Record Closed: November 9, 1998 Decided: November 24, 1998

BEFORE BEATRICE S. TYLUTKI, ALJ:

This matter concerns the charges brought against the petitioner, Charles Dreyer, by the respondent, Board of Education of the Township of Pemberton, Burlington County, alleging that the petitioner no longer holds the appropriate qualification to teach military science and seeks his dismissal. The petitioner requested a hearing, and the matter was transmitted to the Office of

After extensive settlement conferences, the matter settled and I issued an initial decision incorporating the settlement on February 19, 1998.

The matter was remanded by the Commissioner of Education and was received by the OAL on April 3, 1998 (EDU 2645-98). The parties again engaged in extensive settlement negotiations.

Steven R. Cohen entered an appearance in this matter on behalf of the Pemberton Township Education Association (PTEA) by letter dated July 15, 1998. Mr. Cohen stated since the respondent has alleged bumping rights to a number of positions held by members of the PTEA that the PTEA and some of its individual members want to intervene in the matter if it does not settle. Mr. Cohen did not participate in the settlement negotiations.

On November 9, 1998, I received a fully signed stipulation of settlement, which sets forth the terms of the settlement. This settlement is attached and is incorporated herein.

IN RE TENURE CHARGES AGAINST CHARLES DREYER	:	Before the Commissioner of Education Agency Docket No: 3-1/97
	:	Stipulation of Settlement

The parties to this matter, the Pemberton Township Board of Education and Captain Charles W. Dreyer, Jr., having reached an Agreement to resolve the matter before the Court and it being determined that it is appropriate and necessary to reduce this understanding to writing to avoid confusion during its implementation:

NOW THEREFORE IT IS Agreed by and between the Parties subject to approval of the Commissioner of Education as follows:

1. Resignation For and in consideration of the mutual covenants and understandings set forth in this stipulation, Captain Charles W. Dreyer, Jr., upon execution of this agreement hereby resigns his position with the Pemberton Township School District (District) as its instructor of Army Junior R.O.T.C. It is understood that submittal of this resignation will allow the District to fill the instructor position with another and that Captain Dreyer will no longer have any right, claim or entitlement to this position, or any other position within the district but subject to the Commissioner's approval.

2. Payment For and in consideration of the mutual covenants and understandings set forth in this stipulation the District agrees to continue to pay

Captain Dreyer his salary, for the position he held with the District prior to the withdrawal of his Army J.R.O.T.C. authorization, through March 26, 1999 in one installment payable within 30 days of January 1, 1999 provided that this agreement is approved by the Commissioner by January 1, 1999. In the event the Commissioner shall fail to approve this agreement by January 1, 1999, then the payment shall be made within 30 days of the date that the Commissioner approves this agreement. This shall not include any entitlement to benefits.

3. Payment until approval In accordance with N.J.S.A 18A:6-14 the District will pay Captain Charles W. Dreyer, Jr., his salary and benefits until the Commissioner approves the settlement.

4. Rationale for Settlement.

a. Board's Position. On or about October 15, 1996 the Department of the Army in a letter signed by Colonel Roy Zinser withdrew Captain Dreyer's authorization as a Army Junior ROTC instructor effective September 27, 1996. The District asserts that this withdrawal eliminates one of the two elements needed under N.J.A.C. 6:11-8.7 to obtain an endorsement under N.J.A.C. 6:11-6.2(a) 15 to teach military science in a New Jersey school system. To the District the endorsement is a nullity and without it, Captain Charles W. Dreyer, Jr., is not permitted to teach military science in this state. The present "tenure charge " is brought solely on the withdrawal of this authorization , which to the Board prevents him from teaching the course he was hired to teach and not on any finding of fault. The District denies any violation of Captain Dreyer's substantive or procedural rights in the manner in which the authorization was withdrawn. See: Rivkin v. Dover Tp.

Rent Leveling Board, 143 N.J. 352 (1996) The District further asserts that even if the allegation has merit the proper forum to air this allegation is in the proceedings provided by the Army not the present procedure

b. Dreyer's Position. Captain Charles W. Dreyer, Jr., asserts that the District's position is incorrect, that he still holds a valid endorsement as a teacher of military science, and that with the sole exception of Army J.R.O.T.C. he is still authorized to teach military science and to fill any position that requires only an instructional certification, but no particular endorsement.

Captain Charles W. Dreyer, Jr., also asserts that withdrawal of the Army's authorization was improperly brought about in derogation of both procedural and substantive rights which he possesses. This allegation asserts that the former high school principal falsely, maliciously and with neither notice nor a reasonable opportunity to be heard made disparaging reports on his job performance which led the Army to revoke his authorization. See: Washington v. Kirksey, 811 F2d. 561 (11th Cir., 1987).

c. Parties' Agreement. The parties agree that no formal authorization to file the reports was given by the Board and that none of the reports allege moral turpitude, criminal activity, or misconduct in office.

3. Public Benefit of Settlement The Board is aware of the public's interest in the proper handling of tenure charges to insure that unqualified persons do not continue to teach when diligence at this stage might prevent difficulties in the future. However, based on its review of the total circumstances which includes an evaluation of the time and expense in maintaining the tenure charge, the uncertainty of the ultimate result which might be obtained, and the lack of any allegation that Captain Dreyer presents any threat to the children of New Jersey, the parties believe that it is in the best interests of the District, Captain Dreyer, and the public to resolve this matter by settlement. This Settlement resolves all claims against any entity or person which were or which could have been brought under the facts of this case either in this administrative proceeding or in any other forum having jurisdiction over any potential claim, suspension, or other legal action suggested by the facts under review, including any request by the Board for revocation or suspension of or action against Captain Charles W. Dreyer, Jr.'s teaching certificate. However, Captain Dreyer by signing this agreement acknowledges that he has been advised of the Commissioner's duty pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6 to refer tenure determinations for possible revocation of certificate. Except for this potential action, the settlement shall act as a bar to the assertion of these claims. In furtherance of this understanding it is agreed that:

a. The District will respond to all inquiries concerning Captain Charles W. Dreyer, Jr.'s employment with the District by providing the fact of such employment, his name, his title, his position, his salary, payroll record, length of service with the District, the amount and type of pension he is receiving, if any, and that he left the service of the District on the date that this Agreement is approved by the Commissioner for the reasons set forth in this Agreement which shall be made available to the extent required by Executive Order # 11 (1974) Section A Upon this settlement except as provided by law and Executive Order #11 (1994) Section A, the personnel file for Captain Charles W. Dreyer, Jr. will be sealed. If access to the file is requested the District will provide notice of such inquires, the name of the inquirer, and the information supplied. to Captain Charles W. Dreyer, Jr. to his last known address. The above notwithstanding, Captain Dreyer shall be permitted access to his personnel file at times reasonable convenient to all parties.

b. Although the parties agree that its restoration will not create any right to re-employment with the District, the District agrees to use its good faith best efforts to have Captain Charles W. Dreyer, Jr.'s Authorization to teach Army J.R.O.T.C. restored by the Department of the Army. It agrees to issue a letter to be within 30 days of the Commissioner's approval reviewed and approved prior to submission by Captain Charles W. Dreyer, Jr.'s attorney to the Department of the Army. This letter will indicate that the Board of Education has not conducted any hearing to determine or evaluate any of the underlying facts involved in the withdrawal, has given no formal authorization to file the reports utilized in the Army proceeding, knows of no allegation in any such report which alleges moral turpitude, criminal activity, or misconduct in office, can not comment on the accuracy of any of the observations previously made by supervisors of the District, did not prior to the request for withdrawal ,authorize the request to be made, and notes that two (2) of the supervisors who had made earlier requests for withdrawal are no longer in the employ of the District. The District does not warrant that the Department of the Army will grant the request for authorization.

9/28/98 MC 10/26/98 10/22/98

c. By signing this stipulation Captain Dreyer waives any right to re-employment with the District in any job title or classification. This agreement, however, does not prevent or bar re-employment of Captain Charles W. Dreyer, Jr.

by the District.

d. Within 30 days of the date of this agreement is approved, the parties agree to issue a joint public statement which will indicate that the proceedings were not based on any allegation of wrongdoing or misconduct on the part of Captain Dreyer.

e. Within 30 days of the date of this agreement is approved by the Commissioner the parties agree to issue a letter of recommendation covering Captain Charles Dreyer, Jr.'s employment with the District. This statement shall be approved by Captain Dreyer's counsel prior to issuance. The statement shall be issued at any time another employer seeks comment on Captain Dreyer's employment with the District.

IN WITNESS HEREOF the parties have set there hands and seals this 26th day of October 1998

IN THE MATTER OF THE REVOCATION :
OF THE TEACHING CERTIFICATES OF : STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION
THERESA A. LUCARELLI BY THE STATE : DECISION
BOARD OF EXAMINERS. :

Decided by the State Board of Examiners, November 5, 1998

Remanded by the State Board of Education, May 5, 1999

Decision on remand by the State Board of Examiners, September 23, 1999

For the Petitioner-Respondent, Arlene G. Lutz, Deputy Attorney General (John J. Farmer, Attorney General of New Jersey)

For the Respondent-Appellant, Wills, O'Neill & Mellk (Arnold M. Mellk, Esq., of Counsel)

On September 23, 1999, the State Board of Examiners rendered a decision in which it determined that the teaching certificates of Theresa A. Lucarelli (hereinafter "appellant") should be revoked due to unbecoming conduct. In an earlier decision, the Commissioner of Education had ordered that the appellant be dismissed from her tenured employment in the Brielle School District for threatening the Superintendent of Schools in a series of handwritten notes.

On December 17, 1999, the appellant filed a notice of appeal from the Board of Examiners' decision to the State Board of Education. By letter dated January 6, 2000, the Director of the State Board Appeals Office acknowledged receipt of that notice and advised the appellant that the State Board had not yet received the record in this matter, which was to be certified to it by the Attorney General's Office on behalf of the Board of Examiners pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.8(b). Consequently, the briefing schedule was placed into abeyance pending receipt of the record.

By letter dated February 7, 2000, the Director of the State Board Appeals Office advised the appellant that the record had now been certified to the State Board. The Director added:

> Perusal of the record, however, reveals that the decision by the State Board of Examiners, which is the subject of this appeal, was rendered on September 23, 1999. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-29 requires that notice of appeal to the State Board must be taken within 30 days after the Board of Examiners has filed its decision. See N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.3. Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.4(a), the decision of the Board of Examiners is deemed filed three days after the date of mailing to the parties. In this instance, the exact date of mailing is not evident from the record. However, the Board of Examiners' decision does indicate that it was mailed "September, 1999." Even assuming that the decision was mailed on September 30, you were was required to file a notice of appeal on or before November 3, 1999 under the statutory time limit that governs appeals to the State Board of Education.
> Since your notice was not filed until December 17, this matter has been referred to the Legal Committee of the State Board of Education for consideration of the effect of your failure to file timely notice. If you wish to provide an explanation for such filing, you must do so by filing an original and 17 copies of an affidavit setting forth your explanation by February 22, 2000. The briefing schedule will remain in abeyance pending the Legal Committee's review of this issue.

On February 16, 2000, the counsel for the appellant submitted a certification in support of the filing date of the appeal. In his certification, counsel for the appellant indicated that the Board of Examiners' decision, although dated September 23, 1999, had not been mailed until November 12, and that he had not received it until November 15. He attached a copy of the envelope from the Board of Examiners, which shows a postage meter date of November 12, along with a copy of the cover sheet from the Board of Examiners' decision time-stamped in his office on November 15.

Counsel for the appellant acknowledged that his notice of appeal had still been filed two days late, but averred that his secretary had miscalculated the filing deadline. He attached a certification from his secretary, who confirmed that she had miscalculated the due date for the appeal by two days.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-28, appeals to the State Board must be taken "within 30 days after the decision appealed from is filed." The State Board may not grant extensions to enlarge the time specified for appeal. N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.5(a). In contrast to the period for filing petitions to the Commissioner of Education, see N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2; N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.15, the time limit within which an appeal must be taken to the State Board is statutory, and, given the jurisdictional nature of the statutory time limit, the State Board lacks the authority to extend it. Mount Pleasant-Blythedale Union Free School District v. New Jersey Department of Education, Docket #A-2180-89T1 (App. Div. 1990), slip op. at 5. The Appellate Division has "consistently concluded" that appeals must be timely filed and that "neither an agency nor our court on appeal may expand a mandatory statutory time limitation." In the Matter of the Special Election of the Northern Burlington County Regional School District, Docket #A-1743-95T5 (App. Div. 1996), slip op. at 3, citing Scrudato v. Mascot Sav. & Loan Ass'n, 50 N.J. Super. 264 (App. Div. 1958).

As the Court explained in Scrudato, supra, at 269: "Where a statute sets up precise time limits within which an aggrieved party may seek recourse to administrative adjudication, those limits have been held mandatory and not subject to relaxation. The agency is without power to waive them and proceed to hearing and determination notwithstanding noncompliance." The Court in Scrudato found that the fact that an application to the Commissioner of Banking and Insurance was filed only two days after the statutory deadline for such filing did not mitigate the invalidity of such action. The Court stressed that "[e]ven a minor deviation from the statutory limit in a particular case is fatal....This is not a mere technicality, but fundamental to the proper and necessary restraint of the exercise of judicial and administrative discretion. The remedy for results that either tribunal may deem unjust or unwise lies not in disregard of the statutory limitation, but in corrective legislation." Id. at 271.

In Schaible Oil Co. v. New Jersey Dept. of Envtl. Protection, 246 N.J. Super. 29 (App. Div. 1991), certif. denied, 126 N.J. 387 (1991), the Court stressed that "[f]irmly embedded in our law is the principle that '[e]nlargement of statutory time for appeal to a state administrative agency lies solely within the power of the Legislature...and not with the agency or the courts.' Hess Oil & Chem. Corp. v. Doremus Sport Club, 80 N.J.Super. 393, 396, 193 A.2d 868 (App. Div. 1963), certif. denied, 41 N.J. 308, 196 A.2d 530 (1964) (citations omitted)...."

In Yorke v. Board of Education of the Township of Piscataway, decided by the State Board of Education, July 6, 1988, aff'd, Docket #A-5912-87T1 (App. Div. 1989), the Court upheld the dismissal of an appeal by the State Board where it found that the notice of appeal had been filed one day late by the appellant's counsel, who alleged that he had misread or misunderstood the applicable regulations. The Court added that even if the statute could be construed to permit enlargement of the time for filing an appeal, the appellant therein had failed to establish good cause. See also In the Matter of the Grant of the Charter School Application of the International Charter School of Trenton, etc., Docket #A-004932-97T1 (App. Div. 1998) (the Court, upon reconsideration, upheld the State Board's dismissal of an appeal filed one day late).

In the instant case, the Board of Examiners' decision was rendered on September 23, 1999 and, according to the information provided by the appellant, mailed on November 12. Accordingly, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.4, the decision appealed from was deemed filed on November 15, 1999, three days after it was mailed. Therefore, as mandated by N.J.S.A. 18A:6-28, see N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.3(a); N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.4(a), as computed under N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.4(b), the appellant was required to file his notice of appeal to the State Board on or before December 15, 1999. As previously indicated, the appellant's notice of appeal was not filed until December 17.

Even if N.J.S.A. 18A:6-28 can be construed to provide us with the authority to enlarge the time limit for filing an appeal, we find no substantive basis to warrant doing so in this particular instance. While counsel for the appellant avers that the late filing resulted from a miscalculation by his secretary, it ultimately was his responsibility to assure compliance with the statutory filing requirements.

Accordingly, we dismiss the appeal in this matter for failure to file notice thereof within the statutory time limit as computed under the applicable regulations.

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 3960-97

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF DIANNE DAVIS, STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT OF CITY OF NEWARK

Gregory G. Johnson, Esq., for petitioner

Robert T. Picket, Esq., for respondent

Record Closed: October 5, 1998 Decided: November 19, 1998

BEFORE ELINOR R. REINER, ALJ:

This matter involves tenure charges of unbecoming conduct and gross insubordination certified by the State-Operated School District of the City of Newark (District) against Dianne Davis under the Tenure Employees Hearing Law, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 to -18.1.

Dianne Davis is a tenured teaching staff member employed by the District. Tenure charges wee filed against Ms. Davis on February 11, 1997. By resolution adopted on March 4, 1997, the state district superintendent found the existence of probable cause to certify tenure charges which, if true, are sufficient to warrant dismissal or reduction in salary. Basically, the charges allege that Ms. Davis committed seven separate acts constituting unbecoming conduct during the school years 1993/94 and 1994/95. The charges further allege that respondent has failed to comply with the directive to undergo a psychiatric examination. As a result of her determination, the state district superintendent suspended Ms. Davis without pay effective March 4, 1997.

On March 16, 1997, the district filed its written tenure charges with the Commissioner of Education (Commissioner). Respondent filed an answer on April 11, 1997. Subsequently, on April 21, 1997, the Commissioner transmitted this matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case.

The matter was assigned to the undersigned judge on May 21, 1997. After notice to all parties, a telephone prehearing conference was held on June 30, 1997 and a hearing scheduled for June 8, 9, 10, 11 and 12, 1998 at the Office of Administrative Law, 185 Washington Street, Newark, New Jersey. The matter was heard on June 8, 9, 10 and 12, 1998. Prior to the continuation of the hearing, the parties agreed to a settlement, subject to approval by the Commissioner.

In accordance with the decision of the State Board of Education in Cardonick v. Brooklawn Bd. of Educ., 193 S.L.D. ___ (State Board April 6, 1983), the record of any proposed settlement must include:

> . . . the nature of the charges, circumstances justifying the settlement, consent or authorization by the board of education and the teacher to the proposed agreement, the Administrative Law Judge's finding that the teacher entered into the agreement with a full understanding of his rights, and (a finding) that the agreement is consistent with the public interest.

On August 17, 1998, the parties appeared and the terms of the settlement were placed on the record. Counsel for both parties set forth the reasons why the settlement would be in the public interest. In addition, the parties have prepared a stipulation of settlement, which is attached and fully incorporated in this decision. The state district superintendent approved the settlement terms on September 16, 1998.

Based on my review of the record, I FIND that the proposed settlement is consistent with the public interest for the following reasons:

1. Dianne Davis has been employed as a teacher by the District or its predecessor for a number of years.

2. It is anticipated that continuation of the hearing in this matter would require additional hearing dates and would be costly. The parties would incur additional costs of paying their attorneys for the remainder of the trial, as well as for post submission briefs.

3. Under the proposed terms of settlement, Ms. Davis will resign from her position effective December 1, 1998. In exchange, she would receive her salary and health benefits until December 1, 1998.

4. Under the best of circumstances, it is unlikely that the tenure hearing would be concluded, an initial decision rendered by the administrative law judge and a final decision by the Commissioner prior to that date. Regardless of whether it won or loss, the district would incur the expense of paying Ms. Davis' annual salary probably at least until that point.

5. Ms. Davis suffers from a medical condition. She has essentially admitted a psychiatric disorder by evidencing her intent to apply for a disability retirement based upon inter alia evidence of this disorder. As such, continuation of the hearing would not be in her interest or the public's interest.

6. An essential provision of the agreement obligates Ms. Davis to voluntarily relinquish her teaching certificates within thirty days from the date of final approval of the settlement agreement by the Commissioner. Further, Ms. Davis is aware that, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6, the Commissioner of Education may refer this matter to the State Board of Examiners for any action which it may deem appropriate.

7. Before entering into this agreement, Ms. Davis fully understood her rights and had an adequate opportunity to consult with legal counsel.

8. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy.

I CONCLUDE that the terms of the settlement are in the public interest.

It is ORDERED that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that the proceedings are hereby concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by th COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

OAL Docket Nos. EDU 10912-96N

Dear Mr. Johnson:

As a follow-up to our discussion last week and your recent correspondence regarding our understanding on the settlement in this matter, please note my agreement and understanding that the 120 day salary withheld by the school district has been waived by the Respondent. It was never her understanding that she was entitled to that salary in light of the proposed Stipulation of Settlement. I thought the proposed agreement was clear on that point.

Thank you for your kind consideration. If there are any questions, please call.

PETITIONERS,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
STATE OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF NEWARK, ESSEX COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioners, senior staff whose positions were abolished during State takeover, alleged they were improperly denied 60 days' pay and that due to contracts of employment, each petitioner should have been awarded his or her full position for the entirety of the 1995-96 school year. District contended implied contracts did not exist between petitioners and the District.

ALJ concluded that petitioners were not entitled to their full salary for the 1995-96 school year, finding that their claim of an implied employment contract failed because any claims based on law or contract are superseded by N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-44(a) and 7A:42a(3). ALJ determined, with the exception of Petitioner Johnson whose position was terminated in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-42(a)(3), petitioners' claim to payment for 60 calendar days was granted. Petitioners' claim for payment of accrued sick, vacation and personal leave days was denied, as the statute does not provide for such relief. District was to determine whether petitioners had received the appropriate payment as established by the ALJ.

Commissioner affirmed, with clarification.

BEFORE ELINOR R. REINER, ALJ:

On September 18, 1995, petitioners Concetta B. Caponegro, Virginia Devane, Howard Johnson, Norman Jeffries and Bessie White filed a petition of appeal with the Commissioner of Education alleging that they were each improperly denied 60 days' pay and that due to implied contracts of employment, each petitioner should be awarded his or her full position for the entirety of the 1995-96 school year. Respondent filed an answer on November 1, 1995, alleging inter alia that implied contracts do not exist between any of the petitioners and respondent and that petitioners are not entitled to additional compensation for any accumulated vacation, personal or sick days or to 60 days' pay pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-44.

On November 6, 1995, the Department of Education, Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, transmitted this matter to the Office of Administrative Law for a hearing pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. The matter was assigned to the undersigned judge on December 15, 1995. At the conclusion of the hearing, the parties acknowledged that the record might have to be supplemented. By letter dated March 14, 1997, respondent's attorney indicated that the record should remain open pending respondent's review of its records and possible settlement of the matter. By letter dated July 11, 1997, counsel for petitioners requested that the stipulation entered into by the parties stand and that the matter proceed to conclusion. Additional conferences were held thereafter in regard to possible resolution of the matter, etc., and on April 27, 1998, the parties appeared and a briefing schedule was established. The briefing schedule was subsequently revised and the record closed after the submission of all documentation.

TESTIMONY

First to testify was Dr. Joseph M. Capello, business administrator of the Millburn Board of Education. He was employed by the Newark Board of Education as the acting State-operated district's superintendent from July 12, 1995, to July 15, 1996. He served as the auditor general for the State from September 1, 1995, to July 12, 1996. He testified that senior staff members were all senior executives who served at the pleasure of the executive superintendent, Eugene Campbell. He referred to his memorandum (P-1) to Campbell in which he confirmed Campbell's comment that senior staff members are "not issued employment contracts but serve at his pleasure." Capello also stated that Campbell had informed him that if senior staff do not receive letters of termination by the end of the school year they are renewed for the forthcoming school year. He received a memorandum from Campbell which confirmed his understanding (P-2). He testified that on June 28, 1995, Devane was a senior executive, director of board affairs. Johnson was not a member of the senior staff; he was chief auditor. Jeffries was an at-will employee, not a senior cabinet member. Capello said that the assistant executive superintendent and the senior executive director constituted the senior cabinet. He stated that Bessie White was senior staff and Caponegro was not senior staff. He further indicated that level-one staff means the same as senior staff.

Capello further testified that when he left the employ of the Newark school board he received vacation days and 1 sick day for every 5 sick days he had accumulated. On cross-examination, he referred to a memo to senior staff and all at-will employees dated June 29, 1995, from Eugene C. Campbell. He indicated that senior staff can be at-will employees and serve at the pleasure of the board. Although he stated that the superintendent made senior staff appointments, he did not recall if the superintendent required board approval for those appointments.

Next to testify was Eugene C. Campbell, employed by the Newark Board of Education from September 1960 until October 1995. The State took over the district on July 12, 1995. He served as executive superintendent from December 1984 until October 1995. Campbell explained that those who reported directly to him received a letter of termination if they were not to be employed for school year 1995-96. He also sent a letter advising of employment for the following school year. He stated that Caponegro was the executive director of human resource services. She was part of the senior staff and an at-will employee. Campbell said that Devane, Johnson, Jeffries and White were also part of the senior staff and at-will employees.

Campbell also testified to the vacation-day policy. He indicated that all senior staff were twelve-month employees and each July received 20 days' vacation. Pursuant to board policy, there was a cap on the number of vacation days that could be accumulated. It was either 40 or 60 days unless he permitted the employee to go beyond that number. Campbell approved the utilization of vacation days and could authorize the employee to carry over more days. All of the petitioners were permitted to carry over whatever days they had accumulated. Further, some individuals did not work the entire year, but received all of their vacation days. Campbell testified that senior staff received 1 day's pay for every 3 sick days accumulated. Upon leaving the position at the end of the year, senior staff could turn in their sick days and get paid. Personal days were treated the same.

On cross-examination, Campbell indicated that the board did not have to vote on his appointment decisions. However, he always made sure that he notified the board of these decisions, if not for a board vote then for informational purposes (P-3). He did not know any senior staff member who did not receive 20 vacation days up front or did not receive 20 vacation days if he or she left before the end of the school year. He said that senior staff received 3 personal days per year even if they left in the middle of the year. He was not sure if senior staff could accumulate personal days.

On further examination, Campbell said that during the State takeover, he advised Capello that he had offered employment to the senior staff. He informed Capello around June 28 or 29, 1995, of his intention to reemploy the senior staff. On cross-examination, he admitted that he had not told the deputy commissioner of education or the assistant commissioner of education of his reemployment of the senior staff. He informed them of the staff members at issue here and also made a specific plea for the internal audit department.

Concetta Caponegro testified that on the last day that she worked, August 16, 1995, individuals were employed as senior staff. Senior staff had three choices in regard to personal days: they could use them, lose them if not utilized by June 30, or buy 1 day's pay for 3 personal days prior to June 30. They could also add personal days to sick days and buy them back on a one-to-three ratio.

Howard A. Johnson testified that he began working as a principal clerk on December 15, 1971, and became permanent in the position of senior accountant in 1984. He received a letter dated September 29, 1995, from acting internal counsel Hope R. Blackburn (J-18) in regard to accrued vacation days through July 12, 1995. Blackburn wrote that Johnson would receive a credit of 30.16 days, including a credit of 1.66 days for July 1995 vacation days. His paycheck reflected this. He alleged that he should have received 48.5 vacation days, 28.5 carried over plus 20 days up front. Instead, he received 28.5 plus 1.66. He stated that this had never been pro-rated before and that a number of individuals received the full 20 days. He further testified that he had 31 available sick days and 3 personal days and that in the past he was paid for sick days on a one-to-three ratio.

Adele White-Eutsey, employed by respondent as the supervisor of payroll, testified for respondent. She was responsible for processing and administering payments to District employees in the form of salary, etc. She explained the vacation day policy in regard to confidential or executive staff employees. Although such an employee would receive 20 vacation days on July 1, if the employee left before the end of the school year, the employee would receive only the number of months worked times 1.66 for vacation days. If an employee worked beyond the fourteenth of a month, the employee would receive the full entitlement for that month. She said that no employee would receive the entire year's allotment unless he or she worked the full year.

On cross-examination, White-Eutsey explained that there was a policy as to how many vacation days an employee could accrue. Senior management could accrue three years' worth, and all other titles could accrue two years' worth. She testified that Howard Johnson was not senior management, so he could accrue a maximum of 40 days. Referring to J-19, she indicated that the excess 8.5 days over the 40 days that Johnson had accrued would be deducted. Since in the past there was a problem as to who was senior staff and who was not, she was not surprised that Eugene Campbell said that Johnson was senior staff.

White-Eutsey further explained that senior staff did not get paid for accumulated sick days unless at the end of the year they bought back sick and personal days. (Senior staff would receive payment for sick days on a one-to-three ratio if requested by the end of June.) An employee could accrue sick days, but if the employee left there was no buying back the sick days; an active employee could buy back personal and sick days. Also, an employee could get payment for sick days on a one-to-five ratio on retirement. She testified that since Caponegro, Devane, White and Jeffries were senior staff, they could each receive payment for personal and sick days on a one-to-three ratio, 1.66 vacation days for each month they worked beyond the fourteenth day of the month, and 60 accrued vacation days. Johnson was not senior staff; he received the maximum of 40 accrued vacation days plus 1.66 vacation days for each month he worked beyond the fourteenth day of the month. He could buy back sick days on a one-to-four ratio.

In further testimony, White-Eutsey stated that payments were made to petitioners, but she could not determine what was paid to them. She did not have the specific documentation to determine this. She contended that she would have to check her records to determine whether the individuals received the vacation days they should have received. She stated that all but Johnson should receive 60 vacation days' pay. They would not receive payment for sick and personal days unless they had requested it by the end of June. She further opined that they should have received 60 calendar days' pay upon termination.

DISCUSSION

On July 12, 1995, the State Board of Education created a State-operated school district in the city of Newark pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-34 to -52. Petitioners were employed by the Newark Board of Education until their positions were abolished in the takeover. Concetta B. Caponegro was the executive director of human resources; Virginia Devane was the executive director of the office of board affairs; Howard Johnson was the chief auditor of the internal audit department; Norman Jeffries was the executive controller; and Bessie White was the executive director of management and budget. The positions of petitioners Caponegro, Devane, Jeffries and White were abolished in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-44(a), while Johnson's position was abolished in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-42(a)(3).

Petitioners contend that they were separated from employment without receiving proper compensation from the State-Operated School District of the City of Newark ("District"). Specifically, petitioners maintain that they are entitled to their full salary for the 1995-96 school year because of the existence of an implied employment contract between them and the Newark Board of Education. If an implied employment contract did not exist, petitioners maintain that they are entitled to payment for 60 work days instead of 60 calendar days and payment for the sick, vacation and personal leave days they accumulated until their date of separation from employment.

Implied Employment Contract Claim

Petitioners assert that they entered into an employment agreement based on former superintendent Eugene Campbell's assurances that they would be employed for the 1995-96 school year. Petitioners also assert that the former superintendent confirmed his decision in a memorandum dated June 29, 1995, which stated, "Please be informed that you are notified that your employment will continue for the 1995-1996 school year." Consequently, petitioners contend that they justifiably relied upon the superintendent's assurances that they would continue to be employed by the Newark Board of Education from July 1, 1995, until June 30, 1996.

The statutory provision under which petitioners' (except for Howard Johnson)[2] positions were abolished provides in pertinent part:[3]

> Notwithstanding any other provision of law or contract, the positions of the district's chief school administrator and those executive administrators responsible for curriculum, business and finance, and personnel shall be abolished upon creation of the State-operated school district. The affected individuals shall be given 60 days' notice of termination or 60 days' pay. The notice or payment shall be in lieu of any other claim or recourse against the employing board or the school district based on law or contract.
> [N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-44(a) (emphasis added).]

The statutory provision establishes the rights petitioners have after the abolishment of their positions. Petitioners are entitled to 60 days' notice or 60 days' pay. The explicit language of the statute provides that the notice or payment "shall be in lieu of any other claim or recourse against the employing board or the school district based on law or contract." Ibid.

[2] Petitioner, Howard Johnson's termination was in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-42(a)(3) which provides only for his immediate termination upon creation of the State-Operated School District. As such, for the reasons set forth in this section, Johnson is also not entitled to payment under an implied employment contract.

[3] Petitioners admit that they were properly terminated pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-44(a). They make no assertion nor do they provide evidence that they were in fact terminated pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-44(c).

Even if a contract existed,[4] the statutory provision takes precedence over the contract. This interpretation conforms with the legislative intent. The Public School Education Act of 1975, N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-1 to -52, provides the State-operated school district with strong powers to modify and amend the practices of previously ineffective or failed local school administrations. The Department of Education has accepted responsibility for monitoring or taking over local public schools and providing corrective action. City Ass'n of Supervisors and Adm'rs v. State-Operated Sch. Distr. of the City of Newark, 311 N.J. Super. 300 (App. Div. 1998).

Once the determination has been made that the State will take over a school district pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-34 to -52, certain procedures must be followed. N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-44(a) provides for the abolishment of the positions of the district's chief school administrator and the executive administrators. N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-44(b) and (c) set forth the reorganization procedures the State district superintendent must follow with respect to the district's central administrative and supervisory staff. The statutory language clearly establishes the Legislature's intent to have a complete restructuring of a school district the State has determined to be mismanaged. That intent would be thwarted if persons employed by the former school district were allowed to remain in their positions because of employment contracts with the former school district. Consequently, petitioners are not entitled to payment under an implied employment contract, but are entitled under N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-44(a) to receive 60 days' notice or 60 days' pay.

[4] It is noteworthy that even if petitioners can explain how this implied contract claim can be maintained in light of the explicit statutory prohibition, they have failed to demonstrate that notification from the former superintendent constituted a legally binding contract absent ratification by the former Newark Board of Education.

"60 days' pay" Provision

Petitioners' positions were abolished pursuant to N.J.S.A 18A:7A-44(a).[5] They do not dispute that the language of the statute mandates the abolishment of their positions. Accordingly, petitioners contend that they are entitled to payment for 60 work days, which would constitute payment for 12 weeks. The District disagrees with that interpretation of the statute and contends that the petitioners are entitled to payment for 60 calendar days, which would constitute payment for 8.57 weeks.

The general rules of statutory construction provide:

> In the construction of the laws and statutes of this state . . . words and phrases shall be read and construed with their context, and shall, unless inconsistent with the manifest intent of the legislature or unless another or different meaning is expressly indicated, be given their generally accepted meaning, according to the approved usage of the language.
> [N.J.S.A. 1:1-1.1 (emphasis added).]

Thus, words of a statute are to be given their ordinary and well understood meaning in the absence of any explicit indication of special meaning. Levin v. Parsippany-Troy Hills, 82 N.J. 174, 182 (1980); Fahey v. Jersey City, 52 N.J. 103, 107 (1968); Safeway Trails, Inc. v. Furman, 41 N.J. 467, 478, cert. denied, 379 U.S. 14, 13 L. Ed. 2d 84, 85 S. Ct. 144 (1964). A statute must also be considered in the context of the entire section and in a manner that gives the statute a common-sense meaning that advances the legislative purpose. In re Boyan, 246 N.J. Super. 300, 314 (App. Div. 1991), rev'd on other grounds, 127 N.J. 266 (1992); Cressey v. Campus Chefs, Div. of CVI Serv., Inc., 204 N.J. Super. 337, 342-43 (App. Div. 1985); Gillen v. Sheil, 174 N.J. Super. 386, 392 (Law Div. 1980).

[5] Petitioner Howard Johnson's termination was in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-42(a)(3), which does not contain a 60 days' notice or 60 days' pay provision.

According to the above rules of statutory construction, the first step is to look at the actual language of the statute. See In re K.L.F., 275 N.J. Super. 507, 514 (Ch. Div. 1993). N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-44(a) states that individuals whose positions are abolished are entitled to receive 60 days' notice of termination or 60 days' pay. Because there is no explicit indication of a special meaning for "60 days' pay," the words should be given their ordinary and well understood meaning. In an employment context, "60 days' pay" means that an employee will be paid for 60 calendar days.

The 60 days' notice or 60 days' pay provision is plainly remedial in nature. The statutory section providing for 60 days' notice of termination or 60 days' pay is intended to provide relief for those individuals who immediately lose their positions upon the State's takeover. The District contends that because the Legislature provided the District with an option of notifying petitioners 60 days in advance of termination or paying them for 60 days, the 60 days must be calculated in the same manner. This seems both the obvious and fair result. Courts have interpreted 60 days to mean two months for notification purposes. See Canfield v. Board of Educ. of the Borough of Pine Hill, 97 N.J. Super. 483, 487 (App. Div. 1967), rev'd on other grounds, 51 N.J. 400 (1968).[6] Since the Legislature intended to provide petitioners with 60 days' pay as a remedial measure, in lieu of notification, calculating the payment using calendar days is in keeping with the plain meaning and the legislative intent of the statute. The most reasonable construction of the 60 days' pay provision is that petitioners are entitled to payment for 60 calendar days.

[6] See also Roberts v. Orange, 102 N.J.L. 721 (E. & A. 1926), in which the court held that the plaintiff was not entitled to full payment for the two years he was out of work due to illness. The City of Orange paid the plaintiff for two months of each year based on a 60 days' pay provision in a municipal resolution, and the court accepted this application of the resolution provision without addressing whether the 60 days should be calendar days or work days.

Payment for Accrued Sick, Vacation and Personal Leave Days

Affidavits were submitted by petitioners outlining the amounts they claim are owed them by the District for accumulated sick, vacation and personal days. Specifically, Concetta Caponegro claims entitlement to $13,676.20; Virginia Devane claims entitlement to $32,015.85; Howard Johnson claims entitlement to $24,403.20 and Bessie White claims entitlement to $94,822.90.[7]

Petitioners are not entitled to compensation for their accumulated sick, vacation, and personal leave days. Petitioners' positions were abolished pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-44(a),[8] which applies to "the district's chief school administrator and those executive administrators responsible for curriculum, business and finance, and personnel." These individuals are only entitled to either 60 days' notice of termination or 60 days' pay, which "shall be in lieu of any other claim or recourse against the" school district. N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-44(a). Absent from subsection (a) is language that would entitle petitioners to accumulated leave time.[9]

In contrast, N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-44(c), which governs the abolishment of the "positions of the central administrative and supervisory staff . . . , other than those positions abolished pursuant to subsection a," provides:

> Employees or officers not hired for the reorganized staff shall be given 60 days' notice of termination or 60 days' pay. The notice or payment shall be in lieu of any other claim or recourse against the employing board or the school district based on law or contract. Notwithstanding this limitation,

[7] Petitioner Norman Jeffries was paid in full for his unused sick, vacation and personal leave days, as indicated in his post-hearing brief, May 22, 1998.

[8] But note, petitioner Howard Johnson's termination was in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-42(a)(3).

[9] Similarly, as it pertains to Howard Johnson, N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-42(a)(3) contains no provision for payment for accumulated vacation, sick and personal days.

> nothing herein shall preclude an individual from asserting upon separation from service any legal contractual right to health care coverage, annuities, accrued vacation days, accrued sick leave, insurance and approved tuition costs.

The right to claim accrued vacation days and sick leave is explicitly provided to individuals whose positions are abolished under subsection (c). Administrative Law Judge Springer's initial decision in Cirasa v. State-Operated School District of the City of Paterson, 95 *N.J.A.R.*2d (EDU) 141, may aid in determining the legislative intent for the difference in the two subsections. The ALJ stated:

> Once the State takes over the operation of a mismanaged local school district, the wholesale restructuring process proceeds in three well-defined phases. "[U]pon creation of the State-operated district," the four top management positions . . . are immediately "abolished." N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-44(a). . . .
> Within the next six months,[10] the State district superintendent "shall prepare a reorganization of the district's central administrative and supervisory staff and shall evaluate all individuals employed in central administrative and supervisory positions." N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-44(b). Employees falling within this category automatically lose their positions as soon as the reorganization is implemented. The controlling statute expresses this result in clear and emphatic language: "Notwithstanding any other provision of law or contract, the positions of the central administrative and supervisory staff . . . shall be abolished upon the reorganization of the State-operated school district's staff." N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-44(c). . . .
> The third and final phase of restructuring the district's management concerns the evaluation and possible dismissal of building principals. N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-45.

[10] The Legislature has extended the period for reorganization of the district to one year. N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-44(b).

staff, subsection (c), and to treat those individuals covered by the two subsections differently. For example, the Legislature provides for the rehiring of individuals whose positions are abolished under subsection (c), but not for the rehiring of individuals whose positions are abolished under subsection (a). More importantly, and as discussed above, the express language of N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-44(c) provides the individuals affected by that subsection with the right to assert claims relating to accrued vacation and sick days, while N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-44(a) does not.

Because the actual words of a statute are to be looked at when analyzing a statute, and subsection (a) does not contain any language granting individuals affected by that subsection the right to claim accrued vacation, sick or personal leave days, such individuals are not entitled to make claims for accrued leave. Accordingly, petitioners, whose positions were abolished pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-44(a), are not entitled to compensation for their accrued sick, vacation, and personal leave.

CONCLUSION

Petitioners are not entitled to their full salary for the 1995-96 school year. Their claim of an implied employment contract fails because any claims based on law or contract are superseded by N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-44(a). Petitioners Caponegro, White, Devane and Jeffries should receive payment for 60 calendar days. Petitioners may not receive compensation for their accrued sick, vacation, and personal leave days since the statute does not provide for such relief.

ORDER

It is hereby ORDERED that petitioners' claim for full salary for the 1995-96 school year and for accrued sick, vacation and personal leave days is denied. Petitioners' claim to payment for 60 work days is denied. With the exception of petitioner Howard Johnson, petitioners' claim to payment for 60 calendar days is granted.

Respondent is to determine whether petitioners have received the appropriate payment as established herein. If petitioners have not received 60 calendar days' pay, they are to receive it immediately. However, if petitioners have received moneys for accrued sick, vacation and personal leave days, respondent is to be reimbursed.

I hereby FILE this decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

CONCETTA B. CAPONEGRO, VIRGINIA DEVANE, HOWARD JOHNSON, NORMAN JEFFRIES AND BESSIE WHITE,	:
PETITIONERS,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
STATE OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF NEWARK, ESSEX COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Petitioners' exceptions and the District's reply thereto are duly noted as submitted in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Initially, petitioners reiterate that, contrary to the Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) findings, they were entitled to rely upon the offer of employment for the 1995-95 school year extended to them by the former Executive Superintendent of Schools, Eugene Campbell. Petitioners underscore that, according to Campbell's testimony, his appointment decisions did not require ratification by the former Board. Citing Peck v. Imedia, Inc., 293 N.J. Super. 151, 168 (App. Div. 1996) to advance the proposition that an individual is entitled to proceed on a theory of promissory estoppel by virtue of her reliance on a promise for employment, petitioners argue that "it is hard to imagine a more definite promise of employment than that contained

Petitioners next challenge the ALJ's conclusion that the "60 day" provision referred to in N.J.S.A. 18:7A-44a means 60 calendar days, rather than 60 work days. In this regard, petitioners assert that the ALJ fails to consider the language of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14, which provides that a board may, upon certification of tenure charges to the Commissioner of Education, suspend that person with or without pay, but if a determination is not made within 120 calendar days, then the full salary of that person shall resume. Contending that this provision is dispositive, petitioners aver, > it is clear, that when the Legislature in the Education Laws decided that a time period was to be computed based upon "calendar days," it has specifically so stated. Clearly, if the Legislature intended that Executive Administrators should receive only 60 calendar days' pay it would have used the exact same verbiage that it used in the tenure statute. (Id. at p. 6)

Petitioners reason that N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-44a, which is remedial in nature, as recognized by the ALJ, should be liberally construed for the benefit of the persons to be protected. (Id.)

Petitioners further find it "mind boggling, considering the quantity of the dollars involved and the number of years of service of the Petitioners" that the ALJ would have concluded that they were not entitled to payment for accumulated sick, vacation or personal days. (Id. at p. 8) Petitioners cite a recent decision of the Appellate Division, which establishes that "teachers' accumulated sick leave compensation was not a 'mere expectancy' but rather was either an accrued or vested right." (Id., citing In the Matter of Morris School District Board of Education, 310 N.J. Super. 332 (App. Div. 1998)) Petitioners add,

> In essence what the Administrative Law Judge has done herein is allow, with absolutely no analysis, the decades and scores of Petitioners' meritorious service to the Newark School District to be > forfeited in direct contravention to the Appellate Division decision in Morris based upon her lame interpretation of one phrase of the statute in question.  (Id. at p. 9)

Petitioners contend that the ALJ has broadly interpreted what she viewed as a waiver provision in N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-44a, so as to improperly bar their claims, contrary to what they view as the rules of statutory construction. (Id. at p. 10, citing Young v. Schering Corp., 141 N.J. 16 (1995))

Finally, petitioners contend that the ALJ denies Petitioner Johnson recovery of accumulated sick, vacation and personal leave time by applying N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-44a, rather than 18A:7A-42a(3). In this regard, petitioners remind that Johnson was already paid for part of his accumulated leave days. (Id. at p. 13) Moreover, petitioners note that N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-42a(3) contains no provision specifying that 60 days' pay "shall be in lieu of any other claim," as does N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-44a.

In reply, the District contends that the ALJ correctly rejected petitioners' implied contract claim. The District underscores that N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-44a addresses petitioners' rights upon separation from employment, providing that such employees shall be terminated upon creation of the State-operated school district, "[n]otwithstanding any other provision of law or contract." (emphasis in text) (District's Replies at p. 2) Moreover, the District asserts that,

> [a]ssuming that Petitioners can explain how their implied contract claim can be maintained in light of the explicit statutory prohibition, they are unable to prove the existence of an agreement since such implied agreement required ratification by the former Newark Board of Education. Even as the former Executive Superintendent, Eugene Campbell was required to obtain the ratification by the former Newark Board of Education of any decisions made with respect to Petitioners' employment. N.J.S.A. 18A:17A-5(c). (Id. at p. 3)

Thus, the District reasons that Campbell's offer of employment was invalid and without legal effect. As to the significance of Peck, supra, the District argues that Peck concerned private sector employment, rather than the public sector employment, as herein, which was created and is governed by statute. (Id.)

The District next asserts that the ALJ correctly construed the 60 days' pay provision in N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-44a, arguing that petitioners' reading conflicts with the statute's "notice of termination" provision which has been interpreted by the Appellate Division as 60 calendar days. (Id. at pp. 4-5)

Finally, the District reasons that the ALJ appropriately rejected petitioners' claim for accrued sick, vacation and personal leave time, and the District should, therefore, be reimbursed for all payments made in connection with such claims, as the payment constitutes an improper diversion of public monies. (Id. at p. 5) In this regard, the District finds that the Morris case, as cited supra by petitioners to advance their claim, is inapposite to the matter herein. Rather, the District points out that the Legislature expressly > defined a class of employees covered under N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-44(c) who could assert a claim for accrued vacation and sick leave. However, Petitioners, as at-will executive administrators, were not covered by a collective bargaining agreement and were not employees defined under N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-44(c)." (Id. at p. 6)

The District concludes that "the remedial effect of N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-44(a) is to provide the State-District Superintendent with strong powers to modify and amend the practices of previously ineffective or failed local school administrators," (id. at pp. 6, 7) and maintains that petitioners' claims for accrued sick, vacation and personal leave time are without merit.

Upon careful and independent review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner determines to affirm the initial decision of the ALJ, with clarification as set forth below. Initially, the Commissioner notes that the parties do not refute that Petitioners Devane,

White, Jeffries and Caponegro were terminated in accordance with the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-44a. That statute provides,

> Notwithstanding any other provision of law or contract, the positions of the district's chief school administrator and those executive administrators responsible for curriculum, business and finance, and personnel shall be abolished upon creation of the State-operated school district. The affected individuals shall be given 60 days' notice of termination or 60 days' pay. The notice or payment shall be in lieu of any other claim or recourse against the employing board or the school district based on law or contract. Any individual whose position is abolished by operation of this subsection shall be entitled to assert a claim to any position or to placement upon a preferred eligibility list for any position to which the individual may be entitled by virtue of tenure or seniority within the district. No individual whose position is abolished by operation of this subsection shall retain any right to tenure or seniority in the positions abolished herein. (Emphasis added) (N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-44a)

Neither do the parties dispute that Petitioner Johnson, formerly the Chief Auditor for the Newark Board, was terminated in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-42a(3), which provides that

> The State district superintendent of school shall, subject to the approval of the commissioner or his designee, make all personnel determinations relative to employment, transfer and removal of all officers and employees, professional and nonprofessional, except that the services of the district auditor or auditors and attorney or attorneys shall be immediately terminated by creation of a State-Operated school district. (emphasis added) (N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-42a(3))

The Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that, even assuming, arguendo, petitioners can establish that a contract for their employment for the 1995-96 school year, in fact, existed, the language in both statutes, cited above, renders it abundantly clear that, upon creation of the State-operated School District of the City of Newark on July 12, 1995, any employment "contract" was extinguished. (Initial Decision at p. 14) It was the intent of the Legislature that, upon establishment of a State-operated school district, the chief executive officers of the district would be dismissed. (See Statement to A-4644, Senate Education Committee.) Thus, the Commissioner affirms that none of the petitioners has a viable claim to continued employment for the 1995-96 school year, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-42a(3) and 18A:7A-44a.

With respect to petitioners' claims that if they were not entitled to continued employment for the 1995-96 school year, then they are entitled to 60 working days' pay, rather than 60 calendar days', the Commissioner affirms that Petitioner Johnson has no entitlement to 60 days' severance pay of either kind, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-42a(3). (See Massa v. State-Operated School District of the City of Jersey City, 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 52 (1991), aff'd at 366 establishing that attorneys and auditors employed by the District were not entitled to pay in lieu of the 60 days' notice of termination upon State-operation.)

Further, notwithstanding petitioners' plea that the language set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 should be dispositive herein, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ, for the reasons set forth at pages 16 and 17 of her initial decision, that Petitioners Devane, White, Jeffries and Caponegro are entitled to 60 calendar days' pay, prorated in accordance with the salaries each was receiving on July 11, 1995, just prior to State-operation.[1]

Finally, with respect to petitioners' claims for payment for accumulated sick, vacation and personal leave time, the Commissioner finds that neither N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-42a(3), in the case of Petitioner Johnson, nor N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-44a, supports petitioners' claims. Here, the Commissioner finds it noteworthy that N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-44a specifies that the employee's 60 days' pay "shall be in lieu of any other claim or recourse against the employing board or the school district based on law or contract." (emphasis added) Even more persuasive, however, is that while N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-44c contains a "waiver" provision similar to that in subsection (a), subsection (c) nevertheless explicitly provides that employees whose positions are abolished pursuant thereto may assert "upon separation from service any legal contractual right to health care coverage, annuities, accrued vacation days, accrued sick leave, insurance and approved tuition costs." Clearly, if the Legislature had intended to allow claims for accumulated sick, vacation and personal leaves from employees terminated pursuant to either 18A:7A-44a or 18A:7A-42a(3), it would have so provided.

[1] It is herein noted that Petitioner White was paid her salary for 60 calendar days (initial decision at p. 5) and Petitioner Caponegro was paid for 60 calendar days at the salary for an assistant personnel director, the position to which she returned after State-operation, rather than as the acting executive director. (Id. at p. 6) The record further indicates that Jeffries has received 45 days' pay for 60 calendar days. (Id. at p. 7)

Additionally, the Commissioner rejects the precedential value petitioners place on Morris, supra. There, the Appellate Division reviewed and affirmed a decision rendered by the Public Employees Relations Commission which established, inter alia, that the Morris Board's proposal to cap paid leave entitlements, rather than permit the accumulation of sick leave as deferred compensation upon retirement, as was its practice for 45 years, must be stayed, since the Association "had not knowingly waived the vested rights of its members to accrued sick leave compensation." Morris, supra at 336. Unlike the situation herein, the Morris Court was particularly concerned not just with an employee's right to deferred compensation, but with the Association's power to bargain away such rights "absent knowing consent by those who would be adversely affected." (Id. at 345) The cases cited by the Court in support of its holding involved employees working under collective bargaining agreements. Moreover, contrary to petitioners' characterization, the Court explicitly stated that it took no position with respect to whether a teacher's accumulated sick leave compensation constituted an "accrued right," a "vested interest" or a "mere expectancy." (Id. at 341) To the contrary the Court confirmed, "We think there is no profit in dealing in labels such as 'vested right,' 'accrued interest' or 'mere expectancy.' None fits precisely, and it would be a mistake to choose one and be driven by the choice." (Id. at 343) The Commissioner, therefore, rejects the weight ascribed to Morris by petitioners with respect to their claims for sick leave, and, instead, finds that the ALJ's conclusion in this regard may not be dismissed as a "lame interpretation of one phrase of the statute in question," as petitioners have urged. (Petitioners' Exceptions at p. 9)

Accordingly, the Commissioner adopts the initial decision of the ALJ, as clarified herein, and directs that the District pay Petitioner Devane for 60 calendar days and Petitioner Jeffries for 15 calendar days, prorated according to the annual salary each enjoyed just prior to State-operation. To the extent Petitioner Caponegro's 60 calendar days' payment was at the rate for an assistant personnel director rather than that of an acting executive director for human resources (initial decision at p. 6), and assuming the former rate is less than the latter, she is to be reimbursed for any differential. Petitioners are entitled to no further compensation. Petitioners Jeffries and Johnson are directed to reimburse the District for the amount each received as compensation for accumulated sick, vacation or personal leave time.[2]

IT IS SO ORDERED.[3]

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

[2] In the case of Petitioner Jeffries, the District may offset any obligation to pay him the balance of the 60 calendar days' severance by the amount he received as compensation for accumulated sick, vacation or personal leave time.

[3] This decision, as the Commissioner's final determination in the instant matter, may be appealed to the State Board of Education pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-27 et seq. and N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.1 et seq., within 30 days of its filing. Commissioner decisions are deemed filed three days after the date of mailing to the parties.

STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION

DECISION

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, January 4, 1999

For the Petitioners-Appellants, Balk, Oxfeld, Mandell & Cohen (Sanford R. Oxfeld, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Respondent, Sills, Cummis, Radin, Tischman, Epstein & Gross (Philip E. Stern, Esq., of Counsel)

The State Board of Education affirms the decision of the Commissioner of Education for the reasons expressed therein. We reject the petitioners' contention that the Commissioner misinterpreted the statutes at issue herein. Like the Commissioner, we find it clear from the language of those statutes that the Legislature had not intended to allow claims for accumulated sick, vacation and personal leave by individuals whose employment was terminated pursuant to either N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-44a or N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-42a(3) following the creation of a State-operated school district.

In so doing, we note that the petitioners have alleged for the first time in their arguments before us that these statutes impaired their "contractual right" to receive accumulated pay for unused sick, vacation and personal days in violation of the New Jersey and federal constitutions. Upon review of petitioners' argument, we find that they have failed to establish such a violation. Nor do we find that their claim requires further fact-finding or educational expertise. (It is now well established that when a controversy arising under the school laws presents constitutional issues, "such issues should merely be noted....Factual presentations relevant to the constitutional issues may be made, however, to ensure an adequate record for determination on appeal. In this way both the integrity of the administrative system and the [party's] right to a judicial determination of constitutional issues will be preserved." Parents for Student Safety, Inc. v. Board of Education of the Morris School District, decided by the State Board of Education, February 5, 1986, slip op. at 5, aff'd, Docket #A-3257-85-T7 (App. Div. 1987), quoting Paterson Redevelopment Agency v. Schulman, 78 N.J. 378, 388 (1979). Moreover, "in litigation to resolve purely constitutional claims,...although an agency may base its decision on constitutional considerations, such legal determinations do not receive even a presumption of correctness on appellate review." Bd. of Ed. v. Neptune Educ. Ass'n., 293 N.J. Super. 1, 9 (App. Div. 1996), quoting Abbott v. Burke, 100 N.J. 269, 298-99 (1985). Nonetheless, the Court stressed that "[w]here the broader subject matter of a case is within the purview of an administrative agency's authority, it is valuable to have the insights and policy reflections of that agency, even if the only issue to be decided is one of constitutional dimensions, in respect of which the agency is seen to have no particular expertise or authoritative decisional role." Id.)

We therefore affirm the decision of the Commissioner.

STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION

DECISION

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, January 4, 1999

Decided by the State Board of Education, April 7, 1999

Remanded by the Appellate Division, April 14, 2000

For the Petitioners-Appellants, Balk, Oxfeld, Mandell & Cohen (Sanford R. Oxfeld, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Respondent, Sills, Cummis, Radin, Tischman, Epstein & Gross (Cherie L. Maxwell, Esq., of Counsel)

This matter is before us pursuant to a remand by the Appellate Division.

The petitioners, senior staff members whose employment was terminated following the creation of a State-operated school district in Newark prior to the start of the 1995-96 school year, sought compensation for 1995-96 in addition to payment for their accumulated vacation, sick and personal days.

On April 7, 1999, the State Board of Education affirmed the decision of the Commissioner of Education, agreeing that the petitioners were not entitled to their full salaries for 1995-96 or to payment for accumulated sick, vacation and personal leave. The State Board rejected the petitioners' contention that the Commissioner had misinterpreted the pertinent statutes. Like the Commissioner, the State Board found that it was clear from the language of those statutes that the Legislature had not intended to allow claims for accumulated sick, vacation and personal leave by individuals whose employment was terminated pursuant to either N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-44a or N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-42a(3) following the creation of a State-operated district. In addition, the State Board found that the petitioners had failed to establish that these statutes had impaired their "contractual right" to receive accumulated pay in violation of the New Jersey and federal constitutions. The State Board also agreed with the Commissioner that the petitioners were entitled to compensation for 60 calendar days, rather than 60 work days, upon their termination.

On April 14, 2000, the Appellate Division reversed the decision of the State Board to the extent that it denied the petitioners compensation for accumulated vacation and sick days. The Court concluded that the vested-rights portion of the statutory benefit package, i.e., accumulated vacation and sick leave, could not constitutionally be withheld. The Court found that the petitioners were entitled to that deferred compensation to the extent that their pre-takeover contracts of employment required such payment upon termination of employment in the same manner as if their employment had been voluntarily terminated. Consequently, the Court remanded this matter "for reconsideration and calculation of these benefits in accordance with the policy and procedure manual of the Board and, to the extent appropriate, the Board's past practices." It also remanded "for a determination of whether [petitioner] Johnson's accumulated vacation limit is forty or sixty days." In all other respects, the Court affirmed the decision of the State Board.

In view of the Court's decision, we remand this matter to the Commissioner for such proceedings as may be required to fulfill the specific terms of that decision. We do not retain jurisdiction.

Board certified tenure charges of incapacity against respondent industrial arts teacher. Issue of alleged work-related injury is pending at Division of Workers' Compensation.

As respondent conceded that he was incapacitated as a result of his work-related condition and unable to work as an industrial arts teacher, the ALJ found that he was incapacitated and concluded that the Board established by a preponderance of credible evidence that respondent's tenure must be removed. Motion for summary decision was granted.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own. Commissioner dismissed respondent from his tenured position as of the date of this decision and referred the matter to the State Board of Examiners for action against his certificate as it deems appropriate.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE DELAWARE VALLEY REGIONAL HIGH SCHOOL DISTRICT, HUNTERDON COUNTY, Petitioner,
v.

Respondent.

John E. Croot, Esq., for respondent (Rand, Algeier, Tosti & Woodruff, attorneys)

BEFORE JEFF S. MASIN, ALJ:

The Delaware Valley Regional High School Board of Education (Board) filed a tenure charge with the Commissioner of Education (Commissioner) on September 2, 1998, in which it alleged that Thomas Jabour, a tenured teacher in the District, was incapacitated from performing the position for which he is tenured and therefore sought to remove his tenure, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10. The Commissioner transferred the case to the Office of Administrative Law pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

Mr. Jabour has filed a separate petition with the Commissioner, Agency Dkt. No. 367-8/98, OAL DKT. NO. EDU 10116-98, in which he seeks the restoration of salary and benefits to which he claims entitlement. He contends therein that the Board failed to comply with its obligations under N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1, which provides that he is entitled to receive up to one year of salary if he is absent from his employment "as the result of a personal injury caused by an accident arising out of and in the course of his employment," and also the Family Leave Act, N.J.S.A. 34:11B-1 to -16. He disputes the Board's understanding of its obligations under N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1, as it has, in his view, illegally charged his absence against his annual or accumulated sick leave. He seeks to consolidate the tenure charges with his petition. The Board opposes consolidation.

The Board now moves for summary decision on the tenure charges, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5. As incapacity is recognized as a basis for dismissal of a tenured employee under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10, the Board contends that, pursuant to the standard for determining a motion for summary decision as explicated by the New Jersey Supreme Court in Brill v. Guardian Life Insurance Co., 142 N.J. 520 (1995), the matter may be decided without the need for testimony, as there is no dispute of material fact relevant to the tenure charge since Mr. Jabour concedes that he is in fact incapacitated from performing his job as a tenured Industrial Arts teacher. As for the claims regarding salary and benefits asserted in Jabour's petition, the Board believes that these are irrelevant to the determination of the tenure charge, and can be decided after a determination is made by the Division of Worker's Compensation whether the injury suffered by Jabour did in fact arise out of and in the course of employment.

Mr. Jabour's response to the motion plainly states that he "admits that, at this time, he is incapacitated as a result of his work related condition and unable to work as an Industrial Arts Teacher." Letter Brief, dated October 26, 1998, pg. 2. He argues against the motion on the grounds that the tenure charge is "premature." This argument arises from his contention that his disability is related to a work connected injury, which occurred when he witnessed an accident in class on March 25, 1997, in which a student lost three fingers while using power equipment. He contends that, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1, he is entitled to receive his full salary for one calendar year without having his absence charged to his annual or accumulated sick leave. He argues that the district improperly charged his sick leave through April 17, 1998. He believes that he properly should be eligible for pay through April 1999. Thus, he should still be receiving pay at this time. Until his sick leave is exhausted, a tenure charge based upon his incapacity is premature.

Mr. Jabour relies upon an unpublished decision rendered by Honorable Lilliard Law, A.L.J., in The Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Verga, OAL DKT. NO. EDU 0215-83, Initial Decision June 3, 1983, adopted by the Commissioner of Education, Final Decision, July 21, 1983. In Verga, a tenured janitor was injured in an accident arising out of and in the course of the performance of his duties on May 13, 1982. He was absent from his employment for approximately four months as a direct result of this injury. A dispute arose as to his ability to return to work as of September 13, 1982, his physician having certified him for return with a brace, but the Board's doctor having concluded that the brace was restrictive and potentially harmful to Verga. The Board determined to consider Verga's ability to physically perform his job, and it certified tenure charges to the Commissioner on October 19, 1982. While much of Judge Law's decision addressed concerns about the Board having acted improperly when it violated the Commissioner's 15-day policy regarding appropriate time for an employee to respond to the Board concerning the Board's proffered charges, Judge Law also considered the respondent's argument that the Board failed to comply with the dictates of N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1. Verga contended that this statute reflected a determination of the Legislature that where an employee suffered an injury which arose from and in the course of the performance of duties, the Board could not seek the removal of the tenured employee, but must continue his or her salary, for one year, or until the Board agreed that the employee was capable of resuming employment. The Board responded that where the proofs are sufficient to establish permanent and total disability for the performance of the employment, there is no prohibition against proceeding with a tenure charge for incapacity.

Judge Law concluded that the Board had violated the 15-day policy and further determined that it could not use "the device of certifying charges against respondent in order to avoid its mandated obligation of compensating respondent for a legitimate and statutorily protected claim." Such conduct was "unconscionable and should not be allowed to stand." Verga, supra, Initial Decision, at page 21. The Commissioner affirmed Judge Law's decision, cautioning that the obligations under N.J.S.A. 18A:30-1.2 were only applicable when the precise conditions of the statute were met. Id., Final Decision, at 25.

The Board disputes the significance of Verga. First, it contends that the case merely stands for the proposition that where the conditions were met, the Board had an absolute obligation to compensate Mr. Verga for up to one year pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1. Second, in Verga the parties were in dispute as to whether he was incapacitated from further service at the time when the tenure charges were brought, a mere four months after the accident. Here, the Board has paid Jabour for the time the Board believes he was entitled to receive pay, which was for more than one year. If there is a question as to whether the Board properly paid Jabour what he is entitled to, corrections can be made to properly compensate him. As for the issue of disability, in contrast to Verga, here Jabour admits his total and permanent disability. The Board here did not certify tenure charges for approximately seventeen months following the accident, as opposed to just four months in Verga. Thus, the Board submits that it has not acted prematurely.

DISCUSSION

The Board seeks to remove Mr. Jabour's tenure because he is incapacitated from performing the requirements of the position of Industrial Arts Teacher. That fact is not in dispute; he readily concedes that he is incapacitated and offers no suggestion of a likely favorable change in his condition . Unlike Verga, there is no difference between the parties on this subject. Thus, the sole material issue regarding his ability to perform his job is resolved. The only argument which Jabour raises against the present issuance of a decision removing his tenure is that the Board has not honored what he believes is their legal obligation under N.J.S.A. 18A:30-1.2. That obligation can only be fixed once the appropriate forum determines whether the admitted disability arose from and in the course of employment. That determination is reserved for the Workers' Compensation Judge. If the decision is in Mr. Jabour's favor, he is entitled to certain monies, but that determination in no way will affect his status as a person incapable of performing the tenured employment. There is no reason why a decision on the tenure charge cannot be rendered at the present time. Such a decision should not prejudice his right to seek redress from the Board at a later time if the compensation case ends favorably for him. His current petition will survive the tenure determination, and remain inactive till such time as it may properly be reactivated and resolved in light of the compensation decision. The request for consolidation is DENIED.

CONCLUSION

Mr. Jabour has offered no arguments or authorities which require that a decision on his tenure status await any other proceedings. Therefore, as the issue of incapacity is conceded, and there are no material facts in dispute, I FIND that he is incapacitated from performing his position as an industrial arts teacher and CONCLUDE that the Board has established by a preponderence of the credible evidence that Mr. Jabour's tenure must be removed. The motion for summary decision is GRANTED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. The parties did not file exceptions.

Upon careful and independent review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner determines to affirm the initial decision of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) finding that the Board has established that respondent is incapacitated from performing his responsibilities as a teacher of industrial arts. The Commissioner notes that not only does respondent concede his total and permanent disability (initial decision at p. 4), but two physicians affirm that he is presently unable to resume his instructional duties, and will be incapable of doing so in the foreseeable future.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the ALJ is adopted for the reasons expressed therein. Respondent is deemed dismissed from his tenured position as a teacher as of the date of this decision. This matter shall be referred to the State Board of Examiners pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6 for action against his certificate as it deems appropriate.*

Remanded by the Appellate Division, August 22, 2000

For the Petitioner-Appellant, Patrick Sheehan, Esq.

For the Respondents-Respondents, Elizabeth Doyle, Deputy Attorney General, and Nancy Kaplen, Assistant Attorney General, of counsel (John J. Farmer, Attorney General of New Jersey)

On May 5, 1999, the State Board of Education affirmed the decision of the Commissioner of Education dismissing the petition filed by the Township of Berkeley, a constituent municipality within the Central Regional High School District, challenging a determination by the Department of Education that it was not entitled to Senior Citizen Supplemental Stabilization Aid for the 1998-99 school year under the Comprehensive Educational Improvement and Financing Act.

Oct. 4, 2000

Berkeley Township appealed that determination to the Appellate Division, and, on August 22, 2000, the Court reversed our decision. Finding the legislative intent to be clear, the Court concluded that Berkeley Township was entitled to Senior Citizen Supplemental Stabilization Aid for the 1998-99 school year, and it remanded this matter to the State Board.

In view of the Court's decision, we remand this matter to the Commissioner for such proceedings as may be required to assure compliance with that decision.

OF THE IBRAHIM CHARTER SCHOOL,	:	DECISION
PASSAIC COUNTY.	:

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, January 29, 1999

For the Appellant, Syed M. Tariq-Shuaib, pro se

For the Participant Commissioner of Education, Michelle L. Miller, Deputy Attorney General (Peter Verniero, Attorney General of New Jersey)

Ibrahim Charter School (hereinafter "appellant") filed an appeal to the State Board of Education from a letter decision of the Commissioner of Education dated January 28, 1999 denying its application to establish a charter school in the 1999-2000 academic year. The Commissioner indicated in his letter that the appellant had submitted an incomplete application which was lacking in detail. He further indicated that the financial data submitted by the appellant was not relevant to the proposed school and that a cash flow statement had not been provided.

Appellant subsequently requested to include an additional document in the record of this matter, contending that the record, which was prepared for the State Board by the Deputy Attorney General representing the Commissioner in this appeal, omits an "addended complete application" it had filed with the Commissioner. The Commissioner opposes this request, stating that appellant had not filed its "addended" application until February 8, 1999, after its previously submitted application had been rejected.[1]

We have considered the arguments made by the appellant in light of the record provided to us on behalf of the Commissioner, including the application submitted by the appellant and the recommendation of the Department's reviewers to deny that application. On the basis of this review, we conclude that the appellant has failed to demonstrate an entitlement to establish a charter school pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:36A-1 et seq.

In so doing, we have not considered the "addended" application submitted to us by the appellant. The appellant does not dispute the Commissioner's assertion that this application was not filed in a timely manner. Rather, appellant argues that it was denied the opportunity to modify the application it had previously submitted or to provide an addendum thereto. The regulations governing charter schools, N.J.A.C. 6A:11-1.1 et seq., authorize the filing of "subsequent information as addenda to [charter school] applications" only upon request of the Department of Education. N.J.A.C. 6A:11-2.1(c). In this case, the Department did not request additional information from the appellant.

The State Board of Education therefore affirms the Commissioner's decision to deny appellant the grant of a charter for 1999-2000.

Board certified tenure charges of unbecoming conduct, insubordination and other just cause against respondent custodian. Respondent contended tenure charges were a subterfuge for discrimination based on religion and national origin.

Following a lengthy hearing, wherein numerous witnesses testified, and review of the record, the ALJ concluded that the Board established by a preponderance of credible evidence that respondent was guilty of unbecoming conduct, insubordination and failure to properly perform his duties. As to respondent's claim of discrimination, the ALJ found that respondent was carefully watched because of his belligerent behavior toward supervisors and coworkers. ALJ ordered respondent removed from his position as a custodian.

Commissioner found no reason to disturb the credibility determinations and factual findings of the ALJ, due regard being given to the person who heard the live testimony and assessed the witnesses' behavior. Thus, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ and adopted the findings and determination in initial decision as his own. Respondent was ordered dismissed from his position as a tenured custodian as of the date of this decision.

Respondent.

Viola S. Lordi, Esq., on behalf of petitioner (Wilentz, Goldman & Spitzer, attorneys)

Ashton E. Thomas, Esq., on behalf of respondent

Record Closed: September 15, 1998 Decided: November 25, 1998

BEFORE SOLOMON A. METZGER, ALJ:

This matter arises out of a decision by the Carteret Board of Education (Board) to seek respondent's dismissal as a tenured custodian, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 through -13. A hearing was conducted over the course of nineteen days and the record closed on September 15, 1998, with receipt of the last post-hearing memorandum. An order of extension is in effect.

The questions presented are whether respondent was insubordinate and/or failed to carry out his assigned duties to the extent that his dismissal is warranted. Respondent maintains that the tenure charges are a subterfuge for discrimination based on religion and national origin, as well as retaliation for filing a complaint with the Division on Civil Rights.[1]

A few facts are undisputed. Respondent is forty-five years old and was born in Egypt. He is a member of the Islamic faith. Respondent arrived in the United States in 1981 and commenced employment with the Board in January 1991. He was assigned initially to the Columbus School. In November 1991 he was transferred to Carteret High School, where he remained until September 1993, when he was returned to Columbus School. Respondent was granted tenure in January 1994. He was transferred to Carteret Middle School at the commencement of the 1996-97 school year. In September 1996, respondent filed a complaint with the Division on Civil Rights, and a local newspaper article reported this on September 20, 1996. Respondent was suspended on May 6, 1997, pending these proceedings.

Charles J. Bartley has been employed by the Board for twenty-five years and in 1991 was the principal of Columbus School. He testified that when respondent first came to work he performed well, but problems soon emerged. Respondent did not clean his area satisfactorily. Mr. Bartley recalled one incident involving a refrigerator that was so dirty the muck could just about be scraped off the interior walls. When he pointed this out, respondent insisted that the refrigerator was clean and refused to do anything further about it. Mr. Bartley testified that respondent took instruction poorly and on a number of occasions answered him in a belligerent tone. Respondent did not get along well with the other custodians in the building and often complained that he received arduous assignments, while they loafed about. Mr. Bartley thought the work was evenly divided. When Mr. Bartley brought his concerns about respondent to the attention of the then superintendent, respondent was transferred. Mr. Bartley testified that he had not sought this result and thought that respondent should stay at Columbus School and learn to conform his behavior or be fired, but the central office took the matter out of his hands.

[1] There was some discussion about consolidating the civil rights complaint with the instant matter, but respondent withdrew his filing with the Division on Civil Rights just prior to hearing, and either has filed or expects to refile in federal district court. Nevertheless, respondent raised the civil rights issues as a defense.

Joseph A. Torre was employed by the Board for twenty-seven years and retired in January 1997. He became principal of Carteret High School in January 1992. Mr. Torre testified that respondent began running into trouble at Carteret High School in the spring of 1992. Mr. Katz, the physical education teacher, complained that the gymnasium area was not being adequately cleaned. Mr. Torre confirmed for himself that the gym and locker rooms were dusty and dirty and he spoke to respondent about it. Respondent was obstreperous and denied any deficiency. Respondent seemed to prefer painting to cleaning and he was instructed to focus on cleaning (P-47); the Board employs maintenance men to paint. Respondent's performance did not improve and criticism was met with the suggestion that Mr. Torre was picking on him.

Mr. Torre testified that on August 11, 1992, respondent was involved in an altercation with Bruce Elliot, another janitor at Carteret High School. Mr. Torre was on vacation at the time, but the police were called and the only eyewitness, a Robert Wilder, reported that respondent started the fight (P-5). The Board reviewed the matter and suspended respondent for six days (P-8). There was a second incident involving these two custodians on April 1, 1993, for which the police were called, but apparently there were no fisticuffs and no witnesses. Discipline was not meted out to either employee, but Mr. Elliot was transferred to separate the two of them.

Respondent was transferred back to Columbus School in September 1993, and Mr. Torre went on to become assistant superintendent in July 1994. Mr. Torre's next substantial contact with respondent came on August 27, 1996. That evening there was a Board meeting and he and the superintendent, S. Louis Panigrosso, were talking at the front of the room while the Board was in executive session. Respondent approached Mr. Panigrosso to complain about a pending assignment change that was bringing him from the day shift at Columbus School to the afternoon/evening shift at the new Carteret Middle School. Mr. Torre testified that construction and expansion at the new middle school had engendered numerous changes (P-36), but respondent thought that his former mother-in-law, a secretary employed by the Board, was responsible for his placement. In his mind she was attempting to disrupt his visitation time with his children.

Mr. Torre testified that he attempted to explain that there had been a reorganization and that respondent's mother-in-law had nothing to do with the decision, but respondent became loud.

Mr. Torre took respondent and Mr. Panigrosso into his office across the hall so that members of the public would not hear. Once in the office respondent became increasingly agitated, as did Mr. Torre, and to end the discussion Mr. Torre got up to leave. At that point respondent yelled "You're all fucking going down" and additional profanities. Mr. Torre responded with "Who the hell do you think you are talking to?" and Mr. Panigrosso called in Mr. Packard, the manager of buildings and grounds, who stood between the two men. The shouting continued and, having heard the noise, some Board members came in to try to calm things down. At this point Mr. Packard called the police, but respondent left the building and Mr. Torre decided not to file a complaint. He did prepare an incident report (P-35).

Mr. Torre testified that respondent injured his back on March 11, 1996, and was in and out of work for a few months. His 9:00-a.m.-to-6:00-p.m. schedule was pushed up one hour so that he could attend physical therapy appointments in the evening. Respondent did tell him that work was interfering with his ability to get to therapy, but Mr. Torre did not believe it.

John G. Terebetsky has been employed by the Board for twenty-eight years. In September 1994 he became the principal at Columbus School, where respondent was then assigned. Mr. Terebetsky testified that he is most concerned with good housekeeping, and soon after his appointment he met with the custodians to emphasize this. In the latter part of September, respondent remonstrated with him that his duties were onerous by comparison to those of the other janitors in the building. Mr. Terebetsky thought that the custodial work was evenly divided.

Mr. Terebetsky testified that on October 3, 1994, Nancy Kozimor, the vice principal, told him that respondent refused her instructions to clean a girls' bathroom in the basement. Mr. Terebetsky went down to speak to respondent about this and told him to clean the bathroom. Respondent was surly during this conversation and, to Mr. Terebetsky's surprise, said "If you put it in writing I will do it." Mr. Terebetsky advised respondent that if he did not proceed to the task immediately, he would consider it insubordination. Respondent complied. P-21; P-50.

Mr. Terebetsky testified that on February 7, 1995, at about 10:30 a.m. he received a report that there was snow and ice on a set of outside steps and he asked respondent to take care of it. Respondent was the only custodian in the building at the time and he was unloading a supply truck. Respondent said that he had to unload the truck, and although this was not a particularly pressing assignment, Mr. Terebetsky went to find Ed Wawrzynski, the supply clerk, to unload the truck while respondent cleared the steps. As Mr. Terebetsky and Mr. Wawrzynski walked toward the truck delivery area, respondent approached them and began shouting. Mr. Terebetsky testified that he tried to calm respondent because there were classrooms nearby, but respondent continued to yell and then stalked off. Mr. Terebetsky instructed Mr. Wawrzynski to finish unloading the truck and Mr. Terebetsky went outside and cleaned up the stairway. P-25. There was a meeting with Superintendent Panigrosso about this incident and respondent apologized for his behavior. Mr. Terebetsky denied saying "You should be thankful you work here, if it was up to me the job would go to an American."

Mr. Terebetsky testified that on May 10, 1995, he was monitoring lunch, as is his custom. Custodians are generally present to clean up spills; lunchroom aides, usually parents, help the children open milk containers, and they clear the tables when lunch is done. Pizza was being served that day. Toward the end of the period, as the children were getting ready to exit and the lunchroom aides were wiping the tables, Mr. Terebetsky saw Pat Teixeira, an aide, yelling and following respondent. He was walking away from her holding two slices of pizza, which he then threw in the garbage. Mr. Terebetsky heard respondent say in an angry voice "You don't deserve this," to which Ms. Teixeira responded "You're an asshole." The two then continued to yell at each other in the presence of the children. Mr. Terebetsky reprimanded both of them. Mr. Terebetsky testified that respondent somehow decided that Ms. Teixeira purloined these pizza slices and that it was his job to right the situation. He was merely there to mop up, and, in any case, Ms. Teixeira later explained that she purchased these slices for her children, but they weren't hungry so she intended to save them for later (P-26; P-27).

Mr. Terebetsky testified that he frequently had to mediate between respondent and the other custodians; respondent generally felt that everyone was out to get him. He questioned every assignment. Mr. Terebetsky gave respondent a respectable evaluation in September 1995, but he testified that this was the beginning of the school year (R-78).

Mr. Terebetsky testified that on March 11, 1996, respondent injured his back and was out of work for a while. He denied that respondent's section was not cleaned in his absence.

James McFadden has been employed by the Board for twenty-five years. He began as a teacher, and in July 1996 became vice principal of the new Carteret Middle School. The building was previously known as the Lincoln School and an addition was being completed over the summer. This was the first time the district would have a middle school and there was considerable work to be done to make the building ready by September. Custodian assignments were not a priority at the time and when school began the janitors were simply given daily directions. Over the course of the next few months he and the principal, Patricia Holmes, prepared and amended written divisions of labor for the custodians (R-2; R-2A; R-5), which he felt were fair. Respondent complained that he had the most demanding assignment. The two day-shift janitors, Mike Kepich and Jim Mets, had less square footage to clean, but their routines were frequently interrupted to assist teachers and administrators and to clean up the messes that middle school students invariably make. Mr. McFadden testified that in his opinion Don Macfie, who shared the 1:00-p.m.-to-10:00-p.m. shift with respondent, had the most difficult janitorial responsibilities, because he had no open areas to clean. Mr. Macfie maintained the second floor, which consists mainly of classrooms, requiring him to move chairs and tables before he swept the floor and to wash a number of sinks.

Mr. McFadden testified that on the afternoon of October 11, 1996, he asked respondent to clean-up fecal matter in a men's room, after respondent refused a teacher's request to do so. Respondent declined because this was not in his area. Mr. McFadden testified that this bathroom was in Mike Kepich's section, but he was out that day. After respondent refused he closed the bathroom and called Mr. Macfie to do the job (P-39).

Mr. McFadden testified also about an incident in February 1997. The custodians had been instructed to set up tables for a science fair. Respondent was unhappy because Mr. Kepich was not helping and he picked up the schematic for the tables, threw it at Mr. McFadden and stormed out of the gym. Mr. McFadden testified that he was shocked; he did not prepare a memo.

On April 30, 1997, at about 3:00 p.m., just after the school day was finished, Mr. McFadden was in a hallway talking to Brian Sosnowski, a groundskeeper, and Mike Kepich. Respondent approached in an agitated state. He wanted to know why Mr. Kepich was not in the gym helping him set up chairs for an awards assembly that evening. Mr. McFadden told respondent to leave and they could talk about it later, but respondent became enraged, tore off the back brace he was wearing and began flailing it in his hands. Respondent pointed his finger at Mr. McFadden and said that he was part of the problem. Mr. McFadden testified that respondent was out of control and he felt threatened. P-41. Shortly thereafter he went to talk with Ms. Holmes about the incident, and when he entered her office he could see that she was shaken. She told him that respondent had just been there and had angrily "ripped his shirt open." She was flushed, jittery and complaining of chest pain. Mr. McFadden walked Ms. Holmes out of the building to her car.

Patricia Holmes has been employed by the Board for twenty-eight years. She began as a teacher and became principal of the Lincoln School in 1991. In 1996, when the Lincoln School became Carteret Middle School, she continued on as building principal. Ms. Holmes testified that she and her staff worked throughout the summer to ready the building, but there was still much to be done when the school year began. The janitorial staff received verbal instructions daily for the first few weeks and assignments became more formal over the next few months as she assessed her needs. Ms. Holmes testified that respondent griped to her about how onerous his chores were, and although she did not agree, she offered to talk to Mr. Macfie about switching assignments. Respondent declined. Ms. Holmes testified that she relies heavily on Mr. Kepich throughout the day and felt that he and the other custodians were quite busy.

Ms. Holmes testified that on April 30, 1997, sometime after 3:00 p.m., respondent came to her office in a rage. He yelled that he would file unfair labor practice charges and then yanked open his shirt in a fit of anger, popping off the buttons. Respondent then withdrew. Ms. Holmes testified that she was "scared to death," and began to experience chest pain. Soon thereafter Mr. McFadden came by and explained that he had just had an encounter with respondent in the hallway. Ms. Holmes testified that she had assigned three of the four custodians to set up chairs in the gymnasium for the evening's activities. She asked the fourth custodian, Mr. Kepich, to go over to the Carteret War Veterans' Building and borrow a large coffeemaker. This, apparently, is what set respondent off. P-42.

Ms. Holmes testified that Mr. McFadden walked her to her car and she drove to her mother's house, which was nearby, to lie down. She did not feel well, but was obliged to participate in the awards ceremony. She did not see respondent that evening. Although Mr. McFadden had talked to her previously about unpleasant encounters with respondent, she had not realized how explosive respondent was.

S. Louis Panigrosso was the superintendent of schools when these tenure charges were filed. He became superintendent in July 1994 and was employed by the Board for thirty-four years before retiring recently. Mr. Panigrosso testified that he tried to make respondent feel like he was part of the team and met with him many times over the years to hear his accusations. Respondent was disgruntled wherever he was assigned, and constantly measured his work load against the duties of other custodians. The Board contemplated terminating respondent in the latter part of 1994, fearing that he was mentally imbalanced. Respondent agreed to a psychological evaluation, which indicated he was fit to continue working (P-23; P-24). The incident of April 30, 1997, was, however, the last straw. Mr. Panigrosso concluded that respondent had terrified Ms. Holmes and he had to recommend ouster.

Mr. Panigrosso had personal knowledge concerning the August 27, 1996 incident, when respondent appeared to talk with him on the evening of a Board meeting. Respondent was distressed about the impending shift in his schedule from days to nights. The Board was in closed session and Mr. Panigrosso and Mr. Torre were talking together in the meeting room. Respondent approached and became boisterous. To avoid a scene before the public, Mr. Panigrosso suggested they walk across the hall to Mr. Torre's office. Respondent was concerned that his transfer to the evening shift would curtail his ability to visit his children, and he thought this was the work of his mother-in-law, a district secretary. Mr. Panigrosso testified that there were a number of custodian reassignments at that time because they were opening a new middle school; respondent's was just one of these. The discussion lapsed into loud argument and Mr. Panigrosso feared that respondent and Mr. Torre would come to blows. He stepped outside and called Mr. Packard in, at which point respondent began upbraiding Mr. Packard. A few Board members came by in response to all the noise and respondent departed.

Mr. Panigrosso testified that respondent's decision to file a civil rights complaint played no part in his decision to prefer tenure charges. Mr. Panigrosso did see a September 20, 1996 newspaper article reporting that respondent had filed such charges. Mr. Panigrosso testified that the manager of buildings and grounds oversees the maintenance men, groundskeepers and custodians. Building principals also have jurisdiction over the custodians in their building.

Drew Packard has been employed by the Board for twenty-four years and began as a custodian. In 1991 he became manager of buildings and grounds and was respondent's direct supervisor. He testified that respondent was too concerned with everyone else's assignments, and insufficiently attentive to his own work (P-40; P-48; P-50; P-56; P-60; P-71; R-25).

Mr. Packard testified that respondent was suspended in August 1992 after his fight with Bruce Elliot because an eyewitness, Robert Wilder, said that respondent was at fault. Mr. Wilder appeared before the Board. There was a second incident in April 1993, and Mr. Packard arrived at the scene before the police after hearing the call on his shortwave radio. Mr. Packard denied seeing Mr. Elliot. He was not aware that the municipal court later instructed Mr. Elliot to stay away from respondent for six months. He was in court on the trial date, but left before the case was heard.

Mr. Packard testified that on August 22, 1994, respondent stormed into his office while he was talking to Samuel Carrico, Jr., who serves with him on the local volunteer fire department. Respondent said that Mr. Packard had to do something about Scott Makwinski, another custodian, who was not doing his share. Respondent threatened, "If you don't do anything about it you will regret it." The following day, respondent came into Mr. Packard's office while he was conducting a meeting with George Wehrhahn and Edward Wawrzynski. He ranted again about Scott Makwinski and as he left the room, he threw a spray bottle he was holding out the door and then kicked it down the hallway. Mr. Packard and the other individuals present prepared statements regarding the incidents. P-14; P-15; P-17; P-18.

Mr. Packard testified that on June 6, 1995, respondent was asked to work an election. Respondent's shift then was 9:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m., and he was given extra duty from 6:00 a.m. to 7:00 a.m. and then again from 6:00 p.m. to 9:00 p.m. He was paid for four additional hours. Chuck Martorelli worked the same 9:00-a.m.-to-6:00-p.m. shift that day, and received six extra hours for working for the Board of Elections. R-48; R-49. Mr. Packard could not say why; he did not recall what Mr. Martorelli's assignment for the Board of Elections was that day.

Mr. Packard testified that he did not learn that respondent had been hospitalized on April 10, 1996 (R-165; R-165A; R-165B) until a week later. Respondent was docked a day's pay, which was later returned to him.

Mr. Packard testified that on June 18, 1996, respondent changed his hours without permission. Normally he worked from 9:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m., but he was allowed to work from 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. on days when he attended physical therapy sessions after a back injury. On this day he arrived one-half hour early and left one-half hour early (P-32; R-174).

Mr. Packard testified that in September 1996 he did not make the assignments at the Carteret Middle School; these were done by Ms. Holmes. He made the assignments for the custodians outside the building.

Mr. Packard testified that he knew respondent reinjured his back on December 18, 1996. The December 20, 1996, memo that he wrote to respondent complained about deficient effort prior to the injury (P-74).

Mr. Packard testified that there was some reluctance by Board members to grant respondent tenure in January 1994, but respondent had family responsibilities, so he provided a favorable recommendation. Mr. Packard testified that Ms. Teixeira is his wife's niece.

Robert Cowen has been employed by the Board for twenty-nine years as a social studies teacher, and has also served as president of the Carteret Education Association (CEA), the employee union. Mr. Cowen testified that respondent began complaining about mistreatment and discrimination soon after he entered the Board's employ. Mr. Cowen discerned no merit in these claims. Respondent felt that cleaning toilets was beneath him, yet, this was part of his job. On separate occasions he referred respondent to two union lawyers, Steven Klausner, Esq., and Nancy Oxfeld, Esq.; both recommended against proceeding on his behalf. Eventually Mr. Cowen found that he could not work with respondent and a representative from another district was enlisted to interact with him.

Mr. Cowen testified that he interceded many times on respondent's behalf with Mr. Packard, and found Mr. Packard quite willing to smooth things over. At the time respondent was under consideration for tenure, there were Board members who were dissatisfied with his demeanor. Mr. Cowen testified that without Mr. Packard's recommendation, tenure would likely have been denied.

In 1996 respondent filed a complaint against the CEA with the Public Employment Relations Commission (PERC); these charges were dismissed (P-80). Mr. Cowen testified that Mike Kepich does a fine job and to his knowledge no complaint has ever been lodged against him.

Joyce Yeagle is a teacher who has been employed by the Board for nineteen years. She knows respondent and considers him a friend. On or about February 1, 1994, supplies from her home economics class were being transferred from one building to another. This included sewing machines, craft supplies and numerous cardboard boxes filled with paper. Ms. Yeagle testified that respondent carried the boxes from her classroom to the top of a stairwell, and there were three workers at the bottom of the steps. After taking a number of loads from the classroom to the stairwell, respondent threw a box down the steps and it broke open, almost hitting Brian Sosnowski.

Ms. Yeagle testified that on April 30, 1997, she was in Carteret Middle School tutoring a student after class. As she was signing out she noticed that Ms. Holmes was sitting in her office and appeared upset. Ms. Yeagle went in to see what was wrong and Ms. Holmes told her that respondent had just stormed in, yelled at her and ripped open his shirt, popping the buttons. Ms. Holmes is generally well collected, but she was completely frazzled at that moment.

Brian Sosnowski testified that he has been employed by the Board for fourteen years as a groundskeeper. On February 1, 1994, he was part of a group moving materials and equipment from the home economics class at Columbus School to Lincoln School. At one point he was at the bottom of the staircase with his back to the stairs. He heard rumbling and turned to see a few rolls of paper fly by. A few seconds later he was hit by a box in the right calf and almost went down with a ceramic oven he was carrying. Mr. Sosnowski yelled up to respondent, "What the hell are you doing?" and respondent replied, "This is because no one is helping me." He reported the incident (P-11), but at a subsequent meeting was persuaded by the union not to pursue the matter.

Mr. Sosnowski testified that on April 30, 1997, he was talking to Mr. McFadden and Mr. Kepich about a replacement lawnmower, when respondent approached yelling that Mr. Kepich was not setting up chairs in the auditorium. Mr. McFadden told him to calm down, but respondent continued his tirade and then tore his back brace off and threw it to the ground.

Antonio Rivera began employment with the Board in July 1996, doing odd jobs. In July 1997 he was appointed as a custodian and given the 1:00-p.m.-to-10:00-p.m. shift at Carteret Middle School. Mr. Rivera reviewed his assignment in detail and testified that he was generally able to complete his work with half an hour or so to spare.

Respondent testified in his own behalf. He sought to meet the Board's charges and also presented incidents that he believes establish discrimination and retaliation.

On August 11, 1992, at about 7:30 a.m. respondent got into an argument with Bruce Elliot. It was Bruce's turn to buy coffee, and Bruce called out to respondent, "Hey Egyptian, come here"; Bruce was holding a coffee cup. Respondent approached and said that he was upset that Bruce had reported him the day before for lateness, at which point Bruce said "Here's your coffee motherfucker," as he spilled it on the ground. Then Bruce, who weighs approximately 300 pounds, jumped respondent, who weighs 130 pounds. The police were called and cross-complaints were filed by the parties in municipal court, and later dropped (R-13). Bruce was seen by a doctor, as was respondent (R-14). Nevertheless, respondent was suspended for six days and Bruce was not punished.

Respondent testified that at approximately 9:30 p.m. on April 1, 1993, he was ending his shift at the high school. As he was locking up he saw Bruce Elliot outside urinating on a wall. Bruce was drunk and began taunting him, saying "Come here motherfucker, I'll cut your heart out." Respondent closed the door and ran to the nurse's office, where he called the police. He testified that Bruce started banging at the door trying to get in. Mr. Packard arrived a few minutes later and told Mr. Elliot to drive off. Then the police arrived. Respondent filed a municipal court complaint (R-24), and Mr. Elliot was instructed to stay away from respondent for six months (R-26). Respondent testified that Mr. Packard was present for the proceedings, but Mr. Elliot was never punished.

Respondent testified that on February 1, 1994, he was assigned to help move Ms. Yeagle's classroom equipment to another building. In actuality, he did all the moving. He carried approximately fifty boxes, some quite heavy, from the classroom to the staircase, down the steps, and into a waiting truck. The other three men present were simply there to drive and offered no assistance. Moreover, Mr. Packard had ordered him to do the job quickly so that he could get back and set up for lunch. Respondent testified that he was just about running, and one time as he started down the stairway he slipped and a box fell. He yelled "Brian, watch out," and the box missed Mr. Sosnowski.

Respondent testified that on June 23, 1994, his son was graduating from kindergarten and he went to get two folding chairs for his wife and mother-in-law. He had just finished setting up the entire gymnasium. Scott Makwinski said "What are you doing, you think you own the place?" and Mr. Packard nodded approval. He sought review of this matter (R-30), but nothing was done.

Respondent denied threatening Mr. Packard on August 22 or 23, 1994. There were no incidents on these days.

Respondent denied that he refused to clean a girls' bathroom on October 3, 1994. He simply wanted Mr. Terebetsky to station someone outside the door to keep the girls out while he cleaned. When Ms. Kozimor agreed to stand outside, he did the job. He never said anything to Mr. Terebetsky about putting it in writing.

Respondent testified that on February 7, 1995, he was unloading a truck at Mr. Packard's request. Mr. Terebetsky approached and told him to remove water and ice from a set of outside steps. Respondent said he would do it after unloading the truck, and did. He really wasn't sure whose orders had priority.

Respondent testified that on April 3, 1995, he had to set up lunch by himself, which is difficult, and he later complained to Mr. Terebetsky (R-80). Nothing happened.

Respondent testified that on May 10, 1995, he was clearing tables after lunch, and threw numerous empty pizza boxes into the garbage. At one point Ms. Teixeira began making a ruckus, and initially he could not understand her. Then he realized that she was upset about some pizza slices that he may have thrown away, so he fished through the garbage and found a box with two slices of pizza. Respondent testified that he was "shocked" because there was no extra pizza that day; in fact, someone had to be sent out to buy a slice for one boy who had none. Ms. Teixeira is related to Mr. Packard, and it was she who acted unreasonably by cursing at him. Inexplicably, Mr. Terebetsky took her side. R-31.

Respondent testified that there was a meeting about the pizza incident on May 16, 1995, at which Mr. Terebetsky said to him, "You're lucky to have a job here, the job should go to an American, people like you should go back where you came from." Respondent then said "I don't have to take this" and got up to leave, but Mr. Torre told him to "shut up and sit down." At this point Mr. Panigrosso asked for calm and suggested a change in assignment and hours for respondent. Mr. Panigrosso said that respondent would work the 1:00-p.m.-to-10:00 p.m. shift, and when respondent protested that this would curtail his visitation rights with his children, Mr. Panigrosso retorted "If I transfer you, will you quit?"

Respondent testified that on June 6, 1995, he worked six hours for the Board of Elections, but was only paid for four hours. At this time his normal shift was 9:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. He worked for the Board of Elections from 6:00 a.m. until 9:00 a.m., and again from 6:00 p.m. to 9:00 p.m. Chuck Martorelli, another custodian at a different school, received six hours' pay for the day (R-48; R-49).

On June 12, 1995, respondent complained to Mr. Panigrosso that George Wehrhahn, in the presence of Mr. Packard, said to him "Work, you fucking slave," and Mr. Packard did nothing (R-32). He received no response to his complaint, although it appears there was some investigation (R-33).

In July 1995, when respondent was contemplating suing the CEA, he asked the New Jersey Education Association (NJEA) to provide a lawyer. The NJEA refused (R-155; R-155A R-155B). Respondent testified that the NJEA and the CEA, through Mr. Cowen, conspired against him with the Board. Respondent went forward pro se before a PERC hearing officer and prevailed (R-156). He had no idea that this decision was not final, and only learned at our hearing that the PERC reversed (P-80).

Respondent testified that on February 12, 1996, he was setting up for lunch when Mr. Donovan, a teacher, brought his eighth-grade class in. Mr. Donovan was supposed to wait until the room was ready and respondent told him so. They argued and respondent testified that he left to avoid further confrontation. Mr. Donovan followed him into the boiler room and a fight was about to ensue. Bradford Bradach, another teacher, intervened by holding Mr. Donovan back and was injured. Teacher Robert Molarz held on to respondent for his protection. Respondent prepared a statement (R-79); Mr. Donovan was not disciplined.

Respondent testified that on March 11, 1996, he injured his back at Columbus School folding a broken table. Mr. Terebetsky had told him in January to mark any broken tables with an "X" so that they could be repaired or removed. He did so (R-86; R-87; R-88), but the tables remained – this is how little Mr. Terebetsky was concerned for his welfare. Respondent testified that he was taken to Hadley Medical Center, where he was told that he had suffered a strain. He worked on and off for the next month, began physical therapy, and learned that his back problem had a structural component (R-8). On April 10, 1996, he was hospitalized while at work because of back pain (R-165; R-165A); nevertheless, Mr. Packard wrote a memo rebuking him for failing to come to work that day (R-37A). The memo was typed by "m.c.," Maria Callegerio, his former mother-in-law. Respondent filed a grievance which was upheld (R-39), but he was not paid for the day until July 1996 (P-88). Respondent testified that when he returned to work in June 1996 (R-208F), the broken tables were still not fixed. When a custodian is out, coverage is always provided, but he returned to find his area filthy and infested with mice.

Respondent testified that he attended physical therapy, which included hydrotherapy, at the Comprehensive Rehabilitation Institute (CRI). There were no appointments after 5:00 p.m. This meant that he had to take sick time to go to his therapy sessions and this occurred at least ten times. Mr. Packard alleged that he changed his hours without permission on June 17 and 18, 1996 (P-32; P-33), but these were really days on which he had to leave by 4:30 p.m. to make a 5:00 p.m. therapy session. When Jose Perez, another custodian, changed his schedule during this same period (R-168; R-169; R-170 R-171; R-173), there were no repercussions.

Respondent testified that on the evening of August 27, 1996, he sought out Mr. Panigrosso after a Board meeting to talk about his impending shift change and transfer to Carteret Middle School. Mr. Torre interrupted loudly by saying "What the fuck do you want?" and grabbed his arm. They then went into Mr. Torre's office, where Mr. Torre pointed at respondent's chest and raised his hand to hit him. Mr. Panigrosso grabbed Mr. Torre's arm and said "Knock it off – What are you doing?" At that point Mr. Packard walked in and respondent departed. The police arrived, but they were there for another incident that had occurred during the Board's session. He chose not to file another report, and instead spoke to a newspaper reporter who was present. That reporter contacted him a few days later and the article published on September 20, 1996 (R-1) arose from the interview. Mr. Packard spoke to him about the article and said "You will not get anywhere – I'm going to get you out of here."

Respondent testified that when he began working at Carteret Middle School in September 1996, Ms. Holmes gave oral instructions daily as to what needed doing. Thereafter, the shift schedule was established in writing and amended, but his load kept increasing. By the time of the last change in late October, there was far more to do than he could accomplish efficiently.

Respondent testified that Ms. Holmes told him Mr. Packard was behind this and that it was out of her hands. Initially, Ms. Holmes was friendly toward him, but soon she began to toe the party line. Respondent complained to the central administration about these workload increases (R-7), but Mr. Torre investigated and respondent got no satisfaction.

Respondent testified that Mike Kepich did not sign in or out on numerous occasions (R-56 through R-62; R-64 through R-72) and was not around much in the afternoons. Respondent often cleaned Kepich's section, which was commonly dirty (R-94 through R-105).

Respondent testified that on December 18, 1996, he reinjured his back while raking leaves outside Carteret Middle School (R-136) and was out of work for a few weeks. He resumed hydrotherapy at the CRI (R-137). During this period Mr. Packard issued a memo complaining that he was not cleaning his section properly (P-74). Mr. Torre told him that since his schedule at that point was 1:00 p.m. to 10:00 p.m. he could go to therapy in the morning; respondent testified that hydrotherapy was not available in the morning. Respondent testified that Dr. Shalom Abboudi, the physician he was seeing, had the insurance company write him a letter emphasizing the need to attend physical therapy in an effort to prod the Board to let him go (R-138A).

Respondent testified that on April 30, 1997, he was required to set up some 250 chairs in the gymnasium for an awards assembly. He worked alone, and when the job was done he went to see Ms. Holmes. Respondent stood outside her office door and explained in a restrained voice that he had been given too much work and was ready to file an unfair labor practices complaint. At this, Ms. Holmes said "They want you out, don't you get it?" Respondent left without saying anything further. Respondent testified that he did not see Mr. McFadden at all that day, and he went home for lunch. After arriving home he thought that Ms. Holmes might have taken offense at the comment that he was contemplating litigation. He telephoned her to say that he was not planning to sue her, his problem was with Mr. Packard and the Board. He returned to work after lunch and continued his duties. The awards assembly ended at about 9:00 p.m., and when he finished cleaning he accompanied Ms. Holmes to her car, as he had done often in the past. She gave no indication of being upset with him.

Respondent testified that he is provided with uniforms each year, three pairs of pants and three shirts. He presented nine shirts, which he testified were given to him in the three years prior to his suspension. Photographs were later substituted for the shirts and placed in evidence (R-179A through R-179I). Respondent testified that none have missing buttons or show signs of repair.

Respondent testified that he received good evaluations, and his work was praised by supervisors throughout his career (R-25; R-28; R-29; R-78; R-109; R-109A; R-109B).

Marylou Campbell is a fifth-grade teacher and serves as the CEA representative for Columbus School. She was called by respondent, and she testified that respondent generally felt poorly treated, but that was not her impression. There was one time when he had to set up for lunch alone and she wrote to Mr. Panigrosso about it (R-81). Ms. Campbell testified that she is not too familiar with the grievance process, because respondent was the only employee to file a grievance during her tenure as building representative.

Edward Wawrzynski is the stock clerk for the Board. He recalled that respondent injured his back in December 1996, and Mr. Wawrzynski took him to the hospital (R-198). Mr. Wawrzynski testified that he supplies the custodians with uniforms, but could not say whether shirts shown to him at hearing were those he supplied.

Louis G. Mangieri has been a member of the Board, on and off, from 1984 forward. Mr. Mangieri testified that the Board was not entirely satisfied with the psychological evaluation it received in December 1994 indicating that respondent was fit, and some members wanted him watched. He did not recall which members said this. Mr. Mangieri testified that to his knowledge Mr. Packard has no ax to grind with respondent. Mr. Mangieri testified that he read the newspaper article indicating that respondent had filed a civil rights complaint; the Board had no reaction to it.

Bradford F. Bradach is a physical education teacher. On February 12, 1996, at about 11:20 a.m. he heard raised voices and found respondent and Mr. Donovan arguing; students were all about. He and Robert Molarz, another teacher, attempted to stop an impending scuffle. Mr.

Molarz grabbed respondent and Mr. Bradach grabbed Mr. Donovan. Mr. Bradach testified that he had a hernia operation some six weeks earlier, and when he grabbed Mr. Donovan he felt a pain. The incident lasted no more than thirty seconds and he suffered some muscle strain. He wrote a report (P-104).

Philip H. Witt is a psychologist in private practice who examined respondent on March 18, 1998 (R-195). Dr. Witt administered various psychological tests, interviewed respondent, and spoke to people who know him. Dr. Witt found no broad psychopathology in respondent. He is conscientious, somewhat compulsive, and without any history of paranoia. Respondent respects authority, likes to follow rules, and is unlikely to take the offensive with peers or supervisors. Respondent tends to minimize his symptoms; his loss of work has been disturbing to him. Dr. Witt conceded that he did not speak to anyone employed by the Board about respondent, and if he were to learn that respondent had acted aggressively on a number of occasions, his view might change. This is the substance of the record.

The Board must show by a preponderance of the credible evidence that respondent was insubordinate and/or failed to properly perform his duties such that he should be dismissed.[2] N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10; 18A:17-3. This has been done. The dispute poses a series of credibility questions. Generally, I found the Board's witnesses believable and respondent unconvincing.

I begin at the end, because the April 30, 1997, sequence of events triggered the tenure charges, arguably represents the worst conduct alleged, and places the credibility question in sharp relief. On that day a conversation took place at about 3:00 p.m. in a school hallway among Mr. McFadden, Mr. Kepich, Mr. Sosnowski and respondent. Mssrs. McFadden and Sosnowski say that they were talking when respondent approached and berated them. They say he was so angry that he tore off a back brace and threw it to the floor. Respondent denies that any such encounter took place.

Ms. Holmes testified that respondent frightened her when he arrived at her office door in a furious state and popped the buttons off his shirt. According to respondent, he simply told Ms.

[2] I have not recounted every incident raised by the parties. Some were de minimis; a few charges were dismissed at the end of the Board's case.

Holmes that he was working harder than the other janitors in the building and was ready to file unfair labor practice charges. He did not raise his voice and Ms. Holmes was sympathetic, but powerless to block Mr. Packard and the administration. He presented nine work shirts that show no apparent flaws, to prove that Ms. Holmes fabricated this incident. Ms. Yeagle offered that Ms. Holmes seemed rattled when she saw her shortly after 3:00 p.m., and Ms. Holmes related that respondent had frightened her by yelling and tearing his shirt open.

Respondent testified that Ms. Holmes was so at ease with him that night that he walked her to her car after the awards assembly. Ms. Holmes allowed that respondent had walked her to the car a few times in the past, but under no circumstances was she in his company that night, or ever again.

Ms. Holmes was a particularly persuasive witness who was not given to overstatement. She had no reason to spin a yarn. The vice principal, Mr. McFadden, also likely has more to do than imagine confrontations with respondent. His testimony is supported by Mr. Sosnowski, and I accept that the events occurred as these three witnesses related them.

Mr. Terebetsky testified to three incidents that occurred during the 1994-95 school year. He maintained that respondent refused his order to clear ice and water from some outside steps, and that eventually he did it himself. Respondent testified that he was stuck between Mr. Packard's instruction to unload a supply truck and Mr. Terebetsky's directive, but that he performed both jobs. Mr. Terebetsky testified that respondent refused his direction to wash a bathroom, unless the request was presented in writing. Respondent says he was willing to clean the girls' bathroom and did, after a monitor was posted outside to keep the girls out. Mr. Terebetsky testified that respondent took it upon himself to throw away two pizza slices belonging to Ms. Teixeira because he thought she wasn't entitled to these and a screaming match resulted. Respondent says he was throwing pizza boxes out and inadvertently disposed of a box with two slices in it. Mr. Terebetsky was a careful witness and there is nothing in this record to support respondent's suggestion that he harbored ethnic or religious bias. I specifically reject respondent's assertion that Mr. Terebetsky said at a meeting that if it were up to him, respondent's position would go to an American. Respondent's memo summarizing the incident and meeting does not mention this comment. Respondent is given to attributing inflammatory quotes to his various adversaries.

Respondent is accused of intentionally throwing a box or boxes down a set of steps on February 1, 1994, that injured Brian Sosnowski. Ms. Yeagle testified that she saw respondent throw a box down the steps and "almost" hit Mr. Sosnowski. Mr. Sosnowski said that two boxes came down the stairs and that one of them did hit him. He yelled up to respondent and respondent answered that he threw the box down because no one was helping him. Respondent testified that he was doing all the work under strict time constraints, and that he slipped once at the top of the steps and a box fell. Although Ms. Yeagle and Mr. Sosnowski did not recall the details in exactly the same way, they both indicate that respondent threw a box or boxes down the stairs intentionally. I find this core of the story credible.

Mr. Packard asserted that there were two successive incidents of insubordination on August 22 and 23, 1994. Mr. Packard testified that respondent entered his office on both days and began yelling that Mr. Packard must do something about Scott Makwinski, or else. The record contains three corroborating statements as to these events. Respondent retorts that all of this testimony is fiction. I find that respondent shouted at and threatened his supervisor on these days.

Principals Bartley, Torre, Terebetsky and Holmes, supervisor Packard, vice principal McFadden, and superintendent Panigrosso were in accord that respondent failed to consistently maintain his assigned areas, at times refused direct orders, was defensive and hostile when corrected, and could not get along with coworkers. Respondent even ran afoul of his union. Mr. Cowen testified credibly that he could never detect the mistreatment that respondent reported and eventually stopped reacting to him. It should be noted that the Board needn't have worked so hard had its intentions toward respondent been malicious. He could have been denied tenure in January 1994. There was already reason for concern then, but Mr. Packard – a villain to respondent – recommended permanent appointment.

Respondent testified that his mistreatment at the hands of Board employees accelerated after September 20, 1996, when a newspaper article reported that he had filed a civil rights complaint. Respondent said that his duties at Carteret Middle School were increased thereafter to the point where he could not do the job effectively. Ms. Holmes put the issue to rest when she testified that respondent rejected her offer to speak with Mr. Macfie, the other late-shift janitor, about trading places. Further, Mr. Rivera, who took over respondent's duties after he was suspended, testified credibly that he completes this assignment with time to spare.

Respondent pointed to other events that he thinks prove discrimination. When he fought with Bruce Elliot in August 1992, the Board suspended only him. In April 1993 respondent and Mr. Elliot argued again, but this time the matter was heard in municipal court and Mr. Elliot was found guilty, yet he was not disciplined. Mr. Packard cheated respondent out of two hours' time when he worked for the Board of Elections on June 6, 1995. On June 12, 1995, George Wehrhahn made an indecent remark to respondent in Mr. Packard's presence, without consequence. Respondent claims that his area went unattended while he was out in the spring of 1996, and he returned to find filth and mice. During this period, Mr. Packard and Mr. Torre impeded his efforts to attend physical therapy. On April 10, 1996, respondent was taken to the hospital from work, yet Mr. Packard wrote him up for being absent. He was not paid until after a grievance was filed. On December 18, 1996, he reinjured his back, and two days later Mr. Packard again wrote a memo reprimanding him. Respondent also testified that Mike Kepich was out frequently and that he had to clean Mr. Kepich's area, which was filthy.

Some of these assertions have a ready explanation, others pose credibility clashes which are precarious for respondent, and in some instances he seems correct. The police report about the August 11, 1992, incident reflects that the only witness to the fight between respondent and Mr. Elliot said that respondent started it. Mr. Packard testified credibly that he spoke with Mr. Wilder and got the same impression; Mr. Wilder appeared before the Board. Thus, the Board's decision to suspend respondent lends no support to a claim of disparate treatment. Mr. Elliot was not disciplined for the April 1, 1993, incident, though it appears he probably should have been.

Mr. Packard explained that respondent was not scheduled to work three hours for the Board of Elections on the morning of June 6, 1995; he was to set up from 6:00 a.m. to 7:00 a.m. After that voting begins and his role is finished. Mr. Packard explained that he heard Mr.

Wehrhahn's vulgarism on June 12, 1995, but it was not directed at respondent. Mr. Wehrhan was actually saying that he didn't want to be respondent's slave.

Respondent's claim that his section went unattended while he was injured in the spring of 1996 was denied by Mr. Terebetsky and is greatly strained. It assumes that Mr. Terebetsky would jeopardize the health and safety of students and staff, just to antagonize respondent. Respondent seemed fixated on Mr. Kepich, but both Ms. Holmes and Mr. Cowen testified that there were no problems with Mr. Kepich's work or attendance. He did fail to sign in and out as he should have.

Mr. Packard docked respondent on April 10, 1996, though respondent was taken to the hospital from work. He was paid after filing a grievance. Mr. Packard wrote a December 20, 1996 memo stating that he had received complaints about respondent's work. The memo addresses events that occurred prior to December 18, 1996, when respondent reinjured his back. Mr. Packard simply issued the memo while respondent was out. Respondent maintains that the Board hampered his ability to attend physical therapy, because Mssrs. Packard and Torre would not adjust his hours to let him leave before 5:00 p.m. Karen Lopez, office administrative assistant at CRI, submitted an affidavit indicating that physical therapy, including hydrotherapy, was available on various days during the week from 8:00 a.m. to 8:00 p.m., and on Saturday morning (P-105). Respondent concocted this issue.

To the extent that it appears Mr. Packard watched respondent's time and activities more carefully than he may have the time and activities of some others, it is more likely explained by respondent's belligerence than by discrimination. Mr. Packard neither said nor did anything to suggest religious or ethnic intolerance. Respondent cannot behave badly toward supervisors and coworkers, and then complain that he was singled out.

Based on the foregoing it is my conclusion that petitioner has established by a preponderance of the credible evidence that respondent was insubordinate and failed to properly perform his duties. It is ORDERED that respondent be removed from his position as a custodian.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 6259-97
AGENCY DKT. NO. 233-7/97

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF SAAD RADWAN,	:
SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOROUGH OF CARTERET,	:	DECISION

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Respondent's exceptions and the Board's reply thereto are duly noted as submitted in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4, and were considered by the Commissioner in rendering the within decision.

Upon careful and independent review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner finds no cause to disturb the credibility determinations and factual findings rendered by the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ).[1] To the extent respondent objects to the findings rendered by the ALJ based on the testimony of the witnesses and the credence he ascribed to such testimony, the Commissioner notes that the record before him does not include transcripts of the hearing conducted at the OAL in this matter. Challenges to the factual findings predicated upon credibility determinations made by an administrative law judge require the party to supply the agency head with the relevant and necessary portion of the transcript. See In re Morrison, 216 N.J. Super. 143, 158 (App. Div. 1987). In the absence of transcripts from the hearing, due regard should be given to the person who heard the live testimony and assessed the witnesses' behavior at the hearing. Close v. Kordulak Bros., 44 N.J. 589, 599 (1965).

[1] To the extent respondent objects to the ALJ's reliance on Exhibit P-105, the affidavit of Ms. Karen Lopez (initial decision at p. 23), on the grounds that Ms. Lopez did not appear as a witness and her statement is, according to respondent, contradicted by the record, the Commissioner notes that, even if Exhibit P-105, and the conclusions derived therefrom, were stricken from the record, the Board has nevertheless proven by a preponderance of evidence that respondent is guilty of unbecoming conduct.

Thus, the Commissioner concurs that the Board has demonstrated by a preponderance of credible evidence that respondent is guilty of conduct unbecoming a tenured custodian by virtue of respondent's hostile and inappropriate behavior toward his coworkers, his supervisors and other staff in the District, as well as his repeated insubordination. (See also In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of John DeMaio, School District of the Borough of Elmwood Park, Bergen County, decided June 3, 1998, aff'd State Board November 4, 1998, where the Commissioner dismissed a tenured custodian who exhibited a pattern of inappropriate language and conduct toward his supervisor.)

Accordingly, the initial decision in this matter is adopted for the reasons expressed therein. Respondent is deemed dismissed from his position as a tenured custodian as of the date of this decision.[2]

IT IS SO ORDERED.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE :
HEARING OF SAAD RADWAN, SCHOOL : DISTRICT OF THE BOROUGH OF :
CARTERET, MIDDLESEX COUNTY. :

STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION

DECISION ON MOTION

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, January 14, 1999

For the Petitioner-Respondent, Wilentz, Goldman & Spitzer (Viola S. Lordi, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Appellant, Ashton E. Thomas, Esq.

On February 9, 1999, Saad Radwan (hereinafter "appellant") filed an appeal to the State Board of Education from a decision of the Commissioner of Education dismissing him from his tenured employment as a custodian for unbecoming conduct, insubordination and failure to properly perform his duties. By letter dated February 25, counsel for the appellant requested that the briefing schedule be placed in abeyance pending receipt of the transcripts from the hearing held in the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL"). By letter dated March 3, the Director of the State Board Appeals Office ("Director") informed counsel for the appellant that the briefing schedule was being placed in abeyance pursuant to his request.

On June 21, the Director requested that counsel for the appellant advise her of the status of his efforts to obtain transcripts. In response, counsel for the appellant informed the Director in a letter dated June 25 that he had "a partial transcript because several tapes of the proceeding were blank. The missing portions involved the cross examination of a central witness, Drew Packard. Pursuant to rule 2:5-3F, the OAL must supervise the reconstruction of the record. I cannot estimate the time necessary for the reconstruction of the record." Counsel attached a copy of a letter dated April 15 from Audio Transcription Service indicating that "the third tape [of the hearing on May 15, 1998] ends during the cross of Drew Packard and the fourth tape is blank. We have contacted the office of Administrative law and they have advised us that there are no other tapes available."

On November 12, the Board filed a motion to dismiss the appeal, observing that the appellant had still failed to file a brief in support of his appeal or to provide the State Board with a complete copy of the transcript.[1]

After a careful review of the record, including the papers submitted by the parties, we deny the Board's motion to the extent that it seeks dismissal of the appeal. However, under the circumstances, we reestablish the briefing schedule at this time. As previously indicated, the briefing schedule was placed in abeyance over ten months ago, and counsel for the appellant has known for more than eight months that a portion of the hearing tape was blank. Yet, there is no indication in the papers before us that he has made a request to the Office of Administrative Law for reconstruction of the record or otherwise taken the necessary steps to facilitate such action. The papers before us indicate only that counsel for the appellant sent a copy of his June 25th letter, in which he advised the Director of the State Board Appeals Office that several tapes from the hearing were blank, to the ALJ who presided over the hearing. Nor has counsel provided us with any indication that proceedings designed to reconstruct that portion of the record are scheduled or pending in OAL.

In view of the amount of time that has transpired since this appeal was placed in abeyance and the fact that counsel for the appellant has failed to take the necessary steps to facilitate reconstruction of the record, we direct that the appellant file a brief in support of his appeal within 20 days from the date of this decision.

BEFORE MARIA MANCINI LA FIANDRA, ALJ:

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) from the Department of Education on August 7, 1997, for hearing as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

A hearing was scheduled for December 17, 1998 at the OAL, 185 Washington Street, Newark, New Jersey. Prior to the hearing, settlement discussions were held and a settlement was reached.

The parties have agreed to a settlement and have prepared a Settlement Agreement indicating the terms thereof, which is attached and fully incorporated herein.

I have reviewed the record and the terms of settlement and I FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures or their representatives' signatures.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and, therefore, ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

THE BURLINGTON COUNTY SPECIAL SERVICES SCHOOL DISTRICT, BURLINGTON COUNTY, :

RESPONDENT-RESPONDENT. :

STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, January 19, 1999

For the Petitioner-Appellant, Zazzali, Fagella, Nowak, Kleinbaum & Friedman (Richard A. Friedman, Esq. and Kathleen A. Naprstek, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Respondent, Parker, McKay & Criscuolo (Frank P. Cavallo, Jr., Esq., of Counsel)

Arlene Miller (hereinafter "petitioner") is a tenured school psychologist who was employed by the Board of Education of the Township of New Hanover (hereinafter "Board" or "New Hanover Board") until June 30, 1996, when her position was abolished and the Board contracted with a private vendor to provide all basic child study team services for 1996-97.[1] Thereafter, in July 1997, the Board determined that it would provide basic child study team services for subsequent years by contracting with the "Burlington County Educational Services Unit" ("ESU").

[1] In May 2000, the State Board of Education invalidated the waiver upon which the Board had relied in contracting with a private vendor, finding that the clear and unambiguous language of the applicable statutes precluded a district from providing basic child study team services solely by contracting with a private vendor. Arlene Miller v. Leo F. Klagholz, Commissioner, Department of Education, and Board of Education of the Township of New Hanover, decided by the State Board of Education, May 3, 2000.

On November 6, 1997, petitioner filed a petition of appeal with the Commissioner of Education, claiming that the "ESU" had violated her tenure rights under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-16 and N.J.S.A. 18A:6-31.3 by not recognizing her rights to preferred employment when it "succeeded" to the provision of child study team services to the district.

The Administrative Law Judge ("ALJ") concluded that neither statute afforded any protection to petitioner and recommended that the Commissioner grant the "ESU's" motion for summary decision. On the basis of the stipulated record, the ALJ found that "the agreement [between the Board and the 'ESU'] does not appear to have contemplated that the ESU would take over or in any way replace the operation of any program of special education operated by New Hanover, nor that the programs then in operation in New Hanover to provide such education would be abolished." Initial Decision, slip op. at 4. In that the protections afforded by N.J.S.A. 18A:28-16 and N.J.S.A. 18A:6-31.3 are available only when the operation of any "school" previously operated by a school district is undertaken by other specified entities or when a new school district is formed, the ALJ concluded that neither statute afforded any protection to petitioner. In so concluding, the ALJ found that the term "school" as defined by the case law encompasses programs providing direct educational services to students, rather than the evaluative function involved in supplying child study team evaluations, as was the case before him.

The Commissioner adopted the ALJ's recommended decision with clarification and expansion. Finding that the agreement between the Board and the "ESU" had been amended in December 1997 to include the provision of child study team services, rather than just child study team evaluations, the Commissioner stressed that joint contractual agreements for the provision of child study team services are permitted by N.J.S.A. 18A:46-5.1 and that the Board retains the legal responsibility under that statute to provide child study team services, albeit through a joint agreement with another public entity. In the Commissioner's judgment, the agreement involved in this case did not constitute a "takeover" of a school or educational program "even when giving deference to the broader applicability of the statute enunciated by the New Jersey Supreme Court in its 1984 Shelko decision." Commissioner's Decision, slip op. at 11.

Petitioner appealed to the State Board, contending that the "ESU" was obligated to recognize her tenure rights pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-16 and "other similar statutes." She argued that although tenure earned in one school district cannot generally be transferred to another district, the Legislature has created numerous exceptions to encompass those situations in which schools in a district are discontinued, when the operation of schools or school programs are assumed by other public entities, when new school districts are created, and when regional school districts are established or dissolved. She maintained that the Commissioner's decision in Stuermer v. Bergen County Special Services School District, decided by the Commissioner of Education, 1978 S.L.D. 628, and the New Jersey Supreme Court's decision in Shelko v. Mercer County Special Services School District, 97 N.J. 414 (1984), demonstrate that neither N.J.S.A. 18A:28-16 nor N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6.1 were intended to be restricted to situations in which entire schools or grades were discontinued, but were intended to apply when a class or program for special education students is eliminated and replaced with one that is operated by the county, even though the balance of the school program continues to be operated by the local district. Since the facts clearly demonstrated that the "ESU" was performing the same services for the same students previously served by the Board, she argued that the situation in this case conformed with the type of takeover envisioned by N.J.S.A. 18A:28-16. Accordingly, petitioner urged the State Board to reverse the Commssioner's decision and to direct the "ESU" to recognize her tenure and seniority rights as a school psychologist.

Respondent countered that petitioner could not claim relief under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-16 because that statute affords protection only when the operation of a school is taken over by a jointure commission or an educational services commission. Since the "ESU" was neither, respondent asserted that the statute did not apply. Respondent further contended that even if the statute did apply, petitioner would be entitled to relief only if the "ESU" assumed control over the entire special education program.

Initial review of this matter by the Legal Committee of the State Board revealed that although the parties had jointly stipulated that the respondent in this action was the "Burlington County Educational Services Unit," nothing in the record established the authority upon which the creation of such entity was based. Further, our review of the education statutes revealed that N.J.S.A. 18A:46-29 et seq. prescribed with specificity the requirements for the establishment, organization, management and control of county special services school districts and their programs. In that the "Burlington County Educational Services Unit" is a part of the Burlington County Special Services School District, it appeared to us that N.J.S.A. 18A:46-29 et seq. was controlling of the existence and operation of such unit. Because the statutes make no provision for the establishment or operation of such an entity independent of the special services school district, the Legal Committee requested that the parties submit briefs with regard to which specific corporate entity properly should be named as respondent in this case pursuant to the applicable statutes.

In response to our request, petitioner submitted a letter brief indicating that she did not dispute that the "ESU" is controlled by the statutes governing the establishment and operation of county special services school districts. She further stated that she had no objection to the substitution of the Burlington County Special Services School District as the proper corporate entity to be named as respondent in that the Burlington County Special Services School District is the public entity legally responsible for the actions of the Burlington County Educational Services Unit.

In its letter brief, respondent acknowledged that the "ESU" is an "arm" of the Burlington County Special Services School District, but asserted that the identity of the respondent was not a critical factor, nor one that required reversal of the Commissioner's decision.

Based on the foregoing and as set forth above, we conclude that the proper respondent in this matter is the Burlington County Special Services School District. We further conclude that the proper identification of the respondent in this case is not an insignificant matter given the statutory framework that governs the provision of special education services in New Jersey. Specifically, under that framework, there is no authorization for the establishment by a county special services school district of subsidiary entities to contract with other public school districts for the provision of special education services. That being the case, the only entity with the legal authority to enter into the agreements involved in this case was the Burlington County Special Services School District.

Having disposed of that issue, we turn now to the question of whether under the circumstances presented here, the Burlington County Special Services School District had an obligation under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-16 or N.J.S.A. 18A:6-31.3 to recognize the tenure rights acquired by petitioner by virtue of her service in the New Hanover school district when the Special Services School District undertook to provide the special education services previously provided by the district.

Initially, we find that N.J.S.A. 18A:6-31.3 did not impose any requirement on the Burlington County Special Services School District to recognize petitioner's tenure rights when it undertook the provision of special education services to the New Hanover school district. That statute defines "new school district" for purposes of providing a continuation of specified employment rights, including tenure rights, when a new school district is created. See N.J.S.A. 18A:6-31.4 through N.J.S.A. 18A:6-31.6. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-31.3 provides that:

> As used in this act, "new school district" means a local school district, a regional school district, a county vocational school district, a jointure commission, a county special services school district, or an educational services commission....

N.J.S.A. 18A:6-31.4 through N.J.S.A. 18A:6-31.6 provide for the continuation of employment rights "whenever a new school district is created."

The terms of these statutes are clear: they apply only when a new school district is created. When an existing special services school district contracts with a district board to provide special education services, no new school district is created. Hence, while N.J.S.A. 18A:6-31.3 includes special services school districts for purposes of ensuring the continuation of the employment rights specified in N.J.S.A. 18A:6-31.4 through N.J.S.A. 18A:6-31.6, those statutory provisions do not apply in this case.

Nor did N.J.S.A. 18A:28-16 require the Burlington County Special Services School District to recognize petitioner's tenure rights when it undertook to provide special education services to the New Hanover school district. That statute provides for the continuation of tenure and other specified employment rights:

We reject respondent's argument that the statute does not apply to county special services school districts because they are not specifically listed. Clearly, the board of a special services school district is under the authority of the Commissioner and the State Board. See, e.g., N.J.S.A. 18A:46-30 (State Board of Education shall prescribe rules for the organization, management and control of special services school districts); N.J.S.A. 18A:47-32 (programs and courses and any change therein shall be approved by the Commissioner with the advice and consent of the State Board). However, for the reasons that follow, we find that petitioner is not entitled to the protection afforded by this statute.

Under a literal reading of the statute, the result is clear. Because the special education services previously provided by the New Hanover school district were not a "school," N.J.S.A. 18A:28-16 does not apply to this situation. Petitioner, however, argues that the Commissioner's decision in Stuermer, supra, and the New Jersey Supreme Court's decision in Shelko, supra, demonstrate that this statute, as well as N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6.1, "were, in fact, also intended to apply to situations where a class or program for special needs students is eliminated and replaced by one operated by the County, even though the balance of the school program continued to be operated by the local district." Petitioner's brief, at 10. We do not agree.

Stuermer involved the application of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6.1, which provides for continuation of tenure and other rights when:

> any board of education in any school district in this state shall discontinue any high school, junior high school, elementary school or any one or more of the grades from kindergarten through grade 12 in the district and shall, by agreement with another board of education, send the pupils in such schools or grades to such other district....

In Stuermer, the Hackensack Board of Education operated a program for the deaf to which it admitted students from other districts pursuant to individual agreements with the sending boards based on the need of each classified student to receive an appropriate education. In 1973, the Hackensack Board discontinued this program and the newly created Special Services School District of Bergen County assumed responsibility for it. Petitioner had been a tenured employee of the Hackensack Board who was employed by the Special Services School District after it assumed responsibility for the program for the deaf. When the Special Services School District terminated her employment, she challenged its action claiming that it was in violation of her tenure rights.

The Commissioner agreed that petitioner was entitled to the protection of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6.1. In reaching this conclusion, the Commissioner looked to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-16 to determine the meaning of "school." In determining the meaning of "school" under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-16, the Commissioner reasoned that since jointure commissions were created only for the purpose of special education classes, "school" as referenced in N.J.S.A. 18A:28-16 "must mean special education classes." 1978 S.L.D. 631. Then, finding that a harmonious interpretation of the statutes necessitated interpreting "schools or grades" in N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6.1 in the same manner as for N.J.S.A. 18A:28-16 and 18A:28-17, the Commissioner concluded that petitioner's tenure rights had been violated by her termination.

We agree that "school" as referenced in N.J.S.A. 18A:28-16 includes special education classes. However, no special education classes were transferred to the Burlington County Special Services School District. Rather, as embodied in the contract with the New Hanover Board, the Burlington County Special Services School District was to provide child study team services. In contrast, the responsibility undertaken by the Bergen County Special Services School District in Stuermer was for the education of the students who had previously been educated by the school district. Hence, Stuermer does not entitle petitioner to the rights conferred by N.J.S.A. 18A:28-16.

Nor does the New Jersey Supreme Court's decision in Shelko entitle her to such rights. The petitioner in Shelko had been a teacher in a program run by the Ewing Township Board of Education which provided instruction to multiply-handicapped infants, pre-schoolers and kindergarteners. Ewing had served as the local education agency for the purposes of obtaining the state and federal grants that funded the program, and the program served the needs of the "educationally-handicapped young" on a county-wide basis. 97 N.J. at 416. Upon the creation of the Mercer County Special Services School District, the entire program was transferred from Ewing to the Special Services School District.

The central issue in Shelko was whether a teacher employed by the Mercer County Special Services School District achieved tenure based on her years of employment by the local school district combined with her years of service with the Mercer County Special Services School District. In resolving this issue, the Court considered the argument that petitioner was not entitled to the protection of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-16 because the program in which she taught was not a school within the meaning of the statute. The Court rejected this argument, finding that to accept it "would read all practical meaning out of the statute, because by definition the special services school districts never take over the entire operation of a school but are limited to providing educational services for the disabled." 97 N.J. at 422-23. The Court then quoted the Commissioner's decision in Stuermer, finding that the Commissioner's straightforward analysis was based on the realities of the statute and avoided "engaging in the esoteric quest of defining 'what is a school.'" Id. at 423. The Court, however, observed that there was ample precedent that a program for the disadvantaged would meet the definition of a "school," pointing to the fact that a residential institution for the treatment and education of emotionally disturbed children had been held to be a "school" under a municipal zoning ordinance. Id.

As in Stuermer, the Court in Shelko was confronted with the transfer of an entire education program, including the instructional component, from a district board to a county special services school district. Because the only educational programs that a special services school district is authorized to provide under the statutory framework are educational programs for classified special education students, programs such as those involved in Stuermer and Shelko represent the full extent of any program that can be transferred from a school district to a special services school district. Further, as the Court in Shelko observed, N.J.S.A. 18A:28-16 and similar statutes were enacted in response to changes in the forms of governance resulting from the provisions made by the Legislature for the regional delivery of educational services. Shelko, supra, at 418. Review of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-16 in conjunction with N.J.S.A. 18A:46-29 through 18A:46-46 as originally enacted, L.1971 c. 271, indicates that the Legislature's intent as to county special services school districts when it enacted N.J.S.A. 18A:28-16 was to preserve the rights of teaching staff members affected when the educational programs for handicapped students, including the instructional component, were transferred from local school districts once the creation of county special services school districts was authorized. Id. Quite simply, there is no indication that the Legislature intended to preserve the rights of staff members when a local district determines to provide for child study team services as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:46-5.1 by contracting with a county special services school district as permitted by N.J.S.A. 18A:46-6.1. Given the distinction between "programs" and "services" that is reflected in the statutes, we decline to construe the word "school" in N.J.S.A. 18A:28-16 so as to extend the protection afforded by that statute to staff members affected by a district's determination to contract for child study team services when it is only the provider of the services that changes.

Therefore, for the reasons set forth herein, we affirm the decision of the Commissioner in this matter.

Attorney exceptions are noted.

BURLINGTON COUNTY EDUCATIONAL SERVICES UNIT, BURLINGTON COUNTY, : DECISION

RESPONDENT. :

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning school psychologist alleged respondent Educational Services Unit (ESU) violated her tenure rights when it failed to employ her as a school psychologist when the ESU took over the provision of child study team services to the New Hanover District. Petitioner had been riffed in 1996 when the District had contracted her duties to an outside contractor. Petitioner contended that pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12, she had a right to be placed on a preferred eligibility list for reemployment in the District in the event the position of school psychologist became available in the District.

ALJ determined that the record indicated that the New Hanover Board and the ESU agreed that the ESU "would supply child study team evaluations to the New Hanover School District on a case-by-case basis" and that the agreement did not appear to have contemplated that the ESU would take over or in any way replace the operation of any program of special education operated by the District, nor that the programs then in operation in the District to provide such education would be abolished. Therefore, since the protection afforded by the statutes are accorded to employees of a "school" previously operated, and since it can hardly be said that the District or any of its educational programs were "abolished," the ALJ concluded that neither N.J.S.A. 18A:28-16 nor N.J.S.A. 18A:6-31.3 afforded any protection to petitioner. Motion for summary decision on behalf of ESU was granted and petitioner's motion was denied. Petition was dismissed.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own with clarification.

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 10697-97S
AGENCY DKT. NO. 444-11/97

ARLENE MILLER,
Petitioner,
v.
BURLINGTON COUNTY EDUCATIONAL SERVICES UNIT, BURLINGTON COUNTY,
Respondent.

Richard A. Friedman, Esq., and Kathleen A. Naprstek, Esq., for petitioner (Zazzali, Zazzali, Fagella & Nowak, attorneys)

Frank P. Cavallo, Jr., Esq., for respondent (Parker, McCay & Criscuolo, attorneys)

Record Closed: November 5, 1998 Decided: December 2, 1998

BEFORE JEFF S. MASIN, ALJ:

Arlene Miller, a school psychologist formerly employed by the New Hanover School District ("New Hanover"), contends that the respondent Burlington County Educational Services Unit ("ESU") violated her tenure rights when it failed to employ her as a school psychologist when the ESU took over the provision of child study team services to the New Hanover District. Ms. Miller had been laid off from her position with New Hanover as a result of a reduction in force ("RIF") on June 30, 1996. New Hanover contracted for school psychological services with Therapeutic Alternatives, a private agency, from July 1, 1996, through June 30, 1997, and thereafter it entered into an agreement with the ESU for the provision of child study team services for the period beginning July 1, 1997. Ms. Miller contends that as she had a right under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12 to be placed on a preferred eligibility list for reemployment in New Hanover in the event that the position of school psychologist became available in the district, she also had a right to be preferred for employment with the ESU when it succeeded to the provision of such services within the New Hanover District. The ESU disputes her claim.

Ms. Miller filed a petition seeking relief from the Commissioner of Education on November 6, 1997. The ESU filed an answer on December 3, 1997. The contested case was transferred to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") on December 18, 1997. A prehearing conference was held on February 5, 1998. Following discovery the parties entered into a joint stipulation of facts and filed cross-motions for summary decision. The last brief was received on November 5, 1998.

Ms. Miller contends that she is entitled to employment by the ESU because it has undertaken the operation of the New Hanover child study team program and must therefore recognize the tenure and recall rights guaranteed by N.J.S.A. 18A:28-16 and N.J.S.A. 18A:6-31.3 et seq. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-16 provides > Whenever an Educational Services Commission, a Jointure Commission, the Commissioner of Education, the State Board of Education . . . under his, its or their authority shall undertake the operation of any school previously operated by a school district in this State, all accumulated sick leave, tenure and pension rights of all teaching staff members in said school shall be recognized and preserved by the agency assuming operational control of the school, and any periods of prior employment in such school district shall count toward the acquisition of tenure to the same extent as if all such employment had been under the Educational Services Commission, Jointure Commission, the Commissioner of Education, the State Board of Education, . . . as the case may be.

N.J.S.A. 18A:6-31.3 reads

> As used in this act, "new school district" means a local school district, regional school district, a county vocational school district, a jointure commission, a county special services school district, or an educational services commission. . . .
> In the event that the school district of a municipality or districts in a group of municipalities are abolished and a subsequent district > formed, the district subsequently formed shall constitute a new school district under this act . . . .

N.J.S.A. 18A:6-31.5 provide that when a "new school district" is created, the tenure and seniority rights of the employees of the replaced district "shall be recognized and preserved by the new school district" and "all statutory and contractual rights to tenure . . . which have been acquired through employment in any of the districts shall be recognized by the new school district."

In support of her position, the petitioner relies upon Stuermer v. Bergen County Special Services School District, 1978 S.L.D. 628 and Shelko v. Mercer County Special Services District, 97 N.J. 414 (1984). In Stuermer, the petitioner was a tenured speech therapist who had been employed by the Hackensack Board of Education ("Hackensack"). Hackensack determined to terminate its program for deaf students for reasons of economy and a lack of proper facilities. The County Special Services District took over responsibility for the program for deaf students. Stuermer worked for the Special Services District for three years and was then discharged. She contended that the discharge was in violation of her tenure rights as they were transferred by operation of law from Hackensack to the Special Services District, as the termination of the Hackensack program for the deaf and the Special Services District's undertaking of the program was exactly the situation addressed in N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6.1. The County argued that the program which it undertook did not constitute a "school" and was therefore not addressed by the statute. However, the Commissioner held that the meaning of the term "school" in this legislation could be determined from the fact that a jointure commission was by law established solely for the purpose of carrying out a special education program. Despite the fact that such a program might not ordinarily be identified as a "school," nevertheless, in the context of this statute, "school" included special education programs or programs such as the program for deaf children previously conducted by Hackensack.

In Shelko, supra., the Ewing Board of Education had operated a program for handicapped students for the county for two school years. Mercer County then created the special service district to provide the educational program for handicapped students in the county. Shelko was hired and served as a teacher in the county's program for two years, but the Board decided not to rehire her for a third year. She claimed that her combined service with Ewing and the Special Services District gave her tenure which the Special Services District was required to honor. The Special Services District argued that she had not fulfilled the requirement of three years in the Special Services District. The State Board and the Appellate Division sided with the County Board, as they believed that the program she had taught in was not a "school" and therefore N.J.S.A. 18A:28-16 was inapplicable to her situation. A sharply divided Supreme Court reversed, finding that the Legislature had specifically passed N.J.S.A. 18A:28-16 to address the tenure rights of teaching staff members where a program such as Ewing's was taken over. The three dissenting justices agreed with the Appellate Division that the program was not a "school." Indeed, they disagreed with the Commissioner's determination in Stuermer that the Hackensack program for the deaf was a "school." Shelko, supra., at 426-428.

In the present matter, the stipulated record indicates that the New Hanover Board and the ESU agreed that the ESU "would supply child study team evaluations to the New Hanover School District on a case-by-case basis." The agreement does not appear to have contemplated that the ESU would take over or in any way replace the operation of any program of special education operated by New Hanover, nor that the programs then in operation in New Hanover to provide such education would be abolished. The agreement provided only for the performance of child study team evaluations formerly carried out by employees of the New Hanover Board and then contracted out. If the tenure rights guaranteed to employees in the context of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-16 and N.J.S.A. 18A:6-31.5 are to apply to protect Ms. Miller in the present instance, then the term "school" used therein must be stretched far beyond the meaning which the Commissioner in Stuermer and the Supreme Court majority in Shelko have already accepted. In each of those cases, the program taken over by the County Special Services District was a program providing direct education to a particular group of students, the deaf in Stuermer and the handicapped in Shelko. In the case of the child study team in New Hanover, or its replacement team from the ESU, the work of these teams does not generally involve teaching or providing direct educational services to the students, but instead provides an evaluative function seeking to determine the students in need of special education and related service and designing the program, or Individualized Educational Program ("IEP"), for those found eligible for special education. If the programs in Stuermer and Shelko were deemed to be "schools" because they were providing the same sort of function for students as the broader "school" did for the broader group of students, such an analysis hardly applies here. Admittedly there may be some direct "educational" function carried on at some times by the members of a child study team functioning in their individual roles within the school, but the "team" as a group is not employed to teach students. Therefore, since the protection afforded by the statutes are accorded to employees of a "school" previously operated, and since it can hardly be said that the New Hanover District or any of its educational programs were "abolished," I CONCLUDE that neither N.J.S.A. 18A:28-16 nor N.J.S.A. 18A:6-31.3 affords any protection to Ms. Miller. The motion for summary decision on behalf of the ESU is therefore GRANTED and the motion for summary decision filed by Ms. Miller is DENIED and her petition is DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

ARLENE MILLER,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BURLINGTON COUNTY EDUCATIONAL SERVICES UNIT, BURLINGTON COUNTY,	:	DECISION

The record and initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions and respondent's reply thereto were timely filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Petitioner's exceptions essentially reiterate the arguments considered by the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) in the initial decision and set forth in petitioner's brief in support of summary decision. Petitioner's exceptions contend that the ALJ clearly misinterpreted the law on the issues presented in this matter. Petitioner avers, inter alia, that, while the ALJ acknowledged that the Courts have determined that the definition of " school" in the context of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-16 and 18A:6-31.3 includes programs for the handicapped, he misinterpreted the rulings as limiting tenure and seniority protection mandated by these statutes to teaching staff members who work in a direct teaching setting. (Petitioner's Exceptions at p. 1) Petitioner further contends that the ALJ erroneously presumed that the child study team performs only evaluative functions, a presumption which petitioner maintains is neither supported by facts nor the plain language of N.J.S.A. 18A:46-5 which identifies numerous functions and duties related to the development, supervision and coordination of educational programs for students the child study team evaluates, as well as the provision of psychological and other services to those students. Moreover, petitioner avers that even if one were to conclude her duties were primarily evaluative, the ALJ's determination in this matter is still incorrect because the aforementioned statutes apply to all teaching staff members, not just teachers, and the applicable case law (Stuermer, supra, and Shelko, supra) provides absolutely no basis in law for the distinction which the ALJ chose to make between petitioner's position of employment and those in the aforementioned decisions. (Id. at pp. 2-3)

Respondent's reply exceptions urge that the Commissioner affirm the initial decision rendered by the ALJ, reiterating that petitioner's reliance on Stuermer and Shelko is misplaced because in both those matters, a special services school district assumed operation of an entire special education program, whereas in the instant matter, the Burlington County Educational Services Unit (BCESU) is supplying child study team evaluation services to the New Hanover School District on a contractual basis. It has, therefore, neither supplanted nor taken over the operation of the special education program in New Hanover. Respondent further argues that

> The legislation under which the Petitioner claims entitlement to employment and ancillary rights with the BCESU is silent with respect to the assumption by an Educational Services Unit of the CST services previously provided by a Board of Education. Similarly, the provisions of N.J.A.C. 6A:14-5.1, which authorize a school district to contract with an Educational Services Unit to provide CST services is silent with respect to the continuation of the employment rights of CST members. (Respondent's Reply Exceptions at p. 2)

Upon careful and independent review of the initial decision and record in this matter, the Commissioner determines to adopt the recommended decision of the OAL, as he agrees with the ALJ's conclusion that "if the tenure rights guaranteed to employees in the context of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-16 and N.J.S.A. 18A:6-31.5 are to apply to protect [petitioner] in the present instance, then the term 'school' used therein must be stretched far beyond the meaning which the Commissioner in Stuermer and the Supreme Court majority in Shelko have already accepted." (emphasis supplied) (Initial Decision at p. 4)

The record establishes that the New Hanover Board of Education entered into a contractual agreement in July 1997 with BCESU to provide child study team evaluation services. This agreement was amended in December 1997 to contract provision of child study team services, not just for child study team evaluations. Such joint contractual agreements for provision of child study team services are permitted by N.J.S.A. 18A:46-5.1 and such agreements are distinguishable from the circumstances in Stuermer and Shelko wherein the educational programs under dispute in each case were taken over in their entirety by the county special services school district. The local boards of education who had operated the educational programs in each of these matters ceased to operate or have any continuing responsibility for, or governance over, those particular programs, hence the operation of those programs was taken over/assumed by a county special services district in each case.

In the instant matter, however, the New Hanover Board of Education at all times retains legal responsibility under N.J.S.A. 18A:46-5.1 to provide child study team services, albeit that it may provide those services either separately/independently as it did prior to 1996 or through a joint agreement with another public entity, as it has with the BCESU since the 1997-1998 school year. In the Commissioner's judgment, such a joint agreement between the

New Hanover Board of Education and the BCESU does not constitute a "takeover" or assumption of operation of a school or educational program, even when giving deference to the broader applicability of the statute enunciated by the New Jersey Supreme Court in its 1984 Shelko decision. At any given point in time, the New Hanover Board of Education could determine to resume the provision of child study team services through its own employees, in which case the employment of the child study team would be subject to the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12, or it could determine to enter into a joint agreement with another public board of education.

As pointed out by the ALJ, the Supreme Court in the Shelko matter was sharply divided as to the tenure rights of teaching staff members where a special education program previously operated by the Ewing school district was taken over by the Mercer County Special Services School District. As determined by the Supreme Court, the provisions for tenure protection of teaching staff members set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:46-5.1 did extend to the circumstances present in that matter because it determined, inter alia, that

> Our overwhelming sense of the reality of the situation is that this is precisely the kind of takeover the Legislature contemplated. It is conceded that before and after the transition we are essentially looking at the same teachers, the same students, the same curriculum, and the same classroom. When a transition from local to [County Special Services School District] control of such a program looks, sounds, and acts like a takeover, we should treat it as a takeover. (Shelko, supra at 420)

Such is not the case in the instant matter, even when fully agreeing with petitioner's position that tenure protection under the statutes being construed herein extends to all teaching staff members, not just to teachers who provide direct instruction to students.

