability, and after an opportunity to consider and to confer with counsel of their choice, have reached a voluntary agreement and with a full understanding of the terms of this Agreement, desire to memorialize their agreement herein; and

WHEREAS, as the product of the settlement memorialized by this agreement, the individually-named Petitioners will continue to no longer be employed by MOESC.

THEREFORE, in consideration of the mutual covenants contained herein and as set forth in further detail herein, the parties agree as follows:

Recitals. The Recitals set forth above are true and correct and are incorporated herein by reference.

Payment by MOESC. In full and final settlement of this matter, MOESC will pay to the Petitioners the sum of Eight-Hundred Fifty-Five Thousand Dollars ($855,000.00) as set forth below in this section entitled "Payment by MOESC," in full and final settlement of any and all claims Petitioners raised or could have raised in their Petition in this Litigation.

Following approval of this Agreement by the MOESC Board of Directors, and the Administrative Law Judge presiding over the Litigation, and the Commissioner of Education, (Commissioner) payment will be made by MOESC to Petitioners as follows:

- The first payment of Two Hundred Eighty-Five Thousand ($285,000) Dollars will be made by April 30, 2020 or approval by the Commissioner, whichever comes later;

- The second payment of Two Hundred Eighty-Five Thousand ($285,000) Dollars will be made by April 30, 2021; and

- The third and final payment of Two Hundred Eighty-Five Thousand ($285,000) Dollars will be made by December 31, 2021.

All payments made by MOESC pursuant to this Agreement shall be paid to the individually-named Petitioners in accordance with the attached Exhibit A and sent to the addresses listed above. EACH INDIVIDUALLY-NAMED PETITIONER WILL IMMEDIATELY NOTIFY MOESC IN WRITING OF ANY CHANGE OF ADDRESS. Notification shall be made by electronic mail addressed to MOESC business administrator as listed on MOESC's website.

The Parties acknowledge that payments made, pursuant to this Agreement, through a 1099 are for surrender of tenure rights and those made through a W-2 are for full back pay less mitigation.

For each individually-named Petitioner reflected on Exhibit A as having received full back pay less mitigation, MOESC will issue a IRS form W-2. MOESC will deduct as pre-tax dollars, the pension amount required by the Division of Pensions and Teachers' Pension and Annuity Fund, for both the employer and the employee, from the payments made to each such individually-named Petitioner and will promptly submit that pension contribution to the New Jersey Division of Pensions and Benefits (Division of Pensions). Each such individually-named Petitioner will then have the opportunity to apply to the Division of Pensions for pension credit and/or reopening of pension account and/or modification of pension amount. Neither MOESC, MOESA, legal counsel nor anyone else has made any representation or guaranty that the Division of Pensions will confer pension credit and/or reopening of pension account and/or modification of pension amount. The Parties understand and acknowledge that only the Division of Pensions can permit such credit, reopener or modification to be made. MOESC agrees to cooperate with the application(s) and to promptly submit any required information to the Division of Pensions and Teachers' Pension and Annuity Fund. In the event that any application is not successful and the Division of Pensions returns the employer and the employee pension contribution for that individually-named Petitioner to MOESC, MOESC will promptly return both contributions to the individually-named Petitioner so affected.

Total Consideration. Petitioners acknowledge that the consideration referred to above is the total consideration they will receive from MOESC and that the parties disagree regarding the amount due, however, in an effort to resolve this matter, the Petitioners acknowledge that the amount they each receive is consideration for the release and other provisions in this Agreement. The Petitioners acknowledge they are not entitled to nor will they receive any additional payments of any kind from MOESC, including, but not limited to, payments under any contract, pension plan, policy or practice, retirement plan, policy or practice, vacation plan, policy, or practice, severance plan, policy or practice, or payment for bonuses or deferred compensation.

Tax Indemnification. MOESC makes no representations as to the tax consequences of the payments referred to herein and shall assume no responsibility for any tax liability attributed to Petitioners. Petitioners agree to pay any and all taxes, interest, and penalties, if any, found to be owed from the payments made pursuant to this Agreement where such liability is attributable to Petitioners. Petitioners agree to accept full, complete, sole and entire responsibility for their own tax liability. MOESC will be responsible for any liability regarding FICA or other required employer payments should they be assessed against MOESC. Petitioners understand and agree that they are not relying on MOESC, MOESC's counsel or their own counsel for advice regarding the taxability of any amount paid to them under this Agreement.

Medicare Indemnification. Petitioners certify that, as of the date of this Agreement, Petitioners have not received any payment from Medicare. By entering into this Agreement, Petitioners agree to indemnify and hold harmless MOESC, MOESC's counsel and their counsel on this matter in connection with any liabilities or penalties should they be assessed as a result of failure to properly or fully reimburse Medicare and for attorneys' fees and costs associated with defending any enforcement or related action and/or an action to enforce this provision of the Agreement. Petitioners acknowledge that MOESC has relied upon this representation in determining to make the settlement payments hereunder.

Pension Indemnification. Petitioners agree to accept full, complete, sole and entire responsibility for any pension liability, interest or penalty. Petitioners understand and agree that they are not relying on MOESC and MOESC's counsel for advice regarding the pension obligation. Petitioners agree to hold MOESC andMOESC's counsel harmless from and indemnify them for the payment of pension contribution, interest and penalties and those items only that may be asserted against them by any government agency at any time as a result of the aforementioned payment.

Petitioners' Release. Except for claims relating to the enforcement of this Agreement, Petitioners hereby release and forever discharge MOESC and its former and current representatives, employees, officers, directors, trustees, attorneys, agents, successors and assigns, heirs, beneficiaries, executors, and administrators (Releasees) from any and all manner of action and actions, cause and causes of action, suits, claims, grievances, debts, sums of money, wages, compensation, bills, claims for attorneys' fees, interest, expenses and costs, controversies, agreements, promises, variances, trespasses, damages, judgments, executions, claims and demands of any nature whatsoever known or unknown, suspected or unsuspected, vested or contingent, which Petitioners ever had or now have against Releasees arising out of Petitioners' employment relationship with MOESC, or any other relationship Petitioners had with MOESC, or for any other reasons which were asserted or could have been asserted by Petitioners under any state or federal statute, constitution, ordinance, contract or the common law, including, but not limited to, all claims under the following (including any amendments to same): N.J.S.A.

Additionally, Petitioners waive any and all tenure, seniority and recall rights they have or may have in connection with their employment by MOESC, and any other rights they have or may have arising from their tenure and seniority as employees of MOESC, including, but not limited to, the right to placement on any preferred eligibility list and recall. Petitioners waive any claims they have or may have against MOESC as to pension contributions or entitlement or health benefits including, but not limited to, medical, dental, vision, they have or may have against MOESC.

Petitioners also waive any unfair labor practice charges or claims they had or may have against MOESC and agree to withdraw the pending unfair labor practice charge pending before the New Jersey Public Employment Relations Commission (NJPERC) entitled Monmouth-Ocean Educational Services Commission and Monmouth-Ocean Educational Services Association and docketed by NJPERC as CO-2011-117.

Petitioners further waive any right to payment for accumulated unused sick, personal, or vacation leave time, and waive the right to any payment for health insurance or related costs or expenses.

If any claim is not subject to release, to the extent permitted by law, Petitioners waive any right or ability to be a class or collective action representative or to otherwise participate in any putative or certified class, collective or multi-party action or proceeding, including arbitration, based on such a claim in which MOESC or any other Releasee identified in this Agreement is a Party.

Nothing in this Agreement shall be construed to affect the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission's, the New Jersey Department of Labor and Workforce Development's, or any similar state or local commission's or agency's (collectively, EEOC/NJDOL) independent right and responsibility to enforce the law. Petitioners understand and acknowledge, however, that while the Agreement does not impinge on their right to file a charge or participate in an investigation or proceeding conducted by EEOC/NJDOL, this Agreement does bar any claim they might have to receive monetary damages in connection with any EEOC/NJDOL proceeding concerning matters covered by this Agreement.

Nothing in this Agreement shall be construed to affect any issues/claims that may arise from any subsequent agreements entered into by the parties.

Subsequent Information. The Parties expressly understand and acknowledge that it is possible that unknown losses or claims exist, claims for offset to claimed damages or earnings in mitigation exist, or that present losses may have been over- or underestimated in an amount or severity. Each Party expressly accepts and assumes the risk of such unknown, over- or underestimated losses or claims and acknowledges and agrees that the settlement is in full resolution of any and all such claims. Petitioners acknowledge that none of the benefits given to them pursuant to this Agreement have been assigned or are subject to alienation (i.e., personal bankruptcy). This Release specifically excludes: (a) claims, if any, arising under the New Jersey Workers' Compensation Act which are unrelated to the Action and which may arise after execution of this Agreement; (b) claims that Petitioners cannot release or waive by law; and (c) claims, if any, arising from the breach of this Agreement. Petitioners certify that they are unaware of a factual basis for any such claims at this time.

Non-Admission of Liability; Attorney's Fees. The execution of this Agreement and the settlement made hereunder shall not be construed as an admission of liability by any Party in the litigation, such liability being expressly denied. Nor is this document admissible as evidence in any proceeding other than for enforcement of the provisions of this Agreement. Each Party is responsible for their own respective attorneys' fees.

Proprietary Information. Petitioners specifically acknowledge that any information regarding students they may have received in their employment by MOESC is protected by the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act, 20 U.S.C. § 1232g, the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act, 20 U.S. C. § 1400 et seq., and N.J.S.A. 18A:36-19 (Pupil Records) and all implementing federal and state regulations.

Petitioners understand and agree that any work product that Petitioners produced while an employee at MOESC on MOESC time and compensated by MOESC is work for hire and is the property of MOESC.

Non-Disparagement, No Rehire. In further consideration of MOESC's willingness to pay the settlement amount provided for above and Petitioners' willingness to settle their claims:

Petitioners and the Board of MOESC agree that they will not make any critical, disparaging or defamatory statements in any manner about each other or any of their related entities, whether verbal or written. This includes, but is not limited to, electronic mail, internet and social media postings and/or any other method of communication. If an individual affiliated with, currently, or in the past, makes a critical, disparaging or defamatory comment about a Petitioner, the Petitioner may respond to same but may not respond with critical, disparaging or defamatory comments about MOESC or its Board. By executing this Agreement, the Parties acknowledge this is a material provision of this Agreement.

Petitioners agree, from the date of signing this Agreement going forward, not to allege that the ending of their employment relationship with MOESC suggests any violation of law.

Petitioners agree that they will not apply for, seek, or accept employment or any other remunerative relationship with MOESC or any of its affiliates such as they exist as of the date of this agreement. For purposes of this Agreement, the term "affiliate" is as defined by the United States Bankruptcy Code, 11 U.S.C.A. § 101. This provision does not apply to any entity with which MOESC contracts now or in the future to provide services or to any entity with which MOESC may merge or by whom MOESC may be acquired after the date of this Agreement for which a Petitioner is currently providing services or is providing services at the time of the merger.

Petitioners further agree that they will not contact any employees of MOESC, while those employees are at work, except the Human Resources Manager.

Participation in Other Cases. To the extent permitted by applicable law, Petitioners covenant and agree never to commence or prosecute, or assist in the commencement or prosecution of, or in any way to cause, permit or advise to be commenced, or prosecuted against MOESC, any action or proceeding or to assert against MOESC in any action or proceeding, any demands, causes of action, obligations, damages, or liabilities of any nature whatsoever, whether or not now known, suspected, or claimed which Petitioners ever had, now have, or hereafter have, or claim to have, against, MOESC, by reason of any act, transaction, practice, conduct, or omission of MOESC that occurred prior to the date of this Agreement. Should any private party or governmental agency request of Petitioners to provide information regarding MOESC, Petitioners shall immediately advise MOESC in writing by electronic mail addressed to MOESC business administrator as listed on MOESC's website and MOESC shall have the opportunity to apply to a court of competent jurisdiction to quash any subpoena or governmentally-issued information request. This provision does not apply to any request for information as part of a confidential law enforcement investigation. Provided that MOESC has notice and an opportunity to apply to quash a subpoena or governmentally-issued information request (whether or not MOESC makes such an application), nothing in this Agreement shall be construed to prevent Petitioners from complying with a duly-issued subpoena or governmental request. Moreover, if such action continues, Petitioners acknowledge that as a consideration for receipt of money paid pursuant to this Agreement, Petitioners waive i.e., surrender their right to, any monetary benefit from such action.

Petitioners further agree that they will not solicit or encourage any former or future employee of MOESC to pursue claims against MOESC. Nothing in this Agreement shall be construed to prevent Petitioners from complying with a duly-issued subpoena or governmental request.

Return of Company Property. All MOESC property has been returned by the Petitioners. Consistent with the Confidentiality Agreement between the Parties dated August 18, 2014, within 120 days of the Commissioner's adoption of the settlement memorialized by this Agreement, Petitioners' counsel and retained expert witnesses will certify that they have destroyed all digital and hard copies of documents subject to the Confidentiality Agreement.

Petitioners' Affirmations and Cooperation. Petitioners further affirm that, with the exception of the payments provided for in this Agreement, Petitioners have been paid and/or have received all compensation, wages, bonuses, commissions, and/or benefits which are due and payable as of the date Petitioners sign this Agreement.

Petitioners affirm that Petitioners have been granted any leave to which Petitioners were entitled under federal, state or local leave or disability accommodation laws. Petitioners furthermore affirm that Petitioners have no known workplace injuries or occupational diseases.

Petitioners affirm that all of MOESC's decisions regarding Petitioners' pay and benefits throughout Petitioners' employment were not discriminatory based on age, disability, race, color, gender, religion, national origin or any other classification protected by law.

Petitioners agree to cooperate with MOESC in concluding any business or legal matters relating to their employment, including, but not limited to, MOESC's being expressly permitted to call upon and request information from Petitioners that pertains to the business in regards to location of files, letters and documents within the office, provided such cooperation and assistance shall not unreasonably interfere with any subsequent employment obtained by Petitioners. Petitioners' obligation to cooperate expires on December 31, 2021. Any and all such requests to the Petitioners will be made by the Human Resources Manager in writing.

Remedies. Each Party acknowledges and agrees that any breach of any of the covenants contained in the "Proprietary Information," "Non-Disparagement, Indemnity, No Rehire," and "Petitioners' Affirmations and Cooperation" sections of this Agreement would constitute material breach of this Agreement that may cause the other Party irreparable harm and will entitle the other Party to all remedies provided by law, including injunctive relief. In the event of such application the defending Party agrees to waive any bond that may otherwise be required for injunctive relief to issue. Further, if any Party, their attorney or any of their representatives breach any of the above-noted provisions, the other Party shall be entitled to seek any and all monetary damages caused by the breach. Each Party's obligations (including MOESC's payment obligations), release, and waiver under this Agreement shall remain in full force and effect and supported by consideration. The foregoing provision supplements and does not limit any remedies available to the moving Party in accordance with law.

Governing Law. This Agreement is entered into in the State of New Jersey and shall be construed and interpreted in accordance with its laws.

Notices. All notices, requests, demands and other communications provided for by this Agreement shall be in writing and shall be deemed to have been governed at the time when mailed by Federal Express or overnight delivery, return receipt requested, and addressed to the address of the respective party stated above or to such changed address as such party may have fixed by like notice similarly given.

Integrated Agreement. This Agreement constitutes and contains the entire agreement and understanding between Petitioners and MOESC concerning the subject matters addressed herein and supersedes and replaces all prior negotiations and all agreements proposed or otherwise, whether written or oral, concerning the subject matter hereof. This is an integrated document. The Parties agree that should any provision of this Agreement require interpretation or construction that all parties have participated in the drafting of this document and no presumption regarding construing the document against one party shall apply.

Severability; Agreement Not Construed Against the Drafter; Fees. In the event that a court or agency of competent jurisdiction shall deem any part of this Agreement to be contrary to law, the Parties will make reasonable efforts to reform that provision to be legal, valid, and enforceable, with the goal of giving each Party the benefit of the bargain. Should the provision remain illegal, invalid, or unenforceable, the legality, validity, and enforceability of the remaining parts, terms, or provisions shall not be affected thereby and the illegal, unenforceable, or invalid part, term, or provision shall be deemed not to be a part of this Agreement. The Agreement was negotiated at arms-length and shall not be construed against its drafter as each party participated equally in its drafting. Each party shall be solely responsible for their respective attorneys' fees and costs, if any.

Warranty of Capacity to Execute Agreement. Petitioners represent and warrant that no other person or entity has or has had any interest in the claims, demands, obligations or causes of action referred to in this Agreement; that they have the sole and exclusive right to receive sums specified in this Agreement; that they have not sold, assigned, transferred, conveyed or otherwise disposed of any of the claims, demands, obligations or causes of action referred to in this Agreement; and that they have the mental capacity to understand and execute the terms and conditions of the Agreement. The signatory for MOESC represents and warrants that MOESC has taken formal action to authorize him/her to execute this agreement. A true copy of the minutes or resolution from a duly-noticed meeting of MOESC's Board of Directors approving this settlement and authorizing the execution of this Agreement is attached hereto as Exhibit B.

Disclaimer Liability. A.R., petitioner, pro se

Albert K. Marmero, Esq., for respondent (Grace Marmero & Associates, LLP, attorneys)

Record closed: July 23, 2020 Decided: August 13, 2020

BEFORE ELAINE B. FRICK, ALJ:

This matter was filed with the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on June 25, 2019, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

The parties advised this tribunal that they agreed to a settlement of all issues in dispute and entered into a "Settlement and General Mutual Release Agreement" (J-1) which has been fully executed and attached and incorporated herein.

I have reviewed the record and the terms of the settlement and heard testimony from petitioner and respondent's counsel on July 23, 2020. I FIND as followings:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures or their representatives' signatures, and as confirmed upon the record on July 23, 2020. (J-1) Respondent's counsel confirmed that the Board of Education approved the settlement.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that the "Settlement and General Mutual Release Agreement" meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1. Thus, I CONCLUDE that the settlement should be approved. It is ORDERED that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. New Jersey Commissioner of Education

Order on Emergent Relief

H.L., on behalf of minor child, J.L.,

Petitioner,

v.

Board of Education of the Township of Howell, Monmouth County,

Respondent.

The record of this emergent matter, the sound recording of proceedings at the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), and the recommended Order of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) have been reviewed. Upon such review, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that petitioner has failed to demonstrate entitlement to emergent relief pursuant to the standards enunciated in Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982), and codified at N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6.[1]

Accordingly, the recommended Order of the OAL, denying petitioner's application for emergent relief, is adopted.[2] This case shall continue at the OAL with such proceedings as the parties and the ALJ deem necessary to bring it to closure.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

INTERIM COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

Date of Decision: September 21, 2020
Date of Mailing: September 21, 2020

[1] As petitioner must demonstrate that she satisfies all four prongs of the Crowe test to warrant emergent relief, the Commissioner makes no determination on whether petitioner demonstrates irreparable harm since she fails to satisfy the remaining elements.

[2] The Board shall promptly provide petitioner and the requesting school district with all of the student records that they are entitled to receive pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:32-7.3 and N.J.A.C. 6A:32-7.5, if it has not done so already.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF HOWELL, MONMOUTH COUNTY,
Respondent.

H.L. on behalf of minor child. J.L., petitioner, pro se

Jan L. Wouters, Esq., appearing for respondent (Bathgate, Wegner & Wolf, P.C., attorneys)

BEFORE SUSAN L. OLGIATI, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner H.L., acting on behalf of her minor son, J.L., a student formerly enrolled in the eighth grade at Howell Middle School, seeks emergent relief in the form of an order declaring her child completed the eighth grade.

In opposition, respondent, Howell Township Board of Education ("BOE") contends it cannot certify J.L. completed the eighth grade as he disenrolled from the district prior to the end of the school year.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On August 26, 2020, H.L. filed a petition of appeal and motion for emergent relief with the Commissioner of Education concerning J.L.'s promotion from the eighth grade. The relief requested was promotion to the ninth grade.

On August 27, 2020, the Office of Controversies and Disputes transmitted the petition and emergent relief motion to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for a hearing.[1] N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15; N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. On August 31, 2018, the BOE filed a brief in opposition to the motion. Oral argument on the motion was heard on September 1, 2020.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

The relevant facts in this matter are largely undisputed. J.L. was enrolled as an eighth-grade student in the Howell School District ("District") during the 2019-2020, school year from September 5, 2019, to May 8, 2020. In early May 2020, H.L., advised District personnel that J.L. was moving to South Carolina. H.L. disenrolled J.L. from the District as of May 8, 2020. J.L. ceased attending school, which was being conducted remotely, as of May 9, 2020. The school year ended on June 20, 2020. J.L. received no final grades or report card for the third trimester. A graduation ceremony for the middle school was held on June 22, 2020. The District forwarded to J.L. a diploma and a cap and gown. He did not participate in the graduation ceremony. The Student Transfer Card for J.L. lists St. James High School, Myrtle Beach, South Carolina as the new school to which J.L. was transferring.

[1] The transmittal mistakenly contained the incorrect case caption however the other information including the nature of the case and the parties identified on the service appear to be correct.

In addition to the facts above, petitioner contends that she was given instruction from the District secretary regarding how to proceed. She inquired about taking the school laptop out-of-state but was advised she was not permitted to do so. She was also told that J.L. could not continue with remote education in the District after he disenrolled. Petitioner further contends no one told her J.L. was in danger of not being promoted. If she had been so advised, petitioner would have explored the option of summer school. It wasn't until August 10, 2020, that petitioner learned from the District that J.L. had no final grades or report card for the last trimester. She contends J.L. did perform schoolwork/had grades for the last trimester and that she has communications from teachers evidencing same. Finally, petitioner contends that during the COVID-19 pandemic (the period in which the third trimester fell) grading policies were modified and students were provided with unusual accommodations, but J.L. was not afforded an accommodation.

Respondent is sympathetic to petitioner and acknowledged that certain misinformation was provided to petitioner by District personnel but contends it cannot certify J.L. completed the eighth grade when he disenrolled from the District more than a month before the end of the school year. Respondent further contends that despite the fact J.L. was mistakenly provided with a diploma and cap and gown, graduation is a social convenience not a legal requirement. Respondent also contends that J.L. could have completed his eighth grade course work (in the District) remotely without the use of a school issued device. Alternatively, petitioner should have enrolled J.L. in middle school rather than in high school. An August 5, 2020, letter from Robert K. Henig, Ed.D, principal of the Howell Middle School, indicates that "[J.L] was passing his courses when he withdrew, with the exception of Language Arts. Without 3rd Trimester grades we cannot assess his final averages." Finally, respondent contends that it provided the new school with J.L.'s records and it is for the new school/South Carolina to determine his grade placement.

LEGAL ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSION

The regulations governing controversies and disputes before the Commissioner of Education provide that "[w]here the subject matter of the controversy is a particular course of action by a district board of education ... the petitioner may include with the petition of appeal, a separate motion for emergent relief or a stay of that action pending the Commissioner's final decision in the contested case." N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6(a). The regulations further provide that the Commissioner may "[t]ransmit the motion to the OAL for immediate hearing on the motion." N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6(c)(3).

At such a hearing, the petitioner must show that she satisfies the following four elements:

> 1. The petitioner will suffer irreparable harm if the requested relief is not granted;
>
> 2. The legal right underlying petitioner's claim is settled;
> 3. The petitioner has a likelihood of prevailing on the merits of the underlying claim; and
>
> 4. When the equities and interests of the parties are balanced, the petitioner will suffer greater harm than the respondent will suffer if the requested relief is not granted.
> [N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6(b) (citing Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982)).]

The petitioner must prove each of these elements by clear and convincing evidence. Garden State Equal. v. Dow, 216 N.J. 314, 320 (2013) (citation omitted).

I. Irreparable Harm

The petitioner has the burden of establishing each of the above required elements to warrant relief in her favor and must prove each of the Crowe elements "clearly and convincingly." Waste Mgmt. of N.J. v. Union Cnty. Utils. Auth., 399 N.J. Super. 508, 520 (App. Div. 2008).

As to the first element, petitioner must show that irreparable harm will result if emergent relief is not granted, "irreparable harm" is defined as the type of harm "that cannot be redressed adequately by monetary damages." Crowe, 90 N.J. at 132-33. In addition, the irreparable harm standard contemplates that the harm be both substantial and immediate. Subcarrier Communications v. Day, 299 N.J. Super. 634, 638 (App. Div. 1977).

Here, petitioner contends J.L. will suffer irreparable harm if the District does not declare him to have completed the eighth grade because he will be required to repeat the eighth grade. School in South Carolina begins on September 8, 2020, and petitioner contends she has been waiting for weeks for a resolution. While, I am not unsympathetic to petitioner's situation, which in part, appears to be caused by misinformation and a lack of communication, she has failed to demonstrate that the anticipated harm to J.L. in repeating the eighth grade is either substantial or immediate, particularly if he has not met required learning standards. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE, petitioner has failed to demonstrate J.L. will suffer irreparable harm absent an order declaring he has completed the eighth grade.

II. Settled Legal Right

Next, in order to obtain emergent relief, the petitioner must also demonstrate that the legal right underlying her claim is settled. Crowe, 90 N.J. at 133. Petitioner seeks to overturn the decision of the BOE regarding the effect of disenrollment prior to the end of the school year/ satisfactory completion of the third trimester. Actions within a school board's authority, including those taken in this matter, are entitled to a presumption of validity and will not be overturned in the absence of an affirmative showing that the decision was arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable. Thomas v. Morris Twp. Board of Education, 89 N.J.Super. 327, 332 (App. Div. 1965), aff'd, 46 N.J. 581 (1966). The arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable standard of review imposes a heavy burden on challengers of board actions.

Here, petitioner does not address whether or not her legal right is well settled. Rather, she appears to make an equitable argument that given the incorrect information provided to her by the District and the unprecedented times of the COVID-19 pandemic, respondent should simply provide a letter "stating that [J.L] has been promoted to 9th grade." Based on the foregoing, I CONCLUDE petitioner has failed to demonstrate that her legal claim is well settled.

III. Likelihood of Success on the Merits

To obtain emergent relief, petitioner must also demonstrate a reasonable probability of success on the merits.

Petitioner does not address her likelihood of success on the merits. Respondent argues that in order for any of the rights afforded to "pupils" under New Jersey's public education statutes, a child must either be attending or have the right to attend a particular school district. If a student moves from a school district, he no longer has a right to attend school in the district. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 et. seq. Based on the above, I CONCLUDE petitioner has failed to demonstrate she is likely to succeed on the merits of her claim.

IV. Balancing the Equities

Finally, to demonstrate an entitlement to emergent relief, petitioner must also show that when balancing the relative equities and interests of the parties, she will suffer the greater harm if relief is not granted. Petitioner argues that J.L. will suffer harm if he is not promoted to the eighth grade and that respondent can simply state that he completed same, despite his disenrollment. Respondent, however, has a substantial and valid interest in ensuring that the New Jersey State learning standards are met and that rights under the state public education statutes are afforded only to those students attending or having a right to attend school in the district.

Here, the balance weighs in favor of the BOE over petitioner because a ruling to the contrary could undermine respondent's authority and open up the floodgates for other students who did not complete the 2019-2020 school year. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the petitioner has failed to meet her burden to show that J.L. will suffer the greater harm if the requested relief is not granted.

Based upon the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that the petitioner has failed to meet the required elements set forth in Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982) and N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6(b), as a result, she is not entitled to the emergent relief requested.

ORDER

For the reasons set forth above, it is hereby ORDERED that petitioner's request for emergent relief in the form of an order declaring her child has completed eighth grade is DENIED. This order shall remain in effect until the issuance of the decision on the merits in this matter.

A telephone prehearing conference shall be arranged with the parties to determine whether future scheduling of dates for a hearing on the merits of this matter is requested/necessary.

This order on application for emergency relief may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The final decision shall be issued without undue delay, but no later than forty-five days following the entry of this order. If the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION does not adopt, modify or reject this order within forty-five days, this recommended order shall become a final decision on the issue of emergent relief in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

New Jersey Commissioner of Education

Decision

Tina Gagliano,

Petitioner,

v.

Board of Education of the Village of Ridgewood, Bergen County,

Respondent.

Synopsis

Petitioner – a home economics/food teacher formerly employed under tenure by the respondent Board's school district – withdrew her application for disability retirement and sought to return to service in her previous position. The Board advised that her position had been filled, and no comparable position was available. Petitioner filed the within petition of appeal, contending that her tenure rights had been violated, and seeking immediate reinstatement, restoration of her sick and personal days, as well as salary and benefits. The parties filed cross motions for summary decision.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: there are no material facts at issue here, and the matter is ripe for summary decision; the Board is not required to create a position for petitioner or bump another teacher; petitioner is, however, entitled to the next opening in her former position, provided she is able to perform her former duties; further, petitioner's claim for salary and benefits is not yet ripe for review, as those claims are still pending before the Workers' Compensation Court. The ALJ granted the Board's motion for summary decision, denied petitioner's cross motion, and dismissed the petition without prejudice.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ's findings and conclusion, and adopted the Initial Decision as the final decision is this matter. Accordingly, the petition was dismissed.

New Jersey Commissioner of Education

Decision

Tina Gagliano,

Petitioner,

v.

Board of Education of the Village of Ridgewood, Bergen County,

Respondent.

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. The parties did not file exceptions.

In 2016, petitioner – a tenured home economics/food teacher – suffered job-related injuries, filed claims for workers' compensation, and returned to work intermittently. On February 14, 2017, petitioner was granted leave under the Family and Medical Leave Act (FMLA) and subsequently filed an application for accidental disability retirement on August 14, 2017. The New Jersey Teachers' Pension and Annuity Fund (TPAF) denied her accidental disability retirement application, and petitioner appealed that determination. On March 13, 2019, petitioner withdrew both her TPAF appeal and her application for accidental disability retirement and sought to return to her teaching duties. The Board denied her return because her position was filled, and no comparable position was available. Petitioner filed a petition of appeal seeking immediate reinstatement, restoration of her sick and personal days, along with salary and benefits.

The Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) found that the Board is not required to create a position for petitioner or bump another teacher, but petitioner is entitled to the next opening in her former position, provided she is able to perform her former duties. With respect to the salary, benefits, and leave days, the ALJ found that they are not ripe for review as those claims are still pending before the Workers' Compensation Court.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ's conclusion that while petitioner is entitled to the next opening in her former position, the Board is not required to bump an existing teacher or create a position for petitioner. See Klumb v. Board of Education of the Manalapan-Englishtown Regional High School District, Monmouth County, 199 N.J. 14 (2009). The Commissioner further agrees that he may not exercise jurisdiction on petitioner's claims involving her work-related injury until after the Division of Workers' Compensation makes a determination. N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(c) and N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(i)(1).

Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter and the petition is hereby dismissed.

New Jersey Commissioner of Education

Decision

Lorraine Taddei-Graef,

Petitioner,

v.

Board of Education of the Freehold Regional High School District, Monmouth County,

Respondent.

Synopsis

Petitioner – a tenured teaching staff member in the respondent Board's school district – contended that her tenure rights were violated when the Board reduced her salary without the filing of tenure charges after discovering that the institution which had granted petitioner's Doctor of Philosophy degree in April 2006 was not accredited. However, the statute requiring such accreditation was not in effect until July 1, 2010. Petitioner filed a motion for summary decision.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: the material facts at issue here are not in dispute, and the parties filed a joint stipulation of facts; petitioner received a Doctor of Philosophy degree in Curriculum and Assessment through an online program offered by Breyer State University (University) in April 2006; the Board then placed petitioner on the doctoral salary guide at the beginning of the 2006-07 school year; N.J.S.A. 18A:6-8.5 went into effect on July 1, 2010 and stipulates that boards of education may provide additional compensation based on degrees or credit completion only from duly authorized institutions of higher education, a category which excluded Breyer State University; however, as petitioner received her degree from the University in 2006, this statute was not yet in effect; on December 2, 2008, the Board notified petitioner that she was being removed from the doctoral salary guide and being placed on the Masters +30 salary guide. The ALJ concluded that petitioner's tenure rights were violated when the Board reduced her salary without the filing of tenure charges, and petitioner was entitled to any additional compensation that she would have received had she remained on the doctoral salary guide from December 2, 2008 until June 30, 2010.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ's findings and conclusion, and adopted the Initial Decision as the final decision is this matter. The Board was directed to retroactively reinstate petitioner to the doctoral salary guide from December 2, 2008 until June 30, 2010.

Decision

Lorraine Taddei-Graef,

Petitioner,

v.

Board of Education of the Freehold Regional High School District, Monmouth County,

Respondent.

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. The parties did not file exceptions.

Petitioner, a tenured teacher, received a Doctor of Philosophy degree in Curriculum and Assessment through an online program from Breyer State University (University) in April 2006. Subsequently, the Board placed petitioner on the doctoral salary guide at the start of the 2006-07 school year. Following an Office of Fiscal Accountability and Compliance investigation, the New Jersey Commission on Higher Education advised petitioner in October 2008 that the University is not accredited and therefore she cannot continue to use the title or reference her degrees. Thereafter, on December 2, 2008, the Board notified petitioner that she was being removed from the doctoral salary guide and being placed on the Masters +30 salary guide. Petitioner filed a petition of appeal challenging her salary reduction on the basis that it violated her tenure rights.

The Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) found that the Board violated petitioner's tenure rights under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 and *N.J.S.A.*18A:6-10 when it reduced her salary without bringing tenure charges. Although case law enables boards to correct salary mistakes at the end of a school year, the ALJ noted that the Board did not make a clerical error. At the time the Board increased petitioner's salary, there was no law prohibiting a Board from increasing a teacher's salary based on a degree from a non-accredited institution. However, on July 1, 2010, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-8.5 went into effect, permitting boards to provide additional compensation based on degrees or credit completion only from duly authorized institutions of higher education. As such, the ALJ found that petitioner was entitled to any additional compensation that she would have received had she remained on the doctoral salary guide from December 2, 2008 until June 30, 2010.

Upon review, the Commissioner agrees with the ALJ – for the reasons thoroughly expressed in the Initial Decision – that the Board violated petitioner's tenure rights. Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter. The Board is directed to retroactively reinstate petitioner to the doctoral salary guide from December 2, 2008 until June 30, 2010.

BEFORE PATRICIA M. KERINS, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner Lorraine Taddei-Graef moves for summary decision on whether respondent Freehold Regional High School Board of Education (Freehold) violated her tenure rights by reducing her salary upon discovering that she received a doctoral degree from an unaccredited university, along with the reinstatement of her previous salary in accordance with Freehold's doctoral degree salary schedule.

STATEMENT OF FACTS

The parties have submitted a lengthy joint stipulation of facts and the material facts are not in dispute. The Stipulation of Facts are as follows:

1. Petitioner, Lorraine Taddei-Graef, resides at 1209 Koa Drive, Forked River, New Jersey, 08731.

2. Petitioner is a tenured teaching staff member employed by Freehold. Petitioner is currently assigned as a Learning Consultant and Child Study Team Leader at the Freehold Township High School.

3. In or around May 2005, petitioner enrolled in a coursework program through the on-line program provided by Breyer State University (University). The University held itself out as an institution with the authority to confer doctorate degrees on individuals who completed the program.

4. On or about April 26, 2006, petitioner was advised by Dominick Flarey, Ph.D., via electronic mail, that she met the University's coursework requirement, and a Degree of Doctor of Philosophy, Curriculum and Assessment, was conferred.

5. Upon receipt of the degree, petitioner was placed on the doctorate salary guide for the 2006-2007 school year pursuant to the collective bargaining agreement entered into by respondent and the Freehold Regional High School District Education Association. Petitioner's salary was $58,410. See, Official Salary Card, attached hereto as Exhibit A.

6. Petitioner remained on the doctorate guide until on or about December 2, 2008. Between September 1, 2008, and December 2, 2008, petitioner was placed on Step 10 of the doctorate guide, for a base salary in the amount of $73,620. See, 2008-2009 Collective Bargaining Agreement, attached hereto as Exhibit B. The differential in base salary between Step 10 of Masters +30 guide, where petitioner would have been placed if she had not earned the doctorate, and the Step 10 of the doctorate salary guide was $1,500. See, 2008-2009 Collective Bargaining Agreement between the Freehold Regional High School District Board of Education and the Freehold Regional High School Education Association, attached hereto as Exhibit B.

7. In or around August 2008, the Office of Fiscal Accountability and Compliance (OFAC) conducted an investigation assessing the respondent's policies and practices relating to tuition reimbursement and salary increases upon completion of a doctorate degree program. The OFAC investigation centered around several administrators employed by respondent. Each had received doctorate degrees from the University. See, OFAC report attached hereto as Exhibit C.

8. OFAC did not determine whether the degrees received from the University were valid and recognizable in the State of New Jersey. The matter was referred to the New Jersey Commission on Higher Education (Higher Education), the agency charged with regulation of degrees of higher education, for further evaluation.

9. Although petitioner was not a subject of the initial OFAC investigation, Higher Education subsequently learned that she had received a degree from the University. On October 8, 2008, Higher Education issued a letter to petitioner advising her that degrees from the University did not meet the accreditation standards required for degree recognition. See, October 8, 2008, letter to petitioner attached hereto to Exhibit D.

10. Higher Education advised petitioner that continued use of her title was "legally impermissible" and in "violation of State law and must cease and desist." See Exhibit D.

11. Higher Education instructed petitioner to submit a notarized letter avowing that she has ceased appending the degree designation to the end of her name (i.e., Ed.D., Dr. or Ph.D.). On or about October 20, 2008, petitioner complied with this directive. See, October 20, 2008, letter from petitioner to Higher Education attached hereto as Exhibit E.

12. On or about September 2, 2008, the Commissioner of Education issued a memorandum reiterating the requirements for degrees of higher education. See, September 2, 2008, letter from Commissioner Davy attached hereto as Exhibit F.

13. On or about December 2, 2008, the Assistant Superintendent for Business Administration notified petitioner that the respondent was removing petitioner from the doctorate column of the salary guide, and placed on the Masters +30 guide, as a result of the aforesaid correspondences from the Commission on Higher Education and the Department of Education. See, Salary letter to petitioner, dated December 2, 2008, attached hereto as Exhibit G. Step 10 of the Masters +30 salary guide provided a salary of $72,160. See Exhibit B.

14. On or about January 28, 2008, petitioner filed the instant Petition of Appeal. She seeks to be replaced on the doctoral salary column of the salary guide contained collective bargaining agreement. Petitioner further seeks reinstatement of the use of her title.

15. Petitioner never filed an appeal of the October 8, 2008, Higher Education determination.

LEGAL ANALYSIS

The purpose of teacher tenure laws is "to aid in the establishment of a competent and efficient school system by affording teachers 'a measure of security in the ranks they hold after years of service.'" Carpenito v. Rumson Bd. of Educ., 322 N.J. Super. 522, 528-29 (App. Div. 1999) (quoting Viemeister v. Prospect Park Bd. of Educ., 5 N.J. Super. 215, 218 (App.Div.1949)); N.J.S.A. 18A:28-1 to -18; N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 to -18.1 ("Tenure Employees Hearing Law"). As such, a tenured teacher may not be dismissed or reduced in compensation except for inefficiency, incapacity, unbecoming conduct, or other just cause, and then only after the appropriate procedural requirements under the Tenure Employees Hearing Law have been met. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5; N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10.

A person shall not append to his name any letters in the same form designated by the Commission on Higher Education as entitled to the protection accorded to an academic degree unless the person has received from a duly authorized institution of higher education the degree or certificate for which the letters are registered. N.J.S.A. 18A:3-15.3; N.J.A.C. 9A:1-8.1.

A motion for summary decision shall be granted "if the papers and discovery which have been filed, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law." N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b).

There are several school law decisions that offer support for the proposition that Freehold violated petitioner's tenure rights by unilaterally reducing her compensation without adhering to the procedural requirements of the Tenure Employees Hearing Law. In Fedor v. Elmwood Park Bd. of Education, 97 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 96, a school board adopted a resolution to increase the salary of a tenured principal who was transferred from a high school to an elementary school, and then three weeks later adopted another resolution rescinding the original resolution and reinstating his previous salary amount. In voiding the school board's second resolution as a violation of the principal's tenure rights, ALJ Springer provided a summary of school law decisions establishing tenured teachers' rights when a school board attempts to reduce their salaries:

> [a] long line of school law decisions has interpreted this reduction-in-compensation language [at N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 and the Tenure Employees Hearing Law] as prohibiting a local board from rescinding a resolution approving a tenured employee's salary in a given year, unless the board > successfully brings tenure charges or the employee is laid off or demoted as the result of a reduction in force. Illustratively, in Anson v. Bridgeton Bd. of Educ., 1972 S.L.D. 638, 640 (Comm'r Dec. 5), the Commissioner declared that tenured teachers 'acquired vested rights to the salaries established for them by the Board's adoption of their salary placement' and that they could not 'be deprived of a right they had acquired by action of the board.' Accord, Docherty v. West Paterson Bd. of Educ., 1967 S.L.D. 297 (Comm'r Oct. 23), where the Commissioner ruled that a board may not adopt a subsequent resolution to correct a mistake in a tenured teacher's placement on the salary guide, if the mistake "was not of the teacher's making." See also, Rivers v. Mercer Cty. Area Vo-Tech. Sch., 1984 S.L.D. 102, 108 (Comm'r Jan 17) and Galop v. Hanover Twp. Bd. of Educ., 1975 S.L.D. 358 (Comm'r May 16), aff'd 1975 S.L.D. 366 (St. Bd. Sept. 10), where the Commissioner invalidated attempts by local boards to recoup small overpayments of salary that were not 'of windfall proportions.'

In that case, ALJ Springer also noted that the school board's original decision reflected "a good faith effort" by the school board "to set a fair salary for an administrator who had been involuntarily transferred to a new position" and that "the situation is very different from genuine mistake, such as inadvertently placing a teaching staff member on the wrong step of the salary guide for a person with his particular experience and qualifications."

Here, unlike in Fedor, Freehold did not attempt to set a fair salary for a teacher who is transferred. However, upon receipt of her doctoral degree, petitioner "was placed on the doctorate salary guide for the 2006-2007 school year pursuant to the collective bargaining agreement" between Freehold and the teachers' union, and remained on the doctorate guide until December 2, 2008 when Freehold unilaterally reduced petitioner's salary by $1500. See Joint Stipulation of Facts ¶5, 6, 13. Thus, as in Fedor, once Freehold set petitioner's salary for the 2007-2008 school year, Freehold could not rescind its resolution approving petitioner's salary unless Freehold successfully brought tenure charges. As such, Freehold improperly reduced petitioner's salary by failing to bring tenure charges against her.

Most school law cases in which a tenured teacher argues that his or her salary has been illegally reduced involved a clerical error in which an employee of the school board mistakenly set a tenured teacher's salary at a level at which the teacher should not have received his or her salary. See, e.g., Stockton v. Trenton Bd. of Educ., 1987 S.L.D. 512, 521; Trenton Educ. Assn. v. Trenton Bd. of Educ., 1986 S.L.D. 2415, 2434; Rivers v. Mercer Cty. Vo-Tech Sch. Bd. of Educ., EDU 1368-83, Initial Decision (November 30, 1983), aff'd, Comm'r (January 17, 1984). In Stockton, for example, the Trenton Board of Education incorrectly placed Stockton on a higher step on the salary guide. While the Commissioner in that case held that the Board could correct its mistake, he found that the teacher was entitled to be paid at the incorrect level for the rest of the school year and that the board had to reimburse him for the difference between what he was paid after the Board corrected its mistake and what he should have been paid at the incorrect salary step. According to the Commissioner, a board may correct a clerical error with respect to salary; however, "during a given school year, once an individual has been placed and paid at a given step of the salary guide, he or she may not be subject to any corrective action during that year, which reduces his or her salary . . ." Id. at 521. In such instances, the Commissioner stated that "only a board of education may act to correct an error/mistake and it must provide reasonable notice to the individual that a correction is to be made." Ibid. Thus, under circumstances involving a clerical error in which a tenured teacher's salary is inadvertently increased, it appears that a school board does not have to file tenure charges in order to correct its mistake.[1]

Here, it is not clear that Freehold actually made an error in increasing petitioner's salary. Yes, it appears that Freehold believed at the time it approved petitioner's salary

[1] There is a case that is more directly on point. Unfortunately, the case was dismissed for procedural reasons. In Hoffman v. Bd. of Educ. of the Twp. of Hillsborough, 96 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 944, the school board mistakenly increased a tenured teacher's salary after she obtained a doctoral degree from LaSalle University in Louisiana.[1] When the school board realized that the university was not an accredited institution, the school board notified the teacher that her advancement on the salary guide was denied despite the fact that she had already received a paycheck reflecting her placement on the doctoral scale. While the Commissioner dismissed the teacher's petition as untimely under the 90-day rule for appeals, the Commissioner noted that "a board may not act to unilaterally recoup monies erroneously paid to a teaching staff member as numerous Commissioner and State Board of Education decisions so aptly point out."

This language from the Commissioner suggests that but for the 90-day rule violation, the Board would have had to have brought tenure charges against Hoffman in order to reduce her salary after it affirmatively increased it.

increase that Breyer University had been or was accredited even though it was not (or subsequently lost its accreditation before petitioner received her degree). However, there also appears to be no language in the relevant CBA or Freehold's policy (which is not in evidence here but is referred to in the Office of Fiscal Accountability and Compliance's (OFAC) report, Stipulation of Facts, Exhibit C) that would have prohibited Freehold from placing on the doctoral salary scale a tenured teacher who obtained a doctoral degree from a non-accredited university. Moreover, at the time of the salary increase, the Legislature had yet to address this issue, and the Commission on Higher Education regulations address degree designations and not salary increases in response to degrees obtained from non-accredited institutions. Freehold determined that petitioner had obtained a doctoral degree and accordingly increased her salary under the salary guide set forth in the relevant CBA. Therefore, as noted in Fedor, Freehold should have brought tenure charges against petitioner if it believed it had just cause to reduce her compensation and petitioner should have had the opportunity to defend her rights pursuant to the Tenure Employees Hearing Law. Since Freehold did not do so, Freehold violated petitioner's tenure rights and she is entitled to a doctoral salary retroactive to December 2, 2008, until the end of the 2009-2010 school year when P.L. 2010, c.13 goes into effect.

Nevertheless, the legislature has enacted a law prohibiting a local board of education from increasing a teacher's salary upon completion of a degree program unless the institution from which she obtained the degree meets the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:3-15.3.[2] According to the act, "[t]his act shall take effect on July 1 of the school year next following the date of enactment, except that this act shall not be deemed to impair an obligation set forth in a [CBA] or an individual contract of employment in effect on the effective date." P.L. 2010, c. 13. In addition to the relevant CBA, OFAC report, and higher education laws, this legislative development shows that at the time of Freehold's decision to approve Taddei-Graef's salary there was no authority prohibiting such action. Thus, since P.L. 2010, c. 13 was not effective until the start of the 2010-2011 school year, petitioner is entitled to compensation under the doctoral scale until June 30, 2010, and reimbursement from Freehold to compensate her for the reduction in salary unilaterally implemented by Freehold in December 2008.

CONCLUSION

Freehold violated petitioner's tenure rights by unilaterally reducing her salary without bringing tenure charges or holding a tenure hearing. While there is case law that stands for the proposition that a school board may correct at the end of the relevant school year any clerical error that results in an increase in a tenured teacher's salary, Freehold does not here appear to have made a clerical error. In addition, at the time of the increase in petitioner's salary, there was no law barring such action by a school board, and Freehold policy and the relevant CBA did not prohibit such action. Finally, the legislature enacted a statue which prohibits salary increases for teachers who attain degrees from non-accredited universities. That act went into effect July 1, 2010. As a result, Freehold violated petitioner's tenure rights and she is entitled to be reinstated to the doctoral salary guide until June 30, 2010 and reimbursed for any monies she should have received had she remained on that guide retroactive to December 2, 2008. While such a result contravenes a proper public policy that frowns upon using public money pay educators for degrees from unaccredited institutions, there was no law in place at the time of petitioner's increase and the tenure laws protect tenured teachers' rights against unlawful reductions in salary.

ORDER

It is hereby ORDERED that petitioner be reinstated to the doctoral salary guide from December 2, 2008, until June 30, 2010.

New Jersey Commissioner of Education

Final Decision

Board of Education of the Township of Barnegat, Ocean County,

Petitioner,

v.

Board of Education of the Freehold Regional High School District, Monmouth County,

Respondent.

Synopsis

The petitioner, Board of Education of the Township of Barnegat (Barnegat), sought an order directing the respondent, Board of Education of the Freehold Regional High School District (Freehold), to share responsibility for the cost of providing T.M. with a free public education in an out-of-district placement, including tuition and all other related educational and residential expenses, for the period from October 16, 2018 forward, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a)(1)(ii)(2). Barnegat filed a motion for summary decision, which was opposed by Freehold.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: there are no material facts at issue in this case, and the matter is ripe for summary decision; T.M. resides out-of-state for the majority of the year and splits his time equally between his parents when he is in New Jersey; his parents do not have a written agreement designating the school district of attendance; and, because T.M.'s domicile cannot be determined, the two school districts must share in the cost of his out-of-district placement in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a)(1)(ii)(2). The ALJ determined that Freehold is obligated to share T.M.'s educational costs for the 2019-20 school year but denied Barnegat's request that Freehold share costs for the 2018-19 school year because Barnegat failed to request such cost sharing at that time. Accordingly, the ALJ granted Barnegat's motion for summary decision and ordered Freehold to reimburse petitioner for one-half of T.M.'s educational costs beginning with the 2019-20 school year and going forward.

Upon a comprehensive review, the Commissioner found, inter alia, that: in analyzing N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1, it is not possible to determine T.M.'s residence for the 2019-20 school year, and an equitable determination of shared responsibility for the cost of T.M.'s placement is therefore permitted under N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a)(1)(ii)(2); the circumstances in this case are precisely those anticipated by the regulation; and the exceptions raised by Freehold are without merit. Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL was adopted as the final decision in this matter. The Commissioner directed the respondent to reimburse Barnegat for one-half of the cost of T.M.'s out-of-district placement for the 2019-20 school year, and to share equally in the future costs of T.M.'s placement at the American School for the Deaf so long as the present circumstances remain unchanged.

New Jersey Commissioner of Education

Final Decision

Board of Education of the Township of Barnegat, Ocean County,

Petitioner,

v.

Board of Education of the Freehold Regional High School District, Monmouth County,

Respondent.

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed, as have the exceptions filed by respondent Freehold Regional High School District Board of Education (Freehold) pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4, and the reply thereto submitted by petitioner Barnegat Township Board of Education (Barnegat).

In this matter, Barnegat seeks an order directing Freehold to share responsibility for the cost of T.M.'s education at an out-of-district residential placement. By way of background, T.M. is a 16-year-old who has been enrolled in the Barnegat School District since April 24, 2017, but has resided year-round at the American School for the Deaf since September 1, 2018.[1] T.M.'s parents are divorced and share custody. H.L. is the designated parent of primary residence and lives in Barnegat, while P.M. is the parent of alternate residence[2] and lives in Marlboro Township.[3] The parents split time with T.M. equally during school recesses and holidays. On September 6, 2019, Barnegat requested that Freehold share the cost of T.M.'s out-of-district placement, but Freehold refused.

The Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) found that Freehold is obligated to share in T.M.'s educational costs beginning in the 2019-20 school year.[4] T.M. resides out-of-state for the majority of the year and splits his time equally between his parents when he is in New Jersey; his parents do not have a written agreement designating the school district of attendance. As such, the ALJ found that, because T.M.'s domicile cannot be determined, the districts must share in the cost of his out-of-district placement in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a)(1)(ii).

In its exceptions, Freehold argues that the ALJ incorrectly determined that T.M.'s domicile could not be determined under N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1. Freehold maintains that T.M. is domiciled with his mother in Barnegat, as she was designated as the parent of primary residence in the Final Judgment of Divorce, and the residence of a child of divorced parents follows the parent of primary residence. Freehold contends that the ALJ erred in finding that the parents share equal physical custody because, pursuant to the custody arrangement, T.M. resides with H.L. for approximately two-thirds of the year. Additionally, Freehold points out that in the due process petition filed by the parents against Barnegat, the parents indicated that Barnegat was the district of residence, and in a settlement agreement of that matter, Barnegat agreed to be financially responsible for the out-of-district placement. As such, Freehold argues that under N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1, T.M.'s domicile can be determined as Barnegat, and therefore, the ALJ erred in finding that tuition should be shared.

[4] Barnegat also sought that Freehold share costs for the 2018-19 school year. The ALJ denied that request as Barnegat made no demand for cost sharing at that time. The Commissioner agrees and therefore makes no determination as to where T.M. was domiciled for the 2018-19 school year pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1.

Freehold also takes exception to the Initial Decision's position that an out-of-district placement can eliminate the domicile of a child of divorced parents. According to Freehold, the Department has consistently found that dual domiciles for school district purposes should only occur in very narrow circumstances, which are not found here. As such, Freehold maintains that although T.M. spends time equally with both parents during school recesses, his domicile did not change; he remains domiciled in Barnegat.

Alternatively, Freehold argues that Barnegat was out of time in filing the instant petition because it was filed more than 90 days after the August 2018 settlement agreement that placed T.M. in the out-of-state placement. Additionally, Freehold argues that Barnegat is estopped from seeking payment from Freehold because it failed to involve Freehold in the underlying due process matter with the parents, which ended with Barnegat agreeing to be solely responsible for the cost of T.M.'s placement. Accordingly, Freehold urges the Commissioner to reject the Initial Decision and find that T.M. is domiciled in Barnegat, and – in the alternative – that Barnegat is barred from seeking payment from Freehold.

In reply, Barnegat argues that the ALJ correctly determined that T.M.'s domicile could not be determined by N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a). Barnegat maintains T.M. resides at his out-of-state placement and visits his parents equally when in New Jersey; therefore, he lived with neither parent. Furthermore, Barnegat contends that the ALJ appropriately found that there is no court order or written agreement between the parties designating the school district of attendance, and that a designation of legal custody does not suffice. As such, Barnegat agrees with the ALJ that N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a)(1)(ii)(2) permits an equitable determination of shared responsibility in these circumstances.

With respect to the settlement, Barnegat argues that Freehold was not a party and did not need to be involved; the settlement resolved disputes between Barnegat and the parents at that time. Barnegat further notes that the settlement agreement only provided for T.M.'s placement for the 2018-19 school year, and the ALJ concluded that Freehold was not responsible for cost sharing during that school year. Accordingly, Barnegat urges the Commissioner to adopt the Initial Decision.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that the circumstances of this matter support an equitable determination of shared responsibility for the cost of T.M.'s out-of-district placement. N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a)(1) provides:

> (a) A student is eligible to attend a school district if he or she is domiciled within the school district.
> 1. A student is domiciled in the school district when he or she is the child of a parent or guardian whose domicile is located within the school district.
>
> i. When a student's parents or guardians are domiciled within different school districts and there is no court order or written agreement between the parents designating the school district of attendance, the student's domicile is the school district of the parent or guardian with whom the student lives for the majority of the school year. This subparagraph shall apply regardless of which parent has legal custody.
>
> ii. When a student's physical custody is shared on an equal-time, alternating week/month or other similar basis so the student is not living with one parent or guardian for a majority of the school year and there is no court order or written agreement between the parents designating the school district of attendance, the student's domicile is the present domicile of the parent or guardian with whom the student resided > on the last school day prior to the October 16 preceding the application date.

> (1) When a student resided with both parents or guardians, or with neither parent or guardian, on the last school day prior to the preceding October 16, the student's domicile is that of the parent or guardian with whom the parents or guardians indicate the student will be residing on the last school day prior to the ensuing October 16. When the parents or guardians do not designate or cannot agree upon the student's likely residence as of that date, or if on that date the student is not residing with the parent or guardian previously indicated, the student shall attend school in the school district of domicile of the parent or guardian with whom the student actually lives as of the last school day prior to October 16.
> (2) When the domicile of a student with disabilities as defined in N.J.A.C. 6A:14, Special Education, cannot be determined pursuant to this section, nothing in this section shall preclude an equitable determination of shared responsibility for the cost of the student's out-of-district placement.

As explained in the Initial Decision, the regulation confirms the "general proposition that a child's domicile follows that of his parents; it goes on to countenance a variety of factual complications, and resolves each with a formula for determining a single domicile." Board of Education of the Borough of Lodi, Bergen County v. Board of Education of the Township of Rochelle Park, Bergen County, EDU 20236-15, Initial Decision (June 10, 2016), adopted, Commissioner's Decision No. 267-16, decided July 21, 2016. "Where a special education student is placed out-of-district; his parents reside in different districts; and the regulatory formulas offer no clarity; then, and only then, is a dual domicile assigned for the child." Ibid.

In analyzing N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1, the Commissioner is unable to determine T.M.'s residence for the 2019-20 school year, and therefore an equitable determination of shared responsibility for the cost of the placement is permitted. First, T.M.'s parents are domiciled in different school districts and there is no "court order or written agreement between the parties designating the school district of attendance." The regulation's requirement for a court order or written agreement is explicit. G.P. and I.R.-P., on behalf of minor child, A.P. v. Board of Education of the Township of Hamilton, Mercer County, EDU 02621-16, Initial Decision (October 28, 2016), adopted, Commissioner Decision No. 422-16, decided December 15, 2016. Additionally, "when there is a consent order or a written agreement between the parents that designates the school district of attendance, the amount of time spent with either parent does not dictate where the children must attend school." K.H., on behalf of minor children, A.H. and V.H. v. Board of Education of the Borough of Butler, Morris County, Commissioner's Decision No. 70-17, decided March 2, 2017. Although Freehold argues that the custody arrangement in the Final Judgment of Divorce designating the mother as the parent of primary residence qualifies as an agreement determining that Barnegat is the school district of attendance, the regulation's requirement is explicit. A parenting time arrangement as part of a divorce decree is not equivalent to a designation of the school district of attendance. Moreover, at the time of the divorce, neither parent resided in Barnegat, so a written agreement determining Barnegat as the school district of attendance could not have been contemplated at the time the parents executed the Final Judgment of Divorce, and the record is devoid of any other agreement between the parents designating a district of attendance.

Next, T.M. resides with neither parent for the majority of the school year as he is in an out-of-state housing placement year-round. According to Freehold, T.M.'s residence remains with his mother because the Final Judgment of Divorce designated her the parent of primary residence. While T.M. previously spent more time with his mother in accordance with the established parenting time schedule, his circumstances have changed. He now lives full-time at an out-of-district placement, and – according to the Final Judgment of Divorce – the parties "equally share all recesses from school and utilize the Court Holiday Schedule unless they can agree otherwise." There is no evidence in the record that the parties have changed that arrangement, so T.M. splits his time equally between his parents when on recesses from his residential placement and lives with neither parent for the majority of the school year.

As T.M.'s residence cannot be determined in the above analysis, the next step is to determine where T.M. resided on the last school day prior to the October 16 preceding the application date or, otherwise, where he will reside on the last school day prior to the ensuing October 16. T.M. resided at his out-of-state placement on October 15 in 2018, 2019 and is expected to be residing there again in 2020.

Since T.M.'s residence cannot be determined under any of the above steps, an equitable determination of shared responsibility is permitted under N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.2(a)(1)(ii)(2). The circumstances here are precisely those anticipated by the regulation. A student with disabilities resides at an out-of-district placement and the domicile of the student cannot be determined because the parents live in different districts. Accordingly, an equitable determination may be made for the districts to share the responsibility for the cost of the out-of-district placement.

The Commissioner is not persuaded by Freehold's additional exceptions. This matter is not out of time; it was filed within 90 days of Freehold's refusal of Barnegat's request for cost sharing for the 2019-20 school year. Accordingly, this matter was timely filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(i). Additionally, Barnegat is not estopped from seeking to share costs with Freehold. The due process petition that resulted in T.M.'s out-of-district placement did not involve Freehold because, at the time, T.M. resided in Barnegat. As explained, T.M.'s circumstances have changed such that his domicile is no longer determinable. Therefore, Barnegat is not estopped from seeking financial assistance from Freehold for the cost of T.M.'s placement beginning in the 2019-20 school year.

Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter. Freehold is directed to reimburse Barnegat for one-half of the cost of T.M.'s out-of-district placement for the 2019-20 school year and to share equally in the future costs of T.M.'s placement at the American School for the Deaf, so long as the present circumstances remain the same.

BEFORE TRICIA M. CALIGUIRE, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner Board of Education of the Township of Barnegat, Ocean County (Barnegat), brings an action against Respondent Board of Education of the Freehold Regional High School District, Monmouth County (Freehold), seeking an order directing Freehold to assume shared responsibility for providing minor child T.M. with a free appropriate public education (FAPE) in an out-of-district placement, including tuition and all other related educational and residential expenses, from October 16, 2018 or the date on which T.M.'s father resided in the Freehold District, whichever is earlier, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a)(1)(ii)(2).

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On November 8, 2019, Barnegat filed a petition with the Department of Education (DOE), Office of Controversies and Disputes. On November 14, 2019, Freehold filed its answer to the petition. The matter was transmitted by the DOE to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), where it was filed on November 21, 2019, for hearing as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

An initial prehearing conference scheduled for January 30, 2020, was adjourned at the request of petitioner, and rescheduled for February 4, 2020. A prehearing order was issued on February 18, 2020, setting deadlines for the completion of discovery and the filing of dispositve motions. On March 4, 2020, a consent order was entered to permit the production of relevant, confidential student records in response to discovery requests.

On May 26, 2020, Barnegat filed a motion for summary decision in its favor. On June 29, 2020, Freehold filed a response in opposition to Barnegat's motion. Barnegat replied on July 8, 2020, and the matter is now ripe for decision.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION AND FINDINGS

Based on the documentary evidence filed in this matter, including the certifications of counsel and P.M., father of minor child T.M., I FIND the following as FACTS:

1. Barnegat is a local public school district in Ocean County, New Jersey, responsible to provide a FAPE, pursuant to 20 U.S.C.A. 1400(d)(1)(A), to students within Barnegat Township.

2. Freehold is a public regional school district in Monmouth County, New Jersey, responsible for providing FAPE to students in ninth through twelfth grades from eight localities, including Marlboro Township.

3. T.M. is a sixteen year old male who is eligible for special education and related services under the classification multiply disabled. T.M.'s disabilities include bilateral severe to profound hearing loss. He is enrolled in the Barnegat School District and resides at the American School for the Deaf (ASD), an out-of-district residential placement.[1] Certification of Jessika Kleen, Esq., in Support of Petitioner's Motion for Summary Decision (May 26, 2020), Exhibit A (June 24, 2019 Individual Education Program for T.M.).

4. For the 2018-2019 school year and the 2019-2020 school year, Barnegat placed T.M. at ASD and paid all educational and residential costs of T.M.'s placement pursuant to a settlement agreement entered on October 2, 2018, by T.M.'s parents and Barnegat. Kleen Cert., Ex. B.

5. T.M.'s parents, P.M. and H.L. (formerly H.M.), divorced in 2007. They share joint legal and physical custody of T.M.; H.L. is the "designated parent of primary residence" and P.M. is the "parent of alternate residence." Kleen Cert., Ex. C [Final Judgement of Divorce, Ocean County Sup. Ct. Docket No. FM-15-883-07N (December 21, 2007), at 6].

6. At all relevant times, P.M. has resided in Marlboro Township. Certification of P.M. (May 6, 2020), ¶¶ 2, 3.

7. At all relevant times, H.L. has resided in Barnegat Township. Br. of Petitioner in Support of Motion for Summary Decision (May 26, 2020), ¶ 12.

[1] While Freehold makes much of the Judgement of Divorce designation of H.L. with primary custody of T.M., the exhibits attached to counsel's certification make clear that since September 1, 2018, T.M. has lived at ASD year-round. See, Certification of Alexandra A. Stulpin in Support of Respondent's Opposition to Motion for Summary Decision (June 29, 2020), Exs. F, G and H.

8. On April 24, 2017, H.L. registered T.M. in the Barnegat School District. Br. of Respondent in Opposition to Motion for Summary Decision (June 29, 2020), at 15.

9. Since the 2018-2019 school year, T.M. has lived at ASD year-round and does not reside with either parent. P.M. Cert., ¶¶ 8-9. As provided in the Final Judgement of Divorce, P.M. and H.L. equally share time with T.M. while he is on recess from school. Kleen Cert, Ex. C, at 6; P.M. Cert., ¶ 9.

10. There is no court order or written agreement between P.M. and H.L.. designating T.M.'s school district of attendance. P.M. Cert, ¶ 11.

11. T.M. resided at ASD and not with either parent on the last school day prior to October 16, 2019. P.M. Cert., ¶ 12.

12. According to his father, T.M. will reside at ASD and not with either parent on the last school day prior to October 16, 2020.[2] Id., ¶ 13.

13. On September 6, 2019, through counsel, Barnegat proposed that the cost of T.M.'s placement be shared by the two districts. Freehold refused, citing the custody arrangement in the Final Judgement of Divorce, and this petition of appeal followed.

LEGAL ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSIONS

It is well-established that if there is no genuine issue as to any material fact, a moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law. Brill v. The Guardian Life Insurance Co. of America, 142 N.J. 520, 540 (1995). The purpose of summary decision is to avoid unnecessary hearings and their concomitant burden on public resources. Under the Brill standard, a fact-finding hearing should be avoided "when the evidence is so one-sided that one party must prevail as a matter of law." Brill guides us thusly:

> [A] determination whether there exists a 'genuine issue' of material fact that precludes summary judgment requires the motion judge to consider whether the competent evidential materials presented, when viewed in the light most favorable to the non-moving party, are sufficient to permit a rational factfinder to resolve the alleged disputed issue in favor of the non-moving party.

I CONCLUDE that the parties raise no dispute with respect to material facts and the obligations of Barnegat and Freehold to share in the costs of T.M.'s out-of-district placement can be decided as a matter of law.

New Jersey public schools are required to provide FAPE to children between the ages of five and twenty who are domiciled within the school district. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1. Typically, a child's domicile follows that of his or her parent(s). N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a)(1). The resolution of this dispute will turn on a legal question, specifically how New Jersey regulations define the domicile of a child of divorced parents who reside in different school districts. In this regard, N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a)(1)(i) provides:

> 1. A student is domiciled in the school district when he or she is the child of a parent or guardian whose domicile is located within the school district.
> i. When a student's parents or guardians are domiciled within different school districts and there is no court order or written agreement between the parents designating the school district of attendance, the student's domicile is the school district of the parent or guardian with whom the student lives for the majority of the school year. This subparagraph shall apply regardless of which parent has legal custody.

[2] Neither party produced any evidence that T.M. will not be in residence at ASD on October 15, 2020.

ii. When a student's physical custody is shared on an equal-time, alternating week/month or other similar basis so the student is not living with one parent or guardian for a majority of the school year and there is no court order or written agreement between the parents designating the school district of attendance, the student's domicile is the present domicile of the parent or guardian with whom the student resided on the last school day prior to the October 16 preceding the application date.

(2) When a student resided with both parents or guardians, or with neither parent or guardian, on the last school day prior to the preceding October 16, the student's domicile is that of the parent or guardian with whom the parents or guardians indicate the student will be residing on the last school day prior to the ensuing October 16. When the parents or guardians do not designate or cannot agree upon the student's likely residence as of that date, or if on that date the student is not residing with the parent or guardian previously indicated, the student shall attend school in the school district of domicile of the parent or guardian with whom the student actually lives as of the last school day prior to October 16.

(3) When the domicile of a student with disabilities as defined in N.J.A.C. 6A:14, Special Education, cannot be determined pursuant to this section, nothing in this section shall preclude an equitable determination of shared responsibility for the cost of the student's out-of-district placement.

The above regulation first confirms "the general proposition that a child's domicile follows that of his parents; it goes on to countenance a variety of factual complications, and resolves each with a formula for determining a single domicile." Bd. of Educ. of the Borough of Lodi v. Bd. of Educ. of the Tsp of Rochelle Park, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 20236-15 (June 10, 2016), http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/html/initial/edu20236-15_1.html., adopted, Comm'r (July 26, 2016), http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/final/edu20236-15_1.pdf. T.M.'s parents are domiciled in different districts and, given that he lives at ASD year-round and did not stay with either parent on October 15, 2019, and is expected to be at ASD on October 15, 2020, the only question left is whether there is a "court order or written agreement between the parents designating the school district of attendance[.]" N.J.A.C. 6A: 22-3.1(a)(1)(ii).

Freehold argues that the 2007 Final Judgement of Divorce dictates custody of T.M. and, since H.L. is designated with primary custody, this document serves as "a written agreement under N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a)(1)(i), that show [sic] their united intent to confer T.M.'s domicile with his mother in Barnegat." Br. of Respondent in Opposition to Motion for Summary Decision (June 29, 2020), at 14.[3] But, the regulations make clear that the designation of legal custody does not suffice for a specific court order or written agreement between the parents designating the school district of attendance for T.M. See, G.P. and I.R.-P. on behalf of A.P. v. Bd. of Educ. of the Tsp. of Hamilton, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 02621-16 (October 28, 2016) ("[R]egulation explicitly calls for a court order or a written agreement," and in the absence of such documents, the domicile of the minor child "on any given day is to be determined in accordance with the provisions of N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a)1ii[.]"), http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/html/initial/edu02621-16_1.html, adopted, Comm'r (December 15, 2016), http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/final/edu02621-16.pdf.

When, as here, a special education student is placed out-of-district, his parents reside in different districts, and the above regulatory formulas offer no clarity, then, and only then, is a dual domicile assigned for the child. Lodi v. Rochelle Park (cited above). Respondent claims that Barnegat relies too heavily on the finding of dual domicile in Somerville Bd. of Educ. v. Manville Bd. of Educ., 332 N.J. Super 6 (App. Div. 2000), as that case was decided before the current regulations were promulgated and the decision is rarely cited. The dearth of citations may only be because the circumstances supporting use of dual domicile are so rare. In Lodi v. Rochelle Park, ALJ Ellen Bass explained that the current regulations are in fact consistent with both Somerville and the later decision in Cumberland Regional H.S. District Board of Education v Freehold Regional H.S. District Board of Education, 293 Fed. Appx. 900 (3d Cir. 2008):

[3] Freehold cites an email exchange with P.M. confirming that the Judgment of Divorce remains unchanged. Stulpin Cert. (June 29, 2020), ¶ 33. That is not enough, however, to turn the Judgment into "a court order or written agreement designating the school district of attendance." Further, it raises the question of whether had the parents so designated a district in 2007, it would have been Barnegat, as H.L. lived in Jackson, New Jersey, at the time of the divorce. See, Kleen Cert, Ex. C at 2.

> [In Cumberland,] the special needs child of divorced parents was placed in a residential facility out-of-state. Freehold Regional, the district where the father lived, contended that the home district of the child's mother should share in the cost of the placement. The court agreed, relying on the Somerville decision to direct that the districts share the cost of the placement. Cumberland predates the regulations that now guide thomy domicile determinations but offers a scenario that would result in a dual domicile determination even today. The special education student in Cumberland resided out-of-state and thus in neither parents' home; as a result, her domicile could not 'be determined pursuant to [the regulation].'

The undisputed facts are that T.M. resides out-of-state for the majority of the year and when he is in New Jersey, he divides his time equally at the separate residences of his parents. At the time of their divorce, P.M. and H.L. did not enter into a written agreement designating the school district of attendance for T.M. as Barnegat and why would they have, given that H.L. did not move to Barnegat until approximately ten years later. Neither party has provided any evidence that such a document was executed at any time after the divorce. I CONCLUDE that T.M.'s domicile cannot be determined and therefore, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A: 22-3.1(a)(1)(ii), Barnegat and Freehold, the districts of domicile of T.M.'s parents, must share in the cost of T.M.'s out-of-district placement.

Barnegat's request for relief included one-half of all costs incurred by Barnegat related to T.M.'s out-of-district placement beginning October 16, 2018. Barnegat made no demand for payment at that time and Freehold should not be responsible to cover costs for which it could not anticipate nor budget. I CONCLUDE that Freehold's obligation to share costs began with the 2019-2020 school year, coincident with the September 2019 demand from Barnegat. See I.G. obo L.G. v. Cumberland Regional High School District Bd. of Educ., OAL Dkt. Nos. EDS 2994-02 and EDS 6938-02 (July 27, 2005) (district's shared responsibility for education costs began with notice of litigation).

ORDER

For the foregoing reasons, I ORDER that the motion of Petitioner Board of Education of the Township of Barnegat for summary decision in its favor is GRANTED and Respondent

Board of Education of the Freehold Regional High School District is ORDERED to reimburse petitioner for one-half of the costs of T.M.'s placement at the American School for the Deaf for the 2019-2020 school year, and to share equally in all future costs continuing until such time as T.M. is no longer enrolled at ASD or P.M. no longer resides in Freehold, whichever is earlier.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

PROCEDURAL BACKGROUND

Tobi Knehr, hereinafter referred to as the Respondent, is a tenured employee with over sixteen years of service in the Paterson School District. On February 2, 2012, she was appointed to the position of Director of Reform and Innovation. Prior to the tenure charges being filed, the Respondent was the Director of Full Service Community Schools.

On October 29, 2019, Eileen Shafer, State District Superintendent, sent a letter to the Respondent notifying her that charges of misconduct had been filed against her. Accompanying that letter was a Statement of Charges, Statement of Evidence and 165 exhibits in support of the Charges. The Respondent was informed that within fifteen (15) days of receipt of the letter she may submit a written Statement of Position and Statement of Evidence, and both must be executed under oath. Also on that date Susana Peron, Acting Deputy Superintendent for the Paterson School District, signed a notarized statement in support of the charges, and in fact, stated that she was the person initiating the tenure charges. She further indicated that "[T]hese charges are supported by the attached documents, the District's investigation and the on-going investigation by the N.J. Department of Education's Office of Fiscal Accountability and Compliance, as well as the N.J. Division of Criminal Justice in the Office of the Attorney General of the State of New Jersey." In addition, Ms. Peron stated that "Ms. Knehr's conduct constitutes misconduct, conduct unbecoming and a complete dereliction of the duties of the Director's position to which she was appointed."

On November 16, 2018, the Respondent filed her answers to the charges,and there is no reference in those answers that the charges lack specificity.

On December 6, 2018, a Certificate of Determination was executed by Superintendent Shafer. On that date the Board of Education approved a Resolution to file the tenure charges against the Respondent.

Also on December 6, 2018, in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11, et al and N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.1, et al., the Paterson Board of Education filed tenure charges against the Respondent with the Commissioner of Education.

Statement Of Charges And Specifications Regarding The Employment Of Tobi L. Knehr, A Tenured Teaching Staff Member Employed By The Paterson School District

I, Susana Peron, Acting Deputy Superintendent, hereby charge that Tobi L. Knehr, a tenured teaching staff member, holding the title of Director of Reform and Innovation, employed by the Paterson School District Board, is guilty of misconduct, dereliction of duties, and conduct unbecoming her position so as to require that her employment be terminated. Specifically, it is charged that:

CHARGE 1: Tobi L. Knehr engaged in misconduct by failing to research, review and/or properly authorize the expenditure of federal and state funds for several of the District's schools.

SPECIFICATION A: From or about February 3, 2012, until she commenced a series of leaves of absences, Ms. Knehr entered into arrangements with vendors without following applicable statutes and regulations for public bidding. Ms. Knehr approved payments to vendors, including Teens2Work, in violation of public bidding laws and Board of Education policies.

SPECIFICATION B: During the time she served as Director, Ms. Knehr approved, authorized and/or permitted regular and substantial payments to vendors with minimal, or no verification of work or services rendered. For example, Teens2Work was routinely paid for work never performed.

SPECIFICATION C: Ms. Knehr approved, authorized and/or permitted the expenditures of federal and/or state funds controlled by her Department and under her oversight. One of the vendors, Teens2Work, was owned/operated and/or managed by her subordinate administrator, Christine Breit, School Community Program Coordinator. Ms. Knehr regularly authorized payments to Ms. Briet's business, Teens2Work. Ms. Breit's business, Teens 2 Work, was operated out of her residence and was not reported in her Annual Financial Disclosure form. Ms. Knehr took no steps to correct and/or stop the payment of federal grant monies, the Century 21 Grant, to a colleague in her Department and her subordinate administrator, whom she was responsible for overseeing and supervising.

SPECIFICATION D: In her position as Director, Ms. Knehr, approved, authorized and/or permitted the expenditure of federal grant monies for numerous field trips many of which did not occur. Ms. Knehr authorized purchase orders permitting advance payments for field trips, many of which never occurred. These invoices, approved by Ms. Knehr lacked all appropriate and required supporting documentation.

SPECIFICATION E: Ms. Knehr permitted and/or authorized her staff to Improperly and/or fraudulently fill out invoices for the purchase of goods and materials, without any regard for District and State procedures for the ordering of supplies. Many of these supplies were never received by the District's community schools and the students of the Paterson school district.

SPECIFICATION F: Ms. Knehr did not properly vet and/or supervise her staff whether Paterson District employees and/or vendors' staff providing services through monies and programs under the 21st Century Grant.

CHARGE 2: Ms. Knehr' s misuse and mishandling and/or misappropriation of federal and/or state monies significantly impacted the students of Paterson by depriving them of academic enrichment opportunities and preparedness for further educational and career opportunities.

SPECIFICATION A: The misuse and/or misappropriation of a $500,000. federal 21st Century Grant, in addition to an annual budget of approximately $3,000,000., significantly deprived a substantial number of students of the Paterson School District of educational programs and opportunities.

CHARGE 3: Documentation for various field trips and activities which were to have been organized and operated through and under Ms. Knehr' s Department was false, misleading and/or fraudulent, resulting in the misappropriation of federal and/or state funds.

SPECIFICATION A: Field trips and activities were invoiced and reimbursed prior to the date of the event.

SPECIFICATION B: Field trips and activities which never occurred were invoiced and paid pursuant to Ms. Knehr's authorization.

SPECIFICATION C: The invoices for various field trips and activities lacked required documentation and necessary details.

SPECIFICATION D: Field trips and activities invoices failed to indicate whether: a) the requested parent approvals had been obtained; b) transportation with properly licensed drivers had been secured; c) adequate adult supervision had been properly vetted and fingerprinted. Further, the invoices provided no breakdown of costs for the items, including staff costs, transportation, tickets and/or admission fees.

CHARGE 4: Ms. Knehr' s misconduct relative to the implementation of federal grant programs, and the mishandling of her Department's several million dollar budget has resulted in an on-going investigation by the N.J. Department of Education's Office of Fiscal Accountability and Compliance (OFAC).

Further, due to the mishandling and/or misappropriation of federal grant monies, the N.J. Office of the Attorney General's Division of Criminal Justice is also engaged in an ongoing investigation.

SPECIFICATION A: The bulk of the Paterson School District's finding derives from the State of New Jersey. Ms. Knehr, as the Director of Reform and Innovation, had an annual budget of approximately 3 million dollars, which she failed to legally and properly oversee and manage in accordance with all applicable statutes, regulations and Board policies.