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed therein as clarified and expanded above, the recommendation of the ALJ to dismiss the Petition of Appeal is adopted as the final decision in this matter.*

IT IS SO ORDERED.

* This decision, as the Commissioner's final determination in the instant matter, may be appealed to the State Board of Education pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-27 et seq. and N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.1 et seq., within 30 days of its filing. ANTHONY J. POLIZZI, JR. : DECISION

Decided by the State Board of Examiners, January 25, 1999

For the Petitioner-Appellant, Budd, Larner, Gross, Rosenbaum, Greenberg & Sade (Terri J. Harrison, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Respondent, Howard McCoach, Deputy Attorney General (John J. Farmer, Jr., Attorney General of New Jersey)

On January 25, 1999, the State Board of Examiners voted to deny the issuance of a Substance Awareness Coordinator certification to Anthony J. Polizzi, Jr. (hereinafter "appellant"), finding that, pursuant to the terms of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1, the appellant's conviction for a drug offense permanently disqualified him from school employment. The Board of Examiners added, however, that "[i]f you are able to have this conviction expunged, you may then reapply for certification." On February 16, 1999, the appellant filed a notice of appeal from that decision to the State Board of Education.

On March 2, 1999, the counsel for the appellant requested that the briefing schedule be placed in abeyance pending proceedings to expunge the appellant's criminal record. By letter dated March 11, 1999, the Director of the State Board

Appeals Office (hereinafter "Director") advised counsel for the appellant that such request had been granted.

By letter dated October 2, 2000, the Director requested that the counsel for the appellant advise the State Board of Education of the status of the expungement proceedings. On November 2, 2000, having received no response from counsel for the appellant, the Director advised her that this matter was being referred to the Legal Committee of the State Board for consideration of the appellant's failure to perfect the appeal.

By letter dated November 8, 2000, counsel for the appellant advised that an order expunging the appellant's record had been entered on August 6, 1999. In light of this letter, the Director notified counsel for the appellant that the briefing schedule was being reestablished and that a brief in support of the appeal was due by December 6, 2000.

By letter dated December 6, 2000, counsel for the appellant indicated that based upon the expungement of the appellant's record, "it would appear that the State Board of Examiners reversed their position and the appeal is moot. No brief would therefore be required." By letter dated December 8, 2000, the Director requested that counsel for the appellant "confirm by letter if your intent is to withdraw your appeal. Otherwise, it may be dismissed by the State Board of Education for failure to perfect."

The counsel for the appellant has failed to respond to the Director's letter of December 8 or to file a brief in support of the appeal. Given these circumstances, we dismiss the appeal in this matter for failure to perfect. N.J.A.C. 6A:4-1.12(a). See

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF ROBERT R. THOMAS, PASSAIC COUNTY TECHNICAL VOCATIONAL HIGH SCHOOL DISTRICT

Gerald S. Keegan, Esq., for Board of Education of the Passaic County Technical Vocational High School District

Record Closed: December 1, 1998 Decided: December 2, 1998

BEFORE SEBASTIAN GAETA, JR., ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The Board of Education of the Passaic County Technical Vocational High School District (Board) brought charges against respondent, a tenured teacher, for unbecoming conduct and conduct threatening the well-being of students.

It was alleged that, on December 5, 1995, respondent made racially and ethnically based insulting remarks to a fellow teacher in a lunchroom filled with students. Following an investigation, the Board found probable cause that the incident occurred as alleged. The superintendent immediately suspended respondent. That suspension continued until February 8, 1996 when the Board received the reports of two psychiatrists who had evaluated respondent. An agreement was reached which permitted respondent to return to his teaching duties on February 12, 1996, upon certain conditions, including that he would provide a written apology to the teacher, Rosa Astacio-Borja. The letter was addressed by respondent to "Rosa Anatasio-Borgia."

On April 18, 1996, the Board concluded that the December 5, 1995 incident had been verified but were not serious enough to certify tenure charges. On May 9, 1996, Ms. Astacio-Borja filed a Verified Petition before the Commissioner of Education to direct that the Board certify tenure charges against respondent.

The Commissioner of Education transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law, as a contested matter, to determine whether the Board abused its discretion by failing to certify the tenure charges to the Commissioner in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11.

The matter was heard before the Honorable Jeffrey A. Gerson, who issued an Initial Decision ordering that the December 5, 1995 incidents be certified and forwarded to the Commissioner of Education. The Commissioner of Education concurred with Judge Gerson's Initial Decision and ordered that the Board certify the December 5, 1995 incident in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11. Rosa Astacio Borja v. Board of Education of the Passaic County Technical-Vocational High School District, Passaic County, OAL Dkt. EDU 5963-98 (February 13, 1998), adopted Commissioner of Education (March 30, 1998).

Pursuant to the Order of the Commissioner of Education, on April 28, 1998, the Board, On April 28, 1998, considered the several tenure charges filed against respondent. The Board determined that the December 5, 1995 incidents warranted dismissal or reduction in salary and voted to suspend respondent without salary. The other charges, contained in the statement of Tenure Charges, were found to be unsupported by sufficient evidence. Respondent took a timely appeal to the Commissioner of Education, who transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law for a contested hearing pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to 15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to 13. No person sought leave to intervene, as permitted by N.J.A.C. 1:1-16.1.

The matter was scheduled for plenary hearings on December 1, 2, 9 and 10, 1998. On October 21 1998, counsel for the parties and the undersigned Administrative Law Judge met in an in person prehearing conference.

On December 1, 1998, the parties stated that the matter had been amicably resolved and requested that the settlement terms be placed upon the record:

1. If the Commissioner of Education shall approve the settlement in this matter, respondent shall submit his resignation to the Board and request retirement, within 10 days of the final decision approving the settlement.

2. Respondent shall not request future employment with the Board.

3. Respondent waives all claims related to the 120-day suspension without pay imposed by the Board on April 28, 1998, including any claim for the withholding of any increment of salary.

4. There will be no claims for counsel fees for this or related matters.

5. Upon fulfillment of all the above terms of the agreement, the Board shall dismiss all tenure charges.

Respondent stated his complete understanding of the terms of the agreement, that he voluntarily entered into the agreement and understood that should the settlement be approved, the matter would be concluded.

Counsel for respondent stated that the Board had previously agreed to the terms.

The November 23, 1998 memorandum of counsel for respondent in support of this settlement was made part of the record as Exhibit A.

I have reviewed the record and the terms of the settlement and FIND:

The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement.

That under all the circumstances, the terms of settlement serve the best interests of the Board, its teachers, staff and students.

The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) in the form of a joint stipulation of settlement have been reviewed.

Upon careful and independent review of the full record of this matter and the terms of the proposed settlement agreement, the Commissioner is compelled to reject such agreement as it is currently structured since he cannot be satisfied by the present record that the proposed settlement meets the Cardonick standards for settlement of tenure matters. (In re Cardonick, decided by the Commissioner April 7, 1982, affirmed State Board of Education April 6, 1983, 1990 S.L.D. 842, 846.) Specifically, the Commissioner notes there is no indication that the within teaching staff member was advised of the Commissioner's duty, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6, to refer tenure determinations for possible revocation of certificate.

Accordingly, the proposed settlement is rejected and this matter is hereby remanded to the OAL for revision of the documents, consistent with the concerns set forth above. If the parties are unwilling or unable to reach accord on a modified agreement for submission to the Commissioner, the matter shall proceed to a hearing on the merits.

For the Respondent, William S. Cappuccio, Esq.

For the Participant Commissioner of Education, John Worthington, Deputy Attorney General (Peter Verniero, Attorney General of New Jersey)

The Galloway Educational Meridian Charter School (hereinafter "appellant") filed an appeal to the State Board of Education from a letter decision of the Commissioner of Education dated January 28, 1999 denying its application to establish a charter school in the 1999-2000 academic year.[1] The Commissioner indicated that the application needed to be strengthened in the following areas: "seeks to dissolve existing charter upon approval of new charter; and does not clearly address how the New Jersey Core

[1] We note that the appellant was granted a charter in 1997 to operate a charter school for kindergarten students only. That school, the Galloway Kindergarten Charter School, opened in September 1997 and remains in operation. Appellant subsequently sought to amend its charter in order to expand the grade levels offered. That request was denied by the Commissioner on the grounds that such an amendment would change the mission and goals of the school. The appellant's instant application, filed in August 1998, sought a charter to operate with grades K-2 in 1999-2000 expanding to K-8 by the 2002-2003 school year.

We have considered the arguments made by appellant in light of the record provided to us on behalf of the Commissioner. Based upon that review, and given the significance of the deficiencies identified in the appellant's application by the Department's reviewers, we conclude that the appellant has failed to demonstrate an entitlement to establish a charter school pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:36A-1 et seq. We therefore affirm the Commissioner's decision to deny appellant the grant of a charter for 1999-2000.

In so doing, however, we reject that portion of the Commissioner's determination which indicated that the appellant's application was insufficient in that it proposed to dissolve its existing kindergarten charter school upon approval of its application to expand to K-8. We can find nothing in the statutes or regulations governing charter schools that would preclude an existing charter school from applying to the Commissioner for a new charter with expanded grade levels.[2]

We deny the motions to supplement the record filed by the appellant and the Commissioner. The revisions to appellant's application were not before the Commissioner at the time he determined this matter, and we find that information regarding the appellant's previous attempts to amend its existing kindergarten charter is not material to a determination on the merits of its instant application.

[2] Indeed, we note that in this instance, see, supra, n.1, the Commissioner's ruling is tantamount to declaring that regardless of the quality of its application, the charter school could never expand the grade levels served during the period of the charter unless it created an entirely separate entity to serve those grades.

Petitioning special education teacher alleged the Board improperly withheld her salary increment for the 1996-97 school year.

In light of the testimony of two qualified educational experts, the ALJ determined that petitioner failed to show that the District's decision to withhold her salary increment was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. District proved that petitioner's performance was "less than satisfactory." Thus, the ALJ concluded that the District's discretionary exercise of its statutory authority to withhold petitioner's salary increment should not be overturned. (Kopera) ALJ ordered the relief requested by petitioner be denied.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own. Petition was dismissed.

Statement of the Case

This is an appeal by a teacher from the decision of the State-Operated School District of Jersey City ("District") to withhold her salary increment for the 1996-97 academic year under N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14.

Procedural History

Initially this matter was one of fifteen consolidated cases filed with the Commissioner of Education ("Commissioner") on September 13, 1996. Count Eleven of the multi-count petition alleged the wrongful withholding of the increment of petitioner Karen Natapoff ("Natapoff"). On October 2, 1996, the District filed its answer. Subsequently, on October 23, 1996, the Commissioner forwarded all fifteen cases to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") for hearing as a contested case under OAL Dkt. No. EDU 11161-96. Since each petitioner's situation involved different factual circumstances and different witnesses, the OAL divided them into separate cases for convenience of hearing.[1] The OAL held a hearing in the Natapoff case, designated OAL Dkt. No. EDU 5140-97, on June 3, 1998. Witnesses and exhibits are listed in the appendix.

Background Information

Most of the relevant background information is undisputed. While she is no longer employed by the District, Karen Natapoff had been a special-education teacher in the Jersey City public school system for eight years. She holds an instructional certificate which authorizes her to serve as a teacher of the handicapped. Prior to the 1995-96 school year, she taught a self-contained special education class at Public School No. 9. In September 1995, she was transferred to a class for children with perceptual impairments at the Academy School.[2] Occupying the former Snyder High School building, the newly opened Academy School offered diverse programs,

[1] Uniform Administrative Procedural Rules permit consolidation of separate cases only where a single proceeding will promote savings of time and expense and avoidance of duplication and inconsistency. N.J.A.C. 1:1-17.3.

[2] At the time of her transfer, "perceptually impaired" was defined as "a specific learning disability manifested by a severe discrepancy between the pupil's current achievement and intellectual ability" in one or more of several skill areas. N.J.A.C. 6:28-3.5(d)(8)(ii).

including special education, an alternative school, and a gifted-and-talented program,. Natapoff's class in 1995-96 was comprised of fifteen or sixteen students, ranging in age from twelve to fourteen years old. Because her class was nondepartmentalized, Natapoff taught all the academic subjects.

During the 1995-96 school year, Natapoff was formally observed on two separate occasions, once by a central-office supervisor and once by an administrator from her building. Thomas Van Note, the supervisor of special education, visited Natapoff's classroom for forty-five minutes on April 4, 1996. Ellen Ruane, an assistant principal serving as the chief building administrator of the Academy School, spent forty-five minutes in her classroom on May 27, 1996. As a result of these observations and other less formal contacts throughout the year, the District determined to withhold Natapoff's 1996-97 employment and adjustment increments for "less than satisfactory performance."

Reasons for Denial of Salary Increment

School administrators were critical of Natapoff's classroom management, her instructional techniques and her assessment of student needs. These perceived deficiencies will be discussed under separate headings.

(1) Lack of Classroom Control

Thomas Van Note has taught special education for more than seventeen years and holds a master's degree in that field. When Van Note entered Natapoff's room, several students were "misbehaving" and the class was "in disarray." Natapoff was teaching a lesson about bar graphs to four students seated at a table, an aide in the rear of the classroom was teaching another student how to tell time, while a sixth student was painting holiday decorations on the windows. None of the students with whom Natapoff was working paid attention to their task. Students who had been given rulers and construction paper to draw bar graphs "used them as weapons." Indeed, the only student in the class who appeared to be learning was the one being taught by the aide.

One student in particular was greatly distracted by the student painting the window and constantly complained because he too wanted to paint. However, Natapoff did not administer any adverse consequences to the disruptive student for his inappropriate behavior. Rather than isolating him from the group or administering some other form of discipline, Natapoff engaged in "a prolonged dialogue," which interrupted the lesson she was attempting to deliver. Summarizing Natapoff's classroom management skills, Van Note commented that, "At times Ms. Natapoff succumbs to her student's manipulations" and that such display of irresoluteness "severely effects Ms. Natapoff's behavioral control."

Assistant Principal Ellen Ruane, who herself has taught sixth, seventh and eighth grades and is familiar with this age group, observed during her visit that "students shouted out their responses [to questions] and were recognized by Ms. Natapoff without raising their hand and waiting to be called." Undoubtedly this disorganized approach contributed to the chaotic atmosphere of the classroom. Throughout the lesson, Natapoff "never had all six [children] sitting and looking at what the teacher was doing." Most of the boys weren't listening to the teacher and "demands were not made of them to listen." By the end of the lesson, students were "taking to each other and not actively engaged in the learning task." During the course of the school year, "it was not uncommon to have children run out of her classroom and slam the door."

Natapoff pointed out that the date of Van Note's visit was not an opportune time for classroom observation because it was a half day before the start of spring break and the children were excited about leaving school early. Nonetheless, Van Note insisted, some learning should take place even though the school day was abbreviated. With respect to the child painting the windows, Natapoff explained that the girl had been sent to her class from another math class, where she had been crying all morning, and that painting the windows "had a calming effect on her." However,

Natapoff failed to offer a convincing reason why she failed to discipline the child in her group who, in her own words, "made excessive demands for attention." Instead, she tried unsuccessfully to gain his cooperation by promising him that he would be allowed to paint if he finished his lesson. Similarly, Natapoff did not adequately justify her decision to let one child paint windows while the rest of the class was engaged in a mathematics lesson. Her testimony that she was under an administrative directive to complete the painting of the windows did not explain why the task was not structured as a class activity. Although Natapoff acknowledged that she allowed students to talk without raising their hands, she defended this unruly practice as a "free-flowing discussion within a small informal-group setting."

I FIND that Natapoff demonstrated an inability to motivate her students or encourage them to participate in instruction. Even when she attempted to teach in a small-group setting, her students failed to pay attention to their teacher, talked to each other, and shouted out answers without raising their hands. Natapoff made two poor choices which caused her to lose control of the classroom. She favored one child by letting her paint while everyone else in the room was trying to do academic work. Additionally, she failed to put an immediate stop to misbehavior by a disgruntled child in her group, allowing him to continue disrupting her lesson.

(2) Inadequate Instructional Techniques

To illustrate the use of graphs, Natapoff had her students make bar graphs out of construction paper. In addition to this one approach, Van Note thought that an experienced teacher should be using a variety of sensory modalities and learning devices, including graph paper, felt or magnetic boards and an overhead projector. Use of more than one method of conveying information is especially important in the case of children with perceptual impairments, who might benefit from techniques geared toward different styles of learning styles. Without disagreeing with Van Note's observation, Natapoff blamed her inability to employ different techniques on the District's alleged failure to supply her with the necessary materials. In particular, she complained that the graph paper furnished by the District was the wrong size for her students to use. Both administrators, however, maintained that Natapoff could have obtained whatever supplies were needed. Van Note said that there is a math specialist in each building who has special materials available. Ruane agreed that there is a procedure in place for teachers to obtain supplies.

Ruane noted several deficiencies in Natapoff's instructional technique during her formal evaluation. First of all, Natapoff was unprepared to start the lesson on time. She wasted time gathering together various materials "while the students were sitting there." Moreover, the physical arrangement of the room was inadequate. Natapoff had six students sitting at a table in the upper corner of the room, far away from the blackboard located in the middle of the room. During the lesson itself, Natapoff made poor eye contact with her students and often failed to give clear and direct answers to her students' questions. Although the lesson was on expanded notation and the place value of numbers, Natapoff failed to use the vocabulary of mathematics, words such as "thousands, hundreds, tens and ones." Occasionally, she lapsed into incorrect grammar, using improper constructions such as "You have to speak loud" and "What do you got there?" Despite Natapoff's denial that she used poor grammar, Ruane wrote down exactly what she heard and "absolutely" stood by her testimony.

In general, Natapoff did not have sufficiently high expectations for her students. Although Natapoff's plan book had listed three or four objectives for the lesson, she managed to cover only a single objective, a pace which Ruane described as "not reasonable" for a full period. Furthermore, Natapoff used only one technique (questions and answers) to determine whether or not her students were acquiring the skill being taught. Since Natapoff neglected to correct students when they gave wrong answers, the students did not receive feedback on concepts which they misunderstood. Likewise, Natapoff "failed to reinforce correct answers by students." More fundamentally, Natapoff did not always treat her students in a courteous and respectful manner. In one egregious incident, Natapoff told a student who was trying to answer her question, "I can't hear you and I know how loudly you talk." (Emphasis Added).

While Natapoff claimed that she was only trying "to coax the child to speak up," Ruane reported that the remark was made in a sarcastic tone of voice.

I FIND that Natapoff failed to exhibit effective instructional techniques expected from an experienced teacher. To the extent that the proofs are in conflict, the objective reports of qualified supervisors are more credible than Natapoff's excuses and self-serving statements. Specifically, Natapoff was unprepared to start her lesson on time, used improper grammar and failed to correct wrong answers by her students. She did not adjust her teaching methods to address each child's unique needs, failing to utilize available teaching materials and employing only one measure to test her students' knowledge. In the presence of the assistant principal, Natapoff spoke sarcastically to a student who was trying to cooperate. At the end of one lesson, Natapoff had accomplished only one of the multiple teaching objectives she had set for herself.

3) Assessment of Student Needs

Lastly, Van Note found fault with Natapoff's grade book, which he described as lacking entries revealing the details of her homework assignments. More than a month afterwards, Ruane again criticized the grade book because it was "hard to read" and still did not designate the sufficient identifying information of home-work assignments. Notwithstanding Natapoff's assertion that Ruane had reviewed and approved her grade book when report cards were issued, she never explained her failure to comply with Van Note's explicit instructions on what a grade book should contain. Instead, Natapoff claimed that her grade book was "correlated" to homework assignments in her plan book, but never produced her plan book to prove her point.

I FIND that Natapoff failed to record sufficient information about her homework assignments in her grade book, even after Van Note had given her guidance on the proper format of a grade book.

Conclusions of Law

Based on the foregoing facts and the applicable law, I CONCLUDE that the Board's discretionary exercise of its statutory authority to withhold Natapoff's salary increment should not be overturned.

N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14 provides that a board of education may withhold a teacher's salary increment "for inefficiency or other good cause." Courts recognize that salary increments are "a reward for meritorious service." Probst v. Haddonfield Bd. of Educ., 127 N.J. 518, 527 (1992). Section 14 is clearly meant to vest local school districts with the ability to withhold increments from teachers who have not performed well during the previous year. Probst, at 526. Appeals from such action may be taken to the Commissioner, who may either affirm or direct that an increment be paid.[3] A decision to withhold an increment is a matter of essential managerial prerogative, which has been delegated by the Legislature to the local school board. North Plainfield Educ. Ass'n v. North Plainfield Bd. of Educ., 96 N.J. 587 (1984); Bernards Twp. Bd. of Educ. v. Bernards Twp. Educ. Ass'n, 79 N.J. 336 (App. Div. 1975). When reviewing such determinations, the Commissioner is prohibited from substituting his own judgment for that of the local board. His scope of review is limited to assuring that there exists a reasonable basis for the decision.

Exercise of the discretionary powers of the local board may not be upset unless patently arbitrary, or without reasonable basis, or induced by improper motives. Kopera v. West Orange Bd. of Educ., 60 N.J. Super. 288 (App. Div. 1960). The burden of providing unreasonableness rests upon the party challenging the board's action. Kopera, at 297. Accordingly, the Commissioner's scope of review is limited to determining: (1) whether the underlying facts were as those who made the evaluation claimed; and (2) whether it was reasonable for them to conclude as they did upon those facts, bearing in mind that they are experts.

[3] As the result of legislation effective January 4, 1990, an increment withholding "for predominately disciplinary reasons" is subject to grievance procedures. N.J.S.A. 34:13A-26. The withholding of a teaching-staff member's increment based on actual teaching performance is still appealable to the Commissioner of Education. Assembly Labor Committee Statement to Assembly Bill No. 4706 (1989). See River Dell Bd. of Educ. v. Canal, 93 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 784 (Comm'r of Educ.). Because the withholding in this case arose out of petitioner's teaching performance, the Commissioner has jurisdiction over the appeal.

Here the underlying facts were substantiated by the testimony of two qualified educational experts. Natapoff failed to meet District standards in three important measures of teaching performance: classroom management, instructional techniques and assessment of student needs. Under the circumstances, petitioner has not succeeded in showing that the Board's decision to withhold her salary increment was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable.

Order

It is ORDERED that the relief requested by petitioner is denied..

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

OAL DKT NO. EDUTH 04794-98S
AGENCY REF. NO. 104-4/98

JOINT REQUEST FOR APPROVAL OF SETTLEMENT PROVIDING FOR DISMISSAL OF TENURE CHARGES

INTRODUCTION

Counsel for the Board of Education of Atlantic City ("Board") and counsel for its tenured employee ("McKenty") join in moving for an order finding that the Settlement Agreement between the parties, attached hereto as Exhibit A, meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1, recommending that the Settlement Agreement be adopted by the Commissioner of Education, and ordering on condition that the Commissioner approves the Settlement Agreement without modification, that the Settlement Agreement be implemented and the tenure charges filed by the Board be dismissed with prejudice.

PROCEDURAL STATEMENT

This matter arises out of tenure charges against a tenured teaching staff member on grounds of unbecoming conduct. The tenure charges and petition were transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on or about August 10, 1998.

A telephone prehearing concerning the Board's tenure charges was conducted by the Honorable Lillard E. Law, A.L.J. on September 28, 1998, at which time a settlement was discussed which would result in McKenty's reinstatement as a teacher. The parties therefore agreed to present Judge Law with a Settlement Agreement under which, subject to approval by the Commissioner of Education, the tenure charges would be dismissed.

The parties have agreed under the terms of the Settlement Agreement attached hereto as Exhibit A that McKenty will be reinstated to a position consistent with his certification as a physical education teacher at the salary step to which he would have been assigned had the tenure charges never been brought against him, and that he will attend seminars and workshops pertaining to the issue of student discipline as had been recommended by the Board's administration prior to the certification of the tenure charges.

The parties have further agreed under the terms of the Settlement Agreement attached hereto as Exhibit A that McKenty is entitled to full backpay and restoration of benefits excluding any sums withheld during the period of his suspension without pay for 120 days, and less any amounts paid to him after his 120 day suspension without pay expired.

The parties have further agreed under the terms of the Settlement Agreement attached hereto as Exhibit A that conditioned upon the Commissioner's approval of the Settlement Agreement without modification, the tenure charges against McKenty shall be dismissed with prejudice. Furthermore, should the Commissioner fail to approve the Settlement Agreement attached hereto as Exhibit A without modification, the parties have agreed to make every reasonable effort to reform their Settlement Agreement to meet his objections.

THE BOARD'S REASONS FOR SEEKING DISMISSAL OF TENURE CHARGES

The Board makes the following representations:

On March 30, 1998 the Atlantic City Board of Education certified three charges of unbecoming conduct against Michael McKenty, a teaching staff member in its employ, all allegedly occurring at Albany Avenue School during the 1997-98 school year.

A review of McKenty's personnel records subsequent to the filing of tenure charges disclosed that he had not incurred problems of the nature alleged at Albany Avenue School during the three month period between September and November, 1997, when he was assigned to other schools during the course of his tenure in the Atlantic City School District from 1991 through September, 1997, and after he was reassigned to Ohio Avenue School from Albany Avenue School. Additionally, it was discovered that the Atlantic City School Administration had recommended and McKenty was slated to attend certain seminars and workshops pertaining to the proper handling of student discipline which did not take place because of the certification of the tenure charges. Moreover, sustaining these charges was dependent upon testimony of the students referred to in the aforementioned charges. After interviewing the students referenced in the charges, it was determined that the students' testimony may not sustain the allegations contained in the charges.

Under the circumstances, the Board of Education has directed its counsel to dismiss the charges and request that the Commissioner of Education approve the dismissal.

CONCLUSION

The Settlement Agreement was negotiated between counse. based upon all the attendant facts and circumstances, some of which did not come to light until the tenure charges had been certified to the Commissioner of Education. Counsel, as well as McKenty and the Board which approved it, are satisfied with the Settlement Agreement and believe that it fulfills the public interest with respect to these matters. For the reasons outlined above, and for good cause shown, this tribunal should conclude that the Settlement Agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1, recommend that the Settlement Agreement be adopted without modification by the Commissioner of Education, order that the Settlement Agreement be implemented on condition that it is so approved, and therefore upon such approval dismiss with prejudice the tenure charges and petition of appeal in this consolidated matter.

SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT REGARDING TENURE CHARGES
PENDING BEFORE THE COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

This Settlement Agreement is entered into by and between the Board of Education of Atlantic City ("Board") and its tenured employee Michael McKenty ("McKenty").

WHEREAS, McKenty has been continuously employed by the Board as a teaching staff member since September 1, 1991; and

WHEREAS, on March 30, 1998 the Board certified tenure charges against McKenty to the Commissioner of Education under the Tenure Employees Hearing Law, which charges were captioned:

> IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF MICHAEL MCKENTY, BOARD OF EDUCATION OF ATLANTIC CITY, ATLANTIC COUNTY.
> OAL DKT NO. EDUTH 04794-98S
> AGENCY REF. NO. 104-4/98

AND, WHEREAS McKenty filed an answer contesting the tenure charges; and

WHEREAS, the aforesaid tenure charges were assigned for hearing before Administrative Law Judge Lillard E. Law; and

WHEREAS, a telephone prehearing conference of counsel was conducted by Judge Law on September 28, 1998; and

WHEREAS, during the course of the continued investigation into the allegations made against McKenty following the certification of the tenure charges to the Commissioner of Education, the Board concluded that in light of McKenty's employment history other than the three month period he was assigned to Albany Avenue School, and the witnesses' expected testimony, it could not have sustained the allegations contained in its tenure charges, and it would be in the best interest of the Board and the students of the district for which it is responsible to reinstate McKenty to his position as an active member of the teaching staff, and compensate him for any lost salary and benefits he sustained as result of the charges being filed excluding any salary to which he may have been entitled during the 120 day period of his suspension;

NOW THEREFORE, the matter in dispute having been amicably adjusted by and between the parties, it is hereby stipulated and agreed as follows:

1. The Board will seek the Commissioner's approval for this Settlement Agreement, and if the Commissioner approves the Settlement Agreement without modification, ask the Commissioner to allow the tenure charges against McKenty to be dismissed, with prejudice;

2. McKenty will cooperate with the Board in seeking the Commissioner's approval for this Settlement Agreement;

3. Should the Commissioner fail to approve this Settlement Agreement attached hereto as Exhibit A without modification, the parties have agreed to make every reasonable effort to reform this Settlement Agreement to meet any objections;

4. The Board shall reinstate McKenty to a position consistent with his certification as a physical education teacher at the salary step to which he would have been assigned had the tenure charges never been brought;

5. The Board shall pay McKenty full backpay and restoration of benefits from the date he was suspended without pay through the date of his reinstatement, excluding backpay for the period of his suspension for 120 days, and less any amounts paid to him after his 120 day suspension without pay expired.

6. McKenty shall attend the seminars and/or workshops in the area of student discipline contemplated by the Board's administration and referenced in the report of Assistant Superintendent Melvin A. Clarke dated October 1, 1997.

7. In consideration of the mutual covenants contained herein, including the sum of money described in paragraph 5 hereof, paid to McKenty by the Board, the sufficiency of which is hereby acknowledged by McKenty, each party (the releasing party) hereby remises, releases, acquits, satisfies, and forever discharges the other party (the released party) and its heirs, personal representatives, successors, assigns, employees, agents and attorneys of all and from all actions, suits, debts, dues, sums of money, accounts, covenants, attorneys fees, expenses, controversies, agreements, promises, damages, judgments, claims and demands whatsoever, in law or in equity, which the releasing party ever had, now has, or may have, or which any personal representative, successor, heir or assign of the releasing party, hereafter can, shall or may have, against the released party or its heirs, personal representatives, successors, assigns, employees, agents or attorneys, for, upon or by reason of any matter, cause or thing whatsoever, from the beginning of the world to the date of this Settlement Agreement.

8. The parties certify that they have had the opportunity to discuss this Settlement Agreement with counsel. They are fully satisfied with the services of their counsel with respect to both this Settlement Agreement and all other aspects of this case and they enter into this Settlement Agreement knowingly, willingly and without any coercion or improper inducements.

9. By signing this Settlement Agreement, each signatory represents that she or he is a party or has been duly authorized by a party to sign on that party's behalf.

10. The parties agree that this Settlement Agreement may be signed in counterparts and that facsimiles of signatures will have the same force and effect as original signatures.

Intending to be legally bound hereby, McKenty and the Board execute the foregoing Settlement Agreement this 16th day of December, 1998.

Record Closed: January 14, 1999

Decided: January 15, 1999

BEFORE JEFF S. MASIN, ALJ:

These matters were brought for hearing before this judge on January 8, 1999. Prior to hearing counsel entered into an agreement to settle the matters in dispute. The terms and conditions of the settlement as set forth in the attached settlement agreement, which has been signed by counsel for the Board and for the two counsel representing Ms. Edmondson in each of the consolidated cases. The Board of Education has formally approved the settlement.

This matter involves an inappropriate remark made by a teacher to students. The remark involved the use of an inappropriate racial designation made by a teacher of and to students of the same racial group to whom the inappropriate term is unfortunately applied. The incident appears to be a single inappropriate comment made by a teacher of long-standing service. In its initial response to this incident, the Board of Education imposed a suspension without pay which the Board concedes is not supportable under the Tenure Act. The settlement provides for the teacher to receive pay for the five days of suspension for which she was not paid and to be suspended for a period of 120 days. No admissions of any sort have been made by any of the parties.

After lengthy consultations with counsel and a consideration of the circumstances and the concerns of all parties, I find that the settlement, which was placed on the record and which is incorporated herein, serves as a reasonable resolution of the issues in dispute and adequately addresses the interests of the Commissioner of the Department of Education ("Commissioner"). It appears to be in the best interests of everyone that this matter be resolved without the necessity of a hearing.

The settlement preserves an existing Superior Court action which is an outgrowth of the suspension without pay and which the parties have agreed will not be affected by the terms of this settlement.

After being placed under oath, Ms. Edmondson stated that she fully understood and consented to all of the terms and conditions of this settlement.

I have reviewed the record and the settlement terms and FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement on the record.
2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy in this administrative forum and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and therefore ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

Based upon the above, I recommend that the Commissioner approve this settlement. It is further requested by all parties that the Commissioner expedite review of this settlement.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Decided: January 15, 1999

BEFORE JEFF S. MASIN, ALJ:

These matters were brought for hearing before this judge on January 8, 1999. Prior to hearing counsel entered into an agreement to settle the matters in dispute. The terms and conditions of the settlement as set forth in the attached settlement agreement, which has been signed by counsel for the Board and for the two counsel representing Ms. Edmondson in each of the consolidated cases. The Board of Education has formally approved the settlement.

This matter involves an inappropriate remark made by a teacher to students. The remark involved the use of an inappropriate racial designation made by a teacher of and to students of the same racial group to whom the inappropriate term is unfortunately applied. The incident appears to be a single inappropriate comment made by a teacher of long-standing service. In its initial response to this incident, the Board of Education imposed a suspension without pay which the Board concedes is not supportable under the Tenure Act. The settlement provides for the teacher to receive pay for the five days of suspension for which she was not paid and to be suspended for a period of 120 days. No admissions of any sort have been made by any of the parties.

After lengthy consultations with counsel and a consideration of the circumstances and the concerns of all parties, I find that the settlement, which was placed on the record and which is incorporated herein, serves as a reasonable resolution of the issues in dispute and adequately addresses the interests of the Commissioner of the Department of Education ("Commissioner"). It appears to be in the best interests of everyone that this matter be resolved without the necessity of a hearing.

The settlement preserves an existing Superior Court action which is an outgrowth of the suspension without pay and which the parties have agreed will not be affected by the terms of this settlement.

After being placed under oath, Ms. Edmondson stated that she fully understood and consented to all of the terms and conditions of this settlement.

I have reviewed the record and the settlement terms and FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement on the record.
2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy in this administrative forum and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and therefore ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

Based upon the above, I recommend that the Commissioner approve this settlement. It is further requested by all parties that the Commissioner expedite review of this settlement.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Petitioning District sought reversal of the NJSIAA Executive Committee's decision affirming the decision of the Controversies Committee placing the Paterson Eastside High School basketball team on probation for two years and suspending the team from participation in the 1999 NJSIAA Basketball Tournament due to unsportsmanlike conduct at a March 5, 1998 Group IV semi-final NJSIAA championship game against Teaneck High School. Petitioner sought punishment of only the individual players, not the whole team.

Having reviewed the record, including transcripts from the Controversies Committee and the Executive Committee and the videotape of the incident, the Commissioner affirmed the determination of NJSIAA. Commissioner determined that the Sportsmanship Rule does not prevent NJSIAA from levying a penalty against a team, even in circumstances where individual perpetrators are able to be identified and are punished. Commissioner concurred with NJSIAA's decision to punish individual players who participated in and/or instigated the melee and, given the magnitude of the unsportsmanlike behavior by the Eastside team members, he also concurred with NJSIAA's conclusion that the Eastside team itself should be held accountable for the flagrantly unsportsmanlike actions of a number of players on the team. Commissioner determined that such conclusion was supported in the record and, therefore, the penalties levied in the instant matter were not deemed to be a violation of NJSIAA's rules, nor were they deemed to be patently arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable or a violation of petitioners' due process rights.

For Respondent: Steven P. Goodell, Esq. (Herbert, Van Ness, Cayci & Goodell)

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This matter has come before the Commissioner of Education by way of a Petition of Appeal and Brief in Support thereof filed on December 11, 1998 by the State-operated School District of Paterson and Paterson Eastside High School (petitioners) seeking a reversal of the decision of the New Jersey State Interscholastic Athletic Association (NJSIAA) Executive Committee dated September 17, 1998, which affirmed the determination of the Controversies Committee dated June 29, 1998, to place the Paterson Eastside High School (Eastside) basketball team on probation for two years and suspending the team from participation in the 1999 NJSIAA Basketball Tournament due to unsportsmanlike conduct at a March 5, 1998 Group IV semi-final basketball championship game against Teaneck High School. Petitioners seek reversal of NJSIAA's decision as being a violation of their due process rights because the decision was a violation of NJSIAA's own rules on sportsmanship (Article IX) and was arbitrary and capricious.

On January 5, 1999, respondent NJSIAA filed its answer to the Petition of Appeal. By letter dated January 11, 1999, the Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes directed NJSIAA to submit by January 19, 1999 its brief and any pertinent information contained in the record of the matter which had not already been submitted by petitioners.[1] On January 22, 1999, petitioners requested that they be provided an opportunity to submit a letter brief in reply to NJSIAA's brief. With the submission of the petitioners' reply letter brief on January 27, 1999, the record in this matter was closed.

The Findings of Fact determined by the Controversies Committee in its June 29, 1998 decision are as follows:

1. On March 5, 1998, Teaneck High School hosted a Group IV semi-final NJSIAA championship contest with Paterson Eastside High School.

2. There were approximately 400 to 450 people in the Teaneck gym and there was substantial security provided by both schools. The contest was played without any [untoward] incidents and the conduct of the coaches throughout the contest was totally appropriate.

3. With Teaneck winning by a score of 90 to 64, that school took possession of the basketball after [an] Eastside basket with approximately 15 seconds to play. The ball was brought to the Eastside court, at which time Teaneck player No. 20 was fouled.

4. When Teaneck player No. 20 was surrounded by Eastside players No. 14 and 40, he had some difficulty in getting back to his feet. Some shoving broke out between the players at that point.

5. [A.T.] (Teaneck player No. 42), a JV sophomore player who had been inserted in the last quarter of the game, attempted to prevent Eastside player No. 40 from joining the conflict which was occurring in the vicinity of the fouled player. He approached Eastside player No. 40, with his hands at his side, stating that his Eastside opponent should "calm down" and that "we don't need a fight."

6. Eastside player No. 40 at first backed away from the approaching [A.T], and then threw a punch at the Teaneck player, which was blocked by him.

7. Immediately after Eastside player No. 40 threw a punch at Mr. [T.], another Eastside player, No. 12, ran toward the Teaneck player and struck him with his fist on his jaw.

8. As a result of the blow received from Eastside player No. 12, Mr. [T.] was knocked unconscious and suffered a broken jaw.

9. In the midst of this melee, the game officials terminated the contest.

[1] On January 13, 1999, a review of petitioners' submissions indicated that the videotape of the March 5, 1998 incident which had been reviewed by the NJSIAA Committees had not been submitted nor had the June 29, 1998 Controversies Committee Report. NJSIAA was contacted by the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes to request that these documents be submitted with the brief due on January 19, 1999.

10. It is undisputed that several Eastside players who were on the bench came onto the court and joined their battling teammates.

11. Both schools took disciplinary action against various members of their team. Eastside suspended from class, five players who had entered the floor or who had been engaged in fighting. In addition, two of the Eastside players who participated in spring sports were suspended from three contests.

12. Eastside also apologized for the events of March 5 and conducted special meetings with the team to emphasize good sportsmanship. (Controversies Committee Decision at pp. 3-4)

Based on the above Findings of Fact, the Controversies Committee reached the following conclusions:

1. The NJSIAA has taken a strong stand against violence, particularly as it involved NJSIAA championship contests. If a participating team, or the fans of that team engage in violence, at a minimum the team will not be allowed to participate in the subsequent year's championship contests in that sport. That penalty is most appropriate in this case since the team itself was engaged in unprovoked and dangerous conduct which resulted in the serious injury to the Teaneck player.

2. The Committee commends Teaneck for the extraordinary efforts and success in crowd control which effectively curtailed fighting between the two teams.

3. The coaching staff and administration of Paterson Eastside High School were not responsible for any of the improper conduct of the basketball team.

4. The Paterson Eastside boys basketball team is placed on probation for a period of two years, during which time game reports are to be submitted to the NJSIAA. The team shall be excluded from participation in the 1999 NJSIAA basketball tournament.

5. The two underclassmen on the Paterson Eastside team, who were previously suspended for improper conduct, shall be reported to the NJSIAA, and shall be ineligible for the first two regular season contests in the 1998-99 season. (Id. at p. 4)

PETITIONERS' POSITION

Initially, petitioners assert that NJSIAA violated their due process rights by failing to implement properly the Rules and Guidelines of the NJSIAA Handbook, asserting that NJSIAA contradicted Article IX of the Bylaws when it meted out to the Paterson Eastside basketball team the severe penalty of two years probation and suspension from participation in the 1999 championship tournament. In support of this it points to the wording of the Sportsmanship rules which states:

> It shall be the responsibility of each member school to insure that all individuals employed by or directly associated with the athletic program, including its Student-Athletes, comport themselves in a sportsmanlike manner when representing their school, especially at interscholastic events.
> Unsportsmanlike conduct shall subject the individual to disciplinary action. The member school with which the individual is associated may also be subject to disciplinary action if it is found that the member school's policies, actions, or failure to act, substantially contributed to the individual's conduct. (NJSIAA Constitution, Bylaws, NJSIAA Handbook, at p. 52)

With respect to this, petitioners aver, inter alia, that the two underclassmen involved in the incident were found to be ineligible for the two regular season contests for the 1998-99 school year. Moreover, they point to the fact that the Controversies Committee also found that the coaching staff and administration of Paterson Eastside were not responsible for any improper conduct of the basketball team and were, in fact, actually praised by NJSIAA for their actions. Petitioners, therefore, contend that it is apparent from the findings that the member school did not do anything that may have contributed to the individual's action which caused the incident and, in actuality, the offenders of the unsportsmanlike conduct were readily identifiable individuals who were singled out by NJSIAA for punishment.

Petitioners also point out that Dr. Westlake, Chairperson of the Controversies Committee, stated at the Executive Committee hearing that both teams were able to control the amount of people coming onto the court (Executive Committee Transcript at pp. 26–27) and yet Dr. Westlake concluded that Eastside's punishment was justified as he stated

> Our concern, however, is in cases such as Perth Amboy and Camden, where we had similar situations, that the punishment that we have given to Eastside is uniform, and we feel is justified in this case, especially since the NJSIAA has such a strong stance on violence, and that's the reason we have extended the penalty to Paterson Eastside, and not to Teaneck because we saw that this was initiated from the Eastside bench, and that the punishment we meted out to Eastside is justified. (Executive Committee Transcript at p. 27)

As to this, petitioners argue that the factual circumstances of this matter and those of Perth Amboy High School and Camden High School vary greatly. Petitioners contend that in the Perth Amboy matter, NJSIAA found that members of that basketball team deliberately instigated the fighting and lead the attack on innocent Shawnee High School students and fans and its coach should not have left the bench, thereby allowing his own team to do so, which resulted in an extended period of fighting and chaos. They maintain that in the instant matter it was a Teaneck player that instigated the incident, not Eastside. They further argue that Eastside's basketball program cannot be compared to Camden High School's because Eastside High School has never been in trouble with NJSIAA prior to this incident, while Camden High School has a lengthy history of serious infractions. They state

> In 1991, the Camden High School Basketball program was placed on a two-year probation following a riot after a Camden-Trenton basketball game in the State Tournament. This incident is distinguishable from the present incident because there was no identifiable individual(s) with whom to find fault. In the present matter, however, the NJSIAA identified the individuals that caused the disturbance in the game.
> In 1997, Camden was found to be responsible for a disturbance which erupted after a basketball game in Atlantic City High School due to poor crowd control. In the present matter, Paterson did not have a problem with controlling its fans.
>
> In February 1991, the coach of the Camden High School basketball team refused to complete a game thereby violating the NJSIAA sportsmanship rule. In the present matter, the officials terminated the game and found Paterson Eastside coaches acted in a sportsmanlike manner.
> In March 1998, the Camden High School basketball team fans were unruly, belligerent and out of control. The basketball coach sent three unsupervised players to the locker room before the game ended. The Camden High School basketball team climbed into the stands after making obscene gestures to the crowd. In the present matter, the Eastside fans were in control and the team was supervised closely. (Petitioners' Brief at p. 10)

Petitioners further contend that the actions NJSIAA took against Eastside were reached in an arbitrary and capricious manner, averring, inter alia, that the facts and findings of the case do not comport with the sportsmanship rules that NJSIAA so diligently attempted to uphold and protect and NJSIAA went beyond the formulated and stated rules in order to make an example out of the Paterson Public School District. Petitioners urge that NJSIAA cannot bend and twist rules so as to find guilt and fault in every interscholastic athletic incident. (Petitioners' Brief at p. 13) Petitioners acknowledge that NJSIAA has a compelling interest to prevent violence on the playing field but urge that NJSIAA also has a compelling interest to make sure that all schools are treated fairly and justly under the rules which it promulgates. Petitioners also maintain

> The NJSIAA states that its decision is to be an example to other member schools. However, such punishments fail to serve their expected purpose. Although all member schools teach good sportsmanship and proper field conduct, there will be instances when individual team members will engage in activities which the member schools do not condone or cannot control. In most cases involving interscholastic athletics at the high school, the majority of the athletes are very passionate about their involvement in their particular sport. In such passion, the emotions of players run very high sometimes resulting in great moments for the athlete or detrimental actions. In the present matter the results were detrimental for both the player injured and the players causing the injury. However, the member school, who has abided by all of the rules and regulations of NJSIAA and has taught its players good sportsmanship, cannot always control the passionate actions of individual team members.
> Secondly, the identifiable individual or individuals which NJSIAA stated caused the injury are no longer students in the school district. The identified students graduated from Paterson Eastside High School. The two students who were suspended for one game were suspended for leaving the bench but did not cause any injuries. The punishment for those individual students leaving the bench is justified and is not being appealed. It is the unfair action of the NJSIAA of suspending an entire team for actions for those who are no longer in school which are fundamentally unfair. (Id. at p. 14)

RESPONDENT'S POSITION

NJSIAA avers, inter alia, that although the videotape presented at the Controversies Committee hearing shows the entire event, it does not clearly show all the actors and points to the testimony of Eastside's Assistant Athletic Director, Elbert Harris, that it was impossible to determine definitively who threw the punch that broke A.T.'s jaw. Mr. Harris[2] states

> I want the committee to look at every particular individual who landed a punch, where it lands, where it goes, what happens because you just cannot -- it is my contention it is impossible to > tell what blow broke this kid's jaw. It's impossible. If you would follow each and every blow, you will find -- you will see where the origin is and where the conclusion of the punch is.

> So, it's impossible to definitively say who broke this kid's jaw. (Controversies Committee Transcript at pp. 252-253)

In response to petitioners' allegations that they were denied due process, NJSIAA contends that its bylaws provide a two-step process for determining facts and penalties. On May 12, 1998, via notice from NJSIAA, the Controversies Committee, comprised of nine educators from around the state, held a hearing to review the events of the March 5, 1998 Group IV semi-final game between Teaneck and Eastside. The hearing was transcribed by a certified shorthand reporter, the transcript of which has 74 pages of testimony. All documents submitted by the parties were reviewed by the Committee, including a videotape of the incident. Sworn testimony was heard from ten witnesses and counsel for both schools were permitted to examine and cross-examine witnesses and give closing statements. The Controversies Committee issued a formal decision with findings of fact and conclusions on June 29, 1998. Pursuant to NJSIAA's Bylaws (Article XIII, Section 5, NJSIAA Handbook, 1998-99), that decision was able to be appealed to NJSIAA's Executive Committee, the Association's governing body. Petitioners invoked this provision and the 34-member Executive Committee heard oral argument from Eastside's counsel and from Dr. Eugene Westlake, Chairperson of the Controversies Committee. The Executive Committee voted 29-5 to deny the appeal. Of this, NJSIAA states "[t]here can be no question but that the NJSIAA provided Eastside with the fullest due process. Eastside had every opportunity to present its case to educators who were knowledgeable in the area." (NJSIAA's Brief at p. 9)

NJSIAA further contends that the Eastside student-athletes have no constitutional right to participate in the State Championship Tournament, citing in support thereof Burnside v. NJSIAA, unpublished decision of the Appellate Division dated November 15, 1984 (Docket No. A-625-84T7), Board of Education of the City of Camden v. NJSIAA, 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 182, 188, Palmer by Palmer v. Merluzzi, 689 F. Supp. 400, 408-409 (D.N.J. 1988), aff'd 868 F. 2d 90, 96 (3d Cir. 1978), Camden City Bd. of Ed. v. NJSIAA, unpublished decision of the Appellate Division dated February 18, 1992 (Docket No. A-2802-91T2), Van Velson v. NJSIAA, 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 264.

NJSIAA next argues that it has the authority to exclude Eastside's basketball team from the 1999 State Tournament, contending that the Constitution, Bylaws, Rules and Regulations give the Association the broad power to penalize inappropriate conduct (Article X of the Bylaws, NJSIAA Handbook at pages 53-54). The Controversies Committee, after conducting a hearing and subject to appeal to the Executive Committee, may impose one or more of a number of penalties, which may include probation, forfeiture of games and championship rights, suspension of players and fines. Of this, NJSIAA states

> These penalties serve the same three purposes that all penalty provisions serve. By publishing penalties in advance they discourage inappropriate conduct and deterrence. By requiring reports and monitoring of the offender, they offer rehabilitation. And by allowing strong penalties for bad conduct, they impose punishment. (emphasis in text) (NJSIAA's Brief at p. 10)

NJSIAA avers that there is nothing arbitrary or capricious about keeping a team out of a championship tournament due to the actions of selected team members. It maintains, inter alia, that in this case, it is particularly appropriate that the team be punished because it was the acts of team members, as opposed to actions of an administrator, coach or fans, that caused the melee. Moreover, it contends that the Eastside team is responsible for the acts of team members who instigated the fight and caused serious bodily injury to a Teaneck player, averring that

The following facts are undeniable, and all bespeak team involvement and team responsibility for the incident:

- Eastside was the team about to [lose] a championship–caliber game by a lopsided margin.
- Two Eastside players knocked down a Teaneck player.
- An Eastside player threw a wild first punch.
- Another Eastside player threw a punch that knocked a Teaneck player unconscious and broke his jaw.
- The player who committed the assault was not in the game at the time, but left the bench to enter the fight.
- Other Eastside players left the bench to join the fight.
- It was impossible to identify all the Eastside team players involved, and even the player who committed the assault could not be definitively identified. (NJSIAA's Brief at p. 12)

NJSIAA rebuts Eastside's argument that it is fundamentally unfair to suspend the team from championship play for the actions of students who are no longer in school, urging that it cannot be said that punishing a team for the acts of another individual violates due process. It cites a variety of judicial decisions in support of this factor and quotes the following passage from the Appellate Division decision in Camden City Bd. of Ed., supra, which states

> We conclude that due process was afforded at every stage, and that the sanction imposed was reasonably designed to serve a legitimate state interest. Unfortunately, the sanction also falls upon players who were personally innocent of any wrongdoing last March. But this is not a ground for vacating the otherwise valid order of the Commissioner. We cannot say that the Commissioner's action was disproportionate to the threat of harm. (Slip Op. at p. 6) (emphasis in text) (NJSIAA's Brief at p. 13)

NJSIAA flatly rejects petitioners' argument that it has played fast and loose with the rules, averring that petitioners would have the Commissioner conclude that because no administrator, coach or fan contributed to the incident, the Eastside team cannot be held responsible. It reiterates that "[c]ertainly a team can be held responsible for acts of members of the team, and, as noted above, this incident was the result of team action in a team sport." (Id. at p. 14) NJSIAA also argues that petitioners have misread the Sportsmanship Rule, maintaining that the rule says that the individual shall be punished for unsportsmanlike conduct, and the school may be punished. As to this, NJSIAA emphasizes that (1) the rule does not say that if the school's policies or actions did not contribute to the unsportsmanlike conduct, then only the individual can be punished and (2) the penalty provision of Article X allows a team to be excluded from the championships, subject only to a hearing before the Controversies Committee with right of appeal to the Executive Committee, and subject to the constraints of substantive due process, all conditions which were followed in the instant matter.

It is NJSIAA's contention that the penalty levied in this matter was balanced and in proportion to the seriousness of the incident in that Eastside and its players are still permitted to play a full schedule of conference and nonconference games and the players are still eligible for individual awards and recognition. It also avows, inter alia,

> Unfortunately, violence is often not far from the surface at sports contests. Sports is by its nature competitive, emotional, and often rewards aggression. That is all the more reason that authorities that regulate sports must be vigilant to catch and contain violence when it erupts. It is incumbent upon the NJSIAA to spread the message that violence is unacceptable, no matter who started a > particular incident, and that violence has consequences that extend far beyond the individual participants. The Commissioner recognized this when he wrote that "[no]thing less than swift, certain action must be taken by the Association to deter any notion that aggression at sporting events will be tolerated. [Camden, supra, at p. 191] (NJSIAA's Brief at pp. 15–16)

PETITIONERS' REPLY

Petitioners' reply brief objects to the statement on page two of NJSIAA's brief which references Teaneck's Athletic Director's testimony (Controversies Committee Transcript at pp. 222-223) that according to the Teaneck player, someone had stepped on his hand while he was on the floor and he pushed that person in order to get up. They object to the statement because the Teaneck player did not testify and, therefore, the statement is hearsay. Petitioners also object to the statements on page two relative to A.T.'s testimony, averring, inter alia, that A.T. has a vested interest in this matter, given that he and his parents have filed tort claims against the Paterson school district and individuals involved in the March 5, 1998 incident. They further except to the NJSIAA's description of A.T.'s actions, arguing that he approached the Eastside player with raised hands across most of the court while the Eastside player tried to retreat. Petitioners characterize A.T.'s action in doing this as provocation for the Eastside player's actions, maintaining that it is evident from the Eastside player's retreat and his missed punch that he was trying to ward off A.T. They also point out that it was security and personnel from both Teaneck and Paterson that restored order to the game, not just Teaneck's.

Petitioners go on to object to NJSIAA references to violent incidents in other basketball games found on page 11 of NJSIAA brief (lines 1-7) which had nothing to do with the incident in this matter, stating, inter alia, that

> The mere mention of these facts seems to suggest that NJSIAA is promoting the idea of arbitrary and capricious decision making in order to control the violent atmosphere at sporting events in urban areas. This statement alone presents the prejudice and bias of the NJSIAA against urban schools which leads to arbitrary and capricious decisions. There are incidents of violence throughout all schools in the state of New Jersey whether urban, suburban, or rural. However, it is apparent that the only schools that seem to be addressed are the urban school districts.
> The NJSIAA would attempt to blind all involved with the incident that occurred by harping on the violence of the incident, the violence in other school districts, and its attempts to control such violence. However, the NJSIAA is also committing violence in this > matter. It is violence against basic fairness and justice. It is violence against its own rules. Rules which the NJSIAA carefully thought out and crafted. The NJSIAA would now like to commit violence upon those rules by offering a separate meaning than what the plain text states.

> The NJSIAA has a history of being a stickler for the rules and being unyielding in its decisions in regard to those rules. The NJSIAA has a long history of suspending athletes and coaches for a misinterpretation of the NJSIAA rules. The NJSIAA always seems to state that the rule is the rule as stated in the handbook. Now, in this incident it seems that a rule is not actually the rule. The rule seems to mean something other than what the plain text conveys. The NJSIAA seems to be nothing more than an all too powerful organization that will do anything to control its membership. (Petitioners' Reply Brief at pp. 2-3)

NJSIAA vehemently objects to what they consider to be petitioners' extraordinary attack against the Association, avowing that it had no vested interest in finding for or against either Paterson or Teaneck at the hearing, its only interest being to make a determination based on the evidence. NJSIAA also vehemently denies that it demonstrated prejudice and bias against urban schools which leads to arbitrary and capricious decisions, pointing out that by way of a letter dated October 6, 1998, it provided Paterson's counsel with a list of contested cases involving schools that had been kept out of the playoffs since 1984 (Paterson Exhibit 29), a list which includes rural, suburban and urban schools alike. Moreover, NJSIAA emphasizes, inter alia, that Paterson ignores the fact that during the 1980's the Association expended over $100,000 fighting in the courts for the right of urban schools to compete against suburban schools in integrated conferences. NJSIAA states "[t]to imply that NJSIAA has targeted urban schools under these circumstances is simply reckless." (NJSIAA letter dated January 27, 1999)

COMMISSIONER'S DETERMINATION

The NJSIAA is a voluntary association. The Commissioner's scope of review in NJSIAA determinations is an appellate one. N.J.S.A. 18A:11-3, Board of Education of the City of Camden v. NJSIAA, 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 182, 188. That is, the Commissioner may not overturn an action by NJSIAA in applying its rules absent a finding that NJSIAA applied the rules in a patently arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable manner. B.C. v. Cumberland Regional School District, 220 N.J. Super. 214, 231-232 (App. Div. 1987) Nor may the Commissioner substitute his judgment for that of NJSIAA, even if he were to decide differently in a de nova hearing, where due process has been provided and where there is adequate basis for the decision reached by the NJSIAA Committees. Dam Jin Koh and Hong Jun Kim v. NJSIAA 1987 S.L.D. 259. Further, the burden of proof rests with the person challenging the decision. Kopera v. West Orange Board of Education, 60 N.J. Super. 288, 297 (App. Div. 1960). Moreover, it is well-settled that participation in interscholastic sports is a privilege, rather than a right. Burnside, supra; Palmer by Palmer, supra; Camden City Bd. of Ed., supra.

Initially, the Commissioner will deal with those portions of petitioners' reply brief which he, too, regrettably finds to be an extraordinary attack on NJSIAA. To accuse NJSIAA of prejudice and bias against urban districts because in section four of its brief it refers to violent incidents that had nothing to do with the instant matter is, in the Commissioner's judgment, unfounded. Clearly, the specified passage from NJSIAA's brief is intended to do no more than provide examples of violence in the milieu of sporting events which have occurred recently and were highly publicized.[3] Furthermore, Petitioners' brief submitted on January 5, 1999 clearly raises the Camden matter referenced at page 11 of NJSIAA's brief, as well as the 1992 Camden case. As pointed out by NJSIAA in its October 6, 1998 letter (Petitioners' Exhibit 29), the Association provided to petitioners' counsel a series of matters which resulted in the suspension of teams from State championships, a series of cases which includes schools with a wide array of demographic characteristics. Further, having undertaken a painstaking review of the record in this matter, including a thorough scrutiny of the videotape of the incident, the Commissioner finds no basis whatsoever to support petitioners' allegations that NJSIAA has shown prejudice or bias against urban schools. Having so determined, the Commissioner will now turn to the other substantive issues under consideration in this matter.

Integral to this matter is a determination as to whether or not NJSIAA violated its own rules and regulations when it levied punishments against not just individual players, who were involved in the March 5, 1998 incident at the Group IV semi-final championship basketball game between Eastside and Teaneck, but also the Eastside team when NJSIAA put it on probation for two years and prohibited it from playing in the 1998-99 championship season. The text of the Sportsmanship Rule pertinent to the instant matter reads as follows:

[3] The disputed passage in NJSIAA's brief also references a recent incident at the girls basketball game between Newark's West Side High School and Wayne Valley High School involving the shooting of two youths outside of the West Side High School.

Section 3. Association Responsibility:

> The Association recognizes and appreciates that the influence and responsibility of the school administration with regard to good sportsmanship extends to all levels of competition. However, it must also be seen that the NJSIAA has been vested with the responsibility to ensure that all contests under its jurisdiction are concluded satisfactorily. In exercising its responsibility as it applies to the principles of good sportsmanship, the Association will be guided by the following rule:
>
> SPORTSMANSHIP RULE/POLICY
>
> HIGH STANDARDS OF COURTESY, FAIR PLAY AND SPORTSMANSHIP MUST FEATURE ALL ASSOCIATION COMPETITIONS.
>
> (While this rule is a general statement and one which may be difficult to reduce to objective standards in terms of enforcement, it is the heart of the entire Association program. Good sportsmanship, respect for rules, respect for others, and fair play, are basically the motives through which an interscholastic athletic program is justified and defended.)
>
> It shall be the responsibility of each member school to insure that all individuals employed by or directly associated with the athletic program, including Student-Athletes, comport themselves in a sportsmanlike manner when representing their school, especially at interscholastic events.
> Unsportsmanlike conduct shall subject the individual to disciplinary action. The member school with which the individual is associated may also be subject to disciplinary action if it is found that the member school's policies, actions, or failure to act, substantially contributed to the individual's conduct. (NJSIAA Handbook at pp. 51-52)

Upon careful and independent review of the record of this matter, including transcripts from the Controversies Committee and the Executive Committee hearings and a the videotape of the March 5, 1998 incident, the Commissioner affirms the determination of NJSIAA to place the Paterson Eastside High School basketball team on probation for two years and to prohibit the team's participation in the 1998-99 championship tournament based upon the findings and conclusions about the culpability of Eastside players involved in the incident reached by the Controversies Committee and Executive Committee after their examination of the evidence. In reaching his determination in this matter, the Commissioner agrees with NJSIAA's argument that the above-cited Sportsmanship Rule does not prevent it from levying a penalty against a team, even in circumstances where individual perpetrators are able to be identified and are punished. In the instant matter, NJSIAA determined to punish individual Eastside players who participated in and/or instigated the violent melee and, given the magnitude of the unsportsmanlike behavior by Eastside team members, NJSIAA also concluded that the team itself should be held accountable for the flagrantly unsportsmanlike actions of a number of players on the team. Such conclusion is supported in the record and, therefore, the penalties levied in the instant matter are not deemed to be a violation of NJSIAA's rules nor are they deemed to be patently arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable or a violation of petitioners' due process rights. As clearly stated in the above-cited Sportsmanship Article IX, the NJSIAA Rule in dispute herein is a general statement which is intended to be a guide to NJSIAA in exercising its responsibility relative to good sportsmanship which, as stated in the Constitution and Bylaws of NJSIAA, is the heart of the Association's entire program. That NJSIAA determined in the instant matter to apply the Sportsmanship Rule such that the "member school's actions" may be found to be actions of individual team members, and not just actions by coaches, administrators or fans, is a reasonable decision on NJSIAA's part, one which has the legitimate and rational purpose of promoting not only good sportsmanship at sporting events but also a safe environment free from violence and/or chaotic disruption, no matter how quickly contained or controlled those conditions may have been dealt with.

As quoted above, NJSIAA and its member schools have determined that good sportsmanship, respect for rules, respect for others, and fair play, are basically the motives through which an interscholastic athletic program is justified and defended. A review of the record in this matter demonstrates that these elements of good sportsmanship were flagrantly violated by the Eastside basketball team. The fact that several of the participants in the melee have graduated and that only two of the other student-athletes who were also disciplined remain on the Eastside basketball team is of no moment whatsoever. As NJSIAA correctly indicates, it is well-established in law that teams can be kept from participating in championship games even where players were personally innocent of wrongdoing. City of Camden, supra. That the unsportsmanlike actions in the instant matter may be distinguishable from those demonstrated by Perth Amboy High School or Camden High School in a variety of games which resulted in suspension from championship games does not make NJSIAA's determination relative to the Eastside High School incident of March 5, 1998 improper or any less valid. Each circumstance of unsportsmanlike conduct, particularly those involving brawls/melees, and certainly where violence is involved, as unequivocally happened herein, must be judged and swiftly dealt with by NJSIAA. Vigilant action by NJSIAA is necessary so that member schools know that their Association "will catch and contain violence when it erupts" so as to deter future violence and aggression at sporting events. This is true whether a brawl or a melee, particularly where violence and bodily harm results, is instigated or contributed to by coaches, administrators, fans or team members, individually identifiable or not, and, whether the incident occurs in a rural, suburban or urban setting. As aptly stated by NJSIAA, violence is unacceptable no matter who starts a particular incident and, indeed, NJSIAA is entirely correct when stating that violence has consequences that extend far beyond individual participants.

Accordingly, the Commissioner finds no basis on which to overturn NJSIAA's decision and, therefore, affirms its determination in this matter.[4]

IT IS SO ORDERED.

MIDDLESEX COUNTY EDUCATIONAL SERVICES COMMISSION,

PETITIONER,

V.

NEW JERSEY STATE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION,

RESPONDENT.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning Educational Services Commission sought recalculation by the Office of Compliance of the sum determined to be due to the respondent Department of Education pursuant to audit.

ALJ found that the Commission must refund $49,035.66 because that amount was fraudulently charged to State and Federal sources by a Commission employee and the Commission had no legal basis for retaining any of these funds. ALJ determined that there was no legal precedent that would require the Department to accept a pro rata payment and that the controlling statute, N.J.S.A. 18A:46A-14, provides that if an expenditure incurred by any district is less than the amount of State aid received, the district shall refund the unexpended State aid after the completion of the school year. Moreover, an educational services commission may not be a profit-making entity.

Commissioner concurred with the findings and conclusions of the ALJ. Commissioner granted summary judgment to respondent and directed petitioner to refund respondent the sum of $49,035.66.

BEFORE BRUCE R. CAMPBELL, ALJ:

The Middlesex County Educational Services Commission (Commission), petitioner, seeks recalculation by the Office of Compliance, Department of Education (Department), respondent, of a sum determined by audit to be due and returnable to the Department.

The matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education and transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 through -13. After notice, a prehearing conference was held and it was determined that this matter could proceed on motion and cross motion for summary judgment, all relevant facts being stipulated.

BACKGROUND OF THE CASE

The Department audited the Commission's records and produced a report dated March 13, 1997. The report concluded fraudulent activities had occurred in the period July 1986-December 1995. The amount of money involved was $273,690.96. Of that sum, $150,830.00 could not be traced to a specific funding source. Of the $122,860.00 remainder, $49,035.66 was identified and charged to financial assistance from State and Federal sources. The report directed that this amount be returned to the Department.

The Commission pursued appeals within the Department. The Office of Compliance informed the Commission by letter dated October 23, 1997, that the first level appeal was denied.

In November 1997, the Commission filed a second level appeal. The appeal hearing was conducted before the Office of Compliance in January 1998. On April 8, 1998, the Office of Compliance concluded that the Commission, because it received insurance proceeds and fidelity bond money, exceeded its recovery for losses and costs for audit and legal fees by $49,035.66. The report stated this amount was attributable to State and Federal financial assistance. The Department again directed the Commission to return the sum.

The Commission asserts that the total amount recovered from all available fidelity bonds was $156,515.52. The Commission also received $15,000.00 from an insuror. The maximum recovery under the insurance coverage was limited to $25,000.00 per year. During the nearly ten-year period in which the fraud was perpetrated, losses exceeded the available annual insurance limit. The Commission did not fully collect its loss. The Commission calculated that it collected only fifty-six percent of its losses. In the petition that underlies this case, the Commission seeks an order directing the Commissioner to recalculate the sum due to the Department on the same pro rata basis.

The Department denies it acted wrongfully in any way, asserts the Commission has not been denied any right, privilege, or immunity secured by State or Federal law and seeks dismissal of the petition. The Department states the Commission suffered no injury attributable to the Department and that all acts the Department took in this case were performed pursuant to laws, statutes and regulations and, therefore, are valid as a matter of law.

The parties essentially agreed that the Commission suffered an embezzlement totaling $273,690.92. The Commission incurred audit fees of $22,000.00 and legal fees of $6,873.00. This yields a total of $302,563.96. The Commission recovered through bond $156,515.52 and recovered through and insuror $15,000.00. Thus, total recovery was $171,515.52 leaving $131,048.44 unrecovered. The amount recovered represents nearly fifty-seven percent of the loss.

Of the $273,690.90 embezzled, the Office of Compliance traced $122,860.96 to payroll. It determined that $47,919.75 of that amount came from State financial aid and $1,115.91 came from Federal financial aid. This totals $49,035.66 and is the amount the Commission was ordered to repay.

The Office of Compliance stated:

> Total fidelity bond and other insurance proceeds received by the Commission exceeded the payments made for audit and legal fees associated with the fraud, other potential liabilities as well as the liability of $49,035.66 attributable to state and federal financial assistance for services not provided. The Commission, therefore, has recorded a positive cash flow that exceeds its liabilities after receiving fidelity bond and insurance payments.

Fox letter to Bartoletti, April 8, 1998 at 2.

THE ARGUMENTS

The Petitioner

The Commission argues that, because it recovered approximately fifty-seven percent of the funds embezzled, the recovery should be limited to that percentage of the amount the Department demands. The Commission concedes it cannot point to an authority that is dispositive. The Commission also asserts that, despite the fact that the total monies recovered exceeds the loss claimed by the Department, it falls short of compensating the Commission for its complete loss.

The parties are both public entities. The Commission asserts it would be both unequitable and unfair to suggest that the State be reimbursed one hundred percent for a loss while the Commission suffers the complete loss of all sums not covered by insurance. If the State recovers $49,035.66, the Commission's losses will be increased by the same amount. This would bring total Commission losses $184,394.00. In the absence of the theft of these monies, there was a clear contractual and statutory mandate to apply the funds received to their dedicated purpose. N.J.S.A. 18A:46A-1; N.J.S.A. 18A:46-19.1 through -19.9.

The Commission argues that the theft of funds changed the relationship of the parties to one of quasi contract. The resulting status requires a pro rata distribution of the losses to prevent one party from being unjustly enriched. Weichert Co. Realtors v. Ryan, 128 N.J. 427 (1992). The Commission has liability insurance and the State could have made a claim for third party protection on those policies. The Department elected not to do so. A third party claim could, potentially, result in a full and complete recovery of the funds lost.

The matter is further complicated by a pending suit brought by the New Jersey Education Association in the Superior Court, Law Division, Middlesex County, for more then $30,000.00. If this action is successful, the Commission's losses would be increased by any amount it has to pay.

The Commission concludes its argument thus:

> The Commission charges itself equitably as a constructive trustee of all monies recovered in this matter. See (authorities cited). However these monies recovered, which impact the monies of third parties, should not be the loss completely of the Commission. The Commission has acted diligently in maintaining insurance and proceeding to collect on the insurance to minimize its loss. It should not be further penalized in this matter by being compelled to return the entirety of the full amount claimed herein by the Department of Education.

This seems to say that the Commission sees itself as a sort of trustee of all monies recovered. What authority there is for this remains a mystery. The Commission further argues that it should not bear the complete loss. Because it maintained insurance and collected on the insurance to the extent possible, thereby minimizing its loss, it should not be further penalized by being compelled to return the complete amount claimed by the Department.

The Respondent

The Department says that the Commission must refund the $49,035.66 because that amount was fraudulently charged to State and Federal sources by a Commission employee and the Commission has no legal basis for retaining any of these funds. There is no legal precedent that would require the Department to accept a pro rata payment. The controlling statute provides that if an expenditure incurred by any district is less then the amount of State aid received, the district shall refund the unexpended State aid after the completion of the school year. Further, if the district requests to use the unexpended aid, and if the request is approved and funds are available from refunds received from school districts from the prior year, payments for the additional aid shall be made immediately from those funds.

School law decisions have clearly held that an educational services commission may not be a profit-making entity. Because the funds embezzled by the Commission's employee were obtained from either State or Federal aid or tuition charges to local school districts, and because the Commission provided no services in exchange for the funds, any insurance proceeds retained by the Commission in excess of its costs would constitute a windfall. The Department requested only that the $49,035.66 attributable to State and Federal assistance be returned to the State so that it can be used in the manner provided at N.J.S.A. 18A:46A-14, summarized above.

Further, this statute was found applicable to an educational services commission in Middlesex County Educational Services Commission v. State Department of Education, 94 N.J.A.R. 2nd (EDU) 234 (1994). That case involved the return of unexpended funds referred to as Chapters 192-193 funds. The Commission disputed the nature and identity of the funds and also asserted that it was not a school district subject to a legal obligation to return unused funds. The judge concluded that the Commission had presented no argument to justify retention of unused funds. Id. at 239. In finding that the Commission was subject to the statutes and was required to refund unexpended monies, the judge reasoned

> The obvious intent of [N.J.S.A. 18A:46A-1 and N.J.S.A. 18A:46:19.1] is to insure that the identified children receive the needed services. Since funds are limited it is obvious that refunds can play a critical role in achieving the Legislature's objective. The MCESC's position that it can retain unused monies is clearly inconsistent with this legislative intent... .
> Although it may be true as argued by the MCESC that a private agency would not be require to refund any unused money, the MCESC is public entity and as such has a "responsibility (that is) owed to the public which places governmental function, relationships and practices at a higher level than those of the market-place." N.J.E.A. v. Essex County Education Services Commission, 5 N.J.A.R. 29, 63. Also, as a public entity, the MCESC has a unique relationship with the school districts it services. Id. at 240

The Department also argues that the Commission does not dispute the amount or nature of the funds in question. The Commission also seems to agree that some money should be returned to the Department. The only issue, then, is whether the Commission may prorate the amount returned in accordance with the amount recovered from its liability insurer. There is no basis in the law for this position. As noted in the April 8, 1998 letter from Thomas King, the Commission received insurance proceeds in excess of the payments it made for audit and legal fees associated with the fraud, other potential liabilities, and the $49,035.66 attributable to State and Federal financial assistance for services not provided. The Commission has recorded a positive cash flow in this case.

Based on the foregoing, the Commission should be ordered to refund the entire amount of $49,035.66 to the Department as determined by audit and the Office of Compliance decision date April 8, 1998.

DETERMINATION AND ORDER

The Commission's idea of sharing the losses sustained as the result of an embezzlement lacks any support in law. Similarly the notion of quasi contract misses the mark. There is a statutory, not contractual, relationship between the parties. The Commission is a political subdivision of the State. It is created by statue to perform a State function and its powers are derived from the Legislature. It can perform only those acts for which express or implied authority exists in law or in the rules and regulations of the State Board of Education.

In the absence of any authority for the quasi contract concept or the trustee concept, I cannot adopt either. The State has no duty that I can determine to substitute itself for the Commission with reference to a claim for losses by embezzlement. There is no real or implied subrogation involved.

In consideration of the facts and the legal the arguments, I FIND and CONCLUDE that the motion for summary judgment brought by the Department of Education must be GRANTED under these circumstances. Having considered and rejected the petitioner's theories, what remains are the controlling statutes, N.J.S.A. 18A46A-1 through -17 and N.J.S.A. 18A:46-1 through -46. The statues being unambiguous, I CONCLUDE that the Middlesex County Education Services Commission is liable for and must pay to the Department of Education the sum of $49, 035.66 representing State and Federal assistance monies for which no services were rendered. It is so ORDERED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

RESPONDENT.	:

Petitioner, tenured physical education teacher who was riffed and awarded compensation by the Commissioner in June 1994 when it was found that he was entitled to 1992-93 employment, claimed entitlement to 1993-94 employment based on endorsement as an elementary school teacher acquired in June 1992, after the date of the RIF. Petitioner contended that if the Board had properly employed him for 1992-93, he would have been protected by his elementary endorsement issued prior to the commencement of that academic year. Respondent Board sought motion seeking dismissal on two grounds: that the petition was untimely pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c) and that any tenure rights were fixed as of the date when the Board abolished his position on April 4, 1992.

State Board remanded for further proceedings in order to determine whether the Board had employed any nontenured individuals within the scope of petitioner's elementary education certification in the 1993-94 school year and for a resultant determination of petitioner's claim in accordance with the terms of the State Board's decision.

On remand, the Commissioner found no cause to disturb the initial decision and, thus, affirmed the ALJ's initial decision.

BEFORE: KEN R. SPRINGER, ALJ:

Statement of the Case

This is a remand by the State Board of Education for development of a more complete factual record. The convoluted procedural history of this case is fully set forth in the State Board's decision and need not be repeated here. By decision entered on February 4, 1998, the State Board determined that petitioner's tenure rights include "any assignment within the scope of his elementary education certification held by a non-tenured teacher." Nonetheless, since the parties were unable to stipulate the full circumstances concerning respondent's employment of non-tenured elementary-level teachers in 1993-94, the State Board remanded this matter to the Commissioner:

> . . . for further proceedings in order to determine whether the [respondent] had employed any non-tenured individuals within the scope of petitioner's elementary education and certification in the 1993-94 school year and for a resultant determination of petitioner's claim in accordance with the terms of our decision herein.

On March 3, 1998, the Commissioner transmitted this matter to the Office of Administrative Law for further findings consistent with the State Board's ruling.

I FIND:

Subsequently, the parties exchanged discovery and have reached a stipulation of all additional information required by the State Board's remand order. A copy of this stipulation, dated December 15, 1998, is attached to and incorporated as part of this decision.

Conclusions of Law

I CONCLUDE that the stipulation of the parties, together with the State Board's decision of February 4, 1998, constitutes a final judgment on all facts and issues raised in this matter.

Order

It is ORDERED that this decision and the attached stipulation be forwarded to the Commissioner for review.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The undersigned, counsel for the parties, hereby agree as follows:

1. The current proceeding before the Office of Administrative Law, as captioned above, results from an Order of Remand issued by the State Board of Education in Ressler v. Saddle Brook Board of Education, Docket No. 66-96 (February 4, 1998).

2. Pursuant to the remand order, the parties have exchanged discovery and hereby stipulate as to the following facts:

(a) The respondent did in fact employ one or more full-time, non-tenured teachers for the entire 1993-94 school year who were serving under an elementary (K-8) certificate in grades K-8.

(b) If the State Board of Education's decision of February 4, 1998 is not reversed on appeal, petitioner is entitled to back salary for the 1993-94 school year in the gross amount of $63,766.00, subject to mitigating income in the amount of $13,908.00. A total gross back salary amount of $49,858.00 would therefore be due, subject to all normal payroll and pension deductions.

(c) If the State Board of Education's decision of February 4, 1998 is not reversed on appeal, petitioner is also entitled to retroactive and/or prospective payments and credits for matters such as contractual longevity payments, sick leave credit, seniority credit, pension credit and any other credit or benefit gauged to years of service, by virtue of the inclusion o the 1993-94 school year as a year of active duty for petitioner.

3. Respondent's initial appeal from the State Board of Education's decision of February 4, 1998 to the Superior Court, Appellate Division was denied, without prejudice, because the remand order rendered the State Board's decision interlocutory. (Exhibit A attached.)

4. Adoption of this Stipulation by the Administrative Law Judge, Commissioner of Education and State Board of Education will constitute a final judgment on all facts and issues as to which the respondent may appeal to the Superior Court, Appellate Division. It is agreed that said appeal will relate to the findings in the State Board's decision of February 4, 1998 and not to the stipulations of facts contained in paragraph 2 of this document.

5. The officers and agencies involved are asked to expedite the issuance of decisions incorporating paragraph 2 of this stipulation as their respective final findings and orders in compliance with the State Board's decision of February 4, 1998 so that this matter may be brought before the Appellate Division as soon as possible.

HEARING OF JOHN CERUTTI,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
NEW JERSEY STATE DEPARTMENT	:	DECISION

Department certified tenure charge of unbecoming conduct against respondent teaching staff member, who worked for the Commission for the Blind and Visually Impaired, for allegedly having sexual relations with a client, C.B., and falsifying work records.

In light of the testimony of witnesses especially the consistent, credible testimony of C.B., and the exhibits in the record, the ALJ found that respondent took advantage of C.B.'s vulnerability and carried on a sexual affair with her while she was an active client and he falsely reported those dates on which he had sexual relations as working sessions in order to be compensated for services he did not provide. ALJ concluded that the Department had sustained the tenure charge of unbecoming conduct against respondent and that the appropriate penalty was dismissal. (In re Fulcomer; Redcay)

Finding no basis to challenge the ALJ's credibility determinations, the Commissioner affirmed the determination of the ALJ that respondent's actions, as proven, constituted conduct unbecoming a teacher necessitating his removal from his tenured position. Commissioner ordered respondent dismissed from his position as of the date of this decision and transmitted the matter to the State Board of Examiners for action, as that body deems appropriate, against respondent's teaching certificate.

INITIAL DECISION
OAL DKT. NO. EDU 1665-97
AGENCY DKT. NO. 589-12/96

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF JOHN CERUTTI

Yvette Gibbons, Deputy Attorney General, for petitioner
(Peter Verniero, Attorney General of New Jersey, attorneys)

Paul D. Muller, Esq., member of the Pennsylvania Bar, admitted pro hac vice, for respondent Attorney of Record: Steven P. Weissman, Esq. (Weissman & Mintz, attorneys)

Record Closed: April 3, 1998 Decided: November 12, 1998

BEFORE: KEN R. SPRINGER, ALJ:

Statement of the Case

This is a tenure proceeding under N.J.S.A. 18A:60-1 to -60-2. Tenured teachers and other certified persons employed by the Department of Human Services hold employment "during good behavior and efficiency." Petitioner New Jersey Commission for the Blind and Visually Impaired ("Commission"), an agency within the Department of Human Services, has brought charges of unbecoming conduct against one of its tenured employees, respondent John Cerutti ("Cerutti). Specifically, the charges allege that Cerutti "had sexual relations with [his] client" while he was supposed to be providing instruction to her, that he "falsified work records including client itineraries, time sheets, and travel vouchers" in an attempt to conceal his wrongful use of state time, and that he "threatened and intimidated [the] client when she brought to his attention that she was pregnant." Although Cerutti admits that he engaged in a romantic relationship between consenting adults, he denies that the encounter occurred while she was still his active client, that he falsified work records or threatened and intimidated her. Both parties agree that, as expressed by respondent's attorney, the central issue "is one of credibility." Inevitably, the outcome turns on whether one believes Cerutti or his accuser. If the charges are sustained, the Commissioner of Education must also assess the appropriate penalty.

Procedural History

In November 1996 Commission officials submitted proposed tenure charges together with the results of an internal investigation. By action taken on November 15, 1996, the Commission determined that there exists probable cause to credit the supporting evidence and that the charges, if true, warrant removal or reduction in compensation. Accordingly, the Commission determined to file tenure charges and to suspend Cerutti without pay. On December 11, 1996, the Commission filed the tenure charges with the Commissioner of Education. Cerutti filed his answer on January 17, 1997.

Subsequently, on February 6, 1997, the Commissioner of Education transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") for hearing as a contested case. The OAL held hearings on March 2, 3 and 4, 1998. Witnesses and exhibits are listed in the appendix. Both sides filed briefs by April 3, 1998.

Statement of Facts

General Background Facts

Most of the background facts are undisputed. The Commission is a state agency which offers a variety of support services, including vocational training, health counseling, Braille education, and instruction in daily living skills, to persons with visual impairments. John Cerutti, age forty-five, started working for the Commission in January 1979 and has been an orientation-and-mobility instructor for almost twenty years. Forty-five years old at the time of the hearing, Cerutti is married and has two young children. His wife also works for the Commission. In addition to his full-time employment by the Commission, Cerutti also has a part-time job as a real estate sales representative.

As a mobility instructor, Cerutti meets regularly with clients, usually at their home or job site, and assists them in learning how to travel from one location to another. He demonstrates proper techniques for using a cane, such as responding to environmental cues and differentiating between parallel and cross traffic. Sessions normally last one to one and-a-half hours, with the number of sessions depending on the complexity of the client's goals. A typical course of instruction would cover how to get around the house, how to get out the front door, how to stay on the sidewalk, how to cross the street safely, how to maneuver in the work place, and how to use public transportation.

Cerutti spends four days per week in the field visiting clients and the fifth day in the office doing paperwork. In any given year, his case load is seventy to one-hundred twenty clients. Trust is an essential ingredient of the professional relationship, since the client must be able to rely on the instructor for accurate feedback and interpretation of the surrounding physical world. Jamie Hilton, executive director of the Commission and herself sightless since the age of eight, explained that the instructor becomes "your life line" and "your path to getting around independently."

C.B. has been blind from birth.[1] Cerutti first met the C.B. in 1985, when she had just graduated from college and was waiting for her first guide dog. From 1985 through 1988, Cerutti provided extensive training to her on cane travel and using a dog. He was a capable teacher and C.B. was very grateful for his help. When the training ended in 1988, they became "good friends" and would occasionally go out together for drinks after work. Sometimes Cerutti would see her at her family's home. Due to the attention Cerutti gave her, C.B. began to think "he was interested in me." They slept together for the first time in 1991. Because "you remember dates like that," C.B. fixes the exact time and place as October 24, 1991 at her mother's house. After C.B. found a job and moved to her own apartment in Morristown, their friendship grew "closer" and, in Cerutti's own words, "we began to have an intimate relationship."

Although C.B. was then in her late twenties or early thirties, both parties agree that she was socially immature and young for her age. Jamie Hilton, who is a certified social worker and had a private practice for ten years before becoming director of the Commission, described her as "naive," "emotionally frail and fragile" and someone who "has not had many life experiences." C.B. had never had a physical relationship before and had been "very sheltered by her family." Recognizing that C.B. was an adult and that no force was used, Hilton nonetheless regarded her as "easy prey." However, Cerutti, who was already married at the time, places much of the responsibility for what happened on C.B. rather than himself. In his view, C.B. "became infatuated with me" and her "advances" were "so persistent" and "overbearing" that finally he succumbed "in a moment of weakness." While professing genuine love for C.B., Cerutti stated that C.B. "accepted her role or position."

On November 24, 1994, a vocational counselor referred C.B. for additional orientation-and-mobility training. Apparently the original goal was to assist her in learning to travel to Hunter College in New York City, but those plans never materialized. Instead, since her beloved guide dog Nia was dying from liver disease, the goal changed to refreshing C.B.'s skills in using a cane. Death of a successful guide dog is a traumatic occurrence for a blind person. Director Hilton, who has had four guide dogs, compared losing a dog to "going blind all over again." You and your dog are seen as a team, she elaborated, and the loss of a dog has impacts negatively on "your self-image," "your feeling of independence" and "your security." Consequently, C.B. was particularly vulnerable at this particular time in her life. Since Cerutti was the only instructor assigned to the county in which C.B. lived, her case automatically went to him. Realizing the delicacy of the situation, Cerutti accepted the assignment rather than tell his supervisors about their personal involvement.

[1]To protect her privacy and preserve the confidentiality of Commission records, the complainant will be referred to by her initials rather than her full name.

A final-contact report written by Cerutti recites that he delivered mobility instruction to C.B. on thirteen specific dates between December 1994 and May 1995. Basically, the factual dispute centers on whether sexual activity occurred during those hours when Cerutti was reportedly working. C.B. maintains that their affair continued on-and-off again over a period of five years and that they had sexual relations on numerous occasions in 1994-95 which Cerutti had falsely listed as work sessions.[2] For his part, Cerutti insists that their "rocky" sexual relationship temporarily halted in late 1992 or early 1993 and did not resume again until January 1996 (at which time C.B. was no longer his active client.) Both of them agree that their relationship ended on September 19, 1996, when C.B. told Cerutti that she was pregnant with his baby.

Dates When Cerutti Committed Sexual Acts During Work Hours

C.B. has a remarkable ability to recall the details of past events, including specific dates, times and places. What makes her testimony so convincing is that she is able to attach many of the dates to other significant happenings in her life. Quite obviously, she was deeply in love with Cerutti, and her genuine devotion to him made each encounter special to her. As C.B. herself put it, "I remember the dates because they always meant something to me." Generally, C.B. estimates that she had sexual relations with Cerutti approximately three times a month. Typically he would be with her for one and a half to two hours, but sometimes they spent half the day together. Of the thirteen dates listed by Cerutti in his final report, C.B. stated that only two were actually devoted to business pursuits. At around Christmas of 1994, Cerutti saw her in his official capacity and gave her a lesson in using a cane. Itinerary sheets, kept by Cerutti in the ordinary course of business, reflect that C.B. was his first client of the day on Wednesday, December 21, 1994 in Morristown. C.B. also recounted a second work session, in mid-May 1995, at which he came to her new office in Denville and showed her how to get around with the cane.

[2] Contrary to Cerutti's assertions, C.B. never claimed that that there weren't any interruptions in their five-year relationship. For example, C.B. had only a few sexual encounters with Cerutti in 1992 and stopped seeing him for an extended period in July 1995 when Cerutti took paternity leave to care for his and his wife's baby.

On Friday, December 23, 1994, Cerutti went to her house in Morristown after lunch. According to C.B., no lesson was delivered that day, we "just had sex." C.B. remembers the date because Cerutti had just come from a holiday lunch. His itinerary sheet for that day indicates that C.B. was his last client. Right after New Year's Day, on Wednesday, January 4, 1995, Cerutti stopped by her house at about 11:00 in the morning and stayed for two and-a-half hours. During his visit, they had sexual relations, but Cerutti did not provide any mobility instruction. C.B. is named as his second client on Cerutti's itinerary sheet.

One month later, on Friday February 3, 1995, the two ate lunch together at a restaurant in Morristown and, as C.B. testified, "then we came back to my house and we slept together." That date was particularly memorable because her guide dog Nia had recently died and, earlier that morning, she and Cerutti held a burial ceremony at the Seeing Eye facility. Corresponding itinerary sheets identify C.B. as Cerutti's only client for the first half of the day. Cerutti was with her again on Thursday February 23, 1995, a significant date because it was the day that C.B. brought home her replacement guide dog. Cerutti arrived at about 10:00 a.m., and, in C.B.'s version, "we slept together and then we went out to breakfast." Again, the itinerary sheet confirms that C.B. was Cerutti's first client of the day.

Shortly thereafter, on March 24, 1995, Commission held a public forum for clients to voice their concerns about the agency and its programs. Since Cerutti had to attend the event, he offered to drive C.B. to the forum. After meeting at her office, they had lunch together and "fooled around" or, as C.B. clarified her use of the term, "we had oral sex in the car before we went to the meeting." On the itinerary sheet, C.B. appears as the last entry for that day.

Several of the other March dates mentioned in Cerutti's final report did not involve either work or sexual activity. Although Cerutti's itinerary lists her as his second and last client on Wednesday March 1, 1995, C.B. stated that she "went to the doctor" and "never saw him on that day." C.B. felt so sick that she went to stay at her mother's house. The following day, Thursday, March 2, 1995, Cerutti visited her at her mother's house for an hour. Cerutti took her for a walk "to get me out of the house," but did not provide any instruction. He didn't want to have sex because C.B. was still sick. An itinerary sheet shows that C.B. was Cerutti's first client. On Thursday March 16, 1995, Cerutti came to her office in the middle of the afternoon and they "went for a walk," but "there was no lesson that day." C.B. distinctly remembers it was the day before St. Patrick's Day because Cerutti "was going to come over the next day, but didn't." While Cerutti's final report designates March 16, 1995 as an instruction date, his itinerary sheet for that day fails to make any reference to C.B. Similarly, Cerutti stopped by her office for forty-five minutes on Thursday March 23, 1995 but, according to C.B., "we didn't do anything."

John Reiff, the Commission's regional officer manager, explained that all of Cerutti's work sessions with a particular client, "from first to last," are required to be itemized in his final report. Nevertheless, C.B. recollected various unreported dates, when Cerutti had sexual relations with her instead of working. For instance, on Monday April 7, 1994, Cerutti visited C.B. at her apartment in the morning and had sex with her. C.B. had taken off from work due to concern that she might be pregnant. Likewise, on Friday, December 16, 1994, Cerutti came to her apartment in the late afternoon and the two of them had oral sex. C.B. was able to pinpoint the date because her dog Nia needed a blood test and she took the day off to take the dog to the veterinarian. Cerutti's itinerary lists C.B. as his last client on that day, although the date is missing from his final report. On Monday, February 27, 1995, Cerutti arrived at her apartment around 9:30 a.m., the couple "slept together" and then "went to breakfast." C.B. recalls the date because she was home to be with her new dog. Cerutti's itinerary sheet shows C.B. as his first client of the day.

Even after officially closing her case, Cerutti continued seeing C.B. for personal reasons and charging his time to work. Thus, on Wednesday, June 28, 1995, Cerutti came to her office, took her to lunch, went on a walk with her and "had sex in the park." This date was noteworthy to C.B. because it was Nia's birthday. Cerutti's itinerary lists C.B. as his second client that day. Also, on Wednesday, July 26, 1995, Cerutti picked her up from the office, took her to lunch and "we had oral sex in the car." Cerutti's itinerary for that date names C.B. as his second client.

Confronted by Commission staff, Cerutti admitted his sexual involvement, but initially claimed that C.B. had not been his client since the late 1980s. However, Cerutti's final report establishes that C.B. was his client during the critical time period in 1994 and 1995. Later during the same interview, Cerutti contended that he usually met C.B. around lunch time and that, if any sexual activity occurred during the day, it would have been on his own time. Once more, however, Cerutti's explanation was contradicted by his own itinerary sheets, which show that many of his encounters with C.B. occurred either early in the morning or late in the afternoon. At the hearing, Cerutti testified that he participated in various special projects and made plans for workshops with C.B., implying that they were colleagues rather than instructor and client. Although C.B. happened to work for a separate agency funded by the Commission, she was not working on any special projects with Cerutti in 1994 or 1995. Her testimony, as well as the available records, indicate that any special projects in which they both participated, such as the auditory mapping of a train station or Cerutti's appearance as guest speaker at an Adjustment to Blindness conference, were completed or abandoned prior to 1992.

Attempting to impugn C.B.'s motives for reporting their relationship to the Commission, respondent's counsel argues that she acted vindictively and out of a desire to punish Cerutti. But Jamie Hilton, a trained social worker, testified that C.B. still had "a lot of loyalty" to Cerutti and "did not want to get [him] into trouble." Hilton did not sense any anger "as much as hurt and bewilderment."

Without addressing the specific dates in question, Cerutti gave a meticulous account of the mobility lessons he purportedly gave C.B. in 1994 and 1995. Illustratively, he described teaching her how to get from her apartment to a shopping area, how to avoid a "sound shadow" where a hill blocked the sound of traffic, how to choose a safer alternative route, how to approach a three-cycle traffic light with a delayed green arrow, how to negotiate an area with muddy sidewalks, how to avoid barriers such as an open stairwell, how to catch the train between Morristown and Denville and how to find her way from her new office to a nearby delicatessen. Since Cerutti was familiar with the territory, knew C.B.'s weaknesses and frequently accompanied her on walks, it would have been easy for him to fabricate these episodes.

I FIND that Cerutti took advantage of C.B.'s vulnerability and carried on a sexual affair with her while she was his active client. In particular, he engaged in sexual relations with her on December 23, 1994, January 4, 1995, February 3 and 23, 1995, and March 24, 1995 and falsely reported those dates as working sessions in order to be compensated for services which he did not provide. Cerutti's story contradicts the known facts and the written record. Originally he claimed that C.B. was not his client in 1994 and 1995, then he changed his story and claimed that all his encounters took place during lunch, notwithstanding that his own itineraries prove otherwise. He also maintained that C.B. was a co-worker, when the records clearly demonstrate that she was his client. Furthermore, Cerutti's attitude, typified by his contention that the inexperienced C.B. seduced him and his callous remark that she "accepted her role or position," betray his selfish and calculating treatment of the blind woman who genuinely loved him. In contrast, C.B. gave largely consistent testimony, was able to pinpoint many of the crucial dates by reference to other important events, and her sincerity was buttressed by her visible embarrassment at having to reveal the intimate details of her private life.

Threats Against a Client

By all accounts, the relationship between Cerutti and C.B. came to an abrupt end on September 19, 1996, when Cerutti told her "the good news" that his wife was pregnant and C.B. informed him that she too was pregnant with his baby. A year earlier, according to C.B., Cerutti had offered to have a baby with her. Now, however, he demanded that she have an abortion. Although C.B. "wanted that baby more than anything," she was unable to care for a baby alone. Despite religious reservations, C.B. decided to go ahead with an abortion. After that meeting, she never saw Cerutti again. Her parents shunned her because of her pregnancy out-of-wedlock. Cerutti testified that he felt like C.B. "tricked me and got pregnant on purpose to force me to leave my wife and child."

Subsequent contacts between the two of them took place by telephone. C.B. wanted the abortion performed by her own doctor, which would cost $3,000, but Cerutti wanted her to have it done at a clinic. C.B. did not have enough money to pay for the abortion by herself. At first, Cerutti promised to help pay for the abortion, but later he backed away from his promise. Cerutti left five separate messages on C.B.'s telephone answering machine on October 13, 1996.[3] In his chilling first message, Cerutti announced that, "I can't help you out," threatened to tell her family an untrue story that C.B. had been engaging in sex with her sister's husband, and concluded his message by wishing her "good luck." Even his own attorney concedes that Cerutti exhibited "poor judgment" by threatening to "make up a sordid tale about her pregnancy."

[3]Cerutti's attorney objects that there was a missing sixth message recorded on C.B.'s answering machine on October 13, 1996. However, there is no reason to believe that the sixth message was from Cerutti or had anything to do with this case.

Acknowledging that he had invented the malicious story about sex with her brother-in-law, Cerutti contended that he made the threat in retaliation for what he described in one of his telephone messages as C.B.'s "idle threats." Making it sound like she was blackmailing him rather than desperately pleading for help, Cerutti claimed that C.B. had threatened to tell his wife about their love affair. C.B. denies ever threatening to tell Cerutti's wife. Instead, she said that his "idle threat" remark probably refers to her telephone message that, if he was unwilling to contribute to the abortion, she would keep the baby and seek child support.

Ultimately, Cerutti changed his mind and decided to give her half of the cost of the abortion. The remaining messages from Cerutti dealt mainly with arrangements for delivery of the money. As a result of Cerutti's false accusation, C.B. was afraid of him and did not want to meet him alone. She had become aware of "a whole side I never saw of him." Therefore, she asked Cerutti to place the money in an envelope and slip it under the door of her neighbor. When she retrieved the envelope the next day and opened it in the presence of a co-worker, it contained only $1,100.[4] C.B. had an abortion on October 15, 1995 at Valley Hospital in Ridgewood. One of her friends went with her, but Cerutti did not come to the hospital. In his last telephone message to her on October 13, 1995, he had asked her to do him a favor: "Don't call me and I won't call you."

I FIND that Cerutti threatened to destroy C.B.'s reputation when she requested his help in resolving their mutual problem. Actual tape recordings of the telephone messages left by Cerutti establish that he made the threat to avoid responsibility for his own actions. These were not private conversations that C.B. secretly recorded without his consent. Rather, they were messages which Cerutti left on her answering machine in full knowledge that his words would be recorded. Moreover, Cerutti readily admits that the story he threatened to tell was a complete lie. Unfortunately, his threat had the intended effect of causing C.B. to be fearful of him. While the threat did not deter her from reporting his activities to the appropriate authorities, it did put her in fear for her personal safety.

Conclusions of Law

Based on the foregoing facts and the applicable law, I CONCLUDE that the Commission has sustained its tenure charge of unbecoming conduct against Cerutti and that the appropriate penalty is dismissal.

N.J.S.A. 18A:60-1.2 confers tenure on "[a]ny teacher or other certified individual serving in a teaching capacity in a State institution within . . . the Department of Human Services . . . who has completed at least two academic years of teaching service or its equivalent within three calendar years with satisfactory evaluations." Tenure protects teachers from arbitrary dismissal for "unfounded, flimsy or political reasons." Spiewak v. Rutherford Bd. of Educ., 90 N.J. 63, 73 (1982). It is designed to aid in the establishment of "a competent and efficient school system" by affording to teachers a measure of security in the ranks they hold after years of service. Viemeister v. Prospect Park Bd. of Educ., 5 N.J. Super. 215, 218 (App. Div. 1949). Toward that end, N.J.S.A. 18A:60-2 provides that no tenured instructor shall be dismissed or reduced in compensation "except for inefficiency, incapacity, unbecoming conduct or other just cause." Additional procedural safeguards, including the right to a list of charges, a sworn statement of evidence and an impartial hearing, are written into the law.

Proofs establish by a preponderance of the credible evidence that Cerutti abused his public trust and betrayed the confidence of his female student. Expert opinion shows the unique dependence of a blind client on her mobility instructor. Not only did Cerutti take improper advantage of his position to engage in sexual relations with his client, but also he falsified official records to cover up his misdeeds and, when faced with exposure of his conduct, he threatened his client in an unsuccessful attempt to keep her quiet. "Unbecoming conduct," is an elastic term broadly defined to include "any conduct, which has a tendency to destroy public respect for [public] employees and competence in the operation of [public] services." Karins v. City of Atlantic City, 152 N.J. 532, 554 (1998). It is sufficient that the complained-of conduct and its attending circumstances be such as to offend publicly accepted standards of decency. Karins, at 555. Improper touching for sexual gratification, of the type proven here, unquestionably constitutes conduct unbecoming a teacher within the meaning of the tenure law. In re Tenure Hearing of Borrelli, 91 N.J.A.R. 2d (Vol. 4) 77 (Comm'r of Educ.).

Factors to be considered in assessing penalty include the nature and gravity of the offense; any extenuating or aggravating circumstances; and the effect on the maintenance of discipline and the proper administration of the school system. In re Fulcomer, 93 N.J. Super. 404, 420-422 (App. Div. 1967). Courts recognize that a single instance of misconduct, if sufficiently flagrant, is enough to justify removal of an unfit teacher. Redcay v. St. Bd. of Educ., 130 N.J.L. 369 (Sup. Ct. 1943), aff'd 131 N.J.L. 326 (E. & A. 1944). Here Cerutti's behavior was especially heinous because he sought to conceal his guilt by falsifying public records and threatening his client. Such conduct is strongly condemned as "demeaning to the personality and interests of young female students." In re Tenure Hearing of Apkarian, 1986 S.L.D. 1889, 1914 (Comm'r of Educ. July 16, 1986), aff'd 1985 S.L.D. 1916 (St. Bd. Sept. 3, 1986), aff'd No. A-927-8678 (App. Div. No. 20, 1987).

Sexual contact by a teacher with pupils is a violation of the teacher-pupil relationship and may have life long consequences. In re Tenure Hearing of Gregg, 1989 S.L.D. 1803 (Comm'r of Educ. June 2, 1989). Recently, the Commissioner reiterated the long-standing educational policy that "teachers who resort to inappropriate physical contact with those in their charge must expect to face dismissal or other severe penalty." Borrelli, supra, at 85. Support for this "black letter of law" is derived from a long line of cases, including In re Tenure Hearing of Cooke, 1991 S.L.D. 1381 (Comm'r of Ed. Aug. 30, 1991); In re Gwaley, 1986 S.L.D. 168 (Comm'r of Educ. Jan. 30. 1986), aff'd 1986 S.L.D. 196 (St. Bd. June 4, 1986); and Elizabeth Bd. of Educ.

v. Pasquale, 1984 S.L.D. 1 (Comm'r of Ed. Jan. 9, 1984), modified 1984 S.L.D. 34 (St. Bd. Sept. 5, 1984). Cerutti's past record includes a written warning in February 1994 for interfering with a co-worker and a three-day suspension in April 1996 for disrespect to a supervisor. Coupled with his past record of violations, the circumstances of the current offense are so detrimental to the welfare of his client and to his continued effectiveness as an instructor that termination is necessary.

Order

It is ORDERED that the tenure charge of unbecoming conduct is sustained.

And it is further ORDERED that John Cerutti is dismissed from his tenured position as an instructor employed by the Commission.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF JOHN CERUTTI,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
NEW JERSEY STATE DEPARTMENT	:	DECISION
OF HUMAN SERVICES.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Respondent requested and was granted an extension of time within which to file exceptions in this matter and such exceptions were timely filed in accordance with the established schedule. Reply/cross exceptions filed by counsel for the Department on December 31, 1998, in response to exceptions which, it is indicated were faxed to her on December 15, 1998, were untimely, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4(d), and will, therefore, not be considered herein.

Respondent's exceptions essentially recast and reiterate his arguments with respect to credibility advanced before the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) below. Here, he contends that the ALJ's recommended decision is solely based on the testimony of only one witness, C.B., despite her testimony being inconsistent and "riddled with contradictions." (Respondent's Exceptions at p. 7) Respondent presents a recitation of ten specific instances which, he avers, demonstrate that C.B.'s testimony is unreliable and motivated by personal animus against respondent, and he, therefore, requests the Commissioner to reject the ALJ's credibility determinations and reinstate him to his position. (Id.)

Upon careful and independent review of the entire record in this matter, which includes transcripts of the hearing conducted at the OAL[1], and the exceptions filed by respondent, the Commissioner affirms the determination of the ALJ, for the reasons well expressed in the initial decision, that respondent's actions, as proven, constitute conduct unbecoming a teacher necessitating his removal from his tenured position. Notwithstanding respondent's exception assertions to the contrary, the Commissioner finds no basis, either in the transcripts or in the record as a whole, to challenge the ALJ's credibility determinations, being fully satisfied that the ALJ's recitation of testimony is both accurate and thorough, and that he carefully measured conflicts, inconsistencies and potential biases in deciding which testimony to credit.

Accordingly, the Commissioner affirms the initial decision of the OAL and hereby orders that John Cerutti be dismissed from his tenured position with the Department of Human Services, the Commission for the Blind and Visually Impaired, as of the date of this decision. This matter shall be transmitted to the State Board of Examiners, pursuant to N.J.A.C 6:11-3.6, for action, as that body deems appropriate, against respondent's teaching certificate.[2]

IT IS SO ORDERED.

BEFORE: KEN R. SPRINGER, ALJ:

Statement of Facts

This matter involves tenure charges of inefficiency certified by the Teaneck Board of Education ("Board") against Ronald Shaw ("Shaw") under the Tenure Employees Hearing Law, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 to -18.1.

Ronald Shaw is a tenured teaching staff member employed by the Board. On October 27, 1995, the school administration filed tenure charges of inefficiency against Shaw. Soon thereafter, Shaw began an extended unpaid leave of absence from the district and returned on February 2, 1998. By resolution adopted on July 6, 1998, the Board revived the earlier tenure charges and added additional charges of inefficiency relating to Shaw's performance after his return to work. Basically, the charges allege the Shaw committed various acts of inefficiency, including: failure to utilize positive and effective teaching techniques in his classroom; failure to properly organize, manage and control his classroom; failure to demonstrate effective techniques of lesson planning; failure to implement administrative directives; and engaging in unprofessional and insubordinate conduct. As a result of its determination, the Board suspended Shaw, without pay, effective July 6, 1998.

On July 10, 1998, the Board filed its written tenure charges with the Commissioner of Education ("Commissioner"). Respondent filed an answer on July 24, 1998. Subsequently, on July 27, 1998, the Commissioner referred this matter to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") for hearing as a contested case.

Both parties have agreed to a proposed settlement, subject to approval by the Commissioner. (A copy of the proposed settlement is annexed hereto.) In accordance with the decision of the State Board of Education in Cardonic v. Brooklawn Bd. of Educ., 193 S.L.D. ___ (St. Bd. April 6, 1983), the record of any proposed settlement must include:

> . . . the nature of the charges, circumstances justifying the settlement consent or authorization by the Board of Education and the teacher to the proposed agreement, the Administrative Law Judge's finding that the teacher entered into the agreement with a full understanding of his rights, and [a finding] that the agreement is consistent with the public interest.

On December 4, 1998, the OAL held a public hearing on the issue of whether or not the proposed settlement should be accepted. Counsel for both parties set forth on the record the reasons why settlement would be in the public interest. Shaw testified that he fully understood and voluntarily agreed to the terms of settlement. In addition, the parties have prepared a stipulation of settlement, which is attached and fully incorporated in this decision. The Board approved the settlement terms on December 6, 1998.

Based on my review of the records and the testimony at the hearing, I FIND that the proposed settlement is consistent with the public interest for the following reasons:

1. Ronald Shaw has been employed as a science teacher by the Board since September 1985. Prior to that, he had served as a teacher for many years in other school districts.

2. It is anticipated that the hearing in this matter would be protracted and costly. The OAL had scheduled the matter to be heard on seven separate hearing dates in December 1998. Board proofs would consist of voluminous written exhibits pertaining to events spanning an eight-year period. Board counsel also intended to call four or five fact witnesses.

3. At the hearing, the Board expressed its considered judgment that money which would be expended to prosecute this case to final conclusion could be better "funneled back into instruction to benefit youngsters."

4. In addition, the Board has submitted the certification of its assistant superintendent, A. Spencer Denham, setting forth why it believes the settlement is in the public interest. (A copy of this certification is annexed hereto.)

5. Under the proposed terms of settlement, Shaw will resign from his position effective May 15, 1999 and, in the meantime, will remain on terminal leave. In exchange, he would receive his salary from December 4, 1998 through May 15, 1999. The Board will withdraw its appeal in a pending unemployment-compensation case and Shaw will give the Board a general release for any and all liability.

6. Given the best of circumstances, it is unlikely that the tenure hearing would be concluded and transcripts prepared until the end of January. Then the administrative law judge would have forty-five days to prepare an initial decision and the Commissioner would have an additional forty-five days for review and issuance of a final decision.

7. At the hearing, Shaw responded appropriately to questions and was not under any emotional stress or duress. Before entering into this agreement, Shaw fully understood his rights and had an adequate opportunity to consult with legal counsel.

. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy.

I CONCLUDE that the terms of the settlement are in the public interest.

It is ORDERED that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that the proceedings are hereby concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE CHARGES AGAINST RONALD SHAW, A TEACHING STAFF MEMBER OF THE BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF TEANECK, BERGEN COUNTY	STATE OF NEW JERSEY OFFICE OF ADMINISTRATIVE LAW OAL DOCKET NO. EDU 7246-98 AGENCY REFERENCE NO. 227-7/98 CERTIFICATION OF A. SPENCER DENHAM

I, A. Spencer Denham, of full age, hereby certify as follows:

1. At all relevant times, I have been the Assistant Superintendent of Schools of the Board of Education of the Township of Teaneck, Bergen County (hereinafter "Board").

2. This certification is submitted in support of the Board's request that this Court and the Commissioner of Education approve the proposed settlement in this matter, as described in the attached Stipulation of Settlement (Exhibit A) and further approve the resignation of Ronald Shaw, effective May 15, 1999.

3. On October 27, 1995, I filed tenure charges of inefficiency with the Board against Respondent, Ronald Shaw (hereinafter "Mr. Shaw"), a tenured teacher employed in the Teaneck Public Schools. As the ninety day period for correction was to begin, Mr. Shaw advised the Board of a disabling condition relating to stress anxiety and began, thereafter, a leave of absenc This leave continued until February 2, 1998, when he returned to work. The tenure charges of inefficiency against Mr. Shaw were re-filed on February 13, 1998, with a new ninety day period for remediation.

4. After having determined that Mr. Shaw had not remedied the charges of inefficiency, on or about July 9, 1998, I filed tenure charges with the Commissioner of Education against Mr. Shaw. These tenure charges were primary charges of inefficiency and a single charge of insubordination. There was nothing in the tenure charges or in the statement of evidence alleging that Mr. Shaw engaged in any type of misconduct with students, or unbecoming conduct relating to fraud, dishonesty or moral turpitude.

4. The gravamen of the tenure charges is that a teacher with more than a decade of experience became deficient in his teaching performance. Mr. Shaw denied those charges.

5. On December 4, 1998, Mr. Shaw submitted a letter of resignation to me (see Exhibit B). On December 9, 1998, the Board passed a resolution accepting the letter of resignation of Mr. Shaw, effective May 15, 1999 (see Exhibit C). The Board's acceptance of the letter of resignation was subject to the Commissioner's approval.

6. The Board believes that acceptance of the letter of resignation is in the public interest as considerable expenditure of public funds would be required to pursue tenure charges herein. The tenure charges involve voluminous evidence accumulated over more than five years. Seven days of hearing were scheduled requiring considerable expenditure of time by Board administrators. Costs for legal fees and transcript charges associated with a tenure hearing would be substantial.

7. The goal of the Teaneck School District is to remove a teaching staff member whose performance, in its judgment, has fallen below the standards and expectations of the Board of Education. Settlement with Mr. Shaw's resignation achieves that goal with certainty. Settlement also saves the district tens of thousands of dollars in litigation costs.

8. The Board and Mr. Shaw also understand that this matter will be referred to the New Jersey Board of Examiners, who will have jurisdiction regarding the teaching certificate of Mr. Shaw.

9. The Board has not agreed to provide any financial incentives to Mr. Shaw and, therefore, believes that Mr. Shaw will receive no extraordinary benefit as a result of this settlement.

10. After reviewing the factors referenced above, the Board and I have determined that the proposed settlement will be in the public interest and respectfully request that the Commissioner of Education approve the settlement.

IN THE MATTER OF	:	BEFORE THE SCHOOL ETHICS COMMISSION
LAWRENCE JAMES, CHESILHURST BOARD OF EDUCATION, CAMDEN COUNTY	:	Docket No.: C10-98
	:	DECISION

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This matter arises from a claim that respondent Lawrence James, a member of the Chesilhurst Board of Education (Board), violated the School Ethics Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et seq. Specifically, Complainant Wadia Alwan, also a member of the Board, alleged that Mr. James violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(b) by using his office to influence the hiring of an insurance broker, Associated Insurance Management, owned by the Mayor of Haddonfield in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(a), (b), (c) and (f). The second paragraph of the complaint alleged that Mr. James switched the board's computer software contract from Edmunds to ICS, a company that is owned by Mr. James's friend who sits on the Camden County Human Relations Commission, which he serves as Executive Director in violation N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(a), (b), (c) and (f). The third paragraph alleged that Mr. James transferred school funds from First Union Bank to Commerce Bank when First Union denied Mr. James a home equity loan for the sum he requested in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(f). The fourth and fifth paragraphs of the complaint alleged sex discrimination against one of the employees of the Chesilhurst School District and a violation of the Sunshine Law.

At its meeting of November 24, 1998, the School Ethics Commission found probable cause to credit the allegation that Mr. James violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(b) of the School Ethics Act by using his position to secure privileges for himself with First Fidelity, now First Union, Bank. The Commission found no probable cause and dismissed the remainder of the charges in paragraphs one, two, four and five. The Commission found that the material facts were not in dispute in the matter on which it found probable cause and therefore invited Mr. James to file a written submission setting forth the reasons that the Commission should not find him in violation of the School Ethics Act.

Mr. James filed his written submission on December 2, 1998. The Commission reviewed his response and considered it in rendering this decision on December 15, 1998. For the reasons set forth below, the Commission now concludes that Mr. James violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(b) of the act and recommends that the Commissioner of Education impose a sanction of censure.

STATEMENT OF FACTS

The Commission finds the following material facts to be undisputed regarding he charge on which it found probable cause.

Regarding the First Union matter, the Commission found that Mr. James did not switch the Board's accounts from First Union because the bank turned him down for a home equity loan as originally alleged in the complaint. In fact, Mr. James did receive a home equity loan, and there are other plausible reasons for the change of banks. However, when First Union was First Fidelity, it turned Mr. James down for an unsecured loan. At that time, Mr. James asked the then Business Administrator for the Board, Abdi Gass, to intervene with the bank on his behalf. Mr. Gass then wrote a letter dated November 14, 1995, which set forth that Mr. James has been instrumental in making sure that the bank remains the custodian and fiscal agent for the schools' numerous accounts. It further indicated that the bank should reciprocate by advancing Mr. James a personal unsecured line of credit. The letter requested assistance to secure approval of the loan. It is directed to the head of unsecured loan processing. The letter copies Mr. James and Mr. Gass. Mr. Gass presented it to the Vice President of the bank and asked her to put the letter on her letterhead, sign it and forward it to the employee who could secure approval of Mr. James's loan. She refused to do so. Mr. James did not acquire the loan.

ANALYSIS

The Commission must now determine whether Mr. James violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(b) of the School Ethics Act. This subsection sets forth:

> No school official shall use or attempt to use his official position to secure unwarranted privileges, advantages or employment for himself, members of his immediate family, or others.

Mr. James denies that he asked Mr. Gass to write a letter, but admits to asking him to intercede on his behalf. Mr. James states that he never approved or agreed to what was done. The Commission accepts Mr. James's representation that he asked Mr. Gass to intercede, but did not ask him to write the letter. The content of the letter was apparently Mr. Gass's interpretation of Mr. James's request. Nevertheless, the Commission finds the request in and of itself to be inappropriate and in violation of the act.

The Commission strongly discourages board members from seeking favors from employees of the Board, especially personal favors such as this. When this conduct is coupled with the fact that the favor requested is to intercede with the bank at which the Board's accounts are held, it becomes clear that Mr. James was attempting to secure unwarranted privileges for himself in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(b) when he asked Mr. Gass to intercede on his behalf.

DECISION

For the foregoing reasons, the Commission finds that Mr. James violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(b) by asking the Board's Business Administrator to intercede for him in acquiring an unsecured loan from the bank that held the Board's accounts. The Commission finds that the appropriate penalty for this violation is a censure. This penalty takes into account that using one's position to secure unwarranted privileges is a gross violation of the act. A censure will inform the public of his conduct and put other board members on notice that there will be serious consequences when a Board member seeks such an inappropriate favor from an employee of the Board. The Commission also recognizes that a harsher penalty would have been more appropriate if the evidence was clear that he instructed Mr. Gass to write the letter in question.

Upon adoption by a formal resolution of the School Ethics Commission, this matter shall be transmitted to the Commissioner of Education for action on the Commission's recommendation for sanction only, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29. Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which the Commission's decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written comments on the recommended sanction with the Commissioner of Education, c/o Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, NJ 08625, marked "Attention: Comments on Ethics Commission Sanction." A copy of any comments filed must be sent to the School Ethics Commission and all other parties.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF THEODORE PRUSAKOWSKI, SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE TOWNSHIP OF LAWRENCE, MERCER COUNTY.

STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION

DECISION

Decision on motion by the Commissioner of Education, February 22, 1999

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, June 9, 1999

Decision on motion by the State Board of Education, October 6, 1999

For the Petitioner-Respondent, Parker, McCay & Criscuolo (James F. Schwerin, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Appellant, Bergman & Barrett (Michael T. Barrett, Esq., of Counsel)

The Board of Education of the Township of Lawrence (hereinafter "Board") certified tenure charges of incapacity and excessive absenteeism against Gregory Vereen and Theodore Prusakowski (hereinafter "respondents"), tenured custodians in the district. As stipulated by the parties, Vereen had been employed by the Board as a custodian since October 1979. He suffered injuries to both of his knees in June 1996 while on the job and received medical treatment authorized by the Board's workers' compensation carrier. It was further stipulated that his absences were related to the workers' compensation matter. He returned to work, in a limited capacity, in late 1998 or early 1999.[1]

On February 1, 1999, the Administrative Law Judge ("ALJ") issued an order dismissing the tenure charges of excessive absenteeism. The Commissioner granted the Board's request for interlocutory review of that determination, and, on February 22, 1999, he set aside the ALJ's order and directed that the matter proceed to a hearing on the merits of the Board's charges for both incapacity and excessive absenteeism.

On April 23, 1999, following a hearing, the ALJ concluded that the Board had demonstrated by a preponderance of the credible evidence that the extended absences of the respondents rose to the level of unbecoming conduct. The ALJ found that the respondents' absences had had a negative effect on the operation of the district's schools, and he concluded that the appropriate penalty for such conduct was dismissal of the respondents from their tenured positions. In addition, the ALJ concluded that the respondents were incapacitated as a matter of law unless they could demonstrate to the contrary in the immediate future.

On June 9, 1999, the Commissioner of Education adopted the ALJ's recommended decision and directed that the respondents be dismissed from their positions. In so doing, the Commissioner observed that respondent Vereen "has not returned to the District in full capacity, although he is, apparently, back at work, 'on a modified or work hardening schedule to determine whether he will be able to return to his full time duties.' (Respondents' Letter Memorandum, March 10, 1999 at p. 1) There is no indication in the record when, or even whether, Respondent Vereen will be able to resume his duties in full capacity." Commissioner's Decision, slip op. at 12-13.

[1] Although the Board suspended Vereen from his custodial position when it voted to certify the instant tenure charges to the Commissioner in September 1998, the record indicates that he returned to work on a part-time basis shortly thereafter. According to the counsel for the respondents, "Vereen is back at work now, on a modified or work hardening schedule to determine whether he will be able to return to his full time duties....[T]he petitioner Board is not paying any salary to either respondent and has not for some time. They are being paid under workers' compensation." Letter from Michael T. Barrett, Esq. to Administrative Law Judge Bruce R. Campbell, dated March 10, 1999.

The Commissioner agreed with the ALJ that the Board had demonstrated a negative effect from the respondents' absences and that the appropriate penalty was dismissal of the respondents from their tenured employment, "notwithstanding that their absenteeism constituted a legitimate use of sick leave and the possibility remains that one, or both, of them might ultimately, at some point not presently foreseeable, once again become physically capable of performing their duties." Id. at 13. In addition, the Commissioner noted that although the ALJ had equated excessive absenteeism with unbecoming conduct, the Board had not charged the respondents with unbecoming conduct.

The respondents filed the instant appeal to the State Board. Prusakowski subsequently withdrew his appeal. Consequently, the matter before us is now limited to the appeal filed by respondent Vereen. In a decision dated October 6, 1999, we directed that the record be supplemented with documentation from Vereen's treating physician "with regard to his medical status and ability to return to full-time employment in the district at the time of his dismissal by the Commissioner of Education."

On October 18, 1999, Vereen submitted the requested documentation, which included reports from his treating physician, Dr. Eric Gokcen. In a response filed thereto, the Board maintained that "such medical information is irrelevant to the excessive abseenteeism charge which was the prime basis for Vereen's dismissal by the Commissioner." Letter from James F. Schwerin, Esq., dated October 19, 1999.

After a thorough review of the record before us as supplemented on appeal,[2] we reverse the determination of the Commissioner to dismiss Vereen from his tenured employment.

The medical reports prepared by Dr. Gokcen, which were included in the supplemental materials submitted on behalf of respondent Vereen, show a steady improvement in Vereen's condition following knee surgery in 1998.[3] Dr. Gokcen cleared Vereen to return to work part-time in December 1998. In a letter to the counsel for the Board in January 1999, Dr. Gokcen confirmed that Vereen "will be able to return to his full physical capacity at some point in the foreseeable future. Presently, both he and I and his rehabilitation nurse are in the process of progressively getting him back to increasing levels of employment. Please note that with the type of surgery that he had, it is not uncommon to take six to twelve months for return to work status."

On April 7, 1999, Dr. Gokcen recommended that Vereen increase his work hours to five days a week, four hours per day. In a report dated June 2, 1999, Dr. Gokcen recommended that Vereen "continu[e] with his work duties and increas[e] them to one day a week at eight hours and remaining days at four hours per day." In a report dated June 30, 1999, Dr. Gokcen indicated that Vereen "appears to be doing fairly well. He was able to tolerate 24 hrs. of work per week....I feel that he may be able to increase the hours as his knee continues to improve and I anticipate that the knee should continue to improve for the next year."

[2] We note that the record before us does not include a transcript of the hearing held in the Office of Administrative Law in this matter.

[3] Counsel for Vereen relates in his appeal brief that: "Respondent was initially injured in June, 1996. He underwent authorized conservative treatment related to his right knee, the situs of the injury. When that treatment was ineffective, surgery was recommended. The Petitioner's Workers' Compensation carrier refused to provide surgery. Respondent had to fight for months to obtain the authorization for surgery. Finally, Respondent was compelled to apply to the division of Workers' Compensation for court approval of the surgery which was obtained in November of 1997." Appeal Brief, at 7.

In determining the appropriate penalty, it is necessary to consider the nature and gravity of the offense under all the circumstances involved, mitigating and extenuating circumstances, and any injurious effect the conduct may have on the maintenance of discipline and the proper administration of the school district. In re Fulcomer, 93 N.J. Super. 404 (App. Div. 1967). Although excessive absenteeism may be found to warrant dismissal of a tenured staff member even when the absences in question were for legitimate medical or health reasons, e.g., State-Operated School District of Jersey City v. Pellecchio, decided by the Commissioner of Education, 92 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 267, aff'd by the State Board of Education, 93 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 30, we cannot ignore the fact that Vereen's absences in this instance were the result of injuries he had suffered on the job and that he was receiving medical treatment authorized by the Board's workers' compensation carrier.

The record further reveals that Vereen had returned to work on a part-time basis and that he was gradually increasing his work hours pursuant to his doctor's instructions. There is no indication in the record before us that he was uncooperative or otherwise recalcitrant in his dealings with the Board during the period of his absence. See In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Robert C. Bates, decided by the State Board of Education, December 3, 1986, aff'd, Docket #A-2700-86T7 (App. Div. 1987). It is also noteworthy that Vereen had been employed by the Board for 17 years at the time he was injured on the job in 1996, and the instant tenure charges relate solely to absences resulting from those injuries. Finally, while we do not diminish the importance of the Board's ability to maintain its schools, we recognize that Vereen was not a teaching staff member and that his absences did not directly impact upon instruction in the district.

Therefore, upon consideration of all the circumstances involved, we conclude that dismissing Vereen from his tenured position for excessive absenteeism would not be appropriate in this instance.

We turn therefore to the tenure charge alleging incapacity. "'Incapacity' as identified in N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 relates to the inability to perform a position, irrespective of the cause of the inability to work." In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Stanley, decided by the Commissioner of Education, 95 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 495, 498. Under the circumstances, we find that the Board has failed to demonstrate by a preponderance of the credible evidence that Vereen is incapable of fulfilling his duties as a custodian. See In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of William Gramlich, decided by the Commissioner of Education, June 27, 1986, aff'd by the State Board of Education, November 7, 1986, aff'd, Docket #A-1934-86T8 (App. Div. 1988).

As previously stated, the medical reports in the supplemented record reveal that Vereen had been making steady progress towards recovering from his injuries and had gradually been increasing his work hours. The prognosis offered by Dr. Gokcen was for a return to full physical capacity. Compare with In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Margaret McCoy, decided by the Commissioner of Education, 93 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 297 (incapacity demonstrated where there was little prospect for improvement of teacher's condition). We stress in that regard that the Board has provided no evidence other than the fact of Vereen's absence to support its charge of incapacity. Indeed, the Board acknowledges that Vereen returned to work on a part-time basis, and it does not contend that he was not capable of fulfilling his duties during that period. Nor has the Board provided any evidence contrary to Dr. Gokcen's reports that would indicate that Vereen is not capable of making a full recovery from his injuries. Under these circumstances, we conclude that incapacity has not been demonstrated.[4]

Hence, on the basis of the record as supplemented on appeal, we reverse the decision of the Commissioner to dismiss respondent Vereen from his tenured employment. We therefore direct the Board to reinstate Vereen to his tenured custodial position with back pay and other emoluments, less mitigation, which would include any moneys he received as the result of the Workers' Compensation proceedings. See, supra, note 1.

Attorney exceptions are noted.

[4] We reject the Board's contention in its exceptions to the Report of our Legal Committee that an absence of more than one year should create a presumption of incapacity and that the burden of proof in such cases "should shift to the employee to demonstrate a reasonable likelihood of ability to perform the job duties in the reasonably near future." Board's Exceptions, at 3. We stress that it is well established that a district board has the burden of proving the truthfulness of tenure charges by a preponderance of the credible evidence. KATHERINE MALLETTE,	:
JACKSON TOWNSHIP	:
BOARD OF EDUCATION	:	DECISION
OCEAN COUNTY	:

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This matter arises from a complaint filed by Jackson Township Board members Joy Ann Harmer, Marvin Krakower, Chuck Murphy and Twila Rust on February 23, 1998. Therein they alleged that Katherine Mallette, a Jackson Township board member, participated in discussions and closed session meetings concerning the Board's purchase of property when one of the parcels was owned by her brother-in-law in violation of the School Ethics Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et seq. They also alleged that she wrongfully participated in discussions concerning the selection of an auditor. The complainants also alleged that Board members Ted Koch and Stephen Chisholm violated the act when they assisted Ms. Mallette in trying to persuade the Board to purchase her brother-in-law's property. Last, the complainants alleged that Katherine Mallette and Ted Koch violated the act when they met with the Transit Workers Union (TWU).

Ms. Mallette filed her answer with the School Ethics Commission on May 29, 1997, admitting to participating in some discussions, but denying that she violated the School Ethics Act. Respondents Ted Koch and Stephen Chisholm also denied having violated the act in their answers. The Commission advised the parties that it would discuss this matter at its July meeting. All of the parties attended the meeting in July except for Stephen Chisholm, who became unable to attend when the Commission had to change the date of the meeting to July 30, 1998.

At the Commission's October 26, 1998 meeting, the Commission found no information upon which to base a finding that Ms. Mallette attempted to secure unwarranted privileges or advantages for her brother-in-law. Therefore, it found no probable cause and dismissed the charge that Ms. Mallette violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(b). The Commission similarly dismissed the charges against Ms. Mallette regarding her vote on the auditor and the meeting with the TWU as not setting forth facts upon which it could base a finding of probable cause. In addition, the Commission found no probable cause and dismissed all charges against Ted Koch and Stephen Chisholm. However, the Commission found probable cause to credit the allegations that Ms.

Mallette violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) when she participated in Board meetings in which her brother-in-law's property was discussed on July 29, 1997, December 16, 1997.

The Commission determined that the material facts of the case were undisputed. Thus, rather than transmit the case to the Office of Administrative Law for a hearing, the Commission invited the parties to file written statements setting forth whether Ms. Mallette should be found in violation of the School Ethics Act. The Commission received timely statements from Ms. Mallette and Mr. Murphy, on behalf of the complainants, and considered them in rendering this decision at its meeting of December 15, 1998. The Commission also received a written statement from Mr. Chisholm and considered it in rendering this decision as well.

FACTS

The Commission finds that the facts upon which it bases its finding of probable cause are undisputed. Respondent Katherine Mallette is married to the brother of George Glory's wife. Mr. Glory is thus her brother-in-law. George Glory's corporation, Pleasant Grove, Inc., owns 60 acres of property on West Pleasant Grove Road. When the Board was seeking property on which to build a school in 1997, the Board considered Mr. Glory's land in addition to several other parcels. Ms. Mallette participated in all closed session and public meetings and discussions concerning the Board's purchase of property. Ms. Mallette specifically participated in meetings on the purchase of property in which Mr. Glory's land was either directly or indirectly discussed on the dates of July 29, 1997 and December 16, 1997.

As set forth in the procedural history in its probable cause determination, the Commission previously rejected the complainants' argument that Ms. Mallette should not have participated in any discussions involving property, whether Mr. Glory's land was discussed or not. Complainants ask the Commission to reconsider this conclusion and its statement in its probable cause determination that because Ms. Mallette was board president at the time she should have been able to participate on an issue as important as the location of a new school. The Commission declines to reconsider its prior conclusions and now proceeds to determine whether there is sufficient information from which to conclude that Ms. Mallette violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) when she participated in discussions concerning Mr. Glory's land.

The Commission must now determine whether Ms. Mallette acted in her official capacity in a matter in which she had a personal involvement that might reasonably be expected to impair her objectivity or independence of judgment as prohibited by section 24(c). Ms. Mallette makes several points in her response to the finding of probable cause. First, she corrects some facts set forth in the probable cause determination. She indicates that she and Mr. Glory do not share the same father-in-law as the Commission set forth and that Mr. Glory did not say that they had known each other since the second grade. Mr. Glory's testimony may have been inaccurately recorded. Since neither fact is material to the ultimate finding in the case and Ms. Mallette says that she met Mr. Glory when she was engaged to her husband in approximately September 1981, the Commission accepts her representations as fact.

Next, Ms. Mallette charges Mr. Krakower with lying under oath when he stated that he did not know that she was related to Mr. Glory. The Commission recognizes that there is a clear dispute as to whether Ms. Mallette advised the Board at its July 29, 1997 meeting that she is related to Mr. Glory. Complainants say that she did not advise the Board, but she and the other named respondents state that she did. The complainants have asked in their submission that the Commission interview more witnesses in order to resolve this issue. However, the Commission declines to do so. The Commission did not and could not base its finding of probable cause on Ms. Mallette's alleged failure to disclose her relationship to Mr. Glory. A failure to disclose a relationship in and of itself does not constitute a violation of the act unless it is the failure to disclose it on a disclosure form pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-25. Therefore, this dispute is not material to the Commission's determination of whether Ms. Mallette violated section 24(c) of the School Ethics Act.

Ms. Mallette makes several other points. She takes issue with the Commission's statement that her agreement not to vote on George Glory's property is a tacit admission that she knew that she had a conflict of interest. She states that she agreed not to vote on Mr. Glory's property because of how it may be perceived in public; however, she believed that she had a right to vote. Further, she denies having advocated for the purchase of Mr. Glory's property at any Board meetings, particularly the ones noted. She then proceeds to explain her participation in each of the meetings as it relates to the discussion of Mr. Glory's property in an attempt to show the Commission that George Glory's land was not discussed in any of the meetings. The Commission finds Ms. Mallette's arguments to be persuasive only with regard to the meeting of January 5, 1998.

Regarding Ms. Mallette's argument that she believed that she could vote, but agreed not to vote because of the public's perception, the Commission has stated many times that the public's perception is extremely important in determining whether the act has been violated. Section 24(c) is phrased so that the emphasis is on whether the public might reasonably expect to impair a school official's objectivity, not whether the school official believes that she can be objective. Further, the Legislature's findings and declarations set forth at N.J.S.A. 18A:12-22(a) that:

> In our representative form of government it is essential that the conduct of members of local boards of education and local school administrators hold the respect and confidence of the people. These board members and administrators must avoid conduct which is in violation of > their public trust or which creates a justifiable impression among the public that such trust is being violated.

Thus, the Commission recognizes that the purpose of the act is to foster public trust in school officials and this requires giving due consideration to the public's perception. With this in mind, the Commission will discuss the dates of each of the meetings on which the Commission found probable cause.

At the July 29, 1997 Board meeting, Ms. Mallette says that at this meeting the West Pleasant Grove parcels were introduced and the minutes reflect that the parcel could not be considered for the construction of the elementary school at hand and could only be considered in the future because the parcel did not meet the 208 water plan. However, she states that the memorandum introducing the parcel was acknowledged as received but the parcel was not discussed. She goes on to state, "No discussion of Mr. Glory's or the West Pleasant Grove properties were discussed." The Commission finds her statement to contradict the minutes of the meeting. Clearly, the parcel was discussed, and although it may have been ruled out at the time, it was kept on the list of potential sites for future consideration. Ms. Mallette appears to be confusing the notion of advocating for the property with improperly discussing the property because of the impression created by her participation. The Commission already said she that she did not attempt to use her position to secure unwarranted privileges for others when it dismissed the charges under N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(b). She did not advocate for Mr. Glory's property at this meeting, but the minutes show that it was discussed, if only to introduce it and rule it out.

At the December 16, 1997 meeting, Ms. Mallette and Mr. Koch presented the Board a chart comparing of all of the properties based on the information gathered. The West Pleasant grove site was noted as the most cost-effective site on that chart. Mr. Chisholm notes in his submission that he said that the West Pleasant Grove site was the least costly at the meeting and Ms. Mallette did not make that statement. The Commission does not find it important that Ms. Mallette made the statement, as she had made the cost comparisons on the chart presented to the Board. Ms. Mallette notes in her submission that the property was ultimately disqualified and she asserts that no discussion on her chart took place. The minutes set forth:

> It was the recommendation of both Mr. Elms and Mr. Campbell that the Kelly property be selected over the Hyson Road property conditioned on the outcome of the January 5th meeting.
> Mrs. Mallette then presented the board with a comparison of costs she and Mr. Koch had put together as shown on the attached sheet. Based on their analysis, the Pleasant Grove property works out to be the most cost-effective site for new construction. Board members were asked to review the cost comparison for future discussion.

As Ms. Mallette notes, she did not respond to the request for a straw poll vote on the Kelly property.

Again Ms. Mallette appears to confuse the sections that she was charged with violating. The Commission can agree that based on the memorandum and the minutes, Ms. Mallette did not try to secure unwarranted privileges for Mr. Glory in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(b). However, the Commission cannot conclude that his West Pleasant Grove Road property was not discussed at the meeting she attended as she has been charged with under N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c). The minutes show clearly that it was discussed and Mr. Chisholm's submission confirms as much.[1] The fact that it was ultimately ruled out for this project because of the sewer issue is of no consequence to the determination of whether Ms. Mallette participated in a meeting in which Mr. Glory's property was discussed.

Based on the foregoing, the Commission finds Ms. Mallette to have violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) of the School Ethics Act for acting in her official capacity in a matter in which she had a personal involvement that might reasonably be expected to impair her objectivity or independence of judgment.

With regard to the January 5, 1998 meeting, the Commission noted in its probable cause determination that Ms. Mallette discouraged a suggestion to purchase property other than that of George Glory. She offered the 110-acre parcel of West Pleasant Grove Road that did not belong to Mr. Glory as an alternative. However, the Board had always referred to the property on West Pleasant Grove as one contiguous parcel, thus, giving the appearance that she was advocating for Mr. Glory's property. Ms. Mallette clarifies that she only asked Mr. Vena if the land could be sewerable with a septic system installed. She states that Mr. Vena replied that it could not be and that was the end of the discussion. The Commission has found no evidence to refute Mr. Glory's testimony that he has no ownership interest in the parcel contiguous to his that was discussed on January 5, 1998. Further, the minutes do not provide additional information to contradict Ms. Mallette's representations that Mr. Glory's land was not discussed at that time. Therefore, the Commission dismisses the charge that Ms. Mallette violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) in connection with the January 5, 1998 meeting.

[1] Ms. Mallette sets forth in her submission that she had a discussion with a board member outside of the meeting in which this board member made an offer to her that she believes was in violation of the School Ethics Act. The Commission will not address such an allegation in the context of a statement in response its probable cause determination. If Ms. Mallette believes that this school official violated the act, then she can file a complaint with the Commission.

CONCLUSION

For all the foregoing reasons, the Commission concludes that Katherine Mallette violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) of the School Ethics Act when she participated in discussions in which her brother-in-law's property was discussed. As a result of the above, the Commission recommends that the Commissioner of Education impose the lowest sanction of reprimand. In making the recommendation, the Commission has considered the fact that Mr. Glory is Ms. Mallette's brother-in-law in the loosest definition of the term so that they are related by marriage, but not closely. Further, as set forth, the Commission found that she participated in discussions on property, but did not find information that she attempted to persuade the Board to purchase Mr. Glory's property during the discussions.

Upon adoption of this decision by a formal resolution of the School Ethics Commission, the matter shall be transmitted to the Commissioner of Education for action on the Commission's recommendation for sanction only pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29. Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which the Commission's decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written comments on the recommended sanction with the Commissioner of Education, c/o Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, NJ 08625, marked "Attention: Comments on Ethics Commission Sanction." A copy of any comments filed must be sent to the School Ethics Commission and all other parties.

IN THE MATTER OF KATHERINE MALLETTE,	:
JACKSON TOWNSHIP BOARD OF	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
EDUCATION, OCEAN COUNTY.	:	DECISION

The record of this matter and the decision of the School Ethics Commission ("Commission") have been reviewed. Comments were filed by Complainants, as was a reply thereto by respondent. Initially, it must be emphasized that pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c), the determination of the Commission as to violation of the Act is not reviewable by the Commissioner herein. Only the School Ethics Commission may determine whether a violation of the School Ethics Act occurred. The Commissioner's jurisdiction is limited to reviewing the sanction to be imposed following a finding of a violation by the School Ethics Commission. Therefore, this decision is restricted solely to a review of the recommended penalty and its implementation.

Complainant Chuck Murphy submitted comments on behalf of himself and the other Complainants in this matter. Complainants strongly urge that the Commissioner impose a stronger penalty because they believe that the suggested sanction of reprimand is insufficient to adequately correct respondent's behavior. They also contend, among other things, that the lightness of the recommended penalty is inconsistent with the meaningful efforts needed to uphold the law. Respondent Mallette's response to Complainants' comments expresses deep disappointment that Mr. Murphy continues to argue his case, notwithstanding the fact that all but one of the charges filed against Mr. Chisholm, Mr. Koch and herself were dismissed. She further indicates that until she received a copy of Complainants' comments on January 4, 1999, she would not have voiced her feelings to the Commissioner regarding the School Ethics Commission's decision recommending that she be issued a reprimand for the violation which the Commission found because until that point she had determined to accept the outcome.

Respondent's comments essentially reiterate or recast the clarification of the facts she previously put forth to the Commission relative to the two meetings wherein it was found she had participated in discussions in which her brother-in-law's property was discussed. Respondent's comments also provide additional clarification on several other points.

Upon a thorough review of the record, the Commissioner determines to accept the Commission's recommendation that reprimand is the appropriate penalty in this matter for the reasons expressed in the Commission's decision, wherein it was found that respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) when she participated in discussions in which her brother-in-law's property was discussed, but that she did not attempt to persuade the Jackson Township Board of Education to purchase that property during the discussions. In so ruling, the Commissioner notes that the Commission considered and addressed all aggravating and mitigating factors raised by the parties in reaching its penalty determination, and that the Commission was in the optimum position to make such determinations in that it had the opportunity to fully investigate the facts presented. Therefore, its recommended penalty in this matter will not be disturbed absent a compelling basis to do so.

Accordingly, IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that Katherine Mallette be reprimanded as a school official found to have violated the School Ethics Act.*

IT IS SO ORDERED.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF JIMMY DYKES,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL	:	DECISION
DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF NEWARK,	:
ESSEX COUNTY.	:

District certified tenure charges of unbecoming conduct against respondent physical education teacher for allegedly participating in a scheme to defraud the State Health Benefits Program (SHBP) by conspiring with a doctor to submit claims for psychological services purportedly rendered.

ALJ determined that the record clearly supported a conclusion that respondent was aware of the improprieties and he knowingly and willingly engaged in conduct intended to defraud the SHBP by referring the doctor to his wife despite misgivings, by allowing false claims for services to remain unchallenged and by failing to act to rectify the situation. Thus, the ALJ concluded that the District sustained its burden of proving the charges by a preponderance of evidence. Moreover, because of the seriousness of the charges, the ALJ concluded that dismissal was warranted. ALJ ordered respondent terminated from his tenured employment.

Upon careful and independent examination and study of the record, including the parties' exception arguments and the transcripts of the hearing, the Commissioner determined to affirm the conclusion of the ALJ that the District established its charge of unbecoming conduct on the part of the within respondent necessitating his removal from his tenured position. Commissioner concluded that the District established said charge as the quality of the evidence herein leads a cautious mind to the conclusion that respondent engaged in knowing and intentional participation in conduct with a purpose to defraud. Moreover, despite respondent's apparently unblemished 13-year record, the Commissioner determined that the charge established herein, under the particular circumstances of this matter, was sufficiently flagrant to warrant respondent's dismissal. (Redcay) Commissioner ordered respondent dismissed from his tenured position as of the date of this decision and transmitted the matter to the State Board of Examiners for action, as that body deems appropriate.

BEFORE MARIA MANCINI LA FIANDRA, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner, State Operated School District of the City of Newark brought tenure charges against Respondent, Jimmy Dykes, alleging conduct unbecoming a teacher so as to require that his employment be terminated. The charges were predicated on Respondent's intentional participation in a scheme to defraud the State Health Benefits Program (SHBP) by conspiring with Dr. Carl H. Lichtman (Lichtman) to submit claims for psychological services purportedly rendered. According to Petitioner, Respondent allegedly provided information required and utilized to submit fraudulent claims to the insurance carrier for payment for psychological services. Respondent was to receive a share of the fees collected.

The charges were promulgated and served on Respondent on November 18, 1996; Respondent was duly notified of his right to submit a Statement of Position and Evidence within 15 days; the charges were certified on December 6, 1996. Respondent was suspended without pay on December 7, 1996. An answer was filed on January 31, 1997 and the case was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on February 10, 1997, along with several others of a similar nature. This case was consolidated with those others and scheduled for hearing in September 1997.

On April 12, 1997, Respondent's pay was reinstated pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14. Prior to the scheduled hearing date, the attorney for the Respondents requested an adjournment in order to protect his clients' Fifth Amendment rights; the consolidated matter was placed on the inactive list. As a result of this request, Respondents agreed to waive their right to be paid during the period of adjournment.

On or about December 12, 1997, Respondent Jimmy Dykes retained a new attorney. Subsequent to that, an application to sever this case from the consolidated case and restore it to the active list was granted; Respondent's salary was restored. The hearing was held on July 22 and 23, 1998. Both parties requested an opportunity to submit written summations. Consequently, the record closed on October 19, 1998.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Based on the evidence presented at the hearing as well as on the opportunity to observe the witnesses and assess their credibility, I make the following findings of fact, which are essentially undisputed, in this matter.

1. Respondent Jimmy Dykes is a physical education teacher who has been employed in the Newark school system for 13 years.

2. All of Respondent's annual evaluations were satisfactory.

3. Lichtman perpetrated insurance fraud upon the SHBP by submitting insurance claims for services rendered to various teachers employed by the District. In fact, those services were never rendered.

4. Respondent's wife, Paula Yancy-Dykes, entered into a plea agreement in which she pleaded guilty to theft by deception and forfeited her position as a teacher employed by the Petitioner.

5. Respondent became aware of Lichtman through his friend Rossi Kearson.

6. Respondent did not have insurance coverage for the services Lichtman provided.

7. There were no insurance claims submitted to Respondent's carrier on behalf of Mr. Dykes in furtherance of Lichtman's scheme.

8. Respondent's wife provided the personal information requested by Lichtman in furtherance of his scheme.

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

The issues to be determined are whether Respondent engaged in conduct unbecoming a teacher and, if so, the appropriate penalty to be imposed. The charges against Respondent are predicated on his alleged participation in the Lichtman scheme to defraud SHBP. Respondent asserts that he did not give Lichtman any information with the intent of participating in an insurance fraud scheme; moreover, Respondent asserts that he never received money from Lichtman nor did any benefits inure to Dr. Lichtman as the result of any fraudulent claim filed on Respondent's behalf. Consequently, Respondent urges that the District has failed to prove that he participated in the insurance fraud scheme.

While this assertion may have some validity if the definition of "participation [in the] insurance fraud scheme" is narrowly limited to the giving of information to enable Lichtman to file false claims and the direct receipt of financial benefit as a result of providing such information, a broader definition of the term "participation in the insurance fraud scheme" as well as consideration of a teacher's obligation to conduct himself with integrity leads to a different conclusion.

Respondent and his wife both testified that it was he who first learned of Lichtman; moreover, the initial telephone contact was between Lichtman and Respondent, who provided Lichtman with certain information about his wife. Although Respondent contends otherwise in his post hearing submission, the record is clear that he was uncomfortable with the scheme initially when he heard about it from his friend Kearson and after he spoke to Lichtman. Moreover, in his statement to the investigators he indicated that Kearson told him that "he knew of a psychiatrist that you could have a couple of sessions with over the phone and after speaking with the doctor several times you would recieve [sic] a check."

I am cognizant of the problems surrounding the reliability of this sworn statement because, as demonstrated during the hearing, it is not a transcript; it is a synthesis of the statements of both Mr. and Mrs. Dykes regarding their involvement in the matter. There was, however, ample opportunity for counsel to probe the content of the statement. Counsel for Respondent availed herself of the opportunity; however, this specific statement was never questioned. When this statement is considered together with the statements that he felt the scheme was shaky, it is very clear that Respondent had serious reservations about Lichtman and his scheme. Moreover, the use of the words "a couple of sessions . . . over the phone" belies the testimony that Respondent thought he was participating in a study or workshop. In addition, it is inconceivable that a person occupying the position of teacher could believe that he would receive legitimate compensation for a few telephone conversations. Notwithstanding his doubts about Lichtman and his scheme Respondent still encouraged his wife's participation by handing the phone over to her.

Respondent's active participation in the interview by the state investigators undercuts his assertion that he was uninvolved and unaware of the fraud. Although the record is clear that no claims were paid on behalf of Respondent, it is equally clear that he and his wife received explanation of benefit (EOB) statements for claims submitted on his behalf. It strains credulity to think that he never saw the forms or discussed the contents with anyone including his wife, especially in light of his discomfort with the situation. Moreover, it is inconceivable to think that, at minimum, no questions arose at the request for insurance information to participate in a study or workshop.

The record is equally clear that Respondent was aware that his wife received a check from Lichtman. Respondent was also aware that false claims had been submitted on his behalf, but, according to his testimony, he did nothing to clarify the situation because no money had been derived from the claims. In addition, he testified that although he told his wife to call Lichtman and/or the carrier to find out what was going on, he did not follow up on the false claims because the check had already been deposited.

Based on the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that Respondent was aware that there was something wrong with the Lichtman proposal. Moreover, he admitted at the hearing that he probably had some responsibility to do something, although he testified that telling his wife to call the carrier twice absolved him of that responsibility.

Viewed in juxtaposition with Kearson's description of a couple of "phone sessions with a psychiatrist," Respondent's admitted reservations about the scheme, his awareness of the check and the false claims, it is clear that Respondent was aware of the improprieties being perpetrated and chose to ignore the situation. In short, I CONCLUDE that Respondent's testimony lacks credibility.

I CONCLUDE, therefore, that Respondent was aware of the fraud; I further CONCLUDE that he failed to accept responsibility and failed to investigate the basis for the false claims submitted in his name. I specifically reject the assertion by Respondent that there was no way he could initiate calls to inquire about the claims without implicating his wife. Calls by Respondent to Prudential to alert the carrier to the falsity of the claims submitted in Respondent's name are not equivalent of reporting a wrong doing. Such calls would have demonstrated the very state of mind that Respondent asserts prevailed, i.e., some uneasiness about the scheme coupled with a desire to disassociate himself from it. Moreover, the assertion that his failure to make such calls was because he would have had to implicate his wife indicates that he was aware that there was wrong doing and, furthermore, tends to support the foregoing conclusion that Respondent knew that the scheme did not include compensation for a "workshop" or "study" which Lichtman was conducting.

Even though no direct financial benefit was derived as a result of claims submitted on behalf of Respondent, he was implicated in the scheme when, despite "shaky" feelings about it, he not only accepted Lichtman's call, but referred Lichtman to his wife; moreover, he was aware that his wife provided his personal information to Lichtman, he was aware that she received EOB's for which claimed services which had not been rendered but for which benefits were paid; he knew she deposited the check sent by Lichtman. He became further enmeshed in the scheme by failing to alert Prudential or the District of the false claims submitted in his name. Finally, the money, although never actually used, was initially deposited in the couple's joint checking account, which allowed him equal access to the funds as well as the opportunity to either return the monies to Lichtman when he became aware that false claims had been submitted, turn it over to Prudential, or, again, at minimum, to put it into a special account while he initiated an inquiry into the false claims.

In cases such as this, where tenure charges are brought against a teacher, the District is required to establish the allegations supporting the charges by a preponderance of credible evidence. See In re Polk License Revocation, 90 N.J. 550, 560 (1982); Atkinson v. Parsekian, 37 N.J. 143, 149 (1962). The record clearly supports a conclusion that the Respondent was aware of the improprieties and he knowingly and willingly engaged in conduct intended to defraud the SHBP by referring Lichtman to his wife despite his misgivings, by allowing false claims for services purportedly rendered to him to remain unchallenged and by failing to act to rectify the situation.

Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that Petitioner has sustained its burden of proving the charges by a preponderance of the evidence. Moreover, because of the seriousness of the charges, the Respondent's breach of the public's trust which is an inherent part of public employment, and the deleterious effect the action and inaction of this Respondent can have on the children for whom he should set an example, I CONCLUDE that dismissal is warranted. Cf., IMO Tenure Hearing of Ernest Tordo, School District of Jackson, Ocean County, 1974 SLD 97, 98-99.

ORDER

It is, therefore, hereby ORDERED that the Respondent be and hereby is TERMINATED from his employment by the State Operated School District of the City of Newark.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF JIMMY DYKES,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL	:	DECISION
DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF NEWARK,	:
ESSEX COUNTY.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Exceptions of respondent and the District's reply thereto were timely filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Respondent's extensive exceptions initially contend that the Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) initial decision "is fraught with clear legal and factual errors that cannot legally or fairly form the basis of respondent's removal." (Respondent's Exceptions at p. 6) Although agreeing that the ALJ's Findings of Fact (initial decision at p. 3) are supported by the record, he avers that "strewn throughout her 'Discussion' and 'Conclusion,' are a series of factual findings [which are] not supported by the record." (Id.) Respondent presents and discusses, what he asserts are six such erroneous findings:

1. Jimmy Dykes knew of Lichtman's scheme immediately upon knowledge of and contact with Lichtman.

Respondent asserts that the ALJ erroneously finds "the record is clear that [respondent] was uncomfortable with the scheme initially when he heard about it from his friend Kearson and after he spoke to Lichtman." (Initial Decision at p. 4) Respondent urges that such a finding is clearly contrary to the record. He cites what he asserts is his uncontroverted testimony that he believed that Lichtman was conducting a study or a program. Such a thesis, he argues, is corroborated by the Certification of Rossi Kearson (Exhibit R-5). Respondent additionally provides specific transcript citations which, he maintains, confirm that he repeatedly testified "that his discomfort with Lichtman related only to the actual mechanics of what he initially and fairly believed to be Lichtman's legitimate program/study." (Respondent's Exceptions at p. 7)

2. Jimmy Dykes' "sworn statement" regarding the fact that Lichtman spoke to subjects by telephone supports the conclusion that Mr. Dykes knew of Lichtman's scheme.

Here, respondent argues that in relying heavily on Exhibit P-2, respondent's sworn statement to investigators, wherein it is stated that Kearson told him "he knew of a psychiatrist that you could have a couple of sessions with over the phone and after speaking with the doctor several times you would receive [sic] a check" (initial decision at p. 4)," the ALJ fully ignored her own conclusion (id. at p. 5) that such statement was a "synthesis drawn up by an investigator of both Jimmy Dykes and Mrs. Dykes' statements." (Respondent's Exceptions at p. 7) Respondent further contends, citing hearing transcripts in support of such contention, "both Mr. and Mrs. Dykes testified repeatedly that this statement does not represent the exact words used by them at the time of the investigation," (id. at p. 9), a fact that he maintains the ALJ recognized both on the record (Transcript 7/23/98, 32/5-9), and in her initial decision at page 5. (Id.)

Even more significant, respondent argues, the ALJ stated that the investigator's statement should be accepted verbatim because "counsel for respondent never questioned respondent regarding the accuracy of this portion of the written statement. (Decision, p. 5)" (Respondent's Exceptions at p. 8) This, he asserts, is totally inaccurate and a grievious misapprehension of the record pointing out that the transcript reflects the following colloquy:

Q. Did you tell Investigator Binn the nature of the conversation [with Rossi Kearson]?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay.
A. I recall telling her, yes.
Q. Okay. Is there anything here that you would like to correct about the con -- I'm sorry, the -- interaction that you had with Rossi Kearson?
(Whereupon, there is a brief pause in the proceedings.)
A. Yes. There's a part where Kearson -- Can I read it, the part where --
Q. Surely.
A. -- I'm talking about.
Q. Um-hum.
A. [The investigator's statement] says Kearson telephoned me at home and said that he knew of a psychiatrist that you can have a couple of sessions with over the phone and after speaking with the Doctor several times you would receive a check.

That makes it seem like it's an ongoing type of a conversation. And it -- it wasn't.

What I was trying to say is that Kearson was telling me -- he was saying to contact the Doctor and you need to talk with him a couple of times to find out exactly what was going on. And if you were eligible to participate in this -- this workshop or study or whatever, you would meet with the Doctor several times and then you would receive a check.

In here it says that you can have a couple of sessions with, over the phone, and after speaking -- and I don't know, speaking/meeting but what I was trying to say is after -- and after the couple sessions or interviews with the Doctor several times and you would receive a check. That's what I understood Kearson to tell me. (Transcript of 7/23/98, 34/10 – 35/12) (Respondent's Exceptions at pp. 8-9)

This discourse, respondent argues, evidences that counsel did question him as to this particular portion of the investigator's statement, and that he clearly "repudiated the implication that he agreed to participate in a fraudulent scheme." (Id. at p. 9)

Respondent also asks that the Commissioner consider that the District failed to call either of the two investigators who completed the statement as witnesses to controvert the testimony of respondent and his wife. As such, he maintains, "an inference that their testimony would have supported the fact that Jimmy Dykes did not know from the outset that he was participating in a fraudulent scheme is clearly compelled." (Id. at pp. 9-10) Consequently, respondent argues that the ALJ's use of the investigators' statement as a foundation for ordering respondent's termination from employment, without recognizing the statement's significant shortcomings, is totally capricious. Moreover, respondent maintains, it "strains logic and reason" for the ALJ to conclude, that these particular words "evidence respondent's knowing and willing participation in a scheme with Lichtman to defraud the State Health Benefits Program." Id. at p. 10) He reasons, that if there is something untoward about participating in a study by telephone, it was the District's burden to bring forth evidence in this regard, which it failed to do.

In summary on this particular point, respondent avers > not only did the ALJ mischaracterize a significant portion of the record as to the investigator's statement, her finding that "[w]hen this statement is considered together with the statements that he felt that the scheme was shaky, it is very clear that Respondent had serious reservations about Lichtman and his scheme," (Decision, p. 5), simply does not have evidential support in the record considered as a whole. (Respondent's Exceptions at pp. 10-11)

3. Jimmy Dykes encouraged his wife's participation in Lichtman's scheme.

In this regard, respondent avers that the ALJ's finding here, i.e., that "[n]otwithstanding his doubts about Lichtman and his scheme[,] Respondent still encouraged his wife's participation by handing the phone over to her[,]" is a statement which, itself, belies the absurdity of the conclusion, urging "that it is beyond any reasoned consideration of fairness in fact-finding to infer from giving the telephone to one's spouse in response to a caller asking for her amounts to culpable encouragement in a criminal enterprise." (Respondent's Exceptions at p. 11)

4. Jimmy Dykes' cooperation with state investigators belies his assertion that he was uninvolved and unaware of the fraud.

Respondent contends that the ALJ's finding here, that "[r]espondent's active participation in the interview with state investigators undercuts his assertion that he was uninvolved and unaware of the fraud[,]" (initial decision at p. 5) is wholly illogical. He states that hearing transcripts confirm that both he and his wife uncontrovertedly testified "that when investigators came to their house asking to speak to Mrs. Dykes, she went downstairs to the family room and asked Jimmy to join her. (Transcript of 7/22/98, 71/20-21; 7/23/98, 29/14-18)" (Respondent's Exceptions at p. 12) Moreover, he posits, it is just common sense that if state investigators come to someone's home to speak to one's wife, a husband will participate and provide whatever support he can for his wife. (Id.) Respondent maintains that the fact that he cooperated with and provided whatever information he could about Lichtman to investigators who came to his home to question his wife is in no way inconsistent with the fact that he was not "involved" with Lichtman or that he did not know of Lichtman's scheme at the time he spoke to Kearson, when he spoke to Lichtman on the phone, or at the time his wife spoke to Lichtman. (Respondent's Exceptions at pp. 12-13)

5. Jimmy Dykes must have had private communications which evidenced his knowledge of Litctman's scheme.

Respondent asserts that the ALJ's conclusion that "it 'strains credulity'" that Mr. Dykes never saw the explanation of benefits forms, nor discussed them with anyone including his wife, constitutes an extraordinary abuse of her discretion." (Respondent's Exceptions at p. 13) He advances that, notwithstanding the testimony of both he and his wife to the contrary, Kearson's Certification, and the documentary evidence in the record which substantiate respondent's innocence with respect to being a part of Lichtman's scheme, along with the total failure of the District to advance any evidence that he knew of or participated in such scheme, "[t]he ALJ  simply [chose] to disregard the evidence of record without explanation." (Id.)

The ALJ further evidenced abuse of her discretion, respondent argues, when she concluded that "it is inconceivable to think that, at a minimum, no questions arose at the request for insurance information to participate in a study or workshop." (Id.) He advances that the evidence and the record clearly establish that immediately upon hearing the name of his healthcare provider, "Lichtman told him he was not eligible to participate." As such, it is quite understandable that respondent "did not then press for details regarding the study" (id.), and it is ludicrous to conclude that his failure to do so demonstrates his complicity in an insurance fraud scheme.

6. Jimmy Dykes' testimony lacks credibility.

Respondent alleges that the ALJ's logic and the conclusion she draws therefrom were entirely misplaced when she concluded that his testimony lacked credibility because "[v]iewed in juxtaposition with Kearson's description of a couple of 'phone sessions with a psychiatrist', Respondent's admitted reservations about the scheme, his awareness of the check and the false claims, it is clear that Respondent was aware of the improprieties being perpetrated and chose to ignore the situation." (Id.) He advances

> First, for the reasons stated above, the ALJ's reliance on the "sworn statement" regarding phone sessions is misplaced. Second, as [previously] stated, while the Dykes did have concerns about the actual mechanics of what they initially and fairly believed to be Lichtman's legitimate program or study, it is uncontroverted that they were not initially aware of Lichtman's "scheme." Third, Mr. Dykes did not "ignore" the check and false claims – it is uncontroverted that Mr. Dykes instructed his wife to call Lichtman and the insurance company to rectify the situation. Put simply, the ALJ "juxtaposed" several faulty assumptions, rendering her conclusion that Mr. Dykes['] testimony lacked credibility groundless. (Respondent's Exceptions at pp. 14-15)

Next, respondent urges that the ALJ neglected to recognize and apply the appropriate legal standard. In this respect, he argues that the District's charge was "that [he] knowingly and intentionally participated in a scheme to defraud the State Health Benefits Program by providing Lichtman with personal information which he knew was going to be used to submit false insurance claims. In exchange Mr. Dykes was to be paid a portion of the monies provided to Dr. Lichtman as payment for the false claims. (See Statement of Charges, Charge Number One)" (Respondent's Exceptions at p. 15) Respondent maintains that it is unrefuted that it was his wife who gave Lichtman all of the family insurance information; she alone received, signed, and deposited the check from Lichtman, ultimately in her personal savings account; respondent never received any money from Lichtman nor did any benefit inure to Lichtman as a consequence of any false claim filed on respondent's behalf; and it was not until after his wife's receipt of the check and subsequent receipt of her related insurance statement that respondent was even remotely aware of the general nature of Lichtman's scheme. As such, he advances that it is unmistakable that the District did not establish that respondent participated in a scheme to commit insurance fraud as was charged. (Id. at p. 16) He avers that in the absence of any demonstration of "malfeasance" on the part of respondent, the ALJ and the District are now improperly attempting to broaden the District's charges to effectively proffer a heretofore unarticulated "nonfeasance" charge against respondent, i.e., "failure to cure his wife's fraud" (emphasis in text) (id. at p. 16), a tactic which respondent argues is legally impermissible, an afront to due process and also unsupported by the record. (Id. at p. 19) He proffers that a position that he failed to act in this regard is indefensible in that there was uncontroverted testimony that upon becoming aware that claims had been submitted to his wife's insurance carrier in his name, notwithstanding that no payment had been made to anyone as a result of such claims, "[he] told his wife to call Lichtman and Prudential to rectify the situation.

(Transcripts of 7/23/98, 48/7-11; 67/10-13; 68/9-21)" (Id.) Respondent maintains that the District and the ALJ fail to specify what additional action he should have taken in this regard and what legal authority compels that he was mandated to take further action, such as reporting his wife to authorities. (Id. at pp. 19-20)

Finally, even though the District has failed to sustain its tenure charge against him, respondent urges that if the Commissioner allows the District's "unspecified nonfeasance charge" (id. at p. 22) against him and finds him guilty of such unspecified charge, he consider respondent's 13-year unblemished teaching record in the District and impose some lesser penalty than termination.

The District's reply exceptions posit that the ALJ's decision is correct in all respects and urge that it be adopted by the Commissioner. It presents a general recitation of the modus operandi of the scheme conducted by Lichtman and cites the following excerpts from Exhibit P-1, certification of Carl H. Lichtman, dated October 29, 1996, which it asserts confirms it was apparent to Lichtman that respondent "understood how the scheme worked," > using the information supplied by Jimmy Dykes, Dr. Lichtman would submit false claim forms to the insurance carrier indicating that Jimmy Dykes or a covered dependent had been treated by Dr. Lichtman on certain dates, when, in fact, Jimmy Dykes had not been treated by Dr. Lichtman as reflected on the claim forms submitted; and > after Dr. Lichtman received the payment on the false claims, he provided 25% of the amount he received.

>
> Dr. Lichtman submitted false claims for the psychological treatment of Jimmy Dykes but received no payment on the claims from the carrier.
> (District's Reply Exceptions at p. 3)

The District presents other selected citations from hearing testimony and its interpretations of such testimony which it avows establish that "in spite of the fact that Jimmy Dykes was, at all times, fully aware that Dr. Lichtman's scheme was suspicious, he knowingly gave information to Dr. Lichtman about his wife which was ultimately used to defraud the State Health Benefits Program, and knowingly told his wife to call Dr. Lichtman." (Id. at p. 7)

The District further proffers that respondent's attempt to claim that he believed Lichtman's scheme was a "study" or a "workshop" is fully belied by the credible evidence in this matter. It argues

> First, Dr. Lichtman expressly disavowed ever telling the teachers who participated in his scheme that they were participating in a study. T22-8.24. Secondly, in their Voluntary Sworn Statement, at no time did either Jimmy Dykes or his wife mention a "study" or "workshop" as part of what they thought was involved in the scheme. Finally, Jimmy Dykes himself finally admitted that he was never told he would be participating in a workshop or study:
>
> A. I believe I said study or workshop. I wasn't really characterizing it as a study for, you know, for sure 'cause I didn't know what it was. So I used the word study, workshop, I really didn't know what it was. T23-49.4
>
> (District's Reply Exceptions at pp. 7-8)

It, therefore, maintains that the record substantiates that at no time did respondent actually contemplate that he would be participating in a workshop or a study. (Id. at p. 8)

With regard to the ALJ's determination that respondent's testimony was not credible, the District argues that such a conclusion is fully supported by the record. It cites Sean Clark v. Trenton Housing Authority, OAL Dkt. No. CSV 8248-97, Decision May 18, 1998, for the proposition that > "When the testimony of witnesses is in disagreement, it is the obligation and responsibility of the trier of fact to weigh the credibility of the witnesses in order to make factual findings. Credibility is the value that a fact finder gives to the testimony of a witness. The word contemplates an overall assessment of the story of a witness in light of its rationality, internal consistency, and manner in which it 'hangs together' with other evidence." [citation omitted] "The term has been defined as testimony which must proceed from the mouth of the credible witness and must be such > as our common experience, knowledge, and common observation can accept as probable under the circumstances. [citations omitted] A fact finder is expected to base decisions on credibility on his or her common sense, intuition or experience." Id. at 7.

In conclusion, the District contends that the State Board's October 3, 1997 decision in In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Alyce Stewart, State-operated School District of the City of Newark, Essex County, wherein "the State Board held that participation in the Lichtman insurance fraud scheme constitutes unbecoming conduct warranting dismissal," is controlling in the instant case. (District's Reply Exceptions at p. 11) Accordingly, it avers, as "Jimmy Dykes took no action to remedy what he knew was a fraudulent transaction, hiding instead behind the spurious theory that he bore no obligation to act because the check in question was made out to his wife who[m] he referred to Dr. Lichtman" (id. at pp. 11-12), respondent's dismissal is mandated.

Upon a careful and independent examination and study of the record in this matter, including the parties' exception arguments and transcripts of the hearing conducted at the OAL on July 22 and 23, 1998, the Commissioner, finding respondent's exception arguments meritless, determines to affirm the conclusion of the ALJ, for the reasons articulated in the initial decision as explicated below, that the District has established its charge of unbecoming conduct on the part of the within respondent necessitating his removal from his tenured position.

The District herein charges respondent with unbecoming conduct for his knowing and intentional participation in a scheme to defraud the State Health Benefits Plan by conspiring with Dr. Carl Lichtman to submit claims for psychological services purportedly rendered. It is axiomatic that the burden lies with the charging party to establish the truth of the charge by the quantum of a preponderance of the believable and credible evidence. (Atkinson v. Parsekian, 37 N.J. 143, 149 (1962)) The Commissioner further recognizes that there need not be a residium of competent evidence to establish each act considered by the Commissioner, as long as the combined probative force of the relevant hearsay and the relevant competent evidence sustains the ultimate finding of unbecoming conduct. (See In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Cowan, 224 N.J. Super. 737, 751 (App. Div. 1988), citing Weston v. State, 60 N.J. 36 (1972).) In determining whether the District has met its burden, in addition to giving full consideration to all evidentiary proofs which comprise the record, the Commissioner appreciates that, in this particular matter, a large consideration is the plausibility of the ALJ's factual findings and her weighing of the evidence and the credibility of the witnesses. In this regard, the Commissioner is satisfied, based on the record as a whole, that the ALJ considered all testimony and evidence and weighed it according to the credibility of the witnesses and the plausibility of its content and he finds no basis whatsoever in the record before him for overturning the credibility assessments of the ALJ who had the benefit of observing the witnesses firsthand. In so concluding the Commissioner was especially mindful that

> Testimony to be believed must not only proceed from the mouth of a credible witness but must be credible in itself. It must be such as the common experience and observation of mankind can appprove as probable in the circumstances. (In re Perrone, 5 N.J. 514, 522 (1950))

In considering respondent's exceptions to the ALJ's decision herein, it is noted that central to his objections is respondent's contention, that in reaching her findings and conclusions, the ALJ failed to ascribe proper credence to his proffered assertions that he was an "innocent victim" in this matter, at all times believing that participation in Lichtman's "enterprise" involved participation in a legitimate "program" or "study," a claim which is blatantly belied by the record. Specifically, the Commissioner observes that respondent reports that he was introduced to Lichtman's enterprise by his "personal friend of 30 years"

Rossie Kearson. (See T-7/23/98, p. 46, 17-23.) In his Voluntary Sworn Statement to state investigators (Exhibit P-2)[1] respondent declared

> I was approached by Rossie Kearson, who is also a teacher in the Newark School System in the Spring 1994, possibly in April early May. Kearson telephoned me at home and said that he knew of a psychiatrist that you can have a couple of sessions with over the phone and after speaking with the Doctor several times you would receive a check. Kearson said that he has received a check from the doctor and he knows of other who have also. Kearson gave the name of Carl Lichtman and gave me a telephone number. (Exhibit P-2, page 2)

Of particular import in this recitation is the fact that respondent declares that his personal friend, Kearson, had, at the time he spoke to respondent, received a check from Lichtman. The Commissioner concludes that it strains credulity to believe that upon learning that Kearson had received compensation from Lichtman as a result of his participation in Lichtman's "enterprise," respondent did not press his friend for details as to what specifically was required in order for his friend to have "earned" this compensation.

The Commissioner, consequently, finds respondent's attempts to portray himself as an "innocent victim" in this matter and, likewise, his contention that the ALJ and the District are attempting to pursue a "nonfeasance" charge against him for failure to cure his wife's fraud utterly devoid of any logical or reasonable inference from the record before him. Rather, the Commissioner concludes that, on the whole, the credible evidence in the matter sub judice establishes that

- Respondent made a conscious decision to involve himself in what he knew or should have known was, at the very minimum, a seriously questionable enterprise;

[1]The Commissioner finds that any objections on the part of respondent to this statement or attempts on his part to discredit or impugn its evidentiary value in this matter are unfounded. Full examination of the statement, transcripts, and respondent's proffered arguments leads the Commissioner to agree with the ALJ's determination at hearing that it is clear that any inaccuracies which might exist in this exhibit are technical rather than substantive in nature. (See T-7/22/98, p. 109, 8-14.)

- Respondent actively pursued contact with Lichtman and introduced this man and his "scheme" into his home;
- Upon learning that, due to his particular health care provider, he would be ineligible to receive compensation, he perpetuated his family's "participation" in this questionable enterprise by turning Lichtman over to his wife who he had reason to believe had insurance which would make her eligible to participate;
- Upon his wife's receipt of a check from Lichtman and insurance statements, which undeniably confirmed the impropriety of the enterprise, respondent failed to take any action to cure the consequences of his involvement in the scheme. The Commissioner finds it without question that reasonable individuals would agree that respondent's responsibility to right a wrong which he had initiated extended much further than merely telling his wife to call Lichtman and the insurance carrier. Even so, respondent made a conscious decision to take no action to remedy what he knew was a wrongful situation that he had initiated for both himself and his wife.

As such, the Commissioner finds that the District has established its charge of unbecoming conduct against respondent as the quality of the evidence here leads a reasonably cautious mind to the conclusion that respondent engaged in knowing and intentional participation in conduct with a purpose to defraud.[2]

As to the appropriate penalty, The Commissioner is compelled to reiterate his long-standing belief that educators, by virtue of the unique position they occupy must be held to an enhanced standard of behavior and must continually realize that they serve as role models to students and the community. When it is established that these individuals have failed to fulfill their obligations and have violated the public trust, it is imperative, to assure public confidence in the state's educational system, that they be subject to appropriate penalty for their behavior. Although duly considering respondent's apparently unblemished 13-year record with the District, the Commissioner, nonetheless, determines that the charge established herein, under the particular circumstances of this matter, and when committed by a teaching staff member charged with molding and shaping young minds both academically and by virtue of example, is "sufficiently flagrant" to warrant respondent's dismissal. (See Redcay v. State Board of Education, 130 N.J.L. 369, 371 (Sup. Ct. 1943); aff'd 131 N.J.L. 326 (E. & A. 1944).)

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed therein as expounded upon above, the Commissioner affirms the initial decision of the OAL and hereby orders that Jimmy Dykes be dismissed from his tenured teaching position with the State-operated School District of the City of Newark as of the date of this decision. This matter shall be transmitted to the State Board of Examiners, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6, for action, as that body deems appropriate, against respondent's certificate.[3]

IT IS SO ORDERED.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE :
HEARING OF JIMMY DYKES, STATE- : OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE :
CITY OF NEWARK, ESSEX COUNTY. :

STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION

DECISION

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, February 11, 1999

For the Petitioner-Respondent, Sills, Cummis, Zuckerman, Radin, Tischman, Epstein & Gross (Philip E. Stern, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Appellant, Balk, Oxfeld, Mandell & Cohen (Nancy I. Oxfeld, Esq., of Counsel)

On February 11, 1999, the Commissioner of Education issued a decision in which he ordered that Jimmy Dykes (hereinafter "appellant") be dismissed from his tenured employment for unbecoming conduct.

On March 5, 1999, the appellant filed a notice of appeal from that decision with the State Board of Education. Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.11(a), the appellant's brief in support of his appeal was due on March 25, 20 days after he filed his notice of appeal. By letter dated March 18, 1999, counsel for the appellant requested a 30-day extension for filing an appeal brief until April 26. Counsel for the appellant stated that she had recently taken over the case and did not yet have copies of all pertinent documents. She indicated that the counsel for the State-operated District had consented to her request for a 30-day extension and had agreed to provide her with copies of those documents.

By letter dated March 23, 1999, the Director of the State Board Appeals Office advised counsel for the appellant that her request to extend the deadline for appellant's appeal brief until April 26 had been granted.

Appellant, however, failed to file a brief by that date. Nor did she request leave of the Legal Committee for an additional extension.[1] By letter dated April 28, the Director of the State Board Appeals Office notified counsel for the appellant of her failure to file a brief and informed her that this matter was being referred to the Legal Committee of the State Board for consideration of appellant's failure to perfect the appeal.

By letter dated April 29 and received on April 30, counsel for the appellant requested an additional three-week extension until May 17 for filing an appeal brief. She indicated that counsel for the State-operated District had consented to her request.

By letter dated April 30, the Director of the State Board Appeals Office advised counsel for the appellant that her request had been denied, again informing her that this matter had been referred to the Legal Committee. The Director further advised counsel for the appellant that if she wished to file arguments in support of the appeal, she should do so immediately, along with an affidavit explaining the reasons for her failure to file a brief by the extended due date.

[1] N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.5 provides, in pertinent part:

> (b) By notice to the Legal Committee of the State Board of Education, extensions with consent of all parties for filing briefs or exceptions to the report of the Legal Committee may be obtained for a period of time not to exceed an accumulated total of 30 days for all extensions in one case.
>
> (d) Extensions of time that are opposed, or a combination of opposed and unopposed, may not exceed an accumulated total of 30 days for all extensions in one case. Further extensions of time may be granted only by leave of the Legal Committee upon a showing of good cause.

On May 6, counsel for the appellant filed a certification in which she averred that "[t]hrough inadvertence, [counsel for the State-operated District] did not provide me with [copies of the requested] documents as of the date the brief was due. In the meantime, I had obtained copies of those documents from Mr. Dykes' counsel before the Commissioner of Education. However, by the time the documents were received, I did not have time to complete the brief by April 26, 1999."

On May 7, the Director of the State Board Appeals Office again informed counsel for the appellant that this matter had been referred to the Legal Committee. The Director noted that the May 6 submission by counsel for the appellant was the first time in which she had mentioned a problem with obtaining the record.

On May 13, counsel for the appellant filed a certification in response to the Director's May 7 letter, pointing out that she had indicated in her initial request for an extension the fact that she did not yet have copies of all pertinent documents.

On May 14, counsel for the appellant filed a brief in support of the appeal.

At its meeting of May 19, 1999, the Legal Committee reviewed the record of this matter, including the certifications filed by counsel for the appellant.

After considering the circumstances, we dismiss the appeal in this matter for failure to perfect. We conclude that counsel for the appellant has failed to provide sufficient justification for her untimely filing. Nor has she demonstrated good cause for granting her an additional extension.

As previously noted, N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.5 provides that extensions with consent of all parties for filing briefs "may be obtained for a period of time not to exceed an accumulated total of 30 days for all extensions in one case." Despite being granted an extension for the entire 30-day period, counsel for the appellant still failed to file her appeal brief by the extended due date of April 26 or to request leave of the Legal Committee for an additional extension based on good cause prior to that date.[2] Indeed, counsel for the appellant did not indicate any problem with obtaining copies of documents until May 6, ten days after the extended due date,[3] and, even then, she acknowledged having received those documents prior to the April 26 deadline.[4] Although counsel for the appellant had been advised by letter dated April 30 that her request for an additional extension had been denied and that she should file an appeal brief immediately, she did not file a brief in support of the appeal until May 14, nearly three weeks after the extended due date. Ultimately, it was the obligation and responsibility of counsel for the appellant to assure compliance with the regulations, and we find no basis for relaxation in this instance.

Accordingly, we dismiss the appeal in this matter for failure to perfect. N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.12(a). See Paszamant v. Board of Education of the Borough of Highland Park, decided by the State Board, April 1, 1992, aff'd, Docket #A-4812-91-3 (App. Div. 1993).

[2] See, supra, n.1.

[3] In her initial request for an extension, counsel for the appellant had indicated only that she did not have all the documents in the record and that the counsel for the State-operated District had agreed to provide them to her. She did not mention any problem with obtaining copies of those documents until May 6, ten days after the extended due date of April 26.

[4] We note that counsel for the appellant did not indicate when she had received the documents from appellant's previous counsel so as to verify her claim that she did not receive them in time to meet the April 26 due date.

District certified tenure charges of unbecoming conduct and corporal punishment against respondent librarian with 35 years of service.

In light of the inconsistencies of the testimony of the student witnesses and the untimely manner in which the incident was investigated by the administrators, the ALJ determined that the District did not prove Charge One relating to corporal punishment being committed against student Z.L. and that Charge Two relating to unbecoming conduct was proven only to the extent that respondent left Z.L. unsupervised for approximately five minutes. ALJ dismissed Charge One and sustained Charge Two only as the charge pertains to Z.L. ALJ ordered respondent reinstated to her former position with penalty of forfeiture of one month's pay ($6,000).

Commissioner concurred with the findings and determination of the ALJ in the initial decision. Commissioner also determined that the penalty of one month's loss of salary was appropriate in that Z.L. was left in an area of the library substantially unsupervised for approximately five minutes and could have been injured or could have damaged school property.

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 3961-97

AGENCY DKT. NO. 85-3/97

STATE OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT

OF THE CITY OF NEWARK,

Petitioner,

v.

VICTORIA JAKUBIAK,

Respondent.

Gregory G. Johnson, Esq., for petitioner

Eugene G. Liss, Esq., for respondent

Record Closed: April 15, 1998 Decided: December 22, 1998

BEFORE DIANA C. SUKOVICH, ALJ:

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The State-operated School District of the City of Newark (petitioner or District) certified tenure charges against Victoria Jakubiak (Jakubiak or respondent). Respondent requested a hearing, and the State Department of Education (DOE) transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law on April 21, 1997 for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

Conferences were conducted throughout the proceedings. Jakubiak filed a motion to dismiss. This judge reserved decision on the motion. Hearings were conducted on February 11, 13, 17, and 18, 1998. The deadline for the filing of post-hearing briefs was extended at the requests of the parties. Briefs were filed on April 15, 1998, on which date the record was closed. The deadline for the issuance of an initial decision was extended.

NATURE OF THE CASE

Petitioner charged respondent with corporal punishment and conduct unbecoming a teacher. The issues, broadly, are whether petitioner has proven, by a preponderance of the credible evidence, the tenure charges and, if so, what discipline, if any, should be imposed. For the reasons hereinafter discussed, I am persuaded that the District has met this burden only to the extent of demonstrating that Jakubiak left Z.L. unsupervised for approximately five minutes.

ADMISSIONS

Petitioner served requests for admissions upon respondent on or about June 19, 1997. Jakubiak responded on or about July 1, 1997. The following facts were deemed to have been admitted by respondent:

3.[1] During the 1993/94 school year, respondent was assigned to Central High School (Central High).

4. During the 1994/95 and 1995/96 school years, respondent was assigned to University High School (University High).

5. In August 1996, respondent was transferred to the Mount Vernon School (Mount Vernon).

[1] The numbers pertain to the pertinent numbers of the initial requests for admissions.

6. Francisco C. Perez (Perez) is the principal of Mount Vernon.

7. Carol A. Schwartz (Schwartz), Ray Dandridge (Dandridge), and Phillip J. (Resciniti) are vice-principals of Mount Vernon.

8. During the 1996/97 school year, Z.L. was a student in respondent's library class.

9. On October 23, 1996, respondent reported to work and taught her classes in the library.

15. On October 9, 1996, respondent reported to work and taught her classes.

16. During the 1996/97 school year, L.G., who was five years old, was a kindergarten student in respondent's library class.

18. L.G. exited the door, and some students said "Ooo, L. ran out." Respondent saw L.G. leave.

MOTION TO DISMISS

A threshold issue is whether respondent's motion to dismiss should be granted.

FINDINGS

Based upon a review of the motion papers, I FIND the following to be facts.

On December 9, 1996, Perez filed tenure charges against Jakubiak, a tenured school librarian employed by the District. Perez also executed, on December 9, 1996, a sworn statement of evidence in support of the tenure charges. The tenure charges were filed with Dr. Beverly L. Hall (Hall), respondent's State District Superintendent.

The tenure charges contained two charges. Charge 1 alleged that Jakubiak committed acts of corporal punishment with the intent to discipline, harm, injure, punish, intimidate, or otherwise embarrass pupils under her charge. The specifications were that on or about October 23, 1996, during class, respondent physically grabbed and forced Z.L., a fifth-grade student, into a small, secluded area behind the circulation desk, where Z.L. was forced to remain and stand for forty minutes. It was also alleged that on the same date, respondent physically grabbed Z.L. and slapped her in the face with the back of Jakubiak's hand and that Z.L. later reported the incident to administrators, who observed her upset and crying.

Charge 2 charged Jakubiak with conduct unbecoming a teacher based upon the specifications set forth in Charge 1. Additional specifications were that on or about October 9, 1996, during class, respondent neglected her duty by failing to observe or prevent L.G., a pupil, from opening a door and exiting the classroom. Charge 2 also averred that on the same date, Jakubiak observed L.G. outside respondent's class, knocking on the window, while conducting class; that respondent failed to open the door or report the incident to the school administration; that L.G. later reported the incident to the school administration; and that respondent's dereliction of duties risked L.G.'s health and safety.

Respondent was served with the tenure charges and statement of evidence on December 9, 1996, by letter of that date, from Randall N. Canter (Canter), respondent's State District Assistant Superintendent. On December 19, 1996, Jakubiak served petitioner with a certified Statement and Reply to Tenure Charges. Those documents were provided by letter dated December 19, 1996 from respondent's counsel to Hall and the District's counsel.

On February 19, 1997, the District again served respondent with the same tenure charges previously served on December 9, 1996, as well as a Statement of Evidence, both executed by Perez. Service was via a letter of that date from Hall to Jakubiak. The letter stated, in part, that Jakubiak was suspended, with pay, from her duties and assignments as an educational media specialist, pending an investigation. By letter dated March 4, 1996 from petitioner's counsel, the District filed the pertinent tenure charges with the Commissioner of the DOE (Commissioner).

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSION

A motion for summary decision may be rendered if the papers and discovery, together with any affidavits, show that there is no genuine issue regarding any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law. I am persuaded that petitioner's motion should be denied.

Respondent, relying on N.J.S.A. 18A:6-13, argued that the District did not make a determination, within the pertinent deadline, of the initial tenure charges and that the charges must therefore be deemed to be dismissed and no further proceeding nor action can be taken related thereto. Petitioner did not file a reply to the motion to dismiss, relying on the Commissioner's decision in In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Debra Suitt-Green, State-Operated School District of the City of Newark, OAL Dkt. EDU 7071-96, (Oct. 14, 1997) (Suitt-Green).

Any charge made against any employee of a local board of education under tenure during good behavior and efficiency shall be filed with the board, in writing, and a written statement of evidence under oath supporting such charge shall also be presented to the board. The board "shall forthwith" provide the employee copies of the charge and the statement of evidence and an opportunity to submit a written statement of position and a written statement of evidence under oath. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11.

After consideration of the charge, statement of position, and statements of evidence, the board shall determine whether there is probable cause to credit the evidence in support of the charge and whether such charge, if credited, is sufficient to warrant a dismissal or reduction of salary. The board shall "forthwith" notify the employee of its determination." Ibid. If the board finds that probable cause exists and the charge, if credited, is sufficient to warrant a dismissal or reduction of salary, it shall forward the written charge to the Commissioner for a hearing, together with a certificate of such determination. Ibid.

The board is required to make such determination within forty-five days of receipt of the written charge:

> If the board does not make such a determination within 45 days after receipt of the written charge, or within 45 days after the expiration of the time for correction of the inefficiency, if the charge is of inefficiency, the charge shall be deemed to be dismissed and no further proceeding or action shall be taken thereon.

The 45-day period is tolled until the teacher exercises his/her statutory right to respond to the charges within 15 days. In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Cowan, 224 N.J. Super. 737 (App. Div. 1988).

Suitt-Green, supra., involved an initial filing of tenure charges pertinent to which the board did not find probable cause to certify the charges to the Commissioner, and the teacher was returned to employment. Subsequent tenure charges were based upon incidents previously considered by the board pertinent to the prior tenure charges, as well as incidents occurring subsequently. Suitt-Green, Initial Decision at 22-23.

The presiding administrative law judge (ALJ) denied a motion to dismiss by the employee which was based, in part, upon an argument that the later tenure charges which were based on incidents previously considered and not certified by the board should be dismissed because they were time-barred by N.J.S.A. 18A6-13. Id. at 26. The ALJ held, regarding the provision in question:

> The statute does not state, nor can it be reasonably implied, that where such charges are not certified, subsequent refiling and reconsideration of the same charges, which may result in certification to the Commissioner, is barred.

The Commissioner affirmed the ALJ's ruling, adopting his reasoning. Suitt-Green, Decision at 44-45.

The documents filed by respondent in support of her motion do not indicate whether Perez again formally filed tenure charges against Jakubiak with Hall subsequent to December 9, 1996. In addition, there is no evidence of formal action by the District determining not to certify the charges, subsequent to the service of the December 9, 1996 charges to the Commissioner. In those respects, as well as the fact that respondent was not formally returned to her prior employment, the facts of the current matter differ from those considered in Suitt-Green. However, I am persuaded that such differences are not material.

The holding of Suitt-Green is applicable in a case in which a local board does not determine whether or not tenure charges constitute probable cause. Respondent cites no authority for the proposition that the same charges cannot thereafter be reconsidered by the board and subsequently certified to the Commissioner.

The initial tenure charges are deemed to have been dismissed, but there is nothing to preclude reconsideration of the matter and certification of the same charges to the Commissioner subsequently. The time period between the initial service of the tenure charges and subsequent certification to the Commissioner was not unduly long.

I CONCLUDE that respondent's motion to dismiss should be denied.

TENURE CHARGES

FINDINGS

Based upon a review of the entire record, including credibility assessments of the witnesses, I FIND the following to be additional facts.

Respondent has resided in Newark for 48 years. She graduated from West Side High School in Newark and, subsequent to receiving graduate and post-graduate degrees, commenced her education career in 1961, teaching seventh-grade social studies in Hillside, New Jersey. Jakubiak has a permanent teaching certificate and a license to teach secondary English, social studies, and general science in grades 7 through 12. She also has an educational media certificate and a school librarian certificate to work in a public library.

Respondent was employed by the then Newark Board of Education (Board) in 1962 and taught English at a junior high school until 1964. Jakubiak was thereafter employed at a junior high school in Edison, New Jersey, until 1966. In 1968, respondent was reemployed by the Board, as a school librarian at an elementary school, where she was assigned until 1972. In 1973, Jakubiak was employed at the Board's central office as a textbook librarian. The following year she worked at the textbook evaluation library and at an elementary school. She was the textbook coordinator for five years. Jakubiak served as the librarian at Vailsburg High School from 1979 until 1988. She subsequently taught English at Malcolm X Shabazz High School. From approximately 1988 until 1994, appellant was the education media specialist at Central High and, thereafter, at University High. In September 1996, respondent was assigned as the library media specialist at Mount Vernon. Respondent commenced her assignment on September 3, 1996.

From 1976 until the date she was suspended, Jakubiak also taught English as a second language in the Newark Adult Basic Education Program. In addition, she was employed part-time as a reference librarian by the City of Newark Public Library (Public Library).

Upon assignment to Mount Vernon, Jakubiak, on her own time, made efforts to acquaint herself with elementary school books and materials, attended pertinent conferences, and purchased books, with her own money, to read to her students.

Although her physician recommended she be absent during September 1996 because of an apparent sciatic condition, Jakubiak reported to her assignment.

Mount Vernon is an elementary school, housing grades kindergarten through eighth. It is a " . . . very diverse school" of approximately 1,100 students. The students come ". . . from many different countries." (Tr., Feb. 11, 1998, at 10). There are 149 individuals employed at Mount Vernon, including 73 teachers.

Perez has been employed in public schools in New Jersey since 1972. Perez initially commenced employment by respondent in late August or early September 1996. He has been the principal at Mount Vernon since September 1996. He is responsible for all matters pertaining to the school, including the welfare of the children and staff performance. Donald Marinaro (Marinaro) is an Assistant Superintendent in the district. Marinaro is Perez's immediate supervisor.

Schwartz's responsibilities include supervision of some of the staff at Mount Vernon. She is also responsible for ensuring the safety and well-being of students in grades kindergarten through two. Dandridge is responsible for grades six through eight and was respondent's immediate supervisor during the 1996/97 school year.

Resciniti, who has been employed by the district for 25 years, is in charge of grades 3, 4, and 5 at Mount Vernon. He is responsible for the supervision and monitoring of instruction within classrooms and for school records.

The public entrance to Mount Vernon is at the front of the building, via glass doors. Several steps lead to a porch area, a large cement area in front of the building. The front door leads into a foyer area, which contains a desk for security personnel. One or two security personnel are "invariably" ". . . either sitting or mulling around." (Id. at 27.) Security personnel are in the lobby ". . . most of the time." (Tr., Feb. 17, 1998, at 73.)

As of October 1996, three or four security personnel were assigned to the school, one purpose being to ensure that anyone entering signed into a book. An individual entering the building via the front door would be required to turn right to enter the library via a corridor entrance to the library. The library is approximately 25 feet from the lobby and is located in ". . . the front of the building," diagonally across from Schwartz's office. (Id. at 13.)

The library is accessible by three doors. One is the door at the porch area in front of the school. Another door leads to a corridor within the building. This door contains a small glass pane. Glass panes are also located at both sides of the door. As of October 1996, there was a "bolt" on the bottom of the corridor door. (Id. at 76.)

Resciniti's office is located adjacent to the library. A third door leads to his office. That door is not utilized for general access to the library. It is usually ". . . bolted and secured." (Id. at 74.) The door is always locked. However, access can be obtained to the library from Resciniti's office. The reverse is not true, that is, access cannot be gained to Resciniti's office from the library. All doors in classrooms at Mount Vernon, including the library corridor door, can be opened from the inside, for safety reasons.

The main office consists of a reception area, which can be accessed via a door from the corridor, and Perez's office. Perez's office can also be accessed via a corridor door. Schwartz's office is to the right of Perez's office. The main office is approximately twenty feet from Resciniti's office.

As of the fall of 1996, the library at Mount Vernon was utilized by the City of Newark as a public library, in addition to a District library. The library functioned as a branch of the Public Library system. The library was open to the public from 2 p.m. every day until evening hours, varying during the week. At certain times, it was utilized by both City of Newark Library personnel as well as by school personnel. Delores DeLeo (DeLeo) was the City librarian assigned to the Mount Vernon library. The school library has apparently been utilized as a public library for many years.

It was DeLeo's practice, as of October 1996, to post a sign on the inside of the door accessing the school corridor stating: "no exit." It was the intent that any individuals, including students, entering the library after school dismissal, were to use the door leading to the front porch. (Id. at 76.) Students are dismissed at 2:45 p.m.

There are round tables in the library, at which students sit during library class. The library is approximately 37 feet by 32 feet. A circulation desk is located in an area to the right of the door accessing the porch area. Students are brought to the library for library instruction by their classroom teachers. They enter the library via the corridor entrance.

As of the fall of 1996, there was an intercom in the library, to the left of the corridor door. The intercom was part of a school-wide system which allowed personnel in the main office to communicate with classes throughout the building. In order to communicate with the main office from the library, personnel had to insert a key into the intercom "switchbox," activating a "signal" in the main office. (Id. at 80; See also, Tr., Feb. 17, 1998, at 105.)

Upon her assignment to Mount Vernon, Jakubiak, who did not have a key to the library corridor door, requested one. She spoke to Dandridge and the school custodian repeatedly regarding the matter from September until approximately October 10, 1996. Jakubiak also asked DeLeo for a key to the door; DeLeo had a key.

Respondent was unable to open the corridor door to the library without a key, and she regularly entered the library through Resciniti's office. Her only other alternative was to request that a custodian open the corridor door each morning. If a custodian were cleaning the library, the corridor door would be open. In the absence of a custodian, she had to wait for Resciniti's arrival to gain access to the library.

Respondent's practice was to use a piece of wood as a wedge to keep the corridor door open during class. The door opened outward. However, the door, which had a lock in the doorknob on the outside of the door, locked if it were subsequently closed. It was not uncommon during lunch periods, or other times during the day when children were in the hall, for the door to be closed by individuals outside the library. The door would then be locked from the outside. Jakubiak would have to interrupt her lessons to open the door if teachers and students wanted to enter the library. The door could be opened from inside the library. If it were unlocked from the outside, it could also be opened from the corridor, if closed. DeLeo told Jakubiak that the lock on the corridor door was placed as it was because she wanted the door to remain closed and wanted individuals to enter the library via the door at the front of the building, for safety reasons.

Respondent also did not have a key to activate the intercom in the library. She requested one from Schwartz, Dandridge, and Resciniti.

DeLeo kept a telephone in her desk in the library. When she was present, she connected the telephone. However, when not at Mount Vernon, she kept the telephone in a locked drawer. Jakubiak did not have a key to that drawer.

The City librarian's area is approximately six feet by six feet in size. The circulation desk, which is located in front of that area, bends to the south side of the library. Adjacent to the circulation desk are a hallway with windows and a library area. The circulation desk is located between the passageway and the doorway to the librarian's area.

The librarian's area is "built with shelves." (Tr., February 17, 1998, at 96), that is, bookshelves constitute the walls. The "walls" are approximately seven to eight feet high. Audiovisual material, a desk, a sink, a computer, and a telephone are located in the area. It is intended for use by library staff, not students. The entranceway is approximately three feet wide. One cannot see into the back area unless standing directly in front of the entranceway.

During the 1996/97 school year, L.G. was in the homeroom class of a Mr. Volpe (Volpe). There were approximately 25 students in the class. The class had library instruction from 12:10 p.m. until 1 o'clock p.m.

On October 9, 1996, Volpe escorted the class to the library for library instruction. L.G. initially would not be seated. Jakubiak asked if he wanted to sit in a chair near her desk, which students generally liked to do. L.G. refused. L.G. had a "very serious speech problem" and was "immature." (Id. at 64-65.) He was classified as a special education student during the subsequent school year.

Early in the period, Perez escorted a seventh-or eighth-grade student to the library. Perez told Jakubiak that the student was "having a problem" in class and requested that he be allowed to sit and read in the library until the end of the period. (Tr., Feb. 18, 1998, at 40.) Jakubiak responded in the affirmative, and the student remained until the end of the period.

Respondent also told Perez that she was having a "problem" with L.G. and that L.G. was a "handful." Perez told respondent to utilize her "educational skills" in efforts to have L.G. be seated. (Id. at 41.)

L.G. eventually sat at a table. Jakubiak instructed the children to turn their chairs so they could face her as she read a story to the class. She was approximately six to seven feet from them. The students seated closest to the library corridor door, including L.G., were approximately five feet from that door.

Consistent with her general practice, respondent had propped open the corridor door. Approximately twenty minutes after the class commenced, L.G. got up from his seat and entered the school hallway, closing the door. L.G. "ran" out of the door "very fast." (Id. at 48.) Jakubiak observed L.G. doing so and immediately walked towards the door. She and Schwartz approached the door at approximately the same time. Schwartz knocked on the door, and Jakubiak opened it.

Schwartz inquired why the door was locked, and Jakubiak told her of the situation regarding the door key. Jakubiak told Schwartz that she had requested a key from Dandridge. Jakubiak also indicated that she had not had a key since her assignment to Mount Vernon. Schwartz told Jakubiak that she would attempt to obtain a key for respondent. Schwartz was aware that if the "lock was left on," an individual would not be able to enter the library via the corridor door. (Id. at 59.) Schwartz did not state that L.G. had left the building. After conversing some more, Schwartz "put" L.G. in the class and left. (Id. at 45.) To Jakubiak's observation, L.G. was not crying. L.G. remained the balance of the period, behaving appropriately. Jakubiak spoke with L.G., telling him that he should never leave the room without her permission.

Shortly after Schwartz left the library, Schwartz, Resciniti, Perez, and Dandridge came and observed the lock on the corridor door. They turned the doorknob, apparently observing that the door locked when it closed. They did not speak with Jakubiak, who had resumed presenting her lesson to the class.

Schwartz subsequently spoke to Dandridge, who confirmed that Jakubiak had previously requested a key but that he ". . . hadn't been able to take care of it." (Tr., Feb. 11, 1998, at 58.) Schwartz told Dandridge that she would obtain a key for respondent. On October 10, 1996, Resciniti came to the library and gave Jakubiak a key to the corridor door.

Schwartz also subsequently sent a memorandum to Jakubiak dated October 9, 1996. That memorandum read as follows:

> Let this memo serve as critical reminder that legally you are responsible for all children under your supervision. Furthermore, be aware that the correct procedure for > reporting a child who walks out of class is to call the main office immediately. Dereliction of duty will not be tolerated under any circumstances.

Generally, if an emergent situation occurs in the library, a teacher would be expected to ". . . use the intercom or automatically open the door in the corridor" to contact security. (Tr., Feb. 11, 1998, at 27.) In Resciniti's view, a reasonable response by respondent concerning the incident would have been for her to exit the library and alert security to the situation, walk to the main office, or retrieve L.G. herself.

Shirley Key (Key) has been employed by the Board/District for 29 years. She was a fifth-grade teacher at Mount Vernon during the 1996/97 school year. Key was also the Newark Teacher's Union (NTU) representative at Mount Vernon.

There were approximately 25 to 30 students in Key's class. Approximately 85 percent were of African-American background. Z.L., T.T., A.G., D., and R.D.A. were students in Key's class. T.T. and Z.L. had been classmates for three years. A.G. met Z.L.'s parents in early 1997, when they came to the classroom.

Z.L. is the youngest of four children. At least one of the older children, a brother, attended Mount Vernon. M.L. is Z.L.'s mother. M.L., who participated actively in school matters, had had prior contact with Perez, as did her son.

Key spoke with M.L. prior to October 23, 1996, regarding Z.L.'s failure to complete school work, requesting permission to keep Z.L. after school. Z.L. also misbehaved in Key's class, "little pranky things, like hitting someone. . ." ". . . or putting her foot, trying to trip up one of the boys." (Tr., Feb. 17, 1998, at 23.) Key disciplined Z.L. in various ways, including keeping Z.L. after class, giving her additional work, and changing Z.L.'s classroom seat.

Key's class had library instruction from approximately 10:30 a.m. until 11:20 a.m. Between September 3 and October 23, 1996, respondent complained to Key regarding the conduct of Key's students during library instruction. D. was especially "a problem." (Tr., Feb. 18, 1998, at 75.) Jakubiak did not speak with any teachers other than Key regarding problems with student behavior. Respondent taught more than 850 students weekly.

Key's classroom was on the second floor of the building. As was her practice, Key escorted the class to the library on October 23, 1996, for their instruction with Jakubiak. The class was ". . . acting rowdy and noisy. . ." as they walked to the library. (Tr., Feb. 13, 1998, at 26; see also, Tr., Feb. 18, 1998, at 61.) Students were "yelling," "hitting their books" on walls, and "dropping their books." (Tr., Feb. 13, 1998, at 28.) In the classroom, D. was "[a]bout to fight" with one of the other students. (Id. at 29.) He ". . .always tried to fight with the other students." However, by that time, Jakubiak had ". . . got used to him." She was therefore "prepared" and she "calmed him down." (Ibid. See also, Tr., Feb. 12, 1998, at 30.) Students talked "real loud" during class. (Tr., Feb. 17, 1998, at 40.)

The lesson for that day, a continuing one, was for the students to work on reports. The purpose was to teach the students to use different resource sources in the library, including the card catalog. The card catalog contains records of all the books in the library, available for both the school and the Public Library. Encyclopedias are located in proximity to the card catalog.

During the period, Z.L. got up from her assigned seat, going to other tables, talking to classmates. Jakubiak spoke to Z.L. several times. Although Z.L. would return to her table, she would then move to other tables.

Towards the end of the period, while assisting one of the students, Jakubiak heard the drawers of the card catalog ". . . being slammed open and slammed shut." (Id. at 64.) She turned and observed Z.L. opening and shutting the drawers "very hard." (Ibid.) Jakubiak was concerned that a drawer would break. She asked Z.L. to stop and to go to the "librarian's office" in the library. (Id. at 65.) Z.L. did so.

Jakubiak spoke to Z.L. for several minutes, telling her that respondent intended to call Mrs. L. and to ask Key for Mrs. L's telephone number. Respondent told Z.L. to sit at the librarian's desk and continue with her work; Z.L. had not completed her lesson for that day. Jakubiak returned to the class. There were approximately five minutes left to the class period. Bookshelves are located from approximately two to six feet from the librarian's office. Students were utilizing books in proximity to that area. Some students were "running around" the classroom while Z.L. was in the librarian's area. (Tr., Feb. 13, 1998, at 21.)

The class became unruly towards the end of the period. Jakubiak repeatedly told D., who was standing, to sit; and the class, to quiet down. The students eventually did, because R.D.A., who had entered the hall, told the class that Key was coming.

Key returned to the library at the end of the period to escort the students back to their classroom. The class was "noisy. (Tr., Feb. 17, 1998, at 23.) Some of the students were in line; others were not. There was "confusion" in the class. (Tr., Feb. 17, 1998, at 9.)

Jakubiak told Key that the class had been "really acting up" and that they "won't behave." (Id. at 8.) Respondent noted that Z.L., especially, had misbehaved. Jakubiak told Key that respondent needed to obtain Ms. L's telephone number because she wanted to contact Mrs. L. The two spoke near the circulation desk, in proximity to the librarian's area.

Key observed that Z.L. was in the librarian's area, standing behind the desk. Key did not ask Jakubiak why Z.L. was there. Z.L. was not crying. Jakubiak told Z.L. to get in line with her class, which Z.L. did. Z.L. made no comments to respondent regarding any events which had transpired during library class. Z.L. did not speak with Key, neither upon Key's return to the library nor the class's return to their homeroom, regarding any events which had occurred during library class. Z.L., more specifically, did not tell Key that Jakubiak had slapped her. None of the other students said anything to Key regarding events transpiring during library class, nor, specifically, that Jakubiak had slapped Z.L.

Z.L. went to Perez's office shortly after dismissal that day. Resciniti and Schwartz, as well as Perez, were present.

Z.L. was crying and "highly agitated." (Tr., Feb. 17, 1998, at 120.) Z.L. stated that when she was in the library, during library class, ". . . the librarian had taken her and slapped her" on the face. (Id. at 120, see also, id. at 36.) Z.L. stated that she was alone with Jakubiak when respondent slapped her. Z.L. was "upset, teary-eyed," and "a little shaken." (Tr., Feb. 11, 1998, at 36.) Z.L. also stated that respondent had said that Z.L. was not paying attention and "pulled on her" and brought her "to the back area." (Id. at 93.) Z.L. told Perez that Jakubiak had slapped her with the "back of her hands," that the incident had occurred at the beginning of the class period, and that Z.L. stayed in the librarian's area until the end of the period. (Tr., Feb. 17, 1998, at 176.) No one asked Z.L. how she had behaved during class. Z.L. was in Perez's office for approximately 40 minutes.

Perez, Resciniti, and Schwartz thereafter accompanied Z.L. to the library so that she could demonstrate what she had told them. They were in the library for a "few minutes," not more than five to seven minutes. (Id. at 90.) Z.L. showed the adults where the alleged incident had occurred. Z.L. indicated where she had been sitting in the library and stated that respondent "pulled her to the back," where she had been "slapped." (Id. at 92.) Although "not hysterical," Z.L. was "upset" at that time. (Ibid.) She was "teary-eyed." (Id. at 93.)

Perez called the Division of Youth and Family Services (DYFS), in the State Department of Human Services, because it is respondent's policy to notify DYFS

whenever there is a report of "child abuse." (Tr., Feb. 17, 1998, at 185.) Perez advised that Z.L. had said a teacher had slapped her and that there were no witnesses, to his knowledge. He was told to handle the matter administratively. Perez attempted to call Z.L.'s parents, but they were unavailable. He spoke to a sibling of Z.L.

At some point, Perez apparently was able to contact M.L. by telephone on October 23, 1996. M.L. subsequently told Z.L. that Perez had called regarding an "incident" at school involving Jakubiak. (Tr., Feb. 13, 1998, at 57-58.) Z.L. told M.L. that respondent had "slapped" her. (Id. at 58.) Z.L. stated that she had used several books in the library and then went to the card catalog, that Jakubiak had told Z.L. to be seated, and that as she commenced leaving the book area, Z.L. went to help another student, and Jakubiak, at that point, "came and grabbed her. . ." Z.L. also stated that she told respondent that the latter was hurting her and that Jakubiak then took Z.L. to a room in the back "and slapped her." (Id. at 59.)

The next day, October 24, 1996, Mr. and Mrs. L. accompanied Z.L. to school, intending to speak with Jakubiak. Perez was outside the school building. Perez saw M.L. "charging up to the building." She appeared to " . . . have an attitude...." (Tr., Feb. 17, 1998, at 131.) M.L. introduced herself and her husband. Perez told M.L.: "I apologize for what happened because Z. has always been a very good student." (Tr., Feb. 13, 1998, at 61.)

M.L. indicated she wanted to meet with Jakubiak. Perez responded that personnel was handling the matter administratively and would keep her informed. Perez spoke with M.L. for approximately five to seven minutes. M.L. was "very, very hot under the collar," threatening to sue Jakubiak and to take other action. (Tr., Feb. 17, 1998, at 136-137.) Perez asked Mr. and Mrs. L. to wait in his office, where he would talk to them. They did so.

Perez asked Key to come to his office, which she did. Schwartz was also present, as was Z.L. M.L. advised him of what Z.L. had told her parents. M.L.

expressed a desire to meet with respondent and her intention to "press charges." (Id. at 62.) M.L. threatened to sue respondent and the District and to call local officials. Referencing his knowledge of Z.L. and her brother, Perez stated that he could not ". . . tolerate this type of behavior . . ." and wondered how such could occur regarding Z.L. (Id. at 63-64.) He advised that he could not ensure that M.L. would be able to meet with Jakubiak, noting that the latter was not at Mount Vernon.

Perez advised Mr. and Mrs. L. that administrative personnel were investigating the matter and that there were "always two sides to the story." (Tr., Feb. 17, 1998, at 139.) Perez also advised that he had already contacted his immediate supervisor and DYFS. Perez also indicated that Key was in an awkward position because of her status as an NTU representative as well as a teacher. Z.L. and her parents left Perez's office between 10:30 and 11 o'clock a.m. Perez subsequently learned that M.L. had contacted Hall's office.

Jakubiak reported to school on October 24, 1996. During her second class period, Resciniti accompanied a substitute teacher to her class, advising respondent that she was to attend a conference in Perez's office. She went to the principal's office.

Resciniti, Dandridge, and Key were also present. Consistent with his practice, Perez had requested that Key be present because she was Jakubiak's "NTU representative." (Tr., Feb. 17, 1998, at 122.) Perez believed that Key "was to defend Mrs. Jakubiak's rights." (Id. at 147.) Perez advised the others that he had requested that Key be present so that Jakubiak could be represented.

Perez told Jakubiak of Z.L.'s report that respondent had slapped Z.L., that, consistent with policy, he had contacted Mr. and Mrs. L., as well as DYFS, and that Mr. and Mrs. L. were very upset. Perez indicated that M.L. was "very furious" and had stated that she intended to call individuals in the Superintendent's office. (Tr., Feb. 17, 1998, at 183.) Perez also indicated that M.L. was "very upset," had made a complaint against Jakubiak, that "policemen are coming to my house and are going to arrest" respondent, and that M.L. had called "politicians" regarding the matter. (Tr., Feb. 18, 1998, at 85-86.) He also stated that the purpose of the meeting was to discuss the alleged incident. Perez asked Jakubiak to make a statement regarding the allegations.

Respondent denied slapping Z.L Jakubiak stated that the children, especially Z.L., had misbehaved from the beginning of class. Respondent referenced the card catalog and stated that Z.L. had run about the room. Jakubiak noted that Z.L. had refused to do certain work and was yelling. Respondent stated that she had ". . . separated her from the rest of the class. She took her over in the library area." (Id. at 12.) In response to repeated inquiries from Perez regarding why respondent had separated Z.L. and if Jakubiak had touched Z.L., respondent stated that she never touched Z.L. but " . . . only removed her from the rest of the class." (Ibid.) Respondent also indicated that she had "punished" Z.L. by placing her in a secluded area. (Tr., Feb. 17, 1998, at 13.) Respondent stated that she had "put her in the back part of the library, behind the circulation desk." (Id. at 69.) Respondent also stated that she had previously advised Key of behavioral problems with the class.

Jakubiak stated that Z.L. sat in the librarian's office until Key returned to the library, approximately five minutes. Jakubiak denied shoving, pushing, slapping, hitting, or touching Z.L. in any fashion. Perez "accused" respondent of corporal punishment, and Jakubiak queried what had transpired that could constitute such. (Tr., Feb. 18, 1998, at 84.) Key queried why students in Z.L.'s class behaved for her and not in respondent's class. Jakubiak responded that Key was the "teacher" and the students therefore had to behave for her, noting that respondent was new at the school and that the students did not yet know her. (Id. at 85.) Respondent also stated that the "teacher" was supposed to "back up the librarian" and that respondent needed Key's help to maintain discipline. (Ibid.) Jakubiak made statements to the effect that she did not have the knowledge nor skills for dealing with students of the age of the youngsters in question and "with this type of kids." (Ibid.) Jakubiak also stated that she could not "teach these children" and never had "any experience with these kind of children," referencing prior experience in another school, where "she had done so well." (Tr., Feb. 17, 1998, at 14.) Respondent indicated that she "couldn't handle that type of child, that she was from the "high school." (Id. at 68.) She was not "trained to handle the students." (Id. at 71.) At that point, Key, who was "offended" by Jakubiak's references to the students, left the meeting, effectively ending it. (Ibid.) Key was aware that Jakubiak had not previously been assigned to elementary schools. Key interpreted Jakubiak's remarks as referencing the ages and grade levels of students at Mount Vernon, and as ". . . speaking racially as well." (Id. at 17.) Jakubiak had previously told Resciniti that she found it difficult to work with younger children. At the end of the meeting which lasted approximately ten minutes, Perez advised respondent that he would be notifying Marinaro of what had transpired.

Subsequently, on October 24, 1996, Jakubiak went to Perez's office, advising him that she did not feel well and requesting permission to go home. Consistent with his practice, Perez asked Jakubiak to write a note regarding her request, which she did. He indicated his approval on the note and returned it to her. Jakubiak was "very upset" by the prior meeting and felt as if she were going to "faint." (Tr., Feb. 18, 1998, at 86-87.) Perez suggested that respondent go to the school nurse's office. Because she did not know where it was, he escorted her there.

The nurse checked petitioner's blood pressure, which was "high," gave respondent a glass of water, and told her to be seated. The nurse then called Perez. After speaking to him, the nurse told Jakubiak that Perez had indicated that respondent should write a statement regarding what had transpired to date, specifically, what had transpired regarding Z.L. Respondent did so. The nurse thereafter left to make a copy of the document, returning to give it to Jakubiak. The statement read as follows:

> Today I was called to a conference by Mr. Perez. He told me that a girl in Mrs. Key's fifth grade class said I hit her yesterday. The student was unruly. She got out of her seat and refused to do her research assignment. She was around the room and would not listen. When she came to the card catalog, she started to open and slam the doors shut. I took her in the library office and reprimanded her and had her stay there to the end of the period which was > about five more minutes. Not only was this girl unruly but many students did not do their work. Every week so far, there has been a fight in the class involving a student named D. I have reported this to the teacher, Mrs. Key, but no help has been given to me.

Jakubiak left Mount Vernon on that day at approximately 12 o'clock p.m. Upon returning home, she called her personal physician, a Dr. Syracuse (Syracuse). Syracuse told respondent, who was "very, very upset" to immediately come to his office, which she did. (Tr., Feb. 18, 1998, at 89.) She also called and spoke with Pietro Pattino, who apparently is an NTU representative.

Perez apprised Marinaro of the situation by memorandum dated October 24, 1996, to alert Marinaro to "an alleged child abuse by a teacher. . ." (Tr., Feb. 17, 1998, at 123.) Perez referenced his communications with Z.L. and M.L., the meetings with M.L. and Jakubiak, his communications with DYFS, and the fact that Jakubiak left school early on October 24, 1996, after being seen by the nurse. Perez summarized Z.L.'s initial communications as follows:

> Upon further fact-finding, Z. communicated to us how Mrs. Jakubiak had called her into a secluded area behind the circulation desk, a cubicle not readily visible from the rest of the library, physically grabbed her closer and slapped her across the face with the back of the hand. Mrs. Schwartz, Mr. Resciniti, and myself spoke with the crying child at length, and tried our best to calm her down and reassure her 'she did the right thing by informing us of the incident.'

He noted, regarding his initial communications with Mr. and Mrs. L, that:

> . . . I informed Mr. and Mrs. L. that I must meet with the teacher involved and ascertain her view of the incident, and depending on information shared, I would take appropriate action . . .

Perez summarized a statement attributed by him to Jakubiak:

> Mrs. Jakubiak denied slapping the child but did not deny bringing the child over to the secluded area and admonishing her 'for her behavior.' Mrs. Jakubiak claimed the child was unruly and disruptive during class. Mrs. Key interjected that when she picked-up her children, she found Z. was not with the other children. Mrs. Jakubiak stated that she had punished Z. by making her stand in the secluded area. A lively debate ensued about Mrs. Jakubiak's discipline methods, her ability, judgment and skills (or lack thereof) in dealing with class room situations. Mrs. Jakubiak openly claimed not to have any knowledge or skills for dealing with this age youngsters and with 'this type of kids.'

Perez also advised Marinaro that M.L. had indicated she had contacted an attorney, local police officials, Marinaro's and Hall's offices, and other individuals. Perez concluded as follows:

> It should be noted, this is the third 'major' situation involving Mrs. Jakubiak since she was assigned to Mount Vernon less than two months ago. Mrs. Jakubiak does not disguise her displeasure about her present assignment. Furthermore, I have spoken to her on various occasions about her 'negative' approach (unsmiling, apparently moody?) demeanor to the children. To me, she has often responded negatively, she is often argumentative, and at times, even ill-mannered and rude.
>
> I ask that Mrs. Jakubiak be separated from Mount Vernon School immediately.

Perez did not speak to any students, other than Z.L., prior to sending the memorandum. He did not enclose a copy of respondent's October 24, 1996 statement with it. Resciniti saw Perez's memorandum at the time it was written.

Also on October 24, 1996, Perez wrote a formal notification of reprimand to Jakubiak. The reprimand read as follows:

> On Wednesday, October 23, 1996, you were involved in an incident with a 5 grade student. By your own volition and testament, the manner in which you chose to handle the classroom situation was totally incorrect. I found response unprofessional, reprehensible, and totally out of character for someone in public education.
>
> Contrary to NJ State Statutes, local district standing policy and common sense, you chose to utilize corporal punishment as an instructional and/or corrective measure. At best, your judgment was faulty. Consider this communication a formal letter of reprimand.
>
> Also, please be advised, your actions may possibly result in legal proceedings against you by the parents of the student.

Perez called M.L. on October 25, 1996. M.L. reiterated that she wanted to speak with Jakubiak. Perez advised that respondent was not at Mount Vernon at that time. M.L. thereafter communicated her desire to speak with Jakubiak until approximately late November 1996. Perez indicated that Jakubiak was ill and still not at Mount Vernon. He eventually told M.L. that Jakubiak was ill, that she was no longer at Mount Vernon and that he did not know when she would return.

M.L. filed a complaint against Jakubiak with local police officials on October 24, 1996.[2] M.L. also communicated, over an extended period of time, with various individuals regarding the matter, including several local councilpersons and/or their staff personnel, a Mrs. Ortiz (Ortiz), in Marinaro's office, and individuals in Hall's office, including Kim Caddy (Caddy), who apparently is Hall's secretary. M.L. called a "list" of individuals, "quite a few names. . ." (Tr., Feb. 18, 1998, at 88.)

[2] That matter was still pending at the time of hearings in the current case.

Caddy called M.L. on October 25, 1996, advising that Hall " . . . was informed of the situation" and inquired what had transpired. M.L. indicated that she had met with Perez and that she wanted to ensure "something was done . . ." Caddy indicated ". . . that it would be handled. It would be taken care of." (Id. at 81.) However, Caddy did not reference any specific contemplated action. Approximately one week later, a local councilperson to whom M.L. had previously spoken advised M.L. that Hall was "taking care" of the matter and that it would be "resolved." (Id. at 85.)

Z.L. returned to school on October 25, 1996. Jacqueline Blamo (Blamo), a guidance counselor at Mount Vernon, met with Z.L., at Perez's request, a standard procedure in a situation requiring "crisis management." (Tr., Feb. 17, 1998, at 130.) M.L. subsequently spoke to Blamo, who advised that Z.L. was "very frightened" but eventually would be all right. (Id. at 110.)

October 24, 1996 was a Thursday. Respondent returned to Mount Vernon the following Monday. She gave a note from Syracuse, dated October 24, 1996, to the school secretary. The secretary made a copy of it at Jakubiak's request. Syracuse's note stated that he had seen respondent because of "an acute stress reaction" and that he had placed her on a medical leave of absence until she recovered, "hopefully" by October 28, 1996. (Exh. R-3.)

Respondent then proceeded to the school library. Resciniti subsequently entered the library and told Jakubiak that Perez wanted to speak with her. Jakubiak, apparently accompanied by Resciniti, went to the principal's office. Perez gave respondent an envelope, addressed to her, advising that "this is your transfer" and that respondent was to report to Marinaro's office as soon as possible so that the latter could complete the transfer. (Tr., Feb. 1998, at 91.) Jakubiak returned to the library, retrieved personal items, and subsequently drove to Marinaro's office, which is at Camden.

Petitioner spoke to a secretary at Camden, indicating why she was present. The secretary responded that she had no knowledge of the matter and escorted Jakubiak to a "little room," "like a little closet with a little table and two chairs," telling respondent to be seated. Another teacher was in the room. (Id. at 91.) No one other than the secretary spoke to Jakubiak, and no one returned to the room.

The secretary told Jakubiak to return the next day, and subsequently respondent assumed "that she should." (Ibid.) The secretary also told Jakubiak to call her if respondent were to be absent any day. The secretary gave Jakubiak a telephone number and a key to the rest room.

Jakubiak reported to Camden daily until she was suspended. Respondent was required to sign in each morning. Each day, upon leaving Camden, Jakubiak signed out. The other teacher told Jakubiak that they were "allowed 45 minutes for lunch." (Id. at 95.) They could do "whatever we wanted" the rest of the time. For example, they read, talked, and periodically took a walk.

While at Camden, Jakubiak would see Marinaro and other personnel, but they never spoke to her. She attempted to speak to them but was advised that they could not talk to her regarding the matter, although all were "cordial" and said hello." (Id. at 96.) Respondent attempted to discuss the matter with a "Mrs. Watkins" and a "Maria," whom she believed worked directly with Marinaro, but they told her that they could not speak with her about the matter and that ". . . some people sit there up to two years 'til they decide what the problem is." (Id. at 102.)

On December 9, 1996, when respondent returned to Camden from lunch, the school secretary advised Jakubiak that Marinaro wanted to speak with her and escorted Jakubiak to his office. Marinaro informed respondent that "human resources" was sending her a letter, that she "should be on the lookout for this letter when I went home," that he did not know the content of the letter, and that she should call him if it arrived before 6 o'clock p.m. Marinaro gave Jakubiak his office telephone number.

Upon arriving home that day, Jakubiak found no letter in her mailbox, which is locate outside her house. She therefore assumed that someone from the District would bring the letter to her door. When no one did, she subsequently again went to the mail box, between approximately 8:30 and 9 o'clock p.m., finding an envelope.

The envelope contained a letter, dated December 9, 1996, from Canter and a packet of documents. The letter read as follows:

> Please be advised, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-8.3, you are hereby suspended, with pay from your duties and assignments as an educational media specialist in the Newark School District pending an investigation of inappropriate conduct.
>
> Any school property currently in your possession should be returned to Human Resource Services, Room 813. You are directed to remain off school property until you are notified
>
> Your cooperation in this matter is appreciated.

A portion of the letter was designated for respondent to acknowledge, with date, receipt of the notification, which respondent apparently did not do. The letter also contained the following notation: "Hand-delivered by Courier Service." (Ibid.) There was an indication that copies were sent to Hall, Perez, Marinaro, counsel for petitioner, and the NTU.

Included with the letter were copies of tenure charges, the December 9, 1996 memorandum from Perez, the memorandum from Schwartz dated October 9, 1996, the October 24, 1996 formal notification of reprimand, and Perez's October 24, 1996 memorandum to Marinaro. The statement of charges was dated December 9, 1996 and was executed by Perez. Neither Marinaro, nor any other individual had discussed the alleged incident with Jakubiak since October 1996.

On December 18, 1996, respondent executed a Statement of Evidence in Opposition to Tenure Charges, denying the allegations. Jakubiak's counsel sent a copy of this document to the Board's counsel.

Resciniti did not see the tenure charges until the hearings in the current matter. Resciniti never spoke to any students in Z.L.'s class, including A.G., R.D.A., or T.T., regarding any incident which occurred in October 1996.

After speaking with Marinaro several times subsequent to October 24, 1998, Perez recommended that disciplinary action be taken against respondent. Marinaro had the final authority to decide whether discipline would be imposed. Perez recommended that the matter be handled "administratively," i.e., by Marinaro, "for whatever disciplinary procedures had to be in place." (Tr., Feb. 17, 1998, at 166.) Perez did not recommend a specific form of discipline, apparently such not being within his authority. Perez did not review Jakubiak's personnel file prior to making his recommendation. He did not know how long respondent had been an employee of the Board/District. Perez sent Jakubiak's file to Marinaro. Perez "lost track" of respondent subsequent to her transfer to Camden, until he learned that Jakubiak had been suspended with pay. (Tr., Feb. 17, 1998, at 144.)

Apparently, Perez interpreted Jakubiak's October 24, 1996, statement, which referenced that Z.L. had been misbehaving from the commencement of library class, to mean that Z.L. was in the librarian's area for almost the whole period, fifty minutes. The tenure charges in that respect therefore referenced the time indicated. The allegations that Jakubiak physically grabbed Z.L. and slapped the latter on her face with the back of respondent's hand were apparently based upon Z.L.'s reports to administrators, including Perez. However, Perez was not involved in preparation of the tenure charges, although he reviewed and agreed with them after they were written and signed them. Perez believed Z.L.'s account of what had transpired, rather than that of Jakubiak.

The L. family moved from Newark in September 1997. M.L. subsequently spoke regarding the matter with several public officials and/or their staff members and other individuals, including Ortiz. M.L. did not communicate with Perez from at least September 1997. M.L. did not speak with any employees of Mount Vernon regarding the matter, other than Perez, and, on one occasion, Resciniti, in a very general manner. Key did not speak with M.L. regarding the matter subsequent to October 23, 1996. Resciniti also did not speak with M.L. regarding the allegations. He had previously had contact the prior year with Z.L.'s brother concerning a school activity.

Perez discussed the matter with students in Z.L.'s class on February 6, 1998, in preparation for hearings in the current matter, at the request of the Board's counsel. Perez spoke with 11 students, those remaining at Mount Vernon. At Perez's direction, the students assembled in the school auditorium. After confirming basic data, Perez asked the following:

> . . . Does anybody remember any teacher last year, when you were with Mrs. Key's homeroom in your fifth grade, does anybody remember any teacher putting a hand on a student, grabbing a student, slapping a student, any--at any time, Any teacher.

T.T. was the only child who raised her hand. Perez spoke with T.T. and allowed the other students to return to their classes. He asked her to indicate what she remembered. T.T. stated that she saw Jakubiak "slap Z. in class." (Id. at 150.) T.T. provided no other details regarding the incident. Perez asked T.T. if she were a friend of Z.L., and T.T. replied that they were "close friends." (Id. at 194.) Perez did not attempt to ascertain information regarding Z.L. as a student, although at some point, he apparently discussed Z.L.'s academic and behavioral profile with Key.

Perez did not speak to students, other than Z.L., prior to February 1998 regarding the alleged incident because ". . . we didn't want the incident to get out of hand. We wanted to localize the incident." (Id. at 195.)

Teachers in the District are provided with some training regarding appropriate forms of discipline. Teachers were given a packet of documents regarding discipline the first day of school in September 1996.

In Perez's view, requiring a student to stand, in any "secluded area constitutes corporal punishment," regardless of the time involved. (Tr., Feb. 17, 1998, at 170.) Any "punishment involving physical standing or physical matters constitutes corporal punishment," including requiring a child to stand alone in the back of a class room. (Id. at 171.) However, in Perez's view, a teacher may change a student's seat if he/she is "causing a problem." (Id. at 174.)

To Key's perception, there were "many problems" at Mount Vernon, between "staff" and Perez. (Id. at 26-28.) In Key's view, requiring Z.L. to stand for five minutes in the librarian's area would be an appropriate form of discipline.

In Resciniti's view, requiring a student to be separated from classmates in the librarian's area would not be appropriate discipline and would constitute corporal punishment. In addition, it would not be appropriate to place a child in an area where he/she could not be seen if the student were a 'discipline problem." (Id. at 80.) Concerns would include the fact that there were items, including scissors, with which one could hurt oneself, as well as equipment which could be damaged. Such a situation was not addressed specifically in the packet given to teachers.

Perez did not receive any documents regarding discipline of teachers when he commenced employment with the District. He subsequently learned "in a different case," in January or February 1997, that the District has a teacher improvement program. (Id. at 135.)

Commencing shortly before Perez's employment, Mount Vernon has had a "time out room" in the basement of the school, supervised by a "time out teacher who is certified." (Id. at 161-162.) This procedure can only be initiated by an administrator, generally upon the request of a teacher. A student may be in the "time out room for one or two periods, or possibly, for in-school suspension." Such is implemented for students who need to "calm down" or to be "punished for a period or so." The goal is that the child do school work. Such procedure also functions as a "vent" for teachers and students. (Id. at 162.) The number of students in the time-out room at any one time can vary, with as many as 17 or 18 students present. The room is on an "organizational chart" distributed to teachers. (Id. at 165.) Perez views any separation of a student from his/her instructional process as a suspension, and teachers are advised that only administrators can suspend students.

Jakubiak received satisfactory ratings on observations during her entire professional career, and, more specifically, in the years 1981 through 1996. She generally received satisfactory evaluations on performance criteria, with few exceptions. On the annual evaluation report in 1995, she received an unsatisfactory rating regarding establishment and maintenance of effective discipline and procedures. Comments pertinent to areas needing attention or improvement referenced a need to respond to all student reactions and concerns during instructional activities and to reinforce lessons as needed; to demonstrate "enthusiasm and vitality" while presenting a lesson; and to develop "motivational techniques" to enhance existing library activities for students. (Exh. R-16 at 5.) Comments on the 1996 evaluation, regarding areas needing improvement, referenced a need to demonstrate "personal motivation" to enhance library activities for students. (Exh. R-17 at 3.)

DISCUSSION

The Commissioner generally has jurisdiction to hear and determine controversies and disputes arising under the local school laws. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9 (Supp 1998) A tenured local school employee shall not be dismissed nor reduced in compensation except for inefficiency, incapacity, unbecoming conduct, "or other just cause." N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10. The burden of proof in a case such as this is on petitioner by a preponderance of the credible evidence. Atkinson v. Parsekian, 37 N.J. 143 (1962). Preliminarily, I am not persuaded by the Board's argument that the alleged incidents cannot be the basis of tenure charges because Jakubiak previously received reprimands regarding them.

Jakubiak's testimony regarding the incident with L.G. was extremely detailed and had the ring of truth. I am persuaded by her testimony that L.G. exited the corridor door, not the door to the front porch.

Petitioner was placed in an untenable position as of October 9, 1996. Although she had requested such, she did not have keys to the library corridor door, the intercom in the library, and the telephone. The only manner in which she could have reasonably responded when L.G. left the classroom was to follow him, which she did. I am persuaded that the District has not met its burden of proof regarding Count 2, relevant to C.G.

No person employed or engaged in a school or educational institution shall inflict, or cause to be inflicted, corporal punishment upon a pupil. Any such person may, within the scope of his/her employment, use and employ force reasonable and necessary to "quell a disturbance threatening physical injury to others, to obtain possession of weapons or other dangerous objects, for the purpose of self-defense, or for the protection of persons or property. Any such act shall not be construed to constitute corporal punishment." N.J.S.A. 18A:6-1.

The prohibition of corporal punishment precludes 'bodily harm or any impairment' of one's 'physical integrity' 'by the infliction of physical pain by another,' as well as 'offensive bodily touching by another. . .' Teachers are precluded from resorting to 'physical force or violence to maintain discipline or compel obedience.' In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Frederick L. Ostergren (Ostergren), 1966 S.L.D. 185, 186 (citations omitted) For the reasons hereinafter discussed, I am persuaded that petitioner has not proven, by a preponderance of the credible evidence, that Jakubiak committed corporal punishment regarding Z.L.

Petitioner substantially relied regarding Charge 2 on the testimonies of students, including Z.L., who were approximately 11 years old at the time of hearings. Material inconsistencies among their testimonies, in my judgment, raise substantial questions regarding the veracity and accuracy of their renditions of what occurred on October 23, 1996. Although Z.L. was found to have met minimum requirements for being allowed to testify, it is not clear if Z.L. fully understood the significance of the proceedings and the importance of testifying truthfully. (See, Tr., Feb. 11, 1998, at 112-18.)

Z.L. testified that she had completed her assignment and thereafter went to the card catalog. Upon returning to her seat, she responded to a request for help from another student, C. Z.L. stated that as she was helping C., respondent ". . . came over there, she grabbed me by my clothes" and took her into the "back room." Jakubiak then told Z.L. that the latter had been "running around," and when Z.L. indicated that she did not "do anything," Jakubiak "hit me." (Tr., Feb. 11, 1998, at 121-22.) Z.L. was seated, but not at her proper table when Jakubiak came over. Jakubiak "grabbed" her shirt on the left side. (Id. at 123.) She "put her "in the back room" (Ibid.) and "slapped her on the left side of her face, (Id. at 128.)

Z.L. also testified that she thereafter remained standing in the librarian's area until Key returned. Jakubiak told Key that Z.L. was in the back area. Z.L. indicated she could not look out of the librarian's area to observe other children. However, Z.L. also testified that she saw two boys, A. and R., looking into the back area, when respondent was speaking with her. Z.L was able to hear Jakubiak speaking to the class. Z.L. testified that she remained in the back area for "five minutes", and Jakubiak told her to return to the classroom when Key returned. Z.L. also testified that she told no one regarding the incident until she went to Perez's office after school.

On cross-examination, Z.L. denied running around the class. She also denied that Jakubiak told her that respondent intended to call Z.L.'s mother, nor that she heard Jakubiak ask Key for her parents' telephone number. Z.L. also denied that respondent spoke with her regarding Z.L.'s behavior in class that day, generally, and specifically, regarding the card catalog. No one ever asked Z.L. to write a statement regarding the incident.

T.T. testified that Z.L. raised her hand during class, requesting assistance from Jakubiak, and respondent went to the table where Z.L. was seated. At some point, Z.L. "cursed" at respondent, and Jakubiak then "hit her" on the right side of the face. (Id. at 161.) T.T. was not "very far" from Z.L., approximately "two tables away." (Id. at 164-65.) T.T. testified that respondent then "took" Z.L. to the ". . . back" of the library and "put her in back of the desk somewhere." (Id. at 165.) Both Z.L. and T.T. testified that Z.L. was crying after Jakubiak hit her. T.T. recollected that the incident occurred at the "beginning" of the class. (Id. at 167.) She denied having observed Z.L. speak with other students during class nor having observed Z.L. near the card catalog. T.T. did not know why Z.L. "cursed" at respondent. (Id. at 168.) Nor did he know what Jakubiak had said to Z.L.

T.T. reiterated on cross-examination that Z.L. was seated during the incident. T.T. also reemphasized that Jakubiak hit Z.L. in front of the whole class and that Z.L. was seated at her assigned table. T.T. and Z.L. had been classmates for three years. T.T. testified that they did not live near each other but were "friends" at school, seeing each other daily after school. (Id. at 172.)

T.T. also testified that in early February 1998, Perez, via the loud speaker, requested that T.T. come to his office, where he spoke to her regarding the alleged incident. (Id. at 173.) Two other students, H. and M., were also present. Perez asked T.T. if the students had ". . . ever witnessed anybody get hit by a teacher or anything." (Id. at 173-74.) He asked all of them. T.T. testified that H. and M. responded that they did not recollect any such incident, while T.T. responded in the affirmative. She indicated that after her response, H and M then recollected the matter. T.T. testified that Perez again spoke with her regarding the incident the next day, in his office, in the presence of Schwartz and petitioner's counsel. Later that day, Perez called T.T.'s home twice. He spoke to T.T., asking if she remembered ". . . when I talked to you -- I talked to you about what happened with Mrs. Jakubiak"? (Id. at 179.) T.T. responded in the affirmative. He later called, asking to speak with T.T.'s mother, who was not home. Perez told T.T. to come to his office to obtain a letter for her parents to read pertinent to her appearance at hearings in the current matter. T.T. never told Perez that Z.L. had cursed at Jakubiak.

Early in February 1998, Schwartz also approached T.T. while she was in a class in the gymnasium. After discussing another matter with her, Schwartz asked if A.G. remembered ". . . any incident happen in the library last year"? (Id. at 33.) She did not reference the names of any specific children.

A.G. testified that Z.L. did not know how to complete the assignment on the day in question, that Z.L. got out of her seat, that she sat down when respondent told her to, and that another student, T., went to help Z.L., but that T. ". . . then had to sit down." (Tr., Feb. 13, 1998, at 16.) A.G. also testified that Z.L. then "went to request assistance from respondent, who provided such, but that Z.L. "kept coming up to" Jakubiak, who was seated at a desk towards the front of the library, for assistance, that respondent "got frustrated," and that Jakubiak then "slapped her." (Id. at 16 &19.) Z.L. then started crying. Respondent "grabbed" Z.L. and "put her in the back of the library." (Id. at 19-20.) A.G. did not know how long Z.L. remained in the librarian's area, nor did he observe if Z.L. were seated or standing.

A.G. testified that the class was "rowdy" and noisy "on the way to the class," (Id. at 27-28.) and at the end of the period, they were "[R]owdy," and "noisy." (Id. at 23.) A.G. did not recollect when Key returned to the classroom. He confirmed that D. " . . . was about to fight" another student in the class and that respondent spoke to D. regarding the incident. (Id. at 29.) He never recollected Z.L. "getting into trouble" during the school year. (Id. at 22.)

Schwartz apparently gave A.G. a letter regarding the matter to take home to his parents, regarding testifying. A.G. testified that he was not "called down" to the auditorium by Perez. (Id. at 34.) He also testified that subsequent to the meeting in the auditorium, one of the students, J., asked A.G. if he remembered ". . . when Ms. Jakubiak had slapped Z." (Id. at 35.)

On cross-examination, A.G. testified that Z.L. never went near the card catalogues. Although he recollected that Jakubiak spoke to her, he did not recollect what was said. He subsequently testified on cross-examination that he did observe Z.L. near the catalogue. A.G. did not recollect that Key spoke with Jakubiak when she returned to the library. He estimated that Z.L. remained in the librarian's area for approximately 10 minutes. A.G. testified that he was not able to see Z.L. while she was there. A.G. also testified that an individual other than Key had initially escorted the class to the library.

R.D.A. testified that individuals were "talking real loud" during library period (Tr., Feb. 17, 1998, at 40.) He also testified that he observed Jakubiak "grabbing" and "shoving" Z.L., while he was seated at his assigned table, "at the front" of the classroom. (Id. at 41-42.) He amplified that respondent "grabbed her by the back of her shirt and started pushing her while she was holding her" and that respondent "took" Z.L. to the area of the computer (Id. at 45-46.), the librarian's area. Other students began to move around the room and said that Jakubiak was ". . . hitting on Z." (Id. at 47.), that is, was "slapping" Z. (Id. at 50.)

R.D.A. testified on cross-examination that the first time he was requested to provide testimony regarding the current matter was in school the morning of February 17, 1998. R.D.A. was a student at Camden at that time. He could not recollect who made the request, although referencing that he could not recollect "her name", and testified that Perez, Schwartz, Resciniti or Dandridge had never spoken to him previously regarding the matter. (Id. at 51.) However, R.D.A. testified that respondent's counsel did tell him that Jakubiak's job was in question.

R.D.A. also testified that Z.L. went to Mrs. Key at the end of class and spoke to the latter. He assumed that Z.L. told Key what had transpired. Z.L. was "crying . . ." when she returned to her seat but not when Key entered the room. (Id. at 55.) He reiterated that he observed Z.L. return to her seat, next to R.D.A. at R.D.A.'s table. Z.L. got up and spoke to Key. R.D.A. also testified that Z.L. had behaved "normally" during class and that Z.L. got up out of her seat once to ask Jakubiak for assistance. (Id. at 60.) Jakubiak "started yelling" at Z.L. and told her to sit at her table. (Id. at 60-61.) Z.L. stood up and again told Jakubiak that she needed assistance. R.D.A. also noted that D. had behaved "good" during class and that D. "never caused no problems." (Id. at 61.) He also testified that the class behaved "good" on their way to the library. (Id. at 61.)

Z.L.'s testimony that she had completed her assignment and behaved appropriately on the day in question is inconsistent with the testimony of Jakubiak, as well as the testimony of other students. Her testimony that she left the librarian's area when told to do so by Jakubiak is also inconsistent with respondent's and Key's testimonies. I found her testimony that Jakubiak did not discuss Z.L.'s behavior in class not persuasive.

T.T.'s testimony regarding where the alleged incident occurred was materially different from that of Z.L. In addition, T.T.'s testimony that she only socialized with Z.L. at school was contradicted by her statement to Perez that Z.L. was her close friend.

T.T.'s testimony that Z.L. cursed at Jakubiak apparently without provocation was also inconsistent with Z.L.'s testimony that the latter behaved appropriately and did not have the ring of truth. Nor did T.T.'s denial of observations of Z.L. walking about the room and in proximity to the card catalog. T.T.'s testimony that Z.L. asked for help with the assignment also contradicted Z.L.'s testimony that she had completed it. T.T.'s testimony that she spoke with Perez in his office was contrary to Perez's testimony that he spoke with T.T. in the auditorium.

R.D.A.'s testimony that other students indicated that Jakubiak slapped Z.L. while in the librarian's area was inconsistent with that of other students' testimony. His testimony that Z.L. returned to her seat at the end of class was also inconsistent with the testimony of other witnesses. In addition, R.D.A.'s testimony that Z.L. spoke with Key when the latter returned to the library was inconsistent with the testimony of Key, as well as other witnesses. R.D.A.'s testimony that D. did not behave inappropriately in class that day, nor generally, was also inconsistent with the weight of the evidence. I also note that A.G.'s testimony, that an individual other than Key escorted the class to the library, was contrary to Key's and Jakubiak's testimonies.

In the context of the entire record, respondent's argument that the fact that Z.L. did not immediately report any such incident to Key, nor other students, casts doubt on the credibility of her testimony has merit. The fact that Key did not observe that Z.L. appeared to be upset, nor to have been crying, when Key returned to class on the day in question is also significant.

In addition, the manner in which the incident was investigated by administrators raises questions regarding the credibility of various witnesses. I place some weight on the fact that Perez did not immediately speak to other students after speaking with Z.L. On October 23, 1996, when any occurrences would presumably have been fresh in their minds. The manner in which he presented the subject for discussion some one year later, when he called students to the auditorium, also raises questions regarding the recollection of those students who spoke to him, as does the fact that apparently only three students recollected any such incident. The fact that Perez did not speak with students who did not respond affirmatively to his queries is also troubling. His explanation of why he did not immediately speak to other students was not, on its face, reasonable. The manner in which Jakubiak was subsequently removed from Mount Vernon, and the manner in which she was served tenure charges, also raise questions regarding the conduct of administrators.

Jakubiak's testimony that Z.L. behaved inappropriately on October 23, 1996, and previously, was credible and was corroborated by Key's testimony, who, as reflected in the above findings of fact, had periodically disciplined Z.L. and spoken to M.L. regarding her school work. Key's testimony in that respect also was contrary to that of M.L., who testified generally that Z.L. was not the type of child to behave inappropriately, neither at home nor in school.

Key's testimony was also somewhat contradictory to that of Perez, who testified that although he would generally know if a student were a behavioral problem, he had no such information regarding Z.L., and, to the contrary, would not have expected her to misbehave in class. Perez testified that Jakubiak had repeatedly told him, prior to October 23, 1996, that she could not deal with elementary school students, contrasting her experience with other students in the District. I found Jakubiak's testimony that she did not do so to be credible. Respondent's testimony in that respect was extremely specific; she recollected three occasions on which she had spoken with Perez. In addition, the fact that Perez apparently did not offer any suggestions to Jakubiak regarding methods for dealing with her students casts doubt on his testimony. In addition, Perez's testimony that Z.L. approached him after school while he was standing in a hallway with Schwartz was not consistent with Schwartz's, Rasciniti's or Z.L.'s testimony. The evidence supports a conclusion that Z.L. went directly to the office on her own volition. Perez's testimony that he did not escort Jakubiak to the nurse's office was contrary to Jakubiak's testimony, as well as Perez's memorandum of October 24, 1996 to Marinaro.

Key testified that there was confusion in the class when she returned to the library on the day in question. She also testified that Jakubiak advised her that students, including Z.L., had behaved inappropriately. She observed that Z.L. was not in line with the other students, but was standing behind the desk in the librarian's area. Key's testimony that at the subsequent meeting with Perez, respondent denied that she touched Z.L. was consistent with Jakubiak's testimony. Perez's testimony, in contrast, that Jakubiak admitted grabbing Z.L. was not consistent with Key's and Jakubiak's testimonies. Key's testimony that she left the meeting because she was offended by certain of Jakubiak's references to the students had the ring of truth. However, I am persuaded, based upon a review of the entire record, that it is not reasonable to infer that Jakubiak intended to reference the racial composition of her class, but apparently, the age and behavior of the students.

Perez's communications with Mr. And Mrs. L. as they approached the school on October 24, 1996, and with M.L. during the meeting in his office, raises troubling questions. It is reasonable to infer that Perez had already decided that Z.L's rendition of the events which had transpired was truthful. Perez apparently did not reconsider that conclusion after meeting with respondent. The fact that he did not further investigate the matter at that time also raises questions, regarding the reasonableness of his conclusions and his subsequent recommendations that respondent be subject to discipline, as did his failure to include a copy of respondent's written statement with his October 24, 1996 memorandum to Marinaro.

The fact that Z.L. was crying while in Perez' office could, based on the record, have been the result of the fact that Jakubiak had told her that respondent intended to contact Z.L.'s parents, and she may have overheard Jakubiak speak to Key in that respect, as well as the fact that M.L. could be expected to be very concerned if one of her children acted inappropriately in school. In that respect, I found Jakubiak's testimony that she did speak to Key regarding contacting Z.L.'s parents to be credible.

Petitioner emphasized the fact that, as found, Jakubiak stated, in her written statement of October 24, 1996, that she "took" Z.L. to the librarian's area, equating that phrase with forcing her, by physically grabbing or shoving her. (Exh. R-4.) I am not persuaded by that analysis. The phraseology utilized by Jakubiak can reasonably have several connotations. In addition, as indicated, respondent's testimony that she did not state she had grabbed nor pulled Z.L. during the meeting with Perez was corroborated by Schwartz's, Rasciniti's and Key's testimonies. Jakubiak's testimony that she was extremely upset when she prepared the statement, because of what had transpired, had the ring of truth and was corroborated by the documentary evidence.

In contrast to the testimonies of other witnesses, I found respondent's testimony to be extremely detailed. Respondent appeared to have excellent recollection of material events, regarding both charges. Her testimony in general had the ring of truth. There is nothing in the record to suggest that respondent had ever acted in a similar manner regarding other students. Respondent was able to deal with D. calmly and in a professional manner, not only on the day in question, but previously.

It is clear from a review of the record, as reflected in the above findings of fact, that respondent left Z.L. unattended in an area of the library substantially unsupervised for a period of approximately five minutes. Z.L. could have injured herself or had an opportunity to destroy school property.

An action by a teacher resulting in a student being unsupervised, even if for disciplinary reasons, constitutes unbecoming conduct. In the Matter of Alan S. Tenney, 1983 S.L.D. 836 (Tenney). I am persuaded that petitioner has proven, by a preponderance of the credible evidence, Charge 2 regarding Z.L. The remaining issue is what discipline, if any, should be imposed upon respondent.

Evaluation of tenure charges is generally a matter of total impression, "based upon observations made over a period of time", Newark Bd. of Ed. v. Burnside, 13 N.J.A.R. 867 (Oct. 25, 1988), although the need to remove a teacher may be demonstrated by one incident, "if sufficiently flagrant", In Re Fulcomer, 93 N.J. Super. 404, 421 (App. Div. 1967). The Commissioner has recognized situations where teachers convicted of tenure charges should receive a penalty less than dismissal. Ostergren, supra. I am persuaded that a lesser penalty should be imposed in this case.

Factors relevant to a determination of penalties include the nature and length of a teacher's prior service. In Re Tyler, 13 N.J.A.R. 297. In determining the appropriate discipline in cases involving unbecoming conduct, relevant factors are the nature and circumstances of the incident in question, provocation regarding the incident, the age of the pupil, the teacher's record, attitude, and prognosis for continued, effective performance and usefulness to the school system, and the likelihood that the behavior in question will recur. Ostergren, supra. It has been recognized that:

> . . . each such matter must be judged in the light of its particular circumstances. The kind and degree of penalty will necessarily vary according to the specific problem.
> [In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of William H. Kittell, 1972, S.L.D. 531]

In Tenney, supra, the respondent was found to have committed several actions constituting unbecoming conduct, including two occasions on which he left students unattended. Respondent ordered one of his students to sit outside of the classroom, unsupervised, because of "disruptive behavior." Ostergren, supra., at 838-39. On another occasion, respondent left his class unattended for 23 minutes. The board of education terminated respondent. However, the Commissioner upheld a decision of the presiding ALJ that the teacher be reinstated and that he forfeit three months' pay.

Respondent has essentially had an unblemished record for some 35 years with the Board/District and has not been subject to prior discipline. Although not condoning the fact that she left Z.L. unsupervised for a period of time, I consider the fact that Z.L. had behaved inappropriately and did not respond to prior admonitions by respondent. I also note Jakubiak's testimony that she had Z.L. go to the librarian's area to speak to her privately. I also give weight to the fact that Z.L. was unsupervised for a de minimis period of time. In light of respondent's prior satisfactory performance for many years, I am persuaded that the record does not support a finding that it is reasonable to anticipate similar action by Jakubiak in the future. The record supports a conclusion that respondent's actions on the day in question evidenced a lack of judgment. The ALJ's characterization of the instances of unbecoming conduct reviewed in Ostergren are applicable in the current matter: ". . . in the hierarchy of wrongdoings in which a teacher may be involved ". . . the conduct in question ". . . is relatively minor." Ostergren at 841. Based upon the circumstances of this case, I am persuaded that a one-month forfeiture of pay is reasonable regarding those charges proven by petitioner.

CONCLUSIONS

I CONCLUDE that petitioner has not proven, by a preponderance of the credible evidence, Charge One; that petitioner has proven, by a preponderance of the credible evidence, Charge Two, as such charge relates to Z.L.; that petitioner has not proven, by a preponderance of the credible evidence, Charge Two as such pertains to L.G.; and that a reasonable discipline regarding Charge Two, relevant to Z.L.., is forfeiture of one month's pay.

ORDERS

It is hereby ORDERED that respondent's motion for summary decision be and is hereby DISMISSED; that Charge One be and is hereby DISMISSED; that Charge Two, as such charge pertains to L.G., be and is hereby DISMISSED; that Charge Two, as such charge pertains to Z.L., be and is hereby SUSTAINED; that respondent be reinstated to her former position; and that respondent be subject to forfeiture of one month's pay, and any associated emoluments; pertinent to Charge 2 relevant to Z.L.

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 3961-97
AGENCY DOCKET NO. 85-3/97

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF VICTORIA JAKUBIAK,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT	:	DECISION
OF THE CITY OF NEWARK, ESSEX	:
COUNTY.	:

The record of this matter and initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Exceptions to the initial decision filed by the State-operated School District of the City of Newark (petitioner), as well as respondent's reply thereto, were timely filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4. The arguments raised by the parties in these submissions were duly considered by the Commissioner in rendering the decision herein.

Petitioner's exceptions object to the Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) conclusion that it did not prove Charge One, Corporal Punishment, and Charge Two, Conduct Unbecoming a Teacher as it regards L.G. Petitioner avers, inter alia, that the ALJ failed to credit the testimony and evidence presented in support of Charge One involving the pupil Z.L., as well as the testimony of administrator Carol Schwartz and other witnesses with respect to Charge Two, wherein respondent failed to report that pupil L.G. exited her class and was outside of the building. Petitioner urges the Commissioner to sustain the charges and order respondent's dismissal. If, however, the Commissioner determines to affirm the ALJ's ruling, petitioner requests that the Commissioner levy a more severe penalty for Z.L.'s lack of supervision, emphasizing that on October 8, 1996, Vice Principal Schwartz verbally warned respondent about L.G. being outside the class without supervision. This warning was followed up in writing the next day (P-1), making this incident the second time in a month that one of respondent's pupils was left unsupervised. With respect to Charge Two, petitioner urges that it is inexplicable that Ms. Schwartz, an experienced vice principal who was not respondent's supervisor, would fabricate a story that she found L.G. outside the building and that respondent, rather than seeking to find the student, was reading to the class when Ms. Schwartz brought L.G. back to class. Petitioner further maintains that even if L.G. exited the corridor door and even if respondent did not have a key to the library or no access to the phone, her version of events breaks down because she remained in the library without notifying the office of the problem when the main office is across the hall from the library and the other vice principal's office is next to the library.

Respondent's reply exceptions essentially recast and reiterate the arguments advanced before the ALJ in her post-hearing brief, setting forth at length passages from the transcripts of the four days of hearing which she believes demonstrate the lack of credible testimony and evidence in support of the charges. Respondent also sets forth her exceptions to the penalty levied by the ALJ, urging, inter alia, that she had an unblemished educational career of 35 years and that Z.L. was only technically left unattended in that she was never more than 15 feet from respondent who could look in and see her. Respondent further avows that a penalty of $6,000 one (1) month's pay, is severe in light of her good intentions and unblemished career.

Upon a thorough and comprehensive review of the entire record of this matter, including the transcripts and post-hearing submissions of the parties, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusions of the ALJ that Charge One relating to corporal punishment being committed against student Z.L. was not proven by petitioner and that Charge Two was proven only to the extent that respondent left Z.L. unsupervised for approximately five minutes. A reading of the transcripts readily underscores the substantive, material inconsistencies among the testimony of the student witnesses, inconsistencies which, as the ALJ found, raise substantial questions regarding the veracity and accuracy of their renditions of what occurred in the library on October 23, 1996. The Commissioner is also in full agreement with the ALJ's conclusion that the manner in which the incident was investigated by administrators raises questions regarding the credibility of various witnesses. It is, indeed, troubling that Principal Perez did not immediately speak to other students in the class after speaking to Z.L. on October 23, rather than doing so at the behest of petitioner's counsel just a few days before the hearing commenced in this matter, nearly 16 months after the incident was supposed to have occurred.[1] Also of concern is the manner in which Principal Perez called a group of 11 students who still attended Mt. Vernon School to the auditorium one week before this hearing started and asked "does anybody remember any teacher last year, when you were with Mrs. Key's homeroom, in your

[1] It is noted that in the case of student R.D.A., the student was never even questioned by any administrator about his possible knowledge regarding the October 23, 1996 incident until the morning of the day he testified. (T3:51-52)

fifth grade, does anybody remember any teacher putting a hand on a student, grabbing a student, slapping a student, any-- at any time.?" (Tr. 3:151) As stated by the ALJ

> The manner in which [Perez] presented the subject for discussion some one year later, when he called students to the auditorium, also raises questions regarding the recollection of those students who spoke to him, as does the fact that apparently only three students recollected any such incident. The fact that Perez did not speak with students who did not respond affirmatively to his queries is also troubling. His explanation of why he did not immediately speak to other students was not, on its face, reasonable. The manner in which Jakubiak was subsequently removed from Mount Vernon, and the manner in which she was served tenure charges, also raise questions regarding the conduct of administrators. (Initial Decision at pp. 39-40)

Despite petitioner's arguments to the contrary regarding the ALJ's disposition of the charge of unbecoming conduct as it relates to kindergarten student, L.G., the Commissioner, upon a thorough review of the record, including a full consideration of Ms. Schwartz's testimony, finds insufficient basis to disturb either the credibility determinations of the ALJ, who had the benefit of assessing the testimony firsthand, or her findings and conclusion relative to the L.G. incident.

The Commissioner also determines that the penalty of one month's loss of salary (approximately $6,000), which was assessed by the ALJ, is appropriate in light of the finding and conclusion that respondent left Z.L. in an area of the library substantially unsupervised for approximately five minutes. In such circumstances, a student could be injured or an opportunity created for school property to be damaged or destroyed.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the ALJ, including corrections thereto submitted by the OAL,[2] is adopted for the reasons expressed therein.[3]

IT IS SO ORDERED.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF LINDA PAIS, STATE-	:
OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
OF THE CITY OF NEWARK, ESSEX	:	DECISION

District initially certified tenure charges of unbecoming conduct and chronic and excess tardiness against respondent teaching staff member. Following respondent's contention that the unbecoming conduct charge should have been inefficiency, the District withdrew its charge of unbecoming conduct and filed charges of inefficiency. Respondent filed a motion to dismiss the charge of inefficiency for failure to comply with procedural requirements, which motion was granted. Remaining issues were whether the charge of chronic and excessive tardiness were to be sustained and, is so, whether the circumstances warranted respondent's records. Respondent acknowledged her tardiness as reflected in the District's records.

In light of testimony of witnesses and the record, the ALJ concluded that the charge of chronic and excessive tardiness had a negative impact on her students and, therefore, had to be sustained. However, in that respondent had shown improvement with respect to tardiness in recent years, the ALJ determined that respondent was to be restored to her teaching position but, in view of the large number of late arrivals, as well as the surrounding circumstances, a forfeiture of pay was the appropriate penalty. Thus, the ALJ ordered a penalty of forfeiture of pay for a period of 120 days.

Upon review of the record, including a transcript of the hearing, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ's determination that the District had carried its burden of proving respondent's tardiness and that the appropriate penalty was forfeiture of the 120 days' salary already withheld.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF LINDA PAIS, STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF NEWARK, ESSEX COUNTY.

Cherie L. Maxwell, Esq., and Kelly Ann Guariglia, Esq., for petitioner, State-Operated School District of the City of Newark (Sills, Cummis, Zuckerman, Radin, Tischman, Epstein & Gross, attorneys)

Eugene M. Liss, Esq., for respondent, Linda Pais

Record Closed: November 9, 1998 Decided: December 22, 1998

BEFORE RICHARD McGILL, ALJ:

The State-Operated School District of the City of Newark ("District or "petitioner") filed charges against Linda Pais ("respondent"), whom it employs as a tenured teacher. The District seeks dismissal of respondent based upon charges of chronic and excessive tardiness and inefficiency.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The District initially filed charges of conduct unbecoming a teacher and chronic and excessive tardiness with the Commissioner of Education on January 30, 1997. Respondent filed an answer on March 4, 1997, and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on March 11, 1997, for determination as a contested case.

In her answer, respondent contended that the charge of conduct unbecoming a teacher should have been inefficiency and that accordingly she should have been given a period of ninety days at a minimum in which to correct any deficiencies. By letter dated August 15, 1997, the District withdrew the charge of conduct unbecoming a teacher and expressed an intention to return respondent to a teaching position at the beginning of the 1997-98 school year and to implement a notice of inefficiency and a ninety-day improvement period. This action was confirmed by letter dated October 7, 1997.

On October 3, 1997, respondent moved to dismiss the remaining tenure charge for failure to comply with procedural requirements. This motion was denied by Order dated December 3, 1997.

A hearing in regard to the charge of chronic and excessive tardiness was conducted on June 2, 1998, at the Office of Administrative Law in Newark, New Jersey. Counsel advised that the District had filed charges of inefficiency against respondent with the Commissioner of Education on April 27, 1998, and that transmittal of these charges to the Office of Administrative Law was imminent. As a result, the briefing schedule for the charge of chronic and excessive tardiness was held in abeyance, and additional hearing dates were scheduled for the charge of inefficiency.

The charge of inefficiency was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on June 11, 1998, for determination as a contested case. On July 24, 1998, respondent filed a motion to dismiss the charge of inefficiency for failure to comply with procedural requirements. An oral argument in regard to this motion was held on September 9 and 10, 1998, and at the time, limited testimony was taken pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.4(c) to clarify the facts related to the motion. Respondent's motion to dismiss the charge of inefficiency was granted by Order dated October 5, 1998, and the record closed on November 9, 1998, upon receipt of briefs in regard to the charge of chronic and excessive tardiness.

ISSUES

The remaining issues in this proceeding are whether the charge of chronic and excessive tardiness should be sustained and, if so, whether the circumstances warrant respondent's dismissal. Respondent acknowledges her tardiness as reflected in the District's records. However, respondent maintains that there were reasons for her tardiness, that her lateness had negligible impact on her students and that she has shown significant improvement in recent years.

UNDISPUTED FACTS

The facts in this matter are largely undisputed. Based upon the evidence presented at the hearing, I FIND as follows:

1. Respondent began her employment with the District in 1981.

2. Respondent was assigned to the Oliver Street School, until she was transferred to the Branch Brook School for the 1992-93 school year.

3. The grade levels at the Branch Brook School range from pre-K to fourth grade. The pupils were in both special and regular education programs.

4. At the Branch Brook School, respondent was an English as a Second Language (ESL) teacher. Respondent had her own classroom, but she taught the pupils on a pullout basis from their regular classes.

5. Barbara Ervin was the principal at the Branch Brook School from March 1995 to June 1996. Thereafter, William Demetroulakos was the principal at the Branch Brook School.

6. Teachers at the Branch Brook School were considered to be tardy if they did not sign the time book by 8:30 a.m.

7. Pupils were allowed to enter the school building at 8:35 a.m., and the late bell for students sounded at 8:45 a.m.

8. The first period of instruction began at 8:50 a.m.

9. Respondent was tardy eighty-five times during the 1992-93 school year, sixty-seven times during the 1993-94 school year and eighteen times during the 1994-95 school year. The total of 170 days tardy represents thirty-two percent of the school days during these three school years.

10. The number of times that respondent signed the time book between 8:31 a.m. and 8:49 a.m. totaled sixty-three during the 1992-93 school year, fifty during the 1993-94 school year and thirteen during the 1994-95 school year.

11. Respondent signed the time book after 8:49 a.m. twenty-two times during the 1992-93 school year, seventeen times during the 1993-94 school year and five times during the 1994-95 school year.

12. During the 1995-1996 school year, respondent was tardy on ten occasions. On seven of these occasions, she arrived before 8:50 a.m.

13. Respondent received both oral and written warnings concerning her tardiness during the period from 1992 through 1996.

14. Respondent's salary was routinely docked as the result of her lateness, and her increment was withheld for the 1991-92, 1995-96 and 1996-97 school years due to unsatisfactory job performance.

SUMMARY OF EVIDENCE

The District's witnesses included William Demetroulakos and Barbara Ervin. Respondent testified on her own behalf.

a. William Demetroulakos

William Demetroulakos testified that he has been employed by the District for thirty-two years and that he was the principal of the Branch Brook School during the 1996-97 and 1997-98 school years. Most of his testimony was undisputed and is reflected in the above findings of fact.

If a teacher is late, there can be problems related to the orderly entrance of pupils into the school building. During the 1997-98 school year, respondent was supposed to use her first period for preparation. In this situation, lateness can cause loss of preparation time. Demetroulakos has no knowledge of respondent's assignments for the first period during the time period from September 1992 to June 1995. Respondent has not been docked for lateness during the last two years.

b. Barbara Ervin

Barbara Ervin has been employed by the District for twenty-five years. After leaving the Branch Brook School in June 1996, Ervin became the principal at the Sussex Avenue School.

As an ESL teacher, respondent taught six periods per day, and she had three preparation periods per week. Respondent had a maximum of six pupils at a time. Respondent picked up the children and later returned them to their regular classrooms.

Ervin frequently discussed respondent's tardiness with her. Respondent stated that she commuted from Long Island and that she was doing the best that she could. Ervin suggested that respondent leave for work earlier, and respondent said that she would do her best. On various occasions, respondent said that the weather or traffic caused her to be late.

Respondent's tardiness had a disruptive impact on school operations. The classroom teacher prepared the pupils to be picked up by respondent. If respondent did not pick up the pupils, then the classroom teacher had to wait for her. On occasions when the regular teacher commented to respondent about being late, respondent responded in a confrontational manner. Another concern was that the teachers were supposed to monitor the children as they entered the school building. At 8:35 a.m., respondent was supposed to be at her classroom door to make sure that students were moving along. Ervin was not aware of the practice prior to March 1995. Ervin received no complaints from parents concerning respondent's tardiness. Further, chronic tardiness by one teacher can adversely affect school morale.

Parking was a problem for everyone at the Branch Brook School. There were no handicapped spaces, but Ervin arranged for parking by the side of the school.

c. Linda Pais

Respondent acknowledged her latenesses as reflected in the District's records, but she testified that there were reasons for her tardiness and that it had limited impact on her pupils. In regard to the impact on students, respondent stated that she did not have any duties between the time she signed in and the time that she picked up her first pupil. Classroom teachers were required to be at their doors to monitor students as they entered the building, but special teachers did not have this responsibility. Respondent normally waited in the cafeteria before her first class. During the 1992-93 school year, the prior principal never said anything to her about being in the cafeteria from 8:35 a.m. to 8:45 a.m.

For the first period during the 1992-93 school year, respondent had only one pupil who was in a wheelchair due to muscular dystrophy and cerebral palsy. This pupil often missed first period due to medical appointments or because the bus was late. Similarly during the 1993-94 and 1994-95 school years, respondent had one pupil during the first period. All of those pupils made progress as a result of instruction provided by respondent.

In regard to the reasons for her lateness, respondent testified that she lives in New Hyde Park on Long Island. Her commute could be delayed by traffic or inclement weather, and she often had difficulty finding a parking space near the school.

Respondent has a residual paralysis of her right side due to hemiplegia, which affects her walking and her right hand. This condition contributed to her tardiness because she must walk very slowly on ice or snow. During the 1994-95 school year, respondent reduced her tardiness considerably by renting a parking space in a driveway near the school. Respondent acknowledges that she never requested a handicapped parking space.

During the last two years, tardiness has not been a problem. Due to a change in her routine, respondent now arrives at work between 7:15 a.m. and 7:30 a.m. Prior to this change, respondent could not leave home earlier because she needed time in the morning to care for her daughter. For a time, respondent had to drop her daughter off at the baby-sitter at 7:00 a.m. As a result, respondent began her one and a half hour commute to Newark at 7:00 a.m. Since her daughter is now a teenager and as the result of a change in her husband's work schedule, respondent can begin her commute much earlier.

FINDINGS

All three witnesses were essentially believable. The only specific conflict in the testimony concerns Ervin's testimony to the effect that respondent was supposed to monitor students as they entered the building and respondent's claim that she along with other pullout teachers did not have this responsibility. With respect to this factual issue, Ervin was not the principal at the Branch Brook School during most of the pertinent period of time, and respondent seemed certain as to this point. Therefore, I FIND that respondent did not have responsibility to monitor pupils entering the school building between 8:30 a.m. and 8:50 a.m.

Aside from the factual issue related to monitoring the halls, the testimony of the witnesses was credible, and the above summary is FOUND AS FACT.

LAW AND ANALYSIS

A tenured teacher holds her position under tenure during good behavior and efficiency and may not be dismissed or reduced in compensation, except for inefficiency, incapacity, unbecoming conduct or other just cause. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10. In the event of a dismissal, suspension or reduction in compensation, the school district must proceed in the manner prescribed in N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 et seq. Various procedural safeguards are set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11, including requirements that the charges be set forth in writing and that the employee be given the opportunity to respond thereto. The school district must prove the charges by a preponderance of the believable evidence.

The charge against respondent is chronic and excessive tardiness. In regard to the reasons for respondent's tardiness, her testimony that traffic, inclement weather and difficulty parking contributed to the problem was certainly believable. However, all of these circumstances could readily be anticipated by respondent as recurring problems associated with her daily commute. In view of the large number of latenesses, it is apparent that the real problem was that respondent simply was not leaving for work in a timely manner. Evidently, respondent felt constrained not to leave for work before 7:00 a.m. due to the family routine at the time. The fact that respondent has now changed her daily routine and is arriving at work on time confirms the view that her departure time was the real problem. Therefore, the circumstances mentioned by respondent do not excuse her tardiness.

Respondent cites In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Monica Meade-Stephens, 92 *N.J.A.R.*2d (EDU) 550, for the proposition that absenteeism and lateness become chronic and excessive when the performance of students begins to suffer. One difficulty with respondent's reliance on Meade-Stephens is that the reference to a situation where the performance of students begins to suffer was never intended to be a minimum standard. Further, in the context of absenteeism, the Commissioner of Education has stated that "[c]ommon sense dictates that a teacher's continued absences must, at some point have a negative impact on her pupils even if a board of education is unable to prove the relationship between a teacher's attendance and pupil progress." In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Sheila Green, 1991 S.L.D. 1103, 1119. Similarly here, respondent's latenesses which continued into the first period could only have a negative impact on the pupils. More importantly, the fact that a teacher does not have teaching responsibilities until a later time does not diminish his or her obligation to report to work at the designated time. In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Walter Campbell, 1976 S.L.D. 65, 70. In regard to the number of latenesses that will support a charge of chronic and excessive tardiness, thirty-four late arrivals over a five-month period were found to be "clearly excessive" in Hamilton Board of Education v. Linda Kurts, 1986 S.L.D. 2721, 2733. In view of the large number of respondent's latenesses, I CONCLUDE that the charge of chronic and excessive tardiness must be sustained.

In regard to the question whether the circumstances warrant respondent's dismissal, the District cites various cases where a charge of chronic or excessive tardiness was sustained and the teacher was dismissed; however, in each case, the dismissal was supported by additional charges. E.g., In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Monica Meade-Stephens, supra (chronic and excessive absenteeism); Hamilton Board of Education v. Linda Kurts, supra (conduct unbecoming a teaching staff member, excessive absenteeism and failure to carry out assigned duties); and Board of Education of the City of Newark v. Delia Kind, 1988 S.L.D. 2074 (inefficiency, incompetence and unbecoming conduct including absenteeism). In addition to the absence of other charges in this case, another factor in respondent's favor is that she has shown improvement with respect to tardiness in recent years. Under the circumstances, dismissal seems to be an unnecessarily harsh penalty. It follows that respondent should be restored to her teaching position.

On the other hand, respondent's tardiness was grossly excessive, and it persisted over three school years despite repeated oral and written warnings. Additionally, the underlying cause of respondent's excessive tardiness was a refusal to adjust her personal schedule such that she could depart for work in the morning in a timely manner. In view of the large number of latenesses as well as the surrounding circumstances, a forfeiture of pay would be an appropriate penalty. As a result of the charges, respondent was not paid for a period of 120 days in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14. Based upon the above, I CONCLUDE that there should not be a restoration of pay for this period.

Accordingly, it is ORDERED that:

1. The charge of chronic and excessive tardiness is sustained.

2. The penalty is forfeiture of pay for a period of 120 days.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

OF THE CITY OF NEWARK, ESSEX	:	DECISION
COUNTY.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. The parties did not file exceptions.

Upon careful and independent review of the record in this matter, which included a transcript of the hearing conducted at the OAL on June 2, 1999, the Commissioner finds, like the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ), that the District has carried its burden of proving that respondent's tardiness was excessive and was, indeed, disruptive to its operations and educational program. Under these circumstances, however, where respondent has not been "docked" for lateness in the past two years and has, apparently, remedied her tardiness problem, the Commissioner concurs that the appropriate penalty is for respondent to forfeit the 120 days' salary already withheld.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the ALJ is adopted for the reasons expressed therein.*

IT IS SO ORDERED.

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 06525-98
AGENCY DKT. NO. 225-7/98
CONSOLIDATED

BEFORE JEFF S. MASIN, ALJ:

As part of a now consolidated action, the Middletown Township Board of Education in OAL Docket No. EDU 06525-98 seeks to have Patricia Walsh, a member of the Board, disqualified from service on the Board and removed therefrom because she is currently seeking in OAL Docket No. EDU 04540-98 to have the Board indemnify her for the costs and expenses of defending a legal action brought against her by Thomas Stokes. The details of the events leading to the filing of these consolidated cases are set forth in detail in the Interlocutory Order Denying Cross-Motions for Summary Decision issued by this judge on November 18, 1998. That Order dealt with motions filed in regard to the dispute over indemnification itself. In seeking to have Ms. Walsh disqualified on a conflict of interest theory, the Board relies upon N.J.S.A. 18A:12-2, which provides that "No member of any board . . . shall be interested directly or indirectly in any . . . claim against the board . . . ."

The Board originally filed this matter as an application to the Commissioner of Education, seeking a Declaratory Judgment. The Commissioner declined to rule on the matter as one for declaratory judgment and instead referred it to the Office of Administrative Law as a Petition of Appeal. It was later consolidated with Mrs. Walsh's Petition of Appeal in which she seeks indemnification.

The Board counsel concedes that his application for disqualification is not proper in respect to Ms. Walsh's first theory of recovery from the Board, that is, that the Board is required to indemnify her pursuant to the terms of the so-called indemnification statute, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-20. However, he argues that disqualification is proper with respect to her second theory, contained in the second count of her Petition. In this count, Ms. Walsh proceeds upon an argument that the Board could have indemnified her even if the indemnification statute did not mandate that result, and that its failure to exercise its discretion to do so was the result of arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable action or inaction. Counsel contends that while her claim for indemnification from the Board as a statutory mandate under the circumstances present in the case does not require her disqualification, her assertion of a non-statutory basis for indemnification amounts to nothing more than her attempt to advance her own personal financial interests, rather than an attempt to vindicate the public interest, and therefore so long as she maintains the second count of the Petition she must be disqualified from Board membership.

I cannot agree that Ms. Walsh's attempt to obtain indemnification by means of an exercise of Board discretion is necessarily only an attempt to secure her own personal financial interest. It is not yet clear that she cannot sustain her claim under the statute itself, as the Order Denying Cross-Motions for Summary Decision makes clear. If she is unable to justify her claim under the statute, any claim under a theory of discretionary authority may be tenuous. However, as the full facts relevant to the determination of the indemnification claim are not yet apparent, it is not appropriate to conclude that there is no basis whatsoever for either the statutory claim or for a discretionary claim. To separate these theories of recovery and disqualify Mrs. Walsh for invoking the discretionary claim while at the same time recognizing that disqualification on the basis of the assertion of the statutory claim is improper, would in my judgment raise form over substance. In each count, she seeks to have the Board indemnify her so that she can protect what she asserts is the public interest in her ability to attend Board meetings in safety and security. If the ultimate determination under either theory is that her claim is proper, the public interest is upheld, while her personal financial interest may consequently also be protected. To disqualify her because she has the temerity, or the wisdom, or even the incorrect belief to assert that indemnification is proper under a discretionary act of the Board, would be wrong. The case for indemnification should proceed to hearing on all theories, and since the first theory of statutory right cannot serve to disqualify her, the second theory should not either.

For the reasons stated, it is hereby ORDERED that the application for disqualification from Board membership pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-2 is DENIED and summary decision is GRANTED to Mrs. Walsh dismissing the Board's Petition seeking her disqualification.

As this issue is sufficiently separate from the underlying indemnity claim and the matter is one of sufficient public interest, this Order Granting Partial Summary Decision may be submitted to the Commissioner of Education for immediate review as an initial decision pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.3(c)12, as provided in N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5 (e).

This order granting partial summary decision is being submitted under N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(e) for immediate review. This recommended order may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make the final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this order within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended order shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this order was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." The Interlocutory Order of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) granting summary decision to Ms. Walsh and dismissing the Board's application for her disqualification from Board membership pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-2 has been reviewed. The Board's exceptions to the Order and a reply submitted on behalf of Ms. Walsh are duly noted as submitted in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(e) and 1:1-18.4.*

* Along with her reply, Ms. Walsh submitted a document that was not before the ALJ and not previously made a part of the record. However, in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4c, it was not considered by the Commissioner in rendering his decision herein.

In its exceptions, the Board again contends that Ms. Walsh must be disqualified from Board membership pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-2 because she "is challenging a discretionary decision by the Board, pitting her own personal financial interest against the discretionary judgment of a majority of the Board ." (Board's Exceptions at p. 3) The Board continues,

> While Walsh's claim to be vindicating a public interest in her ability to attend Board meetings is directly relevant to the application of the standard that exists under the terms of the indemnification statute, the evaluation of this claimed protection of a public interest when balanced against a Board's discretionary decision regarding entitlement and funding requires a different analysis and result. (Id.)

Thus, the Board reasons that while the analysis with respect to Count One of Walsh's petition will involve whether her acts arose out of and were in the course of the performance of her duties, the analysis pursuant to Count Two of her petition must consider whether the Board's discretionary decision to deny indemnification was arbitrary, capricious or discriminatory. The Board posits that "the flood gates would open and discretionary board decisions [would be] constantly challenged at the taxpayers' expense" if indemnification were permitted under these circumstances. (Id.) The Board, therefore, urges the Commissioner to enter an Order directing that Ms. Walsh be disqualified from continued service as a Board member unless and until she withdraws Count Two of her petition of Appeal.

In reply, Ms. Walsh relies on her brief previously submitted, which affirms, inter alia, that, in analyzing cases brought pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-2, "the Commissioner historically has considered whether, notwithstanding any incidental benefit to the Board member, the primary purpose of the claim is to vindicate some public interest as opposed to merely advancing the individual's personal financial interests." (Walsh's Brief at pp. 4, 5) Walsh reasons that indemnification claims advance important public objectives and it would be an anomalous result if the assertion of such a claim would simultaneously result in the forfeiture of one's seat. Walsh further finds it noteworthy that the Appellate Division in Quick v. Bd. Of Educ. of Old Bridge, 308 N.J. Super. 338 (App. Div. 1998), did not raise the issue of indemnification claims posing conflicts under N.J.S.A. 18A:12-2. (Id. at p. 5) Walsh argues that the relief she seeks under both counts of her petition is the same, and distinguishes her indemnification claim from actions taken by board members seeking punitive or compensatory damages. (Id. at p. 6)

Upon careful and independent review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner determines to affirm the initial decision of the ALJ. In so doing, the Commissioner recognizes that > [o]n its face, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-2 mandates that no board member may serve who has filed a claim against the board of education on which he sits. Case law has further established that any such claim must be examined on a case-by-case basis in arriving at a determination as to whether the circumstances in the matter demonstrate that a board member would benefit in a substantial and material way from said claim. If so, the statute should be applied and the board member disqualified from serving on said board. (citations omitted) Board of Education of the Township of Holmdel v. O'Connell, 1990 S.L.D. 674, 680.

In this analysis, the relevant cases distinguish between those claims against a board which seek to uphold a public interest, as opposed to those claims that support a private, personal interest.

> If the goal of the lawsuit is to vindicate the public's interest, as, for example, in an action challenging a contract issued by the board to the school district superintendent, then the board member may retain his or her seat but must abstain from participating in any discussion or vote regarding the litigation. Scotch Plains-Fanwood Bd. of Ed. v. Syvertsen, Comm'r decision (June 13, 1990). In contrast, if the lawsuit seeks compensatory or punitive damages that will accrue to the benefit of the board member personally, then there likely exists a substantial and material conflict of interest requiring either withdrawal of the claim or forfeiture of board membership. Tp. of Holmdel Bd. of Ed., Monmouth County v. O'Connell, Comm'r decision (May 10, 1990). Board of Education of the Twp. of Jackson v. Acevedo, 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 163, 164.

Like the ALJ, the Commissioner is not persuaded that Ms. Walsh's claim for indemnification under Count Two of her petition "is necessarily only an attempt to secure her own personal financial interest." (Initial Decision at p. 2) As the ALJ notes, "In each count, she seeks to have the Board indemnify her so that she can protect what she asserts is the public interest in her ability to attend Board meetings in safety and security." (Id. at p. 3)

Accordingly, the Interlocutory Order of the ALJ granting summary decision to Ms. Walsh and dismissing the Board's application for her disqualification from Board membership pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-2 is adopted for the reasons expressed therein. The matter of her underlying indemnification claim shall proceed at the OAL, in accordance with the ALJ's decision.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF ROBERTA JOHNSON

Cherie L. Maxwell, Esq., for petitioner
(Sills, Cummis, Zuckerman, Radin, Tischman, Epstein & Gross, attorneys)

Eugene G. Liss, Esq., for respondent

Record Closed: December 31, 1998 Decided: January 4, 1999

BEFORE KEN R. SPRINGER, ALJ:

Statement of Facts

This matter involves tenure charges of unbecoming conduct certified by the State-Operated School District of the City of Newark ("District") against Roberta Johnson under the Tenure Employees Hearing Law, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 to -18.1.

Roberta Johnson is a tenured eighth-grade teacher employed by the District. By resolution adopted on November 24, 1997, the District found the existence of probable cause to certify tenure charges which, if true, are sufficient to warrant dismissal or reduction in salary. Basically, the District accused Johnson of failing to make a proper accounting of moneys collected from students for the purpose of ordering class rings and caps and gowns during the 1996-97 academic year.

On December 2, 1997, the District filed its written tenure charges with the Commissioner of Education ("Commissioner"). Respondent Johnson filed her answer on December 19, 1997. Subsequently, on January 22, 1998, the Commissioner transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") for determination as a contested case.

Both parties have agreed to a proposed settlement, subject to approval by the Commissioner. In accordance with the decision of the State Board of Education in Cardonick v. Brooklawn Bd. of Ed., 1983 S.L.D. ___ (St. Bd. April 6, 1983), the record of any proposed settlement must include:

> . . . the nature of the charges, circumstances justifying the settlement, consent or authorization by the Board of Education and the teacher to the proposed agreement, the Administrative Law Judge's finding that the teacher entered into the agreement with a full understanding of his rights, and [a finding] that the agreement is consistent with the public interest.

On October 27, 1998, the OAL held a public hearing on the issue of whether or not the proposed settlement should be accepted. Counsel for both parties set forth on the record the reasons why settlement would be in the public interest. Johnson testified that she fully understood and voluntarily agreed to the terms of settlement. In addition, the parties have prepared a stipulation of settlement, which is attached and fully incorporated in this decision.

Based on my review of the record, I FIND that the proposed settlement is consistent with the public interest for the following reasons:

1. Roberta Johnson has been employed as a teacher by the District or its predecessor for seventeen years. During this period, she received satisfactory evaluations of her performance as a teacher. She has not been subject to any prior disciplinary actions.

2. While Johnson may be guilty of careless bookkeeping and sloppy money management, she did not have any criminal intent to misappropriate money belonging to her students. Although the local police department conducted an investigation into the circumstances, they found insufficient evidence of illegal conduct to warrant the bringing of a criminal complaint.

3. Events forming the basis of the tenure charges arose in the context of voluntary activities performed by Johnson. She did not receive any extra compensation for collecting money for class rings or caps and gowns.

4. At or about the time she was supposed to turn the cap and gown money over to the supplier, Johnson was distracted by personal circumstances which affected her judgment. In 1997, she devoted much of her energies to caring for her dying mother, who passed away in June. Just before school graduation, Johnson traveled to South Carolina to arrange for her mother's interment.

5. Johnson has made good faith efforts to reimburse all students to whom money is due. Part of the difficulty in accomplishing this task was due to the fact that several students had moved to new addresses.

6. At the hearing, Johnson appeared genuinely contrite and sorry for her behavior. She recognizes that her conduct was wrong.

7. Under the proposed terms of settlement, Johnson will suffer the loss of pay for 120 days and must make full restitution of all moneys collected from students. The Board is not required to make any payment to Johnson.

8. If a hearing is necessary, the District intends to call several young students, who would have to testify against their own teacher.

9. Before entering into this agreement, Johnson fully understood her rights and had an adequate opportunity to consult with legal counsel.

10. Johnson is aware that, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6, the Commissioner may refer this matter to the State Board of Examiners for any licensing action which it may deem appropriate.

11. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy.

I CONCLUDE that the terms of settlement are in the public interest.

It is ORDERED that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that the proceedings are hereby concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF NEWARK, ESSEX COUNTY	SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT

The State-Operated School District of the City of Newark ("Newark" or "District") and Roberta Johnson ("Johnson"), agree to the following terms in full resolution of the above matter:

WHEREAS, Johnson disputes the allegations of the tenures charges, as to the alleged misappropriation of funds,

WHEREAS, the matter was referred to the police who conducted an investigation but found insufficient evidence of criminal conduct; and

WHEREAS, all monies have been returned to the students involved; and

WHEREAS, the parties agree that it is in the public interest to enter into this Agreement in resolution of said charges to avoid the uncertainty and expense of litigation; and,

WHEREAS, the parties further agree that the terms of this Agreement will not present any risk of harm to students and/or the safe operation of the school district;

NOW, THEREFORE, the parties agree as follows:

1. Johnson shall receive a four month (One Hundred and Twenty Days) suspension, without pay; provided, however, that any period of suspension without pay already served by Johnson in connection with this matter shall be credited against the four-month suspension referenced in this paragraph.

2. Johnson shall assure that full restitution has occurred with respect to all monies collected from students for the 1996-97 school year.

3. Upon approval of this Agreement by the Commissioner of Education, Johnson shall be reassigned to a teaching position in the District. Every effort will be made to assign Johnson to a school other than the Fifteenth Avenue School if possible.

4. In exchange for the above consideration, Johnson hereby fully releases and forever discharges the District, its representatives, agents, officers and employees, for any and all actions, claims and liabilities that she has had or may have against any of them with respect to subject matter of these tenure charges.

5. Johnson acknowledges as required by In re Cardonick that despite the approval of this agreement, the issue of possible revocation of her teaching certificate may be considered by the State Board of Examiners.

6. This Agreement is subject to approval of the State District Superintendent and the Commissioner of Education. Upon approval of this agreement, the District agrees that the tenure charges against Johnson shall be withdrawn.

7. The parties enter this agreement voluntarily and without coercion, after consultation with their respective counsel.

BEFORE EDITH KLINGER, ALJ:

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on April 13, 1998 for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. Hearings were scheduled on February 22, 23 and 24, 1999 at the OAL in Newark. Prior to the hearing dates, the parties advised the undersigned that they had amicably resolved this matter.

On December 24, 1998, the parties submitted the attached Certification and Stipulation of Settlement, indicating the terms of agreement which are incorporated herein by reference.

I have reviewed the record and the settlement terms and I FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement on the record.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with law.

3. The agreement conforms with the Cardonick standards and with the concerns of the Commissioner of Education as set forth in his decision. In re Cardonick, decided by Commissioner, April 7, 1982, affirmed, State Bd. of Ed., 1990 S.L.D. 842, 846 (April 6, 1983).

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE CHARGES AGAINST ALAN ROSS, A TEACHING STAFF MEMBER OF THE BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF BERGENFIELD, BERGEN COUNTY	STATE OF NEW JERSEY OFFICE OF ADMINISTRATIVE LAW OAL DOCKET NO. EDUTH 03532-98N AGENCY REFERENCE NO. 56-3/98 CERTIFICATION OF DR. JOHN F. GALISH

I, Dr. John F. Galish, of full age, hereby certify as follows:

1. At all relevant times, I have been the Superintendent of Schools of the Board of Education of the Borough of Bergenfield, Bergen County (hereinafter "Board").

2. This certification is submitted in support of the Board's request that this Court and the Commissioner of Education approve the proposed settlement in this matter, as described in the attached Stipulation of Settlement (Exhibit A) and further approve the resignation of Alan Ross, effective September 24, 1998, the date of the Board resolution accepting the letter of resignation.

3. On March 3, 1998, I filed tenure charges against the Respondent, Alan Ross (hereinafter "Mr. Ross"), a tenured teacher at Bergenfield High School. These tenure charges were based upon information that I had received regarding certain activities that Mr. Ross had engaged in while teaching at Bergenfield High School. These charges concerned Mr. Ross's improper viewing of the Internet while in class. Specifically, the charges include the claims of Unbecoming Conduct.

4. The Board has referred the underlying circumstances to the Bergenfield Police Department for further investigation. It is my understanding that the matter was ultimately brought to the attention of the Bergen County Prosecutor's Office. I am attaching a copy of an Agreement executed by the Bergen County Prosecutor and Mr. Ross indicating that criminal charges will not be filed against Mr. Ross.

5. On September 17, 1998, Alan Ross submitted a letter of resignation to me. On September 24, 1998, the Board passed a resolution accepting the letter of resignation of Mr. Ross, effective immediately. The Board's acceptance of the letter of resignation was subject to the Commissioner's approval.

6. The Board believes that acceptance of the letter of resignation is in the public interest as considerable expenditure of public funds would be required to pursue tenure charges herein. Costs for legal fees associated with a tenure hearing and the continuing statutory obligation to provide salary to Mr. Ross could be substantial. There is uncertainty as to when the decision of the Commissioner of Education would be issued. In addition, as I have been informed that the prosecutor's office has fully investigated the charges herein, this matter has been the subject of careful scrutiny by the appropriate police authorities. The determination not to file criminal charges provides assurance to the Board that all issues herein have been properly investigated. Furthermore, the Board of Education has adopted a resolution directing its counsel to file a civil complaint against Mr. Ross seeking to recover salaries improperly paid to him for those periods that he was not performing his contractual duties. Accordingly, the Board believes that there is no need for a full trial in this matter.

7. The Board also understands that this matter may be referred to the New Jersey Board of Examiners, who will have jurisdiction regarding the teaching certificate of Mr. Ross.

8. The Board has not agreed to provide any financial incentives to Alan Ross and, therefore, believes that Alan Ross will receive no extraordinary benefit as a result of this settlement.

9. After reviewing the factors referenced above, the Board and I have determined that the proposed settlement will be in the public interest and respectfully request that the Commissioner of Education approve the settlement.

IN THE MATTER OF THE REVOCATION :
OF THE TEACHING CERTIFICATE OF : STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION
ROBERT CRAWFORD BY THE STATE : DECISION
BOARD OF EXAMINERS :

Decided by the State Board of Examiners, June 17, 1999

For the Petitioner-Respondent, Terri A. Cutrera, Deputy Attorney General (John J. Farmer, Jr., Attorney General of New Jersey)

For the Respondent-Appellant, Horn, Goldberg, Gorny, Plackter, Weiss & Perskie (Frederick F. Fitchett, III, Esq.)

This matter involves an appeal from a decision of the State Board of Examiners to revoke the standard certification to serve as a teacher of psychology which it had issued to Robert Crawford (hereinafter "respondent") in May 1995 pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-5.1 et seq.[1] After the respondent's attorney filed his notice of appeal to the State Board of Education, the Director of the State Board Appeals Office requested that the Board of Examiners certify the record to the State Board as required by N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.8.[2] In response, the Board of

[1] The original Order to Show Cause was issued on February 14, 1997, but was amended on February 26, 1998 to detail facts included in an investigative report by the Department of Education's Office of Compliance.

[2] N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.8 provides:

(a) The record on appeal shall include all papers, tape recordings, computer disks and exhibits on file with the Commissioner, Board of Examiners or School Ethics Commission, with all entries

Examiners provided 34 items together with a cover memorandum dated December 9, 1996 from the Secretary of the Board of Examiners to its members. Upon further request, the Board of Examiners provided another packet of documents with a similar cover memorandum dated June 2, 1999 to the members of the Board of Examiners. In response to an additional request, the Board of Examiners supplied the record that had been transmitted to it by the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") after the Administrative Law Judge ("ALJ") had issued his initial decision and recommendation in the matter.

As a result of the Board of Examiners' first response to the State Board of Education's request for the record, the Director of the State Board Appeals Office prepared a statement of the items included in that response.[3] This statement was provided to both parties, as well as transmitted to the Board of Examiners in its quasi-judicial capacity. In response to this memorandum, the Deputy Attorney General representing the Board of Examiners in its prosecutorial role sent copies of the exhibits admitted into evidence in the proceedings at OAL to the State Board of Education. In her accompanying letter of December 28, 1999, the Deputy indicated that not all of the materials that had been supplied by the Board of Examiners had been entered into evidence and that some exhibits had not been as to matters made on the record, any stenographic transcript, and all papers filed with or entries made on the records of the State Board.

(b) Upon notice of appeal, the Commissioner or Board of Examiners shall certify the record and remit the record to the State Board, together with the notice and two copies of the decision appealed from.

(c) The record shall be retained by the State Board except that any party may be permitted to use any portion of such record in the State Board's appeals office.