SPECIFICATION B: Ms. Knehr failed to adhere to the 21st Century grant guidelines for the utilization of the approximately $500,000 awarded to the Paterson School District for community based school and programs under her supervision and direction.

DISCUSSION AND OPINION

The Respondent continually argued that the charges are in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11 because the charges lack specificity, are procedurally defective and deprive her of a meaningful opportunity to defend against these flawed charges. However, the Petitioner contends "that the Respondent's position is disingenuous and not credible, as she already answere3d the charges prior to certification and was willing to discuss them with the Assistant Superintendent.

Nevertheless, the parties submitted briefs and on March 7, 2019, I rendered the following decision:

Upon careful review of all documents and pleadings by the parties, I dismiss the following Charges:

Charge 1, Specification D

Charge 1, Specification E

Charge 1, Specification F

Charge 3, Specification A & B

Accordingly, the Motion to Dismiss is denied as to all other charges.

From that date forward there was a substitution of counsel for the Respondent and the parties engaged in serious settlement discussions
I informed DOE of the status of this matter. COVID 19 prevented both parties from meeting, but ultimately a Settlement Agreement was voluntarily reached by the parties.

On August 26, 2020, the parties executed a Settlement Agreement which is incorporated by reference into my award.

I have reviewed the terms of the Settlement Agreement and find that it is in accordance with N.J.A.C.6A:3-5.6, set forth in re Cardonick, State Board Decision of April 6, 1983 (School Law Decision SLD 842,846). The Settlement Agreement is consistent with the established standards set forth in the above cited SLD.

SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT BETWEEN THE PATERSON BOARD OF EDUCATION AND TOBI KNEHR
Agency Dkt. No.: 297-12/18 (Arb. G. Restaino)

WHEREAS, the Paterson Board of Education (hereinafter PBOE) certified tenure charges to the NJ Commissioner of Education on December 6, 2018 alleging conduct unbecoming and dereliction of duties and misconduct against the Respondent, Tobi Knehr (hereinafter referred to as Respondent) while she served as the Director of Reform and Innovation, (see Exhibit A, Certification of Determination and Exhibit B, PBOE Resolution),

WHEREAS, by letter dated December 28, 2018 from the Director of the Department of Education's Office of Controversies and Disputes, Gerard G. Restaino was appointed as the arbitrator to hear the tenure charges pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16, as amended by P.L. 2012, C. 26 and P.L. 2015, C. 109, (Exhibit C) and,

WHEREAS, Respondent's counsel filed a Motion to Dismiss the charges, which, after receipt of responsive pleadings filed on behalf of the PBOE was denied by Arbitrator Restaino, and,

WHEREAS, Respondent's initial counsel, Carol Smelzer, was subsequently replaced because of alleged conflict, on or about April 5, 2019, and,

WHEREAS, Respondent's new counsel, Wayne Oppito, (hereinafter referred to as "Oppito") entered his appearance on or about May 23, 2019, and,

WHEREAS, on June 13, 2019, during a phone conference conducted with Arbitrator Restaino, Oppito advised that because of a medical issue he was experiencing which required immediate medical attention he was requesting that the matter be held in abeyance, which request was granted by Arbitrator Restaino, and

WHEREAS, commencing in late November 2019, the parties met and discussed settlement proposals on several occasions, advising the Arbitrator throughout this process of the status of the parties' settlement discussions, and,

WHEREAS, on or about October 21, 2019, a separate Petition of Appeal was filed with the Department of Education's Bureau of Controversies and Disputes on behalf of Respondent contending that she had been improperly reassigned to a teaching position. (EDU) 16407-19; Agency Ref. # 285-10/19), which remains pending, and,

WHEREAS, the parties have now reached a final settlement in the instant matter through negotiations between counsel for both parties, subject to both parties' approval of same, and the final approval of the Commissioner of Education, and

WHEREAS, counsel Oppito retired, effective June 30, 2020 and Robert M. Schwartz, Esq. became the new substitute counsel for Respondent, and

Whereas, the parties hereto are in agreement with the terms set forth below,

NOW, THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED that the parties hereby agree to settle the tenure charge case, for the reasons set forth herein, on the following specified terms:

Rationale for Settlement

1. The settlement is in the best interest of both parties in that it provides certainty and finality to this matter and avoids an expensive and protracted hearing which would have included many witnesses for both parties and whose outcome, given the nature of matters such as this, is uncertain. This settlement does not and should not be construed as an admission by either party.
2. More specifically, as a result of the extensive documents associated with this matter, the expectation was that at a minimum this matter would require 5 – 8 days of a hearing coupled with an extensive briefing schedule that would have required the parties to order transcripts of the proceedings. The hearing would have required the assistance and testimony of administrative staff whose time and energies would be better served to provide meaningful education to the over 20,000 students in Paterson for the upcoming 2020 – 2021 academic year, particularly during this time of the Covid-19 pandemic.

3. In addition, a settlement will save the PBOE the continuing costs of preparing and participating in the instant tenure case, and for the costs of preparing and participating in the OAL matter having docket no. EDU 16407-19; Agency Ref. # 285-10/19, along with the cost of any potential appeals in either matter.

Terms and Conditions of Settlement

1. Respondent shall continue to be paid her teacher salary during the 2019 – 2020 year. As of September 1, 2020, through December 31, 2020, Respondent shall be paid a pro-rata portion of her annual teacher base salary of $77,225, in addition to which she will receive $2100 in longevity and such other benefits to which she is entitled pursuant to the collective bargaining agreement of the teachers in Paterson. Said payments shall be made on the same bi-monthly schedule as Respondent was paid during the 2019-2020 school term.
2. Effective January 1, 2021, Respondent shall not be entitled to any further salary or longevity payments, but she shall be paid for 32.25 accrued vacation days from the 2017 – 2018 academic year, which she earned when she served as 12-month Director, said days having a gross value of $13,608.88. Said payment shall be made in three equal installments of $4,536 each beginning on January 15, 2021 and continuing on February 15, 2021 and March 1, 2021. Said payments shall be subject to standard and ordinary deductions.

3. Respondent shall continue to receive all health benefits through the PBOE through December 31, 2020 and during the months of January, February and March 2021, while she is receiving the balance of her vacation pay. Respondent's required contribution for health insurance shall be deducted from her compensation through December 31, 2020 and from the vacation pay she will receive in the months of January, February and March 2021. The PBOE shall give notice to its insurance carriers no later than February 26, 2021 that Respondent is to be removed as an employee from all health insurance as of March 31, 2021. Any continuation of health insurance received through the PBOE after March 31, 2021 shall be at the sole expense of Respondent by way of COBRA payments, if she elects to do so. The PBOE shall provide Respondent with all necessary information no later than March 1, 2021 regarding COBRA and what is required to continue health insurance through COBRA.
4. In conjunction with the execution of this agreement subject to the approval of the Commissioner of Education, Respondent shall submit to her counsel an irrevocable letter of voluntary resignation made effective March 31, 2021 addressed to the superintendent which shall be submitted by Respondent's counsel to counsel for the PBOE. It is understood that the letter of resignation shall not be effective if this agreement is not approved by the Commissioner of Education.
5. Respondent shall withdraw, with prejudice, her Petition of Appeal (Dkt. # EDU 16407-19, Agency Ref. # 285-10/19) upon approval of this Agreement by the Commissioner of Education.

6. Respondent also hereby releases, waives and discharges the PBOE, its officers, trustees, agents, employees, successors and assigns (hereinafter "Releasees") from each and every claim, demand, cause of action, obligation, damage, complaint, or action or writ of any kind, nature, character or description that Respondent now has, or may in the future have against the PBOE on account of or arising out of this matter or related matter, including but not limited to the pending matter before the OAL having docket no. EDU 16407-19; Agency Ref. # 285-10/19. This Release includes, but is not limited to, any claim, demand, cause of action, obligation, claim for damages of any kind, complaint, expense, compensation, or action or writ of any kind, nature, character or description arising out of or under Federal, State or educational statute or regulation and any other law (whether such be common law, decisional law or statutory law), rule, regulation, executive order, or guideline, and any and all claims for attorney's fees and costs arising from the above acts including, but not limited to:

   iv. Any claim cause of action, demand or complaint arising out of or under the Federal Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA).

v. Any claim, cause of action, demand or complaint arising out of or under the Federal Family and Medical Leave Act (FMLA) and any claim, cause of action, demand or complaint arising out of or under the New Jersey Family Medical Leave Act (NJFMLA).

vi. Any claim, cause of action, demand or complaint arising out of or under the Federal Rehabilitation Act of 1973 as amended.

vii. Any claim, cause of action, demand or complaint arising out of or under the Federal Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974, as amended (ERISA).

viii. Any claim, cause of action, demand or complaint arising out of or under the Federal Older Workers Benefit Protection Act (OWBPA).

ix. Any claim, cause of action, demand or complaint arising out of or under the Conscientious Employee Protection Act (CEPA).

The aforesaid list shall not be deemed exhaustive, but by way of example.

b. The PBOE agrees to a reciprocal release under the same terms as set forth herein of any claims it may have against Respondent arising from this matter or related matters that it now has or may have in the future.

c. N.W., on behalf of E.F., Petitioner, vs. NORTH STAR ACADEMY CHARTER SCHOOL, Respondent.	NEW JERSEY OFFICE OF ADMINISTRATIVE LAW OAL Dkt. No. EDU 01768-20 Agency No. 1-1/20 SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT

This Settlement Agreement ("Agreement") is made by and between Nigeria Womack-Coleman ("Parent"), with a mailing address of P.O. Box 6300, Newark, New Jersey 07106, in the County of Essex, on behalf of her child, E.F., and North Star Academy Charter School, with a central office located at 18 Washington Place, Newark, New Jersey 07102 ("North Star").

WHEREAS, E.F.'s date of birth is September 20, 2001 and E.F. has provided written consent for Parent to make educational decisions for him, including in connection with this lawsuit; and

WHEREAS, on December 23, 2019, the Parent filed a petition in this matter appealing four (4) out-of-school suspensions that E.F. had received in the 2019-2020 school year challenging the procedural and substantive bases for the suspensions; thereafter, North Star filed an Answer denying the allegations in the petition and asserting affirmative defenses; and

J-2

WHEREAS, the parties wish to enter into this Settlement Agreement ("Agreement") in order to reach a compromise and to avoid the time and expense associated with litigation;

NOW, THEREFORE, the Parent and North Star agree as follows:

1. The parties acknowledge that E.F. received out-of-school suspensions in the fall of 2019 arising from behavior that the Parent and E.F. dispute but that North Star believes both occurred and violated its code of conduct for students.

2. North Star agrees that the paper copies of E.F.'s 2019-2020 discipline records are to be destroyed and removed from E.F.'s official school records. North Star agrees to instruct its staff to destroy any paper copies of discipline records of E.F. from the 2019-2020 school year that staff may have, and that all such paper copies shall be destroyed no later than May 30, 2020.

3. E.F.'s 2019-2020 electronic discipline records are to bear the following notation: "CONFIDENTIAL, EXPUNGED FROM DISCLOSURE PURSUANT TO COURT ORDER." Access to E.F.'s 2019-2020 electronic discipline records is and will be limited to North Star Academy High School Operational Leaders.

4. The parties agree that this Agreement is the compromise of disputed claims and that any consideration set forth in this Agreement is not to be construed as an admission of liability by North Star, or of the violation of any law, statute, or regulation or an admission of culpability by the student. North Star denies any liability and has agreed to settle this matter solely to avoid the expense and burden of litigation.

5. By entering into this Agreement, the parties agree that the Parent and E.F. do not waive any rights that they may have in any forum, including but not limited to rights that they may have under the IDEA, Section 504 and the ADA. This Agreement specifically relates solely to the Parent's appeal of the four (4) out-of-school suspensions in the 2019-2020 school year of E.F. The parties further agree that North Star specifically reserves all rights and defenses as to any action that the Parent and/or E.F. may file against it in the future.

6. This Agreement constitutes full and final settlement as to the claims regarding the four (4) out-of-school suspensions imposed in the 2019-2020 school year on E.F. which were raised on behalf of E.F. in the petition against North Star, its employees and/or agents individually or collectively. In consideration for the mutual promises contained in this Agreement, the Parent, individually and on behalf of E.F, hereby releases, acquits, and forever discharges North Star, its current and former members, officers, employees, agents, attorneys, successors, assigns, and affiliates, of claims related to the four (4) out-of-school suspensions imposed in the 2019-2020 school year that the Parent or E.F. raised in this action, including but not limited to any and all claims for compensatory or punitive damages, or other expenses, except as referred to in paragraph 5 hereinabove.

7. This Agreement and all of its terms are and shall remain confidential to the maximum extent permitted by law. Nothing, however, shall preclude the parties, or any of them, from disclosing the terms and conditions of this Agreement for purposes of enforcing the terms and conditions in a court or government agency with competent jurisdiction.

8. This Agreement represents the entire understanding between the parties and shall not be modified in whole or in part except as a mutual subsequent written and signed Agreement. It is acknowledged that this Agreement has been entered into freely, willingly and voluntarily, without duress or coercion, and with the opportunity for the parties to consult with legal counsel of their choosing and option. The parties did consult with legal counsel and acknowledge that they were represented by competent legal counsel, and that they understand the contents of this Agreement.

9. The parties agree that neither shall be considered the "prevailing party" in this case and that each party shall be responsible for their own legal fees and costs incurred through the date of the issuance of a Final Decision approving the terms and conditions of this Agreement by the administrative law judge assigned to this case.

10. This Agreement may be executed in one or more counterparts, all of which shall be one instrument, and all of which shall be considered duplicate originals.

11. Any notices or delivery required by this Agreement shall be provided by hand, electronically, or by U.S. First Class Mail, as follows:

To the Parent: P.O. Box 6300, Newark New Jersey 07106 or nigeriacoleman1@yahoo.com

To North Star: Cynthia Leger, 18 Washington Place, Newark, New Jersey 07102 or Cynthia Leger at cleger@uncommonschools.org

12. This Agreement is subject to approval by North Star's Board of Trustees and an administrative law judge. Upon obtaining such approvals, the Agreement shall be incorporated into an Initial Decision issued by the New Jersey Office of Administrative Law and a final order issued by the Commissioner of Education, which Order shall be a precondition to the enforcement of this Agreement. If this Agreement is not approved by North Star's Board of Trustees, an administrative law judge, or the Commissioner, the parties shall return to their original positions without prejudice.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the parties have executed this Agreement on the dates set forth below:

BACKGROUND

On March 9, 2020, the Burlington County Institute of Technology, (Petitioner or School District) instituted sworn tenure charges against Larry Tisdale (Respondent), a tenured teacher. The Respondent was charged with Unbecoming Conduct, Inappropriate Behavior and Other Just Cause. By letter dated March 27, 2020, the Respondent, aside from acknowledging his employment with the School District, denied all the charges and filed an answer opposing the charges.

Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5-1 (c)(5), Mark A. Tabakin, Counsel for the Petitioner, by letter dated April 30, 2020, and a corrected letter dated May 4, 2020, submitted the following documents to the Commissioner of Education:

1. A Statement of Tenure Charges and a Statement of Evidence;

2. A cover letter notifying Larry Tisdale of his rights to submit an opposing written Statement of Position, and Statement of Evidence

The Commissioner of Education, having reviewed the charges and the Respondent's answer, determined that the charges were sufficient, if true, to warrant dismissal or reduction in compensation. By letter dated May 19, 2020, the charges were referred to the undersigned Arbitrator pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16 as amended by P.L. 2012, C-26 and P.L. 2015, C. 109 to "review those charges, which are not dismissed as the result of a Motion under the preponderance of the evidence standard," as well as "Respondent's defenses and any Motion which may be filed with the arbitrator" in order to render a decision on the merits.

On August 12, 2020, the Arbitrator conducted a mediation session between Petitioner, Burlington County Institute of Technology and Respondent, Larry Tisdale (collectively, the Parties). A tentative agreement was reached, and the hearing scheduled to begin on August 18, 2020 was cancelled.

On September 26, 2020, the Parties submitted final documents to the Arbitrator entitled Settlement Agreement and General Release (Settlement), and an Irrevocable Letter of Resignation, which indicated that the Parties had voluntarily resolved all disputed matters and fully disposed of all issues in controversy between them. The Parties also informed the Arbitrator that the School District passed a Resolution approving the Settlement, with respect to the tenure charges filed against the Respondent. The Arbitrator, pursuant to her authority under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9 "to hear and make a final determination on a controversy and dispute arising under sub article B of article 2 of chapter 6 of Title 18A of the New Jersey Statutes (C.18:6-10 et seq.)" reviewed the terms of the Settlement submitted by the Parties. The Arbitrator finds that the terms and conditions of the Settlement set forth herein (attached) meet the standards established by the Commissioner of Education for settlement of tenure matters In re Cardonick, State Board decision of April 6, 1983 (1990 School Law Decisions (S.L.D.) (842, 846).

CONSENT AWARD

Accordingly, I approve the terms of the Settlement and General Release and memorialize its terms and conditions in a Consent Award.

New Jersey Commissioner of Education

Final Decision

In the Matter of the Suspension of the Teaching Certificates of Erin Davidove, Board of Education of the Township of Long Hill, Morris County.

Synopsis

The petitioning Board sought the suspension of the teaching certificates of the respondent – a tenured special education teacher – after she submitted a letter of resignation on November 25, 2019 in which she stated that her last day on the job would be December 6, 2019. Subsequently, the superintendent met with respondent to clarify that sixty days' notice of resignation was required. The superintendent also cautioned respondent that terminating her duties without the required notice would result in legal action to suspend her teaching certificates. Nonetheless, respondent did terminate her duties on December 6, 2019. Upon receipt of an Order to Show Cause from the Commissioner in January 2020 – requiring respondent to show cause why an order should not be entered suspending her teaching certificates for unprofessional conduct pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:26-10 for resigning her position without giving the notice required by her contract – the respondent submitted an undated letter stating that her resignation had been for personal reasons related to a difficult work environment and its effect on her health and wellbeing. The matter was subsequently transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for a hearing. The Board filed a motion for summary decision.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: there are no genuine issues of material fact here, and the Board is entitled to prevail as a matter of law; the respondent's certificates should be suspended pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-8 because she resigned without providing the Board with the requisite statutory notice; a one-year suspension of the respondent's certificates is the appropriate penalty for such unprofessional conduct; and respondent's efforts to assist in the transition during her two week notice period do not constitute mitigating circumstances. Accordingly, the ALJ ordered that respondent's certificates should be suspended for a period of one year.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ's findings and conclusion, and adopted the Initial Decision of the OAL as the final decision in this matter. Respondent's certificates were suspended for one year from the filing date of this decision, a copy of which has been forwarded to the State Board of Examiners for implementation of the suspension.

This synopsis is not part of the Commissioner's decision. It has been prepared for the convenience of the reader. It has been neither reviewed nor approved by the Commissioner.

Final Decision

In the Matter of the Suspension of the Teaching Certificates of Erin Davidove, Board of Education of the Township of Long Hill, Morris County.

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. The parties did not file exceptions to the Initial Decision.

Upon such review, the Commissioner concurs with the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) – for the reasons outlined in the Initial Decision – that the respondent's certificates should be suspended pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-8 because she resigned without providing the Board with the requisite statutory notice. The Commissioner is also in accord with the ALJ's determination that a one-year suspension of the respondent's certificates is the appropriate penalty.

Accordingly, the Initial Decision is adopted as the final decision in this matter. The respondent's teaching certificates are suspended for a period of one year from the filing date of this decision, a copy of which shall be forwarded to the State Board of Examiners for implementation of the suspension.

INITIAL DECISION
OAL DKT. NO. EDU 01563-20
AGENCY DKT. NO. 20-1/20

IN THE MATTER OF THE SUSPENSION OF THE TEACHING CERTIFICATES OF ERIN DAVIDOVE, BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF LONG HILL, MORRIS COUNTY.

Nicholas Celso, Esq., for petitioner (The Busch Law Group, LLC, attorneys)

Erin Davidove, respondent, pro se

Record Closed: July 17, 2020 Decided: August 31, 2020

BEFORE LESLIE Z. CELENTANO, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner, Long Hill Township Board of Education, seeks the suspension of the teaching certificates of Erin Davidove, for failure to provide a 60-day notice of resignation to the District. Respondent contends there were mitigating circumstances and that she was compelled to resign due to the difficult work environment and the impact on her health and well-being. The State Board of Examiners (Board), issued an Order to Show Cause (OTSC) as to why the teaching certificates of respondent Erin Davidove (Davidove or respondent) should not be suspended, contending that she resigned from her teaching position with inadequate notice. The OTSC was issued on January 15, 2020, and mailed to respondent on January 22, 2020, and respondent filed a letter reply to the OTSC which was received by the Department on January 30, 2020. The Commissioner transmitted the case to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for hearing, where it was filed on February 3, 2020. A hearing was scheduled for June 15, 2020, and adjourned due to the COVID-19 office closure. The District filed a Motion for Summary Decision. Respondent submitted a letter reply, and thereafter submitted an additional letter reply.

FINDINGS OF FACT

The underlying facts are largely uncontroverted. Davidove commenced her employment on approximately September 1, 2014, as a special-education teacher. In due course, she acquired tenure.

On November 25, 2019, respondent submitted her resignation letter indicating she wished "to explore different career opportunities outside of education." The letter also noted respondent's final date of employment would be December 6, 2019. On November 26, 2019, Dr. Edwin Acevedo, the superintendent of schools for the Long Hill Township Board of Education, met with respondent to clarify that sixty days' notice of resignation was required. He explained that her continued services were necessary to minimize the disruption of a mid-year departure while a replacement was secured. Moreover, he cautioned that terminating her duties without such adequate notice or consent by the Board of Education would result in legal action to suspend her teaching certificates. On December 5, 2019, Dr. Acevedo sent a letter to respondent confirming their previous conversation. On December 6, 2019, respondent followed up and stated that despite her acknowledgment of the correspondence, her final date of employment with the Board would remain December 6, 2019.

With Dr. Acevedo's recommendation, petitioner approved and accepted respondent's resignation, effective January 24, 2020; this was the sixtieth day from her initial notice of resignation.

Petitioner moved before the Commissioner of Education for an Order to Show Cause, which was entered on January 15, 2020. The Order directed that Davidove show cause before the Commissioner why an Order should not be entered suspending her teaching certificates for unprofessional conduct pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-8. Respondent replied by (undated) letter to Dr. Lamont Repollet, the Commissioner of Education, which was received on January 30, 2020. Her letter indicated that her resignation was "due to personal reasons regarding the difficult work environment and impact on [her] health and well-being."

On February 24, 2020, respondent moved to withdraw from the case; however, as the matter had been transmitted by the Commissioner for hearing following the entry of an Order to Show Cause, respondent did not have the ability to withdraw.

On April 16, 2020, petitioner moved for summary decision to suspend respondent's certificates for one year. On April 28, 2020, nearly five months after she left her position, respondent submitted correspondence wherein she indicated that she had learned that her position (from which she resigned) had been eliminated, and that she likely would have been laid off regardless.

LEGAL DISCUSSION

The first issue is whether respondent may simply withdraw from the case. N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.2(a) states:

> A party may withdraw a request for a hearing or a defense raised by notifying the judge and all parties. Upon receipt of such notification, the judge shall discontinue all proceedings and return the case file to the Clerk. If the judge deems it advisable to state the circumstances of the withdrawal on the record, the judge may enter an initial decision memorializing the withdrawal and returning the matter to the transmitting agency for appropriate disposition.

Although respondent attempts to withdraw, the matter was transferred to the OAL for hearing by the Commission of Education following issuance of the Order to Show Cause. That is, it was not the respondent who requested a hearing. When the Commissioner becomes aware of violations of school laws in school districts, he may allow any party subject to his jurisdiction an opportunity to present its views before imposing any sanction by issuing an order directing the party to show cause why the sanction should not be imposed. N.J.A.C. 6A:3-3.1(a). In fact, "This procedure shall not be deemed to be in lieu of a contested case hearing, and the right to a contested case hearing is independent of, and in addition to, this step." Ibid. This explicitly includes a circumstance suspending a teacher's certificates for wrongful cessation of duties. N.J.A.C. 6A:3-3.1(a)(4).

Since respondent may not withdraw from a matter that arises from an Order to Show Cause, the matter continued as an uncontested case.

I. Petitioner's Motion for Summary Decision

a. Summary-Decision Standard

A motion for summary decision may be granted if the papers and discovery presented, as well as any affidavits that may have been filed with the application, show that there is no genuine issue of material fact and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law. N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b). If the motion is sufficiently supported, the non-moving party must demonstrate by affidavit that there is a genuine issue of fact which can only be determined in an evidentiary proceeding, in order to prevail in such an application. Ibid. These provisions mirror the summary-judgment language of R. 4:46-2(c) of the New Jersey Court Rules.

The motion judge must "consider whether the competent evidential materials presented, when viewed in the light most favorable to the non-moving party . . . , are sufficient to permit a rational factfinder to resolve the alleged disputed issue in favor of the non-moving party." Brill v. Guardian Life Ins. Co. of Am., 142 N.J. 520, 523 (1995). Even if the non-moving party comes forward with some evidence, summary decision must be granted if the evidence is "so one-sided that [the moving party] must prevail as a matter of law." Id. at 536 (citation omitted). The opposing party "who offers no substantial or material facts in opposition to the motion cannot complain if the court takes as true the uncontradicted facts in the movant's papers." Burlington Cty. Welfare Bd. v. Stanley, 214 N.J. Super. 615, 622 (App. Div. 1987).

The issue presented here is whether respondent's teaching certificates should be suspended for up to one year for failure to perform her duties prior to the expiration of the employment period, in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:26-10, which provides in pertinent part that > [a]ny teaching staff member employed by a board of education . . . who shall, without the consent of the board . . . , cease to perform his duties before the expiration of the term of his employment, shall be deemed guilty of unprofessional conduct, and the commissioner may, upon receiving notice thereof, suspend his certificate for a period not exceeding one year.

The procedure by which a teaching staff member must provide notice of resignation is set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:28-8, as follows:

> Any teaching staff member, under tenure of service, desiring to relinquish his position shall give the employing board of education at least 60 days written notice of his intention, unless the board shall approve of a release on shorter notice and if he fails to give such notice he shall be deemed guilty of unprofessional conduct and the commissioner may suspend his certificate for not more than one year.

By using the term "may" and not "shall," the Legislature did not intend for there to be an automatic suspension, rather, it determined to invest the Commissioner with discretion predicated on the facts and circumstances individual to the case. Thus, the Commissioner may suspend, in his or her discretion.

The purpose of these statutes is "to provide notice to the school so that a suitable replacement can be hired without adversely impacting students," and thereby protect students. Penns Grove-Carneys Point Bd. of Educ. v. Leinen, 94 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 405, 407. The decision as to whether to suspend a teaching staff member's certificate is a discretionary determination vested in the Commissioner, and historically all attendant circumstances specific to each case have been evaluated. Generally, this evaluation results in suspension of certificates for the maximum one-year period, especially when the facts demonstrate that "individuals violated the sixty day notice requirement for strictly personal reasons, putting their own self interest above the interests of students and their professional obligation to provide adequate notice to the Board." In re Suspension of the Teaching Certificate of Capshaw, EDU 12318-06, Initial Decision (April 30, 2007), modified, Comm'r (June 12, 2007), https://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/; see also Bd. of Educ. of Alpine v. Yuz, EDU 1116-06, Initial Decision (July 17, 2008), adopted, Comm'r (September 23, 2008), https://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/, stating that, generally, a full one-year suspension of a teaching certificate for leaving a district without adequate notice is imposed, with the rare exception of compelling reasons.

The Commissioner imposed a three-month suspension in In re Suspension of the Teaching Certificate of Rogers, 1989 S.L.D. 1962 (May 16, 1989), adopted, 1989 S.L.D. 1968 (June 21, 1989), where a non-tenured teacher of the handicapped resigned to take a position in a State facility, switching employment for more "noble" reasons, to work with more severely handicapped children. Another matter in which less than a one-year suspension was imposed is In re the Suspension of the Teaching Certificate of Borden, School District of Edison, Middlesex County, Commissioner Decision 247-16, where a non-tenured teacher resigned following a debilitating injury that left her unable to drive or climb stairs. The Commissioner determined that while Borden's conduct was unprofessional within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 18A:26-10, her resignation was motivated by a medical crisis, supported by medical records, and not personal gain, and imposed a three-month suspension.

In In re the Teaching Certificate of Burgess, 1983 S.L.D. 183, adopted, 1983 S.L.D. 195, the board accepted a two-week resignation predicated on its plan to find a replacement by Burgess's termination date. The board failed to follow through on its promise, and so the Commissioner declined to impose a suspension.

In Board of Education of Black Horse Pike Regional School District v. Mooney, 1984 S.L.D. 810, adopted, 1984 S.L.D. 821, a teacher made considerable efforts to assist the board with a smooth transition; developed a program through the end of the year; met with her successor to put the program in place; and left final grades. The Commissioner determined to impose no suspension.

In the matter In re Suspension of the Teaching Certificate of Savino, EDU 11688-04, Initial Decision (July 28, 2005), modified, Comm'r (August 30, 2005), affirmed, State Bd. (February 3, 2006), https://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/, Savino asserted that she was uncomfortable being reassigned from elementary school to middle school, and felt "unfit" to teach middle school even though she was fully certified to do so. The superintendent had warned her that the process for suspension would be commenced, as here, should she not comply with the advance-notice requirement. While the ALJ concluded that Savino's fear of unfitness constituted a mitigating factor warranting a shorter suspension, the Commissioner disagreed, and reversed the proposed sixty-day suspension in favor of a one-year suspension. No mitigation was found, nor were compelling reasons, unlike in Mooney and Rogers. Indeed, the compelling reasons found in Rogers nevertheless resulted in the imposition of a three-month suspension.

The Board submits that there are no material facts in dispute and that the Board is entitled to summary decision pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:26-10 and N.J.S.A. 18A:28-8. Respondent has not denied the allegations, and contends that she did not provide the required notice because of the "difficult work environment and impact on [her] health and well-being." Thus, respondent's desire for early release from her professional obligations was based upon personal motives and convenience. She asserts that she provided other teachers with materials she had created and used, and also made students aware of her impending departure. She also offers as mitigating circumstances the fact that another teacher replaced her when she left, and that some months later, certain classes were combined, and that she "likely would have been laid off regardless."

In the instant case, no genuine issues of material fact exist. Respondent agrees to the facts outlined by petitioner, including in her response to the Commissioner's Order to Show Cause and her answers, dated March 6, 2020, to the Board's Request for Admissions. Respondent also does not raise objections to any assertions put forth by petitioner. Thus, the matter is ripe for summary decision.

It is clear and undisputed that respondent fell short of providing the requisite sixty days' notice prior to resigning, and, as such, is guilty of unprofessional conduct as defined in N.J.S.A. 18A:28-8. She was reminded of the sixty-day-notice requirement both in a meeting with Superintendent Acevedo on November 26, 2019, and by follow-up letter on December 5, 2019, and of the possible consequences if she did not honor her professional obligations. The issue, therefore, is what constitutes an appropriate term for the suspension of respondent's certificates. The penalty assessed in many similar matters is a one-year suspension. There have been situations where less than a one-year suspension was deemed appropriate due to mitigating circumstances. Respondent did not resign her position for what were determined to be noble reasons, as in Rogers. Rather, respondent resigned to pursue a career outside of education, alleging that "[her] mental and emotional states were being compromised by the severely troubled students [she] was challenged with this year and the lack of support provided by the Administration despite numerous attempts to bring this to their attention and requests for assistance." Although respondent does make mental-health claims, she does not provide medical records to support the posture (as distinguished from Borden, where the teacher had a significant, physical medical crisis that was supported by medical documentation).

Respondent did make efforts to ensure a smooth transition. Unlike in Rogers, however, no "noble" reason existed for leaving her position prematurely. Respondent left to pursue different work because she found the work environment difficult, and impacting her health and well-being. There was no well-founded reason why she could not continue performing her duties a while longer, until the required termination date, other than her desire to be elsewhere. She was on notice that the Board had not approved her early departure and that it would move to suspend her certificates should she choose to leave as indicated, which she did ultimately do.

CONCLUSION

There is no dispute that respondent failed to provide the requisite timely notice of resignation, did not continue to report for work even though directed to do so, and is guilty of unbecoming conduct as defined in N.J.S.A. 18A:28-8. The assertions that she behaved professionally during the two weeks between her resignation letter of November 25, 2019, and her departure on December 6, 2019, and that she helped where she could, do not constitute mitigating circumstances. I CONCLUDE that a one-year suspension is appropriate.

ORDER

It is therefore ORDERED that respondent's teaching certificates be and hereby are suspended for a period of one year commencing August 31, 2020 and ending on August 30, 2021.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

Decision

N.U., on behalf of minor child, M.U,

Petitioner,

v.

Board of Education of the Town of Mansfield, Burlington County,

Respondent.

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed, as have the exceptions filed by petitioner pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4. The Board did not file a reply.

This matter stems from the Board's finding that M.U. committed an act of harassment, intimidation, and bullying (HIB). On April 24, 2020, the ALJ issued an Initial Decision finding that the Board was not arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable in making its HIB determination. Upon review, the Commissioner remanded the matter because the Initial Decision only addressed one element of the HIB test set forth at N.J.S.A. 18A:37-14. On remand, the ALJ advised the parties of a telephone prehearing conference scheduled for August 26, 2020. Petitioner did not participate in the telephone prehearing conference, so the ALJ dismissed the matter based on petitioner's abandonment of this matter.

In her exceptions, petitioner argues that her due process rights were violated when her matter was dismissed. Petitioner explained that the email notice of the telephone prehearing conference was sent to her junk mail folder, and the ALJ did not send the notice in another method that would have ensured she received it, nor did anyone attempt to call her when she did not call in for the conference. Petitioner points out that the Board's attorney did not appear for a prior conference, and the ALJ did not dismiss the case even after he called the attorney's office and could not reach anyone. Furthermore, petitioner maintains that she did not abandon her appeal as she had recently submitted a written response following the Commissioner's remand of this matter. Accordingly, petitioner urges the Commissioner to reject the Initial Decision and determine that the Board's HIB determination was arbitrary and capricious.

Upon review, the Commissioner finds that petitioner did not abandon this matter. Petitioner offered a reason why she failed to appear for the August 26, 2020 telephone prehearing conference, namely that the email notice was filtered to her junk mail folder rather than her email inbox. Additionally, despite her failure to participate in the telephone conference, petitioner has otherwise continued to participate in this matter since it was filed in 2018.

Accordingly, this matter is remanded to the OAL for further proceedings necessary to reach a determination on the merits.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), where it was filed on April 28, 2020. The parties were advised that a prehearing telephone conference was scheduled for August 26, 2020. Petitioner did not participate in the scheduled prehearing telephone conference and did not call the OAL to explain why she was unable to do so.

Petitioner never called or forwarded a letter to the OAL explaining her failure to appear for the prehearing conference. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that petitioner has abandoned her appeal, and that dismissal is therefore appropriate.

Order on Emergent Relief

S.B., on behalf of minor child, D.B.,

Petitioner,

v.

Board of Education of the City of Jersey City, Hudson County,

Respondent.

The record of this emergent matter, the sound recording of proceedings at the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), and the recommended Order of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) have been reviewed. Upon such review, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that petitioner has failed to demonstrate entitlement to emergent relief pursuant to each of the standards enunciated in Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982), and codified at N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6.

Accordingly, the recommended Order of the OAL, denying petitioner's application for emergent relief, is adopted. This case shall continue at the OAL with such proceedings as the parties and the ALJ deem necessary to bring it to closure.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

Petitioner, S.B. on behalf of her minor child, D.B. brings this action seeking to reverse the Board of Education of the City of Jersey City's ("Board") seven-day suspension, and disenrollment from McNair Academy High School ("McNair"), to a neighborhood comprehensive high school, Dickinson High School ("Dickinson"). Petitioner's emergent motion seeks an order compelling the Board to allow D.B. to complete his educational coursework at McNair, pending the resolution of claimed violations of the Fourteenth and the First Amendments of the United States Constitution by the Board's disciplinary actions. U.S. Const. amend. XIV, § 1, amend. I.

On September 11, 2020, the Department of Education, Office of Controversies and Disputes, transmitted this case to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for hearing as a contested case and resolution of the petitioner's motion for emergency relief.

On September 15, 2020, I conducted a telephone status conference, and scheduled oral argument on the motion for September 17, 2020. I adjourned oral argument to September 22, 2020, to accommodate petitioner's request for an interpreter. The Board submitted its initial reply to the motion on September 15, 2020, and a supporting certification on September 21, 2020.

On September 22, 2020, oral argument proceeded via Zoom due to the COVID-19 health crisis, and the record closed.

D.B. is sixteen years old and is a rising junior at Dickinson in the Jersey City Public School District ("District"). From September 2018 until the Board's disenrollment and transfer decision of July 22, 2020, D.B. attended McNair.

The District founded McNair because of litigation claiming the District did not correctly implement desegregation. McNair's students must include twenty-five percent of African American descent, twenty-five percent of Asian descent, twenty-five percent of Hispanic descent, and twenty-five percent of "other" ancestry.

In or around March 2020, D.B. posted a video on his private TikTok account that showed him pointing to an emoji of a black person as equal to three-fifths of an emoji of a white person. D.B. took and posted the video outside of the school, unaffiliated with any school-sponsored activity, and did not direct the video at a person or student.

Various individuals made the Board aware of D.B.'s racially insensitive post. On June 2, 2020, respondent called S.B. to advise her McNair was suspending D.B. for seven days. At that point, education services at McNair were remote due to the COVID-19 health crisis.

Petitioner later received a written notice from McNair's principal stating the suspension related to the racially motivated TikTok video. Specifically, D.B. disrupted class or created a disturbance in the building and engaged in a violent or criminal act. Respondent suspended D.B. pending the outcome of a harassment, intimidating and, bullying ("HIB") investigation because of the incident's sensitive nature.

On July 2, 2020, the Board sent written notice to S.B. that the HIB investigation was complete. Further, the Board advised that a formal hearing would occur on July 9, 2020, and the Board would determine the appropriate consequences. The notice also identified the violations as follows:

> NOTICE OF CHARGE
>
> Violating the Student Code of Conduct, Board Policy 5131 (Conduct/Discipline), and N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2(a), (c), (i), and (k), by exbibitiing, communicating, encouraging, and disseminating, verbally and electronically, inappropriate, offensive, derogatory, and racist behavior targeting, demeaning, and harming fellow Black students. Said misconduct negatively impacted fellow students' physical and emotional safety, security, and well-being. Said misconduct substantially disrupted or interfered with the orderly operation of the school, education environment, and the rights of other students. Said misconduct created a hostile educational environment for students. Said misconduct warrants the imposition of appropriate consequences, interventions, or loss of privileges, including, but not limited to, removal from McNair Academic High School with enrollment in your child's neighborhood school; or said misconduct warrants disciplinary action, including, but not limited to, a long-term suspension or expulsion provided documents and identified witnesses upon which respondent intended to rely. Further, respondent advised S.B. of the right to counsel, right to cross-examination, and the right to present a defense.
> [Ibid.]

Moreover, the letter advised petitioner of the Board's intended witnesses to support the charges, petitioner's right to counsel, cross-examination, and the ability to present a defense through documents and witnesses. Also, the Board supplied contact information for legal assistance.

On July 9, 2020, petitioner and the Board agreed to adjourn the hearing until July 15, 2020.

On July 15, 2020, the hearing took place with multiple witnesses presented on behalf of both parties, including numerous character witnesses in support of D.B. D.B had counsel at the hearing, admitted posting the video, and was remorseful about the video.

On July 22, 2020, the Board issued a final decision with the following factual findings:

> 1) An HIB investigation was opened and conducted by AntiBullying Coordinator Paula Christen. The conduct of D.B. in posting the Tik Tok video was founded to be a HIB violation, and will be presented at the next regular Board meeting.
>
> 2) While this incident is not of a physical nature, the emotional well-being of all students is inextricably tied to the District's responsibility to educate and ensure the safety of the whole child.
>
> 3) There exists a climate and culture at McNair that makes Black students feel marginalized and excluded which is detrimental to their emotional well-being. It appears that this same climate makes students comfortable using racial slurs and posting demeaning comments and language on social media.
>
> 4) McNair students saw D.B.'s post/video on Tik Tok comparing a black person to a white person. The post's graphic caption depicted that a black person equals 3/5 of a white person.
>
> 5) Current and former McNair students were very upset by D.B.'s post and reported this post along with several other racist posts by Other McNair students.
> 6) An anonymous character witness for D.B. wrote in her statement on behalf of D.B., "As an African American, black young woman, I discern that D.B. has posted a video with an insensitive joke on Tik Tok . . . A few weeks ago, I came across the video . . . many of my peers . . . including myself were perturbed. The video seemed to make a joke about the Three-Fifths Compromise, a constitutional amendment that was passed regarding the representation of my people during enslavement."

7) D.B. has admitted to his mistake and promises that he has learned from his mistake. DB. is working with the community to share his story and to prevent other youth from making the same mistake.

8) According to the suspension form, D.B. received a 7-day suspension (3 days in-school / 4-days out of school) in June 2020 pending the outcome of the investigation.

The decision concluded that D.B. violated the Student Code of Conduct, including making inappropriate and offensive comments under "Level 2," and bullying under "Level 3." Moreover, the Board found that D.B. violated statutory provisions N.J.S.A. 18 A: 37-2(c), for conduct constituting a continuing danger to the physical well-being of other students, and (k), for harassment, intimidation, and bullying. Also, D.B.'s conduct substantially disrupted or interfered with the school's orderly operations or other students' rights.

The Board imposed the following consequences: 1) no expulsion of D.B. from the school district; 2) and 3) no modification, reduction, or extension of the seven-day suspension; (4) revocation of D.B.'s privilege of attendance at McNair Academic High School with dis-enrollment, and D.B.'s eligibility to attend his neighborhood comprehensive high school, Dickinson High School; and (5) community service completed before the last day of school for the 2020–2021 school year with attendance at all programs related to the harmful effects and consequences of misusing social media.

LEGAL ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSION

The New Jersey Anti-Bullying Act under N.J.S.A. 18A-13, et seq., the District Code of Conduct, and District Policy 5131.1- Harassment, Intimidation and Bullying, prohibit "exhibiting inappropriate, offensive, and racist behavior" targeting a student or group of students. Indeed, under N.J.S.A. 18A-14, "Harassment, Intimidation and Bullying" includes electronic communications on or off school grounds "that is reasonably perceived as motivated either by an actual or perceived characteristic, such as race . . .

that substantially disrupts or interferes with the orderly operation of the school or the rights of other students."

In support of the motion for emergent relief, petitioner asserts deficiencies in the notices for the seven-day suspension and the Board hearing that violates due process protections afforded by the Fourteenth Amendment of the United Sates Constitution. U.S. Const. amend. XIV, § 1. Further, petitioner asserts that the video is speech protected by the First Amendment of the United States Constitution. U.S. Const. amend. I.

The Board disputes any lack of notice, maintains that its actions were not arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable given the admitted violation of the School Code of Conduct, and that the First Amendment does not protect racially motivated speech.

N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6(b) sets forth the standards governing motions for emergent relief and instructs that:

> A motion for a stay or emergent relief shall be accompanied by a letter memorandum or brief which shall address the following standards to be met for granting such relief pursuant to Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982):
>
> 1. The petitioner will suffer irreparable harm if the requested relief is not granted;
>
> 2. The legal right underlying petitioner's claim is settled;
>
> 3. The petitioner has a likelihood of prevailing on the merits of the underlying claim; and
> 4. When the equities and interests of the parties are balanced, the petitioner will suffer greater harm than the respondent will suffer if the requested relief is not granted.

[N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6(b).]

Indeed, the moving party must demonstrate each element "clearly and convincingly." Waste Management of N.J. v. Union County Utilities Authority, 399 N.J. Super. 508, 520 (App. Div. 2008).

Petitioner urges that a less rigid view of the Crowe factors is appropriate given the request to maintain the "status quo," which "may permit the court to place less emphasis on a particular Crowe factor if another greatly requires the issuance of the remedy." Id. at 520 (citing Bancroft & Sons Co. v. Shelley Knitting Mills, Inc., 268 F.2d 569, 573 (3d Cir.1959)).

Irreparable harm

Irreparable harm is a "substantial injury to a material degree coupled with the inadequacy of money damages." Judice's Sunshine Pontiac v. General Motors corp., 418 F. Supp. 1212, 1218 (D.N.J. 1976). An injunctive relief award requires a "clear showing of irreparable injury" or a "presently existing actual threat." Cont'l Grp. v. Amoco Chemicals Corp., 614 F.2d 351, 359 (D.N.J. 1980). More than a risk of irreparable harm must be demonstrated. Id.

Here, D.B. is not entitled to the privilege of attending McNair, and his right to a free education does not include a right to attend the school of his choosing. Indeed, the Board has the authority to provide D.B. a free education at his neighborhood comprehensive high school and is doing so. Moreover, petitioner has not demonstrated that D.B. will suffer irreparable harm if he cannot remain at McNair for remote instruction instead of remote instruction at Dickinson. There is no evidence that the Dickinson program is inappropriate, not comparable, or will affect his education trajectory. Although D.B. maintains that he cannot socialize with his friends at McNair, D.B. would not attend in-person coursework due to COVID-19.

Right to the underlying claim must be settled

Each school district is obligated to provide a thorough and efficient education system to all children residing in its school district. N.J. Const. art. VIII, § 4, ¶ 1; N.J.S.A. 18A:33-1. To carry out this policy, local boards of education have discretionary authority at N.J.S.A. 18A:11-1C. The boards adopt rules for the management of the district's public schools and perform all acts and do all things necessary for the lawful and proper conduct of the public schools of the district.

A board of education's actions are entitled to a presumption of lawfulness and good faith. In challenges to board actions, the challenger bears the burden of proving that such acts were unlawful, arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable. Schuster v. Bd. of Educ. Montgomery Twp., 96 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 670, 676 (citing Schnick v. Westwood Ed. of Educ., 60 N.J. Super. 448 (App. Div. 1960), and Quinlan v. Bd. of Educ. of North Bergen Twp., 73 N.J. Super. 40 (App. Div. 1962). The "arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable" standard of review imposes a heavy burden on challengers of board actions, and is defined as follows:

> In the law, "arbitrary" and "capricious" means having no rational basis. Arbitrary and capricious action of administrative bodies means willful and unreasoning action, without consideration and in disregard of circumstances. Where there is no room for two opinions, action is not arbitrary or capricious when exercised honestly and upon due consideration, even though it may be believed that an erroneous conclusion has been reached . . . Moreover, the court should not substitute its judgment for that of an administrative or legislative body if there is substantial evidence to support the ruling.
> [Piccoli v. Ed. of Educ. of Ramapo Indian Hills Regional School District, EDU 1839-98, Initial Decision, (January 22, 1999) http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html (citing Bayshore Sewage Co. v. Dent. of Envir. Protection,122 N.J. Super. 184, 199-200 (Ch. Div. 1973), aff'd 131 N.J. Super. 37 (App. Div. 1974).]

In the absence of a clear showing of abuse of discretion, the Commissioner of Education will not substitute his or her own judgment for that of the board of education. Massaro v. Bd. of Educ. of the Boro. of Bergenfield, 1 965 S.L.D. 84, 85. In Kopera v. Bd. of Educ. of West Orange, 60 N.J. Super. 288, 294 (App. Div. 1960), the Appellate Division stated, "the well-established rule that action of the local board [of education] which lies within the area of its discretionary powers may not be upset unless patently without rational basis or induced by improper motives."

Here, D.B. admitted that he posted a racially insensitive video on his TikTok account in violation of the School Code of Conduct. The Board maintains that the consequences imposed were reasonably necessary for other students' emotional safety, security, and well-being. While the legal right to challenge a Board's action as being

"arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable" may be settled, the petitioner presented no proof that the Board's actions were without rational basis or induced by improper motives.

Also, there is no dispute that the Board must afford D.B. due process relative to the discipline imposed, including notice provisions under N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.2 (suspensions less than ten days), and 7.3 (suspensions of eleven or more days). See U.S. Const. amend. XIV, § 1; R.R. v. Bd. of Educ., 109 N.J. Super. 337, 346 (Ch. Div. 1970). Yet, the parties dispute the facts concerning due process provided in this case. Petitioner failed to establish the right to relief in the absence of a full evidentiary hearing showing that the Board's actions violated D.B.'s due process rights.

Regardless, petitioner's First Amendment claim seeking protection for off-campus speech is not settled in favor of petitioner because D.B.'s TikTok video was racially motivated speech that the Board found amounted to bullying and harassment. See U.S. Const. amend. I. In Tinker v. Des Moines Independent Community School District, 393 U.S. 503, 512-513 (1969), the U.S. Supreme Court explained that:

> [C]onduct by the student, in class or out of it, which for any reason -- whether it stems from time, place, or type of behavior -- materially disrupts classwork or involves substantial disorder or invasion of the rights of others is, of course, not immunized by the constitutional guarantee of freedom of speech.

Respondent relies upon Dunkley v. Bd. of Educ., 216 F.Supp.3d 485 (D.N.J. 2016). In Dunkley, the court emphasized that the New Jersey Legislature "made it clear . . . that the First Amendment does not protect student speech that amounts to harassment, intimidation or bullying [(HIB)] of other students," and upheld the suspensions because the online out-of-school speech constituted a HIB. Ibid. at 496. Also, [i]f a school can point to a well-founded expectation of disruption . . . the restriction may pass constitutional muster." Id. at 489 (citing Saxe v. State Coll. Area Sch. Dist., 240 F.3d 200, 212 (3d Cir. 2001)).

Moreover, a school district's HIB policy must prohibit such conduct that "occurs off school grounds, in cases in which a school employee is made aware of such actions." N.J.S.A. 18A:37-15.3; See also N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.5 (under the code of student conduct, school boards have the authority to impose discipline for a student's conduct away from school grounds).

Petitioner relies upon B.L. v. Mahanoy Area Sch. Dist., 964 F.3d 170, 175 (3d Cir. 2020)[1], where the court concluded that an off-campus post stating "Fuck school fuck softball fuck cheer fuck everything" is protected by the First Amendment and that Tinker does not apply to off-campus student speech. Id. at 186. Yet, the court noted other circuits hold differently and reserved on "the First Amendment implications of off-campus speech that threatens violence or harasses others." Id. 186-88. Indeed, B.L. did not overturn Dunkley and did not involve bullying or harassment. The concurring opinion noted that the holding represented the first Circuit Court to determine that Tinker did not apply categorically to off-campus student speech. Id. at 196. Moreover, the holding did not guide how its new rule applies, or what speech would constitute "harassment" in the social media context. Id. at 195.

Likelihood of prevailing on the merits

In an appeal of a HIB or disciplinary finding, the burden of proof rests with the petitioner. Emergent relief requires petitioner to demonstrate a likelihood of prevailing on the merits of the underlying claim, and when significant factual issues exist, petitioner cannot.

Here, there are factual issues as to whether the district afforded petitioner proper due process concerning the initial seven-day suspension and the hearing resulting in D.B.'s dis-enrollment from McNair. Petitioner claims inappropriate notice while the Board asserts it complied with all notice requirements.

[1] On August 28, 2020, the U.S. Supreme Court received a petition for certiorari (No.20-255).

Further, petitioner asserts that D.B.'s conduct did not disrupt the school's operations and cannot be considered a HIB. Yet, the Board maintains it did, and that the publicity surrounding the incident was detrimental to school operations.

Balancing of the Equities

The Board asserts its interest is significant and that it must address the climate and culture at McNair that made students, such as D.B., feel comfortable posting demeaning racial materials on social media.

Further, the Board must protect the emotional well-being of the McNair student body.

Petitioner must demonstrate that D.B. will suffer more significant harm than the Board if this tribunal does not grant D.B. the requested relief. D.B. admitted to posting the Tik Tok video in violation of the School Code of Conduct and is receiving educational services. Under the circumstances, the Board's interests outweigh D.B.'s interest in retaining the privilege of attending McNair.

Based on the above discussion, I CONCLUDE that petitioner has failed to establish the existence of irreparable harm, that petitioner is likely to prevail on the merits, or that the equites favor petitioner. Athough I CONCLUDE that petitioner's request for emergent relief may, in part, rely upon law that is settled, petitioner does not satisfy the remaining requirements under N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6 and must be DENIED.

ORDER

Therefore, I ORDER that petitioner's request for emergency relief be and is hereby DENIED.

This order on application for emergency relief may be adopted, modified or rejected by the Commissioner of Education, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The final decision shall be issued without undue delay, but no later than forty-five (45) days following the entry of this order. If the Commissioner of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this order within forty-five days, this recommended order shall become a final decision on the issue of emergent relief in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Agency Dkt. No. 138-6/20

New Jersey Commissioner of Education

Decision

In the Matter of the Suspension of the Teaching Certificates of Ammie Dumalagan, Board of Education of the Township of Wayne, Passaic County.

For petitioner, John G. Geppert, Jr., Esq.

No appearance by or on behalf of respondent

This matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education on June 25, 2020, by way of an Order to Show Cause served by petitioner (Wayne Township Board of Education) upon respondent (Ammie Dumalagan), requiring respondent to show cause why an order should not be entered suspending her teaching certificate pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:26-10 for resigning without giving the notice required by her teaching contract and N.J.S.A. 18A:28-8 for resigning without giving the 60-day notice required for tenured employees. By notice dated June 29, 2020, the Office of Controversies and Disputes (Office) sent an e-mail acknowledging proof that the Order to Show Cause had been served upon respondent and directed respondent to answer within 20 days.

No answer having yet been received, on August 20, 2020, the Office sent respondent a second notice, via e-mail and certified mail, directing that she file an answer within ten days. The notice advised that, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.5(e), failure to answer would cause each allegation in petitioner's papers to be deemed admitted and might result in summary decision by the Commissioner. The certified mail tracking indicates that the notice sent by certified mail was delivered on August 27, 2020 and left with an individual. No answer to the Order to Show Cause had been filed as of this date.

The certification and supporting exhibits submitted by petitioner in this matter indicate that: the respondent has been employed by petitioner as a full-time teaching staff member since the 2015-16 school year, and subsequently acquired tenure; the respondent entered into a contract for the 2018-19 school year that required a 60-day notice of resignation; on or about September 3, 2019, the respondent provided notice of her resignation, effective September 13, 2019, giving only a 10-day notice. The respondent has not denied these allegations; therefore, the Commissioner deems such allegations to be admitted pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.5(e) and further deems them sufficient to justify suspension of respondent's teaching certification pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:26-10 and N.J.S.A. 18A:28-8.

Accordingly, summary decision is hereby granted to petitioner, and respondent's teaching certification is suspended for a period of one year from the filing date of this decision, a copy of which shall be forwarded to the State Board of Examiners for implementation of the suspension.

IT IS SO ORDERED. [1]

Re: In the Matter of Maureen Sherlock, Board of Education of the Village of Loch Arbour, Monmouth County, Agency Dkt. No. 118-5/20, SEC Dkt. No. T28-19, Commissioner's Decision No. 139-20

Dear Counsel:

I have reviewed the materials filed in connection with respondent Maureen Sherlock's Motion for Reconsideration of the Commissioner's decision, dated June 30, 2020, removing respondent from her position as a school official for violating the School Ethics Act by failing to timely complete board member training in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33 and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1.

Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.15(b)2, a motion for reconsideration shall be considered based upon the following:

i. claim(s) of mistake, provided, however, that disagreement with the outcome of a decision, or with the analysis upon which it is based, shall not constitute "mistake" for purposes of this section;
ii. newly discovered evidence likely to alter the outcome of a matter, where such evidence could not have been previously discovered by due diligence;
iii. newly ascertained misrepresentation or other misconduct of an adverse party, where such misrepresentation could not have been previously known; or
iv. reversal of a prior judgment on which the present matter is based.

Upon review and consideration of the submissions, I have determined to grant respondent's request for reconsideration of the Commissioner's decision given the unique circumstances present in New Jersey during the public health emergency caused by the COVID-19 pandemic. For the same reason, while respondent's motion for reconsideration was filed out of time,[1] I will exercise my discretion to relax the rules, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.16.

In her papers, petitioner describes the technical difficulty she experienced while attempting to complete the board member training. She alleges that she completed the training on March 23, 2020 – after the December 31, 2019 deadline but prior to the issuance of the Order to Show Cause by the School Ethics Commission (SEC) – but due to a glitch in the system, she could not submit her "knowledge check." She further contends that she reached out several times to the New Jersey School Boards Association to troubleshoot, but they were unable to resolve the problem. Petitioner argues that a penalty of removal is unwarranted due to her good faith attempts to complete the training.

While I acknowledge that this information could have been submitted as exceptions, I am sympathetic to the challenges respondent experienced during the COVID-19 public health emergency, including navigating telecommuting, remote learning, and new health and safety mandates. Given the unprecedented circumstances present in the State, I will reconsider my decision with respondent's arguments in mind. The SEC will have five business days from receipt of this letter to file a response to respondent's arguments. If respondent has completed the training, she should submit proof to the SEC and the Office of Controversies and Disputes.

Accordingly, the Motion for Reconsideration is hereby granted, and an amended final decision will be issued.

Sincerely,

Kevin Dehmer

Re: Barbara Holstein v. Tacia Raftopoulos-Johnson, Montague Board of Education, Sussex County and In the Matter of Tacia-Raftopoulos-Johnson, Montague Board of Education, Sussex County, Commissioner Appeal Dkt. No. 2-3/20A.

Dear Parties:

I have reviewed the materials filed in connection with appellant[1] Tacia Raftopoulos-Johnson's Motion to Settle the Record. Following the School Ethics Commission's (SEC) filing of an amended Statement of Items Comprising the Record (SICR) on May 20, 2020, there are three items which appellant seeks to have added to the record.

First, appellant seeks the inclusion of two emails dated August 10, 2015, sent to and/or from various employees of the Department of Education (DOE). The SEC's opposition to appellant's motion does not address the first email, sent by Scott Ripley, Superintendent of High Point Regional High School, to DOE employee Rosalie Lamonte. A review of the file demonstrates that this email was entered into evidence during the OAL proceedings as exhibit R-17. The SICR does not itemize the documents entered into evidence during the OAL proceedings, but it does refer to them generally. Therefore, it is unnecessary for the Commissioner to add the email from Mr. Ripley to Ms. Lamonte to the record, as it is already part of the record.

[1] At the time of filing of certain documents referred to in this decision, Tacia Raftopolous-Johnson would be more appropriately referred to as the respondent to the SEC complaints. However, for ease of understanding, she will be referred to herein solely as the appellant.

The SEC opposes the inclusion of the second August 10, 2015 email, from Ms. Lamonte to other DOE employees, arguing that it was neither attached to any filing in the case nor entered into evidence at the OAL. Appellant did not respond to this argument in her reply brief. A review of the file supports the SEC's argument. While the email may have been maintained somewhere in the DOE, there is no evidence that it was "on file with" the SEC as part of the docketed matters. Accordingly, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:4-2.5(a), it is not part of the record on appeal and appellant's motion is denied as to this email.

Finally, appellant seeks the inclusion of "[a]ny records, such as minutes or notes, related to the subcommittee formed by Robert Bender to 'settle the procedural issues raised" by appellant's counsel, as described in a letter from then-Acting Executive Director of the SEC, Joanne Restivo, dated June 2, 2016. Those "procedural issues" relate to an alleged failure by the SEC to provided appellant with a copy of the complaint, as well as the dating of the complaint and amended complaint, in docket number C08-16.

In opposition, the SEC argues that these documents were not part of the record in the proceedings at the OAL, and therefore they should not be considered part of the record. However, the procedural issues were the subject of a motion to dismiss filed by appellant and decided by the SEC prior to the transmittal of the complaint to the OAL. Therefore, documents related to those issues are "on file with" the SEC even if they were not part of the OAL proceedings.

The SEC also argues that the documents are protected by the work product and deliberative process privileges. The Commissioner has conducted an in camera review of the subcommittee document in order to assess whether these privileges apply. Those documents consist of:

> 1) Memorandum from Jesse Landon, Legal Specialist, School Ethics Office, to Ellen Polaner, Commissioner, School Ethics Commission, dated June 3, 2016, enclosing a statement of items outlining the filings in Complaint C08-16 and copies of the listed items.
> 2) Memorandum from Jesse Landon, Legal Specialist, School Ethics Office, to Dennis Roberts, Commissioner, School Ethics Commission, dated June 14, 2016, enclosing a statement of items outlining the filings in Complaint C08-16 and copies of the listed items.[2]

The Commissioner finds the SEC's argument that these documents are privileged to be unpersuasive. The SEC first argues that the documents are protected by the work product doctrine. The work product doctrine, which is explained in detail in the portion of the New Jersey Rules of Court related to discovery, is intended to "protect against disclosure of the mental impressions, conclusions, opinions, or legal theories of an attorney or other representative of a party" concerning litigation or anticipated litigation. N.J. Ct. R. 4:10-2(c). A review of the documents related to the subcommittee demonstrates that they do not contain any impressions,

[2] The file contains a single copy of each of the enclosed items. Based on the memoranda, it appears that identical documents were sent to both Commissioners (with the exception of Items #24 and #25, which were filed after the date of the memorandum to Commissioner Polaner and were only sent to Commissioner Roberts).

conclusions, opinions, or legal theories, and therefore they cannot be considered to be work product.

The memoranda are largely procedural, asking the Commissioners to review the material and report back to the SEC, and describing the documents. The only arguably privileged information in the memoranda is an instruction regarding the scope of the review, indicating that the review should be limited to the procedures followed by the School Ethics office, and not the merits of the case. However, that information has already been disclosed by the SEC in its decision on the motion to dismiss. The SEC can have no interest in withholding information that has already been included in a public decision.

The statements of filings in the case consists of dates and descriptions of documents. The documents themselves are primarily copies of filings in the case, which cannot be privileged. The small number of documents that are not filings are message slips containing only factual information about contact between the School Ethics office and the parties. None of these documents include impressions, conclusions, opinions, or legal theories that would qualify them as work product.

Moreover, the work product privilege may be pierced "upon a showing that the party seeking discovery has substantial need of the materials" and is unable to obtain them by other means. N.J. Ct. R. 4:10-2(c). Appellant argues that the documents are needed because she has no knowledge of what the subcommittee reviewed, and that knowledge is critical to her ability to advance her jurisdictional arguments related to the complaint. It is clear to the Commissioner that there is no way for appellant to determine what the subcommittee reviewed other than through the inclusion of these documents in the record, and that the documents are relevant to appellant's arguments regarding alleged procedural issues in her case.

The SEC next argues that the documents would be exempt from release under the Open Public Records Act (OPRA) based on the deliberative process privilege. As the documents are not requested pursuant to OPRA, this argument is unavailing. Moreover, the deliberative process privilege protects records that contain "opinions, recommendations, or advice about agency policies." Ciesla v. N.J. Dep't of Health & Senior Svcs., 429 N.J. Super. 127, 138 (App. Div. 2012). The records at issue do not contain any such content, as described above.

The SEC is ordered to file a revised SICR that includes the items pertaining to the subcommittee's review, and to provide copies of the records to counsel for appellant, within two weeks from the date of this letter.

Sincerely,

Kevin Dehmer
Interim Commissioner of Education

Order on Emergent Relief

Michael Conway,

Petitioner,

v.

New Jersey State Department of Education,
State Board of Examiners,

Respondent.

The record of this emergent matter and the recommended Order of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) have been reviewed. Upon such review, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that petitioner has failed to demonstrate entitlement to emergent relief pursuant to the standards enunciated in Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982), and codified at N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6.

Accordingly, the recommended Order of the OAL, denying petitioner's application for emergent relief, is adopted. This case shall continue at the OAL with such proceedings as the parties and the ALJ deem necessary to bring it to closure.

BEFORE SARAH H. SURGENT, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner Michael Conway ("Conway") filed this action seeking emergent relief from respondent New Jersey State Department of Education, State Board of Examiners' ("Board") declination to issue school teacher and principal certificates based upon Conway's alleged conduct unbecoming a teacher. Conway seeks to reverse that decision, or "to maintain the status quo," until a full plenary hearing before the OAL.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On August 28, 2020, the Department of Education, Office of Controversies and Disputes, transmitted this case to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") for hearing as a contested case and resolution of Conway's motion for emergent relief.

On September 4, 2020, a telephonic status conference with the parties was conducted, and a briefing schedule was set, with an emergent hearing to be held on September 9, 2020. Immediately after the status conference, both parties requested via email an adjournment of the hearing, which was then rescheduled to September 24, 2020. On September 21, 2020, the Board electronically submitted its brief and exhibits to this tribunal.[1] (Rb; R-1 through R-4). On September 23, 2020, Conway electronically submitted his brief, certification, and exhibits via counsel, (Pb; P-1 through P-3), in addition to an exhibit previously submitted by Conway himself on September 3, 2020, (P-4). On September 24, 2020, the parties' oral arguments on the motion were heard remotely via a video-teleconference due to the current Coronavirus pandemic, and the record closed.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

Conway was a teacher for approximately twenty-four years in Arizona, before recently relocating to New Jersey, to become a teacher at the Beloved Charter School in Jersey City. (Rb at 6; P-1 at 2). He is presently employed there, and is said to be doing very well, (Rb at 6-8), teaching eighth-grade students remotely via computerized virtual means, due to the current pandemic. Also due to the pandemic, while still residing in Arizona, Conway was instructed by the Board to submit his New Jersey teaching and principal certificate applications electronically. (P-1 at 2; R-3 at 2). In his submissions to [1] Without any discussion or leave from this tribunal, the Board also moved for summary decision in its papers, (Rb at 13-17), which Conway opposed, citing "genuine issues of material fact," (Pb at 9-11). This tribunal advised the parties on the record that it declined to entertain that motion, which was filed in contravention of N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(a).

the Board, Conway included a requisite criminal/offense information form dated May 12, 2020, which he admittedly photographed and emailed, and which plainly depicts his legs and lap, clothed only in underwear, and containing the outline of his genitalia. (P-1 at 2-3; P-4; R-1).

By letter dated August 11, 2020, the Board denied Conway's application, stating, in relevant part:

> The photograph of the criminal history information form you submitted to the Board via email contained inappropriate content. Specifically, the image contained male anatomy in underwear. Upon receipt of the image, the Board sent an email permitting you to provide an explanation. Your response to the request was that you were "sorry the emailed version has inappropriate content." There was no explanation for the content or how the image was sent with the content.
>
> Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:9B-4.2, "Notwithstanding that a candidate may meet all requirements for certification, the Board of Examiners may refuse to issue a certificate to that candidate if, based on the record before it, the Board of Examiners determines that, for reasons set forth in N.J.A.C. 6A:9B-4.5, the candidate is not suitable for employment as a teaching staff member in the public schools." One of the reasons stated in N.J.A.C. 6A:9B-4.5 for the revocation of a teaching certificate, or, in this case, the refusal to issue one, is "conduct unbecoming a teacher."
>
> In reviewing your application, the Board considered, among other factors, your lack of judgment and/or carelessness in submitting an image with such content. Such poor judgment and/or carelessness is conduct unbecoming an educator. Accordingly, the Board finds that the level and nature of your conduct provide sufficient reason to block your application for certification. Thus, at its July 30, 2020 meeting the Board of Examiners voted to block your application for a Teacher of Social Studies and Principal certificate.

Conway filed a pro se petition of appeal seeking emergent relief dated August 26, 2020, with the Commissioner of Education, then retained private counsel, who represented that she recently filed a petition with the Commissioner of Education to overturn the Board's decision. He now maintains that including his underclothed lap in the photographs of his two-page criminal history form was unintentional, that he is near-sighted, that he is in his late fifties, and that he is not technologically savvy. (P-1 at 2-4; P-2). He maintains that if his teaching certificate is not granted, he will be immediately fired from his current teaching position, and that "he will be unemployable as a teacher in any district in the United States based on his refusal of certification," because every teaching job application will necessarily ask whether he has ever been denied a teaching certification in any state. (Pb at 1, 5). He also notes that teaching is his second career, one that he lives for and yearns to continue, and that he will be unable to pay his bills if he cannot teach. (P-1 at 1-2).

The Board maintains that, assuming arguendo Conway's conduct was inadvertent, it still demonstrates conduct unbecoming a teacher through Conway's "severe lack of judgment and carelessness" outside of a classroom, which is a valid ground for finding conduct unbecoming a teacher. (Rb at 11). The Board also notes that Conway may be able to teach in a private school without a teacher's certification, and, if not, may be able to find another occupation, such as his first career, or otherwise. (Rb at 7-8).

LEGAL ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSION

The Board of Examiners is entrusted with the issuance and revocation of certificates to teach pupils in public schools. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-38. N.J.A.C. 6A:9B-4.1 governs the Board's authority to refuse to issue certificates, and provides:

> Notwithstanding that a candidate may meet all requirements for certification, the Board of Examiners may refuse to issue a certificate to the candidate if it determines based on the record before it that the candidate is not suitable for employment as a teaching staff member in the public schools for reasons set forth in N.J.A.C. 6A:9B-4.4.
> [N.J.A.C. 6A:9B-4.1.]

Thus, the Board may refuse to issue an applicant's teaching certificate for "conduct unbecoming a teacher." N.J.A.C. 6A:9B-4.4.

Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:4-4.1:

> (a) In determining appeals from decisions of the State Board of Examiners . . . , the Commissioner shall ascertain whether the decision is supported by sufficient credible evidence in the record and shall not disturb the decision unless the appellant has demonstrated the State Board of Examiners . . . acted in a manner that was arbitrary, capricious, or contrary to law.
>
> (b) In determining motions for stay or emergency relief, the Commissioner shall apply the following standards, pursuant to Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982):
>
> 1. The moving party will suffer irreparable harm if the requested relief is not granted;
>
> 2. The legal right underlying the moving party's claim is settled;
>
> 3. The moving party has a likelihood of prevailing on the merits of the underlying claim; and
>
> 4. When the equities and interests of the parties are balanced, the moving party will suffer greater harm than the respondent will suffer if the requested relief is not granted.
> [N.J.A.C. 6A:4-4.1.]

In order to prevail on an emergent appeal from the Board's decision, the moving party must demonstrate each of the above four elements "clearly and convincingly." Waste Mgmt. of N.J., Inc. v. Union Cty. Utils. Auth., 399 N.J. Super. 508, 520 (App. Div. 2008). Although not argued by Conway, his request to "maintain the status quo" (Pb at 6, 9), until a plenary hearing means that this tribunal may necessarily "place less emphasis on a particular Crowe factor if another greatly requires the issuance of the remedy." Ibid. Alternatively, "in some cases, such as when the public interest is greatly affected, a court may withhold relief despite a substantial showing of irreparable injury to the applicant." Ibid.

Irreparable Harm

Irreparable harm is a "substantial injury to a material degree coupled with the inadequacy of money damages." Judice's Sunshine Pontiac v. General Motors Corp., 418 F. Supp. 1212, 1218 (D.N.J. 1976). An injunctive relief award requires a "clear showing of irreparable injury" or a "presently existing actual threat." Cont'l Grp. v. Amoco Chems. Corp., 614 F.2d 351, 359 (D.N.J. 1980) (internal quotation marks and citations omitted). "[M]ore than a risk of irreparable harm must be demonstrated." Ibid. The irreparable harm standard contemplates that the harm be both substantial and immediate. Subcarrier Communications v. Day, 229 N.J. Super. 634, 638 (App. Div. 1977). In addition, "[i]n order to demonstrate irreparable harm the plaintiff must demonstrate potential harm which cannot be redressed by a legal or an equitable remedy following a trial." Waterfront Comm'n of New York Harbor v. Philip Murphy, in his official capacity as Governor of New Jersey, et al., 2018 AMC 2222, 2242 (D.N.J. June 1, 2018).

Here, Conway does not have a protected right to a New Jersey teaching certificate. The mere expectation of obtaining a professional license is not a property interest in that license—that would only come into existence once the license had been obtained. See Graham v. N.J. Real Estate Comm'n, 217 N.J. Super. 130, 136 (1987). Moreover, Conway's assertion that he will be fired immediately if his application for emergent relief is not granted, as well as his assertion that "he will be unemployable as a teacher in any district in the United States based on his refusal of certification," are merely speculative, and do not demonstrate immediate irreparable harm. He is currently teaching at the charter school without a certificate, and has indicated that the school's administrators are quite pleased with his performance, and have kept him in their employ, pending the outcome of this motion.

As this tribunal is only ruling on whether emergent relief should be granted at this juncture, rather than proceeding to a full plenary hearing on the merits in due course, Conway can explain to the charter school administrators that this decision is not a ruling on the merits of whether the Board's decision should ultimately be upheld or overturned. Alternatively, if the charter school should refuse to continue Conway's employ as a result of a denial of emergent relief, Conway may find employment elsewhere, whether that be in a private school, his first occupation, or another field. Conway's speculation that he will be immediately fired and will not be able to pay his bills could be adequately addressed by monetary damages, and therefore does not rise to the level of imminent irreparable harm.

Right to the Underlying Claim Must be Settled

Conway must also establish clearly and convincingly that the legal right underlying his claim is settled. He has not done so. As noted above, he has no established legal property right to professional certificates that were never issued, and his appeal from the Board's decision in due course is still pending.

Likelihood of Prevailing on the Merits

Emergent relief requires Conway to demonstrate a likelihood of prevailing on the merits of the underlying claim. Although the merits of this case have not yet been reached, in light of the Board's broad discretion in determining what constitutes conduct unbecoming a teacher, N.J.A.C. 6A:9B-4.1, N.J.A.C. 6A:9B-4.4, and the Commissioner's limited ability to overturn the Board's decision, N.J.A.C. 6A:4-4.1, Conway has not demonstrated "clearly and convincingly" that there is a likelihood of prevailing on the merits of his underlying claim that teaching and principal certificates should have been issued by the Board.

Balancing of the Equities

In balancing of the equities and interests of the parties, Conway must clearly and convincingly demonstrate that he will "suffer greater harm than the respondent will suffer if the requested relief is not granted." N.J.A.C. 6A:4-4.1(b)4. He has not done so. Although he speculates that he will "lose his teaching job, his home, his livelihood," and that "[t]he School District and its students will lose a teacher already performing well under exceedingly difficult circumstances," (Pb at 8), the Board rightly points out that it is tasked with the responsibility of ensuring that public schools are staffed only by teachers and administrators who meet its standards for certification, in the public interest of protecting school students from potentially inappropriate or unqualified individuals, (Rb at 13).

In this case, the public interest in protecting public school students from interactions with a potentially inappropriate teaching or principal candidate vastly outweighs Conway's speculative harm. That is particularly so where, as here, Conway admittedly inadvertently conveyed inappropriate electronic images to the Board, which he attributes to his age, eyesight, and unfamiliarity with technology, and he is now teaching an eighth-grade class remotely, via video-telephonic means, where another inadvertent mistake could have grave social and psychological consequences for the pupils in his virtual classroom.

Based on the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that Conway has failed to clearly and convincingly establish any of the Crowe factors required by N.J.A.C. 6A:4-4.1(b) to obtain emergent relief, and I therefore CONCLUDE that his motion must be DENIED.

ORDER

I, therefore, ORDER that Conway's motion for emergent relief be and is hereby DENIED.

This order on application for emergent relief may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The final decision shall be issued without undue delay, but no later than forty-five (45) days following the entry of this order. If the Commissioner of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this order within forty-five days, this recommended order shall become a final decision on the issue of emergent relief in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Synopsis

Pro se petitioner challenged the Board's visitor identification policy, promotion policy, and suspension policy. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law and filed on December 9, 2019. The respondent Board subsequently filed a motion for summary decision, contending that the within petition is time-barred under the 90-day rule, N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.2(i) and should be dismissed; there was no response to the motion from the petitioner.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: there is no genuine issue as to any material fact here, and the case is ripe for summary decision; under N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(i), a petitioner shall file a petition no later than the 90th day from the date of receipt of the notice of a final order, ruling, or other action by the district board of education, individual party, or agency that is the subject of the case; and it is undisputed that petitioner was aware of the Board's promotion, visitor identification and suspension policies well in excess of ninety days prior to the filing of the instant matter. Accordingly, the ALJ granted the Board's motion for summary decision and dismissed the petition with prejudice.

Upon an independent review of the record of this matter and the ALJ's recommended decision, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ's determinations and adopted the Initial Decision of the OAL as the final decision in this case. The petition was dismissed with prejudice.

Decision

C.B., on behalf of minor child, J.B,

Petitioner,

v.

Board of Education of the City of Newark, Essex County,

Respondent.

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed, as have the exceptions filed by petitioner pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4, and the Board's reply thereto.

Petitioner challenges the Board's visitor identification policy, promotion policy, and suspension policy. The Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) found that the petition was filed outside of the 90-day filing deadline, set forth in N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(i), because petitioner was aware of the relevant Board policies well in excess of 90 days before filing the instant matter. Accordingly, the ALJ dismissed the petition.[1]

Upon review, the Commissioner agrees with the ALJ that this matter is out of time. Petitioner's dispute with the visitor identification policy stems from an incident in November 2018, in which the school security guard asked for petitioner's identification.

[1] Petitioner did not file a response to the Board's motion for summary decision, so the facts set forth in the Board's motion were deemed to be undisputed.

Regarding the promotion policy, petitioner had previously challenged the Board's decision not to promote her son to the eighth grade for the 2017-18 school year in petitions filed in July 2018 and February 2019, which were dismissed as untimely. C.B., on behalf of minor child, J.B. v. Board of Education of the City of Newark, Essex County, Commissioner's Decision No. 69-20, dated February 20, 2020. Finally, with respect to the suspension policy, petitioner's son had been suspended multiple times in December 2018. As such, the petition, which was received on November 4, 2019, was filed well outside of the 90-day limitations period. In her exceptions, petitioner argues that she was entitled to a hearing on the merits. The Commissioner notes that petitioner did not oppose the motion for summary decision and finds that this matter was appropriately dismissed as it was filed out of time.

Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter and the petition is hereby dismissed with prejudice.

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner challenged the respondent board of education's visitor identification policy, promotion policy and suspension policy. The contested matter was transferred to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), where it was filed on December 9, 2019.

A prehearing conference was held on January 22, 2020, and a prehearing Order was entered by the undersigned on the same date.

Respondent filed a motion for summary decision, dated July 24, 2020, and filed July 27, 2020 with the OAL. Petitioner filed no response thereto. The time within which to file a response has expired. Respondent then filed a letter brief, dated August 28, 2020, and filed September 1, 2020 with the OAL.

The record closed on September 1, 2020.

FACTUAL BACKGROUND

Petitioner failed to respond to respondent's motion for summary decision. Accordingly, the facts set forth in respondent's brief in support of the motion are adopted herein as undisputed, as follows:

Petitioner, C.B., is the parent of J.B., a student who attended Lincoln School during the 2016-2017 school year.

Petitioner, in the instant petition, challenges the Board's suspension, promotion and ID policies.