[3] The statement reflected that the Board of Examiners had provided thirty-four items to the State Board of Education in its first response. One of those items was the exhibits to the investigative report, which was comprised of sixteen documents.

included in the Board of Examiners' record. The Deputy also sent a copy of this letter to counsel for respondent.

By letter dated December 29, 1999, respondent's attorney advised the State Board of Education that the items supplied by the Board of Examiners had included documents that were not part of the record before the ALJ and which had not been produced during discovery. Counsel expressed concern that the fact that the Board of Examiners would review additional documents unknown to his client "may suggest an unfair bias in the process which might be violative of a due process review."

In addition, by letter of January 3, 2000, counsel for respondent replied to the Deputy's letter of December 28. In this letter, counsel asserted that:

> I do not believe that you have been properly provided with a certification of the record below by the State Board of Examiners. [The DAG] as representative of the DOE in prosecuting this case, would not appear to be the appropriate person to be correcting the record...since she is clearly in an adversary position to the respondent....

By letter of January 3, 2000 to counsel for respondent, the Deputy sought to "clear any confusion which might exist concerning the record and concerning the appropriateness of my responses to your discovery requests in this case." The Deputy's correspondence set forth a detailed description of the discovery process that had taken place during the OAL proceedings.

In view of the dispute between the parties to the underlying case with respect to exactly which items constitute the record, we remand this matter to the State Board of Examiners for settlement of the record. Cf. R. 2:5-5. Under the circumstances, we direct the Board of Examiners to transmit the case to the Office of Administrative Law for such proceedings as are necessary to correct the record. See In the Matter of the Petition for Review of Opinion No. 583 of the Advisory Committee on Professional Ethics, 107 N.J. 230 (1987).

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF SCOTCH PLAINS-FANWOOD, UNION COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, teacher of the handicapped and tenured school social worker, challenged Board's decision to withhold his increment for the 1997-98 school year.

ALJ determined that before filing, petitioner waited more than 90 days after receiving the letter advising him of the withholding. ALJ further concluded that the circumstances of this case do not warrant relaxation of the 90-day time limit. Thus, the ALJ ordered the petition dismissed as untimely filed.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own.

INITIAL DECISION

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 9513-97
AGENCY DKT. NO. 293-8/97

CHARLES FREYBERGER,

Petitioner,

v.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF SCOTCH PLAINS-FANWOOD, UNION COUNTY,

Respondent.

Gail Oxfeld Kanef, Esq., for petitioner,
(Balk, Oxfeld, Mandell & Cohen, attorneys)

Casper P. Boehm, Jr., Esq., for respondent

Record Closed: November 16, 1998 Decided: December 28, 1998

BEFORE RICHARD McGILL, ALJ:

Charles Freyberger (petitioner) filed a petition with the Commissioner of Education seeking relief from a determination by the Board of Education of the Township of Scotch Plains-Fanwood (respondent) to withhold his increment for the 1997-98 school year.

Respondent now moves to dismiss on the grounds that the petition is time-barred under the ninety-day limitation set forth at N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c).

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner filed his petition with the Commissioner of Education on August 7, 1997, pursuant to the Commissioner's authority conferred by N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9 to hear and determine controversies and disputes arising under the the school laws. Respondent filed an answer on September 11, 1997, and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on October 1, 1997, for determination as a contested case.

On September 9, 1998, respondent filed the pending motion to dismiss, and responsive papers were received on October 13, 1998. An oral argument in regard to the motion was conducted on November 16, 1998, and at that time, limited testimony was taken pursuant to *N.J.A.*C. 1:1-12.4(c) to clarify the facts related to the motion.

MOTION TO DISMISS

a. Positions of the Parties

In support of the motion to dismiss, respondent contends that petitioner received notice on April 28, 1997, that his increment for the 1997-98 school year would be withheld. Thereafter, petitioner filed his petition with the Commission of Education on August 7, 1997, which was more than ninety days after April 28, 1997. Based upon these facts, respondent moves to dismiss on the grounds that petitioner failed to file his petition within the ninety-day time limit set forth in *N.J.A.*C. 6:24-1.2(c).

Petitioner offers two main arguments in opposition to the motion. First, petitioner maintains that the ninety-day period should begin to run on a date in late May 1997 and that in relation to this date the petition was timely filed on August 7, 1997. Second, petitioner maintains that the circumstances of this case warrant relaxation of the ninety-day time limit pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.15.

b. Facts

The various submissions by the parties and the testimony taken during the oral argument establish the following facts. During the 1996-97 school year, respondent employed petitioner as a teacher in an Alternative Program for middle school age students with severe emotional difficulties. On April 25, 1997, Personnel Specialist Robert Raiford issued a letter, which was incorrectly dated April 25, 1996, advising petitioner that respondent had approved a recommendation that his salary for the 1997-98 school year be maintained at the 1996-97 level. It is noteworthy that the letter does not refer to any particular position. School principal, Chester Janusz, hand-delivered this letter to petitioner on April 28, 1997. Petitioner did not thereafter have any discussions with respondent's representatives concerning the increment withholding.

By a second letter dated April 25, 1997, Personnel Specialist Raiford advised petitioner that respondent was unable to offer him a contract for the 1997-98 school year. The letter further stated that it has been possible in some instances in the past to offer employment to similarly situated staff as the result of retirements, resignations and leave requests subsequent to the Board's action.

After receipt of this letter, petitioner started to look for a job. However, at respondent's meeting on May 22, 1997, there was a discussion concerning appointment of petitioner to the position of social worker for the 1997-98 school year. Shortly thereafter, petitioner received a contract as a social worker. When petitioner reviewed the contract, he saw that the increment withholding would affect his salary as a social worker. Thereafter, petitioner contacted his attorney, and his appeal was filed on August 7, 1997.

c. Law and Analysis

One pertinent regulation is N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c), which provides as follows:

> The petitioner shall file a petition no later than the 90th day from the date of receipt of the notice of a final order, ruling or other action by the district board of education, individual party, or agency, which is the subject of the requested contested case hearing.

The issue with respect to this regulation concerns the starting date for the ninety-day time limit. This question was addressed by our Supreme Court in Kaprow v. Board of Educ. of Berkeley Tp., 131 N.J. 572 (1993). The ninety-day period begins when the affected individual has received adequate notice. Id., at 586-587. In order for notice to be adequate, the teacher must have been alerted to the existence of facts which give rise to a cause of action. Id., at 587. Here, the letter advising petitioner of the withholding of his increment was sufficient to alert him to a cause of action. This circumstance is sufficient in itself to trigger the ninety-day time limit. The possibility that the withholding of the increment may have seemed unimportant during the one-month period from the time that petitioner was notified that he would not be offered a contract as a teacher for the next school year until he was given a contract as a social worker does not alter this conclusion. Under the circumstances, I CONCLUDE that the filing of the petition in this matter was untimely relative within the ninety-day limit set forth in N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c).

The next issue is whether the circumstances of this case warrant relaxation of the time limit set forth in N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c). The pertinent regulation is N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.15, which provides as follows:

> The rules herein contained shall be considered general rules of practice to govern, expedite and effectuate the procedure before, and the actions of, the Commissioner in connection with the determination of controversies and disputes under the school laws. They may be relaxed or dispensed with by the Commissioner, in his or her discretion, in any case where a strict adherence thereto may be deemed inappropriate or unnecessary or may result in injustice.

The ninety-day time limit has been relaxed due to equitable considerations such as good faith discussions to resolve a dispute or delay attributable solely to the Board of Education or to consider a substantial constitutional issue or a matter of significant public interest. LeMee v. Board of Education of the Village of Ridgewood, 1990 S.L.D. 663, 668. In this case, there were no settlement discussions or delay attributable to respondent. Further, while petitioner had reason to believe for a period of approximately one month that he would not be employed by respondent for the 1997-98 school year, he still had two months from the time at which he received his contract to file his appeal. It follows that there are no equitable considerations which warrant relaxation of the ninety-day time limit. Further, this case does not raise a substantial constitutional issue or present a matter of significant public interest. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the circumstances of this case do not warrant relaxation of the ninety-day time limit. It follows that the petition in this matter is time-barred by the ninety-day time limit set forth in N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c).

Accordingly, it is ORDERED that the petition in this matter is dismissed.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
	:	DECISION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF BERKELEY HEIGHTS, UNION COUNTY,	:
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning school psychologist alleged that an increase in her in-school work year resulted in a reduction in compensation in violation of her tenure rights. Petitioner had been transferred to respondent's employ as a result of the dissolution of the Union County Regional High School District (UCRHSD).

ALJ concluded that the reduction in petitioner's level of compensation was violative of the Tenure Act. ALJ noted that a board has the right to establish hourly rates for supplemental teachers; however, the Court has held that contract terms may not contravene or supersede a specific term or condition of employment set by statute. (Bassett) Thus, the ALJ found that there was a reduction in the level of petitioner's compensation as a result of the collective bargaining agreement ratified in November 1997 which required her to work more days than she had been required to work the prior year at UCRHSD. ALJ ordered the restoration of her per diem rate to $409.86 and retroactive reimbursement of the difference between the two rates (1996-97 and 1997-98 school years).

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own. Citing Casey State Board decision, the Commissioner agreed with the ALJ that petitioner's rate of compensation was improperly reduced. Commissioner noted that the matter herein dealt solely with the applicability of the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64 to the preservation of petitioner's statutory rights as a tenured employee upon the dissolution of a regional school district, in this case UCRHSD.

throughout the State calculated their salary on a per diem basis, then, based upon changes in school calendars and renegotiated bargaining agreements, they might claim a reduction in salary because they work an extra day or two in a subsequent year. It is respondent's position that awarding petitioner her requested relief would grossly violate the collective bargaining which took place in the instant matter and overturn precedent in the State of New Jersey.

Petitioner's reply exceptions maintain that respondent is attempting to thwart the ALJ's decision by citing Breese, supra. She contends, however, that respondent failed to point out that the decrease in Breese's per diem salary came about as a result of his own voluntary selection of a new position of employment. Petitioner also points out that the ALJ in Breese specifically stated at page 34 of that decision that the tenure laws had not been enacted to protect Breese from his own actions and noted that the result may have been different if he had been coerced into exchanging positions without receiving adequate remuneration. Further, petitioner supports the ALJ's recognition that the Courts have consistently held that the terms of a collective bargaining agreement, irrespective of its lawful negotiation, may not violate the rights of employees which have been established by statute. In the instant matter this includes her statutory rights, as a tenured teaching staff member under N.J.S.A. 18A:25-5, not to be reduced in compensation without proceedings under the Tenure Act. Citing Bassett, supra, and Casey v. Board of Education of the Township of Cinnaminson, decided by State Board of Education 95 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 585, petitioner urges that the ALJ properly concluded that respondent's actions in this matter constituted a reduction in salary and thus violated her tenure rights.

Upon careful and independent review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner adopts as his own the conclusion of the ALJ that, given the factual circumstances presented herein, a violation of the Tenure Act occurred. Contrary to respondent's arguments otherwise, the facts support a conclusion that petitioner experienced a reduction in her rate of compensation when, as a result of the dissolution of the Union County Regional High School District (UCRHSD), she was reassigned/transferred pursuant to the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64 to respondent's school district whose work year required more work days than the UCRHSD. Consequently, while petitioner's annual salary and monthly salary were not reduced, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that petitioner's salary was, nonetheless, reduced because the per diem rate was less than she had earned the previous school year as an employee of UCRHSD. As such, the Commissioner agrees with petitioner that the State Board of Education's decision in Casey, supra, is applicable to the matter herein. The fact that the rate of pay in dispute in the instant matter involves a per diem rate, as opposed to a monthly rate as in Casey, does not serve to thwart petitioner's claim. Also, the Commissioner is in full agreement with petitioner's position that Breese, supra, is distinguishable from the instant matter for the reasons stated above.

Lastly, the Commissioner does not agree with respondent's dire predication that this determination will become precedent setting in future collective bargaining negotiations with boards of education throughout the State. The matter herein deals solely with the applicability of the provisions of a specific statute, N.J.S.A. 18A:13-64, to the preservation of petitioner's statutory rights as a tenured employee upon the dissolution of a regional school district.

Accordingly, the initial decision granting summary decision to petitioner is affirmed.[1]

IT IS SO ORDERED.

STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION

DECISION

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, September 30, 1999

For the Petitioners-Appellants, Zazzali, Fagella, Nowak, Kleinbaum & Friedman (Aileen M. O'Driscoll, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Respondent Board of Education of the Township of Montclair, Schenck, Price, Smith & King, L.L.P. (Richard H. Bauch, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondents-Respondents Department of Health of the Township of Montclair and the Township of Montclair, Robert A. Hoonhout, Esq.

This matter arose on May 5, 1997, when the Board of Education of the Township of Montclair (hereinafter "Board") abolished the positions of two of its six school nurses for reasons of economy effective June 30, 1997. In September 1996, the Board had contracted with the Department of Health of Montclair ("DOH") for the provision of registered nurses to fill the equivalent of 3½ nursing positions. When it executed a new contract with DOH for 1997-98 subsequent to the reduction in staff, it contracted for the provision of registered nurses to fill the equivalent of eight nursing positions. It also contracted with DOH for the provision of registered nurses to fill the equivalent of the same number of positions for 1998-99. Although not all of the nurses provided by DOH possessed an Educational Services Certificate with an endorsement as a School Nurse, all were fully licensed by the New Jersey Board of Nursing.

In July 1997, petitioners challenged the Board's action, alleging that abolishing the two school nursing positions and contracting with DOH for the provision of nursing services was in violation of their tenure rights.[1] In addition to the Board, petitioners named both the DOH and the Township of Montclair as respondents. However, by order of June 5, 1998, the Administrative Law Judge ("ALJ") dismissed the DOH from the case because the Commissioner did not have the jurisdiction to grant relief against it. On June 30, 1999, as part of her initial decision, the ALJ dismissed the Township for the same reason.

[1] Petitioners Montclair Education Association and Moira Palisits filed their petition on July 23, 1997, and Cynthia Samuel filed a separate petition on July 29, 1997. Following transmittal to the Office of Administrative Law, the matters were consolidated at the request of the parties.

The ALJ rejected petitioners' claim that the contract between the Board and DOH for the provision of nurses was in violation of the Interlocal Services Act, N.J.S.A. 40:8A-1 et seq. Petitioners had argued that N.J.S.A. 18A:40-1 and N.J.S.A. 18A:40-3.1 prohibited a school district from contracting out for nursing services. The ALJ rejected this argument, stressing that prior Commissioner's decisions had held that licensed health care professionals may provide nursing services that do not require educational certification. Hence, the ALJ concluded that as long as the nurses provided by DOH did not render services restricted to certificated nurses and so long as it was empowered to render the contracted services within its own jurisdiction, the contract between the Board and DOH was not in violation of the Interlocal Services Act.

Concluding that scoliosis screening and audiometric screening could be performed by contract nurses, the ALJ found that there was no evidence in the contract between the Board and DOH that some of the duties to be assumed by the contract nurses were restricted to certificated nurses. Further concluding that the individual petitioners had not suffered any injury by virtue of the Board's action and that the Montclair Education Association was entitled only to ensure that contract nurses were not performing duties reserved to certificated nurses under the education laws, the ALJ stressed that petitioners had not pointed to any specific duties assigned to contract nurses that should have been reserved for certificated nurses. In addition, because the contracts in question had already been performed, there was no relief that could have been granted to the Association as a result of the appeal. The ALJ therefore recommended that summary decision be granted to the Board and that the petitioners' appeals be dismissed with prejudice.

The Commissioner adopted the ALJ's initial decision with modification. Although agreeing with the ALJ that petitioners were not entitled to any relief, the Commissioner stressed that contract nurses could not perform the school nursing services enumerated in Old Bridge Township Education Association v. Board of Education of the Township of Old Bridge, decided by the Commissioner, November 26, 1997, aff'd with clarification by the State Board, April 1, 1998. Accordingly, the Commissioner directed that to the extent the Board had a contract with DOH for the current year, it was to review the contract and attendant job descriptions to ensure that the nursing duties being performed pursuant to the contract did not conflict with duties specifically reserved for certificated school nurses employed by the district. The Commissioner further directed the District to make such revisions as necessitated by the review and to submit the results to the Essex County Superintendent of Schools for review and approval.

Petitioners appealed to the State Board of Education. Petitioners argue that the language of N.J.S.A. 18A:40-3.1 requires that the Board employ, manage, and compensate its school nurses. They further argue that the statute's express provision for the continuance of contracts for school nursing services entered into prior to February 27, 1957 demonstrates the Legislature's intent to prohibit district boards from delegating by contracts initiated after that date the provision of school nursing services to any entity other than the board. They also contend that absent express statutory authority to permit a public entity such as a district board to delegate its obligations to another entity, such public entity cannot delegate a power or duty delegated to it by statute. Petitioners maintain that contracting with DOH for the provision of nursing services does just that in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:40-3.1, which both mandates and authorizes district boards to directly employ every person employed as a school nurse or performing any school nursing service in the public schools.

In addition, petitioners argue that the contract between the Board and DOH violates the Interlocal Services Act because although DOH may be authorized to provide general nursing services, it is not statutorily authorized to provide school nursing services. They also contend that even if it is permissible for DOH to provide nursing services to the District, the Commissioner's decision should be modified because it fails to recognize that the job descriptions of the contract nurses are identical to those specifying the duties of the school nurses. Finally, they urge that the DOH nurses be compelled to cease providing services requiring certification as a school nurse and argue that there were not a sufficient number of school nurses employed by the District to ensure that school nursing services were being provided by certified school nurses.

Resolution of this appeal requires a clear understanding of the distinctions between the terms "nurse" and "school nurse" and between "nursing services" and "school nursing services" as those terms are defined by the education laws. The starting point for developing such an understanding is a review of the education statutes pertaining to the provision of nursing services in the public schools.

N.J.S.A. 18A:1-1 defines a "school nurse" as "... any school nurse...or any other nurse performing school nursing services in the public schools." Pursuant to N.J.S.A.

18A:1-1, "school nurses" are teaching staff members. As defined by the statute, a "teaching staff member" is:

> ...a member of the professional staff of any district...holding office, position or employment of such character that the qualifications, for such office, position or employment, require him to hold a valid and effective standard, provisional or emergency certificate appropriate to his office, position or employment, issued by the state board of examiners and includes a school nurse.

Similarly, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-38 provides that the State Board of Examiners must issue appropriate certificates "to render...nursing service to, pupils in public schools operated by boards of education." Consistent with that statute, N.J.S.A. 18A:26-2 provides that "no teaching staff member shall be employed in the public schools...unless he is a holder of a valid certificate to...render...nursing service to pupils in such public school." In addition, N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5, which specifies the requirements for the achievement of tenure by teaching staff members, expressly provides that the services of all school nurses shall be under tenure if they meet the statutory criteria, one of which is to possess an appropriate certificate issued by the State Board of Examiners.

As the Commissioner of Education stressed in his decision in Old Bridge, supra, each school district is required by statute to employ at least one "school nurse" who must be appropriately certified and who is a teaching staff member. Furthermore, under the statutory scheme, it is the "school nurse" who provides "school nursing services." As set forth by the Commissioner in Old Bridge, "school nursing services" encompass those duties expressly reserved to "school nurses" by statute or regulation and include: 1) lecturing teachers on the recognition and prevention of communicable disease and other health concerns (N.J.S.A. 18A:40-3), 2) maintaining pupil health records and assisting the medical inspector with physical examinations, including vision and hearing examinations (N.J.S.A. 18A:40-4), 3) examining pupils for the presence of scoliosis (N.J.S.A. 18A:40-4.3), 4) recommending exclusion from school due to illness or exposure to disease (N.J.S.A. 18A:40-7 and -8), 5) reporting, receiving reports, and conducting examinations in instances of suspected substance abuse (N.J.S.A. 18A:40A-12), 6) audiometric screening (N.J.S.A. 18A:40-4), and, 7) where assigned, providing instruction to students within the limitations of the "school nurse" endorsement (N.J.S.A. 18A:26-2).

Under the education laws, services other than those specifically reserved for "school nurses" are characterized as "nursing services" rather than "school nursing services." As the Commissioner emphasized in Old Bridge, the education laws do not preclude a district board from employing properly licensed health care professionals who are supervised as required by the Board of Nursing pursuant to N.J.S.A. 45:11-23 to provide "nursing services." Nor is there any prohibition against employing such health care professionals to assist the "school nurse" in providing "school nursing services" so long as they do not actually provide the service except as delegated by the "school nurse." Old Bridge, supra, slip op. at 14-15. Further, effective July 1, 1999, school districts have been expressly authorized to "supplement the services provided by the certified school nurse with non-certified nurses, provided that the non-certified nurse is assigned to the same school building or complex as the certified nurse." N.J.S.A. 18A:40-3.3.

As previously stated, "school nursing services" must be provided by a "school nurse." Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:40-3.1, "every person employed as a school nurse...or performing any school nursing service...shall be appointed by the board of education having charge of the school or schools in which the services are to be rendered and shall be under the direction of said board...." N.J.S.A. 18A:40-1 mandates that every district board must employ at least one school nurse." Because the "school nursing services" delineated above are required by law and must be provided by a "school nurse," the Commissioner has held that each district board must employ a sufficient number of "school nurses" to ensure the adequate provision of "school nursing services." Old Bridge, supra, slip op. at 14. However, as the Commissioner concluded in Dover Education Association v. Board of Education of the Town of Dover, decided by the Commissioner, December 12, 1997, slip op. at 10, nothing in the education laws precludes a board from contracting for the services of non-certified nurses to perform duties consistent with the dictates of Old Bridge.

Applying these principles to the instant appeal, it is clear that the Commissioner was correct in concluding that the contract between the Board and DOH did not contravene the Interlocal Services Act, N.J.S.A. 40:8A-1 et seq., so long as the role played by the nurses provided pursuant to the contract did not include independently performing functions reserved for the "school nurse" as those functions were delineated in Old Bridge. Therefore, we affirm the Commissioner's decision in that respect. In doing so, we fully concur with the Commissioner that nothing in the Interlocal Services Act precludes local governmental agencies other than school districts from providing nursing services districts other than "school nursing services" to school districts.

We also find that it was appropriate for the Commissioner to direct the Board to review any contract it had with DOH and the attendant job descriptions to ensure that duties being performed by nurses provided by DOH did not conflict with those reserved by law for "school nurses" employed by the Board. Accordingly, we also affirm that directive.

In its Report that was mailed to the parties to this appeal, our Legal Committee concluded that we should reject petitioners' contention that there were an insufficient number of "school nurses" employed by the Board to provide the requisite "school nursing services." In reaching this conclusion, the Report found that petitioners had not shown that this was in fact the case. The Report also found that petitioners had not shown that the nurses provided pursuant to the contract with DOH independently performed functions reserved for the "school nurse" during the relevant period.

In their exceptions to the Legal Committee Report, petitioners point to the fact that following the reduction in staff that is the subject of this appeal the Board employed only three certified school nurses on a full-time basis and that these individuals were assigned to three specific schools. Petitioners argue that these facts demonstrate that the Board did not employ a sufficient number of "school nurses" to provide the District's students with those services which must be provided by certified school nurses employed by the Board. While we are not prepared to accept this conclusion on the basis of these facts alone, we find that the proper course for resolving the issue is to remand the matter to the Commissioner to develop a record that is sufficient to make such a determination. We also find that in order to properly make this determination, the Commissioner must ascertain whether the Board complied with his directive to review any contract it had with DOH for the 1999-2000 school year and District staffing patterns to insure that the Board's provision of school nursing services was consistent with the parameters established in Old Bridge, supra, and Dover, supra, and that the Board submit the results of its review to the Essex County Superintendent of Schools.

In remanding this matter, we stress that while there is no relief that could be afforded to the Montclair Education Association even if the Commissioner were to find on remand that the Board's action in abolishing the positions of the individual petitioners was improper, the individual petitioners would be entitled to relief for the period relevant to this appeal. We also stress that although N.J.S.A. 18A:40-3.3 is not applicable to this appeal since it was not enacted until 1999, the Board is required to comply with its terms in the event that it is currently supplementing the nursing services provided by its "school nurses" by contracting for the provision of other nurses.[2]

We do not retain jurisdiction.

Attorney exceptions are noted.

[2] As previously stated, N.J.S.A. 18A:40-3.3 authorizes a district board to supplement the nursing services provided by its "school nurses" with non-certified nurses provided that any non-certified nurse is assigned to the same school building or school complex as the certified nurse.

INITIAL DECISION

SETTLEMENT

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 8451-98

AGENCY DKT. NO. 413-9/98

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF EDWARD TUMOLO, BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF GLOUCESTER, CAMDEN COUNTY

John D. Wade, Esq., for petitioner

Keith Waldman, Esq., for respondent (Selikoff & Cohen, attorneys)

Record Closed: January 11, 1999 Decided: January 11, 1999

BEFORE BEATRICE S. TYLUTKI, ALJ:

This matter concerns the tenure charges brought against the respondent, Edward Tumolo, by the petitioner, Board of Education of the Township of Gloucester, Camden County, alleging incapacity, chronic absenteeism, unbecoming conduct and insubordination. The respondent requested a hearing, and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on September 25, 1998, for a hearing pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

After several settlement conferences, the matter settled. On January 11, 1999, I received a fully signed stipulation of settlement, which sets forth the terms of the settlement. This settlement is attached and is incorporated herein.

The respondent acknowledges that he had an alcohol dependency in the past but represents that he is now a recovering alcoholic and that he no longer drinks. He denies the allegations in the tenure charges, and alleges that the tenure charges are vague, ambiguous and not sufficiently specific so as to give him a meaningful opportunity to put forth a defense. Additionally, the respondent alleges violations of the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination, the Family Leave Act and the Americans With Disabilities Act.

In view of the substantive issues in this matter and the possibility of additional litigation between the parties, a settlement of all the issues is both appropriate and in the public interest. Further, since the petitioner has many years of public service, and this settlement will preserve his full pension rights and allow him to retire.

I have reviewed the record and the terms of settlement and I FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures or their representatives' signatures.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and therefore ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

WHEREAS, on or about September 1, 1998, in the absence of a negotiated settlement of TUMOLO's employment rights, the BOARD certified to the Commissioner of Education ("Commissioner") charges against TUMOLO;

WHEREAS, on or about September 4, 1998, TUMOLO filed an Answer to the charges denying the allegations as stated;

WHEREAS, the Parties identified a number of substantial factual and legal issues which would have to be litigated for the full and final adjudication of this case, including but not limited to the issues of: (a) whether the charges were true; (b) if so, what discipline should be imposed; (c) whether the BOARD violated TUMOLO's rights under the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination, the federal Family Medical Leave Act and the federal Americans with Disabilities Act; (d) whether the BOARD's request that TUMOL submit to alcohol testing was in compliance with his statutory and constitutional rights and (e) whether the prehearing/discovery provisions set forth in P.L. 1998, c.42 comport with TUMOLO's rights to procedural and substantive due process;

WHEREAS, this matter was listed for hearing before the Honorable Beatrice S. Tylutki, ALJ, on January 11 through 14, 1999;

WHEREAS, TUMOLO will be 55 years old on January 29, 1999;

WHEREAS, as a result of the Parties' continuing negotiations, they have agreed to terminate amicably TUMOLO'S employment and/or affiliation with BOARD as of January 31, 1999 through TUMOLO'S resignation to retire, and to settle and terminate any and all disputes between them in a manner consonant with the public interest; and

WHEREAS TUMOLO and the BOARD have entered into this Stipulation with a full understanding of their rights, recognizing that this Stipulation and any obligations or duties created thereby are subject to the review and final approval of the Commissioner, and with TUMOLO's further understanding that pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6(a)1 any determination made by the Commissioner may be referred to the State Board of Examiners for determination of possible revocation or suspension of teaching certificate;

NOW THEREFORE, the matter in difference having been amicably adjusted by and between the Parties,

IT IS HEREBY STIPULATED AND AGREED AS FOLLOWS:

1. The Parties incorporate the above recitals by reference.

2. TUMOLO, for and in consideration of the undertakings of BOARD set forth in Paragraph 5 herein, and intending to be legally bound, does hereby remise, release and forever discharge BOARD and its officers, members, employees and agents, its and their respective successors and assigns, heirs, executors and administrators, of and from any and all manner of actions and causes of actions, suits, debts, claims and demands whatsoever in law or in equity, which he ever had, now has, or hereafter may have, or which his heirs, executors or administrators hereafter may have by reason of any matter, cause or thing whatsoever, from the beginning of his employment with BOARD to the date of these presents, and particularly, but without limitation, of the

Nothing in this paragraph is intended to operate as a release, waiver, or forfeiture of TUMOLO's rights, and the BOARD's obligations under: (a) any state worker's compensation act or statute, or (b) any State of New Jersey retirement, pension, savings, or 401(k) plan in which TUMOLO is a participant.

3. BOARD, for and in consideration of the undertakings of TUMOLO set forth herein, and intending to be legally bound, does hereby remise, release and forever discharge TUMOLO and his heirs, executors and administrators, of and from any and all manner of actions and causes of actions, suits, debts, claims and demands whatsoever in law or in equity, which it ever had, now has, or hereafter may have, or which its officers, members, employees and/or agents, its and their respective successors and assigns, heirs, executors or administrators hereafter may have by reason of any matter, cause or thing whatsoever, from the beginning of his employment with BOARD to the date of these presents, and particularly, but without limitation, of the foregoing general terms, any claims arising from or relating in any way to his employment relationship and/or the termination of his employment relationship and/or affiliation with BOARD, including but not limited to, any claims which have been asserted or could have been asserted or could be asserted now or in the future under any and all federal, state or local laws and any common law claims now or hereafter recognized, and any and all claims arising out of his employment with BOARD.

4. Subject to the final approval of this Stipulation by the Commissioner, TUMOLO agrees that: (a) he shall tender to BOARD a letter of resignation to be effective at the close of business on January 31, 1999; (b) that he shall no longer be employed by BOARD thereafter and (c) that his signature on this Stipulation constitutes an acknowledgement that he is relinquishing all present and future rights to tenure, employment and reemployment with BOARD as of the close of business on January 31, 1999.

5. In full consideration of the mutual execution of this Stipulation, and the mutual agreement to be legally bound by its terms, in a timely fashion, BOARD will:

(a) reinstate TUMOLO to payroll and pay TUMOLO's salary for the pay period from January 16, 1999 through January 31, 1999 in the gross amount of $3,013.50 less customary and ordinary deductions;

INITIALS: _____

INITIALS: _____

(b) provide TUMOLO with all benefits and emolument to which he would otherwise be entitled for the time period from January 16, 1999 through January 31, 1999;

(c) agrees to pay TUMOLO the lump sum of forty-eight thousand two hundred thirty-six dollars and fifty cents ($48,236.50) on or before January 16, 1999. Since this sum is paid in consideration for the settlement of all actual or potential litigation claims by TUMOLO, the BOARD is not withholding any pension contributions, or federal or state taxes. It will be the sole obligation of TUMOLO to pay any federal or state taxes which may be associated with his receipt of this sum. TUMOLO agrees to indemnify and hold the BOARD harmless from any claim that federal or state taxes are due on this sum;

(d) will place TUMOLO on an unpaid medical leave of absence from September 1, 1998 to January 15, 1999 and on a paid medical leave of absence from January 16 through 31, 1999, inclusive, with salary and benefits as provided in Paragraph 5(a) and (b) above.

(e) The Parties agree that TUMOLO must use all or such portion of the sum specified in paragraph 5(c) as is necessary to repay all loans against his pension and to buy back five (5) years pension credit so as to be eligible for retirement at age 55. The Parties acknowledge that without the additional years of pension credit, TUMOLO would not have the twenty-five years credit necessary to qualify for such a pension. The Parties further acknowledge that unless TUMOLO repays the loans before he applies for the pension, the loans will have to be repaid from the pension. Lastly, the Parties acknowledge that to be eligible to buy back the pension credit, repay the loans and apply for the pension, TUMOLO must be restored to payroll and be employed by the BOARD. Accordingly, time is of the essence in the BOARD's reinstatement of TUMOLO to payroll in accordance with Paragraph 5(a) and (b) and in the BOARD's payment of the sums set forth in Paragraph 5(c).

(f) The BOARD and its administrators will promptly take such other and further actions, will promptly respond to all inquiries by the Teachers' Pension and Annuity Fund ("TPAF") (including but not limited to verification that TUMOLO is an employee being paid on the Board's payroll for the purpose of facilitating his buying back pension credit and repayment of loans) and will promptly complete such forms as are necessary to facilitate TUMOLO's receipt of his pension. The Parties understand that, in this context "promptly" means within 24 hours of receipt of such request or form. In the event that the schools are closed for any reason when the request or form is received, the BOARD will respond within 24 hours of the time the schools reopen.

(g) The BOARD agrees that TUMOLO has been "terminated (other than by reason of gross misconduct)" within the meaning of 29 U.S.C. § 1163(2) as of January 31, 1999, so as to qualify TUMOLO for continued health care coverage under the Consolidated Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act, ("COBRA"), 29

U.S.C. §§1161-1168, should he elect such coverage. BOARD agrees t cooperate with TUMOLO to the extent necessary for him to be eligible for and receive COBRA benefits;

6. It is expressly agreed and understood that BOARD does not have and will not have any obligation to provide TUMOLO at any time in the future with any payments, benefits or considerations other than those recited in Paragraph 5 above.

7. TUMOLO further agrees and covenants that neither he, nor any person, organization or other entity on his behalf, will file, charge, claim, sue or cause or permit to be filed, charged or claimed any action for legal or equitable relief (including damages, injunctive, declaratory, monetary or other relief) involving any matter occurring at any time in the past up to the date of this Stipulation.

8. BOARD agrees and covenants that neither it nor anyone on its behalf will file, charge, claim, sue or cause or permit to be filed, charged, or claimed any action for legal or equitable relief (including damages, injunctive, declaratory, monetary or other relief) involving any matter occurring at any time in the past up to the date of this Stipulation or involving any continuing effects or any acts or practices which may have arisen or occurred prior to the date of this Stipulation.

9. TUMOLO hereby agrees and recognizes that his employment relationship with BOARD will be permanently and irrevocably severed as of the close of business on January 31, 1999, and that BOARD does not have any obligation, statutory, contractual or otherwise, to hire, rehire, or re-employ him in the future.

10. TUMOLO agrees and acknowledges that the agreement by BOARD described herein and the settlement and termination of any claims against BOARD as set forth herein, are not and shall not be construed to be an admission of any violation of any federal, state or local statute or regulation, or of any duty owed by BOARD to him. TUMOLO further agrees and acknowledges that he has consented to the termination of his employment with BOARD through resignation effective at the close of business on January 31, 1999 and to the execution of this Stipulation to provide an amicable conclusion of his employment relationship with BOARD.

11. In the event that the Commissioner fails to give final approval to this Stipulation, the Parties agree to reform it to effectuate its purposes. Should reformation prove impossible, TUMOLO will repay to the BOARD all sums paid to him by the BOARD pursuant to this Stipulation less such sums which would have been due and owing from the 120th day following the BOARD's certification of the tenure charges until the date reformation has proven impossible and the case shall be listed for hearing on such dates as are mandated by the Commissioner on remand.

13. Should TUMOLO fail to pay any money he may become obligated to repay to the BOARD as said monies become due, the BOARD shall be entitled to have any arrearages thereon reduced to a judgment against TUMOLO upon the filing of appropriate documents with any tribunal having jurisdiction.

14. The Parties acknowledge that TPAF is not a party to this Stipulation and nothing in this Stipulation binds TPAF to grant TUMOLO a pension. In the event that TPAF takes any action to deny TUMOLO's pension, the BOARD covenants to cooperate fully to take such other and further acts as are necessary to assist TUMOLO in any supplemental application and/or appeal from TPAF's initial action.

PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF SADDLE BROOK, BERGEN COUNTY, AND BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE SOUTH BERGEN JOINTURE COMMISSION, BERGEN COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENTS.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning bus company alleged respondents failed to comply with public bidding laws and regulations and wrongfully awarded contract to another bus company.

ALJ found that the Board initially decided not to renew its existing contract with Laidlaw and decided to publicly bid the route. Board subsequently determined that it would be less expensive to renew the existing contract. Thus, the Board rejected all bids, including petitioner's, and renewed Laidlaw's contract. ALJ concluded that the Board rejected the lowest bid because it was attempting to comply with recently enacted N.J.S.A. 18A:39-11.1 and save the taxpayers money. ALJ further concluded that the Board acted within its authority and that the Board did not violate the bidding laws when it decided to renew the existing contract, after it had already taken bids. ALJ granted summary decision to respondent Jointure Commission; petition was dismissed.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF SADDLE BROOK, BERGEN COUNTY, AND SOUTH BERGEN JOINTURE COMMISSION, BERGEN COUNTY, Respondents.

Anthony N. Gallina, Esq., for respondent Saddle Brook Board of Education

Ellen Walsh, Esq., for respondent South Bergen Jointure Commission
(Fogarty and Hara, attorneys)

Record Closed and Decided: January 7, 1999

BEFORE MUMTAZ BARI-BROWN, ALJ:

Petitioner Taranto Bus Co. (Taranto or petitioner) contends that respondents, Board of Education of the Township of Saddle Brook (Saddle Brook or Board) and South Bergen Jointure Commission (Commission), violated the public bidding laws. Specifically, respondents prevented Taranto from providing bus transportation services, Route 450, to Saddle Brook students. Petitioner seeks damages and other relief. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. A hearing was scheduled for January 25-26, 1999. Prior to the hearing, the Commission moved for summary decision.

FACTS

Respondent South Bergen Jointure Commission, a public entity organized pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:46-25 to -28, provides special education services, including transportation services, to its member districts. The Commission also provides nonpublic school transportation for school districts. For the 1997-98 school year, the Commission contracted with school districts to publicly bid and provide their transportation routes.

Saddle Brook, a member of the Commission, requested that the Commission bid on a transportation route for Saddle Brook students who attend Paramus Catholic High School. The Bid Specifications and Notice stated that the Board reserved the right to reject any and all bids. Laidlaw Transit, Inc., (Laidlaw) provided transportation services to these students in the previous school year, 1996-97.

On July 22, 1997, the Commission opened bids for routes including Route 450. On July 23, 1997, Ernest Turner, board secretary/business administrator for the Commission, sent a notice entitled "Bid Results" to the successful bidders, which stated: "Please prepare to begin these [routes] accordingly. We will be contacting you within the next week to finalize the stops on the routes." Taranto was the lowest bidder for Route 450.

Thereafter, Anthony D'Achille, board secretary/business administrator for the Saddle Brook Board of Education, notified Turner that Saddle Brook would not be using the Commission's services for Route 450.

On August 8, 1997, Turner sent Taranto a letter stating:

> Please be advised that Route #N0450 to Paramus Catholic has been canceled. This route was comprised entirely of Saddle Brook students. The Saddle Brook Board of Education has decided to arrange for the transportation, and has therefore withdrawn these students from the Commission.

ARGUMENTS

The Commission

The Commission contends that a board of education should look for the lowest possible cost in providing for the transportation of its pupils. Moreover, recent legislation requires boards to bid for nonpublic routes to see if the bids come in lower than the district's obligation to pay aid in lieu of transportation. N.J.S.A. 18A:39-11.1(c). Commission Brief at 8-9. Further, the Commissioner of Education has also approved the use of speculative bidding. In Tri-R Bus Service, Inc. v. Board of Education of the City of Plainfield, 1978 S.L.D. 585, the Commissioner concluded that a local board of education that had advertised for bids on local bus routes for the transportation of school pupils lawfully exercised its discretionary authority to reject the bids and operate its own vehicles.

In addition, the Commission asserts that its joint transportation agreement with Saddle Brook only requires that the Commission provide certain transportation services through another contractor. Assuming arguendo the existence of a principal-agency relationship, the Commission argues that the relationship terminated when Saddle Brook withdrew its request for transportation services on Route 450. Further, the Commission avers that it did not have the authority to award a transportation contract to Taranto until the bid was approved at a public meeting. Therefore, the Commission's letter to Taranto was merely notification that Taranto was the lowest bidder.

Finally, the Commission maintains that if the bidding laws were violated, petitioner has no remedy because the contract has already been completed. Further, public bodies cannot be awarded monetary damages for violations of the bidding laws. Therefore, the Commission asserts that the case is moot and urges this tribunal to dismiss the petition.

Saddle Brook

Saddle Brook contends that it had the authority to reject all bids because it could secure the transportation service at a lower price by another provider. Specifically, on June 2, 1997, Saddle Brook received from Laidlaw an offer to renew transportation services for Route 450 at a 1.5 percent cost increase over the prior year. Simultaneously, Route 450 was contained in a bulk transportation bid with the Commission. In July 1997, Saddle Brook reviewed the bid results and determined that it could provide the transportation services for Route 450 at a lower cost than the bids submitted. Therefore, Saddle Brook voted to renew its nonpublic transportation contract with Laidlaw and notified the Commission of its decision.

Further, Saddle Brook maintains that it was required to submit its nonpublic transportation routes for public bidding through the Commission. N.J.S.A. 18A:39-11.1. Indeed, recent legislation requires that Saddle Brook use a cooperative transportation services agency (CTSA) identified by the Commissioner, "except when the local district can provide transportation to pupils at the lowest cost or at a cost lower than that which can be obtained through a CTSA." Saddle Brook Brief at 4. Thus, Saddle Brook compared the bid submitted by Taranto to the cost quoted by Laidlaw, its transportation provider from the prior year, and chose the latter. Saddle Brook further maintains that after it exercised its right to reject all bids, it simply renewed the existing contract with Laidlaw, at a cost that was less than the lowest bid obtained through CSTA.

Taranto

Petitioner argues that when Saddle Brook decided to publicly bid Route 450, Saddle Brook and the Commission had to comply with the public bidding laws and award the contract to the lowest responsible bidder. Further, petitioner maintains that Turner's July 23, 1997 letter was an acceptance of Taranto's bid and that an implied contract was created.

DISCUSSION

Pupil Transportation:

Boards of education are obligated to provide transportation to public school pupils who live two or more miles from their school. N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1. Additionally, boards of education must provide nonpublic school transportation to pupils who live no more than twenty miles from the nonpublic school. If, however, the costs for the nonpublic school transportation exceed a maximum amount per pupil to be determined by the Department of Education, the parents shall be entitled to payments in lieu of transportation. Ibid.

Transportation obligations may be accomplished by buses owned by the school district or through a contract with another party. N.J.S.A. 18A:39-2. The board of education must publicly advertise for bids, and the contract shall be awarded to the lowest responsible bidder. N.J.S.A. 18A:39-3. However, a board of education shall always have the right to reject all bids. N.J.S.A. 18A:39-5. Moreover, when a contract expires, a board of education has the option to renew the contract or to publicly advertise for bids. N.J.S.A. 18:39-3; N.J.A.C. 6:21-16.8.

Effective April 1, 1997, the Legislature enacted N.J.S.A. 18A:39-11.1, a law that encourages school districts to provide transportation through cooperative transportation services agencies. The Commissioner of Education will publish a list of agencies that provide cooperative transportation services. If a school district is responsible to provide transportation for pupils to and from a county vocational school or for classified pupils, the school district shall use one of the agencies on the Commissioner's list. N.J.S.A. 18A:39-11.1(b). However, a school district is not required to use one of the agencies if it can provide for the transportation at a cost lower than the agencies. Ibid. For example, "[b]efore considering a renewal in the following year, the district board of education must be satisfied that this contract is less costly than transportation provided by the CTSA." Implementation Guidelines for Coordinated Pupil Transportation Services at 4.

Also, N.J.S.A. 18A:39-11.1(c) provides that school districts responsible for nonpublic school transportation which provided aid in lieu of transportation in previous years or which cannot provide transportation in the ensuing school year, shall attempt to provide for the transportation through a cooperative transportation services agency prior to paying aid in lieu of transportation. If it is determined that the cost of the transportation provided by the cooperative transportation services agency is less than the aid-in-lieu-of transportation, then the transportation must be provided rather than the payment. Ibid. Otherwise, the district may continue to provide aid-in-lieu-of transportation. Ibid. Regardless, a board of education always has the option to enter into joint transportation agreements. N.J.S.A. 18A:39-11.

Guidelines accompanying N.J.S.A. 18A:39-11.1 provide, in part:

> Chapter 53, P.L. 1997 requires the coordination of transportation services of students going to a special education or vocational school located outside the district; and nonpublic school students whose parents receive aid in lieu of transportation.
> To comply with the requirement of the law, boards of education must evaluate the method of transporting these students to determine whether services could be more economically provided through a coordination of transportation services agency (CTSA). This provision does not require the immediate re-bid of existing contracts or bidding by both the CSTA and district board of education for the purpose of comparing costs. Boards of education may use any method of providing services. As an example, the cost of existing contracts and joint agreements may be compared to the CTSA per pupil cost of transporting students to the same location.

Here, Saddle Brook initially decided not to renew the existing contract with Laidlaw and decided to publicly bid the route. Once the bids were opened, Saddle Brook determined that it would be less expensive to renew the existing contract with Laidlaw. In an effort to comply with the new law, N.J.S.A. 18A:39-11.1 and save the taxpayers money, Saddle Brook rejected all bids and renewed Laidlaw's contract. Thus, the pivotal issue is whether Saddle Brook's decision to reject Taranto's bid violated the bidding laws.

Bidding Laws

In Terminal Construction Corp. v. Atlantic County Sewerage Authority, 67 N.J. 403, 409-10 (1975), the Supreme Court stated:

> Bidding statutes are for the benefit of the taxpayers and are construed as nearly as possible with sole reference to the public good. Their objects are to guard against favoritism, improvidence, extravagance and corruption; their aim is to secure for the public the benefits of unfettered competition. To achieve these purposes all bidding practices which are capable of being used to further corrupt ends or which are likely to affect adversely the bidding process are prohibited, and all awards made or contracts entered into where any such practice may have played a part, will be set aside. This is so even though it is evident that in fact there was no corruption or any actual adverse effect upon the bidding process.

The courts rigidly adhere to the bidding laws. Hall Constr. Co., Inc. v. New Jersey Sports & Exhibition Auth., 295 N.J. Super. 629, 634-35 (App. Div. 1996). However, under proper circumstances a government body has the power to reject all bids. Cardell, Inc. v. Township of Woodbridge, 115 N.J. Super. 442, 450 (App. Div. 1971), certif. denied, 60 N.J. 236 (1972). The right to reject bids promotes competitive bidding because it "serves as a strong inducement to bidders to keep their bids as low as circumstances permit." Id. at 450-51. Nonetheless, the discretionary privilege to reject bids is not without limit. Bodies By Lembo v. County of Middlesex, 286 N.J. Super. 298, 308 (App. Div. 1996). The unbridled power to reject bids, even when reserved in the invitation for bidding, would violate public policy, contravene the Legislature's intention in enacting the competitive bidding statute and afford a means by which "the statute can be evaded under color of the rejection of 'any and all bids.'" Miller v. Passaic Valley Water Comm'n, 259 N.J. Super. 1, 13 (App. Div. 1992). Thus, the decision to reject all bids must not be arbitrary or capricious and must be free from fraud, collusion and bad faith. Marvec Constr. Corp. v. Township of Belleville, 254 N.J. Super. 282, 288 (Law Div. 1992). The decision to reject bids is appropriate where motivated by good faith without consideration of eliminating an "unfavored bidder." Princeton Disposal Serv., Inc. v. Township of N. Brunswick, 154 N.J. Super. 488, 490 (App. Div. 1977), certif. denied, 75 N.J. 608 (1978). Moreover, where all "bids have already been opened and each bidder's competitive position has been exposed, rejection of all bids should only occur for cogent or compelling reasons." Marvec Constr. Corp., supra, 254 N.J. Super. at 288 (quoting Cushman & Doyle, Construction Bidding Law § 1.7 at 9 (1990)). "[T]here must be evidence of such a character as would cause reasonable men to believe that it was not in the best interests of the municipality to award the contract to the lowest bidder." Poling v. Roman, 86 N.J. Super. 484, 489 (Law Div. 1965). Clearly, competitive bidding statutes are for the benefit of taxpayers, not the bidder. Trap Rock Indus. v. Kohl, 59 N.J. 471, 479 (1971). Thus, they must be construed with sole reference to the public good.

Here, Saddle Brook had the authority to award an annual extension of the existing transportation contract or publicly bid the route. N.J.S.A. 18A:39-3; N.J.A.C. 6:21-15.1(a). Once the Board determined that it was not going to award the extension, it advertised for bids. However, once all of the bids were opened, Saddle Brook realized that it could save money by renewing the existing contract.

The Commission's Letter to Taranto

I have considered whether the Commission's July 23, 1997 letter to Taranto constituted an acceptance of Taranto's bid. If a reasonable person is led to believe an offer has been made, then the "offeror" may have conferred upon the offeree the power to create a contract by the latter's acceptance of the "offer." Creek Ranch, Inc. v. New Jersey Turnpike Auth., 75 N.J. 421, 428 (1978). Whether an offer, capable of acceptance, has been made depends upon "what meaning the words should have conveyed to a reasonable person cognizant of the relationship between the parties and all of the antecedent and surrounding facts and circumstances." Esslinger's Inc. v. Alachnowicz, 68 N.J. Super. 339, 344 (App. Div. 1961).

The certification of Taranto's president, Frederick A. Howard, described the company's relationship to the Commission and its past dealings. Howard stated:

> [T]he Commission prepares the contract with the vendor and signs same, then sends the contract to the Superintendent of Schools and the vendor for signature. The local board of education does not sign the transportation contract. Usually, Taranto does not receive the actual written contract from the Commission until November or December in any given year, even through the contract for said transportation routes commences in September. In some cases because of technical errors contained in the initial contracts, there are contracts that are not finalized until the Spring of the following year. Thus `Taranto prepares and performs the work based on the public bid and the memo sent to us by the Commission after the opening of the public bids.

Petitioner submits that Taranto relied on the results of public bidding and the letter from the Commission to determine that it had a contract to provide transportation services for Route 450. Therefore, Taranto prepared the scheduling "of vehicles and drivers accordingly to ensure that Taranto had the capability of fulfilling its obligations as set forth in the public bids, including Route 450." Ibid.

The Commission maintains that no contract existed between Taranto and Saddle Brook based on implied contract theory or agency. The Commission argues that Turner had no authority to contract on behalf of the Commission. Thus, the letter sent by Turner did not create an implied contract. In any event, sixteen days after Turner sent the letter to Taranto he notified the company that Route 450 had been canceled. The Commission avers that any work done by Taranto was minor. Indeed, no transportation services were ever performed for Route 450.

The Commission acknowledged that it acted as agent for Saddle Brook. After the Commission announced the results of the bid, Saddle Brook informed the Commission that it was arranging for its own transportation. Thus, the Commission did not award a contract to Taranto for Route 450 because the authority given to the Commission regarding Route 450 had been renounced when Saddle Brook properly exercised its right to withdraw the bid.

Moreover, the Commission acknowledged its prior practice of performing services and receiving reimbursement prior to receiving a written contract. However, it contends that no enforceable agreement exists until the Commission acts in a public meeting to award a route to a contractor. This did not occur for Route 450. The Commission maintains that its past actions and the action of Turner in July 1997 do not constitute an implied contract regarding the bid for Route 450.

Based on the circumstances underlying the facts presented, I am persuaded by the Commission's arguments. No contract existed between Taranto and Saddle Brook based on implied contract theory or agency. Any implication based on the July 23 letter that the contract for Route 450 would be awarded was dispelled sixteen days later by the notice that Route 450 had been canceled. Taranto ignored that notice of cancellation, pupil transportation laws and the applicable bidding laws for boards of education and, instead, relied only on the July 17 letter. Taranto's reliance was unreasonable.

CONCLUSIONS

Based on the whole of the record, I CONCLUDE that Saddle Brook rejected the lowest bid because it was attempting to comply with recently enacted N.J.S.A. 18A:39-11.1 and save the taxpayers money. I CONCLUDE that the decision by Saddle Brook to reject the bids was not arbitrary or capricious and was free from fraud, collusion and bad faith. I CONCLUDE that Saddle Brook acted within its authority granted by N.J.S.A. 18A:39-3 and N.J.A.C. 6:21-15.1(a) when it renewed the existing contract. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that Saddle Brook did not violate the bidding laws when it decided to renew the existing contract, after it had already taken bids. I CONCLUDE that once Saddle Brook informed the Commission that it was withdrawing Route 450 and providing its own transportation, the Commission's authority regarding Route 450 had been renounced. Thereafter, the Commission had no authority to contract with Taranto on behalf of Saddle Brook. Further, I CONCLUDE that no contract existed between Taranto and Saddle Brook or the Commission based on implied contract theory or agency. I have considered the remaining issues raised by the parties and I CONCLUDE that they need not be addressed.

SUMMARY DECISION

Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b), summary decision is appropriate:

> if the papers and discovery which have been filed, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law.

Summary decision in administrative proceedings parallels summary judgment in the courts. Summary judgment is:

> designed to provide a prompt, businesslike and inexpensive method of disposing of any cause which a discriminating search of the merits in the pleadings, depositions and admissions on file, together with the affidavits submitted on the motion clearly shows not to present any genuine issue of material fact requiring disposition at a trial.
> [Judson v. Peoples Bank and Trust Co. of Westfield, 17 N.J. 67, 74 (1954).]

In administrative proceedings, as in the courts, it is "the movant's burden to exclude any reasonable doubt as to the existence of any genuine issue of material fact." Id. at 74. Thus, "[a]ll inferences of doubt are drawn against the movant in favor of the opponent of the motion. The papers supporting the motion are closely scrutinized and the opposing papers indulgently treated." Id. at 75.

The New Jersey Supreme Court in Brill v. Guardian Life Insurance Co., 142 N.J. 520, 539-40 (1995), applied the summary judgment standard employed by the federal courts. Under Brill, once the movant has presented competent evidence tending to show the absence of any genuine issue for trial, the nonmovant must do more than simply create some doubts as to the material facts. Moreover, the nonmoving party cannot rely on disputed issues of fact that are insubstantial. Rather, Brill requires the nonmovant to raise a factual issue substantial enough to sustain a reasonable conclusion in the nonmovant's favor if a hearing were held. If the evidence, along with reasonable inferences, could sustain a judgment in favor of the nonmovant the motion must be denied.

Here, respondent South Bergen Jointure Commission moved for summary decision. I have considered and I reject Taranto's assertions that there exist genuine issues as to material facts. Based on the whole of the record, I CONCLUDE that no genuine issues of material fact exist.

It is ORDERED that the motion for summary decision filed by respondent South Bergen Jointure Commission is GRANTED and the petition is DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF LUCY LESTER,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL	:	DECISION
DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF NEWARK,	:
ESSEX COUNTY.	:

SYNOPSIS

District certified tenure charges of unbecoming conduct against respondent middle school teacher for allegedly participating in a scheme to defraud the State Health Benefits Program (SHBP) by conspiring with a doctor to submit claims and receive checks (finders' fees and kickbacks) for psychological services purportedly rendered.

ALJ determined that the record clearly supported a conclusion that respondent was aware of the improprieties and she knowingly and willingly engaged in conduct intended to defraud the SHBP by providing information to the doctor to enable him to submit claims to her insurance company for services never rendered to her or her family, by accepting payment, which represented a "kickback" of a portion of the moneys improperly collected for these claims and "finders' fees" for referring colleagues to the fraudulent scheme. Thus, the ALJ concluded that the District sustained its burden of proving the charges by a preponderance of evidence. Moreover, because of the seriousness of the charges, the ALJ concluded that dismissal was warranted. ALJ ordered respondent terminated from her tenured employment.

Upon careful and independent examination and study of the record, including the parties' exception arguments and the transcripts of the hearing, the Commissioner determined to affirm the conclusion of the ALJ that the District established its charge of unbecoming conduct on the part of the within respondent necessitating her removal from her tenured position. Commissioner concluded that the District established said charge as the quality of the evidence herein leads a cautious mind to the conclusion that respondent was not, as she claimed, a "duped victim," but engaged in knowing and intentional participation in conduct with a purpose to defraud and introduced others to the fraudulent scheme. Moreover, despite respondent's apparently unblemished record, the Commissioner determined that the charge established herein, under the particular circumstances of this matter, was sufficiently flagrant to warrant respondent's dismissal. (Redcay) Commissioner ordered respondent dismissed from her tenured position as of the date of this decision and transmitted the matter to the State Board of Examiners for action, as that body deems appropriate.

Record Closed: November 25, 1998 Decided: January 8, 1999

BEFORE MARIA MANCINI LA FIANDRA, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner, the State Operated School District of the City of Newark, (the District) filed charges alleging conduct unbecoming a public school teacher, against Respondent, Lucy Lester, on October 30, 1996. Respondent was served, on the same day, with a copy of the charges, the supporting documentation, and written notice of her right to submit a written State of Position and State of Evidence relative to the charges within 15 days of receipt.

On November 15, 1996,[1] the State District Superintendent executed a Certificate of Determination, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11, noting that there was probable cause to credit the evidence and that the charges, if sustained, were sufficient to warrant the dismissal of Respondent.

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) from the Department of Education on March 3, 1997, for hearing as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

After several adjournments requested by the parties, each with the consent of the other, the hearing commenced on June 4, 1998. A second day of hearing was scheduled for July 8, 1998, at which time the parties indicated they had stipulated to certain facts and both rested. The parties also indicated that they wished to order a transcript and to submit written summation. Consequently, a briefing scheduled was established and the record closed, pursuant to that schedule, on November 25, 1998.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Stipulated

The parties have stipulated to the following facts which are incorporated herein as findings of fact.

[1] At the time the Certificate of Determination was issued, Respondent had not filed a response to the charges; however, a letter of appearance had been submitted by counsel.

1. Respondent has been continuously employed by the District since 1970. She had earned an instructional certificate with an endorsement in elementary education and has always been employed as an elementary grade teacher. From 1970 to 1973, she was assigned to the Horton Elementary School; from 1973 to the time of her suspension, she was assigned to the Camden Middle School.

2. Respondent was suspended in October 1996, pending the determination of the charges which are the subject of this action.

3. There have been no prior disciplinary proceedings against Respondent during the course of her employment.

Undisputed

Based on the evidence presented at the hearing, as well as on the opportunity to observe the witnesses and assess their credibility, I make the following findings of fact, which are essentially undisputed, in this matter.

4. Respondent provided her name, address and possibly her social security number to Carl H. Lichtman who was a psychologist licensed to practice in the State of New Jersey. Respondent also provided her son's name to Lichtman.

5. Lichtman admitted to involvement in a scheme to defraud insurance carriers, including the State Health Benefits Program (SHBP) by submitting false claims for psychological services purportedly rendered to insureds and/or their dependents.

6. Respondent was one of the insureds and her son was one of the dependents for whom Lichtman submitted false claims for services rendered.

7. No psychological services were ever rendered to either Respondent to her son by Lichtman.

8. Respondent received checks totaling over $5585 from Lichtman. A portion the moneys received represented 25% of the total fees collect by Lichtman from SHBP for services he represented he performed for Respondent. A portion of the moneys Respondent received from Lichtman represented a finder's fee for other employees to whom she referred Lichtman.

9. The checks received by Respondent were personal checks signed and issued by Lichtman, who, upon receiving payment for fraudulent claims directly from the carrier, deposited the carrier's checks and then issued his own check to the insured.

10. Respondent spoke to Lichtman, or someone purporting to be Lichtman on only two occasions. The first time was to assess the service he was purportedly offering; at this time she provided her personal information. The second time was soon after she received the first check from him. She did not speak or attempt to speak to him again, despite the fact that she received large sums of money from him.

11. All of the checks issued by Lichtman to Respondent were negotiated by Lester.

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

The issues to be determined in this matter are whether Respondent engaged in conduct unbecoming a teacher and, if so, whether such conduct warrants termination. Petitioner bears the burden of proving, by a preponderance of competent, credible evidence, that Respondent should no longer be allowed to teach.

At the outset, it is necessary to note that there are several serious weaknesses in the testimony of Respondent's prime witness, Lichtman. He was testifying as a result of a provision in his pleas agreement; he could only testify as to the general procedures he followed in gathering information, filing claims, and issuing finders' fees and kickbacks. He had no specific recollection of conversations or dealings with Respondent. Consequently, his testimony, standing alone, cannot be dispositive of the ultimate issue in this matter.

From the factual findings set forth above, it is clear that Respondent contacted Lichtman, spoke with him or someone purporting to be him on two occasions; she never met him in person, presumably until after the scheme was uncovered. It is equally clear that she provided personal information to the person to whom she spoke, despite never having met him or having had services performed for her; in addition, she received several checks from him for substantial amounts of money, despite neither receiving services or performing services for him; moreover, she endorsed and negotiated the checks.

The documentary evidence demonstrates that Respondent received several checks with the notation of names of individuals which Respondent identified as colleagues in the Newark public school system. According to the testimony of Lichtman, he paid a $750 "finder's" fee to insureds who referred colleagues to him and notations of names of individuals on the memo line of checks indicates payment of the finder's fee. Not only is this testimony unrebutted in the record, it is uncontroverted. There is no other explanation of why such notations would have been made on checks to Respondent.

Moreover, Respondent's testimony that she never received any Explanation of Benefits (EOB) communications from her carrier is just not credible, in light of her further testimony that she has always received such information in the past. Several of the EOBs in evidence are a portion of entire statements. For example, the EOB for claim number 1-93277-40-15141-00000 on behalf of Anthony Hooper, Respondent's son, indicates that it consists of nine pages in its entirety; the EOB for claim number 1-93272-40-03549-00000 also indicates that it consist of nine pages in its entirety. In both cases, however, only a few pages of the entire document was produced at the hearing. It strains credulity to believe that, of all the EOBs sent to Respondent over the course of her years as an insured, these EOBs, or, even portions of them, which were extensive documents and which would have provided a strong basis from which to draw an inference of knowledge of the scheme, were not sent to her.

I note, as well, that Respondent's testimony with respect to the special program, presumably funded by grants, according to her testimony, addresses her relationship with Lichtman and her belief that she, as a seeker of help for a stress related condition, was a participant in such a program. There is nothing in the record, even after she received a check with her son's name on the memo, that she attempted to find out how and why she was sent a check for her child.

Turning now to the evidence in the record, Petitioner has presented the checks which Lester acknowledges negotiating; Lester testified that she, indeed, did provide certain personal information to Lichtman; she also testified that she provided that information over the telephone to someone whom she had never met and with whom she never treated; she also acknowledged that she never received any service from Lichtman, nor was she asked to provide any further information or participation which would have supported her assertion that she believed she was participating in a special program of some sort.

In addition, while it may have been possible that, before she received any money from Lichtman, Respondent was under the impression that she was participating in a special program under Lichtman's direction, the record is clear that she made no attempt to find out what she was being paid for after she began receiving substantial checks from Lichtman. It defies credulity to believe that a professional person who provided personal information to a person whom she had never met would simply accept substantial sums of money without questioning why she was receiving them.

Based on Respondent's own testimony that she did not seek information from Lichtman notwithstanding receiving over $5000 from him for doing nothing other than providing personal information and notwithstanding that her child was implicated by Lichtman's payment, I CONCLUDE that Respondent had knowledge and understanding of how Lichtman's scheme worked.

I further CONCLUDE that she provided Lichtman with the name and other personal information about her child. I also CONCLUDE that Respondent accepted payment for providing such information to Lichtman and for referring colleagues to him and that such payment resulted in the theft of and improper payment of public moneys. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that Petitioner has sustained the burden of proving by a preponderance of competent evidence that Respondent engaged in conduct unbecoming a public school teacher.

With respect to the appropriate penalty to be imposed, Petitioner seeks termination of employment. Respondent, on the other hand, asserts that she has never before been subjected to disciplinary action and her evaluations since 1980 have been satisfactory. These two factor, she argues, should inure to her benefit in the assessment of penalty.

The ultimate factor to be weighted, however, in determining penalty, is the seriousness of the charges which have been sustained. In this case, Respondent has breached the public trust. The Commissioner of Education has commented on the seriousness of charges which arise from a teacher's breach of public trust:

> Teachers are public employees who hold positions demanding public trust, and in such position, they teach, inform, and mold habits and attitudes and influence the opinions of their pupils. Pupils learn, therefore, not only what they are taught by the teacher, but what they see, hear, experience and learn about the teacher. When a teacher deliberately and willfully violates the . . . public trust placed in him, he must expect dismissal . . . .

I/M/O Tenure Hearing of Ernest Tordo, School District of Jackson, Ocean County, 1974 S.L.D. 97, 98-99. See, also, I/M/O Tenure Hearing of Jacques, L. Sammons, School District of Black Horse Pike Regional, Camden County, 1972 S.L.D. 302, 321; and I/M/O Tenure Hearing of Kenneth Henderek, School District of the Township of East Brunswick, Middlesex County, 94 N.J.A.R. (EDU) 268 at 275.

Moreover, it is well established that a single incident may be sufficiently egregious in nature to warrant termination. In this case, the breach of trust is such an incident, the fact that the breach of trust is predicated on the theft of public money further enhances the egregious nature of the incident. I CONCLUDE, therefore, that the Respondent is unfit to remain a teacher and must be DISMISSED.

It is so ORDERED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF LUCY LESTER,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL	:	DECISION
DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF NEWARK,	:
ESSEX COUNTY.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Respondent's exceptions and the District's reply thereto were timely filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Respondent's exceptions contend, inter alia, that the decision of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) herein fails to comply with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10, requiring that an initial decision "set forth separate findings of fact and conclusions of law, as well as the 'underlying facts supporting the findings.'" (Respondent's Exceptions at p. 2) Specifically, she urges

> While the initial decision contains a summary of testimony from the witnesses presented in this case, there is no real discussion of the evidence contrary to the recommended conclusions or any indication of the basis for rejecting this contrary evidence. In essence, the initial decision rejects evidence from the respondent merely by stating that it involves a credibility decision and that respondent could not be believed. Respondent submits that this is an insufficient discussion and analysis of the evidence presented in this case and, as a result, the initial decision fails to comply with the requirements established by N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10. (Id. at pp. 3-4)

Respondent maintains that the remedy for such deficiency is reversal and remand.

Respondent next advances that the ALJ erred when she found that the District has met its burden of proof on the charges against her. With respect to the first charge, that she knowingly and intentionally participated in fraudulent conduct, respondent contends that there is absolutely no evidence in support of such charge. Rather, she advances that the evidence establishes that the responsibility for a perpetration of a fraud in this matter was solely attributable to Lichtman, arguing

> The evidence  establishes that Lester sought to have Lichtman treat her for stress and possible panic problems. (T1 56) She was told that he had a program for her and he requested information from her, such as family information, employment, possibly a social security number, etc. (T1 85-86) Lichtman had no recollection of Lester at all. Without Lester's knowledge or action, Lichtman then used the information she provided for purposes of possible treatment, to fabricate bills, insurance claims, treatment schedules and the like. (T1 32-34) (P-4) (T1 36-37) (P-3) He forged her name on payment authorizations and other insurance forms. (T1 34). In short, the District's star witness is a liar, a forger, a thief and a convicted criminal who provided no evidence of any wrongdoing by Lester. She sought his professional help and he took complete advantage of her. The District did not present any competent evidence of a knowing and intentional participation in a fraudulent scheme. If anything, she was duped and set up by a criminal who is now being used by the District to destroy her. (Respondent's Exceptions at pp. 5-6)

She further avows that the initial decision effectively, impermissibly, reverses the burden of proof herein when it finds that she "had knowledge and understanding of how Lichtman's scheme worked because she did not adequately interrogate Lichtman as to what he was doing. (Initial Decision, page 7)." (Respondent's Exceptions at p. 6) She maintains that

> This analysis will simply result in the conviction of naïve and easily duped individuals who sought professional help from someone who turned out to be a criminal who stole state insurance money without their knowledge or participation. Lichtman > admitted he did everything from forging names, to certifying false information to fabricating bills. Yet none of this information was ever given to the respondent by him. (Id.)

With reference to the second charge, that she provided Lichtman with names of other employees willing to participate in his fraudulent scheme, respondent asserts that the record is similarly devoid of any evidence that she "gave Lichtman the names of any employees, let alone for the intended purpose of defrauding an insurance company." (Respondent's Exceptions at p. 5) Rather, she argues, the record confirms > Lichtman had no specific recollection of any conversations with Lester or dealing with her in any way. (T1 12, 22, 31-32, 38-39, 41-42) He offered no testimony indicating that he received the names of any other employees from Lester. Lester, called as a witness by the District, was apparently never asked if she provided the name of other employees to Lichtman for participation in illegal conduct. She credibly acknowledged providing Lichtman's name to two colleagues suffering from personal problems because she had heard he was a reputable counselor. (T1 49-50, 55) Even Binn, the State's lead investigator, offered no testimony suggesting that Lester provided the names of fellow employees to Lichtman.

> Despite this complete lack of evidence, the initial decision concludes that based solely on the appearance of names on checks, the respondent knowingly brought others into a criminal scheme with Lichtman. (Id.)

In conclusion, respondent urges, it is clear that the presentation advanced by the District has not satisfied its burden of proving the charges against her by a preponderance of the believable evidence and, therefore, such charges must be dismissed.[1] (Id. at p. 6)

[1]Respondent's exceptions herein additionally allege that the ALJ utilized and relied on an exhibit, the Voluntary Sworn Statement of Taft Reed dated May 12, 1997, (Exhibit P-5), which was specifically precluded from being entered into evidence in this case. (Respondent's Exceptions at p. 2) The Commissioner notes that Exhibit P-5 was neither reviewed nor considered in his determination of this case.

Finally, in the alternative, respondent asks that, if any portion of the charges is deemed established by the Commissioner, he impose some penalty less than dismissal in light of her long, unblemished service in the Newark public schools. (Respondent's Exceptions at p. 9)

In reply, the District, citing Benjamin Moore & Company v. City of Newark, 133 N.J. Super. (App. Div. 1975) and N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(d), maintains that the ALJ's decision must be affirmed because, contrary to respondent's advanced argument, "it reflects factual findings, supported by specific reasoning and underlying facts, which led the ALJ to discredit Ms. Lester." (District's Reply Exceptions at p. 5) Specifically, the District contends that the ALJ went to great length to explain why she was discrediting respondent's testimony, obviously indicating that she had considered respondent's explanations in light of the evidence and found them to be unbelievable. (Id. at pp. 5-6) By way of example, the District lists each of the ALJ's undisputed findings of fact (Initial Decision at pp. 3-4) and offers

> Before deciding whether Ms. Lester engaged in unbecoming conduct, the ALJ examined Ms. Lester's explanation for her involvement with Lichtman. Ms. Lester testified that she thought she was participating in some sort of special program. The ALJ weighed this explanation against the record and properly discredited Lester's testimony.
> In explaining her credibility determination, the ALJ first pointed to the documentary evidence: checks from Lichtman to Ms. Lester with the notation of names of individuals which Ms. Lester identified as colleagues in the Newark public school system. Opinion P. 5. The ALJ then cited Lichtman's testimony that he paid a $750 referral fee to insureds who referred colleagues to him, and made notations of these referrals on the memo line of checks to indicate payment of the finder's fee. Opinion P. 5. The ALJ concluded that, "Not only is this testimony unrebutted in the record, it's uncontroverted. There is no other explanation of why such notations would have been made on checks to Respondent." Opinion P. 5. This finding is also bolstered by the testimony of Inspector Binn and by Ms. Lester's allegation that she never received an Explanation of Benefits from her insurance company. The ALJ cited Lester's own testimony where Lester claimed that she always received Explanation of Benefits in the past. Opinion

P. 5. Based on this record the ALJ discredited this testimony.
(District's Reply Exceptions at pp. 6-7)

As such, the District argues that, notwithstanding respondent's protestation to the contrary, the initial decision, on its face, clearly demonstrates that the reasoning of the ALJ was not arbitrary or capricious. Rather, it shows that she considered all of respondent's explanations and found them to be implausible. (Id. at p. 8)

Next, the District urges that it has met its burden of proof with respect to each of the within charges. In considering the first charge, respondent's knowing and intentional participation in the fraudulent scheme, the District advances that the testimony adduced at hearing and the evidentiary proofs in the within record fully establish this charge. In this regard, it cites selected hearing testimony, exhibits, and documentation here which it avers demonstrate: Lichtman admitted he conducted a scheme intended to defraud the State Health Benefits Program and implicated Lester; he submitted false claims for psychological services purportedly rendered to insureds and their dependents and when reimbursed for these services, he returned approximately 25% in a "kickback" to the insured; he additionally paid a $750 "referral fee" to scheme participants who referred another individual to the scheme; in his conversations with these individuals he never discussed treating them; and it was his belief that the individuals he spoke to understood they were participating in such a "scheme." (District's Reply Exceptions at pp. 2-3) Further buttressing these proofs, the District asserts, is Lichtman's affidavit and testimony which attests to respondent's participation in the scheme; Lichtman's issuance of $5,585 in checks to respondent representing her 25% kickbacks and referral fees; both Lichtman's and respondent's testimony that Lichtman never provided respondent with services of any kind; that respondent supplied Lichtman with information necessary for him to complete the insurance claim forms, i.e., name, address, employer, possibly her social security number, and her son's name; and subsequent to her provision of this information, respondent received checks from Lichtman each of which she endorsed and deposited. (Id. at pp. 3-4) The District urges that respondent's account of these events, and her rationalization that "maybe she was receiving money from a special grant, for which she never applied  [o]r she was enrolled in some sort of 'special project'" (id. at p. 4), was an incredulous explanation for her receipt of "over $5,000.00 from a doctor that never counseled, treated nor provided services to her." (Id.)

In further substantiation of the establishment of this charge, the District next advances that Rita Binn, investigator for the New Jersey Division of Criminal Justice, credibly testified that she took a voluntary, sworn statement from an individual who was an admitted participant in Lichtman's "scheme," Taft Reed, who implicated the respondent and, indeed admitted to encouraging her participation. (District's Reply Exceptions at p. 4) Moreover, it maintains, Ms. Binn further testified

> Mr. Reed said to me that he – it was clear from his conversation with Ms. Lester that she know (sic) that Dr. Lichtman would be submitting fraudulent insurance claim forms and from the proceeds that he received from the carrier, that she would be receiving a portion of that. T98, L 9-13. (Id. at pp. 4-5)

In conclusion here, the District advances that it has met its burden of proof with respect to this charge as "[t]he weight of the evidence as a whole, including Ms. Lester's implausible excuses, is against Lucy Lester." (District's Reply Exceptions at p. 11)

As to the second charge, that respondent received payment for referring others to the scheme, the District avers that the checks, copies of which are included in the record here, speak for themselves in that

> On the memo line, the checks indicate the name of the person Ms. Lester referred into the scheme. These checks were made payable to Ms. Lester. Ms. Lester negotiated each check.

> Furthermore, Lichtman testified that when paying the insured referral fees, he indicated the name of the person referred on the memo line. Lichtman's affidavit also states that he paid Ms. Lester referral fees and made notations as such on the checks he issued to her. (District's Reply Exceptions at p. 11)

Further strengthening this evidence, the District contends, again, is the credible hearing testimony of investigator Rita Binn who testified that she took a voluntary, sworn statement from an individual named Claude Moses wherein "Moses admitted that Ms. Lester referred him to Lichtman, so that he could also participate in the scheme. T99, L 23-25." (District's Reply Exceptions at p. 5) Her testimony further reported

> Mr. Moses told me that he was having a conversation with Ms. Lester regarding financial problems. She told him that he could contact this Dr. Lichtman and he could receive a quarter of the insurance claims and he could also receive – further receive referral fees from this doctor. T101, L24-25; T 102, L 1-3. (Id.)

In support of such testimony, the District points out, a check, made payable to respondent, having Mr. Moses' name written on the memo line, is part of the evidentiary record in this matter. (District's Reply Exceptions at p. 11)

Finally, as to the penalty which should be imposed herein the District urges that the State Board's October 3, 1997 decision in In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Alyce Stewart, State-operated School District of the City of Newark, Essex County, wherein "the State Board held that participation in the Lichtman insurance fraud scheme constitutes unbecoming conduct warranting dismissal," is controlling in the instant case. (District's Reply Exceptions at p. 13) It declares that this decision, along with the egregious nature of the conduct involved in this matter, the far reaching effects of this fraud, and the fact that respondent's behavior here is diametrically opposed to that which should be expected of a teacher entrusted with shaping young minds, i.e., honesty, integrity and truthfulness, definitively confirms that termination from her position is the only possible result in this case. (Id. at pp. 12-13)

Upon a careful and independent review of the record in this matter, which included a transcript of the hearing conducted at the OAL on June 4, 1998,[2] the Commissioner, finding respondent's exceptions without merit, determines to affirm the initial decision of the ALJ, for the reasons articulated therein, as he finds that the record before him amply establishes that the District has established its charges of unbecoming conduct against the within respondent by a preponderance of the credible evidence, necessitating her dismissal from her tenured position.

In reaching his determination that the within charges have been established, the Commissioner gave full consideration to all evidentiary proofs which comprise the record and was cognizant that of particular importance here is the plausibility of the ALJ's factual findings and her weighing of the evidence and the credibility of the witnesses. In this regard, the Commissioner is satisfied, based on the record as a whole, that the ALJ considered all testimony and evidence and weighed it according to the credibility of the witnesses and the plausibility of its content and he finds no basis whatsoever in the record before him for overturning such findings or credibility assessments of the ALJ who had the benefit of observing the witnesses firsthand. In so concluding, the Commissioner was especially mindful that

> Testimony to be believed must not only proceed from the mouth of a credible witness but must be credible in itself. It must be such as the common experience and observation of mankind can approve as probable in the circumstances. (In re Perrone, 5 N.J. 514, 522 (1950))

[2]Also contained herein is a transcript of proceedings conducted at the OAL on October 20, 1998, dealing with a request by respondent for dismissal of the charges and presentation with respect to respondent's past record in the District and admission to the record of a number of respondent's formal evaluations conducted during such period.

Particularly illustrative in this regard is respondent's testimony with respect to her receipt of checks totaling $5,585 from Lichtman, which she negotiated and deposited

> Q. Okay. why did you get money from Dr. Lichtman?
> A. I -- there was no explanation as to why Dr. Lichtman sent me the checks. I received checks and there was no explanation.
> Q. And -- as you testified before, you deposited those checks, correct?
> A.. I deposited those checks.
> Q. Okay. And you have no -- you have no idea whatsoever as to why you received those checks?
> A. Well, I expected Dr. Lichtman to get back to me. Since he wrote the checks, I expected that he would get back to me explaining his reasoning for sending the checks.
> Q. Did you call him to ask him why he was sending you the checks?
> A. I call -- I -- I spoke to him after receiving a check. I didn't mention a check. Since he had sent the check, I felt -- since he sent a check -- a personal check, it was his responsibility to say to me why he had sent it.
> (Tr. 6/4/98, p. 60, L. 7-23)

> Q. Did you think you were entitled to the checks that you received from Dr. Lichtman?
> A. I'm not clear. I don't understand the question.
> Q. Well, did you do anything to earn over $5,000 that you received from Dr. Lichtman?
> A. I wasn't-- I -- and I'm not now -- I wasn't sure then and I'm not sure the reason for the check.
> Q. Well, let -- my question is did you do anything to earn the money that you received from Dr. Lichtman?
> A. I'm -- I'm not sure you could -- you always have to do something to earn -- something to earn -- earn something. People get money and I don't -- I'm not sure --
> THE COURT: The question was, whether you ever did anything to earn the checks -- the money. And that's -- either you did or you didn't.
> THE WITNESS: No.

Upon his reasoned review of this discourse, the Commissioner is in full accord with the ALJ that it "defies credulity to believe that a professional person who provided personal information to a person whom she had never met would simply accept substantial sums of money without questioning why she was receiving them" (emphasis in text) (initial decision at p. 7), and he further finds respondent's contention that such a determination improperly shifts the burden of proof in this matter untenable. This and the remaining testimony adduced at hearing, along with the other significant documentation clearly present in the record, persuades the Commissioner that respondent's attempts to portray herself as a "duped victim" in this matter are utterly devoid of any logical or reasonable inference from the record before him. Rather, he concludes that the quality of evidence here leads a reasonably cautious mind to the conclusion that respondent engaged in knowing and intentional participation in conduct with a purpose to defraud and introduced others to the fraudulent scheme.

In considering the appropriate penalty in this matter, the Commissioner is compelled to reiterate his long-standing belief that educators, by virtue of the unique position they occupy, must be held to an enhanced standard of behavior and must continually realize that they serve as role models to students and the community. When it is established that these individuals have failed to fulfill their obligations and have violated the public trust, it is imperative, to assure public confidence in the state's educational system, that they be subject to appropriate penalty for their behavior. Although duly considering respondent's lengthy, apparently unblemished record with the District, the Commissioner, nonetheless, determines that the charges established herein, under the particular circumstances of this matter, and when committed by a teaching staff member charged with molding and shaping young minds both academically and by virtue of example, is "sufficiently flagrant" to warrant respondent's dismissal. (See Redcay v. State Board of Education, 130 N.J.L. 369, 371 (Sup. Ct. 1943); aff'd 131 N.J.L. 326 (E. & A. 1944).)[3]

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed therein, the Commissioner affirms the initial decision of the OAL and hereby orders that Lucy Lester be dismissed from her tenured teaching position with the State-operated School District of the City of Newark as of the date of this decision. This matter shall be transmitted to the State Board of Examiners, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6, for action, as that body deems appropriate, against respondent's certificate.[4]

IT IS SO ORDERED.

[3]Notwithstanding the Commissioner's determination herein, he is compelled to clarify that the District's reliance on In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Alyce Stewart, State-operated School District of the City of Newark, Essex County as dispositive in this matter is misplaced. This cited case was decided on a summary basis, in that respondent failed to answer the charges lodged against her, and is of no precedential value in the instant matter.

MIDDLETOWN, MONMOUTH COUNTY.	:

Waiver granted by the Commissioner of Education, October 8, 1999

For the Appellant, Balk, Oxfeld, Mandell & Cohen (Sanford R. Oxfeld, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent, Kenney & Gross (Malachi J. Kenney, Esq., of Counsel)

This appeal was filed by the Middletown Education Association (hereinafter "appellant") from the grant of a waiver to the Board of Education of the Township of Middletown (hereinafter "Board") by the Commissioner of Education pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:3A-1.1 et seq.[1] Specifically, the Board had applied for a waiver from N.J.A.C. 11-4.5(c) so as to employ individuals possessing a certificate of eligibility with advanced standing to serve as a substitute teacher for up to sixty days in the same assignment. The Board indicated in its waiver application that it was seeking to employ

[1] N.J.A.C. 6:3A-1.1 provides, in pertinent part, that:

> The purpose of this chapter is to provide regulatory flexibility for school districts to meet the requirements of rules contained in the New Jersey Administrative Code Title 6....
> Regulatory flexibility may be granted as a waiver to a specific rule so that school districts can provide effective and efficient educational programs. The Commissioner, with authority delegated by the State Board, may on such individuals as substitutes without initiating the process of securing provisional certification since that process "requires time and paperwork on the part of the district and the certification office at the state level."

N.J.A.C. 11-4.5 provides in pertinent part that:

> (a) Persons who do not hold a standard instructional certificate issued by the State Board of Examiners but who can present a minimum of 60 semester-hour credits completed in an accredited college, may be granted a county substitute certificate for day-to-day substitute teaching in the county which grants the certificate.
>
> (c) The certificate will be issued for a three-year period, but the holder may serve for no more than 20 consecutive days in the same position in one school district during the school year....

N.J.A.C. 6:11-4.4 provides that:

> (a) A certificate of eligibility is a permanent certificate that may be issued to persons who meet academic degree and examination requirements for provisional employment. Holders of certificates of eligibility shall not assume responsibility for a job assignment until they have been issued provisional certificates.
> (b) A certificate of eligibility with advanced standing is a permanent certificate issued to candidates for standard certificates who have completed certain requirements of a State-approved district training or residency program through advance completion of an approved college preparation program.

The regulations further provide that in order for a candidate to be eligible for the standard certificate in instructional fields, except vocational areas, the candidate must possess a provisional certificate. N.J.A.C. 6:11-5.2(a). In order to be eligible for the provisional certificate, the candidate must obtain and accept an offer of employment in a position that requires instructional certification. N.J.A.C. 6:11-5.1(a)(4). A candidate who completes the requirements set forth in the regulations shall be issued a certificate of eligibility, which permits him or her to seek provisional employment requiring instructional certification. N.J.A.C. 6:11-5.1(b).

Certificates of eligibility shall be issued to all candidates who hold a bachelor's degree, have completed at least 30 credits in a coherent major appropriate to a given instructional field, and have passed the applicable State test. N.J.A.C. 6:11-5.1. In contrast, certificates of eligibility with advanced standing shall be issued to those persons who meet the test requirement and who have completed one of the programs of teacher preparation specified in the regulations. N.J.A.C. 6:11-5.1(c).

The appellant contends that the Board's waiver application misconstrued the regulation from which a waiver was sought and that the Commissioner's grant of a waiver was improper under the State Board's recent decision in Guttenberg Education Association v. Leo Klagholz, Commissioner of Education, and Board of Education of the Borough of Guttenberg, decided by the State Board of Education, March 3, 1999.

We agree. As set forth above, under the applicable regulations, an individual who holds a certificate of eligibility must possess a provisional certificate in order to serve in an assignment requiring instructional certification. Issuing a waiver from the rule that limits the service of individuals possessing a county substitute certificate issued by a county superintendent does nothing to alter the character of an assignment that requires instructional certification in order to be qualified to serve in that assignment. Nor can it authorize an individual to serve under a certificate of eligibility for any length of time without also possessing a provisional certificate.

Hence, waiving the requirement that an individual's service as a daily substitute under a county substitute certificate must be limited to twenty days in a given assignment constitutes a waiver of the certification rules which would otherwise apply. Guttenberg, supra. In this respect, we again stress that county substitute certificates are not teaching certificates. Guttenberg, supra, slip op. at 5. Accordingly, as detailed in our decision in Guttenberg, such a waiver cannot properly be granted.

Moreover, sustaining the Commissioner's grant of this waiver would sanction a waiver of N.J.A.C. 6:11-5.1 so as to permit holders of certificates of eligibility to fill assignments requiring instructional certification for up to 60 days without possessing the attending provisional certificate. This would also constitute a waiver of the certification rules. Again, such a waiver cannot properly be granted. Guttenberg, supra.

We stress that:

> certification requirements establish the threshold qualifications for teaching staff members employed in the public school system throughout the state. N.J.S.A. 18A:1-1; N.J.S.A. 18A:26-2. As such, and under the current statutory framework embodied in Title 18A, the certification process is critical to assuring the provision of a thorough and efficient education. [Hence], an equivalency or waiver cannot properly be granted under N.J.A.C. 6:3A-1.1 et seq. when the provision of a thorough and efficient education might be compromised. Commissioner's Brief, at 4. Since certification requirements are at the core of the current structure governing the delivery of all education programs under our jurisdiction, setting aside the standards embodied in our certification rules necessarily risks such a compromise.
>
> It was not our intention to create such a risk when we adopted N.J.A.C. 6:3A-1.1 et seq.

Guttenberg, supra, slip op. at 7.

Consequently, we did not contemplate that the Commissioner would exercise the authority we had delegated to him in N.J.A.C. 6:3A-1.1 et seq. to grant waivers or equivalencies like the one involved herein. Therefore, by our decision, we invalidate the waiver granted by the Commissioner in this case.

INTERIM SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT

This interim agreement executed this 18th day of February, 1999 between the parties, New Jersey Department of Education (hereinafter "Department") and Archway Programs, Inc. (hereinafter "Archway"), represents a partial settlement of several matters which are currently on appeal before the Commissioner of Education.

WHEREAS, on November 6, 1998, the Department of Education, Office of Compliance, issued a fiscal monitoring review report of Archway's financial records for the school year 1994-1995 and pursuant thereto directed Archway to refund the sum of $2,533,402.18 to the sending school districts and to submit a Corrective Action Plan or a Notice of Appeal within forty-five days; and

WHEREAS, Petitioner, Dr. Barbara Anderson, Assistant Commissioner, New Jersey Department of Education, notified Archway by letter dated November 9, 1998 that, due to chronic and systemic noncompliance with Departmental regulations, Archway was immediately being placed on conditional approval status and that its operating approval would be revoked effective June 30, 1999; and

WHEREAS, on November 13, 1998, Petitioner filed an Order to Show Cause with the Commissioner of Education requesting the immediate appointment of a fiscal monitor to oversee the financial operations of Archway for the remainder of the 1998-1999 school year; and

WHEREAS, on November 30, 1998, Archway filed an opposition to the order to show cause, an application for emergent relief seeking a stay of the conditional approval status and the June 30, 1999 revocation action, and a cross-petition appealing the Department's actions; and

WHEREAS, on December 9, 1998, the Commissioner of Education transmitted the show cause proceedings and the cross-petition with application for emergent relief to the Office of Administrative Law for a hearing; and

WHEREAS, on December 28, 1998, Judge Solomon Metzger rendered an initial decision on the order to show cause and application for emergent relief, wherein he recommended that the conditional approval and June 30, 1999 license revocation should be stayed and that the Department's application for a fiscal monitor should be denied; and

WHEREAS, the order to show cause and application for emergent relief are now before the Commissioner of Education for final determination; and

WHEREAS, Archway has submitted to the Department a Statement of Assurances stating changes it has made in the management and practices of Archway since the issuance of the fiscal monitoring report; and

WHEREAS, the Department has verified that Archway has undertaken a good faith effort to remedy deficiencies identified in the fiscal monitoring report; and

WHEREAS, the Department has determined that a fiscal monitor will insure that Archway continues to address the deficiencies identified in the fiscal monitoring report; and

WHEREAS, Archway has submitted a detailed statement of those items in the 1994-1995 fiscal monitoring review that it disputes; and

THE PARTIES HAVE AGREED to amicably resolve the issues pertaining to the order to show cause, the revocation action and the fiscal monitoring report. Archway has also raised issues regarding certain allocations contained in the fiscal monitoring report which give rise to further review and discussion. The parties have also agreed that further discussions are necessary to resolve the remaining issues related to the 1994-1995 fiscal monitoring review and the implementation by Archway of a fiscal corrective action plan.

IT IS HEREBY AGREED AND STIPULATED by the parties that the issues pertaining to the order to show cause and revocation are settled in accordance with the following terms:

1. The Department shall appoint Gary Pagliughi to serve as a fiscal monitor at Archway through December 30, 1999, unless in the Department's sole discretion it determines to terminate the appointment of the fiscal monitor at an earlier date. The fiscal monitor shall perform the following duties:

(a) Examine, under the direction of Assistant Commissioner, John Sherry, on an ongoing basis, all financial and operational records of Archway, including but not limited to cash receipts journal, cash disbursements journal, general ledger, tuition ledger, payroll journal, and fixed asset inventory, as they relate to the approved private school for the disabled in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6:20-4.1 et seq.;

(b) Review all adjusting entries, purchase orders, cash disbursements and payroll disbursements of the approved private school for the disabled prior to issuance and preliminarily determine if costs charged to the tuition program are allowable in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6:20-4.1 et seq.;

(c) Exercise his discretion in determining how and when to raise, with Archway officials, any issues regarding Archway's compliance or lack thereof with N.J.A.C. 6:20-4.1 et seq.; and

(d) Determine that all professional staff members are properly certified for the position in which they serve in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6:11 and that the salaries are properly charged to the program which benefited;

(e) Determine, in accordance with the regulations, whether a cost is a direct cost of the approved private school for the disabled or an agency indirect cost that benefits the private school for the disabled and should be allocated to the tuition program;

(f) Prepare periodic reports for Assistant Commissioner, John Sherry, outlining items reviewed, those in conformity and not in conformity with regulations. Such reports shall be promptly provided to Archway unless the fiscal monitor determines there is a need to communicate confidentially with Assistant Commissioner Sherry;

(g) Review all documentation that relates to the operations of the private school for the disabled program, provided that the fiscal monitor may also review financial records and operations of other Archway programs to the extent necessary to determine the proper allocation of costs to the private school for the disabled program;

(h) Approve any interim reimbursements to the sending school districts;

(i) Monitor all board meetings of Archway Education, Inc. (the private school for the disabled) and those portions of board meetings of Archway Programs, Inc. (the parent board) relating to the programs for the school for the disabled, except in the circumstance where the discussions fall within the attorney client privilege.

2. The salary of the fiscal monitor shall be based on DOE allowable consulting fees and shall be reimbursed to the Department by Archway and shall be an allowable cost.

3. The June 30, 1999 operating approval revocation is hereby rescinded without prejudice and the conditional approval status issued to Archway on November 9, 1998 is hereby withdrawn without prejudice.

4. The process for considering Archway's appeal of the results of the 1994-1995 fiscal monitoring review shall include:

(a) A meeting between representatives of Archway and the Department of Education, Office of Compliance, within one week of execution of this agreement; and

(b) Additional meetings as deemed necessary by the Office of Compliance; and

(c) Issuance of a final notice of determination by the Department of Education, Office of Compliance, no later than 20 days following the last meeting as deemed necessary by the Office of Compliance; and

(d) Appeal to the Commissioner of Education in the event that Archway disagrees with such final audit determination, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2 and in accordance with the Administrative Procedures Act.

5. Archway shall submit a fiscal Corrective Action Plan to the Department within twenty days of the final notice of determination by the Office of Compliance, except with respect to those items in the final notice of determination from which an appeal is filed in which case the fiscal Corrective Action Plan shall be submitted withing twenty days of the conclusion of the appeals process.

6. Archway shall cooperate fully with any Department personnel in reviews of Archway records for all fiscal years subsequent to 1994-1995 and the Department shall periodically communicate with Archway to address issues, and attempt to resolve them, as appropriate during such reviews.

7. The Department will issue a notice, as it deems appropriate, advising affected school districts of this agreement.

The undersigned hereby agree to the terms of this interim settlement agreement.

For Petitioner, Terri A. Cutrera, DAG (Peter Verniero, Attorney General of New Jersey)
For Respondent, Steven D. Weinstein, Esq. (Blank, Rome, Comisky & McCauley)

The record of this matter and the decision of the Office of Administrative Law on motion for emergent relief were duly filed with the Commissioner on December 30, 1998. Prior to the date by which the Commissioner was required to rule on the motion, the parties jointly requested that the time for the Commissioner's decision be extended so as to permit them to conclude discussions toward possible settlement. On February 23, 1999, a duly executed joint stipulation of settlement with consent order was submitted to the Commissioner.

Upon review, the Commissioner adopts the settlement agreement as the final decision in this matter, noting that, by its express terms, the settlement resolves all pending disputes, including the Assistant Commissioner's order to show cause and respondent's cross-petition and application for emergent relief, which are hereby dismissed without prejudice, and the Assistant Commissioner's order of revocation, which is hereby withdrawn without prejudice.

Accordingly, this matter is no longer deemed to be a contested case before the Commissioner, and, no further proceedings being necessary at the Office of Administrative Law, the file is hereby requested to be returned to the agency pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-3.3(a).*

IT IS SO ORDERED.

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, February 24, 2000

July 5, 2000

For the Petitioners-Appellants, Jacob & Ferrigno (Frederick A. Jacob, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Respondent, Arlene G. Lutz, Deputy Attorney General (John J. Farmer, Attorney General of New Jersey)

In a petition filed with the Commissioner of Education, 20 school districts and ten students attending school in those districts sought to have the Comprehensive Educational Improvement and Financing Act of 1996 ("CEIFA") declared unconstitutional as applied to them. The petitioning districts, characterizing themselves as "very poor DFG 'A' or 'B' non-Abbott 'special needs' districts," alleged that CEIFA did not provide them with sufficient funds so as to enable them to provide a thorough and efficient education.

On or about July 8, 1998, the respondent filed a motion with the Commissioner seeking dismissal of that petition. The petitioners filed a response thereto on or about July 24, 1998.

On November 19, 1999, the petitioners filed the instant motion with the State Board of Education, seeking an order compelling the Commissioner to issue a decision on the respondent's motion. Shortly thereafter, the petitioners requested that their motion be placed in abeyance.

On February 24, 2000, the Commissioner issued a letter decision denying the respondent's motion to dismiss with respect to those petitioners not previously addressed in his previous decision in this matter and directing that the case be transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for further proceedings.

By letter dated May 17, 2000, the Director of the State Board Appeals Office, observing that the Commissioner had issued his decision on the respondent's motion to dismiss, advised the petitioners that "in view of this fact and in the absence of objection from the parties, the Legal Committee intends to recommend that the State Board dismiss the matter as moot." The petitioners did not respond or otherwise object to the Legal Committee's recommendation.

In view of the fact that the Commissioner has now issued a decision on the respondent's motion to dismiss the petition, we dismiss the petitioners' motion to compel such a decision as moot.

Arnold G. Hyndman abstained.

DR. H. BENJAMIN WILLIAMS,
Petitioner,
v.
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE ATLANTIC CITY PUBLIC SCHOOLS, ET AL.,
Respondents.

Gregory G. Johnson, Esq., for petitioner

George G. Frino, Esq., and Michael C. Epps, Esq., for respondents

BEFORE JOSEPH F. MARTONE, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The within matter was commenced on July 29, 1998, when attorney for petitioner filed a motion for emergency relief seeking the reinstatement of petitioner and an order directing respondents to cease and desist from making any further comments about any prospective disciplinary action against petitioner. As a result of discussions between the parties, these issues were settled, and by an Order entered by Hon. Beatrice S. Tylutki, ALJ, on August 4, 1998, a Consent Order of the parties was approved and the parties were ordered to comply with the settlement terms as contained in the Consent Order. The Consent Order provided:

> Ordered that, effective immediately, the respondents, Board of Education of the City of Atlantic City and each individual Board member are directed to cease and desist from making public comments about any disciplinary actions, tenure charges, or removal of petitioner and to act solely in accordance with the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11 et seq. in any action to seek such removal.

Following this, in a letter application of attorney for petitioner dated August 19, 1998, petitioner asserted that the respondents' Answer and Cross Petition for Declaratory Relief filed in this matter on August 18, 1998, directly violated the terms of the Consent Order in that it referred to tenure charges and contained allegations which attorney for petitioner asserted are virtually identical with the tenure charges against petitioner which were under consideration at that time by the Board of Education. The foregoing Answer and Cross Petition for Declaratory Relief referred to the tenure charges in paragraph 3 under the heading, Affirmative Defenses, wherein it is stated that the filing of tenure charges on July 28, 1998, rendered the matter moot and required a dismissal of the petition. Respondents asserted that the petitioner is the Superintendent pursuant to a contract of employment, that he breached his employment agreement based on the facts asserted therein, and they sought a judgment declaring that petitioner's tenure as Superintendent be terminated. The Cross Petition for Declaratory Relief essentially mirrored the tenure charges filed with the Board of Education on July 28, 1998, for its consideration.

As a result of my review of the Cross Petition for Declaratory Relief, I found that this document violated the Consent Order, I concluded that the relief being sought by respondents in the Cross Petition for Declaratory Relief may only be achieved after the procedures of the Tenure Employees Hearing Law have been followed and that the factual allegations set forth in the Cross Petition for Declaratory Relief are irrelevant for the purpose of the present proceeding. I found that the factual assertions of respondents' Cross Petition for Declaratory Relief, which sets forth the factual basis for the tenure charge which had been under consideration by the Board of Education, violated the Consent Order of August 4, 1998, violated the mandate of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11 that consideration and actions of the Board as to any tenure charge shall not take place in public, and violated the provisions of N.J.S.A. 10:4-12(b)8 of the Open Public Meetings Act which recognizes a tenured employee's privacy rights. Therefore, I entered an Order on September 2, 1998, requiring full compliance with the Consent Order and imposing the appropriate case-related sanction pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.14 of dismissing and striking of respondents' Cross Petition for Declaratory Relief as a violation of the Consent Order, a violation of the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11, and a violation of the Open Public Meetings Act. Petitioner was also seeking the dismissal of the Answer, the holding in contempt of respondents for violating the terms of the Consent Order, and the dismissal of the pending tenure charges. However, I indicated that I was unaware of any authority which would permit the Commissioner or the OAL to exercise contempt powers or the authority to dismiss pending tenure charges without a hearing.

It is not disputed that following the foregoing, on September 14, 1998, the Atlantic City Board of Education held a special meeting, and during the course of that meeting, the Board adopted a resolution to permit discussion of certain matters in closed session. It is undisputed that during that closed session, the Board of Education reviewed and discussed certain proposed tenure charges against Dr. Williams which had been prepared by special counsel. Following this closed session, the Board voted to return to open session. The Board then adopted resolution No. 98 9S 1 by a public roll call vote wherein it certified tenure charges against Dr. Benjamin Williams, effective September 15, 1998, and forwarded same to the Commissioner of Education. The resolution further provided for Dr. Williams to be suspended without pay and to be directed to return all property belonging to the Board of Education. The vote on the resolution was seven Board members in favor and two opposed.

It should be noted that the tenure charges against petitioner were transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on October 2, 1998, having OAL Docket No. EDU 8601-98, and was assigned to the undersigned. In that matter petitioner, Board of Education of the City of Atlantic City, alleged that respondent, Dr. H. Benjamin Williams, school district Superintendent of Schools did the following: (a) he permitted expenditures be made in violation of Board policy and education law; (b) he installed, perpetuated and failed to stop a system of purchasing that violated education law and regulations and that had insufficient controls in order to prevent theft and other losses; (c) he failed to adequately and carefully supervise and monitor the expenditure of public funds through the purchase order system; (d) he made a false and misleading statement; (e) these actions constitute a purposeful and/or reckless disregard of respondent's acknowledged duty to steward public funds, oversee and supervise the fiscal and financial affairs of the district in a manner that would comply with his Contract of Employment and the education laws; (f) these actions constitute a breach of respondent's duty to render competent and careful guidance and advice to the Board insofar as reasonably prudent financial practices that would safeguard public funds; (g) he purposely and knowingly solicited and caused the Board to incur obligations in excess of the limit of expenditures provided by applicable law, and to disburse funds in excess of appropriated and budgeted amounts in violation of his responsibility for the general supervision and control over district finances and fiscal practices. As a result of the adoption of P.L. 1998, Ch. 42, effective June 30, 1998, there is a legislative mandate that tenure hearings be handled in an expeditious and timely manner and a very tight schedule was ordered to be implemented for processing the case. The hearing on these charges is currently on-going.

In the foregoing tenure charge matter respondent moved to dismiss the tenure charges because the Board took public action with respect to the charges in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11. Respondent therein argued that these actions are blatantly inconsistent with any semblance of due process. However, it was observed that due process requires notice of the charges and an opportunity for a hearing, and that public discussion of the charges is not a violation of due process rights, but is a violation of a statutory provision. It was observed that nowhere in the statute is there any indication of the remedy for its violation. In view of the lack of authority for dismissal of the charges as a sanction for violating N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11, respondent's request for dismissal of the tenure charges on this basis was denied.

LEGAL DISCUSSION

N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11 provides that the consideration and actions of the Board as to any [tenure] charge shall not take place at a public meeting. In addition, the Open Public Meetings Act, N.J.S.A. 10:4-12(b)8 permits public bodies to exclude from public discussion any matter involving the employment, termination, evaluation or disciplining of an employee. In Oliveri v. Carlstadt-East Rutherford Board of Ed., 160 N.J. Super. 131 (App. Div. 1978), it was indicated that this provision recognizes an employee's privacy rights.

In the present matter, the Board of Education had before it certain tenure charges against petitioner, to which the petitioner had 15 days to formulate a written statement referred to in N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11 responding to such charges. After consideration of the charge and response, the Board is required to determine whether there is probable cause to credit the evidence in support of the charge. If so, the tenure charge is certified and is forwarded to the Commissioner for a hearing pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16. As was previously indicated the Board then adopted a resolution by a public roll call vote to certify tenure charges against Dr. Williams and forwarded same to the Commissioner of Education.

It was my original intention to hold in abeyance any actions on the within matter and to deal first with the tenure charges in view of the Legislative mandate to hear and decide tenure charge matters in an expeditious manner. However, attorney for petitioner pointed out that he seeks a determination on the issue whether the public action taken by the respondent Board of Education to certify tenure charges against Dr. Williams causes the tenure charges to be void as a matter of law, and this will have a direct impact on the hearing on the tenure charges

In support of petitioner's contention that the charges are void, petitioner relies upon Davis v. Board of Education of the Lower Camden County Regional High School District, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 4941-97; Agency Dkt. No. 177-6/97 (Commissioner decision 94-98, February 27, 1998). In Davis, it was held that a Board of Education did not act properly when it voted to suspend a teacher without pay by reason of his indictment because the Board failed to obtain a majority vote of its full membership as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:25-6. Attorney for petitioner herein argues that, by analogy, the holding in the Davis case should apply and that the tenure charges should be dismissed because the Board took action in public in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11. Attorney for petitioner points out that N.J.S.A. 18A:25-6 does not contain any language that provides a remedy if there is no compliance. Yet, the decision in Davis invalidates the action of the Board despite the absence of a statutory remedy. However, the statutory provision in Davis clearly requires that the suspension action be taken by a majority vote of the full membership. In the absence of a vote complying with this requirement, it is clear that there is no suspension and the alleged suspension was void ab initio.

With respect to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11, it is unclear what occurs if the tenure charge action is taken at a public meeting. I have reviewed Title 18A and can find no provision which indicates that a violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11 requires a dismissal of any tenure charges which result from a public action. Compare this with the provisions of the Open Public Meetings Act (commonly referred to as the Sunshine Law), N.J.S.A. 10:4-1 to -21. This act generally provides that all actions of public bodies must be taken at public meetings, and that no public body shall exclude the public from any meeting unless a resolution is first adopted indicating that the close session shall deal with certain specific items. N.J.S.A. 10:4-13. Significantly, the Open Public Meetings Act provides at N.J.S.A. 10:4-15, that any action taken by a public body at a meeting which does not conform with the provisions of the Act shall be voidable in a proceeding in lieu of prerogative writ in the Superior Court. In addition, N.J.S.A. 10:4-16 provides for injunctive relief or other remedies to insure compliance with the Act, and N.J.S.A. 10:4-17 provides for fines as a penalty for violating the Act. There is no such similar provision relating to the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11 and there is no indication that any action taken by a Board of Education at a public meeting is somehow void or voidable. In fact, once a Board of Education certifies tenure charges, the matter then becomes subject to public scrutiny since the hearing before the Commissioner or designee is a public hearing. See, Cirangele v. Maywood Board of Education, 164 N.J. Super. 595, 602 (Law Div. 1979).

In In the Matter of Tenure Hearing of Cowan, 224 N.J. Super. 737 (App. Div. 1988), the Appellate Division discussed the apparent failure of the local board to follow the procedures prescribed by N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11 and -13 for processing disciplinary charges against tenured public school employees. These alleged improprieties included failing to comply with the 45-day requirement of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11, providing a written statement of evidence under oath by individuals who relied upon hearsay statements of other individuals, and submitting a certification signed by the board secretary four days after the jurat was signed and dated by the Board attorney. The Appellate Division rejected these contentions. It was observed in In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Beam, 93 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 320, 321 that the dismissal of tenure charges is not required for technical, insubstantial failures to follow N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 to -14 if they are insufficient to render the process unfair and contrary to the statutory intendments.

In the present matter, the fact remains that the Board of Education considered the tenure charges and the statement of evidence in a closed meeting and then publicly made the determination to certify these charges to the Commissioner of Education for hearing. Once the tenure charges became certified, the matter becomes a matter of public record. The taking of the action to certify these charges at a public meeting does not render the process unfair or contrary to the statutory intent to require that the Board deliberate whether to certify tenure charges in a closed session Therefore, taking final action to certify the tenure charges at a public meeting amounts to no more than a technical violation for which there is no statutory or court-established remedy.

ORDER

Based on the foregoing, it is hereby ORDERED that petitioner's request for the dismissal of the pending tenure charges on the basis that the public action taken by the respondent Board of Education to certify tenure charges against Dr. Williams causes the tenure charges to be void as a matter of law, is hereby DENIED.

DR. H. BENJAMIN WILLIAMS,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION DECISION ON MOTION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE SCHOOL DISTRICT OF ATLANTIC CITY, ATLANTIC COUNTY,	:
RESPONDENT.	:

This interim matter comes before the Commissioner by way a motion for interlocutory review of the appended order of the ALJ, denying petitioner's motion to dismiss tenure charges against him on grounds that such charges were certified at a public meeting of the Board of Education, in violation of both applicable law and the consent order reached in resolution of a prior motion for emergency relief.

In his request for review, Petitioner argues that, in reaching his determination that the Board's certification at a public meeting constituted a technical violation of the laws governing the tenure hearing process insufficient to warrant dismissal of the charges, the ALJ both misread the law and failed to consider the history of this matter and surrounding factual circumstances which clearly demonstrate the Board's disregard of its obligations and the prejudicing of Petitioner's rights to privacy and procedural safeguard. In response, the Board denies that it violated either Petitioner's privacy rights or the tenure law, and contends that to interpret the previous consent order in the manner demanded by Petitioner would be tantamount to an unconstitutional prior restraint on individual board members, particularly in view of the allegations made against them by Petitioner in his concurrent Superior Court claim.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that the Board's actions in certifying tenure charges at a public meeting, notwithstanding the Board's contention that it was merely memorializing in public an action it had duly taken in private session in accordance with the law, was a clear violation of the plain language of the Tenure Employees Hearing Act and its implementing regulations, as well as, ipso facto, a violation of the consent order requiring the Board to "act solely in accordance with the provisions of [that act] in any action to seek [Petitioner's] removal." The Commissioner further concurs with the ALJ that the pending tenure charges should not be dismissed as a consequence of the instant motion. He does so, however, for different reasons than those stated by the ALJ in the initial order.

Specifically, the Commissioner declines to rule in the context of the present proceeding on the effect of the violation on the proceeding bound by the law at issue. That question and the analysis offered in the initial order, that is, whether a procedural violation is sufficient to warrant dismissal of underlying tenure charges, are properly undertaken within the context of the separate tenure matter, which, it is noted, has not been consolidated with the instant appeal and is presently continuing on its own independent course. Indeed, as noted by the ALJ, a motion to dismiss the tenure charges on grounds which included those raised herein was, in fact, made to the ALJ as part of the referenced tenure proceeding, and, the Commissioner observes, interlocutory review of the ALJ's denial of that motion was not sought as permitted by N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.10. For a petitioner to attempt to have tenure charges dismissed through a proceeding such as the present one is, in effect, for him or her to seek "two bites of the apple," two opportunities to attack the same tenure charges on identical grounds, both within and without the scope of the tenure hearing. Clearly, notwithstanding the merits of any procedural defense, or of any concomitant intimations of bad faith, this is an unacceptable result.

The within motion, then, should be dismissed not on the merits of its arguments, to which the Commissioner does not reach herein and which properly await the Commissioner's determination on his ultimate review of the still ongoing tenure matter, but on grounds that dismissal of tenure charges is not an appropriate relief in the present context.

Accordingly, the order of the ALJ denying Petitioner's motion to dismiss the tenure charges against him is affirmed for the reasons expressed in the within Commissioner's decision.*

IT IS SO ORDERED.

* It is noted that Petitioner is represented in the above-referenced separate tenure proceeding by a different attorney, who attempted to introduce submissions relating to the tenure proceeding into the record of this matter; these submissions were not considered in the Commissioner's determination herein. Additionally, it is noted that the Board's objection to the tenure submissions included a request for interlocutory review of a motion on which the ALJ has not yet ruled, a request for which, as correctly noted by Petitioner, there is no basis in statute or rule.

TENURE HEARING OF	:
BRIAN YATAURO, SCHOOL	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
DISTRICT OF THE TOWNSHIP	:	DECISION
OF LACEY, OCEAN COUNTY.	:

Board certified tenure charges of unbecoming conduct, insubordination and other just cause against respondent high school band director and music teacher due to his allegedly improper relationship with E.K., a teenage student and musician/band member, and to his failure to comply with directives issued to him to avoid contact with students after his suspension.

In light of the credible testimony of E.K., as well as the supporting testimony of her mother and her friends and the evidence in the record, the ALJ found by a preponderance of the credible evidence that respondent did engage in sexual conduct with E.K. ALJ concluded that respondent acted in disregard of the standards of professional conduct expected of public school teachers, as well as the policies of his employer. ALJ ordered respondent removed from his tenured position.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own. Commissioner concurred with the ALJ that the Board established its charges of unbecoming conduct against respondent by a preponderance of the credible evidence necessitating his removal from his tenured position. Commissioner ordered him dismissed as of the date of this decision and the tenure matter transmitted to the State Board of Examiners for action, as that body deems appropriate. Commissioner directed the issue of moneys which may be due and owing respondent be severed from the tenure matter herein and this sole issue remanded to the OAL for necessary determinations consistent with the ALJ's request.

BEFOI E JEFF S. MASIN, ALJ:

The Board of Education of the Township of Lacey, Ocean County ("Board") certified tenu e charges against Brian Yatauro ("Yatauro"), a tenured teaching staff member. The charges were transmitted to the Commissioner of Education ("Commissioner") on September 18, 1997. The Commissioner transferred the matter to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. A prehearing conference was conducted on January 7, 1998, and a prehearing order was issued on January 22, 1998. Hearings commenced on June 22, 1998, and continued for 13 non-consecutive days, with testimony and closing summations occurring on November 30, 1998, on which date the record closed.[1]

The allegations against Mr. Yatauro, who until his suspension with pay on March 27, 1996, pending the resolution of a criminal allegation had served as a band director and music instructor at Lacey Township High School ("Lacey") for approximately six years, revolve around his purported improper relationship with E.K. (hereinafter often referred to as "E."), who was a student at Lacey during the school years 1993-94 and 1996-97. The Board contends that Yatauro developed an inappropriately close relationship with Ms. K., far beyond that appropriate for a teacher in relation to a student, and further contends that the relationship became sexual in nature. Mr. Yatauro was indicted on charges relating to the alleged sexual component of the relationship. His suspension was modified by the Board at the time of his indictment to a suspension without pay, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-8.3. He was eventually acquitted following a jury trial in 1997, prior to the Board's certification of tenure charges. Ms. K. has since graduated and is now a college student.

In addition to the charges directly arising from the allegedly improper relationship with Ms. K., the Board alleges that Yatauro failed to comply with directives issued to him to avoid contact with students after his suspension. The Board had advised him in writing on April 23, 1996, that he was not permitted or authorized to have "any professional contact with students of the district." In a subsequent letter dated September 12, 1996, the Board iterated the directive, this time emphasizing that he was to "refrain from having any contact with Lacey Township High School students." (emphasis in the original). It again advised him in writing on September 17, 1996, not to have "any professional contact with students of the district."

Many of the facts surrounding the relationship between the married teacher and band director, Yatauro, and the teenage student and musician/band member, E.K., are not in dispute. Mr. Yatauro acknowledges that he developed a friendship with her, that he served as a mentor and father figure for her. He steadfastly denies that the relationship ever was inappropriate, romantic and/or sexual in nature.

[1] The hearings were interrupted for additional expert investigation, pre-scheduled vacations and finally to allow for the determination of issues of possible mootness and a motion seeking to intervene in the proceedings filed by the Division of Youth and Family Services. These were addressed in an Interlocutory Order issued on September 29, 1998, which denied intervention and ruled that the tenure proceeding had to continue to conclusion.

Ms. E. K. who was born on February 11, 1979, lives in Forked River, New Jersey, with her mother, who is employed by a rehabilitation hospital located in Toms River. According to E., her mother is an alcoholic, and during some or all of the relevant period was a "closet drinker." Her father has not lived with the family since E. was nine months old. The women live in their own home, and for a time during the relevant period, E.K.'s elderly grandfather resided in their home as well. Her grandmother, a very significant figure in her life, died during E.'s freshman year on February 9, 1993. This event deeply affected her and is of some importance in the early relationship she developed with Mr. Yatauro. E. has her own bedroom in the house, a long, narrow, 9' x 22' room which was originally a porch and dining area converted into a bedroom when the grandfather moved in. This room runs the entire depth of the house and has a separate door from the outside as well as a door leading from the bedroom into the kitchen. The bedroom contains a television and stereo equipment, music stand and piano. There are windows in the door between the bedroom and the kitchen and between the kitchen itself and bedroom and the living room and the bedroom. According to Ms. K., there was a dolphin flag covering the window between the bedroom and the living room, pictures which she had drawn on construction paper on the door windows and curtains and a deflated parrot balloon on and vertical blinds on the kitchen side of the window between the bedroom and kitchen. The window which was over the sink in the corner of the kitchen only afforded a view of the back wall of her room, and not of the bed. All of this is significant to the case.

SUMMARY OF THE BOARD'S CASE

In short, the Board's case, as drawn from testimony, is as follows: During her freshman year, E., a clarinetist, joined the High School band, which was directed by Mr. Yatauro, who was then about 31 years old. After the death of her grandmother, who died two days prior to E.'s 14th birthday, Yatauro provided the stricken girl with support and comfort, which in and of itself was certainly not inappropriate. However, a deeper and decidedly inappropriate relationship then developed, with kissing and embracing leading to a first sexual encounter in her home late one night in June 1994. The sexual activity continued on a very regular basis throughout the summer of 1994, then through her sophomore year. It occurred without any force or physical compulsion. During all this time, E. exhibited great musical talent and was recognized as such on a regional and statewide basis. According to the Board, as the relationship continued during the sophomore year and the next summer, Mr. Yatauro, a strong, charismatic, extremely popular and exacting taskmaster, attempted to exert ever greater control over the day-to-day life of Ms. K., pressing her to place her music and their relationship above all else and to greatly restrict certain other aspects of her social life.

In her junior year, 1995-96, as her romantic attachment to a high school peer developed and for other reasons, E. became disenchanted with the control Yatauro exerted, became significantly less intense in her commitment to her music, sought to lessen and eventually even cut off the relationship with Yatauro. In early 1996, Ms. K. learned that her father had suddenly and without warning contacted the school about his daughter, this after having had nothing to do with her life since shortly after her birth. The news of this contact confused and upset her.

Matters came to a head in late February/March 1996, when, as a result of what initially was an attempt to get her mother to seek help for her alcoholism, E. was placed in contact with Ms. Roberta Hogg, a counselor at school. She thereafter slowly revealed, over a period of weeks, first that she was in an emotionally abusive relationship with an unnamed "older man." When asked, she denied that he was from the school, and later in mid-March finally revealed that the man was named "Brian," and then, after being pressed for a more specific identification, that the man was actually "Brian Yatauro." Yatauro was thereafter suspended. The Board charges that Yatauro's conduct toward his student, both the controlling, intrusive, non-sexual aspects as well as the sexual component, violated the standards of conduct applicable to a member of the teaching profession and constituted unbecoming conduct. In addition, the Board says that he violated directives issued after his suspension which barred him from contact with students.

SUMMARY OF MR. YATAURO'S DEFENSE

As noted, Yatauro does not deny much of the factual presentation by the Board. He denies that his friendship with E., a girl whom he characterizes as coming from a somewhat dysfunctional home and having some apparent emotional concerns, was in any way romantic, sexual, or controlling, abusive, intrusive or inappropriate. He simply tried to befriend and help a young lady with some problems and with great potential to realize what she herself saw as a future in the musical profession. He had done much the same with numerous other students. His conduct toward Ms. K., while perhaps more involving than with other students, was nevertheless well within the bounds of propriety for a teaching professional.

EVIDENCE

As is usual in this type of case, the only direct evidence of the alleged sexual activity is the testimony of Ms. E. However, the Board presented a number of witnesses and documentary proofs which it believes support the student's assertion of a romantic and even a physical relationship. For his part, Mr. Yatauro presented witnesses who have their own view as to the significance of the acknowledged occasional public physical contact between the two, and who in one way or another have shared their high school lives with Yatauro and experienced what they portray as a very caring, motivated, mentor and friend whose conduct with E. merely falls within the general experiences which they themselves benefited from. In addition, he also attempted to refute the allegedly damaging implications arising from the documentary evidence, consisting of cards, notes, letters and such produced by Ms. K. as items she claimed to have received from him; explaining them as either items he actually had given to his former college girlfriend and present wife, Cheryl, or as items which were only tokens of friendship and appreciation given to a student who now attempts to portray them as much more than they were intended. Finally, he presented witnesses to refute the Board's concerns about non-sexual conduct which in many cases he admits, but which he and his witnesses contend do not constitute unusual or improper behavior.

Ms. E.N.K. is now 19 years old and a college student. She graduated from Lacey High in June 1997. She first met Mr. Yatauro while in 8th grade, when he came to her middle school on a recruitment visit, seeking incoming freshman who had an interest in the band. She attended band camp in the summer before her freshman year and joined the concert and marching bands that fall of 1993. Practices for the band were held after school, usually from 4:00 or 4:30 P.M. to 7:00 or 7:30 P.M. She frequently went to school early in the morning to practice, arriving at about 7:10 A.M. or even earlier. Ms. K. and other witnesses for both parties agreed that other students would also sometimes arrive early, as would Mr. Yatauro. There were also some Saturday morning practices. The concert band gave concerts for the winter holiday season, a concert usually held in March and a spring concert. The marching band played at football games and competed at Giants Stadium. There was also practice during class periods, and students practiced at lunch time and/or even before school.

E. gradually increased her practice time over the course of freshman year, including practicing outside of school. Yatauro encouraged her to try out for the regional competition in her sophomore year. During the summer between her freshman and sophomore years she took private lessons from Yatauro, for which he did not charge her. These were sometimes held at his house, which was located in Manchester Township about 20 minutes from her home. He lived there with his wife, Cheryl, and his young son. E.'s mother drove her to these lessons, usually went to the mall to shop and later returned to pick her up. Mrs. Yatauro was not usually present, except on at least one occasion. The Yatauro's child was then about three years old and was sometimes at home when E. had her lesson.

According to Ms. K., when her grandmother passed away during her freshman year, she met briefly with a guidance counselor. One day she was sitting in a practice room at school and having a hard time with her emotions. Yatauro came in and started to talk to her for a short time and they later spoke after school for a longer time, perhaps an hour or an hour and a half, in his office in the band room area. She was "extremely upset." Yatauro, who she described as "an incredible teacher," was the type of person with whom she felt comfortable talking.

Yatauro's first demonstration of affection towards E. occurred near the end of freshman year. This was also about the time that he started to telephone her at her home. It happened in his office after school, with no one else present. They had been talking and she was preparing to leave. He held his arms out, put them around her and hugged her. She hugged back. It was a "little hold and let go," lasting perhaps thirty seconds. This made her feel happy and close. In her words at trial, it was "okay."

The next display of affection was their first kiss, an open-mouth kiss which occurred in a practice room prior to the start of school about two weeks after the hug. The kiss was more of a "peck," than anything else, but lasted for a minute or two. E. is not positive, but recalled that Yatauro may have asked her if he could kiss her. When he kissed her, he told her something like, "You've been waiting for me to do that for a long time." She did not answer and just smiled at him. At first he had his hands on the front of her shoulders, but after a short time she embraced him. She felt that he cared about her, and she cared about him. However, she testified that while she again felt "happy," she was aware that this was not a normal action on the part of a teacher. Despite this awareness, it seemed "okay" to her. She trusted him and he in fact told her that she could trust him. She perceived that he was interested in what she had to say and how she felt and she therefore felt close to him. It seemed like a friendship to her, she could talk to him openly about her grandmother and about other things. She told her friend T.M., who was not in the band and therefore "away from it all," about the kiss about a week after it happened. (Ms. M. confirmed this in her own testimony, explaining that her friend told her that he had "pinned her against the wall" and started to kiss her, lasting for "several minutes.")

Thereafter, the developing "relationship" progressed to sexual contact. The band participated in a parade in Wildwood, New Jersey, on a Saturday toward the end of freshman year. Yatauro, who said that he had to go somewhere after the event, drove in his vehicle rather than on the school bus as he usually would have. While they were outside the bus in Wildwood, he told E. that he would come over to her house late that evening, after the event ended. She didn't question him further. He called her from his car later that evening at around 12 midnight, telling her that he would arrive at her home in about 45 minutes. She set her alarm, and when he arrived, she saw his car in front of her house. She took her dog and walked to where he had parked, around the corner from the front of the house, which itself sits on a corner lot. This was between 12:45 and 1:00 A.M. They walked together to the house and entered through the outside door which led directly to her room, as they did not want to wake her mother or her grandfather.

In the bedroom they talked and listened to music while sitting on the floor in front of the stereo. She was wearing a tank top and shorts. He kissed her on the lips, eventually touching her above and beneath her clothes. She then touched him similarly on the chest, stomach and back. He undressed her and himself. They eventually engaged in oral sex and had sexual intercourse. He may have ejaculated during oral sex, but definitely not during the intercourse, as he removed himself before climax as he did not have a condom. He stayed for perhaps an hour and a half and then left. She again was happy, felt that he cared for her, but she recognized at the time that all of this was "kind of unusual . . . not a normal thing to happen." He was her teacher and there was a large difference in age, as she was then 14 years old. She knew that he was married, was jeopardizing his position, that this was not "per se normal." These facts were confusing to her and bothered her. He told her that they would have to be careful, that people would not understand, and he used the phrase, "no mistakes," a phrase he used often.

Mr. Yatauro testified that he first went to the K. household in the early part of freshman year for a meal at the invitation of E. and her mother and they were joined by a fellow student, Mr. M. W. He was also at the house other times that year and Mrs. K. made him feel very comfortable there. He recalled the Wildwood parade. He had to attend a bachelor party for a friend that evening at a restaurant and then at a go-go bar which was located on Route 27 in Kingston, New Jersey, and he told his assistants that he had to leave Wildwood early. He drove to the shore in his car. He went to the party and left around midnight, traveling the approximately 1 1/2 hours to his home. However, he did not go to K.'s house that night and did not have any contact with her that night, sexual or otherwise. The next morning between 6:30-7:00 A.M. he was at his summer landscaping job, working for a friend's business.

Ms. K. testified that the next sexual encounter occurred early that summer at Yatauro's home when she went to his house for a lesson. They had sexual relations perhaps nine or ten times that summer, four or five times at his house in July and through the middle of August.[2] At that time she was not on birth control pills, and he would "pull out" rather than use a condom, as he said that "nothing should be between us." The sex in his house occurred in the so-called "marimba room" (where he had musical instruments including marimbas), in his bedroom and also in his son's bedroom, and at the bottom of the stairs. He usually initiated the sex, although later on in E.'s sophomore year she also initiated it on occasion.

As for the summer music practices, at his instruction she maintained a small spiral notepad, P-23 in evidence, in which he would write information about the lessons, practice to be done, etc. It contains entries for 8 dates, June 28 through August 31. On all but one of these the entries clearly discuss matters relevant to her lessons and practices. The sole exception, at least as far as the direct references are concerned, is the entry for July 12, which contains just two words, "You Know." According to Ms. K., this entry reflects the fact that on that date, they had sex for the first time in his house, in the marimba room. He initiated the contact, which resulted in intercourse. The words were written by him and as he did so he laughed and told her that thereafter when she went back in the book and saw them they would remind her of the sexual encounter.

The witness explained that her mother stayed at Yatauro's house during the summer lessons perhaps one to three times. Once Mrs. Yatauro arrived at the end of the lesson, once she was present in the house during the entire lesson. Yatauro's son was not normally in the home when they had sex. She "knew her mother would not just walk in" when she returned from shopping. However, on one occasion, when the weather was hot, which she believes may have been during the summer, Mrs. Yatauro's parents arrived at the Yatauro home while E. and Yatauro were having sex. The dog's barking alerted them. Mr. Yatauro's son was asleep in his bedroom. Yatauro stopped, looked out the window and said, "Oh, shit, Cheryl's parents are here." They hurriedly dressed and he ran out into the yard while the parents approached the house. She stayed indoors and explained to the parents that she was there to watch the child and that he was outside working on a swing set.

Mr. Yatauro testified that his wife worked only five to ten minutes away from the house and did not work a set schedule. She could come home at various times during the lessons, which lasted for an hour or longer. As for E.'s mother, she "had access in and out."

Yatauro discussed the notebook and entries, which he acknowledged were in his handwriting. He used this method with other students, and would make entries as they occurred to him or at the end of the lesson. It was meant as a place to note what had been done, what to practice, rehearsal schedules and the like. The entry for July 12, "You Know," was a reference to what had not been accomplished in the previous lesson and referred back to the July 5 lesson. There was "nothing new to add . . . nothing happened." As for any sexual implication, there was no sexual conduct for it to apply to.

Another entry in the same notebook, this time made on July 19, referred to "3 things-we have no control over." These were identified at the hearing as "time, distance, love." Yatauro explained these concepts as matters he spoke about to a number of students, including E. They referred to time, meaning dedication, love, that is, to an art form. He acknowledged that he drew the diagram found on the back of the score for Mozart's Concerto for Clarinet, K.622, P-16, which he gave to E. This diagram contains the full first name of Ms. K., written next to a set of horizontal and vertical arrows with the word "love" written diagonally across the meeting point of the arrows, with the word "me" to the right of the horizontal arrow. A vertical arrow with up and down points is to the right of the word "me" and a broken line extends vertically up and down from this arrow. To the right of this arrow is a broken line to the right of which are the words "everyone else." He explained that this diagram referred to her dedication, time commitment and "what she wanted to do." This referred to an approach to music he "used with all of his kids." The word "me" referred to him, and the import was that she, he and music were involved in a dedication to a program in order to be successful. He denied that the diagram implied any separation from or opposition to others, or any implication of a romantic or sexual relationship of he and E.

During her sophomore year, E. made the regional band, finishing tied for third in the competition, and also made the All-State symphonic band. (She repeated these achievements in her junior year, but for reasons to be explained she did not try for them in her senior year.)

According to E., throughout the sophomore, and indeed into her junior year, Yatauro visited the K. home frequently. He often had dinner at her house either before or after the Monday and Wednesday band practices. He also visited often on Saturday. They often visited in the bedroom, watching television or listening to the stereo, talking, eating, and having sexual relations. The door to her room from the kitchen was not locked, in fact her mother once walked into her room while they were eating. Nevertheless, despite this incident E. insisted that her mother would knock before she entered the closed room, and in the past she had yelled at her mother when she failed to do so. E. recalled that once Yatauro fell asleep on her bed. Yatauro, who acknowledged in his statements to the police (P-26 and P-27) and in this hearing that he would sometimes sit next to E. on her bed and at other times laid next to her on the bed, testified that he recalled falling asleep one Friday evening after he and a number of students returned late from a practice for All State band or perhaps from a regular practice. He believed that Mrs. K. was present that evening, that she made him tea or hot chocolate, and that he then fell asleep on the bed with the door open and other students still in the house. He could not remember whether E. was on the bed with him either when he was awake or when he was asleep. Yatauro agreed that he did spend time with E. in her bedroom, as he also did in the living room. Her bedroom was also her "studio," and that was where she had her stereo, television, and where he would teach her a lesson. The door from the bedroom to the kitchen would be left open, but might be closed during a lesson, although he "really didn't notice."

Ms. K. testified that the sexual relationship continued throughout the 10th grade, usually two to three times a week. This usually occurred at her home, and included both intercourse and oral sex. The band usually had practice on Monday and Wednesday and during the marching band season on Saturdays. The sex sometimes took place on Saturday, but not as often as on Mondays and Wednesdays. On these Saturday occasions, when the sex occurred her mother may either have been sleeping or may have been out shopping. Sexual activity sometimes also took place at school. She specifically recalled that on one Halloween they had sex in the front practice room after school. Another time he brought her to his house in his living room while his wife was allegedly "up North."

In addition to the sexual activity, E. often arrived at school early for practice and they talked. She and Yatauro also spoke most evenings on the telephone. The length of these calls varied. He told her that he loved her, would protect her, would "be there" for her, that he would leave his wife and that all would "be great for us." She told him that she loved him and they ended the evening by saying goodnight. In addition to these discussions, their conversations also covered other subjects, such as band, school, auditions, their personal lives, "everything." Sometime during September/October of her sophomore year, they spoke in his office about birth control, a topic which had been brought up before. She had obtained birth control pills and brought them in to tell him about them. He was happy that she had them.

Mrs. K. testified that while the relationship between her daughter and Mr. Yatauro started out as that of teacher-student, she noted that by sophomore year it was more "fooly-teasing," characterized by "looks, kidding, a more personal relationship." During 1994-95, Yatauro began to stop at the K. home after evening rehearsals, on occasion after concerts, and more and more often on Saturday mornings, when he would stay for about one hour and sometimes, at least for the first few months, bring his son.

E., her mother and Yatauro all agreed that he performed some yard work at the home, cutting tree limbs and blowing leaves. He also recalled removing snow once with a friend. He characterized the frequency of his Saturday visits as only occasional, not anything near every Saturday, but more likely once or twice a month, and he claimed that he went to teach or do yard work. He had a very distinctive looking 1986 Ford Bronco which would be parked at the house, easily seen by anyone, including a number of band members who lived within no more than a block or two from the K. house, such as R.K. who lived catty-corner to her house.

On one occasion, within a couple of months of the summer between sophomore and junior year, Yatauro and E. traveled to the Cherry Hill Mall to shop. According to her, they went there so that she could try to find a bathing suit, although she did testify that there may have been a second trip to the Cherry Hill Mall when he purchased her an outfit for a concert, or they may even have looked for both the swim suit and outfit the same day. E. claimed that he was insistent that she not wear bikinis which were too revealing, claiming that there was no reason for girls to "parade around." He hated those bikinis that she tried on and she did not buy any.

Mr. Yatauro testified that the trip to Cherry Hill was made with the knowledge of Mrs. K. and even of A.L., who was then E.'s boyfriend, as they were with Yatauro and E. before the two left for Cherry Hill. He said that they went to Cherry Hill to "avoid getting hassled," to avoid "run(ning) into a lot of people," as there were a "lot of rumors," and also simply wanted to go to a different mall from that which he usually frequented. This was the only such trip and purchase at Cherry Hill. He denied that they shopped there for a bathing suit, and even though he did tell the police that they had, he now recalls that they did not. He had shopped with other students at the Ocean County Mall and had seen E. there and walked the Mall with her. He had even run into Mr. Adamski and his wife. Adamski, who was the school principal, expressed no concern to him about his activity with the students at that time.

E. recalled that on another occasion during sophomore year, she was at home with her mother and Yatauro and she tried on two bathing suits for him which she had purchased with her mother. She changed in the bathroom. He liked them, but not for her to wear. He also objected to a piece of dance clothing she had worn to a dance recital during her freshman year, saying that he did not know why she would want to parade on stage in such a "demeaning" costume. She did not participate in dance during her sophomore and junior years, as it took too much time from her music, but also because Yatauro did not want her to do it. In her senior year she did participate in the dance team, as freed from Yatauro's control, such participation was now "okay." Mrs. K. recalled this matter of the dance costume, which she said consisted of a black sheer nylon over a body suit, which revealed E.'s figure. She remembered that it was hanging in the car and when Yatauro saw it and questioned what it was, he responded to its identification in an "incredulous tone of voice." While E. had danced since the 4th grade, Mrs. K. did not believe that she ever danced after this incident. However, she acknowledged that after the allegations against Yatauro came out, E. said that she probably would have stopped dancing school anyway.

The respondent agreed that there was an episode of "modeling" of a bathing suit at the K. home at Mrs. K.'s suggestion. It did not "set off any bells" for him as to anything being inappropriate about his relationship with E. He did mention issues regarding clothing he believed to be "provocative" to E. and to others as well, such as open blouses, short skirts and the like, items which E. at time wore. He told her to "dress like a young lady."

Mr. Yatauro acknowledged that he provided a number of gifts for Ms. K. over the course of time. He gave her reeds for her clarinet and a leather ligature, a "gig bag," which is a bag with a strap in which a clarinet case is placed. He also purchased a dolphin necklace for her (apparently of minimal value). He admitted that he left this necklace on her bed one day when he came to the house to give it to her while near the school. He found no one at home so he entered her bedroom via the unlocked door from the outside directly into her room, and then left. He related that he was shopping for his son, saw the cheap necklace, knew E. liked dolphins and bought it for her. E. testified that he also made her bed at the same time as he left the necklace and a note for her, but he denied making the bed. E. related that her mother was mad about the door being left unlocked, and Mrs. K. testified that she had given no one authorization to enter the home without specific permission.

Respondent also purchased and installed a car stereo which E. wanted. Apparently he was to pay for only a part of the cost of the stereo, which he recalled as about $300, with his share at around $80-$100, but the K.'s never paid their share. In addition, he lent her a gold chain and crucifix which they both agree he originally gave her "for good luck," at a performance, but which she did not return to him and wore during her sophomore year. He explained that he gave others "good luck pieces," "innocuous little pieces," such as an arranging pencil to K.H. "This wasn't extraordinary for me." However, he acknowledged that the chain and crucifix were not "innocuous" items, and he told the prosecutor's investigators that "it's a nice cross, it's a nice chain." He also told them that at some point he had asked for the return of the chain and cross, but E. had said that she was "not ready to give it back and it was no big deal to me." (See P-26)

Mr. Yatauro acknowledged that he also accompanied E. to a tattoo artist where she received an ankle tattoo. When she spoke of an interest in getting a tattoo, he recommended an artist he had used previously. They went to pick out a design, she choose one with adult and baby dolphins. He then returned with her for the actual tattooing. Ms. E. had told her mother that she was thinking of getting a tattoo, her mother did not approve but "was understanding." The tattoo cost $110 and Yatauro paid cash for it. Yatauro testified that his involvement in this tattoo matter was "not normal" and "bad judgment," but insisted that if he takes an interest in a student he tries to make sure that he or she "does good" rather than that he or she be harmed or end up in a bad environment.

During her sophomore year, rumors circulated in school that E. and Yatauro were involved in a sexual relationship. She was aware of the rumors and spoke to a guidance counselor at the school, Mr. Jack Owen, and asked for an opportunity to confront the rumors. She then met with one or more persons in Owen's presence to try to do just that and she denied any sexual relationship. Yatauro also testified that he was aware of rumors about the nature of his relationship with E. which arose during her sophomore year, and he claimed that he also spoke to Mr. Owen about the rumors, and denied them to several others.

During the summer between her sophomore and junior years, E. and Yatauro each testified that they traveled together to Batsto Village, an historic site in Burlington County. He pegged the occasion as being at the end of a summer program at the High School. He recalled that E. wanted to take him out as a sign of appreciation and that Mrs. K. knew all about the trip beforehand. They left for Batsto in the late morning. They then went to either a lunch or dinner (their testimony on this point was at some possible variance) at the Grapevine Restaurant, where she had previously eaten and recommended that they eat that day. At some point they changed clothes from T-shirts to polo shirts. While she testified that they changed in his truck at the same time, he denied that she was anywhere near the truck when he changed inside. She may have been in the bathroom at the time. She paid for the meal and he left the tip. He recalled that they returned to her house at about 4:30 P.M. and her mother was "definitely" home when they arrived.

Ms. K. testified that during the course of their relationship, Mr. Yatauro sent or gave her numerous cards, notes and letters. These were sometimes left in her clarinet bag, which was often left in his office. (Students and teachers both testified that it was not unusual for better instruments to be left in his office.) A series of these were produced in evidence. Each of the series to be discussed now was produced by the Board, and were introduced as exhibits in the criminal trial by the Prosecutor. As now explained, their meaning is often the subject of dispute between E. and Yatauro. Indeed, the question of whether they were in fact given to her, or as he claimed, were in some cases actually items which he had given to his girlfriend and later wife Cheryl at one time or another during his relationship with Cheryl and then were apparently taken from storage in the basement of his house by E., was hotly in contest. Some of the exhibits have been repaired, as they were torn up under circumstances to be described later in this opinion. In addition to the testimony of E. and Yatauro regarding these items, the Board presented the testimony of an expert in forensic document examination, Ann Doherty, to support its determination that Yatauro was the author of the disputed documents. Ms. Doherty examined the several documents, as well as known exemplars of Mr. Yatauro's writings, using equipment and principles of document examination which are described in the record. Her comments as to the several disputed items are recorded here along with E. and Yatauro's remarks.

Ms. K. claimed that during her sophomore and junior years she and Yatauro occasionally exchanged cards, including at Christmas, on birthdays and Valentine's Day. He often signed them and put a musical note with his signature.

As an example of a non-disputed item, both witnesses agree that he gave her the Christmas card, P-2, which bears the pre-printed words, "Thinking of a Special Friend at Christmas." The card bears no name to personalize to whom it was given, has a handwritten "95" in the upper right hand corner of the inside, and is signed, "Love Always Brian." He testified that he exchanged cards and gifts with some students. As for the "Love Always," this was simply the way he signed and he meant nothing by it. He believed that considering the nature of the relationship which he had with E. she would have understood that the words meant "nothing." He did not consider that she might take the words literally, in fact, that thought never occurred to him.

A disputed item is P-5, a "Happy Birthday Sweetheart" card. She claimed that he gave it to her for her birthday during her sophomore year, February 1995. The card contains his handwriting, and she thinks that he gave it to her at her home. It bears a handwritten closing of "My love and Friendship Always," and is signed "Brian," with a musical note following the name. It bears no handwritten name of the person to whom the card was given and no notation as to the date, year, etc. Yatauro did not dispute that he had a connection to this card, but said that he believed it to be the type of card he would have given to his wife. He related that his wife kept old cards in the living room or in a bag in a chest of drawers in the basement, where there is carpet and a play area with toys for his son and where he also has musical equipment. While he often put his wife's name inside of cards which he gave her, he did not always do so, as indeed he did not in an anniversary card "For My Wife," part of a series of cards and letters, P-53, which he produced for the handwriting analysis and which he acknowledges he did write.

Another card in dispute is P-6, (designated by Ms. Doherty as her document Q-4), which has the pre-printed wording on the front, "I miss your Smile . . . I miss your Laugh . . . I miss our quiet times . . . I miss our WILD times . . . I miss the friendship you and I share!" In the inside pre-printed material, the card says in part that the sender wants "to clear up any misconceptions right here, right now . . . I think of you as way more than a friend!" (Emphasis in the original.) This is signed "Love Forever -N- Always Brian." In the upper left corner is the first name of Ms. K. Ms. K. insisted that the handwriting was Yatauro's and that he had given it to her, probably during her junior year. He, however, claimed that while the handwriting at the bottom of the card was his, he did not believe that the word "E-----" was in his handwriting and he could not recall giving this card to anyone. Again, if he had given it to his wife he did not always put her name in the card.

Ms. Doherty testified that the "E" in Ms. K.'s first name in the corner of the document was compared to the same letter found on several of the items she had reviewed and which were acknowledged to have been written by Mr. Yatauro, items designated in her report as K-9(P-10), K-8 (P-8), K-12C (back of P-16), K-13A (P-47, pg. 2) and the letter "E" was "significantly similar in shape." The dot over the letter "i" and the letter shapes in the known rendition of the name were "very similar." In addition, she subjected the document to infrared illumination and filters. The ink in the name in the corner responded the identical way as the ink in the acknowledged writing below, making it "highly probable" that the same pen was used to write both the name and the words below. If different pens had been used the infrared would have disappeared. The use of the filters she used in the process can usually differentiate the tonality of ink. As for the letter forms, she noted that the "E" in the questioned name and the known version thereof each had a "squashed" letter "E," with no middle loop and in each case the letter was "tilted off its feet." The second "i" in each version of the name had a dot which was a "curl" or a "strike off." The first "i" in the questioned version and in K-12C(back of P-16) were similar. The letter "l" in each name was shorter than the "E" next to it. The spacing between the letters in the full first name in the exhibit and the known K-12C each are "pretty even." In addition, the "d" in the known writing K-13A (P-47, pg. 2) in the word "Edison" and in her Q-1 (P-1) and Q-3, the red bordered note, part of P-4, are similar in concavity and structure of the oval to "d"; contained in known samples such as K-4 (the folded index card, part of P-4), and K-3 (P-3). She characterized her opinion as to the identity of the writer of the name on Q-4 (P-6) as originally "strong," but at the hearing, after having examined other items, specifically those in P-53 which were provided to her after she issued her original report, she raised her assessment to that of a "reasonable scientific certainty" that the author of the name was also the author of the words at the bottom of the card, which are admittedly written by Mr. Yatauro.

P-7 is another "Friendship" card, which E. claimed Yatauro gave to her, probably in her sophomore year. Yatauro agreed that the handwriting was his, but the card would have been one which he would have given to his wife.

P-17 is a handmade Valentine's card within a handmade black envelope. It is "For a Friend," and bears the letters "E.K.," as the salutation within. It is unsigned and has several words underlined. The cover has a small musical staff with a music note thereon, the inside has a small printed music sheet of the music and lyrics of Rodgers and Hart's "My Funny Valentine," with a handwritten music and lyrics inside. This handwritten item bears the date February 14th, 1995. According to E., Yatauro made this card and envelope, was "really proud of himself," and gave it to her for Valentine's Day 1996. He told her that he made it just for her. She recalled that they had dinner but can't recall where. Yatauro denied ever making the card or writing any of it and claimed to have first seen it at trial. As part of P-53, he did produce a handmade card given to Cheryl dated 9/27/85, which is also a cut and past production. He had done this a few times for her, but not for anyone else that he can recall. He probably underlined the words.

P-14b was allegedly given to E. at the end of sophomore year. It is a pre-printed card, "I Am Committed to Loving You Forever," with no handwritten portions at all, no name identifying to whom it was sent, no signature, no date. She related that he and she had been discussing his signing her yearbook, but he said "no mistakes," and instead of signing in the book, he gave her the card, blank envelope and a note, handwritten on a piece of white unlined paper. This speaks of thanking the recipient for a "great year and much, much more." It also relates "I look forward to school because of you. You have given me faith and spirit. To my soul mate thank you again. This is my yearbook. With love and friendship forever and always." Mr. Yatauro acknowledged that he wrote the paper, but thinks that he wrote it at the end of a school year to another student, K.H. He never saw or sent the card. At the criminal trial he could not recall to whom he had written this, but has since recalled the recipient. He characterized the use of the term "soul mate" as "bad wording," by which he really meant a "friend," but acknowledged that he did not "know whether I can really give you a definition."