Petitioner previously filed two prior petitions of appeal with the Department of Education (DOE) on or about July 19, 2018 (OAL Dkt. No. EDU 14526-18, Agency Ref. No. 251-10/18, which was eventually withdrawn, and a second petition on February 20, 2019 (OAL Dkt. No. EDU 04507-19, Agency Ref. No. 315-12/18) wherein petitioner essentially repeated the allegations from the first petition: that J.B. was wrongfully retained in the seventh grade and was not promoted for the 2017-2018 school year. The matter was then forwarded to the OAL.

A dispositive motion was filed by respondent regarding the second petition to dismiss it for being filed beyond the ninety day time limit. The ALJ granted the motion finding that petitioner knew of the retention on September 12, 2017, even counting from the time the first petition was filed, petitioner was required to file her petition no later than December 11, 2017. Petitioner failed to timely file and was therefore out of time to do so. The ALJ went on to confirm the second petition was filed seven months after the ninety day time limit and was time barred pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(i), and that the remainder of the petition failed to state a cause of action. On February 20, 2020, the Commissioner of Education adopted the ALJ's Initial Decision and dismissed the second petition for being out of time.

During the pendency of the second petition petitioner filed a third petition, the instant matter, on November 4, 2019, broadly challenging respondent's retention and promotion policy for eighth grade students as well as respondent's visitor ID policy. Petitioner also included a reference to J.B.'s suspension from May 7, 2017. In the petition petitioner notes that J.B. was suspended "multiple times" in December 2018.

Respondent served interrogatories upon petitioner in the instant matter wherein petitioner confirmed she was aware of the point system underlying respondent's promotion and retention policy from September 2016 and February 2017, respectively. Petitioner also knew of the ID policy in November 2018.

LEGAL ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSION

A motion for summary decision may be granted if the papers and discovery presented, as well as any affidavits which may have been filed with the application, show that there is no genuine issue of material fact and the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law. N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b). If the motion is sufficiently supported, the non-moving party must demonstrate by affidavit that there is a genuine issue of fact which can only be determined in an evidentiary proceeding, in order to prevail in such an application. Ibid. These provisions mirror the summary judgment language of R. 4:46-2(c) of the New Jersey Court Rules.

> The motion judge must "consider whether the competent evidential materials presented, when viewed in the light most favorable to the non-moving party . . . , are sufficient to permit a rational fact finder to resolve the alleged > disputed issue in favor of the non-moving party." Brill v. Guardian Life Ins. Co. of Am., 142 N.J. 520, 523 (1995). And even if the non-moving party comes forward with some evidence, this forum must grant summary decision if the evidence is "so one-sided that [the moving party] must prevail as a matter of law." Id. at 536 (citation omitted).

The are no disputed facts in the instant matter, petitioner having filed no response, or a request for an extension to file a response. See N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5. Accordingly, the matter is ripe for summary decision.

N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(i) states:

> The petitioner shall file a petition no later than the 90th day from the date of receipt of the notice of a final order, ruling, or other action by the district board of education, individual party, or agency, that is the subject of the requested contested case hearing. This rule shall not apply in instances where a specific statute, regulation, or court order provides for a period of limitation shorter than 90 days for the filing of a particular type of appeal.

New Jersey courts have strictly construed the ninety day requirement. See Riely v. Board of Education of Hunterdon Central Regional High School District, 173 N.J. Super. 109 (App. Div. 1980).

It is undisputed herein that petitioner was aware of the promotion, ID and suspension policies of respondent well in excess of ninety days prior to the filing of the instant matter.

Based upon the foregoing I CONCLUDE that Respondent's motion for summary decision be GRANTED; and that the petition should be DISMISSED with prejudice.

ORDER

It is hereby ORDERED that Respondent's motion for summary decision is GRANTED; and,

It is further ORDERED, that Petitioner's petition is dismissed with prejudice; and,

It is further ORDERED that the hearing date of September 23, 2020 is canceled.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

Middle Township Board of Education, Cape May County, whose address is 216 South Main Street, Cape May Court House, New Jersey 08210, and its successors, assignees, officers, employees, agents and representatives (collectively "Middle") and Lower Township Board of Education, whose address is 905 Seashore Road, Cape May, New Jersey, 08204, and its successors, assignees, officers, employees, agents and representatives (collectively "Lower") have voluntarily resolved all disputed matters in controversy between them and enter into the following Settlement Agreement and General Release ("Settlement") in full and complete settlement of all outstanding issues as detailed below:

WHEREAS, Middle and Lower (together, the "Parties") are public school districts established under the laws of the State of New Jersey with the responsibility of providing a thorough and efficient public education to students residing within their respective townships;

BACK-UP P. 2

WHEREAS, a dispute arose between the Parties as to the district of residence of the minor child D.R. and the attendant financial responsibility for said child's public education (the "Subject Dispute"); and

WHEREAS, the Parties agree that the evidence exchanged in the above-captioned matter establishes that D.R.'s residency in Middle Township within the meaning of N.J.S.A. § 18A:7B-12 and N.J.A.C. § 6A:17-2.2. began on or about March 11, 2019: and

WHEREAS, the Parties do hereby intend and seek to resolve all outstanding issues relating to the apportionment of financial responsibility for D.R.'s education, and do so in a confidential manner in furtherance of the Parties' respective interests, and

WHEREAS, the Parties are entering into this Settlement, by way of compromise and accord, for the purposes of amicably resolving this matter and to avoid the unnecessary incurrence of any additional and unnecessary legal expenses by the Parties; and

WHEREAS, this Settlement is being entered into by the Parties without any admission of liability or wrongdoing, and shall not be considered as evidence of liability on, or defenses to, claims by any of the Parties against another;

NOW THEREFORE, in consideration of the foregoing and of the mutual promises and covenants contained herein and other good and valuable consideration, the receipt and sufficiency of which is hereby acknowledged by the Parties, the Parties mutualy agree as follows:

1. Payment. In full and complete settlement of this matter, Lower shall remit payment in the amount of Ten-Thousand Dollars ($10,000.00) to the "Middle Township Board of Education" following (1) receipt of a completed W-9 form from Middle, and (2) approval and execution of this Settlement by both Parties during their next respective regularly scheduled meetings following initial approval of this Settlement by the Parties' respective counsel. Lower will use its best efforts to remit the aforementioned payment to Middle within thirty (30) days of satisfaction of the above conditions.

2. No Admission of Liability. The Parties agree and understand that this Settlement does not constitute an admission of liability.

3. Taxes. Lower makes no representation regarding the tax treatment of the payment made under this Settlement. Middle shall have sole responsibility for any tax consequences associated with the payments made under this Settlement.

4. Release of Claims, Indemnification, and Hold Harmless. In consideration of the conditions and terms contained herein, Middle hereby completely releases and forever discharges Lower, and its respective officers, members, employees, and agents, as well as its successors and assigns, of and from any and all manner of actions and causes of actions, suits, debts, claims, and demands, whatsoever, in law or in equity, which it ever had, now has, or hereafter may have in connection with the Subject Dispute, whether known or unknown, including, without limitation, the following:

- All claims arising under the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act ("IDEA"), 20 U.S.C. §§ 1400 to 1482.
- All claims arising under the New Jersey education statues, Title 18A and the New Jersey education regulations, Title 6A.
- All claims that were or could have been raised in the administrative action bearing OAL Docket No. EDU 06771-2019S and Agency Docket No. 53-3/19.

However, nothing contained in this section is intended, nor shall be construed, to: (i) waive or release any claim arising following execution of this Settlement; or (ii) limit Middle's right to enforce the terms of this Settlement.

5. Successors and Assigns. This Settlement shall bind and inure to the benefit of each Party, its officers, attorneys, agents, insureds, servants, representatives, employees, subsidiaries, affiliates, partners, executors, administrators, managers, predecessors-in-interest, successors-in-interest, and assigns, separately and collectively.

6. Warranties. The parties acknowledge, represent, warrant, affirm and confirm the following:

a. Each party has read and understands the effect and scope of this Settlement, has relied and is relying solely upon either his/her/its own judgment, belief, and knowledge or upon the advice of his/her/its independent legal counsel, or both, as to the nature, extent, effect and consequences relating thereto.

b. This Settlement is being made without reliance upon any statement or representation by any other Party hereto, except those expressly set forth herein.

c. No promise, inducement, or settlement not herein expressed has been made to any Party hereto.

d. Each individual signing this Settlement on behalf of a Party has the right, power, and authority to sign and enter into this Settlement on behalf of that Party.

e. The Parties each execute and deliver this Settlement as a free and voluntary act, without any duress, coercion, or undue influence exerted by or on behalf of any other party.

f. This Settlement is a valid, binding, and enforceable Settlement and does not violate any law, rule, or regulation, or any contract or Settlement to which any individual or entity on whose behalf this Settlement is executed is a party.

7. Warranty Against Prior Assignment. Each Party represents and warrants that it is the exclusive owner of the rights, claims, and causes of action herein released, and that as of the effective date of this Settlement, it is free of any pledges, charges, equities, claims, covenants, liens, or encumbrances in favor of any other person, firm, or institution, and it has not heretofore assigned or transferred or purported to assign or transfer to any other person or entity any obligations, rights, claims, or causes of action asserted by any person which, if established, would be a breach of the above warranties and representations and any and all losses, expenses, or liabilities arising directly or indirectly out of the breach of any of the foregoing representations or warranties. If any action is brought which, if established, would be a breach of any of the above warranties or representations, the Party making the warranty or representation shall appear in and defend the action on behalf of the affected beneficiary or beneficiaries of the warranty or representation, at the maker's own sole cost and expense.

8. Interpretation of Settlement. This Settlement shall not be construed against any party on the basis that he/she/it or his/her/its attorney drafted it, nor shall it constitute a precedent in any matters.

9. Entire Agreement / Amendment. This Settlement constitutes the entire Settlement between the Parties with respect to its subject matter and there are no representations, warranties, or Settlements between the Parties not expressed herein. This Settlement supersedes and replaces all prior understandings and Settlements between the Parties hereto, whether written or oral, express or implied, with respect to its subject matter. This Settlement may be amended or modified at any time or times only by a writing executed by all Parties.

10. Execution in Counterparts. This Settlement may be executed simultaneously in several counterparts, each of which shall be deemed to be one and the same instrument.

11. Illegality, Validity, and Enforceability. If any term, provision, covenant, or condition of this Settlement is held by a court of competent jurisdiction to be invalid, void, or unenforceable, the remainder of the provisions shall remain in full force and effect and shall in no way be affected, impaired, or invalidated.

12. Choice of Law and Forum Selection. This Settlement is entered into under and shall be governed by and construed in accordance with the laws of the State of New Jersey without regard to such jurisdiction's principles of conflicts of law. The parties agree that the Commissioner of Education shall have exclusive jurisdiction over any dispute arising from, in connection with, or related to this Settlement.

13. Necessary Documents. Prior to and at all times following the date of this Settlement, the Parties agree to execute and deliver, or to cause to be executed and delivered, such documents and to do, or cause to be done, such other acts and things as might reasonably be requested by the Parties, to assure that the benefits of this Settlement are realized by the Parties.

14. Confidentiality. The Parties agree that the terms of this Settlement are confidential to the maximum extent permitted by law. None of the Parties shall initiate or respond to oral or written communications about the terms of this Settlement to any person or entity about its terms unless compelled by subpoena or order of a court of competent jurisdiction. This restriction, however, does not prevent the Parties from discussing the terms of this Settlement with their respective counsel. In the event that either party violates this term, that Party may take appropriate action, with the prevailing party being entitled to its reasonable counsel fees and costs.

15. Final Approval. Settlement is subject to final approval by the Administrative Law Judge ("Judge") pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1, and will become effective only upon approval by the Judge. Counsel for the Parties shall jointly request the Judge's approval of this Agreement and each shall take any and all necessary steps to effectuate dismissal of the Petition of Appeal.

16. THE UNDERSIGNED HAVE CAREFULLY READ THIS "SETTLMENT AGRLEMENT AND GENERAL RELEASE"; THEY HAVE READ, KNOW, AND UNDERSTAND ITS CONTENTS; THEY FREELY AND VOLUNTARILY AGREE TO ABIDE BY ITS TERMS, AND ARE FULLY AUTHORIZED TO SO AGREE AND BE BOUND; AND THEY HAVE NOT BEEN COERCED INTO SIGNING THIS SETTLEMENT.

SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT AND RELEASE

This Settlement Agreement and Release (the "Agreement") is made and entered into as of this 17th day of March, 2020, by and between JOYCE CAINE ("Caine") on the one hand, and THE HILLSIDE PUBLIC SCHOOLS, BOARD OF EDUCATION ("Hillside"), who shall be referred to collectively as the "Parties".

RECITALS:

WHEREAS, Caine filed a Petition with New Jersey Commissioner of Education, c/o the Director, Office of Controversies and Disputes on July 8, 2019;

WHEREAS, Hillside filed an Answer to the Petition on or about July 26, 2019;

WHEREAS, the Parties desire, without any admission of liability by any party, to resolve their differences and settle the disputes by and between them in accordance with the terms set forth below without the need for expending the time and expense of further litigation; and

WHEREAS, the Parties now seek to put the terms of their Agreement in this writing to fully and finally settle all such claims, disputes, and controversies;

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of the mutual promises and covenants set forth below, as well as for other good and valuable consideration, the receipt and sufficiency of which are hereby acknowledged by each signatory hereto, intending to be legally bound, the Parties agree as follows:

1. Recitals. The foregoing recitals are an integral part of this Agreement, and are incorporated herein by reference.

2. Acknowledgement of Amounts Due. Caine and Hillside acknowledges and agrees that the Settlement Amount represents the amount due and owing to Caine.

3. Settlement Terms.

A. Payment

The parties hereby agree that Hillside shall have the following payment obligations, totaling the amount of the Settlement Amount, to Caine as consideration for the mutual promises and covenants herein, which shall be, collectively and in the aggregate, hereinafter referred to as the "Payment Obligation". Said Payment Obligation shall be by checks made payable to Joyce Caine c/o the Einhorn, Barbarito, Frost, Botwinick attorney trust account and delivered to Einhorn, Barbarito, Frost & Botwinick, 165 East Main Street, Denville, New Jersey 07834. The amount of the Payment shall be $15,457.00.

B. Personnel File

The most recent Performance Evaluation of Caine, dated April 9, 2019 and authored by Dr. Debra Sheard as Acting Superintendent of the Hillside Public Schools shall be retracted and stricken permanently from Caine's permanent Hillside personnel file. The Hillside agrees that with respect to any future employment inquiries relating to Caine, the information provided shall solely include dates of employment, position/s/ held and salary in the position. If additional information is requested by a prospective employer, Caine shall be notified and reserves the right in writing to provide consent to approve the content of any additional information requested and intended to be provided to a prospective employer.

C. Event of Default.

In the event that the Hillside fails to timely pay Caine the amount set forth in paragraph 3(A), supra., Caine (through counsel) shall provide written Notice to the Hillside (through counsel), in accordance with paragraph 16, below, to inform the Hillside of such default and provide the Hillside with five (5) business days to cure. If the Hillside does not cure the alleged default within five (5) business days of the Notice, such failure shall constitute a Default under the terms of this Agreement. Upon the occurrence of a Default, Caine may, in her sole discretion, file a Consent Judgment in the amount of Fifteen Thousand, Four Hundred Fifty-Seven Dollars ($15,457.00) and may seek reasonable attorneys' fees and costs in connection with such filing to be determined by the Court.

4. Mutual Releases. The Parties hereby exchange mutual releases as follows:

A. The Parties, on behalf of themselves and their affiliates, employees, agents, successors and assigns and any person or entity claiming by or through any or all of them, hereby release and forever discharge each other and their respective insurers, reinsurers, managers, members, affiliates, related entities, parents, subsidiaries, employees, directors, officers, shareholders, agents, trustees, attorneys, predecessors, successors and assigns, from and against any and all actions, causes of action, suits, debts, dues, sums of money, accounts, reckonings, bonds, bills, specialties, covenants, contracts, controversies, agreements, promises, variances, trespasses, representations, damages, judgments, liens, extents, executions, claims, counterclaims, defenses and demands whatsoever, in law, admiralty or equity whether then known or unknown, past or present, asserted or unasserted, contingent or unliquidated which they ever had, now have or hereafter can, shall or may have, upon, or by reason of, any matter, cause or thing whatsoever from the beginning of the world to the date of this release. The Parties hereby represent and warrant that they have not assigned, pledged, encumbered, hypothesized and/or otherwise devised themselves of all or any part of the claims released herein. Notwithstanding any provision or term in this paragraph to the contrary, nothing stated herein shall release or waive the Hillside's obligations relating to the Payment Obligation.

5. Dismissal With Prejudice and Without Costs. Upon the execution of this Agreement and the additional conditions of settlement having been fulfilled, the Petition shall be dismissed with prejudice and without costs by counsel for the Parties. The Parties hereby authorize their respective counsel to execute on their behalf and file a Stipulation of Dismissal with Prejudice with the Court.

6. Authority. Each of the Parties hereto warrants and represents that it is fully empowered to enter into this Agreement on behalf of the entities named herein along with their respective principals, shareholders and/or representatives. The Parties further represent that they have each consulted with legal counsel of their choice before entering into this Agreement. This provision shall survive the expiration or termination of this Agreement.

7. No Admission of Liability. This Agreement and its terms do not constitute an admission of liability by any party and shall not be interpreted to imply an admission of liability by any party.

8. Entire Agreement. This Agreement shall constitute the entire and sole agreement among the Parties with respect to the subject matters hereof. None of the Parties are relying upon any promise, representation, understanding, undertaking, or agreement, whether oral or in writing, not set forth in this Agreement and attachments, all of which shall be deemed to have been superseded by this Agreement and merged herein, and each party expressly disclaims any reliance on any other promise, representation, understanding, undertaking, or agreement, whether oral or in writing. This Agreement may not be amended, changed, altered, modified or terminated except in a writing signed by all the Parties hereto.

9. Governing Law and Jurisdiction. This Agreement shall be governed by the laws of the State of New Jersey without regard to conflict of law rules. The Parties further consent to jurisdiction of the Officer of Administrative Law with respect to any disputes arising from this Agreement.

10. Drafting. Each of the Parties and their respective counsel have participated in the drafting and negotiation of this Agreement, and for all purposes this Agreement shall be deemed to have been drafted jointly by each of the Parties. No ambiguity shall be resolved against any party based upon authorship.

11. Headings. The headings contained in this Agreement are for convenience and reference purposes only and shall not be deemed to be a part of the Agreement or to offer the meaning or interpretation of this Agreement.

12. Severability. If any term or covenant of this Agreement shall to any extent be invalid or unenforceable, the remaining terms and covenants shall nevertheless be valid, enforceable, and carried into effect to the fullest extent permitted by law, unless to do so would clearly violate the present legal and valid intentions of the Parties or otherwise deprive any party of the benefit of its bargain.

13. Further Assurances. The Parties agree to perform any and all lawful additional acts, including without limitation, execution of additional stipulations, agreements, documents and instruments, as are reasonably necessary or as reasonably requested by any party at any time to effectuate the intent of this Settlement Agreement, to satisfy the conditions herein contained, or to give full force and effect to this Settlement Agreement.

14. Date of Execution. The date of execution of this Agreement shall be the date upon which the last of the Parties signs this Agreement.

15. Counterparts. This Agreement may be executed in any number of counterparts and via facsimile or electronic signature and PDF, and all such counterparts taken together shall be deemed to constitute one and the same original instrument. Signature pages may be detached from counterpart documents and reassembled to form duplicate executed originals.

17. Confidentiality. To the full extent permitted under governing law in New Jersey, each Party understands that the confidentiality of the amount and terms of the Agreement forms a portion of the consideration for the settlement. Toward that end, the Parties agree that they and their counsel will neither disclose nor reveal to any person or entity or directly or indirectly publish, publicize, disseminate or communicate to any person the terms of this Agreement, with the exception of a Party's agents, employees and/or representatives who have a need to know. Moreover, nothing in the Agreement shall be deemed to interfere with each Party's obligation to accurately report transactions with any entity to whom it is required by law or contract to report, including, for example, appropriate governmental, taxing and/or registering agencies.

In the event that any Party receives a subpoena or other legal request for this Agreement or for information regarding its terms or that could reasonably be interpreted to require the production of such confidential documents or information, Notice shall be provided to all Parties within five (5) business days, in accordance with paragraph 16, supra., so that the Parties are provided the opportunity to object to the production of this Agreement or of any information regarding the terms of this Agreement.

18. Non-disparagement. BEFORE SARAH H. SURGENT, ALJ:

On February 24, 2020, petitioner N.A.-T. on behalf of her minor grandchildren, K.A.N. and K.A.N., filed a petition with the Commissioner of Education seeking reversal of respondent Board of Education of the Township of Union's February 4, 2020 determination that K.A.N. and K.A.N. did not reside in the Union Township School District, and were therefore ineligible to attend the Township's schools. On March 16, 2020, respondent filed an answer and counter-claims to the petition with the Commissioner of Education. The Department of Education transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on January 23, 2020, for determination as a contested case. Due to the Coronavirus pandemic and related shut downs, the transmittal was not filed with the OAL until May 13, 2020, and was not transmitted to this Judge until June 2020. Following several telephone conferences with the parties, a settlement was placed on the record, on July 31,2020, with the parties waiving any exceptions. On September 16, 2020, the OAL received the attached parties' fully executed settlement agreement and the Board's resolution approving the settlement, which is incorporated herein as J-1.

I have reviewed the record and the terms of the Settlement Agreement and I FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the Settlement as evidenced by their signatures or their representatives' signatures, and have voluntarily waived the filing of any exceptions.

2. The Settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

New Jersey Commissioner of Education

Final Decision

James Smith,

Complainant,

v.

Emmanuel Capers,

Appellant.

This matter involves an appeal of the School Ethics Commission's (Commission) March 17, 2020 decision that appellant Emmanuel Capers, a member of the Paterson Board of Education, violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(c), N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e), and N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(f) of the Code of Ethics for School Board Members (Code) when he attended an all-expenses-paid conference offered by a potential vendor of the school district. Having carefully reviewed the Commission's decision and the record in its entirety, the Commissioner finds that the Commission's decision is supported by sufficient credible evidence, and that appellant failed to establish that the decision is arbitrary, capricious or contrary to law. N.J.A.C. 6A:4-1.1(a). However, the Commissioner finds that a six-month suspension is the appropriate penalty in this case.

The complaint in this matter alleged that appellant violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(a), N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(c), N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e), and N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(f) when he attended a conference presented and paid for by Woz U – an entity that offers coding programs to school districts – and brought Woz U to the attention of the district as a possible vendor. The Commission dismissed the allegation that appellant violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(a) and transmitted the remainder of the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL). Following a hearing, the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) concluded that appellant did not violate any of the provisions of the Code that were alleged in the complaint. In its March 17, 2020 decision, the Commission adopted the ALJ's factual findings, but rejected her legal conclusions. The Commission found that appellant violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(c), N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e), and N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(f) of the Code and recommended a penalty of removal.

In his appeal and exceptions, appellant argues that the conclusion that he violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(c), N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e), and N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(f) is not supported by the record. Regarding N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(c), appellant notes that the ALJ found that his actions in providing information about Woz U's programs were consistent with his position on the curriculum committee and did not constitute an impermissible framing of policies or plans. In reversing the ALJ's conclusion, the Commission found that his "advocacy" for the program was "problematic" given his "pre-existing – yet not completely defined" relationship with a representative of Woz U. Appellant argues that the Commission does not explain how this relationship was sufficient to support a finding that he took board action to effectuate policies or plans without consulting those affected by those policies or plans, or that he took action that was unrelated to his duties. Furthermore, according to appellant, the Commission erred in concluding that there was no legitimate reason for a board member to accept an all-expenses paid trip to the conference and claims that he attended not only to learn about Woz U's offerings, but to gain a broader understanding of effective education techniques related to technology in low-income schools. Appellant indicates that he was transparent about his attendance at the conference and recused himself from the eventual vote taken on Woz U. He further argues that he did not hold himself out to be speaking for the Board or acting in his capacity as a Board member when he accepted the trip and, therefore, his actions were private actions, not Board actions.

Regarding N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e), appellant argues that the record demonstrates that he made no personal promises to anyone connected to Woz U, and that his attendance at the conference was not conditioned on Woz U eventually becoming a vendor for the district. Appellant contends that the Commission's conclusion that his actions had the potential to compromise the Board was unsupported. According to appellant, he engaged in private actions that were not of the type that the Code is intended to proscribe. Appellant further notes that the superintendent's recommendation that he not attend the conference is irrelevant, because he is not an employee of the district and the superintendent does not have the authority to order a Board member to do – or to refrain from doing – anything.

Regarding N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(f), appellant argues that the Commission improperly found that he accepted the trip in his capacity as a Board member, because that conclusion is unsupported by the record. Appellant contends that there is no evidence that he "used the schools" for personal gain.

With respect to the penalty, appellant argues that it is unduly harsh and is based on a mischaracterization of his actions. Appellant notes that removal is reserved for the most egregious cases in which a board member's actions render him unfit to continue to serve, citing to cases in which removal was the appropriate penalty and contrasting the actions of board members in those cases with his own. According to appellant, censure would be a more appropriate remedy if he is found to have violated the Code, because there is no indication that he was acting in bad faith or that he repeatedly acted in violation of the Code.

Upon a comprehensive review of the record, the Commissioner finds that the decision of the Commission that appellant violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(c), N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e), and N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(f) is supported by sufficient credible evidence, and appellant has not met his burden of establishing that the Commission's decision is arbitrary, capricious, or contrary to law.

The evidence and testimony at the hearing demonstrates that appellant took action unrelated to his duties as a board member, which is sufficient evidence under N.J.A.C. 6A:28-6.4(a)(3) to demonstrate a violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(c). The ALJ based her conclusion that appellant did not violate this provision on the fact that he was on the curriculum committee, and she inferred that bringing a program to the district's attention was consistent with appellant's duties as a member of that committee. However, the ALJ's conclusion failed to address the appellant's action in accepting a trip from Woz U. The Commission was not arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable in concluding that there is no legitimate reason for an individual board member to accept an all-expenses-paid trip to a conference in order to learn about a product.[1] There are certainly means of learning about such programs that do not include accepting a trip from a potential vendor; in fact, Woz U had already provided at least one live presentation about its programs to district representatives prior to Appellant's acceptance of the trip. Notably, the district's administrators, who are responsible for implementing the curriculum, declined the offer to attend the conference, demonstrating that the type of "research" appellant conducted at the conference was unnecessary to a decision regarding the district's possible future use of Woz U programs. Moreover, appellant himself recognized the conflict resulting from his attendance at the conference, indicating at the time he accepted the trip that he would recuse himself from any vote related to Woz U. Research into a program that was appropriate and consistent with appellant's position on the curriculum committee would not result in his being unable to vote on the district's implementation of that program.

Furthermore, appellant's actions went beyond the scope of his duties as a board member and had the potential to compromise the Board, which is sufficient evidence under N.J.A.C. 6A:28-6.5(a)(4) to demonstrate a violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e). The Commission was not arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable in concluding that appellant's acceptance of the trip could have compromised both the Board's ability to contract with Woz U and the public's opinion of the Board's integrity. While the appellant argues that he made no personal promises to Woz U, such is not required by N.J.A.C. 6A:28-6.4(a)(5), which provides that evidence of a violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e) may include that "respondent made personal promises or took action beyond the scope of his or her duties" (emphasis added); see also Persi v. Woska, 2017 N.J. Super. Unpub. LEXIS 625, *7 (App. Div. Mar. 10, 2017) (finding that action taken by a board member that is beyond the scope of his authority and duties as a board member meets the definition of "private action" and is sufficient to demonstrate a violation of the Code). Moreover, the fact that appellant apparently did not attempt to influence the votes of the other Board members does not counteract the appearance of impropriety resulting from his acceptance of an expensive trip from a vendor that had the potential to do business with the Board. Members of the public who were aware of the gift would rightly question the Board's integrity regarding any vote related to Woz U.

Finally, these actions clearly show that appellant used the schools in order to obtain a benefit – a trip – for himself, which is sufficient evidence under N.J.A.C. 6A:28-6.5(a)(6) to demonstrate a violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(f). The trip was offered to board members and school personnel, and thus was clearly related to those individuals' positions relative to the schools.

With respect to the appropriate penalty, the Commissioner finds that removing the appellant from the board is an unduly harsh penalty for the proven violations. Notably, the Commissioner disagrees with the Commission that removal is the only penalty sufficient to deter board members from accepting gifts from vendors. The Commissioner also disagrees with the appellant's assertion that the lack of bad faith makes censure the appropriate penalty. Appellant was well aware of the impropriety of his decision to accept the trip. Although he was not an employee of the district and therefore not required to follow the directive of the superintendent that staff not attend the conference due to ethical concerns, he was aware of those concerns and nonetheless chose to reap a benefit worth several thousand dollars from his position as a board member.

Looking to other matters, the Commissioner finds a similar level of misconduct in Yafet v. Smith, Hillside Board of Education, Union County, SEC Dkt. No. C24-01 (Oct. 27, 2008), affirmed, Commissioner Decision No. 156-09A (May 15, 2009), in which a board member (Smith) sent multiple memoranda criticizing a school principal, despite having a conflict of interest because that principal supervised the board member's wife. Finding four violations of the Code, including N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e) and (f), Smith received a six-month suspension. In setting that penalty, the Commission reviewed other cases and concluded that Smith's conduct was not as egregious as that of board members in other cases who had been removed from their positions, because the violations did not occur on multiple occasions or through a variety of acts. However, the Commission also found that censure was not appropriate, because the conflict of interest was clear, and Smith had notice that his actions were improper. The Commission therefore concluded that a six-month penalty was appropriate. See also, In the Matter of Jan Rubio, Matawan-Aberdeen Regional School District Board of Education, Monmouth County, SEC Dkt. No. C16-08, affirmed, Commissioner Decision No. 494-10, decided November 15, 2010 (Six-month suspension imposed on a board member resulting from Code violations for soliciting – via the school email system – and receiving campaign contributions from school employees.).

Here, while appellant has violated three provisions of the Code rather than the four provisions at issue in Smith, supra, his conduct in accepting a gift from a potential vendor had significant potential to compromise the public's opinion of the Board's integrity. Balancing these factors, the Commissioner finds that a six-month suspension is the appropriate penalty in this case.

Accordingly, appellant is hereby suspended for six months as a school official found to have violated the School Ethics Act.

IT IS SO ORDERED.[2]

Final Decision

James Smith,
Complainant

v.

Emmanuel Capers,
Paterson Board of Education, Passaic County,
Respondent

I. Procedural History

This matter arises from a Complaint that was filed on July 24, 2018, by James Smith (Complainant), alleging that Emmanuel Capers (Respondent), a member of the Paterson Board of Education (Board), violated the School Ethics Act (Act), N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et seq. More specifically, the Complaint alleges that Respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(a), N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(c), N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e), and N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(f) of the Code of Ethics for School Board Members (Code).

After being served with the Complaint, Respondent filed a Motion to Dismiss in Lieu of Answer (Motion to Dismiss), and also alleged that the Complaint is frivolous. On September 12, 2018, Complainant filed a Response to Respondent's Motion to Dismiss and allegation of frivolous filing.

Thereafter, and at its meeting on October 30, 2018, the Commission voted to grant the Motion to Dismiss in part (as to the alleged violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(a)); deny the Motion to Dismiss as to all other allegations in the Complaint; find the Complaint not frivolous; deny Respondent's request for sanctions; direct the filing of an Answer to Complaint (Answer) as to the remaining allegations (N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(c), N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e), and N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(f)); and to transmit the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) following receipt of the Answer. On November 21, 2018, Respondent filed an Answer as directed, and the matter was transmitted to the OAL.

At the OAL, the above-captioned matter was assigned to the Honorable Kimberly A. Moss, Administrative Law Judge (ALJ Moss). Initial Decision at 1. Following hearings on October 3, 2019, November 4, 2019, and December 5, 2019, and as more fully detailed infra, ALJ Moss issued an Initial Decision detailing her findings of fact and legal conclusions. Id. at 2.

On December 23, 2019, the Commission acknowledged receipt of ALJ Moss's Initial Decision; therefore, the forty-five (45) day statutory deadline for the Commission to issue a Final Decision was February 6, 2020. Prior to February 6, 2020, the Commission requested a forty-five (45) day extension of time to issue its final decision. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(c) and N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.8, and for good cause shown, the Commission was granted an extension until March 23, 2020.[1]

On January 6, 2020, Complainant filed his Exceptions to the Initial Decision and, on January 13, 2020, Respondent filed his reply to Complainant's Exceptions.

Following the filing of Exceptions, and at the Commission's meeting on January 21, 2020, Complainant appeared and made statements during the public comment portion of the meeting regarding the Initial Decision issued by ALJ Moss. Complainant also provided the Commission with a written statement, along with related exhibits,[2] in connection with his public statements. As a result of Complainant's attendance and statements during the public comment portion of its meeting, the Commission voted to adjourn its continued review of the above-captioned matter, and to extend to Respondent, as a matter of fairness, the opportunity to provide public statement. Consequently, and in correspondence dated January 22, 2020, Respondent was advised that, pursuant to its statutory authority as set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:12-28, Respondent was compelled to attend the Commission's meeting on February 25, 2020.[3] The Commission also sought, and received, a second extension until April 10, 2020, to issue its final decision.

After receipt of correspondence from the Commission, Respondent (through counsel) requested a summary of Complainant's public statements from the meeting on January 21, 2020. In lieu of a summary, counsel for Respondent was provided with a copy of the written statement, and related exhibits, that Complainant provided to the Commission.

Consequently, and at its meeting on February 25, 2020, Respondent appeared, as did Complainant on his own initiative. Prior to receiving additional public comments regarding the above-captioned matter from either Complainant or Respondent, the Commission advised the parties that: the record was closed; because the record was closed, the Commission would neither be taking nor receiving testimony from either Complainant and/or Respondent; the Commission would not consider any comment(s) made by Complainant or Respondent and/or any document(s) submitted by Complainant or Respondent in its review of the above-captioned matter unless the comment(s) or document(s) was already memorialized in the record as developed during the underlying OAL hearing; and the Commission compelled Respondent's attendance so that he could avail himself, as Complainant did, of the opportunity to offer public statement about the above-captioned matter should he so desire. Following these advisements, Respondent (through counsel) provided a public statement, as did Complainant.

After Respondent (through counsel) and Complainant offered their respective public comments, the Commission adjourned to executive session to consider the full record in this matter. To reiterate, and because the record was closed by ALJ Moss on December 5, 2019, the Commission did not include any comment(s) made by and/or or any document(s) submitted by [1] Forty-five (45) days after February 6, 2020, was, technically, Sunday, March 22, 2020.

[2] Unless the substance of the written statement and/or the exhibits were part of the record, the information was not considered by the Commission.

[3] Notwithstanding the language in its correspondence, the Commission was not compelling Respondent to testify, but rather affording him the opportunity to appear and offer public comment because Complainant had done so.

Complainant or Respondent during the public comment/statement of its meetings on January 21, 2020, or February 25, 2020, unless it was already part of the record. Thereafter, and at a special meeting on March 17, 2020, the Commission voted to adopt ALJ Moss's findings of fact; to reject the legal conclusion that Respondent did not violate N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(c); to reject the legal conclusion that Respondent did not violate N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e); to reject the legal conclusion that Respondent did not violate N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(f); and to recommend that Respondent be removed from his position as a Board member.

II. Initial Decision

In the Initial Decision dated December 23, 2019, and based on the documentary evidence as well as the testimony of Eric Crespo (Crespo), Joann Tsimpedes (Tsimpedes), William Gaurlich (Gaurlich), Jose Correa (Correa), Complainant, Oshin Castillo (Castillo), and Eileen Shaffer (Shaffer), ALJ Moss issued the following findings of fact:

1) Respondent is an elected member of the Board. He was a Board member in 2017, and served as a member of the curriculum committee. Initial Decision at 8.

2) Crespo was the Associate Chief Academic officer for the Paterson School District (District) in 2017-2018. Id.

3) In July 2017, there was a conference call involving Respondent, Crespo, and Tsimpedes, the Assistant Superintendent of Academic and Special Services, during which "Respondent brought to their attention a possible vendor ... that would provide free coding courses for juniors and seniors."[4] Id. This "possible vendor" also sold educational and drone programs. Id.

4) On January 31, 2018, Respondent, another Board member (Jonathan Hodges (Hodges)), Crespo, Correa (the Director of Instructional Technology in the District), Gaurlich (a social studies teacher and Supervisor of College and Career Readiness), and Tsimpedes met with "a Woz U representative," Billy Garner (Garner). Id. at 2, 4, 5, and 8.

5) Garner "had previously known" Respondent. Id. at 8.

6) At the meeting on January 31, 2018, Garner "did a marketing presentation of Woz U's programs," including "programs that were not free which included coding for first to tenth grades." Id. at 8-9.

7) Woz U was also "concerned that the [District] juniors['] and seniors['] coding skills were not up to par," and "offered a program to get their skills up to par but that program was not free." Id. at 9.

8) Also, at the meeting on January 31, 2018, "Gardner (sic) mentioned that there would be a seminar in Arizona that they could attend, which would be fully paid for by Woz U." Id.

[4] At the time Respondent brought the "possible vendor" to the attention of the District's administration, the vendor was known as Accelerated Learning Pathways (ALP), but would later become Woz U. Initial Decision at 2, 8.

9) Prior to the January 31, 2018, meeting, Respondent sent Crespo a flyer regarding the seminar. Id.

10) Shaffer, the District Superintendent, directed Correa "to look into the seminar." Id.

11) The District's "legal department" informed Correa "that there might be a conflict," informed Correa "to not let Woz U pay for the airfare and hotel," and advised Correa "that Board members should follow the same protocol." Id.

12) Shaffer advised Crespo "not to go to the seminar because [the District] did not have a relationship with Woz U and Woz U was a potential vendor." Id.

13) Correa told Respondent that he (Correa) was not going to the seminar. Id.

14) Respondent told Correa "that he was going to the seminar and that if a vote came up on Woz U at the Board, he would recuse himself." Id.

15) Shaffer spoke with Respondent "recommending that he not go to the seminar because Woz U could become a vendor for the Board." Id.

16) No employee of the District went to the all-expense-paid seminar in Arizona. Id.

17) Respondent is not an employee of the District; he is an elected official. Id.

18) Shaffer told Castillo (Board President) that Respondent went to the all-expense-paid seminar sponsored by Woz U. Id.

19) After consulting with Shaffer and the Board attorney, Castillo requested an investigation. Id.

20) Complainant, a then "investigator" for the District, was contacted by Castillo and Shaffer and asked to "investigate [Respondent] going on the all-expense-paid seminar to Arizona sponsored by Woz U." Id.

21) Respondent attended the seminar in Arizona from February 20, 2018, to February 23, 2018. Id.

22) Respondent declined to be interviewed by Complainant as part of his (Complainant's) investigation. Id.

23) Complainant's investigation included checking Respondent's residency and voting record, although Shaffer told Complainant not to check Respondent's voting records or to go to Respondent's house. Id.

24) Complainant completed his investigation on March 27, 2018, and forwarded his report to Castillo, Shaffer, and Melissa Pierce (sic), the Passaic County Interim Executive County Superintendent (ECS). Id.

25) Castillo submitted Complainant's report to "the State Ethics Office, the Commissioner of Education, and other Board members." Id.

26) Complainant was "contacted by the ethics office because it needed a charge form." Id. at 9-10.

27) Complainant "completed and sent the charge form to the ethics office without consulting Castillo or Shaffer." Id. at 10.

28) The report completed by Complainant "was sent to the ethics office to determine if charges should be brought against [Respondent]." Id.

29) On August 28, 2018, "there was a resolution approved by the legal and business departments for the free use of the Woz U program," and Respondent recused himself from the vote. Id.

30) Woz U did not complete the vendor contract. Id.

31) Respondent "was not told by Castillo that a resolution was necessary for him to go to the seminar in Arizona." Id.

Based on the findings of fact as set forth above, ALJ Moss noted that Respondent brought Woz U to the attention of the District, ostensibly because Woz U had a program "that would offer free coding services to high school juniors and seniors." Id. According to ALJ Moss, as a member of the curriculum committee, Respondent's actions in "bringing to the District's attention a coding curriculum program" is "consistent with being a member of the curriculum committee." Id. The fact that Respondent brought Woz U "to the attention of the District is not framing policy or plans," but rather "providing information regarding a program that the District could consider using." Id. ALJ Moss also indicated that, "[t]here was no documentation or admission by Gardner (sic) or [Respondent] that [Respondent] and Gardner (sic) had a previous business relationship." Id.

In addition, Respondent "sent out a flyer regarding the all-expense-paid seminar in Arizona" and also "spoke to Correa and Crespo about whether they would attend the seminar." Id. at 11. However, ALJ Moss concluded that "[t]he flyer and the conversations do not violate N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(c)."

As for the alleged violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e), ALJ Moss noted that there was no testimony or evidence that Respondent made any personal promises to anyone connected to Woz U; Respondent's attendance at the "all-expense-paid seminar could have been done to gain a clearer understanding of the programs that Woz U offered"; Woz U was not a vendor of the Board at the time the seminar took place; Respondent's attendance at the seminar did not compromise the Board; and there was no testimony or evidence that Respondent "attempted to sway the other Board members to vote on a resolution to have Woz U become a vendor for the District." Id. at 11. In fact, the only Board member who testified was Castillo, and she "did not testify that [Respondent] tried to persuade her to vote for Woz [U] as a vendor." Id. In addition, Respondent was not informed by Castillo that a resolution was necessary for him to attend the seminar in Arizona. Id. Finally, when a vote was held to determine whether Woz U should be a vendor, Respondent recused himself. Id. For these reasons, ALJ Moss concluded that Respondent did not violate N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e).

Finally, and regarding the alleged violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(f), ALJ Moss found that "[t]here was no evidence or documentation that Respondent had a prior business relationship with Woz U or anyone related to Woz U." Id. at 12. Although Respondent and Garner "knew each other," there was "no testimony as to how they knew each other or the extent of their relationship." Id. There was also no evidence offered to show that Respondent surrendered his independent judgment to Woz U. Id. According to ALJ Moss, "[g]oing to the all-expense-paid seminar in Arizona and recusing himself on the vote to determine if Woz U would be a vendor to the Board without more evidence is not enough to show that [Respondent] surrendered his independent judgement to anyone." Id.

ALJ Moss also noted that although the all-expense-paid seminar was offered to Respondent "and others in the District," and that Respondent was "the only one from [the District] who went" to the all-expense-paid seminar, there is "no evidence that [Respondent] used the school to get the all-expense-paid seminar in Arizona." Id. Therefore, ALJ Moss concluded that Respondent did not violate N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(f).

Based on the above, ALJ Moss ordered that "the petition that [Respondent] violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(c), N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1, and N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1 be denied."

III. Exceptions

In Complainant's Exceptions to the Initial Decision filed on January 6, 2020, he disputes ALJ Moss's summary of the testimony provided by witnesses at the hearing. More specifically, Complainant disagrees with the summary of Crespo's testimony, namely, "[Respondent] sent [Mr.] Crespo a flyer about the conference in Arizona prior to the January 31, 2018, meeting stating, 'you should go to this.'" Initial Decision at 3. According to Complainant, "What was actually said in an email from [Respondent] dated January 30, 2018 at 8:46 pm to Mr. Eric Crespo 'you guys need to be on this.'" Complainant maintains that "you should do this implies" that it is a recommendation, but how it was actually stated, in the email, does not suggest it is a recommendation.

Also, with regard to Crespo's testimony, ALJ Moss found that "Crespo did not initially believe the free program was offered as a hook for the Board to buy other programs from Woz U that were not free." Id. Complainant argues that in Crespo's report, which is included in P-1, Crespo notes, "the additional products offered were at a cost and the focus of our January 31 meeting." Complainant further notes that Crespo's report states, "On February 2[], I received a phone call from Jose Correa inquiring about my availability to attend the conference in Arizona. I declined any interest ... I communicated with, my Deputy Superintendent ... She informed both myself and Jose that the conference was a conflict of interest." Complainant maintains that after reading Crespo's report and speaking with him, Crespo believed that the "free program eventually would be used as a hook for offering a paid program."

Regarding Gaurlich's testimony, Complainant disputes ALJ Moss's summary that "Gaurlich was not offered an expense-free trip to the Arizona Seminar." Id. at 4. Complainant contends contrary to what ALJ Moss found, Gaurlich's official report (P-3) contains a statement which reads, "[Respondent] mentioned being interested in attending the Arizona conference and asked if I would be interested." See, P-3.

As for the summary of his own testimony, Complainant disputes ALJ Moss's statement that "[Complainant] does not know if Shaffer is Capers's boss." Id. at 6. Complainant notes that the District was a "State run district and in the process Superintendent Shafer would have the final say." Complainant asserts that "it is also ridiculous to think after being told by Superintendent Shafer to cooperate with all State agencies I would somehow decide to bring charges against [Respondent] on my own."

Finally, Complainant maintains "If this recommendation is allowed to stand without any penalty, it will virtually open up Pandora's Box to allow board members to accept free expense paid trips for vendors or potential vendors. Also, what chance would a private citizen have going up against top law firms."

In Respondent's reply to Complainant's Exceptions filed on January 13, 2020, he contends that "[a]lthough [C]omplainant purports to contest many of [ALJ] Moss's findings of fact, he actually takes issue with the testimony memorialized in [ALJ] Moss's opinion." Respondent further contends that ALJ Moss did not "find any facts with which [C]omplainant takes issue," and even if she did find such facts, "her legal analysis does not rest on or even mention them." Respondent argues that ALJ Moss's findings of fact and legal conclusions are "fully supported by the record" and, therefore, Respondent requests that the Commission adopt the Initial Decision.

IV. Analysis

For the reasons more fully detailed below, and following a careful, thorough, and independent review of the complete record, including all of the testimonial and documentary evidence in the record, the Commission adopts ALJ Moss's findings of fact, but rejects ALJ Moss's legal conclusion that Respondent did not violate N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(c), N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e), or N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(f). In rejecting ALJ Moss's legal conclusions, the Commission finds that Complainant has proven, by a preponderance of the credible evidence, that Respondent's conduct violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(c), N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e), and N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(f).

Summary of the Remaining Allegations in the Complaint

Complainant, then "Executive Director of School Security, Internal Investigations, Fleet Management, and Transportation" for the District, asserts that, in Respondent's capacity as a Board member, he (Respondent) attended an "unauthorized" conference in Scottsdale, Arizona, and all costs were paid by a District vendor or a potential District vendor. In the course of Complainant's investigation, he learned that the District's "security department" had transported Respondent to the airport because it was believed to be an "authorized" and Board approved trip; however, when it was discovered to be an "unauthorized" trip, Respondent was told he would need to arrange for his own transportation from the airport. Complainant further states that Respondent had prior "business dealings" with the sales team of the vendor that were unrelated to the District. Complainant's investigation also revealed that the Superintendent and Deputy Superintendent emailed several members of the District's staff and specifically advised them not to attend the conference. When one of the recipients of this e-mail, Mr. Jose E. Correa (Director of Instructional Technology and Media Services), informed Respondent that he (Mr. Correa) was not attending the conference, Respondent purportedly replied, "I'm still going." When Mr. Correa then advised Respondent that the District was "considering purchasing Woz U coding platform," Respondent allegedly replied, "I will recuse myself from voting." Ultimately, Respondent was the only District employee who chose to attend the conference without any formal approval by the Board.

Based on this information, Complainant alleges that Respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(c) because he had prior business with the sales team of the vendor and, as a result, had a conflict of interest which precluded him from attending the conference in his capacity as a Board member, and with all costs paid by the vendor; N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e) because due to his conflict of interest, his attendance (private action) compromised the Board; and N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(f) because his independent judgment was compromised due to his prior business dealings and relationship with the vendor.

Violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(c)

N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(c) requires a school board member to abide by the following: "I will confine my board action to policy making, planning, and appraisal, and I will help to frame policies and plans only after the board has consulted those who will be affected by them." As set forth in N.J.A.C. 6A:28-6.4(a)(3), factual evidence of a violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(c) shall include evidence that Respondent took Board action to effectuate policies and plans without consulting those affected by such policies and plans, or took action that was unrelated to Respondent's duty to (i) develop the general rules and principles that guide the management of the school district or charter school, (ii) formulate the programs and methods to effectuate the goals of the school district or charter school, or (iii) ascertain the value or liability of a policy.

Based on the testimonial and documentary evidence in the record, it is clear that, in his capacity as a Board member, Respondent took actions that were unrelated to his duties and responsibilities as a Board member in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(c). Even if, as indicated by ALJ Moss, Respondent's action in "bringing to the District's attention a coding curriculum program [is] consistent with being on the curriculum committee," his ensuing advocacy for the potential vendor, especially when Respondent had a pre-existing - yet not completely defined - relationship with a representative of the company is problematic. In this regard, and after alerting certain members of the District's administration about the "free" courses that could be provided, Crespo reported that Respondent "encouraged the implementation of the product in [the District's] schools in fall," which was only a few months later. P-1 at 1. Crespo advised Respondent that, before any product could be implemented, a thorough analysis, among other things, would need to be completed. Id. Several months later, and immediately following a telephone conference between District administrators and the "potential vendor," and which did not include Respondent, he (Respondent) "appeared at [Crespo's] office," "discussed the conference call," and "requested [that District administrators] inquire about a presentation at the Board Workshop meeting." Id. In addition, and before members of the District's administration could again meet with the potential vendor, Respondent "wanted to provide the rest of the [B]oard exposure to the product." Id. at 2. Because this request was not made by the Department of Academic Services, but rather by Respondent, Crespo alerted the Chief of Staff about the request. Id.

It is also not reasonable to conclude that, even if "bringing to the District's attention a coding curriculum program [is] consistent with being on the curriculum committee," Respondent's subsequent acceptance of and attendance at an all-expense-paid seminar in Arizona, at the expense of a "potential vendor," falls within the scope of his duties and responsibilities as a Board member. There is no legitimate reason for an individual Board member to accept and attend an all-expense-paid seminar in order to learn about a product(s), especially when every other individual to whom the offer was extended, including the District administrators who are ultimately the ones responsible for identifying and implementing such products, relied on the advice of the legal department, or the Superintendent, and declined to accept and attend the all-expense-paid seminar. Initial Decision at 3-5, and 9. Individual Board members do not have a role in vetting potential vendors in this way, or recommending educationally-related products or services to the very people, namely the District's educational professionals, who chose not to attend the all-expense-paid seminar. District administrators, and even Board members, who are interested in learning more about the services, courses, or program that a potential vendor can provide can do so in a myriad of ways, none of which, and critically important, require traveling across the country to attend a seminar that is paid for by the "potential vendor" at an estimated cost of several thousand dollars. P-6. Importantly, and although not admitted by Respondent, he recognized that his acceptance of, and attendance at, the all-expense-paid seminar constituted a conflict because he conceded he would recuse from any vote(s) regarding Woz U in the future. If acceptance of and attendance at the seminar was not a conflict, Respondent would not have acknowledged the need to recuse.

In short, by requesting that a course/program be implemented before it was fully analyzed by the District's administration; requesting that a course/program be presented to the Board before the Department of Academic Services believed it was appropriate to do so; and accepting and attending an all-expense-paid-seminar in Arizona with the foresight that such acceptance and attendance would preclude him from being involved in any vote(s) regarding Woz U, Respondent took actions unrelated to his duties and responsibilities as a Board member. Accordingly, Commission rejects the legal conclusion that Respondent did not violate N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(c).

N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e) requires a school board member to comply with the following: "I will recognize that authority rests with the board of education and will make no personal promises nor take any private action that may compromise the board." Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:28-6.4(a)(5), factual evidence of a violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e) shall include evidence that Respondent made personal promises or took action beyond the scope of his duties such that, by its nature, had the potential to compromise the Board.

For all of the reasons more fully enumerated above, Respondent's request that a course/program be implemented before it was fully analyzed by the District's administration; request that a course/program be presented to the Board before the Department of Academic Services believed it was appropriate to do so; and acceptance of and attendance at an all-expense-paid-trip to Arizona after he was told that at least one other District administrator was not attending; and recognition that his acceptance and attendance of the all-expense-paid seminar constituted a conflict (because he knew he would have to, and did, recuse from a vote(s) involving Woz U), constituted action beyond the scope of his duties as a Board member. Moreover, Respondent's actions could have compromised the Board's ability to contract with Woz U for free and/or cost-based programs, services, or courses, and could have compromised the public's opinion about the ethics and integrity of the Board when it comes to the appropriateness of accepting gifts from vendors, potential vendors, or from any entity which may provide or offer to provide goods or services to the Board. Because Respondent accepted and attended the all-expense-paid seminar in his capacity as a Board member, it could appear as if the Board had authorized or sanctioned his attendance when, in fact, the chief school administrator specifically recommended that Respondent not attend. Initial Decision at 9.

Therefore, the Commission rejects the ALJ's conclusion that Respondent did not violate N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e).

Violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(f)

N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(f) requires a school board member to abide by the following: "I will refuse to surrender my independent judgment to special interest or partisan political groups or to use the schools for personal gain or for the gain of friends." As set forth in N.J.A.C. 6A:28-6.4(a)(6), factual evidence of a violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(f) shall include evidence that Respondent took action on behalf of, or at the request of, a special interest group or persons organized and voluntarily united in opinion and who adhere to a particular political party or cause; or evidence that Respondent used the schools in order to acquire some benefit for himself, a member of his immediate family, or a friend.

Because (1) Respondent was offered the opportunity to attend an "all-expense-paid" seminar in Arizona from a potential vendor to the Board, (2) the offer was extended to Respondent because of his membership on the Board, and (3) Respondent, in his capacity as a member and representative of the Board, accepted and attended an all-expense-paid seminar that, as estimated by Complainant, cost several thousand dollars, it is beyond dispute that Respondent used his position as a member of the Board to acquire a benefit for himself, namely a "free" trip to Arizona. P-6.

Consequently, Commission rejects the legal conclusion that Respondent did not violate N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(f).

V. Decision

For the reasons more fully detailed above, the Commission determines to adopt ALJ Moss's findings of fact; to reject the legal conclusion that Respondent did not violate N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(c); to reject the legal conclusion that Respondent did not violate N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e); and to reject the legal conclusion that Respondent did not violate N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(f).

VI. Penalty

Based upon the conclusion that Respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(c), N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e), and N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(f), the Commission must now turn to the issue of penalty. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29, the Commission is authorized to recommend a penalty which ranges from reprimand, a non-public admonishment, to removal. The Commission recognizes that removal is the harshest form of penalty and, as such, reserves it for the most extreme of cases. In this case, the Commission believes that removal is the only penalty that can be recommended to the Commissioner of Education (Commissioner).

In its review of the record, it is clear to the Commission that Respondent was overly involved in ensuring that the District used a service(s) or program(s) offered by Woz U. As discussed in greater detail above, it was Respondent who recommended the "free" course/program to the District's administrators; it was Respondent who asked for the course/program to be implemented before it had been analyzed by the appropriate District's administrators; it was Respondent who asked for the course/program to be presented to the full Board before District's administrators thought it appropriate to do so; it was Respondent who had a "relationship" with the representative from Woz U; it was Respondent, and only Respondent, who accepted and attended an all-expense-paid seminar in Arizona to learn more about products and services that could be implemented in New Jersey; and it was Respondent who recognized that his acceptance and attendance at the all-expense-paid seminar created a conflict requiring recusal. It is also worth noting that at the time Respondent accepted and attended the all-expense-paid seminar in Arizona, he had already vigorously lobbied for the courses/programs offered by Woz U to be implemented in the District and, therefore, there was no justifiable reason for him to accept and attend the seminar to "learn more" – Respondent had already been convinced that the courses/programs were needed in the District and, as such, had already made his decision.

Moreover, acceptance of anything that is of any value, whether a good, product, or service, from any entity that is currently providing, could provide, or may theoretically provide a good, product, or service to the board of education on which an individual serves is the epitome of unethical. In this case, Woz U was not unknown to the Board or the members of its administrative staff, as it had already provided, as a result of Respondent's referral, at least one live presentation in the District about the service(s) it could provide. In addition, and following this presentation, members of the District's administration (Crespo and Graulich) were actively communicating with Woz U, via e-mail, about how, and if, the company could serve the needs of the District's students. P-3. Of particular importance, these communications occurred prior to the start of the all-expense-paid seminar.

Respondent's acceptance of and attendance at the all-expense-paid seminar in Arizona is exacerbated by the fact that the chief school administrator specifically recommended that Respondent not attend the seminar; at least one other administrator advised Respondent he would not attend the seminar; and Respondent recognized that his acceptance and attendance at the all-expense-paid seminar created a conflict because he agreed to, and did, recuse from any vote(s) involving Woz U. Furthermore, Respondent had ample time between the time the all-expense-paid seminar was offered (January 31, 2018), and the date of the seminar (February 20, 2018), to fully vet and receive clearance to attend (which he ultimately did not receive). Instead, and when the chief school administrator recommended that he not attend, Respondent blatantly disregarded her recommendation, and created a self-serving solution, namely recusal after acceptance of a gift.

If the Commission does not recommend the harshest form of penalty available, namely removal, neither board members nor administrators would be deterred from accepting a gift, of whatever value, from a current vendor, prospective vendor, or hypothetical vendor. Instead, board members and administrators would merely have to weigh the cost associated with a reprimand, censure, or even a suspension, with the benefit of receiving a gift. In other words, if school officials are permitted to accept even a nominal gift without the threat of removal, there is nothing which would prohibit the unethical acceptance of gifts. Consequently, the Commission recommends a penalty of removal.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c), this decision shall be forwarded to the Commissioner for review of the Commission's recommended sanctions. Parties may either: 1) file exceptions to the recommended sanction; 2) file an appeal of the Commission's findings of violations of the Act; or 3) file both exceptions to the recommended sanction and an appeal of the Commission's findings of violations of the Act.

Parties taking exception to the recommended sanctions of the Commission but not disputing the Commission's findings of violations may file, within thirteen (13) days from the date the Commission's decision is forwarded to the Commissioner, written exceptions regarding the recommended sanctions to the Commissioner. The forwarding date shall be the mailing date to the parties, as indicated below. Such exceptions must be forwarded to: Commissioner of Education, c/o Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Comments on Ethics Commission Sanction." A copy of any comments filed must be sent to the Commission and all other parties.

Parties seeking to appeal the Commission's findings of violations must file an appeal pursuant to the standards set forth at N.J.A.C. 6A:4, et seq. within thirty (30) days of the filing date of the decision from which the appeal is taken. The filing date shall be three (3) days after the mailing date to the parties, as indicated below. In such cases, the Commissioner's review of the Commission's recommended sanctions will be deferred and incorporated into the Commissioner's review of the findings of violations on appeal. Where a notice of appeal has been filed on or before the due date for exceptions to the Commission's recommended sanction (thirteen (13) days from the date the decision is mailed by the Commission), exceptions need not be filed by that date, but may be incorporated into the appellant's brief on appeal.

Resolution Adopting Decision in Connection with C48-18

Whereas, at its meeting on October 30, 2018, and following its ruling on Respondent's Motion to Dismiss in Lieu of Answer, the School Ethics Commission (Commission) voted to transmit the remaining allegations to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for a plenary hearing; and

OAL DKT. NO. EEC 17338-18
AGENCY DKT. NO. C48-18

JAMES SMITH,

Petitioner,

v.

EMMANUEL CAPERS, PATERSON BOARD OF EDUCATION, PASSAIC COUNTY,

Respondent.

James Smith, pro se

John C. Whipple, Esq., for respondents (Whipple Azzarello, attorneys)

Record Closed: December 5,2019 Decided: December 23, 2019

BEFORE KIMBERLY A. MOSS, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner James Smith (Smith) asserts that Emmanuel Capers (Capers), an elected member of the Paterson Board of Education (Board) and Paterson Township Board, violated the rules of ethics for school board members.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) and filed on December 4, 2018. The matter was heard on October 3, 2019, November 4, 2019, and December 5, 2019.

TESTIMONY

Eric Crespo

Eric Crespo (Crespo) has certificates from the State of New Jersey for supervisor, principal, and administrator. He is presently the Superintendent of Weehawken. He was the Associate Chief Academic Officer for Paterson in 2017. As Assistant Chief Academic Officer he oversaw program content and materials in class. At that time Capers was a member of the Board. Capers was on the curriculum committee.

In July 2017, Capers informed Crespo about Accelerated Learning Pathways (ALP) courses for junior and senior high school students. The courses were for coding. The services for the juniors and seniors would be free. Capers wanted the program implemented. A telephone conference was held on October 25, 2017. Crespo, William Gaurlich, Capers, and Billy Gardner (Gardner), the director of community outreach for ALP, were on the call. At that time ALP merged with Coder Campus. Both of which merged into Woz U. Capers advocated for Woz U to do a presentation before the Board. Crespo never heard of ALP until Capers mentioned them.

On January 31, 2018, a meeting was held with Crespo, Gaurlich, Capers, Hodges, Joanna Tsimpedes, and representatives from Woz U. Woz U discussed all of its programs. It made a marketing presentation. Some of its programs were not free. Prior to the meeting Woz U representatives had visited Eastside High School. A conference in Arizona was discussed at the meeting. It would be fully paid for by Woz U.

Capers sent Crespo a flyer about the conference in Arizona prior to the January 31, 2018, meeting stating, "you should go to this." Crespo did not fill out the papers for the conference. He told Capers that he could not go. Crespo was advised by Eileen Shaffer (Shaffer), the Superintendent of Paterson, not to go to the conference because there was no relationship with Woz U at that time and Woz U was a potential vendor. Crespo was not going to go on the trip because he did not want to be away from his family.

Woz U was concerned that the juniors and seniors in Paterson's coding skills were not up to par. There was a program to get the skills up to par, but it was not free. The Board did not contract with Woz U. Crespo did not initially believe the free program was offered as a hook for the Board to buy other programs from Woz U that were not free.

Woz-U offered prices for coding kits for first to tenth grade. The cost was $5,500 for the first thirty kits and ten dollars for students after thirty. They also offered prices for drone kits for third to tenth grade. The costs were the same: $5,500 for the first thirty kits and ten dollars for kits over thirty. Teaching coding to students is important.

Correa, Capers, Crespo, and Gaurlich were offered the trip to the Arizona conference.

Joann Tsimpedes

Tsimpedes is the Assistant Superintendent of Academic and Special Services in Paterson. There was a conference call on July 27, 2017, with ALP, Crespo, Capers, and herself. At that time there was no cost attached to the program. Capers brought ALP to their attention. She was present at the January 31, 2018, meeting with Woz U. Woz U provided a coding and drone program demonstration. She was not offered an expense-paid trip to Arizona by Woz U. The conference was mentioned at the end of the presentation. The policy is not to take free trips from vendors. No one from the district went to the conference in Arizona.

William Gaurlich

Gaurlich is a social studies teacher and supervisor of college and career readiness in Paterson. On February 26, 2018, Tsimpedes and Crespo were his supervisors. He was told that people were coming from Arizona—Woz U—to discuss computer curriculum. A presentation by Billy Garner of Woz U took place at the central office of the District. The presentation included free-online coding modules for juniors and seniors in high school. Woz U had coding kits for first to tenth grades. Those kits cost $5,500 for the first thirty and ten dollars for each additional student. Gardner stated that he had met Capers in Arizona. Gaurlich was not offered an expense-free trip to the Arizona Seminar. He never told Capers that he could not go on the trip.

After the presentation, Capers asked Gaurlich if he knew about the Arizona seminar. Gaurlich said no and Capers forwarded him the information. Gaurlich does not recall being told that he could not attend the conference. He received the price menu from Woz U.

Gaurlich was charged by Crespo to find ways to bring computer programing programs to the District. On August 28, 2018, there was a resolution signed by Gaurlich as well as the business department and legal department representative that approved the free online use of the Woz U program. Woz U did not complete the vendor contract. Gaurlich was interested in pursuing the free and paid content of Woz U. The resolution only addressed the free content. The District never used the free content from Woz U. He intended to use Woz U but the vendor agreement was not completed.

Gaurlich spoke with Pamela Powell, the school's liaison with the Board. He received permission to contact Capers to determine if Capers wanted to be included in meetings and updated about Woz U. Woz U wanted to do a presentation before the Board. This did not occur. Capers asked him about that proposed presentation. Gaurlich thought it was strange for Woz U to fly in from Arizona to do a presentation.

Gardner was the contact person for Woz U. There were emails between Gaurlich and Gardner discussing the products and services Woz U provided. Capers was not part of those emails.

Jose Correa

Correa is the director on instructional technology at Paterson. He was present at the January 31, 2018 conference, with the representatives from Woz U. Computer coding programs were discussed at the meeting. A seminar in Arizona, all expense paid, was discussed at the meeting. There were four all-expense-paid spots at the Arizona Seminar. Crespo, Gaurlich, Correa, and Capers were offered the spots. He received an email from Shaffer to look into the Arizona seminar. The legal department stated that it might be a conflict therefore do not attend. He was told do not let the vendor pay for airfare and hotel, and the individual Board members should follow the same protocol.

Correa told Capers that he was not going to the seminar in Arizona. Capers stated that he was still going. Correa asked Capers if a vote on Woz U came up what would he do. Capers said that he would recuse himself.

James Smith

Smith was a police officer for twenty-six years. Since he retired, he became executive director of security and internal investigation for the District. He held that position for twelve years.

Smith was contacted by Superintendent Shaffer on February 20, 2018, to determine if Capers went on an unauthorized trip to Arizona. He also spoke to Oshin Castillo (Castillo) about the investigation. He contacted Correa on February 23, 2018. Correa stated that Capers encouraged him to go to the seminar in Arizona when they met on February 5, 2018, at the Board of Education offices. Correa informed Capers that he was not going to the all-expense-paid seminar in Arizona.

Capers went to the all-expense-paid seminar in Arizona from February 20, 2018, to February 23, 2018. Smith checked to see if there was a Board resolution allowing Capes to go the seminar. There was no resolution. Smith was asked by the Superintendent to interview Capers, but Capers declined. At the time Capers went to the seminar, Woz U was not a vendor of the Board. Employees of the Board were directed not to go to the all-expense-paid seminar in Arizona. Capers is an elected official. He is not an employee of the Board. Smith does not know if Shaffer is Capers's boss.

As part of an investigation, Smith determines if the subject resides in Paterson. He checks the voting record to determine if the subject voted in Passaic or Bergen County. Shaffer became aware of Smith checking the voting record of Capers. He received a letter of reprimand and was told not to check Capers voting record or go to Capers's home. The letter of reprimand was retracted.

All of the Board members were offered to go to the seminar in Arizona, all expense paid. The Board Secretary and Superintendent told Capers not to go to the seminar. Smith received threats during the investigation. He reported the threats to Shaffer.

Smith can bring charges if he is directed by the Board or the Superintendent. Smith signed charges against Capers. Smith did not receive any document from the Board or the Superintendent to institute the charges. The Board sent the charges to the State in an incomplete form. On March 27, 2018, Smith did the complete report and forwarded copies to the Board President Castillo, Melissa Peirce, and Shaffer. He was told by Shaffer that the report would be sent to the ethics office in Trenton. Shaffer told him if he was contacted by the State to cooperate. The ethics panel contacted Smith stating that it needed a charge form. He filled out a charge form for the ethics office. Smith did not inform the Board or Shaffer that he filled out the charge document for the ethics office. The report states that Capers committed a violation. The report did not specify which part of the statute Capers violated. The decision to bring charges is a Board decision. Smith stated that his report was sent to the State to determine if charges should be brought.

Gardner had previously worked with Capers. Woz U became a vendor of the Board on August 29, 2018. They were a vendor for free services. When the Board voted on the Woz U resolutions, Capers did not vote. Capers is on the Board's curriculum committee, which makes recommendations to the full Board. Capers had Woz U fly in to Paterson to give the District free software. Smith did not investigate Woz U or its products.

Board Members and Commissioners approach vendors and are approached by vendors. Smith feels that it is improper. The Board determines which vendors give presentations.

Catherine Whalin spoke to a male investigator in Trenton. She informed Smith that for the complaint to continue, it needs to be on a complaint form. Whalin did not tell Smith to contact the Board or Shaffer.

Oshin Castillo

Oshin Castillo is a member and president of the Board. On February 20, 2018, she asked Smith to investigate Capers's trip to Arizona. Prior to this she spoke to Shaffer and the Board attorney asking how she should proceed. She was told by Shaffer of Capers going to Arizona while Capers was in Arizona.

Castillo was not offered the all-expense-paid trip to the seminar in Arizona. She does not know of any other Board member that was invited to go other than Capers. Castillo does not recall Capers asking for Woz U to do a presentation to the Board. She did not tell Capers that a resolution was needed for him to go to the seminar.

Castillo submitted Smith's report to the ethics office, the Commissioner of Education, and the other Board members to make sure the laws and policies were being followed. She requested advise on how to move forward. Castillo spoke to Capers after receiving Smith's report to know what was going on. She did not know that Woz U flew in for a presentation.

Eileen Shaffer

Shaffer is the Superintendent of the Paterson School system. On February 20, 2018, she spoke to Castillo and the Board's general counsel regarding Capers going on an all-expense-paid seminar to Arizona. She asked Smith to investigate and contact Castillo. Prior to February 20, 2018, Shaffer spoke to other Board members regarding Capers all-expense-paid seminar in Arizona. Castillo brought the issue to her attention.

Shaffer knew that Correa was offered the all-expense-paid trip to the seminar. She does not know the requirement for receiving all expense paid to the seminar in Arizona. She did not know that Capers asked for Woz U to do a presentation prior to the trip, she did not have anyone look into the seminar since it was free. She spoke to Capers and recommended that he not go to the seminar because Woz U could be a vendor. Woz U became a vendor of the Board for free services. Shaffer knew that Woz U came to Paterson to discuss the services they provided.

I FIND the following FACTS in this case.

Capers is an elected member of the Paterson School Board. He was a member in 2017. He was on the curriculum committee. Crespo was the Associate Chief Academic officer in Paterson in 2017-2018. In July 2017, there was a conference call with Capers, Crespo, and Tsimpedes, the Assistant Superintendent of Academic and Special Services in Paterson. Capers brought to their attention a possible vendor which at that time was the ALP, which later became WOZ U, that would provide free coding courses for juniors and seniors. Woz U also sold educational programs and drone programs.

On January 31, 2018, Capers, Commissioner Hodges, Crespo, Correa, Gaurlich, and Tsimpedes met with a Woz U representative, Billy Gardner. Gardner had previously known Capers and did a marketing presentation of Woz U's programs. Woz U also had programs that were not free which included coding for first to tenth grades.

Woz U was concerned that the Paterson juniors and seniors coding skills were not up to par. It offered a program to get their skills up to par but that program was not free.

Gardner mentioned that there would be a seminar in Arizona that they could attend, which would be fully paid for by Woz U. Prior to the meeting Capers sent Crespo a flyer regarding the seminar. Correa was advised by Shaffer to look into the seminar. The legal department informed him that there might be a conflict. He was also informed to not let Woz U pay for the airfare and hotel. He was advised that Board members should follow the same protocol.

Crespo was advised by Superintendent of Paterson Shaffer not to go to the seminar because Paterson did not have a relationship with Woz U and Woz u was a potential vendor. Correa told Capers that he was not going to the seminar. Capers stated that he was going to the seminar and that if a vote came up on Woz U at the Board, he would recuse himself. Shaffer spoke with Capers recommending that he not go to the seminar because Woz U could become a vendor for the Board. No employee of the District went to the all-expense-paid seminar in Arizona. Capers is not an employee of the District, he is an elected official.

President of the Paterson Board of Education Castillo was told by Shaffer that Capers went to the all-expense-paid seminar sponsored by Woz U. She consulted with Shaffer and the Board Attorney and requested an investigation. Smith is an investigator for Paterson. He was contacted by Castillo and Shaffer investigate Capers going on the all-expense-paid seminar to Arizona sponsored by Woz U.

Capers went to the seminar from February 20, 2018, to February 23, 2018. Capers declined to be interviewed by Smith. Smith's investigation included checking if Capers resides in Paterson and checking his voting records. Smith was told by Shaffer not to check Capers's voting records or go to Capers's house.

Smith completed his investigation on March 27, 2018. He forwarded the report to Castillo, Pierce, and Shaffer. Castillo submitted Smith's report to the State Ethics Office, the Commissioner of Education, and other Board Members. Smith was contacted by the ethics office because it needed a charge form. Smith completed and sent the charge form to the ethics office without consulting Castillo or Shaffer. The report was sent to the ethics office to determine if charges should be brought against Capers.

On August 28, 2018, there was a resolution approved by the legal and business departments for the free use of the Woz U program. Capers recused himself from the vote. Woz U did not complete the vendor contract.

Capers was not told by Castillo that a resolution was necessary for him to go to the seminar in Arizona.

LEGAL ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSION

N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(c) provides:

> A school board member shall abide by the following Code of Ethics for School Board Members:
>
> . . .
> c. I will confine my board action to policy making, planning, and appraisal, and I will help to frame policies and plans only after the board has consulted those who will be affected by them.

In this matter Capers brought Woz U to the District's attention. Woz U had a program that would offer free coding services to high school juniors and seniors. Being a member of the curriculum committee, Capers bringing to the District's attention a coding curriculum program would be consistent with being on the curriculum committee. Capers bringing Woz U to the attention of the District is not framing policy or plans. It is providing information regarding a program that the District could consider using. There was no documentation or admission by Gardner or Capers that Capers and Gardner had a previous business relationship.

Capers sent out a flyer regarding the all-expense-paid seminar in Arizona. He spoke to Correa and Crespo about whether they would attend the seminar. The flyer and the conversations do not violate N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(c).

I CONCLUDE Capers did not violate N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(c).

N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e) provides:

> A school board member shall abide by the following Code of Ethics for School Board Members:
>
> . . .
> e. I will recognize that authority rests with the board of education and will make no personal promises nor take any private action that may compromise the board.

There was no testimony or evidence that Capers made any personal promises to anyone connected to Woz U. Capers going to the all-expense-paid seminar in Arizona could have been done to get a clearer understanding of the programs that Woz U offered. Woz U was not a vendor of the Board at the time of the seminar. Capers going to the seminar did not compromise the Board. There was no testimony or evidence that Capers attempted to sway the other Board members to vote on a resolution to have Woz U become a vendor for the District. The only testimony from a Board member was from Castillo. She did not testify that he tried to persuade her to vote for Woz u as a vendor. Capers was not informed by Castillo that a resolution was necessary for him to attend the all-expense-free seminar. When the vote to determine if Woz U should be a vendor for Paterson was held, Capers recused himself.

I CONCLUDE Capers did not violate N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e).

N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(f) provides:

>
> . . .
> f. I will refuse to surrender my independent judgement to special interest or partisan political groups or to use the schools for personal gain or for the gain of friends.

There was no evidence or documentation that Capers had a prior business relationship with Woz U or anyone related to Woz U. Capers knew Gardner, but there was no testimony as to how they knew each other or the extent of their relationship. There was no evidence that Capers surrendered his independent judgment to Woz U. Going to the all-expense-paid seminar in Arizona and recusing himself on the vote to determine if Woz U would be a vendor to the Board without more evidence is not enough to show that Capers surrendered his independent judgement to anyone.

The seminar was offered to Capers and others in the District. Capers is the only one from Paterson who went to the seminar. There is no evidence that Capers used the school to get the all-expense-paid seminar in Arizona. Woz U offered four slots to the all-expense-paid seminar.

I CONCLUDE Capers did not violate N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(f).

ORDER

Based on the foregoing, it is ORDERED that the petition that Capers violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(c), (e), and (f) be DENIED.

I hereby FILE my Initial Decision with the SCHOOL ETHICS COMMISSION. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29, the School Ethics Commission has jurisdiction to determine whether a violation of the School Ethics Act occurred. If it concludes that the conduct constitutes a violation of the School Ethics Act, it shall recommend an appropriate penalty to the Commissioner of Education. The Commissioner of Education shall issue the final decision in this matter.

If the School Ethics Commission determines that a violation has occurred, it shall issue a written decision recommending to the Commissioner of Education an appropriate penalty and shall forward the record, including this recommended decision and its decision, to the Commissioner of Education. The Commissioner of Education may subsequently render a final decision as to the appropriate penalty. If the Commissioner of Education does not render a final decision within forty-five days of its receipt of this initial decision, and unless such time period is otherwise extended, the recommended decision of the School Ethics Commission shall become the final decision.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the SCHOOL ETHICS COMMISSION, DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, NJ 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

DECISION AND AWARD

Pursuant to NJSA 18A:6-10 and NJSA 18A:6-16, the undersigned Arbitrator was appointed to hear and determine the above captioned matter which was appealed to arbitration by tenured staff member Jennifer Resil-Johnson ("Respondent") after the Piscataway Township Board of Education ("Petitioner") terminated her employment.

Over Petitioner's objections, hearings were conducted using the ZOOM video conferencing platform on August 20 and 21, 2020 due to concerns about the COVID19 pandemic. During those hearings, both parties had an opportunity to call and confront witnesses, produce non-testimonial evidence, and make arguments. At the conclusion of the hearings, the parties elected to submit post-hearing briefs in lieu of oral summations. The briefs have been received, and there being no procedural objections material to the substance of the case, this matter is ready for adjudication on its merits.

Background:

Respondent was employed by Petitioner as a substitute English teacher beginning late December 2004 at Petitioner's Conackamack Middle School and was eventually appointed as a permanent Language Arts/Literacy teacher, acquiring tenure in that position. That status is protected by what is known as the TEACHNJ Act adopted by the New Jersey legislature in 2012.

At some point Petitioner gauged her to be only a partially effective teacher,[1] an evaluation that caused her to be placed on Professional Growth Plans for the 2017-2018. Effective September 1, 2018, Respondent was moved from Conackamack to the Piscataway High School as an English teacher in a remedial behavior program called "Piscataway Students Seeking Success" (hereinafter "PS3"). Following similar evaluations of marginal effectiveness in subsequent years, Petitioner placed Respondent on such Plans for the 2018-2019, and 2019-2020 school years. Additionally, Respondent was subject to a salary increment withholding for the 2018-2019 school year and faced a threatened increment withholding for the 2019-2020 school year. Supporting all those actions were not only evaluations of poor teaching effectiveness but reprimands regarding deportment and classroom management in the 2017-2018 and 2018-2019 school years.

On or about December 19, 2019 Petitioner moved to end Respondent's employment and tenure based on her alleged conduct in the 2019-2020 school year. The claimed conduct included disregard for both Petitioner's cell phone use policy and its medication administration policy as well as making misrepresentations to Petitioner about such behavior, misuse of a sick day on November 15, 2019, and transporting a student in Respondent's personal vehicle that same day school day. Formal tenure charges were filed certified against her on December 20, 2019 and filed with the Commissioner of Education on January 22, 2020.

[1] Prior to the hearings in this matter, the undersigned granted Respondent's Motion in Limine to exclude evidence of any teaching ineffectiveness as that accusation was not cited as grounds for her removal. Those grounds only included conduct unbecoming both generally and by virtue of policy violations.