In addition to the cards, the two witnesses addressed a series of notes. P-3, two notes containing definitions of the words, "desire" and "friend," and each bearing the word "one" written in a stylized manner in the upper right hand corner, were, according to E., notes which Yatauro left for her. He claimed instead that while he did indeed write them, the note paper, which is pre-printed and contains the words "3 reasons for being a teacher June July August," came form a note pad of an English teacher, Mary Esch, to whom he wrote these definitions when he served as a study hall monitor. She had been a chaperone on one of his band trips. She had graduated from graduate school and could not go on another trip. They joked a lot and he wrote this "to bust on her a bit." He left it for her on her desk. There was no number which had any special significance between he and Esch, and he cannot recall what the significance of the word "one" in the corner meant. He did not give these to K. She was in his study hall on occasion when she was out of gym class. Ms. Esch was not produced as a witness at the hearing.

A series of four notes make up P-4. He denied that he wrote anything on the pink note paper, which contains a series of statements, such as "Seek to find new ways" and "An incredible uniqueness" and bears a drawing of a weight bench and barbell with the word "oneness" above the barbell. He identified the other notes as containing lyrics he would occasionally compose and jot down, sometimes with titles, as he believed the words "for you and me!!" on the folded index card were. This card, which he claimed he never gave to anybody, has a pasted-on, pre-printed drawing of two musical notes and the word "hooray" on the outside, with what appears to be a handwritten note inside, apparently written to someone other than Yatauro. In part it refers to "our growth," says that "my happiness is shared with only you," and that "you look tremendous today, my gorgeous woman. Mmmmm . . . I want to give you my ____. You know, I also want to make you ____ . You love it, admit it." Yatauro testified that none of these notes were ever given to E. He agreed that he did not normally put these types of "stickums" on notes which he wrote to himself. As for the "You know . . ." wording, he claimed that it was "not necessarily sexual," but could be an emotional love lyric and sex could be a part of such emotion. These and similar jottings were kept in folders and in a briefcase in his office.

Addressing P-9 consists of another series of small notes. As to two of these, the parties are in agreement that Yatauro wrote the two separate notes which say "How was everything?" She claimed that these referred to sexual encounters and were given to her the day after such events. He could not recall the specifics as to why these were written, except that they had nothing to do with sex with E. He wrote such notes from time to time and left them for her and others.

Mr. Yatauro claimed not to be the author of the note with the words "4-U with a special one for your heart" with a musical note and on the other side "You are the ultimate WOMAN," "I need you," and "No wall" in a circle with a line through it, and a drawing of a wall. However, he did sometimes use the numeral "4" instead of the word "four," as in his letter to Cheryl in 1980, again part of P-53 where he signs "4-ever." Referring to this note, E. testified that she had a tendency to put up walls to people and not let people in, and his comment was in reference to this, saying that "we can do something about the wall, can't we?" Ms. Doherty, who designated this document as Q-7, compared the word "the" in the phrase "You are the ultimate woman" to the word "the" in P-13, her K-Q-5, which he acknowledges having authored, and the word "the" in known sample K-11 (P-15). She explained that the questioned and the known versions of the word each were "significantly similar." The "h" tends to lack a hump and the "t" tends to swing up to form the top of the "h." The formation of the word "the" is "very unique, very unusual," indeed, not similar to anything she had seen before. She pointed to the hook at the top of the "h" and the "very prominent" wide "e." She concluded that these must have been produced by the same writer, as they were too difficult to manufacture unless the person attempting to do so had illumination and took great care.

Finally, Yatauro acknowledged that the red bordered note was in his handwriting, but E. did not recall the reason why he gave it to her and he did not acknowledge that he had given it to her

Two longer notes on composition paper were also identified by E. as having been given to her by Yatauro. P-13 was purportedly left for her after an argument in her junior year. He denied this, acknowledging that he wrote the note, but claiming that he had "no doubt" that it was written to Cheryl while he was in college some fifteen or so years ago. At the time he was apparently frustrated over their relationship. Cheryl saved the note in the basement. The note itself has no date or any obvious identifier as to its age or the circumstances of its writing, but it does contain the statement, "Look at me. Period 8 & 9/10-nothing but focus of you" and it urges the recipient to "Read me know (sic) please!! then respond with your eyes and soul." (Underlines in the original). Mr. Yatauro agreed that the day at Lacey was referred to by "periods" and his schedule confirmed that he was assigned to "lunch" for 8th period and had an "instrumental band" class for periods 9 and 10, during which time he would occasionally work with E. He was not sure whether she ate during period 8.

Similarly, he denied that he had ever given the note, P-15, containing two questions and comments thereon, to E. While she testified that he had given it to her during her sophomore year and had written it in her English notebook, he claimed to have written it while watching a Depak Chopra video and reading a self help book. He put the note in his desk or briefcase.

Another document is P-1. The significant issue relating to this relates to the box drawn at the top, with the words "I Love A---," which Ms. E. testified that she drew and wrote. Next to this, on a page of what appear to be notes from U.S. History class, are the following statements written in blue pen.

> Why would you write this?
> Do you really? Did you?
> Then what am I?

Ms. E. claims Yatauro wrote these phrases and she found them inside her notebook. Yatauro is not certain that he did write them, but acknowledged that the handwriting certainly looks to be his, yet he is not certain why he would have written this.

In summary of her review of these documents, Ms. Doherty opined that the same writer had authored all of the questioned documents, with the exception of material on the pink note paper, her Q-2, which is part of P-4, about which her examination was inconclusive. The documents, which displayed characteristics consistent with those of a left-handed writer, also display unique, identifiable features which establish that they were prepared by the writer of the known samples of Mr. Yatauro's handwriting. Based upon her analysis of documents received in May and then supplemented by additional known samples of Yatauro's handwriting provided on June 22, 1998, she concluded that there was a reasonable scientific certainty of his authorship of the "I miss your Smile" card, P-6 (Q-4) and a strong scientific certainty as to Q-8 (part of P-9).

P-8 is a paper bag upon which Mr. Yatauro admittedly wrote out a schedule for Ms. K. According to her, this was written toward the end of her sophomore year, perhaps in the summer.

At the time, Yatauro was "very mad about A. (her boyfriend)" and the time spent talking to A. on the telephone. The schedule covers Monday through Sunday, 5:30 A.M. till 9:30/10:00 P.M. on weekdays and weekends from midmorning wake up until between 6:00-9:00 or 10:00 P.M. The detailed comments state that there is "no phone" on Sunday, Monday, Tuesday and Thursday evenings, that she is to "say goodnight" at 9:30 Monday through Thursday, that "day can end early we simply say goodnight earlier," that on Saturday at 10:45 A.M. she will "receive visit." (She understood that this referred to his visiting her at her home, he testified it had to do with her visiting her grandfather who was at that time in a nursing or a senior citizen's home), and that she would "eat w/me" on Wednesday at 5:15 P.M. It also sets times for practice and homework, reflection on the day, "R & R," and following "wake-up." E. explained that the four days of "No phone," each underlined in red, reflected Yatauro's upset over her spending time talking to A. or her other friends. In fact, Yatauro discouraged her from talking to her high school friends, as there was "no need to," as they don't know what is going on," and he wanted "no mistakes." She explained the reference to saying goodnight as referring to her nightly phone calls with Yatauro. When he gave her the schedule, which he prepared without first discussing it with her, she looked at it, but not being so regimented a person it was not something that she could follow. He referred to it as "his schedule for us." In summary, she claimed that he made it clear that she was to practice, have time for him and her school work.

Mr. Yatauro testified that he indeed prepared the schedule, but only after she had complained constantly about her lack of time to practice and deal with her school work. She had a number of upcoming issues to deal with, college preparations, All State Band, Governor's School. He told her of his experience with such a schedule in college and then prepared this for her. He denied that the "good night" references were associated with him, they just signified an end to her evenings. She may have implemented the schedule for a time, and they did talk "occasionally" in the evening, but not specifically to say goodnight. When they spoke at night, his wife was home and she said nothing about the calls. He received other calls from other students in the evening as well. It was not unusual to have contact with section leaders and others in the band regarding band-related matters, such as schedules, rehearsals, photocopy needs, etc. In fact, Ms. K. was a section leader and very helpful with these chores. As for the schedule, and generally in respect to E.'s allegations, he denied that she had to "check in with him." He discussed the preparation of a schedule for her with Ralph Bigger, a guidance counselor at Lacey High, but not with Mr. Kaskow, the Director of Student Personnel Services. He acknowledged that he did try to get her to focus upon music more than she was, and that he saw the relationship she had developed with A.L. as interfering with her intensity toward music. She was "acting like a teenage girl," on the phone with friends and socializing. He also tried to keep her on track academically in order to further her intentions toward a career in music.

In addition to these exhibits, the Board also introduced a telephone calling card, which he acknowledged giving to E. at the All-State Band weekend when she needed to call home. He "forgot she had it," and since he knew the number by heart he did not use the card itself and thus did not realize that she still had it. He does not believe that she ever called him from a vacation, such as the vacation she took to Captiva Island with the family of another student.

A further series of exhibits produced by the Board consisted of pieces of clothing, including underwear, sweatshirts, shirts and belts. According to E., some of this clothing was left by Yatauro at her house on one occasion or another, such as after he did yard work and changed his clothes, leaving clothing for the K.'s to wash, or items that he gave to her or she may have borrowed from his office, as indeed a number of other witnesses testified students did with some frequency to wear during practice in cooler weather. One brown belt was identified by E. has having been used at her home on one occasion to tie her hands during sex.

Ms. E. described the circumstances which ultimately led to her revealing her relationship with Mr. Yatauro to school authorities and to her mother. During her junior year Mr. Yatauro placed more demands upon her regarding her music. However, she was becoming "disinterested" in the music, and did not enjoy the solo practicing for the Regional competition. Her mother testified that she noted that in the junior year her daughter, who had previously referred to him as "Mr. Yatauro," now often called him "Yatauro," but Mrs. K. did not attach any significance to this change at the time. (In fact, according to the testimony of former band member Ms. J.M., the "whole band" called him "Yatauro.") E. also did not go to the band room as often, did not want her to tell him she was at home when he called, did not want to go to practice, and even eventually said that she did not want to be in the band. She also noted that at times in the fall her daughter's dialogue in phone calls with Yatauro became "more heated," and once when a call ended E. came out of the kitchen and threw a door so hard that it left a hole in the plaster. The girl confirmed to her that Yatauro was on the phone, but did not say what the discussion had been about. She was angry and then "very pensive."

Mrs. K. also recalled an incident which she believed happened during 11th grade, perhaps in January or February 1996, but maybe in the earlier part of junior year in 1995, when E. was home from school sick. At 8:30 A.M. Mrs. K., who had stayed at home that morning due to her daughter's illness, came into the living room where E. was on the couch. She discovered Mr. Yatauro sitting next to the couch, Indian style, his knees touching the couch, as E. slept. He said that the front door was unlocked. Mrs. K. went to the bathroom to prepare to leave for work and when she emerged ten to fifteen minutes later, Yatauro was still there. She told him that she was leaving and that it was time to go. They both left the house.

According to both E. and Mrs. K., a series of incidents and circumstances occurred in early 1996, especially in February and March of that year, which set the stage for the revelation. E. explained one episode, when in late February or early March she went out for lunch at Chinese King on a weekend with A. and her mother. She and A. were in the parking lot of the restaurant when she saw Yatauro's truck. She knew that she had not called him. He was supposed to drop a tape off at her house. She told him to put in it the screen door. She walked over to the truck and found that "he was so angry with me." He said that he "didn't know where you are. . . Now you're here with A." (She explained that he had indicated to her in the past that he did not approve of either A. or the time which she spent with him. It took away from her music, and from her time and attention to Yatauro. He got very angry if he saw she and A. together in the hallway.) She called Yatauro about twenty minutes later. Yatauro testified that he recalled no such incident.

On what E. identified as another occasion shortly before this incident, E. was about to go out to a restaurant with A. and her mother, and when the phone rang she was reluctant to answer it. She did, and Yatauro then asked her "20 questions." She told him that she was going out with A. to eat and he said "figures" and was, in her words, "very angry." She could not recall if she called him from the restaurant that day, however, both her mother and A. testified that on what apparently was this occasion in "March or so, 1996" (the mother's recollection) they arrived at a Chinese restaurant in the Shop Rite Plaza in Lanoka Harbor about 5:00-6:00 P.M. and after they entered, E. went outside to the pay phone for a long time. A. went out to tell her that the dinner was being served, came back in and reported that E. was on the telephone and that she knew dinner had arrived. E. re-entered the restaurant a few minutes later and appeared upset. Again, Yatauro did not recall either telephone call. She might have hung up on him at some time because he was mad about something, but he could not recall the specifics.

A.L. testified that he also recalled the incident. He believed that E. was supposed to have been practicing for an audition, and she did for part of the time that he was at the house that day. As he recalled it, prior to their going to the restaurant he was present when she had an argument on the telephone with Yatauro, during which she was screaming and yelling and then just hung up. She got a call back from Yatauro, the argument started again and she told Yatauro that she was going out to eat. A. was close enough to hear a man's voice on the other end of the call, arguing with her, but he could not hear the discussion itself. She was yelling at Yatauro, bursting out things as she talked "really fast." They then went to the Chinese restaurant, and after she went outside and made a phone call, she came back in to the dinner, appearing "sketchy and off edge." They finished dinner and when they went outside they saw Yatauro driving around the parking lot. E. was "shocked," and could not understand why he was there looking for her. A. was also shocked at this.

E. and her mother described another incident, which Mrs. K. believed to have occurred within the first quarter of 1996, likely in February or March, within a month of the restaurant incident. Mrs. K. related that she had gone to the high school to "taxi" her daughter after a group meeting of the band. She witnessed her daughter come into the band room crying hysterically and exhibiting a flushed appearance. A teacher calmed her down. Thereafter, they got into her car. Mr. Yatauro came out of the school, E. left the car and went over to speak with him. Mrs. K. saw them speaking and then Yatauro pushed her daughter backwards perhaps a step or two, by placing his left hand on her shoulder. At this point the conversation seemed to calm, E. returned to the car and they left. Mrs. K. remarked that Yatauro appeared to be "very angry." She asked her daughter what it was all about, but E. replied that, "It's okay, Ma, don't worry about it, its okay." The witness did not know what the argument had been about.

Mrs. K. acknowledged that she did not mention this shove to either DYFS or school authorities. (It is not clear whether the question of counsel was posed in regard to her making an immediate report of the incident to either authority, or that she failed to mention it to these agencies after the allegations of improper conduct with her daughter were later revealed.)

E. testified that she and Yatauro did have an argument that evening and each was mad. When she exited the car to approach him, he shoved her backwards with two hands. Yatauro testified that he never pushed or shoved E. and did not recall the "fight" at all.

E. gave another example of Yatauro's reaction to her relationship with A. For Christmas, 1995, A. gave her a gold and diamond charm with a heart. She wore it, usually tucked in her top. One evening she and Yatauro were in the back practice room and he saw it and "ripped it out of the shirt," saying "what's this shit." She told him that A. had given it to her, and he told her to take it off. She declined and left. Yatauro told the Prosecutor's investigators that he might have asked her if the heart was yellow gold and if the diamonds were real, which he agreed might have been construed by somebody as "making fun of" it. However, he "didn't believe" that he ever made any comment to E. that she should be wearing his chain rather than A.'s gift to her.

E. related that in addition to these incidents, during her junior year Yatauro had begun to leave disturbing messages on her answering machine. Whereas he had previously left messages such as "Hey, just called, love you," towards the end of the relationship the messages included such as "Where the hell are you, I need to talk to you" and "I don't know where the fuck you could be." He was "very urgent about the whole thing." Mr. Yatauro testified that he might have cursed to her at some time, but he did not recall leaving curses on her answering machine.

The witness related that she had been best friends with Ms. J.M. since 2nd grade. She remained closer to her during sophomore year while growing apart from other friends, with whom relationships slipped during the time she was so involved with Yatauro. Sometime during January or February of her junior year, as E. attempted to draw back from the relationship with Yatauro, J.M. reported to her that she had received a call from him asking Ms. M. where E. was. Indeed, Ms. M. later on told E. that she was uncomfortable going to lunch at the band room, as Yatauro was regularly asking her why E. was not talking to Yatauro, seeking to find out what was wrong with E. E. had advised J. that she was no longer so involved with the respondent, that she was tired, could no longer deal with the situation, could not deal with having to check in. She "wanted to be left alone." In her testimony J.M. confirmed receiving a call, but thought it was a week and a half or two weeks before his arrest in March. She also described her encounter with the respondent at the band room, where he took her out on to the stage and questioned her as to what was wrong with E., asking why E. was acting the way she was, why did she seem so distant. J. denied any knowledge of the answers to his questions. He seemed concerned and worried. The next day he again demanded answers, insisting on knowing why E. "was doing this." By the third day, J. did not go to the band room so that she could avoid Yatauro's interrogation.

E. recalled that she had first met with Ms. Roberta "Bobbie" Hogg during E.'s sophomore year. Ms. Hogg is self-employed and has worked under contract with the Lacey District since 1993. She serves as the Substance Awareness or Student Assistance Coordinator. As such she relates with the school's CORE Team, and deals with referrals regarding substance abuse. According to Ms. Hogg's recollections and her notes, they first interacted in November 1995. At that time E. came in as a self-referral and asked Hogg for information regarding "a friend" who might need assistance because of too much drinking. On an "educated guess," Hogg asked her if there was any alcoholism in her family, and E. revealed that the "friend" was her mother, who she described as an alcoholic.

E.'s next contact with Hogg occurred in March 1996. According to E., she had reached a point where she no longer could cope with having to take care of her mother while also dealing with her own problems related to her situation with Yatauro. She decided that she would leave her home and stay at her boyfriend's house in an attempt to get her mother to seek assistance. She told her mother that she was not coming home until this occurred. E. then asked Mr. Yatauro for Bobbie Hogg's phone number and he provided her with Hogg's unlisted home number. E. called Hogg on March 7, 1996, which happened to be a snow day. Hogg testified that E. related that they had to talk about her mother, that she was tired of taking care of her and wanted her to get help. They talked about ways to handle the situation, including AA. In the course of the discussion, E. said that she was tired of not being in control of her life and of others controlling it.

According to Hogg, on March 12 E. came to her office and explained to her that a man had been showing up at her employment, that she had to report in to this man where she was and who she was with. Hogg queried her as to whether the man was a boyfriend and E. said he was not. Hogg told her that this appeared to be an abusive situation and should not be occurring. She then referred E. to Ms. Josephine Schreiber. Schreiber holds a master's degree in Social Work from Temple University. She was employed by the Division of Youth and Family Services for 12 1/2 years before she returned to school for her graduate work. As a part thereof, she served a social work internship at Lacey Township High three days a week, working under supervision as a school social worker. Ms. Schreiber was conducting a woman's group at school, dealing with abusive relationships. During her meeting with E. she gathered background information and received "non-specific" information about a problem with an "older man," reported to be about 25 years old. This man "lived out of the area." He required that E. advise him of where she was, who she was with, he followed her and called her. If she was not at home to receive his calls, he interrogated her as to where she had been. E. reported that she was in a current relationship with a peer (actually A.L.) and that she was disturbed about this other situation.

Schreiber felt that the information she had gathered revealed a bright, very upset young woman who came from a "fairly dysfunctional" family and seemed to be easy prey for an older man. The girl, who seemed "prematurely adult," did not know her father and reported having an alcoholic mother for whom it appeared she was acting in an almost parental role. She provided E. with a handout on how to identify a relationship as either fair or abusive and discussed issues of power, control and what love is and is not. E. "jumped on the idea that she would be active about this." However Schreiber was concerned about the possibility of danger to E. if E. acted precipitously to try to cut off the relationship. E. testified that they discussed her getting out of the relationship, but E. told Schreiber that that would not be easy to do.

At around the same period in late February/early March as E. first began to speak to Ms. Hogg and Ms. Schreiber, she revealed to J.M. and to A.L. the nature of her relationship with Yatauro, including its sexual aspect. They each testified to the meetings in which she separately told them about this. She "swore" them both to secrecy. A.L. testified that he had to tell someone, so he told his parents. He related that E. was very concerned to simply end the relationship herself and not tell anyone else, as she was quite anxious that no one else know of its sexual nature and she did not want it to be known of in school. She also was scared of Yatauro and did not know what he would do.

J.M. related that when she told her, E. was "hysterical, very upset." She talked of how she might deal with ending the relationship. Eventually, J. told E. that she knew someone who had told her that this same kind of thing had happened before at a previous school Yatauro taught at, information which "infuriated" E. (There is no evidence whatsoever in this record as to any such incident, it is reported here only as information purportedly given to E. prior to the time she revealed her claims about Yatauro to school authorities). After these discussions and the talk with Schreiber, E. called Yatauro one evening from A.'s home, in the presence of J. and A. E. told him that she wanted to be left alone, that she knew what he had done. She told him to leave her alone. J., and A., each of whom could hear the call, which she said lasted 20-30 minutes, confirmed the contents reported by E. Yatauro insisted that he wanted to come speak with E., but she told him that she did not want to see him and she hung up. She was very angry, upset and concerned about Yatauro attempting to see her. J. recalled that they decided to go to E.'s home and get her some clothing and have her stay at J.'s house for the night. J. drove her to E.'s house, however, by the time they arrived they saw Yatauro's truck outside her house. They returned to J.'s, called Mrs. K., telling her to pretend that E. was not on the phone. Mrs. K. told E. that Yatauro was in the house. Later on they again drove by the K. home and saw that he had left. E. obtained the clothes and returned to J.'s. J. also stated that E. never raised any issues about her mental health, about self-mutilation, split personality, leaving home or living at A.'s house.

Mrs. K. testified that she recalled an evening in March when E. and J.M. came from A.'s house and explained that E. was going to spend the evening with J. at J.'s home. They had come home to get clothes. They seemed insistent about going to J.'s. The girls looked out of the house and saw Yatauro's truck go by and Mrs. K. looked and also observed the truck and Yatauro.

Mrs. K. also testified that sometime in March Mr. Yatauro arrived unannounced at her workplace at between 7:20 and 7:30 A.M. She was very surprised to see him. She inquired as to why he was there and he told her that he had to go out and get something for school, which seemed an odd reason to her for his appearing at her work place in Whiting, a 15 minute ride from the school. He told her that he wanted to see if there was anything wrong with E., who would not come to the band room and would not talk to him. She saw that he was upset, and while quiet and not shouting, he was in "obvious disturbance." She told him that E. was "a kid" and to give her "some space."

Ms. Hogg testified that E. called her and advised her about the phone call to the older man and told her that he had screamed and yelled. Hogg was concerned, the situation did not sound safe. She told E. to be at her office first thing the next morning. At 8:10 A.M. that next morning, Mr. Yatauro appeared at her office before E. arrived. He seemed very concerned about E. He reported that E. would not talk to him and he wanted to know what was bothering the girl. Hogg told him that everything would be okay, that she was aware of the situation and was making sure that E. received the help she needed. To Hogg, the main focus of Yatauro's remarks seemed to be on E.'s refusal to talk to him and his belief that E. was avoiding him. He "was kind of agitated," "questioning and questioning her." As she sought to assure him that all would be all right, he kept asking over and over.

When E. and A. arrived at Hogg's office they reported the previous evening's phone call and A. advised that he was aware of the situation. E. admitted that the relationship was sexual. Mr. Kaskow came in and Ms. Hogg related this information.

William Kaskow testified that he first became aware of E.K. on March 12, 1996, when Ms. Hogg reported to him that E. had disclosed that a "controlling relationship" with an older man was causing her great concern. He asked Hogg to work with Ms. Schreiber. Hogg reported on March 13 that the man was "significantly older." Kaskow was concerned to know whether the man was in the local community or in the school. He asked Hogg to arrange for a meeting with E., and he did meet with E. and A.L. and Hogg. He spoke with the two students separately and together. They said that the man was from "up north," and not in the school. E. reported that the relationship was totally disrupting her life and that she was out of control. She was not able to have a relationship with her boyfriend or girlfriends. Kaskow asked for the man's name, but they would not provide it. He asked if the man was a teacher and the students denied that he was, as well that he lived in town. Kaskow and Hogg were very concerned about the situation. They wanted E. and A. to speak to Mrs. E. and he asked Hogg to verify if they had. E. told them that she was 16 years old when the sexual activity occurred. She reported that the person was a friend of the family whom her mother knew, but that she did not know of the sexual relationship. E. did not want the sexual nature of the relationship disclosed to her mother. They agreed that E. and A. would tell her mother about the relationship and that she did not want to see or hear from the man.

On March 21, Ms. Hogg had a similar encounter with Yatauro to that of March 13. He wanted to know why E. would not share with him. He kept asking, almost as if Hogg could not come up with the right answer. Hogg described the man as acting as if Hogg "could not satisfy him." He was excitable, agitated, acting inappropriately, and to Hogg, it seemed as if something was really wrong. She "had a bad feeling." She had never seen a teacher react that way. On March 22, Mr. Kaskow was at the fax machine when Brian Yatauro came up and remarked "Gee Bill I never see you but once a week, now I see you more often than I ever had." Kaskow had in fact had no contact with Yatauro. Yatauro asked him what was going on, why all the turmoil about E. Kaskow told the respondent not to worry, that she was fine and in good hands. (Yatauro testified that he did not remember any such meeting with Kaskow.) When Ms. Hogg went to Mr. Kaskow and reported her concern about her encounter with Yatauro and her feeling that she knew who the older man was, they contacted Jody Schreiber and asked her if a name had been mentioned for the man. According to Schreiber's notes, she had met with E. on March 15, at which time E. reported that she had told the man, now identified as "Brian," that she did not want to see him anymore. She did not identify Brian as a teacher. E. reported that she was having difficulty with A. She also told Schreiber that in a fit of anger she had torn up cards received from Brian. Schreiber asked if the remains were still in the house and told E. to get them and hold on to them, (which E. eventually did.)

After a fairly positive meeting with E. on March 18, on March 19 E. told Schreiber that she was feeling low and vulnerable. Brian was trying to apologize and reinitiate the relationship. E. seemed to be weakening. Schreiber encouraged her to remain strong, and she reported to Hogg and Kaskow, who supervised Hogg, that E. needed extra support. In her discussions with E., it was apparent to Schreiber that the girl was "preoccupied," but the possibility of suicide, which was discussed only in connection with a superficial attempt in 8th grade reported by E. to Schreiber, was not a concern for Schreiber at that time.

When she was contacted by Hogg and Kaskow, Schreiber told them that the only name provided for the man was "Brian." Both Kaskow and Hogg testified that upon learning that Brian was purportedly the man's name, they called Mrs. K. and asked her who the person who had been controlling her daughter was. She was reluctant to name the person, and Kaskow offered that he would give her a name and she could indicate if it was correct. He said "Brian Yatauro" and she confirmed that he was the person. At this point Kaskow contacted DYFS. A meeting was then arranged for later in the day at the K. home. In this session, E., who had earlier that day exploded in anger at A.L. and J.M. when she mistakenly thought that they had revealed her secret, finally acknowledged the sexual relationship to her mother. Kaskow testified that E. was "very distraught" regarding her mother's well-being, and at the K. home, the student was very reluctant to give up the name of the man, and claimed that only the degree of control he had exercised over her had caused her to finally reveal it. He reported that to her, the sex was not the issue, it was the fact that he would not allow her to be a 17-year-old. She could not go to people's houses, he would call her and scream at her. (In fact, Ms. K. testified that at the time of these events she still loved Yatauro, still cared for him and just wanted to be left alone. She was also concerned about the problems that would occur if the matter was revealed, both for her, her mother, her friends such as A. L. and J.M. and for this well-liked teacher.) E. reported that sex, which she said occurred at least once a week, had taken place in both the K. home and at Y.'s home. When Mrs. K cried, and according to Mrs. K. said "why didn't I see it," her daughter said to Hogg and Kaskow, "See, I told you so."

Mrs. K. testified that she did recognize that the relationship between her daughter and Mr. Yatauro had developed in the sophomore year beyond that of student and teacher and that in her view he was at least for a time a "father figure" to the girl, although she added that later on in sophomore year he seemed to her to be more a "friend" than a "father." She believed that he had a similar mentoring relationship with other students, as far as their music was concerned. In fact, as both E. and Mrs. K. agreed, at one time E. had mentioned that she wanted Yatauro to walk her down the aisle at her wedding. Mrs. K. never raised a concern with her daughter about the relationship prior to Kaskow and Hogg's visit, although she also noted that when he came to the house at Christmas time in 1995 and exchanged gifts with E., she had "some question in my mind" and addressed it with her daughter, who assured her that she needn't worry, there was nothing wrong.

Mr. Kaskow testified that when he informed Mr. Yatauro of the allegations made against him, Yatauro asked him what he should do, but neither denied the allegations or asked the nature of them.

In this hearing, Yatauro discussed the events surrounding March 1996 as he knew them. He explained that during E.'s sophomore year, a student, Mr. Ja. M., told him that in 8th grade, E. had told him that she had attempted suicide. Yatauro knew that the girl had a problem, with her need to reach out and get attention. He had spoken to E. about what Ja. M. had told him and she said that it was true. In March of E.'s junior year, another student, Ms. A.S., advised Yatauro that E. had come to her and spoken of thoughts of suicide in middle school and had also referred to a television show about split personality. Yatauro had noted a great change in E.'s behavior.

On a Friday in March, Yatauro spoke to her about her not coming to the band room, her not practicing or coming in for scheduled lunch time lessons. He asked her about her discussion regarding suicide with A.S. She claimed that it was only a reference about what had happened previously, and not any immediate issue. She also claimed to be losing interest in music as a college pursuit or in auditioning for the Governor's School. She mentioned that her mother's drinking was causing her a lot of problems. She said that she was not going home because of the drinking and would not until her mother got some help, but would instead stay at A.L.'s house. Yatauro told her to get in touch with Ms. Hogg. He had no contact with E. over that weekend, and on Monday he went to see Hogg. She explained that E. had called her over the weekend and also spoke of another circumstance, which, when he asked Hogg, she described as an abusive relationship. He had no idea who this referred to.

About a week later he asked Hogg how things were going with E., Hogg replied that she was in counseling and everything was okay. Yatauro denied that his demeanor towards Hogg was "frantic." He was confused regarding where E. was living and whether everything was all right, so he tried to contact a friend of E.'s to confirm this. He in fact may have talked to a few of her friends, including A.L., but denied that he was "questioning" them. He tried to contact E.'s mother, and went to her workplace. He asked her if everything at home was all right, she told him that everything was "working out" and that E. was staying at A.L.'s. He acknowledged that he had concern for E.

The respondent related that he did receive a "bizarre" phone call from E., who was "hysterical." She told him to leave her alone, that he was not to talk to or bother her and that she did not want him to come back to Lacey High. She claimed that she had heard he had been fired from another job (which he testified was not true). He went to E.'s house after receiving the call and spoke to E.'s mother, who seemed confused by his revelation of the call. He went home and thereafter had no contact with E. He acknowledged that despite the concern he felt that she might be suicidal after his talk with her in late February or early March he did not report this concern to anyone at school.

Much evidence was presented as to the after effects of the revelations made by E. and the resulting suspension imposed upon and criminal charges lodged against Mr. Yatauro. All relevant witnesses agreed that it seriously split the band into factions, some supporting Yatauro, some friends supporting E. Her group of friends from the time prior to the suspension were themselves divided, and as a result, some no longer were close, or even friendly, to her. Among those who testified and who she classed as having been friends, even close friends, until these charges emerged were Ja. M. and R.D.

Ms. E. denied that she ever discussed any thoughts of suicide or mental health concerns with any students during the months preceding the revelation of her allegations against Mr. Yatauro. She did make a joking reference about multiple personality disorder to Ms. Hogg. She had at one time told Ja. M. about her suicide attempt in 8th grade and also about her self-mutilation, showing him scars which she testified reflected her "channeling in harmful ways" her emotional response to events at home, including her mother's drinking and grandmother's death in 9th grade. These conversations mostly occurred while they were in middle school. Mr. Ja. M. testified however that in March 1993, he received a telephone call from E., who seemed "distraught" and spoke about taking her own life. She said "I don't know why I go on. . . Why do I continue." She repeated these comments to him the next day in school. He also reported that during high school prior to that March 1996 call, she had at times told him that she was "doing it again," showing him self-mutilation marks on her arms, purportedly made with a scissors. (At the hearing, which of course took place long after these events, Ms. E. exhibited her hands and wrists, palms up, and no scars or marks were observed.)

A.L. testified that he dated E. from the summer of 1995 for about 1 1/2 years, including at the time of the criminal trial. They are still in contact as of the hearing at OAL. He was aware that she had outside contacts with Mr. Yatauro, that these included after school practices and that she had gone to concerts with him and others. He observed them hug and kiss after a concert, both inside and outside her house. One time in junior year (he could not be more specific) Yatauro stopped over at E.'s house while A. was visiting with her. He remained in the bedroom, watching television, while she spoke with Yatauro in the living room. The conversation lasted between 15 and 25 minutes and was loud, although he did not hear what they were saying. After Yatauro went outside, she was upset, but when he asked what was the matter, she just "blew it off," saying that he was "not to worry about it, it's nothing." However, he noted that her eyes were tearing. On another day, Yatauro was leaving and as A. was coming out of the front door of E.'s home he saw them near Yatauro's truck and she hugged Yatauro and kissed him on the cheek. He also observed a deeper hug with their arms around each other. A. was jealous, they talked about it, but once again E. "blew him off." He acknowledged that in speaking to the police he did not describe to them that he had observed an "embrace," between the two, using the word "hug" instead, as to him he did not think of an embrace as implying anything deeper than a hug.

Joseph Cox, a custodian for the Lacey Board of Education for twelve years, testified to seeing E. K. come out of the music room at around 8:00 P.M. one evening about three months or so before Yatauro was suspended. She was running out of the room, crying that she could not take it anymore. Yatauro came out and said, E., don't be that way, don't be that way," and he chased her. Mr. Cox had never witnessed such a scene before. He had seen persons alone in the band room after school hours and "lots of nights" observed E. and Yatauro there. He never notified anyone of the scene he witnessed, but would have had he seen anything "improper."

Ms. J.M. related that prior to their junior year, based upon her observations and what E. told her, she understood that E. and Yatauro had a teacher-student relationship with each other, but she was "obviously closer to him than most students were." As a section leader in the band, Yatauro relied upon her, but even more than most of the other section leaders. On several occasions she saw his truck at her home. She knew that E. had received gifts, clothing and sweatshirts from him and wore his necklace.

Another former student, Ms. T.M., testified that after first having been told about the initial kiss during freshman year, she again discussed E.'s relationship with Yatauro with E. during sophomore year. When she asked E. what was going on with Yatauro, E. replied that "It's crazy, I go with him all the time" and related that she hugged and kissed him all the time," but did not say where this occurred. In 11th grade, she was driving with E. and asked what was going on and E. told her that the situation was "driving me crazy, (Yatauro was) always in my business, can't deal with it." She described E. as "angry, fed up and frustrated." T. testified that in both the sophomore and junior years, when her relationship with E. sort of drifted in and out and they did not talk every day, it was she, not E., who brought up the issue of Yatauro and E.'s contacts with him, not E. E. never revealed a sexual aspect of her relationship with Yatauro to T. until after his arrest. Indeed, T. confirmed that in sophomore year, E. responded to rumors by denying to a number of people that any sex was occurring. T. did not testify in the criminal trial and did not advise the police of what she knew.

Ms. M.M., who described herself as a very close friend of E.'s from 7th through 12th grade, testified that she observed Yatauro's truck outside E.'s home on various occasions, sometimes late in the evening and even past midnight.

Ms. M. described Yatauro as "very angry" at the rumors of some kind of intimate relationship which surfaced during sophomore year. He pulled several students aside and told them that nothing was going on, that he was a "father figure" to E., that it was "just a friendship." She questioned E., who also referred to Yatauro as a "father figure," and urged M. not to think otherwise.

Ms. M. related that she and her family took a summer vacation during 1994 on Captiva Island off of the coast of Florida. E. accompanied her family on the trip. E. was continually making telephone calls. She asked E. who she was calling and E. claimed that she was homesick and was calling her mother. One morning at 7:00 A.M. she saw E. at the pay phone by the pool. M.'s parents brought her inside and asked why she was using the pay phone. She cried, claimed that she was homesick and had not wanted to wake the others. After Mr. Yatauro's suspension from school, M. asked E. if she had really been calling her mother, and E. told her that she had actually been calling Yatauro, who had told E. that if she did not call him at certain times "he would not be there for me when I got back."

During 1996, M. was aware that E. was not getting along with Yatauro as well as she previously had. E. did not go in to school early for breakfast, and she did not see Yatauro's vehicle at E.'s home. E. told her that she did not talk to him or have much to do with him anymore. At some point she observed them in a discussion in his office in the band room and while she could hear raised voices, but not words, she believed from their expressions and body language that they were arguing. Yatauro had the same look as when he was mad. (She described Yatauro as an excellent band director who had a temper, and his students knew it. When he got mad "they feared him," yet students, including Ms. M. looked up to him). In the beginning of March, she asked Yatauro for a pass to go to Ms. Hogg's office. She knew that E. was talking to Hogg about her problems. Yatauro questioned her about what was going on, in a manner which M. characterized as "kind of demanding."

Karen Marie D'Avino started at Lacey Township High School in September 1995 as the choral director, also in charge of the color guard and the after school choir. She became the band director in March 1996 when Mr. Yatauro was suspended. Ms. D'Avino, who came to Lacey from Bergen County Technical School where she taught for one year and graduated from Montclair State in 1994, will not become tenured in her position at Lacey until September 1, 1999, and would lose her positions if Yatauro returns.

Ms. D'Avino described receiving at least two telephone calls from E. on different mornings, advising her that Mr. Yatauro would not be in school that day and advising her of his directions for the day. On each occasion, E. explained that she had just spoken to Yatauro.

Ms. D'Avino also reported her observation of an incident when she was teaching a music theory class in the band room one morning. She saw Yatauro and E. at the copy machine, hugging. He was against the machine, they were "front to front," arms around each other in what she saw as an "affectionate" manner. She never saw him do this with any other student. While she thought the hug was "inappropriate," she did not report it. On another occasion, Yatauro and E. were having lunch together in the second practice room. This in itself was not all that unusual and she recalled that M.M. and/or J. M. sometimes would be there also. This practice room was not as visible to those in the band room as was Yatauro's office with its large glass window. The second practice room was so located that one would have to be at the narrow window to see into the practice room. The door was usually kept closed during these lunches, and one day when D'Avino knocked on the door to give Yatauro a telephone message, he told her to "take a message." She felt that Yatauro was very annoyed that she had interrupted his lunch and thereafter she decided to take messages rather that to go to him and tell him that he had a phone call. However, she did not know the basis for his perceived annoyance.

After Yatauro's suspension, D'Avino was aware that E. was withdrawn, "obviously humiliated," and displaying "guilt." Other students "gave her a hard time," and she was treated like the "black sheep of the family." These others saw it as her fault that their leader had been ripped from the band.

The witness testified that she was aware that students, who were upset and confused after Yatauro's suspension and their concern that he had been removed without any answers or closure, were advised that they were not to have contact with him until the trial was over. Nevertheless, she became aware of a meeting purportedly attended by a number of band members and Yatauro on October 24, 1996, held at a student's home. This was conveyed to her by Mrs. Sa., who had several children who had gone through the band program. Thereafter, Ms. D'Avino heard comments made in her presence by students that the criminal trial would be taking place shortly and that thereafter Yatauro would return by Christmas and "things would be back to normal," and then would be done "as he wanted them done," so "they better be ready for it." She also described how, after Yatauro's suspension, it was apparent that sides had been taken and problems occurred at rehearsals, when comments were made that he would "do things differently." In contrast to the testimony of Mr. Ja. M., who described the supporters of Mr. Yatauro as "quiet about it," and the supporters of E. as openly speaking negatively about him (saying things such as, he would "fry for this," he would, "go to jail"), Ms. D'Avino observed that the Yatauro supporters were vocal, while those who supported E. constituted a small, quiet group. Speaking of a specific incident, she referred to a football game held at Pt. Pleasant Boro in the fall of 1996, shortly after the alleged meeting of October 24. At this game 4 to 5 members of the band (which had about 100 members) placed the words "OBI WAN KENOBI[3] on their foreheads and down their arms in black eyeliner or similar medium. When Ms. D'Avino observed this display, she pulled the offenders out of the stands and told them that she did not appreciate this conduct, which she had known nothing about. The students denied that the incident had to do with anything, they simply "believed in Obi-Wan Kenobi." No one referred to Yatauro during this incident. However, Ja. M. testified that the name was a direct reference to Yatauro, although he contended that the use of the name as a code for Yatauro was strictly derived by the students and not discussed at the meeting at A.K.'s house which Yatauro attended in November 1996.

The Board presented testimony which addressed the standards of conduct for teachers and teachers functioning in a band director's role and the policies of the Board which touched upon matters relevant to the charges. William Kaskow, Director of Student Personnel Services for the District (who, it should be noted, never evaluated Mr. Yatauro), identified the Job Description for the teacher position held by Mr. Yatauro (P-60). There is no special Job Description applicable to music teachers or band directors. Additional Board policies and faculty manual sections were identified. Shown the schedule P-8 prepared for E.K. by the respondent, he explained that teachers are expected to provide advice and counsel to students on school related matters, but the primary responsibility for dealing with counseling aspects lie with the guidance counselors and Student Personnel Services, as well as the Child Study Team. Additional professionals such as psychiatrists and psychologists are available as necessary. If a student presents a counseling problem, a staff member should go to the counselors or refer the student to them, including for such matters as peer relationship issues and difficulty in completing assignments.

As for the schedule, if Yatauro came to him and said that he gave such a schedule to a pupil, he would see such conduct as problematic, for the Job Description does not in any way imply that a teacher should develop a schedule such as that represented by P-8, and the schedule represents an effort which lies outside the scope of a classroom teacher. It is not a "school house schedule," as it involves hours and activities far removed from the school day. While the Board

[3] The reference is to the wise old Jedi knight Obi-Wan Kenobi, the character portrayed by Sir Alec Guiness in the Star Wars movies. Before his death [and even thereafter] Kenobi provides mentorship for the young warrior Luke Skywalker.

Policy 5131(a), P-63, provides that the Board holds teachers "responsible for the proper conduct and control of pupils while legally under the supervision and jurisdiction of the school," P-8 represents a far more extensive attempt at control of the student's life and activities. It also is contra-indicated by the Lacey Township High School Goals for students listed in P-71, as it is far too controlling and restrictive and not designed to cultivate a student's mature self-development.

Mr. Kaskow also testified that the loan of the chain and crucifix for up to one year was beyond appropriate limits of the teacher/student relationship. The giving of personal gifts by teachers to students implies a relationship which is not proper, and the District's philosophy as presented in P-70 looks to foster "desirable relationships . . . between students, faculty, administrators, ..." The loan of the chain does not enhance any of the approved goals of the Lacey Township schools, as set forth in P-61. In addition, such conduct does not enhance the performance of a teacher's responsibilities in the job description.

The queries written on P-1, such as "Then what am I," if written by Yatauro, violate the well-being of the student and therefore violate the Concept and Roles in Student Personnel, P-62, which requires that the Board "provide(s) for the physical and mental well-being of pupils." A teacher stands in a position of trust and authority.

Paragraph H of Section XIV of the Board's Manual entitled "Community Relations," admonishes teachers that they "do not 'be a friend' to students but avoid ruthlessness, over criticizing, and vindictiveness. Be consistent, fair, and firm."

Reviewing P-6, the "I Miss Your Smile," etc. card, Kaskow opined that such a card sent to a female student by a teacher does not fit within conduct lying within the job description of a teacher. It is not an act of "mentorship," but instead is an act of friendship. The same can be said of such items as P-2,3,4,5,7,9,13,14a & b,15,16, and 17 if given to a female student. These items do not fulfill any of the 12 areas of responsibility in the Teacher's Job Description and neither do they advance any of the Board's policies.

The faculty manual is given out each year on the first day of class and is returned for updating at the end of each school year. It has been in effect for the High School since September 1981.

Kaskow noted that Mr. Yatauro never referred E.K. to the Crisis Intervention Team, which properly deals with students identified as in need, students exhibiting signs of possible suicidal behavior, etc. Nor did he refer her to the CORE Team, on which Yatauro sat, which deals with students with alcohol and drug abuse issues.

Band is considered to be a co-curricular activity. In the witness' opinion, any pressure placed upon a student to participate at a higher level than the student wanted to participate is conduct not consistent with the goals of the Board or the responsibilities of teachers. Students are entitled to their leisure time and are to be respected as people.

Addressing the "father figure" issue, Mr. Kaskow explained that whether the student or the teacher believes that they are involved in a "father figure" relationship, such perceptions do not advance the Board's goals. If there is a mis-perception of such a relationship, counseling should be sought to straighten out the understandings.

Several former students were called as witnesses by Mr. Yatauro. Mr. M.W., who graduated high school in June 1995, knew Yatauro at Lacey from his 9th through his 11th grades, then left to attend Toms River North in his senior year. He now attends Rutgers University where he is pursuing a B.A. degree in jazz performance piano at the Mason Gross School. He knew E.K. in her sophomore and junior years and briefly in her senior year. He described himself as her good friend in 10th and 11th grade. They spoke frequently about family situations, their lives, music. Both he and E. had pretty hard family lives, as his father had also left when M. was very young. During his 11th grade year, he visited E. at her home, and they would hang out in the living room and the bedroom, as well as in the kitchen. One time he ate with E. and Yatauro at her home. Yatauro occasionally offered to provide M. with money on band trips as M.'s family was not well off. Yatauro also taught him privately at school without pay.

The witness testified that he spoke "every day" with E. during 10th and 11th grade and they discussed Yatauro in regard to the band, music and his approach to teaching. She discussed her relationships with other boys in detail, but she never mentioned sex with Yatauro, indeed never mentioned anything other than a student/teacher, mentor/student relationship with him. He was aware that she was practicing less about the time that she started to date A.L.

After he moved to Toms River, Mr. W. maintained a mentor/student relationship with Yatauro, showing the respondent ensemble pieces which M. was arranging for the Toms River North Concert band. Once he visited Yatauro at the respondent's home regarding a large ensemble piece. At some point while he was a student at Toms River North, Yatauro drove him to see the Lacey Band perform, but he is not sure when this occurred.

The witness recalled that Yatauro used the "catch phrase," "No mistakes" in his musical theory class as a short hand for being very thorough, treating the music with respect, honestly and sincerely, in such a way as to avoid making mistakes. Yatauro advocated that a student should do everything seriously in order to get all correct, there should not be any mistakes if one kept focus. He used the phrase in similar circumstances with other students.

Yatauro purchased a book for M., a collection of songs which he estimated cost perhaps $20. He also gave him compact discs for his birthday. In addition, when he wanted to attend a jazz clinic which Yatauro was giving in the summer of W.'s sophomore year and the school would not assist his attendance, Yatauro allowed him to attend the five week workshop without charge.

Mr. W. never saw Yatauro kiss E., but saw them embrace right after the band won a competition, when "all were embracing." He is sure that Yatauro hugged him as well. M. described Yatauro as a "really special person in his life," who allowed him to feel that he could do what he wanted to do. He provided a sincerity that W. had not found in his family or otherwise. He provided support which had not been there before.

Ms. P.T., a 1995 Lacey graduate who was a band member and served as drum major during her last two years, is now a college student and auditor for an accounting firm. She testified that when E. joined the band she made three phone calls to Ms. T. and spoke about her personal and family life, indicating that things were not good at home. At the time T. did not really know E. T. felt that E. was emotionally distracted and she spoke to Mr. Yatauro out of concern for why E. was calling her. Although she acknowledged that E. never mentioned the word, she was worried that E. was insinuating suicide, and she had never dealt with anything similar before. However, she is not certain that she mentioned her concern about suicide to Yatauro. Yatauro told her that both he and the guidance counselors were aware of E.'s family situation, and opined that perhaps E. simply needed someone to talk to and P. seemed approachable.

Ms. T. felt that the respondent was caring about his students and she discussed nutrition, diet and career plans with him. He gave her inspirational messages on the computer and on practice sheets and told her to put them under her pillow before competitions. He never discussed birth control with her or sexual issues regarding her boyfriend, did not go with her outside of school or come to her home. He never gave her gifts. He spoke to her of the concept of time management, but never discusses "time, distance, love," with her.

Ms. T. observed Yatauro hug "everyone," including E., after competitions or on their birthdays. Like others, she remarked that E. always seemed to be trying to get his attention. Many times he would roll his eyes at E.'s actions and try to walk in another direction. E. was a "touchy" person, always putting her arm on people to get attention, more so with Yatauro than others. He seemed as if he was trying to get away when she did this to him and acted as if he was not approving of her conduct. One time during T.'s senior year, Yatauro yelled at E. in class when she interrupted him and she stomped her feet and rolled her eyes like a child being told off by her parent.

B.S., another 1995 graduate, band member and football player, who described himself as a friend of Yatauro's during his school days and "absolutely" now, testified that the respondent was a perfectionist and that "no mistakes," was his motto, often said and even made into a placard by someone and placed on the wall. He "absolutely" discussed his personal life with Yatauro, as did others. The teacher was "very honest, straight up and down," and "asked the best from everybody." This was especially true in S.'s senior year when he was not close to his guidance counselor and saw the respondent as his "counselor." He received a "beautiful" letter of recommendation from Yatauro.

B.S. confirmed that clothing was often "borrowed" from Yatauro's office and not always returned, as he personally still had Yatauro's windbreaker. S. visited Yatauro at his home to sample the cooking which Yatauro bragged about and to watch sports events. He worked out with the respondent, who was into martial arts. He and several other students also worked on repairs to the teachers condominium in the summer. He once received a key chain from Yatauro a few days after they and others attended a New Jersey Devils game. When he lost his wallet on the Virginia Beach trip Yatauro gave him somewhere between $60-$100 and he has not paid him back. He drove Yatauro when the teacher's truck broke down.

On one occasion during his senior year, Mr. S. went to Yatauro's office and found E. there. Yatauro was talking about how sore he was from his karate lesson and she took it upon herself to rub his trapezoids. Yatauro gave S. a look and S. "felt uncomfortable," as he "could tell" Yatauro did as well. He told her that the massaging hurt and she eventually stopped.

On another occasion, she entered the office while Yatauro and B.S. were talking. She seemed annoyed that they were conversing. When she interrupted their conversation, Yatauro told her that she could not just do so and asked her to excuse herself. She became upset "real fast."

Mr. S. was not aware of jealousy on the part of other band members to the time which E. spent with Yatauro. Indeed, he did not recall any reaction to it. He did not recall seeing them together more often than he saw Yatauro with other students.

The witness related that he had been accustomed to wearing very baggy jeans to school. Mr. Yatauro once screamed at him, "S.," and told him to "pick up your jeans, tuck in your shirt and put a belt on," all of which he did. S. and his girlfriend, K.H., went shopping in the Ocean County Mall with Yatauro while in high school.

R.D., now a junior in college and another 1995 Lacey graduate, band member and football player, testified that in his senior year Yatauro sat him down and counseled him when D. started to slack off and miss school, causing his grades to suffer. Yatauro advised him to get things together, avoid alcohol and put himself in a position to get into college. Other teachers did not do this, they would just report him when he got into trouble. Yatauro called D. when D. was out of school or missed a practice to see if everything was okay. The only other school personnel who did this were attendance officers. Yatauro was different than the school's guidance staff, "more like a friend than a normal teacher." The guidance personnel were always too busy if D. needed to see them, or if available only wanted to talk about grades. Yatauro was a one-on-one type person, who D., and everyone else, discussed their personal problems with. Yatauro also lent him money which he has since paid back. D. was another of the Virginia Beach "ear piercers" and had no problems with his parents about that event. He shopped with Yatauro around Christmas time and birthdays as well.

The witness acknowledged that he viewed the respondent as "one of the guys," and has described his relationship with Yatauro as "unique." He has previously said that he "loves" Yatauro, who was his "mentor." However, Mr. D. denied that he ever said to the parents of M.M. that he would do anything, including lie, for Yatauro.

D.'s father did not live with him. Perhaps two or three times since he graduated, Yatauro has come to his house to see how he is doing. While D.S. was in high school, Yatauro was at D.'s home perhaps six or seven times.

Mr. D. lived 1 1/2 blocks from E. He recalled that he would sometimes see Yatauro's truck outside her house and would beep the horn and Yatauro would come out to see him. He once saw the respondent working in the yard. It is possible that he and another student, M.C., may have gone into the house once.

K.B., a 1994 Lacey graduate and band member now a college student, testified that she was a section leader for the trumpet section and it was not unusual for Yatauro to call her at home to see if a letter or other project she had to perform had been accomplished. He also called if she missed school to see if anything was wrong. In addition, he called even when she was not sick or absent, "just to talk" for five to ten minutes perhaps every other week, just to see how she was doing. These calls were continued during the summer, either he or she initiating them. He advised her as a friend and mentor on things to do and not do in life, on college decisions, etc. He never spoke with her about birth control or sexual issues involving her boyfriends. She was alone with him at times in the band room after school, and once he came to her house alone to borrow her car, which had a trailer hitch, to pull the band's trailer. She was never uncomfortable with him. He never entered her home when her parents were not present and was never in her bedroom. He did give her a friendly hug at times. She also baby-sat for him. When she graduated he gave her a card and $100, as she also received $50 from a teacher who was a family friend and neighbor. Her parents were aware of his gift and expressed no concern about it. The card was signed, "With love, respect and thanks, Brian Yatauro." At graduation, he told her that he "missed her" and "loved her." He kissed her on the cheek then and has since then when she came back to school to visit.

Ms. B. recalled that she observed E. to be very "protective" of Yatauro, always in his office, always wanting his attention. Once, when he was absent and B. had to go into his office to get some paperwork, E. did not want to let her into the office.

Ms. S.G. is now a student at Trenton State, Mr. Yatauro's alma mater. She graduated from Lacey in June 1998 and was a sophomore when Yatauro was arrested. Her father died in December of her sophomore year. She had a hard time dealing with this and tended to shut out people. Yatauro helped her get through the situation, get herself back with her family and friends. He spoke to her of his own father's illness. He inspired her and she used music to keep herself occupied. She acknowledged that she "owes Yatauro a great deal" and he is the person she most admires. She appeared before the Board of Education to support his reinstatement in September, 1997 and was visibly upset at that time. At the time she argued that the tenure charges had nothing to do with his ability as a teacher. She saw him at his home about five times during her junior and senior years, always with her mother. These visits lasted about 1 1/2 hours each and they discussed music, her personal playing, exercises, how she was doing without her father, college matters, etc. They also spoke on the telephone more often then they visited, she calling him.

In addition to the students, two parents testified. Gail S. testified that her older son A. was in the band under Mr. Yatauro's direction. The boy had a "familial" relationship with Mr. Yatauro, whose child called him "uncle A." She recalled that A. went shopping with Yatauro on a number of occasions. He really liked the teacher a lot and tried to do things with him. She and her husband were aware of this. Her son ate at Yatauro's home when he went shopping with him and on one occasion he and several other students slept at Yatauro's home when they returned late one evening from shopping around Christmas time. Her son and others had their ears pierced while on a band trip to Virginia Beach. Yatauro accompanied the boys to the piercing and she was not concerned about this, as Yatauro knew that her son had been given permission to do so, having been present one evening after a band meeting when she and her son had talked about the idea. She believed that her son paid for the piercing. She never questioned Yatauro about the fact that he and another teacher and band assistant director, Mr. Schuerman, accompanied a group of students to a hockey game at the Meadowlands Arena and to dinner. This was "common knowledge among band parents." She also explained that on perhaps five or six occasions Yatauro called her son on the telephone and left messages such as "Where are you," which may have had to do with his having to be at a band practice. Yatauro once dropped the boy off at home, but she was not there at the time.

The witness described E., whom she first met during middle school when E. and Mrs. S.'s younger son were in the Middle School jazz band, as "very forward," toward Mr. Schuerman, even in 8th grade. According to the witness, E. was "all over" Schuerman, always running up to him. Once she actually began to change in a room. Schuerman left, but her son stayed. Mrs. S. told E. that she "shouldn't be doing this." The girl "always had to be the center of attention." At the band camp in the summer before 9th grade, she observed E. "still very close to Schuerman, run up to him, give him a hug and cling on his arm." E. referred to him as "Schurmie." At a band parents meeting in October or November of E.'s freshman year, she offered to drive E., home, as she was the only child there, but at first the girl said that she would wait for Schuerman to do so. However, S. insisted and did drive E. home. She agreed that the presence of students at these meetings was not uncommon. On another occasion in the Spring, when Schuerman brought his wife to a school concert, S. observed E. to be "visually agitated."

Mrs. S. testified that by E.'s sophomore year and on into her junior year, E.'s attention had shifted to Mr. Yatauro. She was constantly in his office when S. had occasion to visit, and when she wanted to speak to Yatauro, she had to ask E. to leave the office. At this, E. would get "huffy." She again was "always the center of attention." When rumors circulated about Yatauro and E. during her older son's senior year in the Spring of 1995, she called Yatauro, told him what she had heard and he answered all of her questions. He told her that E. was a very talented musician and that he was being her "mentor" (Mrs. S.'s word), giving her private lessons, and he explained that his car had been parked at the K. home because he had been driven to competitions by Mrs. K. S. saw nothing to lead her to any conclusion that there was anything untoward going on. She did recall that after A. graduated in June 1995, she had occasion to speak to Yatauro in the next school year and E. was not around the band room, did not answer the phone there as before, and there seemed to be a lessening of E.'s involvement in band activities.

Mrs. S. recalled that Mr. Yatauro gave $40 toward her older son's scholarship from the Music Department. He also gave the boy a hat on one occasion.

According to Mrs. S., Yatauro felt that if one were going to be in music, one had to give it one's all. In his freshman year, when A. was playing soccer and also participating in the band, Yatauro was once very upset about A. wanting to leave a football game to socialize with the soccer group. She thought that Yatauro was "very arrogant," and had a "lot of nerve." He asked A. if he planned to stay in the band and wanted him to give the band his full attention. She felt that this was an issue between she and her son. She felt as a parent that Yatauro was taking a lot of her son's time, given the demanding practice schedules. Two or three months later she told Yatauro how she felt about him and he laughed.

Mrs. S. acknowledged that the changing of blouses with bras remaining in place underneath was common practice within the band in high school, occurring even on the bus, in front of teachers and mixed groups of students.

Rosa C., mother of another band member K., a 1995 graduate who served as drum major, testified that Mr. Yatauro wanted to have a perfect band program. Mrs. C. testified that when her daughter wanted to play sports she had to deal also with the very demanding band schedule.

Yatauro once put up two fingers when her daughter ran in nervously from a basketball game and he said, "What am I #2." He wanted the band to be #1. He said "Music is #1." K. eventually quit sports to concentrate on the band. C. acknowledged that K. had a "special rapport" with Yatauro.

Yatauro would call K. at home about band matters and these would result in calls passing down the band's phone chain, and also called Mrs. C. for band related matters. If K. was out of school for a couple of days he would call to see if everything was okay and to find out if the girl was sick. When she had a car accident he called as well. She could not recall that other teachers did this. However, he did not come over to the house when K. was sick or at the time when she was out of school due to the accident.

Yatauro gave K. a baseball cap with her initials on it and a "B.U.M." shirt at Christmas. She did not recall that other teachers gave her daughter gifts. She had no concern about these gifts. He also gave the girl birthday and Christmas cards, none of which referred to K. as "his soulmate."

Mrs. C. also observed that E. had a tendency to try to always be near Mr. Yatauro. If E. had been her daughter, she would have "seemed too close for comfort." She spoke to him about this. She remembered that when her daughter was a senior she and others complained about how much of Yatauro's attention E. took from them. When she took it upon herself to talk to Yatauro about this, he explained that he was acting as a "parent" and friend to E., that "kids come here, need attention." At one point she had been told that his vehicle was seen a number of times outside E.'s home. He claimed that E. was having emotional problems at home and that he had told Mr. Adamski what he was trying to do for E. She told him that E. was "always there" (that is with him) and he said that he'd consider her advice. He told her that as far as E. was concerned, "he had it under control," or at least words to that effect.

Mrs. C. once baby-sat for Yatauro's child with her daughter at her sister's house when Yatauro called her at work to explain that he had the boy at school in the band room where he was working on band camp music. She acknowledged that she had "strong feelings" for Yatauro, liked him very much and had had a "close relationship" with him, although they now talk "once in a blue moon."

Francis Schureman, a music teacher in the Lacey District employed by the Board for 18 years and a teacher for 25 years, testified that he served as assistant band director at the High School from 1986 until June 30, 1997, and also directed the jazz band at the Middle School. He has socialized with Mr. Yatauro outside of school as well as serving as his assistant. Mr. Schureman related that he has conducted private lessons for students both at the school and in his own home and has not sought permission to do so from the Board, although he believed that the administration was aware of his activities. He observed E.K. and Mr. Yatauro together on occasion. They seemed friendly, but in his view Yatauro was "basically friendly with anybody."

The witness acknowledged that he was never at a student's house very early in the morning except for a 3:00 A.M. breakfast at the H. home following a competition which was attended by many persons, including Mr. Yatauro.

Mr. Schureman confirmed that while in Middle School E. was always in the band room, hanging around, standing next to him. She was a "hugger," who would initiate hugs. He would respond to these by giving a half hug back with his arm next to her.[4] As a rule, Schureman would not give a student, in fact not even his own child a "full hug," as it is "not his style." He recalled that on one occasion K. wore clothing of his, a sweater which he had at a rehearsal and later realized K. had been wearing without asking for his permission. She returned it to him when he asked for it.

Schuerman observed that E. clung to Yatauro more than she had to him. One time he wanted to talk to Yatauro when she was with him and when Yatauro asked her to leave she gave them a look which, "if looks could kill they'd (he and Yatauro) both be dead."

[4] Another witness, Thomas R. Dorso, a school social worker employed for 21 years, also experienced hugs from E. when he knew her in Middle School and in 9th grade. Others also hugged him, although he characterized this conduct as "not normal interaction." He would respond by acknowledging the embrace (his word) and creating distance with his hands while appearing "almost frigid."

Mr. Schureman characterized a situation where a teacher was in a student's bedroom watching television at night with the door closed as "not normal." He was not aware how much time Yatauro and E. spent together outside of school. When he gave lessons to students, 99.9% of the time someone else was at home with him and he was paid for the lessons. Schureman did not socialize with students outside of school, never dropped off presents at student's homes when no one was present, doesn't recall that he bought students gifts, did not give students Valentine cards or go shopping with them, did not discuss birth control with students or ask if they were sexually active, never left clothing at a student's home and has not had dinner alone with a student at a restaurant. He has not kissed students on the lips or left messages on a student's answering machine. He would not do these things which are in many cases inappropriate. He has given graduation cards. He has delivered an instrument to a female student's home, possibly because she was sick, however, he did not come unannounced.

Schureman's daughter was a band member in Yatauro' band for three years. Nothing he saw or heard of ever caused him to be concerned about Yatauro' conduct.

The respondent's expert witness on the role and conduct of a band director and high school music teacher was Frank Lewis Hughes, a 24-year employee of the Toms River Board of Education and Band Director for Toms River High School North. Mr. Hughes holds a Masters Degree in Instrumental Conducting, a New Jersey Supervisor's Certificate and is the only member from New Jersey of the National Band Director's Hall of Fame. He has lectured at professional clinics for the State Music Director's Association. He knows Mr. Yatauro as a band director in the area, has seen his interaction with bands and musicians at festivals, competitions and a football game and in the South Jersey Band on a total of about three or four times, and presented factual testimony on these subjects. He described the respondent as "dynamic, very strong, very forceful, very demanding." Students seemed to respect and like him a great deal and the interplay between Yatauro and band members seemed "easy."

Mr. Hughes related his interactions with M.W., the former member of the Lacey Township High band who had transferred in his senior year to Hughes' school. He had W. at his home often for jam sessions and drove W. in Hughes' car to auditions for such social events as attendance at a concert which they were each attending. Yatauro, Hughes and W and two others played in a summer group at W.'s request to assist a summer music program.

The witness explained that in general the relationship of a band director to his or her students is not the same as that of a regular classroom teacher with that teacher's students. This is because the band director tends to have the student in the band for three or four years, whereas the typical subject matter teacher may often have the pupil in class for one year. The music teacher/band director has the opportunity to watch the student grow and develop musically and as a person. In addition, as music is a very emotional subject, the instructor seeks to reach the student in order to draw these emotions out from the student. He has observed the level of emotional involvement displayed by Mr. Yatauro.

Mr. Hughes reviewed a number of issues regarding interactions with students and the propriety of such activities. The music teachers and band directors discuss issues of conduct at conventions, band camps, etc. Students frequently will discuss personal issues, such as legal problems, family issues, pregnancy, deaths, etc., with directors. Hughes has on occasion given money to students for lunch, or so that they could pay restitution, and at times these have been "gifts." Others did this as well and it is not an uncommon practice. He has also driven students to school events. He has been consulted on car stereos, tuxedos and has taken students shopping, helped pick out such items and aided in the installation of equipment. He has given gifts of jewelry as an award for making the All-State Band, such as a pin with an instrument on it. He has given students T-shirts, mugs as a graduation present, and has purchased mouthpieces and reeds for students who could not afford them. He has always been reimbursed in these instances. Again, this is common practice amongst band directors. He has called students at home who have missed important rehearsals of performances or if they have been out of school for an extensive period of time. He has visited students' homes for private lessons, or for social occasions such as graduation parties, weddings of siblings, and has golfed with students. He has showered in a student's home (a friend of his daughter) after a golf outing prior to a nighttime rehearsal. He has been allowed to enter a student's home prior to a lesson when no one was yet at home and the door was left open for him and a message left to "make yourself at home." He has even fallen asleep while watching television after having been invited to stay for dinner at the home of a student who was his last private lesson of the day.

It is not unusual for a band director to seek to nurture and guide, challenge and prod his better students to try to get them to make the best use of their talents. Hughes has himself mentored a lot of students, by which he means that he gave the student extra time and attention to help the student achieve a particular project or goal and provide direction and advice regarding music.

On cross-examination the witness acknowledged that he had signed a statement in which he expressed his "utmost faith that Brian is innocent of the allegations made by Ms. K." He agreed that it would be "poor judgment" for a teacher to watch television with a student behind closed doors, an activity that has nothing to do with teaching. He would not kiss, embrace or tell a student that he loved her. This is neither appropriate nor good judgment. He has given a lucky silver dollar to a musician prior to an audition, but received it back within a couple of days. He has been in a student's bedroom to give a lesson with the door closed if the parents of the child were at home. If the parents were not home the door would generally be open. It would be inappropriate to ask students about sexual activity with their boyfriends. He has not gone out to dinner with students alone. He has left messages for students inquiring where they had been or what they had been doing, but not who they were with or whether or where they were with a boyfriend. It is inappropriate to use the word "fuck" in the presence of students. It would be inappropriate to shop with a student for her bikini. If the teacher thought that a student might be suicidal, the proper course would be to contact the parents and to seek professional assistance, following the Board of Education's established procedures. Expressions to a student such as "Happy Birthday Sweetheart," or the "I Miss Your Smile" etc., are inappropriate. He does not believe that it is appropriate to give Valentine cards to any student. As for the creation of a schedule for a student, the propriety of such an action would depend upon the context. He has prepared a schedule for a student who needed assistance in structuring his or her time. Usually the student is having trouble accomplishing school work, practice, social time etc., in one day. When he has done this, perhaps three or four times, the child's parents have discussed the problem with him, or he may have told the parents that the child seemed to require such a schedule.

Mr. Hughes advised that he personally remains aloof to most of his students.

In his direct testimony, Brian Yatauro agreed that some of his teaching methods and contacts with his students were "unusual." He spent "a lot of time with the kids," summers, nights, weekends, before and after school, trips, rehearsals, etc. However, he contended that the school's administrators knew of his methods and did not complain to him about them. Some of the administrators and Board members' own children were members of the band and students of his at one time or another. These authority figures saw him at malls and restaurants with students. Other teachers held similar "get togethers" with students as he did, lunched with students, purchased gifts for them. These did not seem to be out of the ordinary practices. As for the Board's policy against becoming friends with students, he did not know about this, and only read the manual when he first received it, but actually had no recollection of actually receiving it.

In his statement to the Prosecutor's investigators, Yatauro acknowledged that he never spent time with another student in the way that he did with E., and never had a personal relationship with a student in which they spent time at each others' homes the way he had with her.

Yatauro denied that he had any "professional contact" with students after he was suspended and advised that he was to have no "professional contact" with them. He did go to A.K.'s house on a school night before the criminal trial and a number of students were there that evening. He was working part time as a limousine driver. He was in the area of A.K.'s house He had been asked to stop by there when in the area. Students did come over to the house he had no "professional contact" with them. The gathering lasted for perhaps 2 to 2 1/2 h around 11:00 P.M. Various parents were also present. He anticipated that the tri over by the Christmas holidays and so advised Mrs. S. that night when she aske doing. He planned to return to school and teach after what he anticipated would outcome in the criminal matter. However he did not say this to the student which surfaced thereafter (apparently such as testified about by Ms. D'Avino what he told Mrs. S. that night. As for "Obi-Wan Kenobi" he does n mentioned that evening, and he only heard about that name in relation to got into trouble at the football game.

Yatauro did accompany a group of four students from his house to Jackson Townsl High School on a day sometime after his suspension. They had stopped at his house for a soci visit and then A.K. had to go pick up his girlfriend. They asked if wanted to go and he went. H did not see the Jackson Township band that day.

The respondent also acknowledged that he spoke occasionally with Ja. M. The conversations were not of a professional nature, although there was some talk about Ja.'s frustrations with band issues. However, Yatauro told Ja. that he could not talk about specific matters.

In his interview with the Prosecutor's investigators, the respondent, who agreed that he had kissed E. and had verbalized to her that he loved her (but never in a sexual way), acknowledged that his relationship as a thirty-year old man with this fifteen-year-old student was unusual, > not a normal thing to do. I mean there, on occasion, after we did things and that was, I guess people would look at that as being improper if that's what we're . . . I think people would look at that as being improper but . . . I guess I would imagine other people would see them as improper but I felt that I didn't really see them as improper. I don't think E. did and, I believe her mother didn't . . . Cheryl didn't either. She knew that I cared about the kid . . . love is, is concern as well.

DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS

The Board's most serious allegation against Mr. Yatauro is that he engaged in sexual ions with Ms. K., an early to mid-teenage student. The Board additionally claims that even and in the absence of a sexual element, the nature of Mr. Yatauro's relationship with was inappropriate and in violation of the standards for a teaching professional. As the respondent readily acknowledge, if sex occurred between this adult teacher and tudent, Mr. Yatauro will rightfully lose his tenure. If sex did not occur, then the e propriety of his conduct in relation to Ms. E. must be carefully weighed, and if he did violate the proper limits of such a relationship, the appropriate remedy must be assessed. As the determination of the question of a sexual relationship is potentially dispositive, the proofs on this subject will be examined first.

Not surprisingly, there are no eyewitnesses to the sexual activities alleged by E. The respondent admits that he occasionally hugged her, that he kissed her on the cheek, but not on the lips, that he had a very close friendship with her, that he spent time alone with her in her bedroom, even on her bed, that he was alone with her on at least a few occasions at his home, that he bought her some gifts, that he traveled alone with her on shopping trips, to restaurants, to local places of interest. Nevertheless, he denies that his self-described "mentorship," his "friendship," his "father-figure" relationship with her ever slipped over the edge of propriety into improper physical and sexual contact (putting aside for the moment the questions of its appropriateness given his role as her teacher).

There are a few important physical exhibits which may be significant clues to the answer to the question of whether Mr. Yatauro's denials are genuine. If certain of the disputed documents were actually given by Yatauro to E., the implications are very significant. For instance, the "friendship" card, P-6, which bears the name "E" in the upper corner, was a card which he admittedly signed "Love Forever & Always Brian." Thus there is no question that this was a card he had purchased and had filled out to give to someone, someone whom he wanted to tell that he missed much about the intended recipient, that person's smile, laugh, and their "quiet times" and "wild times." The interior wording strongly asserts the real feeling Yatauro intended to convey to this person, in fact it refers to the possible concern of the recipient that that person may have felt that he or she (the card itself is gender neutral) was putting too much of an investment of "emotional energy in someone who, all along, just thought of you as a friend," when, it assures the recipient that Mr. Yatauro viewed the relationship as much more than that of "friendship," indeed, it says that he thinks of the recipient as "Way more than a friend." (emphasis in the original). The card does not of course imply that the relationship of these persons is sexual, or necessarily even romantic, but the intent of the card is surely to tell the recipient that Mr. Yatauro has a great deal of feeling and emotion for the person.

If the card was actually sent to Cheryl Yatauro at some time or another, than it is evidentially unimportant, that is, unless Yatauro took an old card from the storage area and placed E.'s name thereon and re-cycled the card to her. If he sent it to the teenager, whether it be a new or recycled card, then the act of sending the card and the card itself suggest, in fact establish, that his feelings for E. were well beyond the appropriate level for a teacher and a student, indeed even for a mentor and a student or a father figure and a teenager. The card may not by itself prove sex or romance, but it would be a telling message about how he felt for E., how he viewed them as a set of two interacting persons. Additionally, since he denies having placed her name upon the card, if he did, his credibility is substantially effected, and the conclusion must be that he is now trying to hide the depth of his feelings for and involvement with E. That in itself would be a powerful clue to the truth of E.'s assertions.

Another document which may be strong evidence of the actual nature of the relationship is the folded index card, part of P-4. Yatauro denies that he ever gave the card to anyone, and apparently suggests it was purloined from his briefcase, desk or some other private place. He identifies the item as a example of his jottings, the "for you and me!!" as probably a song title. The inside note, which he suggests to be lyrics, or at least thoughts about a song, seem to read more like a straightforward note to a lover. While perhaps the wording does not intend to convey sexual messages, and perhaps some non-sexual words or phrases might fit the blanks, a fair reading of the note as a whole and the lines, "You look tremendous today. My gorgeous woman. Mmmmm. I want to give you my ------. You know, I also want to make you ------. You love it, admit it," strongly suggest that the writer intends to convey sexual thoughts, but even if not, the whole seems to almost compel the conclusion that the writer is at least speaking of romantic matters. In sum, if this card was written to or given to E. by the respondent, the almost unavoidable conclusion must be that he was romantically and/or sexually involved with her.

The series of cards and such documents produced by Ms. K which Mr. Yatauro denies having given to her and which he asserts were actually given to his wife at one time or another, pre- or post-marriage, are additionally important. If despite his present denials he did send them to E., then his credibility is seriously damaged and the full extent of his feelings for the girl are more completely revealed. If instead, he is correct and he never sent these to E., we are faced with some disturbing possibilities. Since E. produced these for the authorities, she had to have obtained possession of them at some point. If they were indeed stored in a drawer or file in Yatauro's basement, (here it must be noted that Cheryl Yatauro never testified in this proceeding and never confirmed any of her husband's assertions) then she must have stolen them from there. If she did, then it would appear that at some point she was rummaging through his dressers, or at least the basement storage area. She must have either taken these old, stored memories and converted them into her own store of "pseudo-memories" and later used them against him, or, with an already formed intent to harm Yatauro, must have taken them to serve as evidentiary proofs of a relationship so that she could provide them to the authorities when she leveled her false charges against him. Either alternative would create deep concern about E.'s credibility, for she was either so obsessed about Yatauro that she needed to use his wife's stored remembrances to create her own fantasy life involving him, or she, for some unknown reason, simply determined to "get" Yatauro. It is possible that these two scenarios even blend into each other.

The expert evidence presented by Ms. Doherty is helpful in resolving whether Yatauro wrote E.'s name on P-6. As she noted, it is clear that the writer of this word did not use a loop in the letter "E." In known samples K-9 (P-10), K-8 (P-8), K-12C (back of P-16) and K-13A (P-47, pg. 2), Yatauro also used no loop. The "dash" form of dot over the letter "i" appears three out of four times over that letter in the unknown sample and in the spelling of the full first name in the known sample K-12C. An important additional support for the correctness of Doherty's conclusion that Yatauro wrote E.'s name in the corner of P-6 is her analysis of the unknown and disputed item in P-9, the square white piece of paper bearing the words "4-U with a special one for your heart." The key here is the word "the," in the phrase, "You are the ultimate woman." Doherty compared the form of this word to known samples P-13 and P-15. The formation of the word is in fact strikingly similar to several parts of P-13. For example, the word "the" appears in the sentence in the second paragraph which reads, "So I broke the balloons" and again, "the" in the third paragraph in the phrase, "So I get disappointed that you didn't act or overreact the way I would have wanted . . ." In each the formation of the "h" and the "e" and combination of the two almost makes the "h" appear as an "L" and the "h" has no hump. This also appears in the word "the" in P-15, which he says were his jottings relating to a Chopra tape, where once again the word "the" appears in the phrase, "I feel that if we had more opportunity to share the love factor and commitment . . ." In fact, the same formation appears back in P-13, in the word "she" which appears twice in the first two lines of the document. Since Ms. Doherty's identification of Yatauro, the acknowledged writer of P-13 and P-15, as the writer of the unknown sample Q-7 (P-9) has been shown to be correct, that is, she says that the same person wrote both because of the similarities and, in fact, he acknowledges that he wrote P-9, her determination that he was the person who wrote the full first name "E" in the upper corner of P-6 gains considerable credence.

As for P-13, Yatauro denies that he gave this to E., although he acknowledges writing it. The reference in the letter to the class periods 8 and 9/10 is telling, as it is clear that these periods have meaning in connection to E., but the record does not reveal any connection that this comment might have to Cheryl. Thus, I FIND that Yatauro did give this note to E.

Based upon the testimony of Ms. E. and of Mr. Yatauro, the convincing expert testimony of Ms. Doherty, which stands unopposed by any countervailing expert proof, and an examination of the documents, as well as consideration of the documents in the context of other testimony, I FIND that Mr. Yatauro did write Ms. K.'s first name in the corner of P-6 and did give her this card. In addition, I FIND that he did give her the folded index card, part of P-9, and that whatever the meaning which he intended to attach to the blank spaces, the card clearly indicates that the relationship he had with Ms. K. was not limited to friendship, mentoring and a form of parent figure.

A further significant consideration in determining the truth of Ms. K.'s allegation of a sexual relationship is the manner in which her claim was revealed. The evidence establishes that when she first spoke to Ms. Hogg about the subject of an abusive relationship, E. did not reveal any details about the person with whom she claimed she was in that relationship. Over the next few weeks she only reluctantly and when prodded came forth with additional, sometimes cryptic information. She attempted to deflect any thought that the "older man" was a person from the local community, from Lacey High or from the school district, as did her boyfriend, A. Even though I FIND that by this time she had told J.M. and A.L. who the man was and that the relationship was sexual, she did not readily volunteer this information to school authorities, and in fact the credible testimony of Ms. Hogg and Mr. Kaskow establishes that the respondent's own panicked queries about E. led them to question the possibility that Yatauro might be involved. By that time E. had identified to Ms. Schreiber that the first name of the "older man" from "up north" was Brian, but it is not at all certain that she would have identified "Brian" as Brain Yatauro.

In fact, had Yatauro's response to the telephone call from E. been to back off and to openly accept her strong statements of disinterest in him, it is not clear that he ever would have been identified. In the event, Kaskow took the offensive, contacted Mrs. K., and learned that Yatauro, who had even gone so far as to come to her workplace in his frantic attempt to learn what E. was up to, was the man who was calling and pursuing E. Thus, in the whole time from February, when she let J.M. and A.L., two good and close friends, in on her secret, until the moment she told her mother, Kaskow and Hogg while seated in her living room after being summoned home to a meeting, E. never made any open attempt to identify Mr. Yatauro as the person with whom she was involved. If the respondent suggests that the accuser was setting him up, was stealing his wife's cards from his house, was asserting a false charge against him, etc., then the evidence of what actually occurred reveals a strange pattern to her purported scheme.

It is far more reasonable to conclude that E., while not necessarily so concerned about the sexual aspects of the relationship, was nevertheless tired of the relationship, of its demands, the restraints and controls, real or exaggerated, which she felt arising from her tie to Yatauro, and that she finally sought an out from it. As for whether that relationship involved the intercourse and oral sexual components she insists it did, given the nature of her conduct, the credibility her allegations gain by the evidence supporting her story as against the evidence which does not support and in fact damages the credibility of Yatauro's defense, the credibility of the supporting testimony of A.L. and J.M. and of Mrs. E., I FIND by a preponderance of the credible evidence that Mr. Yatauro did engage in sexual conduct with E. It is not especially important to determine whether the sex was as frequent as E. says, as even one episode of oral sex or intercourse between the two is sufficient to condemn Yatauro, but on the whole, it is likely that E. is essentially accurate in detailing numerous sexual encounters. I FIND her truthful as to sexual activities occurring in her bedroom, starting the evening in June after the parade, and at his home that summer.

I FIND E. to be truthful as to her having called Yatauro from Florida, having been pushed by him and having been subjected to pressure and harassment by him.

Yatauro's explanation of the cryptic entry, "You know" for the July 12 lesson is not credible, as I do not believe that the whole sum and substance of that day's lesson and of his alleged concern as to her purported deficiencies in the previous week, etc., were summed up by such a limited and unclear comment, especially since Mr. Yatauro does not appear the type of teacher and guide who would have been so unclear and indirect if he was dissatisfied with E.'s performance. I credit her explanation that the comment is unclear due to the subject matter it addresses, and that the real intent was to remind her of the sexual tryst that day. That the couple ran risks in having sex in his home or her bedroom when others could possibly arrive (as indeed I FIND Cheryl's parents once did), or when others were at home in her house, or in school, does not eliminate the possibility of such carryings on, in fact, it would be foolhardy to suggest that the chance of discovery negates the possibility or even the probability of sex between determined lovers.

The precise details of all of these encounters are not clear from the record, but suffice it to say that I am convinced that they had some form of sexual contact in his home, at her home and in school. Further, the observations of others who did not see obvious signs of undue affection or of an illicit relationship are interesting, but they do not suffice to negate the preponderance of more persuasive and believable evidence that the two were in fact lovers. In fact, it is clear that, while Yatauro denies to this day the truth of the allegations which have followed upon earlier rumors of an improper relationship, there were enough signs of something, enough indications of a great deal of time spent together and of "something" between E. and Yatauro to prompt rumors during E.'s sophomore year. While the existence of rumors is by itself certainly not evidence of actual facts in accord with the rumors, their existence does tend to lessen the significance of evidence intended to demonstrate that nothing about their public interactions ever suggested that there could be any truth to E.'s later allegations of a sexual relationship. In the end, the observations of others cannot serve to prove the truth or falsity of E.'s claim, the truth must be pieced together from the testimony of the only two who really know and the documentary evidence which may, or may not, support either one's position.

The finding that Brian Yatauro did engage in sexual activity with E. makes any determination as to the propriety of a non-sexual relationship between the two along the lines presented by their two versions of the same superfluous. A teacher who is sexually involved with a student must be stripped of his tenure. No other result can be allowed. Whether Yatauro was too friendly, too involved, too controlling, too "parental," too concerned, are issues which pale in comparison with whether he had sex with her. It is true that even if he did not, he may well have been too involved in her life, and I FIND that the proofs are sufficient to establish that he was. For instance, while Yatauro could not recall why he might have written the comments on P-1 next to E.'s "I love A---.," the comments show that he was inserting himself into her social life, placing himself as the center of her existence. Even if he did not have sex with her, a position already rejected here, this type of commentary to a teen-aged student was entirely unacceptable. As for the "schedule" he prepared for her, it stands as a primary example of an over-reaching involvement far more detailed and intrusive than any request by her for some assistance in time management would call for from a teacher. (As an aside, I FIND Yatauro's explanation of the "receive visit" instruction not credible. Why would he write this about E. going to visit her grandfather? The far more reasonable explanation is that it meant that she would "receive" his visit.) In reality, his over-involvement appears at first to have been perhaps related to his attempt to help her, to guide her, to nurture her talent, to provide some support for her, all in themselves admirable actions if kept within reasonable bounds, but within a short time his involvement developed to an entirely inappropriate level, with a perhaps inexplicable romantic attachment to her. She was a vulnerable young woman from a single parent home, perhaps with a mother suffering from alcoholism (no proof of this was presented except that which flowed from E. herself), who had a talent which Yatauro tried to nurture, but who he appears to have become consumed with. Whatever good intentions he may have started with were overwhelmed by actions which ultimately compromised him.

Another point about Yatauro's conduct toward E. which is important to consider if no sex occurred and no romantic relationship existed, is his apparent disregard of the seriousness of the rumors which surfaced in E.'s sophomore year. As he knew that such rumors were being spread, if indeed they were untrue, he should have had the sense and judgment to moderate his conduct toward and involvement with the student so as to protect her from the risk of additional rumors and potential damage to her, as well as his, reputation. The record shows that he did not do so, even if one accepted that he was not romantically or sexually involved with E.

It is unfortunate that this teacher, who had much to offer his students, and in fact appears to have inspired and helped many, could not control himself and limit his involvement with E. and her potential music career to more reasonable areas of activity. While a mentoring relationship may well be important, and while she may have seen him as a father figure, he should have had the judgment and self-control to stay more apart from her day-to-day life, to let her grow up as a teenager, to suggest, assist and guide, but not to seek to control and to manipulate. Above all, he needed to resist whatever urges he had to express feelings of affection, love, lust, etc., which he may have found he had towards her, but which he should have known were dangerous and forbidden. He should have avoided the issuance of cards, letters, notes etc., which were meant to convey, or could easily be mis-interpreted to demonstrate, an emotional involvement, commitment or demand which, as acknowledged by the experts and professionals who testified, had no place in a student/teacher relationship. He failed to do so. Indeed, he failed to avoid even more egregious conduct, and in the end, this failure can lead to only one conclusion.

CONCLUSION AND ORDER

I CONCLUDE that Mr. Yatauro acted in disregard of the standards of professional conduct expected of public school teachers, as well as the policies of his employer.[5] Given the nature and quality of his conduct, his tenure must be removed. It is so ORDERED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

[5] Specific findings as to the policies which Yatauro violated are not necessary in view of the findings that he had a sexual relationship with his student. Nevertheless, he clearly violated the Board's policy against becoming a friend of a student. As for the restriction against "professional" or "any" contact with students following his suspension, the issue is superfluous in view of other findings of far more significant wrongdoing. Nevertheless, the circumstances of the meetings, including that at A.K.'s house, do not suggest that any serious violation of such a restriction occurred.

to make a final decision in this matter. Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

IN THE MATTER OF THE	:
TENURE HEARING OF	:
BRIAN YATAURO, SCHOOL	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
DISTRICT OF THE TOWNSHIP	:	DECISION
OF LACEY, OCEAN COUNTY.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties. On January 26, 1999, a letter was received from Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) Jeff S. Masin requesting that, subsequent to the Commissioner's determination of the within tenure charges, this case be remanded to him solely on the outstanding issues of back pay and moneys that the respondent claims for the period following his acquittal of criminal prosecution and money that was withheld following his suspension. ALJ Masin states that he will issue a separate initial decision on these monetary claims.

Upon a thorough and independent review of the record in this matter[1], the Commissioner affirms the determination of the ALJ, for the reasons very well expressed in the initial decision, that the Board has established its charges of unbecoming conduct against respondent by a preponderance of the credible evidence necessitating his removal from his tenured position.

[1]It is noted that the within record did not include transcripts of the 13 days of hearing conducted at the OAL.

Accordingly, the Commissioner adopts the recommended decision of the OAL and hereby orders that Brian Yatauro be dismissed from his tenured position with the Board of Education of the Township of Lacey as of the date of this decision. The Commissioner further directs that the issue of moneys which may be due and owing respondent in this case be severed from the tenure matter herein and this sole issue be remanded to the OAL for necessary determinations consistent with the request of the ALJ. The tenure matter will be transmitted to the State Board of Examiners, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6, for action, as that body deems appropriate, against respondent's teaching certificate.[2]

IT IS SO ORDERED.

Commissioner decisions are deemed filed three days after the date of mailing to the parties.

SB/51-99

SBE #510-02/99-198
SB # 51-99

IN THE MATTER OF THE REVOCATION	:	STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TEACHING CERTIFICATE	:	DECISION
OF GERARD BATTLE.	:

Decided by the State Board of Examiners, September 23, 1999

For the Respondent-Appellant, Feintuch, Porwich & Feintuch
(Philip Feintuch, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Petitioner-Respondent, Michael Walters, Deputy Attorney General (John J. Farmer, Jr., Attorney General of New Jersey)

This is an appeal from a decision by the State Board of Examiners to revoke the certification of Gerard Battle (hereinafter "respondent") as a teacher of the handicapped on the basis of a determination by the Commissioner of Education that he was guilty of tenure charges alleging inefficiency. The Commissioner's determination of the respondent's guilt and of the penalty of dismissal, in turn, was the consequence of the respondent's failure to respond to the tenure charges. While we recognize the finality of the Commissioner's determination in relation to both the tenure charges and the penalty of dismissal based thereon, we find that the Commissioner's decision alone does not in these particular circumstances provide an adequate basis to sustain the State Board of Examiners' determination to permanently revoke the respondent's license to teach.

This matter had it genesis on August 28,1998, when the State-Operated School District of the City of Jersey City certified tenure charges of inefficiency against the respondent with the Commissioner of Education. By letter of the same date, the Commissioner notified respondent of his right to file an answer to the charges. Respondent did not file an answer. Consequently, by decision of September 29, 1998, the Commissioner, acting on the basis of P.L. 1998, c. 42, effective July 1, 1998, and relying on N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.4(e), deemed each of the charges admitted. Noting that the respondent had "chosen" not to deny the charges, the Commissioner found that the respondent's actions constituted inefficiency and incapacity warranting his dismissal from his tenured position. As reflected in the Commissioner's decision, the respondent was not represented by counsel.

On October 21, 1998, the respondent wrote to the Commissioner, and on November 23, he consulted an attorney. Respondent's attorney communicated with the Commissioner in December, but, on December 29, 1998, was advised that the Commissioner had declined to reconsider his decision of September 29.

Respondent did not appeal the Commissioner's decision of September 29, 1998 directing his dismissal from his tenured position. As set forth in the Commissioner's decision, and as in all cases contested before the Commissioner that result in loss of tenure or dismissal, the matter was transmitted to the State Board of Examiners for "action as that body deems appropriate." Commissioner's decision, slip op. at 2. See N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6(a)(1).

By order dated February 25, 1999, and mailed on March 14, 1999, the Board of Examiners directed that the respondent show cause as to why his certificate should not be revoked or suspended.

On April 5, 1999, the respondent's counsel filed an answer on his behalf. In his answer, the respondent asserted that the Board of Examiners was without any evidence to conclude that there was a basis to revoke or suspend his teaching certificate. He also asserted that inefficiency or incapacity alone was not sufficient reason to revoke his certificate.

The Board of Examiners concluded that there were no material facts in dispute and that it would therefore hear the matter directly rather than transmit it to the Office of Administrative Law for hearing. After review of the respondent's brief, the Board of Examiners determined that the Commissioner's conclusion in his decision of September 29, 1998 provided cause to revoke the respondent's certificate.

Respondent then appealed the instant appeal to the State Board of Education, arguing that the failure by the Board of Examiners to allow him a hearing before revoking his certificate was, under the circumstances, a violation of his due process rights. Respondent also argues that the case law does not support a determination to revoke his certificate for inefficiency or incompetence alone.

The Commissioner's decision in this case was akin to a default judgment, which was given a preclusive effect by the Board of Examiners in the subsequent proceedings to revoke the respondent's certification. Generally, in judicial proceedings, a default judgment precludes a defendant from offering testimony in his defense. Douglas v. Harris, 35 N.J. 270 (1961). It does not, however, necessarily obviate the obligation of a plaintiff to furnish proof on the issue of liability. Id. Furthermore, a decision as to whether to vacate a default judgment is generally left to the discretion of the trial court. Davis v. DND/Fidoreo, Inc., 317 N.J. Super. 92 (App. Div. 1998). Even so, the court must recognize that "[all] doubts...should be resolved in favor of the parties seeking relief." Id. at 99, quoting Mancini v. EDS ex rel. New Jersey Auto Full Ins. Underwriting

Assoc., 132 N.J. 330, 334 (1993). This is the case because a motion to vacate a default judgment "should be viewed with great liberality, and every reasonable ground for indulgence is tolerated to the end that a just result is reached." Id., quoting Marder v. Realty Constr. Co., 84 N.J. Super. 313, 319 (App. Div. 1964), aff'd, 43 N.J. 508 (1964). The reason courts take such an indulgent approach towards these motions is that a default judgment deprives a party of the benefit of an adjudication on the merits. Allen v. Heritage Court Associates, 325 N.J. Super. 112 (App. Div. 1999).

We recognize that an administrative agency is not the same as a court. City of Hackensack v. Winner, 82 N.J. 1, 28-31 (1980). However, in fulfilling our quasi-judicial responsibilities, we look to judicial principles for guidance. Id. at 31-33. This is especially true when to do so is necessary to achieve an equitable result in a given case. Application of the judicial principles articulated above requires that we limit the preclusive effect of the default judgment awarded by the Commissioner to the respondent's dismissal from his tenured position. In this respect we stress that the respondent is not seeking to vacate the Commissioner's default judgment, but only to limit its preclusive effect.

Initially, we take note that although the Commissioner relied on N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.4(e) to grant summary decision in favor of the district board, he did not provide notice to the respondent as required by that regulation. N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.4(e) provided that:

> Failure to answer within the 20 day period from receipt of services [of the tenure charges] shall result in a notice to the respondent directing an answer within 10 days of receipt. Further failure to respond shall result in a second notice which shall inform the respondent that unless an answer is received within 10 days of the receipt of said notice, each count in the > petition of appeal shall be deemed admitted and the Commissioner shall render a decision by way of summary judgment.

As set forth above, N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.4(e) provided that a respondent who did not file an answer to a petition of appeal would be sent a second notice before any consequences resulted from his failure. Under the terms of that regulation, the Commissioner had to wait ten days after providing the second notice before he could deem the allegations in a petition to be admitted. Prior to July 1, 1998, this regulation controlled the time frame for filing responses to all petitions of appeal, including tenure charges certified to the Commissioner.

Effective July 1, 1998, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16 was amended by P.L. 1998, c. 42. Before that date, the statute, which governs the procedures to be followed after receipt of tenure charges by the Commissioner, did not include any provision relating to the filing of an answer to tenure charges. Nor were there any regulatory provisions specifically relating to the subject. Hence, as stated, the time limits and notice provisions of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.4(e) were the sole provisions that applied to the filing of answers to tenure charges.

After July 1, 1998, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16 mandated that a respondent to tenure charges be afforded 15 days to file an answer and required the Commissioner to determine within 15 days following that period whether the tenure charges were sufficient to warrant dismissal or reduction in salary. The effect of the statutory change was to render the time frame and notice provisions of N.J.A.C. 6: 24-1.4(e) inapplicable to cases involving tenure charges certified to the Commissioner. This is demonstrated by the fact that the Department of Education ultimately amended its rules to include new provisions reflecting the statutory change. See N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.4 and 6A:3–5.5 (effective April 3, 2000).

However, no regulatory change was made prior to April 3, 2000. Instead, as previously indicated, while respondents to tenure charges certified to the Commissioner, including respondent in this case, were notified that they had 15 days to file a written response, they were also notified that the Commissioner would be acting pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.4(e) if he deemed the charges admitted and that the matter would be decided on a summary basis.[1] Retention of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.4(e) without change during this period with specific reliance on that provision in the notice provided to respondents introduced ambiguity to that notice during this period. Basically, while making it clear that a respondent had 15 days to file an answer, the notice did not make it entirely clear that when no answer was filed, a default judgment would issue in tenure cases without the benefit of a second notice. This created the potential for confusion during the relevant period.

Regardless of such ambiguity, the respondent in this case has not challenged the application of the default judgment to the disposition of the tenure charges against him. Nonetheless, while not excusing the respondent's failure to answer the tenure charges, we hesitate to sustain revocation of his teaching credential solely on the basis of such default judgment.

[1] The notice provided was included on a form letter sent to respondents by the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes which read in pertinent part that:

> ...pursuant to P.L. 1998, c. 42, effective July 1, 1998, an individual against whom tenure charges are certified "shall have 15 days to submit a written response to the charges to the Commissioner" and that failure to answer within the prescribed period will, absent an extension granted for good cause shown, result in charges being deemed admitted and the Commissioner deciding the matter on a summary basis pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.4(e);....

Nor can we ignore the fact that the respondent was not represented by counsel during the pendency of the tenure charges against him. This circumstance suggests that the respondent may well have acted without an understanding that his failure to answer the tenure charges would impact his teaching credentials. This conclusion is supported by the very limited understanding of the administrative process that is reflected in the respondent's communication to the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes following his receipt of the Commissioner's decision disposing of the tenure charges.

Quite simply, under these circumstances, the State Board of Examiners should not have taken action with respect to the respondent's teaching certificate without an adjudication of the merits of his defenses as they pertain to the issue of whether his certificate should be suspended or revoked. To hold otherwise would preclude the respondent from teaching anywhere in New Jersey without any adjudication of his teaching performance. Such a result would be inequitable.

We conclude, however, that the default judgment was sufficient to support the issuance of an order to show cause by the Board of Examiners. We therefore remand this matter to the Board of Examiners with the direction that it transmit the case to the Office of Administrative Law for a hearing on the merits of the respondent's defenses as they pertain to the retention of his certificate.

This matter having been opened before the Commissioner of Education on January 19, 1999 through certification of tenure charges of unbecoming conduct, insubordination, inefficiency and/or other just cause against a tenured teaching staff member, Claire Geveke, by the Board of Education of City of Orange Township; and

The Board having certified that, on January 14, 1999, it served respondent with a copy of the tenure charges via regular and certified mail, and further, on the same day, served a copy of the tenure charges upon her counsel, via Lawyer's Service; and

The Commissioner having directed respondent and her counsel, via both certified and regular mail dated January 20, 1999, to file an Answer to the tenure charges against her, which charges were identified as having been certified to the Commissioner on January 19, 1999; and

Such communication clearly having provided respondent notice that, pursuant to P.L. 1998, c. 42, effective July 1, 1998, an individual against whom tenure charges are certified

"shall have 15 days to submit a written response to the charges to the commissioner," and that failure to answer within the prescribed period will, absent granting of an extension for good cause shown, result in the charges being deemed admitted and the Commissioner deciding the matter on a summary basis pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.4(e); and

Respondent's reply having been received outside the 15-day response period, as P.L. 1988, c. 42 does not, on its face, contemplate use of respondent's (or counsel's) date of receipt of the tenure charges to commence calculation of response time, (Koy's letter of February 3, 1999), and each count of the charges against respondent therefore being deemed to be admitted; and

The Commissioner's review of the tenure charges certified against respondent by the Board and the statement of evidence in support of those charges indicating that respondent, during the 1997-98 school year, was absent from her class 25 times from September 1997 through April 1, 1998, and late to her class 13 times, thus adversely affecting the instruction to students (Charge One); during the 1996-97 school year, respondent was absent from her class 14 times, thus adversely affecting the instruction to students (Charge Two); during the 1995-96 school year, respondent was absent from her class 16 times, thus adversely affecting the instruction to students (Charge Three); during the 1994-95 school year, respondent was absent from her class 32 times, thus adversely affecting the instruction to students (Charge Four); during the 1993-94 school year, respondent was absent from her class 18 times and late 15 times, thus adversely affecting the instruction to students (Charge Five); during the 1992-93 school year, respondent was absent from her class 20 times, thus adversely affecting the instruction to students (Charge Six); during the 1991-92 school year, respondent was absent from her class 18 times, thus adversely affecting the instruction to students (Charge Seven); during the 1990-91 school year, respondent was absent 15 times, thus adversely affecting the instruction to students her evaluations and to the constructive criticism offered by her supervisors (Charge Twenty-Two); during the 1997-98 school year, respondent conducted herself in an inappropriate manner by sending an unsealed note to another employee with a student, which note contained confidential, personal information about another student (Charge Twenty-Three); during the 1995-96 school year, respondent conducted herself in an inappropriate manner by failing to follow administrative policies and allowing students who were not registered in her class to remain in her class for entire class periods (Charge Twenty-Four); during the 1993-94 school year, respondent conducted her self in an inappropriate manner, by using inappropriate language directed at students (Charge Twenty-Five); and during the 1987-88 school year, respondent conducted herself in an inappropriate manner by discussing an evaluation report from a supervisor with a student, indicating to the student that his behavior was the cause of her poor evaluation; and

Deeming such charges to be admitted, the Commissioner finds that respondent's actions constituted unbecoming conduct, insubordination, inefficiency and/or other just cause, warranting her dismissal from her tenured position; now, therefore

IT IS SO ORDERED this _____ day of _____ that summary judgment shall be granted to the Board, and Claire Geveke shall be dismissed from her tenured position as a teacher in the Board's employ as of the date of this order. IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE :
HEARING OF CLAIRE GEVEKE, SCHOOL: DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF ORANGE :
TOWNSHIP, ESSEX COUNTY. :

STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION

DECISION

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, March 3, 1999

For the Petitioner-Respondent, Schwartz, Simon, Edelstein, Celso & Kessler (Nicholas Celso, III, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Appellant, Ullman, Furhman, Platt & Koy (William F. Koy, Esq., of Counsel)

On January 19, 1999, the Board of Education of the City of Orange Township (hereinafter "Board") certified tenure charges of unbecoming conduct, insubordination, inefficiency and/or other just cause against Claire Geveke (hereinafter "respondent"), a tenured teaching staff member. On February 3, 1999, the respondent, through her attorney, mailed her written response to the charges to the Commissioner. That response was received by the Commissioner on February 4.

On March 3, 1999, the Commissioner, concluding that respondent's response had not been submitted within the 15-day period required by N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16, deemed each count of the charges to have been admitted. Upon review of those charges, the Commissioner found that respondent's actions constituted unbecoming conduct, insubordination, inefficiency and/or other just cause, warranting her dismissal from her tenured position. Accordingly, he granted summary judgment to the Board and ordered that respondent be dismissed from her tenured employment.

Respondent filed the instant appeal to the State Board, contending that her response to the tenure charges had been filed in a timely manner. Respondent argues that N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16 is unclear as to when the 15-day filing period begins to run, alleging that she had filed her response with the Commissioner within 15 days after she had been served with the charges. In addition, the respondent maintains that she had "submitted" her response to the Commissioner in a timely manner within the intendment of the statute by mailing it on the fifteenth day following certification of the charges.

After a careful review of the record, we reverse the determination of the Commissioner and remand this matter to him for further proceedings in accordance with our decision herein. We find that the language of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16 as amended in 1998 did not provide the respondent with clear notice that a written response to the tenure charges was required to have been received by the Commissioner within 15 days following certification of the charges.

Prior to its amendment in 1998, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16 did not provide a timeframe for the filing of a response to tenure charges. Rather, responses were governed by the general filing rule set forth in N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.4, which requires that respondents serve an answer upon the petitioner within 20 days after receipt of the petition. See infra.

N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16 was thereupon amended by L.1998, c. 42, § 2, effective June 30, 1998, so as to require, in pertinent part, that:

> Upon receipt of such a charge and certification, or of a charge lawfully made to the commissioner, the commissioner or the person appointed to act in the commissioner's behalf in the proceedings shall examine the > charges and certification. The individual against whom the charges are certified shall have 15 days to submit a written response to the charges to the commissioner. Upon a showing of good cause, the commissioner may grant an extension of time. The commissioner shall render a determination on the sufficiency of charges as set forth below within 15 days immediately following the period provided for a written response to the charges.... (Emphasis added.)

In this case, it is undisputed that respondent mailed her response to the charges to the Commissioner on February 3, 1999, 15 days following certification of the charges. Given the use of the word "submit" in the newly-amended statute, which gives no guidance as to whether mailing a response within 15 days would constitute compliance with that provision, we find that it would be inequitable to hold respondent to the knowledge that mailing her response within 15 days after certification of the charges would not be sufficient to satisfy the statutory deadline.

We note in that regard that at the time respondent filed her response there was no corresponding amendment to the education regulations governing the filing of a response to tenure charges. Thus, N.J.A.C. 6:24-5.3 provides that "[t]he filing and service of an answer to written charges pursuant to the Tenure Employees' Hearing Act shall be performed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.4," which states, in pertinent part:

> (a) The respondent(s) shall serve an answer upon the petitioner within 20 days after receipt of the petition, which shall state in short and plain terms the defenses to each claim asserted and shall admit or deny the allegation(s) of the petition. Upon written application by a party the Commissioner may extend the time for answer. Such application must be received prior to the expiration of the 20 day period.
> ....
> (e) Failure to answer within the 20 day period from receipt of service shall result in a notice to the respondent directing an answer within 10 days of receipt. Further failure to respond > shall result in a second notice which shall inform the respondent that unless an answer is received within 10 days of the receipt of said notice, each count in the petition of appeal shall be deemed admitted and the Commissioner shall render a decision by way of summary judgment.

Moreover, we agree with the respondent that N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16 as amended is unclear as to when the 15-day period for filing a response to tenure charges begins to run, indicating only that a respondent has 15 days to submit a written response. We note, in addition, that the statute permits an extension to the filing deadline upon a showing of good cause.

Accordingly, given the current regulatory framework and the ambiguity of the amended statute, we find that the penalty imposed by the Commissioner – deeming the tenure charges admitted, resulting in respondent's dismissal from her tenured employment – was inequitable and unduly harsh under the circumstances presented.[1]

[1] We note that on July 7, 1999, the Commissioner, acknowledging the need to revise the regulations in accordance with statutory changes, proposed a revision to N.J.A.C. 6:24-5.3 [proposed section 6A:3-5.3] which would require, inter alia, that "[a]n individual against whom tenure charges are certified shall have 15 days from the date such charges are filed with the Commissioner to file a written response to the charges." Unlike the code currently in effect, the proposed regulations include a definition for "filing" as used in that subchapter: "'Filing' means receipt of an original paper by an appropriate officer of the department." N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.2 as proposed by the Commissioner on July 7, 1999. In addition, N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.1(b)6 as proposed by the Commissioner requires that a district board, following its determination that probable cause exists to credit the evidence in support of the charges, serve the affected staff member with a copy of those charges "at the same time and in the same manner as the filing of charges with the Commissioner."

In his summary included with the proposed code, the Commissioner elaborates that: "The prior rule has been completely rewritten to effectuate the expedited time frames established by P.L. 1998, c. 87. Answers to tenure charges are now due, in accordance with that law, within 15 days. This period is defined as 15 days from the date of filing of charges with the Commissioner, based upon a presumption of concurrent receipt by the employee and his or her representative as a result of the requirement for simultaneous service...."

We therefore reverse the determination of the Commissioner and remand this matter to him for further proceedings on the merits of those charges.[2]

[2] In its exceptions, the Board argues that the fine print on the standard form used by the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes to acknowledge receipt of the tenure charges provided the respondent with sufficient notice of the filing requirement, i.e.: "Respondent is required to file written response to the charges within 15 days of date certified...." That form, however, also includes the statutory language–which can be subject to various interpretations–in larger print in a highlighted box headed "IMPORTANT NOTICE." In any event, the fine print on a standard acknowledgement form used by the Department of Education cannot cure the ambiguity in the filing requirement set forth in the statute.

For the Board, Nicholas Celso, III, Esq. (Schwartz, Simon, Edelstein, Celso & Kessler)

This matter having been opened before the Commissioner of Education on January 19, 1999 through certification of tenure charges of unbecoming conduct, insubordination, inefficiency and/or other just cause against Erlene Fuqua, a tenured teaching staff member by the Board of Education of the City of Orange Township; and

The Commissioner having directed respondent, via both certified and regular mail on January 20, 1999, to file an Answer to the tenure charges against her; and

Such communication clearly having provided respondent notice that, pursuant to P.L. 1998, c. 42, effective July 1, 1998, an individual against whom tenure charges are certified "shall have 15 days to submit a written response to the charges to the commissioner," and that failure to answer within the prescribed period will, absent granting of an extension for good cause shown, result in the charges being deemed admitted and the Commissioner deciding the matter on a summary basis pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.4(e); and

In that no reply has been received from respondent in response to the Board's charges, each count of the charges against respondent is deemed to be admitted; and

The Commissioner's review of the tenure charges certified against respondent by the Board and the statement of evidence in support of those charges indicating: that respondent had been chronically absent from her teaching duties for the entire 1997-98 school year, to date, thereby disrupting the proper operation of the Orange High School, interfering with the instructional process and resulting in a detrimental impact on the educational environment in the Orange Public Schools (Charge One); that respondent had been chronically absent from her teaching duties on 26 occasions from September 1996 through June 1997, thereby disrupting the proper operation of the Orange High School, interfering with the instructional process and resulting in a detrimental impact on the educational environment in the Orange Public Schools (Charge Two); that respondent had been chronically absent from her teaching duties on 20 occasions from September 1995 through June 1996, thereby disrupting the proper operation of the Orange High School, interfering with the instructional process and resulting in a detrimental impact on the educational environment in the Orange Public Schools (Charge Three); that respondent, during the 1994-95 school year, had been chronically tardy and absent from her teaching duties on 15 occasions and 14 occasions, respectively, thereby disrupting the proper operation of the Orange High School, interfering with the instructional process and resulting in a detrimental impact on the educational environment in the Orange Public Schools (Charge Four); that respondent, during the 1993-94 school year, took a group of Orange High School students on an unauthorized field trip during the school day, took an unapproved conference day for the trip, and refused to cancel the trip upon direction from the Superintendent of Schools (Charge Five); that respondent had been chronically absent from her teaching duties on 22 occasions

from September 1993 through June 1994, thereby disrupting the proper operation of the Orange High School, interfering with the instructional process and resulting in a detrimental impact on the educational environment in the Orange Public Schools (Charge Six); that respondent, during the 1992-93 school year, had been chronically tardy and absent from her teaching duties on 11 occasions and 19 occasions, respectively, thereby disrupting the proper operation of the Orange High School, interfering with the instructional process and resulting in a detrimental impact on the educational environment in the Orange Public Schools (Charge Seven); that respondent, during the 1991-92 school year, had been chronically tardy on numerous occasions and absent from her teaching duties on ten and one-half occasions, thereby disrupting the proper operation of the Orange High School, interfering with the instructional process and resulting in a detrimental impact on the educational environment in the Orange Public Schools (Charge Eight); that respondent, during the 1990-91 school year, had been chronically absent from her teaching duties on 14 ½ occasions, thereby disrupting the proper operation of the Orange High School, interfering with the instructional process and resulting in a detrimental impact on the educational environment in the Orange Public Schools (Charge Nine); that respondent, during the 1989-90 school year, had been chronically absent from her duties on 14 occasions, thereby disrupting the proper operation of the Orange High School, interfering with the instructional process and resulting in a detrimental impact on the educational environment in the Orange Public Schools (Charge Ten); that respondent, during the 1988-89 school year, had been chronically absent from her teaching duties on 57 ½ occasions, thereby disrupting the proper operation of the Orange High School, interfering with the instructional process and resulting in a detrimental impact on the educational environment in the Orange Public Schools (Charge Eleven); and

Deeming such charges to be admitted, and noting that respondent has chosen not to deny the specific allegations contained therein, the Commissioner finds that respondent's actions constituted unbecoming conduct, insubordination, inefficiency and other just cause, warranting dismissal from her tenured position; and

The Commissioner having been thereafter informed by letter dated February 18, 1999 from counsel for the Board that respondent's application for Ordinary Disability Retirement was approved by the Board of Trustees of the Teacher's Pension and Annuity Fund, effective September 1, 1998; and

The Board, being unable, as a result of respondent's disability retirement, to move forward with the above-referenced tenure charges before the Commissioner of Education; now, therefore

IT IS SO ORDERED this _____ day of _____ that this matter be dismissed due to respondent's retirement, and that a copy of this decision shall be forwarded to the State Board of Examiners for action as it deems appropriate pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.5.*

S. and M.B. ON BEHALF OF MINOR CHILD, A.B.
Petitioner,

v.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE HOPEWELL VALLEY REGIONAL SCHOOL DISTRICT, MERCER COUNTY
Respondent.

On or about February 3, 1999, petitioners filed a petition with the Commissioner of Education against respondent Board of Education of the Hopewell Valley Regional School (Board) in which petitioners asserted that their son, A.B., was subject to improper discipline by the Board and that certain school officials harassed A.B. Petitioners also filed with the Commissioner an application for emergent relief pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.5. The petition and request for emergent relief was transmitted by the Commissioner to the Office of Administrative Law for hearing as a contested case on February 3, 1999. Oral argument on the application for emergent relief was held on February 17, 1999. For the following reasons I am denying the request for emergent relief and directing that the hearing in this matter be scheduled expeditiously.

This matter concerns a one day in school suspension and a grade of zero on a math test imposed upon A.B. According to the Board statement of facts, on Wednesday, December 2, 1998, A.B. and another student, J.D., were absent from the Hopewell Valley Central High School during periods one through four. That morning A.B. called the high school office posing as J.D.'s father with the stated purpose of excusing J.D.'s absence from school. Shortly thereafter, J.D., a female, called the high school office posing as A.B.'s mother with the stated purpose of excusing A.B.'s absence from school.

Between these two telephone calls, a central office staff member called J.D.'s home and spoke with her mother. J.D.'s mother told the staff member that J.D. was not excused from school and that A.B. had picked her up that morning to go to school. Accordingly, when J.D. made the call described above, she and A.B. were directed to come to school. The two students reported to the central office to sign in at approximately 10:40 a.m. Central office staff members present at the time were Edie Braham, Myra Novak and June Baker. According to the staff members, June Baker engaged in some good natured ribbing of J.D. by greeting her with the words "nice of you to come to school today" to which she replied "we didn't want to take our math test." Mrs. Baker then reminded J.D. that missing the test could result in a grade of zero for the test. According to the Board there was no exchange of words between any staff member and A.B. As A.B. exited the office, he said to J.D. "don't worry, my mother will get me out of this." The staff members who heard this remark expressed incredulity to one another about the remark but it was after A.B. left the office.

Petitioners do not deny that A.B. and J.D. made the telephone calls described above and that they did not arrive at school until approximately 10:40 a.m. on December 2, 1998, thereby missing their math class and the test. However, petitioners argue that A.B. was ill on December 2 as a result of his being without needed allergy medication and that he was suffering from congestion, headache and an inability to concentrate due to blocked sinuses. The morning of December 2, A.B.'s father was traveling out of town on business and was not available to call the school to excuse A.B.'s absence. A.B.'s mother was at work beginning at 6 a.m. When A.B. woke up, he tried to go to school even though he felt ill because neither parent was available to call the school. He tried to call his mother at work but the one line into her work was busy.

It was a difficult situation for A.B. because the math course involved (Functions, Statistics and Trigonometry, (FST)) is one he has been struggling with and he was aware that it is critical for him to pass FST in order to be enrolled in the college which has admitted him for the fall of 1999. A.B. had been tutored and had prepared for the test but the FST course causes him tremendous stress and pressure and he felt that he would not do well on the test that morning due to his physical condition. Since he could not get through to his mother, A.B. thought that J.D.'s call to the school would "get him through the morning" until he could reach his mother and obtain her permission for his absence from school.

According to petitioners, when A.B. entered the central office on December 2, the office staff belittled, embarrassed and badgered him and laughed at him which caused his comment that his mother would "get him out of this". Petitioners assert that this treatment was in violation of the Board's policy against harassment.

On December 4, 1998, the Vice Principal of Hopewell Valley Central High School, F. Jeffery Corelli, wrote A.P.'s parents that A.P. had been assigned one day of In-School Suspension to be served on December 16, 1998 for violating section 15 (truancy) of the student discipline code. Mr. Corelli further advised A.P.'s parents that December 2 reflected A.P.'s first cut in his International Relations, FST and Physical Education classes and that a third cut in any class would result in his removal from the course. In addition, A.P. was given a grade of zero on the FST test he missed.

By letter dated December 10, 1998, S. and M.P. appealed A.P.'s suspension and zero test grade to John W. Bach, principal of the high school. On December 16, 1998, the day scheduled for A.P.'s in school suspension, S. and M.P. attended an appeal conference with Vice Principal Corelli. As a result of an error, A.P.'s name was not removed from the suspension list for that day as it should have been done while the appeal was pending. Accordingly, A.P. served his one day suspension on December 16, 1998.

By letter dated December 18, 1998, Vice Principal Corelli confirmed his decision to uphold his initial determination that A.P. was truant on December 2 and that the imposition of the one day suspension and zero grade was appropriate discipline. Thereafter, S. and M.P. appealed to Principal Bach and Carol Roche, Interim Superintendent of Schools, both of whom upheld the discipline imposed on A.P. A.P.'s parents' greatest concern is that the zero grade on the FST test might cause A.P. to fail the course and not graduate and thus not be able to enter college in the fall of 1999. In her response to the appeal Superintendent Roche advised S. and M.P. that she spent considerable time with, Kathy Radeer, the FST teacher, to ascertain what impact, if any, the zero grade would have on A.P.'s ability to pass the course. Ms. Radeer assured Superintendent Roche that a zero in a single test would not prevent A.P. from either passing or doing well in the course since there would be ample opportunities in the form of quizzes, tests, homework assignments, midterm and final examinations for him to pass the FST course. Ms. Radeer further explained that the test in question accounted for only 8% of the semester mark and 4% of the final mark for the year long course. A.B. passed the FST course for the first two marking periods with grades of 75 and 64 respectively (60 is passing). He passed the midyear exam with a grade of 61 and had an overall semester grade of 68.

In denying petitioners' appeal by letter dated January 7, 1999, Superintendent Roche advised them that they could appeal her decision to the Board of Education and by letter dated January 8, 1999 the petitioners appealed to the Board. By letter dated January 22, 1999, the Board Secretary advised petitioners that the Board considered their appeal and had voted to uphold the Superintendent's decision and deny their request to suspend the disciplinary action given to A.P. However, by letter dated January 29, 1999, the Board Secretary advised petitioners that the Board Policy Committee had been advised by the Board attorney that discipline which involves less than ten out-of-school days are not appealable to the Board and that the sanctions for cutting classes are school, not Board based, procedures.

In this application for emergent relief, petitioners are seeking an order allowing A.P. to take the test he missed and have the grade he receives considered in computing his overall grade. The Department of Education regulation governing applications to the Commissioner for emergent relief provides that the standard for granting such relief is that set forth in Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982). N.J.A.C 6:24-1.5(b). In Crowe, the Supreme Court "recognize[d] that the determination to authorize preliminary relief summons the most sensitive exercise of judicial discretion. In exercising that discretion, courts have been guided traditionally by certain fundamental principles." Id. at 132. Those fundamental principles are as follows: (1) emergent relief should not issue except when necessary to prevent irreparable harm; (2) emergent relief should not be granted when the legal right underlying the applicant's claim is unsettled; (3) emergent relief should not be granted where all material facts are controverted, in other words the applicant must make a preliminary showing of a reasonable probability of ultimate success on the merits and (4) emergent relief should not be granted if the party opposing the application will suffer greater harm if it is granted than the applicant will suffer if it is denied. Crowe v. DeGioia, supra, 90 N.J. at 132-34.

In the instant matter, petitioners have not satisfied the first three criteria for granting emergent relief. A.P.'s current FST grade is a passing one and thus constitutes no threat to his ability to enter college in the fall of 1999. Moreover, it cannot be said on the basis of this application that petitioners' have shown a settled legal right to the relief requested. Petitioners have not cited to any statute, regulation or case law, nor has the undersigned located any such legal authority, to support their argument that discipline of a one-day in-school suspension and zero grade for the missed test for being truant on the morning of December 2, 1998, constitutes arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable action by respondent. Perhaps if it had been firmly established that A.P. was in medical distress that morning, a conclusion that the suspension and refusal to allow A.P. to make up the test was arbitrary could be reached. However, the material facts as to that issue are much disputed and therefore petitioners have not shown a reasonable probability of ultimate success of the merits as to the third criteria. While I do not conclude that the Board would suffer greater harm than petitioners if the emergent relief were granted, the failure of petitioners' application to satisfy three of the four fundamental principles set forth above requires that their application be denied.

ORDER

For the above stated reasons, it is ORDERED that the application for emergent relief be DENIED. This matter shall be retained at the Office of Administrative Law for the holding of a plenary hearing which hearing shall be scheduled expeditiously.

This order may be reviewed by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION either upon interlocutory review, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.10, or at the end of the contested case, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.6.

Mr. Terence P. Mullane, appearing pro se for Petitioner
Martin R. Pachman, Esquire, appearing for Respondent

This matter came before the undersigned as a result of an application for emergent relief filed with the New Jersey Department of Education on or about December 31, 1998. On January 4, 1999, the Department, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.6(c), forwarded the application to the Office of Administrative Law for hearing. On January 13, 1999, the undersigned conducted a hearing at which both parties were permitted to argue orally.

Based upon the application for emergent relief, the Answer filed by the Board and the oral arguments of parties, I find that Petitioner has not sustained his burden under N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.6(g) and N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.5 to meet the requirements of Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1992). Petitioner has failed to demonstrate that the alleged irreparable harm of damaged self-esteem of their child is linked to his denial of participation in the gifted and talented program; has failed to demonstrate even a minute likelihood of prevailing on the ultimate merits of the case; and has failed to demonstrate that the relative harm to the district consisting of having Petitioner's child placed in the gifted and talented program, thus jumping over children with higher scores than Petitioner's child, which would be a disservice to those students and would open the integrity of the gifted and talented program to challenge, is outweighed by any harm to Petitioner.

Therefore, it is on this 29th day of January 1999

ORDERED that the application for emergent relief is denied.

I hereby file this Order denying emergent relief with the Commissioner of Education for consideration.

This recommended Order may be adopted, modified or rejected by the Commissioner of the Department of Education, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this Order within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended Order shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended Order was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the Commissioner of the Department of Education, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

IN THE MATTER OF	:	BEFORE THE SCHOOL ETHICS COMMISSION
RICHARD LONGO and FRANK SEDAGHI, TOMS RIVER BOARD OF EDUCATION OCEAN COUNTY	:	Docket No.: C05-98 and C07-98
	:	DECISION

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This matter arises from two separate complaints against the above-named members of the Toms River Board of Education for violating the School Ethics Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et seq. Kevin Root filed this complaint on February 20, 1998. Therein, he alleges that respondents violated the School Ethics Act when they voted to reappoint the accounting firm of Cowan & Gunteski as Board Auditors in 1997 after having had an employee of that firm serve as their campaign treasurer and use the firm's address as the address of the campaign for reporting purposes.

Respondents Richard Longo and Frank Sedaghi filed separate answers on March 30, 1998 admitting the facts set forth but denying any violation of the School Ethics Act. The Commission investigated the complaint and sent notices advising the parties that the Commission would discuss the matter at its June 23, 1998 meeting. The Commission advised respondents of their right to attend, be represented by counsel and present witnesses. Both appeared before the Commission represented by Craig Wellerson, Esq..

At its public meeting of July 30, 1998, the Commission found no probable cause to credit the allegations that respondents violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(e) as there were no facts to indicate that they accepted the services of the auditor based on the understanding that same were given with an intent to influence them in the discharge of their official duties. However, it found probable cause to credit the allegations that respondents violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) by voting for the auditing firm after being elected to the board. The Commission invited the respondents to file written submissions setting forth why they should not be found in violation of the School Ethics Act. The Commission received a timely joint written submission from Mr. Longo and Mr. Sedaghi on September 11, 1998. The respondents filed a notice of motion along with their written submission, seeking to compel the Commission to reconsider its determination that probable cause exists. Richard Stanzione, Esq. of Hiering, Dupignac & Stanzione filed the written submission on behalf of the respondents. Mr. Root also filed an unsolicited written submission with the Commission, which was also considered in rendering this decision. The Commission now consolidates these cases for the purpose of decision.

FACTS

The following facts are undisputed based on the pleadings, testimony and documents submitted. Mr. Longo and Mr. Sedaghi ran as candidates for the school board in the election of April 1997. They were advised that they were required to submit reports to the Election Law Enforcement Commission (ELEC) and that they needed a campaign treasurer. The respondents chose Darlene Ott, an employee of the Board's auditing firm, Cowan & Gunteski. Mr. Sedaghi knew Ms. Ott from having served together on the Board of Directors of the Ocean County Chamber of Commerce. She agreed to serve as campaign treasurer for Mr. Longo and Mr. Sedaghi and filed all reporting forms with ELEC. Ms. Ott used the address of Cowan & Gunteski as the campaign address on all reporting forms. The last report of the campaign, the 20-day post-election report, was signed by the respondents on May 2, 1997 and filed with ELEC on May 6, 1997.

At the reorganization meeting of the Board on April 22, 1997, Mr. Sedaghi and Mr. Longo voted in favor of reappointing Cowan & Gunteski as auditors for the Board. According to the respondents' written submission, the superintendent recommended reappointment of the firm. At the time of the meeting, the Board attorney advised that they did not have a conflict of interest in voting upon the appointment.

ANALYSIS

Based on the foregoing facts, the Commission found probable cause to credit the allegations that Mr. Longo and Mr. Sedaghi violated the Act by voting on a matter in which they had a personal involvement that might reasonably be expected to impair their objectivity or independence of judgment in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c). The respondents now argue in their written submissions that they should not be found in violation of the act since there are no facts to support a conclusion that Ms. Ott's services were provided based on an understanding that they were given or offered for the purpose of influencing them in the discharge of their official duties.

The issue before the Commission is whether the above facts establish that the two Board members violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) of the School Ethics Act by voting on the reappointment of the auditing firm. Subsection (c) sets forth:

> No school official shall act in his official capacity in any matter where he, a member of his immediate family, or a business organization in which he has an interest, has a direct or indirect financial or personal involvement that might reasonably be expected to impair his objectivity or independence of judgment.

Respondents first argue that they should not be found in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) because neither of them had a financial or personal involvement in Cowan & Gunteski. They argue that there is no allegation that either respondent had a direct or indirect financial involvement with Cowan & Gunteski. Therefore, they argue that the Commission would have to expand the definition of "personal involvement" to find that an employee of the firm serving as a campaign treasurer created such an involvement. They further argue that since the auditor's position was held by Cowan & Gunteski prior to the vote, there was no conflict in voting for the reappointment unless there was a "contradictory desire tugging the official in the other direction," citing Wyzykowski v. Rizas, 132 N.J. 509 (1993).

In a previous decision, the Commission set forth that in order to show a personal involvement, there would have to be facts indicating that there was more than just a casual relationship between the official and the person or entity on which he is voting. In the Matter of Meera Malik and Elizabeth Vasil, C06/C08-98 (September 22, 1998). However, the Commission also noted that the facts do not have to indicate that the respondents stand to derive some financial benefit from the action that the school official is taking. Rather, the Commission finds that as long as an association or relationship is demonstrated that is more than casual or collegial, then there need not be any showing of a financial benefit to demonstrate a personal involvement. This is consistent with the Famularo case, in which a board member was found to have a personal involvement reasonably expected to impair his objectivity when he voted to hire a principal for whom he had served as campaign treasurer for his election to city council. In the Matter of Famularo, C23-96 (February 24, 1998), aff'd Commissioner March 19, 1998. The Commission believes that the present case is more similar to that of Famularo than it is to that of Malik and Vasil. Unlike in the latter case, where persons may contribute money to a campaign without having any established any relationship with the candidates; the candidates must have more than a casual relationship with their campaign treasurer. They have to trust their campaign treasurer enough to be able to certify on their reports that the information that the treasurer has set forth is true and no contribution over the statutory limit has been omitted. When coupled with the use of the firm's address, the above facts demonstrate a personal involvement without a financial benefit.

In the Famularo case, supra, the Administrative Law Judge set forth a restriction that where a school official has been a prominent political official and supporter within a political campaign, he should step aside when the person whom he or she so publicly supported seeks a job with a public body on which the supporter serves. (Initial Decision at p.5). The Commission concludes that the converse also applies. Thus, where a prominent supporter of a school official's political campaign, such as a campaign manager or treasurer, seeks a job with the public body on which the school official serves, the school official should abstain from that decision. Ms. Ott's use of the Cowan & Gunteski address on campaign reports, rather than her own, demonstrates that her service as campaign treasurer was in furtherance of her duties as an employee of the firm, not as a friend of Mr. Sedaghi. Thus, even though she was not a partner of the firm, her service was on behalf of the firm and thus, the respondents had a personal involvement with the firm under N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c).

Thus, the question becomes whether the personal involvement is the type that might reasonably be expected to impair the respondents' objectivity. The respondents argue that the auditor had already served the board for a number of years. Further, they argue in their submission that the auditor was recommended by the superintendent and approved by other board members. In such a case, they argue that the Commission must look to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(e) to see if the services were provided to influence the vote on the auditor appointment. Again, the respondents confuse the statutes. The question under subsection (c) is not whether there was actual influence, but whether the public might reasonably expect that these board members could not be objective in voting to reappoint the firm. None of the cases cited by the respondents address this unique issue. The respondents cite the Commission's decision in Chester Township Board of Education v. Riley and Beatty, C12-98, (June 23, 1998) for the proposition that the board members must stand to receive material or monetary gain as a result of their vote in order to find a violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c). Chester is clearly inapposite as the vote in question involved a bond referendum that the respondents had challenged. In any event, one can certainly argue that Mr. Longo and Mr. Sedaghi received a material benefit from the firm in the form of the services of its employee. In the present case, the firm address was used as the contact address of their campaign and an employee of that firm performed the critical function of serving as their campaign treasurer. Further, the employee of the firm was still serving as the campaign treasurer at the time of the April 22, 1997 vote, as shown by the 20-day post-election report signed on May 2, 1997. In such a case, the Commission believes that a reasonable member of the public would expect that these board members could not be objective in their decision to reappoint the firm. Thus, the Commission concludes that respondents have been shown to have acted in their official capacity in matter in which they have a personal involvement reasonably expected to impair their objectivity in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c).

Last, the respondents argue that the Commission must send this matter to the Office of Administrative Law for a hearing pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29b, which states that "If the commission determines that probable cause exists, it shall refer the matter to the Office of Administrative Law for a hearing to be conducted in accordance with the 'Administrative Procedure Act'"... In the decision, In the Matter of Rodney Bond, C21/24-96 (July 22, 1997), the Commission set forth in full detail its reasons that the Commission was not obligated to transmit a matter to the Office of Administrative Law when there are no facts in dispute. It declines to do so here, except to say that the purpose of such a hearing is for an administrative law judge to find facts. Where, as here, the respondents agree with the Commission's finding that the material facts are not in dispute, there is no reason to transmit this matter to the Office of Administrative Law.

DECISION

For the foregoing reasons, the Commission finds that respondents acted in their official capacity in a matter in which they had a personal involvement which might reasonably be expected to impair their objectivity in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c). The Commission considers as mitigating factors the fact that the auditing firm had served the board for several years prior to the vote in question and that the Board attorney advised the respondents that they had no conflict of interest. The Commission therefore recommends to the Commissioner of Education that Mr. Longo and Mr. Sedaghi receive a sanction of reprimand.

This matter shall now be transmitted to the Commissioner of Education for action on the Commission's recommendation for sanction only, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29. Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which the Commission's decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written comments on the recommended sanction with the Commissioner of Education, c/o Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, NJ 08625, marked "Attention: Comments on Ethics Commission Sanction." A copy of any comments filed must be sent to the School Ethics Commission and all other parties.

AGENCY DKT. NO. 488-10/98

IN THE MATTER OF RICHARD LONGO	:
AND FRANK SEDAGHI, TOMS RIVER	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION, OCEAN COUNTY.	:	DECISION

The record of this matter and the decision of the School Ethics Commission ("Commission") have been reviewed. Comments urging rejection of the Commission's determination and recommended penalty were timely filed by respondents. Additionally, on January 20, 1999, attorney for respondents filed a motion seeking that the Commissioner stay his determination in this matter pending appeal of the underlying Commission determination to the State Board of Education. The Complainant in the matter before the Commission filed a timely objection to such stay.

Initially, the Commissioner notes that N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.1(a)3 expressly provides that appeal of School Ethics Commission decisions finding violation of the School Ethics Act may be taken to the State Board "at such time as the Commissioner's decision regarding the sanction has been rendered," so that a stay of determination by the Commissioner pending appeal to the State Board would be contrary to rule. Accordingly, the Commissioner denies respondents' motion to defer decision on the recommended sanction.

The Commissioner further notes that his sole role in matters of this type, as established by statute, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29, is to consider whether the penalty recommended by the Commission is appropriate in view of the Commission's underlying determination that a respondent's actions constituted a violation of the School Ethics Act; that determination, which is expressly not reviewable by the Commissioner, is instead appealed directly to the State Board. In effect, while the Commissioner may not agree with the Commission's underlying determination, he must proceed from the premise that it is correct, and then assess whether the recommended penalty is appropriate based upon it.

Therefore, upon a thorough review of the record, given that the Commission has determined that a violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(c) occurred and that a penalty from among those prescribed at N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c) and N.J.A.C. 6:3-9.19(c) is warranted for each respondent, and given that the Commissioner may not review this determination herein, the Commissioner concurs with the Commission's recommendation that the lowest penalty of reprimand is appropriate in this matter. The Commissioner additionally concludes, however, that implementation of such penalty is appropriately stayed until such time as the State Board rules on respondents' appeal.

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED that, contingent upon a finding by the State Board of Education that a violation of the School Ethics Act occurred and that the penalty recommended by the Commission and herein affirmed by the Commissioner is warranted, Richard Longo and Frank Sedaghi each be reprimanded as a school official found to have violated the School Ethics Act.[1]

TRENTON BOARD OF EDUCATION,	:
Respondent.	:	SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT

Cheryle Malach, residing at 1243 Chanticleer, Cherry Hill, New Jersey 08003 (hereinafter "Ms. Malach"), and the Board of Education of the City of Trenton (hereinafter the "Board"), stipulate and agree that, in consideration of the mutual promises of the parties and in exchange for the consideration more particularly noted below, it is hereby agreed:

1. In return for compliance with this Agreement, Ms. Malach agrees to the dismissal, with prejudice, of the above-captioned litigation. Ms. Malach will continue to retain all tenure and seniority rights to which she is entitled based on all periods of service to the Board and based on the terms of this Agreement. The dismissal of this matter shall not be deemed a waiver of tenure or seniority rights which have accrued prior to its filing, or thereafter. Ms. Malach releases and waives any and all claims to back salary and/or back benefits, except as provided in this Agreement.

2. In return for compliance with this Agreement, the Board agrees as follows:

(a) Within 30 calendar days of the approval of this settlement by the Commissioner of Education, the Board will pay Ms. Malach mitigated back salary for the 1997-98 school year in the gross amount of $13,856.66. Said amount shall be subject to all normal payroll deductions including, but not limited to, retroactive contributions to the Teachers' Pension and Annuity Fund covering the 1997-98 school year. Said pension contributions shall be submitted by the Board to the Pension Fund with an explanation designating those contributions as relating to the 1997-98 school year.

As part of the mitigation used in calculating this back salary, the Board has retained the amount of $2,856. This sum is attributable to the amount received by Ms.Malach from the New Jersey Division of Unemployment Insurance during the period July 1, 1997 through June 30, 1998. It is agreed that, upon request by the Division (whether made to Ms. Malach or the Board), the Board shall remit the withheld monies to the Division. The Board shall hold Ms. Malach harmless as to any claim by the Division of Unemployment Insurance for a refund of monies, interest or penalties as to unemployment compensation received by her during the time period specified herein. A notice to the Division confirming the award of back pay and the retention of the funds by the Board shall be sent by Ms. Malach or her attorney within 30 days of her receipt of back salary.

(b) Within 30 days of the approval of this settlement by the Commissioner of Education, the Board will pay Ms. Malach the sum of $3,557.34 representing the cost of replacement health insurance incurred by Ms. Malach during the 1997-98 school year. This amount does not constitute back salary and shall be paid in a lump sum without any deductions of any type. Ms. Malach shall be solely responsible for payment of State and/or Federal income taxes due on this amount, if any.

(c) The Board shall credit Ms. Malach's record of accumulated sick leave days with an additional 15 days attributable to the 1997-98 school year. She shall also retain all previously accumulated but unused sick leave days for future use.

(d) For purposes of retirement only and pursuant to Article VII(E) of the collective agreement covering teaches in the district, Ms. Malach will be credited with three (3) additional sick leave days attributable to her unused personal days from the 1997-98 school year. Ms. Malach's sick leave credit for retirement purposes shall also include any previously accrued credit for retirement purposes.

(e) Ms. Malach's seniority shall be credited with one (1) additional year attributable to the 1997-98 school year.

She shall retain all previously accrued seniority and tenure rights.

(f) Ms. Malach shall be reinstated as a full-time teacher within the scope of her educational certificate and endorsement beginning with the 1998-99 school year. Her salary shall be calculated based on the collective bargaining agreement for teachers in the Trenton School District based on her previous salary guide placement together with salary guide credit for the 1997-98 school year.

(g) Effective on or before September 1, 1998, Ms. Malach shall be entitled to all of the benefits and emoluments which are normally provided to full-time teachers in the district (including, but not limited to, all forms of health and medical insurance) including all rights specified in the collective agreement, Board policy, past practice, or otherwise. For all purposes, the Board will consider Ms. Malach to have been employed on a full-time basis for the 1997-98 school year in calculating any right, benefit or emolument due to her hereafter from whatever source.

3. The undersigned representatives of the Board hereby acknowledge that they have been duly authorized by the Board to sign this Agreement and bind the Board to its terms.

4. The parties recognize that each has been represented by legal counsel of her or its own choosing and that they sign this Agreement as their own voluntary act and deed, and that they fully understand the duties and obligations enumerated herein.

5. This Agreement shall be subject to the laws of the State of New Jersey.

6. All terms of this Agreement are deemed material. This document may not be altered, amended or modified except by an instrument executed in writing by the parties.

7. This Agreement is subject to the approval of the Administrative Law Judge and the Commissioner of Education and shall be of no force or effect unless such approval is received. In the event that such approval is not given, the parties shall be returned to the status quo existing prior to this Agreement.

IN THE MATTER OF THE :

DISQUALIFICATION FROM : COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

SCHOOL EMPLOYMENT OF J.W. : DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Matter of disqualification of a school bus driver was remanded by the State Board to the Commissioner for reconsideration and clarification because no cases existed regarding the disqualification of a school employee upon conviction for possession of drug paraphernalia, and the question presented was one of first impression. Commissioner transmitted the remanded matter to OAL for hearing and determination consistent with the State Board's February 4, 1998 decision, which limited the remand to the specific directive relating to the legal issue presented and not on the question of rehabilitation.

ALJ concluded that after analysis of the situation presented, the Legislature intended that a criminal conviction of a person for possession of drug paraphernalia disqualifies that individual from employment as a school bus driver, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:39-19.1. ALJ granted summary decision to the Office of Criminal History Review and denied appellant's cross-application for summary decision. Appeal was dismissed subject to transmittal to the Commissioner and thereafter to the State Board.

Commissioner concurred with the ALJ's conclusion that J.W. was properly disqualified from school employment. In response to the State Board's directive that the Commissioner consider whether inchoate crimes also come within the purview of N.J.S.A. 18A:39-19.1 and N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1, in light of the absence of legislation on this question, the Commissioner finds that the recent amendments to those statutes, which now expressly include conspiracy to commit or an attempt to commit any of the crimes described in the act, render his consideration of this issue unnecessary for purposes of prospective agency policy. Commissioner transmitted the matter to the State Board, which retained jurisdiction.

THE DISQUALIFICATION FROM

Terri A. Cutrera, Deputy Attorney General, for respondent, Office of Criminal History Review, New Jersey Department of Education
(Peter Verniero, Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney)

Record Closed: December 10 , 1998 Decided: January 19, 1999

BEFORE ARNOLD SAMUELS, ALJ:

This is an appeal by the petitioner, J.W., from a determination by respondent, the Office of Criminal History Review, New Jersey Department of Education, that petitioner was disqualified from further employment as a school bus driver, because a criminal history record review revealed that on March 10, 1992 she had been convicted of possession of drug paraphernalia.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On March 10, 1992 the petitioner, J.W., a school bus driver for the Hudson County Schools of Technology, was convicted of possession of drug paraphernalia, N.J.S.A. 2C:36-2.

Five years later, in March 1997, the Office of Criminal History Review of the Department of Education notified petitioner that she was disqualified from continued employment as a school bus driver in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:39-19.1 et seq., because of the conviction. The information upon which the Office of Criminal History Review acted had been disclosed following a routine fingerprint search conducted through the New Jersey State Police and the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

The petitioner filed a timely appeal from her disqualification to the Commissioner of Education (Commissioner). She did not challenge the accuracy of the criminal record, but claimed that she had been rehabilitated, in accordance with the standards enumerated in N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1e. The Assistant Commissioner of Education denied the appeal, stating that too little time had passed to find rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence. This decision stated that petitioner was not precluded from applying for reconsideration upon the passage of additional time without further incident.

The petitioner filed an appeal from the above decision to the State Board of Education (State Board). This appeal, in addition to contesting the decision relating to rehabilitation, argued that a conviction for possession of drug paraphernalia was not a disqualifying offense under N.J.S.A. 18A:39-19.1.

The State Board reversed the decision of the Assistant Commissioner, and in a letter opinion dated September 3, 1997, agreed with the petitioner and found that a conviction for possession of drug paraphernalia was not a disqualifying offense under N.J.S.A. 18A:39-19.1.

The Commissioner of Education interceded, and in September 1997 filed a motion to participate in the matter, because of the broad policy implications at issue and because the Assistant Commissioner had not had the opportunity to consider the petitioner's "nondisqualifying offense" argument.

In February 1998 the State Board of Education agreed with the Commissioner's motion for reconsideration and clarification. The Board remanded the case to the Commissioner because no cases existed regarding the disqualification of a school employee upon conviction for possession of drug paraphernalia, and the question presented was one of first impression, which needed to be further evaluated. The question of rehabilitation was not part of the Commissioner's motion to participate or the decision to remand the matter.

On February 26, 1998 the Department of Education transmitted the remanded matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for hearing and determination consistent with the State Board's decision of February 4, 1998. The remand was limited only to the specific State Board directive relating to the legal issue presented and not on the question of rehabilitation.

The parties filed cross motions for summary decision in September and October 1998. A hearing date for oral argument on the cross motions was scheduled for December 8, 1998. Briefs and other supporting papers had previously been filed by the parties, both of whom appeared on December 8, 1998 for oral argument. They agreed that a summary decision, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b) was appropriate.

FACTS

All of the pertinent and material facts are stated above, in the procedural history. The parties agreed that no genuine issues of material fact exist.

LEGAL DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS

A Summary Decision may be granted "if the papers and discovery which have been filed, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law." N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b).

"A summary judgment proceeding is designed to allow the judge to quickly and inexpensively dispose of any case which does not present any genuine issue of material fact requiring disposition at a hearing." Judson v. People's Bank and Trust Co. of Westfield 17 N.J. 67, 74 (1954). See also, Robin Brill v. The Guardian Life Insurance Co. 142 N.J. 520 (1995).

Since the parties agree that no genuine issues of material fact remain to be resolved, this matter is appropriate for summary decision.

The single question raised in this matter is whether a conviction for possession of drug paraphernalia should disqualify a school bus driver from employment. Is the possession of drug paraphernalia the equivalent of a conviction for possession of a controlled dangerous substance? N.J.S.A. 18A:39-19.1 provides that a "school bus driver shall be disqualified from employment of service if the individual's criminal history record reveals a record of conviction of [certain described] crimes and offenses." Such a disqualification will occur upon proof of a crime or offense including one . . . . .

> . . . . involving the manufacture, transportation, sale, possession, or habitual use of a 'controlled dangerous substance' as defined in the 'New Jersey Controlled Dangerous Substances Act,' P.L. 1970, c. 226 (C. 24:21-1 et seq.) "
> N.J.S.A. 18A:39-19.1b.

Read literally, the statute provides for disqualification where the crime or offense involves the use of a controlled dangerous substance. It does not actually mention drug paraphernalia. Relying on a strict interpretation, the petitioner argues that the statute does not apply in the instant situation because drug paraphernalia is not mentioned. Petitioner further states that the use of the words "controlled dangerous substance" in the statute implies that the legislature intended to exclude "drug paraphernalia" from the statute, because that term was not included. According to this interpretation, petitioner reasons that the legislature's specific mention of drug paraphernalia in other statutes, but omission of that term in the subject statute, indicates it's specific intention to exclude conviction for possession of drug paraphernalia, when the statute is applied to the disqualification of school bus drivers from employment.

Part of the petitioner's argument attempts to evoke a canon of construction: inclusio unius est exclusio alterius, "the inclusion of one is the exclusion of another."

However, this canon is not to be applied unless it is clear that the Legislature intended the result brought about by such an analysis. As stated by the New Jersey Supreme Court, "[a]t best, this maxim is merely an aid in determining the Legislature's intent, not a rule of law." Allstate Ins. Co. v. Malec 104 N.J. 1, 8 (1986). See also Bunk v. Port Authority of New York and New Jersey 144 N.J. 176, 190 (1966), ("Canon's of construction, such as inclusio unius est exclusio alterius, the inclusion of one is the exclusion another, must yield to the paramount canon - that of legislative intent."); Township Committee of Neptune v. Stagg 312 N.J. Super 312, 318 (App. Div. 1988), ("[T]he cannon [sic] of inclusio unius est exclusio alterius should be applied only when the implication is clear and compelling."). Careful application of the doctrine is necessary in order to avoid a result contrary to that intended by the Legislature.

The general rule of statutory construction requires an examination of the language of the statute to determine whether the language is clear or ambiguous and susceptible of more than one interpretation. "If the statute is clear and unambiguous on it's face and admits of only one interpretation, we need delve no deeper than the act's literal terms to define the Legislature's intent." State v. Butler 89 N.J. 220, 226 (1982); Township Committee of Neptune v. Stagg, supra. Language is given its ordinary and primary meaning unless there is legislative intent to the contrary. See Kingsley v. Hawthorn Fabrics Inc, 41 N.J. 521, 526 (1964); Merin v. Maglaki 126 N.J. 430, 434-435 (1992); Service Armament Co. v. Hyland 70 N.J. 550, 556 (1976); GE Solid State, Inc. v. Director, Division of Taxation, 132 N.J. 298 307 (1993). "However, if a literal reading of the statute does not lead to a sensible result, then such a reading should be rejected." Township Committee of Neptune v. Stagg, supra, 312 N.J. Super at 316.

In the instant matter, a literal reading of the statute, coupled with the canon of construction of inclusio unius est exclusio alterius, "the inclusion of one is the exclusion of another," leads to the anomalous result that one who is convicted of possession of a controlled dangerous substance can be terminated from employment as a school bus driver, but a person who is convicted of possession of the paraphernalia used in connection with that same controlled dangerous substance can remain employed as a school bus driver. Such a close and narrow reading of the language does not lead to a sensible result.

The same reasoning applies to consideration of the effect, if any, of the Legislature's actions in expressly including drug paraphernalia in N.J.S.A. 2C:35-16.1 and N.J.S.A. 2A:18-61.1. This comment is in direct response to the State Board's direction in the last sentence of the first paragraph on page 6 of it's decision of February 4, 1998. The foregoing statutes, relating to the eviction of tenants from rental premises, are of doubtful relevance to the crucial safety concerns involved in the transportation of children in school buses. The reasoning set forth by respondent on pages 10, 11 and 12 of its brief, dated September 24, 1998, is consistent with this point of view. There simply is no nexus between the Civil Eviction Code and the qualifications for employment of school bus drivers.

As stated above, the literal close interpretation of the statute, N.J.S.A. 18A:39-19.1b can lead to an absurd result. If a person who is convicted of a crime involving the transportation of drug paraphernalia, that is necessarily intended to be used with a controlled dangerous substance, is not to be disqualified from employment, even though he or she is aware of the obvious and single use for the paraphernalia, a totally different result is reached from one who possesses the drugs. Timing becomes critical, and such an interpretation defies logic. The person who has the paraphernalia that is designed to be used with the drugs in another time and place is not enough of a threat to school children to exclude that individual from employment as a school bus driver; but the person who has the paraphernalia and has drugs in the same location is enough of a threat to be excluded from employment. This application of the plain statutory language, in a hypothetical example, indicates how absurd the result would be if the text of the statute is so strictly construed.

Here, the language of the statute is not as plain and clear as it may initially seem to be. Although it appears to be reasonably clear, it can nevertheless be interpreted two ways. The strict and narrow interpretation, using the precise words of the statute, disqualifies a school bus driver from employment if a criminal history reveals "[a] crime or offense involving the manufacture, transportation, sale, possession or habitual use of a 'controlled dangerous substance' as defined in the 'New Jersey Controlled Dangerous Substances Act.'" N.J.S.A. 18A:39-19.1b. A second interpretation of the statute, argued by respondent, is that a conviction for possession of controlled dangerous substances, or drug paraphernalia alone, triggers disqualification from employment as a school bus driver.

The Office of Criminal History Review, N.J. Department of Education states that it has long interpreted the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:39-19.1b to include convictions for possession of drug paraphernalia, as provided in N.J.S.A. 2C:36-2.

> It shall be unlawful for any person to use, or to possess with intent to use, drug paraphernalia to plant, propagate, cultivate, grow, harvest, manufacture, compound, convert, produce, process, prepare, test, analyze, pack, repack, store, contain, conceal, ingest, inhale, or otherwise to introduce into the human body a controlled dangerous substance or controlled dangerous substance analog in violation of the provisions of Chapter 35 of this title. N.J.S.A. 2C:36-2.

According to the Office of Criminal History Review, a conviction under N.J.S.A. 2C:36-2 (for use or possession of drug paraphernalia) is a conviction for a crime "involving" the manufacture, use, possession, or habitual use of a controlled dangerous substance, so that such convictions, for possession of drug paraphernalia, fall within the ambit of N.J.S.A. 18A:39-19.1.

Deference is granted to the long standing interpretations of a statute and regulations by the administrative agency created to enforce those statutes and regulations. See State, Department of Environmental Protection v. Stavola, 103 N.J. 425 (1986); Malone v. Fender 80 N.J. 129 (1979). It is well settled that the interpretation of a statute by the agency entrusted with the responsibility for its enforcement is entitled to weight. Mercer County v. State, Dept. of Treasury, 193 N.J. Super 229, 233 (App. Div. 1984).

Whether according to the language of the statute or with the use of common sense, possession of drug paraphernalia is unlawful precisely because of the immutable connection between drug paraphernalia and controlled dangerous substances. Both parties agree that the possession or introduction of controlled dangerous substances into one's body is illegal and disqualifies school bus drivers from employment. It is also not disputed that drug paraphernalia is the vehicle used to introduce controlled dangerous substances into the body. Using this syllogism, the obvious conclusion is that possession of drug paraphernalia is illegal and also results in the disqualification of school bus drivers from employment.

The argument presented by the respondent necessarily favors the second, more liberal interpretation of the statute, rather than the narrow construction of the petitioner's interpretation. The second interpretation relies on the very definition of drug paraphernalia and the corollary that drug paraphernalia only exists to be used in connection with a controlled dangerous substance. To be convicted of possessing drug paraphernalia, there must also be either a controlled dangerous substance or the intent to use a controlled dangerous substance in connection with the paraphernalia. The statute makes any "crime or offense involving the manufacture, transportation, sale, possession, or habitual use of a 'controlled dangerous substance'" a predicate for disqualification from employment as a school bus driver. N.J.S.A. 18A:39-19.1b.

A person who is disqualified under this section may, nonetheless, be eligible for employment or re-employment as a school bus driver by proving rehabilitation.[1] However, that is a separate matter not considered herein. The petitioner was charged with and convicted of possession of narcotic equipment. The drug paraphernalia was found in her car after she had driven a friend to a specific location to buy cocaine. Although petitioner did not buy the drugs, her friend apparently did, and she drove him away from the area after he brought the drugs. The car was later stopped, and the two occupants were arrested. See, Affidavit of J.W. in Support of Appeal.

The events described by J.W. in her Affidavit in Support of Appeal constitute a "crime . . . involving the . . . transportation [or] possession . . . of a 'controlled dangerous substance.'" N.J.S.A. 18A:39-19.1b. Even if the conviction was limited to a conviction for possession of narcotics equipment, that conviction for possession of drug paraphernalia is one which involves the use, transportation or possession of a drug.[2]

[1] The statute was recently amended so that evidence of rehabilitation is no longer considered. However, the form of the statute in existence at the time of the subject offense allowed proof of rehabilitation to be introduced. See N.J.S.A. 18A:39-19.1, effective July 1, 1989, which was in effect when the offense was committed. See also N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 and N.J.S.A. 18A:39-19-1, as amended by the General Assembly on June 25, 1998.

[2] Respondent's argument is coherent regarding this interpretation. See Respondent's brief, page 6-8. The petitioner's summarization of respondent's argument mischaracterizes and confuses that argument. See Petitioner's brief in Support of Cross Motion for Summary Decision and in Opposition to Respondent's Motion for Summary Decision ("Petitioner's Brief"), pgs 10-11.

The focus in not solely on the words "use, transportation or possession," but rather spans the entire phrase so that it is it more broadly construed to include a crime or offense involving transportation, use or possession of drugs. As explained above, possession, transportation, or use or intended possession, transportation or use of drugs is a prerequisite to a conviction for possession of drugs paraphernalia.[3] The conviction for possession of narcotics equipment therefore is a crime involving the possession or transportation of a controlled dangerous substance.

Such an interpretation does not demonstrate that the agency acted "ultra vires by interpreting a statute beyond its clear meaning and intent," despite the insistence of the petitioner. The intent of the Legislature is not so clear as to permit only one interpretation of the statute. Strict construction of the language leads to an anomalous result and fails to consider the health, safety and welfare of school children. The Legislature's intent was to protect children by disqualifying from employment as school employees those who have criminal records involving or concerning controlled dangerous substances. Rather than allowing broad, unfettered discretion to decide when someone should be disqualified from school employment, the Legislature designated certain types of convictions, namely sexual offenses, child molestation and drug offenses or violent crimes as offenses that trigger disqualification. N.J.S.A. 18A:39-19.1.

Furthermore, concerning the analysis of the Legislature's intent, the New Jersey Supreme Court has noted:

> Words are to be given their common acceptance and usage; but the intent of the Legislature is to be deduced from the occasion and necessity of the law and the remedy in view, bearing in mind the subordinate rule in aid of intention that particular words may be enlarged or restricted in meaning by their associates and the evident spirit of the whole expression. We look for the sense and reason of the law. Salz v. State House Commission 18 N.J. 106, 111 (1955).

Viewed in terms of the public interest sought to be served by the statute, the language of N.J.S.A. 18A:39-19.1 is sufficiently broad, and the common understanding of the entire phrase comprising N.J.S.A. 18A:39-19.1b ("involving the manufacture, transportation, sale, possession, or habitual use of a 'controlled dangerous substance'") leads to a commonsensible conclusion that a conviction for possession of drug paraphernalia fits within the scope of a natural reading of the statute. The word "involving" is sufficiently expansive to support such a reasonable interpretation.

CONCLUSION

The general rule of statutory construction dictates that words be given their ordinary and well-understood meaning. However, where there is legislative intent to the contrary, and where the literal language of a statute does not lead to a sensible result, a strict interpretation of the literal text is inappropriate. Here, the language does not allow for only one interpretation, and two interpretations exist. In such a case, the Legislature's intent and common sense are to be analyzed and invoked. Such an analysis leads to a reasonable conclusion that a strict interpretation is not appropriate. The broader interpretation, as espoused by the respondent, more closely comports with the true legislative intent.

It is CONCLUDED, that after analysis of the situation presented, the Legislature intended that a criminal conviction of a person for possession of drug paraphernalia disqualifies that individual from employment as a school bus driver, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:39-19.1.

ORDER

It is therefore ORDERED that Summary Decision be GRANTED to the Office of Criminal History Review. The petitioner's cross application for summary decision is DENIED and the appeal dismissed; subject to transmittal of this matter to the Commissioner of Education and thereafter to the State Board of Education, in accordance with its retention of jurisdiction.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 1829-98
AGENCY DKT. NO. DHP-B 46-97

IN THE MATTER OF THE	:
DISQUALIFICATION FROM	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Appellant's exceptions and the agency's reply thereto are duly noted as submitted in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4, and were considered by the Commissioner in rendering the within decision.

Upon careful and independent review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner concurs with the Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) conclusion that J.W. was properly disqualified from school employment in that a conviction for the Possession of Narcotic Equipment, or Drug Paraphernalia, is

> A crime or offense involving the manufacture, transportation, sale, possession, or habitual use of a "controlled dangerous substance" as defined in the "New Jersey Controlled Dangerous Substances Act," P.L. 1970, c. 226 (C. 24:21-1 et seq.). (emphasis added) N.J.S.A. 18A:39-19.1b.

J.W. was convicted in 1992 for Possession of Narcotic Equipment, in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:36-2. That statute provides that dangerous substance or controlled substance analog in violation of the provisions of chapter 35 of this title. N.J.S.A. 2C:36-2

Thus, a conviction pursuant to this section is predicated upon an individual's actual use of drug paraphernalia with a controlled dangerous substance (CDS) or upon a person's intent to use the drug paraphernalia in conjunction with a CDS. Indeed, respondent notes that the Attorney General's February 9, 1981 Guidelines Governing Enforcement of The New Jersey Drug Paraphernalia Act state, in pertinent part, that "[a] prosecution for use [of drug paraphernalia] or possession with intent to use [drug paraphernalia] may not be undertaken unless the object is found near CDS or contains residue, or the possessor makes an inculpatory statement." (Respondent's Brief, Appendix at Ra21)* It can be reasonably concluded, therefore, that a person convicted under N.J.S.A. 2C:36-2, was either using or intending to use the drug equipment with a CDS and as such, has committed an offense "involving the manufacture, transportation, possession, sale or use of a CDS" so as to disqualify her from school employment pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:39-19.1b and N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 et seq., as these statutes existed prior to their amendment on July 1, 1998. The Commissioner, therefore, rejects appellant's argument that the Department of Education's interpretation of 18A:39-19.1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 et seq, "adds something" to the criminal history record check statutes which is not there in order to effectuate a policy concern. (Appellant's Exceptions at p. 5)

Moreover, as the ALJ observes and appellant does not refute, J.W.'s affidavit may reasonably be read to conclude that her "crime. . .involv[ed] the. . .transportation [and] possession. . ." of a CDS, as she admits that she drove a friend to a location where he could purchase cocaine, then, after he purchased the drugs, "drove the car away from the area." (Appellant's Brief before the State Board of Education, July 17, 1997, at Aa5; Initial Decision at p. 9) Appellant "acknowledged her guilt" as to her violating N.J.S.A. 2C:36-2. (Appellant's Brief at p. 3)

* In this regard, the Commissioner finds it noteworthy that when adopting P.L. 1980, c. 133, the predecessor to N.J.S.A. 2C:36-1 et seq., the Law, Public Safety and Defense Committee "agreed that requiring that an object be used or intended for use in connection with illicit drugs to determine if it can be considered to be drug paraphernalia is adequate and provides 'fair warning' to persons in possession of property potentially subject to this bill."

Like the ALJ, the Commissioner rejects the significance of the Legislature's express inclusion of the term "drug paraphernalia" in statutes such as N.J.S.A. 2C:35-16.1 and N.J.S.A. 2A:18-61.1, where such statutes bear no convincing nexus to the criminal history record check statutes. Moreover, that the Legislature has expressly included offenses involving drug paraphernalia in its recent amendments to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 18 A:39-19.1 is not necessarily dispositive of appellant's claim, as she urges, in that the Senate Education Committee in adopting the revisions specified that it "amended the bill to further refine the list of crimes and offenses for which an individual may be disqualified from employment in a school district." (emphasis added) (Respondent's Brief at Ra19, Senate Education Committee Statement to S. 851)

Finally, in response to the State Board's direction that the Commissioner consider whether inchoate crimes also come within the purview of N.J.S.A. 18A:39-19.1 and N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1, in light of the absence of legislation on this question, the Commissioner finds that the recent amendments to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 and 18A: 39-19.1, which now expressly include conspiracy to commit or an attempt to commit any of the crimes described in the act, (Respondent's Brief at Ra28) render his consideration of this issue unnecessary for purposes of prospective agency policy.

(Respondent's Brief, Appendix at Ra17, Assembly Judiciary, Law, Public Safety and Defense Committee, S. No. 1021)

Accordingly, the initial decision of the ALJ is modified, as set forth above. The Commissioner transmits this matter to the State Board of Education which has retained jurisdiction.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

WESLEY M. SMITH,
Petitioner,
v.
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF HAZLET, MONMOUTH COUNTY,
Respondent.

Wesley M. Smith, petitioner, pro se

Michael Gross, Esq., for respondent (Kenney, Gross & Kovach, attorneys)

BEFORE JOHN R. FUTEY, ALJ:

This matter closed on February 10, 1999 before John R. Futey, Administrative Law Judge.

Petitioner, Wesley M. Smith, (Smith) seeks relief from the decision of the Board of Education of the Township of Hazlet, Monmouth County, (Board) which removed him as a Board member because he failed to attend three consecutive meetings of the Board. Smith contends that the actions of the Board in removing him were arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable and that he provided "good cause" to excuse him for such absences. In fact, both sides acknowledged that Smith missed four consecutive Board meetings, to wit, September 14 and 26 and October 5 and 13, 1998. He also maintains that other Board members have missed four meetings without suffering removal. The Board responds it has acted properly and its actions were not arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable under the circumstances.

NEW JERSEY IS AN EQUAL OPPORTUNITY EMPLOYER

The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on January 7, 1999 and was heard on an emergent basis at the Office of Administrative Law, Mercerville, New Jersey on February 8, 1999. After testimony was taken and arguments were heard, the record remained open in order to allow the Board attorney to provide a copy of the minutes of the October 22, 1998 executive closed session, at which time the issue regarding Smith's removal was raised, discussed and voted upon. Upon receipt of those redacted minutes by way of telefax (R-1), the hearing record closed on February 10, 1999.

Two witnesses testified briefly regarding the merits of the matter, being petitioner Smith and the Board's Vice-President, Richard Barney. In addition, Smith presented a hearing packet (P-1) and the Board presented a copy of the resolution adopted by the Board on October 22, 1998 (R-1), and, subsequently, a copy of the executive session board minutes as aforesaid (R-2). The relevant proofs reveal that Smith failed to attend four consecutive Board meetings, as cited hereinabove, and proferred the following explanations regarding his non-attendance for each of the meetings, to wit:

(1) September 14, 1998, "Just prior to this our household was hit with a flu-like virus. On this day, my wife, Lisa Merizio Smith, was taken ill and did not want to handle our 14-month old son and risk infecting him too. Therefore, with no family available to assist, and no one trustworthy in the area, I elected to stay home and take care of my family . . . . I did phone Tim Nogueira and Tom Sansevero to notify both of this situation."

(2) September 26, 1998, "I had in fact contracted the same flu-like symptoms and was incapable of moving let alone attend a meeting. Instead of risking infecting the rest of the Board and others, I elected to stay home. I did phone Tim Nogueira and Tom Sansevero to notify both of this situation."

(3) October 5, 1998, "My wife's company was preparing for its annual conference starting October 9 through October 14, 1998 in San Francisco. As in prior years, this usually means many late hours at work in Manhattan and unfortunately, this night was no exception. She did try to plan her day accordingly, but last minute conference details kept her at work until 9:00 p.m. With the commute home it was too late to attend this meeting. I was unable to call anyone since the meeting had already started."

(4) October 13, 1998, "Again my wife is in San Francisco at this conference, and again, with no one trustworthy in the area, I elected to stay home. Copy of airline ticket is proof of this trip. I did phone Tim Nogueira and Tom Sansevero to notify both of this situation."

Petitioner Smith also maintains that two other Board members have received different treatment in the way their absences from Board meetings have been handled. Specifically, Board member Richard Barney was absent from January 27 through April 16, 1998 and was never penalized for his non-attendance at Board meetings. Further, Board member Dorothy O'Connor missed six consecutive meetings between March 12 and April 6, 1998, with no adverse determination being made regarding those absences. However, Smith conceded that in both cases the parties were hospitalized for their afflictions. Further, he acknowledged that the absences of both of these Board members occurred in the Board year which ended in April 1998. Further, he acknowledged that even though the Board had the exact same composition as it did last year, there had been no other incidents in the current Board year which began at the end of April 1998 in which a Board member suffered any extended illnesses similar to either Barney or O'Connor.

The Board asserts that its action in demanding compliance by Smith was neither arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. Further, it maintained that he had not provided good cause to excuse him from attending any of the four meetings cited hereinabove. Further, the fact that a prior Board may have treated absences less stringently than the present Board does not prevent the current Board from demanding steadfast adherence to the attendance policy. A review of the October 22, 1998 executive closed session reveals that the Board did discuss the issue of Smith's four absences but rejected his explanation by a seven to one vote (excluding Smith's own negative vote). At the same time, Dr. Sansevero stated that he may have been notified of Smith's absences on several occasions but he never gave Smith any approval to miss any of them. Mr. Nogueira claimed that Smith never gave him any prior notice.

ANALYSIS AND FINDINGS

Based upon all the foregoing, I have had a complete opportunity to review the testimony and arguments advanced in this matter. Emergency relief is authorized by N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.5 as well as N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.6. The standards which are applicable to a request for emergency relief in administrative proceedings are analogous to those applied in the courts of law and equity. The most relevant statement of standards can be found in Crowe v. DeGiora, 90 N.J. 126, 132-134 (1982) and may be summarized as follows:

(1) The relief should not be granted except when necessary to prevent irreparable harm, or harm for which there is no adequate legal remedy.

(2) Relief should not be granted when the legal right underlying the applicant's claim is unsettled.

(3) The applicant for relief must make a preliminary showing on a reasonable probability of ultimate success on the merits, and, finally,

(4) The relative hardship to the parties in granting or denying relief must be considered, cited specifically at pages 132 through 134 of the above cited case.

In dealing with these standards, the court pointed out that severe personal inconvenience may constitute irreparable injury, citing Hodge v. Geiss, 43 N.J.Eq. 342, 350 (Ch. 1887) and that pecuniary damages may be inadequate because of the nature of the injury or of the right affected, citing *Outdoor Sports Corp. v. American Federation of Labo*r, Local 23132, 6 N.J. 217, 229 and 230 (1951); as well as Sherman v. Stern, 93 N.J.Eq. 626, 631 (1922). The Court also observed that the requirement for showing a reasonable probability of success on the merits is tempered by the principle that mere doubt as to the validity of the claim is not an adequate basis for refusing to maintain the status quo since that is the purpose of temporary relief.

N.J.S.A. 18A:12-3 states that any Board of Education member who fails to attend three consecutive meetings of the Board without good cause may be removed by it. (Emphasis added) The Board contends that the fact that it voted seven to two (including Smith's "no" vote) to remove Smith summarily indicates its rejection of his explanations regarding each of the four meetings and that should be sufficient reason to deny Smith relief at this time. In the process, it maintains that the Administrative Law Judge cannot substitute his/her judgment in favor of the Board where it has so acted. However, I FIND that the Administrative Procedure Act mandates a hearing de novo on issues properly transmitted by an agency to the O.A.L., which is then charged with the responsibility to conduct and present appropriate fact findings, conclusions, and recommended action back to the transmitting agency. At the same time, the Board conceded that it had no facts to dispute the excuses presented by Smith regarding his nonappearance at each of the individual meetings. Therefore they must be accepted as being true.

In addition, since the Board has failed to present or articulate any duly promulgated standards by which one could be excused from attendance (ie., to demonstrate the good cause exception), absent any such definable standards, one must employ a reasonable standard in order to gauge the adequacy of the Board's action in removing Smith.

It must be remembered that removal of a Board member after three missed meetings is not mandatory. It remains discretionary and subject to proof of good cause. There is no proof that the Board either requested medical verification of illness or challenged the legitimacy of it at all. In addition, there is no valid claim that Smith failed to timely notify them of his various absences, as distinguished generally from the matter of Shamong Township Board of Education, Burlington County v. Elizabeth Chwaster, EDU 476-85(1985), which was cited by the Board herein.

In that regard it is also noted that, contrary to the assertions of the Board, stare decisis does not apply to administrative decisions in the same way as it has in common law. As set forth by the Hon. Steven Lefelt in Administrative Law and Practice, 1*Ed.* 1985, 37 N.J. Practice §331, "An agency need not follow its earlier decisions rigidly and failure to abide by a prior decision will not alone cause a reversal by a reviewing court. Agency decisions and findings in contested cases do not have the force of administrative rules."

Based upon all the foregoing, I FIND that, absent any bonafide reason or to challenge the explanations given by Smith, he has produced a sufficiently plausible explanation to excuse his attendance from the September 26, 1998 meeting, to wit, that he was sick with flu-like symptoms and that was a plausible basis for him not attending the meeting on that occasion. Under the circumstances, I FIND that he has more than adequately met all of the standards set forth hereinabove and as mandated under Crowe. As a result, I FIND that the Board's determination to reject his illness excuse on September 26, 1998 was in fact arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable, absent any other proof to the contrary. Would they have preferred that Smith show up and potentially infect either the Board or the general public? Or, should they have preferred to allow Smith to jeopardize his own health and safety for the sake of that one meeting? The absurdity of either such consequences speaks for itself.

Or, as counsel has volunteered, would the Board really have given Smith "credit" for attending any of the other three meetings for only "one minute" with his infant child in tow in order for him to avoid the consequences of missing those meetings? It is obvious that such a result would not have contributed to instilling responsible conduct in its members if they had allowed such a procedure either.

To suggest that a Board member should be compelled to attend a public meeting when one is legitimately ill speaks volumes, at a minimum, to a callous insensitivity to one's personal plight or, at worse, and perhaps as Smith has suggested, a deliberate effort to eliminate a lone voice crying in the wilderness. Removal from office is a most serious application of our constitutional democracy and that process should not be treated lightly since it directly impacts upon the rights of the electorate. If there is a dispute about Smith's performance overall, it should be best judged by the electorate of Hazlet through the ballot box under the circumstances.

Thus, since I have found that the Board's action relative to Smith's illness on September 26, 1998 failed to reasonably consider his good cause explanation, I FIND that he should be excused from attendance at that meeting. As a result, since he has not missed three consecutive meetings as set forth under N.J.S.A. 18A:12-3, he is to be restored to his seat as a member of the Hazlet Board of Education immediately. Therefore, it is ORDERED that the removal of Wesley M. Smith as a member of the Board of Education of the Township of Hazlet, Monmouth County is hereby REVERSED.

This order on application for emergency relief may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The final decision shall be issued without undue delay, but no later than forty-five (45) days following the entry of this order. If the COMMISSIONER does not adopt, modify or reject this order within forty-five (45) days, this recommended order shall become a final decision on the issue of emergent relief in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF HAZLET, MONMOUTH COUNTY,	:	DECISION ON MOTION

The record of this emergent matter, including the audiotape of the proceedings before the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ),[1] and his Order on Motion for Emergent Relief have been reviewed. By letter dated February 11, 1999, from the Director of the Office of Controversies and Disputes, the parties were provided until close of business on Wednesday, February 17, 1999, to file exceptions to the ALJ's Order, and until close of business on Friday, February 19, 1999 to submit replies. Exceptions of the Board and petitioner's reply thereto were filed in accordance with the established schedule.

The Board excepts to the ALJ's grant of emergent relief in this matter, contending that such determination was based on a misreading and misinterpretation of the applicable statute, misapplication of the standard for emergent relief, and failure to abide by prior decisions of the Commissioner on the issue. (Board's Exceptions at p. 2) Initially, in this regard, it advances that the ALJ's conclusion that, because he determined that Mr. Smith had a good cause explanation for his nonattendance at the September 26, 1998 meeting, Mr. Smith, consequently, had not missed the three consecutive meetings contemplated by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-3[2] which would allow the Board to remove him as a member, evidences a tortured interpretation of this applicable statute. Citing Wingate v. Estate of Ryan, 149 N.J. 227 (1997) and Strasenburgh v. Staubmuller, 146 N.J. 527 (1996), the Board avers that the primary consideration when interpreting a statute is its plain language and in no event should a statute be interpreted to produce absurd results. (Board's Exceptions at p. 4) Here, it advances, the plain language and meaning of the one sentence portion of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-3 involved herein is clear on its face. Such provision empowers a local board of education to remove a member at its discretion, when that member has missed a series of three meetings and has not offered what the board finds to be good cause for missing each meeting in that series of meetings. (Id. at p. 5) Buttressing this statutory interpretation, the Board points to language from Shamong Township Board of Education v. Chwastek, decided by the Commissioner July 8, 1985, wherein it was stated

> "Giving the words in the statute their ordinary meaning, any member of the Board who fails to attend three consecutive meetings of the Board may be removed by it unless the member convinces the Board that the absences were for good cause." Id. at 3. (emphasis added) (Board's Exceptions at p. 3)

Consequently, the Board reasons, contrary to the finding of the ALJ, pursuant to its plain language and the Commissioner's interpretation of this statute, an excuse for one of the three absences does not "[b]reak the chain" of absences and "diffuse the Board's power to demand a showing of good cause for the entire spree of absences, or remove the member." (Id. at p. 4)

Next, the Board avows, that in granting the petitioner's emergent application, the within ALJ misapplied the standard, as set forth in Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982),

[2]It is noted that the relevant portion of this statutory provision specifies "any member who fails to attend three consecutive meetings of the board without good cause may be removed by it."

necessary for the awarding of this relief. Namely, it posits, Crowe requires a showing of each of four specific criteria:

1. The relief must not be granted except when necessary to prevent irreparable harm, or harm for which there is no adequate legal remedy;
2. Relief should not be granted when the legal right underlying the applicant's claim is unsettled;
3. The applicant for relief must make a preliminary showing of a reasonable probability of ultimate success on the merits; and
4. The relative hardship to the parties in granting or denying relief must be considered. Id. at 132-34 (Board's Exceptions at p. 6)

It is readily apparent, the Board avers, that criteria 2 and 3 have not been met. Given the Board's previously discussed interpretation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-3, it argues, the ALJ's legally unsupported, "determination that a single excused absence in the chain of absences protects the member from removal," unmistakably evidences that the legal right underlying petitioner's claim is unsettled. (Id. at p. 9)

Likewise, with regard to the probability of petitioner's success on the merits, the Board advances that satisfaction of this prong cannot be seriously argued. It posits that "even with the assistance of [the ALJ's] sua sponte equitable findings" that petitioner had "good cause" for his failure to attend the September 26, 1998 meeting, only one of petitioner's four absences would possibly be excusable, which does not protect him from removal under the statute. (Id. at pp. 6-7) Additionally, the Board, citing Shamong, supra, asserts "[i]t is well settled that the local Board of Education, itself, is responsible for determining what constitutes such good cause [for a member's absence]." (Board's Exceptions at p. 7) As the within Board determined on October 22, 1998 that petitioner had not presented good cause for his absences, without a showing that this determination was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable, a trier of fact is required to defer to the Board's judgment in this regard. (Id. at pp. 6-7) Consequently, it argues that the ALJ's conclusion that petitioner demonstrated a substantial likelihood of success on the merits of this case was reached not in reliance on legal standards or the criteria of Crowe, but solely in light of the Judge's impermissibly substituting his judgment for that of the Board. (Id. at pp. 8-9)

Upon his careful and independent review of the record and the parties' submissions, the Commissioner determines to reverse the Order of the ALJ granting emergent relief in the instant matter. It is well settled that the grant of emergent relief is considered an extraordinary remedy which can only be awarded, as correctly advanced by the Board in its exceptions, when the party seeking such relief demonstrates the existence of each of the four separate criteria identified in Crowe, supra. Here, the Commissioner concludes that it is evident that the Crowe standard has not been satisfied. Specifically, his detailed review persuades him that the law underlying petitioner's legal claim is unsettled. Rejecting the Board's exception argument that the cited passage from Shamong, supra, is necessarily dispositive herein, the Commissioner, rather, concludes that there is no decisional law which specifically addresses and interprets the statutory intendment of the term "three consecutive meetings" or resolves the question of whether "good cause" is required for each individual board member absence or for the period of absence. Moreover, the record of this matter amply manifests that the express meaning of this statutory provision is rigorously disputed. This being so, petitioner can claim no likelihood of success on the merits, and so fails to meet at least two of the necessary criteria.

Accordingly, the recommended Order of the ALJ granting petitioner's Motion for Emergent Relief is reversed, and this matter is hereby returned to the OAL for further proceedings on petitioner's underlying claim.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning Company sought order declaring Board's award of a transportation contract to Ryder as void and ultra vires because Ryder could not conform to material specifications (2 and 6 – dispatch facility requirement) and, thus, petitioner was the lowest possible bidder.

ALJ found that Ryder was materially and substantially in accord with the specifications. ALJ determined that the Board's award of a transportation contract to Ryder did not violate bid specifications 2 and 6 and the Department's rules and since no violations occurred, no interim measures or remedies were available to petitioner. Petition was dismissed.

Having reviewed the record and the transcript of the hearing in this matter, the Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own. Commissioner concurred with the ALJ that the within Board complied with applicable laws and regulations in securing, through competitive bidding, the lowest responsible bidder for its transportation contract. Commissioner further agreed that Ryder, the lowest bidder, did substantially conform to the specifications, and its variance therefrom was not material or substantial so as to preclude the Board's awarding of its transportation contract.

BEFORE ELINOR R. REINER, ALJ:

On July 7, 1997, Byram Bus Lines, Inc., filed a petition for declaratory judgment with the Commissioner of Education seeking an order declaring that (a) the Mount Arlington Board of Education's contract award to Ryder Student Transportation Services, Inc., was void and ultra vires because Ryder could not conform to material specifications and was therefore not the lowest responsible bidder; and (b) Byram was the lowest responsible bidder. The Board answered on July 25, 1997. On July 29, 1997, the Commissioner decided not to consider this matter as one for declaratory judgment; instead, the Commissioner found that this dispute was to proceed as a petition of appeal and transmitted it to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on August 7, 1997, for a hearing pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

Byram submitted a brief in support of its motion for summary decision on January 20, 1998. On February 17, 1998, the Board submitted a brief in opposition to Byram's motion and in support of its cross-motion for summary decision. Thereafter, I rendered a decision denying both Byram's and the Board's motions for summary decision. At some point during or after July 1998, the Board allegedly renewed its contract with Ryder for an additional one-year term. On August 20, 1998, the Board again moved for summary decision and a brief was submitted by Byram on August 31, 1998. The motion was denied on the record on September 14, 1998, and the matter proceeded to hearing on that date. Witnesses who testified and documents considered in deciding this case are listed in the attached appendix. The record closed after the submission of briefs.

UNDISPUTED FACTS

1. At all times relevant hereto, petitioner Byram Bus Lines, Inc., ("Byram") was a New Jersey Corporation engaged in the business of student transportation. Byram maintains its principal place of business at 19 Stanhope-Sparta Road, Hopatcong, New Jersey.

2. Byram provides student transportation services, pursuant to contracts awarded through public bidding laws, with various school districts including Lenape Valley Regional High School, Hopatcong Borough, and Byram Township.

3. In or about March 1997, the owner of Byram was a trust established for the benefit of the family of Alan Mackerley. This information was duly disclosed by Byram in its bid submission relevant to this case. Byram has not been declared an unresponsive or irresponsible bidder by any public entity, nor has it been unable to receive surety bond coverage.

4. With the exception of respondent Mount Arlington school district ("District" or "Board"), Byram continues to provide student transportation services, either pursuant to contractual renewal or competitive bidding, to all of its prior customers.

5. At all times relevant hereto, the respondent was a public school district of approximately 400 students from grades K through 8. The District maintains two elementary schools. Mount Arlington's senior high school students are transported to Roxbury High School pursuant to a sending-receiving relationship with that district.

6. Pursuant to a series of annual contracts or renewals thereof, Byram provided the District with student transportation services from approximately September 1977 through June 1997.

7. In or about February 1997, the Board's secretary and business administrator, Beverly Sturm, issued a memorandum to all potential bidders soliciting bids for the District's 1997-1998 school year Student Transportation Contract.

8. The District's initial request solicited bids for fifteen bus routes. Byram's corporate secretary and transportation coordinator, Janet Bunnicant, brought to Ms. Sturm's attention that the Board's "Bid Sheet" only contained space to bid on thirteen routes. For this reason, no contract was awarded as a result of the February solicitation for bids.

9. In March 1997 Ms. Sturm re-issued an invitation to potential bidders for the 1997-1998 transportation contract and specifically requested bids for "Routes 1 through 13."

10. The Board's bid package, which contained a public notice, prescribed form of questionnaire, "Transportation Specifications" and a bid sheet, was prepared and issued by Ms. Sturm. In preparing this package, she re-typed the specifications previously utilized by the Board in past years. She undertook no substantive review of the specifications, and she did not make any changes, corrections or amendments to the District's prior specifications. The District's superintendent, Thomas Ficarra, did not review the specifications prior to their issuance.

11. The Board's specifications included various specific "vehicle" transportation specifications, which are set forth as follows:

(1) No bus shall be older than 10 years.

(2) Contractor shall maintain at least one spare 54 passenger bus at a location within five miles of Mount Arlington. This location shall have a phone and a dispatcher on duty between 6:00 a.m. and 5:00 p.m. on the days school is in session.

(3) Spare bus shall be no older than 10 years.

(4) All vehicles shall be systematically inspected twice within the year to insure that such vehicles and equipment are in safe and proper operating condition.

(5) Vehicles used for transportation of pupils shall be inspected by the P.U.C. or the New Jersey Motor Vehicle Department and shall be subject to periodic inspection by a representative of the Mount Arlington Public School District.

(6) Vehicles shall be outfitted with 2 way radio communication equipment with a base radio at the dispatch facility.

(7) Vehicles shall be outfitted with active video cameras. Specifications are attached.

12. Neither these specifications nor any other information promulgated and distributed by the Board specifically authorized, nor specifically forbade, the use of "park-outs" by the successful bidder or permitted the parking of a spare bus on school property in order to comply with any part of these specifications.

13. Bids were submitted by Byram and Ryder Student Transportation Services, Inc. ("Ryder") on or about March 25, 1997. They were opened on the same day by Ms. Sturm. Representatives of both Ryder and Byram were in attendance.

14. Byram's total bid for all thirteen routes was $285,689.82. It also submitted a "bulk bid" for all of the routes reflecting a discount of 20 percent, with a net cost to the Board of $228,587.86.

15. Ryder also bid on all thirteen routes, and its total bid was $326,700. It submitted a bulk bid in the amount of $169,884, representing a 48 percent discount.

16. Ryder's bid was executed by Gregory S. Walter, and set forth its office address as Westmont, Camden County, New Jersey.

17. Ryder's bid submission is P-5.

18. Byram's bid submission is P-2.

19. Byram's facility is located within five miles of the borough of Mount Arlington and serves as Byram's main office, garage and dispatch facility. Byram does not allow its drivers to take buses home, and all runs begin and end at this location. Several spare buses are located at this facility.

20. Shortly after the bids were opened, Ms. Bunnicant, on behalf of Byram, wrote to Ms. Sturm to express Byram's concern that Ryder's bid was not compliant with the Board's specifications.

21. The contract was awarded to Ryder by the Board on or about April 16, 1997, during the Board's regularly scheduled reorganization meeting. The Board does not tape record its meetings. Minutes of this meeting were prepared by Ms. Sturm; however, they do not disclose any discussion by the Board of Ryder's ability to meet its specifications.

22. Prior to the award of the bid, neither Ms. Sturm nor Superintendent Ficarra discussed with Ryder the manner in which it proposed to comply with the Board's specifications requiring a spare bus and dispatcher at a location within five miles of the borough of Mount Arlington.

23. Byram was not advised that Ryder was awarded the contract until it received an undated letter from Ms. Sturm on or about May 28, 1997.

24. In or about August 1997, Superintendent Ficarra granted Ryder's request that it be permitted to park its spare bus, required by the specifications, in the parking lot of the Mount Arlington School.

25. During the course of this contract, Ryder has employed one of its proposed drivers, Vicky Rossy, to sit in the spare bus for seven hours per day and perform as a dispatcher. Ms. Rossy resides at 27 Kadel Drive, Mount Arlington, approximately two-tenths of a mile from the spare bus. Ryder's bus is equipped with a cellular telephone and a radio.

26. Lynda Streppone, who resides in the Landing section of Mount Arlington, was designated as one of Ryder's "proposed" drivers. Ms. Streppone was previously employed by the Frank Black Bus Company at its office in Andover, New Jersey. Ryder, in 1997, assumed the operations of Black after his death and Ms. Streppone continues to work at the Andover office. At the hearing, a representative of Ryder testified that Ms. Streppone was initially designated to stay at home so as to serve as Ryder's dispatcher for Mount Arlington.

27. Ryder employee Laurie Neblick was transferred by Ryder from its Boonton facility to Andover. Sometime prior to September 1997 she moved to Mount Arlington. She, in place of Ms. Streppone, has been designated to serve as Ryder's dispatcher for Mount Arlington. Ms. Neblick provides dispatcher services in the early morning hours from her home. Thereafter, she serves as dispatcher while commuting by car to Ryder's Andover office, and for the balance of the day performs dispatching services while performing her job at Ryder's Andover office. This office is located between 10 and 12 miles from the border of the borough of Mount Arlington.

28. In or about July 1998 the Board renewed the Student Transportation Contract with Ryder for the 1998-99 school year.

TESTIMONY

First to testify on behalf of Byram was Janet Bunnicant. Of import, she testified that all Byram buses are housed at Byram's location, and she said that she or a secretary is at the location at 6:00 a.m. They have a base radio and two-way communications. They call in the buses as the drivers arrive. A spare driver can cover if a driver is late. She alleged that Byram could perform the contract for Mount Arlington. She contended that its bid would have been lower if it had known that others could bid on the contract. Ms. Bunnicant said that she signed and forwarded Byram's original bid to the Board. She said that she did not ask for a waiver of the drivers' addresses, and that there was no place on the bid that required the name of the dispatcher. She alleged that the signature indicated that Byram was ready to meet the specifications.

Beverly J. Sturm testified that Ryder's bid indicated proposed bus drivers. It did not indicate who the dispatcher was, or where Ryder would maintain a spare bus within five miles of Mount Arlington.

Superintendent Ficarro testified that he understood at the time of the award of the contract that Ryder could comply with the specifications. If a company signs the bid specifications, he assumes that it can meet them. He saw nothing in Ryder's bid that indicated that Ryder was not responsible. The addresses were all within five miles of Mount Arlington. He pointed out that he has worked with Ryder for over a year and has experienced no problems. The contract runs smoothly and the parents are pleased. He said that if the contract with Ryder is invalidated, it will cost the Board additional monies and be devastating to its educational program. He admitted that on its bid, Ryder did not indicate where its dispatcher was located. He explained that he calls "a number" and a dispatcher picks up the phone; he does not know where he is calling.

Laurie W. Neblick testified that Ryder complied with the bid specifications. There is a 54-passenger bus parked on school property. The bus driver is employed six hours a day. A spare driver is two-tenths of a mile away and there is a two-way radio on standby. She said that Vicky Rossy lives on Kadel Drive in Mount Arlington and has a two-way radio. Neblick lives in Mount Arlington across the street from the school. She has a cellular phone and a two-way radio.

Neblick explained that at the time of the bid the intent had been to park the spare bus at Kadel Drive. She and Linda Streppone were going to fulfill the specifications. She noted that the main base radio for Ryder is in Andover. Linda Streppone was to be the satellite location for Mount Arlington. She would have a bus, a phone and a two-way radio. Vicky Rossy was to work with Linda. The coverage was from 6:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m., but would not necessarily be the same person straight through. Linda Streppone never served as the dispatcher for Mount Arlington. Streppone was listed as a driver and could be one of the spare drivers. Neblick contended that one can dispatch from a bus.

Neblick testified that today she shares the dispatching responsibilities with Vicky Rossy. Vicky Rossy is the dispatcher/driver when Neblick is at Andover. She is more than a spare driver, and ends her day at 4:30 p.m. Neblick personally receives the calls from 6:00-7:30 a.m. while at home. She spends two to three hours per day in Mount Arlington. Drivers generally call the Andover location for a dispatch. She agreed that they would call the Andover location if a dispatch issue arose during the day.

DISCUSSION

The procedures concerning the bidding process and the awarding of transportation services contracts vis-à-vis public schools are governed by the statutory provisions entitled "Transportation to and from Schools" (hereinafter "Transportation Act"), N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1 to -25. Of particular relevance to the instant matter are the following statutory provisions: (a) general pupil transportation requirements, found at N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1; (b) bid advertisement requirements, found at N.J.S.A. 18A:39-3; (c) bid form requirements, found at N.J.S.A. 18A:39-4; (d) bid opening and/or rejection requirements, found at N.J.S.A. 18A:39-5; and (e) rulemaking authority of the state board, found at N.J.S.A. 18A:39-21 and -24. The Department of Education (DOE) has promulgated regulations concerning pupil transportation contracts under the authority of N.J.S.A. 18A:39-21 and -24. These regulations are found at N.J.A.C. 6:21-1.1 to -19.5.

In pertinent part, N.J.S.A. 18A:39-3, which governs bid advertisement requirements, states:

> a. No contract for the transportation of pupils to and from school shall be made . . . unless the board of education making such contract shall have first publicly advertised for bids therefor in a newspaper published in the district or, if no newspaper is published therein, in a newspaper circulating in the district, once, at least 10 days prior to the date fixed for receiving proposals for such transportation, and shall have awarded the contract to the lowest responsible bidder.

See also N.J.S.A. 18A:39-5, which states that "[n]o proposals shall be opened previous to the hour designated in the advertisement and none shall be received thereafter";

N.J.A.C. 6:21-2.1(b), which states that "[d]istricts shall advertise for bids before a determination is made to provide transportation"; and N.J.A.C. 6:21-15.1(a), which states:

> District boards of education shall have the option of annually bidding all transportation contracts or awarding annual extensions of an original contract. However, no contract for the transportation of pupils to and from school shall be made, when the amount to be paid during the school year for such transportation shall exceed the bid threshold limit and have the approval of the county superintendent of schools, unless the district board of education making such contract shall have first publicly advertised for bids. Such advertisement shall be published once in a newspaper circulating in the district at least 10 days prior to the date fixed for receiving proposals for such transportation. All bids shall be advertised with the time and place fixed to each advertisement for submission of proposals to the district board of education. No proposal shall be opened previous to the hour designated in the advertisement and none shall be received thereafter. The board or designated official shall unseal bids in the presence of those in attendance and publicly announce the contents.

In the instant matter, the Board advertised for sealed bid proposals on public school transportation services contracts on or about March 14, 1997. The advertisement noted that the bid proposals would be due by March 25, 1997, at which point they would be publicly opened at the Board's offices. As noted in the record, the Board "publicly advertised for bids" eleven days "prior to the date fixed for receiving proposals for such transportation," and the advertisements contained "the time and place fixed . . . for submission of proposals." Additionally, the Board neither opened the sealed bids "previous to the hour designated in the advertisement" nor "received [bids] thereafter." Accordingly, the Board's actions met the relevant statutory and regulatory provisions concerning advertising.

In addition to the information contained in the bid advertisement, the Board also noted that published specifications regarding the transportation services contracts were available to bidders at the Board's offices. Unlike the Public School Contracts Law, which contains express specification requirements in its provisions, no such requirements in the pupil transportation services context are found in the Transportation Act; however, they are found in the regulations. Within these regulations, the following sections concern specification requirements: (a) N.J.A.C. 6:21-13.1; (b) N.J.A.C. 6:21-13.2; and (c) N.J.A.C. 6:21-15.1. The first of these provisions, N.J.A.C. 6:21-13.1 ("General requirements"), states:

> (a) The district board of education shall designate a committee, official or employee to prepare the specifications for each route or contract for which proposals are sought. A copy of the specifications shall be submitted to the county superintendent of schools prior to advertisement for bids. The specifications and advertisement for bids shall be approved and authorized by formal action of the district board of education.
> (b) Any specification drawn for purposes of competitive bidding shall be drafted in a manner designed to encourage free, open and competitive bidding. Specifications shall not knowingly exclude prospective bidders by reason of the impossibility of performance or bidding by any one bidder. Any contract drawn which fails to meet the requirements of this subchapter shall be set aside by the district board of education.
>
> (c) Potential or successful bidders shall not draft specifications or route descriptions.
> (d) Specifications shall protect against discrimination in accordance with P.L. 1975, c.127 (N.J.S.A. 10:5-31 et seq.).

The second of these provisions, N.J.A.C. 6:21-13.2 ("Prescribed transportation bid specifications"), states in pertinent part:

> a) The district board of education shall prepare transportation bid specifications to include, but not be limited to, the requirements of this chapter.
> . . . .

(f) The bid specifications shall include:

1. A copy of the school calendar;

2. A copy of the prescribed questionnaire form;

3. A provision for emergency closings;

4. Conditions for cancellation of contracts;

5. The limits of liability insurance;

6. The type(s) of bonding required;

7. Except for per pupil bids, a statement which clearly prohibits the commingling of students unless authorized to do so by the district board of education through the joint transportation agreement process;

8. The need for specialized equipment, if applicable;

9. Restrictions due to student classification, if applicable;

10. A statement that all equipment shall meet current specifications in accordance with Federal and State law, the rules of the State Board of Education, and any additional specifications of the district board of education;

11. A statement that all contractors shall comply with current applicable New Jersey Statutes, regulations, and policies and procedures of the district board of education governing pupil transportation;

12. A bid sheet which will be required to be submitted by bidders to the district board of education. The bid sheet shall include a provision to request bids on a per route basis for regular, nonpublic and in-district handicapped students and on a per route, per vehicle, per pupil, per mileage basis for the transportation of out-of-district handicapped students;

13. The bid sheet shall include a separate provision to request adjustments to the contract on a per mile basis for public and nonpublic regular and in-district handicapped routes and on a per mile, per pupil, per > vehicle basis for out-of-district special education transportation contracts;

>
> 14. The bid sheet shall include a separate provision to request bulk/combination bids, if applicable;
>
> 15. A requirement for submission of an affidavit of noncollusion;
>
> 16. A requirement for submission of a stockholder's disclosure statement;
>
> 17. A provision for the acceptance of bulk/combination bids, if applicable;
> 18. A statement that bids are to be placed in a sealed envelope and plainly marked "TRANSPORTATION BID FOR ROUTE OR CONTRACT NO. _____, SCHOOL DISTRICT OF _____" and presented to the board in session, authorized committee, designated official or employee of the board.

The last of these provisions, N.J.A.C. 6:21-15.1 ("Responsibility of district board of education"), states in pertinent part:

> (d) All bidding shall be designed to prevent fraud, favoritism and extravagance, to safeguard the taxpayers and protect the lowest responsible bidder.
>
> (e) The bid specifications must be definite, precise and impose common standards.
>
> (f) The bid specifications and any revisions to the bid specifications shall be furnished to all prospective bidders and shall not restrict competitive bidding.
>
> (g) Variations from the bid specifications as prescribed by the State Board must be reasonable and are subject to review by the Commissioner and the State Board of Education.
> (h) When bid specifications are purposely formed to deter rather than to invite genuine competition, an award to the intentionally favored bidder shall be set aside.

In the instant matter, the Board prepared specifications regarding the transportation services contracts bid upon by Byram and Ryder. The propriety of these specifications under the DOE regulations and whether Ryder met all of the specifications are the disputed issues here. Specifically, Byram contends that it has standing to challenge the Board's award of the transportation services contract to Ryder, and alleges that such award violated specification no. 2 and specification no. 6 and the DOE's rules. The Board maintains that Byram's petition should be dismissed because Byram lacks standing; specifically, (1) Byram cannot challenge the validity of the bid specifications, (2) Byram's petition fails as a matter of law because it has not named an individual taxpayer as a petitioner, and (3) Byram is not seeking the appropriate relief.

A prerequisite to determining whether the DOE rules or specifications 2 and 6 were violated is the resolution of whether or not Byram has standing to challenge the award. With respect to standing, the Board accurately states that:

> It is well-settled that unsuccessful bidders do not have standing to challenge the award of a contract to a rival bidder or to attack the validity of the specifications post-bid; a bidder cannot endeavor to take advantage of a contract to be awarded under illegal specifications and then, if unsuccessful, seek to have the contract set aside. Challenges to the bid specifications may not be made post-bid and unsuccessful bidders lack the standing to support a challenge to bid specifications after the opening of bids.

Beginning with Waszen v. Atlantic City, 1 N.J. 272 (1949), and Camden Plaza Parking v. City of Camden, 16 N.J. 150, 158-59 (1954), the New Jersey courts have held that an unsuccessful bidder on a public contract lacks standing to challenge an award to a rival. As the Supreme Court stated in Waszen, supra, 1 N.J. at 276, "The rationale of such a holding is that one cannot endeavor to take advantage of a contract to be awarded under illegal specifications and then, when unsuccessful, seek to have the contract set aside." This principle has been consistently applied by the courts. See Katinsky v. Pennsauken Township Bd. of Educ., 93 *N.J.A.R.*2d (EDU) 1, 3, where the administrative law judge (ALJ), citing to Waszen, held: "If petitioner had a problem with the clarity of the specifications, the time to raise that issue was before the bids were opened, not after."; Richard Eiden Assoc., Inc. v. Fair Lawn Bd. of Educ., 97 *N.J.A.R.*2d (EDU) 503, 505 ("A bidder who is not the lowest responsible bidder lacks standing to challenge the award of a contract to another bidder on allegedly illegal specifications."); Communications Workers of America, AFL-CIO v. Clymer, 292 N.J. Super. 138, 145 (Law Div. 1996) ("Unsuccessful bidders have no standing to challenge specifications contained in an RFP [request for proposal] after bids are opened.").

This principle was also upheld in Educational Food Management Services, Inc. v. Board of Education of the Township of Clark, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 4724-84 (Aug. 20, 1984), aff'd, Comm'r of Educ. (Oct. 4, 1984). There, the ALJ found that the petitioner's challenge of the Board's award of a contract to a competitor was, in fact, a challenge to the bid specifications "which is precluded after the opening of bids as a matter of law." OAL Dkt. No. EDU 4724-84 at 5. However, the ALJ did not base his decision on the Waszen line of cases; instead, his decision rested on prior school law rulings which dealt with the issue of standing. In discussing his ruling, the ALJ stated:

> The Commissioner stated in Andrews and Shearer's Dairies v. Bd. of Ed. of Camden, 66 S.L.D. 147, in citing Consumers Ice Cream Co. v. Bd. of Ed. of Camden, 1960-61 S.L.D. 212:
> > Whenever there is any question of the validity of specifications or the manner in which competitive bids are sought the complainant should make timely protest and not wait until bids are awarded. Such objections should be made before the bid is submitted. (at 149)
>
> [Id. at 5-6.]

The Commissioner affirmed the ALJ's ruling, and stated: "the case cited by the judge . . . , Andrews and Shearer's Dairies, supra, is directly on point and is as valid now as it was eighteen years ago, having stood the test of time." OAL Dkt. No. 4724-84, Final Decision, at 10-11.

Cases in which standing has been found have also adhered to the "timeliness" principle established in Waszen, Camden Plaza Parking, and Andrews and Shearer's Dairies. For example, in Harry A. Stroh Associates, Inc. v. Hillsborough Township Board of Education, 95 *N.J.A.R.*2d (EDU) 235, the petitioner initially brought a challenge to the bid specifications after the first set of bids was opened. The ALJ ruled that such a challenge was untimely. Subsequently, when the school board solicited bids on the same contract a second time (i.e., by re-advertising its availability), the petitioner brought an immediate challenge to the bid specifications prior to the opening of the bids. In holding that the petitioner had standing to bring a challenge, the ALJ stated:

> Petitioner is now challenging the bid specifications prior to the opening of the second set of bids.
>
> The fact that this contract has been re-advertised allows petitioner to raise a challenge, whereas petitioner did not do so before the opening of the first set of bids, and could not do so after the bids were opened.

See also Sevell's Auto Body Co., Inc. v. N.J. Highway Auth., 306 N.J. Super. 357, 369-70 (App. Div. 1997), certif. denied, 153 N.J. 51 (1998), where the appellate court found standing, and stated:

> [T]here is also no merit to the contention . . . that Sevell's lacks standing to challenge these specifications. Sevell's commenced this action prior to the bid submission date. It therefore has not acted in disregard of Waszen . . . , which held that an unsuccessful bidder lacks standing to challenge the specifications under which its unsuccessful bid was submitted.

Under the guidance of the foregoing framework, challenges by Byram to the bid specifications and the award of the transportation services contract to Ryder would be untimely. Byram first raised its objection on March 26, 1997, one day after the sealed bids were opened on March 25, 1997. Byram submitted its bid proposal prior to the March 25, 1997 deadline and raised no objections to the bid specifications at that time. No challenge was raised until after the sealed bids were opened and Byram learned that it was not the lowest bidder. Moreover, Byram did not actually file the petition for declaratory judgment in this matter until well after the contract was formally awarded to Ryder at the Board meeting of April 16, 1997; Byram filed its petition on July 7, 1997. Accordingly, if Byram's objections are construed as challenges to the specifications, then it lacks standing to maintain this action.

Byram argues that it is challenging neither the validity of the specifications nor the propriety of the Board's interpretation of the specifications, but instead is merely contending that it was the "lowest responsible bidder." Byram contends that Ryder was not the "lowest responsible bidder," because it was not in full compliance with and could not have met all of the bid specifications. In particular, Byram alleges that Ryder (a) did not have a spare bus parked at a "bus depot" or "dispatch facility" with a "dispatcher" on duty during school hours, within the five-mile radius, as required by specification 2, and (b) did not have two-way radio communication equipment between a "dispatch facility" and the spare bus, as required by specification 6. Byram maintains that, unlike Ryder, it met both of these specifications, and therefore was the "lowest responsible bidder."

Byram cites to Hillside Township v. Sternin, 25 N.J. 317 (1957), and argues, "'A bidder not in compliance with specifications may not qualify to win the contract and acceptance of the bid may be reversed.'" Further, Byram cites to University Bus Co. v. State-Operated School District of the City of Paterson, 93 *N.J.A.R.*2d (EDU) 553, and contends, "[b]idders such as Byram, have standing to adjudicate disputes involving the ability [of] a Board of Education to waive or vary particular details contained in bid specifications, which is exactly what the Board has done." Finally, Byram cites to N.E.R.I. Corp. v. New Jersey Highway Authority, 147 N.J. 223 (1996), and argues,

"'Indeed, there are many instances when the "lowest bidders" should not receive a contract because they are not the most "responsible" bidder.'" In sum, Byram maintains that it has standing to bring this action, which it does not classify as an attack on the bid specifications, but instead considers a challenge to Ryder's status as a "responsible" bidder.

The Board counters by arguing:

> Petitioner . . . has attempted to evade the consequence of the Waszen "standing" rule by adding collusion allegations to their attack on specifications which it alleges to be designed to benefit Ryder unlawfully. The Appellate Division in Saturn Constr. Co. v. Middlesex County Freeholders, 181 N.J. Super. 403 (App. Div. 1981), rejected a similar attempt by an unsuccessful bidder to evade the . . . rule.
>
> [Board Br. at 7.]

The Board continues its argument by stating:

> The Appellate Division stated that the issue was whether Saturn, by phrasing its complaint to request relief as the lowest responsible bidder, had standing to make what was in actuality a post-bid challenge involving interpretation of the specifications . . . [and] ruled that Saturn did not have standing . . . because its challenge . . . was on the basis of an arguable ambiguity in the bidding specifications. Saturn's "only basis for stating that it was the lowest bidder was found by interpreting the specifications to allow the County to award a contract by ignoring one of the mandatory bid items." The Appellate Division found this to be a challenge to the specifications, and further consideration of Saturn's case would not further the public's interest but would merely give Saturn another chance.
> [Id. at 7-8 (citation omitted).]

The Board concludes by applying the guidance of Saturn to the instant case. The Board states:

> [T]he gravamen of Byram's Petition is that Ryder is not the lowest responsible bidder . . . because only Byram is eligible to be awarded the contract under the given specifications. Byram, like Saturn, by phrasing its Petition to request relief as the lowest responsible bidder, does not have standing to make a post-bid challenge involving interpretation of the specifications. Also like Saturn, Byram does not have standing to challenge the award because its challenge to the award is on the basis of an arguable ambiguity in the bidding specifications, and the Court's consideration of this claim will not further the public's interest but would merely give Byram another chance.

The Board extends this argument when it states:

> Although it is clear that Petitioner is challenging the validity of the bid specifications, Byram argues "the bid specifications themselves are clear, unambiguous and susceptible to only one interpretation" and that the issue is simply whether or not Byram was the lowest responsible bidder. This strained construction of the issue is apparent. Petitioner is arguing that the Board has interpreted the specifications incorrectly, because, had it interpreted the specifications correctly then Byram would have been awarded the contract. Again, Byram cannot make a post facto challenge to the specifications, as such objections fall squarely contrary to binding precedent such as Saturn, as well as public policy.
> [Board Reply Br. at 2 (citation omitted).]

The Board's reliance on the Saturn "disguised standing" principle, when considered in conjunction with the body of case law concerning general standing to challenge public contracts, does not compel the conclusion in the instant case that Byram lacks standing. I cannot conclude that Byram's attempt to craft its petition as one resting on the issue of the "lowest responsible bidder" is actually an attempt to circumvent the standing requirement.

Byram is not actually challenging the Board specifications. It contends that the specifications are clear, unambiguous and susceptible to only one interpretation. Byram argues that Ryder failed to comply with them. As such, this tribunal is not required to consider a challenge to the specifications. Rather, an analysis of whether specifications 2 and 6 were met, as well as whether the specifications met DOE regulations, must be undertaken.

Of great import to such an analysis are considerations of the "public interest" versus the benefit of the bidder. Such considerations are viewed as the primary purpose of the public bidding requirements. In this regard, the Court in N.E.R.I. Corp., supra, 147 N.J. at 226, stated, "Public bidding statutes exist for the primary benefit of the taxpayer not the bidder; and must be construed with 'sole reference' to the public good and rigidly adhered to by courts to guard against favoritism, improvidence, extravagance, and corruption." See also Clymer, supra, 292 N.J. Super. at 145 ("While standing is restricted as to unsuccessful bidders, it is more broadly interpreted as to taxpayers. . . . Judge Long, speaking for the [Yacenda Food Management Corp. v. N.J. Highway Auth., 203 N.J. Super. 264 (App. Div. 1985)] court, noted: '. . . taxpayers have traditionally had standing to challenge the unlawful award of a publicly bid contract.'"). In the instant matter, as in all public bidding cases, these principles must be followed. Instructive on this point is the guidance given by the Court in Terminal Construction Corp. v. Atlantic County Sewerage Authority, 67 N.J. 403, 411-12 (1975):

> It is firmly established in New Jersey that material conditions contained in bidding specifications may not be waived. This rule, however, does not apply to minor or inconsequential conditions. Public contracting units may resolve problems arising from such conditions in a sensible or practical way. . . .
> Essentially this distinction between conditions that may or may not be waived stems from a recognition that there are certain requirements often incorporated in bidding specifications which by their nature may be relinquished without there being any possible frustration of the policies underlying competitive bidding. In sharp contrast, advertised conditions whose waiver is capable of becoming > a vehicle for corruption or favoritism, or capable of encouraging improvidence or extravagance, or likely to affect the amount of any bid or to influence any potential bidder to refrain from bidding, or which are capable of affecting the ability of the contracting unit to make bid comparisons, are the kind of conditions which may not under any circumstances be waived.

See also Home Owners Constr. Co. v. Glen Rock, 34 N.J. 305, 315 (1961) ("The [bidding] statutes must, of course, be faithfully observed and any attempt to evade them must be stricken down. But they must also be construed and applied fairly and sensibly so as to further rather than defeat the legislative goals."); Aetna Supply, Inc. v. Board of Educ. of the City of Camden, 1971 S.L.D. 151, 154 (In connection with the bidding process and the issue of irregularities in meeting the specifications, the Commissioner has stated that "[t]he pivotal point is whether the lowest bid was materially and substantially in accord with the specifications.").

In the instant matter, the lowest bid was obtained from Ryder, which fell far below the bid received from Byram. The net cost to the Board under Ryder's proposal was $169,884.00, while the cost under Byram's proposal was $228,557.86. Ficarra Certif. (attached to Cross-Motion for Summary Decision dated Feb. 17, 1998, Exhibits "B" & "C"). Accordingly, Ryder was the "lowest bidder." If cost were the only measure of "responsibility," Ryder easily would have been classified as the "lowest responsible bidder." However, other considerations, particularly adherence to the specifications, were required. See Sternin, supra, 25 N.J. at 323 ("all bids must comply with the terms imposed, and any material departure therefrom invalidates a nonconforming bid as well as any contract based upon it"), and at 324-25 (citations omitted) ("The significance of the expression 'lowest bidder' is not restricted to the amount of the bid; it means also that the bid conforms with the specifications. . . . This is because the requirements are generally considered to be mandatory or jurisdictional."). Accordingly, an analysis of specifications 2 and 6 is warranted to determine whether the specifications, and the award to Ryder, violated the DOE regulations, and whether the award to Ryder violated the specifications themselves.

The propriety of specifications 2 and 6, as well as the Board's award to Ryder, will be analyzed under the above-quoted regulations, N.J.A.C. 6:21-13.1, N.J.A.C. 6:21-13.2, and N.J.A.C. 6:21-15.1. The Board has met the requirements imposed by N.J.A.C. 6:21-13.1(a), which required the Board to "prepare the specifications for each route or contract for which proposals are sought." Likewise, the Board has met the requirements imposed by N.J.A.C. 6:21-13.1(b), which required specifications to be drafted "in a manner designed to encourage free, open and competitive bidding." Byram concedes this point when it states, "Byram has not now, and has never, challenged the bid specifications or their clarity. Quite to the contrary, Byram believes that the bid specifications themselves are clear, unambiguous and susceptible to only one interpretation." Byram Br. at 5.

The Board has also met the requirements of N.J.A.C. 6:21-13.2, which set out the "prescribed transportation bid specifications." In pertinent part, these provisions mandated that the Board "prepare transportation bid specifications to include, but not be limited to, the requirements of this chapter." N.J.A.C. 6:21-13.2(a). The Board's specifications, in toto, have met the mandatory specification requirements imposed by this provision. Moreover, the Board's imposition of specifications 2 and 6, which went beyond the scope of the required items listed at N.J.A.C. 6:21-13.2, was a legitimate exercise of its power to establish bid specifications. See N.J.A.C. 6:21-13.2(a); Stroh Assoc., supra, 95 *N.J.A.R.*2d (EDU) at 236 ("It is well-settled that a school district may add additional criteria to a bid advertisement"). With respect to specification 6, calling for two-way radio communication equipment, see N.J.A.C. 6:21-6B.6(a) ("School buses may be equipped with an electronic voice communication system, preferably not citizen band equipment").

In that the Board has met the specification requirements imposed by the DOE regulations, Byram's challenge rests upon N.J.A.C. 6:21-15.1, which concerns the "responsibility of [the] district board of education" vis-à-vis the bidding and award process. The Board has met the mandates of N.J.A.C. 6:21-15.1(e), which requires the specifications to be "definite, precise and to impose common standards." As noted above, Byram concedes that it is not challenging the validity of the specifications, and admits that the specifications were definite, precise and imposed common standards. However, Byram maintains that Ryder, although the "lowest bidder," was not the "lowest responsible bidder," because Ryder allegedly did not and could not meet specifications 2 and 6. Therefore, Byram argues, in effect, that N.J.A.C. 6:21-15.1(d) was violated because the bidding did not protect the lowest responsible bidder, i.e., Byram. Additionally, Byram argues, in effect, that N.J.A.C. 6:21-15.1(g) was violated because the Board awarded the contract to Ryder, notwithstanding that Ryder's bid allegedly contained "variations" from the specifications. On these bases, Byram contends that Ryder was not a "responsible" bidder, and therefore could not meet the definition of "lowest responsible bidder." Accordingly, Byram argues that under N.J.A.C. 6:21-15.1(h), the award to Ryder must be set aside.

Byram's argument that the Board's award to Ryder violated specifications 2 and 6, as well as the DOE rules, must be weighed against the legal principle that deference should be shown toward board decisions. In this regard, the Appellate Division stated, in Colonnelli Bros., Inc. v. Ridgefield Park, 284 N.J. Super. 538, 541 (App. Div. 1995), certif. denied, 143 N.J. 327 (1996), that the general presumption is that public entities act lawfully and in good faith; as such, a public entity is presumed to have acted properly in exercising its discretion in the award of a public contract. Accordingly, a reviewing court will not substitute its judgment for that of a governing public entity in such a case. See also Stroh Assoc., supra, 95 *N.J.A.R.*2d (EDU) at 238, where the Commissioner, in affirming the Initial Decision of the ALJ, stated:

> As correctly noted by the Board in its exception arguments, a board's reasonable exercise of its discretion is entitled to a presumption of validity absent the establishment by a challenger that such action was arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable.
> [Citing to Palamar Constr., Inc. v. Pennsauken Tp., 196 N.J. Super. 241, 250 (App. Div. 1983).]

Under this principle, the Board's discretionary action in awarding the contract to Ryder must be afforded great deference. As noted above, Ryder's bid was substantially lower than Byram's. As such, the award to Ryder, on a strict cost-benefit basis, was a rational action by the Board. Moreover, under N.J.A.C. 6:21-15.1(d), this award may be viewed as "safeguard[ing] the taxpayers" by generating a cost savings of nearly $60,000.00.

As discussed above, however, cost is only one of many considerations in awarding a contract; of equal importance is the ability of the bidder to meet the specifications listed in the notice. In the instant case, Ryder has reasonably met all of the specifications, including specifications 2 and 6. Ryder has numerous spare buses within a five-mile radius of Mount Arlington, as called for in specification 2. Although Ryder admittedly does not maintain these buses at a "depot" or "dispatch facility," but instead allows them to be parked at the homes of drivers within that radius, they nonetheless are available during the prescribed school hours, and the drivers are "on call" for dispatch via telephone. Additionally, Ryder maintains one spare bus which remains parked on the school grounds.

In light of this, and as pointed out by respondent, the first issue is whether the extra bus and dispatchers are at the same "location." It is undisputed that the extra bus is less than two-tenths of a mile from Ms. Neblick's home and from extra bus driver/dispatcher Vicky Rossy's home. Thus, one could argue that the bus and dispatcher should be considered to be at the same "location," especially since the bus can be parked and had been parked in Ms. Rossy's driveway before the parties agreed to a more convenient arrangement.

Notwithstanding this, Byram argues that Ryder has no "dispatcher" and that the buses are not in queue at a "depot" or "dispatch facility." However, Byram's concerns have no foundation. Neither the statutory provisions nor the regulations contain a definition of "dispatcher"; instead, a "reasonable interpretation" of that term governs. The "reasonable interpretation" of "dispatcher" as set forth by respondent was the concept of "one person responsible for assigning buses and communicating that need to others." Under Ryder's dispatch scheme, this "reasonable interpretation" is met: the drivers of the spare buses are "on call" for potential service at the location of their buses, and are available during the prescribed school hours for "dispatch," at the telephone request of their "dispatcher."

Further, at issue is whether the use of multiple dispatchers, namely, the use of Ms. Rossy to dispatch when Ms. Neblick is in Andover, violates the specifications. The specifications referred to "a" dispatcher, not necessarily "the" dispatcher. The fact that the Board might call Ms. Neblick in her car or in Andover instead of Ms. Rossy at the "location" for different reasons does not result in a material deviation from the specifications; a dispatcher is still assigned to the location during the requisite hours.

Additionally, the concept of "reasonable and substantial compliance" with the advertised specifications is applicable in the public bidding context. As noted in Aetna, supra, 1971 S.L.D. at 154, the Commissioner has stated that "[t]he pivotal point [in meeting the specifications] is whether the lowest bid was materially and substantially in accord with the specifications." Here, as previously discussed, Ryder "materially and substantially" complied with specification 2. The award to Ryder was a "fair and sensible" application of the bidding statutes that "further[ed] rather than defeat[ed] the legislative goals." Glen Rock, supra, 34 N.J. at 315. Additionally, even if Ryder's dispatch scheme was viewed as a "waiver" from specification 2, at most, under the applicable law, it would constitute a "minor or inconsequential" waiver that would not cause "frustration of the policies underlying competitive bidding." Terminal Constr., supra, 67 N.J. at 412; see also Meadowbrook Carting Co., Inc. v. Borough of Island Heights, 138 N.J. 307, 315 (1994), where the Court stated:

> In River Vale, supra, 127 N.J. Super. at 216, 316 *A.*2d 737, Judge Pressler set forth a two-part test for determining "whether a specific noncompliance constitutes a substantial and hence nonwaivable irregularity." As the Appellate Division observed in L. Pucillo & Sons, Inc. v. Township of Belleville, 249 N.J. Super. 536, 547, 592 *A.*2d 1218, certif. denied, 127 N.J. 551, 606 *A.*2d 364 (1991) (Pucillo), "the test of materiality has been reduced to [a] . . . two-prong analysis." It requires a determination

> "[']first, whether the effect of a waiver would be to deprive the municipality of its assurance that the contract will be entered into, performed and guaranteed according to its specified requirements, and second, whether it is of such a nature that its waiver would adversely affect competitive bidding by placing a bidder in a position of advantage over other bidders or by otherwise undermining the necessary common standard of competition.[']"
> [Citations omitted.]

Under these standards, Ryder's dispatch scheme, even if a deviation from the specifications, did not constitute a "material waiver"; the underlying goal of the Board's specification 2 (i.e., having spare buses within the district available for immediate "on-call" dispatch during school hours) was still met. Accordingly, Ryder met specification 2, and, as to that requirement, was a "responsible" bidder.

The same analysis applies to Ryder's ability to meet specification 6; as such, this point will not be discussed in great detail. Note, however, that the DOE regulations do not require two-way radio communication equipment, but rather, leave such requirement to the discretion of the boards. See N.J.A.C. 6:21-6B(a). Here, Ryder's buses are presumably outfitted with two-way radio communication equipment; Byram's challenge rests upon the "base radio/dispatch facility" clause. For the reasons discussed above, namely: (a) that the concepts of "dispatcher" and "dispatch facility" are left to "reasonable interpretation," (b) that the Board's discretionary award to Ryder is afforded deference, and (c) that the underlying goal of specification 6 was met, the Board's award did not violate this specification. Moreover, even if a variation from specification 6 occurred, at most it was merely a "minor" or "inconsequential" deviation. Accordingly, Ryder was also "responsible" as to specification 6, and, as such, was the "lowest responsible bidder."

CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons, the Board's award of a transportation contract to Ryder did not violate bid specifications 2 and 6 and the Department of Education rules. Accordingly, since no violations occurred, no interim measures or remedies are available to petitioner.

ORDER

It is hereby ORDERED that petitioner's appeal is dismissed and respondent's award of the transportation contract to Ryder is affirmed.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

BYRAM BUS LINES, INC.,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF MOUNT ARLINGTON, MORRIS COUNTY,	:	DECISION

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Exceptions of both Byram and the Board and Byram's reply were timely filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4, and duly considered by the Commissioner in his determination herein.

Byram's exceptions essentially recast and reiterate the arguments advanced below in support of its contention that the Board's award of its transportation contract to Ryder must be overturned as Ryder did not meet the letter of all of the contract specifications, i.e., specifications 2 and 6, which it refers to as the "dispatch facility requirement." As the Commissioner determines that the relevant demonstrations proffered by Byram in this regard were fully considered and addressed by the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) in her initial decision, they will not be revisited here.

Byram additionally advances that it disagrees with the ALJ's holding that Ryder "reasonably and substantially complied with the specifications," (Byram's Exceptions at p. 6) and her conclusion that "any variation of its 'dispatch scheme' from the specifications were nothing more than a 'minor or inconsequential' waiver that would not cause frustration of policies underlying competitive bidding. (Initial Decision, page 26)." (Id.) To the contrary, it maintains, citing Terminal Construction v. Atlantic Sewerage Authority, 67 N.J. 403 (1975) as its authority, the dispatch facility requirement must be considered a "substantial condition," as Ryder's failure to satisfy these "clear and precise" specifications "placed [it] in a position of advantage over other bidders." (Byram's Exceptions at p. 7) It argues that the existence of these particular provisions "may have clearly influenced potential bidders to refrain from bidding," and the absence of such requirements would have increased the number of bidders for this particular contract. (Id.) Indeed, Byram advances, the record confirms that the presence of the dispatch facility requirement "clearly affected and influenced the amount [it] bid for this job." Moreover, it urges that summarily waiving these specifications "would be unfair to the taxpayers." (Id.)

The Board's exceptions request that the Commissioner affirm the ALJ's well reasoned opinion. (Board's Exceptions at p. 1) However, it advances, left unaddressed in the decision was the relief to be accorded Byram should the Commissioner determine to modify or overturn the recommended decision. In this regard, it avers that the only relief sought by Byram is "invalidation of the award to Ryder and award of the contract to Byram" (Board's Exceptions at p. 2), a relief which it asserts is unjustifiable based on the record of this matter. (Id.) The Board posits that, as a matter of law, at best, the only relief which Byram could be granted would be invalidation of the contract and a rebid. The Board cites Meadowbrook Carting Co. v. Island Heights Borough, 138 N.J. 307 (1994) as its authority for the proposition that, where it is determined that a contract to a successful bidder must be vacated, and the bid of the next bidder in line is substantially higher than the bid originally awarded, as is the case in this matter, it "would unfairly disadvantage the taxpayers and would undermine the purpose of the bid laws" (citations omitted) to award the bid to the next in line. (Id. at pp. 3-4) In this case, it avows, the additional $60,000 it would cost the Board to transport its students in such a circumstance would result in "serious budgetary problems for the Board." (Board's Exceptions at p. 4) The Board additionally points out that if it were to be determined that Ryder's bid is ineligible, Byram would be the only remaining bidder, and it cites to a 1991 Appellate Division case which it contends supports the proposition that "a lack of competition between bidders after disqualification of the apparent low bidder is further justification for a public entity to reject the bids and readvertise." ((Board's Exceptions at p. 4)

In reply to the Board's exceptions, Byram contends that, contrary to the Board's assertions, the question of the relief to be accorded should Byram prevail in this matter was previously resolved by the ALJ in her decision on the parties' prior summary decision motions wherein she found "the Commissioner can award this contract to [Byram]. See Consex Security Group, Inc. vs. Lakewood Township Board of Education, 93 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 231." (Byram's Reply Exceptions at p. 4)

Upon his careful and independent review of the record in this matter, which included a transcript of the hearing conducted at the OAL on September 14, 1998, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusion of the ALJ that the within Board complied with applicable laws and regulations in securing, through competitive bidding, the lowest responsible bidder for its transportation contract and he finds Byram's contention that the Board acted improperly in this regard to be without merit. The Commissioner further agrees with the ALJ's determination that Ryder, the lowest bidder, did substantially conform to the specifications, and its variance therefrom was not material or substantial so as to preclude the Board's awarding it the transportation contract at issue herein. In this regard, the Commissioner finds Byram's exception argument advocating a strictly literal interpretation of specifications 2 and 6 charging that the Board's more liberal interpretation of these specifications served to discourage competition and frustrate the underlying purpose of the bidding laws, disingenuous. If Byram was concerned with maintaining the integrity of the bidding laws and fostering unfettered competition, as it appears to contend herein, the appropriate manner for dealing with such concern would have been to challenge the bid specifications themselves, at the appropriate time, prior to the opening of the bids, which they failed to do. Rather, Byram now, after the fact, and subsequent to its discovery that it was not the low bidder for the contract, requests the Commissioner to adopt its unduly restrictive interpretation of the specification provisions which, coincidentally, would render Byram the only qualified bidder. The Commissioner concludes that to accede to such a request serves to thwart the intent and spirit of the bidding process. Rather, as fully recognized by the ALJ, "In connection with the bidding process and the issue of irregularities in meeting the specifications, the Commissioner has stated that '[t]he pivotal point is whether the lowest bid was materially and substantially in accord with the specifications.'" (Initial Decision at p. 21) (See Aetna Supply, Inc. v. Board of Education of the City of Camden, 1971 S.L.D. 151, 154.) Under the facts existing in this matter, the Commissioner finds, as did the ALJ, that Ryder has reasonably met all of the specifications, including specifications 2 and 6. Having so found, the Commissioner warrants it unnecessary to reach the question of whether he could have appropriately awarded the contract to Byram had it prevailed on the merits of its claim.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the OAL dismissing the instant Petition of Appeal is affirmed for the reasons well expressed therein.

OF TRENTON, MERCER COUNTY.	:

For the Board, Thomas W. Sumners, Jr., Esq. (Sumners, George & Dortch)

This matter having been opened before the Commissioner of Education on December 12, 1998 through certification of tenure charges of abandonment of position by the Board of Education of the City of Trenton; and

The respondent, having been served, via certified mail, return receipt requested, and regular mail, with a copy of the charges, the Board's resolution, the Statement of Evidence and the Certificate of Determination on December 4, 1998; and

The Commissioner having directed respondent, via both certified and regular mail on December 7 and 11, 1998, to file an Answer to the tenure charges against him; and

Whereas, such communications clearly provided respondent notice that, pursuant to P.L. 1998, c. 42, effective July 1, 1998, an individual against whom tenure charges are certified "shall have 15 days to submit a written response to the charges to the commissioner," and that failure to answer within the prescribed period will, absent granting of an extension for good cause shown, result in the charges being deemed admitted and the Commissioner deciding the matter on summary judgment pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.4(e); and

In that the December 7 and 11, 1998 communications to respondent were returned to the Commissioner on December 26, 1998, marked "Unclaimed," and

In that no reply has been received from respondent in response to the Board's charges, each count of the charges against respondent is deemed to be admitted; and

The Commissioner's review of the tenure charges certified against respondent by the Board and the statement of evidence in support of those charges indicate that respondent has abandoned his position by virtue of his failure: (1) to report to work since September 30, 1997; (2) to submit to a medical examination as directed by the District in writing in January 1998; (3) to provide his supervisor or the Board's Office of Human Services with any medical documentation to justify this lengthy absence from work, despite being informed in person of the need for medical documentation by his supervisor in April 1998; and (4) to notify the Board regarding his intentions with respect to his continued employment in the District; and

Deeming such charges to be admitted, and noting that respondent has not replied to the specific allegations contained therein, the Commissioner finds that respondent's actions constitute abandonment of position, warranting his dismissal from his tenured custodian position; now, therefore

IT IS SO ORDERED this tenth day of March 1999 that summary judgment shall be granted to the Board, and Darryl Crossland shall be dismissed from his tenured custodian position as a heavy cleaner in the Board's employ as of the date of this order.*

* This decision, as the Commissioner's final determination in the instant matter, may be appealed to the State Board of Education, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-27 et seq. and N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.1 et seq., within 30 days of its filing. PETITIONERS,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE RAMAPO-INDIAN HILLS REGIONAL HIGH SCHOOL DISTRICT, BERGEN COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioners challenged Regional School District Board's revision of Attendance Policy No. 5117. The revised policy provides that students from each of the Regional District's constituent members may choose to attend whichever of the District's two high schools has the lesser enrollment. Petitioning residents of Oakland contended that the policy was arbitrary, capricious, unreasonable and discriminatory, arguing that it gave Oakland students no meaningful choice because their regular school of assignment would always be the school of lesser enrollment.

ALJ determined there was no genuine issue of material fact in dispute and granted the Board's motion for summary judgment. ALJ found that assignment of pupils and other attendance/boundary issues fall within the discretionary authority granted boards of education by the Legislature, and that petitioners failed to prove that the Board's actions were arbitrary, capricious, unreasonable or discriminatory.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own, noting that, at this point in time, there is no clear or convincing evidence that would warrant reversal of the Board's lawful action.

Record Closed: January 12, 1999, Decided: January 22, 1999

This is a transcript of the administrative law judge's oral initial decision rendered pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.2.

BEFORE: ELINOR R. REINER, ALJ:

Prior to this date I received a motion for summary decision filed by respondent; I received petitioner's response to it and respondent's reply. The following constitutes my determination on the motion.

Factual Background and Procedural History

Respondent operates two high schools, Ramapo High School and Indian Hills High School, within the regional high school district, which is comprised of the constituent municipalities of Franklin Lakes, Oakland and Wyckoff.[1] Based upon the locations of the respective schools, the initial placements of students was as follows: the Oakland students, and those Franklin Lakes students within walking distance of the school, were assigned to Indian Hills, and the Wyckoff students, as well as the remainder of Franklin Lakes students, were assigned to Ramapo. In 1971, respondent formally adopted school attendance Policy #5117 which had the effect of "splitting" the Franklin Lakes students between the two schools. The "Franklin Lakes split" has been a highly contentious issue and has led to ongoing discussions and conflicts since its inception.

Against this backdrop, overcrowding has occurred at Ramapo, while under enrollment has occurred at Indian Hills. Respondent has continuously studied both the "Franklin Lakes split" issue, as well as building utilization and attendance reassignment issues since the "split" occurred in 1971. Most recently, in December 1996 respondent commissioned E.I. Architects (hereinafter "EIA") to evaluate building utilization at both facilities. In September 1997, after conducting lengthy studies of the district's facilities, EIA presented a detailed report to respondent, which evaluated the health, safety and welfare issues of the two schools, including the overcrowding issue at Ramapo and the under-enrollment issue at Indian Hills, as well as population projections for the future school years. In November 1997, after conducting studies of the district's educational programs, technology and staffing, EIA presented a detailed report to respondent, which presented its proposed modifications of the school's curriculum for the next millennium. The two reports were collectively known as the "Horizon Curriculum Project."

[1] The regional district is referred to by the acronym "FLOW" (i.e.) the first letters of each constituent municipality.

In July 1997, respondent hired Paul Saxton as the new superintendent of schools. Respondent determined that resolving the overcrowding and under-enrollment issues was a prerequisite to the effective implementation of the Horizon Project. Therefore, in the fall of 1997, respondent charged Saxton with developing revisions to school attendance Policy #5117. Aware that Saxton was "new" to the district, respondent provided him with a full history of the district so that he could familiarize himself with the contentious "Franklin Lakes split" issue and its potential impact on the revised Policy #5117.[2] On or about December 8, 1997, Saxton presented his first draft of the revised attendance Policy #5117, and respondent initially reviewed it that day. Throughout the next week, Saxton received ongoing informal input from respondent, which resulted in modification of his draft.

On December 15, 1997, Saxton presented the finalized draft of revised attendance Policy #5117 at respondent's public meeting. Public comments were received from both citizens and district staff members, and question-and-answer sessions were held. Respondent then moved for a second reading of the revised Police #5117, to be held at the meeting of January 5, 1998. Between the two meetings, representatives of the board met with various officials to discuss the revised Policy #5117, including the mayor of Oakland and the superintendent of the Oakland school district. The meeting of January 5, 1998 was duly noticed and open to the public. At the meeting, numerous officials addressed both respondent and the public regarding the proposed revisions to Policy #5117; among these were: Saxton, David L. Rinderknecht (School Business Administrator/Board Secretary), Michael Miello and Robert Van Sanders (athletic directors of the respective high schools). Respondent then allowed for an extensive period of public commentary on the issue. Immediately following closure of the public session, a motion to adjourn was defeated by a vote of seven to one. Thereafter, a vote was held concerning the adoption of revised Policy

[2] Saxton received numerous background materials from respondent, including prior studies of demographic trends and projections, long-range plans, and a comprehensive (i.e., 80 pages) History of the Franklin Lakes Spilt: 1954 to 1997, published by Frank J. McMahon. All of these materials are found in the appendices to respondent's brief of September 10, 1998.

#5117, which passed by a vote of eight affirmative to one abstention. The revised policy, which is set forth in respondent's appendix to its brief (volume two, section twelve), allows all students from the Flow district the right to choose to attend the school of lesser enrollment.

On or about January 22, 1998, petitioners filed a petition of appeal to the Commissioner of Education (hereinafter "Commissioner"), challenging the actions of respondent to implement the revised Policy #5117. The Commissioner transferred the matter to the OAL as a contested case. On September 10, 1998, respondent submitted a brief in support of his motion for summary decision, along with various appendices. On September 15, 1998, petitioner submitted a brief in opposition to respondent's motion. Thereafter, respondent responded with a letter brief, withdrawing its request for oral argument and moving for a decision on the papers.

DISCUSSION:

1. The Summary Decision Standard

The New Jersey Uniform Administrative Procedure Rules (N.J.A.C. 1:1-1.1 et seq.) provide that a party may move for summary decision upon all or any of the substantive issues at any time after a case is deemed contested. N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(a). In considering the cross-motions for summary decision, this tribunal must determine whether "the papers and discovery. . . together with the affidavits . . .show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law." N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b).[3] This language is

[3]In pertinent part, R. 4:46-2(c) provides:

> The judgment or order sought shall be rendered forthwith if the pleadings, depositions, answers to interrogatories and admissions on file, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to a judgment or order as a matter of law.

substantially similar to the standard for summary decision found at R. 4:46-2(c). Therefore, this standard is relevant to resolving motions for summary decision.[4]

In this regard, the New Jersey Supreme Court has stated, "[S]ince there are pronounced similarities in the exercise of judicial and quasi-judicial powers . . . court-fashioned doctrines for the handling of litigation do in fact have some genuine utility and relevance in administrative proceedings." City of Hackensack v. Winner, 82 N.J. 1, 29 (1980). Additionally, the Court has recognized that the OAL performs many quasi-"judicial" or "adjudicative" functions and that in doing so "[j]udicial rules of procedure and practice are transferable to administrative agencies (i.e., the OAL) when these are conducive to ensuring fairness, independence, integrity, and efficiency in administrative adjudications." Matter of Tenure Hearing of Onorevole, 103 N.J. 548, 554, 555 (1986).

Recently, the Supreme Court of New Jersey held when deciding a motion for summary judgment under R. 4:46-2,

> . . . [a] determination whether there exists a "genuine issue" of material fact that precludes summary judgment requires the motion judge to consider whether the competent evidential materials presented, when viewed in the light most favorable to the non-moving party, are sufficient to permit a rational factfinder to resolve the alleged dispute issue in favor of the non-moving party.
> [Brill v. Guardian Life Insurance Company of America, 142 N.J. 520, 540 (1995).]

The essential question is "whether the evidence presents a sufficient disagreement to require [a hearing] and whether it is so one-sided that one party must prevail as a matter of law." Id. at 533. See also N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b). "([A]n adverse party [to a summary decision motion] in order to prevail must by responding affidavit set forth specific facts showing that there is a genuine issue which can only be determined in an evidentiary proceeding.") In the instant matter, where respondent has moved for summary decision, petitioners must raise factual issues which are sufficient to lead a rational factfinder to rule in their favor if a trial were held. Otherwise summary decision in favor of respondent is appropriate.

II. Analysis

a. Applicable Law

The New Jersey Legislature is charged with affording public school pupils a "thorough and efficient system" of education. N.J. Const. (1947) Art. VIII, §IV, Par. 1. See N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-14.1(a). ("The Legislature finds and declares that: It is the constitutional obligation of the Legislature to provide all children in New Jersey with a thorough and efficient system of free public schools.") See also N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-1 through -34. ("Comprehensive Educational Improvement and Financing Act of 1996"). Moreover, N.J.S.A. 18A:33-1 mandates that:

> Each school district shall provide, for all children who reside in the district and are required to attend the public schools therein . . . suitable educational facilities including proper school buildings and furniture and equipment, convenience of access thereto, and courses of study suited to the ages and attainments of all pupils between the ages of five and 20 years . . . in schools within the district convenient of access to the pupils . . . but no course of study shall be adopted or altered except by the recorded roll call majority vote of the full membership of the board of education.

In order to meet its obligation of providing pupils with a thorough and efficient program of education, the Legislature has delegated its authority to local and regional boards of education to carry out this constitutional mandate. N.J.S.A. 18A:11-1. In relevant part, the boards of education shall:

> c. Make, amend and repeal rules, not inconsistent with this title or with the rules of the state board, for its own government and the > transaction of business and for the government and management of the public schools and public school property of the district and for the employment, regulation of conduct and discharge of its employees . . . and

> d. Perform all acts and do all things, consistent with law and the rules of the state board, necessary for the lawful and proper conduct, equipment and maintenance of the public schools of the district.

Although boards of education are vested with this broad-based authority, such boards are "public bodies," whose meetings must nonetheless comply with the provisions of the Open Public Meetings Act found at N.J.S.A. 10:4-6 through -21. In the instant case, however, petitioners do not allege any violation of the Open Public Meetings Act. Therefore, no further discussion of its provisions is warranted here.

b. Legal Arguments

With the applicable statutory provisions detailed above, a discussion of the contested legal issues is appropriate. Petitioner present the following arguments:

> (a) "The petitioners find the recent actions of the Board of Education at its January 5, 1998 meeting to be arbitrary;"
>
> (b) "The petitioners find the recent actions of the Board of Education at its January 5, 1998 meeting to be prejudiced;"[5]
>
> (c) "The petitioners find the recent actions of the Board of Education at its January 5, 1998 meeting to be discriminitory[sic];"
>
> (d) "The petitioners find the recent actions of the Board of Education at its January 5, 1998 meeting to be a potential burden on the Taxpayers of the Regional District;" and
> (e) "The petitioner find the recent actions of the Board of Education at its January 5, 1998 meeting to be capricious."

[5] At the pre-hearing conference of May 6, 1998, it was agreed that prejudice would not be an issue at the hearing. Accordingly, no further discussion of this issue is warranted. See Pet. Interrog. Answer #15.

[Pet. Appeal to the Commr. of Jan. 22, 1998.]

Furthermore, petitioners argue that respondent's motion for summary decision should be denied; specifically, they state:

> To go to Summary Judgement now with a motion to dismiss with prejudice, to not have the ability to approach this issue again if something goes wrong, would only be an injustice for the children. Your Honor, We respectfully request that the Motion for Summary Judgement [sic] and to dismiss this matter with prejudice be denied, and we proceed forward to the scheduled hearing dates in January. At that point, everything will be out 'on the table' and an objective decision can be rendered. We believe this matter will never be consciously resolved for the good of the children if we are not allowed our day in court. Your Honor, there had to be 'something' that was seen in our Petition of Appeal when it initially went to Trenton in order for it to be forwarded to the OAL.
> [Pet. Ltr. Br. of Sept. 15, 1998, at 6.]

Respondent counters by arguing that:

> (a) "Respondent is entitled to a grant of summary judgment;"
>
> (b) "The petition fails to state a claim upon which relief may be granted," [specifically].---
>
> (1) "The New Jersey Legislature has granted broad based powers to local boards of education;"
>
>
> (3) "There was no affirmative obligation on the part of the RIH Board to hold additional public meetings;"
>
> (4) "Petitioners offer no factual or legal authority to support allegations that the adoption of Board Policy #5117 was burdensome to the taxpayers of the FLOW communities;" and

(5) "Petitioners offer no factual or legal authority to support assumptions that the adoption of Board Policy #5117 would have a disparate impact upon educational programs in either high school;"

(c) "Petitioners allegations that Policy #5117 is a 'potential burden' on the taxpayers is non juridicus;" and

(d) "Allegations relating to future tax increases are not ripe for judicial review."

[Resp't. Br. at i-ii.]

Each of the contested legal arguments will be discussed in turn, with the primary focus on whether respondent's action of amending school attendance Policy #5117 was arbitrary, capricious, unreasonable or discriminatory.

1. Arbitrary, Capricious and Unreasonable

Petitioners claim that respondent's action of amending school attendance Policy #5117 was arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable, while respondent asserts that it was not. Respondent's action to amend its policy, like that of any administrative agency, must be upheld unless it is deemed "arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable." Non-Profit Affordable Housing v. COAH, 265 N.J. Super, 475, 477 (App. Div. 1993); Shuster v. Bd. of Educ. of Montgomery Twp., 96 N.J.A.R 2d (EDU) 670, 676 (Apr. 10, 1996), aff'd Comm. Ed. (May 28, 1996). A board of education's actions "are entitled to a presumption of lawfulness and good faith;" accordingly, where board actions are challenged, the challenger bears the burden of proving[6] that such actions were unlawful, or arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable. Shuster, 96 N.J.A.R. 2d at 676 [citing Schinck v. Westwood Bd. of Educ., 60 N.J. Super. 448 (App. Div. 1960), and Quinlan v. North Bergen Bd. of Educ., 73 N.J. Super. 40, 46 (App. Div. 1962)].

[6] In order to overcome the "presumption of correctness," a challenger of a board action must prove by a preponderance of the credible evidence that such action was arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable. South Mountain Civic Ass'n. v. Bd. of Educ. of Millburn Twp., OAL Dkt. No. EDU 0589-83 (July 13, 1983), p. 9, aff'd. Comm. Ed. (Aug. 28, 1983).

Under this standard, the reviewing court must consider three factors: (1) whether respondent's actions violated the enabling act's express or implied legislative policies; (2) whether there is substantial evidence in the record to support the findings on which the action was based; and (3) whether, in applying the legislative policies to the facts, respondent clearly erred by reaching a conclusion that could not reasonably have been made on a showing of the relevant facts. Edison Twp. Bd. of Educ. v. Edison Twp. Principals and Supvs. Ass'n., 304 N.J. Super. 459, 463 (App. Div. 1997) [citing In re Musick, 143 N.J. 206, 216-17 (1996); Matter of Warren, 117 N.J. 295, 296-7 (1989) [citing Campbell v. Dep't. of Civil Service, 39 N.J. 556, 562 (1963)].

Notably, however, the "arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable" standard of review is narrow in its scope, and consequently imposes a heavy burden on challengers of board actions. This standard has been defined by the New Jersey courts as follows:

> In the law, "arbitrary" and "capricious" means having no rational basis . . . Arbitrary and capricious action of administrative bodies means willful and unreasoning action, without consideration and in disregard of circumstances. Where there is room for two opinions, action is not arbitrary or capricious when exercised honestly and upon due consideration, even though it may be believed that an erroneous conclusion has been reached. . . Moreover, the court should not substitute its judgment for that of an administrative or legislative body if there is substantial evidence to support the ruling.
> [Bayshore Sewage Co. v. Dept. of Envtl. Protection, 122 N.J.. Super. 184, 199-200 (Ch. Div. 1973), aff'd. 131 N.J. Super. 37 (App. Div. 1974) (internal citations omitted).]

As such, "absent a clear showing of abuse of discretion," the Commissioner will not "substitute his judgment for that of the Board of Education." Massaro v. Bd. of Educ. of the Borough of Bergenfield, 1965 S.L.D. 84, 85 (Comm. Ed., June 10, 1965). In Kopera v. Bd. of Educ. of West Orange, 60 N.J. Super. 288, 294 (App. Div. 1960), the Appellate Division discussed the "well established rule that action of the local board [of education] which lies within the area of its discretionary powers may not be upset unless patently arbitrary without rational basis or induced by improper motives." In this regard in a similar challenge to board action, an ALJ stated:

> It is the management prerogative of boards of education that will not be usurped or assumed by the Commissioner of Education absent a definitive showing of bad faith or arbitrary actions taken in bad faith without a rational basis.
> [GM v. Roselle Park Borough Bd. of Educ., 95 N.J.A.R 2d (EDU) 107, 109 (Dec. 15, 1993), aff'd. Comm. Ed. (Jan. 26, 1994) (citing Paddock v. Bd. of Educ. of the Borough of Demarest, 1974 S.L.D. 435).]

Likewise, in Brodie v. Bd. of Educ. of Saddle Brook Twp., 93 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 694, 700 (July 27, 1993), aff'd Comm. Ed. (Sept. 3, 1993), an ALJ quoted from the Commissioner's recitation of the law on this point as follows:

> [a]s long as...a board of education...acts within the authority conferred on...it by law the courts are without power to, or will not, interfere with, control, or review...its action and decisions in matters involving the exercise of discretion, in the absence of clear abuse thereof or error; nor is the wisdom or expediency of an act, or the motive with which it was done, open to judicial inquiry or consideration, where power to do it existed.

Although the New Jersey courts have handled numerous challenges to actions by boards of education under this "arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable" standard, the challengers have been generally unsuccessful in their efforts to overturn such actions. In most cases, as long as the record reflected a rational basis for the action, as well as the absence of bad faith, the courts were likely to uphold the boards' actions. For example, in Red Bank Teachers Ass'n. v. Bd. of Educ. of Red Bank, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 5328-80 (Apr. 30, 1981), aff'd. Comm. Ed. (June 15, 1981), the ALJ upheld the board's approval of a new "Mastery Learning" curriculum as a "valid exercise of its managerial prerogative" that was rationally arrived at. Likewise, in G.M., 95 N.J.A.R.

2d (EDU) 107, the ALJ found that the board's decision to change geographic boundaries for kindergarten pupil placement, with a goal of evenly distributing the pupils at different schools within the district, was a reasonable exercise of its authority. In Shuster, 96 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 670, the ALJ determined that it was within a board's discretion to make a change from a two-story plan for construction of a new school, to a one-story plan. There, the record reflected that notwithstanding the approval of the two-story plain in a referendum, the board had a reasonable basis to believe that a one-story plan, at a substantially similar cost, would be educationally superior to a two-story plan. Accordingly, its decision was not disturbed.

Of particular relevance to the instant matter are cases concerning redistricting and/or reorganization of schools, where the courts have generally upheld such actions by boards of education as valid exercises of their authority under N.J.S.A. 18A:11-1 and N.J.S.A. 18A:33-1. Among these cases are the following, which will be discussed in turn: (a) Marcewicz v. Bd. of Educ. of Pascack Valley Regional High School Dist., 1972 S.L.D. 619 (Comm. Ed.); (b) Parents United for Better Learning in the Community v. Hamilton Twp. Bd. of Educ., OAL Dkt. EDU 3503-85 (July 12, 1985), aff'd. Comm. Ed. (Aug. 13, 1985); (c) Fullen v. Middletown Twp. Bd. of Educ., 1985 S.L.D. 582, aff'd. Comm. Ed. 1985 S.L.D. 603; and (d) Hussnatter v. Bd. of Educ. of Newton, 1986 S.L.D. 2667, aff'd. Comm. Ed. 1986 S.L.D. 2688. In Marcewicz, the regional high school district contained two high schools: the "Hills School" and the Valley School." The board approved a high school redistricting plan after concluding, through various studies, that the Hills School had reached an "intolerable" level of "over capacity," which was projected to worsen in the upcoming school years. When the board's passage of the plan was challenged, the Commissioner determined that the plan was not arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable, and upheld the board's action as a valid exercise of its authority. The Commissioner stated that "the Board acted in a reasonable, deliberate and thorough manner to examine the enrollment projections over a period of weeks prior to the time of its final action." Marcewicz, 1972 S.L.D. at 625. The Commissioner noted that the board, although not required to, invited public comment and discussion on the redistricting issue prior to taking its final action; in this regard, the Commissioner stated, "It is the Board alone which is empowered by N.J.S.A. 18A:11-1 to make rules for its own 'government' and the 'government' of the public schools entrusted to its supervision." Id.

A similar situation occurred in Parents United, where the challenged board action consisted of a plan to change school attendance/boundary areas for the upcoming school year, in an effort to alleviate severe overcrowding at the middle school level. All parties conceded that overcrowding existed at the township's two middle schools. After a referendum to construct a new middle school was defeated, the board proposed boundary changes to address the overcrowding issue. Over the course of the following month, the board held various meetings and accepted public comments on the issue; thereafter, it passed the proposal. Finding that there was no affirmative showing that the action was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable, the ALJ upheld the board's action, and the Commissioner affirmed. The ALJ noted that while emotions ran rampant when such board action was proposed, challengers nonetheless had to meet the "arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable" standard in order to have the action overturned. In this regard, he stated, "[T]here are certain questions which arise in the life of a community which generate high feelings. No matter how emotional the question, however, as the petitioner correctly observes, it still must meet the [arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable] standard." Parents United, OAL Dkt. EDU 3503-85.

Similarly, Fullen and Hussnatter both dealt with the issues of school overcrowding and redistricting plans. The boars' actions in approving the plans were upheld for substantially the same reasons as in the aforementioned cases. Additionally, the ALJ in Fullen stated the following, which provides guidance in the instant dispute:

> [T]he evidence clearly demonstrates that the Board's plan is reasonably intended to accomplish legitimate goals of providing a thorough and efficient program of education for all pupils enrolled in the Middletown Township pupil schools. While pupils have a constitutional right to receive a thorough and efficient program of education, there is no corollary right to receive such education in a specific schoolhouse in the district.

[Fullen, 1985 S.L.D. at 601 (emphasis added).]

In the instant matter, as in the cases discussed above, the record reflects that respondents action of amending school attendance policy #5117 was not arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. As noted above, the attendance Policy #5117 revisions were a product of multiple studies on the issues of overcrowding at Ramapo, under-enrollment at Indian Hills, the "Franklin Lakes split," future utilization of the district's capital resources, and future educational programs. In short, they were made as an integral step in the implementation of the comprehensive Horizon Project. The revisions were formally presented to the respondent board, as well as the constituents of the FLOW district, at two separate public meetings nearly one month apart. Respondent allowed for extensive public commentary on the issue, and made a concerted effort to adequately address the concerns of the FLOW district constituents. Furthermore, the procedural rules for proper board action were met, when a majority of the board members affirmatively adopted the revised Policy #5117 at a duly noticed meeting.

As discussed, supra, the determinations of school attendance areas and boundaries for pupil placement are well within the province of respondent's authority as a board of education under N.J.S.A. 18A:11-1 and 18A:33-1. Moreover, the relevant case-law abounds with instances where similar actions by other boards of education were upheld, as being within their delegated authority under these provisions. Even petitioners concede that they have no affirmative evidence of any specific wrongdoing or deviation from lawful board of education activity. See Pet. Interrog. Answer #14(b) ("Petitioners have no knowledge of how the respondents deviated from authorized Board activity"). Additionally, petitioners acknowledge that the January 5, 1998 board meeting was duly noticed, and they were aware that respondent intended to vote on the revised Policy #5117 at that time. There is simply no evidence in the record that respondent's actions were made in "bad faith" or were otherwise "arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable."

Notwithstanding this, petitioners allege that respondent's action was arbitrary because it delegated the drafting of the revisions to Superintendent Saxton, who "has only been working in the District for the past 4 months," and who was "not knowing the strife of the three towns over the past 27 years." (Pet. Appeal to the Commr. at 1). Petitioners address this point further when they state:

> It raises a lot of questions in our minds when you have a new Superintendent who enters a Regional High School District with no high school experience. He is charged to come up with a new attendance policy in the fall...and presents it in December and voted on in January. He also, after only being within the district for approximately 8 months received a very substantial pay increase in the spring.
> [Pet. Ltr. Br. of Sept. 15, 1998, at 5.]

Petitioner's allegations on this point are groundless. Respondent properly exercised its discretionary authority by delegating the drafting of Policy #5117's revisions to Superintendent Saxton. As noted above, respondent was fully aware that Saxton lacked specific knowledge of the ongoing conflict in the District when he began his tenure as Superintendent. However, respondent's actions of educating Saxton and bringing him "up to speed" were reasonable under the circumstances. Additionally, petitioners concede that Saxton had a rational basis for his determination, when they state:

> The Board advised him that attendance lines should take into consideration the number of students in an area in relation to the relative capacities of the schools, the equalization of enrollments in classrooms, transportation facilities and demographic factors....It would seem the best way to devise a policy not knowing the strife of the three towns over the past 27 years, would be to base a decision strictly on a numbers rationale.
> [Pet. Appeal to the Commr. at 1 (emphasis added).]

By conceding that Saxton's revisions to Policy #5117 were based on the aforementioned factors and "strictly on a numbers rationale," petitioners effectively concede that his proposal was objective and not based on emotion. Instead, a thorough reading of the record reflects that the crux of petitioners' arguments are based on emotion, as they have no factual or legal bases. Mindful of the guidance provided by the ALJ in Parents United, petitioners arguments, while highly charged and emotionally laden, cannot stand absent a definitive showing that respondent's action was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. Accordingly, summary decision on this point is granted in favor of respondent.

2. Discriminatory

Petitioners entire argument that respondent's action of amending school attendance Policy #5117 was discriminatory is as follows:

> The new Police #5117 provides, "All students from Oakland, Wyckoff and Franklin Lakes may choose to attend the school of lesser enrollment. Oakland [sic][7] will always have the lesser enrollment.
>
> [Pet. Appeal to the Commr. at 2.]

See also Pet. Ltr. Br. of Sept. 15, 1998, at 5, where petitioners state:

> When you have a new attendance policy effecting [sic] 3 communities, Franklin Lakes, Wyckoff and Oakland within the Regional High School District, and only Franklin Lakes and Wyckoff have the "choice" of what High School they would like to attend, makes it a very big issue to us who live in Oakland. We call that....Discrimination.
> [Pet. Ltr. Br. of Sept. 15, 1998, at 5 (emphasis added).]

Petitioners argument rests on the assumption that Indian Hills will always be the school of lesser enrollment; such an assumption is speculative at best. According to the express language of this portion of the attendance Policy #5117, all students have the choice of attending the school of lesser enrollment. Admittedly, however, depending on which school has the lesser enrollment, the choice made by Oakland or Wyckoff students may not change their existing placements. In other words, by virtue of where the schools are situated, Wyckoff students attend Ramapo and Oakland students attend Indian Hills. Therefore, assuming arguendo that Ramapo has the lesser enrollment, the "choice" by a Wyckoff student to attend Ramapo would be meaningless (i.e., he would already be in attendance there). Conversely, assuming arguendo that Indian Hills has the lesser enrollment, the "choice" by an Oakland student to attend Indian Hills would also be meaningless (i.e., since he is already in attendance there). Although the practical effect of this arrangement could be to give either the Oakland students or the Wyckoff students no "real choice" (depending on which school has the lesser enrollment), this does not rise to the level of "discrimination." In this regard, Policy #5117 is not discriminatory in its application. As the ALJ stated in Fullen:

[7] It appears that petitioners meant to say that Indian Hills will always have the lesser enrollment, and because Oakland students are already assigned to Indian Hills, they have no real choice.

> While pupils have a constitutional right to receive a thorough and efficient program of education, there is no corollary right to receive such education in a specific schoolhouse in the district.
> [Fullen, 1985 S.L.D. at 601 (emphasis added).]

In short, both Ramapo and Indian Hills are high schools within the FLOW district. The assignment of pupils and other attendance/boundary issues fall within the discretionary authority granted respondent by the Legislature. Furthermore, there is no affirmative evidence of any disparities in resource allocation or course offerings between the two schools. In fact, even if they were, the policy apparently covers this. Moreover, the type of alleged "discrimination" raised by petitioners (i.e., discrimination on the basis of geographic location) is not contemplated in any of the antidiscrimination statutes. See, for example, the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination, N.J.S.A. 10:5-1 through 10:5-49, which provides broad protections on the basis of race, creed, color, national origin, ancestry, age, sex, affectional or sexual orientation, marital status, liability for service in the Armed Forces of the United States, or nationality, as well as handicap, but does not provide such protection for geographic location. Accordingly, the claim that respondent's action of adopting Policy #5117 was discriminatory fails, and summary decision on this point is granted in favor of respondent.

Conclusion

For the foregoing reasons, there is no genuine issue of material fact in dispute, and respondent is entitled to summary decision as a matter of law.

Order

It is hereby ORDERED that respondent's motion for summary decision is granted and petitioner's appeal is dismissed.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

I, Anna M. Leggett, certify that the foregoing is a true and accurate transcript, to the best of my ability, of Judge Elinor R. Reiner's oral decision as edited by the ALJ for forum but not substance, rendered in the above matter on January 12, 1999.

CHERYL B. PICCOLI AND ROBERT PICCOLI,	:
PETITIONERS,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE RAMAPO-INDIAN HILLS REGIONAL HIGH SCHOOL DISTRICT, BERGEN COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision issued by the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Exceptions were timely filed by the parties pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4. as were respondent's reply exceptions.[1]

Petitioners object to this matter having been decided by the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) on a summary judgment basis, questioning how such a ruling can be made when all the facts and affidavits were not disclosed to the judge[2] and averring that they had witnesses ready to testify, such as respondent's two athletic directors, two directors of guidance, the president of the Ramapo-Indian Hills Education Association, the Mayor of Oakland and others,

[1] On February 22, 1999, petitioners filed a reply to the Board's reply exceptions. There is no provision in N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 for filing a reply to reply exceptions; therefore, petitioner's February 22, 1999 filing cannot be considered by the Commissioner in rendering his final decision in this matter.

[2] Petitioners' exceptions include a number of documents which were not part of the record before the ALJ when she rendered the initial decision. Petitioners state in their exceptions that they submitted the documents in question to Board Counsel during the time the parties were attempting to develop a joint stipulation of facts but Board Counsel determined not to submit them to the ALJ. It is noted that a stipulation of facts was not submitted to the ALJ by the parties. In accordance with the provisions of N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4(c), evidence which was not part of the record before who would support the allegations in their petition. Petitioners also except to the determination of the ALJ that respondent's actions in this matter approving the revised attendance Policy No. 5117 were neither discriminatory nor arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable. They maintain that it was unreasonable for respondent not to meet with Oakland's K-8 Elementary Board of Education and Town Council regarding the revised policy and object to the ALJ's conclusion that they offer no factual or legal authority to support assumptions that the revised policy would have a disparate impact on educational programs at either Ramapo or Indian Hills High Schools. Petitioners reiterate that the District's two directors of guidance and two athletic directors could have testified with respect to disparate impact but their testimony was never heard by the ALJ. Petitioners further allege that their witnesses who are employed by respondent needed to be subpoenaed because respondent's counsel "strong armed" their witnesses when he told them "not to communicate with [them] for the purpose of giving information." (See Petitioners' Letter of September 15, 1998 to the ALJ at p. 3.)

Petitioners argue that the revised attendance policy will result in an enrollment shift which violates Policy No. 5117 because the numerical difference in enrollment between the two high schools will be greater than 100 and, thus, will not be considered equivalent as specifically stated in the policy. Moreover, they contend that the enrollment shift will jeopardize the delivery of a thorough and efficient education for all students because it will not be conducive to a learning environment in which children will get a thorough and efficient education. Petitioners object to the ALJ's conclusions that they effectively conceded that the superintendent's proposal was objective and not based on emotion, averring that their position is in fact just the opposite. Of this, petitioners state in their exceptions the ALJ may not be submitted with an exception, nor may it be incorporated or referred to within an exception; therefore, such documents cannot be considered by the Commissioner in rendering his final decision in this matter.

> In our Petition we stated that his decision should be based strictly on a numbers rationale. How could the Superintendent by looking at the enrollment numbers from last year, seeing the steady increase at one high school and the steady decrease at the other, (which has also manifested itself again with the new enrollment numbers this year) put in place such a policy. It defies all logic and reasoning. Furthermore, while the Board brought Mr. Saxton "up to speed" through the review of consultants reports, demographic trends and projections, long-range plans and History of the Franklin Lakes Split, he missed out on the most valuable resource he had at his disposal. All the years of experience and hands on knowledge from the Educators within the Regional High School District. (emphasis in text) (Petitioners' Exceptions at p. 4)

Petitioners except to the ALJ's finding that the revisions to the attendance policy were made as an integral step in the implementation of the comprehensive Horizon Project, averring, inter alia, that such a finding was based on speculation and an idea not to come to fruition for years. They further contend that "[t]o turn a Regional High School District upside down with a decision on attendance which [affects] not only all the students at both schools, but all the Educators as well, is totally unreasonable and without any educational merit at this point in time." (Id. at p. 9) Petitioners also contend that the University Programs which may start next September at Indian Hills High School are only being offered to fill up the enrollment disparity which they believe is inevitable if the revised attendance policy goes into effect because Ramapo High School will not be able to support any of the program due to overcrowding.

Petitioners reject the ALJ's reliance on Marcewicz, supra; Parents United for Better Learning in the Community, supra; Fullen, supra; and Hussnatter, supra, asserting that these cases are not applicable herein because they all dealt with redistricting due to overcrowding at one of the schools in those districts, while in the instant matter, revised Policy No. 5117 was not passed to alleviate overcrowding but only compounds the overcrowding at Ramapo High School.

Respondent urges that the initial decision be affirmed, averring, inter alia, that the ALJ appropriately determined that petitioners had no legal or factual basis to successfully challenge its revised attendance policy. It states that notwithstanding petitioners' numerous allegations that various individuals, including staff members of the Regional High School District, Board members and town council members from constituent districts, were unhappy with the revisions to Policy No. 5117, they cite no affirmative legal obligation for the respondent Board to consult with these individuals prior to the development or implementation of any new Board policy. Of this, respondent states

> The [ALJ] has duly noted that the New Jersey Legislature has expressly delegated the authority to make, amend and repeal rules for its own government, the transaction of business and the government and the management of school property to local and regional boards of education [Initial Decision at p. 6-7]. Having demonstrated that the Board duly exercised that authority, Petitioners fail to establish any prima facie allegations against it. Consequently, they are entitled to no relief. (Respondent's Reply Exceptions at p. 4)

Respondent further argues that petitioners misconstrue the purpose of a stipulation of facts, averring that petitioners' allegations relative to this attempts to sidestep petitioners' legal obligation to demonstrate each and every allegation that respondent acted in violation of its duty by clear and convincing evidence. Respondent goes on to state that "[n]otwithstanding Petitioners' repeated statements, that they, and others similarly situated, disagree with the revision of Board policy, Petitioners failed to demonstrate by clear and convincing evidence that the Board's actions were arbitrary, prejudiced, discriminatory, capricious or burdened the taxpayers of the District." (Respondent's Reply Exceptions at p. 4) Moreover, respondent strongly rejects petitioners' allegation that the Board prevented them from speaking with their witnesses, calling such an allegation specious at best. Of this, respondent states

> The witnesses in question are employees of the Ramapo-Indian Hills High School District. [The witnesses] had no contact with either Petitioner prior to the initiation of the instant action. Petitioners' attempt to contact Board employees in reference to this litigation violated fundamental rules of representation. (See RPC 4.2). Petitioners were authorized to interview any and all Board employees upon prior notification, and an opportunity by a designated Board representative to observe these contacts. Petitioners' characterization of this common litigation courtesy as "obstruction and tampering" of their witnesses is absurd. Petitioner Cheryl Piccoli was given any and all documents requested, was granted ample opportunity to meet with Superintendent Saxton. Further, the only objection made by the District was that Petitioners would not interview potential Board employed witnesses during school hours. This was agreed to by Petitioners. (Id. at pp. 4-5)

Lastly, respondent contends that petitioners' allegations regarding enrollment projections do not demonstrate arbitrary, prejudicial, discriminatory or capricious behavior by the Board.

COMMISSIONER'S DETERMINATION

After thorough consideration of the record of this matter, the Commissioner agrees with the conclusion of the ALJ that summary judgment be granted to respondent, essentially for the reasons set forth in the initial decision.

The appropriate standard for summary decision as set forth by the Courts in Brill, supra, allows for summary judgment even in the face of evidence opposing the motion, as long as that evidence is not sufficient to allow a rational factfinder to resolve the dispute in favor of the non-moving party. Brill, supra at 540. As correctly stated by the ALJ at page 5 of the initial decision

> Recently, the Supreme Court of New Jersey held when deciding a motion for summary judgment under R. 4:46-2,

> ...[a] determination whether there exists a "genuine issue" of material fact that precludes summary judgment requires the motion judge to consider whether the competent evidential materials presented, when viewed in the light most favorable to the non-moving party, are sufficient to permit a rational factfinder to resolve the alleged dispute issue in favor of the non-moving party. [Brill, [supra] at 520, 540]

After reviewing the arguments made by the parties and the documentary evidence in support thereof, the Commissioner finds that the ALJ correctly determined under the Brill standard that this matter is appropriate for summary decision as no genuine issue of material fact exists. The record unequivocally establishes that for nearly three decades the various Boards of Education of Ramapo-Indian Hills School District examined the issue of attendance areas. (See History of Franklin Lakes Split.) The record also establishes that respondent considered the issue of enrollment shifts which could result from the revisions to the attendance policy proposed by its superintendent. The uncertified transcripts of the both the December 15, 1997 and January 5, 1998 Board of Education meetings document that respondent considered the educational impact on the programming for both educational program offerings and athletics. For example, Superintendent Saxton stated in pertinent part at the December 15, 1997 meeting

> We looked at the impact of that programming, we spent many days, our administrative team, in reviewing the impact of that programming, looking at the pros and the cons, looking at the impact of the athletic conference, does it change our athletic conference, what's the impact we looked at the consequences of all of these actions and a cause and effect relationship and felt very strongly and felt very confidently that it's not going to have a negative impact in terms of our operation as a regional school district. Dr. Stein [Director of Curriculum] did a review of our program, even reviewed the programs in the context of our current program format. What would happen if this policy were in > effect right now, what would happen to our existing courses? Would we be able to implement our existing programs, especially in terms of the singletons. (Uncertified Transcript of December 15, 1997 meeting at p. 5)

In response to this question, Dr. Stein indicated that all courses currently running at Indian Hills would continue to run. (Id. at p. 7) Further, the uncertified transcript of the December 1997 meeting indicates that, at that time, there were 978 students at Ramapo and 747 at Indian Hills High Schools, and, even if the unlikely scenario comes about where all students from Franklin Lakes opted for Ramapo High School, there would still be 638 students at Indian Hills. (Id. at p. 6)

Moreover, the record also unequivocally establishes that there can be no question that respondent had an overwhelming amount of input from a wide spectrum of its constituencies before acting to revise Policy No. 5117. As correctly noted by respondent, the fact that there are segments of those constituencies that disagree with the revisions it adopted does not make its actions arbitrary, capricious, unreasonable or discriminatory.

The standard of review for arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable is narrow in its scope and consequently imposes a heavy burden on those who challenge actions of boards of education. The standard defined by the New Jersey Courts states

> In the law, "arbitrary" and "capricious" means having no rational basis. Arbitrary and capricious action of administrative bodies means willful and unreasoning action, without consideration and in disregard of circumstances. Where there is room for two opinions, action is not arbitrary or capricious when exercised honestly and upon due consideration, even though it may be believed that an erroneous conclusion has been reached. Moreover, the court should not substitute its judgment for that of an administrative or legislative body if there is substantial evidence to support the ruling. (internal citations omitted) (Bayshore Sewerage Co. v. Dept. of Envt. Protection, 122 N.J. Super. 184 199-200 (Ch. Div. 1973), aff'd 131 N.J. Super. 37 (App. Div. 1974))

In applying this standard to the instant matter, the Commissioner could not substitute his judgment for that of the Ramapo-Indian Hills Board of Education, even if he believed an erroneous conclusion had been reached by respondent because the record establishes that respondent did not take willful or unreasoning action, without consideration and in disregard to the circumstances. This is not to say that petitioners' concerns about the impact of enrollment shifts are not legitimate. The record shows that at least one Board member, Mr. Rork, acknowledged their concerns which prompted him to abstain from the vote which otherwise carried affirmatively by the remainder of the Board. Mr. Rork stated as he cast his vote, "I would like to make sure that my vote sends two messages. One, for the superintendent, I support in the strongest way possible. The other message I wanted to say is that I hear the concerns from many of these people in the district, and I want to make sure that they understand that as long as I'm on the Board, although we come and go, that I will maintain vigilance over the educational opportunities for every kid in this district. Therefore, I'll have to abstain." (Uncertified Transcript of January 5, 1999 Board meeting at p. 32) Board Member Madigan spoke to the issue of equity in numbers and educational opportunity as well, commenting at the same Board meeting

> I support this proposed policy. But while I am concerned about the student growth of Ramapo, with or without additional Franklin Lakes students, I am confident that this policy is the right course. It is my expectation that all three towns now will be united, and will re-affirm their commitment to putting the educational goals of this district forefront. I know that the academic reputation and the achievement of both schools can only be enhanced. The most important task before us is the Horizon Educational Curriculum and Facilities Study. Objective and focused, this Board and the community can map out the strategic future of our district. The superintendent has wholeheartedly endorsed this policy and is committed to equity in program. He has made it clear that equity and quality in program do not require equity in numbers. As a proud parent of children who have attended both high schools, I know the programs of both high schools, and I have been equally > impressed and this is why I can endorse this policy without reservation and because of my confidence in the superintendent, two strong principles in the united Board. So I applaud the superintendent for his foresight in initiating this policy. I commend my fellow Board members for their conviction and their commitment to the educational excellence. And I, too, challenge this community to hold this Board and future Boards accountable for channeling their efforts in the strategic, educational goals and objectives. (Id. at p. 30)

Notwithstanding the fact that petitioners express legitimate concerns relative to the enrollment shifts, a thorough review of the record convinces the Commissioner that, at this point in time, there is no clear and convincing evidence that would warrant reversal of the Board's lawful action.

Consequently, the Commissioner adopts as his own the initial decision rendered by the OAL granting respondent's Motion for Summary Judgment. The Petition of Appeal is, therefore, dismissed.[3]

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning parent contested the Board's residency determination. Board contended the petition was filed untimely.

ALJ found that the Board's motion to dismiss on the basis of untimeliness had to be granted as the petition was filed out of time; petitioner had shown the judge no good cause as to why the time should be enlarged; and petitioner had not complied with any direction given by the judge. Petition was dismissed.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own.

March 10, 1999

Program (IEP) he attends and out-of-district placement, the Delaware Valley School. J. R. the younger is presently incarcerated in the Mercer County Youth House awaiting trial on criminal charges. The Mercer County Special Services School District is providing educational services to him.

Irrespective of the outcome of the present case, the pupils' educational programs are unlikely to change. A residency investigation began in December 1997. The Board received a comprehensive report. It covered extensive surveillance at both D. R.'s alleged residence in Ewing and at the pupils' mother's address in Trenton. Neither pupil has ever been observed emerging from the Ewing address on any of the school days on which surveillance occurred. Conversely, both young men were consistently and repeatedly observed emerging on school mornings from their mother's home in Trenton. More than seventeen (17) instances were reported. Based on the extensive surveillance, the investigators formed the conclusion that the pupils were residing in Trenton. The Superintendent of Schools recommended to the Board of Education that the pupils be disenrolled because of non-residency.

The Board directed that a special committee conduct several residency hearings at a special meeting held on June 29, 1998. This matter was one of those on the agenda. Notice was sent via certified mail, return receipt requested and by a U.S. Postal Service Priority Mail to Mr. [R.] at his Ewing address. The Board received a certified mail return receipt and a Priority Mail receipt. The Priority Mail envelope was not returned undelivered. The Priority Mail notice was also sent to two other addresses where Mr. [R.] has resided from time to time and to Mrs. [R.] at her Trenton address. None of these pieces of mail was returned undelivered.

No one appeared on behalf of the [R.] family at the hearing on June 29, 1998. The committee reviewed the report of the attendance officer and, based on the report, recommended disenrollment to the Board. The Board heard the committee recommendation at its regularly scheduled meeting on July 13, 1998. Based on the evidence, the Board adopted the resolution for the disenrollment. On July 16, 1998, a copy of the resolution was mailed to Mr. [R.] together with an explanatory cover letter. The letter and resolution were mailed to three separate addresses, as above. Mailings were sent by both certified and first class mail. None of the mailings was returned undelivered. In addition, the fact that Mr. [R.] filed a petition before the Commissioner of Education shows clearly that Mr. and Mrs. [R.] received notice of the Board's decision. Both the resolution and the July 16, 1998 cover letter advised Mr. and Mrs. [R.] of the need to appeal the Board's determination within twenty-one (21) days. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1.b.(2).

Mr. [R.] filed his petition with the Commissioner of Education on September 3, 1998. Mr. [R.] attested before a Notary Public on August 31, 1998, thereby verifying the petition. However, under the statute cited above, the time in which to file this petition expired August 7, 1998. The petition was filed out of time and the petitioner has shown this judge no good cause why the time should be enlarged. The petitioner has not complied with any direction given by this judge.

In consideration of the foregoing, I FIND and CONCLUDE that the Ewing Board of Education motion to dismiss on the basis of timeliness must be GRANTED. The times established in Administrative Code for filing petitions and objections are strictly construed. Riely v. Board of Education of Hunterdon Central High School District, 178 N.J. Super. 109 (App. Div. 1980).

Accordingly, it is ORDERED that this petition of appeal be and is hereby DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

RESPONDENT-RESPONDENT.

STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION

DECISION

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, March 10, 1999

Decision on motion by the Commissioner of Education, May 4, 1999

For the Petitioner-Appellant, D.R., pro se

For the Respondent-Respondent, John G. Dyer, III, Esq.

On March 10, 1999, the Commissioner of Education adopted the recommended decision of an administrative law judge ("ALJ") and granted the Ewing Board's motion to dismiss the petition in this matter. The Commissioner agreed with the ALJ that D.R. (hereinafter "appellant") had failed to file his petition, which challenged the Ewing Board's determination that his children were not entitled to a free public education in the district, in a timely manner pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b(2).[1]

On April 7, 1999, the appellant, acting pro se, filed a notice of appeal with the State Board of Education.

[1] We note that the appellant did not respond to the Ewing Board's motion to dismiss his petition.

July 7, 1999

On May 4, 1999, the Commissioner, noting his concern that appellant's children not be penalized with a disruption in the continuity of their education during the pendency of his appeal, granted the appellant's motion for a stay of the Commissioner's decision pending a determination by the State Board.

Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.11(a), the appellant's brief in support of his appeal to the State Board was due on April 27, 1999, 20 days after he filed his notice of appeal. Appellant was notified of that deadline in a letter dated April 14, 1999 from the Director of the State Board Appeals Office. Appellant, however, failed to file a brief by that date. By letter dated April 28, 1999, the Director of the State Board Appeals Office notified appellant of his failure to file a brief and informed him that this matter was being referred to the Legal Committee of the State Board for consideration of his failure to perfect the appeal.

Appellant has still failed to file a brief in support of his appeal, more than two months after the deadline for such filing. Nor has he offered any explanation for his failure to file or requested an extension of time for such filing. As a result, we dismiss the appeal in this matter for failure to perfect. N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.12(a). See Paszamant v. Board of Education of the Borough of Highland Park, decided by the State Board, April 1, 1992, aff'd, Docket #A-4812-91-3 (App. Div. 1993).

Petitioner, former Spanish teacher who was riffed in 1976, alleged that the Board improperly appointed a nontenured person to fill a position to which she was entitled.

ALJ concluded that the Board's appointment of another individual to the position of teacher of Spanish on June 30, 1997 violated petitioner's reemployment rights under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12. ALJ determined that even though petitioner remained silent after becoming aware in September 1995 that another individual had been appointed teacher of Spanish, this circumstance standing alone did not warrant the inference that petitioner intended to waive her right to remain on the preferred eligibility list for the position of teacher of Spanish. Moreover, the ALJ found that petitioner was qualified for the position, within the intendment of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12 in that she holds the appropriate certification and endorsement for the position. ALJ ordered the Board to employ petitioner as a teacher of Spanish, awarding her back pay, benefits and post-judgment interest.

Commissioner concurred with the ALJ and directed reinstatement of petitioner with back pay and emoluments as of June 30, 1997.

preferred eligibility rights. Respondent denies that its action have violated petitioner's tenure or preferred eligibility rights.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner filed her petition with the Commissioner of Education on July 14, 1997, pursuant to the Commissioner's authority conferred by N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9 to hear and determine controversies and disputes arising under the school laws. Respondent filed an answer on August 4, 1997, and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on August 7, 1997, for determination as a contested case.

The issues in this case were stated in the prehearing order dated November 18, 1997, as follows: (1) whether respondent violated petitioner's tenure/seniority rights by hiring a non-tenured teacher for the position of Spanish teacher, (2) whether petitioner waived her reemployment rights, (3) whether the petition should be dismissed on the basis of any of the separate defenses set forth in respondent's answer, and (4) if petitioner's rights were violated, whether the relief requested in the petition should be granted. The separate defenses included assertions by respondent that the petition was not filed within the ninety-day time limit contained in N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c), that the petition is barred by the doctrine of laches and that petitioner is not "qualified" within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12 for the position of Spanish teacher.

On May 14, 1998, respondent filed a motion for summary decision seeking dismissal of the petition, and on May 26, 1998, petitioner filed a cross-motion for summary decision. By Order dated August 4, 1998, respondent's motion to dismiss was denied, and partial summary decision was granted in favor of petitioner.

In addition to identifying certain facts which are not in dispute, the Order dated August 4, 1998, decided three issues as a matter of law and identified two factual issues which could not be resolved on the basis of the papers submitted by the parties. The first determination was that the petition should not be dismissed for failure to comply with the ninety-day time limit set forth in N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c). The second determination was that the petion should not be dismissed due to application of the doctrine of laches. The partial summary decision in favor of petitioner reflects a third determination that petitioner is qualified within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12 for the position of teacher of Spanish. One unresolved factual issue is whether petitioner waived her tenure or reemployment rights. The other unresolved factual issue relates to petitioner's claim for pre-judgment interest and is whether respondent's action was taken in bad faith or in deliberate violation of a statute or rule.

ISSUES

The main issue in this proceeding is whether respondent violated petitioner's tenure and reemployment rights by hiring a non-tenured teacher for the position of Spanish teacher. The determination in regard to this issue turns on the question whether petitioner waived her reemployment rights. If petitioner's rights were violated, the other issue is whether the relief requested in the petition should be granted. The only form of relief subject to a specific factual issue is pre-judgment interest.

FACTS

a. Undisputed Facts

The general course of events in this matter is undisputed. As summarized in the Order dated August 4, 1998, petitioner was employed by respondent as a teacher of Spanish during the school years from 1970-71 through 1974-75. During that time, petitioner achieved tenure as a teacher of Spanish.

Petitioner was on a maternity leave from September 1, 1975, through August 31, 1976. While petitioner was on the maternity leave, respondent notified her by letter dated April 1, 1976, that her teaching position had been eliminated. Petitioner did not challenge the reduction in force (RIF) at that time.

Respondent does not maintain seniority lists prior to 1991. However, each list from June 1991 to June 1995 included petitioner's name with five years and zero months of seniority.

In August 1995, Norman Gallof, a tenured teacher of Spanish, died. Gallof's death created a vacancy. Respondent did not notify petitioner of the vacancy but rather appointed Adriana Shonk to the vacant teacher of Spanish position. Petitioner became aware of Shonk's presence in the school because petitioner's husband is also employed there. Petitioner did not challenge the appointment of Shonk to the vacant position.

Petitioner's name remained on the seniority lists prepared by the Board in June 1996 and June 1997. Shonk was employed by respondent for only two years, and respondent advertised for a teacher of Spanish in or about April 1997. By letter dated April 7, 1997, petitioner applied for the position. On June 30, 1997, respondent appointed Sara Ruffman to the vacant teacher of Spanish position. Ruffman had no prior employment with respondent and was a non-tenured employee. Respondent notified petitioner by letter dated July 2, 1997, that respondent would not employ her. Petitioner filed her petition with the Commission of Education on July 14, 1997.

b. Findings

Petitioner was the only witness to testify at the hearing. Her testimony was credible, and the following summary is FOUND AS FACT.

Petitioner began her employment with respondent in 1970, and she obtained tenure in 1974. By letter dated April 1, 1976, respondent's superintendent of schools informed petitioner that the teaching position which she held prior to her maternity leave had been eliminated.

From 1976 to 1993, petitioner held a variety of jobs, but she was not employed as a Spanish teacher. During this time and for a total of thirty years, petitioner's husband was employed by respondent as a science teacher. Petitioner had no contact with the teachers union from 1976 to 1993.

After working part-time as a Spanish teacher in North Arlington, petitioner sought full-time employment in the spring of 1995 as a Spanish teacher. Petitioner attempted to find a position by checking newspaper advertisements. Petitioner did not contact respondent in regard to a position as a Spanish teacher, and respondent did not contact her. Petitioner had several interviews, and she accepted a full-time position as a Spanish teacher with the Randolph Township Board of Education.

On the first day of school for teachers in or about September 1995, petitioner's husband informed her that there was a new teacher of Spanish. Upon receiving this information, petitioner did not inquire about her rights to the position of Spanish teacher with respondent. Petitioner left her employment with the Randolph Board of Education after two years.

LAW AND ANALYSIS

A board of education may reduce the number of teaching staff members employed in the district for reasons of economy or under various other circumstances. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9. However, a teaching staff member dismissed as the result of such a reduction remains "upon a preferred eligible list in the order of seniority for reemployment whenever a vacancy occurs in a position for which such person shall be qualified . . . ." N.J.S A. 18A:28-12.

Here, petitioner was on the preferred eligible list for the position of teacher of Spanish with respondent as the result of the elimination of her position in April 1976. Unless petitioner waived her right to remain on the preferred eligible list, she has reemployment rights to the position of teacher of Spanish to which respondent appointed another individual on June 30, 1997. Respondent's main contention in this proceeding is that petitioner waived her reemployment rights to the position of teacher of Spanish.

"Waiver" is the intentional relinquishment of a known right. West Jersey Title, &c., Co. v. Industrial Trust Co., 27 N.J. 144, 152 (1958). A waiver requires a clear, unequivocal and decisive act by a party. Ibid. The intention to waive need not be manifestly expressed but may be inferred from circumstances. Goodpasture v. Goodpasture, 115 N.J. Super. 189, 198 (Chan. Div. 1971). The question whether a waiver has occurred involves a highly factual determination. Van Allen v. Bd. of Com'rs of Tp. of Bass Riv., 211 N.J. Super. 407, 411 (App. Div. 1986).

Here, petitioner remained silent after becoming aware in or about September 1995 that another individual had been appointed teacher of Spanish. However, this circumstance standing alone does not warrant the inference that petitioner intended to waive her right to remain on the preferred eligible list for the position of teacher of Spanish. Therefore, I FIND that petitioner did not waive her right to remain on the preferred eligible list for the position of teacher of Spanish. Under the circumstances, I CONCLUDE that respondent's appointment of another individual to the position of teacher of Spanish on June 30, 1997, violated petitioner's reemployment rights under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12.

In addition to a determination that respondent's actions violated her tenure and preferred eligibility rights, petitioner seeks the following relief: (1) an order directing respondent to employ petitioner, (2) back pay and benefits for the period of time during which respondent improperly failed to employ petitioner, (3) pre-judgment and post-judgment interest, and (4) such other relief as the Commissioner may deem appropriate. The only factual issue in regard to the requested relief relates to pre-judgment interest. In accordance with N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.16(c)1, pre-judgment interest shall be awarded only when the denial of a monetary claim was an action taken in bad faith and/or in deliberate violation of a statute or rule. Here, petitioner has not established that respondent's action was taken in bad faith or in deliberate violation of a statute or rule. It follows that the relief granted in this case should not include pre-judgment interest. The other relief requested by petitioner is appropriate.

Accordingly, it is ORDERED that:

1. Respondent shall employ petitioner as a teacher of Spanish.
2. Petitioner is awarded back pay and benefits for the period during which respondent improperly failed to employ her.
3. Post-judgment interest shall be available if warranted in accordance with the standard set forth N.J.A.C. 6:24 - 1.16(c)2.
4. Petitioner's request for pre-judgment interest is denied.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF CALDWELL-WEST CALDWELL, ESSEX COUNTY,	:	DECISION

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. The Board's exceptions and petitioner's reply thereto are duly noted as submitted in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

The Board excepts to the Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) conclusion that petitioner did not waive her right to reinstatement in September 1995, since the Board asserts that petitioner's inaction in 1995, despite actual notice that the Board had hired a new teacher for the Spanish position, was sufficient to establish that she had waived such right. (Board's Exceptions at p. 2) The Board reasons that "Petitioner's indifference to the exercise of her statutory right to reinstatement in 1995 constitutes a waiver; and, having relied to its detriment on Petitioner's indifference, [it] should not now be forced to accommodate her long-dormant interest in the district." (Id. at p. 3)

Additionally, the Board objects to the ALJ's conclusion, as found in his Interlocutory Order of August 4, 1998, that petitioner was "qualified" to teach the Spanish classes in question, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12, notwithstanding her lengthy absence from the profession. In this regard, the Board renews its contention as argued before the ALJ that the authority relied upon by the ALJ should not control, as none of the legal cases therein cited involved a 20-year gap between RIF and reinstatement. The Board further contends that none of the cases relied upon by the ALJ were decided during a period of "significant educational reform," as exists today, and maintains, therefore, that the instant matter is analogous to cases in which a riffed teacher demands reinstatement to a position involving different qualifications. (Id. at p. 4) It concludes that the ALJ's interpretation of the law will lead to absurd consequences that could not have been intended by the Legislature.

In reply, petitioner underscores that, despite the fact that she was on the Board's recall list for the position in question in 1995, the Board never communicated with her in any way and never offered her the job. She asserts that the waiver of her tenure rights, in that they are statutory, "must involve something more than failing to file a claim over the Board's abuse of power in 1995." (Petitioner's Reply at p. 2)

Additionally, petitioner contends that N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12 compels her reinstatement, as she is a tenured Spanish teacher who was riffed and placed on the preferred eligible list and had "an absolute right" to the vacancy. (Id. at pp. 3, 4) Petitioner maintains that her certificate and endorsement in Spanish provide the relevant scope of her tenure rights in this matter, and the Board could not lawfully deny her reemployment while hiring a nontenured teacher. (Id. at p. 5) As to the Board's "novel argument" that she, despite her tenure and placement on the preferred eligible list, is "not qualified," petitioner asserts,

> Happily, there is no legal support for the Board's argument. Indeed, the Board's argument amounts to a desire for local district nullification of the State Board of Examiners, which has the authority to issue certificates and endorsements to teaching staff > members (N.J.S.A. 18A:6-38), the Department of Education which, by virtue of the adoption of N.J.A.C. 6:11-6.2(a)(9)(ii) authorizes the petitioner to teach Spanish in "all public schools" (emphasis added)  and the Legislature, which adopted N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12. (Id. at p. 6)

Upon careful and independent review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusions of the ALJ in both his Interlocutory Order, as rendered August 4, 1998, and his recommended decision. Like the ALJ, the Commissioner declines to find that petitioner's failure to assert her right to the Spanish position in 1995 constitutes "'a clear, unequivocal, and decisive act '" (West Jersey Title, supra at 152) from which one may reasonably and fairly infer that she intended to relinquish her right to remain on the preferred eligible list for the position of Spanish teacher.

Further, like the ALJ, the Commissioner finds that petitioner is qualified for the position of Spanish teacher, within the intendment of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12 in that she holds the appropriate certification and endorsement for the position. Here, the Commissioner recognizes that

> The relevant inquiry regarding certification is not what a person can teach, but what a person may teach. The answer must be found in the regulations and the case law, not in a review of the endorsement holder's college transcript. Accordingly, in the context of tenure and seniority rights following a RIF, any discussion concerning who is more suited to teach a particular course or who is more qualified is unnecessary and inappropriate. If the riffed teacher has an endorsement which authorizes, i.e., permits, her to teach a course, she may exercise her tenure and seniority rights to claim it. Ulrich v. Board of Education of the Monmouth County Vocational School District, 96 N.J.A.R. 2*d* (EDU) 290, 293.

(See also, Dombloski v. Board of Educ. of the Town of Belvidere, Warren County, 94 N.J.A.R. 2*d* (EDU) 348, 349, aff'd, 95 N.J.A.R. 2*d* (EDU) 347, citing Lichtman v. Ridgewood Bd. of Ed., 93 N.J. 362, 364 (1983), establishing that a tenured teacher with proper certification can claim, as against a nontenured teacher, seniority rights to a position that is within the tenured teacher's certificate.)

Accordingly, the initial decision of the ALJ is adopted for the reasons expressed therein, and amplified above. The Board is directed to reinstate petitioner as a teacher of Spanish, and to award her back pay and related emoluments for improperly failing to employ her as a Spanish teacher as of June 30, 1997.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning parent contested the Board's residency determination. Board sought appropriate amount of tuition due and owing for the time petitioner attended its schools illegally.

ALJ concluded that as a matter of law, petitioner was not a bona fide resident of the City of Atlantic City from October 1997 through June 1998. ALJ concluded that petitioner's son, J.G.A., was not entitled to a free public education at Atlantic City High School during that period and, therefore, was subject to the payment of appropriate tuition for his education. ALJ concluded that the Board was due the educational cost, as determined by the Department of Education, for the education provided J.G.A. from October 1997 through June 1998. Petition was dismissed.

Commissioner concurred with the ALJ that petitioner was responsible for the tuition payment to the Board for J.G.A.'s education expenses for the period J.G.A. was a nonresident pupil in the Board's school. Commissioner, however, could not agree that dismissal of the petition was appropriate because the amount of tuition costs petitioner had to pay to the Board had not been calculated. Commissioner's decisions in residency matters cannot be deemed final until the amount of tuition to be paid has been determined and ordered. (Cranford Bd. Of Ed. v. A.McG. and L.McG.) Thus, the Commissioner remanded the matter to OAL for calculation of tuition due.

Record Closed: December 29, 1998 Decided: January 29, 1999

BEFORE LILLARD E. LAW, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner appeals from a determination by the Board of Education of the City of Atlantic City (Board) which found that pupil, J.G.A., attended the Board's public schools while residing out of the Atlantic City School District. The Board now seeks an order from the Commissioner of Education (Commissioner) for the appropriate amount of tuition due and owing for the time petitioner attended its schools illegally.

The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. The hearing was held on December 29, 1998, at the Atlantic City OAL, Atlantic County Civil Courthouse, Atlantic City, New Jersey. The hearing record closed on December 28, 1998.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Based upon the testimony and other evidence adduced at the hearing and having given fair weight thereto, and having assessed the credibility of the witnesses, I FIND the following FACTS.

Petitioner, J.G.A., has been a pupil attending the Board's public schools from kindergarten through high school. The issue in the instant matter commenced in October 1997, during petitioner's senior year at the Atlantic City High School for the 1997-98 school year.

In late October 1997, the house in Atlantic City in which petitioner's family resided experienced a major plumbing problem when the water pipes burst. Petitioner's family were no longer able to live on the premises due to water damage to the house; i.e., the ceiling was destroyed and the cost to repair the damage was excessive, or more than G.E.A. could afford.

Petitioner's father owned another property at 314 Bayview Avenue, Pleasantville, New Jersey. Petitioner's father G.E.A., testified that he had no other choice but to move his family to the second home in Pleasantville. After the family moved to the Pleasantville residence, G.E.A.

needed someone to watch the Atlantic City house. G.E.A. granted a Ms. Phillips the opportunity to live in the Atlantic City residence, for rent.