Respondent challenges Petitioner's allegations as unsupportive of removal.

Issue to be Determined:

Do Petitioner's charges justify Respondent's termination and removal as a tenured staff member under the TEACHNJ Act; and if not, what shall the remedy be?

Factual Contentions of Petitioner:

Petitioner called four witnesses at hearing, beginning with its Director of Human Resources, Catherine Sousa. Ms. Sousa's job responsibilities include personnel investigations and discipline, the latter of which involves recommending personnel penalties to upper level administration. (NT 12).

Ms. Sousa introduced B-5[2], an exhibit which she described as the "Conduct" section of the Petitioner's Employee Handbook, and Petitioner's Exhibit B-24. The latter bears the signature of Respondent signaling receipt of the Handbook and by implication, the "Conduct" rules. (NT 15-16). Ms. Sousa asserted the Handbook and Conduct rules are available throughout the District and on the District's website. (NT 17). As for B-4, Ms. Sousa testified that in Policy 5141.21 Petitioner's rules on the administration of medication to students is explained (NT 19). She pointed out that those rules cover prescription as well as non-prescription drugs (NT 20) and that a set of regulations that follow are more specific than the medication policy. Ms. Sousa testified that Respondent had admitted to her that she had administered medication to two students in school year 2019-2020. (NT 125-126). Petitioner's dictates do not authorize teachers to give drugs to students.

Ms. Sousa further identified B-2 and B-3. The former defines "conduct unbecoming" of a school employee and gives the Petitioner authority to take appropriate action in response to such behavior. The latter which lays out Petitioner's rules on the use of electronic communication by school staff. (NT 22). She contended the latter has been part of the Petitioner's conduct code since 2014. (NT 22, 23).

[2] References to exhibits herein are designated as "B_____" for Board (Petitioner) exhibits and "R_____" for Respondent Exhibits.

Turning to Petitioner's history with Respondent, which began with Respondent's hire in 2004 (NT 13), Ms. Sousa related that Respondent had been transferred from her job as a language arts/literacy teacher at Conackamack Middle School in June 2018 to a position in Petitioner's PS3 program at Piscataway High School.[3] (NT 24-25, 41, 111; B-12). Part of Respondent's duties there included motivating students to attend and stay in school. (NT 111). In addition, Ms. Sousa referenced B-11 which informed Petitioner that her salary increment raise was being withheld, i.e., denied, for school year 2018-2019. (NT 124-125). Importantly, Ms. Sousa introduced a Professional Growth Plan for Respondent which was effective in the 2017-2018 school year that stated, inter alia, "Curtail all use of your cell phone or other personal business to your designated lunch/prep periods in the faculty room or in an area which will reliably be free from student use." (NT 45; B-29).

On cross-examination, Ms. Sousa agreed that the policy does not contain an absolute prohibition against communicating with students by cell phone and that pupil transportation to and from school is "most definitely" a bona fide matter of school business as is pupil health and safety. (NT 113, 115, 118-119, 130; c.f., 116)[4]. She said she was unaware of any teacher having their tenure revoked for a "singular" use of a cell phone during the school day. (NT 121, 122, 123-124). However, she contended that she knew of staff members who had been disciplined for cell phone use during the school day. (NT 122).

In addition to the foregoing,, Ms. Sousa recounted that at the beginning of the 2017-2018 school year Petitioner sent Respondent a memorandum which Ms. Sousa characterized as a "written reprimand" (NT 45; B-9) for allegedly tolerating egregious student misbehavior in her room at Conackamack.

In the 2018-2019 school year, Ms. Sousa stated, Respondent was chastised in a memo for leaving her classroom allegedly unattended for a period of just under one minute. (NT 49; B-14). About five weeks later, according to Ms. Sousa, a meeting was held with Respondent, Superintendent of Schools Frank Ranelli, Ms. Sousa, and a union representative named Ted

[3] Ms. Sousa described the PS3 program as a self-contained classroom for problem students with attendance, high-risk behavior, and conduct issues in which the lead teacher, in this case Respondent, works with an aide and subject matter specialists who circulate in and out of the room to actually instruct pupils. (NT 42).

[4] Summarizing notes recorded at an interview with Respondent which Ms. Sousa did not attend, the latter said Respondent had told Petitioner that she gave her cell phone number to students for transportation and emergency usage. (NT 127). In connection with the latter use, a student had informed Respondent via cell phone text that he had seriously assaulted another student. (NT129). As for the former, Ms. Sousa noted a text to and from Respondent relating to bussing to school. (NT 128).

Simonitis. (NT 51; B-16). A memorandum of that meeting (B-16) indicates that although the Petitioner was on the verge of again withholding a salary increment from Respondent for the 2019-2020 school year, Superintendent Ranelli refrained "in the interest of providing [Respondent] the opportunity to be successful in [her] relatively new assignment," i.e., the PS3 self-contained classroom. (B-16; NT 59).

That brought the parties to the 2019-2020 school year when, in November, Ms. Sousa said, she became aware of another problem with Respondent. This issue involved the review by Petitioner's Director of Administrative Services, Colleen Pongratz, of text messages sent to and from Respondent and some of her students in the PS3 program. (NT 60). That discovery resulted in Respondent being suspended, apparently with pay, for two days (NT 61) and two interviews of Respondent with administrators.

Ms. Sousa attended the first of those on November 26 and took notes. (B-16). Ms. Sousa testified about the portions of her notes that were admitted into testimony, namely the questions asked of and answers proffered by Respondent. Among the dialog between Respondent and Ms. Pongratz, Ms. Sousa recalled, was Respondent's claim that she only communicated with her students via cell phone about difficulties they were having with transportation to school.[5] But Ms. Sousa testified that she had since discovered that the claim was untrue. (NT 71, 85, 89). For instance, she testified to having seen a text from a student identified herein as "KP" that was given to her by Ms. Pongratz which Ms. Sousa indicated that KP and Respondent had exchanged texts about whether Respondent had Advil or not. (NT 86). Further, Ms. Sousa said the text messages indicated Respondent had given KP Advil and asked her not to tell anyone. (NT 87). Petitioner reported the administration of Advil to public agencies, but the agencies neither investigated nor took any action on the matter. (NT 132-133, 135, 136).

Further, Ms. Sousa contended she was present when Respondent was asked during an interview about test messages indicating she had taken one of her students, identified herein as "TW" shopping on a day Respondent had taken off on sick leave. (NT 89; B-21). Ms. Sousa noted on cross-examination that teacher sick leave use can be subject to a showing of medical excuse, but none was required by Petitioner for the day in question. (NT 119-120). Ms. Sousa averred that Respondent explained in an interview with administrators that she had learned TW was claiming she had no appropriate school clothes and therefore Respondent picked her up in [5] Pupils in the PS3 program are brought to school each day on a dedicated bus used only for them.

Respondent's private vehicle, took TW to breakfast, and then took her shopping . (B-17; NT 91-94). Ms. Sousa said Petitioner's policy regarding unbecoming conduct did not specifically proscribe transporting students in teacher's private vehicle. (NT 130).

In concluding her direct testimony, Ms. Sousa summarized the basis of Petitioner's tenure removal action as based on "the major issues." She described those as the administration of medication to students, sharing of Respondent's cell phone with students, theft of time by taking a sick day without evidence of illness or injury, and taking a student in her personal vehicle. (NT 106-107).

Petitioner's second witness was Coleen Pongratz, Director of Administrative Services, a position that directly supports the Superintendent of Schools as well as building principals and department heads. (NT 137). As did Ms. Sousa, Ms. Pongratz described the PS3 program as fitted for students with disciplinary and other issues that have not been remediated through less stringent measures. (NT 140-141).

Ms. Pongratz said she learned from another administrator in November 2019 that Respondent had exchanged text messages (BX 19) with students she supervised in the PS3 program. One set was exchanged the night before Ms. Pongratz learned of them and involved a fight between two boys. In those exchanges, a boy, referred to herein as AB, shared details of the fight with Respondent who in turn, voluntarily shared the messages with an administrator herself.[6] (NT 142, 144). Ms. Pongratz characterized the texts as an effort by AB to "reach out" to Respondent for assistance.[7] (NT 145). The messages revealed the fight was off school premises but that other students, including at two in the PS3 program witnessed it. (NT 155-156).

Ms. Pongratz then interviewed Respondent in the presence of High School Vice President Jonathan Bizzell, Ms. Sousa, school counsellor Shirley Aviles, and print shop teacher Ryan Ward. (BX 18; NT 146, 148, 149). Respondent's Association representative Ted Simonitis attended as well. (NT 154). During the interview, Ms. Pongratz and the other administrators discovered that Respondent had given her cell phone number to students who were both current and former members of the PS3 program. (NT 157, 158).

[6] As seen below, that administrator was Piscataway High School Vice Principal, Jonathan Bizzell.

[7] AB's texts indicate that he beat another student unconscious and was both remorseful and worried about the consequences of his actions. (BX 19).

In addition to the foregoing, Ms. Pongratz testified that during her investigation of the foregoing she found out from Respondent that Respondent had exchanged text messages with another student in the PS3 program whom Respondent had taken shopping in Respondent's car and treated to breakfast so that the student could buy clothes for school. On that day, Respondent was off on paid sick leave. (BX 21; NT 162-163, 164).[8] Ms. Pongratz stated that Respondent admitted that she had sent/received all the text messages in question (NT 169,170) and acknowledged that in writing (BX 23). (NT 171).

Turning to another basis on which Petitioner seeks tenure removal, Ms. Pongratz testified that teachers are generally not permitted to give medicine to students except epinephrine through an "EpiPen" for anaphylactic shock. Instead, the teacher is to refer the student to the school nurse. (NT 172-173). That prohibition extends even when a parent has given permission for teacher-administered medicine. (NT 173). Yet, Ms. Pongratz said Respondent admitted giving Advil to female students suffering menstrual discomfort. (NT 174).

Jonathan Bizzell, the Assistant Principal at Piscataway High School and Respondent's direct supervisor (NT 200), appeared as Petitioner's third witness. He testified that he and another Assistant Principal, Maria Cetta, prepared a memorandum (BX 14) asserting Respondent had left her PS3 classroom uncovered for a time on May 9, 2019 during which a disturbance occurred that required Respondent's request for school security. Mr. Bizzell said he received in turn a written response from Respondent dated June 3, 2019 (BX 15) in which Respondent claimed she had asked a teacher in an adjoining classroom connected by a door to her room to supervise her class and further contending she left her class for a medical emergency necessitating the use of a lavatory. (NT 196-197). Mr. Bizzell explained that during his investigation of the matter, Respondent contended to him that she had asked the other teacher to mind her class but did not claim that teacher did so. (NT 199).

He further testified that late in November 2019, Respondent contacted him and forwarded text messages concerning a fight her student, AB, had been in. (NT 200-201, 202 222,). The text messages detailing the fight and AB's concern about it (BX 19) led to Respondent's disclosure of other text messages to and from her students on a variety of topics. (NT 203). This led Mr.

[8] On cross-examination, Ms. Pongratz stated that Petitioner asked Respondent for medical support for taking sick leave that day and was told by the latter a note would be submitted, but it was not. (NT 183-184).

Bizzell to investigate "the depth of communication that [Respondent] had with her students via text." (N 204). During the investigation, Mr. Bizzell recalled, he and a Dean, Ms. Eyler, interviewed the student correspondents. (NT 207-211).[9]

On cross-examination, Mr. Bizzell said that he and Respondent had several conversations with AB's mother and said the three had agreed that Respondent could text with AB "through his mother," meaning that AB's mother had to be aware of the communication. (NT 223; also see, NT 224-225, 227). Further, Mr. Bizzell denied Respondent had authorization to text other students and further denied knowing before the AB fight that Respondent had been texting students. (NT 225-226). However, he conceded that Respondent could contact a parent without permission from Respondent's superiors. (NT 229). He further agreed with Respondent's counsel that he was not in the classroom in May 2019 when Respondent allegedly left her students unattended and only knew what he saw on security cameras in the room at the time. He said they did not show another adult present during Respondent's absence. (NT 230). Neither did he have what he termed "a formal discussion," nor did he "officially" speak with, the teacher whom Respondent claimed to have asked to cover her room because that teacher did not want to discuss the matter with him. (NT 230, 231, 232, 233). Finally, Mr. Bizzell said he was unaware whether other teachers had been the subject of tenure removal efforts because of cell phone use during the workday. (NT 246).

Petitioner's last witness was its Superintendent, Dr. Frank Ranelli. Dr. Ranelli agreed that many of the allegations contained in the tenure charges against Respondent were beyond the scope of his personal knowledge but claimed familiarity with others. (NT 251). Of the latter was a 2017-2018 evaluation report (BX 10) for which he personally conducted a classroom observation of Respondent (BX 10; NT 252). Dr. Ranelli noted that he observed and recorded that Respondent was not in her classroom until 4 minutes after the period was to begin despite knowing that Dr. Ranelli would be observing her sometime around the date of the actual observation. (NT 254). There was no one covering her class for that time. (254-255). In a discussion about her tardiness after his observation, Dr. Ranelli recalled, Respondent told him she thought she thought she had a 504 Plan[10] and that it covered a medical issue which forced her to use a lavatory unexpectedly. (NT 269-270, 271). Dr. Ranelli said that Respondent told him she had tried to get someone to cover her class at that time in accordance with policy that required contacting the school office first but was unsuccessful. (NT 273). He said she did not tell him she had first attempted to call the school office (273-274) and in fact admitted that she had not done so. (NT 275).

Dr. Ranelli further testified about a meeting he conducted with Respondent on June 17, 2019 which was the subject of a memorandum he authored after the meeting[11]. (BX 19; NT 257). Dr. Ranelli said that given his prior experience with Respondent not being in her classroom for a period, he was concerned about her absence from class on May 9, 2019 for a brief period. (NT 258). Additionally, he said, he wanted to discuss other issues about Respondent's classroom management to assist her. (Id.). Dr. Ranelli said he was considering yet another increment withholding for Respondent in school year 2019-2020 but decided not to do that as what he called a "point of good faith" and instead resolved to "offer an olive branch" between her and the administration. (NT 258, 259). In his after-meeting memo, Dr. Ranelli noted that the discussion had covered, among other things, the Petitioner's policy on the use of personal cell phones, since he said video of her absence on May 7, 2019 showed her using her cell phone outside the classroom. Dr. Ranelli stated that when accused of that act, Respondent did not dispute it. (NT 261). He also testified that during the discussion he thought there was an understanding that Petitioner's policies were never again to be violated or disregarded by Respondent. (NT 264).

Following an investigation into Respondent's alleged acts and omission during the first half of the 2019-2020 school year, Dr. Ranelli said, a memorandum was prepared by Ms. Pongratz averring several violations of policy by Respondent, including unauthorized administration of medication to students, sharing her personal cell phone number with students, theft of time for abusing sick leave on November 19, 2020, and conduct unbecoming for using her personal vehicle to transport a student during the same day. (BX 23; NT 265-266).

[10] Section 504 of a federal act known as the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 that affords protection for staff in designated educational settings against discrimination based on disability. (See, NT 270).

[11] Contrary to Dr. Ranelli, Respondent testified that the meeting at which Petitioner decided not to withhold her increment for school year 2019-2020 occurred not on June 17, 2019 but July 16 of that year (NT 330) and that she did not attend a meeting with Petitioners on June 17. (NT 330-331, 334).

Concluding his testimony, Dr. Ranelli said the investigation convinced him that Respondent viewed Petitioner's policies as merely "suggestions" she could follow or ignore as she saw fit. (NT 267).

Factual Contentions of Respondent:

Respondent testified in her own defense. After describing the PS3 program into which she had been placed at the beginning of the 2017-2018 school year, she asserted that her responsibility in the program included assisting students in attendance and their social and emotional welfare. She maintained that that role included attempting to keep students in school and on good behavior. (NT 304, 305). Turning her attention to a June 29, 2017 reprimand for having an unruly classroom at Conackamack Middle School (BX 9), Respondent explained she had allowed students to be in her room for lunch to protect them against bullying in the cafeteria. She recounted that the students were there and that she was on her own lunch break when a group of unruly pupils entered the classroom and began what she called "horseplay." (NT 306). Respondent testified she ordered them out of her room and called the school's office which apparently produced a counselor about 30 minutes later. (NT 306-307). When the incident occurred, Respondent contended, she was watching a video in preparation for an up-coming lesson. (NT 307).

She said that when interviewed by administration about the matter she explained the roles of the students who had been eating in her room and the conduct of those who entered uninvited and that Ms. Sousa had dismissed the episode as "kids will be kids." However, her principal at the time advised her to, among other things, "Curtail the use of our cell phone to your designated lunch/prep periods in the faculty room or in an area reliable free from student use." (BX 9).

Respondent also testified to her Summative Evaluation for the 2017-2018 school year in which she was graded as "Partially Effective." As a result of that grade she was denied a salary increment for the next school year and placed on a remedial Professional Improvement Plan. (BX 10).

The evaluation that triggered those measures included the four-minute absence from the beginning of her classroom, as observed by Dr. Ranelli, above. Respondent explained her absence then as the result of her medical problem for which she had to make emergent use of a lavatory but only after, as she testified, she had tried calling the office to get another teacher to cover for her. (NT 311). Respondent also averred that in the past she had gotten emergency coverage from administrators and the school secretary, but that she had not known nor asked for inclusion in a 504 plan. (NT 311-312). Respondent said that during that 2017-2018 school year she had frequently used her cell phone to communicate with other teachers on school business. (NT 313). It was after that school year she was transferred to the PS3 program. (NT 312).

According to Respondent, cell phone use for school matters became more important after she transferred to the PS3 program to communicate with administrators, staff, deans, and parents because she had no privacy using her desk phone. (NT 314). Respondent gave the impression pupils in the PS3 program were not tractable at times, explaining that she eventually had to ask for a walkie-talkie to communicate with school security. (NT 316). Nevertheless, she testified, she continued to communicate with school staff using her cell phone and text messages, a practice she was encouraged to use in lieu of the walkie-talkie when necessary. (NT 318-319).

Respondent also spoke to the accusation that she left her class unattended May 9, 2019. (BX 14). Not contesting the fact she left, she said she needed an emergency bathroom break, Respondent vigorously insisted that she had asked the teacher in the adjoining room, Alexandria Artist, to cover for her after unsuccessfully trying to reach her own paraprofessional who was on a school errand, school security on the walkie-talkie, and the school office. (NT 323-324). She said that Ms. Artist stood in the doorway between their two classrooms as Respondent went through the door to the lavatory. (NT 325-326). Respondent said she thought she had a 504 plan in place at the time but was told by Ms. Sousa that the plan had expired previously. (NT 327-328).

Respondent further testified that prior to the 2019-2010 school year she was not aware of a Petitioner policy that prohibited texting to and from students (NT 335) and said that she had only "probably glanced" at the policy, in evidence as BX 3, after she received her tenure charges. (NT 336, 337). She also contended that she did not "receive a physical copy" of the Petitioner's policy covering unbecoming conduct. (BX 5). (NT 337). As for the former, Respondent said she thought cell phone communication with students was to be kept to "school business." (NT 338). She said she gave students her cell phone number primarily to keep in touch with them about transportation issues since the PS3 pupils can only get to and from school on a special bus. (NT 339, 340). She further claimed she only used her cell phone to communicate with students "approximately" three times. (NT 340).

Respondent more specifically testified about her communication with student AB via text messages (BX 19) about homework, a social media post involving a girl, and ultimately about a fight he had with another student identified as AB. (NT 340-344). Respondent said she had received permission from his mother to text him and in fact communicated with the mother "just about every single day of the week." (NT 346).

Also, Respondent acknowledged texting with a female student named TW who had left the PS3 program but was considered a candidate for re-induction. (BX 21; NT 344-345)[12]. She further stated that she shared email with TW with administration (RX 5; NT 360- 361) and was not asked at the time why she was texting with the student. (NT 361, 362).

Respondent acknowledged that on November 15, 2019, a day Respondent had taken off sick, she did take TW shopping[13] and for breakfast. (NT 365, 367). Respondent said she did so with TW's mother's compliance "through the student." (NT 370). As for her own absence from work that day, Respondent explained she had an appointment to see a specialist that had been made two months in advance. She agreed she only submitted the notice of the absence the night before she took off, but that that met compliance with the collective bargaining agreement between her Association and Petitioner. (NT 365-366). She said she was never asked for a note documenting the absence (NT 368) and contended that she was never shown a copy of a Petitioner policy prohibiting the transportation of students in teacher vehicles. (NT 369).

Respondent further testified that she gave KP Advil with the consent of the latter's mother. (NT 370)[14]. She explained that she told KP not to tell anyone because she did not want to create a practice of students seeking medication from her. (NT 371). She further explained that she did not refer KP to the school nurse because students in the PS3 program will take advantage of out-of-classroom permission to avoid doing work in class. (NT 372). Respondent admitted that in hindsight she would not do the same again. (Id.). She said she did the same thing for AB, but only to keep him in school and with the consent of his mother. Further, in AB's case, he had brought the medicine to school with him. (NT 373).

[12] Communication between Respondent at TW included texts about dental treatment as a cause of absence from school. (NT 359-360).

[13] TW had told Respondent she had nothing to wear to school and was indigent. (BX 21; JRX 4; NT 363).

[14] In brief testimony, KP's mother confirmed she had given such permission. (NT 429-430).

Also testifying for Respondent was the mother of student "AB," designated herein as "CB." She testified that her son was in Respondent's PS3 class for over a month in the fall of 2019 (NT 349) and that she communicated with Respondent about AB's academics and attendance. (NT 350). In addition, CB said that Respondent contacted her about giving AB Advil for a headache and that she gave Respondent permission to do so. (Id.). However, CB said she did not provide Advil to Respondent nor did her son. (NT 351,352). CB explained she had no knowledge of Petitioner's policy toward the administration of medicine by staff. (NT 353, 354). She added that she authorized Respondent to text AB directly to encourage his attendance. (NT 351).

Arguments of Petitioner:

Petitioner acknowledges that New Jersey's teacher tenure statues, as amended by the 2012 TEACHNJ act, are aimed at protecting public school employees from dismissal for lack of proper cause. Wright v. Bd. Of Educ. Of East Orange, 99 NJ 112, 118 (1985). Petitioner says that cause for dismissal may consists of conduct unbecoming a teacher, In re Riddick, 93 NJAR 2d (EDU) 345 (1993), as well as violation of specific school district policies. In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Carol Ziznewski, School District of the Township of Edison, (August 2010) https:www.nj.gov/education/legal/commission/2-1; In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Paula Weckesser, School District of the Township of Woodbridge, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 09195-12, Agency Dkt.No. EDU 09195-12; adopted by Commissioner September 16, 2013.

Petitioner further says Respondent obviously exhibited unbecoming conduct and disregard of Petitioner's policies throughout the 2019-2020 school year, an attitude that was a continuation of her flaunting of rules in prior years. For example, the administration of drugs to students by her was expressly forbidden by Petitioner's policy as well as New Jersey school regulations. Yet Respondent did exactly that regarding both AB and KP, the latter of whom was put in Respondent's PS3 class for drug abuse. What is even more egregious, Petitioner says, KP had allegedly been to the school nurse and could have been given another medication by the nurse that Respondent would not know about when she gave KP Advil. Moreover, Petitioner argues, Respondent acknowledged that she knew she was violating policy when she texted KP not to tell anyone. Equally telling of Respondent's consciousness of fault is the fact Respondent never informed the school that she had administered medication on an emergency basis.

In addition to the administration of over-the-counter drugs, Petitioner says, Respondent violated Petitioner's cell phone policy by texting AB, KP, and TW repeatedly. The offended policy was in keeping with NJSA 18A:36-40, which requires local school districts to propound policies regarding communications between teacher and students.

Moreover, Petitioner says, Respondent committed a grave fault in taking TW to breakfast and shopping on a school day when Respondent had claimed a sick day. This would be true, Petitioner argues, even if Respondent had the permission of the student's mother, as she claimed she did. That junket, Petitioner says, violated not only the general unbecoming conduct standard but also the Petitioner' prohibition against the transport of students in personal vehicles, and what the Petitioner asserts was misuse of its sick leave requirements.

As to the final alleged offense, Petitioner derides Respondent's claim that she asked for and procured the presence of another teacher to watch her class on an occasion when she claims to have needed use of the restroom. Petitioner points out that at hearing, Respondent did not call the teacher she claimed had watched her class as a witness. Petitioner asks that an inference to be drawn that such testimony would not have supported Respondent's case.

Petitioner closes by noting Respondent was on her third consecutive Professional Improvement Plan when she was fired, a result Petitioner claims of three straight years of sub-standard performance[15], which included reporting late for class even though she had been told she would have a classroom observation that day. And, Petitioner notes, Respondent showed no signs at hearing of acknowledging her behavioral short-comings and taking responsibility for them. For that reason, Petitioner argues, even had she had an unblemished record, she should not be immune from discharge. In re Parezo, 2013 WL 4525436 (App. Div. 2013).[16] Respondent's attitude as well as her past conduct weigh heavily against any reinstatement based on a theory of progressive discipline, according to Petitioner. Such a reinstatement order would ignore [15] Although the evaluations are part of the record, prior to the hearing, the undersigned ruled on a motion in limine that only those portions of the evaluations relating to alleged unbecoming conduct would be admitted at hearing. (NT 4).

[16] "[P]articularly disturbing here is [appellant's] refusal—even at this late date—to recognize the seriousness of her actions or take responsibility for them. Rather she continues to view the whole incident as de minimis in nature and scope…Given her steadfast attitude in this regard the Commissioner is not persuaded that such conduct would not be repeated in the future. Under these circumstances, the Commissioner cannot entertain the prospect of [appellant's] return to the District…"

Respondent's actual past record which is tainted by her own acts of unbecoming conduct, Petitioner concludes.

Arguments of Respondent:

Respondent rejects Petitioner's claim that administration of medication to students supports removal of her tenure. She does not dispute the administration to KP and AB, but maintains she did so for altruistic reasons, i.e., to keep them in school and more particularly on task in her room rather than leaving school or going for medicine to the school nurse where they could malinger and miss assigned classwork. All the same, Respondent says she has expressed remorse, something that she says is evident in her responses to Petitioner during its investigation and at hearing before the undersigned. In fact, Respondent has made clear that she would not do the same thing again and called her action a poor choice, however idealistically motivated it may have been.

In the same manner, Respondent asserts her text messaging with students was done for their own good and not from some nefarious motivation she had to become involved with them socially. Respondent argues strenuously that she was not fully aware of Petitioner's anti-testing policy and emphasizes that the employee handbook cited by Petitioner is silent on the question of texting with students. Although the policy has now been called to her attention, Respondent says it is one of what even Petitioner acknowledges are an innumerable quantity of restraints and as such can hardly be known. Importantly, Respondent points out, the record does not contain evidence she ever received training on the implementation of texting rules. Even more critically, Respondent stresses that the policy relied on by Petitioner as a basis for her tenure removal does not expressly exclude all texting with students. That failure is underscored, Respondent reasons, by the fact that Vice Principal Bizzell knew she had texted with students long before Petitioner ever took action against her for doing so because he had received copies of Respondent's text communications with a student regarding dental problems. Respondent theorizes that Mr. Bizzell's lack of action on that knowledge implies either that the policy was not intended to block all texting between pupils and staff or was not important enough to enforce. In either case, Respondent reasons, the policy cannot now be considered grounds for her removal. And, even if taken seriously by the Petitioner, Respondent asks, how could she be censored for alerting Mr.

Bizzell to a student fight in which one of the participants (both being students at Piscataway High School) was so seriously injured that he was rendered unconscious and his assaulter was seriously worried about sanctions for his action?

Respondent further says she never tried to hide her text communications with students—all or nearly all of which—were initiated by the students themselves and that such contact was necessary because of problems PS3 students had with the transportation that exclusively served them in both coming to and returning home from school. The latter issues Respondent says, were perfectly permitted as cell phone subjects between staff and students under Petitioner's practices and policy. Respondent avers this is evident from what she said was were frequent cell phone interchanges between teachers and pupils even during the school day. Moreover, Respondent says the record does not disclose any warning to her from Petitioner about cell phone communication with students in either voice or text format. Rather, what ever criticisms Petitioner communicated to her focused on the time and place of her cell phone usage, were a selective enforcement given the leniency of treatment toward her colleagues.

As for Petitioner's averment that Respondent misused or "stole" sick time, Respondent says there is no support for that argument. Respondent insists that she called to notify Petitioner she was taking a sick day within the time authorized by the labor agreement between her collective bargaining agent and Petitioner, a point that Petitioner does not challenge. She denies that Petitioner's agent, Ms. Pongratz, ever asked her for a doctor's certification for the absence. Furthermore, Respondent points out that nothing in New Jersey school law, which addresses paid sick leave for public school teachers, prohibits use of such leave for medical appointments, and no policy proffered by Petitioner states or implies that use of paid sick time for a medical appointment is prohibited.

As for the charge that Respondent transported TW in her private car to have breakfast and go shopping, Respondent says there is no rule prohibiting such actions and that Petitioner's use of an "unbecoming conduct" claim is a desperate measure to support tenure removal. In Respondent's eyes, Petitioner has dragged her actions with TW under the "unbecoming conduct" standard only because Petitioner has no other ground on which to criticize her behavior.

Last, Respondent rejects the claim that she left her classroom unattended. She says she not only asked but had another teacher oversee the class while Respondent used the restroom on an emergency basis after Respondent had tried to reach her aide, school security, and the school office. Respondent says that Mr. Bizzell, who testified for Petitioner as to this charge, conceded that he never asked the teacher named by Respondent whether she was asked or in fact did watch Respondent's class during the few minutes Respondent was gone. Instead, Mr. Bizzell said he watched a recording taken from the cameras that cover Respondent's room and did not see another faculty member there at the time. But Respondent replies the cameras could not see the passageway between her classroom and that of the teacher whose assistance she secured. From this space, Respondent insisted, both rooms could be observed simultaneously. Mr. Bizzell's admitted failure to question the other teacher[17] makes Petitioner's accusation dismissible on the ground Petitioner failed to do a thorough and efficient investigation.

At the end of the day, Respondent argues, the only valid charge against her is the one referring to administration of medication to students. Given Respondent's avowed motive for doing so, the parental permission secured in both cases, and the fact the medication was over-the-counter Advil, this should not support removal of her tenure, Respondent argues. Further, Respondent underscores her admission the act was an error and that she would not repeat it. Based on that, Respondent says there is insufficient ground to support her removal after 19 years of service to Petitioner and in the middle of her teaching career which, should removal be permitted, would likely end.

Opinion:

In New Jersey tenure removal cases, the employing district must show that removal of a tenured staff member is justified on some grounds. Often those grounds go to teaching ineffectiveness, but in this case they do not. As explained above, I have previously ruled that Respondent's teaching effectiveness as measured by evaluations in the school years prior to 2019-2020 are not the subject of the charges against her here and, since she did not claim teaching effectiveness, they are inadmissible. Rather, the charges here all revolve around her conduct which Petitioner contends is "unbecoming" within in the meaning of NJSA 18A6-10[18]. Thus, my decision here is based on my judgment of that conduct, both in and out of school.

---

[17] As noted above, Mr. Bizzell testified the teacher in question refused to speak to him about the matter.

[18] Unbecoming conduct is that which has a tendency to destroy public confidence in the operation of public services and need not violate a specific rule. Karins v. City of Atlantic City, 152 NJ___ 1998; Hartman v. Police Dep't of Ridgewood, 258 NJ Super 22 (1955).

Petitioner's charges relating to that conduct fall into four categories.

The first I consider is that she wrongfully engaged in text messaging with students. The fact of the messaging cannot be disputed. The relevant issue is whether those communications violated a District policy or rose to unbecoming conduct generally.

The policy, known as 4119.26, was apparently adopted in response to a legislative enactment, codified at NJSA 18A: 36-40, requiring local school districts in New Jersey to set rules on communication between staff members and students, including text messages. However, neither the legislation nor the policy adopted by Petitioner in response absolutely prohibits electronic communications between staff and students. Moreover, the record convinces me that Respondent received no substantive guidance on the communications policy from Petitioner, nor does the record show that Petitioner ever expressly precluded texting between staff and students. Indeed, Petitioner's case in this aspect was undermined by Ms. Sousa's acknowledgement there are of "thousands" of Petitioner policies—meant by Ms. Sousa as an hyperbole to be sure—and the commonsense observation that no employee can be expected to know all of them or their interpretation, especially policies on which no training was provided.

On these facts, I cannot find Respondent violated Petitioner's policy per se. Nevertheless, the question remains as to whether Petitioner's texting breached the standard of "conduct unbecoming."

The answer lies in the history and nature of the communications. Several observations are in order. First, in almost every instance the texting was initiated by students—not Respondent. Second, save for some of the texting between Respondent and TW, none of the subjects of the text messages were of an inappropriate nature. Third, none of the texts, including those involving TW, suggested a nefarious pupil-teacher relationship or hinted at untoward intentions of one toward the other.

Quite to the contrary, the TW texts and others seem born out a genuine concern for Respondent's students and their trust in her. In that regard, I am particularly struck that AB, a student with a challenging history, contacted Respondent about a vicious fight he had had earlier in the day with another student which resulted in the latter being beaten unconscious. AB was obviously prompted by a faith in Respondent's understanding and willingness to help him. Even more astonishing is Respondent's advice that AB take corrective measures and her revealing the texts, without prompting, to Piscataway High School Vice Principal Jonathan Bizzell. Recall that although Mr. Bizzell referred the AB texts to administrators, he had never remonstrated her for exchanging texts, just as he did not criticize her for earlier texts he knew she had exchanged with students, including TW.[19] Indeed, it is not clear that Mr. Bizzell referred the matter up the chain because of Respondent's having received and sent texts from her phone or because he was concerned about the fight.

In the light of this history, it is impossible to conclude that Respondent's tenure should be removed because she texted with students—or rather they with her—or because of the related charge that she allowed students to have her cell phone number.[20]

The next charge considered is that Respondent left her classroom unattended on May 9, 2019. Although the alleged conduct occurred prior to the 2019-2020 school year there is no reason it cannot be considered as part of Petitioner's tenure charges brought in December 2019, particularly as Petitioner has constantly averred Respondent's conduct shows a pattern of unrehabilitated non-compliance with Petitioner's policies.

In this charge, a key fact is disputed. Both parties agree Respondent left her room. However, Respondent claims she asked Ms. Artist, the teacher in an adjoining room which was connected to hers by a short passageway, to oversee the PS3 class during Petitioner's brief absence. Petitioner denies that, and Petitioner's security cameras in Respondent's room do not capture an image of any stand-in. Respondent argues that the cameras do not cover the passageway or the doorway in which she claims Ms. Artist was straddling Respondent's class area and her own. Miss Artist did not appear at hearing on Respondent's behalf.

Petitioner does not dispute that Respondent has a medical condition that forces unexpected lavatory usage on a sporadic basis. Respondent claims it was that condition that forced her from her class on the day in question and that she had unsuccessfully tried to contact the school office, security, and her classroom aide before leaving the room. Without further [19] Mr. Bizzell had also taken no action against Respondent when she sent him pictures texted to her by student TW showing the student's abscessed tooth in October 2019. (NT 361-362).

[20] Petitioner maintained it had warned Respondent about cell phone use in school. None of those warnings addressed the issue of texting with students. As for staff allowing students to have their cell phone numbers without prior notice to administrators, see my comments above regarding Vice Principal Bizzell's earlier inaction evidence, it is impossible for Petitioner to substantiate the charge Respondent abandoned her room without securing coverage as she claims. However, even assuming Ms. Artist was not in a position to watch her class, Petitioner's charge on this incident cannot sustain discipline, let alone revocation of tenure. It is axiomatic in arbitral law that where there is an excuse or justification for not following a rule (in this case attending one's class unless other coverage is secured) there can be no culpability. Respondent has testified credibly that she has a physical disorder that requires unanticipated trips to the bathroom, Respondent has not disproved that testimony, and I have no basis for doubting her claim that that is what prompted her exit from class on May 9, 2019. I cannot therefore hold her culpable for that action.

The next charge considered here is that Respondent gave students medication. Respondent does not deny the fact that she gave students AB and KP the over-the-counter drug Advil for pain in the fall of 2019 while school was in session and she was the "lead" teacher in the PS3 program. Her defense is two-fold: (1) she had parental approval to give the medications, which were common, over-the-counter pain relievers; and, (2) she now recognizes the gravity of her offense, which she acknowledged was prohibited by District policy, and remorsefully vows not to repeat it.

The record establishes that there was parental approval in both cases, and there is no evidence that the medication she administered was other than Advil, although in AB's case the pill he took was one he had brought to school and never was physically examined by Respondent. Nevertheless, Respondent believed that it was, and I have neither evidence of her dissembling on the point nor evidence that the pill was not Advil. As for owning the offense as a grave fault, I have only Respondent's testimony as to her absorption of fault and regret[21]. That may be a thin reed on which to support a defense, but having observed Respondent's testimony on the point, I am willing to credit her.

That willingness, however, is not exculpation. Providing medication to students either actively or, in the case of AB, passively, is strictly limited by Petitioner's policy and for good reason. Drug interactions or allergies are grave dangers as are the possibilities that a given drug will exacerbate a condition rather than alleviate it. Teachers are almost universally unqualified to gauge such perils. Thus, even with parental consent, there is a serious threat when untrained individuals administer medications to pupils. If that were not enough, there must be recognized implicit prohibition against the possibility of teachers administering commonly obtained substances to make students more attentive or tractable. Ignoring such a standard surely shakes public confidence in teachers.

Given those threats, Respondent's blatant violation is so serious that it alone would support tenure removal for conduct unbecoming, and no post-offense remorse would be sufficient to deny Petitioner's action.

Yet there is more. Petitioner's fourth basis for removal is the combination of Respondent's communication with TW, her escorting of TW on a breakfast and shopping trip, and her use of a sick day to do so.

I have already dismissed the email communications as a ground for dismissal, and I find no clear or inherent prohibition against having students in her personal vehicle. Consequently, she cannot suffer discipline on those accounts. Further, although Respondent's actions in taking sick leave was imprudent, thoughtless, and extremely unprofessional in its manner, I cannot affirm removal of tenure because of them. As a long-time teacher, she knew that finding substitutes is challenging generally and on a Friday—which is the weekday this incident occurred—even more difficult. Nevertheless, she was narrowly within her rights not to notify Petitioner until that morning of a medical appointment that she admitted was scheduled well in advance.

Respondent's difficulty in this incident is her condoning and abetting TW's absence from school, especially after defending many of her actions on a claim of concern for student attendance and classroom diligence. Further, Respondent's actions in taking TW to buy clothes strongly suggests favoritism toward TW over other students, many of whom it can be safely assumed were equally disadvantaged. Respondent's behavior in both aspects demonstrates an indifference to standards the public has a right to expect of teachers and affirms Petitioner's argument that she placed herself above the principles of her profession and treated standards of deportment as a catalog of nuisances to be disregarded as she saw fit.

Even more damaging to Respondent's case is that her action lends credence to Petitioner's claim that a lesser penalty based on the theory of progressive discipline would be wholly misplaced because Respondent is incorrigible. Petitioner's judgment is hard to reject given the blatant nature of Respondent's actions with TW. And it is hard to reject considering the leniency Petitioner showed at the close of the 2018-2019 school year when Superintendent Ranelli opted to forego a further increment withholding in an attempt to start anew with Respondent. That choice by the Superintendent was met only a few months later with Respondent's administration of medication to students which has long been forbidden under school law and Petitioner's clear policy, as well as the abetting of truancy, an act that is just as clearly wrong.

It is possible Respondent saw herself as a rogue heroine bucking the system for the sake of her pupils for whom she no doubt cared just as they appear to have cared for her. But actions such as the ones she took when she administered medication and favored TW cannot be tolerated within a public school system which not only have public trust but also some centrality of control advanced by a set of reasonable rules and the standards of the teaching profession. Given Respondent's fault in these two instances and under the circumstances described above, I believe her continued employment by Petitioner would be detrimental to it and the public's confidence in its operation. There is cause for the removal of her tenure, and an Order will be issued accordingly.

Order:

Petitioner's charges are sufficient to remove Respondent's tenure and are affirmed to the extent set forth above. Respondent's appeal of those charges is denied. Respondent's tenure may be removed, and her dismissal is upheld.

Before MELISSA H. BIREN, Esq., Impartial Arbitrator

ORDER APPROVING SETTLEMENT OF TENURE CHARGES

The Parsippany-Troy Hills Board of Education, Morris County (the "Board") certified tenure charges against Angela Fox ("Respondent" or "Fox"), a tenured teacher in the Parsippany-Troy Hills School District, alleging incapacity, unbecoming conduct, insubordination and other just cause (the "Tenure Charges"); the Board's counsel, Katherine A. Gilfillan, Esq. (Schenck Price Smith & King, LLC), filed the Tenure Charges with the Commissioner of Education of the State of New Jersey on or about July 31, 2020. Respondent, by her counsel, Juan Fernandez, Esq. (Fernandez Garcia, LLC) filed Responses with the Commissioner on or about August 6, 2020, denying the allegations in the Tenure Charges. The Commissioner of Education, having reviewed the Tenure Charges and the Response, determined that the charges were sufficient, if true, to warrant dismissal or reduction in compensation and, therefore, referred the matter to arbitration. These charges were referred to the undersigned Arbitrator on August 10, 2020 pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16, as amended by P.L. 2012, c. 26. A timely request for an extension of time was granted.

The parties reached a mutually acceptable settlement of the Tenure Charges prior to the commencement of the hearings scheduled for October 20 and 26, 2020. The settlement terms were thereafter set forth in a written Settlement Agreement ("Settlement"). On October 22, 2020, the Settlement, signed by the parties, was forwarded to the arbitrator for review and approval. In accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6, the settlement of the Tenure Charges pursuant to the terms of the Settlement is hereby approved, the standards for settlement having been satisfied as set forth below.

1. A copy of the Settlement, as well as the Tenure Charges and the Answer, are annexed to this Order.
2. The settlement of the Tenure Charges is warranted given that Respondent has admitted the charge of incapacity and has resigned her employment with the school district effective October 29, 2020. Fox's resignation renders resolution of the charges moot; no further or other relief would result from a continuation of the arbitration proceeding.
3. Both the charged and charging parties have consented to the settlement terms. Both parties were represented by counsel in the negotiation of the settlement terms and the preparation of the Settlement. Fox signed the Settlement indicating her voluntary agreement to its terms on October 15, 2020. The Board President signed the Settlement indicating the Board's voluntary agreement to its terms on October 20, 2020, following the Board's approval of the Settlement. As reflected in the October 27, 2020 letter from the Board's counsel and the attached certification by the Board Secretary, the Board approved the Settlement at a meeting on October 15, 2020, pending final approval by the Commissioner or his designee.
4. Respondent expressly confirmed in the Settlement that she fully understands the settlement terms and that she voluntarily entered into the settlement with a full understanding of her rights. Competent counsel provided advice and counsel to the Respondent throughout the settlement process.
5. The settlement is in the public interest. Respondent has resigned her employment, admitting her incapacity. Proceeding with the Tenure Charges on the remaining charges will not provide any further or other relief than what would result by the admission of incapacity and resignation. Further, by the settlement, the Board avoids the uncertainty of the outcome of the arbitration, the time and expense associated with litigation and any disruption to the school district resulting from school personnel's participation in the hearing.

6. Under the Settlement's terms, Respondent has voluntarily resigned from her position with the school district. In accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6(a)6, and as confirmed in Section 6 of the Settlement, Respondent has been advised that the Commissioner may refer this matter to the NJ State Board of Examiners which may suspend or revoke her certificate

By reason of the foregoing, the settlement of the tenure charges against the Respondent, Angela Fox, pursuant to the terms set forth in the Settlement, is approved.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE CHARGES AGAINST ANGELA FOX, BY THE BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF PARSIPPANY-TROY HILLS, MORRIS COUNTY, NEW JERSEY.	STATE OF NEW JERSEY BEFORE THE COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION Agency Ref. No.: SWORN TENURE CHARGES

COUNTY OF MORRIS)

I, Dr. Barbara Sargent, Superintendent of the School District of the Township of Parsippany-Troy Hills (hereinafter "Board" or "District"), of full age and capacity, and having been duly sworn by the undersigned authority, depose and say, I hereby charge Angela Fox ("Respondent"), a tenured teaching staff member employed by the Board, with incapacity, inefficiency, insubordination, conduct unbecoming a teaching staff member and/or other just cause warranting dismissal, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 and N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.1 et seq.

FACTS COMMON TO ALL CHARGES

1. The Board is a body corporate under the laws of the State of New Jersey charged with the supervision of public schools within the Township of Parsippany-Troy Hills, New Jersey, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:1-1, et seq.

2. Respondent was hired as a certified teacher in or around September of 2011 and has served her entire District-teaching career as a 5th grade teacher assigned to the Lake Hiawatha Elementary School. Respondent holds an Elementary K-5 teacher certificate from the State of New Jersey.

3. Respondent gained tenure on or about September 2, 2014.

4. In or around November 25, 2014, the Board granted Respondent's request for a maternity leave of absence through the end of the 2014-2015 academic year.

5. The Board's approval of this request was immediately followed by Respondent's request for a child-rearing leave for the entirety of the 2015-2016 academic year which request was also granted by the Board.

6. On or about August 25, 2016, immediately prior to her anticipated return for the 2016-2017 school year, and days before school was to begin, Respondent requested another maternity/childrearing leave to commence immediately and continue through the December 2016 holiday break. The Board granted the requested leave.

7. Respondent returned to her teaching staff duties on or about January 9, 2017 and worked through the end of the 2016-2017 school year.

8. Although the Respondent returned to her position for the 2017-2018 school year, she was absent for 26.5 days out of the total 184 days required for teachers.

9. On August 29, 2018, again mere days before the start of the school year, the Respondent requested a "discretionary" leave of absence for the entirety of 2018-2019 school year.

10. Although initially it appeared that the Respondent was requesting a leave for maternity purposes, Respondent later claimed that the requested leave was for medical reasons.

11. The Board conditionally granted the requested leave utilizing Family and Medical Leave Act ("FMLA") entitlement from August 30, 2018 through November 26, 2018 pending receipt of supporting medical documentation.

12. On September 11, 2018, the Board advised the Respondent that upon exhaustion of her FMLA leave, she was expected to return to work.

13. Between July 2018 and August 2018, Respondent refused to provide the required medical certification and/or supporting documentation to support her leave request.

14. The FMLA medical certification that was eventually provided by the Respondent was ambiguous relative to the basis(es) for Respondent's requested leave. Thus, on November 15, 2018, the Board voted to send Respondent for a Fit for Duty evaluation to support her request for a discretionary leave of absence.

15. Respondent's FMLA entitlement was exhausted as of November 27, 2018.

16. Respondent underwent a Fit for Duty evaluation on December 4, 2018 with Dr. Mario Finkelstein, a licensed psychiatrist, who determined that Respondent was unable to perform her teaching duties and that she required mental health counseling before she could return to her position. Dr. Finkelstein indicated that it was "unlikely" that Respondent could return to her position before the end of the 2018-2019 school year.

17. Based on Dr. Finkelstein's report, the Board extended Respondent's leave through the end of the 2018-2019 school year but required that the Respondent provide status updates relative to her receipt of treatment that would permit her to return to her duties.

18. Respondent failed to provide the District with any doctors' notes/status reports as required from December 2018 through June of 2019.

19. Upon information and belief, Respondent did not undertake the needed treatment that would have allowed her to return to work between December 2018 and June 2019.

20. On or about July 11, 2019, the Board specifically directed the Respondent to provide the requested reports/notes from her treating providers. Although she insisted that she was undergoing treatment, Respondent refused to provide the requisite paperwork.

21. On or about July 19, 2019, Respondent continued to assure the Board that she was receiving treatment however refused/failed to provide any reports from that treatment and advised Dr. Robert Sutter that she had not been "cleared" to return to work.

22. Having received no information from Respondent's treating providers, the Board again required Respondent to undergo a Fit for Duty evaluation with Dr. Finkelstein to support her immediate return to the classroom for the 2019-2020 school year.

23. On August 20, 2019, Respondent underwent a second Fit for Duty evaluation and was found unfit to return to her duties as a classroom teacher.

24. During the course of the August 20, 2019 evaluation, Respondent advised Dr. Finkelstein that she continued to receive the required treatment when, in fact, she had not sought such treatment.

25. Dr. Finkelstein attempted to verify Respondent's claims of treatment but was unable to do so.

26. Dr. Finkelstein again recommended that Respondent undergo psychological/psychiatric treatment and be re-assessed in three months to determine if she could return to her teaching staff duties.

27. On September 23, 2019, Dr. Sutter met with Respondent to discuss her refusal to follow Dr. Finkelstein's prior recommendations, the requirement that she undergo therapy and directed her to provide status updates related to that treatment to his office.

28. The Board permitted Respondent to continue her leave of absence through December of 2019 provided that she receive the necessary treatment that would allow her to return to the classroom in January of 2020.

29. Respondent failed to provide the Board with any doctors' notes/status updates relative to any course of treatment from August 2019 through December 2019.

30. Respondent was scheduled for a third Fit for Duty evaluation on December 11, 2019 to ensure that she could return to her teaching staff position.

31. Despite being explicitly advised in August 2019 to undergo treatment as a condition of her leave, Respondent stated during her December 2019 Fit for Duty evaluation that she "had only just started" treatment in October 2019.

32. During the December 11, 2019 Fit for Duty evaluation, Respondent advised Dr. Finkelstein that she had "re-started" her mental health treatment by seeing a psychiatrist for medication management and had begun seeing a therapist on a weekly basis beginning in October of 2019.

33. Dr. Finkelstein sought to verify the information relayed by the Respondent relative to her alleged treatment by contacting the treating providers. The psychotherapist with whom Respondent was allegedly treating relayed that she had not seen the Respondent since early 2019.

34. Dr. Finkelstein's follow-up discussion with Respondent's psychiatrist revealed that Respondent continued to be "very anxious" about returning to work.

35. Dr. Finkelstein again opined that Respondent was unfit for duty as her inability to undertake/maintain the recommended therapy and to truthfully relay information called into question her reliability as well as the severity of her condition.

36. Based upon the foregoing, the Respondent was placed on administrative leave pending the certification of these charges.

New Jersey Commissioner of Education

Final Decision

H.D. and D.D., on behalf of minor child, L.D.,

Petitioners,

v.

Board of Education of the Borough of Woodcliff Lake, Bergen County,

Respondent.

Synopsis

Petitioners appealed the respondent Board's determination that their minor child, L.D., committed an act of harassment, intimidation and bullying (HIB) in violation of New Jersey's Anti-Bullying Bill of Rights Act (Act), N.J.S.A. 18A:37-13 et seq. The Board's HIB determination stemmed from an incident in January 2020 wherein L.D. was accused of making a racial comment toward a fellow fifth grader. An administrative hearing was requested by an attorney for the petitioners, and held on March 5, 2020. Thereafter, on March 6, 2020, the Board's written decision upholding the finding of HIB was delivered to petitioners. The within petition of appeal was not filed until July 2020. The Board filed a motion for summary decision, arguing that the petition is time-barred time-barred pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.2(i), which requires petitions to be filed no later than 90 days from the date of receipt of the action that is the subject of the case. The petitioners opposed the motion.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: there is no genuine issue as to any material fact here, and the case is ripe for summary decision; under N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(i), a petitioner shall file a petition no later than the 90th day from the date of receipt of the notice of a final order, ruling, or other action by the district board of education, individual party, or agency that is the subject of the case; and petitioners' argument that the timeframe in this matter must be relaxed given the exceptional circumstances of the COVID-19 epidemic is without merit. Accordingly, the ALJ concluded that petitioners did not file a timely appeal of the Board's HIB decision, and consequently declined to address the substantive issues in this case.

Upon an independent review – and finding petitioners' exceptions to be unconvincing – the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ's determinations and adopted the Initial Decision of the OAL as the final decision in this case. The petition was dismissed.

Agency Dkt. No. 153-7/20

New Jersey Commissioner of Education

Final Decision

H.D. and D.D., on behalf of minor child, L.D.,

Petitioners,

v.

Board of Education of the Borough of Woodcliff Lake, Bergen County,

Respondent.

The record of this matter, the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), the exceptions filed by petitioner pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4, and the reply thereto by the Board have been reviewed and considered.

This matter involves a harassment, intimidation, and bullying (HIB) complaint made by another student against petitioners' minor child, L.D. The Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) granted the Board's motion to dismiss on the basis that that the petition was untimely because it was filed more than 90 days after the Board's decision finding that L.D. had committed an act of HIB.

In their exceptions, petitioners argue that their attorney was not served with a copy of the Board's decision. Petitioners include a certification stating that due to the COVID-19 pandemic, they were delayed in sending a copy of the Board's decision to their attorney until April 3, 2020. Petitioners also contend that the 90-day timeline should be relaxed in the interest of justice, because the case raises constitutional issues that should be evaluated on the merits.

In reply, the Board argues that it had no knowledge that petitioners were represented by counsel, as they appeared at the Board hearing the day before the decision was issued without counsel and indicated that they had elected to proceed without counsel. The Board also asserts that there is no evidence to support relaxing the 90-day timeline.[1]

Upon review, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that the petition is time-barred pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.2(i), which requires petitions to be filed no later than 90 days from the date of receipt of the action that is the subject of the case. The Board's decision was issued on March 6, 2020, and the petition of appeal was not filed until July 2, 2020. The Anti-Bullying Bill of Rights Act does not require that the Board's decision be served on counsel for the parents of the students at issue. Furthermore, while the Commissioner recognizes the difficulties many individuals have faced due to the COVID-19 pandemic and understands that petitioners may have been delayed in sending a copy of the decision to their attorney as a result, petitioners admit that they forwarded the decision to their attorney on April 3, 2020, two months before the 90-day timeline expired on June 4, 2020.

Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter and the petition is hereby dismissed.

IT IS SO ORDERED.[2]

ACTING COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

Date of Decision: November 2, 2020
Date of Mailing: November 6, 2020

[1] The Board's reply also includes substantive arguments regarding the HIB decision. As the Commissioner has determined to dismiss this matter for failure to timely file, he does not reach the substantive HIB issues alluded to in petitioner's exceptions and more explicitly argued in the Board's reply.

[2] This decision may be appealed to the Appellate Division of the Superior Court pursuant to P.L. 2008, c. 36 (N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9.1).

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF WOODCLIF LAKE, BERGEN COUNTY,

Respondents.

Phoung Dao, Esq. for petitioners

Jeffrey R. Merlino, Esq., for respondent Borough of Woodcliff Lake (Sciarrillo, Cornell, Merlino, McKeever & Osborne, LLC)

Record Closed: September 10, 2020 Decided: September 17, 2020

BEFORE KIMBERLY A. MOSS, ALJ:

Petitioner challenges the Borough of Woodcliff Lakes Board of Education's (Board or respondent) determination that minor child L.D. committed an act of Harassment, Intimidation and Bullying (HIB).

A petition challenging the Board's HIB determination was filed with the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on July 8, 2020. Respondent filed a motion for summary decision on September 4, 2020. Petitioner filed opposition to the motion on September 10, 2020.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

Having reviewed the supporting documents submitted by both sides I FIND the following to be the FACTS of this matter:

On January 15, 2020, L.D was a fifth-grade student in Woodcliff Lakes Public Schools. On that date a parent of one of the students complained that L.D. committed an act of HIB against the parent's daughter. L.D. was accused of making a racial comment that her daughter was a poor African. An investigation was conducted which confirmed HIB based on race/skin color. On or about January 16, 2020, petitioners were informed of the HIB investigation. On January 24, 2020, petitioners were informed the investigation determined that the incident with L.D. was an HIB incident.

On or about February 12, 2020, the law firm of Dao Law LLC sent a letter to Lauren Barbelet, Superintendent of Woodcliff Lake Public Schools that petitioners requested an administrative hearing, which was held on March 5, 2020. On or about March 6, 2020, respondent delivered the Board's written decision denying the appeal to petitioners. Petitioners were advised in the letter that they could appeal the Board's decision to the Commissioner of Education no later than ninety days after the Board's decision. Petitioner forwarded the March 6, 2020, letter from the Board denying their appeal to their attorney on April 3, 2020. Petitioners filed an appeal with the Commissioner of Education on June 29, 2020.

LEGAL DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

The Commissioner has specifically addressed the time in which a petitioner must initiate a contested case for the Commissioner's determination of a controversy or dispute arising under the school laws.

N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(i) requires that:

> The petitioner shall file a petition no later than the 90th day from the date of receipt of the notice of a final order, ruling or other action by the district > board of education, individual party, or agency, which is the subject of the requested contested case hearing.

Such a rule represents a fair and reasonably necessary requirement for the proper and efficient resolution of disputes under the school laws and falls within the scope of authority granted to the Commissioner. Kaprow v. Bd. of Educ. of Berkeley Twp., 131 N.J. 572, 582 (1993). The limitation period gives school districts the security of knowing that administrative decisions regarding the operation of the school cannot be challenged after ninety days. Ibid. Its purposes are to stimulate litigants to pursue a right of action within a reasonable time so that the opposing party may have a fair opportunity to defend and to penalize dilatoriness and serve as a measure of repose by giving security and stability to human affairs. Id. at 587.

The ninety-day requirement is to be strictly construed and is mandatory. Wise v. Bd. of Educ. of the City of Trenton, EDU 160-00, Comm'r (September 11, 2000), aff'd, State Bd. of Educ. (January 3, 2001), <http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html>. A petitioner must file a petition within ninety days from a notice of adverse action and not within ninety days of her exhaustion of other avenues and mechanisms she might have employed in seeking renewal of employment. Id. Informal attempts to resolve a dispute do not serve to toll the statute of limitations. See Kaprow supra at 588. Also, the ninety-day period for filing a petition of appeal commences when a petitioner learns of facts that would enable her to file a timely claim. Id. at 587. "Adequate notice must be sufficient to inform an individual of some fact that he or she has a right to know and that the communicating party has a duty to communicate." Ibid. (citation omitted).

N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.13 states:

> The rules in this chapter shall be considered general rules of practice to govern, expedite and effectuate the procedure before, and the actions of the Commissioner in connection with, the determination of controversies and disputes under the school laws. Where such rules do not reflect a specific statutory requirement or an underlying rule of the OAL, they may be relaxed or dispensed with by the Commissioner, in the Commissioner's discretion, in any case where a strict adherence thereto may be deemed inappropriate or unnecessary or may result in injustice.

Respondent knew that petitioners had counsel, and respondent did not copy petitioners' counsel of its decision. However, petitioners were informed of the Board's decision to deny their appeal on or about March 6, 2020. Petitioners informed their attorney of the Bord's denial of their appeal on April 3, 2020.

Petitioner argues that N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(i) (the 90-day rule) should be relaxed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.16. N.J.A.C. 6A: 3-1.3(I) is to be strictly construed. It clearly states the petitioner shall file a petition no later than the 90th day. The fact that petitioner's attorney was not noticed by the Board is not an exceptional circumstance because petitioners were noticed by the Board on or around March 6, 2020.

Petitioner argues that the Covid 19 pandemic is an exceptional circumstance requiring the 90-day rule to be relaxed. Petitioner did not provide a certification or any information specifically as to how the pandemic affected them to cause a relaxation of the 90-day rule.

I CONCLUDE petitioner did not file a timely appeal of the Board's HIB decision. Since the appeal was not timely filed, I will not address the substantive portion of the motion.

ORDER

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

New Jersey Commissioner of Education

Final Decision

M.M., on behalf of minor child,

Petitioner,

v.

Board of Education of the Township of Lafayette, Sussex County,

Respondent.

Synopsis

Petitioner appealed the finding of the respondent Board's Anti-Bullying Coordinator (ABC) that her son was not the victim of harassment, intimidation and bullying (HIB) pursuant to the Anti-Bullying Bill of Rights Act (Act), N.J.S.A. 18A:37-13 et seq. Petitioner was given the opportunity to contest the ABC's HIB findings in a hearing before the Board and was offered two options on how to proceed in light of the COVID-19 epidemic. Petitioner chose instead to file the within petition, challenging the ABC's findings and arguing that the district has violated the Act and the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA) by refusing to provide access to and copies of video recordings showing the events at issue. The Board filed a motion to dismiss, contending that petitioner failed to exhaust her administrative remedies by not pursuing the required appeal at the Board level.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: there are no genuine issues of material fact here, and the Board is entitled to prevail as a matter of law because petitioner failed to avail herself of a Board-level hearing before appealing to the Commissioner; the district has substantially complied with petitioner's FERPA request for access to the video recordings; and, further, FERPA does not require the Board to provide copies of the videos. The ALJ concluded that the petitioner's appeal before the Commissioner is not ripe; accordingly, summary decision was granted to the Board as a matter of law, and the petition was dismissed.

Upon a comprehensive review, the Commissioner, inter alia, concurred with the ALJ that petitioner's claim regarding the district's HIB decision is not ripe for review because the statutory procedures outlined in the Act have not been completed. Having found petitioner's exceptions to be without merit, the Commissioner adopted the Initial Decision of the OAL as the final decision in this matter. The petition was dismissed with instruction that the matter shall proceed at the local level before the Board, and that, if and when the petitioner disagrees with the Board's decision following that hearing, a new petition of appeal may be filed with the Commissioner. The instant petition was dismissed.

This synopsis is not part of the Commissioner's decision. It has been prepared for the convenience of the reader. It has been neither reviewed nor approved by the Commissioner.

New Jersey Commissioner of Education

Final Decision

M.M., on behalf of minor child,

Petitioner,

v.

Board of Education of the Township of Lafayette, Sussex County,

Respondent.

The record of this matter, the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), the exceptions filed by petitioner pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4, and the reply thereto by the Board have been reviewed and considered.[1]

This matter involves allegations of harassment, intimidation, and bullying (HIB) made by petitioner's minor child. Following an investigation, the district's anti-bullying coordinator (ABC) issued a report indicating the complaint was unsubstantiated. Petitioner appealed to the Commissioner, disputing the ABC's conclusion and arguing that the district has violated the Anti-Bullying Bill of Rights Act (Act) and the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA) by refusing to provide access to and copies of video recordings showing the events at issue. The Board filed a motion to dismiss, and the matter was transmitted to the OAL. The case was initially assigned to ALJ Danielle Pasquale and was later transferred to ALJ Jude Tiscornia.[2] In his Initial Decision, ALJ Tiscornia granted summary judgment to the Board, concluding that petitioner had failed to exhaust her administrative remedies because she had not availed herself of a hearing before the Board prior to appealing to the Commissioner. The ALJ also ruled that the district had substantially complied with petitioner's FERPA request for access to the video recordings, and that FERPA does not require the Board to provide copies of the videos.

Following the Initial Decision, petitioner filed a motion to reopen pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.5, in which she argued that she was not afforded a hearing or oral argument to present evidence in responsive to the Board's motion to dismiss. The Commissioner denied the motion, finding that no statute or regulation requires a hearing or oral argument.[3]

In her exceptions, petitioner argues that the ALJ incorrectly found that she was appealing the ABC's HIB finding, and instead asserts that the issue is her request for discovery access to the video recordings prior to the Board hearing. Petitioner also disputes the ALJ's statements that indicate she is seeking copies of the video recordings and that she is seeking access to the videos under FERPA. Petitioner reiterates arguments made in her motion to compel discovery, contending that she needs access to the video recordings to present her case to the Board. Petitioner takes issue with the proceedings at the OAL, in particular the ALJ's granting of a motion for summary decision that the Board did not file. She alleges that if the ALJ converted the Board's

[2] Petitioner filed a motion to disqualify ALJ Pasquale following a telephone conference she conducted with the parties. The record does not include an Order ruling on the motion to disqualify, but as the case was subsequently transferred to another ALJ, there is no need for a decision on the motion, as petitioner received the relief which she sought.

[3] Following the issuance of Commissioner Decision No. 191-20L regarding the motion to reopen, petitioner filed a "Motion for Hearing and Oral Argument," in which she expressed disagreement with the Commissioner's decision. There is no statutory or regulatory provision for such a motion. Nonetheless, as the Commissioner concluded in Decision No. 191-20L, there is no requirement that every case before the OAL include a hearing and/or oral argument, and it was entirely appropriate for the ALJ to issue an Initial Decision without conducting either type of proceeding. For that reason, petitioner's "Motion for Hearing and Oral Argument" is denied.

motion to dismiss to a motion for summary decision, she did not have notice or an opportunity to respond.[4]

In reply, the Board argues that the Initial Decision was correctly decided and should be affirmed.

Upon a comprehensive review of the record, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that petitioner's claim regarding the district's HIB decision is not ripe for review because the statutory procedures outlined in the Act have not been completed.[5] As a preliminary matter, the Commissioner finds that it was appropriate for the ALJ to decide the matter on a summary basis, notwithstanding the fact that the Board did not file a document entitled "Motion for Summary Decision." The Board did file a motion to dismiss, and it included documents outside the pleadings in support of the motion. Converting such a motion to one for summary decision is common practice and consistent with N.J. Ct. R. 4:6-2, which is applicable to proceedings at the OAL pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-1.3.

Petitioner argues that N.J. Ct. R. 4 :6-2 requires the court to provide notice that it intends to consider a motion to dismiss as a motion for summary judgment, and that she received no such notice. Her argument is belied by the fact that following a telephone conference with ALJ Tiscornia on August 4, 2020, petitioner filed a letter dated August 5, 2020 in which she objected to having the matter heard on a summary basis. It is clear that petitioner did, therefore, have notice

[4] Following the filing of her exceptions, petitioner filed a motion to stay the Commissioner's decision in this matter. It appears that petitioner misunderstands N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.15, which provides for a motion for a stay of a Commissioner's decision. This regulation is not a mechanism by which a party can delay the issuance of the Commissioner's decision. Rather, this regulation allows a party delay any relief ordered in the Commissioner's decision, pending a determination on appeal to the Appellate Division of the Superior Court. A motion for a stay of a Commissioner's decision cannot be appropriately filed until after the Commissioner's decision has been issued, and must be filed concurrent with, or subsequent to, a notice of appeal of that decision. Accordingly, petitioner's motion for a stay has not been considered.

[5] While petitioner indicated in her exceptions that she is not seeking to appeal the ABC's HIB finding, the Commissioner is nonetheless compelled to address this issue, as it was included in the petition of appeal and many of petitioner's filings throughout the pendency of the case, including the exceptions themselves, have included arguments related to the correctness of the ABC's finding that her child was not the victim of an act of HIB.

of the ALJ's intention to treat the Board's motion to dismiss as a motion for summary decision. Moreover, petitioner had the opportunity to present evidence in opposition to the Board's arguments directly in both her original opposition to the motion to dismiss and the August 5, 2020 letter raising additional objections, and indirectly in her numerous other filings making arguments on both the HIB claim and the discovery claim. The Commissioner further rejects petitioner's argument that the Board's failure to provide the video recordings in discovery precludes the entry of summary decision, as the content of the videos is irrelevant to the legal questions pertaining to the Commissioner's jurisdiction over this matter and petitioner's right to her child's student records. The Commissioner therefore agrees with the ALJ's decision to convert the Board's motion to dismiss to a motion for summary decision.[6]

A summary decision may be rendered "if the papers and discovery which have been filed, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law." N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b). A court should grant summary judgment when the pleadings, depositions, answers to interrogatories and admissions on file, together with the affidavits, show that there is no genuine issue of material fact and that the moving party is entitled to a judgment as a matter of law. Brill v. Guardian Life Ins. Co. of Am., 142 N.J. 520, 528-29 (1995).

There is no dispute that the Board has not issued a decision regarding petitioner's HIB claim; in fact, petitioner admits as much in the petition of appeal.[7] The district's ABC has made

[6] Following the Initial Decision, petitioner filed a "Motion to Strike" the Board's motion for summary decision and a "Motion to Vacate" the Initial Decision, based on arguments substantially similar to those made in petitioner's exceptions. There is no statutory or regulatory provision for such motions. Nonetheless, as the Commissioner has concluded that converting the Board's motion to dismiss to a motion for summary decision was appropriate, the motions are denied.

[7] While petitioner filed a motion for leave to amend her petition of appeal, nothing contained in that motion alters the fact that the Board has not yet issued a decision. Instead, the motion seeks to raise additional issues regarding the procedures followed by district staff during the course of the HIB investigation and the accuracy of the ABC's findings, and the superintendent has reported those findings to the Board, but the Act requires those findings to be affirmed, rejected, or modified by the Board, and it is the Board's decision that is appealable to the Commissioner. N.J.S.A. 18A:37-15(b)(6)(e). The Legislature explicitly created a multi-step process for the investigation and determination of HIB allegations. Only after the final decision by the board of education did the Legislature create a right of appeal to the Commissioner, and for good reason – it is not in the interest of judicial economy to adjudicate HIB matters in a piecemeal fashion. To allow an appeal following the ABC's written report, as petitioner sought to do here, would result in the expenditure of time and money to dispute findings that could have been rejected by the Board if the matter had proceeded to a vote. Moreover, the standard of review applicable to the Commissioner's decision in HIB matters necessitates that the process be concluded prior to coming before the Commissioner. When a local board of education acts within its discretionary authority, its decision is entitled to a presumption of correctness and will not be disturbed unless there is an affirmative showing that the decision was "patently arbitrary, without rational basis or induced by improper motives." See Kopera v. W. Orange Bd. of Educ., 60 N.J. Super. 288 (App. Div. 1960). The Commissioner is unable to determine whether the Board's decision was arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable when the Board has not issued a decision.

Although the Commissioner has jurisdiction to hear all controversies arising under the school laws, the criteria for determining the ripeness of a controversy for judicial determination are "the fitness of the issues for judicial decision and the hardship to the parties of withholding court consideration." Abbott Labs v. Gardner, 387 U.S. 136, 149 (1967). In assessing fitness, the court must determine if a legal question suitable for judicial resolution has crystallized and whether the ruling or action that is the subject of the complaint is final. Ibid. Here, the action complained of – the HIB finding – is not final, and therefore the matter is not findings. Petitioner's HIB claim, including any and all issues regarding the district's procedures or findings, is not ripe for review, for the reasons explained herein. Therefore, the motion for leave to amend is moot and is denied.

ripe for review. The Commissioner notes that, in arguing for dismissal, the Board frames the issue as a failure to exhaust administrative remedies, an argument that the ALJ accepted. However, the jurisdictional issue is more properly characterized as one of ripeness, as the Board's decision regarding the HIB allegations is not a remedy to an action by the ABC or the superintendent, but rather a necessary predicate to a decision by the Commissioner.[8] For these reasons, summary judgment is granted in favor of the Board.

The Commissioner also concurs with the ALJ's decision denying petitioner's motion to compel discovery related to the video recordings.[9] Petitioner has, in various filings, argued that discovery is needed as part of the district-level HIB process and as part of the contested case opened through her petition of appeal. To the extent that the motion sought discovery in the docketed contested case, the motion is moot and is denied.[10] To the extent that the motion sought "discovery" for the Board hearing on the HIB claim that has not yet occurred, the Commissioner has previously addressed the question of the nature of a board of education's hearing regarding an HIB allegation and concluded that the Act does not require trial-type adversary proceedings. L.K. and T.K., obo

[8] Participants in the Board hearing process may colloquially refer to the hearing as an "appeal." However, while a hearing presents an opportunity for parents to dispute the findings of the ABC and/or the superintendent, it is not, in fact, an appeal of those decisions, and it is not characterized in the Act as such. A parent who does not request a hearing is still permitted to appeal a board's decision to the Commissioner – provided that a decision has been made. Here, the obstacle to the Commissioner's jurisdiction is not the lack of a hearing, but the lack of a decision by the Board.

[9] Petitioner also filed a motion for emergent relief, asking the ALJ to grant her motion to compel discovery before any other pending motions are decided. Petitioner argued that she is unable to proceed with a hearing before the Board without the video recordings. The motion for emergent relief seeks the same relief as the motion to compel discovery, and it must be rejected for the same reasons.

[10] This decision does not preclude petitioner from seeking the video recordings as discovery in any future proceedings before the OAL, nor does it determine whether any such request should be granted or denied. Petitioner's motion to sanction the Board for failing to respond to her discovery request is also denied. Petitioner emailed counsel for the Board on June 9, 2020, seeking access to or copies of the videos. Petitioner argues that by failing to provide access or copies within 15 days of the request, the Board should be subject to sanctions. However, petitioner had filed a motion to compel discovery, seeking the same items from the Board, on June 12, 2020. With its motion to dismiss pending, as well as petitioner's motion to compel the Board to produce the same video recordings requested in discovery, it was not unreasonable for the Board to withhold discovery until decisions on those motions could be issued. Therefore, sanctions are not warranted. Moreover, as the motion to compel discovery has been denied, the motion for sanctions is moot, and imposing sanctions for failure to produce that discovery would be unfounded.

A.K. v. Mansfield Bd. of Educ., Commissioner Decision 107-19 (April 22, 2019). The Act provides that "[a]t the hearing the board may hear from the school anti-bullying specialist about the incident, recommendations for discipline or services, and any programs instituted to reduce such incidents." N.J.S.A. 18A:37-15(b)(6)(d). Provisions for procedures more judicial in nature – including discovery – could have been included by the Legislature in the Act, but were not, and the Commissioner declines to require such procedures when they are not supported by the plain language of the statute. See DeFalco v. Bd. of Educ. of the Twp. of Hamilton, Commissioner Decision No. 198-19, decided July 26, 2019.

However, the Commissioner notes that the petition of appeal claims that the board has violated the law by failing to provide her with access to her child's educational records, which is a claim that should be evaluated on its own merits and not only with respect to the motion to compel discovery. Petitioner bases her claim on the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA), 20 U.S.C. § 1232g.[11] The Commissioner has jurisdiction to hear and determine all controversies and disputes arising under the school laws, as well as the rules of the State Board of Education or the Commissioner. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9. The Commissioner has no jurisdiction to adjudicate FERPA, which is a federal law. Accordingly, any claim that the Board has violated FERPA is dismissed. Even viewing the pleadings in the light most favorable to petitioner – affording her leeway as a pro se petitioner and addressing her claims under New Jersey's Pupil Records Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:36-19, and its implementing regulations, most specifically N.J.A.C. 6A:32-7.5 – the Board is not required to provide petitioner with copies of her child's records, but rather only access to them, which it has done.[12]

[11] While petitioner's exceptions indicate that she is not actually seeking access to the recordings under FERPA, she also includes arguments that the district violated FERPA, such that the Commissioner is compelled to address them.

[12] While petitioner indicated in her exceptions that she is not seeking copies of the video recordings, but rather "discovery access" to them, the Commissioner is nonetheless compelled to address this issue, as it was included in the petition of appeal and many of petitioner's filings throughout the pendency of the case have referred to her request for copies of the video recordings. In fact, even the exceptions themselves are contradictory, as petitioner both indicates she is not seeking copies and expresses a "preference" for copies of the recordings.

Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter and the petition is hereby dismissed. The matter shall proceed before the Board for the hearing requested by petitioner, and, if petitioner disagrees with the Board's decision following that hearing, she may file a new petition of appeal.[13]

[13] The Commissioner notes that the petition of appeal indicates that petitioner was concerned about deadlines, which may have resulted in her filing the petition of appeal prior to the Board's decision. To the extent that clarity may assist the parties on this point, the Commissioner finds that petitioner's time to appeal the ultimate decision of the Board in this matter will begin anew following that decision.

[14] This decision may be appealed to the Appellate Division of the Superior Court pursuant to P.L. 2008, c. 36 (N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9.1).

The record of this emergent matter and the recommended Order of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) have been reviewed. Upon such review, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that petitioner has failed to demonstrate entitlement to emergent relief pursuant to each of the standards enunciated in *Crowe v. BEFORE JEFFREY N. RABIN, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This matter was initiated by petitioner on behalf of her daughter, M.S., as a result of seven allegations of harassment, intimidation or bullying (HIB) against another student at Hamilton High School West (HHSW), charged by respondent, the Township of Hamilton Board of Education (Board). On July 22, 2020, the Board conducted a hearing regarding one of the seven allegations, HIB #6813. Following that hearing, petitioner withdrew her request for the Board to hear the other six charges against M.S.

On July 27, 2020, petitioner filed a due process petition which was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), OAL Dkt. No. EDU 07830-20, challenging the seven HIB allegations against M.S.

Petitioner initiated the within matter through a motion for emergent relief filed on September 24, 2020, with the New Jersey Department of Education (DOE), Office of Controversies and Disputes (OCD). Petitioner indicated in her Pro Se Petition of Appeal (Petition) that she was appealing a finding by respondent dated September 23, 2020, (resulting from the hearing on July 22, 2020), upholding the school superintendent's decision in HIB #6813 that M.S.'s conduct met the criteria for HIB against another student. Although petitioner failed to state in her Petition what relief she sought, it will be presumed that petitioner sought to have respondent's finding of September 23, 2020, overturned.

Petitioner also used the within emergent appeal to levy charges against her daughter's school principal, Brian Smith, accusing him of continuing harassment of both mother, D.S., and student, M.S. As a result, respondent opened an investigation into petitioner's charges against Principal Smith on or about September 30, 2020. Because the within Petition was transmitted by OCD to OAL only as an appeal of the Board's HIB decision of September 23, 2020, regarding HIB #6813, and because the statutorily-required investigation by the Board is still ongoing, these charges against Principal Smith were not heard as part of the within emergent action.

The motion for emergent relief was transmitted to the OAL on September 25, 2020. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15; N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. A telephone prehearing call was scheduled for September 29, 2020, but petitioner failed to appear for the call. A telephone prehearing call took place on the record on October 1, 2020, and this matter was scheduled for emergent hearing.

Due to the COVID-19 pandemic, an emergent hearing in this matter took place via Zoom on October 5, 2020. Petitioner, stating that this court did not allow her to argue her case during the telephone prehearing call of October 1, 2020, requested that the Hon. Jeffrey N. Rabin, Administrative Law Judge, recuse himself from this case. Petitioner's motion for recusal was denied by Judge Rabin, and the Zoom hearing took place on October 5, 2020.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Based on petitioners' Petition for emergent relief and testimony at the hearing, and the documentation and testimony proffered by respondent, and solely for the purpose of deciding this emergent appeal, I FIND the following to be the undisputed facts:

1. Petitioner, D.S., is the parent of minor child, M.S., a student at HHSW. A fellow student at HHSW claimed that, on multiple occasions on multiple dates, M.S. bullied her, called her a "ho" to her face and on social media, and threatened her with physical harm. "Ho" is a derogatory term suggesting that a female is sexually promiscuous. (Board letter of September 23, 2020.)

LEGAL ANALYSIS

The issue is whether petitioner has proven by a preponderance of the evidence that she has met the standard for emergent relief, and that she is entitled to have the findings of a school board overturned.

N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9 authorizes the Commissioner of Education to consider controversies between a parent and a school board. OAL is the appropriate venue for hearing an appeal of a school board findings and OCD properly forwarded this matter to OAL for this emergent appeal to be heard.

Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A: 3-1.6 and the case of Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982), a petitioner must show by a preponderance of the evidence that four prongs/prerequisites have been met in petitioner's favor in order to be eligible for emergent relief. The form of Petition executed and filed by petitioner on September 24, 2020, contained a Section VI clearly setting forth petitioner's obligation to demonstrate that the four prongs have been met, and providing petitioner with the four-prong test and legal citations to the regulatory code section and Crowe.

Emergent relief may be granted if the judge determines from the proofs that the following four prongs have been met:

i. The petitioner will suffer irreparable harm if the requested relief is not granted;

ii. The legal right underlying the petitioner's claim is settled;

iii. The petitioner has a likelihood of prevailing on the merits of the underlying claim; and

iv. When the equities and interests of the parties are balanced, the petitioner will suffer greater harm than the respondent will suffer if the requested relief is not granted.

Section VI of the Pro Se Petition of Appeal required that a petitioner's appeal be accompanied by a memorandum addressing the four-pronged standard for relief. Petitioner attached such a memorandum to her petition entitled "Section VI: RE: Seeking Relief on an Emergent Basis" (Memorandum). However, petitioner failed to address the Crowe standard for emergent relief in her memorandum. During the hearing, this court attempted to guide petitioner through the prerequisites for emergent relief, but petitioner was argumentative and non-responsive regarding those prerequisites, continuing to argue that the HIB #6813 decision should be overturned because school officials were harassing her and her daughter, without providing any proof of such harassment.

1. The petitioner will suffer irreparable harm if the requested relief is not granted.

Petitioner failed in her memorandum to offer any evidence of harm to M.S. resulting from the Board's action in upholding HIB #6813. Petitioner did not claim that any harm had taken place since the Board's decision was issued on September 23, 2020. She did not indicate that M.S. had been suspended or in any way had her education affected. In fact, there had been no encounters between M.S. and the complaining student since early 2020 due to a school shutdown resulting from the COVID-19 pandemic. The Board's September 23, 2020, decision referred to "remedial measures" created after its investigation, designed to prevent any more HIB incidents by M.S., but the Board stated that such measures had not yet been implemented due to the shutdown resulting from the current health emergency. Petitioner did not mention remedial measures, but the Board indicated that the suggested remedial measure was for M.S. to meet with a guidance counselor in order to prevent further incidents. Petitioner did not claim any harm or stigma to M.S. resulting from the implementation of any remedial measures or resulting from an appointment with a guidance counselor.

Petitioner's memorandum and testimony at the hearing offered claims that D.S. and M.S. had been harassed by the school principal and other school personnel, including Board counsel, Patrick Carrigg. But petitioner proffered no corresponding evidence, such as the harassers' names (except for Principal Smith), and did not specify what type of harassment, did not list dates on which such harassments might have taken place, and did not specify what harm M.S. suffered from each such alleged harassment. Any allegations of harassment by the principal are currently under investigation and are not part of the within appeal as transmitted to OAL.

Petitioner stated in her memorandum that a security guard had, at one time, placed his hands on M.S. However, petitioner proffered no evidence during the within appeal of such action such as the name of the security guard, witness statements, date of said alleged touching, etc. Petitioner did not proffer any evidence that such alleged touching constituted "harassment," or any claim or evidence that harm resulted from such alleged touching.

Even if harm had already resulted from these alleged Board actions, petitioner still failed to show that additional harm would occur if emergent relief were denied. The within appeal is of the Board's September 23, 2020, decision regarding HIB #6813; petitioner provided no evidence of any harm that occurred after the Board issued its decision on September 23, 2020, and in fact petitioner filed for emergent relief immediately after receiving the Board's decision. Petitioner failed to offer examples of harm that might befall M.S. resulting from the Board's September 23, 2020, decision. Petitioner offered lay testimony referring to psychological damages to M.S. resulting from being accused of HIB, but did not specify what psychological damages had been incurred or whether any psychological issues borne by M.S. were related to the Board's decision of September 23, 2020. Petitioner introduced no expert medical testimony and proffered no evidence that M.S. had been evaluated or treated by a psychologist for alleged damages stemming from the Board's allegations of HIB or its decision upholding HIB #6813.

Without any real claim or evidence of harm to M.S. resulting from the Board's decision of September 23, 2020, or claims of anticipated harm resulting from that decision, it is clear that petitioner's appeal of the Board decision upholding HIB #6813 was not to be resolved on an emergent appeal but rather was ripe for a full due process appeal. Petitioner has already filed a due process appeal on the seven charges of HIB against M.S.; any issues petitioner had regarding actions or statements by the school or Board or evidence to be turned over would best be addressed during the discovery phase in OAL Dkt. No. EDU 07830-20.

Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that petitioner failed to show that this first prong of the Crowe test for emergent relief had been met in favor of the petitioner.

2. The legal right underlying the petitioner's claim is settled.

Petitioner did not address the legal right underlying her claim in either her Petition and accompanying memorandum or during the hearing. Petitioner did not state a legal claim, except to state that the Board's decision was faulty. Petitioner did not state any legal grounds for her position that the Board's decision should be overturned. In fact, petitioner's Petition failed to state a claim for relief; at the hearing petitioner stated that the relief she sought was the rescinding of all seven allegations of HIB against her daughter, despite the fact that the Board only issued a decision on one of the seven charges, and the within appeal was filed only regarding the one charge that was decided (HIB #6813).

If petitioner's claim is that the Board, for example, withheld information or evidence, she did not state what statutes, regulations or caselaw were violated, or what statutes, regulations or caselaw work in her favor. Further, petitioner did not state with specificity or offer any proofs as to what evidence may have been withheld from her, proofs as to when she formally requested such evidence, and whether she had a legal right to whatever evidence she may have wanted (such as, for example, whether there is any legal authority for petitioner to view video allegedly taken by the complaining student on her own cellphone). The Board has stated throughout its documentation that petitioner offered no evidence or witnesses at the hearing of July 22, 2020, whereas the Board's exhibits indicate that they conducted a full investigation and entered the results into evidence at the July 22, 2020, hearing. It is difficult to believe that there is caselaw that is settled in favor of a litigant who offered no evidence or witnesses at a hearing or trial. However, if petitioner had provided any evidence at all for purposes of the within hearing proving that, for example, witnesses had lied at the July 2020 hearing, one could then have argued that caselaw is settled, that witnesses under oath are obligated to tell the truth; petitioner's lack of evidence or legal argument instead led to the conclusion that any legal rights claimed by petitioner were not settled.

Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that petitioner failed to show that the second prong of the Crowe test for emergent relief had been met in favor of the petitioner.

3. The petitioner has a likelihood of prevailing on the merits of the underlying claim.

Petitioner did not address her likelihood of prevailing on the merits of the underlying claim, except to state at the hearing that she was sure she would win. The Board provided exhibits for the within hearing which indicated that its decision of September 23, 2020, was based on investigative evidence. Petitioner offered no witnesses or evidence at the hearing of July 22, 2020, and no evidence at the within hearing. In the face of evidence, witnesses and a full investigation by the Board, it seems more likely that respondent would prevail on the merits of the underlying claim. As further pointed out by respondent at the hearing, at a full due process hearing petitioner would have to show that the Board's decision on the underlying claim was arbitrary and capricious. Petitioner did not make such showing at the within hearing.

Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that petitioner failed to show that the third prong of the Crowe test for emergent relief had been met in favor of the petitioner.

4. When the equities and interests of the parties are balanced, the petitioner will suffer greater harm than the respondent will suffer if the requested relief is not granted.

Petitioner failed to address this fourth prong of the Crowe test. Most difficult in addressing this prong without input from the petitioner is that petitioner in her formal Petition failed to state a claim upon which relief could be granted.

If petitioner's claim was that the Board's evidence at the July 22, 2020, hearing was fraudulent, and that their decision upholding the charge of HIB committed by M.S. was based on this faulty information, the harm to petitioner would be that her daughter had been wrongly accused. Then one could look at the harm suffered by M.S. due to this hypothetically wrong accusation. For purposes of this argument, however, petitioner failed to show any harm suffered by M.S. due to the Board's decision of September 23, 2020. Further, there would be no legal harm to petitioner because she would still be entitled to a full due process factual hearing at which she could proffer evidence, offer witnesses, and cross-exam Board witnesses in order to prove that the Board's decision was improperly reached.

If petitioner had argued that there was harm to her daughter due to harassment from school officials or the complaining student, she should have made that argument in her Petition and provided evidence to that effect during the hearing. It must be noted, however, that HHSW has not yet opened for in-person learning at the school building, so there would have been no encounters between school personnel, or the complaining student and M.S. At the time of this hearing, it appeared that HHSW would not be opening for in-person learning until October 12, 2020, at the earliest.

Conversely, there would be harm to the Board if their decision was reversed at this time. If the allegations in HIB# 6813 were reversed without a full evidentiary due process hearing, the student allegedly bullied and threatened by M.S. could again be at risk of suffering the same HIB, and the Board would be deemed to have failed to protect a student against whom threats of violence were made. The equities at this time tip the balance in favor of the Board in protecting a student, not in favor of a petitioner who has failed to show that any harm would be suffered.

Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that petitioner failed to show that the fourth prong of the Crowe test for emergent relief had been met in favor of the petitioner.

Therefore, I CONCLUDE that petitioner failed to show by a preponderance of the evidence that she met any of the four prongs of the Crowe test for emergent relief. I CONCLUDE that petitioner failed to prove that she was entitled to emergent relief in this matter.

In addition to the above-referenced analysis of the Crowe test, petitioner's appeal appeared technically deficient. As stated herein, petitioner failed to address in her memorandum the four prerequisites of the Crowe test. Further, it must be noted that petitioner chose to file this appeal for emergent relief using a form of petition supplied by the DOE. As with any legal filings to a court, this form required the petitioner's signature to be notarized. Section IV of the form is entitled "Notarized Statement of Verification or Certification in lieu of Affidavit for each petitioner." There is a space below the petitioner's signature line for a notary signature and date. Two copies of petitioner's Petition were transmitted to OAL; neither had a notary signature or stamp. Petitioner wrote the date of her filing in the notary date line, and left the notary signature line blank. Yet the copy of the Petition enclosed with respondent's hearing exhibits (Respondent Exhibit A) had a notary signature and stamp. The notary signature is visibly similar to petitioner's signature (with an "S" similar to a musical "G clef"). Therefore, either the notary signed and stamped the Petition separately and subsequently to when petitioner executed it and not in her presence, or the notary signature is fraudulent. Either way, I CONCLUDE that petitioner's Pro Se Petition of Appeal was legally deficient.

ORDER

The petitioner's motion for emergent relief is DENIED.

This order on application for emergency relief may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The final decision shall be issued without undue delay, but no later than forty-five days following the entry of this order. If the COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION does not adopt, modify or reject this order within forty-five days, this recommended order shall become a final decision on the issue of emergent relief in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

NOW THEREFORE, in consideration of the mutual promises of the parties to this Agreement, the receipt and sufficiency of which is hereby acknowledged, the parties agree as follows:

Board of Education of the Township of West Orange, Essex County,

Respondent.

On January 9, 2020, a final agency decision was rendered in this matter, wherein the Commissioner found C.E. liable for tuition in the amount of Twenty-One Thousand Two Hundred Five Dollars ($21,205.00), representing tuition for a period of ineligible attendance by his child, K.E., in the Board's school district from the beginning of the 2018-2019 school year through October 21, 2019, plus One Hundred One Dollars and Fifty-One Cents ($101.51) for each school day following October 21, 2019 on which K.E. attended the district's schools. The Board subsequently requested that the Commissioner seek entry of the assessments on the judgment docket of the Superior Court pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2A:58-10. C.E. offered no reasons why the judgment against him should not be so docketed, although given an opportunity by this agency to do so.

Accordingly, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2A:58-10, Corey Ellington is now subject to entry of a judgment by the court in the amount of $21,306.51, which represents the payment ordered by the Commissioner, with interest to accrue as provided by law.

APPEARANCES

FOR THE BOARD

Brett E.J. Gorman, Esq., Parker McCay, P.A.

FOR THE RESPONDENT

Dean R. Wittman, Esq., Zeller & Wieliczko, LLP

BACKGROUND

In accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 and N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11, by letter dated August 14, 2020, the Lower Township Elementary Board of Education ("Board") or ("Petitioner") filed Sworn Tenure Charges and a Statement of Evidence against the Respondent, Mr. Glenn Donahue, a duly certified and tenured teacher employed by the Board.

Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5-1(b)(6), Brett E.J. Gorman, Esq., Parker McCay, P.C., Counsel for the Board/Petitioner, by letter dated August 14, 2020, submitted the following documents to the Commissioner of Education:

(1) a Statement of Tenure Charges, Statement of Evidence with exhibits;

(2) a signed sworn Statement of Tenure Charges, Certificate of Determination and Board Resolution certifying the charges to be served via overnight mail upon Edward Cridge, Esq., Mellk O'Neil, along with Proof of Service upon the Respondent.

By letter dated August 14, 2020, Dean R. Wittman, Esq., Zeller & Wieliczko, LLP, Counsel for the Respondent, submitted a Sworn Statement of Position and Statement of Evidence as Mr. Donahue's written response to the Tenure Charges in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11.

Following receipt of the Respondent's answer on August 14, 2020, on August 24, 2020, Ms. Jennifer Killough-Herrera, Director, Office of Controversies and Disputes, on behalf of the Commissioner of Education, reviewed the tenure charges and deemed them "sufficient, if true to warrant dismissal or reduction in salary, subject to determination by the arbitrator of the respondent's defenses and any motions which may be filed with the arbitrator." The undersigned was appointed as Arbitrator on August 24, 2020.

The Respondent was charged with "Conduct Unbecoming a Staff Member" and "Incapacity."

Aside from acknowledging his employment as a teacher with the Board responsible for "performing all of the duties and responsibilities of a public school employee..." and receiving District Policy 3218, the Respondent denied all of the charges and specifications.

A hearing was scheduled for October 2, 22 and 23, 2020. Prior to the commencement of the hearing, the Respondent, by letter dated October 1, 2020, submitted a notarized letter to Mr. Jeff Samanieg, Superintendent, "resigning from his employment with the Lower Township Elementary School District, effective December 1, 2020." The letter continues as follows:

> This resignation is due to my disabilities and my incapacity to continue as a teacher in the District. I understand that this is a voluntary relinquishment of my tenure rights and that this resignation is irrevocable, regardless of any subsequent change in my circumstances. With that said, my resignation is being tendered with the understanding that I will receive salary and benefits from October 1, 2020 through November 30, 2020. [Attachment 2]

By letter dated October 9, 2020, Counsel for the Respondent submitted the Respondent's letter of resignation to Counsel for the Board and the Arbitrator.

Mr. Wittman requested "a fully signed copy of the Separation and Release of Claims Agreement once it is approved by the Board."

Given the respondent's unilateral resignation, in the Arbitrator's opinion, the approval of the Commissioner of Education would not be necessary pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6 a "Withdrawal, settlement or mooting of tenure charges." The relevant case law supports this determination as follows:

> The case of State-Operated School District of the City of Jersey City, Hudson County v. Deborah Robinson, Dkt. No. 403-11/03 (2004) would seem applicable to the instant case. In Robinson, the respondent submitted a letter of resignation, indicating that she was "retiring on an ordinary disability pension." ALJ Sandra Ann Robinson of the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") held: "An issue is 'moot' when a determination is sought on a matter, which, when rendered, cannot have any practical effect on the existing controversy since there remains no conflict between the parties."
> Similarly, In The Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Bernard Saez, State Operated School District of the City of Newark, Essex County, OAL DKT. NO. EDU 11306-05 (2006), ALJ Robert J. Giordano held:
> > "Against this backdrop, the disposition of the case is made. I CONCLUDE that given his unilateral resignation as a tenured teacher the tenure charges against the respondent are rendered moot. He is no longer employed by the school district. He has no claim for back pay which could be resolved by the disposition of the charges here. The petitioner has no other legitimate interest arising out of the instant matter. I thus CONCLUDE the tenure charges certified by petitioner State Operated School District of the City of Newark against respondent Bernard Saez should be dismissed."

Following the Board's meeting on October 27, 2020, the Respondent's resignation and separation was approved. (See Attachment 1, Minutes of the October 27, 2020 meeting of the Lower Township Board of Education).

AWARD

Based on the foregoing case law and N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6, I hereby accept the "Letter of Resignation" submitted by the Respondent Glenn Donahue, dated October 1, 2020, (Attachment 2) and Separation and Release of Claims entered into by the parties on October 27, 2020 (Attachment 3) and order that the tenure charges against Glenn Donahue be dismissed as moot.

On June 30, 2020, I was assigned as the arbitrator for the above referenced matter. Subsequent to correspondence, conference calls and a videoconference with counsel, an in-person hearing was scheduled for September 22, 29, 30 and October 6, 2020.

On September 17, 2020, Counsel for the Petitioner notified me that the parties reached general terms for a settlement and, therefore, did not intend to proceed on the evidentiary record. On October 23, 2020, a Settlement Agreement, Release and Petitioner's submission supporting the basis of the settlement was forwarded to me for review. [See Attachments]. On November 6, 2020, I conducted a final conference with the parties' Counsel and the Respondent to discuss the terms of settlement.

N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6 requires the arbitrator to issue a brief decision approving the settlement of tenure charges and explaining why the arbitrator is approving the terms of settlement.

The parties' settlement agreement expressly details the basis for resolution. In addition, the Petitioner's submission supporting the basis of the settlement addresses the six (6) standards outlined and adopted by In re Cardonick, State Board Decision of April 6, 1983 (1990 School Law Decisions (S.L.D.) 842, 846) that must be met before a settlement is approved. I have thoroughly reviewed and considered the parties' reasons for settlement. Having considered the stated reasons in conjunction with the issues raised in the Statement of Tenure Charges and the Statement of Evidence filed by the Petitioner and the Response to Tenure Charges filed by the Respondent, I am persuaded that the parties entered the settlement agreement knowingly and willingly and that the terms of the settlement agreement represent a reasonable basis for settlement that will serve the public's interest and are consistent with the public good.

Accordingly, and based upon the foregoing, I approve the parties' settlement agreement.

Agency Docket Number 123-5/20

AWARD OF ARBITRATOR

The undersigned Arbitrator, having been duly designated by the Commissioner of Education from the Panel of Arbitrators in accordance with the TeachNJ statute, and having been duly sworn, and having duly heard the proofs and allegations of the parties, AWARDS as follows:

Based on the evidence submitted, the Lawrence Township Board of Education properly revoked the tenure and terminated the employment of Respondent Jill Maria. Respondent's grievance is hereby denied.

November 16, 2020

Daniel F. Brent, Arbitrator

NATURE OF THE CASE

The Respondent was employed as a Special Education Teacher at the Lawrence Intermediate School on September 1, 2005. The School District of the Township of Lawrence granted her tenure as a teacher in September 2008. Tenure charges were first brought against the Respondent in or about December 2018, when the Respondent was charged with failing to report to the District her arrest on criminal charges in Pennsylvania in January 2017 and positive drug tests arising thereafter. These tenure charges (hereafter, the First Set of Tenure Charges) were upheld in part and denied in part by Arbitrator Ralph Colflesh, who reduced Respondent's termination of employment and loss of tenure in the District to a 120-day suspension without pay and withholding of an annual salary increment based on the Respondent's failure to report her arrest and a subsequent positive drug test to the District. He predicated his decision and remedy on the limited scope of the initial set of tenure charges, which were based solely on Respondent's failure to report her arrest rather than the underlying conduct leading to the arrest. Arbitrator Colflesh held that the District could impose additional charges based on the conduct underlying the arrest and the possession or use of a controlled substance.

The District filed a second set of Tenure Charges against Respondent in February 2020, alleging that the conduct that she failed to report constituted additional grounds to revoke her tenure. Respondent disputed the propriety of the Second Tenure Charges. Arbitrator Andrée McKissick was appointed to decide the Second Tenure Charges. Applying the Entire Controversy Doctrine, Arbitrator McKissick dismissed the Second Set of Tenure Charges on April 18, 2020, holding that the District should have incorporated all actions of the Respondent of which it was aware, or reasonably should have been aware, into its original tenure charges. Arbitrator McKissick held that Respondent's underlying conduct, as well as her failure to report her arrest for a domestic dispute and for possession of controlled substances were known, or should have been known, by the District when the First Set of Tenure Charges were filed and thus should have been included in the initial tenure charges.

The District brought the Third Tenure Charges, the instant matter, on April 30, 2020 alleging that Respondent Maria engaged in additional misconduct after the Colflesh Award was issued, and that her actions constituted new instances of dishonesty and conduct unbecoming a teacher employed by the Lawrence Township Board of Education. The District cited Respondent's intentional failure to reveal to the District during an interview with the District Director of Personnel before returning to work in September 2019, pursuant to Arbitrator Colflesh's award, that she had recently failed multiple additional drug tests and lied to District administrators about her recent drug use and failed drug tests. The District also alleged that Respondent intentionally failed to disclose other information relevant to her employment as a teacher that she was obligated to disclose regarding her bankruptcy proceedings, court cost repayment probation, and child custody status.

Respondent filed a Motion to Dismiss the Third Tenure Charges, contending that the McKissick Award precluded revisiting conduct that occurred before Arbitrator Colflesh issued his award on July 22, 2019 and should not have been referred to in the Third Tenure Charges. The undersigned issued an Interim Award on July 27, 2020 that denied Respondent's Motion to Dismiss as to those events addressed in the Third Tenure Charges that occurred after the date that Arbitrator Colflesh issued his Award. The Interim Award held that reciting the procedural history of the prior two tenure charges did not revive charges addressing conduct before July 22, 2019, but ordered that conduct occurring after the First Tenure Charge proceedings before Arbitrator Colflesh, culminating in his award on July 22, 2019, created a valid basis for imposing discipline, up to and including revocation of tenure. The matter proceeded to hearings on the merits of these aspects of the Third Tenure Charges.

award issued on July 22, 2019. Nor, pursuant to the arbitration decision issued by Arbitrator Andrée McKissick dismissing the Second Tenure Charges, is this proceeding about any other misconduct alleged to have occurred before the date of Arbitrator Colflesh's award. The Third Set of Tenure Charges comprising the instant case is limited to allegations regarding misconduct that occurred after the Colflesh award was issued and the District and Respondent became aware of Arbitrator Colflesh's decision. The two previous tenure proceedings are relevant only to demonstrate that the Respondent knew, or reasonably should have known, of her obligation to advise the District of pertinent circumstances regarding her employment, including arrests, failed drug tests, and changes in her probation status or in her health that affected her fitness for duty or her ability to resume her teaching duties.

The instant matter also does not involve the Respondent's status as a recovering abuser of alcohol and drugs. Credible testimony during the tenure arbitration hearings established that, if Respondent had been immediately forthcoming and candid about her substance abuse problems, the District would have granted her a leave of absence to seek treatment and would have assisted her in obtaining medical and psychological treatment. There is no evidence in the evidentiary record that the District retaliated or discriminated against Respondent because she had abused drugs and alcohol in the past, because of her status as a recovering substance abuser, or because she relapsed after she completed an in-patient treatment program. The instant tenure charges were predicated on her failure to disclose at least two positive drug tests and on her dishonesty in providing false answers to direct inquiries by one or more District administrators regarding her recent drug use.

This case is also not about the Respondent's personal financial situation, her bankruptcy court proceedings, or the topics discussed in meetings with her Probation Officer or her Probation Officer's supervisor, provided that the meetings did not result in a change in her probation status. The allegations regarding her failure to report the content of meetings with her Probation Officer, her delinquency in tendering periodic payments of court costs and fees, her personal bankruptcy court proceedings, or her child custody issues cited by the District were deemed to be irrelevant or immaterial and thus did not materially affect the outcome of the instant case.

The decision regarding the current set of tenure charges against Respondent Jill Maria is predicated solely on her failure to advise the District that she failed drug tests on September 12, 2019 and on October 4, 2019 and on her false answer when she was asked if she was no longer using illegal drugs by the District Director of Personnel Sean Fry during Return to Work interviews on September 9, 2019, and on October 1, 2019. She lied about her use of drugs as recently as September 24, 2019, concealed her recent positive test, and only admitted her falsehoods for the first time in her testimony under oath during the arbitration hearings.

Respondent testified candidly that she lied to the District Director Fry in a meeting on October 1, 2019. She explained her dishonest answer as a by-product of her shame and mortification because she had relapsed after completing her thirty-day in-patient treatment program. Although the Arbitrator understands the Respondent's embarrassment and anger at herself arising from her relapse, and is sympathetic to her painful plight as she struggled with the challenges in remaining sober, her heartfelt explanation does not insulate her from the consequences of her repeated proven dishonesty toward her employer.

Respondent argued persuasively that she should not be punished for failing to disclose to the District the twists and turns of her ongoing personal bankruptcy case, as her personal financial situation was beyond the purview of the District's legitimate concern. The District asserted that it was entitled to know if Respondent was delinquent in her obligation to make periodic payments of court costs that had been assessed in connection with her criminal proceedings. The nexus between Respondent's fitness to teach and her ongoing fulfillment of her obligation to remain current in her court-ordered repayment plan has not been persuasively established by the District.

Accepting Respondent's argument that she did not fail to fulfill a valid obligation to disclose all aspects of her bankruptcy, as she had made appropriate arrangements with her Probation Officer to continue her periodic payment of court costs, mandates a conclusion that Respondent was not culpable for failing to alert the District regarding the results of a December 2019 meeting with her Probation Officer and her Probation Officer's supervisor because there was no change in her probation status. Nevertheless, Respondent Maria remains culpable for lying to District management about her two failed drug tests and recent drug use.

After July 22, 2019, Respondent was unequivocally on notice of her obligation to disclose all failed drug tests. Not only had she been disciplined following the first set of Tenure Charges for failing to disclose her arrest for assault and possession of drugs and drug paraphernalia, but the testimony revealed that Respondent had also been explicitly admonished by the District before, during, and after those proceedings regarding the District's unambiguous and reasonable requirement that she must disclose any future failed drug test.

The evidentiary record in the instant matter established by clear and convincing evidence that Respondent failed to learn the lesson of her earlier legal travails and personal challenges. Had she been forthright initially, she might have averted the first set of Tenure Charges, which resulted in the imposition of a 120-day suspension without pay and forfeiture of her annual increment. This penalty is relevant to the extent that the instant case may properly be viewed as one in which the District imposed progressively severe discipline based on the penalty previously imposed by Arbitrator Colflesh. Applying the concept of progressively severe discipline, the increase from the penultimate penalty of a 120-day unpaid suspension and loss of increment to revocation of tenure and termination for repeated dishonest conduct and use of a controlled substance was neither arbitrary nor capricious.

Even if the penalty imposed in the instant matter were construed to be a summary discharge not predicated on previous discipline for similar misconduct, the Respondent's admitted intentional prevarication in response to a direct unequivocal inquiry by a District administrator when she did not disclose the drug test she recently failed and her recent drug use constituted just and proper cause under applicable statutory criteria to revoke her tenure and to uphold her dismissal for conduct unbecoming a teacher.

All employees have a duty of honesty to, and fair dealing with, their employers. Employees in safety sensitive and "caring" professions, including teachers, have a particular obligation to apprise their employers of circumstances in their personal lives that may raise questions about their fitness for duty. This degree of trust is heightened when the safety of young children is entrusted to a public school teacher such as in Respondent's sixth grade teaching position at Lawrence Middle School.

As a professional educator, Respondent is entrusted by parents, the elected Board of Education, and District administrators with the responsible care of children, in her case children with special needs. District administrators, parents, and professional colleagues must be able to rely on her integrity, pedagogical competence, and adherence to professional standards of conduct. After Respondent's participation in two prior tenure charge proceedings involving similar misconduct, Respondent Maria was unequivocally aware of her duty to disclose the Petitioner Garfield Park Academy (GPA) – an approved private school for students with disabilities (APSSD) – challenged the action of the respondent, New Jersey Department of Education, Office of Fiscal Accountability and Compliance (OFAC), disallowing the cost of student meals in the tuition rate calculated by GPA for the 2009-2010 school year. OFAC found that GPA had not received board resolutions from a majority of sending school districts prior to the start of the school year, as required for the cost of meals to be included in the tuition rate. GPA argued that it should be permitted to include the cost of the meals as the Department allegedly failed to release the mandated tuition contract forms necessary for the contracts at issue in a timely manner.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: N.J.A.C. 6A:23A-18.5(a)(20) generally prohibits an APSSD from including the cost of student meals in its tuition rate; there is, however, an exception allowing the cost of meals to be included if the school receives – prior to the start of the school year – board resolutions from a majority of school districts that have contracted to send students to the APSSD in that fiscal year stating that the districts do not require the APSSD to apply for funding from the Child Nutrition Program or to charge students for meals; immediately prior to the start of the 2009-2010 school year, GPA had informal commitments from 28 school districts, but no executed contracts for students from these districts to attend GPA; petitioner's argument that GPA meets the exception criteria because a majority of zero school districts is zero, is without merit; however, GPA was delayed in complying with the requirements of N.J.A.C. 6A:23A-18.5(a)(20) because OFAC delayed posting the mandated tuition contract (MTC) form that GPA needed in order to enter into contracts with sending districts. The ALJ concluded that if the MTC had been posted earlier, GPA could have complied with the regulation's time requirements. Accordingly, the ALJ ordered that OFAC's disallowance of $82,753 in student meal cost be reversed.

Upon comprehensive review, the Commissioner found, inter alia, that: because GPA did not have any contracts with sending school districts as of June 30, 2009, it was not required to submit any resolutions in order to qualify for the regulatory exception allowing it to include meal costs in its tuition; GPS's interpretation that a majority of zero is zero is correct; and there is no suggestion in this case that GPA had any improper motive or intentionally delayed its contracting process. Accordingly, the Commissioner adopted the Initial Decision of the OAL as modified herein. OFAC's disallowance of $82,753 was reversed.

Final Decision

Garfield Park Academy,

Petitioner,

v.

New Jersey State Department of Education, Office of Fiscal Accountability and Compliance,

Respondent.

The record of this matter, the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), the exceptions filed by respondent pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4, and the reply thereto by petitioner have been reviewed.

This matter involves a decision by the Office of Fiscal Accountability and Compliance (OFAC) of the New Jersey Department of Education (DOE), disallowing the cost of student meals in the tuition rate calculated by petitioner Garfield Park Academy (GPA), an approved private school for students with disabilities (APSSD). OFAC found that GPA had not received board resolutions from a majority of sending school districts prior to the start of the school year, as required for the cost of meals to be properly included in the tuition rate. GPA filed a petition of appeal.

The ALJ found that N.J.A.C. 6A:23A-18.5(a)(20)[1] generally prohibits an APSSD from including the cost of student meals in its tuition rate. However, the regulation contains an exception allowing the cost of meals to be included if the school receives – prior to the start of the school year – board resolutions from a majority of school districts that have contracted to send students to the APSSD in that fiscal year, resolving that the districts do not require the APSSD to apply for funding from the Child Nutrition Program or to charge students for meals. On June 30, 2009, the last day prior to the start of the 2009-2010 school year, GPA had informal commitments from 28 school districts, but no executed contracts to send any students to GPA. The ALJ rejected GPA's argument that a majority of zero school districts is zero, such that GPA met the criteria for the exception, concluding that GPA's interpretation would undercut the intent of the regulation and would incentivize APSSDs to delay receipt of signed contracts. However, the ALJ also found that GPA was delayed in complying with the conditions of the regulation because the DOE delayed posting the mandated tuition contract (MTC) form that GPA needed to use to enter into the contracts as required. The MTC was not posted on the DOE's website until June 12, 2009, shortly before the June 30 deadline, and the ALJ concluded that if the MTC had been posted earlier, GPA could have complied with the regulation's time requirements. Accordingly, the ALJ ordered that OFAC's disallowance of $82,753 in student meal cost be reversed.

In its exceptions, which largely reiterate arguments made below, OFAC argues that the MTC was not delayed, as the evidence presented at hearing showed that the MTC for the 2008-2009 school year had been released even later than the 2009-2010 MTC. OFAC notes that GPA's business manager admitted that GPA had not sought an extension of the June 30 deadline, and asserts that there was no evidence that the June 12 release of the MTC had an identifiable impact on GPA.

In response, GPA asserts similar arguments to those it made below, including that it should not have been required to provide any resolutions because it had not entered into any contracts as of June 30, and that it was prejudiced by the late posting of the MTC, which even OFAC's witness admitted made it unlikely that GPA could have timely obtained signed contracts and resolutions.

Upon comprehensive review, the Commissioner finds that, because GPA did not have any contracts with sending school districts as of June 30, 2009, it was not required to submit any resolutions in order to qualify for the regulatory exception allowing it to include meal costs in its tuition.[2] In Delaware Valley Sch. for Exceptional Children v. N.J. Dep't of Educ., Commissioner Decision No. 56-12 (February 17, 2012), the Commissioner held that "the date identified in [the regulation] as the time at which school districts must weigh in about whether they will allow food service costs to be included in tuition fees is clear. In Delaware Valley, supra, that date was June 30, 2007. Thus, for petitioner to have been allowed to include food service costs in its tuition fees, it would have had to receive the required board resolutions from [a majority of districts] that had entered into contracts with it by June 30, 2007." (emphasis added). The undisputed facts in this matter demonstrate that GPA had not entered into any contracts with school districts by June 30, 2009. The Commissioner agrees with GPA's

[2] Because the Commissioner concludes that GPA was not required to submit any resolutions, she does not reach the issues of the alleged "delay" in the DOE's posting of the MTC or its impact on GPA.

interpretation that a majority of zero is zero, such that GPA was permitted to include meal costs in its tuition for the 2009-2010 school year even though it did not obtain any board resolutions.[3]

Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter, as modified herein. OFAC's disallowance of $82,753 is reversed.

IT IS SO ORDERED.[4]

[3] The Commissioner acknowledges and appreciates the ALJ's concern that this interpretation could incentivize APSSDs to delay the execution of their contracts so that they could include meal costs in their tuition without the school districts having the opportunity to agree or disagree. However, there is no suggestion in this case that GPA had any improper motive or intentionally delayed its contracting process. By this decision, the Commissioner does not foreclose the possibility that other cases may present facts demonstrating that an APSSD purposefully subverted the intent of this regulation.

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner Garfield Park Academy (GPA), a private school for the disabled, appeals from the decision of the Office of Fiscal Accountability and Compliance (OFAC) of the Department of Education (Department) disallowing the cost of meals for students in its tuition rate where it had not contracted timely with any school district prior to the start of the fiscal year. GPA argues that it should be permitted to include the cost of the meals as the Department allegedly failed to release the mandated tuition contract forms necessary for the contracts at issue in a timely manner.

On July 3, 2014, OFAC issued a decision affirming the disallowance of meal costs and GPA appealed. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for hearing as a contested case. It was filed with the OAL on September 9, 2014. The parties then moved for partial summary decision on the issue of whether GPA met the requirements of N.J.A.C. 6A:23a-18.5(A(20)(ii) and (iii) (the regulation) for the school year at issue 2009-2010. The cross motions were denied, and a hearing was ordered on the limited issue of what, if any, impact the alleged delay in releasing the mandated tuition contract form had on GPA's ability to comply with the exemption requirements for that school year. A hearing on that issue was held on March 2, 2017 and the record remained open for the submission of post hearing documents and exhibits. The record closed on May 9, 2019, and extensions of time were granted for the filing of the Initial Decision.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

GPA is an approved private school for the disabled (PSD), authorized to receive students from public school districts. On June 12, 2009, the Department posted to its website the 2009-2010 mandated tuition contract (MTC) form prescribed by the Commissioner for use by PSDs. As of June 30, 2009, GPA had informal commitments from twenty-eight (28) sending districts but had not yet obtained executed MTCs from any of those districts.

On February 22, 2012, OFAC issued a report detailing the results of its review of GPA's audited financial records for the 2009-2010 school year. Therein, OFAC determined that GPA had erroneously included in its tuition rate certain non-allowable costs including, inter alia, the cost of student meals in the amount of $82,753. According to the report, GPA could not include the cost of student meals in its tuition rate unless it submitted board resolutions showing approval by June 30, in accordance with N.J.A.C.

6A:23A-18.5(a)(20)(ii) and (iii), from a majority of its sending districts resolving that GPA was neither required to apply for funding from the CNP, nor required to charge students for meals. The audit determined that forty-two sending districts had contracted with GPA for the 2009-2010 school year and, thus, GPA was required under the regulation to submit appropriate resolutions from twenty-two sending districts. The audit further determined that GPA had submitted appropriate resolutions from only seven sending districts.

On appeal, OFAC Director Robert Cicchino determined that the report had overstated the number of resolutions required. Accordingly, Director Cicchino amended the findings to reflect that GPA was required to submit appropriate resolutions from only fifteen sending districts. Director Cicchino ultimately upheld the disallowance, finding that GPA had not obtained appropriate resolutions from the required number of sending districts. As eight resolutions would have satisfied the regulation's requirements, GPA was short by one resolution.

As set forth in the Order of April 26, 2016 Denying Cross Motions for Summary Decision[1], testimony was taken on the limited issue of what, if any, impact the alleged delay in releasing the MTC from by the Department had on GPA's ability to comply with the exemption requirements for that school year. To that end, testimony was taken from Michele Heinz (Heinz), Business Manager for GPA, and from Elise Sadler Williams (Sadler-Williams), a supervising auditor at the Department.

Heinz described in detail the process for submission of GPA's sending district tuition contracts to the Department to satisfy the regulation's requirements. Once the Department issues the MTC in the spring, GPA staff incorporates any changes on the form MTC to the contract form in its computer system. The contract for each student then is prepared with their individual information. After copying, the contracts are mailed to each district. When they arrive at the district's business office, staff there must contact their special education staff to verify the contract information for each student. Once that process is completed, the contracts must be placed on a board's agenda for approval at a scheduled meeting. That scheduling must allow for the fact that some boards may only meet once a month and the placement of agenda items must occur in advance of the meeting. Heinz further testified that in her experience it was not unusual for June meeting dates to be cancelled or rescheduled due to school activities such as graduations.

According to Heinz, the MTC for school year 2009-2010 was emailed to schools by the Department at 2:20 p.m., on Friday afternoon, June 12, 2009. As there was an early dismissal that day, Heinz and her staff had left by that time in the afternoon. She also described the heavy workload she and her staff were under dealing with end of school year activities such as report cards, employee contract and performance reviews, inventory and other matters. Heinz was of the opinion that even if the contracts had been sent out by June 12, it was unlikely that they would have received them back by June 30 with each Board's approval. In this case, she testified that the contracts were sent out on June 22, six business days later. On cross-examination Heinz agreed that GPA had not sought an extension of time for submission of the contracts.

Sadler-Willliams then testified for the Department. A longstanding employee of respondent she was responsible for overseeing changes to the MTC and sending it out to the schools. Additionally, she is the supervising auditor for desk reviews for PSDs. In the event changes are made to the MTC, a lengthy review process within the Department takes place. She described that process as "involved" with a multi-level review process in the Department, and with the release date for the MTC varying each year. Under cross-examination she agreed that school districts and schools must wait for each year's version of the MTC before finalizing contracts with sending districts. She did not dispute Heinz' description of the steps necessary for the approval of the contracts and agreed it would be unlikely for a district to have completed and approved contracts by June 30 that year.

Both witnesses presented credible testimony in this matter.

LEGAL DISCUSSION

Approved private schools for the disabled are authorized to receive students from public school districts. PSDs are required to use the MTC prescribed by the Commissioner for each student received from a district board of education. N.J.A.C. 6A:23A-18.4 (a)13. A PSD's final tuition rate must be determined in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:23A-18.2 and must be less than or equal to the certified actual cost per student (CACPS). N.J.A.C. 6A:23A-18.2.

Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:23A-18.5, approved PSDs are prohibited from including certain specified costs in the calculation of the CACPS. Such "non-allowable costs" include the cost of meals for students when i) the meals do not meet the nutritional requirements of the CNP as administered by the New Jersey Department of Agriculture, ii) the PSD has not applied for and received funding from the CNP, or iii) the PSD has not charged students for paid and reduced meals in accordance with the income eligibility criteria established by the CNP. N.J.A.C. 6A:23A-18.5(a)(20).

Should a PSD wish to include the cost of meals in the CACPS, the regulations provide a mechanism for obtaining an exemption from this prohibition. In that regard, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:23A-18.5(a)(20), a PSD may include the cost of meals in the CACPS if the meals meet CNP nutritional guidelines and the PSD receives on an annual basis prior to the start of the fiscal year, school board resolutions from a majority of the school districts that have contracted to send students to the PSD in that fiscal year, which resolve that the board of education does not require the PSD to a) apply for and receive funding from the CNP, and b) charge students for a reduced and/or paid meal.

In the instant matter, as of June 30, 2009, GPA had informal commitments from 28 school districts to send students to GPA in the 2009-2010 school year. Yet, at that time, no board of education had actually executed a tuition contract. Petitioner's primary argument in its motion for summary decision was that "a majority of zero is zero" and, since it had not contracted with any school districts prior to the start of the fiscal year, it was permitted to include the cost of meals for students in its tuition rate without submitting any board resolutions at all. Respondent argued that, under the regulation, the cost of student meals is generally not allowable and, since GPA had not contracted with any school districts prior to the start of the fiscal year, it was not eligible for the exemption outlined in N.J.A.C. 6A:23A-18.5(a)(20).

In relevant part, N.J.A.C. 6A:23A-18.5(a)(20) provides as follows:

> (a) Costs that are not allowable in the calculation of the certified actual cost per student include the following:
>
> . . . (20) The cost of meals:
>
> i. For students when the meals do not meet the nutritional requirements of the Child Nutrition Program as administered by the New Jersey Department of Agriculture;
>
> ii. Effective July 1, 2007, for students when a non-profit approved private school for students with disabilities has not applied for and received funding from the Child Nutrition Program as administered by the New Jersey Department of Agriculture except when the private school has received, on an annual basis prior to the start of the fiscal year, school board resolutions from a majority of the school districts that have contracted to send students to the private school in that fiscal year, which resolves the district board of education does not require the private school to apply for and receive funding from the Child Nutrition Program (CNP);
>
> iii. Effective July 1, 2007, for students when the approved private school for students with disabilities has not charged students for paid and reduced meals in accordance with the income eligibility criteria established by the Child Nutrition Program as administered by the New Jersey Department of Agriculture except when the private school has received, on an annual basis prior to the start of the fiscal year, school board resolutions from a majority of the school districts that have contracted to send students to the private school in that fiscal year, which resolves the district board of education does not require the private school to charge students for a reduced and/or paid meal; and
> [N.J.A.C. 6A:23A-18.5(a)20] (emphasis added)

As set forth in the Order on Cross Motion the plain language of the regulation supports the DOE's interpretation. The regulation expressly prohibits PSDs from including the cost of student meals in the tuition rate. The regulation provides a mechanism by which a PSD may obtain an exemption from the general prohibition. But a PSD seeking to take advantage of this exemption must take affirmative steps to satisfy all of its regulatory conditions. More specifically, such a PSD must obtain the requisite number of appropriate board resolutions. Here, GPA had not contracted with any sending districts and, thus, was not capable of satisfying the conditions for the exemption.

The DOE's interpretation is further supported by the regulatory history of the rule, which evidences the DOE's intent to generally mandate participation in the CNP. During the comment period, a commenter requested that the proposed regulation be altered to allow a PSD to include the cost of student meals in the tuition rate in the event it is unable to collect student income eligibility forms and/or collect payment for meals. In its response, the DOE stated, in pertinent part:

> Meals are critical to the educational health of all students, both public and private, which is one of the primary reasons the Child Nutrition Program (CNP) was established. The CNP, administered by the New Jersey Department of Agriculture, offers reimbursement for the cost of meals to non-profit organizations that comply with the agency's nutritional and financial requirements. Due to the Federal requirements, profit schools are precluded from receiving Federal reimbursement for meals. The Department, however, does not believe that the full cost of these meals should be charged to tuition when Federal reimbursement is available and Federal guidelines exist on the maximum amount allowable to charge for paying students...Public school districts comply with the income eligibility requirements in order to receive Federal funding to decrease the cost to the taxpayers of their communities. Private schools should be required to maximize reimbursement and minimize the burden on the taxpayers of the sending districts.
> [38 N.J.R. 4178(b)] (emphasis added).

The DOE reiterated the purpose of the rule in its January 7, 2013 denial of a Petition for Rulemaking, which had sought an amendment to N.J.A.C. 6A:23A-18.5(a)20 that would have allowed an alternate mechanism for obtaining an exemption. Therein, the State Board of Education stated:

> The CNP offers reimbursement for the cost of meals to nonprofit organizations that comply with the agency's nutritional and financial requirements. Therefore, the full cost of these meals should not be charged to tuition when deferral reimbursement is available and State guidelines exist on the maximum amount allowable to charge for paying students. The purpose of the regulations at N.J.A.C. 6A:23A-18.5(a)20ii and iii is to require all approved and eligible PSSDs to take advantage of the additional revenues that are available if they comply with certain requirements. Nonprofit PSSDs have the opportunity to receive Federal reimbursement from the CNP as administered by the New Jersey Department of Agriculture. All PSSDs have the opportunity for additional revenue by charging for paid and reduced meals in accordance with the income eligibility requirements of CNP. These additional revenues will decrease the cost of providing meals to students enrolled in PSSDs. Public school districts comply with the income eligibility requirements in order to receive Federal funding to decrease the cost to the taxpayers of their communities. Private schools should be similarly required to maximize reimbursement and minimize the burden on the taxpayers of the sending districts.
> [45 N.J.R. 57(a)] (emphasis added).

The "majority of zero is zero" interpretation advocated by GPA directly undercuts the intent of the regulation, and incentivizes PSDs to delay receipt of signed contracts, allowing them to unilaterally determine to forego CNP funding and lay the full cost of student meals upon sending districts. Thus, GPA's argument in this regard was rejected. However, the issue of the alleged delay in releasing the MTC remains.

GPA argues that it was delayed in complying with the conditions of the regulatory exemption because DOE delayed posting the 2009-2010 MTC. Here GPA has shown it could have satisfied the conditions of the regulatory exception had the contract been timely posted to DOE's website[2]. Although the MTC was issued midafternoon on June

[2] In its April 3, 2012 appeal to Director Cicchino, GPA indicated that, in lieu of board resolutions, it submitted to OFAC letters signed by board members/administrators from a number of its sending districts. GPA argued that those 12 that year, it was a Friday afternoon. When GPA staff returned on the following Monday, it had to balance end of year duties with the detailed preparation of individual student contracts for a number of districts. Once those individuals' contracts were transmitted to the districts, each district had to go through their own review process and schedule the contracts on a Board meeting in conformance with Open Public Meeting Act requirements. Had the MTC been issued earlier in June, both GPA and the individual sending districts would have been in a better position to comply with the regulation's time requirements.

Here GPA presented credible testimony as to its efforts in complying with the regulation once the MTC was issued by the DOE. Even respondent's witness admitted that given all of the steps necessary for the preparation, transmittal and Board approval of the contracts it would be difficult to comply with regulation's time mandate. It should also be noted that GPA fell short by only one contract to be in compliance. To penalize GPA under the above facts is unfair given the timing of the MTC release and GPA should not be penalized for its substantial compliance with the regulation. GPA therefore is entitled to a reversal of the $82,753.00 disallowance of student meal costs.

ORDER

It is hereby ORDERED that respondent's disallowance of $82,753 in student meal costs is REVERSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

Final Decision

Garfield Park Academy,

Petitioner,

v.

New Jersey State Department of Education, Office of Fiscal Accountability and Compliance,

Respondent.

The record of this matter, the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), the exceptions filed by respondent pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4, and the reply thereto by petitioner have been reviewed.

This matter involves a decision by the Office of Fiscal Accountability and Compliance (OFAC) of the New Jersey Department of Education (DOE), disallowing the cost of student meals in the tuition rate calculated by petitioner Garfield Park Academy (GPA), an approved private school for students with disabilities (APSSD). OFAC found that GPA had not received board resolutions from a majority of sending school districts prior to the start of the school year, as required for the cost of meals to be properly included in the tuition rate. GPA filed a petition of appeal.

The ALJ found that N.J.A.C. 6A:23A-18.5(a)(20)[1] generally prohibits an APSSD from including the cost of student meals in its tuition rate. However, the regulation contains an exception allowing the cost of meals to be included if the school receives – prior to the start of the school year – board resolutions from a majority of school districts that have contracted to send students to the APSSD in that fiscal year, resolving that the districts do not require the APSSD to apply for funding from the Child Nutrition Program or to charge students for meals. On June 30, 2009, the last day prior to the start of the 2009-2010 school year, GPA had informal commitments from 28 school districts, but no executed contracts to send any students to GPA. The ALJ rejected GPA's argument that a majority of zero school districts is zero, such that GPA met the criteria for the exception, concluding that GPA's interpretation would undercut the intent of the regulation and would incentivize APSSDs to delay receipt of signed contracts. However, the ALJ also found that GPA was delayed in complying with the conditions of the regulation because the DOE delayed posting the mandated tuition contract (MTC) form that GPA needed to use to enter into the contracts as required. The MTC was not posted on the DOE's website until June 12, 2009, shortly before the June 30 deadline, and the ALJ concluded that if the MTC had been posted earlier, GPA could have complied with the regulation's time requirements. Accordingly, the ALJ ordered that OFAC's disallowance of $82,753 in student meal cost be reversed.

In its exceptions, which largely reiterate arguments made below, OFAC argues that the MTC was not delayed, as the evidence presented at hearing showed that the MTC for the 2008-2009 school year had been released even later than the 2009-2010 MTC. OFAC notes that GPA's business manager admitted that GPA had not sought an extension of the June 30 deadline, and asserts that there was no evidence that the June 12 release of the MTC had an identifiable impact on GPA.

In response, GPA asserts similar arguments to those it made below, including that it should not have been required to provide any resolutions because it had not entered into any contracts as of June 30, and that it was prejudiced by the late posting of the MTC, which even OFAC's witness admitted made it unlikely that GPA could have timely obtained signed contracts and resolutions.

Upon comprehensive review, the Commissioner finds that, because GPA did not have any contracts with sending school districts as of June 30, 2009, it was not required to submit any resolutions in order to qualify for the regulatory exception allowing it to include meal costs in its tuition.[2] In Delaware Valley Sch. for Exceptional Children v. N.J. Dep't of Educ., Commissioner Decision No. 56-12 (February 17, 2012), the Commissioner held that "the date identified in [the regulation] as the time at which school districts must weigh in about whether they will allow food service costs to be included in tuition fees is clear. In Delaware Valley, supra, that date was June 30, 2007. Thus, for petitioner to have been allowed to include food service costs in its tuition fees, it would have had to receive the required board resolutions from [a majority of districts] that had entered into contracts with it by June 30, 2007." (emphasis added). The undisputed facts in this matter demonstrate that GPA had not entered into any contracts with school districts by June 30, 2009. The Commissioner agrees with GPA's

[2] Because the Commissioner concludes that GPA was not required to submit any resolutions, she does not reach the issues of the alleged "delay" in the DOE's posting of the MTC or its impact on GPA.

interpretation that a majority of zero is zero, such that GPA was permitted to include meal costs in its tuition for the 2009-2010 school year even though it did not obtain any board resolutions.[3]

Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter, as modified herein. OFAC's disallowance of $82,753 is reversed.

IT IS SO ORDERED.[4]

[3] The Commissioner acknowledges and appreciates the ALJ's concern that this interpretation could incentivize APSSDs to delay the execution of their contracts so that they could include meal costs in their tuition without the school districts having the opportunity to agree or disagree. However, there is no suggestion in this case that GPA had any improper motive or intentionally delayed its contracting process. By this decision, the Commissioner does not foreclose the possibility that other cases may present facts demonstrating that an APSSD purposefully subverted the intent of this regulation.

The release recited in this paragraph shall include any and all claims which the Board may have for any type of damages cognizable under any of the laws referenced herein, including, but not limited to any and all claims for compensatory damages, punitive damages, and/or attorneys' fees.

2. Consideration. At the next regularly scheduled Board meeting, (as discussed in paragraph 17, below), the Board agrees to:

a. Restore Hare's employment at Tabernacle, and place her on Step 7 of the current salary guide for the 2020-2021 school year.
b. Restore her unused sick/personal days as of June 30, 2018.
c. Provide her seniority credit retroactive to November 3, 2014, which was her first day as an employee in Tabernacle.

In exchange for the above, and Hare's withdrawal of the lawsuit, Hare releases the Board from any and all claims, as discussed in paragraph 1, above, and the Board releases Hare as discussed in paragraph 1, above.

3. Acknowledgment of Consideration. Hare acknowledges that, in return for executing this Agreement and Release, she is receiving the consideration described herein, to which she may not otherwise be entitled.

4. No Admission of Liability. Neither the execution of this Agreement by the Released Parties, nor the terms hereof, constitute an admission by the Released Parties, or by any principal, agent, or employee of the Released Parties, of liability or the extent of damages with respect to any possible claim that was or could have been made by the other. By entering into this Agreement, the Released Parties do not admit, and expressly deny, that they have violated any contract, rule, law, statute or regulation, including, but not limited to, any federal, state or local law, statute, or regulation relating to employment or employment discrimination, or that the actions of the Released Parties were unwarranted, unjustified, retaliatory, discriminatory, or otherwise unlawful.

5. All Payments Due. Hare agrees that, upon receiving the Settlement benefits described herein, she will have been paid all compensation due and owing and arising out of their employment with the Board, as defined above, including but not limited to wages, overtime, vacation, sick, bonuses, commissions, and any other forms of compensation. Hare acknowledges that the Board has settled all obligations to them and agree to seek no further payment from the Released Parties, as defined above, or their insurers or reinsurers.

6. Confidentiality. The Released Parties each agree to keep the terms of this Agreement, including the terms of the Settlement and the negotiations leading to this Agreement (the "Confidential Information"), strictly confidential, except as required by law.

7. Non-Interference and Non-Disparagement. The Released Parties each agree that they will not in any manner whatsoever, directly or indirectly, interfere with the others business or other third-party relationships.

8. Breach. Hare understands that all issues which were the subject matter of the petition of appeal have been settled and she will not bring any action in the future seeking to relitigate the claims set forth in her petition. If she does so, the Board will be entitled to recover any damages proven to result from such breach and shall be entitled to be reimbursed by Hare for all reasonable legal fees, costs, and expenses, incurred by the Board in defending itself in enforcing its rights relative to such matters. The Parties agree that either party may bring an action to enforce the terms of this Agreement.

9. Dismissal of All Litigation. Any and all litigation will be dismissed with prejudice as soon as is reasonably possible following the Board's approval (as discussed in paragraph 17, below) and Hare's receipt of Monetary Consideration. The Released Parties will jointly work diligently to dismiss all pending litigation and confirm that the litigation referenced in Paragraph 1(a), above, is the only pending or contemplated matter.

10. Right to Consult Counsel and Understanding of Agreement. The Released Parties have been represented by counsel in coming to this agreement and have had the opportunity to question, edit, and amend the same. The Released Parties have carefully read this Agreement and fully understand the terms thereof, and each sign this Agreement voluntarily as their own free act.

11. Governing Law and Forum Selection. This Agreement shall be governed by and construed under the laws of the State of New Jersey, without regard to conflict of law principles. Any disputes relating to this Agreement shall be resolved exclusively in the Superior Court of New Jersey, Law Division, Burlington County.

12. Entire Agreement. This Agreement contains the entire agreement of the Released Parties with respect to the subject matter hereof and supersedes any prior agreements or understandings with respect to the subject matter hereof. The Released Parties acknowledge that in signing this Agreement they do not rely upon and have not relied upon any representation or statement made by either of the Released Parties or their agents with respect to the subject matter, basis or effect of this Agreement, other than those specifically stated in this written Agreement.

13. Legally Binding. The terms of this Agreement contained herein are contractual, and not a mere recital. This Agreement shall be binding upon the Released Parties hereto and upon their heirs, administrators, representatives, executors and assigns. Hare expressly warrants that she has not transferred to any person or entity any rights, causes of action or claims released in this Agreement. The Released Parties further represent and agree that they are not impaired, by bankruptcy or otherwise, from signing this Agreement or releasing any of the rights or claims.

14. Severability. If any term or provision of this Agreement shall be held to be invalid or unenforceable for any reason, the validity or enforceability of the remaining terms or provisions shall not be affected, and such term or provision shall be deemed modified to the extent necessary to make it enforceable.

15. Amendments. Neither this Agreement nor any term hereof may be orally changed, waived, discharged, or terminated, and may be amended only by a written agreement between the Released Parties hereto.

16. Counterparts. This Agreement may be signed in counterparts, each of which when executed and delivered, including by telecopy or email, shall be deemed to be an original and all of which together shall constitute one instrument. Photographic (including Adobe Acrobat formatted or other PDF documents) and/or facsimile copies of such signed counterparts may be used in lieu of the originals for any purpose.

17. Board/Court/Commissioner Approval. This Agreement requires Board approval. The Board will endeavor to have the Agreement, once executed by Hare, presented to the Board for approval, at the Board's next scheduled meeting. The Board's Business Administrator will recommend approval. The Board will make all reasonable efforts to promptly provide a certified copy of the Board minutes and Board resolution to the OAL (see Paragraph 1(a), above), specifically The Honorable Patricia Caliguire and the Commissioner of Education. The Parties will jointly work to obtain a final decision approving settlement from the OAL.

AGENCY DOCKET NO. 227-8/19

Dear Arbitrator Pecklers:

As you are aware, this office represents the Middlesex Borough Board of Education (the "Board").

Consistent with my prior representations, attached please find a Certification executed by Michele Loree, the Board Secretary, summarizing the Board's directive to me to withdraw the pending tenure charges as a result of new information obtained – i.e., IAIU amending its finding of child abuse and neglect to "unsubstantiated"; statements from and conversations with the victims wherein they vehemently deny the conduct alleged in the Tenure Charges.

I trust that this will be sufficient to finalize the dismissal of these Charges.

As always, please do not hesitate to contact me with any questions or concerns.

Sincerely,

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE PROCEEDING OF ROBERT DELUDE, MIDDLESEX BOROUGH BOARD OF EDUCATION, MIDDLESEX COUNTY	BEFORE THE COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION OF NEW JERSEY AGENCY DOCKET NO.: 227-8/19

CERTIFICATION OF MICHELE LOREE

I, Michele Loree, hereby certify as follows:

1. I am employed by the Middlesex Borough Board of Education ("Board") as the Business Administrator and Board Secretary.

2. On August 26, 2019, the Board certified tenure charges against Mr. Delude.

3. The charges were then placed in abeyance as both a criminal investigation was completed and an appeal of an IAIU finding of child abuse and neglect was considered.

4. On or about August 26, 2020, IAIU amended the "substantiated" finding of child abuse or neglect to "not established," largely due to the fact that the two (2) victims recanted their prior alleged statements to an IAIU investigator.

5. On Monday, October 12, 2020, the Board met in executive session to discuss how to proceed with this matter in light of the following factors: (a) the foregoing IAIU amendment; (b) Board counsel's interview with the two victims who Mr. Delude allegedly had sexual relationships with; and, (c) the sufficiency of the remaining evidence available to the Board for presentation during a hearing.

6. Importantly, the aforementioned victims credibly informed Board counsel, consistent with the statements they provided to Mr. Delude's counsel's investigator, that they did not engage in a sexual relationship and/or sexual acts with Mr. Delude prior to graduating from High School. Moreover, they vehemently denied having any relationship with Mr. Delude, other than a teacher student relationship, at any point in time prior to graduation.

7. A majority of the Board agreed that the Board did not have viable evidence to contradict the foregoing statements/positions of the two victims, and therefore, would be unable to sustain its burden of proof at a hearing.

8. Thus, a majority of the Board agreed that Board counsel should notify the Arbitrator that the Board wishes to withdraw the tenure charges against Mr. Delude.

I hereby certify that the foregoing statements made by me are true. I am aware that if any of the foregoing statements made by me are willfully false, I am subject to punishment by law.

Agency Dkt. No.: 227-8/19

Dear Arbitrator Pecklers:

As you may recall, this firm represents Respondent Robert DeLude ("Mr. DeLude") in the above-captioned matter. Please accept this letter as notice that a resolution has been reached in Mr. DeLude's interrelated appeal of the Findings Report issued by the Department of Children and Families, Institutional Abuse Investigation Unit ("IAIU"). More specifically, IAIU amended the "substantiated" finding of child abuse or neglect to "not established," as reflected in the enclosed disposition notice dated August 26, 2020.

I understand that Ari Schneider, Esq., legal counsel for Petitioner Township of Middlesex Board of Education ("the Board"), is discussing this development with his client and will notify us as to whether the Board intends to continue its prosecution of the tenure charges in the near future.

Thank you for your time and attention this matter.

Final Decision

M.D., on behalf of minor children, O.D.-G and Y.D.-G.,

Petitioner,

v.

Board of Education of the Township of Deptford, Gloucester County,

Respondent.

Synopsis

Pro Se petitioner appealed the determination of the respondent Board that O.D.-G. and Y.D.-G. were not domiciled in Deptford and therefore were not legally entitled to a free public education in the Deptford Township School District (District) as of November 2019 and thereafter. Petitioner – the uncle of the two students – submitted a lease for a Deptford rental property that included the students' names as proof of residency, contending that the children lived with him in Deptford and were therefore entitled to a free public education in Deptford Township schools. The Board filed a motion for summary decision, asserting that the petitioner had failed to meet his burden of evidence to prove that the children were domiciled with him in Deptford, and further failed to provide proof that he was caring and providing for them as if he were their parent. The children never attended school in Deptford, and M.D. did not respond to the motion for summary decision.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: there are no material facts at issue in this case, and the matter is ripe for summary decision; pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.2(a), a student is eligible to attend a school district if he or she is kept in the home of a person other than the student's parent or guardian, if that person is domiciled in the school district and is supporting the student without remuneration, as if the student were his or her own child; in this case, however, petitioner failed to submit the required documentation supporting his claim; further, petitioner failed to respond to the respondent's motion for summary decision. Accordingly, the ALJ concluded that O.D-G. and Y.D-G. were not entitled to a free public education in the respondent's district. Summary decision was granted in favor of the respondent Board.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurred with the findings of the ALJ and adopted the Initial Decision of the OAL as the final decision in this matter. The petition was dismissed.

This synopsis is not part of the Commissioner's decision. It has been prepared for the convenience of the reader. It has been neither reviewed nor approved by the Commissioner.

Decision

M.D., on behalf of minor children,

Petitioner,

v.

Board of Education of the Township of Deptford, Gloucester County,

Respondent.

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. The parties did not file exceptions.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurs with the Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) finding that petitioner, the minor children's uncle, failed to sustain his burden of establishing that the minor children were domiciled with him in Deptford or that he was caring and providing for them as if he were their parent. The Commissioner further concurs with the ALJ's conclusion that the minor children were, therefore, not entitled to a free public education in Deptford Township at the time petitioner sought to enroll them in the district's schools in November 2019 or thereafter.

Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter. The Board's motion for summary decision is granted and the petition of appeal is hereby dismissed.

Re: Board of Education of the Township of Barnegat, Ocean County v. Board of Education of the Freehold Regional High School District, Monmouth County, Commissioner's Decision No. 214-20, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 16397-10, Agency Dkt. No. 294-11/19

Dear Counsel:

I have reviewed the materials filed in connection with the Freehold Regional High School District Board of Education's (Freehold's) Motion to Stay the October 6, 2020 decision of the Commissioner, pending appeal to the Superior Court, Appellate Division. The Commissioner's decision directs Freehold to reimburse the Barnegat Township Board of Education (Barnegat) for one-half of the cost of T.M.'s out-of-district placement for the 2019-20 school year and to share equally in the future costs of T.M.'s placement at the American School for the Deaf, so long as the present circumstances remain the same.

Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.15(a) and N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6(b), a motion for stay is considered an extraordinary remedy that may only be issued upon a finding that the movant has met each prong of the four-pronged standard for the granting of interim relief set forth in Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982). Thus, a stay may be granted where necessary to prevent irreparable harm, where the legal right underlying the movant's claim is settled, where there is a likelihood of success on the merits and where the relative hardship to the moving party favors granting such relief. Id. at 132-134.

Upon review of the parties' submissions, I find that Freehold has failed to meet the standard required for a stay of the October 6, 2020 decision. Most notably, Freehold has failed to establish irreparable harm. In its papers, Freehold argues that it will suffer irreparable harm because it has not budgeted the funds to pay Barnegat, which could lead to the elimination of positions or programs given its recent significant cuts in state aid. Freehold also contends that as Barnegat is also experiencing state aid cuts, it will be unlikely that Barnegat will be able to repay Freehold when Freehold is ultimately successful on the merits of its appeal. Finally, Freehold maintains that paying Barnegat would be inappropriate as Barnegat has failed to provide an accurate calculation of the costs.

Harm is considered irreparable "if it cannot be redressed adequately by monetary damages." Crowe, supra, 90 N.J. at 132-33. Here, Barnegat's alleged injury is entirely monetary, which is not considered irreparable. Any harm Freehold may suffer due to budget cuts, or any contention that Barnegat would be unable to reimburse Freehold if Freehold is successful on appeal, are speculative in nature and fail to meet the threshold of irreparable. Finally, whether the parties have determined the exact costs at issue is irrelevant to the issue of irreparable injury. As a result, Freehold has failed to demonstrate that it will suffer irreparable harm.

In light of the fact that all of the Crowe prongs must be met in order for a stay to be granted, it is not necessary to analyze the three remaining factors. Accordingly, Freehold's request for a stay of the October 6, 2020 decision is hereby DENIED.[1]

New Jersey Commissioner of Education

Final Decision

Marian DeJesus,

Petitioner,

v.

New Jersey Department of Education, Office of Student Protection, and Board of Education of the City of Vineland, Cumberland County, Respondents.

Synopsis

Petitioner – a school bus driver for the Vineland Board of Education (Vineland) – challenged the suspension of her school bus endorsement by the New Jersey Department of Education, Office of Student Protection (OSP), and the termination of her employment by Vineland. These actions followed an incident that occurred in September 2019, wherein a three-year-old preschool student remained on the bus after petitioner had disembarked at the end of her route. The respondents filed separate motions to dismiss the petition, which petitioner opposed.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:39-28, school bus drivers are required to conduct a visual inspection at the end of their transportation route to confirm that no pupils are left on the bus; there is no dispute that a preschool student was left on the bus after petitioner finished her route on September 13, 2019; petitioner admittedly left the bus at the garage and proceeded to use the restroom and pick up her updated schedule before she was informed by a maintenance worker that a preschooler was still on petitioner's bus; N.J.S.A. 18A:39-29 mandates a six-month suspension of petitioner's school bus endorsement for such actions; Vineland is a civil service jurisdiction, and petitioner's rights and duties are governed by the Civil Service Act and accompanying regulations; and the Civil Services Commission issued a final agency decision terminating petitioner from her employment effective September 18, 2019. The ALJ concluded that: petitioner's school bus endorsement was properly suspended pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:39-29; and the Commissioner lacks jurisdiction to decide whether petitioner's termination by Vineland was proper. The petition was dismissed.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurred with the findings of the ALJ and adopted the Initial Decision of the OAL as the final decision in this matter. The petition was dismissed and OSP was directed to notify the Motor Vehicle Commission of its obligation to suspend petitioner's school bus endorsement for six months pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:39-26 et seq.

This synopsis is not part of the Commissioner's decision. It has been prepared for the convenience of the . It has been neither reviewed nor approved by the Commissioner.

New Jersey Commissioner of Education

Decision

Marian DeJesus,

Petitioner,

v.

New Jersey Department of Education, Office of Student Protection, and Board of Education of the City of Vineland, Cumberland County,

Respondents.

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. The parties did not file exceptions.

On September 13, 2019, petitioner, a bus driver for respondent Vineland Board of Education (Vineland), transported pre-school students home from school pursuant to her afternoon bus route. Near the end of the route, petitioner pulled over to assist a child off the bus, then walked the length of the bus to confirm that B.A. was not on board before proceeding to drop off the last two students. Petitioner then returned to the garage and disembarked from the bus for five minutes to use the restroom and pick up her updated bus route. During that time, a maintenance worker saw a student on the bus, and petitioner subsequently found B.A. standing in the aisle.

Thereafter, respondent New Jersey Department of Education, Office of Student Protection (OSP) notified petitioner that her "S" endorsement to operate a bus would be suspended for six months as she failed to conduct a visual inspection at the end of her transportation route to confirm that no pupils were left on the bus, as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:39-28. Additionally, Vineland notified petitioner that it was seeking to remove her from her position as a bus driver. Following a Board hearing, Vineland issued a final notice of disciplinary action removing petitioner.

As Vineland opts to be governed by the Civil Service Act, N.J.S.A. 11A:1-1 et seq., petitioner appealed that decision to the Civil Service Commission, where it was dismissed as untimely. Petitioner filed the instant appeal with the Commissioner challenging both the suspension of her "S" endorsement and her termination.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that petitioner failed to inspect the bus as required, which resulted in a student being left on the bus at the end of her route. As such, the Commissioner agrees with the ALJ's conclusion that N.J.S.A. 18A:39-29 mandates a six-month suspension of petitioner's school bus endorsement as this was her first offense. Additionally, the Commissioner is in accord with the ALJ that the Commissioner lacks jurisdiction over petitioner's termination, which has already been the subject of a final agency decision by the Civil Service Commission.

Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter and the petition is hereby dismissed. OSP is directed to notify the Motor Vehicle Commission of its obligation, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:39-28 et seq., to suspend petitioner's school bus "S" endorsement on her driver's license for six months. Additionally, should petitioner be hired by a new employer, OSP is directed to notify the employer that petitioner is ineligible during the period of suspension to continue employment as a school bus driver.

State Board of Examiners Docket No. 1718-215
OAL Dkt. No. EDE 11406-18
Agency Dkt. No. 1-2/20A

New Jersey Commissioner of Education

Final Decision

In the Matter of the Suspension of the Certificates of James A. Smith
by the State Board of Examiners.

Order of Suspension by the State Board of Examiners, January 23, 2020

For the Respondent-Appellant, James W. Boyan, III, Esq.

For the Petitioner-Respondent State Board of Examiners, Sadia Ahsanuddin, Deputy Attorney General (Gurbir S. Grewal, Attorney General of New Jersey)

Appellant challenges the determination of the New Jersey State Board of Examiners (Board) that his actions warranted the suspension of his Supervisor Certificate and Principal Certificate of Eligibility for four months.

In this matter, appellant was the Athletic Director at the Mountain Lakes School District (District). After a hearing before the Office of Administrative Law, the Board found that the appellant failed to complete his required coach and teacher evaluations and failed to report a parent's harassment, intimidation and bullying (HIB) complaint as required by the District's HIB policy. Concluding that this conduct amounted to inefficiency and unbecoming conduct, the Board suspended appellant's Supervisor Certificate and Principal Certificate of Eligibility for four months.[1] This appeal followed.

[1] Appellant's Teacher of Social Studies Certificate was not suspended.

On appeal, the appellant argues that the Board's decision to suspend his certificates was contrary to law because the evidence did not satisfy the statutory requirements for a charge of inefficiency. Appellant points out that N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.3 requires two annual summative evaluations – with ratings of ineffective or partially ineffective – to warrant a charge of inefficiency. Appellant maintains that he only had a summative evaluation in the 2016-17 school year, and one summative evaluation cannot support a charge of inefficiency.

Appellant also contends that the Board acted contrary to law when it suspended his certificates for unbecoming conduct because it relied on inadmissible evidence that should not have been considered. According to appellant, the finding that he failed to complete coach and teacher evaluations over a five-year period was based on hearsay that was not corroborated by a residuum of competent evidence, as required by N.J.A.C. 1:1-15.5. Appellant explains that the Board relied on a chart created by the Director of Curriculum that documented appellant's assigned observations for physical education teachers, but such a document is a hearsay statement that fails to fall within a hearsay exception.

Finally, appellant argues that his alleged conduct fails to rise to the level of egregious conduct required for a finding of conduct unbecoming. Appellant maintains that he did not show a disregard for his duties, even when he did not complete all evaluations. Appellant also contends that the Board fails to explain how his failure to report a complaint about the girls' basketball coach supports a charge of unbecoming conduct. Accordingly, appellant urges the Commissioner to reverse the findings of inefficiency and conduct unbecoming, as well as the four-month suspension of his supervisory certificates.

In opposition, the Board argues that it proved by a preponderance of the competent and credible evidence that appellant engaged in unbecoming conduct that warrants a four-month suspension of his supervisory certificates. According to the Board, the evidence demonstrates a pattern of behavior in not completing evaluations over a five-year period, as well as failing to follow state law and District policy by not reporting an HIB complaint. The Board further maintains that the chart documenting the appellant's assigned evaluations was properly considered as it was supported by a residuum of competent evidence, specifically the testimony of the Superintendent as well as the Director of Curriculum. Additionally, the Board contends that it was within its authority to suspend appellant's supervisory certificates on the basis of inefficiency.

In reviewing appeals from decisions of the State Board of Examiners, the Commissioner may not substitute her judgment for that of the Board so long as the appellant received due process and the Board's decision is supported by sufficient credible evidence in the record. Further, the Board's decision should not be disturbed unless the appellant demonstrates that it is arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. N.J.A.C. 6A:4-4.1(a).

Initially, the record reflects that the appellant was afforded the necessary due process throughout the proceedings before the Board prior to the suspension of his supervisory certificates. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:9B-4.6(d), and appellant was afforded a hearing.

After full consideration of the record and all submissions, the Commissioner concurs with the Board that the appellant engaged in unbecoming conduct. The testimony and evidence demonstrate that appellant failed to complete coach and teacher evaluations over a five-year period, even after he was placed on a corrective action plan. Failing to complete such a fundamental responsibility over an extended time demonstrates a pattern of disregard for his duties. Additionally, the record demonstrates that appellant failed to follow State law and

District policy when he did not report an HIB complaint raised by a parent. Such a failure to abide by this responsibility puts the District in violation of the statutorily-mandated timeframe by which it is required to investigate HIB matters, as outlined in the Anti-Bullying Bill of Rights Act at N.J.S.A. 18A:37-15. The Commissioner further finds that the record adequately supports the Board's determination that a four-month suspension of appellant's supervisory certificates was the appropriate penalty.[2]

The Commissioner does not find appellant's arguments on appeal to be persuasive. The Board's decision did not violate the residuum rule set forth at N.J.A.C. 1:1-15.5. The Board's determination that appellant failed to complete evaluations was not solely based on a chart, but was instead supported by the testimony of both the Superintendent and Director of Curriculum. As such, the Board's determination was based on the sufficient, credible evidence in the record, and was not arbitrary, capricious, or contrary to law.

Accordingly, the decision of the State Board of Examiners is affirmed.[3]

State Board of Examiners Docket No. 1718-171
Agency Dkt. No. 9-12/19A

New Jersey Commissioner of Education

Final Decision

In the Matter of the Revocation of the Certificates of Lynderia Mansfield
by the State Board of Examiners.

Order of Revocation by the State Board of Examiners, November 1, 2019

For the Respondent-Appellant, Eugene G. Liss, Esq.

For the Petitioner-Respondent State Board of Examiners, Sadia Ahsanuddin, Deputy Attorney General (Gurbir S. Grewal, Attorney General of New Jersey)

Appellant challenges the determination of the New Jersey State Board of Examiners (Board) that her actions warranted the revocation of her Teacher of Pre-K through Grade 3 Certificate of Eligibility, Teacher of Pre-K through Grade 3 Certificate, and Supervisor Certificate.

In this matter, appellant was a teacher in the Newark School District (Newark). Newark certified tenure charges against appellant for unbecoming conduct, corporal punishment, insubordination, and other just cause. Newark alleged that appellant was abusive toward her second-grade students, including yelling at them on a continuous basis, grabbing students by their collars or clothing, and restricting bathroom use, which resulted in children urinating on themselves. Following an arbitration, the Arbitrator found just cause to terminate appellant based on the credible testimony of eyewitnesses, including students and parents. Thereafter, accepting the facts as found in the tenure hearing, the Board found that appellant's behavior constitutes conduct unbecoming a certificate holder and revoked appellant's certificates. This appeal followed.

On appeal, appellant argues that there is a dichotomy between the Arbitrator's findings and those made by the Institutional Abuse Investigation Unit (IAIU). According to appellant, the IAIU report found that she did not abuse her students and students were not forced to urinate on themselves. Appellant maintains that while she may have been short with her students due to having a difficult class at a stressful time in her life, she did not harm her students. Appellant also contends that her termination put a strain on her financially, causing her to lose her home and car. As such, appellant requests that the Commissioner reduce the penalty to a suspension rather than a license revocation.

In opposition, the Board argues that it properly applied the principle of collateral estoppel to bar re-litigation of the issues that were previously decided in the tenure hearing. With respect to appellant's argument about the IAIU report, the Board points out that the report specifically says that it is solely investigative and is not making adjudicative findings. As such, given appellant's pattern of abusive behavior, the Board maintains that it correctly found that a revocation of appellant's certificates was the appropriate penalty.

In reviewing appeals from decisions of the State Board of Examiners, the Commissioner may not substitute her judgment for that of the Board so long as the appellant received due process and the Board's decision is supported by sufficient credible evidence in the record. Further, the Board's decision should not be disturbed unless the appellant demonstrates that it is arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. N.J.A.C. 6A:4-4.1(a).

Initially, the record reflects that the appellant was afforded the necessary due process throughout the proceedings before the Board prior to the revocation of her teaching certificates. Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:9B-4.6(e), the Board determined that it was constrained by collateral estoppel to accept the facts as found in the tenure hearing, so it was not necessary to transmit the matter to the Office of Administrative Law as no material facts were in dispute. Nevertheless, the appellant was given an opportunity to submit a written brief for the Board's consideration and appear in person before the Board.

After full consideration of the record and all submissions, the Commissioner concurs with the Board that the appellant engaged in unbecoming conduct. The record demonstrates that the appellant engaged in a pattern of abusive behavior, including yelling at students and grabbing them by their shirts or collars. The Board's determination in connection with the characterization of appellant's behavior as unbecoming conduct is fully supported by the record and consistent with applicable law. While appellant disagrees with the Board's finding that she abused her students, the facts set forth in the tenure hearing – including credible witness testimony and the weight of the evidence – support the Board's determination. The IAIU report, which is solely investigative, is not persuasive.

Additionally, the Commissioner finds that the record adequately supports the Board's determination that a revocation of appellant's certificates was the appropriate penalty given the disturbing and abusive nature of appellant's conduct toward second-grade students. The financial strain that appellant argues she will suffer is unconvincing and in no way demonstrates that a revocation is unwarranted. While appellant obviously disagrees that she engaged in unbecoming conduct and with the determination that her certificates should be revoked, there is nothing in the record to suggest that the Board's decision was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable; therefore, the Commissioner finds no basis upon which to disturb the Board's decision.

Accordingly, the decision of the State Board of Examiners is hereby affirmed.[1]

Appearances:	Thomas A. Ralston	Edward A. Cridge, Esq., Mellk O'Neill
	The Ocean County Vocational School District Board of Education	Robert C. Shea, Esq., R. C. Shea & Associates

Statement of Decision: Based upon the evidence presented herein, I find that the School District has substantiated the charge against Respondent Thomas A. Rolston that he engaged in a pattern of conduct unbecoming a staff member, and there is just cause to terminate his employment on this basis. Charge I is sustained. Charge II is sustained. Charge III asserting Respondent lacks the capacity to perform his duties as a teacher is denied in its entirely as unfounded in the record.

I. INTRODUCTION

This matter was brought to arbitration before the undersigned pursuant to P.L. 2012 Chapter 26 of Title 18A N.J.S.A. It involves three seperate charges filed on April 2, 2020 against the Respondent, Thomas A. Rolston, by the Ocean County Vocational Technical School District Board of Education ("Petitioner" or "OCVTS"). The charges seek to remove Mr. Rolston from his position as a teacher for the School District. A document entitled Statement of Evidence (including supporting Certification of Frank J. Frazee) ("March 11th statement") was served on Respondent's attorney on March 11, 2020. It was designated by Petitioner as its compliance with N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.1(b)(3), which mandates providing Respondent with "all evidence including, but not limited to, documents, electronic evidence, statements of witnesses, and a list of witnesses with a complete summary of their testimony, to the employee or the employee's representative." Respondent consistently has rejected Petitioner's assertion that the March 11th statement met Petitioner's obligation to serve him with a separate Statement of Evidence, hereinafter referred to as a "17.1 (b)(3) Statement."

Respondent propounded his Statement of Evidence on June 15, 2020. On this same day, Petitioner submitted its witness list to Respondent's attorney.

Before the hearings started, joint discussions were held with the advocates parsing their respective positions about whether each party's pre-hearing submissions complied with N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.1(b)(3). Neither side was in full compliance with the statute. The Arbitrator, however, did not conclude either was deprived of procedural due process, or the ability to fully and fairly present its case.

Procedure

Eight hearings were held over an interval of three months. The parties and their legal counsel appeared and participated on June 25, 2020; June 26, 2020; July 17, 2020;

July 23, 2020; August 17, 2020; August 25, 2020; September 21, 2020; and October 2, 2020. This three month interval is attibutable to: convening a hotly contested matter during the COVID-19 Pandemic; conflicting legal and personal obligations of counsel; limited availability of two experts witnesses; varied procedural and evidentiary objections; and counsels' zealous advocacy. Multiple challenges were put forward to bar witnesses and/or documentary evidence under 17.1(b)(3).

Toward the close of the October 2, 2020 hearing Petitioner's attorney suggested:

> whatever ultimately the decision of the Arbitrator may be, that would be formulated based upon those --in some part, upon those decisions that were made. So it really should be formally part of this hearing process, and again, I would agree that it would probably make sense if we have one joint exhibit, J-1 right now, we just make all of that, the motion practice and the opinions relative to that as J-2.

(T. 10-2-20, page 78.) Respondent's attorney accepted this suggestion. The Arbitrator noted, "I'll consider it to be part of my duties to make certain that you captured everything, and if for some reason there's a piece of paper missing, I'll let you folks know and that can easily be incorporated." Id. at 79. Neither counsel submitted the tentative exhibit (i.e., J-2) for the Arbitrator's review, and approval for entry into the record.

Petitioner called as witnesses: Lillian Zavattieri, Prinicpal of the District's Toms River Center; Irene Malifitano, Tenured Teacher, and Medical Assistant Instructor; Nicholas Szymanki, part-time CPR Instructor; Thomas Pernal, Electrical Trades Tenured Instructor; Christy Shenloogian, Service Occupation Instructor; Dr. Michael Maschi, Assistant Superintendant; Patrolman William Resetar (#428) Toms River Police; and as an expert witness Dr. Brett Prince of Neurobehavioral Rehabilitation Associates, L.L.C.

Respondent called as witnesses: Avram Mack, M.D. , Children's Hospital of Philadelphia and Linda Bogan. Mr. Rolston also testified on his own behalf. Dr. Mack testified as an expert.

Petitioner called Tierney Meeker as a rebuttal witness.

Subsequently, each party timely filed a post-hearing brief.

II. CONDUCT OF THE HEARINGS

New Jersey's tenure resolution procedure minimizes discovery, and can reduce procedural wrangling among counsel. Such was not the case herein. Procedural and evidentiary rulings were occassionally met with cautions from the non-prevailing attorney that the ruling was sufficiently erroneous that any eventual award might be headed toward vacation. When counsel thus preserved their right to appeal, the Arbitrator moved forward gathering admissible evidence to render an award based on the facts and the law. A strongly contested evidentiary question touching the admissiblity of evidence of alleged student abuse, and whether it was properly addressed by the OCTVS administration some years before the tenure charge is later referenced herein.

The record in this matter shows Respondent engaged in conduct unbecoming through untoward comments—some of which were in the presence of students—to faculty and administrators. The comments worried his fellow teachers, disrupted the workplace, and had a tendency to destroy public respect for the school system. This same behavior was contrary to Policy Nos. 3281 and 3251.

III. FACTUAL INFORMATION COMMON TO ALL CHARGES

Paragraphs 1 through 133 below list facts garned from the hearing record. E.g., from exhibits, credible testimony, and the reconciliation of conflicting testimony. As with any series of hearings, some witnesses were more credible than others. Credibility determiniations touching three witnesses are touched infra. The facts cited below have been established from careful purusal of the records. They should not be expansively construed.

III A.1 Words of Caution

This caution especially applies to references to a District Teacher, hereinafter referred to as "DT." Some speculated he courted a female student as far back as 2015. While agnostic to these conjectures, Respondent Thomas A. Ralston, in 2019, voiced concern to teaching colleagues that he was professionally obligated to alert officials after receiving an unsoliciated communication from a parent. The report was passed on to him via telephone on April 2, 2019. The parent asked him to investigate the possiblity of inapprorpiate conduct in the form of student abuse.

Weeks later, after being temporarily suspended, Mr. Rolston reported the parent's concerns to the State of New Jersey, Department of Children and Families, Institutional Abuse Investigation Unit ("IAIU" or the "Unit"). Subsequently, the IAIU opened a case and interviewed him. Fourteen months later, on the eve of the within tenure hearing, Respondent sought the Unit's records. He urged they would "corroborate and lend credence to his version of one, or more, of the conversations which are the subject of these tenure charges."

IAIU records being confidential, Respondent requested an arbitral order permitting the Unit to release parts of its DT files for the Arbitrator's in camera review. Petitioner opposed that motion, which was denied on June 19, 2020. Counsel were notified that the request for such information, > appears at the periphery of the Tenure Charge. Directing the IAIU to produce portions of its investigative file goes beyond what is needed to understand context and strays in the direction of probing the [matter's] whole history.

Occassionally, throughout the hearings, questions and/or arguments verred in the direction of what transpired in the years from 2015 to 2019 as to the parental notice of a student/teacher relationship. Counsel were not permitted to probe this irrelevant area, except for exploring how Mr. Rolston's belief that he had a "mandatory reporting" obligation intertwinned with his behaviors between April 10, 2019 and April 12, 2019. The Arbitrator declined to have a "trial within a trial" about what may have occurred, or not between the student and her teacher. This is not within his jurisdiction.

III B. Facts About the Three Critical Days, as Determined by The Arbitrator After a Careful Perusal of the Record

Below are the Arbitrator's findings-of-fact following a complete review of the hearing record. The Arbitrator also studied the parties' post-hearing briefs. Each brief emphasizes different points, and varies in its factual descriptions. Paragraphs 1 through 133 list facts determined by the Arbitrator, beyond peradventure, to have been proven. Factual assertions in those briefs, not encompassed in these paragraphs, are not accepted as part of the record.

III B.1 Introduction

1. The OCVTS provides full and shared time programs for students in Ocean County and is comprised of schools located in Toms River, Brick Township, Lakehurst, Ocean County College Campus, Stafford Township, Waretown, and Jackson Township.

2. Respondent Thomas A. Rolston holds an Associate's Degree in Creative Writing, and a Bachelor's Degree in Literature from SUNY Purchase.

3. Following graduation, he was a proof reader/technical writer/editor in private industry for several years.

4. Thomas Rolston has been an OCTVS employee since September 1, 2000.

5. He received a full teachers' certification in 2005, and gained tenure at OCTVS.

6. At all relevant times Respondent worked as a tenured English Teacher for the Shared Time Program at the Toms River Center (the "Center") on Old Freehold Road, Toms River.

7. In 2017, a medical examination revealed a "black spot" on his stomach.

8. When asked "Should I do anything?" a physician advised waiting.

9. In March 2018, Mr. Rolston had tumor removal surgery for stomach cancer, which was followed by 9-months of treatment with Gleevec.

10. He testified to experiencing unpleasant, physiological and psychological side effects from this pharmaceutical.

11. Around January 2019 he stopped taking Gleevec.

12. A few months later, Respondent re-experienced vomiting and feared his stomach cancer was returning.

13. Around this time, Mr. Rolston told colleagues he "felt like a dead man walking."

14. A medical consultation about a possible relapse was scheduled for Wednesday, April 17, 2019.

15. Approximately two weeks before this consultation, Mr. Rolson received an unsoliciated telephone call from Linda Bogan.

16. Several years prior, Respondent tutored one of her two daughters.

17. She testified to learning from them of a social media posting alleging DT was engaged to marry a former student.

18. Ms. Bogan sent Respondent a "screen shot" of a single page from the post.

19. Respondent Rolston testified to being stunned and "taken aback" by the posting.

20. When Ms. Bogan asked him to investigate, Respondent replied affirmatively.

21. He never personally explored the issue.

22. Mr. Rolston, however, started expressing concern about his obligation to report possible student abuse, and what he conjectured could have been a "cover-up" by school administrators.

23. The record is clear that Karen Homiek was one of the administrators he had in mind.

24. He testified, "If I brought this forward, I was afraid of what would become of me"

25. Within a few days, Mr. Rolston broached the matter with Union President Christine Smith who--he hoped—might potentially shield him from reprisal.

26. They again discussed his concerns on April 11, 2019.

III. B.2 The School Week That Started on April 8, 2019

27. Throughout the week of April 8, 2019 Rolston was assigned to his normal teaching schedule at the Toms River Center.

28. The relevant work days during this week were Wednesday-April 10, 2019, Thursday-April 11, 2019, and Friday-April 12, 2019

III B.3 Wednesday - April 10, 2019

29. Respondent characterized his emotional state on April 10th, as follows

> I now had the weight of the world, these concerns [a cancer relapse & , information from Ms. Bogan] hanging over me. I have to report them, [i.e., potential student abuse] like I said, because like Mr. Maschi testified, we are mandatory reporters...I'm waiting on April 17th, I have seven more days to wait until I found out is my cancer back, or do I have to start taking these [Gleevec] pills.

30. He reported for work at the Toms River Center, which was administered by Principal Lillian Zavattieri.

31. She holds a NJ State teaching certificate, a master's degree in education, and a Doctorate in Medicine.

32. On arriving around 7:15am, Mr. Rolston opened a conversation with Electrical Trades Instructor Thomas Pernal, whom he characterized as a "friend," and "elder statesman."

33. He showed Mr. Pernal text messages on his phone "indicative of improper relationships between students/staff at PAA, i.e., Performing Arts Academy."

34. Mr. Rolston asked for Mr. Pernal's input in the context of using the information to "bring down" a school administrator.

35. Mr. Pernal demurred, understanding that Respondent was referring to Karen Homiek, who then was Acting Superintendant.

36. Later that morning, Respondent Rolston entered Irene Malifitano's classroom.

37. He routinely visited her room when he was scheduled--the following day--to teach these students English.

38. These regular visits were with Ms. Malifitano's approval, and designed to remind the students of outstanding homework that he previously had given them.

39. Ms. Malifitano is a full-time medical assistant instructor.

40. 24-students were in the classroom, and were participating in hands-on CPR training.

41. Part-time CPR instructors Eve Adams and Nicholas Szymanski (mother and son) were the training leaders.

42. Mr. Szymanski also is full-time Lieutenant with the Marlboro Township Police Department.

43. Ms. Malifitano, although present, was not directly supervising either instructor.

44. She was aware when Respondent Rolston--who she characterized as a colleague and friend--entered the classroom as the lesson was proceeding.

45. Over the next several minutes Ms. Malifitano, having a clear line of sight, occassionally saw Thomas Rolston engaging with her students.

46. She was on her computer operating an overhead projector, and heard little of what was said.

47. Lt. Szymanski was doing the actual training, while his mother took notes at the rear of the classroom.

48. Ms. Malifitano said Mr. Rolston's tone was "joking," and got an impression that he and the instructors were friendly.

49. Mr. Rolston, who is of Hispanic heritage and bi-lingual, talked with two groups of Hispanic students. He knew the students in one group from the prior year, and conversed with them in Spanish.

50. Inter alia, they discussed "what I was going to make for dinner that weekend, I believe."

51. 13-days later, at the administration's request, Lt. Szymanski submitted an E-mail. It stated Respondent "made numerous comments about the food they were eating and what they should be smelling while performing cpr."

52. At one point, indeed, Mr. Rolston referenced the impact of eating garlic on CPR training.

53. Mr. Rolston additionally told one student she was pressing too hard on a CPR manikin; and he also placed a tissue over another manikin's head.

54. Hearing Respondent speak with female students in Spanish about Hispanic food made the Lieutenant uncomfortable, as did Respondent's comments about their implementation of the CPR training protocol.

55. The Lieutentant did not intervene, even though his uncorroberated testimony alluded to some purported "off-color" comments by Mr. Rolston.

56. Neither part-time instructor talked to him, nor did Respondent initiate a conversation with them.

57. Respondent exited the classroom after approximately 20-minutes.

58. Mrs. Adams later asked Irene Malfitano, "Who was that man?" She stated he had been inappropriate.

59. Ms. Malfitano identified Thomas Rolston by name.

60. Sometime after Noon, Mrs. Adams approached Principal Zavattieri who was in a hallway.

61. She complained about "a Tom Rolston," having been loud and disruptive during the CPR class.

62. Ms. Zavattieri promised to "look into" the situation.

63. Toward 12:50pm she walked to Mr. Rolston's office, and knocked.

64. The resulting exchange was "heated," and they had different recollections about what transpired.

65. Principal Zavattieri testified Respondent was aggressive, loud, confrontational, screamed she was not listening, and announced an intention to immediately speak with the two instructors.

66. Mr. Rolston, in turn, testified Prinicipal Zavattieri initially named Ms. Malfitano as accussing him of inappropriate language, but later identified Mr. Syzmanski and Mrs. Adams as the complainers.

67. They concur he called Mrs. Adams "the old bag," and referenced Nicholas Szymznski as the "fat fuck."

68. Principal Zavattieri admonished Mr. Rolston not to use such language, and forbade him from approaching either instructor until after students had departed the Toms River Center for the day.

69. Asserting he would say what he wants, Mr. Rolston again used FF, and "Old Bag."

70. After that meeting ended, Mr. Rolston returned to Irene Malfitano's classroom around 1:15pm.

71. He found his colleague preparing for a previously scheduled post-observation conference with Principal Zavaterri.

72. Leaning over her desk, he asked what she had told the Principal.

73. Ms. Malfitano had not spoken with her, and told him so.

74. Mr. Rolston did not accept this denial, and then pressed the question.

75. Ms. Malfitano testified Respondent was angry, and continued leaning over her desk.

76. She also testified that he divulged knowing of "a teacher or teachers" having affairs with students.

77. And, Respondent stated he was going to "the Board office with this information ...and burn the place down, or torch the place down."

78. He forewarned he could disclose a "lot of information" concerning the District, commenting "I won't go down like Stan."

79. Stan was a district teacher who has passed from cancer.

80. These exchanges did not initially register with Ms. Malfitano. She explained, "I just took it as words of conversation that we had...I didn't even process at that time because I was pressed to go somewhere [i.e., the post evaluation interview] and I had other things that I was working on at the time."

81. Later that evening, however, she informed her fiancé of the encounter.

82. Around 1:20pm, after visiting with Irene Malfitano, Respondent had another "heated" discussion with Principal Zavaterri.

83. They talked in her office, with the door closed, for no more than 10-minutes.

84. Clerical staff member Barbara Frischman was in the adjourning Main Office. Ms. Zavateri was apprehensive she could hear the commotion.

85. Having just departed from Ms. Malfitano, Mr. Rolston challenged the Principal's statement about who initially reported CPR training distruptions, and yelled "Why can't you get your facts straight?"

86. Ms. Zavaterri affirmed that she had not earlier spoken with Irene Malfitano.

87. Declaring "This meeting is over," Mr. Rolston left the Principal's office.

88. Immediately afterward, Ms. Malfitano reported to the Principal for their scheduled conference.

89. Mr. Zavaterri appologized for having forgotten about the conference, and steered the discussion to the CPR class.

90. As the two women talked, Ms. Malfitano shared Mrs. Adams' earlier criticism of Mr. Rolston.

91. She acknowledged his behavior, as reported by Mrs. Adams, could have been disruptive.

92. Ms. Malfitano, 48-hours later, again met with the Principal. See paragraph 112.

III B.4 Thursday - April 11, 2019

93. On Thursday April 11, 2019 Mr. Rolston was scheduled to teach english--between 8:05 & 8:40am--to one of Mr. Pernal's classes.

94. Sometime after Respondent entered the classroom--and apropos of Wednesday's request for advice--Mr. Pernal volunteered, "I'm ill-equipped to give you any guidance."

95. Within "ear shot" of the students, Respondent shared his version of events during, and following Wednesday's CPR class.

96. For 3 or 4 minutes he paced back & forth in front of the students talking in a loud voice.

97. At one point, he admitted having given Principal Zavaterri "a piece of my mind."

98. Mr. Rolston expressed his present intent as "bringing down" the administrator, and reference was made to "shooting the head off that fucking snake."

99. After Respondent exited the room Mr. Pernal said to the class that Mr. Rolston was "having a bad day."

100. Mr. Pernal later told others that Respondent had "flipped his lid."

101. In an E-Mail to Irene Malfitano, he opined, "I think his cancer is winning and has caused him to become unhinged."

102. Around 10:15am on Thurdsay, Mr. Rolston entered a room where Christy Shenloogian, a Service Occupation Instructor, was on lunch break.

103. Respondent's objective was to speak with Union President Smith who also was in the room.

104. Ms. Shenloogian testified Thomas Rolston "seemed angry," as he recounted the prior day's exchanges with Principal Zavaterri.

105. Further, he made reference to taking this place down, and burning it to the ground.

106. Although not interpreting "buring it" down literally, Ms. Shenloogian cautioned him, "You shouldn't say things like that in a school building."

107. Thomas Rolston replied, "I'm not going out like Stan I don't care."

108. Mr. Rolston expressed his view that Karen Homiek, then Acting Superintendent, may have "covered-up" the DT matter; which Mrs. Bogan asked him to investigate.

109. He asked Christine Smith how this might be broached without his being subject to retaliation.

110. On hearing her response, he replied "So you're not going to support me." Ms. Smith was not called as a witness.

111. In her adjoining classroom, Ms. Malfitano overheard snipits of the Rolston-Smith-Shenloogian conversation.

112. Thinking about it later, she decided to speak with Principal Zavatteri the next day. In fact she did so; among other things expressing concern for her personal safety.

113. After Mr. Rolston left Ms. Shenloogian's room, she and Ms. Smith had a brief conversation.

114. Ms. Sheloogian testified, "we weren't comfortable with what just happened."

III B.5 Friday - April 12, 2019

115. On Friday morning--prior to the start of classes--Thomas Pernal approached Ms. Shenloogian about Respondent's statements.

116. Mr. Pernal shared discomfort with her about what had occurred with Mr. Rolston.

117. Irene Malfitano joined the discussion saying she had heard similar statements from Mr. Rolston.

118. A school administrator, the three teachers concurred, must be notified.

119. Christy Shenloogian summarized their collective mindset. She testified, > the puzzle pieces were put together, when the three of us spoke, it became clear that this might be something more than just being angry and making off the cuff statements.When two other colleagues are saying the same thing you heard, it did make me feel even more uncomfortable being in space so close to Mr. Rolston.

120. Between 9:10am and 12:30pm, various OCVTS administrators held several separate meetings about Mr. Rolston's actions over the prior 48-hours.

121. In addition to Principal Lillian Zavatteri, Assistant Principal Michael Tash and Assistant Superindent Michael Maschi participated.

122. Union representative Christine Smith attended two of the meetings.

123. Just before 12:50pm, Dr. Maschi telephoned the Toms River Police Department.

124. He testified calling the police "to fulfill my mandatory reporting obligation, but also, to rule out that there was a potential threat to the school district."

125. Next, he telephoned Christine Smith to advise he would be requiring Thomas Rolston to attend a 1:30 p.m. meeting.

126. Patrolman William Resetar, accompanied by two other Toms River Police Officers, arrived at the Center and talked with Dr. Maschi.

127. The 1:30pm conference was convened on schedule by Dr. Maschi.

128. Mr. Rolston, Union President Smith, Superintendent Homiek, and the three Toms River officers were in attendance.

129. The Superintendent read a suspension letter aloud.

130. Among other things, it stated Mr. Rolston had been placed on paid, administrative leave, and was to have no contact with OCTVS personnel.

131. Thomas Rolston invoked his right to counsel, and was not arrested.

132. Patrolman Resetar notified the Psychiatric Emergency Screening Services Unit ("PESS") to contact Respondent at home.

133. PESS visited his residence on April 12, 2019, and then transported Mr. Rolston to Southern Ocean Medical Center for a psychiatric evaluation. He was thereafter transferred to a Saint Barnabas facility.

IV. FACTUAL INFORMATION ABOUT REBUTTAL WITNESS, AND EXPERT WITNESSES

This section summarizes information garnered in connection with the testimony of two psychological experts, and of one rebuttal witness. Each of these witnesses testified to events transpiring after Respondent Rolston's suspension.

A. Rebuttal Witness Tierney Meeker

IV A. 1 Events Preceding Testimony by Rebuttal Witness Tierney Meeker

Toward the end of the September 21, 2020 hearing, during Thomas Rolston's recross examination, Petitioner's attorneys raised an evidentiary challenge. The District announced it wished to open a line-of-questioning about whether Respondent Rolston violated Superintendant Homiek's directive--issued at the time of his suspension--restricting him from having contact with OCVTS staff members. See paragraph 130, supra. Mr. Rolston's attorney objected. Following a colloquy, the objection was sustained.

After the Arbitrator's ruling, Petitioner's counsel again pursued this inquiry. Its attorney asked, "Subsequent to the tenure charges being filed against you, Mr. Rolston, did you have any communication with [OCTVS staff member] Ms. Tierney Meeker?" Respondent answered "No," and his attorney reiterated the previous objection. Counsel for the Board pressed pursuing the question. He argued had become an allowable foray into credibility since Mr. Rolston had just falsely denied under oath speaking with Ms. Meeker. Respondent's attorney scoffed at this analysis. He urged, "There was no testimony of Mr. Rolston which would be impeached by that testimony [from Ms. Meeker if she was called] because my objection to that line of questioning was sustained. So where the inquiry to Mr. Rolston was not permitted, there can be nothing to impeach Mr. Rolston from that witness.

Briefs were filed over whether Ms. Meeker would be called as a witness. They were read and reviewed. The Arbitrator then notified the parties' lawyers:

> Petitioner's case rises, or falls on which April 2019 events it proves. There is no logical, or legal reason to add the alleged Meeker/Ralson encounter for this purpose to the historical mix of proofs.
>
> However, earlier in Respondent's September 21st testimony, several questions and answers shed light on the ultimate issue of why the Arbitrator should, or should not permit Mr. Rolston to return to work as a tenured teacher. The record shows,
>
> Q. Mr. Rolston, you have been here through the entirety of this multi day hearing, correct?
> A. Yes, sir.
> Q. You have heard the concerns that members of district staff have brought up about you, correct?
> A. Yes, I have.
> Q. You have heard the arguments that have been made regarding the district's concerns, correct?
> A. I have.
> Q. Okay. Why should the Arbitrator permit you to stay in your position
> A. I have never been a threat to any child or fellow teacher ever. This was a moment of high stress, high tension, that it -- some aspects of it got away from me, and that -- that's not me. It's not a true reflection or an accurate reflection of me. My career has been nothing but helping kids. As Ms. sic Vogan testified, her daughter wasn't the only one that I helped home school. So it was a bad moment. It was just a culmination of perfect storms.
> Q. Mr. Rolston, during the period from April the 10th through April the 12th of 2019, were you contemplating hurting anyone?
> A. Never once.
> Q. Were you contemplating doing any kind of damage to the premises of the school district?
> A. Never once.
> Q. Did you want anyone to think that's what you wanted to do?
> A. Never once.
> Q. Were you trying to scare people into thinking that you were some kind of threat?

A. Never once.

Tierney Meeker's allegations, if true, rebut Mr. Rolston's assertions that his in-school actions between April 10 and April 12, 2020 are not true, or accurate reflections of him.

Under these circumstance, the District may issue a subpoena duces tecum, and call Ms. Meeker as a witness about the events on August 17, 2020.

IV A. 2 Rebuttal Witness Meeker's Testimony

Tierney Meeker is the non-tenured Vice Principal of the Performing Arts Academy ("PAA"). She testified at Hearing No. 8 about an interaction--on August 17th--soon after the adjournment of Tenure Hearing No. 5. The encounter occurred on her arrival at the PAA to cover nightime supervisory duties. While driving into Parking Lot No. 2. she saw Respondent Rolston enter a vehicle. After exiting her car. a voice behind her said "Hey." She turned, and saw Respondent. Greeting one another. Ms. Meeker immediately asked about his health. He replied,

> "Tierney, we're not friends. He said you're going to lose your job just like everyone else here. He said you were a mandatory reporter with the whole [DT] thing, and now you're all going down. "

On hearing this, Ms. Meeker said she felt her employment was being threatened, and telephoned Superintendant Homiek. Sur-rebuttal testimony was not offered.

IV B. Expert Witnesses Brett J. Prince, Ph.D & Avram H. Mack, M.D.

Brett J. Prince, Ph.D, and Avram H. Mack, M.D. were respectively retained as experts by Petitioner and Respondent. Each prepared a professional opinion--as to Thomas A. Rolston--relying on findings from their independent examinations. This said, each doctor was retained to answer a different question.

Following Respondent's April 12th suspension, Dr. Prince was contracted by Petitioner to conduct a fitness-for-duty evaluation. The doctor was to determine if Respondent had the capacity to perform the essential functions of teaching English at the Toms River Center. He was not apprised of these essential functions either generally, or as an English Teacher in a Shared Time Program.

Such inquiries require a "health care provider" to examine an employee's physical, or mental condition within the scope of his essential duties. Dr. Prince determined that Respondent lacked the capacity to perform as a teacher. This determination was adopted by Petitioner, and became one of the three prongs for its conclusion that Respondent merited dismissal from his tenured position.

Dr. Mack, in contrast, was retained after the within charges were filed. His task was "to perform an independent medical examination on the subject of these tenure charges...as to the degree, if any, that he [Thomas Rolston] suffers from any psychitratic disorder that would pertain to any incapacity as a teacher."

The below paragraphs summarize each expert's qualifications, procedures, and professional opinion.

IV B. 1 Brett J. Prince, Ph.D.

Petitioner retained Dr. Prince to conduct a psychological evaluation of Respondent Rolston's fitness to return to work for the District. Dr. Prince was trained--and practices--as a neuropsychologist. He is licensed in New Jersey, and reports seeing approximately 2,500 patients annually.

On August 20, 2019 Dr. Prince clinically interviewed Thomas A. Ralston. Prior to the interview he reviewed several documents furnished by Petitioner. They included: a job description, two police reports, and several statement of OCTVS personnel.

As a result of the interview the doctor initially ruled out that Respondent had a Pre-Existing Anexiety Disorder, or an Adjustment Disorder with Mixed Emotional Features. He then concluded an Objective Psychological Examination was indicated to develop a "patient profile for predicting medical/surgical/prescriptive success, and compliance issues." Such testing Dr. Prince explained is the sole objective means for "Determining the need for guiding and structing mental health treatment (Psychiatric medication and/or Psychotherapy); Evaluating work capacity, Return to School/Work, or MMI [i.e., Meaning-Making intervention] issues."

The same day, i.e., August 20th Dr. Prince conducted an "objective psychological examination" ("OBE") of Mr. Rolston. The OBE primiarily consisted of administering several "paper and pencil" psychological tests. They were the: 1) Trauma Symptom Inventory (TSI). 2) Millon Behavioral Medicine Diagnostic (MBMD); 3) Personality Assessment Inventory (PAI); 4) Symptom Checklist-90 (SCL-90R); and 5) Fear Survey Schedule III (FSS-III). Additionally, Dr. Prince conducted a medical records review. At the time, Respondent still was taking Lexapro first prescribed for anxiety after his stomach cancer diagnosis.

Although Dr. Prince observed that Mr. Ralson "demonstrated a motivated and concerted effort throughout" he concluded "one of the measures evidenced test distortion." This was the PAI. Its results showed a "Pathologically extreme level of 'Positive Impression Management', indicating a consistent and deliberate attempt to distort test results by portraying oneself in a clinically invalid manner." Dr. Prince summarized Mr. Rolston's overall test results as demonstrating a choice to answer questions in an "inconsistent, invalid, and misleading manner." Also, Dr. Prince testified Respondent personally misled him about prior mental health treatment, and his use of medical marijuana. Someone of such unpredictable behavior, Dr. Prince concluded, " is not fit to work with children as the role of a teacher is integral to the well-being and safety of the students."

At hearing, the doctor testified Mr. Rolston's inconsistent replies also made a true diagnosis "only a guess on my part." On balance, he guessed that Respondent has a "Pre-Existing Personality Disorder features (Narcissistic)," and could not return to work. Dr. Prince explained this, as follows:

> When an individual chooses to repeatedly, consistently mislead and deceive, when he was clearly instructed not to.....And most people are honest or fairly honest. It is a well known in forensic circles and clinically that people who consistently, deliberately mislead and deceive, and that profile is not someone who should be around innocent children, should be teaching. He never should have.

IV B. 2 Avram H. Mack, M.D.

Avram H. Mack, M.D. was asked to determine if Respondent had a psychiatric disorder impacting his capacity as a teacher. Dr. Mack conducted a video interview, and examination of Respondent on May 15, 2020. A transcript of the interview was made by Condiotti & Associates Court Reporting Services. An 18-page IME Report dated June 15, 2020 was prepared by Dr. Mack, and entered into evidence.

The Report lists as information sources: 1. The May 15th Zoom interview and examination of Respondent Ralston; 2. Statement of Evidence included in the tenure charges; 3. Memorandum from Ed Cridge, Esq.; 4. Interview with Judy DeFrancesco; and 5. Medical Records from Monmouth Medical Center[1]. Dr. Mack challenged Dr. Prince's earlier report as containing "methodogical and reasoning defects." (R. 25, page 12.) Dr. Prince objected to this conclusion as defamatory and slanderous.

[1] In excess of 1,000 pages, marked as R. 45 in evidence.

Dr. Mack's overall psychiatric opinion in the context of the tenure charges was:

> Mr. Rolston exhibited unwanted behaviors in the school setting in a 3 day period in April 2019. Mr. Rolston's mental health has been examined by me and by others in connection with this matter. Generally, speaking my opinion is that Mr. Rolston is healthy in terms of his psychiatric status. And.
> my opinion is that the report by Dr. Prince in this matter should not be relied upon for the topics that arise in this matter.

(Emphasis added.)

Additionally, he concluded "Mr. Rolston was neither suicidal nor did he intend to harm anyone at the school." At the time of writing these conclusions, Dr. Mack was unaware that Respondent had been disagnosed in April 2019 with a depressive disorder.

Placing his report in context, Dr. Mack also wrote:

> This is not to say that it was appropriate for a teacher to display any disruptive, sarcastic, angry, intrusive behavior or state violent content in Front of students or in interactions with peer teachers. But here there is not psychiatric evidence that portrays any disruptive, or disobedient behavior outside of these circumscribed events occurring over 1-3 days (depending on on one's definition of objectional behavior). Furthermore, this is not to condone any violence or threat thereof in the school setting. They may have demonstrated temporary unwarranted behaviors but do not represent a serious mental illness and they do not represent personality disorder that would affect Mr. Rolston's abilites and mental health and his capacity to serve as a teacher.

(Emphasis added.)

Dr. Prince's report is of considerable relevance to the analysis of Charge III (Incapacity). Dr. Mack, however, warned about relying on the report. He cautioned, "One should not credit Dr. Prince's report due to several methodological and reasoning defects. In defense of its expert, Petitioner Post-Hearing Brief urged that Dr. Mack's report should be deemed inadmissable, or in the alternative disregarded as an irrelevent a net opinion.

V. DISCUSSION

The tenure charges for the Arbitrator's consideration are:

V A. Specification Of Charges

Charge I – Conduct Unbecoming

Thomas Rolston engaged in unbecoming conduct by making several comments to other faculty members and in front of students that he intended to "burn the building," and "go down in a blaze of glory." Further, Mr. Rolston explicitly threatened then Acting Superintendent Karen Homiek by stating he was going to "cut the head off the...snake," thus insinuating he was planning on attacking the school system at its highest level.

Charge II – Other Just Cause

"Other just cause" exists as the result of separate violations by Thomas Rolston violation of OCVTS' Teacher Code of Ethics. The Code specifically states that an "educator accepts the responsibility to adhere to the highest ethical standards." Respondent failed to adhere ethical standards in that he:

> Violated Policy # 3281 by engaging in inappropriate language, or expression in the presence of students;
>
> Violated Policy # 3351 by failing to interact with other staff with dignity and respect;
>
> Violated Policy # 3211 by purposefully and knowingly make malicious statements concerning a colleague, specifically, then Acting Superintendent Karen Homiek, in stating that he was "going to shoot the head off the snake...what do I have to lose".

Charge III – Incapacity

Mr. Rolston lacks the capacity to perform his duties as a teacher based on the August 20, 2019 report of Dr. Brett J. Prince.

V B. The Parties' Position

Petitioner OCTVS submitted a post-hearing brief of 100-pages, while Respondent's post-hearing brief was 65-pages in length. Numerous factual assertions and arguments were advanced by each party's attorneys. All of them will not be analyzed, or even refererenced. In part, this flows from overlaps among the three tenure charges, and clear evidence of Mr. Rolston's actions between April 10 and April 12, 2019. Each party's principal contentions appear below in the words of their respective attorneys.

V B. 1 The District's Position

Petitioner Ocean County Vocational Technical School summarized its position in the concluding pages of its post-hearing brief. Its attorneys wrote:

> Through the Respondent's actions and conduct, the Respondent has violated no less than (3) OCVTS Policies: The Code of Ethics – Policy 3211; Inappropriate Staff Conduct > – Policy 3281; and Healthy Workplace Environment – Policy 3351. The Respondent's conduct over the course of April 10, 11, & 12, 2019 have also been determined to be unbecoming.
>
> The Respondent's actions over the course of April 10, 11, & 12, 2019 consisted of significant loss of self-control and irrational behavior, resulting in multiple confrontations with fellow employees and the OCVTS administration. During these confrontations, the Respondent consistently threatened, screamed, yelled, and promised retaliation against Malfitano, Zavattieri, Pernal, Shenloogian, Smith, Adams, Szymanski, Homiek, Meeker, and the OCVTS administration itself. The Respondent's threats were so severe that a reasonable person would only consider them malicious and egregious in nature. The Respondent's demeanor was so erratic and illogical that Shenloogian, Pernal, Smith, Zavattieri, and Malfitano believed that the Respondent was capable of following through on his threats to the OCVTS staff and students. Based upon the totality of the Respondent's conduct, the relevant competent evidence, and all corroborating evidence, the balancing test, as set forth in Cowan, weighs in favor of revoking the Respondent's Tenure.
>
> Further, Prince has established that the Respondent's mental state should be ruled incapacitated. Prince's Expert Report utilized (5) separate objective test, that all confirmed that the Respondent suffers from multiple forms of psychosis and mental health conditions, including but not limited to: Manic Grandiosity; poor control over anger; Narcissism; and Positive Impression Management. These conditions make the Respondent pathologically untruthful, habitually defensive, and very quick to assume a victim role, by blaming others for real or imagined shortcomings. Based upon these diagnosis, Prince determined that the Respondent was unfit to return to work and teach children. As in McCoy, the Respondent has been found to suffer from severe misperceptions and misconceptions about reality, therefore causing him to engage in bizarre and incoherent behaviors, and must be ruled incapacitated.
> Lastly, the Respondent's Medical Report must be deemed inadmissible as evidence, and/or determined to be a Net Opinion. The Respondent's Medical Report simply consists of bare conclusions and speculation, and is unsupported by factual evidence. Mack has failed to review the medical documents/notes/history of no less then (10) licensed medical professionals that treat the Respondent for various ailments.

> Respondent's Medical Report failed to review the Respondent's family medical history. Respondent's Medical Report failed to review the Respondent's history of violence and aggression. Respondent's Medical Report failed to review the Respondent's involuntary commitment medical documentation regarding violent and suicidal ideation. Mack failed to perform any due diligence regarding the Respondent's graphic nightmares. Mack failed to perform any due diligence regarding the Respondent's work history of bullying and harassment. And Mack failed to perform any objective based testing, but instead relied upon a Video Conference whereby minimal physical observations were possible.
> For the aforementioned reasons as listed above, the Respondent's Tenure should be revoked.

(Emphasis added.)

V B. 2 Respondent's Position

Mr. Rolston's attorneys prepared an introduction to, and summary of their brief. They argue, as follows:

> Mr. Rolston is a tenured English teacher, with a long and commendable record of service to the Board, and the students who attend its schools. The events which precipitated these tenure charges took place on the Board's premises during a 3-day period of time: April 10-12, 2019.
>
> During that period of time, Mr. Rolston was experiencing three significant, personal stressors. First, Mr. Rolston, a cancer survivor, was deeply concerned about the potential reoccurrence of his stomach cancer. He was awaiting further information from his doctors regarding the status of his disease, and faced the possibility of undergoing additional, very difficult treatment. Second, Mr. Rolston had recently been notified by a parent, Linda Bogan of a deeply concerning allegation involving the Board's Superintendent, Karen Homiek. The allegation was that a teacher...had been involved in an inappropriate relationship with a student at the Board's Performing Arts Academy ("PAA") when Superintendent Homiek was the Principal, and that she had failed to properly address the issue at that time. Finally, Mr. Rolston had a somewhat contentious interaction with his Principal, Lillian Zavattieri: he thought that he was unfairly accused of misbehaving in another teacher's classroom, and that the Principal had assumed that he was in the wrong.
>
> Mr. Rolston was worried about what would happen when he reported the PAA Concern, and discussed the issue with several of his co-workers, including his union president, Christine Smith. He used figurative language during those conversations. (Emphasis added.)
>
> The Board alleges that he used the phrases "burn down," "blow up," and "shoot the head off the fucking snake." Based upon that alleged language, the Board argues that Mr. Rolston made "terroristic threats," and "verbal assaults," that he frightened people, and that he is somehow a danger to the Ocean County Vocational Technical School District. This is the gravamen of the Board's charge of unbecoming conduct against Mr. Rolston.

As all of the evidence, reviewed, infra, demonstrates, the extrapolations that the Board asks the Arbitrator to draw from Mr. Rolston's words on April 10-12, 2019, are overwrought, hysterical, and simply untrue. This is the case for several reasons. First, Mr. Rolston caused no actual harm to anything. He did not burn anything down, blow anything up, or shoot anything. Second, it is manifestly clear that Mr. Rolston never intended to embark upon any such course of action. He does not own any firearms or bomb-making materials. He was investigated by, and cooperated fully with, law enforcement. He was never charged with any criminal offense in connection with his words or actions. In the 18 months that have passed since his suspension from his position, Mr. Rolston has not perpetrated any of the actions that the Board wants the Arbitrator to think might be "right around the corner." Third, it is manifestly clear that Mr.Rolston never intended whatever he said to be taken or perceived as a threat. Rather, all of his co-workers, who were called as witnesses by the Board, testified that they understood that Mr. Rolston's florid, metaphorical language was referencing, not some violent plot, but rather the potential fallout that would occur if he reported the PAA Concern to the authorities. Fourth, Mr. Rolston's words did not have impact of making his co-workers feel threatened. Rather, as Tom Pernal testified, infra, they reported his words to District administration not out of fear, but rather out of concern for Mr. Rolston's own well-being.

Mr. Rolston's speech to his co-workers addressed an issue of substantial public concern: the reporting of child abuse allegations in the public school setting. As such, the imposition of any punishment upon Mr. Rolston based upon the subject matter of those conversations would infringe Mr. Rolston's First Amendment Rights.

Mr. Rolston's behavior from April 10-12, 2019 might be characterized as agitated, or dramatic It cannot sincerely be characterized as insubordinate or threatening. For this, and all the reasons set forth, infra, it cannot form the basis for his termination from his tenured teaching position.

Besides its allegations of unbecoming conduct, the Board also charges Mr. Rolston with incapacity; i.e., it alleges that he is medically unable to discharge the duties and functions of a teacher. The basis of this charge was the testimony of neuropsychologist Brett Prince.

As further set forth, infra, Dr. Prince's testimony and opinion were completely unreliable, and did not establish that Mr. Rolston is "incapacitated" for purposes of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10: the Board has failed to prove its incapacity charge, and it should consequently be Dismissed.

(Emphasis Added.)

V C.1 Charges I & II

The three tenure charges may be viewed in seratim, or as a collective whole. To best consider what happened throughout three consecutive days, Charges I & II will be simultaneously examined. Charge III requires a separate analysis.

Charge I addresses New Jersey's the question of unbecoming conduct, while Charge II references overlapping OCTVS Policies that give context to the first charge. These policies within Petitioner's school district help demonstrate what is encompassed within the common law unbecoming conduct ban against behavior having "a tendency to destroy public respect for [school] employees and competence in the operation of services." Karins v. City of Atlantic City, 152 N. J. 152, N.J. 532, 554 (1988). See IMO Ernest Tordo, School District of Jackson Twp. 1974 S.L.D. 97, 98-99 (teachers hold the public's trust to inform and mold the habits and opinions of their students. Violations will result in dismissal, or other sever penalty.) Fulsomely, Policy No. 3351 notifies and cautions OCTVS staff that:

> A significant characteristic of a healthy workplace environment is that employees interact with each other with dignity and respect regardless of an employee's work assignment or position in the school district. Repeated malicious conduct of an employee or group of employees directed toward another employee or group of employees in the workplace that a reasonable person would find hostile or offensive is unacceptable and is not conducive to establishing or maintaining a healthy workplace environment. This unacceptable conduct may include, but is not limited to, repeated infliction of verbal abuse such as the use of derogatory remarks; insults; verbal or physical conduct that a reasonable person would find threatening, intimidating, or humiliating; or the gratuitous sabotage or undermining of a person's work performance. A single act of such conduct shall not constitute the unacceptable conduct prohibited by this policy unless it is especially severe and egregious.

And, Policy # 3281 unequivocally bans inappropriate language, or expression in the presence of students.

Under these interrelated principles, the Arbitrator has determined that Respondent's behavior was continuously inappropriate over three days. His actions,

- had a tendency to weaken public respect for OCTVS;
- modeled immature behavior to students;

- caused anexiety in peers;
- risked parents lossing trust in the school system;
- demeaned and depricated Mrs. Adams;
- insultingly and profanely described a law enforcment officer;
- disrespected Principal Zavaterri during two meetings;
- challenged an express order to delay speaking with the CPR Instructors;
- included entering Irene Malfitano's classroom unbidden;
- raised his voice to Ms. Malifitano, and yelled at Principal Zavaterri;
- intimidatingly leaned over Ms. Malfitano's desk;
- disregarded her requests to leave;
- divulged alleged student/teacher affairs to persons without need to know;
- warned this information would burn the Board office down;
- sought guidance from Thomas Pernal about "bringing down" a school administrator;
- used profane language in front of Mr. Pernal's students;
- paced up & down before those students complaining of Principal Zavaterri;
- talked of "shooting the head off that fucking snake";
- told Union President Smith without corroberation that Karen Homiek may have "covered-up" the DT matter.

Such behaviors are generally unbecoming for any worker, and most certainly unbecoming of a public employee who has substantial obligations to students and their parents. Mr. Rolston's years ofcompetent and cooperative teaching, in this case, do not mitigate his actions between April 10, 11, and 12, 2019. How may parents knowing of Respondent's litany of behavior would be comfortable entrusting their children to his tutelage?

Witnesses and documents combine to demonstrate a uniform picture of the critical events. Testimony covering the April 2019 dates is generally consistent with minor discrepancies as to non-critical facts. Documentary evidence supports witness recollections of past events.

The roots of the case stretch back 2018, when Mr. Rolston entered a "bad patch." With the onset of stomach cancer (followed by surgery, and powerful medication) he came under profound physical and psychological stress. He developed a morbid fear of a painful death as happened to Stan, his deceased colleague. Then, Linda Bogan re-entered his world. She telephoned Respondent to share triple-hearsay accusing a District Teacher ("DT") of past student abuse. Mr. Rolston allowed himself to be drawn in, and agreed to help investigate. He came to view the issue through a "mandatory reporter" lens. Although he had received training covering this duty, it was not apparent to the Arbitrator that he understood the mechanics of the process. The more Mr. Rolston thought and stewed, the more confusing the issue appeared to him. No doubt, this was exacerbated by the angst of having to wait until April 17th to learn if the cancer had reoccured. In his words,

> I now had the weight of the world, these concerns hanging over me. I have to report them...because like Mr. Maschi testified, we are mandatory reporters...I'm waiting on April 17th, I have seven more days to wait until I found out is my cancer back, or do I have to start taking these [Gleevec] pills.

On the morning of April 10, 2019. Entering Irene Malfitano's classroom, Respondent was pre-occupied with Mrs. Bogan's tattle, and fearful his stomach cancer might be returning. CPR instructors (Adams & Syzmanski) were in the room. They had not been given advance notice of this probable visit to remind the students of their English homework. Mr. Rolston conversed with two groups of female students. He spoke to one group in Spanish. These informal conversations were in the midst of Lt. Syzmanski's CPR instructions, and without his consent. Mr. Rolston's "playfulness" was disruptive, but not sufficiently so that either the Lieutenant, or Mrs. Adams intervened. Mr. Rolston exited the room after 20-minutes; apparently unaware of the resentment in his wake.

Having remained silent until that point, Mrs. Adams sought out Principal Zavatteri to share a few words of dissatisfaction. In short order, the Principal visited Mr. Rolston's office for his input. However, he came to believe Ms. Zavaterri was unfairly accusing him of misbehaving in Irene Malfitano's classroom. His words and tone became unprofessional when reacting to the Principal's perceived acceptance of Mrs. Adams' allegation. This was the first of several outbursts of unreasonable anger i.e., tirades, over the next 48-hours.

These outbursts reached their zenith on Thursday, April 11, 2019. The prior day Respondent had sought Thomas Pernal's guidance about potentially "bringing down" a highly placed administrator over a possible "inappropriate relationship between a faculty member and/or students." Mr. Pernal realized that the faculty member was DT, and the administrator was then Acting Superintendent, Karen Homiek. He demurred replying to Respondent's request for help. On Thursday morning, before class was to start, Respondent again broached this request. Mr. Pernal replied he was "ill-equipped" to give such counsel.

Respondent then entered the classroom. With students present, he raised the CPR training incident, and his subsequent confrontations with Principal Zavattieri. Although initially speaking in a normal tone, some students were in earshot. Mr. Rolston's voice and actions ramped-up to a higher level. He paced back and forth in front of the students. While so doing, Mr. Pernal testified that his colleague averred "he was going to shoot the head off the snake, and was making hand gestures as though he were holding a gun." After Respondent finally exited the classroom, Mr. Pernal observed to his class that Mr. Rolton was "having a bad day."

Since Mr. Pernal had declined to guide him, Respondent made his way to Christy Shenloogian's room in search of Union President Christine Smith. The two women were having lunch. Mr. Rolston remained with them sharing his frustrations about the recent happenings. At one point, reacting to his rhetoric, Ms. Shehloogian cautioned "You shouldn't say things like that in a school building." These "things" included sharing "stuff" he had on Karen Homiek and on Ms. Zavaterri in a manner that would "take this whole place down," and "burn it to the ground." Inter alia he voiced an intent to report what he suspected was Ms. Homiek's "cover-up" of the DT matter. His tone was aggressive. Irene Malifitano was in an adjoining room, and heard small parts of their conversation.

Mr. Rolston asked Ms. Smith for her support bringing forward the "mandatory reporting" question. Ms. Smith declined. After he left the room Smith and Shenloogian concurred they "weren't comfortable with what just happened." Discomfort also was brewing among others in the academic community as rumors about Mr. Rolston spread.

Petitioner has proven Respondent engaged in conduct unbecoming, and violated Policy Nos. 3281 and 3351. However, there is no evidence that he intended to burn, blow-up, cut, or shoot anything or anyone. Mr. Rolston talked too much, with little or no thought about how his words might be interpreted. His angry and impassioned statements caused some to be worried about his mental health, others to be anxious, and those charged with safeguarding student welfare to consider how best to deal with the unraveling situation.

The onus always was on Respondent to stop acting out. A visit to EAP may have defused the situation, and returned him to his regular behavioral pattern.

V C.2 Ruling on Charges I & II

Over the 3-days in April 2019 the record shows that feeling extreme pressure Mr. Ralston behaved atypically. Before then, he had been a competent, respected teacher for 16-years. Several witnesses labeled him as "friend," and expressed surprise as his behavior went into a steep and sustained tailspin. One thought he had "flipped-out," while another speculated the battle against cancer was impacting him. None of them testified that his words/actions appeared pre-mediated, or intentionally malevolent. His driving motivation flowed from Mrs. Bogan's communication, which triggered a perceived duty to mandatorily report what he concluded had been student abuse. Mr. Rolston wrestled ineffectively with how to implement this self-imposed task. Throughout the process he disturbed the workplace, its staff, and endangered the public's perception of OCTVS.

Figurative Language

During three school days, Mr. Rolston told others what he could do in pursuit of this duty. He defended these discussions by explaining his words were figurative, not literal. This excuse is particularly unpersuasive when voiced by a certified English Teacher.

Metaphors are forms of figurative language framing a situation as something else to "punch home" the speaker's message. Groucho Marx's metaphor that a "hospital bed is a parked taxi with the meter running" might be particularly telling. In this age of COVID-19, however, it also could be interpreted as an insensitive rebuke of institutions and the health care workers who are doing much to help America. So too, Mr. Rolston's colorful "shooting the head off the snake" and "blowing it up" metaphors might have (but did not) punch home his point. Instead, they made people anxious, and caused some administrators to reason that anyone making such threats should not work with us. Neither group can be faulted for its reaction. Someone with a degree in creative writing might readily anticipate that his colorful words might have a bommerang effect.

Respondent, of course, possesses a creative writing degree, has worked as an editor, and taught English for years. It ill behooves him to defend using figurative language by saying, "But, I didn't mean for anyone to take my words literally." Maybe so. However, his words evoked emotional reactions. They caused Ms. Malfitano to speak with her fiancé, and resulted in Ms. Shenloogian cautioning against saying those things in school. Mr. Pernal thought Mr. Rolston might be "unhinged," not that he was being a clever wordsmith. Union President Smith became "uncomforable" after his lunch hour visit. Dr. Maschi summoned the police "to rule out a potential threat."

The record does not support a conclusion that Thomas Rolston meant to harm person, or property. This is reflected in his expresssions of remorse. These are not devalued by Tierney Meeker's testimony. She testified about a 60-second encounter with him on August 17, 2020. Clearly, Ms. Meeker found his comment displeasing. Her shifting characterizations of the encounter give pause about how much, if any, weight this testimony merits.

Initially, Tierney Meeker professed feeling fright because Mr. Rolston acted "crazy," and was unpredictable. At another moment she asserted believing her employment was in jeopardy, and later again that her good reputation might be damaged. These conflicting accounts prevent Ms. Meeker from being a particularly credible witness on the relevant question of whether she had been threatened. While subjectively she felt insecure, Respondent's statement does not easily lend itself to classification as a threat, or an attack.

The Arbitrator does not accept Petitioner's argument that Mr. Ralston's "demeanor [on August 17th] is a clear example of the Respondent's extreme irrational behavior." Rather, it was Ms. Meeker who melodramatically telephoned the Superintent after a non-emergent event.

Difficult Circumstances

Everyone has difficult choices to make. Everyone goes through life's ups and downs. Frustrations and hardships result from divorce, hurricanes, false accusations, and distracted bank tellers. Society asks us not to redirect our negative emotions to others, when coping with life. OCTVS Policy No. 3351, applying to healthy workplaces, affirms this principle. It bars abuse, derogatory remarks, or insults that reasonable people would find intimidating, or humiliating. These bad behaviors can fall within conduct unbecoming, and may result in discipline, or discharge. Even a single act, if especially severe and egregious, may lead to discharge. Thomas Rolston's confrontations with Principal Zavatteri were serious acts, as was his meltdown in Mr. Pernal's classroom. Also, he made lesser, but still unacceptable, comments on other occassions. Petitioner was within its rights not to accept the totality of this behavior.

Charges I and II are sustained.

V C.3 Ruling on Charge III

Petitioner in Charge III asserts that Thomas A. Rolston lacks the capacity to perform teaching duties based on the August 20, 2019 report of Dr. Brett J. Prince.

On balance, the Arbitrator cannot credit Dr. Prince's conclusion about Mr. Rolston's incapacity to return to teaching. The Doctor opined that Respondent's inconsistent, invalid, and misleading manner severly hindered his arriving at an accurate diagnosis. Similarly, Dr. Prince offered that at least one objective tests revealed a consistent and deliberate attempt to distort the results by inaccurate self-portrayal. The Arbitrator interprets these findings as standing for the proposition that Mr. Rolston is a trickster who should not be permitted to teach "innocent children."

This conclusion might have been easier to accept if the record included data about validity scales in any of the objective tests. Such scales help detect those who want to be seen in the best possible light, as well as persons (such as malingers) who are interested in presenting themselves as feeling worse than actually is the case. Arbitrators depend on expert witnesses to be educated about such matters beyond their ken. While Dr. Prince feverently supported his diagnosis, the Arbitrator would have benefitted from an enhanced explanation for the net opinion that Respondent had been highly deceptive during interviewing and testing.

Absent such information, Dr. Mack's internally consistent conclusion jibes with the facts presented by others. Based on the fulnessness, and documentation of his report, the Arbitrator accepts Dr. Mack's conclusion that Mr. Rolstons unwarranted behavior was not the result of serious mental illness, or of a personality disorder.
Charge III is dismissed.

For these reasons the Arbitrator must conclude that the evidence of record establishes unbecoming conduct under Charges I and II that warrants dismissal from employment.

Hearing held August 31 and September 1, 2020

INTRODUCTION

In accordance with the TeachNJ statute, NJSA 18A:6-16, the tenure charges brought by the Woodbridge Township Board of Education, Middlesex County, New Jersey ("the Petitioner," "the Employer," "the District" or "the Board") against Nicholas Cilento ("Respondent'") were referred to me for review by the Commissioner of Education. A hearing was held on August 31 and September 1, 2020, during which the parties were accorded the right to examine and cross-examine witnesses, the right to present evidence, and the right to make arguments in support of their respective positions in this matter. The hearing was closed upon the receipt of post-hearing briefs on October 23, 2020.

ISSUE

Has the Board proven by the preponderance of credible evidence that Respondent is guilty of conduct unbecoming a teaching staff member, insubordination and/or other just cause warranting his dismissal? If not, what discipline, if any, is warranted?

BACKGROUND

The facts are essentially undisputed. Respondent, Nicholas Cilento, is a tenured teacher who has been employed by the School District since September 2007. His evaluations were effective to highly effective. Prior to May 2019, the only negative conduct reference in his record was a memorandum in April 2017 for holding a cell phone while testing was taking place.

On the morning of May 21, 2019, Mr. Cilento was assigned to front lobby supervision, beginning at around 7:30 AM, after which he was to perform his regular teaching. That day was a testing day, so classes didn't start until 10:00. Around 7:20 that morning, a department chair brought to the attention of Principal Kenneth Pace that she had been told that Mr. Cilento had been drinking alcohol on duty the morning before. Principal Pace went to where Mr. Cilento was sitting and noticed a small water bottle on the floor by his seat. Mr. Cilento first said, "That's not mine." Mr. Pace smelled the bottle and concluded that it was alcohol. The bottle was almost full, with what Mr. Pace described as perhaps a few mouthfuls gone.

He took Mr. Cilento to his office and, once there, admonished him not to lie. Mr. Cilento requested access to the Employee Assistance Program and was tested for alcohol at approximately 10:00, when he tested negative (0.00%). He was driven home and put on leave.

Respondent testified that he had been struggling with alcoholism for many years. He sought treatment for his illness four or five times, including Alcoholics Anonymous and Employee Assistance Program, but eventually relapsed each time. He had been sober for several years prior to the events at issue here, but following a particularly stressful interaction with his wife, from whom he was separating, he began drinking again on May 19. He admits that he brought a small plastic water bottle of vodka to school on the mornings of May 20 and 21 and had several sips of vodka each day.

He enrolled in an inpatient rehabilitation program, followed by an outpatient program, several months in a sober living facility and then into active participation in Alcoholics Anonymous.

On or about October 22, 2019, the Board certified its tenure charges against Mr. Cilento to the Commissioner of Education, as follows: `

Charge I: Unbecoming conduct and/or other just cause, including insubordination—consuming alcohol during work in violation of established standards of professional behavior.

Charge II: Unbecoming conduct, insubordination, and/or other just cause—publicly consuming alcohol during work in violation of state law.

Charge III: Unbecoming conduct, insubordination, and/or other just cause—possessing alcohol during on [sic] school grounds in violation of municipal law.

Charge IV: Insubordination and unbecoming conduct and/or other just cause—violations of District policy

Charge V: Pattern of course of unbecoming conduct over protracted period of time

I find, based on the undisputed evidence, including Mr. Cilento's own admissions, that Respondent possessed and used alcohol on school premises while on duty on May 20 and 21, 2019. Respondent did not contest that drinking on duty on school grounds is prohibited. I find that such conduct is contrary to established standards of professional behavior, Board policies, New Jersey State Law, and Woodbridge Municipal Code, and constitutes conduct unbecoming a teacher, but not insubordination. I also find that Respondent knew that such conduct was improper. He had been trained in the Board policies and he engaged in behavior on May 20 and 21 that demonstrated that he was trying to hide his conduct, itself evidence that he knew what he was doing was wrong. Charges I-IV are sustained.

I do not find, however, that Respondent engaged in a "pattern or course of unbecoming conduct over a protracted period of time." The only evidence is that he had a few sips of alcohol at school on two consecutive days. The Board describes this as "at least two independently egregious acts over the course of one school years [sic]." I disagree. He is charged with, and I find that he committed the act of misconduct on two occasions over the course of two days. This is not a "protracted period of time."

The Board asserts that it has defined a "pattern of unbecoming behavior, not over a course of years [as discussed in the cases precedent], but over a course of days—i.e. the 20th and 21st of May, as well as every day thereafter until he was caught if he had not been caught on the 21st." I decline to infer simply from the fact that Cilento had had an alcohol problem that extended over a protracted period of time that he engaged in a pattern of unbecoming conduct during that same time. I similarly decline to assume, as the Board would have me do, that Mr. Cilento would have continued to drink at school had he not been caught. Maybe he would have and maybe he wouldn't have. There is no evidence and he is not charged with any days other than May 20 and May 21. Charge V is dismissed.

The only real question before me is whether dismissal is the appropriate penalty under all the circumstances.

POSITIONS OF THE PARTIES

According to the District, Respondent's conduct was so egregious as to necessitate dismissal. On two days he brought vodka to school in a water bottle and consumed it on the premises while in charge of supervising the front door and hallways. On the first day he also taught 20 special education students after or while consuming the alcohol and then drove himself home. Had he not been caught, he "absolutely intend[ed] to continue such a pattern," the District argues. His conduct was premeditated and implemented in such a way as to permit him to surreptitiously consume alcohol while on duty. By his own admission, this was his fourth or fifth alcohol-related relapse. Arbitration decisions and court decisions have held that a teacher cannot rely on a medical condition to excuse and/or mitigate such misconduct, the District asserts. There is no guarantee that Respondent will not start drinking again. This is not a one-time mistake, but "an unmistakable pattern of poor judgment and unlawful behavior that would certainly have continued had Respondent not been caught."

To return him to the classroom would send a dangerous message to young and impressionable students and would put them at risk, given the likelihood of future misconduct, the District argues. Mr. Cilento's conduct directly injured not only his own reputation, but the reputation of the District and undermined the trust of the District and the parents. Further, according to the District, Mr. Cilento exhibited "no remorse" for his misconduct. His alcohol addiction should not serve to mitigate the penalty warranted. The welfare of the children must be paramount.

Therefore, the District argues, dismissal is the only appropriate penalty. Mr. Cilento cannot "get a free pass to violate the law, on multiple occasions," just because he has a disability related to alcohol. To not dismiss him would send a message to the students and parents and to Respondent that he can use and possess alcohol at school with no serious repercussions, so long as he can rely on his alcoholism to get him off the hook. The Board's decision to terminate Respondent must be upheld, Petitioner argues.

Respondent, on the other hand, argues that the Board has not demonstrated that he has engaged in conduct unbecoming a teacher, warranting his removal from his position. Rather, Respondent contends, some lesser penalty, if any, should obtain.

Mr. Cilento was not intoxicated, there is no evidence that he failed to perform his teaching duties, no student was aware of his conduct, and, once confronted, he accepted responsibility and got help. According to Respondent, citing In re Fulcomer, 93 N.J. Super. 404, 422 (App. Div. 1967), when evaluating whether dismissal is appropriate, the arbitrator must consider the nature and gravity of the offense, the impact on the teacher's career, any extenuating or aggravating circumstances, and the harm or injurious effect the conduct may have had on the proper administration of the school system. "The touchstone of the determination lies in the teacher's fitness to discharge the duties and functions of her position," Respondent contends.

Respondent argues that in making this determination, the arbitrator should consider Mr. Cilento's many years of exemplary service and outstanding evaluations, all earned while he was managing his alcoholism. Also significant are the efforts he has made throughout that time to manage his disease and the efforts he has made since the events of May 20 and 21, 2019. He is "doing the work" necessary to make himself capable of continuing to provide exemplary service to the students of the Woodbridge Township School District, Respondent asserts.

Respondent also notes that he was not aware that his conduct would result in termination. He was not trained on the specific consequences of having alcohol on school grounds and other teachers with substance abuse-related misconduct at school were afforded second chances.

OPINION

There is no contention that there was any problem with Mr. Cilento's performance as a teacher. His evaluations were all effective or highly effective. He was described as a very good special education teacher by Superintendent Robert Zega. The Board is correct, however, that even a good teacher, one protected by tenure and with long years of service, may still be dismissed even for a first offense if the misconduct is sufficiently egregious and the other factors for evaluating just cause are met. I must therefore review these factors and the Fulcomer standards.

In evaluating the egregiousness of the conduct, I note that while there can be no question that any consumption of any amount of alcohol at school, especially while on duty, is unacceptable, Mr. Cilento consumed a very small amount on May 21—four sips--such that he did not register any alcohol in his system when he was tested. His testimony was that he consumed the same amount the day before. There is no evidence to the contrary. He did not demonstrate any signs of impairment and there is no evidence that his teaching or his performance of other duties was impaired.

There is no evidence in the record that any student or parent was aware of what had happened.

The factors listed by the Board in evaluating just cause for dismissal include whether the employee was forewarned of the consequences of his actions and whether the rule was applied fairly and without discrimination. There is no evidence that he was given any training on the specific consequences of consuming alcohol at school. While he certainly knew (or should have known) that it was prohibited and that there would be penalty, there is no evidence that he was advised in advance that dismissal would necessarily follow. In fact, Policy 4419.23, which prohibits "[u]se of alcohol beverages in school worksites," lists a number of possible disciplinary actions, including "nonrenewal, suspension or termination at the discretion of the board." Thus it appears that termination is not the automatic penalty.

There were no cases precedent cited that were identical to the one before me, i.e. a tenured employee found to have used or possessed alcohol at work. The cases that came the closest involved tenured employees who were found to be under the influence of alcohol while at work. Tenured secretary TM was suspended for suspicion of being under the influence of alcohol at work. She was returned to work. Then after testing positive again for alcohol while at work, she was given a Last Chance Agreement. The third time she failed an alcohol test she was terminated. According to the District, this case was distinguishable because the employee did not use the illegal substance at work nor did she use on two consecutive days.

JP, a tenured teacher, was suspended for being under the influence of alcohol at work. He went into a rehabilitation program and following his release was permitted to return to work.

JS, a tenured teacher, was suspended for suspicion of being under the influence of alcohol at work and was allowed to return to work under a Last Chance Agreement. When she subsequently failed a drug test, she was terminated.

(The only other cases cited involved employees arrested for use or possession of illegal drugs on a weekend, not on school property, and bus drivers who failed random drug tests who were terminated or suspended and then resigned.) The above cases, which occurred during Mr. Cilento's tenure, would not put him on notice that any use of alcohol at work would lead to immediate dismissal for a first offense. I do not find the District's attempted distinction between intoxication at work as opposed to use of alcohol at work to be persuasive. Rather, It appears to me that Mr. Cilento was treated unjustifiably more harshly than others in similar circumstances.

While the District asserts that Cilento was not at all remorseful, the record proves otherwise. He immediately went through inpatient and outpatient rehabilitation programs, moved into sober living for several months, is working through the AA 12 steps and faithfully attending AA meetings, and has kept in close contact with his AA sponsor. At the hearing he testified, "It was totally unprofessional. I let a lot of people down." I find that his actions after the events of May 20 and 21, 2019 reflect an acceptance of responsibility and a sincere desire to live a sober life.

The District also argues that Respondent could relapse. That is true. Mr. Cilento admits that it is true. He cannot guarantee that he will never drink again. However, he was sincere and persuasive in his commitment to immediately call out of work and seek treatment were he to relapse and not to report to school either under the influence or in possession of alcohol.

I find after a review of the entire record, and considering the arguments cited by both parties, that dismissal is not warranted in this case. While I agree with the District that Mr. Cilento cannot think that he can violate the school policies and state and municipal laws with impunity, I believe that a three-month unpaid suspension and reinstatement on a Last Chance basis, is the appropriate penalty for Mr. Cilento's misconduct. This penalty is sufficient to make clear to Mr. Cilento that his conduct was unacceptable and that a recurrence could lead to dismissal. The District has the right to impose whatever random testing requirements it feels are necessary to ensure that Mr. Cilento does not use alcohol at school or report to work under the influence of alcohol.

Board of Education of the City of Trenton, Mercer County,

Respondent.

Synopsis

The Trenton Education Association (TEA) and several of its members challenged a 2016 reduction in force (RIF), implemented by the Trenton Board of Education (Board) as the result of a budget shortfall. Specifically, the Board abolished the individual petitioners' occupational, physical, and speech-language therapy positions, and subsequently contracted with the Monmouth-Ocean Educational Services Commission (MOESC) to provide these mandated special education services to its students. The MOESC, in turn, provided these services through private agencies that entered into contracts with MOESC rather than services provided directly by MOESC employees. Petitioners appealed, arguing that this arrangement was improper, and sought reinstatement and other remedies. The TEA and the Board filed cross-motions for summary decision.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: N.J.A.C. 6A:14-5.1(c)1.v prohibits public school districts from contracting with private providers for speech-language therapy services unless the district is financially unable to hire sufficient staff to provide the services; one of the speech-language therapists, petitioner Caruso, was not tenured at the time of the RIF and the Board is largely unrestricted in its ability to non-renew non-tenured employees; the Trenton Education Association's claim regarding the remaining speech-language therapists can be severed and continued; however, there is no restriction on a district's ability to contract with private providers for occupational and physical therapy services; therefore, the Board's utilization of MOESC to arrange for private occupational and physical therapy providers was lawful. Accordingly, the ALJ: dismissed the petitions of Caruso, occupational therapists Kenion, Fekete, and Mitra, and physical therapist Lockhart; denied the parties' cross-motions for summary decision pertaining to the tenured speech-language therapists: and granted the Board's motion regarding the provision of occupational and physical therapy services through MOESC.

Upon review, the Commissioner granted the Board's motion for summary decision, finding. inter alia, that: the Board's decision to implement a RIF was not arbitrary, capricious, unreasonable or undertaken in bad faith; the Commissioner lacks jurisdiction to determine if and how the limitation on a board of education's ability to contract with private providers for speech-language therapy services is applicable to the Board's contract with MOESC and whether that contract is valid; such jurisdiction lies with the Office of Special Education, not the Commissioner. Accordingly, the petition was dismissed.

This synopsis is not part of the Commissioner's decision. It has been prepared for the convenience of the reader. It has been neither reviewed nor approved by the Commissioner.

New Jersey Commissioner of Education

Final Decision

Trenton Education Association, Karin Davis, Michele Fekete, Ben Kenion, Inger Morin, Debjit Mitra, Wendy Lockhart, Bernadette Piscopo, Tiffani Finley, Wanda Perry, Janice Phillips, Stephanie Shaffer, Cheryl Caruso, Heather Baron, Elizabeth Manzi, and Alexa Sherman, Petitioners,

v.

Board of Education of the City of Trenton, Mercer County,

Respondent.

The record of this matter, the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), the exceptions filed by both parties pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4, and the replies thereto by both parties, have been reviewed.

This matter involves a reduction in force (RIF) implemented by the Board in 2016, when it was facing a budget shortfall of $5.9 million. The Board abolished the individual petitioners' occupational, physical, and speech-language therapy positions.[1] However, recognizing that it was still legally obligated to provide these special education services to its students, the Board contracted with the Monmouth-Ocean Educational Services Commission

[1] The remaining individual petitioners are Ben Kenion, Michele Fekete, Debjit Mitra, Wendy Lockhart, and Cheryl Caruso.

(MOESC) to provide the services, through private agencies that entered into contracts with MOESC rather than services provided directly by MOESC employees. Petitioners appealed, arguing that this arrangement was improper, and sought reinstatement among other remedies.

Following discovery at the OAL, the parties filed cross-motions for summary decision. The ALJ found that N.J.A.C. 6A:14-5.1(c)1.v prohibits public school districts from contracting with private providers for speech-language therapy services unless the district is unable to hire sufficient staff to provide the services. The ALJ concluded that the Board's contract with MOESC, which in turn provided for MOESC to contract with private agencies, was invalid unless the Board can meet the regulatory exception by showing that it was unable to hire sufficient staff to provide speech-language therapy services due to its financial circumstances. The ALJ dismissed the petition of speech-language therapist Caruso, because she was not tenured at the time of the RIF, and the Board is largely unrestricted in its ability to non-renew non-tenured employees. The ALJ found that the Trenton Education Association's (TEA) claim regarding the provision of speech-language therapy services could be severed and continued, and denied the TEA's and the Board's cross-motions for summary decision.

As to the provision of occupational and physical therapy services, the ALJ found that there is no restriction on a district's ability to contract with private providers for these services, and therefore the Board's utilization of MOESC to arrange for private occupational and physical therapy providers was lawful. Accordingly, the ALJ dismissed the petitions of occupational therapists Kenion, Fekete, and Mitra, and physical therapist Lockhart.

In their exceptions, petitioners argue that the ALJ improperly accepted the Board's allegedly unsubstantiated assertion that the RIF was necessitated by the district's overall budgetary shortfall. According to petitioners, N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9 and associated case law permit a RIF "for reasons of economy," and because the Board did not provide any evidence that the therapist positions at issue were abolished for reasons of economy or that the RIF would actually save money, summary decision in favor of petitioners should have been granted. Petitioners assert that the ALJ incorrectly permitted the Board to enter into a "sham transaction" with MOESC for occupational and physical therapists, because the county superintendent did not approve the contracts between MOESC and the private providers, which is required by N.J.S.A. 18A:6-63. Finally, petitioners argue that the Board violated the tenure rights of the tenured occupational and physical therapists by using non-tenured therapists – the private providers contracted by MOESC – to provide the same occupational and physical therapy services previously provided by the tenured therapists.

In reply, the Board argues that it provided extensive evidence of a budget shortfall of nearly $6 million for the 2016-17 school year and that its fiscal decisions related to the shortfall were made in collaboration with the State Monitor appointed by the Commissioner. According to the Board, petitioners were required to prove that the RIF was arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable, or undertaken in bad faith, and they failed to meet that burden. Moreover, the Board asserts that N.J.S.A. 18A:6-63 does not apply to the contract between the Board and MOESC, but only applies to contracts between MOESC and private providers, and that the Board should not be responsible for verifying to what extent MOESC may or may not have complied with statutes or regulations regarding contracts to which the Board was not a party. Finally, the Board argues that the petitioners were properly RIF'ed and their positions were outsourced through MOESC, and, as such, there are no vacancies to which the tenured petitioners would have a right of reemployment. The Board also notes that petitioners' exceptions do not dispute the ALJ's conclusion that the claims of the non-tenured petitioners should be dismissed.

The Board also filed its own exceptions, arguing that the petition of appeal does not seek any relief other than damages personal to the individually named petitioners, and the only possible relief that could be awarded to the TEA as the sole remaining petitioner would be a finding that the Board violated regulations regarding the provision of special education services – relief which was not sought in the petition. Therefore, according to the Board, the Commissioner does not have jurisdiction to hear this matter, both because jurisdiction over the alleged violation of N.J.A.C. 6A:14-5.1 lies with the Office of Special Education rather than the Commissioner, and because the petition is now moot since all relief requested therein pertains to petitioners whose claims have subsequently been dismissed. Alternatively, the Board argues that the TEA does not have standing to pursue the action because damages are not available to it, such that the petition should be dismissed in its entirety. The Board further asserts that the ALJ improperly determined that the Board was prohibited from outsourcing its speech-language therapy services unless it established that it was unable to hire sufficient staff. According to the Board, the Initial Decision improperly conflated two independent provisions of the relevant regulation, and the restriction of N.J.A.C. 6A:14-5.1(c) – related to the district's inability to hire sufficient staff – only applies to outsourcing services directly to private providers, and not to outsourcing to an educational services commission, as the Board did here. Finally, the Board argues that it presented ample evidence of the district's budget shortfall, proving that its RIF was undertaken in good faith for reasons of economy, and that by ruling that there were unresolved issues of facts on this issue, the ALJ improperly shifted the burden of proof from petitioners to the Board.

In reply, petitioners argue that the Commissioner has jurisdiction because the underlying claim in this matter relates to whether the individual petitioners' tenure rights had been violated, an issue properly raised by the TEA as the majority representative of a negotiations unit consisting of hundreds of district employees. Petitioners also maintain that the case is not moot, and that the TEA has standing to pursue it, based on the conclusions made by the ALJ related to the Board's obligations in implementing the RIF and entering into the contract with MOESC for speech-language therapy services. Petitioners assert that the Board knew at the time it entered into the contract with MOESC that MOESC would need to contract with private providers for services, such that the Board's action was unlawful. Finally, petitioners argue that while the Board presented evidence of an overall budgetary shortfall, it presented no specific evidence that its abolition of speech language, physical, and occupational therapy positions saved any money.

Upon a comprehensive review, the Commissioner concludes that the Board's motion for summary decision must be granted. A summary decision may be rendered "if the papers and discovery which have been filed, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law." N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b); see also Brill v. Guardian Life Ins. Co. of Am., 142 N.J. 520, 528-29 (1995). Here, the material facts are not in dispute, as both parties acknowledge that the Board implemented a RIF that affected petitioners, that the Board subsequently outsourced special education services which had previously been performed by petitioners to MOESC, and that MOESC used private providers to deliver special education services to the Board's students.

First, the Commissioner concludes that the Board's decision to RIF 236 employees, including the individual petitioners here, was not arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable, or undertaken in bad faith. The ALJ concluded that in the face of an undisputed economic crisis, facing a serious budget gap and with an economic motivation, the Board legally abolished the positions of the occupational and physical therapists. The Commissioner concurs and finds petitioners' arguments to the contrary to be unpersuasive. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9, the Board may abolish positions for reasons of economy. Petitioners bear the burden of proof to demonstrate that the Board's decision to implement a RIF was arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable, or undertaken in bad faith. Kopera v. W. Orange Bd. of Educ., 60 N.J. Super. 288 (App. Div. 1960); see also Wollman v. Bd. of Educ. of the City of Trenton, Mercer County, 1995 N.J. Agen. LEXIS 506 (May 3, 1995). Given the evidence of the district's financial circumstances, petitioners have not met that burden.

Petitioners argued, and the ALJ agreed, that even a lawful RIF may violate employees' tenure rights if the board of education enters into an illegal arrangement to provide mandatory services that were previously provided by tenured employees. Therefore, the Commissioner must address the Board's contract with MOESC. With regard to the claims of the occupational and physical therapists, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ's conclusion that these claims must be dismissed. The New Jersey Supreme Court has held that the threshold question in determining whether a board of education has violated an employee's tenure rights by outsourcing services performed by a tenured employee to an educational services commission (ESC) is whether the board has the authority to contract with an ESC to provide those services. Impey v. Bd. of Educ., 142 N.J. 388, 392 (1995) (holding that the board of education did not violate the tenure rights of a speech correctionist when it abolished her position and entered into a contract with an ESC to provide those services). See also Anders v. Bd. of Educ. of the Twp. of Lakewood, Ocean County, Commissioner Decision No. 2-01 (Jan. 2, 2001) (holding that the board of education was permitted to abolish its in-district child study teams and enter into a contract with MOESC for those services, and that the board did not violate the tenure rights of the petitioners); Trigani v. Bd. of Educ. of the Borough of Monmouth Beach, Commissioner Decision No. 415-02 (Dec. 2, 2002) (holding that a school psychologist, social worker, and speech therapist were not unlawfully terminated and that the board of education had the authority to contract with MOESC for those services); Becton Ed. Ass'n v. Bd. of Educ. of Carlstadt-East Rutherford Regional Sch. Dist., Commissioner Decision No. 513-04 (Dec. 20, 2004), aff'd State Board of Education, Decision No. 3-05 (May 4, 2005) (holding that the board did not unlawfully terminate a school psychologist and learning disabilities teacher-consultant and that the board's contract with an ESC for those services was compliant with statutory and regulatory requirements).