Petitioner's father testified that in September 1997, a Mrs. Wooley, from the Atlantic City High School, instructed petitioner J.G.A. to prove that he was a resident of Atlantic City and that he lived within the Board's school district. He asserted that Mrs. Wooley advised J.G.A. that he needed to produce one gas, telephone, electric, tax or sewerage bill to verify his residency. Petitioner's father presented Mrs. Wooley with a sewerage and tax bill to prove his school district residency.

Petitioner's father admits that during the school year, he transported J.G.A. from Pleasantville to the Atlantic City High School. He also testified that he advised Mrs. Phillips, of the Atlantic City property, that his son, J.G.A. would occasionally be staying in a back room of the residence during the school year.

G.E.A. testifed, among other things, that even when J.G.A. lived in Atlantic City, the father transported J.G.A. to and from the Atlantic City High School because of problems pupils created on the school bus. The father did not want J G.A. to get into any trouble with the school authorities.

G.E.A. is a single parent with two sons and is employed by the City of Atlantic City, Department of Health. He works from 11:45 p.m. until 7:45 a.m. in its alcohol and drug detoxification unit. The working hours allow him to sleep on the job from time to time. The work hours also permits him to transport J.G.A. to and from school on a daily basis.

G.E.A. testified that in January 1998, he appeared before the Board, which was attempting to exclude J.G.A. from its high school because he was a non-resident. G.E.A. argued that J.G.A is a honor student, who has experienced his whole primary, elementary and secondary education in the Atlantic City schools. J.G.A. has never been in trouble during his attendance in the Board's school. J.G.A. graduated from the Atlantic City High School in June 1998.

The Board asserts that the meeting between it and petitioner occurred on March 3, 1998, rather than in January as petitioner testified. The Board asserts that several meetings took place between the Atlantic City High School administration and G.E.A. prior to the March 3, 1998, meeting where the Board determined that J.G.A. was attending its school while residing out of the school district. It asserts that G.E.A. took no action to remove J.G.A. from its school after being advised that J.G.A. was not entitled to a public education within the Board's schools.

The Board's truancy department conducted an investigation after it was observed that J.G.A. was being dropped off on the highway near the school. The truancy department visited the Atlantic City property owned by petitioner, however, it failed to find G.E.A. in residence. Individuals who answered the door indicated that they were renters and that the owner lived elsewhere.

The Board asserts that J.G.A. is not entitled to a free public education simply by virtue of the fact that his father, G.E.A., is the owner of property and is a taxpayer in the school district. The Board found that J.G.A. was not properly domiciled in the Atlantic City School District as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1. The Board observes that in the instant appeal, the burden of proof rests with petitioner, and that the standard of proof is by a preponderance of the credible evidence. It further observes that the evidence, including G.E.A.'s own testimony, is that the present place of domicile is in Pleasantville, New Jersey.

CONCLUSIONS

The controlling statute in this matter is found at N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, which provides that:

> Public schools shall be free to the following persons over five and under 20 years of age:
> (a) Any person who is domiciled within the school district.

The term "domicile" is defined by BLACK'S LAW DICTIONARY (5th Ed.) as:

> That place where a man has his true, fixed and permanent home and principle establishment, and to which whenever he is absent he has > the intention of returning (citation omitted). The permanent residence of a person or the place to which he intends to return even though he may actually reside elsewhere. A person my have more than one residence but only one domicile . . . Id. at 435.

As our New Jersey Supreme Court held in Mansfield Township Board of Education v. State Board of Education, 101 N.J.L. 474 (1925) that:

> A child, in law, can have no residence of its own, and can only lawfully acquire one when it has been emancipated. Its residence under school law follows that of its parent or guardian or other person having legal control of it. Id. 479-480

Even if petitioner J.G.A. had occasionally stayed in the Atlantic City house owned and rented by G.E.A, his legal domicile still remains in Pleasantville. Mansfield, supra. See, also, Bd. of Ed., Tp. of Little Egg Harbor v. Bds. of Ed., etc 71 N.J. 537 (1976).

The undisputed facts demonstrate that from about October 1997 through June 1998, petitioner J.G.A.was not domiciled within the Board's school district. Nor was any evidence produced by petitioner that he intended to return to his Atlantic City residence once he had left it. The known property was occupied by renters.

I CONCLUDE, therefore, as a matter of law, that petitioner was not a bona fide resident of the City of Atlantic City from on about October 1997 through June 1998. I CONCLUDE that J.G.A. was not entitled to a free public education at the Atlantic City High School during the period October 1997 through June 1998 and, therefore, is subject to the payment of the appropriate tuition for his education.

I CONCLUDE that the Board of Education is due the educational cost, as determined by the Department of Education, for the education expense provided to J.G.A. for the period October 1997 through June 1998.

ORDER

Accordingly, it is ORDERED that G.E.A. is responsible for the tuition payment to the Board for J.G.A.'s education expenses for the period J.G.A. was a nonresident pupil in the Board's school. It is FURTHER ORDERED that the herein petition of appeal is hereby DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

PETITIONER,	:

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF ATLANTIC CITY, ATLANTIC COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and initial decision issued by the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon consideration of the record herein, the Commissioner adopts as his own the findings and conclusions of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) that petitioner's son, J.G.A, was not entitled to a free public education at Atlantic City High School during the period October 1997 through June 1998 when he graduated. The Commissioner cannot agree, however, that dismissal of the petition is appropriate at this time because the amount of tuition costs petitioner must pay respondent has not been calculated. The matter must, therefore, be remanded to the OAL for further proceedings for the reasons stated below.

The initial calculation of the education costs owing and due to respondent, as well as the documentation upon which such calculation is based, must be brought to the record by the Atlantic City Board of Education, the party seeking said payment. Upon review of the information relative to calculation of tuition costs submitted by respondent, the ALJ will make a recommendation to the Commissioner as to the amount of damages petitioner should be ordered to pay to respondent. Further, in accordance with the New Jersey Appellate Court's decision in Board of Education of the Township of Cranford v. A. McG. and L. McG., 95 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 74, aff'd 96 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 140, rev'd and remanded Appellate Division, February 10, 1998, A-4742-95T3, slip opinion at pp. 8-10, the Commissioner's decision in residency matters such as herein cannot be deemed final until the amount of tuition to be paid has been determined and ordered.

Therefore, pursuant to the provisions of N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.7(a), this matter is hereby remanded to the OAL for calculation of tuition due.*

IT IS SO ORDERED.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF ATLANTIC CITY, ATLANTIC COUNTY, : DECISION

RESPONDENT-RESPONDENT. :

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, March 10, 1999

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, January 18, 2000

For the Petitioner-Appellant, G.E.A., pro se

For the Respondent-Respondent, Michael C. Epps, Esq.

The decision of the Commissioner of Education dated January 18, 2000, in which he determined that the petitioner was responsible to the Atlantic City Board of Education for tuition in the amount of $9,149.40, is affirmed for the reasons expressed therein.[1] We observe in so doing that the petitioner has not challenged the Commissioner's

[1] The petitioner's notice of appeal, which was filed on February 15, 2000, also challenged the Commissioner's decision issued on March 10, 1999, in which he concluded that the petitioner was not domiciled in Atlantic City and, as a result, that his son was not entitled to a free public education in that district. The Commissioner remanded the matter to the Office of Administrative Law for further proceedings for the limited purpose of calculating the amount of tuition due and owing by the petitioner to the Atlantic City Board. On January 18, 2000, the Commissioner adopted the ALJ's calculation. Upon consideration of the late filing date of the petitioner's notice of appeal, see N.J.S.A. 18A:6-28, our Legal Committee determined that the petitioner could proceed to brief this matter solely on the merits of that portion of his appeal relating to the amount of tuition due to the Atlantic City Board as determined by the Commissioner in his decision of January 18, 2000.

calculation of the amount of tuition due, but, rather, maintains that he does not have the financial means to satisfy such an award. We note in that regard that this agency is not the proper forum for the petitioner to attempt to excuse his obligation to the Atlantic City Board on financial grounds.

Record Closed: January 6, 1999 Decided: February 2, 1999

BEFORE ARNOLD SAMUELS, ALJ:

This matter involves the settlement of a contested case before the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) that was remanded by the Commissioner of Education in a decision dated March 26, 1998. The relevant details were set forth in the Initial Decision/Settlement, OAL DKT. NO. EDU 1185-97, decided February 19, 1998. Both of the above decisions are incorporated herein by reference. This decision amends the prior disposition of the matter.

The Commissioner's comments in his Decision and Order of Remand are duly noted, particularly the need for the settlement to meet the Cardonick standards for settlement of tenure matters. (In Re Cardonick, decided by the Commissioner Apr. 7, 1982, Aff'd State Bd, of Educ. Apr. 6, 1983, 1990 SLD 842, 846.)

The agreement was accordingly remanded to the OAL for revision of the settlement in a manner that would be consistent with the Commissioner's concerns, or for plenary hearing on the merits, if such a modification could not be reached.

After consultation by and between counsel, it was decided that a revision of the settlement agreement to reflect the Commissioner's concerns could be accomplished. A hearing date for that purpose was scheduled for January 6, 1999, at which time an appropriate revised Stipulation of Settlement was agreed upon, signed by counsel for the parties and filed. A copy of the revised Stipulation of Settlement is attached hereto.

I have reviewed the record and the revised terms of settlement and I FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement, as evidenced by their signatures.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

The revised agreement conforms with the Cardonick standards and with the concerns of the Commissioner of Education, as set forth in his March 26, 1998 decision. I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and therefore ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be CONCLUDED, subject to the Commissioner's approval.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Respondent.	:

1. Wende Stuart, respondent resigned her position as of December 16, 1997;

2. Irvington Board of Education (hereinafter the "Board") representatives will assist in processing a disability retirement application to the Division of Pensions;

3. The Board has determined that in view of the fact that Ms. Stuart has resigned her position with the Board, the matter has become moot insofar as the Board is concerned any continuation of the case by the Board would entail the expenditure of substantial legal and administrative costs, plus personal time for no purpose other than that already accomplished by respondent's resignation;

4. Upon review the Board approved a paid leave of absence for the respondent and due to respondent's medical/psychiatric condition she failed to inform the Board of her continued desire for a leave of absence and ultimately of her desire to retire and pursue a medical disability;

5. Given the Board's approval of the paid leave of absence, the respondent's medical condition, her re-location to the Southwest United States and her subsequent resignation, it is the Board's position that pursuit of the tenure charges is no longer in the public interest and would resu' in substantial and needless expenditure of legal costs and administrative resources;

6. The respondent has been informed and understands the Commissioner's duty, pursuant to NJAC 6:11-3.6(a)(1) and In re Cardonick, April 7, 1982, affirmed State Board of Education April 6, 1983, 1990 S.L.D. 842, 846, concerning referral to the State Board of Examiners for review and possible action regarding Ms. Stuart's teaching certification;

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF WENDY STUART,	:
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
TOWNSHIP OF IRVINGTON,	:	DECISION
ESSEX COUNTY.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) in the form of a joint stipulation of settlement have been reviewed.

Upon careful and independent review of the full record of this matter and the terms of the proposed settlement agreement, the Commissioner is compelled to reject such agreement as it is currently structured since he cannot be satisfied by the present record that the proposed settlement meets the Cardonick standards for settlement of tenure matters. (In re Cardonick, decided by the Commissioner April 7, 1982, affirmed State Board of Education April 6, 1983, 1990 S.L.D. 842, 846.)

It is well established that, having once taken up the burden of tenure charges, the Board may not lay it down without spreading forth on the record a reasonably specific explanation of why such charges can no longer be pursued or why it is now in the public interest not to pursue them. (In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Kenneth Smith, School District of the City of Orange, Essex County, decided by the Commissioner March 22, 1982, decision on remand June 16, 1983, affirmed with modification by the State Board of Education November 2, 1983, affirmed Superior Court January 30, 1986.) The present record contains no such explanation.

Further, there is no indication that the within teaching staff member was advised of the Commissioner's duty, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6, to refer tenure determinations for possible revocation of certificate.

While the Commissioner does not preclude the possibility of settlement in this matter, he stresses that in order for him to meet his own obligation to the school and children of this state, he must be assured that any settlement is consistent with appropriate standards for setting aside tenure matters as expressed in Cardonick, supra.

Lastly, it appears that the terms of the settlement have already been effectuated through respondent's resignation. The parties are, therefore, admonished that settlement agreements of controverted matters are of no force and effect and may not be implemented absent the Commissioner's approval pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1.

Accordingly, the proposed settlement is rejected for the reasons expressed herein. The Commissioner hereby remands this matter to the Office of Administrative Law for further settlement negotiations consistent with the concerns herein expressed. If the parties are unwilling or unable to reach accord on a modified agreement for submission to the Commissioner, the matter shall proceed to a plenary hearing.*

IT IS SO ORDERED.

Christopher M. Hartwiyk, Esq., for respondent

Record Closed: January 26, 1998 Decided: February 17, 1998

BEFORE ARNOLD SAMUELS, ALJ:

In September 1996 the petitioner, Board of Education of the Township of Irvington, Essex County, filed a certificate of determination and written charges against the respondent, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11 and N.J.A.C. 6:24-5.1 et seq., seeking dismissal of the petitioner from her tenured position, for unbecoming conduct, incapacity, and other just cause (more specifically, excessive absenteeism and abandonment of position), pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 et seq. The respondent filed an answer with the Commissioner of Education on December 24, 1996.

On January 10, 1997 the Commissioner of Education transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for hearing and determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to 13.

Prehearing conferences were scheduled several times, but were adjourned for various reasons, including difficulties experienced by respondent's attorney in reaching and conferring with his client, who was located, for the most part, in the Southwestern part of the United States. A plenary hearing was ultimately scheduled for December 18 and 19, 1997 at the OAL in Newark, New Jersey. However, prior to the hearing counsel advised that the matter had been settled by and between the parties and that respondent's attorney had obtained Ms. Stuart's consent to the settlement. The petitioner, Irvington Board of Education, also approved of the terms. A letter from respondent's attorney to counsel for the petitioner contained the full and complete terms of settlement, which were approved on behalf of the Board and by counsel for petitioner. A copy of the letter of settlement, filed in the OAL on January 26, 1998, is attached hereto and made a part hereof.

I have reviewed the record and the terms of settlement and I FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidence by the signatures of their attorneys.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and therefore ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be CONCLUDED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

For Petitioner: David G. Ross, Esq. (Broscious, Glynn & Fischer)

This matter, having been brought before the Commissioner of Education by the Board of Education of the Warren Hills Regional School District (Board) by way of a Petition of Appeal (Petition) filed on November 23, 1998, requesting that respondents be ordered to pay the Board tuition in the amount of $17,479; and

Whereas, respondents having been served via certified mail with the Petition by the Board on November 20, 1998; and

Whereas, the Commissioner having directed respondents on November 24 and December 24, 1998 to submit an Answer to the Petition pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.4; and

Whereas, the Commissioner having notified respondents, by regular and certified mail, on January 14, 1999 that if they failed to file an Answer, each count of the Petition would be deemed admitted and the matter may then be decided on a summary judgment basis pursuant to his authority granted by N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.4(e); and

Whereas, neither respondents, nor any attorney on their behalf, have filed an Answer to the charges against them, and each count of the charges against respondents having been deemed to be admitted; and

Whereas, the Commissioner's review of the Petition indicates that (1) respondents' daughter, R.M., attended Warren Hills Regional High School during her junior (1996-1997) and senior (1997-1998) years of high school while not residing within the Warren Hills Regional sending district and (2) on May 5, 1998, respondents' attorney reached a Stipulation of Settlement and Release (Settlement), wherein respondents agreed, inter alia, to pay the Board the sum of $4,500 in full payment of tuition on behalf of R.M. at the rate of $900 per month commencing June 15, 1998 through October 5, 1998; and

Whereas, the Settlement also clearly stated that in the event respondents defaulted on their payment of $4,500, the Board reserved the right to petition the Commissioner to order additional tuition payment by respondents in an amount not to exceed $18,600; and

Whereas, respondents having failed to remit any tuition payments to the Board after the initial June 15, 1998 payment of $900, thus breaching their agreement with the Board and having failed to file an Answer to the Petition herein; now therefore,

IT IS ORDERED on this 12 day of March 1999, that summary decision shall be granted to the Warren Hills Regional Board of Education and that respondents shall pay tuition in the amount of $17,479, as requested by the Board, for the period of time in which their daughter, R.M., was ineligible for a free education in the Warren Hills Regional School District.*

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning District contested the Division's determination that petitioner was the district of residence responsible for the 1996-97 educational costs for D.W., a child placed with a center in Pennsylvania by Division of Youth and Family Services (DYFS).

ALJ concluded that petitioner had not proved that it was unreasonable, arbitrary or capricious for the Division to rely on DYFS's records which plainly indicated that D.W.'s mother was a resident of Newark until February 1989. ALJ concluded that the Division's determination that Newark was the district of residence of D.W.'s mother prior to the original placement was reasonable. Moreover, the ALJ concluded that N.J.A.C. 6:20-5.3(b) did not require the Division to conduct its own independent investigation. ALJ affirmed the Division's determination that Newark was the district of residence for D.W. at the time of the initial placement in May 1988.

Commissioner concurred with the ALJ; petition was dismissed.

BEFORE MARGARET M. HAYDEN, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner State-Operated School District of the City of Newark (District or Newark) challenges the determination made by the New Jersey Department of Education, Division of Finance (Division) that Newark is the responsible district for the year 1996-97 for the educational cost of placement of a student known as D.W. The Division made the final determination on July 30, 1997, that Newark was the district of residence for D.W. at the time of the initial placement with DYFS. On November 3, 1997, the District filed a petition of appeal with the Commissioner of Education challenging this decision.

On January 28, 1998, the Department of Education transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for a hearing as a contested case. The OAL scheduled a hearing for September 29, 1998, which was adjourned at the request of the parties. A hearing was held on November 30, 1998. The record was kept open for the submission of final arguments and briefs. Upon receipt of the final brief on December 16, 1998, the record was closed.

ISSUE

The issue to be determined is whether Newark has established by a preponderance of the credible evidence that the Division's determination that Newark was the district of residence prior to D.W.'s placement was arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

The following facts are undisputed and I FIND them to be FACTS in this case.

D.W., born February 10, 1978, was placed with the Division of Youth and Family Services (DYFS) in May 1988. His mother, who was his legal guardian, resided in Irvington at least from 1989 to 1996. D.W. was placed by the State in Arthur Brisbane Child Treatment Center from June 1988 to September 1988. He was then placed in another placement called Somerset Hills from September 1988 to August 1989. In September 1989, he was placed in an out-of-state placement at Devereaux Kanner Center in Pennsylvania, where he currently remains.

In 1996 Irvington, which paid D.W.'s tuition from 1989 to 1996, was unable to locate D.W.'s mother. Irvington asked the Division to relieve it from paying D.W.'s tuition at Devereaux for the 1996-97 school year. The Division contacted DYFS to find out particulars of D.W.'s mother prior residence. Richard Lee, Administrative Assistant in the Bloomfield office, was assigned to D.W.'s case. In 1996, he had been investigating the whereabouts of the mother for a sibling of D.W. also in DYFS's custody. After getting the inquiry, he filled out a form called District of Residence Determination for a Child Placed by a State Agency in a Group Home, Private School or an Out-of-State Facility. On the form he listed the date of placement as August 16, 1988 and the public school involved in the placement as Newark. In another part of the form, he listed the initial placement as taking place in September 1988, listed the mother's residence at the time as Irvington, and listed the public school involved at the time as Irvington.

As a result of the request from the Division for clarification of the District of Residence form, Mr. Lee wrote a memo explaining that DYFS's records showed that D.W.'s mother lived in Newark until February 8, 1989. She next lived briefly in Elizabeth and then moved to Irvington that same month. DYFS was not aware when she left Irvington and had had no recent contact with her. As a result of a request for further clarification, on January 30, 1997, Mr. Lee wrote to Holly Ricker of the Division that DYFS records showed that "D. was placed in Brisbane on 6/21/88. Our records show that his mother lived at 136 Sylvan Avenue, Newark, New Jersey at the time. The aunt who signed the placement agreement in 5/88 lived at 12 Sheffield Dr., Newark, New Jersey." In order to come up with this information, Mr. Lee examined the entire DYFS case file and went to the DYFS computer for an address listing. The computer listing showed that D.W.'s mother resided at 12 Sheffield Drive in Newark until February 1989. Mr. Lee's recent review of the case file before testifying at the hearing did not reveal to him where he found the Sylvan Avenue address in 1997. The computer showed that D.W.'s mother had lived at the Sheffield Drive address from January 18, 1987 to February 8, 1989.

Mr. Lee explained that the information on the form listing both Newark and Irvington as the public school involved was ambiguous, because the form had been confusing to him. Subsequently, he clarified for the Division that the records plainly showed that D.W.'s mother lived in Newark at the time of the original placement He relied both on the computer printout and case record to ascertain the mother's address as Newark up to February 1989. He had not personally attempted to locate the mother lately.

The Irvington School District sent the Division a copy of a form that they had in their possession from the Newark Board of Education, Division of Child Guidance which was entitled "Transfer from District." The form stated that D.W. effectively transferred from Newark on January 12, 1990 because the guardian had move to Irvington. The form also noted that D.W. was a classified student.

On February 10, 1997, the Director of the Bureau of School Finance sent a letter to Beverly Hall, the State District Superintendent of the Newark Board of Education, to inform her that it had determined Newark to be the responsible school district for D.W. Efthimia Christie, who was at the time Associate Superintendent for Special Services, checked for available records for D.W. and was unable to find any. When a child transferred or left the District, the records generally went with the child. The District maintained the child's records at each individual school but the District was unable to search the individual school records since there was no information as to what school C.W. had attended. Ms. Christie sent someone from the attendance department to the 12 Sheffield Drive address but the attendance department was not able to find anyone who was recalled either the mother or the aunt living there. Although D.W. was classified as eligible for special education, Ms. Christie did not check the Special Education records as they are incomplete so far back. The computer system that kept track of classified children was only created in 1990, so D.W. would not have been included in that system.

Based on its inability to locate any records, Newark filed an appeal on February 25, 1997, with the Division, contesting the determination. The Division upheld its original determination that Newark was the responsible school District.

LEGAL DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSION

Pursuant to the State Facilities Education Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-1 to -13, any child who is a resident of a district and is a resident of a state facility shall be educated by the district of residence. The district of residence is the present district of residence of the parent or guardian with whom the child lived prior to his most recent admission to the state facility but "if this cannot be determined, the district of residence shall be the district in which the child resided prior to such admission or placement." N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12(b). If the district of residence cannot be determined according to the criteria in the statute or is out-of-state, the State assumes financial responsibility for the tuition of the child. N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12(d).

Both parties agreed that the District challenging the determination of the Division has the burden of proof in this matter. See City of Wildwood v. Department of Education, 97 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 273. While producing no direct evidence itself, petitioner argued that the failure of Newark to have any records for the pupil demonstrates that the parent was not a residence of Newark in 1988-89. Newark argued that the fact that D.W. may have been living with his aunt in Newark was not proof that his mother was residing in Newark at the time. Newark also argued that there is no proof that D.W.'s mother was unable to be located in 1996 as the Division did not make a specific search for her. Additionally, Newark argued that it should not be obliged to pay for the tuition because Newark was not consulted before the placement.

I FIND the testimony of the social worker, Mr. Lee, credible that he reviewed the entire DYFS file and that it clearly stated that the mother lived in Newark from 1987-89.

The fact that Newark was unable to produce any records of this student when it looked in 1997 does not prove that the student was never there, given the fact that the records generally go to the new school district and individual schools were not searched for C.W.'s record. Ms. Christie noted that Newark's special education records were not searched and in fact Newark's records were incomplete as the State had taken some special education records. The fact that eight years later no one remembered the family at the Sheffield Avenue address in 1997 is scant evidence that the family did not live there eight years ago.

I CONCLUDE that in the absence of any evidence to the contrary it was reasonable for Newark to rely on DYFS's records concerning where C.W.'s parent lived at the time C.W. was originally placed by DYFS. Hence, I further CONCLUDE that petitioner has not borne its burden of proving that it was unreasonable, arbitrary, or capricious for Division to rely on DYFS's records which plainly indicated that D.W.'s mother was a resident of Newark until February 1989. I further CONCLUDE that the Division's determination that Newark was the district of residence of C.W.'s mother prior to the original placement was reasonable.

Newark argued that the Division was under duty to search for the absent parent in 1996 when Irvington discovered that she was missing from the Irvington District. I find no support in the law or regulations requiring such a search. I CONCLUDE that by requiring the Department of Education to determine residence based upon information received from the Department of Human Services, N.J.A.C. 6:20-5.3(b), the regulation inferentially did not require the Division to conduct its own independent investigation. To require such a search in the absence of an express requirement would put an additional and unnecessary burden on the Division. The Division also had a right to rely on Irvington's representation that the mother was missing, which was confirmed by DYFS which had no current address for the mother at that time.

In the petition filed in this case on November 3, 1997, Newark appealed the determination that Newark was the place of residence; the relief it requested was a reversal of the Division's decision determination and a finding that the district of residence for D.W. was Irvington. In its post-hearing brief, for the first time, Newark raised another issue by claiming that it was not financially responsible for C.W.'s tuition because the agency making the placement did not consult with the District prior to the placement. In addition to not raising it in the petition, there was no indication that this was ever raised before the Division. As this issue was not part of the petition nor part of the hearing, it was not properly before me and I do not address it.

ORDER

Accordingly, I ORDER that the Division's determination that Newark was the district of residence for C.W. at the time of the initial placement in May 1988 is hereby AFFIRMED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF NEWARK, ESSEX COUNTY,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
NEW JERSEY STATE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, DIVISION OF FINANCE,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. The District's exceptions and the Division's reply thereto were submitted in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

The District excepts to the Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) determination that it should be responsible for D.W.'s educational costs for the 1996-97 school year, essentially contending that: (1) contrary to the ALJ's findings, the records maintained by DYFS did not plainly indicate that C.W., D.W.'s mother, was a resident of Newark from 1987 until 1989; (2) contrary to the ALJ's finding, the Division's reliance upon the records maintained by DYFS was arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable; and (3) the failure of both the Division and DYFS to search for C.W. rendered the Division's determination arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable. (Petitioner's Exceptions at pp. 2, 3)

In reply, the Division contends that the ALJ properly found that the records maintained by DYFS indicate that D.W.'s mother was a resident of Newark until February 1989, and argues that the District presented no credible evidence to contradict the testimony of DYFS case worker Richard Lee. Neither did the District, according to the Division, prove that the Division's reliance upon the DYFS records was arbitrary and capricious or unreasonable, where relying on DYFS "is exactly the procedure for district of residence determinations which is set forth in the regulations. N.J.A.C. 6:20-5.3(b)." (Division's Reply at p. 3) The Division asserts that since Lee was a credible person with direct access to D.W.'s case file, its reliance upon the information he provided was entirely reasonable. (Id.) Finally, the Division maintains that it is not required by either statute or code to conduct a formal search for a missing parent in a district of residence determination, and requiring it to do so would place an unreasonable burden on the resources of the Department of Human Services. (Id. at p. 4)

Upon careful and independent review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusions of the ALJ. Notwithstanding that the form entitled "District of Residence Determination for a Child Placed by a State Agency in a Group Home, Private School or an Out-of-State Facility" (J-2) initially completed in 1996 by Richard Lee contained data which contradicted later reports,[1] the Commissioner finds that Lee's subsequent clarification (J-5), together with his testimony regarding the same, is sufficiently reliable evidence.[2] Like the ALJ, the Commissioner finds it noteworthy that the District produced no documentary or testimonial evidence in support of its claim. Additionally, although the District, apparently, could find no records confirming D.W.'s enrollment (initial decision at [1] It is noted that on page 3 of the initial decision, the ALJ summarizes the data provided by Lee on J-2 and erroneously states that D.W.'s date of placement (at the Devereux Kanner Center) was August 16, 1988, rather than August 16, 1989.

[2] With respect to the District's exceptions regarding the facts determined by the ALJ based on Lee's testimony and the credence she ascribed to such testimony, the Commissioner notes that the record before him does not include transcripts of the hearing conducted at the OAL in this matter. Challenges to the factual findings predicated upon credibility determinations made by an administrative law judge require the party to supply the agency head with the relevant and necessary portion of the transcript. See In re Morrison, 216 N.J. Super. 143, 158 (App. Div. 1987). In the absence of transcripts from the hearing, due regard should be given to the person who heard the live testimony and assessed the witnesses' behavior at the hearing. Close v. Kordulak Bros., 44 N.J. 589, 599 (1965).

p. 4), the within record shows that the former Newark Board of Education did, in January of 1990, complete a "Transfer from District" form identifying D.W. as a classified student, with an identification number, enrolled in the District. The form indicates that C.W. moved from Newark to Irvington.[3] Under these circumstances, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that the District has failed to meet its burden of proving that the Division's determination was arbitrary and capricious, or without a reasonable basis.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the ALJ is adopted for the reasons expressed therein, and the Petition of Appeal is dismissed. The Division's determination that the State-Operated School District of the City of Newark is responsible for D.W.'s educational costs for the 1996-97 school year, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12(b), is affirmed.[4]

IT IS SO ORDERED.

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning parent challenged Board's residency determination.

ALJ dismissed petition as petitioner failed to respond to the Board's Motion to Dismiss; thus, the Board's allegations of ineligible attendance were deemed admitted. ALJ ordered petitioner's children disenrolled from the District. ALJ ordered petitioner to reimburse the Board for the tuition owed for the periods of the children's ineligible attendance in the District.

Commissioner concurred with the ALJ that petitioner was not domiciled in the District and that his children were not entitled to a free education in the District pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1a. Petitioner was ordered to pay the tuition owed; he can choose to leave his children in the District until the end of the 1998-99 school year for added tuition cost.

BEFORE: SEBASTIAN GAETA JR., ALJ:

Statement of the Case and Procedural History

By petition of appeal, dated March 24, 1998, petitioner requested that the Commissioner of Education permit his three minor children to remain in the school system administered by respondent Board of Education of the Westwood Regional School District, Bergen County (Board), following the Board disenrolling them from the public schools within the Township of Washington.

On April 15, 1998, the Board filed its Answer and Counterclaim. On April 30, 1998, the Commissioner of Education transmitted the matter as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13 to the Office of Administrative Law, where it was marked filed on May 8, 1998.

Petitioner has not filed an answer to the Board's Counterclaim seeking removal of petitioner's three children from the Westwood Regional school system, payment by petitioner of the tuition for the time the three minor children were ineligible to attend Westwood Regional School District schools and other appropriate relief.

This matter was scheduled for plenary hearing on January 19 and 22, 1999.

On October 9, 1998, at the request of the Board, the Administrative Law Judge scheduled a telephone conference for October 22, 1998. On that day, petitioner called the Office of Administrative Law. He advised he would retain counsel and requested adjournment of that telephone conference, which was granted.

No further communications was received at the Office of Administrative Law from or on behalf of petitioner nor did an attorney-at-law file an appearance on his behalf. On December 10, 1998, the administrative law judge wrote to petitioner, by certified mail, return receipt requested and regular first class mail, requesting that he advise if he would be represented by an attorney or appear pro se at the hearing scheduled for January 19 and 22, 1999. Petitioner was directed to respond no later than December 18, 1998. The mail cover, posted certified mail, return receipt requested, was returned by the United States Postal Service, marked "unclaimed" and indicating notices to the addressee on December 11 and 16, 1998. The mail cover posted regular first class mail was not returned.

Petitioner has not responded to the Administrative Law Judge's December 10, 1998 letter.

On January 11, 1998, petitioner spoke with a secretary at the Office of Administrative Law, requesting an adjournment of the January 19 and 22, 1999 hearing dates. He was instructed to contact counsel for the Board. Counsel for the Board reported that petitioner has not contacted their office.

On December 17, 1998, the Board filed a Motion to Dismiss the Petition of Appeal with Prejudice, to Admit Each Count of the Board's Counterclaim, and to Obtain Reimbursement of Costs and Attorneys' Fees. Petitioner was served with copies of the motion papers at the Garfield and Washington Township address on December 15, 1998.[1] Based on the date of service, petitioner's response to the motion was due on December 28, 1998. N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.2(c). Petitioner has not filed a response.

Facts

Petitioner owns two residential properties, one in Garfield, New Jersey, the other in the Township of Washington, Bergen County. At the time he purchased the Washington property, sometime on or before September 1996, he and his family were living in Garfield. It was intended that the family would move to and live at the Washington property.

[1] The Board submitted documentation as proof of service consisting of two (2) letters from Federal Express containing the tracking numbers, delivery addresses, delivery dates, and names and signatures of the recipients.

The Board has a policy which allows the enrollment of non-resident pupils if, in the judgment of the school principal, residency will be established within sixty days of the application of admission. Pursuant to that policy, the three children were enrolled in the Westwood Public Schools.[2]

At the time of admission, the Washington property was uninhabitable and required major renovations.[3] Those renovations have not been completed.

After petitioner's children had been enrolled for over sixty days without establishing domicile in the Township of Washington, the Board disenrolled the children. Upon petitioner filing his appeal, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 the children were not removed from school pending these proceedings. The children are currently enrolled in the Westwood Public Schools.

DISCUSSION

Dismissal of Petitioner's Appeal

A petitioner's failure to prosecute an appeal may result in dismissal of the appeal. R.J. v. Board of Educ. of the Lower Camden County Reg'l Sch. Dist., 97 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 155; N.O. v. Board of Educ. of the Bridgewater-Raritan Sch. Dist., 96 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 746. In R.J., the Commissioner adopted an administrative law

---

[2] Two children were enrolled about September 1, 1996, the third was enrolled December 2, 1996.

[3] In his petition to the Commissioner petitioner states:

My residence has been in Washington Township prior to September, 1996. I began a renovation on my home in 1996, and I lived in the home until the end of 1996. My home was going through such major renovation, that we temporarily lived elsewhere.

My driver's license and registration is in Washington Township, we treat it as our home. The renovation will be complete by May 1, 1998.

At this time the school year, it would be a terrible hardship to remove his child from the school. R.F.D. is doing the work himself, and that is the reason that the renovation is taking the time that it is.

judge's dismissal of the petitioner's appeal for failure to prosecute the appeal. Like the present matter, R.J. involved a parent's appeal from a school board decision excluding her child from attendance in the school district. After the appeal was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law, a telephone conference was arranged, but the petitioner could not be reached. Subsequently, the administrative law judge wrote to the petitioner informing her of the hearing date and requesting information from her. The petitioner did not respond to the administrative law judge's letters nor did she appear on the hearing date. The administrative law judge therefore concluded:

> Inasmuch as R.J. made no effort to contact the judge until the time and date of scheduled hearing despite the fact that she had adequate notice, I FIND that R.J. has been dilatory in prosecuting her appeal and unresponsive to communications from the Department of Education and this judge. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that R.J. has abandoned prosecution of her petition and has failed to show good cause why that failure should be excused.
>
> The petition of appeal is DISMISSED. It is so ORDERED.
> [R.J., supra, 97 N.J.A.R. 2d at 156.]

Except for the telephone call received by a secretary on January 11, 1999, since October 1998, petitioner has not communicated with the Office of Administrative Law or the Board. Petitioner has failed to respond to correspondence sent by Office of the Administrative Law by the Board. Petitioner has not complied with the Board's discovery requests[4] and has not responded to its motion to dismiss. Such inaction compels the conclusion that petitioner has abandoned prosecution of his appeal. Accordingly, petitioner's appeal shall be dismissed.

---

[4] The Board propounded interrogatories upon petitioner on July 30, 1998. (Certification of Jessica L. Wildstein, Esq. December 14, 1998, at 3 ("Wildstein Cert.")). According to the Board, the requested information related to petitioner's two (2) properties and were not voluminous or complicated. Yet, petitioner has not furnished the Board with the requested information. Ibid. The Board asserts that sanctions should be imposed upon petitioner for this discovery violation pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-10.5 and N.J.A.C. 1:14-14(A). (Motion to Dismiss, at 7.)

Admission of Counterclaim

An answer to a petition must be served upon the petitioner within twenty (20) days of receipt of the petition. N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.4(a). Where a party fails to answer a petition, each count is deemed admitted. N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.4(e). See Board of Educ. of the Twp. of Fairfield v. Township Comm. of the Twp. of Fairfield, 91 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 23 (Commissioner restored budget cuts holding that town's failure to answer had the effect of admitting the counts not answered).

Failure to answer a counterclaim is treated the same as failure to answer a petition. The case of M.D. v. Board of Educ. of the Sch. Dist. of South Orange and Maplewood, 96 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 921 is similar to the present matter. M.D. involved a petition appealing a determination by the school board that a child was ineligible to attend school in the district. The school board filed a counterclaim against the petitioner, but the petitioner failed to file an answer. Citing N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.4(e), the administrative law judge deemed each count of the school board's counterclaim admitted. M.D., supra, 96 N.J.A.R. 2d at 922. Because of the petitioner's failure to answer the counterclaim, failure to appear for a prehearing conference, and failure to respond to a motion filed by the school board, the administrative law judge ordered the petitioner to pay the school board tuition for the child's ineligible attendance. Id. at 923. The Commissioner adopted those findings and conclusions and dismissed the petitioner's appeal with prejudice. Ibid.

Similarly, in Board of Educ. of the Pascack Valley Reg'l High Sch. Dist. v. Kwon, 93 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 897, the Commissioner deemed the facts as pled by the school board as true pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.4(e) because of the respondent parent's failure to file an answer in the matter. Thus, the Commissioner granted the school board's petition for tuition reimbursement and held that the children should be excluded from receiving a free public education in the district. Kwon, supra, 93 N.J.A.R. 2d at 898.

In the present matter, the Board filed its answer and counterclaim on April 15, 1998 requesting the removal of petitioner's three children from the Westwood Public Schools and tuition reimbursement for the period of their ineligible attendance. Petitioner did not file an answer within the specified period, nor has he filed an answer to date. Accordingly, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.4(e), the counts in the Board's Counterclaim are deemed to be admitted.

Disenrollment and Tuition Reimbursement

Having found that petitioner's appeal should be dismissed and that the counts in the Board's Counterclaim shall be admitted, it follows that the children should be disenrolled from the Westwood Public Schools and that the Board is entitled to tuition for the period of the children's ineligible attendance.

A school board may disenroll students who are not properly domiciled within the district. Thomas v. Board of Educ. of the Passaic County Manchester Reg'l High Sch. Dist., 96 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 37. Thomas involved a petitioner who admitted in the petition that she and her children were not residents or domiciliaries of the school district. Finding that there were no material facts in dispute, the ALJ concluded that the children were not entitled to a tuition-free education within the respondent's school district and disenrolled them. Id. at 38-39.

In the instant matter, petitioner in the petition of appeal claims residence in Washington Township prior to September 1996, but because of the need for renovations the family was living elsewhere.

Under N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, entitlement to a free public school education is determined by where a person is domiciled. In order to establish a domicile there must be physical presence and the concommitant, unqualified intention to remain permanently and indefinitely. Gosschalk v. Gosschalk, 48 N.J. Super. 566, 573 (App. Div. 1958), aff'd 28 N.J. 73 (1958).

There are attributes consistent with residency such as the address on record with the Division of Motor Vehicles and that petitioner receives mail at the Washington address, as well as at the Garfield address. Domicile is not the same as residency. One may have many residences, but only one domicile. Collins v. Yancey, 55 N.J. Super. 514 (Law Div. 1959). However, the circumstances as a whole, including the nature of the children's enrollment in school, indicate that the family's domicile was not in the Township of Washington. The children are not entitled to a tuition-free education within the District and should be disenrolled.

In addition to an order disenrolling petitioner's children, the Board is entitled to tuition reimbursement. Once a determination has been made that a child is not entitled to a free public education within a particular school district, an award of tuition pro-rated to the time of the child's ineligible attendance is authorized by N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b(2). Specifically, this statute provides in pertinent part:

> If in the judgment of the commissioner the evidence does not support the claim of the parent or guardian, the commissioner shall assess the parent or guardian tuition for the student prorated to the time of the student's ineligible attendance in the schools of the district. Tuition shall be computed on the basis of 1/180 of the total annual per pupil cost to the local district multiplied by the number of days of ineligible attendance and shall be collected in the manner in which orders of the commissioner are enforced.

In accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b(2), the Commissioner has adopted decisions by the Office of Administrative Law finding school boards entitled to tuition reimbursement in situations akin to the instant matter.[5] See A.H. v. Board of Educ. of the Twp. of Egg Harbor, 97 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 281, 183; Thomas, supra, 96 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) at 39, H.M. and L.M. v. Board of Educ. of the Twp. of Freehold, 96 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 854, 860-861; S.C. v. Board of Educ. of the Borough of Point Pleasant, 96 N.J.A.R. 2d

[5] In situations where the administrative law judges found the children ineligible to attend schools in the districts, but did not award the school boards tuition reimbursement, the Commissioner modified the decisions to so provide.

(EDU) 680, 684-685; S.J.S. v. Board of Educ. of the Borough of Woodbury Heights, 96 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 18, 20. Furthermore, the Commissioner's power to seek retroactive tuition for the ineligible attendance of children has been upheld by the Appellate Division in Board of Educ. of the Borough of Fort Lee v. Kintos, 96 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 1. Accordingly, the Board is entitled to tuition reimbursement from petitioner for the period his children attended the Westwood Public Schools, i.e., September 1, 1996 and December 2, 1996 to present.[6]

Claim for Attorneys' Fees

The Commissioner of Education's broad jurisdiction over education laws pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9 does not include the authority to award counsel fees. Balsley v. North Hunterdon Bd. of Educ., 117 N.J. 434, 442-443 (1990). The Balsley Court acknowledged that "the absence of express statutory authority is fatal to the claim for counsel fees." Id., at 443. Thus, the Court held that the Commissioner's broad remedial powers does not include the authority to grant attorneys' fees to a successful complainant in education-discrimination matters. Ibid. This conclusion has been confirmed as to domicile cases. Board of Educ. of the Twp. of Livingston v. E.J.B. and J.H.B., 96 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 536, 537; Board of Educ. of the Pascack Valley Reg'l High Sch. Dist. v. Kwon, supra, 93 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) at 898. It has also been held that the Commissioner lacks authority to award legal costs. Lilenfield v. Board of Educ. of the Borough of Watchung, 1977 S.L.D. 315, 323; Watsula v. Board of Educ. of the Twp. of Plumsted, 1977 S.L.D. 692, 695. An award of attorneys' fees and costs is, therefore, unavailable.

Orders

It is ORDERED that the petition of appeal be and is DISMISSED WITH PREJUDICE.

[6] The District seeks $67,438.32 in tuition. This figure is computed from the dates of enrollment through the Commissioner's anticipated decision date of April 30, 1999.

It is ORDERED that unless they become eligible for attendance at school in the Westwood Regional School District prior to the Final Decision in this matter, the three minor children of petitioner be disenrolled from the Westwood Public Schools.

It is ORDERED that petitioner pay unto the respondent Westwood Regional Board of Education the resident tuition for his three minor children prorated as to the time of their ineligible attendance in the Westwood Regional School District, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b(1).

It is ORDERED that the request that respondent be reimbursed for costs and attorneys' fee be and is DENIED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

R.D.F., on behalf of his minor children, PETITIONER, V. BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE WESTWOOD REGIONAL SCHOOL DISTRICT, BERGEN COUNTY, RESPONDENT.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION DECISION

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Although petitioner was granted an extension of time in which to submit exceptions to the initial decision, his submission, which he identified as his "exceptions," consisted only of evidence that had not heretofore been brought to the record, and, as such, could not be considered by the Commissioner. N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4(c). Additionally, there was no indication that petitioner served a copy of his submission upon either the respondent Board or the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ). N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4(a)

Upon careful and independent review, the Commissioner concurs that the within Petition of Appeal is properly dismissed, in that petitioner failed to respond to the Board's Motion to Dismiss, which was served upon him on December 15, 1998.[1] Additionally, the Commissioner concurs that the Board's allegations in its Counterclaim, as filed on April 15, 1998, are deemed admitted, in that petitioner has failed to respond to such allegations. Therefore, petitioner is deemed not domiciled in the Township of Washington, and his children, therefore, are not entitled to a free education in the Board's District, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1a.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the ALJ is adopted for the reasons expressed therein. Although petitioner's children are not entitled to a free education in the Board's District, given the timing of the issuance of this decision within the school year, the Commissioner directs that petitioner's children, C.D.F., R.D.F. and M.D.F., be permitted to complete the 1998-99 school year on a tuition basis. That is, if petitioner so chooses, his children may remain in the District until the end of the 1998-99 school year and the Board will, then, increase its tuition calculations accordingly.[2] Alternatively, if petitioner chooses, his children can be disenrolled immediately and the Board will reduce its tuition figures now based on a disenrollment date of April 30, 1999 correspondingly. In either event, petitioner is hereby ordered to reimburse the Board for tuition costs for the attendance of his three children in respondent's District.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

March 23, 1999
Date of Mailing, March 23, 1999

[1] In its Motion to Dismiss, the Board clearly indicated that it was seeking a total of $67,438.32 in tuition, representing tuition for petitioner's three children from the dates of their enrollment, September 1, 1996 and December 1, 1996 through April 30, 1999.

[2] The tuition assessed for the three children will be $67,438.32, plus tuition for the three children for May and June, 1999.

R.D.F., on behalf of his minor children,	:
PETITIONER-APPELLANT,	:
V.	:	STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE WESTWOOD REGIONAL SCHOOL DISTRICT, BERGEN COUNTY,	:	DECISION ON MOTION
RESPONDENT-RESPONDENT.	:

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, March 23, 1999

For the Petitioner-Appellant, R.D.F., pro se

For the Respondent-Respondent, Fogarty & Hara (Jessica L. Wildstein, Esq., of Counsel)

On March 24, 1998 R.D.F. (hereinafter "appellant") filed a petition of appeal with the Commissioner of Education challenging the determination by the Board of Education of the Westwood Regional School District (hereinafter "Board") that his children were not entitled to a free public education in the district under N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1a. The Board filed a counterclaim seeking removal of appellant's children from the district's schools and payment of tuition from the appellant for the period of his children's attendance in the district. Appellant did not file an answer to the Board's counterclaim. On December 17, 1998, the Board filed a motion to dismiss appellant's petition. Appellant did not respond to that motion.

June 7, 1999

On February 4, 1999, an Administrative Law Judge ("ALJ") recommended dismissing the petition, concluding that the appellant had abandoned prosecution of his claim. The ALJ observed that the appellant had not complied with the Board's discovery requests, had not responded to the Board's motion to dismiss the petition and had failed to respond to correspondence sent to him by the Board and the Office of Administrative Law. The ALJ therefore deemed the Board's allegations to be admitted and concluded that appellant was not domiciled in the district and, as a result, that his children were not entitled to a free public education in the district's schools. Accordingly, the ALJ recommended that appellant's children be disenrolled from the district and that appellant be directed to reimburse the Board for tuition for the period of his children's ineligible attendance.

On March 23, 1999, the Commissioner adopted the findings and conclusions of the ALJ and ordered the appellant to reimburse the Board for his children's tuition.

On April 23, 1999, the appellant, acting pro se, filed a photocopy of a notice of appeal with the State Board of Education. By letter dated April 27, 1999, the Director of the State Board Appeals Office notified appellant that he was required to file an original signed notice of appeal and also to provide proof of service of his notice on the Board. Appellant was also advised that a brief in support of his appeal was due on May 13, 1999.

On May 6, 1999, the appellant filed an original notice of appeal and proof of service as requested. He did not, however, file an appeal brief by May 13. By letter dated May 20, 1999, the Director of the State Board Appeals Office notified the appellant of his failure to file a brief and informed him that this matter was being referred to the Legal Committee of the State Board for consideration of his failure to perfect the appeal.

On May 24, 1999, the Board filed a motion to dismiss the appeal as a result of appellant's failure to file a brief in support of his appeal.

Appellant has still failed to file an appeal brief, nearly eight weeks after the deadline for such filing. Nor has he responded to the Board's motion to dismiss, offered any explanation for his failure to file a brief or requested an extension of time for such filing. As a result, we grant the Board's motion to dismiss the appeal in this matter for failure to perfect. N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.12(a). See Paszamant v. Board of Education of the Borough of Highland Park, decided by the State Board, April 1, 1992, aff'd, Docket #A-4812-91-3 (App. Div. 1993).

PETER DIMAGGIO, Petitioner, v. TRENTON BOARD OF EDUCATION, Respondent.	: BEFORE THE COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION, STATE OF NEW JERSEY : : : AGENCY DOCKET NO. 499-10/96 : OAL DOCKET NO. EDU 10756-96S : : : SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT :

Peter DiMaggio, residing at 16 Hillside Avenue, Trenton, NJ 08618, and the Board of Education of the City of Trenton ("Board"), stipulate and agree that, in consideration of the mutual promises of the parties and in exchange for the consideration more particularly noted below, it is hereby agreed:

1. In return for compliance with the Agreement, Mr. DiMaggio agrees to the dismissal, with prejudice, of the above-captioned litigation. Mr. DiMaggio will continue to retain all tenure and seniority rights to which he is entitled based on all periods of service to the Board and based on terms of this Agreement. The dismissal of this matter shall not be deemed a waiver of tenure or seniority rights which have accrued prior to its filing, or thereafter. Mr. DiMaggio releases and waives any and all claims to back salary and/or back benefits, except as provided in this Agreement.

2. In return for compliance with this Agreement, the Board agrees as follows:

(a) Within 30 calendar days of the approval of this settlement by the Commissioner of Education, the Board will pay Mr. DiMaggio mitigated back salary for the 1996-97 and 1997-98 school years in the gross amount of $79,575.15. Said amount shall be subject to all normal payroll deductions including, but not limited to, retroactive contributions to the Teacher's Pension and Annuity Fund covering the 1996-97 and 1997-98 school year. Said pension contribution shall be submitted by the Board to the Pension Fund with an explanation designating those contributions as relating to the 1996-97 and 1997-98 school years.

As part of the mitigation used in calculating this back salary, the Board has retained the amount of $7,602.00. This sum is attributable to the amount received by Mr. DiMaggio from the New Jersey Division of Unemployment Insurance during the period November 26, 1996 through August 30, 1998. It is agreed that, upon request by the Division (whether made to Mr. DiMaggio or the Board), the Board shall remit the withheld monies to the Division. The Board shall hold Mr. DiMaggio harmless as to any claim by the Division of Unemployment Insurance for a refund of monies, interest or penalties as to unemployment compensation received by Mr. DiMaggio during the time period specified herein. A notice to the Division confirming the award of back pay and the retention of the funds by the Board shall be sent by Mr. DiMaggio or Michael T. Barrett, Esq. within 30 days of receipt of back salary.

(b) The Board shall credit Mr. DiMaggio's record of accumulated sick leave days with an additional 15 days attributable to the 1997-98 school year. He shall also retain all previously accumulated but unused sick leave days for future use.

(c) For purposes of retirement only and pursuant to Article VII(E) of the collective agreement covering teachers in the district, Mr. DiMaggio will be credited with three (3) additional sick leave days attributable to his unused personal days from the school year. Mr. DiMaggio's sick leave credit for retirement purposes shall also include any previously accrued credit for retirement purposes.

(d) Mr. DiMaggio's seniority shall be credited with one (1) year and seven (7) months attributable to the 1996-97 and 1997-98 school years. He shall retain all previously accrued seniority and tenure rights.

(e) Mr. DiMaggio shall be reinstated as a full-time teacher within the scope of his educational certificate and endorsement beginning with the 1998-99 school year. His salary shall be calculated based on the collective bargaining agreement for teachers in the Trenton School District based on his previous salary guide placement together with salary guide credit for the 1997-98 school year.

(f) Effective on or before September 1, 1998, Mr. DiMaggio shall be entitled to all of the benefits and emoluments which are normally provided to full-time teachers in the District (including, but not limited to, all forms of health and medical insurance) including all rights specified in the collective agreement, Board policy, past practice, or otherwise. For all purposes, the Board will consider Mr. DiMaggio to have been employed on a full-time basis for the entire 1996-97 and 1997-98 school years in calculating any right, benefit or emolument due to him hereafter from whatever source.

3. The undersigned representatives of the Board hereby acknowledge that they have been duly authorized to sign this Agreement and bind the Board to its terms.

4. The parties recognize that each has been represented by legal counsel of his or its own choosing and that they sign this Agreement as their own voluntary act and deed, and that they fully understand the duties and obligations enumerated herein.

5. This Agreement shall be subject to the laws of the State of New Jersey.

6. All terms of this Agreement are deemed material. This document may not be altered, amended or modified except by an instrument executed in writing by the parties.

However, if it is determined in the future that there has been miscalculation of damages set for in paragraph 2 above, the parties agree to correct any errors regardless of which party gained the benefit(s) thereof.

7. This Agreement is subject to the approval of the Administrative Law Judge and the Commissioner of Education and shall be of no force or effect unless such approval is received. In the event that such approval is not given, the parties shall be returned to the status quo existing prior to this Agreement.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the parties have hereunto set their hands and seals on the dates specified.

3. The sending-receiving contract which commences on July 1, 1999, shall contain language providing that the contract cannot be terminated by either party prior to its expiration on June 30, 2009. It shall further provide that in the event that either party elects to terminate the contract as of June 30, 2009, written notice of termination shall be given by the terminating party to the other no later than June 30, 2007.

As to Respondent Collingswood:

1.The current sending-receiving contract between the Petitioner and Respondent Collingswood shall terminate on June 30, 1999;

2. The Petitioner shall pay to Respondent Collingswood tuition payments for the 1998-99 school year in accordance with the 1998-99 tuition payment schedule heretofore established by the parties, subject to adjustments, if any, which may be required pursuant to NJSA 18A:38-19 and NJAC 6:20-3.1;

Any of the Petitioner's students enrolled in Collingswood High School for the 1998-99 school year shall have the option to continue to attend beyond the 1998-99 school year for the balance of his/her high school career. Each such student who elects to continue attending Collingswood High School shall be required to submit his/her decision to do so in writing to the Superintendent of Schools no later than February 15, 1999. If a student fails to so submit, it shall be conclusively presumed that the student will no longer attend Collingswood High School and the student's records shall be forwarded to Sterling High School for the 1999-2000 school year;

4. Upon a student electing to continue to attend Collingswood High School under the terms of Paragraph 3 above, the Petitioner shall continue to pay tuition to Respondent Collingswood on behalf of that student for the balance of that student's high school career in accordance with the statutory and regulatory provisions referred to in Paragraph 2 above.

5. Respondent Collingswood acknowledges that Petitioner's students who graduate from Respondent Oaklyn's Grade 9 at the end of the 1998-99 school year shall no longer attend Collingswood High School.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the parties hereto have set their hands and seals.

PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF COLLINGSWOOD, CAMDEN COUNTY AND BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF OAKLYN, CAMDEN COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENTS.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision in the form of a joint stipulation of settlement rendered by the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed.

In his review of the parties' settlement agreement, wherein it is agreed that petitioner's sending/receiving agreement with Oaklyn to receive its 9th grade students and its agreement with Collingswood to receive its 10th, 11th, and 12th grade students be terminated, the Commissioner has fully considered the feasibility study submitted by petitioner, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-13. As said study has established to the Commissioner's satisfaction that the student withdrawals as a consequence of the within agreement would cause no substantial negative educational, financial or racial composition impact on any of the Districts involved, he approves the settlement terms and adopts the settlement as the final decision in this matter.[1]

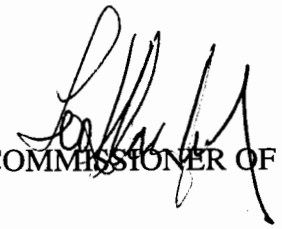
Date of Mailing, March 23, 1999

[1]Notwithstanding the Commissioner's acceptance of this agreement, he notes that Term 3 as to respondent Oaklyn envisions the possibility that the petitioner and/or Oaklyn may terminate their surviving sending/receiving agreement, calling for petitioner to send its Kindergarten through Grade 8 students to Oaklyn, upon the agreement's expiration on June 30, 2009. The Commissioner is compelled to clarify that this approval of the within settlement does not obviate the obligation of the parties to comply with N.J.S.A. 18A:38-13 if they contemplate termination of their sending/receiving relationship pursuant to this provision.

This matter is hereby dismissed, subject to compliance with the terms of the parties' settlement.[2]



COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

[2] This decision, as the Commissioner's final determination in the instant matter, may be appealed to the State Board of Education pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-27 et seq. and N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.1 et seq., within 30 days of its filing. Commissioner decisions are deemed filed three days after the date of mailing to the parties.

PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE STERLING HIGH SCHOOL DISTRICT, CAMDEN COUNTY,	:	DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning high school student contended the Board acted arbitrarily, capriciously and unreasonably when it suspended him for the remainder of the 1997-98 school year with conditions for readmission in September 1998 or thereafter for planning and/or arranging a retaliatory assault and battery on student J.C. Petitioner contended that the Board did not hold a proper hearing within 21 days of his suspension, imposed penalties on him greater than those imposed on others for similar violations and treated him differently based on race. Board moved for dismissal alleging the petition was untimely filed and petition was moot because petitioner withdrew as a student and enrolled in a private school. ALJ noted petition was not moot, as the suspension remained a part of petitioner's permanent school records.

ALJ concluded petitioner's claims were time-barred by N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c). Moreover, the ALJ determined that assault on another student is a very serious matter calling for expulsion and that nothing in the evidence offered by petitioner supported an inference that the Board acted unreasonably in finding petitioner responsible for the attack on J.C. or in disciplining him for his actions. Petition was dismissed.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own.

INITIAL DECISION

AGENCY DKT. NO. 66-3/98

J. O.,

Petitioner,

v.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE STERLING HIGH SCHOOL DISTRICT, CAMDEN COUNTY,

Respondent.

Jacob B. Sless, Esq., for petitioner (Abramson & Denenberg, attorneys)

William D. Hogan, Esq., for respondent (Davis, Reberkenny & Abramowitz, attorneys)

Record Closed: November 16, 1998 Decided: February 16, 1999*

BEFORE M. KATHLEEN DUNCAN, ALJ:

This matter commenced on March 16, 1998, when J.O. (hereinafter petitioner) filed a petition of appeal with the Commissioner of Education contending that the Board of Education of

---

* An extension of time for issuing the initial decision was requested and granted pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(c).

the Sterling High School District (hereinafter respondent) acted arbitrarily, capriciously and unreasonably in that it did not hold a proper hearing within 21 days of his suspension from school, imposed penalties on him greater than those imposed on others for similar violations and treated him differently based on his race/Black. An answer on behalf of respondent was filed on March 25, 1998 and on April 8, 1998, the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

A prehearing conference was conducted on July 1, 1998 at which time the following were identified as issues for determination at hearing:

1. Did respondent violate petitioner's due process rights in connection with a disciplinary action imposed in December 1997?

2. Was respondent's December 1997 resolution in violation of petitioner's civil rights or otherwise arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable?

3. If the answer to question number one and/or question number two above is yes, what are the appropriate remedies?

4. Is the petition barred by the regulatory statute of limitations in N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c)?

5. Should the petition be dismissed as moot?

A hearing was scheduled for November 16 & 17, 1998, at the Trenton office of the Office of Administrative Law and commenced as scheduled. At the close of petitioner's case, respondent moved to dismiss the petition: 1) as untimely brought pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c), 2) as moot because petitioner, after being advised of his disciplinary suspension, withdrew as a student from respondent's district and enrolled in a private school, and 3) pursuant to R. 4:37-2(b) for failure to offer any evidence from which a reasonable fact finder could rule in petitioner's favor. Respondent also moved to dismiss petitioner's allegations of due process violations, and in response petitioner withdrew those allegations. Although the undersigned determined that the petition was not moot since the suspension remained a part of petitioner's permanent school records, the motion was granted on other grounds and the hearing therefore concluded.

MOTION TO DISMISS

Ninety-day Limitations Period of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c)

The State Board of Education has established a time limitation for instituting actions before the Commissioner of Education for resolution of disputes under the school laws. N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c) requires a petitioner to "file a petition no later than the 90th day from the date of receipt of the notice of a final order, ruling or other action by the district board of education, individual party, or agency, which is the subject of the requested contested case hearing." Although the regulation does not address what constitutes adequate notice, that concept was addressed at length by our Supreme Court in Kaprow v. Board of Educ. of Berkeley Tp., 131 N.J. 572, 587 (1993):

> "Adequate notice must be sufficient to inform an individual of some fact that he or she has a right to know and that the communicating party has a duty to communicate. See Burns v. West Am. Corp., 137 N.J. Super. 442, 446, 349 A.2d 142 (Dist. Ct. 1975). Moreover, adequate notice under the regulation must be sufficient to further the purpose of the ninety-day limitations period. See Apex Roofing Supply Co. v. Howell, 59 N.J. Super. 462, 467, 158 A.2d 49 (App. Div. 1960). A limitations period has two purposes. The first is to stimulate litigants to pursue a right of action within a reasonable time so that the opposing party may have a fair opportunity to defend, thus preventing the litigation of stale claims. Ochs v. Federal Ins. Co., 90 N.J. 108, 112, 447 A.2d 163 (1982). The second purpose is "'to penalize dilatoriness and serve as a measure of repose'" (quoting Farrell v. Votator Div., 62 N.J. 111, 115, 299 A.2d 394 (1973)).
> > When a plaintiff knows or has reason to know that he has a cause of action against an identifiable defendant and voluntarily sleeps on his rights so long as to permit the customary period of limitations to expire, the pertinent considerations of individual justice as well as the broader considerations of repose, coincide to bar his action. [Farrel, supra, 62 N.J. at 115, 299 A.2d 394.]

In the within matter petitioner had a hearing before respondent Board of Education on December 11, 1997. At the conclusion of the hearing and after deliberation in executive session, the following resolution was adopted and read in the presence of petitioner, his attorney and his parent.

RESOLVED, that student J.O., having been charged with threatening a student, assaulting a student and theft of student property on Wednesday, November 19, 1997, is hereby found to be guilty of planning and/or arranging a retaliatory assault and battery on student J.C. in accordance with Findings of Fact made by the Board, after a hearing conducted on December 11, 1997 and incorporated herein by reference.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that the charges or elements thereof with respect to which student J.O. is found guilty is listed as follows:

A. Planning and/or arranging a retaliatory assault and battery on student J.C. on November 19, 1997.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that the Board, having found J.O. guilty of the charges set forth in the preceding section, hereby suspends J.O. from the regular educational program, under the following terms and conditions:

(a) Such suspension shall be for a period no less than the entire remainder of the 1997-98 school year;

(b) Such suspension shall continue for the 1998-99 school year unless the Board determines to readmit J.O. to the regular educational program for September 1998 (or on any date thereafter), after a Youth Study Team evaluation report and a psychiatric evaluation report, as recommended by the Administration, either with the consent of the parent/guardian or, if the parent/guardian declines to consent, by order of the Commissioner of Education; and

(c) Such suspension shall apply to both the regular educational program and all extra-curricular activities and school functions.

(d) Any readmission determination by the Board is conditioned on the following minimum undertakings by J.O.:

(i) his successful completion of summer school after conclusion of the 1997-98 school year; and

(ii) his agreeing to a behavior contract drafted by the Administration.

(e) During his period of suspension, J.O. shall be provided home instruction by the Administration.

Thereafter, written findings were prepared and attached to the same resolution which was then formally readopted at the regular board meeting on December 18, 1997. At the regular board meeting on December 18, 1997, only the board's decision with regard to the suspension was read and not the findings of fact. By letter dated December 19, 1997, the Board of Education's findings and the board approved resolution were transmitted to petitioner's attorney with a copy to petitioner's father. The written resolution was identical to the one read into the record of the special meeting on December 11, 1997. The attached "findings" provided:

WHEREAS, Student J.O. aged 18 years and a junior at Sterling High School, was suspended by the high school Vice Principal, Mrs. Linda Rosbert ("Rosbert") on November 20, 1997, on a charge of threatening a student and assaulting a student and subsequently amended by the school Superintendent, Mr. Gary Kasprack ("Kasprack"), on December 8, 1997 to include theft of student property; and

WHEREAS, the Board has conducted a hearing on the charges on December 11, 1997, after due notice to the student and his parent/guardian;

NOW, THEREFORE, the Board makes the following findings from the evidence and testimony presented before it;

1. O. appeared in the company of his father, Mr. James Ellerbee ("Ellerbee"), and his attorney, Ms. Michelle Hammell ("Hammell") at the hearing before the Board on December 11, 1997 and, on the advice of his counsel, made no statements.

2. Testimony from J. C. the victim, H. K., J. T., and G.T. was somewhat contradictory.

3. J.C. testified that a girl (N. B.) attacked her, knocked her down and beat on her at Riccardi's Garage after school on November 19, 1997. Also, J.C. testified that J. O. grabbed her and took her necklace and when leaving said "You're going to get shot."

4. H.K. testified that J.C. was jumped from behind by N.C. H.K. testified that a man from Riccardi's Garage stopped the fight at one point but the fight started again. She testified that J. O. held J.C. at one point while N.B. continued to beat on J.C. Also, H.K. stated that J. O. picked up J.C.'s chain and money and refused to return it.

5. Both J. T. and G. T. testified that N.B. and J.C. were arguing in the lot of Riccardi's Garage when they drove up and that J.C. took the first swing. Also, they both testified that the man from the garage did not break up the fight but J. O. did. After the fight ended, they, including N.B., got in J. O.'s car and drove away.

6. Additional testimony was submitted by copies of the police report and written statements given by witnesses. A. A, Ken Ryker, J. C. and H.K. Ryker's written statement stated that a female jumped out of the car. A.A.'s written statement contradicted the testimony of J. T. and G. T. by indicating that all occupants of J. O.'s automobile knew that the attack was about to occur.

7. Rosbert testified that she went to Riccardi's Garage and brought J. C. to the nurse's office on November 19, 1997 and also reviewed/summarized J. O.'s prior disciplinary record.

8. Mr. William Hiltner ("Hiltner") and Mr. Mark Napoleon ("Napoleon") testified that J. O. is very coachable, respectful and if he was involved in this, it is out of character.

9. J. O. and his father were notified of the student disciplinary charges against him filed by the Administration and the witnesses who were prepared to give testimony with respect to the incident in question.

10. The Hi-Nella Police have charged J. O. with the following offenses: Aggravated Assault, Robbery and Terroristic Threats.

11. J. O. has been referred to the Youth Study Team ("YST") by the Administration for a full team evaluation and a psychiatric evaluation.

12. The Board has also reviewed the academic and disciplinary records of O.

13. Upon completion of the full team evaluation and psychiatric evaluation the YST will make a report and recommendation to the Board of Education regarding O.'s possible readmission in September 1998.

14. If Ellerbee declines to consent to a full YST evaluation and psychiatric evaluation, the Administration will petition the Commissioner of Education for emergent relief to order a full YST evaluation and psychiatric evaluation.

CONCLUSIONS

(A) The Board is unable to reach a conclusion, based on conflicting testimony from credible witnesses, as to whether J. O. physically participated in the assault and battery of J. C. and whether J. O. took J.C.'s necklace and money.

(B) The Board concludes, based on a preponderance of credible evidence, that J. O. planned the assault and battery on J.C. as a form of retaliation and utilized N.B. as the instrument of that retaliation by arranging for her to physically assault and batter J.C.

Based upon the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that "the final order, ruling or other action" by the local board occurred on December 11, 1997, when the board found petitioner guilty of planning and/or arranging a retaliatory assault and battery on student J.C. and advised petitioner in the presence of his parent and his attorney of that conclusion and its consequences, i.e., a suspension for the remainder of the 1997-98 school year with conditions for readmission in September 1998 or thereafter. At that point petitioner had sufficient knowledge of the board's determination to commence the running of the regulatory period of limitations. Accordingly, the last day for petitioner to file a timely petition challenging respondent's actions of December 11, 1997, was March 11, 1998. The petition commencing the within action was not filed until March 16, 1998 and I therefore CONCLUDE that his claims are time-barred by N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c). Because respondent did not move to dismiss the petition of appeal prior to commencement of the hearing, petitioner presented his entire case at the hearing. For the additional reasons set forth hereinafter, the petition of appeal is DISMISSED WITH PREJUDICE.

Involuntary Dismissal Pursuant to R. 4:37-2(b)

The classic statement of the test for determining a motion for dismissal at the end of an opponent's case is articulated in Dolson v. Anastasia, 55 N.J. 2,5-6 (1969):

> In the case of motions for involuntary dismissal, the test is, as set forth in R. 4:37-2(b) and equally applicable to motions for judgment, whether "the evidence, together with the legitimate inferences therefrom, could sustain a judgment in *favor" of the party opposing the motion, i.e., if, accepting as true all the evidence which supports the position of the party defending against the motion and according him the benefit of all inferences which can reasonably and legitimately be deduced therefrom, reasonable minds could differ, the motion must be denied. . . . The point is that the judicial function here is quite a mechanical one. The trial court is not concerned with the worth, nature or extent (beyond a scintilla) of the evidence, but only with its existence, viewed most favorably to the party opposing the motion. (Citations omitted).

The Rules Governing the Courts of the State of New Jersey, R. 4:37-2(b), provides:

> (b) At Trial - Generally. After having completed the presentation of the evidence on all matters other than the > matter of damages (if that is an issue), the plaintiff shall so announce to the court, and thereupon the defendant, without waiving the right to offer evidence in the event the motion is not granted, may move for a dismissal of the action or of any claim on the ground that upon the facts and upon the law the plaintiff has shown no right to relief. Whether the action is tried with or without a jury, such motion shall be denied if the evidence, together with the legitimate inferences therefrom, could sustain a judgment in plaintiff's favor.

Not all rules and legal concepts utilized in judicial tribunals are applicable in "quasi-judicial," administrative adjudications. See Hackensack v. Winner, 82 N.J. 1 (1980). Although there is no specific rule in the Uniform Administrative Procedure Rules, N.J.A.C. 1:1-1.1 to -21.6, which addresses motions at the end of a petitioner's case, N.J.A.C. 1:1-1.3(a) provides:

> This chapter shall be construed to achieve just results, simplicity in procedure, fairness in administration and the elimination of unjustifiable expense and delay. In the absence of rule, a judge may proceed in accordance with the New Jersey Court Rules, provided the rules are compatible with these purposes. Court rules regarding third party practice and class action designations may not be applied unless such procedures are specifically stuatorily authorized in administrative proceedings.

In addition, motions for dismissal and judgment have been discussed by Judge Lefelt in his text on administrative law, in pertinent part as follows:

> The two most frequent motions made at administrative hearings are motions for judgment of involuntary dismissal at the end of petitioner's case and motion for judgment at the close of all the evidence. The technical, common law patterns of going forward, making the prima facie case, the shifting of the burden and resting a case are not binding on ALJs. If a judge requires the party without the burden of proof to proceed first, no motion for judgment of involuntary dismissal can be made. If the party with the burden proceeds first, the motion can be made. The test is identical to that applied in the judiciary. The judge considers whether all the evidence together with the legitimate inferences therefrom could sustain a judgment in favor of the party opposing the motion. The > judge is not concerned with weight, worth, nature or extent of the evidence. The judge must accept all the evidence supporting the party defending against the motion and accord that party the benefit of all inferences which can reasonably and legitimately be deduced therefrom. . . . 37 N.J. Pract. (Lefelt) § 195

Therefore, the legal standard I now apply to the evidence presented thus far is the one articulated in Dolson v. Anastasia, supra, and reiterated in Judge Lefelt's text.*

Petitioner relied upon the joint exhibits which are listed at the end of this initial decision and the testimony of G.T., one of the witnesses who testified on his behalf at the December 11, 1997 board hearing. J.T., the other witness who had testified for petitioner at the board hearing, has moved out of State and was unavailable to testify at the within hearing. No transcript of the board hearing is available because on December 11, 1997 the tape recorder was not turned on.

G.T. testified that on November 19, 1997, he walked with his brother J.T. to petitioner's car, a white Jetta, parked in the school parking lot in anticipation of meeting petitioner for a ride home. Although he first testified that he believed petitioner and another student who was also getting a ride home, A.A., were already in the car, later in his testimony he indicated that he had observed petitioner and A.A. walking across the parking lot toward the car where he and his brother J.T. were waiting. He denied that there was any conversation in the car after the four students had entered about going to watch a fight between petitioner's then girlfriend N.B. and another student H.K., a Caucasian female. G.T. testified that he was surprised when petitioner turned the vehicle in the opposite direction from home and drove directly to Riccardi's Garage. Although G.T. denied any prior knowledge that there would be a fight between the two females, when he was asked concerning petitioner's foreknowledge, he answered, "Evidently he had to know" because he drove directly there rather than turning in the usual direction to drive home. The fight started within seconds of their arrival at Riccardi's Garage, G.T. testified. G. T. further testified that N.B., petitioner's girlfriend, was not a student at Sterling High School and that she lived in Blackwood, New Jersey, which the witness thought was ten or fifteen minutes away from the school and the garage where the fight took place. He further testified that he had no idea how N.B. arrived at Riccardi's Garage, that she had not arrived with the four students in the white Jetta, although at the conclusion of the fight she did leave with them, and petitioner gave her a ride home. G.T.'s remaining testimony concerning what happened at the garage was entirely consistent with his testimony as reported in the board's findings. He said that he, petitioner and the other two students who had arrived with them in the car simply stood and watched the fight between the two females until the owner of the garage came out and yelled at them to break it up, to take it elsewhere or something to that extent. Because the board did not make any findings concerning petitioner's actual participation in the assault or concerning whether he took J.C.'s necklace and money, G.T.'s testimony in that regard is not relevant to a determination herein.

* This is also now the standard for determining motions for summary judgment, recently adopted in Brill v. Guardian Life Insurance Company of America, 142 N.J. 520 (1995).

Although A.A., the third passenger in petitioner's car on November 19, 1997, did not testify at the board hearing or herein, he provided a written statement on December 4, 1997, which was considered by the board in making its determination. That statement was entered as exhibit J-8 in evidence and provides:

> I don't know exactly how this incident started, but I was told about certain events before the girl (I don't know her name) was allegedly attacked. J. O. told me that she was provoking him constantly in his phys. ed. class and using obscene language. At that he also told me that he tried to tell her to leave him alone as nice as he could because he was in front of teachers. Eventually she must have really annoyed him because he was very bothered. J. told me that she was also in some of his other classes and that she was still provoking him. He said the teachers weren't doing anything about it. Now I don't know what happened before the two girls fought but I know that there was a brawl between the girl from school and another girl. J., G. and J.T., and I rode over to the parking lot next to the school to see these girls fight. The fight was quick and towards the end when I thought the fight was over (the fight was only between the two girls NO ONE else "Jumped in") the girl from the other school was walking away and the girl from Sterling rushed her from behind, than J. O. pulled her off of the other girl. He didn't hit her or anything; he just grabbed her off of the girl and > let her go. Then the other girl hit the girl from Sterling and "the fight" was over. The end.

The fact that there was some sort of dispute or disagreement between petitioner and J.C. prior to November 19, 1997, is also confirmed in J-1 in evidence, the memorandum from L. Rosbert, Sterling High School Vice-Principal, to Superintendent Kasprack, dated December 1, 1997, which provided:

> L. Heuschkel submitted a request for a peer mediation between J.O. and J.C. on Monday, November 17th, because there had been words exchanged between the two students during gym class. A faculty advisor was assigned to arrange the mediation for Tuesday, the 18th. On Tuesday both J. and J. were on the field trip to Fort Dix - one designed for students in making good decisions; therefore, the mediation never took place. According to the faculty chaperones there were no incidences on the trip between the two students.
>
> After school on Wednesday November 19th Reno Domenico called me to go with him that there was a report of a fight next door. When we arrived at the auto shop, we found J. with a few friends. She was extremely bruised on the face and also had several lacerations on her neck. We brought her back to school, contacted the nurse for assistance, and called the police. The police arrived to take statements from J. and H.K. Two employees from the auto station also arrived and gave statements.
>
> The information we received from J. and H. stated that it was J.'s girlfriend that did most of the assault on J. The girlfriend attends Highland High School and arrived in J.'s car. The girl got out of the car to attack J. J. also got out of the car and was accused of pushing J. and then taking the money and jewelry that fell from J. during the fight. (J-1 in evidence)

Petitioner himself did not testify at the board hearing on December 11, 1997, but rather upon the advice of counsel, claimed his Fifth Amendment privilege against self-incrimination; criminal charges stemming from the November 19, 1997 incident were then, and still are, pending. Although petitioner was willing to testify concerning the merits of the charges at the hearing in the within matter on November 16, 1998, because he had declined to offer the Board of Education his testimony on December 11, 1997 (and because had had declined to provide answers to interrogatories in the within matter detailing his own version of the events) the undersigned precluded his testimony on the merits herein with respect to the issue of his culpability.* Petitioner did testify herein concerning the appropriateness of the sanction imposed by respondent.

Where an issue is one involving the exercise of a local board's discretion, the scope of the Commissioner's review is "not to substitute his judgment for that of those who made the evaluation, but to determine whether they had a reasonable basis for their conclusions." Kopera v. West Orange Board of Education, 60 N.J. Super. 288 (App. Div. 1960). Actions of local boards of education which lie within the area of their discretionary powers may not be upset unless patently arbitrary, without rational basis or induced by improper motives. Quinlan v. Board of Ed. of North Bergen, 73 N.J. Super. 40 (App. Div. 1962); Thomas v. Morris Township Board of Education, 89 N.J. Super. 327 (App. Div. 1965), aff'd 46 N.J. 581 (1966); K.L. Matawan/Aberdeen High School Dist., 91 N.J.A.R. 2d. (EDU) 74; M.G. v. Monmouth Regional High School, 91 N.J.A.R. 2d. (EDU) 38.

As noted in the prehearing order, the burden of persuasion herein is upon petitioner to establish the arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable nature of respondent's action. To defeat a motion for dismissal at the end of petitioners' case, petitioner must establish a prima facie case by presenting sufficient proof from which the liability of respondent can be logically and reasonably inferred. Even when viewed in the light most favorable to petitioner, the competent evidential materials presented are insufficient to permit a rational fact finder to resolve this dispute in favor of petitioner. There was absolutely nothing in the testimony of G.T. which could lead a reasonable person to conclude that the board's finding that petitioner had enlisted the assistance of his girlfriend N.B. to attack student J.C., was irrational or that it was based upon the fact that petitioner and the witnesses on his behalf were Black and the witnesses who testified against petitioner were Caucasian. The board's determination of petitioner's culpability is supported by the undisputed facts that there was some sort of ongoing dispute between petitioner and J.C. prior to November 19, 1997, which had been the planned subject of peer mediation, but had not actually taken place on November 18, 1999, because of the unavailability of both students who were on a field trip. The existence of a underlying dispute in conjunction with the undisputed fact that petitioner drove from the school parking lot in the opposite direction from home directly to Riccardi's Garage, where a physical altercation between his girlfriend, N.B., a student at a different high school, and J.C. immediately ensued and which petitioner took no action to stop until the owner of the garage came out to intervene, all provide reasonable support for respondent's conclusion. Absolutely none of the evidence offered by petitioner in the within matter in any way contradicts the foregoing or provides support for an inference that any or all of the board members voted the way they did because of racial bias rather than based upon the facts before them. The mere fact that the two witnesses who testified against petitioner at the board hearing, J.C. and H.K., are Caucasian and the witnesses who testified on petitioner's behalf, J.T. and G.T., are Black does not give rise to any inference of racial discrimination by the board. In fact, as noted above, nothing offered by G.T. at the hearing herein was the least bit contradictory of the board's conclusion that J.O. had planned the attack on J.C. to retaliate for her earlier behavior toward him. The board specifically declined to make any findings with respect to the conflicting testimony it heard from the eye witnesses.

* There is no indication that the board drew an adverse inference from petitioner's failure to testify on his own behalf at his hearing on December 11, 1997, although such an inference is clearly permissible when the defendant/respondent in a civil or administrative action declines to offer explanation. State Department of Law and Public Safety v. Merlino, 216 N.J. Super. 579, 587-588 (App. Div. 1987), affirmed 109 N.J. 134 (1988); Wild v. Roman, 91 N.J. Super. 410 (App. Div. 1966). Because petitioner was willing to testify on November 16, 1998 concerning his culpability, no such adverse inference was warranted in the within matter.

With respect to his allegations that respondent imposed penalties upon him greater than those imposed on others for similar violations and treated him differently based upon his race, petitioner offered the disciplinary guidelines published in the school handbook, P-3 in evidence, and evidence of three other disciplinary actions:

J.W., a Caucasian student, a football player charged by a parent with assault on another football player at a game. This was handled by the coach, with no board hearing, and the parent ultimately withdrew the charges;

S.C., a Caucasian student, who received a 10-day suspension from the administration on charges totally unrelated to assault on another student or fighting or anything similar; and another Black student, unnamed, who was expelled after a board hearing on charges of assault.

As respondent pointed out there are 870 students enrolled at Sterling High School and simply identifying two Black students disciplined for assault and two Caucasian students who received lesser discipline for other offenses does not create a reasonable inference of racial discrimination. Furthermore, a punch in the heat of the moment at a football game is far different from a planned retaliatory attack. Nor does it make any difference that petitioner may not have physically participated in the attack himself; those who engage others to do their unlawful bidding are at least equally as guilty as the actual perpetrator. In addition, respondent did not expel petitioner. His suspension (with home instruction) was for the balance of the school year and his return to class was conditioned upon submitting to a psychiatric evaluation, attending summer school and executing a behavior contract. Petitioner testified that he declined to abide by the conditions for reinstatement and instead enrolled in private school in January 1998, primarily because he wished to play basketball. He felt his suspension was unduly harsh because it deprived him not only of the opportunity to attend class but also because it prevented him from being Captain of Sterling's basketball team.

Whether respondent considered the effect of the long-term suspension upon petitioner's basketball career is not apparent from the record, but it is also irrelevant to a determination in this matter. If petitioner's point in offering this testimony was to suggest that when star basketball players are found guilty of disciplinary infractions they ought to receive some special consideration from boards of education who are responsible for maintaining discipline and safety, then he is grossly mistaken. If anything, student leaders should be held to even higher standards of behavior than others, and deviation from those standards must be met with prompt, appropriate discipline severe enough to impress upon both the perpetrator and others that all students are required to conduct themselves in a responsible and civilized fashion so that the business of public schools, teaching and learning, may occur unimpeded. Assault on another student is a very serious matter. It is specifically identified in the statute as justification for expulsion from school. N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2(d). Absolutely nothing in the evidence offered by petitioner in this matter supports an inference that the board acted unreasonably in finding petitioner responsible for the November 19, 1997 attack on J.C. or in disciplining him for his actions. For all of the foregoing reasons, respondent's motion at the end of petitioner's case is hereby GRANTED, and the within matter is DISMISSED WITH PREJUDICE.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

1. In return for compliance with the Agreement, Mr. Spagnola agrees to the dismissal, with prejudice, of the above-captioned litigation. Mr. Spagnola will continue to retain all tenure and seniority rights to which he is entitled based on all periods of service to the Board and based on terms of this Agreement. 2. In return for compliance with this Agreement, the Board agrees as follows:

(g) Effective on or before September 1, 1998, Mr. Spagnola shall be entitled to all of the benefits and emoluments which are normally provided to full-time teachers in the District (including, but not limited to, all forms of health and medical insurance) including all rights specified in the collective agreement, Board policy, past practice, or otherwise. TEANECK COMMUNITY CHARTER SCHOOL,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF TEANECK, BERGEN COUNTY,	:	DECISION ON MOTION
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning Charter School sought order from the Commissioner requiring the Board to provide petitioner with 90% of the local levy per student, as well as transportation or aid in lieu of transportation, effective from the commencement of the Charter School as required by statute and its implementing regulations. Petitioner also sought pre-judgment interest.

Commissioner determined that the statutory and regulatory framework for charter schools does indeed impose on districts the dual requirement to pay directly to the charter school within their districts the specific level of funding for resident charter school students as determined by N.J.S.A. 18A:36A-12 and to provide transportation to those students in such a way that the district bears the cost of transportation, not the charter school. Commissioner granted summary decision to petitioner insofar as he directs the Board to pay promptly to petitioner the difference between the amounts it already paid and those amounts owing and due petitioner pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:36A-12. Commissioner ordered the issue of pre-judgment interest transmitted to OAL for a plenary hearing which is to be strictly limited to petitioner's allegation that the Board acted in bad faith and/or deliberate violation of law, unless petitioner withdraws its claim within ten days of receipt of this decision on motion.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education by way of the filing of a Petition of Appeal on January 11, 1999 by the Teaneck Community Charter School (petitioner) seeking an order from the Commissioner requiring the Board of Education of Teaneck (respondent) to provide petitioner with 90% of the local levy per student, as well as transportation or aid in lieu of transportation, effective from the commencement of the Charter School as required by statute and its implementing regulations. On January 29, 1999, petitioner submitted by fax transmission a Motion for Summary Judgment and Letter-Memorandum in support thereof. In addition to the aforesaid relief sought of the Commissioner, petitioner's Motion for Summary Judgment requested pre-judgment interest. This was followed by the filing of an Amended Petition of Appeal on February 4, 1999, the sole amendment of which was the request for pre-judgment interest.

On February 1, 1999, respondent filed its answer to the petition requesting dismissal of the petition, averring that the regulations adopted by the Department of Education at N.J.A.C. 6A:11, subchapter 4 are in conflict with the Charter School Program (Act), N.J.S.A. 18A:36A-1 et seq. and the New Jersey Constitution. On February 1, the Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes sent the parties a letter indicating that the Commissioner would decide the Motion for Summary Judgment pursuant to the authority granted him by N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.13. Respondent was provided ten (10) days from receipt of the letter to submit a reply brief or letter-memorandum in response to the Motion for Summary Judgment. Respondent's reply was filed on February 16, 1999. Petitioner was accorded five (5) days from receipt of respondent's reply brief or letter-memorandum to file a response thereto. Petitioner's response was received on February 23, 1999; whereupon, the record relative to the Motion for Summary Judgment closed.

BACKGROUND

In September 1998, the Teaneck Community Charter School commenced operations pursuant to a charter granted in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:36A-1 et seq. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:36A-12, respondent, as the district of residence of the Charter School, was required to pay petitioner 90% of the local levy budget per pupil for each child residing in the district who attends the Charter School. In accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:36A-13 and N.J.A.C. 6A:11-4.1 and 4.2, respondent must provide transportation, or aid in lieu of transportation, to petitioner's students who reside in Teaneck, on the same terms as respondent provided such transportation to the students attending its District's schools.

On October 14, 1998, respondent adopted a Resolution which reads as follows:

> WHEREAS, the Board of Education has been directed to provide transportation to students of the Teaneck Community Charter School; and
>
> WHEREAS, the Board of Education has reviewed the Charter School Program Act of 1995 and understands that the Act limits the payments to be made by the Board of Education to 90% of the local levy budget per pupil; and

> WHEREAS, the Board of Education has determined that the additional costs of transportation will result in payments by the Board of Education in excess of the 90% cap; now, therefore be it
>
> RESOLVED, that the School Business Administrator is directed to subtract the costs of transporting the Charter School pupils from the payments to be made to the Charter School by the Board of Education, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:36A-12. (Petition, Exhibit A)

Upon adoption of the Resolution, respondent commenced to deduct the costs of providing transportation to students residing within the District who attended the Charter School. For the months of November and December 1998, respondent deducted the amount of $10,286 from the funds it transmitted to petitioner.

PETITIONER'S POSITION

Petitioner avers, inter alia, that respondent's decision to deduct transportation costs from the required 90% of the local levy payment is without basis in statute or regulations, and, thus, constitutes a clear violation of respondent's obligations. N.J.S.A. 18A:36A-12 provides in pertinent part that

> [t]he school district of residence shall pay directly to the charter school for each student enrolled in the charter school who resides in the district a presumptive amount equal to 90% of the local levy budget per pupil for the specific grade level in the district. At the discretion of the commissioner and at the time the charter is granted, the commissioner may require the school district of residence to pay directly to the charter school for each student enrolled in the charter school an amount equal to less than 90%, or an amount which shall not exceed 100% of the local levy budget per pupil for the specific grade level in the district of residence.

Petitioner further maintains that the local board of education also bears responsibility for the provision of transportation services to students within the District as set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:36A-13 which reads

> [t]he students who reside in the school district in which the charter school is located shall be provided transportation to the charter > school on the same terms and conditions as transportation is provided to students attending the schools of the district.

Petitioner also avers that the State Board of Education regulations for charter schools provide further guidance as to the financial obligations of a local board of education, specifically citing the following provisions of N.J.A.C. 6A:11-4.1 in support of this contention.

> (a) A district board of education shall have the following responsibilities for transportation:
>
> 1. Transportation or aid in lieu of transportation shall be provided pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1 et seq. to students in kindergarten through grade eight who live more than two miles and to students in grades nine through 12 who live more than two and one-half miles from the charter school that they attend.
> 2. The transportation of students to and from a charter school shall be the responsibility of the district board of education of the school district in which each student resides.

Thus, petitioner argues, respondent is responsible for providing to it the requisite 90% of the local levy budget per pupil. Additionally, respondent is responsible for providing the students of the District with transportation or aid in lieu of transportation. Petitioner further avers that nowhere in the Act is there any indication that the 90% requirement was intended to cap all payments by a local board. Of this, petitioner states

> By contrast, the requirement that the board provide either transportation or aid in lieu of transportation makes clear that the intent was to create an obligation in addition to that posed by the 90% requirement. By deducting the costs of transportation from the amount paid to the Charter School each month, the Board has violated its clear statutory obligations. (emphasis in text) (Petitioner's Brief at p. 3)

Petitioner further contends that respondent's position is belied by the comments published in the New Jersey Register (N.J.R.) following publication of the proposed charter school rules, in particular, the first comment under the transportation heading which clearly indicates that school districts are allowed to retain 10% of the local levy budget per pupil to cover its costs for administering the program, including transportation (29 N.J.R 3493, August 4, 1997, Subchapter 4)

Given the above, petitioner argues that respondent should be made to reimburse the charter school for any and all amounts improperly deducted from the requisite 90% payment, as well as interest on that amount, in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.16, since respondent's refusal to make full payments clearly required by law was either in bad faith or in deliberate violation of law.

RESPONDENT'S POSITION

Respondent rejects petitioner's position that the Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:36A-1, should be interpreted as to require a district board of education to pay 90% of the local levy budget and to pay for transportation costs for each pupil, arguing that such an interpretation is inconsistent with the plain meaning of the Act and with the intention of the Legislature. Citing 29 N.J.R. 3494, Subchapter 7, response to Comment 1, respondent argues that it is clear the Legislature and the Department of Education (DOE) used a funding formula based on a per pupil method because it was regarded as the fairest method of determining school costs. Respondent further maintains that the per pupil methodology is related to and reflective of costs and given the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:36A-12 recited above and DOE regulatory comments, it is apparent that the Legislature and DOE wanted to limit a charter school to 90% of the per pupil formula and expected them to live within that cap. Moreover, respondent emphasizes that the Commissioner was given the authority to provide additional funding not to exceed 100% of the local levy budget per pupil, but at no point in the Act or in the regulations is there any indication that the charter school was to receive more than the 90% level, except when the Commissioner affirmatively chose to provide additional funding not to exceed 100%.

Respondent next argues that petitioner's position would subvert the clear intent of N.J.S.A. 18A:36A-12 because petitioner would have the Teaneck Board pay more than 100% of the per pupil funding formula, i.e., the 90% level and the costs of transportation, even though the Commissioner has neither authorized nor been requested to authorize a higher level. Respondent further avers that, contrary to petitioner's assertion, it does provide transportation to the Charter

School students on the same terms and conditions as provided to Teaneck public school students. Respondent contends, inter alia, that

> N.J.S.A. 18A:36A-13 is not a funding section as no reference is made therein to "payments" or "funding levels." Rather, this section requires that a local board of education provide transportation to charter school pupils, an activity not in dispute. Had the Legislature intended N.J.S.A. 18A:36A-13 to be a funding section, it could have provided that school districts shall pay to the Charter School the costs of transportation, utilizing language similar to that used in the previous section, N.J.S.A. 18A:36A-12. In fact, the only section in the Act dealing with funding is N.J.S.A. 18A:36A-12, which caps funding levels at 90%, except when authorized by the Commissioner. The position advocated by [petitioner] plainly ignores the funding cap of N.J.S.A. 18A:36A-12. (Respondent's Reply Brief at p. 4)

Respondent believes it noteworthy that if the Commissioner were to approve a 100% funding level, petitioner's position would result in 100% of the pupil level plus transportation costs. Of this, respondent states "[i]t is respectfully submitted that N.J.S.A. 18A:36A-13 simply indicates that providing transportation is the responsibility of the local district but does not indicate that the costs of transportation shall be provided above the 90 –100% level." (Id. at pp. 4-5) Respondent also avers that the charter school regulations do not require additional funding but merely indicates that the transportation of students to and from a charter school shall be the responsibility of the school district in which the student resides, a responsibility it recognizes and accepts. See N.J.A.C. 6A:11-4.1(a)(2).

Additionally, respondent argues that petitioner is seeking funding for transportation two times because, it argues, the local levy budget per pupil, as set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:36A-12, already includes the cost of transportation. Consequently, respondent contends that funding the Teaneck Charter School at the 90% level already pays for 90% of the costs of transportation and by requesting it to pay an additional transportation cost, petitioner seeks to be paid twice. Of this, respondent states that neither the Act, nor the regulations and the DOE's regulatory comments indicate that charter school funding requires payment to the Charter School twice for transportation costs, and to argue otherwise simply makes no sense.

Respondent disagrees with petitioner's arguments relative to the DOE regulatory comments on transportation previously recited above, emphasizing that the DOE noted only that the 10% difference in per pupil formula provides districts with funds to cover administrative costs, not the cost of transportation.

Lastly, respondent objects to and vigorously denies the allegation in the Amended Petition of Appeal that the Teaneck Board acted in bad faith and/or in deliberate violation of the applicable statute and rules and is, thus, entitled to pre-judgment interest. With respect to this, respondent argues, inter alia, that it was inappropriate for a motion for summary judgment to be filed before a party has had an opportunity to submit its responsive pleading. Moreover, according to respondent, such an allegation constitutes a disputed fact, which has not been proven either in the form of an affidavit or through testimony; therefore, it cannot be decided via summary judgment but must be the subject to a full evidentiary hearing.

In response to the above, petitioner contends that it is respondent who is misinterpreting the statute, arguing, inter alia, that respondent is reading the term "provide" too narrowly and that it is clear from reading N.J.S.A. 18A:36A-13 that "provide" means to pay for such transportation. Moreover, petitioner avers that, contrary to respondent's arguments otherwise, the Teaneck Board is not providing the charter school students with transportation on the same terms and conditions as the District's students because those students are not required to pay their own costs of transportation to school. Thus, argues petitioner, respondent must bear the costs of transportation of the charter school students, if transportation for charter school students is to be on the same terms and conditions as other students in the District. Finally, petitioner maintains that there are no issues of fact with respect to respondent's actions or motives in this matter that need to be determined before awarding it pre-judgment interest.

COMMISSIONER'S DETERMINATION

Initially, the Commissioner will address the issue of whether this matter is ripe for summary judgment. Upon review of the parties' submissions, it is apparent that the only genuine issue of material fact in dispute in this matter relates to the allegation that respondent acted in bad faith and/or in deliberate violation of the law. Consequently, the Commissioner determines that deciding that issue on a summary judgment basis is not appropriate. Accordingly, the Commissioner's decision on motion herein will not address the pre-judgment interest issue raised in petitioner's Motion for Summary Judgment and subsequently added to the Amended Petition of Appeal.

The substantive issue presented in the instant motion is whether or not the statutes for the creation of charter schools enacted by the New Jersey Legislature and the regulations developed by the DOE to implement those statutes require a local district board of education to pay funds directly to a charter school at the levels as set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:36A-12 and to provide transportation to the charter school students who reside in the district in such a way that the district bears the cost of the transportation over and above the level of funding required by N.J.S.A. 18A:36A-12. Upon a thorough review of the position of the parties and relevant statutory and regulatory provisions, the Commissioner is in full agreement with petitioner that the statutory and regulatory framework for charter schools does indeed impose on districts the dual requirement to pay directly to the charter school within their districts the specific level of funding for resident charter school students as determined by N.J.S.A. 18A:36A-12 and to provide transportation to those students in such a way that the district bears the cost of transportation, not the charter school. The Commissioner reaches this determination for the reasons set forth below.

Contrary to respondent's arguments that the statutory and regulatory framework for charter school payment permits the deduction of the cost of transportation from monies it must pay a charter school because the maximum amount to be paid by a district is capped at 90% of the local levy budget per pupil for the specific grade level, unless the Commissioner approves otherwise, the Commissioner concludes that N.J.S.A. 18A:36A-12 establishes the mechanism by which the basic operational costs of a charter school are to be funded, i.e., through the direct payment of revenues by the school district of residence to the charter school at the presumptive 90% rate as discussed ante, unless the Commissioner, at the time the charter is granted, sets a different rate which may be lower than 90% but not higher than 100%. N.J.S.A. 18A:36A-12 also delineates the other direct payment responsibilities of school district to a charter school to support the charter school's basic operational costs, i.e., the payment of any categorical and federal aid attributable to resident students, providing the students are receiving the appropriate categorical services.

Furthermore, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:36A-13, the Legislature imposed the responsibility for transportation of charter school students on the school district of residence, not on the charter school, and, as set forth in the Legislative Fiscal Estimate to Senate Bill, No. 1796 dated September 14, 1995 which established charter schools in New Jersey, the Legislature determined that "the district would be eligible for State aid for that transportation." Upon thorough consideration of the legislative provisions for the funding of charter schools, the Commissioner concludes that transportation is not a basic operational function of the charter school subject to funding through the revenue provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:36A-12. This being so, the Commissioner finds and determines that the financial obligation for transportation set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:36A-13 is an additional financial obligation on school districts, separate and apart from that imposed by N.J.S.A. 18A:36A-12, for which the district receives State aid. The Commissioner further concludes that, contrary to respondent's arguments, there is no statutory or legislative authority to deduct the cost of transporting students from the per pupil payment which school districts are mandated to pay directly to charter schools as operational revenue.

Lastly, the Commissioner concludes that respondent's argument contending that petitioner's position is tantamount to double-dipping, because the local levy budget per pupil referenced in N.J.S.A. 18A:36A-12 includes transportation costs, is misplaced. When the Charter School Program Act of 1995, N.J.S.A. 18A:36A-1 et seq., was enacted by the Legislature, the financing for public education was controlled by the Quality Education Act of 1990 (QEA), N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-1 et seq. Hence, the per pupil funding mechanism devised for the Act by the Legislature at that time was based on the local levy budget provision of QEA. N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-3 defined local levy budget as "the sum of the foundation aid and transition aid received by a school district and the district's local levy for the general fund." With the enactment of *L.*1993, c. 83, the Legislature approved one tax levy for a general fund budget for school districts instead of separate tax levies for current expenses and capital outlays as had previously existed. While the general fund budget included pupil transportation costs, the cost for transportation was not part of a district's local levy for the general fund because the statutory scheme for transportation aid envisioned full support for providing required pupil transportation. N.J.S.A. 18A: 7D-19.

As correctly noted by the parties, N.J.S.A. 18A:36A-12 and N.J.A.C. 6A:11-1 2 cap the presumptive amount to be paid directly to a charter school located in a district at 90% of the local levy per pupil for the specific grade level, unless the Commissioner approves another percentage which may be less than 90% but no greater than 100% of the per pupil levy. However, CEIFA does not include the terminology "local levy budget" as contained in the Charter School Act of 1995, N.J.S.A. 18A:36A-12 and N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-1 et seq. (QEA), the school finance act which preceded CEIFA.[1] Therefore, it is necessary to examine the specific definitions relevant to the controverted matter herein as they are currently set forth in N.J.A.C. 6A:11-1.2.

[1] As noted by the DOE in 29 N.J.R. 3495, Subchapter 7, response to Comment 3, "N.J.S.A. 18A:36A-1 et seq. was enacted prior to the new funding laws with the 'local levy per pupil for the specific grade level' having no meaning under N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-1 et seq. [the Comprehensive Education Improvement and Financing Act of 1996 or CEIFA].'"

> "Local levy budget per pupil for the specific grade level" starting with the 1998-1999 school year means the "program budget per pupil." "Local levy budget per pupil for the specific grade level" is based on the prebudget year of the district of residence and non-resident district(s). (emphasis supplied)
>
> "Program budget" based on the prebudget year means the sum of (1) core curriculum standards aid, (2) supplemental core curriculum standards aid, (3) stabilization aid (including supplemental stabilization aid and supplemental tax reduction aid), (4) designated general fund balance, (5) miscellaneous local general fund revenue and (6) the district's general fund tax levy.
>
> "Program budget per pupil" [is defined as] the apportionment among the district of residence and non-resident district's October 15 weighted resident enrollment consistent with N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-12 by grade category and then divided by the same districts' resident enrollment by grade as of October 15.

Review of these definitions demonstrates that transportation aid is not a part of the regulatory or statutory framework upon which "local levy budget per pupil for the specific grade level" is currently based because the statutory scheme for transportation aid under CEIFA (N.J.S.A. 8A:7F-25), like that of its predecessor QEA, also envisions full support of the cost of providing required pupil transportation. Moreover, as indicated in the Legislative Fiscal Estimate for the Charter School Senate Bill, No. 1796, State aid for transportation of charter school students goes to the district providing such transportation. Consequently, respondent's double-dipping arguments with respect to the payment of transportation costs to charter schools must fail when viewed in light of the statutory scheme, both as it existed at the time of enactment and at present.

Accordingly, the Commissioner grants summary decision to the Teaneck Community Charter School insofar as he directs the Teaneck Board of Education to pay promptly to the Charter School the difference between the amounts it has already paid and those amounts owing and due the Charter School pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:36A-12, in conformance with this decision. He further orders that all payments henceforth made by respondent to the Teaneck Community Charter School must be calculated in the same manner. Since the issue of pre-judgment interest involves a genuine issue of material fact, that issue will be transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for a plenary hearing which shall be strictly limited to petitioner's allegation that respondent has acted in bad faith and/or deliberate violation of the law, unless petitioner notifies the Commissioner within ten (10) days of receipt of this decision on motion that it desires to withdraw this claim. Statement of the Case

This is an appeal by a teacher from a decision of the State-Operated School District of Jersey City ("District") to withhold her salary increment for the 1996-97 academic year under N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14.

Procedural History

Initially, this matter was one of fifteen consolidated cases filed with the Commissioner of Education ("Commissioner") on September 13, 1996. Count Seven of the multi-count petition alleged the wrongful withholding of the increment of petitioner Callie Hayes ("Hayes"). On October 2, 1996, the District filed its answer. Subsequently, on October 23, 1996, the Commissioner forwarded all fifteen cases to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") for hearing as a contested case under OAL Dkt. No. EDU 11161-96. Since each petitioner's situation involved different factual circumstances and different witnesses, the OAL divided them into separate cases for convenience of hearing.[1]

At a prehearing conference on March 3, 1997, the OAL scheduled the hearing in this matter to commence on December 17, 1997. However, that the judge adjourned that date due to a scheduling conflict. Thereafter, the OAL rescheduled the hearing to commence on June 1, 1998. By letter dated May 21, 1998, both parties requested an adjournment of the June 1, 1998 hearing date because of recent developments "affecting either the continuation of her appeal or its consolidation with another matter." Accordingly, the OAL granted the adjournment and rescheduled the hearing for November 13, 1998. That hearing date was also adjourned based on the parties' representation of a possible settlement.

On December 30, 1998, respondent's counsel notified the OAL that Callie Hayes "has resigned and we are in the process of verifying whether or not she wants to pursue her case." Again, the OAL granted an adjournment to determine whether a hearing was necessary. One week later, on January 5, 1999, the OAL conducted a telephone conference to ascertain the status of this appeal. As a result of this conference, respondent's counsel agreed to notify the OAL by February 2, 1999 whether she wanted to proceed with her appeal. To date, the OAL has not heard anything further regarding Ms. Hayes' intentions.

Findings of Fact

I FIND the following facts:

As a result of the telephone status conference on January 5, 1999, the OAL wrote to counsel giving one month for Ms. Hayes to decide whether she wanted to continue with her case. Specifically, a letter from the OAL dated January 6, 1999 provides:

> With respect to Hayes, Mr. Feintuch will ascertain from his client whether she wishes to pursue her right to a hearing. If so, I shall schedule this matter for a hearing at the next available date. If not, Mr. Feintuch will send a letter stating that Ms. Hayes is withdrawing her request for a hearing before the Commissioner of Education. In the event that I do not receive a response by February 2, 1999, I shall dismiss her appeal for lack of prosecution.

N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.14(a) authorizes an administrative law judge to dismiss a case or take other appropriate case-related action "[f]or unreasonable failure to comply with any order of a judge[.]" It has now been two weeks since the February 2, 1999 deadline for Ms. Hayes to advise the OAL whether she still wants a hearing.

Order

It is ORDERED that the appeal of Callie Hayes is hereby dismissed for lack of prosecution.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon his independent and careful review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner is in accord with the conclusion of the Administrative Law Judge that this matter is properly dismissed for lack of prosecution as a consequence of petitioner's failure to comply with an order of the court directing her to confirm the status of her appeal.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the OAL is affirmed for the reasons stated therein and the instant Petition of Appeal is hereby dismissed.

EMERGENT RELIEF

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 336-99

AGENCY DKT. NO. 17-1/99

A.B. ON BEHALF OF MINOR CHILD,

S.B.,

Petitioner,

v.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE

TOWNSHIP OF DEPTFORD,

GLOUCESTER COUNTY,

Respondent.

A.B., petitioner, pro se

Raymond J. Zane, Esq., for respondent (Zane & Lozuke, attorneys)

BEFORE JOSEPH LAVERY, ALJ:

THE MOTION

In a case challenging the expulsion of her fourteen-year-old son, S.B., on November 19, 1998, without subsequent educational services, his mother, petitioner, A.B., seeks emergency relief. She asks (a) that, at a minimum, immediate home instruction or other alternative schooling be provided her son, and (b) that her son be referred for evaluation and classification under the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), 20 U.S.C. §1400, et seq.

Respondent, the Board of Education, Deptford Township, contests the motion.

Today's order denies petitioner's emergent motion.

ANALYSIS

Petitioner's argument:

Petitioner contends that, following an altercation which occurred on October 19, 1998, Monday, her son, S.B., was improperly expelled from school on November 17, 1998, as will be demonstrated in subsequent plenary hearing. However, in the meantime, S.B. is without education, and she asks that this be provided him immediately.

Ms. A.B. argues that, despite a long history of discipline (Exh. R-12), including fifteen suspensions, S.B. was not referred for evaluation and classification under the IDEA. In her view, this aberrant history of conduct on its face would require such a response by the school district. Additionally, Ms. A.B. stated that, before the incident prompting expulsion, she had informed at least four teachers that her son was suffering from attention deficit disorder, and that he was taking medicines which would affect his behavior. She did this at every parent-teacher conference, and in any instance when she was told by a teacher that her son was responsible for disruption. Ms. A.B. recalled that she repeatedly recommended referral for evaluation under the IDEA.

Petitioner therefore now demands that her son be provided with some instruction, whether through homebound teaching, or in alternative school. She also asks that S.B. be evaluated for possible special education.

Board's argument:

The Board responds that S.B.'s record of discipline and, most recently, his violent behavior in an ongoing brawl involving both a student and at least three teachers, warranted the expulsion. In support of its position, it supplies statements which it is prepared to confirm through testimony at full hearing (Exhs. R-2 through R-11). It maintains that expulsion, as a matter of law, leaves the Board of Education without any additional obligation to S.B. or his mother.

The Board observed further that the only indication of record that S.B. had any medical problem whatever requiring referral under the IDEA should have been found in the registration card provided to Mrs. A.B. when her son entered the school district (Exh. R-13). On that card, it was specifically asked that any health problems be indicated. The Board notes that petitioner's only asserted difficulty was: "wears contacts." Consequently, on the existing record, the motion for emergent relief on that account should be denied.

CONCLUSION OF LAW

The Test for emergent relief:

A motion for emergent relief is governed by the standards set forth at N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.5, which incorporates by reference the standards of our Supreme Court set forth in Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126, 132-34 (1982).[1] This case held: (1) that an order should not issue except to prevent irreparable harm, (2) that the order should not issue where a legal right is unsettled, (3) that an order should not issue where material facts are controverted, and (4) that the relative hardship to be visited on the parties by the grant or denial of relief should be considered.

[1] This tribunal at hearing proposed that "likelihood of success" was an element of the test. This was plain error. That requirement obtains only under N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.6(f)3, which contemplates an unavoidable ex parte circumstance not present here.

Application of the Law:

The request for immediate instruction for S.B.:

Adhering to the standards of Crowe v. DeGioia, supra, first, it must be concluded that petitioner will not suffer irreparable harm, because compensatory education can be provided should S.B. be successful in this appeal. Secondly, the law is not unsettled with respect to the authority of a school district to conclusively expel a student. K.O.H. on behalf of his daughter, R.H. v. Bd. of Educ., Twp. of Edison, 95 *N.J.A.R.*2d (EDU) 275, aff'd State Bd. of Educ., 96 *N.J.A.R.*2d (EDU) 445. Third, the material facts here are controverted, at least with respect to the incident which prompted expulsion. Fourth, and finally, the relative hardships preponderate in favor of the school, in light of S.B.'s acknowledged history of discipline for fighting, insubordination, and disruption, and considering the adverse balance of possibility that such behavior could reoccur. The Board would be required to confront the risk involved for home teachers, or for S.B., in home instruction, or in an alternative school setting. The better resolution of the relative hardships is to expedite the plenary hearing, and if petitioner is successful, to assure that compensatory education is provided.

What informs today's ruling is the Board's power to conclusively expel, with further instruction of the offending student left to its reasonably exercised discretion, pursuant to the holding of K.O.H., supra. The standard under which this tribunal may review the exercise of such power is set forth in, among other decisions, K.L. v. Bd. of Educ. of Matawan Aberdeen H.S. Dist., 91 *N.J.A.R.*2d (Vol. 4) 74, 76 (Education). There, it was held that the discretionary action of a local school board may not be upset unless patently arbitrary, without rational basis, or induced by improper motives. None of these proscribed elements can be found in the limited record available on motion. Whether a complete record will disclose them must abide full hearing.

The request for referral for evaluation and classification under the IDEA:

Petitioner's mother argues that S.B.'s discipline history and his conceded propensity to act-out should have alerted the school to a need for referral for evaluation under the IDEA. The argument is not unreasonable, but cannot be examined here, for lack of jurisdiction.

If jurisdiction to consider petitioner's IDEA complaints exist, it first must be conferred by the Commissioner of Education, who alone has authority under that law to do so. Petitioner must separately seek her remedy through application to the State Director of Office of Special Education Programs. N.J.A.C. 6A:14-2.7. If petitioner chooses to pursue IDEA jurisdiction, and is successful, and the appeal is forwarded by the Commissioner of Education for hearing, the parties should make that known on the present record, so that the two proceedings may go forward together. Otherwise, only the expulsion for reasons of discipline will be held at issue here, and plenary hearing on the merits of expulsion will not address IDEA demands.

ORDER

I ORDER therefore that the interim relief sought by petitioner be, and hereby is, DENIED.

I ORDER further that petitioner's appeal on the merits be scheduled on an expedited basis.

This order on application for emergency relief may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The final decision shall be issued without undue delay, but no later than forty-five (45) days following the entry of this order. If the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION does not adopt, modify or reject this order within forty-five (45) days, this recommended order shall become a final decision on the issue of emergent relief in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

The record of this matter, which included an audiotape of the hearing conducted at the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), along with the initial decision and order of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) denying emergent relief, has been reviewed.[1] Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:4-34, the hearing of the matter has been delegated to the Assistant Commissioner.

Upon his independent and careful review of the record, the Assistant Commissioner determines to reverse the decision of the ALJ finding, instead, that, under the circumstances existing herein, petitioner has satisfied the requisite standards for the granting of emergent relief pursuant to Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982), i.e., the existence of irreparable harm absent the requested relief, settled legal principles governing the right to relief in the controversy, a reasonable probability of ultimate success on the merits, and a balancing of the relative hardships to the parties favoring the grant of temporary relief pending the outcome of a final hearing.[2]

[1]It is noted that, by letter dated March 16, 1999, the ALJ advised that Exhibit R-14 was misidentified in his decision and should be corrected to read "Memorandum to respondent's attorney from Donald W. Pallies, dated February 18, 1999."

Initially, the Assistant Commissioner concludes that, contrary to the finding of the ALJ, irreparable harm has been demonstrated in this matter in that S.B., a 14-year-old child, has been and continues to be without benefit of educational services of any kind since November 17, 1998. No amount of "compensatory education" provided subsequent to the conclusion of this case on its merits would allow him to maintain the continuity of his educational program and satisfy credit year curriculum requirements. As to a balancing of the hardship to the parties in granting or denying emergent relief, the Assistant Commissioner finds that the interests of S.B. in receiving educational services through home instruction outweigh any inconvenience the Board may experience by providing such services, which may be delivered in a manner tailored to eliminate any possibility of compromising the safety of teaching staff members, during the pendency of this matter. Finally, as was correctly recognized by the ALJ, there is an underlying issue in this matter which the Commissioner does not have jurisdiction to hear. Specifically, petitioner's claim that, pursuant to the Individuals with Disabilities Act (IDEA), S.B.'s discipline history and his conceded propensity to act-out should have alerted the Board to a need for referral for a child study team evaluation to see whether this condition in any way mandated discipline of this student under the protections accorded to classified students under IDEA, is a determination which falls under the jurisdictional purview of the Office of Special Education Programs. As a prior resolution of this special education issue is essential to the Assistant Commissioner's determination on the merits of the question properly before him herein, i.e., the reasonableness of the Board's determination to expel S.B., this case will be transferred to the Office of Special Education Programs for its consideration of that question. Under these circumstances, the Assistant Commissioner concludes that petitioner has shown, to his satisfaction, a reasonable probability of success on the merits sufficient to satisfy the intendment of Crowe.

[2] Notwithstanding the ALJ's footnote discussion on page 3 of his decision herein, it is observed that the Crowe standard, under which the Commissioner is required to decide emergent applications, requires a demonstration of each of these conditions in order to grant such relief.

Accordingly, the recommended order of the OAL is reversed and petitioner's application for emergent relief is granted. The record of this matter will be transferred to the Division of Special Education for such proceedings as are necessary to hear and determine the IDEA issue raised herein. The Assistant Commissioner directs that the hearing on the merits of the reasonableness of the Board's expulsion of S.B. shall be held in abeyance until a determination on the underlying IDEA claim has been achieved. The Board is hereby ordered to immediately begin providing home-based instructional services to S.B., which shall continue throughout the pendency of this dispute.[3]

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning aunt challenged Board's residency determination.

ALJ concluded that pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, petitioner failed to prove by a preponderance of reliable evidence that her niece, M.K.G., was entitled to attend the Board's school for the 1996-97 school year free of charge as she was domiciled outside the Board's jurisdiction. ALJ dismissed the petition for failure of petitioner to attend the proceeding; ALJ affirmed the Board's cross claim for tuition. ALJ ordered F.B. and A.R.G., M.K.G.'s mother, to reimburse the Board for M.K.G.'s tuition for the 1996-97 school year in the amount of $7,155.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own with modification. Commissioner determined that petitioner failed to prove entitlement to free education pursuant to N.J.S.A 18A:38-1b(1), the affidavit student provision. Commissioner ordered the resident, F.B., not A.R.G., M.K.G.'s mother, to pay the Board the tuition due.

BEFORE LILLARD E. LAW, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner, F.B., appeals from a determination of the Board of Education of the Cumberland Regional School District (Board) to require that the tuition for M.K.G.'s attendance at its school for the 1996-97 school year be paid. The Board alleges, among other things, that M.K.G. was not a bone fide resident of its school district for 1996-97 school year and seeks tuition and other costs in its Counterclaim against F.B. and Crossclaim against A.R.G., the custodial parent of minor child M.K.G.

The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. The hearing was scheduled to open at 9:00 a.m. on January 8, 1999, at the Atlantic City OAL, Atlantic County Civil Courthouse, Atlantic City, New Jersey. Neither petitioner F.B. nor respondent A.R.G. appeared at the appointed time. This tribunal delayed the opening of the record for forty-five minutes or until 9:45 a.m. The hearing record was closed on January 8, 1999.

Subsequently, petitioner F.B. arrived at the OAL at 10:45 a.m. believing that the matter was to commence at 10:00 a.m. This tribunal advised petitioner to review the Notice of Plenary Hearing issued to her, dated July 16, 1998, which clearly stated that the matter was to commence at 9:00 a.m. on January 8, 1999, at the Atlantic City OAL. Petitioner reviewed the Notice of Plenary Hearing and acknowledged that the matter was scheduled to be heard commencing at 9:00 a.m. Petitioner was advised that this tribunal conducted an ex parte hearing in petitioner's absence and with no notice that petitioner contemplated being late for the hearing, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.6(p).

Petitioner, F.B. failed to respond to the Board's counterclaim and respondent A.R.G. failed to respond to the Board's Crossclaim. Respondent A.R.G. did not appear at the hearing.

MOTION

Upon the opening of the record with respect to petitioner F.B.'s failure to respond to the Board's Crossclaim and her failure to appear at the hearing, the Board propounded an oral Motion to Dismiss F.G.'s Petition of Appeal. Having heard the Board's arguments ex parte, the Motion to Dismiss F.B.'s Petition of Appeal was granted.

FINDING OF FACT

The following recital constitutes my FINDINGS OF FACT in this matter.

The Board advanced its Motion of Crossclaim against A.R.G., the custodial parent of the minor child, M.K.G. In its Answer to F.B.'s Petition of Appeal and its Counterclaim-Crossclaim for tuition. The Board set forth four separate defenses together with its Counterclaim-Crossclaim and, says, in part, that F.B. is the aunt of M.K.G., a pupil attending the Board's High School at the time of the petition.

The Board was advised that on April 9, 1996, a fire destroyed a mobile home in which M.K.G. lived with her mother, A.R.G., within the school district. The fire occurred during the 1995-96 school year. M.K.G. was permitted to complete the 1995-96 school year at the Board's High School.

The Board asserts that its investigation of the circumstances of M.K.G.'s attendance at its High School and, based upon its investigation, it determined that M.K.G. was not entitled to a free education as provided by N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, because F.B. was not the legal guardian of M.K.G. The Board also determined that M.K.G. was in receipt of support from her mother and custodial parent, A.R.G., a resident of the City of Bridgeton, Cumberland County, New Jersey, which is not a constituent municipality of the Board's school district.

The Board offered a copy of a Complaint in a Civil Action in the Superior Court of New Jersey, Chancery Division, Family Part, Cumberland County, bearing Docket No. FD-06-001578-97, filed March 24, 1997, in which F.B. is the plaintiff and A.R.G. is the defendant. The Complaint was offered to the Board to show that F.B. was seeking to transfer custody of M.K.G. to F.B., her aunt, for the reason that "[A.R.G.] is transferring custody of [M.K.G.] to [F.B.] because their house burned and [A.R.G.] doesn't want to change [M.K.G.'s] school this late in the school year." (R-1, p.3).

Prior to the filing of the Complaint in Superior Court, A.R.G. had been in receipt of a letter, dated March 19, 1997, addressed to the mother's Bridgeton address, advising her that the Board had determined on March 13, 1997, that her daughter, M.K.G., was not entitled to a free education in the Board's school. The letter, signed by the Board's Superintendent of Schools, advised A.R.G., that M.K.G. could attend the Board's school until April 9, 1997. It is this letter, among other things, which prompted the Complaint in Superior Court. The Board contends that no Order of the Court transferring custody of M.K.G. from A.R.G. to F.B. had been provided to it. The Board alleges that F.B. and A.R.G. filed false and fraudulent affidavits and other supporting documents with the Board.

In her Civil Action Complaint to transfer custody of M.K.G. from her mother, A.R.G. to F.B., F.B. states the reason for the transfer as follows:

> [A] is transferring custody of [M] to [F] because their house burned and [A] doesn't want to change [M's] school this late in the year.
> (R-1, p. 5)

The Board maintains that notwithstanding the transfer of custody, M.K.G.'s parents still supported her and that F.B. did not support M.K.G. ". . . gratis as if [s]he were [F.B.'s] own child . . . ." N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b). The Board contends that F.G.'s affidavit to the contrary is false and fraudulent.

There being no proofs to the contrary, I FIND the Board's proofs to be credible.

On February 11, 1997, Louise Dillion, Secretary to the Superintendent of Schools placed a handwritten note on a Correction Form concerning M K.G.'s parents where the note states that:

> 2-11-97 [A.G.] called re: phone call from Hicke.[1] She admits she and her husband are residing at 11 Wiley St., Bridgeton & [M] lives w/[F.B.] at 16 Waldon Drive because husband has a drinking problem and mother doesn't want her exposed to problem and husband going through counseling. No custody papers on file.
> (R-1, p. 23).

On February 13, 1997, F.B. executed a sworn Affidavit of Support of Student by Non-Parent Resident where, among other things, F.B. stated that she was supporting M.K.G. as of May 1, 1996 and that F.B. received:

> . . . no payment or contributions either in money or in lodging, food, clothing, medical insurance/expenses, recreation or any other things or service of value in connection with the support, maintenance, and education of the child named above. The gratuitous support of the child named above shall continue throughout the entire calendar year and not merely through the school term or year. (R-1, p.21)

F.B. stated on the Affidavit that her address is 16 Walden Drive, Bridgeton, New Jersey. Prior thereto, on April 29, 1996, F.B. executed a handwritten note where she stated that M.K.G.'s parents resided with F.B. at the Bridgeton address.

CONCLUSIONS

The New Jersey Supreme Court established the criteria for residence for school purposes in Mansfield Township Board of Education v. State Board of Education, 101 N.J.L. 474, 129 A. 765 (1925) where it held:

[1] Konrad Hicke was the Assistant Principal in charge of discipline at the High School during the 1996-97 school year.

> A child, in law, can have no residence of its own, and can only lawfully acquire one when it has been emancipated. It's residence under school law follows that of its parents or guardian or other person having legal control of it.

As was further stated by the our Supreme Court in State v. Garford Trucking, Inc. 4 N.J. 346 (1950):

> . . . "Domicile" and "residence" are not convertible terms, although they are sometimes used interchangeably in legislative expressions. Id. 353.

The Court has defined "domicile" as:

> . . . the relation which the law creates between an individual and a particular locality or country. In a strict legal sense, the domicile of a person is the place where he has his true, fixed permanent home and principal establishment, and to which, whenever he is absent, he has the intention of returning, and from which he has no present intention of moving (citation omitted). It is the place with which he has a settled connection for certain legal purposes, either because his home is there or because that place is assigned to him by law . . . Kurilla v. Roth, 132 N.J.L. 213, 215 (Sup. Ct. 1944).

Given all of the facts set forth above and having considered the legal standards which provide for a free public education under N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, I CONCLUDE that petitioner has failed to prove, by a preponderance of the reliable evidence, that her niece is or was entitled to attend the Board's school for the 1996-97 school year. The facts have clearly demonstrated that M.K.G. resided and was domiciled outside of the Board's jurisdiction and, therefore, not entitled to attend the Board's school tuition free.

Having concluded that petitioner's Petition of Appeal is dismissed for her failure to attend the herein proceedings and to set forth her claim on the hearing record, I now CONCLUDE that the Board's Crossclaim for tuition is hereby affirmed. The Board's proofs clearly demonstrate that petitioner's niece, M.K.G., resided and was domiciled outside of the Board's school district during the 1996-97 school year.

ORDER

Accordingly, it is ORDERED that F.B.'s Petition of Appeal is hereby DISMISSED. It is FURTHER ORDERED that F.B. and A.R.G. are obligated and responsible to reimburse the Board for M.K.G.'s tuition for the 1996-97 school year, in the amount of $7,155, as set forth by the New Jersey Department of Education and pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:20-3.1.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

RESPONDENTS.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. The parties did not file exceptions.

Upon careful and independent review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner determines that petitioner has failed to carry her burden of proving, by a preponderance of credible evidence, that M.K.G. was entitled to a free education in the Board's District, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b(1), affidavit student provision.[1]

Accordingly, the Commissioner determines to affirm the initial decision of the Administrative Law Judge, with modification as set forth herein.[2] Petitioner is hereby ordered to reimburse the Board the amount of $7,155 for M.K.G.'s tuition for the 1996-97 school year. The Commissioner declines, however, to assess A.R.G., M.K.G.'s mother, with tuition due and owing, inasmuch as the enabling statute, N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b(1) authorizes him to assess the resident, F.B., with tuition, if he determines that the evidence does not support her claims, but neither the statute nor the equities in this particular matter warrant such assessment against A.R.G.[3]

IT IS SO ORDERED.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION.

[1] The affidavit student provision establishes a "test," or list of criteria, which a resident must satisfy in order to demonstrate that the student residing with F.B. is entitled to a free education in the District. Thus, it was petitioner's burden to demonstrate that M.K.G. "is kept in the home of another person domiciled within the school district and is supported by such other person gratis as if he were such other person's own child ." N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b(1). The statute further requires that the domiciliary provide the local board of education, if so required by the board, with (1) a sworn statement that she is domiciled within the district and is supporting the child gratis and will assume all personal obligations for the child relative to school requirements and that she intends to keep and support the child gratuitously for a longer period of time than merely through the school term; (2) a copy of the lease, if a tenant, or a sworn statement by her landlord acknowledging tenancy if residing as an attendant without a lease; and (3) a sworn statement by the child's parent or guardian that such parent/guardian is not capable of supporting or providing care for the child due to family or economic hardship and that the child is not residing with the resident of the district solely for the purpose of receiving a free public education within the district. N.J.S.A 18A:38-1b(1). Further, "[t]he statement shall be accompanied by documentation to support the validity of the sworn statements ." (Id.)

[2] To the extent that the initial decision may be read to suggest that this matter should be analyzed as a domicile case under N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1a (see initial decision at p. 6), the Commissioner herein clarifies that this matter is properly analyzed under N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b(1).

[3] This decision, as the Commissioner's final determination in the instant matter, may be appealed to the State Board of Education pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-27 et seq. and N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.1 et seq., within 30 days of its filing. Commissioner decisions are deemed filed three days after the date of mailing to the parties.

HEARING OF KEVIN TAYLOR,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

BERGEN, HUDSON COUNTY.	:

For the Board: Joseph J. Ryglicki, Esq.

This matter having been opened before the Commissioner of Education on March 1, 1999 through the certification of tenure charges of chronic absenteeism and other just cause by the Board of Education of North Bergen against respondent, a tenured custodian; and

Respondent, having been served, via hand delivery, the Board's resolution, the tenure charges and the Certificate of Determination on February 25, 1999, and

The Commissioner having directed respondent, via both certified and regular mail on March 2, 1999, to file an Answer to the tenure charges against him; and

Whereas, such communication clearly provided respondent notice that, pursuant to P.L. 1998, c. 42, effective July 1, 1998, an individual against whom tenure charges are certified "shall have 15 days to submit a written response to the charges to the commissioner," and that failure to answer within the prescribed period will, absent granting of an extension for good cause shown, result in the charges being deemed admitted and the Commissioner deciding the matter on summary judgment pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.4(e); and

In that no reply has been received from respondent in response to the Board's charges, each count of the charges against respondent is deemed to be admitted; and

The Commissioner's review of the tenure charges certified against respondent by the Board and the statement of evidence in support of those charges indicate that respondent has a pattern of persistent chronic absenteeism in that he has been absent a total of 80.5 days related to sick leave since the 1995-1996 school year, notwithstanding the Board's efforts to bring about improvement of respondent's attendance through such measures as verbal and written warnings and withholding of salary; and

Deeming such charges to be admitted, and noting that respondent has not replied to the specific allegations contained therein, the Commissioner finds that respondent's actions constitute excessive absenteeism, warranting his dismissal from his tenured custodian position; now, therefore

IT IS SO ORDERED this 8th day of April 1999 that summary judgment shall be granted to the Board, and Kevin Taylor shall be dismissed from his tenured position as a custodian in the Board's employ as of the date of this order.*

Our File No. 27,446R

Dear Judge Masin:

This letter is written to clarify Paragraph IV of the Settlement Agreement in the above-referenced case. After a full investigation of the relevant facts and potential violations in this case, the Board found no fraudulent actions had been committed by Ms. Conners in connection with the incident in question. Rather, several Board policies and procedures had either been improperly followed or not followed in the first instance. It is these several violations and/or omissions of Board policies and procedures for which Ms. Conners will be given a reprimand.

Thank you for your consideration in this matter.

Respectfully yours,

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF SANDRA CONNORS,	:
SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
OF CAMDEN, CAMDEN COUNTY.	:	DECISION

The record and initial decision in the form of a joint stipulation of settlement rendered by the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed.

Upon thorough review of the record, in particular the clarification to Paragraph IV of the settlement forwarded to the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) on February 23, 1999 by Board Counsel and memorialized in the initial decision, the Commissioner is compelled to express his strong reservations about accepting a settlement of this tenure matter, given the serious allegations set forth in Count One of the tenure charges certified by the Board and the statement of evidence in support of those charges submitted to him by the Board in May 1997. However, he must give due consideration to the Board's February 23, 1999 letter of clarification to the ALJ which states

> After a full investigation of the relevant facts and potential violations in this case, the Board found no fraudulent actions had been committed by Ms. Conners in connection with the incident in question. Rather, several Board policies and procedures had either been improperly followed or not followed in the first instance. It is these several violations and/or omissions of Board policies and procedures for which Ms. Conners will be given a reprimand.

Upon consideration of this clarification stipulated by the Board, together with the record of this matter, the Commissioner is at a loss to understand why the Board did not engage in a full investigation of the relevant facts prior to the filing of the tenure charges and emphasizes to this Board and all others that a failure to investigate fully alleged serious misconduct of an employee before the filing and certification of tenure charges can result, as is apparently the case herein, in a board's inability to prosecute fully the charges it certifies to the Commissioner. Such a failure, of course, carries the major consequence of needless expenditure of large amounts of taxpayer money, to say nothing of the potential impact on the personal and professional reputation of the person who has been charged with serious misconduct.

Nonetheless, given the factual circumstances as set forth in the record of this matter, the Commissioner is compelled to conclude at this point in the adjudication of the instant matter, that it is in the public interest to approve the settlement (In re Cardonick, decided by the Commissioner April 7, 1982, aff'd State Board of Education April 6, 1983, 1990 S.L.D. 842, 846).

Accordingly, the matter is hereby dismissed, subject to the parties' compliance with the terms of the settlement.*

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

April 8, 1999
Date of Mailing, April 8, 1999

* This decision, as the Commissioner's final determination in the instant matter, may be appealed to the State Board of Education pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-27 et seq. and N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.1 et seq., within 30 days of its filing. Commissioner decisions are deemed filed three days after the date of mailing to the parties.

E.M. AND J.M., on behalf of minor child, K.G.,	:
PETITIONERS,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF LINCOLN PARK, MORRIS COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioners, guardians of K.G., a citizen of Poland, contested the Board's determination that K.G. was not entitled to a free public education in the District.

ALJ concluded that petitioners supported K.G. gratis as if she were their own child; that they intended to keep and support her beyond merely the school term; that K.G.'s father was not capable of supporting her due to family or economic hardship; that K.G. was not residing in the District solely for the purpose of obtaining a free public education; and that K.G. was entitled to a free public education while residing with petitioners. ALJ ordered that petitioners be granted relief in the form of a free public education for the period of time that K.G. was residing with petitioners and that the portion of the petition requesting admission to public school be dismissed as moot due to K.G.'s return to Poland.

Citing Gunderson, Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own. Commissioner denied award of attorney fees as that relief is not within the Commissioner's scope of authority. (Balsley)

AGENCY DKT. NO. 300-8/97

E.M. ON BEHALF OF MINOR CHILD, K.G., Petitioner,
v.
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF LINCOLN PARK, MORRIS COUNTY,

(Mauro, Savo, Camerino & Grant, attorney)

Record Closed: June 30 , 1998 Decided: February 11, 1999*

BEFORE MARYLOUISE LUCCHI-McCLOUD, ALJ:

This matter comes as a petition by E.M. & J.M. on behalf of K.G., a minor, originally filed on September 3, 1997 and an amended petition filed on September 17, 1997. The posture of the case at the conclusion leaves open only the question of whether petitioners must reimburse the respondent district for the tuition of K.G. who was living in their home and attending school in Boonton High School where the respondent has a sending receiving relationship.

On September 16, 1997 the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

Although originally scheduled to be heard by another ALJ, the matter was transferred to the undersigned for hearing on May 27 and 28, 1998. At the conclusion the hearing record remained open for post-hearing submissions by the parties until June 30, 1998. *The 45 day period to issue an initial decision was extended by several Orders of extension the last of which made the date upon which the decision was due February 11, 1999.

This case consists of a large number of facts which are not in dispute and as a result will be set out first for clarity.

UNCONTESTED FACTS

1. K.G., a minor, was a citizen of Poland during the pertinent time frame of this case.

2. E.M. and J.M., husband and wife, are residents of the Borough of Lincoln Park and are not related to K.G.

3. K.G. arrived in the United States in June 1997 to stay with EM and J.M.

4. Upon K.G.'s arrival, EM. And J.M. sought her enrollment in Boonton High School with which the respondent has a sending receiving relationship.

5. At the time they sought K.G.'s enrollment they presented the district with a notarized statement from H.T.G., K.G's father (P-1Ev.) as well as an affidavit from E.M. and J.M. (P-2Ev.).

6. The statement submitted from K.G.'s father states that he , as her father, does "pass over guardian of my daughter to E.M. ... for a time of my daughter (sic) stay in United States which is June 1997 till (sic) September 1998."

7. E.M. and J.M.'s affidavit stated that they are friends of K.G. who arrived at their home at the request of her parent and that they assume all personal obligation for the child and intend to support her

"indefinitely."

8. Based upon the information reviewed by the respondent and with advice of counsel, they determined that she was not entitled to a free public education. It is from this determination that petitioners appealed.

9. During the pendency of the matter K.G. was enrolled and attended Boonton High School.

10. The cost to Lincoln Park to send a student to Boonton High School is approximately $9,400 per annum.

11. No further affidavit was supplied to the Board of Education as to any special circumstances or family hardship until less than five days before the hearing which began on May 27, 1998.

12. K.G. had at all times pertinent only one visa which was a temporary visitor's visa which expired on December 12, 1997. No other visa or change in status was ever sought by or for K.G.

13. As of the time of the hearing K.G. had scheduled her return to her family in Poland for June 5, 1997, thus meaning she would not finish classes for the school year at issue.

As these facts are uncontroverted I FIND these to constitute FACTS in this case.

TESTIMONY

The testimony set out herein is that which deals with both the stated reasons for K.G.'s presence in the home of E.M. and J.M. as well as the timing of when these things were made known to the respondent Board of Education.

Having heard the testimony in this case and having had the opportunity to observe the demeanor of the witnesses and having reviewed the documentary evidence in this case I FIND the following recitation along with the UNCONTESTED FACTS above to constitute the FACTS in this case.

E.M. testified that she and her husband J.M. had lived in Lincoln Park since December 1995. They have a twenty two-year-old son who does not reside with them and did not attend the schools. They were friends of K.G.'s father in Lublin, Poland. K.G.'s mother had also been a friend but she died in approximately 1990 of cancer when K.G. was eleven. This was the first year when E.M. and her family were in the United States. She, K.G.'s mother and father were all physicists in Lublin. Their children were all raised together. K.G. also has an older brother, P.G. who remains in Poland.

E.M. saw K.G. about a year after her mother's death. She characterized K.G. as being like a scared rabbit. It was now her responsibility to take care of her father and brother who is an insulin dependent diabetic. The family had to get by on half the income they previously would take in and K.G.'s father was making only the equivalent of $300 monthly with most of the money going for the injections that P.G. needed. She stated That K.G.'s needs were considered last. She was enrolled in school in Poland and was an average student.

E.M. stated that she felt K.G. had many problems and that she discussed with K.G's father numerous times the idea of K.G. staying with her family. She felt this would be better for K.G. and the family could give her things which she could not have in Poland such as clothing, fruit, books and they could take her places. She stated that when K.G. was sixteen her father finally agreed and they initially planned to have her stay as long as K.G. would like.

E.M. received the sworn statement from T.G. (P-1Ev.) She states that she never discussed the dates with him and has no idea why he used June 1997 to September 1998. After K.G.'s arrival they never discussed the dates either. She states that if K.G. had wanted to go home she could have or had she wished to stay she could remain as long as she liked. She turned this over to the Board of Education as well as an affidavit from herself and her husband so that K.G. could attend school.

When K.G. arrived in June 1997 she had only one piece of carry on size luggage and very little clothing or possessions. E.M. and her husband took on full responsibility for K.G.'s well being and bought her clothing, books and other necessities and were never reimbursed by K.G.'s father. (P-3(a) to (q) Ev.)

During the hearing E.M. stated that although the original plan had been for K.G. to remain indefinitely as far as she and her husband were concerned, K.G. was returning to Poland on June 5, 1998 due to her brother's health problems. She states that this decision was made in the spring, however, up until the winter the plan was for the situation to remain the same for at least two years. K.G. was nearly eighteen and could get a part time job to help her father care for her brother. She acknowledged that school did not end until June 17, 1998 and that they are aware that she will not complete the grade by only a few days.

E.M. also acknowledged that even with the statement from K.G.'s father saying he would "pass over guardianship" to her it was her father that could make decisions until K.G. was eighteen. She continued to consult with him.

At no time did E.M. ever provide the respondent with further information as to K.G.'s stay nor did E.M. seek to revise or amend her affidavit P-2. At no time did E.M. and her husband seek a custody order from any court with respect to K.G. She acknowledges that there was at least a six-month period between the decision to have K.G. come and the attempt to enroll her.

K.G. also testified at the hearing as to the reasons for her coming to stay with E.M. and J.M. At the time of the hearing she was seventeen and stated that her brother was twenty-three. Her mother died when K.G. was eleven years old and her father never remarried. After her mother's death she took care of her brother and did all the cleaning and washing as well as going to school. When her mother was alive the family had her income as well. After her death her father worked all the time and there was not enough money. What money there was went for her brother's health and medical care. She never could have new clothing or shoes or do things with friends. She was not doing well in school. In December 1996 her father spoke with E.M. and J.M. when they came to Poland for a visit. She was very excited about coming and did not know for how long she would be here. She never discussed this with her father or E.M. or J.M. The only thing she discussed with E.M. and her husband was that if she wanted to stay she could or if she wanted to go back she would be able to.

She came in June 1997 and liked it here although was a bit homesick at times. E.M. and J.M. paid for everything and her father never sent her any money. She stated that she learned about one month prior to the hearing that her brother's condition had worsened and told them she wants to go back. If not for the decline in P.G.'s health she would not go back on June 5, 1998. She will get a job and try to help her father and care for her brother.

K.G. acknowledged that she was here on a temporary tourist visa. She never sought to extend it because she was a minor. Her father did not seek to extend it. She never showed the visa to anyone at Boonton High School or anyone at the Lincoln Park Board of Education. The visa was from June 13, 1997 to December 12, 1997.

An affidavit of T.G. was provided during the hearing dated April 22, 1998. This had only been turned over in discovery less than the five days required prior to the hearing and was objected to by respondent. Because of the relevance to the proceeding the affidavit was allowed in over the objection of respondent with respondent preserving the right to argue the timeliness of the submission as to the overall question presented. (P-4 Ev.)

LEGAL DISCUSSION

The only questions presented at this posture of the case is whether or not E.M. and J.M. are liable to the respondent for the amount of tuition expended on the education of K.G. while she resided with them and attended High School or whether K.G. was entitled to a free education. The pertinent statute is N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b) which provides that a free education shall be provided to:

> "Any person kept in the home of another person domiciled within the school district and is supported by such other person gratis as if he were such other person's own child, upon filing by such other person with the secretary of the board of education of the district, if so required by the board, a sworn statement that he is domiciled within the district and will support the child gratis and will assume all personal obligations for the child relative to school requirements and that he intends so to keep and support the child gratuitously for a longer time period than merely through the school term... and upon filing of a sworn statement of the child's parent or guardian with the secretary of the board of education a sworn statement that he is not capable of supporting the child due to a family or economic hardship and that the child is not residing with the resident of the district solely for the purpose of receiving a free public education within the district. *N.J.A.C.*18A38-1(b)1

In this case there is substantial testimony as to the family situation of K.G. Although there was no sworn statement from her father at the time of application indicating family or economic hardship the facts in this case support that there was indeed an economic and family hardship based on her brother's condition and the resources available to the family. There is no question that based upon what the district had at the time of application they appropriately concluded that K.G. did not meet the statutory criteria. It was at this time that E.M. took the appeal.

The question then becomes whether the failure to bring forward proof of the claim of hardship by way of affidavit until the time of the hearing is fatal to E.M.'s claim. It is upon the unique facts and circumstances in any particular case that a decision must be made. The hearing process provides E.M. and J.M. the ability to establish all of the components of *N.J.S.A.*18A:38-1(b). This includes testimony and affidavits. No one piece of proof as to any underlying fact is necessarily dispositive but all are to be considered and appropriately weighed.

Respondent argues that K.G. was not entitled to a free education based upon her visa status during the time she was with E.M. This argument is predicated on the fact that when K.G. entered the United States she had a tourist visa which later expired on December 12, 1998. At no time did K.G., E.M. and J.M., or K.G.'s father seek to extend the visa or to change the visa classification. As a result respondent argues that K.G. is not entitled to a free public education.

The fact that K.G. was not an illegal alien but only had a valid visa only for part of the time does not result in her denial of a free public education. Congress passed the Illegal Immigration Reform and Immigrant Responsibility Act in 1996, P.L. 104-208, which prevents a non immigrant in the United States on a visa from receiving a free public education. 8 U.S.C.A.§1184(1). However, K.G. does not fall under the coverage of the Act. The Act states that an alien may not be accorded status under 8 U.S.C.A.§11`1(a)(15)(F) to pursue a course of study at a public secondary school unless the alien reimburses the local school district for tuition. Id at §1184(1). However, K.G. is not an alien who has been accorded status under 8 U.S.C.A. §1101(a)(15)(F). This deals only with situation where aliens may not be accorded "nonimmigrant" status in order to pursue a course of study at public expense.

Section 1101(a)(15) defines an "immigrant" as used within the Act as every alien except an individual who falls within one of the classes of non immigrants as listed within the section. Part (F) includes the following category of "non immigrant":

> (I)an alien having a residence in a foreign country which he has no intention of abandoning, who is a bona fide student qualified to pursue a full course of study and who seeks to enter the United States temporarily and solely for the purpose of pursuing a course of study consistent with section 1184(1) of this title at an established college, university, seminary, conservatory academic high school, elementary school, or other academic institution or in a language training programming the United States, particularly designated by him and approved by the Attorney General after consultation with the Secretary of Education, which institution or place of study shall have agreed to report to the Attorney General the termination of attendance of each nonimmigrant student, and if any such institution of learning or place of study fails to make reports promptly the approval shall be withdrawn, and (ii) the alien spouse and minor children of any such alien if accompanying him or following to join him;

[8*U.S.C.A.*§1101(a)(15)(F)]

The pertinent question is whether there has been a finding that K.G. entered the country solely for the purpose of attending public school. In this case based solely on the particular and sensitive facts found attendance at a public school was not the purpose for K.G. coming to live with E.M. The testimony was credible as to the motivating factor of K.G.'s family situation. E.M. took her in and offered her a home. Although there was no medical documentation as to P.G.'s condition or specific expenses that arise as a result, the testimony credibly portrayed a hardship which is appropriately recognized in the statute.

Respondent also argues that the fact that K.G. planned to leave about two weeks before the end of the academic term also supports a conclusion that K.G. was here for a limited term of duration and not an indefinite stay. There is no indication that her intent, or that of E.M. and her husband, was to keep her only for the one year other than the wording of the original statement from the father which gave finite dates. While the respondents position on this issue was correct when they made their determination, the facts found in this proceeding support conclusively that the intent was for the stay to be indefinite for so long as she was comfortable with the family. Circumstances changed this plan and to say a departure prior to the end of the school year show other intent is no more persuasive than saying a departure after the school term and beyond the one year period would show the same intent. This factor can only be properly weighed when weighed in conjunction with the other facts in this case.

Nothing in this decision should be read to minimize in any way the necessity of providing the necessary information for the school board to review at the time of the application. It is entirely possible that this entire matter might have been avoided by providing the necessary documentation and supporting proof at the time required by the statute for the Board the review. Although there were reasons indicated as to why certain items were not provided somewhere between the time of the initial application and the hearing it would seem that further proof, whether by affidavit or conference with counsel and E.M. as well as K.G. might have helped. While there is no obligation to do so perhaps a more practical approach by future petitioners and counsel might be able to effectuate a resolution acceptable to the parties rather than merely waiting for the hearing date.

CONCLUSION

Based upon the unique circumstances in this case as presented during the hearing:

I CONCLUDE that K.G. was supported gratis by E.M. gratis as if their own child and that they intended to keep and support her beyond merely the school term.

I further CONCLUDE that K.G.'s father was not capable of supporting K.G. due to family or economic hardship.

I also CONCLUDE that K.G. was not residing in Lincoln Park solely for the purpose of obtaining a free public education.

As a result I CONCLUDE that K.G. was entitled to a free public education while residing with E.M. and J.M.

ORDER

It is hereby ORDERED that petitioner be granted relief in the form of a free public education for the period of time that K.G. was residing with E.M. and J.M.

Additionally it is ORDERED that the portion of the petition requesting admission to public school is dismissed as moot due to K.G.'s scheduled departure.

I hereby FILE my initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision on this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF LINCOLN PARK, MORRIS COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Exceptions of petitioners were timely filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Petitioners fully support the Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) finding that K.G. was entitled to a free public education in the District, excepting solely to the ALJ's failure to award attorney fees which she specifically requested in her Amended Petition filed in this case. Petitioners aver that although fees of counsel in the within matter easily exceed $15,000, "as a gesture of good faith to the Board of Education, and in order to promptly resolve this matter for settlement purposes[, they are] prepared to accept the sum of $2,500 by way of legal fees in this matter so as to put an end to this unpleasant episode[,]" and requests the Commissioner to award such fees. (Petitioners' Exceptions at p. 2)

Upon careful review and consideration of the entire record in this matter, the Commissioner affirms the conclusion of the ALJ that K.G. was entitled to a free public education, financed by the Board, during the period of time she resided with E.M. and J.M, as the surrounding facts and circumstances existing here indicate to his satisfaction that petitioners have met the underlying requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b. (See Gunderson v. City of Brigantine Board of Education, 95 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 39 (1994), aff'd State Board, 95 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 132.) In reaching his determination, the Commissioner specifically notes that it was unnecessary to reach to the ALJ's analysis of this matter vis-à-vis the Illegal Immigration Reform and Immigrant Responsibility Act (Initial Decision at pp. 7-9), as K.G.'s visa status is purely an immigration issue and is of no moment whatsoever when considering her eligibility for a free public education pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1.

With respect to petitioners' exceptions wherein they are seeking attorney fees in this matter, the Commissioner observes that it is long-established that, notwithstanding that the Commissioner of Education "has fundamental and indispensable jurisdiction over all disputes and controversies arising under the school laws[,] N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9," (Hinfey v. Matawan Regional Board of Education, 77 N.J. 514, 525 (1978)), he does not have plenary authority to award counsel fees to a successful complainant in an education controversy. (See Balsley v. North Hunterdon Board of Education, 117 N.J. 434, 442-43 (1990).) (Also see State, Department of Environmental Protection v. Ventron Corp., 94 N.J. 473 (1983).) As such, the additional relief sought in petitioners' Amended Petition cannot be granted as a matter of law, as an award of attorney fees or costs of suit is not within the Commissioner's scope of authority.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the OAL, determining that K.G. was entitled to a free public education financed by the Borough of Lincoln Park during the period of time she resided with petitioners, is affirmed for the reasons set forth therein.[1]

IT IS SO ORDERED.[2]

APPROVING SETTLEMENT

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 733-98

AGENCY DKT. NO. 15-1/98

I/M/O TENURE CHARGES AGAINST HOWARD MASSEY,

Philipp Duvilla, Esq., for petitioner

Michael Damm, Esq., for respondent (Selikoff & Cohen, attorneys)

Record Closed: February 22, 1999 Decided: February 24, 1999

BEFORE JOHN R. TASSINI, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner Board of Education of the Borough of Paulsboro (BOE) brought charges against respondent Howard Massey, a tenured teacher in the BOE's school system, and respondent denied the BOE's allegations and demanded dismissal of the charges. The parties have entered into the attached settlement agreement.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On January 20, 1998, the BOE's tenure charges and supporting documents were filed with the Department of Education. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9. On January 30, 1998, the respondent's answer and defenses were so filed. The Department transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), where, on February 11, 1998, it was filed as a contested case. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11, N.J.S.A. 52:14B-2(b). On April 16, 1998, the case was assigned to me and I sent out a letter scheduling discovery, etc. On June 15, 1998, the attorneys and I conferred and they advised me that they were engaged in settlement negotiations. A hearing was scheduled, but by letter received August 4, 1998, the BOE's attorney, represented that BOE witnesses were unavailable, requested that it be adjourned. On September 16, 1998, the attorneys advised me that settlement negotiations continued. The hearing was rescheduled to begin January 27, 1999; but, on the record closed date, the OAL received the "Joint Request for Approval of Settlement Providing for Dismissal of Tenure Charges" and "Settlement Agreement . . ." J-1, J-1A.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Since 1966, the BOE has continuously employed respondent as a teaching staff member. In 1997, the BOE certified the tenure charges, alleging grading discrepancies and charging conduct unbecoming a teacher. As stated in the procedural history above, the respondent's answers and defenses to the tenure charges were filed and, in his answer and defenses, he alleged racial discrimination. Respondent also filed a complaint with the New Jersey Division of Civil Rights and filed a complaint with the U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, alleging racial discrimination. The BOE filed answers and defenses to these complaints. See J-1, J-1A.

The parties were interested in amicably resolving their claims and defenses in all cases. The BOE investigated the matter and determined that it probably could not meet its burden of proof of the tenure charges against the respondent. The parties voluntarily, intelligently and lawfully entered into a settlement agreement. Pursuant to the settlement agreement, conditioned upon approval by the Commissioner of the Department of Education, actions will be taken, including the following: The parties will release, waive, etc., all charges, claims, etc., that they may have against one another. The tenure charges and other charges, claims, etc., that the parties may have against one another will be dismissed. The BOE will continue to employee respondent (who has not been suspended and who has remained an active member of the BOE's teaching staff) until July 1, 1999 and respondent, who has represented that he suffers from health problems and that he intends to retire at the end of the 1998-99 school year, will submit his resignation, effective July 1, 1999. See J-1, J-1A.

Given respondent's 32 years of employment, his contributions to youth of the BOE's district and given the settlement agreement's efficient resolution of the parties' differences, avoiding expense of further litigation, the settlement is in the interest of the public. Given respondent's intention to retire, the settlement agreement is in his interest. See J-1, J-1A.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The settlement agreement, voluntarily, intelligently and lawfully entered into by the parties, is consistent with relevant facts and law, is in the public interest and fully and lawfully disposes of all issues in controversy. The settlement agreement should be and is approved.

ORDER

I ORDER the parties to comply with the settlement agreement and ORDER that these proceedings be ended.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF HOWARD MASSEY, SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE BOROUGH OF PAULSBORO, COUNTY OF GLOUCESTER, STATE OF NEW JERSEY

BEFORE THE COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION OF THE STATE OF NEW JERSEY

DOCKET NO. 15-1/98

JOINT REQUEST FOR APPROVAL OF SETTLEMENT PROVIDING FOR DISMISSAL OF TENURE CHARGES

INTRODUCTION

Counsel for the Board of Education of the School District of the Borough of Paulsboro ("Board") and counsel for its tenured employee Howard Massey ("Massey") join in moving for an order finding that the Settlement Agreement between the parties, attached hereto as Exhibit A, meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1, recommending that the Settlement Agreement be adopted by the Commissioner of Education, and ordering on condition that the Commissioner approves the Settlement Agreement without modification, that the Settlement Agreement be implemented and the tenure charges filed by the Board be dismissed with prejudice.

PROCEDURAL STATEMENT

This matter arises out of tenure charges against a tenured teaching staff member on grounds of unbecoming conduct due to alleged grading discrepancies. The tenure charges were transmitted to the Department of Education on or about January 30, 1998, and to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on or about February , 1998.

EDU 733-98
J-1

The parties have agreed under the terms of the Settlement Agreement attached hereto as Exhibit A that the tenure charges will be dismissed. Inasmuch as Massey, a 32 year teaching staff member (date of birth 9/1/37), has not been suspended from his teaching position in connection with this matter, he will continue in that teaching position consistent with his certification as a computer keyboarding instructor at the salary grade/step to which he is entitled under the most recently negotiated collective bargaining agreement or any subsequently ratified agreements with the understanding, however, that Massey will tender his resignation and retire at the end of the 1998/1999 school year effective July 1, 1999.

The parties have further agreed under the terms of the Settlement Agreement attached hereto as Exhibit A, that conditioned upon the Commissioner's approval of the Settlement Agreement without modification, the tenure charges against Massey shall be dismissed with prejudice. Furthermore, should the Commissioner fail to approve the Settlement Agreement attached hereto as Exhibit A without modification, the parties have agreed to make every reasonable effort to reform their Settlement Agreement to meet his objections.

THE BOARD'S REASONS FOR SEEKING DISMISSAL OF TENURE CHARGES

The Board makes the following representations:

In or about December, 1997, the Board certified tenure charges of unbecoming conduct against Howard Massey, a teaching staff member of some thirty-two (32) years in the employ of the Board, alleging, inter alia, discrepancies in Massey's grading policies during the 1996-97 school year.

The Board instituted the tenure charges against Massey based upon initial information received from others concerning his grading policy. However, as a result of additional information and documentation obtained through discovery and in preparation for the hearing, including an evaluation of the expected testimony of witnesses, the Board has concluded that it cannot meet its burden of proof by a preponderance of the credible evidence. Based upon this, and as a result of its ongoing investigation, in particular with regard to the expected testimony of witnesses, the Board believes it cannot sustain the allegations. Furthermore, Massey was not suspended from employment upon certification of the tenure charges; rather, he has remained a member of the Board's teaching staff during the pendency of the tenure charges, and it is the Board's intention for Massey to continue in active employment through his retirement at the conclusion of the 1998-99 school year, the Board having, upon further review, concluded that the penalty of dismissal is not warranted. Finally, the Board has been made aware of Massey's stated health problems and intention to resign and retire at the end of the 1998-99 school year in any event.

The full investigation and assessment of the evidence that might be presented during the tenure hearing has provided the Board with the opportunity to explore means of resolving this dispute in a manner consonant with the public interest. In this connection, the Board has taken into consideration that: Massey, for the most part, has maintained a commendable employment record over his long standing tenure of thirty-two (32) years; he has exhibited dedication and contribution to the youth of the Paulsboro community in the form of scholarships funded out of his own personal monies, and has been involved in activities and organizations promoting the betterment of youth. Accordingly, the Board has concluded that it is in the best interest of the public, including the students in the Paulsboro community, that Massey continue in his long standing position as a teaching staff member and computer keyboarding instructor for the Paulsboro Board of Education until his retirement on July 1, 1999.

Under the circumstances, the Board of Education has directed its counsel to dismiss the charges and request that the Commissioner of Education approve the dismissal.

CONCLUSION

The Settlement Agreement was negotiated between counsel based upon all the attendant facts and circumstances, some of which did not come to light until the tenure charges had been certified to the Commissioner of Education. Counsel, as well as Massey and the Board which approved it, are satisfied with the Settlement Agreement and believe that it fulfills the public interest with respect to these matters. For the reasons outlined above, and for good cause shown, this tribunal should conclude that the Settlement Agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1, recommend that the Settlement Agreement be adopted without modification by the Commissioner of Education, order that the Settlement Agreement be implemented on condition that it is so approved, and that upon such approval the tenure charges be dismissed with prejudice.

WHEREAS, on December 18, 1997, the Board certified tenure charges against Massey to the Commissioner of Education under the Tenure Employees Hearing Law alleging unbecoming conduct on account of alleged grading discrepancies, which charges were captioned:

OAL DKT NO. 15-1/98
AGENCY REF. NO. EDUTH 00733-98S

AND, WHEREAS Massey filed an Answer contesting the tenure charges, and as set forth below had already asserted an affirmative defense in the form of a complaint of racial discrimination with the New Jersey Division on Civil Rights and the U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission filed on July 9, 1997, on the same issue; and,

WHEREAS, the aforesaid tenure charges were assigned for hearing before Administrative Law Judge John R. Tassini; and,

WHEREAS, during the course of the continued investigation into the allegations made against Massey following the certification of the tenure charges to the Commissioner f Education, the Board concluded that in light of Massey's employment history spanning over 32 years, and the witnesses' expected testimony, it could not have sustained the allegations contained in its tenure charges, and it would be in the best interest of the Board and the students of the district for which it is responsible to continue Massey in his position and to continue to compensate him at the salary to which he is entitled under the collectively negotiated agreement or any recently negotiated agreement between the parties; and,

WHEREAS, on July 9, 1997, Massey filed verified complaints with the New Jersey Division on Civil Rights and the U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission captioned:

HOWARD MASSEY v. PAULSBORO BOARD OF EDUCATION
DCR Docket No. EH14RE-43147
EEOC Docket No. 17E980264

alleging race discrimination in connection with, inter alia, the Board's policy toward him with respect to grading practices, and the Board having answered those allegations in or about January of 1998, denying those allegations; and Massey having subsequently in or about July of 1998 amended the charges of race discrimination to allege unlawful reprisal, and the Board having answered the amended charges in or about November of 1998; and in recognition that the charges as amended are presently pending before both agencies; and,

WHEREAS, the parties, neither of which admit liability wish to resolve their differences amicably, which both parties

NOW THEREFORE, the matter in dispute having been amicably adjusted by and between the parties, it is hereby stipulated and agreed as follows, subject to and conditioned upon the approval of the Commissioner of Education:

1. The Board will seek the Commissioner's approval for this Settlement Agreement, and if the Commissioner approves the Settlement Agreement without modification, ask the Commissioner to allow the tenure charges against Massey to be dismissed, with prejudice;

2. Massey will cooperate with the Board in seeking the Commissioner's approval for this Settlement Agreement;

3. Should the Commissioner fail to approve this Settlement Agreement attached hereto as Exhibit A without modification, the parties have agreed to make every reasonable effort to reform this Settlement Agreement to meet any objections;

4. Provided the Commissioner approves of this agreement the Board shall continue to employ Massey in his current full time position consistent with his certification as a computer keyboarding instructor at his current salary grade/step to which he is entitled under the currently negotiated collective bargaining agreement or any subsequently negotiated agreement until his resignation by reason of retirement on July 1, 1999. Massey shall be entitled to receive the benefit of any newly ratified collective bargaining agreement which takes effect during that time.

5. Provided the Commissioner approves of this agreement, Massey agrees that he will resign and retire effective July 1, 1999. Massey realizes that the decision to resign from his employment position with the Board upon the Commissioner's approval of this agreement is irrevocable.

8. Provided that the Commissioner approves this agreement, in consideration of the mutual covenants contained herein, the Board hereby remises, releases, acquits, satisfies, and forever discharges Massey his heirs, assigns, agents and attorneys of all and from all actions, suits, debts, dues, sums of money, accounts, covenants, attorneys fees, expenses, controversies, agreements, promises, damages, judgments, claims and demands whatsoever, in law or in equity, which it may have in connection with the matters entitled HOWARD MASSEY v. PAULSBORO BOARD OF EDUCATION, Docket No. EH14RE-43147 and Docket No. 17E980264.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF POINT	:	DECISION
PLEASANT BEACH, OCEAN COUNTY,	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning parent challenged Board's determination that he was not domiciled in Point Pleasant Beach.

ALJ concluded that pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a), petitioner failed to prove by a preponderance of credible evidence that his sons, N.P. and S.P., were entitled to attend the Board's schools for the 1997-1998 school year free of charge as he was domiciled in Brick Township. ALJ ordered F.P. to pay the Board for his sons' tuition for the 1997-1998 school year in the amount of $37,338.16. ALJ further concluded that for the 1998-1999 school year, it is probable that petitioner and his sons are domiciled within Point Pleasant Beach and, therefore, are entitled to continue attending the Board's schools without charge for this school year. ALJ denied the Board's counterclaim for attorney's fees.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision that petitioner failed to prove by a preponderance of the credible evidence that he was domiciled in Point Pleasant Beach for the 1997-1998 school year. However, Commissioner rejected the ALJ's conclusion that petitioner's domicile was Point Pleasant Beach for the 1998-1999 school year, finding that the record in this matter was not sufficiently developed to reach a conclusion that petitioner had changed his domicile back to Point Pleasant Beach for the 1998-1999 school year. The matter was, therefore, remanded to OAL for further proceedings to supplement the record on this issue and to calculate the amount of tuition owed for the 1998-1999 school year, in the event petitioner is not found, on remand, to be domiciled in Point Pleasant for the 1998-1999 school year. (Cranford Bd. of Ed. v. A.McG. and L.McG.) Moreover, because the record indicated that one of petitioner's sons is a special education student, Commissioner directed reexamination of the any tuition owed by petitioner for the 1997-1998 school year, as well as any monies which may be owing for 1998-1999 be calculated, taking into consideration what impact, if any, the FAPE provisions of IDEA may have on the amount of tuition owed to the Board by petitioner.

Commissioner adopted ALJ's order denying the Board attorney's fees and also denied Board's claim for interest.

v.

POINT PLEASANT BEACH

BOARD OF EDUCATION,

Record Closed: February 4, 1999 Decided: February 24, 1999

BEFORE JOHN R. TASSINI, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, respondent Board of Education (BOE) held a hearing and determined that petitioner F.P. and his children N.P. and S.P. were not "domiciled" within the BOE's school district, although they continued to attend the BOE's school. Consequently, the BOE also decided that the children should be removed from the school and that F.P. should pay tuition for the children.

F.P. alleges that he and the children were domiciled in the district and claims that the BOE was and is required to provide his children with a free public education. The BOE submits that F.P. has not met his burden of proof and counterclaims for an order requiring F.P. to pay the tuition.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The petition recites that, on or about July 30, 1998, petitioner's attorney received written notice of the BOE's determinations and, on August 12, 1998, the petition and its accompanying exhibits were filed with the Department of Education. On August 19, 1998, the BOE's answer and counterclaim were so filed. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9, 38-1. The Department transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), where, on August 27, 1998, it was received and filed as a contested case. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-2(b). With much difficulty, the hearing was scheduled and held on October 29, 1998; December 14, 1998; and January 7, 1999. At the parties' request, the record was closed with the submission of their written summations. In this decision initials identify parents and children to avoid embarrassment and resulting harm to the children.

FINDINGS OF FACT

F.P. is the father of five children. By P.M., to whom he was married from 1968 to 1992, F.P. is the father of K.P., born August 23, 1971, and F.P. Jr., born February 13, 1973. By K.W., to whom he was married from 1992 to 1995, F.P. is the father of S.P., born September 11, 1989, and N.P., born November 30, 1990. By C.M., to whom he has not been married, F.P. is the father of T.P., born May 8, 1998. C.M., by a man other than F.P., is also the mother of M.M., born October 17, 1981.

F.P. testified that, in 1991, he, F.P. Jr., K.W., S.P. and N.P. began to reside in a Cape Cod-type house located at 207 Curtis Avenue in Point Pleasant Beach, i.e., within the BOE's district. Title to the Point Pleasant Beach house is held by F.F., F.P.'s uncle, who also heads IDM, the business that employs F.P. There is no written lease, but F.P. testified that he is F.F.'s tenant.

During relevant times, S.P. and N.P. have attended the BOE's school. During the 1997-98 school year, S.P. was in the BOE's third grade, and for N.P., diagnosed as autistic and classified, the BOE provided special education services. During the 1998-99 school year, S.P. has been in the BOE's fourth grade, and for N.P., the BOE has again provided special education services. P-1.

Since at least 1994, F.P. has used the Point Pleasant Beach house as his address for records including his tax returns, records of Friends of Autistic Children, Inc. (of which F.P. is an officer), applications and certificates for engaging in environmental remediation, licenses and registrations for motor vehicle operation and ownership, insurance policies, motor vehicle lease and rental payments, utility payments for accounts in his name, and payment of New York State Thruway E-Z Pass commuter toll charges. See, e.g., P-10; P-11; P-12; P-16; P-17; P-19; P-20; P-21; P-22.

F.P. testified that in October 1995, he and K.W. were divorced; he received custody of their children and K.W. had weekend visitation. However, despite the divorce, in F.P.'s 1995 tax records he showed them as married.

F.P. testified that, in 1996, the nanny who had provided care for his children left. Thereafter, C.M. ended her employment in New York and began to provide care for F.P.'s children. In 1996 also, F.P. presented C.M. with an engagement ring and F.P., F.P. Jr., S.P., N.P., C.M. and M.M. resided in the Point Pleasant Beach house. Since the 1997-98 school year, M.M. has been a student in the BOE's high school. C.M. testified that she began an environmental consulting business with an office in Middletown, New Jersey, but her description of the business and the income derived from it was vague and incredible. Instead (as detailed below), it is probable that, since 1996, F.P. has provided a substantial amount of C.M.'s income. See P-37; BOE-1.

In 1996, after C.M. and F.P. became engaged, C.M. contracted to have a house built at 139 Duchess Lane in Brick Township. The Brick house was to have four bedrooms and a two-car garage, i.e., it would be larger than the Point Pleasant Beach house and larger than that needed by only C.M. and M.M. On cross-examination, F.P. denied knowing why the Brick house was built larger than the Point Pleasant Beach house. However, F.P. and C.M. were engaged to be married; reasonably, they intended to be domiciled with their children; and, therefore, the Brick house was larger because they intended to be domiciled there. That is to say, in this and other testimony, F.P. was incredible.

C.M. testified that after completion of the Brick house there was a title problem, so title was not conveyed until 1997. She testified that, after furnishing and decorating, in the fall of 1997, she became domiciled there. However, she was indefinite and largely incredible about relevant dates in this regard.

F.P. testified that, beginning in 1997, on weekends he, S.P. and N.P. stayed overnight in the Brick house, but that on school nights, after dinner in the Brick house, he, S.P. and N.P. traveled to the Point Pleasant Beach house, where they spent the night. F.P. also called the following witnesses: Tracey Kaiserian testified that she provided occasional child care for N.P. in the Point Pleasant Beach house. Barry Hefferman testified that F.P. (for IDM) leases equipment from his (Hefferman's) company and that he observed F.P. in the Point Pleasant Beach house, which was decorated for Christmas. Vincent Mastria testified that he has been F.P.'s friend since childhood, he is also employed by IDM, and during Christmas 1996 and 1997 he observed F.P. and his children in the Point Pleasant Beach house. F.P. was indefinite and substantially incredible in his testimony and the above-described witnesses had only occasional opportunities to see F.P., S.P. and N.P.

The BOE's determination that, during the 1997-98 school year, the Brick house was F.P.'s, S.P.'s and N.P.'s domicile is supported by facts including the following:

In 1996 C.M. and F.P. were engaged to be married and sharing the same domicile in the Point Pleasant Beach house, and in 1997 they remained engaged and they knew she was pregnant with his child, so presumedly they intended to continue to share the same domicile.

By 1997 F.P. and C.M., S.P. and N.P. had their own rooms in the Brick house and S.P. and N.P. had their personality and toys there.

By 1997 F.P. had telephone service (two numbers) in his name established to the Brick house and K.W. testified that, during relevant times, often when she telephoned the Brick house she reached S.P. and N.P. there.

By 1997 C.M. was transporting S.P. and N.P. from school to the Brick house, and they and F.P. ate dinner in the Brick house. Reasonably, one would want to avoid the disruption of nightly transporting such young children from the home to which they go after school, where they eat dinner as a family unit and where they have their own rooms, etc., to another house.

Sandra Pasola, a neighbor across the street from the Point Pleasant Beach house and a credible witness, beginning about 1992, regularly saw F.P., S.P. and N.P. in the neighborhood. However, beginning in 1997 she saw F.P., S.P. and N.P. less frequently around the Point Pleasant Beach house. Also, she saw more young adults coming and going from the Point Pleasant Beach house. Also, as the BOE attendance secretary, when she telephoned the Point Pleasant Beach house to inquire about S.P.'s and N.P.'s absence from school, persons answering the telephone were unfamiliar with S.P. and N.P. and could not tell her why they were absent from school.

In 1997 S.P. told Maureen Pritchard, a teacher in the BOE's school system and a credible witness, about the "new" house in Brick with a special room for N.P. Also, F.P. told Celeste Burd, a special education case manager concerned about N.P.'s welfare and a credible witness, that the family lived in both Point Pleasant Beach and Brick and that they might move from Point Pleasant Beach. Also, N.P.'s March 13, 1997 and April 16, 1997 Annual Review/Individualized Education Plan Conference reports, developed with input from F.P., state, "The [P.'s] live between two residences." P-1; BOE-4.

F.P. admitted that his work often required travel out of state, e.g., in 1997 he was away more than fifty days, and that when he was out of state S.P. and N.P. stayed overnight in the Brick house.

In F.P.'s Case Information Statements (CISs) prepared for his divorce case, he certified that he paid to C.M. $2,150 monthly for "housekeeper" services; $1,100 monthly for "rent"; and $583 monthly for a "special room" for N.P. See P-37; BOE-1. That is, F.P. contributed substantially (although indirectly) to the costs of maintenance of the Brick house.

During the late night or early morning of March 15, 1997, in the Point Pleasant Beach house, teenagers, including M.M., were engaging in excessive consumption of alcoholic beverages and the police arrived and arrested F.P. Jr.; F.P., S.P. and N.P. were not present.

From the spring until the fall of 1998, the heating system that served most of Point Pleasant Beach was out of service (due to water damage). Reasonably, a parent with young children in the house would have restored the heating service. (In 1998 F.P. was discharged as a bankrupt. However, he has a substantial income; since 1987 he has owned and garaged a Corvette; and he leased a 1998 Lincoln Town Car for $599 monthly. P-20.) The absence of heating service at the Point Pleasant Beach house during that period makes it more probable that the children were not domiciled there and that they were domiciled in the Brick house.

Finally, in F.P.'s December 23, 1997 CIS, he certified to the Family Part judge that he, S.P. and N.P. were residing in the Brick house, which he described as "a lovely home" with a "special room" for N.P., a fenced-in yard, and other features beneficial to the children, and he certified that he paid a total of $1,683 monthly to live in that house. BOE-1.

That is to say, F.P. has not met his burden of proof that, during the 1997-98 school year, he, S.P. and N.P. were domiciled in the Point Pleasant house.

Based upon the BOE's superintendent's certification that S.P. and N.P. were not domiciled in the district, the BOE's attorney sent to F.P. and C.M. a letter, dated May 5, 1998, wherein he wrote the following:

> I represent the [BOE]. We have received information from a private investigator who indicates that your stated residence, namely 207 Curtis Avenue, Point Pleasant Beach, New Jersey is owned by another person and that [F.P.'s] mother resides there. Our private investigation further reveals that your address is 139 Duchess Lane, Brick, New Jersey 08724. It is our understanding that you have four children, [M.M., H., S.P. and N.P.], enrolled in the Point Pleasant Beach School District, falsely claiming your permanent domicile as 207 Curtis Avenue, Point Pleasant Beach, New Jersey when in fact the children's domicile is in Brick, New Jersey. The back tuition for [M.M.] is $6,537.38, [H.] $7,132.57. [S.P.] $7,132.57 and [N.P.] $22,927.53. Demand is made for the payment of the entirety of the aforesaid sums.
>
> Additionally, we demand that [M.M.], [H.], and [S.P.] terminate their enrollment in Point Pleasant Beach School District at the end of the school day, May 15, 1998 and that you should make arrangements to have the children transferred to the appropriate school district.
>
> With respect to [N.P.], inasmuch as he is a special education student, we will work with you for the placement in another school district. In the interim, you should pay for the normal tuition rate for [N.P.] until the transfer is secured.
>

During the spring of 1998, C.M. attended a BOE meeting relative to the issue of M.M.'s domicile. She testified that she was nervous during the meeting and mistakenly stated to the BOE that, in 1996, she learned she was pregnant and moved to the Brick house. Based on her misstatement, the BOE billed her for M.M.'s tuition from 1996 forward. C.M. filed a petition with the Commissioner of Education and the case was transmitted to the OAL, where it was filed bearing docket number EDU 6703-98. However, as found above, C.M. learned she was pregnant in 1997 and, in October 1998, C.M. and the BOE settled with the agreement that, for M.M.'s out-of-district attendance during the 1997-98 and 1998-99 school years, C.M. would pay tuition to the BOE. (This allowed M.M. to complete high school in the BOE's school.) BOE-6.

F.P. retained an attorney who filed a petition on behalf of N.P. against the BOE. The Department of Education transmitted the case to the OAL, where it was filed bearing docket number EDS 4568-98 and scheduled for hearing on June 23, 1998. However, on that date, the BOE appeared and F.P. withdrew the petition.

On July 28, 1998, the BOE held a hearing relative to F.P.'s, S.P.'s and N.P.'s domicile. See N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1. F.P. and his attorney appeared and were afforded an opportunity to be heard and F.P. declined to testify. By way of the BOE's attorney's July 30, 1998 letter, he notified petitioners' attorney of the following: The BOE had determined that S.P. and N.P. were not domiciled in the district, that they would be transferred to the Brick school system. The BOE demanded tuition for the children's unauthorized out-of-district attendance in the BOE's school during the 1997-98 school year. If petitioners filed a (another) petition with the Commissioner, in addition to the tuition, the BOE would demand attorney's fees for the June 1998 appearance in the OAL and for defense of the (second) petition. See N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(2).

By the start of the 1998-99 school year, F.P. was faced with the BOE's determination and claim for tuition and this case had been filed in the OAL. Given these circumstances, it is probable that, to avoid additional liability on the BOE's claim for tuition, etc., F.P., S.P. and N.P. would have returned to domicile in the Point Pleasant House. This is corroborated by Ms. Pritchard's testimony that, after the BOE took action relative to S.P.'s and N.P.'s domicile, petitioners were around the Point Pleasant Beach home more often and corroborated by the repair of the heating system there in October 1998. Given these circumstances, during the 1998-99 school year, it is probable that F.P. and the children were domiciled in the Point Pleasant Beach house and F.P. would have no liability for tuition for that year.

Brian Savage, during relevant times, he has been the BOE's business administrator and secretary a credible witness, has made and maintained the BOE's records, including those relative to school days and tuition for out-of-district students and testified credibly as follows:

During the 1997-98 184-day school year (when S.P. attended the BOE's third grade), given the estimated cost per pupil, for an out-of-district student attending the BOE's third grade the cost per pupil/tuition would be $47.19 per diem and $8,682.96 for the year.

During the 1997-98 school year (when the BOE provided special education and services for N.P.), for an out-of-district student to receive special education and the particular services received by N.P. the cost/tuition would total $31,600.20 for the year. The BOE received $2,945.00 for these special education services, so reducing $31,600.20 by $2,945.00 leaves $28,655.20.

During the 1998-99 school year (when S.P. attended the BOE's fourth grade), given the estimated cost per pupil, for an out-of-district student attending the BOE's fourth grade the estimated cost per pupil/tuition would be $47.87 per diem, or $3,590.25 up to January 7, 1999, when Mr. Savage testified (75 days).

During the 1998-99 school year (when the BOE provided special education and services for N.P.), for an out-of-district student to receive special education and the particular services received by N.P. the estimated cost/tuition would total $10,365.82 up to January 7, 1999, when Mr. Savage testified (75 days). Mr. Savage said that the Board would receive $1,232.25 for these special education services, so reducing $10,365.82 by $1,232.25 leaves $9,133.57. BOE-5.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(2) states, in pertinent part:

> If the superintendent . . . of a school district finds that the parent or guardian of a child who is attending the schools of the district is not domiciled within the district and the child is not kept in the home of another person domiciled within the school district and supported by him gratis as if the child was the person's own child as provided for in paragraph (1) of this subsection, the superintendent or administrative principal may apply to the board of education for the removal of the child. The parent or guardian shall be entitled to a hearing before the board and if in the judgment of the board the parent or guardian is not domiciled within the district or the child is not kept in the home of another person domiciled within the school district and supported by him gratis as if the child was the person's own child as provided for in paragraph (1) of this subsection, the board may order the transfer or removal of the child from school. The parent or guardian may contest the board's decision before the commissioner within 21 days of the date of the decision and shall be entitled to an expedited hearing before the commissioner and shall have the burden of proof by a preponderance of the evidence that the child is eligible for a free education under the criteria listed in this subsection. The board of education shall, at the time of its decision, notify the parent or guardian in writing of his right to contest the decision within 21 days. No child shall be removed from school during the 21-day period in which the parent may contest the board's decision or during the pendency of the proceedings before the commissioner. If in the judgment of the commissioner the evidence does not support the claim of the parent or guardian, the commissioner shall assess the parent or guardian tuition for the student prorated to the time of the student's ineligible attendance in the schools of the district. Tuition shall be computed on the basis of 1/180 of the total annual per pupil cost to the local district multiplied by the number of days of ineligible attendance and shall be collected in the manner in which orders of the commissioner are enforced. Nothing shall preclude a board from collecting tuition from the parent or guardian for a student's period of ineligible attendance in the schools of the district where the issue is not appealed to the commissioner.

"Domicile" is defined as "1. A residence; a home. 2. One's legal residence." American Heritage Dictionary 550 (3d ed. 1996). Domicile has been described as "the place of [a person's] abode where he has the present intention of remaining and to which, if absent, he intends to return." Mercadante v. City of Paterson, 111 N.J. Super. 35, 39 (Ch. Div. 1970), aff'd, 58 N.J. 112 (1971). "A person may have several residences or places of abode. However, he can only have one domicile at one time." Collins v. Yancey, 55 N.J. Super. 514, 520 (Law Div. 1959). Between residences, factors used to identify the domicile include: (1) the physical characteristics of each residence, (2) the time spent and things done in each residence, (3) other persons found in each residence, (4) the person's mental attitude about each residence, and (5) whether, when absent, the person has an intention to return. Mercadante, supra, 111 N.J. Super. at 39-40. Acts, statements and documents may be relevant in determining domicile.

Consistent with N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, after the BOE superintendent's application, the BOE afforded petitioners a hearing and determined that, during the 1997-98 school year, S.P. and N.P. were not domiciled in the district and that they should be removed from its school system. Also consistent with N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, and with the usual presumption that public entities act lawfully, reasonably and in good faith, in these circumstances, petitioners bear the burden of proof by a preponderance (the greater weight) of the competent and credible evidence that the BOE's determination was incorrect and that they were domiciled in the district.

Relative to the 1997-98 school year, consistent with my "Findings of Fact," petitioners have not met their burden of proof and relative to the BOE's counterclaim, F.P. is liable for tuition.

Relative to the 1998-98 school year, consistent with my "Findings of Fact," petitioners have proven that they resided in the district and relative to the BOE's counterclaim, F.P. is not liable for tuition.

Relative to the BOE claim for attorney's fees, etc., the usual rule is that each party bears his or her own attorney's fees and costs. See, e.g., In the Matter of the Spill Compensation and Control Act Claim of Raymond and Theresa Thomas, 93 N.J.A.R.2d (EPE) 79, aff'd, 278 N.J. Super. 580 (App. Div.), certif. denied, 141 N.J. 94 (1995). The OAL is not a court within the meaning of, e.g., N.J.S.A. 2A:15-59 and -59.1, and I do not see in N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, or any other law, authority to award attorney's fees to the BOE as prevailing party. Therefore, no attorney's fees are ordered.

ORDERS

(1) The petition is DISMISSED WITH PREJUDICE.

(2) The BOE's counterclaim for tuition is GRANTED and I ORDER F.P. to pay tuition for the 1997-98 school year: $37,338.16.

(3) The BOE's counterclaim for attorney's fees is DENIED.

(4) Because of F.P.'s, S.P.'s and N.P.'s return to domicile in the district, they may continue in the BOE's school system.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

F.P., on behalf of N.P. & S.P.,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF POINT	:	DECISION
PLEASANT BEACH, OCEAN COUNTY,	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Both parties filed timely exceptions pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Petitioner takes exception to the Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) findings and conclusions that he has not met his burden of proof that during the 1997-1998 school year he and his children, S.P. and N.P., were domiciled in the Point Pleasant Beach house. Petitioner avers that the ALJ's determination is not based on any affirmative proofs offered by respondent as evidence in the case but, rather, are based upon the ALJ's finding that "it is probable that, since 1996, F.P. has provided a substantial amount of C.M.'s income" (initial decision at p. 4) and that "[t]he absence of heating service at the Point Pleasant Beach house during that period [Spring 1998-Fall 1998] makes it more probable that the children were not domiciled there and that they were domiciled in the Brick [Township] house" (id. at p. 6). Further, petitioner argues that neither of these findings is even arguably sufficient, in the absence of other affirmative findings by the ALJ based upon evidence of record in the case to support the conclusion that he was not domiciled in Point Pleasant Beach during the 1997-1998 school year.

Petitioner points to Exhibits P-10 to P-12, P-16 to P-17, P-19 to-P-22, P-28, P-30 and P-36 in support of his argument that > These exhibits, both individually and in the aggregate, support the clear conclusion that Petitioner at all times during the 1996-1997, 1997-1998 and 1998-1999 school years intended his family's residence at 207 Curtis Avenue in Point Pleasant Beach to be his domicile as matter of both fact and law. The reported administrative and state court decisions in New Jersey which involve a domicile dispute within the public school context all utilize an analysis which takes into account this exact type of indicia of domicile in the form of licenses, correspondence, registration forms, tax and other legal forms and documents which support the respective contentions of the parties. Similarly, in this case the court has before it, Petitioner's asbestos removal certifications from New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Louisiana and Ohio, all of which have uniformly identified 207 Curtis Avenue, Point Pleasant Beach as Petitioner's permanent mailing address (P10, P11, P30) as well as his monthly E-Z pass billing statements from New York State Throughway Authority (P12). Petitioner's 1996 and 1997 W-2 earnings summaries set forth his address and are in fact received by Petitioner at Point Pleasant Beach (P16, P17). [He} receives his monthly automobile lease statement, his monthly utilities billing statements and his monthly disability insurance premium notices and bills at Point Pleasant Beach [P19–P22]. Significantly, as recently as May 1998 and continuing through the present, Petitioner has received all correspondence from the Board and the Point Pleasant Beach School District at 207 Curtis Avenue, notwithstanding the Board's ongoing contention that [he] and his sons are not actually living there. (Petitioner's Exceptions at pp. 3-4)

Petitioner's exceptions go on to reiterate his testimony before the ALJ regarding the temporary flooding of the Curtis Avenue home, averring, inter alia, that the family members had, for the most part, been able to inhabit several of the living portions of the house and recounting his efforts to repair or replace the furnace which had suffered water damage. As to this, petitioner argues that although counsel for respondent suggested his open skepticism of the "furnace problem" at the hearing, virtually no evidence was offered to contradict petitioner's testimony in this regard and, in fact, petitioner's account was fully corroborated by the testimony of C.M., his fiancée and the subpoenaed witness of respondent. Petitioner further avers

> Moreover, the mere fact that the ALJ may have believed that either [he] or C.M. were "incredible" with regard to some of the details of their description of the facts surrounding the construction of C. M.'s home or the problems with [his] furnace, this type of bare skepticism, with no other factual support or evidential basis in the record cannot support the legal conclusion that Petitioners were not domiciled within Point Pleasant Beach during the 1997-1998 school year. (Id. at p. 6)

Petitioner's exceptions recite at length arguments presented to the ALJ in his post-hearing brief which were considered by the ALJ in rendering the initial decision, and therefore, shall not be repeated herein. Petitioner does add, however, that it is not within the province or authority of the ALJ to second guess the manner in which he and C.M. have structured their personal relationship, averring that the plain fact is that there is no contradiction in the record upon which to discount their testimony regarding his domicile and that of his sons in the instant matter. (Id. at p. 15) Petitioner further argues, inter alia, that > Upon reviewing the nature and quality of the proofs in the record, it should be immediately apparent that [he] has sustained the burden of proof and has adequately demonstrated his domicile in Point Pleasant Beach. In fact, even the temporary flooding and heating problem in the Point Pleasant home does not rise to the level of a change in domicile since there is absolutely no testimony that anyone in [his] family ever intended for a single day not to return to Point Pleasant Beach or to transfer their permanent home to C.M.'s house in Brick. This testimony was completely undisputed by the Respondent, and was not even addressed by a single witness for Respondent. (Id. at p. 17)

Lastly, petitioner supports the ALJ's findings and conclusions that he sustained the burden of proof for domicile in Point Pleasant Beach during the 1998-1999 school year. However, he goes on to argue that "[t]here is no basis in this case to disbelieve the proofs presented by Petitioners regarding their domicile during the 1997-1998 school year or upon which to find factual and/or legal support for assessing a tuition obligation against [them] for any portions of the [school years in dispute]. (Id. at p.17)

Respondent is fully supportive of the those portions of the initial decision in which the ALJ dismisses the petition and orders petitioner to pay $37,338.16 for tuition for the 1997-1998 school year. It excepts, however, to the ALJ's failure to address the issue of interest and the award of attorney fees and his determination that because of petitioner's return to domicile in the District his children may continue in the Point Pleasant Beach school system.

Respondent avers that the ALJ correctly concluded in his opinion and decision that the relevant statute defining the proceeding in the instant matter is N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 et seq. which imposes on petitioner the burden of proof by a preponderance of the evidence to establish that the F.P.'s children are residents of the Point Pleasant Beach School District.[1] Respondent also contends the ALJ correctly concluded that in 1997 the family unit defined as F.P. and C.M. had completed construction and took occupancy of a home in Brick Township to house the entirety of the family unit. It also avers, inter alia, that the ALJ correctly describes on page 4 of the initial decision the four-bedroom, two car garage home as being designed to house the entire family unit of petitioner and C.M. and that, given their testimony, they reasonably intended to be domiciled with all their children in the Brick Township home constructed by C.M. Respondent further avers, inter alia, that the ALJ accurately concluded that petitioner's testimony that he intended to be domiciled in Point Pleasant Beach was not credible, nor was C.M. in large portions of her testimony. Regarding the issue of petitioner's credibility, respondent emphasizes that F.P. intentionally misrepresented facts when, in sworn documents submitted to the Superior Court of New Jersey Chancery Division, petitioner claimed he lived in Brick, while simultaneously taking an inconsistent position in these proceedings that he and his two sons were domiciliaries of Point Pleasant Beach.

[1] The Commissioner notes for the record that the ALJ correctly determined that N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)2 is the statutory provision applicable in the instant matter and that the provision requires proof of domicile, not residency.

Respondent flatly rejects the ALJ's conclusion that petitioner changed his domicile back to Point Pleasant Beach by the start of the 1998-1999 school year, contending that the only factual basis for that conclusion was that Ms. Pritchard (one of respondent's witnesses) testified that petitioner was seen more often at the Point Pleasant Beach home after the Board took action against petitioner and that in October 1998, the heating system was repaired. Of this, respondent states:

> It is respectfully submitted that given the burden [of] proof upon the petitioner under the statutory criteria and given the Court's conclusion that the petitioner and his [fiancée's] testimony were not credible and that the admissions by FP and CM that they had lied to both the Superior Court Chancery Division and this Court that such limited factual conclusion by [the ALJ] was inadequate to meet the petitioner's burden of proof that he once again switched back the domicile from Brick Township to Point Pleasant Beach. The mere fact that once litigation is initiated, that someone tries to create an appearance for purposes of litigation, is not sufficient credible evidence to cause a major change of domicile of this family unit from the large recently constructed home in Brick Township to a small cape cod, totally inadequate for the family unit. Furthermore, any ambiguous inferences to be drawn from the facts should be resolved in favor of the Board of Education given the lack of credibility and truthfulness of this [petitioner's] testimony as determined by [the ALJ].
> [Respondent] contends that nothing has changed with respect to the Brick Township residence. The home has not been sold or that FP and CM are not engaged to be married and living together as they were during the 1997-1998 school year. The absence of a finding of credible evidence found by the Court except in a short statement found on the bottom of page 8 of his report fails to meet the burden of proof required of the petitioner. (Respondent's Exceptions at p. 4)

Given the above, respondent argues that the sum for tuition owing to the Board should be recalculated and petitioner should immediately remove his children from the Point Pleasant Beach School District, or, if they are to remain to the end of the school year, the Commissioner should construct a per diem charge.

COMMISSIONER'S DETERMINATION

Upon careful and thorough consideration of the record before him, which it is noted does not include a transcript of the proceedings in the instant matter, the Commissioner concludes that the ALJ properly analyzed the law of domicile to mean

> "Domicile" is defined as "1. A residence; a home 2. One's legal residence." Domicile has been described as "the place of [a person's] abode where he has the present intention of remaining and to which, if absent, he intends to return." Mercadante v. City of Paterson, 111 N.J. Super. 35, 39 (Ch. Div. 1970), aff'd, 58 N.J. 112 (1971). "A person may have several residences or places of abode. However, he can only have one domicile at one time." Collins v. Yancey, 55 N.J. Super. 514, 520 (Law Div. 1959). Between residences, factors to identify the domicile include: (1) the physical characteristics of each residence, (2) the time spent and things done in each residence, (3) other persons found in each residence, (4) the person's mental attitude about each residence, and (5) whether, when absent, the person has the intention to return. Mercadante, supra, at 39-40. Acts, statements and documents may be relevant in determining domicile. (Initial Decision at p. 11)

As indicated above and by the Courts in matters such as Matter of Unanue, 225 N.J. Super. 362 *(Law Div. 1991)* and Kurilla v. Roth, 132 N.J.L. 213, 215, 38 *A.*2d 862 (Sup. Ct. 1944), domicile, in a strict legal sense," is the place where [a person] has his true, fixed, permanent home and principal establishment, and to which whenever he is absent, he has the intention of returning, and from which he has no present intention of moving." Domicile is thus intrinsically identified with the concept of home. As stated by the Unanue court, "identification of domicile with the concept of home continues to have vitality in New Jersey '[h]ome is the place where a person dwells and which is the center of his domestic, social and civil life.'" (Unanue, supra at 374) Moreover, the concepts of home and domicile "mean more than physical residence. They also embody the subject's objective and subjective relationship to that residence." (Id. at 375)

Establishing a domicile involves an act of volition, i.e., a person has the right to choose his own domicile; moreover, a person's motive in doing so is immaterial "so long as the necessary ingredients for establisment of the new domicil are present." Lyon v. Glaser, 60 N.J. 259, 264, 288; Unanue, supra at 375.

Central to the issue of determining true domicile, particularly when multiple residences are involved in the dispute, is the concept of "indicia of domicile." The Unanue Court concluded "[it] is clear that a choice of domicile by a person, irrespective of his motive, will be honored by the court, provided there are sufficient objective indicia, by way of proofs, supporting the actual existence of that domicile. Thus, a person may not arbitrarily designate a given residence as his domicile. It is necessary that requisite subjective intent be present since domicile is 'very much a matter of the mind – of intention.'" (Unanue, supra at 376, citing Lyon, supra) Such indicia oftentimes are statements relative to domicile in such documents as tax returns, wills, trusts, or other formal documents and statements made by an individual to others as to his/her domicile. The Unanue decision indicates that such recitals are evidential of actual domicile but the Court concluded, they are not at all conclusive, rather "[t]hey are of value evidentially to the extent that they are not intended to deceive and other proofs support such domicile." (Id. at 377)

As correctly noted by the ALJ, a change in domicile is a matter of intention, i.e., "[a] change of domicile is effected if a person actually moves to a new abode intending to remain there for an indefinite period of time and establishing it as a place of fixed present domicile, notwithstanding that he entertains merely a possibility, or floating intention, of returning to his former domicile at some later time." (Unanue, supra at 378, citations omitted)

The following passage from Lyon, supra, synthesizes well the concurrence of elements referenced above which one has to consider when determining which particular residence is a person's true domicile.

> Domicil is very much a matter of the mind - of intention. One may be acquired, or changed to a new one, when there is a concurrence of certain elements, i.e., an actual and physical taking up of an abode in a particular State, accompanied by an intention to make his home there permanently or at least indefinitely, and to abandon his old domicil. A person has the right to choose his own domicil, and his motive in doing so is immaterial. A very short period of residence in a given place may be sufficient to show domicil, but mere residence, regardless of its length, is not sufficient. It has been said that concurrence, even for a moment, of physical presence at a dwelling place with the intention of making it a permanent abode, effects the change of domicil. And once established, the domicil continues until a new one is found to have been acquired through an application of the same tests. (Lyon, supra at 264)

The U*nanue* court identified three elements which must be considered when trying to ascertain if a change of domicile has occurred,

> 1) whether there had been an actual and physical taking up of an abode in a particular state;
> 2) whether the subject had an intention to make his home there permanently or at least indefinitely; and
> 3) whether the subject had an intention to abandon his old domicile. (Unanue, supra at 376)

One must evaluate all of the facts and circumstances of the case to determine the place in which there is the necessary concurrence of physical presence and an intention to make that place one's home. (Id., citations omitted) Furthermore, if there are sufficient objective proofs brought to the record to support the actual existence of domicile, a person's choice of domicile must be honored, even when the person has multiple residences. (Id.)

After a thorough and comprehensive review of the law on domicile and the record before him, the Commissioner concludes that the arguments advanced by petitioner are insufficient to disturb the findings and conclusions relative to domicile for the 1997-1998 school year reached by the ALJ, who as the trier of fact had the opportunity to assess firsthand the credibility of the witnesses as to the proofs offered by petitioner that his intention was to retain his residence in Point Pleasant Beach as his choice of domicile. While petitioner offers numerous exhibits such as licenses, tax returns, billing, insurance, etc., as evidence that the Point Pleasant Beach residence continued to be his domicile, such documents unto themselves are not conclusive of domicile unless there are also sufficient objective proofs to bear out his claim, a burden which the ALJ concluded he failed to carry. That F.P. and his sons continued to be, on occasion, at the Point Pleasant Beach residence does not serve to render erroneous the ALJ's conclusion, upon consideration of all the facts, circumstances and testimony presented to him, that petitioner's domicile was the Brick Township residence during the 1997-1998 school year. That petitioner did not entirely abandon the Point Pleasant Beach residence does not unto itself, compel a conclusion that he retained it as his domicile. Such a conclusion must be based on the totality of the evidence presented, because, as stated above, a determination of domicile is very much a matter of mind and intention, intrinsically identified with the concept of home, the place which is the center of a person's life. Lyon, supra; Unanue, supra; Mercadante, supra.

The Commissioner further finds and concludes that respondent's arguments set forth above excepting to the ALJ's determination that petitioner was domiciled in Point Pleasant Beach for the 1998-1999 school year are persuasive. On page 8 of the initial decision, the ALJ finds

> By the start of the 1998-99 school year, F.P. was faced with the BOE's determination and claim for tuition and this case had been filed in the OAL. Given these circumstances, it is probable that, to avoid liability on the BOE's claim for tuition, etc. F.P., S.P. and N.P. would have returned to domicile in the Point Pleasant House. This is corroborated by Ms. Pritchard's testimony that, after the BOE took action relative to S.P.'s and N.P.'s domicile, petitioners were around the Point Pleasant home more often and corroborated by the repair of the heating system there in October 1998. Given these circumstances, during the 1998-99 school year, it is probable that F.P. and the children were domiciled in the Point Pleasant house and F.P. would have no liability for tuition for that year. (Initial Decision at p. 8)

Upon consideration of these findings and conclusions of the ALJ, the Commissioner determines that insufficient factfinding has been reached by the ALJ to substantiate the conclusion that petitioner changed his domicile back to Point Pleasant Beach. Rather, the findings and conclusions appear to be primarily speculative in nature, and so insufficient in the absence of further indicia to meet the established tests in law discussed above. The Commissioner, therefore, remands the matter to the Office of Administrative Law for further factfinding on this issue and to calculate any tuition owing for 1998-1999 in the event that petitioner, upon further factfinding, is not found to be domiciled in Point Pleasant Beach for the 1998-1999 school year. Board of Education of the Township of Cranford v. A. McG. and L McG., 95 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 74, aff'd 96 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 140, rev'd and remanded, App. Div., February 10, 1998, A-4742-95T3, slip opinion at pp. 8-10. Furthermore, in examining the order for tuition payment for the 1997-1998 school year and the bases for the amounts calculated, it is noted that petitioner is being assessed the costs for the provision of special education and related services for his son, N.P. In light of the fact that under the provisions of the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), 20 U.S.C. §§1400 et seq., disabled students are entitled to a free appropriate public education (FAPE), the Commissioner, therefore, also directs that the calculation for N.P.'s tuition for the 1997-1998 school year be reexamined and that any tuition which may, on remand, be found owing for N.P. for the 1998-1999 school year be calculated, taking into consideration what impact, if any, the FAPE provisions of IDEA have in determining the amount petitioner must pay to the Point Pleasant Beach Board of Education.

Lastly, the Commissioner rejects respondent's position that interest must be awarded in this matter. Although the ruling herein does not support petitioner's claim that his choice of domicile was the Point Pleasant Beach residence and, notwithstanding petitioner's and C.M.'s lack of credibility relative to this claim during the hearing proceedings, the record does not demonstrate that F.P. acted in bad faith in his belief that Point Pleasant Beach was his domicile or that his actions were taken in deliberate violation of statute or law. N.J.A.C 6:24-

1.16 (c)1 The IEP (Exhibit P-1) developed for his son, N.P., on January 15, 1998 states on page 3 that the family was living between two residences. It also states that the information for that particular portion of the IEP was formulated for N.P.'s April 16, 1997 IEP Annual Review. Thus, there does not appear to have been an intent of subterfuge on petitioner's part to hide information about dual residence from school personnel at least as early as the spring of 1997. Likewise, the Commissioner rejects respondent's arguments that he has the jurisdiction and legal authority to grant legal fees in this matter. The ALJ accurately sets forth the basis for such a conclusion on pages 11 and 12 of the initial decision. See also Balsy v. North Hunterdon Regional High School, 117 N.J. 434, 442-443 (1990) and State, Department of Environmental Protection v. Ventron Corp., 94 N.J. 473 (1983).

Accordingly, the Commissioner affirms in part and rejects in part the initial decision issued by the OAL and, for the reasons set forth above, he modifies in part the order for payment of tuition. [2]

IT IS SO ORDERED.

SYNOPSIS

Board contended that petitioning physical education teacher, who had a petition for benefits under N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1 before the Commissioner which had been held in abeyance pending his pursuit of remedies under the Workers' Compensation Act, had by virtue of his settlement of the Workers' Compensation matter (Section 20 settlement – N.J.S.A. 34:15-20), waived his right to any claim for benefits under that provision or, alternatively, that the Commissioner lacked jurisdiction to hear such appeal.

ALJ in a letter decision denied Board's application for summary decision, finding that a settlement under N.J.S.A. 34:15-20 does not, without more, dispose of claims arising under separate enactments. ALJ further concluded that the proceedings before the Compensation Court clearly revealed that the question of sick leave was specifically reserved by petitioner, and such reservation was not objected to by the Board. Board filed for interlocutory review of such determination.

Assistant Commissioner reversed the order of the ALJ and granted summary decision to the Board, concluding that under the circumstances herein, the Commissioner should refrain from exercising jurisdiction over petitioner's claim for benefits. Assistant Commissioner determined that although it was conceded that petitioner's accident occurred in the course of his employment, his entitlement to relief pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1 was dependent upon resolution of the contested issue as to whether such accident was the "cause" of his injury. The Division of Workers' Compensation, not the Commissioner of Education, is the forum with the expertise to decide this issue. (Hackensack; Hinfey) Having chosen to forego such determination in the forum recognized as possessing "expertise" in this area, petitioner could not be allowed to come before the Commissioner seeking a more favorable outcome. Assistant Commissioner dismissed the Petition of Appeal.

RESPONDENT.	:

For Petitioner: Barbara E. Riefberg, Esq., (Baron & Riefberg)

For the Board: James F. Schwerin, Esq., (Carroll, Weiss & Josephson)

This interim matter comes before the Commissioner by way of a motion for interlocutory review of the appended letter of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ), denying the Board's application for summary decision which was based on its contention that, by virtue of his entering into a Section 20 settlement on his workers' compensation claim, petitioner waived adjudication of his appeal, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1, before the Commissioner or, alternatively, the Commissioner lacks jurisdiction to hear such appeal. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:4-34, the hearing of the matter has been delegated to the Assistant Commissioner.

In support of its motion here the Board argues that petitioner, who has a petition for benefits under N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1 before the Commissioner which has been held in abeyance pending his pursuit of remedies under the Workers' Compensation Act, has, by virtue of his settlement of the Workers' Compensation matter, waived his right to any claim for benefits under this provision. Specifically, it posits that the parties agreed to settle the workers' compensation claim pursuant to N.J.S.A. 34:15-20 ("Section 20"), which specifies

> In case of a dispute over or failure to agree upon a claim for compensation between employer and employee...when it shall appear that the issue or issues involve the question of...causal relationship...and the petitioner and respondent are desirous of entering into a lump-sum settlement of the controversy, a judge of compensation may...enter an order approving settlement. Such settlement...shall be a complete surrender of any right to compensation or other benefits arising out of such claim under the statute....(emphasis in text) (Board's Letter in Support of Interlocutory Review at p. 2)

Notwithstanding the clear language of this statutory provision, the Board advances, the ALJ erroneously found that counsel for petitioner's statement on the record before the Workers' Compensation judge that he reserved his client's claim for benefits under N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1, along with the Board's failure to object to such an arrangement, effectively precluded a waiver of this claim. (Id. at pp. 2-3) The Board cites the Commissioner's decision in Sweet v. Board of Education of Jackson, 96 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 471, for the proposition that benefits sought pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1 necessarily arise out of a workers' compensation claim and it, therefore, contends the Section 20 settlement, on its face, bars petitioner from seeking compensation under this education provision. (Board's Letter in Support of Interlocutory Review at p. 4)

Irrespective of the waiver issue, the Board argues that the within ALJ fully ignored a similarly pressing question here, that of the Commissioner's jurisdiction to adjudicate a claim for benefits under N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1, when there has been no workers' compensation decision establishing petitioner's right to benefits under that Act. In this regard, it advances that the Commissioner has historically declined jurisdiction over petitions under such circumstances.[1]

[1]It notes that limited exceptions to this general rule exist "where the time lost from work is too short to be cognizable under the Act, or where no petition is filed with the Division for that reason. See Dorfman v. Board of Education of Neptune, 97 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 512, 517, citing to Hern v. Board of Education of Union City, App.

In support of this contention, it cites Basile v. Board of Education of Roselle Park, 97 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 429, 431 wherein the ALJ, relying on the precedent established by Forgash v. Lower Camden County School, 208 N.J. Super. 461 (App. Div. 1985) that "N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1 contemplates a prior determination of a compensable injury by the compensation court before consideration by the commissioner of the eligibility for the additional benefits provided by statute," (Id. at 467) concluded

> ...since the compensation court is the only court with the expertise to determine whether an injury is work related under the workers' compensation statutes, a proceeding pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1 regarding sick leave may not be used to supersede the function of the compensation court. Id. at 431-32.
> (Board's Letter in Support of Interlocutory Review at p. 6)

Consequently, the Board contends that, although a petition of appeal to the Commissioner seeking benefits pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1 should be filed prior to resolution of the compensability issue by Workers' Compensation, it cannot be adjudicated by the Commissioner unless and until a determination on this issue has been made by that Division. (Id.) In this matter, the Board argues, even though petitioner had an opportunity to obtain the necessary ruling, he failed to do so. (Id.) The Board further charges that the ALJ's decision incorrectly states that it admitted compensability. To the contrary, the Board argues, this very issue was extensively addressed in its brief before the ALJ wherein it argued "that while the accident may have occurred during the course of employment, it was the Board's contention that the injury complained of was pre-existing" and, therefore, a legitimate dispute existed as to whether this particular accident was the cause of petitioner's injury. (Id.) Moreover, it advances, the record amply demonstrates that the Compensation Judge, while accepting the parties' settlement

Div. Dkt. No. A-339-91T3 (unpublished, October 23, 1992) [,]" which, it asserts, is inapplicable in the instant matter. (Board's Letter in Support of Interlocutory Review at p. 3) agreement, clearly recognized that no decision was being made with respect to compensability when he stated

> This matter comes before the Court for an application for an order Approving Settlement for Dismissal under Section 20 of the Act, it being represented to the court if this matter were tried to conclusion that serious issues would arise regarding petitioner's entitlement to an award; more specifically, substantial issues regarding liability as well as causal relationship...T11:21-12:4. (Id. at pp. 6-7)

It further argues that whether or not the Board objected to petitioner's attempt to reserve his education action at the workers' compensation hearing, which the within ALJ viewed as significant in his decision, is of no moment here as "subject matter jurisdiction cannot be conferred by agreement of the parties." (Board's Letter in Support of Interlocutory Review at p. 3)

The Board, therefore, urges that the Commissioner grant its request for interlocutory review here "especially in light of the hearing involving medical causation issues that will be necessary should it not be granted, as well as the significant jurisdictional issue which [it] believe[s] has been avoided in [the ALJ's] letter opinion." (Board's Letter in Support of Interlocutory Review at p. 2)

In opposition to the Board's within motion, petitioner argues that the ALJ's decision was in all ways correct and should not be reviewed on an interlocutory basis by the Commissioner.[2, 3] Petitioner asserts that, contrary to the contention of the Board, a reasoned

[2]Petitioner's opposition papers initially assert that the Board's request for interlocutory review is untimely filed, having been submitted outside the time specified by N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.10(b) and urges such request should, therefore, be rejected. By letter dated March 31, 1999, from Assistant Commissioner Douglas B. Groff, the Commissioner's delegate pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:4-34, the parties were advised that the Commissioner would consider the request for interlocutory review, notwithstanding that the Board's request was filed beyond the 5-day regulatory timeframe as, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.10(h), he found that the reason for the submission's untimeliness was caused by honest mistake, accident, or a cause compatible with due diligence. This letter additionally directed the Board to submit its Brief in Support of Summary Decision which was referenced in its submission here but not included in the record.

reading of N.J.S.A. 34:15-20 confirms that the only rights he relinquished by entering into a Section 20 settlement were those which arose under the workers' compensation statutes, and such settlement does not operate to automatically surrender his entitlements under other statutory provisions. He additionally maintains that the record in this matter confirms that his reservation of his rights pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1, "was clearly placed upon the record, in open Court, in front of the Workers' Compensation Judge." (Petitioner's Letter in Opposition to Interlocutory Review, at p. 1) Also, of particular import, petitioner avows, is the fact that in its Answer to the workers' compensation petition, and during the course of the settlement proceedings in that forum, the Board specifically "admitted that the accident arose out of and in the course of Petitioner's employment." (Id. at pp. 1-2) As such, he proffers, compensability here is undisputed by the parties and the expertise of a Workers' Compensation Judge to make such determination is unnecessary. Petitioner contends that to allow the Board to now challenge the very issue it previously conceded is "grossly unfair" and it should be "collaterally estopped" from doing so. (Id. at p. 2)

Finally, petitioner advances that interlocutory review in this case is unwarranted as, subsequent to the adjudication of the limited issue remaining here, the Board will have an opportunity to file exceptions to any initial decision of the ALJ if it disagrees with his recommendations. (Id.)

Upon review and consideration of the record in this matter,[4] the Assistant Commissioner reverses the order of the ALJ and grants summary decision to the Board as he concludes that, under the circumstances existing here, he should refrain from exercising jurisdiction over petitioner's claim for benefits pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1, and dismiss his Petition of Appeal.

Initially, it is observed, N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1 provides:

> a. Whenever any employee, entitled to sick leave under this chapter, is absent from his post of duty as a result of a personal injury caused by an accident arising out of and in the course of his employment, his employer shall pay to such employee the full salary or wages for the period of such absence for up to one calendar year without having such absence charged to the annual sick leave of the accumulated sick leave provided in sections N.J.S. 18A:30-2 and 18A:30-3. Salary or wage payments provided in this section shall be made for absence during the waiting period and during the period the employee received or was eligible to receive a temporary disability benefit under chapter 15 of Title 34, Labor and Workmens' Compensation, of the Revised Statutes. Any amount of salary or wages paid or payable to the employee pursuant to this section shall be reduced by the amount of any workmens' compensation award made for temporary disability.

It is evident that, pursuant to this provision, the Commissioner is empowered to direct the payment of benefits to petitioners who have experienced personal injury caused by an accident arising out of and in the course of their employment. It is equally clear, as a result of decisions of the Court and the State Board, that where petitioner has also made a claim under the Workers' Compensation Act, and the facts existing in the matter indicate that there is a question or dispute as to whether an injury "arose out of and in the course of employment," such a determination of causal connection is controlled by the standards established under the Workers' Compensation Act, (see Theodore v. Dover Bd. of Ed., 183 N.J. Super. 407 (App. Div. 1982), and the Commissioner should defer exercising his jurisdiction pending a determination of that issue by the Division of Workers' Compensation. (Amos v. Board of Education of the Borough of Red Bank, decided by the State Board, February 3, 1988; Tompkins v. Board of Education of the Township of Hamilton, decided by the State Board, December 2, 1987, see City of Hackensack v. Winner, 82 N.J. 1 (1980); Forgash v. Lower Camden County School, 208 N.J. Super. 461 (App.

Div. 1985). As recognized by the Court in Basile v. Borough of Roselle Park, 97 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 429, 432, citing Forgash

> [T]he Commissioner  may not utilize the sick leave benefits statute to supplant the function of the compensation court. Forgash, 208 N.J. Super. at 467. Here, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 34:15-49, the Division of Workers' Compensation has exclusive original jurisdiction over this matter as it involves a work related injury. The express function of N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1 is to complement workers' compensation benefits by allowing the injured party to continue to receive his or her salary and not lose sick leave time due to compensable work related injuries. Ibid. at 466. By its terms, N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1 contemplates a prior decision by the compensation court before the additional sick leave benefits can be awarded. Ibid. Thus, the Commissioner cannot exercise jurisdiction in this case until the compensation court has rendered a final determination. To do otherwise would result in the Commissioner supplanting the function of the compensation court.

In the instant matter, the record reflects that petitioner, by entering into a Section 20 settlement of his workers' compensation claim, knowingly and willingly chose to forego an opportunity for a full trial to determine the causal relationship of his accident to his claim that he suffered a work related injury and, therefore, whether such injury did, indeed, "arise out of and in the course of his employment," in that forum. (T-6, L. 6-12; T-8, L. 1-8) The record further reflects the following discourse with respect to the nature and purpose of such a settlement

> THE COURT: [T]his matter is before me for what is known as an Order Approving Settlement with Dismissal under Section 20. There's nothing mysterious about the word Section 20. Section 20 is just a number in the Statute that permits this type -- or provides for this type of a settlement when there are substantial issues as to whether or not, if this matter went to trial, you would be in a position to prove your case. And instead of taking the chance you may not prevail, you're asking the Court to approve of a settlement in the amount of $6,500.
>
> Do you understand that?
> THE WITNESS: Yes, I do. (T-9, L. 16-25; T-10, L. 1-4)

The Assistant Commissioner finds and determines the circumstances here establish that, although it is conceded that petitioner's accident occurred in the course of his employment, his entitlement to relief pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1 is dependent upon resolution of the contested issue as to whether such accident was the "cause" of his injury. The Division of Workers' Compensation, not the Commissioner of Education, is the forum with the expertise to decide this issue. See Hackensack v. Winner, supra; Hinfey v. Matawan Regional Board of Education, 77 N.J. 514 (1978). Having chosen to forego such determination in the forum recognized as possessing "expertise" in this area, petitioner cannot be allowed to come before the Commissioner, essentially forum shopping, seeking to find a jurisdiction which may, by virtue of its lack of expertise in such matters, reach a conclusion on this issue which provides him a more favorable outcome. Additionally, as the question of whether an injury arose out of and in the course of employment, within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1, is controlled by the standards established under the Workers' Compensation Act (Theodore, supra), consideration of petitioner's appeal here would require the Commissioner to construe and apply statutory provisions outside of the scope of his jurisdiction.

The Assistant Commissioner does not find this outcome to be altered by petitioner's claim that "compensability" was admitted by the Board. As determined by the New Jersey Supreme Court in K*ristiansen v. Morgan*, 153 N.J. 298 (1998)

> The Act provides that "[t]he Division of Workers' Compensation shall have the exclusive original jurisdiction of all claims for workers' compensation benefits." N.J.S.A. 34:15-49. Regardless of whether the employer admits or denies the compensability of an accident, the Division is the forum best suited to decide whether the accident falls within the coverage formula of the Act. The Legislature recognized that the Division, through the Judges of Compensation, is highly qualified to decide disputed factual and legal contentions related to whether an accident is compensable. (emphasis added) (153 N.J. at 313)

Moreover, the within record amply demonstrates that, notwithstanding the nomenclature utilized by the Board in its so-called admissions, "compensability," within the intendment of the Workers' Compensation statutes, is clearly at issue herein. Under these circumstances, the appropriate course for the Commissioner of Education is to refrain from exercising his jurisdiction over petitioner's claim and to dismiss the instant Petition of Appeal. (See Angela Rotella-Suarez v. Board of Education of the Town of West New York, decided by the State Board December 3, 1997.)[5]

Accordingly, the recommended order of the OAL is reversed. Summary decision is hereby granted to the Board and the instant Petition of Appeal is dismissed.[6]

IT IS SO ORDERED.

[5]The Assistant Commissioner's determination herein does not reach to the question of whether petitioner's settlement of his workers' compensation matter, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 34:15-20, forecloses his claims in other forums, as such a determination, of necessity, requires an interpretation and application of this Workers' Compensation statute, which is clearly outside the jurisdictional purview of the Commissioner of Education and is not necessary to the resolution of this matter.

[6] This decision, as the Commissioner's final determination in the instant matter, may be appealed to the State Board of Education pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-27 et seq. and N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.1 et seq., within 30 days of its filing. Decision on motion by the Commissioner of Education, April 13, 1999

For the Petitioner-Appellant, Baron & Riefberg (Barbara E. Riefberg, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Respondent, Carroll, Weiss & Josephson (James F. Schwerin, Esq., of Counsel)

In January 1997, Patsy N. Marino, Jr. (hereinafter "petitioner") filed a petition of appeal with the Commissioner of Education seeking sick leave benefits under N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1 from the Board of Education of the Township of Willingboro (hereinafter "Board") for the period from September 1 through November 11, 1996.[1] The case was Whenever any employee, entitled to sick leave under this chapter, is absent from his post of duty as a result of a personal injury caused by an accident arising out of and in the course of his employment, his employer shall pay to such employee the full salary or wages for the period of such absence for up to one calendar year without having such absence charged to the annual sick leave or the accumulated sick leave provided in N.J.S. 18A:30-2 and 18A:30-3. placed in abeyance while the petitioner pursued his remedies under the Workers' Compensation Act. The petitioner and the Board ultimately agreed to settle petitioner's workers' compensation claim for $6,500 pursuant to N.J.S.A. 34:15-20.[2] During the proceedings for approval of the proposed settlement in the Division of Workers' Compensation, counsel for the petitioner clearly indicated that, in settling the workers' compensation claim, the petitioner was not waiving any entitlement he might have to sick leave benefits under N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1.

The Board thereafter filed a motion for summary decision with the administrative law judge ("ALJ") assigned to hear petitioner's sick leave claim, contending that the petitioner, by agreeing to settle his workers' compensation claim, had waived any entitlement he might have had to additional relief under N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1. In the alternative, the Board argued that, as a result of the settlement, the Commissioner lacked jurisdiction to hear the petitioner's school law claim.

On March 9, 1999, the ALJ rejected the Board's arguments, finding that it had interpreted N.J.S.A. 34:15-20 of the Workers' Compensation Act too broadly. The ALJ concluded that:

> ...[A] settlement under that section does not, without more, dispose of claims arising under separate enactments. Primary jurisdiction to hear compensation matters rests with the Division of Workers' Compensation and the > temporary disability benefit under chapter 15 of Title 34, Labor and Workmen's Compensation, of the Revised Statutes. Any amount of salary or wages paid or payable to the employee pursuant to this section shall be reduced by the amount of any workmen's compensation award made for temporary disability.

[2] N.J.S.A. 34:15-20 provides, in pertinent part, that a settlement of a workers' compensation claim "shall have the force and effect of a dismissal of the claim petition and shall be final and conclusive upon the employee and the employee's dependents, and shall be a complete surrender of any right to compensation or other benefits arising out of such claim under the statute."

> Commissioner should defer, as he has done. Nevertheless, the proceedings before the Compensation Court clearly reveal that the question of sick leave was reserved for hearing before the Commissioner. [Schwerin cert. Exh. A.] The Board cannot accede to such an arrangement and then argue here that the claim should have been handled there.
>
> The instant matter could have been resolved before a Judge of Compensation and that might have been the preferred course, see, Basile v. Board of Education of Roselle Park, 97 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 429. However, the Commissioner retains jurisdiction over disputes arising out of N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1, see, Vemeret v. Elizabeth City Board of Educ., 95 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 134, and where the parties reserve the issue, it would be improper to close off this forum.

Initial Decision, slip op. at 2.

On April 13, 1999, an Assistant Commissioner, acting on a request for interlocutory review filed by the Board, reversed the ALJ's decision and granted summary decision to the Board.[3] The Assistant Commissioner found that the petitioner, by settling his workers' compensation claim, had "knowingly and willingly chose[n] to forego an opportunity for a full trial to determine the causal relationship of his accident to his claim that he suffered a work related injury and, therefore, whether such injury did, indeed, 'arise out of and in the course of his employment,' in that forum." Assistant Commissioner's Decision, slip op. at 7. The Assistant Commissioner observed that, although it was conceded that petitioner's accident had occurred in the course of his employment, his entitlement to relief under N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1 was dependent upon determination of whether such accident was the cause of his injury and that the Division of Workers' Compensation, not the Commissioner of Education, was the forum with the expertise to decide that issue.

[3] N.J.S.A. 18A:4-33 authorizes the Commissioner to "designate an assistant commissioner as deputy commissioner with full power to act in his place and stead during any absence or inability of the commissioner and at such other times as the commissioner may designate." Such authority expressly includes assignment by the Commissioner of the "hearing and determination of controversies and disputes which may arise under the school laws...." N.J.S.A. 18A:4-34.

Stressing that the question of whether an injury arose out of and in the course of employment within the meaning of that statute was controlled by the standards established under the Workers' Compensation Act, the Assistant Commissioner pointed out that consideration of petitioner's appeal would require the Commissioner to construe and apply statutory provisions outside the scope of his jurisdiction. He concluded that the appropriate course would be to refrain from exercising jurisdiction over the petitioner's claim and to dismiss the petition.

The petitioner filed the instant appeal to the State Board.

After a careful review of the record, we reverse the decision of the Assistant Commissioner and remand this matter for such proceedings as are necessary to determine petitioner's claim. Like the ALJ, we conclude that settlement of the petitioner's workers' compensation claim did not preclude him from continuing to pursue his claim for sick leave benefits under N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1.

It is true, as pointed out by the Assistant Commissioner, that a determination with regard to whether an injury arose "out of and in the course of" employment within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1 is controlled by the standards established under the Workers' Compensation Act. It is also true that in those instances in which entitlement to relief under N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1 is dependent upon whether the injury arose out of and in the course of employment within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 34:15-7 of the Worker's Compensation Act, the Commissioner should refrain from exercising his jurisdiction pending a determination of that issue by the Division of Workers' Compensation.

Verneret, supra. However, the Commissioner does not lack the jurisdiction to make such a determination himself. Indeed, the Appellate Division has held that, under appropriate circumstances, the Commissioner has "original exclusive jurisdiction" to decide a claim for benefits under N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1 despite the need to determine in the first instance whether the claim arose out of and in the course of the staff member's employment. Hern v. Board of Education of the City of Union City, Docket #A-339-91T3 (App. Div. 1992).

In Hern, a teacher who had not filed a claim for workers' compensation benefits filed a petition with the Commissioner of Education seeking sick leave benefits under N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1. The State Board affirmed the Commissioner's determination to dismiss the petition, agreeing that the Commissioner did not have jurisdiction to render such a decision without a prior determination by the Division of Workers' Compensation with regard to whether the illness or injury was work-related. The Appellate Division reversed. The Court, observing that a claim for workers' compensation benefits would have been dismissed in this instance for failure to satisfy the seven-day waiting period required by the Workers' Compensation Act, could "perceive no valid reason to require petitioner to engage in a futile gesture or to manufacture an unfounded workers' compensation claim." Hern, supra, slip op. at 4. Under such circumstances, the court concluded that the Commissioner of Education had "original exclusive jurisdiction" to decide the teacher's request for benefits under N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1, including a determination as to whether the claim arose out of and in the course of his employment.

We stress, in addition, that "[t]he settlement of litigation ranks high in our public policy." Nolan v. Lee Ho, 120 N.J. 465 (1990), quoting Jannarone v. W.T. Co., 65 N.J.

Super. 472, 476 (App.Div.), certif. den. 35 N.J. 61 (1961). In precluding litigants who settle their claims for benefits under the Workers' Compensation Act from pursuing a statutory claim to benefits under the education laws, the Assistant Commissioner's decision would have the effect of discouraging such settlements, contrary to public policy.

Thus, although the Commissioner properly refrained from exercising his jurisdiction over the petitioner's claim for sick leave benefits under N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1 while his workers' compensation claim was still pending, we agree with the ALJ that, under the particular circumstances presented herein, the settlement of that claim did not bar the petitioner from continuing to pursue his claim for additional benefits under N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1. We note in that regard that the parties to a workers' compensation case are free to agree in settling such a claim that the claimant is thereby waiving his statutory right to benefits under N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1. In order to be valid, such a waiver must be "the intentional relinquishment of a known right." West Jersey Title & Guar. Co. v. Industrial Trust Co., 27 N.J. 144, 152 (1958). In the case now before us, there is no indication that the petitioner, in settling his workers' compensation claim, made a knowing relinquishment of his statutory right to sick leave benefits under N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1. To the contrary, the petitioner expressly reserved his claim to such benefits. See supra, at 2.

Accordingly, we reverse the Assistant Commissioner's decision to dismiss the petition and remand this matter to the Commissioner for such further proceedings as are necessary to determine the petitioner's claim for benefits under that statute.[4]

Attorney exceptions are noted.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning Commission sought recalculation by the Office of Compliance (Department) of the sum determined by audit to be due to the Department. Commission sought reversal of the decision requiring the Commission to return $90,709 to the Department.

ALJ concluded that the money in controversy was Chapter 192-193 unused funds that had been borrowed for use as teachers' salary differential payments and that those funds had to be reimbursed once the Commission received Teacher Quality Employment Act funds from the State. Commission was to return $90,709 to the Department with interest earned.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own. Commissioner directed Commission to reimburse the Department $90,709, along with any interest earned on such funds. Petition was dismissed.

Record Closed: January 29, 1999 Decided: February 26, 1999

BEFORE BRUCE R. CAMPBELL, ALJ:

In this case, the Middlesex County Education Services Commission, petitioner, (hereinafter, Commission), seeks recalculation by the Office of Compliance in the New Jersey Department of Education, respondent, (hereinafter, Department), of the sum determined by audit to be due to the Department and the Commission seeks reversal of an Office of Compliance decision to require the Commission to return $90,709 to the Department.

The matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education and transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A.

52:14F-1 through -13. The matter was heard at the Office of Administrative Law, Trenton, on January 13, 1999. Counsel timely filed posthearing papers and the record closed on January 27, 1999.

This matter arises from an audit or investigative review of the Commission's nonpublic auxiliary and handicapped services programs, commonly known as Chapter 192-193 activities, for the period July 1, 1988 - June 30, 1995. Through meetings between the parties and other exchanges of information, the remaining issue in the case is the appropriate application of an existing balance of $90,709. The parties agree that these funds are an existing balance of monies the district received under the Teacher Quality Employment Act.

PAROL AND DOCUMENTARY EVIDENCE

The Commission presented its Business Administrator-Board Secretary. He has been in the position for more than eight years and is familiar with audits of the period 1982 through 1988. The witness stated at least one audit was ongoing when he arrived to work in the district.

The witness identified Exhibit P-1, a letter from the Division of Compliance to the Board's counsel dated September 5, 1990. Enclosed with the letter was another letter from the Division of Compliance to the superintendent dated June 15, 1990 and a portion of the audit and report for July 1, 1982-June 30, 1988. The Exhibit represents part of the decision on second appeal concerning balances in the Chapter 192-193 program. In the June 15 document, signed by Edward D. Kent, Chief of the Auditing Bureau, at item C he identifies $90,709 of TQEA funds not needed as of the June 30, 1988 audit, but to be used in future years to adequately compensate teachers in the Chapter 192-193 program.

Kent goes on to say

> Accordingly, your petition to set aside $977,613 of the subject surplus as unspent TQEA funds is dismissed because it is in violation of the law and code. Furthermore, because of the issues you have raised concerning the Chapter 192-193 program and the TQEA funds not being properly allocated, I plan to schedule a full and complete audit of the Commission's TQEA funding during the 1990-1991 school year.

The audit did identify and hold in reserve $90,709. All funds related to that audit have been held by the Commission pending all appeals.

In the first appeal, more than $1 million was returned to the State with interest. In December 1995, an embezzlement was uncovered. In another Compliance audit, the $90,709 again was identified. Again, all funds are retained pending all appeals.

The witness identified P-2, Notice of Determination, Second Level Appeal, Office of Compliance to Board President, April 8, 1998. This letter also refers to the $90,709 as TQEA funds. The Commission had teachers in earlier years who could have been paid, at least in part, with these funds, but the Commission held all monies pending all appeals.

The witness also testified that the $90,709 identified in the earlier audit was held with regular Commission funds, it was not dedicated or held in a special account. The witness identified Exhibit R-1, a letter from the Office of Compliance to the Board President dated June 27, 1997 with the investigative report produced that month attached. The attachment points out that $223,950 was "overstated." That same amount is identified in Exhibit P-2. However, there is no reference in Exhibit R-1 to these funds being TQEA monies. The Commission believed the funds had to be frozen pending the outcome of all appeals.

Scott A. Clelland, a Senior Manager with Ernst and Young, testified. He has been involved in public sector accounting for more than 14 years. In his opinion, the Commission's retention of the $90,709 was consistent with generally accepted accounting principles and appropriate.

The witness is not the auditor of record, but has been involved in this audit appeal. He was not aware of any Departmental order not to expend the funds.

The Department presented Robert W. Ortley, Chief Auditor. He has been in the Investigations and Special Auditing Unit for three and one-half years and has been a supervising auditor for more than six years. He assists the manager of special audits; he does emergent audits, and he directs audits of federally funded programs, such as Title I.

He had his first contact with the district in July 1988 when he served in the capacity of Senior Field Auditor. He calculated that Chapter 192-193 monies had been retained over and above costs to local education agencies (LEAs) who send pupils to the Commission. The witness identified Exhibit P-1, the determination of the audit appeal. Concerning Issue 3, paragraph C, the witness stated that this responds to the Commission argument then made that all monies were TQEA funds and could be retained. Paragraph C recognizes only $90,709 in TQEA funds. The Department did not order the Commission not to spend the $90,709.

As the negotiations and audit processes continued, the Commission returned more than $1 million to the Department. Exhibit R-1 reviews Commission surpluses in the period 1988-1995.

In Exhibit R-1, no TQEA monies are identified. The Commission had not segregated the funds nor had it identified the funds as being TQEA monies.

In the 1980s, the Legislature passed a minimum salaries act. There was an appropriation of State aid to LEAs to assist them in meeting the new minimum salary requirements.

The witness identified the Notice of Determination of April 8, 1998 (P-2). This is the second level of appeal determination concerning the June 27, 1997 audit. The Department's final response is found on page 3 in paragraph 1:

> During subsequent field work at the Commission, Department auditors reviewed the existed collective bargaining agreement between the Commission and the Middlesex County Education Services Association. The minimum staring salary for the Commission teachers during FY 1997-1998 is approximately $30,000. In accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:29-5 et seq. Local Education Agencies must use TQEA funds to compensate for the difference between the starting teachers' salary and $18,500 when the starting salary is less than $18,500.

The response also states:

> The TQEA funds of $90,709 cited by the Commission represents TQEA funds not previously used to compensate for starting salaries that are less than $18,500. Since the current minimum starting salary is approximately $30,000 for Commission teachers, it is inconceivable that these funds can be expended for their original intended purpose. Therefore, the Commission's request to reduce the balance due to the State by $90,709 of TQEA funds is denied.

The witness stated he believed that, at the time Exhibit P-2 was created, the Commission employed no one at less than $18,500 per year. Educational service commissions use accounting systems involving cost centers. The commissions bill sending school districts in an amount roughly equal to the amount the LEAs receive in Chapter 192-193 money.

The original TQEA administrative code provisions provided money for teachers' salaries. Excess TQEA funds were not transferable to any other account. Salaries paid with TQEA monies should not be included in per pupil costs billed to sending districts. This reduces the need for Chapter 192-193 funds and could lead to Chapter 192-193 funds being refunded to LEAs. Chapter 192-193 monies were returned to the Department.

Teachers in the Commission's Chapter 192-193 program did require TQEA funds to raise their salaries to the $18,500 minimum. The monies appropriated then could have been used then. This would reduce Chapter 192-193 expenditures. Chapter 192-193 funds not expended can be used for costs other than salaries, but must remain within the Chapter 192-193 program.

Concerning Issue 3, paragraph c in Exhibit P-1, the District has a right to rely on directions given by Department officials. This communication identified monies as TQEA funds and indicates the funds can be used in future years. The witness conceded that the funds possibly could have been used earlier. However, it is reasonable to "preserve" amounts directed to be returned. The witness believes that Exhibit P-1 says that the Commission could use the $90,709 at the time of the communication.

The Commission accumulated a surplus when it, in effect, charged LEAs tuition as opposed to actual per pupil costs. The original investigation into the present audit (R-1) was prompted by an employee theft. The $223,950 mentioned includes the $90,709 in question. The witness recalls the amount as being the difference between TQEA monies received for 1987-1988 and expenditures actually made. Originally, TQEA involved some retroactivity.

In the 1980s, educational service commissions billed LEAs what LEAs received from the State in Chapter 192-193 money. When the witness looked at the Commission's general ledger, he saw $90,709 unexpended. The Commission requested retroactive use. The money should have been shown as expended, but the Department advised the Commission, in effect, if you use the $90,709 then you will owe us money.

ARGUMENTS

Petitioner

The petitioner asserts the testimony of its Business Administrator-Board Secretary confirms the identification of the $90,709 as TQEA funds in an earlier audit proceeding (P-1). The identity of the earlier fund balance as the sole remaining issue in this matter was confirmed by the Department in Exhibit P-2.

The Administrator testified that, as a result of an earlier audit, the funds were preserved and identified in the Commission's general fund balance to be used upon completion of the audit and audit appeal in accordance with directions of the Chief Auditor, Edward Kent (P-1).

The earlier audit appeal concluded in 1995 when the funds that formed the principal issue of the first audit appeal were returned to the Department, together with accrued interest. These funds exceeded $1,299,000.

The Administrator testified that at or about the same time, as a result of an employee theft, the Commission became involved in the present audit appeal. The present audit first directed the return of $861,037 to the Department. As a result of intermediate appeals, all other issues related to that audit have been resolved. The only unresolved issue is the propriety from an accounting perspective of the identification and retention of the $90,709 during dependency of the first audit appeal and the disposition of those funds.

The Administrator also testified that he believed it was the appropriate course of conduct because the appeal had not been entirely resolved. The Chief Auditor for Special Audits at the Department admitted that the Department is claiming the funds not only as unexpended TQEA funds, but would, alternatively, make claim to them as Chapter 192-193 funds not expended in accordance with the statutory requirements. N.J.S.A. 18A:46-19. This testimony reenforced the Administrator's decision to preserve the monies until all issues had been settled.

The Commission's auditor confirmed that it was appropriate to preserve the funds pending the appeal from an accounting perspective. On the basis of undisputed facts, this tribunal should determine that the holding of the disputed funds at issue was appropriate.

The consequences of holding the funds while the first appeal pended are now addressed. The Department asserts that because these monies no longer can be expended as TQEA funds, they must be returned to the Department (R-1). This position wrongfully penalizes the Commission for acting in a responsible and appropriate accounting manner with respect to the funds. The Commission had a right to rely on Kent's letter which specifically identified the funds as TQEA monies, available for expenditure in future years. The Commission's auditor confirmed the fact that the Commission should and could have relied on Kent's comments as a representative of the Department. The Department's present position is really an extension of the first appeal when it attempts to recapture funds that it had identified as available to the Commission. The delay in the expenditure of these monies notwithstanding, the Commission should now be permitted to retain these monies.

The Commission's auditor also testified that the purpose of the TQEA funds was to retroactively reimburse districts for the difference between the teachers' salaries paid by them and the newly guaranteed $18,500 minimum salary. The auditor confirmed that the Commission must have already expended these funds in prior years in order to receive these funds as reimbursement from the State. Therefore, although the monies were labeled as TQEA funds and available for expenditure in future years, they were in reality reimbursement for prior years' expenditures. The State's position would penalize the Commission where it has already expended these monies in good faith.

Although the present audit has identified these funds as TQEA funds, the Commission's auditor testified that the salaries for which these funds were authorized related to the teaching positions in the Chapter 192-193 program. Therefore, in the event that these funds were expended as TQEA funds, that would have resulted in a surplus in the Chapter 192-193 account in the years in which they were expended. Although this issue was not previously identified in the present audit appeal, it was pursued in cross-examination. The Commission's auditor freely admitted that the Chapter 192-193 program expenditures were not limited solely to teachers' salaries. He confirmed that the Commission could have appropriately expended these funds in other areas and utilized the $90,709 in earlier years for other than teachers' salaries, provided the expenditures were related to the Chapter 192-193 program. Finally, the auditor confirmed that his review of the records in connection with the first audit appeal verified that there were a sufficient number of teachers against whose salaries these TQEA funds could have been applied.

Based upon the foregoing, the Department's request to return the funds should be denied and the Commission should be permitted to use the funds prospectively based on its appropriate accounting practice of preserving these funds for expenditure in the Chapter 192-193 program in future years.

Respondent

The Department asserts that on February 15, 1989, it issued an audit report of the financial accounts and internal controls of the Commission for the period July l, 1987 - June 30, 1988. The Commission appealed the results of this audit, first via the Department's internal appeals process and then by filing a petition with the Commissioner of Education. During the appeal process, a letter containing the findings of the Department's first level audit review was written by Chief Auditor Edward D. Kent, to the Commission Superintendent. The letter identified $90,709 of TQEA funds not needed by the Commission as of June 30, 1988.

Ultimately, the 1987-1988 audit was finalized when the Commissioner ordered the Commission to refund $1,299,100 to the Department and that decision was affirmed by the State Board of Education and by the Appellate Division.

In 1995, the Department again audited the Commission. It conducted a review of the Commission's Chapter 192-193 program for the period July 1, 1988 - June 30, 1995. In June 1997, the Department issued an investigative report that concluded that the Commission owed the Department $861,037. The Commission appealed the audit determination arguing, among other things, that the existing fund balances should be reduced by $90,709 representing the TQEA funds identified in the 1987-1988 audit, but never isolated. On April 8, 1998, the Department issued a second level appeal determination that rejected the Commission's argument. This case followed.

At hearing, the Commission argued that the $90,709 was kept frozen pending the final determination of its appeal of the 1987-1988 audit and again frozen because of the 1988-1995 audit. The Commission seems to believe that it would fair to allow it to apply the money to teachers' salaries now. The argument must fail for several reasons. First, it was unreasonable for the Commission to freeze the TQEA funds. Second, the Commission failed to keep the funds in an isolated account. Third, the funds have long since been expended for teachers' salary differential payments and teachers' salaries. Fourth, retention of the funds resulted in double billing to the sending school districts. Last, using the funds now would be contrary to the purpose and provisions of the TQEA.

It was not reasonable for the Commission to freeze the $90,709 after it received the June 15, 1990 letter from Kent. In Issue III, paragraph C, the letter states

> Our original audit, however, did not identify and hold in reserve $90,709 of TQEA funds not needed as of the June 30, 1988 audit, but to be used in future years to adequately compensate teachers in the Chapters 192/193 program. (P-1).

The letter clearly informs the Commission that the $90,709 was not counted as money owed to the Department and that the Commission could use the money in future years for teacher compensation. All witnesses at hearing agreed that the Department never directed the Commission to freeze those funds. Given the clear content of the June 15, 1990 letter and the Commission's own belief that the funds were TQEA money, retaining the funds in a comingled account pending resolution of the audit was unreasonable, and provides no basis for the Commission to use the funds at this time.

The Commission presented no evidence that it had, in fact, frozen the TQEA funds identified in 1990. The Commission's business administrator testified that the $90,709 was never isolated in a named or dedicated account. It was comingled with Chapter 192-193 funds. Also, the Department's audit for the period July 1, 1988 - June 30, 1995 did not identify any money as TQEA funds. It is thus reasonable to presume that the $90,709 was exhausted, perhaps even prior to Kent's June 15, 1990 letter.

Importantly, the facts in this matter are virtually indistinguishable from the facts presented to Judge Tylutki in the first Commission appeal. Middlesex County Educational Services Commission v. State Department of Education, 94 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 234, aff'd, 95 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 302 (App. Div. 1995). Under Judge Tylutki's holding, which was affirmed by the Commissioner, TQEA funds must be used first when funding teachers' salary differential payments. To the extent that the Commission made teachers' salary differential payments in the period following June 30, 1988, that money had to be drawn from TQEA accounts. "If any Chapters 192/193 funds were used by the MCESC for the . . . teachers' salary differential payments, those funds were borrowed for this purpose and the Chapters 192/193 account had to be reimbursed once the TQEA funds were received by the MCESC." Id. at 237. Thus, even if the $90,709 was identified as TQEA money, it would have had to be used to reimburse Chapter 192-193 funds expended after June 30, 1988. In short, TQEA funds are drawn first for the purpose of making teachers' salary differential payments and any funds remaining in a comingled account must be Chapter 192-193 money.

As to whether the Commission could retain any unused TQEA funds, Judge Tylutki held that "[i]f the MCESC had presented proof that it had received more TQEA funds that it needed to make the January 1988 payments, it would be entitled to retain such excess funds in a special account for future teachers' salary payments." Ibid. But, in the present case the Commission has not shown that it placed the TQEA funds in a special account dedicated to teachers' salary payments. Rather, it concedes that the monies were never isolated. If the funds had been dedicated to making teachers' salary payments, they would have been exhausted during the 1988-1989 school year. In simplest terms, the $90,709 can no longer be TQEA money. All of the excess reserve currently in the Commission's account is Chapter 192-193 money that must be refunded to the Department pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:46A-14.

Finally, the Department notes that the type of retroactive funding that the Commission proposes is contrary to the purposes and provisions of the TQEA. Although an educational services commission may charge tuition to sending districts for pupil services, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-62.1, which was in effect at the relevant time, provides that an educational services commission cannot charge money to the sending district to the extent that it has utilized TQEA funds. Collecting money from the sending districts for TQEA funded salaries would be double billing. Thus, to the extent the Commission accumulated TQEA funds without applying them to salaries, it overcharged the sending districts. Further, it is impossible for the Commission to use TQEA funds for their original purpose because the minimum for Commission teachers is now approximately $30,000 and TQEA funds were to be used for teachers' salaries less than $18,500. For that reason, the money should be refunded to the Department so that it can be placed in a general Chapter 192-193 fund and be used to provide services to the State's school children.

DETERMINATION

Chapter 321 of the Laws of 1985 went into effect on September 9, 1985. The Act is known as the Teacher Quality Employment Act. The Act established a minimum salary of $18,500 for teachers. It did not include teachers employed by educational services commissions. Chapter 9 of the Laws of 1986 amended the statute, effective March 28, 1986 to include full-time teachers employed by educational services commissions. Shortly after the amendment, educational services commissions were advised that hourly teachers would not be eligible to receive the minimum salary. However, an opinion of the Attorney General advised the educational services commissions that full-time hourly teachers were entitled to the minimum salary established by the TQEA. Obviously, these things occurred during the period covered by the July 1, 1982 - June 30, 1988 audit.

Careful reading of Middlesex County Educational Services Commission v. State Department of Education, 94 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 234, aff'd, 95 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 302 (App.

Div. 1995), reveals that TQEA funds must be used first when funding teachers' salary differential payments. To the extent that a Commission or any LEA makes teacher salary differential payments in the period following June 30, 1988, that money had to come from TQEA accounts. Obviously, if any Chapter 192-193 funds were used by a Commission for teachers' salary differential payments, those funds were, in effect, borrowed for the purpose and the Chapter 192-193 account would have had to be reimbursed once the Commission received TQEA funds from the State.

N.J.S.A. 18A:6-62.1, enacted at the same time as the TQEA, provides > Tuition rates for the 1985-1986 school year and subsequent years for Educational Services Commissions shall be determined after excluding the applicable salaries funded by Section 7 of P.L. 1985, c. 321 (C. 18A:29-5.6) and shall be certified by the Commissioner of Education.

This provision was repealed by L. 1990, c. 254, §18, effective July 1, 1990. However, it is applicable here because the rights and obligations of the parties are determined by the law in effect at the relevant time.

The Commission insists that the only unresolved issue is the propriety from an accounting prospective of the identification and retention of the $90,709 during dependency of the first audit appeal. The Department says that because these monies no longer can be expended as TQEA funds, they must be returned (R-1). The Commission insists it is inappropriately penalized for acting properly with respect to these funds. The Commission had a letter from Kent specifically identifying the funds as TQEA funds available for expenditure in future years. The Commission's auditor testified that the Commission should and could have relied on Kent's comments.

The present audit has identified the subject funds as TQEA funds. The Commission's auditor insists that the salaries for which the monies were authorized were for teaching positions in the remedial Chapter 192-193 program. Thus, if these funds were expended as TQEA funds that would have resulted in a surplus in the Chapter 192-193 account. However, Chapter 192-193 expenditures are not limited to teachers' salaries. The question then seems to be whether the Commission can use funds that it concedes were never isolated and that were dedicated to making teachers' salary payments, but were not used for that purpose at the appropriate time.

The Department's auditor's testimony is the more compelling. I agree with the Department's argument that receipt of TQEA monies limited the amount of money placed in the reserve account to any funds left over after the teachers' salary differentials were made. The law does not provide any authority for a school district, including an educational services commission, to make the teachers' salary differential payments using other available funds and move TQEA funds to a reserve account. Thus, I accept the Department's testimony that if any Chapter 192-193 funds were used by the Commission for teachers' salary differential payments, the funds were borrowed for this purpose and the Chapter 192-193 account had to be repaid once TQEA funds were received from the State. This would constitute as the Department correctly points out, the receipt of funds from two different sources for teachers' salary differential payments. This is consistent with the holding in Essex County Educational Services Commission v. State Department of Education, 93 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 522, adopted, Comm'r of Educ. (June 8, 1993).

The Commission's argument that it had a right to depend on Kent's representation that the funds were TQEA monies available for expenditure in future years is correct as far as it goes, but overlooks the obvious fact that TQEA monies in future years (if there were any for which the Commission qualified) would necessarily be reduced by the $90,709 amount held. There can be no estoppel where the complaining party has not changed position to its detriment.

In consideration of the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that the $90,709 in controversy is Chapter 192-193 unused funds and that the Commission is to return $90,709 to the Department. The Commission also shall return to the Department any interest earned on this amount.

I expressly FIND no violation by the Office of Compliance of the Teacher Quality Employment Act.

There being no other relief to which the Commission is entitled, I ORDER the Petition of Appeal DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF CYNTHIA PULLEN, BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF CAMDEN, CAMDEN COUNTY

Karen Murray, Esq., for petitioner (Murray, Murray & Corrigan, attorneys)

Keith Waldman, Esq., for respondent (Selikoff and Cohen, attorneys)

Record Closed: March 2, 1999 Decided: March 3, 1999

BEFORE BEATRICE S. TYLUTKI, ALJ:

This matter concerns the charges of abandonment of position and incapacity filed against the respondent, Cynthia Pullen. The petitioner, the Board of Education of the City of Camden, seeks to remove the respondent from her tenure position as a teacher. The respondent requested a hearing and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on August 10, 1998, for a hearing pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

On the date scheduled for hearing, March 2, 1999, the parties appeared and presented a signed stipulation of settlement, which is attached and fully incorporated herein.

The respondent testified that her problems at school, which resulted in the filing of the tenure charges, were due to her addiction to crack and cocaine. Ms. Pullen has participated in an eight-month drug rehabilitation program and she has remained drug-free since she completed the program in November 1998. Presently, Ms. Pullen goes twice a month for additional counseling. In addition, she works with new patients at the rehabilitation center. Ms. Pullen has a positive attitude towards avoiding any future use of narcotics and she is looking forward to a career change. She has taken several civil service tests and is optimistic that she will get a non-teaching position shortly. Ms. Pullen may want to teach again sometime in the future.

Ms. Pullen recognized that by signing the stipulation of settlement that she is resigning her tenured teaching position and giving up her right to a hearing in this matter. Further, she understands that this settlement does not restrict the State Board of Examiners from taking action as to her teaching certificate.

I FIND that Ms. Pullen candidly admitted her prior drug addiction and made an impressive presentation of her commitment to avoid drugs and to seek new career opportunities.

I have reviewed the record and the settlement terms and I FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1, and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement, and ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded. I further note that the parties have agreed to waive the right to file exceptions and cross-exceptions.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

WHEREAS, on or about June 22, 1998, the BOARD certified to the Commissioner of Education charges against PULLIN which it felt under the circumstances, if true, were sufficient to warrant her dismissal;

WHEREAS, on or about July 30, 1998, PULLIN filed an Answer to the charges denying the allegations as stated;

WHEREAS, this matter was listed for hearing before the Honorable Jeff Masin, ALJ, on February 23, 1999 and March 2, 1999 and the Parties having agreed to a means of resolving this dispute in a manner consonant with the public interest; and

1. PULLIN tenders her resignation effective the date that this agreement is fully executed. A copy of the letter of resignation is attached as Exhibit A to this stipulation. The BOARD accepts PULLIN's resignation effective on the resignation date and hereby agrees that all of its official records shall reflect that the reason for PULLIN's leaving the BOARD's employ was that she resigned "in good standing." directed to the Department of Human Resources and parties with such inquiries will be informed that PULLIN resigned as an employee in good standing.

3. The BOARD will provide PULLIN with all salary, benefits and emoluments to which she would otherwise be entitled under the collectively negotiated agreement, federal law and/or state law from November 19, 1998 to the resignation date.

4. The Parties enter into this agreement with the mutual understanding that a formal record will be made of PULLIN's acceptance of the terms of this settlement at the Office of Administrative Law and that, as part of that record, she will have an opportunity to present proofs as to: (a) the knowing and voluntary waiver of her tenure rights; (b) her capacity to make such a waiver and (c) the efforts she has made to rehabilitate herself.

5. The Order adopting this Stipulation: (a) may, in the Administrative Law Judge's discretion, make findings with respect to those proofs and (b) will provide that the BOARD will not refer this matter to the State Board of Examiners for revocation of PULLIN's teaching certificate. The Parties further agree that this agreement is contingent upon approval by the Office of Administrative Law and the Commissioner of Education. Neither party will take any legal action whatsoever that is inconsistent with this Agreement before the Office of Administrative Law or any other forum. Provided, however, that nothing in this agreement is intended to restrict the State Board of Examiners from taking any action it deems appropriate.

6. In consideration of the savings of time, effort and legal expense that this settlement will create, the BOARD agrees to immediately take all steps necessary to convert PULLIN's suspension from June 19, 1998 to November 19, 1998 to an approved leave of absence without pay. The Board will not be responsible for making any contribution to the Teachers' Pension and Annuity Fund ("TPAF") for this leave period, but Pullin is free to do so should TPAF permit her to.

7. PULLIN agrees that she will not hereafter apply to the BOARD for employment.

8. The BOARD will allow PULLIN to remove personal items from the Cream Elementary School and will not interfere with or impede her from doing so.

9. The Parties agree that they and their officers, agents, and administrators will be bound by a covenant of good faith and fair dealing with respect to performance under this Stipulation.

10. This Stipulation constitutes a full release of any and all claims of either Party against the other. Specifically, PULLIN forever releases the BOARD from any and all complaints, charges, liabilities, demands, debts, accounts, obligations, promises, suits, actions, causes of action, demands in law or equity, including claims for damages (including but not limited to back pay and front pay), equitable relief, and attorney fees or costs, which PULLIN now has, or claims to have, or which PULLIN at any time hereafter may have, or claim to have, whether presently known or unknown, arising at any time, up to and including the date on which she signs the document. PULLIN specifically releases the BOARD from any claims she has or may have had under New Jersey Law Against Discrimination or the federal Americans with Disabilities Act. Nothing in this paragraph is intended to operate as a release, waiver, or forfeiture of PULLIN's rights, and the BOARD's obligations under: (a) any state worker's compensation act or statute, or (b) any State of New Jersey retirement, pension, savings, or 401(k) plan in which PULLIN is a participant;

11. The PARTIES forever releases each other from any and all complaints, charges, liabilities, demands, debts, accounts, obligations, promises, suits, actions, causes of action, demands in law or equity, including, but not limited to, claims for damages, equitable relief, attorney fees or costs, which the BOARD now has, or claims to have, or which the BOARD at any time may have had or claimed to have had, or which the BOARD at any time hereafter may have, or claim to have, whether presently known or unknown, arising at any time, up to and including the date on which this document is signed on its behalf.

13. The Parties agree to waive exceptions.

14. The Parties agree that this document constitutes their full understanding. It is agreed that there are no other understandings or agreements (either written or oral) which would have any impact upon the present action.

15. By signing this agreement, the Parties certify that they have had the opportunity to discuss this Stipulation with counsel. They are fully satisfied with the services of their counsel with respect to both this Stipulation and all other aspects of this case and they enter into this Stipulation knowingly, willingly and without any coercion or improper inducements.

16. The Parties further agree that this agreement is contingent upon approval by the Office of Administrative Law and the Commissioner. Neither Party will take any legal action whatsoever that is inconsistent with this agreement before the Office of Administrative Law or any other forum.

-3a-

17. By signing this agreement, each signatory represents that she or he is a Party or has been duly authorized by a Party to sign on that Party's behalf.

18. The Parties agree that this Stipulation may be signed in counterparts and that facsimiles of signatures will have the same force and effect as original signatures.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF CYNTHIA PULLEN,	:
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
CITY OF CAMDEN, CAMDEN	:	DECISION
COUNTY.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law in the form of a joint stipulation of settlement have been reviewed.

Upon thorough and independent review of the record of this matter, and in full consideration of the circumstances surrounding respondent's admitted absence from her position as a second grade classroom teacher as a result of her undisputed addiction to crack and cocaine, as well as her subsequent enrollment, and apparent re-enrollment, in a drug rehabilitation program, the Commissioner is compelled to reject the proposed agreement as it is currently structured. In so doing, the Commissioner is mindful of his exclusive authority to decide tenure matters, which authority necessarily entails his scrutiny, evaluation and approval of proposed settlements (In re Cardonick, decided by the Commissioner April 7, 1982, affirmed State Board of Education April 6, 1983, 1990 S.L.D. 842, 849)

Here, the agreement provides that, upon respondent's resignation from the Board's employ, all of the Board's official records shall reflect that she resigned "in good standing," (paragraph one) and the Board will further provide respondent with a letter of reference indicating that she resigned "in good standing." (paragraph two) A copy of that letter is appended to, and made a part of, the agreement. (Exhibit B) However, based on the total record before him, and recognizing that respondent indicates she may want to return to teaching in the future (initial decision at p. 2), the Commissioner cannot sanction the characterization of respondent's resignation that the parties so propose, as such terms do not "adequately protect the public interest and in no way jeopardize the interests of New Jersey's public school students." Barbara Holder v. Board of Education of the Township of Piscataway, Middlesex County, State Board of Education, decided April 7, 1993.[1] (See also, In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of John H. Wagner, Office of Employee Relations, Department of Human Services, Woodbine Developmental Center, Commissioner Decision, November 13, 1991; Commissioner Decision on Remand, January 15, 1993, aff'd State Board of Education, October 5, 1994, where the Commissioner rejected and remanded for plenary hearing a tenure settlement which provided for respondent's resignation "in good standing," notwithstanding that respondent promised not to apply for any position with any institution operated by the Department of Human Services. Although respondent denied engaging in behavior which formed the basis of the charge of conduct unbecoming a teaching staff member, such resignation terms were determined inadequate to carry out

[1] Distinguish, Barbara Holder v. Board of Education of the Township of Piscataway, Middlesex County, State Board of Education April 7, 1993, where, in a dispute which did not involve tenure charges brought against a teacher, and where allegations as to the teacher's underlying conduct were not as serious as those in the instant matter, the terms of the settlement agreement were found to be consistent with law, and the parties' agreement to alter petitioner's evaluation documents, upon her resignation, were nevertheless found to adequately protect the public interest.

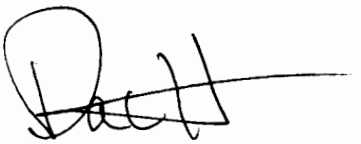
the Commissioner's responsibility to all children in New Jersey, not merely to those in the district from which the charged teacher resigned.)

Additionally, the Commissioner underscores that it is his duty, upon rendering a final decision, to refer tenure determinations to the State Board of Examiners for possible revocation of respondent's certificate pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6. To the extent paragraph five of the proposed settlement may be otherwise interpreted, although the Board will not make such referral, it may not exonerate itself from its duty to cooperate in any proceedings or action which the Board of Examiners may undertake.

While the Commissioner does not preclude the possibility of settlement in this matter, he stresses that in order for him to meet his own obligation to the schools and children of this state, he must be assured that any settlement is consistent with appropriate standards for setting aside tenure matters as expressed in Cardonick, supra. Accordingly, the proposed settlement is rejected for the reasons expressed herein.

Accordingly, the Commissioner hereby remands this matter to the Office of Administrative Law for revision of the documents consistent with the concerns set forth above. If the parties are unwilling or unable to reach accord on a modified agreement for submission to the Commissioner, the matter shall proceed to a hearing on the merits.[2]

IT IS SO ORDERED.



COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

[2] This decision, as the Commissioner's final determination in the instant matter, may be appealed to the State Board of Education pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-27 et seq. and N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.1 et seq., within 30 days of its filing. Commissioner decisions are deemed filed three days after the date of mailing to the parties.

THE ELIZABETH BOARD OF EDUCATION
AND RAYMOND HILDEBRANDT

This agreement is between Raymond Hildebrandt and the Board of Education and the City of Elizabeth, Union County, New Jersey.

1. Mr. Hildebrandt agrees to withdraw, with prejudice, all claims pending and future in the matter entitled Hildebrandt v. Elizabeth Board of Education, Agency Docket No. 123-4/97, OAL Docket No. EDUOA 05471-97N or based on the same operative facts as this matter.

2. Mr. Hildebrandt agrees to forgo all claims to back pay related to this matter or based on the operative facts of Hildebrandt v. Elizabeth Board of Education, Agency Docket No. 123-4/97, OAL Docket No. EDUOA 05471-97N.

3. Mr. Hildebrandt shall be given a comprehensive examination, at Board expense, by a physician specializing in back injuries, to be mutually agreed upon by the parties.

4. The physician shall be asked to render a written opinion as to whether Mr. Hildebrandt is capable of performing all the duties of custodian for the Elizabeth Board of Education, and shall be provided with the custodian's job description. Mr. Hildebrandt or the Board may also provide any other relevant medical documentation for review by the physician.

5. This opinion shall be binding on the parties, with Mr. Hildebrandt being reinstated, with seniority but no back pay to the position of the custodian, if the physician renders a written opinion that Mr. Hildebrandt is capable of performing his job duties without any significant limitations. The record of this matter, along with an initial decision and a copy of a settlement agreement, was returned by the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on March 5, 1999. Although the initial decision indicates that the parties were attempting to resolve this matter, and "[o]n February 1, 1999, [they] submitted the attached Settlement Agreement [b]etween the Elizabeth Board of Education and Raymond Hildebrandt " (initial decision at p. 1), the document appended to the initial decision could not represent the settlement agreement reached in the within matter, since the appended agreement was signed by the parties in March 1998. Rather, the Commissioner notes that the agreement appended to the initial decision appears to resolve a prior matter, Hildebrandt v. Board of Education of the City of Elizabeth, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 05471-97,[1] and further appears to be the very subject of the within Petition of Appeal.

[1] The within matter is docketed as Hildebrandt v. Board of Education of the City of Elizabeth, Union County, OAL Dkt. No. 9211-98.

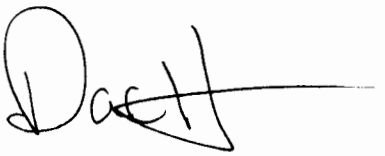
Inasmuch as neither party submitted exceptions to the initial decision, the record is devoid of explanation with respect to the proceedings in this matter, and neither party responded to calls seeking clarification, despite repeated attempts, this matter is hereby returned to the OAL for further proceedings, as necessary, and appropriate disposition.[2]

IT IS SO ORDERED.



COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

Record Closed: March 1, 1999 Decided: March 1, 1999

BEFORE JOHN R. TASSINI, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Respondent Manalpan-Englishtown Regional School District Board of Education (BOE) declined to renew the contract of employment of petitioner, formerly a teacher in the BOE's school system. Petitioner filed a petition alleging that the BOE's action was wrongful and demanding that the BOE offer her a contract for the next school year, etc. As shown in the attached "Stipulation of Dismissal with Prejudice," the case has been settled.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On September 15, 1998, the petition was filed with the Department of Education. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9. On October 5 and 15, 1998, the BOE's answer and amended answer to the petition were filed with the Department. The Department transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) where, on October 16, 1998, it was filed as a contested case. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11, N.J.S.A. 52:14B-2(b). By letter dated October 27, 1998, the petitioner's present attorney entered his appearance, submitting a substitution of attorney form. The case was assigned to me and, on November 4, 1998, I sent a letter to the attorneys scheduling discovery, etc. The attorneys advised me that they were negotiating a settlement and, on the record closed date, the "Stipulation of Dismissal with Prejudice" was filed in the OAL.

FINDINGS OF FACT

In her petition, petitioner made allegations, including the following: From September 1, 1996 to June 30, 1998, the BOE employed her as a 10 month employee teaching in the BOE's elementary school. The BOE notified her that it would offer her another 10 month contract. Thereafter, the BOE notified her that her principal recommended that the BOE not offer to her another 10 month contract. Thereafter, the BOE notified her that its administration would like to discuss with her job performance. Thereafter, such a meeting was held and the BOE set up a program to monitor and support her. Thereafter, the BOE notified her that, despite some improvement, her principal recommended that the BOE not offer to her another 10 month contract. Thereafter, the BOE provided to her a statement of reasons why she would not receive another 10 month contract, the BOE afforded her a hearing, and the BOE decided it would not offer her another contract. The BOE's actions were based on her "Southern View" of the world and her African-American race.

In the BOE's answer, it denied allegations of wrongdoing, alleged that it acted lawfully and demanded dismissal of the petition.

The attorneys represent and I find that the parties have intelligently, voluntarily and lawfully agreed to the following settlement terms: The BOE will pay to petitioner 30 days' pay. The petitioner agrees to the dismissal of all charges against the BOE. The petitioner has executed a release of all claims, etc., against the BOE and her attorney is holding it in escrow. Upon approval of this settlement, petitioner's attorney will convey the executed release to the BOE's attorney.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Settlement will avoid time and expense for both parties which would be incurred in fully litigating complicated factual and legal issues.

The parties have intelligently and voluntarily entered into the settlement which is consistent with law and which disposes of all issues in controversy. N.J.A.C.1:1-19.1.

ORDER

I ORDER the parties to comply with the settlement agreement and I ORDER the petition withdrawn.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF TIMOTHY KASONY, LAWRENCE TOWNSHIP SCHOOL DISTRICT

James F. Schwerin, Esq., for petitioner (Carroll, Weiss & Josephson, attorneys)

Michael T. Barrett, Esq., for respondent (Bergman & Barrett, attorneys)

Record Closed: March 4, 1999 Decided: March 5, 1999

BEFORE BRUCE R. CAMPBELL, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF CASE

The Lawrence Township Board of Education certified tenure charges of excessive absenteeism and incapacity against Timothy Kasony, a custodian, to the Commissioner of Education.

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on December 1, 1998 for a hearing pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 through -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 through -13.

After notice, a prehearing conference was held and prehearing and hearing schedules were established in accordance with the Tenure Employees Hearing Law, as amended, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 through -18.1

Opening arguments were heard on February 4, 1999. The time for discovery was lawfully enlarged and a second day of hearing was set down for March 4, 1999. Upon reopening of the record, counsel presented and read into the record a stipulation of dismissal without prejudice premised on Kasony's successful application for disability retirement to the Public Employees Retirement System.

The parties have agreed to this and have prepared the attached stipulation.

I have reviewed the record and the stipulation and I FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures.

2. The agreement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law. The respondent is not charged with wrongdoing or any act of moral turpitude. The Board's right to refile the charges should disability retirement be denied is preserved.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and therefore ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded. I further note that the parties have agreed to waive the right to file exceptions and cross-exceptions.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

	STIPULATION OF DISMISSAL WITHOUT PREJUDICE

IT IS HEREBY AGREED by and between the undersigned counsel for the parties hereto as follows:

1. Timothy Kasony ("respondent") has agreed to apply for disability retirement in lieu of continuing his opposition to these tenure charges of excessive absenteeism and incapacity.

2. The Lawrence Township Board of Education ("Board") agrees that it will dismiss the tenure charges against respondent, without prejudice, on the following conditions:

a. Respondent will submit a completed application for disability retirement to the Public Employees Retirement System ("PERS") not later than March 31, 1999. Failure to do so may result in the Board having the right to reinstate the charges as per ¶2(b) below.

b. From the date of the applications to PERS, a grace period of four (4) months will be allowed, subject to extension by written agreement of the parties, during which the Board shall take no action to revive the tenure charges. The record and initial decision by the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) in the form of a settlement, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1, have been reviewed.

Upon such review, the Commissioner rejects the proposed settlement in its present form, in that he cannot accept a term of a settlement which explicitly provides for the parties to waive the statutory requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 et seq. Further, to the extent the parties can agree to adjourn proceedings in this matter pending a review of respondent's application for disability retirement to the Public Employees Retirement System (PERS), they may mutually consent to such an abeyance of proceedings before the OAL.

Accordingly, the proposed settlement is rejected. The Commissioner hereby remands this matter to the OAL for revision of the documents consistent with the concerns set forth above or, if the parties concur, for an abeyance of proceedings pending a determination by PERS on respondent's disability retirement application. If the parties are unwilling or unable to reach accord on a revised agreement or an abeyance, the matter shall proceed to a hearing on the merits.*

Inasmuch as P.A.I. completed a summer school course on August 4, 1998 which permitted him to receive his diploma, the ALJ determined that the within matter is moot.

BEFORE EDGAR R. HOLMES, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The petitioner filed her request for relief challenging the respondent Buena Board of Education's (BOE) decisions regarding her son's placement and grades and the BOE's denial of her son's privilege to graduate. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15, N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13 and N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9 which grants to the Commissioner of Education (Commissioner) the jurisdiction over controversies and disputes arising under school law.

FACTS

Petitioner filed her complaint with the Commissioner on July 7, 1998. On August 4, 1998, the petitioner's son was given his cap and gown and diploma after he completed a summer school course in English. This fact is not in dispute.

It is well established that the Commissioner does not decide moot issues. R.G. v. BOE Caldwell, 1976, S.L.D. 582; G.G. and L.G. vs. BOE Boro New Providence, 1975 S.L.D., 502; Pinkham v. BOE Boro of South River, 1974, S.L.D. 1103.

Because petitioner's son has graduated from the High School the within matter is moot.

Petitioner's request for relief is DENIED.

Since the relief claimed relates to a student who has graduated the matter is moot and is DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

SYNOPSIS

In this consolidated matter, petitioning Education Association of Passaic alleged certain practices of Board of Education regarding the development of Professional Improvement Plans (PIPs), topics and forms for teaching staff members are in violation of N.J.A.C. 6:3-4.3(f)3 and (h)3 because staff must choose PIP topics from a predetermined list of seven to eight topics and the plans do not include a statement of the school district's responsibilities in regard to the implementation of the PIPs.

ALJ concluded contested Professional Improvement Plan practices are not in compliance with N.J.A.C. 6:3-4.3(f)3 because they unduly circumscribe the role of the teaching staff member in the development of an individual PIP. ALJ further concluded that the PIP forms are not in compliance with N.J.A.C. 6:3-4.3(h)3 because the PIP forms do not include space for a written statement of the district's responsibilities for implementing the PIP as required by that regulation. ALJ ordered Board (1) to cease providing a predetermined list of topics for PIPs, (2) to develop PIPs based upon the individual teaching staff member's areas of performance strengths and needs for improvement, and (3) to include in all PIPs the responsibilities of the school district for implementing the PIPs.

Commissioner adopted initial decision as the final decision in the matter.

v.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF PASSAIC, PASSAIC COUNTY,
Respondent.

(Balk, Oxfeld, Mandell & Cohen, attorneys)

Matthew J. Michaelis, Esq., for respondent

Record Closed: February 2, 1999 Decided: March 12, 1999

BEFORE RICHARD McGILL, ALJ:

The Education Association of Passaic (petitioner) challenges certain practices of the Board of Education of the City of Passaic (respondent) in regard to individual professional improvement plans for teaching staff members. Specifically, petitioner contends that respondent's practices are inconsistent with N.J.A.C. 6:3-4.3(f)3, which requires that an individual professional improvement plan be developed by the supervisor and the teaching staff member, and with N.J.A.C. 6:3-4.3(h)3, which defines the individual professional improvement plan as a written statement which includes, inter alia, the responsibilities of the school district for implementing the plan. Respondent maintains that its practices are in compliance with the pertinent regulations.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner filed two petitions with the Commissioner of Education pursuant to the authority conferred by N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9 to hear and determine controversies and disputes arising under the school laws. The first petition was filed on November 24, 1997, and pertained to respondent's practices in regard to individual professional improvement plans at the Lincoln Middle School and William B. Cruise Memorial School No. 11. This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on January 13, 1998, for determination as a contested case.

The second petition was filed with the Commissioner of Education on December 30, 1997, and pertained to respondent's practices in regard to individualized professional improvement plans at School No. 7. This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on February 3, 1998, for determination as a contested case.

Subsequent to transmittal, the two petitions were consolidated, and the matter was scheduled for hearing on January 5, 1999. On January 4, 1999, the parties submitted a stipulation of facts, and the record closed on February 2, 1999, upon receipt of briefs.

ISSUE

The issue in this proceeding is whether respondent's directive setting forth a list of topics for individual professional improvement plans and a related form violate pertinent regulations including N.J.A.C. 6:3-4.3(f)3 and (h)3.

FACTS

The parties stipulated that the facts in this matter are as follows:

1. Petitioner is the certified collective negotiations representative of all certificated teaching staff members employed by the respondent.

2. In September, 1977, Lawrence Everett, principal of the respondent's Lincoln Middle School, issued to the professional staff members at Lincoln Middle School a memorandum (Exhibit A) with regard to the development of a professional improvement plan (hereinafter "PIP"). He also issued to each professional staff member the attached form (Exhibit B) which was required to be filled in with regard to the PIP.

3. In September or October 1997, Doris A. Spivey, principal of the respondent's William B. Cruise Memorial School No. 11, issued to all professional staff members the attached PIP worksheet (Exhibit C) as well as the attached PIP form (Exhibit D) to be completed.

4. In November, 1997, Rafael J. Fraguela, principal of the respondent's School No. 7, issued the attached PIP form (Exhibit E) to all teaching staff members to be completed.

5. In October, 1998, Dr. Jose Tirado, principal of the respondent's School No. 14, issued the attached PIP form (Exhibit F) to all teaching staff members to be completed.

Exhibit A states as follows: "All Professional Improvement Plans (PIPS) must be geared toward improving a teacher's ability to implement the State CORE Curriculum. All teachers must choose a Professional Improvement Plan topic from the following list [of seven items]." Exhibit B asks the teacher to answer three questions in regard to professional improvement plans but does not call for a statement of the school district's responsibilities in regard to the development of a professional improvement plan.

Exhibit C contains the following language: "PIP TOPICS - All teachers must choose a Professional Improvement Plan (PIP) from the list [of eight items] below. (Other topics must first be approved by Mrs. Spivey.)" Exhibit E contains almost identical language. Exhibits D and F are almost identical to Exhibit B.

LAW AND ANALYSIS

The applicable regulation is N.J.A.C. 6:3-4.3, which provides in pertinent part as follows:

> (a) Every district board of education shall adopt policies and procedures requiring the annual evaluation of all tenured teaching staff members by appropriately certified personnel (see N.J.S.A. 18A:1-1; N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.3).
>
> (b) The purpose of the annual evaluation shall be to:
>
> 1. Promote professional excellence and improve the skills of teaching staff members.
>
> 2. Improve pupil learning and growth; and
>
> 3. Provide a basis for the review of performance of tenured teaching staff members.
>
> (c) The policies and procedures shall be developed under the direction of the district's chief school administrator in consultation with tenured teaching staff members and shall include, but not be limited to:
>
> 1. Roles and responsibilities for implementation of the policies and procedures;
>
> 2. Development of job descriptions and evaluation criteria based upon district goals, program objectives and instructional priorities;
>
> 3. Methods of data collection and reporting appropriate to the job description including, but not limited to, observation of classroom instruction;

4. Observation conference(s) between the supervisor and the teaching staff member;

5. Provision for the use of additional appropriately certified personnel where it is deemed advisable;

6. Preparation of individual professional improvement plans; and

7. Preparation of an annual written performance report by the supervisor and an annual summary conference between the supervisor and the teaching staff member.

(d) These policies shall be distributed to reach tenured teaching staff members no later than October 1. Amendments to the policy shall be distributed within 10 working days after adoption.

(e) The annual summary conference between supervisors and teaching staff members shall be held before the written performance report is filed. The conference shall include, but not be limited to:

1. Review of the performance of the teaching staff member based upon the job description;

2. Review of the teaching staff member's progress toward the objectives of the individual professional improvement plan developed at the previous annual conference;

3. Review of available indicators of pupil progress and growth toward the program objectives; and

4. Review of the annual written performance report and the signing of said report within five working days of the review.

(f) The annual written performance report shall be prepared by a certified supervisor who has participated in the evaluation of the teaching staff member and shall include, but not be limited to:

1. Performance areas of strength;

2. Performance areas needing improvement based upon the job description;

3. An individual professional improvement plan developed by the supervisor and the teaching staff member;

4. A summary of available indicators of pupil progress and growth, and in statement of how these indicators relate to the effectiveness of the overall program and the performance of the individual teaching staff member; and

5. Provisions for performance data which have not been included in the report prepared by the supervisor to be entered into the record by the evaluatee within 10 working days after the signing of the report.

(g) These provisions are the minimum requirements for the evaluation of tenured teaching staff members.

(h) For the purposes of this section:

. . . .

3. "Individual professional improvement plan" is a written statement of actions developed by the supervisor and the teaching staff member to correct deficiencies or to continue professional growth, timelines for their implementation, and the responsibilities of the individual teaching staff member and the district for implementing the plan;

. . . .

Petitioner argues that respondent's practices are not in compliance with N.J.A.C. 6:3-4.3(f)3. Petitioner notes that this regulation requires that the supervisor and the teaching staff member develop the professional improvement plan. Additionally, the professional improvement plan is supposed to be individualized to the particular teacher to enable him to correct deficiencies or continue professional growth. In contrast to these requirements, respondent's practices limit the teacher to a choice from a list of items selected by the principal. According to petitioner, this practice unduly limits the role of the teacher in the selection of topics for the professional improvement plan and does not provide an opportunity to address deficiencies on an individualized basis.

Petitioner also contends that respondent's practices are not in compliance with N.J.A.C. 6:3-4.3(h)3. In accordance with this regulation, the individual professional improvement plan should include a statement of the responsibilities of the school district for implementing the plan. However, the form utilized by respondent does not provide for a statement of the responsibilities of the school district.

Respondent maintains that it is in full compliance with the pertinent regulations. Preliminarily, respondent points out that the supervisor and the building principal are one and the same in the schools relative to this matter.

Respondent argues that the listed topics have been taken from evaluations of teaching staff members as areas for improvement or are otherwise relevant and pertinent items which need to be addressed. According to respondent, the teaching staff members know their deficiencies and therefore the topics that should be included in their individual professional improvement plans. Respondent reasons that therefore the listed topics enable the teaching staff members to choose items relevant to their particular needs. Thus, both the teaching staff members and the supervisor/principal have input in the development of the individual professional improvement plan. At the same time, teaching staff members are prevented from choosing irrelevant topics for their professional improvement plans.

Respondent's argument in regard to compliance with N.J.A.C. 6:3-4.3(f)3 is unpersuasive. Respondent asserts that the listed topics are derived from areas of improvement contained in the evaluations of teaching staff members. One difficulty with this argument is that it is essentially a factual assertion that is not included in the stipulation of facts. Additionally, the list of topics does not necessarily include all deficiencies of every teacher. Respondent also points to language in the pertinent memorandum stating that the teaching staff member may choose a different topic with the approval of the principal. One difficulty with this argument is that this language is not contained in the memorandum for the Lincoln Middle School. Further, the use of word "must" in regard to choosing a topic from the list plainly discourages a teaching staff member from selecting another topic. Thus, respondent's practices unduly circumscribe the role of the teaching staff member in regard to the development of an individual professional improvement plan. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that respondent's practices are not in compliance with N.J.A.C. 6:3-4.3(f)3.

In accordance with N.J.A.C. 6:3-4.3(h)3, the individual professional improvement plan is a written statement which includes the responsibilities of the school district for implementing the plan. The forms utilized by respondent do not have a space corresponding to this aspect of the professional improvement plan, and there is no indication in the facts stipulated by the parties that respondent's practices would otherwise satisfy this requirement. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the forms utilized by respondent in regard to professional improvement plans are not in compliance with N.J.A.C. 6:3-4.3(h)3.

Accordingly, it is ORDERED that:

1. Respondent cease to provide a predetermined list of topics for professional improvement plans.

2. All professional improvement plans shall be determined based upon the individual teaching staff member's performance areas of strength and performance areas needing improvement based upon the job description.

3. All professional improvement plans shall contain the responsibilities of the school district for the implementation thereof.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." SYNOPSIS

Petitioning Board claimed Board member had an inconsistent interest, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-2, necessitating his removal as a Board member, as a result of pending claims in a workers' compensation matter.

ALJ determined, after reviewing applicable workers' compensation statutes, that as the Board member made a claim against the Board which will accrue to the Board member's personal benefit as opposed to vindicating the public's interest, such a claim disqualified the individual from membership on the Board. Thus, the ALJ found that based on the pendency of workers' compensation claims made by Mr. Tullo, he was disqualified from membership on the Board. ALJ ordered his immediate removal.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own and ordered Mr. Tullo disqualified from continued membership on the Board as of the date of this decision.

AGENCY DKT. NO. 197-6/98

IN THE MATTER OF RICHARD TULLO, BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE PINELANDS REGIONAL SCHOOL DISTRICT, OCEAN COUNTY.

Terry F. Brady, Esq., for petitioner, Pinelands Regional School District (Mulvaney, Coronato & Brady, attorneys)

Richard Tullo, respondent, pro se

Record Closed: February 1, 1999 Decided: March 16, 1999

BEFORE JOSEPH F. MARTONE, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner, Pinelands Regional Board of Education, seeks a determination whether respondent, Richard Tullo, a member of the Board, has an inconsistent interest pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-2, necessitating his removal as a Board member, as a result of pending claims in a worker's compensation matter. The matter was submitted to the Commissioner of the Department of Education as a motion for declaratory judgment seeking that the Commissioner determine whether Board member Richard Tullo is eligible to retain his seat on the Board. The Commissioner, by a determination dated July 28, 1998, decided not to consider the matter as one for declaratory ruling pursuant to his discretionary authority under N.J.A.C. 6:24-2.1 and found that the matter should proceed as a Petition of Appeal. The matter was then transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on August 3, 1998, for hearing as a contested case. The matter was scheduled for a telephone prehearing conference to be held on September 28, 1998, but this was adjourned at the request of attorney for petitioner. The matter was rescheduled for a telephone prehearing conference on October 20, 1998. On that date, it was agreed that the parties would make an effort to stipulate to the facts and would submit the matter to the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) for a decision on the Merits. This was accomplished and at the conclusion of submissions the record was closed on February 1, 1999.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

The following is a statement of the facts relative to this proceeding. This statement of facts was prepared by the undersigned based upon the pleadings and was provided to both parties on October 26, 1998. Both parties were given the opportunity to make any additions, changes, or corrections thereto, but neither party did so. Accordingly this is adopted as the Factual Findings in this matter.

1. Petitioner in this matter is the Pinelands Regional Board of Education (Board). The Board, through James Pine, its President, requested that the Commissioner render a declaratory judgment concerning the application of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-2 to a controversy which has arisen by the Board member Richard Tullo.
2. By Resolution adopted by the Board on May 27, 1997, a petition for declaratory judgment was authorized to be filed.
3. Richard Tullo was elected as a member of the board on April 21, 1998, and was duly sworn in by the board secretary Geraldine Townsend.
4. By letter dated April 23, 1998, New Jersey Manufacturers Insurance Company provided copies of pleadings in two pending formal workers compensation claims being pursued by Richard Tullo. (P-5, P-6, and P-8).
5. The first of these claims, having case number 97-033818, is set forth in Claim Petition filed on October 1, 1997 (P-6). The petitioner is Richard J. Tullo and the respondent is the Pinelands Regional Board of Education. In that matter, petitioner alleges that he sustained a leg injury by an accident arising out of an in the course of his employment with the Board. It is alleged that the accident occurred in May 1996, that petitioner stopped work on June 30, 1996, ad that the accident occurred when petitioner was favoring his left knee following surgery in March 1996.

6. Respondent's answer to this claim petition admits that Mr. Tullo was in employment on the date alleged in the petition, but denies that the injury arose out of and in the course of employment.
7. The second claim filed by Richard J. Tullo as petitioner is an application for review or modification of a formal award against the Board as respondent, having case number 96-025879. In that matter, petitioner alleges that he sustained an injury by an accident arising out of and in the course of his employment with respondent. The date of the accident is alleged to be January 16, 1996, and it is alleged that petitioner slipped and fell at the Pinelands Middle School while he was employed as a teacher. He stopped working on that same date.
8. In its answer to the second claim, the respondent states that temporary disability was paid to petitioner from January 17, 1996, through January 31, 1996, and from February 12, 1996, until June 3, 1996, and that permanent disability was paid from January 31, 1996, to February 12, 1996, and from June 3, 1996, to December 6, 1997, the last payment having been made on October 28, 1997. The respondent denies that petitioner's incapacity has increased as defined by N.J.S.A. 34:15-27.
9. In a statement of his position which is attached to the transmittal from the Commissioner's office, Mr. Tullo quotes a New Jersey School Board's Association attorney as indicating that workers compensation is medical-social legislation enacted to protect workers, and that the insurance company involved, previously First Trenton Indemnity Insurance Company and now New Jersey Manufacturers Insurance Company, does not allow the Board to vote, but it makes its own judgments and awards. He asserts that workers compensation is not a law suit against anyone but rather is an administrative proceeding of the Department of Labor which protects individuals. No Board action is ever needed or ever taken on his workers compensation case or in any other workers compensation matter. He also indicates that the issue in the present proceeding would not go to the Ethics Commission because it is not an ethics issue.

LEGAL DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS

This dispute arises as a result of the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-2 which provides:

> No member of any Board of Education shall be interested directly or indirectly in any contract with or claim against the Board, ...

By operation of the aforesaid provision, an individual involved directly or indirectly in any contract with or claim against the Board is precluded from further service as a Board member. Board of Education of the Township of Jackson, Ocean County v. Acevedo, 92 N.J.A.R 2d (EDU) 163. The sole issue before me is whether two pending workers compensation claims filed by respondent who is a former employer of the school district, against the school district, are such claims which disqualify the claimant from membership on the Board of Education.

No case has been located which decides this issue as it relates to workers' compensation claims. There are cases which hold that where a Board member makes a claim against the Board which will accrue to the Board member's personal benefit as opposed to vindicating the public's interest, such a claim would disqualify the individual from membership on the Board. See, Board of Education of the Township of Jackson, Ocean County v. Acevedo, supra, citing Tp. of Holmdel Bd. of Ed., Monmouth County v. O'Connell, Comm'r. Decision (May 10, 1990), wherein a Board member was a named plaintiff in a suit seeking compensatory and punitive damages for alleged negligence and intentional torts committed by agents and employees of the Board against the member's son and also seeking compensation for tuition and transportation expenses incurred while the son enrolled in another school. It was held that by operation of the aforesaid provisions, the individual involved was precluded from further service as a Board member.

Respondent argues that workers' compensation is medical-social legislation enacted to protect workers, and that the insurance company involved with a claim does not allow the Board to vote, but it makes its own judgments and awards. He asserts that workers compensation is not a law suit against anyone but rather is an administrative proceeding of the Department of Labor which protects individuals. No Board action is ever needed or ever taken in any other workers compensation matter. (R-2)

In order to properly assess respondent's arguments and to determine the exact nature of the claim respondent has asserted against petitioner Board of Education, it is necessary to investigate the nature of workers' compensation. Workers' compensation is actually one of the first developed forms of "no fault" insurance. The workers' compensation system began in New Jersey in 1911, although it is was not until 1917 that private employers were required to purchase insurance to cover their liability for industrial accidents. Compensation insurance for all private entities became compulsory under a State-prescribed formula. N.J.S.A. 34:15-71. In certain situations, employers are permitted to obtain and carry their own insurance and become a self-insured entity upon making application to the Commissioner of Insurance and showing financial ability to pay compensation. N.J.S.A. 34:15-77. Employers are given the incentive to obtain workers' compensation insurance by the fact that if they do not they are subject to common-law liability. If an employer fails to obtain insurance, it is possible that a judgment may be obtained against an uninsured employer. See N.J.S.A. 34:15-120.1 et seq.

A claim for workers compensation benefits is commenced by the filing of a claim petition setting forth the facts relating to employment at the time of injury, the injury and its extent and character, and other necessary facts. N.J.S.A. 34:15-51. A copy of the petition is required to be served on the employer and an answer is required to be filed admitting or denying the averments of the petition. N.J.S.A. 34:15-51 and -52. Thereafter, an adversarial hearing is scheduled with respect to the claim and such a hearing is held before a judge of compensation. If the matter is not settled, a decision is issued ordering the payment of compensation or approving the settlement. N.J.S.A. 34:15-58. Hearings take place with testimony under oath, N.J.S.A. 34:15-61, and in all respect the proceedings are adversarial in nature.

N.J.S.A. 34:15-71 and -72 impose upon every employer, except the State or a municipality, county or school district, the requirement to make sufficient provisions for the complete payment of any obligation which may be incurred to an injured employee, or his dependents by one of the methods set forth in N.J.S.A. 34:15-77 and -78. These provisions require that the employer either obtain insurance, or be self-insured. By providing workers' compensation insurance an employer gains immunity from common law negligence actions. Boehm v. Witte, 95 N.J. Super. 359 (Law Div. 1967).

N.J.S.A. 34:15-71 and -72 provide that the State, counties, municipalities, or school districts are exempt from the requirement to purchase an insurance policy. They also have the option of becoming self-insured or they may elect to have no insurance. However, these provisions only exempt these entities from the requirement of obtaining compulsory insurance. They are nevertheless fully responsible to make sufficient provisions for the complete payment of any obligation which may be incurred to an injured employee, or his dependents. See, N.J.S.A. 34:15-43.

Based upon the foregoing, it may be seen that the argument that that a worker's employer has no connection with an employee's claim for workers' compensation benefits is incorrect. Such a claim is clearly a claim against the employer. It is only where the employer obtains compulsory insurance that the employer is protected against liability. In the case of a school district as the employer, the employee's claim is against the school district, and the school district is fully responsible to make sufficient provisions for the complete payment of any obligation which may be incurred to an injured employee, or his dependents by N.J.S.A. 34:15-43. As such, a workers compensation claim is something more than a claim against some third-party insurance entity. Even if there is insurance coverage, the premium paid by an employer such a school district is subject to review and audit, and excessive claims will result in increases in premiums.

In any event, a workers' compensation claim, if successful, clearly results in substantial and material benefit to the claimant and therefore results in disqualification if the claim is being pursued by a Board member. In such a case, a workers compensation claim clearly accrues to the board members personal benefit. Where a Board member makes a claim against the Board which will accrue to the Board member's personal benefit as opposed to vindicating the public's interest, such a claim disqualifies the individual from membership on the Board. See, Board of Education of the Township of Jackson, Ocean County v. Acevedo, supra.

Accordingly, under these circumstances, I FIND that based upon the pendency of workers' compensation claims made by Richard Tullo while a member of the Board of Education of the Pinelands Regional School District, Richard Tullo is disqualified from membership on the Board of Education.

DECISION AND ORDER

Based upon the foregoing, it is hereby ORDERED that Richard Tullo is hereby disqualified from continued membership on the Board of Education of the Pinelands Regional School District, Ocean County, and he is hereby immediately removed as a member of the Board of Education by operation of law.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 East State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." Susan S. Hodges, Esq., for petitioner (Capehart & Scatchard, attorneys)

Ned P. Rogovoy, Esq., for respondent (Waltman, Reilly & Rogovoy, attorneys)

Record Closed: February 25, 1999 Decided: March 18, 1999

BEFORE M. KATHLEEN DUNCAN, ALJ:

This matter commenced on May 21, 1998, when the Board of Education of the Township of Logan, Gloucester County (hereinafter petitioner) filed tenure charges in accordance with the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11 against Connie Mosley (hereinafter respondent), a tenured teacher. Petitioner certified charges alleging incapacity on a psychiatric basis. An answer on respondent's behalf was filed on September 10, 1998. The answer set forth the following affirmative defense:

> The respondent is unable, medically, to perform her function and is currently housed at the Camden County Health Services Center. She is medically not able to function and has applied for a medical disability retirement.

On September 30, 1998, the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15. A prehearing conference was scheduled for November 19, 1998. On that date the parties advised that the case had been resolved based upon respondent's receipt of ordinary disability retirement benefits. On January 7, 1999, the undersigned wrote to both counsel as follows:

> When we spoke in November you advised me that the above-captioned matter has been settled between the parties. As I indicated at the time, because these are tenure charges, any settlement agreement must be approved by the Commissioner. I am still waiting for your signed settlement agreement addressing the Cardonick concerns so that I may forward the agreement to the Commissioner for his approval. Please have your signed agreement on my desk no later than January 29, 1999. Thank you for your attention to this matter.

A telephone conference call took place on February 10, 1999 wherein the undersigned and both counsel discussed whether respondent was capable of entering into a voluntary settlement agreement. During the conference call it was determined that counsel for petitioner would file a motion for summary decision based upon respondent's receipt from the Teachers Pension and Annuity Fund of an award of ordinary disability retirement benefits; however, by letter dated February 19, 1999, counsel for petitioner advised as follows:

> After consultation with our client, the Board had decided to withdraw it's tenure charges against Ms. Mosley, in light of her disability retirement. Since the Board's withdrawal of the tenure charges effectively ends this dispute, the Board will not be filing a motion for summary decision as was discussed during our telephone conference on February 10, 1999. Thank you for your kind consideration and attention to this matter.

Based upon the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that the within matter should be dismissed without prejudice to the rights of petitioner to file additional charges against respondent in the event that the Board of Trustees of the Teachers Pension and Annuity Fund should at some time in the future determine that respondent should return to duty, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:66-40, because the disability which existed at the time respondent was retired has vanished or materially diminished.

For the foregoing reasons, it is hereby ORDERED that the within matter is DISMISSED WITHOUT PREJUDICE.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, P. O. Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

INITIAL DECISION

SETTLEMENT

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 9385-98

AGENCY DKT. NO. 421-9/98

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF BARBARA LLOYD, SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE HUDSON COUNTY SCHOOLS OF TECHNOLOGY, HUDSON COUNTY

Alexander W. Booth, Jr., Esq., for petitioner
(Brownstein, Booth & Barry, attorneys)

Michael A. Hardy, Esq., for respondent
(Scheurer, Wiggin & Hardy, attorneys)

Record Closed: March 9, 1999 Decided: March 22, 1999

BEFORE MARGARET M. HAYDEN, ALJ:

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) from the Department of Education on October 6, 1998, for hearing as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

After discovery was completed, the OAL held a hearing commencing on January 6 1999. At the hearing, settlement discussion were held and a settlement was reached on January 8, 1999. On January 8, 1999, the OAL held a hearing on the issue whether the proposed settlement should be accepted. Barbara Lloyd (Lloyd) testified that she fully understood and voluntarily agreed to the terms of the settlement. In addition the parties prepared a stipulation of settlement which is attached and fully incorporated into this decision. The Board subsequently approved the terms of the settlement.

Based on my review of the record and the testimony of the hearing I FIND that the proposed settlement is consistent with the public interest for the following reasons:

1. Lloyd has been employed by the Board since September 1, 1980. She has been properly certified and has acquired tenure.

2. During the 1996-97 and 1997-98 school years, Lloyd worked at the Earl Byrd Center of the Hudson County Schools of Technology in Jersey City. While teaching classes there she was accused of using derogatory and offensive language in reference to the principal of the school and some students. The school Board charged her with conduct unbecoming a teacher as the term is used in N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 and charged that this conduct merited her dismissal.

3. After two days of hearing, the parties became convinced that it was in the public's interest to cease the ongoing hearing and settle the matter. The hearing was scheduled to proceed for several more days and to have more teachers and students testifying against their former teacher. Under the terms of the proposed settlement as well as at the hearing, Lloyd acknowledge that she had made inappropriate personal statements concerning the principal during class for which she accepted a 120-day suspension. Lloyd stated that at times she had made statements to students which may have been interpreted as disrespectful but that disrespect was not intended. The Board will give Lloyd a reorientation training program upon her return to work and the parties will exchange Releases satisfactory to their counsel.

4. At the hearing, Lloyd responded appropriately to questions and was not under any emotional stress or duress. Before entering into the agreement, Lloyd fully understood her rights and had an adequate opportunity to consult with her able legal counsel.

I CONCLUDE that the terms of the settlement are in the public interest.

ORDER

It is ORDERED that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings are hereby concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.