In assessing the Board's authority to contract with MOESC for occupational and physical therapy services, the Commissioner looks to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-63, which allows ESCs to enter into contracts to provide special education services to public school districts. Furthermore, N.J.A.C. 6A:14-5.1(c) allows boards of education to contract with private providers for occupational and physical therapy services, and the only restriction is that the providers must be certified and licensed according to State statutes and rules.[2] There is no allegation that the private providers with whom MOESC contracted did not meet these requirements. Petitioners have argued that the Board entered into a "sham transaction" with MOESC to avoid regulatory requirements prohibiting boards of education from contracting with private providers. However, because the Board could have contracted directly with private occupational and physical therapy providers under N.J.A.C. 6A:14-5.1(c), the Commissioner concludes that there is no impropriety in the Board's decision to contract with MOESC, who in turn contracted with private providers.[3]

[2] Petitioners have argued that N.J.A.C. 6A:14-5.1(c)1.v, restricting a district's ability to enter into contracts with private providers, applies to contracts for occupational and physical therapy services. That provision clearly states that it applies to contracts for speech language therapy services, and the Commissioner declines to expand its meaning beyond its plain language.

Next, the Commissioner concludes that the claim of petitioner Caruso, the sole remaining speech-language therapist in the matter, must be dismissed. A board of education has virtually unlimited discretion in hiring or renewing non-tenured staff members absent constitutional constraints or legislatively-conferred rights. Dore v. Bedminster Twp. Bd. of Ed., 185 N.J. Super. 447, 456 (App. Div. 1982). As such, where non-tenured staff members challenge a board's decision to terminate their employment on the grounds that the reasons provided by the board are not supported by the facts, they are entitled to litigate that question only if the facts they allege, if true, would constitute a violation of constitutional or legislatively-conferred rights. Truncellito v. Bd. of Educ. of the Twp. of Lyndhurst, Commissioner Decision No. 271-19+, decided December 3, 2019, citing Guerriero v. Bd. of Ed. of the Borough of Glen Rock, decided by the State Board of Education February 5, 1986, aff'd Docket #A-3316-85T6 (App. Div. 1986). Petitioner Caruso has not alleged any violations of her constitutional or legislatively-conferred rights. Therefore, the Commissioner finds that the Board's non-renewal of Caruso was proper.[4]

---

[3] Petitioners' argument that the county superintendent did not approve of the Board's use of MOESC to contract with private occupational and physical therapy providers is unpersuasive. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-63, on which petitioners rely for this assertion, requires the county superintendent's approval of contracts between ESCs and private agencies. The Commission cannot conclude that the Board violated petitioners' tenure rights based on the actions of MOESC, which is not a party to this matter and over which the Board has no authority.

[4] This principle also applies as a secondary reason for the dismissal of the claim of petitioner Mitra, who was not tenured at the time of the RIF.

The final issue for the Commissioner to decide is whether the TEA may continue to pursue its claim regarding the validity of the Board's contract with MOESC for speech-language therapy services. In Long Beach Island Education Association and John Puljer v. Bd. of Educ. of the Long Beach Island Consolidated School District and Dawn Watson, Commissioner Decision No. 330-09 (Oct. 13, 2009), the Commissioner held that in the absence of underlying claims of infringement of tenure and seniority rights or other rights and responsibilities under the school laws, the Commissioner has no jurisdiction to adjudicate a claim that a board of education's contract for the provision of special education services violated New Jersey's special education regulations because such review falls exclusively within the purview of the Department's Office of Special Education Programs.[5] N.J.A.C. 6A:9-14.2.

While the question of the validity of the Board's contract in light of the special education regulations and the tenure and seniority rights of the Board's employees were intertwined at the time the petition was filed, jurisdiction is an ongoing question and the Commissioner concludes that it is appropriate to assess her jurisdiction based on the current posture of the case. Here, with the dismissal of petitioner Caruso's claim, there is no active claim that the Board has violated the tenure or seniority rights afforded to any speech-language therapist. If the Commissioner allowed the TEA's claim regarding speech-language therapy services to proceed and that claim was ultimately successful, there is no relief that the Commissioner can order. The record demonstrates that ten speech-language therapists were subject to a RIF. One of the therapists never joined in this matter, and of the remaining nine, eight have withdrawn their claims during the pendency of this proceeding. Petitioner Caruso's claim has been dismissed for the reasons stated herein. Therefore, there are no speech-language therapists affected by the RIF whose tenure interests the TEA can represent.[6]

Furthermore, the only possible outcome of permitting the TEA's claim to proceed would be a ruling on the validity of the Board's contract with MOESC – a ruling that could only be rendered with regard to the regulations governing the provision of special education and related services. Accordingly, the Commissioner lacks jurisdiction to determine whether and how the limitation on a board of education's ability to contract with private providers for speech-language therapy services is applicable to the Board's contract with MOESC, and whether that contract is valid.

Accordingly, the Board's motion for summary decision is granted and the petition is hereby dismissed.

IT IS SO ORDERED.[7]

BEFORE JEFF S. MASIN, ALJ (Ret., on recall):

This contested case involves a limited challenge by the Trenton Education Association and several of its members to a reduction in force (RIF) instituted by the Trenton Board of Education in the spring of 2016, which, according to the Board, resulted in the reduction of 236 employees. The instant matter addresses not that large group, but instead several petitioners who lost their positions as speech/language, physical or occupational therapists who provided mandatory therapeutic services to special education students in the District. The Board contends that it lawfully abolished these positions in good faith for economic reasons. The petitioners, who argue that the Board had other choices for saving money rather than riffing their positions, also argue that when the Board eliminated their positions it knew that its intended plan for continuing to provide these legally-mandated speech/language, physical and occupational therapy involved the Board's plan to enter into a contract with the Monmouth-Ocean Educational Services Commission (MOESC). Further, the Board acknowledged in that contract that in order to fill the needed positions and provide adequate services MOESC would be not be utilizing employees of the MOESC, but instead independent contractors, thus using contracts with private agencies to provide the services. The petitioners contend that under applicable law the local Board of Education was itself barred by N.J.A.C. 6A:14-5.1(c) from engaging private contractors to provide these services, unless, as the regulation provides, the District was unable to provide such services through in-district employees, and that the contractual arrangement to obtain such private contractors to work in the District's schools through the MOESC contract was illegal. In response, the Board contends that its arrangement with the MOESC conformed with clear legal authority, codified in N.J.S.A 18A:6-63, which allows local districts to contract with Educational Services Commissions (ESC) for the provision of services and additionally permits such ESCs to contract with private agencies to provide such services. It contends that authorization permitted the use of such private agencies within the local district. In addition, it points to N.J.A.C. 6A:14-5.11, which requires that districts either "employ or contract" for speech-language specialists and other school personnel and authorizes this to be accomplished via "joint agreements" with ESCs. Each party moves for summary decision, as authorized by N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5.

The Petition of Appeal was filed on July 6, 2016. Originally it listed fifteen individual petitioners, in addition to the Education Association. According to information supplied recently by the Board, sixteen therapists were noticed that their positions would be abolished as of July 1, 2016. One speech/ language therapist resigned on May 11, 2016, and was not included among the petitioners. From the remaining fifteen noticed, one speech/language therapist, Bernadette Piscopo, and one occupational therapist, Inger Morin, each retired as of July 1, 2016. It is apparent that these two were included amongst those who received notices that their positions would be riffed as of July 1. Thus, eight speech/language therapists, three occupational therapists and one physical therapist, were noticed and then became petitioners. However, as of the date of this opinion, besides the Association, there are only five remaining individual petitioners. These are occupational therapists Ben Kenion and Michele Fekete, each tenured, and Debjit Mitra, non-tenured; Wendy Lockhart, a tenured physical therapist, and Cheryl Caruso, a non-tenured speech language therapist.

The several therapists received notice on April 25, 2016, that they were to be riffed, effective at the end of the 2015-2016 school year, June 30, 2016. Their petition sought a finding that their tenure rights had been violated by their RIF; that they were entitled to employment in their full-time therapist capacities, that they be reinstated retroactive to July 1, 2016, that the Board make them whole for their losses attributable to the unlawful RIF, and that the Board make them aware of their seniority and reemployment rights, where applicable, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12, "if the Board of Education subsequently determines to end its outsourcing of Therapists to provide state-mandated 'related services' and decides to either use 'in-district' Therapists again, and for such other relief as the Commissioner deems just and appropriate."

After the Board filed an answer to the petition, the contested case was transferred to the Office of Administrative Law. Discovery disputes were managed by the then assigned administrative law judge. On April 15, 2019, the Board moved for summary decision, as permitted by N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5. The petitioners responded on June 21, 2019, cross-moving for summary decision. The Board replied on August 14, 2019. The contested case was transferred to this judge, retired and serving on recall, on June 25, 2019. Oral argument was held on October 30, 2019, at which time the record concerning the cross-motions closed. However, due to the need for further information with which to assess the cross-motions, the record was reopened. Information sought by the judge was supplied by letters received from the Board and petitioners, respectively, on February 20 and March 2, 2020. The record concerning the motion then re-closed. Subsequent discussions concerning a possible settlement resulted in a request to delay issuance of this Order. However, on May 15, 2020, the judge was informed that the Order should proceed.

In order to fully understand the arguments concerning the cross-motions, it is necessary to review certain undisputed facts. Initially, the Board contends that in the spring of 2016, it faced a clear economic crisis. It notes the minutes of its March 21, 2016 meeting, where the proposed budget for the 2016-2017 school year was discussed and a 5.9 million-dollar shortfall identified. Seeking to deal with this situation, the Board riffed hundreds of employees. The Board agrees that even after abolishing the positions of the riffed petitioners, it was not relieved of its legal duty to provide the legally-mandated therapeutic services of speech/language, occupational and physical therapy that the petitioners had previously provided. In order to continue to do so, the Board entered into a contract with the Monmouth-Ocean Educational Services Commission under which the ESC was to provide the services. The language of the contract affirms the petitioners' argument that the Board knew at the time that it entered into this agreement that the ESC did not have therapists in its own employ and thus would of necessity have to contract with outside, private vendors to provide the therapy services that were to be delivered in the Trenton schools.[1] According to the Board's recent letter, as of July 1, 2016, the first day that the riffed employees were no longer on the Board's payroll, the MOESC contract was providing five occupational therapists, two physical therapists and seven speech/language therapists. As the parties agree, after the date the petitioners filed their petition, it became clear that the arrangement that the Board made with the ESC had not produced sufficient personnel needed to provide the level of services necessary to meet the demands of the Trenton school population. As acknowledged by the Board and as noted in the Certification provided by Lester Richens, the appointee of the Commissioner of Education as the State Monitor for the Trenton Board of Education during the 2015-2016 school year and thereafter, at the Board's October 24, 2016, meeting it was announced that the ESC "would not be able to provide a sufficient number of speech therapists." As Richens then noted, and as counsel confirmed at oral argument, the Board then recalled three of the riffed speech/language therapists to supplement the services being provided by the ESC's private contractors, thus bringing to ten the number of speech/language therapists working in the District.[2] However, at that same Board meeting, Richens noted that in addition to the recall of these three therapists, the Board was "also contracting out for another group to come and provide a service so we can get the compensatory time in."[3] Thus, as the Board does not dispute, as of at least October 24, 2016, the District, while utilizing both recalled, in-district personnel and MOESC-provided contractors, was seeking to provide at least a portion of the mandated therapy services by entering into its own direct contract with outside vendors, rather than through additional recalls of its own employees. In its recent letter, the Board appears to seek to clarify the situation existing after the recall of the three speech/language therapists, explaining that after the recall it had "resolved the deficiency," however, Richens' statement at the time of the recall of these three does not exactly tally with this statement. Nevertheless, as explained by the Board in response to my request for additional information, [2] One of the three recalled speech/language therapists was Janice Phillips. She retired in June 2018. According to counsel for the petitioners, her position was not filled by a "District employed" Therapist.

[3] Richens also notes that he was "aware" that the Board had entered into the contract with the MOESC dated June 28, 2016, and that pursuant to that agreement, the MOESC was "going to utilize independent contractors for these services." Richens' Certification is silent as to any "approval" that he may have granted for such an arrangement. As will be discussed below, the Board acknowledges it did not obtain any approval for either the June contractual arrangement of the later October arrangements from the county superintendent, but it notes Richens' role as the Commissioner's appointed monitor for the Trenton District.

> sometime thereafter in the 2016-2017 school year, a MOESC speech language pathologist resigned. As such, Kaleidoscope was asked to provide two part-time speech language pathologists. One started in mid-April and worked for approximately 7 weeks in the spring of 2017. The other worked approximately 4 weeks from the end of May through the remainder of the school year.

Kaleidoscope is a private contractor, not associated with the MOESC's efforts to fulfill the agreement that the Commission had with the Board.

The record does not contain any similar information about any action by the Board to recall physical or occupational therapists after July 1, 2016.

Based upon this, it appears that the Board claims that the need for speech/language therapy in the District after July 1, 2016, was fully met by the utilization of ten speech/language therapists, that number made up of the seven MOESC-procured therapists, the recalled three in-house therapists, and eventually, the substitution of two part-time Kaleidoscope personnel for the resigned MOESC therapist.

Although their petition was filed immediately after the effective date of the RIF, the petitioners contend in their briefs that the Board has continued to fail to provide adequate services ever since the spring 2016 reduction.

The Legal Framework

Several relevant statutes and regulations must be considered in assessing these motions. Initially, the Tenure Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9, addresses the right of a board of education to reduce teaching staff, including tenured employees.

> Nothing in this title or any other law relating to tenure of service shall be held to limit the right of any board of education to reduce the number of teaching staff members, employed in the district whenever, in the judgment of the board, it is advisable to abolish any such positions for reasons of economy or because of reduction in the > number of pupils or of change in the administrative or supervisory organization of the district or for other good cause upon compliance with the provisions of this article.

However, N.J.A.C. 6A:14-5.1(c) mandates that boards provide certain therapeutic services for students. The regulation provides specific directions and limitations as to the manner in which the services of these therapists may be procured.

> (a) Each district board of education, independently or through joint agreements, shall employ or contract with child study teams as set forth in N.J.A.C. 6A:14-3.1(b), speech correctionists or speech-language specialists and other school personnel in numbers sufficient to ensure provision of required programs and services pursuant to this chapter.

For the related services listed in (c)1iii and v below, approved private schools for students with disabilities may contract with private clinics and agencies approved by the Department of Education, private professional practitioners who are certified and licensed according to State statutes and rules, and agencies or programs that are certified, approved or licensed by the Department of Human Services or by the Department of Health to provide counseling or mental health services. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-63 addresses the authority of ESCs. It provides that such > b. Commissions may enter into contracts with other public and private agencies for the provision of approved services and programs to participating public school districts and nonpublic schools. These contractual arrangements shall conform to rules and regulations of the State Board of Education and be approved by the county superintendent or superintendents, as the case may be.

As noted the remaining individual petitioners include both tenured and non-tenured personnel. And of these, only one is a speech/language therapist, and she was non-tenured. As a general rule, a school board may dismiss a non-tenured employee for practically any reason. Unlike a tenured employee, the Board need not have good cause for such a dismissal, or failure to renew a nontenured employees' contract for another school year.

Parties' Contentions

In moving for summary decision, the Board argues that in the face of a substantial deficit clearly identified at its March meeting, it had to take significant steps to economize. Thus, for reasons directly involving this economic necessity, it exercised its authority to reduce force, as allowed under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9, in order to abolish over 200 positions. As it faced a legitimate economic crisis, and as the existence of that economic motivation is not in dispute, the petitioners have no basis for asserting the impropriety of the reduction in force affecting their positions. Further, as the Board exercised its legal right to enter into a contract with the MOESC, which had the legal authority to contract with private contractors to provide the services needed by Trenton, its means of providing those services after the RIF was lawful. As the petitioners' petition only asserts the impropriety of the reduction, the Board's motion must be granted and the petition must be dismissed.

The petitioners do not appear to directly dispute that the Board had an economic problem at the time that it considered and decided to reduce the force. The Education Association does not here object to the reduction of positions held by other than these therapists, that is, those originally included in the petition. However, in their brief and arguments, the petitioners advert to the idea that the Board could have made up its shortfall, or at least that part that purportedly required the abolition of their particular positions, by other reductions, such as in the administrative ranks of the District. But it appears that the main thrust of the petitioners' arguments do not challenge that the Board faced an economic crunch. Instead, they contend that since the arrangement that the Board sought to utilize to provide the required services involved an illegal attempt to use private contractors as therapists within the District's schools, the abolition of the petitioners' positions could not be carried out through such a scheme. In effect, if the services rendered by those whose positions were abolished were not legally provided subsequent to the RIF, then, as the services could not themselves be abolished, the initial attempt to abolish the positions must be deemed to have failed and the positions must be deemed to have remained open. In such case, the Board was then legally required to offer the positions to the tenured employees who had been riffed, in accordance with their seniority for such positions. If the Board's attempt to fill these positions through its contract with the ESC violated the law, then summary decision is warranted for the petitioners.

One of the petitioners' contentions is that when the Board noticed them that their positions were to be abolished, it did not provide any specific economic justification for the action. It did not provide any analysis of the costs, direct or indirect, of the continued employment of the petitioners as against the costs associated with the plan to provide the services through the ESC, or any other such plan. Thus, it baldly claimed an economic motivation, without any details to demonstrate that the reduction in force of these positions would actually save money. At oral argument, counsel for the petitioners conceded that he was not aware of any statute, rule or caselaw that specifically required such information to be provided at the time when employees are noticed of a reduction in force. However, he points to caselaw which he asserts at least suggests such a necessary and also supports the propriety of considering the legality of a Board's plan to replace the services provided by riffed employees who provided mandated services and the right of such employees to a remedy if that plan is found to be illegitimate.

McKenna v. Board of Education of the Andover Regional High School District, Sussex County, an unpublished and therefore not binding decision of the Appellate Division, 2013 N.J. Super. Unpub. Lexis 435, involved two tenured members of the District's Child Study Team (CST) who challenged the abolition of their positions in a reduction in force justified as a cost-saving measure. In lieu of the employment of these two, the Board intended to arrange for CST services provided by the Sussex County Educational Services Commission. One of the employees resigned when she learned of the plan. The other employee did not resign. A month after the Board authorized the RIF, it authorized the District's superintendent to enter into a contract with the ESC to provide CST services. The Board later replied to a request from the appellant's labor union for details of the Board's staffing plan, and the response was that the Board intended to provide the CST services through "both employees of the SCESC" and also by "third party consultants." The petitioners then filed a verified petition with the Commissioner of Education, claiming that the Board's decision to eliminate their positions violated their tenure rights. They contended that the Board's plan to enter into an agreement with the ESC was "arbitrary, capricious and/or unreasonable" and violated N.J.S.A. 18A:46-5.1 and N.J.A.C. 6A:14-3.1.

The Board defended the legality of its action as cost-saving, and the legality of the shared-service arrangement with the ESC. Additionally, it challenged the petitioners' standing to complain about its action. The administrative law judge who heard the contested case dismissed the petitioner's challenge solely on the basis of standing. The Commissioner adopted that decision. On appeal, the Appellate Division agreed that the petitioner who had resigned lacked standing and dismissed that challenge. However, it reversed as to the remaining petitioner, McKenna, finding that she had standing and remanded the case for consideration on the merits.

In its analysis of the standing question, the court noted that the petitioners acknowledged that the Board's abolition of the CST "in a vacuum would not be actionable." However, given what they argued was an illegal arrangement to replace the CST, their "vested rights as tenured educators" were sufficient to give them legal standing to challenge the arrangement. The ALJ and Commissioner had assumed that any "proven defects in the Agreement between the Board and the SCESC could be cured in a manner that would not involve the possible reinstitution of the CST unit in the school district." But the court found "[T]hat conclusive assumption . . . unwarranted."

> Assuming, for the sake of argument, that it was shown that . . . the Agreement with the SCESC does not, in fact, save the district money, or that the Board otherwise lacked "good cause" to displace the in-house program, the continued legal viability of the arrangement might be suspect . . .
>
> Moreover, if it were shown that the Agreement's reliance upon the services of private contractors does not fully comply with applicable statutes or regulations, there is no guarantee that the SCESC would be able to achieve such compliance, or could do so without raising the contractual charges to the Board. There is also no assurance that the SCESC would be willing to renegotiate the terms of the Agreement.
>
> Depending upon how these or other scenarios of a nullified Agreement would unfold, it is entirely conceivable that the Board might consider reinstating its in-house CST.

> We are mindful of the "managerial prerogative[s]" of a school districts to reduce its teacher personnel . . . Even so, that does no it mean that the district can fire its tenured staff and replace the CST with what is proven to be an illegal arrangement.

The Board argues that since McKenna only decided the standing issue and did not rule on the merits of Ms. McKenna's claims, and as the decision is unpublished and therefore not precedential, it has no bearing here. But the case does offer the persuasive argument that if a board, having reduced staff who provided mandated services for purported economic reasons, resorts to arguably unlawful means in order to continue to provide such mandated services, then the legality of the Board's arrangements can be considered to determine if the replaced employees may have claims to the positions necessary to provide those services in a lawful manner. In other words, if a board's plan to economize involves unlawful action, such action cannot be sustained even in the face of the economics involved.

Here, the undisputed facts are that the Board riffed these petitioners and proposed to replace their part in providing mandatory services by means of a contract with the MOESC. As events developed, even if that initial contractual arrangement may have been legal, at least in regard to one of the forms of therapeutic services these petitioners provided, the MOESC was unable to provide adequate replacements, providing the Board with only seven speech/language therapists, thereby necessitating the Board's recall of three tenured, riffed speech/language therapists. And then, when the Board was faced with the resignation of one of the MOESC-provided speech/language therapists, the Board resorted to contracting directly with Kaleidoscope, an outside, private contractor, in order to supplement the services of remaining MOESC-contracted private providers and the newly-recalled tenured employees, a plan much akin to the one the Board utilized in McKenna. It can be argued that both the first plan, the MOESC contract, and the second plan, the direct contracting with outside speech/language contractors, involved the Board in unlawful actions. If that is the case, it can then be argued that the Board, having the legal obligation to adequately provide the therapeutic services, had to reinstate the abolished positions, or at least some of them, in order to lawfully service its students. (It may be that the Board could find another, legally secure plan that did not necessitate reinstitution of abolished positions, but that is purely speculative). And, as the tenured petitioners had the legal right under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12 to be placed on a preferential rehiring list, the Board would then have been obligated to offer some, or all, of the petitioners those reinstated positions.

The Board contends that it is entitled to summary decision simply due to the essentially undisputed existence of a large economic problem which underlay the decision to RIF these employees, a reduction thus supported by N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9. Indeed, if the arrangement with the MOESC arrangement is deemed lawful, then, in absence of any meaningful challenge to the existence of a legitimate economic motivation, summary decision would result in favor of the Board, at least regarding the initial decision to RIF. The decision to resort to its own contracting with the private contractor, Kaleidoscope, to fill the position vacated by the resigning MOESC contract therapist may, however, present a separate problem.

The authority of a school board to manage its staff and to reduce staff in the face of economic necessity is well-understood. Impey v. Board of Education, 142 N.J. 388 (1995); In re Maywood Board of Education, 168 N.J. Super. 45, 55 (App. Div. 1979). Here, of course, unlike with other discretionary services that the Board offers to its students, even if the economics of a reduction of these therapist positions could play a positive part in meeting the District's economic problems, the services they provided had to continue. As such, while the overall existence of an economic motivation for the significant reductions-in-staff the Board instituted is undisputed, the legality of the means employed by the Board to continue to provide these mandatory services is clearly in dispute.

Thus, if the petitioners establish that the Board's arrangements for continued therapeutic services after the RIF were and continue to be unlawful, in whole or in part, summary decision establishing that the Board improperly riffed these employees would lie. That would lead to a determination that the Board had to reestablish on its rolls the riffed positions, and at least some, if not all, of the tenured employees would be entitled to restoration. Alternatively, if the Board's initial arrangement with the ESC was lawful, given its failure to adequately cover the District's needs through that arrangement, once the Board was aware of this shortfall and itself resorted to direct private contracting, in the absence of another lawful means of covering the deficit in services, the Board would have been required to reestablish sufficient positions to cover the deficit, and to offer the positions to these tenured petitioners in the respective specialties and in the order of their seniority.

Discussion

A motion for summary decision can only be granted where the affidavits, certifications, and other evidential materials produced by the parties presenting and opposing the motions demonstrate that there are no genuine disputes of material facts needed to allow the resolution of the legal issues pertinent to the case. The proofs must be considered in light of the applicable legal standards and burdens of proof and with the opponent of the motion given the benefit of all reasonable inferences arising from the evidence. Brill v. Guardian Life Ins. Co. Of America, 142 N.J. 520, 540 (1995). Here, each party believes that it is entitled to summary decision.

The petition filed in July 2016 challenged the legality of the Board's RIF of fifteen therapists. It sought a determination that the Board's actions to provide mandatory services previously performed by these therapists involved an illegal use of private contractors in the District's schools, illegal despite the Board's use of the MOESC arrangement as the means to secure these private providers. No amended petition has been filed since July 2016.

Fundamentally, the petitioners argue that the Board's arrangement with the MOESC was, as a matter of law, illegal, as it violated state statute and regulation. On the other hand, the Board contends it acted legally, employing a strategy that was well within the authority it and the MOESC each had under the law. With regard to the RIF itself and the Board's arrangement with the MOESC, I FIND that the facts concerning the existence of a serious budget gap for the Board, of the RIF, and of the arrangement with the MOESC, are not in dispute. While the petition filed in July did not of course address anything that occurred subsequent to its filing, I also FIND that to the extent relevant to the determination of the legal issues cognizable here, the subsequent determination by the Board that additional resources were necessary to meet the need for speech/language services, the actions taken in October 2016 to recall three riffed employees and later, to replace one speech/language therapist through a contract with Kaleidoscope are not in issue.

Faced as it was with a significant financial dilemma, the Board might have first thought that it could abolish positions held by tenured and non-tenured personnel and directly contract for less costly private contractors as replacements. However, as it at least initially concedes,[4] it could not directly contract for outside personnel to perform speech/language therapy services, as N.J.A.C. 6A:14-5.1(c) 1.v. clearly prohibits public school districts from such contracting with private contractors for such services, with a caveat that such is prohibited "unless the public school district is unable to hire sufficient staff to provide the service." Presumably aware of this clear regulatory prohibition against its own ability to enter into such contracts, and apparently not of a mind in the spring of 2016 to contend that if push came to shove it could not find a means to hire sufficient numbers of speech therapists and thus could as of that time directly contracted with outside vendors, the Board instead attempted to achieve replacement of the riffed speech/ language therapists' mandatory services through the vehicle of an entity that did have the general legal authority to contract with private vendors. It cannot be disputed that on its face, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-63 b. provides such authority to the MOESC, since "Commissions may enter into contracts with other public and private agencies for the provision of approved services and programs to participating public school districts and nonpublic schools." While, as noted in Attorney General's Formal Opinion No. 1-1981, [4]As will be noted, while this concession seems to relate at least to the Board's understanding of its choices in the spring of 2016 when it needed to furnish services provided by the newly-riffed therapists, at least at oral argument, it seems to be claiming that it could contract directly for such private services once its attempt to fully furnish necessary services through the vehicle of the MOESC proved inadequate.

initially this statute did not authorize such contracting with "private agencies", since the issuance of that opinion the statute has been amended and now provides ESCs with such authority. Thus, the Board argues its initial attempt to provide these services involved no breach of the limits of its own authority and a wholly legitimate process that vitiates any concern arising under the McKenna rationale. The statute's clear language authorizes the ESC to contract with both school districts and with private agencies, and the direct language of the statute must govern. As such, it is entitled to summary decision and the petitioners' motion should therefore be denied and their petition dismissed. However, the question arises as to whether the local Board could legally use the ESCs' acknowledged statutory contracting authority to obtain private contractors' services in its district schools for a specific set of mandated therapy services that it could not, in most instances, itself contract for under equally clear and unambiguous language in N.J.A.C. 6A:14-5.1(c) 1.v.

Notably, the second sentence of N.J.S.A. 18A:63 b. provides a limitation on the ESC's authority and a caution that, despite the clear general authorizing language, that authority must be understood and implemented in conformity with other provisions of law, including non-statutory provisions in the form of State Board rules and regulations. It cautions that "These contractual arrangements [that is, those authorized by the subpart's first sentence] shall conform to rules and regulations of the State Board of Education and be approved by the county superintendent or superintendents, as the case may be." And N.J.A.C. 6A:14-5.1(c) 1.v. is a "rule and regulation of the State Board of Education." The question then is why would it be that, with only a limited exception, a local district that cannot obtain speech/language specialist services through private agencies to provide these services in the district's schools by its own contracting authority should be able to do so through the more general authority granted to the ESC. And, in addition to this basic question of statutory authority, the Board concedes, with a caveat explained below, that, even if the law would allow its action, it did not obtain approval from the county superintendent for the arrangement proposed by the contract.[5]

[5] The Board notes that State Monitor Richens was clearly aware of both the ESC arrangement and the subsequent direct Board private contract arrangement to supplement the inadequate resources produced by the ESC contract. Richens acknowledges this in his Certification. He never specifically says that he approved these, and the Board may be understood to see his lack of any stated objection as approval. The

It must be assumed that the State Board had reasons for generally prohibiting such private contractor arrangements for speech/language services for public school students, and in the absence of any indication in the amendment to the ESC's authority that specifically addresses such a defined area, the State Board's rule must be given precedence over the more general authority, as the means to achieve conformity between these legal standards. As such, I CONCLUDE that unless the Board could demonstrate its inability to hire "sufficient staff," that the arrangement with the MOESC was an invalid means for the Trenton Board to provide the services of the speech/language therapists for its students. However, as for the provision of occupational and physical therapy, it must be noted that the only limitation stated in N.J.A.C. 6A:14-5.1(c)iii with regard to the ability of a board to contract for these services relates to certain supervisory requirements and, therefore, I CONCLUDE that the Board's utilization of the MOESC to arrange for the provision of these therapies after July 1, 2016, did not violate that rule and was a lawful action by the Board in conformity with its authority, as well as that of the MOESC.

As noted, the petition does not address actions subsequent to July 2016. However, those events do provide useful information concerning the context of the RIF and the MOESC arrangement. When that arrangement failed to provide adequate speech/language specialist services to meet the District's needs, even eventually after the recall of three of the riffed speech therapists, the Board implemented another scheme, involving its own direct contracting with a private provider, to supplement the services obtained through the ESC under that unlawful arrangement. Again, unless the exception was established, that arrangement was also invalid. Thus, the picture presented is of a Board first utilizing a potentially unlawful "end run" arrangement with the ESC, in practical violation of the specific prohibition against the provision of the District contracting regulation refers to the need for approval of ESC contracting arrangements as requiring approval from the county superintendent and does not mention a state monitor. It also does not provide that the county superintendent could approve an arrangement that otherwise violated existing statutes. No power to waive otherwise applicable statutes or regulations is mentioned regarding such an approval. Neither is it suggested that the state monitor had such power. If such authority did exist, it would seem that an approval involving any such waiver would be in writing, or at the very least given in a verbal statement at a Board meeting, and would not simply be implied by a lack of any expressed disapproval.

speech/language specialist services with private contractors, and then resorting to a direct contracting arrangement that again was potentially prohibited. The Board, by its own admission, found that in order to provide what it deemed sufficient speech/language services for its students, it needed ten therapists. During the 2016-2017 school year, this number was achieved first through the use of seven MOESC contractors and three later-recalled in-district staff, and then by six MOESC contractors, three in-district recalled staff and two part-time Kaleidoscope-provided private contractors. As of July 1, 2016, there were nine riffed speech/language therapists. Three were recalled, apparently in October 2016. Clearly, given the illegal nature of the MOESC arrangement, all nine should been recalled as of July 1. Indeed, since the arrangement for their replacement was illegal, their RIF was not a valid act on the Board's part and, in the absence of a lawful means of providing the mandatory services, they could not have their positions abolished.

This said, it is recognized that there is an exception to the prohibition against a Board directly contracting for speech/language specialist services with private providers. It may not do so "unless the public-school district is unable to hire sufficient staff to provide the service." This language does not identify the possible causes of the District's inability to hire sufficient staff. It could be that after a diligent search, the District could not achieve the hiring of sufficient qualified therapists. Or, perhaps, the inability spoken of could be due to serious financial reasons. Here, the Board has not suggested that it could not identify and hire sufficient staff, as it had such personnel on board prior to the RIF. Thus, the Board's defense to why its actions did not violate the law must rest on a claim that it could not hire sufficient staff due because it did not have the money to do so.

The Board points to the general principal that its acts are presumed to be lawful, and thus its RIF, based upon economic difficulties recognized in statute as permitting reductions in staff, including of tenured employees, must be presumed lawful. However, given that the State Board regulation provides only this limited exception for direct local Board private contracting for speech/language services where the Board is "unable to hire sufficient staff to provide the service," it seems that more than a mere identification of a general budget shortfall is needed before it can be concluded that the Board is so limited in its options that it cannot hire, or, in this scenario presumably retain, sufficient speech/language therapy staff, and can therefore rely on the exception. At oral argument, Board counsel, attempting to justify why the Board could directly contract after the failure of the ESC contract to deliver adequate speech/language staffing, raised the claim that it was "impossible" for the District to otherwise meet its needs. This presumably means that it was economically impossible "to hire sufficient staff." And certainly, the Board's undisputed evidence does establish the existence of a budget shortfall that at least at this stage can be the implied basis for a claim of such inability to "hire." But the record does not contain any evidence that seeks to demonstrate that, faced with the budget gap and the mandatory duty to deliver speech/language therapy services, the Board could not have found a means to retain these therapists. Indeed, when it saw that the staffing provided through the MOESC arrangement was insufficient, it apparently found a way to recall three of the riffed therapists. And, as noted, the union has argued that the Board could have made other choices in how to meet the budget problem without having to RIF those providing mandated related services. Thus, while the details of the dispute over the budget possibilities and choices have not been spelled out in detail, the existence of a material dispute over the necessity of the RIF of these personnel is established.

The petitioners bear the ultimate burden of establishing the illegality of the reduction in force as it affected them. While the Board's freedom to manage it staffing needs is certainly well-understood, nevertheless, since the Board's fundamental defense to the petition has been based upon the legality of its arrangement with the MOESC, without specifically acknowledging that it must or that it could meet the "inability" exception, it is fair to allow the Board to seek to demonstrate that status, if it chooses to do so. Since the Board effectively relies upon an exception to the general prohibition of its contracting for private providers, it is the Board's burden to demonstrate that inability. If it does so, the petitioners will fail to meet their ultimate burden of proof; if the Board fails to establish that its actions qualify under the exception, the petitioners will meet their burden. As such, while the petitioners' motion for summary decision establishes that without qualifying under the exception, the Board's action was illegal, if the Board can successfully show that it was "unable to hire sufficient staff" due to its economic situation, it may yet prevail.

Finally, it must be noted that to the extent this order has determined certain applicable legal principles, the status of the several remaining petitioners going forward varies. The Education Association remains a viable petitioner, but the physical and occupational therapists' claims are extinguished by the determination that in the face of an undisputed financial crisis, the Board acted legally when it abolished their positions. As for the remaining non-tenured speech/language therapist, as the Board is largely unrestricted in its decision not to renew its association with the therapist, the only conceivable way in which Ms. Caruso might have any recourse against the Board would be if the Board were to fail to establish that it could not obtain speech/language therapy services and therefore failed to prove that it was entitled to use the exception permitting it to obtain private therapist through the MOESC arrangement. Nevertheless, if it failed to prove this, in such a scenario the right to fill the necessary positions would have been available for those with tenure, and not for an untenured employee with no tenure protections. As such, Ms. Caruso has no real claim for relief.

Given these considerations, as the case moves forward, the sole remaining viable petitioner is the Education Association itself. As such, the Board is entitled to summary decision regarding the claims of the remaining individual petitioners. The contested cases of petitioners Caruso, Lockhart, Kenyon, Mitra and Fekete are DISMISSED. The Association's continued claim will be severed from the other remaining petitioners' claim. In respect to its claim pertaining to the Board's conduct, vis-a-vis the tenured speech/language therapists, the cross-motions for summary decision must be DENIED.

The parties and judge have agreed that given the legal conclusions reached, the age of the matter and the expense and time needed for further proceedings, it would be in the best interests of the parties and the most efficient means of expeditiously resolving the entire case and the legal ramifications for similar parties going forward, for this order to be reviewed at this time by the Commissioner. Therefore, this order granting partial summary decision is being submitted under N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(e) for immediate review. This recommended order may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION who by law is authorized to make the final decision in this matter. If the COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION does not adopt, modify or reject this order within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended order shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this order was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION ,marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

New Jersey Commissioner of Education

Final Decision

James J. Lynch,

Complainant,

v.

Michael Skowronski, East Greenwich Township Board of Education, Gloucester County,

Appellant.

This matter involves an appeal of the School Ethics Commission's (Commission) May 19, 2020 decision that appellant Michael Skowronski, a member of the East Greenwich Township Board of Education (Board), violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(g) of the Code of Ethics for School Board Members (Code) when he sent an email to his fellow Board members that included confidential information and, due to the use of the "reply all" function, copied a member of the public on the email. Having carefully reviewed the Commission's decision and the record in its entirety, the Commissioner finds that the Commission's decision is supported by sufficient, credible evidence, and that appellant failed to establish that the decision is arbitrary, capricious, or contrary to law. N.J.A.C. 6A:4-1.1(a).

The complaint in this matter alleged that appellant violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(a) and N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(g) when he emailed confidential information to a parent of students in the district, who was also employed by the Board as a teacher. The parent had made a complaint against Dr. James Lynch, who was the district's superintendent. The Board president emailed the parent and the members of the Board, expressing support for Dr. Lynch. Appellant replied to the email, raising issues for his fellow Board members to consider related to the handling of the parent's complaint; appellant used the "reply all" function, such that the parent also received the email.

The Commission dismissed the allegation that appellant violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(a) and transmitted the remainder of the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL). Following a hearing, the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) concluded that Dr. Lynch failed to prove that appellant violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(g). In its May 19, 2020, decision, the Commission adopted the ALJ's factual findings but rejected his legal conclusions. The Commission found that Appellant violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(g) and recommended a penalty of reprimand.

In his appeal and exceptions, appellant argues that the Commission erroneously concluded that the information in the email was confidential. According to appellant, neither Dr. Lynch nor the Commission identified any authority making the disclosed information confidential. Appellant contends that nothing in the email disclosed anything about the Board's discussion of the parent's complaint during executive session, and, even if it had, that information was no longer confidential because the Board had previously disclosed it to the parent, thereby waiving any privilege. Furthermore, appellant argues that the email did not contain any opinion, analysis, or even comment on the parent's complaint. Appellant notes that the Open Public Meetings Act, N.J.S.A. 10:4-6 et seq., and its interpreting case law hold that discussions and deliberations are open to the public unless an exception applies – there is no blanket confidentiality. Additionally, appellant asserts that a Board member is entitled to express an opinion disagreeing with the actions of the Board. Appellant disagrees that the email constituted a personnel discussion about Dr. Lynch, and he reiterates that personnel discussions are not under a blanket rule of confidentiality. Appellant also contends that the plain language of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(g) requires that the disclosure "needlessly injure individuals or the schools" and that no such injury was proven.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurs with the Commission's conclusion that the appellant violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(g). While appellant focuses his argument on the fact that the information contained in the email did not derive from executive session, nothing in the statute or regulation requires that the information derive from executive session in order to be confidential.[1] The plain language of the regulation provides that a violation occurs when "information that was not public under any laws, regulations or court orders of this State, or information that was otherwise confidential in accordance with board policies, procedures or practices" is disclosed. N.J.A.C. 6A:28-6.4(a)(7).

In analyzing the confidentiality of the information contained in appellant's email, the Commissioner finds the case law surrounding the deliberative process privilege to be instructive. The deliberative process privilege may be invoked to protect information or documents from disclosure when "the information sought is part of the process leading to formulation of an agency's policy decision" and it has the "ability to reflect or to expose the deliberative aspects of that process." Educ. Law Ctr. v. N.J. Dep't of Educ., 198 N.J. 274, 295 (2009). Appellant's email bears all the hallmarks of deliberative material. First, it is pre-

[1] The ALJ also incorrectly focused on the issue of closed session. Specifically, the ALJ found that appellant's statement that the Board should be nervous about safety, discrimination, and harassment complaints did not reference any discussions by the Board in closed session, and thus concluded that the information was not confidential. The ALJ did not consider other ways in which that information might be confidential.

decisional. See id. at 286. The Board had just received an email from a parent regarding a complaint against Dr. Lynch and, other than the pleasantry of thanking the parent for her email, the Board had not yet decided how to respond. Second, appellant's email is deliberative in nature. See id. at 295. Appellant argues that his email did not contain any opinion, analysis, or comment other than identifying the parent's complaints, but the Commissioner does not find this argument to be persuasive. Appellant expressed concern that mishandling the complaint could put the Board and its stakeholders at risk, recommended that the Board issue a Rice notice, and opined on the Board's fiduciary responsibilities. As the Commission correctly concluded, these types of tentative thoughts, suggestions, and questions are part and parcel of the Board's overall deliberative process.

Furthermore, disclosure of such material needlessly injures the schools.[2] The deliberative process privilege is intended to benefit the public by allowing for candor in internal deliberations, which improves the decision-making process. Id. at 286. The exposure of the Board's decision-making process negatively impacts that process. This factor alone is sufficient to demonstrate the requisite injury. Moreover, following her receipt of the email, the parent who had filed the complaint was privy to appellant's opinion that the Board had possible legal exposure, information that could have influenced her actions moving forward – another needless injury.

The Commissioner also concurs with the Commission that a reprimand is the appropriate penalty. In Fleres v. Zhong, (SEC Dkt. No. C17-18, May 2, 2019), the Commission

[2] The Commission's decision indicates that N.J.A.C. 6A:28-6.4(a)(7) does not require proof of a specific level of injury, but also concludes that the appellant's disclosure needlessly injured Dr. Lynch. As a point of clarification, the Commissioner notes that N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(g) does require that the disclosure needlessly injure individuals or the schools. See also Messner v. Gray, 2016 N.J. Super. Unpub. LEXIS 703, *6 (App. Div. Mar. 31, 2016). However, as the Commissioner finds a needless injury to the schools, this statutory requirement has been satisfied.

censured a Board member who deliberately disclosed confidential information about a student. Here, the disclosure was inadvertent, and there is no evidence that the parent did anything with the information she received, nor did the disclosure result in any adverse consequences to Dr. Lynch or the Board. Accordingly, a reprimand is appropriate.

Accordingly, appellant is hereby reprimanded as a school official found to have violated the School Ethics Act.

IT IS SO ORDERED.[3]

Synopsis

Petitioners contended that the Board of Education of the Village of Ridgewood (Board) improperly failed to perform a harassment, intimidation, and bullying (HIB) investigation concerning an alleged May 9, 2019 incident which allegedly targeted U.R. while she was enrolled as a student in Ridgewood schools. The petitioners filed the within appeal on March 9, 2020. The Board filed a motion for summary decision, arguing that the petition is time-barred pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.2(i), which requires petitions to be filed no later than 90 days from the date of receipt of the action that is the subject of the case.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: there is no genuine issue as to any material fact here, and the case is ripe for summary decision; pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:37-15b(6)(d), after an initial investigation and preliminary determination of a HIB complaint, a parent or guardian may request a hearing before a school board, which must be heard within ten days of the request; in responding to an HIB complaint, a board of education must issue a written decision affirming, rejecting, or modifying a superintendent's decision, which the parents/guardians then have ninety days to appeal to the Commissioner of Education, N.J.S.A. 18A:37-15b(6)(e); here, the school principal advised petitioners by letter dated June 11, 2019 that a preliminary determination had been made regarding their complaint, and that no HIB conduct was found to have taken place; petitioners never requested a hearing before the Board, and then filed their March 9, 2020 appeal with the Commissioner based solely upon the principal's preliminary determination; the petition was filed almost nine months after that determination, and approximately six months after the period to appeal that determination had expired under N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(i). The ALJ concluded that the petition was time-barred; accordingly, summary decision was granted in favor of the Board.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ's determinations and adopted the Initial Decision of the OAL as the final decision in this case. The petition was dismissed.

Synopsis

Petitioners, full-time tenured teachers, appealed the determination of the respondent Board to cease offering them the option to work an additional sixth teaching period each day in lieu of their scheduled duty period for the 2019-20 school year, they had done in some previous years. By this action, petitioners no longer received additional pensionable remuneration which was paid to them during the 2018-19 and previous school years in exchange for accepting the voluntary additional teaching period assignment. Petitioners asserted that this decision violated their tenure rights as it effectively resulted in an impermissible reduction in their compensation. The parties filed cross motions for summary decision.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: there are no material facts at issue in this case and the matter is ripe for summary decision; several petitioners had not worked the extra teaching assignment for the statutorily-defined minimum period of time to be eligible for tenure in that position; although the remaining petitioners had worked the required number of years to meet the statutory requirement, their claims were undermined by the undisputed fact that the extra teaching assignment is subject to the identified need of the district; the extra teaching assignments were temporary and conditional, and therefore, could not be used as the basis for tenured compensation; and the Board's decision to reduce the number of teaching hours based on need was in the nature of a reduction in force (RIF), which is within the discretion of the board. Accordingly, the ALJ granted the Board's motion for summary decision, denied petitioners' cross motion, and dismissed the petition.

Upon review, the Commissioner rejected the ALJ's conclusion that petitioners could not earn tenure in the sixth period teaching position, finding, inter alia, that: there is a clear statutory mandate that a certificated employee serving in a position for which a certificate is required, for the requisite period of time, will achieve tenure; therefore, certain named petitioners did achieve tenure in the positions at issue, while others did not; further, the ALJ correctly determined that the Board has the discretion to implement a RIF. Accordingly the Commissioner ordered that the Board: place petitioners who had earned tenure in the sixth period positions on a preferred eligibility list for rehiring in any sixth period teaching positions for which they are qualified; conduct a seniority analysis regarding all sixth period teaching positions for the 2019-2020 and 2020-2021 school years; and compensate the tenured petitioners in the amounts they would have received if it is found that non-tenured or less senior employees improperly filled those positions for which the tenured petitioners were qualified.

Petitioners,

v.

Board of Education of the Township of Princeton, Mercer County,

Respondent.

The record of this matter, the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), the exceptions filed by petitioners pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4, and the reply thereto by the Board have been reviewed and considered.

Petitioners in this matter are full-time tenured high school teachers; the Princeton Regional Education Association (Association) represents the majority of Board employees, including the individual petitioners in this matter. The Collective Bargaining Agreement (CBA) between the Association and the Board provides that the daily teaching load in the high school shall not exceed five teaching periods and one duty period. However, in cases of identified need, the administration and the Association may agree to a sixth teaching period in lieu of a duty period; the teachers who undertake the extra teaching assignment receive $10,000 in addition to their base salary, or a prorated amount if they teach a sixth period on a part-time basis. Petitioners had, in various years, agreed to teach a sixth period or a portion thereof, and received additional compensation for doing so. For the 2019-20 school year, the Board did not offer petitioners the option of teaching a sixth period. Petitioners appealed, arguing that the Board had reduced their compensation in violation of their tenure rights.

The Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) granted the Board's motion for summary decision. First, the ALJ concluded that several of the petitioners had not worked the extra teaching assignment for the statutorily-defined minimum period of time to be eligible for tenure in that position.[1] Regarding the remaining petitioners, who had worked the required number of years to meet the statutory requirement, the ALJ found that their claims were undermined by the undisputed fact that the extra teaching assignment is subject to the identified need of the district. The ALJ concluded that the extra teaching assignments were temporary and conditional, and therefore, could not be used as the basis for tenured compensation. Additionally, the ALJ found that the Board's decision to reduce the number of teaching hours based on need was in the nature of a reduction in force (RIF), which is within the discretion of the board.

In their exceptions, petitioners argue that the ALJ incorrectly found that they had received payment for extra work. According to petitioners, they received pensionable income for teaching regular classes during the regular school day, making that income compensation for purposes of the Tenure Act. Petitioners assert that teaching during a sixth period of the regular school day does not equate to a separately tenurable position; therefore, the ALJ erred in dismissing the claims of the petitioners who had not taught a sixth period for the statutorilymandated time period. Petitioners contend that the ALJ incorrectly found that the CBA controls the nature of the compensation, rather than the Tenure Act. Moreover, petitioners note that their tenure rights cannot be waived or bargained away. Petitioners assert that, if the analysis in the Initial Decision is extrapolated, it would permit districts to calculate all compensation on an assignment basis as long as it was codified in the CBA, eviscerating tenure law and the protections it affords. Petitioners cite to cases in which employees received stipends for work directly related to their regular duties, in which the Commissioner held that those stipends could not be eliminated because to do so would violate the employees' tenure rights. Petitioners also point to cases holding that, for purposes of the Tenure Act, compensation generally refers to annual income, rather than hourly income, such that reducing a teacher's hours implicates the Tenure Act. Petitioners argue that the Board's action should not be considered a reduction in force, because they still worked the same number of hours – a full school day. Finally, petitioners contend that if the Board's action does constitute a reduction in force, a seniority analysis would be necessary to determine who should continue teaching a sixth period.

In reply, the Board argues that petitioners are a party to the CBA, which clearly stated the parameters of the extra teaching assignment and which demonstrates that the sixth teaching period assignment was a voluntary and separate assignment and therefore not a part of the tenure position of full-time teaching staff. The Board cites to cases holding that temporary work is not covered by the Tenure Act. The Board notes that the CBA establishes the duties and work load of teaching staff during the school day – five teaching periods and one duty period – and contends that the addition of a sixth teaching period is an alteration in the terms and conditions of employment by providing for extra work beyond what is prescribed for a full-time teacher. Finally, the Board asserts its managerial prerogative to abolish positions as a reduction in force and alleges a chilling effect on the ability of boards of education to offer extra duty work to their existing staff if the sixth teaching period position is held to be tenurable.

Upon review, the Commissioner disagrees with the ALJ's conclusion that petitioners could not obtain tenure in the sixth teaching period position. The Tenure Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:28-1 et seq., "should be liberally construed to achieve its beneficent ends." Spiewak v. Board of Education of Rutherford, 90 N.J. 63, 74 (1982). The ALJ's conclusion that the sixth teaching period positions were not tenurable was based primarily on the finding that the terms of the CBA made the position temporary. However, the New Jersey Supreme Court has made clear that "the tenure provision of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 is a mandatory contractual term that may not be waived[2] or bargained away. . . Whether teachers are entitled to tenure never depends on the contractual agreement between the teachers and the board of education." Id. at 76-77. "[A]ll teaching staff members who work in positions for which a certificate is required, who hold valid certificates, and who have worked the requisite number of years, are eligible for tenure" unless a specific statutory exception applies. Id. at 81. While N.J.S.A. 18A:16-1.1 provides an exception for temporary employees, who are not entitled to tenure in the positions in which they are acting, "that exception is limited to employees hired to take the place of an absent teacher." Id. at 77; see also Bridgewater-Raritan Educ. Ass'n v. Bd. of Educ. of Bridgewater-Raritan, 221 N.J. 349, 360 (2015). There is no indication in the record that petitioners were acting as replacements for absent teachers. Accordingly, the exception provided in N.J.S.A. 18A:16-1.1 does not apply, and teachers who teach a sixth period are eligible for tenure in that position.

[2] The exception to this rule is when a tenured employee rejects an offer of reemployment following a RIF that abolished their position, which has been consistently held to be a waiver of tenure rights. O'Toole v. Forestal, 211 N.J. Super. 394, 402 (1986).

This conclusion is consistent with the New Jersey Supreme Court's recent holding in Melnyk v. Bd. of Educ. of the Delsea Reg'l High School Dist., Gloucester Cty., in which the Court cautioned against "the ability of labels to cloud an analysis." 241 N.J. 31, 33 (2020). In Melnyk, labeling a position as "extracurricular" and finding that the position was not tenurable based on that label resulted in "short-circuiting" the analysis and improperly ignoring the statutory criteria for obtaining tenure. Id. at 34. Here, the Initial Decision ended the analysis by labeling the sixth teaching period position "temporary," thereby disregarding the clear statutory mandate that a certificated employee serving in a position for which a certificate is required, for the requisite period of time, achieves tenure.

The position at issue in Melnyk was a teaching position in an alternative education program held after school hours. Finding that the program was "part of the delivery of constitutionally required educational services that comprise the system of a thorough and efficient education," the Court concluded that it was not comparable to traditional extracurricular activities in which teachers cannot obtain tenure unless the activities require a different instructional certificate than the one the teacher holds for their regular teaching duties. Id. at 43, 48. In Melnyk, the board of education conceded that the position would be tenure eligible if it was filled by a person who was not employed in the district's regular day program. Similarly, here, there can be no question that a teaching position during the regular school day would be tenure eligible if it were filled by a new hire, rather than by an existing teaching staff member. The Commissioner does not find the differences in the timing of the teaching duties – after school in Melnyk, during school here – to warrant a different outcome. Indeed, the fact that the position at issue in Melnyk occurred after school hours was the fact relied upon by the board of education to support its argument that the position was extracurricular and therefore not tenure-eligible. The Court rejected that argument, and the Commissioner rejects it here as well. The critical factor in Melnyk was that the position was "curricular," and the sixth teaching periods fit even more clearly in that category than the after-school position in Melnyk. As in Melnyk, an "instructional and tenure-eligible position did not become extracurricular and tenure ineligible simply because petitioner already held tenure in another position." Id. at 34. The Court in Melnyk concluded that tenure eligibility "must therefore be analyzed purely on the basis of Spiewak's dictates." Id. at 49-50. Following the Court's clear ruling in Melnyk, the Commissioner concludes that teaching staff members who teach a sixth period may obtain tenure in that position if they hold the required certificate and teach in that position for the requisite period of time.

The Commissioner does not find the Board's arguments regarding the potential chilling effect of this conclusion to be persuasive. Boards of education may continue to exercise their managerial prerogative to implement a RIF regarding extra teaching duty positions, provided that any teaching staff members tenured in those positions receive the procedural protections afforded to them by the Tenure Act. Therefore, boards of education will not, as the Board would have the Commissioner conclude, be required to pay teachers who had once performed extra teaching duty assignments the additional compensation paid for such positions even if those positions cease to exist. Nor, as the ALJ posited, would the Board be required to continue to pay the additional compensation to teaching staff members who accepted a sixth teaching period position for the requisite period of time and then later declined to continue in the position. The Commissioner has held, and the Court has confirmed, that the refusal of reemployment by a tenured employee constitutes a relinquishment of tenure and a waiver of rights to future employment. O'Toole v. Forestal, 211 N.J. Super. 394, 402 (1986).

Turning to the analysis set forth by the Court in Spiewak and Melnyk, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ's dismissal of the claims of those petitioners who did not serve in the sixth teaching period position for the requisite period of time pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5(a)(1)-(3). The Court in Melnyk made clear that additional instructional duties are separately tenurable, and the Commissioner finds no reason to treat the sixth teaching period positions differently than the after-school position in Melnyk. Both positions involved teachers performing extra teaching duties – beyond their core responsibilities – for extra compensation. Because the sixth teaching period position is separately tenurable, petitioners must serve in that position for the statutorily-mandated time period to obtain tenure. Petitioners Gonzalez, Stanton, Eastburn, Hunsbedt, Spera, Hill, Hinton-Mason, Rodriguez, Borgia, and Abscal did not meet this requirement.

As to the remaining petitioners, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that the Board had the discretion to implement a RIF. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9, the Board may abolish positions for reasons of economy, reduction in the number of pupils, change in organization of the district, or for other good cause. However, following a RIF, employees must be placed on a preferred eligible list in order of seniority for reemployment whenever a vacancy occurs. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12. The record is not clear whether the positions held by petitioners Carsdale, Lee, Thayer, Indyk, Koch, and Mlinar were completely abolished or whether they have been filled by non-tenured or less senior employees.

Accordingly, as to petitioners Gonzalez, Stanton, Eastburn, Hunsbedt, Spera, Hill, Hinton-Mason, Rodriguez, Borgia, and Abscal, the Initial Decision of the OAL, as modified herein, is adopted as the final decision and their claims are hereby dismissed. The Board is ordered to place petitioners Carsdale, Lee, Thayer, Indyk, Koch, and Mlinar (the tenured petitioners) on a preferred eligibility list for rehiring in any sixth teaching period positions for which they are qualified. The Board is further ordered to conduct a seniority analysis regarding all sixth period teaching positions for the 2019-2020 and 2020-2021 school years. If non-tenured employees, or employees with less seniority than the tenured petitioners, improperly filled sixth teaching period positions for which the tenured petitioners were qualified, the Board is directed to compensate the tenured petitioners in the amounts they would have received if they had filled the positions.

Record Closed: October 16, 2020 Decided: November 4, 2020

BEFORE DAVID M. FRITCH, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioners, full-time tenured teachers, appeal the determination of their employer, Respondent, Princeton Public School Board of Education ("Board"), to not continue to offer Petitioners the option to work an additional sixth teaching period per day in lieu of their otherwise scheduled daily duty period for the 2019-20 school year in their annual contracts. In doing so, Petitioners no longer received the additional pensionable remuneration which was previously paid to them during the 2018-19 school year in exchange for accepting this voluntary additional teaching period assignment. Petitioners challenge this decision as violative of their tenure rights as an impermissible reduction in their compensation.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On July 16, 2020, Petitioners, through counsel, filed a verified petition with the Commissioner of Education seeking to enjoin the Board from not including the additional optional assignment and associated compensation in Petitioners' 2019-20 contracts. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") as a contested matter in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13, where it was filed on August 19, 2019. On May 14, 2020, the undersigned held a telephone status conference with the parties wherein the parties indicated that they both wished to file cross-motions for summary decision and a briefing schedule was established with the agreement of the parties. Consistent with this briefing schedule, Respondent filed its motion for summary decision on July 1, 2020. On July 9, 2020, Petitioners filed their cross-motion for summary decision and their response to Respondent's motion. Respondent filed an answering brief in response to Petitioners' cross-motion and in further support of its motion on July 31, 2020. Oral argument was held via telephone conference on September 3, 2020. The record remained open to allow the parties to amend the factual record with respect to the school year, or years, that Petitioners received the additional assignment and associated remuneration in question beyond the 2018-19 school year. Following receipt of this additional factual information in a joint statement of supplemental facts on October 16, 2020, the record on the cross-motions closed.

STATEMENT OF FACTS

Accompanying Petitioners' motion was a joint stipulation of facts executed by counsel for both parties. These stipulated facts were further augmented by the parties' filing of a supplemental joint stipulation of facts following oral argument on the motions. Accordingly, I FIND the following FACTS have been stipulated by the parties and are not contested:

1. Petitioners are certificated teaching staff members employed by the Board.

2. The Princeton Regional Education Association (Association), is the majority representative for certain employees of the Board and is the representative of the individual Petitioners in this matter.

3. The Association and the Board are parties to a collective bargaining agreement (CBA). Paragraph 8(B)(1) of that agreement provides:

> The daily teaching load in the high school shall not exceed five (5) hours per day of pupil contact, consisting of five (5) teaching periods and one (1) duty period. In case of identified need, the administration and the Association shall mutually agree to an assigned sixth teaching period in lieu of a duty period. Teachers assigned to a sixth period five days a week for the school year shall receive $10,000.00 in pensionable salary added to their base salary for that year or portion thereof. Teachers shall be offered the option of a sixth period with the right to decline. A refusal to accept a sixth period shall not result in a reduction of contract time. There shall be a limit of three teachers within a department teaching sixth periods. The high school day shall consist of seven (7) hours and one (1) minute.
>
> [Pet. Br. at Ex. 1.]

4. The Board has referenced paragraph 8(B)(1) of the CBA in assigning staff to a sixth period. (Pet. Br. at Ex. 2 and 3.)

5. Previously, teachers have received prorated remuneration for the sixth period coverage under the terms of the CBA, ¶ 8(B)(1), when they taught a sixth period on a less-than-full-time basis—i.e., teaching a sixth period every other day, or half-time. In such cases, the teacher would receive a prorated portion of the $10,000 provided for in the CBA, ¶ 8(B)(1).

6. Teachers who do not teach at the high school have also received additional remuneration based on the performance of additional teaching duties during the regular school day.

7. In the past, when Association members (teachers) were teaching a sixth period, full-time, this would be referred to in Board documents as a "0.2" or "1.2"—i.e., the teacher was handling 120 percent of their regular teaching load. Similarly, when a teacher was teaching a sixth period on a less-than-full-time basis, it would be referred to as a "0.1" or "1.1", i.e., the teacher was handling 110 percent of their regular teaching load.

8. In the past, where Association members (teachers) were working a "1.2" or "1.1" schedule during a certain school year have not been assigned that additional teaching duty during a subsequent school year, their overall remuneration was reduced in that subsequent school year to reflect the absence of the additional remuneration previously received for teaching that sixth teaching period. (See, e.g., Pet. Br. at Ex. 3.)

9. Prior to the commencement of the present matter, the Association has not challenged reductions in overall remuneration based upon a teacher's assignment, and subsequent non-assignment, to a "1.2" or "1.1" schedule.

10. The additional duties performed by Petitioners as reflected in a "1.1" or "1.2" contract designation are regular teaching duties performed during regular school hours.

11. Petitioner Alicia Carsdale's employment contract for the 2018-19 school year (Pet. Br. at Ex. A1) listed her status as "1.1," and her base salary as $79,809.

a. The additional "0.1" reflected Carsdale's performance of additional teaching duties during the school day.

b. Carsdale received the indicated base salary during the 2018-19 school year.

c. Carsdale also performed these additional teaching duties and received additional remuneration for these additional duties during the 2014-15, 2015-16, 2016-17, and 2017-18 school years. (See Joint Supp. Statement of Facts at ¶ 1.)

d. For the 2019-20 school year, Carsdale's employment contract listed her status as "1" and her base salary as $75,187. (Pet. Br. at Ex. A2.) Carsdale received this indicated base salary during the 2019-20 school year.

12. Petitioner Daniel Lee's employment contract for the 2018-19 school year (Pet. Br. at Ex. B1) listed his status as "1.1," and his base salary as $67,139.

a. The additional "0.1" reflected Lee's performance of additional teaching duties during the school day.

b. Lee received the indicated base salary during the 2018-19 school year.

c. Lee also performed these additional teaching duties and received additional remuneration for these additional duties during the 2015-16, 2016-17, and 2017-18 school years. (See Joint Supp. Statement of Facts at ¶ 2.)

d. For the 2019-20 school year, Lee's employment contract listed his status as "1" and his base salary as $63,130. (Pet. Br. at Ex. B2.) Lee received this indicated base salary during the 2019-20 school year.

13. Petitioner Christian Gonzalez's employment contract for the 2018-19 school year (Pet. Br. at Ex. C1) listed his status as "1.2," and his base salary as $73,090.

a. The additional "0.2" reflected Gonzalez's performance of additional teaching duties during the school day.

b. Gonzalez received the indicated base salary during the 2018-19 school year.

c. Gonzalez did not perform these additional teaching duties or receive additional remuneration for these additional duties during the 2014-15, 2015-16, 2016-17, or 2017-18 school years. (See Joint Supp. Statement of Facts at ¶ 3.)

d. For the 2019-20 school year, Gonzalez's employment contract listed his status as "1" and his base salary as $65,380. (Pet. Br. at Ex. C2.) Gonzalez received this indicated base salary during the 2019-20 school year.

14. Petitioner Aaron Thayer's employment contract for the 2018-19 school year (Pet. Br. at Ex. D1) listed his status as "1.2," and his base salary as $89,285.

a. The additional "0.2" reflected Thayer's performance of additional teaching duties during the school day.

b. Thayer received the indicated base salary during the 2018-19 school year.

d. For the 2019-20 school year, Thayer's employment contract listed his status as "1" and his base salary as $82,639. (Pet. Br. at Ex. D2.) Thayer received this indicated base salary during the 2019-20 school year.

15. Petitioner Karen Indyk's employment contract for the 2018-19 school year (Pet. Br. at Ex. E1) listed her status as "1.1," and her base salary as $103,180.

a. The additional "0.1" reflected Indyk's performance of additional teaching duties during the school day.

b. Indyk received the indicated base salary during the 2018-19 school year.

c. Indyk also performed these additional teaching duties and received additional remuneration for these additional duties during the 2014-15, 2015-16, 2016-17, and 2017-18 school years. (See Joint Supp. Statement of Facts at ¶ 5.)

d. For the 2019-20 school year, Indyk's employment contract listed her status as "1" and her base salary as $94,550. (Pet. Br. at Ex. E2.) Indyk received this indicated base salary during the 2019-20 school year.

16. Petitioner Peter Stanton's employment contract for the 2018-19 school year (Pet. Br. at Ex. F1) listed his status as "1.2," and his base salary as $93,075.

a. The additional "0.2" reflected Stanton's performance of additional teaching duties during the school day.

LEGAL DISCUSSION

N.J.A.C. 1:1-15.5 provides that summary decision should be granted "if the papers and discovery which have been filed, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law." This language is substantially similar to summary judgment under New Jersey Court Rule 4:46-2(c). Though not required to do so, the OAL uses the standards for summary judgment, as set forth by the New Jersey Supreme Court, as our standards for summary decision. "[S]ince there are pronounced similarities in the exercise of judicial and 'quasi-judicial' powers, . . . court fashioned doctrines for the handling of litigation do in fact have some genuine utility and relevance in administrative proceedings." City of Hackensack v. Winner, 82 N.J. 1, 29 (1980). It is recognized that the OAL performs many "quasi-judicial" or adjudicative functions and that, in doing so, "[j]udicial rules of procedure and practice are transferable to [the OAL] when these are conducive to ensuring fairness, independence, integrity, and efficiency in administrative adjudications." Matter of Tenure Hearing of Onorevole, 103 N.J. 548, 554-55 (1986).

Summary decision is granted if, after considering the evidence presented in the light most favorable to the non-moving party, there exists no genuine issue of material fact. Brill v. Guardian Life Ins. Co. of America, 142 N.J. 520, 523 (1995). The essential question is "whether the evidence presents a sufficient disagreement to require [a hearing] or whether it is so one sided that one party must prevail as a matter of law." Id. at 533. The Brill Court recognized that this necessarily involves the judge in the process of weighing the evidence presented. Id. When determining whether a genuine issue of material fact exists, "the court should be guided by the same evidentiary standard of proof . . . that would apply" at a hearing. Id. This weighing differs from the weighing the judge would perform after a hearing in that "on a motion for summary [decision] the court must grant all the favorable inferences to the non-movant." Id. at 536.

"When a motion for summary decision is made and supported, an adverse party in order to prevail must by responding affidavit set forth specific facts showing that there is a genuine issue which can only be determined in an evidentiary proceeding." N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b). "If an adverse party does not so respond, a summary decision, if appropriate, shall be entered." Id. I CONCLUDE that, under the Brill standards, this matter is appropriate for summary disposition. The undisputed facts, as set forth by the parties in their cross-motions and joint submissions of stipulated facts, are further supported by tangible, undisputed evidence. Accordingly, as there are no disputed material facts, the matter is ripe to be determined for summary decision.

The purpose of teaching-staff tenure laws is to "aid in the establishment of a competent and efficient school system by affording teaching staff members 'a measure of security in the ranks they hold after years of service.'" Carpenito v. Rumson Bd. of Educ., 322 N.J. Super. 522, 528-29 (App. Div. 1999) (quoting Viemeister v. Prospect Park Bd. of Educ., 5 N.J. Super. 215, 218 (App. Div. 1949)). Thus, tenured teaching staff members "shall not be dismissed or reduced in compensation except for inefficiency, incapacity, or conduct unbecoming such a teaching staff member or other just cause." N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10.

Petitioners' claim is based on N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10, which holds that persons with tenure in the public school system cannot be dismissed or reduced in compensation "during good behavior and efficiency in the public school system of the state." (See Pet. Br. at 3-4.) Compensation is defined in N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10. (Id. at 4.) Petitioners argue that the additional remuneration they received in the 2018-19 school year for teaching a sixth teaching period is "remuneration in exchange for the performance of [their] core duty," namely teaching during the school day, and is "compensation" for the purposes of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10. (Id. at 4.) As such, Petitioners contend, "the Board did not have the authority to reduce the Petitioner[s'] remuneration—in fact N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 compensation" and they should be entitled to "have their salaries retroactively restored to their 2018-19 levels, together with all lawful interest, benefits, and emoluments as may otherwise be necessary to make them whole." (Id. at 7.)

Respondent avers that the remuneration for this additional teaching period was payment for an "extra duty assignment" which paid "additional compensation added to [Petitioners'] base salary on the basis of providing additional work beyond which is prescribed in the CBA for a full-time teaching staff member." (Resp. Br. at 6.) The offer of this additional sixth teaching period is "subject to an identified need" of the Board and the additional teaching period is offered with "a right to decline" which gives Petitioners "the opportunity to voluntarily accept or decline this extra duty and corresponding additional compensation." (Id. at 6.) Accordingly, Respondent contends that:

> None of the Petitioners named in this matter have been reduced in compensation from their base salary. Rather, Petitioners were offered the extra duty assignment at the time there was an identified need, and subsequently returned to their normal full-time duties, at their contractual full-time base salary when that need no longer existed, pursuant to the applicable provision of the CBA.
> [Id. at 6–7.]

Respondent argues that, under the undisputed facts of this matter, "Petitioners were never subject to a decrease in their base salary under the CBA, only a reduction of the extra period (and the corresponding compensation) that was no longer necessary or needed." (Id. at 7.)

The question, therefore, is whether Petitioners have tenure rights with respect to their otherwise voluntary assignment to teach a sixth daily teaching period. As Petitioners note (Pet. Br. at 4), "compensation" is defined in N.J.S.A. 18A:66-2, which defines compensation as:

> [T]he contracted salary, for services as a teacher as defined in this article, which is in accordance with established salary policies of the member's employer for all employees in the same position but shall not include individual salary adjustments which are granted primarily in anticipation of the members retirement or additional remuneration for performing temporary or extracurricular duties beyond the regular school day or the regular school year.

N.J.S.A. 18A:66-2(d)(1).

A tenured teaching staff member's contractual salary is the primary component of their "compensation," which, absent a reduction in force or tenure charges, cannot be reduced. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10. See also Allen, et. al. v. Bd. of Educ. of the Twp. of Clark, Union County, EDU 1445-02, Final Decision, (April 30, 2004) http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html. In addition to salary, however, there are other payments which also constitute "compensation" such as longevity increments which increase a teacher's salary in consideration of long-term service and payments for additional education. Id. (citing Middletown Twp. Bd. of Educ., P.E.R.C. No. 99-72 (1998); Green Twp. Bd. of Educ., P.E.R.C. No. 99-73 (1999).) See also Bd. of Educ. v. Neptune Twp. Educ. Ass'n, 144 N.J. 16, 34 (1995). This incremental remuneration, like salary, once awarded becomes a component of the teacher's tenure-protected salary. Id.

In contrast, however, other negotiable benefits paid to teachers are otherwise excluded from the scope of "compensation" for the purposes of tenure protection. Id. These may include early retirement inducement payments (Fair Lawn Educ. Ass'n v. Fair Lawn Bd. of Educ., 161 N.J. Super. 67 (App. Div. 1978), aff'd 79 N.J. 574 (1979)), lump-sum end of year payments to a department chair at the end of a school year (Bishop v. Bd. of Trustees, 4 N.J.A.R. 179 (1980)), "customary" overtime (McLean v. Glen Ridge Bd. of Educ., 1977 S.L.D. 311), and payments for extra-curricular assignments (Dignan v. Bd. of Educ. of the Rumson-Fair Haven Reg'l High School, 71 S.L.D. 336). The question, therefore, is whether Petitioners possess tenure rights with respect to their agreeing to work an additional daily teaching period in lieu of their daily "duty period" and the additional remuneration paid to them for that assignment.

Petitioners argue that the additional remuneration they received was not "for services connected to extracurricular activities such as coaching sports or the school yearbook. They received this remuneration for performing additional teaching duties, during the regular school day" and it was "incorporated into Petitioners' normal, pensionable salaries." (Resp. Br. at 7.) In support of their position, Petitioners cite to Melnyk v. Bd. of Educ. of the Delsea Reg'l High Sch. Dist., 241 N.J. 31 (2020). (Resp.

Br. at 6.) The teacher in Melnyk was assigned to staff a teaching position in an alternative education program designed to assist the employing school district meet their constitutionally-mandated educational services requirements. Melnyk, 241 N.J. at 43. The teacher in Melnyk provided teaching services in this program in addition to their regular teaching assignment and received additional hourly compensation for their services in this program for numerous years until the school district assigned another, non-tenured teacher to fulfil these duties for the upcoming school year. Id. at 37.

The Melnyk Court held that, because the teacher had worked in their alternative instructional position for the requisite period of time and held the required instructional certificate to teach in that position, she was entitled to tenure protections against removal or reduction in compensation associated with that position. Id. at 50. The Melnyk Court concluded that, because the teacher had acquired tenure rights to her position with the alternate education program outside of her separate tenure rights in her capacity in the school's regular day program, the teacher's position in this alternate education program was "separately tenure eligible and her compensation for it could not be reduced without compliance with the procedural protections of the Tenure Act." Ibid.

Petitioners' argument under Melnyk is that they acquired tenure in this assignment to teaching an additional period in lieu of their duty period each day and their additional compensation for this assignment is now part of their tenured compensation. Among the requirements for tenure in a position is that the teacher has "served the requisite period of time" in a position to obtain tenure. Spiewak v. Summit Board of Education, 90 N.J. 63, 74 (1982). Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5a, a teacher must serve in an employed position for "[t]hree consecutive academic years, together with employment at the beginning of the next succeeding academic year" or "the equivalent of more than three academic years within a period of four consecutive academic years" to obtain tenure in that position.

On the record initially presented in the parties' cross-motions, it was clear only that Petitioners agreed to accept the additional sixth teaching period during the 2018-19 school year but were not asked to continue in this additional sixth teaching period for the 2019-20 school year. Following oral argument, the parties were given the opportunity to amend the factual record to determine if any of the named Petitioners were offered this additional teaching period and accepted that assignment and extra remuneration in any other school year. Based on the information provided in the parties' joint supplemental statement of facts, Petitioners Gonzalez (Joint Supp. Statement of Facts at ¶ 3), Stanton (id. at ¶ 6), Eastburn (id. at ¶ 7), Hunsbedt (id. at ¶ 8), Spera (id. at ¶ 9), Hill (id. at ¶ 10), Hinton-Mason (id. at ¶ 11), Rodriguez (id. at ¶ 13), Borgia (id. at ¶ 14), and Abscal (id. at ¶ 16) did not work this extra teaching assignment and receive this additional remuneration for three consecutive years or more than three academic years within the period of four academic years. I CONCLUDE, therefore, that it is uncontested on the record presented, that Petitioners Gonzalez, Stanton, Eastburn, Hunsbedt, Spera, Hill, Hinton-Mason, Rodriguez, Borgia, and Abscal have not worked in this position of teaching for a sixth daily teaching period for the statutorily defined minimum period of time to meet this requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5a(1)–(3) to be eligible for tenure in that position. (See Resp. Br. at 3 (noting that the Petitioners did not "serve in the position for longer than the statutorily mandated 4 years" to obtain tenure in the additional duty assignment).)

While Petitioners Carsdale (Joint Supp. Statement of Facts at ¶ 1), Lee (id. at ¶ 2), Thayer (id. at ¶ 4), Indyk (id. at ¶ 5), Koch (id. at ¶ 12), and Milnar (id. at ¶ 15) have demonstrated that they have worked the extra teaching period assignment the minimum number of years to meet the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5a(1)–(3), their tenure claims are undermined by the undisputed fact that the assignment to teach in this sixth period is subject to the identified need of the District and offered, along with the additional remuneration, to teachers with a right for the teacher to decline the additional assignment. (Pet. Br. at Ex. 1 at ¶ 8(B)(1).) Unlike the teacher in Melnyk, who was removed from an additional teaching assignment (and the associated additional remuneration) and replaced in that assignment by a non-tenured teacher (see Melnyk, 241 N.J. at 620), the Petitioners in the present matter were relieved of their additional duty, and associated additional remuneration, in their 2019-20 contracts after the District determined that this additional need for teaching that additional period "no longer existed." (Resp. Br. at 7.)

A similar issue was previously addressed by the Commissioner in the matter McLean v. Bd. of Educ. of Glen Ridge, 1977 S.L.D. 311. In the McLean matter, the petitioner, a janitor, sought compensation for overtime duties which had been

"customarily" assigned to him on the basis that the money he previously earned through customary overtime assignments was part of his statutorily protected "compensation." Id. at 312–13. The Commissioner disagreed with this argument, finding that "compensation" has been defined to "include contracted salary but to exclude an entitlement to add thereto payment for 'extra work'." Id. at 313. Relying on Reed and Hills v. Trenton Board of Education, 1938 S.L.D. 437, the Commissioner in McClean held that the tenure act was not designed to address "a temporary increase [in salary] given for extra work done" because, to do so, would mean that "any temporary payments to teachers for temporary work could not be made without incurring the liability of permanent indebtedness and school boards would be tempted to put all extra services upon teachers without any extra compensation whatsoever." Id. at 313 (quoting Reed, 1938 S.L.D. at 441). The Commissioner in McClean declined to extend tenure protection to these extra payments because doing so would remove a "necessary flexibility" from the school boards. Id. at 314.

Here, as in McClean, the additional remuneration at issue was given to Petitioners for an extra assignment which was offered in cases of "identified need" by the District and extended to the teachers "with the right to decline." (Pet. Br. at Ex. 1.) The District identified a need for this additional period in the 2018-19 school year, and Petitioners agreed to perform this additional assignment and receive the agreed-upon additional remuneration. The District did not identify the need to continue these additional assignments in the 2019-20 school year, and the opportunity to continue working this additional teaching period and receive the additional remuneration was not extended to Petitioners for the 2019-20 school year.

Petitioners contend that they are salaried employees who are not paid "by the hour" or "by the class." (Pet. Br. at 4.) Regardless of whether they are assigned to a sixth daily teaching period, they are "still working the same number of hours in the school building, during the school day." (Id.) Petitioners argue that allowing the Board to withdraw this additional teaching period, and its associated remuneration, would eviscerate tenure protections by permitting compensation of teachers to rely on an "assignment" or "piece-work" basis which Districts could use to reduce compensation by reducing a teacher's work assignments. (Id.) Petitioners assert that the remuneration previously received for this sixth teaching period, once granted, "cannot be reduced" because that additional money paid for that period is now part of their statutorily protected "compensation." (Id. at 7.)

Petitioners' argument, however, overlooks the temporary nature of the additional work performed. As the terms of the CBA clearly delineate, this additional teaching period is a voluntary assignment that is offered by the District upon the District finding an identified need for this extra work. (Pet. Br. at Ex. 1, ¶ 8(B)(1).) This additional assignment is a departure from the contractually defined responsibilities of a teacher in the District to handle a teaching load of "five (5) hours per day of pupil contact, consisting of five (5) teaching periods and one (1) duty period." (Pet. Br. at Ex. 1.) The conversion of the sixth period from a duty period to a teaching period, and a teacher's eligibility for the additional remuneration that accompanies that conversion, has two identified prerequisites—the District must identify the need for a sixth teaching period, and the teacher must agree to accept the assignment for that sixth teaching period. (Id.) Where it is mutually agreed upon that a sixth teaching period is needed and the teacher agrees to perform that duty, the teacher receives additional remuneration which is "added to their base salary for that year or portion thereof." (Ibid.) This additional language highlighting that the additional remuneration is added to a teacher's base salary only for the year or portion of the year they work the additional teaching period highlights the temporary and conditional nature of these assignments. As the Appellate Division has noted, such temporary and conditional assignments cannot be used to form the basis of tenured compensation, holding that:

> [W]here employment is offered and accepted on a temporary basis and its temporary nature is understood by both employer and employee to be one of its essential predicates, such employment cannot then be relied on by the employee as the basis of tenure.
> Spiewak v. Board of Education, 180 N.J. Super. 312, 318 (App.Div. 1981).

See also Point Pleasant Beach Teachers Assoc. v. Callam, 173 N.J. Super. 11, 17 (App.Div. 1980) (denying to extend tenure to teachers hired on a temporary "as needed" basis to provide remedial aid to children).

The CBA defines the daily teaching load as "five teaching periods and one duty period." (Pet. Br. at Ex. 1, ¶ 8(B)(1).) The conversion of the duty period to an additional teaching period is an optional additional assignment of teaching duties, which the teachers may decline without reduction in their contracted time. (Ibid.) In exchange for accepting this additional teaching assignment, Petitioners were given contractually agreed upon additional remuneration. (Ibid.) N.J.S.A. 18A:66-2(d)(1) explicitly excludes from tenured compensation "additional remuneration for performing temporary or extracurricular duties beyond the regular school day." See also Reed and Hills, 1938 S.L.D. at 441 ("The prohibition against reduction of salary [in the Tenure Act] applies to a permanent scheduled salary and not to a temporary increase given for extra work done"); McLean v. Bd. of Ed. of Glen Ridge, 1977 S.L.D. 311, 314 (additional payments for voluntary overtime not covered as tenure-protected compensation). Although Petitioners contend that the additional teaching period involved providing "additional teaching duties during the regular school day" (Resp. Br. at 7), it remains factually uncontested that the addition of a sixth daily teaching period to a teacher's schedule also requires the teacher to perform additional duties such as lesson preparation, review of student assignments, and grading of exams, which occur beyond the designated teaching period and, presumably, have to be conducted on time outside the defined regular school day. It is this additional work that accompanies the acceptance of the additional daily teaching period which justifies the District offering additional remuneration to teachers who voluntarily assume this additional workload when offered by the District based on the District's identified needs.

Further supporting the conclusion that the additional remuneration received by Petitioners is not tenure-protected compensation is that it remains factually undisputed that the offering of this additional teaching period, the associated remuneration, is subject to an "identified need" by the District for this additional work (Pet. Br. at Ex. 1 at ¶ 8(B)(1)), and the District no longer has a need for this additional work. (Resp. Br. at 7.) Respondent argues that, under these circumstances, "when that need ended, so did the extra work and corresponding compensation for the employee." (Ibid.) See also Dingan v. Bd. of Ed. of Rumson Fair-Haven Reg. High Sch., 71 S.L.D. 336, 342 ("[t]he extra compensation ceases when the extra-classroom assignment is no longer performed"); Dallolio v. Bd. of Ed. of the City of Vineland, 1965 S.L.D. 18, 22 439 ("[W]hen the extra work is no longer performed the extra compensation for that purpose can no longer be claimed"). To accept Petitioners' argument on its face that, once a teacher accepts this sixth teaching period and the associated remuneration, their tenure-protected compensation is upwardly adjusted to include the additional payments for this additional voluntary work and that upwardly adjusted salary "cannot be reduced" because the additional money paid for that period is now part of their statutorily protected "compensation" (Id. at 7) would yield bizarre results. Such an interpretation would, presumably, give a teacher who previously accepted this additional teaching period in the 2018-19 school year but exercises their contractually protected option to refuse to teach that additional period in subsequent years (Pet. Br. at Ex. 1) the right to continue collecting the additional renumeration for that extra teaching period as part of their now-tenured compensation without continuing the accompanying obligation to perform the extra duties in subsequent school years. For the reasons stated above, I CONCLUDE, therefore, that this additional remuneration Petitioners received in the 2018-19 and other school years for this sixth teaching period is not tenure-protected compensation within the definition of N.J.S.A. 18A:66-2(d)(1).

Also weighing against Petitioners' claim in this matter is the statutory mandate that tenure laws cannot be used to limit the right of a board of education to reduce the number of teaching staff members or abolish positions for reasons of economy. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9. The District's determination to reduce the number of teaching periods needed and to not extend the option for the additional period to Petitioners in their 2019-20 contracts amounts to a reduction of hours and associated compensation which remains within the rights of the District under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9 regardless of tenure provisions. As the Appellate Division noted in Klinger v. Board of Education, 190 N.J. Super. 354, 357 (1982) (internal citations omitted):

> Whether of tenured or nontenured teachers, reduction in force is entirely within the authority of the board if done for reasons > of economy. Reduction in hours of employment is considered a reduction in force.

See also Papovich v. Bd. of Ed. of Borough of Wharton, 1975 S.L.D. 737, 745 (reduction of a teacher's position from full-time employment to three days per week constitutes "a reduction of staff"). Here, the Board made its determination that the additional teaching period was no longer needed and exercised its discretion to eliminate the option for teaching that additional period. For this reason, I further CONCLUDE that the Board's action in this matter constitutes a reduction in staff and cannot be limited by the application of tenure laws. N.J.S.A. 19A:28-9.

CONCLUSION

In light of the above, I CONCLUDE that Respondent's motion for summary decision should be GRANTED, and Petitioners' cross-motion for summary decision should be DISMISSED.

ORDER

It is therefore ORDERED that Respondent's July 1, 2020, motion for summary decision is hereby GRANTED, and Petitioners' July 9, 2020, cross-motion for summary decision is hereby DENIED and Petitioners' petition to enjoin the Board from not including the additional optional assignment and associated compensation in Petitioners' 2019-20 school year contracts is DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. New Jersey Commissioner of Education

Final Decision

Board of Education of the Borough of Wood-Ridge, Bergen County,

Petitioner,

v.

Board of Education of the Borough of Bogota, Bergen County; Joseph Zarra, Interim Executive County Superintendent; and L.B., on behalf of M.B., Respondents.

Synopsis

Petitioner, the Board of Education of the Borough of Wood-Ridge (Wood-Ridge), appealed the determination of the respondents, the Board of Education of the Borough of Bogota (Bogota) and Joseph Zarra, Interim Executive County Superintendent (Zarra), that L.B. and her minor child are homeless, and therefore Wood-Ridge is the district responsible for providing a free public education for M.B. Wood-Ridge contended that M.B. and L.B. were domiciled in Bogota as of December 2017, making Bogota the district responsible for the cost of M.B.'s education. Bogota filed a request for reimbursement in the amount of $29,375.95 for cost of M.B.'s education.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: the inquiry here is which district – Wood-Ridge or Bogota – must bear the cost of M.B.'s education pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:17-2.8; L.B. established a permanent residence in Bogota when she moved in with her sister-in-law in December 2017; L.B.'s intent to make Bogota her domicile was evidenced by her actions in withdrawing M.B. from Wood-Ridge and transferring him to Bogota schools, planning to sign the lease on the property, cleaning and painting the home, and changing her driver's license to reflect the Bogota address; however, L.B. was forced to leave the Bogota house in February 2018 because of mold in the basement, which had sickened her son; a subsequent falling out with her sister-in-law made it impossible to move back to the home; L.B. subsequently lived in hotels or with friends until February 2019, when she signed a lease in Hackettstown. The ALJ concluded that, while a homeless child may be "deemed" domiciled after living in a district for one year under N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(d), L.B.'s domicile was established by her intent at the time she moved into the Bogota house. Accordingly, the ALJ reversed Zarra's homelessness determination, denied Bogota's request for reimbursement of M.B.'s education costs, and determined that Bogota would remain financially responsible for the cost of M.B.'s education until L.B. established a new domicile outside the district.

Upon review, the Commissioner found the respondents' exceptions to be without merit and concurred with the ALJ that L.B. became domiciled in Bogota when the family moved in with L.B.'s sister-in-law in December 2017 and was no longer homeless; therefore, Bogota became the district responsible for the cost of M.B.'s education in December 2017. In making her determination, the Commissioner noted, inter alia, that when a child's dwelling becomes fixed, regular and adequate, domicile attaches immediately. Further, homelessness determinations require a fact-specific analysis that includes the intentions of the parents or guardians. M. O'K. v. Board of Education of the Borough of Cresskill, et al, Commissioner Decision No. 325-14, decided August 12, 2014 at 3, aff'd, A-0828-14T4 (App. Div. Sept. 8, 2016). Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL was adopted as the final decision in this matter.

Final Decision

Board of Education of the Borough of Wood-Ridge, Bergen County,

Petitioner,

v.

Board of Education of the Borough of Bogota, Bergen County; Joseph Zarra, Interim Executive County Superintendent; and L.B., on behalf of minor child, M.B.,

Respondents.

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed, as have the exceptions filed by respondent Bogota Board of Education (Bogota) and respondent Joseph Zarra, Interim Executive County Superintendent (Zarra), pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4, and the replies thereto filed by petitioner Wood-Ridge Board of Education (Wood-Ridge).

This matter involves a homelessness determination regarding L.B. and her minor child, M.B. L.B. was domiciled in Wood-Ridge with her mother until November 2016, when the home was sold following her mother's death. Thereafter, L.B. stayed with friends and at hotels until December 2017, when she moved into her sister-in-law's Section 8 home in Bogota. L.B. and M.B. each had their own room in the four-bedroom house, and they shared a private bathroom upstairs. L.B. cleaned and painted the home's interior prior to moving in and changed her driver's license to reflect her new address. L.B. testified that her goal was to provide stability for her son and she hoped that it would be a "permanent, semi-permanent situation" so that he could finish 8th grade and have four consecutive years of high school. (Testimony of L.B., T37-38, 45).[1] L.B.'s sister-in-law advised that she would be added to the lease in January 2018. Accordingly, L.B. signed a Student Transfer Card to remove M.B. from Wood-Ridge and enrolled him in Bogota schools.[2]

A few weeks after moving in, L.B. learned that her sister-in-law was not upfront about the lease, and that the Section 8 landlord would not add L.B. to the lease until March 2018, when it was up for renewal. However, around February 2018, M.B. became sick from mold in the basement, causing the family to vacate the home so that the problem could be remediated. Due to disagreements with her sister-in-law, L.B. never returned to the Bogota home except to retrieve her belongings. The family again lived in hotels or with friends until February 2019, when L.B. signed a lease in Hackettstown.

The issue in this matter is whether the family established a domicile when they moved into the Bogota home in December 2017, or whether they remained homeless from the time they moved out of the Wood-Ridge home in November 2016 until they became domiciled in Hackettstown. The purpose of this inquiry is to determine which district must bear the cost of M.B.'s education, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:17-2.8. If the family was homeless the whole time, Wood-Ridge would be responsible for the cost of M.B.'s education from 2016 until the family established a domicile in Hackettstown; but, if L.B. had in fact established a domicile in Bogota,

[1] This citation refers to a transcript of a hearing held before the OAL on February 4, 2020.

[2] M.B. attended an out-of-district placement in Ridgefield while enrolled at Wood-Ridge. He continued to attend that placement while enrolled at Bogota until March 2018, when Bogota transferred him to the Windsor Learning Academy.

then Bogota would take over responsibility for the cost of M.B.'s education beginning in December 2017.

Following Bogota's request for a homelessness determination, Zarra issued a letter on July 26, 2018 finding that "the family had not established permanent residence in Bogota" because they had not resided in any town for at least one year. (Zarra letter, July 26, 2018). Accordingly, "[a]s the family has not met the one-year threshold, financial responsibility is still attached to the last district of residence, Wood-Ridge." Id. Wood-Ridge appealed that determination and Bogota filed a counterclaim for $29,375.95 in education costs.

Following a hearing on the merits that included the testimony of L.B., Zarra, and a representative from each district, the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) found that L.B. established a permanent residence in Bogota when she moved in with her sister-in-law because she intended to make the house her permanent home. Specifically, the ALJ explained that L.B. transferred M.B. to Bogota's schools, intended to sign the lease, cleaned and painted the home, and changed her driver's license to reflect the Bogota address. The ALJ further noted that but for the mold and subsequent falling out with her sister-in-law, L.B. intended to provide a fixed, permanent home for her son to graduate from high school in four years. While a homeless child may be "deemed" domiciled after living in a district for one year under N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(d), the ALJ found that L.B.'s domicile was established by her intent at the time she moved into the Bogota home. Accordingly, the ALJ reversed Zarra's homelessness determination, denied Bogota's request for reimbursement of M.B.'s education costs, and determined that Bogota would remain financially responsible for the cost of M.B.'s education until a new domicile is established outside the district.

In its exceptions, Bogota argues that the ALJ erred in considering L.B.'s intent. According to Bogota, the ALJ quoted an outdated version of the regulation that defines domicile for student residency – N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a)(1) – when he said that a student's domicile is the school district where the student's parent or guardian has a permanent home, such that "the parent or guardian intends to return to it when absent and has no present intent of moving from it." Bogota points out that N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a)(1) now provides that "a student is domiciled in the school district when he or she is the child of a parent or guardian whose domicile is located within the district," without any reference to intent. Moreover, Bogota contends that the ALJ failed to address case law governing homelessness, specifically Board of Education of the Township of Egg Harbor v. Board of Education of the Mainland Regional High School District, EDU 6680-09, Initial Decision (October 15, 2010), adopted by Commissioner's Decision No. 555-10, decided December 30, 2010, which Bogota contends stands for the proposition that traditional elements of domicile do not apply to homeless families, and they instead become domiciled after one year residing in a district. Citing Egg Harbor, Bogota explains that homeless families have limited choices in where to live, so their "actual intentions, as opposed to their viable choices, must be reconciled"; as such, determining tuition based solely on intent is "arbitrary and unworkable." Id. Finally, Bogota raises a slew of minor errors it contends the ALJ made, such as typographical mistakes, that demonstrate the ALJ misunderstands the facts and law at issue. Accordingly, Bogota requests that the Commissioner reject the Initial Decision, reinstate Zarra's homelessness determination, and order Wood-Ridge to reimburse Bogota for the cost of M.B.'s education in the amount of $29,375.95.

Similarly, in his exceptions, Zarra argues that the ALJ erred in determining that M.B. was no longer homeless when the family moved to the Bogota property for a matter of weeks. Zarra also cites Egg Harbor, arguing that the ALJ incorrectly relied on L.B.'s intent to make the Bogota home her permanent residence because the intent of a homeless family is not dispositive in determining homelessness. Zarra contends that when L.B. moved in with her sister-in-law, M.B. was still homeless in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:17-2.2(a)(3) because they were staying with family, and despite L.B.'s intention to remain permanently, she only stayed there a period of weeks. Zarra maintains that as L.B. did not live at the Bogota residence for a year, she was not deemed domiciled in Bogota. As such, Zarra contends that his homelessness determination was correct and the ALJ erred in finding that financial responsibility for the cost of M.B.'s education switched to Bogota.

In reply, Wood-Ridge argues that the ALJ correctly found that it does not take a year to establish a domicile, and the one-year threshold only applies when a permanent residence has not been established. Wood-Ridge further contends that intent is the decisive factor in establishing domicile and the ALJ properly found that L.B. intended to make the Bogota residence her permanent home. While Bogota and Zarra rely on Egg Harbor, supra, Wood-Ridge maintains that it was only an Initial Decision rather than a Final Agency Decision, and nevertheless was superseded by the Commissioner in State-Operated School District of the City of Camden v. C. Ann Volk, Executive County Superintendent, et al, Commissioner's Decision No. 106-16, decided March 18, 2016, in which the Commissioner found that the intentions of the parents are relevant in homelessness determinations. Accordingly, Wood-Ridge urges the Commissioner to adopt the Initial Decision in its entirety.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ's conclusions that L.B. became domiciled in Bogota when she moved in with her sister-in-law because she intended to make it her permanent home; her actions in connection with the move further demonstrate those intentions; and the living arrangement was fixed, regular and adequate. Accordingly, Bogota became financially responsible for the cost of M.B.'s education from December 2017 until the family establishes a new domicile outside the district.

In matters such as this, the threshold inquiry is whether the child is considered homeless. Under the McKinney-Vento Act, homeless children are defined as "individuals who lack a fixed, regular and adequate nighttime residence," which includes "children sharing housing with other persons due to loss of their own housing, economic hardship, or a similar reason." 42 U.S.C.A. § 11434a. Similarly, under state law, homeless children are defined as "child[ren] or youth who lack[] a fixed, regular and adequate residence pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12 and N.J.A.C. 6A:17-2.2," which includes children living in the "residence of relatives or friends where the homeless child resides out of necessity because his or her family lacks a regular or permanent residence of its own." N.J.A.C. 6A:17-1.2 and 2.2 (emphasis added). When a child's dwelling becomes fixed, regular and adequate, domicile attaches immediately. Egg Harbor, supra, Commissioner's Decision No. 555-10 at 4.

Thus, conducting a homelessness evaluation to determine whether a child's home is considered fixed, regular and adequate requires a fact-specific analysis and "cannot rest upon a simple calculation of the amount of time that children have spent in a particular location or municipality." M. O'K. v. Board of Education of the Borough of Cresskill, et al, Commissioner Decision No. 325-14, decided August 12, 2014 at 3, aff'd, A-0828-14T4 (App. Div. Sept. 8, 2016). In conducting such a fact-specific inquiry, the Commissioner must consider the totality of the circumstances, such as "[t]he reasons for the children's homelessness, their living conditions, and the resources and intentions of the parents or custodians are relevant." Ibid.

Once it is determined whether a child is homeless, the question becomes which district is financially responsible for the child's education. Ordinarily, a student is eligible for a free public education in a school district if he or she is domiciled within the school district. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a); N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a). A student's domicile is determined by the domicile of his or her parents. N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a)(1). When a child becomes homeless, the school district of residence – i.e., the school district in which the child resided before becoming homeless – remains responsible for the cost of the child's education, including when the child is temporarily living and attending school in another school district. N.J.A.C. 6A:17-2.3; N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12. However, when a homeless child lives in a school district for one year or longer – and a new domicile has not been established – the child is "deemed domiciled" in that district for the purposes of determining which district is responsible for the cost of the child's education. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(d); N.J.A.C. 6A:17-2.3(c).

Here, the Commissioner finds that L.B. became domiciled in the Bogota home upon moving in and was therefore no longer homeless. Not only did L.B. testify that she intended to make the Bogota home a "permanent, semi-permanent situation" so that M.B. could finish 8th grade and have four consecutive years of high school, but her actions also confirmed her intent to make the home her permanent residence. She cleaned and painted the home, switched her son's school district to Bogota, and changed the address on her driver's license to reflect her new address. She also intended to be added to the lease, as her sister-in-law told her that she would be added in January 2018. Additionally, the living arrangements support a finding that the home was a fixed, regular and adequate nighttime residence. The home consisted of four bedrooms, so L.B. and M.B. each had their own bedroom and shared a private bathroom. While they were residing in the home of a family member, it was not solely out of necessity; L.B. made the decision to move into that home as a permanent residence to provide long-term stability for her son. Accordingly, as domicile attaches immediately when a child's dwelling becomes fixed, regular and adequate, the Bogota home became M.B.'s domicile in December 2017. The unfortunate events that occurred following that time, which ultimately resulted in the family becoming homeless again, do not change the fact that they had already established a domicile in the Bogota home. As such, Bogota became responsible for the cost of M.B.'s education beginning in December 2017.

The Commissioner does not find the exceptions filed by Bogota and Zarra to be persuasive. Bogota argues that N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a)(1) removed the reference to intent from the regulation that defines domicile for student residency matters, which demonstrates that intent is not a relevant consideration. While N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a)(1) previously provided that a student's domicile is the school district where the student's parent or guardian has a permanent home, such that "the parent or guardian intends to return to it when absent and has no present intent of moving from it," it now states that "a student is domiciled in the school district when he or she is the child of a parent or guardian whose domicile is located within the district." The Commissioner notes that when the rule was amended in 2013, the Rule Proposal explained why the word "permanent home" was changed to "domicile" and why the definition of permanent home (indicating an intent to return and no present intent of moving from) was removed. 45 N.J.R. 1209(a) (May 20, 2013). "Domicile is a legal term of art that encompasses the term 'permanent home' and is more appropriate[.]" Ibid. The Rule Adoption further explained that "[t]he definition of 'domicile' does not need to be included in the chapter as it is a term of art and is well defined in case law." 45 N.J.R. 2551(a) (December 16, 2013). As the term "domicile" is widely known to rely on an individual's intent, it is relevant in the student residency context as well. Moreover, the Commissioner has previously found that the intentions of the parents are also relevant in conducting a homelessness determination. M. O'K., supra, at 3; see also Volk, supra, Commissioner's Decision No. 106-16 (remanding a homelessness matter because a "comprehensive, fact-specific examination of the family's circumstances" is required to determine whether the child is homeless).

The Commissioner further disagrees with Bogota and Zarra that a "one-year rule" replaces the traditional elements of domicile for homeless students. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(d) provides: "Any person whose parent or guardian, even though not domiciled within the district, is residing temporarily therein, but any person who has had or shall have his all-year-round dwelling place within the district for one year or longer shall be deemed to be domiciled within the district for the purposes of this section." (emphasis added). Accordingly, while a homeless child may be deemed domiciled in a district after residing in that school district temporarily for one year or longer, the family may establish domicile prior to one year. As such, the "one-year rule" will only deem a homeless child to be domiciled within a school district if he or she has not already established a domicile.

Finally, the Commissioner disagrees with Bogota and Zarra that the Initial Decision in Egg Harbor, supra, is controlling. The Initial Decision notes that in analyzing the circumstances of homeless families, "their actual intentions, as opposed to their viable choices, must be reconciled," and, as homeless families may live in places for short times, tuition cannot be allocated solely on intent. Id. However, the Commissioner's Decision makes no reference to any limitation on intent in a homelessness determination, and instead states that "domicile attaches immediately if a student's dwelling is found to be fixed, regular and adequate." Egg Harbor, supra, Commissioner's Decision No. 555-10, at 4. Furthermore, subsequent to Egg Harbor, the Commissioner has made clear that homelessness determinations require a fact-specific analysis that includes the intentions of the parents or guardians. M. O'K., supra; Volk, supra, Commissioner's Decision No. 106-16; State-Operated School District of the City of Camden v. C. Ann Volk, Executive County Superintendent, et al, Commissioner's Decision No. 172-17R, decided June 20, 2017; J.G., on behalf of minor children, T.G. and C.G. v. Board of Education of the Township of Edison, et al, Commissioner's Decision No. 125-20, decided June 15, 2020.

Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL is adopted. Bogota is directed to assume the financial responsibility for M.B.'s education from December 2017 until M.B. is domiciled outside of Bogota. Bogota's counterclaim for reimbursement of M.B.'s education costs is dismissed.

BEFORE ERNEST M. BONGIOVANNI, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner the Borough of Wood-Ridge Board of Education (Wood-Ridge or petitioner) claims that respondent, Borough of Bogota Board of Education (Bogota or respondent) was responsible for providing a free public education to M.B., the child of L.B. beginning December 5, 2017. Wood-Ridge claims M.B. and L.B. were domiciled in Bogota as of that date.

Respondents Bogota, Joseph Zarra, the Interim Executive County Superintendent of Schools, (County Superintendent/Zarra) who made the decision that Wood-Ridge is responsible for M.B.'s public education, and L.B., the mother of M.B. all claim that because L.B. and M.B. never lived in Bogota at a permanent address for more than 12 months before attending public school in Bogota, that Wood-Ridge, where M.B. was educated since 2009, and where they last had a fixed addressed, remained responsible for M.B.'s public education, even after they moved to Bogota. Accordingly, they seek reimbursement of $29,275.95 plus interest plus an order compelling petitioner to assume financial responsibility for a December 2019 out of district School invoice for retroactive tuition for M.B. and for any additional tuition charged by any entity providing education to M.B. during M.B.'s and L.B.'s alleged homelessness.

Because of the reasons that follow, I have determined that the Bogota Board of Education is the financially responsible district, and reverse the Superintendent's decision, and order that all of M.B.'s public education costs as of December 5, 2017 is Bogota's.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

For approximately a year prior to December 5, 2017, L.B. and M.B. had moved from place to place, including at least twice residing outside Wood-Ridge, after L.B.'s mother house in Wood-Ridge was sold in November 2016. M.B. had been publicly educated in Wood-Ridge since 2009. However, on December 5, 2017, L.B. signed a student Transfer Card (J-6) stating that M.B.'s last day at Wood-Ridge elementary school was December 5, 2017. On December 12, 2017, Bogota Public Schools registered M.B. as a student of the Bogota School system. Student Registration Form (J-9). L.B. signed the form which contained her new address in Bogota. The form noted that also living at the home in Bogota with M.B.'s aunt. Attached to the form was L.B.'s driver's license showing L.B.'s address to be the same as the address as described on the Student Registration Form.

On June 1, 2018, Jill Connolly, the Supervisor of Pupil Education for Bogota wrote a letter to Superintendent Zarra "to determine the district of origin" of M.B. (J-12). The letter noted that although L.B. reported that she resided in Bogota with her sister, at her sister's house and that she was cosigning the lease, Ms. Connolly was not satisfied that M.B. and L.B. were not still homeless. Ms. Connolly's letter informed the Superintendent that it was her understanding that the last "permanent address" of L.B. and M.B. was a house in Wood-Ridge which was sold in November 2016, after L.B.'s mother died. The letter further stated that L.B. and M.B. had to vacate their home leased by her sister in March 2018 after the discovery of mold. However, L.B. informed Ms. Connolly that although temporarily displaced from their Bogota home, she intended to move back once the mold was remediated or move to another home in Bogota. However, a month later L.B. reported to Ms. Connolly that she had not located another residence in Bogota, that she was not returning to the Bogota home belonging to her sister because of a family conflict and was temporarily staying at a motel in Whippany.

On July 26, 2018, County Superintendent Zarra wrote a letter (J-18) to the Bogota Superintendent of Public Schools that he determined M.B. was a "homeless child", pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A-17-2.2. in that he lacked a "fixed regular and adequate nighttime residence" pursuant to said regulation and to N.J.S.A. 18A-78.12, because since November 2016, when they had their last permanent residence in Bogota, M.B. and L.B. had not lived in any other district for the "required "12 months or more" (citing N.J.S.A. 18A-38-1(d).) Accordingly, in his determination, Wood-Ridge remained financially responsible for M.B.'s public education.

On August 9, 2018, Damian Kennedy Superintendent of Schools for Bogota wrote a letter (J-19) to his counterpart Superintendent Cipriano of Wood-Ridge informing him of Superintendent Zarra's determination, and attaching Superintendent Zarra's letter and further advised that although Wood-Ridge was appealing that decision, Wood- Ridge was responsible for monies expended by Bogota as of that date for M.B.'s public education, in the amount of $29,375.95. and that Wood-Ridge remains financially responsible for M.B.'s continued placement and program. This appeal ensued by an Amended Petition of Appeal by Wood-Ridge, filed on or about September 1, 2018.

FACTUAL FINDINGS AND DISCUSSION

At the hearing, Wood-Ridge offered testimony of Silvia Ragueso, the Director of Student special Services and L.B., the mother of M.B. Bogota offered the testimony of County Executive Superintendent Zarra, and Jill Connolly, the supervisor of People Personal Services for the Bogota BOE.

Preliminarily, all of the facts as recounted in the Procedural history were either not contested or are not disputed. Further, based upon a review of the testimony and the documentary evidence presented, and having an opportunity to observe the demeanor of the witnesses and assess their credibility, I find the following additional FACTS to have been established as set forth below.

M.B. and his mother L.B. had been unsettled in any one domicile for approximately a year commencing when L.B.'s mother's home was sold in November 2016, following L.B.'s mother's death. At times, the mother and child stayed in some places outside the district, such as North Arlington and Hackensack, while M.B. continued to attend Wood-Ridge, and while L.B. continued to have contact with Wood-Ridge schools, including advising them of her whereabouts. In early December 2017, Ms. Ragueso learned of a bus location transfer pending for M.B. Ms. Ragueso contacted L.B. by phone and L.B. advised Ms. Ragueso that she and M.B. were moving to her sister or sister in law's[1] house in Bogota. Although L.B. was questioned if she had a lease, L.N. advised Ms. Ragueso that she would be living with her sister who had lived in this four-bedroom home for several years, and that L.B. would be added to the lease the following month, in January 2019. She also provided Ms. Ragueso a copy of her current driver's license which used her sister's address in Bogota as L.B.'s address. Ms. Ragueso testified that L.B. was excited that she had found a stable home environment for her and M.B. after a period of effective homelessness. She detailed the new living conditions where she and L.B. would have their own bedrooms, and bathroom, that she would pay rent to her sister until she was added to the lease, and that she also intended to help her sister, who had some disabilities, with needed transportation at times. Following this interaction with Ms. Ragueso, L.B. signed the aforementioned Student Transfer Card, containing the new Bogota address. As memorialized in a letter Ms. Ragueso wrote to County Executive Superintendent Zarra, L.B. told Ms. Ragueso that "she was excited to be back on her feet again and to finally have a permanent place to live..." She felt she had done her due diligence in making sure the new address with her sister was not a temporary arrangement but intended to be permanent. However, once L.B. signed M.B. out the school district of Wood Ridge, she never asked L.B. to provide a copy of the lease as it was not required nor their procedure.

[1] As with many relations, it appears L.B. referred to her relative in Bogota, at times as her sister, when in fact she was her sister in law. She also described her sister in law as M.B.'s "aunt." For brevity, this relative is referred to herein as "sister" to L.B. or as M.B.'s aunt.

L.B. testified that she had decided to live with her sister when her sister asked her to move there in November 2017. L.B.'s sister had a four-bedroom home in Bogotá that was Section 8 qualified and L.B.'s moving there would help her keep her Section 8 status. At the same time, the move to Bogota would provide L.B. with an affordable rent and, in her words "stability for my son." In addition to rent, she had also agreed to help her sister with her disabilities, by example providing transportation for doctor's appointments. L.B. arranged for her mail to be sent to the house in Bogota. Further, she paid for several improvements to the home before moving in such as some "updates" cleaning and "painting all of it." In directly responding to the question posed by Wood-Ridge "So when you moved in Bogota how long did you intend to stay there?" L.B replied that when she moved, she "hoped" it would be "like a permanent-semi permanent situation at least to get [her son] into high school." [2]

Additionally, L.B. responded that her sworn to answers to Interrogatories were "the truth." One interrogatory had asked "(F)or how long did you plan to stay at that [Bogota] address?" L.B. replied "Two years max originally, and then till he [M.B.] finished and we were stable to have four consecutive years of high school."

L.B. then recounted a number of reasons why, although her intentions were to originally to permanently reside with her sister in Bogota, the living arrangements soon deteriorated. For one, her sister wasn't as forthcoming as she should have been when she claimed that L.N. could co-sign the lease as early as January. L.B. soon learned that the landlord's and the Section 8 approval would not come until March. Further, in March, M.B. became ill and it was determined this was owing to mold in the house's basement which had to be remediated. Nevertheless, and although some of these problems began just weeks after moving in, L.S. was asked directly, "But after you had moved in before you stayed there for weeks and it was your intention to remain there correct?" Her reply was "Yeah Yeah."

[2] M.B. was in the 8th grade when they moved to Bogota.

Under cross-examination, L.B. at times appeared to equivocate by modifying the description of her "intent" by adding or substituting the word "hope" for "intent" saying, for example it was always her "hope" the move would be permanent. Her problem was that after she moved in "I didn't have anything in hand saying that it was going to be what it is [meaning as negotiated with her sister]. So I was always careful of the fact of saying I'm hopeful form and I was pushing for it , but...."

In any event, although she initially waited for the mold remediation to move back in with her sister, they began to fight and at some point, the sister locked her and M.B. out the house, so she and M.B. never returned there except to move out their property.

L.B. kept M.B. in the Bogota school until his June 8th grade graduation, although by this time she had moved in temporarily with a friend in Hackensack, as she had a year before. L.B.'s testimony heaped praise upon Bogota's BOE. She testified they were "Very gracious, Very professional". They were honest with me as far as you know, like what they needed and I was honest with them back saying I have it until a certain time, but they put the child first and the child's needs first and they took him in regardless and they did a reval and re-placed him, So they went far and beyond for my son". She contrasted this from what can only be called somewhat cold treatment she received from Wood-Ridge of whom she said: "I was notified by Ridgefield (an out of district placement Wood-Ridge had previously paid for) through Wood-Ridge early in December that M. could not attend [XX] school . He could not go back to his—removed...They hadn't even had it official through me yet and I had that phone just saying he couldn't come back and he never got his property back from the [XX] school either." I find that L.B.'s opinion of the Bogota BOE and the Wood-Ridge BOE may account for her equivocation in appearing to deflect the use of the word intent by attempting to distinguish her intent from what she said her "hope" was.

On redirect however, L.B. was asked:

> Q' When you moved into the house in Bogota did you ever have any knowledge that [your sister] had any issues with her lease at that time?.

Her answer, in pertinent part was:

> A (W)ell no. .Actually when she asked me to in she told me that she would have to contact the landlord and have me added to her lease, okay she didn't give me any inclination there was a problem".

To elaborate, L.B. explained that the problem with the lease "came to light" subsequent to moving in. The questioning continued

> Q : And when you had initially moved in, it is fair to say you had intended to stay there at least two years.
> A: Yeah. I was hoping.

Later to the Court's questioning about L.B.'s intent, she stated:

> A: I started the end of November going in there cleaning and painting and making it ready for us to move in, so I cleaned the entire house
>
> Q : Because you intended to reside there [?]
> A: Because we intended to yes, yes because this was going to be the home we were going to make...So we intended to stay there, you know that was the plan.

Bogota called fellow respondent Joseph Zarra to establish the basis for his determination that M.S. became homeless in November 2016 and had remained homeless even after relocating with his mother to Bogota. He stated.

> A: [C]ommon sense would indicate that a child that has been moved from home to home with no permanent address and many times living with someone under the same roof is not – it is not their home. And in this case if I may, the child moved many times in a period...I believe it was nineteen months.
>
> Q: Do you consider the physical nature of the home?
> A: No we don't have the investigative ability to go in and determine that
>
> Q: Do you consider whether the home is fixed, regular and adequate?
> A: We do not

> Q: How does one establish domicile, in your understanding?
> A: In our interpretation domicile is a home where a child resides that is permanent, and we didn't see that.
>
> Q: So, it is fair to say that if a child moves from town to town, they wouldn't be considered domiciled there until they spent one continuous year there?
> A: I think it's fair to say that, yes.
>
> Q: Could a person intentionally move from on town to another to establish domicile there?
> A: We would have no idea.
>
> Q: So today, you don't know if that person's is relevant to establishing domicile?
> A: Intention to my knowledge does not come into it.

Mr. Zarra also stated it is not their policy to get statements or information from the parents when making a determination of homelessness but instead he relies exclusively on letters provide to him by the districts. While Superintendent Zarra stated that homeless means a "child or youth who lacks a fixed regular and adequate nighttime residence," he also insisted they never consider factors such as the living arrangements at the house like whether the child has a separate bedroom and other specifics of the living arrangements. Yet somewhat inconsistently, he testified he did consider that L.B. was supposed to be added to the lease.

When questioned about whether this so called one-year time requirement was uniformly enforced by all school districts, Superintendent Zarra explained.

> A: (T) hat really varies from school district to school district. There are some school districts that are sticklers and until the family establishes permanent residence, they really won't entertain registering the child. Other school districts if evidence is presented that for example they're going to close on the house and they have a letter from the realtor, letter from the seller or the attorney, they'll allow each child to > register. So again, it really is up to each individual school district how they handle that.

>
> Q Okay, So the fact that the child has not resided in that district for twelve months or more is not a uniform rule to give guidance to the district as to whether or not that child is entitled to a free education in that district?
> A: I don't believe so.

LEGAL ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSION

N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a) and N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a) sets forth forth the right of a student to a free public education, which in pertinent parts states:

> Public schools shall be free to the following persons over five and under twenty years of age:
>
> a. Any person who is domiciled within the school district[.]

See V.R. ex rel A.R. v. Hamburg Bd. of Educ., 2 N.J.A.R. 283, 287 (1980), aff'd, State Bd., 1981 S.L.D. 1533, rev'd on other grounds sub nom.; Rabinowitz v. N.J. State Bd. of Educ., 550 F. Supp. 481 (D.N.J. 1982) (New Jersey requires local domicile, as opposed to mere residence, in order for a student to receive a free education).

The domicile of an unemancipated child is that of his parent, custodian or guardian. Somerville Bd. of Educ. v. Manville Bd. of Educ., 332 N.J. Super. 6, 12 (App. Div. 2000), aff'd, 167 N.J. 55 (2001); P.B.K. o/b/o minor child E.Y. v. Board of Ed. of Tenafly, 343 N.J. Super 419, 427 (App. Div. 2001).

A student's "domicile" is where the student's parent or guardian has a permanent home in the school district such that "the parent or guardian intends to return to it when absent and has no present intent of moving from it, notwithstanding the existence of homes or residences elsewhere." N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a)(1); State v. Benny, 20 N.J 238, 250 (1955); In re Unanue, 255 N.J. Super. 362, 374 (Law Div. 1991), aff'd, 311 N.J. Super. 589 (App. Div.), certif. denied, 157 N.J. 541 (1998), cert. denied, 526 U.S. 1051, 119 S. Ct. 1357, 143 L. Ed. 2d 518 (1999). Put another way, the Appellate Division has long held that a person's domicile is "the place where [a person] has his [or her} true fixed permanent home and principle establishment and to which whenever he [or she] is absent he [or she] has an intention of returning," and from which he {or she] has no intention of moving. D.L., 366 N.J. Super at 273 (quoting T.B.W. ex rel A.W. v Bd. of Educ. Of Bellville, EDU 5959-96 (April 20, 1998) http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/). Intent is the decisive factor in establishing domicile. A person's intent converts a residence from a mere place in which a person lives to a domicile. State v Benny, 20 NJ at 251.

Here, however, it is argued by all the respondents that regardless of their intent, L.B. and M.B. remained "homeless" throughout December 2017 and the remainder of the 2018 school year because they failed to spend one continuous year in Bogota (or anywhere else) during that time. That misreads the wording and intent of the applicable law.

Petitioner correctly cites the applicable statutes and regulations, where there is a condition of homelessness the last district of residence shall pay another school district the tuition costs. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A: 38-19, however such payments are made by the former district of permanent residence when a homeless child is enrolled in a district other than where the child last resided until the parent establishes a permanent residence or is deemed domiciled in another jurisdiction pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1.d. At that time, the school district of residence shall no longer pay tuition to the school district of enrollment. N.J.A.C. 6A: 172.8 (emphasis supplied).

Thus, the school district of residence is responsible to pay for the homeless child until that child either becomes domiciled at a location or are "deemed domiciled at a location under N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 (d)" (emphasis supplied) because they spent one continuous year there. Clearly the statute provides that domiciles may be recognized as existing well before one year and do not require any specific length of time, but rather can be established based on the intent of the persons seeking to establish a domicile.

Here, the Bogota BOE and Superintendent Zarra erred in ignoring all the clear evidence that L.B. intended to make her sister's house in Bogota her and M.B.'s domicile and did in fact do so when she moved there in December 2017. She had every intention in making this her permanent home, just as she told the Wood-Ridge School representative when she signed M.B. out of the school and had him enroll in Bogota one week after the move. Prior to moving in that December L.B cleaned, painted and fixed up the four-bedroom house to get it ready as a permanent home for her and her son and to live with her sister in a house she intended to co-lease. She changed her driver's license to reflect her new address. She made an agreement with her sister how to divide costs and intended to co-sign the lease as soon as the landlord presented it. The fact that L.B. wanted to co-sign the lease as early as January 2018 but the landlord advised that he needed Section 8 approval and would add her to the lease in March of 2018 did not change L.B.'s intent when she decided to move to that address in Bogota. Further, she did not leave the address on her own volition. It is undisputed that even when she and her son left the house probably in March 2018 while mold was being remediated, she testified she intended to return there. It is only when she began fighting with her sister and got locked out in April 2018 did she give up on the house and became homeless again.

Respondent would have us completely ignore the intention (or "hope") of L.B. to establish, when she moved in to move in with her sister to have a permanent place for at least until her son could graduate from high school in four years. Despite a few somewhat modest complaints, L.B. did not abandon the domicile until she was locked out four months after by her sister. Superintendent Zarra testified "intention" has nothing to do creating a domicile. Conversely, he conceded that whether a child stays one year or more at a certain residence provides "no guidance" to the district in the determination of whether that district has to provide that child with a free public education, and that the duration of the stay at a residence provides no uniform guidance to the districts. I cannot agree on either count. Whether the rules are not enforced uniformly y the districts does not change the "deemed" section of the applicable section, and The Executive Superintendent's disregard for the intention to create a domicile was clearly a misreading of the statute and its intent.

Clearly the preponderance of the evidence shows that when L.B. moved to her sister's four bedroom home in Bogota, was the place she found and determined to be, after a period of about a year of homelessness, a "fixed permanent home and principle establishment and to which whenever she was absent (e.g. like when she became absent in about March 2018 because of the mold) she had the intention of returning to and from which he she had no intention of moving. A domicile may be acquired upon the "concurrence, even for a moment of physical presence at a dwelling place with the intention of making it a permanent abode." Lyon v Glaser, 60 N.J. 259,264 (1972). Further as a matter of law, the "deemed domiciled" provision of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(d) was misread or misinterpreted by the Respondents to impose a 12 month minimum as a sine qua non requirement to establish the domicile of a previously homeless child. As evidenced by the clear wording and intent of the statute, the 12- month requirement simply deems the domicile to have been created without further proof being needed. Here, petitioners showed by a preponderance of the evidence the further proof of that intent to create the domicile in Bogota.

CONCLUSION

Based on the letter of determination by Superintendent Zarra, Bogota has charged Wood-Ridge with the cost Bogota expended for educational costs of M.B. from the time he registered with their school district in December 2017 until his graduation in June 2018, in the amount of $29,375.95, and requests an order that Wood-Ridge continues to pay the cost of M.B.'s public education until L.B. and M.B. establish a new domicile. However, as shown, Bogota's demand must be denied as it was based on an arbitrary and capricious finding which ignored the fact that L.B. and M.B. clearly established a new domicile in Bogota commencing in December 2017. Consequently, the Superintendent's decision is REVERSED, and Bogota's demands for payment and other relief are DENIED. Further, Bogota continues to be financially responsible for M.B.'s public education costs until such time as their new domicile is established outside the district.

ORDER

Based upon the foregoing, it is ORDERED that the decision by the County Executive Superintendent of Schools that M.B. and L.B. did not establish a domicile in Bogota and remained homeless is REVERSED, and the claims by Bogota for reimbursement for the costs of M.B.'s public education between December 2017 and June 2018, and for the demand for prospective relief ordering Wood-Ridge to pay the financial costs of M.B.'s public education until such time as they establish another domicile is DENIED. It is further ordered that Bogota continues to be financially responsible for M.B.'s public education until such time that L.B. an M.B. establish a domicile outside of Bogota.

I hereby FILE my initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

New Jersey Commissioner of Education

Final Decision

Jared Fowler,

Petitioner,

v.

Board of Education of the Passaic Valley Regional High School District, Passaic County,

Respondent.

Synopsis

Petitioner – employed by the school district as the Assistant Principal of Humanities – appealed the determination of the respondent Board to withhold his salary increment for the 2019-20 school year as consequence for his failure to provide administrative oversight of the 2019 yearbook. Petitioner contended that the Board's action in withholding his increment was arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable, arguing, inter alia, that it was not his job responsibility as Assistant Principal to edit and/or supervise the yearbook. The parties filed cross motions for summary decision.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: there are no material facts at issue in this case, and the matter is ripe for summary decision; pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14, a board of education may withhold a teacher's increment for inefficiency or other good cause; in the spring of the 2018–19 school year, the Board became aware of inappropriate written content in the 2019 yearbook which sparked controversy and became a "public relations nightmare" for the school district; in his role as Assistant Principal of Humanities, the petitioner oversees the English department, which includes an elective Editing and Publishing course that creates and reviews yearbook content; it is undisputed that the 2019 yearbook contained inappropriate writing that caused controversy among parents and other members of the public; the inappropriate content was either missed or ignored by district staff who directly oversaw the yearbook; in responding to the resulting controversy, the Board held the two teachers in the Editing and Publishing course accountable, as well as those administrators whom the Board deemed to have failed to provide administrative oversight, leadership and supervision of the yearbook project, including the petitioner. The ALJ concluded that the Board's decision to withhold petitioner's salary increment was not arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. Accordingly, summary decision was granted in favor of the Board, and the petition was dismissed.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ's findings and conclusions in this matter and adopted the Initial Decision as the final decision for the reasons thoroughly expressed therein. The petition was dismissed.

This synopsis is not part of the Commissioner's decision. It has been prepared for the convenience of the reader. It has been neither reviewed nor approved by the Commissioner.

7. As Assistant Principal, petitioner has worked under the job description entitled "Assistant Principal of Humanities" which was adopted by the respondent on or about April 26, 2016.

8. The Assistant Principal of Humanities' job description sets forth the performance responsibilities for which petitioner was held accountable.[1]

9. The respondent has historically assigned teacher advisors to the Yearbook Club, a stipend position which assists with the Yearbook activities and which falls under Student Activities unit.

10. The Yearbook content is created and reviewed in the class entitled Editing and Publishing, which is in the English Department and falls under Humanities. The Editing and Publishing class is an official elective course which issues a grade and edits the content of the Yearbook, falling under the auspices of approved student activities at Passaic Valley Regional High School. The two teachers assigned to the Yearbook Club are paid a stipend.

11. The Yearbook Club handles extra-curricular activity outside of classroom hours, such as fundraising, and does not establish or review the content of the Yearbook.

12. There is no individual assigned as the Supervisor of Humanities. The position is vacant. The petitioner in his role as Assistant Principal supervises the Humanities and English departments, wherein the Editing and Publishing course falls.

[1] The job description was attached as an exhibit to the Stipulation of Facts, and is incorporated herein.

13. During the 2018–2019 school term, the teachers of the Editing and Publishing course were Lori Demsey and Leanne Weiss. Ms. Weiss reported to the petitioner. Ms. Demsey reported to the Supervisor of STEM.

14. During the 2018–2019 school term, the yearbook advisor stipend positions were also given to Lori Demsey and Leanne Weiss. This was their first year as advisors to the yearbook.

15. Both Ms. Demsey and Ms. Weiss, as teachers of the Editing and Publishing class, were also assigned to be yearbook advisors by the Superintendent, Dr. JoAnn Cardillo. Their appointment as yearbook advisors had been approved by the Board of Education.

16. Both Ms. Demsey and Ms. Weiss received the payment of a stipend to be the yearbook advisors.[2]

17. In their capacity as yearbook advisors during the 2018–2019 school term, Ms. Demsey and Ms. Weiss reported to Joseph Benvenuti, the Student Activities Coordinator.[3]

18. The job description for the Student Activities Coordinator title provides under "performance responsibilities" that he is to "oversee club operations" and that he is to "develop standard operating procedures" for clubs "when necessary."

19. During the 2018–2019 school term, petitioner was never explicitly asked or assigned to review and/or have oversight responsibilities as to the contents of the yearbook or any of its activities.

[2] Their job description for the yearbook advisors was attached as an exhibit to the Stipulation of Facts and is incorporated herein.

[3] The job description for the Student Activities Coordinator was attached as an exhibit to the Stipulation of Facts, and is incorporated herein.

20. Petitioner, in his capacity as Assistant Principal, did not supervise the Student Activities Coordinator either during the 2018–2019 school term, or in any prior years.

21. In the spring of the 2018–2019 school term, the respondent became aware of a writing in the 2019 yearbook which was deemed inappropriate. The writing was as follows:

> Nickname: DaBomb, Bombza
> Ambition: To get past TSA without getting stopped
> Secret Ambition: To Be a Pilot
> I would thank Allah, but I know the FBI is watching

22. This sparked controversy among some parents and members of the public.

23. As a result of the controversy, by way of a letter dated June 25, 2019, respondent, through its then Superintendent, Dr. JoAnn Cardillo, informed the petitioner that, at its meeting of June 25, 2019, the respondent voted to "withhold" his "salary increase for the 2019–2020 school term." The reason was for the increment withholding was "failure to provide administrative oversight of the functions of the 2019 yearbook."

24. The Student Activities Coordinator who had oversight responsibilities for the yearbook activities did not receive an increment withholding.

25. The Student Activities Coordinator received a letter of reprimand that was placed in his personnel file regarding his role in the incident. The two teachers, Ms. Weiss and Ms. Demsey, received an increment withholding and remained on their current step on the salary guide. The Principal and Assistant Principal both had their salary increases rescinded for lack of supervision and oversight. Lastly, the Board passed a public reprimand against the Superintendent for lack of supervision and oversight. As the principal retired in or about October 2019, petitioner is the only remaining administrator to have had his increment withheld which he has appealed through this action.

26. Petitioner received an effective evaluation at the conclusion of the 2018–2019 school term. The evaluation was conducted by the Principal and was completed prior to the yearbook incident.[4]

I also FIND the following FACTS, as they are undisputed:

Petitioner's salary as an administrator is set by the Board, and any salary increase is not subject to any collective bargaining agreement or salary guide, but subject to the Board's consideration and approval. The petitioner has no right to an automatic salary increase every year, despite the fact that he received salary increases annually in the past, and this year.

LEGAL ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSION

The parties seek relief pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5, which provides that summary decision should be rendered "if the papers and discovery which have been filed, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law." Our regulation mirrors R. 4:46-2(c) which provides that "the judgment or order sought shall be rendered if the pleadings, depositions, answers to interrogatories and admissions on file, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to a judgment or order as a matter of law."

A determination whether a genuine issue of material fact exists that precludes summary decision requires the judge to consider whether the competent evidential materials presented, when viewed in the light most favorable to the non-moving party, are sufficient to permit a rational fact finder to resolve the allegedly disputed issue in favor of the non-moving party. Our courts have long held that "if the opposing party offers . . . only facts which are immaterial or of an insubstantial nature, a mere scintilla, 'fanciful frivolous, gauzy or merely suspicious,' he will not be heard to complain if the court grants summary judgment." Brill v. Guardian Life Ins. Co. of Am., 142 N.J. 520, 529 (1995) (citing Judson v. Peoples Bank and Trust Co., 17 N.J. 67, 75 (1954)).

[4] Petitioner's evaluations as Assistant Principal were attached as exhibits to the Stipulation of Facts, and incorporated herein.

The "judge's function is not himself [or herself] to weigh the evidence and determine the truth of the matter but to determine whether there is a genuine issue for trial." Brill, at 540, (citing Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, 477 U.S. 242, 249, 106 S. Ct. 2505, 2511, 91 L. Ed. 2d 202, 213 (1986)). When the evidence "is so one-sided that one party must prevail as a matter of law," the trial court should not hesitate to grant summary judgment. Liberty Lobby, 477 U.S. at 251-252, 106 S. Ct. at 2512, 91 L .Ed. 2d at 214.

Following the Brill standard, and after considering the Stipulation of Facts, attached joint exhibits, and briefs, I CONCLUDE that there are no genuine issues of material fact that require a plenary hearing and that this matter is ripe for summary decision.

Petitioner essentially makes two arguments in support of his motion for summary decision. First, petitioner argues that the Board's action to withhold his salary increase was arbitrary and capricious because it was not his job responsibility as Assistant Principal to edit and/or supervise the yearbook. Petitioner asserts that it was the Yearbook Advisors and Student Activities Coordinator who made the editing error here, and the responsibility of advising and supervising the Yearbook, and of supervising the Coordinator of Student Activities was outside the scope of petitioner's job responsibilities. Therefore, petitioner argues that no inefficiency or other good cause exists upon which the Board could impose such a disciplinary consequence against him. Petitioner also argues that the fact that he supervised the work in the classroom associated with the teaching assignments of the Yearbook Advisors does not demonstrate a lack of "administrative oversight." Moreover, petitioner points out that he received an effective evaluation from the building principal for the 2018–2019 school year, and asserts that he and the Principal were only "targeted" because of their administrative positions and not because of how they performed their job duties.

Second, petitioner argues that the Board "acted inconsistently" disciplining him with an increment withholding while only reprimanding the Student Activities Coordinator who "had the responsibility of supervising the editing and the publication of the yearbook."

The Board argues that petitioner fails to acknowledge his responsibility to provide supervision and oversight to the Editing and Publishing course that is responsible for editing the yearbook. The Board disputes petitioner's assertion that the Student Activities Coordinator should be held responsible because the Yearbook Club, which the Student Activities Coordinator supervises, is involved in editing and publishing the yearbook. In its reply, the Board points out that the petitioner's statements concerning the Student Activities Coordinator and Yearbook Club contradict paragraphs 9 and 10 of the Stipulated Facts, and that the Yearbook Club only handles extra-curricular activity outside of classroom hours, such as fundraising and does not establish or review the content of the Yearbook. (Stipulation of Facts, ¶ 10.) The Board maintains that it is the Editing and Publishing Course that has complete control over the Yearbook content while the Yearbook club has none. Because petitioner supervises the English department that controls the Editing and Publishing Course, the Board determined that petitioner failed to properly perform his supervisory duties.

The Board argues that it has the authority and the discretion to impose a monetary sanction in the form of withholding a merit-based raise on an Administrator pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14, and that its actions here were neither arbitrary, without good cause, nor an abuse of discretion with improper motives. N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14, which addresses a board's withholding of a teaching staff member's increment provides in part:

> Any board of education may withhold, for inefficiency or other good cause, the employment increment, or the adjustment increment, or both, of any member in any year by a recorded roll call majority vote of the full membership of the board of education . . . ."

Burden of Proof

Petitioner asserts that it is the Board who has the burden of proof in this matter because the action taken against petitioner was disciplinary and not based on performance, and had this matter gone through arbitration, the Board would have had to demonstrate just cause for denying the increment. Petitioner's argument, which is unsupported by any caselaw, is misplaced. The Board withheld a salary increase for Fowler's "failure to provide administrative oversight" of the Yearbook—i.e., failure to adequately perform his supervisory duties. Petitioner's classification of this matter as "disciplinary," is irrelevant to determining who has the burden of proof, and it is also immaterial that the burden of proof may have been different had Fowler been part of a collective bargaining unit or had this matter been handled in arbitration. Kopera v. W. Orange Bd. of Educ., 60 N.J. Super. 288 (App. Div. 1960), which was cited by the Board, holds that "[w]hen challenging an increment withholding, the teacher has the burden of proof to show that the board of education acted arbitrarily without rational basis or was induced by improper motives." Kopera also holds that "[i]n the absence of clear and convincing proof that a board of education acted unreasonably or in a cursory manner in withholding an increment, the Commissioner will not substitute his judgment for the board of education's judgment." Id. at 296. I CONCLUDE that it is the petitioner who carries the burden to prove to establish that the Board lacked good cause to withhold Fowler's salary increase, and that its decision was arbitrary and capricious or induced by improper motives.

The Board maintains that there was no improper motive and the action taken against Fowler was not unreasonable. Six staff members were sanctioned for this incident, including Fowler, and the Board's managerial prerogative to take this action has a presumption of correctness. According to the Board, the incident with the Yearbook had a tremendous negative public relations impact on the Board, and the Yearbook's content is created and reviewed in the Editing and Publishing class, whose teachers Fowler supervises. The teachers of that class, who also happen to be the "Yearbook Advisors," were sanctioned, as was the Principal who supervises the petitioner, and the Superintendent even received a verbal reprimand of no confidence due to this incident.

Here, while Fowler may not have been expressly assigned to review the content of the Yearbook, he is not completely disconnected from this mishap. He had oversight of the class responsible for creating and reviewing the content of the Yearbook, and of at least one of its teachers. It is undisputed that the 2019 Yearbook contained inappropriate writing that caused controversy among parents and other members of the public, and the Board was faced with having to respond to this controversy. This inappropriate and controversial writing was either missed or ignored, and the Board chose to act not only by holding the two teachers in the Editing and Publishing course accountable, but also those administrators who in their estimation failed to provide administrative oversight, leadership and supervision which resulted in "a public relations nightmare." Fowler was one of these individuals who in his administrative capacity could have done something to prevent this mishap. While Fowler may consider the Board's response as harsh or unfair, it acted rationally and within its authority. I CONCLUDE that the evidence does not support petitioner's assertion that the Board's decision to withhold petitioner's salary increase was an arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable one; and that the Board had good cause to withhold Fowler's salary increase. I also CONCLUDE that summary decision must be granted in favor of the Board, and that the petition should be dismissed.

Decision

Jared Fowler,

Petitioner,

v.

Board of Education of the Passaic Valley Regional High School District, Passaic County,

Respondent.

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. The parties did not file exceptions.

Petitioner challenges the Board's decision to withhold his increment for the 2019-20 school year after an incident involving inappropriate written content which appeared in the school yearbook. Petitioner, the Assistant Principal of Humanities, oversees the English department, which includes an elective Editing and Publishing course that creates and reviews yearbook content. The yearbook club handles extracurricular activities outside of school hours but does not edit the content of the yearbook. The yearbook advisors report to the Student Activities Coordinator, who oversees club operations.

The Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) found that the Board decision to withhold petitioner's increment was not arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. Petitioner had oversight over the class responsible for creating and reviewing the yearbook content, and it is undisputed that the 2019 yearbook contained inappropriate content that caused controversy and a "public relations nightmare." As such, the ALJ found the Board had good cause to withhold petitioner's salary increase.

Upon review, the Commissioner agrees with the ALJ – for the reasons thoroughly expressed in the Initial Decision – that the Board was not arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable its decision to withhold petitioner's salary increment for the 2019-20 school year. Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter, and the petition is hereby dismissed.

Re: James Smith v. Emmanuel Capers, Agency Dkt. No. 3-3/30A, Commissioner Decision No. 246-20.

Dear Parties:

I have reviewed the materials filed in connection with appellant Emmanuel Capers' Motion to Stay the October 23, 2020 decision suspending appellant for six months as a school official found to have violated the School Ethics Act, pending appeal.

Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6(b), a motion for stay is considered an extraordinary remedy that may only be issued upon a finding that appellant has met each prong of the four-pronged standard for the granting of interim relief set forth in Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982). Thus, a stay may be granted where necessary to prevent irreparable harm, where the legal right underlying the movant's claim is settled, where there is a likelihood of success on the merits and where the relative hardship to the moving party favors granting such relief. Id. at 132-134.

Upon review of the parties' submissions, I find that appellant has failed to meet the standard required for a stay of the October 23, 2020 decision. Most notably, appellant has failed to establish a likelihood of success on the merits. In his papers, appellant argues that the Interim Commissioner's decision was arbitrary, capricious, and unreasonable because the record does not contain substantial evidence to support the conclusion, the Administrative Law Judge reached a different conclusion than the School Ethics Commission and the Interim Commissioner, and the penalty assessed was unduly harsh.

In the October 23, 2020 decision, the Interim Commissioner determined appellant had not met his burden of demonstrating that the decision of the School Ethics Commission finding that he had violated the School Ethics Act was arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable. As was stated in the decision, appellant's actions in accepting a trip from a potential vendor were unrelated to his duties as a board member, had the potential to compromise the board, and constituted use of the schools to obtain a benefit for himself. Furthermore, as stated in the October 23, 2020 decision, the six-month suspension was consistent with penalties assessed against board members in other cases engaging in a similar level of misconduct. In his motion papers, appellant generally reiterated the arguments previously made before the Interim Commissioner, which were fully considered before the October 23, 2020 decision was issued. As a result, appellant has failed to demonstrate a likelihood of success on the merits.

In light of the fact that all of the Crowe prongs must be met in order for a stay to be granted, it is not necessary to analyze the three remaining factors. Accordingly, appellant's request for a stay of the October 23, 2020 decision is hereby DENIED.[1]

Sincerely,

Dr. Angelica Allen-McMillan

Final Decision

Parsippany-Troy Hills Education Association,

Petitioner,

v.

Board of Education of the Parsippany-Troy Hills School District, Morris County,

Respondent.

Synopsis

The Parsippany-Troy Hills Education Association (Association) represents Gregory Dalakian and Michael Iapicca – the Marching Band Directors (Directors) in the respondent school district's two high schools – in this matter. The Association contended that the Board violated N.J.S.A. 18A:25-3, which protects teaching staff members from being obliged to report to school on a public holiday, when it required the Marching Band directors to participate in the township's 2019 Memorial Day Parade. The school district's marching bands have participated in this annual parade since at least 1993. In 2019, both Directors attempted to withdraw from the parade, but were informed by administration that they were required to participate and risked a disciplinary memorandum if they failed to do so. The Directors and their respective marching bands ultimately participated in the parade, and the Association filed a Petition for Declaratory Ruling, which was declined by the Commissioner, but transmitted to the OAL as a petition of appeal. The parties filed cross motions for summary decision.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: there are no material facts at issue in this case, and the matter is ripe for summary decision; N.J.S.A. 18A:25-3 was not intended to allow staff members to decline to perform functions that are integral to an extracurricular duty, which by definition include obligations that take place outside normal school hours; the Directors knew when they accepted their assignments that the Memorial Day parade was an annual event for the marching bands; and student members of the marching bands were in fact advised in the band handbook that failure to participate in the parade would have negative consequences. The ALJ concluded that the Board acted within its authority to require the Directors to participate in the parade, and such requirement did not violate N.J.S.A. 18A:25-3. Accordingly, the ALJ granted the Board's motion for summary decision and dismissed the petition.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ's findings and conclusions, and granted the Board's motion for summary decision. In so doing, the Commissioner noted, inter alia, that the plain language of N.J.S.A. 18A:25-3 protects teaching staff members from having to perform their regular duties on a school day; however, there is nothing in the statute that allows individuals who have accepted stipends to supervise extracurricular activities to decline to perform duties that fall on a public holiday that is not a school day. Accordingly, the Board's motion for summary decision was granted and the petition was dismissed.

Final Decision

Parsippany-Troy Hills Education Association,

Petitioner,

v.

Board of Education of the Parsippany-Troy Hills School District, Morris County,

Respondent.

The record of this matter, the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), and the exceptions filed by petitioner pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 have been reviewed and considered.[1]

Petitioner represents Gregory Dalakian and Michael Iapicca, who are employed by the Board as the Marching Band Directors (Directors) in the district's two high schools. Since at least 1993, the bands have participated in the township's annual Memorial Day Parade. In 2019, the Directors attempted to withdraw from the parade, but the district's administration informed the Directors that they were required to participate and would receive a disciplinary memorandum if they failed to do so. Both bands and both Directors ultimately participated in the parade. Petitioner filed a Petition for Declaratory Ruling, arguing that the Board's action contravened N.J.S.A. 18A:25-3, which protects teaching staff members from being obliged to report to school on a public holiday. The Commissioner declined the request and transmitted the matter to the OAL to proceed as a petition of appeal.

[1] The Board did not file a reply to petitioner's exceptions. The Board filed exceptions of its own, which were not timely pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 and were therefore not considered by the Commissioner.

The ALJ found that N.J.S.A. 18A:25-3 was not intended to allow staff members to decline to perform functions that are integral to an extracurricular duty. The ALJ noted that extracurricular duties, by their definition, include obligations that take place outside normal school hours and that the Directors undertook the band assignment knowing that the bands participated in the parade every year. In fact, participation in the parade was so critical to the program that students were advised in the band handbook that their failure to participate would have negative repercussions. The ALJ reviewed the cases cited by petitioner and found them unpersuasive, as they all pertained to staff being forced to attend school on a public holiday to teach or attend an in-service training related to their teaching duties. The ALJ concluded that the Board was within its authority to insist that the Directors fulfill their obligation to participate in the parade and that, in doing so, the Board did not contravene the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:25-3.[2] Accordingly, the ALJ granted the Board's motion for summary decision.

In its exceptions, petitioner argues that the plain language of the statute protects a teaching staff member's right to observe public holidays, and that the ALJ inappropriately read an exception into the statute where none exists. Petitioner contends that the Directors' band duties are part and parcel of their employment as teaching staff members, and thus they could not be required to perform those duties on a public holiday. According to petitioner, it was legal error for the ALJ to make a distinction for extracurricular duties. Petitioner urges the Commissioner to reject the ALJ's conclusion that the statute only applies when a public holiday falls on a school day. Petitioner contends that whether participation in the parade is a part of the Directors' stipend is a genuine issue of material fact that should have precluded the entry of summary decision. Moreover, petitioner asserts that even if that fact were found to be true, the statute provides that any term of any contract in violation of the statute is null and void.

[2] The ALJ also granted the Board's motion to amend its answer to include the defenses of laches and waiver. The ALJ further found that neither doctrine barred petitioner's claims. The Commissioner concurs with these conclusions for the reasons outlined in the Initial Decision.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that this matter may be decided on a summary basis. A summary decision may be rendered "if the papers and discovery which have been filed, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law." N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b). A court should grant summary judgment when the pleadings, depositions, answers to interrogatories and admissions on file, together with the affidavits, show that there is no genuine issue of material fact and that the moving party is entitled to a judgment as a matter of law. Brill v. Guardian Life Ins. Co. of Am., 142 N.J. 520, 528-29 (1995).

While petitioner argues that there is a genuine issue of material fact regarding whether participation in the parade is a part of their stipend, the Commissioner does not find this argument persuasive. The joint stipulation of material facts indicates that the bands have participated in the parade since at least 1993, establishing a historical precedent and suggesting that this activity is integral to the band director position. Moreover, the job description for Marching Band Director specifically includes among its responsibilities: "[p]repare students for presentation at activities such as . . . parades" and "[p]rovide supervision for students during rehearsals, performances, and competitions." Exhibit J-2 to Joint Stipulation of Facts. Finally, the band handbook indicates that student participation in the parade is mandatory and, as the ALJ noted, it is unclear how the students could be required to participate if the Directors – whose job description clearly includes supervising students during performances – were not also required to participate. Accordingly, the Commissioner finds that there are no genuine issues of material fact, and that summary decision is appropriate.

Next, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ's conclusion that the Board's action did not contravene the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:25-3. The statute provides that "[n]o teaching staff member shall be required to perform his duties" on a public holiday. The construction of this provision demonstrates that the duties that cannot be required are those of a teaching staff member – duties that are separate and distinct from the duties of those employees who supervise extracurricular activities. Dalakian and Iapicca were not asked to perform the duties required of them as teaching staff members under the Collective Bargaining Agreement between petitioner and the Board, which consist of 25 to 30 periods per week, occurring within a seven-hour work day, 184 days per year. Instead, they were asked to perform the duties associated with their extracurricular positions, and no prohibition on performing such duties on a public holiday is included in the statute.[3] Furthermore, N.J.S.A. 18A:25-3 provides that a board of education may not reduce a teaching staff member's salary "by reason of the fact that such a public holiday happens to be a school day." As the ALJ properly concluded, the plain language of the entirety of the statute protects teaching staff members from having to perform their regular duties on a school day. There is nothing in the statute that allows individuals who have accepted stipends to supervise extracurricular activities to decline to perform duties that fall on a public holiday that is not a school day. Petitioner's arguments to the contrary are reiterations of arguments made as part of its motion for summary decision, and the Commissioner finds that they were appropriately rejected by the ALJ, for all the reasons thoroughly outlined in the Initial Decision.

[3] For similar reasons, petitioner's argument that any contract requiring them to perform their duties on a public holiday is void is unavailing. N.J.S.A. 18A:25-3 pertains to contracts for teaching staff members, such as the Collective Bargaining Agreement, rather than contracts for extracurricular positions.

Accordingly, the Board's motion for summary decision is granted, and the petition of appeal is hereby dismissed.

IT IS SO ORDERED.[4]

PRINCETON BOARD OF EDUCATION

ÁNGEL FUENTES-PESQUERA	Settlement Agreement

This Settlement Agreement is made and entered into this 15th day of December, 2020, by and between the Princeton Board of Education, with offices located at 25 Valley Road, Princeton, New Jersey, 07652 ("Board") and Ángel Fuentes-Pesquera, ("Fuentes"), who resides at 114 Lawrence Street, New Brunswick, New Jersey 08901.

WITNESSETH:

WHEREAS, the Board has employed Fuentes as a teacher since the 2012-2013 school year; and

WHEREAS, certain employment issues have arisen between the Board and Fuentes, resulting in the Board certifying tenure charges against Fuentes and filing them with the New Jersey Commissioner of Education in August 2020;

WHEREAS, the parties have determined it is in their mutual interests to conclude the employment relationship; and

WHEREAS, Fuentes has indicated a willingness to resign from all employment with the Board effective at the close of business on June 30, 2021, upon satisfaction of certain terms and conditions to be stipulated in this Settlement Agreement ("Agreement"); and

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of the aforementioned mutual premises and promise, and in exchange for the consideration more particularly set forth below, it is hereby agreed:

1. Continued Suspension from Employment. Fuentes shall remain suspended from employment through the close of business on June 30, 2021 and shall not have any professional responsibilities as a staff member during his suspension. Fuentes agrees that during the period of his suspension, he shall not be present on any of the Board's campuses without the express written consent of the Superintendent.

2. Resignation. In return for full compliance with this Agreement and subject to formal Board approval and ratification of the Agreement, Fuentes agrees to sign an irrevocable letter of resignation from all employment with the Board, to be effective at the close of business on June 30, 2021, which shall be in the form attached hereto as Exhibit 1. The Board shall, by Resolution, accept Fuentes's resignation at its next regularly scheduled meeting on December 15, 2020. Said resignation is effective only upon the full terms and conditions of the Agreement being accepted by Resolution of the Board, and is only then binding upon the parties and irrevocable and is not subject to modification or rescission. Fuentes agrees that, upon the execution of this Agreement and as a result of his resignation, he shall forfeit all tenure and seniority rights he has to any position with the Board.

3. Settlement Terms. In consideration for Fuentes's resignation as set forth in Paragraph 2 of this Agreement and the waiver and release as set forth in Paragraph 7 of this Agreement, the Board, by and through this Agreement, shall reinstate Fuentes to active pay status on the payroll effective January 1, 2021, and shall pay Fuentes from that date forward through the close of business on June 30, 2021, consistent with his annual salary, prorated for the partial year of service. Fuentes shall receive such salary payments biweekly in accordance with the payment schedule for teaching staff members, including all reductions for mandatory taxes, pension, health benefit payment, and/or any other deductions required by his employment with the Board. It is expressly understood that any personal leave, sick leave, pay for accumulated sick and personal leave and any other financial remuneration to which Fuentes is otherwise entitled under the Collective Negotiations Agreement shall be subsumed during his suspension, and he shall not be entitled to the cash equivalent. No further leaves shall accrue during his suspension. Fuentes shall not be entitled to any other financial remuneration except as specifically set forth in this Paragraph.

4. Medical Insurance. Effective January 1, 2021, Fuentes shall receive either health benefits, or any applicable health care waiver, available to any other employee on an annual basis pursuant to the parties' applicable collective negotiations agreement (subject to all appropriate required contributions toward the annual premium costs) through the close of business on June 30, 2021. Nothing contained within this Agreement shall alter Fuentes's rights to continuation of health insurance through federal law—i.e., the Consolidated Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1986 ("COBRA")—upon separation from employment with the Board as of the date that coincides with the date that Fuentes no longer receives health insurance as provided by the Board.

5. No Admission. This Agreement is the compromise of disputed claims and shall never be treated as an admission of liability or wrongdoing by either party for any purpose. All parties shall bear their own attorneys' fees and costs for the entirety of any matter or matters related to the subject matter of this Agreement, except that nothing in this Agreement or the documents referenced herein shall preclude either party from seeking attorneys' fees and costs in an action to enforce performance of any term of this Agreement should there be a default in performance.

6. Mooting of Tenure Charges. The parties acknowledge and agree that this Agreement moots the matter captioned In the Matter of the Tenure Charges of Angel-Fuentes Pesquera, Princeton Public Schools Board of Education, Mercer County, New Jersey Department of Education Agency Dkt. No.185-8/20. Upon the Board's approval of this Agreement, the parties shall mutually submit this Agreement to statutorily appointed arbitrator Michael J. Pecklers, Esq., for approval pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6. Mr. Pesquera acknowledges that he has been provided with the notification required by N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6(a)(6).

7. Mutual Releases. Fuentes hereby knowingly and voluntarily releases, waives, acquits, disclaims, and forever discharges the Board (including its members, officers, employees, administrators, agents, and servants), from any and all claims of which he knows or could have known, and from any and all lawsuits, charges, claims, complaints, demands, judgments, obligations, causes of action, controversies, or any other proceedings with any administrative agency or any court or any other forum, under any federal, state, or local laws or regulations, including but not limited to claims arising under the Americans with Disabilities Act, the Fair Labor Standards Act, the Employee

Retirement Income Security Act of 1974, Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, the Vocational Rehabilitation Act of 1973, the Age Discrimination in Employment Act of 1967 as amended, and including the Older Workers Benefit Protection Act, the Federal Family Medical Leave Act, the Consolidated Budgetary Reconciliation Act, the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination, the New Jersey Conscientious Employee Protection Act, the New Jersey Family Leave Act, New Jersey Wage and Hours law, New Jersey Statutes Title 18A, Education, and/or any other federal, state, or local employment, human rights, civil rights, wage hour, tenure, pension, or labor law, rule, statute, regulation, constitution, or ordinance, and/or public policy, contract or tort law, or any claim of retaliation under such law, or any claim of breach of any contract, collective negotiations agreement or promise (whether express, oral, written or implied from any source), or any claim of intentional or negligent infliction of emotional distress, tortious interference with contractual relations, wrongful or abusive discharge, constructive discharge, common-law retaliation, defamation, prima facie tort, fraud, misrepresentation, negligence, estoppel, or any action similar thereto against the Board including any claim for attorneys' fees, that he, his heirs, executors, administrators, successors, and assigns now have, ever had, or may hereafter have of which he now knows or could have known based upon any conduct arising out of his employment with the Board. Specifically exempted from this Release are any claims for health insurance continuation coverage under and pursuant to COBRA, the New Jersey Workers Compensation Act, any claim to unemployment benefits to which a party may be entitled and any claim to statutory indemnity from the Board pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6 and/or N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1. This paragraph is not intended and shall not preclude Fuentes from instituting proceedings seeking to enforce the terms of this Agreement should there be a default in performance. The Board and its individual members, officers, employees, administrators, agents, servants and representatives, hereby similarly release and waive any and all claims and rights which the Board may have against Fuentes for claims resulting from anything which are known or could be known to the Board at the present time.

8. No Interference. Each party shall be free from interference, direct or indirect, by the other and neither shall disparage the other party, nor shall they discuss with, disclose to, or communicate with anyone the terms of this Agreement, except their attorneys or accountants who shall hold such communication as confidential, or as may be required by law. The Board shall be required to adopt a public resolution approving this Agreement and each of the documents which are incorporated by reference in said Agreement.

9. Reliance. This Agreement constitutes the entire understanding of the parties with respect to the subject matter hereof, and there are no representations, warranties, covenants, or undertakings other than those expressly set forth herein. Each party acknowledges that they are not relying upon any oral statements, representations, promises, or expectations which are not expressly and explicitly set forth in this Agreement, which alone fully and completely expresses all agreements between the parties.

10. Full Understanding. The parties acknowledge that they are entering into this Agreement of their own accord and without any undue influence, coercion, or pressure of any kind; that all the provisions of this Agreement, as well as all questions pertinent thereto, have been fully and satisfactorily explained to them; that they have given due consideration to such provisions and questions and understand them clearly; that the provisions embodied in this Agreement are in all respects acceptable to them and that they, therefore, accept these provisions in full and final satisfaction of all claims and demands which have been raised or which could have been raised in any litigation.

11. Opportunity to Consult with Counsel. Both parties acknowledge that they have consulted with an attorney of their own choosing prior to signing this Agreement and that they sign this Agreement as their own voluntary act and deed and fully understand the duties and obligations enumerated herein.

12. Severability. If, during the term of this Agreement, a specific clause of the Agreement is determined to be illegal or in violation of any federal or state law, the remainder of the Agreement shall not be affected by such a ruling and shall remain in full force and effect.

13. Materiality, Modifications, and/or Waivers. All terms of this Agreement are deemed to be material. A modification or waiver of any of the provisions of this Agreement shall be effective and enforceable only if made in writing and executed with the same formality as this Agreement. The failure of any party to insist upon the strict performance of any of the provisions of this Agreement shall not be construed as a waiver of any subsequent default of the same or similar nature or of a continuation of an existing default.

14. Knowing and Voluntary Acknowledgement. Fuentes specifically agrees and acknowledges that: (a) Fuentes has read this Agreement in its entirety and understands all of its terms; (b) Fuentes has been advised of and has availed himself of his right to consult with his attorneys prior to executing this Agreement; (c) Fuentes knowingly, freely, and voluntarily assents to all of its terms and conditions including, without limitation, the release language set forth herein; (d) Fuentes is executing this Agreement, including the release, in exchange for good and valuable consideration in addition to anything of value to which he is otherwise entitled; and that (e) Fuentes is not waiving or releasing any rights or claims that may arise after his execution of this Agreement.

15. Notice of Time to Consider Agreement. Fuentes has been advised that, prior to waiving claims he may have under the Age Discrimination in Employment Act, he may take up to twenty-one calendar days to consider this Agreement before signing. In the event this Agreement is signed prior to the expiration of twenty-one days, Fuentes acknowledges that he has voluntarily and knowingly agreed to waive any entitlement to take twenty-one days to consider this Agreement for the purpose of expediting the settlement and that he has had a reasonable period of time within which to consider the Agreement.

16. Notice of Time for Revocation; Effective Date. Fuentes understands that he may revoke this Agreement during the seven calendar days following the day he executes this Agreement. Revocation may be made by delivering a written notice of revocation by mail or hand delivery to: Princeton Board of Education, Attn: Beth Behrend, Board President, 25 Valley Road, Princeton, New Jersey 08540. This Agreement shall become effective on the day after the seven-day Revocation Period has expired ("Effective Date"), unless timely notice of Fuentes's revocation has been delivered to the Board.

17. Governing Law. This Agreement shall be subject to the laws of the State of New Jersey, without regard to its choice-of-law principles.

18. Ratification. This Agreement is subject to ratification by the Board and is without prejudice to any party if the terms are not agreed upon. It shall become effective only upon the ratification by and approval of the Board.

19. Section Headings. Section headings are for reference purposes only and shall not in any way affect the meaning or interpretation of any provision of this Agreement.

20. Counterparts. This Agreement may be signed in counterparts which, taken together, shall constitute but a single document when executed by all parties. This Agreement shall not be effective until such time as it has been duly authorized and executed by all parties.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the parties set their hands and seals to this Agreement effective on the day and year first written above.
